Central Prison A Tough Nut To Wrecking Crew

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Workers tearing down the old Central Prison say they have one of the toughest demolition jobs they've ever faced. "Prisons are built to hold people in," said Pete Decker, superintendent of a wrecking crew and a 33-year veteran in demolition. "There's a lot more concrete in there, a lot more reinforcing than you usually would see. You're talking about 30-inch walls."

Decker and his crew from the Bay City, Mich., firm of Dore & Associates have been at Central Prison for three months. He estimated that they would finish their work by November or December.

The buildings went up between 1869 and 1884, said Warden Nathan A. Rice Jr. Local historian Elizabeth Reid Murray said convict labor built the prison, and granite quarried on the site was used.

The maximum-security inmates who once lived in the old buildings have been living in newer quarters at Central since winter, Rice said. By the time the $36 million construction and demolition project is completed, there will be an athletic field and new housing for 192 working inmates on the site where buildings are being razed.

Two Injured In Pursuing Car

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Two people were injured — including the driver of a fleeing automobile — and four cars damaged during a chase in east Durham, police said.

Lt. R.B. Day said he saw an Oldsmobile hit another car late Friday night and when the driver of the Oldsmobile failed to stop, Day said he put on his lights and siren and pursued the car.

Day said the chase never exceeded 50 mph and stayed at about 35 mph most of the time.

The driver of Oldsmobile, Deborah Sue Jones of Morrisville, was taken to Duke Hospital where she was treated for a fractured right ankle, Day said.

Reagan Staff Gearing Up For An Expected Campaign

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While the nation's capital enters its midsummer doldrums, President Reagan and his aides are doing everything that a candidate and his staff would do in gearing up for a presidential campaign.

The only thing missing is a formal declaration of the president's intentions.

Reagan's advisers have identified key groups whose support they want to court and set up schedules to present Reagan to them; plans are being drawn up for a campaign organization; a timetable for the announcement of the president's intentions is being prepared, and key problem areas are being identified.

Presidential aides say a preliminary re-election committee will be formed on Oct. 15. Some say the president will announce his candidacy by Nov. 1; others say the announcement will follow his two-week trip to Asia, which is likely to begin on Nov. 2.

The initial disclosure of that timetable was described by White House sources as "a deliberate signal" of the president's plans.

With political planning moving forward, the president and his aides are glowing over progress in tackling what had earlier looked like a campaign killer: the nation's unemployment rate.

The president's travels this summer are those of a candidate: He is talking to such key constituent groups as Hispanic-Americans, veterans, a conservative labor union — the International Longshoremen's Association, which supported him in 1980 — and the American Bar Association.

And he is visiting politically important states — Florida, Texas and California — where Hispanics in particular are becoming significant factors in elections.

To the suggestion that the public and private steps being undertaken were those of a campaign organization moving into high speed, one senior White House official said, "That's exactly right."

During the past week, the president and his aides were in the midst of a mini-campaign to try to close the gender gap — the term used to reflect the greater opposition women show to Reagan when compared with men's opinions of the president.

On Wednesday, Reagan apologized to the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, whose convention participants had been turned away from a White House tour a day earlier as the result of a mixup in the White House visitors' office.

Hunting More Victims In Another Car-Bomb Attack

By The Associated Press

Rescuers searched for more victims in Baalbek's central market today as residents of the ancient Lebanese city staged a general strike to protest a car-bomb explosion that killed 35 people and wounded 133.

Most of the dead were buried in a mass grave before sundown Sunday, six hours after a car loaded with 220 pounds of explosives devastated the crowded market in the predominantly Shiite Moslem city of 40,000 inhabitants.

Schools, shops and banks were closed today in a "day of mourning" called by city leaders and the local pro-Iranian militia that runs the city in east Lebanon's Syrian-controlled

Bekaa Valley, police said.

It was the second deadly car bombing in Syrian-controlled Lebanese territory in a three-day span. A remote-controlled car bomb destroyed a Sunni Moslem mosque in the northern city of Tripoli during midday prayers Friday, killing at least 20 worshippers.

"The wandering massacre hits Baalbek," said the front-page headline of Lebanon's leading independent newspaper An-Nahar today.

Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan said the Baalbek and Tripoli bombings were part of a "plan by foreign hands that seek to rekindle internal strife in Lebanon whenever a ray of hope for the nation's salvation appears."

Several Major Banks Increasing Their Prime Rate To 11 Percent

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major commercial banks today raised their prime lending rates by one-half percentage point to 11 percent, the highest level in nearly six months.

The banks raising their prime, or base, lending charge included Citibank in New York, the nation's second-largest commercial bank by deposits; No. 3 Chase Manhattan Bank in New York; sixth-ranked Chemical Bank in New York; No. 8 First National Bank in Chicago; No. 10 Bankers Trust, New York, and No. 13 Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh.

The prime rate had stood at 10.5 percent since Feb. 28, when the industry lowered it from 11 percent. The 10.5 percent rate had been the lowest since Nov. 6, 1978.

The last time a major bank raised its prime rate was when Chase Manhattan raised it to 12 percent from 11.5 percent last Nov. 16. But that was after Chase had undercut the rest of the industry by going to 11.5 percent on Oct. 22, 1982, and no other major banks followed.

The last time all the major banks raised their prime rates was Feb. 17, 1982, when they lifted the charge to 17 percent from 16.5 percent.

The gradual decline in the prime rate from early 1981 until last February had followed declines in open-market interest rates, which in turn lowered banks' cost of obtaining funds for lending.

CYCLIST INJURED — Members of the Winterville rescue squad give emergency treatment to a motorcyclist who was injured early Sunday morning on Mill Street in Winterville. According to Winterville police officials, the motorcycle was driven by Dennis Lee Wilson, of Ayden and was headed north on Mill Street when it collided with a car that was driven by Charlie Lester Blount, of Route 1, Winterville. Officers said the Blount vehicle turned into the path of the Wilson motorcycle and the bike hit the rear of the car throwing Wilson off. Investigators said Blount was charged with failing to see his intended move could be made in safety and driving under the influence. Damage was placed at $500 to the motorcycle and the car was listed as a total loss. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Heavy Rain, High Winds In Some Pitt Areas

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Water Plant reported a "trace of rainfall" in the Greenville area this weekend; however Black Jack and other areas of the county reported heavy thunderstorms and high winds.

"There were actually two storms over the weekend," Malcolm Green, assistant director of the Greenville Utilities Commission, said.

"The one Saturday was harder on us than the Sunday storm. I guess it started around lunchtime and the bulk of it was down around the Black Jack and Hudson's Crossroads area."

Green said there were a number of scattered fuses blown, but "no real damage." He also said "a lot of lightning strikes" were reported.

Green said a second crew was called out

Saturday, but "only to speed up the process of fixing fuses."

According to a spokesman at the weather plant, the high temperature both days was 95. The low temperature was 68 on Saturday and 67 on Sunday.

Dick Flye of Carolina Telephone said there may have been some damage to some individual telephone lines, but "nothing major."

Leroy James, Pitt County agricultural extension agent, said the rain was beneficial to some crops in the county.

"I haven't been out to check for damages in the fields yet, but there were a lot of benefits in terms of rain for soybeans and peanuts. I'm not sure at this point if it will help the tobacco and the corn, but there is some hope now for soybeans and peanuts," James said.

Wedding Vows Said On Sunday Afternoon

Jennifer Lynn Sutton of Greenville and Douglas Lee Coward of Winterville were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the Marantha Free Will Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin E. Sutton and Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Coward, both of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. James W. Churchill of Winterville.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Linwood Butts, uncle of the bride. He was assisted by the Rev. Alvis Harris of Greenville. A program of nuptial music was presented by Gordon Sutton, brother of the bride, who sang "Surround Me With Love," "Sweet, Sweet Spirit," "The Wedding Prayer" and "Bless Be the Tie." He was assisted by his wife, Mrs. Judy Sutton, pianist, and Mrs. Carolyn Garris, organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and was escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of white silkened organza and chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice and a Queen Anne neckline with an overlay of lace and pearls. The dropped back waistline was outlined with matching lace. The full bishop sleeves appliqued with chantilly lace motifs were closed with deep lace cuffs. The A-line skirt featuring scattered motifs of lace was encircled with a deep lace border continuing around the cathedral-length train which was enhanced with an inverted V-panel of crystal pleated tiers of silkened organza edged with chantilly lace. Her two-tiered fingertip veil of silkened bridal illusion bordered with chantilly lace was attached to a Juliet cap of lace and pearls. The bride wore a strand of pearls which belonged to the grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Bertha Coward.

Educators Attend Convention

Twelve women educators from three local chapters of Alpha Delta Kappa International recently attended the international convention in Washington, D.C.

The group attended business sessions and social functions at the convention and visited historic places in the capital area including a tour of the White House. They also attended Sunday services at Christ Church in Alexandria.

A highlight of the convention was a reception honoring Grace Hager Andrews of Charlotte, who was installed as grand president of the sorority.

Representing local chapters were: Cora Whisnant and Elizabeth Savage, Fidelis Beta; Ann Byrd, Shirley Moore, Linda Whitehurst, Ada Bett Savage, Mary Irma Moore and Barbara Parker from Alpha Nu; Linda Ferebee, Vivian Mills, Peggy Rowlette and Mickey West from Alpha Iota.

ADK is an honorary sorority for women educators and locally serves the community through scholarships and other altruistic projects.

Of the three religions that sprang from the Middle East, Islam dominates there today. But Islam is not limited to the Middle East: it is the principal belief in some 40 nations in Asia and Africa, according to National Geographic.

MRS. DOUGLAS LEE COWARD

She carried a bouquet of silk white sweetheart roses and other spring flowers of purple, lavender, pink and yellow. The bouquet was centered with a bridal Bible which was covered and designed by Mrs. Ruth Nobles. Lisa Hardee of Greenville was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of lavender taffeta with a sheer flowered overlay. The dress was designed with a wide scoop neckline which was enhanced with a wide ruffle. The skirt was edged with three ruffles which raised at the side to create a Southern Belle pick-up. She carried a nosegay of purple, lavender, pink and yellow silk spring flowers.

Bridesmaids included Frances Sutton, sister-in-law of the bride; Donna Hodges and Becky Coward, sisters of the bridegroom; Andrea Cox, cousin of the bride; Karen Gaskins and Cheryl Ramsey, all of Greenville. They wore lavender dresses styled like that of the maid of honor and carried identical nosegays.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Randy and Gordon Sutton, brothers of the bride; Chris Sutton, nephew of the bride; Jeff Gould and Jimmy Hardee, both of Greenville; and William Covington of Winterville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ralph Messick and was attended by immediate family and close friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jayne Silliman of Greenville and the late Sherwood Silliman. She is a manager with Burger King in Greenville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit H. Woodruff of Greenville and Wilbur A. Ballenger Jr. of Lakeland, Fla. He is employed by Miller and Davis of Greenville.

The couple will live in Greenville.

the bridegroom, was ringbearer. Miranda Sutton, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress styled like that of the maid of honor and carried a basket of silk spring flowers.

Mrs. Sandra Harris directed the wedding. Mrs. Pam Dixon presided at the register. Chris Sutton and Tracy Hodges, niece of the bridegroom, distributed scrolls and programs.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride at the Elks Lodge immediately following the ceremony. Frances Sutton served cake and Mazil Butts, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sutton greeted guests and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Purser said goodbyes.

The couple was honored with an after-rehearsal party in the church fellowship hall given by the father and stepmother of the bridegroom. They were also entertained at a cookout given by the mother and stepfather of the bridegroom. A bridesmaids' luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Frances Sutton. The couple was honored with several showers.

The bridegroom graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School and attended East Carolina University. He is assistant manager at Butler's Shoes. The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is presently employed at Home Federal Savings in Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will reside at Route 9, Greenville.

Dear Abby Readers Say Hear, Hear To Calling Men

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: A woman wrote: "After 20 years of dating, I have come to the conclusion that my mother was wrong when she said, 'A lady never calls a gentleman — she waits for him to call her.'"

"I recently met a very attractive man and we seemed to hit it off very well, but instead of his taking my number and saying the usual, 'I'll call you,' he gave me his number and asked me to call him."

"Perfect! I had the option of either calling him or not. It was all up to me. I'd like to hear the opinion of men on this."

DON'T CALL ME. I'LL CALL YOU

My mail has been running 300-to-1 in favor of women calling men. Some of the choice responses:

DEAR ABBY: The notion that it is not proper for a lady to call a gentleman should have gone out with the invention of the telephone. I am flattered by any serious call from a woman who is interested in me.

S.B. IN BEL AIR, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 26-year-old male who has never been out on a date. Why? To say that I suffer from a crippling case of shyness is putting it mildly. I'd give anything if a woman called me. Then I'd be sure she wanted to go out with me. The feminist movement has helped some, but it isn't moving fast enough for me.

FRUSTRATED IN PHOENIX

DEAR ABBY: As a 23-year-old single woman I say bravo! Why shouldn't the woman take the initiative instead of waiting for a man to call her? The same goes for dancing. I love to dance, and when I'm at a club and the music is great, if nobody asks me to dance, I'll ask a man. It takes nerve for a woman to ask a man to dance, but I can take rejection if I'm turned down. It's only fair. Men have had to risk rejection for years.

UP FRONT IN GEORGETOWN

DEAR ABBY: In all my years of dating, I've seen very few relationships that weren't loused up in the end when the woman took the initiative and pursued the man. Somehow the male ego automatically goes into overdrive and then burns out as soon as the woman becomes aggressive. I'm sure it goes back to prehistoric days, when it was instinctive for the male to hunt, pursue and then conquer the female.

Your mother was right, and so was mine. A lady never calls a gentleman.

LEAVE THE CALLING TO ME

DEAR ABBY: Life has become much simpler since I quit asking ladies for their phone numbers. I just hand them my card with a simple, "Call me."

If they do, they're interested. If they don't, it's no big deal. From the lady's standpoint, she avoids the creeps, reserving the right to make or not make contact.

LADY'S CHOICE IN COLUMBUS

DEAR ABBY: I hope your idea catches on. I'm a 26-year-old male, and I am tired of my palms dripping sweat, and my tongue tying itself up in knots every time I call a woman.

I'd be ecstatic if a woman called me and said, "Let's go out sometime."

CALL ME IN OREGON

P.S. If it's a toll call, call me "collect."

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday

WASHINGTON — Elizabeth Ross Barton of Grifton and Mark Dewayne Gamiel of Manteo were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of Merrill Daniels, grandfather of the bride, at North Shores here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Garris of Grifton and Mr. and Mrs. David Barton Jr. of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Gamiel of Manteo.

The Rev. Daniels, grandfather of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Daniels, grandmother of the bride.

The bride was escorted by her father, David U. Barton Jr. She wore the formal wedding gown of peau de soie worn by her mother. The alencon lace bodice was re-embroidered with seed pearls and the full skirt extended into a chapel train. She wore a wreath of silk flowers with a waltz length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of silk ivory teacup roses, calla lilies and blue baby's breath tied with blue ribbons.

Phelicia Brooks of Stokes served as maid of honor. She wore a full length formal dress of apricot voile with an off-shoulder lace bodice. The skirt was styled with a self-fabric tie and a full skirt with a flounced ruffle. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a silk bouquet of ivory teacup roses, calla lilies and blue baby's breath tied with blue ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Rhonda Riddick of Winterville and Carressa Brooks of Stokes. Each attendant wore a gown and carried a bouquet like that of the maid of honor.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Kevin Gamiel of Manteo, brother of the bridegroom; and Mark Barton of Greenville, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Ashley J. Garris, mother and stepfather of the bride, was held at the home of the grandparents of the bride. Cake was served by Joyce Jones. Punch was poured by Emily Tunstall, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Mamie Blake, grandmother

Couple Marries On Sunday

Cynthia Ann Minch of Greenville and Donald Gregory Mills of New Bern were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Grace Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Randall Riggs and the Rev. Fred Lockwood officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kenneth Minch of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mills Jr. of New Bern.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Susan Fortlines. Jon Fortlines sang "The Wedding Prayer; Beverly Riggs sang "Each For the Other," "Sunrise, Sunset" and "with This Ring I Thee Wed." The bride sang "I Love You Truly."

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white chiffon over taffeta. The Victorian styled gown was fashioned with a high neckline encircled with embroidered Brussels lace. The sheer square yoke of Brussels lace was edged in a ruffled border of Brussels lace. The blouson bodice was enhanced by an inset band overlaid in Brussels lace. The long full sheer sleeved was fashioned in pleated chiffon with fitted cuffs of matching lace. The full skirt and attached chapel length train were edged at the hemline in a pleated flounce of chiffon banded in lace. She wore a white braid garden hat trimmed in miniature silk flowers and overlaid in imported white illusion extending to an elbow-length veil in the back. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white pom poms accented with baby's breath and tied with long pink streamers.

Maid of honor was Patsy Arnold of Greenville. She wore a formal gown of rose chiffon over matching taffeta. The high neckline was encircled with a Victorian collar of chiffon and taffeta bordered in rose silk Venice lace. The sheer scooped yoke of rose point d'esprit featured a wide border of rose chantilly lace in a berth collar effect accented with silk Venice lace. The sleeveless gown was designed with a modified natural waistline enhanced by a belt of rose satin ribbon. She wore a pink picture hat accented by a wide rose ribbon. She carried a nosegay of rose, pink and white pom poms and baby's breath accented with streamers.

Bridesmaids were Julia Ritter of Farmington, Mo., Phyllis Sutton and Billie Ward of Greenville. They each wore a ice pink gown styled like that of the honor attendant and carried an identical bouquet. Their pink picture hats were accented with pink ribbons.

Elaine Elks of Greenville was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of ice pink. She wore a pink picture hat accented with pink ribbons and carried pink rose petals. Chris Coggins of Greenville was ring bearer. Kenneth Minch, brother of the bride, and Kenneth Nelson lighted candles.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Donny Foreman of Hubert, Jeff Mills, cousin of the bridegroom, Kenneth Nelson and Chris Rivenbark, all of New Bern.

The mother of the bride wore a street-length dress of light pink polyester with long sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom chose a long-sleeved rose polyester street-length dress.

Lynn Dixon, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the reception hall of the church. Punch was poured by Edna Brooks, aunt of the bride. Cake was served by Ann Bailey. Rice bags were distributed by Melissa Dixon.

MRS. DONALD GREGORY MILLS

niece of the bridegroom, and Valerie Elks.

A bridesmaids' dinner was given by Edna Brooks, aunt of the bride, at Bonanza Restaurant. An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at Abrams Restaurant. Several other parties and showers were given in honor of the bridal couple.

The bride is a sophomore and the bridegroom is a junior at Free Will Baptist Bible College. The bridegroom is employed by Jim's Stereo and Video Center, Nashville, Tenn.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Nashville, Tenn.

Corey-Reddick Vows Said

Clara Louise Reddick and James Melvin Corey were united in marriage at the home of the bride Sunday afternoon at five o'clock. Elder Dennis Wooten of Falkland assisted by the Rev. Charles Wilson of Baltimore, Md. officiated at the double ring ceremony. Eldress Phillis Watts said a special blessing.

Miriam Harris of Greenville presented a program of wedding music. Virgil Glenn Lathan of Greenville, nephew of the bridegroom, and Pfc. Curtis Reddick, son of the bride of Fort Knox, Ky., sang "One In A Million You," "Sweetheart" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Willie Fleming of Greenville and the late Steven Ward. The bridegroom is the son of Lucy Lathan of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her mother and children and escorted by her brother, William Earl Ward, the bride wore a formal gown of sky blue and white of silkened organza over peau de soie designed with a V-neckline outlined in chantilly lace. A self-tie satin belt encircled the waistline from which fell the gathered skirt featuring double ruffles of chantilly lace outlining the hemline. The long puff sheer sleeves were self-ruffled at the wrist. Her fingertip veil silk illusion was attached to a white derby styled hat and she carried a cascade bouquet of miniature carnations, white pom poms and blue baby's breath tied with blue and white bridal satin. It was centered with an orchid corsage.

Carolyn Louise Riddick, daughter of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a formal baby blue gown of polyester knit which featured a drop shoulder neckline and miniature rolled shoulder straps. The A-line skirt was accented with a cummerbund at the natural waistline. She carried a nosegay of mixed summer flowers.

Bridesmaid was Thelma Wilson of Baltimore, Md. She wore a pink formal gown designed similar to that of the honor attendant and carried a nosegay of summer flowers with contrasting ribbons. They both wore sprays of baby's breath in their hair.

Roosevelt King was best man and the usher was Ernest Lamonte Eaton, nephew of the bridegroom of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of off-white with a wine jacket and the mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of blue and white. They were each presented a white carnation corsage.

The wedding was directed by Rosa L. Harris of Greenville.

A reception was held at the Bachelor Benedict Club and guests were greeted and introduced by Beula Peele. Cake was served by Ruby Taylor, sister of the bridegroom, and punch was poured by Reba Crandol and Linda Clemons presided at the guest registrar.

An after-rehearsal refreshment hour was held at the home of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Beaufort Community College in Washington and is owner and operator of Clara's Beauty Box in Greenville. The bridegroom is presently employed at Union Carbide in Greenville.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Greenville.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Turn an everyday necessity into an elegant "show-off" accessory by stitching this Tulip Time design on a background of colored plastic canvas. Make the phone book cover in shades of pink, rose, lavender and green on a pastel canvas or in gold and bronze tones on a darker canvas — or in any color combination you like.

The same design motif and materials could be used for covers for photo albums, engagement books, wastebaskets or any of a variety of other household items. Whatever your choice, you're likely to make several for yourself and a few more for much appreciated gifts. Alternate border patterns are included to allow for variations in shape and size.

To obtain directions for making the Tulip Time Phone Book Cover, send your request for Leaflet No. NL-0807 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. N-0807 by sending a check or money order for $12.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address, specifying your choice of pastel or bronze tones. The kit price includes canvas, yarns, needle, instructions and shipping charges.

When you are trying to decide on a particular pattern stitch for a needlepoint border, you must first find out how many canvas threads (for cotton canvas) or ribs (for plastic canvas) you have available on the outer edges of your finished piece. Since I'll be discussing plastic canvas today, I will use the term, "rib." However, the same principles will apply to the threads of cotton canvas or to the stitch count of evenweave fabrics.

Most people find it easier to count holes than to count ribs, but you must use a rib count to decide what pattern stitches will accurately fit in the space allowed. You can still take the easy way out and count holes, but subtract one from your hole count to give you the correct number of "working" ribs available in each direction. The ribs along the outer edge are not counted as working ribs since the pattern is not worked over them.

The front of the phone book cover pictured today was worked on a sheet of canvas with 109 holes down and 91 holes across, giving me 108 working ribs down and 90 working ribs across. Each of these rib counts can be evenly divided by 2, 3, 6 or 9. I could, therefore, use any pattern stitch that has a multiple of any of those numbers. If my rib count was 108 by 92, I could use patterns that had multiples of two or four.

"Multiple" means the number of ribs that are covered by a single repeat of the pattern stitch. The number of ribs needed for several repeats must, therefore, be a number evenly divisible by the stitch multiple.

If you are figuring on a single edge only, you will probably have several choices. When you are making a border around all edges of a square or rectangle, you must have the correct multiple in both directions.

Let's say that your minimum count on a piece was 108 by 92 and you particularly wanted to use a pattern with a three-rib multiple. In this case, just cut your piece with one additional rib across, so that you will have a usable count of 93 in that direction. The one extra rib will only add a fraction of an inch to the width.

An alternate choice is to work one or more extra rows of tent stitch on any single edge of the canvas to bring your count to the needed multiple.

Rib or thread multiples are seldom mentioned in pattern stitch descriptions but you can easily figure this for yourself from the stitch diagram or chart. Just count the chart lines crossed and this will equal the number of threads or ribs crossed.

BLUEBERRY KUCHEN

One of our most popular coffee cakes.
2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup (1/2 of a quarter-pound stick) butter
1 cup sugar
1 large egg
1/2 cup milk
2 cups fresh blueberries
Streusel Topping, see recipe

On wax paper thoroughly stir together flour, baking powder and salt. In a large bowl cream butter and sugar; beat in egg until blended. Add flour mixture and milk; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fold in blueberries. Turn into a buttered and floured 9-inch springform pan; sprinkle with Streusel Topping. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out without any batter adhering to it — 45 to 50 minutes.

Bridal Policy

The Daily Reflector will now publish engagement and wedding photographs of a bridal couple pictured together, or of the bride pictured individually.

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

"Serving Pitt County for over 50 Years"

Editorials

Tax Door Is Open

It's just as well the Pitt County Board of Education broke the ice in requesting that the County Commissioners approve the local option sales tax offered by the General Assembly.

Commission members had presumably talked about that extra half-cent tax among themselves as one recourse for the county; but each member was likely reluctant to bear the onus for proposing a tax increase, and one can hardly blame them.

Now the door has been opened.

The commissioners have agreed to contact municipalities and the county and city school boards to get their sentiments on the tax. County Manager Reginald Gray says that if all N.C. counties adopt the tax, local governments in Pitt could expect to receive something over $2 million.

Distribution of the tax money would be determined on a per capita basis among those counties in which the sales tax is collected.

Statewide, observers have speculated most of North Carolina's 100 counties will want to share in the program. Some may hedge.

There are urban counties, for instance, where people are saying that under the distribution plan they will be getting back less than they pay into the program. That does not please them. But for the majority of counties there is pretty much agreement that they do need additional money and the local option tax offers some relief without the prospect of more painful alternatives.

The proposal leaves room for hope, too, that with reasonable success in participation, the General Assembly may see fit to eventually abandon the sales tax on food. That is one revenue source that leaves a bitter taste in the mouths of most Tar Heels.

Take A Cold Shower

Even the thought of nostalgia in Italy for the "good old days of Benito Mussolini" seems improbable.

Yet, the occasion of the 100th anniversary of his birth turned-on a lot of aged followers and modern neo-fascists in Italy.

Most Italians recoil at the memory of hardships, dishonor and tyranny Il Duce brought his homeland. They want no more fascism ... any more than they want leprosy; and there are laws intended to insure it will not happen again.

Of course, the myths linger: "He was the one who ran Italian trains on time." (The fact is, back then not even a hundred Mussolinis could have made trains run on time in Italy.)

The young people who dream of past glories under Mussolini would do well to heed some very old advice: take a cold shower, it cures fantasies.

Delay The Cheers

NEW YORK (AP) — In the late 1970s there was much concern over the ailing state of the U.S. dollar.

As the dollar sank steadily in value against the Japanese yen, the Swiss franc and other major currencies, experts lamented its decline as a symptom of fading U.S. eminence in the world economy. There was even talk that oil-exporting countries might stop accepting payment in dollars and opt instead for a "basket" of currencies.

Since then, the situation has been dramatically reversed. Last week the dollar reached its highest level in more than a decade. By all appearances, its worldwide standing has been restored as a store of value.

But hold off on the cheers and applause for a moment. A strong dollar, it turns out, is a problem just as a weak dollar was. A different kind of a problem, but still a problem.

To be sure, some of the effects of the dollar's rise are beneficial. It makes imported goods relatively cheap in this country, thus helping to reduce domestic inflation. It has sent a torrent of bargain-minded tourists off to Europe and other foreign climes this summer, and one would presume that merchants there are happy to have the extra business the American visitors bring.

That is not the whole story, however. Europeans complain that, with a strong dollar, the United States in effect is hogging all the benefits of economic recovery for itself.

Because of the dollar's elevated position, they say, they must keep their interest rates as high as possible to try to discourage capital from fleeing their borders. Even that doesn't always work, they add — the dollar is pulling money away from their economies like a magnet as international investors seek a combination of safety and the highest possible return.

U.S. companies that do a large portion of their business overseas are also unhappy. The higher the dollar goes, the less attractive their merchandise becomes to foreign buyers.

Worst of all, as some see it, the dollar's strength is increasing the chances of a new wave of protectionism — efforts by individual countries to improve their domestic economies and preserve their citizens' jobs by setting up tariffs, import quotas and other barriers to outsiders.

In some quarters, protectionism is considered one of the chief causes of the Depression a half century ago. In 1930, the United States enacted the Smoot-Hawley tariff setting high duties on imports.

"Protectionism was supposed to raise the price of imported goods and thereby put Americans to work," Richard Leshner, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has said. "Instead, nations around the world retaliated by raising their own tariffs and American exports could find no buyers."

Few observers foresee a replay of 1930 looming in the immediate economic future. Lessons were learned from that disaster, and trade agreements and international financial institutions have been set up since to try to maintain lines of economic cooperation and avenues of trade between countries.

"The danger of a new global economic crisis does not appear to be very great," said the Union Bank of Switzerland in a recent appraisal. But it added, "The dangers of a new outbreak of protectionism are obvious, and threaten the free system of world trade."

RALEIGH — Who hasn't had at least one great money-making idea in their lifetime? Something like an electronic mousetrap or a car radio that automatically changes stations when the political ads come on.

Try to translate that idea into a product that sells on store shelves, however, and most of us are lost. Put the idea back in your head. You don't have the money to get started, and even if you did, you wouldn't know how.

In North Carolina today, there are plenty of people with money-making ideas lodged in the backs of their heads. They're the people who work in our big research companies and universities. They know computers and microelectronic and they know where a corner of the market could be grabbed. They're ready to quit their jobs, set up a business of their own and make a fortune, but they don't have the money to get started and they don't know how to run a business. They just have a great idea.

Don't laugh. The microelectronics industry is made up of industries created in just such a way. Remember, Steve Jobs started Apple Computers only a few years ago with just an idea, a few wires and a workshop set up in his garage. Other major microelectronics firms are owned by engineers who 10 years ago were working for some firm that thought their ideas were crazy.

These people need "venture capital." That is, a loan that doesn't get paid back in monthly installments but in a share of the company. The venture capitalist forks over a chunk of money to help get the engineer's business off the ground and, in return, he gets 25 percent of the company. For the capitalist, it's a risky type of investment. But, when it pays off, it pays better than the New York lottery.

North Carolina's problem is that it doesn't have a great deal of venture capital available. "It is the sort of barrier to our having that full-blown growth we want to have" in high tech industry, Gov. Jim Hunt said at a recent press conference.

Why doesn't North Carolina have venture capital? Hunt figures it's because North Carolina has always been a poor state. Washington economist Michael K. Evans, speaking in Raleigh recently, said the state's major banks have simply failed to get into the venture capital field.

Where will North Carolina's venture capital come from? Hunt says it's something that has to be done in the private markets. It's not a function of government. But the General Assembly did appropriate $1 million this year to get a program off the ground that will help grassroots businesses with some of their problems.

Wealthy individuals are usually a good source of venture capital. They can afford the risks if they balance venture investments against their more reliable traditional investments. Hunt figures that much of this money will have to come from out of state, however, and that's the hang-up. Venture capitalists usually like to be close to their investments, Hunt said. They like to keep an eye on their money. They find a person of whom they think highly and they invest in him, they take his word that the idea is an eventual money-maker.

Possibly a local source of venture capital is the state's banks and large corporations. In recent years, established businesses have begun putting a small share of their investment money into venture opportunities.

With all the engineers, scientists and garage shop tinkers in this state, it just seems like there must be money to be made in North Carolina.

Task Isn't All That Difficult

But this doesn't mean Reagan can't sell his policies on Central America to the public.

Americans don't know much about what is going on with our neighbors in Central America.

"I don't think they're as aware as they should be — we've tried to make them aware — that this is something of a threat in this hemisphere to peace," Reagan said at his news conference last week.

Strength For Today

"Brethren," said St. Paul, writing to his friends in the Galatian church, "If a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such a one in a spirit of meekness; considering thyself lest thou also be tempted."

Here is important counsel for every generation of men and women. Only the spiritual can restore those who have fallen into mistaken or evil ways. A doctor who is suffering from pneumonia is undoubtedly too sick himself to be of much service to a patient. It takes a well man to cure a sick man.

But a doctor who has recovered from pneumonia — that is another matter. He remembers the difficulties of his own experience as he ministers to those similarly afflicted. So in dealing with the sinner, those who are spiritual are to restore such a one in a spirit of meekness. They are to remember the sin which has so often torn their own lives.

It never pays to be too hard on a sinner. We may be someday overtaken ourselves in a fault which is even worse.

Dissident Wants East Germany Again

BERLIN (AP) — Untold numbers of East Germans have risked death to escape to the West. But Roland Jahn was shoved across the border in handcuffs, and dreams of going back.

Marched through an East German train station in a stranglehold at 3 a.m., arms shackled behind him and struggling with security police, the 29-year-old dissident was pushed aboard a train.

Seven minutes later, he found himself in West Germany with nothing but the clothes on his back and an East German exit visa he did not want. He watched the train disappear and was filled with despair.

West German border police said that when they encountered him, Jahn had "visible wounds from shackles on his wrists and was disoriented."

Despite his treatment and the pressures on his peace group based in the East German city of Jena, Jahn said in an interview he remains a committed communist and "I will always be East German."

"I want to go back," he added, his voice low and urgent over the clatter of a garden cafe where he sipped apricot juice in a seamy West Berlin neighborhood.

It is something Jahn has been saying over and over again since his expulsion June 9, saying it in newspapers and magazines, on television and radio, in letters to the United Nations and East German leader Erich Honecker.

Honecker never replied, and Jahn said he realizes that U.N. pressure is unlikely to persuade the East German authorities, who labeled him political "poison."

"But there is always the hope," he shrugged, his gray-green eyes staring into the summer night. "I can't stop hoping."

The exit visa which he claims authorities forced him to apply for forbids him to ever return.

"I signed that under extreme psychological pressure when I was in jail," Jahn said, claiming that among other things, authorities threatened to arrest a friend, the father of three children.

Jahn said he immediately recanted the handwritten request to emigrate to West Berlin.

About 20 other East German dissidents were similarly pressured into emigrating, and none "was overjoyed about leaving," Jahn added.

East German authorities sent two more activists across the border last Monday after they had participated in illegal peace demonstrations in Jena, West German border police in Ludwigstadt reported.

Dietrich Wagner, 36, and his 32-year-old wife, Jutta, told West German authorities that East German security police had swiftly broken up demonstrations by the Jena activists on the previous two weekends. There was no report of arrests.

The couple said they had applied for exit visas in April 1982, but permission to leave the country had been denied.

The dissidents in Jena, in central East Germany, often risk arrest for unlawful assembly.

When Jahn was active there, the dissidents would occasionally appear in a marketplace or at an officially sanctioned rally and unfurl banners bearing slogans such as "Swords into Plowshares," "End Militarism in Our Land," and "Don't Buy War Toys."

They also sent handmade postcards decrying the arms race to government officials, Jahn said.

The other Jena emigrants have scattered across West Germany; none has publicly expressed any desire or made any attempt to return to East Germany.

"Why go back where I'm unwanted?" Jahn, a former transport worker asks rhetorically. "I can't fully explain it, but East Germany is where my home is, my life, my friends, my work."

"I have to go back."

Jahn said he does not oppose the Communist system in East Germany — "just the way it is sometimes implemented."

He keeps in touch with his dissident contacts in Jena and his parents, and gets together often with other friends living in the West "to talk about the past."

Kirkpatrick's Star Is Rising In The White House

By O.C. DOELLING
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Alexander M. Haig Jr. once disparagingly equated Jeane J. Kirkpatrick with a company commander, seven grades below his four-star rank in the field of American foreign policy.

In the year since Haig's eclipse as secretary of state, Mrs. Kirkpatrick's own star has risen at the White House, where she has become an influential voice in the formulation of administration policies toward Central America.

J.J. KIRKPATRICK

President Reagan recently appointed the outspoken U.N. ambassador as his representative on the bipartisan commission on Central America, which is headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick scoffs at the notion that she has become the chief architect of Central American policies, saying that if there has been any shift in the decision-making process away from the State Department it has been toward President Reagan and not toward her.

It is, she told a reporter, "perfectly regular and normal" that "particularly salient or particularly delicate" issues be dealt with by the president. That is as true for the Lebanese crisis as it is for the conflicts in Central America, she said.

"My role is obviously just a function of my membership on the NSC (National Security Council)," she said when reached by phone recently at her office in Washington. Her position as chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations carries cabinet rank.

A senior State Department official in Washington gauged her contributions to Central American policy matters as major and indicated her influence on the issue had grown at the expense of that of Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who preferred a less rhetorical approach to the problem.

Asked to explain Mrs. Kirkpatrick's leading position, the official, who asked not to be identified, replied, "She knows the key players. She has a lot of experience in that area."

A former professor of government at Georgetown University, Mrs. Kirkpatrick is fluent in Spanish and has a long-standing interest in Latin American affairs. Her doctoral thesis dealt with the Peronist movement in Argentina.

Despite differences in approach, the senior State Department official said, there is little disagreement on basic policy objectives between Shultz and Mrs. Kirkpatrick. The two continue to communicate with each other, although not on a regular basis, he said.

There have been no reports of personality clashes.

In contrast, Mrs. Kirkpatrick's relations with Haig, Shultz's predecessor, were obviously strained, giving rise to recurrent speculation that the U.N. envoy was on her way out. One of the points of contention was U.S. policy toward Latin America.

During last year's Falkland Islands crisis, she was reported to have had a heated 45-minute telephone exchange with Haig over the American tilt toward Britain in its conflict with Argentina. She was said to have criticized him for having lost sight, in her view, of long-term U.S. interests in Latin America.

Another flap developed over a veto Mrs. Kirkpatrick cast in the U.N. Security Council against an Argentine-backed ceasefire resolution. Minutes later, new instructions were relayed from Haig, advising her to abstain. But it was too late and the veto stood.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick blamed the mixup on a communication snafu. Haig, who was in France with the president, added fuel to reports of a feud when he disclosed that he had not personally conveyed the new instructions to the U.N. envoy. Haig, a former NATO commander, explained that a general did not talk to a company commander when he had a corps in between.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick laughed off the put-down. "I don't know really much about military ranks ... I think those may be more meaningful to Secretary Haig, who after all is a general, than they are to me ... a professor in ordinary life."

The State Department official traced the ascent of Mrs. Kirkpatrick — teamed with National Security Adviser William Clark — back to last January. It was then that Thomas O. Enders, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, reportedly recommended that the administration give more consideration to a negotiated, power-sharing settlement of the conflict in El Salvador.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick was sent to Central America in February to make an assessment of the situation for the White House. After her dire appraisal, the president pressed Congress for a $110 million boost in military aid to the embattled Salvadoran government.

Three months later, the president removed Enders.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who last spring became the target of protests on several college campuses, is disturbed by press descriptions of her as a hawk. She maintains she offers "almost no advice on military affairs" and is chiefly concerned with the social, economic and political aspects of the Central American problem.

She speculates that her hawkish image stems from her strong views on the Soviet Bloc, which she regards "as playing an expansionist role" in Central America and providing "a lot of support to groups trying to destabilize the region."

Focus Is On 'Wellness'

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Concentrating on remaining well rather than on treating disease can help control health costs while bringing true health to people of all ages and incomes, speakers in a weekend conference said.

Wellness "is a state of high-level good health," the optimum in nutritional, physical, mental and spiritual well-being, about 50 "wellness movement" health professionals told a 150 participants at the four-day N.C. Summer Wellness Festival at the University of North Carolina.

Many companies have begun organizing employee wellness programs in hopes of holding down health insurance premiums and reducing sick leave, said Don Ardell, a professor at Golden State University in San Francisco.

Ardell told the audience of public health workers, nurses, physician's assistants, corporate medical directors and doctors that the federal government may also become more involved in sickness prevention.

Other conference participants said the major problem is motivating overweight, lazy, stressed and pill-popping junk-food eaters to accept responsibility for their own long-term health. Giving up smoking and reducing alcoholic consumption are good starts, they said.

Speakers said each person should adopt an individual wellness program that provides proper nutrition, regular aerobic exercise and work stress management.

Agent Orange Sprayed In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Agent Orange, the defoliant which the Army stopped using in Vietnam in 1972 because of concern for the health of U.S. forces, was being sprayed in the United States by a government agency for six years afterward.

NBC News reported Sunday that Agent Orange was sprayed along with other defoliants on the border in New Hampshire and Maine to mark the boundary with Canada.

The defoliant was sprayed from 1972 to 1978 along 32 miles of the border by helicopters and ground crews by the International Boundary Commission, a seven-member U.S. agency, the network said. NBC said no one in the area was directly exposed to Agent Orange.

Price-Fixing In Yams Suspected

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Growers and shippers of North Carolina sweet potatoes say they are being questioned by federal officials in an investigation of price fixing.

No indictments have been brought in the investigation, dubbed "Yamscam," but U.S. Attorney Sam Currin confirmed federal officials are looking at the sweet potato business in North Carolina, the nation's biggest yam-producing state.

"There has been some grand jury work into the yam business," said U.S. Attorney Sam Currin. "I'm not at liberty to discuss it."

James Bardin, a grower and shipper in Wilson, said he has turned over copies of his records for two years to the Justice Department. He said he knew of no price-fixing.

"You couldn't get two farmers to agree on the time of day," Bardin said. "If I could have fixed the prices, I wouldn't owe $1 million." Other farmers, who did not want their names used, agreed with Bardin.

They said several growers have appeared before a grand jury in Raleigh and that the Justice Department has asked for five years' worth of records from the major shippers and the N.C. Yam Association, the shippers' trade group.

Growers and shippers said authorities are asking whether price-fixing takes place at trade association meetings and private meetings among growers or shippers. Those interviewed said they knew of no price-fixing meetings.

Although they are called yams, the orange potato grown in North Carolina is really a sweet potato, said Jack Jenkins, executive director of the N.C. Yam Commission.

Two kinds of sweet potatoes are shipped from the state — green and cured. The cured variety are green potatoes that have been stored in a high-humidity, 85-degree shed. Curing makes sweet potatoes sweeter, growers said.

Curing also increases the price. Several growers said the questions asked in the grand jury focus on the price difference between green and cured sweet potatoes.

Production Of Butter Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's butter production dropped in June to about 110 million pounds, down 9 percent from May, according to the latest Agriculture Department report.

Production of American-type cheese was down 1 percent from May to 280 million pounds, although total cheese production — excluding cottage cheese — rose 2 percent to 436 million pounds, the report said.

Non-fat dry milk output in June was up 1 percent from May to about 158 million pounds. Ice cream production jumped 15 percent from May to 34.5 million gallons.

Farm Scene

By SAM UZZELL
Agricultural Extension Agent

Every summer in late July and early August, motorists encounter heavy flights of moths along the highways at night. These moths are the adults of the corn earworm and are leaving the dry corn fields to find suitable host crops on which they lay eggs. Once these eggs have hatched, then the corn earworm goes to work on soybeans, peanuts, grain sorghum, cotton and many other green and growing crops. These moths will be apparent at night now.

The corn earworm has been called our most expensive insect. It has the capability to destroy yield potential of certain crops like few other insects can.

It pays to know certain things about the corn earworm. It can feed and survive successfully on many different crops. It can lay literally hundreds of eggs, and it is a strong flier that can cover considerable distances. Hot weather enables the insect to develop from egg to moth in about a week on soybeans. All these factors and more mean that it is essential for farmers to actively monitor populations of the corn earworm on soybeans, peanuts and grain sorghum (milo) during August in eastern North Carolina.

There are usually four generations of the corn earworm each year. Some survive the winter as a pupa (a resting stage between the worm and the moth). These first-generation worms attack corn shortly after it emerges and feed in the whorl of the corn. The ragged leaves unfold and the worm is called the "shatterworm" at this time because of the feeding damage.

The second generation of the year is found in the tips of field corn and sweet corn ears primarily, hence the common name of corn earworm. Usually there is only one worm per ear — the worms are cannibalistic and only the strongest survives. Corn provides an excellent breeding site and with some two million acres in North Carolina, obviously many corn earworms are produced. In late July, the second generation of the corn earworm is through feeding in corn and the moths (adult stage) leave the corn fields to seek new egg-laying areas.

The third generation of corn earworm is the damaging one and the one that requires close attention. The moths that lay eggs on soybean and peanut foliage can develop rapidly and heavy infestations can strip these crops of leaves and pods.

The fourth generation of corn earworm is not a factor because of heavy losses of eggs and larvae due to poor egg-laying sites and adverse weather in late September and early October.

The time has arrived for eastern North Carolina soybean and peanut growers to be aware of the corn earworm. It is the most damaging insect to these crops but can be readily controlled with appropriately timed insecticidal sprays. Careful scouting of these crops will make money, not cost money. For further information on scouting for corn earworms, contact your local Agricultural Extension Office.

There will be a soybean/peanut insect scouting school Aug. 17 at 3 p.m. beginning at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office. Techniques of scouting for insects and corn earworm control will be discussed. This workshop will also carry one and one-half hours of continuing certification credits. For more information contact the Pitt County Extension Office at 752-2934.

Views On Dental Health

ASPIRIN - GOOD AND BAD

If your child has a toothache, get him or her to a dentist immediately. If this is not practical, a proper dosage of aspirin will help make him feel more comfortable until you can get to the dentist. However, you should take precautions when administering aspirin.

Make sure your child takes the aspirin with enough water to prevent upsetting his stomach. Aspirin is a systemic drug; it relieves pain only after it has entered the bloodstream. So make sure it gets all the way down with plenty of water.

Never place the tablet on the painful tooth or on the gum or let it dissolve in his mouth and ask him to swish it around the aching tooth. The aspirin can irritate the tissue seriously.

Never crush aspirin and place it between the cheek and the gum. Aspirin and related compounds are a common source of burns of the oral cavity. White lesions can develop where the medication touches the cheek or gum. The tissues will become painful and the white cauterized areas may be removed leaving a painful, raw, bleeding area.

Poultry Consumption Is Seeing Dramatic Gains

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Per capita consumption of poultry, including broilers and turkeys, has increased dramatically since the mid-50s. One reason: Poultry is a bargain at supermarkets, says the Agriculture Department.

In 1955, according to a new analysis, Americans ate an average of 13.8 pounds of ready-to-cook broilers and five pounds of turkey.

By 1981, the per capita consumption rate was 48.6 pounds of broilers and 10.7 pounds of turkey.

Beef consumption, by comparison, grew to 77.3 pounds of retail weight in 1981 from 64 pounds in 1955.

The report was written by Floyd A. Lasley, an agricultural economist in the USDA's Economic Research Service.

"Few industries have enjoyed the success of the poultry industry in improving production and marketing efficiency during the past quarter century," the report said.

"Broiler and turkey producers have supplied increasing quantities of high-quality meat, and made it available year around at declining real prices."

Retail prices of broilers in 1981 averaged about 74 cents a pound, compared to 55 cents in 1955.

"In real terms, however, consumers now can buy broilers for less than half of what they paid 25 years ago," the report said.

So-called vertical integration, with farm-to-market operations vested in central ownership — and a network of "growers" turning out birds on a fee basis — revolutionized the broiler industry.

"Vertical integration of the poultry industry was rapid, as small flocks gave way to large poultry enterprises, and developments in feeding and disease control enabled producers to raise flocks in large confined units throughout the year," the report said.

Some other developments: —Total farm sales of poultry rose to $3.3 billion for eggs, $4.3 billion for broilers, and over $1.2 billion for turkeys in 1980, compared with about $2 billion for eggs, $533 million for broilers, and $270 million for turkeys during the early '50s.

—About 1,100 farms, each with more than 50,000 hens, accounted for half of all hens in 1978. Farms with sales of more than 100,000 broilers accounted for 82 percent of all broilers sold. Almost half the turkeys were sold by 304 farms reporting sales of more than 100,000 birds each.

—Sales of processed or cut-up chicken and turkeys have increased faster than sales of whole birds.

—Turkey consumption is less seasonal, with just over one-third of the nation's turkey consumption now occurring in the last quarter of the year, compared to more than half in 1960.

"Improvements will continue, but productivity gains may come more slowly than in the past, both in production and marketing," the report said.

"Poultry producers and processors should continue to shrink in number but grow in output per unit during the '80s, with both trends slowing considerably from years past."

Taiwan A Farm Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says Taiwan "has blossomed as a market for U.S. horticultural products" since the Asian nation liberalized its apple import system in 1979.

Apple exports rose to 64,000 metric tons in 1980 and to 75,000 tons in 1981, compared to less than 3,000 tons before 1979, says a report in a recent issue of Foreign Agriculture.

"A government monopoly controlled trade and severely restricted imports to protect domestic production," the report said. "With the lifting of these restrictions, pent-up trade and consumer demand exploded."

Sales of table grapes, the second leading U.S. horticultural export to Taiwan, more than doubled last year, the report said.

"Peach exports dropped sharply in 1982, but are now on the upswing with sales in the first six months of 1983 more than five times those of the same period a year earlier," it said.

Other U.S. products showing promise in Taiwan include tree nuts, prunes.

Heat Stress

TIFTON, Ga. (AP) — The summer heat wave has left hogs in no mood for romance, and that means less money for the farmer and less pork for the consumer.

"Hogs are a lot like us when it comes to the weather," said Frank Owsley, the Georgia Extension Service's swine scientist. "When it's hot, they try to hold strenuous activities to a minimum. And that includes reproductive activities."

They "just aren't making bacon" in the 90-degree plus temperatures that have blistered the hog belt in south Georgia in recent weeks, Owsley said. "Quite frankly, the boars aren't in the mood, and the sows aren't in the mood either. And I don't think I blame them much."

He said the lack of reproduction was viewed by pork producers as the "silent killer," although no heat-related deaths or diseases have been reported among hogs.

"And we won't know the overall impact of the silent killer on the pork market probably until next year," he said. "But one thing is sure — the decline in breeding activity will result in fewer hogs going to market, fewer dollars for the producer and less pork for consumers."

Persons interested in promoting family life education and working with this committee are urged to attend.

Rum Runner Club Will Meet

The Rum Runner Ocean Atlantic Dive Club will meet August 15 at 6:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn. Reservations may be made by calling 758-1444 or 756-9339.

Cystic Fibrosis Telethon Is Planned

Chairman Tom Swanson and the Greenville Jaycees will man a satellite telephone bank during the sixth annual Cystic Fibrosis Telethon. The satellite station will be for the convenience of area citizens who would like to support the telethon effort without having to make a long distance call.

Co-sponsored by the New Bern Jaycees and Jaycettes and WCTI-TV, Channel 12, the telethon will be aired for 19 hours from 11 p.m. Aug. 12 through 6 p.m. Aug. 13.

Area residents appearing at the telethon will be Valerie Vrooman and Marnie Buck of Ayden, and the Cotten Candy Singers, Willie Hardison, Terri Williams and the Finishing Touch, all of Greenville.

Television personalities Phillip MacHale, best known as "Runner" in the Hardee's Restaurant advertisements, and "The Cool Ghoul" will appear at this year's telethon.

More than $90,000 was raised at last year's telethon. The funds are used for research, care and education to help those who suffer from cystic fibrosis, a genetic defect. The average life expectancy for children born with cystic fibrosis is now 21 years.

Greenville Utilities Board Meets Tuesday

The Board of Commissioners of the Greenville Utilities Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Utilities Building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets.

Included on the agenda will be the consideration of Beat-The-Peak incentive credits for September, amendments to the water and sewer capital project funds, and bids for various equipment.

Vehicle Runs Off Road

A car driven by Ernest Lee Bridges of 1904 McClellan St., ran off Evans Street about 243 feet south of the Sara Lane intersection about 5:15 p.m. Sunday, causing an estimated $2,000 damage to the vehicle.

Officers said another $100 damage resulted to trees, shrubs, a sign and a post struck by the Bridges car.

Vehicles Collide At Intersection

Cars driven by Jeffery Thomas Bowen of Route 1, Ayden, and Curtis Clyde Evans of 710 Hooker Road, collided about 11 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive.

Police, who charged Bowen with failing to stop for a red light, estimated damage at $900 to the Bowen car and $700 to the Evans auto.

Sheppard Library Vault Theft Investigated

Greenville police are investigating the theft of $365 from a vault at Sheppard Memorial Library at 530 Evans St. Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the theft, reported at 4:30 p.m., occurred between 2 p.m. and 4:15 p.m.

Arrest Made At CT&T Building

Paul Cephus, 16 of 1202 Chestnut St. was arrested by Greenville police about 11:05 p.m. Friday on breaking and entering charges after officers found him inside a fence at the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. building on Chestnut Street at the Raleigh Avenue intersection.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Cephus had climbed the fence and moved a lawnmower from a shed when officers discovered him.

Cephus was placed under a $2,000 bond pending action by the court.

City Radio Show Guests Announced

City Manager Gail Meeks announced that the guests on the "City Hall Notes" radio program this week will be Jack Simoneau of the planning division and Capt. Tony Smart, fire-rescue training officer.

Simoneau will discuss the purpose of city planning, and Smart will talk about fire-rescue training programs.

"City Hall Notes" is aired each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. on WOOW Radio.

Area Residents Win Writing Awards

Reese Helms of Greenville and Gail Robertson of Williamston were first place winners in this year's Tar Heel Writers Roundtable writing contest, and Jean Tabory of Kinston, wife of a former Greenville resident, received a third place.

The winners of the annual contest were announced Saturday afternoon during a luncheon closing out the 195th annual Writers Roundtable. Helms, energy conservation director of Greenville Utilities Corporation, won first place in the short story competition and was presented a silver bowl for his story titled "Yard Projects." Mrs. Robertson, a full-time writer, received a silver bowl, also, for her article on the Elizabeth II. Mrs. Tabory, a psychologist at Caswell Center, received a third-place certificate for her poem, "Winter."

Flag and Flagpole Dedication Set

A dedication ceremony for the presentation of a flag and flagpole will be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday at the historic Robert Lee Humber House on the corner of West Fifth and Washington Streets. The flag and flagpole were donated by the descendants of Marshall D. Whitehurst and Elizabeth Taylor Whitehurst.

At the ceremony, Walter Faulkner, president of the Greenville Area Preservation Association, will present a plaque recognizing the Humber House's designation by the U.S. Department of the Interior as a National Historic Site.

The house, built by Robert Lee Humber, Sr., was the home of Robert Lee Humber, Jr. for many years during his career in public service. Dr. Humber was instrumental in the establishment of the State Museum of Art and received international acclaim for his work toward world peace.

The home has been leased to the North Carolina Division of Archives and History for a regional office.

Instructor To Be In State Competition

Mrs. Marietta Jones of Route 3, Greenville, a biology and physics instructor at Washington High School, has been selected to be the Region I representative in state competition for the N.C. Awards Program for Outstanding Mathematics and Science Teachers.

A graduate of Chicod High School and East Carolina University, where she received her BS degree in biology and her MAED in science education, Mrs. Jones has been employed by the Washington City Schools since 1976.

The awards program for math and science teachers was established to provide recognition for individual teachers for outstanding contributions to math and science education in their schools, and is sponsored by the Business Committee on Mathematics/Science Education, a group of business and industry leaders.

Region I includes Pitt, Beaufort and 13 other counties.

See No Early Settlement For Telephone Walkout

By The Associated Press

Union officials say they do not expect a quick settlement in a strike against Southern Bell that took 7,000 workers in North Carolina off the job Sunday.

"There are no negotiations, no rumors or nothing," said Wallace A. Weaver, president of Communications Workers of America Local 3611, which represents 930 union members in Raleigh and Chapel Hill. "We're at a standstill."

"I would not expect a settlement in the next day or two," said CWA President Glenn E. Watts.

"We want at least double the kind of money they're (AT&T) talking about ... The company knows the area in which we must go and they're unwilling to meet that," he said.

AT&T Chairman Charles Brown said that although the two sides differ widely on a new wage package, other unspecified bargaining issues related to the scheduled divestiture of the huge telecommunications company remain unresolved.

"There are a lot more issues than economics, I assure you," Brown said. "The divestiture has caused some complexities in bargaining."

About six union members picketed the Southern Bell building in Raleigh with signs reading, "Ma Bell is a tight-fisted mother," and "When Ma starts talking, we'll start walking."

Weaver said picket lines were also up in Wilmington, Burlington, Goldsboro, Greensboro, Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Asheville, Shelby, Gastonia, Laurinburg, Warrenton, Lenoir, Salisbury, Boone and other North Carolina cities.

Picketers included operators, repairmen, technicians and service representatives, he said.

On the picket line in Charlotte, Tom Hawkins, 37, an AT&T Special Services worker said, "I don't want to lose any of the benefits we've already got."

"I'd like to see us get some sort of job security in light of the divestiture and job centralization," he said, referring to the court-ordered breakup of AT&T.

"It's going to hurt me real bad," said Charlotte picketer Jane Grogan, a 37-year-old Southern Bell technician who is raising two children alone. "I hope they reach a settlement soon."

Repair technician Jim Amburn, 40, just bought a house and said on the picket line he hopes the strike is over soon. "The first payment is due in September. I was hoping the strike would be diverted, but I won't cross the picket line," he said.

Telephone service across the nation was disrupted only slightly as managers and supervisors worked in place of 675,000 operators and technicians who struck American Telephone & Telegraph Co. after their contract expired.

"There should be little effect on the customer," Ladd Baucom, spokesman for Southern Bell in Charlotte, said Sunday. "Some might be noticed on long distance calls requiring the assistance of an operator. But we will have management personnel on duty to process those calls and to make emergency repairs of telephone equipment."

Workers represented by the CWA, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and the Telecommunications International Union walked off their jobs at one minute after midnight, local time, after rejecting management's latest offer for a new contract.

The company's last offer would have limited wage gains for experienced workers to 3.5 percent per year for the next three years. It also would have retained cost-of-living protection that has provided percentage raises equal to three-quarters of the annual increase in the Consumer Price Index.

Among CWA employees, a top-scale systems technician makes $565.50 per week. A top-scale operator makes $389.

Jeans In War On Trademark

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)

— A legal battle over trademarks will probably result from the seizure of 20,000 pairs of Mexican-made denim carrying the "Jordache" label at Charlotte's airport, officials say.

Jorache Enterprises of New York has condemned the shipment seized by U.S. Customs agents as illegal counterfeits, but the Mexican manufacturer says the denim is legal and the Charlotte company that bought them believes it has the right to sell them.

Earlier this year, CMI Inc. of Charlotte, which buys and sells clothes in bulk, learned about a firm that made jeans with the Jordache name in Mexico.

Wayne Bach of Hickory, the attorney for CMI, said company officials went to Mexico, met with government officials and obtained documents showing the Mexican firm could legally make "Jordache" jeans in that country.

He said the Mexican firm also agreed to pay any licensing fees required when the pants were imported.

"We had never purchased out of country before," he said. "Normally we purchase overruns from manufacturers. So it was new to us. We wanted to check it out and do it correctly."

In a telephone interview Friday, Abe Anzarut, the president of the company that makes the "Jordache" jeans in Mexico City, said he has the legal right to make Jordache jeans there.

But he said he has been taken to court in Mexico by Jordache enterprises over the trademark — a legal fight Bach said CMI just learned of.

Bach said he expects to end up in court fighting over interpreting trademark laws. CMI believes it broke no trademark restrictions, and Bach said the company did not try to hide its shipment.

The Customs Service stored the pants in a warehouse after seizing them Wednesday and Thursday.

"I PUT A LOT INTO IT, AND I GET A LOT OUT OF IT."

"If I had it all to do over again, I would definitely go with Perdue broiler houses. But I would start a lot earlier.

My husband and I built our first Perdue house in 1974. I was working in a public job then. Under a lot of strain because I was on production and some days you might not make quota even though you worked hard. But when I started helping with the chicken houses, the pressures went away.

Not only did the pressures disappear, but all of a sudden I was enjoying my work. Watching those little chicks grow day after day, it's just a thrill to me because I've always liked chickens.

Perdue helped us from the very start. We've always had good servicemen who knew how to grow good chickens. By listening to them and working hard, we always had good flocks.

When my husband passed away, some folks thought I might sell my broiler houses. But with a little help from my sister-in-law and her son, I can run three broiler houses as good as the next grower. In fact I won the top broiler grower award on my route last year. I just try the best I can. You get what you put into it.

Sure I like to grow with Perdue. I've always been a farm girl anyway. I like to get outdoors, so Perdue's right down my line."

It's A Great Time to Grow with Perdue. Perdue is into one thing — chickens. That's why our poultry products outsell all the others in the northeastern supermarkets. The demand is increasing for our products, so we need more producers. Start growing with a growing company. RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 51 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 91 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 52.98 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is light to moderate for a moderate to good demand. Weights light to desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,791,000, compared to 1,800,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices tumbled in early trading today after several major banks raised their prime lending rates by one-half percentage point to 11 percent. Volume was moderate.

Major casualties included auto, computer, chemical, energy, drug and interest-sensitive financial issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 47.88 points over the past two weeks amid investor fear that interest rates were headed up, skidded another 13.32 points to 1,169.97 after the first two hours of today's trading.

Declines held a commanding 5-1 lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index fell 0.97 to 92.63.

Big Board volume totaled 29.80 million shares at noon EDT, against 33.41 million at that hour Friday.

Among the banks raising their prime, or base, lending charge were Citibank, Chase Manhattan Bank and Chemical Bank, all in New York; First National Bank in Chicago and Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh.

Credit analysts expected the increase because open-market interest rates have been rising since May to their highest levels in a year, thereby raising banks' cost of obtaining funds.

Among the NYSE's early losers in active trading were Sears Roebuck 1 1/4 to 39 3/4, Chrysler 3/4 to 24 1/4 and Pan American World Airways 1/4 to 7 1/4.

Federal National Mortgage fell 1 1/2 to 20. A 910,300-share block traded at 19 1/4.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 2.74 to 228.68.

Farmville Bids To Be Taken

RALEIGH — The Department of Transportation is scheduled to receive bids Friday on construction of the Farmville East Thoroughfare.

The project, 3.91 miles from existing U.S. 264 to Secondary Road 1200 (the Stantonsburg Road), is included in the DOT's U.S. 264 improvement project.

Contracts on the first segment of the new U.S. 264 — 4.86 miles from Secondary Road 1507 in Wilson County to the Wilson-Greene County line, were awarded in July. The cost of the first segment had been estimated at $4.5 million.

W.R. Roberson Jr., state secretary of transportation said the fact that the board will consider the contract "is a direct result of the 1983 General Assembly's recent appropriation for highway improvements."

Pedestrian Dies On Roadway

GRIMESLAND — Tex Barnett Hooker, 28 of Route 1, Blounts Creek, was charged with hit and run driving and driving under the influence following investigation of a hit-and-run mishap on N.C. 33 near here Sunday in which a pedestrian, Joe James Goddard, 36 of Route 1, Grimesland, was killed.

Trooper M.B. Johnson said Goddard was lying in the east-bound lane of N.C. 33 when struck by a car driven by Hooker.

Johnson reported that Wesley and William Nicholson, both of Grimesland, were at the scene at the time of the 3:35 a.m. incident. They had seen Goddard lying in the roadway and had stopped in an effort to warn on-coming traffic.

Hooker, Johnson reported, turned himself in at the Washington Police Department a short time after the collision.

Damage to the Hooker car was estimated at $100.

Libyan Pilot Is Paraded In Chad

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP)

— Chadian authorities today put on display before a large crowd a man they claimed was the pilot of a Libyan plane shot down over the weekend at the desert town of Faya-Largeau.

The man was brought before 50 journalists and 5,000 civilians at the Palace of Congress and identified as Abdassalam Charfadine, pilot of a Soviet-built Sukhoi fighter.

Libya repeatedly has denied making bombing runs on Chad, although it says it is providing logistical support for rebel forces seeking to topple the government of President Hissene Habre.

Charfadine told the crowd today was shot down Saturday and that there were 12 Sukhois based in the Aouzou strip, a region in northern Chad that Libya occupied in 1973.

An official at the Chadian Embassy in Paris said the plane was shot down by a SAM-7 missile that presumably gas captured from the rebels by government forces.

Charfadine said the planes were rotated in and out of the strip by two under command of the Libyan air force, and that their mission was to cover the movements of rebel troops led by former President Goukouni Oueddei.

He told the crowd another attack was planned on Faya-Largeau, "but I do not know when."

Charfadine said the weapons on his fighter included fragmentation bombs, phosphorous bombs and napalm. He said he was ordered to strike government positions in preparation for the planned attack.

Durham Leaf Sales Begin

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Flue-cured tobacco sales in Durham opened today with high sales and low prices, but officials said sales were stronger than those on the Eastern Belt earlier this month.

Charlie Finch of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation said the cooperative was receiving 30 to 35 percent of sales — about 15 percent more than last year. But he said this percentage should drop "once things settle down."

The stabilization price support program allows buyers to purchase leaf at a rate $1 more per hundred pounds than the standards set by the federal government.

Most of the leaf sold today was low-grade, bringing between $125 and $145 per 100 pounds. These amounts are about $10 per 100 pounds less than prices paid last year for the same grade, according to officials from Star Warehouse.

Farmers said prices were higher than they expected, but remained concerned as poor-quality tobacco hurt by dry weather brought low prices.

Unemployed Conference Set

A conference for unemployed persons will be held tomorrow from 9:30 to 3 p.m. at Pitt Community College, Whitchard Building, Room 201.

A number of speakers have been enrolled by the Mental Health Association in Pitt County, sponsor of the conference, to give practical help on job seeking and coping with unemployment.

Among the speakers are John Anema and Bob Desota, rehabilitation counselors; Tommy Thomason, personnel assistant with Wachovia Bank; Tammy Nobles, personnel interviewer with Pitt County Memorial Hospital; Jerry Cox, personnel interviewer with the City of Greenville; Dick Farris of the East Carolina University personnel office; Gail Wallace, employment placement officer with Pitt Community College; and George Hood, consultant with the Raleigh "Forty Plus" support group for unemployed persons.

Lunch will be provided. For more information, call MHA, 752-7448.

Perry Baffles Boston For 1-0 Shutout

By The Associated Press

Just once, the Boston Red Sox would like to see a natural delivery from a Kansas City pitcher. Instead, they get side-arm and under-armed to death.

The Royals had been starving for effective right-handed starting pitchers all season. But this weekend, they got a shutout from Eric Rasmussen on Saturday night and a combined three-hitter from veteran Gaylord Perry and ace reliever Dan Quisenberry in a 1-0 decision Sunday.

Perry, whose two strikeouts gave him 3,506 for his career, two short of Walter Johnson, won his 312th game, surrendering only two hits in seven innings. He used a sidearm delivery to stifle Boston until submariner Quisenberry finished up for his major league-leading 28th save.

Pat Sheridan belted a home run off Red Sox rookie Dennis Boyd, 2-2, in the fourth for the only run.

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 4, Baltimore 3; Detroit 8, New York 5; Milwaukee 9, Toronto 6; Oakland 6, Minnesota 0; California 4, Seattle 3, and, in a doubleheader, Texas beat Cleveland 4-3 before the Indians blanked the Rangers 7-0 in the second game.

"It's something I used years ago, and I thought it was time to go back to it because I've been having a tough time," said Perry, who joined the Royals a month ago after being cut by Seattle. "I never used it that much, just something as an element of surprise. It got me in trouble the first three innings."

The toughest spots for Perry came against another longtime star, Carl Yastrzemski. Boston loaded the bases in the first and third, only to see Perry get Yaz on a grounder, then a fly ball.

"It's a great challenge with him up there," said Perry. "I tried not to get in a pattern where he could look for something. I went over the top twice to get him. I kept changing on him. You give a guy like that a pattern and he'll spot it."

"That was a classic confrontation," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser. "It's not like those two guys are just playing for sentimental reasons. Perry was throwing a whale of a game. And just two days earlier, Yaz had beaten us."

"He pitched a good game. He got me out when he had to in two situations, and that was the difference in the game," said Yastrzemski.

White Sox 4, Orioles 3

Despite the Royals' win, they couldn't gain ground on the White Sox, who are five games up in the West after Sunday's win at Baltimore. Greg Luzinski homered for the third straight game and LaMarr Hoyt joined Rick Honeycutt of Texas and Scott McGregor of Baltimore as 14-game winners with his fourth consecutive victory.

"Most home run hitters are streaky," said Luzinski. "On a streak, you just start seeing the ball good and get up there and relax. You're aggressive enough and you hit it out."

Tigers 8, Yankees 5

Detroit had surrendered 25 runs and 31 hits in the first two games of the New York series, but came back behind pitchers

Dan Petry and Aurelio Lopez and the hitting of Lance Parrish, who got his 17th homer, and Lou Whitaker, who was 4-for-4.

"We're fortunate to lose two games here, three in a row actually, and still be only a game out," said Petry.

Brewers 9, Blue Jays 6

Toronto left home riding high, just two games out of first place and talking bravely about winning on the road. But the Blue Jays were swept in Milwaukee to fall into fifth place in the East.

Charlie Moore had three RBI and Ted Simmons and Jim Gantner each drove in two runs as Milwaukee moved within 1½ games of Baltimore.

"I just feel it's going to be like this for the rest of the year," Moore said about the division race.

"It is just one of those things every ball club goes through," said Toronto's Cliff Johnson, who smacked his 18th homer. "We're not conceding anything."

A's 6, Twins 0

At Minnesota, Chris Codiroli and Keith Atherton combined on a six-hitter and Bob Kearney scored three runs as Oakland won for the 10th time in 14 starts. Codiroli went six innings but, after issuing a pair of walks, was replaced by Atherton.

"This was one of my better game," admitted Codiroli. "I got it all together, but I just ran out of gas in the seventh."

Rangers 4-0, Indians 3-7

George Wright drove in one run and scored twice, pacing Texas to its fourth straight triumph in the opener. But Cleveland bounced back after five consecutive defeats to win the nightcap behind Tom Brennan, who threw the first shutout of his major league career with a seven-hitter.

"Texas had beat us every game in this series," Brennan said. "It's kind of nice to stop a complete sweep. It's a dream. It sure beats the IL (International League)."

Angels 4, Mariners 3

In Seattle, Reggie Jackson's sixth-inning RBI grounder snapped a 3-3 tie and Bobby Grich cracked a two-run double as California avoided the first four-game sweep in the Mariners' seven-year history.

Jackson's ground ball, which forced Grich at second, scored Fred Lynn from third and gave Jackson a career total of 1,428 RBI, one ahead of Charlie Gehringer and into 28th-place on the all-time list.

Ken Forsch, 10-7, was the winner, while Bruce Kison picked up his first save in his third relief appearance. Bryan Clark, 5-4, took the loss.

Snow Hill Ousted In Legion Playoffs

HAMLET — Hamlet plated five runs in the fifth and added three more in the eighth Saturday night to defeat Snow Hill 11-3 and win the Eastern Championship of the American Legion State Tournament with a 4-2 record in the series.

Jeff Ginn had three hits in four trips to the plate, and Anthony Russo was 2-4 for Snow Hill, but Danny Mills and Darrell Poe provided the power for Hamlet with each knocking a two-run homer.

Hamlet took the lead in the second inning as Poe rapped a two-out single and Mills followed with his homer.

Hamlet added another run in the third with winning pitcher Scott Altman opening with a double and Greg Cloninger lofting a sacrifice fly to score the run.

Poe's two-run blast in the fifth capped a seven-hit, five-run barrage that put the game out of reach.

Snow Hill finally got on the board in the top of the eighth.

Tommy Goff, Richie Chase and Steve Sides singled to load the bases, and Anthony Russo reached first on an error to score Goff. But after Ginn drove in a pair of runs with a single, Hamlet got out of the inning with a double play.

"It seemed like the last few games we played against them, they were always able to come up with the double play when they needed it," Snow Hill Coach James Fulghum said. "We had a good year; we just ran into a ballclub having a better one."

Altman finished the game with three hits including a pair of doubles to lead Hamlet at the plate. Mills and Poe went 2-4, with Mike Moore contributing 2-5.

Hamlet now advances to the state finals against Independence beginning Friday.

The last time Jim Palmer pitched in the minor leagues, he was 22 — a number he would later make famous in Baltimore while winning three Cy Young Awards with the Orioles.

At that time, shoulder and back injuries were threatening to put a premature end to what many felt could be a promising career.

On Sunday, Palmer returned to the minors on a 20-day rehabilitation assignment, a 37-year-old pitcher trying to overcome nagging injuries that may rob him of his final years.

He took the mound on a hot and muggy afternoon in Hagerstown, a small blue-collar city nestled in the hills of western Maryland, wearing No. 22 on a jersey specially made for him by his new team, the Hagerstown Suns of the Class A Carolina League.

Underneath his jersey, he wore a good-luck Minnesota Twins T-shirt that he had won "12 or 13 straight games with last season." He changed into his uniform in the middle of the Suns lockerroom because, as the team said, it didn't have an extra locker for him.

A crowd of 6,192 came to Municipal Stadium, where advertising covers the outfield walls, to see the Suns take on the Durham Bulls. Two weeks ago, more than 7,300 fans jammed the small ballpark when the San Diego Chicken showed up.

This time, the fans mainly came to watch an aging hurler with arm trouble, a pitcher with 265 major-league victories who has not thrown since June 25 and, some say, may be finished.

His first outing in more than a month was not vintage Palmer, yet he seemed pleased.

He went five innings and allowed seven hits and two runs, while striking out five and walking two. Prior to the game, the Orioles said they wanted him to throw either five innings or 70 pitches. He threw 72 pitches against Durham.

Palmer left trailing 2-1, but the Suns rallied for three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning and went on to win 8-6, giving him the victory.

"My arm felt a lot better than I thought it would," said Palmer, who threw an assortment of fastballs, changeups and "a couple of sliders."

"I could have pitched longer," he said, but added that those involved with his recovery program felt it would be better not to risk injury.

Palmer appeared loose and relaxed while discussing his performance and frowned when told the Orioles had lost in Baltimore to the Chicago White Sox. He bristled only when someone suggested that the Bulls had seemed to hit him well.

"I didn't think the balls were hit that hard," he retorted.

Palmer said he "kind of" requested a visit to the minors last week during a meeting with Orioles Manager Joe Altobelli. The right-hander went on the disabled list for the third time this year on July 8 because of tendinitis in his right shoulder.

Coastal Downs Vienna In Babe Ruth Tournament

VIENNA, Va. — The Coastal Plains South All Stars managed just two hits Sunday, but that was all they needed as pitcher Tommy Wynne threw a four-hitter at Vienna for a 1-0 victory in the Babe Ruth 16-year-old All Star Baseball Tournament.

Billy Michelle opened the top of the seventh with a base on balls, and pinch hitter Greg Hardison sacrificed courtesy runner Whit Brown to second. Gary Scott lined a pinch-hit single up the middle to push Brown across the plate for the game's only run.

Matt McCarthy, Steve Shartbaugh and Robbie Thornhill singled to load the bases for Vienna after one out in the third, but Coastal got out of the inning when Sean Gallagher grounded into a double play.

Coastal missed a scoring opportunity in the fourth, but Vienna stranded a runner at third with no outs in the fifth.

Coastal Plains South meets South Alabama today, with the winner advancing to meet Florida Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the winners' bracket of the double elimination event.

Double Play Relay

Even Road Trip With 5-2 Win

Braves Remember 1982 Skid

By The Associated Press

Dale Murphy and the Atlanta Braves learned a lesson last August when they were riding high in the National League West with an eight-game lead.

The Braves remember a disastrous West Coast trip in which they lost 10 of 11 games and saw their lead dwindle to 1½. They didn't want to go through that again.

This time the Braves entered the 11-game trip with a 4½-game lead and the seemingly listless Los Angeles Dodgers coming back to life. But there was no repeat performance for the Braves — they won six and increased their margin to 5½ games.

"Anything can happen," Murphy said after leading the Braves to a 5-2 victory Sunday that averted a sweep by the Dodgers. "But we learn from experience, and that means that it doesn't matter how big a lead you have, you're never safe."

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal defeated Pittsburgh 6-0, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 5-2, Houston trimmed San Francisco 2-1, Cincinnati edged San Diego 5-3 and New York downed Chicago 6-4 in 10 innings.

The Braves took a 3-0 lead in the second inning off Dodgers starter Alejandro Pena, 9-6. Murphy got it started with a one-out single. Jerry Royster then doubled to left and Murphy scored on a single by Bruce Benedict.

Pascual Perez then hit a tapper in front of the plate that catcher Jack Fimple threw away at first, allowing Royster to score. Benedict later scored on a sacrifice fly by Brett Butler.

Atlanta added a run in the fourth on Bob Horner's RBI single and in the fifth when Murphy scored from third on a double play.

Perez, 13-3, and Steve Bredosian, recording his 16th save, combined to scatter eight hits.

The Dodgers got their two runs in the sixth. Greg Brock hit his 14th homer of the season and Dusty Baker later scored on a sacrifice fly by Ken Landreaux.

"Anytime you're away for awhile and gain some ground, you've got to be happy about it," said Braves Manager Joe Torre.

Expos 6, Pirates 0

At Pittsburgh, Steve Rogers stopped the Pirates on two hits and Tim Lincecum smashed his second grand slam of the season. It was Montreal's fourth straight victory, while the slumping Pirates dropped their fourth in a row.

Rogers, 14-6, became the NL's winningest pitcher in tossing his fourth shutout of the season. He struck out three and didn't allow a walk.

Raines' homer, his seventh, came in the second off Larry McWilliams, 11-6. The Expos added runs in the third on Chris Speier's sacrifice fly and the fifth on Tim Wallach's home run, his 14th.

Pittsburgh's only hits were Mike Easler's two-out single in the fifth and Marvell Wynne's single in the sixth.

Phillies 5, Cardinals 2

At St. Louis, The Phillies completed a three-game sweep over the struggling Cardinals to maintain a one-game lead in the tight National League East. St. Louis has dropped seven straight games to go 4½ behind while the Phillies have won 11 of their last 14.

Marty Bystrom, 4-7, gave up four hits over six innings to register the victory. Ron Reed, going three innings, earned his fifth save.

Mike Schmidt hit his 24th homer, a two-run shot in the seventh, and drove in another run in the first to provide most of the power for the Phillies.

The Cardinals got their runs on Darrell Porter's sacrifice fly in the second and Lonnie Smith's RBI single in the third. Neil Allen, 7-11, was the losing pitcher.

Astros 2, Giants 1

Nolan Ryan came back after a sterling one-hitter against San Diego last week with a strong three-hitter at San Francisco. The right-hander, 11-5, struck out eight for a career total of 3,614, only two behind all-time leader Steve Carlton of the Phillies.

The Astros broke a tie in the ninth with an unearned run off reliever Greg Minton, 5-8. Phil Garner led off the inning by reaching first on a throwing error by third baseman Joel Youngblood. Jose Cruz followed with a bunt single and both runners advanced on Minton's throwing error.

Ray Knight followed with a sacrifice fly to deep right to score Garner with the go-ahead run. Cruz also smacked a solo homer in the seventh off Mike Krukow to tie the game.

The Giants scored in the third on Darrell Evans' RBI single.

Reds 5, Padres 3

Frank Pastore nearly did it all for Cincinnati, pitching a six-hitter and smacking a two-run homer against the Padres at San Diego.

Pastore, 5-10, registered his second complete game of the year as he walked two and struck out two in posting his first victory since July 17. It also was his second career home run.

Ron Oester slammed his ninth homer, a two-run shot in the Reds' three-run sixth, to chase Ed Whitson, 2-7.

San Diego took a 1-0 lead in the first on Terry Kennedy's RBI single and added two more in the eighth on doubles by Juan Bonilla and Bobby Brown and Ruppert Jones' two-out single.

Mets 6, Cubs 4

At Chicago, Hubie Brooks had three hits and four RBI, including a two-run single in the 10th, to lead New York to its seventh victory in the last eight games. The win also marked their first three-game series sweep since September 1981.

Doug Sisk, 5-3, was the winning pitcher. Jesse Orosco came on in the 10th inning to earn his 11th save. Lee Smith, 4-7, was the loser.

Mel Hall homered in the seventh for the Cubs, his seventh of the year.

Rizzo Rallies Past Lock For Boston Five Classic Title

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Patti Rizzo, the 1982 LPGA rookie of the year, was ready to quit the women's golf tour early last month after five payless weeks.

Instead of going home to Florida, though, she decided to stick it out. She got back in the money at Indianapolis and the U.S. Open and realized she had made the right decision.

"I've put a lot of pressure on myself to win this year even though I knew I had to work my way up," the 23-year-old former University of Miami, Fla., All-American said Sunday. "Now I feel like I belong."

Rizzo's determination, along with her anger over a 1-over-par 73 Saturday, paid off as she charged from behind to overtake Jane Lock and fashion her first Ladies Professional Golfers Association victory in the $175,000 Boston Five Classic at Radisson Farncroft Country Club.

"I was ready to go today," Rizzo said after finishing with a 4-under-par 68 for a 72-hole total of 277 and a 2-stroke victory over Lock, an Australian just starting her second year on the tour.

"Many players can't sleep before a final round if they have a chance to win," Rizzo said. "But I was furious over my play Saturday. I was so mad at giving away so many shots that I went to the practice area and hit buckets of balls.

"Then I went home and slept like a log. When I woke up I felt real good. I wasn't nervous. I felt ready to charge."

And Rizzo did just that — charge. She birdied three of the first five holes, pulling into a tie. Then she took the lead for good as Lock took a bogey 5 on the seventh green.

Rizzo built her lead to four strokes, but Lock, looking for her first U.S. victory, refused to quit. The 28-year-old one-time physical education instructor in Australia pulled to within two with a birdie on the 70th hole, but time ran out.

Rizzo called her victory a present to a Miami doctor, Jimmy James. She said she considered herself a tomboy eight years ago at the age of 15.

"I hated golf," she said. "I wouldn't go near a golf course. Then I broke my ankle playing basketball. I met the doctor and he eventually convinced me to try playing golf. He taught me the shots. I owe him a lot."

Rizzo said she has played golf every day, without exception, since she started eight years ago. Her biggest check, $26,250, boosted her earnings for the year over $65,000.

Lock earned $17,150, her biggest payday.

"I had my heart set on winning, but I made some money and now I can pay some bills," she said.

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) — In dramatic and spectacular fashion, Hal Sutton and Jack Nicklaus each proved their critics wrong.

The young Sutton demonstrated that he can play solid golf under intense pressure as he thwarted Nicklaus' late charge Sunday and won the PGA Championship by a single stroke.

Nicklaus, 43, showed he can still play the game superbly, coming from six shots off the pace with a closing 66 that almost carried him to his first major victory since 1980.

After struggling to a demoralizing three bogeys in a row on the back nine and realizing Nicklaus had moved to within one shot, Sutton coolly parred the final three holes to win his first major championship.

"I'm relieved to cure that label of choking that's been put on me," said Sutton, 25, referring to his having blown a six-stroke lead on the final day of the recent Anheuser-Busch tournament.

Nicklaus, whose declining success on the tour raised speculation that he was finished as a first-rate player, showed his old brilliance as he came close to collecting a record sixth PGA Championship.

"When I'm playing well, I'm playing as well as I ever have," said Nicklaus, who had to settle for pars on the final two holes. "It was fun, coming down 18 and knowing that a major championship was on the line."

Nicklaus, who had played in the threesome just ahead of Sutton, watched as his approach on the final hole fell within 25 feet of the hole. Sutton potted to within a foot, then tapped in for victory.

Sutton, who led all the way in the tournament at Riviera Country Club, shot a closing par 71 to finish at 10-under-par 274 for the tournament.

Peter Jacobsen came from back in the pack with a closing 65 that gave him the third spot, a stroke back of Nicklaus. Another stroke behind was Pat McGowan, who shot 69. John Fought, with a 71 for a 278 total, was fifth.

Nicklaus said he was pleased with his comeback after an opening 73 and added that he was not overly disappointed by not winning.

"I congratulated Hal and told him that will be the first of many major titles for him," Nicklaus said.

Sutton set a rookie tour earnings record of $237,734 last year and leads the earnings list this year with $397,684, including $100,000 for the PGA victory. He is off to one of the most impressive starts on the tour since Nicklaus' debut more than 20 years ago.

National Industrial Champs
The Fire Fighters won the National Division championship of the Industrial Softball League this summer. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Lynwood Owens, Linwood Hines,

Vilas Anticipates 'Court' Action

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Guillermo Vilas says he and the Men's International Professional Tennis Council could wind up in court before a satisfactory decision is reached, concerning his alleged taking of "appearance money" to play in a recent Holland tournament.

"They (the council) say they have enough evidence to show I took money," said Vilas, who was in Nashville for a Saturday night exhibition bout with John McEnroe. "I denied it, but I had to pay the fine ($20,000) before I appealed. I was declared guilty quickly ... before I was shown anything about it."

Vilas defeated McEnroe 6-3,

3-6, 7-6 in the Saturday exhibition. Vilas won the final two matches of a six-day, six match-tour for the two players.

If his appeal fails, Argentina's top tennis player, who ranked fourth in the world in 1982, faces a year's suspension from Grand Prix and Davis Cup events.

The appeal process involves a three-man panel, with one member picked by Vilas, one by the tennis council and the third by the first two members. The rub, as far as Vilas is concerned, is that all panel members must come from a list provided by the tennis council.

Vilas said he wants to "finish with all the technicalities within the game" before considering any other action.

"Going into the courts is in my mind, but I have to talk to my lawyers first," Vilas said.

Vilas would not say he was a scapegoat in the council's efforts to control alleged paying of front money and splitting of purses by players, but said he was a very convenient person to use as an example.

"I am an independent person. I am a South American, and my tennis association doesn't have the power that this association has. Also, they had to take a player from the top five to make it an issue," Vilas said.

McEnroe was emphatic in defense of Vilas' plight.

"He (Vilas) says he didn't take the money and, even if he did, it's very unfair. He was made a scapegoat," said McEnroe.

"If they (tournament sponsors) put up $250,000 in prize money and if they choose to give a player some money, that's their business," McEnroe said. "It's fact that certain players sell a lot of tickets before a match."

"I think it's time for the players to show a little control over the game. There are a lot of people in tennis who are trying to make some people look bad right now. We (the players) are coming to a period where we have to assert ourselves more," McEnroe said.

But No Cameras Rolling Taken From The Film 'Diner'

SELLECK CRASH — A kneeling actor Thomas Selleck, plunged to the workman (top center) ropes off a section of railing damaged Sunday when a Jeep (bottom center) driven by Kevin Selleck, 15, stepson of TV

HONOLULU (AP) — It was the perfect scene for a television police show, a jeep crashing off the third story of a parking garage. But the cameras weren't rolling and there were no stand-ins for actor Tom Selleck and his stepson, Kevin.

They suffered only minor injuries Sunday in the accident at the Outrigger Canoe Club in Waikiki when the stick shift stuck on the jeep and it crashed through a barrier with the younger Selleck behind the wheel, authorities said.

Selleck and his 15-year-old son were taken to Straub Hospital by ambulance, but were released a short time later.

Selleck's publicity agent in Hollywood, Calif., Esme Chandless, said Selleck, 38, will report as scheduled Monday to his first day of shooting for the new fall programming of "Magnum P.I."

The Jeep landed on its nose in an asphalt-covered area, smashing the front of the vehicle, said Martin Kelly, assistant manager at the Canoe club.

STRUCK BY BODY

PARIS (AP) — A Canadian tourist standing outside Notre Dame Cathedral was struck and killed Sunday by the falling body of a young French woman who leaped to her death from the cathedral's tower.

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie's due back from his honeymoon in Cuba, and Modell wants to bet Boogie $50 that the newlywed will leave his bride at home to join the guys at the diner. They wait, and talk.

"When girls think of a guy as sexy ... I don't understand the whole concept," Modell says. "When you got a girl, you got something to look at."

Finally, Eddie arrives, and grabs some fries and gravy off of Fenwick's plate. "Elyse," he tells his buddies, "feels it's time for me to grow up."

In other words, she doesn't want Eddie to spend his spare time at the diner. The next half-hour is like that — a lot of hot air, and some laughs — as "Diner," a comedy special tonight on CBS, picks up where the critically acclaimed movie of the same name left off.

It's called a "special," presumably because CBS has no plans, for now, to make a series of the show. CBS apparently once considered "Diner" for its fall schedule.

Most of the action takes place at the Fells Point Diner, in Baltimore, and the characters are the same as those in the motion picture. The actors, except for Paul Reiser, who plays Modell, are new.

RIGHTEOUS COMEBACK — Bobby Hatfield (left, in both pictures), and Bill Medley, known as the Righteous Brothers, have reunited and are touring the nation once again. They first split in 1968 at the height of their popularity and now are doing the oldies and glowing in the glory of their rhythm and blues hits from another era. (AP Laserphoto)

The cast includes James Spader as Fenwick, Mike Binder as Eddie, Max Cantor as Shrevie, Michael Madsen as Boogie and Mady Kaplan as Beth. Alison LaPlaca plays Elyse, who was mentioned frequently in the motion picture, but did not appear.

It's 1960, a simpler time by almost any measure, and Elyse and her friend Beth, Shrevie's wife, still can't figure out what attracts the fellows to the diner.

"Can you believe how obsessed guys get at things?" Elyse says. "Eddie, he talks about batting averages. ... Batting averages."

Beth decides Shrevie ought to stay home, too.

"What? Are you crazy?" he shouts when she breaks the news to him. "This is the most insane dinner conversation I've ever had"

"Why do you have to go to the diner?" she asks.

"Because ..." says Shrevie, who takes off for the place anyway.

Trouble is, the attraction — presumably the camaraderie, the man-or-boy-talk — never seems that appealing. But maybe that's the point. Maybe the diner is a place to spend that uneasy time between adolescence and adulthood.

"He dropped out of college to find himself," Eddie tells his mother when she asks about Fenwick, clearly the most intelligent kid in the crowd.

"Find himself?" she replies. "Why don't he find himself somewhere near a job?"

The guys decide to have a party for Eddie, complete with cake and a silly dance on the counter.

"How many hours you think we're all here since we started?" Boogie asks.

"Actual booth hours ... ?" Fenwick says.

Actor's Son Goes In Rehabilitation

NEW YORK (AP) — Griffin O'Neal, the 18-year-old son of actor Ryan O'Neal, has been put in a private drug rehabilitation center in Hawaii because "he had to have help," his sister says.

"He had to be in a situation where he was not indulged, where he couldn't do just anything he wanted, and where someone would slap his head if he needed to, to tell him, 'no,'" said 19-year-old actress Tatum O'Neal.

"He had to have help," she was quoted in the current issue of People magazine.

Griffin and Ryan had a fight in May at the Bel Air home of actress Farrah Fawcett, with Griffin losing two front teeth, the magazine said. Two weeks later the Malibu police booked Griffin after neighbors reported him "tearing his room apart," and Griffin spent three days behind bars.

Griffin, also an actor, underwent treatment in a drug-rehabilitation program at Los Angeles Westwood Hospital in 1981. He is currently in Habilitat, a $800-a-month "survival school" on Oahu.

"This path of destructiveness is just his way of begging for affection, but in the wrong way," Miss O'Neal said.

Last Session Is Planned

Popcorn Theater, a film and book program for fifth, sixth and seventh graders, will have its final session of the summer from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Children's Room at Sheppard Memorial Library.

In addition to free films and popcorn, those attending will be introduced to and can select among a variety of new junior novels.

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 8-8

NLG CKUTUVY IKV LKC LUMVCUYLN—
LG'C K EGKE KMIUEKT.

Saturday's Cryptiquip — OUR CHAMPION WEATHER FORECASTER AND HIS WIFE DANCED UP A STORM.
Today's Cryptiquip clue: K equals A.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is based on trial and error.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦95 ♥J84 ♦A106 ♣Q9852
Your partner opens the bidding with two hearts. What do you respond?

A.—There is no point to introducing your club suit. Your job is to set the trump suit as soon as possible, and three trumps to an honor is excellent support for a demand bid. Start off by bidding three hearts — partner might want to initiate a cue-bidding sequence.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦95 ♥AQ8752 ♦1063 ♣54
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 NT Pass 2 ♥ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—By raising hearts partner has shown a good fit and a maximum no trump opener, i.e., 17-18 points. You want to be in game, but you really don't want the lead coming through partner's hand. Bid three no trump — that will mean that the lead comes up to partner. Your hand should produce six tricks, and partner might find it easier to make three more for game than the four you would need had you contracted for ten tricks in hearts.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦A1092 ♥765 ♦K852 ♣96
Partner opens the bidding one club. What do you respond?

A.—With four-card suits it is customary to bid your suits up the line. Bid one diamond. If partner has a four-card spade suit, he can still introduce it into the auction.

BIRTHS DECLINE

PEKING (AP) — Peking's birth rate declined in the first half of 1983, the first decrease since 1977, the Peking Daily reported Saturday.

FOCUS

A Bolt from the Blue

A typical lightning bolt, which lasts only one-millionth of a second, packs from 10 million to 100 million volts. Only about 25 percent of all lightning strikes ever reach the ground, but, if you are caught outside during a lightning storm, you should take precautions. Lightning always seeks the best conductor to the ground, and it always strikes the tallest conducting object in the landscape. Never take shelter under a tree during a lightning storm, because lightning that strikes a tree will often jump to a person standing nearby. Instead, crouch low with your hands on your knees and your feet close together, thus minimizing contact with the ground.

DO YOU KNOW—Who showed the connection between lightning and electricity in 1752?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER—President Carter first appointed Chairman Volcker to the "Fed."

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is fine to work out problems with other persons and to show that you are a co-operative person in long-range plans with older persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Know what regular partners expect of you and co-operate more with them and do not upset a co-worker.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Tasks seem boring in but get at them anyway and then improve your appearance in some way. Be thrifty.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't do anything risky with your fundamental affairs. You can get your talents expressed nicely in the afternoon.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be careful in handling monetary affairs. Study reports, etc. for possible errors which are troublesome.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Personal affairs do not seem to go right and business affairs also. Study financial affairs for future success.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Better get at that boring task and get it out of the way. Later you may find outside tasks frustrating and unnecessary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A pal may deter you from doing something you had in mind in the morning, and later a loved one proves difficult.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Morning is fine for going after the information you need, but forget anything of a worldly nature. Attend to business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Have that talk with a fine friend who can assist you in your personal aims, and then keep any promises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Early look into your accounts and handle as many as you can, then study into new ways to expand. Keep a low profile today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Come to a better understanding with an old-time friend. Don't argue with a close tie about trivia.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your work and iron out any wrinkles in it. Use tact with a co-worker and avoid a confrontation over inanities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be capable of making plans for a long time to come and can get along with others admirably. However, upon reaching maturity may become so involved with details of projects that the main issues are ignored.

Denies Conflict Of Interest On Routing

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A member of the Orange County Board of Commissioners who pushed to have Interstate 40 run through the county says his ownership of land along the route does not constitute a conflict of interest, the Durham Herald reported Sunday.

Commissioners Norman Walker and Ben Lloyd both own land along the proposed route, the paper reported. Walker and his partners bought land along the route to sell to the state at a profit when the state began buying right-of-way for I-40, and Lloyd owns land at what will be the junction of I-40 and Interstate 85.

Walker said he bought the land knowing the interstate would pass nearby. He said he hopes to make a profit on the land but that his financial interest in the routing of the interstate is not a conflict of interest.

"It has never been a secret transaction or anything," he said. "I bid on it at a public auction and the deed is on file at the courthouse."

Lloyd could not be reached for comment.

The majority of the Orange County Board of Commissioners fought to prevent I-40 from passing through the county, citing environmental factors.

LIFT-OFF — Some of the 65 competitors in the Northeast Regional Hot Air Balloon Championships wait on the ground for their lift off Sunday. The host town for the competition, Bloomsbury, New York, changed its name to Balloonsbury during the three-day event. This was the sixth year that the competition has been held at the town, and it also marked the 200th anniversary of man's first balloon flight. (AP Laserphoto)

Retirement Homes Are Test Case In Tax Issue

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A challenge by a retirement community to a state ruling denying it exemption from property taxes could affect all religious homes and lifecare centers in the state, officials say.

Twin Lakes retirement community began after Burlington millionaire Wade G. Coble died in 1980 and left $4 million to the Macedonia Lutheran Church in Burlington with the stipulation the church build the home. It was the largest individual bequest to a Lutheran church in the United States.

North Carolina currently has about 20 lifecare facilities, and more are being developed. At the centers, residents usually pay large admittance fees and additional monthly charges. They live in cottages, apartments or nursing facilities where they receive graduated degrees of care until they die.

"If this case goes against Twin Lakes, all truly religious homes in the state may suffer depending on the scope of the decision," said Frank Bullock, president of the North Carolina Association of Nonprofit Homes for the Aging and administrator of the Methodist Home in Durham.

The N.C. Property Tax Commission denied Twin Lakes exemption from local property taxes on June 1, saying it did not qualify. Twin Lakes disagreed and appealed to the state Court of Appeals. It contends that state law grants exemptions to facilities like itself, and it already has exemptions from state and federal income taxes.

The issue is arising because the lifecare concept is still new to many communities and local governments are strapped for tax revenue, said Sheldon Goldberg, director of the American Association of Homes for the Aging in Washington.

If such communities lose their tax-exempt status in North Carolina, operating costs will rise, forcing up monthly fees, and the number of elderly able to afford such an option will decrease, officials say.

The homes could also lose their tax-deductible gifts, said the Rev. Harvey Johnson, past president of the N.C. Association of Nonprofit Homes for the Aging and administrator of the Moravian Home in Winston-Salem.

Johnson said most lifecare communities have multimillion-dollar budgets and large payrolls. He said they provide communities with employment, local business, sales taxes, visitors and residents who pay income taxes.

Royal Eyes 1984 Race

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Sen. Majority Leader Kenneth C. Royall Jr., D-Durham, says he may run for governor in 1984 if Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green does not.

"I have always said that if he doesn't run, I would be interested," Royall said. "I haven't done anything about it. I think he is going to run. That being the case, that would drop any thoughts I'd have about running. I am supporting him 100 percent."

Green, awaiting trial on bribery charges in connection with the FBI's Colcor probe of corruption in southeastern North Carolina, says he still plans to run.

Some conservative, business-oriented Democrats say Royall would be an attractive alternative if Green does not run. Former state Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth is also courting conservative Democrats.

EARTHQUAKE

QUETTA, Pakistan (AP) — An earthquake and aftershocks in Baluchistan province's Ziarat Valley has left at least 7,000 homeless, officials said Sunday.

Support Teacher In Dismissal Fight

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Durham County teacher's battle against dismissal is being supported by the North Carolina Association of Black Educators and her pastor.

Durham County Superintendent J. Frank Yeager has recommended that Vivian M. Crump, who has taught in the county 27 years, be dismissed because of "inadequate performance."

Yeager's decision came after a three-year evaluation by a five-member review panel, which recommended that Mrs. Crump be dismissed as a seventh-grade teacher at Chewning Junior High School.

On the advice of her lawyer, Mrs. Crump, who is black, has declined to discuss the case.

The Rev. Lorenzo Lynch, pastor of the White Rock Baptist Church, has led the fight against the dismissal. He said Mrs. Crump has been blamed unfairly for a discipline problem that is the school system's fault.

Meanwhile, the N.C. Association of Black Educators said in a statement distributed at a hearing by the county school board that the three-year evaluation began when a white parent wrote Mrs. Crump's superiors, inaccurately describing an incident and demanding her dismissal.

Yeager said the association's claims are not true. He said the evaluation process began before any letter was written.

NOW YOU KNOW — If you've ever wondered just how airline baggage handling systems manage to damage your bags so quickly, just ask Bob Onysko, quality assurance manager for American Tourister. Bob's company designed and built this machine to reproduce the battering bags receive from airport conveyor systems. The machine subjects test bags to the battering of years in just a few hours. Stern Magazine Pays Heavily In Hitler Diary Hoax

By TAMARA JONES
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The Hitler diary hoax has taken a heavy toll on West Germany's most popular newsweekly — far more than the $3.75 million it paid for the fraudulent papers and never recovered.

After the admission that the sensational passages published in Stern were phony, and not the private thoughts of Adolf Hitler, the magazine's circulation and newsroom morale plummeted.

Investigators have plowed through reams of paper for three months and still have not unraveled one of the century's biggest literary swindles.

Not a cent of the millions paid for the 62 handwritten volumes has been recovered.

No charges have been filed in the case.

Gerd Heidemann, a 51-year-old reporter who purchased the diaries, and Konrad Kujau, the 44-year-old dealer in Nazi memorabilia who confessed to forging the diaries and implicated Heidemann, remain jailed while the investigation continues. In West Germany, a person can be held without charge during investigation.

Heidemann, a veteran journalist, was fired before he was jailed.

The state prosecutor in Hamburg refuses to talk about the investigation until it is complete. Spokesman Peter Beck said it is impossible to speculate when that might be.

Readers fired off more than 500 letters — most of them hostile — to Stern.

Chief news editor Gunther Schoenfeld said circulation for May and June was down 148,000 copies from last year, with about 78,000 of those readers lost because of the diary hoax and the rest largely because of a price increase. Circulation before the hoax was 1.55 million copies.

The staff mutinied when the publishers tried to repair Stern's tarnished image.

Fearing for the magazine's liberal reputation, the staff occupied the newsroom for a week in May to protest the hiring of two conservative successors to chief editors who resigned in the diary brouhaha.

The company hired respected television journalist Peter Scholl-Latour and Capital magazine editor Johannes Gross as chief editors and co-publishers.

The rebellious staff demanded the resignation of the new editors, as well as business manager Gerd Schulte-Hillen. The sit-in ended when Gross stepped down.

Chief reporter Heinrich Jaenecke blames the fiasco on the publishers, who, he claims, were hoodwinked because they "wanted a scoop" and purchased the diaries without consulting the editors.

"The matter was handled very conspiratorily," he said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

According to Stern's own published account, the magazine made its first payment on Jan. 27, 1981, and its final payment last April 29 — a day after publication of what was billed as the "journalistic scoop of the post-war period."

Stern has long had a reputation for paying impressive sums for exclusives.

The magazine says it gave Heidemann the diary money without knowing how or to whom it was to be distributed. Henri Nannen, Stern's publisher, has accused Heidemann of pocketing the cash.

Heidemann says he gave most of it to Kujau and that he tossed the rest of the cash into a passing car on a highway in Communist East Germany, and that diaries came sailing back through an open window in his Mercedes.

Kujau claims he only received the equivalent of $938,000.

The Stern editors involved in the top-secret project waited until the last minute to consult historians and handwriting analysts.

The Federal Archives weren't given the diaries until after publication began, when the passages' authenticity was challenged by independent experts.

Within a few days, the archives determined through chemical tests that the diaries were plagiarized from a 1962 book.

Stern made its own probe of the affair but has so far kept its findings private.

The 300-page report on the probe by four Stern editors and a former Hamburg jurist "doesn't contain anything really new or startling," one of the five said. "We didn't recommend that anyone be fired."

"I think it's clear where the mistakes were made," the source said, without elaboration and insisting on anonymity.

The committee interviewed some 30 Stern staffers, and Heidemann answered questions from his jail cell through his attorney, the source said.

Bernd Schipphorst, spokesman for Stern's owners, Gruner and Jahr publishing house, said "a lot" of steps were being taken "to win back the confidence of our readers and advertisers," but he didn't specify them.

He said no advertisers quit over the diary scandal.

"It was a deep emotional shock for everyone," says reporter Jaenecke. "We can only hope to recover by the end of the year. Everyone has learned through this disaster."

Seven Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

Two members of a Baltimore family on their way to a wedding were killed over the weekend when their car ran off Interstate 85 in Warren County and was impaled on a guard rail, the state Highway Patrol reported Sunday.

A total of seven people died in weekend traffic accidents around the state, bringing the total to 703 for the year.

James McKnight, 48, and his sister-in-law, Gladys Beamon Banks, 46, were on their way to a wedding in Hickory when their car crashed into a guard rail about 6:20 a.m. Saturday. They were pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, troopers said.

Pedestrian Joe James Goddard, 36, of Grimesland was killed at 3:35 a.m. Sunday when a car hit him while he was lying on N.C. 38 near his hometown.

Johnny Franklin Reynolds, 24, of Lincolnton was killed at 9:30 a.m. Sunday when he walked into the path of a car traveling along Interstate 40 near Morganton.

Vernon Irvin Pratt, 24, of Morven was killed Friday night while walking along N.C. 145 west of his hometown in Anson County, troopers said.

John Thomas Horten, 17, of Mt. Gilead was killed at 12:30 a.m. Sunday when he lost control of the car he was driving at high speed along a rural road west of Candor in Montgomery County. He was thrown from the car and run over by it.

Lewis S. Hamilton Jr., 69, of Ardmore, Pa., was killed at 1:20 p.m. Sunday when he ran a stop sign and was struck by another car at the intersection of U.S. 1258 and N.C. 168 in Currituck County near Barco, troopers said.
