Win Pistol Competition

TOP POLICE SHOOTERS ... Police officers J.C. Mulford, K.R. Evans, and George Albertine, the top three winners in Greenville Police Department pistol competition, are shown with Chief Glenn Cannon. The competition, named in honor of Cannon, who is retiring at the end of this month, was sponsored by the police department and the Trophy House and will become an annual event. Albertine, the first place winner, scored 100 (with 38 x-ring shots), while Evans, with a score of 100 (and 33 x-ring shots) placed second. Mulford, with a score of 99.1, was third. All of the department's 75 officers participated in the competition and all qualified on the combat course with a score of 80 or better.

Two-Way Radio In Solid Waste Trucks

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners voted Monday to buy five two-way radios, each having a 20-25 mile radius, for the county's solid waste trucks at a cost of $6,500.

"We feel it would be very helpful to have radios for the five trucks because sometimes it is necessary for them to communicate," Don Davenport, assistant county manager, said.

The $6,500 will come from the county's emergency fund and will pay for the radios, a base station and tower, installation and maintenance.

Bids on the project were received from Motorola and Commercial Communications. Commercial Communications made the lowest bid.

"We thought about getting pagers instead, but they were only $1,000 cheaper than two-way communication," Davenport commented.

In other business:

The commissioners discussed amending the county's building inspection ordinance to comply with a new state law.

Under the old law, a person who had $2,500 or less of repairs was exempt from obtaining a building permit. Under the new law, the exemption rate was increased to $5,000.

The commissioners decided not to take any action on the matter until it was discussed with the city of Greenville.

The commissioners denied, because of state law, a request by former Pitt County Deputy Jackie L. Moye to buy his own handgun and badge as a symbol of his service to Pitt County. Under the law, a law enforcement agent can only purchase those items when he retires or a relative may receive them if he dies.

The board approved a request by Social Services Director (Please turn to Page 5)

Invaders Unwilling To Battle French Forces

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP)

President Hissene Habre said today he is prepared to hold direct talks with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi to end the Chad war, but would not talk to rebel leader Goukouni Oueddei.

Habre told a news conference that his only quarrel is with Libya, "which today is in military occupation of half our country... in contempt of the conscience of the international community."

He said Goukouni, who leads a Libyan-backed rebel regime based near the Libyan border, speaks for only one of many "mercenary elements" recruited by Khadafi for the invasion of Chad and can not be regarded as a valid negotiator.

Habre indicated any negotiations with Khadafi would deal essentially with ways of getting the Libyan forces out of Chad rather than Khadafi's other demands, "which are tantamount to a Libyan annexation of Chad."

"Libya is aided in this enterprise by the Soviet Union, which believes it is to its advantage to destabilize all the countries of this region of Africa," Habre said.

During the weekend, Libyan and rebel forces halted their sweep through Chad's northern wastelands, apparently to avoid any fight with French troops stationed in strategic positions to support Chad's government.

Habre addressed some 100 Chadian and foreign reporters for more than an hour.

He used the news conference technique of France's late President Charles de Gaulle, taking many questions in succession and then replying to those that suited him.

The French-educated Habre spoke in French and never faltered or appeared at a loss for words.

He stressed that his relations with France, the former colonial power, were now "clear and free of any misunderstanding" following his past complaints that the French government of President Francois Mitterrand was lukewarm in its support for Chad against the Libyan aggression.

Habre said he no longer suspected the Mitterrand government of intriguing behind his back with Libya, a point he made at a news conference Aug. 7.

But Chadian officials said Monday that they will need more French help if Goukouni decides to press south towards the capital of N'Djamena.

Information Minister Soumaila Mahamat said the Libyans on Saturday ceased bombing Oum Chalouba, the northernmost position still held by the government. He also said they had not moved against Koro Toro, a desert outpost 370 miles north of N'Djamena. Koro Toro was abandoned by government troops Friday.

France insists its 700 paratroopers in this former French African colony have a noncombat training mission, but will defend themselves if attacked. They are deployed in strategic positions at Salal and Abeche facing the rebel-held northern desert, and in N'Djamena.

Soumaila announced that Habre again asked for direct French military intervention in talks with Guy Penne. Mitterrand's chief adviser on African affairs. There was no immediate official reaction to the appeal.

City School Board Backs Half-Cent Sales Tax Plan

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A resolution of support for the proposed one-half cent optional sales tax was approved by members of the Greenville Board of Education Monday night.

The resolution, taking note of the absence of major building and renovation projects since a study made in 1978 by the N.C. Department of Public Instruction, affirmed the need of revenue sources to help meet funding needs for facilities.

Because of those needs, the city board requested that Pitt County Commissioners levy the additional one-half cent sales tax at the earliest possible date subsequent to a public hearing.

Superintendent Delma Blinson said such a tax would provide revenue of about $513,000 annually for use by the Pitt County and Greenville schools.

Approval was given on second reading to a policy paper on absences and leaves for classified personnel. Classified personnel are employees in fields such as maintenance. (Please turn to Page 5)

Steel And Autos Paced July's Data On Industrial Recovery

By The Associated Press
Automobile and steel production led the recovery in American industry in July, with production in the nation's factories and mines up 7.1 percent from a year ago, and 1.8 percent above June's rate, the government reported today.

July's increase followed gains of 1.1 percent in June and 1.3 percent in May, the Federal Reserve Board said.

July's increase was the eighth monthly gain in a row and second-strongest to April's 1.9 percent increase.

On Monday, U.S. auto companies reported a 40.8

percent gain in early August car sales, and a new survey said Americans are growing more encouraged by the economic recovery.

Of the three biggest automakers reporting sales results Monday for the Aug. 1-10 period, Chrysler Corp.'s 50.7 percent gain was the largest. Ford Motor Co. reported a 46.9 percent increase and General Motors Corp. was up 35.8 percent.

The industry, whose domestic sales last year were the lowest since 1961, has benefited from lower interest rates and a surge in consumer spending.

So far this year, GM's sales are running 15.2 percent ahead of last year's pace, while Ford is 11.9 percent ahead and Chrysler is up 26.8 percent.

Meanwhile, the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research said its index of consumer attitudes for the April-June period rose to the highest level since 1972.

The institute said that for the first time in five years, a greater percentage of the families in its survey reported an improved financial condition than a worsened condition. It also said two-thirds of the families thought conditions were favorable for buying cars, houses and major household goods — a record level.

—The maximum interest rate that commercial banks and savings institutions may pay on six-month savings certificates dropped today to 9.80 percent from the previous week's 9.95 percent. The rate on three-month certificates fell to 9.43 percent from 9.57 percent. The new rates are tied by federal law to the average yield on three- and six-month Treasury bills auctioned each Monday by the government.

Physicists To Push For Huge Atom-Smasher

BATAVIA, Ill. (AP) — A group of American physicists plans to lobby the government to build a new atom smasher — 120 miles around — to explore a "new frontier" of matter and natural forces.

The proposed $2 billion machine, sure to attract spirited competition for its location, would dwarf the atom smasher at Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory west of Chicago, where 500 international physicists are attending the 12th International Conference on High-Energy Accelerators. Fermilab's accelerator, the world's largest, is reaching the highest levels of power in history, at 700 billion electron volts. The proposed smasher would collide particles at 20 trillion volts and allow scientists to peer at a subatomic world out of reach from existing accelerators.

"There are a number of conjectures about what populates that region," said Christopher Quigg, director of the theoretical physics division at Fermilab.

If the new accelerator is built, he said, "Something has to show its head. Something new we don't understand."

Research into high-energy physics could lead to breakthroughs in energy conservation and power transmission, as well as innovations in fields such as robot techniques, the scientists said.

The proposal, discussed by the scientists on Monday, was welcomed by James Leiss, associate director of high-energy nuclear physics for the U.S. Department of Energy. He said the department would recommend that the government spend $150,000 to $200,000 on research for the accelerator.

Beirut's Airport Open To Traffic

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)

The government reopened Beirut international airport today, ending a six-day shutdown caused by Druse shellfire, and U.S. Marines stationed at the facility said they would shoot back if attacked.

"Regular flights will resume as of today," said Public Works Minister Pierre Khoury in a nationwide radio broadcast. "Normal operations will return gradually today and full normal operations are expected tomorrow."

Middle East Airlines, Lebanon's national carrier, announced its regular flights to Europe and the Arab world were back to normal at midday. Company sources said foreign airlines were expected to resume flights to and from the airport on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens flew to Beirut by helicopter and appealed to the Lebanese government to coordinate a takeover of the central mountains when Israel's army redeployed further south.

In Damascus, a mediation team representing Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization met with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam to try to heal the rift between Arafat and Syria.

The decision to reopen the airport, one of the busiest in the Middle East, was made Monday night when the government and its Druse opponents reached agreement on sparing the facility further shelling.

The Druse had shelled the airport as part of their demand that the government keep the Christian-dominated army out of the rebellious sect's mountain strongholds overlooking Beirut.

They withdrew the threat to continue the shelling after the government said the shutdown had stranded 30,000 Lebanese overseas and was costing millions of dollars in revenue.

Monday's announcement coincided with a warning from Col. Timothy J. Geraghty, commander of the Marine contingent serving with the multinational peacekeeping force, that his men would return fire if they were attacked.

The 1,200 Marine peacekeepers are stationed at the airport.

Couple Marries In Green Springs Park

Charlotte Anne Simmons and Charles Edward Gupion were united in marriage Saturday at 7 p.m. in a double ring ceremony performed in Green Springs Park. The Rev. John H. Dutton conducted the ceremony.

A string quartet from East Carolina University presented the wedding music and Tony McDowell of New York, brother of the bride, was vocalist.

Directing the ceremony were Shirley Bryant of Virginia, aunt of the bride, and Elaine Harrell of Greenville. Karen Lawrence of Edenton presided at the register.

The parents of the bride are Howard C. Simmons and Janet T. Simmons, both of Woodland. Nancy M. Gupion of Nashville is the mother of the bridegroom. His father was the late Charlie B. Gupion.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her honor attendant was her sister-in-law, Sharon Simmons of Emporia, Va. Paula Beasley of Havelock and Cindy Gupion of Gainesville, Fla., sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Kelly Beasley of Havelock, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and the ring bearer was Bryan Allen of Belvoir.

Keith Gupion of Nashville, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers included Charles Simmons of Emporia, Va., brother of the bride, and Ricky Matthews of Mooresville.

The bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and chantilly lace over taffeta. The fitted lace bodice featured a scoop neckline outlined with a flounce, puff sleeves and natural waist. Chantilly lace tiers accented the train and bordered the hemline of the gown. She wore a waltz length mantilla of bridal illusion edged with chantilly lace and accented with lace motifs flowing from a lace cap etched with seed pearls. She carried yellow roses and white daisies.

The honor attendant wore a maize floor length gown of chiffonette over taffeta. The fitted sleeveless bodice featured a yoke ruffled neckline and natural waist sashed with satin. The bouffant layered scalloped chiffonetta skirt was accented with a satin bow and the hemline was bordered with a ruffle. She carried a white parasol with yellow silk daisies bordering the edges.

The attendants were dressed like the honor attendant as was the flower girl, who carried a white basket filled with daisies and tied with yellow and white streamers. She had a headpiece of yellow daisies and white and yellow silk streamers.

A reception was held at the American Legion Building and was given by friends of the bride.

NAMES OMITTED

The names of parents were omitted from the wedding write-up of Donna Carol Fulford and Alexander Walton Long printed in Sunday's issue of The Daily Reflector. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Francis Fulford of Fountain and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Franklin Long III of Rockingham.

MRS. CHARLES EDWARD GUPTON

The couple will live in Nashville after a wedding trip to Florida.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed by the Pitt County Schools. The bridegroom attended ECU and works with the U.S. Postal Service in Rocky Mount.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom at the Three Steers.

The couple was given a miscellaneous shower by Elaine Harrell and Karen Lawrence of Edenton as well as several other parties.

Couple Honored On 50th Anniversary On Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. W.D. McArthur of Greenville were honored Sunday afternoon at a surprise 50th anniversary reception held at the First Christian Church parlor.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. William Kenneth McArthur Jr. of Goldsboro and Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. McArthur of Valdosta, Ga., sons and daughters-in-law of the honorees.

Greeting guests were Cheryl McArthur, William Kenneth McArthur Jr., John Daniel McArthur and David C. McArthur, grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. McArthur.

Pouring punch was Mrs. Sam Vincent of Greenville. Mrs. Don McArthur served cake assisted by Mrs. Ken McArthur.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth overlaid with a white cutwork cloth. Centering the table was an arrangement of pink carnations, white daisies, lilac and purple statice, greenery and eucalyptus flanked by single candleholders holding white lighted tapers. The gift table was covered with similar cloths and decorated with a five branch candelabra holding lighted white tapers. Gifts were received by David McArthur.

The couple was married Aug. 12, 1933, in Temple, Tex. and have lived in Greenville since 1937. The couple has six grandchildren.

MR. AND MRS. W.D. MCARTHUR

A special guest was McArthur's sister, Mrs. Martha Koger of Cary.

For the occasion, Mrs. McArthur was wearing a two-piece ensemble of rose and white complemented by a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

Good-byes were said by the couple's sons.

Grieving Mom Has Message For Youth

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last Feb. 12, my dear friend, Beverly, called to tell me that Kurt, her 25-year-old son, had died of an overdose of cocaine. I was shocked!

At Kurt's funeral, the minister read a letter that Beverly had written and asked him to read at the service.

I have Beverly's permission to send it to you, Abby, because in her words, "If it saves just one life, it will be worthwhile."

KURT'S GODMOTHER

DEAR READERS: Here's Beverly's letter (in part):

"All of us share a terrible grief, and now I want to share my feelings with you:

"Kurt died of an overdose of cocaine. At first I couldn't even say those words, but now I want to say them over and over again so you, his friends, will not forget them. Since Kurt's death, almost all of you have said to me, 'If there is anything I can do for you, please let me know.'

"All right, I am letting you know what you can do, not only for me, but for yourselves. Please take care of your precious bodies and make a solemn promise that what happened to Kurt will never happen to you.

"Since this happened to Kurt, many of you have told me that you have used cocaine, but you won't use it anymore. I am not only asking you — I am begging you to stop! It's too late for Kurt, but it's not too late for you.

"Don't hurt yourself. Don't hurt your family. Don't hurt your friends. We all loved Kurt so much we don't want to believe this nightmare. But it is true. It happened!

"Cocaine kills.

"If Kurt's death can save just one of you, he will not have died in vain."

DEAR ABBY: To the 49-year-old divorced man who raised his kids, and now finds he is not willing to raise someone else's: Did it ever occur to him to look for someone his own age, someone whose kids are also grown and "out of the nest"?

He might even find a better bed partner in that age group because she doesn't have to worry about getting pregnant!

MRS. ROBIN DALE BUTLER

Candlelight Wedding Vows Are Solemnized

The wedding ceremony of Wendy Kay Jones and Robin Dale Butler was solemnized in a candlelight service at Community Baptist Church Sunday at 3 p.m. The Rev. Lon Hicks performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur G. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis T. Butler of Ayden.

A program of wedding music was presented by Phyllis Griffin, organist and Sharon Brackin sang "I Won't Last a Day Without You," "Through the Eyes of Love," "The Silent Wedding Song" and "Surround Me With Love."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of white organza over taffeta. The gown featured a sculptured neckline and fitted bodice, appliqued with Venise lace. Long fitted sleeves were appliqued with Venise lace and formed a fingertip ruffle of organza edged in matching lace. An A-line skirt of organza over taffeta edged with Venise lace formed a chapel length train. The bride wore a knee length veil of silk illusion appliqued with motifs of Venise lace and seed pearls attached to a Juliet cap of lace and pearls. The bride carried a white handkerchief trimmed in lace belonging to her great-grandmother and a cascade of bridal white roses, baby tears and white alcyssum in a tradition silk bouquet.

Sabrina Jones of Ayden was her sister's honor attendant and wore a formal gown of crystal mint taffeta designed with a scooped neckline and enhanced with a ruffle. The gown featured a full skirt and cummerbund. She carried a colonial nosegay featuring miniature carnations, starburst pompons, daisies and baby's breath tied with satin ribbons. She wore a matching floral hair ornament.

Bridesmaids included Penny Butler, sister of the bridegroom, Renee Jones, sister-in-law of the bride, Jo Dennis and Donna Smith, all of Ayden. Each wore a formal gown and carried colonial nosegays identical to that of the maid of honor. They wore matching floral hair ornaments.

The flower girl was Carla McLawhorn of Tarboro, cousin of the bride. She wore a formal gown of crystal mint and carried a lace basket filled with carnations and daisies. She wore a circlet of white daisies in her hair.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen included Tony Butler, brother of the bridegroom, Gordon and Randy Jones, brothers of the bride, and Mark Smith, all of Ayden. Jason McLawhorn of Ayden, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Patricia Carter of Ayden and Karen Wingard of Aycon, S.C. presided at the guest register. Louise Williams of Portsmouth, Va. was mistress of ceremony.

The chancel of the church held a 15 branch candelabra decorated in mixed flowers. Two nine branch candelabra filled with mixed flowers were used on each side. Honor pews were marked with white satin bows and the couple knelt on a white prie-dieu for the benediction.

The couple was honored at a rehearsal party at the church fellowship hall. Jane Worthington served cake and Bealah Smith poured punch. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Smith greeted guests and good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLawhorn.

The couple was honored with a miscellaneous shower at the church and the bride was honored at a bridesmaids luncheon at the home of Mrs. Smith.

The bridegroom graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School and is employed by Gray and Creech, Inc. of Greenville. The bride graduated from Community Christian Church and is employed by Brody's of Greenville.

After a trip to the coast, the couple will live in Ayden.

Dead At Sea

The Port of Morehead City, as it has been for years, is virtually dead. There are some who wonder if it ever breathed life. But, still, the state continues to pretend it has a viable port in a harbor that wouldn't make a good bath tub for Paul Bunyon.

An end has to come sometime. Thomas T. Taft of Greenville, chairman of the State Ports Authority, acknowledges that the port's demise was near this year when Alla-Ohio Valley Inc. ran into trouble with its million-dollar rent for a coal terminal. The rent was renegotiated, the amount cut more than 50 percent, and the port apparently will operate again. "We would have had a dead animal on our hands if we hadn't renegotiated," Taft noted.

But even with the million-dollar rent, Morehead City earned only $161,815 on revenues of $4 million during the last fiscal year. The port's budget for this fiscal year has been held up until more revenues can be projected. Based on the port's history, those revenues will be projected — not realized.

To paraphrase an old saying: "It's one heckuva way to run a port."

Biological Clock

Can we all live for hundreds of years?

Apparently not with the knowledge we currently possess.

Dr. Phil Sloane of the department of family medicine at UNC-Chapel Hill says that if all diseases were eliminated the average maximum life would still be 85 to 90 years.

It seems that each of us has a biological clock which begins to shut down in old age and our bodies deteriorate.

Perhaps the secrets of that biological clock will be discovered, but for now we must live with a maximum life span.

There should be comfort in the fact that with the best of care our bodies can perform in maximum condition during the years we have allotted. And perhaps the quality of the lives we live is far more important than the number of years we manage to stay on Earth.

Year For Profits

NEW YORK (AP) — It will be a great year for profits, said William Dunkelberg, the Purdue University economist who studies the economic health of small business for the National Federation of Independent Business.

The professor's comments, following his regular quarterly survey of 2,131 small businesses, were a sparkling contrast to his assessments of a year or two ago, when small business was in the pits of despair.

The extent of the recovery can be measured in the latest findings, compiled in July:

— Plans to hire new employees increased to a near-record level, resisting the usual third-quarter decline, and ending 14 straight quarters of negative responses.

— Optimism, based on basic measurements such as sales, earnings, credit availability and job openings, remained at record-high levels.

— Only 20 percent of all firms planned to raise prices during the next three months, just slightly above the April measurement, which was the lowest since the survey began in the fourth quarter of 1974.

While the study is limited to so-called small businesses, the range is sufficiently large for Dunkelberg and his associate, Jonathan Scott of Southern Methodist University, to feel it speaks for the economy as a whole.

Ninety-one percent of companies examined by the professors have 40 or fewer workers, but others have payrolls in the hundreds, which qualifies them for inclusion in some middle or big-business lists.

While the news overall remains good, a warning flag has begun to ripple in the form of rising interest rates.

Thirty-five percent of loans among companies studied in the survey were tied to the prime interest rate, which has risen of late, a situation Dunkelberg blames in part on "the presence of Treasury demand in excess of consumer saving."

That situation, he suggests, can lead to only two scenarios, the first of which is a decline in the level of consumer and business spending on items such as the purchases of cars, houses, plant and equipment.

"The government is soaking up an incredible amount of money," he said. They're "getting away with it for now," he suggested, but it could mean serious problems down the line.

The other possibility, he indicated, relies a good deal on the recovery's strength being sufficient to produce a windfall of revenues, thus reducing the deficit and lessening the Treasury's activity in credit markets.

For the more immediate future, however, plans to build unusually lean inventories should provide a substantial kick to economic activity, Dunkelberg believes.

The intentions, measured as unusually strong, aren't new. Earlier surveys revealed the same hopes, which, Dunkelberg explained, "were pleasantly frustrated by higher-than-expected demand."

While the same thing could happen again, the impact on the economy is still likely to be substantial.

"Whether the production ends up on the shelves of retailers and producers or in the homes of consumers, the third-quarter's economic activity should be strong," said Dunkelberg.

BOSTON — Weakened by the decline of smokestack industries and repeated failures to recruit new members, big labor is betting a bundle that it can win unprecedented political power through the Democratic Party and its vulnerable presidential front-runner, Walter F. Mondale.

That is the goal the AFL-CIO's formidable president, Lane Kirkland, set here last Tuesday. He persuaded his cautious executive council to give Mondale what he wants and needs: a first-ever, all-out early pledge of big labor's money and organization (moved up to October from the originally scheduled December endorsement date.)

The scope of Kirkland's aspirations is reflected by his backstage moves. He has established the first national AFL-CIO television network to propagandize labor's demands through a new $2 million-a-year Institute of Public Affairs, and raised per-capita dues to transfers from his unions to AFL-CIO headquarters. Those are building blocks for his true objective: proving the irresistible thrust of organized labor's combined force in propping up the faltering Mondale campaign and going on to guide the destiny of the Democratic Party.

To make his point, Kirkland is taking a risk described this way by one particularly cautious union president: "Consider this as our first trip to the North Pole, a place we've never been before and may not get to now." William Wimpisinger, head of the Machinists and Sen. Alan Cranston's strongest backer on the executive council, told us the endorsement risks a "political backlash" for Mondale if he wins the nomination. But, Wimpisinger added, it also "gives us our only chance for the jackpot."

The jackpot: unchallenged power within the Democratic Party under an elected-by-labor president; commitment by that president to the AFL-CIO's New Industrial Policy; at least a partial return to big domestic spending programs.

That jackpot also includes a glittering nugget: defeat of Ronald Reagan. One Kirkland stalwart here told us after the executive council's closed-door session that the decision to advance the endorsing date from December to October "might not have happened except for deep hatred" of Reagan. Kirkland publicly reflected big labor's emotional mood when he said the president has "brought extraordinary suffering to millions of people."

The biggest risk for Kirkland in trying to harness the AFL-CIO and its nearly 100 unions to Mondale (though no union will be legally bound by endorsement) is obvious: Mondale's defeat by Sen. John Glenn at the Democratic Convention. Such a defeat would lay waste to Kirkland's ambitions. He is philosophical in private, saying that the alternative to his gamble would be for the AFL-CIO to play it safe — and duplicate its impotence of recent years when opposing factions canceled out each other.

For Fritz Mondale, wearing big labor's political collar also carries risks. While helping him get the nomination, it could prove an unbearable burden during the fall campaign in alienating independents, anti-Reagan Republicans and, most of all, moderate-to-conservative Democrats.

Mondale's weakness for special-interest constituencies makes him a setup for a Republican campaign against a "special-interest president." That is true even though Kirkland's labor unions are far closer to the Democratic center than other Mondale backers such as unilateral disarmers, gay rights militants and environmental extremists.

Some labor chieftans here also worry about the consequences of having ignored Cranston's high-pitched appeal not to advance the endorsement date. One union president told us that Cranston virtually threatened retaliation, noting that he had "been your hod carrier" as the Senate Democratic whip and would remain whip for another forty years.

To bold, brainy Lane Kirkland, such worries are distant clouds over the horizon. He sees this risky journey less as a first trip to the North Pole than a fast train to power, with Mondale his only ticket to get there.

Cigarettes May Hold Key In Japan

TOKYO, Japan — Sometimes the best of friends argue incessantly. That's certainly the case with Japan and the United States when it comes to international trade. With millions of Americans out of work, the American government is fed up with the huge trade imbalance that exists between the two countries. Estimates have the Japanese selling us $19 billion more of their goods this year than we will sell them of ours.

Cigarettes are expected to play a role in America — Japanese efforts to reduce that trade balance. American Ambassador to Japan Mike Mansfield says cigarettes may help avoid a trade war between the two countries.

Although the Japanese buy a great deal of raw leaf from North Carolina and other tobacco states, they buy very few American cigarettes. A government-owned monopoly, Japan Tobacco and Salt Public Corporation (JTS), controls the manufacture and sale of all cigarettes there and restricts the sale of foreign cigarettes wishing to compete with its 43 brands.

The result is that JTS cigarettes control 98 percent of the country's $10 billion annual market while American cigarettes command only 1.5 percent.

American companies are howling "foul play." Mike Morrison, director of public relations for R.J. Reynolds International, says JTS throws obstacles on American cigarette-makers at every turn. He argues that the Japanese tariff on imported cigarettes is unfair and that the JTS distribution system for foreign cigarettes is a classic case of conflict of interest.

Strength For Today

The church of Jesus Christ should never forget the great, heart-warming experience of John Wesley. This man not only founded one of the greatest of modern denominations, he also released spiritual currents felt today in all parts of the world.

The greatest experience in his life came while he was attending a Moravian prayer meeting in 1738. "While the leader was describing the change which God works in the heart through faith in Christ," he wrote later, "I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone for salvation, and an assurance was given me that he had taken away my sins and saved me from the law of sin and death."

Someone has written that, "From that little room, the flames swept on until America, India and the islands of the sea (as well as his own British Isles), sang of the refining fire of God's salvation in the human heart."

government, the tariff was recently reduced so that American cigarettes are now closer in price to the Japanese competition. A pack of American cigarettes costs $1.16 as compared to 92 cents for a pack of Japanese smokes. The Japanese have also agreed to increase from the current 20,000 to 35,000 the number of licensed cigarette dealers who'll be allowed to sell American cigarettes. But, in all, there are a quarter-million dealers in the country.

American cigarette companies want the right to promote and distribute their own cigarettes. They know that JTS distributors don't push the sale of American cigarettes. They'd be hurting their own pocketbooks if they did.

American businessmen say that other American products face similar trade barriers in Japan. The U.S. Congress is threatening retaliation against the Japanese in the form of severe restrictions on their products in our market.

Mansfield says the Japanese might concede on cigarettes in the hope that they can make friends in the Congress. They're especially worried about the proposed Domestic Contents Act. It would force them to build the cars they sell in the United States with American-made parts.

Reagan Finds Support From Young Voters

WASHINGTON — "It's remarkable," said Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Ronald Reagan's best friend in Congress. "It's a fascinating phenomenon," added Richard Wirthlin, the president's personal pollster.

What's the excitement about? Top Republican strategists, charged with mapping Ronald Reagan's reelection campaign, have discovered unprecedented support for the president in recent months among young Americans.

Jimmy Carter).

More recently, exit polls conducted by NBC News after last November's congressional elections revealed that young Americans voted their concerns about the president's handling of the arms race, environmental protection and women's issues.

Yet Wirthlin's surveys, conducted as late as two weeks ago, indicate a massive change of heart. More than 50 percent of the 25- to 34-year-olds now back the president, up three points from 1980. Moreover, 56 percent of the 18- to 24-year-olds now stand with Reagan, a boost of 11 points. It seems that the older he gets, the better he looks. In an interview, both Wirthlin and Laxalt said the turnaround, though surprising, was a natural product of economic recovery. As economic indicators continue to rise, younger voters whose chief concerns are starting careers and families will find fewer reasons to quibble with the incumbent.

A second factor may be that young voters continue to lack a good alternative. As long as Democratic contenders remain lackluster in style or substance, Reagan is sure to reap many votes by default.

poverty line, up from a low of 11 percent in 1973.

The two sets of numbers do not fit together neatly on the same chart.

It's left to the public — the voters — to sift through all the dogma and the statistics, and to decide, every few years, whether the government policies being followed are doing the job or not. Frequently, in rendering that verdict, the voters seem to ignore most of the numbers and the great body of expert opinion.

word that Americans' income per capita rose substantially in the 1970s, even after inflation's contribution to the increase is subtracted out.

By one yardstick of inflation — the consumer price index — the real increase in income per person was 13 percent. By another, known as the gross national product deflator, it was 23 percent.

Then came the Census Bureau's report the other day that poverty, as defined by the government, increased to a 17-year high in 1982. Fifteen percent of the population was listed as living below the

NEW YORK (AP) — When you look at the official scoreboard of the economy, it's often difficult to tell whether the game is being won or not.

Presumably, the purpose of all government economic policies, no matter what form they take, is the same — to increase prosperity and reduce poverty.

But in the welter of statistics used to measure the results, and the clamor over the means that should be used to try to achieve them, the success or failure of those policies can be hard to judge.

There was, for example, the recent undeniable political benefits.

"Our people in uniform tell me how much prouder they are to serve today," said Laxalt in an interview. "That certainly has to go through society ... as well."

Reagan also presents a formidable image that young voters realize has been sadly lacking in national leaders. Like it or not, he has been singly successful in managing Congress, building coalitions and disarming his detractors. He has, despite the many cat calls about a movie star president, restored a respect to his office and hence its constituents. Support for Reagan, then, is merely quid pro quo.

Said Wirthlin: "Younger voters trust him. They trust his strength of leadership."

The implications for the Democrats, of course, are painfully clear. Even if they emerge from the long primary season next summer without major party divisions, Democrats could find voters psychologically attached to Reagan.

Of course, the poll data hardly suggest that Reagan has a monopoly on the baby-boom vote. Many in the age cohort staunchly oppose Reagan. It is also true that many don't care, and presidential elections are big tests of small margins. The few points Reagan appears to have garnered recently could make a big difference.

administrative, custodial and aide positions, as opposed to certified personnel — principals, teachers, guidance counselors, etc.

The adopted policy clause essentially provides an official school board guideline to extend to classified personnel "as much as practical," the same absences and leaves benefits accorded to certified personnel.

Blinson explained that some provisions of the absences and leaves policy statewide will need to be clarified by the State Board of Education within the next few months.

Of particular importance, and a point of concern to school board members as it could affect the school budget, is the matter of leave that would have to be paid for if an employee resigned with substantial leave time accumulated. Blinson said it was his understanding that, under the state rules, school boards will have the authority to restrict employees from building up excessive leave time and that, if necessary, they could even direct employees to take leave at times compatible with the needs of their job.

He added that, in his orientation of employees on this subject, he will inform them that any changes or restrictions to be adopted later will apply across the board, both to certified and classified employees.

In another annual leave item, the board approved a change in the 1983-84 school calendar that will make Aug. 16, June 15 and June 16 extra employment days. Approval of this change includes a stipulation that no leave of less than half-day increments be granted.

As in the approved policy on absences and leaves, details on implementation of the extra employment days will need to be recommended after the State Board of Education takes further action on clarifying details.

A report presented to the board showed that the Magnet School program as of Monday had 200 applicants. Twenty-six applicants are from out-of-area — county and private schools. The Magnet program will be conducted at four city schools — Sadie Saulter, Third Street, Elmhurst and Eastern. Sadie Saulter has attracted the largest number of applicants, 86. At other schools, the numbers are: Third Street, 43; Elmhurst, 41, and Eastern, 20.

The board congratulated Director of Building and Grounds Bob Stewart on the results of the Aug. 11 inspection of city school facilities by Greenville Building Inspector Bernard L. Colardo. The report shows that, in all areas, the school buildings have far less discrepancies than in previous years.

Colardo, in a footnote to his report, states: "In the eight years that I have been inspecting the Greenville City Schools, the schools are in the best shape that they have ever been. Maintenance does not seem to be the problem that it once was and maybe the school system could start looking at ways to save energy, i.e., weatherstripping, fans, etc."

Several board members indicated they will attend the North Carolina School Board Association District I meeting to be held in Williamston on Sept. 8. The meeting will include several afternoon clinics to be followed by a general evening session and dinner.

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO

Associated Press Writer
Unusual weather patterns that hurled storms, floods and record-breaking heat at the nation are now being blamed for more suffering: rattlesnake bites, surfing accidents, death-dealing mosquitoes, hay fever and even the plague.

Dry weather coaxed rattlers out of the Rockies and damp heat made a perfect breeding ground for encephalitis-carrying mosquitoes in the East.

Storms and high tides changed the shape of beaches in California, sending surfers crashing into newly formed sandbars, resulting in broken backs. And wet, cool weather in New Mexico fostered plague-carrying rodents.

El Nino, a recurring phenomenon involving Pacific sea temperatures, currents and trade winds, has been blamed for the unusual weather.

Long known to South American fishermen, El

Nino refers to the Christ child, because it usually occurs around Christmas time. This year, the child stayed until July, spreading unseasonal rains, killing heat and storms across the land.

Meteorologists declared the 1983 edition of El Nino dead last month, but the aftermath continues.

In the East, hay fever sufferers will face higher pollen counts and a longer season of wheezing, sneezing and sniffing.

"People are really going to get it around Labor Day," said Walter Jinotti, a medical technologist at Middlesex General Hospital in New Brunswick, N.J., and president of the National Association of Allergies. "In an average year, you'll get three weeks of irritating pollen levels and it'll peak at 150. This year, the irritation should go on longer and the count will peak at 200."

The bad news is blamed on a moist spring which encouraged a large crop of pollen-producing ragweed, Jinotti said.

Spinal injuries, including broken necks, are more common this year along the California coast, as surfers deal with the weather-altered coastline.

"We've started to see kids running out into the water and doing a shallow surface dive and hitting the bottom," said Dr. John Skinner, 52, an internist at Newport Beach, Calif. "I really love to surf, and I have seen a lot of (spinal) cases in the hospital, so we've been trying to make the public aware of the hazard."

In New Mexico, bubonic plague — known as the Black Death in the Middle Ages — claimed this year's third victim Monday, one of a record 24 cases reported, said Dr. Jonathan Mann, state epidemiologist. The previous record of 16 was set in 1975, Mann said.

Officials speculated the unusually wet, cool spring produced ideal conditions for rodents that carry plague-bearing fleas.

The 1983 plague death rate, including the 13-year-old boy who perished Monday, is lower than in recent years — about 12.5 percent compared with the average 16 percent of all cases — because of prompt diagnosis, Mann said.

Another kind of pestilence, Eastern equine encephalitis, killed a man in a Boston hospital Thursday and authorities were spraying swamps to wipe out mosquitoes which carry the disease.

The rare brain infection also has killed one horse in Massachusetts, two in New Jersey and four in New York state this year, health officials said.

The risk of humans being infected is only about one in 10 million, but two consecutive wet springs preceded by mild winters have permitted the virus to spread, health officials said. Recent dry spells may be helping to control the problem.

"Dryness has dramatically reduced the number of mosquitoes, compared to what we were catching in June," said Herbert Maxfield, supervisor of the encephalitis field station in Lakeville. "I think the danger has been reduced."

Dry, hot weather has been no help in Montana, where rattlesnake bites are becoming more common as the reptiles come down from the mountains and into more populated areas, following mice who search the lower areas for food and water. The snakes are likely to be around for the next few weeks, until cooler autumn weather arrives, said Vince Yannoni of the Fish, Wildlife and Parks Department. Three people in the Helena area have been bitten recently, officials said.

Prices Climb On Leaf Belts

By The Associated Press

Tobacco prices rose Monday on North Carolina's three tobacco belts, the Federal-State Market News Service reported.

On the Eastern Belt, more than half of the grade averages were up from last Thursday. Increases ranged from $1 to $3 per hundred pounds, and quality improved.

Sales in the belt last week grossed 23,963,468 pounds and averaged $161.44 per hundred — a gain of $12.07 from opening week. Season marketings rose to 37,444,588 pounds returning $157.10. Growers placed 41.2 percent of sales under loan last week and 42.3 percent for the season.

As Old Belt markets opened on the Old and Middle Belts, grade averages showed gains of mainly $1 to $4 above last Thursday's levels when only Middle Belt markets were operating.

Sales in the Middle Belt last week totaled 4,380,000 pounds and averaged $146.40 per hundred — up $5.93 from opening week. Season sales stand at 5,593,000 pounds returning $145.11. Opening day sales in the Old Belt last season of 4,895,000 pounds averaged $143.57 per hundred.

Growers placed 25.9 percent of gross sales under loan last week. For the season, 27.2 percent has been delivered to Stabilization.

Most grade averages were steady to slightly higher Monday on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belts. Averages varied $1 to $3 with a few more gains than losses.

Gross sales in the belt last week totaled 18,069,460 pounds averaging $157.09 per hundred — up $13.01 from the previous week. Season sales reached 31,138,203 pounds returning $151.63.

Stabilization received 27.2 percent of sales last week and 26.4 percent for the season.

George Harper, a member of the Department of Transportation, introduced George Richard Shirley, new division engineer.

The commissioners voted to write a letter of appreciation to William "Bill" McDonald, who recently resigned as a member of the Pitt County Mental Health Board.

The board decided to relocate the Pitt County Development Commission from 1717 W. Fifth St. to 119 S. Cotanche St. in response to a request by John D. Chaffee, Pitt County Development Commission executive director.

William S. Price Jr., head of the Eastern Branch, N.C. Division of Archives and History, said in a letter to the commissioners that the division will occupy the Humber House at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets no later than Oct. 1.

The commissioners decided to hold a meeting with Janet Uhlman and Jane Hefner of the Pitt County Humane Society regarding the condition of the county animal shelter.

The board appointed David S. Brody of Kinston to fill the unexpired term of Louis Singleton on the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees. Brody was recommended by the UNC Board of Governors.

The following persons were reappointed to the Bethel Planning and Zoning Board: James Earl Copeland, Linwood Gurganus and Jimmy Nelson.

Young Mother Has Become Teen-Ager

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)

— A 13-year-old girl whose rape-induced pregnancy spurred a national abortion debate shouldn't have to give up rights to her child, even though she relates to the baby as a sister and is a "self-conscious" teen-ager, her lawyer says.

"She's growing up," said Nelson Pelletier. "At some point she's going to be able to raise a child. When she reaches that point ... it will be reasonable for the court to say, 'Young lady, we're expecting you to make some definite moves to take care of that baby.'"

The young mother relinquished custody of the child temporarily shortly after its birth in February 1982, after being charged with failing to provide for the emotional needs of her daughter.

Pelletier said he wants Kalamazoo County Prosecutor James Gregart to forgo trying to terminate the 13-year-old's rights to her baby. But Gregart, who is satisfied with the current arrangement, said he will make no such agreement because the circumstances might change.

Except for visits with her daughter, she is like many teen-agers.

"She's getting to a stage where she's typically starting to be self-conscious: how she looks, how she's doing in school," Pelletier said recently.

"I think she's more outgoing," said Pelletier, who tried unsuccessfully to get a court-ordered abortion for the girl during the summer of 1981, attracting nationwide media attention.

Missionary To Speak Wednesday

The Rev. Rodney Kidd of Lynchburg, Va., will speak at the Harvest Baptist Church Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. He has been pastor of the Heritage Baptist Church in Lynchburg for the past six years. He is now on full-time deputation with Baptist International Missions Inc. as a missionary candidate to West Germany. The church meetings are being held at Carolina Country Day School.

La Leche Schedules Two Meetings

Two meetings of the La Leche League of Greenville will be held Thursday — at 10 a.m. and at 7:30 p.m. The topic for each will be "Baby Arrives: the Family and the Breastfed Baby." Anyone interested in breastfeeding may attend. Babies are welcome. To learn the place each meeting is to be held, call Judy Beckert, 756-4197.

Business Meeting Set Thursday

Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church Senior Choir will hold a business meeting Thursday at 6 p.m. A rehearsal will follow the meeting.

Telethon Raises $104,000

The sixth annual Cystic Fibrosis Telethon held this past weekend in New Bern raised more than $104,000. The WCTI-TV event was co-sponsored by the New Bern Jaycees and Jayce-ettes. It lasted 19½ hours and, at last tally, had raised $13,730 more than last year's telethon for the same cause. Other Jaycee and Jaycette chapters throughout the area participated by conducting special fund-raising events and working at satellite telephone stations, including one for the Greenville area. Funds raised will help support the foundation's programs of research, treatment and education in North Carolina and nationwide.

Pitt Ranks 18th In Building

Pitt County ranked 18th in the state in building activity for May, the state Department of Labor has reported. Pitt issued 174 permits for $8.51 million in construction during the month. The Pitt figures included 104 single-family units ($3.63 million), 5 multifamily units ($128,038), 14 non-residential ($4.37 million), and 51 alterations and additions ($379,940). Statewide building activity for single-family homes in North Carolina was up 179.5 percent in May, while construction of single-family units for the first five months of 1983 was up 35 percent over 1982.

Teen-Ager Charged In Theft

Greenville police arrested Paul Darnell Cephus, 16, of 1202 Chestnut St., Monday on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a July 17 break-in at Wainwright's Amoco service station at 1201 W. 14th St. Chief Glenn Cannon said $46 worth of merchandise, including soft drinks, aspirin and razor blades, was taken from the building.

City Radio Guests Announced

The guests on the City's radio program, City Hall Notes, this week, will be Floyd Little, collector of revenue, and Skip Browder of the city's planning department. City Manager Gail Meeks said Little will discuss 1983 taxes, while Browder will discuss the subdivision review process. The program is aired on WOOW Radio each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Bloodmobile Collects 146 Pints

The Bloodmobile collected 146 pints in a visit to Burroughs-Wellcome Monday, according to Ruth Taylor of the Pitt County Red Cross. Mrs. Taylor said there were 10 first-time donors at the drive and 10 people were deferred. Monday's visit was the second one to the plant.

Administrator Named For Center

Kyle Dilday, a graduate of East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in public health, has been named administrator of University Nursing Center in Greenville. He previously has served as assistant administrator of a 182-bed facility in Kinston. He and his wife, Teresa, a registered nurse, have a 10-month-old daughter, Laura. University Center is a 120-bed facility managed by Hillhaven Inc. of Tacoma, Wash.

PCC Offers Training Program

The Human Resources Development program at Pitt Community College is conducting a six-week training session aimed at identifying, locating, acquiring and retaining permanent employment. Special effort is being made, according to program coordinators, to attract recipients of welfare and food stamps and other chronically unemployed persons. Applicants must be 18 years of age and capable of accepting a job should one become available during or following training. Charles Dickens, coordinator for the program, said over 70 percent of the program's graduates become gainfully employed after completing the program. For further information call 756-3130 and ask for HRD.

Church Plans Building Fund Rallies

Holy Mission Holy Church will hold soul-saving services and building fund rallies through Friday beginning at 8 p.m. Today Eldress Shirley Daniels will be the guest speaker and on Wednesday Daretha Bernard and the Ayden Deliverance Center congregation will be in charge. Eldress Mille Williams and the congregation of First Timothy Free Will Baptist Church will lead the service Thursday. On Friday the Rev. Daisy Pierce and the True Light Holy Church congregation will be the guests.

Hit-Run Charges Filed

Greenville police arrested Erma Lee Ellison of 205 Davis St. on two counts of hit-and-run driving and one count of driving under the influence following investigation of two traffic collisions Monday. Officers said the Ellison car collided with a parked car owned by Virginia Wilson Ebron of 907 W. Fourth St. about 6:58 p.m. That collision occurred on Davis Street, 20 feet south of the Fourth Street intersection, and caused an estimated $250 damage to the Ebron car and $50 damage to the Ellison vehicle. About 7:15 p.m. the Ellison car collided with a car parked in the A&P parking lot at Greenville Square Shopping Center, police said. Police, who identified the owner of the second car as Michael Charles Woloszyn of 3105 Sherwood Drive, estimated damage at $500 to the Woloszyn car and $200 to the Ellison vehicle.

Planning Board Meets Wednesday

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St. Included on the agenda are the final plats for Country Place, Section II on N.C. 33 in Grimesland Township, Treetops Patio Homes at Cannon's Crossroads in Winterville Township, Greenwood Forest Subdivision Section 3 on SR 1200 in Arthur Township and Smithtown Acres on SR 1212 in Arthur Township. Other items for consideration include the preliminary plat of Sandy Ridge on SR 1565 in Pactolus Township and a discussion of a resolution requesting the snagging of the Tar River by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Russians Declare 'No Progress' Over Case Of A Diplomat's Son

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The acting Soviet ambassador, Oleg Sokolov, says there has been "no progress whatsoever" toward resolving the case of a Soviet diplomat's son who allegedly wants asylum in the United States.

Sokolov met Monday with Richard Burt, an assistant secretary of state for European affairs, and told reporters afterward the Soviets would not yield in their refusal to allow U.S. officials to meet with Andrei Berezhkov, the 16-year-old son of an embassy first secretary.

"We insist and continue to insist on an unhindered departure of Andrei Berezhkov and his family to the Soviet Union from the United States without any prior interviewing by anybody from the U.S. authorities," Sokolov said. "This is our position of principle."

Sokolov said there has been "no progress whatsoever" toward resolving the matter.

The State Department had no comment on the meeting between Burt and Sokolov, who is in charge of the Soviet Embassy in the absence of Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who is in the Soviet Union. Sokolov and Burt also conferred on Saturday.

But a department spokesman, Alan Romberg, indicated the Reagan administration will be just as unyielding in wanting to interview Berezhkov, who allegedly wrote a letter to President Reagan last week saying he wants to remain in the United States. He is the son of Valentin Berezhkov, a top-ranking Soviet diplomat.

"It remains our desire to ascertain the young man's intentions and our position on it hasn't changed," said Romberg.

Romberg said one purpose of a meeting would be to determine the authenticity of the letter Berezhkov purportedly sent to Reagan. The Soviets have dubbed the letter a forgery. "One reason we want to talk with him is to see if the letter represents his own view," Romberg said. While he insisted that meeting would be held, Romberg said, "I can't tell you when it will occur."

A State Department official, who insisted on anonymity, said the youth is believed to be in the Soviet compound and that no attempt has been made to move him.

"He is with his family — with his father and his mother," said Vladimir Mikoyan, a Soviet press officer. He insisted in a telephone interview that Berezhkov would return to the Soviet Union without first talking to U.S. officials. "The situation is perfectly clear," he said. "There is no legitimate right to keep the boy in this country."

The Soviets insist that U.S. officials are acting illegally in insisting on talking with young Berezhkov, but Romberg said State Department lawyers "have advised us that the actions we are talking about are consistent with the law."

But he refused to cite specific legal justification and State Department lawyers refused to discuss the legal issues with reporters.

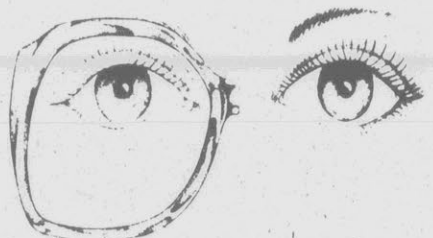

FBI agents have been watching the Soviet compound in Northwest Washington and the suburban Bethesda, Md., apartment complex where the Berezhkov family lives. Apparently the Soviets decided to keep the youth at the compound, where most Soviet Embassy personnel live, because the security is better there.

Amnesiac Said An Australian

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An amnesia victim who mistakenly thought he was from London was "visibly moved" when a family friend he didn't recognize identified him as a 24-year-old antique dealer from Australia.

Unidentified for two weeks since receiving head injuries in a traffic accident, Mantis Gasianus now can be sent photographs of family members in a bid to revive his memory, said Marianne Koop, a spokeswoman for Emanuel Hospital where he is being treated.

His mother, with whom he runs an antique shop in Melbourne, planned to send the photos as well as samples of her son's fingerprints to confirm his identity, Ms. Koop said Monday.

Gasianus, who thought he was from London and answered to the name David Miller, was "in some shock and was visibly moved" when the family friend identified him in his hospital room, Ms. Koop said.

Before Gasianus was identified, an international search was begun and the hospital received more than 20 phone calls that provided leads but no name.

The first solid clue to Gasianus' identity came Friday when an uncle living in New York City saw the young man's picture in a newspaper and called the hospital, she said.

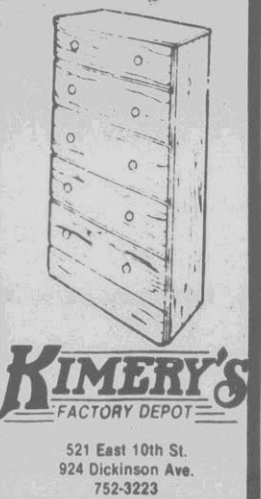

Officials were contacted in quick succession Saturday by Gasianus' brother, Aras Gasianus of Manchester, England, the family friend from Montreal — who asked that he not be named — and a cousin from Cleveland, Ms. Koop said.

Details they provided about food preferences and habits provided led hospital officials to believe that the amnesia victim was Gasianus, and the family friend confirmed their suspicion.

16-Year-Old Bought Beer

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 16-year-old boy bought beer from 145 stores in an undercover operation designed to catch those selling liquor to minors, law enforcement officials said Monday.

The boy bought beer at convenience stores, supermarkets, drug stores and service stations in a probe by the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department, Fayetteville Police Department and the county Alcohol Beverage Control enforcement agency.

The investigation also found that about 10 per cent of the beer outlets did not have required city, county, state or federal revenue licenses or had failed to renew licenses.

Warrants being filed disclose the youth used in the investigation was a high school student and a Law Enforcement Explorer Scout, G.A. Goodman.

The warrants list Neil A. Monroe, chief of ABC enforcement, and Maj. Richard Washburn of the sheriff's department as complaining officers.

Announcement of the arrests was made jointly Monday by Monroe, Sheriff Otis Jones and Police Chief Danny Dixon. They said the investigation began about July 20 and ended last Friday.

The youth, with a team of officers stationed nearby, tried to buy beer from 220 outlets and was turned down at 75.

Peanut Vote Is Underway

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina peanut farmers are voting on whether to double the $1 per ton assessment they pay to the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association.

"We're proposing in the ballot to go to $2 per ton to give us ample funds to increase North Carolina farmers' share of the market," Norfleet Sugg, executive secretary of the association, said of today's referendum.

The fee helps fund a self-help program to promote North Carolina peanuts. The program focuses on youth groups, consumer groups, trade shows, advertisements and promotions aimed at small manufacturers, cities and foreign countries, he said.

Another reason an increase in the fee is necessary is that farmers voluntarily cut peanut acreage by 17 percent last year "to get supply and demand in line," Sugg said. That means the association gets less because the fee is based on the amount of peanuts harvested.

In addition, the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts that the peanut yield per acre this year will be only 2,600 pounds, compared with 2,801 pounds last year and 3,200 pounds in 1981.

Convicted Of Illegal Sales

CHICAGO (AP) — A lawyer for a company convicted of selling about $16 million in aircraft parts to the Libyans says he is uncertain whether to appeal, seek a new trial or ask that the verdict be set aside.

"We're very disappointed ... and we're considering what course of action is left to us," lawyer Myles Ambrose said Monday after Tencor Corp. of suburban Northbrook and vice president Donald Malsom, 32, were convicted by a federal jury of conspiracy, failing to obtain export licenses and falsifying export documents.

The Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia bombed the Turkish Airlines counter at Orly airport in Paris July 15, killing seven people and wounding 56.

The group has carried out several terrorist acts against Turkish targets to avenge what it claims was the massacre of 1.5 million Armenians by the Turks between 1915 and 1916. Turkey repeatedly has denied the charge.

Abadie said Monday night that the threat against the pontiff came in a telephone call to his office and another call to the office of the regional government a week ago.

He said the threats were kept secret but taken seriously by the national government in Paris. He said it was one of the reasons the government decided to deploy 3,800 security men for the visit that ended Monday night.

Abadie said President Francois Mitterrand, who welcomed the pope to France on Sunday afternoon, ordered Interior Minister Gaston Defferre and Secretary of State Joseph Franceschi to the area Saturday night to supervise operations.

Security was heavy at the airport in Tarbes when the pope arrived and throughout his visit in Lourdes with helicopters hovering. People entering the sanctuary were searched with metal detectors.

Church authorities said earlier they were unhappy with the extensive security arrangements because they believed it would reduce the number of people coming to see the pope.

An estimated 150,000 people attended an open air mass Monday in Lourdes, about half the number church authorities anticipated.

Cut Wrists

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said a 27-year-old Pikesville man, scheduled for arraignment today on common law robbery charges, cut both wrists in an attempt to commit suicide in the county jail about 2 a.m. today.

Tyson said William Allie Sullivan was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment and was then returned to jail.

The sheriff said Sullivan, who used half of a double-edge razor blade to cut his wrists, tied the jail doors closed with a bed sheet in an effort to prevent jailers from gaining entrance to his cell.

Tyson said the arraignment would continue today as scheduled.

Horner Out Of Action

By The Associated Press
Losing hurt. But losing Bob Horner hurt more.

The Atlanta Braves, who have lost three of their past four games, lost their slugging third baseman, Bob Horner, in the fourth inning of Monday night's 4-0 whitewashing by San Diego when he tried to break up a double play. He broke his right wrist in the process.

At game's end, most of his teammates had no idea they'd lost one of the main cogs in the Atlanta offense (a .303 batting average with 20 home runs and 68 runs batted in). When Horner was taken to a hospital, everyone thought he'd only sprained the wrist. It wasn't until later that the fracture was discovered.

"It's a tough break, but that's the way the ball bounces," said John Mullen, the Braves' general manager, following a couple of midnight telephone conversations with Manager Joe Torre. "The last time he said, 'Good night. Let's sleep on it an decide what to do the first thing in the morning.' There are no instant solutions."

The Braves will have to decide whether to put veteran Jerry Royster at third base or bring up Brook Jacoby from Richmond of the International League. "I can't speak for Joe," said Mullen, "but I kind of feel he's going to go the Royster route. Still, we have to recall someone to replace Horner on the roster and it might be Jacoby."

Despite the loss, the Braves managed to maintain their 5½-game lead over Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers were beaten 7-3 by San Francisco.

Elsewhere it was Philadelphia 5, Chicago 0; Pittsburgh 4, New York 2; Houston 9, Cincinnati 1, and Montreal 5, St. Louis 1.

Horner had one of Atlanta's five hits off Dave Dravecky. None of them hurt the San Diego left-hander, who wound up with his first major-league shutout in his second big-league season.

"It felt so good," he said after recording his 14th victory of the year, "especially since it came against the best team in baseball. The Braves have an awesome lineup. They all can hit the long ball."

It was only his second victory since the July 6 All-Star

Game. "Beautiful!" exclaimed Padres Manager Dick Williams. "He'd been struggling. This is the best he's looked in a long time."

Tony Gwynn drove in two runs with a pair of infield hits for the Padres.

Giants 7, Dodgers 3
In Los Angeles, Jeff Leonard drove in four runs with a homer and a triple and Darrell Evans had a homer and three singles and added two runs batted in as San Francisco ripped the Dodgers and kept them from gaining ground on the Braves.

"We're playing the spoiler role and this rivalry, the Giants and the Dodgers, is heating up again," said Evans.

Fred Breining pitched a six-hitter and ended a personal five-game losing streak despite giving up pinch-hitter Candy Maldonado's first major-league homer, a two-run shot, and Pedro Guerrero's 24th homer.

Phillies 5, Cubs 0
For seven innings in Chicago, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia and Steve Trout of the Cubs matched zeroes. Then the Phillies erupted for all five of their runs, the first on Greg Gross' broken-bat single and the rest on Mike Schmidt's seventh career grand slam.

Carlton finished with a seven-hitter and his 11 strikeouts gave him 3,637 for his career to 3,619 for Nolan Ryan in their duel for the all-time record.

Schmidt's 27th homer of the year came on a 1-1 pitch off reliever Lee Smith. "I didn't want to go to two strikes against him," said Schmidt. "The last time I faced Smith I saw three pitches and never got to swing at one of them."

Pirates 4, Mets 2
Rookie Jose DeLeon, who pitched 8 1-3 innings of no-hit ball against the Mets July 31 in New York (they won that game 1-0 in 12 innings) hurled 8 1-3 innings of four-hit ball against them this time in Pittsburgh.

And this time, with relief help from Rod Scurry and Kent Tekulve, he won, thanks to homers by Bill Madlock and Doug Frobel in a three-run sixth inning against Mike Torrez. Darryl Strawberry homered for New York. The Pirates remained ½ games behind the Phils in the East.

Frobel spent most of the season as a teammate of DeLeon's in Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League. DeLeon came up in July. Frobel a week ago. "He and I were both having good years and were hoping to be called up," Frobel said. "He just got the call a little quicker than I did."

Astros 9, Reds 1
In Cincinnati, Jose Cruz drove in five runs with his eighth and ninth homers of the year and Houston's Bob Knepper pitched his fifth complete game of the year. He scattered 11 hits, struck out nine batters, didn't walk any and lost a shot at his fifth shutout in the ninth inning.

In his five previous starts, Knepper was 0-2 with a 5.93 earned-run average. For the year he's 5-11 and 3.56. "Bob has pitched pretty decent ball all year in spite of his numbers," said Astros Manager

Bob Lillis. "We really haven't played very well in back of him."

Expos 5, Cards 1
Tim Raines broke an eighth-inning tie with a sacrifice fly off the Cards' relief ace, Bruce Sutter, then Cary Carter homered to cap a three-run burst in the top of the ninth that ended Montreal's three-game tailspin and saddled St. Louis with its 12th loss in 14 games.

Dickerson Steals Show As Dallas Dominates

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys dominated Los Angeles 30-7, yet a rookie from Dallas who plays for the Rams drew the most attention.

For as Gary Hogeboom and Danny White of the Cowboys controlled the airways Monday night in the National Football League preseason game, the leading rusher was Eric Dickerson, the 1982 All-American from Southern Methodist.

Hogeboom, in his fourth season with Dallas and starting his first game as a pro, sent the Cowboys off to a 10-0 first quarter lead.

He completed nine of 13 passes for 106 yards and had a 17-yard scoring pass to Doug Cosbie.

White, the regular starter, came on to hit nine of 14 for 98 yards and Glenn Carano hit four of nine for 40.

The Rams offense sputtered and might have died if it weren't for the 218-pound Dickerson, who gained 67 yards on 14 carries to lead all rushers. He did, however, fumble at the Dallas 6 when the Rams' offense had its best scoring chance.

At the end, the only Los Angeles touchdown was contributed by LeRoy Irvin, who intercepted a White pass and ran it back 80 yards.

Former Ram, Rafael Sep-

ten, kicked field goals of 25, 36 and 50.

After the game, even talk in the Dallas dressing room was of Dickerson.

"He is going to be one of the best," said winning coach Tom Landry. "He could make the difference for Los Angeles. He could change things for them."

Star running back Tony Dorsett of the Cowboys, said, "Dickerson is going to be a good one, and he should not get discouraged because he is not starting. Take it from someone who was in the same spot seven years ago."

Although the second man picked overall in the NFL draft had played briefly against San Diego in the opening preseason game, he suffered a bruised back on his second rush.

Veteran Jewell Thomas is listed as the starter at halfback with the fast and powerful rookie from Southern Methodist his backup.

After the Dallas tussle, Dickerson commented, "I feel this was my first pro game under my belt. I have the potential to break a long run and that's what the fans like to see."

His longest gain against Dallas was 17 yards.

Los Angeles quarterback Vince Ferragamo experienced a night to forget. He played the first half, threw 16 passes, completed only three for 29 yards and had three intercepted. Two of the latter set up Dallas scores.

Both clubs play again Saturday. Dallas, 2-0, is at home against Pittsburgh and New England visits Anaheim.

Rams starting tackle Irv Pankey suffered a torn Achilles tendon and is out for the year.

Perkins' Confidence Proven By U.S. Rally

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Sam Perkins wasn't worried at halftime, even if the heavily-favored United States men's basketball team did trail Mexico by 11 points in their Pan American Games debut.

"We weren't really concerned. We knew we had a lot of time. But we had to ease back into it. We couldn't score 10 points all at once. I think the defense did it for us," said the 6-foot-9 North Carolina forward, who scored 10 of his 16 points in the second half.

He proved to be a prophet. The Americans, relying on a zone defense in the final 20 minutes, outscored the Mexicans 38-16 for a 74-63 verdict. In fact, all three of the men's basketball winners Monday night — Cuba and Puerto Rico won the others in overtime — came from behind before a spirited, whistling Poliedro crowd nearing capacity of 13,000.

Cuba, down by six points with 12 minutes left, stormed back for a 103-88 verdict over the Dominican Republic. Puerto Rico, thanks to Mario Morales' basket at the buzzer, stunned World University Games champion Canada 90-89.

Elsewhere, the United States collected three gold medals on the first of 15 days of competition in these Western Hemisphere championships, still surrounded with controversy.

Eric Buljung, 39, a U.S. Army member from Fort Benning, Ga., captured the men's free pistol, the first medal of the games. Pat Spurgin, 18, from Billings, Mont., just up from the junior level, won the women's air rifle, a first-time event in the Pan Am competition. And the United States also reaped the team gold in the same event.

The fourth U.S. gold medal belonged to Margaret Castro. The New Yorker won the women's over-72 kilogram class in judo.

Even with those gold medals, the Americans were still chasing Cuba in the medals race. The Cubans, led by triple gold-medal victors Juan Hernandez and Aristotle Soler in weightlifting, collected eight titles among their 12 overall medals. The United States was second with 10 medals. Host Venezuela was running third with two' golds and seven medals.

Controversy crowded the competition again. A dozen Venezuelan swimmers were found residing in a downtown hotel, with a pool, instead of the oft-criticized athletes village. The village has no pool.

An American request to condense the women's basketball schedule from two weeks to nine days was denied for the second time in two days and Bill Wall, a U.S. basketball official, was still threatening to move the American basketball players out of the village, against the U.S. Olympic Committee's wishes.

Wall would neither confirm nor deny a report the USOC ordered the U.S. basketball coaches not to discuss the village conditions. Jack Hartman, the men's coach, said the athletes' living quarters were "deplorable."

The American men's basketball team was not the favorite of the Venezuelan crowd, drawing jeers when they trotted onto the floor. And the crowd loved it when the Mexicans swept into a 20-4 lead in the first six minutes, taking advantage of seven personal fouls and six turnovers by the United States.

At every timeout in the first half, the crowd stomped its feet, clapped its hands and chanted: "Mexico. Mexico. Mexico."

Hartman knew the reason the Americans trailed 47-36 at halftime, saying, "We were flat. We had too many reaching fouls. The ball just didn't feel good to our players."

Indeed, it looked dire at halftime for the Americans, who have won the men's basketball gold medal every year except 1971 since the inception of these games in 1951. They had committed 14 fouls to only six for Mexico. Michael Jordan had just two baskets. They had thrown the ball away eight times in the first 20 minutes.

Hartman admitted the zone defense turned the game around, forcing the Mexicans to shoot from long range and into nine second-half turnovers.

"We were just trying to show them a defense they couldn't handle. We finally did it," he said of the zone. "The defense gave us some big transition baskets in the second half."

Wayman Tisdale, Oklahoma's 6-9 freshman sensation last winter, contributed 14 points and Jordan came back to score seven points in the second half for 11. Forward Julio Gallardo's 22 points paced Mexico.

The U.S. boxers got a break at Monday's draw, avoiding Cuba's co-favorites in all but one of the 12 weight classes. Steve McCroy of Detroit, world champion at 112 pounds, will be the only American taking part in tonight's opening bouts.

Davidson Selected As Minn. Assistant

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — University of Minnesota women's volleyball coach Stephanie Schleuder recently announced the hiring of Lynn Davidson as an assistant coach for the 1983 season.

Davidson, 25, becomes the first full-time volleyball assistant at Minnesota and officially began her duties Monday, August 15.

The position at Minnesota will be Davidson's first away from her native North Carolina. She had been head volleyball coach at East Carolina University for the last two years and had held the assistant softball coaching job since 1980. Her volleyball team finished the 1982 season with the best record in the school's history (26-14) and advanced to the AIAW Regional Tournament in 1981.

"We feel fortunate to have someone of Lynn's caliber working with our program," Scheuder said. "Her record over the last two years speaks for itself. She was an outstanding collegiate player and has an excellent knowledge of the game. She's enthusiastic about her work, and we're happy she's here."

Davidson was a four-year starter on North Carolina State's volleyball team and was named captain as a senior in 1978. She responded by leading the Pack to the NCAAIAW Championship and being named to the Greensboro Daily News All Star team. Davidson also played in the United States Volleyball Association National Tournament in the summer of 1979 and initiated a USVBA program at ECU in her first year as head coach.

Davidson was selected from a field of 35 applicants.

Thompson Began Cocaine To Relax

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle SuperSonics guard David Thompson says he first turned to cocaine as a way to relax after games when he had trouble winding down and going to sleep.

But the casual use turned into a monstrous habit that took control of his basketball game and his life.

"Usually it was a way to unwind," the former North Carolina State player said. "That's how it started out. After the game, you'd still be up and you couldn't sleep. Then you use drugs and you still couldn't sleep."

Thompson, who is in a drug rehabilitation clinic near Denver, made his remarks in an interview published today in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

"After a while, you start to get run down. If I'd get my rest, I'd be fine. It wasn't an everyday thing. If I'd splurge and do a weekend or two or three nights in a row, then my body would be pretty run down and tired," he said.

Thompson says he knew his game was faltering. Some fans did, too, he acknowledges.

"It takes a lot out of you. Physically, you're not the same player. You might lose half a step, or you might not go to the basket as strong, or you might get bumped and be knocked off balance, whereas normally you'd make the easy hoop. Your timing might be off a little bit," he said.

"It's not that drastic a change in your game, but for the people who've been around for a while and have seen your game, they can tell."

Thompson said he spent part of his $2,000 monthly personal expense allowance on cocaine. The outlay, he said, varied but he never used up the $2,000.

"Compared to some other guys, I don't think I used nearly as much (cocaine). But if you have a problem, it's a problem and I want to stop completely. But I was very selective about who I dealt with. I never bought large amounts."

Thompson said he made excuses for himself to use drugs.

Moose Keeps Shutout String Going

By The Associated Press
Moose Haas was unpredictable. Britt Burns was merely unbelievable.
Moose Haas pitched eight shutout innings for his seventh consecutive victory and stretched his string of scoreless innings to a club record 26 as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Boston Red Sox 2-0 Monday night on Ben Oglivie's two-run single in the first inning.
"I really haven't changed all that much. I still throw an 88-mile-per-hour fastball. But I've incorporated other things, like changing speeds," said Haas, who hasn't lost since June 10 and is 11-2 after compiling a so-so 61-57 record in his first six seasons.
Meanwhile, Burns made his first start since July 31 after a stint in the bullpen and fired a three-hitter as the Chicago White Sox nipped the New York Yankees 1-0. In his last start, the Yankees routed him in the second inning.

"The main problem I had is I lost my dad a couple of years ago," Burns said. "My father was my main source of motivation. It's been tough to find another source."
The bullpen, where he allowed only one run in three relief stints, was just what he needed.
"My problem was getting fired up and it really helps when you're in a situation when you've got to get them out for two or three innings. It gets you pumped up," Burns said.
The torrid race in the American League East remained as tight as ever, with five teams bunched within 1 1/2 games. The Baltimore Orioles beat the Texas Rangers 6-4 and lead by one game over Milwaukee and the Detroit Tigers, who lost to the Kansas City Royals 6-4. The Yankees trail by 1 1/2 games and are one percentage point ahead of the Toronto Blue Jays, who edged the Cleveland Indians 3-2.

Elsewhere, the Oakland A's blanked the California Angels 5-0 and the Minnesota Twins downed the Seattle Mariners 7-4.
"Watching other pitchers around the league, I've seen them having success by changing speeds," said Haas, who was replaced by Peter Ladd after Wade Boggs opened the ninth with a double for Boston's fifth hit. "I don't know who I talked to about it, but it's something you have to find out for yourself. I mean knowing the right pitch to throw at what time. If you don't go out and try it, you'll never learn. I just decided we were going to try off-speed pitches in different situations."
White Sox 1, Yankees 0
At New York, Tom Paciorek hit a sacrifice fly in the first inning and Burns made the run stand up. He struck out seven, did not walk a batter and allowed only singles to Omar Moreno in the first and ninth innings and a double to Larry Milbourne in the eighth after retiring 17 batters in a row. Burns outdueled Dave Righetti, who saw his six-game winning streak snapped despite pitching a five-hitter and striking out 11.

Orioles 6, Rangers 4
At Arlington, John Lowenstein's three-run homer highlighted a five-run sixth inning as Baltimore posted its third consecutive victory. Lowenstein belted his ninth homer — his first since June 8 and his fourth against Texas — off Mike Smithson after singles by Cal Ripken Jr. and Eddie Murray for a 3-0 lead. Ken Singleton walked and was forced by Rich Dauer, who went to second when Smithson hit Lenn Sakata with a pitch. Rick Dempsey's RBI single chased Smithson and Dan Ford's sacrifice fly drove in the fifth run. Pete O'Brien hit a three-run homer for Texas.
Royals 6, Tigers 4
At Kansas City, Frank

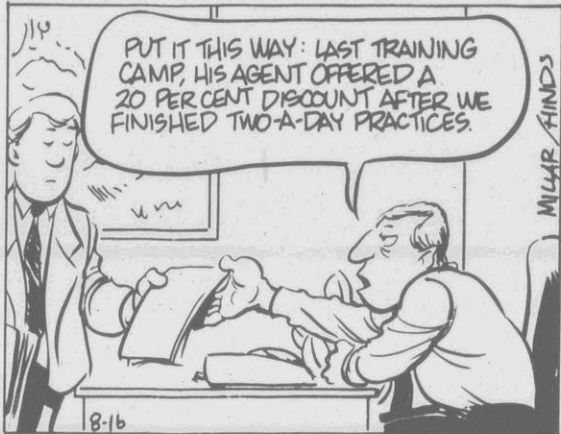

White drove in three runs with a second-inning single and a sixth-inning triple to help the Royals erase a four-run deficit. Detroit starter Larry Pashnick was clinging to a one-run lead when he opened the sixth inning by walking Willie Aikens and Amos Otis. White greeted Doug Bair with a triple to give the Royals a 5-4 lead and Willie Wilson singled White home. Winning pitcher Larry Gura gave up all four Detroit runs in the second inning, including Larry Herndon's 17th homer. Aikens homered for Kansas City in the fourth.

Blue Jays 3, Indians 2
At Cleveland, Indians reliever Jamie Easterly walked Willie Upshaw with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to break a tie and give the Blue Jays their fourth consecutive victory. Dave Collins opened the ninth with a single off Dan Spillner. Easterly walked pinch hitter Damaso Garcia and Lloyd Moseby's bunt single loaded the bases with none out. Easterly then walked Upshaw on four pitches. Moseby, who had three hits and raised his average to .321, drove in Toronto's other two runs with a fifth-inning double and extended his hitting streak to 20 games, one short of the club record.

A's 5, Angels 0
At Oakland, rookie Gorman Heimuller pitched a four-hitter for his first major league shutout and complete game. The 27-year-old left-hander, who spent 6 1/2 seasons in the minors before joining the A's on July 12, struck out seven, did not walk a batter and retired 19 batters in a row between the second and eighth innings. The A's scored three runs in the second off Geoff Zahn. Carney Lansford had the first of five consecutive singles and Bob Kearney drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single. Mike Heath homered in the fourth.

Twins 7, Mariners 4
At Seattle, Frank Viola survived a shaky start — he allowed two-run homers to Ron Roenicke in the second inning and Richie Zisk in the third — and combined with Ron Davis on a six-hitter. Scott Ulger's two-out single snapped a 4-4 tie in the fourth inning and Tom Brunansky homered in the seventh.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU SMELL GAS.

Call Greenville Utilities immediately. Anytime day or night. We'll get a serviceman to your home or location to correct the problem.
While you're waiting for him to get there, open a window, make sure you use no electrical switches. Extinguish any open flames and evacuate the area.
*Note: If the leak is located in the customers piping or appliances, a service charge will be billed on the following monthly utility bill.

If you don't know what natural gas smells like, stop by our office and pick up a scratch and sniff leaflet.
Because even though natural gas contains no poisonous ingredients, a leak can become hazardous if combustible gas pockets are allowed to form, which makes it important for you to know what natural gas smells like.

Keeping them safe is one good reason we've put an odor on this folder...

Packers May Be Ready To Challenge

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr is making no predictions, but he is optimistic. Starr, the Green Bay Packers' Hall of Fame quarterback of the 1960s, has come close to being fired several times in nine years as their coach. But he seems safe this year, and the Packers have realistic Super Bowl ambitions.

They went 5-3-1 in last year's strike-abbreviated National Football League season, losing 37-26 to the Dallas Cowboys in a second-round playoff game. Their primary threat is John Jefferson and Paul Coffman — Pro-Bowl players James Lofton, John Jefferson and Paul Coffman and world-class sprinter Phillip Epps.

"The people are here to do can compete and, if we can, we should win our share."

Marshall opens its season Sept. 3 at Eastern Michigan and then meets Illinois State, Morehead State, Furman, Western Carolina, East Tennessee State, UT-Chattanooga, William & Mary, Appalachian State and VMI.

the job," Starr said. "Although we need to strengthen the team in several areas, and we need to improve our depth and backup strength. But we have the manpower to win."

The Packers' main challenge is expected to come from the Minnesota Vikings, who have made the playoffs in 12 of Bud Grant's 16 years as coach.

Jefferson, who caught 27 passes for 452 yards last season for Green Bay, is bolder than Starr with his predictions. "We're going into this season as the team to beat in our division," he said. "That's a switch, and it's a good one. Last year was a short year because of the strike, so I still think we have something to prove, and I think we'll prove it."

"Everywhere I went during the offseason, people were coming up to me and telling me how they were predicting big things for the Packers," Jefferson added. "We earned that respect. We're making big strides. You can just see it in the players' eyes. You can feel it by the way the players joke around and feel comfortable and confident."

But the Packers must establish an offensive line to make their passing game work. Quarterback Lynn Dickey had his finest season, completing 57 percent of his passes for 1,790 yards and 12 touchdowns. Dickey also is one of the least mobile quarterbacks in the NFL, and Green Bay's total of 32 quarterback sacks allowed was 24th worst in the 28-team league.

The Packers have two reliable offensive linemen in center Larry McCarren and tackle Greg Koch. Guard Tim Huffman played well late in the season, but five-year starter Leotis Harris had his third knee operation in three years. Guard-tackle Ron Hallstrom, the team's top draft choice in 1982, has been a major disappointment.

Green Bay has one of the NFL's best linebacking units in John Anderson, George Cumby, Randy Scott and Mike Douglass, and top draft choice Tim Lewis should help the secondary.

But the Packers had only 20 sacks, 22nd in the league, last season. That area is a major concern because defensive end Mike Butler has defected to the United States Football League.

The Vikings' short-passing attack is led by quarterback Tommy Kramer, who last year completed 57 percent of his throws for 2,037 yards and 15 touchdowns. Tommy Kramer is like Joe Theismann and Joe Montana in that one of these years he's going to be the best quarterback in the league, and we're going to win big," Grant said.

Kramer is sure to miss Ahmad Rashad, the Vikings' retired receiver, but he has excellent targets in wide receivers Sammy White and Sam McCullum, tight end Joe Senser and backs Ted Brown, Rickey Young, Tony Galbreath and Darrin Nelson.

If the Vikings don't challenge, the Detroit Lions might. However, Coach Monte Clark's team is the least predictable in the division.

The Lions started 2-0 last season, but were among the NFL's most militant union teams and were devastated by the eight-week players' strike. They finished 4-5, including two victories over the Packers, squeezed into postseason play as the NFL's first sub-500 playoff team ever, then were blown out by Washington in the opening round.

Coach Monte Clark has rid the team of union militants Bubba Baker, Stan White and Karl Baldischwiler, but he must replace six departed defensive starters.

"If we have to make shocking changes to keep this team together and this attitude going, we will," Clark said. "This has been the best camp I've seen here. I feel we have upgraded ourselves by making way for some of the young talent on this team."

The Lions' most impressive new talent is 235-pound rookie fullback James Jones, expected to complement and block for Billy Sims, one of the NFL's premier backs.

The Chicago Bears, 3-6 last year, again will lead with Walter Payton, the NFL's No. 4 career rusher with 10,204 yards. Jim McMahon, who passed for 1,501 yards and nine touchdowns last season, has solved a quarterback dilemma — the team hadn't been able to settle on a long-term starter — which had dated to Sid Luckman's retirement in 1950.

The Bears' offensive line was a problem last year, but has excellent potential in Keith Van Horne, first lineman chosen in the 1981 draft, and rookie Jimbo Covert.

Tampa Bay, 5-4 a year ago, has reached the playoffs in three of the last four seasons, and the Buccaneers could challenge again — but if they do, it'll be without Doug Williams, their starting quarterback the past five seasons. Williams defected to the USFL's new Oklahoma Outlaws, leaving the Bucs trying to decide between Jerry Golsteyn, their backup a year ago, and Jack Thompson, obtained in a trade with Cincinnati.

'Something Good' Airs 2 Hours Later Tonight

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Something good has been happening Tuesday nights on CBS this summer, only this time, it's two hours later.

"On the Road with Charles Kuralt" will be broadcast at 10 EDT, and "Our Times with Bill Moyers" at 10:30, mostly as an experiment to see how the back-to-back CBS News productions do with a network, rather than local, lead-in show.

Robert Altman's theatrical film, "Health," will precede Kuralt and Moyers, tonight only.

The two programs have done extremely well — probably better than anyone expected — at 8 and 8:30, and they'll go back to that schedule Aug. 23.

In fact, only one new summer show, "Buffalo Bill," the NBC sitcom, has enjoyed a bigger audience, on average, than "On the Road." And "Our Times" is fourth, behind "The Hamptons" on ABC.

"On the Road" attracted 23 percent of the 8-8:30 audience through seven installments, and Moyers' "Our Times" 20 percent, and that can't be hard for the network to swallow. During the 1982-83 season that ended in April, CBS shows in the 8-9 slot had about 22 percent of the viewers.

Neither Kuralt nor Moyers are on CBS' fall schedule — both shows leave the air after Aug. 23 — but there has been talk recently of working one or both of the correspondents into the lineup after the first of the year. The format might be changed, and other CBS News people could be involved.

A lot depends on what happens tonight. "On the Road" and "In Our Times" are contrasting shows in nearly every way imaginable — subject, style, pace, presentation. Yet each complements the other in a remarkable manner. Kuralt, tonight, talks about cowboys and clotheslines, unusual mailboxes and Maude Callen, who still cares for people in Pineville, S.C., 32 years after she was the subject of a photo-essay in Life magazine. Moyers' subject is trouble in the Philippines.

Kuralt's sensitive, thoughtful approach enables him to say things that might sound corny coming from others. "The clothes give color and spirit to the American landscape," he says in the first segment tonight. "I ask you, is there not art in these towels of Ohio ...?"

Moyers is thoughtful and sensitive in another, perhaps more persistent, way, and cares altogether as much as Kuralt. As when he pursues Philippine President Marcos — carefully, respectfully, skeptically nonetheless — on a government order to close the small, opposition newspaper called We Forum.

Moyers — "There was no order to close We Forum. They closed it on their own."

Moyers — "But they were arrested."

Moyers — "No, they were not. They were released. After that, they asked to be released, I released them. But they committed several crimes."

Moyers — "What crimes?"
Marcos — "The crime of subversion and rebellion."

Moyers — "How do you define subversion, sir?"
Moyers' ability to consider a complicated subject like the Philippines — history, economy, internal politics, relations with the United States — in roughly 22 minutes of TV time, and with feeling, is truly remarkable.

No less impressive is Kuralt's talent for drawing the viewer to an otherwise mundane topic like the mailbox. And here he is, tonight, in Cherokee, Ala., where Grover Hayes has rigged himself something special:

"The mailman merely delivers the mail," Kuralt says of the man's tower-and-pulley contraption. "Mr. Hayes figured out how to deliver the mailbox."

A BYPASS — Actor Burt Lancaster, who underwent abdominal surgery in 1980, will be operated on again — this time for a heart bypass operation to be done in a Los Angeles hospital in about two weeks. (AP Laserphoto)

'Vacation' Number One Again At Box Office

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "National Lampoon's Vacation," besting all challengers for a third straight weekend, "Cujo" and "Risky Business" gave Warner Bros. Distribution president Barry Reardon said.

last weekend's box office sweepstakes.

Together, the three films accounted for 41 percent of all movie business in the United States and Canada for the three days ending Sunday, Warner Bros. Distribution president Barry Reardon said.

"National Lampoon's Vacation" took in $6.2 million at 1,253 theaters, bringing its gross after 17 days to $31 million.

The new Stephen King thriller "Cujo" was by far the most successful of the new weekend entries, scaring up $6.1 million at 1,239 theaters.

And "Risky Business," the adventures of a teen-age boy who falls for an enterprising hooker, raked in $4.6 million at 693 theaters, improving on its debut weekend take of $4.3 million. The film's 10-day gross stands at $11.8 million.

In fourth place was "Return of the Jedi" with $3.8 million at 1,515 theaters. The 20th Century-Fox release has collected $216.9 million in 82 days, almost three times as much as the summer's second-largest grossing film so far, "Flashdance."

Paramount's "Staying Alive" rounded out the top five, gathering $2.5 million at 998 screens and bringing the 31-day gross for the "Saturday Night Fever" sequel to $50 million.

Rolling Stones Changing Label

LONDON (AP) — The veteran British rock group the Rolling Stones has decided to change its American recording label from Atlantic Records, for which it has been recording since 1970, to CBS, the Daily Mail reported today.

Early editions of the British tabloid said the news will be announced later in the United States.

It said the group's most recent album, due out in October or November, would be released in the United States under the Atlantic label. But it said that for future albums, the Rolling Stones, which has been around as a group since the early 1960s, has negotiated a new deal.

The paper said Atlantic Records offered the group $16 million for its next four albums but CBS topped this with a counterbid of $25 million.

AQKPH; AWA VIH PQLHNQZL.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — UNEMPLOYED TRASHMEN WERE DOWN IN THE DUMPS DAILY.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: L equals K.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

There is often more than one line of play that declarer can adopt to make his contract. Winners at the table are those who can spot the lines and then find a way to test all or most of them.

North's raise to five no trump requests his partner to bid six no trump if he has a minimum two no trump opener, seven if he is maximum. South was minimum and settled in the small slam.

West led the top of his club sequence, and declarer could count only 11 tricks because of the wasted values in the major suits. A 12th trick could be established if either minor suit split 3-3; however, the chances for an even club split could be discounted because of the opening lead.

Declarer won the opening lead and tried three rounds of diamonds, ending in dummy. When West failed to follow to the last of these, it seemed that declarer was in trouble. Fortunately, he spotted that his club holding offered hope of an end play.

To strip West of his exit cards, declarer cashed his major suit winners. Then he led the nine of clubs from the table and, when East sluffed

FOCUS

Chad

Until recently many Americans had never heard of Chad, and most had no idea where it is located. News reports suggest Chad's 17-year civil war has intensified because neighboring Libya is helping guerrilla forces there. Chad is located in the heart of northern Africa, surrounded by Niger, Libya, and the Sudan. Chad's population is estimated at less than five million. Most of its people live in the southern grasslands and are farmers. Nomadic herdsman live in its northern deserts. Most people in northern and central Chad are Moslems, while most southerners practice tribal religions. The differing lifestyles and 50 tribal dialects have made it difficult to unite the country which gained its independence from France in 1960.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the President of Chad?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Leland Stanford drove the Golden Spike in 1869.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Now you have the day and evening to project yourself and your views and to make the changes and new arrangements that you have been considering. Consider travel plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to communicate with those at a distance and state directly how you want conditions to be in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have come to new decisions in business, so carry through with them speedily. Be more understanding at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be more businesslike with your associates and come right to the point for best results in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get your work done efficiently and be more co-operative with co-workers whose methods are different from yours.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact those who can give you surcease from worries and get into recreation that you really like. Please your loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you use words wisely at home, you can now come to a better understanding with kin. Entertain at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Communicate with those out of town and be direct so they know what you desire of them. Take a small trip.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan what should be done to increase abundance and take care you do not sign anything without studying it thoroughly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are fond of stating your views and today is fine for that and gaining cooperation for your ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget outside tasks and concentrate on a new plan so that you gain some secret wish. Happiness is in reach.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Meeting with those you admire who can make them firm supporters of yours. Attend to personal affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get those duties done that are important and gain profits and prestige you desire. Take interest in a community affair.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to take a definite and straight course of action and get things done, but guard against constantly making changes just for the fun of it. There is a tendency to feel that he, or she is never wrong.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

a spade on this trick, the contract could not be defeated. Declarer simply played a low club from hand and West won the trick with the ten of clubs.

Now declarer's groundwork paid off. West was down to nothing but clubs, and he was forced to lead away from his Q 6 of clubs into declarer's A-8 tenace, and so give declarer his fulfilling trick.
