AWARDS PRESENTED ... Gov. Jim Hunt, center, presented the Governor's Award for Excellence Thursday to Dayton C. Gates of Rougemont, Shafter Manuel Jr. of Dudley, Kenneth W. Yow of Chapel Hill and E.R. "Pete" Caraway of Greenville. The award is the most prestigious a state employee can receive.

Carraway One Of Four To Get Excellence Award

RALEIGH — E.R. "Pete" Caraway of Greenville was one of four state employees to receive the "Governor's Award for Excellence" Thursday for exceptional service.

The award is considered to be the most prestigious recognition available for a state employee.

Caraway's was cited for outstanding public service. At 64, he supervises 12 offices of the Department of Revenue in 22 eastern North Carolina counties.

A past president of the N.C. State Employees Association and presently an adviser to the state president, Caraway has been active on the Greenville Planning and Zoning Board, president of the city PTA Council and president of the Optimist Club, and was Greenville Optimist of the Year in 1966.

He helped organize the Oakmont Baptist Church 20 years ago, has served as chairman of the State Personnel Commission, and is presently a member of the advisory board of the Greenville branch of the State Employees Credit Union.

Other recipients of the award Thursday were Dayton G. Gates of Rougemont, Shafter Manuel Jr. of Dudley and Kenneth W. Yow of Chapel Hill.

Gates, 55, maintenance supervisor at C.A. Dillon School, was cited for innovations that helped increase government productivity, while Manuel, 54, a machine operator at Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, was recognized for heroism after he risked his life to save a woman trapped inside a burning house in July 1982.

Yow, 31, who works for the school of social work at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, received his award for devotion to duty after spending an average of 570 hours of work per year without pay.

The four winners were chosen by state employees who make up the Governor's Commission on Recognition of State Employees from 48 nominations. Eight awards may be presented each year, but the commission chose to make only four awards.

Nominations may be based on devotion to duty, outstanding

FAMILY OF FIVE LOST ALL IN FIRE

Roger and Ann Harris of Simpson lost everything they had in a fire Tuesday night. They have three small daughters who wear size 9-12 months, size 2 and size 4. Their shoe sizes are 5 and 8½. Mrs. Harris wears size 10 pants and size 8 shoes; her husband, size 31 waist, 32 length and 8½ shoe.

The Simpson Fire Department asks that anyone having clothing or household goods to share with this family contact them or the Harrises at the home of her mother, Mrs. Helen Bissette, 752-7370. Items may be taken to the fire department or to Mrs. Bissette's.

YARD SALE DONATIONS ASKED

The Pitt County Humane Society has asked Hotline to appeal for donations for a yard sale to be held May 28 at Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

Anyone who has items to donate is asked to contact Bobbie Parsons, 756-1268, or Janet Uhlman, 756-3251. All donations are tax-deductible.

Fulford Plans Year's Leave From College

A personnel committee of the Pitt Community College Board of Trustees will probably meet next week, a source close to the board has said, to begin deliberation on who will be interim president of the college on June 1 when PCC President William E. Fulford Jr. begins a leave of absence.

PCC trustees on Thursday granted Fulford a one-year leave of absence effective June 1. Board Chairman C.W. Everett Sr. said the board will appoint an acting president by that date to serve during Fulford's absence.

Sources close to the board said this morning no discession on who the acting president will be has taken place and that deliberation will likely begin next week in

Budget Approved By Senate; 50-49 Vote

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-led Senate, in bold defiance of President Reagan, has ended three weeks of tumultuous budget debate by narrowly approving a 1984 spending and revenue plan which would permit a $9.9 billion tax increase next year, and $75 billion over the next three years.

In a dramatic 50 to 49 roll call vote minutes before midnight Thursday, the Senate gave a stunning victory to a small band of tenacious Republican moderates and minority Democrats who said attacking swelling federal deficits with higher taxes is the key to economic recovery.

Their opponents, led by Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., argued for higher defense spending and against any budget which threatened all or part of this year's 10 percent income tax cut.

The debate, spiced with acrid partisan battles, will likely set the agenda for the 1984 congressional and presidential elections.

At the very least, the Senate budget resolution sets up tough negotiations with members of the Democratically-controlled House, which previously approved a budget plan with far higher taxes and a far-slower defense buildup over the next five years.

The final budget blueprint left the Senate after a tense day of wild, seasaw legislative battles in which the outcome was in doubt until the very end.

The winning plan was drafted by freshman GOP Sen. Slade Gorton of Washington and was approved only after the Senate had taken nine previous roll call votes on budget alternatives of wide extremes.

They included an unsuccessful proposal by conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., for a 10 percent across-the-board cut in spending except for defense and Social Security, and an effort by Republicans to force Senate Democrats to vote on the high tax-low military spending budget approved by the House.

Baker finally let the budget he and Reagan strongly opposed go through the Senate, because to block it further would have shattered the congressional budget process.

The majority leader said he was determined to have the Senate pass a budget, even if it was one he didn't support, and personally called for a second vote on Gorton's plan.

Twice before, including once earlier Thursday night, the Senate rejected the same proposal it ended up approving, and then only after there was serious danger of no 1984 budget blueprint passing at all.

One of the plan's main GOP supporters, Robert T. Stafford of Vermont, said, "This was the last train out of the station and there was nothing else to follow. We either had the compromise or nothing."

Baker had fought hard to defeat the Gorton plan and its passage is the worst defeat he has suffered since being elected as leader after Republicans took control of the Senate in the 1980 elections.

Baker was beaten by an uneasy coalition of about 20 moderate Republicans and most of the 46 Senate Democrats.

The outcome demonstrates the growing strength of the GOP moderates in the Senate, many of whom face re-election in 1984.

The Gorton proposal would:

— Permit a 6 percent military buildup over inflation next year, compared with Reagan's original 10 percent proposal.

— When defeat of the 10 percent figure was imminent, Reagan tactically accepted a 7.5 percent military increase, but said he would go no lower.

— Allow $12.5 billion more in spending on domestic social programs than Reagan had urged, including more money for education and federal health care and housing programs.

— Call for tax increases of $9.9 billion in fiscal year 1984, $13.7 billion in 1985 and $51 billion in 1986.

— Project deficits of $178 billion in 1984, dropping to $130 billion by 1988.

A rival plan supported by Baker and Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, would have permitted tax increases of $8.3 billion over the next two years, a 7.1 percent defense increase and about the same level of non-military domestic spending.

Under that plan, deficits were projected at $192.4 billion in 1984 and $185 billion in 1985, then would shoot up to $220 billion in 1988.

It was defeated twice Thursday, by votes of 56 to 43 and 57 to 43.

Although Reagan has sharply criticized his budget opponents over the last week, he does not actually sign into law or veto the spending plan which Congress eventually approves.

But the budget plan sets ceilings on taxes and spending for other congressional committees, and legislation they produce goes to the White House for Reagan to either sign into law or veto.

Habib Steps Up Efforts To Reverse Syria Stand

By The Associated Press

U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib shuttled back to Egypt today in his campaign to reverse Syria's opposition to the Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal pact. But sources in Damascus said Syria will mount its own diplomatic counter-offensive.

Habib arrived in Cairo from Saudi Arabia where he was believed to have urged King Fahd to use his financial clout with Syria to get Syrian troops out of Lebanon. A Syrian withdrawal would clear the way for the pullout of Israeli forces from Lebanon.

Habib made a one-hour refueling stop in Cairo Thursday on his way from Lebanon to Saudi Arabia. Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Habib will now brief the Egyptians on the outcome of his talks with Lebanese and Saudi leaders and future American peacemaking moves.

Sources in Damascus, who requested anonymity, said two senior Syrian government envoys will be dispatched on a tour of Arab capitals to explain Syria's opposition to the Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement.

The sources said Information Minister Ahmad Iskandar Ahmad and the minister of state for foreign affairs, Farouk Chareh, would undertake the tour as personal envoys of President Hafez Assad.

Details of the ministers' itinerary were not available.

Syria has refused to receive Habib, and he went instead to Saudi Arabia, whose longtime financial support of Syria gives it considerable leverage over the Damascus government.

Habib conferred with Egyptian and Saudi officials Thursday and plans to visit Jordan as part of an urgent Middle East shuttle to soften Syria's intransigence.

The Israeli-Lebanese accord calls for Israel to withdraw its 25,000 troops from Lebanon when Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization pull out their forces.

While not a formal peace treaty, the agreement ends the state of war between Israel and Lebanon, in effect making Lebanese President Amin Gemayel's government the second in the Arab world to recognize Israel. Egypt and Israel normalized relations in 1979.

Syria and the PLO contend the accord threatens Lebanese sovereignty, endangers Syrian security and damages Arab solidarity. The Syrians have said they will refuse to withdraw their 40,000 troops from Lebanon and have vowed unspecified retaliation against Gemayel's government for signing the pact.

Israel invaded Lebanon last June to smash PLO guerrilla bases. The Syrians have been in Lebanon since the Arab League gave them a mandate to police the armistice that halted the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war. An estimated 10,000 to 12,000 PLO guerrillas are deployed behind Syrian lines.

In other Mideast developments:

— A public opinion poll published today by the Israeli newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth showed 75 percent of Israelis support the Lebanon-Israel agreement, but 59 percent also believe Lebanon cannot be relied on to implement its part of the accord. The Dahaf Agency's poll of 1,184 people was conducted in the week prior to signing.

— PLO sources in Damascus said Thursday that a rebellion by 320 PLO troops in Lebanon opposed to the moderate leadership of chairman Yasser Arafat has been quelled. The sources, who asked not to be identified, claimed commanders had stopped the mutiny without violence.

They said the mutiny began last week when the rebellious fighters demanded that Arafat and members of his dominant Fatah faction end dialogue with moderate Arab states and disavow any peace talks with Israel.

Though Fatah officially discounted reports of a serious mutiny, it confirmed Arafat made at least three trips to east Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, where many PLO troops are deployed, to stop the insubordination.

— In Rome, Lebanese Foreign Minister Elie Salem conferred with his Italian counterpart Emilio Colombo as part of a European shuttle to get more troops for the multinational force in Lebanon. The force is composed of 5,400 U.S., Italian, French and British soldiers.

— In Strasbourg, France, Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres said Israeli forces should withdraw from Lebanon in three months, even if Syria and the PLO do not.

At a news conference at the European Parliament, the head of the Israeli Labor Party also described the Israeli-Lebanese agreement as imperfect.

The Answer?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Researchers think they've found a way to help corn crops grow faster, but don't know how long it will last.

You'll only have to wait the lawn once a month, so said Dr. Jack Marcel, who's working on a new plant growth regulator that can be applied to grasses and other plants a few times a year.

What he's looking for is what we want to call Marcel's head of the research, the Monsanto Agricultural Products Co. says.

Scientists have been working on the concept for about eight years, but the early experimental versions tended to thin out lawns and turn the grass brown, Marcel said.

The new product, which is now being tested, stunts growth of the blades while enhancing growth in the root system. As a result, lawns grow thick and green, he said Thursday.

Marcel said the chemical should be available by 1985 for use along highways and possibly at golf courses where the stronger root systems could help prevent erosion.

And, he said, it should be on sale for residential use a couple of years later.

Sew Smart Seminar

Do your clothes have that "loving hands at home" look? Do your collars have "bumps" at the front edges? Do your facings play "peek-a-boo" and have "lumps" at the tops of zippers? Do you have problems with the lapel notch? Solve these and many other problems by attending a Sew Smart Seminar sponsored by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service and the Extension Homemakers Association Thursday, June 2, and Friday, June 3, at Jaycee Park, 2000 Cedar Lane in Greenville.

Clotilde, author of SEW SMART WITH WOVENS, KNITS AND ULTRA SUEDE, will conduct the seminar. She worked for several years in the wardrobe department of 20th Century Fox Film Studios and sewed for Beverly Hills boutique shops making alterations on very expensive garments. As a result, she discovered many designer and manufacturer techniques not shown in the pattern instructions.

Clotilde taught for eight years in an exclusive fabric store in Los Angeles teaching sewing with knits, advanced sewing, lingerie, tailoring, and Ultra Suede classes. In the process of making over 100 Ultra Suede garments, she developed unique "sanity saving" techniques for constructing garments when using the flat method.

Clotilde has traveled extensively in the United States and England lecturing to thousands of women in fabric stores, Extension Offices, schools, and universities on the easy ways to achieve the professional look of expensive ready-to-wear. She is known as a teacher of teachers. One of her goals is to teach women how to avoid the "loving hands at home" look.

The Thursday seminar, from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m., will be "Sew for the $500 Look" covering manufacturers' tricks of the trade and designer techniques not shown in pattern instructions sheets. Whether you've sewn 3 months or 30 years, you will learn dozens of useful and practical sewing tips to give you clothes the professional look of the finest ready-to-wear. Registration is $5.00.

The Friday seminar will be from 9 a.m. until noon and resume until from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. The morning session will be a repeat of Thursday evening. The afternoon session will be on "Smart Tailoring." Clotilde will show how easy it is to tailor jackets with a professional look. You'll learn how to select and apply fusible and non-fusible interfacing, apply shoulder pads, and sleeve heads for perfect set-in sleeves, make invisibly stitched patch pockets, easily construct double welt pockets, and lining and topstitching techniques that give the custom look. Current patterns and fabrics will also be discussed. Two collar applications are shown: the woman's "stitch and turn" technique using self fabric for the undercollar, and the use of melton or Ultra Suede for the undercollar as is used on a man's tailored jacket, thereby achieving a flat collar notch. Friday registration is $10.00.

Space is limited so make your reservation soon - the last day of register is Friday, May 27. Make checks payable to "Pitt County EHA" and mail to Sew Smart Seminar, Agricultural Extension Service, 1717 W. Fifth Street, Greenville 27834. Call 752-2934 for more information.

Shower Given For Couple

A miscellaneous shower was given for Glenda Stancill, bride-elect of Kent Butler, by friends and family at the Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Miss Stancill was given a corsage of yellow daisies and the mothers were given corsages of white daisies.

The buffet table was covered with a lace trimmed cloth decorated with a centerpiece of pink carnations. The fellowship hall was decorated with roses and greenery.

Engagements Announced

SHARON ANN SCOTT...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Scott of Kinston, who announce her engagement to Joseph Kirby Loftin, son of Mrs. Martha S. Loftin and Leonard Loftin of Kinston. A July 4 wedding is planned.

TRUDY LYNN STOCKS...is the daughter of Mrs. Vivian R. Barker of Route 4, Greenville, who announces her engagement to Jeffrey Paul Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fleming of Greenville and Mrs. Earline Burrell of Salem, Va. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Lewis Stocks Jr. The wedding is planned for June 11.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Mary Beth Carraway of Snow Hill, bride-elect of Thomas Peter Butler of Greenville, was honored with a surprise miscellaneous shower Sunday given by Liz and Dora Butler, sisters of the bridegroom-elect at the home of Mrs. Herbert Oliver, hostess.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. George Iaboni and Mrs. Oliver. The honoree was remembered with a corsage of white daisies. Mrs. Tommie Carraway, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Thomas Butler Jr., mother of the bridegroom-elect, received corsages of red roses.

The buffet table, in the dining room, was covered with a white cutwork linen cloth and decorated with a three branch candelabra holding white candles with an arrangement of white snapdragons and yellow daisies. Magnolia blossoms decorated the cake table. The sisters of the bridegroom-elect assisted in serving.

Special guests included the bride's mother, her sister, Mrs. Vance Walston, and her aunt, Litha Carraway of Snow Hill and the bridegroom-elect's mother.

The house was decorated with white wedding bells, streamers, yellow and white daisies. Good-byes were said by Mrs. Butler and Dora Butler.

Miss Buck Entertained

A bridal shower was given for Angela Joy Buck, bride-elect of Ben Wilson, by friends at the Black Jack Free Will Baptist fellowship hall Saturday.

The honoree was given a pink carnation corsage.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with a silver candelabra with mixed pink summer flowers.

Birthday Party Given Annie Cox

Annie W. Cox of Farmville was honored recently on her 85th birthday by her children and grandchildren. The party was held at the American Legion Hut here.

Her children are Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Alston Lane, Lucinda Neverson of New Haven, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gay of Hamden, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. John Ward Jr. of Greenville and William T. Cox of Farmville. She also has 14 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

John Ward, master of ceremonies for the program, extended greetings and Carla Robinson, a granddaughter of Capitol Heights, Md., reflected on the life of the honoree. Theresa Brainsom, great-granddaughter of Washington, D.C., read a poem dedicated by her children and Christine Cox, granddaughter of Durham, sang "The Lord Is My Light" and Joseph Harvey of Farmville sang "Remind Me Dear Lord."

William Cox, grandson of Langley AFB, Hampton, Va., gave a talk on goal setting. Gifts were opened by John and Marjorie Ward, who also hosted the party.

Prior to the event, the family attended York Memorial AME Zion Church.

Contact Lawyer For Advice

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can help me. I've been married almost 23 years, but haven't seen my husband in 21 years. He walked out on me, and I have no idea where he is.

I want to find out if he has divorced me. And if he hasn't, how can I divorce him without having to pay the kind of money a lawyer wants? Also, isn't there a law that says that after a certain number of years of not hearing from your husband, you can just presume he's either dead or has deserted you, and no divorce is necessary?

I've talked to several lawyers and the lowest fee was $350 to free me to marry again. You see, I met this terrific man who wants to marry me, and he offered to pay for my divorce if I need one.

Answer soon. I don't want to lose this guy.

WHERE DO I STAND?

DEAR WHERE: I am constantly amazed at the number of people who will gladly pay a physician to cure their physical ills but would begrudge a lawyer a reasonable fee for straightening out their legal woes.

The laws differ from state to state, and I am not qualified to practice law in any of them, so please consult a lawyer and pay him (or her) for what he knows.

CONFIDENTIAL TO INNOCENT AND MISJUDGED IN B.C.: Tell your "best friend," who carried the tale to you that destroyed the friendship between you and "Mary," the following: "I want to clear the air, so I hope you will give me permission to tell Mary that her assumption was wrong and I did not intentionally snub her. Because if you don't, I intend to do so without your permission."

P.S. A "best friend" who causes trouble qualifies as "no friend."

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
You don't have to wait until next Passover if you are interested in making matzo balls — the dumplings served in chicken soup on seder menus. Passover is, of course, the Jewish holiday celebrated in commemoration of the Exodus of the Jews from Egypt. The seder is a ceremonial dinner held on the first evening of Passover and sometimes repeated on the second evening.

On inquiry, I found that matzo — the unleavened bread eaten during the seven days of Passover — is available all during the year. So is matzo meal, the other main ingredient of the special recipe for matzo balls I am passing along.

The recipe was adapted from the "Jewish Cookery Book" by Mrs. Esther Levy, issued in Philadelphia in 1871, and apparently the first Jewish cookbook published in the United States. A facsimile edition of the book was recently issued by Josephine Bacon of Pholiota Press.

Josephine Bacon is an enterprising young Englishwoman who bought an 1871 copy of the "Jewish Cookery Book" from a bookseller's catalog and added a preface to her new edition. Now living in California, she has been a translator for both the Israeli and American governments — she speaks seven languages fluently and "gets by" in five more. These days, among other activities, she writes food articles.

The "Jewish Cookery Book" is a collection of recipes, from soups to desserts, that were used by Jewish families in east European countries as well as those in other lands. As the title states, it is "a cookery book properly explained, and in accordance with the rules of the Jewish religion" and it takes into consideration "principles of economy, adapted for Jewish housekeepers." A valuable addition to any collection of 19th-century American cookbooks.

- MRS. LEVY'S
MATZO BALLS
- 2 regular (not thin) matzos, each about 6 1/2 inches square (crumbled)
 - 3 tablespoons oil
 - 2 large onions (each 5 ounces), finely chopped
 - 3 large eggs
 - 1/2 cups (about) matzo meal
 - 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 3 quarts salted water

In a small bowl, soak crumbled matzos in cold water until soft — about 5 minutes. In a 10-inch skillet, in the hot oil, fry onion until golden brown.

In a large bowl beat eggs until foamy. Squeeze excess moisture from matzos and stir into eggs; gradually stir in matzo meal until mixture is just stiff enough to handle. Stir in well the onion, parsley, salt, pepper, ginger and nutmeg.

Using 1 level measuring tablespoon for each, with wet palms shape mixture into balls; let rest at room temperature for 10 minutes. In a 4- or 5-quart saucepot bring salted water to a boil; keep at simmering. Drop matzo balls into water and simmer until they are tender and come to the top — 10 minutes.

Makes about 45.

Don't Stop Now

The Pitt County school board fired a veteran teacher this week for what board members called an "inadequate performance for the 1981-82 school year."

The action was taken after an extensive hearing and investigation by the board. While we make no judgment in this case, we do wish to congratulate the board for its willingness to take action.

This is the type of energetic conduct needed by school boards everywhere to weed out teachers who may be inadequate. If the board, after the required hearings are conducted, concludes that a teacher's performance is inadequate, then he or she should be released and a new teacher hired. This is the starting point in the effort to make our public schools first rate.

For too long inept teachers and administrators have been retained simply because they were there and because boards were too afraid of legal action or public reaction to act.

Private business certainly does not keep inept employees on its payroll. There is no reason for public schools to be operated differently.

This is a first step. We trust the board's examination of its teachers and administrators does not stop here.

Recruiting Has Helped

Pitt County Memorial Hospital, through its affiliation with the ECU Medical School, entered a great expansion era several years ago. That meant many new skilled nurses were needed at a time when there was a nursing shortage nationally.

Fortunately, today there seems to be an improvement in the number of nurses available. Nursing Service Vice President Betty Trought reported to the board of trustees recently that 115 new nurses have recently been recruited, bringing the nursing staff as near to what is sufficient as it has been in several years. (There are 635 nurses at PCMH, 500 of them full time.)

Ms. Trought cited the nurse extern program at the hospital, which brings rising seniors from throughout the nation to the hospital for training. Last year 80 percent of the nurse externs later accepted jobs with the hospital.

It requires huge numbers of personnel to operate a major referral hospital such as Pitt County Memorial. Nothing is more essential than an adequate number of skilled nurses, and there seems to be improvement in this area here, thanks to some diligent recruiting on the part of the staff.

Decision Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — It will be only a short time now before the verdict is in: whether the consumer economic expansion will grow more robust or whether it will stall instead.

Divided, as always, on this and most other important questions, many of the economic fraternity have settled for forecasts of a "modest" expansion, to which is added the rather timid suggestion that it could be more.

Essentially, this forecast is based on figures that show Americans have saved money, are more secure in their jobs, are impressed and enriched by the rise in stocks, and feel better about the buying cars and houses.

The timidity about it comes from a number of factors that aren't thoroughly understood, especially the rather lackluster performance of sales this year and uncertainty about how high the long-term jobless rates will remain.

Jobless workers buy very little, of course, and those who haven't had raises buy less than otherwise they might. More than 11 million workers are without jobs.

and many of those who are working have had no pay increases.

Labor Department figures show wages increased 5.6 percent in the year ended March 1983, the first below-6 percent reading since late 1976. The increases were even lower for construction, retailing and some manufacturing.

Offsetting this to an unknown degree is the growth in jobs. Since December, about 650,000 jobs have been added, including 110,000 in manufacturing during April alone. The manufacturing workweek also has risen, if only slightly.

There are several other good signs too: Houses are selling, carmakers expect higher sales and most of the surveys of consumer buying intentions are reading in the optimistic range.

So far, however, the intent expressed in the consumer surveys and the performance registered in the marketplace differ, causing some students of the economy to wonder if they might be overlooking some factors.

The overall numbers of the consumer economy could look strong but still disguise weaknesses, they say. One of the most important of the latter, according to some, is a very uneven distribution of buying power.

One researcher, Sindlinger & Co., claims that at the beginning of May one of every three households had suffered an income decline since last November, and that one in four expected a further income decline by next October.

According to Sindlinger "up to a third of households are out of the spending game," and "two of every three households are running short of money."

According to this thesis, the plight of many families is lost in the overall statistics because it is counterbalanced by the improving condition of the upper third of the economy.

Some analysts also observe that most savings are in the hands of those at the upper end of the middle-age group — people who have obtained their furnishings and houses — while the younger, spending class is short of funds.

There also exists a political threat, the possibility that consumers won't actually receive the 10 percent tax cut scheduled to become effective July 1. And there exists, still, a fear of future inflation.

James Christian, top economist for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, observed this week that the recent upturn in home construction could begin to fade by midsummer, the reason being a continued rise in new-home prices.

Just how buyers will synthesize all this information will be revealed very soon, and it won't take a researcher in economic esoterica to tell us how. It will be done as it always is in the end by the marketplace.

Reagan Picks His Spots To Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has posted a pair of veto threats as evidence that he means to stand up for the people against the taxers and spenders in Congress. He hasn't said he's running for re-election, but it would fit as a campaign theme.

And like any careful politician, the president picks his spots. So he has started hoisting down an earlier veto vow, given the likelihood that Congress would override that one anyhow.

Reagan once said flatly that he would veto any bill repealing the law that requires the withholding of income taxes from interest and dividend income beginning July 1. The House voted Tuesday to do just that, by a margin of 382 to 41. The Senate earlier had adopted what to pass a compromise — guaranteeing that there would be no withholding before mid-1987, but tightening reporting requirements and penalties in an effort to reclaim some $4 billion to $5 billion in taxes that now go unpaid.

Both margins were far greater than the two-thirds required to override a veto. And when the question came up at his news conference Tuesday night, Reagan chose caution.

He wouldn't say whether the veto threat stands, "because I understand that there is some talk of a something or other of a compromise in it, and I'm going to wait and see what they come up with there on the Hill."

The compromise would not preserve the withholding requirement. It would tighten reporting requirements and penalties against taxpayers who cheat. But accepting it would avoid what probably is a no-win fight for the White House.

The withholding provision was part of the big tax bill Reagan accepted a year ago, because of congressional insistence on action to cut the budget deficit. Deficits, expected to run in the $200 billion range, are no less a problem in the current Senate stalemate over a new budget. And some of Reagan's fellow Republicans, among them Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico, chairman of the Budget Committee, are talking of increases bigger than Reagan wants. In his own budget, the president recommended tax changes to raise $2.3 billion in additional revenue in 1984, and $4.4 billion in 1985. He has since agreed to increases that would raise a bit more, but not much more.

The House adopted a budget that would have required $30 billion in new revenue, available only by scrapping the income tax cut that is due July 1. But the president won't stand for that, and it is not a realistic prospect.

"I will not support a budget resolution that raises taxes while we are coming out of a recession," Reagan told the news conference. "I will veto any tax bill that would do this."

That doesn't leave much room for further compromise to get a budget resolution through the Republican Senate, let alone the House. But Reagan said he had tried compromise, to no avail.

The government isn't going to run out of money for lack of a budget resolution. The congressional budget sets ceilings; appropriations bills provide the funds.

The House already is preparing to start action on separate appropriations measures, with or without adoption of a congressional budget.

Reagan drew the veto line there, too. "I will veto spending bills that would rekindle the fires of inflation and high interest rates," he said. That could mean a lot of vetoes. The budget the Senate couldn't adopt would have cleared the way for $12.5 billion in domestic spending Reagan doesn't want.

But the ins and outs of congressional budget processes mean more in Washington than elsewhere. That's fine print.

Not so with the theme Reagan sounded: "It is time to draw the line and stand up for the people. . . . The American people didn't send us to Washington to continue raising their taxes, spending more on wasteful programs or weakening our defense. They sent us here to stop that, and that's what we're going to try to do."

Spoken like a president who plans to ask the voters to keep him in Washington for another term.

A Lesson In Double Talk

"I saw your advertisement in the Sunday newspaper and I wish to join the CIA."

"We're happy to have you. Please repeat after me: I swear to uphold the Constitution, and all the laws of the land."

"I do."

"Sorry, you can't have the job."

"Why?"

"Because sometimes in the agency it's impossible to uphold all the laws of the land and still do the mission."

"Then why did you make me take the oath?"

"Just to test you to see if you had what it takes to be a member of the 'company.'"

"Give me another chance. I'd be willing to say no to the oath in a shot."

"How do you feel about congressional watchdog committees who are always prying into our covert affairs?"

"I guess in a democracy they're a necessary evil."

"You can leave now. We don't think we have an opening."

"That wasn't the answer you wanted?"

"Covert activities are too serious to be left to the politicians."

"I agree 100 percent, sir. Congressmen and senators should stop prying in what we're up to."

"What do you mean 'we'?"

"I just meant 'we' in case you changed your mind and gave me the job. I assure you, sir, if I become a member of the 'company' I'll lie to Congress through my teeth."

"The agency doesn't OFFICIALLY approve of lying."

"Neither does my mother. But I lie to her all the time."

"That's a good answer. Maybe you have the makings of a CIA agent after all. As you know we have two functions here. One is to gather intelligence and information from all over the world, and the other is to instigate covert operations to destabilize governments that threaten our national security, which branch would you prefer to work for?"

"I'd like to get into covert operations."

"I've always wanted to see Nicaragua."

"How do you know we're in Nicaragua?"

"The president said we are, and he's real mad that the Senate will only let us stay there until September."

"That information happens to be classified."

"I read it in The Washington Post."

"If you work for us everything you read in The Washington Post is classified. Is that understood?"

"Yes, sir, I'll shred it every morning after I read it."

"Let's say we sent you to Nicaragua, and we weren't able to destabilize the Sandinista government by September. What would you do?"

"Come back to Langley."

"No you wouldn't. You would become a member of the U.S. Agricultural Mission in Honduras."

"I don't know anything about agriculture."

"You don't have to know anything about agriculture. Your job would be to smuggle arms to the Nicaraguan freedom

To the editor: Within the past week, my sister companions and I had the opportunity, along with many interested people of Greenville, to witness two outstanding performances — the Greenville Woman's Club annual Author's Tea and the Service League's "Struttin' Southern."

It was remarkable to see talent, initiative, and cooperation among the various age group participants. Such spirit and enthusiasm is to be commended as an asset for our community. It makes my heart sing — there's a great future for Greenville. The self-dedication and community spirit of these performers is what makes Greenville not only the "garden center" of Eastern North Carolina, but also the aesthetic center.

U.S. Trades Jet For Withdrawal

WASHINGTON — That U.S. technology transfer to develop a new Israeli jet fighter was linked to troop withdrawals from Lebanon is confirmed in a personal telegram from Secretary of State George Shultz to Defense Minister Moshe Arens.

The April 16 "secret" communication, headed "Dear Misha," reported to Arens U.S. approval of three license requests necessary to develop the Lavi aircraft. Shultz's message then pointedly alternated between Israeli troop withdrawal and essential U.S. help for Israel's hot new item in the international arms trade. If the deal were not clear, Shultz's final paragraph ended any doubt:

"Once again, Misha, I want you to know that your efforts to improve the (U.S.-Israeli) relationship have not gone unnoticed and have been appreciated by all of us in Washington. I am glad to be able to have the opportunity to convey our appreciation in a tangible sense today."

In the month since then, Israel has reached a troop withdrawal agreement with the U.S., and Pentagon efforts to limit the Lavi technology transfer have been beaten back by the State Department. With long-neglected Syria embracing the Soviet Union and refusing to move its troops from Lebanon, the Middle East looks closer to its ideal as envisioned by the Begin regime: Uncle Sam and Israel standing alone against a Soviet-supported Arab world.

The Lavi's integral part in these international alignments derives from the Begin government's high priority on acting as arms merchant for right-wing pariah governments around the world. Shultz's markedly more pro-Israeli predecessor, Alexander Haig, in 1982 backed Israeli purchase of jet engines with $180 million in U.S. aid under Foreign Military Sales (FMS) — a program supposedly limited to off-the-shelf American military items. Pratt & Whitney (a subsidiary of United Technologies, where Baig has worked before and after his tenure at State) then sold the engines to Israel.

That was not the end of U.S. taxpayers' subsidy, direct and indirect, for a foreign plane competing with U.S. rivals. Licenses for technology transfer were needed. Besides, nobody would be able to control Israeli diversion of FMS money into the Lavi.

But the project ran into trouble early this year. Heated protests came from two American companies: General Electric, which thought it had an aircraft engine deal with Israel until Pratt & Whitney came along, and Northrop, outraged that it had committed $600 million in corporate funds developing the F-20 Tigershark for the export market only to find the U.S.

government sponsoring an Israeli competitor.

More threatening to the Lavi than the Northrop-GE complaints, however, was the U.S.-Israeli deadlock over Lebanon. On March 31, that impasse had so frustrated Reagan that, on his own and without consulting the State Department, he withheld delivery of U.S. F-16 fighterbombers to Israel. Ironically, that led to the deal with Misha."

Warnings out of Jerusalem by government spokesmen about a new low in U.S.-Israeli relations produced anxiety at the State Department, which was enhanced by a worried call from Philip Habib to Shultz. The president's envoy asked how in the world he could negotiate an agreement amidst such chaos. At the State Department, the Lavi was seen as the way to warm up the relationship.

Strength For Today

Have you ever sat before your television screen and watched a large, luxurious cruise ship come into dock?

It takes a lot of little tugs to get the big ship there and get her out again. The ship is certainly one of the most beautiful creations ever drawn up by naval architects. But it would be unable to take on or discharge cargo and passengers unless the little tugboats brought her into dock and took her out again into the harbor.

The little tugboats should remind us of the parts we play in life.

There is nothing particularly outstanding in our endeavors. We work for a living and go along doing routine tasks for corporations or distinguished bosses or great institutions — but we are only little tugs. But where would the cruise ship be without the little tugs, and where would the world be without those insignificant persons who perform tasks which individually seem routine but in the aggregate are vital for the life of society?

On April 7, the long-delayed licenses for the Lavi were discussed over the telephone between Arens and Shultz. The secretary of state won the president's approval and the good news was conveyed in the telegram to Arens sent on April 16 (the Jewish Sabbath) with instructions to be "delivered to Arens alone" the next morning, with "no distribution."

After declaring "I am happy to report" presidential approval of the licenses, Shultz's prose turned gushy, bordering on obsequious: "More generally, Misha, I want to tell you how much I personally appreciate your efforts to improve the atmosphere and tone of our relationships." He added that Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, Israel's sharpest critic in the administration, "joins me" in seeing an improved "atmosphere . . . in large part due to your personal efforts."

If Arens was not getting the message, Shultz spelled it out: "Because I am anxious to maintain this positive spirit, Cap (Weinberger) and I are pleased that we can pass on . . . the positive development on the Lavi licenses today." In the next sentence, Shultz brought home the quid pro quo: "I hope your meetings with Phil Habib will bring us closer to reaching an agreement (on troop withdrawal) . . ."

The upshot of the deal is familiar indeed. The U.S. is subsidizing, directly and indirectly, a new Israeli weapons system clearly destined for the world market. The U.S. and Israel have reached another agreement rejected by Arab states. Since that achieves the Begin government's essential policy goals, George Shultz's telegram must have generated instant relief in Jerusalem when it was brought in to "Misha" Arens that Sunday morning.

France Tilts To Nuclear Arms Stress

By GREG MacARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The French National Assembly adopted a five-year, $113 billion military budget today that includes a controversial cut in conventional ground forces and a corresponding emphasis on nuclear strength.

France's tilt towards nuclear defense is likely to prompt renewed demands from the Soviet Union that the independent French nuclear force be included in any agreement to reduce Soviet and NATO medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe.

French defense officials project the budget represents an 11 percent real increase in military spending after inflation, with the largest single expenditure — $18 billion — earmarked for France's tactical and strategic nuclear force.

The Socialist government's military plan for 1984-88 calls for the addition of a seventh nuclear-powered submarine and a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, and development and deployment of a new multiple-warhead submarine-fired nuclear missile system.

France, which pulled out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's integrated military command in 1966, continues to participate in NATO's overall strategic planning.

However, the French repeatedly have rejected any suggestion that their "purely defensive" nuclear force be included in the U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks in Geneva. The Reagan administration, which represents NATO in the talks, supports the French position.

The 1984-88 budget also foresees a 7 percent cut in conventional troop strength — a reduction of about 31,000 soldiers from the 320,000-man force over the five-year period. The army will lose 22,000 of those troops.

Defense Minister Charles Hernu contends France needs a trimmed down, more mobile conventional force, and the budget calls for creation of a 47,000-man rapid deployment unit drawn from airborne, helicopter, infantry and light armor divisions.

French defense planners also believe that nuclear power is their effective guarantee for security, both in regard to cost and deterrence. And France's serious economic difficulties are forcing it to choose between conventional and nuclear forces.

"Anybody who tells me he would prefer an army division of soldiers to a nuclear submarine is living in the wrong era," Hernu has said.

But the cut in conventional forces apparently does not sit well with many of the commanders who oversee those forces.

Army Chief of Staff Jean Delaunay was replaced earlier this year after publicly criticizing the proposed cuts. An anonymous letter signed by "a group of officers" and published Thursday by the conservative daily Le Figaro alleged that the reductions would result in a "disorganization of the ground army."

The reduction in conventional forces also goes against NATO Commander Gen. Bernard Rodgers' request for a 4 percent real increase in conventional arms spending over the next five years.

Despite the cuts, Hernu has pledged to keep at least 50,000 French troops in West Germany and promised to supplement that force with 100 additional tanks to increase NATO's ability to defend that country.

Last year, France spent 3.9 percent of its gross national product on defense — the highest proportion in Western Europe. Hernu told the National Assembly today that 1983's percentage would be even higher.

The budget passed by a vote along party lines of 330-152. Conservative deputies criticized the plan on the grounds that the government simply would be unable to find the money to pay for it.

University Looking To An End Of Challenges

By The Associated Press
University of North Carolina officials say a federal appeals court ruling upholding a 1981 desegregation agreement could end legal challenges to the settlement.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, in a 10-0 decision, Thursday rejected a request by a civil rights group that the agreement between the university and the U.S. Department of Education be declared illegal.

"I really believe this is the end of the road," said John R. Jordan of Raleigh, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors. "This certainly does signal an end to this long, tortuous route of litigation."

The appeals court was the fourth, and highest, court to reject a request by the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund Inc. The ruling affirmed a decision by a three-judge federal appeals court in Washington.

Dr. William C. Friday, UNC president, said he was heartened by the decision.

"We are grateful for the support given the university in this long journey," he said.

The desegregation controversy began in 1970 when the legal defense fund filed a suit charging that the higher education systems in North Carolina and Southern border states had not done enough to dismantle their former racially dual systems.

The dispute centered on such issues as recruitment of minority students, the improvement of UNC's five historically black colleges and the shifting of academic programs to different campuses to attract students of other races.

The Reagan administration reached an agreement with UNC in August after years of wrangling between the state and the federal government over what steps the university should take to speed up desegregation.

U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. of Raleigh approved a five-year plan in the form of a consent decree on July 17, 1981.

The NAACP Legal Fund may now ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case. Washington attorney Joseph Rauh Jr., who represents the fund, refused to comment Thursday on whether the decision will be appealed.

University lawyers said they doubted the Supreme Court would agree to hear an appeal of the case because it had been affirmed unanimously by the 10-judge federal appeals court.

The unanimous decision came as a surprise to university lawyers, who had expected a split decision on the appeal.

Judge J. Skelly Wright, who had dissented in the earlier ruling by three judges, reversed his opinion in Thursday's decision.

Wright had called the UNC settlement an example of the Reagan administration's "benign neglect" on civil rights enforcement. A spokesman for Wright said the judge would decline comment on why he had reversed his opinion.

New NCNB Executive

NCNB National Bank announced that Sidney R. Warner has been named eastern regional executive for the bank.

NCNB said that Warner, a Greenville resident, will be one of three regional executives for the bank in North Carolina. He will be responsible for NCNB offices in the eastern section, including the larger cities of Wilmington, Jacksonville, Greenville and New Bern.

SIDNEY R. WARNER

Warner, 47, has served as NCNB's coastal area executive since January.

A Clarkton native, he earned a bachelor's degree in history at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1958 and joined NCNB in 1963 as a management trainee in Raleigh.

Warner worked with the bank in Raleigh until 1971 when he was named senior loan and administrative officer in Thomasville. He served as city executive there for two years before being named a senior vice president and eastern area executive in 1974.

Warner and his wife, Linda, have two children.

Claims Threats Against Reforms

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A Salvadoran labor leader says he and other union officials have been receiving death threats aimed at stopping them from pushing for reforms and working with American advisers.

Union of Communes leader Samuel Maldonado met with U.S. Ambassador Deane R. Hinton this week to discuss the threats. A U.S. official said they "seem aimed at stopping the organization of these peasant groups" and to prevent them "from meddling in local politics."

Maldonado told The Associated Press on Thursday that armed men left death-threat leaflets outside a meeting of representatives of the Popular Democratic Unity labor federation and its U.S. counterpart, the AFL-CIO. The meeting was immediately moved to another site, he said.

Popular Democratic Unity claims 500,000 members and includes seven large labor organizations. Maldonado's Union of Communes peasant farmer group is one of them.

Members of the AFL-CIO delegation in San Salvador said they had not been threatened.

But two organizers for the institute who were working on the land reform program, Michael P. Hammer of Seattle and Mark D. Pearlman of Potomac, Md., were murdered along with peasant leader Rodolfo Viera in 1981 in the coffee shop of a San Salvador hotel.

Maldonado said he and other union leaders also received telephoned threats from callers who identified themselves as members of a National Police investigation unit. But Police Director Carlos Reynaldo Lopez Nulia assured him that police were not involved and offered to provide security for those threatened, he said.

"First they told me the (death) squad wanted to execute me," Maldonado said by telephone from federation headquarters in Santa Tecla, seven miles east of here. "I have been threatened many times in the past but I believe this is serious. It's not good."

Few Satisfied With Proposed 'Anti-Slavery' Bill

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite claims that making slavery a felony in North Carolina was the "least controversial" of several suggestions to help migrant workers, neither supporters nor opponents appear satisfied.

Rep. Malcolm Fulcher, D-Carteret, said the bill in the House Judiciary I Committee was among several recommendations by the Migrant Farmworkers Study Commission.

"It was about the least controversial bill we could come up with," he said during a hearing on the bill Thursday. "But the N.C. Farm Bureau is dead set opposed to this bill."

While no opponents of the bill appeared, Fulcher said their main objections stemmed from fears that the migrant stream that helps harvest state crops might be somehow interrupted by the bill. He said they also worry that land owners could be held responsible for illegal activities by migrant crew leaders.

The bill would make it a Class 1 felony to knowingly hold someone in involuntary servitude. Individuals could be punished by up to five years in prison and large corporations could face up to $1 million in fines for violating the law as well as the loss of their charters.

But many of those favoring the bill said it could be tougher.

Christopher Scott of the state AFL-CIO noted that workers can be enslaved by methods other than violence or threats of violence.

"Every summer, four, five or six workers present themselves at our office every morning, saying they have escaped," said

Christopher Scott of the state AFL-CIO.

"They have gotten themselves into a syndrome of purchasing alcoholic beverages — beer or wine — at incredibly inflated rates," he said, describing how they have been held in involuntary servitude. "They can never get out of the control of the crew leaders."

Curtis Sapp, representing the state NAACP, said migrant workers have many more concerns that need to be addressed.

"The housing situation has remained the same," he said. "It's absolutely dreadful that those kinds of housing conditions exist in North Carolina."

Fulcher said the bill was prompted by 10 slavery convictions in North Carolina since 1981 — all of them requiring federal action because there is no state law against slavery. He said the commission also recommended improving housing and sanitation, adopting minimum wage requirements and bringing migrants under workers' compensation laws, but decided to introduce the bill most likely to be passed.

Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover, questioned whether the bill might hurt honest farmers, but Fulcher said he was sure that once bad crew bosses were weeded out, new ones would step into the lucrative positions.

In other legislative action:

Interest Rates — A bill to raise merchants' credit card interest rates from 18 to 21 percent was resurrected by the Senate and returned to committee just one day after it was killed on a 25-20 vote.

The Senate voted 35-12 to reconsider the vote so that the bill sponsored by Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Leicester could be rewritten in the Senate Banking Committee. After its facilit, the measure will simply call for a study of the credit interest issue, delaying action until 1984.

"We're going to wait until the next session and see how the prime rate does," said Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg. "If it shoots up, we can look at the bill again. But if it stays about like it is now, the credit limit stays right where it is."

Sen. Bob Davis, D-Rowan, said the Legislature might eventually adopt a policy whereby the credit card interest rate would be allowed to "float" with the prime rate and other standard rates, moving up or down as they do.

Workers' Comp — A House-passed bill designed to expand the number of injuries covered by workers' compensation breezed through a state Senate committee without debate.

There was no debate on the bill introduced by Rep. William Clark, D-Cumberland, and passed by the House.

"They knew exactly what the bill said," said Sen. Jack Childers, D-Davidson, chairman of the Senate Manufacturing, Labor and Commerce Committee. "It is a good, fair compromise that has been discussed plenty."

The bill, introduced by Rep. William Clark, D-Cumberland, would compensate workers who injure their backs during "he routine performance of their jobs. Current laws have been interpreted to only cover injuries due to accidents, like slips and falls.

The bill will go to the Senate Appropriations Committee because it is expected to affect workers' compensation cases involving the state.

Execution Method

Action on a bill to give condemned criminals a choice between execution in the gas chamber or by lethal injection was delayed when the Senate Judiciary III Committee failed to agree when the decision would have to be made.

The original bill, sponsored by Sen. Bob Davis, D-Rowan, would change the state's method of execution from gas inhalation to injection. But a subcommittee amended the bill to give the inmates a choice and to remove provisions that a doctor assist in the execution.

Doctors had objected to those provisions, saying it would violate the Hippocratic oath for them to participate in an execution.

"I've talked to the warden (at Raleigh's Central Prison) and he said there's no problem," said Davis. "He has the people and equipment... physicians won't be involved."

The bill was sent back to the subcommittee to decide on the timing issue.

Health Recodification — The House Finance Committee approved a lengthy bill to rewrite public health laws, which clarifies language and makes other changes including raising or creating fees.

Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, questioned state health director Ron Levine about whether the bill would affect hazardous waste disposal bills pending in the Legislature.

Mavretic said the bill would enable the department to set landfill standards without consent of the General Assembly, but Levine said the bill's provisions were current law.

Chairman Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, finally cut off debate, saying the committee was supposed to concern itself only with the section of the bill dealing with fees.

Insane Defendants — The House Judiciary III Committee approved and sent to the full House a bill to make it harder for mentally ill defendants to avoid commitment.

The General Assembly last year enacted a law making sure those found innocent by reason of insanity and those found incapable of proceeding could not be released from commitment without a court hearing. However, a magistrate and a physician may, under current law, decide never to commit the defendant.

The new bill would require that such defendants accused of violent crimes be committed by the trial judge, bypassing the magistrate and physician's exam.

Tenure — Faced with a strong showing by the Mecklenburg County legislative delegation, the Senate Education Committee approved and sent to the full Senate a bill exempting the county's school system from the state's teacher tenure act.

The bill would let the school system postpone giving tenure until teachers had completed four, five or six years in the system. State law requires that tenure be granted after three years.

Rep. Phil Berry, D-Mecklenburg, said the bill was intended to "upgrade and redefine the roles of our teachers."

He said that the flexibility in granting tenure would let the county move teachers into a career development program, resulting in better teachers and stemming the tide of teachers who leave education because of low pay. The county will add money to state appropriations to pay higher quality teachers.

Auto Franchise — A Chrysler Corp. spokesman criticized a bill that would stiffen North Carolina's automobile franchising laws, saying it would help Japanese automakers and General Motors Corp. at Chrysler's expense.

"You're keeping GM big and you're keeping us small," said Jim Kilroy of Chrysler's state relations department, adding that the bill would open the door to foreign manufacturers.

"We are not too big on competition from the Japanese," he said. "We don't like to give them that major step up."

The bill would make it harder for auto makers to terminate franchises while requiring that franchises be extended from parents to children if desired. It would also require manufacturers to guarantee a 30 percent profit on warranty services done by dealers and would give each dealer the rights to business in a 20-mile radius.

Supporters say the changes are needed to protect the rights of small-businessmen.

No action was taken on the bill, pending the outcome of Senate debate on a similar measure.

Death Benefits — Sen. William Staton, D-Lee, filed proposed legislation to lengthen the period during which the dependents of deceased employees may apply for continuation of his worker's compensation benefits.

Currently, a person who dies as the result of an on-the-job accident must have died within two years of the accident or within six years if already receiving full disability benefits in order for the benefits to be extended to his widow or children.

Under Staton's bill, the application period would be lengthened to two years after the point at which a final determination is made of the benefits to which the disabled worker is entitled.

"I don't think this will appreciably affect premiums," said Staton. "But it does open the door to elimination of an inequity under the law."

Licenses — The Senate approved unanimously a bill that would require driver's licenses to have different-colored backgrounds depending on the holder's age.

There would be one color for people under age 19, another for people aged 19-21 and a third for people over 21.

Sen. Wilma Woodard, D-Wake, said the innovation would help merchants identify underaged customers trying to buy alcoholic beverages.

Senate Action — The Senate enacted into law a bill barring candidates from seeking more than one public office at a time when the filing deadline is the same.

The Senate also approved a bill stating that when and if the Western Governor's Residence in Asheville is damaged, it will be fixed.

Vocational Education — The Senate unanimously voted to concur with House amendments to Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green's proposal to establish a pilot program under which some seventh- and eighth-grade students would be taught vocational education.

Meanwhile, Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston, filed a bill to appropriate $6 million over the next two years for equipment for vocational education programs and services.

Underage Girl Able To Buy Beer At 96 Stores

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 16-year-old girl was able to buy beer at 96 of 110 stores, including some stores that checked her identification and knew she was underage, police said Thursday.

"We were shocked at the statistics," said Capt. C.D. Wade, investigative bureau commander of the police department. "We did not expect to find what we did."

Wade said the 96 stores will be charged with misdemeanors as a result of the undercover operation.

Operation SAM, for Selling Alcohol to Minors, began as a result of complaints. Wade said the girl began to try to buy beer at the establishments on May 6 and continued through Tuesday.

Officers began issuing citations to the businesses involved at 8 a.m. Thursday. Among those cited as a result of Operation SAM was Glenn E. Sapp, owner of the Open Air Curb Market where 17-year-old Gary Alan Bray bought beer before his car crashed, killing four teenagers in Greensboro on Feb. 5.

Police Capt. Robert Steele said police began planning the operation in March and sought the help of a 16-year-old girl from out of town, whom he would not identify.

"This is the first time we've used an underage person to investigate the ease with which minors are able to purchase beer," Wade said. "She volunteered to help with her parents' permission and will be revealed in court. At no time did she misrepresent her age. She displayed a valid North Carolina driver's license which showed her correct date of birth and verbally responded, when asked, with her correct age."

Statistics developed after the operation closed last week showed that only 24 of the 110 businesses checked the girl's identification, Steele said. Ten of those businesses sold her the beer after checking and the remaining 14 businesses refused to sell.

Steele said the girl turned over all of the beer purchased to waiting officers.

Hazing Charges For 2 Students

FRANKLIN, N.C. (AP) — Two Franklin High School seniors were expected to be served with criminal summonses today charging them with hazing.

The unidentified students, according to reports, printed and circulated 42 copies of an underground newspaper called the Eighty-Three Senior Express, which contained explicit sexual drawings and used names of teachers and students in references to sexual activity and drug use.

Franklin police officer T.W. Bradley and Macon County Chief Deputy David Dills took out the summonses on a 19-year-old man and 18-year-old woman, charging they "intentionally printed... a publication for the purpose of abusive tricks, which subjected other students and teachers of Franklin High School to public indignity and harassment."

A New Personality On Reaching 3rd Birthday

By GAIL MICHAELS
Ever since his third birthday, Zachary has been "the bigger Zachary." This is what he calls himself, and this is what he would like everyone else to call him, too.

Until a few days ago, I thought that by "bigger" he meant older, wiser and perhaps larger than his 2-year-old self. But I learned that he also, by some leap in his own private logic, considers himself bigger than Meg.

Having appropriated the role of superior sibling, he now assumes that he is responsible for Meg's behavior. To keep her in line, he occasionally resorts to tattling. "Meg's room is a mess," he will inform me. "Tell her to clean it up."

But more often he prefers to issue the orders himself or to parrot my instructions before going off on a tangent of his own. Last night not two minutes after I had asked Meg not to pick the corn kernels off the cob with her fingers, he leaned over the table and said, "Don't pick at your corn, Meg. I don't pick at my corn."

"You don't need to," she said scornfully. "Mother cut your corn off the cob."

He cocked his head to one side. "There is no cob."

Meg's voice was rising. "That's what I just said. You don't have a cob, but I do." She held up her cob for him to inspect.

Zachary scrutinized it for a moment, then said loftily, "Why is the cob?"

Impatient with this line of philosophic inquiry, Meg rolled her eyes and reached for a deviled egg.

"And don't you pick at that egg either, young lady."

"Mother, make him stop!" Meg sputtered. "Make him eat his food and leave me alone!"

"I'm finished," he said. "You haven't even touched your food!" Meg howled. "Mother, he hasn't touched it!"

THEIR GIFT

LONDON (AP) — The sons of the ruler of the Persian Gulf emirate of Dubai plan to donate $3.1 million to the London hospital that cared for their mother before she died.

I reluctantly pulled myself into the fray. "Meg is right. You need to worry about eating your own dinner."

He shrugged. "It's all gone. I ate it all."

I looked at his full plate. "Zachary, how can you even say that?"

He beamed at me. "I did, I really did, and you need to tell Meg to hold her fork right."

"Muh-ther!"
"And the cat likes me best."
Meg was fuming. "You're a pest, that's what you are!"
Zachary was completely unruffled. "I am not. I am Mommy's angel baby love, right, Mommy?"

"Right," I laughed.

Meg gave her hamburger a vicious jab with her fork. "I'm sorry to say this, Mother, but sometimes your standards aren't very high."

FIERY VIOLENCE

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 80 people were injured and the Congress Party's files burned in a pre-election violent outburst in Sringar, capital of Kashmir, Thursday.

Winning Over Emigrants' Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may soon resolve a dispute with Romania over emigration restrictions imposed by the Communist bloc nation, according to U.S. government sources.

The Reagan administration has threatened to revoke Romania's "most favored nation" trade status late next month if the country charges emigrants an education tax.

The government sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, indicated that Romanian Foreign Minister Stefan Andrei told the administration the tax may not be collected in order to preserve the favorable trade status.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

ENEMIES, NOT FRIENDS!

MOSES' ADMONITION TO THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL TO STAND SEPARATE FROM HEATHEN WAYS REMAINED A PART OF THEIR HERITAGE DOWN THE AGES. EVER SINCE THEIR DEPARTURE FROM EGYPT TRADITION DEMANDED THE HEBREWS AVOID FRATERNIZATION WITH PAGAN WORSHIPERS, STAYING WITHIN THEIR OWN FAITH. IT WAS THOUGHT THAT ONLY BY THIS MEANS COULD A TRUE WORSHIP OF GOD REMAIN SACRED AND PURE, BUT THE STRINGENCY OF THEIR TEACHINGS CAUSED MUCH TROUBLE AND MISUNDERSTANDING WITH THE PEOPLE WITH WHOM THEY CAME IN CONTACT. IN THEIR WANDERINGS THEY MET MANY PEOPLE AND THE TEMPTATION TO DEVIATE FROM THE STRICTNESS OF THEIR LAWS WAS ALWAYS PRESENT. ALMOST A THOUSAND YEARS LATER MOSES' STERN INSTRUCTION WAS FRESH IN THEIR MEMORY. AS IN THE CASE OF ZERUBBABEL, LEADING THE JEWS IN THE REBUILDING OF THE TEMPLE AT JERUSALEM, A DELEGATION OF SAMARITANS ARRIVES OFFERING HELP.....

...THE SAMARITANS SUGGEST THAT THEY HELP THE JEWS TO BUILD THE TEMPLE FOR, THEY SAY, "WE WORSHIP THE SAME GOD" ZERUBBABEL, THE LEADER OF THE JEWS, KNOWS THAT A GREAT DANGER LIES IN THIS CRAFTY SUGGESTION, FOR, IF HE ACCEPTS THE HELP, THE SAMARITANS WILL ALSO HAVE ACCESS TO THE TEMPLE AFTER IT IS BUILT AND SOON WICKED, PAGAN PRACTICES WILL CREEP INTO THE DAILY LIFE OF THE JEWS—HE ANGERS THE DELEGATION BY COLDLY REFUSING THEIR OFFER!

Young Keys Mariners

By The Associated Press
Strong pitching is getting to be old hat for Seattle rookie Matt Young.

The 24-year-old left-hander fired a four-hitter for his first shutout and first complete game in nine major league starts Thursday night...

Mike Morgan, McGregor, who won for the first time since April 29, lost a bid for the Orioles' third straight shutout when Cliff Johnson hit his fifth home run with one out in the bottom of the ninth.

Frank Tanana relieved Smithson for the Rangers and Wockenfuss, batting for Lou Whitaker, lofted a high fly to the warning track in left on a 3-2 pitch and Cabell tagged up and scored easily...

Young, 5-3, has won four of his last five starts, allowing only two earned runs in his last 44 innings. He is especially tough on left-handed hitters who are only 5-for-42 against him this season.

Julio Cruz opened the Seattle eighth with a double off Ken Forsch and moved to third on a pickoff throwing error by the California pitcher. After pinch hitter Ken Phelps walked, Cruz broke for the plate and Allen went to Forsch, whose only play was to first.

Red Sox 4, Twins 1
Dave Stapleton and Jim Rice each drove in a run with bloop singles and Tony Armas and Rich Gedman added RBI doubles, while Doug Bird and Luis Aponte combined to check Minnesota on eight hits...

Padres 3, Mets 3
Eric Show, celebrating his 27th birthday, hurled six shutout innings and combined with Luis DeLeon on a seven-hit shutout that ended the Mets' four-game winning streak...

"I feel I can go right after people," Young said after his three-walk, seven-strikeout gem. "If they hit it, they hit it. I'm just on one of those rolls right now where things are going my way..."

Orioles 2, Blue Jays 1
Dan Ford's two-out, two-run homer in the eighth inning and the six-hit pitching of Scott McGregor and two relievers led Baltimore to its fourth consecutive victory...

It's enjoyable to play a game," said Bird. "Playing for Ralph (Manager Ralph Houk) makes it easy because he lets you know exactly what he expects from you..."

San Diego scored an unearned run that proved to be the game-winner off Doug Sisk in the ninth on an error, a walk and two ground balls, with Lezcano getting an RBI.

Drivers Not Panicked By Rise In Injuries

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Every improvement in safety involves a trade-off in racing performance. The safest race car is one locked in its garage, but drivers, crews and car owners obviously aren't willing to go that far.

"The designers and constructors always do as much as possible to protect the driver, but they're also concerned with the limitations of the rules. They don't want to add any more weight to the cars than necessary," says 1969 Indianapolis 500 winner Mario Andretti, concerned but not panicked by the increasing number of foot and leg injuries.

The most noteworthy example was the crash during practice that broke three-time winner Johnny Rutherford's left foot and right ankle on Wednesday. Rutherford almost certainly will miss his 20th Indy start, and Andretti said Thursday the new design of many of the race cars puts drivers in a very vulnerable position.

Among new rules this season designed to slow the cars down and provide greater safety for the driver, was the movement forward of the rear wing by seven inches. To keep the proper center of gravity, the new March, which is the predominant car model this year at Indy, also moved the driver forward.

"You'd like to have as much protection as possible. What we have now is pretty strong, but you've got to remember a concrete wall is not a catch fence like you have at most of the road courses. Everything (on the car) collapses now because of how hard you hit," said Andretti.

More than two dozen drivers practiced on Thursday, the next-to-last full day of testing before Saturday's start of qualifications for the May 29 race. The first two scheduled days of time trials were rained out last weekend.

A 17th driver topped 200 mph during practice on Thursday — rookie Derek Daly of Ireland. His teammate, Desire Wilson, however, withdrew as an entrant because of repeated engine problems and rapidly dwind-ing time for her mandatory rookie driver's test.

Wilson, 29, had hoped to become the second woman driver in Indy history. Janet Guthrie drove here from 1977-79, finishing ninth in 1978.

The Wysard Racing Team brought three engines to the Speedway. When Daly blew two of his engines, the third also was placed in his car, leaving Wilson without a power plant. She received a rebuilt engine on Wednesday but was unable to complete the required rookie test of 20 laps at 180 mph.

"Let's put it this way," she said Thursday. "I am a professional driver, the Wysards run a professional team, Indianapolis runs a professional race. If we can't put in a professional effort, I'd rather not run."

"You just can't get everything sorted in one day when we'll have 20 or 30 other cars out there, all looking for 203-204 mph."

Wilson said the team would concentrate on making her Indy-car debut at the Cleveland 500 in July.

"I'm not a quitter, and we've agreed that Cleveland is a better bet now than trying to cram for Indy," Wilson said.

Daly improved his best practice time from 198 mph to a lap of 200.490 mph.

Track record-holder Rick Mears, who went over 205 mph last week, had a lap at 196.463 mph. Tony Bettenhausen, also over 200 last week, was clocked at 192.020, and Danny Ongais, who has struggled for speed since practice opened, switched from a Chevrolet V-6 engine to a Cosworth and turned a lap at 198.237 mph.

Other practice speeds included 195.482 by Andretti, 199.379 by Kevin Cogan and 199.911 by rookie Teo Fabi.

Ten other drivers besides Rutherford have hit the Speedway walls since practice opened on May 7, and most of them have come away with foot and leg injuries of varying severity.

In a crash on Monday, Pete Halsmer suffered, among other injuries, two bruised heels and a puncture wound to his left leg. And, in earlier incidents, rookie John Paul Jr. fractured his left ankle and Chet Phillip suffered a painful leg contusion.

Eric Broadley, designer of the Lola car driven by Andretti, said, "The problems (of foot and leg injuries) are very unfortunate. You can't afford to have your driver hurt."

"Actually, there's quite a lot that can be done in strengthening the foot well area. We can put in more internal sections, like we have, and use different materials. But everything you do adds weight, and additional weight creates different problems."

Mears has not crashed here, but his new Penske racer suffered heavy damage in a crash during tests last month at Michigan International Speedway.

"I did get banged up and bruised up on my legs," Mears said. "But our cars (built by the Penske team) still have the driver fairly well back. I think what happens to you (in a crash) really depends on how you hit."

Tigers Keep Hopes Alive

EDENTON — Williamston pushed over two runs in the tenth inning then held off an Edenton rally to gain a 2-1 baseball victory over the Aces Thursday.

The victory kept Williamston in the running for at least a share of the Northeastern Conference championship — and a chance at the playoffs.

That won't be decided until at least tonight, however, when Washington hosts Roanoke Rapids. Should the Pam Pack down the Yellow Jackets, it would mean at least a three-way tie for the crown between those two and Williamston. Two other teams, Plymouth and Bertie, with Friday games, could also pull into the tie.

Of course, a victory by Roanoke Rapids would make it all academic, giving the Jackets the title outright.

Should there be a tie, that would be resolved on Saturday by the league with a vote. The winner moves into next week's 3-A playoffs against the Roanoke River Conference winner, Northwest Halifax.

The game was scoreless throughout the regulation seven innings and remained so for two more frames before the Tigers finally broke the ice in the tenth. Les Keel led off the frame with a walk and raced to third on Gray Thomas' single. Keith Perry then brought in Keel with a sacrifice fly. Glenn Hardison followed with a single, scoring Thomas with what proved the difference.

Edenton tried to rally, but fell a run short in the bottom of the frame.

Keel, Thomas and Hardison each had two hits to lead the Williamston hitting, while Brian Bunch had a double and Rodney Chappell had a triple for Edenton.

The Tigers, now 11-5 in the Northeastern and 12-7 overall, now await the outcome of the rest of the league's play tonight to see whether their season is over or continuing.

Club Policy Stirs ACC

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

ROCKY MOUNT (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Bob James said he didn't know that Rocky Mount's Northgreen Country Club, site of the conference's golf tourney, excludes blacks from its membership.

Although there are no black golfers on any ACC team, a spokesman for Northgreen said if a team brought a black golfer to the course, he would be allowed to participate in the tourney.

James became aware of the situation when he received a letter from a black who was displeased with the policy. Steven Rogers has demanded that the conference pull out of its agreement to hold the tournament at the country club.

"About five months ago, I called the ACC," Rogers said. "I told them I thought they were supporting racism. I find it an insult to me that as a taxpayer I am supporting some of those schools."

In response to Rogers, the commissioner said the conference will conduct the tournament at Northgreen through 1986. James said the agreement was negotiated "in good faith by both sides and in the absence of some very compelling reasons, we would not feel justified in breaching the agreement."

The letter to Rogers also said the conference would not use the facilities if it thought it was practicing racial discrimination, "but we believe that this is not the case."

"When we established a site for our golf championship, we have always sought the use of the facility from the club," James said Thursday. "When Northgreen offered, and in good faith we continued our discussion with them, we agreed to play our tournament there."

Rogers said James' response was "one of the highest insults they could have given me in regard to the situation."

"I made the ACC very aware that this had happened," Rogers said. "I called them several times to tell them what was going on. They got mad at me."

The 25-year-old commodity agent for Consolidated Diesel's Whitakers plant said he was once denied entry to the country club's main dining room and told he'd have to eat in a side room or in the back.

"Being told to sit in the back to eat shows a total disrespect for a human being," Rogers said.

After being told to accept the situation, Rogers complained to Consolidated's headquarters in Indiana. Those officials ordered the Whitakers management to terminate their corporate membership.

Rogers also said he has advised incoming plants of the situation and had been told that they may not join Northgreen.

"It's raised the consciousness of the people in the community," Rogers said. "For me and my family, it's given us a sense of pride to stand up and say things about right and wrong."

Meanwhile, the Rocky Mount Area Chamber of Commerce has moved its meetings from the country club to its own offices. The chamber took the action following complaints by several blacks on its board of directors.

Northgreen general manager Earl Elingburg said the club's bylaws were drawn up by the club's owner and its board of advisers.

"A private club by its very nature has the obligation to set its membership policy and thereby select members of its own choosing," Elingburg said in a prepared statement. "Such policies affect only club members and as such in our opinion this matter should not be of further interest to the general public."

Rogers said he has not finished his protests and will persist in efforts to persuade the ACC to move its tournament.

"Somebody's got to be willing to stand up to improve life for generations to come," Rogers said. "Had it not been for somebody else, I wouldn't be where I am today."

Palmer: Seniors Can Still Play

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Don't let all that gray hair fool you, warns Arnold Palmer. All those over-50 members of the Professional Golfers' Association seniors tour can still play the game well.

"They're playing some of the finest golf you'll see anywhere," Palmer said Thursday during a stop in Lexington to help promote the Citizens Union Senior Golf Classic.

"They might call it seniors golf, but it's damn good golf, too," said Palmer, who will be among 50 pros in the $150,000 tournament Sept. 1-4 at Griffin Gate Golf Course.

Others committed to play include Miller Barber, Billy Casper, Gay Brewer, Bob Goalby, Don January and Sam Snead.

Palmer said putting is the biggest difference between the seniors and the PGA's regular tour. Golfers on the seniors tour may three-putt from the same point where they would have sunk a 20-footer a few years earlier.

That adds three or four strokes per round to the player's score, he said. Otherwise, "they're hitting some beautiful shots."

Palmer, who joined the 50-and-older set in 1980, said he recently drove a 269-yard tee shot "and that's about as far as I ever drove it on the regular tour."

Palmer currently splits his time between the tours, as do Barber, January, Doug Sanders and others.

"I kind of set this year as the year I would decide whether I would continue to play that much on the regular tour," Palmer said. "I'm keeping my options open. I anticipate playing (on the seniors tour) for some years."

Palmer, who continues to attract large galleries wherever he plays, gave his fans another thrill with a first-round run at this year's Masters tournament in Augusta, Ga.

"I felt like I had a reasonable shot at it after the first round," he said.

Then came the rain that bedeviled the rest of the tournament and delayed the final round. Palmer said he didn't blame the delay for his abysmal finish, but added: "Whatever chances I had pretty well diminished after that."

He said there was "always the chance I might win another event" on the regular tour. But he added that the seniors tour was a godsend for golfers of his age.

Optimists 12
Jaycees 4
The Optimists romped to a 12-4 North State Little League victory over the Jaycees yesterday.
The Optimists got their first runs in the third inning scoring three times. The Jaycees came back with a pair in the top of the fourth, but the Optimists came right back with three in the bottom of the frame for a 6-2 lead.
In the fourth, Mitch Jones led off for the Optimists, drawing a walk. He moved up on a wild pitch and with two away, Park Williams walked. Heath Clark then singled, scoring Jones, with the other two runners moving up on an error. Both scored when Nelson Galloway doubled.
The Optimists picked up six more runs in the fifth inning, doubling their score. The Jaycees got two more in the fifth.
Galloway had three hits to lead the Optimists, while Williams added two more. Michael Thompson had two hits to pace the Jaycees.
Wellcome 13
Moose 3
Wellcome won its fourth game in five starts yesterday with a 13-3 romp over the Moose in the Tar Heel Little League.
Judd Crumpler had a one-hitter for the Wellcome squad, that a single in the first inning by Andy Everett.
Both teams scored single runs in the first inning, for a 1-1 tie.
But in the second, Wellcome exploded for seven runs to put the contest out of reach. With one down, Stephan Higdon singled and moved up on an error, scoring when John Uhlman reached on another misplay. Joshua Potter walked and Rip Perkins singled in Uhlman. Blake Stallings then walked to load the bases. Judd Crumpler singled in Potter and Chris Brown singled to score Perkins and Stallings. Jared Dancy walked, reloading the bases and Higdon singled to drive in both Crumpler and Brown for an 8-1 lead.
Wellcome added three more in the third and two in the fifth. The Moose scored single runs in the third and fifth frames.
Brown and Higdon each had three hits to pace Wellcome,

Hendrix & Dail 2
First State Bank eased past Hendrix & Dail, 3-2, in a Prep League baseball game last night.
First State grabbed the lead in the first on back-to-back triples by Jarvis Groome and Tom Moyer for a 1-0 lead, then added the clinchers in the third, scoring twice more.
David Tripp reached on a two-out single in the third, moving around on a passed ball, a stolen base and another passed ball. Groome then walked and scored on another triple by Moyer, making it 3-0.
Both of the H&D runs came in the fourth.
Tripp, Groome and Moyer each had two hits to lead the Bankers. H&D picked up only two hits, both in the fourth, off Moyer's pitching.

SHOPLIFTING makes you a criminal!

And criminals do get caught!
Now the stores are wise to shoplifters and have the manpower and sophisticated equipment to prove it. Closed circuit cameras, undercover people, specially treated tagging systems are all used to successfully catch shoplifters. And the stores are taking legal actions! Shoplifters face even stiffer fines... even jail when they're caught. plus the humiliation of getting arrested, and a criminal record that could affect future schooling, jobs, credit rating, and the respect and trust of family and friends. Shoplifting... like any other crime... just doesn't pay!

Good Direction Good Story For Terry Fox Film

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When the networks began making movies, they did an inordinate number of "Malady of the Month" films. Home Box Office, in its first made-for-pay-TV film, also focuses on a disease but combines it with an inspirational true-life story worth telling and watching.

"The Terry Fox Story," which premieres on HBO Sunday night, is about the young Canadian who, after losing his leg to cancer, embarks on a run across Canada to raise money for cancer research. The movie stars newcomer Eric Fryer, himself an amputee, and Robert Duvall.

So often, films like this become maudlin, but "Terry Fox" honestly plays on our emotions because it's a real story and Fox comes across as a believably human hero.

Fox is not a saint. He can be mean and abusive, particularly to his friend, Doug Alward (Michael Zelniker), who selflessly drove the van and offered companionship during Fox's 1980 Marathon of Hope. Alward objects to being treated like a flunky and lashes out at Fox's egocentricity.

But it's easy to be moved by Fox's courage and his gallant achievement. Running one-legged for over 3,000 miles, he averages a marathon a day for four months until the cancer, which killed him a year later, hits him again.

As depicted in the film, Canadians flock to the roads during his run, and Fox raises over $20 million. Even a group of Hell's Angels are moved to contribute. "He's making an awful lot of people feel happy," says his mother, who initially objected to Fox's ambitious run.

The movie will strike the same nerves Fox touched in Canada, where a nation, hungry for heroes and some national identity, made Fox a hero. The HBO film will be released in theaters in Canada later this month.

Fox is first seen as a strapping, physically normal 18-year-old basketball star. This is done by filming Fryer's double from the back and matching that footage with shots of Fryer from the waist up.

Suddenly, the athlete is struck down by cancer, and his leg is amputated. The suffering he sees in the hospital, particularly the pain of little children, motivates his national run and allows him to deal with his anger in a positive way. He's fitted with a prosthetic leg and learns to run with a hop-skip movement.

At times, his run becomes an obsession, especially when he pushes himself after he's physically spent and debilitated.

As publicity builds, the Cancer Society finally gets involved. Bill Vigars (Duvall) joins the crusade as a public relations man. Vigars tries to promote attention without compromising Fox's dignity. However, Fox doesn't always understand the value of the speeches and sponsoring stunts. "The run is not mine anymore," he protests.

Ultimately, Fox grows to recognize that he shares the run with all Canadians. "It's about reaching out to people and having them touch you back," he says.

HBO has made a stirring debut into the made-for-TV film business with a moving story that features fine performances and beautiful Canadian scenery. It proves that the largest pay service can match production talents with commercial TV.

HBO says it will spend an average of $3.5 million for TV films, almost double what the networks pay for its productions. The bigger budgets allow for longer shooting schedules in foreign locales, and they attract stars not normally seen on network TV.

Future HBO films include "Right of Way," with Bette Davis and Jimmy Stewart, "The Far Pavillions," shooting in India and starring Omar Sharif, John Gielgud, Ben Cross and Amy Irving, and "Nobody Makes Me Cry," with Elizabeth Taylor and Carol Burnett.

The premiere of "The Terry Fox Story" comes on the heels of HBO's sister service, Cinemax, purchase of 18 new episodes of "SCTV Network," the comedy satire that NBC recently dropped from its late-night schedule.

A Dim View Of Decadent Disco

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Communist government of West Bengal, a state in east India, has taken a dim view of disco dancing.

A recent request to hold a "disco type program" in a major hall in Calcutta, India's largest city with a population of 10 million, was denied, said Jatin Chakraborty, the state's minister of power, works and development.

"We do not want to encourage such type of programs which are nothing but decadence of culture," Chakraborty said.

Authentic Cast For 'The King And I'

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP)

— Many performers in a church production of "The King and I" had never seen a play before. But the actors — most of them refugees from Southeast Asia — have "blossomed" in the musical, set in what is now Laos and Thailand, a producer says.

"I don't think it's ever been done before. It's been the most rewarding experience I've ever had," Diane Hart, who produced the show with her husband, John, said Thursday.

"The people have blossomed so much in the show. They tend to be shy and withdrawn and this has drawn them out," she added.

"They're naturals, just wonderful."

The five months spent in rehearsal gave the 88 cast members — 66 of them refugees from Cambodia, Laos or Vietnam — the chance to get to know one another despite their different languages and lingering distrust from centuries of conflict.

Many of the costumes are clothes that the actors brought with them, packed away for arduous trips through refugee camps to the United States, said Mrs. Hart. Many other costumes were sewn by refugee mothers of youngsters in the play.

The Rogers and Hammerstein musical is the story of Anna, an English woman who goes to Siam as governess to the king's many children, which actually occurred 150 years ago.

The Harts took 30 of the players to nearby Seattle recently to see their first play — Yul Brynner in the title role of the road production of "The King and I."

Other refugees flocked to the Hart house to watch the play time and again on a video tape machine. "They'd never seen a play and kept asking if it was true and if Yul Brynner was the real king, and why he was bald," Mrs. Hart said.

Performances of the musical — three were held last weekend, and three more will be held this weekend at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Bellevue — give non-Asians the chance to get to know the refugees and see them shine in a musical that is both Asian and American.

Mrs. Hart said she is pleased that in many ways the production is authentic.

The 26 dancers, for example, are Southeast Asian teenagers taught by Khammeng Prachansery of Laos. Ms. Prachansery had never seen a western musical, so she worked with church member Wendy Amendola in choreographing the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" dance scene. But, says Mrs. Hart, "when they dance for us, the way they hold their hands, the way they move, is the way it's supposed to be. In the Hollywood movie, it's all Americans."

The children in the cast speak English, but most of the adults don't — which made rehearsals a four-language procedure.

The language problem is also why non-Asians appear in several Asian roles. The King is played by Nico Snel, Seattle Philharmonic conductor, and his No. 1 wife, Lady Thiang, is played by Claudia Smart.

However, Mo Ti Pham, who plays Tuptim, a young girl brought from Burma as a present for the king, is Vietnamese and for 14 years was a nun in that country.

HORSING AROUND — Stefanie Powers and Robert Wagner stand with trusty steed "General" during taping of an upcoming episode of ABC's "Hart to Hart". The episode, filmed at the Will Rogers Polo Grounds in Pacific Palisades, Calif., is scheduled to air in the fall. (AP Laserphoto)

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Whatever changes are important can give you the chance to start fresh at expanding activities. Discuss such plans with influential people. Big groups can be helpful at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A new attitude on your part can bring about the changes that are for the better in your future. Make a new contact.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your intuition tells you how to handle your business matters well. Don't fear changing a situation with your loved one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A change in connection with an associate is beneficial to all concerned. Take it easy tonight and rest up.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study your newspapers and find new mechanisms that will help you in your work. Increase productivity.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Know what your talents are and use them more wisely. Relax in the company of congenials and relieve tensions.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Fundamental matters are most important to you now so handle them with finesse. Be sure utilities are running smoothly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Discuss some new system with allies. Visit with good friends, even those at a distance from you. Do some shopping.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There is a situation ahead which can lead you into trouble. Sit back and analyze relationships which affect this.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Come to the right decisions regarding personal matters. Stress health and exercise today. Get out in the country.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have private wishes on which you should work quietly and gain them. Make conversations with kin amicable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get in touch with good friends who can give you good advice regarding monetary matters. Use care in travel.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss your duties with loved ones and get much better results with them. Spend time on amusements you enjoy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a talker which is all right since it will be good practice when later in life he or she will have to deal with many persons. Provide a fine education and stress the ability to coordinate viewpoints. Give musical training.

Predict N.C. Will Have Many Apples

By ELISSA McCRARY
 Associated Press Writer

State agriculture officials predict that North Carolina apple farmers will produce more than 7 million bushels of apples this year despite late freezes that damaged fruit crops in North Carolina and South Carolina.

"Everybody has a lot of apples," said Ray Hill, a Henderson County agricultural extension agent. "We should have close to the 7 million bushels that we had in 1981."

"Last year was a disaster because of late freezes, but it looks like the cold didn't hurt us so bad this year," he said. "The apple trees were already in heavy bloom when the cold came."

Back-to-back freezes this April wiped out two-thirds of South Carolina's peach crop. Officials predict a 1983 peach crop of only about 140 million pounds, down from 450 million pounds two years ago. Losses were put at $50 million.

The late cold snap also destroyed 98 percent of North Carolina's smaller peach crop, which yields about 40 million pounds a year or $8 million worth of fruit.

North Carolina's apple crop is a $40-million-a-year industry.

Henderson County, where apples bring in about $30 million annually, has 300 growers. The county is the state's top apple producer and seventh-largest apple-growing area in the nation.

Lincoln County apple farmers say they didn't fare as well this year as Henderson growers. They have asked the U.S. Agriculture Department to declare the county a disaster area by midsummer.

Found Innocent Of Husband's Murder

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) - A jury of six men and six women found Delsina Mae Delgado innocent of the murder of her husband after deliberating a total of 4 1/2 hours Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning.

Mrs. Delgado leaped to her feet when Judge Bradford Tillery read the verdict Thursday, threw her arms up in the air and let out a loud scream. She then grabbed her father and shouted, "I'm free, Daddy. I'm free."

Mrs. Delgado, 25, of Charleston, W.Va., was the second person to stand trial on a charge of first-degree murder in the Dec. 6 slaying of her husband, Marine Sgt.

Jorge R. Delgado, 23, of Miami.

Mrs. Delgado's confessed lover, Marine Sgt. Willie J. Gladden, 21, of Central Islip, N.Y., was convicted April 17 of the slaying. He was sentenced to die in the gas chamber. Gladden had claimed self-defense.

Gene Gurganus, Gladden's defense attorney, said Thursday he did not believe the verdict in Mrs. Delgado's trial would affect Gladden's appeal.

"But the fact they let her off and convicted him may raise questions as to if Gladden's sentence was out of passion or prejudice," Gurganus said. "She's white and the jury let her off; he's black and got convicted."

Gurganus denied Gladden was a "vicious, violent person" as Mrs. Delgado's defense contended. He said Gladden was brought to the Onslow County jail from Central Prison in Raleigh during her trial because "he was willing to testify if it would help her."

Gladden, who under the law could not be forced to testify for the prosecution, was not called as a witness by Mrs. Delgado's attorney. He was returned to Central Prison Tuesday.

Mrs. Delgado's defense was built around a statement she made to police Dec. 9, after being confronted with information that placed her at the crime scene. Before then, she had maintained her husband left home Dec. 6 after the two argued. The following morning she reported him missing to the police.

In the statement, she said Gladden had forced her at knifepoint to accompany him to eastern Onslow County. There, she said, he made her call her husband to lure him to a remote site on the pretext that her car had broken down. She said she tried to warn her husband when he arrived but was scared Gladden would kill her also.

Counterfeit Case To Jury

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - A federal jury today will begin considering counterfeit charges against Greensboro inventor and retired businessman Leard Evander (Junior) Lisk Jr.

The jury's verdict might hinge on how much weight it gives to the testimony of the government's key witness, Wesley Eugene Mills, a co-defendant in the case.

Mills, 60, of Greensboro, took the witness stand at the opening of the trial Monday. Originally charged in two multi-count indictments, he pleaded guilty April 7 to two counterfeiting offenses in a plea bargaining arrangement with the government. No sentencing date has been set.

In closing arguments to jurors Thursday, Lisk's lawyers tried to discredit Mills as an incompetent witness, arguing his testimony was contradictory, untrue and given solely in exchange for leniency in sentencing.

Battle Scenes At Bath Based On Actual Event During Revolution

BATH - The battle scenes being re-enacted Saturday and Sunday in historic Bath are based on an event that actually took place in the Bath harbor during the War for Independence.

According to historical documents, the battle occurred when a schooner carrying supplies for the Bath community and American troops sailed into Bath, carrying such vital stores as muskets, gun powder, fruit and grain - supplies coveted by the British troops in Bath who enviously eyed the approaching ship.

A battle ensued with gun and cannonfire exchanged between British and American troops on land and water. The British attempted to seize strategic Bonner Point (now the locale of a peaceful riverfront public picnic site). In the end, the American colonial troops were victorious, saving the supply ship and the town of Bath from British control.

Principals in this weekend's re-enactment of that battle will play their roles on the land at Bonner Point and on the water in Bath Creek. Men portraying American and British troops will be dressed in authentic uniforms of the Revolutionary War.

Troops to join in the battle are members of the 2nd N.C. Regiment of Foot Soldiers supplemented by troops from throughout North Carolina and other states.

Weapons of more than two centuries ago, including two-pound and six-pound cannons, will be used. All weapons will be fired by black powder - although, of course, for safety's sake no ammunition will be used in the "pretend" battle.

A key participant in the battle will be the American supply ship, which will be represented by the ship of Sinbad the Pirate out of Beaufort. Local Bath watermen have been selected to participate in the battle from their boats.

The battle is scheduled to begin at about 1:30 p.m. both on Saturday and Sunday.

Also as part of the weekend festivities in Bath, The Frothy Band, a four-man ensemble which performs traditional Irish, Scottish and Appalachian music will appear in concerts at noon Saturday and Sunday at the Visitor's Center and at Bonner Point at 4 p.m. Saturday.

The four are from Washington, Chapel Hill and West Virginia and will be playing music on a variety of traditional instruments including the mandolin, fiddle, penny whistle, Irish skin drum, and banjo.

All events are without charge and are open to the public.

Say Governess Is CIA Agent

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet officials have accused an American governess who worked for a U.S. diplomat of organizing and training a subversive cell of Jehovah's Witnesses "under the pretense" of religious work.

The news agency Tass reported that the woman, Pamela Carne, was allowed to leave the Soviet Union after being arrested Sunday in a raid on a meeting of the group in Kalinin, 90 miles northwest of Moscow.

The U.S. Embassy confirmed Miss Carne had been detained and had left the country. But a spokesman declined to discuss the case, citing the U.S. privacy law.

Miss Carne had worked for diplomats at the U.S. Embassy. Her latest employer, William G. Plunkert of the embassy's political section, said he could not comment on the Tass report, published Thursday.

Another U.S. diplomat said Miss Carne was in her 20s, had been in Moscow about two years and had worked for another embassy diplomat before working for Plunkert, who arrived in Moscow about a year ago.

According to Tass, Miss Carne also posed as Paula Combs and said she was a Russian-language student at Moscow's Pushkin Institute.

It charged she traveled to Kalinin often "to instruct members of the underground group which was created by her initiative, and also to hand over to them different subversive materials which contained deliberate slander against the constitution and the state system of the U.S.S.R., and appeals to organize undermining work against the U.S.S.R., under the pretense of struggle against the 'antichrist.'"

She also helped pay for building a hall for illegal meetings, the report charged, and "was generous in giving them duplicating equipment including typewriters and tape recorders."

"Where did Carne get this money?" Tass continued. "Not from the modest salary of a 'governess.' Investigation revealed that Carne was the emissary of a clerical organization connected with the CIA which has its headquarters in the U.S.A."

Tass did not identify the organization.

A Hero of the Air
On May 20, 1927—56 years ago today—at 752 A.M., Charles A. Lindbergh left Roosevelt Field in Garden City, New York in a small plane. More than 33 hours later, he landed at Le Bourget Field near Paris, France. He had traveled more than 3,600 miles and became the first aviator to fly non-stop from New York to Paris on his own. Ten days before, Lindbergh had flown from San Diego to New York in 21 hours and 20 minutes, setting a new coast-to-coast record. He had gone to New York to accept the challenge of Raymond Orteig, a hotel owner who had put up a prize of $25,000 to the aviator who could complete the first non-stop, trans-Atlantic run. Young Lindbergh won the prize and became an international hero in the bargain.
DO YOU KNOW—What was the name of Lindbergh's airplane?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER—The artist Christo was born in Bulgaria.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
CITY OF GREENVILLE
COMPLAINT AND NOTICE OF HEARING BEFORE BUILDING INSPECTOR UNDER HOUSING CODE
TO: The undersigned, Nancy Williams, Marvin Williams, Wayne Williams, Jr., James Rickey Williams, Yvette Sowell, Donnell Sowell, Tryone Sowell, Ralph Sowell and any other owners and parties in interest in the dwelling unit located at 1503 South Pitt Street in the City of Greenville, North Carolina.
YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the dwelling located at the above designated address is in a condition that appears to be unfit for human habitation and to violate the City Housing Code in the following ways:
1. Rodent infested. Model Housing Code Ordinance 766, Section 910.
2. Fire hazard. Model Housing Code Ordinance 766, Section 910.
3. Hazardous area for children to be playing in. Model Housing Code Ordinance 766, Section 910.
4. Top of roof fallen in completely. Model Housing Code Ordinance 666, Section 410.
YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that a hearing will be held before the Building Inspector of the City of Greenville at this office, 201 West Fifth Street, Greenville, North Carolina, at ten o'clock on the 17th day of June, 1983 for the purpose of finding facts as to whether or not the condition of such dwelling unit violates the scope of the above mentioned sections of the Housing Code. At the hearing you shall be entitled to offer such evidence which is relevant or material to the questions sought to be determined or the remedy sought to be affected.
YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that if, upon the hearing, the Building Inspector shall find that the conditions in the above described dwelling unit do violate the Housing Code, and in fact render such dwelling unit unfit for human habitation, the Building Inspector will issue an order in writing directed to the owner of the dwelling requiring the owner to remedy these conditions by repairing the same or by vacating and demolishing or removing the same or by taking such other steps as may be necessary to remedy these conditions. The Building Inspector may make such other orders and take such other procedures as are authorized under the Housing Code and the General Statutes of North Carolina.
Further information as to this matter may be obtained by contacting the undersigned.
This 11th day of May, 1983.

Speaking of Your Health...
Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Hopeful News in Medicine

"According to the report, some studies conducted during the past 20 years have indicated that as much as 90 percent of all cancer is environment related. If all the cancer-producing substances and behavior patterns were identified and controlled, cancer might lose its standing as the leading cause of death in the United States."
The report further states, "With the present knowledge of environmental carcinogens (cancer-producing substances), nearly 30 percent of all cancer is preventable. Improvements in epidemiology and other data-gathering procedures that would increase the knowledge of cancer risks factors, might raise the percentage of preventable cancer."
The Office of Technology Assessment suggests:

1. Increase the ability of the Environmental Protection Agency to study all potential cancer-producing substances.
 2. Require industry to submit at least a minimal amount of information about a new chemical to the EPA before any product is introduced or imported.
 3. Shift the burden of proving that substances suspected of being toxic do not need further testing from the government but rather from industry.
- This is a most significant approach to a problem that involves the destiny of our nation.

Soviet Carrier Is In Mediterranean

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has sent its newest aircraft carrier, the 37,000-ton Novorossiysk, into the Mediterranean for the first time, Pentagon officials say.
These officials, speaking only on condition they remain anonymous, said they have expected deployment of the Novorossiysk for some time and they do not believe it is connected with tensions over the crisis in Lebanon.
The Novorossiysk is the third ship of the Soviet Union's most advanced carrier class. A fourth carrier of that same class is being prepared to join the fleet, according to U.S. intelligence sources.
The Kiev, lead ship of the class, is in the Black Sea while the Minsk is in the northern Pacific.
These Soviet carriers have been described by experts as among the most heavily armed warships in the world, carrying a variety of ship-killing missiles and guns as well as about 35 Yak-38 "jumpjet" vertical takeoff fighter-bombers.
The Novorossiysk is said to be traveling with at least two guided-missile destroyers as escorts. Sources said it entered the Mediterranean from the Black Sea a few days ago.
Defense officials said they have noticed no Soviet fleet movements that they would attribute to the tensions in Lebanon. The United States and the Soviet Union have been waging a war of words over the Israeli agreement to withdraw its troops from Lebanon and Soviet supply of advanced weapons to the Syrians, who have made it clear they do not plan to match the Israeli withdrawal with a pullout of their own troops from Lebanon.
At last report, the United States and the Soviet Union each had about 30 naval vessels operating in the Mediterranean. This is about normal.
The United States currently has two aircraft carriers in the Mediterranean, but one of them is due to leave for the United States over the weekend.

... Yarrow, flowering in compact clusters of very small white flowers each less than one-quarter inch wide, gives a lacy effect accentuated by its fern-like leaves.

... one of about 1,200 species of groundsel, (or ragwort), the yellow flower of this local species is followed by silver-white fruit clusters, much like those of the dandelion. When a plant bears both the yellow flower and the silver-white fruits at the same time, it makes a striking display.

An Assortment Of Shapes, Colors, Textures In May Wildflowers

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

At any time of the year, nature provides a wide range of shapes, colors, sizes and textures in its display of wildflowers. These wildflowers come in several inflorescence types — solitary flowers, flowers arranged in spikes or racemes, or in umbels (clusters).

Wildflower colors in May run predominantly to yellow and white, with several in shades of blues and purples, and a smaller number in reds and pinks.

In the countryside and in vacant lots in towns during May, stands of slender lavender toad flax and spikes of reddish sorrel whose flowers resemble seeds frequently grow in mixed stands, resulting in a spectacular carpet of color. Another common May flower that tends to spread over large areas is the waxy buttercup of a brilliant deep yellow color.

Some of the wildflower blossoms are quite large, others so small that their full beauty can only be seen up close. Some have thin, satin-like petals while others have petals that are rough or velvety in texture. A few are loners, blooming alone and easily overlooked, though the majority of May's wildflowers appear in masses, often in full fields so that they are highly visible.

The photographs on this page represent only a small sampling of what May has to offer in common and not-so-common wildflowers.

... a wild onion in flower, with its miniature reddish bulbs, white flowers and thin green bracts is like firework flower.

... the small delicate flowers and seed pods of Blue Eyed Grass could easily inspire a design for jewelers.

... although not a flower, reindeer moss, common in this area in drier patches of soil, takes on a greenish hue in springtime when it acquires its peak growth rate. The many-branched plant is popular with flower arrangers and with children making tray gardens.
