$27.93 Million Budget Voted

Pitt Commissioners Avoid Tax Increase

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Wednesday adopted a net budget for the 1983-1984 fiscal year totaling some $27.93 million dollars and maintained the same 54 cents per $100 valuation tax rate that has been in effect the past two years.

Based on an estimated net property valuation of $2.15 billion, the 54-cent tax rate is expected to provide $11.6 million in local ad valorem tax revenue. The remainder of the money needed to fund the new budget includes about $6 million from other local sources of revenue, plus state and federal grants.

For the most part, the budget, as adopted, follows recommendations made by County Manager Reginald Gray in earlier budget sessions, and includes an across-the-board pay hike for county employees ranging from 4 percent to 8 percent and amounting to about $303,000. While the board placed a freeze on the county's incentive pay program — a move that cut $91,363 from Gray's recommendations — the new budget does include funds for continuation of the longevity pay plan.

New in the budget for the coming year is a capital reserve fund amounting to $63,700, which includes funds for new landfill equipment, a bookmobile, a tax and land records mapping program and the purchase of land. Commissioners cut $244,300 from Gray's recommended $808,000 reserve fund in order to save more than 1 cent on the tax rate.

Gray had recommended a 2-cent increase in the tax rate for 1983-1984, but early in the budget process, commissioners said they wanted to maintain the same tax rate.

The other big reduction made by commissioners in Gray's recommended budget came from school capital outlay funds. The board cut $307,800 in school capital funds, a move which saved 1.4 cents on the tax rate.

In his budget message to the board, Gray told commissioners the budgets in the general fund were "recommended for a conservative but efficient operation without frills," and said for the most part, "increases recommended are in areas we have little control over such as telephones, utilities, hospitalization insurance, Social Security and retirement."

PLO Mutineers Routing Arafat Forces In Battle

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — PLO mutineers have routed Yasser Arafat's forces from most of their positions in the central Bekaa Valley, according to reports from eastern Lebanon, and the loyalists say Syria is trying to drive them farther north.

Reports from the Bekaa said Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas rebelling against Arafat exchanged heavy artillery fire with the PLO chief's loyalists Wednesday night in the towns of Taanayel and Taalabay.

There was no report of casualties in the exchange, which lasted at least two hours.

Today, the Syrian-backed rebels guarded their newly captured positions as the fighting abated.

The rebels, who began their mutiny seven weeks ago, say Arafat has become too moderate in his stance toward Middle East diplomatic initiatives.

Arafat's Al Fatah supporters, from their headquarters in the north Lebanese port of Tripoli, said in a communique Wednesday that Syrian officers warned them to immediately clear out of Bar Elias, on the Beirut-Damascus highway, and Taanayel, to the north. The communique said they refused.

Associated Press reporter Terry A. Anderson reported today that Arafat's loyalists had been ousted from all positions south of the international highway but still held the town of Chtaura. Rebels were in control of all adjacent areas to the south and east of Chtaura.

"We will fight until dead," one loyalist officer in Chtaura said.

Al Fatah's permanent representative in Saudi Arabia, Rafik al-Natsheh, said he asked King Fahd to arrange a meeting between Arafat and Syrian President Hafez Assad, who kicked the PLO chief out of Syria last week. Arafat had accused Syria of escalating the mutiny.

Observers have speculated that Assad wants to control all the Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon so they cannot drag him into another war with Israel.

Arafat was reported in Tunisia today, trying to arrange a meeting of PLO leaders.

Postponed

The surplus cheese and butter giveaway scheduled to begin Friday at the Pitt County Office Building has been canceled until further notice, according to county officials.

County Manager Reginald Gray said the eligibility rules will change Friday and the county is not authorized to distribute the surplus dairy products until the new rules have been established.

The future distribution date will be announced later, he said.

Another Soviet Spy Buoy Found

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)

— A buoy bearing the markings "USSR, Academy of Science" pulled in by a fisherman earlier this year has been identified as a Soviet spying device aimed at submarines, the Providence Journal said today.

The newspaper quoted unidentified Pentagon sources as saying the buoy, similar to one found by Boy Scouts in Washington state last year, was set adrift to gather information from submarines frequenting Groton, Conn.

Groton, Conn. is where fast-attack and missile-firing Trident submarines are built and tested by the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp.

The latest buoy was brought ashore March 1 after it was pulled up in the nets of the 75-foot Narragansett-based trawler Matthew & Melissa while fishing off Block Island.

A Pentagon source said the buoy was designed to monitor speed, sonar capabilities and identifying sound characteristics of Navy subs, the newspaper said. It could probably transmit information to a nearby ship or satellite, the newspaper said, quoted an unidentified source.

The buoy was about 3½ feet in diameter, with red and white panels, and marked in both English and Russian with the label "USSR, Academy of Sciences."

The newspaper quoted officials as saying four spy buoys have been found in the past four years in U.S. waters near submarine operations.

Initially, government spokesmen had identified the buoy as a "standard oceanographic buoy," used for scientific study after it was transported to a Navy Intelligence facility in the Washington area.

STORM DAMAGE ... Pieces of barn roof lie scattered about at Ram Horn Stables after the roof was ripped off 12 horse stalls by what

Witnesses Say Tornado Struck Barn In Northern Portion Of Pitt

What witnesses described as a tornado destroyed a portion of a barn at Ram Horn Stables in northern Pitt County Wednesday.

Owners Beth Bright and Tommy Thompson estimated the damage to the structure at $20,000. Witnesses said winds took the roof off 12 horse stalls attached to the main barn around 3:30 p.m. but no injuries, animal or human, were reported.

The high winds, described as being "over in two seconds," also blew down part of the fence surrounding the stable's riding area.

"There were boards and nails and live wires everywhere," said witness Debbie Davis, who boards her horse at Ram Horn. "A horse busted through the stall and hit a live wire but it (the horse) was all right."

Trainer Linda Simkovich, who was standing 20 feet from the barn, said she didn't see or hear a thing unusual but "the next thing I knew the horses were out and there was no roof."

A cold front that settled across the middle of North Carolina spawned thunderstorms with high winds, heavy rains and severe lightning that moved through Pitt County Wednesday.

The Pitt County Sheriff's

Office said no confirmed funnel clouds were reported and they had no other accounts of severe wind damage.

A spokesman for Greenville Utilities reported only scattered problems from the storm and no major power outages.

GUC's weather station recorded .74 inch of rain from the storms. The mercury touched 94 degrees Fahrenheit Wednesday, then crept to a low of 64 degrees F. At 8 a.m. today the temperature was 69 degrees F. and the Tar River stood at 3.8 feet above sea level.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

USHERS ASKED

East Carolina Summer Theater house manager Loren Watkins has asked Hotline to appeal for ushers 16 years or older — no experience needed — for each of four plays to be given throughout July.

Twelve ushers are needed each night. Anyone wishing to volunteer will be "paid" by being able to stay that evening and see the performance free of charge. The usual charge is $10 a seat. "Pippin" runs July 4-9; "A Little Night Music," July 11-16; "No, No Nanette," July 18-23; and "They're Playing Our Song," July 25-30. Anyone wishing to take part may visit the Theater Arts Building on East Fifth Street and sign up.

MAILINGS FEEDBACK

Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray said today that the county has not given access to voter registration and tax lists to any company or organization except political parties, which is required by law. Therefore, the names of the 12,000 persons in Pitt County who were sent N.C. Sheriffs' Association promotional material referred to in the Tuesday and Wednesday Hotline columns came from a source other than the county, he pointed out.

Gov. Hunt Urges Early Action On Waste Bills

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt warned today that the General Assembly must act quickly on bills regulating disposal of hazardous and low-level radioactive waste if the state is to avoid problems.

A bill that would prohibit landfill disposal of certain hazardous wastes and allow burial of other wastes in concentrations considered to be safe is before a Senate subcommittee. The bill also would allow the state to exceed some federal standards on landfills.

The other bill would enter North Carolina into a Southeastern regional compact for handling low-level radioactive wastes. It has stalled in a House committee.

Award County Contracts For Insurance

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Wednesday voted to award contracts for the county's property and casualty insurance to Hooker and Buchanan Inc. of Greenville after the firm submitted bids which save the county more than $17,000 in premium costs and at the same time provide broader protection.

The board's action was based on the recommendation of David Lively of Risk Consultants of Charlotte, an insurance consulting firm hired several months ago to review the county's insurance program.

The county is now paying $55,384 in insurance premiums for comprehensive and general liability, auto liability and other insurance coverage on its property and employees.

The bids submitted by Hooker and Buchanan, the only bidder, totaled $37,951 for the insurance package which provides broader coverage at a savings of $17,433 a year.

Lively told the board that the bid is "a very good one and I can recommend it to you. We were pleased to see the results."

Lively also told commissioners that the payment schedule under the bid would be beneficial to the county because "most" of the insurance premiums are "on a monthly basis with no interest." At present, the premiums are paid at the beginning of the policy period.

Most of the county's insurance covered by the bid is presently written by firms represented by Hooker and Buchanan.

The largest savings under the bid was for comprehensive and general liability coverage and for auto liability insurance.

At present the county is paying $11,442 a year for comprehensive and general liability coverage while, under the bid, the coverage is provided for $5,442. Auto liability insurance now costs the county $20,530. The cost for the coverage under the package bid is $11,789.

Next week, commissioners are scheduled to consider recommendations by risk consultants on bids received for the county's group health insurance coverage.

Reinventing Extended Family In Kansas City

By MIKE REVZIN
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty-year-old Teresa Hansen, who recently finished her first year of college, found a perfect roommate in Mary Mantz — who received her degree 65 years ago.

The 86-year-old Mrs. Mantz and Ms. Henson are two of about 400 people — from 18 to 94 years old — brought together by the non-profit Homesharing Project which began serving the Kansas City area a year ago.

The program is open to all ages, but the most common match involves a college student who pays little or no rent in return for helping an elderly person with household chores. About 100 matches are currently in operation.

"In some ways I think we're reinventing the extended family," said Elizabeth Ossorio, the project director. Ms. Ossorio, who works part-time, runs the program with two full-time employees on an annual $50,000 budget, which includes donations from various companies and office space provided by the Metropolitan Community Colleges.

People signing up for the program do so for more than financial reasons, Ms. Ossorio explained.

"Both from the homeseekers and the homeowners we hear a lot about being lonely and isolated and wanting companionship," she said. "Basically, our function is to introduce them to each other."

Occasionally the program has to turn down applicants who have a misconception about the service.

"We can't provide a nursing service," said Ms. Ossorio, explaining that the program is not designed for someone who needs full-time medical care.

"On the whole, a great deal of satisfaction is expressed about how this inter-generational sharing works," she said. "Some of the matches with 18-year-olds have been just fantastic."

"I think it's a terribly important transitional thing for some young people. Maybe it's their first time away from home. It's not nearly as scary if they're with a grandmotherly or grandfatherly type," she added.

Those seeking matches pay a $5 fee and fill out an application. Program volunteers visit the homes of people who have space available, and give the homeowners information on possible homesharers.

The homeowner's identity

HOMESHARING PROJECT...has been serving the Kansas City area. Here Teresa Hansen, a second-year student at Penn Valley Community College, finishes pouring a cup of coffee for her roommate, 86-year-old Mary Mantz, as the two share breakfast recently. (AP Laserphoto) is not revealed to homeseekers unless the homeowner thinks a match is possible. If the two work out arrangements, a three-week trial period is held.

The homeowner and sharer work out arrangements for rent, usually about $100 a month, and household chores.

In 40 percent of the matches, the homesharer pays no rent, but provides some service, such as housekeeping, yard work or driving.

Ms. Henson agreed that the program helps young people adjust to being away from home. She said her living arrangement with Mrs. Mantz, and her contact with Mrs. Mantz's nearby relatives, was "just like having a family away from home."

Ms. Henson came to Kansas City from Audubon, Iowa, to attend Penn Valley Community College. She signed up for Homesharing to save money and because her parents didn't want her to live alone. She has lived with Mrs. Mantz since August 1982.

Mrs. Mantz, a 1918 graduate of the University of Missouri, is a widow and former teacher. She wanted to remain in her home of 23 years. But her children encouraged her to join the program because they didn't feel it was safe for Mrs. Mantz, who has poor vision and heart trouble, to stay alone.

Ms. Hansen pays no rent for living in the two-story, three-bedroom house in an upper middle class neighborhood. She cooks dinner for the older woman, eats dinner with her and sees that she takes her medication.

Mrs. Mantz's daughter, Mary Griffith, lives nearby and comes to the house whenever Ms. Hansen is gone.

"All we ask of her is that she be here in the evening, or tell us she plans to be away," said Mrs. Griffith.

The social aspect of sharing dinner is important, Ms. Ossorio said, adding that an elderly person living alone often doesn't bother to eat a nutritious meal.

Some young people, after sharing a home with an elderly person, "have expressed the feeling they really didn't know how much knowledge and skills and wisdom went into old age," Ms. Ossorio said.

Others, she added, are uncomfortable.

"Some have said it's hard to be around a feeble person. It's a little overwhelming to some young people."

Dear Abby

Mother's Forked Tongue May Split Couple

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: If they gave a prize for the most insensitive mother-in-law in the world, mine would win — hands down! When Harold (her son) introduced me to her, she said, "How do you do? Is your complexion always that bad, or is it a temporary condition?"

Harold and I have been married for eight months, and "Mums" is still talking about all the rich and pretty girls Harold could have married. I've been taught to respect my elders, but when she told a roomful of relatives last evening that she had saved $1,000 for Harold's "divorce," I nearly told her off. (Everyone laughed as if it were a joke.)

Harold is an only child. His mother raised him alone, as her husband left her when Harold was an infant. I will give Mums credit for raising a fine son, but he never takes my part when she insults me. He just asks me to please be patient with her because she's "not well." I say if she's "not well," she should see a doctor.

Help me, Abby. I can't take much more of this.

D. IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

DEAR D.: "Mums" could be emotionally disturbed. Ask Harold to tell you more about her condition. Perhaps if you knew all the facts you'd be better able to cope with the situation. To understand all is to forgive all.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a guy for over a year and we have a really great relationship, but there's a silly little problem. We both have pretty good jobs, but I make a little more than he does, so I insist on picking up the tab for our dates about half the time.

When we go out to eat or take in a movie, it's rather awkward for me to start digging around in my purse, so I always give him the money privately before we go out. I always give him more than enough to cover the cost, but for some reason, he never gives back my change. I hate to ask him for it, but, Abby, this happens every time I give him money, and it all adds up.

Is there some way I can "remind" him to give me my change without coming off as cheap or petty?

SHORTCHANGED IN IOWA CITY

DEAR SHORTCHANGED: Yes. Wait until you are out of the public eye, then say, "By the way, before you forget, may I please have my change?" Period.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle a problem for me. I am getting married in a couple of months. My future sister-in-law will be six months pregnant at the time of my wedding. I want very much for her to be a bridesmaid, but I am not sure whether it would be in bad taste because of her pregnancy. She's been married for two years, and her husband (my fiancé's brother) will be a groomsman.

I don't see anything wrong with having an obviously pregnant bridesmaid, but I also don't want to offend anyone.

What do you think?

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: Bad taste? Certainly not. Invite your sister-in-law to be a bridesmaid, and if anyone is "offended," shame on him or her.

CONFIDENTIAL TO G. IN McALLEN, TEXAS: Congratulations. Stay clean. Reality is for people who can't handle drugs.

At Wit's

End

By Erma Bombeck

We're a country of believers. Especially we believe everything we read.

It probably goes back to the days of Virginia O'Hanlon, who questioned the existence of Santa Claus and was told by her father, "If you read it in the New York Times it is so." (How can you trust a man who doesn't read the comics?)

I believe most of what I read. Let us just say I've been cautious since the day I followed a recipe that had me adding eight cups of rice to 1/2 cup boiling water.

Besides, there are a lot of crazies around who write with their terminals on overload.

For example, I've read a rash of stories lately about how you can perform simple exercise while going about your daily routine so that no one will notice. Like while you are pushing a grocery car you can use the cart handles as a ballet bar, sweeping down into a pike position and up against, pretending to pick up a piece of lettuce.

I wouldn't do that if I were you.

Another one had you doing entire routines while cleaning your house. It sounded so simple to bend over my vacuum sweeper and extend my right leg straight behind me while I touched my head to my knee. That was just before the sweeper sucked my nightgown into it, causing me to nearly pass out.

Still another story suggested that exercises can be done so discreetly on an airline that your fellow passengers would have no clue as to what you are doing.

Wrap both arms around your shoulders and give yourself a big hug. Then let your head drop back and look up in the overhead compartment and start to chew to relax your facial muscles.

Now if someone hasn't tapped out an SOS on the call button by this time, relax your shoulders and arms to make a circle with one shoulder 10 times before you reverse and roll your shoulders backward.

I'm not telling you what to do, mind you, but when the kids were smaller, I read where you could exercise in the privacy of your car as you went about your daily errands. Since my stomach muscles had fallen around my knees, I chose to do the old Traffic Light Muscle Toner. Whenever I stopped the car, I would inhale, contract my stomach muscles together and squeeze my buttocks to the count of 10. One day I saw a driver in the car next to mine stare at my beet-red face with some concern. I smiled. He made a U-turn over a median and went the other way very fast.

That's the day I realized Virginia O'Hanlon's father lied.

Handle With Care

If one listens to all the experts, one could easily envision a North Carolina just down the road filled with convicts gleefully carrying out "community service" work. Court of Appeals Judge Willis Whichard even sees the program, an example of alternatives to incarceration, as boosting North Carolina State's drive for the national basketball championship this year because such a sentence possibly saved one of the school's players from prison.

It could all be a little farfetched, but there is no doubt that community service projects can be one means of alleviating the problem of crowded prisons. They especially would be helpful for traffic offenders convicted under the new drunken driving program, which is expected to increase drastically the case loads for the state's courts.

State officials estimate 50,000 drunken drivers may be eligible for community service sentences in a year. Of course, they don't all deserve prison — nor do all individuals convicted of more serious crimes.

But, as we have said before, prison must not be turned into something to be viewed lightly by those who would break the laws of society. Alternatives are fine, but they must not be abused or society itself will be abused.

Secret No More

A report of the accidental finding of a Russian "spy buoy" off the coast of Washington should have come as no surprise to the U.S. Department of Defense.

A week or so ago, a London-dated story cited American dismay some "secret" developments in the field had been duplicated by the Soviet Union; and it stood to reason.

The United States obviously has been using such equipment for some time, and it was logical to expect that sooner or later the Russians would have recovered the equipment, duplicated it to fit their own needs and utilized it accordingly.

So while discovering the "secret" is no longer a secret, and is being used by the Soviet navy, such knowledge is in itself of value. At the same time it is disappointing to learn one more advantage of our technological expertise is being applied against us.

Change Of Jobs

RALEIGH — This is the time of the year when legislators talk about changing jobs. They've been in Raleigh for seven months now and they're tired. They moan about lost work back home, about how they don't have any influence in Raleigh. So, they dream of greener pastures or maybe a return to private citizenship. From the current chatter around the Legislative Building, it appears that the political races of 1984 promise to rid us of some familiar faces in 1985.

Gov. Jim Hunt can't run for re-election but only one legislator is definitely seeking his job. Sen. Cass Ballinger, R-Catawba, appears to be the frontrunner for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Two other Republicans are keeping their names up for consideration, however. Rep. Howard Coble, R-Guilford, looks more like a candidate for Congress in the 6th District, but he refuses to rule out a run for governor. Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell, has looked at the U.S. Senate seat held by Jesse Helms, and he's looked at running for lieutenant governor. He also refuses to rule out a run for governor.

Democrats have begun mentioning Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, as a possible gubernatorial candidate. Walker also gets mentioned as a possible candidate for Congress in the 4th District. Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, the Senate's most powerful member, is getting some mention as a gubernatorial candidate, in the event that Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green drops out of the race. Royall for governor, however, is probably just speculation.

With Green vacating his office, Sens.

Bob Jordan, D-Montgomery, and Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, hope to succeed him. The attorney general's race could attract three Democratic lawyer-legislators, Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham, and Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne. Sen. Dick Barnes, D-Forsyth, is sounding increasingly like a candidate for state labor commissioner.

In the 1st Congressional District, Rep. John Gillam, D-Betie, has talked of challenging U.S. Rep. Walter Jones. In the 2nd, Rep. Ken Spaulding, D-Durham, may challenge U.S. Rep. Tim Valentine. In the 4th, Sen. Wilma Woodard, D-Wake, may challenge U.S. Rep. Ike Andrews. That's not very likely if Walker runs for Congress, however.

Several House members are looking for Senate seats. Rep. Austin Allran, R-Catawba, plans to run for Ballinger's seat. Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare, may seek the seat now held by Sen. Mel Daniels, D-Pasquotank, who may have other political ambitions. Rep. John Jordan, D-Alamance, is giving thought to a challenge of Sen. Cary Allred, R-Alamance.

Then there are those legislators who are just hanging it up and retiring. The two most influential are Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, president pro tem of the Senate, and Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, House Base Budget chairman. Take Adams' announcement with a grain of salt, however. He's prematurely announced his retirement before.

Rep. S.B. Lacey, R-Avery, says he's retiring. Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Wake, is taking a seat on the Utilities Commission. Other possible retirees include Rep. George Robinson and Sen. Donald Kincaid, both R-Caldwell. Sen. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, and Rep. Brad Ligon, R-Rowan.

By no means is this a complete list. For each departing senator, there is usually a local House member ready to move to the upper chamber. The race to succeed Insurance Commissioner John Ingram should attract a few legislators and there's always the prospects of staying home and making more money to lure some politicians into retirement.

SAN FRANCISCO — Out of fear, they burned Jews at the stake, walled families inside their homes, and turned away refugees from stricken villages. Doctors advised their patients to avoid "excitement ... especially at bedtime." And the Church traced it to supernatural disappointment with man's ways.

Such was, wrote Barbara Tuchman in her book, "A Distant Mirror" how medieval Europe responded to the Plague. A future historian might find similar folly in modern America's treatment of AIDS and its victims.

WASHINGTON (AP) As political melodrama, that presidential campaign debate in Cleveland was no match for the mystery of the Jimmy Carter briefing papers that wound up in the hands of Ronald Reagan's campaigners.

President Reagan says he never saw the papers and they wouldn't have done him any good in the 1980 debate even if he had. After all, it took no political wizardry to figure out what was likely to be said when the White House rivals met one week before that election.

The debate between Carter, then president, and Reagan, the challenger, was a predictable recitation of what each man had been saying for months. What drama it did offer stemmed from the fact that the rivals were finally face to face, with the election at hand. Reagan won the election. The debate seemed a standoff.

The one ingredient nobody could have anticipated was supplied by Carter, and it wouldn't have been in any briefing book. "I had a discussion with my daughter, Amy, the other day before I came here, to ask her what the most important issue was," Carter said. "She said she thought nuclear weaponry and the control of nuclear arms."

Then it got predictable again; Carter said that on nuclear weaponry, Reagan's attitudes were dangerous and belligerent. Reagan said they weren't.

But Reagan's news conference account of the episode — which was to minimize the importance of material his people mysteriously obtained from the Carter camp — misses a major point. The question isn't whether the Carter papers were useful to the Reagan campaign. It is where they came from, and how and why.

One of the mysteries of Watergate was why any savvy politician would figure there was information at Democratic National Headquarters so valuable as to be worth the risk of breaking into the place to get at it.

And one of the legacies of Watergate is a political establishment sensitized to anything that smacks of dirty tricks.

Reagan said he never saw the Carter campaign papers, never even knew about them until he read about them in the newspapers. "I happen to agree with House Speaker Tip O'Neill who said today that he didn't think the debate would have turned out any differently one way or the other," Reagan told his news conference Tuesday night.

Reagan said as he recalled the debate, there would have been no use for the Carter papers anyhow. "Everything that was used in that debate had been used over and over again out on the campaign trail," he said.

Nonetheless, there is political embarrassment for the White House in the fact that Reagan's people had the papers, and that they wound up in administration files. Now they have been turned over to the Justice Department.

Reagan said his instructions were to investigate and to take appropriate action if any wrongdoing was involved, by anyone involved in either campaign.

When the question of ethics was raised, the president said he deplored any double standard in politics. "I think it should be above reproach," he said, "and there shouldn't be unethical things done in campaigns, even such things as accusing the other candidate of being a racist and things like that."

That was a slap at Carter, who didn't quite call Reagan a racist, but certainly suggested it during the 1980 campaign.

Even so, Reagan acknowledged that some of the material was put to use, at least as a time-saver. David Stockman, now budget director, played the role of Carter as Reagan rehearsed for the Cleveland debate. Stockman has said he found the stuff useful. Reagan said he thought "Dave meant that since he was going to play President Carter in practicing in front of a panel of questioners, that it saved him from having to go out and dig up what were all of the accomplishments of the Carter administration."

He bantered about the reaction of his 1980 campaign manager, William Casey, now CIA director, when the Carter material arrived. "... He'd be the fellow that would pass it on as quickly as he got it," the president said. "I do that with some papers sometimes, too, now. I don't look, but I know that they could be handled by someone else."

The day after the Cleveland debate, Reagan said he wasn't sure he'd won it, but "I've examined myself. I can't find any wounds."

There may yet be some.

Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — The municipal bond market undergoes a significant change this week in the way it does business.

A federal law requires that, beginning Friday, new issues of tax-free municipal bonds be sold only in registered form. For the first time, buyers will be required to identify themselves when purchasing new issues, and the issuer must keep track of who owns its bonds.

Until now, municipal bonds had been issued each year in what is called "bearer" form. No record was kept of who owns such bonds. The bonds were sold with attached interest coupons, which owners simply clipped at maturity and redeemed for cash at their local banks.

Here are some questions and answers about the new system and what it may mean to issuers and bondholders:

Q. What types of securities are affected by the new requirement?

A. Registration will apply to new issues of municipal bonds that states and local governments sell for things such as street improvements, sewage treatment facilities and other public projects. These bonds are attractive to investors because the interest paid on them is exempt from federal taxes and most state and local tax. Such issues are regarded as relatively secure because the issuing agencies are units of government that have their taxing authority to make sure the bonds are repaid on time.

Q. Why is the change being made?

A. The Treasury Department said the change would help it crack down on tax evasion. The government said some people were buying municipal bonds to conceal income, some of it ill-gotten, while others may have failed to report such instruments in computing tax due on inheritances.

Q. Why was the July 1 date picked for the change?

A. It was a compromise. The original registration legislation set a deadline of Jan. 1, 1983, but the deadline was extended for six months after bond issuers complained they could not make the change in time.

Q. What will the change mean to issuers?

A. Issuers will either have to set up the machinery to keep track of who owns their bonds and make sure interest payments are made on time. For some larger units of government, this may mean adding a few employees who use existing computer systems to do the job. Smaller units of government, however, probably will have to hire an agent to keep track of who owns the bonds and to help make the transfers when the bonds are traded.

Q. How have issuers reacted to the new requirement?

A. The state of South Carolina went to court to challenge the requirement, saying it represented unwarranted interference with the rights of states to issue such bonds. In June, the Supreme Court agreed to hear the case, but it refused to issue an order that would have blocked registration pending its decision. The case will not likely be argued before the court until fall.

Q. What changes will be apparent to individual investors?

A. In addition to having to identify themselves when buying bonds, investors may get a higher rate of interest for doing so. Bond dealers say when a registration requirement took effect for housing bond issues in 1982, issuers had to pay about ¼ percentage point to ½ percentage point more in interest for registered bonds compared with bearer bonds. They said the differential has disappeared over time.

Q. Are there any other advantages for investors?

A. Issuers will get their interest payments automatically and will not have to remember to clip coupons to get their money. Registration also will make it easier for investors to prove ownership of the bonds if lost or stolen.

Q. What if a buyer simply does not want it known he owns municipal bonds?

A. It has been estimated there are $400 billion worth of bearer bond municipal issues outstanding, none of which are affected by the new requirement. These bonds will continue to be bought and sold in the secondary securities market.

Round Of Applause

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court had one of its better days on June 13. Six opinions came down. In five of them the court spoke unanimously; in the sixth the vote was 8-1. In two of the cases the court followed the sound doctrine of judicial restraint. All of the opinions were brief. A round of applause is in order.

There haven't been many occasions for applause during this term. Through June 13 the court had divided 5-4 on 20 cases. Time after time the justices have done the spread-eagle act; in the Missouri abortion case, Powell wrote an opinion in six parts, but he appeared to be alone in liking all six of them. His eight colleagues romped off in three directions, concurring and dissenting across the landscape. All of the justices tend toward long-windedness, and Justice Blackmun in particular has a way of sitting on a case forever.

But June 13 was a good day, and because I recently have had some unkind things to say about the court's occasional adventures in judicial activism, it is only fair to call attention to the court's opinions in two cases. One involved an unhappy aerospace engineer in Alabama. The other involved five unhappy black sailors in the Navy. In both cases the court refused to impose its own ideas on well-established law.

William C. Bush, the aerospace engineer, felt aggrieved by the positions to which he was assigned during a reorganization of the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center in 1974. In May and June of 1975 he made a number of public statements, including two televised interviews, that were highly critical of the agency. He was quoted as saying that he did not have "enough meaningful work to keep him busy," that his job was a "travesty and worthless," and that the taxpayers' money was being spent fraudulently and wastefully.

For thus exercising his vocal cords, Bush was demoted from the civil service grade of GS-14 to GS-12, at a loss of $9,700 a year in pay. He sued the director of the center, William R. Lucas, asking damages for defamation and for violation of his constitutional rights. The Supreme Court, "for purposes of decision," assumed that Bush's First Amendment rights had indeed been violated. The question was, could the aggrieved engineer sue his superior for damages?

As Justice Stevens emphasized in his opinion for a unanimous court, the Supreme Court has power to grant the relief Bush had asked. But in this case, the court concluded that federal civil servants already are protected by "an elaborate, comprehensive scheme" by which the improper actions of government executives may be redressed. The court, acting with restraint, refused to fashion an additional damages remedy of its own.

The same sense of restraint was evident in the court's unanimous refusal to grant the five sailors a new right to sue their superior officers for damages. The five had complained that because of their race they had been given undesirable duties and low performance evaluations. A federal district court threw out their suit, but the Ninth Circuit reversed. On June 13, speaking through Chief Justice Burger, the court came down solidly in support of the long-established procedures under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

"The special nature of military life, the need for unhesitating and decisive action by military officers and equally disciplined responses by enlisted personnel," said Burger, "would be undermined by a judicially created remedy exposing officers to personal liability at the hands of those they are charged to command."

None of the other four cases on June 13 amounted to much. Two cases were accepted in order to resolve intercircuit conflicts. A third had to do with federal preemption of state law on an Indian reservation in New Mexico. The fourth involved a fellow who pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing phencyclidine, received a prison sentence of 25 years, and then decided to sue the officers who had arrested him.

In brief, it was much less than a landmark day at the high court, but the several opinions were brisk, nicely reasoned and altogether workmanlike. The justices functioned as judges, not as social critics or gynecologists or superintendents of schools, and I like it that way.

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

The maze, or labyrinth, used to be very popular at amusement parks, especially in England. Once a person got into its narrow hallways, escape seemed almost impossible. The more one tried to extricate himself, the more hopeless became his involvement.

But there was one way in which a person could get out very easily. A man was always seated in a chair above the maze. He was clearly visible to everyone in the narrow passages. All one had to do if he became hopelessly lost was to signal this man and he would show the bewildered person how to get out quickly and easily.

In the confusion and frustrations of our lives, just as in the labyrinths of amusement parks, rescue comes only when we look up. To rely upon our own powers only involves us all the more hopelessly.

It is when we look up that we discern One who indicates the way of escape and leads us out.

—Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer—

Hysteria Reigns Over AIDS

Yet when the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome has long been cured and eradicated, the notion of homosexuals as forever diseased may still fester.

Public hysteria over AIDS has already given anthropologists plenty to work with. Coronado, Calif., police and fire officials, for example, have cancelled a cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course because students were unwilling to engage in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation with a dummy. In New York City, a bailiff and other court officials donned surgical masks and glove when an AIDS-stricken inmate took the stand.

Here in San Francisco, whose large, politically-powerful gay population is well-known across the U.S., technicians at station KGO-TV refused to work in the same studio featuring AIDS victims. (While it might seem the logical place for complete hysteria, San Francisco is relatively calm. Local papers say convention bookings haven't dropped off. Added Mayor Diane Feinstein in an interview: "There's much less hysteria here. Everybody knows about the disease.")

Yet, as in other places, the AIDS epidemic comes at a critical juncture for homosexuals, whose acceptance by society has slowly edged higher in recent years as their overt numbers and self-assertion have increased.

Indeed, many straight Americans have gradually grown tolerant of gays in the workplace, in neighborhoods and in schools. They've seen the emergence of a gay culture — in the form of bookstores, newspapers, movies and even a television series — and tacitly assented to its incorporation into American culture as a whole.

Democrats Vow Continued War On Tax Cut

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats, eyeing the 1984 elections, are serving notice that their failure to limit the third and final installment of President Reagan's tax cut will not silence them on the issue. The Republican-controlled Senate voted virtually along party lines 55-45 Wednesday to scuttle House-passed legislation that would have limited the maximum tax reduction to $720 a year for couples and $637 for single people. The tax cut goes into effect this Friday and Reagan hailed the vote saying, "I can put my veto pen away." But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., refused to give ground on his contention that the president's tax policies favor the wealthy and are driving up budget deficits.

"The Senate's failure to approve the tax cap may have been a victory for the president but a defeat for fairness. The people want fairness and sooner or later they are going to get it," O'Neill said.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., a leader in the fight for the limit, said that despite the loss, Democrats "made a consistent record on the equity and fairness" of Reagan's tax policies.

That record is likely to be aired at length in next year's political campaigns. Reagan and his congressional allies have defended his tax program, enacted in 1981, saying that it is necessary to return more money to upper-income Americans since they make most of the investments in the country.

During a nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday night, Reagan reiterated the argument saying, "True fairness means honoring our word. It means encouraging and rewarding every citizen who strives to excel and help make America great again."

Meanwhile, some Senate Democrats indicated that delay by House leaders in beginning the tax cap effort — revenue bills must originate in the House — may have robbed them of the time necessary to attract moderate Republican votes that would have been essential for passing the limit in the Senate.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said he was "really saddened that this has been put off as long as it has."

Bumpers, another leader in the effort to enact the limit, also said there was no reason to pursue the legislation after the cut takes effect.

"I don't think there's any point in bringing this up again," Bumpers said.

However, the Senate action will not be the last congressional skirmish this year over taxes.

The $859 billion budget Congress adopted over Reagan's objections last week directs the tax-writing committees in the House and Senate to draft legislation raising $73 billion in additional revenues over the next three years in order to pare soaring budget deficits.

Reagan has ruled out any significant tax increases before 1986.

The Democratic plan would have permanently affected 8.1 million couples and individuals — about half of whom earn less than $50,000 a year. But nearly 90 percent of the additional taxes of $6.2 billion in 1984 would have come from those making more than $50,000.

The Senate action means that all taxpayers will see a tax reduction this year averaging about 10 percent below last year's levels.

For example, a $20,000-a-year one-earner couple with two children and an average amount of itemized deductions will pay the government about $164 less than last year, a figure that would not have been affected by the Democratic plan. But a $50,000 couple will get an $828 tax cut, compared with $720 under the proposal that was rejected.

A single person earning $30,000 will get a tax cut of $505, the same as if the Democrats had won the Senate battle. A $100,000-a-year earner will get $2,065, compared with $637 if the limitation had been approved.

The Democrat-controlled House had passed the measure last week on a 229-191 party-line vote with no Republicans voting in favor of it.

What Flattened Tunguska?

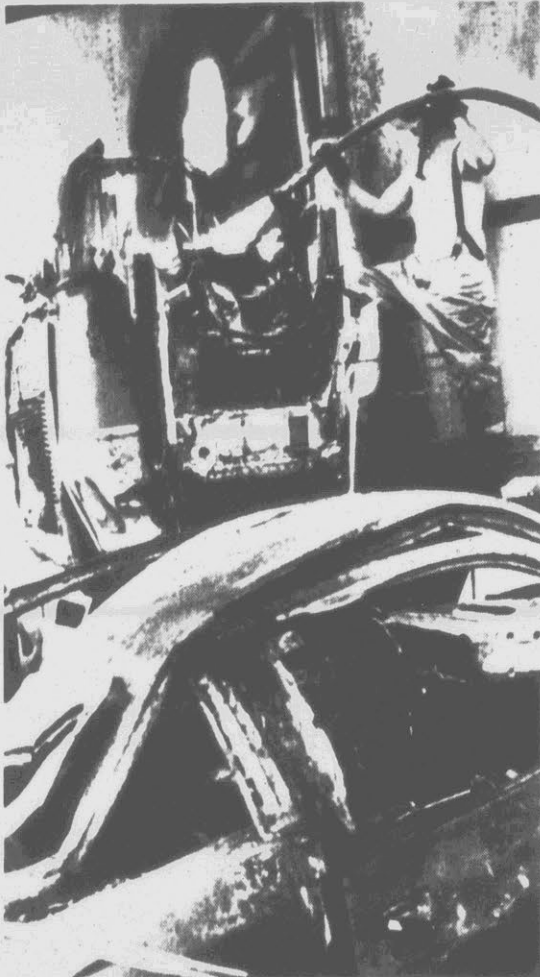

On this date in 1908, a huge fireball seemingly fell out of the sky in Central Siberia, causing a huge explosion where it landed. Some 2,000 square kilometers of forest and thousands of trees were flattened and burned around the impact site, and the atmospheric shock wave circled the earth three times! Yet, amidst all that destruction, there was no impact crater at the site. This remarkable occurrence, called the Tunguska Event, has baffled people for 75 years. Though a number of explanations have been put forward — including UFOs, black holes and antimatter — it seems most likely that Tunguska was struck by a football field-size fragment of a comet.

Military Air Controllers Returning To Bases

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. (AP) — A two-year mission ends today for the last of the military air traffic controllers who replaced striking civilians, but some decided to stay for more pay instead of returning to the Air Force.

"They performed wonderfully," said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Dick Stafford.

About two dozen Air Force controllers are the last of 800 assigned to 65 FAA control centers Aug. 3, 1981, when 11,500 civilian members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization walked off the job and were fired by President Reagan.

Stafford said the military controllers, borrowed from about 80 installations, helped keep the system working while the FAA trained new civilian controllers. The civilian ranks are now at about 93 percent of capacity, he said, and there is no further need for the military controllers.

The illegal strike did create a problem, however, for the Air Force Communications Command at Scott Air Force Base.

"From a simple arithmetic point of view, we knew there was a potential that our boys might leave when their hitch was up," said Col. Derrel L. Dempsey, deputy chief of staff for air traffic services.

"We took a survey at the beginning of the strike and found as many as 90 percent of the military controllers who had dates of separation between August 1981 and August 1982 would leave if the FAA offered them a job," he said.

One reason is the FAA pays its controllers roughly twice as much for doing the same work, Dempsey said. And the military controllers were expected to work the same six-day week as the civilian controllers — for no extra pay.

Sgt. John Pruitt, returning to duty at Scott Air Force Base in suburban St. Louis, said he will have to talk with his wife about whether to stay with the military or apply for an FAA position when his hitch is up next year.

"Most of the civilian controllers got their start in the military," he said. "I like my job. But I haven't decided whether I want to do it in the military or with the FAA."

Four of Pruitt's fellow officers assigned to Pittsburgh chose to leave the military for the FAA during his stay there, and two other signed up for a new hitch with the Air Force.

To keep its highly trained controllers, the Air Force increased the re-enlistment bonus from $12,000 to $16,000, Dempsey said. And the Air Force took measures to ensure that the military controllers weren't denied any educational opportunities while working at FAA control centers.

Steps were also taken to make sure that the military controllers' housing needs were met. And a program was set up to make sure their families left behind were taken care of, he said.

Stafford declined to say how many military controllers were hired by the FAA during the strike.

Pot Crop In State Park

WEOTT, Calif. (AP) — State forest rangers have discovered more than 600 marijuana plants, ranging up to seven feet tall, nestled among trees and bushes at Humboldt Redwood State Park.

Ten rangers plucked 570 of the plants Tuesday and said it was their largest single-day haul in the 51,000-acre park, located about 230 miles north of San Francisco.

Area Manager Carl Chavez said Wednesday that the plants, which were later burned, were valued at about $1,000 to $2,000 apiece.

Rangers also found sophisticated gardening equipment, including a gasoline-powered water pump, a water tank, plastic piping, rat traps and fertilizer, Chavez said.

James Everett Brooks, 23, who said he was from Highland, Calif., was arrested in connection with the hidden garden, Chavez said.

"Where most of these gardens are, there is some related resource damage," Chavez said. "That's our major concern."

Chavez said marijuana farmers clear trees and shrubs in the forest to make room for the plants, and create a high fire risk.

Police Investigated 3 Collisions Here

An estimated $2,500 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Wednesday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:26 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and N.C. 33, involving a truck driven by Rufus Junior Cooper of 1504A Fleming St. and a car operated by Roberta Lynn Coggins of Route 11, Greenville.

Police, who said Ms. Coggins was injured in the collision, estimated damage at $200 to the truck and $900 to the car.

Cooper was charged with having improper breaks and driving under the influence in connection with the incident.

Charlie Manning Daniel of Route 5, Greenville, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:18 p.m. collision on 10th Street, 50 feet west of the Riverbluff Road intersection.

Investigators said the Daniel car collided with a vehicle driven by William Taylor Seamans of 806 Riberhill Drive, causing $600 damage to the Seamans car and $250 damage to the Daniel auto.

Vehicles driven by Linwood Warren Smith of Route 1, Hookerton, and Christine Edwards Ward of 1502 Powell St. collided about 7:30 p.m. at the intersection of Gum Road and Washington Street, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Smith car and $250 damage to the truck driven by Ms. Ward.

Police charged Smith with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of the wreck.

Film Premiere Set For Bailey

BAILEY, N.C. (AP) — A Smithsonian Institution documentary on old-fashioned medicine shows, filmed in 1980 in Bailey, will be completed by mid-July and will premiere in Bailey, the film's producers say.

Paul Wagner, co-producer, said the film was supposed to have been completed in early 1981, but money from a $35,000 grant ran out. Several months ago the National Endowment of the Arts viewed the film and decided to grant the $30,000 needed to complete the project.

Ethics Panel Probes Altered Reports

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House ethics panel says he is ready to investigate the publication of House committee reports that distorted remarks made by GOP lawmakers at public hearings.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, responding to Republican pleas for urgency, told the Rules Committee on Wednesday his ethics panel will begin its probe as soon as the full House authorizes the investigation.

The chamber was scheduled to consider such a resolution today. Republican House members initially demanded formation of a Watergate-style investigating committee to probe what some GOP staffers already are calling "altergate."

The GOP said a special committee would avoid the secrecy normally imposed by the ethics panel during the initial phase of its investigations. But Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said the ethics panel should conduct the probe and offered a motion to refer the GOP special committee proposal to the Rules Committee.

Wright won on the largely party-line vote of 256-161, and the rules panel quickly killed the GOP measure by refusing to consider it. Instead, it approved a resolution to send the matter to Stokes' committee.

The issue involves remarks by lawmakers during at least two sets of committee hearings which both Republicans and Democrats agree were altered in the official committee reports on the proceedings.

Republicans said their remarks were changed to make them seem less knowledgeable, less confident and ineffective about the subjects of the hearings: the Environmental Protection Agency and silver prices.

The remarks of Democrats were changed to make those lawmakers look good, the Republicans charged. "In the 15 years I've been around here I've never heard of transcripts being altered," said Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., the minority whip.

Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., called the alterations "a blemish upon the House. What is at issue here is the integrity of this House."

TOOTHLESS GRANNY — Catherine McColl, a 69-year-old toothless grandmother won a 204-day legal battle Wednesday to stop Scotland's largest local authority adding fluoride to drinking water to reduce dental decay. At her press conference yesterday she said that fluoride is a "horrible poison" and made a "witches brew" of drinking water. (AP Laserphoto)

Big 'Royalty' For Playwright

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Neil Simon says having a theater named after him is "the biggest royalty I've ever received."

told friends, family and actors at the name-change ceremony Wednesday at what is now the Neil Simon Theatre on 52nd Street.

"Luck, good fortune and a short name play a great part in having a theater named after you. ... If I was (Swiss playwright) Friedrich Duerrenmatt, Jimmy Nederlander would never have thought of this," Simon

It had been the Alvin Theatre. Nederlander owns it. Simon, 55, who has written 21 Broadway plays in 22 years, including "The Odd Couple," "The Sunshine Boys" and his latest,

"Brighton Beach Memoirs," said he's always wondered how theaters got their names.

"The Plymouth Theatre, of course as you all know, was the first theater to sail to America to escape religious persecution from English theater critics," he quipped. Earlier this month, Broadway's Uris Theater was renamed the Gershwin Theater after composer George Gershwin and his brother, lyricist Ira Gershwin.

Losing Jobs

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. officials say the automaker's plan to cover car payments for buyers who lose their jobs should help boost sales by eliminating potential customers' purchasing fears.

Spokesmen for the No. 3 U.S. carmaker expressed cautious optimism as the experimental program took effect Wednesday in Louisville, Ky., Tucson, Ariz., and Rochester, N.Y.

"Fear of unemployment is one of three reasons that buyers postpone purchase of an automobile. Two others are purchase price and high interest rates," said Joseph A. Campana, Chrysler's vice president of marketing.

"The intention of this program is to sell automobiles," said spokesman Tom Houston. "We've addressed the price problem somewhat, because our cars are affordable, and we've addressed the financing through lower interest rates. Now, we hope we're taking away the third objection."

The program, available to buyers who have jobs at the time they purchase the vehicle and lose their jobs more than 30 days after delivery, runs through July 31. It applies only to buyers of new 1983-model cars in the three cities, Chrysler said.

The company will assume payments of up to $300 per month until the buyer finds a job, the car is resold or 12 consecutive months of loan payments have been made after the date of unemployment, the company said.

The buyer does not have to repay the company, said Joe Tetherow, a Chrysler spokesman in Los Angeles.

"It is a test, and we will take a look at it to see just how well it's worked," Houston said. "But you can't speculate (about possible expansion) when we're just beginning."

The three cities were selected for the trial program because they have a balance of blue- and white-collar workers, they mirror the automaker's 12 percent market share nationwide and because their unemployment rates reflect national figures.

Figures from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that Louisville, Tucson and Rochester each averaged about 10.3 percent unemployment in April, compared with 10.1 percent nationally.

The new program is in addition to the nationwide sales incentives Chrysler already has in place. The automaker is offering 8.7 percent financing or rebates of $300 to $750 on selected 1982 and 1983 models.

Chrysler sold 400,323 cars in the United States so far this year, up 21.5 percent from the 329,492 sold through the same period of 1982.

Rites For Six
Killed Airmen

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Funeral services for six Air Force men killed when a military cargo plane crashed during a simulated combat mission will be held Friday at Nellis Air Force Base.

The crew of the C-130 had just completed a simulated heavy equipment drop when the plane crashed after noon Tuesday on the base about 110 miles northwest of Las Vegas, authorities said Wednesday.

Rescue teams flown in by helicopter were at the remote crash site Wednesday retrieving the victims' bodies and examining the wreckage for clues to the crash.

Swiss Declare Russian A Spy

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss government today alleged that a Soviet vice consul had been a spy for years and demanded that Moscow recall the diplomat immediately.

A Justice Ministry communique said the diplomat, whose name was not given, was attached to the Soviet consulate-general in Geneva. It said federal and local police established that he had attempted "for several years and partly successfully to collect information ... of political, economic and scientific nature."

The communique said the activities were "not compatible with his status." The government, it said, had protested to the Soviet mission and demanded that the man be "recalled forthwith."

The case followed the expulsion of three Soviet diplomats or consular officials earlier this year for allegedly masterminding subversive activities in this neutral nation. The Switzerland-based director of the Soviet news agency Novosti was also booted out on such charges.

Justice Minister Rudolf Friedrich told Parliament earlier this month that there were 75 espionage cases from 1980 through 1982 involving Soviet-bloc nations, including 28 linked to Soviet nationals.

Settlement For Death In Jail

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An insurance company representing the Wake County Sheriff's Department has reached a $5,000 settlement with the family of a man who died in the county jail 18 months ago.

Sheriff John H. Baker Jr. Tuesday announced the settlement with the family of Henry Lee Whitfield of Roxboro. Whitfield, 41, died Nov. 18, 1981, after suffering an asthma attack while serving a three-day sentence for drunken driving.

Family members had sought $300,000 in damages, claiming that jailers were aware of Whitfield's asthma condition but failed to separate him from inmates who smoked cigarettes. The suit claimed jailers also failed to give Whitfield his asthma medicine.

DISRUPTION
LIMA, Peru (AP) — A soldier fired his rifle in the air near President Fernando Belaunde Terry during an army ceremony yesterday, and there was an explosion a few blocks away, police report.

Falwell, Helms Unite In Drive

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., will hold a series of voter registration meetings next week in five cities around the state.

Falwell, the leader of Moral Majority, announced the voter registration drive in a June 27 letter to supporters.

Officials of the Helms for Senate Committee say the drive is a project of Moral Majority and is not connected to Helms' expected bid for reelection in 1984.

The Rev. Lamar Mooneyham of Durham, chairman of the Moral Majority in the state, said the state group had asked Falwell to help kick off the voter registration drive and Falwell had invited Helms for the tour.

Reagan Calls For 'Grassroots Effort' In Education Renewal

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan, visiting a high school of mostly Mexican-American students, called today for "a grassroots campaign for educational renewal."

The president, on a cross-country campaign to draw attention to the need to make changes in the nation's education program, was visiting what he said had been "at one time a problem school."

The school, Pioneer High School, is now praised by the Department of Education and is the site for the second regional forum on the recommendations of the National Commission Excellence in Education.

"I wish I could load all the students and teachers of this school on a bus and take them around the country with me, showing the nation what can be done," Reagan said in remarks prepared for the opening of the forum.

About 2,700 students, 72 percent of them Mexican-Americans, are enrolled at the school.

The president planned to visit a program teaching students with limited English language ability. According to a White House statement, 50 percent of the school's entering ninth grade students fail proficiency tests in reading, math or writing.

But by the time they are seniors, they can meet state requirements for high school diplomas, the White House said.

While in Whittier, the town where former President Richard M. Nixon was educated, Reagan said federal officials are responsible for "identifying the national interest in education." But he said local officials must pay the bills "and it is at the local level where progress will be made."

"Local school boards can set higher standards. They can see that outstanding teachers are rewarded for their efforts," the president said, adding:

"The time has come for a grassroots campaign for educational renewal that unites parents, teachers, students, local officials and concerned citizens," Reagan said.

This evening, the president planned to attend a $1,000-a-person fund-raising dinner for the California Republican Party at the site of the "Spruce Goose" seaplane in Long Beach. The seaplane, which only made one flight, is the largest plane ever built. Howard Hughes labored over the project for five years.

On his way to California, Reagan learned that the Supreme Court had upheld a Minnesota law permitting parents of children in private school to claim tax credits for tuition payments. Support for tuition tax credits is part of Reagan's overall education program.

"I'm happy about it," the president told reporters.

Education Secretary Terrell H. Bell, who accompanied the president to education speeches in Louisville, Ky., and Shawnee, Kan., on the westbound trip, said Reagan had not changed his mind about trying to get rid of the Education Department.

But, said Bell to reporters aboard Air Force One Wednesday afternoon, "We have to face political reality, and the reality is that we can't get a bill passed."

Bell said that one proposal he made to shift some of the department's functions could only muster the support of 19 senators.

"I don't expect we'll be pushing for anything between now and January, 1985," Bell said.

Ever since the education commission delivered its report last April calling for improved academic standards and merit pay for "master teachers," Reagan has focused on the topic in public appearances. His interest reflects his aides' belief that education can prove to be a positive political issue if he seeks reelection next year.

The merit pay idea has put Reagan at odds with the National Education Association, the largest teachers' union, which argues that all teachers' salaries should be raised.

The plan has gotten a friendlier reception from the American Federation of Teachers, which the president will address Tuesday before heading home to Washington after a Fourth of July holiday at his Santa Barbara ranch.

"You have to keep in mind that those two unions are in competition with each other," the education secretary said.

On his way out West on Wednesday, Reagan told a convention of the National Association of Student Councils in Shawnee, Kan., that false perceptions of his administration were plaguing him in such areas as civil rights and aid to students.

"There is a misperception that in some way we have been turning back programs" of aid to students as a result of tightened eligibility requirements, Reagan said.

He said the administration had changed the requirements, so that more money would go to those "at the bottom of the earnings scale."

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. Two few of the loads offered have been confirmed. The market is firm and the live supply is moderate for a very good demand. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,699,000, compared to 1,782,000 last Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, following through on Wednesday's late rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 4.61 Wednesday, rose 4.51 to 1,218.35 by noon today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 9 to 5 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors were finding it hard to ignore all the recent positive news on the economy.

The government reported Wednesday that the index of leading economic indicators, which is designed to detect future economic trends, rose 1.2 percent in May, marking its 11th consecutive increase.

There was also speculation that the Federal Reserve's report on the money supply, due after the close on Friday, would show a second straight weekly decline. That would presumably help ease recent fears that the Fed would be forced to tighten credit.

Gainers among the volume leaders included Chrysler, up ½ at 32½; International Business Machines, up at 120½; Merrill Lynch, up 1½ at 52½; and Eastman Kodak, up ¼ at 72½.

The NYSE's composite index gained 46 to 97.02. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 4.18 at 482.71.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 34.26 million shares at noon, against 36.58 million at the same point Wednesday.

Snowplows Clear Roads

RIVERTON, Wyo. (AP) — While most other states enjoy sunny summer weather, parts of Wyoming are still buried under more than 3 feet of snow.

District Ranger Dave Stark of the Shoshone National Forest in western Wyoming said snowplows were sent Wednesday to clear 3½-foot drifts from the Loop Road, a 26-mile scenic route.

He said Fremont County Commissioners wanted the dirt road opened by July 1 in time for sightseers expected for the Fourth of July weekend.

The road, usually opened by June 1, meanders through meadows, forest lands and the middle fork of the Popo Agie River. "In the winter, it's a great snowmobile trail," Stark said.

Snowfall was 130 percent of normal during the winter, according to the National Weather Service in Lander, which recorded 166 inches in between September and May. Most of the snow fell in April and May.

"This is the latest the road has opened since I came here in 1979," Stark said. "We had a late spring season and the snow was very late in starting to melt."

Hog Farmers Breaking Even

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Hog farmers in North Carolina are just breaking even with the current price at markets, the North Carolina Pork Producers Association says.

Hogs are fetching about 46 cents a pound for the farmer, but production costs normally run 45 to 46 cents a pound, said Al Daniel, executive director of the organization.

He said prices were 10 cents to 15 cents a pound higher a year ago. The higher prices combined with cheap feed corn prices last fall stimulated production, he said.

Polecats Air Complaints

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — When five skunks aired their complaints about police treatment, City Hall quickly got wind of the dispute.

It all started Wednesday when a woman called police about skunks in her basement.

Animal Control officer George Campbell said he trapped an adult and four baby skunks and brought them to the police station at City Hall for fellow officers to see.

Private School Opinion May Renew Tax Battle

By The Associated Press
 A Supreme Court ruling that upheld a state law granting tax breaks to parents of private school children drew a "happy" response from President Reagan, but opponents say the ruling could turn state legislatures into battlefields on the school tax issue.

The high court ruled by a 5-4 vote Wednesday that a Minnesota law which gives tax deductions up to $700 to private school parents does not violate the constitutional separation of church and state.

Matthew Stark, executive director of the Minnesota Civil Liberties Union, which challenged the Minnesota law, called the ruling part of a national "wave of hostility and criticism of the public school system."

"The legislatures throughout the country are going to become more important as the scene in which we'll be fighting against diversion of public funds to parochial schools," Stark said.

"Oh, yes, I'm happy about it," Reagan said Wednesday as he was flying to California aboard Air Force One. The decision provides a boost to Reagan's proposal to give tax credits to parents of private school students.

The Reagan plan pending in Congress calls for a maximum per child credit of $100 the first year it is enacted, and would cost an estimated $200 million in that year.

Robert L. Smith, president of the Washington-based Council for American Private Education, hailed the decision as "a significant victory for increased parental rights in elementary and secondary education and for opening up greater educational opportunities to all American families with school-aged children."

Thomas Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association in Washington which has opposed tax breaks to private school parents, predicted that Reagan and congressional allies "will now be scurrying to revise their bills to bring them into line with the Minnesota decision."

He said the court ruling does not validate tuition tax credits as such, since the Minnesota decision involved tax deductions, not credits. In past decisions, the Supreme Court has ruled tax credits unconstitutional.

"We believe it's poor public policy and bad fiscal management, regardless of whether it's the law of the land," Shannon said. "What's next? Tax credits for recreation centers and swimming pools?"

The Minnesota law also entitles public school parents to tax deductions for certain school costs, such as lab or athletic fees.

According to federal statistics, about 5 million youngsters, or around one of every nine American school children, attend private school. Nearly 4.2 million of those attend religiously affiliated schools, and 3.2 million go to Catholic schools.

Monsignor John F. Meyers, president of the National Catholic Educational Association, said, "Contrary to claims of its bigoted and/or uninformed oppo-

Housekeeper Given Sentence In Thefts

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A woman who stole more than $87,000 during an 11-month period while working as a housekeeper for wealthy families has been sentenced to four to eight years in prison.

June C. Saunders, 29, of Philadelphia, was sentenced Wednesday after pleading guilty March 10 in Montgomery County Court to seven counts of theft by deception and one count of recklessly endangering another person.

Judge Anthony J. Scirica also ordered Ms. Saunders to pay $87,000 to her employers. Officials testified that Ms. Saunders had not helped police to recover some items, as she had promised at the March hearing.

In a similar case in Bucks County, Ms. Saunders was sentenced to 1½ to 23 months in prison and ordered to repay $25,000 to her victim.

McEnroe, Lendl Set For Confrontation

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — When John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl take Center Court at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships on Friday, it will be more than a match — it will be a confrontation, rackets at court length. "I think if I play my best tennis I will be able to beat John McEnroe," said the Czechoslovakian, who is seeded third here at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club. Never one to back down from a challenge, McEnroe, the tournament's No. 2 seed, said: "I am looking forward to the match." The last time the two met was in the championship match of the WCT Finals in Dallas on May 1. McEnroe won that encounter in five sets, winning the fifth-set tiebreaker 7-0. The next week, at the Mercedes Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills in New York, Lendl verbally challenged McEnroe, saying he would try to hit the world's No. 1 player with his shots if McEnroe questioned line calls.

The gauntlet was thrown, but Lendl, seeded to meet McEnroe in the T of C final, was upset in an early round, while McEnroe went on to win the clay court tournament.

This, then, will be their first on-court encounter since Dallas. And neither is expected to give an inch in their battle for a berth in Sunday's final.

The other men's semi-final pairing Friday pits hard-serving Kevin Curren of South Africa against New Zealand's Chris Lewis, a grass courts specialist.

Delaney Dies In Rescue Attempt

MONROE, La. (AP) — A Monroe boy died in a local hospital today, only hours after he was pulled from a water hole where Joe Delaney, the Kansas City Chiefs' running back, drowned trying to save three boys in the water.

Kansas City Back Joe Delaney

One of the boys drowned in Wednesday's accident.

Lancer Perkins, 11, died about 2:05 a.m. EST, said a spokesman for St. Francis Medical Center.

Delaney, 24, jumped into the hole in an attempt to rescue the three boys who were floundering, according to police and eyewitnesses.

One of the boys, a 6-year-old, got out of the water safely.

Police said family members identified the last body to be recovered as that of Delaney, the Chiefs' No. 2 draft choice in 1981 who went on to become National Football League rookie of the year.

Assistant Police Chief E.W. Smith said the other victim was Harry L. Holland Jr., 11, of Monroe.

The drownings occurred in publicly-owned Chenault Park. His mother said Delaney, who frequently visited friends in Monroe, just happened to be among the hundreds of people attracted by a big free admission promotion for a privately operated waterslide.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Delaney, who lived about 100 miles away at Haughton, is survived by his wife, Carolyn, and daughters 7 years, 5 years and 4 months old.

Within hours after his death, Delaney was lauded in the Louisiana Senate at Baton Rouge, by Chiefs' officials and teammates, and by officials at Northwestern State University in Natchitoches, La., where he was an All-America tailback in football and sprinter in track.

"How many kids would do that?" asked A.L. Williams, the Louisiana Tech head coach who coached Delaney at Northwestern. "But that's Joe — always trying to help someone else. It cost him his life, but he'd do it a hundred times. He was so unselfish."

"He was one of the greatest young men to put on a uniform — hell, to put on clothes. He probably didn't even know the kids he tried to save... that's just the way he was," said Bobby Ray McHaffey, who coached Delaney at Haughton High School.

Smith said the accident happened when the three youths were swimming in a water hole left by construction workers who used the dirt to build the slide's hill.

"It is an area where they shouldn't have been, but boys will be boys," Smith said.

Witnesses said Delaney, who was sitting alone nearby, hollered at the boys to be careful and not to wade too far into the water. Moments later, they said, the boys stepped off into deep water, went under and Delaney, fully clothed, plunged into the pond after them and himself went under.

One of the boys got back to the bank but the others did not make it.

Delaney's body was the last recovered from the pond, which covers about two acres, said Eddie Cox, a photographer for the Monroe News-Star-World.

When he got there, Cox said, "one boy was being placed on a stretcher. There was an oxygen mask on his face and he was being given CPR while being carried to an ambulance."

About 400 people were gathered around and "some people were hollering there were others in the water," said Cox.

A hospital spokesman said Delaney and Holland were being administered cardiopulmonary resuscitation when they arrived at the hospital's emergency room, but they never revived.

"I think Joe Delaney was a hero for today," said John Mackovic, the rookie Kansas City coach who knew Delaney only briefly. "I think people from his high school, college and area could always point to him and say you could be like him."

"What does one say when a friend and member of the family is suddenly taken from this earth?" asked Kansas City owner Lamar Hunt in a prepared statement issued by the Chiefs.

"We are saddened and shocked by the news of the untimely death of Joe Delaney," Hunt said. "His professional career was brief in years, but his electrifying style of play and enthusiasm for life will be remembered and treasured by all in the family of the Kansas City Chiefs," Hunt said.

Delaney was a record-smashing NCAA Division I-AA All-America in both football and track at Northwestern State, where Coach Williams recalled he was recruited as a wide receiver and cornerback but unselfishly agreed to switch positions because of a running back shortage.

At just 5-10 and 180 pounds, he became the first Northwestern football player to rush for more than 3,000 career yards and his jersey, bearing the number 44, was retired last year.

In track, he set school records of 10.3 seconds in the 100 meters and 20.6 in the 200, and was a member of the 400-meter relay team — along with fellow NFL players Victor Oatis and Mark Duper — that won the 1981 NCAA championship.

After being drafted by the Chiefs, he won a slot as a rookie starter and played in the Pro Bowl.

In his rookie season, Delaney rushed 234 times in 15 games for 1,121 yards and had 246 yards in pass receiving.

In the off-season, it was discovered that he had a detached retina and that, coupled with leg injuries, dropped his output during the 1982 strike-shortened season to just 380 yards in eight games.

Delaney was the second professional football player from Louisiana to die within the past week.

On Saturday, Larry Gordon, 28, of the Miami Dolphins, who was born in Monroe, died of a heart attack.

experience takes pressure off him." Lendl, who skipped last year's Wimbledon because, he said, he wasn't able to get enough practice time on grass, says he is ready this year.

"I think I have proven myself as a grass court player now because I am playing well and winning matches," he said. "As far as Wimbledon is concerned, it is one of the Big Three tournaments and I will always play here as long as I am physically and mentally fit."

"Winning one of the Grand Slam titles is more important to me than being No. 1 on the computer."

Against Mayer, a semi-finalist here in 1973, the year most of the world's top players boycotted Wimbledon, McEnroe struggled at first. But he won all the big points and took the last eight games of the match to wrap up what turned out to be an easy victory.

Mayer, though, wasn't overly impressed.

"I really do not think he is playing terribly well, as he has played generally sharper matches overall against me,"

The Curren-Mayotte match pitted two young giants against each other. Curren shocked top-seeded Jimmy Connors in the fourth round, blasting 33 aces past the man reported to have the best return of service in the game.

For Mayotte, it was his third straight trip to the quarter-finals here, where he reached the semis last year. And the ferocity of his serve is almost equal to that of Curren's.

Both are former NCAA champions, Curren winning in

Manning's Key Hit Aids Brewer Win

By The Associated Press

Rick Manning has had trouble putting decent numbers together since he was traded to Milwaukee earlier this month, but he has put three big victories in the win column for the struggling Brewers.

Manning's batting average has hovered in the vicinity of .200 since the Brewers acquired him from Cleveland on June 6 in exchange for Gorman Thomas, the popular slugging center fielder. But he won a game with an 11th-inning homer against Baltimore on June 16 and saved two runs with a brilliant catch in a 4-3 victory over Cleveland last Sunday.

Manning was at it again Wednesday night with a two-out, two-run triple in the bottom of the ninth inning that gave the Brewers a 4-3 victory over Detroit and knocked the Tigers out of a share of first place in the American League East.

"I had been trying too hard," Manning said. "I finally decided to be myself, to go the other way with the pitch. I was telling myself 100 times a day to relax, but saying it and doing it between the lines are two different things."

Elsewhere in AL action, the Toronto Blue Jays downed the Minnesota Twins 4-2, the New York Yankees whipped the Baltimore Orioles 7-0, the California Angels nipped the Texas Rangers 2-1, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Seattle Mariners 5-3, the Boston Red Sox outslugged the Cleveland Indians 11-10 in 11 innings after dropping the opener of the doubleheader 5-3 and the Oakland A's pounded the Kansas City Royals 11-6.

Detroit relief ace Aurelio Lopez came on to start the Brewers' ninth and issued a leadoff walk to Robin Yount. With two out, Ben Oglivie singled Yount to third and Manning lined an 0-1 pitch to the gap in right-center, scoring both runners.

"He got ahead of me with a breaking ball," Manning said. "Then I stopped thinking. I was just trying to hit the ball and keep the game going. They were shading me to the left side, and I think it was a breaking pitch that I pulled to the gap."

The Tigers led 3-0 and Juan Berenguer, a last-minute replacement for Dave Rozema, who couldn't get loose while warming up, retired the first 11 Milwaukee batters until Cecil Cooper singled with two out in the fourth. Ted Simmons then homered for Milwaukee's first two runs.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 2

At Minneapolis, Cliff Johnson laced a tie-breaking two-out, two-strike double in the eighth inning and scored on Lloyd Moseby's double as Toronto took sole possession of first place in the AL East, one game ahead of Baltimore and Detroit. Damaso Garcia led off the inning with a double off Bobby Castillo, went to third on Rance Mulliniks' grounder and held there as Willie Upshaw grounded out. But Johnson came through with his double and Moseby greeted Len Whitehouse with another RBI double.

Yankees 7, Orioles 0

At New York, Dave Righetti fired a five-hitter for his first major league shutout. Leading 2-0 on Oscar Gamble's RBI grounder in the first inning and Graig Nettles' run-scoring single in the sixth, New York broke the game open with five runs in the seventh off Mike Boddicker and Sammy Stewart. Steve Kemp and Don Baylor singled and, after a sacrifice, Andre Robertson singled both home and continued to third on center fielder John Shelby's throwing error. Don Mattingly followed with a run-scoring single and Butch Wynegar homered.

Angels 2, Rangers 1

At Anaheim, Bob Boone's third hit of the game, a one-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning, scored Ellis Valentine with the winning run. Loser Mike Smithson walked Valentine with one out and he went to third on a single by Tim Foli before Boone bounced his single to center field. Winner Luis Sanchez rtried Texas in order in the ninth after Tommy John held the Rangers to five hits. The triumph lifted California into a first-place tie with Texas in the AL West.

White Sox 5, Mariners 3

At Seattle, Greg Walker and Tom Paciorek delivered run-scoring singles in the seventh inning as Chicago broke a 3-3 tie. Winner Britt Burns gave up seven hits in 8 1-3 innings and struck out nine, equaling his career high. Jerry Dybzinski opened the seventh inning with a double off Matt Young. Mike Stanton replaced Young and gave up a bunt single to Julio Cruz, who stole second before the RBI hits by Paciorek and Walker.

Indians 5-10, Red Sox 3-11

At Cleveland, Jim Rice drove in five runs with two homers and a double and Tony Armas doubled home the lead run in the 11th inning as Boston gained a split. The Indians took the opener with a three-run rally in the eighth inning, including a two-run pinch single by Mike Hargrove.

In the nightcap, Cleveland's Gorman Thomas tied the game 9-9 in the bottom of the ninth with a solo home run off Bob Stanley, the first-game loser. But in the 11th, Boston put runners at first and third on a walk and a throwing error by pitcher Bud Anderson on Rice's potential double play ball. Armas doubled home one run and Eddie Jurak hit a sacrifice fly for the decisive run.

A's 11, Royals 6

At Oakland, Carney Lansford hit a first-inning grand slam and Rick Peters' RBI double broke a tie in a five-run fourth inning as the A's defeated Kansas City for the third night in a row. Winner Jeff Jones pitched 4 2-3 innings of scoreless relief, while loser Steve Renko who gave up all five runs in the fifth. After Tony Phillips singled and scored the go-ahead run on Peters' double, the A's added four more runs on Bill Almon's RBI double, RBI singles by Marshall Brant and Rickey Henderson and a wild pitch.

Spitz Blasts Sports Festival

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — With the 1983 National Sports Festival heading toward its final, climactic weekend of action, former Olympic swimming star Mark Spitz has blasted the competition that is sanctioned by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Spitz, winner of seven gold medals in the 1972 Summer Games at Munich, was quoted in a Knight News Service report as saying that the Sports Festival was "a joke" and "an exercise in futility."

"None of the top-notch athletes are here. All the good ones bypass this," said Spitz, who had been here last weekend as a commentator for ABC on the Festival's swimming and diving events. "It's just a lot of money wasted that could be doing some good somewhere else."

"They're not producing any Olympians here. It's just a big get-together. That's all."

Spitz' remarks triggered a flood of telephone calls and telegrams from United States Olympians to USOC headquarters here, according to spokesman Mike Moran.

Late Wednesday, after a phone call from USOC Executive Director F. Don Miller, Spitz said he had been misquoted and issued an apology.

"Under no circumstances would I ever be involved in demeaning an organization (the USOC) which enabled me to be who I am and represent myself, my country, and my sport of swimming," Spitz said in the statement, released here by the USOC.

"My statements, unrelated to swimming, were not intended to denigrate the National Sports Festival or its participants," he added.

The writer, Mike Downey, was not immediately available for comment.

"Spitz' comments came as some of the Festival's big sports were beginning to unwind."

Hockey, in which the United States dramatically won the Olympic gold medal in 1980, began Wednesday with the West defeating the East 5-3 in the opening game, as Gary Haight, Steve Griffith and Gary Sampson scored three goals in a 2:18 span of the second period, and the North beating the South 8-4 as Gary Fusco, the collegiate player of the year, had a goal and an assist, and sparked on defense.

Basketball, in which the United States has won every Olympic gold medal but one, decided its teams for the Festival finals Friday night.

In the men's competition, it will be the South against the East, and among the women, the South will face the West.

The South men's team gained its berth in the gold medal game Wednesday night, beating the North 119-112 as Steve Mitchell scored 24 points, while the East downed the West 119-106, behind Walter Berry's 27 points.

Teresa Edwards scored 18 points, leading the South women's team to a 101-89 victory over the North, while the West gained the final despite a 92-90 loss to the East, thanks to the round-robin tie-breaker formula.

Gymnastics, another premier Olympic sport, begins tonight, and track and field, the blue ribbon event of the quadrennial Summer Games, starts Friday.

Several gold medalists were decided Wednesday, foremost among them Dan Johnson of Garrett Park, Md.

Johnson, a kayaker, won the men's 1,000-meter pairs for his sixth medal — tops in this year's festival. He teamed with Geoff Smith of Skaneateles, N.Y. to take the title — his second gold, to go along with two silver and two bronze.

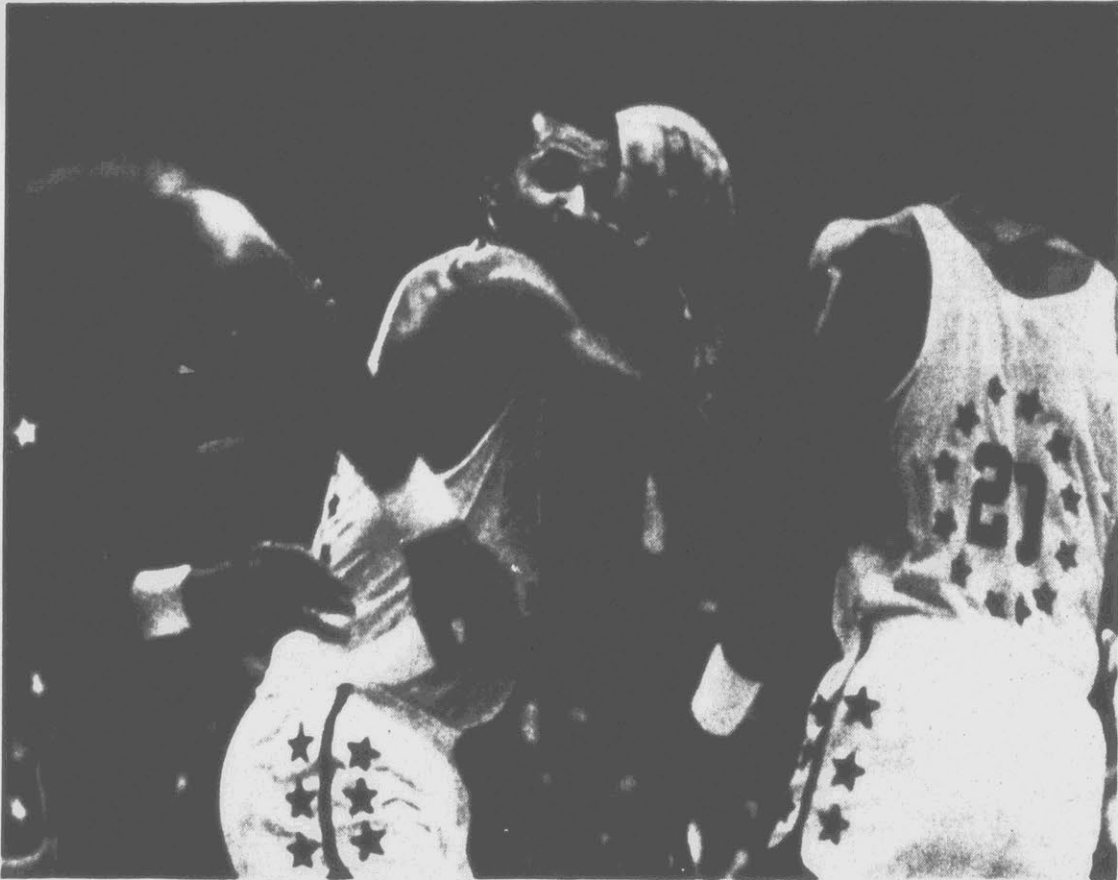

Tourney Scheduled

The Roanoke-Chowan Tennis Association will sponsor a tournament August 5-7 at the Ashokie public tennis courts.

Competition will include men's and women's doubles, mixed doubles, men's over-35 doubles and a consolation tournament in each event. Trophies will be awarded for first, second and third place in the "A" division and first and second in the "B" division.

Other activities for the participants include a pig picking, watermelon party, raffle, ice cream party and a pingpong tournament.

The entry fee is $14 per person, and the deadline is August 1. Food, tennis balls and a T-shirt will be provided for each participant.

Wrong Lefty For L.A.

By The Associated Press

When Fernando Valenzuela's pitching, you can be sure you're going to see a pretty good left-hander on the mound.

But Wednesday night, it wasn't Fernando Valenzuela.

While the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace southpaw left early in the midst of a 13-2 shelling by San Diego, Padres rookie left-hander Mark Thurmond was the one who was in total command of the situation.

"That was asking quite a bit of a young fellow to go out there and face that team," said Padre Manager Dick Williams after watching his young left-hander stifle the Dodgers on seven hits. "We didn't know what to expect — although he'd been pitching well in Las Vegas."

Thurmond was called up Tuesday from San Diego's Las Vegas farm club and immediately inserted into the starting rotation in place of Andy Hawkins, who was sent down. Thurmond pitched two innings in three relief appearances earlier in the season in a brief trial with the Padres.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 5-0, Atlanta routed Houston 11-1, Montreal stopped Philadelphia 5-2 in the opener of a doubleheader before the Phillies came back to win the nightcap 3-2, Cincinnati edged San Francisco 7-6 and St. Louis tripped New York 4-3.

Steve Garvey, Kurt

Bevacqua and Luis Salazar hit home runs as the Padres battered Valenzuela, 8-5, for 10 runs, chasing him in the fifth inning when they scored seven times. It was the most runs the Dodger left-hander has given up in the major leagues. Five were unearned due to a pair of Dodger errors.

Thurmond, meanwhile, walked only one and struck out four.

Cubs 5, Pirates 0

Mel Hall hit a leadoff home run in the first inning and Keith Moreland and Ron Cey later clubbed two-run shots, and Dick Ruthven scattered seven hits to lead Chicago over Pittsburgh.

The Cubs got all the offense they needed when Hall drilled a 2-1 delivery from Jim Bibby, 3-8, into the right-field seats at Wrigley Field in the bottom of the first.

Moreland's homer, his 11th of the year, came in the sixth following a single by Cey. In the eighth, Cey followed a walk to Leon Durham with his eighth homer, off Lee Tunnell.

It was the second complete game of the season for Ruthven, 5-5, and his first shutout. He walked none and struck out four.

"I felt like Clark Kent the first couple innings, and I'm glad I got rid of that," said Ruthven, who later pitched like Superman. "I was over-throwing, starting to challenge those guys with high pitches that could have cost."

Braves 11, Astros 1

Rafael Ramirez, Brett

Butler and Chris Chambliss each stroked three hits as Atlanta scored runs in bunches to rout Houston.

Ramirez and Butler keyed a pair of four-run innings off Joe Niekro, 4-7, in the first and fourth and the Braves put the icing on the game with a three-run eighth.

Winning pitcher Ken Dayley, 2-0, allowed six hits in seven innings before leaving in favor of reliever Donnie Moore in the eighth.

Expos 5-2, Phillies 2-3

Gary Carter, Mike Vail and Andy Dawson slugged home runs to lead Montreal over Philadelphia behind Steve Rogers' seven-hitter in the first game of their doubleheader.

Rogers, 11-3, struck out three and walked six to out-duel Steve Carlton, 8-9. Carlton gave up just six hits, didn't walk a batter and struck out nine in eight innings to reclaim the lead in his race with Houston's Nolan Ryan for baseball's all-time strikeout mark. Carlton now has 3,560 strikeouts to Ryan's 3,553.

Charlie Hudson and Al Holland teamed up to pitch the Phillies over the error-plagued Expos in the second game. Hudson, 2-2, worked seven innings and gave up seven hits.

Montreal's Scott Sanderson, 4-6, who allowed only two hits in six innings, was the victim of shoddy support in the second inning when three errors, including two by third baseman Tim Wallach, helped the Phillies score three runs.

Reds 7, Giants 6

Cesar Cedeño's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning capped a two-run rally and lifted Cincinnati over San Francisco. Cedeño's one-out sacrifice fly followed Eddie Milner's game-tying single off reliever Greg Minton, 2-5.

Jeff Leonard drove in three runs, one with a homer in the fourth, and Tom O'Malley snapped a 5-5 tie with a solo homer in the top of the ninth to give the Giants a 6-5 lead going into the bottom of the inning.

Cardinals 4, Mets 3

David Green's tie-breaking single in the eighth lifted St. Louis over New York as Rusty Staub's record pinch-hitting streak came to an end.

Dr. J Puts On Dunk Exhibition

GREENSBORO (AP) — Julius Erving dazzled the crowd Wednesday night with an exhibition of dunk shots, but in the end, a team of former Tar Heel stars handed "Dr. J" and a team of National Basketball Association stars a 128-112 loss in an exhibition game.

For Erving, the game at Greensboro was a return to familiar stomping grounds.

Erving played in front of Greensboro Coliseum crowds during his days in the American Basketball Association. That league's Carolina entry played some of its games in the Greensboro facility.

Erving added one more jewel to his illustrious career this season as he helped the Philadelphia 76ers capture an NBA crown, his first since entertaining the league in 1976.

Erving said the loss Wednesday night wasn't nearly as important as the chance to exercise.

"For this game, the attitude was certainly to come in and have fun, get some running in and entertain the fans," Erving said. "I think the mission was accomplished."

With fans yelling for him to dunk every time he touched the ball, Erving said he was appreciative of the response.

"I thought it was very, very warm. Since I had played here during my ABA days, I hoped I would be received warmly here because this was a part of my career," Erving said.

The University of North Carolina stars led by as much as 13 late in the first half, taking a 58-45 lead on a Dudley Bradley dunk with 1:37 left. The NBA stars rallied and eventually took a 78-75 lead with 13:51 to play on Eric "Sleepy" Floyd's three-point play.

A Wood jumper gave the Tar Heel team a 79-78 lead, but Nate Archibald's jumper gave the NBA team an 80-79 edge with 12:52 remaining.

Rich Yonakor, a member of the 1977 North Carolina team that finished second in the nation, hit a baseline jumper with 12:24 left for an 81-80 lead the Carolina team would never relinquish.

Al Wood led the Tar Heel team with 25 points. Walter Davis and Mike O'Koren, members of the 1977 team on which Wood played, scored 24 and 22 points respectively. Bradley had 19 and Gene Banks, who played for Duke and who was switched to the Tar Heel team, added 15.

Floyd had 21 to pace the NBA team, while Erving had 20. Artis Gilmore scored 16 points, while Archibald and Adrian Dantley had 10 each.

Kiwanis Top Winterville

HOLLYWOOD — David Jester pitched two hits and Billy Mitchell pitched Kiwanis to a 12-2 romp over Winterville Machine Works in Senior Babe Ruth League baseball Wednesday.

Steve Kite had a pair of hits for Winterville.

Kiwanis improved its record to 7-3, while Winterville Machine Works slid to 2-9.

Tennis League Results Given

Arlington Self Storage gained its first victory of the season with a 21-13 win over University Book Exchange Wednesday in Junior Novice Tennis League action. In the other match, Greenville Recreation tied Wachovia 16-16.

In advanced league action, the E.C.T.A. team defeated Greenville Tennis Association 6-3, and Greenville Recreation defeated G.T.C. 6-4.

"The serve is the most important shot of all, and if that is going well, everyone raises the rest of their game with it," Mayotte said after his loss. "The trouble is every time you walk on court someone is breaking the sound barrier."

"I felt I played the best tennis of my life in the first two sets. The turning point came in the second set when I was feeling good. If I had managed to win that set, I would probably have won the match."

"I did begin to think about making it to the semis when I lost the three match points in the tiebreaker," Curren said, "and when I got a fourth match point, I was mad at myself and decided to concentrate on making the shot and playing the point. I was determined to hit the ball hard."

He did, and Curren took his spot against Lewis in the semi-finals.

Colleges Tighten Reins On Logos

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — There's money in that blue soda from North Carolina, those maize-and-blue jelly beans from Michigan and those Joe Bruin T-shirts from UCLA.

Image-conscious consumers around the world will spend more than $100 million this year on goods bearing the names, mascots and colors of U.S. colleges and universities.

The souvenirs range from neckties and side chairs to pennants, liquid soap, baby booties and liquor decanters.

For decades, the profits of the souvenir business went directly to the entrepreneurs who invented and marketed the goods. Colleges earned nothing.

Moreover, deans, provosts and alumni could do little more than cringe when a company put out an item such as a shaggy toilet seat cover bearing their school's proud name.

The stakes rose in the late 1970s when, for the first time, college-labeled goods began appearing in profusion thousands of miles away from their home campus. It became possible, for example, for football fans in Los Angeles to buy Texas A&M jerseys in their local department stores.

Tired of being frozen out of the money and insulted by shoddy or tasteless merchandise bearing their names, colleges and universities have begun fighting back.

In the last five years — and particularly in the last 10 months — schools ranging from the University of Alabama to Slippery Rock State College have registered their names and mascots with the U.S. government.

Trademarks in hand, the schools are insisting that manufacturers obtain authorization for their products and pay royalties.

East Carolina University has not — at this time — registered its name and Pirate symbols, but Athletic Director Ken Karr said the matter was "under study." Karr said he expected East Carolina would "in the near future," take steps to register its name and mascot.

Schools will make more than $1 million from royalties this year, estimates Steve Crossland, executive director of International Collegiate Enterprises in Northridge, Calif.

"Our school was basically unaware that it could protect itself," Robert Dawson, a spokesman for Slippery Rock, said recently. Now the western Pennsylvania college figures on making a small annual income from its famous name.

The turning point for Slippery Rock and dozens of other colleges nationwide was a company in 1982 and hurt Champion's close relationship with its clients. The company changed strategy and began federal appeals court ruling last August in favor of the University of Pittsburgh in a suit against Champion Products Inc. of Rochester.

Champion, one of the world's largest makers of custom-printed athletic clothing, had said Pitt's trademark was invalid because the school had gone for decades without enforcing its rights.

Champion said the college names and mascots on its shirts were mere "embellishments." The real trademarks, it said, were the little Champion labels at the back of the neck.

But the Circuit Court of Appeals in Pittsburgh said Pitt had the right to seek an injunction and damages. The Supreme Court refused to hear Champion's appeal, and the matter has been sent back to district court, where it remains.

That lawsuit and several others contributed to a 66 percent earnings drop for the making deals. "You can't do business if you're in the courts with your customers," Leon Ellin, Champion's vice president for finance, said recently.

Golden Eagle Enterprises of Selma, Ala., Crossland's main competitor, has eight members from the Atlantic Coast and Southeastern conferences: Alabama, Clemson, Mississippi, Georgia Tech, North Carolina and North Carolina State, Duke and Maryland.

Experts warn over-optimistic college administrators that 7 percent royalties won't make their school rich, and only a school with a nationally known football or basketball team is likely to earn much money at all.

Campus bookstores, which probably account for the bulk of collegiate goods sales, are exempted from royalties in many cases on the theory that it is pointless to take more money from students and hand it over to the college anyway.

UCLA, which registered its trademark in the early 1970s, leads the nation in licensing with gross revenues "in excess of half a million dollars" in 1982, according to licensing administrator Jack Revoyr.

Nearly 80 percent of that is from Japan, where the UCLA name has become a flukish status symbol and is regarded as more of a brand name than an educational institution.

Other schools hope to make their money in swift killings. When North Carolina State won the national basketball championship this year, 100,000 cases of Coca-Cola in commemorative six-packs were sold in a single day.

"You can't believe what goes on. It's beyond a normal person's comprehension, when a whole state goes insane," Crossland said.

While Coca-Cola paid royalties to the Wolfpack, dozens of overnight entrepreneurs made a few quick bucks and got out. Crossland estimates that nationwide, colleges are collecting royalties on only about a third of the merchandise sold.

Bill Battle, president of Golden Eagle and former football coach at Tennessee, said that for many colleges, controlling use of their name is even more important than earning money from it.

One businessman presented Crossland with a sample of North Carolina State toilet paper, intimating he could make up designs for other schools as well.

"We tore off sheets and sent them to all our members," Crossland said. "Florida State said they would probably buy the Florida paper, but they wouldn't want the Florida State paper done."

The idea was nixed.

Woods, Hart Guide Pirate Network

The Pirate Sports Network, voice of East Carolina University football and basketball, will again feature Jim Woods as play-by-play voice for football, while newcomer Dave Hart Jr. will handle the color commentary.

Woods, a veteran of 14 seasons with the Pirates, has a background of over 30 years in sportscasting. He's affiliated with WNCT-TV in Greenville, serving as host for the Ed Emory tv show.

Hart, named in the spring as Assistant Athletic Director for Marketing, will be the first change on the football network in 10 years. A veteran coach and former player at the University of Alabama, Hart has been a color commentator on state-wide radio network in the state of Kentucky for various high school events. Also, for seven years, Hart had his own radio show for basketball just outside of Louisville, Ky.

The 34-year-old Hart has a vast background and knowledge of athletics, having starred in football, basketball and baseball in high school; attended Alabama on a basketball grant-in-aid, and has been closely associated with athletics through his father, Dave Hart Sr., former college football coach and now the Director of Athletics at the University of Missouri.

The Pirate Sports Network is operated by the athletic department at East Carolina University, with Ken Smith, Assistant Athletic Director for Public Relations, serving as executive producer.

Race Teams Seek Ways To Beat Rules

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — NASCAR race team officials say they are working on ways to overcome new restrictions on engines aimed at cutting speeds.

One of the rules limits cowl air induction, in effect choking the engine. The other rule bans mushroom valve lifters and rev kits, with the intent of cutting engine RPMs.

"I'm not too concerned about losing the mushroom lifters, because we'll get that power back eventually," said Tim Brewer, crew chief for Raymond Beadle's team.

"But losing the rev kits will drastically hurt the durability of the engines. One mistake and you've lost an $18,000 motor. That rule is definitely not in the best interest of the sport."

Cale Yarborough triggered the speed-cutting regulations when he flipped and crashed while running 201 mph in Daytona 500 qualifying in February. He won the pole at Talladega at 202.650 mph, an all-time NASCAR qualifying mark.

Babe Ruth had four of the top eight home-run seasons in the American League.

The Legislature

Seeking Gubernatorial Succession Referendum

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolinians who voted in 1977 to let the governor and lieutenant governor serve two terms could change their minds if a leading state senator has his way.

Senate President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, Wednesday sought co-signers of a bill that would schedule a referendum on gubernatorial succession for the 1984 general election.

A spokesman said Gov. Jim Hunt, who was instrumental in winning legislative approval of the 1977 amendment, would strongly oppose any attempt to change it.

Under the bill, which had not been filed late Wednesday, voters could retain the present system in which the governor and lieutenant governor serve for four years and can seek re-election to one additional term.

Other choices would be returning to the pre-1977 policy of limiting the state's top- and second-ranking officeholders to single four-year terms or limiting both to one six-year term.

Many lawmakers have complained that succession has made it tougher for new leaders to emerge since top legislators have less opportunity to run for higher office.

"I don't think the Legislature is happy with succession," said Barnes.

Brent Hackney, Hunt's deputy press secretary, said the current system "allows ... continuing programs that couldn't be fully developed in just one term."

"And voters can always choose not to re-elect anyone not doing the job," he said.

Lawing said in an interview he and other supporters were close to lining up commitments from the 30 senators needed to ensure that the bill will pass the Senate.

Because the bill would amend the constitution, approval by three-fifths of the 120-member House and 50-member Senate is needed before it can go before the state's voters.

The idea of repealing succession was floated earlier in the session but no proposed legislation was filed as Gov. Jim Hunt expressed strong opposition. Asked why Senate leaders waited until the session's waning days to move the bill, Lawing replied, "We felt the time was right."

One source who asked not to be named said supporters' strategy appeared to be rushing the bill through the Senate this session, then waiting until the 1984 short session to push for House approval in time for the fall election.

Lawing has close ties to Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, who opposed the 1977 amendment permitting succession although he took advantage of it to win a second term in 1980. Hunt also was re-elected in 1980.

In other legislative action:

Bingo

A preliminary vote was scheduled for today on bill designed to put professional bingo operations out of business.

A vote was delayed Wednesday when the state House amended it to include a $50 fee for infrequent charity-run games.

Rep. Bruce Ethridge, D-Onslow, sponsor of the bill, introduced a five-page amendment to answer concerns expressed by members of the House Judiciary I Committee before it was sent to the floor.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey ruled that the amendment was substantial enough to warrant another day's study.

Ethridge said provisions in the 1979 law allowing charities to sponsor bingo games operated by others ended up funneling profits away from charitable causes.

"Our law has been circumvented and the professional bingo operator has taken over in North Carolina," he said. "It was intended for bona fide charitable organizations to run the games and benefit while giving service to the community."

The bill would establish an agency in the attorney general's office to oversee bingo operators. Charitable organizations would be required to pay a $250 initiation fee and $150-a-year renewal fees to fund the agency, but Ethridge said the law would end up saving money for the state.

The bill also prohibits back-to-back bingo games, a procedure Ethridge said professional bingo parlors used to get around laws forbidding more than two games a week by a charitable organization at one location. He said games by different charities would be scheduled one after another, with $10,000 in prizes when the law allows no more than $2,500 in a single game or $1,500 each in bi-weekly operations.

The bill provides that licensees must report their earnings and pay prizes by check. Those failing to report would lose their licenses, while other violations would be misdemeanors or felonies, depending on the severity.

Property Tax

The Senate gave final approval to a bill barring industries other than cotton textile manufacturers from taking advantage of a 1981 law permitting tax breaks for adding equipment designed to reduce the threat of brown lung disease.

Had the law not been enacted by today, it would have cost the state's 100 county governments combined tax revenues of more than $7 million because local officials must decide on their property tax rates by July 1.

The original 1981 law was supposed to apply only to cotton textile plants that install an apparatus to clear the interior air of cotton dust that causes byssinosis, or brown lung. But other firms began installing anti-pollution equipment and seeking the tax deduction.

According to the N.C. Association of County Commissioners, Mecklenburg County stood to lose over $5 million because Duke Power requested the tax break for adding air-cleaning attachments to a nuclear power plant.

Wake County was in danger of losing around $1 million. Other counties and their potential losses included Brunswick ($251,477), Person ($133,978), Gaston ($113,460), and Stokes ($90,077).

Ridge Law

Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, said he didn't know when a special committee he chairs will begin considering a bill to regulate mountaintop development, but denied the bill faced certain extinction.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green sent the bill Tuesday to the Special Ways and Means Committee that he appointed last week. Green said then that all new bills would be sent to the panel, which was ordered to act quickly on all proposed legislation by approving it, killing it or recommending that it be delayed until the 1984 short session.

The ridge law has passed both chambers but is before the Senate for consideration of House amendments.

Published reports Wednesday said Green sent the bill to the special committee in retaliation for a statement attributed last week to Rep. Margaret Hayden, D-Alleghany, sponsor of the House version of the ridge law.

The Winston-Salem Journal quoted Ms. Hayden as saying Green, who has been indicted on five counts of receiving bribes and conspiracy, should resign.

Sen. Charles Hips, D-Haywood, who said Tuesday the bill was in serious trouble, said Wednesday in an interview he was "getting mixed signals" on its prospects after speaking with Green and Senate President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg.

Swain, asked whether he expected the bill to emerge from committee and be passed this session, said, "I really, sincerely hope so. I haven't heard anybody say they wanted it killed."

The bill would require 24 mountain counties and their cities to either adopt a strict permit system to control high-rise construction on mountain ridge crests, ban tall buildings on mountaintops or call a referendum on whether there should be any controls.

Hazardous Substances

The public would be notified of all hazardous substances used by industries under a bill considered by the House Water and Air Resources Committee.

"We've spent a lot of time these past two terms talking about substances which are hazardous wastes," said bill sponsor Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover. "Before they were hazardous wastes, they were still a hazard."

The bill would require firms using hazardous substances to inform the Department of Human Resources, neighboring residents and employees. Companies also would be required to train workers in the proper handling of the chemicals and proper treatment if someone is exposed.

State Employees

A proposed constitutional amendment to limit state hiring narrowly escaped being killed in a House committee and appeared to have little chance of winning the two-thirds House vote needed for approval.

Rep. John Jordan, D-Alamance, said the amendment would prevent government from growing faster than North Carolina's population. He said that was particularly important because incoming administrations tend to hire many new state employees.

Rep. Joe Roberts, D-Gaston, moved to table a motion to give the bill a favorable report, but withdrew the motion when the Constitutional Amendments Committee deadlocked 5-5.

The committee then voted 5-5 on a motion for a favorable report, but Chairman Bertha Holt, D-Alamance, broke the tie and sent the bill to the House. If approved, the bill still would require passage in a statewide referendum before becoming law.

Parental Notice

The Senate approved 40-4 a bill requiring that parents be notified when minors are arrested and returned it to the House for concurrence with an amendment.

Senators argued at length about the amendment, which would require that parents be notified whether or not they live in North Carolina.

Military Tuition

The House Military and Veterans Affairs Committee approved a bill granting nonresident military personnel and their dependents in-state tuition rates for attending one of the 16 University of North Carolina campuses.

The bill was passed by the Senate earlier this session when it convened at Camp Lejeune.

"It will cost some money, but the effects it will have — encouraging retired military people to settle here, and helping our relations with the military that's our biggest industry — are worth it," said Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne.

Victims' Compensation

The Senate Finance Committee approved a bill setting up a program to compensate crime victims. But the committee heeded the request of the Administrative Office of the Courts that the program be funded by appropriation, not by proceeds from increased court costs.

"I would have preferred that the bill pass in its original form, but it's encouraging to think that we will have the program," said Rep. Tom Womble, D-Forsyth, sponsor of the bill.

Committee Agrees On Spending Needs; Funding Plan Undecided

By MARY ANNE RHYNE

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Representatives of the state House and Senate have agreed they need to raise an additional $219.1 million next year but there remain strong differences of opinion about how to do that.

The House-Senate conference committee negotiating differences in tax packages agreed Wednesday on the $219.1 million figure.

The House wanted to spend $242.2 million in addition to the money for continuing government operations and it has proposed a plan for raising $225.6 million. The Senate wanted to spend $184.2 million and suggested ways to raise $231.5 million.

The committee also accepted a plan for raising highway funds with an increase in the price of a fuel tax sticker for trucks from $1 to $10 and the price of an automobile license from $16 to $20 and a higher estimate of revenue growth.

The two sides agreed that if even more money is needed in 1984-85, they will accept a three-fourths cent increase in the gasoline tax, making the tax 13 cents a gallon. The Senate negotiators say they doubt they'll need the extra gas tax.

Heated debate erupted, however, over a Senate plan to generate $74 million by changing the accounting procedures for the salaries of teachers who are paid for 10 months work over a 12-month period.

The committee recessed without scheduling another meeting.

Teachers now may choose to be paid over a 10-month or a 12-month period for their 10 months of work. The 12-month pay period goes from September through August while the state fiscal year goes from July to June.

The Senate's idea, which negotiators say is the cornerstone of their tax package, would make the pay period conform to the fiscal year and leave the state with a one-time surplus of $74 million. The windfall money eventually would have to be replaced in the budget.

"It is a reserve carried over from year to year," said Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir.

But Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said teachers already have earned the money. He said approving the windfall would amount to passing a one-year budget that's not balanced.

Voters approved a balanced budget amendment to the state constitution several years ago.

"If that's the way we're going to start running state government it would be a drastic change," said Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville. "If you want to slap them (voters) right in the face with a cold fish the thing for us to do is go with the $74 million."

House Speaker Liston Ramsey requested an opinion from the attorney general regarding the constitutionality of the $74 million windfall.

He asked whether the Legislature must balance each year's budget. Sources said the attorney general's office ruled that the Legislature must balance the two-year budget, not each year individually. They said that would make the $74 million windfall legal.

The House alternative is to raise windfall money by requiring businesses remit employees' tax withholdings monthly instead of quarterly, requiring insurance companies pay taxes quarterly instead of annually and accelerating corporate tax payments.

Adams said there is a basic philosophical difference between the House and Senate packages. The Senate would spare businesses from carrying their share of the tax burden, he said.

"Somewhere along the line we are going to run out of windfalls and we're going to talk about the corporate tax," said Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg. "The simplest, easiest, least painful way to do it is to take the money already there," the $74 million.

Largest Bingo Game Anywhere

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — Organizers say Saturday night's bingo game on the Cherokee Indian Reservation will attract about 3,000 players and gross $1.5 million, making it the largest game anywhere in the world.

"I believe this is the biggest bingo game anywhere in the world," said John Tate, a spokesman for Cherokee Bingo Management in Virginia Beach, Va. "We've got 2,500 people signed up right now. And we're expecting another 200 or so to show up at the door." For $500, the players get transportation to the game, all their bingo cards for the day and the chance to win six-figure cash prizes. And there will be door prizes, including a 1983 Cadillac Coupe de Ville, a 1983 Nissan Pulsar NX and a seven-day Caribbean cruise and $500 cash.

Cherokees wanted to get into the act." Last year, the 12-member tribal council decided to allow bingo on the reservation and awarded Dan McCoy and John Young a 10-year contract to run the games.

McCoy and Young, both Cherokees, then hired Tate's Virginia Beach firm to provide the bingo expertise. The games began the first weekend in December and have been held every other Saturday since. Those games had $225,000 payouts with the largest one-game payoff at $25,000.

Scavenging Pig Is Enjoying Immunity

MIAMI (AP) — The police were quite firm: they don't handle pigs.

The animal control folks were equally firm: they only handle dogs.

So a skinny pig that looked like a dog foraged through garbage in a suburban neighborhood in peace, until police finally changed their minds and managed to lasso the petite porker.

The thin pig was "having a field day" in Phil Edelman's garage early Wednesday, so the retired labor lawyer called police.

"They said, 'We don't handle pigs,'" Edelman said. So he called Dade County Animal Services. "They said, 'We only handle dogs.'"

He called police again and two officers came by.

"They came over and I was standing by the fence," said Edelman. "I pointed to the pig and they said, 'It's a doberman.' I said, 'No, it's a pig.'"

The police lassoed the pig's hind legs and dragged it into the prisoner compartment of their squad car.

The pig was taken to the Humane Society, and executive director Ken McGovern said it had been starved and mistreated.

"If we find the owner, we'll have to do something about it, because it hasn't had humane care," he said. "It needs some groceries."

Security Saturday night will be tight, promoters said. Payoffs will be made by certified check.

Play will begin with 30 games with $5,000 payoffs each, followed by 20 games with $20,000 payoffs. The big payoff will come around 11:30 p.m. with the last of four jackpot overall games in which the first player to fill his card wins $200,000. If more than 48 numbers are required to fill the card, the jackpot will be reduced to $100,000.

The other three overall games will be for $50,000, $100,000 and $150,000.

Big-time bingo came to western North Carolina last December after a federal court held that states' laws limiting bingo winnings were not applicable on federal Indian reservations.

"This is an offshoot of the Seminole game in Miami," Tate said. "After it was ruled legal down there, the

From all this business, the Indians receive a $150,000 annual guarantee, collect 9 percent of the gross receipts, charge a users' fee for the building, which is owned by the 5,500-member tribe, and levy a $2 head tax on the players.

"Most everybody is pleased about what's happening, especially in the slow months," said McCoy. "It's been a real boon to the economy. The only reason I got involved in it was to do something about the economy."

"It's been very positive," said Jimmy Myers, president of the Cherokee Chamber of Commerce. "Anytime you have 4,000 people coming into a community it's bound to be. They've got to eat and they've got to sleep. In some very dull weekends in the spring and winter it has helped tremendously."

Cherokee Police Chief John Smith said the bingo players haven't caused any trouble. "They come for one thing — to play bingo," said Smith. "And that's what they do."

Chemical Spray Control Barred

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Chemical sprays should not be used to control prisoners who commit minor infractions at Waupun Correction Institution, a federal judge ruled after inmates testified they were sprayed for refusing to return a meal tray.

U.S. District Judge Terence T. Evans issued an order Wednesday prohibiting officials from using tear gas, Mace or other chemical sprays except when inmates pose a threat of death or bodily injury to another person, or when physical control of the institution is lost.

The ruling resulted from a class-action suit filed on behalf of inmates, who claimed the sprays were used without just provocation.

and a trump to the ace drew all the outstanding trumps and left declarer in dummy. He discarded two clubs on the king of hearts and dummy's long heart, then cashed the ace of spades and conceded a spade. He was able to ruff two spades on the table to bring in twelve tricks.

Just your normal everyday slam. It needed only a 2-2 trump break, a 4-3 heart division and the jack of trumps in the West hand. By our calculations, the chances are slightly over 10 percent. But in the words of Lew Mathe: "The only good slams are those that make!"

Hungry Bears Stealing Food

We are convinced that there is a god that looks after chronic overbidders. Consider this hand from a recent Italian championship.

The kindest thing that can be said about South's bidding is that at no stage did he make an insufficient bid. North, who really did no more than open the bidding, found himself in slam. Fortunately, South had the technique to make the most out of his chances.

West led the top of his club sequence, and declarer won the ace. His only hope was to set up hearts for a second discard, and to accomplish that he needed three fast entries to the table. Only two are apparent.

Declarer crossed to the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart in hand with the ten. Then he led a low trump and boldly finessed dummy's nine! Another heart was ruffed

PARK, Calif. (AP) — Summer hunger pangs and a scarcity of nuts and berries have emboldened bears at Yosemite campgrounds, where the animals have developed a taste for human food.

The plants normally eaten by black bears are still snowbound, said Yosemite National Park's "bear expert," Mike Webb. As an alternative, the bears confront campers and swipe their food.

Webb said bears are attracted to human food because it is "high in nutrition, generally, while the grasses and nuts they eat are pretty poor stuff."

Two people have been slightly injured by the bandit bears, but Webb said black bears don't have the desire to physically attack people.

Heroes Honored In July 4 Film

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of America's greatest military heroes, winners of the Medal of Honor, are spotlighted in a new television film that will be shown nationwide during the July 4th weekend.

"This honors the exploits of all the heroic men who won the medal," said retired Army Col. Ron Ray, president of the Medal of Honor Society, at a reception Wednesday night to preview the film.

Ray and about 30 other Medal of Honor winners gathered at the National Archives to watch the half-hour film, which was produced in conjunction with the society.

"Heroes: The Official Story of the Medal of Honor," has been syndicated and will be shown in about 150 cities across the country on Saturday and Sunday, according to executive producer Chuck Ashman.

The Medal of Honor, the nation's highest military award for bravery, was created in 1861 by President Abraham Lincoln. It has been awarded 3,414 times. There are 217 living recipients.

Bank Merger Is Consumated

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The merger of Peoples Bank of North Carolina into First Citizens Bank was consummated Wednesday, adding six offices and the towns of Madison, King, Walnut Cove, Dobson and Stokesdale to First Citizens' system.

Peoples Bank brings assets of $45.9 million and deposits of $41.6 million to First Citizens, which has assets of 1.7 billion and deposits of $1.5 billion as of March 31, 1983.

is a newly discovered film clip showing Gen. John J. Pershing awarding medals to a number of soldiers on a French battlefield in 1918. Among the medal winners on that grainy clip was Harold Furlong, a young Army lieutenant who single-handedly charged a German line to save his company and a relief force.

Furlong, a retired doctor, said in the film his knees were shaking so badly when Pershing gave him the medal that he couldn't recall what Pershing said to him.

Rescue Efforts Earn A Reward

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Petty Officer Gregory Carl Petsch of the U.S. Coast Guard has been given a meritorious service award for his rescue efforts during the sinking of a coal carrier off the Virginia coast in February.

Petsch, 29, pulled two crew members of the Marine Electric from the sinking vessel into a helicopter rescue basket Feb. 12. Petsch had volunteered to descend in the basket in 50 mph winds after it became apparent the crewmen were too weak to help themselves.

Both crewmen later died and only three of the 36 crewmen aboard the ship survived.

Polish Prelates In Rome To Talk Foundation Plans

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Cardinal Jozef Glemp, Poland's Roman Catholic primate, arrived in Rome today to discuss Pope John Paul II's pilgrimage to his homeland and said Lech Walesa won't be removed from politics.

But another Polish colleague, Archbishop Henryk Gulbinowicz of Wroclaw, enigmatically told reporters upon arrival that Walesa "is still important but not in the same way as before."

Glemp and several other bishops flew from Warsaw today after reports surfaced that the pope, during his recent trip, had struck a deal with Polish authorities and advised Walesa to step aside. Polish sources at the Vatican have denied the pope had done so.

Glemp confirmed that the church and Communist authorities were negotiating the establishment of a foundation to channel money to Polish farmers. But he said he knew nothing about reports that the church might run a new union to replace the outlawed Solidarity.

"No, I have never heard anything like this," he told reporters at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport.

Said Gulbinowicz: "I think in this moment it's not good to talk about a new union, because the other is not finished. So why a new one?"

Glemp replied, "No," when asked whether Walesa would be removed from the political scene. Asked whether Walesa would regain the same leadership position he had before martial law was declared Dec. 1, 1981, he said, "at this moment, I can't yet define what his position will be. Things are developing."

Gulbinowicz said of Walesa: "Perhaps he will return in another way." He did not elaborate.

Asked whether the Polish government would definitely lift martial law on July 22, Poland's national day, Glemp said, "We think so, the church would want it, but there are political questions in which I have no part."

Gulbinowicz said the government has given the "green light" for the farmer's aid foundation, but Glemp said there were legal questions to be worked out.

Also accompanying Glemp were Archbishop Jerzy Stroba of Poznan and Bishop Alfons Nossol of Opole.

Cardinal Franciszek Macharski, the pope's successor as archbishop to Krakow, left for the Vatican on Wednesday.

A church official said the bishops of Katowice and Czesochowa were expected to come, too.

John Paul visited the cities represented by the senior clergymen during his eight-day pilgrimage.

The Vatican meeting is the first chance the regional bishops have to meet with the pope as a group and discuss the visit.

Topics are expected to include the mounting speculation about Walesa's private papal audience, which occurred just a few hours before the pope returned to Rome a week ago.

Neither Walesa nor the Vatican has disclosed details of the secretive session.

On the day after the pope's return to Rome, the Vatican newspaper ran a controversial editorial suggesting Walesa, a shipyard electrician, might step aside in any future negotiations with the Communist authorities.

The bishops also might discuss church-state relations in the aftermath of John Paul's visit, which drew millions of faithful across the country to papal Masses and which sparked rallies and marches by the tens of thousands in support of Solidarity.

Poland's Communist Party chief and premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, has claimed the pilgrimage was a success for the state as well as the church.

Warsaw has been rife with speculation on what the pope and Jaruzelski discussed during their two meetings. Neither the church nor the government has released concrete details of the talks.

On Wednesday, Poland's Communist Party launched a harsh attack on the suspended writers' union, charging prominent literary figures with helping provoke the upheaval that gave birth to Solidarity.

It follows a series of tough steps announced by the government despite rumors of conciliatory moves following the pope's visit.
