City Council Considers Tax Increase

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Faced with a financial dilemma that threatens to worsen without some form of adjustment in revenues, the City Council is considering a tax increase, a budget move all governing boards hesitate to make.

City Manager Gail Meeks said Mayor Percy Cox and the six-member council have scheduled a special call meeting for Tuesday morning to consider adopting a 1983-84 budget calling for an increase in the local property tax rate of 4.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Ms. Meeks said the tax increase, which would raise the local rate to 53.5 cents, would generate $351,991 in additional revenues that, among other areas, would alleviate the need to appropriate money from the fund balance in order to achieve a balanced budget. Ms. Meeks has acknowledged that it is not good fiscal policy to use the fund balance (cash on hand) as a source of revenue but it was necessary in 1982-83 to balance the package.

The city manager, in her initial budget presentation to the council, had proposed that the board maintain the current tax rate of 49 cents for fiscal 1983-84, but the budget also called for an appropriation of $122,455 from the fund balance. She said Friday that the account's low balance also makes the tax increase more critical in cancelling the projected appropriation.

While the tax rate adjustment would increase the total budget by some $229,536 over initial projections, the 1983-84 total would still reflect a decrease of $232,626 from the figure approved by the council last year.

Ms. Meeks said that even though the tax increase would make expenditures possible in several important areas, funds would still not be provided for over $1.2 million in capital improvements.

The proposed tax increase would provide funds for: a $59,568 transfer to the capital reserve fund; $50,336 to fund six-month salaries, beginning Jan. 1 or half way through the fiscal year, for eight new police officers in the department's uniform division; $30,000 for contingency; $21,871 for six-month salaries, beginning Jan. 1, for two detectives and one identification officer in the police investigative and records section; $24,004 in full-year salaries for two new fire-rescue officers.

And $12,000 in miscellaneous money (informers funds) for the investigative and records division; $8,757 in a full-year salary for an automotive serviceworker in public work's garage division; $6,000 for street patching work; $6,000 for professional services, including a police study; $4,000 for recreation and parks utilities; $3,000 in comprehensive planning money; and $4,000 in non-departmental areas.

The call meeting will be held at 9:15 a.m. Tuesday in the first floor conference room at city hall.

Bush Motorcade Draws Street Riot In Germany

By SUSAN J. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

KREFELD, West Germany (AP) — Hundreds of masked youths screaming anti-U.S. slogans battled riot police and hurled rocks, bottles and paint-filled balloons at Vice President George Bush's motorcade Saturday during celebrations saluting German-American friendship.

"Bush go home!," the rioters screamed. They dented his black Mercedes limousine, damaged three squad cars, smashed windows of a bus carrying guests to a luncheon for Bush and splattered black paint on several cars.

Authorities reported about 100 people injured and more than 150 arrested in the two cities Bush visited. Two policemen were hospitalized. None of the motorcade travelers was injured.

Security was especially tight during the eight-hour visit because an unexploded bomb was discovered Friday outside an American firm in Dusseldorf, where Bush's jet landed and departed.

The biggest demonstration — involving more than 20,000 anti-nuclear protesters in Krefeld's marketplace — was "completely peaceful," Police Chief Ulrich Nordbeck told a news conference.

The violence erupted when about 1,000 protesters — many wearing black leather clothes, black masks and helmets, the garb of West Germany's anarchist movement — lobbed gasoline bombs at police, who routed the rioters with clubs.

About 200-300 youths wearing similar gear later surged toward Bush's motorcade, ringed by police. The protesters hurled pavement stones, bottles, balloons filled with black paint and even rose bushes yanked from gardens.

The police chief said the motorcade was attacked after taking a detour because the original route was jammed with protesters.

Bush shrugged off the demonstrations.

"They are entitled to do this," he said at his next stop to open a museum 30 miles northeast in Bottrop, where another 2,000 protesters gathered.

"They couldn't do that in Red Square in Moscow," he said. "It makes me feel good."

Police detained 21 Bottrop protesters after about 100 tried to advance on the museum housing works by German painter Josez Albers, who emigrated to the United States 50 years ago. No injuries were reported.

Bush then flew by helicopter to Dusseldorf and flew aboard Air Force Two to Norway, the fourth stop of his two-week, eight-nation European tour. He arrived in the west Norwegian town Bergen late Saturday.

In the main ceremony of the day, before a select audience of several hundred Germans and Americans in Krefeld, Bush and Chancellor Helmut Kohl stressed what they called the need for a strong NATO alliance.

A blackout pitched the windowless hall into darkness for about five minutes. The cause was under in-

Project Exodus Previews Careers For Pitt Students

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

One of them said they "poked around inside each other's heads to see what was there." Another said what she decided was not to make a decision.

"Exodus gave me an idea of what I was getting into," said Rodney Reeves, a 1983 graduate of Farmville Central who spent his senior year in Pitt County schools' Project Exodus. "I was interested in computers and it (the program) showed me it was what I wanted to do."

"I had considered nothing else associated with medicine but nursing for a career," said Judy Boyd, now a graduate of D.H. Conley. "Then through Exodus I realized I could go into other medical-related things such as research."

The Exodus program, in its second year, took the students involved on a nine-month journey through professions and decision-making.

Exodus is a career exploration program that allows gifted and talented students to seek and pursue potential career choices and make decisions based on this search.

Begun in 1981, the program spread to all four high schools in the county in 1982 and involved over twice as many students as it did the first year, said Mary Alice Yarbrough, coordinator of the mentorship phase of the program.

The program has two parts: a guidance phase in which a student is exposed to decision-making, people skills and psychological testing, and a mentorship phase in which a student makes a career choice such as law or accounting and does a five-week apprenticeship in a local firm.

"This has been a year of growth for us (Exodus) but it's been a year when students found out many things that they didn't want to do instead of what they did want to do," said Mrs. Yarbrough.

"We feel that's a positive kind of growth, though, because finding out what you don't want to do narrows the field of what you may want to do," she said.

Cox Says 'No' To Another Term But Council Members Undecided

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville's City Council members are not committing themselves now to definite re-election plans for this fall but none of them are ruling out possible bids to retain their seats.

Of the seven members on the governing board, only Mayor Percy Cox indicated real doubt about another term, saying that "at the present time, it looks as though I will not be seeking re-election."

Cox, who served as mayor from 1975 to 1979 but did not seek re-election after his second term, said this week, "I will know by the middle of August whether or not I will run again."

William Hadden said he is "thinking seriously about it. I'm leaning toward a decision to run but I will make a decision in August." Hadden, first elected to the board in 1975, lost his re-election bid in 1977 but was successful in 1979 and 1981.

Louis Clark, who has served on the council since 1979, said he is "strongly considering" a bid for a third term. Clark, noting that he will make a definite decision the last week of the filing period, said he has been "working hard on the comprehensive plan" for Greenville in response to interest expressed by local citizens for "planned and orderly growth."

Janice Buck, who led the candidate field in her first try two years ago, said in regard to a re-election effort that she will "make that decision the day before the (filing) books close. I will not make that decision now." Ms. Buck said she would like to see some strong male candidates this fall.

The incumbent, whose name has been mentioned as a possible mayoral candidate, said, "I am concerned and feel an obligation to my city, but I don't have all the facts yet." The current mayor pro-tem said she will wait and see who else runs before making a decision on her election plans.

A six-year veteran on the council, Judy Greene said simply, "I haven't decided yet."

Stuart Shinn, a successful candidate in his initial bid for public office in 1981, said "there are things that need to be done and I would like to stay there long enough to see them done. You can't do it in two years." Shinn, while stopping just short of saying he will definitely run in November, said he would like to see the city back in good financial condition, with the unappropriated fund balance at a proper level and other accounts in better shape.

George Pugh, who was also elected two years ago, said he has not made up his mind about re-election and "will probably wait to see who decides to run and then make a decision."

Pugh said, "If someone is running who I feel can do a better job, I think he or she should have a shot at it. Greenville is our home and we (council members) work hard and try to do a good job. I have never worked with a nicer group of people."

The filing period for the Greenville mayoral and council seats this year will be from noon Sept. 16 until noon Oct. 7. In 1981, three local citizens ran for mayor and 11 candidates sought the six council posts.

Black Named Miss N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Miss Elkin Valley, Deneen Graham, who performed a jazz routine to "Sing, Sing, Sing," was crowned the 1983 Miss North Carolina Saturday night by 1982 queen Elizabeth Williams.

Michael F. Perkins, pageant executive director, said Miss Graham was the first black to ever win the tile. Two other black contestants were among the 10 finalists.

Miss Graham, 19, of North Wilkesboro, and a junior at the North Carolina School of the Arts, choreographed her dance. She wore a black evening gown in that part of the competition and later a blue and white swimsuit.

She will receive a $4,000 scholarship, $2,000 in cash, a fur coat and several wardrobes. Miss Graham will represent North Carolina in the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

The first runner-up was Miss Morganton Patricia Kim Cozort, 23, who won a $1,750 scholarship. Miss Cozort, who performed "Lucy's Aria" from the "Telephone," an opera by Gian-carlo Menotti, is from Drexel. She is an Appalachian State graduate pursuing a master's degree in music from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Second runner-up and winner of a $1,200 scholarship was Karan Chavis, 19, a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill junior, representing the Greater Greensboro area. She sang a jazz version of "From This Moment On" in the talent segment.

Patricia O'Quinn, Miss Goldsboro, was third runner-up and winner of a $1,000 scholarship. The 22-year-old, who studied ballet at the Jofferey Dance School in New York, performed an original classical ballet.

African Famine Comes In Era Of Surplus Grain

By JOHN C. GIVEN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In parts of drought-stricken Africa, crops are withering in the sun. Parched, starving livestock, ridden with disease, are keeling over. Hungry people are growing hungrier.

At the same time, 290.3 million tons of surplus grain pack the world's storehouses, according to the U.S. Agriculture Department.

Feast and famine, and the gap between them, are obvious in 1983.

In Africa, "agricultural production is severely down because of the drought in 20 or more countries ... below the Sahara Desert — and at the same time, their ability to import food is severely restricted by the world recession," said Nicholas Raymond, a spokesman for the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization.

He predicted that enough emergency grain donations would be arranged to avert absolute starvation in drought-stricken areas, but endemic malnutrition will get worse.

In May, FAO Director-General Edouard Saouma predicted a 2.6 million-ton food shortfall in Africa's 1983-84 crop year. He urged donor nations to increase their contributions.

The 36-nation World Food Council meets at the United Nations in New York City on Monday to discuss the problem of big food reserves in the major food-producing countries and the dwindling production in many Third World countries.

Jim Mayrides of the United Nations' Africa Section said that without sufficient emergency assistance, hunger-related deaths alone in Africa "could well be 2 (million) to 4 million people in the next 12 months." That is in addition to 4 million to 6 million Africans who "die from poverty-related causes each year."

Raymond said donor nations are "doing what they can," but "they are being pressured internally to hold down on foreign aid because of the recession."

"Food is money," he explained. "The United States will send a tremendous amount of food aid to Africa this year. When it's there, it's in tons. But when I talk to you, it's in money. So that's the problem: the industrialized countries have limitations on how much foreign aid to spend."

Aside from purchasing the foodstuffs from farmers, a donor government must also pay to ship it.

For example, officials of the U.S. Agency for International Development calculate that it cost an average of $10.50 to ship one 100-pound bag of wheat from a Gulf of Mexico port to central Africa. That does not include shipment from its source in the United States or its original purchase price of $6.76.

Raymond noted that the developing nations may need to supplement the foreign aid they receive with additional purchases of food. But they, too, have been "severely hurt by the recession, because their ability to export has been severely hurt."

"They're not exporting machinery or technology. More likely it's either minerals or agricultural things — cotton, peanut oil. Prices for these commodities are 20 percent lower than three years ago," he said.

"These countries are already poor," he added. "Their imports include machines, oil — everything. So the situation right now is the worst of both worlds happening at one time."

This is the third time in a decade that a serious drought has ravaged Africa. Others occurred in 1972-73, 1978-79 and, most recently, beginning within the last two years.

"And those conditions have been exacerbated by rising populations over the same period," Raymond said. "African populations have been growing ... nearly twice as fast as the food level increase."

In terms of production of wheat, rice, corn and other grains, Africa is far from alone in its declining ability to feed itself. In what it calls an "ominous trend away from self-sufficiency," the FAO recently noted that before World War II, all major regions of the world except Western Europe were net grain exporters.

"But in just 40 years the world food trade equilibrium has been turned upside down," the assessment said. "Today, all regions except North America and Australia-New Zealand are net importers.

"Of a 1981 export market of over 200 million tons, nearly two-thirds of the total came from the U.S. and Canada," it said.

The United States is the biggest producer, accounting for 167.9 million tons of the present 290.3 million-ton grain surplus, according to a recent U.S. Agriculture Department survey.

In an effort to reduce this stockpile, the United States plans to cut its wheat production by more than 15 percent in the 1983-84 crop year. Even so, the agency said, world stockpiles left over at the end of that period will still total 267.4 million tons.

The United States sends its relief by way of the U.S.A.I.D. "Food for Peace" program. For the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, the agency expects to spend more than $250 million in Africa, said Hunter Farnham, chief of the Food Aid and Refugees Section of the agency's Bureau for Africa.

But he warned that "natural or man-made disasters" can always hamper efforts to help the hungry.

Sales May Be Delayed

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Pending tobacco price support legislation may delay opening dates for 1983 flue-cured markets, the Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee says.

Markets in Georgia and Florida are the first scheduled to open — on July 20 — but the advisory committee recommended Friday that, if openings for those markets were postponed, openings in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia be set back the same number of days.

The committee is composed of representatives from farming organizations, warehouses, domestic cigarette manufacturers and leaf exporting companies.

A spokesman from the Tobacco Growers Information Committee, a private agency not affilitated with the government agency, said the advisory committee also passed a resolution stating positive legislation on the tobacco program needs to be completed before the markets opened this year.

"It was the consensus of the (advisory committee) that something of a constructive nature regarding the tobacco program needed to be passed and in operation for the 1983 season," said Reggie Lester, managing director of the information committee.

Markets in South Carolina and southeastern North Carolina will open July 26. Markets in eastern North Carolina will open July 27. Markets of the middle belt, or northern and central North Carolina, will open Aug. 1. Old belt markets, consisting of those in North Carolina's western Piedmont and Virginia, will open Aug. 8.

According to the advisory committee's recommendation, postponement of market openings would not exceed one week. If the time exceeded one week, Lester said, the advisory committee would have to "regroup and rethink the decision" based on available information.

"The committee would like to open markets under the new set-up and not have to change horses in mid-stream," Lester said. "It could be very chaotic."

Nakasone Facing Test In Japanese Election

TOKYO (AP) — Voters across Japan began casting ballots Sunday in an election expected to strengthen the governing Liberal Democratic Party's majority in the upper house of Parliament.

The election also is the first nationwide test of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's leadership since he assumed the post last November.

Voters began lining up at the nation's 51,158 polling places at at 7 a.m. — 6 p.m. EDT Saturday. The polls close at 6 p.m. and the final results are expected to be known about 30 hours later.

Latest opinion polls predicted the Liberal Democrats, the conservative group that has governed Japan since 1955, will win five to 15 more seats in the House of Councillors, where half the 252 members are up for re-election.

In the current house, the Liberal Democrats hold 133 seats, the Japan Socialist Party 47, the Clean Government Party (Komeito) 27, the Japan Communist Party 12, the Democratic Socialist Party 12, and smaller parties the rest.

The polls say the Japan Socialist Party will lose four seats and the Komeito three, while the Communist Party and the Democratic Socialists will retain the same standing.

The Liberal Democrats already hold 284 of the 511 seats in the more important House of Representatives. But experts say if the LDP gains are big enough Sunday that Nakasone may try for a bigger majority in the House of Representatives by dissolving it and calling an election before its four-year-term ends next June.

"People are showing a strong interest in the election, as more people came to listen to our campaign speeches than we expected," LDP spokesman Shozo Otsuka told The Associated Press.

But Norihito Shimada, a spokesman for the Japan Socialist Party, said in a telephone interview, "This is the first time that people's concern about Nakasone's military-oriented tendencies have been expressed so much by the people. I detect much more awareness among voters of our anti-nuclear and anti-Nakasone policies."

Hunger Walk Ends

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 47-year-old Michigan woman has ended a four-month walk across the country to fight hunger with a stroll across the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco.

Ginny Broersma of Grand Rapids was accompanied Friday by her daughter, Pamela, 25, and two other Michigan residents, Thelma and Ralph Kemink, on the last two miles of the 2,675-mile walk.

On Sunday, she is to appear at the Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, Calif., to talk about her walk to raise money for the hungry in Haiti and Grand Rapids.

"We did it, we did it, hurrah," said Mrs. Broersma. "I'm so happy, so pleased everyone was behind me in this."

She had hoped to raise tens of thousands of dollars in donations during the walk, but so far little money has come in.

"I'm assuming most of the fund-raising will begin now that I've made it," she said.

A fund-raising campaign was to begin Sunday after the Crystal Cathedral appearance, where the hat will be passed.

During her trek through Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada and California, Mrs. Broersma's husband, Ronald, stayed home to tend the house, sell insurance and urge her on from afar. "I'm very proud of her," he said. "She has a lot of courage.

"I want to stay out of the picture," her husband said. "This is Ginny's trip. She should get all the glory."

Mrs. Broersma was to return to Grand Rapids on July 8.

Maritime Official C.D. Marhsall Dies

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Charles DeLaskie Marshall, an official with the U.S. Maritime Commission and a former aide to the late Nelson Rockefeller, has died after a long illness. He was 72.

A memorial service will be held Monday in Essex for Marshall, who died Thursday.

Born in Chicago, Marshall graduated from Harvard University in 1933 and went to work for the Grace Line, serving for six years in Santiago, Chile as manager of operations on the west coast of South America.

In 1941, he became a representative of Rockefeller who was then the coordinator of Inter-American Affairs in Chile and later in Washington.

After joining the Maritime Commission in Washington in 1946 as assistant commissioner, he eventually became assistant to the chairman. In 1948, Marshall became general manager of the commission.

Marshall became vice chairman of the associated Latin American Freight Conferences in New York City in 1950, moving to Greenwich. He served as vice chairman until 1962 when he was appointed chairman.

He held that position until his retirement in 1976.

Klansmen Stage Several Rallies

By The Associated Press

White-robed Ku Klux Klansmen rallied in a small Alabama town Saturday as blacks marched at a department store less than a mile away, and four people were arrested while protesting a Klan rally in Connecticut.

Klansmen in Arkansas announced plans to hold a rally there to reward members for their recruitment efforts.

In Eufaula, Ala., 20 Klansmen handed out leaflets and solicited money downtown while a small group of blacks gathered at a K mart store on the edge of town to urge shoppers not to go inside.

Cramer J. Rogers, a leader of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said the Klansmen wanted to show their "solidarity" with whites in Eufaula and express their support for businesses which have been boycotted by blacks.

The Klan had a permit from the city to demonstrate, and Rogers, of Roopville, Ga., said they came from Alabama and Georgia.

The boycott and other protests by blacks began after a white Eufaula policeman shot and killed two black brothers during a traffic investigation April 2. A grand jury cleared the policeman of any wrongdoing, but blacks have called for a federal investigation.

"Red" McDaniel was one of the most brutally tortured prisoners of the Vietnam War. This torture resulted from his active role in camp communications during an organized escape attempt by fellow prisoners. He is the author of "Scars and Stripes" ("Before Honor" in hardback), a book telling about his six years in a Communist prison.

The Freedom Foundation presented Captain McDaniel with the American Patriot Award in 1979. The same year he received the American Academy of Achievement's Golden Plate Award. The awards recognized his patriotism and courage as a POW. Both the Campbell Alumni Association and the Elon College Alumni Association have elected "Red" McDaniel "Distinguished Alumnus".

"Red" McDaniel presently, serves as President and Co-Director of the American Defense Foundation, Inc., a non-profit educational corporation dedicated to the preservation of American military and moral strength. In 1982 he was appointed by Secretary of the Navy, John Lehman, to the Academic Advisory Board of the United States Naval Academy.

Body Found In Parked Truck

Pitt County authorities Saturday night were investigating the death of a man found slumped over the dashboard of a pickup truck parked on Old Creek Road north of Greenville.

The body was found late Saturday by William Stancill, who lives on the road. Stancill called authorities after seeing the body in the truck.

Revival To Begin Monday

A revival will begin Monday at Bell's Chapel Holy Church and continue through Friday. Elder Clifton Buckraham of Providence Holy Church in Raleigh will be the speaker.

Services begin at 7:30 nightly.

Schools Plan Gymnastics Class

Pitt County Community Schools will sponsor a gymnastics clinic at A.G. Cox School Monday through Thursday with classes lasting from 6:30-8 nightly.

Instruction will be given on the balance beam, mini trampoline and floor excercises. The director is John Rose of East Carolina University.

There will be a $5 registration fee. For more information call 752-6106, ext. 205.

Wreck Injures Four People

Four persons received minor injuries in an acident near Winterville Friday morning.

According to Trooper Donnie Daylor, a car driven by Thurston Collins Blount of Greenville collided with a car driven by Ernestine Daniels Buck of Grimesland at the intersection of rural paved roads 1700 and 1708.

Taylor said two passengers in the Blount car were injured as well as Blount and Ms. Buck.

The investigator said Ms. Buck pulled from a stop sign and failed to see the Blount vehicle. Ms. Buck was charged with failure to yield the right of way in the 10. a.m. collision.

The accident occurred about 1.9 miles south of Greenville.

Public Meeting Scheduled Tuesday

A public meeting to provide parents and other interested persons details on the proposed Magnet Program for Greenville students in grades kindergarten through third will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Sadie Saulter School. Ann Harrison, director of programs for exceptional children in the Greenville school system, will conduct the informational session.

Rapelling, Rock Climbing Program Set

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will offer a program of rapelling and rock climbing on Table Rock near Linville Gorge on July 21-24.

No experience is necessary but participants must be at least 18 years old and in reasonably good health. Cost including all instructions, transportation from Greenville, all meals while at the climbing site and all climbing and camping equipment except shoes, clothing and toiletries is $50. Additional expenses of $10-$15 can be expected to cover meals while traveling to and from Table Rock.

An orientation and discussion session will be held prior to the trip. For more information call Bill Twine, Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, 752-4137, Ext. 201.

Joyner Library Opens Exhibit

"Hot Fun in the Summertime," a new exhibit in the East Carolina Manuscript Collection at East Carolina University's Joyner Library, provides a glimpse of how Americans spent summer holidays during the 19th century.

Old letters, photographs, post cards, engraved sheet music and other manuscript material pertaining to everything from taking the waters to celebrating the Fourth of July are on display. The exhibit is open to the public.

Among the Tar Heels represented in the exhibit are Gov. Elias Carr and Congressman Herbert C. Bonner. An amusing caricature pokes fun at Carr's pilgrimage in 1882 to the coast. A photograph taken in 1951 shows Bonner and William B. Rodman proudly exhibiting the fish they had caught at Ocracoke.

The exhibit, located in room 115 of Joyner Library, can be seen form 8 to 5, Monday through Friday, throughout the summer.

Youth Fellowship Service Planned

Mount Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church in Winterville will hold a youth fellowship service Sunday at 3 p.m.

The speaker will be the Rev. Ronnie Cherry. The program will be sponsored by the Mount Shiloh Youth Department.

Services Planned Nightly

A week of services will be held at Simpson Chapel Free Will Baptist Church in Simpson Monday through Friday.

Monday night, the Zion Hill FWB Church choir and ushers will be in charge of the service. Tuesday's guests will include the choir and ushers from Holy Mission. Eldress Annie Ellison and her choir and ushers will present Wednesday night's service. Guests on Thursday night will include the choir and ushers from Sweet Hope Church on Friday night the choir and ushers from Holly Hill FWB Church.

Sudan Temple Tour Ends

Approximately 130 persons representing the Sudan Temple of New Bern have returned from a two-week tour of England, France, Scotland and Ireland.

The trip included tours of London and Paris, Stratford on Avon, Sir Winston Churchill's home at Chartwell, and the Castles Mohercliffs and Peatbogs of Ireland, and the highland games in Scotland.

Those on the trip from Greenville were Pete Brewer, J.T. Manning, Jesse Laughinghouse, Clayton Whitehurst and their wives.

Women's Day Service Set Today

Clemons Grove Church will observe its annual Women's Day service Sunday at 3 p.m. Eldress Mattie Smith will be the guest speaker and music will be provided by the Saints Rest Choir.

Scott Evans To Attend Jamboree

E. Scott Evans, a member of Troop 603, has been chosen to attend the XV World Boy Scout Jamboree July 4-14 at Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

World Jamborees take place each four years. Approximately 15,000 Scouts, attired in native unfiorms from some 117 countries, will gather in Alberta to take part in world sports, matches of skills, to exchange ideas and live among Scouts of other nations, sharing native traditions.

E. SCOTT EVANS

Southestern Scouts will leave Raleigh-Durham Airport, traveling first to the University of Utah for lunch and assignments. They will visit homes of early pioneers, the Mormom Temple, Yellowstone Canyon, Big Sky Ranch and Great Falls in Montana.

Motor coaches will then take the Scouts to the jamboree site for camping, river rafting, motorcross biking, hiking and backpacking in the Canadian Rockies. Each troop on alternate days will have an opportunity to visit the Calgary Exhibiton and Stampede and the Chuckwagon Races.

Scott, who attends Greenville Christian Academy and is a member of Maranatha Baptist Sunday School, is the son of Wilton and Lena Johnson Evans of Route 13, Greenville.

Canoe Race Scheduled Saturday

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will hold its annual Fourth of July canoe race Saturday, July 2, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

All entrants must provide their own canoe and have Coast Guard-approved lifejackets. Canoes must be manned by two people. No sails, motors or Kayaks will be allowed.

The race will begin at the Falkland Wildlife Boat Landing and continue to the Town Common. All interested persons should contact the Greenville Parks and Recreation office to register their teams by Saturday. Six trophies will be awarded, two for first, two for second, and two for third. For additional information and registration call 752-4137, Ext. 200.

Librarians Attend Local Workshop

Over 150 librarians and media personnel representing public, school and academic libraries attended the seventh annual summer workshop recently in the Willis Building.

The workshop, sponsored by the ECU Library Science Professional Society, was coordinated by Emily S. Boyce, chairman of the deprtment of library science at East Carolina University. Keynote speaker was Dr. Frank Turner of Texas Women's University. Dr. Ruth Katz moderated a panel.

vestigation, but authorities did not rule out the possibility of sabotage.

Outside, demonstrators shouted slogans such as "Chase the Yankees out and shatter NATO!" and "USA, SS, SA," coupling America with Hitler's notorious SA Nazi stormtroopers and SS special police.

Bush did not directly refer to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization plan to deploy 572 U.S.-built nuclear missiles this year in West Germany, Britain, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands.

The plan has sparked widespread protests in West Germany, where the bulk of Pershing 2 and cruise missiles are to be deployed if there is no progress in U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

Kohl indicated that West Germany is determined to carry out the NATO plan despite widespread popular opposition.

"We take no joy in armament. We take no joy in more missiles. We want to create peace with fewer weapons," Kohl said. But, he said, "we will do our part."

Bush used the occasion to attack Soviet policy.

He said he believed NATO must remain strong to preserve the democracy the German emigrants from Krefeld crossed the Atlantic to find in Germantown, Pa. The Philadelphia suburb was founded 300 years ago.

"Our histories are both utterly intertwined...Our values — peace, freedom, the dignity of the individual — are the same," Bush said.

"Yet we must remember that our peace and prosperity are ceaselessly threatened by hostile ideologies and states. The main such threat to our democracies continues to come, as you know, from the Soviet Union.

"The Soviet system by contrast possesses no workable means for reform, seeks to impose on all its people a single, rigid will, and has in recent years overrun and occupied Afghanistan, rained poisonous chemicals on the innocent peoples of both Afghanistan and southeast Asia and battered down attempts to assert the rudiments of human rights in East Germany, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland."

Exodus ...

Miss Boyd, who just finished her second year with the program, had what she called a "very positive" experience with nursing last year but had another "very stimulating" mentorship in biology at East Carolina University this year.

"What I decided was not to make a decision," she said. "I considered medicine as a career — nothing else — then I went to ECU and worked in biology and found out there was something besides nursing and I needed that."

Miss Boyd spent two years in the program and said, "Two years is better — you need the comparison.

"You can compare experiences between the two years," she added. "Attitudes will change, and priorities."

Woody Leggett, a senior at North Pitt High School this past year, said his mentorship with Sen. John East's office taught him a career in political science is "psychologically rewarding but the financial opportunities are limited."

"I learned I am concerned with getting a steady job," Leggett said, "and for this reason I might steer away from political science itself although I'm still interested in the social sciences."

Law was Leggett's second career choice, and he said his mentorship with a Greenville law firm made him "a little more likely to be a lawyer than I was when I started," but "chances are I won't be" (a lawyer).

The best thing he got out of Exodus, Leggett said, was the exercise on career planning in the guidance phase. "It helped me realize some things about myself, some interests and some goals," he said.

Ragan Spain, a rising senior at D.H. Conley, said Exodus narrowed his career choices. He spent his mentorship with an local inventor and was given a complicated math problem to decipher.

"I found out I don't need to do cubicle work. I need to work with people," he explained. "I sat in the office working on the math problem and it was so quiet you could hear the lights running."

"I still like math," he said, "and it's my career choice but I think now I'll consider teaching on a college level instead of research."

Unlike many Exodus participants, Russell Tyndall of Ayden-Grifton found he liked his career choice, accounting, but that he preferred public accounting to corporate accounting. Tyndall spent a month with an industry's accounting department and a month with a certified public accountant in Greenville.

"Both areas appeal to me because I like working with numbers," he said. "I knew in the beginning I liked working with people, too, but didn't know interaction with people played such an important role for me.

"Exodus also taught me there are some things about a career you can't read in a book that you can learn from someone in the profession, like stress factors, for example," Tyndall added.

"I liked the program because it's better to discover the things you like and don't like about a career now rather than when you get out of college four or five years from now," he said.

How do the mentors, the people who work with the students, feel about their contact with the program? Dr. John DeVanzo of the East Carolina University Medical School said the community has "an obligation to work with these youngsters."

"These students are potentially leaders and they need to be challenged," he said. "I'm not sure we challenged them but we kindled a spark."

"We sent them into the lab and made them a part of the experiment," he said. "They made observations, drew conclusions, and before they knew it they were part of it (the experiment) and ... you could just see their eyes light up."

DeVanzo said one of Exodus' most valuable assets is that it exposes the students to choices involving all professions.

"We as researchers, whatever, have to get in our communities and teach these careers," DeVanzo said. "We can't expect the teachers to do everything.

"Our teachers are good, but there's a deficit between careers and the teachers' knowledge about careers and we (the community) have to fill this gap."

Programs like Exodus, he said, help fill the gap.

"We wanted to see how we could challenge these kids," DeVanzo said, "and what we found was with most of them we only scratched the surface. They (students) need challenging for months, not just for days."

"Challenge? Are you kidding," said Tyndall. "At my first mentorship there were maybe 15,000-20,000 terms I had to remember — I always had to think about what they were telling me — it was a constant challenge."

"My mentor told me 'If you need help, here's a book — work on it,'" said Spain. "I did a lot of creative thinking."

Miss N.C. ...

Miss Johnston County, Vicki Lynne Tharrington, 20, of Smithfield, was fourth runner-up and received an $800 scholarship. The East Carolina University junior performed a jazz dance to the song "Dance."

Miss Franklin County, Martha Rose Butler, won the most talented non-finalist award and received a $400 scholarship.

The other finalists who received the most points from a five-judge panel in this week's preliminary competition, including talent, evening gown and swimsuit, were announced Saturday night during the statewide televised pageant.

They were: Margaret Elizabeth Griffin of Asheville, Miss Martin County; Mary Ellen Wiggins of Stedman, Miss Fayetteville; Patsy Jeanette Wright of Columbus County, Miss Columbus County; Monica Michelle Malpass of High Point, Miss Thomasville; and Teresa Lee Strawser of Hickory, Miss Hickory.

Kinston Doctors Oppose Plan To Open Lenoir Dialysis Center

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Plans by a Greenville firm to open a satellite dialysis center in Kinston have run into opposition from Lenoir County's medical community although a spokesmen says the proposed center is intended only to provide treatment closer to home for 26 patients in the Kinston area.

Pitt Intenral and Renal Medicine Associates drew sharp criticism from Kinston physicians at a hearing Thursday by the Department of Human Resources. The hearing was on an appeal of the department's Division of Facilities Services to grant a certificate of need to the Greenville firm.

"It is not our intent to create animosity, but rather to maintain our present amicable relations with physicians in Kinston," a spokesman for the Greenville firm said later. The spokesman for the dialysis center asked not to be identified.

Opposition to the proposed Kinston branch included objections by the staff, administration and board of Lenoir Memorial Hospital. Dr. George Riddick, president of the LMH medical staff, read a statement contending that location of a satellite dialysis center in Kinston would block efforts to have a kidney specialist based in Kinston.

The Kinston Daily Free Press, however, editorially cast aside that objection, contending that treatment is needed now for the patients requiring attention in Greenville each week.

The Free Press editorial asked, "What about the 26 patients with kidney failure who have to drive to Greenville four to six times a week for dialysis?" ... Area health professionals say the clinic would not be in the best interest of local kidney patients ... but, THEY are not the patients ... the satellite center will fulfill a need NOW, not at some future date ..."

The spokesman for the center said there has been considerable misunderstanding and misinterpretation about the issue.

"We have been taking care of these kidney patients who have been referred to us by Kinston doctors for years," the spokesman said. "Our intent in seeking to establish a dialysis unit in Kinston is with the idea of providing them the same treatment we are giving them in Greenville without their having to come this far for treatment."

According to the spokesman, when the idea of establishing a unit was first broached last August, "most of the doctors in the Kinston area were in agreement with the concept, and with their encouragement, we moved ahead on the fact we felt we'd been given a go-ahead signal. Several of the doctors in the area were obviously not aware of the plans, and possibly misunderstood the intent behind our request to establish a satellite there."

He said the Greenville firm planned to have "qualified nurses and technicians on hand at all times, with a doctor present as needed," at the Kinston branch.

The basic idea behind establishing a dialysis satellite in Kinston, the spokesman said, "is to work with physicians there. When the time comes when they can reach the stage of recruiting for a nephrologist, we would be happy to help them locate one. Our intent is not to be a threat to them, but to help them and the patients with the knowledge we have gained from 13 years experience in the Greenville center."

"After all," the spokesman added, "we are all talking about the same patients, the same needs, and I hope, the need as doctors to help each other in meeting the needs of patients."

According to the spokesman, action will be taken within 30 days on the firm's request for a certificate of need.

Pilot Asks Check Of Tires

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The pilot of a Republic Airlines DC-9 who feared a tire on his plane might be damaged asked the control tower to take a look before landing in Las Vegas on Saturday, an airline spokesman said.

But visual observation from the tower at McCarran International Airport showed there was "no problem," and the plane landed normally, said Redmond Tyler, public relations director for the Minneapolis-based airline.

The pilot feared a bumpy runway in Houston might have caused a tire to blow, Tyler said, adding that it is normal procedure to have tower personnel look at tires if pilots think there could be a problem.

Sunday Opinion

Parental Work Remains Prime Item In Schools

The Greenville School Board's decision not to opt as volunteers for the "pilot program" of longer school days and longer school term was based on good reasons.

There was the element of scant preparation, the element of parental objections, the point of serious discussions underway for the combining of city and county school systems ... as well as the reminder by Superintendent Delma Blinson that there were many problems associated with the proposal and few guarantees.

The superintendent said he believed the program was worth a try, but acknowledged problems separate and apart from the state proposal which needed attention.

The Wahl-Coates School auditorium was packed with parents and other interested persons with an overwhelming preponderance of sentiment against the pilot school program.

Under such circumstances ... with the people who support the schools against the proposal ... there was not much point in the board's acting against their wishes.

For our part, we are convinced all parents aspire to a high degree of excellence in the education of their children, and Monday night's turnout and response to the pilot program does not change that opinion.

However, as we have perhaps noted before, the learning process is roughly identified on three factors: hearing, seeing and doing ... translatable into listening and understanding the teachers' presentations, reading assignments, and then the doing of homework. Two out of three are home-oriented.

That puts the ball largely in the parents' court.

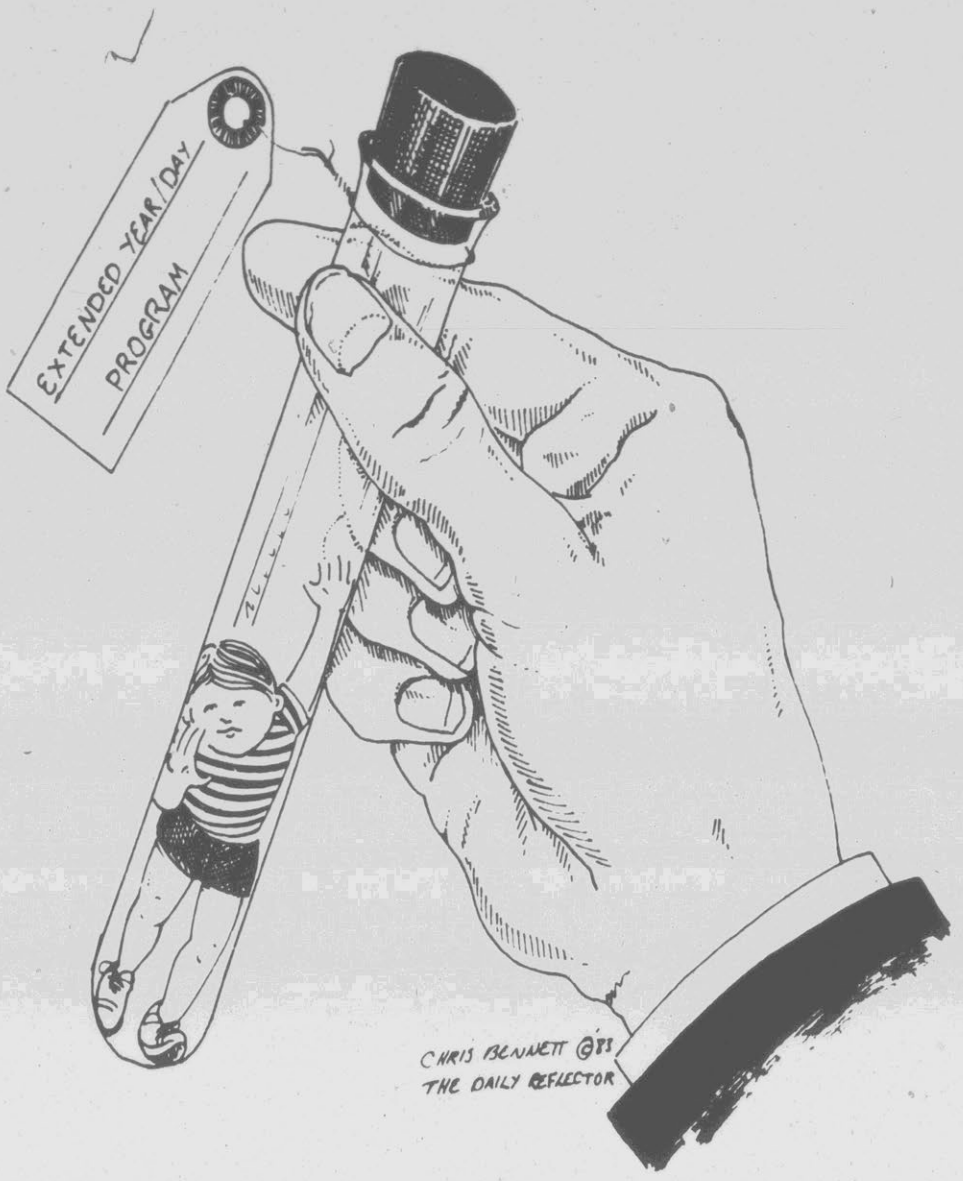

Fire-Rescue Takes Big Step Forward With Special Team

The Greenville Fire-Rescue Department has organized a a hazardous response team — one of four in the state — to meet the threat of chemical spills.

The department has converted an old city truck into a vehicle to accommodate the special equipment needed and chemical suits have been obtained for members of the special team.

Don Mills, assistant chief of the department, said in recent months the department has responded to chlorine and ammonia leaks, a petroleum spill and a pesticide spill, but the department has not had the equipment or expertise to properly cope with hazardous situations. With the new equipment and trained personnel the department will be in a better position to handle such situations, he said.

This is indeed a step forward for the local department. Trains and trucks move regularly through Greenville with cargos of chemicals and other shipments that could be hazardous. We need to be prepared to handle any emergeny.

Alvin Taylor — Sunday Morning Notes

There's only one tree in the area behind The Daily Reflector building. It is located near the rear entrance to the office area and it sure gets a lot of use.

A few week's back your columnist reported seeing an oppossum in the tree one dark night. The oppossum disappeared, but something else took its place.

A bird built a nest high up in the branches and could be seen nesting there by employees as they came to work every day.

The baby birds should be modern in every way. The mother bird used plastic baling straps, used by the newspaper's circuation department, to build the nest.

For many years your columnist has been the one who huddled in the shade at midday around pools and at the beaches. All the other guys got the girls because they could go out on the beaches and socialize.

We accepted our fate. Some years back a pill came out that fair-skinned people were supposed to be able to take and prevent sunburn. It must have had some adverse effects because we have heard little from it since.

We assumed the same when people began telling us about sun blocks, the sun tan lotion that is supposed to block out everything. Not believing in it, we didn't use it — until last weekend when we gave it a begrudging try.

Lo and behold it worked — at least for your columnist.

A liberal coating of the stuff took us through the hottest sun hours. We felt a whole new world was opening up, but then we read that some scientists suspect that too much sun affects the body's immune system. So maybe it is back to the shade.

If the sun is a problem, last week it was the heat and the humidity. One of our jogging friends came in from a long run on one of those humid evenings.

He panted, "This is no kind of weather to be doing this."

There are those who say that no kind of weather is suitable for running.

Well, whatever your outdoor activity, summer officially arrived last week. For the farmer it means lots of hard work in the fields, but for those of us who toil in offices, there is much recreational activity from jogging and softball to sailing and skiing.

For a few of us a nap in air-conditioned comfort will do just fine!

James J. Kilpatrick — Nader

WASHINGTON — Ralph Nader was the first "public interest" advocate of the past quarter-century, and though he no longer holds terror for members of Congress, he remains the granddaddy of the whole movement that has developed since he came on the scene. Hundreds of his apostles carry on his missionary work.

Who are these people whose bold proposition is to speak for the "Common Cause" or the Public Interest"? Two well-qualified scholars, S. Robert Lichter and Stanley Rothman, set out last year to develop a profile of those who lead the public interest groups. Lichter is an assistant professor of political science at George Washington University; Rothman is a professor of government at Smith College.

In an earlier study of the "media elite," Lichter and Rothman provided empirical data to support the widespread surmise that our top editors and broadcasters tend strongly toward contemporary liberalism. Their findings on the public interest leaders are reported in the current issue of Public Opinion, a publication of the American Enterprise Institute.

It will surprise no one to learn that Nader's disciples overwhelmingly reflect the social and political positions of their Grand Old Man. In the same sense that there are "ultra-conservatives" on the right, these leaders may fairly be categorized as the "ultra-liberals" of the left.

A word on methodology: The two scholars created lists of key individuals publicly identified with the public interest movement in lobbying, in law, in academia, in foundations and in government. They restricted the list to 74 groups in Washington and New York. From their list they selected a random sample of 157 individuals representing a cross section of the public interest elite, among them representatives of the American Civil Liberties Union, Common Cause, Congress Watch, Consumer's Union, the Environmental Defense Fund and the Women's Legal Defense Fund.

Who are these leaders? The study found them "overwhelmingly young (the average age is 39), highly educated, well-paid professionals." In the random sample, 97 percent were white, 69 percent male; virtually all of them were college graduates, and 89 percent held postgraduate degrees. For the most part, they came out of well-to-do liberal families on the East Coast. Forty-seven percent were raised in the Jewish religion; 41 percent listed their current religion as "none."

The subjects — 90 percent of them — identified themselves as "political liberals," and their recent voting record buttresses that self-image. Only 2 percent voted for Nixon in 1968, 4 percent for Nixon in 1972, 3 percent for Ford in 1976 and 2 percent for Reagan in 1980.

The researchers asked about attitudes on social issues. Ninety-four percent believe that "government should redistribute income." Eighty percent agree that "government shouldguarnatee jobs," and also should guarantee "a good standard of living." They agree that blacks (85 percent) and women (70 percent) should get "preference in hiring." Ninety-five percent believe that a "woman has right to decide on abortion." Two-thirds would halt nuclear energy development altogether.

Other questions dealt with approval of public figures and groups. Some of the ratings: Ralph Nader, 93 percent; Edward Kennedy, 93; the Sandinistas of Nicaragua, 50; Fidel Castro, 34; and Ronald Reagan, 5. In the poll, 90 percent "strongly" disapproved of the president.

What does all this add up to? The data strongly suggest that the self-proclaimed "public interest" leaders are far removed from the public whose interests they profess to defend. There is something weird in the notion that a body of men and women, 96 percent of whom voted for George McGovern, are qualified to lecture the nation on what is best for all of us. McGovern, you may recall, carried Massachusetts and the District of Columbia only.

Perhaps Lichter and Rothman one day will undertake a similar study of leaders on the right. The data might well reflect the same kind of imbalance: In 1972 probably 96 percent of my folks voted for Nixon — but at least my folks don't advance the arrogant claim that they represent the "public" interest. They forthrightly speak for special interests, which is exaotly what the Naderites do too.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak — New Policy Signals Shift In Direction

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has unexpectedly and quietly revealed to the American Jewish community that Israeli settlements on the West Bank no longer pose an "obstacle" to peace, a policy change avidly sought by Prime Minister Menachem Begin that signals pre-election hibernation for U.S. Mideast policy and grave dangers for Egypt and Jordan

Such hibernation has become the norm as the American presidential election approaches, given the importance of the Jewish vote. But in contrast to the past, this year's abrupt switch from dymic to passive attention toward the explosive Mideast could prove costly.

The switch certifies that the president's bold Sept. 1, 1982, peace plan is dead. With Begin due here for a triumphant official visit next month, Israel is exonerated from last year's global condemnation over the invasion of Lebanon. Ronald Reagan, whose own harsh criticism of Israel last year angered Begin, hopes that the 1984 Republican presidential campaign now can be conducted against a backdrop of solid U.S.-Israeli relations.

The president's surprising switch on new Jewish settlements on the Palestinian-populated West Bank came in a recent dialogue not yet generally reported. Unable to attend a national convention of editors and writers for Jewish newspapers in Coral Gables, Fla., May 26, Reagan did an amplified question-and-answer session over the telephone. "Do you now see the settlements ... as any obstacle to peace?" he was asked. Reagan tried to duck the question, but when Al Bloom of the Pittsburgh Jewish Chronicle repeated it, the president replied: "No, I don't, I really don't."

Although Reagan added a little later that he was hopeful for a "moratorium" on settlements during West Bank political negotiations, he had unmistakably junked the "obstacle to peace" formulation. That careful phrase has described the U.S. settlements policy throughout the Reagan administration.

At about the same time, a private warning to Washington was coming from Cairo: Even under the most promising of circumstances, the Soviet Union could not be excluded indefinitely from the Middle East. That warning was issued behind closed doors at a Mannattan seminar by Osamael-Baz, the political adviser to Egyptian president Hosni Mubarak, Reagan's most important Arab friend. It reflected Cairo's new outlook in the face of U.S. passivity.

Mubarak worries that this American hibernation over the next 18 months not only will confirm and expand the growing Soviet role in Syria but pose a dilemma for Egypt quite apart from the Kremlin's re-entry into the region. Cairo can renew cordial relations with Israel despite continued colonization of the West Bank, inviting a political storm at home; or it can keep the Egyptian-Israeli connection in a freeze, provoking retaliation from the U.S. Congress.

If Mubarak is compelled to normalize Israeli relations without compensating concessions on the West Bank question, the threat to the Egyptian leader will not be merely political.

Pre-election hibernation of U.S. Mideast policy also carries grave threats for Jordan. If Begin's government rushes ahead with settlements and Reagan does nothing, thounds of Palestinians will, in fact, be driven across the Jordan River into Hussein's kingdom. It would then be only a matter of time before Hussein is overthrown.

Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer — Nicaragua Cites Step Toward Elections

In criticizing Nicaragua's human rights record under Sandinista rule, the Reagan administration has often focused on that country's lack of free elections. "The government of Nicaragua has imposed a new dictatorship," President Reagan told a joint session of Congress last April. "It has refused to hold the elections it promised ...."

As if to underscore Reagan's claim, the Sandinistas arrested several opposition members during a recent crackdown that included the expulsion of three U.S. diplomats from Nicaragua.

Yet on May 26, Nicaragua's nominal legislature, the Council of State, began consideration of a "law of political parties," the first step of a process that the Sandinistas say will lead to national elections in 1985; a law of elections is expected to be introduced later this year.

In an interview at his Managua office May 28, Carlos Nunez Tellez, a member of the nine-man national directorate of the Sandinist Front of National Liberation (FSLN) and chief of the Council of State, discussed Nicaragua's prospects for democracy. An edited transcript of the interview follows.

GLEN AND SHEARER: The Reagan administration has criticized the Nicaraguan government for not following through on promises to have elections. Can you say whether elections will take place?

NUNEZ: The process of elections will begin in 1984, and the elections themselves will be in 1985.

At the present moment, the Council of State, of which I am president, is ... discussing the law of political parties. Last week, we sent a delegation, led by the magistrate of the supreme court, to Europe. The purpose of this commission was to ask questions and ask for cooperation in learning the political systems and electoral processes in Europe. At this time, the delegation is going to Spain, Swedan, Finland, France and ultimately West Germany. In the month of July, another delegation will go to Latin America, invited by Colombia, Mexico, Venezuela, Peru and Costa Rica.

At the same time, so we can't be called anti-democratic, we also want to study the political systems of the United States and Canada.

Each one of these delegations will present its report as well as its recommendations to the Council of State. We intend that the work of these commissions will assist in the preparation of the electoral law, which will determine the formal participation of all the political parties in the country ... and the degree of (power) that each of these parties has. We believe that in an electoral campaign some of these parties will disappear because they have no political or social base.

GLEN AND SHEARER: What would prevent an election from taking place in 1985?

NUNEZ: A generalized war. The use of other countries guided by the United States to attack Nicaragua ... which would mean the regionalization of the conflict.

Q: Will the "state of emergency" (declared by the Sandinistas in March 1982 after two bridges were destroyed by anti-Sandinista guerrillas) allow for elections in 1985?

A: Yes.

Q: The law of parties says that opposition parties will be able to criticize the current government. What assurance can the FSLN give the parties will be able to so — that this type of law will be enforced?

A: The law of political parties states more than the right to criticize. It means that all political parties, once the law is approved, in an electoral process can effectively issue proganda and push their own political programs .... What guarantee does the FSLN give about this? It guarantees that every developing state needs criticism to perfect itself, from politicians as well as from the base that we represent in the country. We can say that in Nicaragua ... there will be the direct participation of all the social sectors ....

Q: One provision of the parties law would allow parties to have a treasury. Will there be limits on the amount of money parties can spend?

A: In this case, some of the opposition parties have proposed that, in an electoral process, the state should give or assign to each political party a certain amount of money for the campaign. We're trying to prevent such a situation in the law.

Q: So you don't see the state providing money to the parties?

A: It hasn't been decided ....

Q: Will there be any effort to loosen up controls on the media as the electoral process gets underway?

A: In the electoral process, we consider that the law of political parties ... will establish the norms (for) propaganda and means of communication. We'll be making an effort to persuade the political parties to delay their provocations ... to keep the revolutionary process strong. For us, the interest of any political party in Nicaragua in an electoral process will be to consolidate the revolutionary process in Nicaragua.

Q: Will the FSLN ever be willing to surrender power that has been won legitimately by an opposition party?

A: If in the hypothetical way that the question is that (the opposition) will not win .... Whoever wins will have to bring continuity to the revolution, or there will be another rebellion. I'd say we're convinced that the opposition won't win, because whoever is in front of the people should be those organizations capable of not altering the interests of the revolution. The people here will not give power to the conservative party, because that party will give its power to another country. Historical experience provokes a great distrust for the conservative parties, because when they were in power they only gave us the stick and misery.

Legislature Faces Last-Minute Crush On Bills

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The squeamish and the paranoid should stay away from the General Assembly for the next few weeks.

Only the powerful and those who think clearly under pressure are likely to see their causes win passage during these feverish, final days of the legislative session.

For the sponsors of the several hundred other bills still mired in committees, their only hope is to ram their bills through the Legislature in the next two weeks, before the tax and budget packages pass and the lawmakers' only concern is to go home.

"Are people getting nervous? I think they should feel that way, even if they don't now," said Sen. Robert B. Jordan III, D-Montgomery.

"Any bill at this stage of the Legislature that's controversial is facing long odds against getting passed," said Rep. John J. Hunt, D-Cleveland, chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Hunt could write a long list of hot topics. They include bills on hazardous waste handling, involuntary servitude, worker compensation payments, auto insurance rates, lottery studies and payroll deductions for teachers' groups.

"I have to work about three times as hard these days and things are still falling through the cracks," environmental lobbyist William Holman said. "Opportunities are missed, amendments don't get offered and I just don't have time to do what needs to be done."

Migrant labor advocates have pulled reporters aside recently, saying they fear their House-passed involuntary servitude bill is being killed by lack of attention in the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Rep. C. Malcolm Fulcher Jr., D-Carteret and sponsor of the servitude bill, said he understands the lobbyists' tension and credits part of the problem to equally feverish lobbying against the bill by the North Carolina Farm Bureau.

"It could be hurt (by the last-minute squeeze of bills), that is true," he said. "But it could also be the thing we need to move things forward."

Fulcher said he remains confident his involuntary servitude bill will pass. He is not so certain about other measures.

"There is a growing sense of that time is growing short — and I'm looking to a mid-July adjournment date," he said. "One effect of that is to move faster. You're seeing less debate on a bill and you'll see bills moving faster. The other edge of the sword is that those who are opposed to bills will seek to redouble their efforts so that they won't move."

Sen. William G. Hancock, D-Durham, said he is "putting on some extra heat" in these final days by calling more meetings of his State Government Committee.

Some people already are thinking ahead to the next session of the General Assembly, which probably will take place in June 1984. Although the session is supposed to last only a few weeks and concentrate on adjusting the budget, a certain small group of other bills also can be debated.

Those measures typically include bills that have passed either the Senate or the House, so Hancock and other committee chairmen said they are concentrating on getting their chamber's bills passed and sent to the other side of the Legislature Building.

Another route is to suggest a legislative study of an issue, with the study group's proposals to be debated at the next session. John R. Jordan Jr., one of the state's premier lobbyists, tried that tactic Wednesday he pushed the House Rules Committee to approve a study on hospital licensing procedures. The committee refused.

As a freshman representative, Sidney A. Locks doesn't enjoy Fulcher's experience or Jordan's knowledge of the rules. He looks forward to the next few weeks with a shaky optimism.

"People are still calm and confident and tell me that we'll be here long enough to get the work done," the Lumberton Demcorat said. "But as for me, I am the one who is paranoid."

Paul T. O'Connor

Dogs

RALEIGH — Who has been the most successful lobbyist in Raleigh this year? John Jordan for the banks? Bill Rustin for the merchants? Arch Laney for the state employees? Nope. Not even close.

Lobbyist of the year has got to go to whoever is looking out for the dogs of North Carolina.

The dog industry doesn't have anyone registered as a lobbyist with the secretary of state. But, if they did, he'd be the most sought after lobbyist for next session. Just look at what the assembly's done for dogs so far this year.

t used to be that you could steal someone's dog and get away with little more than a slap on the wrist. Now, if you steal a dog that's worth enough, you can be tried as a felon. Dogs are now covered by the larceny statutes.

And, it used to be that you could beat up a police dog with relative impunity. Not any more. The General Assembly has decided to make the injury of a polce dog a felony. (Even though in some cases beating up a cop is a minor offense in state law.)

Dogs are to be the topic of a state commission next year. Rep. Peggy Stamey, D-Wake, spent the better part of the session trying to set regulations on the sale of dogs to medical and scientific research. With the aid of House Speaker Liston Ramsey, she's settling for a study commission.

The commission will catalog the number of dogs being sold to researchers in North Carolina and who is buying and selling those dogs. She said the commission will also look for ways to keep stray dog populations down for procedures to insure that dog pounds don't sell off the family pet.

And then there was Rep. Jim Lambeth's bill that would have allowed dogs to stay in motel rooms across the state. It got tentative House approval last week but was defeated on its final vote.

North Carolina is just about the only state in the nation that doesn't allow you to keep a dog in your motel room. And there's a real problem for us dog lovers. I'd no sooner leave my dog in a kennel than I would leave my son in an orphanage for a weekend. The dog's part of the family and she goes on vacation with us. So, now you see why the O'Connor family must go to the South Carolina beaches for vacation.

Lambeth, like all good Democrats, argued the fairness of the issue. "You can bring tigers and lions to your hotel room. You can even out an elephant in the room if you can get it in. But not dogs and cats. I've never heard of a dog stealing a towel or an ash tray or even a television." My dog does steal my socks and she's always ripping up Kleenex. But that shouldn't bother innkeepers.

Despite the defeat of the hotel bill, dogs have done darned well for themselves this session. Their lobbyist, whomever he is, deserves a bone.

Speaking of cats, one legislator faces some uncomfortable final days of the session if he doesn't come around on a bill.

Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover, is allergic to cats in an awful way. "They make my eyes water and my head ache," Payne says of the felines. Just the smell of a cat hair is enough to send him into sneezing fits.

Payne's Raleigh landlady is also a lobbyist and she's strongly opposed to a bill he's pushing. "If Harry doesn't come around on this bill, I'm going to let my cats sleep on his bed all weekend," she's threatened.

'Little Presidents'

NEW YORK (AP) — They may hold minor titles and have rather little official authority but they often exercise great power in their roles as "dedicated public servants," a self-effacing term that veils their true goals.

They are the "little presidents," the hobgoblins of heads of state such as Ronald Reagan and Margaret Thatcher. They have a consuming desire to be in charge at all times and to be subservient to nobody, including the real boss.

Little presidents, says Eugene Jennings, who has studied them wherever they are found — in corporate life, government, academe, religious institutions — are attracted to power because they see it as life's ultimate value.

You might find them even among cafeteria or supermarket cashiers who dare you to pass their checkpoint without acknowledging their power to deter you, allegedly for the good of the company, of course.

But it is in government that they are most mischievous.

In positions of state, says Jennings, a Michigan State University professor of business administration and confidential consultant to corporate chiefs and occasionally to heads of state, they seek to formulate policy.

They assume rights, he has found, that constitutionally are limited only to the chief of state, and "they hide behind the chief's responsibility to the electorate, but are not accountable to the electorate themselves."

They are found on congressional staffs, in presidential cabinets and in the ranks of ambassadors, says Jennings, where they might seek to dictate Central America policy because, they believe, they are more aware than the president.

The American government at this time is vulnerable to little presidents because, says, Jennings, "it is so big and gangling and spread over to many areas that it presents wide open opportunities."

You can spot them by their defense, the first of which is likely to be the challenge "if you don't like me fire me," followed by the "I dare you to fire me" threat, and after things cool a bit by the demanding question, "Who do you think is running this department?"

After having studied and written many books about power from ancient times to today's boardrooms and government offices, Jennings believes the little president syndrome is a rather common human trait.

It is exaggerated, however, he believes, by today's level of uncertainty and sense of lost control. And it is heightened, he believes, by the size, power and complexity of institutions.

Among the other conditions for its existence are these:

1. A gap that exists between legislation, and the execution of laws by bureaucracies and staff men.

2. A widening of this gap by ineffectual presidents who attract little presidents in the same way nature abhors a vacuum, or perhaps by presidents who tend to attract strongly motivated ideologues.

3. A widespread belief that a bureaucrat's loyalty should be to the separate constituencies with which he or she (such as a cabinet officer) works, rather than to the elected head of state.

4. A president who relies on the intiative of his staff or cabinet or other aides to handle their work without specific guidance from him.

5. A situation in which a relatively low-paid bureaucrat presides over a budget in the high millions or even billions. "Eventually, this person's demand for status becomes equal to the size of the budget."

6. A president who appears to be an average person. When this situation exists, says Jennings, there are bound to be people who feel superior and, in their own minds, capable of being a better president.

Though found on all levels, they can be people of great eminence, such as Gen. Douglas McArthur, who challenged and lost to President Harry Truman.

Women

And when women say they don't think much of Ronald Reagan's work, the White House forms a "war council" to look for ways to bridge the chasm between Reagan and millions of American women that is outlined by poll after poll.

Whether Democratic or Republican, the president and the presidential hopefuls are taking pains to deal with women this year.

Looking at the numbers of the "gender gap," all have realized that women can be the difference between victory and defeat in 1984 for the third national election in a row. Women voted differently than men — swinging more of their votes to the Democrats — in both 1980 and 1982.

And all the politicians are finding that dealing with the women flexing their newly found political muscle is not nearly as simple as the average chauvinist might think.

Reagan might have thought that appointing the first woman to the Supreme Court and two female Cabinet members would be enough to make many women forget his opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion. And the Reagan staff takes pains to churn out numbers on how many women Reagan has appointed to other jobs.

But, as Republican party professional Wilma Goldstein said this week, "People expect women to be appointed. It's only if women are not appointed that it would have an impact."

So Reagan and the other GOP officeholders are looking for ways and issues to appeal to women, to woo enough of them to their side of the ballot in 1984 to build a majority. That's the mandate of the White House group set up recently, with two very prominent members — Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole and Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, Reagan's two female Cabinet appointments.

But if Reagan seems to be having problems solving the puzzle of the gender gap, Democratic presidential contenders are learning a lesson as well as they try to use the gender gap as a ticket to the Oval Office.

If they hoped otherwise, they are learning that just favoring the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion is not nearly enough to get the backing of women for 1984.

George Gallup

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's resounding victory in Great Britain could give new impetus to the women-in-politics movement in the U.S. A recent Gallup Poll shows the American people to be more receptive to a woman president than ever before.

In the survey, five Americans in six indicate they would have no trouble voting for a qualified female presidential candidate. The trend in the proportion saying they would be willing to vote for a woman is one of the most striking in Gallup annals, having grown from 31 percent in 1937 to 80 percent today.

Heavey support for a woman as chief executive is found in all population groups, with men and womenbacking the concept by identical 80 percent to 16 percent votes. Greater support is expressed by younger Americans (18-29 years), the college-educated, persons from upper-income families, Catholics, and Independents — groups which customarily share more liberal political views.

Conversely, support is somewhat lower among groups of a more conservative stamp — persons 65 and older, those with only a grade school education, persons from lower-income households, Southerners and Republicans.

Following is the question asked and the trend:

"If your party nominated a woman for president, would you vote for her if she were qualified for the job?"

Vote For Woman For President

	Yes	No	Not Sure
Latest (Apr. 29-May 2)	80%	16%	4%
1978	76	19	5
1975	73	23	4
1971	66	29	5
1969	54	39	7
1967	57	39	4
1955	52	44	4
1949	48	48	4
1937	31	65	4

The following table shows the division of opinion among key population groups:

Vote For Woman For President?

	Yes	No	Not sure
National	80%	16%	4%
Women	80	16	4
Men	80	16	4
18-29 years	89	8	3
30-49	83	14	3
50-64	72	22	6

Independents	88	9	3
East	85	12	3
Midwest	80	17	3
South	75	18	7
West	82	15	3

The latest findings are based on in-person interviews with 1,517 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period April 29-May 2.

For results based on a sample of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be three percentage points in either direction.

Teacher Unions Stake Out Their Positions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's rival teacher unions, heartened by the upsurge in interest in public education, are trying to ride the political bandwagon for school improvements and avoid being flattened by it.

The challenge may be harder for the nearly 1.7 million-member National Education Association, which President Reagan has pilloried for opposing what he regards as the keystone of school reform: merit pay for teachers.

Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, also has problems with shifting from seniority-based salary scales, but he has urged his 580,000 union members to keep an open mind on merit pay and other changes recommended to solve what several prominent panels agreed is a crisis of low standards in U.S. classrooms.

In this instance, as in the 1970s when the NEA was attacking standardized tests while Shanker stood firm in support of testing both students and new teachers, the AFT chief seems to be staking out a position closely attuned to what the public wants.

Both unions will get a chance to refine their stands as they hold their annual conventions on opposite coasts during the next two weeks.

The NEA's 7,000 delegates will convene in Philadelphia on Saturday for four days, with preliminary meetings starting Wednesday. The AFT will gavel its 3,000 delegates to order in Los Angeles on the Fourth of July and meet through July 8.

Five of the six announced Democratic presidential candidates will court the teachers in Philadelphia.

The AFT is not expecting any Democratic candidates, but it has invited Reagan to speak July 5 before the president returns to Washington from his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch, and White House spokesman Pete Roussel says, "It's a possibility."

At last summer's conventions, the AFT and NEA buried the axe long enough to adopt a joint resolution decrying Reagan's advocacy of tuition tax credits for private education.

This year, the crescendo of critical reports on the public schools has set the sparks flying between the independent NEA and its AFL-CIO-affiliated rival.

'When Its Fields Are Green In Winter'

Hugh MacRae of Wilmington used to proclaim to anyone who would listen that "the South will come into its own when its fields are green in winter." The slogan eventually was adopted by numerous Southern newspapers and agricultural extension services.

MacRae had gotten the idea that developed into this slogan on a January day about 80 years ago while standing on the front porch of his ornate Victorian home at Wilmington watching a mocking bird. As he watched, it flitted into some berry bushes for its lunch.

MacRae then owned 60,000 acres of North Carolina. He farmed some and raised cattle on many others. Because of his cattle he envied the mockingbird. She could find her lunch even in January. Then the big idea struck MacRae. "Why couldn't cows, in the South, get their feed outside all winter?"

Finding an answer to that question kept MacRae occupied until a few years before his death in 1951. It took him 40 years to come up with his list of five crops that he said would allow cattle to feed outside all winter. It cost him a fortune as he conducted experiments which some state legislators rejected because they were too slow and cost too much.

MacRae, whose family had been influential in North Carolina for generations, began planning his experiments after watching that mockingbird that January day. He used some 50 fields at Invershiel, his 75-acre farm at Rocky Point in Pender County.

At the start, MacRae's approach was orthodox. He used pastures, ensilage, hay, corn and purchased dairy feed. The result was an annual deficit.

Then MacRae began to experiment with vetch, clovers and grasses. They were limed and fertilized. The dairy herd was moved from field to field. MacRae tried alsike clover, hurds grass, carpet grass, dallas grass, sweet clover, black medic — he tried 80 different kinds of pasture cover during those 40 years.

He tried each of them many years. He tried them alone. He grew them together. He tested them for drought and cold. He sought varieties that choke out weeds and those which grew back quickly after being nibbled by the cattle. He sought plants that would come up every year after a single planting. Each time he put down seed, he had to wait months for an answer. He could not have done if he had not been wealthy.

Finally, MacRae came up with five crops that when grown in conjunction with each other provided year-round grazing for cattle. They were Kobe lespedeza, manganese bur clover, crimson clover, giant white Dutch clover and Johnson grass.

He grouped them so that one crop was just coming up while another was at grazing height. After cows nibbled the fall growth on one field, they would be moved to another. Then they would be moved back when the second group had grown tall and the first was taking its annual sleep.

MacRae found that four of the five crops (all but crimson clover) had to be planted just one time, and that all he had to do was disc the fields lightly to plant the crimson. When one of the other four crops needed strengthening he would disc the land lightly and scatter the seed. He found that with this plan an acre of land would support two cows.

He said the South's troubles developed when it tried to copy the North and West which have cold winters and have to buy feed. With its warm winters, MacRae said his plan would enable the Southern farmers to feed their cattle much more cheaply.

MacRae was born at Carbonton in the closing days of the Civil War, and his family moved back to Wilmington when he was an infant. He graduated from Massachusettes Institute of Technology in 1885, and he went to work as a mining engineer in western North Carolina the following year.

Returning to Wilmington, he won fame and fortune as an industrialist and developer. He became president of the Wilmington Cotton Mills in 1895, and five years later he headed the Wilmington Gas Light Co., which later developed into the Tidewater Power Co. He developed the coastal resort of Wrightsville Beach and connected it to Wilmington with a street car line. In the mountains, he developed Linville as a resort and acquired Grandfather Mountain, which is still owned by one his descendents, Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Linville. He was instrumental in the establishment of Penderlea, a resettlement farm project by the federal government, in the 1930s.

But his hunt for a "green winter" meant the most to him. Through the experiments he carried on at Invershiel, he developed pasture lands providing ample grazing for a large herd of Black Angus cattle throughout the year. He proved to his satisfaction that the South could be made the nation's leading dairy and beef cattle region because of its longer growing season and the infrequency of drought, features found in neither the beef-producing West nor the Great Lakes dairying region.

Shuttle Debriefing Cut After 'Routine' Flight

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Space shuttle Challenger suffered damage to its brakes and protective tiles, officials said Saturday, but its flight was so uneventful that the astronauts will get the shortest debriefing in the history of U.S. manned spaceflight.

Flight commander Robert Crippen and his four crewmembers, including Sally Ride, America's first woman in space, face only 4½ days of questioning and review by experts, in contrast to almost three weeks for the crews of previous space missions.

"There are fewer engineering and test questions than before," said Terry White, an information specialist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "It's becoming routine."

The abbreviated briefing schedule enabled the astronauts to enjoy a rare weekend off, resting and sleeping to help reset sleep cycles that were turned upside down for the mission.

Dense, low-hanging clouds blocked what was to have been the shuttle's first landing at the Florida spaceport where it is launched. It was the only major disappointment of a near-flawless six days in orbit.

At Edwards, Jim Harrington, a NASA official in charge of processing the shuttle on the ground, said Challenger suffered greater-than-expect damage to tiles that cover the hull. He said there were about 25 tiles with "pretty severe damage" and the number could increase with a closer inspection.

He also said one of four brake systems on the craft shattered during the rollout after landing. Pieces of the brakes fell off when technicians tried to tow the craft to a hangar. The broken brake system was removed for analysis. Normally, said Harrington, the brakes should last five landings. Flight seven was the second for Challenger.

Technicians were preparing the craft for a piggyback trip to Florida atop a modified Boeing 747. Officials hope to have it ready to leave by Thursday. It is scheduled to make the cross-country trip in one day, stopping in San Antonio, Texas, briefly to refuel.

NASA officials said the unexpected California landing may delay by eight days the launch of shuttle flight eight, now set for mid-August, but a rapid turnaround could restore some of the lost days. Harrington said he was uncertain if the tile and brake damage would add to the delay.

Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, director of the space shuttle program, said the disappointment in having to land in California instead of Florida will not set back the shuttle program "significantly."

He noted the next attempt to land in Florida will most likely not come until flight 11, now set for January. Flight eight and flight nine are both scheduled to land at Edwards. Flight eight is a night launch and a night landing. Flight 10 has been delayed until later in 1984.

As scheduled, Flight 10 involved a Defense Department mission. Two weeks ago, Col. Jeff Baker, spokesman for the U.S. Air Force Space Division, said the Air Force had asked NASA to delete the satellite payload from that flight and reschedule it, but he declined to say why on grounds of national security.

Turning Kennedy into both a launch and landing site will cut the time needed to to prepare the spacecraft for its next mission. A quick turnaround is essential as the shuttle pace increases to about two launches a month late in this decade to meet the demand for commercial and military missions.

Crippen, Ms. Ride, Fabian, Hauck and Thagard returned from space with an impressive list of accomplishments.

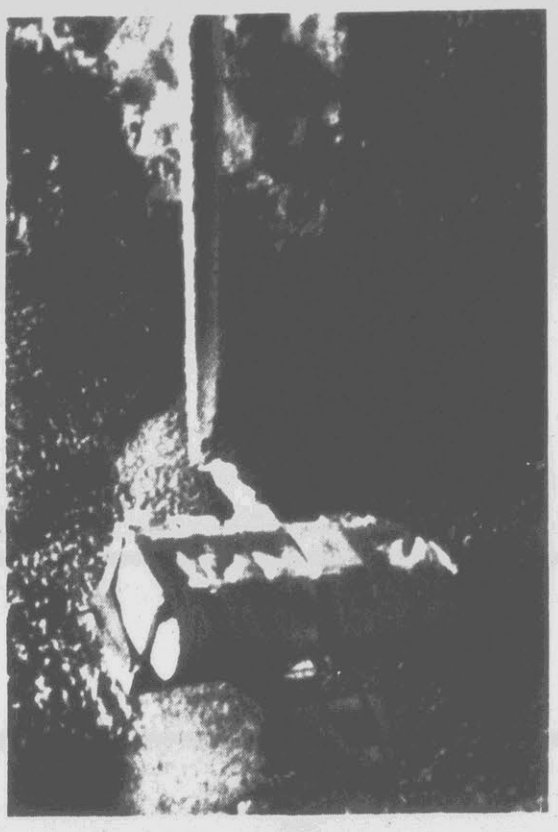

They smoothly launched two commercial satellites, placing them to within 0.015 degrees of the planned orbit — the most accurate satellite delivery yet.

Ms. Ride and Fabian used Challenger's robot arm four times to deploy and recover a free-flying instrument package. This was an important test of the arm, which will be used next year to retrieve a malfunctioning satellite for repairs.

The astronauts also completed a long list of experiments.

Abrahamson said the crew completed 56 of 58 test objectives, missing only the planned Kennedy landing and a hoped-for cross wind landing to check the shuttle's handling under those conditions.

Asked if the seventh flight was the "best yet" of the shuttle program, Abrahamson said, "I'd say yes, when you measure the complexity."

Fabian 'Elated' In Space

By BRUCE NICHOLS

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Challenger astronaut John Fabian, at home paying bills after six days in space, predicted Saturday that Americans will change their ideas of spaceflight after seeing pictures of the shuttle against a backdrop of blue Earth and black space.

Fabian said even the most creative mind could not imagine the wonders of space travel.

"It was more than I had anticipated," he said in an interview. "I think when gravity goes away, elation sets in. There's an inverse correlation there."

Fabian was as high-spirited at home as he was during the mission in which he and cremmates Sally Ride, Robert Crippen, Frederick Hauck and Norman Thagard earned the reputation as a team of "happy" astronauts.

"We really did have fun," he said.

The five astronauts have the weekend off but they begin a week-long series of technical debriefings Monday to discuss all aspects of their orbital voyage, the first for an American woman and the first to retrieve a satellite from orbit.

"I'm just paying the bills and there are lots of them," Fabian said. "I thought I'd have to cut the grass, too, but it had been cut."

He and his crewmates flew back to their homes Friday just hours after the Challenger landed at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. The Challenger remained at Edwards being prepared for a ferry flight in several days to the Cape Canaveral launch site.

The photographs of Challenger in space were taken from the West German SPAS satellite that Fabian and Ms. Ride launched and later retrieved using the shuttle's 50-foot robot arm. Television relayed from Challenger Wednesday provided a preview.

Flooding Ravages Mexico

From Wire Reports

Thousands of Mexicans Saturday prepared to move to high ground as the Colorado River, glutted by melted snow and fed by the planned release of water from U.S. dams, slowly rose to the top of its banks.

At least two people have drowned in flood waters near Mexicali and about 5,000 people fled inundated cotton farms in Baja California.

The major increased river flow was expected Sunday night or early Monday, and another high flow was expected toward the end of the week.

Authorities said a total of 55,000 acres of farm land were under water and up to 20,000 homes could be flooded or damaged, mostly in farm and ranch areas.

"If the calculations we received from the U.S. authorities are correct, we should not have any serious problems," said Alfonso Esquer Sandez, chief of the Mexicali Fire Department. "But if we receive more water than they told us, we may be in for some trouble."

Esquer Sandez said his department had 36 hours to carry out evacuations from the time the increased flow crosses the U.S.-Mexican order to the time it reaches the trouble spots at several small riverside communities.

"We have all our emergency plans laid out," he said. "All we have to do now is get the people moved in the event the water is higher than we expected."

He said several thousand farm workers in the flood path were "basically poor people with relatively few possessions who can be moved quite easily."

The Mexican Army has set up sanitation and medical facilities and kitchens, and two areas have been designated as flood care centers, he said. One is capable of handling 12,000 people and the other 3,500.

On the U.S. side of the border, fewer families were leaving their homes, but there was a significant threat to property, officials said.

Jim Hunter of the California Department of Forestry said the river was "sloughing" along the bank in San Bernardino County where super-saturated soil was caving in.

In Arizona, the snow-swollen Colorado rushed from dam to dam like an untamed river Saturday, raising floodwaters for hundreds of miles.

"This is the highest flow we've had since 1964," said Dick Marks, superintendent of Grand Canyon National Park. Since Friday, he said, "everything is up 2 or 3 feet, flooding some of the beaches."

In the City Hall emergency operations center in Yuma, 600 miles south of the Grand Canyon near the Mexican border, the river also was rising.

"I've got a point down on the river that I monitor and it's up 18 inches to 2 feet" in one day, city spokesman Joe Smith said Saturday. He said most of those living near the river had been evacuated.

The National Weather Service said residents around Yuma and neighboring Mexican farmland could expect the river to be 5 or 6 feet higher by Wednesday. Mexican officials have estimated their endangered population at anywhere from 4,000 to 15,000 people.

Jeanne Branson, owner of Branson's Resort and a 35-year area resident of Parker, Ariz., near Parker Dam, said Saturday, "This is what you call a man-made disaster and there's nothing worse than a man-made disaster. The government got permission to build these dams, by saying 'We're going to protect you folks from being flooded.' They've done a great job of it, haven't they?"

Robert Broadbent, commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation, conceded that the runoff was heavier than expected but added, "how would you predict that Salt Lake City was going to have 100-degree temperatures on Memorial Day and a snowstorm the week before?"

"It was the late-May snowstorm and then the heat wave that caused the problem," he said. "We couldn't really have done anything differently — except maybe save a few days, that's all."

Union Chief Says Women Have Place In Mines

DAWSON, Pa. (UPI) — A woman's place is in the coal mines — if she chooses — and mining is better off because of it, United Mine Workers President Richard Trumka said Saturday.

Trumka told the Fifth National Conference on Women Miners, the first such meeting recognized by the UMW, that the union also has improved since women donned their first hardhats in 1973.

"You belong in the mines if you want to be there," Trumka told about 100 women miners at the conference near Pittsburgh. "You have made the coal mines a better place to work and you've made the UMW stronger."

At a press conference later, Trumka admitted that, proportionately, more women miners are being laid off than their male counterparts. He attributed that to the layoffs occurring under a seniority system.

Trumka urged women to learn every job in the mine so they become more valuable and less likely to be laid off.

Nearly 4,000 women work in the nation's coal mines, the UMW said.

Trumka blamed "shortcuts" and a desire for "profit and speed" of production for a mine explosion in Virginia Tuesday that killed seven miners, including one woman.

"Profit and speed were more important than safety," Trumka said in his speech. "Ideally, mine disasters like that should never, never occur."

Trumka said that while the short-term outlook for the coal industry has dimmed, he is confident about the industry's long-term prospects.

"We're not going to experience the boom growth that we anticipated six months ago," he said. "(But) in the long run, I see a bright, bright future for coal.

"It will enable us to supply our own power and energy needs, and those of our allies," he said.

The UWM president also told the news conference the union is lobbying for passage of the acid rain bill proposed by Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va, and Rep. Nick Rahall, D-W.Va.

Public Schools

Reagan Argues 'Noisy Debate' Clouding Issue

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, answering critics who have said the nation must spend more on its public schools, urged Americans on Saturday to "ignore the noise makers and set sail" on the course of improvements charted by his national education commission.

The president, in his weekly radio address to the nation, complained of the "noisy debate" that has greeted the special report issued by the National Commission on Excellence in Education.

Reagan acknowledged that the panel said "there might be a need for more money," but he added, "the commission's thrust was one of making better use of resources we already have."

He defended the level of federal spending on education, which several candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination have said should be increased. Reagan said that in fiscal 1981 the federal education budget was $14.8 billion; it remained the same in fiscal 1982, and "this year, we'll spend about $15.3 billion."

But, according to Sally Christiansen, director of budget services of the Department of Education, the 1981 education budget — which was prepared by the Carter administration — was $14.9 billion, and this was cut in 1982 by $177 million.

In addition, she said, the president's final request for 1982 was $12.9 billion. In 1983, he tried to cut the funding to $9.95 billion and wound up asking for $13.9 billion. For next year his request has been $13.2 billion, and the actual budget is expected to reach nearly $16 billion by the time the House and Senate act.

"The commission gave us a course to follow," Reagan said. "It leads to better education for our sons and daughters. Let's ignore the noise makers and set sail."

With the release of the panel's report two months ago, Reagan has been focusing on education and speaking in favor of merit pay for teachers. His aides feel that education in general, and merit pay in particular, will win a sympathetic hearing in a possible re-election campaign.

Next week, as he begins a Fourth of July holiday visit to his California ranch, he has planned education-related stops in Kentucky, Kansas and Southern California.

The president said that ever since the commission gave its report, "the taxpaying citizens of this country have been treated to a noisy debate about what to do."

"There were special interest voices that saw a chance to get more money for their particular cause. There were political voices that saw a campaign horse to ride. And there was demagoguery to help raise the noise level," the president said.

Reagan pointed out that the federal government provides less than 10 percent of all education costs, which he said are "a responsibility of state and local governments."

He said that defense spending in 1983 is $214.8 billion, while total education spending is $215 billion.

Referring to programs suggested by two Democratic presidential candidates, Reagan said "one of the noisemakers wants the federal government to add $11 billion to federal education spending. Another demands $14 billion. And most of them accuse us of whacking the budget down to a starvation level."

Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale has recommended the $11 billion increase; Sen. Ernest F. Holings, D-S.C., has recommended spending approximately $15 billion for higher teachers' salaries.

In the Democratic Party's response to the Reagan speech, House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas focused on recent House and Senate action on the budget and taxes. He said that the "excessive 1981 tax cut, most of which goes to a favored few ... has created the gaping Reagan deficits."

Wright said the budget resolution adopted by the House and Senate on Thursday, over Reagan's objections, would cut the deficit by $30 billion to $40 billion next year. In addition, he said the House vote to cap this year's 10 percent tax cut at $720 per person would shave almost $7 billion from the deficit.

"The unfortunate fact is that the average citizen gets very little relief as a result of the Reagan tax cut," he said. "The average American family will receive less than $16 a month next year from that Reagan tax cut. But a small grup of truly affluent families — less than 5 percent of our citizenry — are scheduled to receive tax windfalls of several thousand dollars each."

Boaters Keep Pilot Alive

MADISON, Conn. (AP) — A stunt pilot whose plane crashed into the Hammonasset River during an air show Saturday was kept alive by two boatsmen who held his head above water until rescue crews arrived, officials said.

James Suchman, 37, of West Hartford was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Yale-New Haven Hospital, hospital officials said.

"It appeared the airplane didn't recover from a maneuver," said John Kelly, president of Shoreline Aviation, which sponsored and operated the annual show at Griswold Airport.

"It hit into the marsh at about a 45-degree angle" in view of about 3,000 spectators, he said. The crash took place over a "clear zone," which is an area where no spectators are allowed, he said.

A Madison police spokeswoman said Robert J. Dimock and Robert J. Griswald, both of Portland, were in a boat about 1,000 feet away from the crash site when they came to Suchman's rescue. She said the men held Suchman's head above water in a marshy area of the river at the south end of the airport.

Kelly said Suchman was piloting a single-engine Bellanca Decathalon, which is a closed-cockpit airplane designed to perform aerobatic tricks.

Suchman was among 11 participants in the 3rd Annual Shoreline Aviation Air Show, Kelly said.

He said there have been no previous accidents in the three years that Shoreline Aviation has been sponsoring the show.

Shultz Starting 4-Day Asian Tour

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz told President Ferdinand Marcos Saturday the United States and the Philippines must press on in their defense of democracy when it is challenged.

"I might say that when we fought together, we fought in defense of freedom and democracy," Shultz said at a luncheon at the presidential palace after arriving for the first stop of a four-nation Asian tour.

"Those are values that are cherished by both our peoples and we must continue to defend those values when they are challenged and work to strengthen and promote the institutions that embody them."

Shultz made his comments as Marcos was handed his first judicial setback since he imposed authoritarian rule 11 years ago. A lower court judge announced he had ordered the release on bail of an alleged communist arrested under a presidential order.

Marcos, who has been in power since 1965, imposed martial law in 1972. Although he lifted martial law in 1981, he retained most of his emergency powers.

A senior U.S. official rejected suggestions the Philippines might be moving into an uncertain political period, saying improvements in press freedom, in the courts and in labor rights show the Marcos regime is "loosening up."

The official said Marcos was aware of Washington's concerns on human rights.

Referring to a new agreement signed this month on U.S. bases in the Philippines Shultz said, "It has served our countries well and I think we can say it adds stability to the region."

Congress May Tighten Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, stripped of its legislative veto power by the Supreme Court, may move to assert tighter control over some executive branch functions by rewriting the laws, legislators say.

The court's ruling scrapped a device legislators had come to rely on as a convenient way to keep a tight rein on the president and regulation writers.

But the decision stopped far short of handing the executive branch any license to run roughshod over the wishes of Congress, and many say it eventually will lead to even more congressional control, particularly over agencies.

The 6-3 ruling does nothing to curb the legislative branch's basic power to write law.

What it can't do, the court said, is write laws that delegate authority to the president and agencies only on condition that one or both houses review specific decisions and rules and block any they don't like.

An obvious response would be for Congress to be more precise in what it intends to accomplish in a new law — holding to itself any authority it is not willing to part with unconditionally.

The sweep of Thursday's decision — directly affecting veto provisions written into at least 56 active laws — illustrates like few others the continual struggle for power between the executive and legislative branches.

In this instance, the third branch — the judicial — decreed that the legislative had grabbed an advantage over the executive that the Constitution never intended.

But rather than finally settle the ever-simmering question, the latest ruling signals the start of a protracted new struggle as Congress and the executive branch learn to play on the new field lined off by the court.

One of the strongest critics of the decision — Democratic Rep. Elliott H. Levitas of Georgia — did not quibble with the strictly legalistic reasoning the court used, but said it reflected ignorance of the way government really works on a day-to-day basis.

Sen. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa, described the legislative veto as an unwritten, even unspoken, agreement that evolved between Congress and presidents over a 50-year span.

As Grassley sees it, the essense of the deal has presidents saying to Congress: "Give me some power and you'll have some curbs and I'll work with you."

With use of those curbs — legislative vetoes — taken away by the court, Grassley and many of his colleagues predict Congress will move swiftly to reclaim some of the power it has delegated to presidents and federal agencies.

"When Congress is through, executive branch powers will be curtailed and the nation will be left with a more cumbersome, less responsive national government," he said.

Levitas was more blunt: "Congress is going to tie the hands of agencies in ways you would not believe."

Arafat Stripped Of Power

NICOLAS TATRO
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat, evicted from Syria and forced to abandon his fighters in Lebanon, has been stripped of his military power and ability to strike at Israel.

After 14 years as head of the guerrilla organization, Arafat now finds events rapidly moving beyond his control. His only options are political.

Arafat, 53, always carries a pistol and frequently wears an olive drab uniform — symbols of "armed struggle" against Israel but also of the military power he used to keep himself independent of other Arab states and their supporters in the PLO.

But he no longer is able to use the military power of his Fatah guerrilla faction and its dominance of the PLO's financial resources to stop a rebellion by radical dissidents who mutineed May 7.

His ability to control 20,000 guerrillas also was an effective pressure on Saudi Arabia, and other Arab moderates with large Palestinian populations, to continue their financial support of the PLO.

From his former power bases in Lebanon and Jordan, Arafat once had the ability to strike at Israel. He had thus assured himself the option of provoking a war if he wanted.

But now his headquarters is in Tunis, Tunisia, far from the Israeli border. The last bastions of his loyalist guerrillas in east Lebanon's Bekaa Valley and north Lebanon's port of Tripoli are ringed by Syrian troops.

Arafat retains one strong card: official recognition by the Arab League as spokesman for the world's 4 million Palestinians. If he is unable to make war with this card he could still attempt to make peace.

One option for Arafat may be returning to Jordan and perhaps signing an agreement with King Hussein to negotiate an end to the Arab-Israeli conflict on the basis of President Reagan's peace plan.

Arafat was forced by Syrian and Libyan-backed guerrillas to abandon that dialogue with Hussein last April because Reagan's plan does not call for an independent Palestinian state or specify a role for the PLO.

A stronger move by Arafat would be reconciling with President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt, the most populous Arab nation and the only one to recognize Israel. Such reconciliation would inevitably mean accepting peace with the Jewish state.

But either of those options would crack the Arab world with more devastating effect than the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peacemaking with Israel.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, who declared Arafat persona non grata Friday, may challenge Arafat's legitimacy and move to create an "alternative PLO" compsed of extremists financed by him and Libya leader Col. Moammar Khadafy.

It could also result in a new wave of terrorism by extremists vying to take Arafat's place.

To counter such a move by Syria and the radicals, Arafat may decide to underscore his legitimacy by forming a government in exile.

Arafat's ouster from Syria and his loss of control over the guerrillas in Lebanon will likely mean that Syria alone will determine the withdrawal of foreign forces from the country.

Arafat loyalists suggest Syria is prepared to negotiate a pullout of its 50,000 troops from Lebanon with the United States and Lebanese President Amin Gemayel's government. But they say Syria may insist that the guerrillas remain in the country, perhaps occupying a "security zone" on the Syrian border much the way Israeli-backed militia leader Maj. Saad Haddad would do in south Lebanon under the accord arranged with Israel.

Syria is described by Arafat supporters as fearful of a withdrawal that would concentrate Palestinian fighters in Syria, where they could usurp state authority as they once did in Lebanon and Jordan.

Brown Undergoes Surgery

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. was hospitalized for open-heart surgery Saturday night at the University of Kentucky medical center.

Dr. John Thompson, chairman of the department of medicine, said the decision to operate was made after tests on Brown, 49, earlier in the day showed three major blockages in the branches of Brown's heart.

Brown had been admitted to the hospital early Saturday after complaining of chest pains upon his return from a two-day meeting with members of his Cabinet at Lake Barkley in far western Kentucky.

Thompson emphasized that Brown had not had a heart attack and that the surgery was preventive.

Appeal Planned Over Kidney

DETROIT — A woman who filed suit claiming her transplanted kidney was cancerous plans to appeal a judge's ruling that she cannot sue for malpractice, her attorney said.

Deborah Fisher, 25, received the transplant in 1977 at Detroit's Ford Hospital and discovered two years later that she had cancer, attorney Elizabeth Gleicher said Friday.

Ms. Fisher claims in her lawsuit that the hospital was negligent for not checking the "cancerous" kidney. Ford Hospital officials declined to comment.

Mother Charged In Stabbings

WOODSTOCK, Ill. — Bond was set at $600,000 Saturday for a woman accused of fatally stabbing her 5-year-old son and injuring her 6-year-old son, authorities said.

Karen J. Dage, 37, of West Chicago was under police guard at Sherman Hospital in Elgin, where she was being treated for what police said were self-inflicted stab wounds from Friday's incident.

Mrs. Dage had been named in arrest warrants issued by the McHenry County state's attorney, accusing her of murder and attempted murder, Barrington Hills police Sgt. Christopher Bish said.

No motive had been established in the attacks, Bish said.

Heavy Fighting Reported

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran and Iraq reported bombing each other's targets in the Persian Gulf Saturday, and Iran said it killed 200 Iraqi troops and wounded 250 in the northern sector of their battlefront.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said Iranian war planes attacked an Iraqi offshore oil platform at Khor al-Omaya twice. Iraq had no comment on the Iranian report, but said Iraqi warplanes attacked a number of Iranian vessels trying to sail into the Khor Moussa waterway, about 24 miles from Khor al-Omaya.

Cuba Reports Refinery Fire

MEXICO CITY — Fire broke out in an oil refinery in the port of Havana, seriously injuring two firemen, but the flames were eventually extinguished, the Cuban government news agency Prensa Latina reported Saturday.

It said President Fidel Castro toured the scene of the fire. There was no immediate estimate of damage.

In a dispatch monitored here, Prensa Latina said the fire broke out at a tank in the Nivo Lopez oil refinery and quickly spread to neighboring tanks.

Diplomat Sees Standoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former head of theU.S. embassy in Afghanistan says the Soviet war against Afghan rebels is a standoff, but it appears "time is on the side of the Soviets."

Charles Dunbar, who is in Washington for reassignment after nearly two years as the top diplomatic officer in Kabul, said he believes the Soviets are making a long-term commitment to the war.

One indication of the Soviet commitment, he said, is that between 10,000 and 20,000 Afghans are receiving training in the Soviet Union. The Soviets, who invaded Afghanistan in 1979, are estimated to have 105,000 troops there.

Leftist Positions Bombed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Air force planes bombed rebel positions along a northern road to Suchitoto on Saturday and 2,000 government troops slogged ahead to break a guerrilla siege on that city, military sources said.

The guerrillas dynamited Las Guaras bridge, 12 miles north of the capital, and seized control of the road earlier this week. Suchitoto, 26 miles north of San Salvador, is considered strategic because of its proximity to two hydroelectric dams on Lake Suchitlan that provide half the country's power.

Air Force planes made strafing runs in the early morning and dropped bombs on suspected rebel positions along the road, north of the bridge, said the sources, who asked anonymity for security reasons. They said they had no details.

Insecticide Found Gravy Mix

NEWARK, N.J. — Insecticide was found in two bottles of gravy mix Saturday after tests prompted by a letter sent to a newspaper from someone claiming to have planted the poison because "I hate the people who make Gravy Master."

The New Jersey Department of Health said it found the toxic chemical, nicotine sulfate, in Gravy Master Seasoning and Browning Sauce sold at Pathmark supermarkets in Weehawken and North Bergen, across from New York City.

John Mills, president Gravy Master Inc. in Norwalk, Conn., said the company would "definitely get it off the shelves very quickly" in New Jersey but not in the other states where the product is sold because "we believe it is strictly a local-store situation."

Chad Town Is Overrun

N'DJAMENA, Chad — Government officials on Saturday confirmed that the northern city of Faya-Largeau had fallen to the rebel forces of Libyan-backed former President Goukouni Oueddei.

On Friday, officials of this war-torn central African nation had emphatically denied reports from Goukouni's representative in Paris that the town had fallen. But officials in the capital of N'Djamena on Saturday said the town was captured overnight after 24 hours of fighting between government troops and about 3,000 rebel soldiers.

Fasting Israeli Doctors Collapse By Hundreds

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Hundreds of Israeli doctors fasting for higher pay collapsed from weakness Saturday and were put on emergency room stretchers and given intravenous infusions, Israel's press and radio said.

Israel radio said 2,700 of the nation's 4,500 public service doctors had joined the 12-day-old hunger strike, and that about half of the protesters fainted and later were revived.

Newspapers said all but four or five of Israel's 28 hospitals had stopped admitting patients except for dire emergencies.

The hospitals discharged those patients who were not in danger of their lives and transferred many serious cases to the nation's few private hospitals.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin and his health and finance ministers planned to submit to the Cabinet Sunday a proposal for arbitration to end the dispute.

Finance Minister Yoram Aridor had opposed mediation until now, and incurred the doctors' wrath by insisting the government not deviate from the framework agreements signed with the public sector.

But with Begin and Aridor backing arbitration, it appeared likely the Cabinet would go along with the idea.

The Israel Medical Association, the doctors' union, was meeting with strike leaders to discuss the latest developments in its contacts with the government.

"We will only stop our fast if we are satisfied with the terms for arbitration," said Dr. Shamay Cotev, head of the Intensive Care Unit at Jerusalem's Hadassah Hospital.

Cotev, who told The Associated Press he had lost 10 pounds during his six-day strike, said Begin had failed to say which sections of the proposed agreement would be submitted to arbitration.

The doctors earn between $600 and $1,120 a month and work a 45-hour week. The government has offered to raise salaries by about 30 percent and cut the work week to 39 hours, but the doctors say this is not enough.

Truck Hits Crowd

HAYFIELD, England (AP) — A truck plowed into a crowd watching a jazz festival parade Saturday, killing two 12-year-old boys and a 21-year-old man, police said.

The parade, led by a Dixieland band and watched by some 300 people, was marching across the highway in this northern English village when the truck rounded a bend, witnesses said.

Police said the truck had ignored a signal to halt from officers patrolling the highway.

"Apparently the brakes failed and the driver swerved to avoid the procession," said a police spokesman.

Killed were Colin Massey, 12, and Christopher Evans, 21, both of Hayfield, and Martin Robinson, 12, who had traveled with his family from their home in Manchester to see the festival.

Italians May Reject Reds

ROME (AP) — Italians are expected to hurt the Communist Party in national elections Sunday and Monday and continue the Christian Democrats' postwar dominance of the country.

Under their new leader, 54-year-old Ciriaco De Mita, the Christian Democrats seemed likely to maintain the 38.3 percent share of the vote they received in the last elections in 1979.

More than 9,000 candidates are running for the 630 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and 315 Senate seats in Italy, which has had 43 governments since the end of World War II. Each has lasted an average of eight months.

About 44 million people are eligible to vote in the election, marked by one of the country's dullest campaigns. Political analysts said the biggest loser could be the Communists.

The Communist Party is the largest Marxist party in the West and Italy's second largest party, winning 30.4 percent of the vote four years ago. But the party has suffered because of feuding between pro-Soviet factions and those critical of the Soviet Union. Opinion polls say it may lose up to 3 percent.

The Socialist Party is Italy's third-largest, taking 9.8 percent of the 1979 vote. The polls suggest it will increase its share by 2 or 3 percent.

The Socialists forced the current elections one year ahead of schedule in the belief they could make substantial gains.

They have long sought to make their leader Bettino Craxi Italy's first postwar Socialist premier and hold the key for any stable coalition.

With a fresh election victory, the Christian Democrats are expected to immediately invite the Socialists and three other minor parties — the Republicans, Social Democrats and Liberals — to form a new coalition.

Opinions polls predict a record number of voters will abstain or cast blank ballots as a protest because they feel the election will bring no change.

Poland Lodges Stiff Protest Over Reagan

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist government lodged a stiff protest with the United States Saturday, accusing President Reagan of whipping up tension by calling for the restoration of Solidarity and demanding that he stop interfering in Poland's "internal affairs."

The protest note, accusing the Reagan administration of striving to "maintain tension in Poland at all costs," was handed to acting chief of the U.S. mission, Herbert Wilgis.

The State Department in Washington confirmed the protest had been received in Warsaw, but spokeswoman Anita Stockman said "We will not have any comment until we have seen the text."

Polish authorities openly acknowledge that one aim of inviting Pope John Paul II to Poland for his just-completed eight-day trip was to create conditions that would allow the lifting of U.S. economic sanctions — sanctions imposed in response to the martial law edict of Dec. 13, 1981.

Government officials have hinted that martial law, eased somewhat last December, may be lifted formally on July 22, Poland's national day.

In a speech to Polish-Americans in Chicago on Thursday, Reagan called for "genuine national reconciliation" and urged Poland to lift martial law entirely, free "political prisoners," and revive Solidarity, which was the first independent union in the Soviet bloc.

Vatican Paper Boosts Rumors Walesa Quitting

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Harried Solidarity leader Lech Walesa refused comment Saturday on speculation he might leave the Polish political scene and his wife dismissed such reports as "nonsense."

Walesa, who met with Pope John Paul II on Thursday near Krakow, has so far avoided direct comment on the meeting. A Vatican newspaper editorial Friday about the audience indicated Walesa was no longer in a position to play a public role as leader of the outlawed union Solidarity.

But the Rev. Virgilio Levi, author of the editorial in L'Osservatore Romano, resigned as deputy editor of the paper on Saturday without shedding any new light on the controversy.

While the paper is published by the Vatican, it does not necessarily reflect official views of the Roman Catholic Church.

"Any kind of speculation on Lech's backing off is just pure nonsense," Danuta Walesa said in a telephone interview from the couple's home in Gdansk, where Solidarity was formed during shipyard strikes in August 1980.

Walesa himself had no comment Saturday, but in an interview Friday with the NBC television network, he made statements that seemed to support the view of the L'Osservatore Romano editorial.

He indicated he might bow out of future talks with the communist government on union issues.

"The problem is not who negotiates but what is negotiated," he said. "It is not important who solves problems — if there are better people to do that then okay, let them go ahead," he said.

Despite Walsa's unofficial status since the union was outlawed, he has remained a rallying point for the Solidarity underground and for Poles opposed to military rule.

In Warsaw, Poland's governing Politburo met Saturday, a senior government official said, and top party leaders were expected to assess the tumultuous visit of the pope, who drew huge and sometimes defiant crowds during his eight-day trip through the country.

Some sources described a Politburo session Tuesday as "acrimonious," and said conservatives at Saturday's session were expected to criticize Poland's martial-law ruler, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, for inviting the pope and for tolerating protests by supporters of Solidarity at John Paul's public appearances.

The session paves the way for Jaruzelski's meeting with other Soviet bloc leaders during a Warsaw Pact summit, expected next week in Warsaw or Moscow. The Soviet bloc news media, like their Polish counterparts, have yet to make substantive comment on the papal trip.

The Polish government on Saturday formally protested to the United States over a speech President Reagan made Thursday as the pope concluded his Polish visit.

In a communique carried by the Polish news agency PAP, the government said Reagan wanted to maintain tension — despite the "dignified" nature of the pope's visit — by calling for a formal end to martial law, freeing of prisoners held since the crackdown began in December 1981, and the revival of Solidarity.

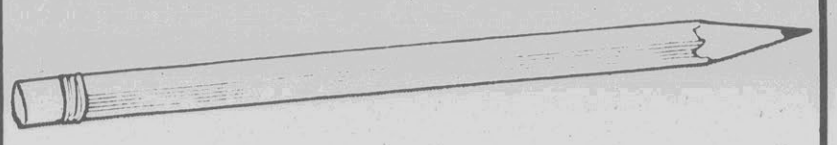

In return, Reagan told Polish Americans in Chicago, the United States would help Poland rebuild its economy. The Polish government has acknowledged that one aim of inviting the pope was to create an atmosphere that would allow for the lifting of U.S. economic sanctions. The United States imposed the sanctions after martial law began Dec. 13, 1981.

TEACHERS TAKE NOTE!

Take note of the opportunities available this summer for exploring ways to use newspapers for educational purposes. The N.C. Newspaper in Education Foundation and the N.C. State Department Division of Communications Skills are planning workshops in each of the eight regions in this state. Dates and locations for the workshops are given below, listed by region:

Regional centers	Dates	Locations
1-Northeast, Williamston	July 26-27	Williamston

Each workshop is 10 hours and offers one unit of credit. Newspaper in Education Coordinators will tailor the workshops to fit the needs of those who register. Each teacher who attends pays a $10 registration fee and receives a copy of the N.C. NIE Teacher's Guide. The Guide covers the areas of newspapering, communications skills, social studies, math, health, science, and cultural arts.

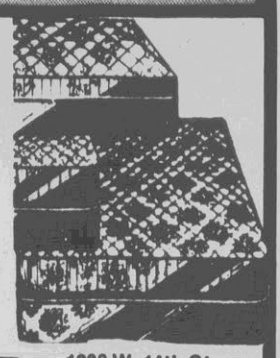

If you have questions about the workshop, call Lynn Jobes, 752-6166, (Greenville), Linda Perry, 792-5166 (Region I, Williamston), or Terri Saylor/Charlene Barbour, 821-1435 (Raleigh).

House Panel Approves Change To Bingo Law

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill aimed at helping charities receive more of the proceeds from bingo games cleared its first hurdle Friday, winning approval by the House Judiciary I Committee.

But the bill now must go to the House Finance Committee because it would levy new fees for a bingo operator's license.

Representatives of bingo game operators warned the Judiciary I Committee that few charities would be able to continue operating bingo games if the bill is enacted.

The bill would require nonprofit charitable, civic, religious, fraternal and veterans' organizations to be licensed by the state Justice Department to operate bingo games. It puts a number of quarterly reporting and annual auditing requirements on the groups.

"No charity in North Carolina can meet the reporting requirements here," said Howard Twiggs, representing the N.C. Bingo Association. "You have made it terribly burdensome for the charities."

Twiggs also charged that the bill would not stop the state's biggest bingo law offender — the $1 million bingo game on the Indian reservation in Cherokee. Because the reservation is federal land, the Indians are not obliged to follow state law.

"If organized crime is involved, this is where it's involved," he said.

But Rep. Bruce Etheridge, D-Onslow, the bill's sponsor, said it is patterned after a Georgia law that has been successful.

John Elmore of the attorney general's office said the Georgia law has generated $17 million a year for charities while North Carolina charities will make about $1 million this year from bingo games.

"The money is not going where it's supposed to go," Elmore said. "This (bill) goes a long way toward closing loopholes."

The bill sets up the Bingo and Raffle Licensing Agency to make rules and regulations for administering the proposed law. Violations of the proposed law would bring a 30-day to six-month revocation of a bingo license.

Twiggs said the agency would be costly because it would require hearing officers and investigators and provide only another bureaucracy but Etheridge said Georgia has not been forced to hire a large staff. He said the fees provided by the bill would pay for someone to administer the proposed law.

Bingo locations could be used by two organizations and would be able to conduct up to two raffles a week, with one five-hour session per day. The maximum prize for one game is $500 with the maximum for one session at $2,500.

The licensed organization must own the supplies to conduct the bingo game but it may jointly own the property with one other organization, under the bill.

The bill would require funds received in connection with the bingo game to be deposited in a special bank account and all expenses to be taken from that account in a manner prescribed by the bill.

It would be a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison to operate a game without a license or misuse funds derived from the game.

In other legislative action:

The House Appropriations Committee amended a bill revising the state auditor's responsibilities. The amendment puts the auditor's employees back under the State Personnel Act, which determines salaries.

Auditor Ed Renfrow had asked the employees be independent, as recommended by the federal General Accounting Office and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. The original bill included that provision.

"We'll just live with that," he said in light of the amendment.

The House unanimously approved and sent to the Senate a bill amending the obscenity law.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, sponsor of the bill, said it would prohibit the display of pornographic materials in areas where children have access, including convenience stores, and ban more than one occupant in a mini movie theatre at a time.

Miller said the bill also would change the standard for judging obscenity from a statewide measure to a local community standard.

A resolution urging the Department of Defense to help the state patrol the coast and enforce drug laws was sidetracked and returned to the House Rules Committee.

The bill encountered opposition from Rep. Howard Coble, R-Guilford, who said it would be "money down the tube."

Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, said the Army was never meant to be used against its own citizens, even for investigating crimes.

Several bills revising North Carolina property tax laws were sent to a subcommittee despite their House sponsor's plea to the Senate Finance Committee for quick action.

One of the bills, which would toughen educational standards for county tax supervisors, drew stiff opposition although it was endorsed by the N.C. Association of County Commissioners.

"In the past, newly-elected county commissioners would appoint their brother as tax supervisor," said Rep. Robert McAlister, D-Rockingham. "Those days are over. We're in the computer age and we've got to have qualified people."

But Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie, said the bill might put North Carolinians at a disadvantage.

"It seems as a result of this that every time we have a reappraisal we have some man from New Jersey or Pennsylvania ... and eliminate the common-sense man who knows the value of the land," said Harrington.

The Senate approved a resolution for nominating and electing members of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors and scheduled the election for next Tuesday.

The Senate approved a bill making numerous changes in laws regarding evidence in criminal trials and returned the bill to the House for concurrence with several amendments.

The bill codifies and simplifies laws on such matters as evidence relating to character, pleas, witness competency, interpreters, mode of interrogation, and hearsay.

In 1981, the Legislature passed a bill banning dangerous weapons from most gatherings, but made an exception for rifles in pickup truck racks out of fear that hunters might be unfairly prosecuted.

The new bill deletes the loophole but makes clear that violators must be participants or spectators, not someone casually driving by.

A final vote is scheduled for Monday.

After lengthy haggling, the Senate tentatively approved a bill making it a misdemeanor to kill or injure an animal trained to help law enforcement officers.

Under the original House bill, killing the animals would have been a felony. But the Senate Law Enforcement Committee watered down the bill after some lawmakers complained it made hurting a dog more serious than hurting people in some cases.

Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, said the bill was needed because drug dealers were killing dogs that are trained to detect narcotics at airports and elsewhere.

South's Prison Officials Seek Plan For Crowding

By BRUCE M. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — About 500 prison officials from across the South will grapple with the problem of skyrocketing inmate populations this week.

"The exploding prison population is putting corrections in a real dilemma of how to cope ... and maintain something other than just warehousing inmates," said S. Harold George, the president of the Southern States Correctional Association.

"The more crowded, the more potential for problems," he said. "It's just like putting more chickens or rats in a cage."

The whole nation is feeling the crunch, said George, a circuit administrator for Probation and Parole Services of the Florida Department of Corrections.

While the public and lawmakers demand tough sentences, it's hard to come up with the dollars needed to build prisons for all the defendants who must be put behind bars, he said.

"It's like that when you go to build the prisons too. The public wants the prison but nobody wants it in their neighborhood," he said.

George said the recession played havoc with state budgets at a time when prison-building costs were rising sharply.

"The solution is not just to warehouse and is not just to mass release either," George said. "It's got to be something in between. To me the key is selectivity."

That's in keeping with the theme of the association's four-day annual conference — "Quality Vs. Quantity — Can They Co-Exist?"

Corrections commissioners and others from 14 Southern states will discuss how to strike a balance between the demand that more criminals be locked up with the need for quality rehabilitation programs.

"With these ever-increasing numbers, instead of finding a quick fix, it's up to corrections to identify those people who need to be dealt with firmly and positively and to identify those who can be dealt with in some other way than the maximum correctional institution," George said.

South Carolina leads the nation in per capita incarceration. The state has 310 people in prison for every 100,000 residents — more than twice the national average, according to Linda Lawther of the state Corrections Department.

Last fall, state prison officials even got permission to house inmates in tents if other steps to control overcrowding didn't work. This year, two other programs were approved.

The Supervised Furlough Program allows inmates to be released from jail a few months earlier than expected. About 400 are expected to be released when it goes into effect next month with about 65 additional inmates being released in subsequent months.

The General Assembly also passed the Prison Emergency Overcrowding Powers Act, which allows the governor, when recommended by the corrections and parole, to release prisoners near the end of their sentences if the prison population exceeds "safe and reasonable operating standards."

Corrections officials say the figure should be 7,630. The state now has 8,200 inmates in prisons designed to house around 6,700.

The corrections conference opens Sunday night with an address by Gov. Dick Riley.

Other key speakers include Don Hutto, the president-elect of the American Correctional Association and a former corrections commissioner in the states of Virginia, Texas and Arkansas, and H.G. Moeller, the president of the 10,000-member American Correctional Association.

Milk Processors Sue S.C. Panel

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — Claiming the South Carolina Dairy Commission has an "inconsistent" pricing policy, five national milk processors have filed a federal lawsuit to bar the commission from setting raw milk prices for interstate commerce.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Greenville, claims the commission's pricing policy puts an "impermissable and illegal burden on interstate commerce," The Greenville News and Greenville Piedmont reported Saturday.

The suit was filed by Dairymen Inc., Pet Inc., Superbrand Dairy Products Inc., Regis Milk Co. and Flav-O-Rich Inc.

Dairymen is a Kentucky agricultural cooperative association that markets raw milk for 8,000 farmers in 17 states.

The other plaintiffs operate processing plants in Spartanburg, Columbia, Greenville, Charleston and Florence.

The lawsuit claims the Dairy Commission has the power to set minimum milk prices paid by state processors to state producers for raw milk processed in South Carolina.

In accordance with that policy, the commission enacted regulations that set the price of raw milk received from other states by South Carolina processors and the minimum price for Class I and Class II milk to be paid, regardless of the milk's origin, the suit claims.

The plaintiffs said the commission is not consistent in pricing the milk, the newspaper reported.

The commission prices raw milk produced in South Carolina, but it does not set prices for raw milk produced instate and processed elsewhere, the suit said.

The commission also prices raw milk produced outside South Carolina and transported into the state for processing. It does not price raw milk transported into South Carolina in processed form, however, the suit claims.

Therefore, state procesors like Pet, Superbrand, Regis and Flav-O-Rich must pay commision-set minimum prices for raw milk, whether it comes from South Carolina farms or not, the suit said.

Dairymen Inc. and other producers who bring milk into South Carolina must charge the commission's minimum price also, the suit states.

"The net effect of these regulations... is to eliminate the ability of the plaintiffs to engage effectively and competitively in interstate commerce," the suit reads.

"Such effect occurs due to the enormous volumes of raw and processed milk which flow in and out of South Carolina, but which are inconsistently priced or not priced at all by the commission," the suit said.

That gives processors outside South Carolina a significant economic advantage over in-state processors, because they can purchase milk at a lower price in other states, the suit said.

Official Says N.C. Car Seat Law Appears To Be Working

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A May 26 traffic accident in Bladen County provided the General Assembly with graphic proof that the state's Child Passenger Protection Law actually works.

Bamk employee Janice Troy, 27, was driving her daughters Tiffany and Shannon to the babysitter. While the woman and Tiffany were not belted, 7-month-old Shannon was buckled into a child safety restraint seat.

On N.C. Highway 87, nine miles east of Elizabethtown, the driver of a Ford van pulled into the path of the Troy vehicle and hit her car head on, according to the Highway Patrol. Janice Troy and daughter Tiffany were dead at the scene. Infant Shannon survived with a broken leg.

The law, which currently carries no penalty, took effect almost one year ago. It covers only children under age 2, not 3-year-olds like Tiffany Troy. Under age 1, children must be in a crash-tested safety seat. Children ages 1 to 2 may be restrained only with a seat belt.

"I would like to see it cover a wider age group of children," said Forrest Council, deputy director of UNC Highway Safety Research Center. "And I think maybe we'll get there after we see the effects for younger children."

Without further legislative action, the law will expire June 30, 1985. Forty states have passed child restraint laws, many of which this year.

Since the North Carolina law went into effect, 3,700 children under the age of 2 have been in traffic accidents. Of these, 2,003 were not restrained, but Council counts the other 1,697 who were protected as a definite gain over previous years.

Of the unprotected children, nine were killed and 35 seriously injured. None of the protected children were killed, but the center estimates that if they had not been restrained, eight would have died and 23 would have been seriously hurt.

While the North Carolina law is considered weak, Council said it is compensated for by strong educational backup through state and locally supported restraint-system loaner programs, consumer information programs and the formation two years ago of the N.C. Child Passenger Safety Association.

Only Johnston County has no program helping provide child safety restraints.

"I'm satisfied with the first year," Council said. "We got 50 percent usage for the infants and 1-year-olds. That's pretty good. I hope it goes up to 60 percent or 70 percent. The one thing I think has to be done is to get the local enforcement people involved."

New Law Effective July 1

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's child restraint law goes into effect July 1 after a year's delay that probably cost some children their lives in traffic accidents, the legislation's co-sponsor concedes.

Sen. Kenneth Jenne, D-Hollywood, said the delay was a trade-off to win enough support to pass the once-controversial bill last year.

Based on experience in other states, Jenne has predicted up to a 75 percent drop in the death toll of children under 5. About 30 unrestrained auto passengers in that age group usually die each year on Florida roads and highways.

The law will require parents and legal guardians to have their children, if 3 or under, in federally approved child seats when traveling in cars, vans or pickup trucks with Florida tags. Either such devices or seat belts must be used for 4-and 5-year-olds.

Violators can be fined $15, but the fines will be waived if the court is given proof a device has been obtained before the court date.

Critics charged the bill would penalize poor people who cannot afford child car seats, would be difficult to enforce and was just another instance of government intruding on parental rights.

The delay was offered as a compromise to give parents more time to comply. The seats cost anywhere from $30 to $75, but rental and loan programs have been established with $340,000 in federal grant money.

Marines Return To State

CAMP LEJEUNE — Members of a Marine helicopter squadron returned to New River Air Station Saturday morning after four months of peacekeeping duties in Beirut, Lebanon.

A base spokeswoman said airships of the 300-man Marine Medium Helicopters Squadron 264 touched down at the station about 9:30 a.m. after returning from Lebanon aboard an aircraft carrier.

The 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit was scheduled to arrive at Morehead City at 10 a.m. Sunday. The unit's 1,500 members also served a four month tour in Beirut.

Hope To Make Industry Trip

RALEIGH — Citing work he must do on the budget and other legislative matters in the General Assembly, Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. said he will send North Carolina's newly appointed commerce secretary to represent him on a 13-day, two-nation industry hunting trip.

Hunt originally had planned to go with C.C. Hope Jr., who was sworn in Friday, and other government officials. But Hunt said he decided not to because his first duty "is to work with the legislature in enacting a responsible budget that ensures continued economic progress for North Carolina."

Avery Murder Trial Ready

DURHAM — The last two alternate jurors have been seated in the murder trial of Leonard D. Avery, paving the way for evidence to be presented Monday in Durham County Superior Court.

More than 150 jury candidates were questioned over 16 days to select 12 regular jurors and three alternates. Court officials say alternates are necessary because the trial will be long and regular jurors might not be able to finish the trial.

Avery, 39, of Raleigh was charged with 14 felonies, including first-degree murder, after an Aug. 30 incident at IBM in the Research Triangle Park, where a Durham man was shot to death and four others were wounded.

Colcor Trials To Begin

NEW BERN — The trials of two men charged in October in connection with the FBI's undercover Colcor probe are scheduled to begin Monday in U.S. District Court in New Bern and a third Colcor defendant is scheduled for sentencing.

Henry James Brice Jr., 46, of Elizabethtown, and Hallie Moscow LeNeave, 46, of Reigelwood, were indicted by a federal grand jury in Raleigh Oct. 20 on arson and insurance fraud charges.

Ronald Dale McKeithan, 36, of Whiteville, is scheduled to be sentenced for transporting a stolen car from Lake Waccamaw to Georgetown, S.C., in May 1981.

Lawyers Want Early Trial For Green

RALEIGH — Attorneys for Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and prosecutors say the bribery-conspiracy trial of Green should begin as soon as possible.

Green, an unannounced gubernatorial candidate, was indicted Monday on one charge of receiving a bribe, three of consenting to receive bribes and one of conspiring to receive a bribe.

Under the state's speedy trial law, the state must try the case within 120 days of the day when Green was served with the indictment. However, the law also provides that certain periods of time can be excluded when determining the time within which a trial must begin.

New Guidelines Issued For Food

RALEIGH — New guidelines have been issued for counties distributing surplus government food like butter and cheese.

The guidelines of the Food Distribution Division of the state Department of Agriculture removed age limits on the surplus food, but requires that recipients already receive food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments or have an income at or below 130 percent of the poverty level.

In addition to cheese and butter, the government is making available flour, corn meal, rice, dry milk and honey in limited quantities to counties that request the surplus food. All recipients must meet income eligibility standards for the surplus food.

More Young People Find Jobs

RALEIGH — The number of youth employment certificates, or work permits, issued in May indicates a signifigant increase in the number of young people under age 18 who have found jobs, says state Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks.

Brooks said 5,942 of the permits were issued in May, compared to 4,901 permits issued during the same month last year. He said the 21 percent increase is another indication that the state is recovering from the economic slump.

Firm Wants Canal Permit

PLYMOUTH — The Weyerhaeuser Co. is seeking state approval to build a canal to flush water from the Roanoke River into a nearby creek where pulp mill wastewater is discharged.

Officials of the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development said the project is designed to improve water quality in Welch's Creek by diluting treated wastewater and increasing oxygen in the water.

State officials said the company has applied for permits to build a 1.5-mile long canal that would divert water into the upper portions of the creek before it merges with the river.

Qualla Housing Approved

CHEROKEE — The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has cleared the way for Qualla Housing Authority to begin construction of single-family housing on the Cherokee reservation using a $4.8 million grant awarded almost three years ago.

Construction had been delayed, said HUD project director Wardell Townsend, because no contractor could be found to construct the 81 dwellings within budget. A memo signed by Assistant Secretary of HUD Philip Abrams this week permits the authority to act as non-profit general contractor.

Townsend said the authority is expected to begin construction within two weeks and hire at least 65 workers. The reservation is experiencing high unemployment, he noted.

Qualla Housing Authority oversees 1,100 housing units, the largest number for any tribe in the Eastern United States, Townsend said.

Lawyer's License May Be Restored

RALEIGH — A state bar committee has recommended that former Durham lawyer Art Vann III's law license be returned to him Oct. 12.

Vann was disbarred Oct. 11, 1978, after he pleaded guilty to 11 counts of forging judges' names to fake traffic court judgments. He later served six months in prison after being convicted of a charge of forging a client's signature on a check.

A state bar panel of three judges heard testimony last week concerning Vann's request that his law license be returned.

Troopers Issue Fewer Tickets

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Highway Patrol issued 40,000 fewer speeding tickets in 1982 than in the year before, and in fact issued less tickets last year than at any time in the past nine years.

In 1982, the patrol issued 191,651 speeding tickets, down 38 percent from 1978, when it gave out a record 309,329 citations, state Department of Motor Vehicle figures show.

Primary reasons cited for the reduced attention to speeders are a drop in federal funds to trooper overtime pay and increased emphasis on arresting drunk drivers.

Whatever the reason, last year's tickets were the fewest since 1973, when troopers issued 171,430 tickets to speeders. In the four years after, the patrol handed out an average of more than 220,000 speeding tickets a year.

Since peaking in 1978, the number of speeding tickets issued by the patrol has dropped each year. For 1979 through 1981, the figures were 282,131; 269,883; 231,392.

In the past, the state has used about $1 million a year in federal funds to pay overtime to troopers who worked on their days off, Col. Edwin C. Guy, director of the Governor's Highway Safety Program. Because of cuts, the patrol can no longer pay for overtime projects.

"That's very definitely a factor in it (declining arrests)," said Col. D.L. Matthews, commander of the Highway Patrol. "It (overtime project) was like having another 100 to 150 highway patrolmen out there."

Matthews also said the patrol is concentrating on removing drinking drivers from the highways. "That does have a tendency to take away from other things," he said.

Matthews added that last year's drop in speeding arrests was the result of increased in-service training to meet new federal guidelines and last fall's Warren County PCB protests which required 350 state troopers to quell disturbances there for seven weeks. Both took many patrolmen off state highways.

Figures from DMV show that drunk driving arrests by the patrol are increasing. There were 42,297 DUI arrests in 1978; 45,997 in 1979; 48,348 in 1980; 48,132 in 1981; 50,387 in 1982.

Despite the emphasis on DUI, the patrol still considers speeding a top priority and bought 50 high-speed unmarked patrol cars that will cruise the state's major highways and interstates later this summer, specifically looking for speeders.

During the first three months of 1983, troopers made 57,876 speeding arrests. If that rate continues, the patrol's 1983 arrest record could surpass that of six of the past 10 years.

Holiday Toll May Reach 15

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Highway crashes will leave 15 dead and 800 injured in North Carolina over the three-day Fourth of July weekend, the N.C. State Motor Club predicts.

Club President John G. Frazier III said traffic fatalities this year are running below the death rate a year ago.

"The safety trends are certainly most encouraging," he said. "We are hopeful that the current safety trend will continue through the year and for the first time in 28 years North Carolina's traffic deaths will not pass teh 1,000 mark."

So far in 1983, 510 traffic deaths have been reported, compared with 534 reported this time last year. Frazier attributed the decline to economic conditions and the crackdown on drunken drivers.

Frazier encouraged holiday travelers to use seat belts and child restraints, which statistics indicate could prevent up to 70 percent of the deaths among unprotected motorists. He said children under age 2 are five times less likely to be seriously injured than those riding unrestrained.

Red Cross Says Holiday Fever Brings Drop In Blood Donations

By The Associated Press

Red Cross workers say the upcoming holidays rather than fear of acquiring AIDS is responsible for a decline in blood donations in North Carolina for June.

Cindy Harrell, spokesman for the Red Cross in Charlotte, said blood donations for May were up 11 percent, but they dropped 5 percent during the first 23 days of June.

The agency covers 57 of North Carolina's 100 counties, but telephone checks with other areas showed the same trend, she said.

"We were down slightly in June. Through June 23, there were 16,976 units donated last year and this year, we have 16,093. The difference we feel is probably due to the fact that during this time period we have the upcoming Fourth of July holiday and every year at this time, collections are down. They just forget to come in and donate," she said. "We don't know if that's because of the concern with AIDS, but we don't think so.

"There is no danger to blood donors. The possibility of getting AIDS from a transfusion is minimal. There were 10 million transfusions nationwide during a three year time period when these cases were reported, and 15 suspected cases of AIDS are possibly linked to transfusion and they are being investigated," she said.

She said North Carolina's blood supplies are adequate. Her region reported collections last year at 264,855 through June 23, with this year's collections at 269,502, an increase of about 2 percent.

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said Thursday that 1,641 cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome were reported in the United States and Puerto Rico through Monday, with 644 fatalities — a 39 percent death rate.

The disease cripples the body's disease-fighting system, and allows the onset of deadly infections that normally would be deflected by the body's immune system.

Atlanta Stages Downtown 'Fun'

ATLANTA (AP) — Thousands of lights brightened downtown streets and a booming fireworks show illuminated the sky overhead as inner city promoters tried to lure complacent suburbanites back downtown for a little fun Friday night.

The illumination of downtown capped a party planned by a coalition of public relations specialists, businesses and two radio stations.

As part of "Light Up Atlanta," downtown buildings, usually dark at night, were to keep their lights on until midnight. At 9:40 p.m., the fireworks began and special lights were switched on along renowned Peachtree Street.

The illumination, it was estimated, would require 204,000 kilowatt hours of power, bringing the Georgia Power Co. an extra $5,000 through electric bills.

The planning organization, called In-Town, Inc., got Gov. Joe Frank Harris to declare Friday "In-Town Day," in honor of an expected crowd of 80,000 to 100,000 flooding downtown for the festivities.

Patt Richman, public relations coordinator for In-Town Inc., said almost every downtown building was set to participate in the lighting. Organizers planned to close many downtown blocks for a street dance and a $10 bash was scheduled inside at the Atlanta Apparel Mart, one of the city's many convention facilities.

Atlanta has become one of the nation's leading convention cities, but visitors and locals alike have long mused that there was little to do downtown after dark.

City political, business and entertainment leaders have long searched for ways to attract the area's large suburban population, and the idea of lighting up the town, tried previously in cities including Pittsburgh and Louisville, Ky., was adopted.

Atlanta hotels offered special rates for weekend partygoers, while downtown bars and restaurants instituted special prices. Merchants threw sales, while the Atlanta Public Library got in the act with a special screening of "Gone With The Wind," the epic film of the city in Civil War times.

Helms To Try Legislative Ploy To Save Leaf Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has enlisted the aid of a rubber-producing plant that grows in the Southwest to help save the tobacco program.

Helms said he plans to attach a Senate bill that makes major changes in the government's tobacco, dairy and grain programs to a House-passed bill that finances research on the plant.

The strategy, according to aides, is to keep the tobacco issue off the House floor by attaching to it a bill that has already won approval there. If the rubber plant bill succeeds in the Senate, it would go to a conference committee made up of House and Senate members. The Helms amendment would then need only the approval of the House members in the conference committee.

The House bill would continue financing research into the production and manufacturing of natural latex rubber from the guayule plant, which grows mainly in the Southwest. The rubber is used to make airplane tires

The guayule bill, sponsored by Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-Calif., is considered non-controversial. It sailed through the House Agriculture Committee and passed the full House May 17 without opposition.

Brown's office was unaware yesterday that Helms planned to amend the bill. Charles Benbrook, an aide to the congressman, said, "I'm sure the congressman won't like to see his bill jeopardized by adding a pack of nightmares to it."

Brown was out of town Friday, but press secretary Jackie Greenbaum said the congressman would be "concerned that Sen. Helms' amendment could jeopardize hsi bill."

Meanwhile, Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., appears to be backing away from his plan to hold a hearing into allegations that Helms improperly used his influence with the Reagan administration to pressure the U.S. Customs Service to reclassify the tariff on scrap tobacco.

Gibbons, chairman of the trade subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, announced last month that his panel would hold a hearing. The announcement was sharply criticized by Helms, who called it a "political ploy" and a "publicity shot."

The News and Observer of Raleigh said in Saturday's editions that Gibbons was sending "a signal to the Customs Service that they shouldn't go making any hasty decision and they better decide (the case) on the merits."

The hearing announcement was prompted by reports concerning letters Helms wrote last year urging Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan to reclassify the tariff.

In the letters, Helms said that failure to change the tariff could "take me out of the Senate in 1984." Helms has denied that there was anything improper about the letters, saying he only wanted to prompt Customs officials to act.

The Customs Service has recommended that the tariff be reclassified, but Treasury officials are reviewing the decision.

See Emergency On Global Scale

NEW YORK (AP) — Church relief officials say a "worldwide emergency" is resulting from weather extremes that are producing floods in North and South America and severe drought in India, Pakistan and many African countries.

"None of us has ever known anything like this," says Stanley Mitton, emergencies officer of Church World Service, relief arm of the National Council of Churches, after a recent meeting in Switzerland with officials of various religious relief agencies, the International Red Cross and United Nations.

Congressional Report Attacks Plan For Offshore Exploration

By WILLIAM C. KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James G. Watt's plan to open up most of the nation's coastline to offshore oil and gas drilling was attacked in a congressional staff report Saturday as a misguided program that may slow development of energy resources.

The criticism was contained in a report by the staff of the House Interior subcommittee on oversight and investigations on Watt's five-year plan to lease drilling rights to about 1 billion acres of the outer continental shelf.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., the subcommittee chairman, said the report showed the need for congressional action to limit Watt's discretion.

But Doug Baldwin, a top aide to Watt, called the report "an after-the-fact partisan attack timed for headlines." He charged that Markey had refused a routine request to let the department review the report before releasing it.

The staff report said the results of its study "strongly indicate that the secretary has based his program on flawed economic assumptions, has misinterpreted important energy policy and national security issues, has fostered an atmosphere of confrontation with the states, and has not followed the spirit and intent" of federal law governing offshore leasing.

"His program may well result in delay and uncertainty in outer continental shelf development rather than in the expedited and evenly paced exploitation Congress envisioned," the study said, attributing the "delay and uncertainty" to the inevitable lawsuits.

The report comes from a Democratic-controlled subcommittee that has long been one of Watt's most vocal critics on Capitol Hill.

The animosity was clear Saturday, as the subcommittee staff complained that Watt "refused to appear personally" at the committee hearings "to explain his program and answer his critics."

Baldwin, reached at home Saturday morning, said he could not respond specifically to the report because he had not been allowed to read it before its release.

"This political attack on the department was carefully timed for Sunday release to the press before it was shared with the department or Republican members of the committee," Baldwin said. "Most chairmen, be they Republican or Democrat, have the integrity to share their attacks on a Cabinet officer with that officer before going public."

However, Baldwin said that Watt's leasing plan was before Congress in 1981 for a statutory review period during which it could have been vetoed or amended.

It was not altered at that time, and Baldwin said that amounted to tacit approval. However, some parts of the continental shelf have been put off limits to Watt since then through riders attached to appropriations bills.

The report said that in drafting the plan, Watt failed to consider other uses of the sea — including fisheries and tourism — and to balance those uses against energy development.

He also failed to consult adequately with state and local governments affected by the plan, the report charged, doing "only the bare minimum required under the law."

The report argues that Watt's plan would flood the marketplace with potential drilling sites, reducing competition for drilling rights and thus lowering the amount oil companies are likely to bid for those rights.

Throughout the process of developing the plan, the report charged, Watt has failed to listen to the concerns of others.

"He has been obstinate and unyielding, and has seemed to encourage a fight with his critics," the report said. "The secretary's attitude has apprently compelled critics of the program to resort to the courts so their concerns may be heard."

In the long run, the report said, the lawsuits may mean slower development of energy resources than would have occurred if Watt had taken a more cautious and conciliatory approach toward the issue.

82nd Airborne Gets Leader

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Maj. Gen. James J. Lindsay, who began his career 30 years ago as an 82nd Airborne platoon leader and worked up to the division's top post, turned over his command Friday.

About 3,200 spectators gathered at Sicily Drop Zone to watch Lindsay turn over the division colors to Maj. Gen. Edward L. Trobaugh, former chief of the U.S. military advisory and assistance group in Spain.

The two generals parachuted from C-130 Hercules aircraft to the drop zone with members of the division staff and representatives from each of the 22 battalions.

The ceremony was a tribute to the division as well as Lindsay, whose service in the 82nd included tours as a company and brigade commander, chief of staff and assistant commander.

"The last two years has been and always will be the highlight of my life," said Lindsay, 50, who is moving to Ft. Benning, Ga., to become commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School.

"The 82nd Airborne holds a unique place in our defense establishment," said Lt. Gen. Jack V. Mackmull, commander of the 18th Airborne Corps and Ft. Bragg.

Rescue

Thomas Patterson, 58, of Indianopolis is checked at the University of Tennessee Hospital in Knoxville after he was rescued late last week in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Rangers said Patterson broke his left leg on Monday and then crawled on his hands and knees until he was found on Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

Injured Hiker Crawls To Safety

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An Indiana man who crawled alone four days in the Smoky Mountains after he broke his leg said Saturday he will be flown home for surgery.

Thomas Patterson, 58, of Indianapolis was discovered by another hiker Thursday afternoon in Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

After he had veered off the Appalachian Trail and broken two bones in his lower left leg Monday morning, Patterson had crawled through creeks and thick underbrush.

He was taken to University of Tennessee Hospital 40 miles northwest of the park in Knoxville.

"They're going to fly me back to Indiana in the morning," Patterson said Saturday. "The surgery will all take place there."

The junior high school science teacher said he still hadn't been in contact with his wife, who is visiting the Scandinavian section of Europe.

"She'll be coming back soon," he said. "However, I have talked to one of my daughters."

He had begun his hike June 10 at Springer Mountain, Ga., and was planning a 1,000-mile trek to Maryland when he stepped in a hole and broke the bones.

Patterson spent three days pushing his backpack ahead of him during his crawl, which caused serious abrasions on his arms and legs. He survived on natural foods he carried, including nuts, rasins and bread.

He discarded the backpack Wednesday afternoon when he found "some semblance" of a trail. On Thursday, hiker Bob Rezy of Waynesville, Ohio, found him and alerted rangers.

"We vowed that we would get together," Patterson said. "He wants to get together with me as much as I want to get together with him."

Textile Leader Calls For Import Curbs

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP) — The U.S. textile industry could get boost from clothing tags saying "Crafted With Pride In U.S.A.," but the business still needs government help in limiting imports and opening overseas markets, according to an industry official.

James A. Chapman Jr., president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, praised the promotional campaign in a speech to the Southern Textile Association on Friday.

"American consumers want American-made products," he said, "and we're going to make it easy for these products to be identified. You're going to see a lot of this slogan on labels, tags, packaging and advertisements across the nation.

"What it means most is a chance to put more American dollars into the American economy and create more American jobs."

But Chapman said the United States faces the equivalent of another Hong Kong in terms of increasing textile and apparel imports.

"Unless steps are taken quickly, we're looking at the possibility of a billion-yard increase this year in textile and apparel imports," Chapman said. "That's like having another Hong Kong and more dumped on our doorstep."

Chapman, listing export statistics he termed "incredible," called on the Reagan administration to take steps to reduce the flood of imported goods. In the first four months of this year, underwear imports from the People's Republic of China are up 575 percent, he said. Imports of carded yarn from Mexico are up 404 percent, with dressing gowns from Hong Kong up 532 percent.

The industry official praised President Reagan's appointment of Walter C. Lenahan, deputy assistant secretary of commerce for textiles, to head a special group studying the textile and apparel imports situation. He called Lenahan "very knowledgeable about our problems."

Chapman also called on the Reagan administration to increase efforts to have "onerous non-tariff barriers to exports of U.S.-made textiles and apparel removed.

"We have given up 30 percent of our apparel and apparel fabric market to imports from countries (which) ban our products from sale or make it impossible for us to export by using harassing border tactics or enormously high duty rates.

"It's not a question of not being able to compete. We can compete in overseas markets with variety, quality and price. But we're being shut out."

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago I began dating a man who has been a widower for seven years. He is still very much attached to his dead wife and admits that he still "loves" her.

He talks about her constantly (including intimate details) and his home is a living monument to her memory. He has not touched any of her clothing, cosmetics, medicines, or any of her personal belongings since her death.

A week ago I threw away some medicine prescribed for her, and it seemed to upset him. He had previously talked about our being married, but since I got rid of her medicine he backed off. I have never lost anyone who was close to me, and I don't know if I should be more understanding and give him more time or not.

Friends have told me that he has said he would never marry again, but that's not what he told me. How much longer should I wait for him to get over her?

ALIVE AND EAGER

DEAR ALIVE: Waiting won't help. He clearly needs professional help. Don't consider him eligible for marriage until he has had sufficient therapy to resolve his grief, let go of the past, enjoy the present and plan for the future.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I enjoy artichokes. Recently, however, in addition to scraping the tender portion with his front teeth, as all artichoke lovers do, he is now consuming the entire leaf!

Is this good for him? I don't believe it is. He says he is getting his "roughage" this way. I love him and I'm worried.

EATS THE WHOLE THING

DEAR EATS: Tell your husband that man's digestive system was not intended to assimilate that kind of roughage in large amounts. Cattle, si. Humans, no.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I was raped four months ago in my own home by a "friend" of my husband. Because I wasn't beaten half to death or killed, my husband insists I must have led the guy on.

Now I'm living in hell, and wish to God I'd kept my mouth shut. It did me no good to tell — only harm. Why do men think a woman would lie about such a thing?

I had told my husband years ago to keep this guy away from our home because he had made passes at me, but he wouldn't listen. This "friend" had raped another woman, but he got off because he'd known her for a long time and she was too embarrassed to press charges. My husband knew all this, but he still accuses me of encouraging the guy.

If you had any idea of what I've been through, you'd know why so many rapes go unreported. I know there must be plenty of women who have been through the same thing. Maybe if you print this it will open the eyes of men who claim to love their wives, but blame them if they get raped.

My marriage is hanging by a thread. I've cried until there are no more tears. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest, Abby. I feel better already.

DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: Please call your local rape crisis facility without delay. It offers free counseling to women — even those who were raped years ago but have felt too guilty and ashamed to tell anyone.

Just being able to verbalize the terrifying experience with others who have shared that nightmare can be enormously therapeutic. And from what you have told me about your husband, he needs counseling to understand that you were the victim and deserve support and comfort — not blame.

* * *

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Comic Book Collectors Stage 'Heroes' Session

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — It's a non-stop extravaganza of superheroes and science fiction in Charlotte as comic-book collectors gather for a weekend of buying, selling, trading and talking about comics.

Comics fans at the second annual Heroes Convention also get a glimpse at some of comics' leading artists and dress up like their favorite comics characters in a costume contests.

"It's a lot of fun, kind of a zany time," said H. Shelton Drum, owner of Heroes Aren't Hard to Find, a Charlotte comic-book company. "You get people in here from all ages and walks of life — doctors, lawyers, kids — they all have a love of comic books in common."

About 800 people were expected to attend, Drum said.

The Charlotte convention is one of hundreds held all over the country every year for comic-book collectors. Drum d they're starting to look for them at flea markets and such," Drum said.

One example is an edition of X'Men, a comic about children with special powers. It sold for 25 cents in 1976, but today brings $75.

"And it's selling briskly at $75, no questions asked," Drum said.

Drum said millions of comic books are produced worldwide, with 150 new ones published in the United States last year. A list of available comic books for collectors fills 600 pages, he said.

The least expensive new comic book sells for 60 cents — the same type of book that sold for 10 or 12 cents a few years ago. Some go for as much as $2.50 because of a new magazine format and improved, longer-lasting paper.

The Charlotte meeting features old cartoons with characters such as Betty Boop and Steamboat Willie and science-fiction classics "Earth Versus The Flying Saucers" and "The Invasion of the Body Snatchers."

Health Officials Say State May Face Mosquito Threat

By The Associated Press

North Carolina could become a summertime haven for the pesky mosquito and the diseases that come with the insect's bite, state health officials and scientists say.

With all the reasons for concern, humans provide the biggest source of worry, said Richard Axtell, an entomologist at North Carolina State University.

Nolan Newton, a medical entomologist in the state public health division, also says despite all the efforts to control mosquitoes, human development and disrespect for the mosquito as a health hazard are critical factors.

Health officials say increasing human population, spawned by economic growth, is becoming more closely associated in North Carolina with natural mosquito breeding grounds as people are lured by suburban or rural lifestyles.

They also cite disregard for proper drainage of residential and commercial development alters natural drainage and increases mosquito breeding opportunities near population centers.

Other problems indicated by officials include inadequate mosquito abatement programs, the possible introduction of exotic diseases through international trade and travel, and junk accumulating in rurak areas and which holds rainwater — a prime breeding area for mosquito.

One of those diseases is called the dengue, a flu-like disease, which Newton said is "rampant in the Caribbean." It has spread through Mexico and been detected in Texas, and entomologists fear it may spread quickly across the Southern states.

Newton said dengue is usually not as serious as the encephalitis, malaria or yellow fever, all spread by mosquitoes.

While yellow fever and malaria have not been problems for years, health officials are concerned that heavy rains and flooding this year may produce so many mosquitoes that an epidemic of encephalitis may result.

No encephalitis cases have been detected so far and usually are not until late summer or early fall, Newton said. But last year six cases of California Encephalitis were reported in North Carolina.

First Of A Series

ECU Receiver Corps Likes The Flip Side

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series on prospects for East Carolina University football this fall.)

East Carolina University football fans are anxiously awaiting the first score by transfer flanker Henry Williams, a 5-6, 176-pound junior from Mississippi. Williams, a speedy receiver, does back and front flips each time he makes a touchdown.

And Coach Ed Emory's staff is hopeful that he and the other members of the 1983 receiving corps will be scoring enough — along with the running backs — to make some opponents flip their lids.

Williams, along with returning starter Ricky Nichols, a 5-10, 175-pound junior, are vieing for the flanker position, and receiver coach Ken Matous feels that both of them will be starters, alternating at the position throughout the season.

Joining them in the prospective starting lineup will be Stefon Adams, a 5-10, 187-pound junior at split end and Norwood Vann, a 6-2, 225-pound senior, at tight end.

"I think the receivers here are as good as I've ever been around," Matous, who came to ECU from Wichita State after last season, said. "Nichols, Williams and Adams could play anywhere in the country.

"All of them adapt well. They are football smart, and I ask them to do a lot."

He's also pleased with Vann as a starter at the tight end position, which in the past has been more of a blocking position for the Pirates. Matous feels that receiving is going to play a bigger role with the tight ends, however.

"Vann is as good an athlete as we have," he said.

And there could be some versatility involved in the receiver positions. "All of them know the others' positions, so we could do some interchanging at times. We have some real quality people, and the potential to have some good depth."

When it comes to depth, he's looking for people like Chris McLawhorn (6-0, 180, Fr.), Brent Holbrook (6-0, 178, So.) and Stuart Ramirez (6-0, 190, Jr.) to come through. Holbrook is currently listed at number two at split end, with McLawhorn behind the duo of Williams and Nichols at flanker. Amos Adams, a 6-1, 225-pound freshman, is another expected to play a big role in the receiver corps, currently third at split end.

Williams has reportedly been timed at 4.25 in the 40-yard dash, but even Matous takes that with a grain of salt. "I find it hard to believe, but I saw him. I would say that really, he's around 4.4, but he does have sprinter's speed. He ran with the track team this spring and did well. He had a little trouble with his routes, but that's typical of junior college transfers."

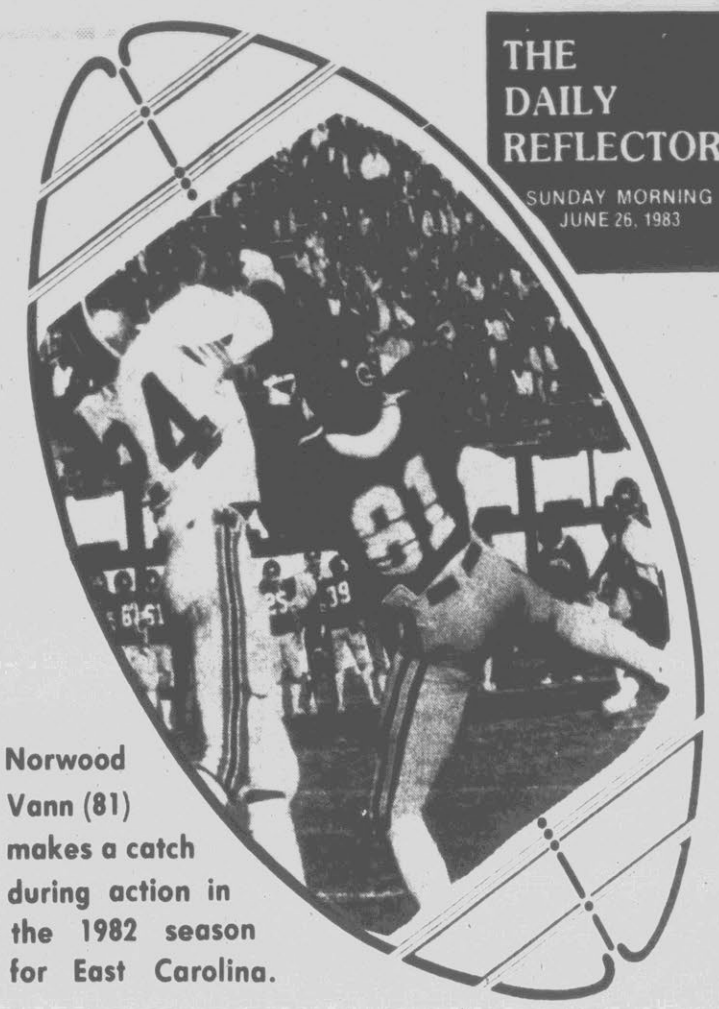

Matous said that Nichols had had ankle problems, but if he's healthy, he can also burn it.

"Ricky and Henry both have unlimited potential. They adjust their routes so well. They have to because of their height. Adams is probably our best wide out, and Vann is the best tight end. The three top people at the wide outs catch the ball as well as anyone in the country. They're tough and they stay with the ball. Vann, however, needs to work on this."

As far as Vann's backups are concerned, Matous feels that Lloyd Black (6-2, 224, Sr.) catches the ball well, but lacks speed, while Damon Pope (6-3, 203, Jr.) could end up being better than any of the tight ends with experience.

Asked to rate the receiving corps on a 5-4-3-2-1 (excellent, very good, average, below par, poor) rating as to ability, Matous said, "They're not a five, but I would rate the starters as a high four — the entire unit as a low four."

As to speed, Matous feels Rich Autry (6-5, 220, Fr.) who could be in the top three at tight end, along with Black, pulls the overall down, "say to a 3 or 3½. The top four are on the verge of being fives, however. Vann may be as fast as any tight end in the country, and Adams ranks up there with any split end in the country. The two flankers are as good as any."

While receiving and running with the ball are a big part of the receiving duties, blocking also plays a big role — when someone else catches the ball, or when the backs go with it.

"I think our tight ends do a good job with it," Matous said, "but we lack real good ability now at the wide outs, mainly because of size. Black and Pope are the best blockers at tight end and Adams at the wide outs.

Matous rates the overall blocking as average, that of the starters as slightly better.

Size is a factor too, and for the most part the Pirate receivers are small in comparison with other teams they'll be playing. Matous rates both the entire corps and the starters as average.

Depth is still up in the air. "We could use one or two more kids, but we don't have any lower classmen who have shown up yet. McLawhorn has got potential but hasn't shown it yet. Pope and Autry haven't either and we need for them to come through. We also need to recruit a couple of quality kids next year. We need to bring in a class tight end.

"But if our depth comes through, we'll probably have above average there," Matous said.

It's been a while since any passing records were set by a Pirate, and even with increased passing, Matous isn't looking for anyone to set a record pace. "I don't know if we're going to throw the ball enough for one thing. Henry and Ricky will be hurt by splitting time, and I don't know if they'll throw to any one person enough for them to catch a lot of passes over the season.

"It's going to be spread out among the whole group, and that's the way I like it. If a kid's a good blocker, he's out to play for the team. If he's worried about how many catches he's making, I'm worried about him because he's more concerned with himself than the team," Matous said.

"But if we win, it doesn't matter how many they catch."

Athletes Might Get Cash From Schools

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Certification of agents and providing athletes with cash payments and free contract advice were among the ideas kicked around Saturday during a special meeting of coaches and administrators called by the NCAA, it was revealed at a news conference.

Many of the suggestions may be put to a vote of NCAA schools at the next NCAA convention and become law.

"There has to be something done to relieve the financial pressures on the athletes," said Bobby Knight of Indiana, who chaired the group of basketball coaches at the meetings.

"Simple solutions would be things like being allowed to work during the summer when you're attending summer school. Or, you can give a basketball player $50 a month for nine academic months, $450 times a maximum of 15 (scholarship players), or about $7,000," Knight said.

"It would cost a little less than $2 million to finance all Division I basketball schools that way. But getting there, with legislation, is the tough problem."

Knight and several others appeared at a news conference Saturday following adjournment of the meetings, which brought together selected basketball and football coaches, conference commissioners, athletic directors, faculty representatives and women administrators.

"These meetings are going to be very, very helpful," said Knight. "It gave us the opportunity to talk among ourselves and with the other groups, to develop ideas and support for those ideas."

Each group endorsed the present system of freshmen eligibility, and each discussed modifying standardized test scores in regard to academic requirements adopted at the NCAA convention in January.

Knight conceded there would be "many problems" in trying to set up some sort of payment system for student-athletes.

"If you do it right now, it would be across-the-board and take in all sports," he said. "If you make football and basketball as separate entities, there must be changes made in the current financial package. There are all kinds of problems."

Any type of payment, of course, is against NCAA rules. In addition, a school could go on probation for providing students with legal advice on professional sports contracts.

"We would like to see legislation to allow student-athletes to seek legal counsel at their own institutions at no charge," said Dave Maggard, athletic director at California-Berkley. "We're seeing that as the stakes get bigger, with the U.S. Football League and other competition among professional leagues, that this is a growing need to be addressed."

Maggard and Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler both termed the discussion of certification of player agents as "a very positive step." Maggard said no details were worked out on how the certification process might work, but a committee was formed to study the situation.

"I don't know if there will be enough time to develop the guidelines in time for the next convention (next January) but at least we're to the point of addressing the problem," Maggard said.

"The agents are a problem, but we're not going to solve the problem completely," said Schembechler, the chairman of the football coaches. "If you have unscrupulous agents out there, they're going to get to your players."

He said the football coaches did not come up with any specific proposals about stipends for players.

Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Conference, said agent certification "could happen within a year, although the details are a long way from being worked out."

Jacoby said Houston, which is a member of the Southwest Conference, had constant problems with player agents during its drive to the finals of the NCAA Basketball Tournament this past spring.

"In their first round games at Houston, the regionals at Kansas City, and the finals at Albuquerque, they hired their own security man to accompany the team and stay on the floor at their hotel to keep agents away from players," he said.

"Their director of athletics told me he spent a great deal of his time trying to keep agents from his players. Their coach, Guy Lewis, told me that was his most difficult task. I know Houston would be very much in favor of some type of agent certification."

Tanner Surprising Wimbledon Winner

(Sums On Page B-6)

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Roscoe Tanner, the big server who slipped down the tennis rankings, came thundering back Saturday to upset Mats Wilander of Sweden and make the last 16 in the Wimbledon championships.

The 31-year-old left-hander slammed 19 aces past his 18-year-old opponent, who was seeded fifth, and won 6-7, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Tanner was one of the most exciting players in the world in 1979, when he was runner-up to Bjorn Borg at Wimbledon. Right now he is ranked 140th in the world and prior to Wimbledon he had won only four matches this year.

Another surprise winner was 23-year-old Robert Van't Hof of Dallas, Texas, who upset 11th-seeded Johan Kriek 6-3, 7-6, 6-1.

Kriek, South African born and a resident of Naples, Fla., said he had not been feeling well. He later pulled out of a men's doubles match.

The big guns of the men's competition went booming on.

John McEnroe, the second seed, battered Brad Gilbert 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 and Ivan Lendl, seeded third, eliminated Jakob Hlasek, an exiled Czech who lives in Switzerland, 6-1, 6-2, 6-7, 6-4.

Jimmy Connors, defending champion and top seed, had already reached the last 16 Friday.

Tanner, the cannonball server, handed a grass court lesson to Wilander, who was trained on clay and made his reputation as a baseliner.

"I have been working very hard in the last six months to gear my game to get better and better on grass, because for me Wimbledon is what tennis is all about," Tanner said.

He added he played Wilander like he used to play Borg.

"I was able to anticipate Mats' shots because he is so like Borg in many ways. Especially on the backhand passing shots, they are identical," he said.

Tanner's booming services began to knock Wilander sideways in the third set. He uncorked two aces in the last game of that set.

The American stepped up his service as the match neared its climax and aced Wilander five times in his last four service games.

Other third-round winners were Bill Scanlon, the 14th seed, Pat Cash of Australia, Mike Leach and Sandy Mayer.

Scanlon defeated Tim Gullikson 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 and earned a meeting with McEnroe in the next round.

Of the original 16 men's seeds, only seven reached the last 16. Two, Jimmy Arias and Gene Mayer, withdrew before the tournament began because of injuries. Seven more have been gunned down in the fierce competition of the first week.

Martina Navratilova, runaway favorite to retain her women's crown, served and volleyed her way to a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia for a place in the last 16.

Navratilova quipped: "The way some people are talking, why not hand me the trophy now and do away with the tournament? But I'm not taking too much notice of any of this."

Nine of the 16 women s seeds have gone through as expected. Two were eliminated Saturday.

Eva Pfaff of West Germany edged Britain's Jo Durie, the No 13, 7-6, 7-5.

That was a big disappointment for the center court crowd, who hoped to see the tall British player break through to the big time following her success in reaching the semifinals of the French Open.

But Britain still had a contender — 37-year-old Virginia Wade, the 1977 champion, who came back from a set down and 1-5 to master Andrea Leand 3-6, 7-6, 6-2.

Sunday was scheduled as a rest day. The All-England Club planned to stage all singles matches — eight in the men's singles and eight in the women's — Monday.

Australia II Swamps Opposition

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Unbeaten Australia II, the breakthrough 12-meter yacht with fins attached to its keel, continued its roll through prospective America's Cup challengers Saturday to victory over Italian entry Azzurra.

John Bertrand skippered Australia II to a 45-second victory over Azzurra on a windward-leeward course on Rhode Island Sound. The Ben Lexcen design, now 10-0 in the preliminary trials, spotted Azzurra a three-second lead at the start of the 7.5-mile race.

Then Australia II took control by 36 seconds at the weather mark, added another second in the downwind run and an additional eight in the final beat to weather. The boats sailed in northerly winds of 15-18 knots after action was delayed earlier in the day because winds blew steadiy at 35 knots over heavy seas.

Defender, one of three boats hoping to retain the Cup for the United States, split with stablemate Courageous. A third American 12-meter, Liberty, has completed the preliminary trials with a 6-4 record.

Tom Blackaller steered Defender, 5-6, to a nine-second lead at the start of their first completed race, stretched it out to 45 in the first beat to weather and finished 59 seconds ahead.

Then Courageous, the 1974 and 1977 Cup winner, was victorious by 44 seconds. Courageous, skippered by John Kolius, also stands 5-6.

Courageous led by 11 seconds at the start of a race abandoned because of a radical wind shift.

Australian entry Challenge 12, the only foreign boat with a chance to catch Australia II in the June trials, bettered its record to 9-2 with victories over a third Australian entry, Advance, and France 3.

Challenge 12, with John Savage at the helm, whipped Advance by 1:59 before taking the measure of France 3 by 2:00.

British entry Victory '83 upped its mark to 7-4 by beating Azzurra, 3-7, and Advance, 0-10. Co-helmsmen Rodney Pattison and Phil Crebbin gave Peter deSavary's boat a 34-second victory over Azzurra and capped that with a 1:35 decision over Advance.

Reynolds May To Be Honored Wednesday

Reynolds May, long time business and sports figure in Greenville, will be honored with his own "day," Wednesday at the Greenville Country Club.

"Reynolds May Appreciation Day" will get underway at 1 p.m. with a Superball Golf Tournament, with a shot-gun start. A cocktail party will follow at 6:30 p.m., followed by a dinner at 7:30 p.m. and appropriate ceremonies honoring May.

According to Greenville Country Club pro Gordon Fulp, a 116-player field has been set for the tournament, the largest ever at the club. The field is full, too, Fulp reported.

Several outstanding sports figures who have been friends of May for some time are planning to be present, among them former ECU football coach, now at Auburn, Pat Dye; former Duke star Ace Parker, and former North Carolina grid hero Charlie (Choo-Choo) Justice.

May, a native of Greenville, Ala., spent his early years in Dothan, Ala., coming to North Carolina in 1931 to attend Duke University. While an undergraduate, he played baseball and basketball, coming to Greenville for two summers to play in the old Coastal Plains league with the Greenville team.

Following his graduation in 1935, May decided to make Greenville his home, working with Imperial Tobacco Co., and coaching basketball at Greenville High School for a brief period. He then joined Goodson-Flanagan Insurance Co.

May later joined Garris-Evans Lumber Co., and eventually became president of that business, holding that position until he sold his share of the company to his partners. He then became executive director of the East Carolina University Foundation, and later formed and still runs Shamrock Realty Co.

In 1937, he married the former Doris Garris of Greenville, and the couple have two children, Louis Garris May and Mary May Brown, and three grandchildren.

An avid golfer over the years, May was instrumental in the formation and construction of Brook Valley Country Club and was one of the principal owners during its formative years. He has played many of the major courses in the country, and also has played in Scotland.

During his golfing days, he has played in pro-ams with notables such as Jack Nicklaus and Bob Hope.

During Brook Valley's early years, he hosted greats Ben Hogan and Sam Sneed in a exhibition match at the club.

May also, for many years, hosted the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball coaches tip-off press conference and golf tournament at Greenville Country Club, and served a term as president of the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame, bringing that group's annual induction ceremonies to Greenville for the only time in its history.

W.M. "Booger" Scales will serve as master of ceremonies for the dinner, and several others are expected to make remarks during the evening.

"We just wanted to take an opportunity to recognize Reynolds and let him know how much the community appreciates his support for sports over the years," Fulp, one of the organizers of the event, said.

Waugh Wins Shot Put

DURHAM — William Waugh of Greenville qualified for the National Junior Olympics by winning the 17-18 boys division in the shot put at the TAC-North Carolina Junior Olympic Championships in Durham, Friday.

Jeff Joyner of Farmville finished second in triple jump in 43-2 in the 15-16 age group, and also qualified.

Waugh's winning throw was 54 feet, 1¼ inches. A rising junior at Rose High School, he also placed third in the discus with a throw of 131-6. While only the top two finishers qualified for the nationals, Waugh will compete in the discus also, taking over as the alternate when one of the two top placers announced he would not attend the nationals.

The national championships to be held at Duke University July 26-31.

Seattle Drops Perry

SEATTLE (AP) — Gaylord Perry was removed from the Seattle roster Saturday in a shakeup that included the firing of Mariners' manager Rene Lachemann and the hiring of veteran Del Crandall as his replacement.

Perry, 44, of Williamston, N.C., was designated for assignment, which means he could be picked up by another team. Club President Dan O'Brien said a replacement for Perry probably would be determined in the next 24 hours.

Perry, who became the major league's 15th career 300-winner last May, had posted a 3-10 record this season with a 4.94 earned run average. In 102 innings, he had given up 116 hits while striking out 44 and issuing 23 walks.

The Mariners also designated shortstop Todd Cruz for assignment and called up Spike Owen from their Salt Lake City farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

Club owner George Argyros said he and O'Brien had met Friday with Crandall in Albuquerque, where they culminated negotiations.

Crandall, who managed the Milwaukee Brewers from 1972 through 1975, has directed the Pacific Coast League Albuquerque Dukes, the Los Angeles Dodgers' Class AAA farm team, the past six seasons.

Crandall's Brewers teams finished sixth his first year and fifth the following three seasons. He won PCL titles with Albuquerque from 1978 to 1982 and the Dukes were in second place this season.

Lachemann, at 38 the youngest manager in the major leagues, was fired as his team sat in the cellar of the American League's Western Division with eight straight losses, including the first two of the current homestand.

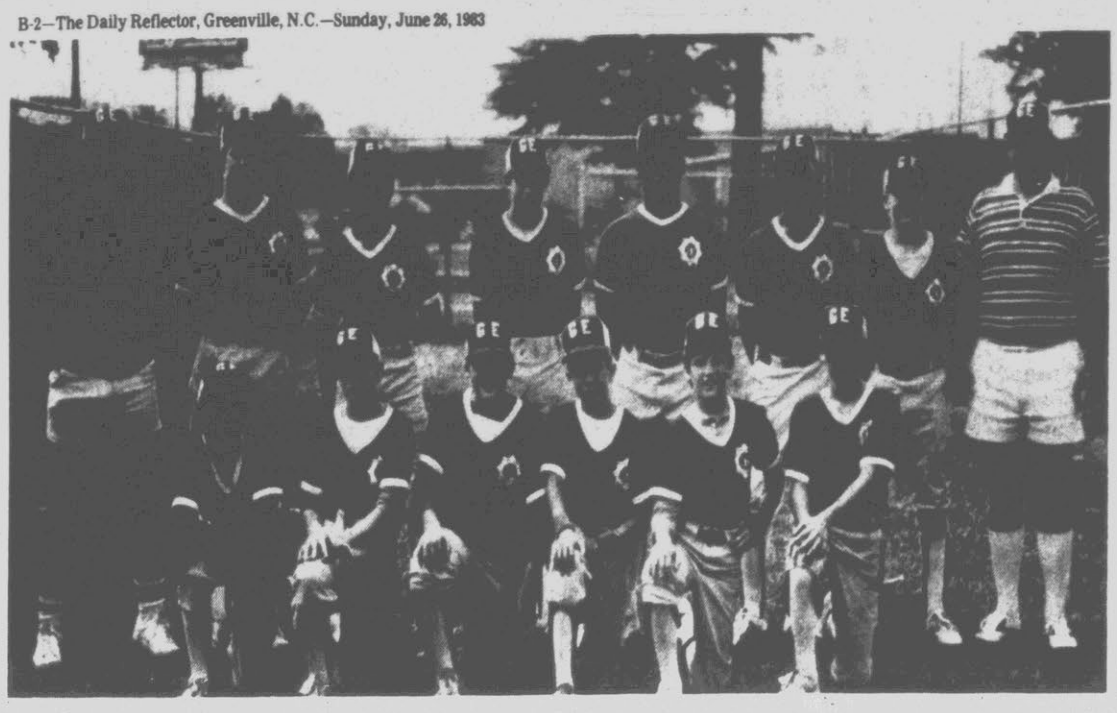

Lachemann began his two-year managerial term on May 6, 1981, when he replaced Maury Wills and became the third manager of the 1977 expansion club.

He was 140-180 as manager, including a 76-86 record last year, the best in the club's history. That was good for a fourth place finish and, in the strike-interrupted 1981 season, he guided the Mariners to a fifth place division finish.

The Mariners said they discussed with Lachemann the possibility of traveling to their five minor league clubs to evaluate the talent, and report back with his assessments.

Yanks Make History: Win 900th Game Over Bosox By 4-1 Margin

BOSTON (AP) — Steve Kemp began shaking "some bad habits" and the New York Yankees added another note to American League history Saturday.

Kemp drove in three runs with a homer and a double as the Yankees became the first team in AL history to beat a rival 900 times in a 4-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"I feel one of the reasons the club got me was to drive in runs and I got a chance to deliver today," Kemp said. "However, I'm still trying to break some bad habits I picked up while playing with a bad shoulder."

Kemp, signed as a free agent to a five-year, $5.45 million contract last December, said he thinks "I'm just now swinging the bat the way I can."

However, he added, he feels he's going to have to play more, preferably every day, to accomplish what the Yankees want from him — "about 85 RBI."

The original New York lineup, posted a couple of hours before the game, had Kemp playing right field and Dave Winfield in left. The two were switched — and, unfortunately for the Red Sox, Kemp was not eliminated entirely.

"I don't think I'm capable of playing right field in this ball park, with its big area out there," Kemp explained.

As far as hitting goes, Kemp uses all of the field. He sliced a double down the left field line for a first-inning run. Then, with two out in the third, he lined a shot into the Boston bullpen for a two-run homer, his ninth.

"I don't think I'm really a home run hitter because I don't pull the ball that much, but I think I can drive in runs," Kemp said after his seventh game-winning RBI.

Kemp doubled home a run in the first inning after singles by Roy Smalley and Graig Nettles. Kemp batted the homer after a single by Winfield in the third. Kemp also singled during New York's 12-hit attack.

Yankees starter Jay Howell, 1-3, took a five-hit shutout into the eighth, but left after giving up a one-out single to Dwight Evans. Jim Rice greeted reliever Rich Gossage with a single and one out later, Carl Yastrzemski singled home Evans.

Rick Miller followed with an infield hit to load the bases, but Gossage escaped further trouble by getting Rich Gedman to ground out. Gossage pitched the ninth for his eighth save.

Dennis Eckersley, 5-5, took the loss.

With the victory, New York has now beaten Boston 900 times while losing 719 games to the Red Sox.

Saturday Youth Baseball

Little League

Carroll & Asso.....4
Pepsi-Cola.....3

Chad Adams scored when Travis Williamson's single got loose in left field in the bottom of the sixth for the winning run as Carroll and Associates defeated Pepsi 4-3 Saturday in Tar Heel Little League baseball.

Adams and Joel Daughtry combined on the mound to allow just five hits by Pepsi while striking out seven batters. Williamson went 3-3 at the plate for Carroll, with Daughtry posting a 2-2 performance.

Sean Lyles had two hits in as many at bats for Pepsi.

With the score tied 1-1 in the bottom of the fourth, Adams and Daughtry scored to put Carroll up 3-1. But Pepsi rallied for a run in the fifth and tied the game in the top of the sixth as Lyles scored on a fielder's choice by Shawn Moore.

Wellcome 10
First Federal 3

Wellcome jumped ahead of First Federal with three runs in the top of the first inning, then cruised to a 10-3 victory behind the five-hit pitching of Chris Brown Saturday in Tar Heel Little League baseball.

Rip Perkins and Judd Crumpler each slapped a pair of hits in three at bats for Wellcome, while First Federal pitcher John Bolen struck out seven batters.

Blake Stallings reached first on a fielder's choice in the second and scored on a single by Crumpler for what proved to be the winning run.

Wellcome added another run in the third, but First Federal scored a pair in the bottom of the fifth for a 5-2 deficit.

Sportsworld 6
Union Carbide 4

Sportsworld pulled back into a tie for first place in the North State Little League Saturday with a 6-4 victory over Union Carbide. The win leaves Sportsworld with a 13-3 record, even with Coca-Cola. Union Carbide drops to 11-5, and had only an outside chance at a title now.

Sportsworld got one run in the first, with Union Carbide coming back with two in the top of the second. Sportsworld tied it up at 2-2 in the bottom of the inning. Sportsworld then pushed ahead with two in the fourth, but Union Carbide tied it once more at 4-4 with two in the top of the fifth.

Sportworld then pushed over two in the bottom of the frame to gain the win. Ledowick Johnson reached on a walk with one away, then stole second. He took third on a wild pitch and scored on a Tim Moore single. Moore moved up on a wild pitch and scored on Jamie Brewington's two-base error.

Sportsworld got only two hits off the pitching of Paul Powers, but it was enough. Bill Turcotte led the Union Carbide hitting with two.

Jaycees 18
Lions 8

The Jaycees buried the Lions in the cellar of the North State Little League with no chance of escape Saturday, taking an 18-8 victory.

The Jaycees pushed over three runs in the first inning and added three more in the second. Two more scored in the third, making it 8-0.

The Lions got going with two in the third, but six runs in the top of the fourth by the Jaycees put the game to rest.

Michael Thompson led off, reaching on an error and Carlester Crumpler singled, moving up on an error that scored Thompson. Chris Warren walked and a wild pitch moved him to second and scored Crumpler. Camilla Brown also walked as did Mario Davis, loading the bases. Neal Creech reached on an error, scoring both Warren and Brown. Davis scored on a wild pitch and Bobby Threewitts walked. Thompson reached on an error, scoring Creech with the final run of the frame.

The Jaycees added two in the each of the last two frames, one on a solo homer by David Gordon.

Threewitts and Gordon each had three hits for the Jaycees, while Davis and Crumpler each had two. No one had more than one for the Lions, who had only three off Davis' mound work.

Prep League

Shop-Eze 6
1st State Bank.....3

Shop-Eze Foodland, which finished in a tie for second place in the final regular season standings, moved into the finals of the Prep League Tournament Saturday with a nine-inning 6-3 win over First State Bank.

Shop-Eze, the last unbeaten team in the double elmination field, needs only one win to claim the tourney title, and will have two chances to gain that win. Shop-Eze will face the winner of the First State Bank-Garris Evans game on Thursday, and a second game, if needed, would be played on Saturday.

Shop-Eze took the lead with a run in the first, but the Bankers came back with two in the third. Shop-Eze regained the lead with two in the sixth, but FSB tied it at 3-all with one in the seventh.

It stayed that way until the ninth, when Shop-Eze rallied for three runs to pull ou the win. Dallas McPherson led off with a single and Adrian Barnhill got a hit. After Barnhill stole second, an error on a pickoff try allowed McPherson to score and moved Barnhill to third. He then scored on Chris LeGrand's sacrifice fly. Bobby Bell singled and Bobby Weisenberger beat out a bunt. Billy Carr reached on a fielder's choice and another pickoff error let Bell score the final run.

McPherson and Barnhill each had two hits for Shop-Eze. No one had more than one hit for First State Bank.

Garris-Evans.....7
Hendrix & Dail 6

Garris-Evans, regular season Prep League winner, moved into the semifinals of the post-season tournament with a 7-6 win over Hendrix & Dail Saturday. The loss eliminated H&D from the double elimination tourney.

Garris-Evans will face First State Bank on Tuesday for the right to advance into a Thursday game against unbeaten Shop-Eze Foodland.

H&D pushed over the first run in the first, then added three more in the second. Garris-Evans scored one in the third and added three more in the fourth, tying it at 4-4.

In the fifth, Garris-Evans pushed over three to take a 7-4 lead. Mark Holloman led off with a single and Jay Surles walked. Tony Evans also walked, loading the bases. Ray Gaylor grounded out, scoring Holloman, and an error let Surles score. A wild pitch brought in Evans with the final run.

Hendrix & Dail rallied for single runs in the sixth and seventh, but went down with the bases loaded just a run short of catching up.

Babe Ruth League

The Babe Ruth League will open its post-season tournament tonight at 6 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

In the first game, Coca-Cola, which finished fourth, plays number five Brown & Wood. At 8 p.m., in the second game, number three Everette's Pest Control takes on number six Pepsi-Cola.

Regular season champion Planters Bank, and number two Wachovia Bank, have first round byes in the double elimination tournament. Wachovia, which tied with Everette's in the final standings, took the second seed by winning two of their three meetings.

Play continues on Monday with Planters facing the Coke-Brown & Wood winner, and with Wachovia taking on the Everette's-Pepsi survivor. Play continues with two games on Wednesday, two on Friday and two on Saturday. A final game, if needed, will be played next Sunday.

A fielder's choice by William Crandell drove in Michael Cox for the go-ahead run in the fourth inning as Thompson Insurance held off Computerland 15-10 in Winterville Little League baseball action Friday.

Ex-Chief's Ballot Is Symbolic 100 Millionth

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The computers that are whirring away, tallying All-Star ballots, provided baseball with an intriguing bit of information last week. Some time over the weekend, they said, the counting house in Teaneck, N.J. would register the 100 millionth fan vote since 1970 when Commissioner Bowie Kuhn returned the ballot to the public.

A spokesman for the commissioner's office said the 100 millionth vote was counted at 6:22 p.m. Saturday.

Because of the anonymous nature of the vote, which is sponsored by Gillette, it would be impossible to positively identify the fan casting ballot No. 100,000,000. So baseball did the next best thing. It invited former Commissioner Happy Chandler, the game's elder statesman, to cast a symbolic one.

Chandler, never shy, readily revealed his vote.

"In the National League, I voted for Steve Garvey at first base, Joe Morgan at second, Ozzie Smith at shortstop, and Mike Schmidt at third. Gary Carter is my catcher and Dale Murphy, Andre Dawson and Willie McGee in the outfield."

Except for Morgan, Philadelphia's 39-year-old second baseman, all the players on Chandler's ballot either are currently leading or have led at their positions in this year's voting.

"That's OK," he said. "I love Joe Morgan. In 1975 and 1976, he was the best ball player in this country and he still is a good one. I couldn't leave him out."

In the American League, Chandler also voted for players who have been high in the fan vote.

"Rod Carew at first base, Manny Trillo at second, Robin Yount at short, George Brett at third, Ted Simmons catching, Fred Lynn, Dave Winfield and Reggie Jackson in the outfield."

All were leaders in last week's vote report except Trillo, who was running 50,000 votes behind Jim Gantner of Milwaukee.

"I was close to voting for Gantner," said Chandler. "I almost put him down. But I was voting for Yount (Gantner's Milwaukee teammate) at shortstop and I didn't want to vote for two from one team. But that Gantner, he's a good one."

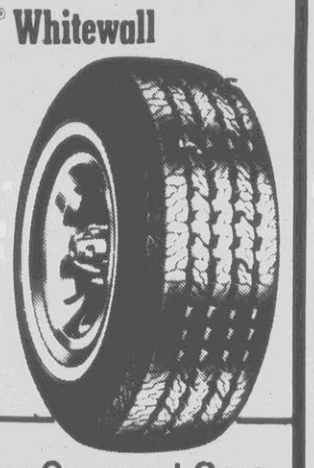

Chandler seemed a good choice to cast the landmark ballot. In 1947, his first year as commissioner, he returned the All-Star ballot to the fans.

"I thought the fans were entitled to it," he said. "The writers were doing it, but I thought there should be wider participation. This is an unusual game. The American people think they own it and they all feel like they're experts."

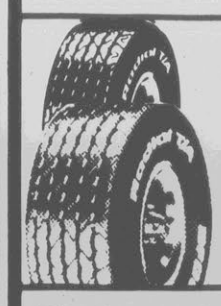

The fans voted until 1957 when ballot box stuffing in Cincinnati caused baseball to take the vote back. It stayed that way until 1970 when Kuhn returned it to the public.

Pre-Game 'Chats' Relax Tunnell For Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A pre-game chat with a veteran player, the presence of his brother who drove several hundred miles to see him play and the hot, humid weather helped turn things around Saturday for Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Lee Tunnell.

The 22-year-old rookie right-hander pitched 4 1-3 innings of near-flawless relief as the Pirates bombed the slumping St. Louis Cardinals 10-3 for their seventh straight triumph.

It was the Cardinals' fifth loss in a row, their longest losing streak since the 1981 season.

Tunnell allowed just one baserunner in recording the victory.

"Gene Tenace talked to me in the outfield before the game, and that helped my confidence," said the shy Tunnell, who had a 1-3 record and 5.24 earned-run average entering the game.

"I was just trying to relax him," explained Tenace, the 36-year-old veteran. "He's been having some problems, and I told him not to lose confidence in his ability."

Tunnell relieved Don Robinson with two outs in the fifth inning, two runners aboard and the Pirates holding a 6-3 lead. Tunnell got the final out of the inning, then set down 11 more batters in a row before Darrell Porter reached on a check-swing single with two outs in the ninth.

Robinson, making his first start of the season, said the 90-degree weather tired him.

"It must have been 115 degrees out there on the turf," Robinson said.

But Tunnell said he enjoyed the heat. "It was just like home," said Tunnell, who is from Austin, Texas.

Tunnell's brother, Eddie, and his brother's wife made the long drive from Texas to see the game.

"I'm glad they're here, and I'm glad they saw me pitch well," Tunnell said.

"He was outstanding," Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner said of his rookie hurler. "He's a good young man with exceptional ability."

Dale Berra and Jason Thompson each homered to highlight Pittsburgh's 13-hit attack. St. Louis starter Kevin Hagen, 2-1, walked five and was touched for five runs in 3 1-3 innings.

Pittsburgh scored in every inning except the second, sixth and ninth. The homers by Berra, his eighth, and Thompson, his ninth, gave the Pirates 15 home runs in their last nine games.

The Pirates got their first run in the first inning as Marvell Wynne walked, moved up on a wild pitch, took third on a grounder and scored on a groundout by Bill Madlock.

The Cards tied it on Willie McGee's third homer, in the second, but Pittsburgh answered with two runs in the third on run-scoring singles by Johnny Ray and Thompson.

Robinson singled in two runs in the fourth and Berra made it 6-1 in the fifth with an RBI single. Thompson smacked a solo homer in the seventh and Berra added a two-run shot later in the inning. Mike Easler singled in an eighth-inning run.

Robinson was knocked out in the fifth when Ken Oberkfell doubled in one run and later scored on a groundout.

Saturday's crowd of 29,567 pushed the Cardinals' season attendance to 1,018,008 for 33 home games. It is the earliest St. Louis has ever reached the million mark.

NEW YORK (AP) — Kevin Gross had a 3-5 record and a 6.72 earned-run average for Portland of the Pacific Coast League when he was informed last Thursday that he was being called up by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Good thing for the Phillies that Manager Pat Corrales does not pay attention to statistics. The 22-year-old Gross, in his major-league debut, combined with Willie Hernandez for a 4-2 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

Gross, who failed to finish any of his 15 starts in Portland, pitched 6 1-3 innings against the Mets to get the win. He gave up both New York runs on five hits.

Why did Corrales call up Gorss?

"I don't pay any attention to statistics," replied the manager. "He was playing with a poor club that has a left field wall of only 310 feet. In that league you need a lot of runs to win.

"What I paid attention to was his last five starts. They were all good. Today, Kevin showed that he has an outstanding curveball and changeup. He doesn't give his fastball enough credit."

How did Corrales prepare the rookie for his debut?

"Nothing special," answered Corrales. "He sat in on a team meeting Friday when we went over the Mets hitters. I also told him not to shake off Ozzie (catcher Virgil). At one time he did. He walked the batter."

Gross said he "was very surprised to be brought up."

The rookie said Portland Manager John Felske told him that he had good news and bad news.

"The bad news was that I was being taken out of Portland's rotation. The good news was that I would be facing the Mets at Shea Saturday.

"I know that I can get hitters out in any league as long as a keep my pitches low. I've always have a good breaking ball. Maybe this one will give me a couple of more starts."

The Phillies stole six bases, four in the opening inning and another in the second, to tie the National League season best set by Los Angeles against Houston April 6.

Walt Terrell, 1-1, gave up all four Philadelphia runs on six hits before being relieved by Doug Sisk in the seventh inning.

Bob Dernier walked to open the game, stole second and Pete Rose also walked. The two then executed a double steal and Joe Morgan's grounder scored Dernier. One out later, Hayes' singled in Rose.

Philadelphia scored twice in the sixth on consecutive singles by Mike Schmidt and Hayes, a sacrifice fly by Gary Matthews and a single by Ozzie Virgil.

Keith Hernandez opened the fourth inning with solo homer, his fifth of the season. The Mets scored in the seventh on a single by Ron Hodges, a groundout and a double by Jose Oquendo.

I concentrated on getting myself strong again, so now I'm just going after people."

Montefusco entered the game after the Padres moved into a 2-2 tie with two runs in the seventh. They scored an unearned run on Tony Gwynn's two-out RBI single in the eighth for the win.

"He has found a home," Manager Dick Williams said. "He's worked himself into a stopper after showing me he couldn't go more than five innings as a starter."

The Giants had not made an error in 29 innings before they made two in the eighth to help San Diego break the tie.

With two outs in the eighth, Garry Templeton was safe on second baseman Joel Youngblood's error. Templeton stole second and went to third on catcher John Rabb's throwing error before scoring on Gwynn's single to left off reliever Gary Lavelle, 5-2.

Starter Fred Breining blanked the Padres until the seventh when singles by Templeton, Juan Bonilla and pinch hitters Ruppert Jones and Kurt Bevacqua made it 2-2.

Howard Apologizes For Kingman's 'Harassment'

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets Manager Frank Howard held a closed-door meeting before Saturday's game with the Philadelphia Phillies to discuss the alleged verbal abuse of a woman newspaper reporter.

Helene Elliott of Newsday charged that the Mets' Dave Kingman harassed her in the clubhouse following the team's 6-3 loss to the Phillies Friday night. Elliott, who also had a run-in with Kingman last year, complained to Howard Saturday morning.

"It was more harassment than anything else," said Elliott, a member of the Baseball Writers Association of America. "I kept hearing him behind me. Everywhere I went in the clubhouse, he kept pointing at me, gesturing at me and laughing."

Elliott had declined to cover the Mets in the past because of her problems with Kingman. "I'm afraid of him, still am," Elliott said.

"I apologized to her for the organization," said Howard, "Then I told my players to treat her with the same respect as anybody else."

Kingman, who was not available for comment, has played little since the Mets acquired first baseman Keith Hernandez from St. Louis in a trade June 15.

The incident was the second in the last week involving female reporters and New York baseball teams.

On June 17, New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin became involved in a confrontation with New York Times reporter Deborah Henschel. Henschel accused Martin of verbally abusing her when he asked her to leave the clubhouse as she was conducting an All-Star survey for the paper.

Zoeller Back To 'Old Reliables', Leads Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Fuzzy Zoeller, again using what he called "the old reliables," birdied the final hole for a 5-under-par 67 and established a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $400,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

"I'd used a new set of irons last week in the (U.S.) Open," said Zoeller. He missed the cut for the final two rounds in the American national championship, but continued to use the new irons through the first two rounds of this tournament.

"But I just didn't feel comfortable with 'em," Zoeller said. "They've got a gooseneck in 'em, or something, and they don't look quite right.

"So I thought for the run down the stretch I'd go back to the old reliables. I feel more comfortable with them."

Zoeller, who lipped out a chip for an eagle-3 on the 18th hole, completed three rounds over the 7,249 yard Colonial Country Club course in 203, 13 strokes under par and one in front of Chip Beck and Larry Mize, with at least 10 others within striking distance going into Sunday's final round.

"It'll be a horse race. Should be exciting," Zoeller said.

"I can't sit back and wait for somebody else to make a mistake. I'll have to play offensively. But I usually do. On this golf course, defensive golf isn't going to get you anywhere."

The wind-up of the third round provided graphic illustration of that point.

Zoeller played the last three holes two under par.

Mize, playing in the last group with Zoeller and Beck, did even better, with an eagle-par-birdie finish. That got him in at 204, 12 under and a single shot back. He had a third-round 69.

Beck, who had led through the first two rounds, broke into a happy little canter after he dropped a wide-breaking, 35-40 foot eagle putt from off the green on the 18th, a dramatic shot that finished off a 71 and tied him with Mize.

"I had a gut feeling about it," Beck said. "It's luck that it went in, but I had that feeling. Man, that's exciting, particularly since nothing seemed to have gone right for me most of the day."

Mike Sullivan and Tom Purzter were next at 205, 11-under and only two shots back going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $72,000 first prize. Sullivan shot a 67 and Purtzer had a 68 that included 31 on the back nine.

J.C. Snead, with a 68, and John Fought, with a 70, were at 206. Tim Simpson and Sammy Rachels followed at 207. Simpson shot 68 and Rachels 69.

That placed nine men within four strokes of the lead with 18 holes to go. Larry Nelson, who won the U.S. Open title last Monday, was not among them. Nelson, in the chase for the first 45 holes, played his back nine in 38 and was six back at 209.

Defending champion Ray Floyd and Lee Trevino were far back at 213. Floyd had a third-round 74 and Trevino matched par 72.

Zoeller, the 1979 Masters champion, won the Heritage Classic earlier this season and lost in a playoff at the Colonial National Invitation at Fort Worth, Texas.

He started the day three strokes off the pace, but ripped the front side in 32 and took the lead at the turn.

His only bogey came from a bunker on the 14th. But Zoeller, one of the game's longest hitters, birdied both of the long holes coming home, scoring from 10 feet on the 16th, then putting his second shot near a bunker on the 18th.

His chip for an eagle hit the hole, and he tapped in for the birdie that provided him with the lead.

"One shot is good, but that's not enough. I'll have to shoot 68 or better to win tomorrow," he said.

Skiing Record
Judson Whitehurst of Greenville broke his own record for skiing on his hands Saturday afternoon on the Tar River near Grimesland with a time of 1:52. He set the record last year of 1:25. "I feel like they'll let me in the book this time," Whitehurst said later, referring to his attempts to get into the Guiness Book of Records. "If they don't, I'll keep trying until they do." Whitehurst's first attempt was turned down by the record-keeping publisher. (Reflector Photo by Angela Lingerfelt)

Tanner Rumbles Back With Wimbledon Upset

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - It might well have been Bjorn Borg out there, but instead it was the 18-year-old clone of the great champion from Sweden, and Roscoe Tanner knew exactly what to do about it.

The thunder-serving, 31-year-old Tennessean who a year ago was considering retirement, slammed 19 aces in upsetting fifth-seeded Mats Wilander Saturday in the third round of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

"Wilander does a lot of things just the way Bjorn did," said Tanner, who battled Borg in a memorable five-set final here in 1979 when the stoical Swede won the fourth of his five Wimbledon crowns.

"His serve is better than Bjorn's was at the same stage but he hits a two- fisted backhand and many of his shots are the same.

"As I rushed the net, I kept anticipating the kind of shot that Bjorn would hit. It worked."

Tanner not only played that great match four years ago with the now retired Borg on Center Court but earlier this year, after deciding to give the tour another fling, engaged in a series of exhibitions with the retired Swedish ace.

"I served so hard that maybe that's when I developed arm trouble," he said. "It bothered me first in a tournament at Richmond (Va.). Then I went to the National Pro Indoor at Philadelphia and developed a bone chip.

"I beat John McEnroe, who also was injured, but later I was blown away by Steve Renton. I couldn't raise my arm above my shoulder."

Tanner then went to Memphis but played so poorly that he decided he had to take remedial action. One option was to undergo an operation. The other was to rest the arm and hope.

"If I had taken the operation, I would lose the year," he said. "So I decided to go back to Santa Barbara (Calif.), where I live, and rest for seven or eight weeks.

It was a wise choice for the tour veteran who grew up in Lookout Mountain, Tenn. After sufficient rest, he began hitting the ball again cautiously.

"I worked with the pro at my club, Jerry Hatchett," he said. "Because I couldn't rely on my service, which always had been my big weapon, I worked on the all-around aspects of my game.

"I improved my volley especially. I started going deeper into the net position and angling my volley the way McEnroe does. Also my mental attitude got better. I became willing to fight out a match."

The pain from the arm went away and Tanner began pointing for Wimbledon.

"I always liked Wimbledon — it's the greatest. It's what tennis is all about," he said."

Meanwhile his national computer ranking had dropped from 43 at the end of 1982 to 140th.

"Last year I had about decided to retire," he said. "I did some TV commentary in Columbus, Ohio, and I was interested in business and other things.

"I didn't want to stop tennis and have a gap. So I decided to return. I'll probably play this year and next."

Realizing that he might meet Wilander at Wimbledon, he watched the French Championships in Paris and scouted the young Swede.

"I noticed that he didn't nail a volley," he said. "Also he ran down a lot of shots. He was identical with Borg the way he liked to serve and liked to pass down the line.

"I determined to get to the net quickly and angle the volley before he could get in position. Because my serve had lost some of its power, I learned to return better."

Although he served 19 aces, compared with three for Wilander, whom he'd never met, Tanner said the effectiveness of his serve didn't lie in its 100 mph-plus speed.

"It's more placement," he said. "I was surprised that Wilander could serve and volley as well as he did but I felt confident I could beat him.

"I really get keyed up for Wimbledon."

'No Pressure' For Okamoto With Third-Round LPGA Lead

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) — After being tied for the opening-round lead of the Rochester International and inching ahead by one stroke in each of the next two rounds, Japanese golfer Ayako Okamoto was hardly feeling the pressure after 54 holes of the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association event.

"Right now there is no pressure," the 32-year-old Toyko resident said through an interpreter Saturday after her nifty 5-under-par 67 blunted the attack of Donna White, the third challenger in as many days.

White's record-tying 66 matched her best effort in six seasons on tour, but still left her at 8-under 208 — two shots behind the consistant Okamoto.

"I usually take eight hours sleep, but tonight I'll probaly get more than 10 hours," Okamoto said of her calm demeanor.

"I need to save the energy; prepare to be ready for 27 holes tomorrow if necessary."

White, 29, playing one threesome ahead of Okamoto, needed only 27 putts in what she called "one of the best rounds of my career" to tie the course and tournament record set in 1982 by Jan Stephenson on the par-72, 6,162-yard Locust Hill Country Club course.

"I was hitting the ball close. I felt great all day," White said after opening a comfortable three-stroke margin between her and third-place finisher Lauri Peterson.

Kathy Witworth had a solo rung at 3-under 213, one shot ahead of Vicki Fergon and Beth Daniel.

Vicki Tabor, Kathy Martin, Dot Germain and JoAnne Carner were grouped at 215, while Kathryn Young, Lynn Adams, Betsy King and Cathy Morse pulled in at even-par 216.

Adams was tied for the lead with Okamoto after the first round at 68, and Australian-born Penny Pulz was the second-day challenger one shot behind Okamoto's total of 139.

However, Pulz skied to a 5-over 77 under the pressure of playing with the relentless Okamoto.

Ritter, Relay Unit Boost U.S. Lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Buoyed by American records by women's high jumper Louise Ritter and its women's 400-meter relay team, the United States took a 108-100 lead over East Germany in their dual track and field meet Saturday in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

In the men's scoring, the Americans led 70-46 after 11 events, despite a world record throw of 72 feet, 10¾ inches by East German shot putter Udo Beyer, while the East German women were ahead of their United States rivals 54-38 after nine events.

The remaining 16 events — 10 for men, six for women — will be held Sunday, as the first half of a double-header in the Coliseum, the site of the 1984 Olympic track and field competition. The second meet will be the completion of the three-day Los Angeles Times-TAC International Summer Games, which began Friday.

The Americans are attempting to avenge a 207½-172½ setback against the East Germans in their first meeting last year. The American men beat the East Germans 120½-102½ in 1982, but the East Germans women overpowered the Americans 105-52, with the U.S. women finishing first in only two events.

Saturday, the determined American women won three events, with Ritter taking the high jump at 6-6¾ inches, the 400 relay team of Alice Brown, Diane Williams, Chandra Cheeseborough and Evelyn Ashford clocking 41.63 seconds, and Mary Decker capturing the 1,500 in 3:59.43, the fastest clocking ever on American soil and only a half-second off the U.S. record she set in Zurich, Switzerland in 1980.

The American men won eight events, including a sparkling triumph in the 400 relay, as Carl Lewis put on a powerful stretch run and overtook East German anchorman Frank Emmelmann. The U.S. team, which also included Emmit King, Mark McNeil and Willie Gault, was timed in 38.78 despite two bad passes.

The other American men's winners were King in the 100 (10.30), Edwin Moses in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles (48.46), Steve Scott in the 1,500 (3:39.45), Henry Marsh in the 3,000 steeplechase (8:28.71), Willie Banks in the triple jump (55-2), Tom Petranoff in the javelin (310-5) and Jeff Buckingham in the pole vault (18-0½).

The East German women's winners were Marlies Gohr in the 100 (11.39), Petra Pfaff in the 400 hurdles (55.77), Gisela Beyer in the discus (230-0), Sabine Busch in the 400 (50.52), Heike Daute in the long jump (21-10) and Antje Kempe in the javelin (227-6).

Besana Tosses Invaders By Boston For 17-16 Victory

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Fred Besana passed for 227 yards as the Oakland Invaders capitalized on turnovers by the Boston Breakers to win 17-16 Saturday and clinch the Pacific Division title in the United States Football League.

There were more than 5,000 no-shows from the paid crowd of 30,396, but those who came saw the Invaders gain the playoffs with a 9-8 record. The Breakers, 10-7, still have a slim chance to win a wild-card playoff spot.

Boston, which got 122 yards from halfback Richard Crump, crumbled from its own mistakes in the third period.

The Invaders recovered a fumble on their 48 and moved to the Breakers' 3-yard line with the help of three penalties. Ted Torosian bulled into the end zone from one yard out on the first play of the final period to give Oakland a 17-13 lead.

Boston later had a touchdown nullified by a holding penalty and settled for a 24-yard field goal by Tim Mazzetti that closed the gap to 17-16 with 6:01 left.

The Breakers had snapped a 10-10 halftime tie in the see-saw battle when Mazzetti kicked a 20-yard field goal with 5:04 left in the third period.

Besana opened the scoring when he capped a 59-yard drive by firing an eight yard pass to halfback Louis Jackson in the end zone for Oakland's first touchdown with 5:34 left in the first period.

Mazzetti's 35-yard field goal early in the second period cut the Invaders' lead to 7-3.

Oakland lost the ball again on its own 21 two plays later when Jackson fumbled a pass, but Mazzetti missed a field goal from the 38. Besana then completed seven of 10 passes to take Oakland from its 21 to the Boston 5 and Shea booted a 22-yard field goal

Former Rose and East Carolina player Mike Brewington, a regular starter at linebacker for the Breakers, was sidelined by a knee injury and did not play in the game.

Wyland Posts Top Score In Diving

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Wendy Wyland rallied from a poor start to post the highest score ever by an American woman in 10-meter platform diving and successfully defend her championship at the National Sports Festival Saturday.

On the first full day of competition in the annual gathering of America's top young amateur athletes, the semifinals in boxing were marked by upsets, as three defending champions were beaten, while national Golden Gloves champ Jesse Benevides and world lightweight champ Pernell Whitaker won.

Wyland, an 18-year-old from Mission Viejo, Calif., qualified for the U.S. team in the Pan American Games by scoring heavily on four of her last five dives to roll up a 459.66 total, three points better than her old U.S. mark.

Her Mission Viejo teammate, Megan Neyer, was second at 410.46, and also earned a Pan Am berth. Diving is one of five sports using the festival to choose Pan Am squads.

Wyland, the world chamnpion on the 10-meter tower, won the event at last year's Sports Festival in Indianapolis and was tops in preliminaries Friday.

On Saturday at the Air Force Academy pool, she fell behind in the early mandatory-dive rounds as Kim Engel, of Miami, Fla., forged into the lead, largely on the strength of her second dive, when she received three perfect scores of 10 and several 9s.

Wyland had just one 10 all day, on her third dive, but exploded in the late going with her optional routine.

"I got behind after Kim came up with those big scoring dives," she said. "But I never felt like I was out of it because my strongest dives are my optionals."

Engel faded in the late rounds and finished seventh of the eight divers.

Ron O'Brien, the Mission Viejo coach generally regarded as the nation's top diving instructor, said the U.S. women's diving team this year could be the deepest since 1968.

"I think our international teams for 1984 are going to be the strongest they've been in a while," he said. He predicted that American women could win at least two medals in the springboard and platform at the Olympics next summer. Mickey King in 1972 and Jennifer Chandler in 1976 were the last U.S. women diving medalists.

Benevides, defending champ at 119 pounds from Corpus Christi, Texas, scored a split decision over Lupe Gutierrez, from Turlock, Calif. And Whitaker, another defender at 132, won a unanimous decision over Robert Byrd, of Dallas.

At the Broadmoor Ice Arena, David Fedor of Tonawanda, N.Y., took the lead in men's figure skating after the short program. In women's figures, the lead was held by Kelly Webster, the hometown favorite from Colorado Springs.

And in women's softball, left-hander Michelle Thomas of Phoenix hurled a no-hitter to pace the South to a 2-0 over the North. Thomas gave up five walks, but only two advanced as far as second base. She struck out three.

Earlier Saturday, America's two top Olympic officials said the nation's athletes will be ready to win in the 1984 Olympic Games, but stiffer competition from more foreign countries will make it tough for the United States to regain the medal supremacy it once enjoyed.

And, said USOC president William E. Simon, the 1980 boycott of the Olympics in Moscow in a political protest will never be repeated by the United States.

Simon told a news conference at the National Sports Festival that it was "possible" for America to regain the overall medal-winning lead in the Winter and Summer Games, which it last had in 1960.

"But since 1960, the rest of the world has risen dramatically in its ability to compete with us in athletics," Simon added.

F. Don Miller, the executive director of the USOC, agreed, and predicted that the 1984 Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia and Summer Games in Los Angeles would produce "a greater distribution of medals among countries than ever before."

Neither Simon nor Miller would predict how many gold, silver and bronze medals U.S. athletes are likely to win next year, although Miller said that "the health of amateur athletics in the United States has never been better."

"Since 1981, the U.S. has won 43 individual and team world championships in Olympics events," he said. "In the four years prior to 1980, we won fewer than 25. That's an indication of the strength and progress of our amateur athletes."

In 1980, the USOC and its athletes agreed to stay away from the Moscow Olympics to protest the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan. The boycott cost many American athletes their only chance at Olympic glory, and Simon said it would never happen again in the USA.

"The situation will not, in my judgment, arise again," he said. "The Olympic Games should not be used for politics."

Simon said the progress of fund-raising for Olympic programs is good.

"We're going to leave an endowment after these Olympic Games for future generations of athletes," he said. "We're in super shape."

The USOC's four-year budget through 1984 is $80.1 million, and all but $20 million has been raised, according to Miller.

Simon also said the Olympic coin program, in which gold and silver coins minted by the U.S. government are sold for $1 to $10 each, already has raised $15.5 million.

"If all the coins were sold, we would raise $600 million, but not in my wildest dreams can I imagine that happening," he said. "A figure of $100 million is what we're counting on."

The money from the coins is divided evenly between the USOC and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

Simon said signs continue to point to a profit from next year's Summer Games in LA, "although it's really too early to tell."

And Miller said that the current festival was expected to produce "a very positive net" income as the result of corporate sponsorships, television rights sales to ABC and ticket sales "that are exceeding budgetary goals." Through Friday, ticket sales to festival events topped $500,000.

Thr first two Sports Festivals were held here in 1978 and 1979, switching to Syracuse, N.Y., in 1981 and Indianapolis last year. The Indianapolis event was the first to show a profit.

Rob Thomas Captures Pee Wee Golf Title

GREENSBORO — Rob Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Thomas of Greenville, won the Pee-Wee division of the Carolina's Junior Tournament Friday at the Irving Park course of the Greensboro Country Club.

The 9-11 age-group played three rounds of nine holes over the three-day period of the tournament, with Thomas recording a 41 the first day, then coming back with an amazing 34 the second round. He finished with a 38 to end at 113, 14 stokes ahead of his closest competitor.

The championship marked the second straight week Thomas has placed high in a tournament. The previous week, he was third in the North State Junior championships held at Raleigh's Wildwood Country Club. In that same tournament, Jim Blount of Greenville took second place in the third flight of the 16-18 age division.

Rob's victory in the Carolina's Junior marks the second time his family has won there. Papa Bobby won the 16-18 age division in 1960. He is now assistant pro at Brook Valley, owned by Rob's grandfather Harold Thomas.

Six From Pitt Co. Qualify For Jr. Olympic Regionals

DURHAM — Six Pitt County youths qualified for the Junior Olympic Regionals, to be held July 8-9 in Athens, Ga., during the state Junior Olympics held in Durham Friday and Saturday.

The top four finishers in each of the age groups below 15-16 and 17-18, advance to the regionals, as far as they can compete. Winners in the two older age groups qualified for the nationals, to be held in Durham later in July.

In the 10 and under girls, Michelle Wiggins took first place in the 100-meter dash in 14.5 seconds to qualify for regionals. Conesh Forbes finished fourth in the high jump at 3-11, failing to qualify.

Tim Cherry took third place in the 10 and under boys' high jump with a leap of 3-10 to qualify. In the same group, the 4x400-meter relay team of David Williams, Brandon Terrell, Nick Cease and Jerome Wiggins, was fifth in 5:20.

Thomas Joyner was a double qualifier in the 11-12 boys group, taking first in the 800-meters in 2:23.9, and first in the triple jump in 32-1. Travis Ebron missed out, finishing fourth in the 800-meters in 2:39.

Gary Moore qualified in the 13-14 boys' shot put with a throw of 47-0, but missed out in the 100-meters, finishing fourth in 11.6. Tyrone Joyner qualified as third in the triple jump in 37-8. Not qualifying were Mike Brown, fifth in the triple jump at 36-0, and Terry Nobles, sixth in the 100-meters in 11.8

Linda Bryant was a triple qualified in the 13-14 girls, winning three events. She took first in the 100-meters in 11.8, first in the 200-meters in 24.9 and first in the long jump in 16-10.

Among the 15-16 girls, the 4x100 relay team, which included Lisa Lang and Kim Payton, finished third in 49.9, and Lang took third in the triple jump in 36-0. Among the 15-16 boys, Jeff Joyner, Keith Payton, Clevon Pittman and Sonny Dyer were third in the 4x800 relay in 8:59.

A finish of first or second was needed in the 16-15 age groups to qualify for nationals.

All of the youths are from Farmville, and were sponsored at the state meet by Pitt County Community Schools and Bond's Sporting Goods.

Pitt Spanks Snow Hill In 20-5 Romp

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

HOLLYWOOD — Randy Warren, Greg Briley, Kenny Kirkland and Rudy Stalls each cracked out four hits to pace a 22-hit attack as Pitt County's Post 39 American Legion baseball team crushed Snow Hill Friday night 20-5.

Darrell Edwards picked up his fourth win of the season against no losses, going the first six-plus innings before finally giving way to relief after giving up four of the five Snow Hill runs — two of them unearned. For the first four innings, Edwards was practically untouchable, allowing only two hits — the only baserunners to that point.

But in the fifth, he began to tire, and an error and three walks helped Snow Hill pick up two unearned runs. He was then chased in the seventh on a double and a fourth walk, but he had done the job well enough.

Pitt scored early, picking up five first inning runs, then adding two in the second and four in the third for an 11-0 lead before Snow Hill got on the board.

Post 13 was hampered by having only nine players present — which meant several players were filling in out of position.

"Not having but nine didn't hurt us," Snow Hill Coach Jim Fulghum said. "They hit the ball well. That's the way it goes sometimes." Fulghum could have been thinking back on an 18-7 victory his team got over Pitt in their last meeting.

"We just got caught when they were sharp with the bats. We just have to shake it off and be ready again." But then, Fulghum did add, "having to shift around a lot did hurt us some."

Pitt Coach Bill Davis was quite pleased with the win. "The two wins over Rocky Mount (Tuesday) got things going for us, but tonight's game was a big victory too," he said. Davis was referring to the fact that the win opened Pitt's lead over the rest of the league to at least 2½ games. Pitt is now 11-3, while Snow Hill, is next at 8-5, tied with Rocky Mount.

Actually, a split in the remaining four games would still allow Pitt to claim top seeding in the playoffs next month, since it has beaten the only teams that could tie it — with a split — twice.

"We had a couple of days off, and I think we were fresh and ready to play," Davis added. "That's the reason we got off to a fast start. I just hope we can keep peaking for the playoffs."

With Edwards keeping Snow Hill in check over the first four innings, Pitt built up an impervious lead, jumping out to a 5-0 lead in the first inning.

Warren led off with the first of two doubles he got down the right field line. Mont Carter followed with a single to center, scoring Warren. Carter stole second and scored on a freak triple by Briley. On the play the ball went into the gap in left center, and leftfielder Jeff Ginn was just able to get a finger tip on the ball, but couldn't catch it. The ball then bounced off him past the charging centerfielder, and by the time it was chased down, Briley was on third and Carter had scored.

Kirkland singled in Briley and stole second, then scored when Stalls singled. Curtis Evans got a hit, but was out on Joey Kennedy's grounder to second. Edwards reached on an error, allowing Stalls to score the fifth run.

Two more crossed i the second. With one down, Doug Coley walked and Briley singled. Kirkland reached on a grounder that got Briley at second, but allowed Coley to score. An error moved Kirkland on to second and he scored on Stalls' single to center.

Another four scored in the fourth to make it 11-0. Briley and Kirkland both singled and Stalls walked to load them up. Evans' fly to left was dropped and by the time it was chased down, all three baserunners had scored and Evans was on third. He then scored on Warren's second double.

Snow Hill finally got on the scoreboard in the fifth. Richie Chase reached on an error and Bobby Carraway and Elmer Dixon both walked. A walk to Nat Norris forced in Chase, and Anthony Russo grounded out, scoring Carraway.

Pitt County added three more in the sixth, making it 14-2. Warren singled and Carter walked. Ken Whitehurst singled off the pitcher's leg and Briley hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Warren. Kirkland singled to right, but Carter was thrown out trying to score from second. Stalls reached on an infield hit, scoring Whitehurst, and Evans singled in Kirkland.

Snow Hill then picked up three more in the seventh. Dixon doubled to right and Rusty Murphy walked. That brought on Jack Wall in relief of Edwards, and Norris greeted him with a triple to center. The hit, a routine single, took a high hop over the head of Warren to roll to the fence, scoring both Dixon and Murphy. Russo then grounded out scoring Norris with the final Snow Hill run.

Pitt picked up six more in the eighth. Briley beat out a slow roller to first and Kirkland singled. Stalls walked and with one down, Troy Hudson singled in Briley. Mike Kinley walked, forcing in Kirkland, and a walk to Bobby Buie brought in Stalls. Whitehurst then hit a triple to left — in which the ball again bounced over the fielder, scoring three runs — and finally closed out the scoring.

In addition to the four four-hit batters, Evans and Whitehurst each had two hits for Pitt. Dixon led Snow Hil with two.

In other action Friday night, Wilson stormed past Edenton, 18-6, and Rocky Mount downed Kinston, 10-6.

Little League

Optimists 11
Kiwanis 8

The Optimists scored three times in the top of the sixth, then held off the Kiwanis to gain an 11-8 North State Little League victory Friday afternoon.

The Optimists scored first, getting three runs in the top of the first, all on a homer by Nelson Galloway. The Kiwanis came back with one in the bottom of the inning. The Optimists then added two in the second, while the Kiwanis came up with one to make it 5-2. Another Optimist run scored in the fourth, while the Kiwanis came up with two. The Optimists then added two in the fifth, while the Kiwanis scored three times.

That made it 8-7 for the Optimists.

They then put the game away with three in the sixth. Shawn Griffin opened the inning with a double and moved up on a wild pitch and scored on a balk. With one down, Galloway walked and stole second. Then, with two away, Terrence Smith singled in Galloway and scored on Ken Pearson's hit with the final run.

Griffin, Galloway, Kendall Hardee and Pearson each had two hits for the Optimists, while no one had more than one for the Kiwanis.

Exchange 13
Moose 8

The Exchange rolled up a 13-8 victory over the Moose Friday in the Tar Heel Little League, winning its third straight game.

Exchange picked up five runs in the second inning, then saw the Moose rally for four in the third.

In the fourth, however, the Exchange scored eight times to put the game on ice. Chris Bland led off with a double and moved up on a wild pitch. He scored when Duaine Williams reached on an error. Williams stole second and Malcolm Wilson walked. Doug Hill reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Williams, and Darryl Moore hit a three-run home.

Maurice Battle kept it going with a walk, stealing second. Kevin Sugg then walked and Bland doubled to score both Battle and Sugg. Williams doubled in Bland with the final run.

The Moose came back with four in the fourth, but never effectively rallied.

Planters Bank 12
Everette's 10

Planters Bank, regular season champion in the Babe Ruth League, wound up the season Friday night by outlasting Everette's Pest Control, 12-10.

Evertte's picked up two in the first, but Planters came up with five in the third to move ahead. Everette's rallied for three in the fourth, tying it at 5-5, only to see Planters move back out with five more in the bottom of the fourth.

Everette's scored once in the fifth, then scored four more in the sixth to tie it once again, 10-10.

Planters then pushed over the winning runs in the bottom of the sixth. Tom Taylor reached on a fielder's choice and Tyrone Jones was safe on an error. Jason Galloway singled in Taylor, and an error allowed Jones to score.

Chris Stokes, Rodney Harris and Jimmy Gillihan each had two hits for Planters, while Robbie Ehrmann had three and Axel Smith and Tommy Rosche each had two for Everette's.

Pepsi-Cola 17
Brown & Wood 6

Pepsi-Cola romped to a 17-6 victory over Brown & Wood Friday night in the final regular season Babe Ruth League game of the year.

The league opens its post-season double elimination tournament on Sunday at Guy Smith Stadium.

Brown & Wood pushed over two runs in the top of the first, then added two more in the second. After Pepsi scored once in the third, B&W added two more in the fourth for a 6-1 lead.

But all that vanished in the fifth as Pepsi exploded for 13 big runs to push ahead and out of reach. Tracy Johnston walked and stole second, moving to third on an error. Hank Keeping walked and both scored on a double by Sterling Edwards, who was thrown out trying to stretch it to a triple. Kelly Parisher reached on an error and Maurice Wilson singled. Earl Hines then walked to load them up.

A walk to Brian Walsh forced in Parisher, and another to Neal Bullock brought in Wilson. Mitch Phillips then singled in Hines. Johnston, back up, doubled to score two runs, and Edwards walked, reloading the bases. Parisher singled in two, and Wilson singled with an error scoring Edwards and Parisher. Hines walked and two more errors allowed the final two runs to score.

Phillips, Johnston, Keeping and Wilson each had two hits for Pepsi, while Mike Hathaway had a pair for B&W.

Pitt Babe Ruth

Chicod 10
Farmville 5

FARMVILLE — Chicod wound up the regular season in the Pitt County Babe Ruth League with a 10-5 victory over Farmville. The victory left Chicod, which had already clinched the league title, with a perfect 10-0 mark for the year.

Steve Mills and Michael Elks each had three hits in five trips for Chicod, while Randy Mills went 2-4. Brian Huber was 3-5 for Farmville, while Mark Wooten went 2-3.

Supreme Court Is Next Stop

DENVER (AP) — The legal battle over the control of college football television rights will move on to the U.S. Supreme Court, now that a federal appeals court has rejected the NCAA's request for a rehearing on a decision that voided television contracts worth more than $280 million because the NCAA plan violated anti-trust laws.

NCAA President John Toner said the group would appeal the case to the U.S. Supreme Court following notice from the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in Denver, that it had rejected the NCAA's petition for a rehearing of the ruling.

The appeals court's three-judge panel that heard the case rejected the rehearing request on Thursday by the same 2-1 margin of its original ruling. With three judges not participating, the court then turned down, by a 4-1 margin, a request that the case be heard by the entire court.

Judge James Barrett, of Cheyenne, Wyo., the dissenter in the original ruling, case the lone vote in favor of a rehearing.

"We were not surprised that they turned down the request for a rehearing," Toner said. "We knew it was a longshot because they had already acted."

A lawsuit challenging the NCAA television program was filed by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia athletic association.

U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga then ruled the NCAA plan violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and issued an injunction voiding $281.1 million worth of television contracts with ABC, CBS, and the Turner Broadcasting System.

The NCAA appealed to the Denver court and obtained a stay of Burciaga's ruling until the appeals court could make a ruling. Toner said the NCAA will ask the court for a stay until it can ask the Supreme Court to hear the case.

If the court turns down the request for a stay, the NCAA can then seek a stay from the Supreme Court.

"We basically have seven days to attempt to get a continuance of the stay while we seek (an appeal to the Supreme Court)," said Dave Cawood, assistant executive director of the NCAA's television programming on Friday. "The stay we currently have is in effect until the case is mandated back to the district court."

Cawood said it is impossible to speculate if the high court would agree to hear the case.

Charles Neinas, executive director of the College Football Association, said there was still time for his group to put together a television deal for this year. The CFA first raised the challenge to the NCAA's control of football television rights in 1981.

"The 10th Circuit decision was expected and if the NCAA TV plan is inoperative for 1983, the CFA stands ready implement the contingency plan approved by its membership earlier this month," Neinas said.

Magadan Inks Pact

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's David Magadan, college baseball's top slugger who led his team to a second place finish in the College World Series, will join the New York Mets Class A farm club in Columbia, S.C. Sunday.

Magadan signed a contract with the Mets Thursday night after having turned down to earlier offers by the team.

Magadan's mother, Mrs. Alice Magadan of Tampa, Fla., said Friday her son agreed to the contract Thursday night. Magadan traveled from Tampa to the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa Friday and could not be reached for comment.

Mrs. Magadan didn't disclose the amount of her son's contract, but she said he was "very well pleased" with it.

Alabama baseball coach Barry Shollenberger said Magadan called him to tell him about the contract.

"David didn't mention money; he just told me he signed," Shollenberger said.

Magadan, a junior with a year of eligibility left, was picked by the Mets in the second round of the free agent draft. He batted .525, tops in the nation, and knocked in 95 runs in leading Alabama to a 46-11 record and second place in the College World Series.

"I felt that since David was drafted as high as he was, it was only a matter of time before he would go ahead and reach an agreement," Shollenberger said. "We've been prepared for it, and we wish him the best. He's given the University of Alabama three outstanding years.

Jordan Defeats Lloyd

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A string of success 12 years in the building was snapped at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships when Chris Evert Lloyd became a casualty of the rocket serves of Kathy Jordan.

For a dozen years, a total of 34 Grand Slam events, on grass, on clay, on cement, Lloyd had reached the semi-final round.

Until now.

"It hasn't sunk in yet that I have beaten Chris Evert Lloyd," Jordan said after disposing of the three-time Wimbledon champion 6-1, 7-6 Friday. "But I went out there with great determination and a good attitude, so I knew I would play well."

Lloyd "went out there" feeling ill. She had summoned a tournament doctor to her London home in the middle of the night because of persistent vomiting. However, tournament officials said, she did not ask for the match to be postponed.

"I don't want to make any excuses," she said after the defeat, which halted her consecutive Grand Slam tournament championships at three. "Kathy played great tennis and I got her on an 'on' day while I was off."

One other seeded player was upset in the world's premier grass court tournament at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club. Carling Bassett of Canada, at 15 the youngest player in the tournament this year, eliminated No. 14 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary 6-3, 7-6.

But third-seeded Andrea Jaeger, No. 7 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, No. 10 Billie Jean King, No. 11 Barbara Potter and No. 15 Kathy Rinaldi were joined in the fourth round by Lisa Bonder.

The women's defending champion and No. 1 seed, Martina Navratilova, was scheduled to play Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia today.

In the men's singles, top-seeded Jimmy Connors and three other seeds remaining in the top half of the draw captured their third-round matches. Connors defeated Sweden's Henrik Sundstrom 6-1, 7-6, 6-2; No. 12 Kevin Curren of South Africa eliminated Rodney Harmon 6-4, 7-5, 6-2; No. 13 Brian Gottfried stopped Brazil's Joao Soares 7-6, 6-2, 6-2, and No. 16 Tim Mayotte ousted Brian Teacher 7-6, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Also winning their way into the fourth round were Mel Purcell, New Zealand's Chris Lewis, Nduka Odizor of Nigeria and John McCurdy of Australia.

The fourth-round pairings will send Connors against Curren, Mayotte against McCurdy, Odizor against Lewis and Gottfried against Purcell.

In the women's draw, Jordan next will face Rinaldi, King will play Turnbull, Jaeger will meet Bassett and Potter will take on Bonder.

Lloyd, seven times ranked No. 1 in the world, said she wasn't too ill to play.

"I wouldn't have walked out on court if I didn't think I was fit enough to perform," she said, then later admitting:

"I was below par in concentration, but that had nothing to do with the pressure on me. I always feel I can deal with that. I have had to deal with pressure all my tennis life."

But there was added pressure Friday — the pressure to return Jordan's cannonball serve.

"I was serving 100 percent better against Chris than I ever have," Jordan said, "and I was able to mix things up, making her unsure of where to return the ball."

Jordan ripped through the first set, Lloyd holding serve only in the third game. But, just as quickly, the tide turned and Lloyd won the first four games of the second set.

"I am a little bit surprised," Jordan said, "surprised that I won the first set so easily. I wasn't surprised to be down four sets to love in the second set."

Then, just as quickly, the momentum swung back to Jordan.

"I had 4-0 and 5-3 leads in the second set, and it is uncharacteristic of me to let the other player back when I am in such a position," Lloyd said. "At 5-3 she broke my serve and she was really eager, jumping up and down.

"Her body language showed that she was still going to continue to play well."

And she did.

Jordan won the next three games to take a 6-5 lead. Then, when Lloyd held serve in the 12th game, the two went into a tiebreaker.

It was all Jordan. She raced out to a 4-0 lead, then increased her advantage to 5-2 and serving.

She put away a forehand volley off a service return to run the score to 6-2. Then, on match point, she served a service winner. After 11 consecutive trips to the semifinals here at Wimbledon, Lloyd failed to get past the third round.

Bassett produced the second upset of the day by running Temesvari from sideline to sideline. The Canadian was in control all the way as her father, John Bassett Jr., majority owner of the Tampa Bay Bandits of the United States Football League, watched from the stands.

McCurdy made Wimbledon history by becoming the first "lucky loser" to reach the fourth round of the men's singles. He lost in the qualifying round, but got into the main draw when 10th-seeded Jimmy Arias had to withdraw from the tournament because of an injury.

The Australian gave up tennis two years ago when he couldn't afford to travel to Europe. He began to play Australian Rules football, but decided that, despite the cost, tennis was his game.

Garvey Seeks Different Challenge

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Ed Garvey says his work as director of the National Football League Players' Association amounted to spending 10 percent of his time as a lawyer and 90 percent as a labor leader and administrator.

But that's all changing now with his new job as deputy attorney general of Wisconsin.

Garvey, whose name became a household word in 1982 during the strike of the NFLPA, is in Asheville this week at the annual convention of the National Association for Attorneys General.

Garvey said he changed jobs because he wanted a different type of challenge, adding that he had achieved all he wanted with the players association.

"I wanted to get into the political end of public service," Garvey said. "I have a great concern for the issues facing the public today.

His new job does present nearly a complete career change from what he had been doing since 1971.

"It's being a lawyer full-time," he said. "When I was with the players association, that was 10 percent lawyer but the remaining 90 percent was as a labor leader and administrator.

"I'm just getting started," he said. "There's a wide variety of issues, from acid rain to defective automotive parts to civil rights. I've got to be better oriented in the attorney general's office before I can make up an agenda on what issues are important to me."

He said the main issue in last year's strike was money.

"The choice was between the super-rich owners and the players," he said. "The question was where the money was going to go — in the owners' pockets or the players' pockets."

When asked about criticisms that players are overpaid to start with, Garvey replied that the strike established "a medical bill of rights" for the players. He also said the contract forces the owners to put money back into the teams.

Although he called the strike successful and said he would do it again, Garvey added that he would do it a little differently.

"I underestimated the power of the owners," he said. "They had a lot of influence over the media and also had an endless amount of money if you wanted to fight them."

Garvey said the media in general gave the union a fair shake in coverage of the strike. He did say, however, that columnists and the commentators with the television networks were somewhat unfair.

"(The networks) have a special interest," he said. "When players have a strike, they're taking a hefty bite out of CBS, NBC and ABC. They get $4 for every $1 they spend on sports."

Juantorena Returns To Form Of Past Triumphs

Three years ago, the powerful, long-striding Cuban finished a badly beaten fifth in the 400-meter race, an event he had won — along with the 800 — in the 1976 Olympics. The 400 and 800 double never had been accomplished in Olympic history, and Juantorena returned to Cuba a national hero.

In 1977, Juantorena's career hit another high when he set a world record of 1 minute, 43.44 seconds for the 800. But not long after that, he was stricken with sciatica and tendinitis, missed most of the 1978 and 1979 track and field seasons, and was unprepared for the 1980 Moscow Games.

But Juantorena appears to be back — not as strong or as fast as he was, but still an imposing figure.

In a rare appearance in the United States, the 32-year-old Juantorena finished a coasting second Friday in a semi-final heat of the 800 in the Los Angeles Times-TAC International Summer Games.

He was clocked in a leisurely 1:48.94, behind Johnny Gray of the United States (1:48.85). But Juantorena was satisfied — with his performance and with the new $500,000 track in the Los Angeles Coliseum, the site of next year's Olympic track and field competition.

"Just for qualifying, this was a very easy race," he said. "This is a really, really marvelous track.

"It is very fast and soft ... for my old legs."

Juantorena's aging legs will get their next test on the track Sunday in the 800 final. Fourteen finals were scheduled today and the remaining 16 Sunday.

Prior to the international meet on both days, the United States was to face East Germany in a dual meet.

This is the first track and field competition in the Coliseum in nine years, but its opening day drew little fan response. Less than 1,000 watched in the 92,000-seat stadium.

Juantorena said he was preparing for only the 800 in this year's World Championships at Helsinki, Finland, and the Pan American Games at Caracas, Venezuela, both in August. Next year, he plans to run the 1,500 meters and possibly the 800 in the Olympics.

He ran his first 1,500 recently in a slow 3:45 — and wasn't happy with the distance.

"It's too long and very difficult," he said.

Why then, is he shooting for the 1,500 for the '84 Games?

"I'm getting older and losing speed, but I'm increasing my resistance," he said, adding he hoped to have his time down to about 3:35 in 1984.

Juantorena also said he was "enjoying running more now, because I'm fighting against age."

Was he winning the fight?

"Yes," he said, laughing.

Friday's winners were Bulgaria's Maria Petkova in the women's discus with an American all-comers record of 232 feet, 1 inch; Cuba's Mayra Vila in the women's javelin at 208-3; Japan's Shigenobu Murofushi, who plans to attend Long Beach (Calif.) City College in the fall, in the men's hammer throw at 241-4; Ron Waynes, a recent graduate of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, in the men's long jump at 25-11, and Japan's Shuichi Yoneshige, who was celebrating his 22nd birthday, in the men's 10,000 in 29:34.69.

Lightnin' Tops Slickers, 5-2

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Stuart Lee made two goals and an assist to boost the Carolina Lightnin' to a 5-2 victory over the Oklahoma City Slickers Friday in an American Soccer League game at Memorial Stadium.

Carolina, now 6-6, moves into second place in the ASL's Eastern Division.

Tony Suarez, Kevin Fouser and Miguel Avila also scored for the Lightnin' in a game marking the most goals made by a Carolina team since 1981.

The Lightnin' led 4-1 at halftime, but Oklahoma City, 4-10, made it 4-2 midway through the second half. Carolina put the game out of reach moments later when Lee scored his second goal on an assist by Suarez.

Panthers, Blitz To Decide USFL Central Division Race

By The Associated Press

The Michigan Panthers, who have won nine of their last 11 games, visit the Chicago Blitz Sunday in a United States Football League game which should decide the Central Division title.

Three Central clubs are still in the race for three of the remaining playoff berths. Chicago tops the division with an 11-5 record, followed by Michigan and Tampa Bay, each 10-6.

Philadelphia, winner of the Atlantic Division, is the only team set for the July 9-10 playoffs. The three division winners and a wild-card team make the playoffs.

Seven teams are still in the playoff picture heading into the next-to-last weekend of the regular-season. In addition to the Central leaders, Oakland, Boston, Denver and Los Angeles are still alive.

In Sunday's other game, Los Angeles visits Washington. Tampa Bay hosts Denver in the Monday night game.

Michigan beat Chicago in their first meeting 17-12. The Panthers have the second-best offense and the top offensive line in the league.

The Blitz will have veteran Bobby Scott at quarterback, having lost Greg Landry and Tim Koegel to injuries. Michigan will be going against the league's top-rated offense.

"I definitely think we are one of the top teams in the league now," says Michigan quarterback Bobby Hebert, a rookie from Northwestern Louisiana. "We are a much better team today than we were earlier in the season."

Johnnie Walton is expected to be back at quarterback for Boston, 10-6, against Oakland, the Pacific leader with an 8-8 mark. It's a must-win situation for Boston. An Oakland victory would eliminate Denver, 7-9.

Good Time To Buy A Lifetime License — Lifetime licenses have always been a good buy for sportsmen, but now they are a better buy than ever! Current combination and hunting licenses expire August 1, and fishing licenses expire July 1. License increases will be in effect for all new annual hunting and fishing licenses. However, the price of lifetime licenses has not been increased.

"This is an excellant time for sportsmen to invest in a lifetime license," said Vernon Bevill, executive director of the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission. "For example, the price of a new sportsman's license is $30, so a lifetime sportsman's license will pay for itself in only 10 years. In addition to the convenience a lifetime license offers — plus protection against from possible future license increases — the revenues from the sale of lifetime licenses are placed in the Wildlife Endowment Fund and will help finance wildlife conservation for future generations from the interest generated from the fund. Buying a lifetime license in one way to do something good for yourself and wildlife at the same time."

Applications for lifetime licenses may be obtained from license agents or Wildlife Commission employees. The categories of lifetime licenses are as follows:

•Lifetime sportsman's licenses for persons 12 years of age and older cost $300. Lifetime sportsman's licenses are also available for youngsters under 12 for $200, and infants under one-year of age for $100. These licenses include all hunting privileges, all hook-and-line fishing licenses are not included in lifetime sportsman's licenses, however.

•Lifetime hunting licenses cost $150 and include only basic hunting license requirement. All special-use licenses — big-game, primative weapons, game-lands licenses — must still be purchased annually.

•Lifetime fishing licenses cost $150 and include only basic hook-and-line fishing license requirements. Special-use licenses — including trout, special-device fishing and game-lands licenses for trout fishing — must still be purchased annually.

For more information on lifetime licenses and the Wildlife Endowment Fund contact the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, 512 N. Salisbury St., Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Quail Unlimited Makes History And Saves Habitat — Recently, history was made for quail in Georgia, Illinois, North Carolina, Missouri and Kansas. Quail Unlimited chapters began their habitat improvement projects on game management lands. Literally all the states of the Southeast now have active Quail Unlimited chapters established, and some as far north as Iowa and Michigan. These chapters all share a common goal — improve each state's quail population through funds for habitat management. Quail Unlimited national headquarters in conjunction with its chapters is planting partridge peas, wildgame sorgham, sasbania, game bird peas, corn and millet. In some areas where approved and management plans support the concept, they will conduct controlled burning to thin the large undermove about and search for seeds and new greenery s it appears.

The initial groundwork and promotion for this national and state fund-raising effort by Quail Unlimited chapters started with the sale of Quail Conservation Stamps and Prints.

Recently, Quail Unlimited announced the release of its 1983 quail stamp/print by Richard Plasschaert. The design is a setting of two Bobwhite males and a female. The stamps sell for $5 each, while the signed and numbered prints with matching stamps sell for $130.

The sale of these stamps and prints to collectors around the nation has allowed Quail Unlimited to expand its programs and fund-raising efforts to every state that has potential for quail populations and areas that need habitat evaluation.

While helping with the QU effort, collectors can realize an investment that will return their money many times over as the demand for the prints to fill a collector's set grows. It is expected that before the year is out the first quail stamp/print will have more than tripled in value if the presidence set by other similar conservation programs holds true.

For more information on Quail Unlimited, the stamp/print program or to start a chapter in your area, write Quail Unlimited National Headquarters, P.O. Box 10041, Augusta, Ga. 30903 or phone (803) 637-6018 and ask for D. Rhoden.

Fishing report — The news this week comes from the Swanquarter area of the Pamlico Sound. Flounder and speckled trout have been biting well on stingray grubs fished close to shore. Early morning and late in the afternoon seem to be the best.

Small croaker aer also being caught on fresh shrimp. Offshore, the wahoo, tuna and dolphin have been active, with a few billfish reported.

It seems as though the summer dog days have already set in and fishing for the inland freshwater species will be reserved for early morning and late afternoon trips.

Braves Sweep Twinbill From Reds

Carlton Takes Strikeout Lead

By The Associated Press

With six strikeouts against the New York Mets Friday night, the Philadelphia lefthander passed Ryan for the all-time lead. Carlton has 3,551 lifetime strikeouts; Ryan, of the Houston Astros, has 3,548.

Carlton's teammate, Joe Morgan, says the silent lefty will win the challenge.

"He's going to pitch longer than Ryan," Morgan said after Carlton had pitched the Phillies to a 6-3 victory over New York. "Steve's in great physical shape. You should see his workouts."

Reputed to be sheer misery, Carlton's workouts precede each day's game in the Phillies training room. At 38, two years older than Ryan, Carlton "should be around another six to seven years," Morgan said.

"Ryan won't last that long," he said.

Ryan first broke Walter Johnson's 55-year-old strikeout mark on April 27. Since then he has been passed by Carlton, tied, back in the lead and passed again. The Astros right-hander admits he probably won't be able to pitch until he's 40, expecting Carlton to eventually wrest the lead from him for good.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati 3-0 and 10-5, Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 8-2, Montreal edged Chicago 4-3, San Francisco blanked San Diego 5-0 and Los Angeles beat San Francisco 7-2.

Carlton worked into the ninth inning, leaving Al Holland to clean up a no-out, two-on jam. Carlton, 8-8, gave up seven hits and walked three, getting a 4-0 lead in the first inning on homers by Bob Dernier and Gary Matthews.

Keith Hernandez, traded 10 days ago to the Mets from St. Louis, drove in two of New York's runs with a single, then relayed a rare comment from Carlton, who does not talk to sports writers.

After singling in the eighth inning, Hernandez said Carlton told him, "We have something in common. We both have been traded by the Cardinals."

"Funny thing is," Hernandez said, "we only live two miles from each other in St. Louis, and this is the first time he's ever spoken to me since we've been in the majors."

Braves 3-10, Reds 0-5

The Braves came within one out of posting a double shutout in this sweep of Cincinnati. Craig McMurtry pitched a three-hit shutout in the opener for his first victory in his last six starts, and Ken Dayley sailed into the ninth inning of the nightcap with a five-hit shutout before the Reds exploded.

Johnny Bench hit a two-out, two-run double, and Alan Knicely's two-run double chased Dayley. Steve Bedrosian then yielded a run-scoring single to Duane Walker before getting the final out.

Biff Pocoroba drove in four runs for Atlanta in the nightcap, including two in the Braves' five-run ninth with a double. Atlanta scored all three of its runs in the fourth inning of the opener, keyed by a Glenn Hubbard homer.

Pirates 8, Cardinals 2

Utility infielder Jim Morrison drove in three runs with a two-run double and a homer, helping Pittsburgh win its sixth straight. The Cardinals, meanwhile, have lost four in a row and seven of nine.

Pittsburgh hammered four home runs, including three in the seventh inning. Morrison, Bill Madlock and Brian Harper hit solo shots in the seventh, and Lee Lacy had a two-run homer in the Pittsburgh third.

Jim Bibby worked five innings to win his first game as a starter since Sept. 22, 1981, and Manny Sarmiento blanked St. Louis over the final four innings.

Expos 4, Cubs 3

Andre Dawson drove in two runs with a solo homer and sacrifice fly, and Steve Rogers held Chicago to seven hits over 81-3 innings as the Cubs lost their sixth straight. Dawson took over the NL lead in RBI with 56.

Giants 5, Padres 0

Mike Krukow pitched the first two-hitter of his career, handing the Padres their first loss in seven games. The only hits off Krukow were by Luis Salazar, a double in the first and a single in the third.

John Rabb had two doubles for the Giants, scoring a run in San Francisco's four-run second and driving in a run in the eighth.

Dodgers 7, Astros 2

Los Angeles ended a four-game losing streak and a two-week batting slump with four home runs. Pedro Guerrero, Steve Yeager, Steve Sax and Dusty Baker each homered to back Burt Hooton to his sixth straight winning decision.

Hooton worked seven innings, scattering six hits for his seventh victory in nine decisions.

The game was stopped briefly in the seventh inning when both benches cleared after Dodgers center fielder Ken Landreaux was hit by a pitch from Frank LaCorte, both of whom were ejected.

Sutton Slips Into Elite 3,000 Strikeout Club

By The Associated Press

While Nolan Ryan with his blazing fastball and Steve Carlton and his snapping slider have been swapping the major league career strikeout back and forth lately, smokeless Don Sutton has quietly slipped into some pretty elite company.

When Cleveland's Alan Bannister missed a 3-2 pitch in the eighth inning Friday night, the 39-year-old Sutton became the eighth pitcher in history to accumulate 3,000 strikeouts. He finished with eight for the night and 3,001 and a three-hitter after hurling six hitless innings as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Indians 6-2.

"I don't think I'm a strikeout pitcher," Sutton said after the 263rd victory of his 18-year career, but his first since May 1. "That might sound kind of stupid sitting here on 3,000, but a lot of pitchers have better fastballs, curveballs, sliders and changeups. Maybe my greatest asset is control."

Since Sutton has been a double-figure winner in each of his previous 17 campaigns — 15 with Los Angeles and two with Houston in the National League before the Brewers acquired him last Aug. 30 — any milestone he reaches isn't too much of a surprise.

If you want a shock, though, look at the American League standings, which show the Texas Rangers all alone atop the West Division and the Toronto Blue Jays tied with Baltimore for the lead in the AL East.

Those stunning developments came about when the Rangers swept a doubleheader from the Oakland A's 6-5 and 6-2, while the California Angels lost to the Kansas City Royals 11-3, and the Blue Jays downed the Seattle Mariners 4-2, while the Orioles were being swamped by the Detroit Tigers 9-0.

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox nipped the New York Yankees 5-4 and the Minnesota Twins defeated the Chicago White Sox 5-1.

The only hits Cleveland managed off Sutton were home runs by Andre Thornton in the seventh and ninth inning and a single by Julio Franco in the eighth. Cecil Cooper gave Sutton all the support he needed with a two-run homer in the first inning and an RBI triple in the third.

"I was aware they didn't have any hits, but I wasn't aware of a no-hitter, if that makes any sense," said Sutton, who has pitched five one-hitters and nine two-hitters. "A no-hitter wasn't an objective. To pitch a no-hitter, you have to be very lucky and very overpowering. I'm inside the strike zone too much. I'm going to give hitters opportunities to hit the ball."

Rangers 6-6, A's 5-2

At Arlington, Mike Smithson and Charlie Hough pitched complete-game victories for the Rangers, who have won four games in a row and 11 of their last 15. Texas won the opener when Larry Parrish led off the ninth inning with a triple and Pete O'Brien singled one out later, while Smithson survived a four-run first inning. Buddy Bell and Billy Sample homered for the Rangers.

In the nightcap, Bill Stein drove in three runs with a single and a double and Hough allowed seven hits and blanked the A's until the ninth as Texas spoiled the major league debut of Oakland starter Curt Young.

Blue Jays 4, Mariners 2

At Seattle, Cliff Johnson's two-run single highlighted a four-run Toronto third inning and Luis Leal scattered six hits, while handing Seattle its eighth straight loss. The Blue Jays trailed 1-0 when Willie Upshaw opened the third inning with a single and one out

Skipper Will Make Boat Faster

Liberty Tops Courageous

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Finishing the June trials for the America's Cup with the best record, Liberty skipper Dennis Conner's next move is to make the blood-red boat move even faster.

Standing on the dock Friday after dispatching American rival Courageous three straight, the San Diego, Calif., drapery manufacturer said the three weeks before the start of observation trials will be spent making Liberty's stablemate, 1980 Cup winner Freedom, faster in light air.

"Then we'll test the two boats," Conner said. "We're playing leapfrog."

Liberty dropped its first three races in the week-long trials, all in light air, then came on strong as wind picked up for the closing races.

Liberty won Friday by margins of 42 seconds, 32 seconds and 10 seconds, respectively.

Skipper John Kolius said he had trouble steering Courageous after the bolts holding the rudder to the upper bearing sheared off before start of the first race.

Courageous and Defender went head to head Saturday to wind up the June trials. Liberty had the day off.

The other two boats can't match Liberty's record of seven wins and four losses. Courageous stands at 4-5 while Defender is 4-6.

While Conner's first worry is winning the right to defend the New York Yacht Club's 132-year hold on yachting's top prize, he is keeping an eye on Australia II, which piled up two more victories for a record of 9-0.

Australia II's towering dominance in the foreign trials has apparently spurred the British syndicate behind Victory '83 to experiment with attempts to match the Down Under boat's secret keel design.

Sutton Slips In. . .

later Alfredo Griffin singled. Damaso Garcia doubled to score Upshaw with the tying run and loser Matt Young walked Dave Collins and struck out Garth Iorg before Johnson ripped his decisive single. Barry Bonnell doubled to score Collins.

Royals 11, Angels 3

At Kansas City, Don Slaught drove in four runs and Frank White hit a three-run homer as the Royals broke Tommy John's hex over them. Slaught doubled home two runs and White homered during a seven-run seventh inning when the Royals erased a 3-2 California lead with six consecutive hits. White's homer, his sixth of the year, capped the outburst. John was 4-0 against Kansas City last year and 14-4 overall, but the Royals chased him with four consecutive hits to open the seventh, including RBI doubles by Willie Aikens and Slaught.

Tigers 9, Orioles 0

At Baltimore, the Tigers rapped out 14 hits, including home runs by Chet Lemon and Enos Cabell, and got five-hit pitching from Dan Petry. Lemon hit his ninth homer in the fourth inning following a leadoff single by Glenn Wilson, while Cabell's third homer ignited a three-run first-inning off loser Dennis Martinez, 4-11, that included RBI singles by Larry Herndon and Wilson. Herndon had four hits in the game, but Lou Whitaker's 18-game hitting streak came to an end.

Red Sox 5, Yankees 4

At Boston, veteran reliever Bob Stanley put down a seventh-inning rally and went on to earn a career-high 15th save as Boston snapped a three-game losing streak and won for only the third time in the last 13 home games. The Yankees took a 2-0 lead in the third inning, which included Don Mattingly's first major league homer, but Boston picked up an unearned run on Wade Boggs' RBI double in its half of the third and went ahead in the fifth on singles by Gary Allenson and Marty Barrett, a walk, Dwight Evans' sacrifice fly and a two-out single by Jim Rice. The Red Sox added two more and chased loser Dave Righetti in the sixth.

Twins 5, White Sox 1

At Chicago, Gary Ward had three hits, including a two-run homer, and Al Williams allowed four hits in seven innings as Minnesota snapped Chicago's five-game winning streak. Rookie Ron Kittle blasted his league-leading 17th homer in the fifth inning for the Chicago run.

Greenville Country Club

Reynolds May Appreciation Day will be held Wednesday at the Greenville Country Club. A 1 p.m. Superball Tournament will kickoff the afternoon, followed by a cocktail party and dinner that evening. The field for the golf tournament is full, pro Gordon Fulp reports.

In a recent Turkey Convention, first place went to Joe Davis, Steve Horne, Ray Boleman and John Bell. Second was won by Reg Akin, Ken Hite, Garry Pegram and Virgil Clark, with Ed Atkinson, Tom Harris, Richard Holloman and Kurt Fickling taking third. Fourth was won by Bill Mitchum, Skip Bright, Frank Saunders and Wiley Corbett, followed by Marc Camnitz, Jon Rogers, L.D. Thomas and Ed Leahy in fifth.

First place in a Ladies Day event went to Babara Ellis, while second was won by Gail Blanton, with Marge Parrish in third.

A Captain's Choice for children will be held on Monday. A 9 a.m. shotgun start will be held. On July 1, Double Elimination Day will be held during Ladies Day.

Junior-Senior golf for adults and children will be held on July 7. Details are posted in the pro shop. A pro-junior tournament will be held on July 21.

Brook Valley Country Club

Brook Valley completed its Men's Club Championship recently. Jim Hillard took the championship flight with a 142, while Whitney Miller III was second with a 145. Miller defeated Craig Davies in a playoff to take second.

In the first flight, Charles Mitchell fired a 153 to win, while Troy Riddle was second with 156. Jeff Cargile took the third flight with a 150, while Willard Wilson had a 151 to finish second. Horace Topping was the third flight winner with a 152, followed by Jack Mewborn at 158.

In the fourth flight, Charles Vincent had a 148 to win, followed by Doug O'Bryant at 158. Dean Briley won the fifth flight with a 163, trailed by Dorson White at 165. Roy Thompson had a 166 to take the sixth flight, with Billy Morton next at 172.

Miriam Martin won the first flight with a 191, with Dorothy Wooles finishing second at 195. Susan Cox won the second flight with a 203, while Susan Stanfield was second with a 208.

The 8-9 age group of the Junior Championship went to Ben Evans with a nine-hole score of 67. The 10-11 age group went to Teague Tripp with a 78, while Rob Thomas was second with a 79. Brian Mitchell had an 83 to win the 12-13 age group, with Greg Hallow second at 85. For 14-15 boys, Hunter Clark was first with an 81, while Lee Allen was second at 85. Pete McCurdy won the 16-18 group with a 74, followed by John Jordan with a 78.

In a recent Jack and Jill, the team of Ben Harrison Jr., Susan Stanfield, and Peggy and Glenn Blancett took first with a 31. Second place, with a 33, went to Ginny and Spencer Hill and Melina Lail and Jack Wall, while five teams tied for third with a 34.

The Junior City Championship will be held Tuesday at 9 a.m. at Brook Valley. This involves juniors from Brook Valley and Greenville Country Club. Deadline for signups is 6 p.m. tonight at either pro shop. Starting times will be posted Monday in the pro shop.

Several golfers recently turned in their best scores, Kathy Griffin had her best, a 45-43—88, while Bill Bellesheim had a 39-38—77.

Indian Trails Country Club

Indian Trails Country Club held its first Invitational Tournament recently. First place went to Falling Creek's Joel Harris, who won a playoff with Jodie Dean of Goldsboro Country Club. Both finished the two-day event with a 146. Third went to Ray Wooten of Indian Trails with a 149.

The junior clinic gets underway on Monday and runs through Friday, staring at 9 a.m. each day. A cookout and tournament will be held on Friday.

Timing Is Crucial In House Sales

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As in many other matters, good timing can be crucial in managing your personal financial affairs.

Consider the tax break available to anyone who sells a home at a profit and buys another. The law allows the capital gains tax on the profit from the old house to be deferred, provided that two simple tests are met.

First, the amount paid for the new home must be at least as much as the price received for the old one, after subtracting such costs as commissions paid to a broker and fix-up expenses involved in getting it ready to sell.

Second, you must buy and move into the new house as your principal residence within two years either before or after the old one is sold.

Fair enough. But, points out Prentice-Hall, an Englewood Cliffs, N.J.-based publisher of tax information, anyone making such a move should be aware that the two-year limit is absolute.

Even in special cases, the Internal Revenue Service has permitted no exceptions, and the Tax Court has regularly sided with the IRS on this point.

Just how strictly the authorities adhere to the limit is illustrated by several hard-luck stories. One "sad tale," Prentice-Hall notes, involved a couple who sold their house in May 1977.

At that time, the so-called "rollover" period to qualify for deferral of capital gains taxes was 18 months. But that seemed to be no problem for this couple, who already had a contract in hand to buy a new dwelling and had put up $3,000 in earnest money.

All the pieces of the deal were in place until the seller of the second house refused to go through with the closing. The couple sued, moved into a rented apartment, and went looking for another place to live.

A second deal, struck in September 1978, also fell through. It wasn't until December of that year that they were able to find yet another place, sign a contract and take title.

The couple claimed they had made a "good faith effort" to go by the rules and thus were eligible for capital-gains tax deferral on the profit from their first house, even though they had passed the time limit. Not so, said the IRS. The Tax Court was sympathetic to the couple's plight, but ruled the IRS was right.

In an earlier case, the people involved ran into a problem because the contractor building their new house was late in finishing the job. Well aware of the time limit, they moved some of their furniture into the partially built house as the deadline arrived.

Nevertheless, the court ruled they weren't eligible for capital-gains rollover because they failed to occupy the new house within the alloted time. It has taken the same position even in cases where illness, bad weather, and a state agency's "wrongful" imposition of delays in construction caused the taxpayers to miss the deadline.

With the big increase in housing prices over the past couple of decades, the capital gains tax on a home that is sold can be much more than an annoying out-of-pocket expense.

The landmark tax law of 1981 lowered the maximum tax on capital gains to 20 percent. Still, on a profit as small as $50,000, for someone in the 50 percent bracket, the tax bill comes to $10,000.

Regardless of the hardship it may cause, though, the Tax Court has ruled it is bound to go by the law and is "without authority to weigh the merits of events precipitating delay to determine whether the time limits may be waived or extended."

Sale Of Second-Hand Items Rising

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Judging from the proliferation of ads for tag sales, garage sales, house sales and flea markets, any weekend during the nice-weather months will find large numbers of Americans outdoors — either buying or selling household effects and collectibles.

According to Ralph and Terry Kovel, a husband-and-wife team who have made a writing and lecturing career out of their penchant for attending such events, the number of second-hand sales has increased more than tenfold since they began going to and writing about them 33 years ago.

"I'll bet I could find 20 or more house sales to go to every weekend just in our suburban area," said Terry Kovel recently at her home in Shaker Heights, Ohio.

Devotees of such events already know that local newspapers and giveaway shopper publications carry ads for such sales. What people may not know is that regional publications devoted to antiques and collectibles list some of the larger flea markets, as well. Most areas of the country have publications such as the "Ohio Antique Review" and the "Tri-State Trader Weekly" (which serves Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania), according to the Kovels whose "Collectors' Source Book" provides information on these publications, as well as other subjects of interest to collectors.

There are differences among the various types of sales. A flea market, for example, is generally held in a large public space, such as a shopping mall or supermarket parking lot, and includes a number of vendors, each with a separate booth or table. Garage, yard and tag sales (so-called because all the merchandise is tagged beforehand) seem to offer the widest mix of quality, ranging from events where the merchandise is little more than junk to good used things.

House or farm sales held when a household is being dispersed seem to offer the best surprises, Ralph Kovel said. Although sometimes an antique dealer has been called in prior to the sale and has walked off with the best things, the buyer often gets a crack at the entire contents of the house.

The Kovels have attended thousands of second-hand sales around the country and say the chances of finding a great buy at one of them are excellent. After all, they note, the pieces found in the finest antique stores had to come from somewhere.

To find a bargain, a shopper has to be knowledgeable enough to recognize one, so the Kovels recommend would-be shoppers do some research by reading about collectibles and antiques in general and by educating themselves in museums and fine antique shops.

"Most good dealers will be happy to tell you what they know about a piece you admire," said Mrs. Kovel. Remember, though, that the rule of "buyer beware" always applies, especially at flea markets and house sales where the seller may misinform through lack of knowledge.

Though both the general public and dealers appear to be better informed today, the idea that it's no longer possible to pick up a good bargain is not accurate.

The Kovels point out that nobody is an expert in everything. Often items that are not currently in style will be undervalued locally. In Westport, Conn., where the country look is very popular and commands a premium price, the Kovels recently found an ornate French porcelain inkwell and an early 20th-century signed Roycrofters lamp, both of which were significantly underpriced.

One of their favorite stories concerns the "reproduction" 18th-century American chair bought for under $500 at Renninger's Flea Market, outside Reading, Pa. Although Renninger's is one of the largest flea markets in the country and those selling there are considered very knowledgeable, the seller made a mistake with this chair. It later sold for about $100,000 at auction in New York as the original 18th-century piece that it was.

As a rule in local non-professional sales, the useful objects such as furniture and sets of dishes will go for the highest prices since there is a great deal of competition for them. Collectibles such as bookends, silverplate or pottery may be easier to find since there is less competition.

The Kovels say there are regional differences in tastes which affect prices. Large furniture pieces are more expensive in the South where there are more big homes. Oak furniture is more reasonable in the Midwest than on either coast; oriental items are popular all over, but are especially so on the West Coast.

For many, attending a weekend sale appears to be a recreational activity. Parents bring the children and enjoy the outdoors and camaraderie of the occasion, as the Kovels did while their three children were growing ———

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — Our house has aluminum casement windows in two of the downstairs rooms. Some of the aluminum is pitted in places. Can the pitted marks be removed and is it wise to apply wax to any part of the windows?

A. — Yes to both parts of your question. Rub the pitted areas with a fine grade of steel wool, then apply the wax. Be especially certain to use the wax in the window tracks.

Q. — I have never used polyurethane varnish and want to do so now. When I used regular varnish in past years, I allowed the varnish to dry overnight before applying a second coat. Is this also the case with the synthetic type?

A. — No. Polyurethane varnishes dry much faster, usually in 2, 3 or 4 hours. But if you want to play it safe, use your overnight formula.

Q. — I have a dual action power sander. It has the orbital action when a switch is placed in one position and an in-line action when it is placed in the other. A few dayc after I bought the sander, I mistakenly threw away the instructions. Now I would like to know when to use the orbital action and when the in-line action?

A. — Before answering the question, go back to the dealer and see whether you can get another copy of the instruction booklet. If not, write to the manufacturer for it. Meanwhile, use the orbital action when you want to take off the most wood in the fastest time, the in-line action when you want to get the smoothest finish. If the wood requires only a small amount of sanding to get it into shape for the varnish, shellac, lacquer or whatever the finishing material, skip the orbital sanding and get right to the in-line movement.

Q. — I find wood finishing a fascinating hobby. While discussing the finishing of wood recently, my husband and my brother gave me conflicting advice on something I would like to get straightened out before I try it. On a piece of unfinished furniture should I stain the wood and then seal it before putting on the varnish, as my husband says, or seal the wood, then stain it and follow with the varnish, as my brother says?

A. — Perhaps neither, although there is a difference of opinion among some wood finishers on the exact procedures for staining wood. The best way is to seal the wood, then stain it and then seal it again prior to the application of varnish, a method which neither your husband nor brother mentioned. The theory is that, when you seal the wood first, the stain is likely to take a bit more evenly, especially on certain woods which are inclined to "take" a stain unevenly. For instance, when finishing the most common type of plywood, fir, you should use a sealer made especially for that kind of wood. There are two types of this sealer, one to be applied when the final finish is to be paint, one when the final finish is to be clear.

Q. — I have taken the finish off an old piece of furniture. It looks pretty good, but I want it even lighter, sort of a blonde finish but not exactly white. How can I achieve this result?

A. — No matter which type of finish you apply, it will make the wood a little darker. Therefore, you will have to lighten the wood ahead of time by using a bleach. It is important to follow the directions on the bleach container very carefully, especially regarding the washing of the wood surface after the bleach has done its work. There are some finishes which are used for lightening wood, but these are more like paints.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, bleach, stain, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

When a doorbell or door chime in your house does not ring, the odds are that you can fix it even if you aren't the handiest person in the world or haven't the slightest knowledge of electricity.

That's because, in the large majority of instances, the trouble lies inside the pushbutton. When that is the case, anyone with a small amount of money can purchase a new pushbutton and install it.

The voltage to the button has been stepped down so it will not give you a shock, which should eliminate the fear some persons have when they have to do anything at all with electric wires.

The first thing to do is remove the two screws that hold the pushbutton in place. The button apparatus will not drop if one or both of the wires inside it is still attached to one or both of the screw terminals.

For the button to make the bell or chimes signal the presence of a caller, both wires must be attached securely. Should either be disconnected, you have probably found the trouble. Reattach the wire around the screwhead in a clockwise fashion, which will tighten it properly rather than unloosen it. Press the button and you should hear the welcome ring or chime.

When the plate has been removed and both wires are still attached to the terminals yet there is no sound on pushing the button, place the blade of a screwdriver across both terminals or unscrew the wires and hold them together. Either of these actions should produce the sound you want to hear. If it doesn't, rub sandpaper or emery across the contact points. Test again. No sound? Yet the bell or chime rings when the wires are pressed together? You need a new pushbutton.

In buying a new pushbutton, take the old one with you. The new one need not be the same size or even the same type, but the dealer will be able to tell you if the new button will fit the moulding or wall where the old one was installed. Or you can measure the wall area and when you buy the new button, figure out yourself whether the new one will fit that space.

Once in a while, you will find the pushbutton is not the culprit. While this does not occur often, you should know the other possibilities. One is that the fuse has blown or the circuit breaker has broken. You can quickly check by trying the electricity in that area of the house to see if the power has gone off. Another possibility is that the wires from the pushbutton to the transformer or battery have become frayed or broken, in which case you will have to find the break and tape it. If it is impossible to do so, you will have to put in a new bell wire. When it is necessary to do any work around a transformer, it is wise to use a volt-ohm meter to test the voltage. Generally, transformers last indefinitely without any need for replacement. When a transformer must be disconnected, shut off the power to it. Better yet, if you are inexperienced with electricity, have a professional make a new installation.

Still another possibility, although infrequent, is that the bell, buzzer or chime itself may be out of order. When this occurs, it is usually due to the presence of grease, dirt or some other foreign matter inside the unit.

Private Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Zbigniew Brzezinski, former President Carter's national security adviser, is leading a private effort to collect medical supplies for refugees of Soviet-occupied Afghanistan.

Brzezinski says that the Connecticut-based Americares Foundation hoped to collect $4 million worth of medical supplies for distribution among an estimated 3.2 million Afghan refugees who have fled into neighboring Pakistan since the Soviet invasion in 1979.

Brzezinski said the aim is to gather about 40 tons of medical supplies to be flown to Pakistan in August and distributed among refugee camps along the Afghan-Pakistani border.

Here's The Whole Truth About Your Dirty Roof

$39.99 Per Square

How black fungus can quickly blacken a white roof
Black fungus is actually a form of concentrated algae growth. Thriving in warm humid southern climates, this fungus grows and speads much the same way common mildew does in shower stalls. The end result is unsightly black streaks and stains on your roof.

Zinc granules make the big difference.
The porous granules which chemically destroy fungus spores are incorporated into each Celotex fungus resistant shingle. This fungicide is slowly released and washed across the face of the shingle by rain, providing a continuous fungus inhibiting action.

Self sealing and U.L. rated for wind resistance.
Intermittent bands of adhesive are applied across the face of each shingle. When installed on the roof, the warmth of the sun activates this adhesive, bonding the shingles. The result is a sealed down roof that can withstand winds of great force without damage.

The Celotex fungus resistant shingle "limited" warranty.
Celotex FRS fungus resistant fiberglass asphalt shingles carry a 20-year limited warranty both as to fungus resistance and life of these durable fiberglass, self sealing shingles. (Refer to actual manufacturer's warranty for complete details).

Stripes ... In Court

The Gillette Co. of Boston has been repackaging its deodorant, Right Guard, in an effort to boost its sales. In the process Gillette chose stripes, which caught the eye of the Mennen Co., which also sells a deodorant with stripes on the package. Mennen sued but, after a four-day trial in New York, a federal judge ruled in favor of Gillette. The trial came only a few days before Gillette was to launch its new advertising campaign. Union Balks At Import Of Steel

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The United Steelworkers union filed an unfair labor practice charge Friday against U.S. Steel Corp. amid reports the company plans to import British steel.

The USW went to the National Labor Relations Board to protest U.S. Steel's refusal to provide information on its dealings with British Steel Corp.

"The company is refusing to provide the information we need to fight the U.S. Steel plan," Carl Frankel, the union's associate general counsel, said at a news conference.

Earlier this year, the nation's biggest steelmaker announced it was considering importing millions of tons of semi-finished steel slabs from the Scotland plant of government-subsidized British Steel and have the slabs finished at its Fairless Works in suburban Philadelphia. British Steel, in return, would make an investment in the Fairless plant.

James McGeehan, director of the USW's District 7 and chairman of the union's bargaining committee with U.S. Steel, said such an arrangement would cost 3,000 jobs at Fairless, whose steelmaking capacity would no longer be needed.

"The plan, if successful and then expanded, would mean the end of steelmaking in the United States," McGeehan said. "We are fighting to save the nation's steelmaking. We don't want the country to become steel-dependent like it is oil-dependent."

McGeehan said he had written the company asking for information on the British deal and was refused in a letter from William Miller, the company's vice president for labor relations.

"The material you seek to obtain is so sensitive, that its publication would prove extremely damaging to the business position of U.S. Steel vis-a-vis our competitors," Miller said in a letter sent two weeks ago and made public by McGeehan.

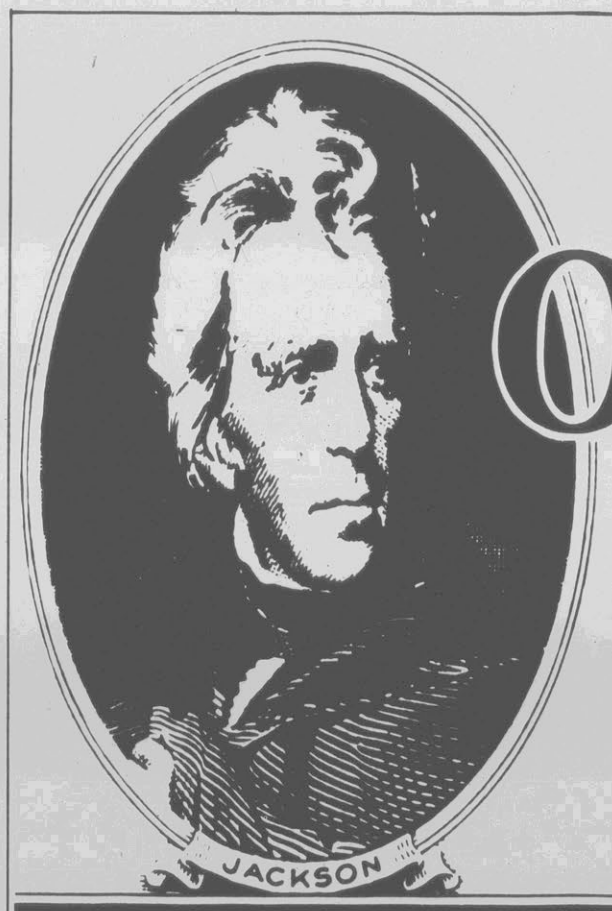

Although Miller said "no agreement has been reached with British Steel," he insisted the importation of slabs was the only way to save the Fairless Works from being closed permanently before 1990.

In a reply to Miller on Friday, McGeehan wrote that the company's "stonewalling" was forcing the complaint to the NLRB.

Meanwhile, The Times of London reported Friday that U.S. Steel Chairman David Roderick and British Steel chairman Ian MacGregor, who met privately in New York on Thursday, want to conclude the deal before MacGregor becomes chairman of Britain's National Coal Board on Sept. 1.

Federal Deficit Grows As Economy Improves

By STEVEN ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The economy isn't the only thing growing these days.

Along with smiles over a strengthening recovery from recession, there are some frowns over another type of expansion, the bulge in both the federal deficit and the money supply.

Financial markets were unsettled this past week by all this growth and economists are divided over whether it poses a threat to hopes for a sustained recovery.

Among the encouraging signs was a government estimate this past week that the economy is growing at an inflation-adjusted annual rate of 6.6 percent in the still-uncompleted second quarter, up sharply from the 2.6 percent increase in the first three months of the year and the fastest growth since the first quarter of 1981.

Automakers said sales of new cars soared 73.1 percent in early June from a year ago, reaching the highest rate in four years. The government said personal income rose 1.2 percent in May, the largest monthly rise since July 1981, and that consumer spending rose 1.4 percent.

"All economic signs point to a strong recovery," President Reagan said.

Then there was less welcome news of growth.

The Treasury Department said the deficit in May widened to $29.3 billion, a record for any month. For the first two-thirds of the fiscal year, the deficit swelled to $161.8 billion from $81.1 billion in the same period a year earlier, far above the record $110.7 billion for all of the previous fiscal year.

Political battles over the budget for the next fiscal year heated up, with Congress adopting a spending plan that provides for higher taxes, more domestic spending and less money for the military than the president sought.

Against this background, the interest rate paid by the government in the sale of $26.65 billion of bills, notes and bonds this past week rose to the highest levels of the year.

And concern persisted as the money supply measure M1, representing cash and deposits in checking accounts, remained about 14 percent above levels of a year ago. That is well above the upper limits for growth proposed by the Federal Reserve Board to further its policy of providing enough money to keep the economy growing without rekindling inflation.

John Wilson, chief economist at Bank of America in San Francisco, warns that the combination of a robust recovery stimulated even further by big deficits and an accommodating Federal Reserve raises the risk of a return of rising inflation and recession by 1985.

"How long can we tolerate such expansion in fiscal policy and monetary policy with the economy growing so strongly?" he asked.

But Frank Mastrapasqua, chief economist at the investment firm Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. in New York, said he believes that the deficit is at its peak now and that the money supply will slow down on its own.

Rising tax receipts from the recovery will gradually reduce the buildup of red ink while business borrowing demand should remain weak well into next year, preventing a collision of borrowing between corporations and government that would propel interest rates higher, he said.

"Let's not overreact," Mastrapasqua advised. "We could undercut this embryonic recovery."

In other business and economic developments this past week:

—Esmark Inc. entered the competition for acquiring Norton Simon Inc., bidding against Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co., a private New York investment firm. A management group led by Norton Simon Chairman David Mahoney withdrew its offer for the diversified company that owns Avis automobile rentals, Max Factor cosmetics and Hunt-Wesson foods. Esmark's offer was valued at between $788 million and $812 million, while Kohlberg Kravis' bid was valued at $812 million.

—Coastal Corp. dropped out of the bidding for Texas Gas Resources Corp. That cleared the way for CSX Corp., operator of the nation's largest rail system, to proceed with its $1.07 billion takeover of Texas Gas.

—The Federal Reserve Board approved the proposed acquisition of Seafirst Corp. by BankAmerica Corp., setting the stage for the largest interstate banking combination ever. The merger must still be approved by Seafirst shareholders in a vote scheduled for Tuesday.

Livestock, Meat Stage Strong Recovery

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
AP Business Writer

Livestock and meat prices made a surprising recovery Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange after falling sharply in the previous session when a government report prompted a severe selloff.

The rally appeared to start late Thursday when commercial firms that deal in live-stock and meat started buying contracts despite a report from the Agriculture Department that disclosed a larger-than-expected increase in producers' hogs and pigs, sources said.

The new buying was confirmed by an increase in the number of open contracts after Thursday's session.

Sources said one factor prompting buying was anticipation that the United Food & Commercial Workers Union would settle its labor dispute with Wilson Foods, the nation's largest processor of fresh pork.

Producers also indicated that they expected good demand and possibly higher wholesale prices on Monday, said Phil Stanley, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Thomson McKinnon Securities Inc.

The rally in hog prices also boosted buying in the cattle pit, Stanley said. In addition, technical factors such as trends on price charts contributed to the support and traders who held short positions, or agreements to deliver, bought contracts to offset those positions before prices climbed any higher.

Sources said anticipation that demand for beef could increase prior to the Furth of July weekend also helped prices.

Frozen pork bellies were sharply higher as retailers appeared to be buying the product, which is the raw material for ba. The pice on cash markets advanced about 3 cents a pound, sources said.

Live cattle settled .15 cent to 1.30 cents higher with the contract for delivery in August at 63.67 cents a pound; feeder cattle were .72 cent to 1.50 cents higher with August at 64.95 cents a pound; live hogs were .35 cent to 1.50 cents higher with July at 47.72 cents a pound; and frozen pork bellies were .80 cent to 2 cents higher with July at 60.25 cents a pound.

Grain and soybean futures prices were lower on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Corn prices led the decline as the hot and dry weather that prompted a rally earlier in the week appeared likely to give way to cooler and wetter weather early next week, said Richard Loewy, a grain analyst in New York with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

Corn for delivery in September showed the least decline, Loewy noted, as the Agriculture Department, in a report released Thursday, decreased its estimate for the surplus of corn for the 1983 marketing year, which ends Sept. 30. However, he noted, the figure may be revised upward later in the year because many Asian importers have deferred their purchases until the new crop is in.

Soybeans were lower with influence from the declining corn prices and further pressure from India's purchase of 40,000 metric tons of soybean oil from Brazil, a purchase that could have been made from the U.S., Loewy said.

Wheat prices were under pressure as the harvest of winter wheat moved into Northern Oklahoma and Kansas, the leading hard red winter wheat growing area, Loewy said.

Wheat settled ½ cent to 2¼ cents lower with the contract for delivery in July at $3.47¼ a bushel; corn was 2½ cents lower to 1½ cents higher with July at $3.18¼ a bushel; oats were 2½ cents to 4¾ cents lower with July at $1.55 a bushel; and soybeans were 5 cents to 6½ cents lower with July at $6.03 a bushel.

Concern about interest rates continued to dominate concern among traders, sources said, but participation appears to be declining, as the number of open contracts has been declining in the past few sessions.

Some analysts suggested that investors might be turning to interest rates, for their higher yield, or the stock market as an alternative.

Gold settled $1.50 to $2.30 higher with the contract for delivery in June at $423 a troy ounce; silver settled .2 cent to 2.7 cents higher with June at $12.27 a troy ounce.

Stock Market Again Upsets Financial Circle

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In its reaction to the reappointment of Paul Volcker as chairman of the Federal Reserve, the stock market has once again demonstrated its propensity for confounding the experts.

After President Reagan announced his decision last weekend to keep Volcker at the helm of the central bank, many market analysts confidently predicted an explosive response among investors.

Almost everyone agreed that the week on Wall Street would begin with a surge of buying. The only big debate was over how long it would last.

As it turned out, nothing of the sort materialized. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined about 3 points Monday in one of the quietest sessions this month on the New York Stock Exchange.

The remainder of the week saw brisker activity, but stock prices continued to drift. The Dow Jones industrials closed Friday at 1,241.69, down .50 from the week before.

The NYSE's composite index, meanwhile, rose .82 to 98.82, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 12.12 at 492.76.

Big Board volume averaged 93.56 million shares a day, against 100 million the week before.

Many Wall Streeters were vocal supporters of Volcker all through the spring as the debate raged over whether he should keep his job after his current term expires in August.

Critics elsewhere might have blamed Volcker for causing, or at least contributing to, a severe recession in 1981 and 1982 with a policy of tight credit. But leaders of the financial community almost unanimously hailed his success in curbing inflation, in restoring international confidence in the dollar, and in apparently setting the stage for a recovery in business activity.

That same kind of acclaim was still being heard in the past week, despite the markets' ho-hum behavior. It appeared, many analysts said, that stock-market participants simply had taken Volcker's reappointment into account ahead of time, pushing all the leading indexes to record highs at mid-June.

But the suspicion also began creeping into some observers' comments that the Fed chairman might now be contemplating some policy changes that he could not judiciously have made before the question of the chairmanship was settled — specifically, some new tightening of credit to rein in the recent rapid growth in the money supply.

As many Fed-watchers point out, Volcker has a long-standing reputation as an artful, poker-faced player in the running match of wits that goes on between the central bank and traders in the securities and currency markets.

"To the extent that his role is to stay flexible and adapt to changing conditions, perhaps the uncertainty surrounding his true intentions is not only desired, but actually sought," said Lee Idleman, director of research at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

From Volcker's point of view, Idleman theorized, "the next few months may represent the best time slot, or 'window,' to get the surging money supply back under control again — even by raising rates temporarily, if necessary. Such tightening now would allow renewed monetary growth and lower interest rates heading into the politically crucial months of early 1984."

Paul Boltz, financial economist at the investment management firm of T. Rowe Price Associates, said several factors argue against any dramatic moves toward tighter credit in the immediate future.

"The international debt situation remains dangerous, and though the economy is gaining a little steam, the upturn unfolding does not qualify as an overheated economy," he said, adding that the Fed "will not risk terminating the recovery."

However, Boltz added, "the president's reappointment of Chairman Volcker is an endorsement of the generally taut monetary policy that has kept a rein on the economy and squeezed inflation."

Gasoline Industry Produces Optional Cancer Warnings

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The petroleum industry has produced signs for gasoline pumps and containers warning of a possible cancer risk from prolonged inhalation of gasoline fumes, the American Petroleum Institute announced Friday.

Charles J. DiBona, president of the oil industry trade association, said in a letter to his 300 member companies that use of the warning signs was optional.

"On the basis of studies of available human data, it does not appear that there is significant risk from normal exposures to gasoline vapors," DiBona wrote.

"However, the results of tests with some laboratory rodents have caused some companies to request API to prepare hazard communications material," he continued.

The warning language was inspired by an API-sponsored animal study that came to public attention last April. In that study, hundreds of rats and mice of both sexes were exposed to high levels of unburned gasoline fumes during most of their lifespans.

The two-year study, begun in 1978, showed that male rats developed malignant and benign kidney tumors at all levels of exposure, but similar results were not seen in the females. However, high-dose female mice also showed elevated levels of kidney tumors.

Results of the study were sent to federal regulatory agencies, including the Environmental Protection Agency, in 1982 and are still being reviewed by them.

The industry also has begun sponsoring additional studies to see if the animal results indicate an actual human hazard, particularly among petroleum workers exposed to much more fumes than motorists filling their tanks.

The warning material produced by the API, which also includes a consumer brochure about general gasoline safety questions, has proposed labeling for pumps and carry-away containers.

For example, one sign says: "Long-term exposure to vapors has caused cancer in laboratory animals. Avoid prolonged breathing of vapors. Keep face away from nozzle and gas tank. Keep away from eyes and skin. Never siphon by mouth. Failure to use caution may cause serious injury or illness."

In the animal study, the rodents were forced to breath unleaded gasoline vapors for six hours a day, five days a week.

Animals in low-dose groups inhaled air containing gasoline vapor at a concentration of 67 parts per million. Medium-dose groups were exposed to 292 ppm and high-dose animals breathed 2,056 ppm.

Art Wiese, an API spokesman, said people filling their car tanks are exposed to about 33 ppm in 2½ minutes, equivalent to about 0.28 ppm over a day.

Daily average vapor exposure is higher for industry workers. Service station attendants are exposed to about 8 ppm and tank-truck drivers get 13 ppm, Wiese said.

Gasoline is a mixture of scores of hydrocarbon compounds, some of which, like benzene, are known to cause cancer when people are exposed to them in pure form.

Miss Warren Wed In Walstonburg

WALSTONBURG — Susan Kay Warren and Sheldon Dwayne Letchworth were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony Friday evening at 7 o'clock in the Walstonburg Christian Church. The Rev. Carl Tinnea, assisted by the Rev. Knox Tinnea, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.S. Warren of Walstonburg. The bridegroom, who is in the U.S. Navy stationed in Norfolk, Va., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Letchworth, also of Walstonburg.

A program of wedding music was presented by pianist Tim Corbett of Walstonburg and vocalist Bill Wyatt of Stantonsburg. The bridegroom also sang.

The bride was escorted by her father. She wore a floor-length gown with a chapel train of chantilly lace and traditional bridal satin. The seeded bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline outlined with venise lace etched with seed pearls and long cuff sleeves ending with a chantilly lace ruffle over the hand. The natural waistline was encircled with a satin ribbon. The flared skirt extended into a chapel train. Alternating panels of chantilly lace and bridal satin accented the skirt and train. Chantilly lace bordered the hem of the gown. She chose a bridal wreath of silk flowers accented with a satin bow and streamers for a headpiece. A fingertip-length veil of illusion flowed from the bridal wreath. She wore pearls belonging to the mother of the bridegroom. She carried a cascading bouquet of pink rose buds, lavender daisies and stephanotis.

Mrs. LaDorne Underdown of Greenville served as matron of honor. She wore a southern belle-styled dress of lavender dotted swiss with deep lavender cummerbund. She carried a silk cascading nosegay of lavender rose buds and baby's breath and wore baby's breath in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sandra Phillips of Farmville, and Mrs. Debra Blalock of Walstonburg, both sisters of the bridegroom. Their dresses and flowers were like that of the matron of honor.

Cristy Warren of Wilson, niece of the bride, and Renea Blalock of Walstonburg, niece of the bridegroom, were flowers girls. They wore gowns of white dotted swiss with pink and green sweetheart designs styled like that of the honor attendants. They carried baskets of white daisies and miniature pink carnations and wore baby's breath in their hair.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Sammy Warren of Wilson and Don Warren of Walstonburg, both brothers of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal-length blue gown of polyester knit with a gathered empire bodice and full length organza sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal-length sleeveless pink gown of polyester knit with an empire waist, pleated skirt and a sheer overlay. Both mothers wore pink tinged orchid corsages. The grandmothers and sisters-in-law of the couple were remembered with corsages of pink and white miniature carnations.

A cake cutting given by the bride's parents was held at their home after the wedding rehearsal Thursday night. Mrs. Don Warren, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Danny Strickland, cousin of the bride, both of Walstonburg; and Mrs. Doug Strickland of Fountain, cousin of the bride, received guests and assisted in serving. The wedding cake was baked and served by Mrs. Elmer Strickland, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Billy Harrison, cousin of the bride, both of Walstonburg. Punch was poured by Mrs. Jimmy Letchworth of Farmville, aunt of the bridegroom.

The bride graduated from Grene Central High School and from Pitt Community College with a degree in electronic data processing. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School. He attended Lenior Community College and is presently serving a four-year tour with the U.S. Navy.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Emerald Isle. Their future home will be in the Spring Branch community near Walstonburg.

Emily Monk Wed In Parents' Garden

FARMVILLE — Miss Emily Lou Monk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turnage Monk of Farmville, was married to Paul Alfred Davidson Saturday evening at 6 o'clock in a private garden ceremony at the home of her parents.

The bridegroom is the son of Robert Kemnitz Davidson of Cugahoga Falls, Ohio, and the late Mrs. Davidson.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dennis Ricks. The setting was a walled elliptical garden ringed by greenery — the focal point a three-tiered fountain outlined by pink geraniums. White wicker baskets used by the bride's mother at her wedding were filled with flowers to define the altar. Thomas E. Hawley Jr., organist, Barry Shank, trumpeter, and Kelly Via, flutist, presented music prior to and during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza. Its fitted princess bodice was circled by a double-tiered bias ruffle which formed an off-the-shoulder protrait neckline. In the ruffled layers in each shoulder, a large silk rose was tucked. The full floor-length skirt lengthened into a short train. Her cathedral-length veil of Brussels lace was the gift of her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Thomas Eli Joyner Sr. She carried a cascade of white and pink roses, stephanotis, hydrangea, and ornithaglium, accented with variegated English ivy and white caladium leaves.

Mrs. Robert Turnage Monk Jr., sister-in-law of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a floor-length shell pink taffeta dress which featured a fitted bodice with a deep V neckline accented with a deeply ruffled caplet. A matching pleated cummerbund completed the design. She carried an old-fashioned cascade of bridal pink roses, hydrangea blooms, stephanotis, and English ivy.

Miss Tracy Gray Monk, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a puffed-sleeved white eyelet dress fitted over a full pink silk underskirt. The floor-length skirt ended in a wide band of embroidered flowers. The high waist was accented with pink satin ribbon. She carried a basket of flowers which complemented the bride's bouquet.

Robert Turnage Monk III, nephew of the bride, and Robert James Davidson, nephew of the bridegroom, were pages. The bridegroom's father was best man. Groomsmen were Robert Turnage Monk Jr., brother of the bride, and James Robert Davidson, brother of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Monk chose a gown of white silk organza with sapphire blue satin stripes. She carried a nosegay of white roses, bridal pink roses, and stephanotis.

Mrs. Bernice Benjamin Turnage directed the wedding.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Kinston Country Club. Hosts were Robert Kemnitz Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Coy Monk III, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turnage Monk Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. William Splane Page Jr. After the dinner, a dance hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Coy Monk Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. William Cabot Monk was given for the dinner guests and other friends.

A Saturday luncheon at the Greenville Country Club was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eli Joyner Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Warren Poe, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Roane Cross, Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Moore, and Mrs. Fred Timms Langford.

After a wedding trip to Kiawah Island, the couple will live in Alexandria, Va.

The bride graduated from St. Catherine's School in Richmond, Va. She received a B.A. degree from Converse College in Spartanburg, S.C. and a master's degree in art history from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. She was presented at the 1965 Terpsichorean Debutante Ball in Raleigh.

The bridegroom graduated from Ohio State University with a B.S. degree in archeology. He is a litigation support specialist with Aspen Systems Corporation.

TURNIP POTATOES

In separate covered saucepans with 2 cups water and ½ clove garlic in each, turn 1 pound (3 medium) potatoes (peeled and diced) and ¾ pound small white turnips (peeled and diced) — there should be 3 cups of each vegetable. Boil until tender — 15 to 20 minutes. Drain; combine vegetables; mash. Return to a saucepan; over low heat stir in 4 to 8 tablespoons butter. Add salt and pepper to taste. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Gray Blount Married Yesterday

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Katherine Graham "Gray" Blount and Jerome Tonra Fadden, both of New York City, were married in the Church of the Heavenly Rest by the Rev. Beatrice Blair. The single-ring ceremony took place Saturday at high noon.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John Clarence Daughtridge of Charleston, S.C., and Judson Hassel Blount Jr. of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James Joseph Fadden of Potomac, Md.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an ivory gown accented with lace and a headpiece of white miniature orchids. She carried a bouquet of white roses, gardenias and miniature white orchids.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Harriett Daughtridge Harris of Rocky Mount, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Robin Blount of Chapel Hill, sister-in-law of the bride. Each attendant wore an ivory lace gown and carried a bouquet of gardenias and white roses.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Robert Fadden and James Fadden, both of Potomac, Md.

A sit-down luncheon was held after the ceremony at the Hotel Carlyle, New York. An orchestra provided music for dining.

The bride attended Ashley Hall School, Charleston, S.C., and Hollins College, Roanoke, Va. She is employed as public affairs assistant with Marsh and McLennan Companies, Inc. The bridegroom graduated from Winston Churchill High School in Potomac, Md., and from Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif. He plans to attend the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., in the fall. He is employed by the Chase Manhatten Bank, N.A., and is assistant treasurer in a special task force on Penn Square Bank.

Evans-Warren Vows Were Said Saturday

Marsha Louise Warren and Gregory Scott Evans were united in marriage Saturday at three o'clock in a candlelight ceremony at First Free Will Baptist Church. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harry Grubbs.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. T. Jack Warren of Greenville and the late Mr. Warren. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Evans of Farmville.

Given in marriage by her family and escorted by her brother, Tracy J. Warren, the bride wore a formal-length gown of white silkened organza over peau de soie fashioned with a high neckline encircled with embroidered chantilly lace. The sheer yoke of English net featured Brussels lace embroidery in a floral pattern of tiny pearls. Appliques of the beaded lace enhanced the fitted bodice. The long fitted chantilly lace sleeves were designed with a split oversleeve of sheer organza bordered in clipped chantilly lace. The full sheer organza skirt featured a pleated organza flounce outlined in the embroidered chantilly lace which extended around the hemline and the attached chapel train. She wore a hat of sheer braid overlaid in silkened pencil edged organza and appliqued with chantilly lace beaded with pearls, with a bouquet of silk flowers enhancing the upturned side brim. Illusion fashioned the fingertip-length veil and pouf bow. She carried an arm bouquet of silk white roses, baby's breath and stephanotis accented with greenery and satin ribbons tied in love knots.

Serving as maid of honor was Hannah Howard of Greenville. She wore a formal-length gown daphne rose matte taffeta gown styled with a fitted bodice. It featured an assymetrical neckline fashioned with ruffled taffeta tiers at the shoulder. The modified natural waistline was enhanced by a matching sash. She carried an arm bouquet of silk daphne rose tiger lilies, pink rose buds and baby's breath intwined with a spray of assorted miniature flowers and green rose leaves tied with daphne rose and white streamers.

Bridesmaids were Lisa Daniel of Durham, Joan Callanan of Hickory, and Diane Davis and Lee Ann Huber, both of Greenville. They wore dresses and carried arm bouquets like that of the maid of honor.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Phil Evans, brother of the bridegroom; Glenn Warren and Gary Warren, brothers of the bride; and Greg Oakley of Farmville.

Mrs. Lucy Cobb, grandmother of the bridegroom, was honored with a corsage of white carnations. Mothers of the bride and bridegroom were remembered with long-stemmed red roses.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Todd Pair and Gary Warren. Mrs. Ruth Taylor was organist and Hardee Whitehurst was trumpeter. Mrs. J.D. Langley directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Bonnie Mills of Greenville attended the guest register. Cake was served by Linda Speight Warren, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Bobby Evans, aunt of the bridegroom. Brenda Jackson Warren, sister-in-law of the bride, poured punch. Deyton Evans, brother of the bridegroom, carried a basket of rice bags for the guests. Music was presented by Charles Tucker, guitarist, and Paul Tucker, pianist.

Friday evening, parents of the bridegroom entertained with an after-rehearsal dinner at The Colonial Inn in Farmville. A bridesmaids' luncheon was given by Mrs. John L. Howard and Hannah Howard at the Greenville Country Club. Several showers, a tea and a cook-out were given honoring the bridal couple.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is enrolled at East Carolina University. She is employed with Virginia Crabtree, Inc. of Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and East Carolina University, where he received a BSBA degree in management. He is engaged in farming.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Williamsburg, Va., the couple will live near Greenville.

Duke Gardens Scene of Wedding

A morning ceremony held in the Sarah P. Duke Gardens in Durham Saturday united Sue Walston Dildy and Jerry Lee Gambill, both formerly of Greenville, in holy matrimony.

The Rev. Brian G. Gentle officiated and the families of the couple attended.

The bride's mother is Mrs. Esther Walston Bass of Wilson. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Gambill of Jefferson; his grandmother, Mrs. Lois Gambill of Jefferson.

The couple will reside in Durham.

Spong-Harris Vows Said Saturday

Wanda Mellon Harris and Joseph Kershaw Spong were united in marriage Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in a double-ring ceremony at the Christ Church, Christiana Hundred, in Wilmington, Del. by John Scobell.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Kenneth G. Harris of Greenville, the bride is a resident of Columbia, S.C., and the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Nemtuda of Wilmington, Del. and the late Kenneth G. Harris Jr. The bridegroom,also a resident of Columbia, S.C., is the son of Mrs. Ernest Maye Spong Jr. of Columbia and the late Mr. Spong.

The bride wore her mother's gown which was fashioned with a lace bodice, white satin skirt, long sleeves, a buttoned back, scalloped neckline and chapel-length train. The lace of her headpiece repeated the lace design on her dress. She carried a assorted bouquet of spring flowers.

The bride's sister, Margaret Anne Harris of Wilmington, Del., served as the maid of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Elizabeth Kinney, cousin of the bride of Wilmington, Del., Sheila Duffee of Florence, S.C., Ann McGree of Arlington, Va., Anne Martelli of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Loren Gerson of Nashville, Tenn. The maid of honor and attendants wore identical full-length mint julep-colored silk dresses with white satin belts and carried an assortment of spring flowers.

The brother of the bridegroom, Ernest Maye Spong III, served as best man. Ushers were Tommy and Blake Spong, brothers of the bridegroom of Atlanta, Ga., and Hilton Head Island, S.C., respectively, Clarke McCants and Reece Williams, both of Columbia, S.C., Julian Clark of Rockhill, S.C., Mike and Andy Safran, both of Columbia, S.C. and Ricky Smith, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Music was provided by organist Clarence Synder and soloist Emily Jo Guthrie, cousin of the bride.

A reception with dancing and a buffet was held to honor the couple directly after the wedding at the Greenville Country Club in Greenville, Del. Music was provided by "Orrmarino".

The couple will return from their wedding trip to Cherry Grove, S.C., June 30, and will live at 3109 Monroe St., Columbia, S.C.

The bride is employed at the Carolina Inn in Columbia, S.C., and is a graduate of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., with a BA in psychology and French. The bridegroom is employed by the Robinson, McFadden, Moore, Pope, Williams, Taylor and Brailsford Law Firm in Columbia, S.C., and graduated from the University of South Carolina in Columbia, where he is now attending law school.

MRS. GLENN MITCHELL JOYNER

Miss Hooks Wed

The wedding of Rhonda Gayle Hooks and Glenn Mitchell Joyner, both of Greenville, took place Saturday evening at seven o'clock in Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Willis Wilson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Arnold Hooks of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Wilton Glenn Joyner of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Cora Bob Turnage. Debbie Hooks Vick, cousin of the bride, sang "The Wedding Song" and "Longer," accompanied by Mark Shelton, guitarist. "The Lord's Prayer" was sung by James Ray Stocks.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore her mother's wedding gown of magnolia bridal satin. The gown was fashioned with a scooped neckline outlined with a venise lace bertha collar. The long tapered sleeves, trimmed with lace, were closed with traditional satin bridal buttons. The flowing skirt with side gathers flowed into an attached lace appliqued chapel train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion attached to a crown of orange blossoms. She carried a slight cascade bouquet of pink cymbidium orchids with springeri and baby's breath with pink satin streamers.

Janet Boone Berry of Greenville served as matron of honor. Maid of honor was Melanie Ann Hite of Greenville. They wore formal-length gowns of cherry taffeta and carried nosegays of burgandy miniature carnations, pink roses, white daisies, pink statice and baby's breath with white satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Ernie McKeel Hooks of Winterville, sister-in-law of the bride, and Anne Phillips Berkey of Greenville. They wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendants and carried matching flowers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Melinda Haynie, Anne Kimberly Jordan and Carolyn Nabors Willis, all of Greenville. They carried single white rose clusters with white satin streamers.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Matthew Gordon Joyner of Seven Springs, and Jeffery Lane Joyner of Garner, both brothers of the bridegroom; and Michael Arnold Hooks of Winterville, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal-length gown with an ivory lace bodice and mauve chiffon skirt. The mother of the bridegroom chose a formal-length pale yellow gown of crepe de chine. Both mothers wore cymbidium orcid corsages. Grandmothers of the bride, Lena Hooks McLawhorn and Ida Cannon Branch, and the grandmother of the bridegroom, Mary Bell Joyner, were remembered with rose corsages.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride at the Greenville Country Club. Nell Shannon Easton of Greenville presided at the guest register. The wedding cake was served by Estelle Thorpe and Louise Stox, both aunts of the bride from Winterville.

An after-rehearsal dinner was hosted by the parents of the bridegroom. A bridesmaids' luncheon was held Saturday morning at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Hite.

The bride is a magna cum laude graduate of East Carolina University who has a master's degree in speech pathology and audiology. She is employed as staff audiologist at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Pembroke State University. He received a master's degree in education from East Carolina University and is employed by the Pitt County School system.

After a wedding trip to Kiawah Island, S.C., the couple will reside in Greenville.

Miss Moore Wed Saturday at 3:00

Sylvia Jean Moore of Danbury, Conn., and John Wesley Harmon of Augusta, Ga., were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in Wynn Missionary Baptist Church. The Rev. Ernest McNair officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore Jr. of Bethel. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Annie Ruth Harmon of Augusta, Ga.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown with a fitted bodice styled with silk and taffeta overlaid with appliques of lace flowers and seed pearls. The Queen Anne neckline was edged with matching appliques and pearls and the bishop sleeves featured lace appliques down the sleeves and cuffs. The circular skirt flared from a dipped waist encircled with lace appliqued flowers and seed pearls and featured a chapel train centered with lace appliques. She wore a chapel-length veil of silk and net illusion with a silk cap covered with seed pearls. The headpiece was edged in tiny flowers and appliques covered the center. She carried a cascading bouquet of white and lavender roses, carnations, tiger lilies, stephanotis, daisies and greenery with picot ribbons interspersed with flowers. She wore a pearl necklace.

The maid of honor was Brenda S. Moore of Danbury, Conn.; the matron of honor, Barbara A. Best of Robersonville, sister of the bride. They wore floor-length gowns of dusty pink polyester with a round neckline overlaid with a sheer capped collar which flared into sleeves and a fitted bodice. They each carried white long-stemmed chrysanthemums interspersed with baby's breath, greenery and satin lace streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Patricia Council and Alpha Harmon of Augusta, Ga., sisters of the bridegroom; Cynthia Daniels, Sandra Daniels and Dianne Howard, all of Danbury, Conn.; and Cathy Moore of Bethel, sister of the bride. They carried flowers and wore lavender gowns identical to that of the maid and matron of honor.

Teesha Best of Robersonville, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a white floor-length gown with a pink sash and carried a basket of mixed flowers with matching streamers. The ring bearer was Johnny Wesley Harmon III of Augusta, Ga., son of the bridegroom.

Leroy Westbrook Jr. of Augusta, Ga., brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Jerry Moore, brother of the bride, and Cedric Bunn, both of Bethel; James Harmon and Sam Harmon, both brothers of the bridegroom, Willie Sams and Willis Walker, all of Augusta, Ga..

Mrs. Johnny A. Wooten of Greenville directed the wedding.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception at the Moose Lodge. Greeting guests was Mrs. Alpha Westbrook of Atlanta. Mrs. Susie Jenkins of Bethel, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the register. Mrs. Ella Mae Council, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Gloria Ward, cousin of the bride, both of Bethel, served the wedding cake. Mrs. Addie Daniels of Danbury, Conn., and Mrs. Leroy Westbrook of Augusta, Ga., served punch.

The bride is a graduate of North Pitt High School in Bethel and attended Fayetteville State University. She was employed at Kimberly Clark in New Milford, Conn. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lucy Laney High School and Augusta Area Technical College of Augusta, Ga. He is employed at Kimberly Clark, Beach Island, S.C., as an electrical electronics technician supervisor.

After a wedding trip, the couple will live in Augusta, Ga.

Miss Tripp Wed In Evening

The wedding of Bunny Elizabeth Tripp and Jacob Worth Cox took place Saturday evening at 6:30 in the Pactolus Baptist Church. The Rev. Thomas Payne officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Tripp of Route 5, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Leigh Cox of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was provided by Millie Overton Tripp and Katrina Gray.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an ivory Victorian-style gown of silk organza over taffeta. The true-waist bodice, covered with chantilly lace, was enerusted with seed pearls and luminescents. The dress featured a lace standing collar and a sheer yoke accented by a lace flounce. The lace watteau sleeves had wide cuffs and covered buttons. Covered buttons also accented the back. The full three-tiered skirt featured wide cascades of chantilly lace and ended in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion edged in chantilly lace was attached to a raised bandeau covered with lace, seed pearls and luminescents. She carried a cascade bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis and baker tips tied with ivory ribbons of lace and satin. She wore a lavalier which her maternal grandmother wore on her wedding day and a ring which once belonged to the bridegroom's paternal grandmother.

Rosalie Tripp Ruegg of Gaithersburg, Md., attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a formal-length gown of apricot silk organza over taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a flounced neckline and a full gathered skirt with a raised ruffle detailing the hemline. She carried a single long-stemmed chrysanthemum tinted apricot with white baby's breath and tied with apricot ribbons. She wore a sprig of baby's breath with matching ribbons in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Laura Mewborn Tripp and Robin Nelson Tripp, both nieces of the bride, and Mrs. William Stephen Whitehurst, all of Pactolus; Tricia Gaylord Tripp of Blount's Creek; and Mrs. Burney Mooring Fleming Jr. of Simpson. They wore identically-styled organza gowns in a rainbow of colors. They each carried a long-stemmed chrysanthemum to match their gown and wore similar beribboned baby's breath in their hair.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Burney Mooring Fleming Jr. of Simpson; Fillmer William Ruegg of Gaithersburg, Md., nephew of the bride; Dr. William Tripp Jr., brother of the bride, and Charles Lucas Tripp, both of Pactolus; and Perry Glenn Cox of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a long formal gown of peacock blue qiana, a matching lace coat and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother chose a chiffon gown of toast and ivory and a wrist corsage of peach carnations. The grandmothers of the bridegroom were remembered with white carnation corsages.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Tripp, Debbie Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Tripp Jr., Mrs. Thomas Wussow, Mrs. Charles Herring, and Jennifer and Christy Wussow.

After the rehearsal, the parents of the bridegroom, Mrs. J.W. Cox and Mrs. Curtis Perry, grandmothers of the bridegroom, entertained at a buffet and cake-cutting at the Brook Valley Country Club. Mrs. W. Arthur Tripp, Mrs. June Tripp and Ms. Rosalie Ruegg entertained at a champagne brunch at the Brook Valley Country Club Saturday morning.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University with a degree in business administration. She is presently pursuing a degree in medical laboratory technology at Beaufort Community College. The bridegroom is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and attended Wilkes Community College. He is employed by the C.A. Lewis Construction Company. After a wedding trip to the North Carolina mountains and the coast, the couple will reside in Pactolus.

MRS. THOMAS NICHOLAS EGERTON

Miss Sanderson Wed

Dorsey Amanda Sanderson of Greenville and Thomas Nicholas Egerton of Albemarle were united in marriage Saturday morning at 10:30 in a family ceremony at the home of the parents of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Calvin Sanderson of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. David Thomas Greer of Greenville and the late Thomas N. Egerton.

Both the bride and the bridegroom are graduates of East Carolina University. The bride has been employed by Sheppard Memorial Library. The bridegroom is employed by Cargill Inc.

The couple will reside in Albemarle.

Miss Kuehn Wed in Washington

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Pamela Sandra Kuehn of Greenville became the bride of Thomas Churchill Swanner Jr. of Washington Saturday at 1:00 p.m. in the First Persbyterian Church here. The Rev. Dr. Jerry D. Bron officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kuehn and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Swanner, all of Washington.

Music was provided by Mrs. Ray H. Harris, organist, Mrs. E. Gray Dean, soloist, and Jeff Jones, trumpeter. Ashley "Brownie" Futrell Jr. of Washington and John Grissom of Lumberton signified the beginning of the ceremony by lighting the candelabra.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore her mother's wedding gown and veil. The gown was of ivory satin and alencon lace fashioned with a sheer tulle yoke, long fitted sleeves and fitted bodice with paniers of lace and a bouffant skirt terminating in a full circular train. Her veil of French illusion fell from a matching headpiece. She carried white bridal roses and ivy tied with white satin ribbon streamers on her white confirmation bible.

Mrs. Joseph E. Weatherly of Greensboro was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Steven E. Kading of Clarksville, Tenn., cousin of the bride, Nancy Liljedahl of West Hartford, Conn., Diane Jaskiewicz of Arlington, Va., Mary Sue Van Dyke of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Charled A.. Kuehn Jr. of Cheraw, S.C., and Elizabeth Ann Swanner of Washington, sister of the bridegroom. The wore floor-length gowns of frost rose chiffon over taffeta. The T-strap natural waist bodice was accented with tucks and topped with a blouson chiffon jacket featuring a jewel neckline and short puffed sleeves. The lightly gathered skirt flowed to floor length. Rows of tucks accented the hemline of the gown. They carried nosegays of mixed summer flowers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Kim Holderbaum of Reston, Va., Lisa Talley and Elizabeth Hughes, both of Greensboro. They wore floor-length pastel dresses and each carried a long stemmed white rose.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Thomas Ray Atkins, Leslie "Butch" Weston and E. Gray Dean, all of Washington; Dennis Ball of New Bern, Edwin Hall of Eden and Charles A. Kuehn Jr. of Cheraw, S.C., brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of silver blue crepe. She wore a corsage of white gardenias. The mother of the bridegroom wore a rose ensemble and a white cymbidium orchid. Mrs. Hallett S. Deans, maternal grandmother of the bridegroom, was remembered with a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Mrs. Ernest H. Holt of Greenville served as church hostess.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride held a reception at their home. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Samuelson, Mrs. Thomas R. Atkins, Mrs. A. Thomas Stewart, Mrs. Walter P. Gamble, Mrs. Helene F. Fogg, Mrs. John Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Dale McWilliams, Mrs. Mary Mobley, Mrs. Thomas Ramsey, Mrs. Harley Baynor, Bette Jones, Judy Harding, Mrs. Charles Hartley, Mrs. Ronald Greene and Mrs. William Patterson.

The parents of the bridegroom gave the rehearsal dinner Friday night. A bridesmaids' luncheon was held Friday at the home of Mrs. John Powell. The couple was honored with an open house Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Adams in Washington Park. Joining the Adams' as hosts were Mrs. J. Frank Mann and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Womble.

The bride graduated from Pamlico Community School and is a cum laude graduate of Duke University with a bachelor of science degree in management sciences/accounting. She is a certified public accountant and is presently controller at Regional Acceptance Corporation in Greenville. The bridegroom graduated from Washington High School and East Carolina University with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He is a certified public accountant with Barry Gutfeld and Associates in Washington.

POOLSIDE FARE
Vanilla Fudge & Iced Tea

VANILLA FUDGE

A reader asked us for this.

3 cups sugar
¾ cup milk
¾ cup heavy cream
¼ cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ cup coarsely chopped nuts

Butter an 8 by 8 by 2-inch pan. In a heavy 3-quart saucepan stir together sugar, milk, cream, corn syrup and butter. Stirring constantly, cook over mediuim heat until mixture boils. Stirring occasionally, cook until temperature reaches 238 degrees on a candy thermometer or until a small amount of mixture dropped into a large bowl of very cold water forms a soft ball that flattens on removal from water. Remove from heat. Do not stir. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees). Add vanilla; beat until fudge begins to thicken and lose its gloss. Stir in nuts. Quickly pour into prepared pan. Cool; cut into squares. Makes 1¾ pounds.

Miss Kittrell Is Wed

DUNN — Doris Janette Kittrell and Hughie Russell Godwin II were united in marriage at the First Baptist Church here Saturday. Dr. Thomas M. Freeman conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, a resident of Dunn, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lewis Kittrell Jr., also of Dunn, and is the granddaughter of Mrs. Leon L. Kittrell Sr. and the late Mr. Kittrell of Ayden. The bridegroom is a resident ot Erwin and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rosemond Martin Godwin, also of Erwin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silk organza gown with a Queen Anne neckline, bishop sleeves in silk venise lace decorated with seed pearls, and a full-length skirt extending into a cathedral train with scattered appliques. Her headpiece was a camelot cap trimmed with silk venise lace, pearls and cathedral illusion with scattered appliques matching the dress. She carried a cascade of spring flowers with red roses.

Virginia K. Rose, sister of the bride of Fayetteville, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Margaret K. Smith, sister of the bride, of Raleigh, Regina Glover of Dunn, Rosemary Godwin, sister of the bridegroom, of Raleigh, Marian and Millie Hodges, cousins of the bride, both of Fayetteville, and Ashley Raynor, cousin of the bridegroom, of South Carolina.

The matron of honor and attendants wore full-skirted, flounce-hemmed, pink taffeta gowns with a small ruffle edging the neckline, and natural waist with sash to match. All wore combs decorated with silk flowers and pearls in their hair. They carried nosegays of assorted colors accented with pittosporum.

The bridegroom's fater served as best man. Ushers were John Thomas and Ricky Wood, both of Erwin, Mark Williams of Four Oaks, John Rose of Fayetteville, Dave Raynor, cousin of the bridegroom, of South Carolina, and David Godwin, brother of the bridegroom, of Erwin.

A reception for the couple was held at the Women's Club in Dunn immediately following the cermony. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hodges, uncle and aunt of the bride, received guests at the front door. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kittrell, parents of the bride, hosted the reception.

After a wedding trip to the Isle of Palms, S.C., the couple will live at 109 Holmes Street, Erwin.

The bridegroom is a 1983 Campbell University graduate and is employed in Erwin. The bride is a 1983 Dunn High School graduate and will enter FTI in the fall.

Roberts-Parker Vows Said Friday

MAYSVILLE — The wedding of Patricia Jenkins Parker of Greenville and George Bennett Roberts Jr. of New Bern took place Friday evening at seven o'clock at the home of the mother of the bride here. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jim Tingle.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.O. LaRoque of Maysville and the late Mr. Virgil B. Jenkins. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. George B. Roberts of Jacksonville.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Sandra Dulaney of Huntsville, Ala., sister of the bride. She wore a long dress of pink crepe with long sleeves, empire waist and round neck. She carried a single rose.

The father of the bridegroom was best man.

The couple was honored at a rehearsal dinner given by the parents of the bridegroom at The Flame in New Bern.

The bride is employed by the School of Education, East Carolina Univeristy. She will be employed by Pamlico Technical College in Grantsboro. The bridegroom is employed by the Craven County Health Department, New Bern.

MORNING REFRESHER
Orange Bread & Iced Coffee

ORANGE BREAD

Delicious, keeps well and makes wonderful toast.

- 1 package dry yeast
- ¼ cup warm water (110 to 115 degrees)
- 2-3rds cup orange juice, at room temperature
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons butter, soft
- 2 tablespoons finely grated orange rind
- 2½ cups (about) unbleached flour

In a large bowl, sprinkle yeast over water and let stand until dissolved — about 5 minutes. Stir in orange juice, sugar, salt, butter and orange rind; gradually stir in enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a prepared board or pastry cloth; knead until smooth and elastic — about 10 minutes. Place in a buttered bowl; turn to butter top. Cover bowl; let rise in a warm place (about 80 degrees) until doubled — 1 to 2 hours. Punch down; knead for 5 minutes. Shape into a loaf; place in a buttered 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm place about 1 hour. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 35 to 45 minutes.

A Review

War, Passion Subject Of Novel

The Seeds of Singing. By Kay McGrath. New York, Dell Publishing Company, 667 pages, paperback.

In the late 1930s in the Grand Valley highlands of Dutch New Guinea, Degewatik, a proud young Dani warrior, stands alone atop his watchtower in the early dawn. He frantically thrusts his spear at a low flying plane bearing the first group of anthropologists ever to enter the warrior's remote, unknown world.

In the late 1960s Degewatik, now an old man, innocently throws his spear toward the heart of a lovely white woman, believing that with her death he would at last set her soul and his own free.

The panaromic story develops in the years intervening between the two above events. Catherine Morgan, a beautiful, ambitious young woman, dedicated to her career in anthropology, is chosen to be part of a group sent by Stanford and Columbia universities to Borneo. They arrive and are welcomed into the palatial home of Sir Charles Stanford, famed anthropologist whose consuming passions in life are beautiful women and expeditions into unexplored regions of Borneo. His son Michael, child of an illicit union which destroyed his rejected mother, will lead the group to the Borneo area of Dutch New Guinea.

Though married, Michael finds a kindred spirit in Catherine. They resist their love for each other until the expedition turns into disaster as angry natives attack the small group. Michael and Catherine are the only ones to escape the carnage, and are forced to fight for survial in the vast wilderness.

McGrath's vivid, graphic descritpion of the rivers, waterfalls and vegetation of the lush area, and of the experiences that befall the two wanderers make fascinating reading. I followed them eagerly with all my senses alerted as the author made skillful use of often surprising and delightful analogies.

Befriended by the Dani Tribe, Michael and Catherine eventually decide to leave the Danis to live on a mountain of their own. Here, for over a year, they find happiness before being rescued, unwillingly, by Sir Charles.

Abruptly torn apart, Catherine, bitter over the circumstances, returns to the U.S. She gives birth to a son and later resumes her work. Michael, unaware of the child's existence, becomes embroiled in the struggles of World War II and in his unavailing efforts to get a divorce.

The details of war — in the Philippines, Japan, Bataan, Java, Borneo — make for difficult reading because of the sustained, unrelieved horror depicted. I was depressed, revolted, overwhelmed with the inhumanity, the rape and taking of heads, the tortures, disease, starvation detailed so vividly and at length.

The resulting imbalance between the earlier humane qualities and the violence in the subsequent sections made me long to close the book and escape — but concern for the richly portrayed characters compelled me to read on.

The lives of Catherine and Michael are intimately involved in these agonies of war which prevents their reunion. Trapped in the conflict, she is rescued from danger and nurtured on several occasions by Ahmad, Sultan of Borneo and a Michael's beloved friend. Ahmad's culture allows him to easily accept the capacity for loving more than one woman, but Catherine cannot come to terms with the realization that she loves two men.

In "The Seeds of Singing," explicit sexual scenes are beautifully written, exploring the nuances of tenderness and passion that can be shared between loving people. It is part and parcel of those who have the courage to honestly struggle for self-awareness and growth — "We shall not cease from exploration/ and the end of all our exploring/ will be to arrive where we started/ and to know the place for the first time..." (T.S. Eliot).

With her perceptive revelations of such explorers, Kay McGrath proves with this first novel that she is a powerful and brilliant writer.

Exhibition Of French Salon Paintings Now On View At NCMA

By SHARON BROOM
N.C. Museum Of Art

RALEIGH — For the 4,000 artists working in Paris during the second half of the 19th century, the Salon exhibitons were the key to success. The public flocked to these government-sponsored exhibitions, usually held annually, and eagerly read the critics' reviews of the thousands of paintings shown at each Salon.

Connoisseurs from all over the world, including wealthy Americans, relied on the taste of Salon jurors in selecting works of art for their collections. The Salon continued to dominate the art world until the latter years of the century, when interest shifted form the highly skilled technique of the art establishment toward impressionism and modern aesthetic.

More than 60 paintings by 50 artists who exhibited at the Salon during its heydey will be shown at the North Carolina Museum of Art June 25-Aug. 21. Organized by the High Museum of Art in Atlanta, "Paris in the Great Age of Exhibitions: French Salon Paintings from Southern Collections" is the first exhibition on this theme in the South. It also will be the first exhibition in the new museum's major exhibition gallery.

Coordinated by chief curator Dr. William J. Chiego, the exhibition at the North Carolina Museum of Art will be grouped according to subject matter, reflecting the enormous variety of paintings chosen for the Salon. Popular themes incuded history, allegory, mythology, animals, still lifes, Bibical subjects and military history. The breadth of subject matter is well illustrated by two paintings in the exhibition loaned by the North Carolina Museum of Art; Alfred Stevens' "The Porcelain Collector," which portrays an elegantly dressed woman inspecting a porcelain vase, and Jean-Francois Millet's "Peasant Spreading Manure," a farming scene typical of this well-known artist.

Perhaps most evident in the exhibition, however, is the love of the exotic, as reflected in the paintings with "Oriental" themes, usually set in North Africa or the Near East. Jean-Leon Gerome's "Tiger on the Watch" combines this interest in the exotic with the popularity of animal subjects, while Jules-Joseph Lefebvre's "The Language of the Fan" portrays a young girl in Oriental costume.

Similarly, there is a marked interest in painting female nudes, usually seen in a classical or historical context. Such paintings as Williamn Adolphe Bouguereau's "Young Girl Defending Herself Against Love," from the collection of UNC-Wilmington and Marc-Gabriel-Charles Gleyre's "The Bath" demonstrate the artists' impressive skill in this area.

Indeed, whatever the subject, these paintings illustrate most clearly the excellence of technique which the competitive nature of the French art establishment succeeded in developing. Through rigorous training at the government art school, the Ecole des Beaux-Arts, many of these painters developed remarkable abilities to copy from nature, and each Salon painting was a showcase for the artists' talent.

As the turn of the century approached, however, the Salon declined in influence and the new system of art dealership emerged. Private dealers could better meet the needs of both the artist and the middle-class patron, at that time becoming a growing force in the art world. At the same time, the typical Salon paintings saw a dramatic decline in popularity as public taste shifted increasingly toward informal subjects, especially the natural landscapes and everyday scenes of the impressionists. Important collections of Salon paintings were dispersed at auction, sometimes at remarkably low prices, and some of the showpieces of the era made their way to cities all over the United States, including the South.

In recent decades, there has been a resurgence of interest in the works from this period. "French Salon Paintings from Southern Collections" was organized by Dr. Eric Zafran, curator of European art at the High Museum, to help recreate the excitement and pleasure of the Salon at its peak. Other lenders to the exhibition include the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk and the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art in Sarasota, Florida, where the exhibition will also be seen; the Walters Arts Gallery, Baltimore; and the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

The exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

nN conjunction with the exhibition, the museum will hold a symposium on Saturday, July 16 on "Popular Painting in 19th-Century Paris." Also scheduled is "Une Fete du Boulevard," a French celebration for all ages, scheduled for July 23.

North Carolina Museum of Art hours are 10-5 Tuesday-Saturday and 1-5 Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Famous Art Couple Going On Tour

By DONALD E. MULLEN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Iowa's most famous couple is going on a year-long tour to prove that the original "American Gothic" can beat imitators hands down.

For more than 50 years there have been thousands of parodies of Grant Wood's painting of the dour-faced farmer, pitchfork in hand, standing with his old-maid, pre-lib daughter in front of their Victorian home.

In the popular eye, his daughter has become his wife and together they have been adopted as Mrs. and Mrs. Grassroots America.

"Don't mess with our rights," they seem to be saying. "And leave our dog alone, too."

But people can't leave them alone. They've shown up as preppies, opera buffs or Nashville stompers. They've sold war bonds and carried signs both as anti-nuke supporters

They've masqueraded as Nancy and Ronald Reagan, a couple of Weather people holding Molotov cocktails, and Shirley Chisholm and George Wallace.

"American Gothic," first exhibited in Chicago in 1930, won Wood national acclaim. The painting ranks with the Mona Lisa and Whistler's Mother as the most universally recognized. But there is no general agreement on the cause of its widespread appeal.

What are they thinking about, standing there unblinking and stiff, as if posing for a traveling photographer?

And what are we supposed to be thinking as we stare back, vaguely uneasy? Are they taking our measure? What would they have to say about sex and drugs and rock and roll iin the 1980s?

The painting begins a long, four-city tour this month as part of the first major retrospective of Grant Wood's works.

The exhibition, sponsored by the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, with financial support from Burlington Northern Inc., opens June 16 at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York City.

From there it moves to Minneapolis Sept. 25, then on to Chicago Jan. 21, and San Francisco next May 12.

"Grant Wood, the Regionalist Vision," represents the largest selection of works by the artist ever shown. It covers Woods' artistic career from 1917 until his death in 1942, concentrating on his Regionalist paintings of the 1930s that stirred so much controversy in artistic circles.

Wood, born in 1891 on a farm near Anamosa, Iowa, was an unabashed Midwesterner who believed art should take its form from down-home experiences. As a major contributor to the Regionalist movement, he turned his back on East Coast and European influences and boosted pride and confidence among local artists during the Depression.

In addition to "American Gothic," his major works of the 1929-1940 era include "Parson Weems' Fable," "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere," "Daughters of Revolution," "Adolescence," "Herbert Hoover's Birthplace," "Stone City," and "Victorian Survival."

Swansboro Announces Celebration Calendar

SWANSBORO — In the middle of its year-long bicentennial celebration, the river harbor town of Swansboro has made plans for the July 4 weekend, including "living history" demonstrations by a reactivated Confederate military group, a re-enactment of the town's 1860 Independence Day celebration, and the unveiling of a sculptured bronze plaque honoring the founder of Swansboro.

On Saturday, Sunday and Monday, members of the 23rd North Carolina State Troops and the 3rd North Carolina Battalion of Light Artillery will set up an authentic Civil War encampment at the Swansboro Bicentennial Park, where they will present to the public typical camp life of the common soldier in the Civil War.

From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on each of the three days, the public will be admitted to open tours of the camp where the soldiers will demonstrate drills and camp life. Members of the North Carolina Soldier's Aid Society will interpret the role of women in the Civil War.

On Monday, the 1860 Independence Day celebration will be faithfully re-enacted, based on newspaper accounts at that time. The re-enactment will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the bicentennial park. At 1:30 p.m., also in the park, a sculptured bronze plaque depicting Theophilus Weeks, founder of Swansboro, will be unveiled.

Exhibit Of Baskets Set

ATLANTIC BEACH — The Marine Resources Center-Bogue Banks in Pine Knoll Shores is offering an exhibit, "Basketry with Native Plants," daily through July 8.

Sherry White's baskets will be on display until that date and she will give a demonstration of the art of basketweaving on the final day of the exibit, July 8, from 10 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Ms. White collects material locally — wisteria, grapevine, honeysuckle and other vines, and also utilizes a vine-like material taken from a soft coral animal known as a sea whip, which adds interesting color and texture to the baskets.

The exhibit is being shown in the main exhibit hall of the Marine Resources Center in Pine Knoll Shores and is open to the public without charge.

The alfalfa butterfly, unknown east of the Appalache country's most common insects. It feeds on alfalfa fields. The Pine white butterfly defoliates pine trees, and some species of the skipper in the West damage lawns.

Wins An Arts Scholarship

CHAPEL HILL — Lois A. Staton, executive director of the Haywood County Arts Council, has won a full scholarship to Managing the Arts, a two-week course being held at the University of North Carolina School of Business Administration at Chapel Hill. She is one of 16 recipients statewide to win the scholarship.

Miss Staton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Luther Staton Sr. of Bethel, for years made her home in Greenville with an aunt, Dr. Lois Staton, a professor emeritus of ECU.

The director of the Managing the Arts Program at UNC-Chapel Hill is a Greenville native, Les Garner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Garner.

Spanish, African Dancers Next At ADF

A DANCE BEING PERFORMED ... by the Chuck Davis Dance Company in a recent dance concert is shown here. The Davis Company and five other companies will be featured in Festival Africa in performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Earlier, on Tuesday, the Maria Benitez Spanish Dance Company will present a program of classical Spanish and Flamenco dances. (Photo Courtesy American Dance Festival)

DURHAM — Two dance attractions, The Maria Benitez Spanish Dance Company and a group of dancers forming participants for Festival Africa, will be featured during the coming week at the American Dance Festival on the campus of Duke University, Durham. Unless noted otherwise, all performances are in Page Auditorium and begin at 8 p.m.

•On Tuesday, the Maria Benitez Spanish Dance Company brings classical and Flamenco dance with its sounds of stomping, castenets, and thrilling ruffles of color on stage in a performance to begin at 8 p.m.

From a rich Hispanic heritage, Benitez will present classical and Flamenco pieces, accompanied by guitarist Guillermo Rios and singer Luis Vargas. Dances to be presented are titled "Leyenda," performed to music by Albeniz and choreographed by Victoro Korjhan; "Solea Por Bulerio" and "Solea," two traditional Flamenco dances; "Te lo Digo Bailando," choreographed by Ciro — the piece was mounted in Madrid last year; "Tarde en la Habana," a coquettish number with a Cuban rhythm; and "Estamps Flamenca," noted for its Flamenco heelwork.

•Festival Africa, the first major festival of African dance in the Southeast, will be presented on three days — Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Festival Africa brings together more than 60 dancers and drummers in a rare glimpse of African dance and culture that features two premieres and a children's performance.

The six featured dance companies will perform story ballets based on traditional dances from western, southern, and central Africa. Chuck Davis is the coordinator of Festival Africa. All of the companies performing have traveled to Africa to study African dances, folklore and culture.

Thursday's program opens early — at 7:30 p.m. with a colorful traditional processional into Duke University's Page Auditorium, where the Calabash Dancers and Drummers; Dinizulu and his African Dancers, Drummers and Singers; and Kombo Omolara, stilt dancer, will perform beginning at 8 p.m.

Friday night's program features the Art of Black Dance and Music; silt dancer OLukose Wiles; and the first of two premieres of dances by the Chuck Davis Dance Company. All companies will join in a brief finale on both Thursday and Friday nights.

Saturday night's performance will include the premiere of "Drum Awakening," directed by Davis and featuring all six of the companies.

Saturday visitors may browse through the African-style outdoor bazaar between the auditorium and the Bryan Center which will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

As part of Festival Africa, a special exhibit of African masks is on display in the Duke Art Museum through September — hours are Tuesday-Friday 9-5; Saturday, 10-1 and Sunday 2-5.

Monitors Featured In Today's Park Concert

THE MONITORS ... will return today for the 11th consecutive annual performance in the Sunday in the Parks series. The concert begins at 7 p.m. on the Sunday in the Park site east of Reade between East Third and Fourth Streets. Funded by the city of Greenville, it is open to the public without charge.

The Monitors, a perennial favorite that local Sunday in the Park audiences have requested to be brought back each summer, will provide the Sunday in the Park entertainment today. The city-sponsored series of concerts, under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, begins each Sunday at 7 p.m. and is held on the grassy slope east of Reade between East Third and Fourth streets.

The concert is open to the public without charge. Patrons may bring folding chairs and other creature comforts for more pleasurable outdoor listening.

Talent for The Monitors is drawn from various parts of eastern North Carolina, including members from Wilson and Oak City. It is the only group that has performed in the Sunday in the Park concerts each year since the program was founded in 1973.

Basically a jazz ensemble, The Monitors present a panorama of music ranging from early Dixieland to today's rock music. Among oldtimers in the group are Sam (The Man) Latham, drummer; Cleveland Flowe, keyboards, and vocalist Charles Proctor.

Hospitality House Today

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The focus today on Kay Currie's Hospitality House will be on eastern North Carolina girls modeling summer clothing. Hospitality House is broadcast each Sunday from noon until 12:30 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

Margie White of Galleon Esplanade in Nags Head is coordinating the show of swim wear and casual wear in a fashion show on the theme "Fun in Summer Sun."

Another guest on the show is Doris Jernigan, administrator of Harbor View Towers in Morehead City. The housing project, due for completion in the spring of 1984, is one of four in North Carolina. The projects are based on a new concept of life care in retirement living.

Hospitality House is to be pre-empted on July 3 but will return to the air on July 10.

The Covenant of the League of Nations was unanimously accepted in 1919 by the delegates of 42 countries.

Choral Camp Concert At Wright Tonight

The second annual East Carolina University Summer Choral Camp ends today with a concert at 2 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. The program will include selections performed by the junior and senior high choruses as well as the boys' and girls' choruses.

The week-long camp, sponsored by the ECU School of Music, was attended by over 175 junior and senior high school students and teachers from North Carolina and Virginia. The week's activities included instruction in voice, piano, guitar, conducting, theory and vocal ensembles.

ECU faculty member Dr. Rhonda Fleming was the camp coordinator and the senior high chorus director. Dr. Fleming, who conducts the 65-voice Greenville Choral Society, frequently serves as adjudicator and clinician throughout North Carolina and Virginia.

Elected

WINSTON-SALEM — Malcolm Morrison, dean of the school of drama, North Carolina School of the Arts, has been elected vice president of the League of Professional Theater Training Programs.

The league is an alliance of theater-training institutions across the nation. NCSA joined the league in 1978 and is one of only 12 institutions in the country accepted for membership.

Morrison has been dean of the school of drama at NCSA since 1976.

The British Parliament approved the "Book of Common Prayer" of the Church of England in 1559.

'The Southern Gentlemen,' Exotic Entertainment For Women

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

I wasn't sure what to expect from "The Southern Gentlemen," but I knew they would not be like the characters from "Gone with the Wind."

As I pulled into the crowded parking lot of Papa Katz, I could hear the screaming and clapping coming from inside. The all-female audience was enjoying the show.

The Southern Gentlemen is a male burlesque show from Raleigh. The group, which has been performing together for six and a half months, was hired to entertain the women at Papa Katz' Ladies Lock-out Wednesday night.

As I entered the club, I saw women of all ages seated at tables around a large wooden stage. Other females crowded behind the tables, straining to get a good glimpse of the man on stage.

The women were clapping in time to the beat of the theme song from the movie "Rocky," while the dancer strutted around the stage wearing a boxing robe.

Dallas, the master of ceremonies for the show, said, "Come on ladies! You're going to have to talk him out of those clothes! Make some noise!" and the women obliged.

"This is the 1980s and women are more liberated," said Ron, a dancer in the show. "The men have gone to female burlesque shows for years. Now it is the women's turn. Females really get a kick out of it (male striptease) and raise more hell than all the men put together."

The women in the crowd warmed up when Ron came on stage dressed in a black tuxedo with a purple cummerbund and tie. As he danced around the floor, the women squealed and cheered.

Ron is an architectural designer during the day and an exotic dancer at night. He said he got involved in male burlesque because of an advertisement in a Raleigh newspaper a little more than a year ago.

"I needed the money, so I lied and told the group that I had danced professionally before," Ron said. "I got the job and I have enjoyed it.

"The money is unbelievable," he said, and added that the best tippers are the housewives who come to the show.

"The women get away from their husbands and boyfriends and come out and have a really great time. It's a way to release their frustrations," Dallas said.

A middle-aged woman in the crowd said that her husband gave her the money to go out to see The Southern Gentlemen. "He told me just to make sure I came home to him when the show was over," she said.

The male burlesque troupe presents 10-12 shows a month at nightclubs in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, Dallas said. The four dancers have danced in other professional groups before becoming Southern Gentlemen.

"A lot of towns we go to do not accept male exotic dancing. It is hard to get booked in some places. Sometimes preachers stand at the door and give out pamphlets," Dallas said. "This isn't pornography, it's entertainment. You can go home tonight and see something worse than what we do on television."

"We give a complete show, with comedy and skits as well as dancing," Ron said. "What has ruined (the reputation of) male burlesque is a lot of small shows that aren't professional."

Ronnie Weeks of Papa Katz said the nightclub's Ladies Lock-out on Wednesday night has been so popular, the management decided "to do something different to keep enthusiasm up." The Southern Gentlemen definitely kept up the enthusiasm of the female patrons at Papa Katz.

Carolina Today

Viewers of Carolina Today will meet Blackbeard and his bride and learn more about peanut grower's concerns this week with co-hosts Slim Short and Shauna Barnaby on the 6-8 a.m. WNCT-TV, Channel 9, Greenville morning show, broadcast each weekday.

The calendar for the week is:

•Monday — 6:40 a.m., Fleet Sugg will be interviewed on the Peanut Grower's Association's call for a referendum; 7:15, the Belhaven 4th of July celebration will be previewed; 7:25, Deborah Eaves and Gary Alford from the Pitt County Red Cross will talk about blood drives; and 7:40, Delma Davis, Miss Black Earth, will make an appearance.

•Tuesday — 6:40 a.m., Healthbreak; 7:15, Pitt County Commissioner Bob Martin will look at new laws; and 7:40, Sally Belangie talks about the Croaker Festival coming up at Oriental.

•Wednesday — 6:40 a.m., education spotlight on the Duplin County Computer Camp; 7:15, meet the leads in "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag" cast, Blackbeard and his bride, Mary Ormand; and 7:40, The North Carolina Department of Agriculture's turkey cooking contest.

•Thursday — 6:40 a.m., Melissa Carson talks about the Soy Bean Producers Association; 7:15, a preview of the East Carolina Playhouse's Summer Theater production of "Pippin"; 7:25, military awareness with a look at the 514th M.P. Co. of the North Carolina National Guard Unit; and 7:40, tips for the home.

•Friday — 6:40 a.m., a look at Pink Hill's Liberty Festival; 7:15, Michael Colombo and Dr. Mary Rabb will speak on donating blood for the Pitt County Red Cross; and 7:40, Blackie Smith will discuss basket weaving.

Reaches Fund Drive Goal

Friends of the East Carolina Summer Theater in Martin County have gone over their quota of $5,000 in donations to the theater one year ahead of schedule. In the last two years the Friends of Martin County organized several fund-raising events for the theater including "An Evening of Broadway" benefit production and a champagne buffet breakfast.

Putting Martin County over the top was Robersonville Products with its second annual donation of $1,000 over a two-year period.

Edgar R. Loessin, producer/director of the Greenville-based Summer Theater commented, "Martin County is the first eastern North Carolina counties to go over its quota. This kind of support is indicative of the therater spirit in Martin County and of the organizers of the fund drive. We are most grateful."

Chairing the Friends of Martin County is Mrs. Elbert S. Peel Jr. of Williamston, assisted by Mrs. Brownie Highsmith of Robersonville.

Musicals scheduled for production by the East Carolina Summer Theater this season are: "Pippin," July 4-9; "A Little Night Music," July 11-16; "No, No, Nanette," July 18-23; and "They're Playing Our Song," July 25-30.

Roberta Flack In Hampton Concert

HAMPTON, Va. — Singer Roberta Flack heads the billing of entertainers to perform at 3 p.m. today in the Kool Jazz Festival at Hampton's Coliseum.

Other performers on the bill are the VSOP II quintet — Herbie Hancock, Ron Carter, Wynton Marsalis, Houston Person and Etta JOnes.

Tickets for the concert are priced at $12, $13 and $14 and will be available at the coliseum.

Ray Fogg Concert

Singer-songwriter Ray Fogg will be in concert Tuesday at East Carolina University. The concert, at 8 p.m. will take place on the University Mall. In the event of inclement weather, the concert site will be the Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center. The concert is open to the public.

Fogg, from Cleveland, performs a style of story songs that in many instances focus on the ideas and emotions of everday events — such as "A Penny for Your Thoughts," where a bum in a park wishes had had someone to talk to, or "The Best Years of Our Lives," depicting the struggles of a generation growing up with hope only to find they must fight a war.

Other Fogg songs have a comic dimension, such as "If It Has an Ashtray We'll Take It," which is about three boys just out of high school anxious to buy a car, no matter it's condition, as long as it has an ashtray.

In addition to his career in music, Fogg is actively interested in humanitarian issues. In the fall of 1981 he traveled to Somalia to work as a volunteer in refugee camps there. He has made numerous appearances to help raise money for charitable causes, and for his service was the recipient of a Cleveland Rotary Club International Service Award in 1982.

Tillery Workshop Set For July 30

TILLERY — A Writers Workshop will be held July 30 at the Tillery Community Center in Tillery, a village located in Halifax County. The workshop begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m., and is sponsored by Evangeline Grant Redding, a North Carolina author and publisher.

Four consultants will provide input in four specific areas: planning and editing material; writing about what you know; markets to sell your material; and writing for fun and self-gratification.

The workshop will also feature a writing contest open to participants only, with entriles due no later than July 18. Contest rules are: submit manuscripts only in two categories, poetry and short stories — fiction, non-fiction, juvenile, mystery; submit as many entries as desired; entries must be unpublished and the original work of the contest; entries must be typewritten on standard 8 x 11½" white paper, double spaced and on one side of the paper only; and word lengths are no more than 100 lines for poems and a maximum of 5,000 words for short stories.

A fee will be charged for the workshop. For additional details and pre-registration forms, write to: E.G. Redding, Tillery, N.C., 27887, or call 826-3654.

Ms. Redding is the author of "Nothing: The Mentality of the Black Woman."

Has Book Published

GREENSBORO — Dr. John Scanzoni, a professor in the Department of Child Development and Family Relations at the University of North Carolina-Greensboro, is the author of "Shaping Tomorrow's Family: Theory and Policy for the 21st Century," which has been published by Sage Publications in California.

The 271-page volume, Dr. Scanzoni's ninth book, deals with progressive and traditional conservative views on the institutions of marriage and family. The author has been on the UNC-G faculty since 1978, and focuses his research interests on the interplay between societal changes and family changes, with particulr concern for the implications of the changing roles of women and men.

Recreationists Polluting Innocence Of Nature

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

CONCORD, Mass. (UPI) — "The indescribable innocence of nature" which Henry David Thoreau found at Walden Pond is being corrupted by recreationists polluting the water and tossing beer empties into the woodlands.

The "chanting of whippoorwills" and the fall of "a fresh and tender bough" immortalized in Thoreau's classic, "Walden," are drowned out by the blare of radios and the chatter of up to 15,000 people on any summer day.

"If Thoreau were alive, he'd go find another pond," says Mary P. Sherwood, diligently checking the progress of tree seedlings she hopes will once again turn the spot into the lush forest Thoreau loved.

At 77, the diminutive woman shakes her head in despair over the bottles, cigarette butts and other debris floating in the water's edge.

Noting Walden Pond was designated a national landmark in 1965, Ms. Sherwood said, "This should be an American shrine, not a swimming hole."

As chairman of a group of increasingly alarmed nature and literary lovers, she is hoping to reverse the rape of the land by thoughtless people breaking branches, squashing plants and allowing their dogs to romp freely.

But her greatest concerns are the erosion resulting from sunbathers who scramble up the slopes when unable to find a spot on the tiny beach and the water pollution from swarms of swimmers.

The pond that amazed Thoreau with "the azure tint of its waters" is now gray and congested with boaters and fishermen as well as swimmers. Many species of animals and birds known by Thoreau have been frightened away forever.

"Visitors come here from all over the world only to find they have to step over the bodies and blankets of sunbathers" to get to Thoreau's house site, Ms. Sherwood said. "They don't even get to see the lush woods."

Thoreau built his famed one-room house in 1845 and lived more than two years at Walden, recording his delight in solitude and appreciation of nature and the wild in a daily journal.

Ms. Sherwood, founder of the "Walden Forever Wild" organization, and her colleagues blame inadequate management and failure to enforce regulations

Robert Yaro, deputy state commissioner of environmental management, agrees that the park is overused, and said the state has a restoration plan and is taking steps to reduce the numbers using the 400 acres of land.

He cited the phasing out of several parking lots, elimination of a trailer park, acquisition of the last privately held piece of land around the pond and patrols by police on horseback to "control the rowdy elements and provide security."

A Hymn, A Prayer And Some Memories Are All That Remain Of Greenville's Old First Presbyterian Church

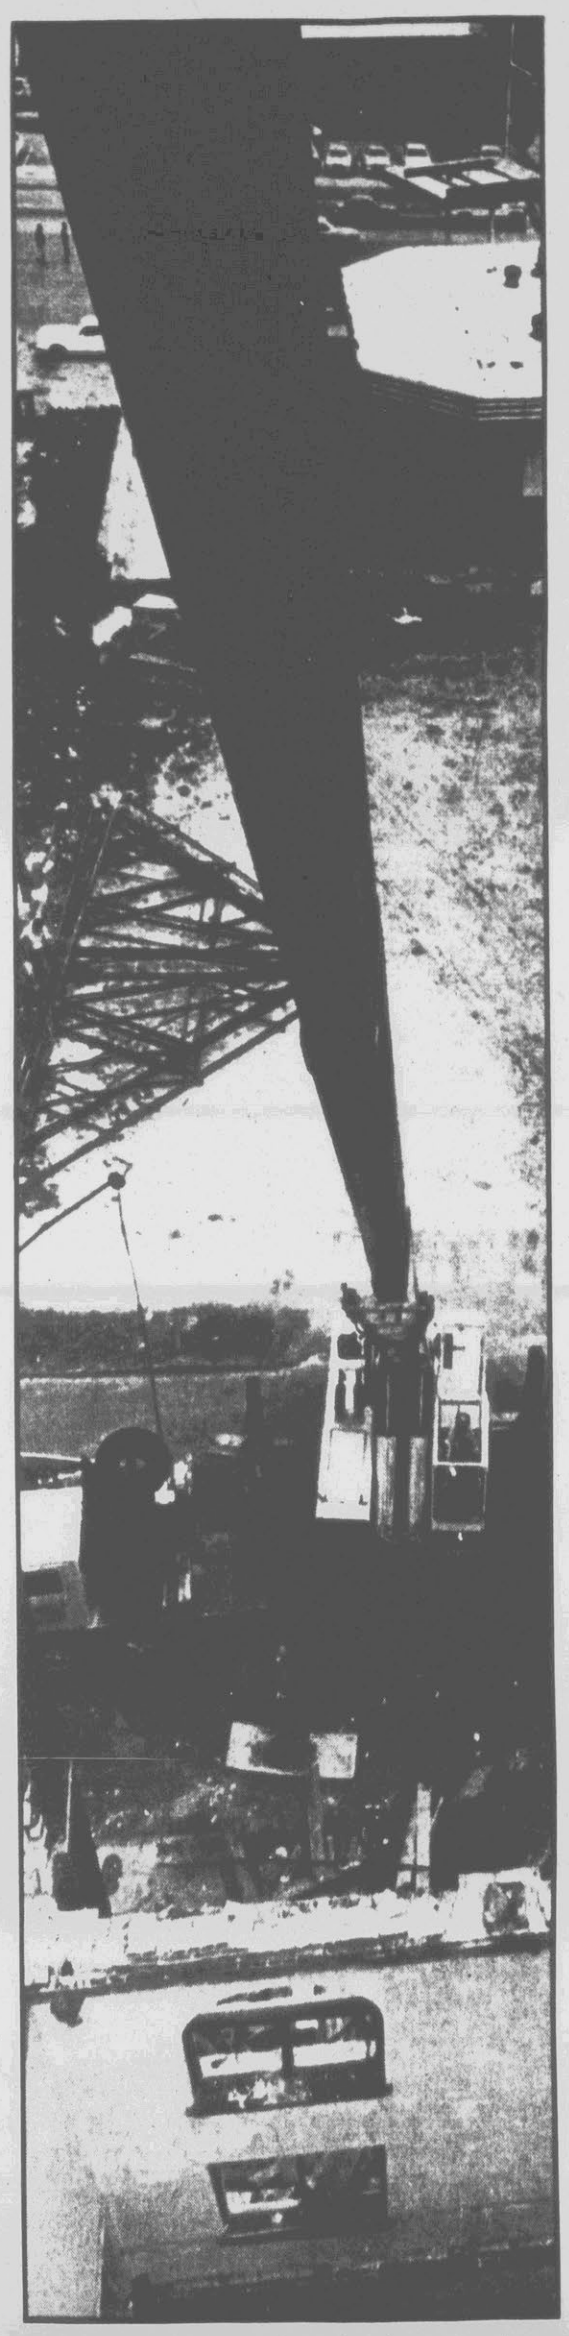

Recently the old First Presbyterian Church at the corner of Fifth and Pitt streets fell prey to the wrecking ball. The church was originally constructed in late 1924 and was occupied by members of the church until December 1971, when the congregation moved to a new modern building at the corner of 14th and Elm streets.

The existing old educational building remains and will probably be converted to a commercial use.

Operator Sam Purcell guides his crane into position, readying the wrecking ball for another strike at the old brick church located at the corner of Fifth and Pitt streets. Steel removed from the church structure during the first stages of razing can be seen to the left of the crane.

The sanctuary of the old First Presbyterian Church is empty now. The majestic organ, the worn pews and the windows so many people gazed out are gone. All that remains is a shell.

NOTICE

Byrd's Automatic Transmission Service in Bell Arthur, approximately 6 miles west of Greenville, N.C. would like you to know that you can get most automatic transmissions rebuilt for $250.00, warranted 12,000 miles or 12 months whichever comes first. You get a handwritten warranty signed by Leroy Byrd, the owner. I cannot promise you one day service and take a chance on overlooking something minor that could show up after your warranty has expired. Remember, there are a lot of transmissions rebuilt that didn't need it in the first place.

LADIES CHOICE
THE SNAPPER LIGHT 19"

It's so nice to have a SNAPPER around the lawn. That's something more and more women are discovering. Easy-to-handle, light, compact, and specially designed for easy starts, this durable 19" Hi-Vac® proves SNAPPER's built in quality can come in a small package.

Its short wheel base minimizes scalping and makes it a snap to reach tight areas around trees and shrubs.

SNAPPER's exclusive patented Hi-Vac cutting system creates a powerful vacuum that actually sets up grass for a clean, even cut and groom. Options include attachments to mulch and shred plus a side discharge. For added convenience an Extra Bag-N-Blade Kit is available.

Easy-to-start. Easy-to-operate. Super lightweight. That's the versatile 19" Hi-Vac. Visit your SNAPPER dealer today for a mower that you can depend on.

6-25

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-25

ETB BMVTLDTP HF CYL VHLTP LYDYVF MEP ULYSHFTF SYLT LQFVCQW FWTTU.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: VALUABLE CARD STORE MOVED TO CITY BUT REMAINED STATIONARY.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: V equals T.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FISHBEIN'S FLAIR

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for those hands that we consider to be our favorites. That makes quite a list. For the time being, therefore, we are devoting the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series, we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♡ Q J 4
◇ K 9 3

WEST	EAST
♠ Q 2	♠ 10 3
♡ 6 5 3	♡ 10 9
◇ A Q J 10 6 4	◇ 8 7 5 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 9 8 5
◇ Void
♣ J 8 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇	Pass	3 ♠
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

Harry Fishbein was one of the most colorful characters we knew, at and away from the bridge table. He was known in the bridge world for his colorful speech, highlighted by double negatives, and his equally colorful berets. Never at a tournament would he be seen in the same beret twice! Few would believe that behind this character was a shrewd bridge mind, and that was good for many points, and as many dollars.

One of Fishbein's great attributes was that he could make life easy for his partners. This hand is a classic example. Fishbein, sitting West, overcalled two diamonds and his partner showed his clubs—to suggest a lead should the opponents buy the hand; had he been doubled, he would obviously have corrected to diamonds. But nothing could prevent North-South from reaching their reasonable four spade contract.

Fishbein led the queen of clubs and continued the suit. East won the king and cashed the ace. Looking at all four hands, it is still not easy to find the winning discard. Fishbein found it at the table.

Fishbein knew that, left to his own devices, his partner would shift to a diamond. That would be well and good if declarer had a diamond, but what if he were void? There was a sure way to defeat the hand, regardless of declarer's diamond holding, and Fishbein found the way to tell partner what to do. He discarded his ace of diamonds!

With the king in dummy, this seemingly insane play could only convey to partner that West did not want a diamond return. What West did want was equally obvious. East continued with a fourth club and, whether declarer ruffed high or low, Fishbein had to score his queen of trumps for the setting trick.

Harry is sorely missed. His kind of character has all but vanished from the bridge scene, and the game is the poorer for it.

Unbaptized Not Admitted

ATLANTA (AP) — Unbaptized children are not to be admitted to the Lord's Supper in congregations of the newly reunited Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), its governing assembly decided in response to requests from local units about it. Congregational policies have varied about the matter both in Northern and Southern branches, now merged.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

My children are deprived.

They have enough toys to supply the Army with inventive obstacle course at 10 training sites. They have more books than B. Dalton's. They are read to, played with and well-loved. But they don't have cable TV.

Cable television has replaced the alligator as the ultimate status symbol in the primary schools. Meg simply cannot understand how we could deny her such a ready source of conversation.

"I wouldn't let you watch it if we had it," I keep telling her. "You know the rules around here: no television during the week unless it rains and you're bedridden."

"I know the rules and they're not fair," she answers. "I can't even watch 'The Dukes of Hazzard' or 'Three's Company.'"

"Somehow I think that you'll overcome this intellectual deprivation and continue to flourish both physically and mentally."

"What does that mean?"

"It means that if you expect sympathy, you've come to the wrong place. Besides, neither of those shows is on cable."

"That is not the point." She bangs a fist into her thigh. "You are making my life boring. Other children get to spend the mornings of this glorious summer vacation watching 'Pinwheel.' I have to play outside or read."

"It's a hard life."

"You just don't understand, Mother. I can learn things from TV."

"Like what?"

"Like about love and justice and things like that."

When I told her that she had to be kidding, she had trouble concealing a smile. But the pressure on me to conform didn't let up. If anything, it got worse because the kids next door began to get the new Disney channel on cable. Never mind with what it cost per month, Phillip and I could double our life insurance; Meg wanted non-stop Disney.

But instead of satisfying her for a while, her morning viewing only whetted her appetite. She back home asking to go back and watch Mickey Mouse that afternoon.

"Absolutely not," I said. "No one should spend all day watching TV."

"But Mark does."

"That's Mark's mother's concern. My concern is you."

He eyes began to brim. "But I feel sort of left out. He gets to see all the good shows."

"That's not true. You get to watch 'Cosmos' every Sunday night."

"Yeah, but it's not nearly as good as Mickey Mouse."

I wonder if Carl Sagan knows who is competition is.

He Runs Bicycle Lending Library

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Every day about noon, Jethro Mann turns his back yard into the most popular gathering spot in town for children.

That's the time he opens his garage door, rolls out his dozens of bicycles and starts signing out the bikes for the day.

"I don't sign them out to children who already have bicycles," Mann said. "This is for children who don't have a bicycle. This way they can get a bike to ride free. All they have do is sign their names."

Mann started his bike-lending service about a year ago after spending years repairing bicycles for children in the Gaston County hamlet of Belmont.

A former automobile mechanic and building contractor, Mann was forced to give up his work when he was diagnosed as having a rare form of crippling arthritis. He began repairing bicycles full time.

Then he decided to collect discarded bicycles from the city dump and fix them up for the neighborhood children. City garbage workers now drop off old bikes in Mann's yard on their way to the dump.

"I have everything from big, expensive bikes that I've fixed to small bikes with training wheels to tricycles for the younger folks," he said. "I guess you could say I have some wheels to fit any size."

Mann's two-story garage is filled with bicycles that have been fixed, bicycles waiting to be fixed and bicycle parts. Boxes of pedals, handle bars and seats fill his top-floor workshop. Spare tires and fenders hang on the walls. Downstairs, two rooms are lined wall-to-wall with bicycles. More rusting bikes gleaned from garbage dumps on a visit to Georgia lean again-t the outside of the garag

"It's gotten so now that bicycle shops give me their old parts and tires because they know they're going for a good cause," Mann said.

Mann runs his bike-lending operation on the honor system. Children checking out bikes for the day write the date, time and their names on a legal pad. Mann likes to get the bikes back before dark so he can get them ready for the next day's riding.

"I tell them the bikes are theirs, that I don't ride them, so they better take care of them," he said. "But even so, sometimes they come back with flat tires or wobbling wheels where the boys have been jumping them up on curbs and such.

"But I guess kids will be kids. I just fix 'em so they'll be safe for the next day," he said.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 26, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be careful what you write or say during the morning for it could easily be misunderstood. The afternoon is good for improving relationships with other people.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You find it difficult to express yourself early in the day, but later things become clear to you. Socialize tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some property affair needs handling early in the day so that happiness can reign at home in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A letter you receive could be disturbing but take it philosophically. You can handle it wisely. Be precise in making out reports.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate on cutting down on expenses. The evening is good for looking over business brochures.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Early try to please your loved one, but later get right at all the creative tasks you have to handle. Friends are helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make new contacts who can blossom into friends. Take care you do not criticize regular allies. Be polite.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get advice from an expert and financial problems are solved. Wait until the afternoon before planning needed repairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You feel unhappy in the morning and want to do something that will uplift your waning spirts. Be more practical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make appointments to be with good friends in the evening. However, use caution in motion of any kind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you need advice of a confidential nature, be sure you wait until the evening to get it. Then follow it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are not certain whom to contact, but follow your instincts. Don't force any issues. Things happen naturally.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) See one in authority from whom you want support. This person, however, cannot be reached in the morning. Be patient.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will gain knowledge which brings success during the lifetime that he or she dreams of. Teach early not to be so blunt with others. There can be an early start in the career, but success will be gradual. Stress religion.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Take a very conservative and conventional stance and you gain assistance from those in autority. An exciting influence enters the picture giving you a chance to express originality.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) One in authority gives you support for a project. Be more formal in the handling of your career matters. Take necessary steps.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find new systems for handling old problems and get better results. Get in touch with a friend this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Tonight do what will please the one you love first, and then be more concerned with your own personal wishes.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Respect the suggestions of a sensitive partner and you can cement better relations with this person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Delve right into that work ahead of you to start the week off right. Coordinate your efforts well with co-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you keep any promises made since you can handle them with a spark of genius now. Cement fine relations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get your home in good order and then tackle routine work efficiently. Do something that will please kin tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle communications and property affairs. Then get your finest talents across to others to increase success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find some way of adding to abundance that is novel. Follow through on it. Tonight get your books in good order.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Dive into new ventures today. The evening's activities should be planned early in the day for smooth sailing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Add your unique style of doing things to a new project. Try to please those close to you at home tonight. Be charming.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get matters well organized with allies. Use a positive approach in acting on decisions. Spend time meditating tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to organize a project and carry through with it quite easily. Later in life, he or she will get many fine new ideas and profit along these lines. There is a very independent streak in this nature. Instruct in sports.

Bridges Recalls A Rich TV Career

By Nancy Parent

"Loving," the new daytime serial created by Agnes Nixon, will premiere on ABC in a two-hour prime-time motion picture, Sunday, June 26.

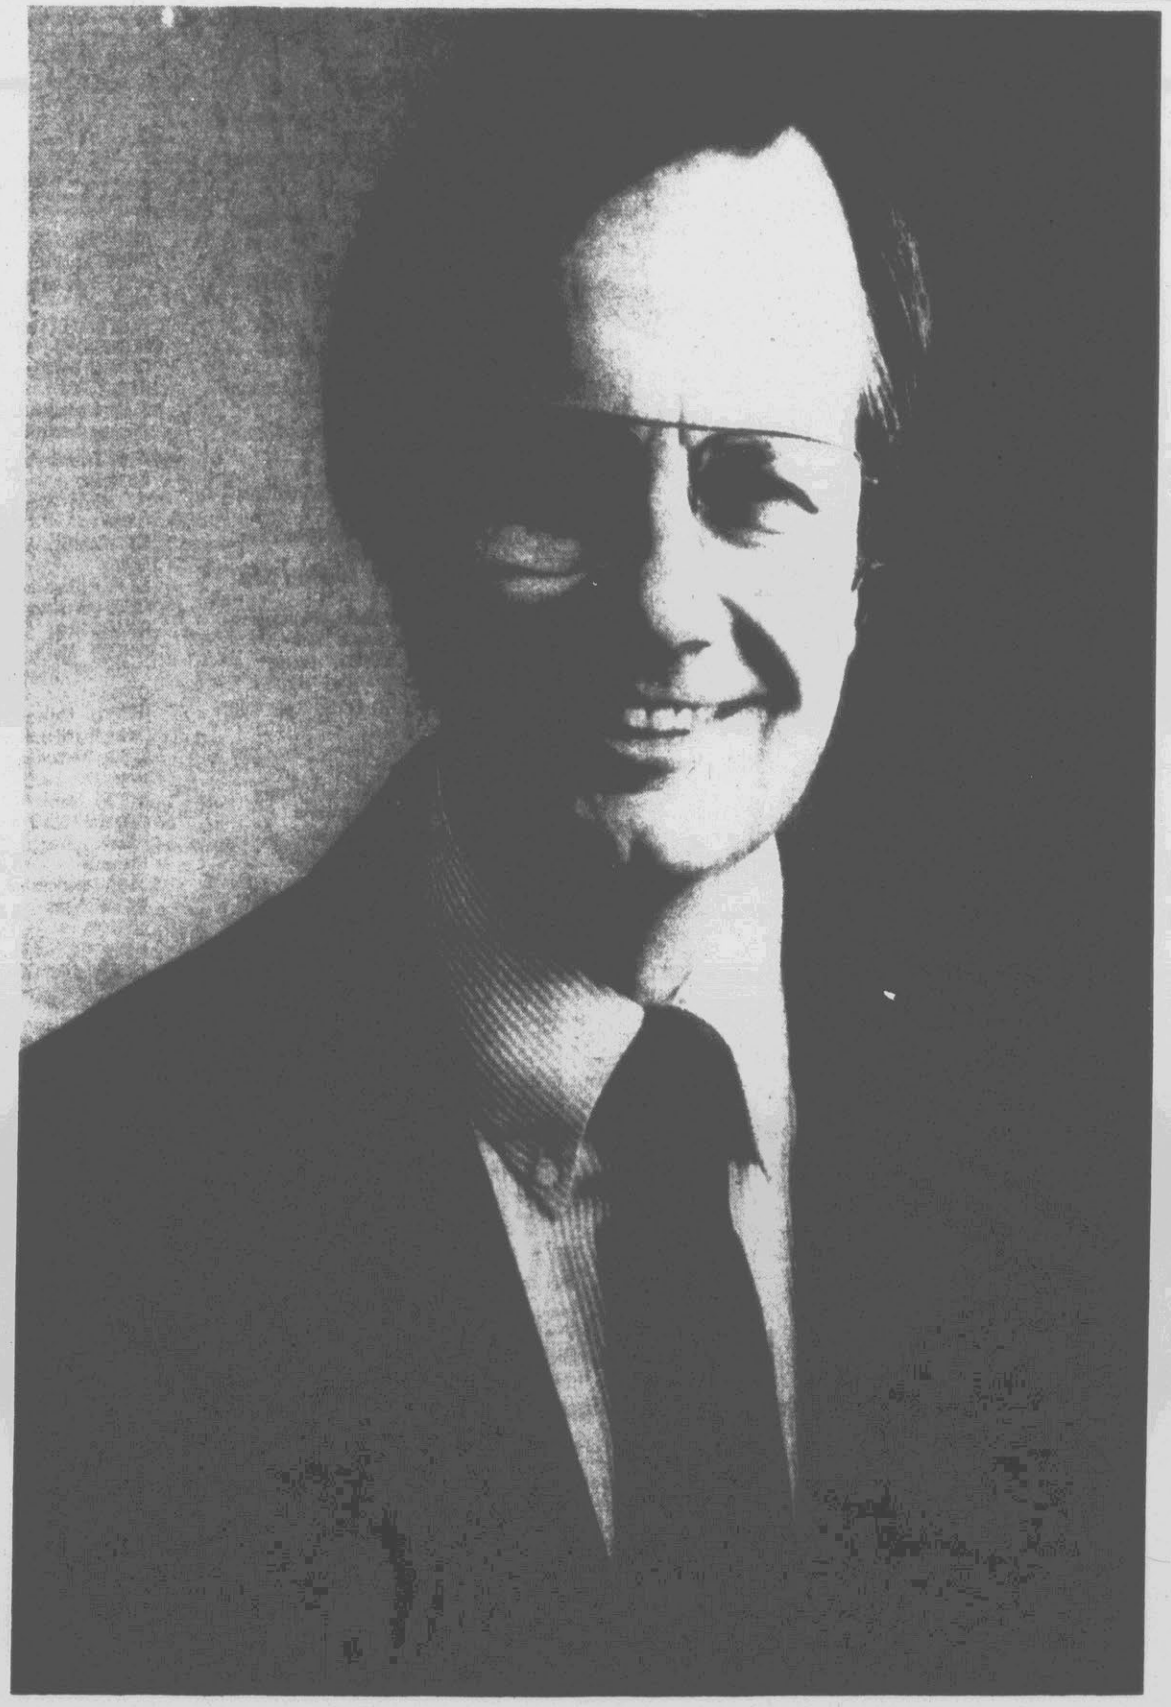

It stars one of TV's all-time favorites, Lloyd Bridges. Bridges plays Johnny Forbes, a one-time longshoreman who has become a successful business tycoon in the construction industry. He's a family man with great hopes for his son — he wants him to become president.

Bridges will not be a part of "Loving" when it goes to daytime TV — he needed to free up his schedule. He plans to continue his work in miniseries, which have been a mainstay for him in past seasons. He's played roles in "The Blue and the Gray," "Roots" and "Moviola," as well as in TV movies like "Silent Night, Lonely Night" and "The Great Wallendas." Recent feature films include "Airplane" and "Airplane II."

But he could not pass up the opportunity to work with "Loving's" director, the highly-praised Michael Lindsay Hogg, who is known for his work on "Brideshead Revisited" and the London and Broadway productions of "Whose Life Is it Anyway?" According to Bridges, "It's a pleasure to work for a captain who knows how to run a ship."

As the television industry grew, Bridges became one of its most popular actors, appearing on live TV in such shows as "Alcoa Hour," "Climax" and "Playhouse 90."

"Sea Hunt" made him a star. Four series followed. Bridges remembers each one with a certain fondness. He recalls Rod Serling's wonderful scripts for "The Loner," the beautiful locations and action of "Sea Hunt," the social values stressed by the police work of "Joe Forrester," the challenge of playing a different character each week on "The Lloyd Bridges Show" and the excitement of hanging around "San Francisco International Airport."

CBS News correspondent Bill Moyers focuses on the human drama of today's major national issues on "Our Times with Bill Moyers," which premieres Sunday, June 26. The series will continue on successive Tuesdays through August 23.

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

DEAR MICHELE: Is country singer Ferlin Husky still living and does he still record albums? SUSAN WALLIS, ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

TO SUSAN IN ROANOKE RAPIDS: Fifty-five-year-old Ferlin Husky continues to entertain audiences around the world and is a frequent performer at the Grand Ole Opry. He's had several hit songs, but no million sellers of late.

DEAR MICHELE: I'm a fan of Rachel Ward who played Meggie Cleary in "The Thorn Birds." I was wondering if you could give me some information on her and also, where I can write to her? SANDRA SPELLS, KENLY, N.C.

TO SANDRA IN KENLY: Rachel Ward made her acting debut in a low-budget feature, "Night School," and followed with another small feature, "Three Blind Mice." It was late in 1980, when Burt Reynolds cast her in "Sharkey's Machine," that her acting career took off and that was followed by a starring part in "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid." Shortly after completing that film, she was tested with Richard Chamberlain for "The Thorn Birds." The eldest of three children born to Peter and Claire Ward, she grew up on her family's farmland near the village of Chipping-Norton, England. Along with the highly coveted role of Meggie, Rachel also won her co-star Byron Brown (Luke), who portrayed her husband. Byron, one of Australia's best-known actors, fell in love with her while filming and they were married at her family's estate in England. Write to her in co ABC-TV, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, Ca., 90067.

DEAR MICHELE: Could you please give me some information on Todd Bridges, who plays on "Diff'rent Strokes"? Also, where could I write to him? DIANE COUNCIL, LAURINBURG, N.C.

TO DIANE IN LAURINBURG: Eighteen-year-old Todd Bridges is from an all-showbusiness family. His mother, Betty, is an actress and head of Kane-Bridges Acting Academy. His father, James, is an agent. His older brother, James Jr., and older sister, Verda, also act. Born in San Francisco, California, Todd began his career making commercials at the age of 6, and moved into TV comedy and drama when the family went to Hollywood in 1974. One of his first 'big' roles was on "Little House on the Prairie." His hobbies include fishing, biking, snake hunting and his favorite — football. He also considers himself somewhat of a video game wizard. "I like all the Atari games," says Todd. "But my favorite is Centipede." You'll be happy to hear that his series has been renewed for next season. Fans should write Todd Bridges in c/o "Diff'rent Strokes," NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Ca., 91523.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

NBC has decided not to go ahead with a weekly series based on the four-hour "V" miniseries, despite the high ratings it garnered. According to ROBERT MULHOLLAND, president of NBC, "it would just be too expensive." (costs were estimated at a minimum of $1,000,000 an episode). However, a four-hour sequel is seriously being considered.

LORENZO LAMAS has discovered that being romantic can sometimes cause pain. While married to his first wife, VICTORIA, he romantically had her name tatooed on his shoulder. However, in preparing for his recent marriage to MICHELLE SMITH, he very painfully and thoughtfully had the tatoo removed. (I wonder if he plans to replace it?) LORENZO and MICHELLE were married aboard a yacht enroute to Catalina.

Outspoken WILLIAM DEVANE, who has shunned TV series since "From Here to Eternity" bombed out, has signed on as a regular cast member on "Knots Landing." (Welcome back, Bill!)

Snoopy' Stars

CBS-TV said the animated "Charlie & Snoopy Show" on Saturday mornings this fall will offer more action than the prime time specials. Also, there will be "a much stronger emphasis on Snoopy as the central character."

STARVIEW

TV families are modeled after real-life families

By Elaina Thompson

Kim Lankford

Andy Griffith, Jim Nabors and Ron Howard all say that doing their old "Mayberry"-oriented shows were great fun because they were just like a family. But after her retirement, Frances Bavier, who played Aunt Bee, said she never felt she was part of an "in" group. It was no family stuff for her. Then she added a memorably astringent boast: "But then, I'm not the easiest person to get along with. I like my own way."

After that statement I just nodded cynically whenever actors and producers said the people on their series were "just like a family." On second thought, maybe all of them are right. Who doesn't know real-life families where blood kin and assorted in-laws go years without too many warm words between members?

But as with their real-life counterparts there are also television families that you have to believe are happy.

When Ed Asner spun off into "Lou Grant," Robert Walden, who played the agressive reporter, Joe Rossi, characterized things on the set as professional and congenial. In a later interview, he gulped warmly about the "family" feeling and backed it up by saying how touched he was one Christmas morning when he got a call from Asner (who thought Walden was spending the day alone) inviting him to "come on over for dinner."

But there's no doubt about the family-style feelings on CBS' "Knots Landing." Kim Lankford (Ginger Ward) says there's lots of "come to my house for dinner" and at odd times, not just holidays.

"I love to cook," she says, "so does John Pleshette." But the best, she says, is Julie Harris, the great stage actress who is perfectly content at slipping into her series role.

"I do creamed spinach and Maine lobsters," says Kim. "Julie does a lemon chicken you wouldn't believe." Also, for a special occasion Kim says Julie (who won major awards as Emily Dickinson in "The Belle of Amherst") deserves some kind of prize for baking up a complex dark fruit cake from Emily Dickinson's own recipe.

Floyd, leader of the pack

Raymond Floyd always has been a marvelous player, but what he has done the last two years defies description. As good as he was in his early years, his performances pale by comparison to what he has done recently.

He was delighted with his play in 1981, winning three times (Doral-Eastern Open, Tournament Players Championship and Westchester Classic) and collecting a career high $359,360. Last year, Floyd won three more times (Memorial Tournament, Memphis Classic and the PGA) and lost twice in playoffs en route to an even better money year, $386,809.

Floyd took the lead in the first round of the 1982 Memphis and never relinquished it. When the dust cleared after 72 holes, Floyd's closest competitor was Mike Holland, who had to birdie three of the last six holes just to pull within six shots.

Floyd is expected to return to the Colonial Country Club in Cordova, Tenn., for this year's Memphis Classic. CBS will broadcast the final round of the tournament on Sunday, June 26.

Floyd again led all the way in last year's prestigious PGA at Southern Hills, starting off with a seven-under-par 63, which he called "without a doubt, the best round of golf I've ever played, anywhere in my life."

His second and third round totals of 132 and 200 respectively established PGA Championship records and he was heading for a 72-hole mark until he double bogeyed the last hole for a 272, missing the record by one. Afterwards, the 40-year-old Floyd said: "I wasn't concerned about the record at all. I just wanted the victory."

Smith anchored securely at ESPN

Sharon Smith, host of "Down the Stretch: ESPN's Horse Racing Weekly" (Wednesdays, 7-7:30 p.m.) is no Sharon-Come-Lately in her love of the Sport of Kings.

It's been a two-way course for Miss Smith. Her expertise and enthusiasm in anchoring "Down the Stretch" has earned the show the 1982 Eclipse Award for national television achievement. The award, thoroughbred racing's most prestigious media honor, is sponsored by the Thoroughbred Racing Association, The Daily Racing Form, and the National Turf Writers Association. It is the only national television award specifically for horse racing coverage.

Miss Smith's rise to the top was no accident. As a pre-teenager, she sat in front of a television set one Saturday afternoon and watched Iron Leige win the Kentucky Derby in one of the strangest finishes in the history of The Run for the Roses.

"I can never forget that race," ESPN's turf authority recalled. "It was a weird race, to say the least. You remember...Willie Shoemaker up on Gallant Man misjudged the finish line and Iron Leige went by him to win."

From that moment on, Miss Smith has enjoyed an undiminished yen for the horse racing scene. It is an enthusiasm she brings to "Down the Stretch."

City Not So Tough

Who says finding an apartment in New York is tough? "All of my friends in L.A. thought it would take weeks, but it took me hours," said David Oliver, who had never even been to the Big Apple before moving to New York to join the cast of "Another World."

Bloom Joins Cast

Brian Bloom has recently joined the cast of "As the World Turns" in the newly created role of Dustin Donovan, illegitimate son of adventurer Gunnar Stenbeck (played by Hugo Napier). Bloom, who is 12, is from Long Island, New York, and has been active in local theater, commercials and modeling. He also has a featured role in the forthcoming Sergio Leone film "Once Upon a Time in America." This is his first serial role.

Deal With Summer Like A
Seasoned Veteran

The bottom line on the weather is that it's HOT. There are only a few dignified ways to handle the heat. One is to stay in your air-conditioned house all summer. Another is to stay in a pool or the ocean. Whether you're staying inside or getting right out in the thick of things, come by and take a look at our impressive selection of shorts by Berle, Corbin, Barry I. Bricken, Merona, and Polo, and don't forget to look at our large selection of swimwear.

We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITORS

LOS ANGELES — Lynn Redgrave, who recently completed the title role here in the play Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You, worked eight shows a week without an understudy because "I wouldn't let anybody go on for me in a million years.

That's how I was brought up." But that failed to impress son Benjamin, 14, and daughter Kelly, 13, who Redgrave says aren't nearly as excited about her acting as she was with that of her parents, Sir Michael Redgrave and Rachel Kempson. "I was absolutely enthralled," says Lynn, "not so much by the quality of their acting but just that they were these people on the stage." But Benjamin and Kelly didn't even see Mummy in Sister Mary until one of their schoolmates joined the cast. . . . Even though he says his agent "was so angry, he cried," Lee Bergere, who plays Joseph the butler on Dynasty, won't be returning to the hit series. "I felt I'd done everything I could with the part," Bergere says, "and I've got to do some more significant roles. I have not been satisfied with myself." . . . All for the sake of her art. Cynthia Sikes of St. Elsewhere spent an entire day in bed with Burt Reynolds, for a scene in their upcoming movie, The Man Who Loved Women, which also stars Julie Andrews. Sikes reports that during those long hours in front of the camera, Reynolds made her "feel very comfortable." . . . When Cary Grant and his wife, Barbara, recently went on a 10-week cruise, his classic films Charade and To Catch a Thief were shown on board. Grant, 79, never does interviews and refuses to write a book but graciously conducted a question and answer session for the ship's passengers and a second late-night gathering for the crew.

—Robert Windeler

NEW YORK — Telly Savalas is ready for a comeback of Kojak, off the air since 1978. "All we need is a good script," he says. The new series could start before year-end with a two-hour special. . . . Donald Sutherland equates movie directors with sweethearts: "You have an emotional relationship with them — they're like lovers." . . . Twiggy, Broadway's newest darling as star of My One and Only, says she made it through early rehearsals thanks to this advice from her long-legged co-star and companion, Tommy Tune: "If you make a mistake dancing, just smile a lot." Says Twiggy, with a grin, "So I keep smiling." . . . When Mrs. Mario Cuomo rushed from a friend's birthday party recently, it wasn't to attend an official function. "My chicken is in the oven," apologized the First Lady of New York State, "and I don't want it to burn." . . . Debbie Reynolds, obeying doctors' orders to rest, keeps boredom at bay by penning her memoirs. . . . Referring to her legendary character, soap-opera queen Eileen Fulton says of her exit from As the World Turns after 23 years: "I don't want the name Lisa engraved on my tombstone."

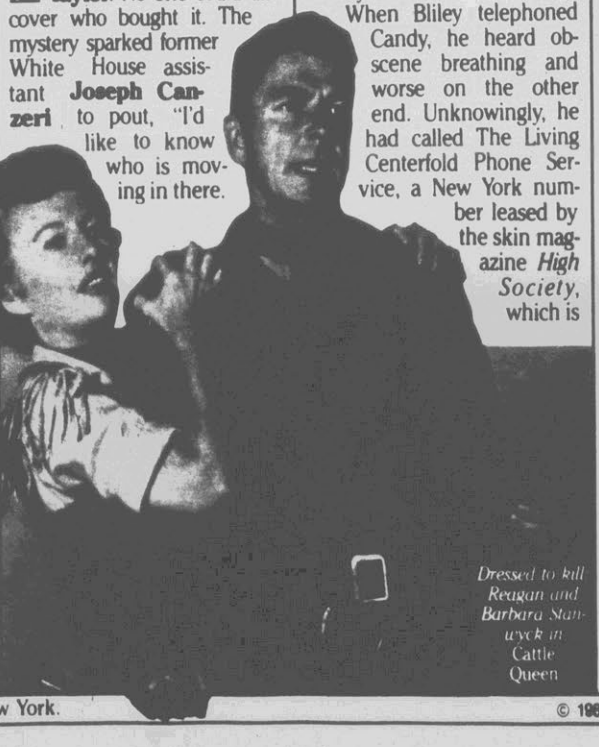

—Anita Summer

WASHINGTON — White House aide Michael Deaver is becoming Washington's most notorious wit. The deputy chief of staff pulled his latest stunt recently after the sale of the lavish Georgetown home last belonging to Senator John Warner and ex-wife Liz Taylor. No one could discover who bought it. The mystery sparked former White House assistant Joseph Canzeri to pout, "I'd like to know who is moving in there. I don't want to see any pink flamingos on the front lawn in my neighborhood." Off went Canzeri to Cairo on business, only to return to find 10 wildly pink flamingos perched on his lawn. Canzeri vows, "I have secret plans to get even with Deaver." . . . Maybe Washington film writer Shelly Tromberg should become a Ronald Reagan pollster. He says he always knew Reagan's political appeal was directly related to his movie appeal. He learned this back in 1954, when called upon to promote the Reagan flick Cattle Queen of Montana. Reagan was unavailable for personal appearances, so Republic Pictures told Tromberg, "Take your car and head for the rurals. He's big in the small towns and small in the big towns." Tromberg's movie-politics theory isn't foolproof, though. He said he thought Reagan would be vice president because his movies were "always the second feature." . . . Representative Thomas Bliley Jr. (R-Va.) found an urgent note on his desk that Candy from New York called. When Bliley telephoned Candy, he heard obscene breathing and worse on the other end. Unknowingly, he had called The Living Centerfold Phone Service, a New York number leased by the skin magazine High Society, which is getting 500,000 calls a day. Bliley did not think his staff's prank was funny, especially after talking to constituents whose children were calling. So he filed a formal complaint with the F.C.C. and asked the U.S. Attorney from Virginia to file criminal charges against the magazine and New York Telephone. High Society publisher Gloria Leonard says, "These cases are a hell of a First Amendment test."

—Kathleen Maxa and Jane Ottenberg

LAURENCE OLIVIER

Once you've finished a film or play, do the lines stick with you forever? — K.E., Kansas City, Mo.

I'd say I remember them for three weeks, then they're gone. When I look back on my 80-odd films, in fact, I wonder how I ever managed to learn my parts. I saw a rerun of Pride and Prejudice and thought to myself, with great surprise and a bit of admiration, "However did you memorize all that?"

BARBARA MANDRELL

Forget show business — anyone can sing and dance. When I met astronaut Eugene Cernan, I was awestruck. To go to the moon, that's heavy stuff. I thought he would be up in the clouds — no pun intended — very proper and all, but he turned out to be really cute with a great personality.

BOND, BURT & THE MAN OF STEEL

June offers double movie excitement: the first of two James Bond films to open this year and a super sequel starring the Man of Steel. In Octopussy (which opened June 10) Roger Moore as 007 teams up with cool Swedish beauty Maud Adams (interviewed in this issue) for some spine-tingling suspense, while in Superman III (June 17) Christopher Reeve as Clark Kent/Superman finds a new enemy in computer Wiz Richard Pryor.

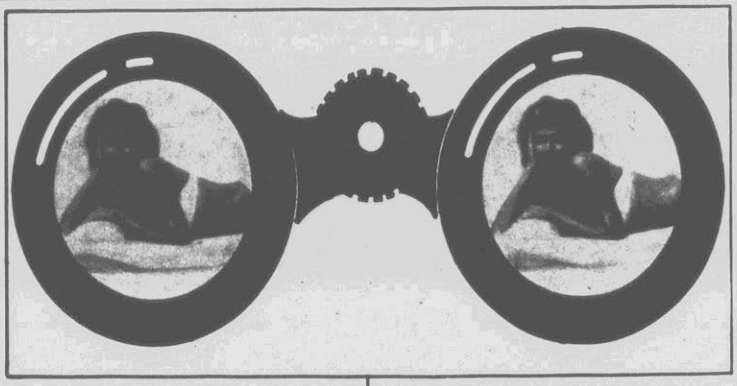

June moviegoers will also have plenty to laugh about. Yellowbeard (June 24) features a bountiful assortment of comics (Cheech & Chong, Madeline Kahn and others) competing for buried loot, while Trading Places (June 10) offers Dan Aykroyd and Eddie Murphy in a satirical comment on the extremes of wealth and poverty.

Hotter than July will be Burt Reynolds and Loni Anderson in Stroker Ace (July 1), a romantic comedy about racing cars, while Teri Garr will be catching up with Tootsie co-star Dustin Hoffman with her own role reversal in Mr. Mom (mid-July). Fans of John Travolta will have their midsummer night's dreams fulfilled when their hero returns to the screen in the familiar role of Tony (Saturday Night Fever) Manero in Staying Alive (July 15), directed by Sylvester Stallone.

The hazards of family holidays will be parodied in National Lampoon's Vacation (July 29), starring Chevy Chase (who shares his summer memories in this issue). And if you thought it was finally safe to go back in the water, think twice — or rather thrice: Jaws-3D is coming (July 22), starring Bess Armstrong, Dennis Quaid and Lou Gossett Jr.

NINE PEOPLE WHO MADE SUMMER FUN

Summer wouldn't be summer without such amenities as baseball, bikinis and barbecue grills. Here's whom we have to thank.

• Abner Doubleday. Well, he didn't exactly invent the game, but he has been enshrined as the father of baseball. The game actually evolved from the English games cricket and rounders.

• Jacques Heim, a French couturier in Cannes, invented the bikini in 1946.

• Richard Milton Hollingshead Jr. and Willis Warren Smith of Warren, N.J., opened the first drive-in movie in June 1933 in Camden, N.J., on a 10-acre lot with a 40 by 50-foot screen.

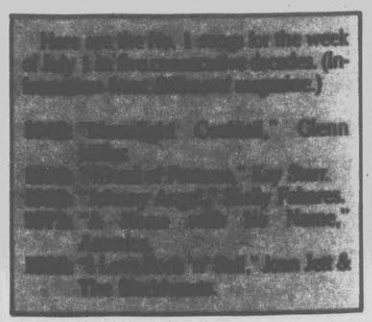

• The first crude barbecue grills were made in the mid-1920's after Henry Ford (yes, father of the Model T) invented the charcoal briquette in 1924.

• Senator William Musgrave Calder of New York introduced a bill to enact daylight saving time in 1917, and clocks were set an hour ahead on Easter Sunday, March 31, 1918.

• The American League for Physical Culture opened the first nudist camp for 30 members in Central Valley, N.Y., in June 1930.

• Hans Lippershey, the Dutch optician who invented the telescope a few months earlier, placed two of them side by side with a separate lens for each eye, creating a crude set of binoculars in 1608.

• The Chinese are credited with creating water and milk ices, but an Italian, Tortoni, popularized ice cream by serving cream ices to French and English royalty in the 17th century. The first ice cream cone appeared at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis in 1904.

YOU'RE NEVER TOO OLD FOR CAMP

Hullo Mudduh, Hello Fadduh.... If you long to be in a bunk at camp again, consider these options.

• At Club Getaway in Kent, Conn., single adults over 20 can participate in volleyball, tennis, archery, roller skating, dancing, waterskiing and horseback riding summer weekends through October. Cost: $149 to $199.

• At Florence Weiss Perlstein Park in Lake Delton, Wisc., those 62 and older can spend a week or more in air-conditioned rooms at Camp Chi for $270 a week. Campers participate in water sports, hiking, singing, arts and crafts, shuffleboard, religious services and activities with the children's camp across the lake.

• Sports Fantasies offers about 40 adults over 30 the chance to realize an American dream: to play baseball at Miami Stadium with and against old-time stars, including Willie Mays. For $2,295 ($700 for nonparticipating companions), campers spend a week training, playing in intrasquad games and also receive their own personalized Yankee uniform and baseball card.

• Weight Watchers Camps, located in Montreat, N.C.; Beloit, Wisc.; East Stroudsburg, Pa.; and Reno, Nev.; offer one to seven-week exercise and weight-loss programs. The $495-a-week fee ($1,690 for four weeks, $2,750 for seven weeks) includes sports, nutrition and cooking classes, lodging and three meals daily, specially designed for each camper by a nutrition specialist.

• Campers at Computer Camps International have access to a computer and a 24-hour computer lab and can participate in workshops on a variety of subjects. Located in East Haddam, Conn., the camp has an 18-hole golf course, a swimming pool and four tennis courts. The cost is $725 a person for five days and $325 for a weekend.

CHEVY CHASE REMEMBERS SUMMERS PAST

He's Chevy Chase and we're not, as he often reminded us on Saturday Night Live, *so his summer memories are uniquely his. But since he'll open soon in a movie about a disastrous summer holiday (National Lampoon's Vacation), we thought it would be fun to find out about his summer breaks. In a recent interview with* FAMILY WEEKLY's Mary Ellin Bruns, Chase, 39, shared the following memories of summer jobs, summer loves and the time he got beat up by the Hell's Angels.

"As a child I spent summers in Woodstock, N.Y. Those summers were just wonderful. We had a jeep and we drove around in the fields and gardened and played a lot of Ping-Pong and tennis. I had a great group of friends.

"I've had just about every kind of summer job you can imagine. I used to run a tennis court in Woodstock — a clay court, which required watering and putting the lime down and rolling it with a heavy roller. I gave lessons at $5 an hour. One summer I drove big rigs with gold shipments from the Treasury in Washington, D.C., to the Treasury in Baltimore. I wasn't so sure I had gold shipments, but I had a gun and all that, and that was kind of fun because it kept me busy and I had never driven really big trucks before.

"The summer I was 20 I bought a car in New York City for about 50 bucks and drove across the country to northern California to pick fruit and do some construction work. I worked in the small town of Auburn and I went to the recreation center for a dance. I was beaten up by a gang of Hell's Angels. As I remember it, some girl set me up, a girl who wanted to know if I would read her poetry because I was an English major. It seemed to me that her poetry couldn't be particularly interesting, so I turned her down. She had come with these pretty tough guys, and they decided to get even. There were five of them outside in the parking lot and they just kept beating on me. The police arrived finally and hit me and two other guys who were holding me and took us to jail. We were in jail overnight. That sort of put a halt to the summer.

"One year I had a flaming summer romance with a girl named Jane Shakespeare. I couldn't have been more than 13. I remember wanting to make out and now knowing how. She was a little bit older and seemed to be more aware of that kind of thing. I think she had breasts and that was a start. I know I didn't have any yet. Well, she got pregnant. We have seven children.

"The best summer romances were when I was with the same girl all through that time. I was with one girl for six years. She is a famous actress now and has a family of her own. That was a wonderful time, all through college and out of college. It was very agonizing when I couldn't see her — like the year I went across country to California and got beaten up. I remember driving back and stopping off in Pennsylvania where she lived and sleeping in the car overnight because she was out with somebody. She didn't expect me back and she wasn't having an affair or anything like that, but I think it was probably a little rough on me. When I had a girlfriend, I had a girlfriend, and I liked it that way.

"I think my best summer was when I ran a camp in northern Ontario. I just loved doing it, and I did a tremendous amount of canoeing and I was in charge of a lot of kids. It was a great experience, one of the most beautiful areas in the world, and I often think about going back. It was filled with lakes. You could just jump in and drink the water. When I left, I remember saying, 'I've got to go back and be a star,' and the kids said, 'Sure, Chevy.'"

THE PERFECT BARBECUE SAUCE

One of the true delights of summer is meat barbecued on a grill. We offer a fabulous old-time barbecue-sauce recipe from noted food writer Craig Claiborne. It's close to the one his mother made and served during his childhood in Mississippi — though the fresh ginger is a new touch.

2 cups ketchup
¼ lb. unsalted butter
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon finely chopped garlic
½ cup packed dark brown sugar
1 lemon, halved and seeded
Salt to taste
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1 tablespoon grated fresh ginger
Tabasco sauce to taste

Combine all ingredients in a medium-size saucepan and bring to boiling, stirring until the sugar dissolves. Grill chicken or spareribs until almost done, then baste with the sauce during the last 15 to 30 minutes of grilling. Makes about 3 cups

DEE-VINE

Steve Shapiro/Gamma Liaison

She made her first movie at 14, and by the early 1960's Doris Day and Liz Taylor were the only women more popular at the box office than Sandra Dee. As Gidget and Tammy she exuded wholesome summer sexuality, a girl who believed in surf, malteds and the word "no" (although she did slip in A Summer Place). Born Alexandra Zuck in Bayonne, N.J., Dee, 41, hasn't been seen in a movie in years but recently finished a film, still unreleased, called Skipper. Unmarried since her 1967 divorce from Bobby Darin (their son, Dodd Mitchell, is 21), she shuns all interviews. "She's not interested in talking about the past," says her manager, David Gershenson, "and there's nothing in her future or present, so there's nothing to talk about." But there will always be a summer place in our hearts for lady Dee.

SCORCHING BEACH READS

You don't want to sizzle this summer, but you may want your beach book to. Here's a selection of what the bookstores will offer this season — in love, gossip, suspense and mystery.

Hollywood Wives, by Jackie Collins (Simon and Schuster): another sizzler

The Arbor House Treasury of Detective and Mystery Stories from the Great Pulps (Arbor House): a terrific anthology with stories by folks like Dashiell Hammett and John D. MacDonald.

Marie: A True Story, by Peter Maas (Random House): how one woman uncovered corruption in the Tennessee government, by the author of Serpico.

And if you hate getting sand in the cracks of a hardcover book, try these top sellers, coming out in paperback: America in Search of Itself, by Theodore H. White (Warner); Worldly Goods, by Michael Korda (Bantam); The Debutantes, by June Flaum Singer (Avon); Family Happiness, by Laurie Colwin (Fawcett Crest); Dr. Love, by Gael Greene (New American Library).

SEE HOW THEY RUN

In this pre-Olympic summer, the watchword for TV sports fans is track, with four big events on the three major networks: The National Sports Festival from Colorado Springs, June 25-July 3; the World University Games on July 9,10 from Edmonton, Alberta; the first World Championship of Track and Field from Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 6-14; and the Pan Am Games, Aug. 14-28, from Caracas, Venezuela. Sit back and relax as Carl Lewis, Billy Olson and Mary Decker do the running and jumping for you.

What to do if you're attacked by a shark

1. Splash furiously
2. Swim like Mark Spitz
3. Phone Peter Benchley collect
4. Move to Nebraska

Tennis fans should love live coverage of Wimbledon through July 3 (NBC, HBO) and the U.S. Open from Forest Hills, N.Y., Aug. 30-Sept. 11 (CBS, HBO).

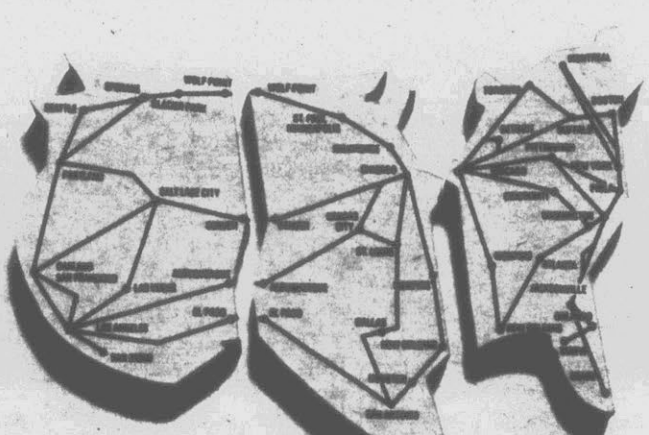

Several baseball wonders will be chasing milestones this summer. We're predicting that Pete Rose will pass the 4,000-hit mark, closing in on Ty Cobb, versus St. Louis on Aug. 6, the same day teammate Steve Carlton becomes the 16th pitcher to win 300 games by beating the Cardinals 4-1.

If you're not one of the 43,695 fans lucky enough to get a seat at Chicago's Comiskey Park to watch the National League's ceremonial annihilation of the American League in the 50th annual All-Star game, don't worry — NBC will televise on July 6. Many former All-Stars, such as Joe DiMaggio, Hank Aaron, Bob Feller and Warren Spahn, will suit up once again for the second Cracker Jack Old-Timers Baseball Classic on July 18 in Washington, D.C., to be televised later by ESPN.

You can also see future greats — in the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa. (Aug. 27, ABC).

And if you think you'll escape football this summer, you're wrong, pigskin breath. Canadian Football League coverage kicks off on ESPN July 8; the U.S.F.L. Championship will be live on ABC July 17; on Aug. 19 ABC will cover a preseason Super Bowl rematch between Miami and Washington, all leading up to the opening of college football Sept. 3, U.C.L.A. versus Georgia (ABC) and the N.F.L. Sept. 4 (CBS and NBC). (continued)

AMTRAK ANNOUNCES "ALL ABOARD AMERICA" FARES, PART II.

FROM JUNE 1 TO SEPT. 30, TRAVEL IN ANY ONE OF THREE REGIONS FOR ONLY $175 ROUND-TRIP.

Starting June 1, Amtrak's "All Aboard America" Fares are starting over. And they're just in time for you to make your summer vacation plans. But hurry, because seats are limited.

With "All Aboard America" Fares, Part II, you can go to any Amtrak city in one region for only $175 round-trip. To any city in an adjoining region for just $225 round-trip. Or you can travel coast to coast for a mere $280 round-trip.

Tickets are on sale from now until Aug. 31. And buy yours at least 7 days prior to departure. You then have up to 30 days to complete your travel, so long as you return no later than Sept. 30. Stopovers in each direction is permitted.

Summer is a great time to see America. And there's no better way to see it than on board a big, comfortable Amtrak train. In fact, most people consider the ride one of the best parts of their whole vacation.

Remember, after Part II, summer will be gone. And so will these great fares.

For information, reservations and other restrictions, call your travel agent or Amtrak.

End the Pain and Misery of Tired Aching Feet

No matter how long you've suffered—be it three months, or 30 years. No matter what your problems are—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve endings, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches, or just plain sore aching feet.

Just slip a pair of Featherspring* into your shoes and your pain will vanish almost instantly. You'll be able to stand, walk, dance, even run in miraculous total comfort!

What are Featherspring?

Well, they're a revolutionary foot support unlike anything you've ever seen before. Each pair is custom hand-formed and made for your feet alone.

How do I know Featherspring will help me?

We are so certain that Featherspring Foot Supports will bring you relief with every step you take, that if they don't work for you . . . we'll refund your money in full with no questions asked.

Don't needlessly suffer pain and discomfort for another day. If your feet are killing you, Featherspring will bring you relief. Write us for more detailed information. There is no obligation. No salesman will call. Just fill out and mail this coupon.

Remember, you have nothing to lose but your pain.

What people have to say about Featherspring...

"Received my wife's Featherspring two days ago. They are super - neither of us can believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years; already no pain. Incidentally, her sore knee is better . . . As a retired physician, this result is amazing."

Dr. C.O.C. Tucson, Arizona

"I was extremely skeptical when I placed my order, and was expecting to be disappointed. Much to my surprise, I found almost immediate relief from knee and leg pains and corns on my right foot which were a source of continuing pain and irritation have ceased to trouble me."

J.C.J. Meridian, Miss.

. . ."At the present time I still wear the Featherspring and indeed they perform well after seven years of use."

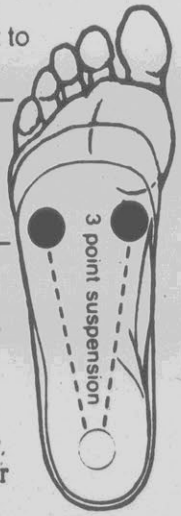

G.M.G. Dallas, Texas

*Posed by professional models

How do Featherspring work?

Unlike conventional, mass-produced devices, they actually imitate the youthful, elastic support Nature intends your feet to have.

What do Featherspring look like?

They're all but invisible. Men and women can even wear them with open-backed sandals. And because you can change them from one pair of shoes to another, one pair is all you'll ever need.

How many people have Featherspring actually helped?

As of today, over 3,000,000 people of all ages with all types of foot, leg and back problems, are enjoying blessed relief they never thought possible.

Packed With Flavor.

That's what you get with MERIT.

THE BEAT GOES ON

Whether you plan to listen to the stereo in your air-conditioned home, to a Walkman while biking through the park or to a transistor while basking on the beach, there'll be a choice and plentiful supply of new tunes this summer.

Among the biggest offerings: the soundtrack to Staying Alive (the sequel to Saturday Night Fever) with new music by the Bee Gees; Never Kick a Sleeping Dog, Mitch Ryder's first American album since 1976; The Doobie Brothers' live farewell LP; Air Supply's greatest hits; Teddy Pendergrass's first work since his near-fatal auto accident; and previously unreleased material from The Doors and The Carpenters.

Other major artists with new albums due by summer's end: The Rolling Stones, Bob Dylan, Bette Midler, Johnny Cash, Quarterflash, Crystal Gayle, Carly Simon, Lionel Richie, The Motels, Duran Duran, Aretha Franklin, The Pointer Sisters, Diana Ross, John Denver, Donna Summer, The Police, The Moody Blues, Jackson Browne, The Cars and Barbara Mandrell.

If you're the type who prefers his music live, not Memorex, the big news is that Simon and Garfunkel have scheduled 20 dates this summer, their first U.S. tour together since 1971. Other concert highlights include Michael Jackson touring with his brothers, David Bowie's first U.S. tour in five years and the eighth annual Kool Jazz Festival, stopping in 22 cities and featuring greats such as Ella Fitzgerald, George Benson, Dave Brubeck, Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie and Mel Torme.

Summer fashion forecast
Holey Moses!

"Women want to look and feel cool. The sweatshirt is 'in,' with holes in unexpected places. If the sweatshirt sleeves are too long, cut them shorter. If the neck is too high, make it lower."

—Amy Levin, Editor-in-Chief, Mademoiselle magazine

Other top acts hitting the road for nationwide tours are Joni Mitchell, Bob Seger, Air Supply, Elvis Costello, Bette Midler, Peter, Paul and Mary, Hall and Oates, Supertramp, Alabama, Kenny Rogers, Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings, Jackson Browne, Linda Ronstadt, The Pointer Sisters, The Beach Boys, Tony Bennett, Dolly Parton, Stevie Nicks, Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell and The Oak Ridge Boys. And oh, yes, if you can't catch Rick Springfield in any of the 70 cities he's visiting, just call (1-900) 210-RICK. For 50 cents you'll hear Rick discuss the tour and get treated to a few notes from his latest album, Living in Oz.

MAGIC, BLUEGRASS & LINCOLN — HONEST

LincolnFest: Springfield, Illinois — July 2,3.

Over 250,000 visitors gather annually to celebrate the life of Abraham Lincoln in the state's capital, where he lived and is buried. The festival, which kicks off with a parade, features entertainment from the 19th century, crafts, food, a tomahawk-throwing contest, strolling musicians, a rail-splitting demonstration, fireworks and tours of Lincoln's home.

Kutztown Folk Festival: Kutztown, Pennsylvania — July 2-10.

Tampa Bay Bluegrass Festival: Riverview, Florida (just outside of Tampa Bay) — July 15-17.

Texas Folklife Festival: San Antonio, Texas — Aug. 4-7.

California State Fair: Sacramento, California — Aug. 19-Sept. 5.

This fair, attracting over 750,000 visitors from around the world, includes horse racing, art, a rodeo, carnival rides, a water show, crafts, food of all kinds and top entertainment. FW

New —from the artists and craftsmen of The Franklin Mint

Subscription rolls will close forever on July 31, 1983.

Look for yourself.
The detail is astounding!

Each fascinating miniature stands just an inch and a half high. Yet each is so perfectly crafted that you can clearly see the dogtags on the World War II marine . . . feel the heavy braiding worn by Andrew Jackson's aide . . . even count the "survival pockets" on The Flying Tiger's flight suit.

This is the kind of detail that breathes life into art—on three-dimensional sculptures no taller than your thumb. And this is the very special excitement that awaits you with every fine pewter sculpture in The Fighting Men of America—an extraordinary new collection in the great tradition of military miniatures, from the world-famous craftsmen of The Franklin Mint.

The Fighting Men of America Pewter Sculptures Collection

Handsomely displayed in its own five-tiered cabinet, this collection will be an inspiring tribute to the most heroic American fighting forces of every service and every era, from Rogers' Rangers and The Continental Navy to The Screaming Eagles and The Green Berets.

It will also be a collection of enduring importance. An unprecedented achievement that breaks new ground in the art of creating fine miniatures—with micro-detail so clear and crisp and incredibly precise—that it goes well beyond anything most people have ever seen before.

Unparalleled craftsmanship

Even the tiniest details will be hand-engraved into each of the master models by The Franklin Mint's own gifted engravers. And each figure will then be individually spincast in fine pewter, hand-chased and hand-finished, a refinement which is particularly demanding when it involves micro-miniature sculptures like these.

Examine any one of these fifty superb figures, in fact, and you will discover a wealth of meticulous detail, captured with uncompromising accuracy. Pick up the sculpture of The Louisiana Tiger, for example. Turn it slowly. Study it carefully. And marvel at all the authentic historical detail it portrays.

The soldier is shown at the Battle of Bull Run, his exhaustion evident as he drinks from his canteen. His Zouave-type uniform, reflecting his proud French heritage, includes striped knickers, a collarless jacket that buttons only at the top, a broad sash and a tasseled cap. He carries a Mississippi rifle. If you look closely, you can even see the decorative piping on his jacket. And all this on a miniature no bigger than a house-key!

You must act by July 31st

Centuries ago, the collecting of fine military miniatures was a privilege reserved for kings and generals. Today, such miniatures are sought by enthusiastic collectors all over the world. They have, in fact, never been so coveted as they are now. And this may well become the best-known collection of our time.

The Fighting Men of America will be issued in a single edition, permanently limited to the exact number of valid subscriptions entered by July 31, 1983. After that date, this historic collection will never be offered again.

You need send no payment now. But you must mail your application to The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, PA 19091 no later than July 31st.

GETTING PERSONAL WITH

MAUD ADAMS

EASY TO SEE WHY BONDS HAVE MORE FUN

© Frank Connor

Long before making her mark as an actress in the movie Tattoo, television's Playing for Time and now the hot new 007 film, Octopussy, Maud Adams fashioned a career for herself as a top model, gracing the covers of myriad magazines and earning up to $50,000 per TV commercial. But simply being a sex symbol has never been her style. Indeed, the Swedish-born, blue-eyed beauty lost a part in The Pink Panther Strikes Again for refusing to do a topless scene and reacted with embarrassed indignation when Tattoo co-star Bruce Dern implied in an interview that their on-screen passion was more than an act (her real-life love is Los Angeles plastic surgeon Steven Zax). But Adams, 38, was not shy about telling FAMILY WEEKLY's Mary Ellin Bruns that she considers herself blessed by her good looks, has a terrible temper and feels a strong (platonic) bond with Roger Moore.

Bruns: Was Roger Moore fun to work with in Octopussy?

Adams: Oh yes. He's a lot of fun. He's a man of great quality, very caring and generous. He has a tremendous sense of humor. He's always playing pranks, telling dirty jokes, very, very risque jokes. He is physically extraordinarily attractive. I think the most attractive things you can find in a man are intelligence and humor, and he has both. I love him without being in love with him. I'm very good friends with both him and his wife.

Q: Is it difficult to be beautiful?

Adams: No. I'm so blessed. I don't walk around thinking I'm beautiful. But I feel very pleased with what I've been given. It's like having a good recommendation. So I'm not one of those who want to knock it. Sometimes it's threatening to people. People feel they have to find flaws in you because they can't accept if you're good looking that maybe you have talent and intelligence as well. People like to say, 'Oh, she's beautiful but she can't act.' Or, 'Yes, but she's really very stupid.' Or, 'But she's got fat hips' or, 'no chest.' Which is not to say that I'm perfect, of course I'm not. I'm just a human being. I've got my problems. But overall I'm very blessed.

Q: Were you a pretty little girl?

Adams: I suppose I was, but certainly my parents didn't treat me as if I was something other than just a little girl. In my early teens I thought I was downright ugly because I was so tall and thin, and at that age the boys are shorter than you and you are the first person they pass by.

Q: You said once that you were an odd little kid. Why do you think you were odd?

Adams: I don't think I was odd in the sense of strange. I just think I was a bit of a loner.

Q: Are you a loner today?

Adams: Yes. There are very few people with whom I can be totally at ease, with whom I can share everything. I don't feel comfortable being really intimate with people other than my closest friends. I have only a handful of friends and I like it that way because we can really get to know one another and do things for one another.

Q: Do you think you're an emotional person?

Adams: Extremely. I don't think I'm tempestuous, but I think I'm a feeling and compassionate human being. People often think that I don't ever get angry because I seem to have this tremendous patience, which is a false front. Yes I do have a lot of patience and I like to keep things nice, to try for harmonious situations with people, and if someone angers or upsets me I invariably try to find the reason or try to understand why this person is doing this to me. But once something has become quite clear to me — that this person is out to get me or is really angering me, I have a very bad temper. I frighten myself at times.

Turn Belly Fat into a Rock-Hard Lean Stomach

in 7 short minutes a day with the "miracle" of SYNOMETRICS the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping away ugly, embarrassing fat and flab to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean trim, handsome body!

Introducing IKE BERGER Olympic Champion and truly one of the world's great athletes • Olympic Gold medal winner

"I'm over 50, yet in just 7 days SPEED SHAPER™ 'burned' off the fat and flab I've lived with for thirty years."
"I thought my fat and flab was with me for life. SYNOMETRICS 'burned' it off in only 7 days"
HY HARRIS
New York, N.Y.

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS

You already know about the isotonic and isometric principle of body dynamics. Millions of people use one or the other in their daily exercises. One day I accidentally discovered that if I used BOTH methods together in one single exercise, I automatically speeded up the results tremendously and I reduced my daily exercise hour down to only 7 short minutes.

THE SCIENCE OF SYNOMETRICS

I later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM—meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now called my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is—a speed method to give you results in minutes, NOT hours. Now build yourself a fantastic looking body with the incredible SYNOMETRICS—the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

IRON CLAD MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

In just a few days you must actually begin to see measurable, real results or your money back promptly and without any question.

• No diet needed if daily caloric intake does not add to present body weight.

WORLD PRODUCTS, Dept. SS-532
1202 Brighton Rd., Clifton, NJ 07012

If the SYNOMETRIC Unit can really start shaping me up in just days, and I mean ALL over (stomach, waist, chest, arms and legs...) I will keep it and use it... otherwise, I will want a full refund. Rush SYNOMETRIC to me.

THE SEXES

WHEN COUPLES DON'T KNOW WHAT THEY WANT

THE LOVE PRIORITIES: WHAT MATTERS MOST

By Stephani Cook

Dr. Theodore Rubin

It's not unusual for an individual to enter a romantic relationship without being exactly sure what he or she wants out of it — or what the other person wants either. And in time, all hell can break loose. How can couples prevent such a problem? To explore this topic, FAMILY WEEKLY spoke to Dr. Theodore Isaac Rubin, a psychiatrist, president of the American Institute for Psychoanalysis and author of 23 books, including the recent best seller One to One: Understanding Personal Relationships (Viking Press).

Q: Dr. Rubin, you say in your book that people come into relationships without knowing each other's priorities and, perhaps more importantly, without knowing their own. Can you explain this a little?

A: Common crucial priorities are the essential things in a relationship: They tell the story of who you are and what you are in terms of feelings and values. Your crucial priorities will also determine how you spend the time and energy of your life.

Q: What are some of these crucial priorities?

A: Well, in no particular order, they are sex, religion, ethnicity, money, pleasurable pursuits, time, integrity, people, family life, children, romance, excitement and peace, work, intellectual activity and physical activity. I say "no particular order" because what is important here is the order — and value — the individual places on these priorities. For instance, while it goes without saying that sexual attraction to each other is important in a long-standing relationship, the level of the attraction two people feel for each other is less important than how they feel about sex — where it is on their priority list. The same is true of religion: How two people feel about it is more relevant than that they are of the same religion. And so on, with whether you like to socialize or not (the "people" priority), what role intellectual stimulation plays, how oriented you are to family life, etc.

Q: It sounds as though you're saying that shared priorities will determine the success or failure of a relationship.

A: People just don't know that this frame of reference is so important — or even that it exists. If we gave each other honest answers about priorities in the beginning, we would know whether we have a good or poor basis for a working relationship, and whether this relationship would last.

A: Just bring it up. Say, "I understand these things are important so let's talk about them." Directness is best, so a great deal depends on the maturity of the people, their willingness to be open with the partner and realistic with themselves. The more immature two people in a relationship are, the more threatened they will be about revealing such things about themselves. And there has to be real exchange, or there will be no trust. The awful thing that happens to people is that they go into relationships on a total fantasy level, and then for years they don't talk, except for what amounts to adolescent banter.

Q: If priorities are different, can you change them to be more complementary?

A: You don't come to these priorities lightly; they are really the sum total of everything you've lived. If you are a highly sexual person, for example, you didn't get there by an act of will. In short, priorities are both very important, and extremely difficult to change, so it's essential to know what they are in advance of commitment to a relationship.

Q: Is it possible, though, for two people with very different priorities to make a relationship work?

A: You can hold the relationship together if you're dealing with two people of considerable maturity who can give each other ample space without feeling neglected and who can also help make the most of those areas they do have in common. Of course, much depends on the particular priorities in question — some are more important than others. FW

"I've never endorsed a garden insecticide before, but this one's a natural."

Bob Thomson, Gardening Expert

"I've read a lot of garden insecticide labels. And most warn you not to pick for at least 24 hours. That's because they contain synthetic or systemic bug killers. But the bug killer in Raid Tomato & Vegetable Fogger is all-natural pyrethrum, derived from a type of chrysanthemum flower. So you can use it right up to harvest.

"Raid's unique fogging action covers leaves more quickly than liquids or dusts. And because the insecticide is all-natural, you can pick and enjoy your vegetables anytime.

THE FLAVOR MAGIC OF STRAWBERRIES AND CREAM

By Marilyn Hansen

"Curly Locks, Curly Locks, wilt thou be mine?. . . Sit on a cushion and sew a fine seam and feast upon strawberries, sugar and cream. . . ."

So goes the old Mother Goose rhyme. Curly locks or no, cushion days behind us, the sensual delight of strawberries and cream still remains ours to enjoy. There is such a host of simply wonderful dishes based upon strawberries and cream — it was difficult to choose this collection for you! Browse through the recipes and see which one best suits your strawberry mood.

STRAWBERRIES AND CREME FRAICHE*

2 cups heavy or whipping cream, unwhipped
2 pt.-size baskets strawberries, lightly rinsed
Turbinado sugar, light brown sugar or confectioners' sugar

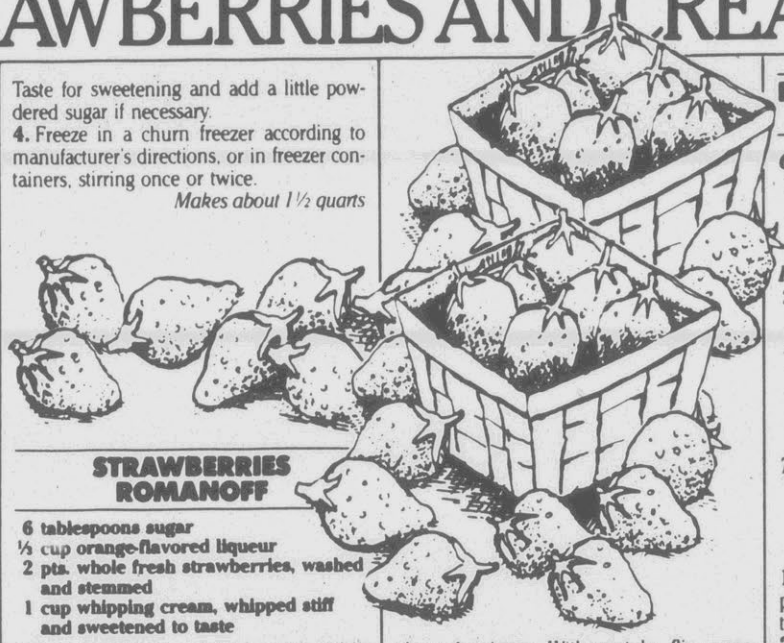

1. In a glass bowl, blend sour cream with heavy cream until smooth. Cover with plastic wrap. Set bowl in a warm place (an oven with a pilot light is best) for 24 hours without disturbing. Then chill at least 24 hours.
2. Drain off any accumulated liquid "whey" if necessary. Spoon crème fraîche into a serving bowl (cut glass would be lovely); pile strawberries into a pretty basket. Allow guests to dip berries into crème fraîche, or provide plates for berries and spoon crème fraîche as desired over each. Lightly sprinkle with sugar as preferred. Makes 4 to 6 servings

*Creme Fraîche is the thick cultured cream product high in butterfat that's used in much of European cooking, especially French. It's available in certain areas in this country, however, you can make an acceptable substitute yourself.

STRAWBERRIES-AND-CREAM ICE CREAM

2 pt.-size baskets strawberries
Juice of a half lemon
½ cup sugar
½ cup water
3 egg yolks
2 cups light cream or half-and-half, scalded and cooled
Powdered sugar to taste

1. Puree the berries coarsely and mix with lemon juice.
2. In a small pan, cook sugar and water over low heat, stirring until sugar dissolves. Boil steadily until syrup spins a thread (230° to 234° on your candy thermometer).
3. Beat yolks until pale, then gradually beat in the syrup until mixture is cool and thick. Stir in cooled cream and strawberry puree. Taste for sweetening and add a little powdered sugar if necessary.
4. Freeze in a churn freezer according to manufacturer's directions, or in freezer containers, stirring once or twice. Makes about 1½ quarts

STRAWBERRIES ROMANOFF

6 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup orange-flavored liqueur
2 pts. whole fresh strawberries, washed and stemmed
1 cup whipping cream, whipped stiff and sweetened to taste

1. In a large bowl, combine sugar and liqueur. Reserve 4 attractive berries for garnish; add remaining to bowl, tossing gently to coat. Marinate in refrigerator 1 to 2 hours.
2. Puree enough marinated berries to make 1 cup; fold into whipped cream.
3. Spoon remaining berries and juice into four stemmed glasses. Top with whipped cream and garnish with the reserved fresh berries. Makes 4 servings

THE COMPLETE STRAWBERRY CREPE

Crepes
2 eggs plus 2 yolks
½ teaspoon salt, or to taste
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1 cup milk
Unsalted butter or margarine, for frying

Filling*
½ cup heavy cream
½ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup powdered sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Sauce
2 pts. strawberries, washed, stemmed, sliced
⅓ cup orange-flavored liqueur
¼ cup currant jelly

1. In blender container, combine crepe ingredients. Whirl 1 minute, scrape down sides with rubber spatula and whirl 15 seconds more. Refrigerate 1 hour. Chill a bowl and beaters for later.
2. Onto lightly buttered pan, pour 2 or 3 tablespoons batter, rotating pan quickly to coat bottom evenly. Cook until brown, about 1 minute. With spatula, flip crepe over; cook until light brown. Remove and cool on rack.

3. In chilled bowl, use beaters and beat cream stiff. On low speed, beat in sour cream, powdered sugar and vanilla. Chill.
4. Make sauce: Slice berries and set aside. In a large saucepan, heat liqueur with currant jelly, stirring until jelly melts. Simmer 3 minutes, then add berries. Remove from heat.
5. To assemble: Put 2 spoonfuls of filling down the center of each crepe and roll. Place 2 crepes seam-side-down on each plate. Spoon warm strawberry sauce over each and serve at once. Makes 8 servings, 2 crepes each

STRAWBERRIES AND CREAM PARFAIT

½ cup sugar
½ cup water
2 pt.-size baskets strawberries, sliced and sweetened
½ cup maraschino, kirsch, cassis or other liqueur
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon almond extract
⅛ teaspoon salt or to taste
1 cup heavy or whipping cream, whipped
6 whole strawberries

1. In a medium-size saucepan, boil sugar and water over medium heat to soft ball stage (238° on your candy thermometer).
2. Marinate strawberries in the liqueur for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, in your largest electric-mixer bowl, beat egg whites stiff, but not dry. Gradually beat in syrup. Add almond extract and salt, mixing until well blended. Fold in whipped cream.
3. Alternate layers of cream mixture and marinated strawberries in parfait glasses. Freeze until firm. Remove from freezer to thaw slightly before serving, about 20 minutes. Garnish with whole strawberries. Makes 6 servings

FAMOUS NEW YORK-STYLE CHEESECAKE

Graham Cracker Crust
1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup sugar
6 tablespoons melted unsalted butter or margarine

Filling
2½ lbs. cream cheese, softened
¼ cup whipping cream
1¼ cups sugar
3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons of both grated lemon and orange peel
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
6 eggs

Topping
½ cup melted currant or strawberry jelly
2 pt.-size baskets large, beautiful berries

1. Mix the crust ingredients together and pat in a buttered 9-inch springform pan that is 3 inches deep.
2. In a large bowl, beat cream cheese with cream, sugar, flour, lemon and orange peel and vanilla. Beat on high speed until fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating smooth. Pour into the crumb-lined pan.
3. Bake in a preheated 500° oven for 10 minutes. Lower heat to 250° and bake 1 hour more. Cool in pan on rack for 2 hours, then chill several hours or overnight.
4. Before serving, melt jelly over low heat and brush surface of cake with a thin layer. Arrange berries upright on cake and spoon remaining glaze over all the berries. Chill. Makes 16 servings

STRAWBERRY BAVAROIS

2 pts. ripe strawberries, cleaned and hulled
Whole strawberries for garnish
¾ cup sugar
½ cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
½ cup Riesling
1½ cups heavy cream, whipped
8-cup mold or 8 individual serving dishes

1. Puree strawberries, then force through a fine sieve to remove seeds. You should have a little over 2 cups of puree.
2. In a small pan, boil sugar and water together for 2 minutes to make heavy syrup.
3. Add lemon juice to the strawberry puree. Sprinkle gelatin over wine, then add softened gelatin to slightly cooled syrup and stir until gelatin dissolves completely. Blend this mixture into puree and refrigerate.
4. When it is soft-set, fold in the whipped cream. Pour into serving dishes or an 8-cup mold that has been rinsed with cold water. Cover and refrigerate at least 8 hours before serving. Unmold and garnish with whole strawberries. Serve with remaining Riesling. Makes 8 servings

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Marion Long

THE GREATEST DISC EVER SOLD

Well, it certainly has been a big hit in print; so why not go video with it? RCA has decided to put the best seller of all time, the Bible, on video discs. For starters, says RCA spokesman Chuck Mitchell, actors will perform scenes from the Old Testament, such as the story of Adam and Eve and the story of Joseph, with narration dubbed in a variety of languages.

Don Hunstein

If the $20 video disc sells well, someday the whole Bible could be available for home showing. Mitchell says it is hoped Sunday school teachers will find the televised version helpful in capturing the interest of young pupils raised with TV. There is absolutely no truth, however, to rumors that biblical video games will follow.

A BRIEF ENCOUNTER

You've come a long way, baby — at least according to a recent study by two Georgia State University researchers. The subject of their scholarly treatise? Male strip shows.

UPI

According to the 14 male strippers interviewed, their fans are "crazy," "dangerous," "wild" and "dirty." (They expected, perhaps, Queen Elizabeth sitting front row center, sipping tea and passing out cucumber sandwiches?)

As reported in Psychology Today, the female member of the research team went to a male strip show in Atlanta once a week for eight months. The audience, described as housewives, secretaries, students and professional women from 18 to 60, often showed up an hour early to get seats within grabbing range of the performers. They yelled things like, "Bring out the men!" They also would rip off the dancers' G-strings and proposition their favorites before, during and especially after the show, as well as touch, pinch and kiss them during their "tabletop" numbers.

The male dancers, the study reveals, feel "exploited and degraded."

Gosh, fellas. Next thing we know you'll be complaining that women are only interested in you for your bodies.

WE REMAIN UNMOVED

During these summer months those Mayflower vans usually get moving in earnest, but it seems as though Americans are suddenly staying put these days. According to a recent Census Bureau report, only 17 percent of Americans changed residences between 1980 and 1981. From 1970-71, 19 percent moved, and during 1960-61, 21 percent changed addresses.

The factors considered responsible: Smaller families mean less need to move to larger homes; the increase in two-income families makes it harder to move because both spouses have to find jobs in the new location; and finally, homes have been hard to buy and even harder to sell in recent years.

Bob Scott

Most of those who hit the road only moved a short distance: 63 percent stayed in the same county, 83 percent in the same state and 91 percent in the same geographical region (defined by the Census folks as Northeast, North Central, South or West).

WHAT PRICE CONSCIENCE?

How do you think people would react to a restaurant that offered its food on a pay-what-you-want basis? The owners of a failing restaurant in Grants Pass, Ore., decided to find out by telling their customers to pay just what they thought their meal was worth.

Gene and Grace Valian, proprietors of the Great American Breakfast and Barbeque House, discovered that some patrons appeared to have "just no consciences at all." The majority of their customers, however, paid "just a shade under what they would have normally paid," report the Valians, and the eatery never lost money on its special offer.

Still, although the promotion did generate new business, after only three weeks the old menus with prices were back on the tables. Why? Regular customers were practically begging the Valians to put the prices back. "They were very, very uncomfortable," Mrs. Valian told us.

NOTHING TO SNEEZE AT

Science is trying to reinvent the nose. Well, not quite, but biochemist Dr. Randall Murphy of New York University is working on what he terms "a nonbiological odor sensor."

Murphy's artificial nose wouldn't be a plastic job attached to a pair of glasses, but rather "a small black box." It would be used at airports, customs-control points and in police work to sniff out evidence detecting drugs and bombs.

The nose would also be able to monitor chemical leaks and toxic emissions with perfect accuracy. Its applications could even enter the realm of romance. "The nose might be used to design smells, molecule by molecule," Murphy suggests. "For example, the perfect aphrodisiac . . ."

C'mon, Dr. Murphy, let's get cracking.

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1 Doorknob is moved. 2 Mail slot is missing. 3 Bow is smaller. 4 Stock ings are changed to socks. 5 Sign is blank. 6 Meter is missing

- WHO SEZ? Quick to perceive another's faults? Remember, you may have a few of your own, as this Bengalese saying suggests: "SAI DTHE SIEV ETOT HENE EDLE, 'YOUH AVE AHOL EINY OURH EAD.'" Rearrange cap-letter spacing for sense.

Said the sieve to the needle: 'You have a hole in your head.'

- Sum Fun! Challenge: Find two numbers whose sum is 14 and whose difference is four. Hint: They are under 20. Time: 30 seconds.

Nine and five will do it

- Name Game! Correct the last names of these fictional detectives: 1. James Blond. 2. Nero Fox. 3. Philo Chance. 4. Sam Shade. 5. Jane Maypole.

1 Bond 2 Wolfe 3 Vance 4 Spade 5 Marple

- Riddle-Me-This! What kit does a moonshiner use? A brew-it-yourself kit. What advice should a cabbage heed? Quit while you're a head. How far back does the name Wanda go? To the Seven Wandas of the World.

FLY-BY-NIGHT WORD SQUARE

There's a TSETSE fly in the ointment here. Six words — TSETSE is already in place — form a word square. You are asked to find the missing words.

Definitions:

1. Ad circular stuffed in a newspaper.
2. Random sounds.
3. "____ Simon met a pieman..."
4. French spirit.
5. What diggers seek in ancient ruins.
6. Infectious fly.

Remember, word square words read the same both vertically and horizontally.

Our Story: ARN HAS BEEN SUMMONED BY KING ARTHUR TO CAMELOT. HE SPENDS A FEW GENIAL HOURS WITH SIR GAWAIN UNTIL THE TOURNEY CONCLUDES. MANY ARE THE BROKEN BONES -- ALTOGETHER A GREAT SUCCESS. GAWAIN NODS TOWARD THE KING'S PHYSICIAN. "ALL YEAR LONG EVERYONE GRUMBLES AT MORGAN TODD'S PAY BUT HE EARNS IT IN A SINGLE DAY."

GAWAIN TURNS MORE SERIOUS AS HE USHERS ARN THROUGH THE FAMOUS MERLIN GATE. ARN HAS SEEN IT MANY TIMES, AND STILL HE LOOKS UP IN AWE.

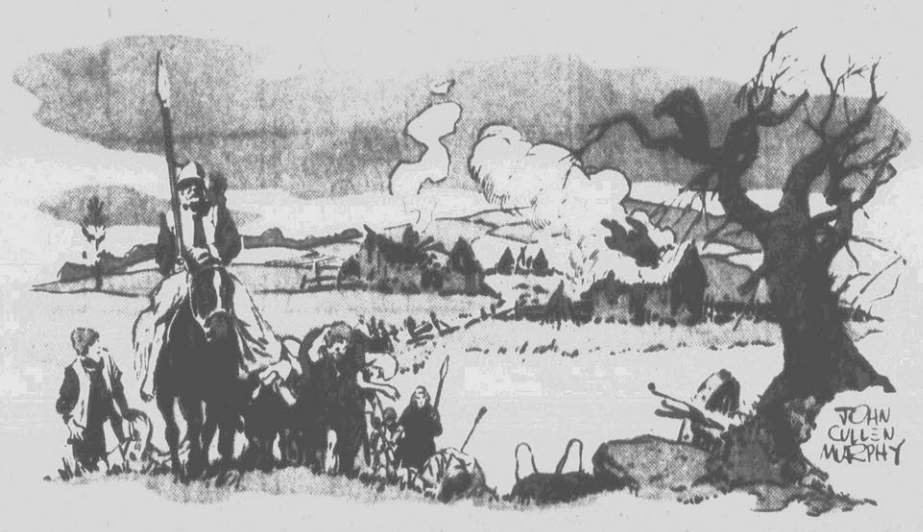

NOW HE IS ESCORTED INTO THE ROYAL PRESENCE. HE HAS MET ARTHUR OFTEN, BUT ALWAYS WITH HIS FATHER. ARN KNEELS IN DEFERENCE. AND ARTHUR SAYS: "YOU HAVE DONE WELL. YOU FULFILLED THE QUEST I GAVE YOU. YOU PROVED YOURSELF RESOURCEFUL." HE BIDS ARN STAND.

"THE THOUGHT HAS NEVER CROSSED YOUR MIND, I AM SURE," THE KING CONTINUES, "BUT THE GLORY OF THE ROUND TABLE MAY ONE DAY BE YOURS. YOU ARE BRAVE ENOUGH AND CLEVER ENOUGH. BUT WHAT ARE YOU REALLY MADE OF, BOY?" THE KING'S KNOBBY FINGERS UNFURL A PARCHMENT.

BUT HE DOES NOT WAIT FOR AN ANSWER. "FOR MANY YEARS SIR LEOFRIC SERVED AS THE PARKER OF ORR, OVERSEER OF MY VAST ESTATES IN EAST ANGLIA. WITH HIS DEATH THESE LANDS HAVE GONE TO RUIN AND BECOME FAIR GAME TO MARAUDING SAXONS. IT MUST BE STOPPED." PRINCE ARN STEPS FORWARD. "IF IT IS A QUEST YOU GIVE I CLAIM IT PROUDLY."
