City, County Are Finding Cooperation Pays Off

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Government is designed to serve the citizens it represents, but the service is not free. The bill is paid by the property owners, the tax payers, the very people who are served by government.

Wise fiscal practices, and cooperation between various governments to eliminate the duplication of services they provide, can reduce the cost.

The Pitt Board of County Commissioners and the Greenville City Council over the past several years have, through cooperation, helped eliminate much duplication of effort, and are working on other projects that should result in more efficient operations.

Years ago, rather than have owners list their property separately for city and county tax records, the county took over the job so citizens could list their property at one time and at one location. The county also sets the value of the property. Now the county even prepares the city's tax notices. (The same joint effort is true for other municipalities in the county, too.)

In 1978, after the county commissioners began a solid waste disposal program for county residents, the county took over operations of the city's landfill operation, rather than have the two governments maintain separate facilities.

For years, Greenville and Pitt County have cooperated in funding the jointly owned Pitt-Greenville Airport, and have worked together to provide library services through the city-owned Sheppard Memorial Library.

The City Council and Board of Commissioners have also worked together on the jointly owned Port Terminal property.

Last year the two boards agreed there was no longer a need for the Tar River Port Authority, which managed port property. So the two governing boards agreed to have the General Assembly dissolve the port body, which was done last month. The property will be divided equally between the city and county.

The county's computer center is now doing accounting work for the city, including payrolls, tax collections and general ledger.

County election officials handle city elections, and the county's communications center is dispatching city rescue vehicles.

The county also provides health, mental health and social services programs to city residents, as well as court and jail facilities, industrial development services, and funds for the Greenville City Schools and Pitt Community College and other programs which benefit city residents.

Mayor Percy Cox said, "Back in 1975 when I was elected mayor, we (the City Council and Board of Commissioners) set up a system" of regular quarterly meetings of the two governing boards.

"We've been able to work out mutual problems by having these meetings," Cox said. "We've found them to be very beneficial. They've helped build a relationship so the city and county managers work together real well. We're real happy with the relationship we have with the county commissioners at this time."

Charles Gaskins, chairman of the county board, also said

Challengers Concede

Flaherty Gets New Term As State GOP Chairman

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Republican Party Chairman David Flaherty was re-elected Saturday after two opponents conceded, but the victory failed to quiet those who say Flaherty has grown too close to the National Congressional Club.

Gilbert Boger and George Little halted the roll call at Rowan County, about 75 percent of the way through, and called for party unity. Because they conceded, no final tally was announced, but Flaherty was leading by a 2-1 margin.

"It is apparent to both of us that the convention has spoken its will that David Flaherty should continue as chairman," said Boger, a former Davie County state senator. "It is also apparent to both of us ... that Republicans have the answers to this country's problems. Let's unite and go forth."

Little, a Southern Pines insurance agent, said he "gave it all the fight we could" but recognized the majority of the 3,516 votes would go to Flaherty.

"I'm a Republican first and foremost. I'll work for the ticket," he added.

The Republicans elected Audrey McBane, Alamance County party chairman, as the state party vice chairman. Nominated by Flaherty, Mrs. McBane garnered 2,030.94 votes to defeat Marie Ledbetter of Asheville, who had 1,398.06 votes.

The convention adjourned abruptly when it was determined that a quorum of 346 was not present. Delegates began to file out after Flaherty's reelection, and by 7 p.m. only 314 people remained.

The party left without adopting a new plan of organization or considering resolutions. There were several arguments on the plan of organization before adjournment came.

Attorney Art Donaldson of Statesville unsuccessfully tried to amend the plan to make the state party chairman's job part-time and establish a full-time executive director to organize the party office.

Another proposal was to continue allowing delegates to cast all of the ballots allotted to their county, regardless of how many delegates were present. The proposed organization plan would have allowed each delegate to cast only one vote.

Counties are allotted votes according to how many ballots were cast for the Republican gubernatorial candidates in the last election.

That amendment passed with the support of eastern and western delegates who said it was difficult for their party members to make it to conventions held far away.

Earlier, Boger and Little had billed the chairman's election as a battle for grass-roots party members trying to regain control of the GOP from supporters of the National Congressional Club, affiliated with Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Boger said he hoped Flaherty took note of "what happened and will stay a step or two away from the Congressional Club."

But John A. Wilkinson of Beaufort County, who nominated Flaherty, urged support because a Raleigh newspaper "said that would be a repudiation of our two senators and that's good enough reason for me."

Boger and Little agreed their loss was partly due to Flaherty's ability to bring in more delegates and mail out more letters soliciting votes.

But Flaherty said he received about as many votes as he expected.

"All the unrest that is supposed to be out there is not out there," he said. "People are happy, not unhappy."

In other nominating speeches, however, state Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell, leveled heavy charges against those who

Mayors Vary On Lottery

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Mayors from Pitt County and surrounding areas have varying opinions about the death Wednesday in the state Senate of a proposal for a state-wide lottery after intense lobbying by Gov. Jim Hunt overcame last-minute efforts by the sponsor to save his bill.

The Senate voted 25-22 to table a bill to authorize a public referendum on a lottery this November, then applied a parliamentary "clincher" to prevent its re-emergence without a two-thirds majority.

Farmville Mayor Rusty Duke Jr. said he was against the lottery from the beginning. "In my opinion, the state and other governments, local and federal, need to be looking for ways to cut spending rather than raise money through taxes (an alternative lottery supporters said they were trying to avoid).

"In raising that money, however, they should not go to activities that are not conducive to good character," Duke said.

Williamston Mayor Bob Cowen said that, although he is not personally opposed to a lottery, he would have allowed the voters to decide.

"If I were in the Senate, as I was in 1957, I would have voted for a referendum. Morally I see nothing wrong about that set-up (a lottery), and there haven't been any problems in New York, Maryland or New Jersey with the lotteries," Cowen said.

"Lotteries are no more a problem than bingo as a legalized type of gambling. The people are not forced to play or buy lottery tickets."

"I don't think I could have supported the lottery," Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger said. "There are other ways to get revenue without going that route."

Frank Hemingway, mayor of Bethel, said he had mixed feelings on the matter. "I know the state needs sources of money, but I feel that what Sen. (Julian) Allsbrook said is pertinent. He said we went through trying times in the Depression and came out for the better without going to a gambling type of resource. I admire Gov. Hunt for taking a stand and am very proud of the state Senate for deciding the matter in this manner," he said.

Washington's Mayor Abbot Sawyer said he was "kind of glad it didn't pass."

"I don't think the lottery's the way. I know they (the state) need money, but there are other ways to get it," Sawyer said.

Neither Greenville Mayor Percy Cox nor a representative of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners could be reached for comment.

Both sides involved in the Senate struggle credited Hunt's intervention with the reversal of Thursday's tentative approval of the bill.

"We had this thing passed in the Senate before the governor intervened," said Sen. Richard Barnes, D-Forsyth, who had guided the bill. "It's awfully hard to get anything passed when the executive branch is against you."

Harris, Sen. Allsbrook, D-Halifax, and Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, said the only honorable way for the state to raise money is by taxation.

"As bitter as it might be, if we need additional taxes, let's levy them," said Allsbrook.

Medical Student's 'Family' Helps Fulfill Drive To Become Doctor

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Some Pitt County families are participating in the education of East Carolina School of Medicine students through the ECU School of Medicine Home Visit Program.

Each student in the medical school has his or her own Pitt County family, assigned during his first year of medical study, who has been an important element in his or her education.

All of the families who are participating were invited to do so with the understanding that it would be a long-term involvement, but one from which they could withdraw at any time. Most have chosen to continue.

The students not only visit in the homes of "their" families, but also are encouraged to take part in any of the visits that members of their families make to the Family Practice Center. Charts are flagged in such a way that at the same time the patient is notified of an appointment time, the student is also.

"We met when I was still feeling very much like a science student — certainly not like a doctor —" second-year student Mike Bell said of himself and his family. "They looked to me as a doctor or, at least their liaison with the medical profession. Gradually I've come to fill that role, probably because they expected it of me."

Trooper Charges Driver In Chase

A Grifton man was cited with multiple charges stemming from an incident Friday night near Ayden.

Trooper Douglas Britton said the chain of events started when he attempted to stop a truck driven by Bobby Ray Wilson of Route 3, Grifton, on N.C. 11 south of Ayden around 9:25 p.m. Britton said the truck was weaving on the highway.

Britton said the truck stopped but, as the trooper approached, the vehicle sped away, throwing rocks on the officer.

Britton said he gave chase, at times approaching speeds of 90 mph, on rural paved road 1119, through an intersection at road 1120 and back on to N.C. 11 south.

As the pursuit continued on N.C. 11, the Wilson truck attempted to squeeze between two cars in both travel lanes, Britton said. The truck collided with the car on its right, driven by Charles Nagy III of Ayden, Britton said, and then left the road out of control and ran into a field.

Britton said Wilson jumped and ran from the vehicle. Britton and fellow Trooper Kenneth Ross gave foot chase and captured Wilson about 50 yards from the accident scene.

Britton said Wilson's 3-year-old son was in the truck during the chase and was reported slightly injured. Britton said Nagy received a neck injury in the collision, but two passengers were not injured.

Meeting For Parents Scheduled

Greenville Middle School will hold an information meeting for parents of all incoming seventh graders at Middle School in the coming school year. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Council To Hold Public Hearing

The City Council will conduct a public hearing Monday night at city hall to receive citizen comments on the feasibility of additional sources of local revenues through the establishment of a refuse collection fee. The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the third floor council chambers.

The proposal under review by the council is a residential refuse collection fee of $3 per month per household, and a container refuse collection fee of $12 per month per container for business, commercial, institutional, churches, charitable, governmental, or other establishments serviced by containers.

The city said the proposal under consideration would generate approximately $496,800 annually in additional revenues. The revenues would be equivalent to 6.7 cents on the city tax rate.

The additional revenue would be used to finance capital improvements and to provide local services.

Tax Expected To Create Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A five-cent-a-gallon federal gasoline tax that went into effect April 1 is expected to generate some 84,000 jobs in transit and related industries, according to a study by the American Public Transit Association.

The tax increase, approved by Congress late last year, will devote one cent of the five-cent levy, or $1.1 billion annually, to public transit, with the remaining four cents going to highway and bridge work.

If fully funded by Congress, transit capital projects would create 35,400 direct jobs and 48,600 indirect or induced jobs, the association reports.

Falkland Building Burns

FALKLAND — Fire caused heavy damage to the W.W. Wooten storage warehouse in Falkland Friday afternoon.

Fire Chief William Proctor said the wood frame structure was owned by W.W. Wooten and was completely engulfed in flames when the Falkland department arrived. Proctor said the alarm was received at 5:15 p.m. with Belvoir and Fountain departments responding with mutual aid.

Proctor said the building dated back to the late 1800s and contained approximately 6,000 square feet. The building was used as a storage facility for fertilizer and some antiques. Most of the contents were destroyed or heavily damaged.

One fireman was reported slightly injured during the blaze. Proctor identified him as Falkland fireman Robby Norvill. His injuries were minor and he received only first-aid treatment at the scene.

Proctor said the building and its contents were valued at approximately $12,000. The chief also said no one was apparently inside the structure when the fire began, and a cause was not known.

NAACP Board To Get Dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The NAACP board of directors plans to meet later this month to settle a power struggle between suspended Executive Director Benjamin Hooks and Chairman Margaret Bush Wilson, an official said Saturday.

Hooks was suspended Wednesday by Mrs. Wilson and the action was announced to the venerable civil rights organization's staff at its headquarters in New York City Friday. Hooks and Mrs. Wilson were not available for comment Saturday.

But the Rev. Edward Hailes, president of the District of Columbia NAACP and one of six national vice presidents, said Hooks' suspension will be reconsidered by the board.

He said the meeting of the 64-member board is tentatively set for May 28, probably in New York.

"I don't understand what this is all about. I think it's poor judgment to suspend him at this time," he said in a telephone interview.

"The board will have to act on this. It takes seven members to petition to call an emergency session, and we have done that. We are waiting to hear from Mr. Hooks to find out exactly what this is all about," Hailes said. "We will consider the decision and act on it."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported in Sunday editions that Hooks was suspended by Mrs. Wilson for alleged insubordination.

"My understanding is that she is accusing him of insubordination because it's alleged that he called her a bitch at the executive committee meeting," a board member told the newspaper.

Sources told the newspaper the quarrel was part of a feud involving Hooks' desire to solidify his power as executive director and Mrs. Wilson's plan to have someone else take over the day-to-day operations of the association.

Hooks, 58, has held the $75,000-a-year executive director's position since 1976. Mrs. Wilson has headed the board since 1975.

Study Explores Use Of Sails

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer
TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Marine researchers from 11 countries met in this tiny Gulf Coast fishing village last week hoping to get modern-day sailors who harvest the seas to look back at ancient propulsion: harnessing the wind.

Why? To save money. How? By attaching sails to their diesel-powered fishing rigs to conserve fuel.

It was the first conference of its kind, designed solely to explore use of sails on commercial vessels that hunt for shrimp, snapper, grouper, tuna, shark and other food from the world's oceans.

"The idea has been gaining popularity in the last few years, but it's been slow to come. Until this conference we've had no hard figures," says naval architect John Shortall, a University of South Florida engineering researcher who helped pull the four-day conference together.

"A lot of us felt there had to be a way to save fuel," says Shortall. "But the French and the Germans nailed it down for people who need cold figures to replace gut feelings."

The idea is to add a simple sail and keep the motor. The German North Sea Trawler did this and in an 18-month experiment averaged a minimum 19 percent savings in fuel costs. The French Cadoual recorded savings as high as 32 percent.

In Florida alone, the fishing industry is a $500 million a year business. The waters of the Gulf of Mexico yield 80 percent of the country's shrimp.

Yet at times dozens of trawlers sit idle at the docks here.

Shortall says it's because fuel prices have jumped 60 percent. In 1970, the average annual fuel bill for a 65-foot shrimp boat was $13,000; by 1980, it was $70,000. Today, Shortall says, running a trawler can cost as much as $100,000 a year.

During the convention, which runs from Sunday through Wednesday, 39 sail-assist researchers from the United States, England, France, Germany, Morocco, Japan, Brazil, Norway, Canada, Italy and Sri Lanka will share their studies, tests and experiments.

What do commercial fishermen think of adding sails? Says Shortall: "They are remarkably receptive to the idea — as soon as you start talking about saving money."

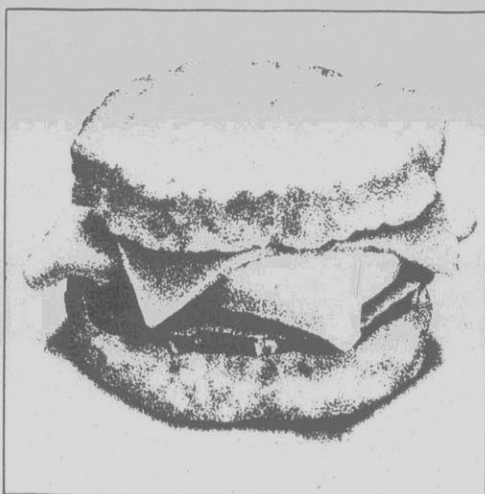

In this country today there are about 100 sail-powered fishing vessels, most working the Pacific where vessels travel thousands of miles in search of a catch, making fuel costs prohibitive.

To the editor:

This editorial is being written to express my extreme displeasure as an East Carolina University graduate at Judge E. Burt Aycock Jr.'s dismissal of the hazing charges against the three Omega Psi Phi Fraternity members on May 11, 1983. I think that stiffer penalties should be taken against fraternity hazing in the future. The pathetic tragedy about such rulings as these is that, if nothing serious is done, the hazing might continue in private, or if the fraternity members know that they can haze pledges and get away with nothing but a 'judicial handslap,' they will have nothing to fear!

According to a story published in The East Carolinian the week of the incident, Tony Jones, an Omega Psi Phi freshman pledge, was allegedly made to swallow dry grits and scalding water as part of his fraternity initiation! Being a former freshman in college, I can understand that students might sometimes want to play pranks, but I would like to question the judge: are we living in the age of "Animal House?"

The actions allegedly perpetrated upon Tony Jones by members of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity should not go unanswered. Hazing is a serious issue. If the hazing accusations are true, the fraternity in question should not only be suspended from campus pending investigation, but should be barred from campus as an example to others that hazing will not be tolerated at ECU. If the hazing accusations are true, the cited students should be expelled from school! They should at least be fined! As a new ECU graduate, I am outraged that such acts be allowed on the ECU campus. I hope that for the sake of common sense and humanity my letter is published to illuminate this critical issue!

To the editor:

Thank you for the interesting "Hope for Knowledge" editorial about El Salvador in Monday's Daily Reflector. I wish to make some comments and extensions of your substance. First, it is commonplace to describe the present government as "suppressive." When so described it is seldomly pointed out that the government was elected by the citizens who chose conservative candidates as opposed to liberals who were preferred by our U.S. media. Prejudice was to the extent that the Washington Post and others wanted to overturn the expressed choice of the people. This same liberal media is now the castigator of the elected government and is the perpetrator of its being labeled "suppressive."

Of course, there are examples of events which are used as basis for the charge "suppressive." That government is fighting for its life and the lives of the citizens who elected that government. Yes, fighting with hundreds of its local citizens being killed every year. Fighting to the death is seldomly conducted by protocol. And who initiates, who begins, this fighting to the death? All media, Congress, and U.S. citizens recognize that the leftist rebels first start the actual fighting. Then why not solve the matter peacefully. What better — or other — way than by voting. But the "leftist rebels" would have none of that.

Your editorial gives attention to our "humiliation" in Vietnam. True, the humiliation came in our precipitous flight from that country — but the shame of it came from its campuses and the printed and electronic media here in our land — the Land of the Free. Our United States started out in Vietnam for two purposes: (1) To save those people from the horrors of communism. (2) To keep our own bulwarks from communism. We here in the States, safe at that time, bemoaned the cost of the war and the very idea of fighting for freedom. Campuses and some media praised the "leftists," refusing to see evil in them, but seeing it in ourselves and in the non-communists of Vietnam. Result? Estimates of dead by Communists in Indo-China, after our flight, range from a low of 3,000,000 to a high of 8,000,000. People murdered as truly and more cruelly than in the Nazi concentration camps. What remorse is expressed by the Jane Fondas in the U.S.A.?

The Elizabeth II, a replica of a 16th century sailing ship, is being constructed in Manteo as part of the area's 400th anniversary of English settlement. The government is considering spending $1 million of taxpayers' money to dredge a channel deep enough to float this ship. At a time when North Carolina teachers' salaries have been frozen for over a year and school programs have been cut, is this how we want to spend our tax dollars?

To the editor:

I recently read an article describing how people sometimes cheat themselves even more than their employers when they do as little work as possible, make personal phone calls, write letters, run errands on company time and generally goof off at every opportunity.

We seem to view vacations and leisure time as the greatest pleasures in life, when, in fact, they should be viewed as a diversion from the most important and meaningful part ... which is work!

The article says the work ethic is fast becoming a thing of the past. We are told it is smart to "take it easy — don't kill yourself." It goes on to say the mad scramble for leisure time says something about our values. Leisure time to do what? Drink more beer? Watch more TV? Play more gin rummy? Somewhere along the line, work has picked up a bad name. I'd love to see it gain the respectability and prestige it once enjoyed. It's what made this country great!

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Reagan's televised speech on Central America before Houses of Congress appears to have won a few additional supporters to his cause, but the large majority of Americans continue to oppose sending additional military aid to El Salvador.

A comparison of surveys taken before and after the president's April 27 speech also shows little change in the view that the El Salvador conflict could turn into a situation "like Vietnam," with 68 percent in the earlier survey and 67 percent in the later survey saying this is at least fairly likely.

In addition, 75 percent in the earlier survey and 72 percent in the post-speech survey say that it is very or fairly likely that if the rebel forces succeed in taking over the government in El Salvador the same kind of thing will happen in other Latin American countries.

These are questions asked in both surveys of persons aware of the situation in El Salvador:

"President Reagan has asked Congress to approve an additional $60 million in military aid for El Salvador. Do you think Congress should or should not approve this request?"

"How likely do you think it is that the U.S. involvement in El Salvador could turn into a situation like Vietnam — that is, that the U.S. would become more and more deeply involved as time goes on? would you say this is very likely, fairly likely, not very likely, or not at all likely?"

"If the rebel forces succeed in taking over the government in El Salvador, how likely do you think it is that the same kind of thing will happen in other Latin American countries — very likely, fairly likely, not very likely, or not at all likely?"

The first survey is based on 1,558 personal interviews conducted between March 11-14. The second survey was conducted by telephone with 503 adults between April 29 and May 8.

WASHINGTON (AP) — While waiting to decide whether to run for a second term — or to announce a decision already made — President Reagan is doing everything he can to make sure that George Bush has a head start on any competition if another Reagan campaign is not in the stars.

Reagan and his vice president walked into the White House on Jan. 20, 1981, as strangers. In fact, that was probably the nicest thing you could say about their relationship after a bitter primary election campaign in which Bush held out until the very end to concede to the rolling Reagan machine.

But over the past 2½ years, there has been no sign that the animosity of the 1980 campaign for the GOP presidential nomination has had any spillover onto their days in the White House. In fact, all signs indicate that the two have developed a good working relationship.

Of course, there is no word about whether the president will seek a second term. He appears to be laying a foundation for running again, dropping broad hints about needing more time to finish his job. His aides all say they think he will run.

But he has said nothing that would be difficult to swallow if he announces next October that one term is enough.

And in recent days, the president is taking all the right steps to make sure that if he does not run for re-election, his vice president can take advantage of the administration's incumbency.

For one thing, the president has on at least two occasions said that Bush is his only choice for a running mate. For another, he has sent Bush around the country to campaign for Republicans, and around the world to represent the administration.

Bush has been actively collecting IOUs from GOP candidates around the country. He has travelled 351,791 miles as vice president, including nearly 37,000 miles this year, with visits to 46 states, 33 other nations, and three U.S. possessions.

And his foreign travel has been more than just show-the-flag work. Last winter, he completed a mission to soothe European fears about the president's arms control policies. An extension of that trip, to Britain and Scandinavia, is in the works for June and July.

Such a trip cannot but help put Bush in a statesman's role that would give him a leg-up on any possible competition for the GOP nomination.

None of this, of course, is to say that Reagan is ~~putting~~ Bush in.

"I'm so convinced the president is running for re-election that I don't see any scenario that has him setting Bush up," said one Republican strategist. But, he added, "if for any reason Reagan falters, Bush is the odds-on favorite."

Meanwhile, the president continues to do all the right things for a non-declared candidate. On Friday, he is speaking to Cuban-Americans in Miami, a key constituent group in vote-rich Florida.

For Saturday, his aides lined up a visit to South Orange, N.J., in the less-than-politically-friendly Northeast. But as the GOP strategist pointed out, New Jersey has been friendly territory for Republican presidential candidates, and his visit to Roman Catholic Seton Hall University provides an opportunity to talk about tuition tax credits.

At every chance he gets, the president seems to be dropping hints about his plans — or at least making light of the decision he is facing.

This week, the 72-year-old Reagan was talking with a group of corporate executives about the MX missile and the need to replace older weapons.

"We've begun retiring our Titan ICBMs because of their age," he said, pausing, and then adding: "Don't think what I'm thinking."

MX Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Reagan dubbed the MX missile the Peacekeeper, the name didn't take. It may be Peacekeeper at the White House, but in Congress, they're battling about the MX. Nevertheless, the concept behind the nickname seems to be taking hold.

With the help of an advisory panel commissioned to recommend a system for basing the MX, Reagan is making the missile into an arms control question.

The MX is a strategic missile, bristling with 10 nuclear warheads, and it certainly doesn't look like a dove. But it's starting to sound like one.

The question before Congress now is of funds to develop and test the MX, which Reagan wants built and deployed in 100 existing missile silos in Nebraska and Wyoming.

"It will be one of the most important arms control votes of the 98th Congress," Reagan said at his news conference Tuesday night.

The argument is that unless the United States is proceeding with development and deployment of a new strategic weapon, the Soviet Union will have no incentive to bargain in the arms reduction talks resuming this summer in Geneva.

That case has been made before, and it has succeeded before, not only in Congress but in arms negotiations, as in the case of anti-ballistic missile systems.

"I know it sounds silly — to build in order to get rid of missiles," Reagan told about 100 business executives at a White House meeting this week. "But we're very dangerously close to not having the deterrent that we need to keep the other fellow from using his, or at least using them for blackmail."

The MX is the deterrent he wants first, as a weapon and also as something that could be bargained away in Geneva.

His commission, headed by Brent Scowcroft, national security adviser in the Ford White House, recommended MX deployment in existing silos, and went on to propose a new, small, single warhead missile for the future, and a new look in arms control proposals.

"Their report combined into one package three of our top priority goals — modernization, deterrence and arms control," Reagan said. "And I'm integrating their arms control recommendations into our START proposals."

START is the Reagan acronym for strategic arms reduction talks with the Soviet Union, due to resume this summer.

In arms control, the commission recommended a push for limits on the number of strategic warheads, rather than on the number of missiles deployed. One version of that "build-down" approach would be to scrap two existing warheads for each new one deployed. Reagan hasn't gone into detail on the subject, but he has endorsed the concept of a mutual build-down in strategic forces.

The MX would become one of the weapons to build down from, assuming the money to build it clears Congress. "The question now is whether the Congress can ... reach a consensus with resolution and unity to strengthen our national security, reduce the risk of war, and, ultimately, achieve reductions of nuclear weapons," Reagan said.

The arms control phase of the MX campaign has been a crucial one in administration efforts to persuade wavering members of Congress. They're being told that if MX isn't on the table, the negotiations will go nowhere.

Reagan has told them that if there is real progress on arms control, it may not be necessary to go ahead with all 100 MX missiles, and that if agreement comes first, it may not be necessary to deploy any.

"Clearly, consistent with our national security requirements, the overall level of Peacekeeper deployment will be influenced by Soviet strategic programs and arms reduction agreements," he said in a letter to House members.

He also has said that in deciding on the MX, Congress decide whether arms limitation stands a chance. Reagan said he is frustrated by "the amateur psychoanalysis" of critics who say he doesn't really want arms curbs. But he insisted there have to be more arms first, or the Soviets won't deal.

"Our self-restraint has left the Soviet Union with far less incentive to negotiate arms reduction," he said.

Planning Is Needed

NEW YORK (AP) — With the recent enactment of major changes in the Social Security system, financial experts say it has become more important than ever for Americans to plan early for retirement.

Under the Social Security Amendments Act signed by President Reagan last month, "you may have to work longer — or settle for reduced benefits," says Prentice-Hall, an Englewood Cliffs, N.J.-based publisher of tax information.

True, many of the major provisions in the law are scheduled to take effect gradually, thus cushioning their shock effects.

For example, the standard retirement age will be going up. But it will not change until two decades from now, when it will start climbing in stages from 65 to 67 by the year 2022.

Nevertheless, for anyone under the age of 45 that change is worth bearing in mind even now. Like many other provisions of the new law, it amounts to a reduction in total benefits for some participants in the system.

Another change with a broad impact is the taxation of up to one-half of Social Security retirement payments, beginning in 1984, for people whose income from other sources exceeds specified levels — $25,000 for single individuals and $32,000 for married couples filing joint returns.

The law does not provide for any increase in those cutoff points in the future, notes Ronald Haneberg, who keeps tabs on Social Security developments at the employee-benefit consulting firm of Buck Consultants Inc. So even with a moderate inflation rate, more and more people are likely to surpass those levels as the years go by.

"The taxation of Social Security benefits could mean several hundred dollars in additional taxes for many retirees," the firm said in a report analyzing the new law.

For today's worker facing a reduction in ultimate retirement benefits, financial experts point out, there are several alternative ways to make up the difference — and maybe even come out ahead.

Some suggestions from Prentice-Hall: —Individual Retirement Accounts, which allow for deductible contributions of up to $2,000 per year, and tax-free compounding until the money in them is withdrawn.

—Voluntary contributions to private retirement plans. "If your employer has a tax-qualified profit-sharing plan, you can salt away up to 10 percent of your earnings each year in the plan (assuming the plan permits it)," Prentice-Hall points out. Such contributions aren't deductible, but taxes on the earnings on them are deferred until they are withdrawn.

—A deferred annuity, sold by insurance companies.

—Taking part in a deferred-earnings plan, if your employer offers one. "Instead of giving you all of your salary in cash, you can have your employer contribute part of it to the profit-sharing plan," Prentice-Hall notes. "There is no tax on the amounts contributed — or on the earnings on the contributions — until you make withdrawals."

One part of the new law actually provides for an increase, rather than a cut, in Social Security retirement benefits. To take advantage of it, however, you have to keep working past the "normal" retirement age.

Under the old law, an individual received a 3 percent increase in benefits for each year he or she delayed retirement past 65, until age 70. In 1990, that bonus will rise to 3.5 percent, and in later years will increase in steps to as much as 8 percent.

How did a benefit increase get into a law that otherwise sought to increase receipts and reduce payouts for the Social Security system? Says Buck Consultants, "Congress wanted to encourage older people to continue working."

Legislators And Press Aren't Always Friends

The balconies at the rear of the House and Senate chambers in the state Legislative Building contain silent monuments to a 30-year-old battle that is still going on.

The balconies contain press boxes to which former state Sen. Tom White hoped to banish newspaper reporters when the Legislative Building was completed in 1963. The House press box has never been used on a regular basis, and the one in the Senate was used regularly only in the 1963 session.

The fact that the "chicken roost" facilities have seldom been used and that reporters are seated in makeshift facilities on the House and Senate floors would seem to indicate that the newspapermen won their battle, and that White suffered one of his rare defeats. Nothing would be farther from the truth.

Where once the reporters, who were seated at the front in the old House and Senate chambers — directly below the podium — ranged the legislative floors freely, they are now confined mostly to their chairs in the corners of the two chambers while the honorables are in session.

In the old legislative halls, when an exciting bill was introduced, the newspapermen could leave their seats, go to the introducer's seat and get his comment right then and there. Then they could rush outside to a telephone and call their offices with the story and have the news flashed across the state in a matter of minutes.

In the night sessions, or at other times when there were empty seats, reporters sometimes would take legislators' seats on the floor. It wasn't a practice that legislators liked.

Legislators' relations with newsmen were strained by a series of incidents that occurred around the time the Legislative Building was on the drawing board. Some of the reporters participated in a poll in which they selected those they considered the best and most influential House members. Everything would have been hunky-dory if they had stopped there. However, the man who organized the poll also decided the reporters should select the person they regarded as the worst House member.

After the morning papers carried the results of the poll and reported that the newsmen had voted unanimously to choose Rep. B.T. "Buzz" Falls of Cleveland County the worst House member, the legislators rallied to Falls' defense. They devoted an entire legislative day to castigating the newspapers that had carried the poll results.

The unfortunate poll had come only a few weeks after the lawmakers and the press had battled over legislative secrecy, over whether the Joint Appropriations subcommittee should vote on the state's budget details behind closed doors.

Press-legislative relations were soured again four years later when The News and Observer blew the whistle on the free liquor deliveries made to some lawmakers by lobbyists for the distillers.

So, when the Legislative Building was being planned some legislators were determined to put the reporters in their place and to banish them from the House and Senate floors.

One of the solons who possessed this determination and was in a position to do something about it was Tom White. He was chairman of a special commission the General Assembly set up to oversee the planning and construction of the new building. At the commission's behest, the architect drew plans for the new building.

After hearing the newsmen, both press and television, outline their needs, the commission approved the plans which called for large rooms to house the reporters' typewriters and Teletype machines and the television men's equipment.

However, for covering sessions of the House and Senate, the plans called only for a press box in the balcony at the rear of each chamber. Press representatives pleaded for press table on the floor, preferably in front of the presiding officers' desks, as in the state Capitol. They argued that being forced to work in the press boxes would hamper them in their task of informing the public.

But the commission refused to relent, and the press boxes in the balconies were provided. The newsmen carried their battle to the Legislature itself. Fortunately, in House Speaker Cliff Blue they found an ally who understood their problem. Blue, himself a newspaper publisher, arranged for the reporters to cover the House from chairs he had lined up along the wall at floor level to the right of the Speaker. As a result, the press box in the House balcony was never used on a regular basis.

But the Senate was a different kettle of fish, there Senate President Clarence Stone turned the reporters' request over to his top legislative lieutenant, none other than Sen. Tom White. Despite the newsmen's complaints that they could see only half of the senators and had difficulty in hearing them, they were forced to cover the 1963 Senate deliberations from the press box.

Things were changed again in 1965 when Lt. Gov. Bob Scott decided to let the reporters come down from their roost to chairs lined up along the side wall at the rear of the chamber. They've been there ever since, leaving the press box to be occupied mostly by visitors.

The presiding officers still are having problems accommodating the newsmen, whose ranks have grown from a handful half a century ago to scores now.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey had the reporters shifted from the right hand side of the chamber this year over to the left. He explained that some of the clerks complained they were distracted by conversations among the ladies and gentlemen of the press.

On the Senate side, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green recently called in Associated Press reporter Mary Anne Rhyne, the president of the Capitol Correspondents Association.

Reporters now must remain in their area at the rear of the Senate chamber, keep cameras relatively quiet and remain sufficiently silent so that senators will not hear them talking.

Families ...

ity, an important part of professional education," faculty adviser Dr. Linda Nieman said. "We've found that this program has definitely helped with this development in virtually all of the students."

"The program has helped us learn about the people of this area of North Carolina," first-year student Rosa Cuenca said. "We know very well that no family is typical, yet it is still an opportunity to get out and meet everyday people, not stay with our peers and our work all the time."

"This project has given us a chance to see how important families are to the individual patient's well-being," Lou Ann Baldree said. "Speed and completeness of recovery from illness so often depend on how good the communication and the support within the family is."

"When we started," Ms. Baldree went on, "we largely were looking at our families as studies in social dynamics. Gradually as our views of ourselves as student doctors have evolved, we are beginning to pick up on possible medical problems."

The students conduct projects based on their families and they share with each other about what they've learned. This sharing is always done in a manner that keeps the identity of the family known only to the sharer. "This," Dr. Nieman said, "is training for physician consultation in future years, too, since doctors should oblige themselves to share information about patients without revealing identities. I've been very impressed with how conscientious about confidentiality all the students seem to be."

"I feel good," Bell said, "that my family really seems to like me and feel comfortable asking me anything. They seem to see me as being a little less formidable than a doctor. In many cases, we can serve as a bridge between families and the physician, especially in cases where there is one sick member whom the doctor sees mostly and a number of family members who have serious concerns about the patient and how to best support him or her."

Ranjan Sharma, a first-year student, made the point. "We all tend to view normal as what we're used to in ourselves and our own families. That's why I've enjoyed this project. It's given me a chance to fairly intimately get to know a family other than my own. I feel fortunate that my family has been very open, very out-going and has really let me in to know them."

The project has been a good lesson in observation, Dr. Nieman points out. "The students tend to start out being very prone to jump to conclusions about what they see in various family member's behavior. It's a good way to teach them observational skills that are invaluable to a doctor."

The students said they felt concern at first that the project was a boon to the medical students but was perhaps an imposition on the families taking part. "I've come to see, though," Sharma said, "that most of them really do enjoy the extra attention and feel they are contributing to the school of medicine and to us personally."

"Also," Rosa said, "many of us have gone beyond the call of duty to find little and large ways to assist our families. This could be anything from enlisting public health assistance if there are roaches or rats in the house, to enlisting a social worker if there is financial difficulty when a family member is in the hospital, to going by and paying a friendly visit when one of ours is in the hospital."

Bell said he's also been pleased that some of the projects have offered pluses to the patients in terms of information. He gave an example: "We recently had to do an involved study of each family member's occupation and how the activities and conditions within it have been observed to contribute or detract from a person's health. We were able to give the findings on this occupational hazard study back to our patients in such a way as will benefit them if they'll use it."

Asked if, whether, based on the experience with this program, they feel that housecalls should be a part of a family physician's service to his patients, Sharma answered, "Housecalls definitely have a place, as does informal home visiting to find out literally and emotionally where a patient is coming from. Of course, a doctor must decide for himself how to use his time to serve all his patients to the best of his ability. Housecalls are time-consuming, but I do think that with the growing geriatric population, housecalls will once again become important. There is a political groundswell, I think, to require insurance companies to look at paying for housecalls when they're deemed needed. It's a complicated question but one that the health caregivers are looking at, and I think that's good."

"One of the most important things I've learned," Ms. Baldree said, "is that a doctor isn't always able to prescribe a cure for every ailment and condition. Sometimes all he or she can do is be there for the person. This program has constantly stressed to us the value of just listening to people. And my family has shown me that this is one of the most important things a doctor can do. I plan to always remember this and use it in my practice."

CITY OF GREENVILLE PUBLIC HEARING

The Greenville City Council is exploring the feasibility of additional sources of City revenues through the establishment of a refuse collection fee. A public hearing has been scheduled for Monday, May 23, 1983, at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, third floor of the Municipal Building, to receive citizen comments on the proposed fee.

The proposal under review by the City Council is as follows:

|---|-------------|-------------------------------|
| Residential Refuse Collection Fee | Monthly Fee | $3 per residential household |
| Business, Commercial, Institutional, Churches, & Charitable Organizations | Monthly Fee | $12 per container |

All citizens of Greenville are encouraged to attend this public hearing at which time they will be afforded an opportunity to present written and oral comments on the feasibility of establishing a refuse collection fee.

Poland Claims Death Exploited

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party newspaper said Saturday that Solidarity activists used the funeral of a high school youth "for propaganda" and turned the mourning into "an anti-state demonstration."

Trybuna Ludu also claimed that Lech Walesa, a founder and leader of the outlawed Solidarity labor union, "made use" of the death of 18-year-old Grzegorz Przemek.

An estimated 20,000 people gathered at the St. Stanislaw Koska church for Thursday's funeral Mass and then marched to Powazki cemetery in one of the largest pro-Solidarity demonstrations in recent months.

Przemek had been detained by police the previous Thursday and his mother, Barbara Sadowska, a Solidarity supporter, charged that he was fatally beaten by the officers.

The communist government has promised to investigate the death and the official news agency PAP, in a weekly review distributed Saturday, acknowledged the youth was "brutally beaten," but did not say by whom.

A police communique issued last week claimed that Przemek was drunk when taken in to custody.

Trybuna Ludu, in its attack on Walesa, said he "also made use of this tragic affair. His message read during the funeral Mass had a very ambiguous content."

In a telegram read over loudspeakers at the Mass, Walesa vowed that the youth's death "will not be forgotten."

Trybuna Ludu also criticized Roman Catholic priests who it said were "active in creating this (anti-state) atmosphere" at the funeral. It did not name the priests.

In a separate editorial, the party newspaper rejected repeated calls by Catholic church leaders.

South African Guerrillas Warn Of More Attacks

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Black guerrillas on Saturday warned of more attacks against the "forces of oppression," and South Africa's white-minority government threatened to strike terrorist bases in retaliation for the car bombing that killed 17 people and wounded

188. "Never again are we people going to be doing all of the bleeding," Oliver Tambo, head of the outlawed African National Congress, told reporters in Nairobi, Kenya. "Don't you think we have offered the other cheek so many times so there is no cheek left to offer?" Foreign diplomats have been predicting the African National Congress might launch attacks in the weeks preceding the June 16 anniversary of the 1976 Soweto riots. Hundreds of blacks were killed in the sprawling slum outside Johannesburg and the riots led to months of unrest. On Friday afternoon, a car packed with explosives blew up outside the air force headquarters in this capital city, leaving more casualties than any other single attack in the guerrilla struggle against white rule. Police and army teams were still trying to identify bodies. South Africa blamed the bombing on the ANC, which maintains offices or bases in most of South Africa's black-ruled neighbors. The Pretoria government has at various times been accused of or has acknowledged attacking ANC bases in those countries. After the bombing, Defense Minister Magnus Malan said South Africa should mount pre-emptive strikes against ANC targets, but did not specify where.

"If we don't start taking that kind of action now, we're sitting around and waiting for an atrocity to happen. So we've got to do something about it," Malan told reporters in Cape Town. Police Minister Louis le Grange told South African television Saturday: "No government of any neighboring state where members of the ANC are... can expect us as a government to stand with our hands behind our backs.

the joint meetings have proved beneficial. "As a result, things work out pretty good."

The latest thing, according to Gaskins, is an effort to consolidate the city and county animal shelters — not the animal control programs, but the facilities to house animals.

"I think the relationship is very good now. In fact, I know it is. It's just great," Gaskins said.

Gaskins also mentioned the possibility of future consolidation of the building inspections programs operated by the two governments. The county now is responsible for conducting electrical inspections within the city, but other inspections are still done by separate departments.

Gaskins said, too, that the county "has acknowledged we would like to work more closely" with the city in planning outside the city's extrajurisdictional area, especially "where variances" may be needed to improve long range planning.

"It all boils down to the fact that as far as the Board of Commissioners are concerned, we want to work anyway we can to the benefit of the people of Pitt County. Greenville is a part of the county," Gaskins emphasized.

County Manager Reginald Gray mirrored Gaskins' view of the cooperative efforts, and said he and City Manager Gail Meeks work closely together to solve mutual problems, and to keep problems from occurring.

According to Mrs. Meeks, "In the year I've been city manager, I think the relationship between the city and county has greatly improved. The atmosphere that exists between both organizations is good now. We sit down and talk about items of mutual interest and concern."

"It seems though we share the same views and concerns now, rather than going off in different directions. Working together benefits all citizens."

The city manager also said "from a personal viewpoint, Reginald Gray is a fine person to work with. He's been in government a long time and I find myself asking his advice. He's been very helpful to me in the last year."

New Sub Commissioned

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger defended the capabilities of U.S. submarines against the Soviet Union's larger fleet Saturday at the commissioning of the Navy's newest nuclear attack submarine.

"We cannot seek to match the Soviets man for man or weapon for weapon," Weinberger told about 800 people attending the commissioning of the USS Norfolk at the Norfolk Naval Station.

But he said the United States' technological edge keeps the country stronger than the Soviet Union.

"Creativity and ingenuity and the willingness to take risks and rise to challenges — all of this is the qualities that we value and nurture, just as the Soviet Union fears them and stamps them out," Weinberger said.

Chief of Naval Operations James Watkins said Wednesday that the Navy wants to build a new type of submarine which could hunt and destroy Soviet missile-firing subs, which can hide under thick Arctic ice.

The bigger, more powerful submarine would replace the Los Angeles-class nuclear-powered submarines. The Norfolk is the 23rd submarine of that class to be built. At Groton, Conn., meanwhile, Sen. Peter V. Domenici called the new attack submarine USS Albuquerque part of a military deterrent whose importance "cannot be overestimated."

The Los Angeles-class submarine was officially turned over to the Navy in a ceremony at which Domenici, R-N.M., said, "This ship and its crew symbolize a commitment to a modern, well-equipped Navy."

The Albuquerque is the second of attack submarine delivered to the Navy this year by Electric Boat Division shipyard in Groton.

use negative campaign advertising and spend lots of money.

"Negative campaign ads in newspapers are not going to beat Gov. Jim Hunt. What will beat Jim Hunt is grass-roots organization, from the very bottom, from Manteo to Murphy," Redman said.

Little, who broke tradition and nominated himself, appealed to those who were "sick and tired of the name calling and back biting."

Little said he nominated himself because he entered the race only weeks ago and did not have the chance to speak to the whole group.

Flaherty defended his actions as chairman since 1981 in a report to the convention Saturday morning.

"I have tried to do the things you might want me to do, but I'm sure I've made some mistakes," he said. Flaherty noted during the past two years the party has acquired its own computer, hired a staff including a researcher and financial director, established a state newsletter, developed a money-raising program and worked on ways to reach more counties.

Earlier Donaldson, who opposed Flaherty's candidacy, asked party officials whether they had investigated charges that a Catawba County delegate was handing out blank voting credentials to people as they came in the door.

Boger and Little have charged since before the convention that Flaherty supporters were attempting to add names to the list of delegates to boost their support. Flaherty has said those charges are unfounded and merely indicate his opponents' lack of backing for the chairmanship.

Former Gov. Jim Holshouser pleaded with the convention for unity.

"We should give thought to whether unity is not the most important factor here," said Holshouser, a Little supporter.

In convention speeches and a luncheon address, Lee Atwater, special assistant to President Reagan and U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, promised Reagan will seek re-election in 1984 and will win. They urged the delegates to return Helms to Washington.

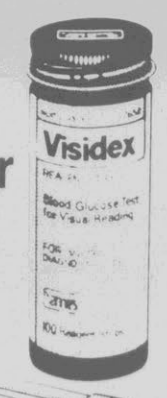

"In my opinion, without a doubt, the president is going to run again," Atwater said. "He's not going to quit the job until the job's done. Unfortunately, it takes more than four years to get the job done."

He and Gramm agreed that Reagan is likely to run on the same platform that put him in office in 1980. Gramm explained that the economic recovery will make that platform even more appealing.

"Ronald Reagan will be elected not because he brought a new prosperity, but because... Ronald Reagan gave us hope," he said.

"But it is not enough just to re-elected Ronald Reagan president," Gramm added. "If we don't maintain control of the Senate, we will see the presidency crippled."

Robot's Speech Draws Ho-Hum From Students

ARNOLD, Md. (AP) - Commencement exercises at Anne Arundel Community College on Saturday were absolutely traditional except for one thing: The speaker was 4 1/2 feet tall, had a chrome head and went by the name of Robot Redford.

The decision by officials of the two-year college to march bravely into the future with a robot leading the way as commencement speaker created controversy within the student body and anxiety within the college administration.

But in the end, it all went smoothly.

Robot Redford had its big moment, doing little but roll to the front of the stage and turn from side to side while its creator, William Bakaleinikoff, spoke through an off-stage microphone. "Computers are now a part of us all," he said.

"If it had been better programmed, to talk and to deliver the address, I would have liked it better," said graduate Burton Edwards, whose field of study was computer technology.

But Robot Redford was clearly upstaged by the event's human participants.

It was class valedictorian Kathleen Hammac who brought the crowd to its feet for a standing ovation, when she broke into tears while thanking her parents and two small daughters for their support during her education.

The robot's presence, did, however, transform the graduation into a media event, with television crews from England and Sweden and broadcasters from Canada joining hordes of domestic reporters in recording the ceremonies.

Student reaction after the speech ranged from enthusiastic approval to mild disapproval.

"I thought it was great. I thought it fit the times," said Sherri Hoffman, echoing a theme cited by several students who approved of the robot's selection as commencement speaker.

Robert Smith said he almost didn't come to his commencement because a robot was the speaker, but added that "it wasn't quite as bad as I thought it would be."

Task Force Leader Says AIDS Not A Threat To General Public

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—For a time, before it even had a name, the ailment now known as AIDS was referred to offhandedly as a "gay disease," believed limited to male homosexuals.

Then it appeared in heroin users, Haitian immigrants and hemophiliacs.

Last week, the circle grew. It was reported in a New York City sanitation man and in heterosexual partners of drug abusers. There seemed to be evidence it could be passed from one member of a household to another without intimate contact.

Fears grew. But the leader of the fight against AIDS says the danger to the public has been overstated.

"The risk to the general public is minimal," says Dr.

James Curran, head of the AIDS task force at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"Ninety-five percent of the cases are in the four high risk groups (homosexuals, hemophiliacs, drug abusers and Haitian immigrants). Among the other 5 percent, many have either potential explanations or have been inadequately evaluated."

AIDS, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, first appeared in 1979, but it was not until the spring of 1981 that doctors in New York and California realized they were dealing with an epidemic rather than isolated cases.

Since then, the disease has spread quickly. The CDC now gets reports of four or five cases a day.

But reports that the number of cases is doubling every six months are, again, misleading, Curran says.

"It did double every six months the first three years, but the history of the illness is so short, that's almost meaningless," Curran says. "Eventually it's going to have to slow down."

How can he be certain? "Look at hepatitis B, serum hepatitis," he says. "Here is an infection that spreads more easily than AIDS and faster than AIDS. It's been around forever. It's had its opportunity to spread around, and it's still a much greater threat to gay men and drug addicts than to the rest of the population."

Another reason to think AIDS will not spread widely is that no health workers have yet come down with it.

"I've been taking care of AIDS patients for three years, and I haven't got AIDS yet, and there's been no spread in the hospital," says Dr. James Oleske of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

"There will be people who don't have (AIDS) risk factors and will develop AIDS, but it's going to be a rare occurrence," he says.

Oleske says he has received many calls in the last few days from people on the verge of panic over AIDS. He says one caller asked whether she should dismiss her Haitian housekeeper.

Dr. Joyce Wallace, a New York physician who has several patients with AIDS, says the public reaction to the recent AIDS stories has been "pretty awful."

She says she sent a messenger with a package of specimens to a parcel delivery service. The return address listed the AIDS Foundation in New York.

"Because of that, they wouldn't take the package," she says. "They kept her waiting for three hours while they checked with the CDC." The package was eventually accepted.

Curran and others are also emphasizing that AIDS is not uniformly fatal, as many news accounts have had it.

"People read that there's a mortality rate of 100 percent, and it makes an AIDS diagnosis tantamount to a death sentence. It's very demoralizing, and I don't think the evidence supports that view," says Michael Callen, a 28-year-old homosexual man in New York City.

Callen has a personal interest in AIDS. He was diagnosed with the disease in December 1981.

"I seemed to get colds and flu and infections much more frequently," he says. "Anything that was going around, I would get it first." By the summer of 1982, he was in the hospital with an infection of cryptosporidium, a rare parasite that causes severe, prolonged diarrhea. He was back in the hospital later with bronchitis. Since then, his condition seems to have improved slightly.

"I'm feeling better, as simplistic as it sounds. Certain tests have showed steady if very slow improvement," he says. He is eating right, getting plenty of sleep, and avoiding infections, as his doctor advised.

"I am no longer engaging in multiple anonymous sexual contacts," he adds, "for the reasons of protecting my own health and the ethical problem of protecting the partners."

While Callen's outlook is uncertain, AIDS in its most serious form seems to be invariably fatal. As of May 18, the CDC had reports of 1,450 severe cases in the United States. Of those, 558 had died. Eighty to 90 percent of the AIDS patients counted by the CDC have died within two years of diagnosis.

The CDC, however, counts only AIDS victims who have already developed extremely serious secondary illnesses such as Kaposi's sarcoma, an otherwise rare cancer, or Pneumocystis pneumonia, caused by an unusual parasite. The mortality rate among those people is therefore bound to be high.

But there are probably 10 times as many people with less severe forms of the disease, Curran says. "Many people probably have milder illness with a better prognosis, but that isn't known," he says.

Whether severe or mild, most of the AIDS cases fall into the high-risk categories of homosexuals, hemophiliacs, Haitians and drug abusers.

Study Links Smoking, Cervical Cancer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Cigarette smoking has been linked with cervical cancer in a University of Utah study, with the greatest risk appearing among those in the 20 to 29 age group.

"It's obvious to me that there is a connection between smoking and cervical cancer, and that connection is much more pronounced in the younger age groups," Dr. Joseph Lyon, who conducted the study with several associates at the university, said Friday.

"Cigarette smoke is known to trigger cancer in the mouth, voice box, throat, lungs, pancreas and bladder. This study suggests that the cervix should be added to that list," Lyon said.

He the increase in smoking among women in recent years helped magnify a risk that may once have been very small.

"Women are smoking at a younger age and changing from pufflers to serious smokers," Lyon said.

The study, done between 1975 and 1977, included 217 Utah women who were suffering from cervical cancer and 234 cancer-free women chosen at random from the state's four most populous counties.

The women with cervical cancer were on average three times more likely to be smokers, the study said. The women with cervical cancer in the 20-29 age group were 17 times more likely to be smokers. The rate decreased with age.

The study, Lyon said, indicated "if you smoke, you'd better be getting your Pap smears very often. It adds a criteria that doctors now have to consider."

Lyon said discovery of a smoking-cervical cancer link surprised the researchers, who had not begun the study with that in mind.

Seventy percent of Utah's 1.5 million residents belong to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The church frowns on smoking and drinking.

"The disease rarely appears among active Mormons," Lyon said. "Among inactive Mormons it is about the same as non-Mormons."

"As women in the younger group probably had been smoking for, at the most, 10 to 15 years, this study suggests that the latency period for cervical cancer is relatively short," Lyon said.

Results of the study appeared in this month's issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

FDA Calls For Second CAT Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration has rejected a manufacturer's plan to deal with a potential malfunction in diagnostic X-ray scanners by distributing new operating instructions for the machines, an FDA spokesman said Saturday.

The agency spokesman, Chris Smith, said the manufacturer, Technicare Corp., has been directed by the FDA to submit within three weeks a new plan for preventing further problems with the computer axial tomography or CAT scanners.

The FDA announced last month that a pause button on 238 CAT scanners built by Technicare may not function properly, causing the units sometimes to emit "unnecessary and possibly hazardous amounts" of radiation.

Technicare told the agency that the problem was due to improper operating procedures, rather than equipment malfunction. The company, a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson of New Brunswick, N.J., distributed new operating instructions to users of the CAT scanners.

F. Robert Kniffin, a Johnson & Johnson spokesman, said the scanners replaced the need for exploratory surgery in some cases after they were introduced in the 1970s.

They were found in 28 instances to have emitted more radiation than operators had intended, Kniffin said.

Technicare told the agency that the problem was due to improper operating procedures, rather than equipment malfunction.

"They have told us they have considered our contention that this is not a defect and have concluded that it is," Kniffin said.

Smith said the FDA has notified Technicare that it did not provide enough information to enable the agency to decide whether the firm had correctly identified the problem or to evaluate Technicare's plan for rectifying the problem.

The government spokesman added: "We don't think at this time it's a significant hazard. People shouldn't be scared to get a CAT scan if they're supposed to get a CAT scan" as part of medical treatment.

Kniffin said, "It has been very, very rare that this has occurred by any stretch of the imagination."

The 28 incidents occurred in about 7.5 million scans, he said.

The last incident was in February. "It was after that one that the FDA asked us for a corrective plan," Kniffin said.

Tornadoes And Heavy Rains Rake Texas Again

HOUSTON (AP) — Tornadoes, hail, heavy rains and howling winds pummeled southeastern Texas for a second day Saturday, forcing at least 600 people to flee rising floodwaters and hampering efforts to clean up destruction called the worst in more than two decades.

On Friday, a wave of tornadoes ravaged the Houston area killing at least 10 people and injuring at least 100, leaving as many as 1,000 families homeless and cutting electricity to about 200,000 customers.

There was a brief respite from the storms overnight, and much of the power went back on. But on Saturday morning, a new storm cranked out at least 11 tornadoes statewide as it strengthened and began its eastward march across the region, dumping rain and 1-inch hail on swollen rivers and sodden soil.

The National Weather Service warned already jittery southeastern Texas residents to brace for more tornadoes, severe thunderstorms and flooding Saturday. Authorities urged people living in low-lying areas or in mobile homes to seek higher ground and stronger shelter.

"This has really made people jumpy. We get a call every time someone sees a black cloud," said Maj. Tommy Thomas of the Harris County Sheriff's Department.

Three tornadoes dipped from black skies Saturday near Sealy and Bellville in Austin County, west of Houston. Two were spotted near Houston Intercontinental Airport and a third touched down in an open field in west Houston. The twisters retreated to the clouds without causing any damage or injuries, authorities said.

In coastal Port Arthur, a tornado was spotted near Sour Lake but apparently did no damage.

"My husband told me to take a vacation, get away and relax," Linda Rolls of Reno, Nev., said ruefully as she waited in a Port Arthur airport terminal for a flight to Austin. "So what do I do? I come to tornado country."

In central Texas, tornadoes touched down near Gonzales and Northrup, where a woman was injured, and near Dublin and Gorman.

In Montgomery County, north of Houston, at least 500 people were evacuated from five subdivisions near the San Jacinto River and Peach Creek, said Nancy Mayes, civil defense director. Several visitors at a campground had to be rescued by boats, she said.

"We have water in the homes and the river and creeks still rising. But we don't know how extensive the damage is or will be. We're still in the middle of a storm," she said.

Meteorologist Steve Harned estimated Lake Houston would crest three to five feet above flood stage Sunday and threaten residents in the Channelview and Lynchburg suburbs through Monday, and civil defense officials urged residents to evacuate the area.

"That water will go right down the San Jacinto River. There are several thousand people in that area and we're advising them to get out while they still can," said John Caswell of the Houston-Harris County Civil Defense office.

Montgomery County has been the hardest hit by the storms, with two people killed and at least 350 homes and dozens of businesses damaged or destroyed.

About 100 people were evacuated from 50 homes near Beaumont as Hildebrandt Bayou spilled from its banks, Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells said.

Some people refused to leave their homes even though creeks ran as deep as 20 feet over some roads, said constable's officer J. McDougal.

"We've been telling them, 'OK, give me your name, date of birth and next of kin so we can notify them when we find your body,'" said McDougal. He said that usually worked.

Authorities had made no estimates of damage, but one official predicted the destruction would be among the highest ever recorded.

"I was here for Hurricane Carla in 1961 and we have more damage already," said John Caswell of the Houston-Harris County Civil Defense. When the hurricane slammed into the Texas coast, it killed 34 people and caused about $400 million in damage.

In parts of Houston, the sun broke through the clouds about midday Saturday. Residents grabbed power saws and rakes and started cleaning up the rubble left by Friday's storms, which reduced mobile homes to splinters, snapped trees 2 feet wide, lifted roofs from homes, apartment buildings and one hospital in Port Arthur and mangled planes and hangars at two small airports.

"I drove over here with my mouth open all the way. I've never seen so much destruction," said Bob Hargrove as he and his wife, Betty, picked up the pieces of their doughnut shop in north Houston.

Only one wall stood, but the pictures were left neatly hanging and soft-drink machines and newspaper racks were untouched. The rest of the shop was scattered over the block.

"It looks like someone just sat on the road and used a mortar on the place until they had everything blown up. There was nothing left," Hargrove said.

More than 100 utility crews worked through the night and all day Saturday to try to restore power to about 200,000 residents of the six counties in and around Houston.

"Since Friday morning we have been able to restore power to all but about 60,000 customers," said Steve Gonzalez, a spokesman for Houston Lighting & Power. "That's a big dent."

Reagan Says Federal Aid Won't Help Schools

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — President Reagan, declaring "we just haven't been getting our money's worth," said Saturday that the nation's schools were not making the grade and more federal dollars will not help.

"The road to better education for all our people simply cannot be paved with more and more recycled tax dollars collected, redistributed, and over-regulated by Washington bureaucrats," the president told 1,900 graduates, faculty and guests at commencement ceremonies at Seton Hall University.

The four-year Roman Catholic college is in this north Jersey town, about 15 miles west of New York City.

Visits to the northeast have been rare for Reagan, who has been concentrating his public appearances in the politically friendly Sun Belt. The northeast is considered less crucial than the South and West to any re-election plans if Reagan seeks a second term.

But one Republican strategist, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, pointed out that New Jersey has been friendly territory for recent Republican presidential candidates. Reagan enjoyed a landslide victory there in 1980, President Nixon carried the state by a wide margin in his 1972 campaign for re-election and President Ford won there by a slight margin in 1976.

When he was introduced, Reagan was given a standing ovation from most, but not all, of the graduates.

At least one graduate and several faculty members walked out as the president started to speak. Earlier, they had distributed a notice of their plans to protest his appearance and the high unemployment rate in the area.

While the president spoke, chanting from about 100 persons demonstrating outside the campus' main gates could barely be heard. They were gathered to protest the president's arms policies and efforts to increase funding to Central America. Another group of about the same size came to support his stand against the regime of Fidel Castro in Cuba.

ERIC HOFFER

Philosopher Eric Hoffer Dies At 80

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Eric Hoffer, the waterfront philosopher whose blunt, unsentimental commentaries on Americans, their work and their longings brought him fame in the 1960s, died early Saturday at the age of 80.

Author of the best-seller, "The True Believer," Hoffer died at his San Francisco home from natural causes, according to the coroner's office.

After decades working odd jobs, moving from crop to crop as a migrant farmhand and stalking the docks as a longshoreman, Hoffer parlayed his experiences into philosophical commentaries carried by almost 200 newspapers.

He lectured around the country, appeared on television and held the post of "conversationalist at large" at the University of California at Berkeley.

In February, Hoffer was one of 12 Americans to win the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor.

Beside "The True Believer" in 1951, his other books were "The Passionate State of Mind" in 1955, "The Ordeal of Change" in 1963, "Temper of Our Time" in 1967, "Working and Thinking on the Waterfront" in 1969, "First Things Last Things" in 1970, "Reflections on the Human Condition" in 1972, "In Our Time" in 1976 and "Before the Sabbath" in 1979.

Hoffer believed that work is vital to a humanity's self worth even though "it is natural to feel that work is a curse."

His pessimistic analysis of society's mass movements brought him a wide, almost cult-like following among disenchanted students and intellectuals.

Hoffer said he lost his sight at the age of 7 when his mother died and regained it gradually when he was 15.

Habib Confers With Mubarak

CAIRO, EGYPT — U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib on Saturday urged "all reasonable people and all reasonable nations" to support the Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement. He said he was optimistic foreign troops eventually will leave Lebanon, despite Syria's opposition to the accord.

Habib, who flew to Tel Aviv Saturday, made his comments in Cairo, Egypt, after a 75-minute meeting with President Hosni Mubarak.

The American diplomat will meet with Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir Sunday and Shamir will then report to the Cabinet at its regular meeting, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

Youths Battle Neo-Nazis

BAD HERSFELD, West Germany — Punk-rockers and other youths protesting a Nazi SS veterans' reunion battled black-booted Neo-Nazis and riot police Saturday, sending five people to the hospital and seven to jail.

The fighting began after about 100 demonstrators, many of them with spiked hair and studded bomber jackets, peeled off from a group of 5,000 protesters who peacefully marched 10 abreast through Bad Hersfeld's main square chanting, "Nazis Go Home!"

Hometown Salutes Jimmy Stewart

INDIANA, Pa. — Actor James Stewart, honored in a birthday tribute for "plain old Jim," told the people of his small home town Saturday that he will always feel a part of them.

"I belong here," said Stewart, his voice cracking with emotion, at a ceremony where a 9-foot statue was dedicated in front of the town's red-brick courthouse a day after his 75th birthday. A crowd of 30,000 attended the ceremony.

Woman Fakes Illness, Buys Car

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — A married couple has been arrested after the wife falsely claimed she suffered leukemia and bought a car from the money donated for her treatment, the Belgrade daily newspaper Politika reported Saturday.

Djuka, 25, and her husband Muhamed Mesevic, 30, were arrested as they began to spend $6,500 provided through private donations by residents of the central town of Priboj.

The woman forged a medical certificate which said she had leukemia and could only be cured in Switzerland. She then sought help from her unwitting father who launched a fund-raising campaign. Police said the couple bought a car with the money.

Woman Arraigned In Abduction

LONDON (AP) — A 20-year-old woman was arraigned Saturday on charges of abducting the actress-niece of Conservative member of Parliament Winston Churchill with the intent to force her into prostitution.

Catherine O'Connor, who gave no permanent address and said she was unemployed, was charged with abducting Georgina Wilson, 22.

Miss Wilson was picked up in a car by a man and two women, threatened with a knife and driven around London April 9, according to a police spokesman. The abductors demanded no ransom and returned her, unhurt, to her parents' house seven hours later, he said.

She is Churchill's niece by marriage. He is the grandson of Britain's wartime leader Sir Winston Churchill.

Guerrillas Ambush Convoys

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Left-wing guerrillas ambushed two military convoys early Saturday, setting off battles on an eastern road, military sources reported. They said there also was fighting in northeastern Morazan province, near the Honduran border, and 20 rebels were killed.

The sources, with access to defense reports, said the rebels ambushed an army truck near Usulután City, 69 miles east of the capital, early Saturday.

The soldiers fought back and a truck convoy carrying national guardsmen from the nearby city of Santiago de Maria to help the government troops also was ambushed, setting off a second battle.

There was no immediate report of casualties.

Blacks Protest Shootings

EUFAULA, Ala. — More than 350 blacks marched on city hall Saturday, shouting for the dismissal of two white policemen involved in the shooting deaths of two black brothers.

The marchers said they were not satisfied with a Henry County grand jury report that exonerated the officers, and called for a federal grand jury investigation of the Easter weekend shooting of Hamp and Anthony Russaw.

Police officials said the two officers remain on the force, but have been taken off patrol duty.

The march was the latest in a series of boycotts and rallies organized by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and local ministers. Police said the protest, like all the others, was peaceful.

Mrs. Thatcher Greeted By Jeers

LONDON (AP) — Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher turned shopper on the campaign trail, buying groceries and lecturing on prices in a supermarket in her north London district of Finchley.

A wearier opposition Labor Party leader, Michael Foot, plodded through hospitals and centers for the unemployed, promising more jobs and no nuclear missiles.

Mrs. Thatcher ignored the young Labor supporters' jeers this weekend in socially mixed Finchley, which she has represented for 24 years. She was equally unmoved by the press and opposition criticism of her "headmistress" demeanor at news conferences — interrupting senior Cabinet ministers who flank her and twice last week publicly correcting Foreign Secretary Francis Pym on campaign issues.

"I've known some very, very good headmistresses who have launched their pupils on wonderful careers," Mrs. Thatcher told a television interviewer.

Finchley — where 25 percent of the 56,000 votes are working class — yielded Mrs. Thatcher an 8,000-vote majority in the 1979 election. Finchley is still regarded as a safe Conservative Party district, but by no means a guaranteed win for the Tories.

Accompanied by her daughter Carol, 29, and followed by a crush of party aides, security men and journalists, Mrs. Thatcher pushed a shopping basket in a 30-minute spree through a local supermarket.

She devoted a few minutes to talking about food prices with shopper Irene Hwaggan, 64. Her favorite theme was that her administration has cut inflation to a 15-year low of 4 percent.

"Whatever you think of her, she does what she says she's going to do. She's strong," commented Mrs. Hwaggan.

Foot had his own favorite theme to discuss when he visited the Banbury district: near-record unemployment of 3.17 million, or 13.3 percent.

The Tory margin of victory in the 64,700-vote district was 13,000 in 1979. Aides said Foot was there because the relatively prosperous north Oxfordshire town is now "marginal."

"Unemployment is a scandal ... We're going to nail the Tory lie (that) there's no alternative," he said.

A man shouted, "Where the hell do you think you're going to get the money from?"

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Communicating with Zachary is often quite tedious because Zachary already has preconceived notions about how everything should be done.

Some of these notions he borrowed from his sister, who has been convinced from birth that she is infallible and has somehow imparted this belief to her pesky but doting brother. Meg knows the right way to dig a hole in the mud and to sing every nursery school song ever composed. It would never occur to Zachary to question her renditions, although they are occasionally more creative than accurate. And if I dare to question them, I am subjected to severe criticism.

"The people on the bus do not go up and down all over town; they go up and down all day," Zachary told me recently. "That's the way Meg says it."

"Meg is not always right," I answered.

He put his hands on his hips. "I'm gonna tell."

Even Meg, however, cannot sway him from his conviction that the television set is unerringly responsive to the commands of all the family members except him. He drives her crazy on Saturday morning with his insistence that she conjure up "Sesame Street" or another hour of Smurfs.

"I have no control over what comes on," she keeps telling him, echoing the same defense that I employ upon weekday mornings when he wants me to change Jane Pauley into Mr. Rogers. He doesn't believe either Meg or me. He prefers to think that we're incredibly selfish.

But his pigheaded ideas about storytelling are more irritating than his obstinacy in other areas. In the first place he doesn't trust me. He has caught me skipping pages too many times in the interminable "Dr. Seuss Dictionary," and now each reading session is frequently punctuated with the accusation, "You skipped." What's more, we cannot continue until I turn back and prove his satisfaction that I did nothing of the kind.

And heaven forbid that I get a word wrong in any of the old favorites. Unfortunately, my mind tends to wander after the 400th reading of a Golden Book, and I often find myself reciting from a somewhat debilitated memory.

For instance, the other morning when I was reading "The Little Red Caboose" to Zachary for the sixth straight time, I made the mistake of saying, "It looked as if that train could not get up the hill."

"The mountain," Zachary said.

"The mountain," I repeated.

"You said 'hill' and it's 'mountain,'" he persisted. "You need to read the page again."

"That's ridiculous." He was intractable. "You need to read it again. You did it wrong."

"You're making a mountain out of molehill, young man."

"No, you made a hill out of a mountain."

Ignoring him, I turned the page. "Look out, little caboose," called the flat car. "I read."

"Where's the mouth?"

I was startled. "What mouth?"

"Their mouth. The flat car and that caboose are talking to each other, and they don't have mouths. How can they talk without mouths? This is a stupid book."

"Now you notice," I mumbled. "Do you want me to finish reading it?"

He thought this over. "Yes, and don't say hill again."

"I won't," I sighed. "Forgive me."

He gave me a stern look. "Okay. But this is the last time."

TALKING COCKPIT
MARTON, England (AP)

— Engineers at British Aerospace are developing a "talking cockpit" for fighter pilots that will shout warnings of an approaching enemy and allow the pilot to give simple voice commands, the company said.

Infant Suffers Mild Liver Rejection

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Amy Hardin, an 11-month old liver transplant patient, was back in intensive care at University of Minnesota Hospitals on Saturday, but her mother said she is "doing OK, just fine."

Robin Hardin said her daughter was undergoing "very mild rejection" of the transplanted liver but the threat was being controlled through medication. "We were told at the start to expect ups and downs, and she's getting them."

Hospital spokesmen said Amy's condition was stable.

The transplant was performed May 10 by a team of surgeons headed by Dr. John Najarian, University Hospitals' chief of surgery. The liver was donated by the parents of Daniel Sakellarios, a 7½-month-old boy from Monticello, Fla., who died after being injured while in a sitter's care.

For three days after the operation, Amy was in intensive care, then moved to an acute care unit, where she remained until about 3 a.m. Thursday after her heart rate dropped and she stopped breathing, Mrs. Hardin said. She was placed on a respirator and put under sedation.

She was taken off the respirator on Friday, Mrs. Hardin said, "and was doing better." She said she expected Amy to leave the intensive care unit about Monday.

One of Amy's problems is that the donated liver was a little too large for her tiny body and it pressed against the bottom of a lung, causing that portion of the lung to collapse, her mother said.

Pope Keeps Date Despite Fire-Bombing

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Pope John Paul II, maintaining his schedule despite the fire-bombing of an altar where he is to celebrate Mass, made an unprecedented appearance at Milan's La Scala opera house Saturday night and acknowledged it was an "unusual event."

Earlier Saturday, a man hurled a gasoline bomb at a carpeted, metal-and-wood stand in front of the Regina Pacis Church in northern Milan, officials said.

The attacker escaped on a motorcycle with another man, police said, and no one asserted responsibility for the act.

Damage to the stand should be repaired before the pope celebrates Mass there Sunday shortly before heading back to the Vatican, officials said.

Applause by a standing audience of 2,000 greeted the pope as he entered La Scala and took a center seat for the concert of religious compositions by Giuseppe Verdi.

At the end of the 30-minute concert, he joined the audience in applause and then walked to the podium to shake hands with maestro Riccardo Muti, music director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the first violinist.

Standing on the podium, the pope thanked the musicians and the theater management "for the unusual event of a pope at La Scala. It is difficult to define it, as there are no historical precedents."

Many people in the opera house knelt and kissed his hand and others clapped as he left the theater, ending 13 hours of public engagements on the second day of his three-day visit to northern Italy.

A singing crowd of an estimated 150,000 people offered an emotional greeting in Monza, just northeast of Milan, to the visibly tired pope, who spoke from the winner's platform at the Grand Prix racetrack.

"Help to build a new society" free of drugs and terrorism, the pope repeatedly urged the enthusiastic crowd — many of whom waited six hours to hear him speak. He told them to fill the "new society" with Christian love and charity for those "who cannot provide for themselves."

"You young people must be the proclaimers and witnesses of Christian hope," he said.

At one point, a parish priest read an emotional letter from 10-year-old Silvia Cesana, whose wealthy father, Giovanni, was kidnapped in Saregno last March and remains in the kidnappers' hands.

"In this country, kidnapping is a not an uncommon circumstance, in which the children suffer and the parents suffer," the pope responded.

Fifteen people have been abducted this year by Italy's kidnap gangs, who snatched 50 people in 1982.

The 63-year-old pontiff was visibly tired. Closeup television shots as he sat waiting to speak showed him closing his eyes, and at one point jerking his head as if he had fallen asleep.

Later, the pope visited a factory at Sesto San Giovanni, a leftist-ruled town in the outskirts of Milan, and was hailed by a crowd estimated at 40,000.

At the Magnetti Marelli factory, the pope recalled his working class past as a stone quarry worker in Germany during World War II.

"I have not learned (about worker's problems) in books, I have lived them in my own flesh," he said.

John Paul began his hectic three-day visit Friday in Milan, where 10,000 police and troops guarded the pope and kept the tens of thousands of faithful behind steel barricades.

It is the first papal visit to northern Italy's major industrial city in 565 years.

U.S. Tanks Are Pelted With Eggs

BERLIN (UPI) — A bomb went off near the review stand for the annual military parade Saturday hours before thousands of U.S., French and British troops passed by and 32 people were arrested when youths pelted U.S. tanks with rocks and eggs.

Police said no one was injured in any of the incidents and most of the arrested — mainly youths — were released after their names were taken.

During the parade, one youth dove in front of the leading U.S. tank as it moved before the review stand where the three allied commandants of the city were standing with other dignitaries, police said.

Other youths gave Nazi salutes and threw eggs and stones at the tanks, police said.

Thirty-two people were arrested at the parade.

Earlier in the day, eight people were arrested as they painted anti-allied slogans on a nearby wall shortly after the bomb exploded.

They were being questioned about the bombing, Police said they did not know if the two incidents were connected.

"There is almost certainly a political motive for this bomb attack," said the police spokesman.

He said forensic experts were examining wreckage from the explosion, but could not yet say if the bomb had a timing device and was intended to go off during the parade.

He said the device went off at about 4:25 a.m. close to the stand on Strasse June 17, near the Brandenburg Gate landmark and the Berlin Wall, which marks the East-West border.

The blast left a crater 3 feet deep and just as wide, he said.

"No one was hurt. The device exploded at the foot of a lamp post," he said.

Canadians See Planned Security Agency As Attack On Rights

TORONTO (AP) — Civil liberties activists are alarmed by a proposal for a new Canadian Security Intelligence Service whose agents could get warrants to open mail, tap telephones and conduct clandestine searches.

Some say the plan gives agents "a carte blanche to break the law" and represents a "major onslaught" on basic civil rights. But even the critics say it's an "honest attempt to reform a dirty business."

Draft legislation to create the agency, introduced Wednesday by the government, was adapted from the report of a commission that spent four years looking into allegations that Canadian Mounties broke the laws they were supposed to be enforcing.

The commission, headed by Justice David McDonald of the Alberta Supreme Court, proposed a new civilian agency to take defense of Canada's national security out of the hands of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

"Anyone in the country who wants to engage in dissent, advocacy and protest will not for that reason become a target of the security service," Solicitor General Robert Kaplan told the House of Commons when he unveiled the government's proposal.

But Ed Broadbent, leader of the socialist New Democratic Party, said Kaplan "has provided no reassurances at all." The party's justice spokesman, Svend Robinson, called the legislation "a major onslaught on the basic civil rights of Canadians."

Allan Lawrence, who was solicitor general in the brief Progressive Conservative government in 1979-80, told a news conference the law would let security agents "do some things which are absolutely and utterly repugnant to most of us."

Reagan Calls Again For MX As Deterrent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Saturday that the United States must show the Soviet Union that America is "willing to protect the peace" by strengthening its nuclear arsenal.

Reagan used his weekly radio address to the nation to lobby for his plans to build the MX missile and a smaller single-warhead missile dubbed the "Midgetman."

By building them, he said, "We will not only preserve our ability to protect the peace, we will also demonstrate that any Soviet quest for nuclear superiority will not work, that it is in everyone's interest to end the arms race and to agree to mutual arms reductions."

The president said this country "must show the Soviets that we are determined to do what it takes to deter war. Once they understand that, we have a real chance of successfully reaching arms control agreements."

Association, Alan Borovoy, said in a telephone interview that the proposed agency would have "powers far beyond what a democratic society ought to permit."

Borovoy said the law would permit snooping on "law abiding Canadian citizens who happen to have information about foreign countries."

He also said the proposal could be used to justify actions such as the celebrated burning of a barn in Quebec in 1972 by police officers who wanted to prevent a meeting between Black Panthers from the United States and members of the Front de Liberation de Quebec.

Roy McMurtry, attorney general in Ontario's Conservative government, told reporters, "I think the history of the CIA in the U.S. has to make any Canadian a little skeptical of a civilian security force."

The Toronto Star, Canada's largest newspaper, called the idea of setting up an intelligence agency an "honest attempt to reform a dirty business" but criticized the specific proposal as "fatally flawed."

"First, it proposes to give intelligence agents virtually a carte blanche to break the law. Second, it offers no firm assurance that the solicitor general will be held clearly and strictly accountable for the actions of the security service under his ministry," the Star said.

The criticism does not necessarily mean the security service proposal will face difficulty. Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's government has enough votes in Parliament — where members almost always vote by party line — to pass the legislation easily.

Furthermore, even some critics prefer the draft legislation to the current law regulating the Mounties' security service.

Despite many instances of wrongdoing set out two years ago in the McDonald commission report, only one Mountie — Superintendent Alcide Yelle — has been convicted. Yelle was found guilty this month of stealing the membership list of the separatist Parti Quebecois in 1973.

$1 Million Reward Set For Radin

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mother of a New York movie and theatrical producer who disappeared in Hollywood en route to a business meeting is offering $1 million for his return, a private investigator says.

Renie Radin also put up a $100,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the apparent abduction of Roy Radin, 33, John O'Grady, a retired Los Angeles Police detective, said Friday.

O'Grady said Radin arrived in Hollywood on May 9 to try to form a movie company.

An employee of Radin's, Jonathan Lawson, told police he last saw Radin at 9:45 p.m. May 13 as the producer left the Regency Hotel in Hollywood for a business meeting. Lawson reported Radin missing four days later.

O'Grady said Radin had an appointment at La Scala Restaurant in Beverly Hills with a top film executive about forming a new film company. O'Grady would not identify the producer.

Radin was trying to arrange $35 million in financing for the project, the investigator said Friday, and a Florida businesswoman was an intermediary in the financial arrangements. He would not identify her.

A limousine picked up Radin at the hotel, but he never arrived at the restaurant, O'Grady said. Demond Wilson, the actor who played the son in the TV comedy "Sanford and Son," was following the limousine but lost it in traffic.

A team of Los Angeles police detectives also has been assigned to the case.

"The possibility of foul play is being considered because of the nature of some of the information we have," police Lt. Dan Cooke said Friday. He did not elaborate.

Jackson Crusades For Black Voters

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — It's Tuesday night and the United House of Prayer for All People is rocking with 3,000 of the faithful clapping and swaying as the traveling preacher from Chicago delivers the message of his crusade.

"Slave masters thought they brought us here to be their slaves. But God really sent us here to save the human race," he says.

"Oh, yeah," voices in the crowd respond.

"There is a time for us and a place for us. And this is OUR time," he says.

A piano tinkles. "Praise the Lord," the voices shout.

"We are a people whose time has come," says the reverend, sweat trickling down his brow.

"Amen," the voices reply.

Trombones blare, the choir breaks into a pulsating gospel tune and a sea of waving hands applauds the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

This is the beginning of a Jackson-led crusade to register an additional 2 million black voters in the South before the 1984 presidential election, before the conservative Boll Weevils, a predominantly Southern bloc of congressional Democrats who have sided with President Reagan on budget cuts, seek re-election.

It also may be the first campaign swing of a presidential candidate, Jackson, who advocates a black candidacy, recently placed third among potential Democratic aspirants in a national poll. He'll decide in August whether to run.

With an entourage of 10 in a two-camper caravan, dawn-to-dusk schedule and frequent police escorts, Jackson travels with the trappings of a candidate on the stump. Mothers ask him to kiss babies, and he is often introduced as "the next president of the United States."

But for now Jackson is spreading the message that with a few more of them on the registration rolls, blacks can flex a lot more muscle at the polls.

"God has placed us in the belly of the whale," he tells the crowd, who nod in agreement. "If we are sober, sane and sensitive, we can grab the whale by his vital organs and make him say YES when he wants to say NO."

North Carolina, site of the first lunch counter sit-ins in 1960, is a logical launch pad for the registration drive. More than half its eligible black population — about 505,000 people — are not registered, Jackson said.

The implications of Jackson's message were demonstrated this year in Chicago, home of his Operation PUSH (People United To Serve Humanity).

An ambitious registration drive there added more than 200,000 blacks to the rolls, carrying Harold Washington into City Hall as the city's first black mayor. Washington won with almost unanimous support from blacks.

Last week's victory by another black, Wilson Goode, in Philadelphia's Democratic mayoral primary is encouraging, too, Jackson said.

Such triumphs, the civil rights activist said, can be repeated throughout the South. "Our vote can be the insecticide to destroy the Boll Weevils," Jackson said.

One of the first targets is ultra-conservative U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, who was re-elected in 1978 by slightly more than 100,000 votes.

With 200,000 more blacks registered, Jackson suggested, Republican Helms could be out of work in North Carolina.

Gov. James Hunt, a Democrat, is aware of black voter potential. He met with Jackson last week and has endorsed legislation supported by the PUSH leader that would permit high school librarians and principals to register voters. Hunt is expected to challenge Helms in 1984.

If millions of blacks register, Jackson said, 15 Southern blacks could be sitting on Capitol Hill within a few years.

In more than half the Southern congressional districts, blacks make up more than 20 percent of the population. Yet only one black —

Harold Ford in Tennessee — represents a Southern congressional district from among 11 states with 96 districts, according to the Congressional Black Caucus.

State legislators in many Southern states fare no better: In North Carolina, only five of 170 legislators are black. In Virginia, it's five of 140. In Arkansas, it's five of 135.

And, Jackson said, there are 150 counties in the South with a majority black population with no representation.

The priorities of some Southern members of Congress — prayer in school, military patriotism and other conservative issues — are not the answer to problems confronting blacks, Jackson tells audiences.

"The South is the poorest region in the country with the most anti-black, anti-female, anti-worker legislators in the country," he told a Fayetteville breakfast for community leaders.

It is that message that the 41-year-old Jackson delivered through the week in North Carolina as he trekked from town to town in a camper, hopping from college auditoriums to church altars, preaching and praising non-stop from early morning to late night.

"There is a freedom train a-coming," he told each audience, as they repeated the chant. "But you've got to register to ride. Get on board."

Many did. At each stop, Jackson paced the stage with a microphone like a game-show host, beckoning people in the audience to "come on down" if they had not registered.

Giggling teens and matronly housewives responded. Their reward was a handshake from Jackson and a registrar on the premises to sign them up.

The Rev. Willie Barrow, co-director of PUSH's Southern tour, at week's end was unable to say how many people had registered. At some of Jackson's rallies scores had stood in line to sign up.

"Jesse is a traveling road show, and he comes into town as a media star and can focus attention on a single issue in a short time," said Kelly Alexander Jr., vice president of the North Carolina NAACP.

Singer Merle Haggard Arrested

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Police said Saturday country western musician Merle Haggard was told before his concert it was illegal for him to drink alcohol on stage, but Haggard allegedly ignored the warning and was arrested after his performance.

Haggard, 46, and band members James Edward Belken and Donald A. Markham were charged with possession and consumption of spiritous liquor, a misdemeanor. Each performer was released under a $500 secured bond. Police did not accuse the three of being intoxicated.

They are scheduled to appear in Buncombe County District Court June 14.

Haggard, who left for a performance in Georgia, could not be reached for comment.

A statement released Saturday by Asheville police said prior to Friday night's performance Haggard met with police Lt. M.W. Berry and the two discussed a North Carolina law that prohibits the possession and consumption of spiritous liquor at certain locations.

The police statement said Haggard told Berry he was aware of the law but didn't believe it was fair.

Authorities have accused Haggard and two members of his band of drinking from a fifth of Canadian Mist during the concert. The three were arrested following the performance.

The North Carolina statute under which Haggard and his band members were charged forbids the consumption of liquor, fortified wine or mixed beverages "where such consumption is not authorized by law, or where the person has been forbidden to possess or consume that beverage by the owner or other person in charge of the premises."

Cheaper Substitute For Silicon Found

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — The microelectronics industry may be able to use substances other than crystalline silicon to build a variety of electronic equipment much less expensive than was previously believed, researchers say.

Experiments being conducted at the University of North Carolina show electricity can pass through inexpensive glassy or non-crystalline silicon almost as quickly as it passes through crystalline silicon.

Crystalline silicon now is used as semi-conductors in computers and other devices.

"If the effects we have been seeing are real, electrons can move through glassy silicon about 100 times faster than anyone thought," said Dr. Marvin Silver, a physics professor at the university. "That suggests that this cheap material could function very well in certain electronic applications and replace crystalline silicon, which costs a lot more to produce."

The speed of electrons through computer circuits is critical in complex functions and mathematical problems and can mean the difference in getting answers in seconds instead of weeks, Silver said.

Silver and his colleagues have used a pulsed voltage technique to measure the time it takes for a charge to pass from one electrode to another through various forms of silicon. The technique is accurate to a billionth of a second.

Contrary to a theory proposed by Nobel Prize-winning physicist Sir Neville Mott and to results reported by other physicists, the North Carolina researchers have found electrons are not significantly slowed by what was thought to be the disorganized pattern of atoms in uncrystallized silicon.

"Sir Neville's argument for explaining some of the basic optical properties of these materials was beautifully simple and theoretically sound," Silver said. "He predicted that electrons move rapidly through the atoms in crystallized silicon just as you could walk quickly through orderly lines of people standing in a street."

"However, if these people are standing around in a disorganized way, you would move much more slowly, and so his argument was that the speed of electrons is limited by the disorderly array of atoms in this glassy material," Silver said.

Saturday Youth Baseball Roundup

Babe Ruth
Coke 12
Pepsi 1
 Pitcher Ervin Best fired a two hitter and got 13 hits from his teammates at Coca-Cola defeated Pepsi 12-1 in Greenville Babe Ruth League action Saturday.
 Best struck out nine in the seven-inning contest.
 Jim Carter and Michael Garris had three hits in four at bats for Coke, while Van Alston had a pair in four trips.
 Coke posted single runs in the first and fourth innings, then exploded for three in the fifth, four in the sixth and three more in the seventh.
 In the fifth, Alston led off with a walk and Carter singled. Anthony Cobb doubled to drive in both runners, and Garris later singled in Cobb.

Hank Keeping slapped a pair of singles for Pepsi's only hits of the day.
Planters 7
Wachovia 6
 A throwing error at first base in the bottom of the seventh allowed Planters Bank to record a 7-6 victory over Wachovia in Babe Ruth League baseball action.
 Jason Galloway walked to open the seventh for Planters. After two outs, Chris Stokes drew a base on balls before the fatal error on Tom Taylor's ball ended the game.
 Planters managed just five hits in the game, while Kenny Barnes led Wachovia with two hits in as many at bats.
 Planters jumped out to a 3-1 lead after three frames. Wachovia scored three in the top of the fourth on a triple by Barnes, but Planters retaliated with one in the bottom half of the frame to knot the score at 4-4.

 Wachovia added a pair in the sixth for a 6-4 lead.
Brown-Wood 13
Everett's 4
 Winning pitcher William Smith scattered six hits and scored three runs to lead Brown-Wood to a 13-4 win over Everett's Pest Control in Saturday Babe Ruth League action.
 Chris Street rapped a pair of hits in two at bats for B-W, while teammate Frankie Atkinson added two singles.
 Brown-Wood scored a pair of runs to even the score after one inning, then took the lead with three in the third.
 Smith drew a base on balls, Mike Hathaway singled and Chris Meeks reached first on an error to load the bases for B-W in the third. A single by Street cleared the bases.

 Brown-Wood added three more in the fifth and five in the sixth, while Everett's re-recorded a pair in the seventh.
 Axel Smith had two hits in three at bats for Everett's, while Robbie Erhmann went 2-4.
North State LL
Sportsworld 9
Optimist 5
 Tim Moore allowed just three hits and Tye Fickling added three-run homer to lead Sportsworld to a 9-5 win over Optimist in Saturday North State Little League baseball action.
 Fickling contributed two hits in three at bats for Sportsworld, while Jason Wing and Jamie Brewington had two singles in four trips.

 Sportsworld erupted for four runs in the bottom of the first, but Optimist cut the margin to 4-2 in the top of the second.
 Fickling's homer capped a five-run barrage by Sportsworld in the fourth. The Optimists rallied for three in the fifth before surrendering without a run in the sixth.
Kiwanis 13
Lions 7
 The Kiwanis rallied for five runs in the fourth inning and added five more in the sixth to pave the way to a 13-7 victory over the Lions in North State Little League baseball action.
 Jamie Hale slapped three hits in four trips to the plate for Kiwanis, with Bill Wainwright adding two hits in four at bats.

 Mike Harris and John Shepard went 2-4 for Lions.
 Kiwanis broke out to a 3-1 lead after the first inning, but the Lions roared back for three in the bottom of the second and three more in the fourth.
 Kiwanis took control of the game in the fourth and put the game away in the fifth.
Tar Heel LL
Moose 6
Carroll 4
 A grand-slam homer by Wesley Jackson in the top of the first and an RBI double by Allen Speight in the third paved the way to a 6-4 for the Moose over Carroll and Associates in Saturday Little League baseball action.

 Al Debias drew a base on balls, Andy Everett singled and Chris Christopher walked to set up Jackson's round-tripper.
 Jackson scored the winning run in the third after singling to lead off the frame. The Moose added another run in the fifth to ice the victory for winning pitcher Christopher.
 Jackson went 3-3 on the day, adding a double in fifth inning. Everett had two hits in four at bats.
 Michael Sutton led Carroll with two hits in three trips to the plate. Carroll trimmed the margin to 5-3 after three innings, but could come no closer.

Exchange 11
First Federal 3
 Exchange blistered First Federal for eight runs including a two-run homer by Maurice Battle in the second inning and went on to take an 11-3 victory in Tar Heel Little League baseball Saturday.
 Grant Harmon, Carlos White and Chris Bland went 2-3 for Exchange, with Darryl Moore adding a pair of hits in four at bats.
 Exchange added two more in the third and a lone run in the fourth for winning pitcher Moore.
 Maurice Dyer led First Federal with a perfect 3-3 at the plate. First Federal took a 2-0 lead in the opening frame before falling off the pace in the second.

Alcott, White, Farwig Tie

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Amy Alcott, who is $4,140 away from $1 million in earnings, moved into a three-way tie for the lead Saturday after the second round of the 54-hole LPGA Chrysler-Plymouth Charity Classic.
 Rookie Stephanie Farwig and first-round coleader Donna White tied for first place in the $125,000 golf tournament.
 Each was 5-under par with totals of 141 at the Upper Montclair Country Club.
 Lori Huxhold was three strokes back at 144, 2-under par. Debbie Austin, Lynn Adams, Alice Miller, Barbara Moxness, Becky Pearson were 1-under par at 145.
 Austin shot a tournament course record 67, breaking the record established by Friday's coleaders, White and Chris Johnson at 68.
 Johnson, whose car was stolen from her hotel parking lot in Hasbrouck Heights Friday, lost her share of the lead with a second-round 81 Saturday, giving her a total of 149.

Nancy Lopez was six strokes off the pace at 147; Jan Stephenson was nine strokes back at 150, Beth Daniel was 12 strokes back at 153, and Kathy Whitworth was 13 strokes back at 154.
 For the final round Sunday, 73 players qualified at 153 or better.
 Saturday's overcast weather failed to improve on the scores of Friday's play in the drizzling rain.
 White, who won the Coca-Cola Tournament here in 1980 by coming from six strokes back in the final round, said, "The course is in super shape... You cannot play aggressive here, you have to be patient to score well."
 Asked whether these were her best two rounds ever, White responded: "I don't keep stats, I just count my money."
 She said, "I'd like to win it here because I have alot of loyal fans in this area."
 In 1973, White won the junior national title at Somerset Hills and in 1976 she took the LPGA tournament title at the Forsgate Country Club in Jamestown.

 In 1976, White said she "was four shots behind going into the final day and won in front of the crazy New Jersey fans."
 She added: "I'm just happy to be up there. Any time I'm in contention I'm happy."
 Farwig said, "I finished second twice this year, but I don't think I've ever been in the lead going into last day before. Maybe it's my turn to win one."

Valkyries Defeat Cardinals, 10-4
HOLLYWOOD — A seven-run offensive barrage in the fifth inning by the Valkyries of D.H. Conley enabled them to defeat Jacksonville 10-4 and advance in the state 3-A, 4-A softball tournament.
 Lori Kandrotas, Irish Barnhill and Darlene Cannon each slapped two hits in three trips to the plate for Conley, while Karen Barrett had a pair in four at-bats. Winning pitcher Lisa Mills went the distance on the mound for the Valkyries.
 After scoring a pair of runs in the bottom of the fourth to take a 3-2 lead, Conley erupted for seven in the fifth. After one out, Michelle Kittrell reached first on an error and Mills and Barrett singled to load the bases.
 Kandrotas singled to drive in Kittrell, and Barnhill ripped a triple to score three more. A single by Cannon plated Barnhill, and an error on a ground ball by Michelle Waters allowed Cannon to score.
 A throwing error on a grounder by Lynn Kite allowed Waters to score the final run for the Valkyries.
 The Cardinals scored a pair of runs in the top of the sixth, but the Valkyries closed the door without a run in the seventh for the win.
 A Balish slapped a pair of singles in as many at bats.
 Conley now advances against C.B. Aycock. The Valkyries own a 15-5 overall mark after finishing the conference campaign 7-3.

Noll Hospitalized
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll was in stable condition after being hospitalized for a back ailment.
 "He has a bad back and he's in there for rest," a spokesman for the National Football League team said Saturday.
 The team spokesman said the back ailment was not serious.
 Noll was admitted to Pittsburgh's Divine Providence Hospital about four days ago.

Laskey Upset With Robinson, Wins 5-2

MONTREAL (AP) — Bill Laskey won for the fifth straight time Saturday, but the San Francisco right-hander requested a meeting with Giants Manager Frank Robinson after his 5-2 National League baseball victory over Montreal Expos.

Laskey was upset at being pulled by Robinson after five innings, during which he had one-hit the Expos.

"I hate coming out, whether my arm's falling off or not," said Laskey, who was removed because his right elbow stiffened. "We had a little discussion.

"Frank knows from last year how I want to stay in there. I've just got to suck it up and realize that Frank's the boss."

Robinson explained his move by saying: "I wasn't going to take any chances. Our bullpen was well-rested.

"If we lose any one of our pitchers right now, we're in trouble. His elbow was bothering him. He'd given us five good innings, and it was my decision to take him out."

Laskey said he had gotten through the first five innings, despite the absence of his slider, an important part of his repertoire.

"How many innings can you go with just the fastball?" he said.

Tom O'Malley drove in three runs with a double and a two-run single to support Laskey, who has rebounded after losing his first four decisions.

The Giants jumped on Montreal starter Scott Sanderson, 3-4, loser of four straight games, for a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

With one out, Darrell Evans walked and stopped at third on Jack Clark's double. Evans scored on Chili Davis' groundout and then Jeff Leonard singled, scoring Clark. O'Malley followed with a run-scoring double.

The Giants made it 5-0 in the third as Clark walked, Leonard doubled and O'Malley singled in both runners.

The only hit off Laskey came in the fourth when Andre Dawson belted his sixth home run. Tim Raines, who had walked, scored ahead of him.

After Laskey left, Gary Lavelle pitched four innings of three-hit ball for his fifth save of the season and the 100th of his career.

Cincinnati 4

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Cey is thinking less and hitting more these days now that he is beginning to "settle in" with the Chicago Cubs.

Cey, who had a horrendous start with the Cubs after coming from Los Angeles and signing a $900,000, five-year contract, blasted his third homer in three games Saturday to help lead the Cubs to an 8-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"No question about it," said Cey of his slow start. "I was probably thinking too much. Sometimes you get too smart and have too much on your mind."

"At the beginning, the park hurt me with the wind blowing in and my thoughts were negative," said Cey. "But when things are going well, you go up to bat with a clear mind."

"I'm starting to feel comfortable and settling in with the club more," said Cey. "I think a lot of good things are going to happen with this club. Like breaking our streak against the Reds."

Chicago beat Cincinnati for the first time this season after five straight losses to the Reds.

Cey's fourth homer of the season and third in three games capped a four-run fifth inning and Leon Durham's sixth homer completed a four-run sixth. Paul Moskauer, 2-2, was the winner, and Charlie Puleo, 0-1, was the loser.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first on Dave Concepcion's run-scoring single. In the fourth, Ron Oester singled with two outs and scored when Paul Householder was credited with a triple after right fielder Keith Moreland and second baseman Ryne Sandberg collided chasing his pop fly to right.

Sandberg suffered a mild concussion and was taken to a hospital for precautionary X-rays.

Singles by Tom Veryzer, Bill Buckner and Moreland gave the Cubs a run and preceded Cey's homer in the fifth.

Johnny Bench hit his fifth homer in the Cincinnati sixth, but the Cubs came right back with four runs. Gary Woods doubled and scored on a single by Junior Kennedy. Buckner walked and Durham followed with his homer.

Cincinnati scored in the ninth on Wayne Krenchicki's groundout.

Chicago shortstop Larry Bowa and Manager Lee Elia were ejected in the first inning by umpire Dave Pallone after Bowa argued a called third strike.

Handley Captures Pro Bowler Event

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Handley threw strikes on seven of his first eight shots and easily earned his third career title Saturday in the $100,000 Houston Open on the Pro Bowlers' Tour by Handley defeating Ray Shackelford, 248-204, for the $13,000 first prize.

Shackelford entered the title match on a roll with two consecutive victories behind him. However, the momentum shifted as Handley tossed three straight strikes. In the fourth frame, Handley rolled a spare and then threw four more strikes.

Shackelford had defeated

Jimmie Pritts Jr. and Mark Baker before meeting Handley.

Shackelford, who earned $7,500, stayed within striking distance early. After two spares, Shackelford doubled before a stubborn 10-pin in the fifth frame proved crucial.

Shackelford, a 10-year veteran, is still looking for his first title. He made his second championship appearance of the year and of his career Saturday.

Baker earned $5,000, while Pritts took home $4,500 and Dean Asami got $4,000.

The PBA Tour moves to the Colorado next week for the $100,000 Denver Open.

Arias Sweeps To Italian Final

ROME (AP) — Sixth-seeded Jimmy Arias, a hard-hitting 18-year-old American, defeated Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt 6-2, 7-6 Saturday to reach the finals of the Italian Open Tennis Championships against Spanish veteran Jose Higueras.

The top-seeded Higueras earlier defeated Sweden's Stefan Simonson 6-4, 6-0 in the other semifinal of the $375,000 tournament.

Arias, who has been playing on the professional circuit since the age of 15, is gunning for his second straight tournament victory Sunday after a victory in Florence, Italy, last week.

Playing confidently, he pounded his forehand deep into the corners against the 24-year-old Swiss and went after risky points despite a strong wind that buffeted the center court of the Foro Italico before a crowd of 5,000.

He won the first set easily and moved out to a 5-4 lead in the second when he let two match points get away, the first on a double fault.

"I wasn't really that nervous," he said afterward. "I just tried to spin the serve in..."

Gunthardt saved the second match ball and went on to win the game to make it 5-5. They each won one more to force a tie-breaker, with Arias winning it 7-3.

Arias, ranked 16th in the world, admitted he benefitted from an unexpected day's rest he got when his scheduled quarterfinal opponent Jose Luis Clerc was disqualified for a rules infraction.

"One day off helped a lot," Arias said.

Kurt Nielsen, a Dane who is a supervisor of the Men's International Professional Tennis Council, said the Argentine had been fined $3,500 for the Thursday night doubles default, leaving a match before it was over and for obscenities hurled at the umpire and referee during the doubles match. Clerc also forfeits $7,350 in prize money he won in Rome.

Higueras fell behind 4-2 as his 23-year-old Swedish opponent scored with drop shots and sharply angled returns that cut the sidelines. But within minutes the clay court veteran was moving up from the baseline and scoring repeatedly with drilled passing shots and won the first set 6-4.

Higueras needed only 30 minutes to wrap up the second set 6-4.

The 30-year-old Spaniard, ranked ninth in the world, said he has been playing his best tennis in years and only needed a slight adjustment in the first set against Simonson to turn the match around.

Unserers Become 1st Indy Father-Son

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The successful qualification attempts Saturday by three-time winner Al Unser and 21-year-old Al Unser Jr. put a father-son combination into the starting lineup for the first time in Indianapolis 500 history.

"Most definitely, this is a dream come true," said the younger Unser, the national Sports Car Club of America Can-Am champion last year but still a rookie at Indianapolis. "My father has done a super job in helping me get this far."

The younger Unser qualified in the middle of the second row at 202.146 mph. The fastest rookie, however, was Italy's Teo Fabi who broke Rick Mears' track records and earned a pole-position start for the May 29 race.

The elder Al Unser, whose older brother, Bobby, also won three Indy races before retiring early this year, qualified on the third row at 201.954 mph, a shade slower than his son.

"It does make it a little more interesting," Unser said of competing against his son.

Unser Jr., known as Little Al, began racing go-karts at the age of 9. He began sprint car racing in 1978, and in 1981 he was the SCCA national Super Vee champion. He made his first Indy-car start — also competing against his father — at Riverside, Calif., last year, finishing fifth.

His father is the last driver to win consecutive Indy 500s — 1970-71 — and added a third victory in 1978. He finished fifth last year.

Colbert Charges To Atlanta Classic Lead

ATLANTA (AP) — Jim Colbert, who broke a three-year victory drought last weekend, converted a lucky break into a 5-under-par 67 that tied him with Don Pooley for the lead Saturday in the second round of the rain-shortened Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic.

Pooley birdied three of the last four holes to complete 66 in the mild, calm conditions of the afternoon and matched Colbert's 136 total for 36 holes, 8-under-par for two trips over the rain-slickened hills of the Atlanta Country Club course.

"My game is in good condition right now, close to being where I want it," Pooley said.

Colbert was considerably more enthusiastic about his performance.

"Unbelievable," said Colbert, who won six times in his first 17 years on the tour and now is bidding for two in a row.

He was quick to admit, however, that he had a piece of the lead only through a break.

Colbert drove into the water on the fourth hole, but the ball ricocheted off the surface of the pond and onto the bank. He got his next shot in a bunker, but one-putted for a hard-won par that he called "a good break for me."

Colbert, however, said he had an even better piece of luck.

"The best thing that happened to me," Colbert said, "was the rain-out on Thursday."

"I was very busy Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and Thursday I was kind of flat. With the day off, I was able to relax a little, get rested."

"You hate to see the rain-out, and the tournament reduced to 54 holes, but the day off was perfectly okay with me."

The tournament was cut to a three-day, 54-hole format when heavy, steady rains washed out Thursday's play. It will conclude Sunday, weather permitting, with a single round of 18 holes.

Tim Simpson, who had a 64 that ranked as the best round of the tournament, was a single shot off the lead at 137.

Simpson's roommate at the University of Georgia, Chip Beck, was another stroke back and tied at 138 with Bob Eastwood, who had a second-round 69. Beck, the first round leader, slipped to a 73.

"I bogeyed the 17th and 18th and that's not a very good way to finish," he said. "But I hung in there pretty good; didn't blow myself out of the tournament, and I'm proud of that."

Mick Soli, who had a second-round 68, was next at 139.

Tom Watson, defending champion Keith Fergus and Lanny Wadkins, winner of two of his last three starts, were in a large group at 141, five strokes off the pace. Fergus had a second-round 70, Watson 71 and Wadkins 72 despite a double-bogey 7.

Colbert, 42, who won the Colonial National Invitation in a playoff last weekend, bogeyed two of the first three holes he played Saturday, but brought it back with crisp iron play from the soggy fairways that helped set up seven birdies.

Five of them came on putts ranging from 2 to 6 feet in length. He reached one par-5 with a 3-wood second shot across water and 2-putted for birdie and got the other with a 30-footer from the fringe.

Pooley got in position with a couple of long birdie putts, about 25 and 35 feet in length, and reached a par-5 in two to make the turn in 33.

He birdied his 15th from about 15 feet, got a short-iron tight to the flag on his 16th and tied for the lead with a third consecutive birdie on his 17th, chipping to about 6 feet.

ATLANTA (AP) — Second round scores Saturday in the Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic on the 7,007 yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course.

Bikani Walks Away With 10,000 Meters, Bucs Qualify

From Staff And Wire Reports VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Elliot Bikani of Fairleigh Dickinson captured the 10,000-meter run, while Boston University's Declan Hegarty topped his own meet record in the hammer throw at the IC4A outdoor track and field championships Saturday.

Bikani, a freshman from South Africa, was clocked in 29:08.8. Daryl Simoneau of Boston University was second, followed by Bill Reifsnnyder of Bucknell.

The two-day meet, the oldest of its kind in the nation, began under threatening skies with Villanova, the IC4A indoor titleholder, trying to unseat defending champion Princeton.

East Carolina University's 400-meter relay unit of Terry Brown, Nathan McCorkle, Joe Dingle and Erskine Evans qualified with the second fastest time of 40.55. The 1600 relay squad of Eddie Bradley, Ruebin Pierce, Ray Dickerson and Chris Brooks were second fastest with 3:11.17.

Rain began in mid-afternoon, slowing the runners and postponing until Sunday finals in the long jump and shot put, where Princeton senior August Wolf was the favorite. Wolf was last year's lone double-winner, taking the shot and discus. The discus finals were also to be held Sunday.

Hegarty, a 5-10, 210-pound senior from Dublin, Ireland, who is considered small for his event, heaved the hammer 228 feet 6 inches on his winning throw. It was also a record at the all-purpose track here, which is named after legendary Villanova coach Jumbo Elliott.

More than 1,000 athletes were in attendance, representing 77 schools. Most of the running finals were slated for Sunday.

Villanova botched its initial baton exchange in the 400-meter relay and failed to qualify for Sunday's final.

But the Wildcats managed to place runners in the finals of the 400-meter hurdles, the 400 and 800 meters and the 1,600-meter relay.

Pound Red Sox, 10-4 Twins Change Direction

By The Associated Press
After unsuccessfully trying to tattoo the cozy left field wall at Fenway Park the night before, the Minnesota Twins changed their strategy against the Boston Red Sox.

On Friday night, the essentially right-handed, power-hitting Twins virtually ignored the so-called "Green Monster" and it paid off handsomely.

Hitting the ball straight away for the most part, the Twins cracked 16 hits en route to a 10-4 rout of the Red Sox.

"We're a pull-hitting club, but we tried to overdo it Thursday night," Minnesota's Tom Brunansky said of the 4-1 loss. "Tonight we tried to go with the pitch. We got a lot of hits by hitting straightaway."

In other American League action, it was Toronto 7, Baltimore 5; Texas 4, Detroit 0; Chicago 9, Kansas City 6; California 5, Cleveland 4; Oakland 8, New York 4 and Milwaukee 4, Seattle 3.

Brunansky and Gary Gaetti each singled in runs in a four-run first inning for the Twins. The pair then capped the victory with two-run homers in the ninth, Gaetti belting his fifth and Brunansky his fourth.

The Twins mauled starter Bruce Hurst, 3-2, for nine hits and six runs in less than three innings. Mark Clear allowed three hits in relief before John Henry Johnson was bombed in the ninth.

Ken Schrom, 2-0, a right-hander called up from the minors early this month, earned the victory in his first major-league start with relief help from Rick Lysander, who posted his second save.

Blue Jays 7, Orioles 5
Jim Gott scattered four hits over five innings and Lloyd Moseby knocked in three runs to lead Toronto over Baltimore.

Gott, 1-3, set 10 Orioles down in order during one stretch and struck out three. He was forced to leave the game with a blister on his throwing hand and three relievers held the Orioles to five hits the rest of the way.

Baltimore starter Dennis Martinez, 3-7, lasted only 3 1-3 innings. He gave up five runs, four of which were earned and walked two.

Ernie Whitt's two-run double keyed a three-run third for Toronto and Moseby had an RBI single in the third and a two-run single in the sixth to give the Blue Jays a 7-2 lead at that point.

Rangers 4, Tigers 0
Danny Darwin hurled a five-hitter and Larry Parrish belted a three-run homer in the third inning to lead Texas over Detroit.

Darwin, 3-3, struck out seven and walked five in only his second complete game of the season. It was Darwin's eighth start since being activated April 10 after recovering from an ulcer that put him on the disabled list.

Parrish's seventh homer came after Jim Anderson reached base on a forceout grounder and Billy Sample walked off Detroit starter Jerry Ujdr, 0-4.

White Sox 9, Royals 6
Greg Luzinski, Tom Paciorek and Ron Kittle hit home runs to boost Chicago over slumping Kansas City.

Britt Burns, 1-2, was the winner with relief help from Salome Barojas, as Chicago snapped a three-game losing streak and handed the sputtering Royals their 11th defeat in 16 games.

"My philosophy has always been to take things one game at a time but I hope we can get something rolling," said Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa.

Angels 5, Indians 4
Doug DeCinces hit a two-run homer, his 11th of the season, and later singled and scored the winning run to lead California over Cleveland behind victory-starved

Tommy John.
John, 3-2, scattered eight hits over 7 2-3 innings for his first win since April 11. Three relievers finished up, with Mike Witt recording his fourth save after the Indians scored in the ninth on Pat Tabler's RBI single.

Following a two-out single by Fred Lynn in the third, DeCinces hit his key homer off Juan Eichelberger, 1-2, giving the Angels a 4-1 lead at that point. DeCinces later singled in the eighth and eventually scored on a grounder by Bobby Grich for a 5-3 California lead.

A's 8, Yankees 4
Rickey Henderson homered and scored two runs to lead Oakland over New York in Yankee Manager Billy Martin's homecoming to Oakland, where he managed the past three seasons.

The A's fans greeted Martin with the biggest crowd of the year at Oakland, 38,007. But after the Yankees took a 1-0 first-inning lead on Don Baylor's sacrifice fly, the A's scored six runs over the next three innings and coasted to victory behind Tom Underwood, 3-1, and three other pitchers.

Underwood pitched six innings, allowed five hits and one earned run. Steve McCatty finished up to record his fifth save.

Brewers 4, Mariners 3
Ben Oglivie doubled home the go-ahead run and scored the winning run on Don Money's sacrifice fly in the ninth, leading Milwaukee over Seattle.

Win Lifts Allen's Hopes

By The Associated Press
Now that Neil Allen is starting, his problems seem to be ending.
Allen, a longtime reliever who was racked by problems on the field and off it earlier this season, continued his comeback Friday night by tossing a six-hit shutout as the New York Mets blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0.

A few weeks ago, it looked like Allen couldn't sink any lower. He had an 0-4 record after several poor relief appearances, had missed a game after lying about his whereabouts and publicly said he had a drinking problem that needed immediate attention.

"When your back is against the wall like mine was, there's no other direction to go except to go for it," Allen said.

In other National League games, Atlanta nipped St. Louis 2-1, San Diego topped Philadelphia 5-0, Pittsburgh edged Houston 4-3, Montreal ripped San Francisco 7-1 and Cincinnati beat Chicago 9-5.

Allen's turnaround began shortly after meeting with doctors, who determined his problem was stress, not alcohol. At the time, Mets Manager George Bamberger would use Allen in long relief in an attempt to get his confidence back and to help him relax from the pressures of short relief.

A week ago Friday, though, Bamberger started him against Pittsburgh, breaking Allen's streak of 208 consecutive relief appearances. Allen beat the Pirates 6-2.

Then Bamberger decided to start him against the Dodgers, and Allen responded with his longest stint ever — he had never gone over seven innings — and with a career-high seven strikeouts while walking three.

He ran into brief trouble late in the game, but was determined to finish.

"I told myself that I had gotten that far and that there was no way I was coming out," said Allen, now 2-4. "When you get that close, you just have to go out and get it."

Said Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda: "He threw the ball as good as anyone who faced us this season."

Allen got hitting support from Hubie Brooks, who drove in two runs, and catcher Ronn Reynolds, who entered the game hitting .067 and had three hits and scored twice. The Mets' effort pinned the loss on Jerry Reuss, 5-2, and left a smiling Allen feeling like a new person.

"The problems I had seem like things years behind me now," Allen beamed. "Now I'm just looking forward to going out and pitching and having fun."

Reds 9, Cubs 5

Dave Concepcion's fifth career grand slam capped a five-run eighth inning to lead Cincinnati.

Jody Davis' solo homer in the seventh put Chicago ahead 4-3 before the Reds exploded against relievers Mike Proly and Bill Campbell. Eddie Milner, who had earlier homered and doubled, walked with the bases loaded to tie the game before Concepcion followed with his first homer of the season.

Cubs starter Fergie Jenkins pitched five innings and struck out five, giving him a career total of 3,120 strikeouts and moving him into sixth place on the all-time list past Bob Gibson's 3,117.

Padres 5, Phillies 0

Rookie Andy Hawkins tossed a five-hitter in pitching his first major league shutout.

Hawkins struck out six and walked one in outdueling Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, 6-3, who struck out four in eight innings. That gave Carlton a career total of 3,511 strikeouts and moved him past Walter Johnson into second place on the all-time list.

He now trails Houston's disabled Nolan Ryan by just 10 strikeouts.

Garry Templeton singled in the first run in the fourth inning and Luis Salazar singled in two more in the sixth.

Pirates 4, Astros 3

Pittsburgh sported a totally right-handed lineup that left regulars Jason Thompson, Dave Parker, Johnny Ray and Mike Easler on the bench, and the combination seemed to work. Dale Berra slammed a two-run homer while Larry McWilliams pitched seven strong innings and Kent Tekulve recorded his first save of the season.

The Pirates took a 4-0 lead before the Astros battled back, helped by Dickie Thon's leadoff homer in the eighth and Tony Scott's sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Ray failed to start for the first time in 199 games, but extended his consecutive game streak to 225 when he was inserted in the eighth inning.

Expos 7, Giants 1

Steve Rogers threw a strong four-hitter while Gary Carter belted a two-run homer and Warren Cromartie added a two-run double.

Rogers, 6-1, retired the first 11 San Francisco batters and finished with his fifth complete game. Rogers struck out nine and walked two.

Carter's seventh homer gave Montreal a 5-0 lead in the third. Al Oliver added a solo homer, his third.

Braves 2, Cardinals 1

Rookie Craig McMurtry, 6-1, won his sixth straight game as he combined with Terry Forster on a three-hitter, snapping St. Louis' seven-game winning streak.

McMurtry allowed just two hits — both first-inning singles — in going six innings. Forster allowed only an infield hit by George Hendrick with one out in the ninth to record his fifth save.

Bob Watson, pinch hitting for McMurtry in the top of the seventh, hit a sacrifice fly to break a 1-1 tie.

Laker's 'Block' Spurs Hopes For Comeback

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — When it came down to the last 10 seconds, the Los Angeles Lakers showed why they again will be playing in this year's National Basketball Association title game with Philadelphia.

With a 101-100 Laker edge on the scoreboard, the San Antonio Spurs had the ball and a chance to send the Western Conference finals into a seventh game.

The Lakers blocked two shots and forced a pass to take the game and win the best-of-seven series 4-2.

Los Angeles, the defending champion, travels to Philadelphia to face the 76ers in Sunday's opening game of the championship series.

"Our goal was to get to the finals," said Lakers Coach Pat Riley. "I was afraid we'd get upset on the way by a Portland or a San Antonio. Somehow that happens to the defending champion."

Los Angeles' Earvin "Magic" Johnson was held to two points, but he grabbed 15 rebounds and passed out a game-high 16 assists.

He also blocked the potential game-winning shot by the Spurs' Mike Mitchell in the final seconds.

"I just ran to help out," Johnson said. "I never worry about scoring points. I just try to do a lot of things well with the goal of winning."

Riley said he didn't have time to tell his team exactly how to stop the Spurs in the last 10 seconds. He just told them to stop the Spurs.

"We kept it out of Ice's hands (Spurs guard George Gervin) and Magic made a great, clean block on Mitchell," Riley said.

Mitchell, the only Spur to continually dominate the Lakers throughout the series, kept replaying his failed shot in his mind.

"It just didn't go in," he said later, shaking his head. "I just felt that last shot was going down."

Lakers' center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, game-high with 28 points, had added to Mitchell's problems by forcing the forward to shoot over his outstretched arm.

It was a heartbreaking loss for the Spurs, who were knocked out of the playoffs last year by dropping four straight games to the Lakers.

"I feel empathy for my players," San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck said. "They absolutely played their hearts out."

Schlichter Gets Treatment, Suspension For Gambling

NEW YORK (AP) — Art Schlichter, the Baltimore Colts reserve quarterback, will have to sit out at least the 1983 National Football League season under a suspension imposed by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Meanwhile, the former Ohio State star is being treated for what psychiatrists have described as a gambling compulsion.

Schlichter, 23, received word of his suspension Friday as he was hospitalized, undergoing treatment for the compulsive gambling habit that caused him to run up $389,000 in debts.

Rozelle had many options in his decision to punish Schlichter, who admitted betting on at least 10 NFL games as well as other professional sports. The commissioner could have banned Schlichter for life, or simply fined him.

He chose a middle road, a path he has taken before.

The indefinite suspension, which is subject to review after the season, was the first imposed by Rozelle for gambling since 1963. That year, Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers and Alex Karras of the Detroit Lions were suspended indefinitely — both missed one season — for gambling on NFL games.

Karras' bets did not even total $1,000 and Hornung's didn't amount to much more, nowhere near the total bet by Schlichter in the first 2½ months of 1983.

Jack Chester, Schlichter's attorney, would not disclose the location of the hospital where the former first-round selection is being treated, but he did tell a news conference Friday that Schlichter is under the care of Dr. Robert Custer of Washington, whom he described as "one of the pre-eminent experts in the country in the area of compulsive gambling."

Rozelle said that Schlichter could be reinstated as early as the 1984 season if he shows he has been rehabilitated when the case is reviewed.

Another football commissioner, Chet Simmons of the United States Football League, is also concerned about the rehabilitation shown by Schlichter.

Simmons said Friday his fledgling league is still interested in signing Schlichter, but he did not know the contractual obligations of the quarterback to the Colts and the NFL.

"I would have to make a determination if playing is as strong a rehabilitative force as just being rehabilitated and suspended," Simmons said.

Champ Takes A Right
Challenger Tim Witherspoon lands a right to the head of WBC heavyweight champion Larry

Holmes during seventh round action Friday night in Las Vegas. Holmes retained the title with a split decision. (AP Laserphoto)

Holmes, Dokes Still Champs After Downing Challengers

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Larry Holmes and Michael Dokes remain the heavyweight champions of the world, but both sit on shaky thrones.

And, as far as challengers Tim Witherspoon and Mike Weaver are concerned, their victory margins Friday night are more than narrow — they are invisible.

Holmes retained his World Boxing Council crown with a 12-round split decision over the lightly-regarded Witherspoon, while Dokes got a 15-round draw against Weaver to hang on to the World Boxing Association version of the title.

There is a boxing axiom that if a challenger wants to win a title, he must go out and take it away from the champion. And both Weaver and Witherspoon tried their best to do that, carrying the fights to Dokes and Holmes.

"I came to fight," said Weaver, who had lost the crown in a controversial bout Dec. 10 when Referee Joey Curtis stopped it after just 63 seconds. "I was moving forward. Dokes was moving backwards."

Witherspoon did the same thing against Holmes, boring in and often slugging toe-to-toe with the champion, who had his hands full with the challenger.

Witherspoon, who had not fought in 11 months, promised he would shock the world by winning Friday night and he very nearly pulled off the upset.

Holmes took the split decision, given a 118-111 nod by judge Chuck Hasset and a narrow 115-113 edge by Judge Chuck Minker. Judge Herb Santos saw it for Witherspoon, 115-114. The Associated Press' card had Holmes in front, 115-113.

The 33-year-old champion, who was defending his title for the 15th time, acknowledged that the fight had been close, almost too close.

"Maybe I'm going down a little bit," he said after going the distance for the third time in six months. Only once in the first 12 defenses of his title did Holmes fail to knock out his opponent.

"Two fights ago, this man wouldn't have been able to wear my socks," said Holmes, who weighed 213, the lightest he's been for a fight since he knocked out Leon Spinks two years ago.

But Witherspoon, 219½, gave Holmes all the fight the champion could handle.

"I proved I'm the uncrowned champion of the world," the 25-year-old said. "There's nothing more to be said."

But he said plenty more, anyway.

"He's disgusted," Witherspoon continued, nodding at Holmes, who was sitting nearby. "He lost."

"He's nothing, man, nothing. I hurt him in almost every round."

When Witherspoon was told that one of the judges, Hasset, had given nine rounds to Holmes, he seemed incredulous.

"Larry Holmes must have paid him some money before the fight," he said. "There is no question who won," said the champion.

But Holmes sounded like a man who was less than thrilled with his performance.

"Maybe I didn't train hard enough," he said. "Maybe I trained too hard. I'm going to go home (Easton, Pa.) to spend some time with my family and take a look at the whole thing."

Holmes has said that he wants to retire after this year after one or possibly two more fights.

Greg Page scored a unanimous 12-round decision over Renaldo Snipes on Friday night's card in what was billed as an elimination bout to find a next opponent for Holmes.

There also has been talk of a heavyweight unification bout against WBA king Dokes but that may not come off because both men fight under the aegis of promoter Don King. Holmes had said he would fight Weaver had he beaten Dokes but was less specific about a possible bout against Dokes.

Of course, Witherspoon is also in King's stable managed, like Dokes, by the promoter's son, Carl.

King, who promoted Friday night's card which opened with Ossie Ocasio defending his WBA junior heavyweight crown against Randy Stephens, said he said he would abide by Holmes' wishes.

"Whatever Larry Holmes decides, I stand by," said King. "But I have told him that if you go to the well once too often, you can lose it the same way you got it."

Beck Uses Aggressive Shots For Atlanta Lead

ATLANTA (AP) — Chip Beck's game plan was simple — and productive.

"I actually felt like if they cut it to 54 holes, today was a good day to make a move," Beck said Friday after firing a 7-under-par 65 to take the lead in the weather-plagued, incompleting opening round of the $400,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic.

"For me, my Thursday and Friday rounds have been too conservative," Beck said. "I went out today to be more aggressive. That was my plan."

Beck finished his round shortly after the siren suspended play for the day with 26 golfers still on the course and slated to return this morning to complete their rounds.

Beck, 26, is in his fifth season on tour and is still seeking his first victory.

"I'm glad of the way I've played on tour," he said. "I'm happy the way I'm progressing. It's been a learning experience."

"If I had jumped right out and won, it would have hurt me now. I am ready to win. I'm a patient man. I've worked hard. Eventually it will come, whether it's this week or later."

Beck's round included an impressive 30 on the front side of the 7,007-yard, par-72 Atlanta Country Club course and enabled him to move three shots ahead of Calvin Peete, who had a 68 earlier in the day.

Tournament officials announced that the event would be shortened from 72 to 54 holes because of a television commitment after the scheduled first round was rained out Thursday. There was a 3-hour, 15-minute rain delay Friday.

Two players were in position to finish their rounds today in contention — Greg Powers and Mark McCumber. Each had one hole remaining with Powers standing at 4-under and McCumber 3-under.

Among the finishers were eight players deadlocked at 69, including Lanny Wadkins, the leading money winner seeking his third victory of the season, and Jim Colbert, who broke a three-year winless drought by capturing the Colonial National Invitation Tournament last week.

Tom Watson, who hasn't won since claiming the U.S. Open title 11 months ago, and Ray Floyd were among 11 players who posted 70s and defending champion Keith Fergus had a 71.

South African Gary Player shot 72, and his son, Wayne, had a 76.

Beck, who started on the back side, birdied the 11th from 30 feet and the 15th from 10 feet, but took his only bogey of the day on 12 where he had a poor chip and missed his eight-foot par putt.

Beck said he hit the ball as well as he ever has on the back, but just didn't score, and then put together two strings of three successive birdies on the front side.

"I knew that was one of the best nines I've ever played," he said.

The first birdie binge started at No. 1 where he chipped in from 40 feet, then wedged to a four-footer on the second hole and came back with a 15-footer at the third.

He had a 30-foot birdie putt at the sixth and followed with birdies on the next two holes from three and 10 feet. His eight-foot birdie putt on No. 9 grazed the hole, and he three-putted there for a finishing par.

Peete had a pair of 15-foot birdie putts on Nos. 4 and 5, scored from 25 feet at No. 13, 20 feet at the 15th and 10 feet on 18. His only bogey was on No. 11 where he came up short of the green.

Little League Plans Annual Fund Raiser

The Greenville Little Leagues will hold their annual Luncheon-Supper on Wednesday.

Lunch hours will be from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m., with supper hours from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Plates may be picked up from the trucks at Elm Street Park and advance tickets are guaranteed until 6 p.m.

Plates are also available from the trucks for $3 without previously purchased tickets.

The event is the only fundraising event of the leagues, and Mrs. Faye Jackson is serving as project chairman.

A doubleheader game will be played at Elm Street in conjunction with the sale. First Federal meets Carroll & Associates at 4 p.m., with the Lions taking on Sportsworld at 6 p.m.

Class D Tourney Scheduled

WASHINGTON — A Class D tournament for Industrial and Church League teams will be held in Washington on Saturday and Sunday, June 4-5.

The tournament, a double-elimination event, will be played at P.S. Jones Junior High and Washington High School. A $65 entry fee is charged, and home teams will furnish a new ball and visitors, a playable ball. Class C USSSA rules will be used.

Trophies will be awarded to the championship team and its players, and to the runner-up team and the MVP.

A May 31 deadline has been set for entries.

For further information, or to receive entries, contact Bobby Andrews, Rt. 3, Box 884, Washington, N.C. 27889, or call 919-946-4215.

The Moose and Coca-Cola won prizes for the most ticket sales as a team, while Wesley Jackson of the Tar Heel League and Kevin Jordan of the North State won the individual prizes.

Johnson, White Earn LPGA Tie

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Chris Johnson's day began miserably.

First, the 25-year-old golfer learned her sports car had been stolen from her hotel parking lot in Hasbrouck Heights. Then she had to squeeze into a cab with five others for the 20-minute ride to the Upper Montclair Country Club for the start of the $125,000 LPGA Chrysler-Plymouth Charity Classic.

Adding to her miseries, Johnson had to tee-off in a steady rain that pelted the par-73, 6,389-yard course.

But her day took a turn for the better once she began to play. She carded four birdies and an eagle to tie Donna White for the first-round lead Friday with a five under par 68.

"I was glad it was raining so people would think it was rain on my face instead of tears," said Johnson.

Presumably, all her tears were gone by the time she sank a 65-yard shot with a sand wedge for an eagle on the par-5, 504-yard 18th hole.

Johnson, whose best finish this season has been a tie for sixth place and has never finished higher than third, began play on the back nine. She closed out her round by sinking a 20-footer for a birdie on the par-5 453-yard 9th hole.

"A couple of times during the round I thought about it," Johnson said, referring to her missing 1983 Mazda RX7.

"I was upset, but I had to put a lot of things aside," she said. "I had to go out and play hard."

The only time Johnson struggled was on the par-5, 525-yard fifth hole, when she had her only bogey. But she rallied with a three-foot putt for a birdie on the next hole.

White, who in 1980 captured the last LPGA tournament held at Upper Montclair, sank a six-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to pull into a tie with Johnson. White completed the first round, which ended under sunny skies, with five birdies.

White, who has won one tournament this season and is 13th on the money list with $46,018.90, said her 20-foot putt for a birdie on the par 3, 192-yard third hole was her longest of the year.

Seven women were bunched at 72 — Stephanie Farwig, Debbie Hall, Barbara Moxness, Alison Sheard, Lynn Adams, Janet Anderson and Jane Crafter. Crafter had six birdies, but also had three bogeys and a double bogey.

Hollis Stacy, who has back-to-back victories this season, headed a group of six golfers who shot an even-par 73.

Nancy Lopez was one of 12 golfers at 74. Jan Stephenson was one of 13 at 76.

Kathy Whitworth, the leading money winner on the tour this season, shot an eight over par 81. She has 84 career victories and can pass Sam Snead as professional golf's all-time winner with her next four triumphs.

Rule Costs Clerc Chance For Semis

ROME (AP) — Jimmy Arias of the United States, the beneficiary of the surprising disqualification of Argentina's Jose Luis Clerc, meets Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland in the semifinals of the $375,000 Italian tennis open.

The other semifinal today pits top-seeded Jose Higuera of Spain against Sweden's Stefan Simonsson.

The 18-year-old Arias, seeded sixth, advanced without having to play in the quarterfinals when officials, under a new rule, disqualified Clerc from the tournament for walking out of a doubles match before it was completed.

Kurt Nielsen, supervisor of the Men's International Professional Tennis Council, explained that disqualification from one match means a player defaults any other matches in the tournament.

Nielsen, a Dane who was twice a finalist at Wimbledon, announced he would decide today whether Clerc will receive a further fine. He drew an automatic fine of $1,000 and forfeited $7,350 in prize money he won in Rome.

Clerc was seeded second in the tournament and is ranked eighth in the world on the Atari-ATP computer standings. He was considered one of the few drawing cards in the Rome open, which for the first time in years has failed to attract a top field.

The 24-year-old Gunthardt, who last won a tournament in 1980, has been one of the surprises here. He scored a major upset in the quarterfinals Friday when he knocked out third-seeded Eliot Teltscher of the United States 6-3, 6-2.

Simonsson, who had eliminated fourth-seeded Brian Gottfried in the second round, reached the semifinals with an easy 6-0, 6-1 victory over 18-year-old Frenchman Guy Forget.

But the attention Friday focused on the off-court dispute. Clerc admitted he didn't know the rules, but accused the officials of picking on him and ignoring infractions by other players.

"Why (are they applied) only to me and (Ilie) Nastase?" he said at a news conference. "The rules are for everyone, not one or two guys."

Pele Believes In 'World' Cup

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Pele scored the first of his many big victories here in 1958 when he was 17 years old, but he failed to win one for the United States when Mexico was chosen as host of the 1986 World Cup.

The former Cosmos star scored three times as Brazil whipped Sweden 5-2 in the championship game 25 years ago, triggering Pele's fabulous career.

Mexico, however, was a unanimous choice as the International Soccer Federation's (FIFA) executive committee rubber-stamped the selection.

"I love Mexico. We won the World Cup there in 1970, but I think soccer should expand into countries where it is a minor sport," Pele said Friday.

Solar Room With Hot Tub

The Osborne

By Jerry Bishop

English tudor styling and full width, two-story passive solar room with a hot tub are appealing features of the Osborne. Eight inch brick walls and a six inch concrete floor in the solar room soak up heat during the day and slowly release the warmth at night. Sliding glass doors and windows next to the solar room in a bath, kitchen and dining area on the lower level and two bedrooms on the upper level, can be opened or closed to control warm air circulation from the solar room. Also found on the lower level are a den and sunken living room. An air lock front entry prevents the escape of warm air.

Firm's Boss Says No To Coffee Truck

By JOHN CUNNIFF
 AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The coffee truck doesn't stop at Pepper Construction Co. job sites, at least during working hours. Richard Pepper, the president, banned them.

"If you have 100 men and the coffee truck comes around and they leave their jobs you lose $1,000 every morning, $1,000 in the afternoon, and $500,000 in a year," he said. "Our policy is you don't leave the job. We don't mind if you take a thermos to work, but the truck can't come around during working hours," said Pepper.

Richard Pepper, 52, is the newly elected president of the Associated General Contractors of America, which numbers among its members 8,400 general contractors, and 24,000 subcontractors, suppliers, dealers and others.

His goals are big: to encourage contractors to become more cost-effective, a matter that eludes many of them, and to fundamentally change the contractor-worker relationship, which is usually adversarial rather than one of mutuality.

There is an urgency to his mission, because construction is a shrinking market, having declined to $228 billion in 1982 from $236 billion in 1981 and $240 billion in 1980.

He insists that contractors must develop financial expertise, be able to analyze their markets, assess the labor supply, manage their cash flows and make better business decisions. In short, become better business people.

Union workers, he contends, must have more of a stake and responsibility in the survival of jobs. They're pricing themselves out of work, he says, noting that less than 20 years ago 85 percent of projects were union and 15 percent open shop, but that the percentages are now 55 percent open, 45 percent union.

How do you save jobs? To begin with, he says, you eliminate feather-bedding. Some operating engineers now get $20 an hour for starting and turning off the compressor, he said. Or for running an elevator. You have, he observes, an extra man on each power shovel, an oiler, who has an hour of real work a day but who gets paid for an entire day's work.

"Labor and management have to get the game plan together," he says. He seeks wage freezes. He seeks zero-based bargaining, contending that increases must be tied to productivity gains from which, he says, everyone benefits.

If the unions agree to get rid of non-productive work rules the companies could save and the unions could put part of the savings into a higher wage scale, he says, explaining "there is a dollar cost to every work rule."

He believes that the industry must resume multitrade work, in which the member of one craft can be asked, if necessary, to help in another area.

He would eliminate strikes by insisting that all contracts should have an impartial settlement plan. It's a must, because "strikes aren't useful for either side," he states. "The best ad for an open shop is a strike."

Labor and management should try to cooperate in what the industry calls its Market Recovery Program, in which committees seek to identify and address competitive problems that could be costly to both workers and employers.

Much of what Pepper advocates as AGC president has been tried in his own company, a Chicago-based, international operation whose revenues have risen 500 percent in 10 years to $192,575,000, including last year's $70 million jump.

Pepper believes in strong, efficient, modern management, knowing that small savings repeated again and again show up big on the bottom line.

The company, a union contractor, has a full-time safety engineer and a safety committee that meets once a month. It is a clean-site company "because clean jobs are more efficient and safe." Safety defects must be corrected within 48 hours if possible. And because an accident-prone man could mean costlier insurance, his team checks worker safety records.

Another committee, on productivity, encourages superintendents to review crew size, be alert to possible savings, and discourage wasteful practices.

Which is why the coffee truck doesn't stop anymore.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures

Q - About a year ago, you gave detailed instructions about filling cracks in genuine plaster walls. I followed them to the letter and everything looked great for about a month, then new cracks began appearing, not where I had patched but at the bottoms of where the old cracks were. What did I do wrong? Is this a normal result?

A - A check of the instructions will show some advice about not starting to patch the cracks until you first check the possibility they might lengthen. This is done, as the article said, by making light pencil or chalk marks at the ends of the cracks and then waiting a few weeks to see whether the cracks lengthened. Not until you were sure the cracking had ceased were you advised to begin the patching. Go through that procedure this time before going to work on the new cracks.

solution is to produce less moisture, permit it to escape or trap it.

Decorator Showcases Produce Concepts For Private Homes

By BARBARA MAYER
 AP Newsfeatures

From spring through fall, decorators and charitable causes join together in many American cities to produce that warm-weather extravaganza known as the decorator showhouse.

As an exercise in winning, it's hard to imagine a better example than the showhouse. Worthwhile causes are supported through ticket sales; old houses get a new lease on life through refurbishing; decorators gain new clients. And for a small, usually tax-deductible fee, visitors get to revitalize their decorating thinking and come away with ideas they can put into effect themselves or with the names of decorators whose work they admire.

Visits to two showhouses recently in the New York area turned up many ideas an individual could adapt in her own home. And a talk with the chairman of one of the showhouses - Joyce Miller of the Junior League of Greater Bridgeport, Conn. - established that the $70,000 or so the group expects to raise in the month-long showhouse at Burr Homestead in Fairfield, Conn., will be used to support many community projects.

Mrs. Miller said the league's earlier showhouses had helped rehabilitate the mansion owned by the town of Fairfield. Last year, 30,000 people attended events held at the Burr Mansion which is rented out for a variety of public and private functions.

At the Kips Boys' Club Showhouse at a Fifth Avenue mansion in New York, a similar story of funds to benefit a worthwhile project was told.

At both showhouses, basic decorating ideas for walls and window treatments as well as color schemes, furniture arrangement and use and arrangements of accessories were covered in depth.

New ways of thinking about paint were well demonstrated at Burr Homestead. In one room, for example, paint was used to simulate a costly-looking, suede-like finish on the walls.

"It's really quite simple to do," said Trudy Ludwig, a decorator. "You use three coats. The first coat is a flat oil paint in the lightest color you plan to use. Step two is to sponge on a darker coat. We used bunched-up paper towels to apply the color." A final coat of a matte finish completed the job.

Mrs. Ludwig also used paint to create a faux marble finish on woodwork. Using a sponge and feathers dipped into several paint colors, she created a marble-like veining that was no more costly than the paint itself, though it contributed to a room that looked rich enough for an emperor.

Another easily copied idea employed wallpaper panels in place of paintings. The panels of Chinese scenes were hung in a passageway by designers Lena Polzello and Marilyn Kohn. The two women framed each panel with wood moldings to create the effect of a series of framed art works.

Wallpaper panels are especially well suited to a foyer, passageway or dining room, they said.

Combining paint and wallpaper borders produced an outstanding effect in John P. Bygott's traditional dining room.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful data in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which is available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Q. Blackbirds are eating my corn before it sprouts. What should I do to keep the birds away? (H.Y., Harris)

A. Use scare tactics or physical barriers to keep the birds away until the corn is three to four inches tall. Some scare tactics are scarecrows or pieces of shiny metal. Setting off firecrackers or shooting a shotgun will keep the birds away. A line of string running through the length of the row and a few inches above the ground will help serve as a physical barrier. Netting is a good barrier if you do not have a large area planted. It should be about three inches above the ground.

Q. I planted a six-foot-tall tree in my yard. I used guy wires to keep the tree from blowing over. How long should I keep them attached? (P.F., Windsor)

A. They should be removed after one year. If the roots of the tree have not gone out into the soil by this time, something is wrong and the tree should probably be removed. Also, many trees have been killed or injured because people have forgotten to remove guy wires. The tree continues to grow around the wire, which may eventually girdle it.

Q. I have heard about a new variety of strawberry called 'SweetHeart' that you can grow from seed. Can you give me some more information? (A.C., Wilkesboro)

A. 'SweetHeart' is the first medium-size strawberry that can be grown from seed by home gardeners. It is an everbearing variety that is being introduced for the 1983 season. SweetHeart is of interest mainly to hobbyists and home gardeners. Its berries are too small and, because it is grown from seed, the genetic variety of the berries and the plants is too great to be of value to commercial growers.

Q. Can you give me some information on caging tomatoes? (W.E., Tyner)

A. Cages for tomatoes are nothing more than cylinders made of reinforcing wire, hog wire or similar material used to support the plant and keep the fruit off the ground. The cylinder should be about 18 to 20 inches in diameter and two and one-half feet to five feet tall. Concrete reinforcing wire is generally considered the best wire to use and is available in rolls in varying lengths. It is highly advisable to support the cage with wooden or metal stakes to keep the cage from falling over later in the season. Only one plant inside each cage is recommended.

Q. Will I have ripe tomatoes earlier if I buy and plant tomatoes that already have small fruit on them? (L.F., Newell)

A. Planting tomato plants that already have small fruit on them will not guarantee the home gardener an earlier harvest. Developing fruits on tomato plants place a serious nutrient drain on the plants, and if the plants are having to overcome transplant shock, slow early growth will likely result. Tomato plants grow best when transplanted before blossoms form. It is possible to plant tomato plants that already have fruit on them provided the plants have been grown in a container large enough to allow room for good root development and thereby lessen the chance of transplant shock.

Oilmen To Have Choice In Selecting Gulf Coast Sites In Sale This Week

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal government has held 69 sales of offshore oil leases in the Gulf of Mexico over the past 29 years but the one coming up Wednesday is entirely different.

Instead of offering a number of specific seabottom tracts for lease, the Department of Interior simply opened up the entire central Gulf and told oilmen to take their pick.

So an unknown number of oil companies will make an unknown number of bids on an unknown number of tracts — and the Mineral Management Service won't know any of the essential details until the day before the sale, when bids must be in.

"Actually, we don't even use the word 'sale' any more," said Barney Congdon, a service spokesman. "Now it's 'lease offering'."

Whatever it is will take place in a meeting room at the Superdome at 9 a.m. Oil industry people are reluctant to talk about it, so another unknown is the number of people expected to be there.

John Rankin, acting director of the service, guesses that about 400 tracts, most of them nine square miles in size, will draw bids from oilmen who believe that oil or natural gas lies below.

Interior Secretary James Watt imposed this controversial "streamlined five-year schedule" of leasing offshore bottoms. He said it will bring about production of more oil and gas, more offshore finds, and thus more money to the government.

Federal offshore money already amounts to a hefty sum. For fiscal 1983, the government expected offshore royalties and leases to produce $17 billion — much of it from this Gulf area.

Critics contend this system won't bring in as much as the seabottoms are worth. David Russell, service deputy director, said sales are based on true market value — and the definition of that is the amount a willing buyer will pay a willing seller.

Choice

John Rankin of the Department of Interior looks over a chart of ocean bottom that will be put up for lease between Texas and Florida Wednesday in New Orleans. It will be the first time such a large section of the Gulf of Mexico oil lands has been offered at one sale. (AP Laserphoto)

Business Failures Rise Despite Overall Gains

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — At a time when signs are emerging of a growing economic recovery, the number of business failures has jumped by a third from a year ago and the rate of corporate casualties is expanding at its fastest pace in 51 years.

Analysts say some companies weakened in the two recessions since 1980 are unable to survive any longer as slight improvements in business fail to offset mounting debts, despite hopes that recovery for their industry may be only months away.

"It is just a question of how long they can hold out," said Stephen Roach, an economist at the investment firm of Morgan Stanley & Co.

Roach said a Commerce Department report this past week of a continued decline in after-tax corporate profits in the first three months of the year, a period of overall economic growth, was a grim reminder of the pressures facing business.

After-tax profits, which fell 22.4 percent in 1982, slid 4.6 percent in the first quarter, the government said.

While profits fell in the first quarter, the gross national product, the broadest measure of goods and services produced in the country, rose at an inflation-adjusted annual rate of 2.5 percent. And prospects for even faster growth in the current quarter are bright.

The Commerce Department said that Americans' personal income rose 0.8 percent in April, the biggest gain since last July, and that consumer spending rose 1 percent. "This is the stuff of which sustained business recoveries are made," said Robert Dederick, undersecretary of commerce for economic affairs.

The Federal Reserve Board said manufacturers operated their factories at 71.1 percent of capacity in April, a rise of 1.3 percentage points from March and the highest level since March 1982.

The Commerce Department said orders received by factories for durable goods, big-ticket items such as appliances, rose 2.4 percent in April following a 3.2 percent climb in March.

"The financial position of American business is finally beginning to improve, following the most lengthy period of strain and severe deterioration since the 1930s and a near depression for the U.S. economy," Allen Sinai, an economist at the consulting firm Data Resources Inc., told a congressional panel this past week. "Despite the turning of the corner for the financial position of nonfinancial corporations, a large failure fallout can be expected to remain throughout most of this year."

Through mid-May, 11,410 businesses failed, up 33 percent from the same period last year, according to Dun & Bradstreet Corp., a business information service. The 25,346 failures in all of 1982 marked an increase of 49 percent from the previous year and a surge of 235 percent from the 7,564 failures in all of 1979.

Dun & Bradstreet estimated that through April, 111 of every 10,000 businesses were failing, up from a rate of 89 failures for each 10,000 businesses last year and the highest failure rate since the 154 per 10,000 businesses in 1932 during the depths of the Great Depression.

"With a narrowly based recovery and an economy that is still relatively depressed, it is likely that a number of corporations will find it difficult to keep operating," Sinai told the subcommittee on monetary policy of the House Banking Committee.

He said industries still at risk include agriculture, farm implements, air transport, steel, aluminum, building materials, copper, forest products, lead, zinc, oil drilling and retailing.

"While specific failures cannot be pinpointed or predicted, additional failures of a few more firms of good size remain probable," Sinai said. "But the danger of a run of unexpected failures of major consequence is considerably less now than over the past year."

John McAuley, an economist at Chemical Bank, also attributed part of the rise in business failures to changes in bankruptcy laws that have made it easier for businesses to seek protection from creditors, and to a change in attitudes toward bankruptcy, reducing the stigma of admitting failure.

McAuley said that while business failures often continue to grow after the onset of a recovery, an upturn in the formation of new businesses often signals better times are imminent.

Dun & Bradstreet said that new incorporations rose 15.4 percent to a seasonally adjusted 49,999 in January from 43,330 a year earlier. The January figures are the most recent available.

In other business and economic developments this past week:

—The Labor Department said the number of Americans receiving special benefits for the long-term unemployed rose to nearly 1.5 million in the week ended April 30, a rise of 195,000 from the previous week. It was the largest number of people receiving the supplemental benefits since program was enacted last August.

—U.S. automakers said the number of workers on indefinite layoff slipped by 7,000 this past week to a total of 210,650, the lowest level since Dec. 11, 1981. Indefinite layoffs in the domestic auto industry reached a peak of 269,400 in early January.

—The United Auto Workers elected Owen Bieber, 53, as president of the 1.1 million-member union, succeeding Douglas Fraser, who retired. "We're tired of being blamed for the industry's problems," Bieber said. He told autoworkers that they have sacrificed enough and that manufacturers must "do the giving" in the next round of contract talks.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday Afternoon

Nancy Hardy Garrett and Paul David Whitaker were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church. The Rev. John Randolph Price performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corydon Dwight Garrett Sr. of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert LeRoy Whitaker of Fayetteville and the late Mrs. Betty Pope Whitaker.

A program of music was given by Mrs. Julian Jordan White Jr., soloist, and Iris Caldwell, organist. Celeste Wilkerson directed the wedding.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Martha Elizabeth Garrett of Raleigh served as her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. John Charles Young, sister of the bride, Julia Claire Allen, Christia Anne Dunn, Janet M. Stoughton and Alva Rhonda Butler, all of Greenville, Sandra Lynn York of Cheshire, Conn. and Debra Wainer Kiziah of High Point.

The attendants wore formal gowns of ivory taffeta. The fitted bodice had a self-ruffle defining the V-neckline and extending to the natural waistline. The gathered skirt was accented at the waist by a matching sash. They carried clustered bouquets of orange gerbera daisies accented with alstromeria and statice.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were James Craig Whitaker, brother of the bridegroom, Corydon Dwight Jr. and Herbert Noel Hardy Garrett, brothers of the bride, Timothy Layne Sprinkle of Raleigh, Kenneth Ray Blizard of Kinston, Larry Leathers of Durham and Joel Burton Treadway of Fayetteville.

The bride wore a formal gown fashioned in satin organza over peau de soie featuring an open portrait neckline outlined in imported re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls and interspersed with appliques of floral silk Venise lace. Appliques of lace enhanced the modified empire waistline and the long fitted sleeves were trimmed at the cuffs with appliques of imported lace. The flared skirt and attached cathedral length train featured a bias ruffle flounce sculptured in a scalloped effect accented by lace motifs. A band of silk Venise flowers bordered the flounce while appliques of the re-embroidered lace trimmed the back of the gown. She wore an heirloom brussels lace mantilla, worn by her mother and sister for their weddings. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids accented with stephanotis and greenery.

The mother of the bride wore a navy silk chiffon dress with a matching sash and carried a green cymbidium orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points the couple will live in Wilmington.

The bride attended Lees McRae College and was employed at the College Shop here. The bridegroom graduated from East Carolina University and works at Carolina Power and Light Co. in Wilmington.

A cocktail party was given Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Radford Marvin Garrett Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Radford Marvin Garrett II and cousins of the bride at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Sr.

A brunch was held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Ercell Webb assisted by Mrs. Garrett Folger. A rehearsal dinner was given by Whitaker and Mrs. Vivian McLawhorn at the Rotary Club followed by a dance given by friends of the bride and her parents at the American Legion. A bridesmaids luncheon was given Tuesday at the Colonial Inn in Farmville by Mrs. John Stoughton and a shower at held that evening at the home of Christia Dunn.

Sorority Has Dinner Meet

A Founder's Day program was given at the meeting of Alpha Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority held Tuesday evening.

Mildred Hecker told of the historical beginning of the group which was organized in Texas in 1929 and later chartered in Missouri Feb. 11, 1930. It became international in 1948 when a chapter was organized in Voorburg, Holland.

The international philanthropic project is aid to the handicapped. Local chapters are encouraged to support its own benevolent, charitable or civic enterprises.

Barbara Woods gave a brief history of the local chapter which was started in 1966 as a sister chapter of Gamma Delta Chapter of ESA.

Dear Abby

Reader Shares Remarks From Eisenhower

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Because of your longtime interest and support of the Salvation Army Booth Hospital for unwed mothers, I want to bring you up-to-date.

For two agonizing years we feared we would have to close our doors because our money was running out. In fact, a date was set and the hospital announced that no more girls could be admitted. Sick at heart, we all prayed a lot, and God heard our prayers because some generous people (and foundations) came to our rescue, and now the Booth Hospital is safe for another three years!

We are filled to capacity, Abby, but I'm sad to report that our unwed mothers keep getting younger and younger. Presently we have one 10-year-old and three 11-year-olds.

Our Emergency Lodge has become a haven for homeless families — especially mothers and their fatherless children. It, too, is filled to capacity — 100-bed, family-style accommodations, 2,050 persons served annually, 74,825 meals served annually.

Every spring, just before Easter, our board purchases new clothing for each child in the lodge. The mothers and children select their new clothes with the help of the Salvation Army officer. A "fashion show" is held, and the children model their new clothing. (These are the first "new" clothes that some have ever had!) It's always the happiest, most touching affair of our year.

Sorry about the length of this, but I knew you'd like to know.

ALICE WINTERS, PRESIDENT,
SALVATION ARMY WOMEN'S AUXILIARY
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

DEAR MS. WINTERS: Congratulations on keeping afloat for another three years. Now that the government has cut back so drastically on funding agencies that provide services to the public, let me remind those with money to give, and especially those who have foundations, that the Salvation Army has never asked, "What religion are you, or what color are you?" It provides food, lodging and clothing to all in need.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old volunteer at a Baltimore hospital. Most of the patients on the 12th floor are on a weight-loss program, so one of the doctors thought of an incentive to get them to lose weight. He suggested that each one put $25 in a pot, and the first one who loses 20 pounds will win the jackpot. There will be no second or third prizes, the winner gets it all! There's a lot of money in that pot, and believe me, Abby, those fatties are losing weight faster than they put it on!

Please send me the "dieter's prayer" you published. (It starts out like the 23rd Psalm.) I want to post it on the scale the dieters use to weigh themselves on. It would really be encouraging. Thanks a lot.

ME IN MARYLAND

DEAR ME: The "dieter's prayer" is on its way.

Now none of those dieters can say they never had a prayer.

DEAR ABBY: With the battle for bigger defense budgets going on in Congress, would it not be appropriate to remind your readers of the enclosed remarks from a speech Dwight D. Eisenhower delivered before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in April of 1953?
M.E.G., ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.

DEAR M.E.G.: Yes, indeed. And thank you for it: "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed. This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children. . . . This is not a way of life at all in any true sense. Under the cloud of war, it is humanity hanging on a cross of iron."

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Ms. George Is ABWA Guest Speaker

Counselor Yvonne C. George, of Pitt Community College, spoke at the May meeting of the Pirate Charter Chapter of ABWA held Tuesday evening at Shoney's.

Her subject was on job opportunities with education. She told of the projected job needs to be filled in the Q Section (five counties including Pitt) in the 1980's.

Pat Hardee, scholarship chairman for the chapter, introduced Lori Jo Edwards who has been selected to receive this year's Pirate Chapter's Scholarship. She is a full-time student at Pitt Community College and also works at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

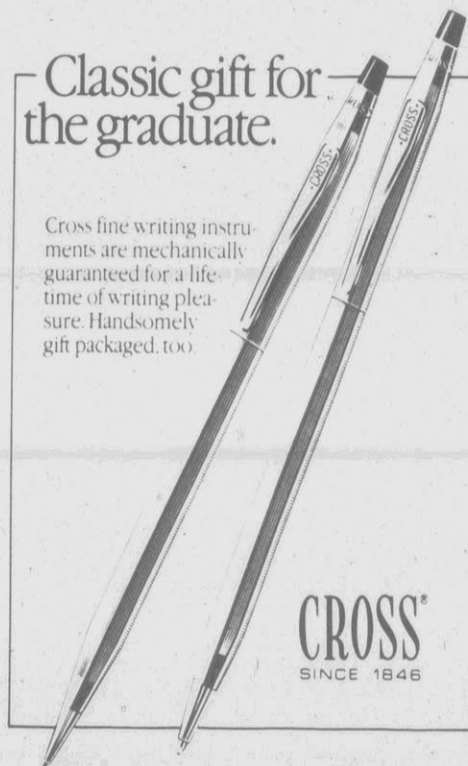

Nina Redditt was selected by the group as woman of the year. She has actively served in the various offices of chapters here and in Raleigh. She is currently president of the local chapter. While still serving in the U.S. Navy, Ms. Redditt was selected as woman of the year by the Raleigh chapter.

MRS. HAROLD LA MARTIN NOELL III

Garden Wedding Performed Saturday

In a garden ceremony Saturday at high noon, Patricia Ann Wilkerson and Harold La Martin Noell III were united in marriage. The Rev. J. Dana Pecheles performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Milton James Moye Jr. of Greenville and Stephen Lindsay Wilkerson Jr. of Gastonia and Mr. and Mrs. Harold La Martin Noell Jr. of Raleigh.

A program of organ music was presented by Sharon Irwin. The ceremony was conducted in the garden at the home of the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Graham Flanagan Sr.

Brenda Lea Foley of Oxford was the maid of honor and the father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Stephen Lindsay Wilkerson III of Greenville, brother of the bride, and Robert Willett Noell of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in re-embroidered alencon lace. The empire bodice was overlaid in re-embroidered alencon lace with matching lace accenting the cap sleeves. The modified A-line skirt and attached sweep train were accented with an edging of re-embroidered alencon lace. Motifs of matching lace were scattered over the train. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion attached to a caplet overlaid in matching lace. Appliques and pearls enhanced the illusion. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and stephanotis accented with a touch of yellow tied with satin ribbons and greenery.

The maid of honor wore a formal gown of mauve print silesta over mauve taffeta styled with a portrait neckline. She carried a gathered bouquet of alstromerias, miniature carnations, daisies and lilies.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents and relatives of the bride at the King and Queen

Friday evening.

The couple will be living in Burlington after a wedding trip to the mountains.

The bride attended St. Margaret's in Tappahannock, Va. and graduated from East Carolina University. She is a purchasing agent at Roche Biomedical Laboratories in Burlington. The bridegroom attended ECU and is a student at Elon College. He works at Roche Biomedical Laboratories and is a cytologist.

MID-SEASON JAM

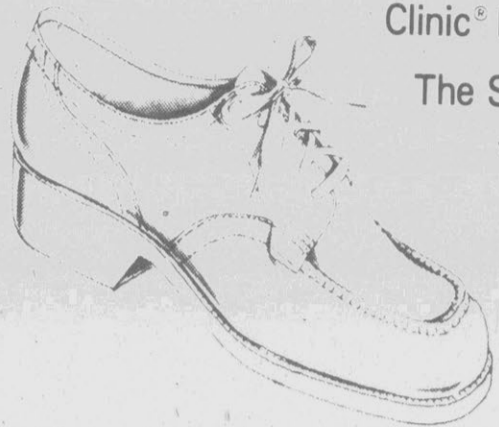

It's a pantry-shell sweet and a variety you can't buy.

1 pound dried apricots, chopped
20-ounce can crushed pineapple in heavy syrup, undrained
3/2 cups sugar
1 cup orange juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup slivered almonds

In a medium saucepan, cover apricots with water; boil for 15 minutes; drain. Return apricots to saucepan with pineapple, sugar, orange juice and salt; stir constantly over moderate heat until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Boil, stirring often to prevent scorching, until thick. Stir in almonds. Cool and store in the refrigerator. Makes about 6 cups.

Chenier-Schaub Vows Spoken

FAYETTEVILLE — The Peace Presbyterian Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon at three o'clock of Stephanie J. Schaub and Leo Joseph Chenier Jr. The Rev. Thomas Spence and the Rev. Charles Mulholland conducted the ceremony.

A program of music was presented by Tom Shaw, organist and soloists, Marianna Shaw, Rick Watson and Shaw.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Schaub of Fayetteville and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Chenier of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Sharon Schaub of Greenville was honor attendant for her sister. Her bridesmaids included another sister, Shelly Schaub of Fayetteville and Teresa Matthews of Greenville.

Dan Early was best man and ushers included Albert Howard and Tom Chenier, brother of the bridegroom, all of Greenville.

For the double ring ceremony, the bride was dressed in a gown styled with the bodice, hemline and train of embroidered alencon lace with designs of seed pearls applied throughout. It had a high neckline with long fitted sleeves. The skirt was of satin styled with a fitted waistline. Her bridal hat was decorated with a white taffeta rose and tulle with lace streamers. She carried a bouquet of red roses, baby's breath and greenery.

Her honor attendant and bridesmaids were each dressed in a tea length gown designed with a high neckline, back opening, elasticized waistbands and a tie satin ribbon belt. It has a ruffle around the bottom of the skirt. The dresses were in pastel pink and each carried a single red rose with greenery and baby's breath.

A reception was given by the bride's parents and was held at St. James Inn in Fayetteville. Cake was cut by Sandra Blackburn.

The couple will live in Washington after a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The bridegroom is employed as manager of Burger King in Washington. The bride is assistant manager at Virginia Crabtree in Greenville. Both are graduates of East Carolina University.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner at Horne's Motor Lodge in Fayetteville.

Ricciarelli-Carson Vows Are Solemnized

GRIFTON — Janet Lynn Carson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Oliver Carson, and Paul Andrew Ricciarelli, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmine Anthony Ricciarelli, all of Grifton, were married Saturday in a high noon ceremony.

MRS. PAUL ANDREW RICCIARELLI

The double ring ceremony was performed in the Grifton United Methodist Church by the Rev. Gerald Lloyd Edge. Music was performed by Janipat Worthington Whaley, organist, and Alex MacRae Warren, trumpeter. Christy Goodall Hill of Grifton sang "Words Unspoken" and "You Took My Heart By Surprise." "The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Mary Wells Andrews of Bethel, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white matte taffeta styled with a scooped front neckline. The fitted bodice front was accented with re-embroidered alencon lace etched with pearls and iridescents. The gathered lace applique taffeta skirt, accented with scalloped Wedgewood lace ruffles, flowed into an attached chapel train. She wore wrist length white lace gloves and a white bridal hat overlaid with luster satin. Pearl centered satin rosettes and pearl trim lined the under brim and an illusion Dior bow and illusion streamers flowed in the back. She carried a sunburst cascade of silk phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis and pink sweetheart roses accented with ivy.

Cynthia Gail Carson of Cary and Amy Bunting Carson of Grifton, sisters of the bride, were maids of honor. Bridesmaids were Tonda Rochelle Beam of Charlotte, Martha West Bennett of Elizabeth City, Faith Evert Entwistle of Myrtle Beach, S.C., Melinda Haynie of Coats, Deborah Anne Lay of Pittsboro and Teresa Lynn Taylor of Chapel Hill.

The attendants wore formal gowns of matte taffeta styled with white fitted bodices and muted cherry pink gathered skirts with attached self-fabric cummerbunds. Ruffles around the neckline were edged in matching color. They carried white fireside baskets of spring flowers in shades of pink, white and yellow interlaced with greenery.

Leigh Morgan Whitehurst of Bethel, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and wore a dress identical to the other attendants and carried a similar basket. Shaler Ross Chewning of Morganton was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen included Edward Bernard and Bernard Lawrence Ricciarelli of Grifton, brothers of the bridegroom, Lawrence Paul Ricciarelli, cousin of the bridegroom of Warwick, N.Y., Ned Hinnant Craft of Carrboro, Roger LaVern Davenport of Greenville, Stephen Wall Snyder of Washington and Joseph Lawrence Whaley of Grantsboro.

The mother of the bride wore a cocktail length gown of pewter gray tissue taffeta designed with an open neckline with a matching

Miss Stilley, Mr. Tetterton Marry

STOKES — Paula Lunette Stilley of Stokes and Benjamin Burnett Tetterton III of Bethel were united in marriage Saturday at 5 p.m. in the Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church near here.

The Rev. John D. Hill officiated at the candlelight, double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sherrill Johnson of Stokes, who gave her in marriage. She is also the daughter of Paul R. Stilley Sr. of Middlesex. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Burnett Tetterton Jr. of Bethel.

Escorted by her stepfather, the bride wore a formal gown of organza and re-embroidered chantilly lace over taffeta with a cathedral train. The fitted bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline outlined with scalloped lace on an embroidered illusion etched with seed pearls. The bishop sleeves were accented with lace motifs and cuffed with lace. An organza accented pleated panel edged with scalloped chantilly lace adorned the front of the skirt. An inverted accented pleated panel bordered with lace overlaid the train. She wore a layered waltz length mantilla of bridal illusion bordered with chantilly lace flowing from a lace caplet etched with seed pearls and carried a bouquet of pink roses, miniature pink carnations, daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

The matron of honor was Nancy Mazingo of Stokes and Kim Carraway of Falkland was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sylvia Stilley, sister of the bride, Emily Smith of Bethel, Teresa Greene and Patricia Sumerlin of Greenville. Junior bridesmaid was Shannon Johnson of Smithfield and Shelley Futrell of Bethel was flower girl. Corey Smith of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The attendants wore floor length gowns of pink taffeta overlaid with tiered organza fashioned with an open neckline. They carried matching spring bouquets.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Ricky Stilley and Joe Lassiter of Woodbridge, Va., brother and cousin of the bride, Jeff Griffin and Mike Briley of Greenville and Albert Campbell of Washington.

MRS. BENJAMIN BURNETT TETTERTON III

overlaid with tiered organza and piano music. Sue Brown, aunt of the bridegroom, sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Wedding Prayer." Willard Haddock of Greenville sang "Endless Love" and "We've Only Just Begun."

The mother of the bride wore a formal powder blue silklyure polyester gown with an organza jacket. The mother of the bridegroom chose a floor length mauve linen weave polyester gown with a matching lace jacket.

Edna Raye Dennis of Bethel directed the ceremony and Eve Lassiter, aunt of the bride of Woodbridge, Va., presided at the register.

A reception was given by the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Dr. and Mrs. G.G. Garrenton greeted guests. Jeremy Barbour of Smithfield gave out rice bags.

Ann Ayers, aunt of the bridegroom, and Freda Johnson, aunt of the bride, served cake. Punch was poured by Janelle Smith, Mary Rollins and Everdene Tetterton. Assisting were Celia Singleton, Laverne Hughes and Jo Ann Barbour. After a wedding trip to the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina, the couple will live near Bethel.

The bride, a senior at North Pitt, plans to attend Pitt Community College. The bridegroom attended North Pitt, N.C. State University and Pitt Community College. He is employed by Universal Leaf Tobacco Co. in Richmond, Va.

An informal party for the bridal attendants was given by Nancy Mazingo and Mrs. Provert Lassiter at the home of Mrs. Lassiter. Relatives of the bridegroom gave a dinner honoring the wedding party. An after-rehearsal pig picking was given by the bridegroom's parents at the church fellowship building.

The bride graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and was a member of Phi Mu Sorority. She is employed by the Pitt County School System and teaches at Ayden Elementary School. The bridegroom graduated from East Carolina University and is employed with the American Tobacco Co. as a sales representative.

An after-rehearsal dinner and dance was held Friday at the Ramada Inn in Greenville given by the bridegroom's parents.

The bride was entertained at a luncheon given by her attendants at the Colonial Inn in Farmville. Other pre-nuptial parties included a cocktail party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie L. Hardee in Grifton and an old-fashioned pounding was held at the home of Patsy McLawhorn Worthington in Ayden. A pig picking was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Wedding Ceremony Solemnized

The wedding of Martha Ann Goforth and James Edwin Sutton Jr. took place Saturday at 3 p.m. in the St. James United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Dewey Tyson and the Rev. Gerry Anders officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean Goforth and the bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. James Edwin Sutton Sr., all of Greenville.

Escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white satin dress with high neckline outlined with alencon lace and a fitted bodice and long fitted sleeves of illusion and alencon lace. The full skirt flared into a chapel train which was enhanced with satin bows and alencon lace. Her chapel length veil of silk illusion was capped with alencon lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white sweetheart roses interspersed with lily of the valley, English ivy and white satin ribbon.

The maid of honor was Jane Hadley Goforth, sister of the bride, of Greensboro. She wore a long gown of pink chiffon with double flounce around the neckline and a deep V-back. Her flowers were a cascade of miniature pink and burgundy carnations with ivy and baby's breath.

The bridesmaids were Suzy Beaman McPherson of Fayetteville, Beverlee Swanner Nance of Hallsboro, Jan Lowe Foust of Winston-Salem and Terry Peede Rardon of Greenville. Their dresses were like that of the maid of honor and they carried cascade bouquets of miniature carnations with ivy.

The flower girls were Stacy Alexis Sutton of Greenville, Sara Elizabeth Matyiko and Mary Jenna Matyiko, both of Chesapeake, Va., all nieces of the bridegroom, and Caroline Scott Bell of Greer, S.C., cousin of the bride. They wore dresses of white dotted swiss with ruffled necklines and pink sashes and carried miniature cascade bouquets like those of the bridesmaids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Merton Bradley Sutton and Robert Warren Sutton of Greenville, brothers of the bridegroom, Daniel Gregory Durham of Roanoke Rapids and James Edward Hughes of Smithfield.

A program of organ music was presented by Frances Cain and Stephen W. Vaughn was soloist.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall and was given by the parents of the bride. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. David I. Bell of Greensboro.

Cake was cut by Mrs. A.C. Farmer, Mrs. Guilford Cargal, Nancy Gilbert and Mrs. James B. Bell, all aunts of the bride. Punch was poured by Mrs. Vestal Souther, aunt of the bride, Mrs. William Butts and Mrs.

MRS. JAMES EDWIN SUTTON JR.

Clifton Tilley, cousins of the bride.

The couple will be living in Greenville after a wedding trip to Kiawah Island and Charleston, S.C.

The bride graduated from J.H. Rose High School and East Carolina University. She is employed in sales at the Fixture House here. The bridegroom is service manager at Sutton's Service Center here. He graduated from J.H. Rose High School, Louisburg College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

A rehearsal dinner was given Friday night by the parents of the bridegroom at the Beef Barn.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

For years, I've heard the term, "Mental Cruelty."

Other than knowing it was legitimate grounds for divorce, I had no idea what it meant.

Until recently. Mental cruelty is when your husband involves you in a conversation in which he cannot remember the name of the person, place or thing. When he is sure you are straining every brain cell and reflex in your entire body, he will say, "Oh, well, forget it; it's not important," and change the subject.

Without a doubt it is the most hideous form of mental agony ever foisted on another human being.

What does he mean, "Forget it"? To forget it is to admit that you're as flako as he is. It then becomes a desperate race to come up with the name that no one can remember.

It's a genetic thing with my husband. His mother had it, too. She'd sit there with me watching a late movie on television and as a waiter hovered in the shadows at the edge of the screen, she'd say, "What's his name? Oh, you know. He never really became a big star, but he's always the villain. Oh, well, never mind."

That was it for me. The movie stopped right there while I tormented myself trying to remember that man's name. First I tried going through the alphabet and pausing at every letter to see if a name popped out of my subconscious. Then I made a few inquiries on the phone. As my mother-in-law got up and walked toward the door, I demanded, "Where do you think you're going?" "Home," she said. "It's late."

"And leave me with a man with no name? You've got to be kidding."

At 1 a.m. she called. My eyes were the size of garbage can lids and had been staring at the ceiling for three hours.

"It's Lyle Talbot," she said. "Good night, dear."

Sometimes there is no happy ending. We were all sitting around the other Sunday when my husband said, "What was the name of that restaurant back in Dayton that we used to go to all the time?"

We all tried. No one could think of it. "It begins with an R," he said. "I know that much." Dinner got cold. The dishes were cleared away and we all sat there, lost in our own thoughts, unable to make any conversation. We must have gone through a hundred names. Finally, I rummaged through some old drawers and found a Dayton phone book. "I've got it!" I shouted. "It's Cacchiatorri's. Now that you've ruined our entire evening, what about it?"

"Nothing," he said. "They closed."

I say divorce is too good for him!

Salt and pepper to taste

Tip beans; scrub under cold running water. In a food processor with the 1/4-inch (4mm) slicing disc, slice beans. Steam just until tender; drain and cool. Remove yolks from eggs; cover and refrigerate yolks. In the food processor, with the medium shredding disc, shred egg whites; mix with beans; cover and refrigerate. At serving time, add enough French dressing and salt and pepper to bean mixture to give good flavor - we used 1/4 cup French dressing; turn into a shallow serving dish. Hold a kitchen tea strainer over bean mixture and with a spoon, press egg yolks through it, rotating the strainer so yolks cover surface of salad. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Wedding Vows Are Exchanged

Elizabeth Ellen Landers and John Matthew Elrod, both of Greenville, were married Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. The Rev. Jerry M. Sherba performed the double ring ceremony and nuptial mass in the First Presbyterian Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew P. Landers of Greenville, formerly of Ossining, N.Y. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Polie Elrod of Alma, Ga.

A program of organ music was provided by Dr. Robert Irwin. Suzanne Pair sang "The Wedding Song" and "Through the Eyes of Love." The East Carolina University Newman Folk Group, led by Mickey Skidmore, provided special music during the mass.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a formal gown of white taffeta over peau de soie designed with an open neckline outlined in gathered taffeta and silk Venise lace beaded with pearls. The puffed sleeves were enhanced with Brussels lace. Silk Venise lace encircled the modified waistline. Taffeta bows and silk flowers accented the off-shoulder bodice. The full circular skirt and attached chapel length train were accentuated with a flounce of ruffled taffeta bordered in Brussels lace. She wore a halo of silk flowers with a chapel length illusion veil with pencil edging. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of eucharis lilies, white roses and stephanotis accented with baby's breath. She wore her mother's pearls.

Suzanne Leigh Landers of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Nancy Lambert of Yorktown, N.Y. and Doreen Henry of Pennsville, N.J. were bridesmaids. They wore prairie length gowns of strawberry taffeta designed with an open neckline outlined in a ruffle of taffeta and short puffed sleeves. A tie sash of taffeta encircled the waistline and the full circular skirt was enhanced with an underskirt edged in white chantilly lace overlaid by a ruffled flounced hemline of taffeta. They carried hand clustered bouquets of pink and lavender tulips, nerene lilies, sweetheart roses and freesia accented with a touch of baby's breath and greenery. Their headpieces were of pink sweetheart roses.

The best man was Michael Fielding of Alma, Ga.

Gregory Landers of Sunnyside, Calif., brother of the bride, and William Wheeler of St. George, S.C., were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore a tea length gown of wisteria chiffon styled with a dropped waistline. Her corsage of pink gerbera daisies was pinned to her clutch purse. The mother of the bridegroom wore a sheer long sleeved tea length gown of sky blue and a corsage of pink gerbera daisies.

Bet Alford directed the wedding and presided at the register.

Immediately following the ceremony a dinner reception and dance was held at the Brook Valley Country Club given by the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Narron greeted guests.

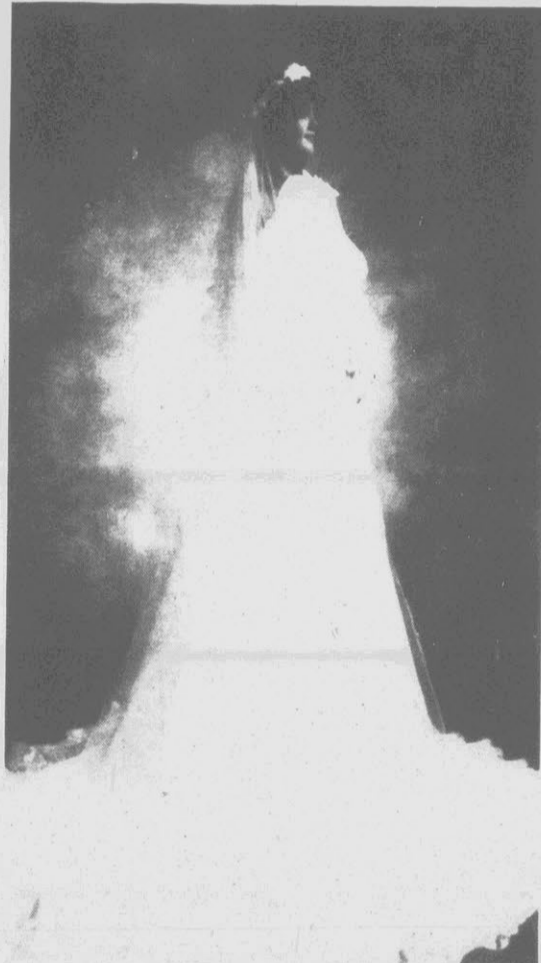

The reception area was directed in roses and spring flowers.

Dance music was presented by Joseph Distefano. Cake was served by Mrs. Joseph Reddington of New York.

A rehearsal dinner was held at Margaux's Friday night and was given by the bridegroom. Out-of-town guests were entertained at a

Through the Education Foundation for Foreign Study (EF), rising senior Danny Radeka will be spending a year of studying and living in Sweden. She chose the country because she felt that it would be some place different to visit. Also she has two Swedish friends who had previously been exchange students at Rose. To be accepted in the program, Danny had to have demonstrated above average academic performance including an ability to learn a foreign language. Prior to being selected, she was interviewed and screened by an area representative.

She will leave the U.S. in late July following a two-day pre-departure orientation in New York. Immediately after her arrival in Sweden, she will attend a three-week language camp. Afterwards, she will live with her host family until her return home in late June 1984.

Her host family, the Hedin family, lives in the small town of Vaja which has a population of about 800 people. Her father is the manager of a forest company and her mother is an elementary school teacher. Danny will take the bus to go to school in nearby Kramfors with her 19-year-old sister Elisabeth.

EF is a non-profit, public foundation which offers American high school students between the ages of 16 and 19 an opportunity to study and live for a year in Sweden, Germany or France.

Couple Marries On Saturday

Engagement Announced

PATRICIA ANN BRAXTON...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Skinner Braxton of Bell Arthur, who announce her engagement to Kenneth Ray Hemby, son of Linwood Baker and Jeanette Hemby of Greenville. A July 2 wedding is planned.

Ann Catherine Gray, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter C. Gray of Greenville, and Marian George Kubanda were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The double ring ceremony took place in St. Peter's Catholic Church.

Performing the ceremony was Father Jerry Sherba and Tom Davis.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John Kubanda of Aliquippa, Pa.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk-ened organza over peau de soie fashioned with a high neckline encircled with imported Brussels lace. The Victorian styled bodice featured embroidered English net in a floral pattern centered with a cameo medallion. The V-shaped yoke was outlined in floral silk Venise lace beaded with pearls. Matching lace appliques extended over the fitted bodice and the long sheer fitted sleeves were designed in the point d'esprit lace appliqued in silk Venise lace. Brussels lace edged the calla points at the wrist. The full skirt extended to an attached chapel length train which was edged with a border of scalloped Brussels lace. Tiers of crystal pleated organza interspersed with appliques of silk Venise lace trimmed the train. She wore a walking length illusion mantilla edged in matching lace. Her veil was attached to a Juliet headpiece trimmed in Venise lace. She carried a cascade of pink sweetheart roses, white miniature carnations, English ivy and baby's breath.

Each of the attendants wore a gown of daphne rose with a full length skirt of accordin pleats with rolled spaghetti straps. An over blouse of chiffon with lace trimmed the cuff on the long full sleeves and mandarin collar. Each carried a colonial nosegay of pink carnations, white cushion poms and baby's breath with mauve streamers.

Rita Ross was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Darlene Gifford, Tina Thomason, Maria Gray, sister of the bride, all of Greenville. The bride's twin sister of Wichita, Kan., Frances Gray, was the honorary maid of honor.

Christy Campbell of Beaver Falls, Pa. was flower girl and wore a pastel pink dress with bows accenting ruffles on the gown. It also had short sleeves. She carried a basket of white and pink flowers.

John Kubanda Jr. of Aliquippa, Pa. was best man for his brother. Ushers were Walter Gray Jr. of Raleigh and Richard Gray of Elizabeth City, brothers of the bride, and Michael Kubanda of Aliquippa, Pa., brother of the bridegroom.

A program of organ music was presented by Richard Shyan of Aliquippa, Pa., cousin of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a light blue jersey knit and the mother of the bridegroom wore a light rose dress. Both wore a single white cymbidium orchid corsage.

A reception was held at the Ramada Inn. Marie Morton of Greenville served cake.

The couple will be living in Greenville after a wedding trip to Disneyworld, Epcot Center and Key West, Fla.

The bride graduated from the East Carolina University School of Nursing and works at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom attended Warren Wilson College and is now pursuing a second degree in computer science at ECU. He is also employed at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

A rehearsal party was held Friday evening at the Ramada Inn and was given by the parents of the bride.

The parents of the bridegroom will entertain at a reception in Pittsburgh, Pa. in June for the bridal couple.

In Memory Of Mom

It's been a year now since God sent an angel to take you home to be with Him. Though our hearts ache and long to see you down here again, we know that by the grace of God, we will meet again in heaven, where no sickness nor death can enter a place of eternal peace and happiness, where we will never have to part again. We Thank God for a loving Mother who was always there to comfort and encourage us along life's journey, but most of all for teaching us about God and life eternal.

Book News

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

A contemporary theme found in many of the new books at Sheppard Library focuses on women and their struggle for independence and success.

In "Tradeoffs," a new novel by Jane Adams, three women near the peak of their careers share their triumphs and defeats and reveal what they learned about the cost of success and its payoffs. They ask questions of themselves and each other that are pertinent to all women of the eighties.

Paula, a lawyer and politician, ponders her role as a woman and rethinks the principles on which she has staked her career. Cass, a talented executive, asks "Who says a woman today can't go as far as a man? Who says I can't have it all?" These are the words she lives by until something happens to change her philosophy. Ellin, a writer and single mother, wants to know "Where is it written that just because you're a parent you have to give up everything that excites and completes you?" Torn between her own needs and those of her troubled teen-age daughter, she soon realizes that the price she must pay for love and success is higher than she ever dreamed.

This novel of conflict, careers, love and friendship among women is a dramatic and compelling story of the real choices faced by women at the top.

"Life Sentences" by Elizabeth Hailey is also a story of three women — college roommates who have not seen each other for 20 years. They are drawn together by Lindsey Howard, a successful New York magazine editor, who has just realized at 42 a need to change the direction of her life — a life that has been impelled by a single-minded devotion to others. To do this she is forced to keep secrets from her family and nearby friends. She pushes away the man who loves her and turns to her college friends for support in this life-changing decision.

Through a renewal of their loyalties to one another, they gain shocking and sometimes painful insights into their lives, but they emerge from their time together with a new found and joyous confidence to embrace their lifetime commitments.

CHINESE SEE PICASSO — Chinese viewers look at the painting of "Child and Dove" by Pablo Picasso at Peking's Fine Arts Museum. Navy Relief Walk Set

CAMP LEJEUNE — The annual Eastern North Carolina Navy Relief Benefit 10,000 Meter Race and One-Mile Fun Run will be held this year on June 4.

The preregistration fee for the 10,000 Meter Race is $5 per person if delivered or postmarked by May 27, with later registration and registration on the day of the race priced at $6. Fee for the Fun Run is $2.

The 10,000-meter race will begin at 9:30 a.m., with the Fun Run to get underway at 9 a.m. Starting point for the races will be Brewster Junior High School, located one-half mile from the main gate at Camp Lejeune.

Funds realized from the event will go to the Navy Relief, an agency that provides assistance to service personnel and their families in time of emergency need.

Checks or money orders for preregistration can be sent to: Captain H.J. Medeiros, Base Adjutant, Camp Lejeune, N.C. 28542.

Raft Race Forms Available

NEW BERN — Entry forms for those wishing to take part in the eighth annual Great Trent River Raft Race are now being accepted. No vessel will be allowed to enter without a completed form and payment of required fees.

Fees for the event, set for June 11 in New Bern, are: Canoes, $15; rafts, $30; both plus $5 per crew member.

All proceeds realized go to support the Sudan Temple's Crippled Children's Hospital Fund.

SPRING DUNE WALK

BEAUFORT — The single event scheduled this week by Hampton Mariners Museum, 120 Turner St., Beaufort, is a spring dune walk. The walk will take place from 10 a.m. to noon at Fort Macon State Park, with participants to meet at the fort parking lot. The event is free.

Craft Day In New Bern

NEW BERN — Saturday is craft demonstration day at Tryon Palace in New Bern, with over 30 craftsmen to be on hand from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to demonstrate their skills. They will be at locations scattered throughout the grounds and gardens of the palace complex.

No admission is being charged for strolling the premises on this special Colonial Living Day, but the usual fee for the interior tours of Tryon Palace, Stanly House and the Stevenson House will be charged. These places are all open from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Greenville craftsmen to take part in the demonstration, all specializing in spinning or weaving arts, are: Stephanie Auner, Annie Cable, Lora Ehlbeck, Mary Furth, Karen Mozingo, Vikki Nunnally, Ruth Patterson and Myra Sexauer.

Fred Tharrington and an assistant from Raleigh will be engaged in cabinetmaking demonstration, and other craftsmen from Bridgeton, New Bern, Winterville, Goldsboro, Smithfield-Selma, Bayboro, Beaufort, Cove City, Washington and several other towns will be engaged in crafts such as pine needle work, quilting, pottery, rug hooking, dulcimer making and gunsmithing.

Many of these crafts are ones that were in everyday use at the time that Royal

Gov. William Tryon and his family moved into the lavish, 40-room palace in 1769.

1942 Biography Of Adventuress Being Republished

QUITE A LADY - With her forehead bandaged after a minor injury incurred during her flight, Beryl Markham acknowledges the cheers of a large crowd gathered at a New York Airport to greet her following her 1936 solo flight from England across the Atlantic to North America. She was the first woman to accomplish this feat. "West with the Night," Mrs. Markham's 41-year-old autobiography, will be reprinted this month, after some detective work by a California restaurant owner led to its resurrection. (AP Laserphoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE - Detective work by a California restaurant owner has led to the reprinting of a 41-year-old autobiography, praised by Ernest Hemingway and written by a woman who won international fame for a 1936 trans-Atlantic solo flight. The woman still leads a full life in Kenya, where she grew up.

By BARRY SHLACHTER, Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - Beryl Markham hunted boar with a spear as a barefoot girl in Africa, spotted big game for royal safaris by air, trained eight Kenya Derby winners and became the first pilot to fly the Atlantic solo from England to North America.

She also wrote a book, "West with the Night," whose title comes from that flight, is a literary rarity in that it was one of the few works lauded by the late novelist Ernest Hemingway. It was Hemingway's unbridled praise - "a bloody wonderful book" - that eventually brought about the reprinting of the 1942 autobiography early in May. The decision by North Point Press, a San Francisco publisher, was welcome news to Mrs. Markham, who at 80 says she has fallen on hard times.

Her 25-year-old Mercedes automobile, which she once drove about 2,000 miles from South Africa to Kenya, finally gave up in mid-May. But it did see her through a coup attempt here last Aug. 1, when Mrs. Markham was wounded slightly in the jaw and the car received seven bullet holes.

Although still active as a trainer, only two racehorses are now in her care instead of the usual stable full.

Married and divorced three times, she is now alone. Her only child, a son, was killed years ago while serving in the British army. Friends arranged for a night watchman at her cottage on the grounds of Nairobi's Ngong Race Course after she was beaten and tied to her bed by burglars in August 1981.

Just recently out of the hospital, where she was treated for a back problem and an undiagnosed illness, Mrs. Markham is thinner than even her normally svelte self, and unhappy by the slower pace brought on by advancing years.

She described herself in an interview as a woman never held back. She explained that she was brought up by her father after her mother left them and was allowed to run free as a child.

"I admire my father for the way he raised me," she said. "People go around kissing and fussing over their children. I didn't get anything like that. I had to look after myself, and then I used to go and read by myself and think by myself."

"Funny enough, it made me."

Her father, a graduate of the British military academy, Sandhurst, left the army to take up farming and horse training in Kenya. He arrived in Africa in 1906 when his daughter was 4.

She ran away from governesses and a Nairobi school - more at home among Nandi tribespeople near the family farm with whom she hunted and learned to see the continent from a perspective different from that of other colonists.

"The games we played were Nandi games because I knew no others and there was no white child, except myself, anywhere near Njoro," she wrote in "West with the Night" of her hometown in the highlands on the western edge of the Great Rift Valley.

"Among my galaxy of scars is one which an ungallant Nandi boy, whom I had bested in a wrestling bout, made with his father's sword."

Other childhood scars were left by a lion, which mauled her leg near the family farm.

This unfettered childhood - vividly and at times harrowingly chronicled in her book - left her with a keen sense of Africa.

Mrs. Markham as a child walked the dogs of Baroness Karen von Blixen, a Danish aristocrat who gained literary fame for writing "Out of Africa" under the pseudonym Isak Dinesen.

"I found her rather boring," Mrs. Markham said in the interview. "She wasn't my cup of tea."

Kenya in the 1920s and 1930s was a haven for titled Europeans. Beryl rubbed shoulders with them as a racehorse trainer, a profession she took up full time at 17 when her father, financially ruined by a drought, left to try his luck in Peru.

The Duke of Windsor, then the Prince of Wales and, later, King Edward VIII of Great Britain until he abdicated in 1936, was taken on a safari by Mrs. Markham, who often scouted elephant from her Leopard Moth airplane.

Hemingway knew her, but only as a pilot, and later expressed astonishment in a letter to his editor, Maxwell Perkins, that she had authored a book.

"Did you read Beryl Markham's book, 'West with the Night'?" Hemingway asked. "I knew her fairly well in Africa and never would have suspected that she could put pen to paper except to write in her flyer's log book."

"As it is, she has written so well, and marvelously well, that I was completely ashamed of myself as a writer. I felt that I was simply a carpenter with words... but this girl can write rings around all of us who consider ourselves as writers."

On a 1981 trout fishing trip in Idaho, Hemingway's eldest son, John, asked a friend - and Hemingway admirer - George P. Gutekunst whether he had read his late father's letters. Gutekunst, 64, a Sausalito, Calif., restaurant owner, hadn't. But that night he went through them, discovered the reference to Beryl Markham and was jolted by Hemingway's rare kind words.

"I was so stunned because Hemingway pilloried every other writer from Stendahl to James Jones," said Gutekunst, who had not read the Markham book before. Intrigued, he began a search, aided by the Marin County library system's computer, and after two weeks located a copy which he read in one sitting.

"It was absolutely transfixing," Gutekunst said in a telephone interview from California. "On the next day I read it again, just to make sure my enthusiasm and love for it was not misplaced. But I found it even more compelling. I had discovered a literary gem."

After showing the book to a friend, novelist Evan S. Connell, who endorsed its merits, Gutekunst recommended to executives at North Point Press that they consider reprinting "West with the Night." They did.

Beryl Clutterbuck Markham, who retained Markham from her second husband and maintains her British nationality, expresses mild bemusement over her sudden rediscovery as a writer.

"I thought it couldn't possibly be as good as all that," she said. "But if people like it, all the better."

"West with the Night," she says, was written in Los Angeles out of sheer boredom when her husband then, Raoul Schumacher, had gone off to war following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941. She began reminiscing about Kenya and her life to the time she crash landed in a Nova Scotia bog, earning her notoriety as the first pilot to fly east to west alone across the Atlantic from England.

"I just sat and waited while everyone was fighting," she said of the early wartime period. "I just thought I'd write it because I had lived here. Writing came quite easily to me, but I don't think it would now. But then, then, I had so many things to think about and write about."

Beryl Markham had written magazine articles, but never a book, and never again.

In 1942, when the book was published in Britain and the United States, the New York Herald Tribune called it "more than autobiography. It is a poet's feeling for her land, an adventurer's evaluation of human beings and human destinies."

A Review Adventure Story For Young Readers

Banners Over Terre D'Or.
By Gay Weeks Neale.
Winston-Salem. John F. Blair, Publisher. 246 pages, $10.95.

In the days of knights and chivalry, 12-year-old Martin has adulthood thrust upon him. His family's castle is attacked by Baron Ugo, an old enemy of his father, as the rest of his men are off at war, led by his father, Lord Mark.

A cruel and dangerous man, Baron Ugo had wanted to marry Martin's mother, the beautiful and wealthy Elaina. But she had chosen Mark instead. Now is Ugo's chance to seize both Elaina and her dowry.

Martin and his friend Walther leave carefree boyhood behind as they struggle with new responsibilities. How they handle it brings about a rift in their friendship, as Martin discovers the weaknesses and strengths in the people around him, as well as in himself.

When Ugo and his army overpower the small band of men defending the castle and gain entry, Martin knows he can't hide Lady Elaina there for very long. He must smuggle his mother out through secret passageways and tunnels.

The witch, Marguerita, proves to be a surprising ally to Martin. Lady Elaina has known her since they were girls, and had once saved the witch's life. Martin must get his mother to the witch's house in the forest without being discovered by Ugo's men.

A letter to Elaina from Mark is intercepted, and the messenger put to death. From the letter Ugo learns there is a son, who will be a threat to his claim on the castle lands. Until then, Martin has been safe, posing as a kitchen boy.

The long unused torture chamber, with its rack and whips, is put to use again as Ugo tries to find out the whereabouts of Martin and Lady Elaina.

Martin has heard from Ugo's men that his father has been badly wounded in battle. He doesn't know whether Lord Mark is alive or dead, and the sole responsibility of the safety of his people and lands falls upon his young shoulders. A desperate plan by Martin and his friends pits them against the merciless Ugo in a brutal battle of wits.

In this juvenile book, the author has used language that captures the flavor of medieval times, yet is written in an easy-to-read style. "Banners Over Terre D'Or" is a satisfying adventure story, packed with suspense.

Pitt County Art Show On View

The annual exhibit of art by students in the Pitt County Schools is currently on view at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 S. Evans St. The show is coordinated by Emmy Whitehead, with a reception scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the museum, with the public invited. Hours are 10-10 Tuesday, 10-6 Wednesday-Friday, 10-3 Saturday, closed Sunday-Monday.

"What Is Real?" Show

GREENSBORO — An exhibition titled "What Is Real?" opened May 20 at the Green Hill Art Gallery in Greensboro and will be on view until July 1. The show, an invitational one, deals with the subject of contemporary realism in painting, drawing, photography, and sculpture, and features work by 17 North Carolina artists. Hours are 10-5 Tuesday-Friday, 2-5 Saturday-Sunday, closed Monday.

Piedmont Craftsman Show

WINSTON-SALEM — The annual New Members Exhibition by new members of Piedmont Craftsmen Inc. opened May 14 at the craft shop of Piedmont Craftsmen, 300 S. Main St., Winston-Salem. The exhibit will be up through June 13. Shop hours are 10-5 Monday-Saturday, and 1-5 Sunday.

New Shows At SECCA

WINSTON-SALEM — Two new shows have recently gone on view at the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA), 750 Marguerite Drive, Winston-Salem. One is a solo exhibition of color Xerox by Linda Armstrong of Atlanta in Gallery B. The other is a solo show of handmade paper works by Adrienne Anderson of Birmingham, Ala., being shown in the Porch Gallery.

N.C. Collection Exhibited

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Print and Drawing Society permanent collection of work by nationally prominent artists is currently being shown (through May 26) at the Student Center, North and South Galleries on the N.C. State University campus. Hours are 9-10 daily, including Saturday and Sunday, closed during NCSU student holidays.

NCMA Weekly Calendar

RALEIGH — Music, and film art are items on the calendar of the N.C. Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Blvd., Raleigh, for the coming week. Events scheduled are: Today, 3 p.m., Music of the 20th century performed by the Woodwind Consort; Saturday, 11 a.m., 4 films on art — "Art," "Kostler on Creativity," "Hand Piece," and "Fireworks," — totaling 63 minutes. Museum hours are 10-5 Tuesday-Saturday, 1-5 Sunday, closed Monday.

Zebulon Festival Scheduled

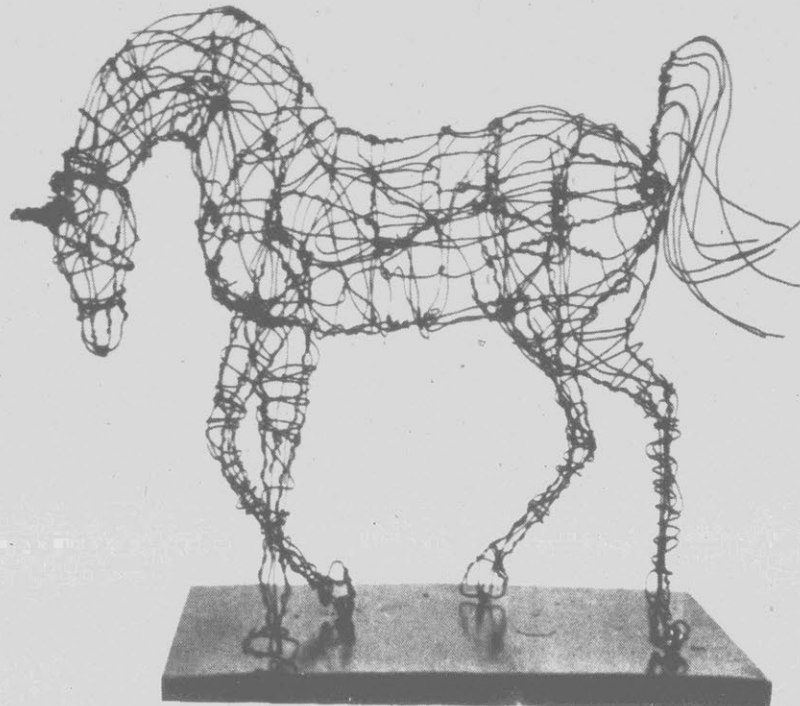

ZEBULON — More than 50 artists and craftsmen are expected to display their wares in Zebulon on the July 4 annual celebration. Exhibit space can be reserved by writing: The Rotary Foundation of Zebulon, 111 W. Sycamore St., Zebulon, N.C., 27597 or by calling 269-7641 or 269-7092. Deadline for reserving space is June 27.

N.C. Tomorrow Conference Slated

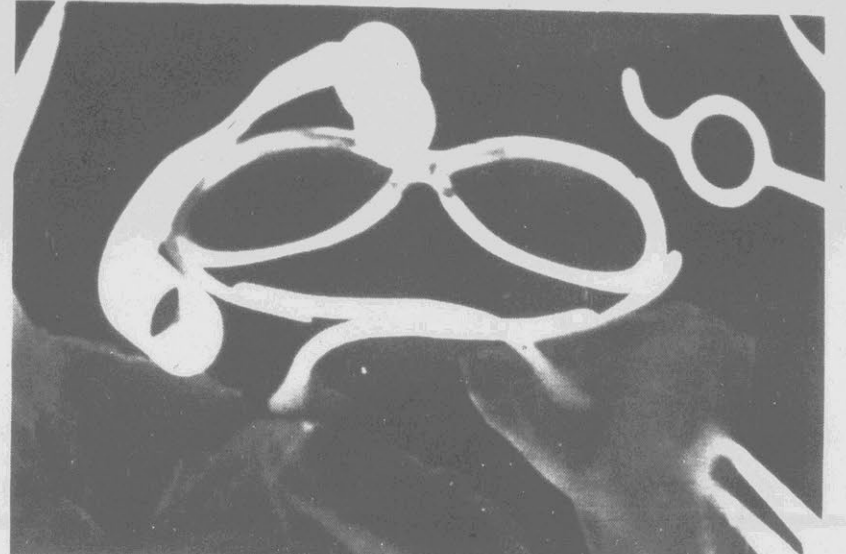

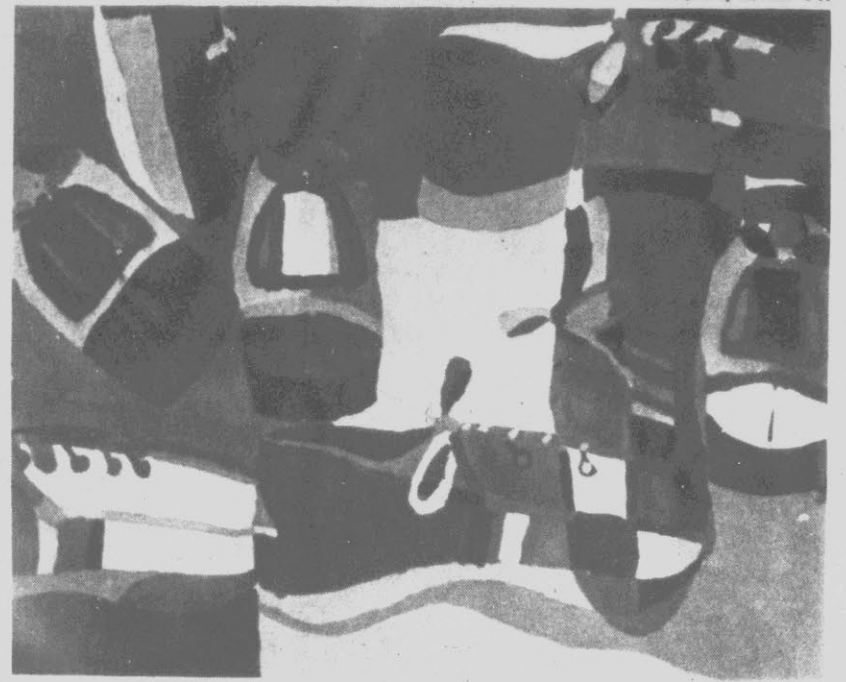

WILLIAMSTON — Persons wishing to register for the Northeastern North Carolina Tomorrow presentation in Williamston on June 7 may contact one of the following:
 •Greenville — The Regional Development Institute, The Willis Building.
 •Williamston — Mary Lilley, P.O. Box 1048, Williamston, N.C. 27892.
 •Rocky Mount — Region L Offices, P.O. Box 2740, Rocky Mount, N.C., 27801.

The presentation will be presided over by Dr. William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina and chairman of the Commission on the Future of North Carolina. Commonly known as NC 2000, the commission through local and statewide efforts is planning a course for the state for the next two decades. The region to be under discussion in Williamston on June 7 is the 16 counties area comprising northeastern North Carolina.

The meeting, which will begin at 10 a.m., will be held in the Martin County Auditorium, located on the campus of Williamston High School, a short distance off U.S. 17 just south of Williamston.

ANNUAL COMPETITION — About 40 works of art by high schools students from throughout North Carolina are currently on view at the Gray Gallery on the East Carolina University campus. Art by students in seven N.C. high schools was chosen for the annual N.C. High School Art Competition Show. Shown here are a wire horse sculpture by Michelle Story of Bundy High School, at top; and at bottom, a watercolor of bottles by Gary Parish, Ayden-Grifton High School. (Reflector Photos by Jerry Raynor)

PITT COUNTY ART SHOW — currently on view at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 South Evans Street, has art by students in all grade levels. Work in several media are displayed. The two pieces shown here are a colorful watercolor by Ethel Langley, an eight grader at Wellcome Middle School, top; and at bottom, a joint direct-on-paper photographic study by Eddie Adams and Cassandra Hopkins, both students at Grifton School. Details On Photo Contest

RALEIGH — June 30 is the deadline for entries in the 1983 Natural History Photography Contest sponsored by the North Carolina State Museum of Natural History. The competition, for black and white prints, color prints, and 35-mm color slides, is open to any resident of North Carolina except employees and associates of the museum.

Photographs depicting plants and animals native to North Carolina and natural scenes are eligible. A maximum of three unpublished photographs may be submitted in each category. Entry fee is $2 per photograph. The museum reserves the right to duplicate entries for non-profit exhibit and educational purposes.

Each entry is to bear the name, address, and phone number of the photographer and the title of the photograph (if any). Use back of prints, margin of mounts for this information.

All prints entered must be mounted.

Entries will be judged July 1, with an exhibition of winning photographs and selected entries to be shown from July 11-Aug. 31.

Anyone wishing to donate their entries to the museum should so state and the entry fee will be waived. Entrants who wish materials returned must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope or package label unless planning to pick up photographs in person.

Prizes to be awarded are: grand prize, $150; and first, second and third prizes in each category of $75, $50 and $25 respectively.

Material is to be mailed to: Mary K. Clark, Nature Photography Contest, N.C. State Museum of Natural History, P.O. Box 27647, Raleigh, N.C., 27611. Checks for entry fees are to be made payable to: NCDA - Museum Extension Fund.

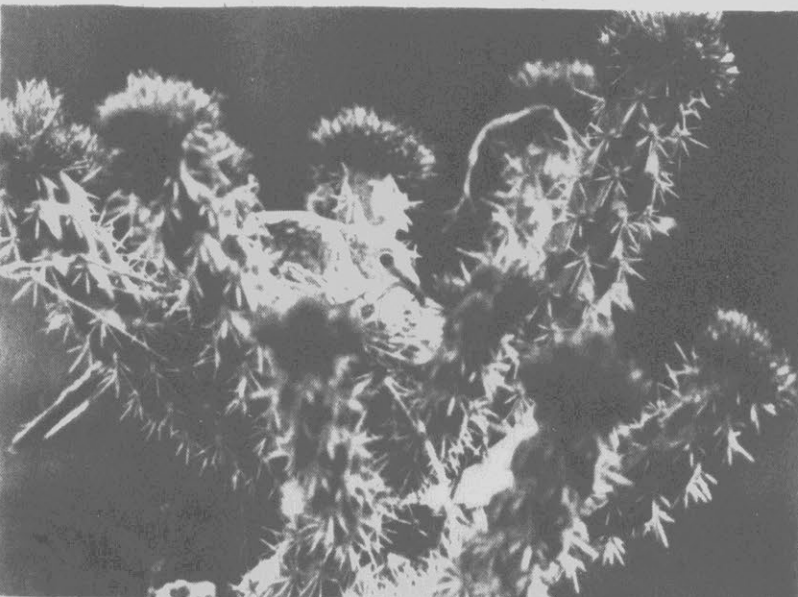

French Photos At Chrysler

NORFOLK — Nineteenth century French photographs by Nadar, Charney, Le Gray, Negre and Durieu as well as several other photographers who were contemporaries of the French Academic artists, are being shown at Chrysler Museum.

These photographic images highlight explorations with the camera made between 1851 and 1875 by French artists after Daguerre invented the process of photography in 1839.

The 31 photographs in the show are borrowed primarily from private collections in New York and Norfolk and are ones seldom seen in public exhibitions anywhere.

The Chrysler Museum, located at Olney Road and Mowbray Arch in Norfolk, is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and from 1 to 5 on Sundays. Admission and parking are free. The telephone number for additional information is (804) 622-1211.

Black Actor Says Talent The Ultimate Factor

By MAGGIE JACKSON WASHINGTON (UPI) — At 52, James Earl Jones feels like a new man. Not only is he a father for the first time, but he is creating one of the most passionate performances in his outstanding acting career in Athol Fugard's "Master Harold" ... and the Boys."

His 4-month-old son, Flynn Earl, and his wife, Ceci, accompany Jones as he tours the country with the Broadway show. They make it all worthwhile, he says, because they are part of his "magic circle" — "That circle that allows you to walk onto the stage and do a good job."

In "Master Harold," Jones plays Sam, a servant who works in a tearoom in Port Elizabeth, South Africa. In this largely autobiographical play, Fugard describes the special father-son relationship between Sam and his buddy Willie and Harold (Halley), the young white son of his alcoholic, racist employer.

"For someone of my age to be able to play a condition that I am just beginning to learn in my real life ... it's a wonderful experience," says Jones, who never knew his own father until he was an adult.

"There's a line that Halley says at the end of the play: 'I don't know. I don't know anything anymore.' That's really a positive statement. He's willing to look at it. He's willing to start at ground zero again and re-examine everything, which is the healthiest thing that any human being can do. "I am getting to the point where I have to say I don't know. The older I get, the less I know. That's the process of learning I have got to at my age. I'm still looking for the key to success."

"There's not a word about apartheid in the play," he says. "What is at the heart of the play are the problems of a young man caught in the rite of passage from childhood to manhood."

"Both Sam and Willie are there to help Halley in this passage — hoping he will get there intact; hoping he will not be a perpetrator of the system that he himself loathes, as his father has become a perpetrator; hoping that he will get there, not a broken insane person."

Time is running out in South Africa, Jones believes.

"There are cosmetic changes," he says. "You might see a whites-only or blacks-only sign or two taken down, but that is just to make South Africa look better to the world. It does not solve any of the deep problems that do exist there and it does not begin to solve them."

"The measure of patience of the black people, the colored people, the Indian people, others who are disadvantaged in that country, is enormous. You just can't keep giving patience and giving patience and not get something back from it. They want equal rights. They want freedom, but if (their patience) doesn't pay off the toll will be taken at the other end — through blood. It's as simple as that. And that's not politics."

As James Earl Jones speaks in his deep resonant voice, he pauses before answering, as though summoning the strength to speak.

He is a powerful man, and when he walks into a room, seems bear-like and ill at ease with his size. But beneath the calm gentility of the man lies the pain and frustration of the stuttering child.

Through most of his early years in Arkabutla, Miss., Jones struggled to overcome a stammer. Although he learned to speak normally in high school through sheer will and need, he still battles the problem. "Once a stutterer, always a stutterer. Didn't you know?"

After serving in the ROTC and majoring in theater at the University of Michigan, he chose the stage over the Army. After many off-Broadway and New York Shakespeare Festival roles, Jones received a Tony award and widespread recognition for his role in "The Great White Hope."

Jones does not speak often of the difficulties he experienced as a black actor in a white theater world. Instead, he tells a young actor who nervously approaches him for advice that it has "always been hard."

"When my father was an actor he usually assumed there was no work for him. Delroy (his co-star in "Master Harold") and I are not sure, but we don't assume. There is hope, you know."

He advises the young man to depend on his talents, not on organizations like the NAACP, to sort it all out for him.

"The only thing that breaks through those barriers is a thing called talent. Without it, the government can lift all the policies, and it still won't matter — you won't have the talent to meet the challenge when the doors open."

He says the barriers, although different, are always present for white actors too. "The color of your skin is irrelevant. As much as black people want to reject the stigma of it, it's irrelevant," he says. "Talent is always the key and if you can develop it, somebody has to deal with it."

Lang Play Scheduled

The work of Greenville poet/playwright Michelle Lang will be featured at the May presentation for the Best Lunch Theater Ever at noon Wednesday at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 South Evans Street.

Ms. Lang's "The Ires of Winter," a one-act play, will be given a workshop production, with roles being read by Pat Speckman, Linda Woolard, and Preston Sisk. Catherine Rhea-Darby is directing.

In addition, Ms. Lang will read several of her poems. The audience will be invited to join in discussion of the play and poems following the readings.

A native of Ohio, Ms. Lang, an employee at Burroughs Wellcome, teaches Creative Writing at Pitt Community College, and is an active member of the Greenville Writers Club.

The Best Lunch Theater Ever is presented by the Playwrights' Fund of North Carolina, Inc., a Greenville-based nonprofit organization which supports new works for the stage. Admission is free. Those attending are encouraged to bring bag lunches, with beverages to be provided by the staff of the museum.

Ritter role HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Ritter will take time out from his "Three's Company" series to star in "Sunset Limousine," a two-hour CBS-TV movie scheduled for next season.

Co-starring with Ritter will be Susan Dey, who recently co-starred in the ABC-TV miniseries "Malibu."

Spring Concert At Aycock On Thursday

A spring concert will be presented at E.B. Aycock Junior High School at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The concert will be given in the school's gymnasium.

The concert will be open to the public at no charge.

The concert will have a chorus and "Show Biz" group directed by Patricia Hiss with Ben Ferguson directing the Concert Band and the Symphonic Band.

Choral selections featuring soloists include "Walk Tall" with Raymond King, and "When I Was A Lad" with Richard Haselrig.

"Show Biz" chorus members Kim Broady, Joy Flynn, Regina Leggett, and Richard Haselrig will sing "I Won't Last A Day Without You."

Selections to be performed by the Concert Band are Osterling's "Equinox," the "Kensington Overture" by Paul Whear, and Benson's "On Broadway."

In the concluding portion of the concert, the Symphonic Band will play Asia's "Only Time Will Tell," selections from Willson's "The Music Man," Hugh Stuart's "Variations on a Theme by Prokofiev," John Tatgenhorst's "Somerset," and Zawinul's "Birdland."

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Mental health, magic and an environmental center are the topics being discussed today on Kay Currie's Hospitality House. The weekly program is aired each Sunday from noon to 12:30 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

Brenda Gray, director of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, will comment on the stresses both of employment and unemployment.

She will be followed by Whitney the Hobo who will explain some of the logic behind his magic tricks.

Dr. Bob Wendling, on the parks and conservation faculty at East Carolina University, will show slides of Greenville's River Park North Environmental Center and discuss children's reactions to nature studies in the park. As background for this segment, Kay is playing a recording of bird song.

Three "surprise" guests with surprise topics are making an appearance on today's Hospitality House — Lee Kanipe, Dick Jones and Jennifer Hedgecock.

Theater Is Dedicated

WINSTON-SALEM — The Joan Hanes Theater in the Roger L. Stevens Center for the Performing Arts was dedicated May 12 before an audience attending the first performance of the North Carolina Dance Theater in the center.

Mrs. Hanes, the late wife of Winston-Salem philanthropist Philip Hanes, was a long-time advocate of the arts.

MADE IN CHINA — Ron Henson of Oregon City, Oregon sends American spruce and maple wood to China and gets back violins which he says are among the best in the world. The violins are one of the fastest-moving items of L.D. Heater Music Co., a wholesale musical instrument company of which he is president. (UPI Photo)

'Families' feud

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Special "Family Feud" show segments have been filmed for May 2 and May 9 featuring old TV casts in place of the usual collection of close-knit relatives battling for dollars on the game show.

Five members from each of the casts of "Leave It To Beaver," "The Brady Bunch," "Petticoat Junction," "Batman," "Gilligan's Island," "Hawaiian Eye," "Lost In Space" and "Your Hit Parade" will participate.

Brevard Summer Season

BREVARD — Six musical productions, several guest artists and over 50 concert events highlight the upcoming summer season at Brevard Music Center in its 48th summer season.

The opening event, set for July 1, is "A Salute to the Met," a concert to honor the 100th anniversary of the Metropolitan Opera Company. On July 2, the opera series for the season opens with "Daughter of the Regiment."

Other musical productions scheduled include "Iolanthe," "La Traviata," "Carousel," "Tales of Hoffman," and a revival of Romberg's "The New Moon."

Thursday night dress rehearsals of these productions are open to the public at reduced prices.

Guest artists to appear between July 1 and Aug. 14 include pianist Jorge Bolet, soprano Victoria de los Angeles, cellist Olga Rostropovich, flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya, and opera star Robert Merrill. Also, pianist Douglas Weeks, violinist Ralph Evans, trombonist Charles Vernon, and the Brevard Festival Trio.

For the first time in its history, Brevard will present a complete ballet performance, The Augusta (Ga.) Ballet Company's production of "Coppelia," set for July 23.

Pop concerts slated are Barbershop Night, July 9; A Broadway Gala, July 22; and a Lerner and Loewe Night, August 6. On July 21 "A Choral Evening" program showcases Brevard choruses, soloists, and orchestra in Poulenc's "Gloria," with a performance of Orff's "Carmina Burana" scheduled for Aug. 14.

Weekday performances will include chamber music recitals.

Friday and Saturday curtain times are 8:15 p.m. Sunday concerts are at 3 p.m., and daily performances will be given at times varying from 4 to 8:15 p.m. Complete schedules and ticket information and reservations are now available by writing to: Brevard Music Center, P.O. Box 592, Brevard, N.C., 28712, phone (704) 884-2109.

At 80, John Houseman Still Active In Drama

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — He sits there in a quiet corner of the delicatessen, a formidable, august-looking man in the September of his years. The waitress arrives. "What'll ya have, dearie?" says she.

"Bacon, eggs and some toast, please," replies John Houseman. His tone is pleasant, his manner modest. Disappointing if you expect him to come on like that crusty, cold-eyed Harvard law professor he played in "The Paper Chase."

Or like that venerable Brahmin he essays on those TV spots for that brokerage firm, who haughtily sniffs: "They make money the old-fashioned way — they EARRNNN it!"

In the flesh, he's just a quiet, supremely dignified and unassuming man. He's 80 now, but still busy.

His current project: Directing an off-Broadway revival of Marc Blitzstein's proletarian play with music, "The Cradle Will Rock." He first produced it in 1937. The director then was a young fellow named Orson Welles, with whom Houseman later helped foal the film classic, "Citizen Kane."

The new "Cradle" opens May 9 and runs through May 29 at the American Place Theater.

It's an old-grad gathering in two other respects: —It's stocked with former members of the critically-acclaimed Acting Company — Tony-winner Patti LuPone of "Evita" among them — that Houseman co-founded 11 years ago.

—And many of them studied at the Juilliard School's famed drama department, which he began in 1968 and from which such unknowns as Kevin Kline, Christopher Reeve and Robin Williams sallied forth to become very known.

The Acting Company, which spends most of the year touring the United States, bringing classical repertory to cities large and small, used to be exclusively composed of Juilliard grads. Now, he says, half the troupe comes from other schools.

When he began Juilliard's drama school, regional theater in America was on the upswing. The idea was that the school would provide those theaters with a steady supply of classically-trained young emotes. And that the graduates would get the chance to regularly practice their art instead of lurking at the doors of Broadway producers.

But in the fourth year of operation at Juilliard, he says, "I decided it was time to show our wares." Five productions were staged by the soon-to-graduate class of '68. Excellent reviews ensued.

And, he says, "I was faced with a great personal dilemma," namely, creation of a professional company for his talented young charges.

"It would have been perfectly legitimate and proper simply to let the kids go out into the world and get jobs ... But everybody said, "Well, you can't do that. It may be by accident, but you have created an ensemble of actors."

Thus The Acting Company. And now "The Cradle Will Rock," which he hopes will be the first in a series of productions featuring alumni from the touring troupe.

NCSA Workshops Slated

WINSTON-SALEM — A drama workshop production and a choreographers workshop are scheduled this week at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. Details are:

•Thursday, Saturday and Sunday — A drama workshop production of "Come September," an original play by Mark Priolo. NCSA faculty member, will be presented at the NCSA Sound Studio at 8:15 p.m. Thursday and Saturday, and at 2 p.m. Sunday. Free, but reservations required. Call 721-1945.

•Saturday and Sunday — Choreographers Workshop features works by senior modern dance students at 8:15 p.m. each evening at the Agnes de Mille Theater. Free.

NOTHING AGAINST DOLLY — Porter Wagoner wants his fans to know he has nothing against Dolly Parton, his former duet partner. The Grand Ole Opry star sued Miss Parton in the mid-1970s, claiming she had not lived up to their recording contract. The bitter lawsuit was eventually settled. (UPI Photo)

Summer Dance Course

DURHAM — A six-week summer school program in dance, open to students, teachers and professionals, is being held at the American Dance Festival at Duke University in Durham. The school opens on June 11.

Two new programs are being offered this summer — the ADF four-week Young Dancers' School (for ages 13 to 15) and the new ADF two-week Jazz Workshop for dancers and teachers.

Course work for the six-week school covers areas such as modern, jazz, and ballet techniques, improvisation, composition, Afro-American dance, coaching, and stagecraft. Faculty members are drawn from the ranks of professional dancers, dance company directors, and colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Special workshops to be held during the six-week school are: Dance Update, June 21-26; Dance Medicine, July 9-10; and Body Therapy, July 11-16.

Persons interested in full details of the dance summer school are to contact: School Coordinator, American Dance Festival, P.O. Box 6097, College Station, Durham, N.C., 27709, telephone 684-6402.

Free Tickets Offered

RALEIGH — During June, July and August, persons 60 and older, in groups of 20 or more, can attend performances of 16 North Carolina outdoor and other dramas as complimentary guests. Each theater has a specified number of tickets and dates of performances available to groups in this age bracket.

The project is known as the Governor's Complimentary Ticket Program, now being coordinated in its fifth year by the Theater Arts and the Division of Aging.

Theaters and outdoor dramas in eastern North Carolina taking part in this program are:

- East Carolina Summer Theater, Greenville.
 - "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag" outdoor drama, Bath.
 - Curtain Call Company, Wilmington.
 - "Strike at the Wind" outdoor drama, Pembroke.
 - "The Lost Colony" outdoor drama, Manteo.
 - "First For Freedom" outdoor drama, Halifax.
 - "The Liberty Cart" outdoor drama, Kenansville.
- Persons or groups interested in more information are to contact Judy Chavis at 733-2111, and for reservations, Shirley Ward, 733-3983.

Jazz For The Elderly

CHAPEL HILL — Two week-long programs on "All That Jazz" is being offered by the UNC-Chapel Hill Division of Extension and Continuing Education as part of its Elderhostel series during July.

The jazz program for citizens over 60 is scheduled in two sessions — one from July 3-9, the other from July 10-16. Trumpeter James Ketch, assistant professor of music at UNC-CH and trumpet player with the Jim Ketch Quintet, will lead the courses each day.

Cost of each Elderhostel program for commuters is $100, and for those staying in dorms the fee is $180. For complete details and schedules on the program, contact: Bobby Wagoner, Division of Extension and Continuing Education, Abernathy Hall 002, UNC-CH, Chapel Hill, N.C., 27514, telephone 962-1106.

— Perkins perks HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Millie Perkins, who starred in "The Diary of Anne Frank" in 1959 and then disappeared from movies for two decades, returned to the screen this year in "Table for Five" and is now making another film.

The diminutive brunette will star in "The Haunting Passion" with Jane Seymour and Gerald McRaney, one of the stars of TV's "Simon and Simon."

It's Strawberry Time

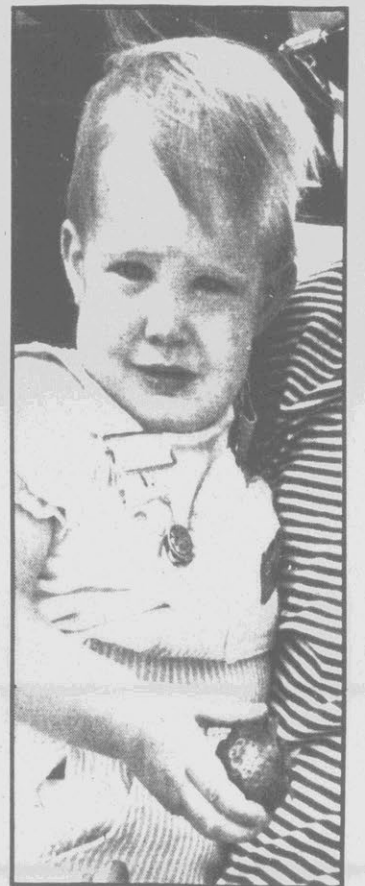

Strawberry season has arrived in Pitt County and a popular thing to do on a warm spring afternoon is to pick your own. Many farmers in the county, in an effort to find another means of income, planted strawberries as well as other vegetables. According to Pitt County Agricultural Extension agent Sam Uzzell, there are about 10 to 12 farms around the county that specialize in the "pick your own" fields. Uzzell says there is an excellent crop this year, despite some cool weather and polination problems.

The agent explained a good farmer could have an income of $2,000 to $4,000 an acre. There are 25 to 30 acres of strawberries in the county.

Kenny and Libby Dews of Winterville are one example of growers. Dews said he and his wife started about five years ago and today have a thriving business. Dews said he has about seven and half acres of strawberries as well as broccoli, lettuce and cabbage.

There weren't many afternoons this past week when there wasn't someone in the Dews' fields picking. At one point last Sunday, there was a waiting line at the check out with patrons lugging heavy bags for a final weigh-in.

When all is finished with the knee bending, sore backs and fingers, some families leave for home with fresh strawberries for strawberry shortcake. Others freeze them for a taste of the summer during next winter.

Being 1 year-old is a good age to discover strawberries. Jenny Elmore holds a large berry she helped mom and dad pick. Jenny is the daughter of Jennifer and John Elmore of Greenville.

A picture-story
by TOMMY FORREST

Some strawberries are hard to find, especially the largest. Steven Huntsberry, 9, of Greenville plucks one from a plant.

Cleve Ellis of Snow Hill and his granddaughter, Collier Lashawn Dixon, left, and a cousin, Marcus Worthington, take a minute from strawberry hunting for a fresh snack.

A strawberry patch can be a windy spot. Mrs. Zula Morris, of Bethel, grabs her hat in attempt to keep it from blowing off.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAY 23, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day and evening for you to put in motion a course of action that has much appeal and by which you can gain important headway and advancement in your career.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can find better ways of handling your responsibilities now and have less worries. Don't take any risks with money.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good day to cement better relations with associates and thereby accomplish more in the future. Be more optimistic.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you persevere with work at hand you can accomplish a great deal now. Avoid a situation that could lead to trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to use utmost care in travel at this time and avoid possible accident. Steer clear of a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can easily add to the beauty and comfort of your home now by making some changes. Strive to be more successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Go after the data you need so that you can better carry through with a plan of action you have in mind. Maintain your poise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your financial status and plan how to improve it. Any repairs that need to be done to property should be started now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make plans to gain your personal aims. Look to a higher-up for the backing you need in order to advance in career matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It is important that you concentrate on becoming more productive and forget all that socializing for now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fine day for getting together with your friends since they can assist you in gaining your personal goals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study how to have a more brilliant career by using more modern methods. Avoid one who is hypocritical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You must start working immediately on a new plan if you are to gain the right benefits from it. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to formulate a plan and carry through with its completion, so be sure to give as fine an academic education as you can for best results. There are many fine talents here that can bring much success.

Elderly Find Spot On Stage

MACON, France (AP) — More than 250 old people have come out of nursing homes or back bedrooms and gone onto the stage.

They are part of an experiment stemming from the belief of President Francois Mitterrand's Socialist government that the power of art can transform the common man's life.

The second annual Drama Festival for Senior Citizens, held here recently, featured 20 amateur troupes of actors 65 or older from France and Switzerland. It was a week of song, dance, plays and discussion groups in this sleepy town's cultural center.

For the elderly actors, their wrinkles hidden behind thick pancake makeup, the theater is a kind of miracle drug against the aches and pains of old age.

These old people, none of whom were professional actors before retirement, say they act for the fun and friendship that was missing in their "former lives."

Despite their cataracts, sciatica, arthritis, occasional bouts of absent-mindedness and a severe shortage of male actors, they remain determinedly optimistic, convinced that stage life begins at 65.

Mitterrand's government has backed its commitment to cultural decentralization with money, and Macon, a long-time Socialist stronghold, was able to get about $36,000 to stage the festival.

Mitterrand has long defined socialism as a cultural project, meaning that culture could transform society because it provided an alternative to a value system linked to the world's economic woes.

While previous governments supported ambitious cultural projects such as the construction of the Pompidou Arts Center in 1977, the Socialists have long believed in small-scale projects to benefit towns and cities around France.

They also believe that control over cultural activity should be taken out of the hands of the elite and given back to the people.

Here Sold Today... Tomorrow!

There's one thing about putting our sign in front of your home. It changes from "For Sale" to "Sold" almost before you know it. That's because 25,000 affiliated sales associates work together, covering 9,000 communities throughout the United States and Canada. That's a lot of "Sold" signs. One of the most important advantages we offer is the exclusive Homes For Living magazine. With more than one and a half million copies published each month, it covers the home real estate market city by city, with pictures, prices and descriptions. When we picture your home in this magazine, it's available immediately to home buyers here in town. And it's available to those 25,000 sales associates so they can act fast when someone from their town is planning to move here. That way you reach the out of town buyers who account for one-third of all home sales. So if you want to sell or buy a home anywhere at all, remember, with us it's here today and sold tomorrow. Call us today.

SINISCALCO'S SURPRISE

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for those hands that we consider to be our favorites. That makes quite a list. For a while, therefore, we are devoting the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series, we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

dared risk a first-round trump finesse of the nine!

Now Trezel came to Forquet's rescue - he doubled! That probably would have assured the grand slam, for it marked him with trump length and Forquet would now surely have picked up the jack of trumps. But the world was never to find out!

Siniscalco decided that East had a sure trump trick for his double. He knew that his partner had to have first-round heart control to contract for a grand slam, and it never dawned on him that it might be a void, rather than the ace. He ran to seven no trump in the expectation that his club suit would furnish enough tricks to make that contract.

The French doubled again, this time on surer grounds. Forquet would have loved to have been able to bid eight spades, but that was barred by the Laws. There was nowhere to run, and the defenders reeled off the first six tricks. A penalty of 1,300 points on a voluntarily bid grand slam is a record that nobody wants to claim.

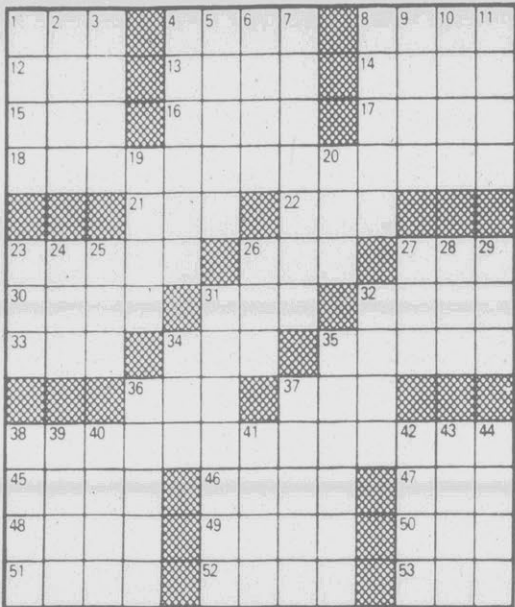

It seems that Dame Fortune was angrier at Trezel for his double than Siniscalco for his seven no trump. The Italians won the title and went on the next year to defeat the United States and win their first of many world championships.

Send any questions for this column to: Charles Goren and Omar Sharif, care of this newspaper. Each week a prize of a copy of the new "Goren's Bridge Complete," a $9.95 value, will be awarded for the question judged the best received.

Charles Goren and Omar Sharif personally cannot undertake to answer all questions submitted.

Italy's Blue Team began its reign by winning the 1956 European Championship. But not before it had its share of frights. This famous hand is from Italy's match with France.

Sitting North-South were Italy's premier pair, Pietro Forquet and Guglielmo Siniscalco. East-West were reigning European champions Roger Trezel and Pierre Jais. Forquet landed in seven spades, a contract that would probably have failed because of the bad trump break. (Not even the great Forquet would have

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: TOUGH CASE AGAINST OUR HAIRDRESSER IS CUT AND DRIED.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: 1 equals C.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Pitt County

A Salute To Industry

Tomorrow marks the beginning of "Industrial Appreciation Week" and that is why we join in with other civic minded citizens and business firms in presenting this special section devoted to Pitt County's industries. Take time to read it ... reflect upon where this county would be without a strong, active and vital industrial base.

Oldest Industry

FWB Press Began Making History In W&W Rail Car

Since the first Free Will Baptist Advocate rolled off the press in a W&W Railroad car sitting in the town of Fremont, the FWB Press Foundation has come a long way.

Hailed as the oldest industry in Pitt County, even though the foundation did not originate in Pitt County, the company is now located on Lee Street in Ayden.

The early years were not as stable as the past decade has been for the foundation with the paper changing locations and editors frequently. From the boxcar in Fremont, the paper and the original editor, E.R. Ellis, were moved to Toisnot (now Elm City). The Advocate continued to be published in the same railroad facility, but underwent a name change to the Toisnot Transcript. According to the financial director of the foundation, Jack Mayo, this name change led to the fledgling paper's failure. "because many were dissatisfied and would not subscribe."

Because of the lack of interest in subscriptions, the publication was suspended sometime during 1877. Consequently, the paper was moved back to Fremont, and the name changed back to the Advocate, but the paper again failed in 1879.

During the next few years, the paper was resurrected again, moved to New Bern and the editor changed. The paper was moved again in 1889 to Snow Hill and the editor was changed as well. Elder J.M. Barfield assumed the position of editor but "finding it inconvenient to go from his farm out in the country to Snow Hill, a distance of some miles, he moved the Press to Ormondville near his country home," the foundation's current editor, Janice Sowers, said.

In 1895, the paper finally settled in Ayden when Barfield bought a lot and moved the press as well as his household to a comfortable home near the press.

The press was located on the east side of the railroad where it stayed until 1913 when a fire burned the building almost to the ground. The paper swung toward failure for several years after the fire until 1917 when a well-to-do farmer, Alex T. Dawson, erected a new brick building on Pitt Street, behind the old high school, and offered it to the press.

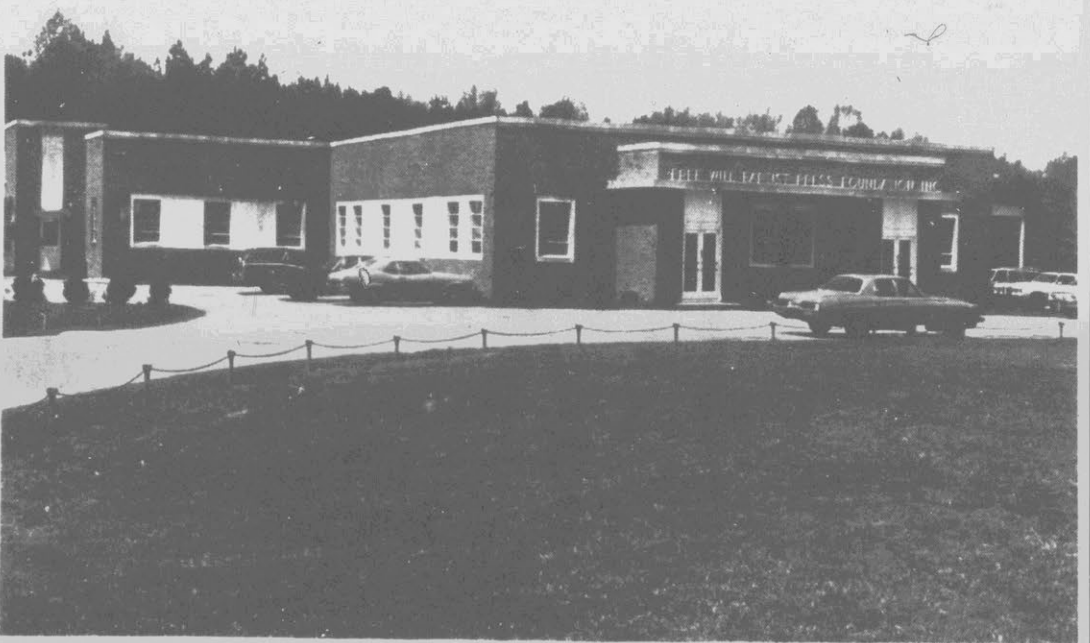

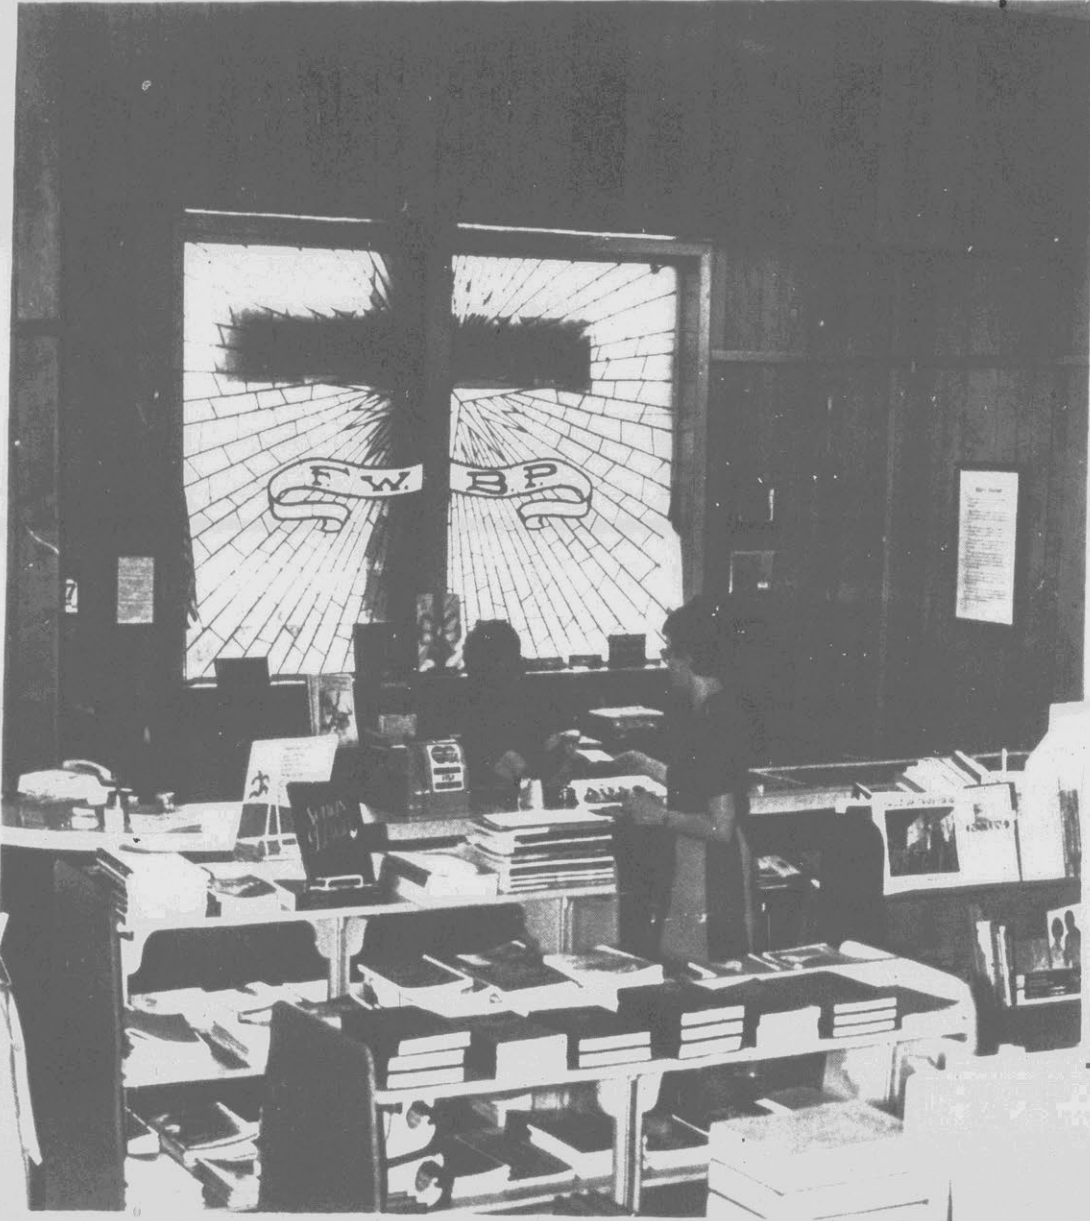

In 1916, before the move to Pitt Street, a change in the corporation name occurred: the institution became known as the Free Will Baptist Press and the organization was chartered under the laws of the state of North Carolina as a non-profit corporation. Control of the institution was placed in the hands of Free Will Baptist conferences, churches and individuals who purchased shares of stock.

Then, in 1965, keeping with federal guidelines, the corporation was changed to a non-profit membership and the word foundation added to the name. There are no stockholders now, only memberships, and only Free Will Baptist conventions, conferences, unions, churches and Free Will Baptist organizations can hold membership in the corporation. The membership meets annually and elects a board of directors.

In 1928, the building was moved again to a location on the west side of the railroad tracks in Ayden located near the A.C.L. Depot. The foundation purchased a different facility in 1942 and moved to its present location on Lee Street in December 1967.

The foundation still publishes a newspaper, The Free Will Baptist, and also specializes in publishing and selling religious literature. "We remain dedicated to serving Christ in every area," Ms. Sowers said. The foundation is also open to publishing requests such as wedding invitations and does some job printing for local publications.

FWB Press Foundation

The Free Will Baptist Press facility is located on Lee St. in Ayden. Although the Foundation did not originate in Pitt County, it is the oldest business located here.

Activities Scheduled To Show Appreciation

Industry Appreciation Week, May 22-28, is being celebrated in Pitt County a number of ways, according to Jeannette Cox, chairperson of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce Industry Appreciation Committee.

"The industries located here in Greenville and Pitt County are obviously important to the economy. But what we really want to make people aware of during this celebration is how involved the employees of these plants are in everyday life in this county and city," Ms. Cox said.

"Everyone who lives here should feel fortunate that we have so many Fortune 500 companies located in the area as well as the university that draws these companies and people," she said.

In addition to this special industry publication by The Daily Reflector, the industry appreciation committee has helped arrange other activities to celebrate industry in Pitt County.

On May 26, the chamber is sponsoring several activities, including a coffee, doughnut breakfast, a golf tournament, industry tours, a social hour and pig pickin'. Carolina East Mall will be the host for industry displays during Industrial Appreciation Week and several banks in the area have put up decorations to commemorate industry.

Lauch Faircloth, head of the North Carolina Department of Commerce, will also be on hand during the 26th celebration to speak on the role of industry in North Carolina and Pitt County.

Grass Roots Businesses Hold County Together

Owners of small and medium businesses have been silently watching the economy for the past couple of years, wondering if they will make it. In Greenville, a few privately operated stores have failed, but the majority seem to be sticking it out in style.

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce has 43 small and medium companies listed as either manufacturers or processors of goods, but there are other small businesses that employ area residents. Of the 18 small companies listed, all employ between one and nine people and are as follows:

AYDEN

AYDEN FROZEN FOODS — Located on 218 West Ave., the company is owned by Jesse B. Jones. The hamburger, sausage and pizza supplier has been operating since 1946.

CAMPTON'S RV'S INC. — A manufacturer of truck covers, Campton's RV's is owned by Davis and Aileen Ross. The company is located on 119 East Third St.

FARMER'S AGRI SUPPLY INC. — Managed and partly owned by Gene Haddock, the fertilizer blending plant was established in 1973. It is located on Route 3.

BETHEL

BETHEL COLD STORAGE INC. — Located on East Railroad Street, Bethel Cold Storage Inc. is a custom meat-processing company. The business was established in 1946 and is managed by J.E. Copeland.

FARMVILLE

The Vermont American Way

The Vermont American Facility

Since 1948, when the company first began operation, Vermont American has grown through careful planning and organization.

According to company officials, that growth resulted from a combination of acquisitions of companies with related product lines and from expansion of internal sales and production facilities. Today, the company is a manufacturer and marketer of one of the largest assortments of cutting tools, power tool accessories and hand tools in the business.

Vermont American's concept of making primarily cutting tools and accessories rather than the permanent power tool assembly has set Vermont American apart from other companies and is responsible for its great success, company officials said.

Vermont American has concentrated on expanding its variety of consumable cutting tools and believes that it is one of the world's largest manufacturers of cutting tools. The company is often referred to as "The High Technology Tool People" because all Vermont American products utilize a high degree of expertise in grinding and heat-treating steel. The company sells its products under the Vermont American brand and trademarks as well under various other private labels through hardware stores, home centers, mass merchandisers, automotive parts stores and major retail chains.

Vermont American began operating in Greenville in 1966. During the time since then, the division has undergone several expansions, including one completed earlier this year. The Greenville division manufactures high speed twist drills and router bits for both the consumer and industrial markets.

Vermont American recently began offering customers titanium nitride-coated drills and taps. These tools, known as Vertanium tools, make use of a coating process which is said to have brought a breakthrough in metal cutting technology. Vermont American is the first manufacturer to produce a full range of Vertanium drills and taps.

Several new products are now in various stages of development and plans for a building addition are being prepared by the corporate building engineers. Approximately 180 people are employed by the Greenville division on a three-shift basis.

We Salute Our Industries

What's the difference between a good community and a great one? We think it's our industrial work force. They are the folks who take an active interest in Greenville, roll up their sleeves and get results. And what results! We owe a bit of our growth, prosperity and development to them and we're glad to show it. If you ask us, we're all proud to support our area's industrial firms.

A.C. Monk

Marketing Quality Tobacco Worldwide

Tobacco was once America's most important export. In 17th century Virginia, it was the basis of the economy. Prices were quoted in pounds of tobacco.

Taxes were paid with it. And tobacco gave the early settlers the means to import the goods they needed from Europe. So it is only fitting that

held supplier of U.S. and foreign tobaccos to world markets.

Although A.C. Monk doesn't go as far back as colonial times, the company history doesn't lack for excitement. Founded in 1907 at a time when the domestic tobacco industry was in a turmoil of price-cutting, the young enterprise could have easily expired almost before it got started. But A.C. Monk took a calculated risk. He bypassed the problems of dealing with domestic buyers frightened by the panic of 1907 and concentrated on selling quality tobacco to foreign markets.

More than 75 years later, that decision still appears to be a wise one. Today, on a 55-acre tract in Farmville, Monk operates the largest and most modern dealer-owned tobacco-processing plant facility in the world.

The processing plant alone covers 10 acres of ground and is capable of receiving and handling over a million pounds of tobacco a day. And from the moment the green tobacco leaf arrives at the receiving bays, it's handled entirely by machine. Over five miles of conveyor belts carry the tobacco from weighing, green storage, cleaning, blending, to re-drying, packing and shipping. Storage isles are as wide as city streets and motorized sweepers prowl up and down them continuously to make sure that all areas of the plant are kept scrupulously clean.

Even quality picking is done by machine, with automatic electronic leaf inspection units. Automatic equipment also constantly monitors the moisture content of the tobacco. And after processing, samples of the various tobaccos are kept in rooms where the temperature and humidity are electronically controlled to produce ideal conditions.

It takes a lot of people to keep such a plant busy, and the two-man operation that A.C. Monk started out with years ago has now grown to an organization that employs over 70 sets of buyers, more than 30 fulltime salesmen, and an in-season work force of about 1,000 people. There are 50 sets of buyers for flue-cured tobacco, 23 sets for burley, plus local buyers for tobaccos from Brazil, Italy, Central America, Canada, Korea, Zimbabwe and other important tobacco-producing countries around the world. Many have been working with Monk for over 40 years.

Monk customers from around the world are apt to be pleasantly surprised by the Farmville complex. The corporate offices are designed around a tropical garden and a landscaped atrium, with bright and modern furnishings. Even the processing plant itself is a comfortable place to visit with its modern color theme and clean, well-lighted interior.

Tobacco Processing

The final stage of processing tobacco for shipment is packing. Employees at A.C. Monk Co. Inc. monitor the final stage where the tobacco is loaded by machine into containers.

Those 'In Between' Businesses

Somewhere in between those designated as "small" businesses and the large corporations lie the companies that employ between 50 and 250 people. Identifications of these companies and their locations follow:

AYDEN
BLUE BELL INC. — Located on N.C. 11 South, Blue Bell manufactures Lady Wrangler dungarees. The company was established in 1979 and is managed by Ike Best.

H.A. Haynie, Helping Save The Light

Just an idea. That is how it all started, just as most worthwhile projects do. But this idea is helping save the Hatteras Lighthouse on the North Carolina Outer Banks.

About five years ago, H.A. Haynie, president of H.A. Haynie Inc., an intermediate textiles business in Greenville, was contacted by one-time co-worker William L. Garrett. Haynie and Garrett knew each other from having worked at a Du Pont plant in the textile fiber department.

Garrett had come up with a plan to create synthetic seaweed to help stop beach erosion.

"The idea for the whole thing is just so simple, it's beautiful. It sits there just like natural seaweed and you can put it where you want it," Haynie said.

"As I understand it," Haynie said, "Bill came up with the idea while he was vacationing on the coast. He was concerned about the beach erosion, researched the problem and found that the erosion occurred in many cases because natural barriers like reefs and sandbars were deteriorating."

Working from his newly gained knowledge, Garrett created a synthetic type of seaweed from Typar, a fabric manufactured by Du Pont in a plant near Nashville, Tenn.

"You can bury Typar under the ground or submerge it in water and it will not deteriorate," Haynie explained. After obtaining a patent and registering the trademark for Seascap Synthetic Seaweed, Garrett said he began the process of lining up people to manufacture the product. Working from his home in Greenville, Del., Garrett contacted Haynie, a company in Roanoke Rapids and other industries now helping produce the synthetic seaweed.

From the Tennessee plant, Typar is shipped to Haynie where he and his employees process the fabric into sections and cut it to specifications. "The cut material is then sent to Roanoke Rapids where another company stitches the Typar to create the final product — something that looks like a grass skirt cut of paper.

"The seaweed is basically designed in this manner," Garrett explained. "There is a five-foot-long tube, about 12 inches deep, on the bottom of the unit. The unit is made up of funny looking fronds (straight plies of material up to 50 inches with foam sewn into the ends to act as flotation devices.)"

The purpose of the synthetic seaweed is to slow down seawater so it does not cause as much beach erosion.

The seascap seaweed is placed in the ocean in about eight feet of water in five to six rows parallel to the beach where erosion needs to be stopped. As water passes through, the synthetic seaweed slows it down and sand begins to drop out of the slower water, eventually building up to form a reef. "Simply, all the Seascap does is break up the waves before they reach the beach," Garrett said.

Two groups of units have already been located at Cape Hatteras, according to Garrett. "We installed one in May of 1981 as a gift to the Park Service. The next year we came back and that beach had widened 300 feet.

1809 DICKINSON AVENUE, GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA
UNDER APPOINTMENT FROM Pepsi Co., INC., PURCHASE N.Y.

If It's Between Two Trees, It's A Hatteras Hammock

Over 12 years ago, Greenville resident Walter Perkins decided to test his woodworking skills. He took a seat in his garage and proceeded to dismantle a fisherman's rope hammock to find out how it was constructed.

Perkins did learn how to put the hammock back together, taught East Carolina University students to do the work and opened a business that took off.

He and the students started making the rope hammocks in his garage, but when demand exceeded assembling space, he moved the company, named "Hatteras Hammocks," upstairs in a brick home on Evans Street.

The company is now located in an old tobacco warehouse at 11th and Clark streets and is marked by a sign bearing an image of the lighthouse the company was named after.

Perkins said he first "sold them to my friends door-to-door. Then I filled up my car and set out for Morehead City and that area and sold them right out of the car."

Since the hammocks first went on sale, they have gained so much popularity that Hatteras Hammocks can be found all over the United States, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Korea and Canada. Perkins even sent a sample hammock to former President Gerald Ford as a bicentennial gift. Ford decided not to use the hammock for his personal use, instead putting it on display in the Great Hall of the Commerce Building in Washington. Jay Branch, general manager of the company, said Hatteras Hammocks now employs approximately up to 40 people seasonally and that between 15,000 and 20,000

hammocks are sold a year. "If you average it out, we make about 56 hammocks a day, but sometimes we make over 300," he said. The bodies of the hammocks and the final assembly are all done by hand. In addition to the building where the hammocks are woven and assembled, Hatteras Hammocks utilizes three other buildings for making rope, a wood shop where the stays are produced and a metal fabrication shop.

In addition to hammocks, Hatteras Hammocks produces products for boats including covers, seat cushions and tote bags.

"We don't proclaim to be the first business that ever made hammocks," Branch said. "Columbus even had hammocks on his ship, but of course we feel ours are the best."

Weavers can be trained to string the hammocks in about 15 minutes, but several days go by before the workers become really proficient, Branch said.

Hammocks cost about $90 each, but seconds can be bought for $60 from the Greenville plant. "We're little known in Greenville because of the obscure location of our plant, but even people in California recognize our name," Branch said.

Workers are paid by piecework and average producing a hammock about every 35 minutes. Particularly fast workers can make a hammock in 20 minutes.

The hammocks are tied of quarter-inch rope of various makes — cotton and polypropylene — and colors. "We even make them in school colors," Branch said.

Eaton's Yale Trucks Travel The World

Eaton first located in Greenville in 1974 on a 70-acre site to manufacture Yale electric industrial lift trucks which, once completed, are sold through a world-wide dealer organization in 100 countries.

The initial Eaton building was 353,000 square-feet; however, in 1982 the industrial facility was expanded. The second building of 100,000 square feet, started and completed in 1982, provided space for the assembling of gas, propane and diesel-powered trucks.

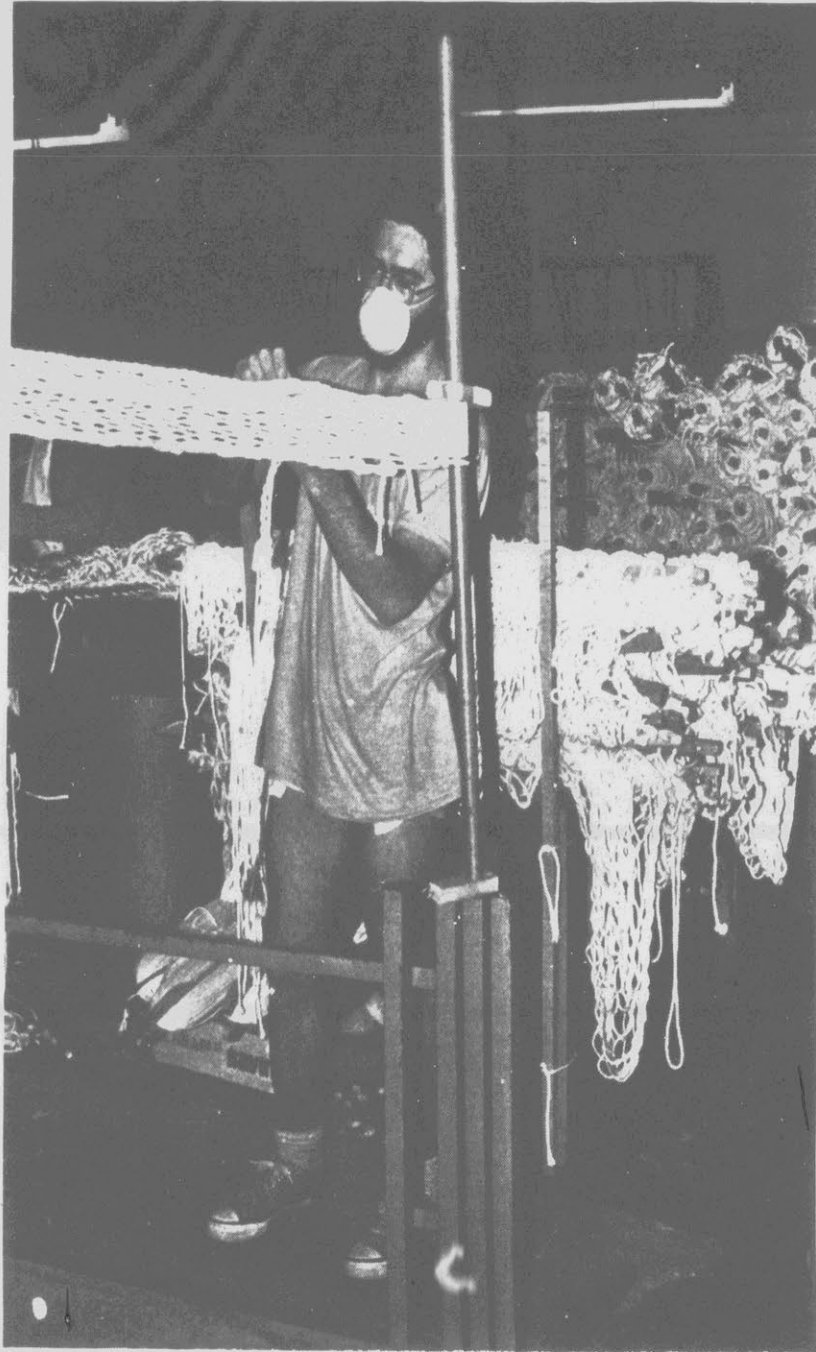

In January 1983, Eaton officials announced that the company would move to establish Yale as an independent company with strong global partners. By establishing Yale as an independent entity, officials said the company's management and resources will be focused on the manufacturing and marketing of industrial lift trucks. This re-structuring is expected to be completed during 1983.

The Greenville plant currently employs over 300 people with an annual payroll of over $6 million. During 1982, the Greenville plant paid over $100,000 in local taxes.

Eaton and its employees at the Greenville plant are active in many community functions and attempt to improve the quality of life for all citizens, according to Eaton spokesmen. In addition to community services, the employees donate thousands of dollars annually to local efforts such as the contribution of $44,416 to the 1982 Pitt County United Way.

Frank Muller, general plant manager, said that he and his family have been very much impressed with the employees of the Greenville plant and the Greenville community since his move here in the spring of 1982. Muller said that the Greenville area offers much to attract industry, such as a "productive workforce, quality educational and medical facilities, good transportation systems and an ideal location for employees and the families to live."

Burroughs Wellcome

Pharmaceuticals For People

Burroughs Wellcome Co. was founded in London in 1880 by two young American pharmacists, Silas M. Burroughs of New York and Henry S. Wellcome of Wisconsin.

They were entrepreneurs with a special flair, and in the 102 years since its beginning, Burroughs Wellcome Co. has been recognized as a leader in pharmaceutical research and production.

The company expanded enormously over the years, spilling into two North Carolina locations, the Research Triangle Park and Greenville.

The Greenville plant employs the most workers, 1,398 as compared to the Triangles' 1,071. While the Triangle facility does mostly research, the Greenville branch produces the finished drug products.

At the Greenville facility, pharmaceuticals are produced through a series of steps that include the processing of raw materials, chemical manufacture, rigid testing and monitoring, labeling, packaging and shipping. More than a thousand employees are involved in converting formulas into finished products.

Fifteen different types of machines turn out compressed tablets at an incredibly high speed. Elsewhere in the plant, ointments, creams and liquids are produced. In addition, specially equipped, separate areas are dedicated to the manufacture of sterile products. The quality of every product manufactured is the responsibility of all plant employees.

As well as providing medicines for everyday use, Burroughs Wellcome has supplied drugs for some notable excursions. In the early part of the 20th century, Burroughs Wellcome supplied much of the medical equipment used in explorations of the North and South poles as well as Africa and the Far East.

The company's medicines and first aid kits also helped Henry Stanley in his African explorations. For Theodore Roosevelt, Burroughs Wellcome Co. provided special medical supplies for his travels up the Nile. Admiral Peary and Admiral Byrd carried the company's first-aid kits on their explorations of the Polar regions. This tradition has continued.

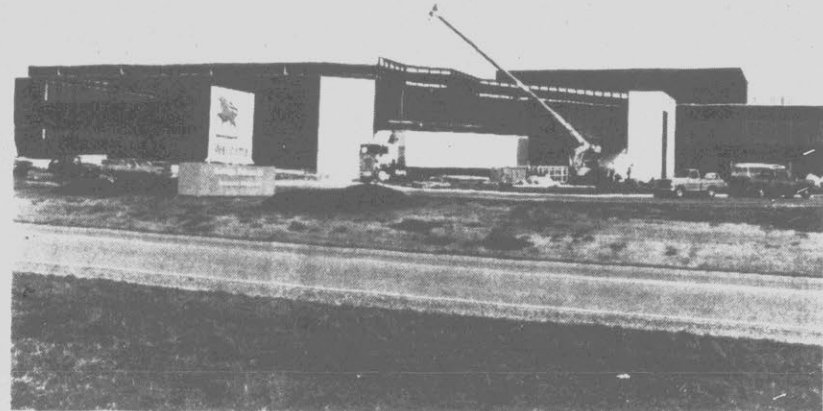

Burroughs Wellcome Co. products were chosen by NASA to accompany astronauts on the first journey to the moon and for use in the Skylab program.

Research has been and continues to be the very core of the company. Many new drugs to treat illness and alleviate suffering have come from Burroughs Wellcome laboratories. In the past 30 years, Wellcome scientists have discovered drugs to treat leukemia and certain forms of cancer, malaria, gout, rheumatoid arthritis, and urinary tract and respiratory infections. Wellcome researchers discovered a drug to prevent kidney transplant rejection, and most recently, the first drug proved to be effective against herpes simplex infections.

The company is now seeking approval of a novel anti-depressant which lacks many of the troublesome side effects experienced with currently available drugs. A significant new muscle relaxant for use in operative procedures is not far behind. On another front, the parent company, the Wellcome Foundation Ltd., is a major manufacturer of Interferon.

Research is carried out on four continents — America, Europe, Africa and Australia. The chief research centers are in the United States and the United Kingdom. There are manufacturing facilities in 20 countries.

During his lifetime, Sir Henry Wellcome set up a financial system which remains unique in the pharmaceutical industry — unique because there are no stockholders.

Tobacco: Way Of Life For Carolina Leaf

The Carolina Leaf Tobacco Co. Inc. was formed in 1963 with the merger of four tobacco companies in eastern North Carolina — E.B. Ficklen Tobacco Co. of Greenville, G.R. Garrett Tobacco Co. of Rocky Mount,

E.V. Webb and Co. of Kinston and the Wilson Tobacco Co. of Wilson.

Three of the companies, Garrett, Webb and Wilson, were all formed in the early 1900s. The E.B. Ficklen Tobacco Co. was formed in 1896, and one of the sons of the founder of the company, Louis Stuart Ficklen, is now a senior vice president of Carolina Leaf and a Greenville resident.

On Jan. 1, 1964, land preparation began on a 34-acre site located north of the city limits on North Green Street Extension. A factory was built on the site and began operations with the 1964 flue-cured tobacco season. Several additions have been made to the factory over the past 19 years, and the present building contains approximately 400,000 square feet. The Carolina Leaf factory was the first of the so-called "jumbo" dealer factories.

Carolina Leaf buys flue-cured tobacco from Florida through Virginia for processing in the Greenville facility. After processing and packing, tobaccos are shipped to customers throughout the world. In addition to the purchase of flue-cured tobaccos, Carolina Leaf also buys air-cured burley tobaccos from Kentucky, Tennessee, western North Carolina and western Virginia for customers in the world market.

Principal foreign markets for Carolina Leaf include Japan, Korea, China, the Philippines, Taiwan and Thailand in the Far East; England, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Norway and Italy in Europe, and Egypt.

In addition to buying and processing American tobaccos, Carolina Leaf is also involved in buying and processing operations in various foreign countries including Korea, Thailand, the Philippines and Argentina.

Carolina Leaf employs about 200 people on a permanent basis. During the processing season for both flue-cured and air-cured burley tobaccos, an additional 400 to 500 people are employed on a temporary or seasonal basis.

W.B. Glenn, president of Carolina Leaf Tobacco, said "a part of Carolina Leaf's success has been its aggressiveness in the sale of U.S. tobaccos in the world market. We are dedicated to continue and improve our efforts."

Brushing Up The Empire Way

Empire Brushes Inc. made a decision in 1963 to look elsewhere for the expansion acres it could not afford in Port Chester, N.Y., the town that had housed it for 45 years. But once company officials decided that Greenville would be its future home, Empire took 15 years to complete the transition.

Though the privately held company publishes no figures, it claims to be the nation's largest maker of household brushware, including brooms, squeegees and mops. It also operates a woodworking shop in Meridian, Miss., where handles are made. Currently the company utilizes 370,000 square feet in Greenville.

Several factors contributed to the long stretch between the first announcement and the final departure to Greenville. One of these was cash. "We didn't have unlimited resources," recalled Jack Gantz, Empire's chief executive. A second was the close working relationship that arose between Empire and the village's industrial development agency. Jack Lerner, the development agency's former chairman, says Empire "kept their property available to us for a long time. They tried to encourage us to bring in other manufacturing concerns."

Fourteen management employees, a few at a time, accompanied the piecemeal transfer of Empire's business to Greenville. They included the manufacturing vice president of the firm, the treasurer, paymaster and other executives. The company also paid their moving expenses and also assisted its most recent transferees to finance their newly acquired homes. All except two of the 14 families have remained in Greenville.

Empire started relocation by erecting at 54,000-foot, single-level building on the Greenville site. The structure was designed with enough power capacity and flooring strength to receive not only the injection moulding department, which was the most crowded shop in the Port Chester group, but also more highly efficient brush-making machinery of the latest design. Some of the latter had previously been purchased for Port Chester, but never installed there for lack of space.

In 1969, after four years, the firm added another 54,000 feet, also for manufacturing purposes. By 1973, factory capacity in Greenville had reached over 200,000 square feet.

For 10 years after the first Greenville facility came on line, Empire divided production and warehousing between New York and North Carolina. But in 1976, the inefficiencies stemming from the split led to the final decision to phase everything out of Port Chester except the office staff. With the transfer of sales and accounting south to the new corporate headquarters — a gleaming white, circular structure built around a huge center pool — the 15-year move "is now complete," Gantz said, adding, "The decision to discontinue operating in Port Chester was made only after a thorough evaluation of all other alternatives."

Cox Trailers

Carrying Boat Enthusiasts

Cox Trailers Inc., located in Grifton, marked 1982 as one of the best years in its 80-year history in Pitt County in spite of the fact that it was the fifth consecutive year of sagging unit sales for boating products industry wide.

Cox employs more than 120 people and manufactures a complete line of boat trailers with 68 different models including self-adjusting, drive-on and conventional type trailers. The company also manufactures motorcycle trailers, utility trailers, the Squire wood stove and several industrial products.

Richard H. Westbrook, plant manager at Cox, attributed the company's growth to the "ability to diversify into markets with off-setting seasons as well as emphasizing larger galvanized boat trailers suitable to the salt water boating market ... a market which remained good in spite of the boating industry's severe recession which saw total unit sales at 1968 levels."

Some structural changes and product refinement were also employed in the boat trailer line in order to improve Cox's already good reputation for quality in the marine industry, Westbrook said.

Knight Energy Systems, a company owned by the Cox brothers, markets a line of wood-burning stoves called the Squire Stove and Cox Trailers is the sole supplier of this product for Knight Energy Systems.

According to Westbrook, this diversification and increased revenue gives

Cox buying power which results in favorable pricing for both companies. "It also means the labor force is less subject to the seasonal nature of both the wood stove and boat trailer business since workers work for both companies," Westbrook said.

"The recent resurgence of the boating market, much in evidence at the fall and winter shows, foreshadows an excellent 1983 for Cox as the company celebrates its 80th anniversary," Westbrook added.

Shirting Up _____ _____ With Prepshirt

In operation since 1963, Prepshirt Manufacturing Co. of Greenville produces an average of 1.6 million shirts per year.

Each year, thousands of people purchase shirts from local stores never knowing that they were made by Prepshirt of Greenville, a subsidiary of Hampton Industries Inc. of Kinston, one of the largest manufacturers of men's and boy's braided shirts, blouses and robes. Hampton's customers include Sears, Penny's, K-Mart and Montgomery Ward.

While Prepshirt's products are principally sold at retail under private labels, the company also manufactures and sells boy's shirts under the "Prepshirt" and "McGregor for Boys" trademark; women's blouses under the "Two East, "Shirt Street" and "Sasson," trademarks; and girls' blouses under the "Break Away" and "Hampton Girl" labels. Recently, Prepshirt has become the licensee of "J.G. Hook" for girls.

Prepshirt is a supporter of many community organizations: The United Way, the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, the League of Women Voters, the Boys' Club and the North Carolina Rehabilitation Center are some of the recipients of Prepshirt donations. The company is also one of the major donors responsible for the Blood Center's Pheresis machine, an instrument which separates plasma from whole blood, making treatment easier and more effective for people with certain rare diseases.

Collins & Aikman

Fabrics To Go Anywhere

When Collins and Aikman built its plant at Farmville in 1963, its production went to a single market. Fabric-to-fabric bonding was the newest technique on the block, taking apparel producers by storm.

The Farmville plant was created to serve that market, producing millions of yards of inexpensive Tricot for linings. The fabric sold for about 50 cents a yard, inexpensive by any standard.

Today the plant boasts perhaps the broadest offering of warp knit fabrics in the nation, continuing to serve the apparel market, but with more uses than the bonded fabric days.

Fabrics manufactured in Farmville are widely used in lingere and longwear, sleep wear, and outer wear such as warm-up suits, running suits and other casual and dressy garments.

A significant amount of production ends up in home furnishings, such as bed spreads, draperies and upholstery for furniture, with the fastest growing market segment being the automotive scene where warp knit fabrics are being used extensively in seat covers and head liners because the fabric is light weight and durable. Also, fabrics produced at Collins and Aikman offer the auto manufacturer more flexibility in achieving different designs, from rugged to plush.

The plant's growth has been continual over its 20-year history. It began as a producer of greide (undyed) goods, quickly added dyeing and finishing and more working room. Today, its expansion is internal through the installation of faster, more productive equipment. Nearly $12 million has been spent at Farmville in the past three years alone, all aimed at making the plant more efficient and thereby more competitive.

New knitting machinery runs at twice the pace of the units being replaced; yarn handling equipment is both faster and has a great capacity, automation speeds fabric through the inspection and packing phases. In each instance, the new equipment eases the burden of the employees involved.

Collins and Aikman is quick to recognize the contributions of a stable and dedicated workforce. Over 250 of its approximately 700 employees have more than 10 years of service.

The annual payroll of the Farmville plant exceeds $10 million. The plan serves about 1,500 customers with approximately 25,000,000 yards of fabric each year.

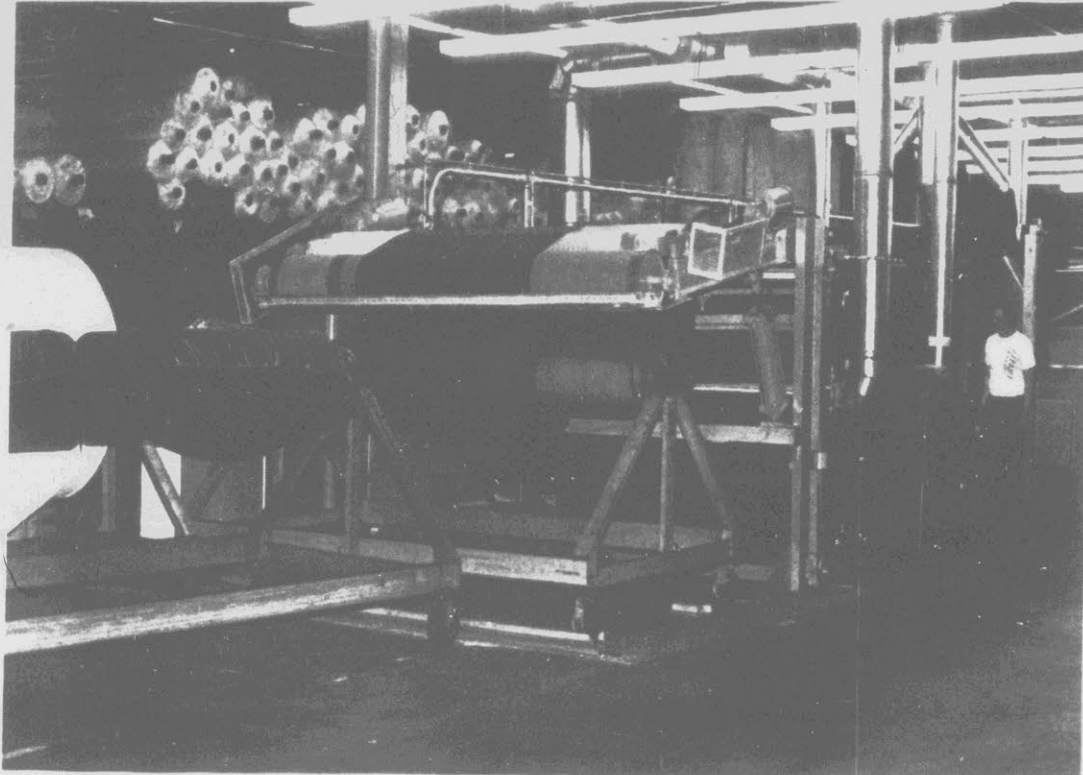

Employees at Collins and Aikman also participate in their own quality circles known as MAP Teams. MAP — Maximizing Attitude and Performance — brings together groups of employees on each shift to identify and recommend solutions to problems relating to quality, efficiency and safety.

"Our aim is to protect our plant and employees from economic swings as much as possible," Frederick added. "Diversification made possible by capital expenditures and a willing and capable workforce promises to move us a long way in this direction," he said.

Stitching

Part of the fabric production process are sewing together before being processed. This employee is watching for tears in the bindings.

Velouring

One of Collins and Aikman's most popular products is velour fabric. Bolts of cloth are fed into machines which literally pick the material to give it a fuzzy feel. A bolt of fabric often must be fed into the shredding machine several times to get the desired velour appearance.

Farming: An Important Pitt County Industry

Agriculture pumped $123,617,446 into Pitt County's economy in 1982, according to figures compiled by the County Agricultural Extension Service.

This qualifies farming, according to County Extension Chairman Leroy James, as "a big business."

"We are proud to have this kind of farm income in Pitt County," said James. "We hope the figure will grow."

Tobacco was the biggest crop in terms of dollars, putting an estimated $67,236,845 in farmers' pockets last year, James said. Over 17,500 acres were planted in the county, with an average yield of about 2,260 pounds per acre and total production reaching 39,784,584 pounds. The gold leaf sold for an average of $1.80 per pound.

Corn was the county's next biggest money-maker in 1982, producing $13,425,142, James said. Over 69,000 acres were planted with an average yield of 105 bushels per acre and a total yield of 7,276,500 bushels. The crop sold, on the average, at $2.05 per bushel.

Egg production was the third largest agricultural industry in 1982 in term of dollars. James estimated eggs brought in $11,154,000.

Coming in fourth, pork production in the county brought $9,115,500 into the economy, said James. Soybeans followed pork in terms of dollars earned in 1982 with a total of $7,148,400. James noted 56,000 acres were planted with an average yield of 23 bushels per acre and a total production of 1,288,000 bushels. Soybeans sold for an average of $5.55 per bushel.

The county chairman estimated that vegetables and fruits including pick-your-own strawberry and vegetable operations earned $3 million county-wide in 1982.

Earnings from peanut production totaled $2,832,786, said James, with 4,769 acres planted in Pitt County and an average yield of 2,200 pounds per acre. The total peanut yield for 1982 was 10,491,800 pounds and farmers received an average of 27 cents per pound for their crop.

Beef cattle and calf production totaled $1,327,900 in 1982, said James, and broiler production totaled $370,500, while hen production reached $100,000.

James said the economic effects of the agricultural industry were not limited to actual production dollars, however. "You've got to take into account the numerous agribusinesses that we have here because of the farming," he said. "For example, farming supply stores, tractor dealership, grain dealers, etc.

"Agriculture is a big industry, a multimillion dollar industry in Pitt County," he concluded.

From Wood To Fiberglass Grady-White Is The Leader

Grady-White Boats Inc., located on the northeast end of Greenville Boulevard, manufactures fiberglass boats ranging in size from 17 to 25 feet.

The Greenville company, founded in 1959 by Glen Grady and Don White, had gained a reputation for building quality wooden lapstrake boats over the years. However, in the mid-1960s, interest in wooden boats declined and fiberglass boats grew in popularity. At that time Grady-White started conversion from wooden to fiberglass boats. By 1968, all G-W boats were being made by the hand layup fiberglass method.

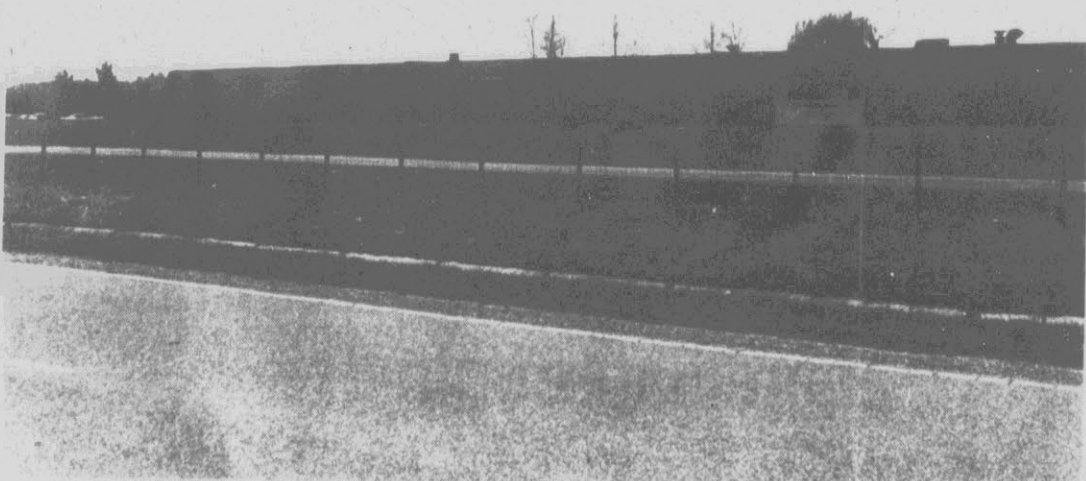

Further events transpired in 1968 to change the company. Eddie Smith Jr. purchased Grady-White Boats Inc. and has served as president of the corporation since. The manufacturing operation is managed by Wiley Corbett, executive vice president and general manager, and sales are managed by Jim Stoneman, national sales manager.

Grady-White boats are sold through authorized Grady-White dealers throughout the United States. The primary markets are the east coast, Florida, the Gulf Coast and the Great Lakes area. Secondary markets include the west coast, Hawaii, Bermuda, British Columbia and various European and mid-east countries.

All Grady-White boats are manufactured at the 150,000 square-foot Greenville facility. Approximately 250 people are employed at the plant. Complete product design, sales and manufacturing are handled at this location.

Procter & Gamble, Helping Clean Your Home

Located on State Road 1529, the Procter & Gamble Paper Products Co. covers 344 acres with 26 under roof to accommodate administrative, material storage, technical and engineering, manufacturing and warehousing functions.

Procter & Gamble's first North Carolina plant.

For more than 40 years, P&G has made wage studies and paid its manufacturing employees wages which compare favorably to those paid by other companies in the same community for similar work.

Employees participate in profit sharing and stock-purchase plans. Instituted in 1887, P&G's profit-sharing plan is the oldest such plan in the United States. Employees are also covered by disability benefits, supplemental accident compensation, group life insurance, major medical expense insurance, hospital and surgical plan and dental insurance.

Procter & Gamble paid out approximately $95 million to the North Carolina-Greenville area economy during the past year. This included $10 in salaries and over $85 million for purchases of goods and services (raw materials, contractor services, packaging and office supplies).

Procter & Gamble opened its Greenville plant in August 1975. The site, on Old Creek Road or SR 1529, employs 520 people, most of whom were hired locally. The plant's annual payroll is in excess of $10 million.

The company has come a long way since its start more than 140 years ago, according to a company spokesman.

Procter & Gamble began as a small candle and soap-making operation in the mid-1800s and over the years expanded to manufacture household paper products, toilet goods, coffee, food and industrial and institutional products. The Greenville facility, which produces Always Pantliners, Mini-Maxi Pads and Attends Incontinent Briefs is

Pitt County Safe From April Closings

Although statistics supplied by the Pitt County Development Commission call for nine plant closings and major layoffs in North Carolina for the month of April 1983, none was reported for Pitt County, which appears to be doing well despite recessionary conditions.

Three textile industries comprise the field most affected by the closings. Artville Furniture of Caldwell County, a furniture upholstery manufacturer, closed. Ti-Caro Inc. of Wilmington, a textile knit fabric manufacturer, and Samson Cordage Works, makers of textile, cordage and twine, also announced closings. The reasons listed for the closings included lack of orders, imports and consolidation.

Layoffs counted in the closings listed by the development commission included Western Electric in Forsyth County, producers of electronics telephone equipment; Westinghouse Corp. in Weeksville, makers of electronic detection equipment, and the American Enka Co., a chemical, polyester industry in Asheville.

A summary of the report indicated that 807 workers lost their jobs because of the closings and layoffs.

Fieldcrest Mills

Yarn Needs Manufactured For Karastan In P.C.

Fieldcrest Mills Inc. became a corporate citizen of Greenville and Pitt County when it acquired the Greenville Spinning Mill on Dickinson Avenue from the Artloom Co. of Philadelphia in August 1960.

As the plant's production of spun woolen carpet expanded to meet the need of the company's Karastan Rug Mill in Eden, employment doubled from 125 to 250. Acrylic yarns were also introduced into production.

Now, in addition to producing yarn for Karastan, the Greenville Spinning Mill manufactures yarn for use by more than 60 different carpet and upholstery manufacturers.

Nearly 10 years after acquiring the Greenville Spinning Mill, Fieldcrest purchased land north of the city at Industrial Park and in January 1970 ground was broken for the construction of the Karastan Worsted Plant. Within the 60,000 square-feet of this complex, 55 manufacturing employees produce worsted yarn for the Karastan Oriental design rug. When that operation began in August 1970, all staff functions for the two yarn mills moved to the new site. Fieldcrest is proud of its Greenville employees and they, in turn, take pride in their work environment and their product, according to company officials. Carpet and rugs made from yarns produced in the Greenville mills are on the floors of the U.S. House of Representatives, diplomatic offices and the White House Oval Office.

As a result of the Greenville employees' dedication to safety, the two mills have achieved outstanding records. Karastan Spinning Mill employees earned Fieldcrest's Presidential Award for the best safety record during 1982 and the Karastan Worsted Plant employees recently completed the seventh consecutive year without a lost-time accident.

Union Carbide Plant

Batteries are made at the Union Carbide plant on Greenville Boulevard. The plant is classified under the 'G' section of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, meaning that between 299 and 499 people are employed at the facility. Union Carbide opened the Greenville plant in 1947 and is managed by Mickey Maxon.

Union Carbide, Makers Of Eveready

Union Carbide began operations in Greenville early in 1945, manufacturing desalination bags, a plastic bag containing chemicals for the conversion of sea water into drinking water used by the armed forces during World War II. In August of that year the company began making "Krene" products - plastic curtains, garment bags, appliance covers, ect. - for commercial use.

In June of 1948, the 14th Street plant was retooled for the production of Eveready penlite batteries. Production began in 1949 and eventually reached 25,000 per day. With the growth of sales, the old facility on 14th Street was no longer adequate, and a new facility was built in 1963 at the present site on the corner of South Evans Street and Greenville Boulevard. As demand for Eveready products grew, so did the facility, expanding in 1967 to near the present size.

Today, the Greenville facility is one of the most modern Carbon Zinc AA Battery plants in the world. A variety of AA products, ranging from the new line of super heavy duty batteries and general purpose batteries to the specialized cell batteries used by the armed forces and commercial customers, are produced in Greenville.

Greenville battery products is but one member of the Battery Products Division, which includes other facilities in the United States as well as battery plants around the world.

The Daily Reflector

Progress: The Important Word In Newspapering

Since its infancy in 1882, The Daily Reflector, and its weekly predecessor, have had to change with the times. And like most change, it came hard but was worth the trouble.

The paper was first published in a one-room school house belonging to the publishers' mother. Nineteen-year-old David J. Whichard and his brother, Julian R. Whichard, printed the first edition composed of four pages, each six inches wide and 10 inches long. That memorable edition only marked the beginning of a newspaper business that has grown and prospered as has its parent Pitt County.

Demands for more adequate facilities drove the paper to bigger and bigger buildings over the years. It eventually went to a newly constructed building located where Bigg's Drug Store once stood and where Hargett's Courtside is now run.

Hands were needed to put out the ever increasing newspaper, so David J. Whichard brought his 7-year-old son, David J. Whichard Jr., to the paper to work. D.J. Whichard Jr. is now 88 years old and serves as the chairman of the board.

Whichard has two sons, David Jordan Whichard II and John Suther Whichard, and, upon deciding to take the two sons in as partners, incorporated the paper in 1948.

D.J. (Dave) Whichard II, the eldest of the two sons, joined the paper shortly after it was incorporated in 1948. He joined the staff as a reporter and John S. (Jack) Whichard joined the business two years later in 1950. In 1956, finding the facility too small to accommodate the growing staff, the paper was again moved to its current location on Cotanche Street.

"We have grown at an incredible rate over the years," Dave Whichard said. "I remember when I came to work in the newsroom in 1948 we only had a lady who wrote some social articles and did proof reading, we had a man at the desk (Don Schlien who is still working the desk) and another reporter besides me."

The advertising department was likewise as small with only three employees, with the bulk of the payroll going to the composing department. However, technology had a hand in rearranging the employee concentrations of the paper.

"Over the last 35 years, besides great growth in the organization itself, the most significant change has been a change in technology. That change has enabled us to shift from predominantly production personnel to predominantly news writing and advertising personnel," Whichard said.

He said that change did not mean a change in the priorities of the paper, however. "This newspaper has always been a personnel intensive business and will continue to be that way," he said.

The paper did change in a number of other ways, according to Jack Whichard.

"When we first came to join the business in the late 1940s and '50s, the type was set on a Linotype machine which molded each line of type with hot metal," he explained. The Linotype produced only one line of type at a time which was eventually put into readable order in a frame called a chase.

Before the Linotype machine came into being, each letter was picked up individually by hand and placed in a chase.

As a contrast, Dave Whichard pointed out the speed with which the different forms of typesetting could be done. "Now that we have computers doing the work, about 450 lines of type are put out a minute. When we used the Linotype, only 10 lines of type a minute were produced. However, we had a man at each keyboard setting the type at 10 lines a minute."

If setting the type took that much longer in the 1950s, imagine how much longer it took the paper to be printed? "Back then, we would come into work at about 8:30, like we do now, but press time wasn't until about 3 or 4 p.m.

Today, we come in at 8:30 a.m. and by 12:30 the papers are rolling off the press," Jack Whichard said.

Pictures used to be engraved by an engraving machine in the days of the Linotype, but today are reproduced on a camera before being pasted up to be photographed again for the final negative.

The circulation of The Daily Reflector has increased enormously over the years from 3,750 in 1948 to 18,250 today.

Other changes the Whichard brothers noted include the speed at which the press runs. "The old Hoe press only printed about 8,000 copies an hour, while our press today runs up to about 40,000 copies an hour," Jack Whichard said.

As in most businesses, a monkey wrench gets thrown into the works every now and then. Most of the time the problem isn't that troublesome, but Jack Whichard remembers the time when the motor burned out in the press.

"We had to carry that thing up to Raleigh to get it totally rebuilt, but it was back here the next morning," he said.

But come rain or shine, the Daily Reflector is always published. "Even when the motor burned out, we got the paper out by carrying it to another paper for printing," Jack Whichard said.

Today, there is still the chance that the press may malfunction, but most of the problems encountered center around not getting to a source for a story, or the computer.

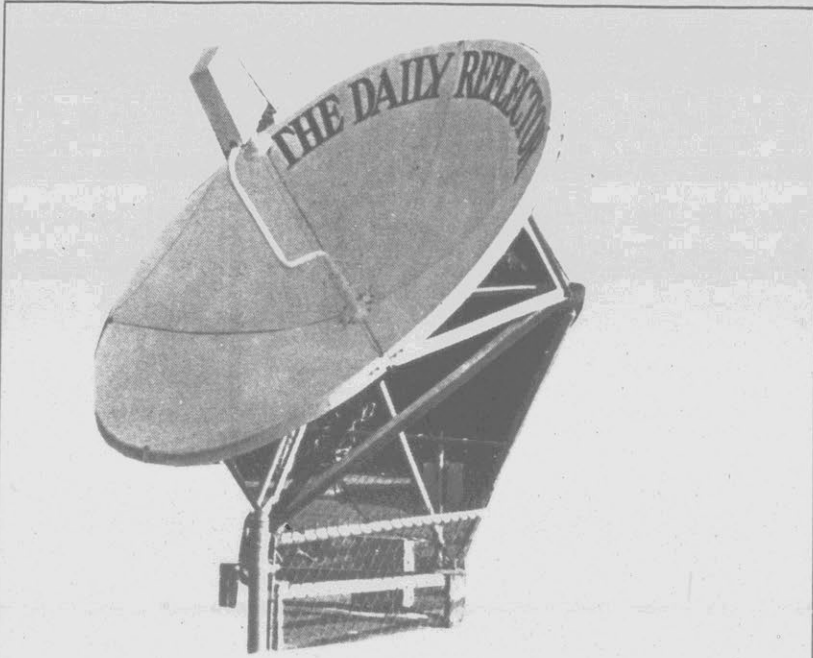

Occasionally when the computer is "down" (not able to take in any information for a period) or a computer terminal malfunctions, it calls for the skills of the paper's computer technician, George Holland.

In spite of the day-to-day anxiety of running a paper, both Dave and Jack Whichard feel their paper is getting better every year.

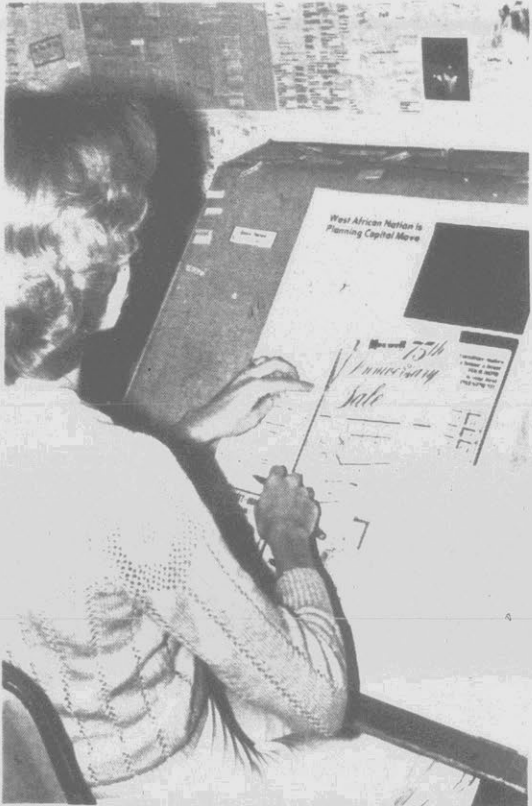

"We expect the paper to continue to grow in circulation, size and content over the next years, reflecting the continuing growth of this area," Dave Whichard said. "I think the newspaper industry will continue to be a strong industry but we will continue to see changes in delivery systems," he added.

Asked if he shared the "gloom-doom" view some hold about the future of the newspaper industry, Dave Whichard said newspapers will continue to be important. "Newspapers will continue to be predominant because we have the ability to provide information in detail and have the ability to provide a broad spectrum of information. We have everything for anyone who wants it," he said.

Both Whichards said they see the role of the newspaper as continuing to be primarily a local news organ to provide the people of this and surrounding areas with all the pertinent information.

Linotype Produced

This is the only remaining metal type left at the Daily Reflector. The top story of the day was man's first walk on the moon. The page is preserved in a table top on display in the office lobby.

TRW Helping Run America's Cars

In the Carolinas, whether you are headed for the beach or the mountains, TRW Inc. may be helping you reach your destination.

The company's automotive components are found on virtually every vehicle on America's streets and highways. In fact, your car may be equipped with parts made here in Pitt County by the TRW Steering and Suspension Division's Staton Plant.

Staton Plant was started in 1979 to manufacture Torsion bars, tie rods and pinions, components used in TRW's power rack and pinion steering gear. TRW introduced this power steering gear to the North American automotive market with its first application on a 1974-model Ford Mustang. Steering and Suspension Division is the largest independent supplier of power rack and pinion gears in North America, selling approximately 813,000 gears in 1982. The 105,200 square-foot plant located on Greene Street Extension also produces ball joint assemblies used in the suspension systems of light trucks and assembles manual rack and pinion steering gears. The automakers that use Staton parts are Ford, Chrysler, AMC, Renault and Volkswagen.

"Analysts predict that by the end of the decade, over 85 percent of the North American car market will be using rack and pinion steering systems. This figure indicates a promising future for our products," John McGara, TRW Staton Plant manager, said. Currently, 55 percent of all domestic-made vehicles made in 1983 have rack and pinion systems.

Since the Greenville plant's start-up in 1979, TRW has invested over $19.8 million in purchasing the building, expanding the manufacturing area, adding a new front office and buying the latest machines and equipment.

"By approving capital expenditures of this size, TRW management believes our operations will give the investors a good return on their money," McGara said. "This doesn't happen without well-designed products, sophisticated machines and processes and talented and industrious employees. I think we have all three."

A unique feature of the Staton Plant is that its 224 employees are paid on a salary system. Most industrial and automotive-related companies have salary office employees and hourly production employees. "We instituted an all-salary plant from the beginning because we didn't want any distinction between office and shop employees," McGara said. "Our policies and programs, therefore, cover all employees, not certain groups of employees."

"The person operating a machining complex is just as important as the person operating the accounting computer terminal. At Staton Plant, we've removed the traditional barriers that prevent us from working together," the plant manager said.

The 224 employees who work at Staton Plant do much more than make steering and suspension products. "They also contribute time and talent, money and muscle to their communities," McGara said. As an organization, Staton Plant employees donated $18,394 to the Pitt County United Way last year and are involved in over 30 area service groups, charitable organizations and community programs. The plant also participated in the Pitt-Greenville school district's Teacher Work-Learn program.

Before deciding to locate a plant in Pitt County four years ago, TRW Steering and Suspension Division's site selection team looked at many facilities in nine states. The team used over 100 criteria to select the best facility. Among the factors considered were available workforce, sources of training and education, area business relations, cost of living, attitude of the community and housing availability. The Greenville area scored the highest.

"Greenville has many pluses," McGara said. "First, I'd have to compliment it on its business climate. The cost of operating a business in North Carolina is lower than other parts of the country, and the state and local governments are willing to help businesses locate here and grow."

"I'm also impressed with what the community offers our employees in the areas of schools and colleges, medical facilities, cultural activities and recreational activities," he added. "Greenville is definitely an attractive area for industry and its employees."

Staton Plant is a unit of TRW Steering and Suspension division, which is located in Michigan and employs 2,000 in three states, and of TRW Inc., a Cleveland-based highly diversified company with 90,000 employees worldwide.

High Technology

Linwood Daniels, an employee of the TRW Staton Plant, works in the Acme Chucker section of the plant which performs machining operations on the tie rod end product.

Manufacturing critical steering components requires such sophisticated and high technology equipment.

Seascape

The waves broke on the reef created by the Seascape and began to fill in the lagoon area," he said.

"Based on what we saw there, Seascape will aid in the plan to save the lighthouse," Garrett said.

"The beach at Hatteras today is just dramatic. Where there was little or no beach at all last fall, there is some now. We even got through this winter, the worst storm winter in a long time, with the best looking beach we've ever seen," Garrett said. "In most cases beaches erode during the winter and storms, but in the Hatteras case, the beach was built up. We were just tickled pink," he said.

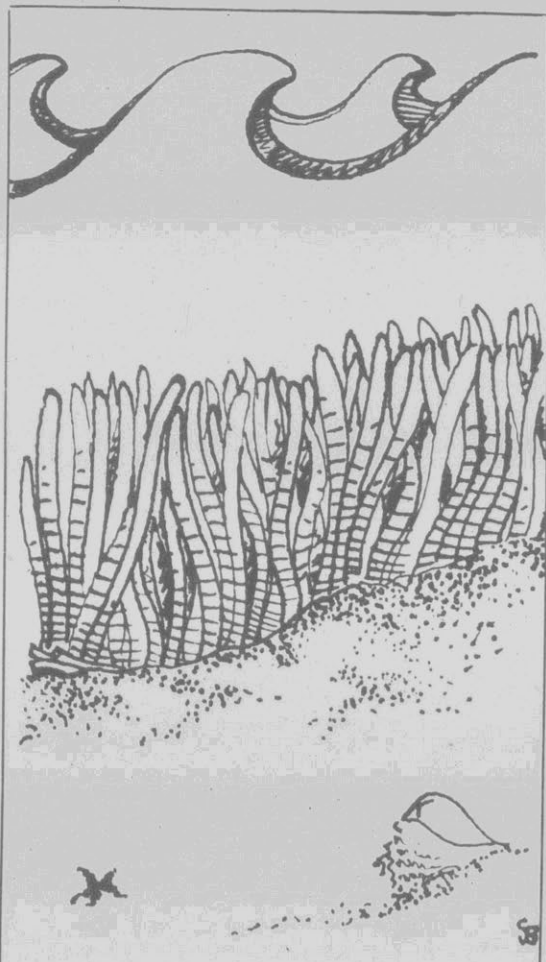

Garrett said plans are in motion to lay more Seascape in front of the lighthouse this year.

In spite of the success, Haynie said the program is "just getting off the ground."

"Only four of us work on the project here, but we have the versatility to produce from five to 5,000 of the units per day," he said.

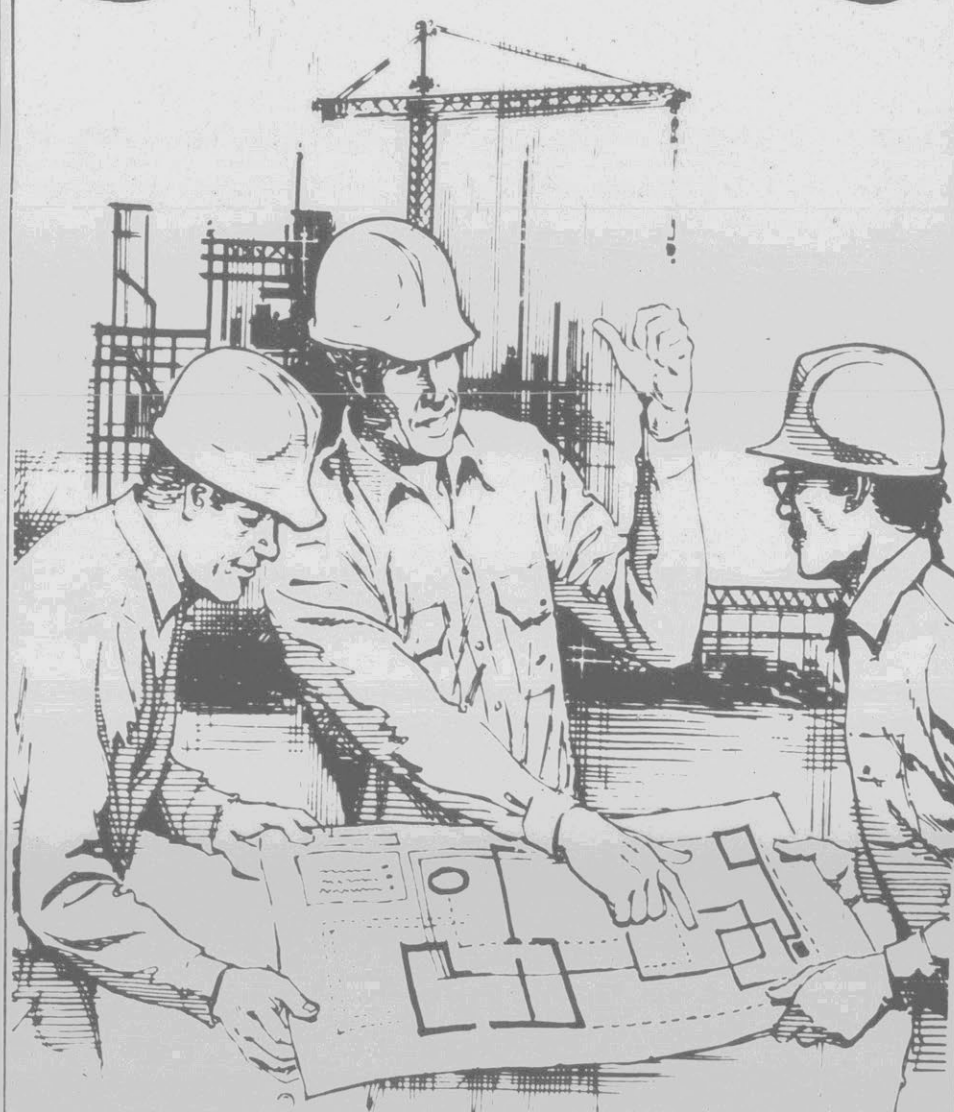

The H.A. Haynie Co. has been in on the project from the beginning and even designed a special machine to cut and roll the Typar. "The size and shape of the Seascape has changed over the years and if we were really mechanized, I don't know if we would have adapted as easily," Hanie said. Haynie's employees even designed a special machine to meet the needs of processing the Typar. "A whole lot of times we've had nothing to do the work required, so we've just had to create the means to meet the need," he said.

In addition to Haynie, three other people work on the synthetic seaweed: Linwood Powell of Ayden, Thomas Baker of Greenville and Joanne Mitchell of Grifton.

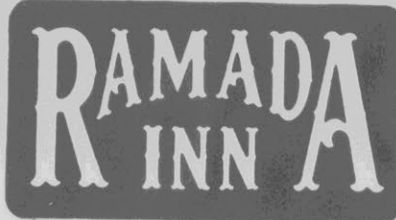

Artist's Rendition

Chris Bennett, the Daily Reflector's resident artist, created this drawing to show how Seascape Synthetic Seaweed looks when working. The artificial reef producer is lodged into the ocean bed by putting sand into a fabric tube sewn onto the bottom of the floating fronds.

Working Together Towards Making A Better Place For Us All

We proudly applaud the efforts of our industries! The future of our community depends upon their growth and progress. We salute them for their contribution to America's tradition of free enterprise.

Murphy Relishes A 'First'

By Nancy Parent

Ben Murphy was happy to be involved in a television first. He plays Dr. Richard Carroll, a pathologist, in "The Cradle Will Fall," airing May 24 on CBS.

What makes this TV movie different from all other TV movies is that it incorporates the location and characters who inhabit the daytime soap opera world of "The Guiding Light" Monday through Fridays.

What drew Mr. Murphy to the property was his desire to do a love story. And according to the ruggedly handsome actor, that's just what this is — a man (who just happens to be a doctor) in love with a beautiful, independent career-woman who is giving him the old "I don't want a commitment right now" routine.

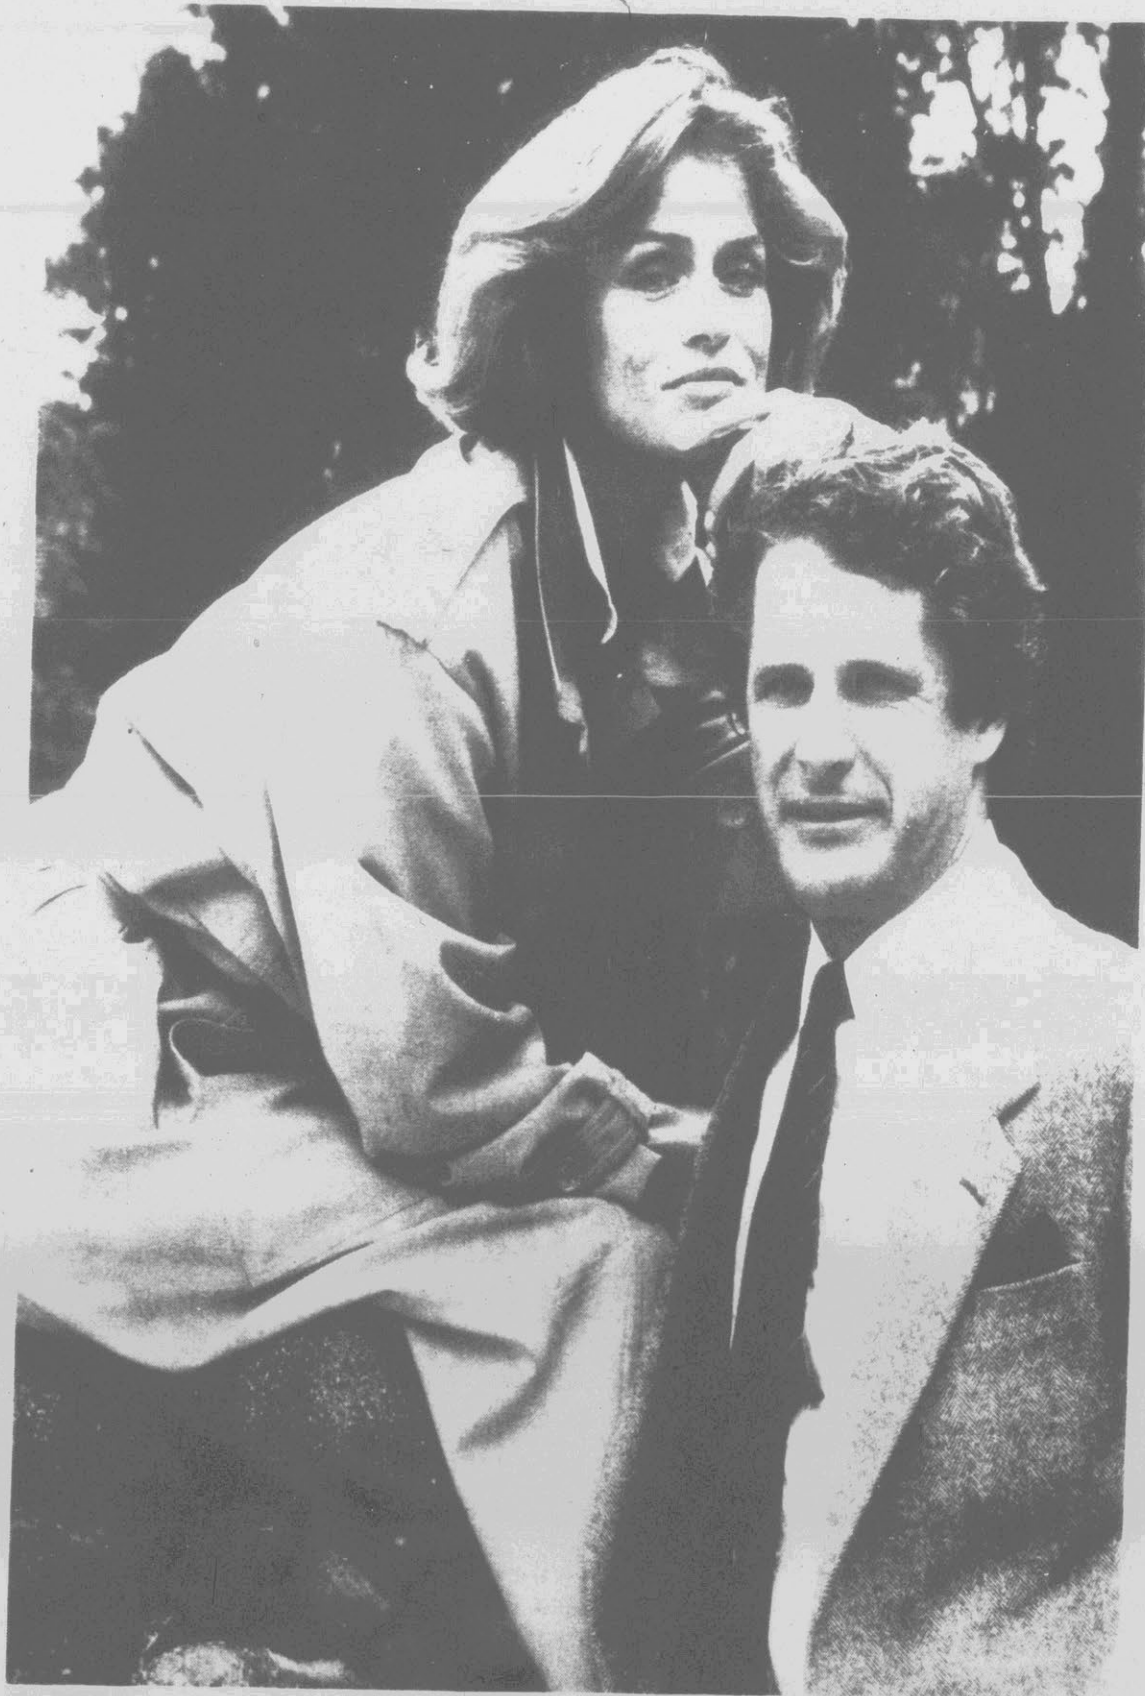

His current real life romantic status is single. There is no independent, modern woman he's chasing around town. "It's been a year of love, disappointment in love, and a stretch of celibacy," says Murphy. Somehow, it's hard to believe that will last very long.

When asked about plans for the future, Mr. Murphy said: "I'm on my way to Hong Kong to film a special two-hour episode of 'The Love Boat.' And then I'm taking a trip around the world."

He won't be leaving town until ABC makes a decision regarding his pilot film called "The Lottery." In "The Lottery" he plays an Irish sweepstakes representative who has the joyful job of delivering the booty. "The idea is sort of like 'The Millionaire,' with varying moods. I get to do a comical sequence, a straightforward one, and a giveaway."

Ben Murphy comes to TV by way of the theater. His very first role was a one-liner in "The Graduate," which starred Dustin Hoffman. From there, he went on to do "Alias Smith and Jones"; "The Chisholms"; "The Name of the Game"; "Griff"; "Gemini Man"; and most recently, the miniseries, "The Winds of War."

Chances are there will be lots to do when Ben Murphy returns home.

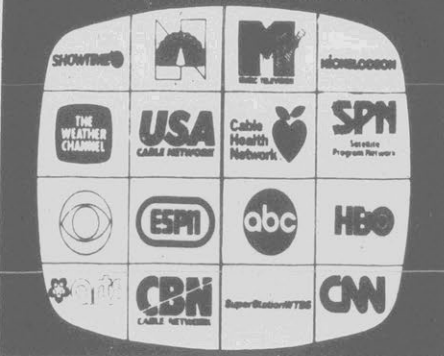

Lauren Hutton and Ben Murphy star in "The Cradle Will Fall: The Guiding Light Movie," to air on CBS Tuesday, May 24.

Handicaps don't hurt all Hollywood hopefuls

By Ruth Thompson

Having a handicap isn't necessarily a handicap in show business. Yet acting jobs are hard enough to find — even in the best of times there are never enough jobs to keep all the aspiring actors even decently fed — that it is a tribute to this special group of achievers have found fame in their profession.

Herve Villechaise has a height abnormality that stopped his growth just below four feet, but it would not be fair to write off his role as Tattoo on "Fantasy Island" as luck. His bright, sharp Gallic charm was a major ingredient in the show's initial popularity, and acting isn't his only talent. He's courting another kind of success as a painter.

There's more than luck, too, for multiple demands on the time and energies of Tom Sullivan. Blind from birth, nevertheless, he has served as television commentator, musician, and, more recently, actor. He's been a celebrity since he was in college, he was the inspiration for the play, "Butterflies Are Free," and his life story was the subject of the movie "If You Could See What I Hear."

Last month, Sullivan dropped in on ABC's "Good Morning America" to reminisce and kid around with Edward Albert, who starred in the movie version of "Butterflies." This month, NBC's daytime drama "Search for Tomorrow" accelerates Sullivan's acting career. Drawing on his own background as a singer and composer, he's been cast as Michael Kennedy, and he drops into the serial as a university guest lecturer who ny Deacon (Linda Gibboney), by writing a song for her.

There has to be a common denominator for why some folks transcend what floors others. It requires a strong will to be in show business, enough interest to make it in other fields, if necessary, and the charisma to magnetize producers. Norman Lear epitomized it when he saw comedian Geri Jewell, who has cerebral palsy, doing her act at a charity benefit. "I'm going to make you a star," Lear told her. Then he had a role written into "Facts of Life" for her.

Pretty teen-ager Suzy Gilstrap, wheelchair bound from an accident, had a similar effect on Ron Howard, the former star of "Happy Days," who's now a producer-director. He developed the television movie "Skyward" for her and later a sequel in the hope that it might spin into a series.

Flying Studio

Actor Don Stewart, long popular for his role as crusading attorney Mike Bauer on the daytime drama "Guiding Light," will be taking on an exciting project this summer. Along with his serial role, Stewart, who is a licensed pilot and owns a plane, will be flying a helicopter for a local New York radio station and reporting on beach conditions. Stewart also plans to conduct interviews with "Guiding Light" cast members from his "flying studio."

Her Favorite Role

Suzanne Pleshette, happily married to oilman Tommy Gallagher for the last 18 years, has some sound ideas about marriage. "My favorite role is that of Mrs. Thomas J. Gallagher III," she says. "That comes first, last and always. I play it everyday."

Busy Actress

Mariette Hartley, currently starring in "Goodnight, Beantown" on CBS, is probably better known for her Polaroid commercials with James Garner than anything else she has done. She has filmed about 300 of the popular commercials — (and is still turning them out) but she has also appeared in 200 TV shows, including "32 "Peyton Place" episodes.

Tony Honored

Tony Bennett received the Susie Humanitarian Award from the Eddie Cantor Charitable Foundation for his many contributions to charitable causes during a dinner held at the Beverly Hills Hilton Hotel. Tony was further honored and touched by his friends, Pearl Bailey, Rosemary Clooney, Jerry Vale, Andy Russell, Viki Carr, Tony Martin and Billy Daniels, who serenaded him during the evening. Proceeds from the dinner went to the John Wayne Cancer Clinic.

'Cradle' is a first in television history

By Peter Meade

Tune in CBS at 9 p.m. (ET) on Tuesday, May 24 and see television history being made. It's "The Cradle Will Fall: The Guiding Light Movie," the admits that "GL" fans might be disappointed that her role isn't larger.

If the movie, which is based on a novel by Mary Higgins Clark, does well in the ratings it will surely set a trend and may possibly be a step toward obliterating the labels of "daytime" and "nighttime" actors.

"Evening programs are given more emphasis," says Miss Roussel. "But daytime earns the money for the network. Six nighttime shows cost as much as a year on daytime."

There are also acting differences. There is, obviously, more time to develop the plot on daytime, so the story moves more subtly and slowly.

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

DEAR MICHELE: Would you please tell me a little about Joyce DeWitt, who plays on "Three's Company"? Where I could write her? MICHELLE L., TRINITY, N.C.

TO MICHELLE IN TRINITY: Born in Wheeling, West Virginia, on April 23, Joyce DeWitt is one of four children. Raised in Speedway, Indiana, Joyce developed a keen interest in studying old movies on television. As Joyce puts it, "Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn were terribly responsible for my becoming an actress. I worked extensively with a drama coach while in high school and performed in many amateur productions. Ms. DeWitt then enrolled at Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana, and graduated with a B.A. degree in theater and a teaching credential. Working the Indianapolis dinner theater circuit, Joyce directed, staged and starred in several plays and musical revues before heading to Los Angeles to enroll in the U.C.L.A. graduate school. Joyce is single and lives in the Southern California beach area. She is an "irreligious vegetarian," being totally unable to give up cheeseburgers. Off-camera her interests include dancing, singing and music. I suggest you write to her in care of the series, "Three's Company," ABC-TV, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, Ca., 90067.

DEAR MICHELE: Could you tell me who played Baretta? Did he also appear on "The Little Rascals" ("Our Gang")? A FAN, SPRING LAKE, N.C.

TO A FAN IN SPRING LAKE: How quickly they forget. Robert Blake starred as detective Tony Baretta in "Baretta." Born Michael James Vajencio Gubitosi, in Nutley, New Jersey, he was a regular in the "Our Gang" series for five years. Mickey later Americanized his name on the series to Bobby "Mickey" Blake, and is now known as Robert Blake. He also played Little Beaver in the Red Ryder movies.

DEAR MICHELE: Please settle a bet I have with my wife. On "The Dukes of Hazzard," I know Waylon Jennings sings the ballad, but who narrates the show? I say, Jerry Reed, and she says Waylon. D. BARNHILL, PARKTON, N.C.

TO D. BARNHILL IN PARKTON: Waylon Jennings not only sings the title tune, which he composed, he also narrates the adventures of the Duke clan for us.

DEAR MICHELE: Would you please tell me the names of the men who played Nicholas Nickleby and Smike in "Nicholas Nickleby"? I would also like to know who did the music for the play. LORINE, TEGRARIAN, DURHAM, N.C.

TO LORINE IN DURHAM: Roger Rees (Nicholas) and David Threlfall (Smike) re-created their stage roles in the TV adaptation of the Royal Shakespeare Company's award-winning production of Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby." The musical score is by Steven Oliver.

DEAR MICHELE: Could you please give me some information about Michael Knight, who plays on "Knight Rider"? Where can I write to him? JACQUELINE, MORTON, MONROE, N.C.

TO JACQUELINE IN MORTON: David Hasselhoff stars as Michael Knight on "Knight Rider." Previously, David played Snapper Foster on "The Young and the Restless" for over six years. The 6'4", Baltimore, Maryland, native recently became engaged to actress Catherine Hickland, who has appeared as a guest-star on "Knight Rider." Hasselhoff is currently readying a musical act tailored for Las Vegas. Write to him in care of the series "Knight Rider," NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Ca., 90027.

(FOR ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT TV SHOWS AND PERSONALITIES, WRITE TO "MICHELE," c/o The Greenville Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 30, Hopewell, Va. 23860.)

Change Of Pace

Rod Arrants has a busy schedule these days as he plays Travis Sentell on "Search for Tomorrow," then rushes up to Buffalo for his role as villain Raymond O'Brian in the murder-mystery movie "Vamping," now in production there. Despite the hectic commuting, Arrants says, laughing, "It's nice to play a joyful, vicious killer after being Travis for four-and-a-half years."

first time members of a daytime drama have reprised their roles on an evening dramatic special.

Elvera Roussel, who plays the upstanding Hope Spaulding on the daytime drama, reacts to the historic project with the same infectious enthusiasm she brings to everyday life. A member of the "GL" cast for the last four years, she never expected to stay so long, or have so much fun.

"I take it a year at a time," she explains. "But it's been join 'GL' and see America."

She has been traveling the country much of her "GL" tenure and has a well-marked map in her handbag to prove it. Radio and talk shows, local newspaper interviews, charity appearances, everywhere she goes the reception is gratifying.

"Soap fans are so intense," says Miss Roussel. "They think they know you and you are the best of friends and can chat for 20 minutes about the story lines."

Filming "Cradle" meant, aside from appearing on "GL" during the week, she had to shuttle down to Nashville for four weekends. CBS had originally planned on the two-hour drama featuring only the "GL" cast, but then it was decided to add James Farentino, Lauren Hutton and Ben Murphy to the six featured "GL" members to bolster the movie's appeal.

Miss Roussel is quite happy about playing Miss Hutton's best friend, although she

Manilow Honored

Barry Manilow was honored by the Guinness Book of World Records with the first ever "Guinness Broadway Gold Ticket Achievement Award" at Sardi's in New York, commemorating the performer's recent engagement at the Uns Theatre. He has established new all-time records for both the fastest sellout in Broadway history and a one-day box-office gross on Broadway.

First Feature

Martin Sheen has announced that the first feature project of his new production company will be a James Cagney biography.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Joe Morton's dual role: 'AW' actor and father

By Nancy M. Reichardt

Joe Morton plays the swinging, single doctor, Abel Marsh, on "Another World," while in real life the actor is a working, single father.

For the past two years Joe has had sole custody of his 12-year-old daughter, Hopi. Juggling child rearing and a career has changed his life considerably.

"I do the food shopping, the cooking, the laundry," says Joe. "I even pack her lunch for school. Before Hopi came to live with me, I was the ideal 'Christmas father,' making every visit a special gift-giving occasion. Now, I'm just a dad who's too old to dance like she does. Things are more real for us now."

Joe can't contain his enthusiasm when talking of Hopi's academic achievements and creative talents. "She wants to be an actress someday," he says. "I understandably have mixed emotions about that. How can I say no to her when I profess so much joy about what I do? If she isn't afraid to be herself, she'll have the courage to be anything she wants to be. Something I wish for all women." ...

Lurlene Harper was one of the nicest characters on the defunct soap "Texas," and now Tina Johnson, the petite actress who portrayed Lurlene, has returned as Rhonda Sue Huckaby on "Search for Tomorrow." Like Lurlene, Rhonda is an aspiring country-and-western singer. Unlike Lurlene, Rhonda won't have all that much vocal talent on "SFT." Tina, meanwhile, is loaded with vocal talent and has appeared frequently in New York City night spots.

Joe Morton

"Guiding Light" will be undergoing some casting changes in the next few months. Already absent from the show are Jennifer Cooke (Morgan Nelson); Mark Pinter (Mark Evans), who opted to go on to other acting challenges, and Leslie O'Hara (Rebecca Cartwright) who was "killed off" along with Mark. Taking a maternity leave is Denise Pence (Katie Parker). Denise, who had a 10-pound baby girl on April 27, will soon return to "GL." ...

Another "Texas" alumni, David Forsyth, who played T.J. Canfield, has joined the cast of "As the World Turns" as Gunnar Stenbeck's arch enemy, Burke Donovan. Look for some exciting plot twists when it's revealed that Burke has been raising Gunnar's illegitimate son, Dustin, better known as Dusty.

Familiar Face

When actress Beulah Garrick, who plays the mysterious housekeeper Mrs. Renfield on the daytime drama "Guiding Light," recently took a trip to Hawaii, she was delighted to find that her distinctive face opened a lot of doors. "I didn't think I'd be recognized on Maui," she said, "but it happened everywhere. First the guests at my hotel, then the staff — everywhere I went I had leis put around my neck, or I was given gardenias. By the time I left, my refrigerator at the hotel was filled with beautiful flowers."

Team Effort

Tom Sullivan, who recently joined the cast of "Search for Tomorrow," enjoys running, skiing with his family and playing golf in his leisure time. Though blind since birth, Sullivan consistently scores in the low 90s. Asked how, he said, "In the game of golf it's a team effort, so somebody lines up the shot for me. But the stroke is the repetition of an action, then there's the prayer that I hit the ball."

Upstaged By Robot

Fans of "Days of Our Lives" recently pledged money to bowl with some of their show favorites — Catherine Mary Stewart, John deLancie and Jim Reynolds — at a charity bowling tournament in Los Angeles. But the most popular cast member was the show's automated hero — Sico the robot.

Travel With Pay

Lori Singer, who plays Julie on "Fame," has been lucky enough to travel to one of her favorite spots in the world and be paid for it too.

"I love England, especially the double-decker buses, which I find a great way to see the sights," said Singer. "The English are so courteous. Most men there will always give up their seat to an elderly lady, which is something you see little of anywhere else."

Singer has been touring the United Kingdom and Israel with the "Fame" cast.

'Stars' Shooting

Edie Adams, Billy Dee Williams and Parker Stevenson have been signed to star in the pilot "Shooting Stars" for ABC-TV. This is an Aaron Spelling and Doug Cramer production.

Keith Fergus has demonstrated clearly that when his game is right, he can play with anyone and on any type of course. He generally was considered the finest young player on the PGA Tour without a victory until his big day in May 1981, when he won the prestigious Memorial Tournament on the demanding Muirfield Village course in Ohio.

"I wondered what it would feel like to win, and often wondered if it really was worth the effort," said Fergus, who at the time was 27 years old. "Now, I can tell you, it is worth it. I've played well enough to win the last couple of years."

Fergus, an All-American choice at the University of Houston for three years, had gone over four years without tasting victory, and "I've always believed winning is what sports is all about. You have to forget about the money, because if you win and play well, the money will be there.

Last year, facing the pressure of having to battle Raymond Floyd in a playoff at the rain-interrupted Atlanta Classic, Fergus won again on the first extra hole with a birdie. He posted six-under-par 66s in the first and third rounds.

Fergus is expected to return to the Atlanta (Ga.) Country Club, this week to defend his title. CBS will air the final round of the tournament on Sunday, May 22 (check local listings for exact time).

The Texan has played superbly this season, winning the third tournament of the year (Bob Hope Desert Classic) and already posting over $110,000 in winnings.

Fergus started to play golf at age 8. "My dad played a lot," he recalled, "and I would go out and caddy for him."

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

"Life's Most Embarrassing Moments" had some of its own during the taping of the recently televised comedy special. While host JOHN RITTER was describing one of the filmed segments there came a startled scream from a lady in the audience. Director WOODY FRASER called cut, and then restarted the segment.

Later in the taping, JOHN was in the middle of another segment when suddenly, from the audience — a man yelled, "What the heck...?"

JOHN walked the ramp into the audience to determine the cause of the commotion. Amidst laughter and buzz, JOHN learned the source of the trouble. High overhead in the rafters of the old Columbia Pictures studio, a pigeon had set up housekeeping. However, its home was not equipped with the latest plumbing — thus the startled and embarrassed outcries.

SUSAN SULLIVAN, who stars as Maggie Gioberti on "Falcon Crest," has discovered she is allergic to wine, which doesn't go well with the premise of "Falcon Crest" — but then they just make the wine — it doesn't mean she has to drink it.

JANEEN BEST, the 21-year-old daughter of JAMES BEST (ROSCOE), will be making her dramatic debut on an upcoming episode of "The Dukes of Hazzard."

JOHN WARNER, ELIZABETH TAYLOR'S ex, took a million dollars less to rid himself of the mansion they once shared in Washington. It seems, ELIZABETH, to get or forget, can cost a small fortune.

STEVE BOND, the latest star to join the cast of "General Hospital," was a child actor and has the distinction of being the last to play "boy" in the Tarzan feature films.

One of the most poignant moments in "Hollywood's Private Home Movies," the ABC special on Sunday evening (May 22), is a rare and touching film of ELVIS PRESLEY. To Elvis' haunting recording of "Memories," candid shots are shown of him, including his marriage to PRISCILLA and the times they shared on their honeymoon. The special will also include never-before-seen home movies of many of your favorite stars — try not to miss it!

The Suits of Summer

For Days That Are Somewhat Intemperate

There are times when our climate is considerably less (or more) than temperate, but there are ways to beat the heat in respectable clothing. Our ways are the suits of summer, carefully tailored from cotton blends, always along natural shoulder lines in a beautiful poplin fabric. No manufacturer does this any better than Corbin. Here they have a special touch and even if you are a problem fit, we can possibly work out the difficulty. We have coordinated a cutting of extra pants to switch with these suits if you do not happen to be a rack size.

JOHN RITTER

star of TV's Three's Company

When your show first went on the air, did you have any idea that it would be so successful?—T.A., Canton, Ohio

I was stunned. I thought it would be a funny series but never dreamed it would take off the way it did. I often wonder, though, why our show is up there, when others that I think are just as good, or even better, haven't made it. For a long time I thought we were popular just because we followed Laverne and Shirley. We've had criticism, of course, but it doesn't bother me if anyone pans the show now, because it has done so well.

LINDA EVANS

star of TV's Dynasty

What does it take to be beautiful?—M.R., Colorado Springs, Colo.

As far as I'm concerned, beauty is not skin deep. I believe that unless you feel good, you are not going to look good. So for my upcoming book on beauty [Linda Evans' Beauty and Exercise Book], I spent a great deal of time researching different emotions — what it means to be a woman, her emotional growth — to explore inner beauty as well as outer beauty. I've tried to make the book run the gamut: diet, health, appearance and coping with daily problems.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITORS

LOS ANGELES — Burt Reynolds doesn't horse around when it comes to friendship. He recently flew a group of Hollywood chums to Florida in his own plane. Then, at his ranch there, he showed off his new horses, all named for the visiting pals, including Loni Anderson, Ernest Borgnine, Charles Nelson Reilly and Esther Williams. . . . He may have turned down his Patton Oscar, but George C. Scott has agreed to do a sequel to that epic, according to producer Robert Halmi, who will produce the follow-up and who is currently Scott's (and Alli MacGraw's) boss on China Rose, an upcoming TV movie. . . . Richard Chamberlain, now the unquestioned King of the Miniseries (The Thorn Birds, his most recent, is in second place in the all-time ratings; Shogun in fourth), is quietly negotiating another mini for 1984. . . .

Burton: down the hatch.

Louis Gossett Jr. will not follow up his Oscar-winning work as the drill sergeant in An Officer and a Gentleman with a TV series of the same ilk. "You couldn't use the real dialogue," Gossett says. "I'm afraid it would become Sergeant Bilko." Instead, Gossett will play Anwar Sadat in a TV movie that ends with Sadat's assassination. . . . Seven years ago, Dustin Hoffman played journalist Carl Bernstein in All the President's Men. Now he may try it again. This because director Mike Nichols has bought the film rights to

George C. Scott

Lawyer" Robert Altman, heir apparent to longtime Washington power broker and Presidential counselor Clark Clifford. So far Altman and Carter have been dividing their dates between California — where he visited her at her Calabasas ranch and escorted her to the Super Bowl — and here, where she was spotted one Saturday morning at a delicatessen just a few blocks from his Heartburn, the quasi-autobiographical sizzler by Nora Ephron, Bernstein's ex-wife. The book covers much the same ground as the marriage, including a thinly veiled account of Bernstein's alleged affair with the wife of British Ambassador Peter Jay. Besides Hoffman as Bernstein, Nichols wants Victoria Tennant (The Winds of War) as Mrs. Jay and Michael York as the Ambassador.

—Robert Windeler

NEW YORK — When ballet star Rudolf Nureyev is here, he hangs his hat and slippers in his huge pad at The Dakota that he bought a few months ago from Yoko Ono. The place may be mammoth, but the furniture is sparse. The living room contains only a baby grand and a couch that once belonged to the late Maria Callas. The bedroom is said to feature one of the hundreds of beds on which Napoleon slept. . . . Says Richard Burton, now starring with his ex, Elizabeth Taylor, in Broadway's Private Lives, "It's hard to name an interesting man who doesn't drink." . . . If John Paul II wants to relax after a hard day's work, our sources say, he plays cards with pals at the Vatican — but just for fun. After all, who would be dumb enough to bet against the Pope? . . . Tennessee Williams completed his last known writing assignment before he died, the text for a coffee-table photo book about New York's homeless men and women. It will be out by Christmas. . . . Christina Onassis is losing her battle of the bulge. She left a Swiss fat farm heavier than when she checked in, and now tips the scales at 175. —Anita Summer

WASHINGTON — One of this city's most unlikely romances is between TV's former Wonder Woman, actress Lynda Carter, and "Wonder house. . . . You won't find them on the Top 40 charts yet, but Washington's newest musical group, Rita Lavelle and the Shredettes, is packing them in at political gatherings and night spots. No, the ousted E.P.A. Superfund administrator has not taken up a singing career to make ends meet. The combo is the brainchild of Public Interest Follies, a satirical revue comprised of bureaucrats and political staffers. Explains one Commerce Department employee about her moonlighting as one of the singing Shredettes: "It's a release from the low morale, tremendous cutbacks and no promotions in Government today. I don't have to be bitter; I have a creative outlet."

C THE RETURN OF PRINCESS LEIA CARRIE FISHER FINDS SOME SPACE

BY MARK GOODMAN

© Douglas Kirkland/Contact Press Images

The rebellion triumphed in the first round of the Star Wars; then the Empire struck back with a vengeance. Lest hearts be faint about the fate of the universe, however, the rebels will retaliate in maxi-force when Return of the Jedi opens this week at movie theaters across the country. It will feature all the heroes and villains of George Lucas's previous masterpieces of high-tech medievalism: James Earl Jones, asthmatically sinister as the voice of Darth Vader; Sir Alec Guinness, gently implacable as Obi-Wan Kenobi, the last of the old Jedi warriors; Mark Hamill as Luke Skywalker; and, of course, Harrison Ford as Han Solo, the rogue space jockey, playing Errol Flynn to the imperious, latter-day Olivia de Havilland, Princess Leia.

That would be Carrie Fisher, 26, luscious, petite (5 feet 1 inch, 95 pounds) daughter of Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds, a child of Hollywood who has parlayed the first two installments of Lucas's munificent galactic trilogy (over $880 million in gross receipts to date) into international stardom of her own. This, however, looks like the last return of the Jedi — at least for Carrie. "If we go any further," she says, "I'll wind up playing my own mother."

Still, says Fisher, "I thoroughly enjoy

"I thoroughly enjoy doing the Wars movies," says Fisher. "We've become a family."

doing the Wars movies. We've become something of a family. I especially like working with Harrison. He and I have the same sort of sparring relationship offscreen that you see in the films, so we work well together. He's good at rewriting dialogue and coming up with ideas for scenes."

That sort of actor's intrusion would have been considered nothing short of heresy when Carrie's mother began her career in the 1950 film The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady. Times have indeed changed. "Lucas encourages that," Fisher says. "There are some lines you can type but which you just can't say."

Carrie laughs and lights up a cigarette. "So several times we challenged George to say them. Like this one [Carrie assumes her stern Princess Leia tone]: 'It'll take a couple of minutes for the navi-computer to calculate the coordinates.'" She laughs again. "Just try to say 'calculates the coordinates' out loud. It's a good thing I studied Shakespeare or I never would have been able to do it. Auditioning for Star Wars was like going on a game show. Those of us who could get those sentences out of our mouths got the jobs."

Getting out sentences has never been a problem for Carrie Fisher, who inherited her mother's pungent tongue. Also, she's bright as a new penny. "I don't know where her intelligence comes from," says her proud papa, "because Debbie and I aren't intellectuals by a long shot."

Though Carrie has been flying high with the Star Wars trilogy, her recent sojourn to Broadway knocked her off her feet. In January she replaced another famous stage daughter, Amanda Plummer (daughter of Christopher Plummer and Tammy Grimes), in Agnes of God at about the same time Mom took over for Raquel Welch in Woman of the Year. For the trivia buff, this was not a family first; when Mom starred in Irene 10 years ago, Carrie was a teen-age hoofer in the chorus line. But this time the situation took the unhappiest of turns.

To begin with, Carrie had only 10 days to master the delicate role of an ingenuous young nun who gives birth to a child. The part called for plenty of screaming and hysterics. As her father recalls: "She panicked before she had to open. She called me and said, 'I can't learn all this in a week.' I just said, 'If you don't know it by then, you'll never know it.'" Carrie settled down and, with the tutelage of Mira Rostova, the brilliant coach who once taught Montgomery Clift his craft, carried on ably up against such seasoned fellow performers as Elizabeth Ashley and Geraldine Page. Yet virtually in tandem, Carrie came down with an attack of bronchial flu while Debbie collapsed from exhaustion on stage.

Woman finally closed even as Agnes struggled on — without Carrie Fisher as often as not. The bronchial flu persisted and was followed by hardening of the vocal cords and bleeding throat polyps. That is why, on a raw spring afternoon, Carrie is curled up on a sofa, amid the clutter in her Manhattan apartment, looking the very picture of good-natured misery. Her coffee table resembles an apothecary's counter, populated as it is with every prescriptive drug for throat ailments known to medical science.

"It looks like I'm some sort of truant," she glumly admits. "It seems the newspapers and TV here don't have anything better to report except that I'm sick, or not sick and in hiding or hanging out at Studio 54" (which in fact she does not do). "But my dad dragged me off to the doctor, who ordered me off the stage for a week to 10 days. Then he let me go back on and — snap! — I was back off again."

Later on this same day, Agnes's producer decided that Fisher was simply unable to continue with the show. Her condition was seriously damaging her health — and, of course, disappointing the customers.

"I understand how the producer feels," she says, "but I don't like it. And it really upsets me when it's reported that I've been dogging it on the show or that I've been fired. That's just not true. After all, I come from a background where you work even if you're sick."

Uncontestably, hers is a trouper's heritage: Eddie Fisher, the curly-haired '50's crooner, and the unsinkable Debbie Reynolds. Conceived while her parents were filming a movie aptly titled Bundle of Joy, Carrie has no memory of — and hence no traceable scars from — the scandal that blazed across the country when she was 2.

Debbie's bright musicals (Singin' in the Rain, Three Little Words, The Unsinkable Molly Brown) and Eddie's burnished melodies ("Oh, My Papa," "Games That Lovers Play") made them the ideal Hollywood couple — until Eddie ran off with family friend Elizabeth Taylor. All Carrie can say about that is, "I think Elizabeth's a fine actress. She's really done some wonderful things."

Even if the family flies apart, the genes remain. Blessed with gorgeous vocal cords (as are her half-sisters, Joely, 15, and Trisha Leigh, 14, by Eddie's marriage to singer Connie Stevens) as well as Debbie's curvaceous figure, Carrie was performing in Las Vegas lounges with her mom by the time she was 13. "Other kids washed cars to get their allowances," she Blessed with her mom's drive, Carrie has succeeded royally as Princess Leia (top) with Debbie and brother Todd; below: with Hamill in Jedi.

Olivier.

Then came Star Wars and the inevitable, indelible identification with Princess Leia. It cannot be entirely reassuring to realize that one is universally perceived as intergalactic royalty. Therefore, Fisher was grateful to get a crack at the plummy Plummer role in Agnes. "I liked the idea because it was different from anything I'd ever done," she says.

For all of her pregame jitters, Carrie was a lot calmer by opening night than Mom. "I was terribly nervous because Carrie had been rushed into the part," said Debbie. "She did just fine, but I had to go home and take a Valium." Debbie waited in the wings that night as Carrie went on, then stole out the backstage door while Papa Fisher watched from the audience. The gossip columns had a field day depicting the divorced parents pointedly avoiding each other, but Debbie scoffed at the notion: "I just didn't feel that Carrie's moment should be diminished by an old scandal or by Eddie Fisher or Debbie Reynolds."

Papa was predictably impressed. "She's a terrific actress, and she certainly didn't do Agnes for the money. I think it was important to her to prove that she could do something besides Princess Leia. Frankly, I thought she was better than the girl [Plummer] who got the Tony for the part. Of course," her father adds, "I'm completely unprejudiced."

Having to drop out of the show was bitter gall to Carrie. Still, there's no dearth of opportunities for her. She splits her time between New York and Hollywood. Between commitments she reads avidly and attends acting classes. And when her throat clears up and Return of the Jedi has blazed across the sky, Carrie hopes to try her hand at something else on Broadway — even a musical, if one comes along. However, she says, mindful of the hysterical scene that finished her in Agnes, "Whatever I do, I don't think I'll be doing any screaming for a while." FW

AN "OPEN SESAME" TO JAPANESE FLAVOR

By Marilyn Hansen

It's very apparent that things Japanese are very much in the news these days. From cars to high fashion to industry management, Japan is on a high roll. In cuisine, too, the taste of Japan is making favorable impressions on the American palate.

You don't necessarily have to have access to hard-to-find Japanese ingredients to make good-tasting authentic dishes, says Elizabeth Andoh, author of At Home with Japanese Cooking and many articles on the subject. For example, she continues, "sesame seeds the blades of your machine, store excess in a tightly sealed jar and rehydrate.

3. Toss the chopped spinach in the sesame seed dressing and serve chilled or at room temperature. Makes 10-14 servings

Note: Says Elizabeth: "This is a standard dish served throughout Japan. As soon as you taste it, you'll understand the reason for its wide popularity. Variations on this theme are possible with cooked-but-still-crisp beans, cooked-until-tender Brussels sprouts or zucchini."

COLD CHINESE-STYLE NOODLE SALAD

Miyako Ohno

3 to 4 portions (8 oz. per portion if fresh; 3 oz. if fresh-dried) cooked ramen (Chinese-style soup noodles) or chiku sobo (thin yellow noodles)

- 5 to 6 slices boiled ham
1 unpeeled cucumber, peeled
2 thin carrots, optional
2 to 3 braised shiitake (black Oriental mushrooms), optional, or 6 sliced mushrooms

Dressing:

- 2 to 3 tablespoons white sesame seeds
1½ tablespoons superfine sugar
4 tablespoons soy sauce
1½ tablespoons rice vinegar
¼ cup dashi or water
1 to 1½ tablespoons Oriental sesame oil
¼ cup finely minced scallions
2 to 3 tablespoons very finely minced fresh ginger

1. Cook the noodles according to package instructions and chill them for 5 minutes.
2. Divide and mound the noodles in 3 or 4 plates with flanges or shallow soup bowls. Slice the ham, cucumber, carrots and mushrooms into julienne strips. Alternate clusters of each, leaning them against the noodles tepee fashion.

3. Just before serving, make the dressing. Dry roast (toast) the sesame seeds and transfer them while still warm to a mortar and pestle or blender.

4. Pound or process the seeds to a crush and release their aroma; add the sugar, soy sauce, vinegar and dashi one at a time, blending well after each addition. Stir in the sesame oil, scallions and ginger. Pour dressing over the noodle salads and serve.

Makes 3-4 servings

*Or use 12 oz. narrow egg noodles.

Note: "The egg noodle came from China and has been adopted by the Japanese," Elizabeth explains. "This cold salad is part of the Japanese summer scene and is available in every Japanese restaurant. The basic idea is the noodles mounded on a plate with something cut-up on top—shredded chicken, ham, cold cooked shrimp, diced tofu, perhaps a little protein—and then the sesame dressing poured over it. On a steamy summer day, when you don't know what to eat, this salad will revive you."

From At Home with Japanese Cooking by Elizabeth Andoh, published by Alfred A. Knopf, New York, Copyright © 1975 and 1980 by Elizabeth Andoh.

SPINACH WITH SESAME SEED DRESSING

Miyako No Gomo Aé

- ¼ lb. fresh spinach
3 tablespoons white sesame seeds
2 tablespoons superfine sugar
2½ tablespoons soy sauce

1. Remove the stems before washing and patting dry the spinach leaves. Bring a large pot of salted water to a rolling boil and cook the spinach until it barely wilts. Drain and refresh the spinach under running cold water. Squeeze out excess moisture before chopping coarsely.

2. Dry roast (toast) the sesame seeds over a medium-high heat and transfer them to a mortar and pestle or blender while still warm. Crush the sesame seeds well before adding the sugar. Continue to grind the sesame and sugar until the mixture is quite pasty; then add the soy sauce and blend well. If using a blender or food processor, you may need to double or triple quantities in order to have enough volume to engage

Safe for People and Pets

This invention uses no harmful insecticides, no poisonous fumes, no noxious sprays, no chemicals. Generates very little electric power—only 3 volts—equal to a small "C" or "D" battery. Absolutely safe for kids, people, birds or pets. But 3 volts are more than enough to kill these tiny, disease-carrying, flying insects with phototropic night vision. This bug-killing lantern metes out sudden death to ravenous flies, pesky moths, stinging gnats, biting mosquitos, etc. It utilizes the very same features as bug killers selling to $100.00. Now, during this Early Summer Offer, you can get this jumbo electric bug killer for only $9.55, provided your order reaches us promptly.

You Get All This for 9.55

(1) Brand new powerful Electric Bug Killer Lantern in factory-sealed carton. (2) Non-rusting, aluminum hanging fixture. (3) 62 inch insulated electric cord. (4) all-metal, live-electric bug-killing grids. (5) Omni-Directional Blue Ray Transmitter that sends out hypnotic-like waves in a full 360 degree arc. Bugs are lured in from every direction to instant death. Everything fully assembled, ready to operate. Nothing else to buy. Plug into any outlet. It starts working at once to make this summer your most enjoyable ever.

Don't Judge by Price Alone!

$9.55 can't buy much any more. But, please don't let our cheap, early summer price confuse you. This high capacity electric bug killer is not another mediocre non-electric gadget. It's completely different from old-style mechanical insect killers. Despite our incredibly low price, it's a precision-made, all-electric product with high quality non-rusting metals and costly components. That's why it can take summertime humidity, rain and other outdoor conditions, without breaking down. It operates outdoors and indoors too.

Lures and Kills

Up to 56 Bugs a Second!

Phototropic bugs are vicious little beasties, pesky and downright dangerous to man. The best one is a dead one. This powerful Bug Killing Lantern does a mighty BIG job, first by pulling in these vicious little mites with its far-ranging, hypnotic-like Blue Ray Transmitter. Then it zaps 'em dead with one of its live electric grids. Each lantern has 56 grids—each grid capable of electrocuting at least one bug per second for a total of 56 each second! Can you beat that at any price?

Enjoy It All Summer without risk or obligation

Compare the Super Electric Bug Killing Lantern for quality, value, and bug killing capacity with any other bug killer—at any price. Enjoy it ALL SUMMER LONG at our risk. You must be thrilled and satisfied, otherwise return it any time before September 22, 1983 for refund of purchase price by return mail.

THIS IS A LIMITED OFFER

(1) None shipped outside U.S.A. (2) LIMIT: No more than five to one address. (3) This offer ends when available stocks become sold out. (4) Please don't wait until late summer. It may be too late. (5) To avoid disappointment, rush your order now. (6) Send your name and address with $9.55 for each lantern ordered. Add $2.45 each for heavy postage, special protective packing, and extra rush handling.

CAN FEAR OF YOURSELF SCARE YOU AWAY FROM THE TRUTH?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The longer you put off "getting to know yourself," the harder it is to attain self-awareness.
2. Sharing your thoughts and feelings with another person won't help you to become self-aware but only make you more vulnerable to criticism.
3. Most people are plagued by the question "Who am I?"
4. If you have a negative view of human nature, you're more likely to accept your own frailties.
5. People who are aware of their own abilities don't mind making mistakes.
6. A person who is self-aware tends not to follow societal norms in various relationships with others.
7. An individual who deceives himself and others about the kind of person he is increases his sense of insecurity.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies at the University of Florida showed that some individuals have been strangers to themselves for so long that they're afraid to "break the ice" because they're a little uneasy about what they might find. In fact, just as some husbands and wives can live together for years and still be strangers to each other, a person can live much of his life with very little self-awareness. Other studies also indicated that many people have no idea of their own potential and real strengths and weaknesses. "Finding oneself" can be especially difficult if a person has been playing a role most of his life, behaving in a way he felt was expected of him, feeling the way he was taught to feel, and so on.

2. False. Another University of Florida study suggested that one of the best ways to develop better insight into your own thoughts and emotions is to share them with another person. Putting your various concepts and ideas into words, communicating them and receiving feedback can help you to understand them and yourself.

3. False. A University of California study surveyed adults in a metropolitan community and found that few persons acknowledge any specific preoccupation with the question "Who am I really?" or embark on any quest for identity. However, most of the people questioned believe that self-discovery comes through working at a difficult task and through altruistic service to others.

4. False. A study conducted at the California School of Professional Psychology showed that a greater acceptance of oneself — of frailties as well as of virtues — goes hand-in-hand with a positive view of human nature, a lower level of death anxiety and a stronger orientation toward life in the present.

5. True. A Western Kentucky University study produced a list of characteristics describing persons who can accept themselves. They feel strong, self-sufficient, confident and have a low degree of internal self-conflict; they have a high degree of self-respect and respect for others. They have little fear of themselves or their desires and have a good sense of humor. They are able to postpone pleasure for greater fulfillment. Their feelings of adequacy are based on their strengths and their accomplishments, in spite of their failures and weaknesses. They are courageous and willing to make mistakes. They have a great desire to help the human race and are able to further their own interests while at the same time furthering the interests of society. They are open, flexible and humble.

6. False. A University of Texas study demonstrated that the person who is self-aware is more likely to act consistently and dependably in all types of situations, to be more honest and trustworthy in his dealings, to be law-abiding, positive in his attitudes and faithful to societal norms.

7. False. Psychological studies at the University of Texas and at Rice University (Texas) showed that a high degree of self-esteem is indicated by a small difference between the way you perceive yourself and how you would like to see yourself. The greater the difference, the lower your score in self-esteem. The researchers also found that deceiving oneself can produce a more orderly and more acceptable reflected self-image among acquaintances and can actually enhance feelings of security. But it also makes it more difficult for a person to remain on good terms with himself. FW you've had it with living in tight spaces and the daily wait for the family's only bathroom to be free. You could move, of course, but why not improve instead — at much less cost. This At Home section is brimming with remodeling ideas that you can use right now: tips for putting in that dream kitchen or extra room in the most economical way; guidelines on decorating your new space; and up-to-date information on planning, budgeting, finding the right contractor and obtaining financing. Whether you're planning to remodel your home soon or just saving up for it, have the right tips beforehand — and avoid costly mistakes.

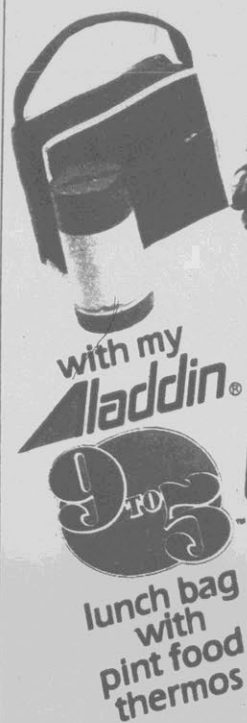

A dramatic "skylight" lends architectural interest to this modern kitchen, designed by Virginia Frankel. It features space opening wall coverings by Imperial from the Gear Country Graphics collection. Appliances by Whirlpool; flooring by Mannington Mills.

KITCHENS: DREAM A LITTLE DREAM WITH US

The spectacular kitchen settings you see on the preceding color page are the result of assignments given to two talented interior designers, Margot Gunther and Virginia Frankel. FAMILY WEEKLY asked them to develop two different kitchens for the same space.

In creating the 12-foot-by-16-foot country kitchen, designer Gunther played up the warmth of wood, soft colors,

What's more, the do-it-yourselfer can recreate the elements that make this traditional kitchen so successful. The post-and-beam arrangement, which gives structural support to the ceiling and adds to the country flavor of the room, was constructed of 4-inch-by-8-inch lengths of inexpensive crate wood (readily available at your local lumberyard) and finished with a natural stain. Wood framing, which is easy to put up, is featured around the window so that, like the beams, it seems to be an integral part of the structure of the room. And by finishing off the window in this way, it cleverly eliminates the need for dust-catching curtains. The old cabinets were spruced up with new birch doors and porcelain knobs, and the trim was painted in a rosy hue.

But what really sets this country kitchen apart from others like it are the three subtly patterned wall coverings which inspired the color scheme for the rest of the room. The traditional floral pattern, featured around the window area, blends peachy pink and soft green on a cream background; the homespun green tattersall check wall covering, used over the stove, blends with the moss green countertops, while a salmon-colored tiny floral pattern covers the storage peninsula in the foreground, which offers extra dining and working space. Coordinated fabrics, used to make the tieback cushions on the dining chairs and stools, pull the entire color scheme together.

Despite its airy, country ambiance, this kitchen is a model of up-to-date efficiency — equipped with countertop microwave oven, stainless-steel sink and modern appliances. The kitchen's strong country theme is not diminished at all by its mix with the modern. Completing the rustic theme are the handsome trestle table and chairs.

Just as the wood beams serve as an architectural anchor in the country kitchen, the dramatic focus in the clearly contemporary kitchen is the exciting angled "skylight" that sweeps up from countertop to ceiling. Designer Frankel offers this idea for kitchens with an unsightly view or no view at all or to cover a window that's too close to a neighbor's. But this do-it-yourself project does more than just insure privacy while still allowing the daylight in: at night it lights up the whole room with the fluorescent lighting that's installed behind it. Constructed with 2-inch-by-4-inch sheets of 1/8-inch-thick translucent plastic, the unit is framed in pine that's been painted. All materials are available at lumberyards and home-decorating centers.

The modern tempo of this kitchen is reinforced with the selection of an oversized, flowing grid-pattern wall covering in grays and caramel on a white background. A contrasting pattern of gray wall covering with white flecks is used to cover the ceiling and accent the skylight, making the room seem larger and more dramatic.

Old cabinets are given a new lease on life with sparkling French-blue paint and new porcelain knobs and handles. A pretty, white wire-frame system of tables, seats and shelves adds to the decor and practicality of the kitchen. Practical, too, are the gleaming appliances selected for their top quality, but in a medium price range.

This kitchen also has a touch of the past in its beautifully appointed bentwood chairs surrounding the Parson's table, and the rag rug, a veritable river of brilliant colors, which brings the whole design of the room together.

The key factor to remember in remodeling a kitchen, as we've illustrated, is coordination of design elements. Know your theme and let colors, textures and accessories all contribute to one harmonious whole. □

- | | | |
|--|---|---|
| Pastry: | Filling: | |
| 70 NILLA Wafers, finely rolled (about 2 1/2 cups crumbs) | 2 cups heavy cream | peaches, well drained and sliced in half lengthwise |
| 1/3 cup FLEISCHMANN'S Margarine, softened | 2 Tbsp granulated sugar | 1-2 Tbsp lemon juice |
| 1/2 cup cold water | 1/4 tsp almond extract | |
| | 3 large ripe peaches, peeled and sliced, or 1 (16 oz.) can sliced | |

1. Preheat oven to 375° F. Cut 3 (8-inch) waxed paper circles. Put on large cookie sheet. 2. Make Pastry: In medium bowl, blend NILLA Wafers crumbs and FLEISCHMANN'S Margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Gradually stir in water until dough is moist enough to hold together. 3. Divide dough into thirds. Press each third evenly onto 8-inch waxed paper circle. Bake 12-15 min. Cool 15 min., or until pastry rounds (on waxed paper) are firm enough to remove to wire rack. Cool completely. 4. Make Filling: In medium bowl, combine heavy cream, sugar and almond extract. Beat until stiff peaks form. Set aside. 5. Reserve 8 peach slices for garnish. If using fresh peaches, dip in lemon juice. Coarsely chop remaining peaches. Using rubber spatula, fold into whipped cream. 6. Remove waxed paper from bottom of pastry rounds. Place 1 pastry round on serving plate. Top with 1/3 whipped cream mixture. Repeat layers twice. Garnish with reserved peach slices. Refrigerate 4 to 6 hrs. Makes 8 servings.

Remodeling is cheaper in the long run than buying or building a new house, especially if you're happy to be living where you are. And the best part about remodeling is that it can be done in stages so it won't put a big dent in your budget. Here's a step-by-step plan for going about it.

Finding sources: Your first step is to gather ideas from home magazines, catalogues and building-product centers, as well as from your friends and neighbors' homes. Remodeling can mean updating a room, such as the kitchen or bathroom, making better use of your interior by dividing large rooms into smaller ones with partitions or walls or building an addition to the house.

Before you begin making changes, it's best to plan a powwow with family members. Let each write down his or her needs in one column and in another note how adequately the house is meeting those needs. By comparing notes, you can devise a master list of priorities.

Budgeting: If you find that your remodeling plans exceed what you can afford, consider these cost-saving options: You can have a contractor do only a certain portion of the work, then complete the rest yourself. For example, the contractor might do the rough, heavy, technical or skilled work while leaving the finishing touches — plastering, painting, applying wall covering, laying kitchen flooring — to you. Another way of modifying the work to fit the budget is to re-evaluate the materials to be used. This may mean putting in an asphalt roof instead of the more expensive cedar shingles, or installing carpeting at $12 a yard instead of at $35. You don't want to skimp on quality (which is one good reason to shop during store sales, when high-priced merchandise is usually marked down), but a little compromising could go a long way toward realizing your goals and saving money, too.

In any renovation, your first priority should be solving any structural, safety or functional problems the house could have. If your funds are low after this, you can still go ahead with renovation plans, but consider scheduling the work in stages.

To cover unexpected costs, experts recommend that a contingency figure of 15 percent of the construction cost be included in the budget as a safety factor.

Basic remodeling projects: When redoing a kitchen, save time and avoid the expense of new plumbing and rewiring by planning to locate new appliances in the same spot as those they're replacing. Also, consider adding an appliance that provides extra counter space at the same time. A dishwasher could have a cutting-board top or a ceramic tile surface for hot dishes and pots. If you need more hot water in the kitchen, think about adding a SYNOMETRICS...an Olympic Champion's Discovery!

Turn Belly Fat into a Rock-Hard Lean Stomach

in 7 short minutes a day with the miracle of SYNOMETRICS the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping away ugly embarrassing fat and flab to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean, trim, handsome body!

Introducing IKE BERGER Olympic Champion and truly one of the world's great athletes • Olympic Gold medal winner

"I'm over 50, yet in just 7 days SPEED SHAPER 'burned' off the fat and flab I've lived with for thirty years."

I thought my fat and flab was with me for life. SYNOMETRICS 'burned' it off in only 7 days.
HY HARRIS
New York, N.Y.

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS

You already know about the Isotonic and Isometric principle of body dynamics. Millions of people use one or the other in their daily exercises. One day I accidentally discovered that if I used BOTH methods together in one single exercise, I automatically speeded up the results tremendously and I reduced my daily exercise hour down to only 7 short minutes.

THE SCIENCE OF SYNOMETRICS

I later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM—meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now call my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is—a speed method to give you results in minutes. NOT hours. NOW build yourself a fantastic looking body with the incredible SYNOMETRICS, the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

IRON CLAD MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

In just a few days you must actually begin to see measurable real results... or your money back promptly and without any question.
• No diet needed if daily caloric intake does not add to present body weight.

counter-top water heater and surfacing it with a material to match the rest of the kitchen counters. Or look into a double-duty major appliance, such as a microwave-range combination. And before you decide to replace cabinets, investigate whether the old ones can be refinished, antiques or have laminate fronts added on — with new hardware. That will be a big savings.

Putting in an extra bathroom is often worth the cost in reduced family tension. What's more, it needn't be a complete bathroom. You can add a half-bath — with only a toilet and sink and perhaps a shower stall — which might be carved out of part of a bedroom or hallway. To cut costs again, locate the new addition next to the other plumbing lines, whether back-to-back with the fixtures on the other side of the wall, or over or under another bathroom, a kitchen sink or laundry facilities. If you put in a recessed ventilating fan that turns on automatically with the light, the new bathroom can do without a window. Installing plumbing is best left to a professional — the work must satisfy local building regulations.

If your remodeling requires replacing or adding windows, you can look at them in advance at your lumberyard or building supplier. You'll find a surprising variety of types and sizes in stock today (which is less expensive than custom-ordering), including casement and double-hung styles, as well as bay and bow windows. If you live where winters are severe, choose double- or triple-paned glass for the best insulation. Combination storm-and-screen systems avoid the seasonal nuisance of taking down one and putting up the other.

In general, renovation inside and outside your home should include a practical appraisal of the climate and weather conditions your house experiences. If you live in an extremely cold climate, you should plan to have a vestibule inside the entrance of your house to keep cold air from blowing into its interior. Walkways, patios and paving materials should be set with adequate drainage material to reduce the water retained beneath, which could freeze, then expand and buckle the surface.

In a hot, sunny area, you should consider trellises for shading patios and windows. A dark-colored or dark-roofed house can increase the inside temperature substantially. Landscaping should be explored as a means of providing shade for outdoor activities and the house itself.

Adding a room: When a family runs out of living space, one solution lies in adding on. One way of getting a major increase in space quickly and at minimal cost is by converting your garage into an extra room and putting up a simple carport for your automobile. But save the garage door after your renovation. You can use it in the future should you decide, budget permitting, to enclose the carport.

Another money-saving possibility is a ready-made addition. Large lumberyards and building suppliers often handle prefabricated garages or other small building units that could serve your needs. An extra master bedroom or dining room, however, requires building from the foundation up. Some homeowners who are handy save money by hiring a professional to lay the foundation, then take over from there.

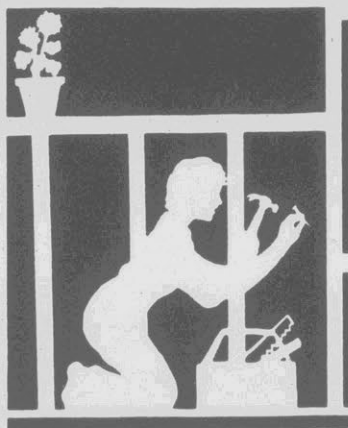

Finding a good contractor: Your best sources for finding a high-quality professional — who will be responsible for organizing the remodeling, getting permits, ordering materials and scheduling and supervising the work — are friends, relatives and neighbors. Check out the kinds of work the contractor does, asking for names of satisfied customers; then go to see them and the work that was done. You might also check with the Better Business Bureau to see if there were complaints against the contractor in question, as well as the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (N.A.R.I.) as to whether a contractor is a member bound by its code of ethics or, again, whether he or she has any record of complaints.

Once you've chosen a contractor, draw up an agreement that includes not only the job's specifications, but also a reasonable timetable for beginning and completing the renovation. There should be no verbal contracts.

Make sure the contractor has insurance coverage before work begins. Insist that he supply certificates of insurance for liability (to cover occupants of your house or neighbor's), property damage and workers' compensation (in case of injury to workers on the job). Once remodeling is done, you should adjust your homeowner's policy to reflect the home's added value and replacement cost. A good rule of thumb is to increase coverage on the dwelling by the cost of remodeling — or no less than 80 percent of the cost.

Financing: Need to take out a loan for your remodeling project? You have a number of choices. You can borrow the money against the value of your life-insurance policy or secure one of various bank loans: An F.H.A. Title 1 home-improvement loan is available if your income is low enough for you to qualify. You can borrow against the equity of your home by taking out a second mortgage, while keeping the first mortgage intact. By securing a passbook loan, you can borrow up to 95 percent of the money in your account, while still earning interest on the savings. A loan from a credit union, if you belong to one, can be a good source for remodeling that is not extensive. Though interest rates are usually low, there is a limit to the amount you can borrow.

Building codes and taxes: Most localities are covered by codes that govern what is and is not permitted in a renovation. Codes are enforced through permits that are required before you can do any construction, wiring or pipe fitting. Although simple redecorating of an interior does not require a permit, almost everything else in renovation does.

By securing the proper permits, you can well save yourself money and time. If, for example, you begin work without a building permit and it's discovered, your local municipality usually has the authority to make you stop work and get a permit or, worse, have you restore the house to its original condition. In the former case, that could mean being forced to live in a partially completed renovation for the four to six weeks usually required to obtain the permit. In the latter situation, you are responsible not only for the cost of the partially completed new work, but also for the expense of demolishing the work and repairing the damage done. Be wise and get all permits necessary.

You should also be aware of zoning regulations, which commonly specify how far your house must be from the side, front and rear boundaries of your property, known as "setbacks." Should your planned addition go beyond the setbacks specified by the local zoning code, you may apply for a "variance," which involves stating your case at a zoning-commission hearing.

Finally, when your renovation includes enlarging the home, it's more than likely that your real-estate taxes will go up. You may be able to find out in advance what they'll be by calling the tax assessor's office, stating the expected cost of the job. □

N.Y. residents add sales tax

Once you've decided to remodel, can you be sure that all improvements you make will automatically increase your home's value? More importantly, can you recover the costs by figuring them into the selling price should you eventually decide to put your house on the market?

For most home-improvement projects, the answer is yes, but there are

Fred Case of Case Design/Remodeling in Washington, D.C., explains that, generally, you can recapture 100 percent of your costs on added space, such as a new bedroom or bathroom; 80 to 100 percent if you modernize an existing room, such as a family room or kitchen; and about 50 percent if you make such additions as a patio or deck.

"If you're planning to remodel a kitchen, a good rule of thumb," Case says, "is to keep the remodeling cost to 10 percent of the estimated selling price of your house." While adding a second or third bathroom will recoup a 100-percent return, the return drops sharply with a fourth bathroom. The same with any bathroom elaborately outfitted in marble or sporting such amenities as brass-plated fixtures, a wall-hung toilet or heated towel bar, reports Case.

And if you add an extra bedroom to a two- or three-bedroom house, you'll recover all the remodeling money on the sale of your house, "but if you add a fifth bedroom, you're fast approaching overkill, the limit of space most people care to heat, air-condition or keep clean," says Case.

There are also highly specialized or personalized improvements that probably won't return much on your investment. Among these are a wine cellar, greenhouse, sauna, tennis court, pool (unless it's in a warm climate), exotic landscaping or an improvement reflecting someone's hobby, for instance, a photographic darkroom.

Remember, too, that essential improvements like upgrading insulation, putting in a new roof, painting the exterior, adding storm windows and doors and improving plumbing, wiring and heating systems probably won't add much to the value of your house. A prospective buyer usually expects a house to be basically kept up. Nevertheless, these improvements are the most important kind to make, because they will insure that the house maintains its fair market value and will help you get a fair price if you sell.

It's not only what renovations you make and what they cost that determine how much any given improvement will add to the resale value of your house. Other factors to be considered are the house itself and the neighborhood.

Homeowners often overimprove one area of the property or house while neglecting another, which may make the house less desirable when selling it. For instance, remodeling for security purposes by enclosing the yard and garden with an expensive brick wall, when actually the doors and windows need replacing and the house needs a new roof. It could mean investing a lot in an overly elaborate kitchen, when you really need an extra bathroom or expanded living room.

Also, in contemplating a remodeling project, "don't upgrade your house far beyond the level of your neighborhood, which is called overbuilding the neighborhood," Case advises. PW

THE SIXES

FAMILIES AND LOVE: INSEPARABLE

By Norman Lobsenz

Growing up in a divorced family does not change a child's idea of what a "family" is or should be. According to a study by family-life teachers Margaret Armbruster of Oklahoma State University and Judith Powell of the University of Wyoming, children of divorce still see the nonresident parent as a member of the family and have the same goals for their own future marriage and family as do youngsters who live with both parents.

At a meeting of the National Council on Family Relations, the two researchers reported that after years of separation or infrequent contact with fathers, youngsters described their ideas and feelings about the men in the same terms as children in two-parent families. "A father," one child said, "is really loving, and you want to be like him."

Another child said: "A family is your best friends in the whole wide world.... A family is love."

DOES LIVING TOGETHER GROOM US FOR MARRIAGE?

The question has been raised whether couples who live together before marrying get along better in the honeymoon year than couples who have a more traditional courtship. Some experts say that the traditional pattern makes for a more difficult first year of marriage, since bride and groom have no experience of cohabitation. But a study by sociologist Roy Watson shows that noncohabiting couples have a much higher level of marital adjustment.

While live-togethers have a longer time to get to know one another, Watson says, the act of becoming formally married can have quite different meanings for the two groups. To couples who wed after a traditional courtship, "marriage is a liberating ritual through which new possibilities... are celebrated." To cohabiting couples, "marriage emphasizes not freedom, but new responsibilities."

PARTNERS IN SICKNESS AND IN HEALTH

The most important factor in the well-being of an older person seems to be the health of his or her spouse, concludes Dr. Meredith Minkler, a University of California professor of public health, from a survey of 1,500 men and women.

Says Minkler: "Nearly a quarter of those who said they were in fair or poor health reported that their mates had been ill in the last six months. By contrast, 90 percent of those in good health were married to someone who had not been ill in the last six months."

As to why this should be so, Minkler says, "My guess is that in most older marriages, most of the care of a sick spouse is provided by his or her mate, so one partner's illness places a great deal of stress on the other." FW

"BALDNESS CONQUERED"

Medical Breakthrough Successful In More Than 95% Of All Cases!

by Michael J. Rose, noted Researcher & Hair Therapist

Dear Friend,

It was with great pleasure that I answered an invitation to bring you news of a remarkable breakthrough for baldness:

A triumph of what I believe can be called nothing less than surgical skill and daring imagination, combined in a program that has been tested on over 1000 fortunate men who needed our help... and could afford the enormous cost of attending our private clinic. In fact, since I was involved in its development from the very beginning, I am pleased to announce that now...

• IF YOU ARE BALD • IF YOU ARE CONCERNED ABOUT EXCESSIVE PREMATURE HAIR LOSS

OUR HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAM OFFERS YOU A WAY TO ACTUALLY REVERSE THE SHAME AND SUFFERING OF BALDNESS FOREVER!

Even if you are completely bald... even if you haven't had a strand of hair on your scalp in 20 years... with our HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAM you can look strong, virile, and desirable again... with hair that commands respect, the kind of hair women love to run their fingers through.

15 YEARS OF HAIR RESEARCH AND OVER $10 MILLION SPENT IN SEARCH OF AN ANSWER TO BALDNESS

My HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION research began more than 15 years ago in England where I worked with some of the most respected hair therapists and practitioners in all of Europe. To be fair, some people don't consider baldness a major problem, but you wouldn't know it from talking to most men who are bald, going bald, or worried about losing their hair. To these men loss of hair means untimely aging, endless embarrassment, problems with confidence, and ultimately, depression... which is why no less than $10 MILLION has been invested worldwide by many independent companies and researchers in the BATTLE AGAINST BALDNESS. On both sides of the Atlantic, doctors, chemists, and biologists joined the work...

THEN CAME THE BREAKTHROUGH: OVER 95% SUCCESS IN SUBJECTS WITH MALE PATTERN BALDNESS!

Thanks to the tireless efforts of dedicated researchers and the selfless courage of early test subjects—the mystery of HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION was unraveled. At long last we had found the power to stop the tragedy of baldness in its tracks and help almost any man to a bright new beginning—from 25-year-olds with slightly receding hairlines to middle-aged men with just a horseshoe of hair left on their scalps. With years of development and testing... our research was proven out. And among men who have visited our clinic in New York City—even those with so-called "irreversible" male pattern baldness—we have achieved a consistent success rate of over 95%.

THE HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION DISCOVERY
A PATENTED MEDICAL COMPOUND

With positive results in over 1000 cases, our key HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION discovery is a medical compound, developed and patented by a major unaffiliated drug company. The miracle is that its use in the HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION process was entirely unforeseen until our testing began. It works by clinically preparing the scalp (without chemical irritants or dangerous hormones) to provide an environment where HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION can occur... safely and naturally. Though as one client puts it, the HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAM is

Shows results of hair supplimentation program

"simplicity itself". The biological mechanisms involved are too complex to be adequately explained in this limited space. I have therefore authorized a detailed, step-by-step, photo-illustrated report, titled BALDNESS CONQUERED, on the HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAM and the research effort for AN ANSWER TO THE PROBLEM OF BALDNESS, now available to those who wish to see the POSITIVE PROOF in the privacy and comfort of their homes... without the expense of traveling to New York for a private consultation.

everything TO GROW NEW HAIR... every pill and lotion on the market. Many were completely bald. Others found that day by day, strand by strand they were losing their hair... and nothing seemed to help. The FDA says there is no known cure for baldness. Yet today, almost every single one of these men enjoys A FULL HEAD OF HAIR. They include:

FAMOUS MOVIE STARS • POLITICIANS • DOCTORS
• LAWYERS • YOUNG MEN • OLD MEN
• MEN FROM EVERY WALK OF LIFE

We can't name names in print (though you will receive signed and notarized proof of a list of famous satisfied customers with your order), but we can tell you that you would recognize their names instantly, know their faces from newspapers and T.V. and be astounded at how great they look... thanks to the miracle of HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION. And these are men who came to us full of despair, desperate for A BALDNESS SOLUTION.

NEW! FOLLICIN-NH3 PREPARATION FOR HAIR

FOLLICIN-NH3 Preparation For Hair is a scalp invigorator specially formulated to provide scientific support for continued normal hair growth, hair nourishment, and hair maintenance. Applied directly to the scalp—where it is needed most—FOLLICIN-NH3's "function specific" micro-nutrient group works quickly to promote essential biological activity... while the FOLLICIN-NH3 regimen helps insure that hair follicles are properly serviced by the microscopic capillaries that carry the chemical building blocks necessary for BEAUTIFUL HAIR. FOLLICIN-NH3: Quite simply, it's got what you need to insure a beautiful, HEALTHY HEAD OF HAIR.

NOW AVAILABLE TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC! Through a special arrangement with a national maker of Hair Therapy products, we are now making the SECRETS OF HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION available to the general public. This marks the very first time we have agreed to reveal the program successfully tested on over 1000 bald and balding men at our exclusive clinic. Because we firmly believe that knowledge of THE ULTIMATE ANSWER TO BALDNESS should not be limited to the privileged few.

WHO HAS USED HAIR SUPPLEMENTATION?

Men of all ages, but mostly affluent ones since the program was designed to be administered by highly paid doctors and hair therapists... with treatments costing $2,000, $3,000, $4,000 and more. But what all these men had in common was that they had tried

If they try to get away with less, they'll be in for a disappointment.

Q: Will prices come down if consumers wait a year?

A: Not really. There is a lot of competition between manufacturers, especially at the retail level, so it pays to do some comparison shopping. It's not worth waiting a year, however, because models improve and become more specialized quickly. My philosophy is buy now, but buy only what you need. That means don't spend money on fancy possibilities. Just buy a simple machine that meets your needs.

Q: What's the most common mistake people make in buying personal computers?

A: Not knowing where to start. A family should figure out what they could use the machine for right now: Is someone learning a foreign language, selling real estate or running a sideline business? A computer can handle things like that and make a difference. All of the specific functions a computer can perform are called software. Software is like the records you put on a record player, except with computers, not all machines play the same records. That is, not all computers can handle the same software. It's absolutely critical to start with your software needs and then — and only then — think about which computer can run them.

Unfortunately, consumers are often pushed into looking at the machines first and what programs they offer later. It should be the other way around.

Q: How can consumers be sure to make the right decision?

A: I recommend that anyone interested in buying a computer sign up for the courses offered at many high schools and community centers. They give you a familiarity with the field, i.e., the producers of machines and the types of programs available. They will also give you a chance to practice in the right atmosphere. Finally, they bring you into contact with other people, and that's really the only way to learn about computers.

Q: Any final words of advice?

A: Yes. At the risk of getting too technical, once you have picked a couple of software packages that solve your particular problems, you should find out what "operating system" they run on. I recommend an operating system that can be used on a variety of machines, rather than the proprietary kind designed by one particular manufacturer for only his machine. FW

MONEY

DO YOU REALLY NEED A COMPUTER?

By Merrie Spaeth

Personal computers are being advertised these days as language teachers, financial planners, homework helpers and aids to homemakers. Does the average family really need a computer? For guidance, FAMILY WEEKLY spoke to Nancy French, former managing editor of Computer World and now a computer consultant.

Q: Ms. French, what's the first step to saving money on a personal computer?

A: Don't buy one. That is, don't buy one unless you truly understand what it can do and what it can't do.

Q: Does that mean that personal computers are not a good idea for most families?

A: Yes and no. Forget the hoopla. Most families should look at computers as learning tools for children. Remember, our children will have to take computers to college the way we took typewriters. They will have to incorporate computers into their workplaces. So, yes, personal computers are for families with children.

Merrie Spaeth is a freelance writer with a master's degree in business administration

Q: You said yes and no.

A: Personal computers are being ballyhooed as handling everything from finances to personal records. The truth is that your accountant can get you more tax deductions; your stockbroker is your best source of stock investment advice; and it's faster to pull your favorite recipe book off the shelf to find a recipe than to rely on ones entered on a computer diskette.

Q: What should a family expect to spend on a computer?

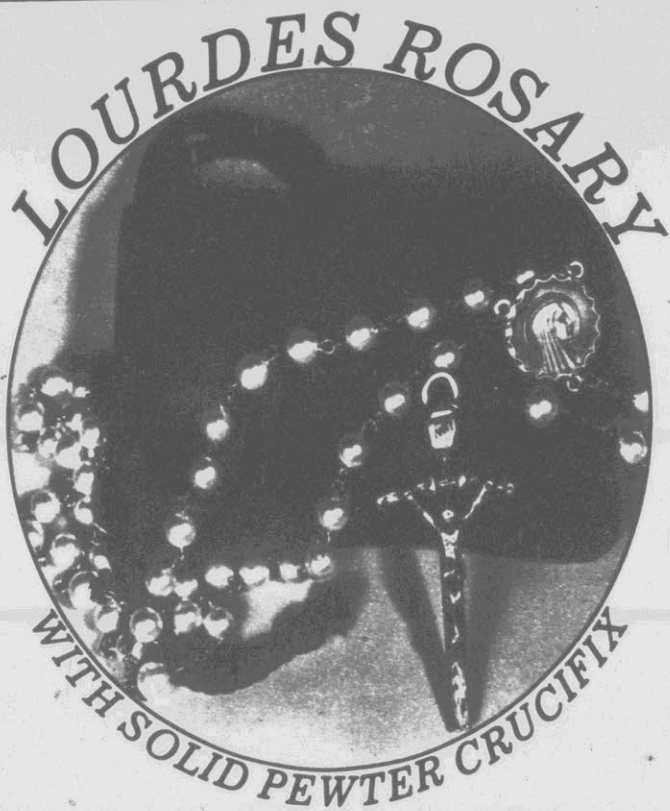

A: It depends on what they need. The prices range from as low as $49 to many thousands of dollars. My husband and I just spent about $300 for a simple model — primarily for our children. The package includes some basic educational programming, as well as a capacity to design computer programs. And, of course, it plays those video-

Touching down with Dolores, his wife of 49 years: home only 41 days in 1982.

By Bob Hope

On May 29, 1903, Leslie Townes Hope was born in Eltham, England. Since crossing the Atlantic, Leslie, more often referred to as Bob, has become America's favorite comedian — in war and peace. NBC will help celebrate Hope's 80th birthday with a three-hour special to air Monday, May 23. Helping blow out the candles will be President and Mrs. Reagan, Frank Sinatra, George Burns, Mikhail Baryshnikov, Tom Selleck, Brooke Shields, Lucille Ball, Loretta Lynn and Kermit the Frog. Here, Hope reflects on his life and times and says, "Thanks for the memories."

Because I've been on the road for much of the last 40 years, I haven't really been aware of that much time passing, and it hardly seems possible that I am about to turn 80. It is true that we have a group that meets out here at Lakeside Golf Club on Saturday nights: George Burns, Lawrence Welk, myself and a couple of other fellows. We have a great time holding hands and trying to contact the living.

It is only in the last few months that I've really learned how to relax. This is mainly because a few months ago I had a hemorrhage in my right eye that forced me off the road for a while. It also temporarily eliminated my reading ability, since I've had four operations on my left eye in the past 16 years and have lost most of the sight in that eye.

I've rested more recently than I had in 30 years — all on doctors' orders. It's come to the point now where the doctors just say, "No, no, no." They wouldn't let me go to Beirut for Christmas, and I offered to take one of them with me and to teach him how to dance. He almost fell for that, until he took another look at my X-rays.

This period of relaxation has given me time to reflect — and to realize that indeed eight decades have gone by rather quickly. Somebody once told me that if I had my life to live over again, I wouldn't have the time to do it, and I think he was right. Since coming to Hollywood for good in 1937, I've made 55 feature films, done some 1,200 radio programs and over 300 TV specials for NBC, besides the Christmas shows for G.I.'s abroad and thousands of personal appearances here and overseas. Even in recent years, I averaged 200 days a year actually working — not including travel time, rehearsals, interviews and talk shows. You can see why I only spent 41 days last year at our big, new home in Palm Springs, and why my wife, Dolores, has stayed close by me since the onset of the eye problem so she can watch me and say, "Down, boy."

People always ask me about all the Presidents I've worked and played with. It's been nine altogether, beginning with F.D.R. The memories, oh, the memories. So many come quickly to mind. When I first played golf with John Kennedy, he bet only a dollar. I asked, "How come you only play for a dollar?" He said, "I just loaned Bolivia millions. When I play golf, it's for a dollar, a dollar, a dollar."

Then there was L.B.J. He loved to drive by himself in Texas at 80 miles an hour. He told me a cop once stopped him and started to write a ticket. Johnson cranked down the window and the cop said, "Oh, my God." Answered L.B.J., "You'd better believe it."

WANT TO GET SLIM WITHOUT DIETING?

AMAZING NEW PILL CAN GET YOU SLENDER IN 45 DAYS OR DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Have you ever wished you could just press a button and become thin? I mean really sleek and slender — without a lot of boring, strenuous, grueling exercise — and with NO giving up all the foods you really love, NO rigid diet, NO hunger pangs, NO leaving the table still craving a bit more.

Well, first off, let me warn you: What I'm about to say you'll find hard to believe — very hard. But let me also assure you — it's all true. And to prove it to you, I'm going to make you an offer you'd be crazy to refuse — because if I'm wrong or I'm exaggerating, you'll take out like a bandit. But if I'm right — and believe me I AM — you can change your whole life forever by becoming as slim as you want — no matter HOW overweight you are today. And I don't care if you flunked out of Pritikin, were rejected by Jack LaLanne, couldn't stand Cambridge, are sick of Scarsdale and are generally fed up to here with diet pills, starch blockers, plans and promises that do nothing but raise your hopes and, in the end, leave you flabby as ever — your hopes dashed, the promises broken.

Does it seem like you've tried every weight loss program, every wonder drug — and quite a few ridiculous, maybe even dangerous, diets known to man? I know folks who have. One lady swore she'd become the world's most sensuous grapefruit.

Between counting calories and counting sit-ups did you wind up exhausted, frustrated — and still fat? And every time you started some weird new fad diet — or taking some new supposedly "safe" drug — you worried so much about your health that you soon gave up the routine?

Well now you can change all that with the most amazing new weapon in the battle of the waistline in our lifetime.

NOT A STARCH BLOCKER NOT A DRUG

This revolutionary dietary supplement — an extract of the rare vegetable Konjac root, called Glucomannan in scientific parlance — consists of 100% natural ingredients developed in Japan and just now being introduced in the Western World. It actually combines the best of ancient Eastern dietary knowledge with the most modern scientific discoveries to produce a safe, simple, yet unbelievably powerful weight loss agent.

Now I'm not knocking sensible eating habits or good nutrition, of course, but this incredible product allows you to eat the foods you love — not just protein or just carbohydrates — but all the foods you enjoy — and still shed pounds and inches so fast you'll think it's magic. That's why I say, even if you cheat a bit on what's "good for you" — the fat just seems to keep "melting away."

LOSE WEIGHT WITHOUT DIETING WITHOUT A LOT OF EXERCISE

Really — this remarkable product creates results so fantastic, so phenomenal, so truly unbelievable — that words fail to fully describe its benefits.

Imagine yourself 20, 30, 40, 60 pounds lighter — or more. Imagine a sleek, slender, sensuous you slipping into those designer jeans you see on TV.

This ISN'T just a dream. Please believe me — you CAN do it. Easily. Without strict dieting, without depriving yourself of the foods you like, without feeling hungry all the time. Nor do you have to join any exercise clubs — or start some brutal calisthenics course.

Look — I could rave on and on. I'm so excited about this astonishing innovation that I could talk all day about it. But that wouldn't get YOU any thinner — or into new Calvin's any quicker.

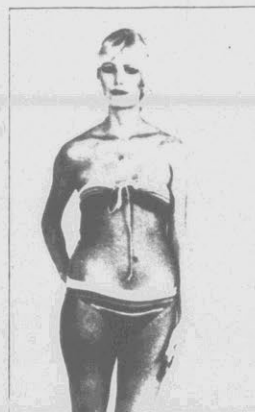

So here's what I'll do. Just to get you to give this amazing discovery a try —

Try this extraordinary new concept as directed for 45 days. If you aren't absolutely thrilled and delighted with your loss of weight AND INCHES — simply let me know and I'll send you double your money back. Is that fair?

Try asking Jack LaLanne, or Cambridge, or the Beverly Hills Diet People — or Scarsdale, etc. — for that kind of assurance. Not one of them will do it. I will, because I'm absolutely sure this amazing new product will work for you.

AFTER

On the left is Brenda Ramsey as of October 21, 1982. On the right you see Brenda twelve days later, on November 2, 1982, after having used Elizabeth Whitney's incredible new diet pill for only eleven days. You be the judge!

NO NONSENSE GUARANTEE — DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK

And this iron-clad guarantee is the best way I know to prove my sincerity.
So if you're serious about wanting to lose weight and KEEP IT OFF, slip into those sexy jeans and stay slim and sensuous from now on — please don't delay. You CAN'T lose. Either you get a glamorous, slender new you — or you get double your money back.

CAUTION: Because this is a truly effective weight loss plan, you should first consult your physician to make sure such a program is appropriate for you. Some people let themselves get too thin, and that isn't always a good idea either.

Cucumber and Beauty

by ANA MAHER

Every woman, at some time in her life, faces the spectre of an aging skin. Most women never solve the problem, and finally become resigned. A fortunate few find the answer and are rewarded with a complexion that remains fresh and youthful all their lives.

Twelve years ago, I had this skin problem. Nothing serious, but when I took my mirror over to a bright light, I could detect evidence of dryness and tell-tale signs of advancing years. And I didn't like it. I knew that these were danger signals that warned of an aging skin.

I was also very bewildered. I had always taken the best care of my skin. And no matter what I did, my complexion showed no improvement. Finally I became resigned. After all, everybody gets older and most of us show our age.

Then one day I had a visit from an elderly widowed neighbor. This charming lady was about seventy, but she had the most beautiful, moist, youthful skin. I remarked about it and mentioned my own skin problem.

She told me she used a marvelous cream which had been formulated by her late husband, a physician, and that she made it herself. "Try it," she said, and then she left and returned with a jar of this cream.

So I tried using my neighbor's cream.

In only three weeks, I began to see a marked improvement. My skin was fresher, clearer, smoother. After two months, my former dry, dull skin was revitalized. My skin now had a youthful, almost translucent quality. I was thrilled with my neighbor's formula.

For six years, this kind lady kept me supplied with this cream. And I want to tell you that my skin was more vital and younger looking than it had been when I first started to use it, six years before.

Then my neighbor died suddenly—and with her went that wonderful cream and its secret ingredients. I was saddened by the loss of a good friend—and dejected by the loss of a miracle cream. Her family told me that her personal papers revealed no formulas of any kind. I was desperate. But I did have three jars left from the last batch she had made.

So I took the cream to one of the best known analytical cosmetic chemists. The cost of the analysis was enormous, but I got what I wanted. I had the wonder cream formula.

It had a base of pure cucumber juice, two super-moisturizers, three natural lubricants, and a special component to keep the cucumber juice fresh. My chemist told me that the formula consisted of only safe, pure ingredients—no hormones, estrogens or steroids.

I made a batch of cream for myself, following the chemist's instructions. Then my friends and relatives began using it. And in every case, the results were absolutely astounding.

Soon friends began insisting that the cream should be made known and available to all women, since the problem of aging skin is universal. So my cream was put on the market six years ago, with the financial help of an uncle. It is called Cucumbre Frost.

The same wonderful results experienced by me, my friends and relatives were repeated time and time again by women all over the country. I have in my file hundreds of letters from grateful women telling of the remarkable results obtained with Cucumbre Frost.

Treatment is not a complicated ritual. I don't have time for that and the chances are you don't, either. You apply Cucumbre Frost at bedtime. Leave it on all night. It feeds, protects and nourishes your skin while you sleep.

I know what Cucumbre Frost can do for you. Therefore, I offer you this UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Try it. See for yourself in your own mirror how, after a few treatments, Cucumbre Frost helps revitalize dull, dry, aging skin. How, when used regularly, Cucumbre Frost helps facial skin to regain lost smoothness, moistness and freshness. Many women wrote me of astonishing results after only two weeks. Some take longer. But I say this to you: If, for any reason, you are not delighted with Cucumbre Frost—return the unused portion to me for a complete refund. No questions asked.

You have the opportunity to have a vital, youthful, lovely skin—at no risk. Cucumbre Frost can be purchased only by ordering it directly from me. Simply fill out the coupon and mail today.

On the road again: Hope, Dorothy Lamour, Bing Crosby starred in seven road movies.

say, I've had a few, but nothing major. With all that traveling, I've tried not to neglect Dolores and our four kids. Each one of the kids has worked on the trips in some capacity, as an assistant director or handling the travel arrangements. Only Linda, my oldest daughter, is still in the business. She's a producer and lives right next door to us in Toluca Lake, Calif., with our 14-year-old grandson. My other daughter, Nora, is a housewife in San Francisco; my son Tony is a lawyer in Washington; and my other son, Kelly, teaches school in Piedmont, Calif. I didn't push them into or discourage them from the business. I let them go do what they wanted.

I do regret that I missed a few investment opportunities along the way. In 1937 I had a chance to buy the land in Palm Springs where El Dorado Country Club is now located, but at $1.1 million it seemed too costly. Today it's worth $500 million—half a billion!

Jack Benny's line about me was that I had so much money I referred to J. Paul Getty as "well off." But don't believe all those stories about my money. Time and Forbes magazines took my properties and pumped up the prices 10 times so they could justify a figure of $280 million for my total wealth. Others have picked it up, and even though I keep denying it, it sticks to me. If I'd had that kind of money, I wouldn't have gone to Vietnam—I'd have sent for it. Bing Crosby and I each made $3 million on an oil deal in West Texas back in the 1940's, and I invested mine in land in the San Fernando Valley—I just picked up whatever was available—but that's all I have.

Speaking of Bing, I haven't read the new book by his son Gary, but the things I've seen quoted from it are absolutely incorrect. Our families stayed together in England and we were always playing around. Those kids always seemed happy within the family. My experience with Bing was that he was a loner in a lot of ways, but a great friend and very loyal. He kept his friends no matter who they were and did a lot of quiet charity. People say things if they can make a dollar, but it's usually after you're dead.

Dollars aren't what keep me working; my business is fun. When you're on stage, you're the boss. If you get some new laughs, you feel happy about it, just like anybody who accomplishes anything. But laughter is more: It's a therapy. I always tell the audience it's a therapy for them, for me and for my agent.

I do a lot of college appearances these days, and while humor in my lifetime has become more sophisticated, I still couldn't possibly do an act with four-letter words. On campuses I do jokes about dope and cocaine that they won't let me do on television, but while I'm doing the jokes, I'm really screaming how bad it is. Anyway, I always say I can't understand dope because when I was a kid it was daring to take a Sen-Sen.

Even if I stopped performing, I would produce or write; in fact, I'm looking forward to that, although I have no timetable. Or I may turn golf pro. Now that I'm practicing again, I want to shoot my age this year. I think I can do it, because I had an 82 the other day. FW

The Write Stuff: What Your P's and Q's Reveal About You

It's not always what you write, but also the way you write it that can say volumes about your personality and character.

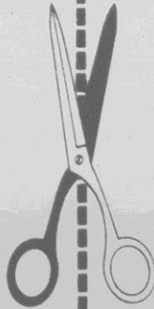

Handwriting analysts, also known as graphologists, have had special training which allows them to see in your ABC's what kind of person you are, even if you may be trying to project another image. They look at letter formation, including such finishing touches as the cross of a t and the dot of an i; at how letters are linked; at the tilt of a line of script; at special flourishes (or lack of them); and especially at a person's signature, in order to judge his or her traits.

According to graphologist-psychologist Carlos Pedregal, handwriting is even more revealing than facial expressions. "Not only can handwriting analysis tell about the fundamental person," Pedregal says, "it can also tell the graphologist what his mood was at the time of writing." Two examples: The writing of a person who is depressed slants downward as it approaches the end of the line. And a very firmly crossed t is a tip-off that the writer is upset.

A qualified graphologist does not make judgments based on looking at one word — or even one line — alone. Rather, he or she takes an overall view of the writing and considers such elements as size, spacing and embellishments.

In handwriting analysis, the signature is considered the most telling element because, as Pedregal explains, "it is part of the personality structure." And just as life's passages affect character, they alter handwriting, too.

Increasingly, handwriting analysis is used to screen employees for jobs and applicants for bank loans. Your career or loan may hang in the balance of what your handwriting says about you, but it can nonetheless be fascinating to satisfy your own curiosity about it. See offer right for an analysis by Carlos Pedregal. It's an opportunity to gain a whole new perspective on yourself.

MOVE OVER, ROVER, HERE COMES MUFFY

The average pooch has a good chance of sporting a rather preppy name these days, according to a recent survey of shelters housing more than 5,000 animals a year. Leslie Smith of Anderson Animal Shelter in South Elgin, Ill., which coordinated the survey, says 1982's most popular dog names were: Max (including many Maxines and Maximilians), Muffy, Buffy, Lady, Charlie, Lucky, Tiffany, Brandy, Priscilla, Bear, Molly, Patches, Princess, Prince and Bandit. Very few Spots, Fidos or Rovers anymore, she adds.

Among most cat owners, meanwhile, the old tried-and-true monikers persist, with Kitty an overwhelming favorite. The next most popular were Whiskers, Patches, Boots, Tiger, Oscar, Misty, Smokey and Felix.

of sociology at Ohio State University who has been surveying students for the last 13 years.

In her 1968 survey, 20 percent of females said they had engaged in premarital sex. In 1975 the number climbed to 80 percent of those queried. But in the latest poll, taken in the 1980-81 school year, only 50 percent claimed such experience. Even the rate for males declined from a high of 87 percent in 1972 to 1980's 73 percent figure.

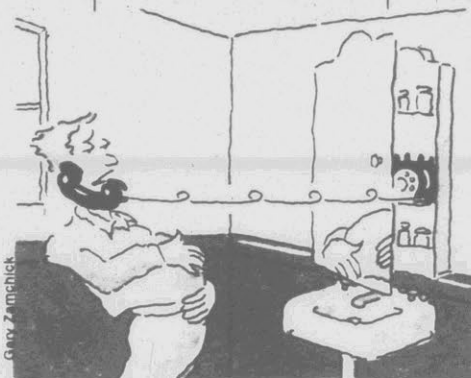

The obvious question: Why? "The primary reason," Clatworthy says, "is that students are returning to more traditional family and personal values. Self-respect, family and religious concerns are coming out on top as the most important values in our surveys with students. And when these things start to come out on top, you will find a change in behavior."

BEYOND BICARBONATE

This week some 23 million Americans with digestive disorders can have the solution they've been aching for. On Tuesday and Wednesday between 10 A.M. and 8 P.M. (E.D.T.) you can discuss your digestive problem with a doctor, absolutely free of charge. Just call the Gutline at (1-800) 521-2121. (Callers in the Washington, D.C., area, dial (202) 483-1999.)

Gutline counselors, all specialists in digestive disorders, will not offer a personal diagnosis or prescribe specific treatment but will discuss, in general, diseases and symptoms, dietary information, prescribed medication, treatments and diagnostic tests.

Gary Zambich

And, stresses Dr. Arnold Levy, vice president of the American Digestive Disease Society, which is sponsoring the service, both doctor and caller remain anonymous. He won't know who you are and you won't know who he is. So there will be nothing to, uh, cramp your style.

AWASH IN SOAP

This coming Tuesday, the Guiding Light of daytime TV will shine at night for the first time. That's when six stars from the daytime drama the Guiding Light will play their soap-opera elves in The Cradle Will Fall, a new television movie adapted from the 1980 best seller by Mary Higgins Clark.

To further mingle matters, Clark's wonderfully creepy plot — complete with a truly villainous villain (James Farentino), a beautiful heroine (Lauren Hutton) and diabolical scientific equipment — is being reset in Springfield, Guiding Light's fictional hometown.

We found all these resettlings somewhat unsettling, and so asked

Elvera Roussel (who plays G.L.'s Hope Spaulding and is cast as Hutton's best friend in the movie) whether or not her character could withstand all the extra Cradle crises. "Oh yes, of course," she answered bravely. "After everything Hope had to go through last year — her husband was kidnapped — and then rescued — she adjusted to this quite easily."

But she warns her soap fans: "This is not a Guiding Light movie. We are only making guest star appearances. I don't want anyone upset about that."

Phew! Thanks Elvera.

THIS HALL'S FOR YOU

Curious things were brewing in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., last month, with the building of the first inflatable auditorium in the shape of a giant six-pack of beer. And just in time for spring break, no less. The five-story Budweiser Auditorium, built for promotional activities and an occasional sports event, is designed so that each of the "cans" serves as an alcove inside.

Inflated, the building stands 57 feet wide, 84 feet long and 50 feet tall. Laurie Halladay of Anheuser-Busch reports, rather unnecessarily, that it is "the largest structure of its kind in the world. It takes a 20-person crew three days to blow it up and anchor it in place."

After finishing that, the crew may want to chug the auditorium.

THERE'S NOTHING HIDDEN IN OUR FINE PRINT. Here's how the Club Plan works:

You'll get seven books for only 99¢ plus shipping and handling, when accepted as a member. We reserve the right to reject any application. However, once accepted, if you are not completely satisfied with your introductory books, return them within 10 days at our expense to cancel your membership and owe nothing.

Club Magazine: You'll receive the free Club magazine about every four weeks (14 times a year) describing our Club Selections along with over 100 Alternates, which will save you up to 50% off publishers' edition prices. The Featured Selection may sometimes be two books offered to you at a single low price, for even greater savings. The Extra-Value Selection always saves you up to 60% off the publishers' edition prices. In addition, up to four times a year, you may receive offers of special selections, always at big discounts.

If you want both the Featured and Extra-Value Selections, do nothing—they'll be shipped automatically. If you'd prefer one of the Club Selections, an Alternate or no books at all, indicate this on the reply form and return it by the date specified. You'll have at least 10 days. A charge for shipping and handling is added to all shipments.

Club Editions: Our books, selected from all publishers, are complete hardbound editions sometimes altered in size to fit special presses.

Return Privileges: If you do not have 10 days to decide and receive Selections you don't want, you may return them at our expense.

Your Commitment: You agree to purchase just six books at regular low Club prices during your first membership year, from the hundreds offered. You may then continue to enjoy all the benefits of Club membership with no further obligation or you may resign at any time.

For over 50 years our members have enjoyed hardcover books at savings of up to 50% off publishers' edition prices.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

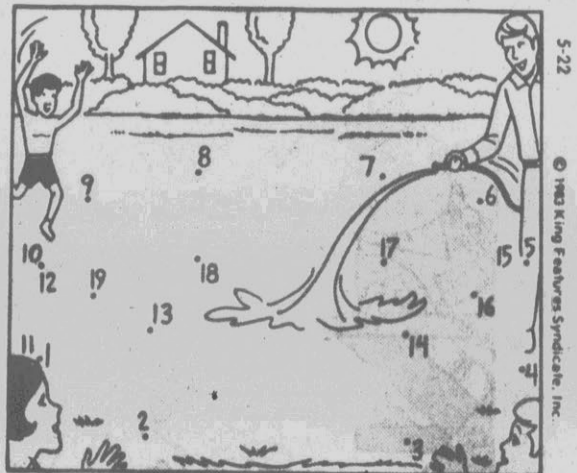

Junior Whirl

by Hal Kaufman

- SMALL FAVORS! Those lacking in height may find small comfort in these "wise" words from a book of old sayings: "IFTHES KYWERE TOFALL THEMAN WHOIST ALLWOU LDBEHI TFIRST." Rearrange cap-letter spacing for sense. Answer in 30 seconds.
- Sum Age! A certain senior citizen is as much younger than 94 as he is older than 36. What is this senior's age?
- Word Play! Sort the following three-letter words so that when linked with missing central letters they form seven-letter words: FUR SPA RAM FOR HER ARK EAR ROW ARM AGE. Example: FUR-T-HER, FUR-T-HER.
- Riddle-Me-This! Who was Tonto's favorite wrestler? The Groan Ranger.

MINDOVER MATTER!

A figure—circle, diamond, square or triangle—containing a number—2, 3 or 4—is to be inserted in each of the vacant squares above in such a way that no two similar figures or numbers will appear in any vertical, horizontal or corner-to-corner diagonal row. When this arrangement is completed correctly, each row of four numbers will total 10. How is it done?

WATER YOU KNOW! An important part of the drawing above is missing. Insert lines to complete the scene.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

INTERNAL

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

READY... AIM...

WE CAN'T SEE HIM WHAT'LL WE DO?

IN MYSTERIOUS KARAPURA...

TELL THOSE FOOLS NOT TO SHOOT! THEY'LL DESTROY MY LOVELY FAVORITE... MY CENTAUR!

HOLD FIRE!

HOLD FIRE!
NOT GOING TO SHOOT, GOOD!

OF HIS HEAD!

ANSWER MY RIDDLE OR DIE!
NOW... I'VE SEEN EVERYTHING!

EVERYTHING? NOT QUITE...

SHOE

WHAT'S ALL THAT STUFF, BUMPKINS?

IT'S MY GARDENING EQUIPMENT, SKYLER.

GARDENING IS AN ANCIENT TRADITION WITH US BRITONS...

IT'S IN OUR BLOOD. WE HAVE A PASSION FOR GROWING THINGS.

SPRINGTIME ALWAYS FINDS THE ENGLISHMAN MUCKING ABOUT IN HIS GARDEN...

WHEREVER WE CAN FIND A SMALL PLOT OF MOIST DARK, RICH EARTH...

SETTING OUT THESE BULBS...

BUT WHERE ARE YOU GONNA FIND A PLOT OF MOIST, DARK, RICH SOIL AROUND HERE?...

IN YOUR UNCLE'S SOCKS DRAWER.

FLASH GORDON

WARRIORS! WHAT DO WE DO?!

STAY COOL!

SKYMEN - WHO FELL FROM THE STARS -

COME WITH US!

AT WHOSE BIDDING? WHERE TO?

TO THE SUPREME RULER OF THE UNIVERSE - WHO OFFERS YOU SURVIVAL!

NO MORE TALK! MOUNT AND FOLLOW!

ARE WE... PRISONERS, ZARKOV?

THEY DIDN'T TAKE OUR GUNS, DALE! RIGHT NOW, SURVIVAL SEEMS VERY ATTRACTIVE!

GIVE UP OUR FREEDOM WITHOUT A FIGHT?

FIGHT?! FIGHT WHO? A WHOLE PLANET, PERHAPS?

I WISH YOU'D RIDDEN IN ONE OF THE LAND CRUISERS!

IT'S NO JOY - BUT I CAN SIT THIS SMELLY BEAST, THANK YOU!

AND, ON MONGO...

GOOD LUCK, FLASH! I PRAY YOU'LL FIND THEM SAFE!

NEXT: FLASH ON KORBUBU

LET'S SEE HOW OFFICER JONES LIKES NEW BONKERS CANDY.

FRUITY CHEWY OUTSIDE. SUPER FRUITY INSIDE.

HMMMM! INCREDIBLY SUPER FRUITY!

BONK!

WATCH HIM GET BONKED!

I THINK HE LIKES IT.

PETER, WE'VE COME TO SPEAK TO YOU ABOUT YOUR COURT BEHAVIOR.

I KNOW, I'VE AMAZED MYSELF. I'VE MADE IT TO THE QUARTERFINALS WITHOUT SCREAMING AT A SINGLE LINESMAN.

I HAVEN'T CALLED THE UMPIRE A 'TOTAL TURKEY' ONCE. I HAVEN'T SMASHED ANY BALLS OVER THE STANDS IN FRUSTRATION.

YOU KNOW, I REALLY THINK I'LL BE ABLE TO CONTROL MY TEMPER THE REST OF THE MATCHES. FINALLY, FINALLY, I THINK I'M MATURING.

WELL, HOW ABOUT MATURING AT SOMEBODY ELSE'S TOURNAMENT? THE CROWD ISN'T SEEING THE MAN THEY LOVE TO HATE AND THEY'RE FURIOUS.

HOW MUCH IS THAT? THE %@#!! LIGHT'S AS BAD IN HERE AS IT IS ON THAT *%##$!! PARKING LOT YOU CALL TENNIS COURTS...

WOW! THAT POKER GAME SURE LASTED LATE!

WE'RE GOING TO BE IN A HEAP OF TROUBLE AND I KNOW IT!

OH, STOP WITH ALL THAT CRYING, WILL YA?!

DON'T BE SUCH A WORRYWART! EVERYTHING'S GOING TO BE FINE!

BUT WHAT IF OUR WIVES ARE AWAKE?

THEY AREN'T... THEY'RE ASLEEP!

BUT WHAT IF SOMETHING GOES WRONG?

NOTHING'S GOING TO GO WRONG... STOP WORRYING!

OH, NO! MY KEY BROKE OFF IN THE LOCK

I HEAR NOISES! THERE'S A PROWLER OUTSIDE!

I'LL CALL THE POLICE!

NO, WAIT! THAT'S MY HOUSE!

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT PREPARES TO RETURN WITH HIS FAMILY TO THE MISTY ISLES. BUT GALAN HAS ONE LAST ERRAND. "IT IS WHY YUAN CHEN AND I CAME TO SALONAE" HE EXPLAINS. THE NEXT MORN GALAN LEADS VAL TO AN ANCIENT WAREHOUSE BY THE WATERFRONT.

"MY MASTERPIECE!" YUAN CHEN EXULTS. WITH A SHUDDER THE GREAT WATER WHEEL ADVANCES A NOTCH. SUDDENLY THE WALLS ECHO A CLAMOR OF GONGS. FROM INSIDE THE MACHINE TEN BRASS MEN STEP FORWARD AND BOW. THEN THE WATER CLOCK FALLS SILENT. "I BUILT IT FOR KING ZOG'S FATHER, A MAN OF GREAT WISDOM," YUAN CHEN SAYS. "IT CAN MARK THE HOURS AND FIX THE STARS IN THE SKY. WITH THIS, EVEN EUROPEANS COULD ONE DAY BE CIVILIZED." BUT ZOG, WHOM HISTORY WOULD DUB "THE DIMWITTED," LEFT THE CLOCK TO ROT.
