IN FULL FLOWER — Tobacco flowers are at full peak for most tobacco fields now, with farmers busy getting the flowers broken out, or topped. Here Mark Pilgreen tops plants in his field near Winterville. Many farmers are also finding it necessary to have top suckers, the shoots that grow along the stalks between leaves, broken out as sucker control chemicals do not always do a thorough job of preventing sucker growth. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Tobacco Flowering Early After Cool, Wet Spring

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Cool, wet weather this spring has helped spread blue mold and other diseases in fields across the state and caused some plants to flower too early, agriculture officials say.

In some Piedmont fields, tobacco is flowering on plants barely a foot high, said Sam A. Tuten Jr., a Forsyth County agricultural extension agent for field crops.

Growers are being forced to break off the flower tops by hand and select a sucker that will grow into a full-size tobacco plant. They have to go back through the fields to pull off the remaining suckers.

Tuten warned growers to beware of spreading mosaic virus disease, which causes mottled and crinkled leaves in tobacco. The highly contagious disease can be spread to healthy plants by workers during the early topping process, he said.

"The best thing is to have one worker precede the others in the field and to remove all the diseased plants without touching the other plants," he said.

The early flowering has occurred because tobacco has been under severe stress from prolonged cool and moist conditions, Tuten said. Stress rushes the reproductive process.

Tobacco turned out from a sucker will take a little longer to reach maturity, but it can still yield a quality crop if there is good weather for the rest of the season, he said. Even a plant that has had an early topping will flower again when it reaches full size.

Meanwhile, blue mold is still present in fields of flue-cured tobacco, said Dr.

N.T. "Dick" Powell, extension tobacco disease specialist at North Carolina State University.

Several new cases of the fungus have been reported in tobacco fields across the state in the past two weeks, Powell said.

Reagan Addresses NEA Urging Discipline And Stricter Standards

By JAMES GERSTENZANG Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, seeking support from the nation's second largest teachers' union, called today for stricter school discipline and academic standards and decried "those who would divide, delay and drag us down."

The president set a goal of raising verbal and math scores in the College Board tests by 50 points to make up for the decline between 1963 and 1980.

Reagan's comments were in a speech prepared for delivery to the 67th annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers, second in size to the National Education Association.

Even though the federation has been less shrill in its criticism of Reagan than the larger union, AFT chief Albert Shanker said on Monday he would give Reagan no more than an "F-plus" on education.

Reagan made no attempt to hide his differences with the union, particularly over his support for "merit pay" for "master teachers." The AFT has opposed specific merit pay plans, while remaining open to the concept itself.

"Of course we have differences," Reagan said. "I am not here today as a salesman, trying to peddle a pre-packaged, all-purpose, off-the-rack education program. I am fully aware that there are some major areas where we disagree — matters like tuition tax credits and vouchers."

Reagan has called for tax breaks to parents of children in private schools, but has not mentioned that prominently in his recent emphasis on education.

He backed into mention of merit pay, calling attention to the recommendation of his National Commission on Excellence in Education for "better rewards for teachers who excel" and then adding: "I say amen."

The president sought to emphasize his agreements with the union:

—"The AFT wants to upgrade standards. So do I."

—"The AFT believes in stricter discipline codes in schools. So do I."

AFTER THE EXHILARATION of precision air rides to earth supported by silk comes the mundane task of gathering up the jump gear. The trio of veteran parachutists making an exhibition jump Monday at the Fourth of July celebration on Town Common, shown here gathering their gear, are: left to right, Lonnie Willer, Mark Taylor, and Rich Mark. All three agreed weather conditions at 3 p.m. were ideal for the exhibition jump. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Weather Affected Holiday Observance

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

The weather on July fourth in Greenville played games with people, keeping them guessing about whether or not the annual Jaycee celebrations at the Town Common could be weathered out or would be rained out.

Happily, the early morning threat of rain gave way to bright, hot sunshine, southern style — up to 96 sultry degrees; and the rumbling twilight thunderstorm passed over in time to permit the exciting yearly display of fireworks over the Tar River.

The only total losses in planned activities were those of the street dance which had been scheduled for 7 p.m. with music to be performed by the Rattlers of Greenville; and the calling off of the 3 p.m. water skiing exhibition by Judson Whitehurst on the Tar — the water level in the river was ruled as being low enough to create a real danger for Whitehurst.

One bonus for those who happened to be on hand just after 3 p.m. — and not listed on the calendar of events — was a free-fall parachute jump by three veteran parachutists. One of the men, Rich March of Franklinton, commented, "This makes my 1,400th jump. The weather was just right, with a slight breeze blowing against us."

The others making the jump were Mark Taylor of Raleigh, and Lonnie Willer of Greenville.

Willer, a long-time jumper, said, "This makes about 2,500 jumps for me. Today, I left the plane at 3,800 feet, opening my parachute at 2,500 feet. All of our jumps were good ones today, with all of us landing pretty close to our targeted areas."

Taylor said "I had 15 seconds of free fall, and didn't open my chute until I was at 2,000 feet."

Each of the three were cheered as they touched ground at a spot between the mounted cannon and the river.

Another contingent who received cheers were the young men and boys who struggled mightily to reach the top of the greased metal pole to rip off a $5 bill taped snugly to the top. A number of efforts failed, but eventually, young Stephen Fredericks III, grimy and perspiring after clambering over the backs of sturdy assistants, was victorious.

Onlookers gasped in surprise at one point. A lightweight contender slipped, and his toe got caught in the shorts worn by the man beneath him, temporarily disrobing him. A quick response by the disrobed man resulted in hitching his clothes back into place while managing not to lose his hold on the slipped lad clinging to his back.

Three of the young men volunteering for the task were Marines from Camp Lejeune, one of whom said, "We came here to enjoy a civilian celebration of the fourth."

In the competition for distance spitting of watermelon seed, the champions were Laren Cannon in the youth division, and David Burke in the adult division.

Undoubtedly, the one July fourth volunteer worker who most keenly felt the full effects of the heat was Dano Jones, a graduate student at East Carolina University. Jones was the guy all dressed up in a thick, fleecy chrome blue monster suit, complete with padded gloves and an oversized head. "I really know what it's like to be super hot," he laughed, once he emerged from his furry cage of a robe.

Children flocked around the booth for chances to throw darts at balloons and to win a prize; and young and old threw balls to dunk volunteers into a container of water beneath them when the release bell was struck.

Considerable attention was directed to the large, colorful ultra-light plane anchored on the grass; and athletic types enjoyed playing volleyball. The youngest ones participated in the tri-cycle race for those in the 2 to 5 year-old age bracket, and visitors of all ages took part in a number of skill activities.

Brad Walls, one of the Jaycee coordinators for this year's Jaycee sponsored Fourth of July on the Town Common in Greenville, termed the day "a success. It has not been a record crowd so far," he said at mid-afternoon, "but there's been a steady flow of people, at least as many as we had last year, and they all seem to be enjoying themselves."

VICTORY — After half a dozen valiant efforts, young Stephen Fredericks of Greenville finally made it to the top of the pole to retrieve the $5 bill taped there. Spectators cheered Fredericks and the volunteers, including three Camp Lejeune Marines, who offered shoulders and arms to make possible his ascent up the greased pole. (Reflector Photo)

Legislative Prayer Sessions Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — State legislatures and Congress may open their sessions and work days with prayers led by paid chaplains, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 6-3 vote, the court said such legislative prayer sessions do not violate the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

The court said the Nebraska Legislature may continue paying the Rev. Robert Palmer, an ordained Presbyterian clergyman who has served as the state's legislative chaplain since 1965.

Writing for the court, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger noted that Congress for 200 years has paid chaplains to lead the nation's lawmakers in prayer, and that Nebraska and many other states have practiced the same policy for 100 years or more.

"There can be no doubt that the practice of opening legislative sessions with prayer has become part of the fabric of our society," Burger said.

"To invoke Divine guidance on a public body entrusted with making the laws is not, in these circumstances, an 'establishment' of religion or a step toward establishment; it is simply a tolerable acknowledgment of beliefs widely held among the people of this country," the chief justice said.

Elizabeth Brown Weds Thomas E. Arnold

Elizabeth Leigh Brown and Thomas Edward Arnold were united in marriage Saturday at high noon in the chapel at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. James H. Bailey performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Q. Brown of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jewel Arnold of Grifton and Robert Arlen Arnold Sr. of Philadelphia.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Mrs. Alan Merritt. Guitarist Joe Collins of Greenville sang "The Wedding Song" and his own rendition of "A Wedding Song."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of white qiana designed with an open sweetheart neckline outlined in a berth collar of re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The gown featured an empire bodice and was fashioned with covered buttons in the back. The modified A-line skirt extended into a chapel length train. She wore a chapel length veil of illusion edged in alencon lace held in place by a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. The bride carried her mother's lace covered prayer book adorned with sonya sweetheart roses, white carnations and baby's breath tied with narrow satin ribbon.

The maid of honor, Deborah Edwards of Greenville, wore a formal gown of peach lustregio designed with an open neckline bordered in a berth collar of crystal pleating edged in matching chantilly lace. The empire bodice was encircled with a self-fabric rolled tie sash from which fell a flared accordin pleated skirt. She wore sonya roses and baby's breath in her hair and carried a nosegay of pixie, sonya and peach roses with baby's breath tied with matching bows.

The bridesmaids, Katherine Holmes of Long Beach and Henrietta Dunn of Fayetteville, wore formal gowns designed like the honor attendant and carried nosegays similar to that of the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Charles Q. Brown Jr., brother of the bride, and Howard Cowan of Richmond, Va., cousin of the bride.

Donna Bunch of Greenville presided at the guest register.

The mother of the bride wore a street length gown of hyacinth organza. She wore a wristlet of purple statice and baby's breath. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of ivory lace overlay and ivory taffeta. She wore a corsage of sonya roses.

A reception was given by the bride's parents in the church parlor following the ceremony. Wedding cake was served by Pam Collins and Kathy Beatham. Punch was poured by Susan Congleton and Becky Tripp.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given at the home of the bride following the rehearsal Friday evening. The bridesmaids luncheon was given by Judge and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts at their home Friday afternoon.

The bride is a graduate of Peace College in Raleigh and is a senior at East Carolina University. She is employed by Eastern Carolina Vocational Center. The bridegroom attended Pitt Community College and is employed by Flanders Filters, Washington.

After a wedding trip to Bald Head Island, the couple will reside in Ayden.

Dear Abby

Drinking Can Test Patience

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you printed a list of test questions for the excessive drinker. My husband took the test, found he needed help and started going to Alcoholics Anonymous. He hasn't had a drink in five months and he can thank A.A. for that.

At the same time, I started attending Al-Anon meetings. It certainly helped me to cope with my home situation regardless of whether my husband was drinking or not.

Please print a list of test questions to help people decide whether they need Al-Anon.

GRATEFUL TO ALANON

DEAR GRATEFUL: All right. Here are the questions:

1. Do you worry about how much someone else drinks?
2. Do you have money problems because of someone else's drinking?
3. Do you tell lies to cover up for someone else's drinking?
4. Do you feel that drinking is more important to your loved one than you are?
5. Do you think that the drinker's behavior is caused by his or her companions?
6. Are mealtimes frequently delayed because of the drinker?
7. Do you make threats, such as, "If you don't stop drinking, I'll leave you?"
8. When you kiss the drinker hello, do you secretly try to smell his or her breath?
9. Are you afraid to upset someone for fear it will set off a drinking bout?
10. Have you been hurt or embarrassed by a drinker's behavior?
11. Does it seem as if every holiday is spoiled because of drinking?
12. Have you considered calling the police because of drinking behavior?

If the answer to five or more of the above questions is "Yes," you need Al-Anon. Look for its phone number in your telephone book. Or write to Al-Anon Family Group, Inc., P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10010, for information. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: We work in a public office and have contact with many people every day. Our problem is one co-worker who constantly chews gum in a manner that is very irritating to those of us who must work closely with her. The incessant noise of her chewing, popping and cracking continues without consideration for co-workers or clients.

We have nothing against chewing gum if it's done in an unobtrusive way, but this person is driving us up a wall with her noisy chewing, cracking and popping. Help!

OUT OF PATIENCE

DEAR OUT: If the gum chewer is unaware of her offensiveness, one of you should tell her privately, in a friendly way. If she is aware and doesn't care, tell her supervisor. And since there are several of you, there's clout in numbers. So get cracking!

DEAR ABBY: I am a man, 74, very active and in good health. I have been a widower for five years. About 10 days ago I had surgery and was in the hospital for eight days. (Nothing serious.)

I had a middle-aged nurse taking care of me. She went out of her way to be nice to me and was extremely patient and good-natured. Just before leaving the hospital I told her how much I appreciated her, and I tried to give her a $20 bill. She refused to accept it. In fact she acted a bit insulted.

Abby, was I out of line by offering her a little tip for her services?

GRATEFUL PATIENT

DEAR GRATEFUL: Although you meant well, nurses do not as a rule accept tips. But it would not be out of line to send her a thank-you card or a small gift.

1983 Debutantes Are Announced

RALEIGH — Invitations to the 57th annual North Carolina Debutante Ball have been issued. Area debutantes include:

Lady Britton Aycock, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sylvester Hassell Aycock Jr. of Farmville; Elizabeth Ann Longino, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Henry Longino of Greenville; Louise Carmen Taft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marvin Taft of Greenville; Melissa Ruth Taft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Holston Taft Jr. of Greenville;

Eliza Felton Norfleet Taylor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Allen Taylor of Greenville; Katherine Stewart White, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Shipman White and Thomas Jackson White III of Greenville; Virginia Adams White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander White Jr. of Greenville; Ann Clark

Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ramsey Davis Jr. of Williamston; and Serena Chesson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wilson Chesson of Williamston.

The event will be held here Sept. 8-10. The formal presentation to North Carolina society of young ladies from across the state will highlight the weekend festivities.

The Debutante Ball is sponsored by The Terpsichorean Club, comprised of young gentlemen from the Raleigh area. The young ladies, who will be presented by their fathers, were selected by over 100 nominators located throughout the state. Final approval of the debutantes is made by Terpsichorean Club members.

During the ball weekend, there will be eight different functions to be attended by the debutantes, their families and their escorts.

Couple Marries On Monday

KINSTON — Sharon Ann Scott and Joseph Kirby Loftin, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Monday morning at eleven o'clock in a garden ceremony here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Scott of Kinston. Parents of the bridegroom are Martha S. Loftin and Leonard Loftin, both of Kinston.

The Rev. Troy Bennett officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was performed by Chaz Lahnn, vocalist and guitarist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of chantilly lace over peau de soie designed with an open neckline outlined in a ruffled berth collar edged in satin cording. The fitted bodice was overlaid in chantilly lace. Satin covered buttons fashioned the back bodice and satin cording encircled the waistline. The full, circular skirt extended to form an attached sweep train. She wore a bridal hat overlaid in organza and accented with silk Venice lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias, white roses, daisies and baby's breath accented with satin streamers and love knots.

Serving as honor attendant was Brenda Hollowell of Kinston, sister of the bride. Bridesmaid was Linda Carey, sister of the bride. Each wore a formal gown of orchid chiffon over taffeta designed with a sabrina neckline and blouson bodice. The modified waistline was encircled with a satin tie sash. An asymmetrical overlay of chiffon complemented the A-line skirt.

Junior bridesmaid, Kristen Owens of Kinston, niece of the bride, wore a formal gown of orchid chiffon over taffeta designed with a Peter Pan collar fashioned of white Brussels lace. The blouson bodice was enhanced with tucks of chiffon. Brussels lace trimmed the short baby doll sleeves. A satin tie sash encircled the waistline, from which fell the flared skirt.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and usher was Malcolm Smith of Greenville.

A reception was held outside immediately following the ceremony.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held at Kings Restaurant in Kinston. A wine and cheese party was held at the home of the mother of the bridegroom following the rehearsal. Several showers were given in honor of the bridal couple.

The bride is a graduate of Kinston High School and attended Mount Olive Junior College before graduating from Mitchell's Hairstyling Academy. She is employed as a cosmetologist at

MRS. JOSEPH KIRBY LOFTIN

California Concepts in Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Grainger High School and attended Lenior Community College and East Carolina University. He is employed as a profession musician with the duo Lahnn and Loftin. After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Wedding Vows Spoken Monday

Barbara Anne Barker of Greenville and Daniel Patrick Laurion of Dover, N.H. were united in marriage Monday afternoon at two o'clock in Saint Gabriel's Catholic Church. Father Jerry Sherba officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barker of Route 13, Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Leo K. Laurion of Dover, N.H.

A program of wedding music was performed by organist Terri Lupton of Reelsboro, cousin of the bride, and soloist Faye Gove. The wedding was directed by Lola Bates.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of white chantilly lace over taffeta designed with an open Queen Anne neckline outlined in embroidered lace. The fitted bodice featured an overlay of chantilly lace extending into a draped Renaissance waistline. Sheer lace fashioned the long fitted sleeves. Ruffled tiers of chantilly lace enhanced the full skirt and attached chapel length train. She wore a fingertip veil edged in lace attached to a bandeau covered with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses, white daisies, baby's breath, greenery and white satin streamers.

Maid of honor was Tonya Bullock of Greenville. She wore a long blue gown of organza over taffeta with a bustle effect. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a nosegay of yellow and white daisies accented with baby's breath, greenery and white satin streamers.

After the rehearsal, a

Bridesmaids were Wanda Barker, sister-in-law of the bride, and Alice Harrison, both of Greenville. Each wore a dress styled like that of the maid of honor and carried nosegays tied with yellow satin streamers.

Jessica Barker of Greenville, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a long blue gown of organza over taffeta with a bustle and capelet sleeves. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a basket of yellow silk rose petals. Ring bearer was Jamie Bland of Greenville.

The brother of the bridegroom, Timothy Laurion of Dover, N.H., served as best man. Ushers were Ralph and Jerry Barker, both brothers of the bride from Greenville. Carter Bates of Greenville was usher's aide.

The mother of the bride wore a two-piece orchid street length dress with and a cymbidium orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom street length dress with a cymbidium orchid corsage. The grandmother of the bride, Mrs. H.A. Barker of Bayboro, wore a white street length dress and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

A reception given by the parents of the bride was held in the church fellowship hall. Jane Brooks of Greenville presided at the guest register. The cake was served by Edna Mills of Black Jack and punch was poured by Mary Barnett of Hobucken, aunt of the bride. Rice bags were distributed by Jeffrey Bates and Steven Bates. Good-byes were said by Amy and Don Barker of Ballston Spa, N.Y., brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

MRS. DANIEL PATRICK LAURION

cookout and pool party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bates and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Williams Jr.

The bride attended D.H. Conley High School. The bridegroom is employed by Northeast Container Company, Dover, N.H.

Lowe Family Reunion Held

"A past to cherish; a present to rejoice; and a future to fulfill" was the theme of the 20th reunion of the Lowe family held in here during the weekend. Over 100 descendants of the late Lonnie and Lula Lowe attended.

Mr. and Mrs. James Chance of Bethel hosted the family dinner. Evangeline Williams, local chairperson, welcomed the guests. The response was given by Ralph Lowe of Cartersville, Ga. The Rev. Ernest McNair gave the invocation and grace.

Rosa McNair presented a history of the Lowe's family reunion which was accompanied by a drawing of the family tree by Angela Dixon. Joyce Jones gave special recognition to senior members of the Lowe family. Cited for endurance and continuous support were Mrs. Willard Griffin, Mrs. Johnnie M. Carney, Charlie Best, James Lowe, Minnie Chance, Mrs. Jimmie M. Jones, Lurlean Williams and Pearl Roberts.

David Deveaux, national chairman from Washington, D.C., conducted the business session assisted by vice chairman Lonnie R. Lowe and secretary, Margaret Tyler.

Several members of the Lowe family attended and participated in Sunday worship at Medley Chapel CME church, Bethel. Participants included Doris Dixon of Greenville who gave the responsive reading; Barbara Britt, Washington D.C., reading of the scripture; Ralph Lowe, Cartersville, Ga., morning prayer; Burnest Griffin, Greenbelt, Md., solo; Angela Dixon, Greenville, solo; and Lonnie C. Lowe, Washington D.C. who spoke on the contributions of the Lowe family.

A cookout was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Ms. Andrews in Robersonville.

Local officers for the event were Miss Williams, chairman; Joyce Jones, vice chairman; Doris Dixon, secretary; Patricia Neal, treasurer; Mrs. Andrews and Pauline Brown, program committee.

Workable Budget

The Pitt County Commissioners last week approved a $27.93 million budget for fiscal 1983-84.

The budget holds the tax rate of 54 cents per $100 valuation which has been in effect for two years.

The budget provides for a 4- to 8-percent across-the-board pay increase but freezes an incentive pay program which began last year. We would prefer that it were reversed. The county could get far more productivity for its money if it used its funds to reward those who are most efficient. The budget does contain funds for continuation of the longevity pay plan which compensates those employees who remain with the county.

There were disturbing cuts in the school capital outlay funds which we hope will not have an adverse effect on adequate maintenance of the city and county school facilities.

Beyond that, however, the budget seems to be one which can carry the county forward. A capital reserve fund of $563,700 has been established and programs over which the commissioners have little control, such as social services, are funded.

The county commissioners have held the tax rate and we assume the did so while still providing well for the present and growth needs of the county. That is as much that we as taxpayers can ask of our commissioners.

An Endless Cycle

A proposed increase in tuition for the state university system pinpoints the endless cycle that many people find themselves in these days.

Art major Lauri Daughtry pointed out in a recent Daily Reflector news story that the proposed tuition increase probably will not be a problem for her because she receives financial aid and holds a job while attending East Carolina University.

She concluded, "If I didn't have a loan, I probably wouldn't be able to go to school. It just costs so much these days."

That same article pointed out that financial aid available to students will be increased to cover the higher tuition.

If that occurs, then some of the burden of finding more money for college will be delayed — especially for the students who need financial help in getting an education.

But as Ms. Daughtry pointed out, it is truly an endless cycle: you borrow to be able to go to college so that you can qualify yourself to make more money to pay off the loan.

That leaves the other students, those more fortunate ones who are able to attend college without outside financial help. The proposed increase — $35 a semester for in-state students — isn't that much, but it could be enough to break their financial planning.

We hope not. The state, so long as it maintains its existing tax structure and its distribution of funds, also has limited money to spend. A tuition increase is one of the few means available to supplement educational revenue.

Until the state reshapes its budget, personal budgets are destined to suffer.

Strength For Today

There is a religious leader in this country who, until he was nearly 30, was a dangerous criminal. He was in and out of jail from his childhood on. He came from a good home and his father, as long as he lived, stuck by him.

At last, after some particularly bad conduct in prison, he was sentenced to solitary confinement. Here, in desperation and near physical collapse, he had what not one person in a million has — a vision of heavenly things. He was healed of all criminal tendencies and after leaving prison became an outstanding Christian leader.

We would not want to convey the impression that an experience of this sort is normal, but the stupendous change made on this criminal does show that there are spiritual powers at work in the world — probably at work on all of us — trying to transform us and lift us to higher levels.

WASHINGTON — Seven years ago, when the country was caught in the patriotic throes of a bicentennial celebration, much was said and written about the Declaration of Independence. My impression is that since then, the Declaration has slipped back into that vast sea of documents that are often cited but seldom read.

Viewed simply from a literary standpoint, the Declaration would stand forever as a remarkable accomplishment. Jefferson was its principal author. "The committee for drawing the Declaration of Independence desired me to do it," he wrote in his autobiography. "It was accordingly done." But the other four members of the committee also had a hand in the drafting, and their work then had to go to the Congress.

As every writer knows, it is exceedingly rare that anything worthwhile emerges from a committee. It is still more rare that a document is improved by editing and amendment on the floor — but that was the case here. Jefferson's purple language relating to slavery was eliminated "in compliance to South Carolina and Georgia," though "our northern brethren also felt a little tender under those censures; for though their people had very few slaves themselves, yet they had been pretty considerable carriers of them to others.

"The pusillanimous idea that we had friends in England worth keeping terms with, still haunted the minds of many. For this reason, those passages which conveyed censures on the people of England were struck out, lest they should give them offense."

Congress made other changes. In Jefferson's original version the second paragraph, with its recital of general grievances; ended with this sentence: "To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid World for the truth of which we pledge a faith yet unsullied by falsehood." The Congress happily put a period after "World."

The result of these accommodations and compromises was a taut document with the power of a coiled spring. But the enduring beauty of the Declaration lies in the simplicity with which Jefferson expressed great and complex ideas about the rights of man and the role of government — ideas that may seem conventional in our own time but were wildly radical then.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness."

To be sure, in the context of human slavery the assertion that "all men are created equal" has to be read metaphorically. But note especially the proclaimed right of mankind to "the pursuit" of happiness. It was a perfect phrase. We have no right to catch happiness, only to pursue it. Incidentally, that word "happiness" appears a second time in the adopted text, and was used yet a third time in Jefferson's original draft.

In a single phrase, the Declaration then sums up the whole purpose of government. It is "to secure these rights that governments are instituted among men."

To the extent that government denies the people their right "to pursue happiness" in their own unoffending ways, government does wrongly. The operative word is "secure," from which we derive "the national security." This is the first obligation of government, to make secure our right to life and to liberty. Every other function of government tags behind.

The Declaration of 1776 ends with two paragraphs that carry a ring of irony today. At a time when our right to the free exercise of religion increasingly is hedged about, we may recall that the Founding Fathers appealed "to the Supreme Judge of the World for the Rectitude of our intentions." They put their firm reliance "on the Protection of Divine Providence."

There was a time when schoolchildren were expected to memorize at least the first two paragraphs and the last two paragraphs of the Declaration. In our own time, if "Divine Providence" were to be invoked in a classroom on a Monday, the teacher would be haled into court on Tuesday. It's no bad idea, I submit, to get back to Jefferson at least once a year.

Focus

MIAMI (AP) — A generation of Cuban immigrants is coming of age in politics here.

Economically successful and aided by a change in Florida's voting law, the immigrants have gradually shifted their focus from the plight of Cuba to the politics of America.

Cuban-Americans, a third of Dade County's population but just 20 percent of its voters, aren't ready to sweep a statewide election yet, but they have three representatives in the 160-member Florida Legislature and their reach can already be felt in Washington.

"Their impact is absolutely tremendous," said state Rep. Ileana Ros, one of three new Cuban-born legislators.

"It's not like five or 10 years ago, when people didn't care to get involved in politics," said Julio Mendez, operations director at WQBA, a Spanish-language radio station.

"The longer we stay here, the more we learn about the system, the more people are going to become voters," Mendez said. "And more and more Latinos are going to get into politics."

Paul Cejas was the first Cuban to win a countywide election when he was voted onto the school board in 1980, and George Valdes followed his lead, joining the Dade County Commission last year. Ms. Ros and two other Cuban Republicans benefited from Florida's change to single-member legislative districts, winning seats in the Florida House last November.

Before the change, the larger districts had tended to dilute the ethnic vote.

As of June 1, 139,816 of Dade's 710,858 registered voters were Hispanic, and the vast majority of those were Cuban, said Joe Malone, the county's assistant supervisor of elections.

The Cuban influence is much heavier in Dade County's cities, especially Miami, Hialeah and Sweetwater, where Cuban-Americans make up the largest bloc of voters.

The mayors of Hialeah and Sweetwater are Cuban, as are two of Miami's commissioners. Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre is Latin, too, but he's of Puerto Rican heritage and won his last election by virtue of Anglo and black support.

This new political movement has its roots in Fidel Castro's rise to power in 1959. The Cubans who fled his communist regime never intended to stay here, but as they settled and turned Miami into a business center for all of Latin America, their attention gradually turned to government and politics.

"Until about 1976, everybody was so concerned about what was going on in Cuba, they overlooked the concept of politics" in this country, said Humberto Cortina, another of the Cuban legislators.

But the owners of growing businesses discovered things they wanted to change and found the only way to do that was through the political system. They started by lobbying, making campaign contributions and urging Cubans who held U.S. citizenship to register and vote.

"As registrations increase, the more appealing it becomes for Hispanic candidates to run for office. The chances of victory are greater," said Ms. Ros.

"One thing leads to another," said Rafael A. Penalver Jr., an attorney who is chairman of the governor's Commission on Hispanic Affairs. "Once you record (economic) accomplishments like that, people are going to listen to you."

Among those listening are President Reagan and his advisers, who like the staunch conservatism and anti-communism of most Cubans. As a result, the Cuban-American National Foundation, which lobbies in Washington, was able to lure Reagan to Little Havana for a one-day visit last month.

Cubans, who gave Reagan massive support in the 1980 election, like the president's policies on Central America and Cuba.

Another pet issue for Cubans is Radio Marti, a Reagan proposal to broadcast anti-communist propaganda into Cuba. Despite opposition from the U.S. broadcast industry, the proposal has been voted out of committee in the U.S. Senate and found favor in the House.

"We've seen the image of the loud, obnoxious, crazy Cuban ... the Ricky Ricardo," said Ms. Ros. "But many of the people involved (in the foundation) are soft-spoken and analytical. We've cleared up our image."

With many more Cubans yet to gain citizenship and voting rights, she said, only growth can be ahead for this political movement.

Everybody Wants A Change

The dead bill would have turned the political situation at the department of Education on its head. State school board members would have been elected. (They're now appointed.) The superintendent of public instruction would have been appointed. (He's now elected.)

The House has passed a proposed amendment that would allow the assembly to create agencies to finance the construction of agricultural facilities. State revenue bonds would be issued but public money could not be used.

Still to be acted upon are six proposed amendments. The one which attracted the most attention was proposed by Sen. Donald Kincaid, R-Caldwell. He wants to put a constitutional limit on the length of legislative sessions. Kincaid would limit the assembly to 70 legislative days in odd-numbered years and 20 days in even-numbered years. Several bills have been proposed that would limit sessions statutorily and it is almost certain that if any limit is approved, it will not be Kincaid's amendment.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, likely challenger of U.S. Sen. John East in the 1986 election, has a proposal that would give the citizenry the right to propose legislation concerning taxes and fees. It would create for the first time in the state an initiative procedure. If five percent of the registered voters signed a petition endorsing a tax or fee bill, then the bill would go directly to the voters. If the bill won, it would become law.

Rep. John Jordan, D-Alamance, wants the percentage growth of the state workforce limited to the growth of the state's population. Sen. Cary Allred, R-Alamance, wants counties to have the right to exempt property from the inventory tax — a power now reserved to the assembly. Rep. Charles Hughes, R-Henderson, wants it clear in the Constitution that someone convicted of a crime can be required to pay the cost of prosecution, imprisonment or restitution. His amendment specifies that that money would not be required to go to the school fund.

And then there is Rep. B. Holt's amendment which would limit votes on constitutional amendments to the November general elections in even-numbered years. Her bill would also create a Constitutional Amendments Publications Commission that would publish an explanation of all proposed constitutional amendments. With all these amendments, you see, Mrs. Holt thinks the Legislature ought to tell the public what they're voting on.

Tough Choice Faces President

WASHINGTON — Just as President Reagan is trying to warm up relations with the Kremlin, he must decide what to do about the third Soviet test of a new long-range missile, secretly described by Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and Air Force analysts as more than twice the size allowed by the SALT II treaty.

The CIA has sent its analysts back to restudy their data before sending it on to the White House, putting a "hold" on one of today's most important government secrets. But there is little doubt about validity. Administration officials were shocked by the clearest evidence so far of one-sided Soviet missile cheating. Thus, Reagan must decide whether to publicly accuse the Soviets of SALT II violations even though he may not consider the time ripe for confrontation.

That's because the president is trying to moderate his Cold War rhetoric and shed the Genghis Khan cloak, bestowed on him by Democrats, in time for the 1984 election. But Reagan's staunchest supporters in Congress, who have been dismayed by his past reluctance to confront Moscow on SALT II violations, will demand that he face up to the damning evidence once it reaches the Oval Office.

The Soviet missile, designated the PL5, underwent its third test May 30. This was the first test which the U.S. was able to scrutinize by special radar screens operated from an electronic ship, well-known to the Russians, stationed in the Bering Sea off the coast of Siberia.

Normally, radar readings are not nearly so informative as telemetry readings from the missile during its flight, but the PL5's telemetry was heavily encrypted. Radar scrutiny did reveal this central fact: The throw weight (payload) of the PL5 appears slightly more than 200 percent of the throw weight of the old SS-13.

The significance of that ratio derives from the fact that SALT II, which Moscow and Washington have agreed to obey even though it never was ratified, permits only one "new type" missile each for the two superpowers. The Kremlin has conducted four tests on what the U.S. regards as the one permissible "new type" Soviet missile, designated the SSX24. Thus, the PL5 cannot be a legal "new type" missile.

But SALT says the throw weight of a modernized or "follow-on" missile cannot exceed the original by more than 5 percent. Yet, the Soviets have informed the U.S. that the PL5 is a "follow-on" of the SS-13, not a "new type" missile. Clearly, then, if Air Force and CIA analysts are even close to being right in estimating a 200 percent in throw weight, the PL5 is a "new type" missile, not a modernized SS-13. Summed up, the radar ship caught the Kremlin cheating red-handed.

When the CIA and Air Force intelligence first received radar data from the May 30 test, they sent it routinely to the Foreign Technology Division of Air Force Intelligence and to the government's Lincoln labs in Cambridge, Mass. Examination of the data in both laboratories produced substantial agreement on throw weight. These findings were returned to the CIA and the Air Force.

Air Force intelligence officers argues for immediately sending the alarming report on the PL5 to the White House, State Department, Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) and Department of Energy. But CIA officials worried about implications of so wide a dissemination. Despite months of White House hints about going to the mat with the Russians on alleged SALT violations, Reagan always has decided that evidence of cheating has fallen short and pulled back at the last moment from charging a violation.

The CIA finally decided it did not want the heavy responsibility of sending the president what looked to be irrefutable evidence of cheating, boxing him in a corner. Once he received the evidence, Reagan would have no exit from a major confrontation with Yuri Andropov at a time he might not want it.

Accordingly, the CIA ordered the data sent back to the labs for more study. It also ordered major efforts to break the encryption code of the missile's telemetry — in itself a probable violation of SALT II — to learn the PL5's secrets from its own reports back to Soviet earth stations.

But that can only delay the decision for Ronald Reagan. Both his political advisers and the State Department, taking different routes, have arrived at the same destination: agreement that now is the time for some U.S.-Soviet reconciliation, specifically a new arms control agreement. Just at this point, ironically, the president soon will have on his desk evidence of Soviet cheating so blatant that it could produce an outcry menacing even U.S. adherence to SALT II.

'Solidarity' Immigrant Finds Freedom In U.S.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Independence Day had a special meaning for a former Solidarity activist and his family who moved to Raleigh last week, giving up their Polish homeland for freedom in the United States.

Jan Wolicki said Monday that he and his family had found the United States to be different from Poland and nothing like Poles told him it would be.

"Better," he said. "We were told we would not have freedom."

Wolicki, his wife and three children left Poland after Wolicki was imprisoned twice for his activities with the Solidarity labor union. He said there was no problem with leaving the country because the government wanted him to go.

The family, sponsored by Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, is living with a Raleigh family until an apartment they have rented is available.

Wolicki, who speaks little English, said he was first arrested Dec. 13, 1981, the day martial law was declared and Solidarity headquarters were taken over.

He said police took him to a station at midnight and then interned him for two months. He was charged with contributing to articles in a Solidarity newspaper and supporting the union.

"The hardest part was that the families didn't know where we were being interned," Wolicki said through the Rev. Willie Houle, who acted as an interpreter for an interview.

"When we went to the police to ask where they were, the police said, 'If you don't know where your husband is, how would we?' his wife, Mirolawa, said.

Wolicki said he was not allowed to return to his former job as an electrician after his release from the internment camp and lost his pension.

Armed Robbery Investigated

Greenville police are investigating a Monday night armed robbery at a local restaurant that saw a lone intruder escape with two bank bags and an undetermined amount of money.

Police said the robbery at Wendy's at 103 Greenville Blvd. occurred when a man armed with a revolver walked into the rear of the restaurant and ordered the employees to lie on the floor behind the front counter. The man told manager Michael Kallock to open the safe, according to police.

The employees told officers the man fled on foot with the money.

No injuries were reported in the 10:09 p.m. incident.

Two Traffic Accidents Investigated

No injuries occurred and no charges were preferred as a result of two traffic accidents investigated Monday by Greenville police.

A car operated by Ronald David Rice of 2603 E. 10th St. sustained damages estimated at $500 when the vehicle left South Evans Street south of Sara Lane and struck a state owned sign before hitting a wooden fence.

Police said damages to the fence, located on the property of Lee McDaniel of 100 Pinewood Road, were estimated at $40, while damages were set at $25 to the fence. The wreck took place around 7:14 p.m.

Vehicles operated by Susan Page Anderson of 203 N. Elm Street and James Junior Levy of 308 Paris Avenue received damages estimated at $200 each in a 10:17 p.m. mishap on South Greene Street at West Fourth Street.

Radio Guest Announced

City Manager Gail Meeks announced that the guest on the "City Hall Notes" radio program today will be Hansy Jones, children's librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library.

Mrs. Jones will discuss summer programs for children at Sheppard and its branches.

The program will be aired at 6:30 p.m. on WOOW Radio.

Maritime Safety Bill Introduced

First District Rep. Walter B. Jones, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said he has introduced legislation aimed at improving the safety of the American maritime community.

The Farmville Democrat said, "The intent of my legislation is to improve the maritime safety environment without imposing onerous burdens upon those in the maritime community."

He said the bill: increases the penalty for operating without a valid Coast Guard certificate of inspection from $500 per offense to up to $5,000 per day; requires a vessel owner to report to the Coast Guard when a vessel has not been heard from in 48 hours; requires the master of the vessel to report to the owner within every 48 hour period; authorizes $5 million for each of fiscal years 1985 and 1986 to cover up to 50 percent of the cost of installing satellite telecommunications systems on merchant vessels; and permits the Coast Guard to investigate all acts of marine incompetency or misconduct committed by any person licensed by the Coast Guard.

Jones said the bill is based on information acquired during full committee hearings on the disappearance of the U.S. flag vessel S.S. Poet in 1980, the sinking of the oil rig Ocean Ranger in 1982, as well as investigations of other major marine casualties.

Andropov And Chancellor Confer

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Yuri V. Andropov met with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl today, 24 hours after the Soviet leader's sudden cancellation of two meetings with his guest raised questions about his health.

The meeting, announced by the official news agency Tass, is the first Andropov has held with the head of a NATO government since becoming Communist Party leader last November following the death of Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Tass gave no details of the morning meeting, saying only that the two leaders "have had a conversation at the Kremlin today."

Andropov, 69, has seemed frail in recent public appearances and his abrupt cancellation of his meetings with Kohl on Monday "for personal reasons" led Western observers to believe he was ill.

The Foreign Ministry summoned West German

Ambassador Andreas Mayer-Landruth early Monday and told him Andropov would forego Monday's scheduled talks and a state banquet at the Kremlin.

Monday's cancellation was so sudden that there was barely time to telephone Kohl with the change of plans before he boarded his plane for Moscow, West German sources said.

The chancellor told journalists with him on the plane that he did not see the cancellation as a snub and accepted Andropov's excuse of personal reasons.

West German delegation sources said after the brief meeting today that it was clear that Andropov had cancelled Monday's meetings for health reasons. They said Andropov was suffering a "slight disability" in moving his left hand.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, quoted Andropov as saying "it was my deepest desire to be there (Monday) but it couldn't be."

The concern caused by Monday's sudden move displaced what had been the main focus of Kohl's trip — the East-West quarrel over nuclear arms in Europe.

At the Kremlin dinner Monday, Kohl and Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov, substituting for Andropov, said they believed there still is time to reach agreement at the U.S.-Soviet talks in Geneva on limiting nuclear missiles in Europe.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has pledged to start installing 572 U.S.-made medium-range missiles in Western Europe by year-end if the Geneva talks fail. NATO says the missiles are meant to counter a Soviet buildup of more than 350 SS-20 medium-range missiles aimed at West European targets.

"I appeal to the Soviet Union to make possible a balanced result at the talks," Kohl said. "I agree with the Soviet government that it is not too late."

Tikhonov said "there is still a possibility for...an agreement at Geneva and we call for making use of it."

He dwelt on what he called the need for agreement and for equal levels of nuclear arms between East and West, but coupled this with a warning that the Soviet bloc would take measures

"without delay" to respond to any NATO deployment of the new missiles.

Like previous Soviet statements, Tikhonov's speech — reportedly the text Andropov would have read if he had been present at the banquet — did not say what the Soviets plan to do if new U.S. missiles are stationed.

West German officials familiar with the talks held Monday between Kohl and Tikhonov indicated they amounted to little more than a restatement of positions on the missiles issue.

The Soviets' most influential newspaper, the Communist Party daily Pravda, indicated there would be little progress on the missiles issue in an article today that reiterated Moscow's objections to U.S. disarmament proposals.

U.S. offers amounted to "no more than a mirage" of reasonableness and are part of a "pre-planned deadlock," Washington has arranged to install the Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe, Pravda said.

A Soviet source said prior to Kohl's arrival that the Kremlin was now resigned to at least the initial deployment of Pershing 2s in West Germany and cruise missiles in Britain and Italy, scheduled for this fall.

Marathon Exhausting

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Neither rain nor wind could stop Firestone High School band marathoners from trying to break the world's record for continuous play, even when their music flapped in the breeze and they had to head for cover.

What finally got them, after 87½ hours, was plain old exhaustion.

The 22 students had been trying to break a Guinness Book of World Records entry of 100 hours, 2 minutes, set in 1977 by a Maryland high school band.

The marathon was called off at 5:30 a.m. Monday, said Donna Curfman, wife of Firestone band director Scott Curfman.

"The kids had just finished a 45-minute sleep break. They were really disoriented. They couldn't shake off the dream state and play again," she said.

After each tune, the children took a one-minute break. They were allowed a five-minute break every hour, or they could save up the five-minute breaks for some sleep.

Current and former band members began playing at 2 p.m. Thursday. They played in a tent most of the time, but three times had to go inside to avoid heavy winds and high rain, Mrs. Curfman said.

As the marathon wore on, "People were amazed they could play at all," said Mrs. Curfman. "They were almost better than when they started."

Actor Richard Burton Is Wed For 5th Time

LONDON (AP) — Actor Richard Burton has married for the fifth time, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported today.

It said 57-year-old Burton married Sally Hay this time around, at a private ceremony in New York on Monday. It said Miss Hay, in her mid-30s, is a former BBC television production assistant.

The couple reportedly met in Vienna, Austria, at the beginning of last year when Burton was working on the movie "Wagner." She was working as a script assistant on the set, the BBC said.

Burton has been married twice previously to actress Elizabeth Taylor and has been starring opposite her in a Broadway production of the Noel Coward comedy "Private Lives" for nearly two months.

But the BBC said that off-stage, Miss Hay has been his constant companion. It said she has been staying with Burton at his New York hotel suite.

Though the BBC reported the wedding was held in New York, it quoted the manager of the Lombardy hotel where Burton is staying as saying Monday night that the couple was in Los Angeles and he knew nothing about a wedding.

Staff at the Lunt Fontanne theater where "Private Lives" is showing also were reported surprised at the news. They have not seen Burton for several days as the show has been temporarily closed because Miss Taylor has a throat infection.

Repeated attempts to reach Burton's West Coast publicist Valerie Douglas by telephone for comment were unsuccessful. There was no answer at the phone number listed for Zev Bufman, producer of "Private Lives," and calls to Fred Nathan, the show's publicist, were answered by a recorded message.

Burton's last marriage, to model Susan Hunt, former wife of British racing driver James Hunt, ended after six years in 1982.

His new bride had not previously been married. When newspapers first noted their friendship in June last year, the wealthy Welsh-born actor was quoted as saying: "She is very young and innocent, so I don't want to put her in the glare of publicity."

"A GOOD FARMER IS ALSO A GOOD BUSINESSMAN!"

"I always do my homework before I make an investment. That's why I've got several business enterprises that are successful. And one of those is my Perdue broiler operation. Sure, I got into chickens before Perdue was in this area. So when they bought out the company I was with and offered me a contract, I wasn't sure what to do. I wasn't very familiar with Perdue, but I had heard that they were different. I soon realized that they really want a quality chicken. That means the company hopefully makes more money. And at the same time, the grower benefits too.

A quality-conscious company that makes poultry its only business. That's who I'm growing for now. That's a good thing to have going for you when retirement comes. Good cash flow, a good tax situation, including the investment tax credit which is a tremendous savings, and depreciation of houses and equipment. From that point of view, a farmer or businessman, either one, would do well to consider Perdue.

When I retire, my Perdue broiler houses will be my only business, and I look forward to it. There are some very nice things about it you can't find in other jobs. It's not back-breaking work and doesn't take a lot of time. A person could have a couple of Perdue houses and still be involved in other things.

It's A Great Time to Grow with Perdue. Perdue is into one thing — chickens. That's why our poultry products outsell all the others in the northeastern super-markets. The demand is increasing for our products, so we need more producers. Start growing with a growing company. Call 1-800-682-8729 or send in the coupon below, and talk chicken with a Perdue representative.

Hogs
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — There was no trend on the North Carolina hog market today. Kinston 44.50, Clinton, Elizabethtown, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadbourn, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson closed, Wilson 44.50, Salisbury 43.50, Rowland 44.00, Spivey's Corner 44.00. Sows: all weights 500 pounds up; Wilson 34.00, Fayetteville unreported, Whiteville 34.00, Wallace 33.00, Spivey's Corner 34.00, Rowland 34.00, Durham 35.50.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.00 cents. The final weighted average was 47.92 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market tone for next week's trading is steady to firm, mostly steady, and the live supply is moderate for a very good demand. Weights light. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 1,698,000, compared to 1,810,000 last Tuesday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was about steady. Supplies fully adequate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter were too few to quote.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices took a sharp drop today amid new worries about the outlook for Federal Reserve credit policy and interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 14.42 to 1,210.84 by noon.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 5 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Friday, before the long July 4 weekend, the Federal Reserve reported a $600 million increase in the basic measure of the money supply.

The news came as a disappointment to traders who had been looking for a decline in the money supply to help ease fears of credit-tightening by the Fed.

Interest rates in the credit markets jumped in late trading Friday and again today. Over the weekend speculation mounted that the Fed might be planning a move, such as an increase in the discount rate, to try to slow monetary growth.

The NYSE's composite index tumbled 1.28 to 96.63. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 2.43 at 242.27.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 30.83 million shares at noon, against 33.13 million at the same point Friday.

Suing Stone Age Motel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Yabba dabba doo!" A court is about to consider whether a motel with a Stone Age theme room is infringing on a copyright for "The Flintstones."

Attorneys for Hanna-Barbera Productions Inc. say they've filed suit in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles against a motel where one room features an early Bedrock decor.

The company is trying to protect its claim to Fred Flintstone — Bedrock's first citizen in the long-running cartoon series — his wife Wilma, baby Pebbles, neighbors Barney and Betty Rubble, and his pet, Dino the Dinosaur.

The lawyers said Monday the Madonna Inn, near San Luis Obispo, features a "Flintstone Room," a rock-walled cavern that contains likenesses of Fred and Wilma.

It also contains Fred's favorite phrase, featured on television since 1964, which the suit contends is spelled wrong.

The lawsuit says Fred's phrase properly should end with a word spelled "doo," the lawsuit says. The motel incorrectly spells it "do."

Hanna-Barbera attorneys say the company owns it either way.

"They haven't got a leg to stand on," responded motel owner Alexander Madonna, noting that his "Flintstone Room" has been in operation for the past 10 years.

Cannon Mishap Cost Both Arms

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A cannon misfired during a Civil War reenactment, severing the arms of a 39-year-old man and injuring another man, police said.

Kenneth Huff of Orem was in critical condition following surgery at Utah Valley Hospital late Monday.

A nursing supervisor said Huff lost an eye and his arms were amputated below the elbows by the blast Monday afternoon at the Kiwanis Park in Provo.

The cannon discharged prematurely during reloading during a Fourth of July observance. The cause of the accident was not immediately known, police said.

Joel Clements, 28, of Pleasant Grove, was in stable condition and in surgery late Monday for an injured hand.

Provo police said both of the injured men belonged to the Civil War Association, a group specializing in historical reenactments.

Inmates' Brew Stirs Rampage

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — Homemade alcohol brewed by inmates contributed to a prison rampage in which one guard was stabbed to death and five others were injured, officials said.

Guards ended the disturbance by about 35 drunken prisoners Sunday night by firing shotgun blasts into the melee at the Moberly Training Center for Men, said assistant superintendent Jim Jones. By Monday, the medium-security prison had returned to normal, he said.

Four Small Churches Burned In Texas Town

GAUSE, Texas (AP) — Residents in this town of 500 people expressed shock and disbelief after "a nut with a flame in his hand" hurled Molotov cocktails into four small churches, destroying two and heavily damaging the others.

No one was injured in the arson blazes that kept firefighters busy for three hours early Monday in this east-central Texas farming town, authorities said.

"I didn't believe that we had those kind of enemies in Gause," said Sampson Standiford, chairman of deacons of the Zion Hill church. "Everyone here works together and lives together and we've never had any problems like this. It's hard to believe."

"It was definitely arson — no question about it," said Tommy Chamberlain, fire marshal in nearby Cameron. "All of the fires were caused by a nut with a flame in his hand."

Bottles were found at the scene of each fire, he said.

Milam County Judge Phil Smith set a special commissioner's court meeting for today to discuss offering a reward for information about the fires.

Fire leveled the Perry Memorial Church of God in Christ and damaged the Stevens Chapel A.M.E. Church and the Hoyte Church of Christ, just north of Gause, said Milam County Sheriff's Deputy Bill Harris.

Authorities had no suspects or a motive for the fire bombings, which sheriff's deputies believe were done by the same person or group of people, Harris said.

"We had just done about $5,000 in repairs," said the Rev. Cleophus Swain, pastor of Perry Memorial Church of God. "There have been church services in that old building for more than 50 years. Now it's gone. There's nothing we can do about it. It's just God's will, I guess."

The first fire was reported at 3 a.m. Monday. Volunteer fire fighters from Gause, aided by personnel from the Cameron and Hearne fire departments, extinguished all the blazes by about 6 a.m.

"Nothing worthwhile was left. It was a total loss," said Swain, whose 64-by-24-foot church had served a congregation of 11.

Missing Child Eludes Search

ROAN MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP) — An 8-year-old boy who a neighbor says is friendly and unlikely to run away eluded searchers for a third day Monday, but law enforcement officials say time is running out on the boy's chances of survival.

Michael Eugene Reel of Hickory was reported missing on a family camping trip Saturday on Roan Mountain. The search by more than 100 law enforcement officers and volunteers has been hampered by the boy's apparent fear of responding to rescuers.

The boy's father, Ernie Reel, was calling for him with a bullhorn Sunday, when another searcher heard the boy yell, "Daddy, I'm coming out," law enforcement officials said. They waited, but never saw him, and an intense search turned up nothing.

"He just won't come to the people that see him," said Avery County sheriff's dispatcher Mark Phillips. "Evidently he's pretty scared and won't come to them."

That sort of reaction puzzled his Hickory neighbors, accustomed to Michael's winning ways. "That's not like him," said Nina Black, who lives across the street from the Reels' home. "He's a real friendly boy. I've never known him to run away."

"He wouldn't run away on purpose," Ms. Black said. "He's a good kid. I've known him all his life. I can't understand it. They're going to find him. We got faith they'll find him."

The boy had walked away from a Roan Mountain campsite he shared with his mother, Patricia Reel, his grandmother, Margaret English, and four sisters, authorities said.

Monday's search ended before nightfall, and although searchers remained optimistic that the boy was alive because he had been spotted and heard, Carter County, Tenn., Sheriff's Department Sgt. Doug Jennings said time might be running out.

"If he stays out there much longer, he'll suffer," Jennings said.

A woman reported seeing a young boy Saturday with a bowl walking along N.C. 261 near the top of the mountain. Deputies believe the boy had a bowl to hold BBs he was shooting.

"Everybody's out there," Jennings said. "They're working on getting the (Tennessee) National Guard on it."

Jennings said the boy was last seen wearing jeans and a T-shirt, and had no food or water with him when he disappeared. It rained Sunday night and the temperature at the base of the mountain was about 60 degrees, he said.

"I'd say it was in the 50s up at the top," Jennings said. "It's a good 3,000 feet. And, it's a large search area. I'd say it's more than 10 square miles. I'm guessing that from where he was reported missing, it's four or five miles from the top."

The Zion Hill Missionary Baptist Church sustained several thousand dollars in smoke, fire and water damage and may be beyond repair, the Rev. J.H. Chapman said.

"The building is just about gone," Chapman said. "There's a lot to be done, from what I could just see."

"We certainly feel sorry for someone like that," Chapman said of the arsonist. "We have no feelings of animosity."

Jaruzelski Given Award

MOSCOW (AP) — Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Polish leader, has been awarded the highest Soviet prize, the Order of Lenin, Tass reported today.

The official news agency said Jaruzelski was granted the award on "the occasion of his 60th birthday" and "in recognition of his services in the development of the fraternal friendship and cooperation between the peoples" of the Soviet Union and Poland.

Jaruzelski played a prominent role during Pope John Paul II's visit to Poland last month, meeting twice with the pope and pronouncing the visit a success both for the church and the state.

Western analysts in Moscow attached no special significance to the timing of the award for Jaruzelski.

In a separate report, Tass said the Communist Party Central Committee and the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, or parliament, congratulated Jaruzelski on his birthday.

"In a period difficult for Poland, you... are leading its struggle in defense of socialism and for the earliest overcoming of the crisis and normalization of society's political and economic life," the committee said.

Righetti Snaps Yanks' No-Hit Streak

It's Over
New York Yankees pitcher Dave Righetti jumps into the arms of catcher Butch Wynegar after throwing a no-hitter against the Boston Red Sox Monday at Yankee Stadium. It was the first no-hitter by a Yankee pitcher since Don Larsen pitched a perfect game in the World Series in 1956. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Righetti was one out away from a no-hitter. At the plate was Wade Boggs with 101 hits — the first player in the majors to reach 100 — and a .357 batting average, second best in the American League.

In the stands at Yankee Stadium, 41,077 fans were standing, screaming and applauding.

"I could see everybody was nervous and they were making me nervous. I couldn't even look in the dugout," Righetti said. "I said, 'Great, I have the best hitter in the league in that situation.'"

But Righetti had something to prove.

"There was a lot of emotion, a lot of buildup in my mind. I wanted to prove to people that I'm an All-Star," he said.

So the New York Yankees' 24-year-old left-hander fired a sharp slider past Boggs for his ninth strikeout, completing a 4-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox and the first no-hitter by a Yankee since Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series.

But his next outing will come in Kansas City next weekend rather than in the All-Star Game Wednesday night in Chicago. The Yankees had recommended the AL take Righetti as a replacement for injured teammate Ron Guidry, who had to beg off, but the nod went to Baltimore's Tippy Martinez.

"I wanted to go and represent Ronnie," Righetti said. "My pitching shows I deserve it. I'm not complaining. The guys who were picked deserve it. I was 8-3 at the time and maybe that wasn't good enough."

Righetti is 10-3 now, the no-hitter coming on the heels of his first major league shutout, a five-hitter against Baltimore last Wednesday night.

"I didn't talk to him but once the whole game," said catcher Butch Wynegar. "I didn't want to break his concentration. When I hugged him, he had tears in his eyes. Then I had tears in my eyes. It was a big thrill."

"Not one ball came close to a hit, not a one. We weren't very tricky, just fastball-slider, fastball-slider. Rags maybe threw five or six changeups. He had outstanding stuff. He was real pumped up at the beginning. But as the game went on, he went to more breaking balls. He began spotting his pitches more."

"I tried to stay calm all the way, but when there were two outs in the ninth I got real nervous. I didn't know what to call on that last pitch. At first, I thought fastball. That's his best pitch. But at the last second, I changed my mind. I don't know why."

"And Rags didn't shake me off. I would have kicked myself if he had lost his no-hitter on the slider. But I'll tell you, that was some great slider. It exploded down low and kept going."

The Red Sox had pounded Yankee pitching for 37 runs and 54 hits — including nine doubles, a triple and 10 homers — in the last four meetings, but Righetti was hotter than the 94-degree heat.

"I was hoping it was going to get to him and we'd catch up to him, but we never did," said Boston's Dave Stapleton. "We've been swinging the bats very good. To no-hit us the way we've been hitting the ball is especially something."

Righetti had watched the Boston bats at work all weekend hitting one king-sized home run after another.

"I could have gone out there and had in my mind to knock a few guys down," he said, "but they had to hit me and I just went out and shut them down. I was determined the first two or three innings to set a pattern and take the bats out of their hands. I couldn't let them do what they did the last few days."

"I didn't have great control, that's why I walked four. But I had effective wildness. I had a pretty good fastball to begin with and I kept a pretty good fastball throughout the day and I changed locations. I kept my slider in on them all day; it was down or in every time."

Boggs' routine liner to center in the fourth was the hardest ball the Red Sox hit. The best defensive play came in the eighth when right fielder Steve Kemp jumped and reached into the stands to grab Dwight Evans' foul fly.

The no-hitter was the first in the majors since Houston's Nolan Ryan pitched his record fifth one against Los Angeles on Sept. 26, 1981. It was the first regular-season no-hitter by a Yankee since Allie Reynolds hurled a pair in 1951, the second coming on Sept. 28 against Boston. The last no-hitter against the Red Sox was pitched by Baltimore's Tom Phoebus on April 27, 1968.

The Yankees got the only run Righetti needed against John Tudor in the fifth inning on singles by Kemp, Roy Smalley and Andre Robertson. Don Baylor's ninth homer of the season made it 2-0 in the sixth and Kemp added a two-run single in the eighth.

"No-hitters are kind of a specialty," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk. "Sometimes you don't hit the ball and you get a bloop hit. You've got to have things going your way. He had nine strikeouts. That means we didn't have that many chances to get a hit."

Babe Ruth District Tourney Thursday

The Babe Ruth League will open tournament play at the district level at two sites Thursday and Friday.

Greenville will play host to the 13-15-year-old tournament, involving seven teams. The winner of the double elimination event, which begins Friday, will advance to the state tournament to be played at Bayboro starting July 15.

Meanwhile, in Snow Hill, the 13-year-old district tourney will begin Thursday with a six-team field. The winner in that tournament, also a double elimination event advances to the state tournament in Wilmington, also starting July 15.

In the 13-15-year-old tournament in Greenville, three games are set for the opening day, Friday. At 3:30 p.m., Washington faces Nash County, while Tarboro and Pitt County collide at 6 p.m. The final game, at 8:30 p.m. sends Greene County against Greenville.

Martin County, which received a bye in the first round, faces the Washington-Nash winner at 3:30 p.m. Saturday. That game will be followed by the other winners' bracket game and the first of the losers' bracket games.

Sunday, two games are slated, one in the winners bracket and one in the losers. Three losers bracket games will be played on Monday, with the finals — going two games if needed — on Tuesday.

Play in Snow Hill begins on Thursday with two games, Washington vs. Martin County at 6 p.m. and Nash County vs. Greene County at 8:30 p.m.

Friday, Greenville meets the Martin-Washington winner, while Pitt County faces the Nash-Greene survivor.

On Saturday, three games are set, two in the losers bracket and one in the winners. Two losers bracket games will be played Sunday, with the finals on Monday. Again, two games would be played if necessary, to decide the title.

Wayne County Edges Wilson

Wayne County, seeded third in the Area I East playoffs, gained a 13-12 victory over Wilson last night in the first game of their best-of-three first round playoff series. Wilson had taken an early 10-2 lead before Wayne rallied to pull it out.

Meanwhile, fourth seeded Rocky Mount defeated Kinston, 12-10, in the first of their best-of-three series.

Pitt County, the winner of the regular season title, has a bye in the first round, and Snow Hill, seeded second, has been awarded a forfeit victory over Edenton. Pitt will face the Rocky Mount-Kinston winner starting Saturday, while Snow Hill is to face the Wayne-Wilson survivor.

Catcher Darrell Porter of the St. Louis Cardinals was rated a high school All-American as a quarterback at Southeast High in Oklahoma City.

Righetti Joins Elite Yankee No-Hit Club

No-Hitter Eluded Legendary Hurlers

By The Associated Press

Whitey Ford never pitched a no-hitter. Nor did Lefty Gomez, Ron Guidry or any other left-hander who toiled for the New York Yankees except George Mogridge in 1917.

And no left-hander had ever hurled a no-hitter at Yankee Stadium, the ballpark built for left-handed pitchers as well as left-handed hitters, until Dave Righetti did it Monday.

His four-walk, nine-strikeout 4-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox was the first no-hitter by a Yankee since Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series — "Don lives near me (in California) and I see him during the winter at golf tournaments," Righetti said — and the team's first regular-season no-hitter in 32 years.

Righetti said none of his teammates mentioned the no-hitter during the game, but when he went to the clubhouse before the ninth inning he heard it on the telecast of the game.

"I don't talk to anyone during a game, but I went back to change my gum, as I always do, and I heard it. I could have killed him," said the 24-year-old Righetti, who has never spent a full season in the majors.

In other American League games, the Oakland A's nipped the Texas Rangers 4-3, the Kansas City Royals whipped the California Angels

5-1, the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Minnesota Twins 12-6 and the Milwaukee Brewers downed the Cleveland Indians 8-3. Seattle-Toronto and Baltimore-Detroit were rained out, the latter game halted in the top of the fifth with the Orioles ahead 5-4.

The Red Sox, who had pounded out 20 extra-base hits in their previous four meetings with the Yankees, hit several balls hard against Righetti but didn't come close to a hit.

"I was determined the first two or three innings to set a pattern and take the bats out of their hands," Righetti said. "I couldn't let them do what they did the last few days. I didn't have that great control, that's why I walked some people. But I had effective wildness.

"I had a pretty good fastball to begin with and I kept a pretty good fastball throughout the day and I changed locations. I kept my slider in on them all day; it was down or in every time."

The Yankees scored in the fifth inning against John Tudor on singles by Steve Kemp, Roy Smalley and Andre Robertson. Don Baylor's ninth homer made it 2-0 in the sixth and Kemp added a two-run single in the eighth.

Righetti's only disappointment came when he learned that he had been bypassed as a replacement on the AL All-Star squad for the injured Guidry.

"The guys who were picked deserve it," Righetti said. "I was 8-3 at the time (10-3 now) and maybe that wasn't good enough. I had a little anger in my mind. I'm good enough — I know it and you know it."

A's 4, Rangers 3
At Oakland, Rickey Henderson stole three bases and scored three runs as the A's ended Texas' four-game winning streak, although the Rangers remained two games ahead of California in the AL West. Henderson, who set a major league record by stealing 130 bases last year and has 42 this season, tied an AL record by stealing seven bases in two games.

In the first inning, Henderson singled, stole second, went to third on a grounder and scored on Bill Almon's sacrifice fly. The A's snapped a 2-2 tie in the third when Henderson walked, stole second, went to third on another grounder and scored on Almon's second sacrifice fly which second baseman Jim Anderson caught just beyond the infield. Henderson doubled with one out in the fifth, stole third and scored the eventual winning run on a sacrifice fly by Rick Peters.

"Whenever Rickey goes, the Oakland A's go," said Manager Steve Boros.

Royals 5, Angels 1
At Anaheim, Paul Splittorff pitched a four-hitter for his first nine-inning complete game since 1981 and Leon Roberts drove in two runs. Splittorff, who pitched a five-inning rain-shortened complete game against Texas earlier this season, came within one out of what would have been his first shutout in five years until Brian Downing's RBI single with two out in the ninth.

The Orioles jumped on Tommy John for three runs in the first two innings. Hal McRae's first-inning single scored U.L. Washington, who singled and went to second on a grounder by George Brett. After Willie Aikens doubled and John Wathan walked in the second, RBI singles by Roberts and Greg Pryor made it 3-0. Roberts drove in another run with a sacrifice fly in the third.

White Sox 12, Twins 6
At Minneapolis, Greg Walker drove in five runs with a two-run homer and a three-run double, while Dennis Lamp earned the victory with 6 1-3 innings of relief. Vance Law led off the eighth inning for Chicago with a double and pinch runner Jerry Hairston was sacrificed to third. Julio Cruz walked and stole second and Rudy Law was intentionally walked to load the bases. With two out, Walker, who homered in the sixth, doubled to clear the bases and gave the White Sox a 9-6 lead.

Brewers 8, Indians 3
At Cleveland, Milwaukee's Ben Oglivie, selected earlier in the day to replace the injured Reggie Jackson on the AL All-Star squad, celebrated by clouting his fourth career grand slam in the first inning following two-out singles by Robin Yount and Cecil Cooper and a walk to Ted Simmons. Winner Don Sutton allowed three runs and nine hits in seven innings as the Brewers won for the eighth time in the last 10 games.

Baseball Tourneys Open Thursday

The Greenville Little Leagues begin their post-season tournament play on Thursday with six games scheduled — three in each league.

Action begins at Elm Street in the Tar Heel Little League with the Exchange meeting the Moose at 2 p.m. They will be followed at 4 p.m. by Wellcome vs. Pepsi-Cola, and First Federal against True Value Hardware at 6 p.m.

Top-seeded Carroll & Associates will face the Exchange-Moose winner at 4 p.m. Friday, with the other winners colliding on Friday at 6 p.m. The finals will be held Saturday at 2 p.m.

In the North State League, the Optimists meet the Kiwanis at 2 p.m. at Guy Smith Park on Thursday. Union Carbide faces the Jaycees at 4 p.m., followed at 6 p.m. by Coca-Cola and the Lions.

Sportsworld, the league regular-season champ, takes on the Optimists-Kiwanis winner at 4 p.m. Friday, with the other two survivors meeting at 6 p.m. The finals will be Saturday.

The two league winners will then meet in the City Championship, a best-of-three series beginning Monday, July 11, at Elm Street. Games will be daily at 6 p.m.

Central Division Crown Just First Step For USFL Panthers

By The Associated Press
Winning the Central Division championship in the United States Football League's first season is only the first step, says Michigan Coach Jim Stanley.

The Panthers captured the crown with a 33-7 pounding Sunday of Arizona, which prompted Wranglers Coach Doug Shively to predict: "Michigan will win the whole thing."

But to do that, the Panthers have to get by the Oakland Invaders next Sunday in the first round of playoffs. And on July 17 in Denver, in the USFL's inaugural title game, they have to beat the winner of Saturday's other playoff matchup between the Chicago Blitz and the Stars in Philadelphia.

Michigan beat out Coach George Allen's Blitz for the division title, each team finishing at 12-6 but the Panthers winning by virtue of their two victories over Chicago. Asked how he felt about that feat, Stanley said: "Happy, but tired. This is a fine moment — but there are two more games to be played."

The Panthers, who scored the most points in the league (451), figure to be solid favorites against Oakland, which managed to win the Western title despite a 9-9 record and scoring just two more points (319) than it allowed.

Still, as Invaders Coach John Ralston pointed out: "We've played them before and it should work as a plus for us because we beat them" 33-27 on March 19. "Plus, Arthur Whittington should be available," Whittington, among the USFL's top rushers with 1,043 yards and receivers, (66 catches for 584 yards) nursed a cracked rib on the sidelines the season's final two games. The Panthers' rushing leader was Ken Lacy with 1,080 yards. The quarterbacks were 1-2 in the league — Bobby Hebert with 27 touchdown passes and Oakland's Fred Besana with 21.

In Philadelphia, Kelvin Bryant, No. 2 in the league in rushing with 1,442 yards, will be testing the sprained ankle which he rested last Sunday in the Stars' regular-season finale, a 21-14 loss to lowly Washington.

The Stars' Doghouse Defense, which gave up only 204 points, by far the fewest in the league, will be tested by the Blitz, which finished second in the league in scoring with 425 points.

Chicago has two 1,000-yard rushers in Willie Spencer (1,157) and Kevin Long (1,022) and the league's leading receiver in Trumaine Johnson (81 catches for 1,322 yards).

When quarterback Greg Landry was injured, the Blitz lost a lot of effectiveness at quarterback and eventually had to trade for Bobby Scott, who had spent most of the season as New Jersey's erratic quarterback. Chuck Fusina, too, was rarely awesome at quarterback for the Stars.

Philadelphia won its regular-season meeting with the Blitz, 31-24 on May 15. "The last time we had the game in hand," said Coach Allen. "Then we fumbled the ball away three times in the last quarter, they turned it into 21 points and won."

Cardinals Still In Race Despite Hurts

By The Associated Press
Keith Hernandez is gone, Lonnie Smith was out of action for a while and Joaquin Andujar is having an off-year. Yet, the defending world champion St. Louis Cardinals are only two games out of first place in the National League East at the All-Star break following Monday's doubleheader split with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I consider us lucky," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said after the Cardinals lost the opener 7-2 before winning the second game 11-4.

"If you had told me in spring training that Bob Forsch and Joaquin Andujar would be 10-17 in July, I wouldn't think we'd be a contender."

Darrell Porter belted a grand slam and Ozzie Smith drove in three runs with four hits in the St. Louis victory. The Pirates took the first game behind Jason Thompson's three-run homer.

In other NL games, Philadelphia downed New York 4-0, Atlanta belted Cincinnati 9-5, Houston edged Los Angeles 5-4, San Diego held on to beat San Francisco 4-3, and Montreal swept a doubleheader from Chicago, winning the opener 6-3 and taking the second game 4-2.

St. Louis ripped Pittsburgh starter Jim Bibby, 3-9, in the first game and finished with 18 hits, four by George Hendrick. Ozzie Smith's 4-for-5 performance raised his average from .191 to .205.

"That looks a lot better," Herzog said.

Neil Allen, who was 2-7 when the New York Mets traded him and Rick Ownbey to St. Louis for Hernandez last month, started and won the second game. Allen, 3-1 with the Cardinals, gave up a three-run homer to Richie Hebner and Bill Madlock's solo blast.

The victory raised St. Louis' record to 40-39. Montreal leads the division while Philadelphia is a half-game ahead of the Cardinals. St. Louis has been hurt by the loss of Lonnie Smith, who missed time while undergoing treatment for a drug problem, plus a poor season so far from Andujar, who is 4-11.

Rick Rhoden, 6-7, pitched a complete game in the opener while Tony Pena and Madlock each had three hits and a run batted in.

Pittsburgh is now 34-42 and 6½ games behind Montreal.

"Teams have come from farther back in September than we are," Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner said. "I guarantee you I'm happy with the position we're in now."

Phillies 4, Mets 0
A holiday crowd of 52,710 saw Steve Carlton throw a four-hitter and strike out nine to regain the all-time strikeout lead.

Carlton, 9-9, now has 3,569 career strikeouts, eight more than Houston's Nolan Ryan. It was Carlton's 294th lifetime victory.

Bob Dernier squeezed home the game's first run in the third inning and Joe Lefebvre's RBI triple made it 2-0 in the fourth.

Rookie Walt Terrell, 1-3, hit Kiko Garcia with a pitch to force home a run during a two-run sixth.

Expos 6-4, Cubs 3-2
Chicago began the day just two games behind front-running Montreal in the NL East. But Andre Dawson and Gary Carter made sure the Cubs wouldn't catch the Expos.

Dawson belted two home runs, giving him 17 this season, and doubled while Carter also homered as Montreal won the opener, ending the Expos' five-game losing streak and snapping Chicago's six-game victory string. Carter also homered in the second game.

Scott Sanderson, 5-6, won his first game since May 27 in the nightcap, though he left the game in the seventh inning when he hurt his thumb following a spill over first base while running out a grounder.

Montreal Manager Bill Virdon later said Sanderson may go on the disabled list because of the injury.

Braves 9, Reds 5
Chris Chambliss had three runs, scoring singles while Claudell Washington and Dale Murphy added three hits apiece in Atlanta's 14-hit attack, which — coupled with Los Angeles' loss — moved the Braves into first place in the NL West for the first time since May 5.

Chambliss had an RBI single in the Braves' three-run first inning, drove in another during a three-run fifth and singled home another run in a two-run sixth. Pete Falcone raised his record to 7-1 after taking over for Ken Dayley in the fourth. Nick Esasky drove in four Cincinnati runs with a three-run homer, his third, and a sacrifice fly.

Astros 5, Dodgers 4
Jose Cruz led off the bottom of the eighth inning with a home run, breaking a 4-4 tie and giving Houston the victory.

The homer, his sixth of the season and third in three games, pinned the loss on Steve Howe, 2-3.

Houston knocked out Fernando Valenzuela by scoring three runs in the sixth to take a 4-2 lead.

Steve Sax singled in two Los Angeles runs to tie it in the seventh. Steve Yeager's 13th homer accounted for the Dodgers' first two runs.

Padres 4, Giants 3
Mark Thurmond, making his second start in the majors, won his second game with some clutch relief by Gary Lucas.

Sixto Lezcano drove in two runs with a triple and a single as San Diego took 4-1 lead against Mike Krukow, 5-5.

But Joel Youngblood, who smacked a solo homer in the fourth, drilled a two-run homer to pull San Francisco within 4-3 with no outs in the top of the eighth.

The Giants then proceeded to load the bases against Eric Show, who was making his first relief appearance of the season, with three straight singles. That brought on Lucas, who earned his ninth save by getting Tom O'Malley on a fly ball and inducing pinch hitter Rich Murray to hit into a double play.

Winning Wave

After taking the checkered flag, Buddy Baker salutes fans at the Firecracker 400 NASCAR race at the Daytona Motor Speedway Monday.

Baker ran out of gas just before the finish but was able to coast over the finish line ahead of the pack to gain the win. (AP Laserphoto)

Baker Holds On As Gas Runs Out In Final Lap

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — All Buddy Baker could do at the end was hold onto the steering wheel and hope nobody showed up in his rear-view mirror.

Baker was out of gas and coasting through the last lap of Monday's Firecracker 400 Grand National stock car race, on the way to his first victory in 62 starts.

"The engine was sputtering on the backstretch and then it quit, but I knew I could make it to the finish line. I knew I had it won, but..."

Baker's Wood Brothers Ford Thunderbird rolled quietly across the finish line 3 seconds ahead of the speeding Buick Regal of second-place Morgan Shepherd.

David Pearson's Chevrolet was a distant third, followed by Ron Bouchard's Buick and a frustrated Terry Labonte, whose Monte Carlo also coasted slowly across the finish line.

Labonte had been leading Baker going into lap 159 of the 160-lap event at Daytona International Speedway, but he ran out of gas and watched helplessly as Baker shot past.

"What can I say, the car just ran out of gas," Labonte said. "I didn't have any idea it was going to run out. I actually thought I had enough (to finish)."

For Baker, it was a sweet victory — his first for the Wood Brothers, who he came to this season, and his first since winning the Winston 500 in May of 1980.

"I'm more excited for the Wood Brothers and (sponsor) Valvoline than for myself," said the 42-year-old Baker, who now has 19 career Grand National victories. "They gave me a chance when I needed it."

"We all needed a win, though. We've come close before this year. The combination has been there, but we just haven't had the luck we had today (Monday)."

It was the eighth Firecracker victory for the Wood Brothers. No other team has more than two.

Baker, who picked up $32,950 from the total purse of $327,440, averaged 167.442 mph.

The race was marred by just three caution flags and one accident.

The last of the three caution periods began on lap 79 when the right-rear tire on Dick Brooks' Thunderbird blew and Brooks spun between turns 2 and 3 on the 2.5-mile high-banked track.

Bobby Allison; the defending race champion and the current Winston Cup point leader, braked quickly to avoid Brooks and was struck in the rear by Richard Petty. Allison then slammed into the spinning Brooks.

There were no injuries, but the crash eliminated Brooks and Petty and kept Allison and Neil Bonnett, who also damaged his car running through the debris from the accident, from contending the rest of the day.

Labonte took the lead during the ensuing pits stops and built an 11-second margin over Baker before having to pit again for fuel on lap 122. He actually ran out of gas as he approached his pit and had trouble restarting the car, costing him valuable time.

Baker ducked in for gas two laps later and, with a typically fast Wood Brothers stop, came out in the lead.

Labonte, his car running very strongly, charged back from seventh place into the top spot, passing Baker and Bouchard on lap 150.

At that point, with the end in sight, Baker began to plot strategy.

Baker lost the Daytona 500 last February when he went into the last lap leading the race and saw three drivers, led by Cale Yarborough, slingshot past him at the end.

That finish has gnawed at him ever since.

"That win should have been mine and the Woods," Baker said. "I give that race away from first place and, this time, I was going to run second if a paper bag was in first on the last lap."

When it was pointed out he could also have lost from second place, Baker grinned and said, "At least I wouldn't look dumb again."

Labonte interrupted Baker's thought process when he suddenly slowed between the third and fourth turns.

"When you're going 200 miles an hour and the guy ahead of you slows to 160 in a heartbeat, you pay close attention," Baker explained. "It was just a reflex to cut (the wheel) right, and I just hooked it around him real quick."

"When something like that happens, it's like coming around a corner and finding a car backing out of a driveway in front of you. You have to react real quick and have a little bit of luck."

"The main thing, though, was that the car outlanded everybody today. Leonard Wood and all the boys did a good job. The car was just flawless."

Tennis Has Shed Cloak Of Dignity For Big Show

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — They've wrapped up another Wimbledon, the 96th over 106 years. Late next month the big show settles down at Flushing Meadow for the U. S. Open. Then what?

Tennis, as a sport, sheds its cloak of dignity and credibility and becomes just another globe-girdling medicine show.

"This way, ladies and gentlemen, come see John McEnroe bash his racket over a net post."

"In the stadium, Jimmy Connors, the flying disc with the loudest grunts in captivity."

"For 15 bucks we give for your pleasure the cold Czech assassin, Ivan Lendl."

"Hurry, hurry, hurry. See it now."

Bigtime tournament tennis is a mess.

Agents have wrestled control from the establishment, which appears at a loss to take remedial measures. Top players have become arrogant and independent, with their agents' help milking the game of its life blood with utter disregard for the sport itself.

Under-the-table payments are rife. Agents hold top-ranking players ransom, demanding illegal appearance money for tournaments which need a drawing card to survive.

There is stirring among the hundreds of lesser players whose presence is needed to make the show authentic. A revolt could be in the offing. These spear-carriers have a legitimate gripe. They say the rich are getting richer, top players lopping off the biggest portions of the prize money and also demanding secret payoffs to show up. A revolt is not improbable.

"There is probably $50 million paid out in a year in appearance money," said Mike Davies, the executive director of the Association of Tennis Professionals.

So what can the tennis brass do about it?

"Very little," said an influential spokesman of the tennis hierarchy.

"The promoters won't admit they're paying it. Neither will the guys."

"Evidence is almost impossible to get."

There are 78 tournaments on the world-wide Grand Prix schedule. Milan has been dropped for next year. Rotterdam and Stuttgart are under fire. These are just drops in the bucket.

Another drop in the bucket, in the player category, is Guillermo Vilas, the Argentine, who has been suspended for a year and fined $20,000 for transgressions involving appearance money.

The players are fighting it. John McEnroe, Sr., a New York Wall Street attorney, is pleading the players' case.

"I am a capitalist," the elder McEnroe said here last week. "I believe an individual should be permitted to make whatever he can."

This is a touchy issue. Opposition of the run-of-the-mill players is understandable. Yet the bigger stars insist on getting what they're worth.

It's hard to fault the players except that they show very little regard for the sport and its traditions. They should look at how the pro golfers operate.

The trouble with bigtime tennis is that it has let itself get out of the hands of the people who should administer it and fall into the hands of agents.

The agents own the game — the two main ones being Donald Dell, a Washington, D. C., attorney who heads Pro-Serv, Inc., and Mark McCormack, who started with Arnold Palmer and now has a world-wide player agency empire called International Management Group.

Between them, they control most of the top players. Dell, who started with his old Davis Cup team of Arthur Ashe, Stan Smith, Charley Pasarell and others, has a thriving stable consisting of Ivan Lendl, Yannick Noah, Jimmy Connors and others.

McCormack built Bjorn Borg into an $8 million-a-year commodity and added several top men on the tour. McEnroe belongs to his lawyer dad.

Dell not only serves as agent for top players but administers the Grand Prix tour, promotes rival tournaments, sells exhibitions and negotiates TV contracts which use him as a commentator.

Despite conflicts of interest, these massive entities have such clout that they can woo promoters all over the world.

Planters Wins Tourney Title

Babe Ruth League

Planters Bank 10

Everette's 2

Planters Bank, winners of the Babe Ruth League in the regular season, came back to down Everette's Pest Control in the finals of the league tournament for the championship Sunday night.

The game story was inadvertently omitted from yesterday's paper.

Planters got all it needed in the first inning of the game, scoring five times. With one down, Chris Jones reached on an error and stole second. He scored when Monty Atkinson reached on an error. Rodney Harris walked and stole second. Tyrone Jones also walked, loading the bases. Tom Taylor's grounder got Atkinson at home, but left the bases loaded. Greg Jones then doubled in both Harris and Jones, and Taylor and Jones both scored when Galloway was safe on an error.

Planters went on to add three in the second and one each in the fourth and fifth. Everette's two runs came in the fourth.

Planters, which had moved into the finals in the winner's bracket was forced to a second game Sunday when Everette's, the loser's bracket finalist, took the opening game, 5-4.

Jones led the Planters hitting with two, while no one had more than one for Everette's, which got only three off the hurling of Harris. The game wound up the season for the league.

Little League

North State 17

Tar Heel 16

The North State League dads got a lead-off home run from Mike Aldridge in the bottom of the sixth inning to gain a 17-16 victory over the Tar Heel fathers in the annual Pop's All-Star game during Moose Field Day for the Greenville Little Leagues.

The Tar Heel dads moved out with three runs in the first, as Don Parrott homered, but the North Staters rallied with six runs in the bottom of the frame, on homers by Aldridge, Bily Kuykendall and Dave Gordon. Lee Hemrick homered for a run by the Tar Heels in the second, while the North Staters got two more as Aldridge and Kuykendall again homered.

The Tar Heel pops rallied with five in the third, including homers by Chris Christopher and Hemrick, with the North State scoring twice. The fourth saw the Tar Heels scored six more times, with Jack Foley, Christopher and Hemrick again homering. The North State fathers added three with Billy West and Aldridge again getting homers.

The North Staters added three more in the fifth, for a 16-15 lead, with Dan Powers, Gordon and Mitchell Jones homering.

The Tar Heels tied it up in the top of the sixth on a Grant Jarman homer, but Aldridge's fourth homer of the day won it for the North State dads in the bottom of the sixth.

In the field day events, winners were selected in two age groups, 9-10, and 11-12.

Mitchell Jones of the Optimists won the 9-10 age group for base running, while Greg Willoughby of True Value Hardware took the 11-12 group.

Rives Mann of First Federal (9-10) and Wes Mackenzie of Pepsi-Cola (11-12) were the winners in infielder's throw for accuracy. William Gibb of Union Carbide (9-10) and Andy Everett of Moose (10-11) were the outfielder's throw for accuracy winners.

In the catcher's throw for accuracy, the winners were Jason Smith of Carroll & Associates (9-10) and Jeff Burnett of Union Carbide (11-12). Winning the pitcher's throw for accuracy were Mann (9-10) and Adam Nobles of Wellcome (11-12).

Jonathan Powers of Union Carbide took the 9-10 home run hitting contest, while Michael Cox of First Federal won the 11-12 age group. Drew Johnson of First Federal (9-10) and Tim Moore of Sportworld (11-12) were the winners in throwing for distance.

Gomez Recalls First Mid-Summer Classic

CHICAGO (AP) — The year was 1933 and baseball decided it would help Chicago celebrate its World's Fair with a unique idea, an All-Star Game matching the best players in the two leagues against each other.

The starting pitcher for the American League was Lefty Gomez, who had a distinctly southpaw view of the world. He reflected on that first game assignment on the eve of Wednesday night's 50th anniversary game in Comiskey Park.

"Let's see," noted Gomez. "Fifty years ago. I must have been five."

He was, in fact, 24 at the time, a flame-thrower who was a natural for the All-Star starting assignment. Before the game, Gomez said, American League Manager Connie Mack went over the National League lineup with his pitcher.

"Paul Waner, fastball hitter; Wally Berger, fastball hitter; Bill Terry, fastball hitter; Their first five guys were fastball hitters and I was a fastball pitcher. I told Mr. Mack that would be tough."

Gomez survived the problem, pitching three shutout innings and even delivered a single, driving in the first run of the game.

"He set back the designated hitter 40 years," said teammate Joe Cronin.

Gomez frowned.

"I only had one weakness at the plate," he said. "The pitched ball. When I got to first base, about 800 people fainted."

Cronin and Gomez were among 13 of the 15 survivors from the 1933 Game who accepted invitations to appear at the Golden Anniversary Game — Bill Terry and Woody English were unable to make it. The 13 spent their time telling tall tales on each other while the 1983 Stars prepared for this year's Game.

The current stars held workouts at Comiskey Park today after two oldtimers team spiced their reunion with a game of their own.

"I hope it doesn't go long," observed Gomez, "because rigor mortis might set in."

Dick Bartell, the National League shortstop, brought along his original glove, a beat-up model that looked like it had grabbed its share of ground balls. He pounded the pocket lovingly.

"The American Leaguers laughed when they saw it, but it was good to me," he said. "I caught more than I booted with with it and when it got in there, it wasn't easy to get out."

Ben Chapman, the AL left fielder and leadoff batter in 1933, glared at Cronin, who managed him for one year with Boston.

"They said I had a quick temper," Chapman said, "but he had a quick release. I batted .340 and he traded me the next year."

Prince Hal Schumacher, the only member of the four-man NL pitching staff who did not work in the 1933 Game, was asked what he remembered of the event.

"My most vivid memory," he said, "is that I was 50 years younger."

The NL will have considerably more pitching help Wednesday night than it did in the first game.

Manager Whitey Herzog selected a 10-man staff and six of the hurlers — Jesse Orosco of the New York Mets, Bill Dawley of Houston, Dave Dravecky of San Diego, Atlee Hammaker of San Francisco, Pascual Perez of Atlanta and Lee Smith of the Chicago Cubs — will be making their All-Star debuts. Montreal's Steve Rogers and Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, the NL's starting pitchers in the last two All-Star Games, both worked on Monday.

Harvey Kuenn, manager of the AL Stars, made his second roster change Monday, naming Milwaukee outfielder Ben Oglivie to the AL squad as a replacement for injured Reggie Jackson of California. Oglivie had finished fourth in the fan balloting. Earlier, Kuenn had substituted Baltimore reliever Tippy Martinez for Ron Guidry of New York on his eight-man pitching staff. One AL pitcher, Matt Young of Seattle, worked on Monday.

The Americans will be trying to snap an 11-game losing streak. They trail in the series 34-18-1 after once leading it, 12-4. Gomez, the winning pitcher for the AL in the first game, was asked what the modern American Leaguers were doing wrong.

He paused for a moment and then offered an answer.

"We're not getting enough runs," he decided.

A Review

'Pippin' First Rate Show

Take the exciting stage visuals of Gregory Buch's scenery, Gary Weathersbee's dramatic lighting, and costumes by Eaves-Brooks supervised by Patrice Alexander, add to that outstanding performances, and lavish it all on an award-winning book and musical score — and the end result is first rate entertainment at the East Carolina Summer Theater during this independence week.

"Pippin," with a script by Roger H. Hirson and music and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz, is a thoroughly 20th century feat of transforming a snippet of medieval history into the fabric of stage magic. Undoubtedly, King Charlemagne, gone from the scene these nearly 1,200 years, would heartily applaud this song and dance biography of his family's life, despite free-play with factual history and 1980's irreverences.

However that may be, the story structure of "Pippin" provides the narrator (the leading player) with a device to tie together a bouquet of episodes from the lives of the great Frankish ruler, his wife Fastrada, his sons Pippin and Lewis, his mother Berthe, and others close to the family, along with an assortment of peasants, soldiers, and dancing ladies.

Excellent performances abound in this first 1983 Summer Theater musical.

Babs Winn in the role of Fastrada, mother of Lewis and step mother to Pippin, is a beautiful, winsome, sexy schemer whose mind is a sharp match for her shapely body. Hers is the role that includes the show's best known song, "Spread a Little Sunshine." Veteran of several summer theater productions, Ms. Winn shows a great deal of acting, dancing, and singing talent around the stage in this prime role.

Scott Evans brings an appealing innocence and naivety to his interpretation of Pippin, heir apparent torn between his incurable idealism and the harsh reality of the world about him in his quest for finding meaning in life. He is both the born loser and ultimate winner, by far the most completely realized character in the show. On one or two occasions, his singing voice did not project quite well enough to be heard easily.

In the role of Lewis, Pippin's narcissistic half-brother, Donnie Thibodeaux exhibits a superabundance of erotic male vitality, effectively cancelling out the character's paucity of brainpower with a hyper projection of physicality.

Ayden-Griffon's Joey Pollock makes an impressive Charlemagne (or Charles, as he's named in the show). Pollock portrays the middle-aged king as a man sure of himself as the instrument of power confident in his own philosophy of what's right and wrong — and Pollock sings well too.

Latecomer to the near-end of the show Sharon Lawrence as the widow Catherine adds considerable luster to "Pippin," particularly in her wonderfully wistful number "I Guess I'll Miss The Man," and Susan Marrah-Minnerly makes a splendid transition from needle-point chair-bound grandma to the rollicking old lady who belts out fond remembrances of lusty times past in "No Time at All."

John Kuhn is effective as the tie-things-together Leading Player, more so in spoken than in singing roles. Other members of the cast give vibrant support as singers, dancers, peasants, soldiers — Aubrey Barnes, Scott Breitbart, Su-Su Corbitt, John Courie, Paula Johnson, Vince Kelly, Bob Sharpe, Patti Weeks, Jami Wilkerson, Melodie Wolford; Fred Johnson as the Field Marshal; and young Thomas Leahy as Theo, son of Catherine.

Other observations — a big share of credit for the pleasures of "Pippin" is due Mavis Ray for the splendid choreography that encompasses a wide variety of movements, dance styles and moods. The orchestra, directed by Michael Biagi, provides a precise, clean beat — only once or twice letting the volume override the singers.

Director Jay Fox confirms with "Pippin" that he's equally talented as director or actor. He maintains a spirited pace without missing out on focusing in on the subtle introspective moments which are important to the fullest measure of enjoyment from a show like "Pippin."

If "Pippin" is a weathervane for the next three shows, 1983 is going to be a memorable summer for the East Carolina Summer Theater.

Good Intentions Didn't Pay Off

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Singer Brenda Lee lent her support to a center for the handicapped for the Fourth of July, but despite her good intentions, it didn't pay off.

Ms. Lee, who recorded the hit "I'm Sorry" in 1956, headlined a benefit Monday for the Montgomery Therapeutic Center for the handicapped. In an interview before her performance, she said it was a chance to help out "those less able" than herself.

But for the center, the event was disappointing.

"We didn't make a dime for the handicapped center, not a dime," said Carol Braswell, jamboree organizer and aquatic director at the center.

"We have to raise $25,000 a year," Ms. Braswell said. "We just did not get the publicity."

Poverty Inspired Invention In NBC News Overnight's Year

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For "NBC News Overnight," which celebrates its first birthday tonight, poverty is the mother of invention.

"We had no corners to cut," says Cheryl Gould, the late-night broadcast's senior producer. "We were left with a $1.98 news, so we had to substitute creativity for money."

Without the budget to commission stories from NBC correspondents, the breezy, literate "Overnight" has found fresh ways to tell the same old stories, using reports from affiliates, plugging into foreign broadcasts, patching together outtakes from "Nightly News" and doing video-and-music montages.

"People think of us as poor cousins," says Ms. Gould. "We get hand-me-downs and leftovers and turn them into good casseroles."

Linda Ellerbee, the show's earthy and uncoiffed co-anchor, says: "This is a video-exchange club. We're very good as scavengers." So, recently, "Overnight" showed its audience of news junkies, late-shift workers and nursing mothers these pieces: How Polish TV covered the pope's visit, a British Broadcasting Corp. report from Africa and, from a Tucson affiliate, how the vistas from an Arizona observatory have been impaired by the big-city lights.

Some correspondents, when doing stories for other NBC broadcasts, will sometimes remember "Overnight." It's an opportunity to experiment, be more analytical and produce longer pieces. For example, a crew at Cape Canaveral, doing daily news coverage, shot pictures of the rusty, out-of-work launch pads specifically for "Overnight."

"We help people be more creative," says executive producer Deborah Johnson.

In style and content, "Overnight" relishes its banner as the Not-Ready-for-Prime-Time News. Ms. Johnson says the lead story in its opening news summary often differs from the one on "Nightly News."

"It's better when we're different," she says, cherishing the time her top story was the final segment on "Nightly News," and vice versa. "We're a little more offbeat."

That's attributable to the broadcast starting at 1:30 a.m. EDT, the sedentary ways of its audience and the lighter tone of co-anchors Bill Schechner and Ms. Ellerbee. "We try to be more interpretative and take more leeway," says Schechner.

And have more fun. "We're the only unit at NBC where people go around smiling," says Ms. Ellerbee. "We're serious about what we do, not solemn."

If you're up late watching "Overnight," you've obviously chosen to be there. "We assume it's an adult audience, and they have at least as much sense as we do," says Ms. Ellerbee. "We can be more subtle. We can assume that they have prior knowledge and read the newspapers."

The anchors, who write their own copy and take turns with a daily essay, receive viewer mail that is legible, articulate and rational. Much of it comes from people who say they've never written to a TV show before. "If you allow people into your homes at that hour, you react to them personally," says Ms. Johnson.

The "Overnight" newsroom has a very casual, chummy atmosphere. Balloons and stuffed animals cover the desks, bowls of popcorn shuttle back and forth and, last week, the big news in the newsroom was the arrival of two computer word processors.

"Maybe we can teach this thing to write," said Ms. Ellerbee. "Or play Donkey Kong," added Schechner.

The staff of "Overnight" is dominated by women, and it's unique in network newscasts to have women serving as executive and senior producers. Schechner feels this contributes to the show's togetherness.

"It's easier for us to express feelings that we wouldn't if we all were the same sex," he says. "It's easier to be open and soft, and I like that."

"Our family spirit also has a lot to do with the late hour," says Ms. Gould. "We're all in this bunker together."

Tar Heels Mark Independence Day In Varied Ways

By The Associated Press
A blistering sun did not prevent thousands of North Carolinians from celebrating Independence Day with traditional parades, picnics, fireworks and sporting events from mudslinging to skydiving.

In Kernersville, officials had decided there wasn't enough interest to have a parade. But George Russell Wilson, a 39-year-old cancer patient, had promised his 94-year-old grandmother, Mamie Heath, that she'd see a parade.

So, Wilson took a newspaper ad and invited all comers, with the lone stipulation that he be in the lead car. The result was the town's largest parade in 30 years.

Greensboro celebrated its 175th birthday Monday as the nation celebrated its 207th. The festivities included a parade, games and a look-alike contest with prizes awarded to those looking the most like Gen. Nathaniel Greene, Dolly Madison, O. Henry and other figures from Greensboro's past.

In the Old Salem section of Winston-Salem, the British ambassador to the United States, Sir Oliver Wright, spoke at a celebration honoring the 200th anniversary of July Fourth festivities by Moravian settlers.

Wright said "the British are willing to let bygones be bygones," and "Relations between nations are ultimately a matter of relations between people."

"To keep peace, all it needs is all the effort, all the sweat, all the sense of commitment and yes, all the sense of love for other people," he said.

Eleanor Lightner, dressed in a traditional flowing dress and ruffled cap, said the celebration began when peace was announced between England and the United States in 1783.

"The Moravians went one step further and made it a day of thanksgiving," she said.

The state Senate took the day off. But the House convened for its regular Monday evening session and held a special ceremony to honor America's veterans.

Rep. Tom Womble, D-Forsyth, who led the ceremony, asked his House colleagues who had served in World Wars I and II, the Korean War or the Vietnam War to stand, along with those who had lost loved ones in any of the wars. Forty-three of the 108 representatives present rose.

"We recognize those persons who have made it possible for us to convene in a free land," said Womble. "We are able to do this because you've done a great deal ... endured strict discipline, hardship at times, boredom at times and real danger at other (times)."

After a moment of silence, the lawmakers recited the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag.

In Sparta, the Blue Ridge Mountain Fair included a flea market, parade, mudslinging and bluegrass music. In Raleigh, a free celebration at the State Fairgrounds featured watermelon, music and a 110-foot-long submarine sandwich.

Sky-diving and wheat threshing were part of the 13th annual Fly-in and Thresher's Reunion at Denton International Airport in Davidson County. And singer Mike Cross appeared in Chapel Hill's Fourth of July celebration at the University of North Carolina.

In Durham, the 1983 Festival for the Eno at Eno River Park concluded with profits to be used to buy more land for the park, which covers most of 20 miles of the river through Durham and Orange counties.

In Marion, Bruce Edwards became queen for a day when he wowed the crowd at the town's first male beauty contest in his red minidress with blue pantyhose "and a girdle."

In Marshall, Madison Countians enjoyed their annual rodeo while feasting on bluegrass and barbecue.

In Columbus, contestants chased greased pigs and rolled barrels before tapping their toes at a street dance like those scheduled in dozens of towns from Lake Lure to Murphy.

In Franklin, the nation's oldest wagon train completed its 26th annual trip when 74 wagons and hundreds of horseback riders rode into town. The trip began on June 27 some 118 miles away in Andrews.

In Robinsonville, about 5,000 people attended the final day of the first Great Smoky Mountains Heritage Festival, a four-day real mountain folk-life event.

Says Boys And Girls Going Their Separate Ways In Scouting Field

By MARIO FOX
Associated Press Writer
KANANASKIS COUNTRY, Alberta (AP) — One of every 20 people arriving for the 15th World Scout Jamboree is female, but the grandson of the movement's founder sees boys and girls once again going their separate ways in scouting.

"Social morals go in circles. Morality is coming back and, equally, segregation (of boys and girls) is coming back again," Lord Robert Baden-Powell said Monday. Baden-Powell, 46, whose grandfather founded scouting in 1908, heads a coeducational troop in his hometown of Guilford, England.

"In Europe, now, I think, young people want to be segregated," he said. "It's going the other way, and the rest will catch up with Europe on this."

Baden-Powell said his grandfather was "shocked at seeing the first troop of girl scouts, because it never occurred to him that little girls would want to play the game of scouts."

While troops in the United States and Canada generally are not mixed, several countries sent coeducational delegations.

About half the 13,600 scouts registered for the jamboree had arrived by late Monday in this rugged country in the Canadian Rockies, about 50 miles west of Calgary, and the rest were expected today.

In preparation for Wednesday's ceremonial opening, scouts set up tents and pursued the jamboree tradition of trading patches identifying their home nations.

They seemed oblivious to some political maneuvering behind the scenes. Taiwan abruptly dropped its plans to send 20 scouts because Canada, the host nation, recognizes the People's Republic of China as the only China.

Because of political tensions at home, efforts also were made to separate Israeli and Arab tent sites and those of Northern Ireland from other United Kingdom delegations.

While Baden-Powell said he sympathized with jamboree organizers trying to reduce possible friction, he believed children "couldn't care less" about adult politics.

The founder would not have fought boy-girl scout troops, nor would he have been surprised that politics sometimes interfered with scouting, Baden-Powell said.

On a trip to pre-revolutionary Russia, the movement's founder saw how the czar used scouts as an arm of government, his grandson said.

Baden-Powell's lordship was given first to his grandfather for his scouting work and has been passed from generation to generation. All three generations have been active in scouting.

"Given the choice, I would rather not have the name (title), because it is so much responsibility. I just have so much time and my business takes me out of the country so much," he said.

Baden-Powell, a currency broker, said, nonetheless, that on reading his grandfather's book, "Scouting for Boys," "I wanted to run out of the house and start up a scout troop right out."

The first Lord Baden-Powell, a British army officer and hero of the Boer War, "had an idea of how boys could help themselves," his grandson said. "He realized that if you had young people growing up with adult responsibilities, they could help themselves tremendously."

Models Wage Naval Battles

GIG HARBOR, Wash. (AP) — When members of the North American Scale Warship Combat Club meet to battle at sea, they do more than maneuver radio-controlled model ships. They fire real shot — BB shot, that is.

"It's a heck of a lot of fun," said Paul Fleming of Gig Harbor, whose 9-month-old Gig Harbor club is one of four in the Puget Sound area.

On bi-monthly maneuvers, members sail radio-controlled scale models of World War II vessels out on a pond or lake.

Fleming said Sunday that most maneuvers pit Allied forces against the Axis, and the war games are scored on an elaborate point system.

Every time the BBs fired from miniature guns hit a ship's superstructure, the operator chalks up 5 points. Hitting a gun turret is worth 25 points, hitting the sides above the waterline is 20 points and a hit below the waterline adds 100 points.

A sunken ship is worth 1,000 points, while surrender is worth 3,000.

Underwater mines — actually balloons anchored beneath the water's surface — add another degree of uncertainty to the battles.

An opponent on the other side of the pond can't see the balloons and every ship is required to carry a thumbtack on the bow, just below the waterline.

"When you hit one, the balloon sends about a gallon of water into the air," Fleming said, "and you have to immediately beach your boat and stop firing."

The battles can decimate the models and Fleming said some club members participate only in non-destructive bi-monthly fleet maneuvers to spare the ships they've spent hours crafting.

Ken Clary, of Tacoma, said he builds his models with their possible destruction in mind.

"Some of the boats are incredible," Clary said. "Some of these guys are going to surely cry when they get blown up."

In assembling their battle fleets, each team works with 20 "combat factor" points. A battleship is eight points, a heavy cruiser four points, and a destroyer two.

Clary said the clubs often use the same strategies and maneuvers used by the Navy when recreating battles. Sometimes, they try to change history.

Fleming is working on a model of the British battleship Hood, which went under during a World War II encounter with Germany's Bismark.

"This year, the Hood will sink the Bismark," he said. "I guarantee you."

However, at last year's national competition in Texas, another Hood was sunk in less than two minutes.

Fleming said the Texas group, the R-C Combat Club, was the first to organize in the country. Such groups now have 180 members nationwide, he said.

Offer Dating Large Women

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They're more sensuous. They're more womanly. To some men, they're even more of a challenge.

That's why a dating service for big women is doing a hefty business, according to Mary Taylor, owner of La Grande Personne. And she said about half her 400 clients are slender men.

"Of course, a lot of men won't look twice at large women, but a lot of men admire them. They find them more sensuous," Ms. Taylor said.

"There is a certain breed of man who thinks if a woman is a challenge, a big woman is a bigger challenge," said Linda MacDonagh, 35, a client with a size 22 figure.

While 99 percent of female members are 20 to 100 pounds overweight, 95 percent of the men are normal weight, Ms. Taylor said.

One male client, Ken Mayer, 36, who carries 180 pounds on a 5-11 frame, had his own reasons for being attracted to larger women: "I find them more appealing from a purely physical point of view. They are more womanly," he said.

Plane Crashes In Wake County

FUQUAY-VARINA, N.C. (AP) — A single-engine airplane crashed today in southern Wake County, seriously injuring the pilot, officials said.

The plane went down near Kennebec Airport off N.C. 55 south of Fuquay-Varina about 11 a.m. Wake County deputies identified the pilot as Harlan Veehan, but did not know his age or hometown.

The pilot was taken to Good Hope Hospital in Erwin by the Angier rescue squad. Deputies said he was listed in serious condition, but hospital officials refused to comment.

A witness said the plane circled the area after the pilot had been practicing landings and made several loops. At the top of one loop, the engine stalled and the plane slammed onto a dirt road.

50 Years of All-Star Baseball

Tomorrow baseball's superstars are scheduled to meet in Chicago for the 1983 All-Star Game. The first All-Star Game was played on July 6, 1933 — 50 years ago — also in Chicago. The game was held in conjunction with the Century of Progress World's Fair in that city, and the money went to provide pensions for professional baseball players. Fans loved seeing the best players on the same diamond. The star of that first All-Star contest was the legendary Babe Ruth of the American League team, managed by Connie Mack. The Babe's two-run homer in the clutch gave the American League a 4-2 victory. Since then, the National League has won nearly twice as many All-Star games.

DO YOU KNOW—In 1982, who managed the winning All-Star team?

MONDAY'S ANSWER—"Semper Fidelis" means "Always faithful."

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 6, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An opportunity is now afforded you to make some long-range plans where your future security is concerned. You can add to this during the daytime. Utilize charm.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You find new ways of improving your property and also advancing more quickly in career matters. Get started early.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Important you put your best foot forward with others today whom you want in your life in the days ahead. A personal goal can be reached.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get out and see that expert who can give you the advice you need at this time to get ahead faster in career affairs.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have an opportunity now to do something that will make you more important in the community in which you dwell.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find the new outlets in which you can place your energies that are just your cup of tea and make progress. Make new acquaintances.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day to plan that trip you have in mind and get your wardrobe in order. Then get your business affairs in order.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You wish to get all those responsibilities out of the way, so get a wiggle on and do just that. Strive for more peace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A dynamic associate has a good plan for the future, so be sure to co-operate with him. Discuss other deals as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have to be steadfast in that work you have agreed to do if you are to gain the right benefits from it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Some little gift for the one you love who is so devoted would be wise. Make sure you handle business matters wisely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get those repairs made to your home that family have been harping about and gain more harmony there. Take it easy tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be more thoughtful of those who work or dwell with you and the days ahead can be easier and more profitable. Take little trips.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to know all about the value of property, stocks, bonds, government certificates, etc. so slant the education along such lines and your progeny could become quite a financial wizard. Stress religion and sports.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Overseas Marines Celebrated Fourth

By CHRISTIAN BUSTANI Associated Press Writer BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The 1,200 U.S. Marines from Camp Lejeune, N.C., in the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon celebrated Independence Day with traditional barbecues and a 54-mile "double marathon."

Hamburgers and cheeseburgers, along with "a couple of beers and sodas," were served to the Marines after the ceremony, said Capt. Mike Haskell, 33, from Westborough, Mass., the unit spokesman.

Thirty-six Marines carried U.S. and Lebanese flags during the run around the red sand roads at the international airport south of Beirut, where most of the Marines are stationed. The normal marathon course is 26 miles and 385 yards.

"Tell them (the Marines) that their countrymen are grateful," President Reagan told the soldiers in a July 4 message. "Tell them that we stand behind them. Tell them that we are proud of our colors," the President's message said.

The current Marine force, the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit, has been in Lebanon since May. The two months have been "fairly calm and interesting," said Lance Corporal Eric Sturghill, 22, of Chicago. "It's better than I thought from reading the newspapers. Of course, they say it can be very easy to get into problems here, but I don't worry. It's been OK till now."

One Marine has been killed and five wounded in incidents since the American peacekeeping force was assigned to Beirut last fall. There have been no violent incidents involving the present unit.

Sailors aboard the U.S. 6th Fleet flotilla that is supporting the Marines on shore held their Independence Day celebrations Sunday. With hundreds of guests invited aboard the ships off Beirut, the Navy staged a small boat regatta as well as barbecues and a performance by a Lebanese folklore group.

The 24th Marine Amphibious Unit and the Navy flotilla are here on a six-month assignment, twice as long as previous tours by U.S. peacekeeping units.

TO SAVE FORESTS

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Community Commission has proposed an $89 million program to save forests from fire and acid rain over the next five years.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — STONE MASON'S COLLECTION OF FINE ORNAMENTS: BRICK-A-BRACK?

Today's Cryptiquip clue: E equals P.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Three of ♦.

There are those who preempt on very weak hands in the belief that they should do all they can to interfere with the enemy auction. But that tactic can backfire — it can sometimes allow declarer to bring home his contract because the preemptive bid has revealed a defender's hand.

West could have been sentenced for attempted robbery because of his light opening bid. It did not prevent his opponents from reaching their spade slam. North made a takeout double and then went straight to slam when South jumped to four spades in response.

West led a low club, and it was obviously a singleton. It was also the only lead to give declarer a problem — with any other attack, declarer could have drawn trumps, stripped the red suits from his hand and dummy, and then ended East by running a club to one of East's honors.

It might seem that declarer must now lose two club tricks, but he found an ingenious method of landing his slam. He won the ace of clubs and drew two rounds of trumps. Next came the ace-king of hearts, sluffing two clubs from dummy, and a club ruff. Since West was now marked with nothing but seven diamonds in his hand, the coup de grace was administered.

Declarer cashed the high diamonds, discarding a club from hand, and then continued with the table's remaining diamond. However, instead of ruffing this trick, he sluffed another club from the closed hand.

West won the trick, but he did not relish having the lead. On his forced diamond return, declarer ruffed on the board while getting rid of the last club from his hand. So he lost only a diamond trick, and the slam was home.

Arrested After Speed Chase

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Wilmington man was arrested Monday after leading police on a chase through southwestern Durham, officials said.

Three public safety cars were damaged and one officer required surgery to mend a cut on the arm, officials said.

An 18-year-old man was arrested, but police said they had not determined what they would charge him with. A Durham County magistrate said the man would be placed in the Durham County Jail under a $50,000 bond.

Police received a call about 1:30 a.m. that Chapel Hill officers were chasing a person toward Durham on Chapel Hill Boulevard. Durham officers picked up the chase near the city limits and continued into the city on the boulevard.

Police said the man ran police cars and passenger cars off the road several times.

Bill To Notify DA's When Inmates Near Release

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — District attorneys who complain they aren't notified when criminals they prosecuted become eligible for parole would get their wish under a bill approved by the state House.

By a 94-11 vote, the House passed Monday and sent to the Senate a bill requiring that the N.C. Parole Commission inform the DA when any inmate becomes eligible for release.

Currently, the commission notifies the district attorney only when an inmate sentenced to longer than 18 months is being considered for parole before serving half his term.

That policy allows the quiet release of too many criminals, said Rep. Charles Woodard, D-Wayne.

"I think DAs need to be notified because they represent the pulse of the people," said Woodard. "What they choose to do about it is up to them. They could get the papers to report that so-and-so is up for parole and anyone opposing it should contact the parole commission, or they could do nothing. I just want them to know."

Woodard said his bill was inspired by a Wayne County case of a man convicted of shooting and seriously wounding a woman as she prayed before a church altar, then murdering a man at a service station. Sentenced to life imprisonment plus 10 years in 1970, he became eligible for parole last year without the knowledge of District Attorney Donald M. Jacobs, Woodard said.

Several legislators spoke in support of the bill and recounted similar cases in the counties they represent.

Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, led opposition to the bill, saying local pressure often makes it hard for the inmate to get a fair hearing before the parole commission.

Debate on the bill highlighted the House calendar for the Fourth of July session. The Senate didn't meet and planned no action before 6 p.m. today, while the House scheduled a full day of committee meetings and a regular session for today. In other legislative action:

Shopping Carts

The House approved 101-3 a bill making theft of store shopping carts illegal and returned it to the Senate for concurrence with an amendment.

By a vote of 80-23, the House voted to soften the punishment from $500 or six months in prison to $100 or 30 days behind bars.

Rep. Frank Ballance, D-Warren, said he considered the original punishment "a bit heavy for this type of offense."

But Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham, said the fines were meant to deter what he called a growing problem.

Corolla Access

A resolution urging the state to solve a controversial problem regarding access to the Outer Banks hamlet of Corolla was approved 96-0 by the House.

The resolution is a watered-down version of a Senate bill that originally would have incorporated Corolla in an effort to open a private road that for years served as an important link for Outer Banks residents, said Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare.

In recent years, the road was acquired by a private landowner who blocked it off and hired armed guards to protect the entrance, he said.

The resolution "sends a strong message to the state Department of Transportation to ... acquire what is necessary to provide access ...," said Evans.

Construction

A bill that would have required some home builders to be licensed as general contractors drew such heavy fire that its floor manager, Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, moved that it be sent back to committee. The House complied, 57-44.

Under the bill, anyone building more than two residences a year costing more than $30,000 must be a licensed contractor.

Lancaster said the bill tightens a loophole in a 1981 law that excluded from the definition of "general contractor" people, firms or corporations that construct buildings on their own land for their own use.

"This bill would put out of business all the small entrepreneurs ... who have been building three, four, or five houses at fairly low markups," said Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe.

Coltrane

The House approved 105-0 and sent to the Senate a resolution honoring the life of John Coltrane, a jazz musician who was born in Hamlet in 1926, raised in High Point and died in 1967.

Rep. Sidney Locks, D-Robeson, called Coltrane a "legendary native son of North Carolina" who "spread joy and jubilation ... to millions."

Rep. Dorothy Burnley, R-Guilford, played two tape recordings of Coltrane's music and hailed him as a man who "had the ability, man or woman, black or white, to reach your soul."

Public Health

A bill revising and updating North Carolina's public health laws that carries a controversial amendment was approved on its final reading 105-2 and returned to the Senate for concurrence.

Last week, an amendment was attached to the bill that repeals a 1981 provision barring North Carolina from enacting any hazardous-waste laws more strict than federal standards.

The move was an effort to force Senate action on a House bill that would do the same thing but is stalled in a Senate committee.

Time Shares

A bill regulating time shares won final House approval 103-0 and was sent to the Senate.

Time shares refers to the practice of buying partial ownership in a vacation home and using it for certain times each year. It's said to be gaining popularity as people seek to secure a beach resort home without paying the full price of a cottage or condominium.

Decided Voters Favor Edmisten

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — More than half the registered voters surveyed by The Charlotte Observer said they have not yet decided on a favorite candidate for governor in 1984.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten was preferred by 14 percent of the 587 people surveyed in the Carolinas Poll. The Observer reported Monday, but 52 percent said they were undecided. Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox was second with 9 percent.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram was third with 6 percent, followed by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green with 5 percent. All four men are Democrats.

Other potential candidates and their percentages include former Republican state Sen. Bev Lake, 3 percent; former Democratic state Rep. Tom Gilmore, 2 percent; former Superior Court Judge Lacy Thornburg, a Democrat, 1 percent; former Democratic Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth, 1 percent; and state Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, less than 0.5 percent.

U.S. Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., polled 3 percent, but Rose announced last week he would not run for governor.

Edmisten, Gilmore, Knox and Thornburg have announced for the Democratic nomination.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Bill Cobey, the Republican who lost to Green in 1980 and to 4th District Rep. Ike Andrews, D-N.C., in 1982, polled 12 percent, compared with 6 percent for former House Speaker Carl Stewart, a Democrat. Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, got 4 percent. None has announced for office yet.

The Observer said 71 percent of those surveyed said they didn't know who would make the best lieutenant governor. For attorney general, 79 percent said they were undecided.

The poll results are based on telephone interviews conducted Jun 6-16 by the marketing research department of Knight Publishing Co., publisher of The Observer. The survey has a margin of error of plus or minus 4.1 percent.

The survey was completed before Green's June 20 indictment by a Wake County grand jury on charges of bribery and conspiracy to take bribes.

Weekend Traffic Safer Than Hoped

By The Associated Press

The Fourth of July weekend proved safer than predicted with six people killed in traffic accidents on North Carolina roads, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

Last month, the North Carolina State Motor Club predicted that 15 people would die and 800 would be injured on Tar Heel highways during the weekend.

David Taylor Zekonis, 20, and Paul William Zekonis, 63, both of Monroe, died Saturday morning on U.S. 74 in Robeson County when the car they were riding was struck by another car driving left of the center line, state troopers said. Three people were injured in the accident 8 miles west of Lumberton.

A motorcycle accident claimed the life of Howard Wayne Burkhardt, 24, of Statesville. The cycle he was riding Sunday afternoon on Allen Ford Road 6 miles west of Statesville went out of control and overturned several times.

Connie Hayes Smith, 24, of Lumberton, was killed at 11:50 p.m. Saturday when the car she was driving along a rural road 10 miles south of her hometown hit a tree.

Dierdra Long Thweatt, 39, of Cameron, died when her car left a rural road six miles north of Southern Pines and struck a tree about 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

Leonard Elton Tripp, 41, of Dunn, died Sunday when he lost control of his motor cycle about 8:40 p.m. and crashed down an embankment on RPR 1779, one mile south of Erwin, troopers said.

The deaths raised the 1983 state traffic toll to 560, compared with 577 a year ago.

Cuba Offering Scholarships

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Cuba will grant 300 full scholarships to students from the Caribbean area for the 1983-84 academic year, Ambassador Lazaro Cabezaz Gonzales said.

Cuba has trained 938 students from Caribbean countries since 1979, nearly 100 of them from Guyana. Scholarships for the upcoming academic year will also go to students from Dominica, Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, Barbados and Trinidad-Tobago, the ambassador said Sunday.

The scholarships will be offered in nutrition and food technology, agricultural engineering, sugar technology and medicine, Cabezaz Gonzales said.

He added that Cuba will train a total of 5,680 foreign students under its scholarship program this year.

Play Your Cards Right And Stay Ahead Of The Game.

For most Americans today, the Age of Plastic has arrived. But then, so has the Fee System. For years, Diners Club, American Express and other cards have charged fees. Now many banks—including us—have announced card fees.

look at the chart on the left. With one of our cards for credit and one for banking, you'll get more convenience than you can with any four or five credit cards.

Second, in most cases we'll match the credit you get now with several cards in one card. (Say your limit is $1,000 on Visa, $1,000 on MasterCard. We'll give you a $2,000 limit on one and save you $18 a year in fees.)

Third, both our new World Card and Visa offer all the travel convenience of Diners Club and American Express. So, if you carry both of those cards, we can save you $40 to $55 a year in fees.

Finally, if you'd rather not use credit, you can use Checkmate, the plastic check.

At over 3 1/2 million places, it's a lot easier than paper checks.

So, for any situation, we have a card that works. Plus something else most banks don't have.

The First 24-Hour Banking Coast-To-Coast.

With the new Plus System, you can use any of our cards to bank 24 hours a day at machines all over the country.

So, any time of day, almost anywhere you're traveling, you'll never be far away from your money.
