Pitt Schools' Expense Budget Is Larger

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education has approved a $6,734,617 current expense budget for 1983-84 that represents a 1.87 percent overall increase over the 1982-83 fund.

The county appropriations portion of the budget, however, remains the same for 1983-84 as in 1982-83 — $4,684,087. Differences in individual areas are due to difference in budget preparation from 1982-83 and 1983-84 and the county schools recent administrative reorganization.

The budget, presented and approved the the board's monthly meeting Tuesday, will now be submitted to the Pitt County Commissioners for approval.

The budget calls for the following expenditures, including state and county monies, in individual areas:

•Regular instructional programs, (teachers salaries, Social Security, retirement, instructional supplies) $1,909,624. In 1982-83, $2,025,271 was received.

•Special instructional programs, (exceptional children) $181,962 ($101,320 in '82-83).

•Vocational education, $1,058,460 ($1,073,284 in '82-'83) and $92,721 in non-matching (92,491 in '82-83); handicapped, $20,238 ($20,188 in '82-83); school dropouts, $5,947 ($5,931 in '82-83); disadvantaged, $92,906 ($85,679 in '82-83).

•Pupil support services, attendance, $9,084 ($9,063 in '83-84); guidance, $34,045 ($33,964 in '82-83); health services, $41,280 ($41,227 in '82-83).

•Instructional staff support services, (includes associate superintendent, supervisors, office personnel salaries) $78,971 ($95,251 in '82-83); vocational director, $29,493 ($27,808 in '82-83); media services, $31,499 ($29,193 in '82-83); board of education, attorney, travel, membership dues, etc., $17,400 ($16,153 in '82-83); superintendent salary, $33,931 ($33,854 in '82-83).

•School administration and support services, office of principals, $258,052 ($241,312 in '82-83).

•Business support services, $434,445 ($428,910 in '82-83); operation of plant, $981,745 ($918,174 in '82-83); transportation, $15,000 ($15,000 in '82-83); maintenance of plant, $1,194,282 ($1,130,748 in '82-83); staff services, $63,232 ($62,378 in '82-83); data processing, $34,646 ($33,810); community schools, $115,654 ($103,158 in '82-83).

School Superintendent Eddie West called the budget "fiscally very sound."

"I feel like it's a very tight budget," he said. "When you consider the increase in utilities, electrical service, etc., it (the current expense budget) really has a negative growth factor."

Bishops Believe Pastoral Letter To Make Impact

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops believe their watershed pastoral letter denouncing nuclear weapons will have broad impact on the nation and draw wide ecumenical support from other Americans who fear the menace of the bomb.

"Many other religious groups have indicated their support," said Cardinal Joseph L. Bernardin, who steered the newly adopted message through two years of preparation beset by competing pressures, including those of the Reagan administration.

The Chicago cardinal added: "We have addressed a very critical issue facing our society. It is one of the most important undertakings of the bishops in a long time."

By an overwhelming secret ballot of 238 to 9, leaders of the country's 51 million Catholics late Tuesday approved the teaching letter renouncing nuclear warfare and the arms race and challenging U.S. nuclear strategies.

The bishops directed their appeal not only to Catholics but to all Americans, calling for the equivalent of a freeze in nuclear arms expansion and deep cuts in superpower arsenals, and repudiating the use of nuclear weapons.

"A nuclear response to either a conventional or nuclear attack can cause destruction which goes far beyond 'legitimate defense,'" the bishops said. "Such use of nuclear weapons would not be justified."

The 44,000-word letter, "The Challenge of Peace: God's Promise and Our Response," says nuclear weapons threaten U.S.-Soviet "mutual suicide" and "the destruction of the world as we know it."

"We must continually say 'no' to the idea of nuclear war," the letter says.

Grounded in theological and Biblical premises, as well as Pentagon facts gathered through consultations, the document is a comprehensive analysis of the moral imperatives of the nuclear age.

Archbishop John R. Roach of Minneapolis-St. Paul, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said the document sets a "very strong position on peace" for the church, calling it to greater efforts in that cause.

The stance underlined a modern historical shift in American Catholicism, which in the past has regularly sanctioned the country's military policies.

"It points a new way," said Bishop Bernard Law of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Mo., an ecumenical expert. "Many other Christians and Jews share our appeal to the nation."

Defer Pay Boost Action

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission and the City Council, at a joint meeting Tuesday night, postponed a decision on how much money, if any, will be included in city and GUC budgets for 1983-1984 to provide general pay increases for employees.

GUC Director Charles Horne said that, because of inflation, city and commission employees are "working for 8 percent less" now than they were in 1981, the last time employees received a general pay hike.

He noted that Wilson employees received a 5 percent pay increase this fiscal year and are expected to receive 4 percent in the coming fiscal year, while Rocky Mount employees are expected to receive a 5 percent increase in January 1984. Goldsboro workers, he said, were raised 5 percent this year and are expected to receive 3 percent to 5 percent in the coming year, while Washington employees are expected to receive 4 percent to 6 percent in the coming fiscal year.

Horne noted that he would like to see employees receive a 5 percent increase in July. He said such an increase, based on the present $1 million GUC payroll, would cost the commission $200,000, while a like increase would cost the city $318,000.

Mrs. Meeks told the group that, while she would like to see workers' pay increased, "our revenues have decreased and our expenses are up."

"It's not a matter of what we would like to do," she said, "it's a matter of what we can afford."

She said at the present, the 1983-1984 proposed city budget includes "no new positions, no new programs," and practically no money at all for capital outlay items such as equipment, vehicles, street improvements.

"I'm looking at January," she said, for a possible 2½ percent general wage adjustment "if we can find the money."

For the past several years, the council and utilities commission have coordinated their pay plans in an effort to provide equal treatment for employees.

The council and commission are jointly financing a pay and classification study scheduled to begin in May or June. But the study will not be completed until October or November.

Two Awarded Scholarships

Lisa L. Wang of Rose High School, and Joseph Glen Buck of D. H. Conley High School have been awarded college-sponsored four-year Merit Scholarships.

In announcing their selection, the National Merit Scholarship Corp. in Evanston, Ill. said they were among some 2,000 high school seniors selected as finalists from 15,000 participants designated as semifinalists last fall.

Miss Wang, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Wang of Greenville, received a four-year college scholarship to Washington University, St. Louis. Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Glen Buck Jr. of Winterville, will attend East Carolina University.

Miss Wang has been active in several activities at Rose High, including the position of editor-in-chief of the school newspaper and membership in the National Honor Society. She is also president of the International Club, attended Governor's School, and was a scholar student in several programs. She writes a weekly column for The Daily Reflector and belongs to the Quill and Scroll Club. Her primary interest is in the field of medicine.

Buck, who has been interested in music since early childhood, plans a career field in music composition and performance. He has been selected for many honor music positions, including All-State Symphonic Band for three years, North Carolina Honors Band two years, and performance with other high school students nationally in Europe. He belongs to the National Honor Society, the Pitt County 4-H Club and the Conley Math Team. Additionally, he is president of Proclaimers, a Pitt County Christian Young People's Group.

ALASKAN EMPLOYMENT CHANCES — ALL BUT NIL

The Alaska Department of Labor has issued a warning urging job seekers not to look to Alaska for work this summer. "There is no worker shortage here," Commission of Labor Jim Robison said.

Advertisements have been placed in various publications offering high-paying jobs or information for sale on Alaska jobs. "Each year," Robison said, "many job seekers have based their decision to come north on inaccurate or incomplete information and find that no jobs are available here. Their limited food and housing dollars disappear then at an accelerated rate because the cost-of-living is high here."

"We welcome you to come and visit," he said, "but bring enough cash or a return ticket home so you do not run the risk of getting stranded."

He added that the Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline Project, under discussion for several years, is indefinitely on hold due to the economic climate and the high cost of construction.

France Rejects Including Their Missiles With Those Of Allies

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist Party chief Yuri V. Andropov is offering to count warheads as well as missiles in striking a balance between Soviet and NATO nuclear forces, but the possible concession was greeted warily in Washington.

The State Department said it welcomed Andropov's announcement as a "sign of progress" if he indeed was accepting the U.S.-endorsed basis for determining nuclear strength. But the department said there were ambiguities in Andropov's remarks that could represent "a hardening of the Soviet position."

Andropov, during a banquet Tuesday night honoring East German leader Erich Honecker, said the Soviet Union "has stated readiness not to have in Europe a single missile and a single plane more than possessed today by NATO countries."

"In other words, we stand for the USSR to have no more missiles and warheads mounted on them than on the side of NATO."

In Washington, the State Department said U.S. negotiators would pursue Andropov's offer when arms talks resume in Geneva, Switzerland, on May 17. But the department's statement said the United States and its allies cannot accept Andropov's continued demand "for the right to maintain nuclear forces equal to all other states combined."

The reaction today from West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl also was cautious.

Kohl, departing from the prepared text of a major policy speech to Parliament, said the Soviets still have not given their "last word" on arms reduction and he urged both superpowers to "probe all possibilities" when the negotiations in Geneva resume.

If the arms talks fail to produce an agreement, West Germany is scheduled to receive the 204 of the 572 new U.S.-produced, missiles scheduled to be deployed in five NATO countries starting later this year.

Karsten Voigt, a foreign policy expert with the West German opposition Social Democratic Party, said Andropov's offer represented "considerable progress" that could increase the chances of a U.S.-Soviet arms agreement.

A spokesman for the French Foreign Ministry said in Paris that the Soviet Union had not made the "exact content" of its proposal clear, but added France "is not a partner" at the Geneva arms talks and will not allow its nuclear forces to be included in any U.S.-Soviet agreement.

It is "unacceptable for us that forces of a third party be taken into account," he said.

Imposter Said At Large

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson and Willie Pate of the county Health Department reported today that a young man, apparently in his 20s, visited at least three homes in the county Monday posing as a water inspector for the health office.

Tyson said the man apparently gained entrance to one of the homes, occupied by a woman, saying he was there to test the water. Once inside, Tyson said the man allegedly put his arm around the woman, who ran from the house to a neighbor's home and called the sheriff's department.

Pate said that all county health department personnel carry identification cards containing their pictures, signed by the state and local health directors. All drive vehicles with the county seal on the sides, according to Pate.

Tyson and Pate urged women who are approached by anyone identifying himself as a health department representative to make sure they display proper identification and to call the sheriff's department if there is any problem.

Tyson said the three county incidents took place around the middle of the day Monday. Investigation is continuing, he said.

Dear Abby Woman Wants Clean Upper Lip

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A reader wrote that she was shocked to see her elderly friend laid out in her coffin with a very conspicuous moustache and wondered why the funeral director left it that way. You said because he wanted her to look "natural."

Abby, you obviously are not aware that many older women have a hard time keeping a clean upper lip — myself included. I do hope that when my time comes, some loving person will remove the hair from my upper lip. I wouldn't want to be caught dead with my moustache showing.

LOOKING AHEAD AT 72

DEAR LOOKING: I have been bombarded with letters from women telling me that no woman wants to look that natural. I admit I was not aware that so many women were afflicted with facial hair. And surely not to the extent that one writer indicated. How's this for a hair-raising situation?

DEAR ABBY: You apparently have little insight into the plight of many women who suffer from a hormone imbalance.

I am 42 and have been so afflicted since I was 18 due to an incurable ovarian disease. It has been a constant nightmare. It limits everything I do, including my work schedule. It undermines my feelings about myself as a woman, even though I am attractive, sensual and sexually normal. I had to accept the fact that I would never have children during my marriage, too.

I must shave three times a day — hence a split shift at work helps me to "save face." I cannot go camping unless I'm assured of privacy and hot water. I can't go on a day trip or stay overnight at friends unless I take a razor along.

I have tried everything on the market including hours of painful electrolysis, but nothing has worked for me.

I have often feared being incapacitated in a hospital and unable to shave. I also feel the same way regarding death. I wish my face to be as clean and feminine as I have kept it in life. There were times I wish I'd lost an arm or a leg instead of having to go through this daily battle of being what society calls "abnormal."

Please print this. And if any funeral directors read it, please don't ask us to suffer after death as well.

A. IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: You have often alluded to the fact that if anyone has any particular instructions regarding his or her own burial, the instructions should be in writing prior to death.

The recent death and burial of Tennessee Williams is a classic example of family and friends paying absolutely no attention to his instructions.

I would like to know what is the point of making these pre-death instructions when apparently they mean nothing.

FROM MISSOURI

DEAR FROM: You pose a very good question. I, too, would like to know. There should be someone who can fight for the rights of the deceased when his wishes have been clearly stated but are ignored.

But as the law stands, the remains of a person become the "property" of his nearest of kin, who may do with them whatever he so chooses. How outrageously unfair!

DEAR ABBY: How does the gestation period of a cow compare with the gestation period of a human being?

CITY GIRL

DEAR CITY GIRL: Both are approximately 280 days — give or take a few days.

Fiberglass Bathing Fixtures—Care and Tips on Removing Stains

Many bathrooms today are furnished with fiberglass bathtubs, tub/shower combinations or shower stalls with either a shiny mirror-like finish or a textured surface for added safety. These molded bathing fixtures are installed without caulking and grouting. Proper care is needed to maintain their sparkling new looks.

Manufacturers of the fixtures offer the following suggestions for the regular cleaning of the bathroom units. Use a nonabrasive cleaning agent such as an all-purpose household cleaner, bathroom cleaner, liquid cleanser, or baking soda. Abrasive cleaners and pads should be avoided since they may scratch, discolor or dull the surface of the fixture.

Liquid and spray cleaners can be applied full strength to the fixture. For a powdered product, use the following method: Wet the surface first. Make a water paste solution or apply the product to the fixture and let it remain on the surface for a few minutes. Then gently rub the area using a sponge, nylon brush or polyethylene pad. Rinse the unit thoroughly.

Stubborn stains may require a little extra attention. Sponge a stained area with any of the products mentioned above. Let the cleaner remain on the stain for about an hour; then rinse.

Other methods are necessary for some stains. For example, in hard water areas, a mineral deposit could build up. There are products available specifically designed to remove such deposits. Package instructions should be read and followed carefully.

Tough stains such as adhesives, tar, iodine, gentian violet and oil-based paints can be removed with acetone (nail-polish remover) or a paint thinner such as turpentine. Saturate a clean, white cotton cloth with the solution and lightly rub the affected area until the stain disappears. Care should be taken when using these products. They are solvents that will not harm the fiberglass finish but should be used sparingly. Solvents are highly flammable and should not be used near heat or any open flame. Do not smoke while using these products, and work in a well ventilated area. They should not be allowed to go down the drain or come in contact with a plastic drain grate. Use a dampened cloth or sponge to wipe off the treated surface.

To maintain a lustrous finish, one manufacturer recommends conditioning the surface. Rub an automotive white polishing compound applied with a clean cloth to any scratched or dulled areas. Then buff the surfaces with a light application of an automotive white cream wax using a clean turkish towel. It is also suggested that this treatment be done about twice a year in order to maintain an attractive finish.

If Oil, Then Share

The U.S. House committee last week approved a bill which would require the federal government to share 10 percent of its oil and gas leasing revenues with the states off whose shores the oil is found.

The bill was sponsored by Rep. Walter B. Jones and would be of direct benefit to North Carolina. It is estimated it could provide the state government $7.8 million in 1984.

The bill is opposed by the Reagan administration and for North Carolina it is only a part of the battle over offshore oil exploration. Interior Secretary James G. Watt is proposing to sell 5,718 oil and gas drilling tracts off the North Carolina coast in July. A portion of the tracts are being opposed by Gov. Hunt on the basis that they would be a hazard to environment and tourism.

There are plenty of concerns about offshore oil drilling off North Carolina. Many citizens still have memories of sunken oil tankers in World War II with their cargos of oil washing on our beaches. It can happen from a well pumping offshore.

If the Reagan administration is determined to go ahead with the oil drilling leasing, then certainly it should be willing to share a modest amount of the proceeds with North Carolina citizens who must face the risk to their coast line.

The Jones bill calling for sharing of the oil and gas drilling revenues should be approved.

Need Is Still There

Despite a national commission report about the sad state of the nation's schools, Gov. Jim Hunt says North Carolina schools are getting better, not worse.

He has statistics on his side to back the claim. Achievement test scores are showing an improvement in the state and Hunt says, "Our students are learning more, not less."

However, Hunt said the state should lengthen its school day and year, more qualified teachers must be found and some teachers should work year round.

There no doubt has been improvement in North Carolina's schools and, most would agree, there is room for still more. Our teacher's salaries are too low and too many graduates still get out of high school with less skills than are needed to get along in life.

We trust our schools are improving, but there is certainly much that needs to be done.

Drawing The Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the Republican Senate struggles to settle on a new federal budget it is drawing some of the lines that will shape the 1984 election campaign — a point of particular concern to 18 of the 54 GOP senators.

They're up for re-election next year. The budget now up for Senate action, with final terms subject to negotiations with the Democratic House, will be in effect until five weeks before Election Day 1984.

It will determine how big a budget deficit campaigning Republicans, presumably including President Reagan, will have to defend next year. The options are big and bigger, in the $200 billion range.

The only way around that would be to impose a tax increase going into the campaign season, and the only major one available would involve undoing the 10 percent income tax cut due on July 1. It is the third phase of President Reagan's big tax cut package, and he has said he'll veto any attempt to repeal or curtail it.

The House wants $30 billion in new revenues to reduce the deficit gap. The Senate Budget Committee, controlled by Republicans, had gone along with the idea, but that was a tactic to get the disputed budget to the floor, not a signal of GOP intent.

Instead, Senate Republicans worked out an agreement that would spare taxpayers any significant increases in 1984, curtail the defense spending increase Reagan wants, and add as much as $11 billion to domestic outlays.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico, chairman of the Budget Committee, said that was a compromise a majority of the Republican majority ought to be able to accept.

The White House still wants a defense budget closer to the 10 percent increase the president proposed, and more stringent curbs on domestic spending.

But it is probably going to take some Democratic votes to get a budget through the Senate, and whatever emerges there will have to be acceptable to the House, too.

There are other complications, among them the fact that the administration will have to get Congress to hoist the national debt ceiling again no later than the end of May, and the tentative plan of House Democratic leaders to call up a tax bill next month and debate their case against upper bracket tax cuts.

All of that comes as Republicans prepare for what could be a tough campaign to extend their lease on the Senate, where they have been in command since Reagan was elected. Their prospects are closely tied to the economic recovery, although the comeback is not going to spare them Democratic heat over an unemployment rate likely to be in the 9 percent range during the election year.

Republican National Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf says Senate elections will be a major challenge next year "because we are more exposed than the Democrats are." There are 19 currently Republican seats at stake, 14 Democratic.

Two incumbents, Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee and Democratic Sen. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia already have said they will not be running again.

Fahrenkopf said that if economic recovery continues, "those Republican senators facing the voters with a strong, healthy economy are going to be in a lot stronger shape than perhaps they appear to be today."

The budget will be a factor in that, too. Reagan has argued from the beginning of his term that his budget and tax policies would lead to an economic rebound. Those are the policies at issue as Congress wages the 1983 round of the budget debate.

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over the inflation-recession crisis of the past few years has pushed aside the issue of productivity, or production efficiency.

But now as recovery proceeds, productivity concerns are rising again, because if productivity doesn't increase, then inflation must certainly will.

From 1945 to 1965, a decade of rising prosperity, U.S. productivity rose at an average annual rate of 3.2 percent. By RALEIGH — Should the public be allowed to sit in when legislators plan the strategy they'll use in a conference committee? Or, should legislators have the right to keep those meetings closed?

That question arose in the Legislative Building recently as a conference committee prepared to start working out the differences in the drunken driving packages passed by the House and Senate.

The House and Senate delegations to the conference committee have been criticised in the state press for formulating their separate negotiation strategies in closed session. One editorial went so far as to brand the legislators as "gutless wonders" for meeting out of public view.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, got so angry over that editorial that he accosted the offending newspaper's legislative reporter in the hallway outside the House chambers. Adams said the paper didn't understand the conference process and had unfairly called into question the commitment to open meetings which he and several other conference committee members have long had.

In an interview, Adams said he knew of no other legislative body in the free world which held conference strategy meetings in public. The N.C. General Assembly, like those in most other states, defer to the U.S. House of Representatives' rules on conference committees. U.S. House rule 28 says joint conference committees with the Senate shall be open but does not require strategy meetings of the House conferees to be open.

Adams may have had a point about the coverage the closed sessions received. Maybe the point should have been made that closed strategy meetings are a regular procedure and that these meetings were nothing out of the ordinary. But the simple reason that everybody else does it this way is not justification for continuing to hold these meetings in private.

As the reporter who argued with Adams pointed out, these committees are doing public business. The House conferees were deciding which of their points they'd stick to dearly, and which they would compromise away when they met with the Senate conferees. (The joint conference was open.)

This "is not an intramural softball game," the reporter argued, it is public business. The chips they bargain away can't be added later when the bill comes back to the floor. In these strategy meetings, life and death decisions are made concerning certain segments of the questioned legislation. That kind of business deserves to be conducted in public view.

In an interview, Hugh Stevens, lobbyist for the N.C. Press Association, said that to his knowledge NCPA has never taken a stand on these strategy committees. But, like Adams, his law partner, he questioned how the conference process could work if these strategy sessions were held in public. Joint conferences are adversarial, by their nature, and tipping the other side to your strategy just isn't done in adversarial proceedings.

Stevens went on to say that opening these strategy meetings could seriously undermine the very usefulness of conference committees. That would mean great public harm, he said, because legislation would then end up bouncing back and forth between the houses as legislators sought to eliminate ancillary differences. In the end, legislation which both houses wanted could end up dead because of an inability to agree on specifics.

While it was an interesting debate, it probably will never make any difference. Only the Legislature can change the rule and there appears to be no sentiment in either house for doing so.

"THIS IS THE NEW BEGINNING YOU PROMISED US BACK IN '81?"

Six Here And A Half Dozen There

Q: Why are we in El Salvador?

A: We are in El Salvador to protect it from Nicaragua. The Sandinista Marxist government of Nicaragua is training Salvadoran rebels to take over the elected government of El Salvador with Cuban and Soviet military equipment.

Q: Why are we in Honduras?

A: To train rebels to take over the government of Nicaragua with American equipment.

Q: Then U.S. policy is to defend the government of El Salvador, while working for the overthrow of the government in Nicaragua.

A: That is correct.

Q: How are we doing?

A: Not very good in El Salvador. But much better in Nicaragua.

Q: Would you say it's easier to overthrow a government in Central America than it is to preserve one?

A: I think I could say that.

Q: Why?

A: As soon as a government takes over in Central America it turns against its own people, becomes corrupt, and commits atrocities against its domestic opponents in order to stay in power.

Q: This is true in both El Salvador and Nicaragua?

A: It is with this difference. Since we are supporting the present El Salvador government we have to overlook their shortcomings and abuses to protect our own national interests. At the same time we cannot tolerate the shortcomings and abuses of Nicaragua since they are being supported by the Communists.

Q: Did the Nicaraguans start getting aid from the Communist countries because we were giving aid to the El Salvadorans? Or did we start supporting the El Salvadorans because the Nicaraguans were getting help from the Communists?

A: That's a chicken and egg question. The fact is the U.S. opted to support El Salvador and the Soviets decided to support Nicaragua. Once the sides were chosen it became a whole new ball game.

Q: Central American governments have been overthrowing each other for hundreds of years. The people there fail to benefit no matter who takes over. Why should the superpowers get involved?

A: Because in the past, the revolutions were usually between one faction of the military and the other. Whoever took over always pledged good relations with the United States. As long as we could do business with the new government we saw no reason to intervene. But Central American coup d'etats took a nasty turn once the Cubans got involved. They started training people to support governments who refused to have good relations with us. That's when we had to call in the CIA.

Q: How do you keep the Central American government in power that's dumping on its own people?

A: By supplying the leaders with enough military equipment to make sure they can maintain control.

equipment to make sure they can maintain control.

Q: Do you make any effort to improve the lot of the majority of people who are being dumped on?

A: You try to persuade the government you're supporting that it's in their interests to do this. But that's a long-term process and you can't change a country's habits overnight. They've had a long tradition of dumping down there and up until recently the peasants accepted it as their lot. Now that the Commies have gotten into the act, the people are reacting negatively to being dumped on."

Q: What's wrong with that?

A: Because, as in the case of the Sandinistas in Nicaragua, they came into power promising the people who were dumped on that things would be different under their regime. As soon as they got control they started dumping on the people themselves.

Q: So our choice in Central America is not to stop the dumping, but support the governments dumping on the people who are friendly to us, and destabilize the ones dumping on the people who are in cahoots with Soviet Union.

A: Now you've got it. We can't abide a Marxist government in Central America that dumps on its people, but we can live with one who depends on us to stay in power.

Public Forum

To the editor:

There is art — and magic — in a word of praise. Count your compliments. It's probably the most useful tool of all. Yet today, real praise, — the sincere compliment, valued gold coin of our conversation — is in danger of becoming tarnished through misuse and lack of proper circulation.

What is the true compliment? It's one that benefits both giver and receiver.

A compliment differs from flattery in that it is objective and given without thought of gain; flattery is often mere lip service, or excessive praise given for ulterior motives. Marian Anderson, the great contralto, treasures what she considers her finest compliment. She received an invitation to visit the famous musician, Sibelius, in his home in Finland. She sang for him and, at parting, he bent, kissed her hand and said, "The roof of my house is too low for you."

John Ruskins, 19th-century English essayist, said, "The greatest efforts of the human race have always been traceable to the love of praise. This should be inspired in childhood, but too often parents actually lose the confidence of their children by pointing out only defects and mistakes. The wise parent makes it a point to compliment a child when he deserves it. Parents, commend virtue and you will find few vices to condemn. Children aren't alone — all around us are people who are aching for a word of encouragement. If people do their jobs well, tell them about it. Give them this needed sense of importance. Thus, the good compliment is specific, to the point. It tells why you appreciate it. It should be highly personalized. Timing, too, is important. Don't wait too long to tell a person what a good sermon he preached or how well he cut your grass, trimmed your hair, cooked your dinner, or typed your letter. Remember that a good compliment has greater purchasing power than money, that no one is too busy or too successful to receive a word of appreciation.

Citations To Pitt Scouts At Camporee

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Approximately 320 Scouts representing 17 Pitt County troops took part in activities last weekend at the annual East Carolina Council Camporee held at Camp Bonner-North.

Three of the Pitt troops camping in the county's Gold Area earned council camporee citations. They were: Troop 550 of Winterville, for campsite excellence; Troop 30 of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Greenville, for Indian lore; and Troop 34 from Ayden, for campsite excellence.

Bill Plueddemann, Gold Area chief, said that 16 patrols out of 32 in the area earned blue ribbons, based on accumulating over 1,700 points out of a possible 2,000. He said the patrol level judging involved various areas, including campsite appearance, service projects, courtesy to judges, and excellence in performing events. Points were also earned for attendance at the recent scout show at Pitt Plaza.

Area adult leaders from the county who assisted Plueddemann included Wayne Ross, scoring chief, Wayne Bryant, registrar, Bernard Haselrig and Ben Gibbs, events chiefs, and Leon Gipson and Charles Wright, camp inspection chiefs. Troop 25 from Farmville handled cooking chores for the headquarters staff.

Some 300-400 Scouts attended Sunday church services, conducted by the Rev. Lee Parker of Farmville.

The camporee attracted about 2,500 Scouts from throughout the council and close to 1,000 visitors attended Saturday's activities.

Heber Adams of Greenville served as overall camporee chief.

FOCUS

A Musical Master

This weekend marks the 150th anniversary of the birth of Johannes Brahms, the great German composer. Like so many masters of music, Brahms was a child genius. By the age of nine, he was a gifted pianist and a budding composer. His first piano recital brought him fame at 15, and, by the time he was 20, he had composed some of his greatest piano pieces. Though Brahms spent the last 30 years of his life in Vienna, his German roots provided much of his inspiration, and some of his most beautiful works are based on the German folk songs he heard in his youth. By the time of his death in 1897, he was recognized worldwide as one of the geniuses of the romantic era.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the popular name for Brahms' well-known "Wiegenlied?"
TUESDAY'S ANSWER—Affirmed was the last "Triple Crown" winner in 1978.

Farmville Board Holds Sewer Service Decision

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

The Farmville Board of Commissioners decided Tuesday to hold off on a decision to make sewer service available to a proposed $1.5 million apartment complex west of Farmville.

Bob Deans of Farmville, who represented Melvin Melton of First Palmetto Co. of Lancaster, S.C., told board members that sewerage costs to the town would vary from $65,000 to $235,000. He said any money the town put into the project's sewerage system would be returned in 12 months from sewer connection fees, real and personal property taxes and water and sewer utility bills of tenants.

Even though board members said they liked the proposed plan because of the growth it would cause the town, they were skeptical about getting the sewerage costs back in a year.

In other business:

- A public hearing was held to receive comments suggesting uses for revenue sharing funds for the 1983-84 fiscal year. Suggestions were made by citizens to use the money for the elderly and new lighting on the tennis courts.

- A motion was made to make a decision by next Tuesday on who will administer Farmville's Community Development Program. Only McDavid and Associates submitted a proposal, but board members wanted to interview others before a final decision was made.
- Commissioners voted to follow the recommendation of the Farmville Planning Board to rezone 500 West Wilson St.

- An ordinance was adopted that will require a building inspector to repair or demolish a structure at 406B W. Perry St. A $500 contingency fund and a 30-day compliance date were included.
- The board approved revised electric rate schedules for temporary electric service and seasonal service for better clarity and less confusion to customers.
- An emergency standby electric rate to be used when the prime service fails was approved. A customer under this rate will be billed only the monthly basic customer charge of $6.75.
- The board authorized the purchase of materials and necessary contractor assistance to install 750 feet of ductile iron pipe along U.S. 264 Business.
- Repair of 16 aerators at the Wastewater Treatment Plant was authorized. Funds were appropriated from the water and sewer fund balance.

- Members approved the purchase of an air compressor from A.E. Finley and Associates for $1,830.
- The construction of a well house over the Lang's Crossroads well was approved so that chlorination and other equipment can be installed. There is $2,000 budgeted for this construction.
- Members ratified Mayor W. Russell Duke's action of approving the phase one and two reports of the Industrial Pretreatment Inventory and Program. Duke had approved the reports on April 18.
- A resolution was adopted authorizing the town administrator to sign the necessary papers and to otherwise represent the board in connection with mosquito control. Bill Oakley was designated the licensed public operator for the program. It is estimated that Farmville will spend $14,514 on mosquito control in fiscal year 1983-84.
- The board authorized the town administrator to sign a customer support agreement with Governmental Programming Services based on the fact that it is composed of personnel who have provided the best software computer service in the past.

- A resolution was adopted that authorizes an exchange of property between Farmville and Cary.
- The board adopted an ordinance revising, consolidating, elaborating and adding to chapter 10 (fire protection and regulation) of the ordinances of the town of Farmville.

Everybody Assumed 7 Children Getting Help

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Neighbors, social workers and police knew that seven children were living alone in a rat-infested shack, but for four months they all assumed someone else would take care of the problem, officials say.

"This is a case that just slipped through the cracks," Fort Lauderdale Police Chief Ron Cochran said Tuesday. "There are just too many things to be done. The detectives are too busy to be all things to all people."

Police Tuesday rounded up the last of the seven brothers and sisters; aged 2 to 17, who had lived alone for five months in a filthy shack. They were placed in state custody.

Another five siblings from the same family were living with friends in the neighborhood and also were turned over to state officials.

The children fended for themselves, stealing food and sniffing auto transmission fluid fumes to get high, neighbors and police said.

Detective Norm Eddy said he had known about the children "for three or four months."

Eddy said he frequently called the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to ask that the children be removed from the house, which had clogged, trash-filled sinks and garbage and excrement covering the floors.

"I got no response several times," Eddy told The Miami Herald.

The case came to the attention of state officials after the children's mother, Thelma Jones, was arrested on April 27 and charbed in a robbery. The father, Danny Holmes, was arrested Jan. 11 and convicted later that month of armed robbery in the same case. He was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

The state social worker assigned to the case, Laurette Bechard, refused to discuss the children, saying juvenile cases are confidential.

Elaine Gardner, a social worker for Broward County schools, said she also assumed someone else was handling the problem.

"I felt confident HRS knew about it," Ms. Gardner said.

"Mrs. Holmes was receiving welfare checks so I just thought they would."

Some neighbors said they did not want to interfere.

"That's none of my business," said a next-door neighbor who declined to give her name. "I live here and they live there. I had no concern to go over there and ask them questions."

James Goldsby, who lives across the street, said he called police several times about the children because they would shoot guns or firecrackers at night. Police would end the disturbance and then leave, he said.

"They were the baddest kids on the block, so I didn't like to mess with them," Goldsby said. "I figured I did as much as I could do."

Police spokeswoman Diana Morrisette said the children were being held "for their own safety and protection" and would be placed in a temporary shelter pending a court hearing.

Grandma Could Get Life Term

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 44-year-old grandmother could face life in prison and a $100,000 fine after her conviction for running a drug ring that funneled at least $25 million through Los Angeles banks, prosecutors say.

Barbara Mouzin, of Miami Lakes, Fla., was convicted Tuesday on 19 counts, including running a continuing criminal enterprise.

New ECU PhD Candidate Felt The 'Fishbowl Effect' Before

ECU Medical Writer
"The first."

When the ECU School of Medicine graduated its first 23 physicians in 1981, several were cognizant of what they described as the "fish bowl effect": a feeling that because they were the first graduating class of a new school, they were living under a microscope, were perhaps held to a higher standard by their professors, their peers and a somewhat skeptical public.

Unlike most medical students, they were unable to draw upon the reputation of their school in their careers, but instead were forced to create that reputation for themselves.

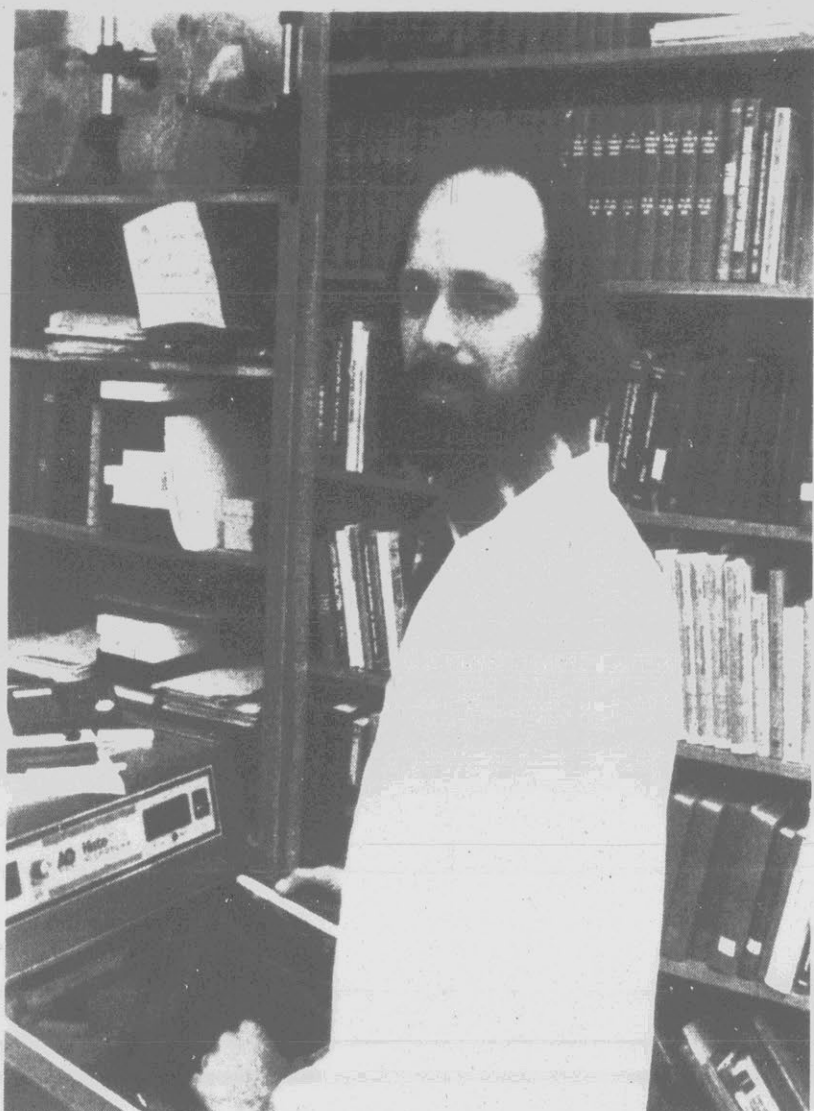

Being the first, with its special honor and its special burden, is a feeling with which Tom Curry is familiar. On Friday, Curry, will receive the first Ph.D. granted by East Carolina University in its 76-year history.

The medical school, which began its academic doctoral program — the only one at ECU — four years ago. The medical school now has 11 students working toward doctorates in five disciplines and expects to enroll 10 more students in the fall.

From a transient "military" family, Curry was born in Hawaii but calls Florida home. He earned his undergraduate and master's degree in zoology at the University of South Florida in Tampa, building on a lifelong interest in physiology and biology.

Curry worked at the National Institute of Health with Nobel laureate Carlton Gadusek. After obtaining his master's degree, Curry enrolled in the new doctoral program at ECU. He said his decision to come here was based in part on personal recommendation — professors he knew who recommended professors here. Another reason was his expectation that the new program would offer a high degree of individualized instruction.

You're not likely to run across a reprint of Curry's doctoral dissertation. The title, "The Role of Ovarian Adrenergic Nerves in Follicular Development in the Guinea Pig," suggests that it will be the exclusive domain of experts in the field. However, the information it provides may prove significant to the understanding of one aspect of reproductive tissues.

THE FIRST ... Tom Curry, a student in anatomy in the East Carolina University School of Medicine, will become the first Ph.D. graduate from the school when he receives his doctoral diploma in graduation exercises at Ficklen Stadium on Friday.

Working under the supervision of Professor Hubert W. Burden, Curry determined, in simplest forms, that heretofore mysterious nerves in the follicles of guinea pigs seem to modulate, or fine tune, the growth of the follicle and its egg. Their influence seems to be more pronounced in young animals and less so in older animals.

Curry is considering doing post-doctoral training at Illinois, Colorado State, The University of Texas at Dallas or Duke.

Mean Looks Win Prize

MARTINSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — Welcome to Sheriff William Kisner's world, where looking mean pays off.

Mark Galbreath, a 12-year-old photographer, captured a national prize for a black-and-white photo of the Berkeley County lawman. The youth says he won because he caught the sheriff at his meanest.

"The Sheriff," which won the $100 first prize in the National Boys Club Photo Contest's junior division, shows Kisner with arms folded, standing between two patrol cars parked in front of the county jail.

"I had him stand different ways, some with his hat off," Galbreath said. "I had him smiling and looking mean, but I chose the one that he looked the meanest in because he looked like he was more in his environment."

The Martinsburg youth was one of hundreds who entered the contest, said Pat Murphy, Galbreath's photography instructor. He said the boys were told to photograph subjects in their natural environment.

"I've never seen a real policeman in action. I think they should be mean to criminals, but not to nice people," Galbreath said.

Ballenger Talks Candidacy To Local Republicans

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer
Cass Ballenger, a Republican state senator from Catawba County, is thinking of throwing his lot into the gubernatorial race this summer and is now busy making contacts throughout the state.

Ballenger said he was a "potential gubernatorial candidate" Tuesday night when he made a stop in Greenville and spoke to local Republicans at the Planter's National Bank branch on Third Street.

Ballenger, who led President Reagan's campaign in North Carolina three years ago, recently introduced a revised open meetings law. The bill, now in a Senate committee, would trim exceptions which allow closed meetings to be held. Under the proposal, government bodies holding closed meetings would be subject to a fine of up to $500 and 60 days in jail. Also, public officials would be liable for opponents' legal fees if a suit were necessary to prove a private meeting took place.

In an interview Ballenger, who is minority leader of the state Senate, acknowledged he is "not an expert on tobacco" but that he is aware of the economics involved. "I recognize that eastern North Carolina and parts of western North Carolina are built on tobacco. It would behoove us to continue supporting the program," he said.

Ballenger said some changes may be in order for the program, but that he would study the issue thoroughly before suggesting solutions. However, he said the majority of the problem lies in competitiveness. "To get this market going, we have to make sure we are competitive with overseas concerns," he said.

If he ever sits in the governor's chair, Ballenger said a primary concern would be education. "Any governor that doesn't approach education as a major issue is either being short-sighted or stupid," he said. At this point, 65 percent of the state's budget goes to education. But, that money is not divided as wisely as it could be, according to Ballenger.

"Basically, the public schools are under-funded whereas the universities and community college system are well funded." He said that more money must be found for the public schools, "but not necessarily at the expense of the universities and community colleges."

For instance, Ballenger said that regional education centers are taking $4 million a year and "aren't accomplishing anything." Government overhead could also be cut to obtain money for the public schools, he said.

Taxes and saving the people of North Carolina money will also be issues in Ballenger's possible run for governor. "Gov. Jim Hunt took the largest surplus in the state of North Carolina and gave it to state employees. I'm not saying that should not have been done, but the money should have been spread out more," he said.

"I am basically a small business man (Ballenger is the owner of Plastic Packaging Inc. in Hickory) so that, coupled with my 18 years in politics, helps me know how to meet payrolls and take care of taxes, something people who have always been in the political arena do not have," he said.

Ballenger said he will continue to be a supporter of Reagan.

"President Reagan is proving to be worthwhile. It took a very strong individual to stand up and do something about the mess the country is in. The problems are not ones that can be solved in one year and the people shouldn't expect instant results, but Reagan's plans are working," he said.

Ballenger and his wife, Donna, have three daughters.

Seeks Open Crime Data

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt is pushing a bill in the Legislature to establish a state commission to oversee computerized crime records.

The latest version of the bill is designed to answer criticism by the North Carolina Press Association and other news media groups of past bills. The groups fear that the commission would close public records.

Most criminal records, including arrest records and conviction records, are open to the public.

But in providing that the records would remain open, Hunt officials have dropped assurances to state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten that any rules considered by the commission would be consistent with federal regulations over criminal information.

Edmisten and his aides, who have long been cool to the idea of the commission, are particularly concerned about the effects of the bill on the Justice Department's Police Information Network.

The state is required to follow federal rules to participate in the FBI national computerized crime system and public access to PIN is restricted.

"I think we'd have real headaches and real problems with it," said David S. Crump, special deputy attorney general, said of the bill.

Pulled Knife In Teacher Threat

RAMSEUR, N.C. (AP) — A 15-year-old student enrolled in a class for emotionally disturbed youths pulled a knife on a teacher and threatened her, before surrendering Monday to a policeman, authorities said.

The incident began about 12:40 p.m. Monday at Cave-ness School when the youth pulled a knife in class and refused to give it up. After much coaxing, the teacher persuaded the youth to put away the knife.

Police disarmed the youth and charged him with assault with a deadly weapon.

'House Parent' Is Sentenced

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A former house parent at a group home for youths with behavioral problems was sentenced to 4½ years in prison Tuesday for a sex offense against a 14-year-old boy who lived at the home.

Harold Williams, 23, of Charlotte, was sentenced by Mecklenburg Superior Court Judge Frank Snapp after pleading guilty to a felony charge of sexual activity by a custodian. Under a plea arrangement, four additional sex-related charges against Williams were dismissed.

High Court Bars Return, Benefits For Ex-Judge

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court Tuesday barred former District Court Judge J. Wilton Hunt of Whiteville, who was convicted earlier this year of accepting bribes, from being a judge again or collecting retirement benefits.

Although Hunt, 51, resigned from the bench two months ago, the court also ordered that he be removed from office.

In a unanimous decision, the court adopted a recommendation of the N.C. Judicial Standards Commission that Hunt be removed from office because he accepted $9,000 in bribes from undercover FBI agents during the federal COLCOR investigation.

Hunt was convicted Feb. 2 of racketeering and interstate gambling. He was among 21 people arrested last July on federal charges stemming from the federal investigation, called Colcor.

On Feb. 21, Hunt filed a petition with the state Supreme Court for a hearing on the commission's recommendation. Less than two weeks later, he tendered his resignation to Gov. Jim Hunt.

The court had tried to draw a distinction between "willful misconduct in office" and "conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice." It concluded that Hunt's misconduct would have led to further improprieties.

"No close analysis is required for us to determine that each of Judge Hunt's acts of accepting cash bribes in exchange for his promise to use his judicial office to protect criminal activities is a separate act of willful misconduct in office," the court wrote.

In other decisions handed down Tuesday, the court ordered a new sentencing hearing for Clinton Rondale Kirkley, convicted on two counts of first-degree murder and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious bodily injury.

Kirkley was given the death penalty for the murder charges and ordered to serve consecutive 20-year sentences for the assault charges. His attorneys argued before the court that the death penalties were "excessive and disproportionate punishment" in violation of the 8th and 14th Amendments.

Although the Supreme Court struck down those arguments, it did find the trial judge in error when he failed to instruct the jury on the defendant's mitigating circumstances of no prior criminal history.

"The Legislature has determined in all capital cases the absence of a significant history of prior criminal activity is a mitigating circumstance," the court said.

The court also upheld a lower court decision which claimed Asheville's flood plain ordinance was valid.

Opponents of the ordinance claimed the law violated their constitutional rights to just compensation for "taking of private property for public use."

Also at issue was whether the city ordinance constituted an unlawful exercise of police power.

TRYING DISSIDENT
MOSCOW (AP) — Lithuanian Catholic priest Alfonsas Svarinskas has gone on trial for "anti-state and anti-constitutional activities," Tass reported today.

The ordinance is "reasonably necessary" for public health, safety and welfare, the court said.

The court also upheld the February 1982 murder conviction of Donald Wayne Dellinger. He was found guilty in the slaying of 69-year-old John LaFayette Marlowe in January 1970.

Dellinger's attorneys claimed the state failed to comply with the Speedy Trial Act, erred in denying his motion for a change of venue and erred in admitting certain evidence.

Satellite 'Lineup' Said Success For Police Use

By LARRY ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP) — A televised police lineup beamed by satellite from California to Maryland was a money-saving success, even though no witness could identify a suspect in a 1982 slaying, officials said.

Law enforcement officials said the live, closed-circuit broadcast was the first such transmission between states.

Sacramento County Sheriff Robbie Waters said the federally funded project cost about $2,600, compared to the $4,000 it would have cost to transport the inmate and guards to Maryland.

One or more witnesses in the homicide-sex offense case viewed the lineup

Monday on a large television screen at the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting, said Dana Levitz, assistant state's attorney for Baltimore County. He would not say how many witnesses were present.

"I was very pleased with the quality of the lineup (picture) and the fact that witnesses are able to get a very good look at the lineup in a less intimidating atmosphere," Levitz said Tuesday night. "It made the lineup more reliable."

The transmission was arranged by the Public Broadcasting System.

A public television station in Sacramento, KVIE, transmitted the picture from the Sacramento County jail to station KQED in San Francisco, which in turn relayed the signal via satellite to Owings Mills.

While the witness or witnesses viewed the lineup, detectives in Sacramento and Owings Mills remained in touch by telephone, said

Sidney Tishler, director of telecommunications at the Maryland broadcast center.

"We didn't nab anybody, but technically everything went as it was supposed to," Tishler said. "We had a perfect picture of the lineup. The assistant state attorney general here said it's the wave of the future."

Levitz said the investigation involves the murder of a 57-year-old woman last March in Baltimore County.

The prosecutor said a man awaiting trial in the Sacramento prison on two rape charges was a suspect in the case. That man, whom he did not name, was among five people included in the police lineup.

Levitz said he believed a warrant had been issued for the suspect, but he was not sure if it had been executed.

Sees Marriage, Fitness Linked

NEW YORK (AP) — The newly crowned Mrs. America, aerobic dance instructor Susan Goodman, sees a link between marriage and physical fitness: both require a lifetime commitment.

The 31-year-old resident of Waverly, Tenn., crowned Mrs. America 1983 in Las Vegas on Friday, told reporters Tuesday, "I'm always telling my aerobic students physical fitness is a lifetime commitment. You can't become physically fit and expect to stay that way without constant work and effort."

"To me marriage is or should be a lifetime commitment," she added. "You can't go into a good marriage and expect to keep it a good one unless you're willing to work at it."

When a publicity man asked her to change into her bathing suit to appear before photographers, the new Mrs. America wrinkled her nose and said, "I really don't like this part, parading my body around ... even though I am proud of it and work hard at keeping fit."

Her husband, Scott, smiled his approval and said, "She has a better figure now than she's ever had."

'Space Seeds' Growing Faster

GREENWOOD, S.C. (AP) — A researcher says he is surprised that some vegetable and flower seeds carried into space aboard the shuttle Challenger are growing more quickly than similar seeds kept on Earth.

Jim Alston, research director for the George W. Park Seed Co., said Tuesday that some potato, tomato and sweet alyssum seeds taken on the shuttle grew faster than their earthbound counterparts, but corn that went into orbit is germinating 10 percent more slowly than usual — perhaps because of heat from re-entry.

The seeds, flown to test the possibility of growing food for permanently staffed space missions, traveled in both foil and Dacron bags, in sealed containers and exposed to conditions in space, said Alston. The different growth rates were "something we had not expected," he said.

Program On Cutoff List

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Unless the state can come up with more money, Durham County school buses and driver education cars may come to a screeching halt in June.

Dr. J. Frank Yeager, county schools superintendent, told the school board Monday that buses may be stopped in June because of a $35,000 shortfall in state funds, he said.

The shortfall is the result of a 2 percent mandatory cut imposed on schools by the state earlier this year, Yeager said.

The summer driver education program, which serves about 1,000 students, may also be eliminated unless the state finds money for the program, he said. About $25,000-$35,000 needed to run the summer program was not available as of last week, he said.

Most of the state money for county schools was spent before the 2 percent cut was imposed, leaving school officials little room to make the necessary budget cut, Yeager said.

Transportation funds are the only discretionary funds the county schools can cut from to meet the 2 percent cut this late in the year, he said.

Revenues from driver licenses, used to fund the driver education programs, were underestimated this year, he said.

Spy Ship Off N.C. Coast

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A Navy official said Tuesday he isn't surprised by the presence of a Soviet spy ship off the North Carolina coast observing military maneuvers at Camp Lejeune.

"In fact, I anticipate Soviet participation in all of our exercises," Vice Adm. James A. Lyons said. "All their services are free for sending the right message back."

"I'd just as soon have them there because we have a message for them," Lyons added. "And when we do our exercises well, we're sending a message back to the other side that says it just may be too hard, and in so doing, we've raised the level of deterrents without firing a shot. That's what it's all about."

Lyons indicated that the ship also provided American personnel with an opportunity to practice surveillance with its own equipment.

The ship, a Soviet AGI about 250-feet long and equipped with sophisticated intelligence gathering equipment, is located about 12 miles offshore, just into international waters, Lyons said.

The ship is watching Solid Shield '83, a joint training exercise involving all five services. 34 ships, 350 aircraft and 47,000 military personnel, and simulating combat conditions.

Martin Co. Courthouse Unsafe

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners have been informed that the old Martin County Courthouse has been condemned, is unsafe and that persons are to enter the facility at their own risk.

Building Inspector Robert Godard told commissioners this week about the condemnation, but he said the condemned condition would not prevent the county from holding court or some other function inside the building. District Court sessions are being held in the building this week.

It does, however, according to Godard, make it impossible to rent out the building for other types of services unless it is repaired and brought up to State Building Code standards.

County Manager Donnie Pittman noted that the rear portion of the building, which houses the jail, does not fall under the condemnation ruling. Commissioners did not take action Monday on whether to tear the condemned building down or to make efforts to repair and preserve it.

Godard reported, too, that condemnation proceedings are being taken on the Griffin House, a former private home located across the street from the old courthouse. Until recently, the house has been used for county and court-related offices. All of the offices formerly located there have been moved into the new County Governmental Complex.

Commissioners voted to advertise the house for sale and to remove it from the premises so that the property can be made into a parking lot.

The board approved the 1983-84 Secondary Road Program at an expenditure of $290,500 in roadwork with $22,657 held for retainage and overdrafts.

Commissioners held a discussion on the type of bridge to be built over the Roanoke River at a future date. They agreed on the concept that any bridge constructed should not hinder river traffic.

Sam Bullock of Hamilton asked commissioners to consider some type of county zoning. He told the commissioners that, in his situation, chicken houses had been built on property adjacent to his home, creating an unpleasant odor and considerable noise at night.

Commissioners agreed to consider a partial zoning system.

Commissioners went on record opposing proposed legislation that would create a trust fund to be used by county boards of education to work with agencies in child abuse cases. While in favor of the humanitarian concept of the proposed legislation, commissioners say they are opposed to a provision to fund the program that would raise the costs of marriage licenses from $10 to $15 to help pay for the program.

Among resolutions approved by commissioners was one presented by County Attorney William R. Peel that would make it possible for Bertie and Martin counties to add additional counties to use the multicounty jail currently under construction near Windsor.

Crop Reduction Seen Due PIK

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina agricultural official said Tuesday a federal program giving farmers surplus grain for acreage they don't plant will cut grain production nationwide to the lowest levels since the mid-1970s.

James L. Olson, statistician in charge of the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, said preliminary figures indicate wheat output could reach a four-year low, and rice and cotton production could also decrease sharply.

"Heavy enrollment in the regular acreage reduction and PIK programs means large cutbacks in 1983 crops," Olson said.

The PIK program, which gives grain to farmers who agree to cut their planted acreage, is designed to shore up farm prices. But some analysts say it will also harm the farm implements business and other farm-related enterprises.

The preliminary figures showing reductions in feed grain, wheat, rice, cotton and cattle are based on the number of farmers who signed up for the PIK program, Olson said.

Concerns about weak crop prices, surplus stocks and sluggish overseas markets are damping farmers' plans this year, he said.

The number of cattle nationwide on Jan. 1 declined about 400,000 head from a year earlier, abruptly halting the rise in population, he said. North Carolina's cattle population dropped 60,000 head.

Higher grain prices due to the PIK program also may slow or halt hog production increases in 1984, he said.

The crop reporting service, an arm of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, plans to report on acreage planted in North Carolina on June 29. The final national and state estimates will be published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Board.

On July 12, estimates of yield and production for several major crops will be issued.

Teleconference On Trade May 10

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — President Reagan and U.S. trade officials will participate in a satellite teleconference on international trade at North Carolina State University's McKimmon Center May 10.

Reagan is scheduled to participate in a 15-minute question-and-answer session with audiences around the country. Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige and Ambassador of Foreign Trade William Brock will speak live from Paris and respond to questions transmitted on open phone lines.

Businessmen wishing to participate in the conference can call 737-3007, 737-2261 or 737-3373 to reserve a place.

Four Hearings At Council's Session

Four public hearings, including one on an ordinance regulating noise within the city limits, are scheduled for consideration by the City Council at Thursday's 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

In addition to the noise ordinance, the council will also conduct hearings on: a request by Phil Carroll for satellite annexation of a portion of his property known as Carolina Opry House, located on the southwestern side of State Road 1534; a petition by property owners for satellite annexation of sections one and two of Greenridge subdivision, located north of the Greenville Utilities Commission property on the east side of State Road 1204; and

A request by Kenneth M. Buck, Charles H. McGowan Jr. and Janice M. Barbee to rezone one acre, located south of Ninth Street, north of U.S. 264-10th Street, east of Clark Street, from unoffensive industry to downtown commercial fringe.

Other business scheduled includes: consideration of a resolution on the provision of psychiatric services for the community; appointments to boards and commissions; scheduling of a public hearing on a petition for satellite annexation by the owners of Colonial Mobile Home Park, located across from Burroughs Wellcome;

Consideration of three Traffic Commission items; consideration of street acceptances for permanent city maintenance; tax releases and refunds; consideration of amendments to the Utilities budget; adoption of an agreement with the N.C. Department of Transportation for street and highway improvements; and scheduling of a public hearing to amend the thoroughfare plan relative to Brownlea Drive.

The council is holding its regular session a week earlier this month due to an out-of-town meeting the board members will attend part of next week.

Mattel Sues Atari For Secrets Theft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Mattel toymaking company says it has filed a $40 million suit against Atari Inc. and three former Mattel workers for allegedly stealing trade secrets for home video games.

The secrets permitted Atari to build a better cartridge that could be used on Mattel equipment, Spencer Boise, Mattel's vice president of corporate affairs, said Tuesday.

"We allege that Atari and those three defendants — who were former key employees at Mattel and left us to go to Atari — have used some of our trade secrets and confidential information that gives us a competitive advantage with our home video game system," Boise said.

The suit was filed Monday in Superior Court, Boise said. He identified the three former Mattel employees as Eric S. Wels, Russell A. Haft and Michael S. Winans.

All three had been hired by Mattel in 1981 or 1982 and left this year, Boise said.

Atari officials in Sunnyvale declined comment. "We don't ever comment on a lawsuit during the course of it," said Jenny Juhnka, manager of public relations for Atari's electronics division.

A receptionist said Wels, Haft and Winans were, working out of Atari's Los Angeles headquarters, but calls to their offices went unanswered.

Boise said all three had signed agreements with Mattel not to reveal any trade secrets.

He contended that the allegedly stolen trade secrets were used by Atari to help it develop better graphics and improved "game play" in its video cartridges. The Atari cartridges can also be used on Mattel components, thus widening Atari's market, Boise said.

N.C. Democrats Look To 1984 Election Plans

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — As the 1984 elections approach, North Carolina Democrats are analyzing their party organization while implementing a nationwide rule on the male-female composition of their governing board.

The party recently issued its 1983 "plan of organization," which differs little from last year's plan. However, it adds instructions for selecting members of district executive committees in light of 1982 reapportionment that split some counties between more than one district.

Another new rule, approved by the Democratic National Convention last year, is that each county cast equal votes for men and women when electing delegates to the State Executive Committee. Party officials hope that requirement was implemented satisfactorily during county conventions last weekend.

"It's a little difficult to achieve because in some counties the only executive committee member will be the male chairman," said party chairman and state

Sen. Bussell Walker, D-Randolph.

The executive committee is the state party's to governing body, responsible for coordinating meeting dates on the precinct, county and congressional district level and for organizing the state convention.

Prior to Saturday's county conventions, the executive committee consisted of 416 members, including 133 females. It will take at least two weeks to tally votes and determine the new ratio, said Kay Gattis, acting state party executive director.

"There are no penalties if you fail to have exact numerical equality," said Ms. Gattis. "What we're after is evidence that we're making a good faith effort to balance things out."

June Milby, party spokeswoman, said county leaders had encouraged more women to run for the executive board and had tried to avoid pitting men against women.

The new rule on district representation is merely a technical change saying that if a congressional, judicial, or state senatorial or house district is composed of only one county and includes all of the county, then the county executive committee also will be the district executive committee.

If a state senate or house district be composed only of part of one county, then the county will act as the district's executive committee but only people who live within the district will be eligible to cast committee votes.

The rule was needed because in 1982, the Legislature split some counties when redrawing legislative district maps in accordance with the 1980 U.S. Census.

Aftershock Hits Ravaged Town

By CATHERINE WILSON
Associated Press Writer
COALINGA, Calif. (AP) — A strong aftershock rumbled beneath this earthquake-ravaged community today as hundreds of residents spent a second night under the stars outside their ruined homes.

A police dispatcher said there were no immediate reports of damage from the aftershock, one of hundreds felt in the oil and farming community in the San Joaquin Valley, about 150 miles southeast of San Francisco.

The temblor, measuring 4.4 on the Richter scale, shook the area at 12:29 a.m., said Robert Uhrhammer of the University of California seismic center in Berkeley.

At least 300 homes suffered major damage from Monday's earthquake that registered 6.5 on the Richter scale, an initial inspection showed. The preliminary damage estimate remained at $25 million for the downtown business area alone.

"No part of the city is untouched," Mayor Keith Scrivner said Tuesday. But he added, "We can build again, and ge gill."

With hundreds of homes and businesses fit only for the wrecker's ball, many residents slept in tents or on sofa beds set up on front lawns.

Many homes "aren't livable any more, because their foundations, their roofs or their main bearing walls are completely wrecked," said city spokesman Robert Semple.

He said officials planned to post a partial list today for Coalinga's 100 businesses to let them know which buildings are condemned. But he said no condemned list was planned yet for Coalinga's 2,600 houses.

Assessing the buildings were three-man teams representing the California Office of Emergency Services, the Army Corps of Engineers and the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Volunteers joined the teams Tuesday to help those who might be found trapped in rubble. But no one was found trapped, no deaths were reported, and the number reported injured remained unchanged at 47 people.

Although no looting was reported, some elderly people were warned to leave their homes by crank telephone calls that police speculated were from burglars hoping for easy pickings.

Bulldozers cleared streets, convoys of trucks from the California Transportation Department hauled rubble, power was restored and volunteer agencies supplied food and clothing. A brewery supplied 3,800 cases of water in beer bottles.

The state Office of Economie Opportunity allotted a total of $60,000 for houses that needed only simple repairs to make them habitable, said Joe Williams, executive director of the Fresno County Opportunities Commission.

The Red Cross sheltered and fed 30 people at the West Hills Community College, but some slept on the lawn in sleeping bags. Still frightened by the earthquake, they were afraid to be inside.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — BATTLE BETWEEN TWO CROSS
TAILORS IS AN ALTERCATION.

Today's Cryptquip clue: C equals M.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Most Buildings

Waste Energy

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — More than 90 percent of the nation's commercial buildings, which consume some 15 percent of the energy in the U.S., are obsolete in terms of energy efficiency, according to an energy expert.

This waste, says Mike Harrel of Honeywell, could be eliminated almost completely through the use of computerized energy management systems.

Heating practices at the average building, for example, waste about 40 percent of the fuel used and 30 percent of the air conditioning, he says. With a 20 percent improvement in conserving building energy, a great gusher cashed the ace and queen of hearts, pitching a spade and a diamond from his hand. When that suit failed to break and the jack did not come down, declarer switched his attention to clubs. When that suit also behaved unkindly, declarer was forced to concede down one.

Admittedly, South was unlucky to find that the hand with the long hearts also held four clubs, but his line of play was correct only had the contract been seven no trump. At six no trump, declarer could and should have taken a safety play to insure his contract.

Suppose that, at trick two, declarer cashes the king of hearts and then ducks a club! East would win and revert to diamonds, but declarer would be in charge. He would win in hand and cross to dummy with the ace of clubs. His losing diamond and spade would go on the high hearts, and declarer could return to his hand with a spade to run clubs and claim his slam.

Dates Back To Gusher In 1901

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil here dates its beginnings to the nation's first classic "gusher," a wildcat well drilled in 1901 near Beaumont, Texas.

In a black plume of oil twice as tall as the derrick, the "Spindletop" well spewed nearly a million barrels of oil into the air before it was brought under control.

A major oil field developed near the well by Gulf's founders helped establish Texas as a leading oil producer.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today, following through on Tuesday's late rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 4.74 to 1,212.75 in the first half hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by almost 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average rebounded from a drop of about 10 points at midday to finish with a 3.68 gain.

Analysts said the upswing drew some of its impetus from indications of a good reception for new debt securities being sold by the Treasury.

If demand for government securities is strong, the reasoning goes, the credit markets can accommodate the heavy load of supply resulting from federal budget deficits and still permit a further decline in interest rates.

Today's early prices included Dow Chemical, up 3/4 at 32 1/2; Boeing, K up 1/4 at 37 1/2, and American Motors, up 1/4 at 8 1/4.

In Tuesday's session declines outpaced advances by about 5 to 4 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 89.55 million K shares, K against 88.17 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose 10 to 93.14. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .98 at 423.62.

TINY SURVIVOR

LONDON (AP) — A two-week-old baby girl who weighed 19 ounces at birth and measured 12 inches from head to toe, is "doing well" in a London hospital, doctors said today.

Bishops...

The letter rejects as morally unacceptable any first use of nuclear weapons, an option maintained by the United States and NATO allies to stop an overwhelming conventional attack.

"Non-nuclear attacks by another state must be resisted by other than nuclear means," the bishops said, and also condemned nuclear retaliation even to nuclear attacks on U.S. cities.

"Retaliatory action which would indiscriminately take many wholly innocent lives, lives of people who are in no way responsible for reckless actions of their government, must be condemned," the letter says.

It draws its applications from the church's age-old "just war" theory, which holds that warfare must respect immunity of civilians and the damage inflicted must be proportionate to the good results expected.

Nuclear warfare is portrayed as overstepping these tenets, and the bishops are skeptical of any claims that nuclear exchanges could be limited.

"There should be a clear public resistance to the rhetoric of 'winnable' nuclear wars, or unrealistic expectations of 'surviving' nuclear exchanges," the bishops said.

Citing present U.S. nuclear targeting of about 40,000 Soviet sites, including 60 in Moscow alone, on the grounds that military installations are situated there, the letter says:

"It would be perverted political policy or moral casuistry which tried to justify using a weapon which would 'indirectly' or 'unintentionally' kill a million innocent people because they happened to live near a 'militarily significant' target."

One of the nine dissenting bishops, auxiliary Bishop Austin B. Vaughan of New York, rose afterward to assail the letter as a "theological and pastoral minefield."

Acquisition Is Ok'd By Board

BETHEL — The Town Board has approved the acquisition of four pieces of property at a cost of $19,200.

Approval of the acquisition came at the board's meeting Tuesday night. The land will be cleared and redeveloped and then sold under guidelines of the community development program.

The board acted after John Roberson of the Mid-East Commission reported that $156,388 was left for community development.

Larry Peaden and G.J. Abeyounis, company representatives, told the board that the Cable Vision station was almost complete and the service should begin by July.

A petition previously presented to the town board by Henry Williams requesting reinstatement as a police officer was denied. Mayor Frank Hemingway called for an executive session to discuss the petition. Williams was dismissed several months ago for infractions on the job.

A letter previously presented by the Bethel Fire Department requesting that a station be located on the north side of the railroad tracks was accepted and put on record. The board will discuss the issue at a later meeting and will begin to look for a site for the station.

The board set a public hearing for May 24 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss minimum housing standards and ordinances on abandoned structures. In another building-related matter, the board appointed Kenneth R. Whitehurst as building inspector.

An easement on the properties of Bob Cullifer and F.L. Blount was released upon the recommendation of the town attorney. The property is located between Church Street and Flat Swamp Road.

The board also proclaimed May 8-14 as Municipal Clerk Week and accepted a bid by Vance Taylor to audit the town books for the year ending June 30, 1983.

Obituaries

Brickhouse
Mr. William W. (Bill) Brickhouse, 69, of 310 Jarvis St. died at his home today. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Willkerson Funeral Home.

Clark
Mr. R. Frank Clark, 83, a retired farmer, died at his home near Belvoir Tuesday morning. The funeral service will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Willkerson Funeral Chapel by Pastor Nile Stine and the Rev. Ray Williamson. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Clark was a native and life-long resident of the Belvoir Community. He was a member of Shiloh United Methodist Church.

Surviving are three sons, William J. "Bill" Clark of Texas City, Texas, Edwin Haul Clark of Atlanta and Wayne Clark of Greenville; two daughters, Mrs. Evelyn Stokes of Belvoir and Mrs. Marlene C. Goodall of Roanoke Rapids; two brothers, Claude D. Clark of Greenville and Moya Clark of Virginia; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. tonight.

Daniell
CHAPEL HILL — The Rev. Vance L. Daniell, 29, died Sunday at Duke Hospital in Durham. Memorial services were held at 3 p.m. today at the First Christian Church in Asheville.

Daniell, recently ordained, was a chaplain at N.C. Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill. His father was a minister in Farmville, for a number of years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Spain Daniell; his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Jack M. Daniell of Asheville, and two brothers, Dewitt Daniell of Newton and Dana Daniell of Asheville.

LaRussa's Comments Aggravate Kuenn

By The Associated Press

The next time Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa, a practicing lawyer during the off-season, tries a case in court, he'd better hope rival Managers Ralph Houk of the Boston Red Sox and Harvey Kuenn of the Milwaukee Brewers aren't on the jury.

LaRussa, who had a flap with Houk during spring practice when the Red Sox were unable to take pregame batting practice, got Kuenn all riled up Tuesday night during the sixth inning of the White Sox' 7-6 victory.

Kuenn went out to the mound during the White Sox' four-run outburst to object to a call. LaRussa, however, felt Kuenn was stalling to give reliever Jamie Easterly more time to warm up in the bullpen.

"LaRussa came out because he was worried that I was taking too much time," Kuenn said. "I said, 'If I go out as many times as you did, we'd be playing five-hour games.' They play close to four-hour games now, so I guess he's out there a lot."

"So Tony said to me, 'You've already beat us 10 in a row; can't you let us win one?' Well, I hope we beat them 50 more. You can't go out and say that kind of thing. I can't believe what that man said. He's a lawyer. He knows the stats. With his great knowledge, if he says we beat them 10 in a row, I guess I've got to believe him."

Objection! It was only nine in a row — six last year and three this season.

In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles beat the California Angels 4-2, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Oakland A's 3-1, the Kansas City Royals trimmed the New York Yankees 5-2, the Cleveland Indians downed the Minnesota Twins 3-1, the Texas Rangers whipped the Toronto Blue Jays 7-2 and the Detroit Tigers nipped the Seattle Mariners 2-1 in 11 innings.

Harold Baines drove in four runs and Tony Bernazard doubled home two more to key a 13-hit attack that carried the White Sox to their first victory over Milwaukee since last May 16.

A double by Bernazard set up Baines' RBI grounder in the first inning. Baines snapped a 1-1 tie with a two-run single in the third against rookie Chuck Porter, just up from the minors and making his first major league start. In the Chicago sixth, Lorenzo Gray led off with a single and Jamie Easterly relieved Porter. Pinch hitter Rusty Kuntz singled and Bernazard doubled for two runs and a 5-2 lead. Baines singled for his fourth RBI and, after Greg Luzinski walked, Ron Kittle singled for a 7-2 lead. Milwaukee's Robin Yount hit a two-run homer in the seventh.

Orioles 4, Angels 2

Cal Ripken Jr. rapped a tie-breaking eighth-inning home run off Geoff Zahn following a leadoff walk to Dan Ford, making a winner of unbeaten Mike Flanagan, who scattered seven hits for his fourth triumph. The loss was Zahn's ninth in 10 career decisions against Baltimore, while Flanagan had won only one previous decision against California.

Red Sox 3, A's 1

Dwight Evans drilled a three-run homer in the third inning and that was all Boston needed as Dennis Eckersley and Bob Stanley combined on a six-hitter. Evans, who hit two homers in a 4-2 victory in Oakland on April 24, lined his fourth of the season into the Pitcher Mike Kinley recorded his seventh win of the season and drove in a pair of runs on two hits, but it was pinch hitter Eric Woodworth who provided the clutch hit on a two-run homer in the fifth inning to lift the Rampants of Rose High School to a 12-8 Big East 4-A Conference baseball victory Tuesday at Guy Smith Stadium.

"I thought Woodworth really turned the game around for us," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent, whose team is atop the conference standings with an unblemished 9-0 mark while 13-0 overall. "That really shifted the momentum in our favor. We were leading (6-4) at the time, but they were coming on."

Shortstop Kenny Kirkland slammed a pair of doubles in three trips to the plate and scored three of the Rampants' runs. Rudy Stalls added a pair of singles in four at-bats, while catcher Curtis Evans drove in three with a fielder's choice and an erred grounder.

Rocky Mount scored three runs in the top of the fifth, but only after the Gryphons' assistant coach was ejected for his over-zealous protest of a corrected call in a foul pop-up. White singled and Butler walked for Rocky Mount, and both scored on a single by Isabel. After a base-on-balls to Luther, Isabel crossed the plate on a single to left by Lyons to trim the score to 6-4.

Kinley drew a base-on-balls to open the bottom of the fifth. Vincent's decision to insert Woodworth paid off, as the reserve catcher cracked the first pitch over the left field fence.

Bobby Buie singled, stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on a two-out single by Stalls to record the Rampants' other run in the fifth.

Rose put the game out of reach in the sixth, as Randy Warren singled to open the frame, stole second and scored on Kirkland's second double of the night. Kirkland scored on a single by Kinley, and courtesy runner Toby Fisher crossed the plate when a grounder by Evans got by Gryphon third baseman Cedric Bullock.

But Rocky Mount bounced back with two out in the seventh with four runs to cut the margin to four before Kinley got Marshall White to tap a grounder to Kirkland for the relay to Stalls to end the game with runners on second and third.

Pinch hitter Hank Jones singled with one out in the seventh, and Danny Isabel reached first on an error. Jones scored on a passed ball, and a fielder's choice by Cordell Lyons forced Greg Luther at second for the second out and allowed Isabel to cut the score to 12-6.

A walk to Grant and single by Neil Avant loaded the bases, and a Eddie Coats laced a double to left to drive in Lyons and Grant before White's grounder ended the rally.

"We showed a lot of guts with the bats tonight," said Vincent. "But we struggled a little on the field. We did a good job of putting the ball in play with two strikes."

Kinley opened the game with walks to Grant and Avant, and a single by White drove in Grant to quickly put the Gryphons ahead. But the Rampants took the wind out of their sails with a rally for three runs with two-out in the bottom half of the inning.

Warren drew a base-on-balls and stole second and third before Kirkland walked. With Kinley at the plate, Kirkland swiped second to put a pair of runners in scoring position. Kinley ripped a single up the middle to plate Warren and Kirkland, and Fisher scored for Kinley on a dropped pop fly by Mike Iaboni.

Rose managed three more runs in the third. Kirkland drove a double past Grant in left field, and Kinley reached first an error by Gryphon pitcher Barry Butler. Iaboni lapped the ball to Avant at second, and his throw to the plate attempting to get Kirkland was late. A bloop single to right by Bill Johnson loaded the bases, and Evans later beat the relay of an attempted double-play to allow courtesy runner Mark Nover and Iaboni to score.

"We really needed a win here after the close game we played in Rocky Mount," said Vincent. "I thought Kirkland really hit the ball well, and Kinley came through again on the mound."

The Rampants host Wilson Beddingfield Friday at 7:30 p.m. Rose slipped with a 4-3 decision in the two teams first meeting of the year, as Kirkland sliced a two-run homer to right in the top of the seventh and Bill Owens closed the door in the bottom half of the frame for the win.

Cannon Picked For East-West

HOLLYWOOD — Darlene Cannon, a senior at D.H. Conley High School, has been selected to play in the East-West girls All-Star Game in Greensboro in latter July.

A first team all-East selection, she is the first female ball player from Conley and the first from Pitt County to be selected for the girls' all-star game.

Cannon, a 5-4 guard, averaged 12.4 points a game, and eight assists. She is the daughter of Ruby Cannon of Winterville.

"She is the best athlete I've ever coached," Conley basketball coach Joy James said. "She's one of the best ever to come out of Conley. She's starred in three sports (volleyball and softball, in addition to basketball). She's also been all-conference for two years in basketball, for three years in volleyball and at least one year in softball."

Cannon plans to enroll at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill next year, and go out for basketball.

Rams Hold Off Panthers For 3-2 Win

Chargers Romp Past Firebirds

STANHOPE — Ayden-Grifton spotted Southern Nash an early 1-0 lead, then roared back for an 11-3 baseball win yesterday as the Chargers held on to a share of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

Ayden-Grifton is now 7-2 on the year in the conference, deadlocked with Greene Central and C.B. Aycock.

Southern took the lead in the first inning with a run, but Ayden-Grifton came up with a pair of runs in the top of the second to take the lead.

Terry Garrett opened the second with a walk and stole second. Wesley Hardy then singled him in. Hardy stole up, moved to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a hit by Jackie Conway.

After the Chargers scored once in the third, Southern rallied for two in the bottom of the frame, tying it at 3-3.

But in the top of the fourth, Ayden-Grifton took the lead for good. Doug Coley tripled and Joey Kennedy walked. The two then pulled a double steal, with Coley scoring.

The Chargers added three more in the fifth and scored four times in the sixth to turn it into a rout.

Coley led the Ayden-Grifton hitting with four, while Conway had three and Tyrone Gay had two. No one had more than one hit for Southern.

Now 15-3 overall, the Chargers travel to Snow Hill on Friday night for a fateful meeting with Greene Central.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central scored early and then held off a furious rally by North Pitt to gain a 3-2 Eastern Carolina Conference baseball victory over North Pitt, leaving the scene set for a most exciting finish in the race for the ECC baseball championship.

With the Greene Central victory last night, three teams were left within ½ game of each other and one more looms just two games behind. Each team has games with two of the teams it has to catch.

Ayden-Grifton, which defeated Southern Nash 11-3, is in first at 7-2. Greene Central and C.B. Aycock, which defeated SouthWest Edgecombe 12-3, are tied at 6-2, and Farmville Central, who was idle Tuesday, has an outside shot at 4-4.

Ayden-Grifton will play at Greene Central Friday night in the first showdown. Farmville must play A-G and C.B. Aycock in its final games. Greene Central must play CBA and A-G. The Chargers and Aycock have already played twice this year. The teams also have other games remaining within the conference.

The Rams seemed in command throughout their contest. GC was clinging to a 3-0 advantage going into the seventh inning. However, the Panthers rallied for two runs without benefit of a hit.

William Rollins and pinch-hitter Hubert Lewis walked, chasing GC starter Tommy Goff. Scott Rawls reached on a catcher's interference call to load the bases. A wild pitch allowed Rollins to score and the other runners to move up. After Jay Hines struck out, Lee Manning walked to reload the bases. Greg Briley then reached on a fielder's choice, which scored Lewis and got Rawls going to third.

Daniel Keel then walked to reload the bases. However, the tying run never came across as Ken Whitehurst grounded into a fielder's choice up the middle.

"We hung in there and battled all the way," North Pitt head coach Doug Warren said. "Our baserunning probably cost us. We played good solid baseball. They (GC) hit the ball well."

Indeed the Rams did. Greene Central only managed five hits off Chris Ayers and Greg Briley, but four of those went for extra bases.

North Pitt fared little better. The Panthers could get but four hits off Goff and Rusty Murphy, all singles.

"Well it was as tight as I wanted to see it," said GC mentor Jim Fulghum. "We had it 3-0 in the fourth and just like that it was close. Goff pitched a good game. He just lost his control in the last inning. Murphy came in and did a good job in relief, as he has all year."

Greene Central built a 3-0 lead in the first four innings on the strength of extra base hits.

In the second inning, James Moore led off with a walk and stole second. Ritchie Chase walked and both runners moved up on a wild pitch. Press Harris then hit a grounder to second and was thrown out. However, Chase took off from second but Moore stayed at third. The ensuing rundown got Moore out and left Chase on third. Todd Grant hit a single in the hole up the middle to reach base and score Chase.

GC added another run in the third. With two outs, Chris Suggs reached on an error. He scored when Goff doubled to leftfield.

In the fourth, Grant hit a one-out double to centerfield. A fielder's choice moved him to third and he scored when Michael Warren ripped a deep triple to left-centerfield. Otis Barnes walked and stole second but Chris Suggs flew out to left for the third out.

North Pitt left six runners in scoring position, including four on third base. "I guess if we had just gotten the hit we needed at the right time, we might could have done something," Warren said.

As for Friday's game with Ayden-Grifton, Fulghum said little. "If we win, we win; if we lose..."

Starting pitchers for Friday's game in Snow Hill are expected to be Tyrone Gay for the Chargers and Chase for the Rams. North Pitt travels to Farmville Central on Friday for a day game.

Tarboro Tops Tigers By 7-2

TARBORO — Tarboro High School scored in each of the first three innings and gained a 7-2 baseball victory over Williamston yesterday.

Williamston scored first, getting a pair of runs in the top of the first. Les Keel doubled and Gray Thomas walked. Keith Perry then doubled to drive in both runners.

Those were to be the only runs for the Tigers, however, as Tarboro came back to score two in the bottom of the inning to tie it up.

Then, in the second, the Vikings added three runs, taking a 5-2 lead. L. Boyd singled to open the inning and D. Hawkins walked. J. Butler then cracked a homer to quickly put the Vikes ahead for good.

Tarboro added two more in the third.

C. Bryant led Tarboro's hitting with three, while Boyd had two. No one had more than one hit for Williamston.

The Tigers, now 8-5 overall and 7-4 in the Northeastern Conference, play host to Roanoke Rapids next Tuesday.

Royals 5, Yankees 2
Hal McRae went 3-for-3 and Frank White blasted a tie-breaking solo home run for Kansas City, while Paul Splittorff scattered eight hits through six innings.

After White's first home run of the season with one out in the third inning, loser Doyle Alexander walked Otis and gave way to Dale Murray. McRae singled and Otis scored when first baseman Don Baylor dropped the relay on a double play attempt. McRae singled in the fifth and scored on a double by Willie Aikens.

Indians 3, Twins 1
Andre Thornton hit his fourth home run of the season in support of Bert Blyleven's four-hit, 10-strikeout performance over eight innings.

"The doctor told me I would have days when my arm felt good and days that it won't," said Blyleven, who is coming back from elbow surgery. "He said it would take two years for my arm to heal completely. This year, I have to tell myself to throw seven or eight good innings and let the relievers finish. I've always been the type of person who wants to finish what I start, but the doctor said take it easy."

Rangers 7, Blue Jays 2

Larry Parrish drove in three runs with a double and a two-run homer. Jim Sundberg also hit a two-run shot and Pete O'Brien had a solo homer for Texas. Parrish, who doubled a run across in the first inning, hit his fifth homer of the season and fourth in the last six games to pad the Rangers' lead to 5-0 in the sixth after Buddy Bell tripled. Sundberg homered in the fourth and O'Brien connected in the ninth. Winner Jon Matlack pitched 61-3 scoreless innings.

Tigers 2, Mariners 1

Lance Parrish, who drove in the tying run with a sixth-inning double, homered with one out in the top of the 11th off Seattle relief ace Bill Caudill to snap Detroit's four-game losing streak. Detroit reliever Aurelio Lopez worked the final four innings to earn the victory. The Mariners scored in the second on Pat Putnam's homer.

JAMESVILLE

Jamesville High School moved another step closer to another Tobacco Belt Conference baseball title yesterday with a 10-6 win over Belhaven.

The win leaves the Bullets with a 12-2 overall record and a 10-0 TBC mark.

Jamesville struck for the lead in the second, scoring twice. Terry Perry walked and Tim Norris tripped to drive him in. Rusty Holliday then grounded out, scoring Norris.

Belhaven came back with three in the top of the third, taking a brief 3-2 lead. But the Bullets came back with three in the bottom of the inning to move back out, 5-2.

Then, in the fourth, Jamesville put it away with three more. Whit Brown walked and Greg Hardison was hit by a pitch. After Richie Ange walked to load them up, Rex Bell's sacrifice fly scored Brown. Successive walks to Terry Perry, Kevin Perry and Norris brought in the other two runs.

The Bullets picked up two more in the fifth and allowed Belhaven a three-run rally in the seventh.

Ange led the Jamesville hitting with three, one of them a double. Wendell McLeod, Lawrence Satchel and Jimmy Sadler each had two hits for Belhaven.

The Bullets travel to Columbia on Thursday for their next game.

Vikings Bow To Pats, 7-4

MOREHEAD CITY — D.H. Conley scored a pair of runs in the top of the seventh, but a bases-loaded pickoff and a double-play later ended the rally as West Carteret claimed a 7-4 Coastal 3-A Conference baseball victory.

Glenn Clemmons reached first on an error, Stacy McCarter doubled and Richie Overton singled in both Conley runners to trim the margin the three in the seventh. Stevie Kite and Steve Mills walked to load the bases, but pickoff at third and a double-play ended the Vikings' hopes of a comeback.

West Carteret put the game out of reach in the fifth with five runs. Winning pitcher Clint Sanford led off with a double and K.D. Ferrell drew a base-on-balls. Two consecutive passed balls allowed Sanford to score, and Lonnie Mister doubled in Ferrell. Mister moved to third on a wild pitch, and a squeeze play by Rodney Frazier moved Mister across the plate.

Frazier was safe at first on an error by pitcher Daryl Edwards, and he moved to third on a single by Jim Patten. After a pair of strikeouts, Dan Perry singled to drive in Frazier and Patten. Edwards got out of the inning with another strikeout.

"That's the way it goes sometimes," said Conley coach Gerald Garner. "Edwards strikes out the side, but they got five runs in the process. It was that type of game for us."

Mister went 2-4 with a triple for West Carteret, while Sanford was 2-4. Steve Mills rapped a pair of hits in four at-bats, while McCarter had two hits in three trips to the plate for Conley.

West Carteret improved its record to 10-6 overall with a 3-3 conference mark, while the Vikings slipped to 1-5 in the conference with a 7-10 overall record.

Conley travels to White Oak Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Lefty Speaks At Conley Fete

HOLLYWOOD — Maryland head coach Lefty Driesell will be the featured speaker at the annual D.H. Conley All-Sports Banquet, set next Wednesday night, May 11.

The banquet will be held at 7 p.m. in the school cafeteria, and awards will be made to the top athletes in each of the sports at Conley.

Driesell earlier signed D.H. Conley basketball star Keith Gatlin to a grant-in-aid.

Tickets for the affair are $7 each and can be purchased at the school, or from Bond's Sporting Goods on Arlington Dr. in Greenville.

Lakers Nip Bears, 6-5

BEAR GRASS — Mattamuskeet pushed over a run in the top of the seventh and gained a 6-5 baseball victory over Bear Grass yesterday.

The Bears took the initial lead, scoring three times in the first inning. Phil Peele led off with a walk and Lawrence Watson singled him in. Billy Fulford singled and Craig Gardner singled, scoring Watson. Mark Taylor then doubled to drive in Fulford.

Mattamuskeet came back with two in the second, but the Bears got another in the third. The Lakers then tied it up with two in the top of the fifth, and each team scored once in the sixth for a 5-5 tie.

In the seventh, however, the Lakers prevailed. Ethridge reached on a base hit, and an error on the play allowed him to circle the bases.

Ethridge, O'Neal and Sadler each had two hits to pace Mattamuskeet. Tony Leggett had a triple, and Taylor and Dave Cratt had doubles to lead the Bears.

Bear Grass travels to Bath on Thursday for its next outing.

Lendl To Retaliate

NEW YORK (AP) — Ivan Lendl warns that he will retaliate if John McEnroe tries to intimidate officials the next time they play.

"Every time there's a close call right now, I'm going to look at it," Lendl said Tuesday night after he began the defense of his $500,000 Mercedes Tournament of Champions title with a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Brent Pirow in a match that took only 50 minutes at the West Side Tennis Club.

Lendl was still seething over his five-set loss to McEnroe in the title match of the WCT Finals at Dallas on Sunday.

"I got hurt a lot ... by the officiating," the Czech said. "I'm not going to let it go the way it is. I'm not going to put up with this anymore."

Lendl said he would take matters into his own hands if the same thing happens the next time he and McEnroe meet, but the Czech refused to say what he planned to do. Asked if he would deliberately try to hit McEnroe with a hard shot on the court, he said:

"If he's complaining and I don't want to hit him with my fists, I will hit him with balls. And I'll do it again."

If the tournament follows the seedings, Lendl and McEnroe will meet in the finals here.

Carmon's Homer Sparks Rampettes

ROCKY MOUNT — A two-run homer by Sheila Carmon in the third and a rally-ending double-play in the sixth gave the Rampettes of Rose High School a 4-3 victory over Rocky Mount in Big East 4-A Conference softball action.

Frances Barnhill slapped two hits in three at-bats with a triple, while Karyn Carraway went 2-4 for Rose. Beulah Battle had a pair of singles in three trips to the plate for Rocky Mount, and Charlane Lee was 2-4.

Barnhill opened the third inning with a single for Rose before Carmon's game-winning homer.

The Rampettes jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the opening frame as Carraway singled, advanced when the relay to first was dropped on a grounder by Wendy Jones and scored on a fielder's choice.

Rose added a run in the second frame for a 2-0 lead. Carmon got to second base on another error by the Gryphons' first baseman, and an error by the shortstop on a grounder by Doris Dudley allowed Carmon to score.

Rocky Mount retaliated with a pair of runs in the bottom of the second to knot the score.

Lee singled to open the home half of the sixth, and Vivian Farmer reached first on an error. A single by Sharon Pratt drove in Lee before the Rampettes got out of the inning with a double-play.

Rose improved its record to 8-6 overall and 6-3 against conference opposition, while Rocky Mount slides to 8-3 in the conference. The Rampettes host Wilson Beddingfield Friday afternoon.

School handed Williamston only its second loss of the year yesterday, gaining a 5-1 softball win over the Lady Tigers.

Williamston got its only run in the top of the first inning. Tarboro came back in the second to score twice, then added three in the fifth frame to take the 5-1 victory.

Jan Mills and Hope Hopkins each had two hits to spark the Williamston attack, while T. Long had a pair for Tarboro.

Now 10-2 in the Northeastern Conference, Williamston is idle until next Tuesday when it faces Roanoke Rapids.

Gryphons Hand Rose First Net Loss Of Year

ROCKY MOUNT — Rose and Rocky Mount came out even through the six singles matches of their meeting Tuesday, but the Gryphons took two of the three doubles to record a 5-4 victory and hand the Rampants their first loss of the season.

Steve Holloman rebounded after losing the first set to take a 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Terry Gratz in the first flight singles match. Rocky Mount won the second, third and fourth matches, but Ed Schwidde outlasted Mark Felton 7-6, 4-6, 6-2 and Bill Messick downed Jake Parrott 6-1, 6-7, 6-2 to even the score.

The teams of Gratz-Chris Janelle and Don Evans-Paul Shannon of Rocky Mount took 8-6 wins in the top two doubles matches to seal the victory for the Gryphons.

The Rampants, now 13-1 overall and 12-1 in the conference, can clinch the conference championship with a win over Wilson Beddingfield here Friday afternoon.

Moose6
True Value5

The Moose scored a run in the bottom of the sixth inning and gained a 6-5 Tar Heel Little League baseball victory over True Value Hardware yesterday. It was the opening game for both teams.

The Moose took the lead with one in the first, but True Value countered that in the top of the second. The Moose came back with three in the bottom of the frame for a 4-1 lead.

Both teams scored single runs in the third, with True Value ascending once in the fifth and twice in the sixth to finally tie it at 5-5.

In the bottom of the sixth, however, Steven Smith walked and with one away, Brad Carter also walked. A third walk, to Al DeBias loaded the bases, but Smith was cut down at the plate on a fielder's choice by Chris Christopher. A wild pitch then allowed Carter to score the winning run.

The Moose managed only two hits off Ken Sawyer of True Value. Jerome Vines and Aaron Tschetler each had two hits for True Value.

Coca-Cola10
Optimists9

Coca-Cola pushed ahead with two runs in the fifth, then held off an Optimist rally to gain a 10-9 North State Little League baseball win yesterday.

Both teams opened the year with the game.

Coke scored four runs in the top of the first, two on a homer by Andy Miller. They added three more in the second for a 7-0 lead. The Optimists came back with four in the bottom of the second, and after Coke got one more in the fourth as Miller homered again, the Optimists added four more in the fourth to an 8-8 tie.

In the fifth, Coke pushed back ahead for good. David O'Neil walked with one away and after a second out, Derrick Hines walked. Miller singled to score O'Neal and Walter Gatlin got a single, scoring Hines.

The Optimists tried to rally, but fell short in the bottom of the sixth.

Miller led the Coke hitting with four, while Gatlin had three and Kevin Jordan had three. Nelson Galloway led the Optimists with three hits while Shawn Griffin had two.

Prep League
Hendrix Dail16
Garris-Evans5

Hendrix and Dail romped to a 16-5 baseball victory yesterday as the Prep League opened its pre-season schedule last night. The games will not count in the league standings.

H&D grabbed the initial lead with one in the first, but Garris-Evans came back with three in the bottom of the frame. H&D scored a second run in the second, then scored five times in he third to move ahead for good.

With one out, Brian Pierce walked and Chris Bender singled. Jeff Mahoney walked, loading the bases. Tyrone Cherry reached on an error, scoring Pierce. David Tinglestad singled in Bender, and an error on the play let Mahoney score. Cherry scored on a wild pitch, and Tinglestad scored when James Lawler reached on another misplay.

H&D added two in the fifth, four more in the sixth and three in the seventh. Garris-Evans picked up two more in the sixth.

Tinglestad led the Hendrix & Dail hitting with three, while Bender and Mahoney each had two. No one had more than one for Garris-Evans.

Violin Maker In Ohio Works To A Different Beat

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Oblivious to the noisy buzz of traffic on the street beneath his second-story shop, John Julius Ricker works quietly to a different beat.

Hands moving carefully but confidently over spruce and maple, he seeks out a tiny crack in a violin's face. His repair will restore integrity to the instrument and music to its owner.

For half a century, the silver-haired Ricker, has played melodies with tools on wood, allowing customers of Rickers Violin Shop to play their melodies with bow on string.

"Each job is its own. There are no two jobs exactly alike. I've been in this business for all these years and I'm still seeing instruments I've never seen before. You'd think I'd have seen them all by now," the 73-year-old craftsman said.

Starting in 1926, while still in high school, Ricker worked with his father, who had been making violins in 1896.

Upon graduation from Ohio State University, he tried out his civil engineering degree. After a year, in the midst of the Depression, he joined his father and "never really" considered going back to engineering.

So for 50 years, he has labored in the tiny shop cluttered with instruments and hand tools. Wet towels hang from the ceiling, keeping the air moist so the fragile wood won't dry out and crack.

On the wall above the door is nailed a pivoting stick, one end tied to a horsehair string. The homemade humidity gauge is so sensitive that as the air dries even a little, the string becomes more taut and pulls up on the stick. When it points above the doorframe, Ricker knows the air has become too dry.

The gauge is one measure of a careful man. Care about the work is a benchmark in his shop.

Customers come to the shop from across the state and from other states. Ricker keeps careful records, each entered into ledger books stored in his rolltop desk.

The books date to 1951, and from them he can tell any customer what instrument he sold them, what repair he made, how much he charged. Row upon row of ledger entries — each personal, each different.

"Violins are all different — the density of the wood, everything makes a difference," he said. "It would be a very difficult thing for any violin maker to make two instruments that ended up sounding exactly alike."

"But that's all right. The same thing's true with people. Not everybody likes the same tone, not everybody has the same opinions."

Asked about reputations, about others' opinions, he replied in a quiet voice, "My dad had a pretty good reputation."

Pressed, he finally said, "I have somewhat of a reputation. In this business, if you don't do good work, you don't have a reputation for very long — not the right kind, anyway."

Ricker, who says he plays the violin only well enough to tune it, loves the instrument nonetheless. Shelves cradle old catalogs. Shop walls are papered with violin posters, photos of violin makers, notices of classical music concerts and yellowed newspaper clippings about musicians famous and obscure.

"I'll stand here and talk to people about violins for an hour," said the man in the denim apron and neatly knotted tie. "I'll talk and talk, and I won't make a dime."

That seems not to matter behind the door where quality counts. The door that still reads "Jos. F. Ricker & Son."

"A good violin will last for ... well, they've been lasting for 300 years," Ricker said. "There's no reason a good violin should ever wear out. There are very few things, hardly anything you buy today, you can say that about."

JOHN RICKER prepares to change the strings on one of the violins he repairs in his downtown Columbus, Ohio, violin shop. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan Facing Busy Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will travel to Texas for a Cinco de Mayo celebration on Thursday and to Phoenix to address the National Rifle Association on Friday.

After the NRA speech in Arizona, the president will fly to Santa Barbara, Calif., to spend the weekend at his 688-acre ranch in the Santa Ynez Mountains.

En route back to the White House on Monday, Reagan will attend a commemorative dinner in Ashland, Ohio, for the late Rep. John Ashbrook, who died a year ago. The president will mark the opening of the John M. Ashbrook Center for Public Affairs and the Ashbrook Memorial Library.

Plan Turn Last TB Hospital Into N. C. Prison Facility

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's last tuberculosis facility will be converted to a prison hospital under a plan approved by the House-Senate Appropriations Committee.

With TB admissions declining steadily in recent years, the committee decided to send the worst cases to Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, opening up 301 beds at the Hoke County facility for inmates.

The plan would distribute funds to local agencies to treat less serious TB patients while adding a physician in the Fayetteville regional office as a TB consultant.

It is expected to save the Department of Human Resources about $3 million a year, while costing at least $252,000 to make the facility secure for prisoners.

Committee members unsuccessfully suggested several compromise measures.

Sen. David Parnell, D-Robeson, wanted to set aside 90 of the Hoke County hospital's 115 beds for TB patients and leave the rest for prison inmates.

But Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, whose subcommittee on Human Resources proposed converting the hospital, said correction officials told him it would be impossible for TB patients and prison inmates to share the facility.

"It is something most families would not want," Walker said, adding that it would be difficult if not impossible to maintain security.

Parnell said he doubted that many families would want their TB-suffering relatives to be placed in the same building as mental patients either.

In other legislative action: Day Care

A bill to regulate church-run day-care centers without licensing them was approved by the House Judiciary II Committee over objections by opponents who wanted further discussions.

Rep. Gus Economos, D-Mecklenburg, said that "Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians" had voiced strong protests to the bill, but his suggestion for a public hearing failed to win approval.

Rep. Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, who stormed out of the meeting room after the committee rejected her attempts to amend the bill, suggested the measure was forced through.

But committee chairman Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, said the issue had received a fair hearing.

"We've argued this issue back and forth for years, and we've finally got a compromise that everybody can live with," he said. "You've got to exercise some authority in these meetings because people will keep things bottled up forever."

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Elton Edwards, D-Guilford, would require day-care centers to abide by state health and safety standards but would exempt them from obtaining a license.

Lottery

A bill calling for a statewide referendum on a proposed North Carolina lottery was amended to change the date of the referendum from November 1984 to November 1983.

Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, told the Senate Judiciary II Committee that the change would put the referendum on the same date as municipal elections, preventing interference with races for statewide office.

The amendment counters a change supported by Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, while the bill was in the Senate Rules Committee.

Sen. Richard Barnes, D-Forsyth, who introduced the bill, said the amendment could mean an extra $100 million for the state, but some panel members opposed the change.

"I think it's more important to let most people in the state have the chance to decide on it," said Sen. Julius Wright, R-New Hanover, adding that he didn't think many voters would be willing to take the time to vote on just one issue.

Early Release
The Senate Judiciary I Committee approved a bill that would permit early release of "nondangerous" prisoners who agree to perform up to 50 hours per week of community service. The criminals would remain on probation during the service period.

"This is an effort to let people pay in a positive way for the crimes they've committed," said Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, bill sponsor. "It would save money, lower the prison population and yet keep a strong arm on the prisoner during this crucial time."

Traffic Officers
Sheriffs and police chiefs could appoint temporary traffic officers under a substitute bill approved by the Senate Judiciary III Committee.

The original bill ran into trouble on the Senate floor when lawmakers worried about giving authority to people who aren't bona fide law officers.

Under substitute bill, a traffic officer would have to be at least 18 years old and have his jurisdiction assigned in writing. The law enforcement department for which the traffic directors work would be required to carry insurance to cover suits for damages resulting from the directors' negligence.

Traffic Offenses
A House subcommittee was created to study a bill decriminalizing minor traffic offenses by classifying them as "infractions."

Under the bill, sponsored by House Courts and Administration of Justice Committee chairman Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, judges would be allowed to designate magistrates to conduct traffic court. Defendants would have the right of appeal to district and superior court, but there would be no right to jury trial.

People who fail to pay their fine or show up in traffic court wouldn't be arrested, but would have their driver's license revoked if the matter wasn't cleared up within a month. A $25 fee would be levied to have the license returned.

Helms said the bill, recommended by the N.C. Courts Commission, would help unclog the district court system.

Child Abuse
A proposal to boost the marriage license fee from $10 to $15 and earmark the proceeds for child abuse prevention was approved by a Senate subcommittee.

Under the bill, the money would be collected by local deed registrars, forwarded to a statewide Children's Trust Fund, then redistributed to local child abuse prevention programs.

The subcommittee rejected proposals to raise the money by increasing divorce or birth certificate fees.

The bill will go before the Senate Finance Committee today.

Taxes
A bill increasing the penalties for state income tax evasion was sent to a House Judiciary I subcommittee after several legislators questioned the definition of tax evasion.

The bill would make it a felony instead of a misdemeanor to willfully evade state taxes. It already is a felony to evade federal income taxes.

"People take evasion of federal taxes very, very seriously," said Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch. "It doesn't make sense to me to be less of a crime to defraud the state of North Carolina taxes than to defraud the federal government of taxes."

He said there have been 115 indictments and 70 convictions for tax evasion since July 1, 1982.

But Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, said the bill made it sound like a taxpayer and their accountant could be arrested for mistakenly taking a deduction.

Death
The House Health Committee approved and sent to the full House a bill that would make it easier for physicians to withhold medical treatment for terminally ill, comatose patients.

The bill would require that two physicians and the patient's family agree that the patient's condition is incurable and irreversible. Under current law, a majority of a committee of three doctors must agree about the patient's condition and the family must initiate the request that treatment be withheld.

Progress By Conferees On Drunken Driving Bills

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Controversial issues avoided for week should top the agenda Thursday when state legislators continue talks on a compromise version of Gov. Jim Hunt's drunken driving program.

"We've about taken care of everything else," said state Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, co-chairman of the House-Senate conference committee that settled several important differences between the two bills Tuesday.

"It's conceivable we could finish next week," said Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, the other co-chairman. "But we haven't taken up the biggies yet, so I can't say how long it will take us to settle those."

The charge of driving while impaired is the centerpiece of Hunt's bills, approved in March, which would do away with driving under the influence and related charges. Both bills would raise the minimum legal age for drinking beer and wine from 18 to 19 and permit 10-day license revocation for any driver who registers a blood alcohol content of 0.10 or higher.

Of approximately eight differences remaining between the two bills, lawmakers cite four as especially controversial:

— Both bills would impose civil liability on alcoholic beverage vendors who sell to underage drinkers who later cause traffic accidents. But the House extends the liability to sales to intoxicated customers who drink on premises.

— The House bill would allow roadblocks to catch drunken drivers.

— The Senate bill would try to ban all drinking in cars by presuming that any open alcoholic beverage container in the passenger section belongs to the driver.

— The Senate bill would grant anyone whose driver's license is administratively revoked the right to request a hearing before a state Department of Motor Vehicles officer within six days. Under the House bill, the hearing would be within three days before a magistrate.

The committees agreed to confer individually Wednesday before meeting jointly Thursday morning, when they're expected to begin discussing the major stumbling blocks.

The panel agreed Tuesday to retain the existing definition of impaired driving as driving with one's mental and physical faculties affected. The committee deleted stronger language in the House bill that would have considered driving ability as well.

The committee also:
— Voted to prohibit the state from using as evidence data from chemical tests that magistrates give the defendant to determine whether he's sober enough to release.

— Accepted the Senate's proposal that any district or superior court judge may conduct a hearing on a convicted drunken driver's request for a limited driving privilege. Under the House bill, only a chief district judge or senior resident superior court judge could grant a limited privilege.

— Merged the two bills' provisions on impounding vehicles of drunken drivers who have had their license revoked on an earlier impaired-driving conviction.

— Accepted a House requirement that lienholders be notified two weeks in advance of impoundment and accepted a Senate provision aimed at protecting the driver's family members who might need the vehicle.

building as mental patients either.

Cuban Voodoo Beliefs Flowering In Soil Of Miami

By JOHN THOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — The two grieving disciples met at the Rivero Funeral Home to mourn their dead mentor, a sorcerer. As one man lay with his head in his girlfriend's lap, police say the second pumped three bullets into his skull with a

.38-caliber revolver. Police arrested Miguel Cardenas, 21, on a first-degree murder charge and blamed Santeria — the Cuban-style voodoo — for the slaying. "It was a black magic thing," said Miami Homicide Sgt. Luis Albuera. "Apparently the murderer thought the victim had passed along to his spiritual godfather all the bad spells on his head, and that's why he had died." Such can be the violent and deadly ways of Santeria, the Cuban cult of magic and sorcery that permeates Spanish-speaking Miami, but usually remains hidden behind Main Street-style storefronts. "If you drive around here, you can't help running into Santeria, if you know what you're looking for," says Dr. Charles Wetli, Dade's deputy chief medical examiner. Much of Santeria is placid, like the scattering of cowrie shells to tell fortunes or the offering of half-filled glasses of water to honor dead relatives. But to Americans like Wetli, other rites seem exotic, bizarre — an unexpected eruption of Black Africa and the mysteries of the River Niger in the land of frozen food and time-share real estate. —Headless bodies of goats and chickens float limply down the Miami River, sacrifices to jealous and angry gods. "We get hundreds," complains Dade water control chief Paul Hardy. —Outside the chambers of Circuit Judge James S. Rainwater, a clerk stumbled on an apple anointed with oil and impaled on a cross, an attempted hex. "It was supposed to cloud my mind and confuse me in a civil suit," says Rainwater, who immediately took himself off the case.

SANTERIA COLLECTION — Dr. Charles Wetli, Dade County (Fla.) deputy medical examiner, poses with his ghoulish collection of Santeria memorabilia. Included are two human skulls (one coated with chicken blood, feathers and candle wax, 7 pennies, a necklace and spear of Ogun, a cement head and a voodoo doll. (AP Laserphoto)

—In Miami Beach, numbing drums sometimes break the night stillness. In nearby Sweetwater, colorful shrines to unfamiliar saints dot neatly trimmed lawns. Across Dade County, more than 20 boutiques sell herbs, talismans, human bones and sacred stones to believers.

"It's not my bag, but I respect it," says Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre, who joined in a ritual feast and dance to pay off a campaign debt. Shunning the wizards of the Afro-Cuban religion in Miami would be "like telling a politician in Boston he shouldn't go to the St. Anthony's parade or the St. Patrick's Day parade," says the mayor.

Santeria, the secret faith of Yoruba tribesmen in Nigeria carried to the New World in the holds of 16th century slave ships, has taken root in South Florida's soil and flowered.

Very early in the New World, Santeria became a secret faith for initiates only. Under the overseer's lash, Cuban slaves converted to Christianity, but cloaked their beliefs in the garments of their new religion's saints.

It is a melange of black and white magics and spiritualism where St. Peter is Ogun, owner of all metals and weapons, and the Christ child is Elegua, god of the tricksters.

Cubans fleeing Fidel Castro's communism in the 1960s brought Santeria to the United States, where sociologists say it became one of their survival tools.

"Santeria seems to give people a faith, a hope," says University of Miami Afro-American Studies Professor O.R. Dathorne. "I would say 40 percent of all Cubans here partake of Santeria. And only 5 percent would have a negative attitude."

In the gloom of Dade County Jail, criminals from the 1980 Mariel boatlift have built tiny altars of cardboard and paper to St. Barbara, worshipped as the fire-breathing warrior god Chango. In homage, believers offer cups of cole slaw. On their backs are tattoos to the Seven African Powers, Santeria's pantheon.

"This is a religion that is very old," says high priest Rigoberto Zamora. "It dates back to the slaves' time and we can't let it die."

But animal lovers, State Attorney Janet Reno and some Cuban-Americans have now allied to condemn some of Santeria's bloodier practices, like the nipping off of pigeon heads and the mutilation of sea gulls to tell fortunes or to appease the religion's gods.

"The primitive worship of gods through the sacrifices of birds and animals has reached epidemic proportions in Dade County," says wildlife activist Jack Kasewitz Jr. "Daily, we receive reports and bodies of sacrificed animals and birds."

Kasewitz's National Wildlife Rescue Team has joined with the Humane Society to offer a $2,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of ritual animal killers. "We're also identifying the priests and priestesses," Kasewitz said.

In retaliation, Zamora and a band of Santeria believers are printing fliers to teach the English-speaking public why their faith requires the ritual slaughter of birds, lambs, goats and deer. They plan to distribute leaflets at supermarkets to show why Santeria has a rightful place in Miami's ethnic and spiritual life.

"We are respectful of the law, but we should be allowed to practice our religion in our churches and in our homes," the high priest says.

U.S. 17 Study Wins Award

A study of U.S. 17 in North Carolina has won the 1983 Award for Engineering Excellence in an annual statewide competition sponsored by the Consulting Engineers Council of North Carolina.

The Raleigh engineering and planning firm of Kimley-Horne and Associates was cited for outstanding work on the corridor study it did for the N.C. Department of Transportation. The study examined the feasibility of improvements along the entire U.S. 17 route from the Virginia to South Carolina.

The DOT commissioned the study with the goal of arriving at a phased implementation program — a step-by-step plan for improving the highway, beginning with those areas where need is greatest.

Church Camp Drive Approved

Police Chief Glenn Cannon has announced the approval of a request by Cornerstone Baptist Church Summer Day Camp to conduct a merchant solicitation May 9-June 6. The drive is designed to obtain food items for a camp scheduled for June 26-July 29.

Tadlock Named Wellcome Principal

Carl E. Tadlock Jr., assistant principal at D.H. Conley High, will become principal of Wellcome Middle School on July 1. He will succeed Glenn Cox, who filled the position on an interim basis.

Tadlock received his U.S. degree in physical education and social studies from East Carolina University in 1954 and his M.A. in education administration from ECU in 1968. He also earned an Ed.S. from Troy State University in education administration in 1975.

Tadlock also attended the Industrial College of Armed Forces in management and the Academic Instructors School.

He served in the United States Air Force as a lieutenant colonel.

Tadlock has served as chairman of the department of aerospace studies at ECU and as chairman of educational evaluation in the analysis and methods department at the Air University of the Academic Instructor School at Maxwell Air Force Base.

Tadlock is a native of Pinetops, is married and has three children. He lives on Fairway Way, Greenville.

CARL TADLOCK

Author To Speak At PCMH

James H. Jones, author of the recent best seller, "Bad Blood: The Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment," will speak at Pitt County Memorial Hospital Monday on that subject and on the history of sex research.

At 12:30 p.m., Jones will speak on the "Bad Blood" topic, and at 4 p.m. on "Alfred C. Kinsey and the Rise of Scientific Research on Human Sexual Behavior." Both lectures will be in the upstairs conference room in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Jones currently teaches history at the University of Houston. His visit and lectures are part of the East Carolina University School of Medicine's "Perspectives" series. The lectures are free and are open to the public.

For more information, call the Humanities Program office, 757-2618.

Request For Funding To Be Made

Officials of Williamston and Martin County have been invited to Atlanta to present a request for federal funding of improvements to Williamston's water system. Town Administrative Assistant John Boykin told the Williamston board this week.

Boykin said the proposal could include improvements to encompass a new well, an upright tank and booster pumps. The scope of the project currently stands at an estimated cost of $2.4 million.

Boykin also told the board that an application for $20,000 in recreation grant funds has been filed with the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

Mathis To Speak Thursday

Dr. James Mathis, chairman of the department of psychiatric medicine at the East Carolina School of Medicine, will speak Thursday at a "Spotlights" lunchtime talk sponsored by the Mental Health Association in Pitt County.

Mathis will speak on "Job Insecurity-Security: Stress and Coping in the 1980s." The meeting will be held at noon at the Jaycee Park Administration Building at 2000 Cedar Lane.

For information call the Mental Health Association at 757-7448.

Senior Citizens's Games Helds

The Winterville Jayettes held their annual Senior Citizens Games day on recently at the A.G. Cox School in Winterville. In addition to games for the senior citizens, there were refreshments. Local merchants donated prizes for those taking part in the games.

Members of the Winterville Jayees assisted the Jayettes in this annual program by providing persons to help in the games and to arrange transportation for those who needed it.

History Bowl Scheduled Saturday

The Caswell-Neuse State Historic Site in Kinston will sponsor its second annual history bowl Saturday with eighth-grade teams competing from schools in Lenoir, Pitt, Wayne and Duplin counties.

The competition will held at the Caswell-Neuse Historic Site on West Vernon Avenue in Kinston. Students from Aycock Junior High representing Pitt County will include Christy Garrison, Drew Rhodes, Lara Perry and Julie Mayberry.

Prizes include a $100 first prize to the winning schools; and a $50 second prize to the runner-up. The winning school will also be presented with the championship trophy which it keeps during the year as victor.

Glassblowers from laboratories and universities on the eastern seaboard met at East Carolina University last weekend for the annual southeastern section meeting of the American Scientific Glassblowers Society. Owen Kingsbury of the ECU Department of Chemistry coordinated the event as southeastern section director.

The meeting included an address by Dr. Angelo Volpe, acting vice chancellor for academic affairs at ECU and tours of the ECU Brody Medical Science Building and the Greenville Burroughs Wellcome plant.

PCMH To Honor Nurses

Pitt County Memorial Hospital will honor its 600 nurses Friday in observance of National Recognition Day for Nurses, which was declared by Congress, and Nurses' Week in North Carolina, which was proclaimed by Gov. James B. Hunt. The nursing staff will be recognized at a reception in the hospital cafeteria.

Day Of Prayer Service Planned

The National Day of Prayer will be observed at the Bethel United Methodist Church Thursday. The church will be open all day Thursday and, at noon, the bell will ring reminding those who cannot come to church to take five minutes for a time of prayer. Thursday at 7:30 p.m. a special prayer service will be held in the sanctuary.

Goat Show Scheduled May 28

The second annual Dairy Goat Show will be held May 28 in the livestock area of the Pitt County American Legion Fairgrounds. Activities will begin at 8 a.m.

Persons who intend to display milk goats must have an application in by May 10. Goats to be entered must be registered with the National Dairy Goat Association and be at least half purebred stock. Entry fee for each goat to be shown is $2.50.

For details, call Cathy Baker at 758-0975 or write to her at: Rt. 1, Box 470, Greenville, N.C., 27834.

Collision Causes $1,750 Damage

Cars driven by Sharon McCombs Clayton of 216 Avon Lane and Vinroe Stephen Player of 101 David Drive collided about 10:22 a.m. Tuesday on Greenville Boulevard at the entrance to Kroger's Save-on.

Police said damage to the Clayton car was set at $750, while damage to the Player vehicle was estimated at $1,000.

Assistant District Attorney Named

District Attorney Thomas D. Haigwood has announced the appointment of Elizabeth Jane Ross Warren as an assistant district attorney.

Ms. Warren, a Concord native, previously practiced law with attorney Charles L. McLawhorn Jr. in Greenville. She attended St. Mary's Junior College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill before doing graduate work at UNC and East Carolina University. She received her law degree from Wake Forest University.

She lives in Greenville with her daughter, Elizabeth.

Haigwood also announced that Ramona R. Ensley has joined the staff as administrative assistant.

A native of Mount Holly, Ms. Ensley had been associated with the Eastern Area Health Education Center. She received a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.

She is married to Dr. Donald E. Ensley, who is associated with the school of allied health and social professions at ECU. They reside in Greenville.

Scott Glenn: Actor In Paradise

OPENS THURSDAY — The spring play for D.H. Conley High School this year is the musical, "Bye Bye Birdie." Two of the cast members, Lucretia West and Vandy Behr, are shown rehearsing their lines. Performances will be given at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and at 3 p.m. Sunday. Tickets, priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students, will be available at the door.

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Scott Glenn, who plays astronaut Alan Shepard in "The Right Stuff," has discovered his own terrestrial paradise right in Ketchum, Idaho — of all places.

Ketchum, population 2,500 and a mile from Sun Valley, is surrounded by the sawtooth mountains and the largest primitive preserve in the contiguous 48 states.

Glenn, a native of Pittsburgh, fled to that bastion of tranquility and sanity when his career fell apart in Hollywood five years ago.

The sparking air, icy trout streams, snow-capped peaks and green carpeted meadows worked their "magic psychologically and emotionally on the finely tuned actor. The new surroundings turned his career completely around.

Since moving 700 miles north, Glenn has appeared in six movies, attaining stardom after once giving up his career to become a carpenter's assistant in Los Angeles.

Fed up with California, Glenn and his wife, Carol, packed the family van and headed for Ketchum with their two pre-teen daughters to share a house with another family.

"We chose Ketchum because Carol is an artist and wanted to study at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts," Glenn explained. "It was the best move of our lives."

Glenn, best remembered for his snake-mean role of Wes Hightower in "Urban Cowboy," is fiercely proud and independent.

He has narrow eyes, which he attributes to his Indian heritage (he's half Comanche, half Irish), a hard muscular body and a flinty mein. He loves skiing and rock climbing in Idaho's mountain fastness.

There is also an almost mystical quality to Glenn's love for the peace and beauty of his adopted state. He is certain his new surroundings have enhanced his career.

Shortly after moving to Ketchum he signed to co-star with Burt Lancaster in "Cattle Annie and Little Britches," followed quickly by "Urban Cowboy."

"I might easily have fallen into the trap of playing a succession of heavies after doing Hightower," Glenn said. "I had offers to repeat that character in other projects.

"But I wanted larger options. I wasn't anxious to cannibalize myself by becoming a 'Scott Glenn type.' I love acting more than skiing or climbing mountains. It's harder and scarier, and I think I'm good at it."

After "Urban Cowboy" he starred with Mariel Hemingway (another Ketchum resident — whom he had never met) in "Personal Best" as the cynical, hard-driving track coach.

Thereafter he went on to star in "The Challenge," "The Right Stuff" and, recently, "The Keep."

Ironically, Glenn's burgeoning career took him away from Idaho for more than three of the five years since he bought his large and rustic home on the banks of the Wood River at the foot of Bald Mountain and his favorite ski slopes.

"Even so, the beauty of the Sawtooth and the honest simplicity of the people restores me as a man and an actor every time I get home," Glenn said. "If it's a blue sky day, I'm up on the mountain skiing."

"It's a wonderful place to raise my kids in a clean, open atmosphere among friendly, decent people with honest values."

"There's no show business consciousness there. No one cares that I make pictures. I'm just another jerk on the corner. I've made real friends in Idaho."

"Ketchum is remote, but I can be in Hollywood in less than three hours by plane. I was living up there when the call came for 'Urban Cowboy.' I figure I can answer the telephone there as well as anywhere."

"So there's no reason I should live in Hollywood. Anyhow, I bring a different, Rocky Mountain freshness to my roles. Producers notice it when I talk to them about parts."

"I was turned on to the part of Alan Shepard in 'The Right Stuff' because he is two distinct personalities — the tough, cold commander, militarily correct, and the other, Smiling Al, King of the Cape, a crazy, wild irreverent womanizer."

"I loved playing Shepard because I was given an opportunity to play some outright comedy scenes."

"Much as I love acting, though, it's time for me to get back to the mountains. It's where I want to be."

Ratings Lead Regained

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS won the weekly television ratings after two straight losses to ABC, but an ABC special called "Life's Most Embarrassing Moments" was the No. 1 show.

The ABC special featured host John Ritter presenting film clips of public mistakes by personalities in news, sports, politics, movies and television.

The first episode of "V," a two-part NBC movie about the takeover of Earth by aliens from another planet, was in second place for the week ending May 1.

"V" is a pilot for an NBC series that will focus on resistance fighters against an alien invasion.

CBS won the week with a rating of 16.0, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute, 16 percent of the homes with television were tuned to CBS. ABC was second with 15.1 and NBC was third with 14.7.

CBS' victory was an opening salvo in the May "sweeps," when both Nielsen and Arbitron make detailed surveys to determine the advertising rates for the local stations.

In the ratings for the "sweeps" period April 27-May 1, Nielsen had CBS first with 17.7, NBC second with 14.8 and ABC third with 13.4. The Arbitron ratings were CBS 17.0, NBC 14.9 and ABC 14.5.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can express goodwill and are able to get together and work out personal problems with others. Make a point to maintain self-control and understanding of others.

Muslims Seek Improve Image

SEDALIA, N.C. (AP) — The American Muslims say they are working to overcome their image as violent black radicals that urged separation from whites during the 1960s.

The group, which is converting a former Guilford County college into a mission, says it is now a do-it-yourself organization that stresses spirituality, self-reliance and education.

"We have a tremendous problem getting the real image across," said Zakiyyaa Muhammad. "We're not a violent organization. We're projected as a violent organization."

The American Muslim Mission is refurbishing the grounds of the Palmer Memorial Institute, a former black preparatory school, for a teacher-training college and boarding high school.

The American Muslims, whose administrative base remains in Chicago, bought the campus in 1980 for $417,000. With the spring quarter in March, they accepted a handful of college students, including A.M. Sisay, 18, of Savannah, Ga.

"I found it part of my own personal development to accept this religion — an evolution, not a conversion," said Sisay. "Three years ago I wanted to do things and think things on a broader scale. And I found Islam. I was very enthused with the principles of religion and the principles of help for our people."

Zank said that despite the Muslims' attempt to expunge the word "black" from their title, 99 percent of the members are black.

"I accepted this religion because I agree with its plan for social change, for improvement," he said. "It shows so much that is positive."

Eventually, perhaps by September, the facility will be a fully operating teacher-training college for the group's Clara Muhammad school system, a national network of 43 schools in cities including Atlanta, Winston-Salem, Charlotte and Durham.

Today, the Muslims say they have 10 million followers in the United States, including 1,500 in North Carolina and South Carolina.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may feel sluggish early in the day but later can make up for lost time and accomplish a great deal. Be sensible.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) New projects appeal to you but they need more study before you jump into them. New contacts yield fine benefits now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you carry through with promises made and you gain fine benefits from them. Show more affection for loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You may not agree with the ideas of an associate, but think them over carefully for a better appraisal.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Improving your surroundings now can add to your comfort and pleasure. Take time to improve your appearance. Be logical.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Express your finest talents and gain the support of higher-ups. Don't waste time with persons who have selfish interests.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study home conditions and clarify any problems there in a friendly fashion. Make your life as you want it to be.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make it a point to contact persons who can give the advice you need to make greater progress in career matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal day to handle monetary affairs and increase your security in the future. Give more attention to close ties.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can easily make an excellent impression on others at this time. Accept social invitations and dress in good taste.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Think over your ideas for the future and make plans to profit by them. Consult an expert for advice you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good time to get together with friends and make mutual plans for the future. Take no chances with one who opposes you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she could be easily spoiled, so teach your progeny to stand on own two feet and make the most of the talents in this chart. Would do well in the field of entertainment. Teach to set a goal and then to follow through.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

How Tar Heel Senators And Representatives Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes during the week of Apr. 25-29.

HOUSE
FARMERS By a vote of 284 for and 121 against, the House voted to keep the existing ceiling on Farmers Home Administration loans for real estate acquisitions and capital improvements.

This was a victory for lawmakers from the Midwest and other areas that have smaller farms. It was a defeat for western lawmakers, whose farmers have bigger spreads requiring larger FmHA loans.

The vote affected only FmHA "ownership" loans. It kept the ceiling at $200,000 per loan and $300,000 per loan guarantee. It killed language in a pending bill (HR 1190, which awaited final action) to raise those limits to $300,000 and $400,000 respectively.

The vote had no bearing on the FmHA loan ceilings for operating expenses and rural non-farm housing, which were to be considered separately.

Sponsor Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, said the FmHA "is intended to serve as a lender of last resort...to moderate-size family farmers."

Opponent Jack Hightower, D-Tex., told Bedell he was "forgetting...that farming is done in difference ways in different parts of the world."

Members voting yes wanted to keep the present per-transaction ceiling on FmHA ownership loans and loan guarantees.

NORTH CAROLINA Voting yes: Walter Jones, D-1, Tim Valentine, D-2, Charles Britt, D-6, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, James Clarke, D-11.

Voting no: Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, W.G. Hefner, D-8.

Not voting: Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7.

FREEZE The House voted, 215 for and 194 against, to reaffirm a freeze of U.S. and Soviet nuclear weaponry at existing levels as the top priority of the resolution (HJ Res 13) calling for a "mutual and verifiable freeze on and reductions in nuclear weapons."

A triumph for pro-freezers, the vote once again rebuffed efforts by opponents to establish "reductions" as a co-equal priority of HJ Res 13. President Reagan says reducing superpower arsenals is needed to keep a freeze from insuring U.S. inferiority.

The vote came as the House continued to be tied in knots by HJ Res 13 while delaying consideration of many pending bills needed to run the government on a daily basis. The House at week's end had debated the freeze measure inconclusively for 32 hours in five sessions over six weeks.

Members voting yes wanted to keep a freeze as the unchallenged first priority of HJ Res 13.

NORTH CAROLINA Voting yes: Walter Jones, Ike Andrews, Neal, Brill, Rose, Hefner, Clarke.

Voting no: Valentine, Whitley, James Martin, Broyhill.

SENATE
IMMIGRATION By a vote of 40 for and 51 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to the immigration reform bill (S 529) dealing with proposed penalties on employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. Final action on the bill was delayed until May 10 or later.

The amendment sought to "sunset" the penalties, called employer sanctions, after five years if they were found to be discriminatory. Under the section, aliens applying for work would have to display a card documenting their legal residency. Employers who intentionally hire undocumented workers would be subject to criminal penalties including imprisonment.

Employer sanctions are opposed by liberals who say there are "police state" connotations to requiring aliens to carry an identity card, and who fear legal aliens will lose work opportunities merely because of their appearance.

Conservatives also oppose the sanctions, saying they put too much of a paperwork and investigative burden on employers.

Lawmakers in the middle say the influx of illegal aliens will never be curbed until employers stop hiring them.

The immigration bill would grant residency to illegal aliens who entered the country before 1977, and tighten the Mexican border, among its many provisions.

Voting from North Carolina were John East, R, voted no. Jesse Helms, R, voted no.

AMNESTY The Senate rejected, 20 for and 70 against, an amendment to liberalize the immigration reform bill (above) by allowing more illegal aliens to achieve legal residency under the "amnesty" section.

The amendment sought to change from Jan. 1, 1980 to Dec. 31, 1981 the date by which an illegal alien had to have entered the U.S. in order to become a candidate for permanent residency.

The bill automatically grants legal status to aliens who have lived continuously in the U.S. since Jan. 1, 1977. Those arriving after that date but before Jan. 1, 1980 would receive temporary residency that would be upgraded after three years if they learn

Report Median Earnings Rose

WASHINGTON (AP) — The median weekly earnings of American families rose slightly in the first quarter of this year compared with the same period last year but failed to keep pace with consumer inflation, the government says.

The $456-a-week median earnings figure was 2.3 percent higher than in the first quarter of 1982, the Labor Department says. But it was 1.2 percent behind a moderating 3.5 percent annual rate of inflation over the same period.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics surveyed the "usual median weekly earnings" of approximately 40.1 million families whose incomes came solely from wages and salaries.

INCOMES DOUBLED

PEKING (AP) — A survey of 22,000 rural households showed per capita income of China's peasants has more than doubled since China began agricultural reforms four years ago, the Xinhua news agency says.

Literacy Test In Florida Awaits Ruling By Judge

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Huey Johnson was among the first high school students to take Florida's functional literacy test — and flunk.

To earn a diploma, the state said, he had to prove he could survive outside the classroom by applying reading, writing and math to everyday situations, such as buying a car, shopping for groceries, borrowing money.

Johnson was an 11th-grader in Tampa in 1977, when Florida's literacy test was introduced. Claiming the exam discriminated against blacks, he joined 10 other black students in suing the state.

Now, nearly six years later, a federal judge faces a May 19 deadline in deciding whether Florida is dealing with black students in a constitutionally fair way.

It's America's premier legal test of whether states can deny diplomas to those who fail a standard exam.

The case is pending before U.S. District Judge George C. Carr, who has promised to rule before graduation ceremonies begin May 19. His decision will affect as many as 3,000 seniors who couldn't pass the two-part exam after as many as five tries.

Students take the exam first as a sophomore and have four more opportunities before graduation. The number of blacks passing has improved dramatically over the years from 25 percent to 90 percent, yet the failure rate is seven times the failure rate for whites.

According to the state Board of Education, 108,194 high school students — now seniors — took the test for the first time as 10th graders in 1981. Of these, 74,833 were white; 21,226 were black. As of October 1982, more than 10 percent of the blacks were still failing, compared to 1.4 percent of the white students.

"The eyes of the country are on us, no doubt about it," says Florida Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington, a defendant in the suit. "Here's a state testing the most basic things — reading and math. If we can't enforce this as a condition of graduation and require it to be demonstrated through a test, then we can never have a truly serious education system. It would be a devastating blow to the education systems of this country."

Steve Hanlon, part of a team of attorneys who argued the case on behalf of Florida's black students, says the legacy from a long history of segregation prevents blacks from doing as well on the test as their white classmates.

"It involves a question of constitutional fairness — and education. As usual, the Constitution tends to clash somewhat with the efficiency of state government," Hanlon says.

The test — written at the eighth-grade level — is a series of multiple-choice questions covering math, reading and writing.

Teachers say the exam isn't difficult but demands concentration.

"We're here to teach kids how to fit into society. Why should a student go through 12 years of school, then to a store and not be able to figure out which is the best buy — three at 35 cents each, or three for $1?" asks Clarence B. Bell, head of the math department at a Tampa vocational high school.

Johnson earned a diploma after taking the test three times. He went through the turmoil of desegregation in grammar school, being bused from an all-black school with second-hand books, cracked desks and classrooms without air conditioning to an integrated school in an affluent white neighborhood. Materials were better but tensions were worse, he says.

"You saw how some made it, but never how to make it. Afterwards, you'd go back to your own neighborhood."

In school, he recalls, things weren't brighter. "The feeling I had was that the teacher didn't care whether I was there or not."

On behalf of Johnson and the other 10 Hillsborough County high school students, Hanlon sued in 1978, calling the test discriminatory. Carr ruled it was not biased — culturally or racially — but ordered the state to wait until 1983 to begin withholding diplomas. By that time every student would have a chance for 12 years of education in an integrated system.

A Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with Carr's assessment of the test, but sent the case back to him in 1981.

Anti-test attorneys challenged a state report which said students had ample opportunity to learn the material. They called the report — a look at all 67 school districts in the state — hearsay since the surveys of students and teachers were anonymous and precluded cross-examination. And experts picked apart some sections of it, challenging the claim that all counties prepared students adequately for the exam.

Today, more than a decade after forced integration, black students say they are still subjected to racial slurs — name-calling such as "dumb, stupid and retarded" — by their teachers, the attorneys said.

At the end of the second hearing April 26, attorneys reminded Carr that graduations begin May 19.

"I'll beat that," he said.

Now 23 and a cook, Johnson came to the courthouse for part of the recent proceedings.

"I had to be there," Johnson says. "It's close to me. There's a part of me involved. It's something I helped start."

Identify Greek Icon As Early El Greco

By KERIN HOPE

Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) —

A Greek expert on Byzantine art says he has discovered on icon in an Aegean island church and claims it is the earliest known work by the eccentric Cretan painter El Greco, who earned his fame in 16th century Spain.

"It must have been painted in the 1560s, when El Greco was in his early 20s and working in Heraklion in Crete," George Mastoropoulos, a government antiquities service Byzantinist, said in a recent interview.

Mastoropoulos found the icon, painted on canvas and measuring 24.6 by 20.6 inches, two months ago in a church on the island of Syros.

It depicts the Virgin Mary in the formal style of Byzantine icons, sacred paintings displayed in Orthodox Christian churches and monasteries.

It was signed "Domenico Theotocopoulos," the painter's name before he moved to Italy and later Spain, where he became known as El Greco (The Greek).

"It's a tremendously powerful work, with bright Venetian colors and some other Italian Renaissance touches," Mastoropoulos said. "We'll be able to say more when it's been fully cleaned."

Mastoropoulos said some experts claim another Greek icon depicting St. Luke also is an early El Greco, but "it's a matter of scholarly argument."

"The newly identified painting is the earliest undisputed work we know," he said.

He added that El Greco probably painted the icon for a monastery on Mount Athos in northern Greece.

"From there it traveled to the Monastery of The Dormition on the island of Psara. It must have been taken to Syros by islanders fleeing massacre by Ottoman Turks during the Greek war of independence," he said.

April Definitely Proved Wetter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Easterners probably won't be surprised to learn that the U.S. Geological Survey says April was definitely wetter than usual.

Record flows were recorded on several streams and rivers, well levels rose and New York's reservoirs were filled, the survey said.

Water flowing into Chesapeake Bay set a record at 171 billion gallons a day during April. That's not only an April record, it's the second-highest bay inflow ever — behind only June 1972, when Hurricane Agnes set the record.

RABBIT TRANSIT

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — An air cargo company here found it necessary to deliver one load of goods as quickly as possible.

The Chinese Rabbit Breeders' Association had ordered 200 angora rabbits for breeding purposes. Every means possible was taken by Emery Worldwide to speed delivery to association officials in Hong Kong who warned that "transit delays could cause more rabbits to arrive than were shipped."

'Synthetic' Genes Used In Diagnosis

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Exact copies of the faulty portions of defective genes are being made in laboratories to help doctors spot inherited disorders before birth.

So far, these fake gene fragments, called synthetic DNA probes, have been used to diagnose three ailments that are passed from parents to children.

Researchers say the technique should have far wider uses as scientists learn which genes are responsible for transmitting a variety of human ills, including diabetes and heart disease.

The latest work with the manufactured DNA provides a new way to tell parents whether fetuses have a particular form of thalassemia, an inherited type of anemia common among Mediterranean peoples.

Earlier prenatal tests for thalassemia required withdrawing blood from the fetus, a risky procedure that was fatal to the unborn child about 5 percent of the time. The new approach uses amniotic fluid from the womb, which can be obtained much more safely.

The newest application of the test was developed by Dr. Stuart H. Orkin of Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston. He and colleagues described it a study published in the March issue of the Journal of Clinical Investigation.

Pioneering work in the creation of this kind of diagnosis has been conducted by Dr. Bruce Wallace of the City of Hope Research Institute in Duarte, Calif.

Genes are part of a molecule of DNA, the key chemical that controls heredity. DNA is formed like a tiny twisted rope ladder. Each rung of the ladder is made up of two nitrogen compounds called bases.

For many years, scientists have been mapping the exact order in which these bases are arranged. Many inherited diseases seem to occur when just one base is out of place.

"We know that one change in the sequence causes sickle cell anemia, and many different kinds of single changes cause thalassemia," Orkin said.

In the lab, the researchers made copies of the minuscule stretch of the gene that has the defect, and they made pieces of normal genes as well. Then they labeled them with radioactivity so they would be easy to find.

Next, they used enzymes to slice DNA taken from the amniotic fluid surrounding the fetus suspected of having thalassemia. In the process, they chopped the DNA into pieces and pulled apart the legs of the DNA ladder.

Then they mixed their fake fragments with the fetus' broken-up DNA. If a fetus had a defective gene, the faulty manmade fragments of genes latched onto them. Similarly, the normal fakes sought out their normal counterparts.

The gene that was the subject of this search oversees the body's production of hemoglobin, the substance that carries oxygen in the blood. When the gene is defective, people are anemic, and they often die in early adulthood.

Although rare in the United States, thalassemia is common in the Mediterranean and the Middle and Far East. It can be caused by a variety of genetic mutations. Orkin's test will diagnose one often found among Greeks and Italians.

Similar versions of the test have been developed to diagnose other forms of thalassemia, sickle cell anemia and alpha-one antitrypsin deficiency, which can cause liver disease and emphysema.

Using the test for other inherited disorders will depend on figuring out which genes cause the problem and what exactly is going wrong.

"If you could find something in the insulin gene, for example, you could do this" test, Orkin said. "If you found something in a gene for a lipoprotein that was related to heart disease, you could do this."

Spanish Is Required In Philippines

By MIGUEL C. SUAREZ
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Philippine officials are debating whether to repeal or retain a law that requires college students to study Spanish — a language few Filipinos ever learn to speak.

The debate itself is being carried on in either English or the native Pilipino, which have supplanted the language Spain tried to impose during 300 years of colonization. The United States brought English to the islands after occupying the Spanish-American War in 1898; it granted independence to the Philippines in 1946.

Spanish remains an official language, nevertheless, and has been required in schools since 1952, even though it is now rarely used, except by the country's oldest aristocracy.

President Ferdinand E. Marcos' Cabinet recently proposed to retain Spanish as a mandatory subject in the studies of law, diplomacy and history but would make it optional in commerce, medicine and other sciences.

The compromise was worked out after the Education Committee of the National Assembly, the nation's parliament, tabled a bill to repeal the 1952 law requiring all college students to complete 12 units of Spanish.

The law adds an extra linguistic burden in a country where literacy is high and where every educated Filipino speaks at least two and more likely three languages — English, Pilipino (also called Tagalog) and his regional dialect if he is a non-Tagalog by birth.

While the compromise is expected to be popular with the country's more than one million college students, it does not please local Hispanists, who view the compulsory lessons as the government's only contribution to preserving the Philippines' Spanish roots.

"This is a sugar-coated way of doing away with Spanish," charges Guillermo Gomez Rivera, vice president of the 4,000-member National Federation of Professors in Spanish. "It fools no one. It is a very bad move which will have repercussions in the Spanish-speaking world."

Amelita Caluya, a fourth-year journalism student at the University of Santo Tomas, welcomed the government's proposal as "the practical thing to do."

"The country was under Spain for more than 300 years," she said. "Isn't that enough? It's about time we did away with this bondage. It's irrelevant. Who needs Spanish? I hate it and most other students also detest it."

Like millions of Filipinos forced to study Spanish before her, Miss Caluya hasn't acquired any proficiency in the language. And even if she had, she'd find little opportunity or need to use it.

Of the 50 million Filipinos, only about 750,000 speak Spanish. Most Filipinos communicate in English or Pilipino, both mandatory subjects from grade school through college, or through dozens of local dialects.

By the time the United States granted the Philippines independence in 1946, English had uprooted Spanish.

Substantial traces of Spain's rule remain in words borrowed by the dialects, folk dances, the country's architecture and even its food. Most Filipinos also bear Spanish names as do many of their towns and provinces. Spain also brought the Roman Catholic Church to which most Filipinos belong.

Despite their dwindling numbers, Spanish speakers still wield influence, since they include some of the country's most successful businessmen.

The 1973 revised Philippine constitution did away with Spanish as an official language. But apparently under pressure, Marcos issued a decree within months reinstating Spanish as the third official language.

Marcos said many vital documents, including land deeds and historical accounts, would have to be translated before Spanish could be dropped.

Expatriate Remembers Siam Days

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Jorge Orgibet, the oldest resident American in Thailand, drives to work these days over traffic-clogged, concrete roads where not so long ago he boarded boats for languid canal journeys. Most of the gracious, wooden villas where he lived or visited have been bulldozed away to make room for soaring condominiums.

Siam, the land of exotic charm to which Orgibet came in 1945, has become Thailand, a rapidly modernizing nation along the booming East Asian rim. Krungthep, the quiet, templed "City of Angels," has become Bangkok, the international name for Thailand's capital, which now moves to a fast international beat.

"Here was a city of some 600,000 people, known as the 'Venice of the East' for its network of klongs (canals). Trees formed a canopy of green over most of the streets. Very little resembled today's metropolis of some 5 1/2 million."

So writes Orgibet, now a trim, vigorous and still fully employed 75-year-old, in his recently published memoir, "From Siam to Thailand: Backdrop to the Lands of Smiles."

Young Orgibet came to Siam — it was renamed Thailand in 1949 — from the China-Burma-India theater just after World War II ended, assigned here with the U.S. Office of War Information.

Although an avowed patriot, he was one of many Americans who fell in love with Asia via the war and never returned home. Over the past 37 years Orgibet has gone back to the United States just once for a short visit.

A number of Americans who remained in Thailand contributed significantly to their adopted country.

Willis H. Bird co-founded the first stock exchange and paved the way for a now vigorous Thai-American trade. Albert and Freda Lyman built Tilleke and Gibbins into one of the country's largest law firms. Alexander MacDonald founded the "Bangkok Post," a thriving English-language newspaper.

Jim Thompson, a close friend of Orgibet's, is remembered as the "Silk King of Thailand" for reviving the silk industry. He disappeared mysteriously while on a trip in the Malaysian jungles in 1967.

Orgibet resigned from the U.S. government service in 1947 after a stint as the embassy press officer and after laying the foundations of the U.S. Information Service in Thailand, a job which involved travel by foot, elephant and a railway car especially designed for his use.

Orgibet, who came from a newspaper family, has since opened Thailand's first advertising agency and served as a public relations consultant to the national airline. He began operations of The Associated Press in Thailand in 1953 and reported for the American television network national NBC.

Along the way he started Thailand's first Western-style nightclub, "The Silver Palm," and ran a security guard business.

Today, he puts in 10 hours and more a day as executive editor of "Business in Thailand," considered one of the best English-language business magazines in the country to which for years he contributed a "Backdrop" column, reminding younger Thais and foreigners what it was like in the old days. Orgibet has also set up a scholarship fund to aid promising but poor Thai journalism students.

Wildlife Will Benefit From Pennsylvania Tax Law

By DAVE DRAKULA
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvanians filing state income tax returns this year were urged to "do something wild."

The Wild Resources Conservation Fund has been created by the state legislature to provide for the management and protection of non-game wildlife and wild plants. This year, every resident had an opportunity to back up his support for wildlife with dollars and cents.

For years, major expenditures toward helping fish and wildlife have come from the coffers of the Fish and Game commissions, funds that are generated by the sale of licenses, special permits, federal aid supported by excise taxes on hunting and fishing equip-

In recent years, there has been a great upsurge of interest in all types of fish and wildlife. Observing wildlife with binoculars and photographing wildlife and wild flowers have become popular forms of outdoor recreation.

Over the past few years, the Fish and Game commissions have paid increasing attention to the needs of all fish and wildlife. At the same time, federal funds permitted expanded activities such as the bald eagle restoration program.

However, recent tightening of the federal budget has choked off much of this revenue.

The Do Something Wild program made it possible for residents to support fish and wildlife more directly than was possible in the past.

Using the 1982 Pennsylvania State Income Tax form, they could make a tax-deductible contribution of all or part of the income tax overpayment to the Wild Resources Conservation Fund, including payments of less than $1.

Many types of wildlife will benefit from the program.

Bluebirds and chickadees are non-game wildlife. So are endangered species such as the bald eagle, peregrine falcon and Indiana bat. Of the 277 species of birds and 70 kinds of mammals living in or migrating through Pennsylvania, only 17 percent are classified as game.

"Concern for non-game wildlife has never developed in a planned, consistent way," said Jerry Hassinger of the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

"The Pennsylvania Biological Survey, for example, lists five bird species as endangered and eight more as threatened. All of them are non-game species and now there must be attention given to non-game."

Clark Shiffer, herpetology and endangered species coordinator for the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, is currently heading an effort to collect information on all the state's endangered or threatened reptiles and amphibians.

According to Shiffer, the research includes habitat evaluation for specific species as well as reasons for the declining numbers.

Money from the Wild Resources Conservation Fund will be utilized to collect information and conduct research on the population, distribution and habitat needs of native plant species.

Ten Are Honored By PBK Alumni

ECU News Bureau
Ten students in East Carolina University's College of Arts and Sciences were honored by the Pitt County chapter of Phi Beta Kappa alumni at its annual spring reception.

The students are graduating seniors, candidates for degrees in disciplines recognized by Phi Beta Kappa.

The reception was hosted by Chancellor and Mrs. John Howell, both members of Phi Beta Kappa. Dr. Tinsley Yarbrough of the department of political science, president of the local alumni group, recognized the student honorees and Chancellor Howell presented each student an engraved silver Jefferson cup as a memento.

Students honored were political science majors Kenneth Paramore of Greenville, Kenneth Hooper of Avon and William Wade Bartlett of Jacksonville; biology majors Carole Lynn Wilson of Raleigh and Julius Jackson Barefoot II of New Bern; chemistry majors Caren Lea Hix and Melissa Bailey Adams of Grimesland; foreign languages major Lisa Ryan of Goldsboro; mathematics major John Atkinson of Virginia Beach and psychology major Norris Hoggard of Chesapeake, Va.

Parents' names and addresses of area honorees are as follows:

Pitt County — Kenneth Paramore, son of Valerie J. Paramore, 102 Eagle Circle; Caren Lea Hix, daughter of Dr. James Hix, 107 Heritage St., and Melissa Bailey Adams, resident of Grimesland, Route 1, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Bailey of Greenville, Route 3.

The JIM HUNT Record

Jim Hunt Says:

Campaign assistance from out-of-state "creates obligations you ought not to have."¹

For The Record:

Hunt PAC got Bert Lance and Andy Young to host a $65,000 fundraiser in Atlanta for Jim Hunt.²

You bet it did!

And, how did Bert Lance get his pay-off from Jim Hunt?

First, Bert Lance called on Hunt's party chieftain, Russell Walker, to hotfoot it to Chicago.³

Then, Hunt's party chieftain campaigned for Bert Lance's candidate, Harold Washington, for Mayor of Chicago.⁴

Is this how Jim Hunt built his POLITICAL MACHINE?

Arkansas Moving Into The Tree-Growing Business

By LINDA FRANKLIN
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas has 16 million to 18 million acres of land available for the commercial production of trees. And growers are putting an increasing number of seedlings in more ground.

Southern Forestry Institute said 107.8 million trees had been planted in Arkansas during the 1981-82 season, a 37 percent increase over the 78.6 million seedlings deposited in 1980-81. Planting is normally done between December and mid-March. Figures for the 1982-83 period are not available.

SFI, headquartered in Atlanta, said Arkansas' increase was the largest of the 13 states in its territory.

While the number of seedlings increased, so did the amount of land planted. Jim Tiner, assistant state forester in charge of resources management, said recently Arkansas Forestry Commission figures showed a 22.4 percent increase with seedlings planted on 110,421 acres in 1981-82 compared to 90,200 acres the pbevious year.

The figures for seedlings and acreage do not cover areas that were direct seeded, which involves sowing seed instead of planting the trees.

million seedlings this year, Tiner said in a telephone interview. Of those, 4 million were sold to industries. Tiner said production had changed and more industries were adding their own nurseries to furnish their stock.
Tiner said he expected the percentages of seedlings planted to increase as industries lean more toward even-age management. That happens when all the trees in a stand are cut and an entire crop must be planted.

Timber growers must look to the future, said B.J. "Merf" Pavlovich, executive vice president of the Arkansas Forestry Association. "You don't turn the faucet off and on for growing trees," he said. Double the amount of wood is to be needed in 20 to 40 years, Pavlovich said, and the trees have to be planted now.
Pavlovich and Leon Robinette of Hot Springs, a spokesman for Weyerhaeuser Corp., say people are deciding it doesn't pay to leave the land idle.

Robinette says smaller land owners, farmers and people who have inherited land are among those begin-

Says Russian Units In Syria

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says the Soviet Union has more than 5,000 troops and advisers in Syria, organized into Soviet units. "These fellows aren't really advisers any more," Weinberger told NBC News on Monday. "These are organized Soviet units. I think they're there to man a lot of things they have sent in, particularly the air defenses, the surface-to-air missiles." Weinberger also said the Russians continue to pour weapons into Syria, having replaced all the weapons Syria lost last summer in Lebanon.

Israel has complained about the deployment of Soviet anti-aircraft.

Some tree farmers are also turning to Christmas trees as a crop because unlike the commercial pine species, which takes a minimum of 30 years to mature, the Christmas tree can be harvested in eight years.

UN Reports Smaller Cars For Future

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Cars will become smaller and more alike, but for the foreseeable future they will remain the most popular form of personal transportation, according to a United Nations study.

In greater jeopardy, the study said, are small-sized and medium-sized manufacturers, who may need to merge with competitors or obtain government help if they are to remain in business.

Even high fuel prices and global economic problems will not undermine the popularity of the gasoline-powered automobile, according to the 223-page book on the international auto industry just published by the U.N. Center on Transnational Corporations.

"The nature of the product will, however, change substantially," the study said. "Smaller, lighter, longer-lived, more aerodynamic and more efficiently powered cars are likely to replace the conventional products of the 1970s."

The study predicted that "large national differences in styling, size and performance requirements will tend to disappear, as the exigencies of higher oil prices assert themselves worldwide and growing international competition tends to reduce the scope of national distinctions."

The study said competition and cost-cutting should lead to more automation, larger production runs and efforts to increase labor productivity.

"The high and rising costs of developing, producing and marketing new automobiles seems to imply," it said, "that only the largest volume producers (as well as a few highly specialized producers of luxury cars) will be able to operate efficiently into the 1990s."

"Current estimates for the minimum size of a viable volume car producer run at 2 million units per annum, but several firms even in this group are seeking external alliances to bear the costs of development and component production."

"It is to be expected, therefore, that the number of corporations currently active in the industry will fall, and that cooperative research and production ventures will grow increasingly."

"Given the importance of the auto industry, in terms of its direct and indirect employment and its balance-of-payments contribution, national governments are likely to intervene increasingly to support their national firms, to promote automotive exports and also perhaps to attract new foreign automotive investments."

The study said 404,233,076 cars, trucks and buses were registered worldwide as of Jan. 1, 1980, of which 154,412,000 were in the United States, 36,231,013 in Japan and 24,161,829 in West Germany.

In 1981, Japan led auto producers with 11,179,962 units, the United States was second with 7,936,031 and West Germany was third with 3,897,007.

The 10 largest producers and their 1981 outputs were: General Motors 6,762,000, Ford 4,402,000, Toyota 3,290,000, Nissan (Datsun) 2,814,000, Volkswagen 2,196,000, Peugeot-Citroen 1,585,000, Renault 1,527,000, Fiat 1,364,000, Toyo Kogyo 1,230,000 and Chrysler 1,083,000.

Registered Ten-Millionth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service System has registered its ten-millionth young man.

Spokesman Will Ebel said the name was entered on agency computers Monday. Officials declined to make public the name of the specific ten-millionth individual to sign up.

There is no actual draft under way, but registration has been required since 1980 to collect a pool of names for use in the event of a national emergency. Selective Service Director Thomas Turnage has estimated compliance with the program at about 96 percent of eligible men.

Travel Rules To Prove Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A travel organization says French government restrictions on travel by its citizens, if completely effective, could mean a loss of 129,000 visitors to the United States and might cost 4,000 Americans their jobs.

The Travel and Tourism Government Affairs Council said that the United States receives about 330,000 French visitors annually, and they spend an average of $900 each. This figure includes not only tourists, but business, official and student travelers.

Hardee's

BIG ROAST BEEF™ WITH FRIES AND A DRINK

Just feast your eyes on the size of our Big Roast Beef Sandwich! This is a sandwich and then some. Layer after layer of tender, juicy roast beef, sliced thin and piled high on a freshly toasted bun! And good! Is it good!

So the next time you're good and hungry, come on over and order a Big Roast Beef. And don't forget, it goes just great with fries and a drink.
