Latin Americans Assail U.S. Military Pressure

By PETER EISNER
Associated Press Writer
El Salvador's Roman Catholic archbishop denounced "external intervention" in Central America and

U.S. military officials said maneuvers in Honduras will block what they claim are Nicaraguan supply routes to Salvadoran rebels. President Reagan on Sunday discussed Central America with Mexico's President Miguel de la Madrid. Mexico rejects the Reagan contention that Nicaragua supplies arms to the Salvadoran leftists in their fight against the U.S.-backed rightist government. There were statements of friendship during Reagan's seven-hour visit to La Paz, Mexico, but no indication the presidents softened their opposing viewpoints. De la Madrid opposes the U.S.-Honduran maneuvers. In El Salvador, Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Damas denounced factional violence that has killed 44 civilians in the last two weeks.

"The interminable list of captured and missing people is truly painful," the archbishop said in one of his strongest condemnations of violence in the Salvadoran civil war that began in October 1979 and has claimed an estimated 43,000 lives.

"So many missing people. What are they accused of? Where are they?" Rivera y Damas asked 1,000 worshippers who crammed San Salvador's Metropolitan Cathedral for a Sunday sermon.

The archbishop also said there are "clear symptoms of external intervention in the internal affairs of Central America," and that one example is the U.S. war games scheduled to start in Honduras later this month.

U.S. military sources, closely involved in the American aid program to the Salvadoran government, said the U.S. exercises will cut off what they claim is a prime arms infiltration corridor from Nicaragua to El Salvador by placing thousands troops in the southwest corner of Honduras.

"Apparently the way they've been operating on the land route is to send squad-size units across, seven men or so," said a high-ranking U.S. intelligence officer who requested anonymity. "They may be transporting arms, messages, other supplies."

Congressional and Latin American critics of Reagan's Central American policies say they doubt Nicaragua is sending substantial supplies to Salvadoran rebels by these alleged routes.

"From what we can tell, the principal supply comes by way of the black market or the capture of weapons from the Salvadoran army," said a senior Mexican diplomat, who participated in the Reagan-de la Madrid summit.

Reagan's meeting with the Mexican president in La Paz, a resort city in southern Baja California, included strong statements about Central America.

"No nation can impose its own image on others," de la Madrid told Reagan.

Central American nations "should be able to determine their own solutions, and that is why we have responded to the call for help from our Latin American neighbors," Reagan replied.

"We will consider it a beautiful day in the history of that region when all foreign elements, including our own, may be safely withdrawn," Reagan said.

Mexico has criticized the U.S. maneuvers and naval exercises off Central America's coasts, claiming they intensify tension instead of reduce it.

About 100 U.S. Army personnel will be arriving daily for the next two weeks in Honduras for the joint military exercises. At their height in November and December, about 5,000 Americans and 6,000 Hondurans will be participating.

U.S. Hercules C-130 transports, jet-powered C-141 Starlifters and C-5A Galaxies are crowding the airways around the city of San Pedro Sula, 100 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital.

Body Of Drowned Man Is Recovered

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The body of a 28-year-old Winterville man was found in the Tar River this morning about 8:30 after officers of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department had been searching since late Saturday afternoon.

Freddy McKeel's body was spotted this morning near the Grimesland Seine Beach by Jimmy Corey of Route 3, Greenville, who had volunteered to help the Sheriff's Department search for the body. Members of the Greenville, Farmville, Falkland, Eastern Pines, Winterville and Gritton rescue squads assisted with the search. Corey had no previous experience in rescue operations.

"I found the body ... right past the bridge and went and got the wildlife officer to get some help," Corey said. Sheriff's deputies and members of Greenville Fire and Rescue had been searching for the body since approximately 5:30 p.m. Saturday just after they received a call reporting the drowning.

"The drowning took place about 200 yards west of the Grimesland draw bridge," Pitt County Sheriff Ralph L. Tyson said.

"He was supposed to have been skiing, but fell off his skis about 50 yards after he had started and went down. After circling, the people in the boat jumped out and grabbed McKeel, but he slipped out of someone's hand and they could not get McKeel back up," Tyson said.

According to Tyson, McKeel was wearing a life-jacket, but slipped out of it.

Disturbed Over Amount Of Stabilization Sales

By The Associated Press

North Carolina tobacco leaders and growers are upset that a third of the leaf brought to auctions in the five flue-cured tobacco states has gone under loan since markets opened in late July.

"It's disappointing," said Fred G. Bond, executive director of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. "We'd much prefer to see it lower than a third."

More than 41 million pounds of leaf have gone to the cooperative, which borrows money from the government to guarantee a minimum price for most grades of tobacco. When tobacco fails to bring one cent above the support price, Stabilization buys it.

Although the practice brings stability to the state's biggest money crop, it leaves the cooperative with millions of pounds of tobacco to sell later when market conditions improve. The leaf is piling up in Stabilization's warehouses — more than 600 million pounds from several seasons.

Last season, Stabilization received a quarter of the flue-cured crop — 260 million pounds — the largest amount of tobacco ever purchased by the cooperative.

Bond said no one knows how long Stabilization can absorb that much tobacco and continue to operate at a profit.

"How much can we stand? That's an unknown," Bond said. "But we don't want to reach the point where we have to find out."

This week some Old Belt warehouses open in Rockingham, Surry, Forsyth and other Piedmont counties.

Since Congress approved the no-net-cost tobacco program in the summer of 1982, leaf growers have paid an assessment to Stabilization for each pound of tobacco they sell.

Stabilization uses the assessment, which started at 3 cents and rose this season to 7 cents, to offset interest payments on the loans the cooperative gets from the government's Commodity Credit Corp.

But as Stabilization's tobacco stores increase, the cost of handling that tobacco also grows. When costs rise so does the assessment, which was established to make sure farmers, not the government, bear the cost of the federal support program.

"With the leasing price as we pay, we couldn't stand another increase," said Otis Green, who grows tobacco in Guilford and Rockingham counties. "We couldn't stand 7 cents. If it gets up higher, we might just as well not be working out here."

"If Stabilization winds up with 150 to 200 million pounds this year, we could be looking at a no-net-cost assessment ranging up in the double digits," said John Cyrus, chief of the tobacco affairs section of the state Department of Agriculture.

"You'll then be at a point where you are skimming all the profit from the grower," Cyrus said. "Stabilization simply cannot continue to take these large amounts of tobacco."

Lebanese Factions Continuing Exchange Shells In Mountains

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —

Christian and Druse militiamen shelled each other's positions in the central mountains early today, and police said at least three people were killed and six wounded.

Shells hit towns and villages in the Druse sections of the Aley and Chouf mountains as well as Christian areas including those on Beirut's outskirts, causing heavy property damage, police said.

The warring militias accused each other of starting the shooting in the latest round of hostilities that erupted Saturday night and persisted until a new ceasefire took hold today.

On Sunday, security forces accused Syrian gunners in the central mountains of joining the Druse barrage that sent shells slamming into Beirut's Christian areas, including those where the presidential palace and U.S. ambassador's residence are located. Neither gas reported hit and there were no casualties.

That shelling came hours after U.S. presidential envoy Robert C. McFarlane said in a radio broadcast that the United States would stand by Lebanon in seeking to rid the country of foreign forces "because it is the right thing to do."

McFarlane's remarks followed two meetings with Foreign Minister Elie Salem in which the discussions were said to focus on the battles between government troops and Druse fighters.

In Israel, Prime Minister

Menachem Begin accused Syria on Sunday of blocking withdrawal of all foreign armies from Lebanon by refusing to accept the Lebanese-Israeli troop-withdrawal agreement reached three months ago but never implemented. Syria claims the agreement threatens its security by allowing Israeli forces to patrol southern Lebanon.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, in an interview printed Sunday in the Washington Post, restated his country's claim that it will never honor the agreement and that Israeli forces must withdraw unconditionally.

"It is a mistake for anyone to believe or to think that we will ever leave Lebanon as a morsel which is easy for the Israelis to swallow," he was quoted as saying.

Israel has an estimated 28,000 soldiers in Lebanon, Syria has 50,000 and the Palestine Liberation Organization a 12,000-15,000-strong force. The Israelis invaded in June 1982 to rout the PLO, and Syria has been in the country since the end of the 1975-76 civil war.

Druse artillery fire from the mountains southeast of the capital has kept Beirut's airport closed since last Wednesday, and Druse leader Walid Jumblatt has said his gunners will keep shelling the facility unless the government meets the demands of his Progressive Socialist Party.

The Druse have been fighting right-wing Christian militias in the central mountains since November. Among Jumblatt's main conditions to allow the Lebanese army into the area is total pullout of all Christian militiamen from the region, which is home to most of the country's 200,000 Druse.

Barred By Fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — J.R. Kirk, barred from the Ohio State Fair for taking home too many stuffed animals, figures he'll just have to grow a beard to continue his winning ways.

Kirk's proficiency at everything from throwing darts to tossing balls into milk containers has earned him 50 toy critters this year, leading game operators to ban him from the fair for the second straight year.

Kirk says he spent about $200 Wednesday and Thursday to win animals which he values at $1,000 to $2,000.

"Can I tell you something? This is going to sound kind of vain," he said. "I can do anything. I don't get beat."

Because operators won't let him play anymore, he said, "I'm going to let my beard grow for three or four days and try again," in-cognito.

Kirk says he uses his own darts, and if game operators object, "I stand back four feet farther."

Two prizes, a giant white buffalo and a brown teddy bear, will go to Kirk's children, ages 12 and 13. He said he plans to donate the rest to playrooms and patients at a children's hospital.

Wedding Vows Said Sunday

GRIFTON — Lake Benjamin here was the setting for the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Rhonda Laverne Hudson and Wilton Steven Jordan. Parents of the bride are Mrs. Janet W. Rhodes of Grifton and Ronald Lee Hudson of Vanceboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Eddie Cray of Kinston and Wilton G. Jordan of Ayden.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Julian Scott of Kinston.

James Gilliam of Grifton played the organ. Patricia Edwards of Ormondsville and Gilliam sang "You and I." She also sang "Evergreen" and he sang "Love Me Tender."

The bride was escorted by her stepfather, Rusty Rhodes, and given in marriage by her parents. Cynthia Warren of Grifton was matron of honor for her sister and Dawn Jordan of Charlotte, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Jennifer Bone of Nashville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and Jeremy Bone of Nashville, also cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while the usher included Ronald Lee Hudson Jr. of Vanceboro, brother of the bride.

The bride wore a formal gown of sheer organza and alencon lace and seed pearls. It was designed with an empire waist, lace covered bodice and Queen Anne neckline with scalloped lace border accented with seed pearls. The full sheer bishop sleeves were designed with scattered alencon floral lace motifs and bordered with matching lace cuffs. The full A-line sheer organza skirt with V-front alencon lace panel was trimmed with pearls and bordered with lace that flowed into a chapel train. She wore a wide brim horsehair hat with organza and satin ribbon and pencil-edged rosette with pearl centers. Attatche was a double tier of illusion. The bride carried a silk cascade of white and lavender orchids with springs of stephanotis and daisies, lavender baby's breath, morning glories, ivy and fern.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of orchid tissue taffeta with off-shoulder bodice designed with multiple shoulder bows. The full skirt featured rows of gathered taffeta flounces. She carried a white parasol with orchid ribbons. The attendants were dressed like the honor attendant.

The flower girl was dressed in an orchid gown with a stand-up neckline with point d'esprit lace trim and carried a basket of daisies.

The bride's mother wore an orchid lustreglo and chiffon gown styled with a V-neckline enhanced by a chiffon cape. The mother of the bridegroom selected a rose chiffon and lustreglo dress with a V-neckline and sheer bishop sleeves.

The couple will live at Route 2, Grifton, after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School, Benjamin's Hairstyling Academy and Pitt Community College. She worked at Texti in Kinston. The bridegroom graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School and works at Hatteras Yachts in New Bern.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at Lake Benjamin. Cassie Whiteford of Raleigh, aunt of the bride, served cake and Henrietta Glover of Black Creek, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch. Jewel Jordan, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the register.

Vivian Coleman of Jacksonville, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Holiday Inn in Kinston given by Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Cray and Mr. and Mrs. Wilton G. Jordan.

Service For Women Travelers

By JANET DENEFE
Associated Press Writer
Women business travelers used to have the same complaint as comedian Rodney Dangerfield — they didn't get any respect.

But now that women make up the fastest growing segment of the travel industry, hotels are trying to cater to their female guests. At the same time, women travelers say they're not so shy any more about demanding service.

"Women have been patsies for a bad room and a bad table," said Priscilla Moorman, president of a travel agency with three offices in Detroit. "I'm trying to educate women that their money is just as good as anybody else's, and by George, if they're not happy with a room, not to settle for it."

Meanwhile, some Michigan hotel officials say they're trying to figure out how to best appeal to women travelers.

"I don't feel women want to be singled out," said Tom Appel, an executive assistant manager at the Hyatt Regency in Flint.

"When we've talked to say they don't want phone calls to their room to make sure they're tucked in," he said, adding that the Hyatt used to make welcome calls to its female guests.

"We're trying to break down the attitude of putting the woman at the kitchen door."

Nearly one-third of all business travelers are women, up from 16 percent in 1978 to 30 percent in 1980, said Jeanette Pollack, a sales representative for a Ramada worldwide sales office in Dearborn. Ramada, which operates 12 hotels in Michigan, carried out a year of research on women business travelers, she said.

As a result, the hotel chain has scheduled seminars for employees aimed at raising their consciousness — for instance, instructing desk clerks not to call the woman's room number out loud.

Ramada also distributes a brochure called "The Traveling Woman," which includes a bill of rights for women guests.

"You have a right not to be addressed as 'sweetie' or 'honey' by employees," according to the booklet, which also advises women that bartenders will never serve them an unrequested drink.

The plush Hotel St. Regis in Detroit, which includes hair dryers and packets of liquid detergent in each room, makes one concession just for women — each gets a fresh red rose at night, says manager Michael C. Kahler. "We treat all our guests very specially," said Melissa Werder, a spokesman for the Westin Hotel in Detroit. "Things like complimentary shampoo and express check-in for business travelers are applicable for both men and women."

Officials at hotels contacted around Michigan say that skirt hangers, shower caps, and items like shampoo and skin cream are now standard, while hair dryers and irons can be provided upon request.

The Harley hotels in Lansing and Grand Rapids include a clothesline in the bathtub, full-length mirrors so a woman can check the hem of her skirt and magnifying makeup mirrors.

And the Grand Traverse Resort in Traverse City says it has changed its menu in recent years to appeal to a woman's lighter appetite, including items like spinach and fruit salads.

"We've also stepped up our entire security, which grew out of an awareness of the single female traveler," hotel manager Jim Gernhofer said.

Other Michigan hotels report that premium-priced floors designed for corporate executives have been a hit with women.

At the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids, an additional $20 per night gets the guest into Tower Club accommodations. One of the pluses is that a woman guest can use a private lounge to entertain a client so she can avoid meeting him in her room or the hotel bar, said spokeswoman Liz Amante.

The Kalamazoo Center Hilton Inn last year opened a similar floor for its corporate guests with good results.

"Women love it because they feel very secure," said Gary Rossman, director of sales and catering. "They can sit up here and relax. It's not a pickup situation."

FRESH LIME SUGAR COOKIES

- 1/2 cup butter, at room temperature or cut into thin pats
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 4 1/2 teaspoons fresh lime juice
- 1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar mixed with 2 teaspoons grated lime rind

In a medium bowl with an electric beater, cream butter and sugar; beat in salt and lime juice. Add flour; with a wooden spoon stir until blended. Chill, covered tightly, until firm enough to handle.

Shape into two 4-inch long rolls; wrap in saran; chill until firm enough to slice. Remove one roll from refrigerator; cut crosswise into thin (about 1/8-inch) slices; with a wide metal spatula place about an inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Sprinkle with sugar and lime-rind mixture. Repeat with second roll.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until bottoms of cookies are golden — 6 to 8 minutes. With a wide metal spatula remove to a wire rack to cool completely. Makes about 5 dozen.

Guests included other relatives and friends.

Dear Abby

Take A Ride And Pick Up Gifts

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I just got a telephone call from a relative (I won't say how close) who lives less than five miles from me. She said, in a very huffy tone, "When are you coming to pick up your Christmas presents?" (This is the third time she's called about this.)

Abby, correct me if I am wrong, but aren't people supposed to deliver their own Christmas presents?

I might add, this relative has a car and is not handicapped in any way, shape or form.

I am so angry I can hardly write this. How should I handle it?

BOILING OVER

DEAR BOILING: You are obviously too intimidated to ask this relative to please deliver them, so before the hot summer ends, take a ride, cool off, and pick up your Christmas presents.

DEAR ABBY: This has been bugging me for years. It's the way people always greet you with, "How are you?" Then they zoom right by without even waiting for an answer. If they aren't interested in how a person is, why do they ask? Why not just say, "Hello?"

There have been times when I would like to tell somebody how I really am, but I never get the chance because nobody waits for an answer.

I work in an office, and this morning when I came to work, a man yelled from across the room, "Hi, Lea, how are you?" Did he actually expect me to yell across the room, "Well, not too good; my hemorrhoids are killing me!"

I hope you don't think I'm a fool for bringing this up, but I feel better getting it off my chest. Am I alone in this annoyance, or are there others out there who feel as I do?

LEA (MY REAL NAME)

DEAR LEA: Face it, when most people ask, "How are you?" they don't want an organ recital. A "Fine, thanks," will suffice. And sit on the "facts" until you see your physician.

DEAR ABBY: For over 15 years I was married to a wonderful man. He was an excellent provider (I would not have had to work, but I chose to), a good father to our children and a good Christian. I always had free rein with our funds, no questions asked. His only fault was that he was a dud in the bedroom.

I met a very attractive man about my age. We became intimately involved, and I found him to be excellent in bed. I became convinced that I couldn't live without him, so I divorced my husband and married him.

After five years I realized that the bedroom was the only place where the bum was any good. He was inconsiderate, selfish, downgraded my children and me and had a roving eye. Now I have to work in order to feed and clothe my children properly. I have bought nothing for myself in the last five years, but this man has plenty of money for whatever he wants.

I finally got my head straight, and now I'm waiting for my second divorce to become final.

My advice to a woman whose only gripe about her husband is his performance in bed is: Please see a marriage counselor or even a sex therapist, but don't get involved with another man!

I dropped the pot of gold to chase the rainbow.

FOOLISH BEYOND WORDS

DEAR FOOLISH: There's nothing so clear as 20-20 hindsight. Well, ladies, there's a million dollars worth of advice for the price of a newspaper.

Wetherington-Jones Vows Are Solemnized

The wedding of Ruby W. Jones of Greenville and Leon Thomas Wetherington of Stella was solemnized Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Dr. Cedric Pierce Jr.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Wiggins of Vanceboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Pennie Wetherington of Stella and the late Bill Wetherington.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Della Dixon, organist, and Mrs. Mattie Link, soloist.

The bride wore a formal gown of pink polyester with a chiffon capelet with a decor of beads and pearls. She carried a Bible adorned with a corsage of pink and white flowers. She was escorted by her son.

She was given in marriage by her children, William H. Galloway of Springs, N.Y. and Ellen Marie Wiggins of Houma, La.

The daughter of the bride was honor attendant and wore a formal gown of baby blue with smocked decor and puffed elbow length sleeves.

Annette Morris of Vanceboro, aunt of the bride, wore a formal gown of mint green and the mother of the bridegroom selected a two-piece gown of skipper blue.

Thomas Edward Wetherington, son of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were John Wiggins of Houma, La., son-in-law of the bride, and Gary Melvin of Stella, nephew of the bridegroom.

A reception was held in the Cherry Fellowship hall after the ceremony. Mary Lou Galloway of Springs, N.Y., daughter-in-law of the bride, and Tara Galloway of Charlotte, granddaughter of the bride, presided at the bridal register.

Cake was served by Mrs. Edna Mills of Black and Mrs. Attie Wiggins of Kinston poured punch.

The couple will live in Greenville after their wedding trip.

Wedding Invitation

Mrs. Lula Moore Foster requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Cora Delese, to James Gray Adams on Aug. 20 at 6 p.m. at York Memorial AME Zion Church and afterwards at the American Legion Post No. 39. No invitations were mailed locally.

Tips On Removing Ice Cream Stains

NEW YORK (UPI) — Coffee ice cream stains are harder to remove than chocolate, and even vanilla can be a problem, says Dmitry Gagarine.

The fabrics expert says coffee and chocolate ice cream stains are especially difficult to remove because they contain proteins in both their milk content and their coloring matter, and the protein components stick to the fabric.

Gagarine is an independent consultant and former research director of Milliken & Co., a fabrics manufacturer.

He said vanilla and strawberry ice cream stains lack the proteins, so are easier to clean.

Gagarine recommends a three-step process for removing ice cream and frozen yogurt from washable clothing. It uses the most effective ingredients for washing and dry cleaning — a good detergent and a solvent.

First, soak the stain in soap and lukewarm water as quickly as possible after it appears.

Next, touch it up, or pre-spot, with a spotting solvent sold in drug and hardware stores.

Then, wash the garment in the washing machine with a good detergent. It should come out spotless.

Gagarine said a detergent and a solvent are needed because "Detergents can't take out the fatty content of the ice cream but they can remove the coloring and milk solids." Dry cleaning solvents can remove butterfat but not coloring and milk solids.

As for wool garments, he said the best method is dry cleaning. And be sure to point out the stains to the dry cleaner to they can be pre-spotted.

Gagarine said ice cream stains are especially hard to remove from cotton and wool because of their natural wax content.

Because like sticks to like, he said, cotton and wool attract the butterfat in ice cream.

Fibers that are water-loving and lack a waxy component — rayons, polyesters and acrylics, for example — encourage water to follow their surface even in the areas of oily stains.

Duplicate Winners

Grand National Pairs winners were named Saturday afternoon in the duplicate bridge game played at Planters Bank.

Winners included North-South, Section A: Nellie Alford and Virginia Matlocks, first with 610 percent; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Paterson, second; Barbara Wright and Elizabeth Roque third.

East-West: Mabel Edmondson and Betty Wilkins, first with 610 percent; Sally Kirkwood and Richard Moore, second; Lee Johnson and Cliff Horton, third.

Section B, North-South: Lillian Horton and Dave Proctor, first with 586 percent; Katherine Denny and Gerald Batts, second; Sara Bradbury and Dr. Charles Duffy, third.

Section B, East-West: Lee Hastings and Ray Neeland, first with 577 percent; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew deSherbinin, second; Chris Langley and Ed Yauck, third.

Wednesday afternoon winners, North-South were: Dot McKemie and Ray Gunderson, first with 678 percent; Susan Powers and Lee Hastings, second; Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts and Mrs. Lacy Harrell, third; Mrs. Robert Powell and Mrs. David Stevens, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Jeff McAllister and Dave Proctor, first with 585 percent; Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. Harold Forbes, second; tied for third were Mrs. John Tayloe and Mrs. Clifton Toler with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew deSherbinin.

Wednesday morning winners, North-South included: Maxine Fraade and Dorothy Eck, first with 571 percent; Mrs. Charles Mitchell and Mrs. David Stevens, second; Mrs. Jeff McAllister and George Martin, third.

East-West: Mrs. Eloise Gabbert and Mrs. Beverly Maxon, first with 634 percent; Mrs. Robert Bright and Mrs. Herbie Carson, second; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Pitman, third.

The water goes in between the fibers and the stain and, with only the help of a detergent, pushes the oily stain away from the fabric.

Plain frozen yogurt is 50 percent less staining than ice cream, Gagarine said, because it contains less fat. Even so, he said, the three-step cleaning process is still necessary to completely remove stains.

Pat's Pointers By Pat Trexler

With the busy fall season fast approaching, now is the time to start making ornaments for charity bazaars and then for your own tree. Use only the simplest of needlepoint stitches, 3- and 4-inch plastic canvas pre-cut circles, 10-mesh colored canvas and small amounts of yarn to create these clever, quick and easy ornaments.

To obtain directions for making the Frosted Christmas Circles, send your request for Leaflet No. NL-0814 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. N-0814 by sending a check or money order for $11.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes the shipping charges and all materials and instructions needed to make two of each ornament shown.

One of the cardinal rules in needlepoint of any kind is that you should always secure loose yarn ends under previously worked stitches and then clip the remaining ends immediately. Regular readers know that I am not one for giving a lot of unbreakable rules for any craft, but this is one that should always be observed to keep those loose ends from tangling, knotting or working their way to the front of the work.

That's all well and good and good when you have some adjacent, previously worked stitches through which to secure the excess yarn on the wrong side. But what do you do with the beginning strand of yarn of thread when you are starting with a blank piece of canvas?

I'll always be grateful to Marion Scoular of Clemson, S.C., who taught me the "waste-knot trick" many years ago.

The first step — after knot anyway. Now, insert the threaded needle from the right side to the wrong side of the canvas so that the knot (A) will be at least a couple of inches away from the point where you will take your first stitch. It should be placed in the direction in which you will be stitching so that the strand of yarn that runs from the knot to the first stitch will be covered as you work.

Now, bring the needle up at B and take it down at C to work your first stitch. Then, work a couple stitches moving toward the knot. When you have done so, you will see that the strand of yarn running from the knot is on the wrong side of your work and is being covered (and thus secured) by the stitches.

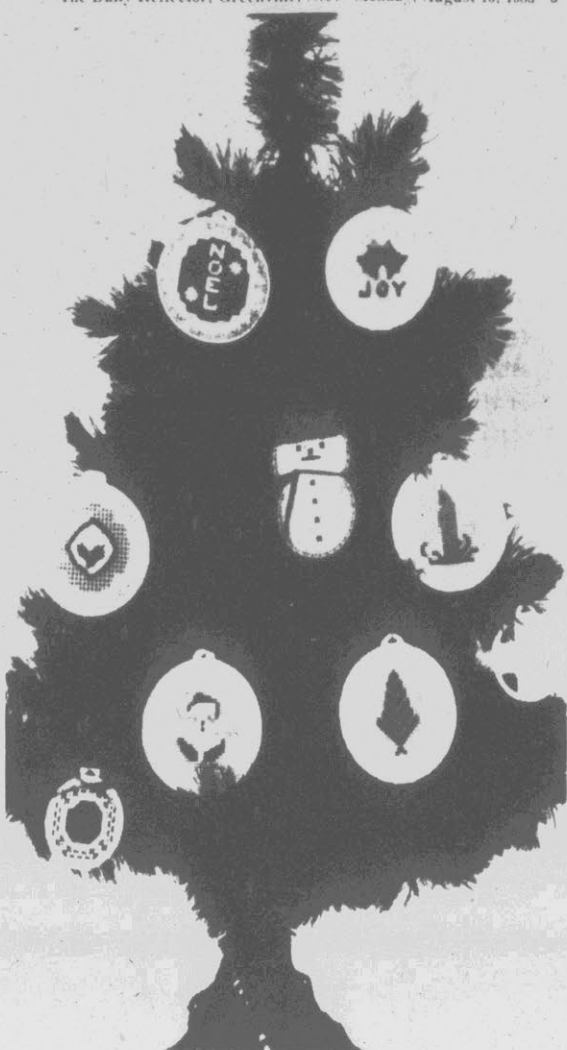

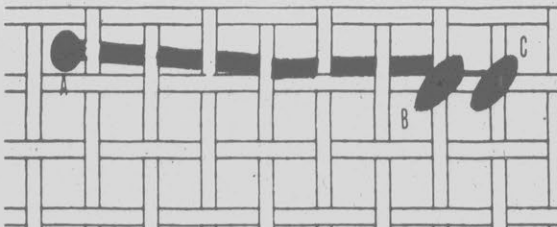

When you come close to the knot, just snip it away. That's all there is to it — a simple trick but an invaluable one.

With most projects, you will only do this once — at the very beginning. However, when you are working on a colored canvas, working scattered stitches or groups of stitches, you should use it each time you start in a new area so that there won't be strands of yarn running from one area to another and showing through the areas of unworked canvas.

While I have illustrated this with a simple continental stitch, it can be used with any stitch. If you have been needlepointing for years without being aware of this, you're sure to wonder — as I did — "Why didn't I think of that before?"

("Pat's Pointers: The Needlepoint Handbook" by Pat Trexler is devoted to needlepoint and includes se- threading your needle, of course — is to make a knot in the end of your yarn. This is breaking another unbreakable needlepoint rule, which states that you never, ever use knots while stitching.

Narrow Terrain

Thanks to a federal jury in Kansas City the dust has been settled in TV anchorwoman Christine Craft's discrimination suit.

Too bad the basic issue was beclouded by extraneous matters.

Craft won her point: she was neither "too old, unattractive and not deferential enough to men".

As to the last, Craft said "I will defer to Clare Boothe Luce or Eric Sevareid ... but I will not defer to someone just because he or she happens to be better at basic hair spray".

Her pictures argued against the other two criticisms.

The station director denied under oath of having made the comment; and Craft, under oath, said he did. Her quality of credibility made an impact; his did not.

The fact remains, television news is a highly competitive field and very mobile. People are forever moving up the ladder, and if they do not, their otherwise sterling qualities raise doubts.

There's reason to think the verdict will not have much effect on the industry. Stations will hire and fire on the basis of criteria that loom largest in their opinion; and except in rare instances, new faces and voices emerge as others leave the scene.

The war-of-words in Kansas City was waged on a narrow terrain which Christine Craft saw advantageous to her case. Nothing else was really settled.

Good Business

Once upon a time when a great war raged the United States government created something called a war bond.

The bonds were safe, paid interest and the public bought them in bunches to support the war effort.

The war ended and the bonds became known as defense bonds and people still purchased them because they were safe and paid a reasonable return.

Then something happened. Other investments paid more return and were reasonably safe, so the government's bond program designed for small investors fell into disuse.

Then the government changed the bonds and introduced one which was more sensitive to return being paid by other investments.

Bond sales rose. They are up 20 percent in North Carolina during the second quarter of this year. In the nation sales are up 37 for the first six months of the year.

The lesson is that keeping a product current with the market is always good business — even for the U.S. government.

Trapped Man

NEW YORK (AP) — At the pinnacle of success, having saved a company his less-daring peers had declared unsalvageable, a company whose bankers wouldn't lend it a penny without government backing, Lee Iacocca is a trapped man.

That assessment, by Michigan State University professor Eugene Jennings, is based on a study of options open to the Chrysler Corp. chairman, who rebuilt his company from the wreckage of billion-dollar losses to record profits in this year's second quarter.

Iacocca seemed freed rather than trapped last Friday as he repaid the last $800 million in government-secured loans that kept the company going in the darkest of days, when many corporate analysts thought him irresponsible.

During that time he had become what almost no business executive before him had achieved, the status of folk hero, a chesty leader in the mold of Gen. George Patton, a take-charge guy who, because he didn't know how to quit, was left no alternative but to win.

But now, said Jennings, Iacocca really doesn't have alternatives. It is all but impossible, said the professor, to leap from one pinnacle to another. And yet, he suggested, this is what is expected of Iacocca, maybe even by himself.

"Whatever opportunities he has in the future will not allow him to sustain the high image as an exceptional leader," declared Jennings, who has spent his adult life studying corporations and top executives, and who is a confidential adviser to many of them.

Iacocca had a perfect marriage with his job, said Jennings.

To begin with, the company was too far gone to have used the talents of any but an automobile man such as Iacocca, who understood the industry from bumper to bumper and who knew where to find the best executive talent.

Moreover, said Jennings, a professor of business administration, Iacocca not only was a seasoned operating manager but had an overwhelming desire to prove himself.

In short, he needed Chrysler; Chrysler needed him. It was a situation not often repeated in the business world.

But now, says Jennings, the skills needed by Chrysler have changed. The total realignment, at which Iacocca was so successful, has been completed. Now comes the job of rebuilding. It requires other skills.

"Few executives of Iacocca's talents stay long enough to rebuild the company they have saved from disaster," he observes. "The reason is that the perfect match in a crisis becomes a poor match for rebuilding."

The skills that were so effective before become "so overly heavy they wear out or wear down management," said Jennings, who has written many books on executive behavior, including "Anatomy of Leadership."

Already, there are signs that some Chrysler managers are losing their patience and commitment, he said. "If Iacocca were smart," he says, "he would either get a good operating manager between him and his team or withdraw to long-range leadership responsibilities."

Or, he suggested, "leave at the summit of his heroism."

Chrysler, Jennings believes, is not yet out of trouble. "They have merely taken off the oxygen mask. There is going to be a very trying and debilitating two years before the company can be taken out of intensive care."

If Iacocca can stay out of the operating management and assume the role of long-range business leadership, he and Chrysler might continue to prosper, the professor says. But it would be difficult; the match no longer is there.

"Lee Iacocca has few opportunities within Chrysler," Jennings declares. And he disagrees with those who believe Iacocca can transfer his powers to politics. "His talents are not in that area," he said.

He could retire, of course, but he is only 59. "In 30 years of advising business leaders I have never seen a person of his type come down from the summit and idle away his time," said Jennings.

"The hero worship he has gotten and will get usually is addictive," he explained. "More often than not a person such as Iacocca sets his sights on becoming even bigger than his present image."

Few challenges or accomplishments can satisfy that urge. Perhaps, said Jennings, the urge can be assuaged only by taking a run at the U.S. presidency or by building a new worldwide car company.

Japan Important Ally Of Tar Heel Trade

Paul O'Connor traveled to Japan this spring as a guest of the Japan Institute for Social and Economic Affairs. This is the first in a series of columns on economic ties between North Carolina and Japan.

Three decades ago, the Japan Tobacco and Salt Public Corp. opened a small office in Raleigh. Japan, still rebuilding after World War II, was not a great world trader at the time but the Japanese had always been great smokers and they wanted to buy some good North Carolina tobacco. So, JTS came to North Carolina and became one of Japan's first American investments following the war.

JTS only bought $5 million worth of leaf in its first year here but that was the start of an economic relationship between North Carolina and Japan that would blossom over the next three decades.

Today, Japan is probably North Carolina's single most important foreign economic partner. Speaking before the Japan-Southeast U.S. Association's October 1980 meeting at Pinehurst, Gov. Jim Hunt said as much: "In North Carolina, we believe Japan is the most important country in the world for the future of our state's economy."

Consider a few facts about the economic ties between the state and Japan.

The Japanese buy $300 million worth of American leaf each year. About two-thirds of it comes from this state. They've traditionally paid very high prices for their leaf, preferring to buy the best tobacco available.

Japanese firms are coming to North Carolina in droves. This summer alone, three major Japanese companies — Sumitomo Electric, Mitsubishi and American Honda — announced plans to build major plants here. Counting those three, 30 Japanese firms now operate in North Carolina. Not counting American Honda, the Japanese have scheduled $156 million in industrial investment in North Carolina just since 1980.

The Japanese use our ports. The most recent figures available cover 1979 when goods shipped to Japan from North Carolina totaled $204 million and goods shipped to North Carolina from Japan totaled $67 million.

Since March 1982, North Carolina has operated an office in Tokyo. (A bit of trivia: It's located in the Dai Ichi Building near the Imperial Palace, the building from which Gen. Douglas MacArthur directed the military occupation immediately after the war.) Ichiro Iwao, 60, who spent a lifetime in the shipping industry and who spent three years in the United States, represents North Carolina interests in Japan.

The office was originally assigned to ports business. Now, Iwao explains, it is also working on industrial development and tourism. Walter Johnson, an industrial recruiter in the N.C. Department of Commerce and an expert on Japanese business after living in the country for 12 years, is assigned exclusively to Japan and visits the country quite regularly.

Not all is rosy between Japan and the United States. The United States says the Japanese market is closed to American products. Cigarettes make a good point. Although American cigarettes are about the best in the world, they take only 1.5 percent of the Japanese domestic market.

There are still hard feelings in North Carolina also, about the loss years ago of textile jobs to the lower-paid Japanese. The pendulum has swung on the Japanese now, however, as many of their textiles jobs have moved to Taiwan, Korea, Singapore and Hong Kong. Ironically, many American textile companies are now using Japanese automation to keep their companies in North Carolina, although with fewer jobs.

The Japanese have also pretty much ignored our furniture in the past. It was too big for their small homes. But N.C. furniture-makers are finding, Iwao says, that smaller, high quality products being produced for American condominiums are catching the interest of the Japanese.

State Department Chose Passivity

WASHINGTON — The McFarlane mission was made inevitable by State Department illusion that a plant Syria would do America's bidding and withdraw from Lebanon, followed by a second State Department illusion that Israel favors a strong, centralized Lebanon over a Lebanon partitioned between Israel and Syria.

Viewing these illusions as dangerously naive, the White House seized control of policy and sent its only available agent — deputy national security assistant Robert McFarlane — on its mission to the Mideast. National security adviser William P. Clark made the decision despite unhappiness in Foggy Bottom. He acted after delivery of a late-June letter to President Reagan from King Fahd of Saudi Arabia warning that American failure to follow through on its pledge to restore a strong central government in Lebanon would have calamitous repercussions for the United States.

Clark's dominant role as Reagan's Middle East policymaker is a direct result of a full year of State Department lassitude and illusion. Fearful of the power of the pro-Israeli lobby, particularly in the shadow of the 1984 presidential campaign, State's policymakers chose diplomatic passivity to avoid political punishment. Clark's decision to take over showed Oval Office disagreement that playing Israel's game for 1984 political leverage is the proper Reagan posture. Clark and the president believe that 1984 demands progress, not stalemate, even if Israel is asked to accept a small push or two from the U.S.

That means continuing or rising pressures on Israel to withdraw from Lebanon. Once the State Department decided that, yes, Israel truly wanted to get out and was not playing games for future partition and permanent occupation of Southern Lebanon, U.S. pressure could be relaxed; Israel and the U.S. had the same objective.

White House realists, including Clark, are not so naive. They doubt that U.S. Israeli goals in Lebanon are similar.

With Clark's enthusiastic support, Prince Bandar, the newly named Saudi ambassador here, traveled to Damascus before Clark sent McFarlane there last weekend. Bandar explained to Syrian president Hafez al-Assad that Reagan's special emissary was not coming to Damascus to look at the waterfalls. Bandar spent four and a half hours explaining to Assad that McFarlane was coming to talk business.

It was also Bandar, a confidant of Clark far more than he is of Secretary of State George Schultz, who delivered the letter from King Fahd to President Reagan six weeks ago. That letter spelled out in surprising detail Saudi Arabia's view that if the U.S. was patient and played the conflicting pressures on Lebanon of Israel and Syria more or less evenhandedly, Assad's present mood of intransigence would cease.

But the White House decision to send its own envoy to Damascus in place of retired ambassador Philip Habib did not please the State Department. Almost before he left, leak sniffers in the White House smelled an effort by State to blame Reagan's selection of McFarlane on a Clark-McFarlane policy split over arms control. Nothing could be further from the truth.

It is true that McFarlane is inexperienced in Mideast diplomacy. When then-Secretary of State Alexander Haig sent him to Jerusalem to seek a concession from Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Begin treated him like an errand boy.

But McFarlane's close contact with the White House, and his removal from the tragically flawed performance of Schultz and his aides, are regarded as assets. No one here expects a quick end to Reagan's failure to deliver on his promise, repeated over and over, to free Lebanon of its Israeli invaders. Its Syrian "peace-keepers" and its PLO guerrillas. Contrary to some published reports, however, the White House does not believe that with pressure properly applied, the promise may be redeemed before the 1984 campaign starts in earnest.

Even that may be too late. Egypt is moving pell-mell back into the Arab world as Israel's occupation of Lebanon stretches into its 15th month. As Reagan's Sept. 1, 1982, peace plan has shriveled, the U.S. has paid a price. But that price will be dwarfed by the cost of lost credibility if Israel is permitted non-stop occupation of Southern Lebanon.

God is a living God. Jesus Christ has ascended into heaven, there to continue a living existence.

If life thus extends throughout the world — and seemingly throughout the universe — why do we doubt that personality, the highest thing we know, continues to exist when our physical careers end? Life persists — which means that we can assume that growth and glorification persist through all ages.

—Tim Ahern—

AWACs Draw Attention Easily

The Airborne Warning and Control System planes are "flying war rooms," packed with sophisticated radar and monitoring equipment that permits them to watch dozens of enemy planes at once and direct attacks by friendly fighters and missiles.

The converted Boeing 707s were subject of an intense debate when the administration said it would sell five of the $129 million planes to Saudi Arabia, a proposal that touched off opposition from Israel because of the possibility that the planes might be used against Israeli air force jets.

In October 1981, the Senate, bowing to a heavy lobbying campaign by President Reagan, rejected 52-48 a resolution that would have vetoed the Saudi deal.

The first AWACs are scheduled to be delivered to the Saudis in 1985. In the meantime, four U.S. AWACs have been temporarily sent to Riyadh.

Those four are part of the 28 AWACs in the Air Force, all of which are assigned to Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma. Besides the pair in the Sudan and the four in Saudi Arabia, two more have been deployed to Cairo to take part in joint exercises with Egyptian forces, another pair are flying out of Kadena air base in Japan, and two more are at Keflavik air base in Iceland.

Besides the U.S. planes and those bought by the Saudis, NATO has received two of the 18 AWACs it plans to purchase for monitoring Warsaw Pact moves. No other nation than Saudi Arabia has been permitted to purchase the planes, although France has been considering such a request.

The key to the plane's effectiveness is a sophisticated "look down" radar system which can separate planes from background "clutter," meaning enemy planes can't hide by flying at treetop level below the limits of normal radar.

The AWACs are able to pick up planes moving as slow as 80 mph, meaning they can spot planes rolling along enemy runways.

Respite Care

What does "respite" mean? Webster's Dictionary defines it as "an interval of rest or relief". In Pitt County the Mental Health, Mental Retardation, Substance Abuse Center operates a program which provides residential care for up to 30 days at a time for a retarded individual whose family is in need of relief from care-giving responsibilities. They may need a vacation, they may be in need of medical care for themselves, or they may simply need some rest. The Pitt County Respite Care Program serves 33 counties, therefore, scheduling ahead of time is most important. If you are in need of this type of service, or you know someone who is, contact Carl Rothrock at 758-0413, or Debbie Conklin at 752-0118.

Farm Scene

A wheat program along the guidelines announced recently by U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block could raise rather than lower production in 1984. Analysts for U.S. Wheat Associates said the tentative plan outlined by Block would reduce the budget outlays considerably below those of the 1983 program. Observers largely believe such a program would attract minimum participation, and to the contrary, fuel maximum bushels.

Under the guidelines announced in a press release by Block, the Department of Agriculture would cut payment-in-kind entitlements, loan rates, storage payments and freeze the target price for 1984 at the 1983 level. Producers would be asked to set aside 20-30 percent of their acreage without compensation, take another 20-25 percent out and receive 70-80 percent of their ASCS yield for payment-in-kind.

In contrast, farmers who signed up for the 1983 program received a five percent paid diversion, 95 percent of their ASCS yield for payment-in-kind and had to set aside only 15 percent of their acreage without compensation.

Block has not announced the final details of the 1984 wheat program because a proposal that is expected to be one of its primary features has been tied up in Congress. The proposed legislation would allow Block to freeze the target price for 1984 and 1985 at 1983 levels of $4.20 per bushel. The target was scheduled to raise $4.45 in 1984 and $4.65 in 1985.

The secretary has also indicated he will exercise his authority to reduce the commodity credit corporation loan from the current $3.65 by ten percent to $3.30 per bushel.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.

"HIGH" SPEED TO THE RESCUE

Tremendous improvements have been made in the efficiency of dental services. An example is the equipment used to prepare the teeth for fillings and crowns. For years dentists have used rotary tools (drills) for this purpose. These cutting instruments rotated at a top speed of 5,000 rpm's. Discomfort was often felt from the vibration, pressure and heat that developed in the use of these instruments.

Today, improvements in the drill motors and the use of the turbine principle permit speeds of up to 300,000 revolutions per minute. Only a very light touch is required to cut enamel and dentin at these high speeds. The rotations are so rapid that the sense of vibration is eliminated. Of course heat is generated by such rapid cutting, but the instruments are devised so that a spray of water and air is directed at the area being prepared, keeping the temperature comfortable.

The advent of the high speed drill and new types of superior cutting tools add up to less drilling time and more comfort in dental procedures.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the offices of: Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A. Evans St., Phone: 752-5126.

Violence Overshadows Chilean Political Debate

By RICHARD BOUDREAU
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — After three months of increasing popular unrest against President Augusto Pinochet, Chileans are alarmed by the prospect of an uncontrollable cycle of political violence and deadly repression. For the first time since the armed forces' coup against an elected Marxist president a decade ago, there is serious discussion by government, opposition and church leaders of the need to avert bloody conflicts like that which plague El Salvador and Guatemala.

At least 24 people were killed Thursday and Friday when anti-government demonstrators defied a military curfew in Santiago and the port of Valparaiso, drawing gunfire from riot police and army soldiers. The death toll tripled that of previous "days of National Protest."

Chileans are increasingly disturbed by the monthly ritual of bloodshed not only because most take pride in orderliness but because nobody knows where it's leading. They worry about polarization and an uneasy standoff — between a military strongman unlikely to be toppled by civilian unrest and a protest movement unlikely to be stamped out by his army.

Pinochet's key concession, offered Sunday by his interior minister, Sergio Onofre Jarpa, is a congressional election "much sooner" than the 1990 date set in the regime's constitution. The political opposition insists there can be no peace without "dialogue of equals" on all issues, including Pinochet's tenure in office, due to expire in 1989.

On Friday, Roman Catholic bishops repeated a month-old appeal by Pope John Paul II for reconciliation in this mostly Catholic nation, with a new warning that "only a prompt democratic opening can avoid a tragedy of vast proportions."

U.S. Officials Pressing Effort To Hear Soviet Diplomat's Son

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials say their attempts to talk with a Soviet diplomat's son who may want to defect has created a "very difficult" diplomatic standoff, but insist it's a question of human rights.

"I think that's a perfectly appropriate demand," United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick said Sunday of U.S. attempts to talk with 16-year-old Andrei Berezhkov about a letter he allegedly wrote to President Reagan seeking to stay in the United States. Asked if too much was being made of the case, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said: "I don't think one makes too much out of the freedom and well-being of a person, and I think that's true of the sons of Soviet diplomats in the United States or of American diplomats anywhere else."

Attempts to interview the son of Soviet Embassy First Secretary Valentin Berezhkov have been rebuffed by Soviet officials, who last weekend said, "We regard this attempt of the American authorities as unprecedented and a gross violation of international law."

Inflation

MEXICO CITY (AP) —

The government begins distributing newly minted 50 centavo coins today, equal to half of one peso, worth about three-tenths of a cent and able to buy practically nothing.

The Bank of Mexico, the country's central bank, says they are made of stainless steel and will last much longer than the copper-nickel alloy coins currently in circulation.

Going To Hunt Pirates' Gold

BOSTON (AP) — John F. Kennedy Jr., son of the late president, is headed from a search for pirate gold to an underdeveloped Indian village to learn about problems in the Third World.

Kennedy, 22, has spent much of the summer aboard the research vessel Vast Explorer II anchored in 20 feet of water off Wellfleet, Mass., looking for the booty of legendary buccaneer Black Sam Bellamy.

Eighteenth century accounts say the ship, which sank in 1717, was carrying the modern equivalent of up to $200 million. As part of a 15-person crew hunting for the treasure, Kennedy has been sleeping over many nights in a cramped four-bunk room in the research ship. But he asks in this week's issue of People magazine, "How often do you get to do something like dive a shipwreck?"

He says he will leave the expedition this fall to take up study of Third World problems at the University of New Delhi, and later he'll work in an underdeveloped Indian village.

Big Reception By Hometown

SEABOARD, N.C. (AP) — Philadelphia's first black mayor in November. He frequently stepped out of the line of a welcome-back parade Saturday to greet the 400 people who turned out in this northeastern North Carolina town of 687. His rendition of "Three Blind Mice" was on an instrument he called "the bells."

On Sunday, FBI agents continued to watch vehicles entering and leaving the Soviet compound in Northwest Washington and at the suburban Bethesda, Md., apartment complex where the Berezhkov family lives, according to a U.S. official who spoke only on condition he not be further identified.

The U.S. official said, however, that the FBI stakeout was less obtrusive than on Saturday, when agents peered into the windows of automobiles.

"PERDUE TAKES A CHICKEN SERIOUSLY"

"As Controller of the Roanoke Electric Co-Op, I've invested a lot of our members' money over the years. And I've learned that when you make an investment of any kind, you should check it out. And believe me, I checked out Perdue very carefully before building my broiler house. I called banks and exchange clubs in both Maryland and North Carolina, toured Perdue's facilities, talked to growers...I thoroughly researched the company and every report that I got was very favorable.

Perdue understands the importance of keeping up with technology. I don't think they're the only ones who do, but they are certainly more progressive than most poultry companies. So when they suggest that we growers make an improvement, you can bet it's going to pay off for us. After all, any company that's been in the business for 62 years and has made a profit every year must know what they're doing.

Besides my position with the electric co-op and my Perdue house, I also grow corn, tobacco and peanuts. And the best crop I have is my Perdue chickens. For almost eight years I've enjoyed a good steady income from my broiler house. And with uncertainties in other commodities and row crop farming, I would recommend Perdue as a basic steady income for anybody who wants to remain in a rural area and remain in farming. I know I'll spend a pleasant retirement in the country, thanks to my Perdue chickens."

It's A Great Time to Grow with Perdue. Perdue is into one thing—chickens. That's why our poultry products outsell all the others in the northeastern supermarkets. The demand is increasing for our products, so we need more producers. Start growing with a growing company. Call 1-800-682-8729 or send in the coupon below, and talk chicken with a Perdue representative.

U. S. Cutbacks Dent Prospects For Global Harvest

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sharp cutback in U.S. crop production has put a dent in global harvest prospects for some major commodities this year, particularly grain and cotton, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

Last week, USDA estimated 1983 corn production at 5.24 billion bushels, down 38 percent from last fall's record harvest of 8.4 billion bushels. Soybeans were indicated at 1.84 billion bushels, down 19 percent; and cotton at 7.81 million bales, down 35 percent.

Wheat production also is smaller this year, down 14 percent from last year's record to 2.42 billion bushels. However, that would still be one of the largest U.S. wheat crops on record and enough to add to the growing stockpile.

In terms of metric tons — the unit favored in world trade — total U.S. grain output this year is expected to be about 238 million metric tons. That includes about 71.5 million metric tons of food grains, mostly wheat, and 167 million metric tons of feed grains, mostly corn.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans, or 39.4 bushels of corn.

According to USDA's outlook experts, the world grain crop in 1983-84 now is expected to produce less than 1.62 billion metric tons, down 2 percent from prospects a month ago, and 4 percent less than the record of almost 1.68 billion tons in 1982-83.

"Hot, dry weather has significantly reduced U.S. crop prospects the past month, while crop conditions have improved in Canada," the report said. "Estimates for Western Europe and India have been raised slightly since last month. The Soviet grain crop forecast remains at 200 million tons, with a winter grain crop estimate of 55 million and a spring grain estimate of 145 million."

Looking at oilseeds, the report said world production is forecast at 172.1 million metric tons, down 2 percent from last month's prospects and 5 percent below last year's level.

Most of the global decline is due to the reduced U.S. output, mostly soybeans, which now is estimated at 56.7 million tons, compared to 70.8 million tons produced last year.

"A slight rise in production for the rest of the world is indicated this month, largely because of a larger cottonseed crop," the report said.

World cotton production in 1983-84 was revised upward slightly to 66.3 million bales from 65.9 million indicated in July, despite reduced prospects for the U.S. harvest — which was estimated at 7.81 million bales, down from 12 million last year and one of the smallest harvests in many years.

Improved prospects in other countries, including record cotton production in China, more than offset the decline in the U.S. crops.

Trying 4 In Vote Fraud

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Jury selection is expected to begin Tuesday in the vote-fraud trial of four Alexander County residents, including two sheriff's department employees and a deputy clerk of court.

Indictments filed July 7 by a federal grand jury in Asheville allege that the four fraudulently used the names of Taylorsville rest home residents on absentee ballots last November.

Those facing trial are Mark Odom, 21, a sheriff's deputy; John Lackey, 52, a sheriff's department dispatcher; Joyce Beach, 43, a deputy clerk of court and Benny Dyson, 50, a furniture worker. Each has been charged with 28 counts of casting fraudulent ballots, one count of conspiracy to vote more than once and one count of voting more than once.

The 28 absentee ballot counts are each punishable by up to a $1,000 fine, five years in prison or both. The other two counts carry maximum penalties of $10,000 fines, five years in prison, or both.

Donna Wike, a 21-year-old notary public indicted July 8, has made a plea agreement with federal prosecutors and may testify in the trial.

Food Dollar Share Declines

For the third year in a row the farmer's share of the food dollar has declined according to James Galloway, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

"For several years now," said Galloway, "statistics have shown that farmers get an average of 32 cents out of every dollar spent in the supermarket or restaurant. That was bad enough."

"But now," he added, recent government data indicates that the 32 cents has dropped to 28 cents."

In calling attention to the Pitt County Farm Bureau's current membership drive, Galloway said the farm organization at local, state and national levels is continually working to protect farmers financial interests.

The Pitt County Farm Bureau has set a membership goal of 500 members for the current membership campaign.

"Unfortunately, the farmer, who has contributed so much to our improved standard does not share proportionately in the fruits of his labor," Galloway said.

"The county Farm Bureau's membership drive affords farmers the opportunity to join an action organization that is committed to improving the incomes and general welfare of all farmers."

Tour Planned For Wednesday

A soybean insect and identification tour will be sponsored by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service Wednesday beginning at the county offices at 3 p.m.

The tour will cover pest insect identification, scouting for insects and chemical control. Dealers, commercial applicators and aerial and research demonstrators will be offered one and one-half hours of recertification credit by the tour.

The group will meet in the county offices parking lot.

Poultry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 51.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. 92 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 49.57 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is moderate for a light to moderate demand. Weights light to desirable, mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,786,000, compared to 1,791,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up a strong gain today amid hopes that upward pressure on interest rates might be easing.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 16.05 to 1,198.88 by noon.

Gainers held a 4-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Friday the Federal Reserve issued weekly statistics showing a $400 million increase in the money supply for the latest reporting week.

That came in well below advance estimates on Wall Street, which called for a rise of $1 billion to $4 billion.

The news was greeted with a sharp rally late Friday in the bond market. Bond prices gave up some of those gains today, but analysts said fears of further substantial increase in interest rates had abated.

The stock market also got a lift late last week from word that the producer price index of finished goods rose just 0.1 percent in July.

Duke Power led the active list, up ¼ at 22½ in trading

MASONIC NOTICE
Bright Star Lodge No. 385 will hold a regular communication Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Autumn-Like

Autumn-like weather delighted Pitt Countians this weekend. The weekend was sunny yet mild.

Temperatures here Saturday varied from 63 to 83; Sunday from 53 to 84. There was no precipitation. The river level was 3.2 to 3.7 feet above sea level, as measured by Greenville Utilities here.

$1 Million Fish Caught

SEATTLE (AP) — Two anglers cast their lines into Puget Sound and pulled out a fortune — specially tagged salmon worth $500,000 apiece in an auto parts company's Million Dollar Fish Derby.

Larry Pease, 65, of Seattle, and Phil A. Reilly, 67, of Bainbridge Island each caught the valuable fish Sunday in the derby sponsored by Schuck's auto parts. They will split the $1 million prize.

Five tagged salmon had been released in Puget Sound for the 12-hour derby, the third year for the event.

Pease caught his 3-pound salmon a little more than an hour after the derby opened at 6 a.m., and Reilly caught his shortly after noon.

"My God, Mardi, it's got a green tag on it!" Pease recalled telling his wife when he pulled the salmon from water near the Ballard area of Seattle. He is a retired Boeing engineer.

Reilly, a retired advertising executive, was fishing with his brother-in-law, Wally Reid, when he caught a 4-pound salmon near the Vashon Island ferry pier.

Reilly said Reid told him it had a tag.

"I said, 'It can't,' and he said, 'Take a look for yourself,' and sure enough the tag said 'Schuck's,'" Reilly said.

Pease said winning the fish left him with a "twisted tongue" momentarily. He had no immediate plans for spending his winnings.

To qualify for the derby, fishermen paid a $12 entry fee, $4 of which went to the Easter Seal Society.

Series Of Traffic Mishaps Reported

Approximately $5,275 in property damages resulted from traffic accidents this weekend, according to reports of the Greenville Police Department.

In an accident that occurred Saturday, a vehicle driven by Tamar Faiga Rosenfeld of 230 Windsor Road backed into a parked car at Darryl's parking lot off 10th Street, according to police reports.

Damage to the Rosenfeld vehicle was $25, while damage to the parked vehicle was placed at $500.

Approximately $1,950 damage resulted in an accident Friday on Gooden Place when the vehicle of Edward Earl Smith of 612-A Howell St. collided with two parked vehicles and caused another to be damaged.

Smith was charged with hit and run-property damage, police reported. Damage to his vehicle was placed at $1,000, while damage to the parked vehicles totaled $950.

In an accident that occurred Friday on Cherry Street, the vehicle of Lorraine Delores Maltby of Chesapeake, Va., collided with a vehicle driven by Paul Bridges Jr. of Oakwood Acres.

Estimated damage to the Maltby vehicle was $50 and damage to the Bridges vehicle was $300. No charges were made.

In another accident Friday, a car driven by Lillie White Smith of 1604 Henry St. collided on Evans Street with a vehicle driven by Joseph Foster Bennett of 106 Prince Place.

Damage to both vehicles was placed at $200. No charges were filed.

Robert Clifton Moore of Bath was injured Sunday in a single-car accident on 10th Street. Moore was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment. Hospital officials could not be reached for information on his condition.

According to police reports, Moore's vehicle struck a curb, then a utility pole — cutting it in half — and then slid up to gas pumps owned by the Taylor Oil Company and hit the guard rail around the pumps.

Damages to Moore's car were listed at $2,500.

Obituaries

Bundy

FARMVILLE — Mrs. Irma Heath Bundy, 66, died Sunday in Farmville. The funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Church Street Chapel of Farmville Funeral Home, with Rev. Joseph Lehmann officiating. Interment will be in Hollywood Cemetery, Farmville.

Mrs. Bundy was a member of the Farmville United Methodist Church. She is survived by one son, Charles Glenn Bundy of Wadesboro; a brother, Kinsey Heath, Jr. of Asheville; and two grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 to 9 tonight, and at other times at the home of Mrs. Ruby Bundy, 202 Waverly Street, Farmville.

Gorham

FALKLAND — Mr. Paul Gorham died Sunday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

His funeral service will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. at St. John Baptist Church here. Burial will be in the Art Willow Church Cemetery.

Surviving him are three sisters, Mrs. Martha Peaden and Miss Christine Gorham, both of the home, and Mrs. Violet Meadows of Washington, D.C.

The body will be taken from Hemby Funeral Home to St. John Church Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. The family will receive friends at the church Tuesday from 8 to 9 p.m.

Decker's Second Gold Aids U.S. Victory

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — It was supposed to be a fun run for Mary Decker, but it turned into one of the most difficult and rewarding races of her brilliant career.

Decker, the heroine of the United States team that won the medals race in the inaugural, week-long World Track and Field Championships, had entered the women's 1,500-meter event "for fun and for experience."

She already had won the 3,000 in frontrunning fashion, destroying the myth that Europeans, particularly the Soviet Union runners, had the best women's middle-distance competitors in the world.

Now, she was after her second gold medal, and as usual, she went right to the front.

After some 1,330 meters, she was still there, but suddenly, the Soviet's Zamira Zaitseva, who had run on her shoulder until then, surged in front.

"It was different today, it was a different feeling," Decker said.

As they came around the final turn, Zaitseva cut off Decker, and the 25-year-old American appeared in trouble.

"She moved in on me and I had to let her go by," explained Decker.

That maneuver deeply concerned Decker.

"Down the stretch, I was getting worried because I couldn't get my momentum back," she said.

But she summoned up a final bit of strength and pounded past Zaitseva in the closing meters to win in 4 minutes, 00.90 seconds.

Decker's withering kick so stunned the Soviet runner that she fell across the finish line in a heap, a beaten second in 4:01.19.

Soviet runners also finished third and fourth, but Decker had shown them they no longer ruled the world.

Helped by Decker's scintillating victory, a 1-2 finish by Calvin Smith and Elliott Quow in the men's 200, a second by Steve Scott in the men's 1,500 and a third by Carol Lewis in the women's long jump, the Americans finished with a total of 24 medals, including eight golds, nine silvers and seven bronzes.

The Soviet Union was a close second with 23 medals (6-6-11), and East Germany, the gold medal leader with 10, was right behind in total medals with 22, including seven silvers and five bronzes.

No other country was in double figures in total medals, while Czechoslovakia was the only other nation to collect more than two gold medals, winning four.

Decker had come to the World Championships intent on winning the 3,000. She did that convincingly.

If she would win the 1,500, it would be a bonus, she figured.

"Only after winning the 3,000 did I start thinking about the 1,500," she said.

The petite American has become a serious threat for a gold medal in the 1984 Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

No American woman has won a medal — no less a gold — in the women's 1,500 since the event was introduced into the Summer Games in 1972. The 3,000 will be run for the first time next year.

Decker said she has not decided whether she will compete in one event or two in the 1984 Olympics.

While Decker was the backbone of the women's team, which earned two gold medals, one silver and three bronzes, the often overlooked Smith was a key to the men's squad produced six golds, eight silvers and four bronzes.

He earned three medals — for his victory in the 200 (20.14), another gold for running on the 400-meter relay team that set a world record of 38.76 last Wednesday night, and a silver for finishing second behind teammate Carl Lewis in the 100.

"It was a great week for me," said Smith, the Americans' "other sprinter" after Lewis, who anchored the relay team and won the long jump.

Quow's second-place finish in the 200 was a surprise.

He had been named to the team late, after Lewis decided not to run the 200. But the lightly regarded Quow earned the silver medal with a clocking of 20.41, beating 1980 Olympic champion Pietro Mennea of Italy (20.51) and 1980 Olympic 100-meter champion Allan Wells of Scotland (20.52).

While Quow had to be elated with his runnerup finish, Scott was downcast after being No. 2 in the men's 1,500, behind Britain's Steve Cram in a slowly paced race.

"I'm disappointed because I came here to win a gold medal," said Scott, who had dominated the 1,500 this year.

Cram finished in 3:41.58 to Scott's 3:41.87. Morocco's Said Aouita was third, beating world record holder Steve Ovett of Britain for the bronze medal.

Although only two world records were broken during the Championships (in the men's 400 relay and by Czechoslovakia's Jarmila Kratochvilova, with 47.99 in the women's 400), the meet produced many outstanding performances and served as an excellent preview for the Los Angeles Olympics.

Attendance was 422,402, including sellouts of 54,700 for four of the seven afternoon sessions, including the last three.

In all, 1,572 athletes from 157 countries — more than for any major sports competition in history — participated in the meet.

Sheehan Charges Past Carner, Whitworth For Henredon Title

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

HIGH POINT, N.C. — The old guard and the youngsters were face-to-face in the final round of the $180,000 Henredon Classic and Patty Sheehan's youth served her quite well.

Sheehan was in the final threesome with LPGA Hall of Fame members JoAnne Carner and Kathy Whitworth. After a temporary setback on the opening hole, Sheehan steamrolled to a four-shot victory over Carner and first place in the LPGA money list ahead of Carner.

Opening the tournament with a 65, Sheehan closed with a 6-under-par 66 for a 16-under-par 272. That's one shot less than Hollis Stacy's four-day record total in the Rail Charity Classic in 1977.

"It's probably one of the most satisfying wins I've had besides the LPGA Championship," Sheehan said of her third victory this season. "Playing with the two most famous and the best women golfers in the whole world right now. It was really an honor and a thrill to be able to beat 'em."

Sheehan and Carner were tied at 10-under-par opening the final round. Carner gained the upper hand with a 12-foot birdie putt at the first green. Disaster followed almost immediately when Carner hit her tee shot on No. 2 into a cedar tree. After a two-shot penalty, Carner struggled to a bogey 5 while Sheehan regained the tie by making par.

All three golfers made birdie on the par 3, third hole, but Sheehan continued the habit at the fourth, sixth and seventh holes. She was within birdie range on the other three holes as well and went out in 4-under-par 32.

Meanwhile, Carner three-putted on the ninth hole and started the back nine with another bogey. Whitworth bogeyed two holes on the front nine and two more on the back nine. The chase was essentially over.

"This is the first time I've led from start to finish," Sheehan said of her achievement. "It's nice to know I can do it."

As for the awesome presence of Carner and Whitworth, Sheehan said there was no room for concern. "I didn't worry because I kept saying 'Patty, you can't go for par. You have to go for birdies,'" Sheehan said.

It was that aggressive play that made the 1981 LPGA rookie of the year hard to catch, Carner noted.

"Normally, I play good short irons and I hope the putter gets hot. (Sheehan) was hot and there was nothing I could do about it."

Carner, who revealed Saturday that someone had bent the shaft on her putter and wedge, finished second at 12-under-par 276, while Whitworth was third at 7-under-par 281.

Judy Clark, an early challenger for the lead, and Donna White, a North Carolina native who skipped the tour in 1981 after giving birth to a daughter, tied for fourth at 284.

Charlotte Montgomery, who was 101st on the LPGA money list entering the Henredon, almost doubled her earnings by finishing in a three-way tie for sixth place at 286. It was her best finish to date. Also at 286 were Vicki Fergon and Ayako Okamoto.

Bucs Return Favor With Series Sweep

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates were feeling embarrassed last weekend after being swept out of first place at home by the Montreal Expos. So they headed up to Canada and returned the favor.

The Pirates entered a three-game series with the Expos on Aug. 5 with a half-game lead in the National League East, then were blasted each time by Montreal to drop to third. But the Bucs began a resurgence in Montreal this weekend, where they completed their own sweep in hostile territory with a 5-3 decision Sunday.

That kept Pittsburgh 1½ games behind first-place Philadelphia in the division. The Phillies beat St. Louis 5-1 Sunday. Montreal is third, three games out.

Elsewhere, it was Los Angeles 5, Atlanta 4; the New York Mets 5, the Chicago Cubs 1; San Diego 10, Cincinnati 9 in 10 innings, and San Francisco 5, Houston 2.

Dave Parker was Sunday's hero for Pittsburgh, lining a two-run, bases loaded single in the seventh inning. Parker had not hit the ball out of the infield in three previous at bats before connecting on the first pitch by reliever Dan Schatzeder.

"You don't forget something like that easily," Parker said of the sweep in Pittsburgh at the hands of the Expos. "We averaged over 30,000 last weekend in Pittsburgh, and they beat us."

"These three games on the weekend were televised back to Pittsburgh, so we wanted to do well and show the fans we could sweep them, too."

Added reliever Kent Tekulve, who got the final out for his 14th save: "It's nice to be able to turn it around after being swept last weekend. Baseball is a game that goes in cycles, especially when you have two even-matched teams."

Expos right fielder Warren Cromartie was annoyed at his team's inconsistency.

"I'm tired of that yo-yo stuff," he said. "It has to stop."

Phillies 5, Cardinals 1

John Denny, 13-5 with the third-best National League ERA at 2.44, scattered 10 hits, struck out seven batters and did not give up a walk in eight innings. He also had a single, laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt and scored on Gregg Gross' third-inning triple.

"I try to take the philosophy to give as much as I can for as long as I can, whether it's batting, pitching or running the bases," said Denny, a former Cardinal. "This is a good game for me personally. The Cardinals have always been tough on me. They're a very aggressive hitting team."

Denny struggled only in the fifth, when the Cardinals loaded the bases with one out. But he got out of that jam and cruised to his seventh straight victory. Reliever Al Holland fanned three Cardinals in the ninth.

Dodgers 5, Braves 4

The top two teams in the West have met in four series and the Dodgers have taken two-of-three games each time. Still, they trail the Braves by ½ games. The Braves have 44 games remaining, while Los Angeles has 47.

Dusty Baker cracked a two-run homer and Steve Sax added four singles and scored twice for visiting L.A. Atlanta's Bob Horner slugged a two-run homer off Fernando Valenzuela to make it close.

"We're satisfied. There's still time to go," said Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda. "We're hoping now we can start gaining some ground."

Braves Manager Joe Torre wasn't disturbed by the weekend's results.

"I felt if we won one game, we couldn't get hurt," he explained. "It's not as good as I wanted, but it could have been worse."

Mets 5, Cubs 2

In New York, George Foster's 10th career grand slam homer and the strong pitching of Ed Lynch carried the Mets to a three-game sweep of Chicago. New York has won six in a row over the Cubs.

"You can't make up for the past," said Foster, who hit into a double play in his previous at bat. "I'm just trying to focus on the positive."

Lynch who had lost his last three starts, struck out three and walked one in eight innings before needing help from Jesse Orosco, who earned his 13th save.

Padres 10, Reds 3

Terry Kennedy drove in three runs with a double, a homer, and a 10th inning single which won the game. The Padres scored the winning run off Tom Hume, who walked pinch-hitter Sixto Lezcano with one out. Pinch runner Luis Salazar then stole second and came home on Kennedy's single to center.

Johnny Bench ripped a two-run homer and Paul Householder added a three-run shot for host Cincinnati. Padres starter Tim Lollar hit his first homer of the season.

Giants 5, Astros 2

Jeff Leonard had a home run, triple and single and drove in two runs for San Francisco. Mark Davis struck out three and walked four in six innings, surrendering only four hits. Gary Lavelle pitched the final three innings to earn his 13th save.

Montana, 49ers Sharp In 17-15 Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Montana's passing was sharp, Fred Dean was devastating on pass rushes, and for a while the San Francisco 49ers were playing like it was 1981 again.

"I don't feel super. But I would if this had been a regular season game. This one doesn't count," Dean said after the 49ers pulled out their first 1983 exhibition victory, 17-15, on Ray Wersching's 33-yard field goal with 24 seconds remaining Sunday.

The kick wiped out the lead New England claimed on a John Smith field goal, also from 33 yards, with 1:57 left.

Call it a confidence builder for the 49ers, who were Super Bowl champions two years ago but went 3-6 in the short 1982 National Football League season.

"In the first half, we demonstrated that we can be a very good football team, but we have a long way to go," Coach Bill Walsh said.

The 49ers put things together in the second period, when all healthy front-line players were still in. Dean had two of his three sacks then, Montana completed 10 of 12 passes for 147 yards, including an 11-yard touchdown strike to Freddie Solomon, and the team burst to a 14-7 lead.

The Patriots, although 0-2 in pre-season play, also found encouraging signs in the game which drew 50,043 fans to Candlestick Park.

"I felt very comfortable out there today. I have a very good feeling about this game. We've made some offensive changes that I really like," said Steve Grogan, who got the Patriots off to a 7-0 lead with a 45-yard touchdown pass to Stanley Morgan in the first period.

Grogan and rookie Tony Eason combined for 200 yards passing, and Robert Weathers had 98 of the team's 183 yards rushing.

The Patriots came out of the game with no serious injuries, while the 49ers' lost safety Carlton Williamson, who broke a bone in his left leg and seems sure to miss the first few games of the regular NFL season.

The weekend's action concludes tonight with the Los Angeles Rams hosting Dallas. Coach Tom Landry said his starting quarterback will be Gary Hogaboom, who filled in admirably for the injured Danny White in last year's NFC championship until a couple of late interceptions did him in. White will play the second and fourth quarters.

In other Saturday games, it was Denver 21, Atlanta 10; Baltimore 10, Minnesota 7; Cleveland 27, Buffalo 10; New York Jets 20, Los Angeles Raiders 17; New Orleans 19, Miami 17; St. Louis 27, Chicago 24 in overtime; Detroit 17, Kansas City 13; Philadelphia 21, San Diego 20 and Tampa Bay 23, Houston 17.

In last Friday night's games, Washington topped Cincinnati 27-23, the New York Giants beat Pittsburgh 22-13 and Seattle defeated Green Bay 38-21.

Veteran Steve DeBerg, trying to beat out rookie John Elway for the starting quarterback job at Denver, connected on six of eight passes for 101 yards and two touchdowns in the Broncos' win over Atlanta. Elway, the NFL's No. 1 draft pick, took over when a strained groin muscle forced DeBerg from the contest early in the second quarter. Elway connected on 10 of 17 attempts for 137 yards and one TD.

Denver is 2-0 in exhibition play, while Atlanta is 1-1.

LaRussa Steals Third, Orioles Get Game

By The Associated Press
Manager Tony LaRussa of the Chicago White Sox stole a base, but the Baltimore Orioles stole the game.
After a heated argument with the umpires during which he uprooted third base and heaved it into the dugout, LaRussa remained on the bench for an inning after he was ejected, prompting the Orioles to play Sunday's game under protest.
It all became moot when reliever Tim Lincecum pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the bottom of the ninth and preserved the Orioles' 2-1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.
The controversy started in the fifth inning with the White Sox leading 1-0 when Rudy Law walked and Carlton Fisk hit what appeared to be a home run into the first row of the left-field seats. Third base umpire Greg Kosc gave the home run sign, but Orioles Manager Joe Altobelli claimed fan interference and home plate umpire Jim Evans, the crew chief, overruled Kosc and called it a ground-rule double.

"In our judgment, a fan reached onto the playing field and touched the ball, which would have hit the fence had it not been touched," said Evans.
That's when LaRussa, a practicing lawyer during the off-season, went into his rebuttal. All it got him was a contempt of court charge, although he claimed he didn't know he was ejected. In the bottom of the sixth, Evans went into the dugout and talked to LaRussa, who finally left.

"I didn't think I was thrown out of the game," LaRussa said. Then he ripped into the Orioles, which should make for an interesting series if the two teams meet in the American League playoffs.
"All the Orioles do is cry and moan over every call and pretty soon the calls don't go against them. That's a pretty good edge."
The victory was their second in a row after a seven-game losing streak and vaulted the Orioles back into first place in the AL East, one percentage point ahead of Detroit (the Tigers lost to New York 4-1), one-half game in front of the Yankees, one ahead of Milwaukee (the Brewers lost to Toronto 4-3) and 1½ in front of the Blue Jays.

In other games, the Kansas City Royals dropped the opener of their doubleheader to the Boston Red Sox 4-3 but took the nightcap 6-3, the Cleveland Indians blanked the Texas Rangers 3-0, the Oakland A's whipped the Minnesota Twins 6-0 and the California Angels trounced the Seattle Mariners 7-2.

With the Orioles and White Sox knotted 1-1 — Chicago failed to score after Fisk's "home run" became a double — Baltimore's John Lowenstein drew a one-out walk off Richard Dotson in the top of the ninth. Pinch runner John Shelby stole second and scored on Joe Nolan's single. In the bottom of the ninth, Stoddard struck out Fisk and Tom Paciorek and got Greg Luzinski on a grounder to preserve Scott McGregor's 15th victory.

At Detroit, Dave Winfield doubled home the go-ahead run in the eighth inning and Ken Griffey followed with a two-run homer. Juan Berenguer held the Yankees to a pair of singles until the eighth when Roy Smalley led off with a triple. One out later, Winfield collected his 23rd RBI in his last 13 games and his 19th game-winner of the season. Griffey then greeted Howard Bailey with his homer. Shane Rawley and Rich Gossage checked the Tigers on seven hits, including Larry Herndon's fourth-inning homer.
Blue Jays 4, Brewers 3
At Toronto, pinch runner Garth Iorg scored the tying run from second base on a wild pitch in the eighth inning and Lloyd Moseby homered on the next pitch from reliever Peter Ladd, giving the Blue Jays their third consecutive triumph over Milwaukee. Ladd came on after Damaso Garcia opened the inning with a double off Tom Tellmann and then gave way to Iorg. Moseby's 16th homer made a winner of Dave Stieb, who checked the Brewers on four hits through eight innings. Milwaukee led 3-0 after 2½ innings.
Red Sox 4-3, Royals 3-6
At Boston, George Brett and Amos Otis drove in two runs apiece, Leon Roberts homered and Royals relief ace Dan Quisenberry notched his 31st save with three scoreless innings in the nightcap. The Red Sox won the opener 4-3 on Rick Miller's tie-breaking bases-loaded single in the ninth inning. Bob Stanley notched his 22nd save by retiring the last four batters.
A's 6, Twins 0
At Oakland, Steve McCatty hurled a three-hitter for his first shutout since Sept. 8, 1981, and Davey Lopes hit a two-run homer. McCatty, who won his first game since July 9, walked three and struck out three in his first complete game of the season. Mike Davis had a two-run triple, while Dwayne Murphy drove in the other two with a grounder and sacrifice fly.
Angels 7, Mariners 2
At Anaheim, Rick Burleson scored three runs and drove in another and Fred Lynn hit a two-run homer to back Tommy John's four-hit pitching. John lost his shutout bid when Richie Zisk homered in the seventh inning. Dave Henderson connected in the eighth.
Indians 3, Rangers 0
At Arlington, rookie Neal Heaton pitched a four-hitter for his first major league shutout and Andre Thornton had three hits. Heaton walked one, struck out three and retired 13 in a row before Larry Parrish's seventh-inning double. The 23-year-old left-hander, who didn't become a starter until late last month, has not allowed an earned run in his last 18 innings. Loser Rick Honeycutt, 14-8, gave up 10 singles in 5 1-3 innings.

Levi Charges By Aoki To Take One-Stroke Buick Open Win

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Most golfers on the PGA Tour believe the more they practice, the luckier they get. Wayne Levi, however, is different.
Levi doesn't especially like to play golf; he would rather hang around his upstate New York home with his wife and daughter. He has played in just 15 tournaments this year.
Sunday, however, Levi charged from three strokes off the pace to grab a 1-stroke victory over Isao Aoki and Calvin Peete in the $350,000 Buick Open — earning a check for $63,000 and use of a new car for a year.
"I just sat around the house this summer," Levi said. "I do very little practicing. When I come out, it's my job, and then I work hard at it."

Levi, 30, can back up his brash talk with cold, hard facts. Since joining the tour in 1977, Levi has won six tournaments, including two last year. His victory at the Buick increased Levi's career earnings to $787,175.
Levi, who started the day at 9-under-par 207, shot a 7-under 65 in the final round to claim the title with a 16-under 272 — breaking the old tournament record of 273 set last year by Lanny Wadkins over the 7,001-yard, par-72 Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club.
Levi carded a pair of birdies on the front side and started the back nine with a string of three more birdies to go quickly to 14-under, then birdied 16 and 17 to go to 16-under. He saved par on the 461-yard, par-4 finishing hole with a clutch pitch from deep rough to within eight feet of the cup.

Peete, falling just $595 short of becoming the first black man to win $1 million on the tour, had birdied the 598-yard, par-5 16th to get to 15-under and then parred 17.
"I knew Levi birdied 17," Peete said. "When you've got to make the shot, there's pressure. But that's what this game is all about."
However, Peete left his second shot 43 feet short of the cup at No. 18, then let his putt slide by on the right side to finish with a 67 for the day.
Aoki, playing in the final threesome, knew how Levi and Peete had finished as he surveyed his 12-foot putt on the par-3 17th. Aoki ran the ball firmly into the hole for a birdie.

Teamwork Moves Australia II To Semifinal Win Over Azzurra

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Australia II's revolutionary keel is often credited for its outstanding performance in the America's Cup trials this summer. But it took some old fashioned teamwork for the Aussie boat to top Azzurra in a semifinal race.

About 10 minutes before the start of the race Sunday, a $20,000 carbon fiber boom — which controls the bottom of the main sail — snapped on the Australia II. Skipper John Bertrand had an extra boom on board the Aussie spectator boat, and his veteran crew went to work.
Nine and one-half minutes later, the booms were exchanged, the new boom was installed and Australia II was ready to sail. After a 24.3 mile race, it finished three minutes, 20 seconds ahead of the Italian boat and improved its record to 2-0 in the foreign semifinal series.
"After all of our drills and practice for this sort of thing, luck takes on a minor importance," said Bertrand, who has won 38 of 42 foreign races overall this summer. "Eighty percent of our crew has been to Newport before, so they knew what to do."
Bertrand said Victory '83, the British boat he sails against today, also has an experienced crew that gives it an advantage over new crewmen aboard the other foreign 12-meter yachts.
Victory '83 also improved its semifinal record to 2-0 Sunday after its opponent, Canada 1, withdrew due to a rudder malfunction. The British were ahead by 29 seconds after the second mark of the race.

Canada 1 and Azzurra, both 0-2, sail against one another today in the other semifinal race.
The two foreign boats with the best record will enter the final round, where the victorious boat will be named the official foreign challenger and will race against a U.S. defender for the Cup.
The three U.S. boats begin their final series Tuesday. The

Drug Charges Haunt Teams

By JOE RESNICK
Associated Press Writer
It has become an uncomfortable routine in the daily itinerary of a National Football League head coach. First the game questions...then the drug questions...then the details.
Coach Bill Walsh of the San Francisco 49ers couldn't rehash his team's 17-15 victory with the media Sunday without acknowledging comments attributed to unnamed NFL sources in a published report that as many as 50 percent of NFL players were using cocaine.
Walsh labeled the copyright story in Sunday's New York Daily News as "pure unadulterated sensationalism" following the game with the New England Patriots at Candlestick Park.
The Daily News story quoted league sources as saying that the 50 percent use cocaine on social occasions and that 20 percent are chemically dependent on the drug.
"If there's any NFL employee involved (as a source for the allegations), he's a disgrace to himself and to the league," said Walsh, whose team was cited by the published report as one of the league's worst offenders, along with the Dallas Cowboys.

The Daily News also reported that NFL security was aware of 34 cases of drug use on the Cowboys. The 49ers may have even a higher number, the story said, citing its sources.
"I don't believe those statements," Coach Tom Landry said at the Cowboys' Thousand Oaks, Calif., training facility during preparations for tonight's preseason game at Los Angeles with the Rams.
Five of Landry's star players — Tony Dorsett, Tony Hill, Harvey Martin, Ron Springs and Larry Bethea — have been connected with an ongoing federal-drug investigation.
"Of course, we have a problem, as does the rest of society," Landry pointed out. "We have a more responsible position to clean out house and regain the confidence of the nation that we are clean."

The common statistic is that 10 percent of the population are chemically abusive," noted Mike Lynn, general manager of the Minnesota Vikings. "We're certainly part of that and probably higher but nowhere near 50 percent. It doesn't surprise me that someone would say it because of all that has come to the public's attention."
A host of drug-related football stories have come to the public's attention in recent weeks. Last month four players — Ross Browner and Pete Johnson of the Cincinnati Bengals, E.J. Junior of the St. Louis Cardinals and Greg Stenrick of the New Orleans Saints — were suspended through the first four regular season games by Commissioner Pete Rozelle for involvement with cocaine.
Last Wednesday cornerback Tony Peters of the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins was charged with conspiring to distribute cocaine in a $115,000 deal.
Other players mentioned in recent non-related drug stories included Rich Upchurch of the Denver Broncos, Clarence Harmon of the Washington Redskins and recently-retired Lamar Parrish. Last year, revelations surfaced regarding admitted cocaine use by George Rogers and former NFL player Don Reese.

Then came Sunday's newspaper story. It was impossible for those whose livelihood depends on the growing popularity of pro football to ignore the allegations.
"There's been so much publicity about the subject, it doesn't surprise me that someone would say it. But I don't believe it," Lynn said. "We've done extensive work for the past five years on our team and the percentages are nowhere near that."
Quoting one unnamed source, the Daily News reported, "On the average, there are about 10 players on a team that are hardcore. The numbers are higher than many people would ever imagine."
Cleveland Browns owner Arthur Modell said he didn't know how extensive cocaine use is in the NFL, but added,

"I do know it is a problem. I do share the belief that it is more widespread than people thought."
Bobby Beathard, general manager of the Redskins, said of the report: "That surprises me. I wouldn't think that would be true of our players. I don't know who knows anything anymore. Of course, we were surprised about Tony Peters."
Jay Benoit, spokesman for the NFL Players Association, said he was very surprised at the figures in the story. But he said the NFLPA would have no immediate comment on the report.
Last week when Gene Upshaw, executive director of the players union, was asked in an interview what percentage of players were involved with cocaine, said, "I don't think anyone knows that."
He said, however, players were concerned about the problem. "I get calls all the time from players about what can be done about it."

Lendl Breezes Past Jarryd For Third Player's International Win

MONTREAL (AP) — For Ivan Lendl, winning the Player's International tennis tournament evoked a sense of déjà vu in more ways than one.
The second-seeded Lendl beat Anders Jarryd of Sweden, ranked 83rd in the world, 6-2, 6-2 to win his third tournament championship Sunday.
Lendl, a native of Czechoslovakia, won the tournament in 1980 and 1981 and was runner-up last year. He first gained North American prominence with a strong showing in the 1979 event.

"In 1979, when I was only ranked about 40th or 50th in the world I reached the semifinals of this tournament, that was my first big success," said Lendl, now ranked No. 2 in the world. "Since then I have always done well not only in Canada, but in North America in general."
Lendl, using a booming serve and superb ground strokes, overpowered Jarryd, who may some day reflect on his performance here as a catapult for his own career.
Jarryd had to play qualifying matches to earn a spot on the 56-man draw. But he beat ninth-seeded Eliot Teltscher in the second round, seventh-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis in the round of 16, then stunned top-seeded John McEnroe in straight sets in the semifinals to advance to the final.

Lendl, who beat third-seeded Jimmy Connors in the other semifinal, said he knew Jarryd was a strong clay-court player but had never seen him play on hard courts before.
"The big thing he needs to work on now is consistency," said Lendl. "If he can play well all the time, he's going to be ranked very much higher."
Consistently missing with his first serve contributed hugely to Jarryd's loss to Lendl. He lost service in the first game of the first set, the first of six breaks Lendl racked up in the 68-minute match.
"I wasn't nervous, I don't know why my first service didn't fall in more," said Jarryd, who had become a crowd favorite by the end of the week — he received two standing ovations during his straight-sets victory over McEnroe.

Lendl's serve was devastating when he needed it. After breaking Jarryd to go up 2-1 in the first set, he drilled three aces past his opponent to win game four in two minutes.
Lendl received $61,200 for his efforts, while Jarryd earned $30,600 for finishing second.
In the doubles final, Ferdi Taygan and Sandy Mayer beat another American pair, Tim and Tom Gullikson 6-3, 6-4.

UNC's Hunter Breaks Foot

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina basketball player Curtis Hunter broke a bone in his left foot Sunday and will undergo surgery Monday at North Carolina Memorial Hospital, team officials said.
Hunter, a rising sophomore at UNC, injured his foot while playing in a pickup basketball game. Doctors said Hunter broke the fifth metatarsal in his foot.
Hunter, a 6-foot-4½ guard from Durham, suffered a similar injury in the same foot during his freshman season, causing him to miss 11 games. In the 25 games he did play in, Hunter averaged 4.3 points per game.
Doctors said it will take about eight weeks for the injury to heal.

JAZZ GENIUS — Miles Davis, considered one of the greatest jazz musicians of all time, is known for his originality and his personal air of mystery. A Davis biographer, Ian Carr, describes the jazzman's music as "utterly contemporary in concept, rhythm and execution, and yet it contains the essence of his great past". Carr says that Davis has "set new directions in jazz time and time again". (AP Laserphoto)

Broadway Hit Tried On Television

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Pump Boys & Dinettes on Television" is based on the successful Broadway country-rock musical, and that means there's not much of a story to follow, unless you count the guys' search for a calendar girl to promote their gas station.

Actually, the hunt for a "Pump Girl of the Year" doesn't go much past the Double Cupp Diner, and the two sisters who run that place, Rhett and Prudie Cupp.

The plot is important only in light of NBC's plan, presumably discarded, to make a series of "Pump Boys & Dinettes on TV." That consideration aside, the hour-long video takeoff of the stage play, to be broadcast tonight, is pure diversion in the "Hee-Haw" style.

Producer Ernest Chambers assembled four members of the Broadway cast — John Foley, Mark Hardwick, Debra Monk and Cass

Morgan — along with guest stars Tanya Tucker and Ron Carey, for the comedy pilot, which has a polished, stage-play look to it. Miss Tucker is there as herself, and Carey plays Hugo, a New Yorker whose car breaks down near the boys' station.

The Broadway run ended in June after 573 performances.

The gas station and the diner are on Highway 57, near Frog Level, N.C., and all of the action takes place there. Jackson, played by Foley, keeps the show going — "We live life... in the slow lane," he says — and everyone, including Eddie, whose guitar does the talking, has a chance to perform.

The theatrical version was created by Miss Morgan, the dark-haired Rhett, and her husband, Jim Wann, in the summer of '80, while he and Hardwick, a pianist, were playing country music at a Greenwich Village restaurant.

"It was the kind of place," Wann recalls, "where we'd get reprimanded if we played too loud and distracted the customers from drinking as much as possible. So to amuse ourselves, we started wearing gas station uniforms."

"And I started writing songs about life at the gas station," he says. "That began the 'Pump Boys.'"

Miss Cass was working, coincidentally, with Miss Monk on a cabaret revue about two sisters who ran a diner.

The cooperative effort probably was inevitable.

The format for "Pump Boys & Dinettes on TV" is music interspersed with brief segments of comedy. Foley does Jerry Lee Lewis' "Great Balls of Fire" in estimable style, and Miss Tucker sings "Feel Right" solo and "Wishin' and Hopin'" with Prudie — Miss Monk — and Rhett.

Now back to the search for a "Pump Girl of the Year".

Mona, at the drugstore, won't pose for the calendar, but that's not too bad. "Hearing Mona say 'no' is like hearing most women say 'yes,'" the boys agree.

M.L., Hardwick's

character, suggests Dolly Parton. "Boys, I tried," he says later, "but Dolly told me she don't do no calendar work."

There are other applicants, like Marion from the "May-zone dee Byou-tay." "I still think we ought to put on a woman," L.M. says.

Eddie, with the guitar, promises the honor to both Prudie and Rhett, but the Pump Boys like Dominique instead. She's Hugo's girlfriend, from New York.

"In a week," Rhett tells her disappointed sister as they go back to work in the diner, "we went from pin-ups to clean-ups."

"Pump Boys & Dinettes on TV" is fun for awhile, but week after week?

'Everything Ended' For Lauren When 'Father Knows Best' Died

By WAYNE SLATER
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — The little pigtailed daughter on TV's "Father Knows Best" says she fell from grace in real life — from celebrity to drugs, welfare, even prison — before she found faith and the courage to teach others by example.

For 6½ years until 1960 Lauren Chapin played Kathy Anderson, the most innocent adolescent character on the series about American suburban life in the innocent 1950s.

"When 'Father Knows

Best' finished, everything finished," she recalled recently. "I couldn't get a job. I'd been typecast as Kathy Anderson. The more I didn't work, the more my mother drank and the more belligerent I became. I started running away from home. I became an incorrigible child."

Drugs followed, and casual lovers, Haight-Ashbury, fast company, eight miscarriages, welfare, declining health, a mental hospital, prison.

She tells this story brightly, in detail, with a preacher's lift of voice. Because at 38, Lauren Chapin is on the gospel circuit.

"Millions of people grew up with Kathy Anderson. She represented something they didn't have in their own home. For men, I was a girl friend. For women, I was their perfect little sister. And when they hear my story, when they hear a part of me went down to the bottom, they realize that Lauren Chapin is not Kathy Anderson."

The pressure to live up to her character, she says, did its share of damage.

"My mother always made me dress like Kathy Anderson. She would never let me look like Lauren Chapin," she said. "She'd always put those pigtailed on and bobby socks. I'd take off my socks and roll up my jeans. I'd say I want to be me, but my mom would say, 'How could you shame me like that? You can't be you. You've got to be Kathy Anderson.'"

After "Father Knows Best," she said, her relations with her parents worsened.

She ran away, quit high school and married a classmate. She withdrew several thousand dollars from a savings account "and blew it in eight months." The marriage ended.

"I slept with many, many people trying to find love, to find self-worth," she said. "And the more people I slept with the less self-worth I had."

Ms. Chapin worked a series of jobs, never for long. She began taking Benzedrine, then morphine, then heroin.

"When things would become so ugly, so perverse, I made them into a movie in my mind," she said.

Eventually, after selling drugs in San Francisco, she headed for Hollywood where she tried to forge a payroll check — and was arrested.

"That was the beginning of several years in and out of jail," she said.

On a recent night, the Lauren Chapin Ministries arrived at Faith Temple in a borrowed motor home with a bad muffler. Her two children, aged 5 and 10, are traveling with her.

The ministry began two years ago, some time after she was "born again" at a Pentecostal service.

"All my life I've wanted to be loved," she said. "God's love is the most complete love, and I think that's what I was looking for."

Ms. Chapin invited Jane Wyatt, her TV mother, to her ordination, but she didn't come. Billy Gray, who played brother Bud, lives near Los Angeles and she still sees him from time to time. Elinor Donahue — sister Betty — is still acting. Ms. Chapin says she doesn't see Robert Young, the father, anymore.

Ms. Chapin went down in front at Faith Temple with a brass kettle. Many in the audience of 75 came forward. Some gave money, some asked for autographs.

Among them was a very thin little man who handed her a $50 bill.

"I want you to have this," he said. "I've been praying for your family ever since you were a little girl."

Repayment By Broken Promise

PEKIN, Ill. (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor says he answered a former employer's call for help by loaning him $50,000, but his only repayment has been a broken promise that the money would be used to bail the man's son out of jail.

In court documents in a recent lawsuit by Pryor, the 42-year-old comic said he made an "oral agreement" with Henry Nesbit to loan the money only for bond for Nesbit's son, who was jailed on a still-pending murder charge.

The suit, filed in Pekin, contends that Nesbit, for whom Pryor once worked in his hometown of Peoria, used $20,000 to pay attorneys' fees and court costs, rather than bail.

A hearing today will decide whether an injunction will be granted preventing Nesbit and his son from spending the remaining $30,000. The suit also asks for $20,000 in damages.

Nesbit declined to comment on the suit.

Well Enough To Return To TV

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., who underwent open-heart surgery nearly two months ago, is well enough to go on national TV later this week, and a producer says he hopes Brown will "talk about his whole experience."

Brown, 49, will appear Friday on ABC's "Good Morning America".

Has 50,000 Baseball Cards

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Chandy Greenholt bought his first baseball cards at age 7. Now he has 50,000 different cards in his private collection and nearly 500,000 in a specialty shop he and his wife opened about two years ago.

Greenholt, 31, says The Season Ticket shop, which also deals in sports memorabilia and souvenirs, may be the first full-time operation of its kind in the state. His customers come from North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

Sixty percent of his customers are youngsters, but 75 percent of his sales are to adults, he said.

Greenholt said he first started collecting cards because he had been advanced from the first to the third grade and wanted to make friends with his older classmates.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠6 ♥KQ853 ♦AKJ952 ♣7 Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—You should be cautious because of a potential misfit. If you respond two diamonds, you might never complete the description of your hand — the auction might get too high. Respond one heart. That way, you should have no problem getting to bid diamonds twice at a comfortable level.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠95 ♥QJ10875 ♦7 ♣AJ83 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass 2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner's rebid has improved your hand considerably. However, don't raise clubs just yet. If you have a game, hearts is the most likely spot. Try it out by jumping to three hearts now, and see how partner reacts.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AJ94 ♥95 ♦A843 ♣QJ4 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—While your opening bid certainly has gotten partner excited, you have as little as the law allows for an opening bid, and partner did pass originally. Pass — you are as high as you want to be.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A109 ♥K72 ♦A1095 ♣QJ9 The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 3 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—If you are the type who passes this kind of holding, your opponents are stealing you blind! Partner must have a fair hand on this auction, and it is up to you to protect his holding. Bid three no trump.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q8 ♥104 ♦AKQJ6 ♣AK82 The bidding has proceeded: West North East South

1 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—We are about to give you a piece of advice which you should cherish — it will be worth a lot of points to you over the years. In the balancing seat, you start showing all good hands with a double. This is a good hand. It is important that you first convince partner you have sound values and are not just reopening to prevent the opponents from buying the contract at a low level.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQJ10 ♥K108 ♦AK65 ♣K2 Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A.—You have too good a hand not to make a jump shift, so it is simply a question of which suit should you choose? You would like to have a five-card suit for a jump shift, for partner might raise with a three-card holding. That is why it is dangerous to jump shift in spades. We would opt for two diamonds.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good day to prepare yourself for the various and sundry conditions through which you can expand and extend your interests and horizons to new or distant matters.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Think out just how to add to present activities so that your earning power will be greater. Your perceptions are keen.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve your relationships with those in business and get better results in the future. Ask for advice you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what a close associate desires of you and try to please so that the relationship will be more harmonious.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be more deliberate in handling your work and approach it in an efficient manner. Socialize tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get that work done early so that you can enjoy the recreations you desire later. Follow through on a loved one's idea.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to what kin have to say and try to be of more assistance to them. Don't do any entertaining at home now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get correspondence handled that can bring you the right results, especially out of town letters. Visit friends tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Finances are very much on your mind now, but study your newspaper for information you need, the stock market, etc.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your situation well and make any changes that you feel are necessary in order to advance yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You like to deliberate a good deal but this is a day for quick decisions and quick action for good results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to be your gregarious self, but do less talking and more listening for right results to follow.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to make those changes in your career work so that you have greater benefits accrue. Gain needed assistance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very articulate, but be sure to teach early to think before speaking and not to be so vehement in expressing ideas. Teach to be well informed before making utterances. Provide a good education.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Price Drops Said Coming

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina motorists won't see a decline in the price of gasoline until after Labor Day, despite recent predictions that the cost of gas would soon fall across the nation, an industry official says.

"Prices appear to be declining right now, but it only looks to be a cent or two per gallon," said Quentin G. Anderson Jr., of the Carolina Motor Club, an affiliate of the American Automobile Association. Anderson said that after Labor Day state motorists can expect significant price drops similar to those in late 1982 and early 1983 when prices reached about a $1 per gallon at many self-service pumps and a low average of $1.20 per gallon overall.

"If anything, prices by the end of this year will probably be lower than last year, but it will be a gradual and moderate drop," he said.

Anderson predicted that self-service prices could drop to $1 per gallon by the end of 1983.

Four major oil companies reduced prices from a half cent to one cent per gallon in parts of the West and Midwest Friday.

A report by industry analyst Dan Lundberg of Los Angeles said a world oil glut and lower-than-expected summer gas usage in the U.S. has forced companies to lower prices. Lundberg said prices would continue to decline moderately through Labor Day.

Planning Install Nuclear Alarms

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. will put 340 tone-alert emergency radios in hospitals, prisons, day-care centers and large businesses and industries near its three nuclear power plants in September, company officials say.

The radios will tune in only the Emergency Broadcast System and will automatically relay emergency messages in the event of a nuclear accident.

FOCUS

A Railroad Links Two Coasts

On this date in 1870, construction workers laid the piece of track that completed the first transcontinental railroad in North America. According to engineers' diaries, the historic rail was laid 3,812 feet east of the Union Pacific depot building at Strasburg, Colorado. The railroad was actually completed on this date, but the formal anniversary is celebrated on May 10. It commemorates "the driving of the Golden Spike" at Promontory, Utah, in 1869. That ceremony marked the meeting of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads and the completion of continuous tracks between Omaha and Sacramento. The United States had four more transcontinental railroads by 1900.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the man who drove the Golden Spike?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Los Angeles will host the 1984 Summer Olympics.

Ten People Die In Weekend Traffic

By The Associated Press
Ten people, including a Pitt County pedestrian killed in a hit-and-run accident, died during the weekend in North Carolina traffic accidents, the state Highway Patrol reported Monday.

Robert Montgomery Dawson, 45, of Ayden, was struck by a car on a rural road just north of Grifton at 5 a.m. Saturday.

Early Sunday, Dannie Merrell Combs, 24, of Ronda was killed when his car sped off N.C. 268 in the Wilkes County town of Ronda, went down an embankment and hit a tree.

Sally Elizabeth Waller, 19, of Greensboro, was killed at 7:30 p.m. Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger sped off a rural road east of Greensboro, overturned and threw her from it.

Robert Clyde Howe, 25, of Gibsonia, Pa., died at 7:20 p.m. Saturday when his car was struck by another vehicle that lost control on N.C. 12 north of Rodanthe in Dare County.

Wilson Deese, 32, of Rowland died later on Saturday night when his speeding motorcycle hit a traffic island on U.S. 301 south of his hometown.

Mable Robinson Rhymer, 51, of Asheville was killed when the car she was driving was hit by another car that crossed the center line on U.S. 19 east of Mars Hill, troopers said. The accident occurred at 11:15 a.m. Saturday.

On Friday night, Mac Anthony McKinney, 20, of Bakersville was killed when the car he was driving at high speed crossed the center line of N.C. 226 north of Spruce Pine and hit another car head-on.

Douglas Scott Thompson, 22, of New London, died Friday night when he lost control of his car and hit another car, troopers said. The accident occurred at 10:40 p.m. south of Rockwell in Rowan County.

Troopers said two men were killed early Friday night in Wilson County when they lost control of their car and hit another car head-on on N.C. 58, a mile north of Stantonsburg.

The victims were William G. Ondrus, 24, of Bayside, N.Y., and Gregory Pozenel, 25, of Magnetic Springs, Ohio. Troopers said Ondrus was driving during the accident, which occurred at 7:10 p.m.

The deaths raised the yearly traffic fatality toll to 728, compared to 751 at the same time last year.
