Painful Tax Decision To Face Legislators

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In about a week, legislative committees expect to face a painful question: Will a tax increase will be needed to balance North Carolina's fiscal 1983-84 budget?

Although the state isn't making as much money as Gov. Jim Hunt foresaw when submitting his spending proposals, lawmakers aren't conceding they'll have to take the politically unpopular step. But neither the appropriations committees that set the budget nor the finance committees from which tax increases originate are ruling it out.

"It will depend entirely on what the appropriations people tell us and whether the finance people choose to accept it," said Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

"I'm not saying we'll need a tax increase," said Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. "What I'm saying is that we'll tell them how much money we need and they'll decide how best to raise it."

Hunt's proposed fiscal 1983-84 budget anticipates revenue growth of 8.8 percent. But when legislative analysts predicted growth of only 7.2 percent, budget leaders ordered Joint Appropriations Base Budget subcommittees to identify cuts of up to 3 percent in case tax collections fall short.

The full appropriations committee has approved some cuts. However, most will be delayed until April revenue collections are reported later this month. Final spending decisions usually are based on May and June revenue figures.

When budget leaders think they know whether extra money is needed to continue existing programs, they'll inform the finance committees. Rauch said he expects a message in a week to 10 days.

It's an unfamiliar situation for finance committee veterans, who aren't accustomed to basing their actions on what the budget committees do. Traditionally it's the other way around.

"In the past, the finance committees passed their tax bills and the budget committees spent whatever the bills produced," said Rauch. "Of course, back then there were surpluses and the only question was what new projects would get the extra money."

Legislators are reluctant to speculate on possible revenue-raising measures, although that topic is said to have been discussed last week during a meeting of top lawmakers and Hunt at the governor's mansion. Hunt has proposed increases in alcoholic beverage taxes but opposes other tax hikes, said

Brent Hackney, his deputy press secretary.

Three bills that would increase the state sales tax have been introduced. One, sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, would boost the statewide sales levy from 3 percent to 4 percent while eliminating the food tax.

Other possibilities include raising taxes on vehicle sales between two individuals or increasing the corporate income tax rate, which is 6 percent, while the individual income tax rate is 7 percent.

Shultz Expecting Syria To Pullback

By The Associated Press

U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz, ending his two-week Middle East peace trip, predicts Syria will withdraw its troops from Lebanon "within a reasonable time" but expects the negotiations to be difficult.

Shultz flew to Paris on Sunday after an exhausting trip in which he helped negotiate a troop withdrawal agreement between Israel and Lebanon and urged Syria to withdraw its troops as well.

A refusal by the Syrians could negate the Israeli-Lebanese accord, but Arab diplomatic sources said Saudi Arabia's King Fahd was trying to convince Syria to pull its troops out from Lebanon. The Syrian troops entered Lebanon under an Arab League mandate to police the 1975-76 Christian-Moslem civil war.

Israel agreed in principle to pull out its 25,000 troops from Lebanon, but says Syria must withdraw its estimated 40,000 troops at the same time. A State Department official who requested anonymity said Sunday the United States has accepted Israel's position that its troops can remain in Lebanon as long as Syrian forces are there.

Syria has criticized the withdrawal agreement because it allows Israel to keep a small military presence in Lebanon, but Shultz didn't seem discouraged and said Syria "hasn't slammed the door" on it.

"We know there are difficulties ahead," Shultz told reporters in Tel Aviv on Sunday, briefing them on his meeting in Damascus on Saturday with Syrian President Hafez Assad. "Yesterday, we had a clear statement of 'no enthusiasm' for the agreement as such, but we had no flat statement of 'we will not withdraw' or anything like that."

He said he was confident an agreement between Syria and Lebanon "can be concluded in a reasonable amount of time."

Shultz met with Saudi King Fahd in Jidda, Saudi Arabia, on Sunday, and Arab diplomatic sources said he asked the king to convince the Syrians to withdraw their forces from Lebanon.

Assad arrived in Saudi Arabia later in the day for talks with King Fahd, and Arab diplomatic sources said the king was asking Assad to change his mind and cooperate in a troop-withdrawal arrangement.

FIRE which started at the rear of Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church was contained just as it entered the church sanctuary early this morning.

Morning Fire Damages A Church At Scuffletown

SCUFFLETON — Fire damaged a portion of Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church here this morning, but firemen from Ayden and Greene County saved the sanctuary.

The call to Ayden went in at 5:49 a.m. Ayden Fire Chief Calvin Hardee said the blaze had just broken through a stained glass window and set curtains at the front of the sanctuary on fire when firemen arrived.

"Just a little bit of water put the curtains out," he said, "but if we'd been a minute later, I don't know if we have saved the church at all. The timing was just right."

Several other stained glass windows in the building were cracked by the heat, he said, and there was smoke damage, but no fire or water damage inside the sanctuary. The restroom area and materials stored there were destroyed. He estimated the damage at $10,000.

Ayden was assisted by fire departments from Maury and Hookerton in fighting the fire. Greene County will do the followup investigation, since the church is located in Greene County.

Tax Cut Will Begin Showing Up In Paychecks On July 1

By JIM LUTHER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average married worker with two children will take home an extra $2.40 a week when the final share of President Reagan's tax cut begins showing up in paychecks July 1.

The federal income tax withheld from that worker's paycheck will drop to $25.70 a week — down $7.30, or 22 percent, from the level immediately before the first stage of the tax cut took effect on Oct. 1, 1981.

The figures, from new tables prepared by the Internal Revenue Service, are for a married person making what the Labor Department defines as the median wage — $319 a week. That means half the people make more than $319 and half make less.

For a single person at the same pay level, withholding in checks received July 1 and later will drop $4.40 a week, to $44.40. That is 23.6 percent less than before the three-stage cut in withholding began 19 months ago.

A married worker claiming four withholding allowances (one each for self, spouse and two children) and making $400 a week will see a $4.20-bigger paycheck. At a $500 weekly wage, the withholding cut would be $6.80; at $600, $8.80; at $700, $12.20, and at $900 a week, $18.40.

A single person claiming only one allowance and earning $200 would take home an extra $2.20; at $400, an extra $7.20; at $500, $11.10; at $600, $14.60; and at $1,000, an extra $16.20.

This year's reduction in withholding will range from zero — for a married person making $150 a week — to nearly 14 percent, for one earning $200 weekly. But when the 1981, 1982 and 1983 cuts in withholding are viewed as a package, most workers are receiving a cut of about 22 percent or 23 percent.

For most people, the reduction in withholding will approximate the actual reduction in taxes owed. But not always.

For example, the $319-a-week married worker with two children and average deductions will owe only $54 less in federal tax this year — about $1 a week less — than in 1982. But withholding will drop by $2.40 a week. That means when he files a tax return early next year, the refund could be less than otherwise or he might owe a bit more.

If the withholding system worked perfectly, withholding would match tax liabilities. There would be no refund and no check to pay when the annual tax return is filed.

That doesn't happen for several reasons. Not all income is subject to withholding. People have different deductions and different size families. Also, there are 13 different tax rates used to determine taxes owed, but only seven withholding tax rates.

The IRS is sending employers new tables for calculating the July 1 reduced withholding rates. The new "Employer's Tax Guide" also will urge employers to explain to workers how they can change their withholding if too much or too little is taken from their checks.

Nearly eight of every 10 taxpayers have too much withheld, although many of them want it that way because they like a larger refund each year. On the other hand, many workers making more than about $60,000 a year automatically have too little withheld. That's because the top withholding rate is 37 percent while the top tax rate is 50 percent.

Each "allowance" permits $1,000 of annual wages ($19.23 a week) to escape withholding. Workers are permitted one allowance for themselves and one for a spouse and each child.

RESTRAINING ORDER

Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten was granted a temporary restraining order against Data Transfer Service, a Beverly Hills, Calif. firm accused of misrepresentations and false billings in telephone sales of office supplies in North Carolina.

Edmisten referred to six lawsuits filed since late 1981 to halt similar practices by other firms, five of whom also were operating out of California and one based in Florida.

The court order, stemming from a consumer protection lawsuit filed May 4 in Wake County Superior Court, prohibits Data Transfer from:

- misrepresenting prices and brands of office supplies they sell.
- claiming to be the usual supplier of the businesses they contact.
- overshipping orders.
- billing for merchandise not ordered in writing by the buyer

North Carolina businesses are asked to notify their employees to be alert to calls of this type and to report them in detail to the Consumer Protection Office, Edmisten said. The address is Box 629, Raleigh, N.C. 27602; the phone number, 919-733-7741. A show-cause hearing in the case is set for May 16 in Wake County Superior Court.

Thatcher Calls June Election

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher today called a general election for June 9, 11 months before the end of her Conservative government's five-year term.

The announcement from her residence at 10 Downing St. came after Mrs. Thatcher visited Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace to request that she formally dissolve Parliament this Friday as required to call an election.

The queen has the constitutional power to dissolve Parliament at the prime minister's request.

After two months of speculation about whether Mrs. Thatcher would order an early vote, a Downing Street spokesman said the prime minister decided it was in the "national interest" to end the uncertainty.

Mrs. Thatcher had been under pressure from her closest advisers to name a day for elections after an eight-hour strategy session with the advisers Sunday.

The Times of London's political editor, Julian Haviland, said that senior members of the government and the Conservative Party agreed unanimously that Mrs. Thatcher should declare June 9 as election day. An election must be held before May 1984, when the prime minister's first term ends.

In calling an early vote, Mrs. Thatcher clearly hopes to cash in on the Conservatives' current popularity.

The oddsmaker firm William Hill made Mrs. Thatcher a 4-1 favorite to win the June poll, and opinion polls for the last year have given the Conservatives a 12-point lead over opposition parties.

June might be a good time for an election for Mrs. Thatcher. Some economists expect inflation to drop to 3.8 percent by the end of June from the current 15-year low of 4.6 percent, although the inflation rate is expected to climb again in fall.

The London financial firm James Chapel has predicted a summertime drop in unemployment, now running at 13.6 percent, lower interest rates and a continued surplus in foreign trade.

Hit In Head By A Stray Bullet

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The stray bullet that injured a man leaving a supermarket was fired during an argument outside a bakery nearly half a mile away, according to police.

Michael Vaisman was hit in the left temple Saturday as he and his family left the supermarket and were walking toward their car, said police Sgt. Bob Simoneau.

Pat's Pointers

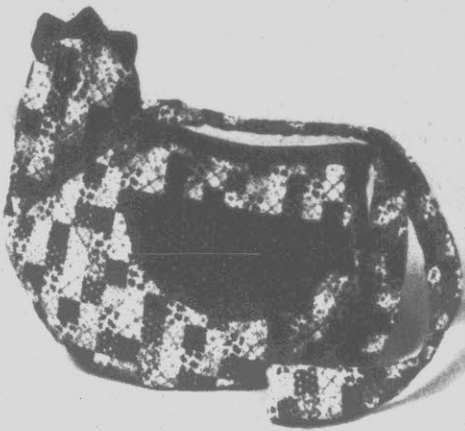

By Pat Trexler

You'll really have something to "crow" about when you make this clever Rooster Tote Bag. All you need are some quilted calico (or quilt your own), scraps of felt and Velcro, bias tape and a couple of buttons. Or leave off the handle and use the rooster as an appealing cover for potted plants. Either way, he's sure to be the hit of any charity bazaar!

To obtain directions for making the Rooster Tote, send your request for Leaflet No. QL-50883 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. QK-50883 by sending a check or money order for $9.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes pattern, all necessary materials and shipping charges.

Last fall at a craft shop, I saw the pre-cut letters of the alphabet in plastic canvas — I believe you mentioned these a few weeks ago in your column. I couldn't figure out how they could be used at the time. Later it came to me.

VERSATILE ROOSTER — can be minimum of materials or adapted for either a tote bag, requiring a use as a cover for potted plants.

They can be used to make decorative banners, spelling out various greetings such as Merry Christmas, Happy Holidays, Happy Birthday and so on. I am sending you a picture of my Seasons Greetings banner. I strung the letters on a fishline and knotted them after each letter, spacing them where I wanted them.

I am new at working with plastic canvas, but I enjoy it very much. — Clara Thomas, Springfield, Mass.

Clara may be new at plastic canvas work, but she has a good eye for design. Each of the letters in her banner is worked in random, uneven stripes of red, white and green and has great eye appeal.

The letters would be equally attractive done in a variety of pattern stitches — an interesting way to create a stitch sampler. An attractive phonebook or notebook cover could be done by gluing or stitching a monogram — made of one to three letters — onto a pattern stitch background, also made of plastic canvas.

Since many of you spend the summer months making items for fall bazaars, let me give you a few other ideas for good bazaar items.

Purchase a pair of the plain metal bookends found in office supply stores and make a "slipcover" for the vertical part of each bookend. Again, these can be exciting worked as stitch samplers. Or, if you prefer working in tent stitch, I would suggest that you pick up some counted cross-stitch graph chart booklets where you will usually find a wide variety of small design motifs.

To make the slipcovers, measure the vertical portion of one bookend and cut two sections of canvas just slightly larger. If you use colored canvas, you can just work the design and let the background remain unstitched. Or, completely cover with stitches the outer side of the bookend and leave the other side plain. Whatever your choice, overcast the bottom edge of each piece. Then hold the two pieces together with wrong sides facing one another and join on the remaining three sides.

You can also make book covers quite easily. Measure the front and back of the book to be covered and cut two pieces of canvas the same size or slightly larger. Do the same for the spine of the book. When the stitching is complete on the cover, join the front and back of the cover to the spine section.

Cut two strips from 2 to 4 inches wide and as long as the height of the book. Then lay the strips inside the front and back of the cover an inch or so in from the outside edge. Now as you overcast the top and bottom edges of the cover, join in the strips, which will then hold the cover on the book.

I'll be giving you more gift and bazaar ideas in the next few weeks so you can get a head start this year on all of your projects.

Their Confidence Boosted By Sports Activities In School

By CHARLESS S. TAYLOR
ATLANTA (UPI) — Emory University psychologists say if a child is competent in sports — something that can be taught in school — he will be more confident of his ability to control events in life.

"We've seen a lot of good things come out of this sports fitness program," said Dr. Thomas Johnson, who heads Emory's annual Sports Fitness Camp.

"It has been shown that children who succeed in sports are better adjusted, more popular and have more confidence in themselves."

Johnson and fellow Emory psychologists Marshall Duke and Stephen Nowicki studied two groups of 125 children who entered the sports fitness program in 1979 and 1982. The children ranged in age from 7 to 13 and included members of both sexes.

Johnson, Duke and Nowicki had been interested in the relationship of sports activities to childhood development for several years, particularly its effects on children other than physical.

Johnson said that interest was sparked by parents of children enrolled in the program saying that "my child seems to be much more confident."

Sports activities in the eight-week program included track and field events, distance running, aquatics, gymnastics, tumbling, basketball, soccer and racquetball.

The studies were designed to show if the youngsters were developing "internal personality traits" denoting a building of overall self-confidence, as opposed to an "external personality" that would indicate a dependence on luck, fate or chance.

At the end of the program, Johnson said, "the group as a whole became more internal and continued toward internality."

He said the studies showed a strong relationship between success in sports and a belief in one's own ability to cope with life situations off the playing field.

Mastering of sports activities can be taught, Johnson said, and helping children become proficient on the playing field could lead to development of an "internal personality."

On the other hand, children who fail in these early physical tasks may begin to avoid similar activities and be attracted to experiences in which they can rely on chance.

"While some children find rewards in successful physical activities, others may seek experiences in which their study skills or knowledge will control outcome," Johnson said.

But he cautioned that the study should not be interpreted to mean that children who are unsuccessful in sports will also be unsuccessful in life.

"That is not true by any means," he said.

KEEPING TRACK

Paperwork may be the last thing you want to think of when you're in love, but there are many things the bride-to-be needs to keep track of. Here are some tips:
As soon as you begin planning your wedding, it's wise to start keeping a recordbook or file. Many brides-to-be find that an index card system works best.

Make out a separate index card for everyone invited to your wedding (one card per couple). This makes it easier for you to keep track of the responses when they trickle in.

On the same card, you can log gifts received—both shower and wedding. And don't forget to indicate when you've sent a thank-you gift—this helps answer the "did I or didn't I?" question.

You may think you'll never forget who attended your wedding—and of course your photographs will help. But years from now, you'll be able to get nostalgic over these notes about your gifts.

New York Agency Helps Coordinate School Computers

By DOUG G. MILLER
ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Greg Benson's nightmare is 17,000 separate computer units in schools across New York state, each plugged into a different educational program and manned by a teacher who doesn't know Apples from oranges.

By the end of the 1983-84 school year, there will be at least that many computer screens in classrooms around the state, Benson predicts — nearly a three-fold increase over last year.

But without some kind of direction, many could become mere classroom ornaments, given wide berth by teachers and pupils unversed in their use and confused by unrelated software programs.

Benson, the director of the Center for Learning Technologies, says his office is the state Education Department's answer to perplexed administrators and educators who cry, "When is the state going to do something?"

The center is quickly evolving into the nucleus of a comprehensive effort to encourage the use of technologies in schools — especially micro-computer technology — to make sure the systems are programmed to best effect, and to ensure they can be handled by the schools.

The goal is one central agency to direct school districts step by step in a logical series from how to get started to how to choose the best course programs.

"We've got legislators all over the place who want to be heroes" by dropping the latest piece of computer hardware into their districts, he explained. But they seem to forget about training in how to use the machines and to select courseware for them.

Late last year, for example, Heuvelton Central School District in St. Lawrence County received a $100,000 legislative grant for computers. Benson described it as a "pork barrel" item.

But the district superintendent contacted the CLT, saying he had the money but no idea what to do with it. The office helped him design an educational computer system from the ground up.

Other districts are receiving millions of dollars to incorporate computers into the education process. "A lot of what needs to be spent is probably already being spent," Benson acknowledges. "It just needs to be coordinated."

His office is conducting a statewide review of schools to find out exactly what computer systems are in use and where, which educational programs are being fed into them, and how they play into a district's general lesson plans.

With that knowledge, the CLT can see to it that money isn't wasted on incompatible hardware and software, and that every district — regardless of its relative wealth — is pushed gently into the classroom of the future.

Six Regional Technical Assistance Centers have been established — in Patagonia, New York City, Spencerport, Binghamton, West Nyack and Herkimer — to test hardware and software, and to conduct in-service computer workshops for teachers and administrators.

The CLT also is looking into faculty incentive packages, to entice teachers knowledgeable about computers to stay in education, rather than sell their new-found competencies to higher-paying private corporations.

Influencing manufacturers of computers and software is important, too. By "getting into bed with producers," as Benson puts it, his office hopes to get them to publish educational programs better suited to the needs of New York teachers and administrators.

Just recently, the CLT collaborated with International Business Machines, and the result was a generous $8 million gift of desktop computers and companion software to New York, Florida and California. The CLT will help coordinate the installation of New York's share.

Later this year the center expects to be operating a training laboratory off the concourse of the Empire State Plaza, where anyone from legislators to passersby may receive instruction in micro-computer technology.

One training course for children is tentatively titled "Micros to Minis." But there's a catch, admits Benson. "They have to bring their parents."

His message is clear: no one, adult or child, is likely to remain insulated for long from advancing computer technology.

A weedy herb known as the gopher purge plant because it naturally repels the rodents has earned a new name: gasoline plant. According to National Geographic, it yields a milky latex containing hydrocarbons that can be refined into substitutes for crude oil and gasoline.

GRIFTON — Rex Anne Thorne of Grifton and Clarence Sidney Davis Jr. of Farmville were united in marriage at 3 p.m. Sunday in the First Baptist Church here.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rex Thorne and escorted to the altar by her father. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sidney Davis Sr. and Dr. and Mrs. Albert Wollaston Smith of Farmville.

The double ring, candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Gray. A program of wedding music was presented by Barbara Lang Smith, organist, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Bobby Bennett of Ayden played the guitar and sang "Time In A Bottle" and "There is Love." Brenda Gray of Grifton sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and silk Venise lace over taffeta. The fitted silk Venise lace on English illusion bodice featured a yoke neckline and cap sleeves. Scalloped garlands of Venise lace encircled the neckline and edged the sleeves. The skirt was appliqued with lace motifs and the hemline was bordered with scalloped garlands of Venise lace. She wore a chapel mantilla of illusion with a hand rolled edge accented with silk Venise lace motifs flowing from a lace caplet etched with seed pendaris and carried a cascading bouquet of pink roses and spring flowers with baby's breath.

Charlisa Emich of Alexandria, Va. was maid of honor and wore a formal gown of pink taffeta and organza fashioned with an open neckline. A double ruffle of matching organza and lace accented the bodice. She carried a cascade of mixed spring flowers.

Bridesmaids were Crystal Connour of Grifton and Carol Jenkins of Walstonburg, cousins of the bride, Leila Davis, sister of the bridegroom, and Frieda Tucker of Raleigh and Cindy Parish of Grifton. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant. Rhonda Glover of Wilson, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and wore a pinafore fashioned from white chantilly type lace over pink knit chiffon. She carried a basket of mixed spring flowers.

Dr. Smith was best man and ushers included Ricky L. Thorne of Raleigh, brother of the bride, Albert Woolaston Smith III of Norcross, Ga., brother of the bridegroom, John Davis of Raleigh, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Steve Warren and Dexter Crawley of Greenville and Stuart B. James of Raleigh.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pink polyester with a pleated skirt and the bridegroom's mother wore a cornflower blue moire cotton skirt with a handkerchief linen self-embroidered blouse. Both wore corsages of spring flowers. Grandmothers were given corsages.

Catherine Whaley of Grifton directed the wedding and Helen Gaddy of Grifton and Allison Fulp of Greenville presided at the guest register.

The bride is a graduate of the East Carolina University School of Nursing and works at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is currently a senior at ECU.

The couple will live near Ayden after a wedding trip.

A reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held at the Colonial Inn in Farmville Saturday and the Farmville Country Club was the setting for a rehearsal dinner given by the family of the bridegroom.

Dear Abby

Battered Men Need Support

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: God bless "Frightened in Manhattan" for writing to admit that he is a battered husband. You are correct in saying that very few men have the courage to come forward and admit that their wives beat them. I know. I was a badly battered husband for years and had cuts, bruises, burns and broken bones — all attributed to "accidents." How could I tell people that I, a 6-2, 185-pound man, was beaten by a 5-4, 135-pound woman?

My wife showed a very bad temper before we were married, but I thought I could change her. I couldn't. I've been hit with lamps, ashtrays, books, ice buckets, furniture, shoes, you name it. Once while I was asleep she tied me up and beat me with a golf club!

I finally had to choose between my wife and my life. We're divorced now. No names, please. I wouldn't want my mother to know.

BATTERED IN NEW YORK STATE

DEAR BATTERED: National support groups for the battered woman are all over the place, but I know of no equally effective national support group for the battered man as yet. In this regard, women are "beating" the menfolk to smithereens.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my father suffered a severe heart attack and was hospitalized for a month. Because my mom was alone, I moved back home to be with her for the duration.

I realize that many friends and relatives were truly concerned about my father, but the phone calls we got every night for a month nearly drove us crazy! First it was one uncle, then an aunt, then the cousins, then a former business associate, then a neighbor, then a friend, and so on. They all wanted to assure my mother that they were "thinking" of her and also to get the daily reports on Dad's condition, which brought my poor mother to tears until I finally started taking all the calls.

Many called very late at night. ("I hope you haven't gone to sleep.") And some called very early in the morning. ("I didn't wake you, did I?") I didn't dare to take the phone off the hook for fear the hospital might be calling to give us some news about my father.

Abby, I don't mean to sound ungrateful, but where is it

The Name Is Knowledge

On reading the sample questions posed in Florida's "literacy test" — a prerequisite for receiving a diploma — the question had to be raised: did this represent the level of schooling a high school grad should be expected to attain?

It is shameful that anyone presuming to defend education of children could object to such elementary questions, as

John Williams wishes to find information about seafood restaurants while he is visiting the coast. Which of the following would give him a listing of local restaurants? A) U.S. road atlas B) telephone directory yellow pages C) dictionary D) encyclopedia Or, Harry charged $120 on his credit card last month. The rate of interest is 3 percent per month. How much interest will Harry have to pay after one month? A) $3 B) $3.60 C) $116.40 D) $123.60.

And yet, the attorney representing some black students, responding to a U.S. district judge's ruling that it was not racially biased and was a fair test for students, said "we profoundly disagree with the judge's opinion" and would ask for a stay and appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Atlanta if necessary.

It's precisely that kind of nonsense that throws well-intentioned educators and citizens into banging their heads against a wall and, incidentally, gives the "racial bias" argument a bad mark.

The sampling of questions in the Florida test are most apt in trying to assure pupils are learning the basic skills of survival in today's world; and if the other questions are as basic and applicable, it is an excellent questionnaire.

But if those samplings set a standard for the value of a diploma, we protest most vehemently.

The name of the game today and tomorrow is Knowledge ... and while the attorney in question is no doubt trying to insure his level of income, he is also doing his level best to impede the acquiring of knowledge among children.

The level of the multiple-choice questions in the test, if comparable to the handful of illustrations provided with the story, should be within the competence of a 7th grader, and laughable to a 12th grader.

You can bet your bottom dollar the attorney who has been fighting the test had a lot more going for him when he finished high school than the kids he has been speaking for — otherwise, he'd never have gotten into law school.

Vigilance Is Needed

East Carolina University graduated 2,650 in ceremonies Friday. The medical school graduated a class of 39 and awarded the university's first doctorate degree.

There was another milestone as the university awarded its first honorary doctorates to Chancellor Emeritus Leo W. Jenkins and former U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan.

Morgan told the graduates, "Constant vigilance and support are required if our institutions are to remain relevant and keep America the leader of the free world in ideology, in economics and in defense of freedom."

Morgan was speaking at an institution that he and Leo Jenkins helped change to meet the challenges of our society.

It will require the vigilance and support of this year's new graduates and many others to keep East Carolina University in a position to meet the challenges of the future:

Blacks Face Perils

WASHINGTON (AP) — Talking about presidential candidates tends to beget presidential candidates, so it's a good bet that there will be at least one black candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1984. There may well be more than one.

Black leaders have been discussing that possibility for weeks, at conferences and strategy sessions. The objective would be to promote black voter registration and participation in the Democratic campaign, and, as a result, to gain increased leverage at the convention and in the fall campaign.

But there are perils in that strategy, chief among them the possibility that a black candidate would cut into the constituency of the contender black voters really want. An analysis published by the Joint Center for Political Studies acknowledges that a black candidate wouldn't have a realistic prospect of victory in 1984, and says his entry therefore would risk "taking delegates away from the more desirable of the viable candidates."

On the other hand, the center concludes, a black candidate could focus attention on issues of special concern to black Americans, encourage them to register and vote in greater numbers, and provide a trial run "invaluable to any future effort to nominate a black presidential candidate, should a viable contender emerge."

Actually, there's already been a trial run. Shirley Chisholm, then a congresswoman from New York, ran for the Democratic nomination in 1972, on a $300,000 shoestring but nonetheless, all the way to the convention.

She got 2.7 percent of the total vote in the Democratic primaries, and went to the convention with 152 delegates.

There's no shortage of prospective black candidates for 1984. The Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago already has taken some political soundings in New Hampshire and Iowa, the leadoff primary and caucus states. Walter E. Fauntroy, congressional delegate for the District of Columbia, has said he might be interested. Julian Bond, the former Georgia state senator, will be in Washington late this week for a speech that will deal with the 1984 outlook. There could be others.

The appraisal at the Joint Center for Political Studies is that no Democratic nominee can win in 1984 without strong black support in Northern industrial cities and in the South.

"This reduces somewhat the risk of a rift with the Democratic nominee in the event of a black presidential nomination bid," the center's analysis says.

The assumption is that a black candidate could assemble and control a bloc of 200 or more delegates, enough to have some say on platform issues, and possibly to influence the choice of a nominee in a brokered convention.

RALEIGH — The farmworker package currently being considered in the General Assembly could develop into one of this session's bloodiest legislative fights.

On one side are rural conservatives who don't want to straddle the state's farmers with any more troubles. On the other are farmworker advocates who want to alleviate what can be very inhumane living conditions.

The package has one bill that has stirred a highly charged debate. Rep. Malcolm Fulcher, D-Carteret, has proposed an anti-slavery statute. Advocates call it an "apple pie" issue. Opponents say it is an insult to farmers.

Also included in the package is a nearly $1 million appropriation, over two years to increase farmworker camp inspections, changes in the laws regarding which camps can be inspected and a bill calling for formation of a farmworkers' council within state government.

Amid all the controversy, there is one measure which both sides support — the registration of the crew bosses who control the farmworkers. Both sides will tell you that crew boss registration is one of the most significant things North Carolina could do to alleviate the problems farmworkers face. Yet, with all that support, there is no bill in the hopper this year setting up a crew boss registration system.

—Paul T. O'Connor—

Bill Everyone Wants Is Missing

"The problem is trying to mesh ours with the federal crew boss registration. We have heard that other states are having trouble meshing their registration systems with the federal and we didn't want to come to the General Assembly with something that wouldn't work," Fulcher said in explaining why he hasn't proposed such a registration system.

The problems associated with farmworkers are often laid at the feet of the crew bosses. It is the crew boss who is most often accused of mistreating and threatening workers, of holding them when they want to leave a crew, of cheating them out of their earnings.

"Registration goes a long way towards alleviating the problem because that's where the trouble is," says Rep. John Church, D-Vance, chairman of the State Government Committee that recently approved the farmworker council bill. "Identifying these people is the problem. Now, they're in and out of the state. But, once we identify the ones who are causing trouble, you can keep a record of them."

Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Nash, one of the rural conservatives who is most outspoken about the farmworker package, and Fulcher agree that registration would solve much of the problem. "We feel the problem centers mostly with the crew boss," Fulcher said.

"I think the farmers would welcome it," Barbee said. "It's a problem for them, too, to have these people oppressed. They'd like someone checking on these people, these crew bosses."

Fulcher hopes the farmworker council, if it gets final assembly approval, will draft a crew boss registration system that could then be proposed to the 1984 short session of the Legislature. But final approval of the council is by no means assured. The council may be the least controversial piece of the package because it would have no real power. It would simply serve as a research and advocacy group on farmworker matters. But in the State Government Committee, the council was very close to dead until Rep. Dave Bumgardner, D-Gaston, came to its rescue with several innocuous amendments that nonetheless calmed the fears of several rural legislators.

With the farmworker package, everything is controversial. Even the things people agree on.

Diaries? Who Needs Diaries?

I'm not saying I have enough evidence yet to back it up, but just suppose Adolf Hitler were still alive and living in a nursing home in East Germany.

He is visited by his literary agent. "Adolf, we need more diaries."

"I wrote 60 for you already. How many can I produce?"

"I can sell as many as you can write. There seems to be an insatiable appetite for them in the West."

"My arm hurts. Why can't I dictate them to a secretary and have them typed up?"

"Because they have to be in your own handwriting. The publishers at 'Der Stern' are not fools. Here's a brand new black book with you seal on it. Start writing."

"What should I write?"

"Write something nice about Winston Churchill."

"Who is Winston Churchill?"

"He was the Prime Minister of Great Britain during World War II."

"I don't remember him. Was he the fellow with the umbrella?"

"No, that was Neville Chamberlain. Churchill was the chubby one with the cigar. You hated him."

"Why should I write something nice about him if I hated him?"

"Because we're using the diaries to change your image. We want the world to think you were really a nice person."

"Who says I wasn't a nice person?"

"There are a lot of people who didn't know the real you. Historians have been painting you as a maniac."

"Have them shot."

"Look, Adolf, I don't have much time. Here's an old pen, just like the one you used in 1944. Think of something nice to say about Churchill."

"What about this? 'Churchill is up to his old tricks again, chasing women. I can't have people like this in the party.'"

"No, Adolf. I don't think the historians will buy that. Why don't you say you admired Churchill as a war leader, and you have to give him credit for the way he handled Roosevelt."

"Who's Roosevelt?"

"He was president of the United States."

"Was he a Jew?"

"No, he wasn't."

"I never liked Jews."

"The world knows that, Adolf. But don't put it in your diary. It will only add to the bad things they've been saying about you. In order for these diaries to really sell, we've got to show a different Adolf Hitler from the one the public knows. We want history to think of Hitler as a person who loved his dog and his mistress, and had contempt for the Nazis who surrounded him. Now let's see you write something in the notebook."

"I'm tired. I want to take a nap."

"You can sleep later, Adolf. I need these notebooks. We're talking about millions of German marks — West German marks. You and Eva will never have to worry about your old age again. If you don't want to write about Churchill, write something about Hermann Goring."

"I haven't seen Hermann in years. How is the fat slob?"

"He's dead. He committed suicide at Nuremberg."

"It serves him right. He didn't know beans about running a Luftwaffe."

"Write that. The historians will be fascinated as to what you really thought of Goring."

"I don't want to write about Goring. He was such a dumkopf."

"Then write about Eva. It wouldn't hurt to get a little sex in the diaries."

"What's sex?"

"Oh for heaven's sakes, Adolf. I don't care what you write. Just fill up the pages with gibberish. Those idiots at 'Der Stern' don't care as long as it's in your own handwriting."

"Ach. It's a waste of time. If you're such a hot shot agent how come I haven't been invited on the Phil Donahue show?"

"He wants you badly, Adolph. But after all the Klaus Barbie publicity, the CIA is still arguing whether or not to slip you a visa."

Difficult Situation

WASHINGTON — Jeane Kirkpatrick, leader of the administration's hard-line foreign policy advocates, has submitted her resignation to President Reagan as ambassador to the United Nations.

Her departure would be the most important in the national security area since Alexander Haig's replacement by George Shultz last summer. It is regarded by conservatives within the administration as a severe blow.

White House insiders believe the president admires Kirkpatrick so much that he might try to talk her into withdrawing her resignation. That would pose a difficult situation for Kirkpatrick, who is determined to return to academic life.

A senior presidential aide confirmed the letter of resignation and said it was first submitted last December, with Kirkpatrick intending to return to the Georgetown University campus for the autumn term of 1983. However, the aide said Reagan has rejected the letter, and "we have every expectation that she will be staying."

Administration sources say Kirkpatrick has grown weary of the ongoing battle with the State Department and White House over the details of foreign policy. In particular, she is reported to have been fatigued and discouraged by misleading press reports about disagreements over Reagan's address to Congress on Central America last week. She has long been frustrated by news media coverage of the Reagan administration's conduct of foreign policy.

However, the ambassador has told friends that such frustrations did not cause her resignation. She says she intended to stay in government no more than two years, has now exceeded that limit by several months and is anxious to leave.

Kirkpatrick, 56, was a political science professor at Georgetown when she was tapped to become the only Democrat with a Cabinet-level appointment in the Reagan administration. She had been an active Democrat for many years and a strong supporter of the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey. As recently as 1976, she was a member of the credentials committee at the Democratic National Committee.

Public Forum

To the editor: Elections for party office hardly ever mean much to ordinary voters. This time is special. A grassroots movement is growing and spreading in North Carolina. Its objective is to take control of the state Republican Party away from a political action committee and return it to the Republicans in Pitt County and in other counties across the state.

Gilbert Lee Boger is challenging the National Congressional Club's candidate for chairman of the North Carolina Republican Party. The issue is simple: PAC-money or people. If a party can thrive on money coming down from the top, then the club's candidate is better for the Republican party. If a party must grow up from the people, then Boger is better.

We believe that the Republican party must grow a healthy system of roots down into the precincts, so we believe Boger is better. More than that, however, we believe that at this important moment in the life of our party, the Republicans in Pitt County should join in the state-wide debate over the proper role of the National Congressional Club in North Carolina Politics.

Jim Moyer, Wilson and Randy D. Doub, Greenville

To the editor: I read with interest your April 7 feature on my old friend and coach, Bo Farley, on his 75th birthday. This was sent to me by my Greenville correspondent, Miss Annie Turner.

Either Boley's memory or mine is slipping. He laments that his teams could never win championships, but I know he did have many teams who won North-eastern Conference championships. I was on his 1946 basketball team (probably the 10th man in playing time) which lost the state championship in our classification to Sedge Garden by a point or two. I don't have the records, but I know we must have won the Northeastern Conference championship in order to be in position to lose the state title.

There were no towns in our league that could match the basketball playing talent we had that year. The team consisted of Jimmy Futrell, Bill Harrington, Mac Batchelor, J.T. Williams, Ed Williams, Julian White, Henry Turner, Billy White, Jack Whichard and the undersigned.

There was reference in your April 7 article to how strong Bo was and still is. I might add, also, that he had the quickest hands I have ever seen, which he could put to good use in any kind of athletic endeavor. One of his favorite pastimes was pitching batting practice and throwing curve balls to lousy hitters like me. When the hitter ducked back away only to see the ball break sharply and harmlessly right over the plate. Bo would laugh so hard he would fall off the mound.

I am sorry to hear that Bo is having trouble with his eyesight. The next time I play golf with him I will be happy to watch his ball if he will teach me his swing. His shots will mostly be in the fairway anyway.

Thanks for the memories, Coach. You provided a lot of good ones for all of us, as well as your share of championships.

David M. Clark Greensboro

To the editor: Thursday night the Greenville City Council passed the sixth draft of the proposed noise ordinance with only one dissenting vote. This is a fitting tribute to the Council, City Manager Gail Meeks, Assistant City Attorney Mac MacCarley, the Environmental Advisory Commission, and numerous citizens who gave time, energy and expertise to the development of the ordinance.

The process through which this ordinance emerged is something to cheer about. It all began last summer with a few people asking the "can't something be done?" question. Since then drafts and redrafts have been prepared, explained at public hearings, and discussed at meetings of neighborhood associations and civic groups. Noise level demonstrations were conducted inside and outside of buildings. (Special thanks to Dr. Garrett Hume for all his help in that regard.)

Our new ordinance won't be all things to all people. For example, it doesn't define the point at which one citizen's right to peace and quiet infringes upon another's right to use a public park — or vice versa.

It does underscore our city government's responsiveness to serious citizen concerns and all those involved in the development of the ordinance should be congratulated. They have done a fine job.

Diane B. Hankins 2407 Slay Drive Greenville

To the editor: The Tar River Neighborhood Association Inc. applauds Mayor Cox and the Greenville City Council for passing an important new noise ordinance on Thursday, May 5, 1983. Due to the high population density in our neighborhood and the disproportionate ratio of non-family uses, we have been detrimentally affected by offensive noise for too long.

The City Council has been continually supportive of our neighborhood's efforts to revitalize and we're appreciative of their interest. Special thanks are due to Mrs. Gail Meeks, our city manager, Mr. Mac MacCarley, our assistant city attorney, and Mr. Tom Marzelli, ECU graduate student, for the time and energy that they spent in order to make this ordinance fair to everyone.

'Stern' Magazine Asks Reporter Charged In Hoax

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Stern magazine asked the state prosecutor today to charge reporter Gerd Heidemann with fraud, alleging that the person Heidemann said sold him the so-called Hitler diaries "probably does not exist."

Stern publisher Henri Nannen said in a statement that Heidemann "apparently fell into the hands of a swindler and in the end possibly enriched himself."

Heidemann could not be reached for comment. His wife told The Associated Press by telephone that her husband was innocent of fraud and did not have the money from the publication of the "diaries."

The West German weekly reportedly paid $4.1 million for the 62 volumes of writings that Heidemann claimed to have tracked down in East Germany and which he said were the journals of Adolf Hitler.

The government last Friday said the documents were forgeries plagiarized from a 1962 history book and made with material manufactured after World War II. Stern today apologized to its readers for printing excerpts of the documents, saying the publication put it in the unwanted position of "Nazi justification."

Nannen said he filed the complaint with the state prosecutor of the district court in Hamburg, where Stern is based and where Heidemann lives.

The publisher said Stern's complaint "is based on the fact that Heidemann named as a supplier of the purported Hitler diaries a man who most probably does not exist." Heidemann had declared earlier that he received the diaries from an informer whom he could not identify because human lives would be endangered.

"After it was established that the diaries were forged, Heidemann was given an ultimatum to disclose his informant because the right to protect sources does not apply to a supplier of falsified material," Nannen's statement said.

He said without elaboration that statements Heidemann and his wife had given unspecified foreign newspapers "contradict each other."

This was an apparent reference to a Sunday Times of London report quoting Gine Heidemann as implying that the diaries came from an unnamed East German official.

Asked if Heidemann kept any of the diary money, Gine replied, "Unfortunately not. Then we might have been able to hire a good attorney. No, my husband has none of that money."

Mrs. Heidemann said she does not know where the money went.

"That is something for my husband to say," she said. "I don't know who wrote the diaries. My husband thought Hitler wrote them."

Earlier, Stern spokesman Gunther Schoenfeld released a four-paragraph statement signed "the editors of Stern," which said the West German government's exposure of the diaries as obvious fakes "is a severe blow against 35 years of Stern credibility."

"We are ashamed of this publication before our readers, even though only a few of us were involved and informed," the statement said. "Stern is not the publication in which Nazi justification should be able to find its place," it said.

Some historians have speculated that neo-Nazis in Europe or old Nazis hiding out in South America fabricated the diaries in an attempt to strengthen West Germany's ultra-rightist fringe. Other speculation was that the documents were forged within the Soviet bloc in an effort to show that the West did not do all it could to end World War II.

According to Peter Koch, the Stern chief editor who resigned after the hoax was exposed, the magazine paid $4.1 million for the diaries and "nobody knows where that money went."

Koch, in a telephone interview Sunday with The Associated Press, said he fears there "may be an ugly story" behind the documents' acquisition but did not elaborate.

Koch, 44, and Felix Schmidt, two of Stern's three top editors, quit after the government announced that chemical tests and historical analyses had proved the volumes were "obvious fakes."

"We had at least five experts tell us the stuff is genuine," Koch said. "One even told us that if Hitler were to appear in court and deny having written them, he would still stick to his opinion."

Heidemann has claimed the handwritten diaries were rescued from a burning Nazi plane that crashed in East Germany after flying out of encircled Berlin in the last days of the European war.

In another development, a government spokesman today denied a newspaper report that Chancellor Helmut Kohl has ordered West Germany's secret service to find out whether the East bloc was behind the forgery. However, the spokesman also indicated the government might not provide confirmation if such a probe were under way.

The newspaper Welt am Sonntag said in an unattributed report Sunday that Kohl wanted to know whether the fraud was perpetrated for political reasons.

Lack Of Zoning Often Shatters Rural Quiet

By The Associated Press
Lifetime residents and newcomers to North Carolina's rural areas — not protected by county zoning ordinances — are waging battles against projects they say intrude upon their peace and quiet.

"Here we are, with all the inconveniences of the distance from the city, the lack of services involved in living in the country, and the whole reason we moved here was for the peace and quiet, the time with nature, and now it's being taken from us," said William Park.

Park said his dream of the sleepy country lifestyle after a frenzied workweek died when a speedway was built about a mile from his home in the Flowe Store community in southern Cabarrus County.

"I guess the lesson is that when you escape from the city you tend to overlook something like how your property in the city is protected (by zoning ordinances)," he said.

Some residents in Richmond and Lincoln counties are fighting their counties over proposed sanitary landfills. In Anson County, a two-year fight over a proposed hazardous-waste landfill has just ended after the company seeking to build the plant changed its plans. And residents of Costner School community northwest of Gastonia are protesting plans to build a new airport with a 5,500-foot runway in their area.

A lack of county zoning ordinances in rural areas means a landowner can do most anything with the property without government interference.

Some new rural residents found that their move from the city entailed a trade-off — being free from the city and its restrictions but also free from zoning regulations that protected their property in town.

Zoning ordinances have not been popular in rural counties, said Richard Ducker, assistant director of the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill. They are seen as unwarranted government intrusion into a landowner's private affairs.

Lincoln County commissioner Russell Delinger said, "We had a public hearing awhile back on zoning, and I wasn't sure us commissioners would be able to get out of the courthouse alive, the feeling was so strong against it."

About three years ago, a poll found that 26 of the state's 100 counties had countywide zoning, while 18 others had zoning ordinances in at least part of the county, Ducker said. By now, about 50 counties have zoning ordinances in at least part of the county, he said.

Chicago Council Rebuffed Mayor

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Harold Washington's latest proposal to negotiate an agreement in a power struggle with 29 dissident aldermen is illegal, a member of the opposition in City Council says.

The mayor sent telegrams Sunday to all 50 aldermen suggesting that two negotiating teams — each with seven members — meet and reach an agreement before the next official council meeting Wednesday. "I hope we can resolve this for the good of the city," Washington said in the messages.

"He better go back to the (law) books," Alderman Edward Burke responded. The proposed negotiating session would be a "violation of the Illinois Open Meetings Act" if the caucus consisted of more than 13 aldermen, Burke said.

Burke added, however, that he was pleased Washington has "now chosen Western Union to deliver his messages in the daylight hours."

The remark referred to Washington's sending police officers to the homes of all the aldermen at midnight Thursday to deliver letters and legal opinions asserting that the council's May 2 meeting assigning committee chairmanships had been illegal.

The verbal brawl between the mayor and the dissident aldermen — who had opposed Washington's election as the city's first black chief executive — could enter a third round Wednesday, when both sides agree the Municipal Code calls for a lawful meeting.

Six Died In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Six people died during the weekend on North Carolina highways, including a 28-year-old Winston-Salem man driving a go-cart Saturday, the state Highway Patrol reported.

The deaths raised the yearly traffic fatality toll to 369, compared to 375 reported at this time last year.

Darrell Van Ashburn died when he drove his go-cart in front of a motorcycle on a rural road 7 miles east of Winston-Salem, troopers said.

Also Saturday, Andrew Mark Bryant, 13, of Clinton, was killed in Sampson County when the car in which he was riding collided with another car in Clinton.

Harry James Anderson of Durham was killed Saturday when the car he was a passenger in ran off the road and hit a utility pole in Durham.

Also in Durham County, Darrell Wayne Barbour, 29, of Durham, was killed Saturday night when his motorcycle ran off a rural road into a ditch north of the city.

A 65-year-old man died Friday in Madison County when the car he was riding in overturned, leaving three others injured, the Highway Patrol reported. The victim was identified Elmer Waldroup of Hot Springs.

In Jones County, Linda Sue Heath, 17, of Pink Hill, died when her car ran off a rural road Friday night and struck a tree 17 miles from Pink Hill, state troopers said.

Grant Is Made

RALEIGH — The Department of Cultural Resources has announced that Burroughs Wellcome Company has given a $50,000 grant to help underwrite a major celebration of British and American culture scheduled for the summer of 1984 in Durham.

The event is being coordinated jointly by the department, Duke University, and the Smithsonian Institution, and will be part of the commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the Roanoke Voyages of 1854-87, which brought the first English explorers to the shores of North Carolina.

Principal responsibility for organizing the festival rests with the Folklife Section of the Division of the N.C. Arts Council.

George Holt, director of the Folklife Section said the Burroughs Wellcome grant "is a crucial step forward for our plans. It demonstrates that one of our most important corporate citizens believes this festival is a worthwhile celebration of the enduring cultural, social and economic ties between this country and Great Britain."

Building Permits In '82 Showed Decline

Building permits valued at $20,820,361 were issued in Greenville during 1982, reflecting a slight decrease from $21,070,058 recorded in 1981, according to state Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

The permit total placed Greenville 10th among the state's 44 largest cities for 1982, Brooks said.

He reported that building permits issued for single-family homes in the 44 cities increased 8.1 percent in 1982, but construction authorized declined 8.8 percent overall from 1981.

According to Brooks, permits for nonresidential construction increased 11 percent, while multifamily units fell 3.3 percent and permits for additions and alterations declined 18.9 percent.

The 44 cities authorized 34,567 construction units in 1982, compared to 37,920 in 1981, with estimated total value at $1,013,088,693, down 1.9 percent from $1,032,587,062.

The average construction cost for a single family home in 1982 declined 1.9 percent to $41,720 from $41,838.

Totals for 1982 and 1981 in several neighboring cities included: Elizabeth City, $5,680,760, $3,287,275; Goldsboro, $9,775,561, $11,672,990; Jacksonville, $23,619,210, $16,303,094; Kinston, $3,703,011, $8,280,802; New Bern, $12,774,922, $8,903,004;

Roanoke Rapids, $4,911,573, $16,625,269; Rocky Mount, $12,591,470, $18,253,650; Tarboro, $13,372,108, $5,496,550; and Wilson, $10,713,273, $11,617,619.

Charlotte led the 44 cities in construction in 1982 with $215.1 million, followed by Raleigh with $185.5 million, Winston-Salem, $83.5 million, Greensboro, $63.5 million, and Durham, $56.4 million.

Hunt Goes Afar In Fund-Raising Effort

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

The North Carolina Campaign Fund is using Gov. Jim Hunt's itinerary to arrange fund-raisers that coincide with his travels, while Hunt's aides are trying to make sure taxpayers don't foot the bill.

"We're sensitive to the thing, obviously," said Hunt spokesman Gary Pearce. "The governor has told us again and again that he does not want there to be any use of taxpayers' money improperly spent and to avoid even the appearance of it. And we're very strict about it."

The Campaign Fund is backing Hunt for his expected challenge to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in 1984. Fund executive director John Bennett said Hunt is the fund's star attraction. If the governor is going into territory friendly to its goal of defeating Helms, fund officials make sure Hunt speaks.

"If the governor is going out of state in one of these areas, I ask him to speak," Bennett said. "He's the best one to explain (the fund's case), but we have never asked for the governor to be scheduled to go to another state so we can have a fund-raiser."

So far in 1983, Bennett said, Hunt has attended three out-of-state fund-raisers:

— New York City, March 1, expected to net $85,000. Hunt was in Washington that day at a meeting of the National Governors Association and he flew the New York leg of the trip at the expense of the Campaign Fund, Bennett said. Otherwise, the state paid for the trip. Hunt traveled on commercial flights.

— Atlanta, March 12, expected to net $70,000 or more. Hunt was in Atlanta for the weekend because of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament. The state paid for the trip except for transportation costs of $78.50, Pearce said.

— New Orleans, April 24, expected to net up to $20,000. Hunt flew on commercial airlines to speak at the expense of the American Association of Community Colleges and Junior Colleges.

Other Hunt trips outside the state have included trips to attend meetings of the Education Commission of the States, to watch North Carolina State win the national basketball championship in Albuquerque, N.M., to speak

The Coastal Plains Chapter of Professional Construction Estimators will have its monthly meeting Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the MGM-Regency West in Goldsboro.

Transportation Open House Set

As part of National Transportation Week, there will be an open house at each of the county highway maintenance facilities in Division Two (Pitt, Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Greene, Jones, Lenoir and Pamlico Counties) Saturday, from 9:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

Highway Division Engineer Charlie W. Snell, with offices in Greenville, said, "We will have displays of equipment, secondary and resurfacing road maps, large photo displays of traffic signs and a static display of a traffic light," at each of the open house locations.

"We will also have departmental representatives to answer questions about our operations," and "bumper stickers, transportation fact brochures and maps will be available."

In Greenville, the open house will be at the division office at the intersection of N.C. 33 and SR 1513.

In Beaufort County the open house will be at the facility between SR 1402 and the Seaboard Coastline Railroad opposite the intersection of SR 1402 and SR 1430, while in Greene County the maintenance yard is located on N.C. 102, 8 mile west of Maury.

ECU Students Inducted In Society

Six students in the East Carolina University Department of Sociology, Anthropology and Economics have been inducted into the campus chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta national honor society in sociology.

The new members are Karen Keitzman of Swansboro, Rebecca Huffman of Jacksonville, Joy Smith-Holder of Raleigh, Beryl Waters of Greenville, Nickie Nichols of Bethel and Nancy Crouse of Kinston.

The induction ceremony featured a guest address by Dr. William D'Antonio, president of the American Sociological Association, who spoke on the relations between the social sciences and Congress.

Three seniors were recognized and presented Outstanding Senior Awards. They were anthropology majors James O'Donnel of Greenville and Heidi Sydow of Cincinnati, Ohio, and sociology major Blair Carr of Miami, Fla.

The purpose of Alpha Kappa Delta is to recognize and reward scholarship, research and service in the field of sociology.

SILVER AMALGAM FILLING

If dental decay has not done major damage to a tooth, it can normally be salvaged by one of the most common of dental restorations - the filling.

Essentially: (1) Decay must be completely removed, and the tooth prepared to receive the filling; (2) a soundly engineered pattern must be cut in the tooth to hold the filling strongly; and (3) the filling is then carefully placed in the tooth.

Many materials have been used to make fillings, but silver amalgam is probably the most common. Properly used, a very good material it is. Silver amalgam is formed by mixing a powder of silver (about 70%), tin, copper and zinc with pure mercury. The mercury dissolves the metallic powder, thus forming the solution. (An amalgam is, in fact, a solution of a metal in mercury.)

The fillings made while the mix is still in a plastic state and easily manipulated. It is carved and shaped as it is beginning to set. Patients are usually cautioned not to expose a new amalgam filling to strong biting pressures for four hours, until it develops its initial hardness. Full hardness will be complete in 24 hours.

Saturday Wreck Is Reported

Jeffrey Carlton Williams of 409 West Fourth St., was charged with driving under the influence following investigation of a 2:30 a.m. collision Saturday, at the intersection of Second and Greene Streets.

Police said the Williams car collided with a vehicle driven by Derick Calvin Wilkes of 205 Fred Drive, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Williams car and $1,200 damage to the Wilkes vehicle.

One Person Is Injured In Wreck

The person was reported injured and an estimated $2,500 damage caused in two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday.

Officers said Shandra Rock of 203 East 8th St. was injured when the bicycle she was riding collided with a car driven by Edwin Elzy Rawl of Rawlwood Arms Apartments.

No damage resulted from the collision, which occurred about 4:26 p.m. on Cotanche Street, just north of the Reade Street intersection.

Officers said cars driven by Carl Wesley Brock of 110A Cherry Court Drive, and Joseph Garland Gray of Route 8, Greenville, collided about 11:30 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Cherry Court Drive.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the Brock car and $500 to the Gray auto.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

With cash prices of corn currently averaging $3.25 per bushel or higher in most North Carolina markets and December futures trading at around $3 per bushel, some farmers who have signed up in the PIK program may be tempted to pull out and plant corn this year, weather permitting. This practice should be discouraged since it could be very costly to the grower.

Producers may withdraw from the regular acreage reduction (RAP) program before harvest comes, but stiff penalties are in place for those who try to withdraw from the PIK program. For example, the penalty is 57.2 cents per bushel times the amount of PIK grain they would have received.

In addition, the producer would forfeit all of his PIK grain upon withdrawal and would not be eligible for any program benefits, deficiency and diversion payments or loan for any of his 1983 production. An exception would be made in the case where the county committee did find that the grower acted in good faith. He then would be eligible for deficiency and diversion payments.

Good faith on the part of the grower is defined as first, showing a sincere attempt to take action to comply with program requirements, and second, furnishing accurate data reflecting the action taken. For example, if a grower exceeded the permitted acreage planted and the county ASCS found that he had acted in good faith, he would be eligible for the program benefits.

The PIK pullout penalties are equally severe in other commodities — 54 cents per bushel for sorghum, 86 cents per bushel for wheat and 15 cents per pound for cotton. Paying the penalties has the same effect on the grower's return as either adding it to production costs or reducing market price by that amount.

For a producer with an acreage yield of 100 bushels per acre and idling 50 percent of his base average, the breakdown price for pulling out of the program now and planting his average would be about $3.85 per bushel.

Farm Bureau Award Made

Michael Wade Corbett of Fountain has been selected to receive one of 11 college scholarships offered this year by the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation.

Exhibit Rare Glimmers Of Optimism

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of cautious, sometimes gloomy forecasts, Agriculture Department economists are exhibiting a few glimmers of optimism.

Although still cautious, the latest outlook summary by the department's Economic Research Service says that general economic conditions are looking up.

"Signs of a slow turnaround in the international economy are becoming more apparent, suggesting that a worldwide recovery will begin soon," the report said.

"In the developed countries, industrial production had begun to increase by January 1983. The U.S. economy, which showed moderate growth in the first quarter, is expected to lead the global recovery."

The report, an outline of a larger version to be issued later this month, stuck with the agency's farm income forecasts issued in April — and continued to credit the government's payment-in-kind acreage program with putting spark back into the agricultural economy.

Farmers have signed up to take about 83 million acres of cropland from production this year. Under the PIK part of the program, eligible producers will get surplus wheat, corn, sorghum, rice and cotton as payment for idling land.

"Although prospective crop supplies are still abundant, the tightening of stocks freely available to the market in 1982-83 and the likelihood of tighter supplies next season have raised market prices for PIK crops substantially," the report said.

Corn prices, for example, recently have averaged $3.04 per bushel, up from $1.98 last October.

"With higher crop prices, livestock prospects have, in turn, been altered," the report said. "Higher feed prices may force livestock producers — especially of hogs — to rethink their production plans. The result may be smaller meat supplies in 1984 than previously expected, particularly in the second half of the year."

Further, net farm income is expected to "remain level or perhaps even rise" this year, it said. Prior to PIK, indications were strong that 1983 might decline again.

There was no change in the April forecast showing that net farm income could range between $20 billion and $24 billion, with the midpoint estimate at $22 billion. That would compare to $20.2 billion in 1982.

"Production expenses are still expected to decline 2 to 4 percent from last year because of the large cutbacks in acreage planted," the report said. "This would be the first decline in annual production expenditures since 1953."

Demand for short- and intermediate-term farm credit is expected to decline this year because of the reduced production costs and the larger direct government payments, the report said.

Helms Expected Farm Bureau Step

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation recommendations to freeze tobacco price supports and end lease transfers are positive signs of a developing consensus among growers. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Sunday.

"I knew what the Farm Bureau was considering several days ago," Helms said. "I'm glad they have taken this step. We'll put their recommendations in the hopper and then try to work with some of the other elements of the tobacco family."

The recommendations, approved Friday, call for:

— Freezing 1984 and 1985 price supports at the 1983 level of $1.78 a pound. The freeze would remain in effect through the 1986 crop year if production costs did not increase more than 5 percent.

— The lease-transfer system, under which those who hold tobacco allotments lease them to others, would end in 1986. The delay would give lease holders not growing tobacco time to begin growing or to sell their allotments.

Helms said he thought the proposal to end lease transfers by 1986 was an effort to "give some assurance that the problem will be worked out with a minimum of loss to the people involved."

Sylvia Wheless Is Chairman

Mrs. Sylvia J. Wheless of Greenville has been appointed chairman of a nine-member committee to advise the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service on community and rural development.

The Community and Rural Development (CRD) Advisory Committee is composed of a cross-section of citizens. The program deals with problems that require group or community decisions, such as land-use planning, waste disposal and water systems.

Mrs. Wheless is past chairman of the Pitt County Advisory Board, the Keep Pitt Clean and Beautiful Committee and the Coastal Plain Development Association.

She is also a member of the Greenville Community Appearance Commission.

Pitt 4-H'ers Are Selected

Eleven Pitt County 4-H'ers have been selected for the district 4-H competition June 29, according to Dale Panero, Pitt County 4-H coordinator.

After competing in a variety of demonstration areas, the following county winners were:

Elizabeth Betts artistic arrangement; Lamont Parker, archery (junior division); Rodney Hardee, archery (senior division); Missy Ange, beef cookery; Kathy Day, forestry; Sabrina Little, fruit and vegetable use (junior division); Branda Moye, fruit and vegetable use (senior division); Tracie Roberts, peanut foods, (junior division); Amber Harris, peanut foods, (senior division); Mike Roberts, safety; Lynn Worley, sewing.

Patchwork Art

Today marks the opening of "Quilts: An American Romance"—a show of more than 1000 antique quilts in Troy, Michigan and a tribute to this unique art form. Quilting has been practiced for thousands of years, but it was in the New World that the tradition of quilting flourished. Dutch and British settlers brought quilts to America to protect themselves from the severe weather. In time, quilts were made for decorative purposes, too, and draped across chairs or hung on walls. Certain designs became popular, like the "Wedding Ring," the "Flower Garden," the "Dresden Plate," and the "Log Cabin." Today contemporary artists like Judy Chicago and Robert Rauschenberg continue to work in the medium.

Sugar Production Expected To Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — World raw sugar production in 1982-83 is expected to be about 98.6 million metric tons, up fractionally from last November's estimate of 98.5 million tons, says the Agriculture Department.

The estimate compares with a revised sugar output of 100.7 million tons in 1981-82, according to a recent report by USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service.

Although the estimate of total sugar production for 1982-83 remained relatively stable since the first estimate, significant changes have occurred in individual countries," the report said.

For example, excessive rains in Cuba during the peak harvest season are expected to reduce production to 7.2 million metric tons, down 700,000 from the agency's initial estimate last fall.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

"On the plus side, sugar production in India has been ahead of year-earlier levels due to higher-than-expected yields," the report said.

However, India's sugar output is expected to taper off to 9.0 million tons, up 639,000 from the November

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 42.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. Eighty-four percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 43.31 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is light to moderate for a good demand. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,837,000, compared to 1,597,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices fell today, retreating from record heights as traders cashed in on the market's broad rally. Four stocks fell in price for every three that rose in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 3.97 points to 1,228.62 at noon and had been down more than 8 points in the first 30 minutes of trading.

On Friday, the Dow Jones industrials rose 12.87 points to a record 1,232.59, finishing the week with a net gain of 6.39 points and extending its gains to 455.67 points since last Aug. 12. The previous closing high of 1,226.20 was reached April 29.

The NYSE's composite index fell .38 to 95.09. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.63 at 440.99.

Big Board volume was 40.56 million shares a third of the way through the session, down from 48.83 million in the same period Friday.

American Motors topped the active list on the NYSE, up 1/4 at 10 1/4, in trading that included a block of 275,000 shares changing hands at 10 1/4.

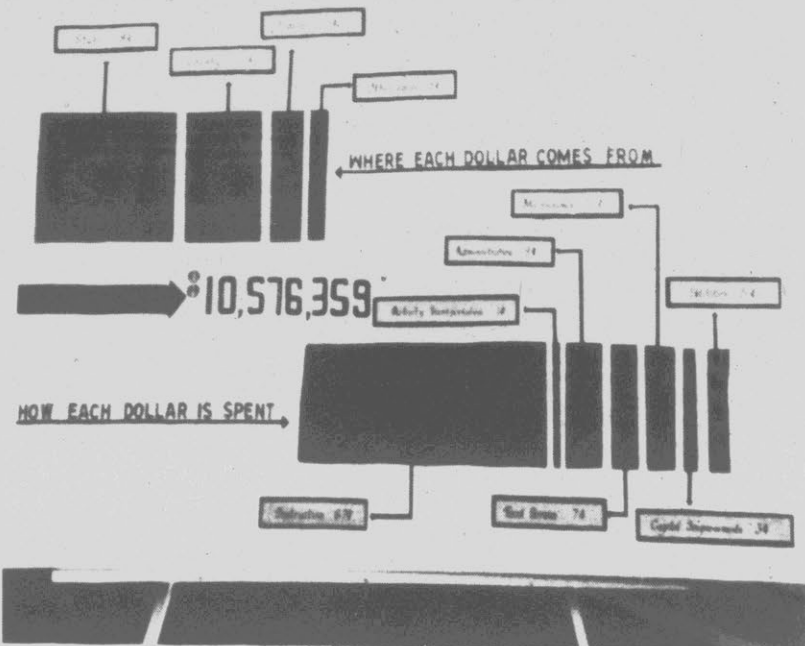

Chrysler, also active, slipped 1/4 to 28 1/4. The No. 3 automaker said it is considering asking the government not to redeem warrants for its stock that could bring the government a windfall of more than $215 million. But a Treasury Department official said the warrants would not be discussed at a Loan Guarantee Board meeting today.

Eastman Kodak, which plunged last week after reporting a sharp decline in first-quarter earnings, continued to lose ground, falling 2 1/4 to 75 1/4.

GREENVILLE CITY SCHOOLS STRETCHING YOUR DOLLARS

SCHOOL BUDGET EXHIBIT - "The Greenville City Schools Stretching Your Dollars" is the title of a poster exhibit being shown in public places in Greenville during the month of May. The exhibit shows where each school dollar comes from and how it is spent. The budget figure for the current school year is also shown.

New Comet Will Be Visible Tuesday

ATLANTA (AP) - People throughout the Northern Hemisphere will get their best look at the recently discovered comet IRAS-Araki-Alcock on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, an astronomer says.

The best viewing time will be just after dark, and urban dwellers should use binoculars to find the speck near the Big Dipper constellation, said Dr. Richard Williamson, an astronomer with the Fernbank Science Center.

Tonight, it will be a bit harder to see the smudge of light.

But on Tuesday, "Away from the city lights, they should be able to see it with the naked eye without any problem. It won't be as bright as the moon, but it will be a distinct fuzzy spot," Williamson said Sunday.

"It's not going to be a brilliant comet, but it's better than average. We discover 10 or 12 new comets a year, but almost without exception, they are not visible except for with a powerful telescope," he said.

The comet, a vaporizing flying iceberg that leaves a faintly visible tail of gases, was first sighted on April 25 by the Infrared Astronomical Satellite monitored in Pasadena, Calif., and was confirmed by amateur astronomers in Japan and England. It was named IRAS-Araki-Alcock after its discoverers.

"It will be something to see for someone who has never seen a comet before," Williamson said. "And it's one of the few comets that we can see through binoculars."

The comet, zipping past Earth on its trip around the sun, will be about 2.9 million miles away on Tuesday, which is as close to this planet as it will get. At that point, it will appear just in front of the bowl of the Big Dipper, which will be directly overhead.

The comet will appear to travel northeastward, then northward and then northwestward before it disappears. By the weekend, only the strongest telescopes will be able to track the speeding comet, Williamson said.

Deliberately Slowed Growth

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) - IBM has deliberately slowed its growth in the Triangle to avoid overwhelming the area's economy, company officials say.

"IBM does not want to get so big it takes on unreasonable relation to the size of the community," said Richard L. Daugherty, Raleigh site general manager for IBM.

Association Held An Outing

The United African Student Association recently held a goat-and-lamb picking attended by more than 250 people, including state Sen. Vernon White.

The association, founded last year by Apollo C. Okoth of Kenya, will also sponsor an African Night celebration in Chapel Hill May 14 to honor new graduates from Africa.

The association is designed to promote social, cultural and economic awareness among African students and a better understanding of Africa by the outside world.

Med Society Votes Against 'Notifying'

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) - Despite a claim that doctors were interfering in family matters, the state's Medical Society adopted a resolution opposing laws to require parental notification when minors seek birth control through federal programs.

The resolution, adopted at the society's meeting Saturday, also encourages physicians "to provide comparable services on a confidential basis" if the so-called "squeal rule" is implemented by state and federal government.

The resolution charged that such a rule would "create a breach of confidentiality in the physician-patient relationship."

Dr. Robert H. Foreman of Greensboro, one of the society's 217 delegates representing medical societies from the state's 100 counties, maintained doctors were interfering in family matters.

The delegates also adopted resolutions advocating:

- A ban of "underground disposal of any hazardous waste which when disposed of in this manner might endanger the health of the people of North Carolina."
- Legislation allowing state environmental standards that are stricter than federal standards.
- That a member of the society be a voting member of the Governor's Waste Management Board.
- A ban on participation by doctors and other health care workers in execution by injection or other forms of capital punishment.

The delegates did not support pending state legislation that would create a regulatory board for nurse-midwives. But they did favor eliminating the practice of midwifery in

Ocracoke Roads Open

OCRACOKE - Business owners of the town and island of Ocracoke, concerned about recent adverse publicity due to winter storms and highway overwash, have formulated a promotion campaign for the island's tourist industry.

More than 50 persons attending the meeting emphasized that reports of temporary road closures were highly publicized; however, no press reports of roads opening again have been noted. It was noted that occasional closures are for brief periods of time only and usually occurs during inclement winter weather, and that Route 12 that runs down the island is open and completely operable.

Yount Recalls Strikeout, Belts Homer

By The Associated Press

Odell Jones remembered the pitch he used to strike out Robin Yount. The trouble was, Yount remembered it, too.

"Jones struck me out on a fastball on the outside part of the plate the other night," Yount said, recalling an embarrassing,

The 1983 collegiate baseball season has turned out to be a pretty good one for three area players in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Both Roger Williams and Gordon Douglas played key roles in the success of North Carolina in winning the ACC title both in regular season and in the post-season league tournament. UNC will now represent the league in the regional NCAA tournament later this month.

Williams, a freshman at Carolina, was 6-2 on the season, including one victory in the ACC tournament. He led the Tar Heels in earned run average with a 1.16 mark. He had 10 starts, second best on the team, but had only one complete game — that a shutout over George Mason, 1-0. He recorded 61 strikeouts, third best on the team.

Douglas, also a freshman, turned into the key man in the bullpen for the Tar Heels. He was 3-0 on the year, including two wins in the ACC tourney. He also recorded five saves, tops on the team. He pitched in 16 games and finished with a 4.33 earned run average, striking out 21 batters.

Meanwhile, at Virginia, junior Tony Latham of Robersonville, has become a prominent member of the Cavalier baseball team.

He finished the year with a .351 batting average, second best on the team, and led the team in homers (3), triples (2), slugging percentage (.495), on base percentage (.508), and fielding percentage with just one error all year.

He was second on the team in hits (39), runs scored (25), stolen bases (7), at bats (111) and games played (32).

In the ACC tournament, Latham hit .588 going 10 for 17, and his 10 singles tied the tourney record.

East Carolina's baseball Pirates learned Saturday that they won't be playing any more this spring. The ECAC-South selection committee decided not to include the Pirates in this year's league tournament, which draws four teams to James Madison University this coming weekend.

James Madison, Richmond, Georgetown and William & Mary won the bids this year, despite the fact that ECU is the defending champion. While the Pirate record was not as good as it usually is, they certainly played a tougher schedule than did the four who did gain bids.

Coach Hal Baird said that he was hoping that the ECU schedule, along with the fact that the Pirates were the defending champions might count for something.

But, like East Carolina's Lady Pirate basketball team when it was up for the ECAC tourney, it wasn't enough.

bases-loaded 'strikeout' Friday night against the Texas Rangers.

The Milwaukee shortstop didn't let it happen again, though. Faced with another crucial situation, Yount belted a three-run homer this time against the Texas reliever with one out in the ninth inning Sunday to give the Brewers a 6-3 victory.

"You've got to look for his fastball because that's his strength," Yount said. "This time he threw me a fastball inside. I was fortunate to get the bat around quick enough to hit it."

Jones, of course, was looking to duplicate Friday night's result — or at least keep the ball in the park.

"I wanted the pitch more inside, hoping for a ground ball," said Jones. "I didn't make the pitch where I wanted. I got him Friday, but today he was lucky."

Jones relieved Ranger starter Mike Smithson to start the inning and gave up a leadoff single to Jim Gantner. Ned Yost singled and one out later, Yount belted a 1-1 pitch into the left field bleachers at Milwaukee's County Stadium.

The winning pitcher was Jim Stalon, 4-0, who relieved Brewer starter Don Sutton to start the ninth.

In other AL action, it was Kansas City 6, Toronto 1; Detroit 5, California 1; Seattle 4, Boston 2; Minnesota 6, New York 5; Cleveland 13, Chicago 6 and Oakland 1, Baltimore 0.

Royals 6, Blue Jays 1

George Brett hit his eighth home run of the season, a two-run blast in the fifth, and Steve Renko scattered six hits in 7-3 innings to lead Kansas City over Toronto.

Renko, 2-2, struck out four and walked two before needing relief help in the eighth from Dan Quisenberry, who recorded his seventh save.

Brett's homer, which extended his hitting streak to 19 games and raised his RBI total to 26, keyed a three-run Kansas City fifth.

"I've never had as good a start as this year," said Brett, who went into the game with the league lead in slugging percentage and on-base percentage. I'm being more selective with pitches and the fundamentals are all good. I guess they have to be, otherwise I wouldn't be having the success I'm having."

Tigers 5, Angels 1

Howard Johnson and Lance Parrish hit home runs and Jack Morris pitched a five-hitter to lead Detroit over California. Morris, 3-4, struck out eight and did not walk a batter, giving up the Angels' only run in the eighth on Daryl Sconiers' RBI triple.

Johnson hit a full-count pitch off California starter Ken Forsch, 3-1, for his first homer of the year. Kirk Gibson walked and scored on Parrish's third homer of the year.

Mariners 4, Red Sox 2

Matt Young pitched a shutout for five innings before retiring with a bruised shoulder and Seattle hung on to snap Boston's five-game winning streak.

Young, 3-3, was struck behind the left shoulder by a line drive hit back to the mound by Jeff Newman in the fifth. The ball caromed high in the air to shortstop Todd Cruz for the putout. Young remained in the game but was forced to leave when the arm stiffened while warming up the next inning.

Roy Thomas, who replaced Young and gave up a two-run homer to Reid Nichols in the sixth, needed relief help from Mike Stanton in the eighth. Bill Caudill finished up, gaining his fifth save.

Twins 6, Yankees 5

Gary Ward hit a three-run double in a five-run fifth inning and Gary Gaetti decided the game with a sacrifice fly in the seventh as Minnesota beat New York and ended a six-game losing streak.

Reliever Len Whitehouse, 3-1, gained the victory after taking over for starter Bobby Castillo in the seventh and pitching hitless relief. New York reliever Dale Murray, 0-1, took the loss.

Indians 13, White Sox 6

Julio Franco's three-run homer capped a wild, six-run sixth inning, leading Cleveland over Chicago. The White Sox made three of their six errors in the sixth, which also included two wild pitches by reliever Steve Mura.

Franco also singled in a run in the fifth when the Indians scored four times.

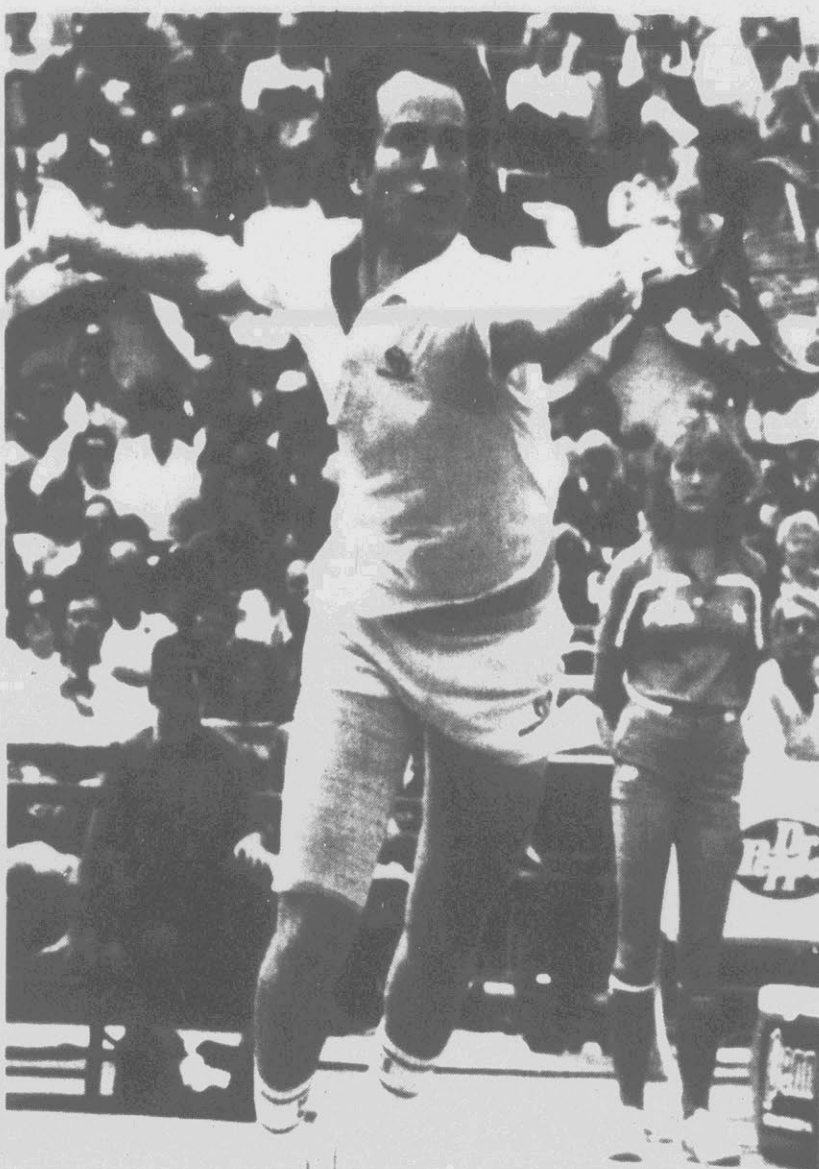

Winner Bert Blyleven, 3-3, gave up six hits in seven innings. The White Sox scored five runs off reliever Dan Spillner, including a two-run homer by Jerry Hairston in a four-run ninth.

"He must have gotten all of it," said Cleveland Manager Mike Ferraro of Franco's homer through a 21-mile-per-hour wind. "I didn't think any ball would go out of there today, not the way the wind was blowing in."

A's 1, Orioles 0

Wayne Gross hit a leadoff home run in the eighth, powering Oakland over Baltimore in a rain-delayed game. The game was delayed a half-hour in starting by rain, was held up for one hour in the first inning, halted for 48 more minutes in the eighth, and then delayed a fourth time for 23 minutes.

In both the eighth and ninth innings, the Orioles put two men on base with walks, but both times reliever Dave Beard shut the door on Baltimore for his fourth save.

McEnroe Takes Aim On French Open After Win

NEW YORK (AP) — With his second consecutive title in his pocket, John McEnroe now is taking aim on the French Open.

"It's really nice to win on clay," McEnroe said after downing Vitas Gerulaitis in straight sets Sunday to capture the $500,000 Mercedes Tournament of Champions at the West Side Tennis Club. "Until now, I basically have won nothing on clay."

The victory on the Har-Tru courts at Forest Hills, where the U.S. Open was staged until 1978, followed by one week McEnroe's five-set victory over Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia to win the WCT Finals at Dallas.

"I feel good about that match in Dallas, to win it in five sets," the New York left-hander said. "It was nice to win these last two weeks, but it's not the French Open."

The first of tennis' Grand Slam events — the others are Wimbledon and the U.S. and Australian Opens — will be staged at Paris' Roland Garros Stadium beginning May 23. McEnroe, who has been hobbled with a shoulder injury and suffered a thigh muscle strain during the tournament here, said he will make up his mind by the end of this week as to whether he will enter.

"I have to be more physically fit," he said, noting that where the T of C is best-of-three sets, the French Open is best-of-five on slow, red European clay.

But, his semifinal win over Argentina's Guillermo Vilas and his 6-3, 7-5 victory over Gerulaitis in Sunday's final has proven to McEnroe that he can play successfully on clay.

"McEnroe is a threat anywhere," Gerulaitis said after the match. "He is more patient. He has more experience. He's definitely playing better."

Overton Second In Women's Open

LAKELAND, FLA. — Kristi Overton broke her own National Junior Girls Trick Ski record 6,060 points twice at the Lakeland three-round Record Capability Trick Tournament Sunday.

In the second round, she increased the record to 6,290 points and later built to 6,440 in the final round.

Overton, 13, competed in the open women's division against nine other Americans and seven international skiers, posting the highest single round score in the competition.

She finished second with a three-round total of 18,540 points — just 20 behind first place Australian champion Karen Bowkett. World record holder Ana Maria Carrasco of Venezuela finished third.

Waltrip Cruises To Victory

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip has established himself as a definite threat to win his third consecutive NAS-CAR Grand National driving championship with an easy victory in the Marty Robbins 420.

Except for a brief 38-lap period early in Saturday night's race when a pit stop took the Franklin, Tenn., driver out of the lead, Waltrip ran virtually uncontested to claim a record fourth-straight victory at the Nashville track.

The victory allowed Waltrip to vault back into the top ten point Winston Cup point leaders at the eighth position with 1,138 points through nine races.

Waltrip trails point-leader Harry Gant, who finished third at the five-eighths-mile Nashville International Raceway and now has 1,352 points.

Waltrip's Junior Johnson-built Chevrolet finished a lap ahead of Bobby Allison and Gant and two laps in front of Morgan Shepherd. Bill Elliott finished fifth, four laps out of the lead.

"It's nice to have a track you can call home," said

Waltrip, who has won a circuit-high three races this year, all on short tracks.

Perfect Relief By Orosco Leads Mets

By The Associated Press

The New York Mets are beginning to put things together, with Jesse Orosco and George Foster leading the way. And Cincinnati Manager Russ Nixon is about to take something apart, namely his pitching staff.

The Mets rallied on Sunday from a 5-0 deficit and beat the Reds 10-5 — thanks to some perfect relief by Orosco and Foster's three-run homer. On Friday night, New York rallied from a 3-0 deficit and beat the Reds 7-4 in 13 innings thanks to some perfect relief by Orosco and Foster's three-run homer.

"I'm beginning to get superstitious," said Mets Manager George Bamberger. "Maybe there's something to that Orosco-Foster business. I'll have to look out for that."

The Reds pitchers, meanwhile, will be looking out for Nixon — and trying to stay out of his way. Nixon, frustrated by their inability to protect a lead, has promised a shakeup of the roster.

"We seem to come up short all the time," he fumed. "I don't know what's up with our pitching staff. We let another one get away. We're going to make some moves the next couple of days."

Moments later, he made his first one, sending reliever Ben Hayes down to the Reds' Indianapolis farm team in the International League.

Hayes took the mound Sunday following Foster's homer that had put the Mets on top 6-5, gave up Mookie Wilson's two-run double that capped the six-run seventh inning, then allowed two more runs in the eighth.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco bombed Pittsburgh 12-1, Atlanta edged Houston 4-3, Los Angeles defeated St. Louis 6-4 and San Diego beat Chicago 5-3. Philadelphia's game at Montreal was rained out.

Scott Holman threw only 22 pitches for the Mets, the last of them a gopher ball to Ron Oester, who sent it over the wall for a three-run homer in the Reds' five-run first inning.

For the remaining 8 2-3 innings, Carlos Diaz, Neil Allen, Orosco and Doug Sisk blanked the Reds on three singles.

Orosco is unscored upon in his last eight outings — 15 1-3 innings — and in 10 appearances this year he has a 0.55 earned-run average. "Strikes, confidence, concentration," he said. "I've got it all right now. I'm sky-high!"

Giants 12, Pirates 1

Darrell Evans and the Giants are on a tear. His two home runs Sunday — five RBI — and homer on Saturday have helped San Francisco win five in a row. "These kind of things come in streaks," said Evans. "I'd been waiting a long time."

"I was hoping we'd put a streak like this together," added Giants Manager Frank Robinson. "I can't say I knew it could or would happen, but I was sure hoping. Now we're close to 500, and I know the fans consider that a kind of magic number."

The Giants score five runs in the first inning, partly on Jack Clark's two-run homer and a two-run triple by Duane Kuiper, then the first of Evans' homers chased the Pirates' Jim Bibby in the second. Evans also had a three-run shot off Randy Niemann in San Francisco's four-run eighth.

"A game like this couldn't come at a much better time," said Robinson. "We had a chance to relax, have some fun."

Braves 4, Astros 3

Run-scoring singles by Bob Horner and Rafael Ramirez helped the Braves open a two-run lead over Houston, then southpaw Terry Forster served up a game-ending double-play ball to pinch-hitter Tim Tolman with the bases loaded in the ninth inning.

"You normally wouldn't let a left-handed pitcher face a right-handed batter in a situation like we had, but all their experience and power is left-handed," Atlanta Manager Joe Torre said of the Astros. "So it worked out just as I hoped it would."

"I went in to strike him out," Forster said of Tolman, batting for only the eighth time this season. "But when I got behind, I decided to sink the ball and hope he'd hit into a double play."

Dodgers 6, Cards 4

Dusty Baker and Greg Brock hit solo home runs and St. Louis third baseman Ken Oberkfell's error opened the door to three runs in the fifth inning as the Dodgers won their fifth in a row and handed pitcher Joaquin Andujar of the Cardinals his fifth consecutive loss.

The victory was LA's 18th in 23 games and kept the Dodgers first in the West, one-half game ahead of Atlanta.

Padres 5, Cubs 3

Luis Salazar hit a two-run homer and Juan Bonilla a two-run double, both in the sixth inning, as the Padres halted their three-game skid. Dave Dravecky pitched his fourth complete game of the season, allowing nine hits.

One of them was Larry Bowa's first home run since 1980 and the 14th of his 14-year major-league career. The ball just did curl around the left field foul pole.

Bryant Rushes For 94 Yards

USFL Powers Still Dominant

By The Associated Press

The powerhouse teams of the United States Football League lived up to their billing over the weekend, headed by Chicago's 31-3 romp over the hapless Washington Federals.

In Sunday games, the victory by the Blitz, 7-3, kept them in a tie for the Central Division lead with the Tampa Bay Bandits, who survived a furious Oakland rally for a 17-10 victory over the Invaders.

Elsewhere Sunday, the Philadelphia Stars, topping the new league with a 9-1 record, had to rely on David Trout's strong right foot to squeeze out a 6-3 triumph over the Denver Gold.

On Saturday, the Michigan Panthers, 6-4, remained one game behind Chicago and Tampa Bay in the competitive Central Division with their fifth straight triumph, a 21-10 victory over the Arizona Wranglers at Tempe, Ariz., and the Los Angeles Express, 5-5, held onto a one-game lead in the Pacific Division by tipping the Boston Breakers 23-20.

Philadelphia's Kelvin Bryant ran for 94 yards against the Gold, moving at least briefly into a tie with Herschel Walker of the New Jersey Generals for the league rushing lead with a total of 1,023 yards. However, Walker, who has had five straight rushing performances over 100 yards, and his teammates play tonight against the Birmingham Stallions.

Jimmy Jordan, who later left the game with a separated shoulder, fired touchdown passes to Eric Truvillion and Danny Buggs to lead the Bandits. Jordan became a starter when John Reeves broke his wrist three weeks ago.

About 10,000 of the 26,989 ticketholders were no-shows for the nationally televised game at Oakland, where the Invaders trailed 17-0 after three quarters. The Oakland rally fell short despite a 3-yard touchdown run by quarterback Fred Besana and a 30-yard field goal by Kevin Shea.

At Chicago, Tim Spencer and Kevin Long each scored two touchdowns for the Blitz. The Federals, 1-9, have now lost six straight, but they averted a shutout when Dale Castro booted a 21-yard field goal in the third period following a 55-yard pass from Kim McQuilken to Billy Taylor. That was the longest play by the Federals this season and the longest play allowed by Chicago's league-leading defense.

McQuilken started in place of Mike Hohensee, who was hospitalized moments before the game with what doctors diagnosed as an appendicitis attack. The hard-luck Hohensee missed several games early in the season due to an injury.

Trout converted field goals of 53 — the longest on his career — and 18 yards for the Stars, sending Denver to its sixth defeat in 10 games. The Gold had an opportunity to tie the game with 2:07 remaining after driving to the Stars' 6-yard line. However, Brian Speelman, who hit on a 23-yarder in the second quarter, never got the 23-yard field goal attempt off because the ball was snapped wide to the right of holder Ken Johnson and Philadelphia recovered the ball.

Michigan's Whit Taylor, a rookie from Vanderbilt, replaced starter Bobby Hebert, out after complaining of dizziness following a hard hit, in the second half and directed a pair of third-quarter scoring drives. Two of the Michigan touchdowns were set up by long pass plays to wide receiver Anthony Carter and the other came on Taylor's 51-yard bomb to wide receiver Derek Holloway. Taylor completed five of eight passes for 198 yards.

Mike Rae, who replaced starter Tom Ramsey after he left the game with a bruise of the Achilles tendon, connected with Kris Haines for a 6-yard touchdown with 18 seconds remaining to seal the Los Angeles victory. Rae hit on nine of 12 passes for 104 yards and Haines caught six passes for 86 yards and two touchdowns.

Jabbar Tops Gilmore As Lakers Win, 119-107

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Even though he stands 7-foot-2 and weighs 260 pounds, Artis Gilmore was never a factor in the opener of the National Basketball Association Western Conference championship series.

And mainly because he was, the defending NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers got the jump on the San Antonio Spurs.

Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar easily won the battle of the big men Sunday, scoring 30 points, grabbing eight rebounds and blocking three shots as the Lakers whipped the Spurs 119-107.

Game Two in the best-of-seven series will be played at the Forum Tuesday night before the action switches to San Antonio for the third and fourth games next Friday night and Sunday afternoon, respectively.

"Kareem had his way today and obviously it was a little frustrating for me," said Gilmore, who scored seven points, pulled down six rebounds and blocked four shots before fouling out with 5:18 to play. "We're just gonna have to play harder, that's all."

The Spurs, who were swept in four games by the Lakers in last spring's Western Conference championship series, acquired Gilmore during the off-season to keep the Lakers from dominating them in the middle.

It worked well for the Spurs during the regular season as San Antonio won four of its five games against Los Angeles. But it was no contest Sunday.

"He's proved in the past, and in the playoffs, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is the greatest center ever to play the game," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley. "It was an exceptional basketball game. We had spurts on defense in the second half and that really turned the game around."

The Lakers took command by outscoring the Spurs 22-6 over a span of 6:24 late in the third quarter and early in the fourth. That turned an 81-78 San Antonio advantage into a 100-87 Los Angeles lead with 7:40 remaining and the margin was at least seven points the rest of the way.

"In recent memory, this was one of my more successful games against Artis," said Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers' 36-year-old team captain. "But it was only one game and I'm sure he will be heard from before this series is over."

Because of his foul problems, Gilmore was limited to 32 minutes of action while Abdul-Jabbar played all but four minutes.

"Kareem was sensational, there is no question he won the duel (against Gilmore) today," said San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck. "Our inability to do a good job on (Norm) Nixon, (Jamaal) Wilkes and Kareem hurt us."

"You will see a better team on Tuesday. We are confident we can win one here. It is going to be a physical and aggressive series and they won round one."

Albeck wasn't around to see the end of it. He was hit by a pair of technical fouls, which means automatic ejection. The second technical was called with 3:53 remaining and the Spurs trailing 106-99.

Nixon had 30 points and eight assists while Wilkes added 20 points and grabbed eight rebounds for the Lakers. Earvin "Magic" Johnson contributed 15 points and 12 assists for Los Angeles.

"I feel good for everyone on the team that we won this one," said Wilkes. "The first one is always the big one. They not only beat us during the regular season, but they beat us darn good."

Mike Mitchell led San Antonio with 26 points and seven rebounds. Johnny Moore added 25 points and was credited with a game-high 18 assists and George Gervin had 24 points and a game-high nine rebounds for the Spurs.

Bob McAdoo, who has the fourth-highest playoff scoring average in NBA history behind Gervin, Abdul-Jabbar and Jerry West, the Lakers' general manager, made his first appearance for Los Angeles since dislocating the fourth toe on his right foot in practice last Feb. 16.

McAdoo came on to a standing ovation from the crowd of 15,063 with 11 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

ECU Thinclads Run

COLUMBUS, OH. — The 400-meter relay team of Terry Brown, Nathan McCorkle, Eddie Bradley and Erskine Evans of East Carolina University placed fifth Sunday at the Jesse Owens Classic Track Meet held at Ohio State University.

Chris Brooks took fifth place in the long jump with a leap of 7.43 meters, while McCorkle was 10th in the 100-meters at 10.77.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Clint Richardson shook his head in disbelief.

"Never in my life have I scored all the points in an overtime period," the three-year pro from Seattle said.

The 6-foot-3 Richardson scored all seven of Philadelphia's points Sunday in overtime as the 76ers beat the Milwaukee Bucks 111-109 in the first of their best-of-seven series for the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship.

The second game will be played Wednesday, then the action shifts to Milwaukee for the weekend.

The winner will face the Western Conference champions for the NBA title. The Los Angeles Lakers beat the San Antonio Spurs 119-107 Sunday in the first game of that series.

Guard Maurice Cheeks led the 76ers' scoring with 26 points, and gimpy Andrew Toney scored 22. But Richardson was the star of the game and even overshadowed Marques Johnson, who topped all scorers with 30 for the Bucks.

The 76ers led in the second period by 16 points, but Milwaukee rallied to trail by just two at halftime, 59-57, with Johnson scoring the last 12 points in the comeback.

The Bucks got ahead for the first time at 90-89 when Johnson completed a 7-0 fourth-period spurt. The 76ers went ahead again on a driving shot by Toney, but the score was tied four times, ending in regulation at 104-104 after a short hook by Milwaukee's Junior Bridgeman.

In the overtime, Richardson tied the score at 106, and after Milwaukee went ahead 109-106 with 2:14 left, he made two free throws and the winning basket.

Richardson gave Bobby Jones credit for the game winner.

"I got a good pass from Bobby, and I said to myself, 'Nobody is going to block this shot.'"

Conley, Rampant Wrestlers Win In Spring Tournament

HOLLYWOOD — Three D.H. Conley wrestlers and one from Rose High School were among the winners Saturday in the D.H. Conley Spring Wrestling Tournament.

Andy Majette at 165, William Bridgett at 178 and Mike Long at 191, all Conley wrestlers, won their weight classes. Marvin Fleming of Rose took the heavyweight division.

Junior High Division: HWT — Eric Peoples of A.G. Cox. Open Division: 118 — Charles Biggs of Greenville (third — Cliff Whichard of Greenville); 130 — LeRoy Wallace of Camp Lejeune; 142 — Ronnie Rome of Edenton; 170 — Mike Jackson of Washington; 185 — Dan Muthler of Jacksonville; HWT — James Johnson of Wilson.

— Kenny Ruffin of Wilson; 123 — Kevin Bartholomew of Durham; 132 — Cornelius Bynum of Wilson (third — Kerry Farris of Conley); 143 — Eddie Anderson of Durham; 154 — Greg Hester of Durham; 165 — Andy Majette of Conley; 178 — William Bridgett of Conley; 191 — Mike Long of Conley; HWT — Marvin Fleming of Rose.

Winners in the various classes:

High School Division: 85 — Tyrone Carter of Edenton; 105 — Donald Pope of Wilson; 114 overtime.

"My philosophy in a situation like that is play good defense and keep the other team from scoring," he said.

Milwaukee still had another chance. With two seconds left,

Knox Wins Putt-Putt

Junior Knox won the Sunday night best ball tournament at Putt-Putt Golf and Games.

Knox, playing solo, captured the title in a sudden-death playoff with the team of Henry Hostetler and David Beacham. At the end of three rounds, the teams were tied with 23-under 85.

The match was decided on the third hole of the playoff when Knox aced the hole and the Hostetler-Beacham team missed the first shot.

The team of Henry Beacham and Jimmy Silverthorne finished third with a 22-under 86.

Brian Winters launched a three-point shot that bounced off the front of the rim, after Johnson had missed two free throws with 26 seconds to go.

"I was worried on that last shot (by Winters)," Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham said.

"It looked straight as an arrow to me."

Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson declined to talk about his team's strategy against the 76ers' huge center, Moses Malone, who scored just 14 points and made 12 rebounds. But Nelson didn't have to spell it out.

Liz And Dick The Big Show

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic
NEW YORK (AP) — The glamorous Liz and Dick show has opened on Broadway, preceded by considerable hoopla and even publicity. It's rumored a 53-year-old Noel Coward comedy, "Private Lives," also is involved.

But Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, twice wed to each other and twice divorced from each other, really are the main events here. Their celebrated real-life caperings give Coward's sprightly comedy a, shall we say, larger-than-life atmosphere. It's type-casting writ large.

And for sure the theater explodes with knowing laughter at one point when Miss Taylor, who's been wed so often she may have rice dandruff, sighs: "Marriage scares me, really."

In the unlikely event you've never seen "Lives," whose current edition bowed Sunday, it's about a pair of battling British lovebirds who briefly were wed to each other, then got divorced, and now, five years later, have just married other parties.

Then they accidentally meet again on the first night of their respective Riviera honeymoons with their respective new mates.

She may say of her first marriage, "we were like two violent acids bubbling about in a nasty little matrimonial bottle." But love conquers all again. Old flames flare, anew. The two exes run off to Paris together to resume their romantic wars, pursued by their new spouses.

"Lives," despite its rousing second-act fight, usually is rife with subtlety and sophistication. But you'll find little of that in this production, directed by Milton Katselas with an uncredited Broadway assist by Lou Antonio.

With Kathryn Walker as Sybil, Burton's new spouse, and John Cullum as Miss Taylor's beloved, Victor, the show's done so broadly its late author must be, rolling over in his repartee.

The play's not the thing. The Burton-Taylor thing is the play — as you may notice when the two are together in her Paris flat and he casually fondles her, giving her a start and bringing the house down with laughter.

Only Cullum's competent underplaying as a pompous but decent windbag and Burton's magnificent voice and sheer stage presence in the role of Elyot keep this caper from being all ham and no wry. You can ignore that the characters in "Lives" are supposed to be in their 20s and 30s, not middle-aged as is the case here.

But mercy, you can't help notice that Miss Taylor, more than a little plump, is pretty embarrassing as Amanda.

The star, who made her Broadway debut in 1981 in "The Little Foxes," shows little if any comic timing here and languidly sounds like a Southern belle on the wrong end of a mid-Atlantic accent.

Miss Walker's Kathryn is equally wayward, played as a dumb, air-headed, middle-aged blonde so full of twitter only a wit — which Burton's Elyot obviously isn't — could love her.

At least there are some bright moments — namely Burton's funny, big fight scene with Miss Taylor; his amused, authoritative near-fight with Cullum; his unabashed mugging when war fails to break out, and the brief but sparkling presence of Helena Carroll as Louise, Miss Taylor's French maid.

David Mitchell's Riviera terrace and Paris-flat sets also are good. They're smartly designed, as are Theoni V. Aldredge's costumes, although Miss Taylor never should have tried to squeeze into the purple gown she wears in the first act. It causes a problem of more Taylor than gown.

Be that as it may, the Liz and Dick show, unmercifully panned in its Boston tryout, will prevail no matter what the troops in the critics' corners say, good or bad. Its producer says its 11-week New York run has a $3 million advance.

It's easy to understand why. Folks want to see a live replay of the Burton-Taylor fights, even if the tiff is entitled "Private Lives" and only is play-acting. So be it. At least it brings old-fashioned, much-needed glamor to Broadway.

Helen Reddy To Wed Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Helen Reddy says she plans to marry her live-in boyfriend next month despite the objections of her 10-year-old son, who claims the boyfriend used physical force against him.

Ms. Reddy, 41, divorced her first husband, Jeff Wald, 39, in January. The couple is now waging a bitter custody fight over their son, Jordan, the May 16 issue of People magazine said.

Citing court documents, the magazine quoted Jordan as saying he disliked his mother's boyfriend, Milton Ruth, 30, adding that Ruth "has several times used physical force on me."

But Ruth told the magazine he never hit the boy and said Jordan sometimes looks on him as a "big brother."

"We get along pretty well," Ruth said. "I help him with homework and we watch movies."

Undercut By A One-Sided View

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In television and in history, a public personality has a hard time shaking an image. The Bionic Woman and "Bloody Babs" each take on a new slant tonight in ABC's remake of "I Want to Live," the 1958 film which won Susan Hayward an Academy award.

"Bloody Babs" was Barbara Graham, the last woman executed in California. She's played by Lindsay Wagner, best known as the star of "The Bionic Woman" TV series. That is the kind of fluffy, comic-book role that doesn't maximize acting ability and tends to pigeonhole performers.

For example, Jessica Lange was remembered for a long time for "King Kong." Now, after time, acting lessons and critical raves for her performances in "Frances" and "Tootsie," she's one of the hottest actresses around.

Miss Wagner hasn't had the theatrical-film success, but she's nonetheless a skilled actress. Last year, she was compelling as the psychologically troubled mother in CBS' "Memories Don't Die." Tonight she continues to distance herself from the bionic-beauty role by playing Mrs. Graham.

And through Miss Wagner's benign, supremely sympathetic treatment, "Bloody Babs," as she was dubbed by the headline-hunting press, surfaces as a completely different woman than the one Miss Hayward depicted.

Mrs. Graham, a prostitute, perjurer and scam artist, was convicted on evidence from one of her alleged co-conspirators of the murder of an elderly widow during a 1953 robbery. She steadfastly denied her guilt, and said she was home that night. Mrs. Graham was the only one of the defendants to be executed.

Miss Hayward's characterization was strident and bitter, making her appearance as a murderer more credible. But Miss Wagner makes Mrs. Graham a soft-spoken victim who wouldn't harm a soul, much less pistol-whip an old widow.

Mrs. Graham's background is given wider examination in the ABC film, which provides clearer motivation for why she took the low road of life. She was abandoned as a child, and was arrested for juvenile crimes.

But, ultimately, this film's extremely one-sided viewpoint — that Mrs. Graham was completely manipulated and exploited by males and a male-oriented society — forfeits its credibility, giving it the tone of an editorial.

"She'll get tried for what she was — a woman in and out of jobs and a lot of beds," says Edie Bannister (Pamela Reed), the only female reporter covering the trial. Edie also is the only journalist who doesn't come across as irresponsible and sleazy and the only one who tries to explain Mrs. Graham's side. In the 1958 movie, Simon Oakland was the reporter who questioned Mrs. Graham's guilt.

In every situation tonight, Mrs. Graham is depicted in the most favorable light, with her male companions and acquaintances in the worst, duping and coaxing her into a criminal lifestyle. There's even the suggestion that her male lawyer (Martin Balsam) blew her case.

When Mrs. Graham looks for a job, a bartender talks her into prostitution. She takes a perjury rap to protect one boyfriend, just because he bought her a present. She also agrees to hustle players for a fixed poker game to earn a down payment on a house for herself and her deadbeat husband.

Don M. Mankiewicz, co-author of the 1958 original, co-wrote the ABC film. The latest version takes a poke at the media, an in-vogue whipping boy in many films produced by the networks' entertainment divisions.

Riding the death-watch on the eve of Mrs. Graham's execution, the male reporters are both cynical and callous. They give different accounts of her last night. She either slept in red pajamas or in the raw. "Pick one," says one newsman to his rewrite man at the office. For her final meal, Mrs. Graham had a chocolate sundae, but didn't finish it, according to one newsman. "Maybe she's counting calories," says another.

Plan Re-Release Hitchcock Films

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Universal Pictures has obtained the rights to re-release five of Alfred Hitchcock's classic movies to theaters around the world with special attention to film festivals and Hitchcock retrospectives.

The five films acquired from Hitchcock's estate are "The Man Who Knew Too Much," "Rear Window," "Rope," "The Trouble With Harry," and "Vertigo." All but "The Trouble With Harry" star James Stewart.

A spokesman for Universal, which owns eight other Hitchcock films, said the studio "is proud to be able to return these classic films by a master filmmaker back into general release."

Lines In N.C. Republican Jockeying Become 'Fuzzy'

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Republicans soon will elect a new party chairman from at least three candidates whose similarities and differences are becoming blurred.

George Little, a Southern Pines insurance agent, opened his campaign last week with a Raleigh news conference. He is calling himself a compromise candidate.

One of the first candidates to announce was current party chairman David Flaherty. He was appointed chairman in spring 1981 and was elected to a full two-year term later that year. Flaherty resigned his executive job with Broyhill Industries Inc. in Lenoir to be the party's first full-time chairman.

Gilbert Boger of Mocksville, a former state legislator and a real-estate broker and contractor, has been campaigning for the job since January. Boger, who pulled out of the party chairmanship race in 1979, served in the Senate from 1981 to 1982 and served three terms in House.

All three candidates say a fourth person could enter the race before the state convention begins May 19 in Raleigh.

The lines of support for the candidates have become blurred because of their backgrounds.

Little and Flaherty both worked for former Gov. Jim Holshouser. Little was secretary of natural and economic resources under Holshouser and was finance chairman for Holshouser's 1972 campaign. He said he has the support of the former governor.

Flaherty was secretary of human resources under Holshouser and GOP nominee for governor in 1976. Boger charged that both Flaherty and Little were elevated to high positions by Holshouser without coming through the Republican ranks, which he said "is a thorn in the side of working Republicans."

Some have charged that Holshouser is hoping to steer the party back into more moderate hands through Little, but Little said that is not true.

There was a fierce battle in 1973 between moderates led by Holshouser and conservatives led by Helms for control of the party.

Little also denied rumors that he is considering running for office in 1984 and hoping to use the chairmanship as a springboard.

"I think he is trying to wrest control of the party either for his own personal ambitions to be governor or to gain control of the party for other reasons to create a Holshouser-Helms battle I've been trying to put to bed over the years," Flaherty said.

"I just want to be a good state chairman," Little said. "If I am successful there, I might look to other things down the road."

Both Flaherty and Boger have roots in the party's moderate mountain wing. Flaherty insists that the National Congressional Club, the conservative fund-raising group led by Sen. Jesse Helms, is a strong asset to the party.

But Boger charges that the Congressional Club is trying to wrest control of the GOP organization. He is trying to convince party members that their fortunes should not be linked so closely with Helms, who is expected to face tough competition for re-election from Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt.

He also says the Congressional Club is stifling the enthusiasm of more moderate Republicans.

Like Boger, Little has blasted Congressional Club dominance of the party.

"For too long, the Congressional Club 'tail' has been wagging the Republican 'dog'. The club should be a vital resource of our party, not the other way around," Little said last week at his news conference.

But in a telephone interview he noted that, "I'm not running against the Congressional Club. There is a place for them in the scheme of things."

Flaherty says the split between moderates and conservatives is a concoction of Democrats and liberal reporters. He says the party is better organized and raising more money than ever before.

Flaherty notes that he has gone from answering his own phone to having a secretary and field director and office computer. He said the party raised $485,000 during the past year, the most ever received in 12-month period.

"I'm the only candidate for chairman that can work with the club and all the elements of the party," Flaherty said.

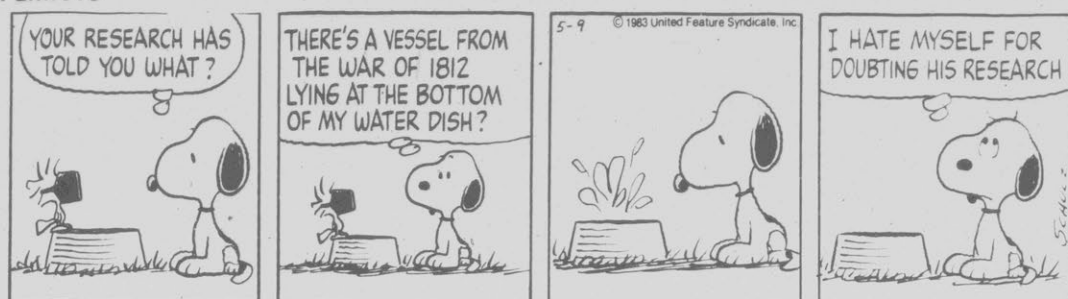

Boger wants regional offices in the West and Piedmont while Little wants to make the party chairmanship a volunteer office with a paid executive director. Flaherty is a fulltime chairman with a $33,000 annual salary.

Boger and Little acknowledge they share many supporters but insist they will be able to maintain their base of support. Little conceded that he had been behind Boger but said he decided to run as a compromise candidate when Boger failed to tone down attacks on the Congressional Club.

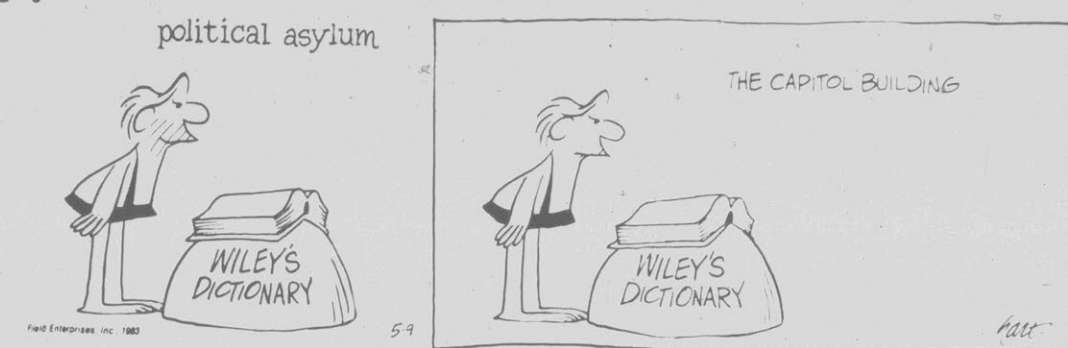

Boger said he's been to campaign in 54 different counties and traveled 20,000 miles since January. Flaherty has been to most of the county party conventions.

Little said he doesn't think it will hurt him to enter the race five months after Boger and Flaherty. He notes that only recently were convention delegates named and that is when the real campaigning begins.

Commencement Exercises Held At Several Campuses In N.C.

By The Associated Press
Educators must take the first steps in trying to resolve today's problems in education, the president of the Council for Advancement and Support of Education told Fayetteville State University graduates Sunday.

Waiting for the government to reduce the problem will only result in delays and lost time, said Dr. James L. Fisher, who heads the nation's largest education association.

"Universities are bound to become controversial from time to time," Fisher told the 349 graduates. "Certain colleges and universities make mistakes, but no other institution is so committed to the refinement of the mind... toward unbridled expression of truth. We need our universities now more than ever."

"We can't assume this is someone else's problem, as we have so often in higher education," Fisher said.

He said parents of today's school-aged generation may be the first Americans better educated than their children.

His remarks came at one of several commencement exercises in North Carolina Sunday, with others taking place at North Carolina State A&T State University, Duke University, High Point College and Lenoir-Rhyne College.

Fisher's warnings in Fayetteville followed those two weeks ago by the National Commission on Excellence in Education. The commission condemned the nation's educational system as "overwhelmed by a rising tide of mediocrity," and charged that academic excellence "is fading ... across the board."

At Greensboro, more than 1,000 graduates of North Carolina A&T University heard New York congressman Edolphus Towns advise them "to use their newly acquired skills for the uplift of mankind."

Dinner Theater In Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — A benefit dinner theater is being sponsored by The United Way of Martin County beginning at 6:30 p.m. Friday. The dinner will be held in the Williamston High School Cafeteria with a charge of $5 per person. Following the dinner, those attending can attend the Martin County Players production of "Guys and Dolls" which begins at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and adults. For reservations call 792-1027.

High Point College granted 300 degrees, Lenoir-Rhyne awarded 250 degrees and Duke 2,000 gave undergraduate and graduate degrees.

On Saturday, North Carolina's poet laureate Sam Ragan told Pembroke State University graduates to hold on to their dreams and let good government be the means to realizing them.

Ragan, editor and publisher of The Pilot in Southern Pines, told the 401 undergraduates and graduates who received degrees that there is no need to fear government, so long as it is humanitarian.

"Government is simply the instrument by which a people does things for people," he said. "We can use that instrument to make life better, and we can control that instrument with one simple act — the act of voting."

Also receiving degrees Saturday were 156 graduates at Pfeiffer College, 225 at Elizabeth City State University, 215 at North Carolina Wesleyan College, 293 at Shaw University and 270 at Guilford College.

At Louisville College, 150 associate degrees and 15 business certificates were awarded.

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

OHFUUX JB OZDDT OTEHJE OTIEJUV
OEFBFE ÜJI IJ OTX BJE OZV.

Saturday's Cryptquip - THE APPREHENSIVE GARDENER'S VERY LARGE PLIGHT: HE'S LILY-LIVERED.

Today's Cryptquip clue: O equals P.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Pitt Students Are Honored

RALEIGH - Four Pitt County students are among those who were honored by being inducted as volunteer mentors at North Carolina State University for the 1983-84 academic year. The four are: Wendy Gayle Boyd of Winterville, Michael Lambert Brown and Melanie Hope Streeter, both of Greenville, and Alanda Wesley Locust or Rt. 1, Snow Hill.

STILL IN KANSAS - Unlike Toto, Champ (shown sitting on his front porch), wound up back in Kansas only a few hundred feet from his starting point when Friday's tornado khit Topeka. Champ's owners say they saw him seek refuge in his dog house only a few moments before the tornado picked up his dog house and dumped it in a ditch in a field behind their mobile home. The tornado killed one person, injured about 20 others, and made Champ considerably more humble. (AP Laserphoto)
