Panel Endorses Two Annexation Requests

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission voted Tuesday night to recommend that the City Council approve two petitions for annexation involving a total of approximately 10.6 acres.

The board endorsed a petition by John Wellons to annex a portion of Heritage Village subdivision, located some 400 feet east from 14th Street, adjacent to Norfolk Southern Railroad and contiguous to the existing city limit line.

Bobby Roberson, planning director, said the petitioner plans to develop the 4.69 acres with 50 patio units on 23 duplex lots. Roberson said the projected tax revenue at full occupancy is $10,000.

C.R. (Buzz) Smart Jr., distribution engineer with Greenville Utilities, said GUC feels that the fire hydrants proposed by the developer are adequate but it may be necessary to install one more hydrant at the end of the street.

Annexation approval was recommended subject to the provision of the additional hydrant if it is requested.

A petition by Bill Clark and two other property owners to annex section one of Westhills Townhomes, a 5.80-acre tract adjacent to Greenridge subdivision on State Road 1204, also gained commission approval.

Roberson said satellite annexation would be involved in Clark's petition since the property is located a mile to a mile and a half from the city limits. He said the developers plan 10 structures containing four units in each building for a total of 40 townhomes. Projected tax revenue at full occupancy would amount to some $10,490.

Smart pointed out that the water and sewer systems for the development are under contract and fire hydrants should be installed at this time. The board's recommendation to the council carried the hydrant stipulation.

Commissioner Chuck Ziehr said he understood a moratorium had been recommended on annexations until the legislature completes work on state annexation statutes. He said he felt the board had been inconsistent in handling some

Papal Mass Draws More Than Million To Krakow

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass today for more than 2 million people — the biggest crowd yet on his Polish pilgrimage — and tens of thousands of chanting Solidarity supporters left the service on a noisy march through downtown Krakow.

Lech Walesa, leader of the outlawed independent union, left his home in the northern seaport of Gdansk and headed for Krakow and his long-awaited meeting with the pontiff. Walesa, accompanied by his wife Danuta and four sons, was expected to have his audience with the pope on Thursday, the last day of John Paul's tour, somewhere in southern Poland near Krakow.

Poland's Communist rulers reluctantly agreed to sanction a "strictly private" papal audience with Walesa, whom they call a "former leader of a former trade union."

At the end of the papal Mass demonstrators formed up under scores of Solidarity banners, chanted Walesa's name and "Long live the pope!" and raised their hands in Solidarity's V-for-victory salute.

Police, far outnumbered by the crowd leaving the Krakow Mass, made no move to halt the river of demonstrators pouring out of Blonie parade ground.

The crowd appeared as big as the one in Warsaw last Thursday, the first night of the papal visit, when about 50,000 people marched past Communist Party headquarters in the largest demonstration since martial law was imposed Dec. 13, 1981, in a bid to crush Solidarity.

The Krakow marchers jeered and whistled at a police helicopter that hovered overhead. A voice on the police loudspeaker said in a polite voice, "Please disperse and go home. Don't mar the papal visit."

The protesters carried banners reading, "We keep our vigil within Solidarity," "They can't kill the spirit" and "Your words are our hope."

The Solidarity flags first rose in the crowd as John Paul concluded the homily of his Mass with the words, "Jesus Christ, shepherd of people ... I beg you for victory."

Thousands responded with cheers, chants and victory signs, and up went the banners.

The pontiff, saying Mass in the city whose archdiocese he headed for 15 years, beatified two Poles who fought in a 19th-century uprising against Russian rule, the Carmelite father Rafal Kalinowski and Franciscan brother Albert Chmielowski.

"Both were inspired by heroic love of the homeland," said the pope.

Green Surrenders; Free In 'Custody' Of Attorney

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green was released in the custody of his attorney Tuesday after surrendering to Wake County authorities on charges of accepting a $2,000 bribe and conspiring to take up to $10,000 a month in bribes.

Green, who was indicted by a grand jury Monday, entered the Wake County Courthouse Tuesday afternoon amidst a throng of reporters and television camera crews. He was accompanied by his family, aides Arlene Pulley and George Jones, attorney Howard F. Twigg and an SBI agent.

Green appeared somber when he entered a small, dingy room with SBI agent Bill Dowdy. He emerged a few minutes later and was taken into the magistrate's office where he filled out forms and was fingerprinted by an employee of the City County Bureau of Identification.

Green, wearing a light tan suit, calmly smoked a cigarette while the CCBI employee rolled his fingers in ink and placed them on fingerprint cards. The fingerprinting took about 15 minutes because the cards had to be completed in triplicate — for the FBI, State Bureau of Investigation and the CCBI.

Green was then taken before Superior Court Judge Anthony M. Brannon, who asked Twigg several questions and then released Green to Twigg's custody. Green sat quietly. No court date was set.

After the five-minute hearing, Green left with his family and walked along Fayetteville Street Mall to his lawyer's office, accompanied by a parade of newsmen. Green smiled but refused to answer questions shouted to him.

A Wake County grand jury Monday indicted Green on five charges, including agreeing to accept bribes from an undercover FBI agent posing as a businessman seeking favors.

Green was indicted on one count of conspiracy to receive bribes, three counts of consenting to receive bribes and one count of receiving a bribe.

Also indicted was Howard F. Watts, charged with conspiring with Green to obtain the bribes for Green.

Hospital Bd. Receives Name-Change Petitions

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Memorial Hospital board members Tuesday night accepted the signatures of 8,773 petitioners who want the medical complex of which the hospital is a part renamed in honor of former East Carolina University Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins.

Presentations were made by Joel Johnson and Gary Danford, Greenville Jaycees petition drive co-chairmen, and by citizens Bill Dansey and Dr. Ray Minges. The board members are being asked to accept the petitions and pass them on to the County Commissioners with an official recommendation that the name change be made. The petition drive conducted by the Jaycees lasted about a month.

The board indicated it would give consideration to the matter at a later date.

In other action, the board approved joining the Trustees of Not-for-Profit Hospitals organizations — membership fee, $2,000 for the first year.

Heard a report from its human relations committee which meets quarterly on how the hospital's Affirmative Action and Equal Employment Opportunity Program is being carried out. It was pointed out that the hospital is stepping up its recruiting in predominantly black educational institutions and is advertising in publications with special appeal to particular ethnic groups.

•Heard that Robert Hackney of Washington, N.C., has been appointed to a three-year term on the board.

•Approved a bid for the completion of the north parking lot. The low bidder for general contracting was C.C. Dickerson Co. at $81,850; the low bidder for electrical contracting, Pitt Electric Co. at $8,585. $2,700 was set aside as contingency money on the project, bringing the total cost to $93,135.

•Approved capital expenditures of $249,186, including $8,000 for anesthesia equipment; $233,650 for laboratory equipment, and $7,536 for education material (a life pak VI for which a state grant pays half).

•Approved medical staff recommendations of privilege changes for the following doctors: J. Miguel Risco, ophthalmology, active; Charles R. Means, oral and dental surgery, active; Donald L. Hardee, dental surgery, consulting; Larry S. Lewis, general and vascular surgery, active; Jerry G. Gregory, psychiatric medicine, active; Judith S. Yongue, psychiatric medicine, active; Samuel S. Lentz, obstetrics and gynecology, active; Merwin Dieckman, Type II obstetrical; Cecil Rand, to perform fiberoptic bronchoscopy with biopsy; Edwin C. Bartlett, orthopedic surgery, provisional active; H. Thomas Norris, anatomic and clinical pathology, provisional active; and Henry G. Marrow, anatomic and clinical pathology, provisional active.

Gilda Everett, family nurse practitioner, was approved for clinical duties and responsibilities as a physician extender for Dr. Wayne Kendrick.

•Accepted a report from Noel Lee, chairman of the pastoral care committee, about how well the hospital's pastor care program is going so far.

•Heard ECU Medical School Dean William Laupus say the funding of the medical school budget looks "more rosy" than it did a month ago. He said the radiation therapy center construction is continuing on schedule and that three searches are under way — for a rehabilitation medicine director, a cardiac surgeon and a radiation therapy specialist.

•Heard hospital Vice President Fred Brown say that a $68 million budget with no major rate increases is expected. He said a position control-vacancy review program is now in effect, giving rise to speculation that the hospital is in financial trouble. This is not true, he said. The program is seen as a cost control-efficiency assurance measure.

PETITIONING COMPLETED ... Petition co-chairmen Gary Danford and Joel Johnson pose with documents bearing 8,773 signatures they collected in the past month from people who want the hospital complex renamed in honor of former East Carolina Chancellor Leo Jenkins. They presented the petitions to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital trustees Tuesday night with a request for the board to recommend to the County Commissioners that the renaming take place.

Offers After-School Fun For Would-Be Latchkeyers

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD
ACTON, Mass. (UPI) — Michelle Riendeau figures she'd be "watching television and getting fat" if it weren't for a special program designed for kids too old for daycare but too young to be left alone.

The 13-year-old and her junior high school friends have managed to escape the "latchkey syndrome," the fate of increasing number of youngsters who return from school to empty houses with both parents away working.

Now there's a "home away from home" for teens who are no longer children and not yet young adults: a center where youngsters can take karate lessons, make films, earn money with computers or just hang around.

It is the brainchild of Sue Grolnic, a mother who didn't want her son — or other kids — to face afternoons alone at home.

"They'd end up standing around the mall, in a bowling alley or in an ice cream store where the owners didn't want kids sitting for three hours over a soda," Mrs. Grolnic said of kids without keen interests in competitive sports.

In a survey of seventh and eighth graders in the community more than half of the 700 who responded said they were home alone two or more days a week.

So Mrs. Grolnic distributed another questionnaire asking what they would like in a program just for 12, 13 and 14 year olds.

"At that age, they won't do anything they don't want to do and won't go anywhere they don't want to go," she said.

"What they did want was a place to play sports in a non-competitive way, a chance to be creative, earn money and somewhere to hang out.

"Youngsters at this age need to know they're trusted, but they also need some supervision while they develop social, emotional and physical skills."

Mrs. Grolnic, a former schoolteacher, dropped her medical career plans to develop an all-in-one package "for unconnected kids."

With facilities provided by a local elementary school, youngsters who once let the time pass aimlessly until a parent returned from work are finding everything they asked for.

"They really love it," said Mrs. Grolnic, "but that's because they helped shape it. Everything they wanted is here, and more."

Madeline Monaghan, a psychotherapist and the program's daily coordinator, said she became involved because of her commitment "to adolescents at this time in their development."

"It's discouraging the way we pour money into situations when it's too late, when a youngster is already in a correctional institution," she said. "Kids need a good start for healthy, individual growth."

This age is crucial in terms of the focus a teenager will have throughout his lifetime. The kids literally feel in between ... experimenting all the time. Sometimes they're introverts and then extroverts, trying on all different types of behavior."

In addition to the emotional highs and lows, there's the onslaught of puberty to contend with.

"Kids don't have to be afraid of being awkward or making mistakes here," Mrs. Monaghan said. "There is no one around to ridicule them."

First each afternoon there's that desperately needed afternoon snack. A classroom has been converted into a lounge complete with a refrigerator stuffed with soft drinks, cakes, cookies, fruit and yogurt.

Those participating in The Store Corps, the group responsible for keeping the snack bar supplied, make money while learning about inventory, buying and selling.

After snacks, the youngsters can spend time in a computer room where they design software to sell, a gym for karate lessons or aerobic dancing, a theater group practicing a play or a film class making a movie.

There's also floor hockey and basketball, or they can stay in the lounge and shoot bumper pool, do their homework and just rap.

Those who opt for the Computer Company are anxious to make money by designing custom-made software for elementary schools.

Craig Nelson, in charge of the group, said the youngsters sent sample discs of mathematics and vocabulary programs to schools in Acton and neighboring communities.

Several principals indicated they were interested, particularly in programs dealing with shape recognition, fractions, vocabulary building and timetables.

"I think we'll have a number of orders by the fall," Nelson said, adding that the young business partners have computers at home and are advanced for their age in programming.

"Both of my parents work," said Miss Riendeau, a seventh grader, "and if I didn't come here I'd probably be sitting around home, listening to records, watching television and getting fat."

"I'd be home vegging out," said Matt Valad in his generation's venacular, meaning eating junk food. "This is much better than that."

The youngsters in Paul Castelline's karate class dutifully line up and bow to their instructor before practicing basic punches, kicks and counterattacks.

"Karate lets them all feel good about themselves," Castelline said, "and certainly increases confidence."

"When do you use karate?" Castelline asked his class.

"Only when you have to," came the reply.

"And when do you have to?" he probed.

"If you can't talk your way out or get away."

Parker Damon, principal of the school where the program is held, said "the latchkey syndrome" is becoming an increasingly important issue as the numbers of two working parents and single parents increase.

"The stress (such youths) exhibit takes different forms," he said. "It may result from a feeling of being unduly restricted in their movements around the neighborhood or loneliness with no one to share the day's experiences with."

"Some don't know what to do or how to cope with" the situation, and "those who must take care of younger siblings often feel resentful."

"The whole question of fear must also be addressed."

It's not unusual for adults to be apprehensive in an empty house. For youngsters it can be a very unhappy and alarming experience.

Being Called Barb Is Barb To Her

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem petty to some, but it bothers me a great deal.

My name is "Barbara" — not "Barb" or "Barbie" — and "Barbara" is the way I want to be addressed. I suppose the problem is that I do not hesitate to tell those who call me "Barb" or "Barbie" that I prefer to be called "Barbara."

I have a friend who tells me that when I insist on being called "Barbara," I come off as haughty and arrogant, which drives people (especially men) away. She says I should try to overcome this "psychological hang-up" because it creates a negative impression.

I can't help it. I hate being called "Barbie" — or worse yet, "Barb" — so why should I put up with it?

I can't hang a sign around my neck. What do you think?

CALL ME BARBARA

DEAR BARBARA: It's perfectly all right to let people know that you prefer to be called "Barbara," but do so diplomatically (without "barbs"). And if someone should slip, don't make a big deal out of it. A rose by any other name is still fraught with thorns.

DEAR ABBY: For my wife's 40th birthday, the girls in her office gave her a sleepshirt with Tom Selleck's face on it.

She thought it was a terrific gift, but I told her no way would I sleep with Tom Selleck, so if she wanted to sleep with him she could forget me.

She thought I was kidding, but when she realized I was serious she stuck "Tom" away in a drawer, but she's still sulking about it.

Care to comment?

JOE IN CLOVIS, N.M.

DEAR JOE: Don't get mad — get even. Find a sleepshirt with Morgan Fairchild's face on it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 62 and retired; I'm 55 and still work outside the home. Whenever I start making plans (once a year) to visit my parents for 10 days, he starts the old routine, complaining about headaches, stomach pains, etc. Then he sulks and acts hurt until I feel so guilty I hate to leave him.

In our 38 years of marriage, every time we have visited my parents together it has been a disaster. He does not get along with them, and they have never cared much for him. He doesn't even want to visit his own parents or our children who live in another state. He hates to travel and says if they want to see him, they can come here.

He keeps telling me that I am the only person who means anything to him and he thinks I should feel the same about him. I can't make him understand that I am not choosing my parents over him, I just need to see them once a year — especially now that they're elderly.

Please give me some encouraging advice, Abby.

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: You have no reason to feel guilty. Your husband is not incapacitated, nor is he "ill." He sounds like a spoiled, selfish child.

If this has been going on for 38 years, he's not apt to change, so if you are really plagued with guilt for leaving him, counseling could help you overcome these inappropriate feelings. A local mental health clinic offers this confidential help. Fees are based upon ability to pay.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I read the letters from all the "virtuous" virgins who are saving themselves for marriage, I think of my own situation. I, too, saved myself, and so had my wife until we were married nearly 40 years ago. The only difference was that she kept on "saving herself" — or at least she rationed it out like wartime tires. She maintained that sex was sinful unless for procreation, and nothing would budge her beliefs. I even showed her an article by the bishop (we're both Catholic) on the proper joys of sex within marriage. She dismissed him as a heretic. After our family was complete, it was total abstinence. If I felt the urge, I could say a rosary or two.

Of course, she helped by becoming frumpy, dumpy and dowdy. She knew she was not in shape, but her excuse was that "it was sinful for a woman to try to be alluring to any man — even her husband."

All went well for 16 years, during which time I became a workaholic. Then a very nice woman my age seduced me. I'm not proud of it, but I don't feel guilty either. I'm not carrying on an affair, and I do manage to stay celibate most of the time, but it sure taught me a lesson in tolerance. I am far more understanding of other people when they show a bit of tarnish.

More Than Just Sally

Somebody has to set the record straight.

This week of shuttle-orbitting is more than simply Dr. Sally Ride's mission, an impression the excited news media seems inclined to underline.

Right now, could the casual follower of the Challenger flight identify one of the other four crew members? Not many, we'd guess.

And how about the mission projects? There are more than 20 science and materials processing experiments scheduled; but aside from the launching of two satellites (a business operation), odds are against awareness of even one.

Don't misunderstand.

We, too, are happy NASA has finally put a woman into space, and Dr. Ride has every reason to be proud of her status as first in line. No doubt about it, she was an ideal choice. Still, a lot of other people were involved in the mission (some of them women), too.

You can bet your bottom dollar all this wasn't put together just so Sally would go into orbit.

Flight Is An Asset

Sunbird Airlines has announced the addition of a 12:30 p.m. flight to Raleigh leaving Pitt-Greenville Airport.

The airline now has four flights in and four flights out of the Pitt-Greenville Airport. Sunbird initiated service at Pitt-Greenville Airport in August 1980.

The airline has improved its equipment and expanded service.

Commuter service to the Pitt-Greenville Airport is important to the development of Pitt County. It gives quick access to Raleigh-Durham and other points where other flights can be made for air travel all over the world. The air service is an asset to our area.

RALEIGH — As the state House scrounged around for the $240 million worth of new tax money to balance the proposed 1983-85 budget, a number of legislative observers were surprised that the House leadership didn't take the simple, painless way out.

With a stroke of the pen, the budget committee chairmen can relieve themselves of $40 million worth of troubles. All they have to do is take Gov. Jim Hunt's word on the future course of the economy and then leave Hunt to worry about being right.

Despite the improvement in the national economy, the House leadership is sticking with fairly pessimistic growth projections for next year. They're standing with David Crotts, the economist for the Fiscal Research Division, who is saying we shouldn't project more than 7.6 percent growth in revenue collections next year. In the Senate, a Finance subcommittee broke with Crotts and based its tax package on a higher revenue projection.

Hunt, and his state budget office, say growth will be about 8.8 percent. The difference is worth about $40 million. Use Hunt's figures and they only have to raise taxes by $200 million. Then, if Hunt's numbers turn out to have been too optimistic, it's his problem. He'll have to keep the budget in balance from July to June. Legislators can go home and rightfully blame the governor for any shortfall.

So why isn't the leadership taking the easy way out?

The textbook answer is the "Responsible Legislature Theory". This is the one third graders learn. "It would not be fiscally responsible to do that", says Rep. Al Adams, base budget chairman.

That answer brings guffaws from the professional assembly watchers who figure there must be an ulterior motive. Sure, it might be that the House leadership is being conservative and responsible, these folks say. But, what's so conservative about raising taxes $40 million more than you need?

At the risk of repeating speculation, here are some of the theories being espoused over coffee cups in the cafeteria.

Theory One: Taking the lower revenue projections adds more urgency to the state's budget crisis. It added to the pressure to cut the budget, which has already been done. It adds to the pressure to pass a budget-balancing tax increase which, with the proposed budget, is needed regardless of which revenue projection you take.

Theory Two: It would be nice to have a surplus next year. You can make one by budgeting on a lower revenue projection and raising taxes this year. Then, in time for the election, you've got money for pay raises and school construction.

Theory Three: There's a bunch of special bills waiting to be acted upon. If the new tax increases and the low revenue projections can bring in a balanced budget, then, in the closing days of the session, the leadership can jack up the revenue projection and, like magic, there's some money for pork barrel bills.

Theory Four: In the words of one lobbyist, "They're trying to keep people like me from sticking my hands out for anything else."

Theory Five: There's the most votes; but if the Senate persists with higher projections, much of that magic money will be lost.

You can bet your legislative fact book, however, that the conference committee working out the differences in the two revenue packages will leave some money for pork barrel bills.

Public Forum

To The Editor:

I commend the Pitt County Board of Commissioners for tentatively approving a reduction of $307,821.00 in school capital outlay funds for the coming year.

School population has been on the decline for the past 15 years, but school boards continue to request funds to build new schools, add on new classrooms, but never phase out an old building.

For example, seven years ago the Division of School Planning, N.C. Department of Public Instruction, recommended to the Greenville City Schools Board of Education to phase out the Agnes Fullilove School as soon as possible. The building was considered a safety problem. This year, the school board again budgeted capital outlay funds for additional repairs to this old building.

I think a proper question would be: How many schools are utilizing all available space? If Third Street School is equipped for 450 students, do we have 450 there or 225?

Keep up the good work, county commissioners.

Farm Glut To Farm Surplus, The Quick Way

"Hello, Farmer Jones. What are you doing?"

"Planting wheat."

"What on earth for? I thought there was a surplus of wheat and the government was giving it to the farmers free, so you wouldn't grow any."

"That seems to be the problem. So many farmers agreed not to grow any wheat and take the government up on its offer, that there isn't enough to go around. The surpluses have been used up, so the government is now asking us to raise more wheat so they can honor their commitments to the farmers who want to take advantage of the Payment in Kind program."

"Hold on, Farmer Jones. Are you trying to tell me that the government promised more surplus wheat to the farmers than it had stored away?"

"Looks that way. Fellow from the Department of Agriculture came out to see me the other day and said, 'Jones' we're in a bind. We got us a wheat shortfall, and we'd appreciate it if you would plant some wheat so we can give it to the farmers who promised not to grow any this year.'"

"Did he say what got him into the bind?"

He said a lot more farmers signed up for the PIK program than they expected. The department didn't count on so many of us choosing to accept free wheat from the government rather than plant our own."

"That's reasonable error in judgment."

"To make things worse, the man told me, the U.S. government made a deal to sell 44 million bushels of wheat to Egypt."

"Why did the government do that, when they owed the American farmer all their wheat?"

It's sort of complicated. As the man explained it to me, the U.S. wanted to pressure the Western European countries into lowering their subsidies on the wheat they were expecting abroad. So we undercut the Europeans on the price of our grain to knock them out of the market. The wheat the Agriculture Department was counting on to give to us American farmers was shipped off to Egypt, and now we got to create a new surplus to make up the difference."

"Does this mean if you grow wheat, you don't get any money for not growing it?"

"It don't mean that at all. I grow the wheat, they pay me for it, and then they give it back to me to sell."

"That's not a bad deal, particularly if you like planting wheat."

"I do. Frankly I was getting bored as can be. But I wasn't making any money raising wheat, so I got into the PIK program. Now I can still farm, and make a profit on the wheat the government is giving me to sell."

"Which at the moment they don't have."

"It appears that way. The man from the Agriculture Department says its going to cost them $325 million just to make up for the present shortfall."

"It sounds like someone in Washington didn't think out the PIK program too thoroughly."

"I can't say that because I've never known what goes on in the heads of those people. All I know is if they want wheat and they'll make it worth my while, I'll grow it for them. But I'll say one thing. They sure know how to change a grain glut into a shortfall faster than anybody I know."

Did the man from the Ag Department say how much this would cost the taxpayers?"

"He didn't have any exact figures, but he figured it might eventually go as high as $15 billion."

"That's a lot of bread."

"No one said getting farmers to raise wheat was cheap."

"Well, I'll let you get on with your planting crop. You owe it to your fellow farmers."

"Right. And don't forget, they also owe it to me."

Strength For Today

A man once said to Henry Ward Beecher, a famous evangelist of the last century, "Mr. Beecher, I am a self-made man".

"Fine," replied Beecher, "you have relieved the Lord of a great responsibility."

With what egotism do we ascribe to our own efforts the achievements that never would have been ours had not God been with us. The "self-made man" is generally successful because he is more clever than his fellows, or more able, or more diligent. But the fact that he has made good use of the gifts God gave him does not alter the fact that his diligence would have profited him nothing had God not given him certain powers.

In the last analysis, important as our own efforts are, the gifts of God are more important. No man has a right to say that he is entirely "self-made;" he would have no self to make had not God furnished him with the raw materials. To take all the credit for one's success and acknowledge no help from God is ingratitude.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is serving in Congress a full-time job? It is but it shouldn't be, claims Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., who argues the job description should be scaled down to read "part-time work."

Baker told the Senate recently the founding fathers never intended service in Congress to be anything other than part-time.

Congress was set up as a collection of working citizen-legislators, "an aggregation of farmers, doctors, lawyers, businessmen and whatever it may be," Baker reminded colleagues.

Lawmakers should be free to spend more time in their home states and work at other professions if they want, he argued.

"I think my dad was absolutely right when he said years ago that the downfall of the Republic would be measured from the day they air-conditioned the Capitol, because that is the time when we started staying here all day long," he added.

Baker raised the issue as the Senate struggled to set its own salary.

In the end, senators voted to boost their own annual salaries from $60,662 to $69,800 and to allow themselves to keep earning unlimited income from speeches and articles until next January, when a cap of 30 percent of their salaries would be imposed on such honoraria.

Baker, who has announced he will not seek re-election, had advocated lower salaries, and no limits on outside income.

Under the present system, lawmakers are little more than "elected bureaucrats," he complained.

Baker's position drew a moan from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who said the GOP leader was "just plain wrong on this issue."

Proxmire said allowing members to moonlight without restriction would short-shift the public and lead to all kinds of conflicts of interest. Lawmakers should be considered "full-time representatives of the people. This is a full-time job and then some," Proxmire said.

But Baker found an ally in Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, who told the Senate that he liked the idea of being able to live among and work alongside his constituents.

Economy Sees Shift In Thinking

NEW YORK (AP) — You know the economy is improving when Paul Volcker gets renominated for the Federal Reserve chairmanship and the head of a savings organization declares his industry is "well on the road to recovery."

It wasn't long ago, you'll remember, when Volcker was being denigrated as the architect of recession and unemployment, and savings and loan associations were pleading for legislative or any other kind of aid.

A remarkable shift of thinking has occurred since then, most of it in just the past couple of months, and now Volcker is acclaimed as steady and reliable, and clearly the best choice to lead the economic recovery.

The big shift of thinking came with the big shift in interest rates.

Volcker took most of the flak and didn't complain when the prime interest rate hit 21.5 percent in December 1982, although the rates probably weren't so much his fault as the fault of federal deficits for a decade-and-a-half.

And now that interest rates have fallen, he stands there just as solemn and reflective — and absorbs the accolades and the other forms of praise although he probably was just one of a couple dozen factors involved in the decline.

The savings and loan people, who a year or so ago claimed imminent suffocation under high interest rates and unfair competition, and who blamed Volcker's Federal Reserve for some of their condition — sound ecstatic now.

True, they still jump if you approach from behind and yell "rising interest rates," but they have regained enough business and confidence to concede that "we're well on the road toward recovery."

Leonard Shane, who heads a $1.5 billion savings and loan in Huntington Beach, Calif., as well as holding the chairmanship of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, made that concession the other day, although he didn't exactly shout it, going instead to Whitefield, N.H., to make his comments.

Lower interest rates have reduced savings costs and helped to offset the squeeze on earnings from those old, low-rate mortgages that sensible homeowners refuse to retire. And once again lenders are making money on new mortgages.

In addition, the new insured money market accounts have brought in a lot of money since the associations were cleared to sell them in December. In the 21 months before December the associations had a net deposit outflow of $43.7 billion, because they couldn't compete with money market mutual funds. In the five full months since they got permission they've had an inflow of $43.4 billion.

As these and other signs of health return to the economy the economists are busily revising their forecasts higher.

Housing starts, domestic new car sales and installment credit outstanding all were higher in the latest reports, showing that the still-pressed consumer was doing his best to push things along.

State Senator R. C. Soles Indicted On 4 Charges

By JAMES GOGKE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury Tuesday returned a second set of indictments against state

Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, charging him with aiding extortion, conspiring to block legislation in return for a gold bracelet, lying to a grand jury and vote buying.

Soles said he had no forewarning of the new indictments, learning of them only when asked by reporters.

"I thought they were talking about somebody else's indictments," he said. After being shown an Associated Press story, Soles said it appeared to be an expansion on the previous indictments stemming from Colcor.

"I don't know enough about it to admit or deny anything," he said.

The 10-page indictment was handed down by a U.S. District Court grand jury that has been involved in the federal Colcor probe of corruption in southeastern North Carolina. Arraignment was set for June 29 in Raleigh.

Soles had earlier been indicted by the grand jury on extortion charges involving accepting a gold bracelet from undercover FBI agents investigating corruption in southeastern North Carolina.

The new indictments supersede those handed down in March.

Soles faces 20 years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine on Tuesday's charge of aiding and abetting the interference with commerce by extortion. The indictment accused him of helping former Columbus County Commissioner Edward Walton Williamson take a $5,800 bribe in December 1981. Williamson pleaded guilty to federal bribery charges and is serving a 10-year prison sentence.

Soles faces the same penalty for conspiracy to interfere with commerce by extortion. The indictment alleges he conspired with Herbert Riggins, J.C. Hines and Williamson to block pending legislation that would restrict precious metals dealers. Neither Hines nor Riggins have been indicted.

Undercover FBI agents Robert J. Drdak, Bradley D. Hoferkamp and Jerry King posed as precious metal dealers and set up a silver and gold trading business in Whiteville.

The indictment said Soles promised to help block the pending precious metal legislation in return for a gold bracelet from the agents. The indictment said Soles knew Williamson was accepting bribe money from the undercover agents in exchange for official influence.

Soles agreed to support efforts to pass a liquor-by-the-drink referendum in Bolton if Williamson and Riggins were "taken care of," the indictment said.

The indictment also said Soles lied before a federal grand jury in May 1982 when asked if he had ever paid anyone "to vote a particular way or vote for you or other candidates that you support."

The indictment quoted Soles as saying that "very little" money had ever been contributed to him, and that he spent contributions strictly for legitimate campaign purposes.

"I've never used it, to my knowledge or recollection, to buy a vote," he said, according to the indictment.

When asked if he had ever been present when votes were bought, the indictment said Soles answered, "I've never been present when I knew that any money was being paid to buy votes."

But the indictment charged that Soles "in truth and fact ... then well knew he had made such illicit payments on various occasions during past elections."

The indictment claimed that Soles, from April 1982 to June 1982, did buy votes, but it failed to elaborate on the charge.

Bison Attacks Two Tourists

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — A 2,000-pound bison that injured two tourists in separate attacks when they approached it too closely probably will have to be destroyed, officials say.

Joan Anzelmo, a park spokeswoman, said the attacks occurred Sunday and Tuesday at the Madison Campgrounds, 14 miles inside the park's West Entrance.

Anne Heuser, 53, from West Germany, was charged by the animal Sunday as she passed within 10 feet of the bison on a footpath, Ms. Anzelmo said.

"The bison picked her up with his head and threw her approximately 10 feet," she said. "Other visitors distracted the bison while Mrs. Heuser was helped away from the area."

The woman was taken to an Ashton, Idaho, hospital for treatment of a broken wrist and bruised ribs, Ms. Anzelmo said.

A Colorado man was injured by the same bison Tuesday night after approaching it to take its picture, officials said.

Melvin Dietz, 46, of Littleton, was photographing the bison from about 20 yards away when it began to charge, Ms. Anzelmo said.

"Dietz backed up and the bison stopped. Dietz resumed taking photos of the animal and it began to charge again."

The bison caught Dietz with his horns and inflicted deep lacerations "from hip to ankle," Ms. Anzelmo said.

Rangers tried to tranquilize the animal Tuesday so they could transfer it to a more remote section of the park. The drug only made the bison angry, leading rangers to believe they probably would have to destroy it, Ms. Anzelmo said.

"We have to keep the safety of visitors in mind first," she said.

Despite warnings, tourists frequently forget animals in the park are wild and can be dangerous if approached, she said.

"In this case, the visitors were just way too close to the animal," she said. "Those people are lucky."

In another confrontation Tuesday between a human and an animal, Robert Bramble, 26, of Arlington, Va., suffered puncture wounds and lacerations on an arm and leg when attacked by a large bear, probably a grizzly, park officials said.

Bramble was hiking alone when he encountered three bears, Ms. Anzelmo said. One bear charged Bramble, injuring him, she said. Park workers were looking for the bears.

Suspect Arson In Fire

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Authorities and the owner of the Turner-White Casket Co. said Tuesday they suspect the cause of the fire which destroyed the company's building Monday was arson.

Authorities declined to discuss why they thought arson was suspected.

Indicted In Burning Cases

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Edgecombe County grand jury handed down indictments this week against three members of a family in the burning of four churches and a grocery store.

Indicted were Milton Joyner, 38, Bobby Powell Adcock, 48, and Robert Vernon Adcock, 21, all from Rocky Mount. An unidentified 15-year-old was bound over to Superior Court to be charged as an adult in the cases.

The adults were indicted in connection with a series of break-ins and larcenies, District Attorney Howard S. Boney said.

The four burned churches were Marks Chapel Baptist Church, Shiloh Baptist Church, Pleasant Hill Baptist Church and New Hope Baptist Church, all in the Rocky Mount area. Fay's Grocery and Grill, located near Battleboro, was destroyed by fire May 11.

The maximum penalty for burning a church is 30 years in prison while the penalties for breaking and entering and for larceny are 10 years each.

ONE INJURED IN ACCIDENT — One person was reported injured Tuesday in an accident west of Greenville on N.C. 33 involving a collision of vehicles driven by Herman Arthur Taft of Greenville and Naomi Garris Buck, also of Greenville. The Highway Patrol said Taft, whose vehicle was pulling from rural unpaved road 1440 on to N.C. 33, reported his vision was blocked by trees and he did not see Ms. Buck's vehicle. The Buck vehicle swerved to avoid the collision and ran off the right side of the road, crossed back to the left side of the road and then overturned. Ms. Buck was reported injured and transported to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment. The accident occurred about 10:30 a.m. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

—The development precipitates a financial crisis. The stockmarket plunges. Analysts say a prolongation of life would bankrupt private pension funds, by then the nation's principal investment.

Ms. Bird said she put in the "wild card" predictions to limber up imaginations. An active imagination is another mark of older persons who expect to make it in the ageless society ahead, she said.

Eight times previously Ms. Bird has put her observations in books covering such topics as the two-paycheck marriage and the women's liberation movement.

On the newest trail Ms. Bird, who describes herself as "a wise old woman," has run counter to some currents in the mainstream.

She disagrees with advocates for the aged, like the Gray Panthers and others who seek senior citizen discounts, double income tax exemptions and Social Security benefits based exclusively on age.

She favors benefits based on situations rather than age.

Also counter to current precepts, Ms. Bird said the family is not breaking down.

"It is being redefined."

Rising divorce rates, later marriages, fewer children are not disasters, she said.

Ms. Bird said they are just warnings that all families of the future will not rally around child rearing, she said.

How Tar Heel Senators And Representatives Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 9-16.

House
NERVE GAS — The House rejected, 202 for and 216 against, an amendment to resume U.S. production of binary nerve gas, at a cost of $115 million in fiscal 1984. Production has been suspended since 1969.

The vote occurred during a debate on HR 2969, a defense spending bill that awaited final House action. It thwarted administration plans to increase the Army's nerve gas capability, in part to encourage the Soviets to sign a treaty banning chemical warfare.

Supporter Marvin Leath, D-Texas, said that U.S. nerve gas stockpile "is totally inadequate to pose any semblance of a counterthreat to deter the Soviets from using chemical weapons."

Opponent Lim Leach, R-Iowa, warned of an arms race involving chemical weapons, saying they "could all too easily become the poor man's weapons of mass destruction."

Members voting no wanted to keep the monotonous U.S. nerve gas production.

Yes — Walter Jones, D-1, Tim Valentine, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8 and James Clarke, D-11.

No — Ike Andrews, D-4, Charles Britt, D-6, James Martin, R-9 and James Broyhill, R-10.

SPACE WARS — The House refused, 177 for and 243 against, to delete $19 million in the fiscal 1984 defense authorization bill (HR 2969) earmarked for anti-satellite weaponry.

The amendment sought to prevent the testing later this year of a "satellite-killer." It left untouched more than $200 million in the bill for research and development of space weaponry.

Quoting a general accounting office study, Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., said weaponry is "a lousy system" that will end up costing $15 billion but "will not do the job."

Rep. Ken Kramer, R-Colo., said that "without the development of this type of capability...the Soviets would be free to launch (a) first strike against us" from outer space.

Members voting yes wanted to delete $19 million for testing the anti-satellite weaponry.

Yes — Britt, Clarke.

No — Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Rose Hefner, James

Martin and Broyhill.
DEMOCRACY — By vote of 194 for and 215 against, the House rejected an amendment to kill the proposed National Endowment for Democracy.

The endowment is planned as a private sector effort to promote democratic ideals throughout the world, offsetting the totalitarian message.

Among organizations that would get federal grants to advocate democracy abroad are the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO. The endowment would cost taxpayers upwards of $20 million in fiscal 1984.

The vote occurred during debate on HR 2915, a state department funding bill later sent to the Senate.

Rep. Hank Brown, R-Colo., who wanted to kill the endowment, said "our democracy is a marvelous system," but that "to subsidize it with federal funds... is a real danger to the whole concept of democracy itself."

Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., said "our nation is engaged in a battle of ideas with authoritarian governments and this is one of the better ways of highlighting what our nation stands for."

Members voting yes wanted to block creation of the National Endowment for Democracy.

Yes — Hefner, James Martin and Broyhill.

No — Valentine, Whitley, Neal, Britt, Rose and Clarke.

No voting — Walter Jones, Ike Andrews.

Senate
CABLE TV — The Senate rejected, 44 for and 55 against, an amendment to keep telephone companies competitive with cable television in selling specialized data — such as news transmissions and banking and shopping services — to consumers in their homes.

The amendment was offered to a bill removing most local and state regulation of cable TV and setting down federal guidelines for the industry. The bill (S 66) was sent to the House.

AT&T was the driving force behind the amendment. It argued that because local Bell companies are regulated, they will be unable to compete with unregulated cable operations in offering into-the-home telecommunications services.

Sponsor James Abdnor, R-S.D., said cable companies are "not infant or insignificant competitors — they are truly the major economic alternative for a telephone company's most important source of revenue."

Opponent Robert Packwood, R-Ore., noted that specialized data transmissions now provide only a tiny share of cable companies' income. He said an competitive disadvantage faced by local phone companies can be addressed by Congress when it arises.

Senators voting yes wanted federal regulation of into-the-home data transmissions by cable television.

Yes — John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R.

HONORARIA — By a vote of 51 for and 41 against, the Senate adopted an amendment limiting senators' outside income from speeches, articles and appearances to 30 percent of their federal salary.

Presently, there is no ceiling.

When the limit takes effect next January (or later if senators act to defer it), senators will be able to earn up to $20,940 in honoraria.

A majority of senators accept honoraria, which usually is paid by special interests having a big financial stake in Senate action.

The amendment was attached to HR 3069, a fiscal 1983 appropriations bill later sent to conference with the House.

Sponsor Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said it was wrong "that senators should be excessively dependent on special interest groups for compensation."

Opponent Robert Dole, R-Kans., said that to really address the problem of special interests "we ought to be talking about political action committees and campaign contributions in the millions and millions of dollars."

Senators voting yes wanted to limit senators' honoraria to 30 percent.

Yes — East and Helms.
PAY RAISE — Senators voted, 49 for and 47 against, to raise their pay as of July 1 by 15 percent — to $69,800 annually.

The vote came during debate on HR 3069, later sent to conference with the House. Because House members already ear $69,800 the new Senate level appears certain to become law.

The amendment raising Senate pay also delayed until next January the limit on senators' earnings from speeches to special interests and other forms of honoraria.

Senators voting yes wanted to raise their pay to match that of House members and to delay for six months a new limit on their private income from honoraria.

No — East and Helms.

Adopt Plan For 'Monitoring'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has finalized a new monitoring system to ensure efficient operation of the school lunch program across the nation.

Under the plan, which has been in use on an interim basis for the last two years, the government hopes to foster better overall management of the lunch program by the states, monitor expenditure of the more than $2 billion in federal funds spent on school lunches and protect the nutritional value of the meals served to participating school children.

Under the finalized plan, states will be required to perform periodic on-site reviews of the lunch program in all school districts. They must assess local program operations against pre-determined performance standards and require corrective action if problems are found.

USDA has earmarked $4 million to help defray state expenses of the program, but should states fail to meet the plan's requirements, those administrative funds as well as others provided them by the federal government will be withdrawn.

Hams To Conduct Test

Members of the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club will participate in the 47th annual American Radio Relay League Field Day Emergency Preparedness Test from Saturday at 2 p.m. until Sunday at 2 p.m.

For this test, thousands of amateur radio operators (hams) in the United States and Canada will set up their stations in the open using only emergency power sources and portable antennas. They will contact as many operators as possible during the 24-hour period. These tests are designed to help hams refine operating skills necessary during disasters and times of emergency when normal channels of communication are disrupted.

In recognition of this event, Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed June 19-25 as Amateur Radio Week.

The operation site for the field day operation is behind the old Pitt County Memorial Hospital building. Members of the club will be on hand to answer any questions about amateur radio.

Field Day is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, a membership society of the U.S. and Canadian Amateur Radio Operators. Local Field Day chairman is Lee Hemink.

Church Firebombing Reported

Authorities in Macon County are investigating the reported firebombing of a white supremacist church of which a Greenville man is the assistant director.

Richard Becker of Greenville, who is serving at the Church of the Creator in Otto during the summer, said he was asleep in an apartment located above the church when a soft-drink bottle fashioned into a Molotov cocktail was hurled against the structure early last Thursday. The only damage reported was to the church sign and a garden hose that melted.

The church is operated by Ben Klassen of Florida, a native of the Ukraine, a former Florida state legislator and school teacher who has written two books advocating white supremacy, "The White Man's Bible" and "Nature's Eternal Religion," as well as a health book.

About 50 singers will be performing during the two-hour program. Admission tickets are priced at $3 and will be available at the door.

Two Collisions Investigated

Two persons were injured and an estimated $7,400 damage caused in two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Dorothy Johnson Joyner of 1903 Norcott Circle and Najib E. Habiby of 2705 E. Fourth St. collided about 11:27 p.m. at the intersection of 10th and Charles streets.

Police, who said Habiby and a passenger in his car were injured, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Joyner vehicle and $5,000 to the Habiby vehicle.

A car driven by Katie Lynn Powell of 604 Griffin St. collided with a parked car owned by William Lawrence Ross of Route 4, Greenville, about 8:20 p.m. on Griffin Street, 110 feet east of the Perkins Street intersection, causing $300 damage to the Powell car and $1,100 damage to the Ross vehicle.

Scholarship Winners Are Announced

Six of the 17 recipients of The University of North Carolina Board of Governors Medical Scholarships for 1983-84 will attend the East Carolina University School of Medicine, UNC officials have announced.

Six will attend the East Carolina University School of Medicine: Andrea V. Campbell of Greensboro, Karen Denise Roane of Fayetteville, Laddeus Leon Sutton of Kinston, Thaddeus Geron Sutton of Kinston, Rinson Aldo Weathers of Fayetteville and Valerie Cherise Williamson of Gastonia.

The other recipients included Stephen Leigh Kinney of Greenville, who will attend Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem.

The 1974 General Assembly authorized the scholarships as a means of providing increased medical education opportunities for financially disadvantaged students of all races. Each scholarship provides full payment of tuition and mandatory fees plus an annual stipend of $4,000.

Stolen Secrets Aiding Soviet

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union is using stolen technical secrets to help catch up with the West in developing high-technology weapons and communications systems, the editor of Jane's Military Communications yearbook says.

"The irony of the situation is that the more advanced and sophisticated Western electronic hardware becomes, the easier it becomes for the Soviet Union to acquire it," editor Bob Raggett wrote in the new edition of the authoritative annual published Tuesday.

He said the Soviets are buying sophisticated Western commercial equipment that can be used by the military and acquiring classified circuitry through clandestine deals with Western entrepreneurs.

"Recent evidence has shown a great increase in illegal dealing," he wrote. "The situation appears to be that the Soviet Union can acquire almost any electronic hardware it wants provided it is prepared to pay the right price."

Raggett said cutbacks in "crucial command, control, communications and intelligence programs" have slowed Western advances. He urged Western governments and defense establishments to intensify efforts to maintain their electronic edge.

He also warned that the West's nuclear-missile buildup to counter Moscow's arsenal is diverting badly needed funds from high-tech development that could be vital in the event of war.

The Soviets have intensified espionage to steal the West's high-tech secrets in the last 18 months. Western governments have responded by expelling scores of Soviet agents, many of them identified by intelligence agencies as key figures in Moscow's clandestine campaign.

Severe Shocks By Power Line

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A man, his daughter and another young boy suffered severe electrical shock Tuesday when the farm machinery they were riding struck a 13,000 volt power line, police said.

Thomas Lynn Colville, 55, his daughter Marlena, 9, both of Lillington, and Scott Wayne Mason, 16, of Sanford, received burns to 40 percent to 50 percent of their bodies in the 10:15 a.m.

The three were taken to Good Hope Hospital in Erwin and later transferred to North Carolina Memorial in Chapel Hill. Colville and his daughter were listed in critical condition while Mason was listed in serious condition.

Authorities To Release The Dammed Water

By The Associated Press

With a court injunction lifted, federal authorities planned to release more water into the runoff-swollen Colorado River as Arizona and California residents sandbagged against rising waters threatening their homes and recreational areas.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation said it would release thousands of cubic feet of water each second from Hoover, Parker and Davis dams today and again Thursday to keep the reservoirs from overflowing with runoff from snowmelt.

Hoover Dam is about 20 miles southeast of Las Vegas, Nev. Davis Dam, is about 55 miles downstream from Hoover, and Parker Dam is another 45 miles downstream from Davis.

Initial releases already had swamped campgrounds and pushed water into trailers, homes and businesses on the California and Arizona sides of the river before a federal judge granted a temporary restraining order to halt the planned flooding.

But the order by U.S. District Judge Manuel Real was dissolved Tuesday after being in effect less than a day.

The order, sought by affected municipalities, forced the bureau to cut back or freeze discharge rates from the dams and delayed by one day the schedule for increasing the release. It also gave residents extra time to fortify their property against the floodwaters.

"People are sandbagging, putting up retaining walls, putting plastic sheeting on embankments, using every conceivable trick," said George Pond, a spokesman for the San Bernardino, Calif., fire department.

The lawyers who filed the suit, Raymond Simpson and Thomas Russell, agreed to the lifting of the order after experts from the Bureau of Reclamation's Lower Colorado Regional Office said that severe, uncontrolled flooding would result unless discharges continued.

"It's like filling a bathtub. If the drain is stopped, eventually the water is going to be coming over the top," said Harlan Miller, a reclamation bureau engineer at Parker Dam.

Rising in Colorado's Rocky Mountains, the Colorado flows 1,450 miles through Utah, Arizona, the Grand Canyon, then forms Arizona's border with Nevada and California before crossing into Mexico and emptying into the Gulf of California.

Authorities closed 130 miles of the river to boat traffic in most of Arizona south to the Mexican border to prevent wakes from eating away at makeshift sandbag dikes.

Meanwhile, in western Colorado, a 15-foot wall of water that may have been caused by a dam break roared down Battlement Mesa Creek on Tuesday night — washing out roads, forcing the evacuation of several homes and stranding some campers, authorities said.

No injuries were reported and the water subsided after an initial surge, said Betsy Roberts of the Garfield County Sheriff's Department. The area upstream was so remote that officials had not been able to confirm the dam actually burst.

The creek flows into the Colorado and the possibility of a dam break prompted authorities downriver in Grand Junction to order evacuation of residents of the Connected Lakes area.

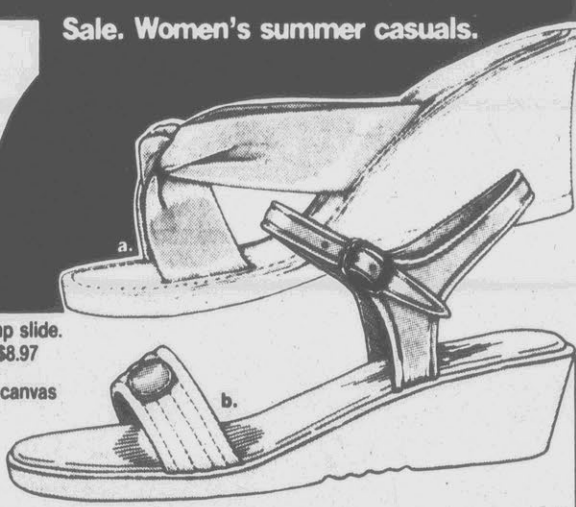

About half of the neighborhood's 300 residents had left earlier Tuesday because of fears the river would wash out an earthen dike near their homes, officials said.

Quintuplets, Mom, Said 'Satisfactory'

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The delivery took only two minutes. And suddenly, Pam and Dan Piser of suburban Olney, Md., had become parents of quintuplets. Like new parents everywhere, they cried.

The babies, four boys and a girl, were born almost two months prematurely Tuesday between 4:27 and 4:29 a.m. EDT at George Washington University Hospital to Mrs. Piser, 29, who had taken the fertility drug Pergonal.

Mother and babies were listed in satisfactory condition. The couple has no other children.

Quintuplets occur once in every 20-30 million births, according to a fact sheet issued by the hospital. With about 3.4 million births occurring annually in the United States, one case of quintuplets is anticipated every 10 to 15 years.

Yet the last set of quintuplets born in the United States is believed to be Aug. 4, 1982, to Mrs. Amy Chikaraishi in a suburban Chicago hospital.

America's first surviving quintuplets were born in 1963 to Mary Ann Fisher in South Dakota.

A team of 32 specialists, including five obstetricians and 10 neonatologists, delivered the Piser babies by Caesarean section. They weighed between 2½ and 3½ pounds, doctors said. The smallest was the girl.

There is a possibility that Mrs. Piser was carrying a sixth, unborn baby, said Dr. Allen B. Weingold, chief obstetrician who directed the delivery.

"There may have been another," Weingold said. "I can't comment on whether one died." He added that the placenta had been sent to the hospital laboratory for a pathology report. Hospital spokeswoman Irene Haske said results would not be available for two days.

Dr. Maureen C. Edwards, the hospital's director of newborn services who assisted in the delivery, said all five babies registered 99 on the APGAR test of such newborn vital signs as heart beat, respiratory function and color. Ten is a perfect score.

"The babies were as well in the delivery room as term babies," she said.

The doctor added that Mrs. Piser, who was admitted to the hospital five weeks ago, felt and touched all the babies after they were born. She was awake during the delivery and her husband was at her side.

"Our lives have been enriched beyond measure," the Pisers said in a statement released by the hospital. They called the birth a "medical miracle" and thanked the hospital health team for its help.

At a hospital press conference where the births were announced, Weingold said tests in the second month of pregnancy showed that Mrs. Piser was carrying more than one child. By the 11th week, it was clear there were five, he said. Her due date was August 13.

Weingold said that between 20 and 30 percent of women who take fertility drugs have multiple births. He added that Mrs. Piser, who was given Pergonal by her personal physician, stands about 5 feet 5 inches tall and gained 38 pounds in her pregnancy.

Mrs. Piser works as a secretary in the office of the commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Her husband is a management consultant.

The couple, who did not attend the hospital press conference, planned to hold one themselves later in the week.

No Grand Jury Inquiry Into Transcript Report

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A special federal grand jury will not be convened to investigate how The Fayetteville Times obtained a transcript of a secret conversation between Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and an undercover FBI agent, the newspaper reported today.

The Times reported that Doug McCulloch, assistant U.S. attorney, told newspaper officials that while the FBI has begun an inquiry into the matter, a grand jury will not be convened because of similar cases being rejected by the U.S. Attorney General's office.

McCulloch said the attorney general turned down a similar request for a grand jury probe for sources of news leaks in connection with ABSCAM cases, which involved congressmen receiving bribes.

The request for a federal grand jury probe in the Green-transcript case was made Friday by N.C. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten after The Times published parts of the transcript Thursday. At the same time, Edmisten ordered an investigation of the matter by the State Bureau of Investigation.

Green, a probable candidate for governor in 1984, was indicted Monday by a Wake County Grand Jury on five charges of conspiring to take $10,000 a month in bribes and accepting a $2,000 bribe to influence the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission and other state agencies.

On Tuesday, two SBI agents assigned to search for The Times' sources talked with Times Managing Editor Tom English Jr. at the newspaper's office.

The agents, Roger Allen and Joe Momier, discussed with English how they could arrange an interview with reporter Skip Hilday, who wrote the transcript story.

Hilday recently was hired by The Charlotte Observer and left employment of The Times on Friday. His resignation was not related to the Green story.

English told the agents that Hilday has been instructed not to reveal his sources, and The Times has obtained legal counsel for him. But English said Hilday will meet with the agents.

"We will not lie to you, we simply have no comment," English told the agents.

The agents said they already have interviewed several people who had or may have had access to the transcript, including Edmisten, other SBI agents, U.S. Attorney Sam Currin and other federal officials involved in the Green case. They declined to reveal the number of people they have interviewed.

After the agents said they are exploring the possibility that the transcript may have been stolen, English told them that the newspaper did not steal it.

Tom Elmore, an aide to Edmisten, refused to confirm that Edmisten had been interviewed by the SBI agents.

Vacations Pose Risk Of Stress

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer

The vacations that Americans take each year to get away from it all are often the most stressful times of the year, says a health researcher at the University of North Carolina at Asheville.

M. W. Buckalew, coordinator of the school's Health Promotion Program, says most people set too many goals for their vacations, allowing too little time for relaxation.

"Americans don't know how to take a vacation to relax," said Buckalew, author of "Learning to Control Stress." "The American tendency is to work at everything, including vacation."

The result, he said, is a getaway as tightly scheduled as an executive's workday. Each day's activities are planned ahead of time with certain goals to meet, leaving little time for quality time with family members or simple relaxation.

"If the family fails to get to their destination at a certain time or arrive at the restaurant at a certain time, then the vacation becomes tense," Buckalew said. "So with the same time schedules to meet as the ones at work, the vacation becomes stressful and not very much fun."

Research conducted for the past 15 years by researchers at the University of Washington School of Medicine shows that next to the Christmas holidays, vacation time is the most stressful time of the year.

Researchers Thomas Holmes and Richard Rahe base their conclusions on a scale they devised, called a Life Change Scale, that shows the reactions of thousands of people to 43 stressful events. According to the scale, the death of a relative or spouse is the most stressful event. Christmas and vacations are the only annual events listed on the scale.

To take some of the stress out of a vacation, Buckalew suggests a skeleton plan that sets some goals and destinations for every other day, leaving some flexibility in the vacation.

"But I don't say leave a vacation completely unplanned," he said. "Then it becomes very stressful because there is a continuing debate on what to do with the time."

Then he recommends examining priorities to be sure that the goal of getting to the vacation point, such as Disney World, doesn't override the goal of spending pleasant time with the family.

"In order to have a relaxing vacation, it's important to spend time on having fun with the family," he said. "It's a good time to work on relationships with your children and spouse in an unhurried atmosphere."

For the worker who can't leave the office behind, Buckalew recommends setting aside one hour every other day to make phone calls or to catch up on paperwork that can't wait. He also suggests carrying a note pad to jot down a random worry so that it won't become a lingering distraction that can spoil vacation time.

"Mostly it's just a matter of determining ahead of time that your vacation is to wind down and relax, not to gear up," he said.

Governors Urge Sweeping Changes For Education

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A task force of governors, educators and business executives, warning that "a real emergency is upon us," today called for sweeping reforms in public education "to raise both the floor and ceiling of achievement in America."

The Task Force on Education for Economic Growth echoed a Reagan administration panel's call for tougher standards, more homework and longer school days and years, and it strongly endorsed merit pay for teachers.

Three governors — James B. Hunt Jr. of North Carolina, Pierre S. du Pont IV of Delaware and Charles S. Robb of Virginia — were holding a news conference today with IBM Chairman Frank T. Cary and Frank Press, president of the National Academy of Science, to release the report, "Action For Excellence."

The 41-member task force adopted the recommendations unanimously at a meeting in Research Triangle Park, N.C., on May 4. The group was formed late last year by Hunt under the auspices of the Education Commission of the States in Denver.

The report said the federal government should not "shirk" its responsibilities and financial commitment to education, but emphasized what states and local communities can do to pull schools up by their bootstraps.

It urged deeper involvement by the business community in setting goals for American schools and helping them reach those goals.

"We have chosen to focus on action at the state and local level ... because it is here that the chief responsibility for education lies," said the report, adding, "important national commitments, in our judgment, do not only trickle down, they also bubble up."

In an eight-point action plan it urged:

— "Drastic" improvements in state and local methods of recruiting, training and paying teachers.

— Making schools "more intense and more productive," with no-frills curriculum and exacting standards.

— Setting up systems to provide "quality assurance in education," including ways to measure teachers' effectiveness and reward excellence.

— Making better use of existing school dollars.

— Developing in each state plans to improve public schools from kindergarten through grade 12.

— Establishing partnerships between businesses and schools.

— Improved leadership and management in the schools with principals setting the academic pace, not absorbed by grounds and building care and paperwork.

— Stepping up efforts to serve students at the top of the academic ladder as well as those at the bottom.

The task force said its members shared "a conviction that a real emergency is upon us ... and a passionate, optimistic conviction that action, soon enough and in the right directions, can succeed."

"Technological change and global competition make it imperative to equip students in public schools with skills that go beyond the 'basics,'" it said. "The challenge is not simply to better educate our elite, but to raise both the floor and ceiling of achievement in America."

"Our future success as a nation — our national defense, our social stability and well-being and our national prosperity — will depend on our ability to improve education and training for millions of individual citizens," it said.

The National Commission on Excellence in Education, the Twentieth Century Fund and other groups have issued similarly critical reports in the past two months, and several other major reports are due in the months ahead.

Education has leaped to the forefront of the 1984 presidential race, with President Reagan campaigning ardently for merit pay for teachers and his Democratic rivals castigating his past efforts to cut federal aid to schools.

This report, like the others, said the nation is giving too few rewards — monetary and otherwise — to its schoolteachers.

The task force noted that Montgomery County, Md., an affluent Washington suburb, pays clerks in the county-run liquor stores $12,479 after two years, but teachers with college degrees and the same amount of experience only $12,323.

The task force said tenure makes it "difficult, if not impossible" to get rid of poor teachers. It called on state boards of education and higher education, working with teachers and school administrators, to establish methods to measure teacher effectiveness so that the best can be rewarded and the worst improved or weeded out.

The task force said it will stay in business to promote its action plan and to establish a clearinghouse of information and ideas on school improvement.

In addition to Hunt, du Pont and Robb, its roster includes the governors of Colorado, Florida, Indiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Utah, and the chairmen or chief executives of such firms as RCA Corp., Texas Instruments, Ford Motor Co., Xerox, Control Data and Time Inc.

Registration For Recreation Is Set

GRIFTON — Registration for the Grifton Summer Recreation Program will be held Saturday from 9 a.m.-noon at the town park building on St. David Street.

A registration fee of $15 per child will entitle the child to participate in various activities beginning June 28 and continuing through Aug. 4 from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

The six-week recreation program is offered to local children ages 5 and up. Activities include arts, crafts, sports, movies, group names and field trips. Field trips will include roller skating, swimming and a trip to Fort Macon and the Marine Resource Aquarium near Morehead.

Optional activities, including gymnastics and karate, will be offered at a small additional fee. A gymnastics clinic will be held the week of Aug. 1 from 1-2:30 p.m. by Pitt County Community Schools with Jon Rose of East Carolina University as the instructor.

Karate will be taught by Barbara Tyndall of the Stroud School of Martial Arts in Kinston.

Drama activities will also be offered by Grifton Recreation and Community Schools for children ages 5-11 years. The director is Mary Lou Mann, a member of the Curtain Players Mime Company. For further information call 524-5413.

For registration, a child's name, age, grade, type of insurance, medical problems, family doctor and phone number must be available. For more information call director Joyce Roberts at 524-4020.

Horse Arena To Require Subsidy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's controversial horse arena in Raleigh will cost the North Carolina State Fair about $100,000 a year, according to the Department of Agriculture.

The subsidy from the fair is necessary so that the area, together with a similar state-owned facility in Asheville, will show enough profit to pay off a $1.6 million bond issue authorized by the Council of State on June 7.

Money from the bond issue will be used to build 500 horse stalls at Raleigh and 250 at Asheville, officials said.

Annexation Bill Nears Passage

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Enactment of a revised annexation law that one supporter jokingly said had received more scrutiny than the Bill of Rights and Magna Carta was expected today.

The bill Tuesday received tentative approval of the state House, which beat back several proposed amendments before voting 93-14 to support it. A final vote was scheduled for today.

Approved by the Senate last month, the bill would require quicker notification of property owners and force city officials to resort to first-class mailings if necessary to make sure all concerned parties are informed.

Annexed areas would have to receive city water and sewer service within two years. If not, residents would be able to seek a delay in their payment of municipal taxes.

Cities would have to assume a portion of the debts of volunteer fire departments they absorb and provide employment or severance pay for the firefighters.

The bill also repeals all local legislation regarding annexation. It has drawn the support of the N.C. League of Municipalities, which represents over 400 towns and cities.

Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, successfully warded off four amendments including one that would have allowed counties to exempt themselves from the law.

"This is an issue none of us particularly enjoys ... one we'd rather stay away from," he said. "I've heard it said that more study has gone into this than the Bill of Rights and the Magna Carta ... It's very good, uniform and fair."

Rep. William Clark, D-Cumberland, said the bill "strikes a fine balance" between the needs of expanding cities and residents in outlying areas. "It has proved to be a strong, good policy for North Carolina," he said.

During several public hearings, the most controversial issue was the bill's lack of a provision for letting residents of areas to be annexed vote on the proposal.

Last week, several speakers told the House Judiciary I Committee the denial of voting privileges smacked of Nazism.

The league of municipalities strongly opposed annexation referenda, saying they would bring city growth to a standstill.

Rep. Henry Tyson, D-Cumberland, introduced Tuesday an amendment that would have allowed counties to opt out of the law via referendum. His amendment included no deadline for such votes, enabling county commissioners to wait indefinitely before scheduling them.

"This would protect the people's right to vote," said Tyson.

Wright responded that there was no constitutional provision for voting on annexation.

The amendment was tabled, 67-38.

Also tabled was an amendment sponsored by Rep. Joe Hudson, D-Union, that would have made it harder to annex if four of six services could be provided rural residents by either county government or private enterprise. The services included fire, police, water, sewer, zoning and subdivision ordinances.

Hudson said city officials usually claim that annexations are needed to extend services when many of the services already are available to people in the disputed areas. He said the municipal officials' primary goal in annexation usually is expanding the tax base.

The House also rejected two amendments to retain local ordinances that would be eliminated under the bill. One would have barred Walnut Creek, an incorporated Wayne County town consisting of a country club, golf course and a few houses, from annexing surrounding farmland.

The other would have barred Roanoke Rapids' city school district lines from expanding along with the city limits. Both amendments were rejected by the Senate.

Wright said the problems both amendments would have addressed were handled adequately under the bill.

Tax Package To Committee

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A $208.1 million tax package approved by the state Senate and a $240.1 million revenue proposal from the House are going to a conference committee where the differences will be resolved.

With almost no debate, the Senate voted 41-6 Tuesday to support its version of the tax package. The House quickly voted not to go along with the Senate plan.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey appointed a conference committee to resolve the differences and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green was expected to name Senate delegates to the committee today.

House and Senate leaders differ on their estimates about how long the committee's work will take, ranging from three days to more than a week.

Both the House and Senate plans would raise the tax on new cars, levy a tax on used cars and vacation home rentals and eliminate the $200 interest exclusion on income taxes.

The Senate plan also would raise the estimates of revenue growth for 1983-84 from 7.6 percent to 8.6 percent and adjust the accounting procedures for paying teachers who select a 12-month pay plan.

The House plan would increase the auto license and title transfer fees, raise the tax on alcoholic beverages by about 10 percent, reduce the merchants' discount for collecting sales taxes, levy a $40 per machine tax on video games, levy a 2-cent-per-mile weight-distance tax on tractor-trailer trucks and speed up of some corporate taxes.

Five Senate Republicans and one Democrat, George Marion of Surry County, voted against the tax proposal Tuesday.

Marion said he was worried about projecting a higher revenue growth and relying on a windfall that has not won full approval of the state treasurer and state auditor.

Sen. Don Kincaid, R-Caldwell, chastized the Legislature for failing to trim enough money from Gov. Jim Hunt's proposed 1983-85 budget. He said the state budget has doubled since 1974-75, the last year the state had a Republican governor.

"You better be concerned because private industry is having to cut back and government is not," he said. "Whether you be a Republican or a Democrat you have to be concerned."

FLAG TIME — ECU senior Tim Whisenant of Goldsboro makes the final adjustment to an American flag at his Greenville residence, 1005 Forbes St. Whisenant said he had meant to have it up for Flag Day, June 14, but had been delayed. "I like flying the American flag, and with July 4 coming up I think it's a good time to display it," he says. He was assisted in placing the flag on the peak of the house by a friend, Adel Kadamani, an ECU student from Lebanon. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Teleconference Said Arranged

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

State education officials will meet with colleagues in China and Switzerland today using a machine that transmits black-and-white still pictures and sound.

The teleconference will take place at the quarterly meeting of the board of the Agency for Public Telecommunications in the Governor's Press Conference Room.

The connection was arranged by Dr. John Thomas, chancellor of Appalachian State University in Boone and vice chairman of the APT board. The university administers the China-ASU Project, a cultural and educational exchange program between the Northeast Institute of Technology and ASU.

ASU sponsored the first teleconference with Chinese officials May 12, using the North Carolina Teleconference Network site in Boone.

Officials of the China-ASU project say they hope to arrange teleconference exchanges between Chinese and Watauga County school students.

Slow-scan teleconferences use telephone lines to transmit black and white still pictures from one slow-scan unit to another. The sound portion of the teleconference is transmitted over a separate telephone line with special equipment.

Before the China connection, APT board member Wade Hargrove, special counsel to the American delegation at the World Administrative Radio Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, will hold a conference with board members.

Court Approves Tavern Suit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Court of Appeals Tuesday ordered a lower court to try a $1 million lawsuit against the owners of a Rockingham County tavern by two victims of a 1981 automobile accident.

The court ruled that Shirley K. Hutchens of Reidsville and her son, Mark W. Hutchens, were entitled to sue the owners of a Reidsville tavern that served beer to an intoxicated man who later crashed his car into theirs.

The accident on March 19, 1981, killed Mrs. Hutchens' husband, Otis W. Hutchens, and injured her and her son.

The appellate ruling reversed the decision of Rockingham Superior Court Judge James M. Long, who dismissed the ruling.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened higher today, extending gains from a late rally Tuesday, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials heading toward uncharted heights.

The Dow Jones industrials rose 1.20 points to 1,248.60 in the first half hour. If the gains hold, the stock market's best-known indicator would surpass the record-high close set last Thursday of 1,248.30.

Stocks rising in price held a lead of nearly 2-1 over falling issues in the early going on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts attributed the gains to signs that the economic recovery is gaining strength and fading fears that the rebound would be derailed by rising interest rates.

In economic developments today, the Labor Department said consumer prices rose 0.5 percent in May, slightly below the 0.6 percent rise in April. The report was in line with analysts' expectations and reflected a recent upturn in energy prices.

Economists continued to predict inflation for the full year would be held close to last year's 3.9 percent increase, which was the smallest climb in a decade.

In early trading today, 10 of the 15 most active issues were unchanged on the NYSE, including American Telephone & Telegraph at 64½, Anheuser-Busch at 66½, Raytheon at 53¼, and Mobil at 33. General Electric rose ¼ to 57½, and American Express was off ¼ at 72½.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrials recovered from a 6-point deficit at noon to close up 8.22 points to 1,247.40.

Advances outpaced declines by about 8 to 7 on the NYSE after trailing for most of the day.

Big Board volume rose to 102.88 million shares from 84.27 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .75 to 98.71. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 5.99 to 488.70. Both indexes reached new highs.

Satellite Released And Recovered By Shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — American astronauts placed a satellite into free-flying orbit today, circled it at 17,000 mph and then re-captured it in a rendezvous that demonstrated the shuttle's ability to reach and retrieve crippled spacecraft.

The satellite provided the first photograph of a shuttle in orbit, showing the craft against a brilliant backdrop of a blue, sunlit Earth. "There were lots of oohs and ahs" in Mission Control, a spokesman said.

In the day-long chase-and-capture, astronauts John Fabian and Sally K. Ride were using Challenger's 50-foot-long arm to lift the Shuttle Pallet Satellite (SPAS) into space, reclaim it, and restore it for Friday's return.

Weather remained a question mark for the ship's first Florida landing, scheduled for 6:53 a.m. EDT. As Challenger passed overhead, a controller told the crew: "You'll note the weather is still very unfavorable."

Air Force forecasters later issued an iffy forecast, with the possibility of scattered clouds and rain showers in the area on Friday morning.

In the event of bad weather, the shuttle could orbit at least until Sunday, or it could be directed to Edwards Air Force Base in California.

Fabian, working from controls on the shuttle flight deck, flexed the end effector — read hand — of Challenger's robot arm, picking up the West German scientific satellite and releasing it.

"That SPAS is a nice flying little vehicle," said Crippen as the craft moved into its own orbit 180 miles above Earth. Crippen and Rick Hauck drifted the shuttle 1,000 feet away, then fired thrusters to accomplish the rendezvous.

"We've got the SPAS on the arm," confirmed Fabian. One "grapple" was accomplished by Dr. Norman Thagard, who is aboard to study space sickness.

The rendezvous test is a major milestone for the shuttle. The ability to pluck an object from orbit will be crucial when shuttles are sent aloft for satellite servicing and repair missions.

The first such mission is set for the shuttle's 13th mission in April 1984, when Crippen will head a team of astronauts to repair the Solar Maximum Satellite. It failed after three fuses blew soon after launch in 1980; the plan is for Crippen's crew to bring the satellite into the cargo bay, replace the control system and return the satellite to space.

For today's test, NASA's seventh shuttle crew arose an hour early — about 10:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday — to test the 3,300-pound SPAS.

"Beautiful living color," the control center said after SPAS relayed a first glimpse of the shuttle. In turnabout, Challenger cameras relayed pictures of the satellite.

of the annexation requests.

Mac Carley, assistant city attorney, explained that he had recommended that the city take no action for a while on standards and services annexations but he noted that the bill before the legislature does not affect voluntary annexations.

The board approved a preliminary plat for Court "C" of Twin Oaks Townhomes, located at the intersection of 14th Street and Laura Lane, adjacent to Twin Oaks subdivision.

Skip Browder, staff planner, said the plat shows a three building, 20-unit development that was submitted initially as Twin Oaks Villas. He said there has been some concern expressed by nearby residents.

Jack Morgan Jr., a new resident of Lisa Lane, said a two-story unit would be located only 30 feet from his property line. Morgan said he would not oppose a one-story unit but the single two-story townhome on the corner lot "will stick out like a sore thumb." He suggested that the tract is too small to develop 20 units and he questioned why single family homes are not proposed instead.

Browder said the development is within density guidelines and is allowed under the existing zone.

Commissioners approved a preliminary plat for Shamrock Townhomes, located south of Fifth Street some 200 feet from the Albermarle Avenue intersection. In approving the plat, the board members voted to request that the public works department consider backyard garbage pickup for the five planned apartments.

The board had questioned the proposed placement of a garbage container on Fifth Street and Rick Miller said it would seem to be easier to provide backyard service. Roberson said it would be up to the public works director to allow backyard pickup under the current ordinance.

Ms. Barbara Fenner, who opposed the placement of the container on Fifth Street, voted against plat approval.

The planning board voted to recommend that the council approve a request by Joe Laney, executive director of the Housing Authority, to close a section of Taylor Street in the West Meadowbrook redevelopment area.

Roberson said the city has entered into a contract with the Authority for the sale of 26 city-owned parcels in Meadowbrook to be developed with housing units. He said that in order to develop the sites to their capacity, the Authority asked that Taylor Street right-of-way be withdrawn from dedication from the southern right-of-way line of Moore Street south to the dead end.

Laney noted in a letter to Roberson that the section of Taylor has never been physically opened and the street closing will facilitate development of a portion of the housing program.

Several residents who own property in the West Meadowbrook area were at the meeting and were assured that the street closing did not affect the segment of Taylor north of Moore Street.

Surprised Over Homers

By The Associated Press

Home run hitters like Gary Roenicke and Cliff Johnson usually know when they have unloaded a dinger, but sometimes they're not so sure.

They each slammed two homers Tuesday night, accounting for four runs, and then expressed surprise over one of the long balls.

"I was surprised as anybody that the second homer went out," Roenicke said of his eighth-inning blast off New York's Shane Rawley which snapped a 2-2 tie and powered the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-2 victory over the Yankees. "I didn't think it was going out until I saw (center fielder Jerry) Mumphrey go up against the fence and then not come down with the ball. It was a fastball out over the plate. "I said, 'I wish I had pulled it more.'"

There was no doubt about Roenicke's two-homer in the fourth, a blast deep into the left field bleachers.

Johnson, who hit a tape-measure shot with the bases empty in the sixth inning, drilled a three-run homer in the first off Minnesota's Bryan Oelkers as the Toronto Blue Jays whipped the Twins 8-3.

"I was kind of surprised on the first one," he said. "I didn't think it had the height to go out."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Texas Rangers nipped the California Angels 3-2, the Kansas City Royals beat the Oakland A's 4-2, the Cleveland Indians downed the Boston Red Sox 3-1, the Milwaukee Brewers trounced the Detroit Tigers 10-3 and the Chicago White Sox defeated the Seattle Mariners 4-2.

Roenicke's first homer followed a walk to Eddie Murray and the 2-0 Baltimore lead stood up until New York's Graig Nettles homered in the top of the eighth. With one out in the bottom of the inning, Murray singled and Roenicke again homered. The Orioles added another run on doubles by Benny Ayala and Rich Dauer. Storm Davis and winner Tippy Martinez scattered eight hits in ending the Yankees' five-game winning streak.

The Yankees have lost 10 straight at Memorial Stadium — they were 0-7 last year — and are 4-17 in Baltimore during the last three seasons.

Blue Jays 8, Twins 3

Johnson's four RBIs and three by Garth Iorg helped rookie pitcher Jim Acker record his first major league victory. Acker, who was making his first start after 14 relief appearances, was touched for one run and two hits in five innings. Roy Lee Jackson and Randy Moffitt protected the Blue Jays' third consecutive victory and eighth in their last 10 games.

The Blue Jays jumped on Bryan Oelkers for four runs in the first inning, capped by Johnson's 13th home run of the season. Johnson and Willie Upshaw homered in the sixth.

Rangers 3, Angels 2

Larry Parrish drove in two runs with a homer and double and Danny Darwin scattered eight hits in 7 1-3 innings before needing help from Dave Schmidt. Singles by Buddy Bell and Parrish and George Wright's double gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. Wayne Tolleson singled and Parrish doubled him home in the fifth and Parrish hit his 12th home run of the season to give the Rangers a 3-1 lead in the seventh.

California right fielder Reggie Jackson was treated for bruised ribs after he ran into a fence chasing a foul fly in the fourth. He returned to the clubhouse during the game and is expected to miss 3-5 days.

Royals 4, A's 2

Rookie Cliff Pastornicky belted a two-run homer and Frank White drove in a run for the 10th consecutive game to back the eight-hit pitching of Paul Splittorff and Dan Quisenberry. Pastornicky, whose first major league hit was a three-run homer on Sunday, slammed a pitch from Steve McCatty into the left-field seats to give the Royals a 2-0 lead in the second inning.

In the bottom of the eighth, U.L. Washington was safe on an error by Oakland first baseman Wayne Gross, stole second and scored on a single by White, who set a club record by collecting at least one RBI for the 10th game in a row.

"I wasn't thinking about the record," said White, a second baseman who built his reputation as one of baseball's premier defensive specialists. "I was just trying to hit the ball to right field so we could get an insurance run."

Indians 3, Red Sox 1

Gorman Thomas drilled his second double of the game, a two-out, two-run bases-loaded shot in the eighth inning, to snap a tie. The Indians loaded the bases off Bruce Hurst, who lost his fifth consecutive start, when Alan Bannister singled and one out later Mike Hargrove and Andre Thornton walked. Luis Aponte replaced Hurst and surrendered the game-winning double to Thomas, who also doubled in the second inning and scored on Toby Harrah's single. Winner Bert Blyleven gave up 10 hits but notched his third complete game.

Brewers 10, Tigers 3

Moose Haas scattered eight hits and Cecil Cooper hit a two-run homer as Milwaukee snapped a four-game losing streak. Besides Cooper's homer, which highlighted a four-run ninth, Ned Yost, Charlie Moore and Jim Gantner drove in two runs apiece for the Brewers.

White Sox 4, Mariners 2

Carlton Fisk and Harold Baines smashed consecutive solo home runs off Bob Stoddard with two out in the seventh inning Tuesday night to give Chicago its third consecutive triumph. Richard Dotson limited Seattle to six hits before giving way to Juan Agosto in the eighth. Seattle has lost five games in a row.

MacPhail Clears Billy Of Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — American League President Lee MacPhail doesn't approve of the language Billy Martin used to a newspaperwoman, but he says the offense wasn't serious enough to penalize the volatile manager of the New York Yankees.

MacPhail absolved Martin Tuesday of charges that he screamed obscenities in a confrontation last Friday night with Deborah Henschel, who was on research assignment from the New York Times and was interviewing players in the Yankee clubhouse.

The league president's statement ended an investigation begun following a formal protest by the Baseball Writers Association of America. MacPhail talked with Martin and others who were in the clubhouse when the incident occurred.

"This includes a reporter, a photographer, a trainer, several players, and a coach," noted MacPhail. "Each individual confirms that Martin's statements were basically as he reported them. I have been unable to talk to the representative of the Times — the Times, apparently, feeling this would be improper."

Martin said he did not know Henschel and that when he asked her to leave, she refused, saying she was from the Times and had credentials. Martin told MacPhail he ordered Henschel out of the clubhouse in stronger terms, using language common in major league clubhouses.

"Based on the information we have been able to gather, I must hold there is no cause for serious disciplinary action against Mr. Martin," MacPhail said. "The American League does not approve of the language he used, but the language used does not far transcend language used in a professional baseball clubhouse. The Yankees have already apologized to the New York Times. The American League regrets any embarrassment which the representative of the Times may have suffered."

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, who had been reported on the brink of firing Martin from his third tenure just before the incident, apologized to Henschel and the newspaper the morning after the incident but said he would wait for the results of MacPhail's investigation before taking any other action.

Joseph Vecchione, sports editor of the Times, said Tuesday, "We've seen his (MacPhail's) statement and taken note of it. We stand on what we had in the paper Saturday morning. We've said everything we care to say in that story. This has changed nothing."

Baker Breaks No-Hit Bid

By The Associated Press

The San Diego Padres are still waiting for a no-hitter, despite the best efforts of Tim Lollar.

Lollar had Dodger Stadium buzzing Tuesday night as he breezed through six innings by holding Los Angeles hitless. Then, with one out in the seventh, Dusty Baker broke the spell with a clean single to left.

And, after Bill Russell led off the ninth with another single, Luis DeLeon came on to retire the side in order as the Padres beat the Dodgers 2-0.

"Pitching a no-hitter is not the foremost thing on my mind," Lollar said. "I'm not saying I wouldn't want one, but the main thing is to help the club."

Meanwhile, the Padres — who came into existence in 1969 — and the New York Mets remain the only teams in the National League that have not produced no-hitters.

In other NL games, St. Louis blanked New York 5-0, Pittsburgh shelled Chicago 8-4, Houston beat Atlanta 5-0, Cincinnati got past San Francisco 6-5 in 16 innings and Philadelphia and Montreal split a doubleheader, the Phillies winning the opener 8-1 and the Expos taking the nightcap 5-4 in 12 innings.

Lollar, 3-4, struck out six, walked three and knocked in the game's first run with a fifth-inning sacrifice fly.

The 27-year-old left-hander, bothered by elbow problems earlier in the year, had pitched effectively against Cincinnati in his last outing.

"In the past, I wasn't healthy," Lollar said. "It wasn't the real me. I had a lot of pain in my arm. I look at these two starts as a new beginning."

"I was tired going into the ninth inning," he said. "That's been strange territory for me this year."

Added San Diego Manager Dick Williams: "He threw great. (Catcher Terry) Kennedy came to me in the seventh and thought he was losing a little."

Garry Templeton singled in an unearned run in the sixth against Los Angeles starter Alejandro Pena, now 6-1.

The victory was San Diego's fourth in a row. Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda, who dropped Baker from third to fifth in the lineup, was left looking for other ways to break his team's recent hitting slump.

"I'm not saying he didn't pitch a great game, but right now we make anyone look good," Lasorda said.

Cardinals 6, Mets 0

Neil Allen, traded to St. Louis last week, shackled his former team on four hits through eight innings. Allen, who was dealt along with pitcher Rick Ownbey for first baseman Keith Hernandez, raised his record to 3-7.

St. Louis reliever Doug Bair came on to retire the Mets in order in the ninth. After the game, Bair was sent to the Detroit Tigers for a player to be named later.

Rookie Andy Van Slyke, recently called up from the minors, hit his first big-league homer and George Hendrick drove in two other St. Louis runs.

Pirates 8, Cubs 4

Mike Easler and Jason Thompson provided the offensive spark to help Rick Rhoden, 4-7, struggle to an 11-hit complete game. Easler doubled twice and drove in three runs while Thompson went 3-for-3 and knocked in two runs.

The Pirates picked on Chicago's Dickie Noles, 0-3, who was making his first start since the opening week of the season. He was on the disabled list from April 12 to June 4 while taking part in an alcohol rehabilitation program.

Pittsburgh, which swept a doubleheader from the Cubs Monday, has now won three in a row, its longest victory streak since opening the season with five straight wins.

Astros 5, Braves 0

Mike Scott needed just 81 pitches in tossing a six-hitter. Scott, 3-3, faced only 29 batters in handing Atlanta its fifth loss in six games.

Ray Knight went 4-for-4 with two doubles for Houston.

Phil Garner gave the Astros a 1-0 lead in the first inning with his ninth homer, off loser Phil Niekro, 2-6.

Phillies 8-4, Expos 1-5

Andre Dawson's leadoff homer in the bottom of the 12th inning salvaged a doubleheader split for Montreal. Philadelphia won the opener behind Joe Morgan's two-run homer and solo shots by Mike Schmidt and Gary Matthews.

In the second game, Schmidt blasted a two-run homer, his 14th, to give the Phillies a 3-1 lead in the sixth. Dawson's 13th homer came on the second pitch of the game thrown by Porfi Altamirano, 1-3.

Reds 6, Giants 5

Paul Householder singled with one out in the top of the 16th, moved to second on rookie Nick Esasky's hit and scored on Ron Oester's single to end the five-hour, 10-minute marathon.

The Reds put runners in scoring position with less than two outs in eight of the last 10 innings.

Both team scored a run in the 14th, and each team used six pitchers.

True Value 3

Wellcome 2

True Value Hardward pulled off a 3-2 upset of Wellcome yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League and knocked the losers out of a share of first place in the standings.

The contest was a rare one for Little League age — one in which no errors were committed by either team. Each team got six hits, but it was a wild pitch that proved to be the most fateful play of all.

Wellcome got on the scoreboard first, scoring a run in the top of the third. True Value rallied in the fifth to score twice, taking a 2-1 lead. Wellcome, however, picked up a second run in the top of the sixth, tying it up.

But in the bottom of the sixth, it was True Value's turn to score again, and it pushed over the winning run. Gamal Hunter led off the frame with a walk and Brooks Honeycutt was inserted as a pinch runner. He moved up when Graig Willoughby was hit by a pitch and when Eric Daniels singled. From third, he scored on a wild pitch to give True Value the upset victory.

Daniels had two hits to lead the True Value hitting, while Blake Stallings had a pair for Wellcome.

Coca-Cola 10

Jaycees 9

Coca-Cola scored four times in the fifth inning, including a three-run homer by Walter Gatlin, then held off a Jaycee rally to gain a 10-9 North State Little League victory yesterday.

The win was the sixth straight for the Coke team.

The Jaycees pushed over four runs in the top of the first to take the initial lead. Coke came back to score one in the second, but the Jaycees matched that in the top of the third. Coke rallied for two in the third as Andy Miller cracked a two-run homer, trimming the lead to 5-3.

Three more runs in the fourth frame pushed Coke into the lead, 6-5. Miller again homered for Coke with another two-run smash. The Jaycees came up with two in the top of the fifth, regaining the lead, 7-6.

But in the bottom of the fifth, Coke rallied again, scoring four times to put the game away. Derrick Clark reached on a two-out single and Derrick Hines was safe on a two-base error. Miller singled, driving in Clark, and Gatlin polished off the scoring with a three-run homer.

The Jaycees tried to rally, scoring twice, but failed to pick up the tying run again.

Miller, Mike Smith and Kevin Jordan each had three hits for Coke, while Todd Taylor had two. Michael Thompson had a pair of hits to pace the Jaycees.

Shop-Eze 7

Garris-Evans 5

Shop-Eze Foodland inched past Garris-Evans, 7-6, in the first game of the Prep League's post-season double elimination tournament last night.

Hendrix & Dail faces First State Bank in the other first round game, set Thursday.

Garris-Evans pushed over two runs in the first inning, while Shop-Eze picked up one in the frame, then tied it up with one in the second. Both teams scored single runs in the third, and both scored twice in the fifth for a 5-5 tie.

It stayed that way until the ninth inning, when Garris-Evans got a run in the top of the frame to take a 6-5 edge.

But it was not to be as Shop-Eze came back with two in the bottom of the frame. Curtis Jones led off with a walk and Dallas McPherson singled. Chris LeGrand followed with a bunt single, loading the bases. Adrian Barnhill then reached on an error, which allowed both Jones and McPherson to dash home, first tying, then winning the game.

McPherson led the Shop-Eze hitting with four, while Mark Holloman had two hits to lead Garris-Evans.

Pugh's Firestone ... 6

Wint. Machine 5

Pugh's Firestone held off a seventh inning rally by Winterville Machine Works and pulled out a 6-5 Senior Babe Ruth League victory last night.

Winterville scored a run in the top of the first, but Pugh's countered that with one in the bottom of the frame. Pugh's then moved ahead with two in the second. Both teams added one in the third, with Pugh's coming on a homer by Tom Moore.

Pugh's got what proved to be the difference in the fourth, scoring twice. Terry Smith opened the frame with a walk and after two fly-outs, Tony Taylor cracked the team's second homer of the evening, powering Pugh's into a 6-2 lead.

Winterville rallied for one in the sixth, then came up with two in the seventh, closing the tie to just one before the fire was finally put out by Pugh's.

Prestley Smith had two hits to lead Winterville, while no one had more than one hit for Pugh's.

Pizza Inn 15

Thompson Ins. 1

WINTERVILLE — Pizza Inn romped to a 15-1 victory over Thompson Insurance in the Winterville Little League last night.

Pizza Inn scored once in the first, then added one on a Billy Barnhill home run in the fourth. Thompson's only run came in the fourth also. Pizza Inn then added seven in the fifth and six in the sixth. Bronswell Patrick had a two-run homer in the fifth and Joe Deloach had a three-run blast in the sixth.

Patrick hurled the win, allowing only three hits, while Barnhill led the hitting with four.

In a second scheduled game, Edwards Auto won by forfeit over Sunshine Garden Center.

Chicod 10

Bethel 1

HOLLYWOOD — Chicod romped to a 10-1 victory over Bethel last night in the Pitt County Babe Ruth League and clinched the league championship. Chicod is now 9-0 on the year and has only one game left to play.

Michael Elks led the Chicod hitting with three in four trips, driving in four runs. Randy Mills had two doubles, while Shane Adams and Brian Evans each had two singles.

Bethel got only one hit off Elks' pitching, that by Chuck Whitehurst.

Billie Jean Still Delights The Crowds

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — When Billie Jean King captured her first Wimbledon title in 1961, Jimmy Connors was just 9 years old and Chris Evert Lloyd two years younger.

Connors, now 30, is attempting to defend his All-England Lawn Tennis Championships title here on the fabled grass courts, while the 28-year-old Lloyd is going after her fourth consecutive Grand Slam tournament crown.

King, meanwhile, is still following her serve to the net, putting away volleys and many of her younger opponents as she tries to increase her Wimbledon record of titles to 21.

"Chris and Martina (Navratilova, the defending women's champion) have earned the right to be the favorites here, but I know I have prepared myself as best I can," said King, a winner on opening day. "In fact, I was ready to play last week."

Last year, King delighted the crowds — many of whom were around to see her collect the women's doubles title in 1961 — as she reached the semifinals before being ousted by Lloyd.

The woman who replaced King as queen of tennis, Lloyd still is wary of the "Old Lady" of the tour.

"I think she is a threat on grass," said Lloyd. "They say she is in better shape and a good frame of mind."

"I think she could do some damage. But she's in my quarter (of the draw), so I hope not. But her game is suited for grass."

Like King, Connors has returned to the scene of some of his greatest triumphs. He first won here in 1974, then gained his second title last year.

"I have to work harder now that I am older," Connors said. "It takes two hours of hard work to discipline myself instead of one hour. I am working harder, but I enjoy it more."

All three were to play second-round matches today, King taking on Beth Herr, Lloyd meeting Marcella Mesker of the Netherlands and Connors playing Wally Masur of Australia.

Lloyd and Navratilova breezed past their opening-round foes, Lloyd taking just 55 minutes and Navratilova an astounding 32 minutes.

Second seeded, Lloyd stopped fellow American Alycia Moulton 6-2, 6-1. The top-seeded Navratilova, who has lost just four matches since the beginning of 1982, crushed South African Beverly Mould 6-1, 6-0.

Fourth-seeded Tracy Austin was Tuesday's major casualty, never taking the court. The two-time U.S. Open champion withdrew prior to her first-round match because of a pulled back muscle.

Another seed, No. 6 Bettina Bunge of West Germany, was upset by Christiane Jolissaint of Switzerland 3-6, 7-6, 11-9.

Capturing their first-round matches, all in straight sets, were third-seeded Andrea Jaeger, No. 7 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, No. 8 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, No. 9 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, No. 12 Virginia Ruzici of Romania, No. 13 Jo Durie of Britain, No. 14 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary and No. 16 Claudia Kohde of West Germany.

In the men's draw, Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl, making his first appearance at Wimbledon in two years, hammered Bernie Milton of South Africa 7-6, 6-1, 6-0, while No. 8 Vitas Gerulaitis outlasted Ramesh Krishnan of India 5-7, 7-5, 7-6, 5-7, 6-3 in a battle that took 3½ hours.

Also a first-round winner was No. 11 Johan Kriek, who stopped Sammy Giammalva 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Lendl, who refused to enter Wimbledon a year ago because, he said, he couldn't get enough practice time on grass, said that was no problem this year.

"I've been practicing a lot on the surface and working on my footwork," he said after his straight-set victory. "I played really well. The court was very true and I had no problems."

After a close first set, in which he played his usual baseline game, Lendl began the serve-and-volley tactics that are the hallmark of grass court tennis. He successfully changed his style when he fell behind 1-4 in the first-set tiebreaker.

He won the tiebreaker 7-5, then dominated his opponent the rest of the way, dropping only 14 points in the 28-minute second set enroute to the victory.

"I didn't feel at all nervous," Lendl said. "After all, I can't do much worse than in previous years here."

The match between fifth-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden and Australia's John Fitzgerald was halted by darkness at two sets all.

Navratilova and Lloyd are favored to meet in the women's final on Saturday, July 2. Austin, at her news conference to announce her withdrawal from the tournament, picked Navratilova to successfully defend her title, but warned: "It's hard to say. Chris can get very determined."

Lloyd said she had not watched Navratilova's destruction of Mould, but said: "I'm not worried about playing Martina. In fact, I'm excited. She's No. 1 here and in the world, and she can only go down."

Navratilova, remembering her fourth-round loss in the French Open, said she was only taking it one match at a time.

"As far as this being a two-woman tournament, they said the same thing at the French Open and maybe I did look ahead. I can't worry about Chris and her half of the draw."

Protests Mar Cup Trials

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — After the first four days of elimination racing in the America's Cup yacht series, action detoured into legal protests, and a win by the British yacht Victory '83 was thrown out.

A five-member protest committee heard more than three hours of testimony Tuesday night before disqualifying Victory '83 for failing to keep clear of the Italian contender, Azzurra, before start of the race earlier in the day.

Earlier in the evening, a like decision upheld the victory Monday by the American boat Defender, skippered by Tom Blackaller, over rival Liberty, with Dennis Conner at the wheel.

Protest Board Chairman Robert C. MacArthur said the committee decision gives the race victory to Azzurra in the incident as the two 12-meter yachts were maneuvering for the start.

Victory '83, with Lawrie Smith and Rodney Pattison as joint skippers, had pinned a 1:59 defeat on Azzurra, with Cino Ricci at the wheel. The committee's decision changed the record of Victory '83 to 1-3 and Azzurra to 2-2.

The Defender-Liberty incident centered on a similar near-collision between the two boats before start of their second race Monday.

"They threw Dennis Conner's complaint out," Blackaller reported after the hearing.

Conner attended the meeting, but could not be reached for comment. The committee planned to announce its decision officially today.

Blackaller contended Monday that Liberty cut to the starboard across the bow of his Defender.

"There's no question about it, he fouled," said Blackaller, claiming that Liberty cut across the bow of Defender.

Defender won both races. Liberty won its first race Tuesday against two-time champion Courageous.

The races were part of an elimination series for four American and seven foreign 12-meter yachts vying for a place at the cup finals in September in the waters off this historic port.

Net Stars In Vilas' Defense

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Twenty tennis stars sprang to the defense of Guillermo Vilas and demanded that his year's suspension, imposed for allegedly accepting appearance money, be squashed.

John McEnroe, No. 2 seed in the Wimbledon tournament, put his signature at the head of a list of names on a statement issued to officials and press.

Vitas Gerulaitis, another signatory, said: "Why Vilas? There are millions of ways of getting money outside the actual place."

"I am in favor of guarantees. The only guys I have heard beef about it are the lower ranking players."

Vilas's troubles center on a tournament in Rotterdam earlier this year. The Men's International Professional Tennis Council slapped the year's ban on Vilas and fined him $20,000, saying Rotterdam paid him simply to play, over and above the approved prize money.

The ban took immediate effect from the MIPTF's decision two weeks ago and would have kept the Wimbledon star out of Wimbledon. But he was allowed 30 days in which to appeal and has given notice of doing so.

The 20 players claimed in their statement that Vilas had been treated unfairly.

They declared: "Guillermo Vilas, always a gentleman on and off the tennis court, has been a strong supporter of professional tennis for the last 10 years. He has entertained millions of people around the world and he is primarily responsible for the rise in popularity of tennis in South America."

"We ask the MIPTC to void the harsh sanctions imposed on Guillermo and to understand our concern over depriving, unjustly, we believe, one of our colleagues of his right to earn his livelihood."

Gerulaitis claimed the MIPTC has no proof of appearance money paid to Vilas.

"The sanctions are silly unless there is black-and-white proof," Gerulaitis said.

"Even if the star attraction at the tournament gets knocked out and still gets more money than the winner, why should that be wrong? Why should that be different from any other sport?"

"Why should tennis be different? We are still living in the dark ages."

Besides McEnroe and Gerulaitis, other Americans signing the appeal were South African-born Johan Kriek, Steve Denton, Bill Scanlon, Brian Teacher and Peter Fleming. Jimmy Connors, the No. 1 seed at Wimbledon, did not sign.

Other signees were Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, Yannick Noah and Henri Leconte of France, Mats Wilander and Henrik Sundstrom of Sweden, Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina, Kevin Curren of South Africa, Wojtek Fibak of Poland, Cassio Motta and Joao Soares of Brazil, Ricardo Acuna of Chile, Claudio Panatta of Italy and Florin Segarceanu of Romania.

Best-Of-Three To Be Scrapped

NEW YORK (AP) — The best-of-three mini-series that frightened good teams and gave upset hopes to mediocre ones is being scrapped by the National Basketball Association.

The NBA's Board of Governors voted Tuesday to expand the playoffs from 12 to 16 teams and make the opening-round series best-of-five instead of best-of-three. Another effect of the vote is that the four division champions now will have to play in the first round rather than receive a bye.

Jerry Colangelo, general manager of the Phoenix Suns and chairman of a special committee appointed by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien to recommend improvements in the league, announced the changes after the summer meeting of the Board of Governors.

Colangelo said there were two other major changes approved by the board.

One is that no NBA team will be allowed to make transactions that would leave it with no first-round draft choice for two consecutive years. Another change limits cash transactions to $300,000 between Dec. 15 and the end of the season each year.

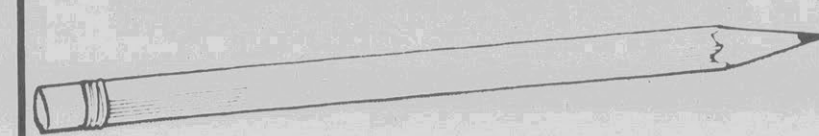

Colangelo said the main reason for the change in the playoff format was economic.

"Potentially, there could be 28 more playoff games and an extra $4 million to $5 million in league revenues," he said.

Under the new collective bargaining agreement, players are guaranteed 53 percent of gross revenues.

"The perception that too many teams will make the playoffs is in the eye of the beholder," Colangelo said. "Hockey, which has 16 playoff teams, had a lot of excitement in the cities where teams were fighting for a playoff spot late in the season."

TEACHERS TAKE NOTE!

Take note of the opportunities available this summer for exploring ways to use newspapers for educational purposes. The N.C. Newspaper in Education Foundation and the N.C. Wimbledon Title Seen As Hers By Navratilova

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Computer Girl has all circuits humming and sees nobody barring the way to her fourth Wimbledon championship.

"Everything's perfect," said Martina Navratilova after crushing Beverly Mould, an awed, 21-year-old South African, 6-1, 6-0 Tuesday in her Center Court debut.

"I am moving well. I am serving well. My technique and tactics are right on the beam. I have never been quicker, sharper and more aggressive.

"To beat me on grass, somebody would have to have a big first serve, a strong second serve and come to the net. I don't see this happening."

As Martina talked animatedly, Mike Estep of Houston, her new coach sitting in the back of the interview room, beamed. Nancy Lieberman, her closest friend and motivator, beamed.

The docs who tend to her dietary and physical needs must have beamed, too, while the Navratilova computer, now as much a staple of her equipment as her stacks of oversized graphite rackets, must have spewed alphabets all over the carpet.

"What we're doing is no different than what football and basketball teams have been doing for years," said Lieberman, a former All-America basketball player who helped launch the short-lived women's professional circuit.

"We feed tapes of Martina's matches and those of her opponents into the computer. We learn what Martina may be doing wrong and make corrections. We learn opponents' weaknesses and use the information to exploit them."

"It's old stuff in most sports but never before used effectively in tennis."

Martina Navratilova is programmed to win.

Estep teaches her strokes and strategy. Lieberman, as her friend, keeps her loose and relaxed by planning outside interests such as running and shooting baskets. She builds up Martina's morale when the latter gets into one of her occasional down moods.

Dr. Robert Haas of Miami is the house nutritionist. Another doctor, not regarded as one of the members of the Navratilova entourage, occasionally is called to check muscle tone and reflexes of the tennis champion.

"We talk to Dr. Haas about twice a week when we're on the road and he's in Miami," Lieberman said. "He plans to fly over this week and remain here through the remainder of the tournament."

"He keeps Martina on a high carbohydrate diet without fats and oils. He is great at seeing Martina has no blood energy deficiencies. He doesn't just deal with diet."

Navratilova, a big, strong lady with natural skills, leaves nothing to chance.

She took on Estep as coach two weeks ago, dropping Renee Richards, in the belief she would progress more with a male instructor.

"It was like a bomb dropped on me," she said. "I don't know why I hadn't used Mike before. We have known each other 10 years in Texas. He knows the game inside out. He makes me work so much harder and he is so quick to pick out faults."

"Just playing with him makes me a better player."

She frequently practices three hours non-stop a day.

Lieberman, because of her basketball background, had much to do with the computer idea. But she keeps a close watch on Martina's moods, never letting her slump into weariness or boredom. She has had great effect in calming a once volatile temperament.

A 26-year-old Czech who defected to this country as a teen-ager in 1975, Martina was an instant success, ranking third her first year as a pro. She was the first tennis pro to scale the $4 million mark in prize winnings.

With a wide-swinging left-handed service and net-attacking ability, she has waged a 10-year personal rivalry with steady Chris Evert Lloyd.

Martina has made a point of dominating the tour while Lloyd has concentrated on major title, winning three Wimbledon, six U. S. Opens, four French and the Australian.

Martina has won eight of the nine tournaments in which she played this year, losing only to Kathy Horvath in the French, while Lloyd has won the last three of the majors — the U. S. Open in 1982, the 1983 Australian and the French.

Martina bristled when reminded of this.

"If it came to a choice of my winning the last three majors and losing all nine of the others," she said, "I'd prefer it this way."

Was she nervous at the thought of meeting Chris in the final?

"I get excited about Wimbledon but never nervous," she said. "I can't afford to think of Chris on the other side of the draw."

Family Is Tops For Laura Cole

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—People with cameras ask Laura Cole to flash more than her smile and sex appeal these days.

"Can I get a family shot, Laura?" a man with an Instamatic asked the former Laura Baugh at Locust Hill Country Country Club Tuesday.

When she started out on the LPGA tour 10 years ago, Mrs. Cole brushed her teeth with Ultra-Brite toothpaste and wowed the golf and living room galleries with her commercials.

"I had the chance to do those commercials and make some money," she said Tuesday, taking a break from practicing for the Rochester International which begins Thursday. "I didn't have any money back then and I wanted to have some money. So I did them."

Mrs. Cole is 28 now and her teeth are still their whitest.

The Retired Horses Have A Good Life

By CONNIE NESTERUK
Bucks County Courier Times
EXTON, Pa. (AP) — Deep in the delicate first grass of spring, the pensioners graze. Their coats of gold, copper and coal enliven the pale green hillsides. The steady cropping is broken occasionally by an exuberant squeal, entirely undecorous for horses of their age.

Every one of the 45 animals shedding tufts of hair in the sunshine is 18 or older. Their 105-acre home likely is the only free old-age farm in the state.

The retirees include the distinguished — the majestic gray gelding Ace High, 27, once a member of the Third Infantry based in Fort Myers, Va. — and the non-descript — the chocolate-colored, belligerent burro, Candy.

There is a waiting list, of course, as with most retirement homes.

Mary Colosey of Bucks County waited nearly a year for Baron, a youthful-looking chestnut, to be accepted. She visits him as often as she can.

"He was my pleasure horse for eight years. He'd go lame every so often if he was used too much. I wanted him out on pasture, to have the good life," said Miss Colosey.

The Ryerss' Infirmary for Dumb Animals has seen a cavalry's worth of horses come, never to wear saddles, and go, donated upon death to be dinner for the hounds at an area hunt club.

Former residents include Philadelphia's last fire horses and the government's official funeral steeds.

The Exton farm became a rest haven for horses in 1888. Weathered post-and-rail fences mark the survival of a hundred-year-old dream.

The late Robert W. Ryerss thought it callous that horses often had final years of work beaten out of them.

Ryerss and his stepmother, Anne Wain Ryerss, first established the charitable infirmary at the family estate in what is now Burholme Park in Philadelphia. Broken-kneed horses went from between the shafts of street cars and milk wagons to the pastures of the Ryerss farm.

Executors later moved the farm to its present location in Chester County.

Caretaker Eugene Lafferty has lived on the farm for 16 years, tending the animals with an attentiveness not often afforded their human counterparts.

"Some of them have only a few teeth left," he said, rubbing the withers of a grizzled donkey. "They need mashes, since they can't eat hard grain. It's tough, sometimes, keeping them in good shape."

Lafferty, once an electrician, mucks out the 45 spacious stalls with only one helper.

The two also plant and harvest oats, barley, corn and alfalfa on 100 acres nearby.

Though the farm raises most of its feed — putting up 200 tons of hay each fall — administrator William Cave says costs run $100 per horse per month.

Very little money comes from the horses' former owners, he said.

"Donations are voluntary, and you know what that usually means," said Cave, watching two chestnut horses quarrel over a patch of grass. "We can't set a monthly fee since we're a non-profit charity. If we did, we'd be considered a boarding stable."

Bequests from horse-lovers help keep the farm going, as do occasional donations from riding clubs. An Ohio woman sends monthly caseloads of apple and carrot treats.

When a horse is accepted, Ryerss' Infirmary becomes the owner.

"We've started a program of sponsorship. For $25 a month, you can help care for a horse. We'll send a picture and information about the animal. Sponsors are welcome to visit," said Cave.

FILES APPEAL
COIMBRA, Portugal (AP) — The Spanish priest convicted of trying to kill Pope John Paul II with a bayonet has filed an appeal of his 6½-year prison term claiming the court unfairly delayed issuing his sentence.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-22

ZKKR KC MGR ENTW FGT FGNWV JOATW
JK RKNMXV NE OAJL XGNZLJVC.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — ROMAN ARMY AT NILE CAFE ORDERED CAESAR SALAD FOR FIFTY.
Today's Cryptiquip clue: N equals U.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The oncoming full moon finds you restless, nervous and vivacious and you find that you can see ways to make decisions from a plane of consciousness that expresses your inner urges.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) This is a good day for being in the bustling world of business and accomplishing a very good deal. Handle correspondence.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are full of fine ideas regarding finances and real estate. Make any revisions needed. Follow an expert's advice.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A dynamic partner has good ideas for adding to mutual benefits ethically. Go along with them instead of wavering.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Confer with advisors and plan the future. Gain the cooperation of co-workers. Get rid of limiting factors.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Count on the backing of good and influential friends in plans for the future. Be happy at home tonight with family.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more willing to cooperate with those in authority to enjoy a brighter future. Lend a helping hand wherever you can.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have to run around quite a bit today to make the most of the planetary positions which are favorable to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle pressing responsibilities early on and then concentrate on a big deal which will be successful to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Situations arise which reveal which of your friends are most loyal. Then treat them accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get right at that work ahead of you and do it in a positive and efficient manner. Avoid a jealous person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There are many amusements you can enjoy, but permit your loved one to do the choosing. Then have a good time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are restless at home so get out and do some civic work you enjoy. Don't permit a family tie on the rampage to get you down.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to travel a great deal and should have foreign languages added to the school courses. Business will be the forte here, but teach your progeny to be more cooperative with others and not stand-offish.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Opening lead: King of ♠.

When you have a trick to lose, it is usually right to concede it as soon as you can do so safely. Later may be too late.

After his featherweight opening, South simply rebid his clubs at every opportunity. With his great playing strength and control of every suit, North elected to gamble on a slam.

West led the king of hearts and ruffed in dummy. Declarer decided that the fate of his contract hinged on bringing in the trump suit without a loser. He cashed the king and led the jack. When East failed to follow, declarer rose with the ace and tried to run diamonds. Unfortunately, West was able to ruff the third diamond, and he cashed a heart and the trump queen for down two.

Declarer can afford to lose a trump trick and still make his contract, provided he does not relinquish control of the heart suit. That can all be accomplished with a simple safety play.

After ruffing the king of hearts at trick one, declarer should lead the jack of trumps from dummy and pass it. That will guarantee the contract as long as trumps are no worse than 3-1.

As the cards lie, West wins the queen of trumps, but he cannot harm declarer. If he continues with hearts, declarer ruffs in dummy, enters his hand with the ace of diamonds and draws the outstanding trumps. Declarer can then overtake the queen of diamonds and take all the discards he needs on dummy's diamonds. No other defense is more effective—the contract is always secure.

Defector Says Soviet Air Defenses For Nicaragua

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaragua is moving toward full membership in the "international communist movement" and is acquiring a Soviet air defense system along with 80 MiG fighter planes, a Nicaraguan defector says.

Miguel Bolanos Hunter, a former official of Nicaraguan state security, told reporters Tuesday the Sandinista government is reneging on plans to institute democracy and instead is working to neutralize opposition political parties, labor unions and the church.

His face partially hidden by dark glasses, the one-time Sandinista guerrilla fighter confirmed many of the allegations the Reagan administration has made about the Nicaraguan government over the past 2½ years. The administration claims often have been received with skepticism.

Bolanos' comments appeared to represent an intelligence windfall for the administration and, indeed, the State Department helped to arrange the Tuesday news conference as well as an interview several days ago with The Washington Post.

Bolanos, who has an American mother and a Nicaraguan father, said the truth of his allegations was confirmed when he passed a lie detector test given by U.S. government officials.

He outlined the sequence of events that prompted him to abandon his role as a trusted Sandinista functionary and to defect aboard an airplane he hijacked to Costa Rica six weeks ago.

Bolanos said: — Sandinista claims of an American-sponsored plot to poison Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto were a complete fabrication. The allegations led to the expulsion of three U.S. diplomats earlier this month.

and the counter-expulsion of 21 Nicaraguan consular officers by the Reagan administration.

— Nicaraguan state security orchestrated the heckling of Pope John Paul II during his visit to Nicaragua in March. Catholics who tried to show their support for the Pope were threatened by Nicaragua's chief of security, Lenin Cerna, who was carrying a rifle.

— A Navy admiral explained in detail to Bolanos the land, sea and air operations that Nicaragua has been using to transport weaponry and other equipment to Salvadoran rebels.

Speaking softly in English with occasional help from an interpreter, Bolanos, 24, also discussed Soviet and Cuban military activities in Nicaragua.

He said the Sandinista armed forces are constructing two sites for Soviet surface-to-air missiles. One, at Managua's international airport, already is completed and the other, located some 12 miles from the capital, will be ready shortly, he said.

He did not say whether the missiles themselves have been deployed. American officials said they could not substantiate Bolanos' information but added the possibility of such activity has been discussed here.

Bolanos based his claim on information given him by a friend who he said has worked as an engineer at the sites and confirmed the account from a "cousin." Bolanos said he did not see the alleged missile sites.

Some 200 Soviet military personnel are stationed in Nicaragua, he said, adding that within a few weeks after the 1979 revolution, Soviet generals were instructing the Sandinistas on strategy for war against Honduras, Nicaragua's northern neighbor.

As for the 80 Soviet-made MiG fighter planes, Bolanos said the aircraft are now being held in Cuba for delivery to Nicaragua after the planned 1985 elections.

The Reagan administration has cited several runway lengthening projects in Nicaragua as evidence that the Sandinistas plan to acquire MiG jets, and has claimed that Nicaraguans are being trained as pilots in Bulgaria.

Substantiating the latter assertion, Bolanos said about 80 pilots are receiving such training and another 70 are being instructed in MiG maintenance. The Cuban military presence in Nicaragua numbers about 3,000, with some 2,000 working undercover, he said.

In an opening statement, Bolanos said he "left Nicaragua because I saw that the Sandinistas did not bring democracy as they had promised, but rather became repressive and totalitarian with no regard for human rights.

"Nicaragua is a full member of the international communist movement. The Sandinistas, in conjunction with the Cubans and the Soviet Union, have a plan to destabilize other Central American countries."

As for his future, Bolanos said he plans to return to Central America to join forces with counter-revolutionaries fighting the Sandinistas.

Chatty Vivian

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Alternatives in Marketing Inc. swears by its talking computer, but about 80 sleepy residents may have been swearing at it, instead.

The Cansmark Contactor 8300, known as Vivian, is advertised as "a business associate that doesn't take breaks, follows instructions and won't quit."

That last attribute was what got residents so angry at the $5,000 device, which automatically dials telephone numbers and speaks with a recorded human voice.

The telemarketing firm programmed Vivian to call numbers in sequence, introduce herself as a talking computer and offer residents a free week's membership at a local health club.

Vivian's timer was supposed to shut her down at 8 p.m., but she continued inviting people to the health club until her electronic wind ran out about 8 a.m. the next day.

Kim Meinzer, the company's vice president, said no one knew about the late night calls until a friend said Vivian called him at 1 a.m. on June 7.

Ms. Meinzer, who with four employees spent most of the day apologizing to residents whose slumber Vivian interrupted, said the computer mishap was her fault.

"I messed up the timer. It was simple human error," she said.

Although 80 people who got the early morning calls were up in arms, one turned the tables on her.

An electronic answering machine Vivian dialed gave her the time and temperature as she was pitching the health club.

Bonneville Flats Becomes A Lake

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — A huge, briny lake has formed on the white salt flats of western Utah, a throwback to the inland sea that was prehistoric Lake Bonneville, but scientists don't know how deep it is or how long it will last.

The lake is one of two new bodies of water created on the bed of the ancient lake after 18 months of heavy rain and snowfall in Utah. Geologists and long-time desert residents say they've never seen anything like it.

"I've been here 23 years and have never seen water like this in the desert," Richard Dixon, owner of the Bonneville Speedway Museum in Wendover, said recently.

The new lake has no name. It wasn't there last year and may not be there next year. It stretches into one of the West's most isolated areas and its exact size and depth are unknown.

Although heavy in salt content, the lake does support life. Minute brine shrimp, which also thrive in the highly saline waters of the Great Salt Lake to the east, paddle about in its steel-grey waters.

The lake, which laps against Interstate 80 about five miles east of this city on the Utah-Nevada border, is in an area where patches of standing water are common in the spring before evaporating in the summer heat, leaving a hard and virtually level salt plain.

But National Weather Service satellite photos this spring showed the new body of water stretching across the level salt beds in roughly a right triangle, its longest side about 25 miles.

In a May 23 satellite photo, the lake appeared larger than Utah Lake, a 25-mile long, 10-mile wide freshwater lake near Provo, 40 miles south of Salt Lake City.

That would make it Utah's second largest body of water, behind the 55-mile-long Great Salt Lake.

"The lake is something new for us," said J. Wallace Gwynn, of the Utah Geological and Mineral Survey. "We haven't studied it much and I don't know of anyone who has. I can't remember that much water ever collecting out in the desert. This has to be the first in a long time."

A hundred miles to the south, water also stands two to three feet deep on 80 percent of the Sevier Dry Lake bed, Gwynn said.

In a normal spring, up to a foot of water might cover the 20-mile by 5-mile bed before evaporating. But this year, water may remain all summer, he said.

Husband's Millions Are Real Help In A Career

An Incredible Story Of King Penguins Is Broadcast Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Pia Zadora says there's "no question" that her husband's millions have helped her career, but she says the bucks only helped speed her talent along.

"All the money in the world can't keep you on top," she said in an interview published Monday.

The 26-year-old Golden Globe winner studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts and at Julliard and acted on Broadway before she met her multimillionaire husband, Meshulam Riklis, whose Par-Par Productions financed her first three films, including "Butterfly."

Riklis' Rapid-American corporation owns Schenley, which owns Dubonnet — the company whose commercials she has been doing for several years — and he also owns the Riveria Hotel in Las Vegas where she performs a nightclub act.

"There's no question that his support and money have enabled my career to move along faster than it might have without him," she said.

Her single, "Clapping Song," has been a hit overseas.

"They love me in Europe. I'm bigger there than I am here. And they love the fact that I have a rich husband," she said.

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The odd little fellow in the foul-weather frock coat has a terrific story to tell, and wildlife photographers Cindy Buxton and Annie Price spent six months on remote and desolate South Georgia Island to help with the translation.

The result of their work, to be broadcast tonight on CBS, is "King Penguin: Stranded Beyond the Falklands." It's a remarkable study done largely in gray and white that is burdened only slightly by a tiresome effort to distinguish the filmmakers' endeavor as laden with mortal danger.

True, Argentine forces invaded the Falkland Islands and occupied Grytviken, the all-but-abandoned whaling village on South Georgia, while the two women were on the job, but the threat to their lives seems more dramatic than actual. They were, indeed, marooned for a time, and at one point armed with a 9mm pistol, but if they ever saw the enemy, they don't say.

Instead, they kept their cameras trained on the island's more permanent, and generally more agreeable, residents, the curious king penguin and his singular neighbors, the elephant seal and the light-mantled sooty albatross.

The film of these strange and remarkably trusting animals is, at times, breathtaking.

In one sequence, a penguin hen — if that's the proper description — cradles a newly laid egg in her own, portable nest, the tops of her feet, where it will remain, warmed by her abdominal feathers, until she is ready to pass it to her mate. The male partner will protect the egg while the mother waddles to the ocean in search of food.

In another, Miss Buxton spends several days making her presence familiar to a nesting albatross, perched high above the penguin colonies on the beaches below. At last, she can touch the fluffy creature, and even lift the bird off of her nest to examine the egg.

Orson Welles narrates the hour-long film and that's fortunate, as neither Miss Buxton nor her companion, Miss Price, have much to say about the filmmaking adventure.

"I think we brought back a valuable record of wildlife from a difficult location," Miss Price says, "and we had a lot of fun doing it. You try not to be sentimental when you're filming wildlife," Miss Buxton says, "but it's hard not to become attached to your subjects."

Welles' own script is loaded with interesting information, but he can be corny, too: "We all of us are in their debt," he says of the filmmakers, toward the end of the British-made production.

The two women spent a year seeking permission from the British Antarctic Survey Commission to set up a camp on the icy, wind-blown island 1,200 miles from the coast of Argentina. More than 40,000 of the strange birds that grow to be a yard tall and can weigh 40 pounds occupy an area near St. Andrew's Bay.

The women were able to walk among the penguins and the huge, lounging elephant seals, and record on film their curious daily lives.

The penguins are shown walking by the hundreds to the beach, where they will wait, often for hours, for one of their number to take the plunge in search of the tiny squid that will feed their young. All will follow the leader into the water in orderly fashion — no pushing.

"King Penguin" was produced by Survival Anglia Ltd., which has done a number of acclaimed wildlife films broadcast on American TV.

'Posse Comitatus' Boasts Firepower And A Zeal

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
TIGERTON, Wis. (AP) —

The militant right-wing group that calls itself Posse Comitatus espouses armed survivalism, racism, anti-Semitism and anti-tax, anti-government philosophies.

But James Wickstrom, the Posse's national spokesman, smiles at the children splashing in the water. "Does this look like terrorism?" he asks.

The image is indeed a stark contrast to the bloodshed linked to the Posse after two U.S. marshals, a county sheriff and a Posse member, tax evader Gordon Kahl, died in a pair of shootouts this year.

Posse Comitatus is a group of unknown size and strength. Government officials put it on the nut fringe, a group of crackpots. Wickstrom, the Posse's "national director of counterinsurgency," says its members are America's future, and crack shots.

Wickstrom is giving a rare tour of a small corner of the 570-acre Posse stronghold. Upstream, the south fork of the Embarrass River is rocky white rapids. But here at the compound it suddenly loses fury and smooths into a quiet green pool. The only ripples are caused by boys diving off a springboard hewn from a fallen oak.

A tranquil scene, but talking Posse with Wickstrom is no day at the beach.

Congressmen are "gluttonous wine bibbers." The Internal Revenue Service and the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League are "the real terrorists in this country." President Reagan is "about as conservative as the man in the moon." Kahl, the tax protester and Posse member who died in the second of two gun battles with authorities, is "a real martyr."

Wickstrom claims that Kahl's last stand in Arkansas earlier this month spread the word about the Posse and attracted tens of thousands of new members. He talks about how the group, whose name in Latin means "power of the county," believes its vigilantism is legal because almost everything the government does is unconstitutional. The only "law firm" he believes in is Smith & Wesson.

Wickstrom is 40 years old, of medium height and sturdy build, with graying brown hair atop a bullet head. When he gets angry, as he does when explaining why the country has gone to hell in a handbasket, his face clouds up like a thunderhead.

"Baastaaards!" he bellows above the rapids. Then, using a technique common to country preachers, his next words are barely audible: "Bastard, you know, is a word often used in the Bible."

Wickstrom is the Tigerton pastor of the Life Science Church, founded 30 years ago in Minneapolis by a group opposed to paying federal taxes. He baptizes people in the Embarrass River and literally thumps a Bible during speeches — for up to $500 plus expenses — to survivalist and anti-tax groups.

Once a salesman for a tool company and then its sales trainer, Wickstrom says tithes from church members now provide for his family. Standing near field markings for helicopter landings, he says Posse funds are donations from individuals and "small and large corporations in this country who are patriotic and support what we do."

Walking away from the riverbank and across a rolling meadow, Wickstrom points out areas where he says thousands of men and women, up to 400 at a time in week-long sessions, are taught survival and guerrilla tactics.

Standing in ruts that he claims were made by armored half-track vehicles now hidden in the forest, he indicates the Posse has plenty of firepower. "How would you say it?" he muses. "A lot of us like to refurbish antiques."

Wickstrom says the Posse has chapters in all 50 states and uses three computers around the country to keep track of its 2.2 million members — about 1,000 times the number law enforcement officials estimate. "That's absurd," Bronson La Follette, Wisconsin's attorney general, says of Wickstrom's membership estimates. At the same time, La Follette concedes concern about the Posse's penchant for wearing sidearms on the streets of Tigerton.

Officials also admit they might have underestimated the Posse's depth. Kahl was able to go "underground" for several months between the shootings in North Dakota and the final showdown at the Walnut Ridge, Ark., home of another Posse member.

In Tigerton, population 914, townsfolk generally are reluctant to talk about the Posse, though several sent letters to state officials condemning the Posse's "recent surge of gun-toting."

The compound is on land donated by tavern owner Donald Minniecheske to the Life Science Church. Wickstrom says 26 people live in mobile homes on the land. The large trailer that serves as the church is also the Christian Liberty Academy, where 10 Posse children start each school day with a prayer.

Minniecheske recently began serving a two-year prison sentence under Wisconsin's new "Posse Comitatus" law. It was enacted to stop Posse members from filing million-dollar liens to tie up the personal finances of government officials they opposed.

Wickstrom is facing up to 18 months in jail and a $20,000 fine after being convicted June 10 of impersonating a public official. He and Minniecheske, who faces similar charges later this summer, declared the Posse land "The Constitution Township of Tigerton Dells," and appointed themselves judge and mayor, respectively. Then they issued a liquor license to Minniecheske's tavern after local officials had ordered it closed for selling liquor illegally.

Wickstrom says he believes his conviction will be overturned. If it is not, will he go to jail, or will he go into the Posse underground as Kahl did? "I don't know," Wickstrom says.

Say Troops Not 'Combat Ready'

FORT IRWIN, Calif. (AP) — U.S. troops performed poorly over two years of desert war games in California and were easily defeated by mock Soviet combat forces, according to an Army assessment.

The Army troops showed a "significant shortfall in important go-to-war skills," according to an analysis of the first two years of operation of the National Training Center, a sophisticated Army war games facility in the Mojave Desert near Barstow, Calif.

The 45-page analysis was written by an observer team from the Army Forces Command at Fort McPherson, Ga., which oversees the desert training. A report on the analysis, obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, was published today by The Sun, a San Bernardino newspaper.

The report is based on mock battles and live-fire exercises involving infantry, armor, artillery, combat support and service troops from bases across the United States.

"There is a lack of demonstrated tank crew and anti-tank gunners' capability to kill targets," the report said. For example, during one daytime exercise, crews fired 682 rounds and hit 62 targets. Only 26 hits would have destroyed an enemy tank, the report said.

Observers also found that soldiers wasted ammunition and gave away secrets. Many couldn't read maps. If weapons had been loaded with live ammunition during mock battles, the troops would have killed many of their own men, officials said.

The Army general who approved release of the report said it was written to point out shortcomings, not satisfactory performances.

"Our focus is on what commanders need to improve," said Brig. Gen. John Kirk, director of Army training. There have been some improvements since the report's information was gathered, he said, and problems will be studied more to correct them.

The center, on 1,000 square miles of mesquite-covered land about 100 miles east of Los Angeles, has at its heart a $67 million computerized war-games monitoring system. The largest mock Soviet force ever assembled by the United States — 1,200 men — also is based there.

The site has been used for military maneuvers and war games for 32 years. Observations on which the report was based were collected during the period from October 1980, when the National Training Center opened, to November 1982.

According to the report, training units failed to show they understood how fast enemy formations attacked, consistently losing the mobility advantage. Momentum usually stopped after contact was made, resulting in heavy losses, the report said.

Enlisted personnel, who comprise the bulk of infantry companies and tank crews, weren't the only people criticized in the report. Unit commanders were faulted for trying to run entire battles by themselves and not delegating authority to those of lower rank.

The intentions of those commanding the battles rarely were understood, resulting in confusion and poor execution, the report said. Security was unsatisfactory, the report said, with "enemy" reconnaissance teams easily penetrating training unit defense lines, even in daylight.

Expanding upon the inaccuracy of anti-tank gunners, the report said crews were "reluctant" to use tank range-finding devices, preferring to fire a marker round to determine target distance, an approach which wastes ammunition.

Lt. Col. David Mooney, from the Army Forces Command, said another report is being prepared on more recent exercises at the center. He predicted it will demonstrate that skills have improved.

Eye Resignation On Convictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has unanimously passed legislation that would force union officials to resign from their positions upon conviction of crimes.

The bill, which was passed and sent to the House on a 75-0 vote, would also apply to management officials who deal with unions and the trustees of union pension funds. At the discretion of the sentencing judge, convicted labor officials would be barred from holding office from five to 10 years.

Under current law, convicted union officers must leave office only after they exhaust all appeals of their trials. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said Justice Department records show that 136 union officials were convicted in federal labor racketeering cases in a two-year period from 1981 to 1982.

Millions In Aerobics To Toughen Up

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The inmates of the Washington state women's prison do it. Most of Nancy Reagan's staff does it. Former Defense Secretary Harold Brown tried it, but dropped out.

It's sweaty. It's addicting. It's "foudroyant." In French, that's dazzling. In hundreds of American cities, in suburban basements and exclusive health clubs, an estimated 6 million Americans strut, skip, stretch and touch their toes, sometimes seven days a week at considerable expense, to the beat of throbbing pop music, until the sweat soaks their T-shirts and their pulse rates soar and they feel the "burn."

And then they come back for more. "It's an addiction — a good one, though," Nancy Mukamal said after she and two dozen other women had finished punching and dancing their way through a song from the movie "Rocky III" in a church gymnasium on Manhattan's Upper East Side.

Ms. Mukamal goes up to four times a week to her aerobics dancing class, which is run according to principles established in 1969 by the originator of aerobic dance, a former cheerleader named Jacki Sorensen. Mrs. Sorensen was the wife of a B-52 pilot stationed in Puerto Rico when she created an exercise program by combining dancing and the work of Dr. Kenneth Cooper, author of "Aerobics." The program was tried at YMCAs in New Jersey and spread through the nation in many forms and under many names: Jazzercise, Danceercise, Dance Aerobics, Aerobix Joy, Aerobics in Action, Dance Fitness, Fitness in Tempo, Fitness Fantasia.

Then came Jane Fonda's Workout Book, which describes a combination of aerobic dance and strength-building exercises. It has been on the New York Times best-seller list for 69 weeks.

"Up, up, up," said C. Carson Conrad, executive director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, when asked about the popularity of what the council classifies as "rhythmical jazz dance."

"My wife and everybody else gets in it," he said. Conrad, who estimated that 6 million Americans do some kind of aerobic dance exercise, said most devotees are women, although some teachers report having a few men in their classes. Sessions tend to be extremely hard work, and newcomers, male or female, are invariably sore the day after their first sessions.

Once a week about 10 women from Mrs. Reagan's staff leave the East Wing of the White House after work and walk through the corridors in their leotards to a fifth-floor hallway of an adjacent federal office building.

They work out to the beat from a record player and come back "all icked up," said Dodie Kazanjian, the first lady's deputy press secretary.

Their teacher is Lisa Dobloug, whose Saga Club in Washington's Georgetown section is frequented by many prominent Washingtonians, including Brown. He said in an interview that he has tried Ms. Dobloug's workout but prefers swimming.

Ms. Kazanjian, who first brought Ms. Dobloug to the White House, is also a member of the Saga Club. She is so addicted to her sessions there that she took a tape of Ms. Dobloug's workout on a recent trip to Malta.

"I do it every day, which is sort of crazy, I guess," Ms. Kazanjian said.

"You know the word for it?" she asked. "Foudroyant. You have a dazzling feeling."

An annual membership to the club is $675 and classes are about $5 each. In New York City, classes in mirror-lined rooms with sophisticated sound systems can run $10.

At Purdy Treatment Center for Women in Gig Harbor, Wash., it's free. The inmates in the state's only prison for women like to exercise in the gym to donated tapes and records.

Twenty Years Of Change For The Flower Children

Accuse NRC Of Improper Acts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has been accused in a congressional report of improperly giving inspection and investigative reports to companies under its scrutiny.

NRC officials have acknowledged at a House Interior subcommittee hearing that some regional officials had violated commission regulations by giving companies inspection and investigative reports.

A report by the subcommittee said the NRC's Office of Inspector and Auditor had failed to discipline employees in about 20 cases since 1981 when draft reports were prematurely released to companies under investigation.

NRC Chairman Nunzio Palladino said a new Office of Investigations as well as new, stricter conditions on what can be disclosed about continuing investigations were established last July.

FOR DEVELOPMENT
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — President Gustav Husak has shaken up the Czechoslovak Cabinet in a move apparently aimed at emphasizing technical and scientific development.

PSYCHIC RESEARCH
LONDON (AP) — Writer Arthur Koestler and his wife, Cynthia, who committed suicide together in March, left $624,000 to support the study of psychic phenomena, according to their wills.

DAVENPORT, Wash. (AP) — The flower children who two decades ago founded Tolstoy Farm are entering their late 30s now, are married, with kids, and don't believe in free love anymore.

Like many quests for utopia, the commune north of Davenport, in the heart of eastern Washington wheat country, has fallen short of its original ideals, some residents said recently.

Shared living quarters have given way to private homes with a slightly middle-class flavor.

Government by consensus remains intact and business meetings usually follow a potluck dinner and volleyball game.

Residents are beginning to take jobs in the outside community, and the farm now has a shortage of children willing to carry on their parents' legacy.

The farm was started in 1963 by a handful of people who followed the dream of Huw "Piper" Williams, an Edwall, Wash., farm boy they met on a peace march in Washington, D.C.

Williams was inspired by novelist and social theorist Leo Tolstoy, who wrote of living in harmony with the land in loving cooperation with all humankind. Williams' parents and grandparents loaned him the land until he could buy it.

"To find new answers, you need experimenters. That's what all young people are good at. We didn't have anything, but we shared it," said Williams, now 40.

Founders had hoped for no bills, no taxes and no need for money. Everyone was to work for the good of everyone else. Love was to be free and shared. Open marriages were encouraged.

In the early days, 20 to 30 people lived on $100 a month. The population grew to about 60 people and, at its peak, the farm ran a state-approved school staffed with resident teachers.

Pat Reed estimated that the average age of farm members was 18 when she arrived 17 years ago. Today, it's 35, she said.

Last year, she paid $58 in taxes on her home, plus her share of the $270 assessment on community land. She has no telephone or utility bills, and kerosene lighting cost $20. She received an income tax rebate for using solar power.

The farm's communal spirit suffered a major blow when the group's living quarters burned in the late 1960s. Farm lore says the arsonist was an angry visitor. The blaze led to a move toward single-family dwellings, and residents began to value their privacy.

"I'd be walking around and see someone wearing my clothes. I'd come home from (teaching) school and find (a visitor) drinking my coffee and typing on my typewriter. Finally, I said, 'Hey! Out!'" said Ms. Reed, 38.

FARM'S FOUNDER — Huw "Piper" Williams, who sought Utopia when he founded The Farm in Eastern Washington, plays with his daughter

Larkspur. Things have changed during the last 20 years on the commune, founded as an experiment in social harmony. (AP Laserphoto)

Asserts Review Is Frustrating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton says a federal review of Social Security disability rolls is frustrating state officials, who don't have the authority to help recipients they see every day.

He says the Reagan administration has been overzealous in its attempt to cut program costs by eliminating fraud.

NEEDS A SHAVE? — Chariot of Fire (Clyde, for short) doesn't really need a shave. What appears to be a beard actually is a bib made of hay string to discourage him from eating his blanket. Clyde belongs to the Wood L.B. Farm in Tampa, Fla., and is at the Salem-Roanoke Civic Center for the Roanoke Valley Horse Show that opened Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers, department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at regular selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.
