Most Counties Expected Apply Tax Law

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Local government representatives predict that county commissioners will make quick use of a law enacted Thursday by the General Assembly authorizing a one-half cent sales tax increase.

The tax could generate $104.2 million this fiscal year and $135.4 million in 1984-85 for public school buildings, water and sewer projects and other capital spending needs. The law also clears the way for a motel room tax in five counties and three cities.

County commissioners may levy the tax increase immediately or they may put the question to voters in a referendum.

Ron Aycock, executive director of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, said the soonest counties could implement the tax increase probably would be Oct. 1.

He said he expects about 25 counties to levy the higher tax by then. Aycock said some of the counties that already have expressed interest in raising the tax are Forsyth, Wake, Richmond, Craven, Mitchell and Alleghany.

"By the time the General Assembly gets back (for the short 1984 session) at least 50 counties may have the tax," Aycock estimated.

"I can't imagine a single board of education that doesn't go to its commissioners and seek the half penny," said Gene Causby, executive director of the N.C. School Boards Association.

He predicted that commissioners may be sympathetic to the appeals because school board members are likely to be joined in their requests by industry representatives and chambers of commerce that want money to expand water and sewer facilities.

More than 100 cities in the state have had to hold off new industry because of limited water and sewer facilities.

The bill enacted Thursday was the result of a joint conference committee. The House voted 72-18 and the Senate voted 31-8 to approve the bill.

The compromise came from a House bill to give counties authority to raise the tax and use the money without restrictions and a Senate bill to raise the tax statewide and earmark all the money for schools or water and sewer projects.

Money generated by the one-half cent tax increase will be distributed according to population. Money from the existing 1 cent local sales tax is returned to the place where it was collected, a method which benefits large, metropolitan areas.

Under the new law, counties must use at least 40 percent of the additional revenue for public school buildings for the first five years and cities must earmark 40 percent for water and sewer projects. Those percentages drop to 30 percent for the following five years and then they are phased out completely.

Cities with a population of more than 75,000 could spend up to 20 percent of the revenue on housing programs.

Any local government could petition the state Local Government Commission to waive the percentages if local needs do not fit within the outlined categories.

In addition, Mecklenburg County may levy a 3 percent room tax. The counties of Buncombe, Haywood, New Hanover and Forsyth and the cities of Ocean Isle Beach, Topsail Beach and Surf City may levy room taxes of up to 2 percent.

Tax Law Pleases Gaskins

Charles Gaskins, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, expressed pleasure today that the General Assembly has approved a half-cent sales tax increase to benefit local governments.

"If the people want to vote for it, that certainly would be welcome," Gaskins said. "Local governments truly need some help in tax revenues other than property taxes."

Under the new law, counties could impose the tax after holding a public hearing or following approval of the proposition in a referendum.

Part of the revenue from the half-cent increase would be earmarked for local school construction on the county level, while part of the funds received by municipalities would go for water and sewer projects.

Saying the additional revenue could be "placed to very good use in the schools," Gaskins said, "In my opinion, the Board of Commissioners would call for a referendum. I say that in light of the fact that, so far as possible, the board has always let folks vote on matters such as this. The last 1 percent sales tax resulted from a referendum of the people."

County Manager Reginald Gray said if all 100 counties would levy the tax, local governments in Pitt would receive between $2.02 million and $2.04 million a year from the half-cent increase.

Based on population, Gray estimated the county would receive 63.2 percent of the total, while the city of Greenville would get about 25.2 percent. Some other towns' shares would include:

3.1 percent for Ayden, 1.3 percent for Bethel, 3.3 percent for Farmville, 1.3 percent for Grifton, .28 percent for Simpson and 1.4 percent for Winterville.

Rate Of Inflation Holds At 0.2 Percent In June

By The Associated Press
Consumer prices rose 0.2 percent in June, holding inflation for the first half of 1983 to an annual rate of 2.9 percent, the Labor Department said today.

Inflation was restrained by the steepest decline in food prices in seven years, a drop of 0.3 percent in June.

Continued moderation of the Consumer Price Index gave economists fresh evidence that inflation for all of this year could match or fall below the 3.9 percent rate of last year, when recession held price increases to the lowest level in a decade. For the 12 months ended in June, consumer prices rose 2.6 percent.

Meanwhile, the economy gave signs of increased vigor.

The number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits fell to a two-year low in early July after the economy surged ahead at an 8.7 percent annual rate in the second quarter, the government said Thursday.

The second-quarter increase in economic activity was more than triple the 2.6 percent annual rate in the first quarter, according to the Commerce Department report on the Gross National Product, which is a measure of the nation's total output of goods and services after adjustment for inflation.

"The economy is growing with more vigor than most economists predicted and this heartens us," President Reagan told a news conference. "Vigorous growth is the surest route to more jobs, declining deficits and a future filled with opportunity for all our people."

Jerry Jasinski, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers, said the "stunning ...

figures leave us a little breathless."

Martin Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said the GNP report is a good sign but warned that growth probably will not continue at that rate over a long period.

"A growth spurt at this pace is a welcome indication that the recovery is on track," Feldstein said in a statement. "Growth at this speed is typical of this phase of the recovery ... Of course, expansion at the recent rate cannot be expected to continue for more than a few quarters."

And Paul Volcker, apparently headed for a second term as Federal Reserve Board Chairman, warned

Thursday that record high federal budget deficits still pose a threat to a lasting recovery.

The recovery "doesn't have enough of an effect to eliminate the budget deficit problem, certainly for fiscal year 1984," which begins Oct. 1, Volcker told the Senate Banking Committee.

Later, the committee approved Volcker's reappointment as Fed chairman and sent it to the full Senate, where approval also is expected. Some 381,000 people filed initial applications for basic, 26-week, state-paid benefits in the week ended July 9, the Labor Department said. That was down from the 392,000 of the previous week, and it was the least since the 381,100 of the last week of May 1981.

Treacherous Thunderstorm Rolls Over County

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Vicious lightning, heavy thunder and hail rattled many Pitt County residents out of bed in the wee hours today as a treacherous thunderstorm moved through the area, bringing just enough rain to settle the dust.

According to Malcolm Green, superintendent of the Greenville Utilities' Electrical Department, the utility system "took a beating" from the lightning.

"We had some really heavy lightning strikes throughout the system," he said, "some so heavy they destroyed a number of lightning arresters."

Green said a lightning arrester at the East Carolina University Medical School was demolished by sharp lightning, taking out one of GUC's circuits for about an hour and a half.

"An arrester near Wachovia Computer Center was also blown away and took out a circuit that serves Carolina East Mall for a while," he said. "We also had some small circuits on the west side of town (Greenville) that were out around 30 minutes."

Another storm in the southeastern part of the county, near Clayroot, caused what Green said were the system's largest outages. "We had many fuses blown by lightning there," he said.

"Other than the big lightning strikes we had lots of scattered outages from wind debris and trees on lines," he said.

Green said GUC's switchboard was jammed, preventing many customers from reporting outages. "We received the first call at 1:56 a.m. and finished up about 8 a.m.," he said.

Strong wind, unofficially clocked at 28 mph, also caused scattered damage across the county during the storm, including destruction of a plate glass window at Taff Office Equipment Co. in Greenville. No official estimate of damage was available from the company.

The Department of Transportation this morning was removing two large trees that were blown into the road

ELISHA DOUGLAS BOOK?

I like your Strength for Today column so much and would like to know if this man has written any books. How can I find out.

We gave you the address of the features syndicate that supplies us this column. We also suggested that you call either a public library or a book store and ask them to check by author in Books in Print. This is probably the best way to discover whether there is a book by Elisha Douglas available. If there is, you can go ahead and have a local bookstore order it for you, if you like.

Couples Can Profit From Marital Tips

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: After you published 10 tips for brides on how to have a successful marriage, a man requested 10 tips on how to be a good husband, and you accommodated him.

A few years ago, I clipped the enclosed "Five Tips for a Happy Marriage" — author unknown. I hope you think they're worth sharing.

JULIE IN LONG BEACH

DEAR JULIE: I do. And here they are:

1. Look not for perfection in your mate. You will not find it and it's just as well. Living with a saint could be very tiresome.

2. Let your love be stronger than your hate or anger.

3. Learn the wisdom of compromise, for it is better to bend a little than to break.

4. Believe the best rather than the worst. People have a way of living up or down to your opinion of them.

5. Remember that true friendship is the basis of any lasting relationship. The person you choose to marry is deserving of the courtesies and kindnesses you bestow on your friends.

P.S. I am almost reluctant to ask the author to come forward. Lately when I have published an unsigned piece and asked the author to come forward, an alarming number of people have claimed authorship. This is baffling and discouraging. Whatever happened to integrity?

DEAR ABBY: It's surprising how few people know that infants cry during airplane take-offs and landings because they are in severe pain due to the change in air pressure.

Adults know enough to swallow to clear the passage of the eustachian tube, but infants do not.

If mothers would encourage infants to nurse (or suck on something — even a finger), it would alleviate the pain. Some flight attendants suggest this to passengers when they board with infants. I wish all would.

CONCERNED M.D.

DEAR CONCERNED: Thanks for a helpful tip.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I want to know if our brother is "James David Collins, the third." Our grandfather's name was James Edward Collins, and his grandfather was James Andrew Collins. Our father is Dennis James Collins.

Is our brother correct in thinking that he is a "third"? Or is our mother correct in thinking he is not? Abby, please spell out in your column when a man is a second and third. We are all in disagreement here.

PERPLEXED APLENTY

DEAR PERPLEXED: If John Charles Jones is named after his father, who is John Charles Jones Jr., he would be John Charles Jones III.

A child named after his cousin, uncle or grandfather would be "the second." Again, the identical name must be used. Your mother is correct. Your brother is not "the third." Neither is he the first to be confused by this rule.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Bridal Policy

The Daily Reflector will now publish engagement and wedding photographs of a bridal couple pictured together, or of the bride pictured individually.

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Majority Of Women And Men Approach Problems Differently

By JUDY WATSON
TROY, N.Y. (UPI) — They risk setting off yowls of opposition from adamant women libbers. Nonetheless, a group of students at the all-female Emma Willard School are taking part in a study aimed at showing that most women approach problems very differently from men.

The study, spearheaded by Harvard psychologist Carol Gilligan, further tests her theory that women tend to think and react more in terms of interpersonal relationships — weighing the effects of their actions on others — while men tend more to follow abstract rules in deciding how to act.

Trudy Hammer, associate principal at the private girls' school, said results after two years indicate two-thirds of the 72 students taking part in the study act more often from an "ethic of care" than from an "ethic of justice."

In her book, "A Different Voice," Ms. Gilligan notes that of the two approaches, only the one that stresses abstract rules and values independent behavior has traditionally been accepted and rewarded.

She cites the widely accepted work of Lawrence Kohlberg, who laid out six stages of moral development. At the most mature stage, people are supposed to make judgments purely on the basis of rules and universal principles.

A student of Kohlberg's at Harvard, Ms. Gilligan wondered why women almost never progressed beyond stage three, where goodness is associated with helping and pleasing others.

Ms. Gilligan began her studies by asking a group of men and women whether abortion was wrong and why. The next stage was to study moral development in teenage girls.

Participants in the Emma Willard study were interviewed, asked to write stories about four pictures they were shown, and asked in questionnaires how they made choices on such topics as roommates, courses and faculty advisors.

In the interviews, students were asked to describe themselves, describe how they resolved a moral conflict they had faced, and to give their definitions of morality, responsibility and personal conflict.

As an example of the two approaches, Ms. Hammer cited Samantha, a sophomore who told of trying to decide whether to violate school rules and go drinking with friends. She applied a code of ethics to resolve the conflict.

Another student told of grappling over which friend to recommend for taking over her newspaper route — the girl who was most efficient, or the one she knew would continue the personal relationships with the elderly residents on the route.

"One group feels responsible for how their activities affect other people. The second group says, 'If you do what the law says and others get hurt, it's too bad,'" Ms. Hammer said.

The two voices actually correspond more to personality types than sex, Ms. Hammer said. It is estimated two-thirds of women and one-third of men can be grouped in the "caring mode." That leaves half of the population speaking in one voice and half speaking in the other.

The interviews at Emma Willard have been conducted for two years under a grant from the Geraldine Rockefeller Dodge Foundation. Ms. Gilligan and the school have applied for funds for two additional years, to be able to trace the development of one class through four years of school.

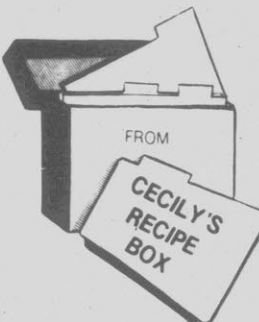

Meanwhile, Ms. Gilligan is attempting to duplicate the study at nearby Deerfield Academy in Greenfield, Mass., an all-boys high school.

Ms. Hammer concedes that the Emma Willard study focuses on a privileged group of girls. However, she said other work by Ms. Gilligan at a co-educational school in Boston and with black students at a Cambridge high school has produced almost the same results.

The implications, Ms.

Hammer said, are revolutionary for schools: Are girls being penalized for approaching problems and new material differently from boys? Should schools be discouraging the development of compassion and care? Shouldn't both approaches be taught and rewarded in classrooms?

CARROT-PARSNIP SOUP

As prepared at Neuman & Bogdonoff's take-out shop in New York City.

1 pound carrots, pared
1 pound parsnips, pared
1/2 to 3/4 pound onions
1/2 of a 1/4-pound stick butter (1/4 cup)
6 cups clear fat-free chicken broth
1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger
1/2 of a bay leaf
2 cups heavy cream
Salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste

Coarsely chop carrot, parsnip and onion. In a 4-quart saucepot melt butter; add chopped vegetables; over low heat cook covered until onion is wilted. Add broth, ginger and bay leaf; simmer, covered, for 1 hour. Puree and chill. Just before serving, stir in cream, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Makes about 2 1/2 quarts. If soup is thicker than you like stir in chicken broth and adjust seasoning.

Love Blooms In Dallas Prison

By DAVE MEISTER
Reading Eagle

DALLAS, Pa. (AP) — This is an unusual love story, unmatched by Barbara Cartland or other writers of romances.

It is a story that begins in Dallas — Pennsylvania, not Texas — at the State Correctional Institution. For the third time in six months, this prison in Luzerne County was the site of a wedding.

That fact alone is not unusual — Dallas' Acting Warden Joseph M. Ryan says he sees at least one wedding at the prison every month.

But when Carol Hoffman, 27, of Reading, married Albert G. Reppert recently, the bride was the third sister from her family to tie the knot with an inmate at Dallas.

Her sister, Betty Warman, 21, married Roy Warman, also known as Frank J. Scathorelli Jr., on Nov. 22, 1982. And Carol's older sister married an inmate two weeks after Betty Warman was wed.

The three sisters, who hail from a family of 16 children, each have a husband who resides in Cell Block E.

They met their husbands during a picnic at Dallas in June 1982. They were invited to the picnic by their brother, who is serving time at Dallas for an arson conviction. He and the oldest sister asked not to be identified.

After the picnic, the women made weekly visits to the prison and the romances blossomed.

Warman, who has been sentenced for receiving stolen property, was the first to propose.

"It was a real surprise," Mrs. Warman said. "It really was. I asked my mom and she said, 'You're 21 and old enough to make up your own mind.' So I said, 'Yes.'"

Twenty-five people attended the wedding, held in the country club-like atmosphere of the visitors center at the prison. She wore a royal blue evening dress; Warman, a two-piece dark blue suit.

According to Warman, the wedding was the talk of the prison for two weeks after the ceremony.

"We had 1,500 years of time sitting at our wedding," Warman grinned, referring to the sentences of convicts who attended. "Some of the

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Twenty-five years ago a recipe for "Clara's Sour Cream Coffee Cake" appeared in Good Housekeeping Magazine. Then it appeared in the 1963 edition of "Good Housekeeping Cookbook," and its popularity swept the country.

Since then, many other versions of the coffee cake have been published in cookbooks, magazines and newspapers — including my own columns. Cooks like the recipes so much they put them in their permanent repertoires.

As a result, when recently we came on a variation of the sour cream coffee cake we had never seen before — this one filled with fresh cherries — we eagerly tried it. It's rich, flavorful and moist.

But a word of warning: because most cooks dislike sifting and few American kitchens have reliable scales, our Fresh Cherry Sour Cream Coffee Cake calls for measuring the flour by scooping it up with a 1 cup and a 1/2 cup measure from a fractional measuring-cup set — 2 1/2 cups in all are needed. The flour is not stirred before scooping; using a small metal spatula, it is merely leveled off in the cups. Consequently the batter may differ slightly each time it is made. One time it may be a little moister than another. But no matter. Either way it's always a delight.

We bake the coffee cake on the rack below center of our electric oven because that position produces a browner bottom crust than when the cake is baked in the usual middle rack position.

FRESH CHERRY SOUR CREAM COFFEE CAKE
2 1/2 cups unbleached flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
Two 1/4-pound sticks butter (1 cup), soft or cut into

16 pats
1 1/4 cups plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 large eggs
8 ounces (1 cup) sour cream
1 cup pitted and halved sweet red cherries
1/2 cup chopped (medium-fine) walnuts
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
Topping, see recipe

On wax paper or in bowl stir together flour, baking powder and soda.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer at medium speed, cream butter, 1 1/4 cups sugar, vanilla and lemon rind. Beat in eggs singly, until blended each time. Add sour cream and beat until blended. At low speed gradually beat in flour mixture until smooth.

Stir together cherries, walnuts, 2 tablespoons sugar and the cinnamon.

Turn 1-3rd (1 1/2 cups, generous) of the batter into a greased and floured 9-inch tube pan. Sprinkle with 1/2 of cherry mixture. Repeat layers. Spread with remaining batter. Sprinkle with Topping.

Bake on the rack below center of a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 60 minutes. Cool on a wire rack for 5 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on rack; cool completely upside down to keep bottom from sticking to rack. Invert on a cake plate and serve top side up.

TOPPING: Stir together 1 tablespoon sugar and 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon.

NOTE: You'll need to buy a scant 1/2 pound of cherries to make the amount of fruit called for in this recipe.

Couple Has 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence T. Carrow, of Route 2, Greenville, were honored at a 50th anniversary party at their home Sunday afternoon. They celebrated their anniversary July 15.

The party was given by their children, Linda C. Evans, Hazel C. Williams and Clarence Buddy Carrow.

The refreshment table was covered with a yellow lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of summer flowers.

Mrs. Carrow was dressed in a navy blue dress complemented by a corsage of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Archer of Norfolk, Va., Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Tuten, Mr. and Mrs. James Harlan of Henderson and Peggy Sutton of New Bern were special guests.

The couple has four grandchildren.

Rolling Again

The state Board of Transportation has set aside $573,000 for secondary road construction and improvements in Pitt County for the next two years. It's good news. We only wish there could be more.

Those little back roads have become even more important in the last three decades as our society has become even more mobile. No longer are they just farm-to-market roads, as once they were called. Today they are necessary thoroughfares, used by rural dwellers to get to work in the city and for farmers moving equipment from one community to another.

We need the major highways, but we would be lost today if maintenance were withdrawn from the secondary road system.

Construction has been slowed in the '80s as inflation took its bite in state revenue. Now that the economy appears to be improving, we hope this 1983 appropriation will get the ball — and the road graders — rolling again.

Midsummer Blues

We were almost becoming acclimated to mid-July's oppressive heatwave and drought with yellowing lawns, the crop damage, heavy demands on electricity and health risks.

The numerous pictures, local and imported by electronic wizardry, dealing with elaborate and simple tricks of keeping cool, or "enjoying" the summer sun, no longer moved us.

Basically, it was an enervating period. The occupation of choice was to sit at a window and watch automobile tires melt and wheel rims sink into the asphalt.

The weather, for awhile, was a conversation piece. There had been nothing like it since the last big snowfall. Everybody had a story to tell, and all of them were recounted with incredulous reaction ... as though it had never happened before. It was becoming a too-familiar story and experience.

Then came Tuesday night's rain with the accompanying fragrance of a moist land and the almost forgotten pleasure of a mild (not stifling) summer night. It all brought things back into reality.

That must have been a remarkable heatwave, after all.

Papal Tour

WASHINGTON — Pope John Paul II is planning a tour of Southern Africa late this year which for the first time would turn the full moral and religious power of the papacy directly against South Africa's policy of apartheid — the legal separation of the white minority that rules South Africa from the black majority.

Papal advisers agree with the pope that in view of his strong, courageous criticism of the communist-military junta in Poland during his trip there last month, he could not trim his moral sails in South Africa. Yet, for all its faults, South Africa is Western-oriented and anti-communist.

The pope conceivably could avoid the problem by bypassing South Africa on his visit to adjoining countries in black Africa. But Vatican insiders are certain he would not duck out of a delicate situation, raising the likelihood of a direct, on-the-spot confrontation between a pope and South Africa's racial policies for the first time.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, who often has avoided confrontation in bureaucratic in-fighting, recently stared down economic adviser Martin Feldstein and budget director David Stockman to force through an optimistic government estimate of economic growth.

Feldstein and Stockman are insisting on a relatively poor "out-year" growth forecast for fiscal year 1986. Even though outvoted 2-to-1 in the administration's top economic council, Regan stood his ground and threatened to take the issue to President Reagan for settlement. Aware that they would not fare well in the Oval Office, Feldstein and Stockman retreated.

At stake is a proposed fiscal 1986 tax increase that Feldstein and Stockman, often to the annoyance of the White House, keep promoting. A low growth estimate means higher estimated deficits, thereby providing more arguments for tax increases.

Despite opposition from some of his state and regional operatives, Sen. John Glenn now leans toward a total boycott of all future Democratic Party straw ballots designed to show a preference for a Democratic presidential nominee.

Glenn knows he does best in the largest possible forum and worst in the smallest — including straw ballots — where liberal zealots can muster their maximum strength. Glenn came in third in the Massachusetts straw vote but finessed two others: California and Wisconsin.

Big ones coming up include New Jersey in September and Florida, Maine and Iowa in October. Glenn's rationale for staying out would parallel the strong criticism of presidential straw votes by party chairman Charles Mannatt as meaningless gestures that consume time and money and create intra-party hostility.

Gov. Jay Rockefeller, who plans to run for the Senate when his term ends next year, sent an emissary to his long-time political enemy, Arch Moore, a former Republican governor of West Virginia, with this warning: If you run for governor next year, count on my total opposition, including financial support for the Democratic nominee.

But Moore, who beat Rockefeller for governor in 1972 and then lost to him in the 1980 statehouse race, sent this word back to his old opponent: I will be running for the U.S. Senate next year against you, not for governor!

That sets the stage for a third titanic struggle in the Mountain State between the fabulously-rich New York Democrat who decided to make West Virginia his home and political base, and the plain-spoken Republican. They will be contesting for the seat that has been held by Democratic senator Jennings Randolph since 1959.

Backbiting against White House aide Faith Whittlesey by her colleagues came to a sudden stop because of a flat order delivered by senior aides James Baker and Edwin Meese.

Whittlesey is a prominent conservative Republican politician from Pennsylvania who served as President Reagan's ambassador to Switzerland. But from the moment she replaced Elizabeth Dole (now secretary of transportation) as Reagan's assistant for liaison with the public, Whittlesey was the target of personal attacks by "pragmatist" White House staffers. At one point, she called communications chief David Gergen into her office and demanded that he lay off.

Shortly thereafter, Baker and Meese brought the affair to a head at a White House staff meeting. They said the poisonous remarks to reporters about Whittlesey not only hurt her, but also the president, and must stop.

RALEIGH — At the end of every new legislative session, the House and Senate play a little game with each other. The Senate holds onto House bills and the House holds onto Senate bills. The idea is to hold the other guy's bills until he passes yours.

Over the past several sessions, the Senate has generally won this game because, in the match-up of power between the two houses, the Senate has been dominant. But things appear to have changed this year. Legislative observers generally consider that the House was either the equal, or the superior, of the Senate in the 1983 session.

Picking the more powerful is like picking a national college football champion. There's no precise measure — just a lot of educated opinions. But from interviews with lobbyists, legislators and a few fellow reporters, it is clear that the House is seen to have increased its power this year — at least to the point where it is no longer the weak sister.

A good example of a more powerful House came when the Senate killed an administrative rules rewrite proposal of Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville. Watkins immediately announced to the press that he planned wholesale revenge on the Senate leaders of this move. His bill miraculously came back to life the next week in the form of a compromise.

Another example came during the tax increase conference committee. The Senate was generally considered to have given up a bit more than the House. And insiders on the budget negotiations say the House prevailed in appropriating the state's money.

While one senator expressed the opinion that the House was dictating to the Senate this year, most observers feel there's been relative parity with maybe the House winning a few more battles. Both pulling up to that point, they say, is a major gain from just a few years ago.

How did the House improve its standing? The indefinite tenure of House Speaker Liston Ramsey is the most frequently stated reason followed by the perception of a divided Senate leadership.

Ramsey is in his second term as speaker and he appears ready to try to keep the job forever. He's got a pair of tough, loyal top lieutenants in Watkins and Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake. The trio brings unified leadership to the House for the first time in recent memory and the membership knows that to get on the outs with the speaker could mean a long exile in political Siberia. Therefore, the House has become tight-knit in the fashion that for a long time marked the Senate.

But over in the upper chamber, there are plenty of people with other things on their minds. Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green faces trial on criminal charges and an uphill battle to get the job he wants in the Capitol. In an effort to build a coalition that might elect him governor, he's had to push bills that his conservative leaders might have otherwise opposed. Meanwhile, his top two lieutenants — Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, and Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir — have not formed the inseparable pair that they were in recent sessions. Royall is backing Sen. Bob Jordan, D-Montgomery, for lieutenant governor, a job Hardison also wants.

In the near future, it's expected that the House will become ascendant. Ramsey will be back in 1985 — barring an incredible upset. But Green won't be lieutenant governor. If the mild-mannered Jordan wins that post — and he certainly looks like the favorite now — he'll have a big job standing up to the Mountain Man speaker.

Question Of Who Is Right

there had been many photo exhibits of demonstrators held in America, but very few of police officers taking pictures of them. Doe told the officer he hoped to win a prize.

The officer demanded identification from Doe, which my friend refused to produce, citing the Supreme Court case, Brown vs. Texas, that a person did not have to identify himself to the police unless the officer can articulate he has committed a crime, or that he is about to, or that public safety is endangered.

Then the officer wanted to know if Doe was a member of the KGB. John denied it, claiming to be an ordinary American citizen who like to take photographs of cops taking photographs. Later on, he thought to himself, had he admitted being member of the KGB the Park Police would have probably left him alone. It was Americans they objected to taking pictures of them.

It was more than the Park Police official could deal with. Doe was bundled into a Park Police car and taken off to the station, where it was hoped he would break down and tell the real reason why he was taking photos of innocent police photographers taking pictures of people that didn't like war.

In true tradition, Doe was permitted to call a lawyer. He called an old friend from his ACLU days and said, "Barry, I've got a great case. I've been taken into custody for taking pictures of Park Police undercover photographers. We can make legal history."

Barry, who was at home, said he's come down, but his relatives were in town and he was looking forward to spending the Fourth with his kids and he wasn't about to spend the weekend in court with John Doe arguing the merits of Brown vs. Texas.

"But Barry, if we don't fight for our rights who will?"

"Lawyers who don't have their relatives in town."

The police officer seemed to be losing his patience and said that if Doe did not identify himself he would be taken to St. Elizabeth's, Washington's mental hospital, for observation.

"But," protested Doe, "that's what the police do in the Soviet Union. Are you sure you people don't work for the KGB?"

By this time Barry the lawyer showed up and a deal was struck. Doe would not have to identify himself, keeping the Brown vs. Texas principle intact, but he would have to promise not to take any more photos of police officers taking photos.

Unfortunately, the main legal question was never resolved. Is someone crazy for taking pictures of police taking pictures of people demonstrating, or are the Park Police crazy for thinking you shouldn't be allowed to do it? It would be nice for us camera buffs to know.

Gold Thrives In Risky Times

As international debt problems grew, gold began a comeback, rising to $510 an ounce by the end of January. But it quickly fell 20 percent before settling in to a trading range between $400 and $450 since March. Gold was in the middle of that range this week.

Analysts attributed the winter setback for gold to a drop in oil prices, reducing inflationary pressures, and sales of gold by communist nations.

It's future is closely tied to inflationary expectations.

"It all depends on your outlook. If you see a return to inflation, gold is a classic hedge. But if you see no return to inflation, why buy gold — it pays no interest?" said a New York commodities broker whose firm prohibits him from being quoted by name.

"The concern over inflation rising down the road eventually will fuel the markets — the timing is unclear," said Ms. Raptopoulos.

A banking crisis or other financial or political strife could also send gold rising.

David Nelson, a metals analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., said he believes gold prices will rise next year because there may be insufficient supplies to meet rising demand for the metal.

Silver, like gold, is a shelter against inflation. But it also has many industrial uses and is affected by economic activity to a far greater extent than gold.

Silver, which hit an all-time high of $52.50 an ounce in January 1980, fell to $4.84 in June 1982. Then, it nearly tripled in seven months, rising to $14.70 last February.

Since then, silver has been on a roller coaster course, dropping a third in value, rising a third and currently hovering around $12 an ounce.

"Silver does much worse than gold in a recession, but much better in a recovery," said Nelson.

Because of the improving industrial outlook, stocks of mining and metals companies also are getting a closer look.

"While post-recession recoveries in non-ferrous and light metals will probably progress at a slow pace, recent data suggesting a better than expected economic recovery in general is obviously welcomed news which will have a positive effect on the financial performance of the producers of these metals," according to an analysis by Vahid Fathi at Prescott, Ball & Turben Inc.

Strength For Today

Prayer is the heritage and privilege of all people. Nothing in the whole religious life is so little affected by theological differences as prayer.

Fundamentally, prayer rests upon the belief that there is a power above us all, that we are creatures of that power, that we may communicate with Him, and that He desires to have us communicate with Him.

Although prayers take on the form and coloration of widely differing theologies, nevertheless, all men begin their petitions to the Most High with the conviction that man can pray, that God wants him to pray, and that prayer makes a difference.

It is amazing how eager God is to give to his children, and how timid they are about asking for His bounty or reaching out their hands to receive it. His outgoing loves shames our fear. His continuous providence rebukes our lack of faith.

Rebate Plan For Tobacco Questioned

By The Associated Press
A proposed rebate plan for flue-cured tobacco buyers could be helpful if used just once, but could become harmful to farmers if it becomes an ongoing program, a state tobacco official said Thursday.

The rebates, which could total up to $48 million this year, were proposed by U.S. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block. Under the program, buyers who purchase more leaf this year than their average for the past three seasons would get a rebate of 30 cents per pound for the extra purchases.

The rebates would come from farmers through the no-net-cost fees they pay to make sure taxpayers are not subsidizing the federal tobacco program.

John H. Cyrus, director of tobacco affairs for the state Department of Agriculture, said he had reservations about the plan.

"It's been claimed that the government has subsidized the tobacco farmer, but here we have a turnabout with farmers subsidizing the manufacturer," Cyrus said.

"If it's a one-time deal, it could certainly be in the best interests of everybody concerned," he said. "But if it becomes a continuing thing, I could see problems down the road."

He said that some manufacturers could buy more surplus tobacco held by stabilization this year to push their purchases up to the point that would entitle them to rebates for purchases on the warehouse floor.

That could mean simply replacing old leaf held by stabilization with this year's leaf, since those buyers would need to purchase less of the 1983 crop.

Cyrus also questioned whether some buyers might decide to reduce their buying from this year's crop, speculating that there would be pressure for more rebates in future years if enough tobacco when into stabilization.

The rebates are designed to reduce the high volume of leaf held by the Flue-Cured Cooperative Stabilization Corp., which acquires tobacco that does not bring 1 cent above the federal price supports on the open market.

T. Carlton Blalock, executive vice president of the Tobacco Growers Association of North Carolina, said the concept could benefit growers.

But he said it could hurt farmers next year if manufacturers buy in excess this year to get the discount, then don't buy as much in 1984 as they might have.

Beethoven Marathon

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In a concerted effort that will go on well past "Moonlight," a cocktail pianist plans to play all 32 Beethoven piano sonatas in what he calls a unique musical marathon.

"I'm the only person in the world capable of doing it," said Gary Goldschneider, 44, who claims his concert will set a record as the longest Beethoven performance ever.

He says he'll start at 10 a.m. Saturday at The Bourse, a downtown shopping mall. He expects to wind up with the last note of an encore at approximately 10 p.m.

"The reason it is being done is to present to the public the life work of the greatest Western composer," Goldschneider said.

"People are really hungry for this kind of thing, but this is not somebody playing piano 82 hours in a bar. This is the highest quality of music in the West."

He'll play barefoot, wearing a white tunic and drawstring pants, to try to stay relaxed. "The fingers are not so much the problem as the back," he said. "It would be impossible to play what I'm doing with tension." He will take four 15-minute breaks and one of a half-hour.

And, if his marathon is a success, Goldschneider says he'll take it on the road — maybe even around the world.

Henderson To Be Guest Of Honor

Dr. E.L. Henderson, East Carolina University's oldest living former faculty member, will be guest of honor Monday evening at a reception hosted by Chancellor and Mrs. John M. Howell to mark Henderson's honorary designation as professor emeritus.

Henderson, who is 98, served for many years as director of student teaching and was chairman of the department of administration and supervision in the years when ECU was primarily a teacher's college. He joined the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College in 1923.

Also to be honored is Dr. Charles R. Coble, professor of science education, who is serving as acting dean of the ECU School of Education. Coble, a friend and neighbor of Henderson, was instrumental in obtaining professor emeritus standing for him last month.

On June 23, Chancellor Howell signed papers conferring professor emeritus standing on Henderson. Howell, Coble and vice chancellor Angelo A. Volpe walked to Henderson's home near campus to present the documents in an impromptu ceremony.

Henderson and his wife, the former Sula Cook, live in Greenville.

Holly Named To Dean's List

Lee A. Holly, grandson of Mrs. Lula Beatrice Gray of Greenville, was named to the dean's list for academic excellence at the University of New Haven in Connecticut. He is majoring in computer technology.

Holly, a 1970 graduate of J.H. Rose High School, is employed as a Data Systems manager at Southern New England Telephone Co.

Embroiders To Meet Tuesday

The North Carolina Chapter of the Embroiders' Guild of America Inc. will have a "stitch-in" Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Pam Burkart in Bath. Old projects will be completed.

The Embroiders' Guild is an organization for the advancements of all needle arts. For more information or to join call Ms. Burkart at 756-7399.

2 Injured In 4 Accidents

Two people were injured and an estimated $7,600 damage resulted from four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 5:05 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fourth and Sycamore streets.

Officers said cars driven by Regina Adaline Blackman of Route 6, Goldsboro, and Donna Elaine Montague of Raleigh, were involved in the mishap, which caused an estimated $1,500 damage to the Blackman car and $2,500 damage to the Montague vehicle.

Ms. Montague and a passenger in her car were reported injured.

Cars driven by Norma Kay Berry of Washington and Anne-Marie Elizabeth Haddock of Route 1, Winterville, collided about 10:30 p.m. at the intersection of Second and Cotanche streets, causing $1,000 damage to the Berry car and $500 damage to the Haddock car.

Officers said a truck driven by Kenneth Elmo Allen of 3309 Evans St. and a car operated by Coleman Junior Randolph of 802A Bancroft Ave. collided about 3:40 p.m. on Greene Street, 120 feet south of the Moore Street intersection.

Police, who charged Randolph with having improper breaks, estimated damage at $100 to the truck and $1,000 to the Randolph car.

Cars driven by Johnnie Fredrick Lofton of Kinston and Sandra Forrest Ellis of Route 2, Walstonburg, collided about 12:15 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Stantonburg Road, causing $600 damage to the Lofton car and $400 damage to the Ellis auto.

ECU Trustees Meet Aug. 4

New members will be sworn in and officers for 1983-84 elected when the board of trustees of East Carolina University meets Aug. 4.

New and reappointed members of the 13-member board include Riley Roberson of Washington, Sam Wornom of Sanford, Louis Singleton of Greenville, Ralph Kinsey of Charlotte, James Dixon of Greensboro and Harvey Beech of Kinston.

Various committees of the board will hold meetings prior to the full board meeting at 9:30 a.m. in Mendenhall Student Center.

CPS Program To Be Presented

The Greenville Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will meet at 6:15 p.m. Monday at Western Sizzlin Steak House on East Tenth Street.

The program will be presented by Doris J. Hunt, administrative secretary to the director of the division of continuing education at East Carolina University. She will present details of the certified professional secretary program and explain the structure of the local PSI chapter.

Interested secretaries may contact Jo Gillan, president-elect and membership chairman, at 757-2814.

Community Club To Meet

The Hillsdale Community Club will meet Saturday. The session will be held at 4 p.m. at the home of Rosa Weaver on Route 4, Greenville.

Special Meeting Set Monday

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission has scheduled a special call meeting for Monday at 5:30 p.m. to consider a request by Pitt County to rezone approximately .59 acres at the northwest corner of Maxwell and May Streets from R-6 (high density residential) to downtown commercial fringe.

The meeting will be held in the third floor council chambers at City Hall.

Hemby Reunion Planned Saturday

The Hemby family reunion will be held Saturday at 1 p.m. at the home of Mary Louise Daniels, 1105 W. Sixth St. A backyard picnic will be held.

Damage Suit Is Filed In Martin Co.

WILLIAMSTON — A lawsuit naming Martin County, the Martin County Commissioners, Hardy-Harvey Inc. of Kinston and Fred Tolson Associates of Raleigh as defendants has been filed in Martin County Superior Court by attorneys for Gloria R. Spruill of Williamston.

In the suit, Mrs. Spruill contends that negligence during the construction of the new Governmental Center (a complex containing the new Martin County Courthouse and several public offices) caused extensive damage to her residence located at 101 Harrell St., about 100 feet from the site of the center.

She is asking for a trial by jury and is seeking $100,000 in punitive damages. Should the court seek an alternative for the repair of the house, Mrs. Spruill seeks an amount in damages of not less than $78,393.85.

In addition to the county and county officials, the commercial defendants named in the case, Hardy-Harvey Inc. of Kinston and Fred Tolson Associates of Raleigh, were the general contractor and architects for the complex, respectively.

The complaint alleges several negligent actions on behalf of the county and the other parties named in the suit. Among actions cited as allegedly causing damage to the Spruill home are failure to determine the effect of construction upon nearby property owners; the use of large trucks carrying material which caused settling of the land underneath the street and underneath the home; the interior damages to the home resulting from negligent actions; the accelerated flow of water into a creek adjoining the property, which caused water to pond and stand on the premises of the Spruill home resulting in shifting and moving of the soil and causing the house to lean at an angle and slope downhill, failing to stabilize the banks of the creek in violation of regulations of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community development.

The complaint states the actions enumerated in the suit were done in "... a willful, wanton, reckless, and negligent manner without due regard for the rights and property of others and (therefore) constitute negligence as that term is defined by law ..."

No response has been filed by the defendants.

Storm...

near Ballard's Crossoards, a spokesman for the department said.

The Agricultural Extension Service said it had received no calls reporting hail damage to crops in the county.

Greenville Utilities' weather station recorded .33 inch of rain from the pre-dawn storm — not enough to provide permanent relief from the drought and heat wave that has eastern North Carolina locked in its grip.

The storm brought temperatures down to the 70s early today, according to GUC, but by noon the mercury had crept back into the 90s. The high temperature Thursday was 98 degrees Fahrenheit, according to GUC, and the low 70 degrees F. Bank thermometers downtown, however, reflected readings in excess of 100 degrees Thursday afternoon.

In addition to the storm, GUC's system took a beating from electrical demand Thursday, Green said. "We peaked for the year at an all-time high of 149.1 megawatts of electricity with our load management equipment operating — nine percent above our peak in 1982," he noted.

The superintendent said GUC usually peaks around Aug. 24 because of bulk barn usage and schools opening.

SCALED FENCE

HAVERFORDWEST, Wales (AP) — Eight women peace campaigners scaled a fence and entered a U.S. Navy base at Brawdy near this west Wales town Thursday, Britain's domestic news agency reported.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SAILING SHIPS

AS EARLY AS 3000 B.C., OR EVEN BEFORE, MEN HAD LEARNED TO NAVIGATE ON THE NILE, AND SHIPS FOR THIS PURPOSE WERE BUILT. SOME OF THE PHARAOHS HAD OCEANGOING VESSELS ALSO FORMING THE FIRST NAVIES OF THEIR TIME. MANY OF THE BOATS ON THE NILE WHICH WERE USED FOR FISHING AND FOWLING WERE MADE BY TYING BUNDLES OF PAPYRUS REEDS TOGETHER AND DAUBING THEM WITH PITCH...

...THE ISRAELITES WERE NOT A SEAFARING PEOPLE BUT THEY CARRIED ON TRADE USING THE SEAWAYS. SOLOMON CONDUCTED COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISES THROUGH HIS FLEET OF SHIPS BUT THESE TRANSIENT EFFORTS WERE MORE OR LESS DEPENDANT ON THE PHOENICIAN SAILORS WHO MANNED THEM. SOME OF THESE SEAGOING VESSELS WERE PROPELLED BY SAILS ALONE--OTHERS BY SAILS AND OARS.

World Council Of Churches Has Been Facing Storm Of Criticism

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Christians running that international visionary ship, Oikumene, moved into this western Canadian city beside the Pacific late this week, facing a storm of criticism.

They came for the sixth assembly of the World Council of Churches which opens Sunday, the first such gathering in eight years and the first one on the American continent in 19 years.

It comes amid sharpened attacks on the council, whose emblem is a ship with a cross as a masthead and the Greek word, "oikumene," meaning the whole inhabited earth, symbolizing the journey toward Christian unity.

"There is evidence that grass-roots pressure for unity is growing stronger in many parts of the world," says the Rev. Michael Kinamon, a U.S. Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) theologian and on the council's doctrinal commission staff.

He expressed hope the assembly, besides celebrating interchurch ties already achieved, "will renew the call for obedience to Christ's prayer that we may all be one."

More than 4,000 people, 900 of them official delegates of 303 denominations around the world totaling nearly 500 million believers, are expected for the 18-day assembly, July 24 through Aug. 10.

But even before it started, criticisms rolled from the sidelines. A Switzerland-based evangelical group, Christian Solidarity International, began meeting, challenging the council to deal more strongly with religious repression.

"Our persecuted brothers and sisters are excluded from this major meeting," said the Rev. Hans Stuckelberger, president of the organization, which launched a series of meetings focused on victims of religious oppression.

The group readied a petition to the assembly, demanding attention to that issue in communist and other areas.

Other anti-council demonstrations and meetings were scheduled, featuring Northern Ireland's fiery preacher-politician Ian Paisley and fundamentalist Bob Jones Jr. of Bob Jones University in South Carolina, recently denied tax exemption in a U.S. Supreme Court decision because of racist policies.

The criticisms were heightened by recent magazine articles and a CBS TV show, claiming the council was pro-Marxist and funded armed black revolutionaries against minority white regimes.

Big Demand For Bishops' Letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a backlog of more than 35,000 advance orders, the publishing arm of the U.S. Catholic Conference has started mailing out copies of the U.S. Catholic bishops' pastoral letter on war and peace.

The cost is $1.50 each, cheaper for bulk orders. Earlier a documentary service, Origins, distributed more than 40,000 copies and more than 1 million additional copies appeared in Catholic newspapers publishing the text.

The letter condemns nuclear warfare and calls for a bilateral halt in producing nuclear weapons.

Church Board To Meet Saturday

A board meeting will be held Saturday at 6 p.m. at Burney's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Black Jack, for the election entially in various aspects of the council.

Scores of special programs were planned to supplement the official assembly events, including a film festival, public forums, coffee houses and a liturgical art exhibit provided by the Canadian Roman Catholic bishops.

Most assembly events, including the opening workshops services and an afternoon of celebrative festivities Sunday, are on the campus of the University of British Columbia.

The organization has more than doubled in size since then, growing from 147 mostly Western European and American Protestant denominations to 303 of them in 100 countries on every continent.

They include not just most of the world's major Protestant bodies but Eastern Orthodox, Anglican, Old Catholic, Pentecostal and independent denominations.

Third World churches, as well as Eastern Orthodox, both in the West and communist orbit, have become strongly represented. Roman Catholicism, while not a full member, participates influ-

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A small rock pilfered from the Petrified Forest National Park turned out to be more trouble than it was worth, says a North Carolina teen-ager.

"I honestly thought it wouldn't hurt to take just one tiny little rock," Angie Davis of Huntersville wrote the National Park Service, describing herself as "desperate to get rid of it."

She explained that within hours after filching it on June 24 from the park east of Holbrook, she regretted her crime.

"Ever since we left the Petrified Forest, our Winnebago has had four flat tires," said Angie, who had visited the park as part of a three-week tour with 29 other teen-agers.

"In San Francisco, we hit a truck and busted out two windows, one just above my head."

But that's not all. While on their tour, the group reserved one day a week for washing clothes, picking up their schedule the next day.

"There was a big storm while we were at the Laundromat," she said. "The power went off for a while and took us completely off schedule."

"Now when anything bad happens, everyone says: 'It's Angie's rock.' I swear I think it is a curse."

She added that she would be "much relieved if you will take this darn thing and throw it back in the petrified forest with the rest of those troublemakers."

"P.S. We just ran out of gas."

of new church leaders.

Men's day services will be observed Sunday at 11 a.m. At 3 p.m., a building fund service will be conducted by the Rev. Steven Jones and the congregation of Mount Zion Church.

and the donations are tax-deductible," he emphasized. Jackson said the Crime Stoppers program is an effort involving all law enforcement agencies in Pitt County, by providing a mechanism for citizen involvement without interference in police operations.

Directed by a 15-member board made up of civilians from all areas of the county, Crime Stoppers will have a private telephone line which can be used by residents of the area to furnish police agencies with information about crimes that have been committed.

Jackson said the callers giving information will not be identified. He added that rewards of up to $1,000 will be paid to persons giving information, even if no arrests are made in a case.

The amount of rewards paid by Crime Stoppers, Jackson explained, will be determined by a committee after weighing the value of the information given.

Jackson, who said the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce has assisted in getting the program established, said all rewards paid by Crime Stoppers will be from funds donated by individuals and businesses. No municipal or county money will be used.

Among other North Carolina cities having Crime Stoppers programs are Winston-Salem, Greensboro-Guilford County, Statesville and Goldsboro.

Since 1981, the program in Winston-Salem has helped solve 287 crimes and resulted in $48,828 in stolen property and narcotics being recovered.

The program in Statesville has resulted in 51 cases being solved and the recovery of more than $20,000 worth of stolen property and narcotics.

Jackson said Crime Stoppers helped solve a murder in Goldsboro last week within 12 hours after the crime was committed.

Since 1981, the Greensboro program has led to the arrest of 229 individuals and the recovery of $126,597 worth of stolen property. More than $277,000 worth of narcotics have been recovered.

White Blocks Court Ruling On NCAA

By The Associated Press

Universities who hoped to negotiate lucrative television packages for their football teams have had their plans squelched by a U.S. Supreme Court justice who once was an All-American halfback.

Justice Byron R. "Whizzer" White, a star at Colorado in the 1930s, ordered Thursday that control of college football television must be restored to the NCAA. White's order postponed the effect of a federal appeals court ruling that the NCAA violated antitrust laws when it negotiated contracts with ABC, CBS and the Turner Broadcasting System.

"We're absolutely delighted," said NCAA President John Toner.

The College Football Association, a group of the top collegiate powerhouses, had hoped to put together its own television package. Individual schools also wanted to make deals with national networks.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has $281 million worth of contracts with the networks over four years, but lower courts had held that schools must be free to cash in on their own.

The universities of Oklahoma and Georgia had led the fight for schools to independently control their telecast rights. Thursday's decision, said Oklahoma attorney Andy Coats, will cost the two schools "millions of dollars."

Oklahoma and Georgia are guaranteed only one football appearance each in the NCAA package this fall.

White's stay will remain in effect at least until the full Supreme Court can consider the case. October would be the earliest time that would happen.

"In the meantime, college football will continue on television in 1983 as in the past and we hope it will be both exciting and successful," CFA executive director Chuck Neinas said. "Eventually, we trust the final Supreme Court decision will enable a more innovative approach to college football television in 1984."

"The stay works to the benefit of virtually all the football-playing members of the NCAA who clearly want the continuation of national controls," said Toner, who also is athletic director at the University of Connecticut.

But some of the large football schools might argue with that assessment.

"Our reaction is one of disappointment," said Mike Treps, sports information director for Oklahoma. "We had hoped to free-market our product. Our hands are tied until the courts reach a final decision."

Marvin Francis, assistant commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, said if the ruling had not been in favor of the NCAA, the ACC would have proceeded with its plan to regionally televise games in North Carolina, similar to the way ACC basketball is handled.

But Wayne Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, saw White's ruling differently.

"The total interests of college football and all but a few selfish institutions are best served by Justice White's decision, which hopefully will permit the orderly presentation of college football on television this season," he said.

Many reacted not to the merits of the case, but expressed relief that a mad scramble for individual television contracts was averted.

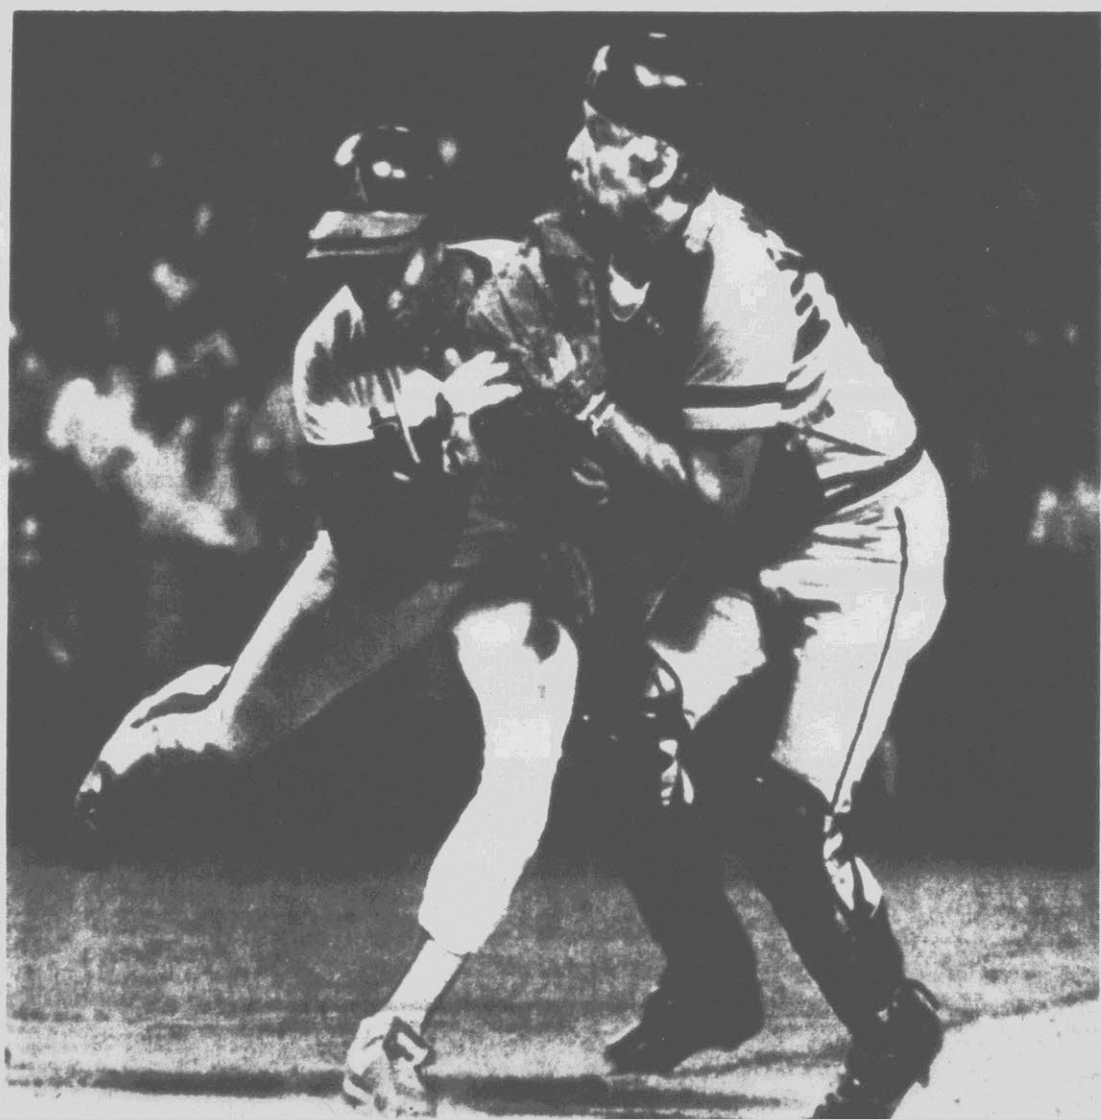

The networks were predictably pleased.

"We're looking forward to the season now that the uncertainties have been resolved," said Jay Rosenstein of CBS.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last month that the NCAA had violated the Sherman Act, an antitrust law, by controlling the televising of college football.

The appeals court upheld a similar ruling by a federal trial judge in Oklahoma City in a lawsuit filed against the NCAA by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association.

The contracts are worth some $74 million for the 1983 season alone.

Hurlbut Challenging Field After Five-Month 'Unemployment'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Laura Hurlbut, who hasn't earned a dime in tournament play for nearly five months, finds herself challenging for the lead heading into the second round of the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association Mayflower Classic.

Hurlbut, who has missed the cut eight times and been disqualified once since February, opened the tournament Thursday with a 4-under par 68 at the Country Club of Indianapolis.

The 24-year-old, who has less than $10,000 since joining the tour two years ago, finished the opening round one stroke off the pace set by Jo Ann Washam and Lauren Howe.

"I've been very discouraged at times," said Hurlbut, buried in the No. 135 spot on the current money list with only $1,600 to show for 14 tournaments this year.

"A really nice sponsor, my father," has allowed her to keep playing, explained Hurlbut, who also credited a "lot of good friends encouraging me" for her willingness to battle the high scores which have plagued her on the tour.

Hurlbut, a Los Angeles resident who played on Tulsa University's 1980 national championship team, just missed sharing the first-day lead when she bogeyed her last hole by two-putting from 20 feet.

Hurlbut had identical 34s on both nines to equal her career low for the second time this year. Four of her six birdies came on par 3 holes after iron shots, including one that was recorded on a 35-foot shot.

"I was hitting irons very, very well," Hurlbut said, crediting a recent talk with pro J.D. McSwain of Los Angeles with helping her turn her game around.

"I went home about three weeks ago," she said. "He (McSwain) looked at me. I really worked hard that week. It was two years since I had any work with a pro and I think he really helped."

The turnaround couldn't be any more timely, since Hurlbut needs to earn $7,000 this year to remain on the tour.

"I can't worry about it," she said about the possibility of losing her tour card. "If it's meant to be that I lose it, then I'll lose it."

After the best start of her career, Hurlbut says her big challenge in the second round will be "to stay aggressive. I might start getting a little tentative."

Hurlbut shot her 68 while playing in the afternoon, when the temperature reached 97 and a swirling wind created additional problems for the golfers.

Howe, Washam and Vicki Tabor, who also opened with a 68, were a little more fortunate. They started in the morning before the temperature climbed into the 90s, and all three had most of their birdies early.

Howe, back on the tour after a three-year absence that followed a lack of success when she qualified at the age of 18 in 1978, began by playing the back nine.

"The first time I had a (LPGA) card, I was probably too young and I was playing hurt," Howe said. "Possibly the best thing that happened to me was that I hurt my wrist. I had a chance to grow up."

Name Scam Continues

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Police promised to put a name on the accused con man who first claimed to be basketball immortal Bill Russell and who then said he was former pro football tight end Marv Fleming.

"It's looking more and more like this guy is just one of the biggest frauds I've ever seen," Cpl. Russell Roge, a police spokesman, said Thursday.

Roge said FBI fingerprint experts had determined the man was neither Russell nor Fleming. He said the identity would be disclosed later today.

Fleming, at his home in the Los Angeles area, said he and his attorney Al Ross had helped police establish the man's true identity.

"The guy has been doing this since '74," the former Miami Dolphins and Green Bay Packers player said. "He's been living as a parasite off Marv Fleming since '74."

"If this is the same guy, then he did this to me once before. He once conned a minister in Oakland out of $10,000 and I was getting bills addressed to Marv Fleming. That was back in 1972 when I was still playing and the NFL and my attorney took care of the matter."

Fleming, who is now pursuing an acting career, said the National Football League security office had looked into the matter previously.

Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill can produce a first-rate operation.

Previous festival sites have included Syracuse, Indianapolis and Colorado Springs.

"The thought gradually formulated that the festival could very well be done in this area," Carrow said. "It turns out that somebody long before us had the idea."

Athletic directors at Duke, North Carolina and North Carolina State once thought about bringing the Pan American Games into the region.

That idea never caught fire. Later, Duke track coach Al Buehler and North Carolina Central coach Dr. Leroy Walker tried to bring Olympic trials to the area without success.

If history is not on Carrow's side, he feels the area and its facilities are.

"I think the fact that within a relatively close proximity, there are a number of very good athletic facilities, especially considering the construction program at the University of North Carolina, and one that will start shortly at North Carolina State as well as some expansion at Duke," he said.

Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium has hosted world track and field competition, while UNC is constructing its new basketball arena which will include an Olympic swimming pool. N.C. State and the city of Raleigh could provide more indoor facilities.

"Another factor is that the Olympic committee would like to retain the aspect of amateurism in the sport," Carrow added. "We look good from that point of view. The fact that we're very amateur-sports oriented looks good."

Whether Carrow's dream becomes a reality depends on a visit this weekend from Sheila Walker, associate director of operations for the U.S. Olympic Committee. She's a scout for the committee, looking at sites and making recommendations to the panel for future consideration.

Friday night, she will make a presentation to the North Carolina Festival Committee and its guests. No decision is expected before the fall.

Raleigh Attorney Mounts Effort To Have Sports Festival In Triangle

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. — Convinced that the area will support it, a Raleigh attorney is mounting a major effort to bring the National Sports Festival to North Carolina's Research Triangle area in either 1986 or 1987.

Hill Carrow, 28 and a native of Winston, is not the first person who's tried to bring world-class track and field into the Triangle area, but he's seen the festival in operation and he feels

Walks Cost Torrez, New York 6-1 Loss

By The Associated Press

On a night when Mike Torrez couldn't find the plate, the New York Mets' pitcher was appropriately hurt by a player named Walker.

"I've been through a few of those games in (Class) A ball," said Cincinnati's rookie catcher Dann Bilardello after Torrez walked 10 batters in 3 1/3 innings Thursday night in the Reds' 6-1 victory over the Mets. "That's the most I've seen here (in the major leagues). Usually pitchers here are pretty consistent."

Torrez's total broke a single-game club record established by Nolan Ryan and Harry Parker, both of whom once walked nine batters in a game. Two of Torrez's walks, coupled with a double by Cesar Cedeno, loaded the bases for Duane Walker in the third inning, and the Cincinnati outfielder slugged a two-run double to key a three-run rally that sewed up the game for the Reds.

"It looked like those walks were not going to hurt him," Bilardello said. "He was pitching out of the jams. But if you keep walking that number of people, eventually somebody is going to hurt you."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Pittsburgh 5, Los Angeles 4; Chicago 3, San Francisco 2; Montreal 9, Houston 4; Philadelphia 10, Atlanta 6 and San Diego 4, St. Louis 2.

Torrez, 5-12, and Cincinnati starter Charlie Puelo, 4-5, a former Met, combined for 15 walks in the first four innings. There were 19 walks in the game, seven shy of the National League record for nine innings.

Puelo scattered four hits and six walks over 6 1/3 innings. Ben Hayes, the third Cincinnati pitcher, came on in the eighth to pick up his fourth save.

"He struggled from pitch one," said Mets Manager Frank Howard. "It was a rough night for him. But Michael is the type of guy who has to punish his arm. The more he throws, the better command of his stuff he has."

Pirates 5, Dodgers 4

In Pittsburgh, Jim Morrison hit a two-run, two-out single in the ninth inning as the surging Pirates rallied to defeat Los Angeles and win their 11th game in the last 12.

Lee Mazzilli reached on an error by shortstop Bill Russell to open the inning, but Steve Howe, 3-5, got Lee Lacy to pop out and struck out pinch-hitter Gene Tenace. Bill Madlock then singled and Howe walked Jason Thompson on a 3-2 pitch before Morrison lined his single, his third hit of the game.

Kent Tekulve, the fourth Pirate pitcher, worked 1 2/3 innings for his fifth victory in seven decisions.

"I wanted a fastball down the middle and the Lord delivered one," Morrison said of his winning hit off Howe.

Cubs 3, Giants 2

In Chicago, Tom Veryzer and Jody Davis hit home runs and Dick Ruthven and Lee Smith combined on a five-hitter, leading the Cubs over San Francisco.

Ruthven, 7-7, tired in the 93-degree heat and gave way in the eighth to Smith, who notched his 13th save. Atlee Hamaker, 10-5, was the loser, although he gave up only five hits.

"I guess their book on me is to pitch me high fastballs," said Davis. "That's what he gave me at Candlestick Park last week and today in my first time at bat. I was looking for it on the first pitch."

Expos 9, Astros 4

In Montreal, Al Oliver's two-run single ignited a six-run fifth and Bill Gullickson scattered seven hits to lead the Expos over Houston. Montreal trailed 4-1 before sending 10 men up against Nolan Ryan, 9-3, in the fifth, scoring all six runs after two were out.

Oliver's single with the bases loaded cut Houston's lead to 4-3. Gary Carter tied the game with an RBI double and Warren Cromartie drove in the tie-breaking run with a single. When the ball got past left fielder Jose Cruz for an error, Carter also scored to make it 6-4.

Another run scored when third baseman Phil Garner made an error on Tim Wallach's bouncer and two more scored on Andre Dawson's single.

Ryan struck out two batters in five innings, raising his career total to 3,585, two fewer than the all-time leader Steve Carlton.

Phillies 10, Braves 6

In Atlanta, Bobby Dernier had five singles and drove in three runs and Pete Rose knocked in three runs with three singles as Philadelphia unleashed an 18-hit attack to beat the Braves.

Mike Schmidt put the Phillies ahead to stay at 4-3 in the fifth when he hit his 19th homer off Rick Camp, 7-8. Rose's three singles lifted his career total to 3,953 hits.

John Denny, 9-5, continued his mastery of the Braves, lifting his lifetime record against Atlanta to 7-0. Denny yielded 10 hits, walked three and struck out four before being relieved with two out in the sixth. Willie Hernandez and Al Holland finished up for the Phillies.

Padres 4, Cardinals 2

In St. Louis, Terry Kennedy drove in three runs and rookie Mark Thurmond and Luis DeLeon combined on a four-hitter to lead the Padres over the Cardinals.

San Diego grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first on Kennedy's sacrifice fly off Joaquin Andujar, 4-13. After the Cardinals tied it in the fourth, Kennedy made it 3-1 in the fifth with a two-run double to provide the Cardinals with their actual winning runs.

"I'm not hitting too many home runs, but as long as I keep getting RBIs, I don't care how they come," said Kennedy, a former Cardinal.

Run Down

St. Louis Cardinals Tommy Herr attempts to avoid the tag of San Diego shortstop Garry Templeton during the fourth inning of the

Thursday night game at Busch Stadium. Herr was caught between first and second on a grounder hit to Juan Bonilla at second base. Herr was out, as was batter David Green. (AP Laserphoto)

Mustafa Seeks Pardon

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, the light heavyweight contender, wants to be pardoned for actions last Friday night and is taking his case to boxing's governing bodies.

With suspension a likely penalty for being overweight for his shot at Michael Spinks' crown last week in Washington, D.C., the 31-year-old Muhammad said he would be visiting Mexico and Puerto Rico to talk with World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association officials.

He reiterated at a news conference Thursday that he believed the official weigh-in scale was tampered with and that he actually weighed the division limit of 175 pounds — not the 177½ which the scale showed.

Although the scale was approved as accurate by government inspectors, Muhammad was so adamant in believing that he was right that he refused to shed the extra poundage when given an extra two hours to make the limit.

"What's right is right," he said. "I made the weight."

He said that he had weighed 175 pounds on his hotel scale on the day before the fight and then went to check out on the official scale. But he said he saw the scale was "off" — and it was calibrated and everything.

"A commissioner, a deputy commissioner, was with me and these were his words, 'Yes, somebody has been tampering with the scale.'"

He said he didn't know the deputy commissioner's name.

Muhammad also said he brought two 25-pound weights from the gym and put them on the scale. Weighed together, they were 53½ pounds, he said.

Bert Randolph Sugar, publisher of Ring magazine, said he bought two 36-pound four sacks. When each was placed on the official scale, Sugar said each weighed 39¼ pounds.

Muhammad, the former Eddie Gregory of New York, earlier read from a prepared statement, apologizing to the "sports and boxing world at large for the cancellation" of the title bout. He also apologized to Home Box Office, the cable television outfit which reportedly lost $200,000 because of the cancellation.

He said he was hopeful of a landing a title shot against Spinks, but "Michael Spinks did not want to fight me." Holding two fingers about a half-inch apart, Muhammad added, "He has a heart that big."

After Muhammad failed to make the weight, it was announced that the fight would go on as a 10-round non-title bout with the fighters getting half their original purses. For the title bout, Spinks, who is undefeated, was to get $1 million and Muhammad $200,000.

But Spinks later backed out of the non-title bout.

ACC Delays Television Plan After White's Ruling

By The Associated Press

The Atlantic Coast Conference has postponed its plans to regionally televise conference games following a decision by Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White restoring control of college football television to the NCAA.

Ken Haines, vice president of network operations for Raycom, said the Charlotte-based company negotiated a contingency agreement with the ACC in May to televise live ACC football games, pending the outcome of the court decision.

"It means that our contingency with the ACC has now been put on the back burner pending any further development in the case," said Haines. "I think we're disappointed. We will not have the opportunity to provide regional live football to college fans in the ACC area."

Raycom-Jefferson is entering the second year of its three-year contract with the ACC for live basketball television rights.

He said Raycom received much interest from clients and stations to the concept of regional live ACC football.

"We'll just have to see what we can get from the networks for the TV games this year," said Marvin "Skeeter" Francis, assistant commissioner of the ACC. "There's certainly nothing we can do otherwise ... We do know with our plan we would have had an ACC game every week."

The College Football Association also canceled plans to develop its own TV-game package.

"In the meantime, college football will continue on television in 1983 as in the past and we hope it will be both exciting and successful," said CFA executive director Chuck Neinas.

"Eventually, we trust the final Supreme Court decision will enable a more innovative approach to college football television in 1984."

White set aside until at least October the federal appeals court ruling that the NCAA violated federal antitrust law in negotiating contracts with ABC, CBS and the Turner Broadcasting System. His order returns control of the telecasts to the NCAA until the full court can consider the formal NCAA appeal.

"Justice White's order is similar to the initial reaction of the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals (which refused last week to stay the order voiding the NCAA's network television contracts)," Neinas said.

"After further study, we believe the Supreme Court will uphold the ruling of the circuit and district courts," he said.

Neinas canceled a CFA meeting of top college football powers scheduled for Aug. 2 in Atlanta, which was called following the NCAA's setback in the appellate court and was to discuss a television plan for the coming season.

White's order made that a moot question. It also produced mixed reaction from the parties involved.

"We're absolutely delighted," said John Toner, athletic director at the University of Connecticut and president of the NCAA. "The stay works to the benefit of virtually all the football-playing members of the NCAA who clearly want the continuation of national controls."

That was not the viewpoint at the University of Oklahoma, which, with the University of Georgia, had led the fight for schools to independently control football telecast rights.

"We are disappointed," said Andy Coats, mayor of Oklahoma City and attorney for the university. "It's clear to us that it's an antitrust violation."

Coats said the impact would be immediate.

"This means the 1983 season will surely be under the control of the NCAA contract. There will be very limited appearances this year. The two schools will lose millions of dollars."

Oklahoma and Georgia are guaranteed only one football appearance each in the NCAA package this fall.

Coats said he wasn't at all sure that the Supreme Court would agree to hear the case in the fall, but that if it does, he expects it would rule against the NCAA. "The odds are 60-40 that they'll accept the case," he said.

"I don't know that it has much of an ultimate effect. But the 1983 season is gone."

Wayne Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, saw White's ruling differently.

"The total interests of college football and all but a few selfish institutions are best served by Justice White's decision, which hopefully will permit the orderly presentation of college football on television this season," he said.

The networks were predictably pleased.

"This lifts the uncertainty in the marketplace, which will allow us now to proceed with our plans for 1983," said Donn Bernstein of ABC. "That's a very significant factor from our point of view."

"We're looking forward to the season now that the uncertainties have been resolved," said Jay Rosenstein of CBS.

TBS will show 19 games, mostly on Saturday nights, some on Thursday nights.

"We are proceeding with plans for our games," said Mike Oglesby.

The first American president to throw out the ceremonial first ball at the start of a major league season was William Howard Taft in 1910.

Canada I Moving On Leaders

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Vaulting into second place among the foreign boats vying to challenge for the America's Cup, Canada I is starting to show the potential for making a Cinderella story come true.

"If we could get fast enough and smart enough to beat Australia II, we might stand a chance of winning the America's Cup," Canadian skipper Terry McLaughlin said Thursday after gaining his sixth win in seven races by outslipping Advance of Australia and France 3.

"It's nice," moving from fifth to second among the seven foreign challengers in a single day, "but it doesn't really mean much at this point. Everything is very premature," said McLaughlin, the only foreign skipper to chalk up two victories on the day.

Continuing to dominate the foreign trials, Australia II beat Britain's Victory '83 to hold first place with 7.88 points.

Canada I's victories earned it second with 5.72. Challenge 12 of Australia dropped to third with 5.6, Victory '83 of Britain held fourth with 5.44, Azzurra of Italy fifth with 5.2, France 3 sixth with 1.12 and Advance was last with 0.8.

Meanwhile, Defender took two races in fresh breezes from stalemate Courageous in trials to select the American boat which will defend the 132-year-old trophy that has become the top prize in yachting.

Not satisfied yet with his boat's performance, Defender skipper Tom Blackaller, who faces 1980 America's Cup winner Dennis Conner and Liberty today, said more major modifications are in store before the start of August trials to make Defender faster in heavy air.

Defender won by 28 seconds in the first race. In the second race, Defender was trailing by 12 seconds after two legs when Courageous bowman Robbie Young fell overboard, forcing his boat to turn back and pick him up. Defender won by one minute, 12 seconds.

In the July trials, Defender leads with a 6-2 record, Liberty is 5-3 and Courageous 2-8. The New York Yacht Club will chose one of the boats to represent it in the best-of-seven series starting Sept. 13 against the top foreign boat.

Canada I's margin over Advance was a whopping 4:03. In its other race, Canada I was leading France 3 by nearly a minute on the third leg when the French boat snapped a forestay and had to drop out.

Australia II took a bye after beating Victory '83.

In other races in the challenger series, Challenge 12 lost to Azzurra, but rebounded to defeat Advance.

Azzurra, sailed by Cino Ricci, scored a 36-second victory over Challenge 12 in the first race, but the Australians filed a protest over on the first tacking leg. Azzurra lost to Victory '83 in the afternoon race.

Bambino All Stars

Winterville 23

Martin County 4

Bronswell Patrick cracked a three-run homer and drove in three more runs with a triple to lead the Winterville All Stars to a 23-4 trouncing of Martin County in the Bambino Little League District 5 Tournament.

Patrick finished the game with four hits, while Clifton Bryant, Jim Faulkner and Mark Smith each had three.

Winterville took the lead with a run in the second, but Martin County plated four in the top of the third to take control. Winterville answered with a run in the bottom half of the inning and went out front to stay with four in the fourth.

Robbie Nichols walked, William Crandell reached first on an error and Joe Deloach singled to load the bases before Patrick's triple.

Patrick's homer highlighted a 17-run fifth inning eruption by Winterville to put the game out of reach.

Winterville will face Nashville Saturday at 6 p.m. in the second round of the double elimination event.

Southern Pitt 20

Tarboro 2

WINTERVILLE — Johnny Sherrod and Eugene Lee each rapped two-run homers to lead the Southern Pitt All Stars to a 20-2 victory over Tarboro in the District 5 Bambino League

Tournament Thursday

Winning pitcher Gene Stancill threw a two-hitter and struck out 11 batters for Southern Pitt.

Sherrod ended the game with four hits, including a pair of doubles. Lee and Gray Mills had three hits, while Alonza Wallace had two for Southern Pitt.

Beacham Wins

Lee Beacham won the Thursday Night Amateur tournament at Putt-Putt Golf and Games with a four-under 68.

Leslie Williams finished second with a one-under 71.

Good Musical Portrait Of Billy Joel Sunday In HBO's Concert

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Joel doesn't disco on the revolving talk-show, video-dance TV circuit. You won't catch him trading barbs with Johnny, talking Hollywood with Merv or high-steppin' on "Solid Gold." But, in a very rare TV performance, you can see him in concert on HBO Sunday night.

Joel, rock 'n' roll's "Piano Man" who had 14 years of classical-music training, avoids the "Plastic Man" label by shunning TV. "He thinks it would be selling out his audience," says Pierre Cosette, producer of the "Grammy Awards" show, which has been unsuccessful in luring Joel to perform.

Joel also routinely rejects offers from the "Tonight" show. "I wouldn't have control of the production," he says. "I don't like the silver-foil curtains in the background or being followed by Julia Child. It doesn't represent what we do."

Until the HBO broadcast, Joel did perform on the younger, hipper "Saturday Night Live," which is known for the quality of its sound system and its hands-off policy toward the acts.

At first, Joel resisted HBO, too. He was afraid it would be an artsy documentary, and "the whole point of being a musician is to play, not make movies." He also was concerned that cameras would block his fans' views and "interfere with the communication between us and the audience."

But he changed his mind for several reasons, not the least of which was that HBO wouldn't have to stop the music for words from the sponsors. "A show has a flow to it, and I didn't want commercial interruptions," he says.

In addition, Joel wasn't going to tour the United States this year, and "a lot of people haven't seen us live. It's a good representation of what we do, as long as people turn up the sound loud."

Joel's fears — that TV's minuscule speakers wouldn't capture the full sound of his six-man band — were alleviated by an agreement with 82 stations across the country to simulcast the broadcast.

Getting radio's audio into perfect sync with HBO's video requires that "we get the radio feed before it goes up on satellite for the video distribution," says Fred Moore, chief engineer for WNEW-FM in New York. "Otherwise, there will be a slight time displacement."

HBO's lively 65-minute broadcast, edited from a 2½-hour concert Joel performed last December on his native Long Island, captures him at his sassy-brassy best, belting out his biting lyrics, pounding the piano and whistling as if he had a separate instrument in "The Stranger."

For those who want concert renditions to exactly mimic the records, Joel duplicates the studio sound on all his numbers, including "Allentown," "My Life," and the rousing "Only the Good Die Young."

The chief flaw in the broadcast, which will be repeated July 30, is the direction. It's too busy to the point of distraction. The camera rarely stays on one performer for any length of time, shuttling from player to player — something the eye wouldn't do nearly as much at the concert.

Close-ups of Joel emphasize his good-natured hamminess, as he plays one-handed, jumps on the stage and mugs for the audience. "I didn't realize until I watched this how much communication goes on with the drummer and others," he says. "There's a lot of inside stuff that this picked up."

One novelty is seeing Joel water down the keyboard after his next-to-last number. He explained that his manic hand-slides on the piano rub his skin raw, so he adopted Jerry Lee Lewis' water therapy during the final stops on last year's tour.

Unlike the new group Duran Duran, which makes videos first, then writes matching songs, Joel composes music for the sound, not the chance to be seen on MTV.

"Video will never replace records," he says. "You can't get Beethoven on video."

RAINED OUT — Diana Ross, dressed in a skintight jumpsuit, ignores the downpour during a free concert Thursday evening in New York's Central Park that drew an estimated crowd of 800,000 people. After about 45 minutes she was forced to cut the concert short as a severe thunderstorm moved over the city. (AP Laserphoto)

George Jones To Stand Trial

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Country singer George Jones has been ordered to stand trial on cocaine charges next month after defense attorneys failed again to substitute a benefit concert for prosecution.

Hinds County Circuit Judge L. Breland Hilburn had revoked all deals with Jones in April because the Sept. 16 concert date came after a court-imposed deadline. On Thursday Hilburn refused to reinstate the plea bargain, which would have also called for six months' probation, and ordered trial to begin Aug. 2.

Jones was charged with cocaine possession after being stopped for speeding on a Jackson highway on March 29, 1982. The concert was to have aided programs to fight drug abuse and child abuse.

'Men At Work' Open U. S. Tour

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The trailblazing Australian rock 'n' roll group Men At Work opened their first American concert tour by practicing their new-found Southern accents on an enthusiastic, mostly teen-age crowd.

"Hi, y'all," lead singer-guitarist Colin Hay and woodwind-keyboard player Greg Ham said as the group greeted the soldout crowd of 4,400 at the Grand Ole Opry House Thursday night.

At the start of the 1½-hour concert, security guards succeeded in keeping the crowd in their seats, except for two mini-skirted teen-age girls who jumped on stage and joined Hay as he danced a "New Wave" jig.

The pair were quickly whisked away by the Opryland security guards. The guards' efforts to keep the audience off their feet proved in vain when Hay asked, "Are you allowed to dance in Nashville?" and added, "As far as I'm concerned, you can dance."

With that, the fans were on their feet, clapping, singing and dancing in the aisles and in front of the stage.

Toward the end of the concert, Ham, who had said at a news conference earlier Thursday that he didn't know why the group was opening its three-month U.S. tour in Nashville, told the audience, "I know now."

Olivier cast HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Laurence Olivier continues to tackle American television with a starring role in "The Last Days of Pompeii," a seven-hour miniseries for ABC-TV.

David ("Seven Brides for Seven Brothers") Gerber will produce the series in conjunction with Columbia Pictures Television.

Olivier will portray Gaius, a Roman patrician who acts as a catalyst between the Christians and pagans in a cast that includes Ernest Borgnine, Ned Beatty, Linda Burn, Nicholas Clay, Olivia Hussey and Duncan Regehr.

Lawmakers Boost State Employee Ins. Premiums

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State employees' insurance premiums will increase 25 cents per person each month as a result of a bill enacted Thursday by the General Assembly.

The Senate voted 37-0 and the House 90-1 to enact the premium hike and several improvements in the existing state employee insurance plan as it pushed to complete its work by today.

The 1983 session already has set the record as the longest odd-year session. It surpassed the record set by the 1971 session, which convened on Jan. 13, on Thursday. The 1981 session began Jan. 12.

The premium increase and a matching state contribution would be used to defray the cost of converting from the state policy to a private insurance plan when employees leave state government.

Other changes in the new law:

- Make the board of trustees which administers the health plan a freestanding board, removing it from the state budget office. The board will continue to consult with the General Assembly before making any major change in the plan.

- Extend coverage of dependants from age 18 to 19 if the state employee is legally responsible for the child and age 26 if the child is in school.
- Extend coverage of in-patient treatment for mental illness, alcoholism or drug addiction for more than 30 days a year with approval of the insurance plan administrator.
- Extend coverage to developmental and congenital orthognathic or jaw surgery when it is medically required or when it is the only treatment to correct a deformity. The surgery would have to be approved by the plan administrator.
- Limit coverage of home health agency services to 30 days a year unless extended by the plan administrator under the new law.

The House and Senate rejected a proposal estimated to bring $3 million to the state each year. The change would have required those covered by the state insurance plan to give up the right to file suit in certain cases.

Under the proposal, a state employee who was injured in an automobile accident would be covered by insurance but would turn over to the state his right to sue the driver who caused the accident.

In other legislative action:

Construction

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved a bill to abolish the Capital Building Authority which oversees all state construction, but the Senate refused to suspend the rules to immediately consider the bill.

That means the Senate will vote Friday whether to establish a new State Building Commission under the budget office. The existing building authority is under the Department of Administration.

The nine-member commission would consist of five people appointed by the governor, two by the Senate president and two by the House speaker.

The group would adopt rules and procedures for building projects, bidding and awarding contracts, engineering, issuing permits and other duties assigned by the governor.

The bill would transfer to the budget office many duties of the Insurance Department and about 34 employees from that department who are involved in building inspections.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Conrad Duncan, D-Rockingham, said there now are 18 agencies that deal with builders and the bill would simplify the procedures. He said there is not enough building inspection going on now and the bill also should correct that.

Several people questioned whether the commission should be moved from the Department of Administration because its job is to administer already existing laws and because the budget office has said it does not want the added responsibility.

Child Porn

A bill strengthening North Carolina's child pornography and prostitution law was approved unanimously by both houses after a joint conference committee resolved differences between Senate and House versions.

Under the bill, it would be a felony for a parent or guardian to have sex with a person under age 16 or to facilitate prostitution involving children. Allowing children to distribute pornographic material would be a misdemeanor, while using children in any pornographic film, magazine, play or other form of entertainment would be a felony.

The conference committee removed language objectionable to the Senate that included simulated sex acts in the definition of pornography. Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, had argued that that provision would outlaw such movies as "Romeo and Juliet."

"I think we've provided a remedy that strengthens our child abuse statutes already on the books without hurting innocent people," said Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg.

Alcohol At School

The Senate enacted a bill barring possession of alcoholic beverages on public school grounds after amending it to specify that the law pertains to possession on one's person only.

"That will make clear that it's not illegal for a teacher to have a case of beer in the trunk of his car," said Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe.

Hit and Run

The House voted to concur with a conference committee bill rewriting the state's hit-and-run law, which the state Supreme Court ruled was too vague.

Under the bill, it's a felony not to stop after an accident in which the driver has reason to know that an injury or death has occurred. It would be a misdemeanor to fail to stop without such knowledge or when just property damage is involved.

An amendment was added to specify that the driver must remain at the scene until dismissed by a law enforcement officer, unless he first must drive to a telephone to summon help.

Find Interferon Is A Wart Treatment

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Interferon helps treat resistant and persistent genital warts, according to researchers at Duke University Medical Center.

"I'm encouraged with the results because these are patients who have not responded to any other type of therapy and appear to be responding in an excellent manner," said Duke gynecologist Dr. Stanley Gall, who directed the preliminary study.

Gall and his colleagues treated 16 patients whose genital warts had not responded to standard treatments and had persisted for six months or more.

Fifteen patients, or 94 percent, responded to the treatment. The warts completely cleared up in six patients.

Gall said 95 percent of the people who get the warts are easily cured by one or two applications of either podophyllin or trichloroacetic acid.

After testing various other treatments, Gall chose injections of interferon, which is being tested as a treatment for various viral diseases.

Today's Cryptokuip clue: W equals T.

The Cryptokuip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Jack of ♦.

Declarer took tricks wherever he could. Unfortunately, when it came to adding up the total, he had only 11—one fewer than he had contracted for.

Once North established via the Stayman convention that his side had a 4-4 heart fit, he raised over game as a slam invitation. This specifically asked for trump quality, and South's trumps were certainly good enough to accept.

West led the top of his spade sequence, and declarer was delighted that he had been offered a free finesse. Declarer took his two spade tricks, discarding clubs, then crossed to the ace of diamonds and tried the trump finesse. West won and exited with a trump, and declarer eventually had to concede a club trick for down one.

Correct technique will allow declarer to make the slam after trying all his chances. He should ruff the spade lead in dummy and take the trump finesse. Best defense is to allow declarer to win the first trump. Declarer gets back to dummy by ruffing the ace of spades and takes another trump finesse. Now West wins and forces declarer with a spade. South ruffs and draws the last trump, then cashes the king-queen of diamonds as both defenders follow. Now he can overtake the jack of diamonds with the ace and try the club finesse. When that succeeds, declarer can get back to the board by overtaking the two of diamonds to repeat the club finesse and land the slam.

Found Body Of A Third Victim

SNEADS FERRY, N.C. (AP) — The body of a Lumberton man was recovered late Thursday near New River Inlet where a fishing boat broke up Wednesday, drowning two other men.

The Coast Guard identified the third victim as Sam Williams of Lumberton. His body washed ashore about 6 p.m. Thursday about 2½ miles from the inlet.

FOCUS

Blame It On The Moon

Don't be surprised if your newspaper reports an unusually high number of crimes for the next few days. Why? Because the moon is full. Researchers have found that crimes increase during full moon periods. So do incidents of suicide, auto accidents, and strange behavior in general. Some experts believe the moon's gravitational pull affects people's bodies, just as it affects the ocean tides. Bizarre occurrences associated with the full moon are nothing new. They gave rise to the word "lunatic" and have appeared in literature and folklore for centuries. As Shakespeare wrote in "Othello": "It is the very error of the moon. She comes more near the Earth than she was wont. And makes men mad."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to pretty much confine yourself to whatever worldly tasks and obligations or responsibilities face you so that you can build up your good name and credit.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Fine day to find out what your position is in the business world and how you can best improve it. Seek assistance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into the practical details of any new outlets you are contemplating to get in to so that you know what you are doing.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do only those practical things that are important and then get busy trying to please your loved one more.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A fine weekend to find out what allies expect of you and make a list of them. Handle these tasks with alacrity.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day for catching up on Saturday routines that you have been neglecting lately as well as other practical affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do only those things that are necessary and then out for recreation that you need to relieve tensions. Watch your money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get your home fixed up more as you want it to be and feel happier there in the future. Entertain tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get your shopping done more efficiently today and save time and money. Later enjoy the company of good friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your property for possible needed repairs and make any changes around the house you like.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to do whatever will improve your personal appearance and make you feel more sure of yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget about being gregarious now and study your finances and property and know how you stand.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk to a good friend who can assist you in gaining benefits you desire and should have. See long-lost friends tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to go ahead with a practical plan once every angle of it is well studied and understood. Be sure to give an academic education and then you can be sure your progeny will become successful.

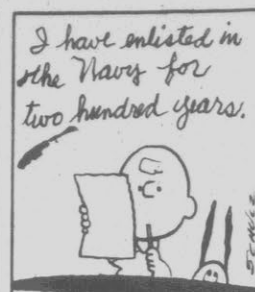

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Alfred Henderson of Lumberton and Ernie Jones of Brooklyn, N.Y., drowned after the accident Wednesday morning. Their bodies were recovered later that same day. James Jones of Laurinburg was the only survivor when an offshore swell pushed the 21-foot fishing boat onto a sandbar and capsized it.

Navy Yeoman 3rd Class James M. Foreman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Foreman of Greenville, was promoted to his present rank while serving with Patrol Squadron 22, Barbers Point, Hawaii.

Airman Joseph H. Smith, son of Linwood H. Smith of Route 2, Farmville, graduated from the Air Force maintenance management information control system course at Chanute AFB, Ill., where he learned troubleshooting techniques, repair of system files and the use of remote terminal devices. He will now serve at Myrtle Beach AFB, S.C., with the 354th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Spec. 4 Milton Battle, son of Vernell Battle of Route 3, Grifton, arrived for duty at Fort Lewis, Wash. Battle, an ammunition specialist with the 9th Infantry Division, was previously assigned in Fischbach, West Germany. His wife is the former Aretha Cannon of Grifton.

Pvt. John D. Hines Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hines of Route 3, Williamston, completed a basic field artillery cannoneer course at Fort Sill, Okla., where he was taught the duties of a howitzer or gun section crewman. He is a 1976 graduate of Williamston High School.

Col. Joseph V. Rafferty was assigned to the Army's 193rd Infantry Brigade in Panama where he will be chief of staff. He recently completed a three-year tour of duty with the joint chiefs of staff in Washington, D.C., where he was awarded the Defense Superior Service Medal. His wife is the former Sherrill Harris of Farmville and they have two children. His family will accompany him on the three-year tour of duty.

Airman Rodney L. McCarter, son of Mary E. McCarter and Benjamin McCarter, both of Ayden, completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Texas, where he studied the Air Force mission, organization, customs and received special training in human relations. He will now begin on-the-job training in the communications operations field at Whiteman AFB, Md. He is a 1982 graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School.

Staff Sgt. John W. McArthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. McArthur of Grifton, reenlisted in the Air Force at Barksdale AFB, La., after 10 years of military service. He is a metal fabrication technician with the 2nd Civil Engineering Squadron and a 1973 graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School.

Airman 1st Class Donald R. Horton, son of Bobbie H. Brown of Route 2, Greenville, participated in Global Shield 83, an exercise involving Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps units and elements of the Canadian forces. Horton is a missile facilities specialist with the 308th Strategic Missile Wing at Little Rock AFB, Ark. He is a 1981 graduate of D.H. Conley High School.

Sara E. Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Baker of Greenville, completed ROTC field training encampment at Eglin AFB, Fla., where she participated in orientations on jet aircraft, career opportunities, human relations education and equal opportunity training. Physical fitness and survival training were emphasized. Ms. Baker is a student at North Carolina State University in Raleigh and a 1981 graduate of J.H. Rose High School.

Frederick W. Lilley, Social Security district manager in Greenville, was promoted to lieutenant colonel by the Army reserve. He is a member of the 360th Civil Affairs Brigade and serves as the unit's economics officer. He is also responsible for the brigade's officer efficiency report program. Lilley has been in the reserve for 20 years and had two years of active duty service. He is a native of Williamston and a 1960 graduate of East Carolina University.

Sgt. William E. Johnson, a 1976 graduate of Roanoke High School in Robersonville, received a letter of appreciation for superior performance of duty while serving with Marine Air Control Group 28, 2nd Marine Aircraft Group, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point. Johnson joined the Marines Corps in August, 1976.

David J. Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max T. Gray of Greenville, completed a ROTC field training encampment at Charleston AFB, S.C., where he participated in orientations on jet aircraft, career opportunities, human relations education and equal opportunity training. Physical fitness and survival training were also emphasized. Gray is a student at Mississippi State University.

Airman Brenda D. Gibbs (above), daughter of Esther Gibbs of Route 4, Greenville, was assigned to Keesler AFB, Miss., after completing basic training for six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex. She studied the Air Force mission, organization, customs and received special training in human relations. She will now receive specialized instruction in the administration field. She is a 1979 graduate of North Pitt High School.

Life As It's Lived

The Stoic Child Poses Real Test For Mother

By GAIL MICHAELS
I'm sure that those of you who still occasionally resort to barbarism when disciplining your children have noted that there are two kinds of children in this world, the ones who cry when they are spanked and the ones who don't.

I happen to have two children who could raise the level of the ocean at the sight of a wooden spoon. The merest tap produces a heart-rending torrent from the wounded child, followed in Zachary's case by an "I need a hug!" quivered out between sobs.

This plea, of course, is designed to make the guilty parent feel lower than a sow's belly in a subterranean sty. And believe me, it does. The Marquis de Sade should have experienced such remorse. At the same time, though, I feel abused in some indirect fashion because Zachary's crafty employment of ultimate agony reminds me so much of my sister's consummate skill in that area.

"We never could spank her," my parents would say. "She goes all to pieces, she's so sensitive."

So was I, I kept telling them, but they didn't believe me. I was one of those who grit their teeth and refuse to shed a tear until the pain becomes unbearable. I stood there like an idiot, thinking I was proving something. What, I still don't know.

Phillip, incidentally, was a teeth-gritter, too. "Finally, my mother learned to use some other form of discipline," he says proudly when discussing it. The catch is that she learned when he was about 11, and Zachary at 3 already has me nearly trained.

After much reflection on the subject, I have come to the conclusion that there's some kind of short-circuit in the reasoning process of the stoic child. And the little boy who lives next door to us bears this theory out.

Talking to this kid is like experiencing a mild concussion. For instance, after his mother has patiently explained the nature of her upcoming Caesarean delivery, he demonstrated his thorough understanding of the subject by responding, "Does this mean we can go out for pizza while you're in the hospital?"

Any kid who thinks like this would naturally refuse to follow in the watery footsteps of his older brother. When the two of them decided to get creative and hung a beach towel from the banister of their home's catwalk so that they could swing from the living room to the entrance hall, it was the younger one who provoked most of his mother's ire, despite the fact that he was the one who decided that they had better heed her repeated warnings and untie the towel. Then again, he failed to inform his brother, who was in mid-air at the time of this decision.

But his mother was angrier about her younger son's refusal to cry when she spanked him than she was about his failure to communicate. She felt that she had to make him feel some remorse. The confrontation was grim, and she eventually decided that she had made an impression despite the lack of tears.

But after a half-hour retreat to his bedroom, he emerged with the statement, "I'll bet you'd like to know my secret for not crying."

"I suppose I would," replied his mother.

"Well, I'm not gonna tell you."
