Supreme Court Backed Away

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today backed out of a Boston case in which the justices had been expected to decide whether employers can preserve jobs for minority workers by laying off whites with more seniority.

The court, without a recorded dissent, sent the Boston case back to a lower federal court after suggesting that it had become legally irrelevant, or "moot."

The Reagan administration had sided with white workers in the case, arguing that "last-hired, first-fired" seniority systems cannot be scrapped to protect affirmative action programs.

Justice Department lawyers had urged the Supreme Court to overturn a lower court's order aimed at preserving jobs for blacks and Hispanics in Boston's fire and police departments.

The high court had been expected to use the Boston dispute to determine whether seniority systems or affirmative action plans take priority when economic hard times hit.

Now, it appears the court must await another case in which to deal with that sensitive race-relations issue.

Under usual layoff procedures, a cutback in Boston's police and fire employees in 1981 would have dropped the percentage of minorities among Boston police from 11.7 percent to 6.2 percent and minority representation among firefighters from 14.7 percent to 9.1 percent.

Both departments have been under court orders to increase the number of blacks and Hispanics who work for them.

A federal judge ruled that despite the layoffs, the percentage of minorities within the respective departments could not decrease. The 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld that order last year, saying it was needed to carry out established affirmative action goals.

White workers carried the dispute to the Supreme Court, charging that the lower court rulings condone "reverse discrimination" against whites.

In a brief order today, however, the justices defused the issue.

"Following the court of appeals' decision, Massachusetts enacted legislation providing the City of Boston with new revenues, requiring reinstatement of all police and firefighters laid off during the reductions in force, and requiring the maintenance of minimum staffing levels in the police and fire departments through June 30, 1983," the court noted.

"In light of these changed circumstances, we vacate the judgment of the Court of Appeals and remand for consideration of mootness," the order added.

In other action today, the court:

— Said it will review an appeals court ruling that Interior Secretary James Watt leased 29 tracts off the California coast to oil companies in violation of the state's coastal management plan.

— Without comment, left intact a ruling in a Florida case that the blanket ban on electronic and still photography news coverage of federal courtroom proceedings does not violate free speech rights guaranteed by the Constitution's First Amendment.

— Agreed — in cases that could force the government to pay for some commercial air disasters — that it would review a ruling that the Federal Aviation Administration must share financial responsibility for defective airplanes it inspected, even if inspections were made years before an accident.

— Made it easier today for the government to deny Social Security disability benefits to injured workers. In a case involving a Brooklyn, N.Y., made, the court upheld 8-1 Department of Health and Human Services guidelines that say benefits may be denied to a worker if the department's secretary determines that the worker is capable of performing other available work.

Today's action on the Boston affirmative action case apparently came on an 8-0 vote. Justice Thurgood Marshall, a former chief lawyer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, did not participate in the case.

The Reagan administration, which has taken a dim view of affirmative action programs, had told the justices the federal courts should not be allowed to modify seniority systems that are not discriminatory.

"There is no suggestion of any discriminatory purpose underlying the seniority system in this case, and the district court was without authority to reconstruct it," Justice Department lawyers had argued.

Crime Stoppers Endorsed By County Commissioners

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners this morning adopted a resolution supporting the "Pitt County Crime Stoppers," a program sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Lawton Nisbet, chairman of the chamber's crime prevention committee, said the privately funded program is designed "to give the average citizen the opportunity to help law enforcement agencies in the county fight crime."

He said radio, television and newspapers will be used to inform local residents of the program, which will provide rewards of up to $1,000 for information about crimes.

Nisbet said similar programs are operating in Raleigh, Statesville, Charlotte and Greensboro, and said those programs have been successful.

In Statesville over the past two years, $50,000 worth of stolen goods and drugs have been recovered and $6,500 in reward money paid out.

Sgt. Douglas Jackson of the Greenville Police Department told commissioners "the program centers on apprehension," pointing out that persons reporting crimes will remain anonymous, even to police agencies. "No one knows who the informant is," he noted.

In other business today, commissioners adopted a resolution naming the crossroads at Chicod School "Chicod" and requesting the Department of Transportation to erect a sign at the intersection.

The board also gave approval for the sale of 13 surplus vehicles by negotiated bid, and were told that efforts are being made to consolidate the city and county animal shelters.

Also approved was a request by the town of Farmville for a fireworks display on July 4.

The board also heard a report on the progress of watershed projects in the county and on projects of the Mid-East Resource Conservation and Development agency.

Lebanon's Government Ratifies Proposed Withdrawal Accord

By The Associated Press

The Lebanese Parliament unanimously endorsed the U.S.-mediated troop withdrawal agreement with Israel today, despite Syrian objections that will delay its implementation. The Israeli Knesset convened in Jerusalem to consider formal approval of the accord.

Lebanon's state radio said all 80 members present out of the 91 members of Parliament voted in favor of the Lebanese government signing the agreement. Authorities had ordered extra security for the session, and police sealed off approaches to the mid-city Parliament building.

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel did not need the Parliament's approval to sign the pact, because of special powers the body granted him last year and renewed last week. But he wanted the vote as a sign of broad support for the agreement, for which Gemayel is trying to rally Arab backing.

Israel's Parliament conducted what was expected to be a long debate in Jerusalem in preparation for a vote to approve a signing, which could take place Tuesday. Criticism of the agreement cut across party lines, but Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government was expected to win approval for the accord.

"It is not absolutely good, but it can always be said that an agreement could be better," legislator Michael Kleiner of Begin's dominant Likud Party said, defending the pact.

Opposition Labor lawmaker Victor Shemtov criticized the agreement, saying the clause formally ending the state of war between Israel and Lebanon "is not worth the blood of one Israeli soldier."

The parliamentary sessions came one day after Israeli and Lebanese negotiators agreed on the final text of the pact, which calls for Israel to withdraw its 25,000 troops from Lebanon when Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization pull out their forces. Israel says it will consider the agreement void without a Syrian and PLO withdrawal.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul-Halim Khaddam objected anew to the pact in an interview published today in Beirut's As-Safir newspaper,

Use Hearing To Be Held At City Hall

Greenville citizens who are interested in participating in the city's 1983-84 revenue sharing program are invited to attend a proposed use hearing Wednesday on the appropriation of local revenue sharing funds.

The annual hearing will be conducted by City Manager Gail Meeks at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers on the third floor at city hall.

Mrs. Meeks said the major objectives of the hearing are to provide citizens with information on the nature and purpose of revenue sharing and to give them an opportunity to present suggestions on the use of the funds.

As a participating city in the federal program, Greenville expects to receive $695,732 in the 1983-84 fiscal year, including an allocation payment of $354,532, $315,000 in allocation payments anticipated to be approved by Congress, a $25,000 fund balance, and interest on investments amounting to $1,200.

Under the program, first enacted in 1972, federal funds are distributed to state and local governments and may be used, obligated, or appropriated for any purpose for which a recipient government may spend its own funds.

During the current fiscal year, revenue sharing funds were used for operating expenses for the city's public library and the Pitt-Greenville Airport and also to purchase capital equipment for city departments.

Citizens attending the hearing will be given the opportunity to provide written and oral comments on possible 1983-84 fund usage, she said.

MERCY MISSION — Loaded with food, medicine, farming supplies and other equipment to help people on impoverished Caribbean islands, the 70-year-old Fri set sail Sunday on a voyage to its first port. (AP Laserphoto)

Mercy Mission To Caribbean By Aging Ship

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — A 70-year-old vessel has embarked on a private aid mission to the Caribbean, its hold packed with farm equipment, medical supplies and soybeans for poverty-stricken island nations.

The Fri, long associated with environmental and world peace movements, left St. Augustine on Sunday for some of the poorest countries in the Western Hemisphere.

The 105-foot vessel, built in 1912, carried solar water heaters, tools and equipment for island schools, vitamins and members of PLENTY, a volunteer group on its own Caribbean initiative.

"We're just trying to do something real and sane in a world that's not too sane sometimes," said Sean McCarthy, a seven-year resident of the Farm, a Tennessee commune where PLENTY was started.

McCarthy and 15 others during the period will be in the one-month voyage to the islands, where they say most of the population is undernourished or starving.

They plan to visit Vincent, St. Lucia, Dominica, Antigua and Haiti, where PLENTY has been involved with Mother Theresa's order, the Missionaries of Charity.

Food, farming tools and grinders used to convert soybeans to milk and cheese are among supplies included in the project, conceived before President Reagan announced his Caribbean Basin Initiative in February 1982.

"Three weeks before Reagan came out with his Caribbean Initiative, we came up with the idea," said McCarthy, who once ran for the Republican nomination for Congress in San Francisco with a platform of turning the Army into the Peace Corps.

CONSIDERATE FINDER

I laid a couple of pairs of pants on top of my car while I was unlocking it and drove off when them up there. I got to the cleaners — no pants. When I retraced my drive, I found the pants laid carefully in someone's yard so I could find them. Someone had apparently seen them blow off my car into the street and had picked them up and placed them where I'd see them and where they wouldn't be harmed. Finding them saves me the cost of two suits. I am thankful for my fine neighbors in Eastwood. W.D.

Improved N.C. Earnings Reflect The Economy

By The Associated Press

Improved earnings by many major North Carolina businesses in this year's first quarter are signs of a healthier economy, stock analysts and corporate executives say.

Kay Norwood, an Interstate Securities Corp. analyst in Charlotte, said textile sales generally increased in the first quarter and profits for many major firms rose, although there was no clear, strong pattern.

"Results in several (first-quarter bank earnings reports) were really much better than anticipated," said Dan Collins, a banking analyst with Wheat, First Securities Inc. in Richmond, Va. "Earnings were very good, and loan losses were moderate."

Another analyst with the same firm said retail sales in the state fared better than most other areas of the nation during the first quarter.

"I think it's because of the broad-based economy — tourism, agriculture, transportation, for example," Ken Gassman said.

Ms. Norwood said sales volume of most textile firms was much better than in the last quarter of 1982.

"There was a better tone to companies this quarter," she said. "Generally, the sales are improving, but the earnings vary all over the map."

For the first quarter of 1983 compared to the same period last year, Burlington Industries Inc. of Greensboro reported profits up to $19.8 million. Cone Mills Corp. of Greensboro reported a 9 percent drop in profits. Fieldcrest Mills Inc. of Eden reported profits up to $1.45 million. Guilford Mills of Greensboro reported profits rising to $3.1 million. Blue Bell

Inc. of Greensboro said profits increased 12 percent.

Quality Mills Inc. of Mount Airy reported one of the industry's leading profit increases — a 78 percent gain over the first quarter in 1982.

A retailer with expanding operations, Family Dollar Stores Inc. reported profits rose 52 percent, while sales grew 28 percent.

A 20 percent drop in tobacco earnings hurt results at R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc., which reported a 14 percent decline in company-wide earnings.

Also down were sales and earnings at Nucor Corp. The Charlotte-based steel maker reported profits of $3.5 million, down from 1982 quarterly earnings of $4.5 million.

The Wachovia Corp. of Winston-Salem, typical of higher profits among banks, reported an increase of 14.4 percent.

Wedding Vows Said In Outdoor Ceremony

Kathleen Haddock Harrington and Charles Timmy Clark were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in a ceremony performed by the Rev. John Simpson, of Mt. Pleasant Christian Church.

The outdoor, double ring ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mangiapane. Mrs. Allen Merritt was organist and Mrs. Richard Lane sang "Truly."

The bride is the daughter of Mary Bruno Haddock of Route 4, Greenville, and David Haddock of Chocowinity. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clark Sr. of Simpson.

Deborah Ozment of Rocky Mount was honor attendant for her sister, Karen Baldrew of Greenville was flower girl.

The best man was Brian Clark of Simpson, son of the bridegroom. Ushers included Walter Clark Jr., brother of the bridegroom, and Charles Mangiapane, both of Greenville, cousin of the bride.

The wedding was held in a lattice gazebo designed and built by the bridegroom as a gift to his bride. It was decorated with hanging baskets of English ivy, spider plants and other greenery accented with satin ribbons. An improvised altar held a spray of greenery and satin ribbons. Family pews were marked with satin bows with a nosegay of lavender orchids, baby's breath and greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of print organza in shades of pink, green and lilac designed with a portrait neckline with a ruffled bertha collar and empire bodice. The flared skirt of the sleeveless gown was accented by a ruffled flounce at the hemline overlaid by a southern belle pick-up skirt with a ruffled flounce with side swag and rolled tie bows. She wore a single strand of pearls. The bride wore a coronet of pink and white silk flowers interspersed with baby's breath and pearls with a lavender and pink ribbon bow. She carried a cascade bouquet of silk orchids, lavender carnations, white, pink and lavender baby's breath and other matching flowers accented with a lace ruffle and Boston fern. It was highlighted by two pearl beaded hearts accented with lavender and pink streamers.

The honor attendant wore a lavender gown of polyester knit with a fitted empire bodice and narrow straps. The detachable cape was of sheer polyester chiffon. She carried a white wicker fan decorated with a spray of greenery and lace centered with lavender carnations, white and pink baby's breath, bachelor buttons with pink and lavender bow with streamers. She wore a silk cascade of lavender and pink tinted gypsophilia accented with a pink and lavender bow on a comb in her hair.

The flower girl was dressed identically and carried a white satin lined wicker basket accented with matching flowers and pink ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a rose polyester knit dress and the bridegroom's mother wore an apricot polyester knit dress with matching rose corsages.

A reception was held after the ceremony on the lawn under a canopy decorated with the bridal colors. Mrs. Jimmy Warren served cake and punch was poured by Connie Proctor, sister of the bride.

Mrs. Johnny Phelps presided at the guest register. Blanch Morris assisted at the event.

The couple will live in Simpson after a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The bride works part-time at Brody's and the bridegroom is self-employed as a building contractor.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held at the Mangiapane home Friday evening. Hostesses were Mary Williams, Mrs. Tim Ozment and Mrs. Mangiapane.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

Last summer, when my friend Jonathan Dudley told me he was going to spend a couple of months in New Mexico, I said, "Bring me back a recipe for Indian fry bread that really works." I'm happy to say he fulfilled the commission. His recipe worked beautifully when we made it in my kitchen. Here is his report of his fry-bread adventure:

I first tasted Indian fry bread at a Pueblo Festival. Even as I watched the large disc puff and brown as an Indian woman turned it in the hot oil, I knew I would love it — and I did.

Friends suggested that Lyn Hagan Ortega might be able to teach me how to make it. Mrs. Ortega, a native New Mexican, lives with her family in the village of Corrales, near Albuquerque, in a large, comfortable adobe house that she designed herself. She teaches cooking at the University of New Mexico.

She invited me for a lunch of posole, a hefty stew of pork, hominy and chilies. To accompany it, we made fry bread. As we made it, Lyn talked about it. "The Indians probably didn't use dry milk until Fabiola C. deBaca Gilbert, the famous New Mexican extension home economist, taught them to. In addition to adding nutrients, it gives the bread a copper-like color as it fries." Indeed, we tried a batch without the dry milk, it was pale in comparison.

Fry bread is versatile. It can be eaten plain, straight from the fryer; as an open-faced sandwich, or "Navajo Taco," using guacamole, chili con carne, refried beans, enchilada meat sauce and green chili sauce in any combination; it is also a favorite dessert served with ice cream and a topping. But it must be eaten hot.

LYN ORTEGA'S INDIAN FRY BREAD

Corn oil
2 cups all-purpose flour
1-3rd cup nonfat dry milk powder
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon shortening
¾ cup (about) warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
Add enough oil to a 10- or 12-inch electric skillet to have it 1-3rd full.

In a large bowl, stir together flour, dry milk, baking powder and salt. With your fingers, work in shortening until it is not visible. With a fork, gradually stir in enough water to form a soft dough.

On a lightly floured surface, knead until smooth and springy — about 5 minutes. Form into a 6-inch roll. Let rest uncovered for 45 to 60 minutes. Slice crosswise into six 1-inch pieces; form each into a ball.

On a lightly floured surface, with a floured rolling pin, roll each ball to a thin 6-inch round — less than ¼-inch thick.

Pick up a round of dough; holding it close to the edge, start pressing and rotating the round between thumbs and fingers, keeping thumbs moving close together. First press close to edges of the dough, then move thumbs down slightly and continue pressing to stretch and rotate until round is 7 or 8 inches in diameter — returning to press near edges if necessary. The round will have uneven spots of thickness. Repeat with remaining rounds.
Meanwhile, heat the oil in the skillet to 375 degrees. Add one round; with tongs push down often into oil to submerge; fry, turning once, until puffed and golden brown. Keep warm in a low oven. Repeat with remaining rounds.
Makes 6.

Healthy People Trying To Get Into The Hospital

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)

Hospitals are wasting millions of dollars a year trying to diagnose the complaints of a small but clever group of people who trick their way into emergency rooms with made-up symptoms and even undergo needless surgery.

Psychiatrist Don Lipsitt, who has studied these people for 20 years, estimates that there may be anywhere from 4,000 to 12,000 of them in the United States.

No one understands precisely why they do it, but their goal is clear enough: They want to be hospital patients, even though they're perfectly healthy.

"There are, unfortunately, many surgeons who get hoodwinked into performing unnecessary surgery on these people," Lipsitt says. "The patients themselves — and this is what verges on the bizarre — know that they don't have anything that needs to be operated on. They engineer the entire process from entry through the emergency room to the operating table."

Their disorder is called Munchausen's syndrome. It is named after Baron Munchausen, a German nobleman whose wildly exaggerated exploits were published in the 1700s.

Typically, they will show up at night or on weekends at hectic emergency rooms, complaining of something like kidney pain or breathing trouble. They may even carry proof, such as a bloody stool sample.

The symptoms are believable, and the patient is admitted to the hospital, where doctors run test after test trying to figure out what is wrong. Often the hospital staff becomes suspicious and confronts the imposter, who then angrily checks out. But sometimes perplexed surgeons perform cardiac catheterization or exploratory surgery in a vain effort to find the cause of the bogus ailment.

"The goal, the satisfaction, is being admitted to the hospital, being accepted as somebody with an illness and even having an operation," says Lipsitt.

Hypochondriacs, on the other hand, truly believe they are sick, while malingerers feign illness for some real purpose, such as winning an insurance settlement or avoiding work.

Lipsitt is a professor at Harvard Medical School and chief of psychiatry at the 300-bed Mount Auburn Hospital. His hospital ordinarily gets about two of these people a year, although this year five of them have already been exposed.

He assumes that other medium and large hospital also admit one or two Munchausen's patients annually, and they typically stay three days. "On that basis," he said, "I calculated that the annual cost may be anywhere from $4 million to $40 million to the medical care system."

Their ploys vary. Some simply show up at the hospital with a plausible list of symptoms that sound like heart disease or kidney stones.

Others are more inventive. They may take insulin to lower their blood sugar or other drugs that disrupt their body chemistry. Some inject themselves with bacteria, mix blood with their urine or slip kidney stones into their bedpans.

Lipsitt says the more extreme fakers practice their obsession full time. They visit all the hospitals around their homes or travel from state to state or even country to country, usually complaining of the same illness.

Some go back to the same hospital over and over. Each time they adopt a new identity, complete with changed Social Security and health insurance numbers, addresses, ages and disguises.

One giveaway is gridiron scars on their bellies from repeated operations.

"It isn't that physicians and medical staff are gullible," he said. "They really are concerned about doing the right thing by patients, and they tend to take things at face value, especially in an emergency room."

Little is known about what motivates these people. Lipsitt says, because most belligerently refuse to admit their deception and decline mental help. But there are some similarities:

—Many have had experience in the medical field as nurses, orderlies, hospital clerks, doctors' secretaries or medical students.

—Some were brought up in families where illness and hospitalization were common.

—Often they were sub-

Franklin Whaley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Whaley of Greenville, were married jected to abuse or violence as children.

Most are exceptionally bright.

Virtually all have trouble establishing lasting relationships with other people.

Some experts have speculated that Munchausen's patients are trying to ridicule and demean authority in the form of a physician. Another idea is that they need to master their fear of hospitals and operations. Or maybe they want to feel they are in control by manipulating medical people.

Often, they leave a clue for doctors. For instance, one patient was admitted twice to Mount Auburn Hospital for depression. The second time, he had grown a beard and concocted a new identity. However, both times, he listed a sister as next of kin. And even though he gave her a different name each time, he listed the same address for her.

Doctors trade tales of notable Munchausen's patients in letters to medical journals. Three years ago, doctors writing to the New England Journal of Medicine told of one who goes to emergency rooms claiming he suffers from, of all things, Munchausen's syndrome.

He paints fake surgical scars on his abdomen and lists his name as Norman U. Senebau. And that's his clue. It's an anagram for Baron Munchausen.

The 'Living Will' Asks For Death With Dignity

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I had given little thought to sending for a Living Will until recently when I witnessed the suffering of my sister.

For seven long months she was kept alive with machinery. She didn't know anybody. She was unable to speak because of instruments in her throat, had to be fed through a pipe in her nose and couldn't even lift her arms to ease an itch! She was nearly 80, and I pray to God that I will not be forced to endure such torture if it is known that my illness is terminal.

Please tell me where to write for a Living Will. Also tell me how much it costs, and I will gladly pay the price. I am over 75 and I've lived my life. When my number is up, and it's God's will, I would like to die with dignity.

REALISTIC IN RHODE ISLAND

DEAR REALISTIC: You can obtain a Living Will by writing to: Society for the Right to Die, 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

The society is a non-profit organization, so the document is free, but do send a donation in order to defray the cost of printing and mailing (it's tax-deductible).

I sent $10 and requested six documents to be given to members of my family, my physician, my lawyer and my clergyman. For the peace of mind it has given me, it's the best investment I ever made.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 21 and have always considered myself to be a healthy, normal, red-blooded American man, but I'm beginning to wonder how healthy and normal I am. Here's the problem:

At a family reunion last July, I saw my first cousin, who lives in another state, for the first time in five years. She's 19 and I've always liked her, but when I saw her at the reunion I saw her in an entirely different way. I mean, I really couldn't believe she was the same little girl I knew. I also didn't feel toward her like a man should feel toward his cousin.

Ever since then, I've been having these romantic dreams about her. Last weekend I had a date with another girl, and while I was kissing her, I kept thinking about my cousin. Now I'm wondering how to make my dreams come true.

I'm told that first cousins aren't allowed to marry in some states. Why not? Who made up that dumb rule?

DREAMER

DEAR DREAMER: That "dumb" rule isn't so dumb. If there are any genetic weaknesses or tendencies toward hereditary diseases in your common ancestors, your children risk severe health problems, so if you're not already kissing cousins, better keep it that way.

DEAR ABBY: "Curious in White Bear Lake" wanted to know where a woman should sit if she is one of three passengers in a car, the other two of whom are men. You said, "Gone are the days when women felt they had to sit in the back seat of cars while the men sat in front."

Well, you are wrong. Here's the way it's done in Jamaica, where I am from. And, incidentally, it is the internationally accepted norm.

It depends on who the woman is. If she's the wife or girlfriend of the driver, she should sit in front with him. If she's the wife or girlfriend of the other man, she should sit in the back while the two men sit in front. If she's not the wife or girlfriend of either man, all three should sit in front if possible.

Abby, the driver should never sit in front alone unless, of course, he is the chauffeur.

FRED IN WEST COVINA

DEAR FRED: And what if the chauffeur is a "she"?

DEAR ABBY: You have contradicted yourself. "Nameless, Please," an 18-year-old female who became pregnant by a 14-year-old male, was advised (by you) to "leave bad enough alone."

Where is the equality between the sexes now? If the roles were reversed, you would have been all over the male like flies on a garbage truck.

Abby, that girl is guilty of statutory rape! I am not saying she should be sent to jail, but if the sexes are to be treated equally in other respects, then what's good for the gander is good for the goose here, too!

Most males are tired of one-sided equality.

ME, TOO

DEAR ME: The 18-year-old female could have been charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. But statutory rape? Never! The definition of statutory rape: "Sexual intercourse with a female who is below the statutory age of consent." Case dismissed!

Problems? Everybody has them. What are yours? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When fresh strawberry supplies peak in the month of May, the thoughts of a good many cooks in the U.S.A. turn to one of the best of American desserts—Strawberry Cobbler.

This year we found a recipe for Strawberry Cobbler that is made in just a little different way from other recipes of its sort. A very hot sugar syrup is poured over the berries (in a casserole), the topping is added while the syrup is still very hot and then the cobbler is immediately baked.

The source of this recipe? A strawberry-shaped cookbook titled "From the Strawberry Patch" by Sharon Kay Alexander, published a few years ago. Here's our adaptation of the recipe:

- STRAWBERRY COBBLER
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
  - 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - Sugar
  - 4 tablespoons (1/2 of a 1/4-pound stick) butter
  - 1 pint strawberries
  - 2/3rds cup water
  - 1/2 cup (about) milk
  - Vanilla ice cream, if desired

In a medium bowl stir together flour, baking powder, salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. With a pastry blender cut in butter into tiny particles; reserve.

Rinse strawberries in cold water; drain and hull; turn into an unbuttered 1 1/2-quart casserole (7 1/2-by-2 1/2 inches). In a 1-quart saucepan over moderate heat stir together 1/3rd cup sugar and the water until sugar dissolves and mixture boils; simmer, uncovered, for 3 minutes. Pour the very hot sugar mixture over the strawberries.

At once stir milk into reserved flour mixture until a dough forms — it should be drop-biscuit consistency. At once drop by large spoonfuls in 10 mounds over berries; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar.

Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until browned — 20 to 25 minutes. Serve at once or while still quite warm. Top, if you like, with vanilla ice cream.

Makes 4 servings.

Tobacco's Alternatives Aren't Good

Hope For Knowledge

The U.S. House of Representatives has scheduled a closed debate this week, or possibly later, on the legality of this country's involvement in internal affairs in Nicaragua. The debate comes even as the chambers of Congress are echoing with the Reagan administration's plea for more military aid to El Salvador.

It's a paradoxical situation: in El Salvador, the U.S. is supporting a suppressive government against leftist rebels; in Nicaragua, we support the rebels against a leftist suppressive government. The difference is in who one considers to be a leftist.

Congressional committees have made drastic cuts in the president's requests for nearly $200 million in aid to El Salvador through fiscal 1984. One committee has tempered its approval of a fraction of that aid by saying the government would have to agree to unconditional talks with the rebels.

This is the fix we find ourselves in 30 years later — Korea has come and gone with no solution; Vietnam has come, along with humiliation, and gone with no solution so far as the United States is concerned, and now we are meddling internally in other countries' affairs again, again with no intention of openly producing a solution.

The similarities in El Salvador and the early days of Vietnam are all too real to ignore: U.S. money and "advisers" keep the government going while the rebels hold fast and make inroads. Nicaragua, at least, is a switch; even if it's being done covertly — although the entire world knows about it — we're backing an attempted overthrow of an established government.

Congress has been as much to blame for this country's illogical foreign policy as anyone in the last 40 years; it has allowed intervention, kept it going and all the time tied down the president and the military so that it could not possibly produce a victory for "our" side.

Maybe the House and its closed debate will shed some light on just what it is we're doing down there, and why. But we doubt it.

Riggs Good Choice

A foremost authority on phosphates and a world environmentalist, Dr. Stanley R. Riggs of the East Carolina University faculty is one of two recipients of the O. Max Gardner award.

The award is made by the UNC Board of Governors to UNC system faculty members in recognition of their contributions to the welfare of the human race. Dr. Frank E. Guthrie of N.C. State University was the other recipient this year.

Dr. Riggs is on a research cruise but in a statement he said man must learn to live harmoniously with the world's ecosystems. He said that while man can do little to improve the earth, "he does have the potential to totally desecrate it."

Dr. Riggs has demonstrated his concern for our environment through his life work and he is a logical choice for the O. Max Gardner award. We in North Carolina must respond to his concerns for the environment and hopefully those concerns will become worldwide.

Case Of Stereotyping

NEW YORK (AP) — From his "Financial War Room" in Springvale, Utah, where he writes his "Financial Survival Report," Howard Ruff fired a missile recently against those in the media who misunderstand him.

"The only thing you could find to say about me was that I still recommend storing dried food," wrote Ruff to a newsman who had mentioned the fact. He suggested it could lead to an incorrect impression.

"Any reasonable person would conclude that in the midst of an economic recovery I was expecting the end of the world," he wrote. And it is true that some people do indeed think he expects the end of the economic world.

But it isn't true, says Ruff, a unique individual who appears to have separated himself from the fraternity of gloomy forecasters, some of whom serve as a contrast to establishment gurus, but some of whom appear to exploit fears.

Still, that advice to save food for bad times, which he has not backed off from, continues to bug Ruff. It causes him to be stereotyped, often unfairly.

"I have mentioned food storage once in 15 months, and my newsletter has been bristling with sound and accurate economic forecasts," he wrote, adding in the style that has made his letter so readable:

"And yet the press ... can only single out and take totally out of context that one mention of food storage, conveying a totally false impression that stupid old Howard Ruff stands there as an island of pessimism in a sea of recovery."

Of course, Ruff made the food statement, and who knows, he might be correct. And in his early years, at least, he may have done more than anyone to create the image he feels is unfair, one-dimensional and unrepresentative.

In an article he wrote in the 1970s, and later reprinted in 1980, he made the point about food very clearly.

"It is imperative," he said back then, "that the good people of the nation, who believe in sound principles, are the ones who get through in good shape so they are in a position to help remold the world that will come afterwards."

"To do that, you have to have money, time, and health. I want my subscribers to be among those who remold this world. I honestly believe that the only thing that will correct the system is the financial cataclysm we are going to face."

"Every person who stores food now, while there are no distribution problems or shortages, will not be a burden on the community, and later there will be more to divide up among the rest of the population."

"My advice is good for you and good for America. You just might, be among those who save the Republic."

The words are from "Howard Ruff From A to Z," a $24.95 volume described on the cover as "the only encyclopedia you'll ever need for total financial and personal survival advice."

But it is also true that Howard Ruff and his organization have made many, many other suggestions and forecasts too, and about a far wider range of matters than most of his type who dare to speak their minds directly.

His following is widespread and devoted. And many of his views have been accurate in specifics and generalities. His letter points to some of them.

"In November 1981, I told my subscribers to 'batten down the hatches, now comes the real recession.' I told them this would be far deeper and longer than

CHAPEL HILL — Given the current litany of woes facing the tobacco farmer in North Carolina, it is not surprising that some people think there's no future in growing the golden leaf. Farmers are being advised to prepare now for the day when the economics of tobacco won't be very good.

Dr. William Toussaint, a business and economics professor at N.C. State University, hears all that talk and asks one question: "If tobacco farmers stop growing tobacco, what are the alternatives?" In a presentation made to the N.C. Editorial Writers' Conference, Toussaint had some discouraging news. There really aren't any very good alternatives. When you stop growing tobacco, you start seeing your income decline.

At the same conference, G.D. Smith, executive vice president of R.J. Reynolds, had listed some of the problems facing the tobacco farmer.

In the Congress, there are repeated attacks on the tobacco market program that has brought stability to the tobacco market. Tax increases have cut consumption. The eight-cent a pack tax increase on cigarettes was supposed to sunset in 1985. Now, says Smith, it appears that the sunset provision will be lifted and the tax will become permanent. Four states have raised cigarette taxes recently and 38 others are considering it.

Consumption is also being hurt by the health argument, Smith said. And, foreign competition is cutting into the amount of tobacco bought from North Carolina tobacco growers.

The problem with finding an alternative to tobacco is that even with all of these woes, Toussaint said, it is still a money-maker. "Maybe one-half of the net farm income of North Carolina farms last year was attributable to tobacco," he said. "Tobacco has a large gross income per acre."

For example: A tobacco farmer may make $4,000 an acre. A corn farmer, $200. In this state of small farms, the ability to pull big amounts of money out of a little land is essential. Toussaint hypothesized of a well-managed 100-acre farm in a good weather year. With 10 acres of tobacco allotment and another 10 rented, and 75 acres in soybeans and wheat, that farm will make $50,000 after paying for everything but the interest on its land and equipment. Without the tobacco, the income is $17,000.

So, corn and soybeans and wheat aren't the answer. But maybe vegetables are. Some state farmers are making almost as much with vegetables as with tobacco. So why can't we stop growing tobacco and start growing broccoli and tomatoes? Because if all the tobacco acreage went to vegetables, it would so flood the vegetable markets that their prices would drop dramatically. Same's true for flower and ornamentals farming. If too many people try to get into it too quickly, the market could be flooded.

Should the federal tobacco program be scuttled, Toussaint figures the price of tobacco would drop 25 percent with a total loss to net farm income of $360 million the first year. "Over time, if we sold and exported more, some of that would come back."

But the state would be permanently changed. He suspects some farmers would go out of business. Others would see their incomes seriously injured. If farms were to be converted to grains, they'd have to be bigger so small farms would be consolidated.

"There are some alternatives to tobacco farming," Toussaint said. "Unfortunately, they're not very good."

No Guns When It's The President

President Reagan addressed a cheering audience of gun enthusiasts at the National Rifle Association Convention in Phoenix, Ariz., last week. Wearing a bulletproof vest and surrounded by a phalanx of Secret Servicemen and local police officers, the President decried those who would take guns away from the American people.

Signs all over the hall where Mr. Reagan spoke warned the audience not to bring their guns to the rally. As a further precaution all those entering the building had to pass through metal detector booths, to make sure they weren't armed.

The President said he would never disarm decent law-abiding citizens, as plainclothes men kept a careful eye on the audience in the convention center.

He alluded to John W. Hinckley and said, "It is a nasty truth but those who seek to inflict harm are not fazed by gun control laws. I happen to know this from personal experience."

The President failed to mention that Hinckley bought his gun from a Texas pawnshop in a state that has no gun control laws.

Let us assume for Mr. Reagan's sake, that Mr. Hinckley went into the Texas pawnshop, and stiff federal gun laws were in effect.

"Can I help you, sir?"

"Yes, I'd like to buy a handgun that I could fit in my pants pockets."

"May I ask you why you want the handgun?"

"I want to impress Jodie Foster."

"She's a very fine actress. Do you know her personally?"

"Sort of. She knows me. She'll know me more in a couple of weeks."

"There is nothing like a nice little handgun to impress the girl you really love."

"I want a couple of boxes of ammunition to go with it."

"Certainly. Why would anyone buy a gun without ammunition? Here's a beauty. I just bought it from a man who wanted to trade up for something larger. It's only been fired once, at a neighbor."

"I'll take it."

"I can't give it to you now. I have to take your particulars and then if everything checks out you can come back in two weeks and I'll gift wrap it for you."

"What do you mean checks out?"

"We have to know if you have a police record or have suffered from a mental illness."

"What do you think — I'm crazy or something?"

"Of course not, sir. You look perfectly sane to me. But unfortunately the federal law no longer permits the dealer to decide who should have a gun and who shouldn't. Certainly a law-abiding citizen like yourself can wait two weeks before impressing your girlfriend."

"That's how much you know. Jodie isn't the type of girl who has all the time in the world to be impressed. I could lose her in the next two weeks."

"I understand, sir, but if I sold you this gun without checking you out, I could be fined and sent to jail. Believe me, it isn't easy for us dealers. I have many customers who come in here and when I tell them they have to be checked out before I can sell them a gun, I never see them again. It's killing my business."

"What do you want to know?"

"Why are you purchasing this handgun?"

"I told you. I want to impress my girlfriend."

"Couldn't you give me a better reason?"

"I'm going to Washington and I need it to protect myself against all the nuts walking the streets."

"That's better. Do you promise to use it only in self-defense?"

"Do I have to?"

"It makes it easier to get a permit."

"Aw, heck with it. I'm not going to answer a lot of damn-fool questions just because I need a gun."

"I'm sorry, sir, but if you don't, I can't sell it to you."

"Stuff the gun. I'll skip Washington and think of another way of impressing Jodie Foster."

Strength For Today

On a square, brick building in a Midwestern town the following words are built into the outside wall: "A.J. Smith, 1881, Livery Stable." On the first floor of the building, below these built-in words, are two large stores, one selling TV sets and the other automobiles.

Happy life consists in the capacity to accommodate one's self to new conditions and circumstances. Too much adaptation and one has compromise; too little, and one has stagnation and death. Anyone who would have persisted in the livery stable business and harness making in the face of the growing demand for automobiles, would have been foolish indeed. Anyone who would have thrown up his hands and given way before the rush of modern modes would have been even more foolish.

The right thing at the right time; balance does it. A.J. Smith, whoever he was, taught his descendants how to turn livery stables into modern, well-equipped retail outlets.

Hometowns And Their Blues

WASHINGTON — It might seem laughable that a rugged city of 775,000 could let a 22-year-old college senior get under its skin, as Baltimore has in its tiff with Stanford University quarterback John Elway.

The city's angst stems from Elway's decision to play professional football anywhere but Baltimore — the hometown of the lowly Colts, which picked Elway first in last week's National Football League college player draft. Ever since the celebrity senior vetoed even a visit to Maryland's oft-slighted metropolis, radio talk shows and letters-to-the-editor sections have revealed the anti-Elway hysteria of a suitor scorned.

But if Elway vs. Baltimore has been a story of a sports career, it has also exposed an all-too-common hometown defensiveness.

Baltimoreans aren't alone in their sensitivity about their city. Polks from Buffalo, Cleveland, all of New Jersey or even Los Angeles are equally accustomed to defending their Troys. If there's a city or town that's escaped epithets, it's un-American (even the swallows dump on California's quaint San Juan Capistrano).

Though continual abuse has encouraged exiles from some communities to form caucuses or, in the case of Long Island, deny their roots entirely, local gadflies rise to their hometowns' defense in the face of shallow stereotyping by alien know-it-alls.

The fact is that most criticism dishonestly ignores, as Bertrand Russell argued long ago, the uniformity of America. No matter what we say about Pittsburgh, where and how we live differ little from place to place.

Recurring art museums, public libraries and skyscrapers only begin to illustrate the point. These days, it's the Wendy's, Holiday Health Spas and other franchises that define a city. There's an "Eyewitness News," inevitably hosted by a dizzy anchorperson, on virtually every local television dial. Progressively, every town boasts electronic bank tellers, renovated downtown districts and an overpriced French restaurant. No rock group worth its amplifiers misses a town, and the same seems to be the trend with Broadway-bound shows.

Meanwhile, every community has its share of crooked politicians, high school drug problems and country clubs. If Valley Girls had been peculiar to northern

Los Angeles, Frank Zappa's hit song would surely have bombed elsewhere.

So, aside from rumbing tumbleweeds and drier air, can Denver, (Elway's eventual choice of pro football cities) really be as great as it appears? Of course not.

Lifestyle advantages are no easier to identify. Whether one chooses Boston, New York, Washington or Atlanta, as so many eastern college grads do, the workaday world is wholly routine. It's white collars, blue collars, packed buses, long lines, deli sandwiches, softball leagues and singles' bars.

Invariably, people everywhere think of greener grass — if not seriously, then to draw sustenance simply from the thought of something new. Friends in Washington always seem about to plant themselves in New York; New Yorkers yearn for L.A.; Lotus-landers, for Boston. A language of restlessness dominates modern conversation.

That's the irony of both Baltimore's Elway fit and the snickering that's echoed from afar: Putting aside the fortunes of its football team, Elway could have found fault with every city.

 Eight people died in North Carolina traffic accidents during the weekend, including a 16-year-old Williamston girl killed when her car drove off a Martin County road, the state Highway Patrol said today.

Jamie N. Bowen died Saturday night when she drove her car at high speed off the road and overturned just south of Williamston, troopers said.

Also Saturday, Sylvester Lilley, 63, of Roper, was killed in Washington County when he failed to see a tractor-trailer crossing both James Woodrow Dawson, 16, of Pleasant Garden, was killed when the car in which he was riding drove off a rural road 6 miles south of Greensboro and struck a utility pole Saturday, the Highway Patrol reported.

In Haywood County, Stephen Lance Lenoir, 27, of Canton, was killed about 2 miles north of Canton when his car overturned on him after driving off a rural road Saturday afternoon.

Susan Nooney Cockrell, 23,

of Wendell, was killed in a head-on collision at 9:18 p.m. Saturday in Wake County. Troopers said the accident occurred 6 1/2 miles east of Neuse River.

A 50-year-old Chadbourn man died at 11:30 p.m. Saturday when he drove his car at high speed off N.C. 1504 and struck a ditch, 6 miles west of his hometown in Columbus County N.C. 1504. William Floyd Coleman was thrown from car, troopers said.

Morton John Kop, 17, of Durham died Friday night when the car he was driving at high speed ran off the Blue Ridge Parkway in Ashe County at Calloway Gap.

A Shannon man was killed just south of Red Springs when his car, traveling at high speed, ran off a Robeson County road and struck a ditch Friday night, the

FOCUS

Black Power

Tomorrow Philadelphia voters go to the polls to choose their mayoral candidates. The Democratic campaign has matched two-time mayor Frank Rizzo against W. Wilson Goode, the city's first seriously-accepted black mayoral candidate. Goode is the apparent front runner, and if he should win tomorrow's primary, he has an excellent chance of becoming mayor. More than 220 cities nationwide have black mayors—an indication that blacks have made significant gains in the political arena. Not all of these cities have large black populations. James Chase is mayor of Spokane, Washington where the population is less than 2 percent black, and in Abilene, Kansas where Elvin Bailey is mayor, the black population is less than 1 percent.

Mental Health Perspectives

QUESTION:
 My husband has been drinking throughout much of his teenage and adult years. In the past several years, I feel that it has become more of a problem. He has had several accidents and traffic violations because of his drinking. He denies alcohol is a problem because he is steadily employed and a good provider. Discussion of his drinking generally leads to an argument and him getting drunk. He has quit for periods up to 3 or 4 months and during these periods he is almost perfect. I can't understand why he drinks the way he does when he knows it will lead to trouble. What can I do? (Name withheld by request).

We have fantasies about what we want marriage to be and people are generally surprised when alcoholism develops, which may be the case demonstrated here. Generally all spouses tend to react in patterned and predictable ways when the other spouse becomes a victim of chemical dependence. As the chemically dependent person progresses to more harmful and compulsive use, the spouse's defense behavior also becomes compulsive and automatic. Rather than seeing and confronting the chemical problem, blaming takes place. The non-dependent spouse becomes locked into a rigid system and generally both partners feel helpless to control the chemical use. The non-dependent spouse begins to feel like the cause of the problem. Often, the non-dependent spouse develops medical and psychiatric problems from years of constant alertness, tension, confusion, fear, feelings of rejection, repressed anger, depression, self-pity and feeling trapped. It is vital for the non-dependent person to receive help in order to deal effectively with their family problem. I would encourage you to contact a substance abuse professional and to attend A-A-Non in order to receive help in dealing with your problem.

Jesse Jackson Opens Voter Registration Campaign

SOUTHERN CRUSADE — The Rev. Jesse Jackson makes a stop at the White Rock Baptist Church Sunday in Durham as part of a tour of N.C.

cities to register voters and put more blacks in elected office. (AP Laserphoto)

By JAMES GOGEK
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Registering 2 million eligible black voters could mean "retiring some boll weevils" and electing more blacks to office, the Rev. Jesse Jackson appealed to blacks Sunday.

"There's a freedom train a' coming, but you must register to ride. Get on board, get on board," Jackson chanted several times during his speech to an audience at St. Augustine's College.

Jackson made stops in the Triangle area in a kick-off of his southern black voters' registration drive, Operation PUSH's Southern Crusade.

Non-registered voters in the audience were asked to step up to the stage in revival-like fashion. Registrars took names of about 20 people while the audience applauded.

Jackson and other Southern Crusade officials are touring North Carolina cities this week in attempt to register about 200,000 voters. Jackson had scheduled appearances later Sunday in Wilson, Rocky Mount and Durham. The officials also will visit cities from Virginia to Mississippi.

The outcome of the southern voter drive could help determine whether a black will run for president in 1984, said Jackson, adding that he thinks a black candidate has "a real chance of winning."

Although he is "personally considering" a presidential bid, Jackson said it was "too early" to announce whether he or any other black would run.

"Many candidates have announced early. Since they run slow, they have to run long," he said.

Jackson went on to outline a political platform of issues for a new "coalition of the decent" — progressive white and black politicians he said would arise from an increase in black voters.

"Somebody must challenge the abuse in the military budget," he said. "And we must pursue corporate outlaws who get billions in tax breaks but don't re-invest in the economy."

He also said the government needs to "protect black and white workers from unfair overseas competition of slave labor."

Since the next Democratic Convention in San Francisco will be "50 percent female and about 20 percent black and Hispanic," Jackson said, "it won't perpetuate the all-white male seniority as in the past."

Much of Jackson's speech on increased black votership was aimed at raising blacks' prestige within the Democratic Party.

Attacking the use of large candidates, slate tickets and gerrymandering to keep blacks out of office, he said, "Once we get the votes, we will renegotiate our place in the Democratic Party."

Jackson said blacks are the "most loyal" of all Democrats and that many white candidates in the South couldn't get elected without their support.

He said Gov. Jim Hunt had "a limited future — unless we register."

But he said that when blacks give "en masse support to whites on a Democratic ticket, the whites must in turn support the mass of black voters."

An increase in black voters is most necessary in the South, because "the greatest need for change is in the South," Jackson said.

After a morning meeting, Jackson said Gov. Jim Hunt had agreed to push for legislation making high school personnel registrars so more high school seniors would sign up to vote.

Even Strangers Rallying Behind The DUI Victim

ANSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Friends and strangers across the nation are raising money to help an Anson County teen-ager injured last month after an allegedly drunken driver wrecked into his car.

Chad Paul, 16, remains unconscious and brain damaged at Moore Memorial Hospital in Pinehurst, while the man accused of ramming his car at 90 mph on April 22 is unhurt, out of jail and facing misdemeanor charges.

"He was so innocent, just sitting there in his car, minding his own business, and look what happened. It could have been anybody, but it was Chad," said his mother, Julie Paul, 36.

People have dropped coins and dollar bills into jars scattered across the county in stores to benefit the family. Several friends and relatives recently held a bake sale at two banks in Anson County and sponsored a cookout at the Ansonville Volunteer Fire Department to raise money for the Pauls.

Classmates at Bowman Senior High, have donated money. They also have begun a letter-writing campaign, urging District Attorney Carroll Lowder to deal sternly with defendants accused of drunken driving.

Chad's school friends have made a tape recording for him, which is played in his hospital room in hopes that familiar voices will help rouse him from unconsciousness. And county preachers have urged their congregations also to write Lowder.

"It's like everybody is family and they're showing us their love," Ms. Paul said last week in the hospital's intensive care waiting room.

Chad and a friend, who was not seriously injured, were in Chad's car sitting at a red light in Rockingham when the accident occurred. Police say the car that hit them was driven by Jerry Bernard Maness, 31, of Seagrove.

Maness was charged with driving under the influence, speeding 90 mph in a 45 mph zone, careless and reckless driving and failure to stop for a red light.

Chad's skull was fractured in two places and his brain was damaged as his head whipped around. Doctors have given the family no promises about his future.

Eel Plant Is Being Sold

FAIRFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Federal officials are selling an eel-processing plant in Hyde County that had been envisioned as an economic boon for the area before its failure.

The General Service Administration is seeking bids for the facilities, which include a large metal building, loading ramp, 12 holding tanks and freezer space. Built at a cost of about $368,000 in federal money, the plant operated for just a few months before it closed in 1977.

GSA property marketing specialist H.L. Cantrell said federal officials decided to dispose of the property because attempts to operate the business were unsuccessful and "it was no longer required for government use."

Richard D. Jonis, executive director of the Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association, said the plant failed because of a series of economic problems, including a power failure that caused the loss of 30,000 pounds of frozen eel and a severe winter that reduced the eel catch.

The plant was designed to provide income for seasonal farmworkers and for area fishermen. It was a project by the Community Services Administration and Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association, both federally funded agencies.

The only eel handling facility in North Carolina is located in Pamlico County. William Vanderplas said his company ships about 500,000 pounds of live eels to Europe each year.

Hospital Cut Room Rates

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Not only has Duke University Medical Center decided to hold the line on rates during the new fiscal year, but it has also cut some room rates.

Last year, Charlotte Memorial Hospital was believed to be the only teaching hospital in the country to hold the line on room rates. It hiked costs of ancillary (supporting) services by an average of 2. It possibly will hold the line on room rates again in the new budget year.

Dr. Andrew Wallace, chief executive officer of Duke hospital, said Duke would reduce the charge for a regular hospital room by $5 a day (though intensive care won't change). That means the average charge for a room at Duke will drop from $270 to $265.

Duke said its action comes in the face of nationwide hospital price increases averaging 12 a year.

"We are delighted that the hospital's budget has worked out this way," Wallace said. "The public benefits because they get what is generally acknowledged to be superb health care at a stable price and, where possible, at rates even lower than before."

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.

WHY REMOVE IMPACTED TEETH?

An impacted tooth is one that has not erupted through the gum (or only partly through the gum). More often than not, the honors go to "wisdom teeth." These third molars generally erupt during the teen years. They often grow forward and push against the adjacent molars causing pain and damage. The pressure may also crowd the front teeth.

Aside from possibly damaging other teeth, impacted third molars can cause other problems. A cyst can grow, possibly unnoticed, and damage adjacent teeth, the jaw bone and nerves.

Your dentist can study x-rays of the teeth and jaws, and can frequently tell by the teen years if the wisdom teeth are going to be impacted. At this stage, the wisdom teeth are less complicated to remove and healing is generally faster.

Unfortunately, impacted teeth can be "dormant" for years, but then cause trouble and pain at an unexpected or inconvenient time. That's why most dentists recommend their removal, even if they aren't causing trouble now. Removal of impacted teeth is considered preventive dentistry.

Dealer In Nazi Trinkets Jailed For Questioning On Diary Sale

By TAMARA JONES
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFURT, West Germy (AP) — Police have jailed the Nazi-relics merchant who provided the fake Hitler diaries and have seized some possessions of the reporter who bought the journals for Stern magazine. Hamburg state prosecutor office spokesman Peter Beck said Sunday that Stuttgart shopkeeper Konrad Jujau, 44, was in "investigative custody" and police were interrogating him in connection with the diaries hoax. No charges were filed, however.

Beck also disclosed that Stern reporter Gerd Heidemann's Hamburg home, office and yacht were searched over the weekend and some items confiscated, although he would not specify what.

German script used to pen the 62 volumes.

Beck said Jujau had not given authorities a formal statement. He was unable to explain the mysterious "Mr. Mirdorf" whom Kujau claims gave him the diaries in East Germany.

"We are investigating," he said, "but at this point we don't even know if this Mr. Mirdorf even exists."

Heidemann, 51, said Kujau was the middleman in the diaries deal. Both have insisted they believed the documents were authentic.

Kujau's apartment and Stuttgart shop were searched Friday and reporters saw investigators remove bags of books, pictures and papers. Beck said it could take investigators weeks to sift evidence and conduct tests.

A person answering Heidemann's telephone Sunday said the family was not home.

Stern and Heidemann say the $3.7 million was paid in several installments for the bogus journals. But Kujau says he received only about $1 million from Heidemann for the transaction and that he kept $125,000 as commission.

On Sunday, reporters at Stern staged a sit-in protest which they said would continue until the management removes two editors hired following disclosure of the hoax.

The staffers said the new editors — Johannes Gross and Peter Scholl-Latour — were conservatives likely to change the publication's liberal tone.

Reagan Coaxes Home Builders To Join Fight

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, silent in recent days on the economic damage of deficits, called on home builders today to help fight "the deficit doctors" and said "what they're ready to operate on is your wallet."

Concentrating on the budget one day after being criticized for not being involved in the budget battle, the president said "if the Congress can summon the discipline needed to rein in the budget monster, we can have the kind of hale and hearty recovery that could become a way of life again instead of just another blip on the boom and bust rollercoaster of the past."

The president made his comments in a speech prepared for delivery to a meeting of the National Association of Home Builders.

Reagan announced that he would ask Congress to provide $5 billion for Federal Housing Administration mortgage insurance this year. He said that in December, he won congressional approval for increasing the limit of such insurance by $6.1 billion.

"These F.H.A. increases will complement the rebound in housing activity and will accommodate homeowners who want to refinance their homes at the lower mortgage rates," the president said.

Reagan's emphasis on deficits was in marked contrast to a speech last Monday in Ashland, Ohio, where, in a litany of conservative causes, he did not mention the word "deficits." Martin Feldstein, the president's chief economic adviser, said he was not troubled by large deficits in 1984 and that the real problem was showing a decline in deficits in the second half of the decade.

Today, Reagan said deficits in the federal budget — projected to be in the $200 billion range — were the "one threat to the prosperity you have risked so much and worked so hard to achieve."

"There's a lot of moaning about deficits up in Capitol Hill, a lot of confusing talk about where they come from, and even some argument about how important they are," the president said. "Let there be no mistake about it: Deficits do matter. Deficit spending represents one of the most alarming dangers to our republic and to the prosperity of our people."

"Deficit spending and budget busting bail-outs are no solution," he said. "If we are to have long-term improvement in interest rates, the Congress needs to join in a bipartisan effort to cut irresponsible spending."

"The deficit doctors have their scalpels out all right, but they're not poised over the budget," the president said. "That's as fat as ever and getting fatter. What they're already to operate on is your wallet."

Earlier in the day, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes answered criticism by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and said Reagan had been involved in the current budget work for nine months.

"It's time for the president to become a participant in the budget process," said Dole, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, on Sunday.

Speakes, mentioning no names, volunteered that "just because they want to raise taxes, they want to say the president is not involved. I say 'not so.'"

Asked specifically if he was referring to Dole, Speakes said "if the shoe fits, wear it. I didn't single anyone out by name."

He also said that he was reflecting the president's view.

Defending Reagan's role in the budget process, the spokesman said "he's had his people meeting with Domenici and others." Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., is chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

Bucks Get 'Little' Help

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks are still alive in the playoffs, thanks to the smallest player in the National Basketball Association.

Charlie Criss, a 5-foot-8 reserve guard, sank nine of 10 free throws, including four in the last 11 seconds Sunday. He also contained Philadelphia playmaker Maurice Cheeks as the Bucks defeated the 76ers 100-94 in the Eastern Conference playoff finals.

The 76ers lead the best-of-seven series 3-1 and can clinch with a victory in Philadelphia Wednesday night. But while no team in NBA history has won a series after having been down 3-0, the Bucks regained a large measure of confidence after three narrow defeats.

"This is nothing but positive because we were overdue," Bucks' forward Alton Lister said. "We were playing them close and losing in the last minutes. Today we got over the hump, and Charlie had a lot to do with that."

"Charlie Criss has a heart as big as Bob Lanier's feet," Bucks' Coach Don Nelson said.

That would be size 18½ EEE, and Criss' prominence was proportionately large. Besides helping to hold Cheeks to 4-of-14 shooting, he directed the Bucks' offense which played at a faster tempo than in previous playoff games.

"My role is to get us going, to spark us," said Criss, who played a season-high 34 minutes. "We wanted to set a little quicker tempo to get more of a flow. That created more isolation situations for our shooters."

"Defensively, I tried to beat Cheeks to position and turn him all the way around the floor so he couldn't dribble a straight path," he said. "We wanted to make them eat some clock so they would have less time to get the ball to their big guns."

"Charlie was really active," Bucks' Coach Don Nelson said. "I decided to use him a little more today because it's no secret that Brian Winters has trouble with Cheeks."

"You look mainly for Winters to shoot," Cheeks said. "Criss gives them another look because he can penetrate as well as shoot."

Lanier, the former All-Star center who may retire because of damaged knees, contributed 17 points in 31 minutes in his second game in as many days. Lanier also helped check 76ers' center Moses Malone, whose 17 points and 12 rebounds were well below his averages.

"This could have been my last game," Lanier said. "I wanted to be productive."

"People had written us off and sent us to the funeral parlor," he said. "We said the heck with it. If we were going to go down, we wanted to be competitive. We were going to be sure we wouldn't be embarrassed."

"They beat us down the stretch the same way we beat them in the other three games," 76ers' Coach Billy Cunningham said. "They were very aggressive defensively and created things with their defense. We allowed them second opportunities on the boards and we weren't able to convert."

Andrew Toney scored nine of his 24 points in the third quarter to help the 76ers open a 73-66 lead, but the Bucks took the lead to stay at 89-88 on a baseline jumper by Marques Johnson with 4:42 to play.

Lanier tipped in a rebound moments later, then slapped the ball away from Malone. Paul Pressey retrieved the loose ball and fed Sidney Moncrief for a layup for a 93-88 Bucks' lead. A hook by Lanier made it 95-88 with 1:42 left.

Two baskets by Julius Erving and two free throws by Toney pulled the 76ers to within 96-94 with 11 seconds left, but Criss clinched the Bucks' victory with his four free throws.

Shot Clock Changes In ACC Cage Rules

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — A 45-second shot clock for next season is expected to receive the approval of Atlantic Coast Conference hierarchy, but a box to restrict basketball coaches' sideline movements may be in trouble.

The league's coaches met Sunday in conjunction with the ACC's annual meetings, with discussions including recommendations for rules changes.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association Rules Committee voted in April to allow conferences to choose two of five rules to use experimentally, with each rule available to only two conferences. No conference is allowed to use both a shot clock and three-point field goal.

Last year the ACC used a 30-second shot clock and a 19-foot, 3-point field goal, making its experiments the most radical of those used by 14 conferences.

The coaches met in April to form their recommendations. If approved Tuesday by league officials, an application to use those rules will be forwarded to the NCAA, which will announce its decision on the request Sept. 15.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said he expected little problem gaining approval from the league's athletic directors and faculty representatives for the 45-second shot clock, which is shut off the final 4 minutes.

However, the fate of the coaches' box is in doubt.

"We had some discussions on the coaches' box," Krzyzewski said. "It may come out where it (application to the NCAA) might be for just the clock."

Problems developed with the coaches' box because its dimensions and exact location have not been defined. Coaches feared there would be too much emphasis placed on the box, Krzyzewski said.

Fred Barakat, supervisor of ACC officials, said the coaches' box should not be needed.

Spurs Slide, Lakers Lead 3-1

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — It was a "must win" game for the San Antonio Spurs and they didn't, but guard George Gervin cautions not to take the Spurs out of the NBA championship picture yet.

The Los Angeles Lakers need only one more win to clinch their Western Conference final series with the Spurs and move on to the National Basketball Association title game.

Los Angeles snuffed out a fourth-quarter San Antonio rally Sunday to grab a 129-121 playoff win and jump to a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

"The game kind of slipped away in the last four minutes," said Gervin, who finished with 20 points. "They made some easy hoops and some fast breaks. I'm confident we can beat them."

Game five shifts to Los Angeles on Wednesday, where the defending NBA champion Lakers will continue their quest to become the first team to win consecutive titles since the Boston Celtics did it in 1968-69.

"The Lakers came out here ready to play — the way we should have," San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck said.

Los Angeles' Earvin "Magic" Johnson played true to his nickname Sunday, racking up a team-high 31 points, 17 assists and eight rebounds. He was in double figures in those categories Friday.

The Lakers' Michael Cooper and San Antonio's Gene Banks were ejected with 11:01 left in the game when they got into a shoving match at Los Angeles' end of the court and had to be pulled off each other.

Earlier, Cooper and the Spurs' Edgar Jones exchanged heated words and were warned to cool down or head for the dressing room.

The Spurs battled back to whittle a 12-point halftime deficit to two at the end of the third quarter with the help of 10 third-period points from Mike Mitchell, who was game-high with 35 points, and 11 points from center Artis Gilmore.

Gervin was held to eight points in the first half, four in each quarter, and the Spurs trailed 71-59 at halftime. San Antonio was behind 36-29 after one period.

The Spurs tied the game 98-98 with a Billy Paultz jumper that opened the scoring in the final period, but Los Angeles built up a nine-point pocket, 120-111, with 2:45 left in the game.

Mitchell hit a three-pointer to cut the lead to eight with 2:10 remaining, but the Spurs got no closer the rest of the way.

The Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points and grabbed six rebounds, to Gilmore's 19 points and nine rebounds. Jamaal Wilkes finished with 25 points for the Lakers, while Bob McAdoo had 14 and Nixon 13. Cooper scored 12 points for Los Angeles before he was thrown out of the game. Johnny Moore, playing with a painful bruised left calf, finished with 21 points and 17 assists. Banks had 11 before he was ejected.

Colbert Wins Playoff

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Time and again, Jim Colbert heard a voice from the crowd telling him: "You can get him, kid. It ain't no big deal."

Well, the guy was half right. It took six holes of a sudden death playoff Sunday before Colbert gunned down Fuzzy Zoeller to win the $400,000 Colonial National Invitation golf championship.

Pirates Sign First Baseball Recruit

East Carolina University baseball coach Hal Baird signed his first recruit of 1983, Eastern Wayne High School standout Steve Sides.

Sides, a 5-9 160-pound second baseman, won the Gold Glove Award at Eastern Wayne for defensive excellence all three years with the Warriors with a cumulative .963 fielding percentage. He batted .378 while earning all-conference honors three consecutive years.

The 1982 Eastern Wayne team placed second in the state with a 24-4 record, and the 1983 unit leads the Midwestern Conference going into the final week.

"Steve was a very highly recruited player by all of the area major college teams," said Baird. "We're delighted that he signed with East Carolina."

"He's the type player that can provide help right away. I fully expect Steve to contend for starting position next year, as he runs well and hits well."

"Steve is not only an outstanding baseball player, but an outstanding student. He's a solid 'A' student and scored 1,100 on the college boards."

An honor student, Sides is a member of the Beta Club and the National Honor Society.

The most decorated Lady Pirate in ECU history, Denkler's latest award comes on the heels of the announcement of her winning an NCAA post-graduate scholarship, as well as being named first team all-America. Sunday, she was named as the Daily Reflector's Female Collegiate Athlete of the Year.

The Christenbury Award is voted upon by members of the Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety, and the Department of Athletics. The award is in memory of the late John Christenbury, killed in World War II, after coaching football at East Carolina in 1940 and 1941. His 1941 club is the only unbeaten and united team in school history.

Farm Scene

By MIRIAM NANCE
Agricultural Extension Agent

There have been many questions lately concerning horse pastures. The principles of managing pasture for horses is much the same as for beef and dairy cattle. Two acres per mature horse will provide a pasture system that can furnish enough feed and provide adequate space for exercise and parasite control.

Horse owners must decide whether to establish permanent or temporary pastures. After this decision has been made they can choose the proper forage type for their situation. There are various permanent forages to choose from but a mix of cool-season and warm-season plants will lengthen the grazing season and provide an even supply of forage. For example, fescue-clover pasture will provide cool-season grazing during March through mid-June and from mid-September through November. Bermudagrass will provide grazing from June to mid-September.

Temporary horse pastures can be planted and utilized within a six to nine-month period. The most common temporary pastures are winter annuals such as rye and ryegrass.

There are several forage types that are more suitable for horse pastures than others. Contact Miriam Nance, Pitt County Extension Agent, for further pasture information at 752-2934.

Some Top Yields Expected For 1983

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although farmers are cutting back crop acreages substantially this year, there are indications they also may produce some top yields from the remaining land planted for the 1983 harvest.

The Agriculture Department last week estimated the winter wheat crop at 1.89 billion bushels, down 10 percent from 1982. But yields were predicted at a record high of 40.2 bushels per acre, up from 36.1 bushels last year.

Production of corn and most other spring-planted crops will not be estimated officially by USDA until August. Meanwhile, outlook specialists have projected some 1983 crop production figures, based on trends, weather and the law of averages.

The corn harvest, for example, currently is projected at 6.05 billion bushels, down 28 percent from the record 1982 harvest of 8.4 billion bushels.

Soybean output could be around 2.08 billion bushels, down about 9 percent from last year's 2.28 billion bushels.

The figures, which were included in a new supply-and-demand analysis, were said to be "highly tentative" and subject to wide variability.

But if tradition is any guide, farmers probably are taking their least-productive land from production this year under the government's program to reduce output.

If so, that means the best land still will be producing crops in 1983, and those per-acre yields — as the winter wheat estimates show — could be startling if farmers get another good growing season.

This spring has been wet and cool in many parts of the country, which has delayed field work in some key production areas. As of May 8, for example, only 19 percent of the expected corn acreage had been planted, compared to 47 percent a year earlier.

Michael McEndree, weather department manager for Cargill Inc., says that the late spring has raised concern about crop prospects.

"If planting is late, crops will be more susceptible to hot temperatures during pollination and more vulnerable to an early fall frost," McEndree writes in a recent Cargill Bulletin report.

"However, late planting is no guarantee of below-normal yields, as evidenced by the past two years, when summer and fall weather was excellent."

McEndree noted that May is the primary month for planting corn and soybeans, and that "even in the best years, the entire month of May generally is needed to get crops planted" in the major production areas.

"During the wettest of seasons, farmers rarely have been prevented from getting their crops in the ground by the end of the first week of June," he said.

"There is perhaps too much attention given to wet springs and needless worry about farmers' ability to plant crops. After all, wet springs create excellent soil-moisture reserves, which are an asset to crops once they start growing."

Stokes Man Fatally Injured

Robert Parker, 24 of Stokes, was fatally injured in a 4:59 p.m. collision Sunday, on N.C. 33, 6.9 miles west of Greenville, the N.C. Highway Patrol reported today.

Officers said Parker, driving a motorcycle, was attempting to pass a car when the vehicle went out of control and skidded into the path of an oncoming car driven by Doris Mae Thomas of Greenville.

Parker, taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment, died about 6:51 p.m. of internal injuries he received in the crash.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $1,900, while damage to the Thomas car was estimated at $1,800.

Productivity Study Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resources for the Future, a nonprofit research group based in Washington, says it will use a $300,000 grant provided by the Rockefeller Foundation for a three-year study of long-range productivity issues in U.S. agriculture.

Kenneth R. Farrell, director of the organization's food and agricultural policy program, will head the project. He said the goals will be to determine the sources of growth in productivity in recent decades and then use that knowledge to assess possible future changes.

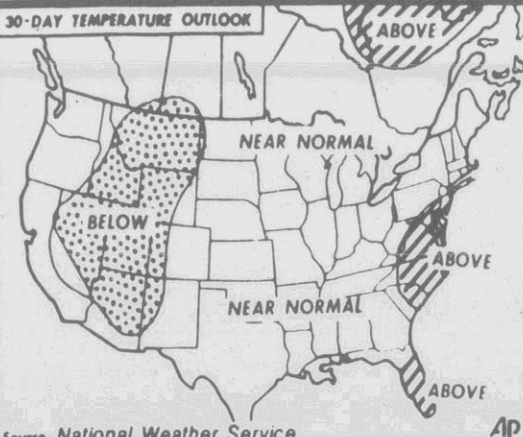

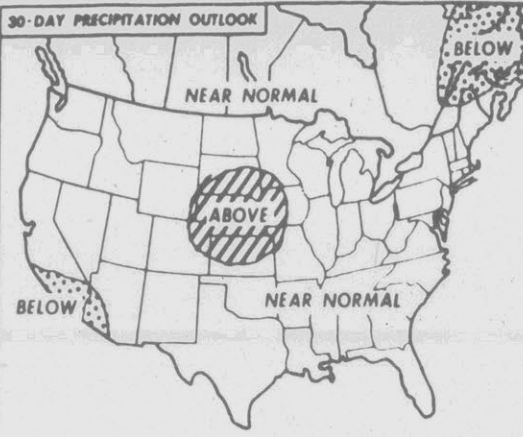

"Despite dramatic growth in agricultural productivity and current large supplies of commodities, we cannot be sure that past growth rates will be sustained into the future," Farrell said.

"The possibility exists that future expansion of agriculture to meet rising global demands for food and fiber into the 21st century may exert real pressure on our stock of currently available technology and natural resources."

In that case, he added, there would be "consequent effects on productivity and the quality of natural resources and the environment."

The project will assess those possibilities and their implications for public policy.

Various Items On P-Z Agenda

Three rezoning requests and three preliminary subdivision plats are among the agenda items scheduled for consideration at Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission.

The rezoning petitions were submitted by: Ralph C. Tucker Jr. to rezone 72.71 acres, located south of Greenville Athletic Club and Oakmont Square, west of N.C. 43, from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to office and institutional, R-6 (residential-high density), and shopping center;

William Shivers to rezone 1.057 acres, located north of State Road 1421, east of State Road 1401, south of John Hardy's property and N.C. 33, from RA-20 to neighborhood commercial, and by Samuel Roberts, and others, to rezone 3.6 acres, located south of Mumford Road and Greenville Utilities property, from industrial to R6-MH (residential-mobile home).

The board will consider preliminary plats for: Oakmont Office Center, located on the west side of N.C. 43 just south of Oakmont Drive; phase two of Doctors' Park Apartments, located west of Arlington Boulevard, adjacent to phase one; and for court F of Twin Oaks Townhomes, located at the southeast corner of the intersection of Laura Lane and David Drive.

Other items include: a request by Bobby Parker, pastor of Temple Free Will Baptist Church, to increase the size of informational signs for churches; a proposal to extend the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction in the area east of Greenville Boulevard, N.E., around Eaton Corp.; discussion of a meeting to be held with the Pitt County Planning Board in reference to the extraterritorial boundary; and proposed zoning ordinance update.

The meeting will be held in the third floor council chambers at city hall.

Top Tasting Honor For Vidalia Onion

VIDALIA, Ga. (AP) — It was enough to make true believers misty-eyed — the local onion once again took top honors in the world series of onion-tasting.

"Vidalia is still the champ," said Harry Moses, a contractor who served as chief chef for the second annual onion taste-off between the Vidalia onion of Georgia and the Walla Walla onion of Washington state.

Vidalia onions had 105 points and Walla Walla sweets 81 points when the 10 judges — five each from Georgia and Washington — finished choosing Saturday between dishes prepared identically except for the onions.

"In defense of the Walla Walla onion, their season does not start until late summer," Moses said. "So the onions they brought down here were not their best ones."

The interstate competition started last year, when a delegation of Vidalia onion growers and boosters traveled to Walla Walla to match their onions against the western variety for the unofficial title of sweetest onions.

in the world. The Vidalia onion won that one, too.

In the latest competition, each judge was served two identical dishes — except for the onions — in each of the five courses of the taste-off. Each judge awarded three points to the better tasting of the two dishes, with the other dish getting zero points unless the judge felt there was very little difference between the two. Then, the judge could award one point to the second dish.

"It was blind testing," Moses said. "They didn't know which were which. Not even the cooks knew which dish contained which onions. I was the only one who knew."

The Walla Walla onion boosters immediately asked for a rematch next year, and participants are talking about a taste-off on a neutral table, probably in St. Louis or Kansas City, Moses said.

AAM Has Own Biweekly Paper

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Agriculture Movement Inc. now has its own biweekly newspaper, a tabloid-size journal that replaces the farm group's Washington Newsletter.

In the first issue, dated May 3, the AAM Reporter said it will also include reports from state organizations, along with other news and comments that affect members and farmers in general.

"There is a tremendous need for communication among farmers," the group said. "Information on legislation which affects our farming operations is critical. We cannot effectively lobby unless we know what to lobby for."

In one item, the publication had this advice:

"Call the White House if you have the urge to tell President Reagan what is on your mind. Special telephone line to the White House operates weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Eastern Time, and after the televised presidential speeches. The number is 202-456-7639 ... and is not toll free."

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦87532 ♦J9653 ♦1076
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?

What do you bid now?
A.—Since three clubs would be forcing, partner's jump to four clubs shows a second suit and slam ambitions. With four good trumps, an ace and a ruffing value, you have no reason to be ashamed of your hand. Indeed, we recommend that you cooperate with partner's slam effort, especially since you can do so below the level of game. Bid four diamonds.

Q.5-As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦542 ♦1093 ♦87 ♦AKQ62
The bidding has proceeded: North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Despite the fact that your holding in hearts looks better than that in spades, you must take a preference to partner's first bid suit. It is quite probable that partner has five spades and only four hearts. Bid two spades. Forget about clubs—the only future for that suit is as a source of tricks at no trump.

Q.6-As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ5 ♦AKJ106 ♦KJ8 ♦K5
The bidding has proceeded: South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner's raise to game is preemptive, not strength-showing. Like all preemptive actions, it denies a hand that contains two aces. Since you know that your side has at least two fast losers, any move toward slam by you is asking for trouble—it could result in five hearts down one.

In addition, the Coast Guard said the cutter Point Huron will be stationed at the Chincoteague station to see if the incident reoccurred.

Lightning Felled 9 Spectators

Police Col. Robert Conschak said lightning apparently struck the victims as they walked across an open

Gunmen Guarding A Sunken Coal Ship

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Gunmen aboard a vessel off the Virginia coast have ordered three divers away from the site where a coal ship sank in February, a diver has told the Coast Guard.
The 605-foot coal ship, the Marine Electric, sank 30 miles off Chincoteague in stormy weather Feb. 12 and is resting below more than 100 feet of water. Only three of the ship's 34 crewmen survived.
"we don't know who they are," said an unidentified Coast Guard spokesman at the Fifth District Rescue Coordinations Center in Portsmouth, Va. "Five persons aboard a vessel were ordering people away from the scene with weapons."

Three divers from the company insuring the ship's cargo were on the scene Saturday. A diver told the Coast Guard that the crew on a 60- to 80-foot boat ordered the divers to leave.
"They went on ahead and made one dive and weapons appeared on deck," the spokesman said.
Sunday afternoon, the Coast Guard cutter Point field between the grandstand and horse stalls around 4:30 p.m. Sunday, shortly after the race ended.

Killed in the electrical storm were a 34-year-old man and a 22-year-old woman, both from Westminster. Police said their names were withheld pending notification of relatives.

William Eddy, 48, and his 14-year-old son, Brian, both of Seaford, were in fair condition Sunday at Kent General Hospital, hospital spokesmen said. Eddy's 16-year-old son, Steven, was treated and released, along with four other victims.

North Korea Lifts Alert

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea said today it has ended a "semi-war" alert that had been in effect since the start of joint U.S.-South Korea military exercises on Feb. 1.

The Communist nation's state-run Korean Central News Agency said in a dispatch monitored in Tokyo that North Korean President Kim Il Sung canceled the alert. It did not specify when.

"The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist clique, their lackey, could not dare pounce on us," the North Korean news agency said. "Needless to say, the lifting of the semi-war state does not mean the removal of the danger of war on the Korean Peninsula."

Kim declared the emergency as a response to what he called "offensive, provocative maneuvers" — a reference to the U.S.-South Korean exercises conducted from Feb. 1 through mid-April.

The joint exercise, called Team Spirit '83, involved about 188,000 military personnel, including 70,000 Americans. The eighth annual exercise was described as one of the largest held in the non-communist world.

The United States has maintained a large military presence in South Korea since the 1950-53 Korean War.
