Property Tax Rate Up 4.5 Cents

$13.48 Million Greenville Budget Adopted

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

In an election year move that has been labeled as "biting the bullet," the City Council adopted a $13.48 million budget for fiscal 1983-84 today that calls for an increase in the local property tax rate of 4.5 cents per $100 valuation.

The board, in a morning call meeting at city hall, also adopted a $54.74 million financial package for Greenville Utilities Commission.

For the first time in at least 28 years, the budget adoption motion did not gain unanimous approval as Councilwoman Janice Buck voted against the package. The dissenting vote was cast in spite of what Mayor Percy Cox said was an agreement on Mrs. Buck's part to support the tax increase if the council would discuss the issue of fees and charges at an upcoming meeting.

Cox, who said the new budget takes care of everyday operating needs of the city and puts Greenville "back in good, sound financial condition," said it was unfortunate that Mrs. Buck missed the last two workshops the council conducted on the budget "or she would have understood" the thinking behind the tax increase. He said the meetings totaled over five hours.

The mayor said that in addition to a $1,450,000 turnover from Greenville Utilities Commission, GUC has agreed to give the city $500,000 to meet immediate capital improvement needs. He said the council "worked harder" on the new budget "than any I've sat in on."

The tax increase raises the local rate to 53.5 cents per $100 valuation and would generate about $351,991 in additional revenues for the city based on an estimated collection rate of 98 percent. City Manager Gail Meeks had said the tax adjustment would alleviate the need to appropriate money from the city's fund balance in order to balance the budget.

The new city segment, which still reflects a decrease from the 1982-83 package of $13.59 million, projects general fund revenues and expenditures of $9,767,837; a revenue sharing trust fund of $695,732; a debt service fund of $2,705,905; a $282,802 public transportation fund; and a Parking Authority fund of $30,420.

Employee salaries are still calculated based upon the June 30, 1983 level, although funds are included in the budget to continue the city's merit program.

Mrs. Buck's decision not to support the budget did not sit well with the council and Louis Clark said that, "Personally, I find it very offensive to me that you would take this position because we have done our homework." He added, "I resent it very much."

Clark said the board, in the two meetings that Mrs. Buck missed, discussed "very openly" the budget situation. He told Mrs. Buck, "You don't want to be a part of this group and I will accept that."

In a statement Mrs. Buck distributed to the mayor and council but was not read into the minutes, she said the proposed budget "does not, in my opinion, serve the present and/or long term capital needs of the city. The budget does not address the $1.2 million needed now for capital improvements or the long term reserve capital needed for the city's growth. It also does not address new revenue sources; and I feel a larger turnover from Utilities and service fees and charges are necessary to increase the revenue side of the budget to accomplish the goals and objectives of the council."

Mrs. Buck has expressed support for the implementation of a collection fee for garbage services in order to secure

See Victory On Tax Cut

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders say they are ready to kill a Democratic plan that would limit the 10 percent personal income tax cut due to take effect Friday.

"I believe we have the votes to defeat it," said Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

The Senate today was taking up the House-passed measure that would limit the July 1 cut in personal income tax rates to a maximum of $720.

Democrats argue that they are trying to restore fairness to President Reagan's tax policies, which they contend favor the rich. In addition, they say that limiting the third installment of the three-year, 25 percent tax cut plan Reagan pushed through Congress in 1981 would boost federal revenues and help pare soaring deficits.

Republicans say passage of the measure would be breaking faith with taxpayers who are counting on the tax cut and could endanger the recovery. They add that Democrats only want the additional revenue to pay for more spending.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia reiterated today that the legislation did not amount to a tax increase.

"Even Merlin the Magician couldn't make anyone believe a $700 cut is a tax increase," Byrd said.

"It is right," Byrd said, acknowledging, "right doesn't always prevail."

As the Senate began work today, there were indications that Democrats would make an effort to have the vote on the issue taken after the president holds a nationally broadcast news conference at 8 p.m. EDT.

Reagan, meanwhile, has called the measure "ill-advised, misguided and politically motivated," and vowed to "stand ready to veto this tax increase should it reach my desk. ..."

But Republicans appeared confident they could prevent the measure from ever getting to the president's desk.

The GOP has a 54-46 majority in the Senate and Baker indicated Monday he also expects some Democratic opposition to the so-called tax cap.

"I think we'll have some Democratic support in our effort to defeat it," Baker said.

Last Thursday, the Democrat-controlled House passed the measure on a 229-191 party-line vote. There were no Republicans voting in favor of it and 29 Democrats joined 162 Republicans in opposition.

Baker promised Democrats a vote on the measure earlier this year in exchange for their help in passing legislation that raised the public debt limit.

The aim of the tax cap is to alter tax brackets at middle- and upper-income levels so that the tax cut would be limited to a maximum of $720 per family and $637 for single people.

Generally, the legislation would affect single taxpayers with income above $36,000 and couples and families with income above $46,000.

In addition, Democrats argue that 89 percent of the $6.2 billion that would be raised by the tax cap would come from people who earn more than $50,000 a year.

For example, a $100,000-a-year family of four could expect a $2,368 tax cut this year. With the cap, that would drop to $720.

While the tax cap issue has become a political skirmish, Congress soon will have to address the issue of raising revenues.

The $859 billion budget blueprint that Congress adopted last week calls on the tax-writing committees in the House and Senate to draft legislation raising $73 billion in additional revenues over the next three years — $12 billion in 1984, $15 billion in 1985 and $46 billion in 1986.

Tobacco Allotments Still Good Investment: Rose

ROSE GIVES LEGISLATIVE UPDATE ... Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., above, was one of 14 speakers at a conference on tobacco held Monday in Greenville. Rose told those attending the seminar that he expects the two-year price support freeze

Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., told those attending a conference on tobacco Monday that he considers the purchase of tobacco allotments a good investment.

"Yes, sir, I do still think it's a good investment despite what's been said and done in the last few years," Rose said when a young farmer questioned him at the conference. "I don't own any but I don't see any reason not to invest in it."

Rose was one of 14 featured speakers who spoke to around 200 farmers and officials from eastern North Carolina at "Between Planting and Pulling," a six-hour conference that concentrated on the future of the gold leaf.

Rose gave a legislative update on tobacco, saying his House Committee on Agriculture had recommended a two-year price support freeze in 1983 at the 1982 level.

"My committee feels very strongly we need a price freeze," (at the '82 level) said the congressman. "This I see as the biggest production legislation coming this year."

In addition, he told farmers a tobacco program was a must. "We've got to work together and make the best of what we've got and never let the program be taken away," Rose said.

Problems facing the program include the lease and transfer system, he said. "Something's got to be worked out that's equitable," Rose noted, "and the same thing goes for widows with allotments. Something fair has to come."

A recent proposal, Rose said, would limit the amount of allotment a producer can buy in a year, but he said he doubted the proposal's success. "We (the committee) told them it's not fair to require people to sell their allotments and then not allow qualified purchasers to buy it," Rose said.

"We told them, 'If you come up with a way to do it, we'll look

Three Killed In Bridge Collapse

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)

A 100-foot section of an interstate highway bridge collapsed before dawn today, hurling trucks and cars 70 feet into the Mianus River. Three people were killed and at least three others were critically injured, authorities said.

The three eastbound lanes of the bridge dropped into the river at about 1:30 a.m. on Interstate 95, Connecticut's main highway into New York City some 20 miles to the southwest.

Two tractor-trailer trucks and two cars fell into the water, and Coast Guard and Greenwich police boats searched the river for more motorists who may have been trapped in their cars.

State police spokesman John McLeod confirmed three people died. In addition, two women and one man were taken to the emergency room of Greenwich Hospital in critical condition.

State Transportation Commissioner J. William Burns said the collapse could have been caused by a missing pin. A large pin, used to hold sections of the bridge together, appeared to be gone and might have vibrated loose, he said.

"If that pin is missing or sheared off, it could have caused that," Burns said. "That pin itself could have been a critical factor."

WEATHER

SHERIFFS' ASSOCIATION MEMBERSHIP?

I recently got a letter signed by Sheriff Ralph L. Tyson inviting me to join the North Carolina Sheriffs' Association. For $15, the letter says, I can be an honorary member for a year and receive by return mail a 1983 membership card for my wallet, two bumper stickers for my car, a window decal and a year's subscription to a magazine, "North Carolina Sheriff."

I would like to know how many of these were mailed to Pitt County citizens, where the mailing list came from, for what the money being solicited for the association in this way is used, and what Sheriff Tyson thinks of this promotional activity. R.R.

Sheriff Tyson said this activity has been in existence throughout the state for about four years now and this is the first year he has given the go-ahead for letters to be sent out in Pitt County. He said he has no idea how many were sent out in this county nor what the source of the mailing list is. He did not provide the mailing list, he said, and everything was handled through the Raleigh office of the Sheriffs' Association. He said he did sign his name giving written permission for his name to be used in the Pitt County mailings, but did not know that signature was going to be incorporated into the letter that went out looking as if it might have been composed by him.

He said he believes the money raised in this honorary membership drive is used for various Sheriffs' Association projects, including statewide crime prevention education programs and a law enforcement scholarship program.

A call to Howard Cramer, executive director of the Association, so far has not been returned, but we will publish any new information we get from him about the mailing in a later issue.

New Division Highway Engineer Is Named

RALEIGH — George Richard "Rick" Shirley Jr., 40, has been named to head the North Carolina Department of Transportation's 2nd Highway Division headquartered in Greenville.

Shirley, an 18-year employee of the department, will replace Charles W. "Charlie" Snell Jr. who will retire June 30.

Transportation Secretary William R. Robertson, who announced Shirley's appointment, said the new division engineer "is an excellent choice to head division operations in Greenville. His experience during the past 18 years, in the 1st, 4th, 5th and 7th divisions, will help insure that Division 2 is run smoothly and efficiently."

Shirley said that emphasis will continue to be placed on the department's maintenance program and management efforts in improving efficiency for all division operations.

"It is my belief that we will continue to get better service and benefit from our highway system by providing a higher level of maintenance to protect our roads," Shirley said.

Shirley is presently district engineer for Nash and Wilson counties in the 4th Division. He has a B.S. degree in civil engineering from N.C. State University and is a registered professional engineer.

Snell, who has been a DOT employee for 36 years, has been a division engineer for the past 25 years.

Robertson praised Snell for the "outstanding service rendered to the public. We wish him well in his retirement."

Couple Marries On Sunday

Gethsemane Pentecostal Holiness Church was the scene of the double-ring wedding ceremony of Patricia Gail McLawhorn of Greenville and Ervin Ray Everett Jr. of Ayden held Sunday at 3:00 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Jackson McLawhorn of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Ray Everett Sr. of Grimesland.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bobby Forehand. A program of wedding music was presented by organist Judy Jones and soloist the Rev. Bruce Jones.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal-length gown of white chantilly lace over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline encircled with ruffled cluny lace edged in tiny floral silk venise lace. The sheer yoke featured an embroidered flower motif centered with tiny pearls and bordered with pleated organza. The full sheer sleeves were fashioned in chantilly lace with ruffled cuffs. The bouffant skirt and attached cathedral-length train featured borders of ruffled cluny lace in a scalloped pattern. She wore a bridal garden hat overlaid in beaded chantilly lace. The hat was trimmed in sheer illusion and white satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white miniature carnations, pink sweetheart roses and lavender daisies.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Joan Anderson of Greenville. She wore a formal-length gown of lilac polyester lace lined with acetate taffeta. The gown featured a stand-up collar and V-shaped front and back yokes with a raised waistline and full skirt.

Bridesmaids were Terry Pollard, Sylvia Haddock, Loria Vainwright and Michelle McRoy, all of Greenville. Each bridesmaid was attired in an orchid taffeta gown designed with a high neckline, sheer V-yoke of schiffli lace and short princess puffed sleeves. Matching schiffli lace encircled the waistline. Each carried an arm bouquet of white snapdragons, pink miniature carnations and lavender daisies.

Flower girls were Brandee McLawhorn and Krystal Mills, both of Ayden. Each flower girl wore a gown of lavender sheerganza print fashioned with a round neckline with a softly gathered ruffle accented with satin shoulder bows. The gowns featured softly gathered skirts accented with a deep sheerganza ruffle with side pickups with satin bows. Each carried a basket filled with lavender daisies, pink sweetheart roses and greenery and ribbon.

Glenn Mills of Route 2, Ayden, served as best man. Ushers were Steve Vainwright, Ray Gladson and Allen McLawhorn, brother of the bride, all of Greenville; and S.L. Everette of Grimesland.

The bride's mother wore a pink chiffon and lustreglo gown with a soft chiffon cape. The bridegroom's honorary mother, Barbara Mills, wore a formal-length gown of aqua blue taffeta with a detachable caplet. Each wore a wrist corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride hosted a wedding reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

After the rehearsal Saturday evening, the couple was entertained with a beef barbeque at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis N. Mills.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is employed by Burroughs Wellcome Co. The bridegroom is a graduate of D.H. Conley and is employed by Vermont American. They will reside at Route 1, Winterville.

Others placing were Mrs. Robert Bright and Mrs. Debbie Carson, second; Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts, third; Mrs. Charles Mitchell and Mrs. Robert Blenk, fourth.

Miss Cox, Mr. Loftis Say Vows

GRIFTON — Cynthia Carole Cox and John Wayne Loftis Jr. were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 5:30 in the Grifton United Methodist Church. The double-ring candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lloyd Edge.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Hilda Buck Cox of Greenville and William F. Cox of Grifton. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John Wayne Loftis Sr. of Greensboro.

A program of nuptial music was presented by David Kirk of Rocky Mount, organist, and Mrs. Christy Hill of Grifton, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a V-neckline outlined in silk venise lace beaded with pearls. The fitted bodice was enhanced with appliques of silk venise lace which encircled the waistline. The sheer bishop sleeves were accented with motifs of matching lace. A Dior bow was featured at center back. The full circular skirt and attached chapel-length train were accented by cascading tiers of organza with pencil edging and chantilly lace and silk venise lace motifs. She wore a double-tiered veil of illusion with silk venise lace held in place by a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace, beaded sequins and pearls. She carried a classic cascade bouquet of silk freesia, lilies of the valley and baby's breath with picot satin ribbons, centered with a large live purple-throated white cattleya orchid.

Janet Susan Loftin of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of lilac taffeta designed with an open neckline featuring a double ruffle of taffeta outlining the off-shoulder bodice and deep scooped back. A self-fabric corded belt encircled the waistline, from which fell the gathered skirt. She carried a bouquet of double purple cattleya orchids accented with baby eucalyptus, fig foliage and purple ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Susan Elizabeth Baker and Alta Dawn Dale of Kinston. They wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor and carried bouquets with a single purple cattleya orchid accented with baby eucalyptus, fig foliage and purple ribbon.

Jennifer Buck of Washington, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and wore a lilac formal gown in the same design as that of the honor attendant. She carried a lace basket of lavender daisies, pink miniature carnations and purple statice. She wore a matching floral coronet in her hair.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were William Frederick Cox Jr. of Greenville, brother of the bride; Roger Andrews of Greensboro, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; and Patrick Hagan Jr. of Ayden.

The bride's mother chose a formal chiffon gown of sage complimented with a lace jacket. She wore a white purple-throated cattleya orchid. The mother of the bridegroom wore a mauve formal gown and a white cattleya orchid. The grandmothers wore corsages of white sweetheart roses.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Marie Robinson of Ayden. Mrs. Patrick T. Hagan Jr. of Ayden presided at the guest register.

Friday night, a party and cake cutting was given by the parents of the bride and bridegroom in the church fellowship hall after the rehearsal. Mr. and Mrs. Ike Baldree presided at the guest register. Mrs. Mary Lee Loftis and Mrs. Jeannette Cox, aunts of the bride, served the cake and Mrs. Mary Andrews, sister of the bridegroom, served punch. Also assisting in serving was Debra Strickland of Farmville. The couple was entertained with several other parties.

The bride graduated from Arrendell Parrott Academy in Kinston and attended Greensboro College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Page High School in Greensboro and Guilford Community College. He is employed by Duke Power in Greensboro.

The couple will reside in Greensboro.

Sexual Myths Produce One Very Real Baby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Today my doctor destroyed two myths that I had always thought were facts:

1. A nursing mother cannot get pregnant.
2. A woman cannot get pregnant unless the male has an orgasm.

My doctor said that these two old wives tales, handed down from generation to generation, are responsible for an untold number of unplanned pregnancies.

Abby, please tell your readers that a nursing mother can become pregnant and that the fluid secreted by the male during foreplay is just as impregnating as the fluid released during orgasm. A man doesn't have to have an orgasm to get a woman pregnant!

My son was only 2 months old when I became pregnant again. I honestly believed that because I was a nursing mother I was doubly protected.

Your column reaches so many people, Abby, that if you print this, it may keep someone else from relying on these myths as a form of birth control. Thank you.

TWO BABIES IN 11 MONTHS

DEAR TWO: Thank you for a helpful letter that should do away with two misconceptions — no pun intended.

DEAR ABBY: I don't care how much flak you get for suggesting that the Johnsons should thank God their problem is so insignificant. (They complained that their son didn't give them enough respect because he addressed his letters to "The Johnsons" instead of to "Mr. and Mrs. Johnson.")

You did right to tell them about some of the tragic letters you had received that day. It could help put their petty little problem into its proper perspective.

I am reminded of something I heard many years ago that is appropriate to this situation: "I complained because I had no shoes until I met a man who had no feet."

NO COMPLAINTS IN BOSTON

DEAR NO COMPLAINTS: Thanks, friend. I needed that.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my parents, who live in another state, came for a visit, and I have been upset since they left.

I have two children, a daughter, 18, and a son, 13. Lately they have been playing little games with each other. They try to see who can give the other one the biggest hickey. They also wrestle each other on the bed quite a bit.

My mother was appalled and said I had better do something quick since this type of behavior is not normal between a brother and sister. I never thought a thing about it until my mother got so "appalled" and put those terrible thoughts in my head. I just thought it was a part of growing up, and, after all, this is a new generation.

Nevertheless I am now upset. Please give me your opinion. We both read your column.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Many brothers and sisters roughhouse in the spirit of playfulness during adolescence. But at 18, your daughter is a young woman, and as such she would be well-advised to skip the hickeys and wrestling on the bed with her kid brother.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Will Terminate Local Funding

CHICAGO (AP) — The Reagan administration is moving "to terminate desegregation funds to local boards," the chief desegregation counsel for the Chicago Board of Education has charged.

Robert Howard said Monday the Chicago school system spent $57 million on its desegregation plan in fiscal 1982, while federal assistance has been slightly under $2 million each year.

Howard's charges came on the heels of a federal judge's order barring the U.S. Department of Education from spending $12.5 million in desegregation funds while he decides whether the money should go to Chicago schools. The board contends federal officials reneged on a funding promise made in a 1980 consent decree to settle a desegregation suit.

Novice Boy Scouts Found A 'Spy Buoy'

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — The novice Boy Scouts on their first overnight hike were convinced the strange buoy that they stumbled on at the beach was a Russian spy device.

Months later, it turned out they were right and they've been made honorary members of the U.S. Navy, their scout leader says.

The 11-year-olds of Troop 321 from Chehalis were on their first hike in their first month as scouts last September when they came upon the orange-and-white striped buoy on the Washington coast.

The buoy, 4 feet in diameter, looked suspicious: On its side, 6 inches high, were the orange letters U-S-S-R.

Scout leader Mark Carrington says Navy officials now have confirmed the buoy apparently was set adrift off the Strait of Juan de Fuca to identify sound patterns made by the U.S. Navy's Trident submarines.

On Friday, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger mentioned the buoy in a widely reported speech.

Carrington read Weinberger's statement in a Bellevue newspaper.

"There's no doubt he was talking about our buoy," he said. Navy officials in Seattle confirmed his statements.

The 12 scouts and four adults were hiking from LaPush to Cape Alava on the Washington coast when they discovered the buoy stranded on the beach about 1½ miles south of Sand Point.

It had three metal propellers, no anchor cable and two metal stubs where antennas probably had protruded.

Besides the USSR insignia, the words The Academy of Sciences were printed in English on one side of the buoy, in Russian on the other side.

The scouts wanted to roll or carry the buoy back to civilization. "We all tried to push it but it wouldn't budge," said Carrington.

The next night, when they returned to Chehalis, one of the adults reported the buoy to the U.S. Coast Guard.

The next day, the phone calls began.

First the U.S. Navy's underwater warfare section wanted an accurate description and wanted to know whether the Navy could land a seaplane near the beached buoy. Next the FBI wanted information. Then the Navy called again and again.

Finally, in November, a Navy captain called from Washington, D.C., and said that the buoy's sole purpose was spying.

"He said what we found was of national security importance," Carrington said. "He said we would be made honorary members of the Navy and be given a $200 award."

During their hike, the scouts had noticed a vessel with bright lights on the western horizon each night.

"It was lit up like a Christmas tree," Carrington recalled. "The Navy told us that's right where the Russian ship was."

He was referring to the Russian spy ship Aavril Sarychev, which hovered off the Strait of Juan de Fuca last summer, apparently awaiting arrival of the Trident submarine USS Ohio. The Ohio is based on Washington state's Hood Canal.

N. State Offer To First Colony

North State Financial Corporation, a savings and loan holding company which began operations in Greenville in August 1979 when North State Savings and Loan opened, has completed negotiations concerning a tender offer to purchase the common stock of First Colony Savings and Loan Association.

First Colony has 10 offices in nine cities, including Raleigh, Cary, Tarboro, Wilmington, Albemarle, Southern Pines, Rockingham, Clinton and Fayetteville.

First Colony officials said that North State was invited by management and the board of directors last week to negotiate a transaction which they could recommend to their shareholders in preference to the unsolicited offer made by First Financial Savings and Loan of Kinston, which was previously rejected by the First Colony board.

First Financial offered $13 per share directly to First Colony shareholders. But First Colony officials have advised shareholders to reject the offer while the board sought a better offer.

First Colony President Paul W. Clark said the North State offer is expected to be "substantially more."

North State spokesman Bill Reagan said this morning that "if we make an offer, it will be Thursday night or Friday morning."

Reagan said "we've made a determination" as to an offer, but said he could not say what it is.

He said North State was "invited in, we did not interject ourselves in the situation until invited."

North State has five savings offices in North Carolina, including sites in Ahoskie, Windsor, Wilson and two in Greenville, as well as two loan production offices in Virginia. Present assets of North State total $130 million.

Reagan said that North State has two other merger agreements — one with New Bern Savings and Loan, and one with Martin County Savings and Loan — that if completed would give North State assets totaling $220 million by year-end and additional offices in New Bern, Bayboro and Williamston.

First Colony has assets totaling about $110 million.

Ponder Killer's Sanity Status

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — Murder convict Richard Biegenwald, linked to six slayings while on parole, will undergo psychiatric evaluation to determine whether he is fit to stand trial and if an insanity defense is feasible, his attorney says.

Attorney Louis Diamond said Biegenwald, 42, was "in very good spirits" after pleading innocent Monday to murder, armed robbery and weapons offenses in the death last September of 34-year-old William J. Ward.

Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Shebell Jr. set trial for Nov. 28 and ordered Biegenwald's lawyers to disclose by July 29 whether they will use insanity as a defense. Biegenwald has been indicted in one other death and prosecutors say he has been linked to four more.

Girl Dies Of Lightning Bolt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Stephanie E. Royall, 16, of Raleigh, died Sunday from injuries she received when struck by lightning June 14 at Umstead State Park.

Miss Royall, who had finished her sophomore year at Broughton High School, was working as a Camp Sycamore counselor when she and another girl were struck by lightning.

Miss Royall remained in a coma until she died at Rex Hospital about 6 p.m.

Tax Is Needed

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners has agreed to authorize a referendum on a proposal for a fire district in the Bell Arthur area that would levy a special tax for firefighting purposes. The tax is being sought by the Bell Arthur Fire Department, which contends that future capital outlays — such as the $54,000 for a new truck already needed — will be out of the question unless the revenue is provided.

None of us wants more taxes now, but we don't want our protection cut off, either. California has tried the reduced-tax route, and that state and some of its municipalities are fighting off insolvency.

Holding the line at the existing level won't work, either. Example: What happens when that old Bell Arthur truck finally quits and there isn't a new one to take its place?

Like it or not, taxation is the only way we can provide services and protection. We've done it for schools here; other states have done it for years for water, fire or other municipal services. Bell Arthur is just the first local area to go that route for fire protection. It probably will not be the last.

Space Colony Ahead?

While the landing was not as planned, the nation's space shuttle Challenger has successfully competed another mission in earth orbit.

The space launching was perfect and, as always, spectacular. Interest centered on the first female astronaut, Sally Ride.

What was important, however, is that far more was learned about living and working in space. Valuable experiments were carried out and we are seeing that space shuttles are a practical way of placing communications satellites in orbit and repairing them if they malfunction.

Traveling into space is still a costly project. Already, however we are making practical use of earth orbits for communications and other endeavors. It is no longer a dream that space colonies will someday exist; it is virtually a certainty.

Auto Imports

TOKYO — Japan's business-government combine is ready to extend its "voluntary" quota on auto imports for a fourth year, a signal of intense apprehension over an America viewed by Japanese as having lost its self-confidence and, consequently, become dangerous.

Although the official position is that the auto quota will not be renewed when it expires in mid-1983, business and government officials told us a one-year extension is the bare minimum. "Can you really imagine unrestricted auto imports ever resuming?" a MITI (Ministry of International Trade and Industry) official asked us. What's more, Japanese business is eager for a similar limit on steel exports to the U.S. to muffle an anti-Japanese explosion.

Such eagerness to please hardpressed American industries is no sign of U.S.-Japanese amity, but betrays fear for the future of the relationship. A week of interviewing well-placed figures in government, politics and business showed the Japanese establishment gloomy over the U.S. economy and worried that Americans had so lost their confidence that they might not exploit inherent advantages in high technology. The result could well be retaliation against Japan.

Kiuchi Miyazawa, a former foreign minister, a factional leader in the ruling conservative Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) and probably the next prime minister, told us that he and American friends for the first time cannot find common ground in discussing economic issues. Miyazawa, who speaks fluent English, then added: "We went to war over these issues 40 years ago."

A resumption of that war would be fought not with guns but with trade sanctions ruinous to the free world's economy. Ambassador Mike Mansfield, the most popular American envoy ever sent here, has stressed for five years that a protectionist tidal wave might sweep out of Congress against the wishes of the current administration. He keeps a gallery of autographed photographs of House and Senate leaders, not out of nostalgia for his days as Senate majority leader but to impress on Japanese visitors the power of Capitol Hill.

The Japanese have absorbed Mansfield's lessons sufficiently to take real steps in opening their domestic market to American goods. Whatever psychological impact might be derived from recent trade reforms, however, was dulled by continuing LDP efforts to protect its dwindling farm constituency from American farm exports. Thus, the U.S. delayed an international appeal to the GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) until after the June 26 elections for the Diet's upper house at the specific request of LDP Secretary General Susumu Nikaido.

In fact, Japanese businessmen and politicians believe complaints about difficulty in penetrating their market are a pretext for American protectionism. In the same category, they think, are recent U.S. complaints that Japan's "industrial policy" unfairly subsidizes "targeted" industries.

What really concerns the Americans, in Tokyo's view, is not too few U.S. exports but too many Japanese imports — especially autos. That's why MITI and Keidanren, the powerful Japanese manufacturers association, are convinced the "voluntary" quota must be extended.

"It has not worked very well," longtime Nissan chairman Katsuji Kawamata said of the quota, clearly indicating to us he wants no extension. Kawamata was not so blunt as to say it, but the view here is that American automakers have not taken advantage of the respite from unrestrained Japanese competition and are still building gas-guzzlers. As far as cracking the Japanese market, there is not the slightest evidence here of a serious effort by Detroit either in merchandising or engineering.

Since the Reagan administration has no interest in irrational currency reform that would reduce trading advantages of the low-valued Japanese yen, there is one real hope of easing U.S.-Japanese trade frictions: a strong U.S. economy.

"Tension is rising," Naohiro Amaya, a frequent negotiator in U.S.-Japanese trade talks, told us. "The question is whether the U.S. will be successful in revitalizing itself." Amaya is more optimistic about the American economy than other Japanese experts but does not include import-threatened autos and steel on his revitalization list. "Their future won't be so rosy," he added.

As seen from Tokyo, the American future is high technology, where the U.S. enjoys formidable advantages. We found influential Japanese worried that traditional American self-confidence has been eroded by loss of the U.S. auto market to Japanese competition. The result: an unrealistically pessimistic U.S. outlook toward hi-tech competition.

The only alternative, then, would be lethal protectionism. "We are very much concerned," Masaya Miyoshi, managing director of Keidanren, told us. In the 15 years we have been visiting here, Japan's attitude toward Uncle Sam has thus evolved from post-war respect to Nixon-shock anger to superiority over performance to today's deep concern.

WASHINGTON — The trouble with writing about the national debt — one trouble, anyhow — is that the figures cannot be translated into mental images. With some effort, we can imagine figures that are only in the millions: We can visualize a summer's attendance at the ballparks; we can see millions of moviegoers, or millions of bushels of wheat. Once we get into billions, the mind begins to balk. To talk of trillions is to lose an audience altogether. Nobody can imagine a trillion of anything.

Nevertheless we must try. Last month Congress gave us a new permanent ceiling of $1.389 trillion on the statutory debt. The old limit had been $400 billion, but that was a Smithsonian kind of figure, meant to be housed in a museum of nostalgia. The new limit will carry our government through the end of the fiscal year in September.

If there is any good news about the statutory debt, let me give it to you now. Our current trillion-dollar debt equals 37 percent of the year's gross national product. That may seem high, but at the end of World War II the federal debt of $271 billion actually exceeded a GNP of $210 billion. As recently as 1960, the percentage was 58.4. In this perspective, the current national debt is not grossly out of line; it is about where it was 10 years ago.

There is another cheerful item also, which I bring to you courtesy of Bruce Bartlett, director of the House and Senate Joint Economic Committee. The government owes almost a third of the debt to itself. The Federal Reserve System, the mythical Social Security Trust Fund and other agencies own about $300 billion in federal bonds. "Economically," Bartlett explains, "this is the equivalent of taking money from one pocket and putting it in another. We could wipe out over 30 percent of the federal debt overnight simply by canceling bonds already owned by government agencies. This would have no economic effect and might make people feel that the debt is less of a burden than they thought it was."

Forget the cosmetic gestures. In a brief report on our total national debt, Bartlett provides some mind-boggling data. The statutory debt, great as it is, represents "only a small fraction" of the government's total liabilities. Most persons are only dimly aware of the "off-budget debt" represented by loans and loan guarantees, but economically these obligations affect the credit market in the same way that statutory debt affects it.

Piled on top of the statutory debt and the off-budget debt are enormous contingent liabilities, chiefly in our promises to pay pension, retirement and disability benefits and insurance commitments.

"The figures for these contingent liabilities are not widely publicized," says Bartlett, "and understandably so. If the general public were fully aware of their liability as taxpayers to pay for extravagant promises made over the years by their elected leaders, they might be very upset."

At the end of the last fiscal year, for one example, the Social Security system had an unfunded liability of $2.3 trillion. Military retirement benefits of $427 billion eventually must be paid. Insurance commitments are estimated at $2 trillion. Taking everything together, the government — meaning all of us — has commitments, loan guarantees, insurance liabilities, outright debt and unpaid bills amounting to $6.873 trillion.

To be sure, many of the insurance liabilities and loan guarantees may never have to be paid, and in any literal sense the government is not about to go bankrupt. Even so, says Bartlett, "it is disturbing that the federal government is accumulating liabilities of such massive proportion. We may be imposing on unborn generations tax burdens, inflation or, at the very least, political dilemmas of great size, as hard choices must be made between the cancellation of implied promises and contracts made years earlier and the threat of taxes or monetary policies which could destroy the economy."

What are we leaving to our children? It is a question that concerns many individual households as older persons reflect upon their own mortality. As a government, we are leaving to our children a prodigious burden of debt that we rolled up, and they will have to bear.

CORRECTION OF A GOOF IN THE COLUMN FOR JUNE 11/12: In a piece of whimsy the other day, having to do with a barnstorming swallow that was attacking me, I wrote that the swallow thought he was Manfred von Richthofen "in a Messerschmitt." I have now been abundantly reproached and educated. The German ace flew a red Fokker triplane equipped with twin Spandau machine guns. The first military Messerschmitt was not produced until 20 years after Richthofen's death. This should teach me something about writing whimsy, but it probably won't. — J.J.K.

Public Forum

To the editor:

At its June 20 meeting, the Greenville School Board unanimously approved Dr. Delma Blinson's proposal that the present system for the grouping of students at Aycock Junior High School be continued for the 1983-84 academic year. The board approved the proposal even though Superintendent Blinson readily conceded during the meeting that Aycock's grouping policy was, in his words, "indefensible" on educational and legal grounds; despite the fact that Aycock Principal Kay Whitehurst is unable to delineate the sort of special education gifts students are provided under the school's grouping policy; and even though the policy is so nebulous that Mrs. Whitehurst could not identify the academic range of students in the various Aycock groupings.

State law requires the Greenville school system to provide a meaningfully differentiated educational program for children designated "gifted and talented" by state testing procedures just as the state provides special education for students with learning disabilities. Dr. Blinson said during the meeting of the Board that the state had approved Aycock's program. According to the State Department of Public Instruction, however, the state has only certified that Aycock students designated "gifted and talented" meet state guidelines and that Aycock has developed an educational plan for each student. The state has not approved the substance of the differentiated education provided gifted students under Aycock's present grouping policy; and, in truth, gifted students cannot receive the sort of differentiated education state law envisions with the heterogeneous classroom groupings Aycock's policy produces.

My wife and I are deeply grateful for the educational opportunities our children have been given at Elmhurst, South Greenville and Greenville Middle School. If the Aycock faculty is able to provide similar rewarding experiences for gifted students during the 1983-84 academic year, however, it will be in spite of the efforts of Aycock's principal and Greenville's school superintendent, not because of them.

Students Can Be Teachers

RALEIGH — North Carolina's public schools have a valuable educational resource that is generally going untapped. Elizabeth Foster, peer helping coordinator for the Dare County schools, says our students themselves can be valuable teachers and counselors for their colleagues.

Mrs. Foster, president of the N.C. Peer Helpers Association, spoke at the N.C. School Discipline Conference in mid-June. She told a small group of educators that Dare County's schools had seen a significant drop in both academic and discipline problems since instituting a peer helper program three years ago.

Peer Helping is a catch-all for peer tutoring, peer counselling and cross age tutoring and counselling. About 150 schools and agencies in North Carolina have some kind of peer help program and most are represented in the association which Mrs. Foster heads.

With peer helping, one student tries to help another. Say for example that Joe is a good English student. At the Dare County schools, he'll get nine weeks of training from Mrs. Foster. Then, he goes into a classroom and spends 10 minutes a day helping a student who is having trouble in English.

The negative aspects of peer pressure have been widely discussed. With peer tutoring, Mrs. Foster says, the positive side of that pressure surfaces. But there's more than peer pressure involved for the student who is being tutored. The student gets someone's undivided attention on his weak subject for 10 minutes. That's a short time but in that time his learning experience is much more intense, Mrs. Foster says. He can't sit passively, tuning out the classroom lecturer. He must express himself and he gets immediate feedback on his work.

It's not all give for the tutor, either, she says. Tutors learn the qualities of leadership and responsibility. They also develop a better understanding of the academic material which they are teaching. And, they enjoy the rewards of realizing that they're using what they've learned.

Mrs. Foster says that youngsters in the Dare schools have improved their attendance, behavior and attitudes after joining the tutoring and counselling programs.

If both the giver and the taker are happy, so are the schools and the communities, she said. Classroom teachers report that the tutors provide the one-on-one help their students sometimes need, but which they don't often have the time to give. The program has also given a good name to learning. It's that peer pressure.

Teachers also find that they are better understood by their students. It's the old story of understanding a man better after you've walked a mile in his moccasins. (Understanding well enough, Mrs. Foster said, that many students who thought they wanted to be teachers decide, by year's end, that they'd prefer to shoot for another profession.)

For the community, there's the benefit of a steady stream of trained volunteers. Students learn to give during their school years. After they graduate, they naturally seek out civic groups with whom to work.

The peer tutors and counsellors are not a cure-all for the woes of the state's public schools. They can't replace teachers and guidance counsellors. But, because they are the same age as their fellow students, they can add another dimension to the school day. And, they can help relieve some of the tensions in our schools, she says.

Peer helping, Mrs. Foster says, is something a great many more schools should look into.

Lest It Be Forgotten

concluded that the sharp gains experienced over the last 12 months are understandable and do not represent such an unprecedented change that the market must inevitably fall back...."

And at the Conference Board, they want you to know the good news is spreading. With the United States leading the way, it announced, "most of the world's major industrial nations continue on the road to economic recovery."

Geoffrey Moore, respected statistician and economist, terms the United States and Canada expansion "strong," and those in the United Kingdom, West Germany and France "accelerating."

Even in Italy, where the expansion was termed only "modest," and in Japan, where it was said to have stopped, the board found some evidence to suggest better times.

Unfortunately, when the mood changes to optimism it doesn't always persist, due in part to the propensity of economies to spew out the unexpected, and in part to the realists who remind us of what we try to forget.

About unemployment, for example, which remains in the double digits in the United States, while management, labor and government try to figure out how the nation can provide jobs while simultaneously automating.

There remains the problem also of so many untrained workers coming into the marketplace while the marketplace demands newer and more sophisticated skills to operate electronic machinery.

The federal deficit remains, in spite of promises to eliminate it, and nobody seems to have come up with the innovations — some say the miracles — required to fulfill the promises.

Perhaps most amazing of all the problems that have been forced from the mind while people extol the recovery is the fragility of the international monetary system. A few weeks ago the system was said to be threatened with collapse because of the inability of less developed nations to pay the banks.

That situation remains essentially the same. It hasn't gone away, even if, for the time being, it has gone from mind.

Strength For Today

Sometime ago a woman in Japan lost her husband and was left almost without resources to provide for herself and her three children.

One day one of her children, a little girl, brought her a booklet which she had found lying on the street. "Somebody must have lost it," said the girl. "I read it; there is a wonderful story there about a man who helps the helpless." The booklet was a reprint of the Gospel of Luke.

The woman read it from

NEW YORK (AP) — In the past few weeks there has been a change of mood about the economy, one that can't be measured as precisely as industrial production, for example, but which might be just as important nevertheless.

Consumers are sounding and acting as if they like the condition of the economy, and so are economists and the institutions they represent. So much so that some of them sound like White House representatives.

The people who measure consumer sentiment are saying it has become as strong as it was right after the 1973-1975 recession, and those who observe economists at work find they are beginning to develop confidence themselves.

Some are actually crowing. According to Citibank economists "While others were warning that high real interest rates and huge deficits would hobble — or even halt — the nascent recovery, we envisioned just the opposite."

Those who follow the views of stock bookers are hearing something of the same. At some firms, it seems, the biggest concern at the moment is to disabuse customers of the notion that no more profit opportunities remain.

Aetna Life & Casualty recently issued a report in which it sought to dispel the fear that stocks were destined to fall again, as a few grim stockpickers have warned.

Said economist Ralph Tate: "We have

The class will meet at the Greenville Recreation and Parks Community Building on Fourth and Greene streets from 9 a.m. until noon for eight weeks. Crafts including lampshade making and basket weaving will be covered.

The registration fee will be $15 per students with no charge for senior citizens. Students will be responsible for supplies and materials. For further information, contact the Division of Continuing Education at 756-3130, Ext. 253.

False Pretense Charges Lodged

Kevin Jerome Dixon, 24, of Route 3, Greenville, has been arrested by Greenville police on five false pretense charges in connection with several incidents that occurred in May.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers took Dixon into custody last week. He said Dixon allegedly charged a total of $128 worth of gas and other items to his employer at the North Greene Street Texaco Station without his employer's authorization.

Whitehurst Named To Board

Cmdr. William B. Whitehurst, U.S. Navy (Ret.), has been reappointed for a two-year term to the Battleship North Carolina at Wilmington Commission. Whitehurst, a Bethel native, has made his home in Greenville since his retirement from the Navy.

Heroin Possession Charge Filed

Carl Jerome Pettus, 30, of 1400C Fleming St. was arrested last week on possession of heroin charges following a search of his home, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

Cannon said Greenville police, Pitt County sheriff's deputies and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation found $573 in cash and 60 plastic packets of heroin during the search on Thursday.

The chief said Jo Ann Pettus, 27, of 1400C Fleming St. was charged with hindering and delaying officers and resisting arrest in connection with the search.

First Timothy Holds Services

Services will be held at First Timothy Free Will Baptist Church on Dickinson Avenue Thursday through Sunday.

Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Bishop J.N. Gilbert and the Arthur Chapel FWB Church congregation will be in charge; Friday, Bishop W.L. Phillips and the Rock Spring Senior Choir; Saturday, Elder Horace Joyner and Mount Shiloh Church congregation; Sunday, Elder David Godley and the First Timothy church family.

Stabbing, Rape Investigated

Chief Glenn Cannon said today that officers were continuing their investigation of a Friday night stabbing and what may be a related abduction and rape.

The chief said James Wilkerson of Greenville was allegedly stabbed two times in the back at a club on 12th Street late Friday night following an argument over his girlfriend.

Cannon said a 28-year-old woman, who identified herself as Wilkerson's girlfriend, reported to police Saturday morning that she had been abducted and raped by three men.

Cannon said the women told investigators that she was walking to the hospital to see Wilkerson when a car occupied by three men stopped and the men forced her into the vehicle.

She was quoted as saying she was then driven into the country, raped by each of the men, then driven back to town.

EMPORIA, Va. (AP) — A rescue worker says "nothing bigger than a mailbox" was left of a Marine bomber after it crashed near the North Carolina border, killing one flier and injuring another.

The two crewmen ejected as the A-6 Intruder went down in a marshy area about 12:45 p.m. Monday while on a low-level training flight from Maryland to North Carolina, said State Police and Maj. Dennis Brooks, a Marine spokesman.

The plane was so torn apart that "there's nothing bigger than a mailbox," said Ricky Newsome, an Emporia resident who helped search the area.

"There's really nothing left. The only thing we can find are some small pieces," said Greenville County Sheriff Earl D. Sasser.

Small fragments of fuselage, a tire fragment, scraps of fabric, singed tatters of flight manuals and part of a circuit board were scattered around a 200-yard area.

Hogs
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market today was mostly 1.00 to 1.25 lower. Kinston 45.00, Clinton, Elizabethtown, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadbourn, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson 44.25, Wilson 45.00, Salisbury 43.50, Rowland 44.00, Spivey's Corner 44.50. Sows: all weights 500 pounds up; Wilson 35.00, Fayetteville 34.00, Whiteville 36.00, Wallace 34.00, Spivey's Corner 35.00, Rowland 34.00, Durham 35.50.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 47.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2-2 to 3 pound birds. The final weighted average was 45.84 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market tone for next week's trading is firm and the live supply is moderate for a good demand. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 1,825,000, compared to 1,851,000 last Tuesday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was about steady. Supplies fully adequate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter was 12-14, mostly 12 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, steadying after Monday's broad decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.50 to 1,232.97 in the first hour. But losers held a 4-3 lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market's recent weakness has been attributed directly to rising interest rates.

Nevertheless, analysts said there were still many believers in the bull market in stocks, and in the accelerating recovery from the recession.

F.W. Dodge, a forecasting subsidiary of McGraw-Hill Inc., reported that a record $18.9 billion in contracts for new construction was awarded in May.

Among today's early volume leaders, General Motors rose 1/4 to 73 1/2, RCA 1/4 to 30, Eastman Kodak 1/4 to 72 1/2, and Chrysler 1/4 to 34 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 12.22 to 1,229.47.

Declines outpaced advances by nearly 3 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 69.36 million shares, against 68.1 million in the previous session.

The NISE's composite index lost 1.08 to 97.74. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 6.42 at 486.34.

Linkup For Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts today docked their Soyuz 9 space capsule with the orbiting space station Salyut 7, the official news agency Tass reported.

Vladimir Lyakhov and Alexander Alexandrov were reported feeling well and fulfilling their flight program after they entered the Salyut station at 2:46 p.m. (6:46 EDT), Tass said.

Earlier, Radio Moscow reported that the cosmonauts, who blasted off Monday, were preparing to dock with the space station.

The reports said Lyakhov and Alexandrov had performed "complicated maneuvers" to prepare for docking, described as "one of the major operations" of their mission.

Two months ago, another Soyuz craft narrowly missed docking with the Salyut 7 space station. Western monitoring stations said the two craft passed within yards of each other.

Soviet reports said afterward that the flight path of the craft, Soyuz 8 with three cosmonauts aboard, was incorrect and that the crew was brought back to Earth 48 hours after launching because of fears for their safety.

Poland's Rulers Appear City Budget... To OK Church Scheme

ROME (AP) — Poland's Communist rulers and Roman Catholic Church leaders have reached agreement in principle for a church-run foundation to channel money to Polish farmers, sources in Rome and Warsaw reported today.

Cardinal John Krol, who accompanied Pope John Paul II on his recent trip to Poland, said in a TV interview in Washington the program would involve $5 billion spread over five years.

Krol also said the pope would not have entered into a secret agreement with the Polish government to get Lech Walesa to give up his public role as a labor leader.

"The Holy Father would not enter into any secret or secretive kind of arrangement involving other persons without having the other persons actually aware and agreeing to the arrangements," Krol told CBS MorningNews.

A Vatican source also denied the pope advised Walesa to give up his role. CBS News in Washington said the pope negotiated a deal with Poland's military government to set up a labor union without the leader of the banned Solidarity union.

Cardinal Jozef Glemp, Poland's Roman Catholic primate, has been promoting the idea of a foundation to channel money to farmers for some months and reached agreement with the government in negotiations paving the way for the recent visit of the pontiff, the sources said.

According to Western diplomatic sources in Rome, the money would be raised by churches in the West, turned over to the Polish church and then be distributed through existing state channels.

It would be used to help medium-scale farmers — those with plots of 37 to 49 acres — buy machinery and seed grain.

The funds would be controlled by the church, which has already channeled an estimated $100 million in Western food and other aid to the Polish people over the last three years.

Polish churchmen are reported to have discussed the idea with prelates from France and West Germany, although some of the money also would be expected to be raised by the U.S. Roman Catholic Church.

The foundation is seen as a way of improving Poland's economy despite economic sanctions imposed by the U.S. government and its Western allies after martial law was declared Dec. 13, 1981. The foundation has not yet been established.

During his meeting in Warsaw with Communist Party leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the pope expressed the hope that conditions could be created in Poland that would allow the lifting of Western sanctions.

In Washington, Krol told CBS Morning News the church-run bank would administer "a five-year program, $5 billion, half of which would come from different governments, a quarter of which would come from foundations and a quarter of which would come from the church."

Asked if this would get around U.S. sanctions, Krol said only in the agricultural sector, "this is not to the general public."

Senior Polish officials have been saying that martial law might be lifted on July 22, Poland's national day. Martial law was suspended in December 1982, a year after its imposition, but stiff controls still remain. Western diplomats in Warsaw caution that even if martial law is lifted, new laws will be imposed to keep the regime in supreme control.

Noting reports that martial law may be lifted July 22, Krol said the United States should relax economic sanctions against Poland if the military government eases restrictions.

The pope met privately with Walesa Thursday, his last day in Poland. On Friday, the Rev. Virgilio Levi wrote in the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano that Walesa had "lost his battle" with the Polish regime and was stepping down for the public good. On Saturday, Levi was fired.

The Vatican has still given no details of John Paul's meeting with Walesa, leader of the outlawed Solidarity labor union. But a Vatican source denied reports that the pontiff counseled Walesa to step aside.

The 39-year-old shipyard electrician said in an interview last weekend he felt stronger after his meeting with the pope, but declined to disclose details of the audience.

"I won't run away. I can't run away. It is not pleasant to do this work but I will not quit," Walesa said.

CBS News, quoting unidentified diplomatic and Vatican sources, reported Monday night that a tentative agreement for a new labor union was reached before the pope's eight-day trip to his native land. While in Poland, Pope Paul II gave formal approval to the agreement, it said.

The trade union, described as a neo-Solidarity, would be formed under the auspices of the Roman Catholic Church, which would presumably exercise some control, CBS said.

The network also said the Vatican was anxious to blunt the impact of the reported agreement's provision concerning Walesa, the leader of the outlawed Solidarity union.

CBS said Vatican officials left the clear impression that Walesa was told to step aside, but hinted that the pope may have urged that Walesa's cessation of union activity be only temporary.

There's always been a crisis in the tobacco industry, said Graham. "Something's always been wrong and we must continue to fight."

John Bankhead, area director of the Tobacco Institute of the United States, said over 200 pieces of anti-tobacco legislation had been introduced in state legislatures across the United States since January of 1983.

"These bills have ranged from anti-smoking legislation such as banning smoking in public places to science fiction scenarios that would require a cigarette to go out immediately if not puffed," said Bankhead.

"The committee against tobacco is well on its way to getting these things passed," he added.

Nationally, the worst piece of legislation for tobacco is the new warning label bill, Bankhead said. He said the bill was "designed to put the tobacco industry out of business."

"Another thing that troubles us is the increasing of tobacco taxes in the states," he added. "We (the tobacco industry) have been singled out long enough. Let them (the states) find something else to tax to alleviate their financial problems."

Hugh Kiger, executive vice president of Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, said the export market is tobacco's "best bet in the next few years" despite the fact that the United States only has 12 percent of the world export market, compared to 40 percent in the past.

"I do not have to tell you that the export market has decreased but I can tell you that that exporting has the best potential for growth for the crop," he said.

Pirates 'Battle' Cards For 6-1 Victory

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals played one of those knock-down, drag-out baseball games, with even a long shower thrown in.

It finally came down to a rookie pitcher who could throw the ball over the plate — not at the batter's head.

"He's outstanding. He's got good control. He throws them strikes, that's the main thing," said catcher Tony Pena of batterymate Cecilio Guante following Monday night's 6-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"He makes them swing the bat, and that's what you really have to do. He's overpowering, especially against right-handed batters."

It was the first major league triumph for Guante, a Dominican who took over for John Candelaria at the start of the third after the Pittsburgh starter was ejected for throwing at a batter's head. He blanked St. Louis the rest of the way, extending the Pirates' string of victories to nine. In addition, he collected two singles for his first big-league hits.

"We knew he could pitch, but we didn't know he could hit," said Pittsburgh pitching coach Harvey Haddix of Guante. "When I want to talk to him, I go to Tony. I asked him if he was tired, and he said no."

In other National League action, it was Montreal 3, Chicago 1 and Atlanta 2, Cincinnati 1.

Guante entered the game after Candelaria was ejected for sailing a pitch over the head of Joaquin Andujar, 3-11. The pitch by Candelaria was in apparent retaliation to a beanball thrown by Andujar at Pittsburgh's Marvyn Pate. The pitch triggered a flow of players from both benches onto the field.

A thunderstorm in the top of the fifth inning suspended play for two hours and 20 minutes as the Pirates were handing the Cardinals their seventh straight setback.

The Pirates took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Bill Madlock's run-scoring groundout. They made it 2-0 in the second on Mike Easler's leadoff homer, his fourth of the season.

After St. Louis scored in the bottom of the second on Floyd Rayford's RBI single, the beanball battle erupted between Andujar and Candelaria.

Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner and Pittsburgh pitcher Jim Bibby were also thumbed from the game during a dug-out-clearing confrontation at the plate between the clubs, but no punches were thrown.

Guante, who was called up by the Pirates on May 26, struck out two and walked two over the final seven innings.

Expos 3, Cubs 1

Warren Cromartie socked a tie-breaking single and Gary Carter added a run-scoring double as Montreal scored a pair of eighth-inning runs to defeat Chicago behind Charlie Lea's five-hitter.

Jerry White opened the eighth with a single, the Expos' ninth hit off Chicago starter Chuck Rainey, 7-7. One out later, Rainey attempted to pick White off first but threw past first baseman Bill Buckner and White raced to third.

Cromartie singled to produce the go-ahead run and one out later, Cromartie scored as Carter doubled off reliever Warren Brusstar.

Lea, 6-3, completed his third straight game and fourth this season. He walked two batters and struck out six.

Montreal scored the first run in the second as Carter doubled and Tim Wallach followed with a single. The Cubs tied it in the fourth on Buckner's home run, his ninth.

"He got stronger as the game went on," said Carter of Lea. "He was throwing harder in the eighth inning than he was in the first."

Braves 2, Reds 1

Pascual Perez hurled a five-hitter and Brett Butler and Rafael Ramirez slugged home runs as Atlanta nipped Cincinnati for a sweep of their five-game series.

Perez, 9-2, struck out six and walked only one to outduel

Mario Soto, 9-6. Soto gave up four hits and struck out 10 in eight innings, tying Steve Carlton for the major-league lead in strikeouts with 117. Soto fanned Dale Murphy three times in collecting 10 or more strikeouts for the fifth time this season.

Butler belted Soto's second pitch of the game for his first major league home run. After Duane Walker tied the game for Cincinnati with a homer in the fourth, Ramirez won it for the Braves with a homer in the sixth.

"If you're going to hit Mario, you've got to get to him early," said Butler of Soto, who later struck out the side in the first inning and retired 16 straight batters until Rafael Ramirez's homer in the sixth provided the decisive run.

"I was a little bit lucky," said Ramirez. "I know Soto from the Dominican Republic and was waiting on his fastball."

One Last Word

Pittsburgh Pirates' manager Chuck Tanner, bottom, and Jim Bibby (26), along with pitcher John Candelaria, argue with umpire Joe West (bottom right) in St. Louis Monday. West ejected Candelaria after he dusted off opposing pitcher Joaquin Andujar, after Andujar had been warned for a similar dusting. Tanner and Bibby were then ejected for arguing the call. West is a native of Greenville. (AP Laserphoto)

Tampa Bay Remains In Playoff Chase With Win

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay's rain-soaked victory over the Denver Gold kept the Bandits in the United States Football League playoff chase, but the club will still need outside help to reach post-season play.

"We're too good a team to be out of the playoffs," wide receiver Danny Buggs said Monday night after a 26-23 triumph kept Tampa Bay's hopes alive and boosted the team into a three-way tie for the Central Division lead.

But Coach Steve Spurrier's 11-6 troops have won only two of their last five games, and now must win at Birmingham on Saturday and hope division rivals Chicago and Michigan, both also 11-6, lose their regular season finales at home against Oakland and Arizona, respectively.

"We know now that all we can do is go out and win (against Birmingham). We can't control what the other teams do," said Tampa Bay linebacker Paul Piurowski. "If they don't help us, we're out of the picture. If that doesn't happen, then that's how people will remember it, and that's it."

The Bandits got some help in the form of the weather Monday night. Denver, which trailed 15-0 in the first quarter, led 23-18 with 8:32 left in the fourth when officials interrupted the game for 50 minutes because of a violent thunderstorm.

When play resumed, the scoreboard clock was inoperative but Tampa Bay wasted little time erasing their deficit — striking for the winning touchdown on the second play after the delay.

Jimmy Jordan, who replaced John Reeves at quarterback in the second half, teamed with wide receiver Eric Truvillion on a 44-yard scoring play. It was Truvillion's 14th touchdown reception — tops in the league.

Spurrier said he suggested a game official order the teams into the dressing room when it started thundering and lightning. But, he added, "it was the official who made the decision."

Denver Coach Craig Morton, who saw his club slip to 7-10, said he didn't want the game stopped.

"I felt real good about the way we played before the rain," he said.

Many in the Tampa Stadium crowd of 46,128, which learned at halftime that Cincinnati Bengals wide receiver Cris Collinsworth will join the Bandits in 1985, left during the storm.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It has been a surprising Wimbledon Tennis Championships from the start. And the surprises keep coming.

It's been a Wimbledon full of sunshine for the most part, with only one day's play held up by rain. That contrasts completely with last year, when daily downpours put the tournament at one point more than 200 matches behind.

It's been a surprising Wimbledon for the "old folks" — 39-year-old Billie Jean King, making her second straight trip to the women's quarter-finals, and 37-year-old Virginia Wade, Britain's last winner here in 1977 and its last hope this year.

And it's been a surprising Wimbledon for the 1974 champions — Chris Evert Lloyd and Jimmy Connors. Not a happy Wimbledon — just a surprising one.

"I am surprised that Connors was beaten," said John McEnroe, now strongly favored to capture his second Wimbledon crown. "But it does not make my path any easier, whatsoever."

While Connors, the defending men's champion and the No. 1 seed, was falling to the rocket-serving Kevin Curren of South Africa 6-3, 6-7, 6-3, 7-6 Monday, McEnroe moved into the quarters with a hard-fought 7-5, 7-6, 7-6 victory over Bill Scanlon.

McEnroe next faces Sandy Mayer, while Curren will take on 16th-seeded Tim Mayotte. Mayer stopped Mike Leach 6-1, 7-6, 6-1 and Mayotte eliminated "lucky loser" John McCurdy of Australia 6-0, 6-2, 6-4.

In men's play today, third-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia played Roscoe Tanner and, in a battle of two unseeded players, Mel Purcell met Chris Lewis of New Zealand.

Women's quarter-finals today sent Wade against South Africa's Yvonne Vermaak, King against giant-killer Kathy Jordan, top-seeded Martina Navratilova against Jennifer Mundel of South Africa and No. 3 Andrea Jaeger against No. 11 Barbara Potter.

In Monday's matches, played in autumn-like weather, seeded players fell like leaves on a September morn.

Besides Connors, No. 13 Brian Gottfried was victimized by Purcell 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 in men's play, while women's seeds to tumble were No. 7 Wendy Turnbull, No. 8 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, No. 12 Virginia Ruzici of Romania, No. 15 Kathy Rinaldi and No. 16 Claudia Kohde of West Germany.

King, who has won a record 20 Wimbledon titles in 21 years of play on these famed grass courts and who surprisingly reached the semi-finals a year ago, ousted Turnbull 7-5, 6-3; Navratilova defeated Kohde 6-1, 6-2; Mundel eliminated Mandlikova 5-7, 6-4, 6-4; Vermaak downed Ruzici 6-3, 6-2; and Jordan ousted Rinaldi 6-2, 6-4.

In other matches, Wade downed West Germany's Eva Pfaff 3-6, 7-6, 7-5; Potter stopped Lisa Bonder 7-5, 6-4 and Jaeger outlasted Canada's Carling Bassett in a baseline duel, 6-4, 6-3.

In men's singles, it was Lendl over Pat Cash of Australia 6-4, 7-6, 6-1; Tanner over Robert Van't Hof 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 and Lewis over Nigeria's Ndika Odizor 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

In 1974, Connors and Chris Evert captured the singles titles here and the hearts of tennis fans everywhere. They were dating and much was made of the "love match." But, later, Connors was to marry a former Playboy model and Chris married John Lloyd, then Britain's No. 1 player.

On Friday, Lloyd's streak of reaching the semi-finals of every Grand Slam tournament she had ever entered was snapped by Jordan. Then, on Monday, Curren's powerful serves snapped Connors' bid for a third Wimbledon crown.

The South African blasted an amazing 33 aces past Connors, considered the player with the best return of service in the game. The raw power of the former University of Texas star left Connors shell-shocked, and the world's No. 2 player immediately left the grounds of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, skipping the mandatory postmatch interview with the media.

Not once could Connors break Curren's serve, a feat not yet accomplished in the first four rounds of this fortnight-long tournament.

"I could read where he was going to return my serve, and this put him under extra pressure," said Curren, who with Steve Denton make up one of the world's top doubles teams. "I used to put Jimmy on a pedestal, but on certain surfaces I give myself a good chance."

Grass is Curren's surface. But even with Connors gone, McEnroe doesn't feel as if he has a lock on the title.

"Curren has always been a dangerous player on grass," McEnroe said. "Sandy Mayer has a good grass game. Tanner has proven himself here in the past and is a grass court player."

"Purcell is a bit of a surprise (and) no one ever expected (No. 4 Guillermo) Vilas or (No. 7 Jose Luis) Clerc to make it, so someone had to be in their place."

"I am not really surprised about Lendl's success. The biggest surprise is Jimmy losing."

Snow Hill Trounces Rocky Mount, 11-3

ROCKY MOUNT — Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team, clung stubbornly to second place in the Area I East standings with an 11-3 romp over Rocky Mount last night. It was the third straight loss for Rocky Mount in a four-game stretch, and eliminated it from the title picture.

Snow Hill, now 10-5, is the only team able to catch league leading Pitt County, and would have to win its remaining three, while Pitt loses its three, to claim the title.

Rocky Mount scored first in the contest, pushing over a run in the first. Eddie Coates walked and moved to second on an error on a pickoff attempt. He was sacrificed to third and scored on Billy Godwin's single.

Snow Hill rallied for one in the second to tie it up. Mike Sullivan doubled and scored on a single by Todd Grant.

In the fourth, Snow Hill moved ahead for good, scoring three more times. Sullivan singled and was sacrificed to second. An error on the play allowed him to score and put Grant on second. Bobby Caraway then doubled in Grant and William Davis singled to score Caraway for a 4-1 lead.

Snow Hill later added four in the fifth, two in the eighth and one in the ninth for its 11-run total. Rocky Mount scored twice more in the sixth.

Anthony Russo and Sullivan each had three hits to pace a 17-hit Snow Hill attack. Nat Norris, Greg Frederick, Grant and Davis each added two. Godwin had two to pace Rocky Mount.

Rocky Mount falls to 9-8 on the season and has one game, a make-up, left with Kinston.

Snow Hill travels to Kinston tonight.

Snow Hill, 610 340 021-11 17 2 Rocky Mt, 100 002 000-3 7 4 Davis and Frederick. Butler, Davis (9) and White.

Bruce Kison Returns Where He Left Off

By The Associated Press
All's well in California now that Bruce Kison is back.

Kison, who began the day on the disabled list, threw seven sparkling innings Monday night as the Angels blanked the Texas Rangers 8-0.

"I wanted to go and try to pick up where I had left off," said Kison, who allowed just two hits in his first outing in a month.

Kison, 7-1, had won five straight games before he was shelved with back spasms. At that point, California was three games on top of the American League West.

Since that time, however, the Angels had meandered through a 13-14 month. With Monday night's victory, California moved into a tie with Texas for first place in the division.

"He surprised me and certainly pleased me," said California catcher Bob Boone.

"He went about it like he'd never been out."

In other AL games, the New York Yankees downed the Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in 11 innings, Oakland topped Kansas City 7-1 and Chicago beat Seattle 7-4. Boston at Cleveland and Detroit at Milwaukee were rained out.

Kison gave up a one-out double to Mickey Rivers in the first inning, a leadoff single to George Wright in the second and then pitched hitless ball for the rest of his stint.

California Manager John McNamara had planned on letting Kison throw 90 pitches, and the right-hander was pulled after issuing his only three walks of the game in the seventh inning, which gave him 94 pitches.

Luis Sanchez retired all six batters he faced to nail down the victory.

"You can't pitch better than Kison did for as long as he did," McNamara said.

The Angels won by beating Rick Honeycutt, who came into the game with a five-game winning streak and was leading the AL with a 1.45 earned run average.

Ron Jackson, who had three singles, put California ahead 1-0 in the third inning with a run-scoring single. Boone's sacrifice fly drove in an unearned run in the fourth and chased Honeycutt, 10-4, in the fifth on Fred Lynn's RBI single and Bob Grich's run-producing groundout.

Grich singled in a seventh-inning run off reliever Jon

Matlack and Ellis Valentine drilled a three-run homer, his sixth, in the eighth.

"It was bound to end some day," Honeycutt said. "I didn't have anything out there. It was a struggle all the way."

Yankees 4, Orioles 3

Butch Wynegar spent most of the day attending his father-in-law's funeral in Minnesota. He returned to Yankee Stadium at night and drove in the winning run with a single with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning.

Wynegar, who was 0-for-4 and had grounded into two double plays, drove a full-count delivery from Tim Lincecum, 3-2, off the right-field wall to score Don Baylor, who was running from first base on the pitch.

New York had tied it in the ninth with an unearned run. Lou Piniella singled off Tippy Martinez and went to second when left fielder Al Bumbry misplayed the ball for an error. One out later, Steve Kemp singled in Piniella.

Lenn Sakata, the second batter of the game, drilled his first homer of the season to give Baltimore a 1-0 lead.

Switch-hitter Ken Singleton's ninth homer of the year — his first from the right side of the plate since 1981, a period of 243 official at-bats — gave the Orioles a 3-1 lead in the sixth.

The loss allowed the idle

Toronto Blue Jays to move into first place in the AL East, one-half game ahead of the Orioles.

White Sox 7, Mariners 4

Julio Cruz, making his first appearance in Seattle's Kingdome since being traded from the Mariners to Chicago earlier this month, cracked an RBI single in the seventh inning to snap a 4-4 tie.

Greg Walker added a two-run single later in the inning to insure the White Sox victory.

Ron Kittle's league-leading 18th homer, a three-run blast, gave Chicago a 4-1 lead in the third.

Richie Zisk doubled in a Seattle run in the first inning and belted a solo homer, his seventh, in the third.

Seattle's Jamie Allen and Dave Henderson batted out of order in the first inning and Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa protested the game in the sixth when Henderson singled after he returned to his original batting position.

A's 7, Royals 1

Ben Callahan, making his first start in the majors, pitched six strong innings as Oakland broke a six-game losing streak.

Chris Codiroli, knocked out of the starting rotation by Callahan, relieved the rookie and got his first save.

Carney Lansford and Bill Almon homered to give Oakland a 2-0 lead after four innings.

Don Slaught singled in Kansas City's run in the seventh, but the A's put the game away by scoring five times in the eighth, three on Lansford's double.

Farmville Champs

Gary Hobgood, left, fired a 72-65-137 to win the Farmville Golf and Country Club's club championship

Sunday. Second place went to Joe Jenkins, center, while Lowell Liles, right, finished third in the tournament.

Wellcome.....4

Pepsi-Cola, last in the Tar Heel Little League, stunned Wellcome yesterday, 5-4, knocking the losers out of a three-way share for first place.

Wellcome pushed over one run in the first and came back with three more in the third. Pepsi started its scoring with a pair of runs in the second and added one in the fourth to trail, 4-3.

In the sixth, however, Pepsi pushed over two to pull out the win. Randall Martoccia led off with a single and David Allen walked. Bill Blizard also walked, loading the bases.

With one out, Chris Fuqua reached on an error which allowed both Martoccia and Allen to score, giving Pepsi the victory.

No one had more than one hit for Pepsi, which got only three off Judd Crumpler.

Adam Nobles had two hits to lead Wellcome.

Union Carbide.....9

Jaycees.....5

Union Carbide kept its hopes alive in the North State Little League race with a 9-5 victory over the Jaycees yesterday.

The Jaycees scored first, getting three runs in the top of the first, all on a homer by David Gordon. Union Carbide came back with one in the second and took the lead with five in the third, moving ahead for good.

Andra Hopkins led off with a walk and Bill Turcotte singled. With one away, Jeff Bennett singled, and Martin Anderson walked, forcing in Hopkins. An error let Turcotte score. Jonathan Powers singled and an error on the play emptied the bases as three runs scored for a 6-3 margin.

Union Carbide added two in the fourth on a Hopkins' homer, and got one more in the fifth. The Jaycees picked up two more in the fifth.

Turcotte, Bennett, Abram Lang and Powers each had two hits for Union Carbide. Mario Davis and Gordon each had two for the Jaycees.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: N equals A.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

commercial TV stations at a meeting this week.

The proposal, a long-planned initiative by FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler, has been added to the commission's agenda for a meeting on Wednesday. If ultimately approved after public comment, the proposal would free the nation's roughly 850 commercial TV stations of licensing guidelines that:

— Specify minimum percentages of air time for news, information and local programming.

— Specify a maximum percentage of air time for commercials.

— Require TV station executives to conduct formal, detailed interviews of local officials and residents to "ascertain" the needs and interests of the local audience.

And require strict logging of all programming that is actually aired.

"The proposal directly tracks the radio deregulation order," said one FCC official who asked not to be named. "There are no major differences."

The FCC made the changes for radio stations in 1981. Its decision was upheld May 10 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The commission's standards for news and commercials are used by the agency's staff in processing license renewal applications.

The programming standard specifies that at least 10 percent of a station's programming should be "non-entertainment." Of that total, at least 5 percent should be locally produced, and at least 5 percent should fall in the category of "informational" programming.

According to another FCC source, Fowler appears to have sufficient votes from his four colleagues to issue the deregulation proposal Wednesday for public comment. The Republican chairman is said to be intent on at least starting the deregulatory process, even though some congressional leaders have urged him not to do so.

At a recent oversight hearing, for example, Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo., suggested the FCC should refrain from issuing such a proposal while Congress considers its own deregulation plan. Wirth is the chairman of the House communications subcommittee.

Fowler acknowledged Congress' authority to devise its own plan, but argued the commission had a responsibility of its own to begin studying the matter.

Fowler has long maintained the agency's licensing guidelines constitute an improper infringement on broadcasters' First Amendment rights; that competition is growing in the video industry to the point that consumers can find whatever type of programming they want, and that most broadcasters easily exceed the FCC's guidelines because of their own desire to build local audiences.

He has also argued that deregulation will do nothing to relieve broadcasters of their general obligation to "serve the public interest."

Witnesses Affirm Injection Of Drugs

TORONTO (AP) — A prosecutor says authorities have eyewitness testimony that Cathy Evelyn Smith, the singer charged with murder in the death of comedian John Belushi, injected him with drugs a dozen times in the days before he died.

Ary Coomaraswamy, a Canadian government attorney, also said Monday at Ms. Smith's extradition hearing in York County Court that her own statements to reporters about Belushi's final days would be used as corroborating evidence at her trial.

Coomaraswamy offered affidavits from 27 witnesses as support for the U.S. request to have Ms. Smith sent to California to stand trial.

But her lawyer, Brian

Greenspan, urged Judge Stephen Borins not to accept the documents unless he also orders the witnesses produced for cross-examination.

After most of Monday's session was taken up by constitutional arguments on the cross-examination issue, Borins asked both sides to return to court this afternoon for more discussion.

The judge said he would rule on the affidavits Thursday, and told reporters the documents would not be available publicly pending his decision.

If the judge accepts Greenspan's argument, the extradition hearing would have to be rescheduled to allow witnesses to personally testify. If he agrees with the prosecutor, the hearing could proceed to the key issues — whether the case against Ms. Smith is strong enough and whether or alleged actions would be a crime under Canadian law.

Papers Sent Justice Dept.

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — White House lawyers are forwarding papers to the Justice Department from the files of the President Reagan's campaign officials that could be the missing briefing materials prepared for Jimmy Carter's campaign debate against Reagan.

"We have found some materials but it's not a briefing book at such," said White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes. He said he expected the search for the briefing book to continue.

Speakes also said a briefing book he asked former Carter aides to send to the White House on Monday was being studied by Reagan aides to determine if it was the same as briefing materials they supplied to Reagan during the campaign.

Patrick Caddell, Carter's pollster during the 1980 campaign, provided a black book with a cover letter saying it was the only issue-related briefing material "prepared for and sent to President Carter for that debate."

Caddell also noted that the loose-leaf book, about 3 inches thick, very closely resembled a description of the book given by White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III.

Within hours after the White House received the book, Speakes issued a written statement saying those involved believe it was a "more sensitive" document than the one Reagan aides had during the campaign.

Speakes said that David R. Gergen, assistant to the president for communications, David Stockman, budget director, and Baker had reviewed the Caddell book and concluded it probably wasn't the same one they used to help Reagan prepare for his showdown against Carter.

"Further, the Carter briefing book includes strategic and tactical information that they specifically do not recall having seen: more focused debating points, recommended 'key lines' and 'first hand accounts,' questions to ask' in rebuttal, recommended 'challenges,' etc.," said Speakes.

Speakes said the Justice Department was "monitoring the development of information" on the subject. He said Reagan had asked the department to pursue its monitoring "vigorously."

Justice Department officials refused to comment on the matter. Spokeswomen for Gergen, deputy counsel Richard Hauser and counsel Fred Fielding also would not answer queries.

Speakes said Fielding was sending a memorandum to the White House staff asking anyone with information about the matter to contact the Justice Department.

Meanwhile, former Carter campaign director Robert Strauss met Monday with former White House press secretary Jody Powell, Caddell and others to decide what to do about the entire episode.

After their meeting, Strauss, Powell and Caddell separately suggested that a special prosecutor be appointed to investigate since no one acknowledges knowing how Carter's briefing book ended up in the hands of Reagan campaign officials.

Additionally, Caddell said it was "predictable" that after seeing the real Carter briefing book that White House aides would maintain it was not actually the book they had seen nearly three years ago.

Charles Manatt, chairman of the Democratic Party, also called for the appointment of a special prosecutor.

Manatt told a news conference the briefing book issue "Republican dirty tricks."

Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, at the same news conference urged the administration to "come clean now before this thing builds up into something that none of us want to really see."

"Somebody violated the U.S. Code," the congressman said, adding "maybe that's why the president and others don't want to talk about it. That person should come clean, should tell us who he received it from and did he or did he not pay the person who stole it."

He said CIA Director William Casey, who has said he does not recall where the book came from, should be asked to refresh his memory.

Governorship Race Refused

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., said Monday he would run for re-election to the House rather than seek the 1984 Democratic gubernatorial nod.

"I appreciate my friends who have waited for this decision, but the considerations against outweigh those for a statewide race in 1984," said Rose, a sixth-term Congressman. "There are many qualified Democrats who want to be our next governor, and I would only further fragment the field. Until another time comes for me, I will rededicate myself to the needs of my wife and children and my constituents, and I will be happy in my work."

INSPECTS DAMAGE
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi yesterday inspected flood-ravaged areas of Gujarat state. Officials say 423 bodies had been recovered and 355 people were still unaccounted for.

5 Cases Of 'Pertussis'

"Five cases of pertussis (whooping cough) have been reported in Pitt County," says Dr. Robert F. Ehinger, director of the Pitt County Health Department, "and five cases are five too many."

"What this represents is failure to follow through on immunizations as recommended. Normally, by the age of 6 months, all infants have receive immunizations for protection against diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis."

"Unfortunately, some children do not receive their immunizations until required by law to do so upon entry into school," Ehinger said. He said pertussis usually occurs in infants and young children. Complications include pneumonia, permanent lung damage and other serious problems.

"I cannot stress strongly enough the need for parents to review the status of their infants' and young children's immunizations and make arrangements immediately to get them, either at private physicians' offices or the health department. The medical risks associated with whooping cough far outweigh any risk associated with immunization," Ehinger said.

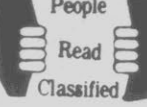

The following schedule for immunizations is recommended by the health department: 3 DPT and polio at 2 months, 4 months and 6 months; measles, rubella and mumps at 15 months; and DPT and polio at 4 to 6 years old, before entering school.

Brinn Is Named To State Board

Gov. Jim Hunt today appointed Tim Brinn of Hertford, retired director of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute, to the state Economic Development Board.

Brinn replaces Tom Campbell of Elizabeth City, who was recently appointed to the state Board of Transportation. He will serve until July 1, 1985. The 25-member board oversees the state's economic development program and assists the secretary of commerce in matters involving existing industry, recruitment of industry and the expansion of travel and tourism in N.C.

Brinn worked with RDI for 12 years, including two years as director.
