Tripoli Is Again Scene Of Partisan Militia Clashes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Pro- and anti-Syrian militias clashed today with mortars, machine guns and rockets in Lebanon's northern port of Tripoli, and Christian and Druse fighters traded sporadic shellfire in the hills overlooking Beirut.

Israel's military command said that a Palestinian guerrilla was killed and an Israeli soldier wounded in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley when Israel's troops chased men who set off a roadside explosion.

The report today gave no further details about the blast that wounded four Israeli soldiers about 11 miles from the Syrian border Tuesday.

In Tripoli, the fighting pitted the pro-Syrian Arab Democratic Party militia known as the Arabian Knights against the Sunni Moslem Islamic Union Movement, reporters said in telephone calls from the city.

The clashes took place in the seaside residential neighborhood of Bab El-Tabbeneh and the city's wheat market center. Smoke could be seen billowing from the city from about three miles, according to the phone reports.

There were no immediate reports of casualties. The reporters said police were unable to determine what touched off the new fighting in the nation's second-largest city 50 miles north of Beirut.

In Beirut, the shelling by Christian and Druse militiamen caused police to warn motorists to stay off the highways linking the capital with northern Lebanon. The exchanges stopped at mid-morning.

At least seven shells landed on or near the coastal highway on Beirut's Christian-populated northern outskirts, police said.

The shelling, which threatened a two-day-old ceasefire, came as President Amin Gemayel's government intensified efforts to ensure a smooth deployment of the Lebanese army into the embattled central mountains to replace Israeli forces, who plan to redeploy southward soon.

The authoritative independent newspaper An-Nahar said the Gemayel government had taken a "final decision" to deploy his army in the Aley and Chouf mountain regions once the Israeli army begins its pullback to more secure positions along the Awali River. An-Nahar and other Beirut newspapers said the government was determined to allow no security vacuum to develop in the turbulent regions lest an all-out Christian-Druse civil war break out.

Israel's English-language Jerusalem Post said today Druse militias have "prepared a full-scale battle plan" to capture strategic areas in the Chouf region before the Lebanese army or Christian militiamen move.

The newspaper said Israeli military planners are taking into account the possibility that the partial pullback might take place under fire.

A date for the much-talked about pullback has not been announced.

Electrical Storm Snarled Communications, Power

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

A fierce, deadly lightning storm spawned by triple-digit temperatures roared over eastern North Carolina Tuesday night, leaving utilities and communications systems snarled and trees limbs sheared and scattered.

Greenville Utilities reported that 179 locations in its Pitt County system were damaged by lightning or falling trees during the storm. Despite the unusually high number of problems, said Malcolm Green, superintendent of the electrical department, no major lines or circuits were down.

Outages, he said, were numerous and scattered throughout the county, but none were serious. "Many of the calls we had were simply fuses blown or trees on lines but a number were lightning strikes," said Green.

He said 15 electrical transformers were damaged by lightning and had to be replaced, damage that's "unusual" for GUC. Even more freakish, said Green, was a direct lightning hit on an underground line on highway 33 east that resulted in damage to three pad-mounted transformers.

In addition, said Green, lightning hit GUC's radio transmitter twice, knocking out both the main and the back-up transmitters the second time.

Green said seven repair crews, three spotter vehicles, three supervisors and two staff engineers worked throughout the storm and "a couple of them were still working this morning."

"By 9 p.m. (Tuesday) we had somebody assigned to every trouble location we knew about and this morning we caught the usual rush of calls from those folks who just went on to bed without the lights," said the electrical superintendent.

Hurricane 'Alicia' Turning Out More Destructive Than Thought

HOUSTON (AP) — Even though Hurricane Alicia is being called a billion-dollar storm, it was "far more destructive" than many people realize, a school administrator said after today's scheduled start of fall classes was delayed because of power outages.

"We have a large number of schools without power, without water and without air conditioning," Houston Independent School District spokeswoman Geri Konigsberg said.

About one-third of the district's 235 schools were still black-out, and rather than open some facilities today and delay opening the others, officials decided it would be easier to put off classes for all 194,000 students until Monday, Miss Konigsberg said.

"Alicia was far more destructive and disruptive than most people realize," Superintendent Billy Reagan told school employees Tuesday.

The Federal Emergency

Management Agency is set to open two more disaster relief centers today to process aid applications for storm victims. The agency handed out applications to more than 1,100 people Tuesday when it opened three centers.

At least 25,000 storm victims are expected to apply for some type of federal aid made available since President Reagan declared a six-county region in southeast Texas a major disaster area Friday.

"It gets hairy and hectic," said agency worker Marilyn Darby of Dallas. "The first days are always the worst."

"Quite frankly, this had been a real good first day," Ms. Darby said.

Up to 125,000 Houston Lighting & Power Co. customers remained without electricity for a sixth day Tuesday.

"We've got all the easy stuff done now," company spokeswoman Sally Mathis said as utility workers began a house-to-house canvass of homes blacked out by Hurricane Alicia. "This is the slow part."

About 3,900 utility employees from Houston and from other companies in Texas and along the Gulf Coast are trying to restore power severed when the storm slammed into Galveston on Thursday, then charged inland past Houston.

At least 18 deaths have been blamed on Alicia, which insurance specialists say probably will result in claims exceeding $1 billion, making it the most costly ever in this nation.

Libyan Forces Said Advancing

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — The Chadian government said today that Libyan tanks and Libyan-backed rebels were pushing south toward the government's defensive lines, but denied a radio report that there had been a skirmish in the desert.

"I can confirm that there is a continuing and massive advance of Libyan forces and heavy tanks toward Oum Chalouba and Koro Toro," Information Minister Soumaila Mahamat told reporters.

He "categorically denied" a report by Chad radio that government and rebel patrols exchanged fire in the desert about 60 miles northwest of the government outpost at Oum Chalouba.

The government radio report said the skirmish occurred Tuesday in the wilderness about halfway between Oum Chalouba and the edge of the Libyan-held strategic oasis of Faya-Largeau, 120 miles to the northwest.

Faya-Largeau was overrun by Libyan forces and rebels led by former President Goukouni Oueddei on Aug. 10. Heavy Libyan air attacks on the government garrison at Oum Chalouba then continued for four days, but ceased abruptly.

Since then, a tense stand-off has been maintained along the 500-mile-long defensive line on the 15th parallel, where forces loyal to President Hissene Habre have been reinforced by French army strongpoints.

Oum Chalouba, 450 miles northeast of N'Djamena, the capital, is about 100 miles beyond the most northerly French position.

Ceremonies Set For Plant

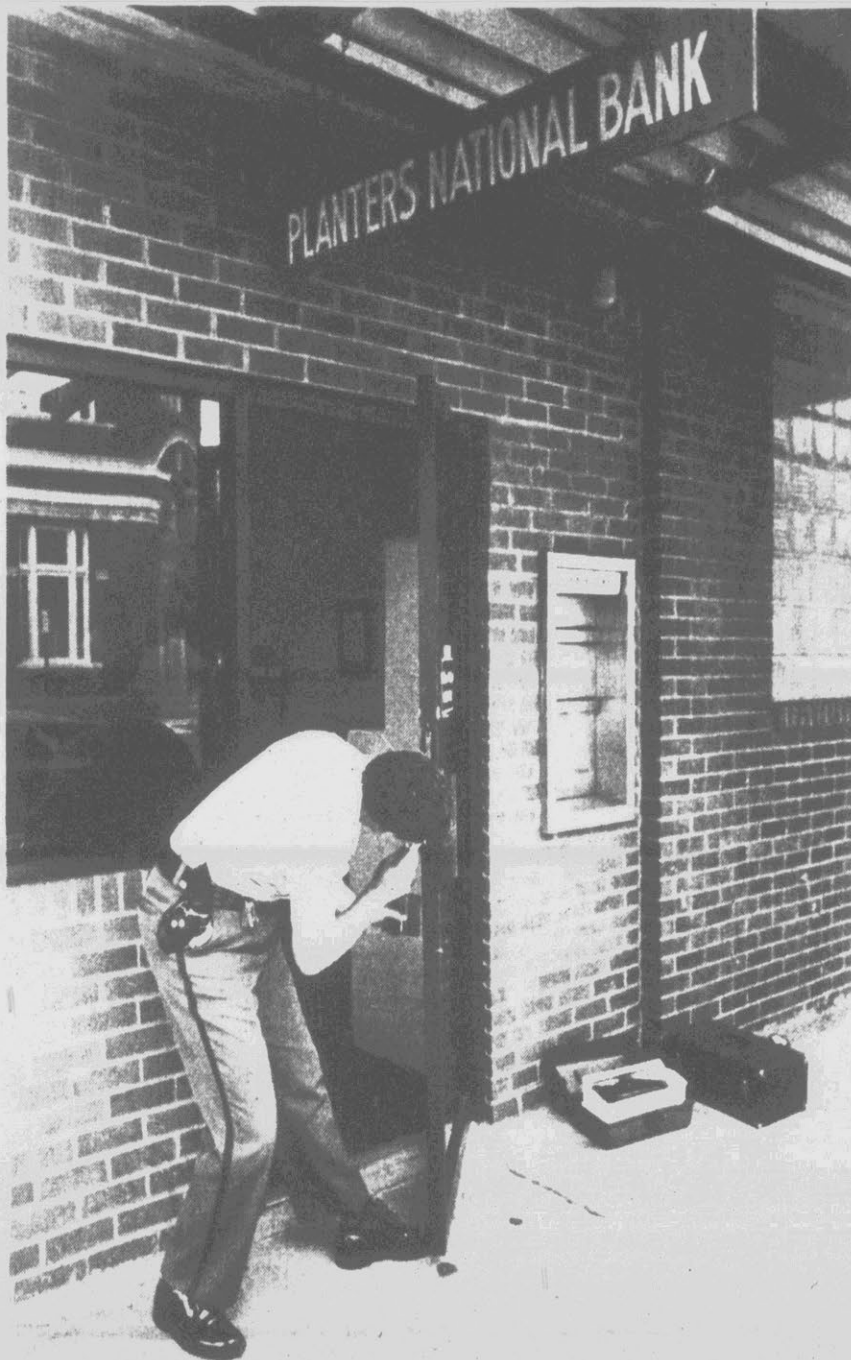

Ground breaking ceremonies for Greenville's new $10.4 million waste water treatment plant will be held at 11 a.m. September 1, at the plant site, east of the Eastern By-pass and north of the Tar River.

Site work for the 10.5 million gallon per day plant is well under way, and contractors, who have two years to complete construction, say the facility should be completed in 1 1/2 years.

Funding for the waste water treatment plant includes more than $7.8 million in federal grants and $1.3 million from the state.

John Ferren, assistant director of the Greenville Utilities Commission, said today that guests for the ground-breaking will include representatives of the N.C. Department of Commerce and others involved with industrial development.

The guests, Ferren said, will be invited to lunch following the ceremony "so we will have the opportunity to tell them that, with a new water treatment plant operating and a wastewater treatment plant under construction, Greenville is ready for any industry that they can bring in."

Police Report 'Leads' In Ayden Bank Robbery

AYDEN — Police said this morning they have "leads they are currently pursuing" in the Tuesday robbery of Planters National Bank in Ayden.

According to Federal Bureau of Investigation agent Tony Rogers, police are searching for a black male who robbed the bank at gunpoint around 12:15 p.m. Tuesday of an undisclosed amount of cash.

Rogers said the FBI is also looking for another black male officers suspect was the gunman's accomplice and a dark gray, late model automobile the two may have fled in. Although the robber was last seen on foot, Rogers said officers had information that led them to believe there "may have been another fellow in town."

Police say the robber was carrying a small caliber handgun.

Rogers noted that the North Carolina Bankers Association offers a $2,000 reward for information leading to an arrest in a bank robbery.

Expert Says No City Is Prepared For 'Worst'

MIAMI (AP) — Many parts of Florida's high-rise-lined coast could withstand the wrath of a hurricane like Alicia, but it's doubtful any of the country's coastal areas are ready for a "worst case" storm, the nation's top hurricane tracker says.

"There's going to be a lot of damage ... bunches," said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center.

Hurricanes are rated on a scale of one to five, based on a formula of wind speed and potential destruction. Camille was the last Category 5 storm to hit the United States and claimed 255 lives when it assaulted the Mississippi coast in 1969.

Alicia, which struck the Texas coast Thursday and left 18 dead, was a Category 3 storm with winds of 115 mph. It hit Galveston and then blasted Houston's skyscrapers, sending shattered glass through the streets. Insurance adjusters expect over a billion dollars in claims.

The season's second tropical storm, Barry, developed Tuesday night and was gathering strength off the Atlantic coast of Florida.

Miami officials said Houston's fate may be a warning for south Florida where high-rise buildings dominate the waterfront skyline.

Frank said Tuesday that hurricanes always will inflict building damage but he was pleased that Florida has completed studies of how long it would take to clear residents from a storm's path.

Other areas lag behind, he added, although he doubted "there's any place in the nation that is prepared for the worst possible case."

In New Jersey, Frank said, "there are not even comprehensive evacuation studies initiated up there... On the New Jersey coast, it's just a string of barrier islands with hundreds of thousands of people on them."

Frank added, "Evacuation is the primary action to save lives."

Preppies Shag To Beach Music 1,000 Miles From Sand, Surf

By MARK SCHWED
UPI Entertainment Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — You have to slither through the silk-shirted disco crowd, past the blue-collar pool hall before you hit the beach.

It's not the motion of the ocean, but the sound of the vibes that lets you know you've reached Buckhead Beach, a trendy bar in Atlanta that has a disco, pool hall and beach bar under one roof.

Nashville has beach. So do Dallas, Denver, Washington, D.C., Athens, Ala., Knoxville, Tenn., Gainesville, Fla., and Auburn, Ala. Don't confuse it with Los Angeles, which has surf, not beach, and the Beach Boys, not The Tams.

Beach music, the once-undercover nickname for that laid-back rhythm & blues sound born on the Carolina shores, is moving inland. You can find it a thousand miles from the sea.

"I guess back during the time when it wasn't proper for white kids to listen to black music, they started calling it beach music," explained Otis Pope, manager for the Tams, an Atlanta-based group that had its first beach hit, "Untie Me," two decades ago.

"It's black music aimed at white preppies," said Charlie Fach, president of Compleat Entertainment Corp., a Nashville-based company that has signed such beach music acts as The Tams and Clifford Curry.

More established record companies are also heading for the beach. Warner Brothers in Nashville thought about importing a truckload of sand and palm trees for a "Terminal Beach Party" at an old movie theater. Instead, there were beach balls, hot dogs and beer.

The party was thrown to push a new song, "Terminal Beach," by a very unbeachy guy, Bill Lamb, a Portland, Ore., native who was inspired to co-write the song when he spotted a seagull-decorated shirt at the Salvation Army.

The song is about a "nerd" who wants to go rollerskating and a girl who would rather hit the beach.

"We're thinking about a followup, either 'Bride of Terminal Beach' or 'Son of Terminal Beach,'" Lamb said. "For me it was the back door to the beach. The other songs on the album are flat out rockabilly."

Beach music started in ocean-side boardwalk clubs in North and South Carolina and Virginia, but the modern beach aficionados can be found in Southeastern college frat houses at Auburn, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee and Vanderbilt. It blends traditional fifties rock 'n' roll with horns and brass. The result is a happy-go-lucky, upbeat sound.

"You don't need the beach to have beach music," said Tony Hosney, vice president of the Beach Music Awards Association in Myrtle Beach, S.C., the home of beach music. "But you do need the shag."

The shag is a shuffling, laid-back, jitterbug-like dance with twirls, spins, and intricate footwork. Unlike punk music's bodyslaming, where couples see how hard they can smash into each other, the shag is a hand-holding, cozy dance for two.

"It's smooth," said Sarah Sherill of Compleat, a Carolina girl who grew up shagging to beach music. "You don't sweat none."

"These Vandy students, they love it," she said. "They heard it from their mother and father. Now it's making its way inland. It is reviving because of the preppie movement. There are a lot of closet beach music people."

Pope said the time is right for the inland invasion of beach music.

"People are tired of sweating. They want to get closer, look into each other's eyes, hold hands," Pope said. "If you play it too loud it doesn't create the atmosphere it's intended to. It's happy music. One of the typical songs is 'Be Young, Be Foolish, and Be Happy.'"

Some beach songs are easy to spot — "She Shot a Hole in My Soul," "My Baby Sure Can Shag," "Terminal Beach," "There Ain't Nothing Like Shaggin'."

Others are not — "Get A Job," "Making True Love," and "Thank You John," a beach classic.

Those who love beach music most say the invasion of the beach has only just begun.

Galicic-Williams Vows Exchanged

FREDERICK, Md. — Susan Lorraine Williams and Joseph Raymond Galicic were united in marriage Aug. 13. The double ring, candlelight ceremony, written by the bride and bridegroom, took place in the Calvary United Methodist Church here. The Rev. Mark Waddell officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Stroh of Middletown, Md. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Galicic of Oakdale, Pa.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride was attired in a floor length gown made of silk organza featuring three-quarter length puff sleeves and round neckline. Chantilly lace and seed pearls decorated the bodice. The full skirt gave an apron effect with chantilly lace surrounding three tiers of sheer organza and ending in a chapel length train. The fingertip bridal veil was a halo edged with scalloped satin, 'stephanotis, baby's breath and pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of a dozen white silk roses accented with fern and baby's breath tied with a sheer organza bow.

Leigh Williams of Raleigh was honor attendant for her sister-in-law. Bridesmaids were Angela and Paula Alcock, cousins of the bride of Greenville, Wendy Coleman and Lori Shipley of Middletown, Md. Flower girls were Stacey and Stephanie Williams of Raleigh, nieces of the bride.

Mark Murr of Frederick, Md. was best man and ushers included Mark Galicic, brother of the bridegroom of Oakdale, Pa., Don Williams of Raleigh, brother of the bride, Robert Druga of Oakdale, Pa. and Joseph LaVerde of Gaithersburg, Md.

Providing music for the ceremony was Paula Alcock, soloist, and Marc Nicodemus, organist. The wedding was directed by Barbara Pfeiffer and the guest book was attended by Dan Pfeiffer. Programs and scrolls were handed out by Wendi and Holli Zimmerman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church ladies parlor. Virginia Alcock, aunt of the bride of Greenville, cut the cake and Dolly Malli, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom from Bethel Park, Pa. served the cake and Bonnie Zimmerman from Frederick, Md. poured punch.

The bride graduated from Middletown High School in Middletown, Md. and attended N.C. State University in Raleigh. The bridegroom graduated from West Allegheny High School in Imperial, Pa. and Penn Technical Institute, Pottsville, Pa. Both are employed by M/A-COM DCC in Germantown, Md.

After a wedding trip to Washington, D.C. and Ocean City, Md. the couple will live in Frederick, Md.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Red Horse Motor Inn in Frederick, Md. The bride was given several showers given by Barbara Pfeiffer and Dolly Malli.

Dear Abby

Book Draws Attention To Alcohol

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: A coloring book is an ideal way to educate children, and I have just come across one that really grabbed my attention.

It's "Winthrop and Munchie Talk About Alcohol" — a non-judgmental approach in presenting information about alcohol to children.

Winthrop, an appealing cartoon character, is about to dig into his morning cereal when in walks his thirsty friend, Munchie. Winthrop offers Munchie some milk. But milk isn't what Munchie had in mind. It's hot outside, and he could really go for a nice cold beer. Winthrop is shocked! He tells Munchie he's not old enough to drink alcohol. Munchie says he was only kidding, but adds, "It's very grown up to drink beer."

Their conversation develops into a powerful but subtle educational message about the alcoholic content of beer, wine, vodka and whiskey; how alcohol affects the brain, the body and the way you act; the legal drinking age; and just about everything a child should know about the subject. It's a wonderful way for parents and educators to teach children about alcoholism.

The Winthrop and Munchie coloring book can be obtained by writing: Operation Cork, 8939 Villa La Jolla Drive, La Jolla, Calif. 92037.

The price is $1 (discounts for quantity available on request). However, Operation Cork, which is a non-profit organization, will send a copy free if you are unable to pay.

DEAR ABBY: I do lap swimming on a regular basis each week. I swim at a public pool in Aurora, Colo. Sometimes fathers bring their 3- and 4-year-old daughters into the men's shower room with them.

I know I personally am uncomfortable showering with a young female child in the locker room. I've discussed this with other swimmers and they feel the same way. My friends say the children are too young to think anything of this. What do you think?

RICHARD IN AURORA

DEAR RICHARD: Male nudity is probably no big deal to a 3- or 4-year-old girl whose father would bring her into a men's shower room. However, since you and "other swimmers" are uncomfortable with young females in the shower room, you have every right to ask their fathers not to bring them.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning "Wants to Love Again," who asks for the male point of view about silicone implants to enlarge the breasts: Were she my wife, lover or fiancée, I'd say, "Don't do it for my benefit." I am 65 and I've had a very active sex life, and I've learned that bosomy women are not necessarily passionate. Neither are all flat-chested women cold. I've found it to be the other way around. What women lacked in chest they usually made up for in zest.

I have to tell you, the best bed partner I ever had was built like a 12-year-old boy.

Practicalities

We were concerned the electricity-generating windmill experiment in western N.C. proved a dud; but it didn't. Lessons learned at Howard's Knob have been applied to a project in Hawaii, and the generator there will be three times as powerful.

"Wind farms" are reportedly spreading in California.

Hopes were also raised by the prospect of solar electric cells that might supply electricity for individual homes and farm-use. Not much was heard about that field until recently when optimistic news became known. They are nearer reality.

And remember talk about reviving old hydro-electric power systems that used to supply North Carolina manufacturers? It turned out to be more than talk. One such plant has been set up in the state and others are in the works.

It's encouraging.

An Appalachian State University writer says these and other energy-related projects are a part of a continuing effort which will make a difference in our lives. We were afraid those concepts of just a few years ago were only pipedreams, but they turned out to be more than just that.

One day they will be practicalities.

Street Corner Fraud

Some years back the flim flam was a regular occurrence in this area when tobacco money began to flow.

The schene seldom varies. Smooth talking strangers find an envelop, tell a bystander it contains a large amount of money and agree to share it if the bystander will come up with a certain amount.

The bystander goes off and brings back the required amount and gives it to the strangers. They tell the bystander to wait and they will return with the money. The wait turns out to be interminable.

Such a scheme was reported to police last week and it should warn all of us to be wary of such deals. Big money is almost never made on the street corner and the prospect is to lose a good amount of cash.

Embarrassment

WASHINGTON — In a move viewed by AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland's intimates as an embarrassment, President Reagan has been formally invited to address the Maritime Trades Department during the AFL-CIO convention at Hollywood, Fla., in early October.

That is where organized labor will give Walter F. Mondale its endorsement for the Democratic presidential nomination. The prospect of Reagan upstaging Mondale at the convention's Diplomat Hotel headquarters was never contemplated by pro-Mondale Kirkland. He was neither asked about nor notified of the invitation to Reagan.

One of the Maritime Trade Department's leading unions, the longshoremen, headed by pro-Reagan Teddy Gleason, hosted the president at its own convention this summer. The department, which includes several unions that have nothing to do with maritime trades, comprises a little more than one-half the total AFL-CIO membership.

Henry Kissinger, chairman of the new Central American Commission and one of Washington's most accomplished power-grabbers, has promised he will wage no turf battle against former Sen. Richard Stone, the president's special Central American envoy.

On two separate occasions, Kissinger privately pledged to Stone that his commission would steer clear of the former Florida senator's activity. Stone has made preliminary contacts with El Salvador's leftist guerrilla leaders and officials in Nicaragua's Marxist-Leninist regime, the kind of diplomatic activity long associated with Kissinger.

Fears that Kissinger's ability to seize, hold and exercise power worried Stone's associates. So far, however, there have been no grounds for complaint.

Organized labor is boosting the stampede toward New York Gov. Mario Cuomo as keynoter at next summer's Democratic National Convention, but that leaves his friends in a quandry over their hopes to make him a presidential kingmaker.

John Perkins, head of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education, has privately passed the word that Cioimo is labor's first choice for keynoter. With Democratic National Chairman Charles T. Manatt inclined toward the New Yorker and no substantial contender on the horizon, that goes far toward clinching the prestigious job.

But recent keynoters have been neutral, interfering with Cuomo's intentions to play a major role in the nomination process. He certainly cannot keep major New York Democrats from backing their choice for president (overwhelmingly, Walter F. Mondale). After the state's candidates forum Oct. 6 Cuomo could find himself as his predecessor, Hugh Carey, was in 1980: neutral and impotent.

Senate Republican campaign managers, searching high and low for female candidates, are pushing Peace Corps Director Loret Ruppe as the best bet to unseat Democratic Sen. Carl Levin of Michigan next year — a choice certain to detonate an explosion on the right.

No Reagan administration official has come under more fire from the conservative movement than Ruppe, who has continued Carter administration policies at the Peace Corps. But since retired Army Gen. Pete Dawkins is not interested in running, Republican insiders in Washington consider Ruppe the strongest possibility.

Mainstream republican leaders in Michigan feel only Ruppe can raise an adequate war chest against Levin. They count on nationally respected conservative Republicans — such as Sen. Paul Laxalt, the party's general chairman — to stifle right-wing dissent. But even Laxalt won't be able to quiet the uproar from Human Events, Conservative Digest and other conservative publications.

George McGovern is delaying his announcement that he will run for president again to give him a few more weeks to persuade reluctant members of his family to back him in a comeback decision.

McGovern tells friends that his attempt to repeat his uphill victory in the 1972 battle for the Democratic nomination is based on failure of other candidates to attack Reagan in his two most vulnerable issues. McGovern sees Central America and the arms buildup as the soft spots.

McGovern has disappeared politically since his landslide loss to Richard Nixon in 1972. Nevertheless, in his comeback attempt he probably could raise enough money to run and might hurt front-running Walter Mondale.

Pentagon Pushed To The Limit

The Pentagon is getting nervous. With a White House foreign policy based on a military response to every situation, there is a growing gap between the number of worldwide commitments we've decided to make, and the armed services' ability to meet them.

Just last week the Pentagon's joint Chief of the Day received a call from National Security Adviser Clark's office at the White House.

"The president wants you to send two carriers, three missile cruisers, and six B-52s as a warning to Mozambique."

"We're plumb out of aircraft carriers, cruisers and B-52s."

"How can you be out of them? We've given you the biggest military budget in history."

"We have the money, but most of the stuff isn't built yet. You people have asked us to send aircraft carriers to Lebanon, Central America, Libya and Southeast Asia. We don't even have one in dry dock. I wish the White House would check with us before you do any more saber rattling."

"We're not saber rattling. Our national security is at stake in every part of the globe, and if we don't show the flag, our credibility will be zilch."

"Well, we can't send any carriers to Mozambique."

"What about nuclear submarines?"

"They're all spoken for. We have to keep them on station as our main deterrent to the Soviets until we can put the MX missiles in place."

"What can you send to Mozambique?"

"How about a World War II destroyer? We got a bunch of them in mothballs."

"What kind of message is that to the Russians?"

"With all due respect, one of the problems is that you keep sending messages to the Soviets with U.S. naval ships. Why can't you people use the diplomatic pouch like every other country does?"

"The only thing the Soviets understand is strength. If we don't produce a task force for Mozambique they'll interpret it as a sign that we are unable to police the world."

"There is just so much we can do. The Pentagon is always happy to further American foreign policy, but if you would consult with us first, we could let you know whether we can support it militarily."

"I thought the armed forces had contingency plans for every situation on the face of the globe."

"We do have the plans. We just don't have the troops. You have to figure out a few diplomatic initiatives that don't require military muscle."

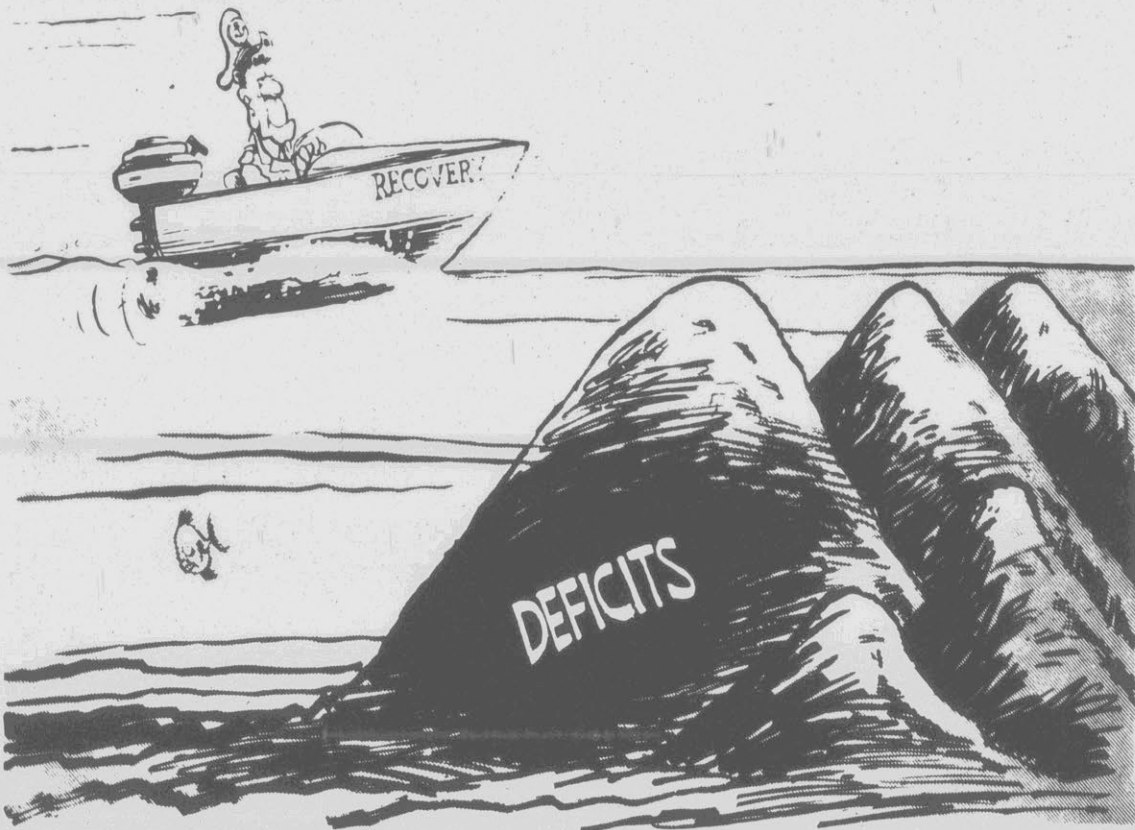

"Well, if we can't send the fleet, what about flying in the Rapid Deployment Brigade to Kenya?"

"You already requested them for Honduras."

"Okay, then ferry over some AWACS."

Old Sayings Not Always Fact

NEW YORK (AP) — Wherever humans pursue their goals certain notions become accepted as true, seldom suffering critical appraisal of substance or emptiness and acquiring in time the patina of ancient wisdom.

Such as good guys finish last or every player has to give 110 percent or that great corporate managers don't make big mistakes.

They don't? A team of scholars in Greensboro, N.C., isn't so sacrilegious as to scorn that article of faith, but they do suggest strongly that it might be lacking substance, and they've got considerable research to support them.

That research, still being analyzed, consisted of long, probing interviews with more than 100 executives from three very large industrial organizations, most of whom readily admitted to having made very big errors.

Said one: "You can't get too concerned about losing millions or you'll become paralyzed. After all, money is lost every day." And another: "Successful people don't like to admit they make big mistakes, but they make whoppers nevertheless." And a third: "I've made them all."

Michael Lombardo and Morgan McCall, researchers at the Smith Richardson Foundation, said the executives told them "literally dozens of stories about multimillion dollar losses, personal mistakes and/or being caught in disastrous situations beyond their control."

Some lost their jobs, were demoted, exiled or otherwise had their careers derailed, but others continued to thrive, which brought the researchers to the conclusion that success or failure might depend on how adversity is handled:

"The derailed executives often hid their errors, blamed them on others or denied their existence," they reported.

But the successful executives? They handled their errors in a markedly different way, one that seems almost like a commercial for forthrightness or an endorsement of Horatio Alger.

"They almost uniformly admitted the mistake," said Lombardo and McCall. And they "forewarned others of adverse effects the mistake would cause, worked like hell to correct it and then, perhaps most telling, forgot about it."

The non-profit Smith Richardson Foundation, for which the research was done, is curious about examining such behavior because, in its own words, it is devoted to improving management and developing creative leaders.

And so it examined another chestnut, the one that says tough, decisive managers are the most successful. And it may have cracked the truth-impervious shell of that one, too.

Toughness, even in spite of human consequences, might be tolerable at the lower levels of management, they found, but beyond that level "we found little evidence that toughness untempered by other virtues led to success."

One senior executive, a fellow who had made it close to the top, reported: "You can get away with murder at lower levels — be as mean as you like as long as you get results."

But, he explained, "It all doubles back on you eventually. People too often forget the one unassailable truth of careers — they last a long time." Which is to say that executive murder at the lower levels is deadly later on.

"The key," suggest the researchers, "seems to be in the combination of seemingly contradictory qualities that must exist together: confidence and humility, toughness and basic values, standing alone and needing others."

They went on to cast serious doubts on two other notions, that good role models are critical to a manager's development (his was a crook who had to be fired, said one) and that job rotation is the best way to season a manager.

But clearly they cannot compare in consequence to the liberating knowledge that, yes, you too can make horrendous errors and still reach the top. Just like the infallible-looking fellow who is sitting up there now.

On The Record For Posterity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only a fraction of the bills introduced in Congress ever become laws and only a smattering of congressional speeches find their way into news reports. Here are some recent items you may have missed, but which were all duly saved for posterity in the pages of the Congressional Record:

— A proposal by Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., for a federal crackdown on "baseless attempts at ethnic humor" on radio and television. Biaggi also expressed outrage at several recent best-selling books devoted to such humor. "While we certainly cannot ban books ... we can insist on high standards of accuracy and fairness" in broadcast programming, he said.

— Legislation by Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., that would require automakers to offer full refunds or replacement new cars to new-car purchasers after four unsuccessful attempts to have a specific defect corrected within a two-year period. "Econountering problems with a new automobile is so common an experience that we have given a new meaning to the word 'lemon,'" Lantos said.

— A glowing tribute by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., to pets. "In my household alone, we have housed dogs, birds, cats, fish, gerbils, guinea pigs and white mice, and we have even housed a three-foot iguana and a boa constrictor. And those are just the ones that I know of," Hatfield informed colleagues.

— An unabashedly partisan suggestion by Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., that President Reagan had established "a Teflon-coated presidency. He sees to it that nothing sticks to him. He is responsible for nothing — civil rights, Central America, the Middle East, the economy, the environment — he is just the master of ceremonies at someone else's dinner."

— A reflection by Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., on the value of his gold Rolex watch, once owned by his late father-in-law, Senate GOP Leader Everett Dirksen. "I did not pay a bit of attention to it until my esteemed father-in-law passed away and the estate tax was paid on it. Then I realized it was a matter of great worth, and I have worn it ever since."

Rep. Kenneth J. Robinson, R-Va., says he thinks CBS was wrong not to film part of its upcoming miniseries on the early life of George Washington in Winchester, Va., which is in his congressional district.

"Mr. Washington, after all, was based in Winchester for 10 years during his early manhood. We're trying to persuade the Hollywood movie-makers they're making a mistake about this," Robinson said. Not making part of the film in Winchester would be like holding the city's annual Apple Blossom Festival "without any blossom," he said.

Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Howard Liebenow, who oversees the Senate's staff of 1,300 employees and a $65 million budget, is quitting his job to become a tobacco lobbyist. He has been named executive vice president for federal relations for the Tobacco Institute, the major organization representing the industry.

His top assistant, Larry Smith, will take over the job on Sept. 12.

"Then dispatch the 82nd Airborne." "We don't have the planes to transport the 82nd Airborne. Do you want us to pull a division out of Germany?"

"No, that would be the wrong signal to the Kremlin, particularly at the moment we're putting Pershing missiles into Europe."

"Do you people really have to send a message to Mozambique at this time? Couldn't we at least wait until the dust settles over Chad?"

"The president and Mr. Clark are very concerned that if we don't show we're serious about Mozambique, they'll be laughing at us in Angola."

"So let them laugh."

"Watch yourself, General. I'm speaking for your commander in chief. What have you got in our military arsenal to warn Mozambique?"

"If you want the truth — two jeeps, a WAC, and the U.S. Marine Corps Band. Once we ship them overseas you people are on your own."

Public Forum

To the editor:

Rising interest rates are clear testimony of the disastrous effect that massive federal budget deficits are having on the nation's economic recovery. Members of Congress and the administration are reluctant to tackle the problem until after the next elections.

We can't wait that long! As a member of the National Association of Realtors, I am participating in a massive grassroots campaign to urge Congress and the president to take immediate action to solve the deficit crisis and ensure that the recovery continues.

The Realtors campaign, called Three-for-All, advocates limiting the growth of spending for federal entitlement programs to 3 percentage points less than the increase in the Consumer Price Index and setting the indexation of personal income tax brackets scheduled to begin in 1985 at the same amount.

These fiscal policies, if adopted, would produce a balanced budget within five years and mortgage interest rates 3 percentage points lower than without three-for-all.

Three-for-all would be "fair for all," and I urge you to join me in letting the president, our U.S. senators and our U.S. representatives know that we support similar measures contained in legislation just introduced by Sens. John Danforth, R-Mo., and David Boren, D-Okla., and by U.S. Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, and U.S. Rep. Carroll Campbell, R-S.C., whose legislation would balance the budget more slowly.

Let's send Washington a message it can't ignore until after the 1984 elections. Let's tell them we want action ad we want it now!

Strength For Today

The New Testament uses a number of Greek words meaning "to pray." The one used most frequently, however, is a word which means "to wish forward."

Prayer, among other things, is wishing forward. The average person probably prays timorously. It would appear presumptuous to ask God for too much. Yet the Bible ridicules such an approach. Jesus urges his followers to pray for great things and many things. We are like guests eating the tiniest bits of food because it would seem to presume on the hospitality of the host if we ate more. Yet the host keeps urging us to eat bountifully.

We certainly have nothing to lose by asking for much. We have God's assurance that he wants to give us much. Why be hesitant? Why be afraid? "Ask," cries Jesus, "and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you."

Take God at his word and you will know the richness of his bounty.

There Are Jobs Waiting To Be Filled

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.

Wednesday, August 4, 1983 5

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The encouraging word is that there are jobs in the Greenville area waiting to be filled by the right workers — "nearly 300 openings in which persons with specialty skills are needed," according to Jim Hannan, manager of the Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission.

"This is the first time in years that we have had this situation," Hannan commented. "We have positions that need to be filled in several fields, and the emphasis on these job openings is for persons with skills and experience."

The positions enumerated by Hannan and Walter Dorsey, ESC's labor market analyst in the Greenville office, include openings for machinists, computer operators, stenographic (not secretarial) jobs, manager trainees, part-time workers in fast food services.

"Right now, it's an employers' market," Dorsey pointed out. "These people are selective, demanding, seeking top caliber workers. For this reason, they can afford to wait until the worker with the degree of skills and experience want to come along."

"We also have employers seeking skilled people to fill openings for auto and diesel mechanics and for front-end mechanics," Hannan added. "Another field with openings is that of metalworkers, people who know the techniques of lay-out, of bending, forming, and cutting metal."

Dorsey noted these jobs "are open alike to male or female applicants, as long as they meet the skill qualifications."

Salaries for these unfilled positions, Hannan said, "mostly are for jobs that begin at about $3.50 an hour. Several are for higher hourly wages, and range on up to one opening with a beginning salary of $17,000 plus benefits."

"In my opinion," Dorsey remarked, "these opportunities reflect the definite advantages open to people who had training in high schools and at community colleges in vocational skill fields. At this time, these are the skills being sought by employers."

Another factor involved in filling certain positions, Hannan commented, "is that of mobility. Being mobile, or flexible, is often the key to employment and advancement. In most instances, the 300 positions we are seeking to fill are within the area. However, some may involve a willingness for the worker to relocate to another part of the state, or even make an out-of-state move. But normally, what we're dealing with at this time involves work within a 30-mile area."

Anyone with qualifications in any of the fields enumerated may visit the ESC office at 3101 Bismarck, or to call 756-2686 for additional information.

By-The-Drink

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Kinston voters approved a liquor-by-the-drink referendum by a narrow 129-vote margin Tuesday.

The final vote showed that 2,004 people voted for mixed drinks in the Lenoir County town while 1,884 voted against the measure. A countywide liquor-by-the-drink referendum failed on June 14.

Election officials said only 32 percent of the town's registered voters turned out for the referendum.

Eye On Honduras

The United States recently began six months of military exercises in Honduras, involving troops from both nations. In the mid-1970s, the richest five percent of Hondurans received 29 percent of the nation's income. It takes the average Honduran a full year to earn what the average American makes in only 13 work days.

Will Ask For Free Checkups

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Teachers at a Greensboro high school say they plan to ask for free physical exams because asbestos removal at the school was still under way when they returned to work.

Joe Hill, director of maintenance for Guilford County schools, said asbestos removal areas at Northeast Senior High School were sealed off from school personnel. He said special equipment in the areas kept asbestos dust from escaping.

Early Writing Emphasis

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
This year at South
Greenville Elementary School, fourth, fifth and sixth graders will have opportunities during the school year to express themselves in writing. The name chosen for the project is "Stories to

School."
At a preschool opening workshop last week, two dozen elementary teachers gathered to exchange ideas with Rebecca Grooms, coordinator of the writing program. "This program will be included in the curriculum this year," Mrs. Grooms told the teachers.

The innovative writing program for students will focus on two primary goals
— one, the challenge to express their own thoughts and ideas; and the other, the ability to do express their ideas correctly in the written word. Basically, the approach to the program is to be based on a handbook by Donald H. Graves, "Writing, Teachers and Children at Work."

Two other South Greenville teachers, Joyce Costner and Floretta Smith, are sharing the coordination of the program with Mrs. Grooms.
Each student will have a folder in which a record will be maintained on each story
— the date started, the date finished, and the date published.

Mrs. Grooms said "first emphasis will be on expressiveness, the ability to get an idea across. If at all possible, in the spring each child will be ready to prepare, to publish a book of his or her own. We hope also to have assistance from the art teacher in the preparation of the books."

She cautioned teachers, "It will not be easy to find writing time for the students, but hopefully it will be possible for each teacher to establish a regular writing time."

"This is an excellent way for students to learn the craft of writing," Mrs. Grooms added. "We all know the best way to learn is by doing, and the only positive way to learn to write is by writing."

In the process of learning to express themselves in writing, students will have free rein to write whatever they choose to write about.
Their works will be shared with other students. Guide-ance in grammar, punctuation and structure will be given by the teachers.

Heat Taking A Toll In Poultry

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer
North Carolina poultry farmers may be facing their third straight year of losses because of hot weather, agriculture officials say.

Poultry losses have increased dramatically this week during record setting high temperatures. Experts say farmers will lose hundreds of thousands of turkeys and broilers if temperatures continue to reach in the high 90s.

"Basically if temperatures reach 96 degrees and stay there for four hours, we lose birds," said M.C. Howell, agricultural extension agent in Union County. "Chickens and turkeys cool off by taking air in through their mouths and when the air outside is as hot as their bodies, they start dying."

Howell said since last Friday Union County farmers have lost about 130,000 broilers and 20,000 turkeys.

North Carolina's poultry industry, which includes broilers, turkeys and eggs, trails tobacco as the state's second largest agribusiness.
It accounts for $780 million for Tar Heel farmers annually and more than 20 per cent of the state's agricultural income.

North Carolina has an estimated 13,000 poultry farmers. Union and Duplin counties are the state's largest poultry producers.

In 1981 poultry farmers were plagued by unseasonably high temperatures. In Union County extension agents estimated that farmers lost about $1 million in poultry because of heat.

Last year an outbreak of a respiratory disease killed thousands of turkeys across the state.

This summer farmers are taking steps to try to reduce their poultry losses, officials say.

In Duplin County poultry producers are adding extra fans and sprinklers to poultry houses.

much smaller than good market size," Wilson said.

Howell said no estimates on losses would be available until after the heat wave.
However, he said officials will apply this week for disaster aid for local farmers.

"The heat is really taking its toll on the farmers," he said. "The bigger healthy birds are the ones that die first so farmers are left with the smaller ones."

Storm Snarled...

Green said GUC gave priority to bulk barn customers who were without power. "As far as I know, no bulk barns were without electricity for more than five hours," he said.

Green said GUC was without phone service for an hour and "this put us an hour behind in the beginning because we couldn't get information."

Richard Flye, district manager for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph, reported today that the Greenville exchange was "isolated" — without long distance service — from 7:45-8:41 p.m. because of lightning damage. Local calls could be made on the 752-, 758-, 756- and 355-exchanges, he said "if you could get a dialtone."

"It was difficult to get one (a dialtone) though, because of the number of people making calls during the storm," said Flye. The 757-exchange, he added, was out for several hours but was repaired by 10 p.m.

Flye said this morning C.T.&T.'s office PBX system was still out of service due to lightning damage.

Pitt County Emergency Communications, a local amateur radio group, aided the Pitt County Sheriff's Department during the storm when phone service was unavailable. According to Bernard Nobles, director of the organization, about 15 amateur radio operators using portable and mobile radio communication provided damage reports to the central dispatch office.

The Greene County Sheriff's Office was still without radio service this morning due to a direct lightning strike on the system's antenna, reported Faye Elmore, a dispatcher for the county.

"For a few minutes everything we had was out," she said. "Currently we have the fire and rescue radios working but the sheriff's office is now operating with walkie-talkies."

A tree knocked to the ground by lightning damaged four cars and a portion of the roof at Tar River Estates during the storm, said a spokesman for the apartment complex. Lightning reportedly struck the tree, crashing it into the roof and then onto four cars parked nearby.

Two of the cars were heavily damaged, said the spokesman, and the other two moderately damaged. The roof sustained little damage. No official damage estimates were available this morning.

In Bethel the police department reported lightning struck a power line and some customers were without electricity briefly, but no serious damage occurred.

J.A. Wooten, utilities director for Farmville, reported that lightning hit the system's number one substation, leaving 75 percent of the town without power for 18 minutes.

Nearly three inches of rain, 2.72 inches according to GUC, filled Greenville's storm drains to overflowing during the storm, and the public works department reported several streets flooded, including Dickinson Avenue, Skinner Street and a portion of Fifth Street.

A spokesman for the department said most of the calls received during the storm were requests from the police to remove large limbs from streets.

All areas of Martin County reported substantial rainfall during the early storm. No damage was noted in any area of the county, however, power was out in the town of Robersonville and adjacent areas for several hours. Technicians for the local utility company reported that lightning hit two electrical switches in Robersonville along with a transformer and a utility pole outside the town. Power was restored in town by 11 p.m. Tuesday, and work on areas outside the town was expected to be completed by mid-morning.

GUC Electrical Superintendent Green said GUC reached their all-time peak electrical demand Tuesday just before the thunderstorm. At 6 p.m. the system peaked at 159.9 megawatts. The high temperature, according to GUC reached 100 degrees Fahrenheit Tuesday and the low fell to 63 degrees F.

Medical Center A Boon To Pitt County

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The growth of the medical center in Greenville, with the East Carolina University School of Medicine and Pitt County Memorial Hospital as the nucleus, is resulting in better medical care for the residents of eastern North Carolina and an economic boost for the Greenville area.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital, which serves the clinical teaching needs of the medical school, opened in 1977. It replaced a $1.41 million facility staffed by 38 physicians when it opened in 1951.

The investment in the new hospital has grown to $26.4 million, not including $7.6 million invested in equipment, and a $6.4 million expansion program is in the final planning stages at the present time.

The hospital's operating budget for the coming year is $85 million, $36.6 million of which will go directly to the 2,248 full-time and part-time employees, including 1,163 nursing service personnel. The medical staff now has 336 physicians including 100 residents.

ECU's school of medicine, housed in a $26 million building adjacent to the hospital, has $10 million worth of equipment, and employs 750 persons, including 100 physicians and 68 nurses. Some $16 million of the school's annual budget of more than $32.5 million goes for salaries.

That adds up to 2,998 people earning some $52.6 million from just two employers, and there are more than 45 offices staffed by one or more physicians in private practice who hire nurses, receptionists, bookkeepers, and who purchase services in the Greenville area.

Most of the patients treated at the old hospital, which had 206 beds, came from Pitt County. Only about one-fourth of the patients treated there were from out of the county.

That's not true today. The growth of PCMH and the school of medicine has caused Pitt County Memorial, one of four hospitals in the state designated as an academic medical center teaching hospital, to become a regional hospital, rather than a county hospital.

During the fiscal year which ended in September 1979, 15,474 patients were admitted for treatment. Of those, 8,908 or 57.6 percent were Pitt County residents.

For the fiscal year which ended in September 1982, 20,964 patients were admitted for treatment, with only 49.7 percent or 10,425 being local residents.

"Each year, almost every six months, a new dimension of service is being offered here," PCMH President Jack Richardson said. "The expansions provide local and area physicians with more in-depth diagnostic tools to work with," the capability to accommodate more patients, and additional therapeutic treatments.

Dr. William E. Laupus, ECU vice chancellor and dean of the medical school, explained: "The growth of this combination of resources, the school of medicine and the large regional hospital, has provided the opportunity for many eastern North Carolina residents to obtain care at a level they had not been used to having available to them."

"In a number of services we've developed, particularly in cancer and heart disease programs, the population we are serving appears to be one which has not been served earlier with the same access to diagnostic and therapeutic services. What I'm saying is that a lot of the people referred to us were not referred anywhere before."

"What's now available to eastern North Carolina is a much larger scope of full-range medical capabilities than was the case earlier."

The medical school dean suggested that because of the development and growth of the hospital-medical school, patients are coming into more sophisticated levels of health care earlier, with emphasis on earlier diagnosis of serious problems.

Initially the hospital-medical school started out almost as a Pitt County program, Laupus said, "but we've been able to expand as staff and facilities have grown."

The dean said medical school outpatient clinics are seeing 150 patients a day now, with more than half of them from outside Pitt County.

The Family Practice Center, which serves the clinical training needs of those specializing in the practice of family medicine, is a different matter.

Laupus said family practice handles between 125 and 150 patients a day. Family Practice tends to have more local clientele. "We try to give continuity of care to families, so they have to be in the general geographical area to do that."

The medical school and hospital are now recruiting for a cardio-vascular surgeon or surgeons to head an open heart surgery program. With the establishment of that program, and the radiation therapy center now under construction, the hospital hopes to be able to provide a full range of services on site, Laupus said.

"We're not seeking to develop programs based on rare problems," Laupus said. "Rather, the medical school and hospital are working together in our planning to go at those kinds of problems which appear to be of the highest incidence and highest risks to people in this area."

Poetic Justice In Court Of Appeals

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A court case in rhyme is providing a good time for judges and a lawyer who says skating's no crime.

The Ohio 6th District Court of Appeals turned to poetic justice as it turned down Jerry Murray's appeal in an illegal skating case.

In part, the appellate judges said:

"There once was a man who liked to skate. Who paid his fine early, rather than late.

"He asks us to give his conviction the boot, but we, in our wisdom, determine it moot.

"For, you see, that we are told, by a court in Columbus, that we know is bold.

"That if a defendant should pay his fine, for him, unfortunately, it's the end of the line."

Murray was cited in Norwalk for violating a city ordinance which prohibits skating in traffic on the grounds that roller skates are toys unsuitable for transportation.

The judges said the lawyer had no right to appeal because he paid a $25 fine. But Murray, who pleaded no contest, says he didn't pay it, and the Norwalk Municipal Court clerk's office agrees.

So Murray wrote back:

"Appellant doesn't mean to whine,

"But appellant paid no fine.

"This is a fact, you will agree,

"Part of the record for all to see.

"And if the court was not apprised,

"The Clerk, not appellant, should be criticized.

"Appellant's case is thus not moot,

"And not deserving of the boot.

"Instead appellant's case should be "Decided on the basis of its constitutionality."

Narrow Escape

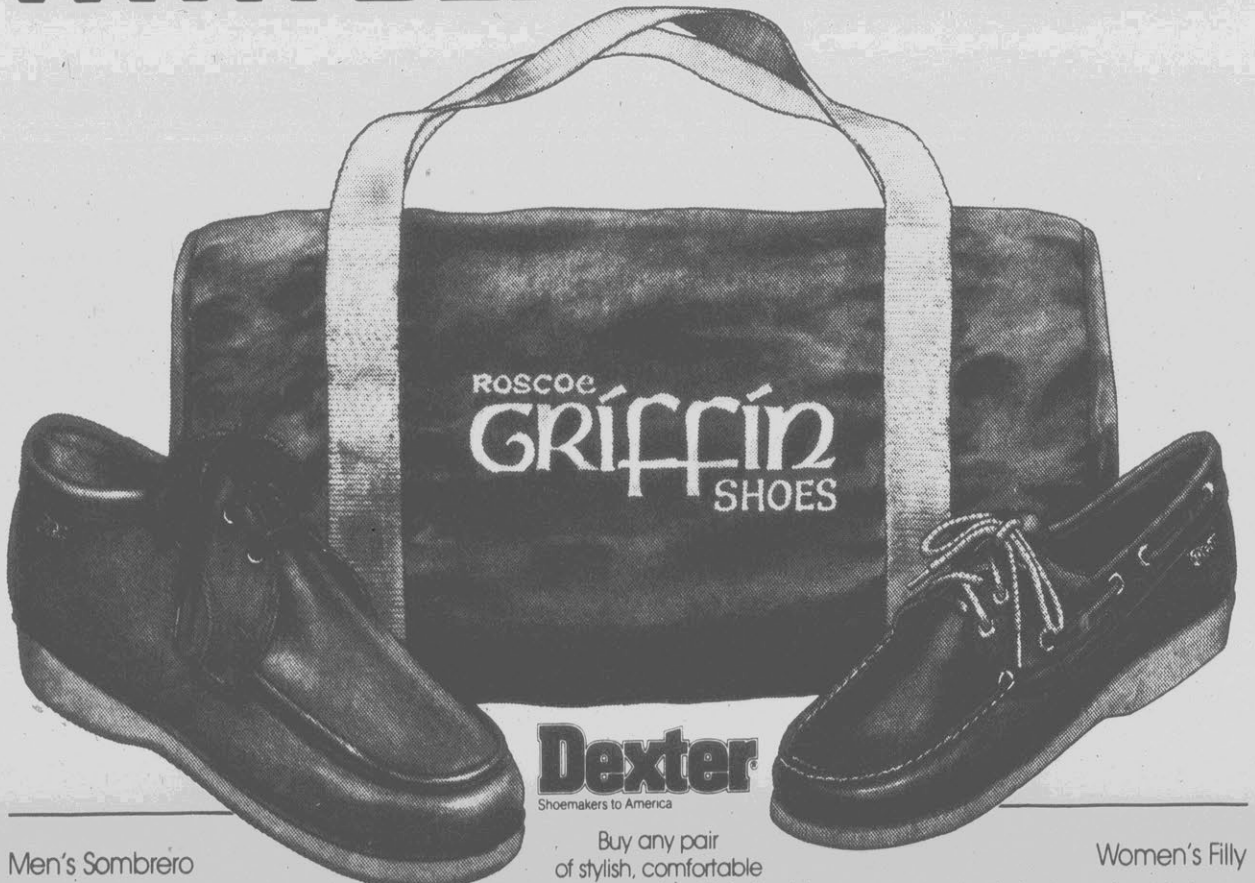

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Police rescued seven members of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party from being burned to death by a 50-member Marxist mob in Kerala state, the state's home affairs minister told reporters.

The mob chopped off one man's leg when he tried to run away from the house in which Congress Party members had taken shelter, Vayalar Ravi told reporters.

The mob, members of a Marxist youth group, chased the Congress members into the house and set it afire after a prolonged siege, the minister said.

Birds Seen Flying Back To Island

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
The birds are coming back to Christmas Island.

The National Science Foundation reported Sunday that, six months after millions of birds staged a mass exodus from Christmas Island in the Pacific Ocean, the birds are returning.

The unprecedented disappearance of approximately 17 million birds was first reported in March by Dr. Ralph W. Schreiber, curator of ornithology at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County in California.

Schreiber has since returned to the island, the science foundation reported, and found that at least some of the birds are returning.

Most of the 18 species that disappeared have reappeared in small numbers, the foundation reported.

And it said that three species have begun breeding in numbers approaching their population prior to the fall of 1982, when the mass disappearance occurred. Those there are black noddies, crested terns and lesser frigatebirds.

Scientists blamed the disappearance on an unusual weather phenomenon known as El Nino, which caused changes in Pacific wind patterns, ocean currents and water temperatures. El Nino, a Spanish reference to the Christ Child, is so named because it usually appears every few years around Christmas time.

This phenomenon, which has resulted in unusual weather around the world for more than a year, is responsible for shifts in the fish population. Schreiber suspects the birds abandoned Christmas Island because the fish they depend upon for food had left.

"The recovery of the bird populations depends on the food supply in the waters surrounding the island," Schreiber said.

And, he added, "ocean and atmosphere scientists are unsure of the future directions for the El Nino conditions and cannot now predict what will happen to the birds in coming months."

That some species are breeding again is a good sign, however, as thousands of chicks were left behind when the birds left the island. Schreiber said that some species lost an entire generation.

Most of the birds are long-lived, however, and he indicated that the breeding disruption should not cause them to die out.

Where the birds went is still a question, however.

Schreiber has speculated that many of them merely took to the air over distant waters looking for food. They live on fish and squid and can remain airborne for long periods, floating on air currents and swooping down to feed.

There are other islands 60 miles to 100 miles away, Schreiber has said.

Christmas Island, the world's largest coral atoll at 200 square miles, is part of the Republic of Kiribati, formerly known as the Gilbert Islands.

It has a population of between 1,500 and 2,000 people and got its name because it was discovered by British explorer, Captain James Cook, on Christmas Eve 1777.

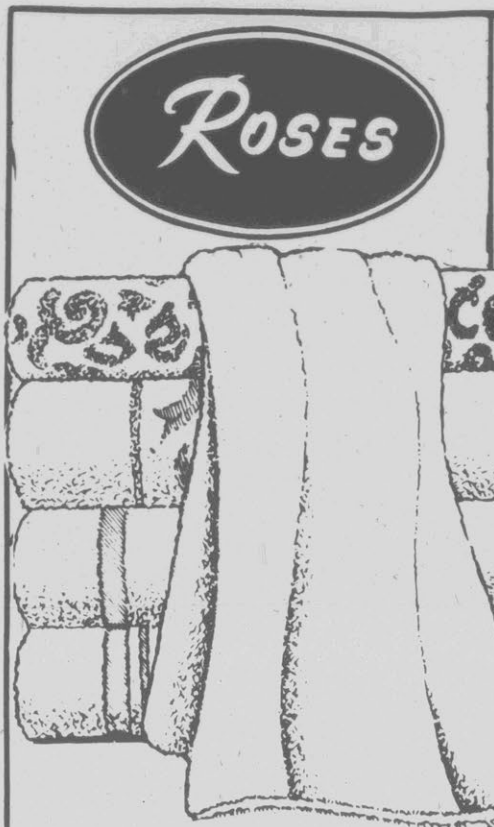

Slight Pay Cut

By Bookkeeping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most white collar federal workers will get a slight pay cut in October when the government begins to use a new bookkeeping procedure to compute their salaries.

The change, which is expected to save the federal government $120 million a year, adds seven hours to the work year, thereby reducing the hourly salary of the affected workers. Congress enacted the bookkeeping method in last year's budget reconciliation bill.

The typical white-collar federal worker in the Washington area will lose $3.40 per paycheck. Blue collar employees will not be affected by the change. The change will affect most of the government's 1.4 million white collar workers.

Mr. and Mrs. D.H. Conley, C.D. Ward, Bertha Hart Tripp and Mrs. George Clapp were recognized as special guests by Ernest Leroy Avery.

Mildred Rouse Peede was recognized as traveling the greatest distance and R.H. and Betty McLawhorn for having the most grandchildren.

School Lunch Times Are Changed

A change in arrangements in three of the city schools relative to serving of meals has been announced by Supt. of Greenville City Schools Dr. Delma Blinson.

Eastern Elementary and South Greenville Elementary Schools are serving lunches today, tomorrow and Friday prior to the 12 noon early dismissal hour. Aycock Junior High is serving lunches on these three days prior to the 1 p.m. early dismissal hour.

The previously announced early dismissal schedule for the first three days of school remain unchanged — 12 noon for kindergarten through grade six; 12:30 p.m. for Greenville Middle School; and 1 p.m. for grades 8 through 12.

A decision will be made by the school staff on Friday relative to operation hours of the city schools for the coming week.

Student Bikes To Massachusetts

Sean Farley of Greenville bicycled solo from here to Massachusetts this summer.

Between June 6 and June 21, the 17-year-old Rose High School student biked the 680 miles to Rochester, Mass., where he served as a counselor at Camp Snipatuit. He also took a side canoe trip in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania with friends he visited in New York.

Farley is the son of Charlotte Purrington of Greenville.

Burglary Charge Is Made

Greenville police arrested Charles Person, 19, of 600B Clark St., after he allegedly entered the home of Rachael Black Short at 1804 Norcott Circle through a bathroom window and took $120 worth of property from the home.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers took Person into custody shortly after the burglary was reported at 3:35 a.m. and recovered a pocketbook, wallet, drugs and sissors that were taken.

Person, according to Cannon, was charged with first degree burglary and larceny after breaking and entering.

Commodity Day Plans Discussed

Plans for the statewide commodity day were discussed at the meeting of the Pitt County Farm Bureau board of directors held Tuesday night.

The event, for all committee chairmen, will be held Sept. 2 at 10 a.m. at the N.C. Farm Bureau. Representing Pitt County will be Gene Paramore, field crops; Atlas Wooten, tobacco; Ben Gardner, livestock; David H. Smith, poultry; Tom Carson, peanuts; Alma Worthington, law and order; and Charles McLawhorn, dairy.

Mrs. Worthington announced the annual R. Flake Shaw Scholarship auction sale will be held Nov. 5 in Raleigh.

Carson was recognized as a new board member representing Bethel. Senator Vernon White was a special guest.

Money Is Taken For Safe

Greenville police are investigating the theft of money from a safe at Huckleberry's on Charles Street that occurred between 3:30 a.m., when the restaurant closed, and 6 a.m. when employees returned to the building.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the thieves gained entrance to the building through a vent on the roof, took an undetermined amount of money from a small safe in the office, and left the building through a rear door.

Police Car Damaged In Wreck

The North Carolina Highway Patrol reported today that an estimated $900 damage resulted to a Greenville Police Department car when the vehicle collided with a utility pole at the intersection of Fifth and Vance Streets about 9:35 p.m. Tuesday.

Trooper Donnie Taylor said Artis Leona Briley of 903A Colonial Ave., was charged with failing to yield the right of way in connection with the mishap.

According to Taylor, Briley allegedly pulled from Vance Street into the path of the police vehicle, driven by Officer Byron M. Highland.

Highland, Taylor said, swerved to avoid a collision with the Briley car and struck a utility pole.

No damage resulted to the Briley car, Taylor said.

Unanswered Questions Linger In Marcos' Rival Assassination

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP)

— Four days after the assassination of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' chief political opponent, there are still a host of unanswered questions about the slaying of Benigno Aquino.

Government investigators have revealed only meager clues to the identity of the man they say fired one shot from a Smith and Wesson .357 Magnum through the head of the 50-year-old opposition leader.

The investigators said "Rolly" — a common nickname for Filipinos named Rolando — was embroidered on his underwear, and he was wearing a ring with the letter "R" on it.

They said he was between 30 and 35 years old, of medium build, 5 feet 7, and dressed in the uniform of an airport utility man.

Investigators headed by

Gen. Prospero Olivas said they had interviewed 70 witnesses, but they were not able to help in the identification.

The government says the lone man dashed toward Aquino after he emerged from a Nationalist Chinese jetliner with three bodyguards, shot him in the back of the head, and then was shot and killed by military men detailed to escort Aquino.

A Japanese freelance reporter aboard the plane, Kiyoshi Wakamiya, 37, claimed in a TV interview that he looked out the window and saw two of the three bodyguards "shoot at Mr. Aquino's head from a close range." But the Japanese newspaper Asahi said he told it, "I saw the officers draw their pistols and heard the crack of two gunshots. I didn't see who fired the shots."

Wakamiya flew to Japan Monday under the protection of the Japanese Embassy, the embassy said.

Nobody else aboard the plane, including Aquino's brother-in-law, said he saw the assassination.

Among the unanswered questions:

How did the alleged killer know where Aquino would be taken off the plane and how was he able to time his movements to meet his victim just as he stepped onto Philippine soil?

Why did the military guards prevent foreign reporters and photographers from viewing Aquino's arrival? Local photographers had been told by a colonel Aquino would come out one exit of the plane and only rushed to within view of the right one after the shooting was over.

Why did the military take Aquino off the plane when the government announced it would bar him from landing if he didn't have valid travel papers? How did the alleged assassin fire a bullet on what an autopsy said was a downward trajectory into the head of a man who was about his height?

Why was Aquino's body rushed away and that of the alleged assassin left on the ground for viewing by reporters five hours later?

Political killings are not unusual in the Philippines, and many remain unsolved. Among them is the bombing on Aug. 21, 1971, of an opposition rally in which 12 people were killed. That was 12 years to the day before Aquino was assassinated.

Fire Razes Warehouse

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Seven firefighters were injured Tuesday while battling a blaze that destroyed a peanut-filled warehouse at the Planters Mill Co., authorities said.

Some 90 firefighters were called to battle the blaze, about three times the number normally needed. The extra firefighters were called because of the heat caused by the flames and a statewide heat wave, authorities said.

The cause of the fire, the second in seven months at the plant site, has not been determined, Rocky Mount Fire Chief J.E. Hawkins said.

The seven firefighters were treated at Nash General Hospital Tuesday, with one being admitted for observation. Two other firefighters were being examined late Tuesday night. The seven suffered burns and heat exhaustion, hospital officials said.

Allen Smith of Rocky Mount was in fair condition after suffering from smoke inhalation, a hospital spokesman said.

The fire broke out about 10:45 a.m. in a metal warehouse containing peanuts and peanut hulls, Hawkins said. He said no estimate of the losses to the plant were available.

There were no initial indication that the fire was deliberately set, Hawkins said.

"We can't determine the cause until we get in there and investigate," he said.

Moonies Plan For Charlotte Center

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A 13-member team from the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church says it will establish a church in Charlotte next week.

Team leaders say they will set up a "video learning center" and find a place for the center's staff to live.

The team is part of the International One World Crusade, a wave of evangelism the church's founder and leader ordered last spring.

The team has been working in Charlotte since Aug. 1, distributing literature on the church.

Leaders of the team are Robert Carvell, a native of England who is now a New York City businessman, and John Wilt of Raleigh, director of the church's work in North Carolina.

Wilt said there are only about a dozen Unification Church members in the state. There are Unification student groups on six campuses, including North Carolina State University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"One of our goals is to get up some kind of center for the North Carolina staff to use and for future mission terms to use when they are passing through," Carvell said. "Right now, we don't even have a phone number for people to call if they're interested in what we're doing."

Create A Fund For 'Cooling'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Public Service Co. of North Carolina Inc. has created an emergency cooling fund to help customers pay air-conditioning bills.

The program was originally intended as a heating fund, said C. Frederick Ward, division office manager in Raleigh. "But who would have thought we would have had (the heat) we've had in the past week," he said.

The company, which serves 12 counties, has contributed $20,000 to be distributed through Salvation Army offices. The company will match every $3 donated with $1 from corporate funds. Donations and applications for help are being handled by the Salvation Army.

New Eruption

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The 987-foot Mount Colo volcano on Unauna island erupted Monday, emitting ash and smoke reaching an altitude of 15,000 feet, the official Antara News Agency reported Tuesday.

About 7,000 inhabitants on Unauna, 1,100 miles northeast of Jakarta, were evacuated to Ampana, 80 miles to the south, when the volcano erupted on July 14.

Lethal Heat Wave Shows No Sign Of Easing

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO
Associated Press Writer

A sizzling heat wave that has claimed 15 lives and "just keeps getting hotter" marked time in the South today, locked in by a powerful front along the Mason-Dixon line, with 100-degree highs expected through the weekend.

Students left sweltering schools early on Tuesday, the elderly stayed at air-conditioned shelters, soybean and hay crops withered and thousands of chickens died in the heat.

"The culprit right now is a front that's wandering almost along the Mason-Dixon line, a barrier that won't allow cooler air in from the west," said Harry Gordon, a meteorologist for the National Weather Service Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

"It just keeps getting hotter all the time," Gordon said today, adding that no relief is in sight at least until the weekend.

The mercury soared over the century mark Tuesday in the Carolinas, Georgia, Virginia, Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee, but the nation's hot spot was Gila Bend, Ariz., where the high was 107 degrees. In the South, Athens, Ga., suffered through 105-degree heat, the highest in the region.

Relief could come from rain spawned by the season's second tropical storm, Barry, now located about 200 miles east of Florida's Atlantic coast. But the slow-moving storm isn't expected to come within 65 miles of a major coastal city before Thursday or Friday, the weather service said.

Further west, torrential rains in Arkansas and Tennessee temporarily doused parched ground, but officials said lightning from the storm sparked a grass fire at Little Rock, Ark., a symptom of the summer's chronic dryness.

The rains drove winds gusting to 60 mph through mid-Tennessee Tuesday, knocking out power to 12,000 customers. The storm's silver lining was a 15-degree drop in temperatures that peaked at 102 degrees in Jackson, Tenn. More 100-plus temperatures were forecast for today, however.

In Nashville, schools closed after only one full day of the new academic year when officials measured indoor temperatures at 98 degrees in some of the city's 1,214 non-air conditioned classrooms.

Stores reported a run on fans and air conditioners.

"We've sold everything we can lay our hands on," said Betty Gibbons, an appliance clerk at a Nashville Sears store. "And we were about the only people in town that had anything left. We just can't keep anything in stock."

"It's terrible," said Meg Siegenthaler, a seventh-grader at West End Middle School in Nashville, of her sticky classroom. "You can concentrate, but it's hard. Even if there's a fan, not everyone is next to it."

Classes were also cut short or canceled in Alabama, Georgia and Texas.

A round-the-clock heat shelter was to open today in North Little Rock, Ark., with instructions to remain open until afternoon highs dip below 100 degrees.

In Alabama, where five people have died in the current heat spell, state Civil Defense Director Dan Turner opened 11 relief centers in Madison County on the Tennessee border.

North Alabama hasn't had a good rain since early July, said state Agriculture commissioner Alton McDonald, adding that crop damage could run into the millions. "There's not a green pasture up there. Without rain soon the soybean crop will be a total disaster."

Farm news was bad in Ohio, where the Ohio Crop

Reporting Service said 90 percent of fields are short of moisture and Gov. Richard Celeste considered adding 27 more counties to his plea for federal disaster aid. Neighboring Indiana has already been granted federal aid, which makes farmers eligible for emergency loans at 8 percent interest. The heat fried some 900,000 chickens to death in Georgia, and dairy yields were down. Only 8 percent of Georgia's farm fields have adequate moisture, according to the Georgia Crop Reporting Service, with hay and soybean production decimated.

While about 200 people died in a July heat wave across the country, the temperature since Saturday has been blamed for five deaths in Alabama, two each in Georgia, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky and one each in North Carolina and Illinois.

Slightly Better In Bar Exams

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Of the 479 North Carolina law school graduates who took the July bar exam for the first time, 364 passed, according to deans of the state's five law schools.

The 76 percent success rate is a slight improvement over last year when 74 percent of the first-time applicants passed.

Faircloth Recalls 'Seconds Of Mayhem' In Crash

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gubernatorial candidate D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth, who swam away from the burning wreckage of a twin-engine airplane Monday night, said Tuesday it was sheer luck that none of the four men aboard were killed or seriously injured.

Faircloth, who suffered minor burns on his hand from flaming gasoline, said he remembered the plane hitting water on the grass runway, crashing through trees and crashing in flames in the Catawba River.

"The great thing was, any one of a dozen things could have not happened exactly as it did ... and it would have been a total disaster," the former state commerce secretary said in an informal news conference at his Raleigh campaign headquarters.

The plane crashed into the river shortly after taking off from Marion Airport following a campaign speech. Fair-cloth said crashing on land or into heavier timber would have been disastrous and that everyone needed to be alert to escape the spreading gasoline-fed flames.

"The plane was totally engulfed in flames in seconds," he said, adding that flames up to 50 feet high shot from the wreckage.

Faircloth recalled that the airstrip was foggy during takeoff, but refused to speculate on what caused the crash.

Once the plane was down,
Faircloth, deputy press aide Brad Crone and pilots
Leighton Elliott and Manuel Sowers made their ways without speaking through the hatches and into the water.

Crone was uninjured and the two pilots had bruises.
"As I remember, Manuel said he couldn't swim and someone said, 'Well, float,'" Faircloth said. "I don't remember any other conversation."

Elliott, contacted by telephone Tuesday, declined to comment on the cause of the crash until the Federal Aviation Administration had completed its investigation.

Crone said he was the first to escape the plane, crawling through the top half of a hatch while Faircloth struggled with the bottom.

"When Faircloth went out,
he went into fire," Crone said. "He started beating it away with his hand. He burned his arm."

"Brad Crone went through the top door before I could get the bottom open," Faircloth said. "The fire was beginning to come in the plane, so I jumped into the water."

Gene Padgett, manager of Marion Airport, said it was incredible anyone survived the crash.

"The airplane hit the trees, spun around and spewed wreckage for a quarter of a mile before it crashed in the river," Padgett said. "It was burned to a crisp. All you can see this morning is the tail section."

Faircloth estimated the flight, from takeoff to crash, lasted about 10-12 seconds.

"It didn't last long enough to get bored," he said.

"We went fairly directly to shore," Faircloth said, a distance he estimated at 250 feet. "That was the way away from the flames. We had worked our way through the woods and back to the runway by the time the rescue squad saw us."

Faircloth, still in the clothes he wore in the crash, noted that his coat was still in the cockpit and that his tie was hanging on an oak tree.
But he said he had no plans to avoid flying.

"This is something that happens," he said. "We were lucky and you go out tomorrow and do what you need to do."

Crone also appeared unrattled by the experience, although he took some rib-bing about his rapid escape from the plane.

"Just for the record, I just went out to see how deep the water was," he said.

AFTER THE CRASH — Gubernatorial candidate Lauch Faircloth speaks at an impromptu news conference in Raleigh a day after he escaped from a burning plane at Marion. His right hand was burned when he pushed flaming gasoline aside in the Catawba River, where the plane came to earth. (AP Laserphoto)

Rural Mud Creek Folk To Get A Clinic

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer
GRETHEL, Ky. (AP) — When Eula Hall was growing up, medical care was a luxury few people along Mud Creek could afford.

"I never saw a doctor but twice when I was a kid," said Mrs. Hall, 55. "Everybody just tried to work hard and stay as well as they could."

Sometimes that was not enough.

"Our neighbor had five children and she stuck a nail in her leg," she recalled. "She was going down the steps and a step broke. She died of tetanus and left those little kids. And she was a young woman."

"A lot of people's lives could have been saved if they'd had proper medical attention," she said.

Mrs. Hall remembered. In 1972, her struggle to start a clinic in the rugged eastern Kentucky hills succeeded. It was "just a dream come true," she said.

The dream faded last year, when the Mud Creek Clinic burned. But the fire also ignited national attention and support.

Last week, with $400,000 in federal and local funds in the bank, the Mud Creek Community Health Corp. advertised for bids to build a new, 5,400-square-foot building.

"We're hoping to be in it by next summer," Mrs. Hall said.

What finally got the clinic built 11 years ago was a screening of Mud Creek residents by the Center for Health Services at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

Black lung, diabetes, hypertension and poor nutrition were common. "They found so many medical problems, and so many people that couldn't afford health care," said Mrs. Hall, who has no formal medical training.

And the people tended not to seek it. Without funds, Mrs. Hall said, "You could maybe get seen once. But people didn't go back for their followup care because of lack of money. People have a lot of pride."

The clinic started in a small building on Tinker Fork. By July 1974, "we outgrew the building," Mrs. Hall said. "I moved out of my house and renovated it for the clinic."

It operated at the house on Mink Branch until last summer's fire. The blaze did not shut down the clinic, though.

"We had the telephone company put us a phone on a willow tree, and we saw some patients in the yard while it was still smoldering," Mrs. Hall said.

The clinic next moved into schoolrooms at Grethel, then to a trailer and two mobile homes on a dusty lot behind a gas station.

Since 1977, when a change in the United Mine Workers union health plan ended the major source of funds that kept the clinic independent, it has been part of the federal Big Sandy Health Care agency at Prestonsburg.

Mrs. Hall said she didn't mind joining the federal agency because "I don't think there's any better way to spend a federal dollar than health care."

The clinic sees about 50 patients a day, including miners with black lung disease.

"And we have the children. We just see everybody. Nobody is denied service," Mrs. Hall said. "Instead of taking every dollar somebody has got for health care, they pay according to their income."

Besides the physicians who serve at Mud Creek and the other Big Sandy Health Care facilities, the clinic also has a family nurse practitioner, pharmacist, laboratory technician and medical students who work for course credits.

The entire staff turned out to examine children after a recent school bus accident, she said, and one nurse-practitioner stayed at the scene of a mine disaster last year at Craynor, hoping to help "until the last body was brought out."

Patients who need hospital care are taken to McDowell, seven miles away over a mountain that can be impassable in winter, or "20 rugged country miles" to Pikeville.

Mrs. Hall frequently takes people to Pikeville to help them apply for food stamps, Social Security and disability or other benefits because "a lot of people don't read and understand" the applications.

The new building will be financed through the Mud Creek corporation by a $320,000 Appalachian Regional Commission grant and $80,000 in matching donations. The mobile homes now housing the clinic will be converted to a dental facility.

Local businesses and "people all up and down Mud Creek" poured donations into Box 129 at Grethel, Mrs. Hall said. "And we got donations from people all over the United States who read the story of the fire and what we were doing. We raised the $80,000 in three months."

The corporation will lease the building to Big Sandy Health Care, "but the building itself will belong to the community," Mrs. Hall said.

Miracle Helps Burglar Escape

PAIGNTON, England (AP) — A would-be cat burglar slipped from a rope over a Woolworth's department store in this southwest England town, crashed through a corrugated plastic roof and fell three stories to a concrete floor, police said Tuesday.

He then vaulted a seven-foot gate and vanished into the night before police could arrive.

"He is extraordinarily lucky," store manager Dan Hyde said. "I think the police expected to find a body."

Hyde said burglar tools were found on the floor, but nothing had been stolen.

Russians Welcome More American Tourists

EDITOR'S NOTE — Associated Press Writer Timothy Harper was one of 30 lawyers on a two-week legal study tour of the Soviet Union earlier this summer. By TIMOTHY HARPER, Associated Press Writer. MOSCOW (AP) — When the Aeroflot flight had lifted off for Kiev, the Russian flight attendants offered soft drinks to their American passengers.

They also asked the Americans, most of them lawyers, to sign "petitions for peace." They said the petitions supported nuclear disarmament and would be "sent to the generals."

"What generals? Where?" one lawyer asked.

"In the Pentagon," one attendant replied.

American tourists are going to the Soviet Union in unprecedented numbers this year, according to Russian and American tourism industry officials.

The dollar is strong. Prices are low. The political climate has made Americans more interested in seeing the Soviet Union. And Russians are more interested in showing it to them — and using the opportunity for driving home their own views on world peace and nuclear armaments.

"There's a big drive for tourism in the Soviet Union," said James Elmstrom, executive vice president of Professional Seminar Consultants of Oceanside, N.Y.

His company is sending 6,000 Americans to the Soviet Union this year, including the 30 lawyers who were offered the "peace petitions."

Elmstrom said he felt more Americans wanted to see the Soviet Union for themselves because of the nuclear freeze movement and Reagan administration criticism of Soviet arms policies.

"I suppose the Russians feel it is good enterprise," he said. "And it's a good way for them to make contact, to tell their side of the story."

Last month, the Russians made two friendly gestures, travel agents say. One gesture was the release of several Greenpeace members who had been arrested while photographing a Soviet whaling operation. The other was the two-week tour of the Soviet Union by Samantha Smith, an 11-year-old Maine schoolgirl.

Samantha and her parents were the guests of the Soviet government after she wrote a letter to President Yuri Andropov. At one point she was asked to sign a "ballot for peace" supporting nuclear disarmament, but her parents had her decline.

"The Russians are involved in a peace offensive," said Michael Brainerd of the Citizen Exchange Council, another New York agency that arranges group "specialty" tours.

One group might be mostly mostly mathematics teachers, another mostly high school students, a third mostly cross-country skiers. Besides the usual sightseeing, these tours include scheduled meetings with Russian mathematics teachers, high school students and cross-country skiers.

The "petitions for peace" were offered to the lawyers during a five-city tour in which they did the usual sightseeing, attended trials and met in small groups with Soviet judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys, law professors and Justice Ministry officials.

Throughout the trip, the Americans were offered books of essays and speeches by Soviet leaders blaming the United States for the arms race. And Russian tour guides and lawyers who spoke English told the attorneys that the Soviet Union wanted peace and supported nuclear disarmament.

"The sacred duty of every lawyer is to contribute to the survival of humanity," I.I. Lukashuk, an international law professor, told the Americans in Kiev.

Dan Rubock, a New York City lawyer, said he was surprised when a law professor told him Russians believed the United States wanted war. "He thought we want to nuke 'em back to the Stone Age," Rubock said.

Some of the American lawyers were struck by the similarities between the U.S. and Soviet legal systems. "I was impressed by the parallels," said Theresa Player, a University of San Diego law professor.

"They have substantially more rights than I thought," Gerald Jibilian of Greenwich, Conn., said.

Others, however, were more skeptical. Phyllis Weisberg of Freeport, N.Y., said, "I don't know how much of what we saw was real."

"As in any country, they're showing you the best side of the Soviet Union," said Elmstrom. "They're not going to show you any problems."

Elmstrom said the tourism industry expected to send 50,000 to 60,000 Americans to the Soviet Union this year, twice the number sent last year.

U.S. and Soviet officials agreed that American tourism to the Soviet Union was up dramatically, but had no exact figures. "It's certainly busier than it has been," said John Zimmerman, a spokesman for the State Department's Soviet desk in Washington.

Felix Desyadnikov, a spokesman in New York for Intourist, the official Soviet tourism agency, said, "There is considerably more American tourism to the Soviet Union this year than last year. We are happy about it."

Again Calls For Defense Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a meeting with the defense minister of Japan, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger renewed his call for the island nation to increase its defense buildup.

During a 90-minute meeting with Defense Minister Kazuo Tanikawa, Weinberger said Japan's 6.88 percent increase in defense spending for 1984 was insufficient, according to sources who spoke on the condition they not be identified by name.

In a statement issued after the meeting, Weinberger said Japan's primary military role should be the defense of Pacific sea lanes as far as 1,000 miles from the island nation.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices headed lower today, extending the decline that set in Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 3.15 to 1,189.74 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders' mood was dominated by uneasiness over the interest-rate outlook and the recent listless performance of the stock market.

The Dow Jones industrial average has been fluctuating between 1,160 and 1,210 since the end of last month. During that period, trading volume has been relatively light — a signal to market-watchers that many investors have lost their enthusiasm for stocks for the time being.

Today's early prices included American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 66½; Sony, down ¼ at 13½; Johnson & Johnson, off ¼ at 41½; and National Semiconductor, up ¾ at 48.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrials fell 10.26 points to 1,192.89.

More than two stocks declined in price for every one that rose on the NYSE.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .83 to 94.27. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.99 at 229.67.

Say 6 Injured In 3 Collisions

Six persons were reported injured and an estimated $8,200 damage caused in a series of three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted about 4:27 p.m. at the intersection of Fourth and Summit Streets, when a car driven by Steven Edward Garrett of 1404 North Overlook Drive collided with a car driven by Janine Scott Byrd of 108 Chipaway Drive. The force of the impact, police said, caused the Byrd car to careen out of control and collide with a city bus driven by Melvin Douglas Harrison of 1203B Myrtle Ave.

Investigators, who said Ms. Byrd, Harrison and four of the eight passengers on the bus were injured, estimated damage at $700 to the Garrett car, $2,500 to the Byrd vehicle and $500 to the bus.

Garrett was charged with driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

A truck driven by Ronald Redmond of Route 5, Greenville, and cars operated by Patricia Jenkins of 618 Hudson St., and James Norman Graham of 604 McKinley Ave., collided about 12:23 p.m. at the intersection of Farmville Boulevard and Bancroft Street.

Damage from the collision was set at $2,000 to the truck, $150 to the Jenkins car and $1,500 to the Graham auto.

Mary Harrington Pezulla of 1605 Canterbury Road, was charged with following too close following investigation of a 5:31 p.m. collision on Evans Street, 200 feet south of the Deck Street intersection.

Police said the Pezulla car collided with a truck operated by James Alton Jones of 2708 Tryon Drive, causing $50 damage to the truck and $800 damage to the car.

Grayson Morris of Greenville was in San Francisco Aug. 6-20 as a volunteer worker in the offices of the Hunger Project.

A Hunger Project community volunteer since she was 15, Ms. Morris, 17, was invited to stay with Hunger Project staff member Carol McIntosh and work in the offices of the organization set up to provide the context for eliminating hunger in the world by 1997. Her work began the night she arrived, she said, and continued throughout her visit, sometimes up to 20 hours a day.

A rising senior at the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics, Ms. Morris said she will work in the Hunger Project office next year the full three

Many Victims Of Collapses

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The governor of Cairo says 1,424 people were killed, injured or left homeless in the collapses of buildings in Egypt last year.

A spokesman for Governor Youssef Sabry Abu Taleb confirmed press reports about the governor's statement, but said a breakdown of the categories of victims was not available.

Last weekend, 36 people were killed and 26 injured in collapses in Cairo and the resort city of Alexandria. Most of the buildings that collapsed were constructed illegally, without building permits.

Short Toss Wins In Pan Am Shot Put

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — You have to go back to 1955 to find a winning shot put at the Pan American Games that covered so little ground.

Luis Delis of Cuba won the first event on the Pan Am track and field program Tuesday with a toss of 59 feet, 10½ inches, a distance that some high schoolers would sneer at. It was the weakest gold-medal shot put since American Parry O'Brien won with a 57-8½ in the 1955 games.

How did it happen? At least in part because of a spreading drug crackdown, in which 11 weightlifters were caught with steroids in their bodies and eight of them — including Jeff Michels of Chicago — were stripped of their Pan Am medals.

After this strict drug testing was made known, 12 American track and field athletes abruptly left South America for home.

Two of the 12, Jesse Stuart of Hitchcock, Texas, and Ian Pyka of College Park, Md., were shotputters who had been expected to finish one-two at Caracas. Stuart's best performance is 68-5 and Pyka's career best is 67-1¼.

The only American medal in two track finals was a bronze in the 10,000-meter run, by Mark Nenow of Lexington, Ky.

Nevertheless, U.S. athletes still have a wide lead in gold and overall medals, despite the pall cast by the drug scandal. The United States has 89 gold medals and 184 overall, followed by Cuba with 55 and 117, Canada 10-76 and Venezuela 3-38.

The American gold total was reduced by three with the elimination of Michels' weightlifting triumphs in the 243-pound class. Cuba lost six golds as triple winners Daniel Nunez, a world record-holder at 132 pounds, and Alberto Blanco also were stripped.

Both countries got the losses back Tuesday as U.S. wrestlers won four gold medals and the Cubans five in freestyle wrestling, plus the surprising victory by Delis.

Cyclist Rory O'Reilly of Palo Alto, Calif., won the first event of the day, the one-kilometer race against the clock in 1 minute, 5.54 seconds.

U.S. teams continued to look strong in baseball, beating the Dominican Republic 11-2, in men's softball, ending Canada's unbeaten record with a 6-1 victory; men's basketball, with a 111-97 victory over the Canadians; and in women's basketball, with a 100-82 decision over defending champion Cuba.

For two hours Tuesday night, things stopped in this city of 3½ million as the championship in soccer, was decided. The game was a thriller, with Uruguay winning 1-0, over Brazil for its first Pan Am gold medal.

But the drug news did not stop with the 11 weightlifters and the dozen American departures.

The Chilean delegation announced that its top cyclist, Fernando Vera, had been suspended for a month because a test showed steroids in his system. Vera said he had used steroids two months ago to help repair an atrophied muscle.

The Pan Am Games organization brought forward the biggest crackdown on drug use in international sports history, using a top-of-the-line laboratory testing system for steroids and other drugs that was developed in Cologne, West Germany.

When the first four weightlifters were caught Monday, team doctors and coaches met with America's track and field athletes.

"We knew about the situation, about testing," Mike Marlow, a triple jumper from Los Angeles, told ABC Radio as he prepared to leave Caracas early Tuesday with 12 teammates. "We knew that a strict test could find anything — caffeine, alcohol, anything."

Only one of the 13 who left, long jumper Randy Williams, whose wife had just had a baby, officially had an explanation.

F. Don Miller, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said the withdrawal from the games "should not be taken as an implication of guilt, or interpreted in any similar manner."

But William E. Simon, president of the USOC, said upon arriving in New York with the athletes that they had "chosen not to compete" after being told of the strict drug tests.

And Miller and Evie G. Dennis, mission chief of the U.S. delegation, also made it plain that use of anabolic steroids or any other drugs by American athletes would be punished.

A statement said the USOC stands behind the decisions of the athletes who will not compete, but in the same sentence the committee said it stands "even more firmly behind this long-needed awakening of all of amateur sports to the dangers of reliance on banned substances which are used to increase performance in the arena of sport."

Simon made it clear that the sophisticated testing would be used again at the Olympics in Los Angeles next year.

He called athlete-drug users "cheaters," and added, "We have to make sure to the best of our ability that, in the Olympics Games in 1984, that athletes will not be participating in this abuse."

Cliff Wiley, a 400-meter runner from Baltimore, said he agreed with his teammates' decision to leave.

"If they had competed here and gotten caught and banned," he said, "they would have been stupid, and we don't have any stupid athletes."

The names of all 11 offenders here have been turned over to their national Olympic committees and the international weightlifting federation for possible sanctions besides the loss of Pan Am medals and records.

Anabolic steroids are synthetically produced hormones, originally developed to help the aged. But doctors found that the steroids can add bulk to muscle, and athletes — especially weightlifters and track's shot-putters and hammer throwers — have been found to be using the drugs.

But their chances of competing in the Olympics are now limited by the intensity of the testing. Some steroids reportedly are detectable for a year or more.

Of the 12 track athletes who left after being told of the tests, six competed in either the shot put, hammer or discus.

In addition to Stuart and Pyka, they were discus throwers Paul Bishop of Southgate, Calif., and Greg McSeveney of Norwalk, Calif., and hammer throwers Dave McKenzie, the American record-holder from Fairfield, Ore., and John McArdle of Eugene, Ore.

Andujar Bounces Back With Four-Hit Shutout

By The Associated Press

"I'm just doing the same thing I did last year. I'm not doing anything different," said Joaquin Andujar.

Well, not quite. "You need luck. If you don't have luck, you're in trouble," he added. "Last year I had better luck than this year."

Obviously. Last year Andujar was one of the stars of St. Louis' world championship pitching staff, winning 15 games and leading the Cardinals' staff in earned-run average at 2.47. This year Andujar has lost 13 games and his ERA is 3.93.

But on Tuesday night, he turned things around, pitching a four-hitter as the Cards routed Atlanta 7-0 for their sixth consecutive victory. David Green and George Hendrick provided the power with home runs.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston swept a two-night doubleheader in Pittsburgh 6-5 and 2-1, San Francisco defeated Philadelphia 3-1, Los Angeles beat Montreal 6-3, New York ripped San Diego 8-3 and Cincinnati downed Chicago 4-2.

"I knew it had to change," Andujar said after winning for the first time since July 1. "You have to believe in God and your teammates. If you believe in that, you have to win sometime. I wanted this game. We needed it."

"It's getting late for us," he added. "The club has to play perfect to get to the World Series. If we get starting pitching like this for the next month, we'll be all right."

Catcher Glenn Brummer called the victory "the start of the playoffs right now. There's going to be a four-team race (with Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Montreal). It's going to be very exciting. Hopefully, we'll end up winning."

In the bottom of the fourth inning, Green jolted Atlanta's Pete Falcone for a two-run homer and Hendrick followed with a solo shot.

Astros 6-2, Pirates 5-1. The last time Houston swept Pittsburgh in a doubleheader the Astros were called the Colt .45s. It was 1962, the team's first year in the league. It had lost four in a row before stunning the Bucs. "We were looking to break out and we picked a great time," said Manager Bob Lillis.

"We'll be back tomorrow," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner. "This isn't the end of the season." The loss dropped Pittsburgh one-half game behind first-place Philadelphia in the East.

In the first game, Pirates starter John Candelaria took a 5-1 lead into the top of the ninth inning. But he gave up a three-run homer to pinch-hitter Denny Walling, then a succession of relievers failed to kill the rally, Rod Seury giving up a two-run single to Ray Knight for the game-winning hit.

Joe Niekro and Bill Dawley teamed for a seven-hitter in the second game, when the Astros scored twice in the third inning on a walk, Terry Puhl's RBI double and Dickie Thon's run-scoring single.

Giants 3, Phillies 1. Darrell Evans capped a three-run bottom of the eighth against Phils reliever Al Holland with his 26th home run, a two-run shot. Mike Krukow allowed just one unearned run and eight hits over eight innings and Greg Minton earned his 15th save.

"We lose five in a row and we're a half game up," said Phillies Manager Paul Owens. "At least we have one thing going for us — our opponents."

Steve Nicosia, with his third consecutive pinch hit RBI single since joining the Giants from the Pirates last Saturday, tied it 1-1 before Evans slammed his 26th homer of the season.

"That's probably the hardest ball I've hit all year," said Evans. "In that situation. I was going up to hit the long ball, and that's what I did."

Dodgers 6, Expos 3. The Dodgers rode two-run homers by Ken Landreaux and Greg Brock in the seventh inning to their seventh consecutive victory and moved within two games of first-place Atlanta in the West, the closest they've been since July 17.

Montreal's Bryn Smith held LA hitless for 5 1-3 innings. Then, in the bottom of the seventh, after Landreaux's homer put the Dodgers ahead 3-2, Smith hit Mike Marshall with a pitch. Marshall charged the mound, both benches emptied, Marshall and Smith were ejected and Dan Schatzeder took over and gave up Brock's blast.

"No way was he throwing at him," Montreal Manager Bill Virdon said of Smith. And Expos catcher Gary Carter insisted: "I called for a fastball. It just got away. Sure, he was upset after giving up the home run. He wasn't concentrating. The ball got away."

But Marshall wasn't buying that explanation. "He had such good control. He was really shutting us down. He had pinpoint control, then that..."

Mets 8, Padres 3

"I would have just as soon struck out in the eighth and gotten a shutout," said Walt Terrell, the Mets' rookie right-handed pitcher. Instead, Terrell hit a three-run homer in a six-run eighth — his third hit of the game and third homer of the season — before giving up the Padres' three runs in the bottom of the ninth.

"No," he said, "I wasn't tired from running the bases, I just made bad pitches in the ninth. I had made good ones all night 'til then."

Reds 4, Cubs 2

In Chicago, another rookie pitcher, Cincinnati's Jeff Russell, hit a two-run homer and stifled the Cubs on six hits through seven innings to ruin the previously perfect record of their new manager, Charlie Fox, now 1-1 since replacing Lee Elia.

"All I did was swing at it," said Russell. "I've been a good hitter since my high school days when I played shortstop, left field and first base."

Viking Camp Is 'Cautiously Optimistic'

By JIMMY DUPREE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — "Cautious optimism" is the key phrase D.H. Conley head football coach Gerald Garner uses to describe the 1983 Vikings. In his third year of "rebuilding" the program, he thinks Conley will be improved over last year's squad which posted a deceiving 1-8-1 record.

"We were in a lot of close ballgames last year," Garner said. "We held Ayden-Grifton pretty close, and a fumble late in the game against West Carteret cost us. In two years we've lost six games by seven points or less."

"What we do early in the season is very important. We're hoping to get a few rolls of the ball our way."

Several positions are still up for grabs prior to the Vikings' season opener Friday night at Greene Central, with sophomore Joel Cox and junior Steve Mills battling for the quarterback slot in the I-formation attack.

"Joel split time on the jayvee team last year at quarterback," Garner said.

"He's a very good passer, but Mills is the better runner of the two. It's still a toss-up; it all depends on what happens in the last few days of practice."

Senior Leander Maye (5-10, 168) was shifted from fullback to tailback, with junior Donald Blackwell at fullback. Co-captain John Brown and Steve Wilkerson will alternate at wingback, bringing in the plays from the sidelines.

On the offensive line, the strongest returning starter is all-conference tackle Stacy McCarter (5-11, 225), who was chosen team captain. Senior Kenny Dixon (6-0, 231) lines up at the other tackle slot, with junior Ricky Rice (5-10, 193) at center. Senior Robbie Gurganus (5-7, 152) and junior Billy Crawford (5-7, 160) stand in at guard, with Chris Via earning the left end position.

Freshman Brian Joyner and junior James Carmon are competing for the other end position.

"We have a lot more experience now," Garner said. "Most of these kids have been in our program for a couple of years now; most came through our jayvee team. We only have two starters back on offense (McCarter and Brown) and three on defense (McCarter, Brown and Steve McCarter)."

"But looking at it from a realistic standpoint, it's not that bad. We're finally getting some home grown products with the right attitude."

McCarter and Dixon also hold down the tackle slots on defense, with Larry Thomas (5-8, 148) and Gerald Harper (5-10, 215) at guard. Maye and Via are listed as starters at end.

Brown and senior David Daniels are at cornerback in the secondary, with junior Leonard Johnson at safety. Blackwell and senior Todd Hudson won starting berths at linebacker.

"Defense was the bright spot in our scrimmage (against Roanoke)," Garner said. "We had one sustained drive of 70 yards on offense, and they scored on our second team defense."

"We have more strength up front on defense this year; the kids have really done a good job lifting weights since last season. It's hard when you're a linebacker and you can't get any lateral movement because the linemen in front of you has been blown off the line and is falling into you."

"Overall, our defense looked good last year, but we were hurt by the big play. We gave up 24 points a game last year and only averaged scoring 11, so we can't afford to give up the big play."

Garner picks Havelock and White Oak as the top teams of the Coastal 3-A Conference, with White Oak's Stanley

Monk (6-1, 205) as the "premier tailback in the conference."

"We've got a tough schedule; we need an early win," he said. "Our youngsters have a lot of enthusiasm, we just hope they progress. As far as depth is concerned, we're mighty thin. We can't afford many injuries."

"These kids try hard, but some of them haven't been playing long enough and their anticipation has a long way to go. But this has been the most pleasant group to work with; the chemistry is better this year than it has been in the past."

"A lot of people are impatient; they want a winning program. We're trying to build a program at Conley, and that takes time. We'll be improved over last year, but time will tell how much."

Tests Can Show Steroid Use Months Earlier

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Athletes who believe sports folklore that anabolic steroids increase muscle bulk and strength and thus improve performance, will have to cope with sophisticated testing equipment which can trace use of illegal substances months — possibly even a year — after they have stopped taking them.

"The athletes haven't kept up with advances in the scientific community," said Dr. Tony Daly, medical director of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

Eight weightlifters, including triple gold medal winner Jeff Michels of Chicago, were stripped of medals at the Pan American Games this week and 12 United States track and field athletes abruptly left Caracas Tuesday, returning home prior to their scheduled competition.

Daly, a member of the International Olympic Committee's medical commission, said he believed "more sophisticated equipment will discourage drug use by athletes. I think the message will be sent out to youths that athletes do get punished if they use drugs."

The UCLA School of Medicine will conduct laboratory testing for the 1984 Olympics at Los Angeles and, according to Daly, the examinations will be done with state-of-the-art equipment that can detect drug use long after an athlete has stopped using it. Until now, athletes have been able to avoid detection by halting the use of drugs 10 days to two weeks before testing.

Daly said there is no scientific evidence that anabolic steroids provide positive benefit for the athletes. "But sports folklore says they help," he said.

That folklore suggests that steroids, synthetic derivatives of testosterone, the male sex hormone, cause muscle cells to produce more protein, resulting in larger muscles. But David Lamb, a professor of physical education, health and recreation at Purdue University, said that some scientists question the beneficial effect on athletes with normal levels of testosterone.

And Daly questions long-term effects of their use. "What happens 30 years from now to the people who are taking it, in my mind, the main reason for stopping their use," he said.

Reported side effects of steroid use include at least temporary increases in facial hair, a deepening of the voice, altered liver function and sterility. What's more, says Dr. James Parkes, team physician for the New York Mets, supposed benefits of taking the drugs are "pure nonsense."

"There is no good experimental work to show that using these substances helps at all," Parkes said. "The effect is strictly psychological."

According to Parkes, an athlete can derive as much benefit from the caffeine contained in two cups of coffee as he could from using steroids.

"There is some evidence that caffeine enables the body to break down the products of fat more efficiently. That, and a balanced diet with adequate fluids and carbohydrates for energy would help more than steroids."

WILSON — Tim Karrs is the third straight new coach to greet Northern Nash High School footballers in the past three years, but he's hoping that the revolving door that's been created at the school will be slammed shut with his arrival.

And perhaps it just might be true. Yesterday, the other coaches of the Big East 4-A Conference voted Northern Nash as the team to beat in this fall's championship race.

Coaches balloted the teams in order, with the exception of their own teams, and Northern Nash was picked on four of the seven possible ballots as the championship choice. Based on a 1 point for first place, two for second, etc. basis, Northern collected a low total of 12 points, getting no votes worse than third place.

Rose High School finished as the choice for second with 17 points and three first place votes. However, the Ramblers were picked to finish as low as sixth on at least one ballot.

Wilson Beddingfield was the third place choice with 22 points, followed by Rocky Mount with 27. Wilson Hunt was picked for fifth place with 28 points, followed by Wilson Fike with 35. Northeastern of Elizabeth City was picked for seventh place with 41 points, while defending champion Kinston finished last with 42 points, despite receiving one vote for first place.

"I don't know how that could have done that (voted Northern first)," Karrs said afterwards. "I think they're trying to put the first year jinx on me."

Karrs said that the biggest problem Northern faces is trying to get rid of the lack of continuity in its program. "Hopefully, three years from now I can stand here and say that we now have a good program," he said.

Karrs said that his team has been working hard in preparation for the 1983 campaign, but the frequent changes of coaches has been a hardship on them. "Some of them have had to play under three different coaching philosophies. But our biggest plus is the way they have worked so far this fall."

"However, one of our big problems is that we are a rural school and we have so many kids involved in agricultural work that are missing practices."

Karrs said only seven lettermen return from last year's team. "We're inexperienced and we don't have great depth. We don't have any quarterbacks who have taken a snap in a varsity game."

Top returnees include tackles Joe Wilson and Tom Asbell, receiver Don Gaylord and running back Jarrad Moody.

The Knights run out of the multiple-I and on defense will use a mixture of formations. "We have good speed, so we've got to take advantage of it."

Beddingfield's Ray Barger said that while it was nice to be considered a contender, the Bruins are going to have to make it count on the field.

"We've been our own worst enemy over the past few years. We lost a lot of close games last year, and I think it was due to our attitude. We didn't think we could win. We're trying to get rid of that this year."

Barger said he didn't think the Bruins could continue to depend on the breaks, but will have to start making a few breaks of their own. But he also noted that with the great balance the league is expected to have that outside help is going to be important for all the teams.

Chief returning veterans include quarterback Darren Bynum, running back Ricky Barnes, and offensive line that returns all but one tackle, led by Woody Mercer and center Greg Hill. Defensively, the Bruins return such people as nose guard Dennis James, Andy Edmundson and Billy Boswell, both part-time starters at linebacker, and Mercer at defensive end.

"We have to be consistent on offense. We threw 20 to 25 times a game last year, and had little in the way of the running game due to the inexperience of our line and the lack of size there. But we have the experience there now."

Another plus should be the return of Neal Farrell to handle the kicking duties. Against Rose last year, Farrell kicked a school record 45-yard field goal.

Rocky Mount usually finds its way to the top of the heap in the Big East, and generally is the favorite. But the Gryphons were picked for fourth this year, and it doesn't bother new coach George Kelley a bit.

Kelley actually isn't new to Rocky Mount, but served as an assistant for six years prior to taking over this fall.

"It's an advantage to hire within the staff," Kelley said. "The kids know me and we don't have to make many changes. We are adding one more formation on offense and making one change on defense, but that would have been done regardless of the coaching change."

While Rocky Mount doesn't return many veterans, Kelley feels the team has a chance to be good. "We only have one offensive and three defensive starters back. And those numbers don't make for a good nucleus."

Kelley said that if the Gryphons learn from their early mistakes, the team could become a contender. "We have the athletes to finish well, but learning from our mistakes will definitely be the key, since we're so short on experience."

Quarterback Roney Harris may be one of the keys, too. He threw for over 1,000 yards on the junior varsity squad last year and Kelley feels he will be good with experience."

Others expected to be key players are Lamont Wiggins and Derrick Byrd, defensive ends — two of the three starters on defense returning.

"We have four good receivers, but all four are young. If we can get the ball to them, I think we can move it," Kelley said. The Gryphons threw the ball 44 times in their scrimmage against Jacksonville, "a trifle too much."

And Rose Coach Ronald Vincent, asked about being picked second in the conference race, said, "I'll take it right now."

Second place this year again gives that team the right to enter the Division I playoffs with a shot at the state championship.

Time For Execution By Virginia Cavaliers

By TOM FOREMAN JR.
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — The learning phase of coach George Welsh's regime is over at the University of Virginia. Now, it's time to execute.

In Welsh's first year, the Cavaliers went 2-9. Although some might blame it on Virginia's weakness, some players have revealed that other reasons might have existed. Most often, they speak of the transition process that didn't quite occur.

"Last year, it was so new to us," senior strong safety Rich Riccardi said. "It was hard to figure out what was going on."

"A lot of people were curious as to what was going on, what kind of restrictions we had. Everybody's accepted it and agrees on it. There doesn't seem to be any dissension," he added.

Wide receiver Quentin Walker paints a different picture of 1982, one of upper classmen resenting the fact that a new coach is going to put reins on their social lives.

"It was a little hostility for some guys because we were under a system much more lenient," Walker said. "Some of the older guys wanted to revolt against it. It took a long time to adjust, maybe to the middle of the season."

Before Welsh took over, discipline by the hand of former coach Dick Bestwick was somewhat loose. Recent newspaper articles have rumored that players would get into the party spirit the night before a game. Walker said he'd heard of it, but Riccardi said he was in his hotel room and didn't know if anyone actually was at less than peak efficiency on game day.

Nose guard David Bond said maybe things were a little too lax before Welsh got to Charlottesville.

"Coach Bestwick gave us too much freedom and a few of the players really abused it," he said.

Those days have ended. Welsh has put restrictions on his team as part of the effort to drag them out of the depths of the Atlantic Coast Conference. There's nothing else the players can learn about Welsh. Now, they must take from him.

"We were learning what was going on last year," Riccardi said. "When I walked into camp this year, I already knew what defenses they were going to run."

"Coach Welsh is tougher as far as curfews, no drinking in public until the season is over," Riccardi added. "I think the team accepts that. They're little things that are needed. He seems to stress that more."

Tailback Antonio Rice has noticed the difference between last year's problems and this year's determination.

"Our intensity level is way up. At times last year, we drifted apart when things got tough," Rice said. "Now, the guys know winning is not out of our reach."

Welsh won't predict just how much better his team will be, especially after the disaster of his first season in the ACC. But the number "6" did come up in conversation.

Australia I Designer Says It Takes More Than Wings

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The designer of Australia II, the 12-meter yacht that has been nearly unbeatable in this summer's America's Cup trials, says winged keels attached to other boats should not substantially improve their performances.

"It takes much more than wings," Ben Lexcen said Tuesday when asked to comment on an announcement a day earlier that the keel of Britain's Victory '83 had been altered to accommodate them. "You just don't decide to put wings on a boat and expect to win with it."

Lexcen is not prepared to term the British decision a disaster because that syndicate has tested the concept on its trial boat Australia. But he said Australia II's keel was designed specifically to accommodate the horizontal wings.

"They've been testing them on Australia most of the summer, so they have some idea of the effect, but our keel is much different than any of the others."

Exactly what differences exist, Lexcen won't say. But drawings of Australia II's underside based on descriptions of yachting officials who supposedly have seen it, show the keel to be bulbous in nature. A conventional keel is a smooth appendage pointing straight down from the hull.

"If the keel isn't designed with the wings in mind they could actually slow the boat down," Lexcen said.

Peter deSavary, who heads the Victory syndicate, points out that Victory '83 was designed by Ian Howett with the possible conversion of its keel in mind. But deSavary is not ready to claim the wings will enable Victory '83 to equal the performance of Australia II.

Their first test came Monday when Australia II beat

Victory '83 by one minute, 21 seconds in the final race of the challenger semifinal series. The boats, survivors in an original field of seven, are scheduled to meet starting Sunday in a best-of-seven series to determine which foreign yacht will try to wrest the Cup from the Americans next month. "We don't consider that it improved the boat's performance," deSavary said. He did not say whether the wings would remain on the boat when the challenger finals begin.

Veteran sailors say Australia II, whose validity as a 12-meter is being questioned by American interests seeking a ruling from the International Yacht Racing Union's Keel Boat Technical Committee, is faster heading upwind.

Bair Gives Tigers Relief

By The Associated Press
Doug Bair, a six-year bullpen veteran, provided the Detroit Tigers with some much-needed relief — by making his first start in 368 major-league appearances.

One day after his 33rd birthday, Bair bailed out Detroit's starting staff — Milt Wilcox is disabled and Dave Rozema was unable to pitch — by handcuffing Texas on four singles in six innings as the Tigers defeated the Rangers 2-0 Tuesday night.

"I said to myself in the fifth inning, 'If we win this game, this guy's pitching tonight may be the most important for us all year,'" said Manager Sparky Anderson, who added that he might give Bair another start next week.

"I have no desire to start," Bair said. "I enjoy getting someone out in a crucial situation. I can help the ballclub more as a reliever than as a starter."

The victory enabled the third-place Tigers to climb with 1½ games of front-running Milwaukee in the American league East when the Brewers lost to the Seattle Mariners 5-0. The Baltimore Orioles lost to Toronto 9-3 and remained one-half game out, while the Blue Jays trail by 1½, although they are one percentage point behind Detroit.

Elsewhere, the Kansas City Royals pounded the Chicago White Sox 10-2, the Oakland A's whipped the New York Yankees 9-3, the California Angels downed the Cleveland Indians 5-2 and the Minnesota Twins nipped the Boston Red Sox 3-2.

Bair, who was acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals earlier in the season, walked one and retired nine straight batters at one point. Aurelio Lopez pitched three hitless innings for his 17th save.

Detroit took a 1-0 lead against Charlie Hough in the fifth inning on consecutive doubles by Glenn Wilson and Chet Lemon. In the seventh,

Lemon was hit by a pitch and scored on a double by Rick Leach. "This win was satisfying because I hadn't been helping the club in relief and, at a time when we didn't have anybody else able to start, I was able to come in and pitch six shutout innings," Bair said.

"I didn't give any thought to going out and pitching six innings of shutout ball or anything like that. Basically, I'm a two-inning pitcher. I just took one inning at a time and decided not to worry about how many innings I went."

Mariners 5, Brewers 0

Al Cowens drove in three runs with a pair of homers and Ron Roenicke and Steve Henderson added solo shots to back Mike Moore's two-hit pitching. Moore, who entered the game with a 5.19 earned run average, walked three and struck out five for his second shutout of the season and allowed only two runners to reach scoring position.

Blue Jays 9, Orioles 3

A two-run fourth-inning single by Barry Bonnell capped a five-run Toronto uprising aided by three Baltimore errors. Lloyd Moseby drove in three runs, easing the way for Luis Leal to end a personal four-game losing streak.

Willie Upshaw singled to open the fourth and took second on an error by pitcher

Mike Flanagan, who was 10-0 at home against the Blue Jays, on a bunt by Buck Martinez. Third baseman Todd Cruz then committed a two-base throwing error on Alfredo Griffin's bunt and Upshaw scored to give the Blue Jays a 5-2 lead. An RBI single by Damaso Garcia finished Flanagan and another run scored as second baseman Lenn Sakata made his second error of the game. Bonnell's two-run single made it 9-2.

Royals 10, White Sox 2

Amos Otis hit an RBI double and scored in a three-run fourth inning and singled for his 2,000th major-league hit in a six-run sixth. George Brett, breaking an 0-for-13 slump, singled leading off the fourth inning against Jerry Koosman and scored on Otis' double to give the Royals a 2-1 lead. Otis scored on a double by White, who went to third on Leon Roberts' single and scored on Don Slaught's grounder.

After Otis walked leading off the sixth, Koosman was relieved by Dick Tidrow, who threw nine pitches to four batters, giving up a home run to White, walking Roberts, surrendering a single to Slaught and a ground-rule double to Butch Davis, his first major-league hit.

A's 9, Yankees 3

Mike Warren held New York hitless for five innings and gained his first major-league victory while Jeff Burroughs drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and homer. Warren, making his third major-league start and fifth appearance, did not allow a hit until Roy Smalley's double to open the sixth. The 22-year-old right-hander allowed four hits and three runs in 6 2-3 innings. Rickey Henderson had three singles for Oakland and stole four bases, giving him 87.

Angels 5, Indians 2

Brian Downing had a home run, two singles and two RBIs to back the six-hit pitching of Mike Witt and Luis Sanchez. Downing singled a run across in the fifth inning, homered in the seventh and singled again in a three-run ninth, which included Rod Carew's two-run double.

Twins 3, Red Sox 2

Kent Hrbek drove in all three Minnesota runs, two with a sixth-inning homer, and Al Williams combined with Ron Davis on a five-hitter. Williams allowed two hits in seven innings before giving way to Davis because of a sore right elbow. Hrbek drove in a run with a first-inning grounder and snapped a 1-1 tie — Boston's Tony Armas hit his 28th homer in the second — with a 420-foot homer in the sixth following a walk to Gary Ward.

THREE GOOD REASONS

HOUSTON (AP) — Keith Fergus, one of the stars of the PGA tour, was the No. 1 player on the University of Houston team during his last three years at that school.

Somebody asked him about his first year at Houston.

"Oh, there was a very good reason why I wasn't the No. 1 player my first year," he said. "In fact there were three reasons. Their names were Bill Rogers, Bruce Lietzke and Fuzzy Zoeller, all still in school and on the team."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE VACUUM RETAILERS' WARM CONVENTION HAD A SELL-OUT CROWD.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals R.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until 5 P.M. you can have quite a difficult time trying to get others to do things your way. Your later day looks better for accomplishing goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't permit some worry to deter your progress in the active, outside world. Think along very constructive lines.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An argument between your mate and a close friend can be settled nicely by you now. Socialize at home this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't be foolish and get involved in any argument with an official and by tonight the matter clears itself up.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study those new plans well and be sure they don't get in the way with work you are currently doing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your hunches are not good particularly regarding some talent you want to express in public. So go over your plans wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be courteous not only with outsiders today but those who dwell with you in order to maintain harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan your time well so that you can get work done and also have the opportunity to shop. A regular ally gives fine advice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Early you want to plan for entertainment but then count the cost and change your mind. Attend to practical business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get away from home for a while until the altercation there blows over and handle other affairs of importance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get communications handled well, despite any private worries you may have, and also other important work ahead of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Think about friends and what you can do for them, and they for you today and don't be so concerned about money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go after what you need of a personal nature since there can be a delay in your career work. Gain the support of a friend.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those naturally gifted young people who can easily tell when others are in trouble and will do much to try to assist them, so you had better slant the education along lines of humanitarian work.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Parking Ban In Wake Of Blast

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Police on Tuesday banned parking near the homes and offices of police officials and magistrates, nearly a month after a car bomb killed a tough anti-Mafia judge and three other people.

Tow trucks will patrol 83 sites where parking is banned around the clock, police said.

On July 29, a car loaded with more than 200 pounds of dynamite exploded outside the apartment building of Judge Rocco Chinnici, killing him, two police guards and a doorman.

Foot Disorders in the Elderly

Disorders of the feet are the product of a long life of injury, misuse, abuse and poor care. The elderly pay a terrible penalty for this common neglect. It is estimated that 50 percent or more of the elderly population have significant disability of the feet that is unrecognized and untreated.

Dr. Stephen F. Albert and Dr. Dennis W. Jahngien of the Departments of Podiatry and Surgery at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Denver devote themselves to the diagnosis and treatment of foot disorders in older patients.

In a recent article published in the excellent magazine Geriatrics, they wrote about their survey of more than 5,000 patient visits at their hospital. Although the veteran population is primarily male, the results have comparable relevance to females.

In this vast study focus was made on disorders of the nails, fungus infection of the nails and the skin, corns, calluses, bunions and other anatomical changes. Ulcers of the feet were particularly studied because of their potential dangers and hazards.

Arthritic foot disorders, gout, rheumatoid arthritis, injuries and osteoarthritis were all found to exist for many years without any local treatment. In many instances there was gross incapacitation. Many of the cases with proper treatment might have avoided such disabilities.

Vascular disturbances due to arteriosclerosis were particularly hazardous and often were responsible for total incapacitation.

Disorders of the feet should be treated by the combination of the physician, the surgeon and the specialist in podiatry. This is an ideal triad if the elderly are to be spared the incapacitation that almost always accompanies severe foot disorders.

Dr. Richard Bass, an eminent podiatrist in New York City, surveys the problem with great wisdom. In a communication to me he said, "Foot disorders are not classed as 'elegant' illnesses. It takes a good deal of caring and devotion and time to support the elderly who are burdened by the added infirmity caused by the neglect of disorders of the feet."

The elderly must be encouraged to indulge themselves in seeking the counseling of podiatrists long before their problems become so firmly embedded that they cannot be reversed.

An accomplished person came to my office recently with a severe burn caused by the improper use of a hot water bag. It occurred to me that there are probably many people who do not know the safe way to prepare one for the application of heat to sensitive skin areas.

Water bags that are too hot or too heavy may defeat their comforting purpose. The bag should not contain air. This can be expelled by pressure before corking the bag, making certain there is no leak that might burn the patient.

Wrapping the bag in a flannel cloth is protective and avoids a burn. It should be remembered that the skin of a sick patient may be far more sensitive and delicate than that of the one who is preparing the bag or testing it for excess heat.

Examine the skin after the bag has been applied for a few minutes. If there is unusual redness, then the water is probably too hot. Heat can be soothing. Excess heat can be hazardous.

After the birds were released, they flew to a clump of trees on the edge of the water at Lake Mattamuskeet National Wildlife Refuge in Hyde County, said refuge manager Larry Ditto of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"The birds spent most of the weekend perched in these trees," he said. "They have not moved much, which is normal and is probably also due to the heat."

"The birds have not yet begun to hunt, but have also not returned to the release site looking for food," Ditto said. "This is not unusual, especially in this heat. We may try to float some dead fish or other food near their perch if they don't begin hunting soon."

The young birds, obtained from Wisconsin, were placed in a special cage at the release site in mid-June. They were not allowed to see who was feeding them so that they would not associate food with man.

Racial Violence Said Increasing

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Iredell County officials say they are concerned about increasing racial violence, and want those responsible to know it will not be tolerated.

Since last November, more than 30 acts of racially motivated violence and intimidation have occurred in Iredell and neighboring Alexander County, including two shooting incidents in Troutman last month, officials said.

On July 6 and 7, shots were fired at a black highway department worker's home and Troutman Police Chief Joseph Walker's home. No one was injured.

"I hope the word will get out that this element is not welcome here," said Joe Troutman, chairman of the county commission. "We're not going to stand for this intimidation."

Ku Klux Klan leaders have denied any role in the shootings. But the Rev. Charles Roman, president of the Statesville chapter of the NAACP, contends they are part of a "chain of such incidents plaguing Iredell County in recent months."

In a letter to county and city officials, Roman called for special legislation to "curb the racial activities of the Ku Klux Klan or any other groups which threaten the safety of the public or intimidate people."

In response to the letter, officials met recently to discuss ways to discourage racial violence in their communities.

"This session gave the black community a forum to express how they felt," Troutman said. "They felt we were not giving them the backing they should have had. Our genuine hope is that by airing these problems, we can let our police, Sheriff's Department and Highway Patrol know they have all the backing of the people of the county to enforce the law."

Roman said he wants officials to come up with specific ways to restrict Klan activity in the county.

"You can't stop them, but you can discourage them from coming here," he said. "We've got to make sure we don't let people from out of state pit us against each other here in Iredell County."

Heat Curbs The Flying

LAKE MATTAMUSKEET, N.C. (AP) — The heat wave across North Carolina has kept two young bald eagles that were released into the wild Friday from hunting for food, officials say.

After the birds were released, they flew to a clump of trees on the edge of the water at Lake Mattamuskeet National Wildlife Refuge in Hyde County, said refuge manager Larry Ditto of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"The birds spent most of the weekend perched in these trees," he said. "They have not moved much, which is normal and is probably also due to the heat."

"The birds have not yet begun to hunt, but have also not returned to the release site looking for food," Ditto said. "This is not unusual, especially in this heat. We may try to float some dead fish or other food near their perch if they don't begin hunting soon."

The young birds, obtained from Wisconsin, were placed in a special cage at the release site in mid-June. They were not allowed to see who was feeding them so that they would not associate food with man.

Burley Surplus Leaf Is Sold

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — More than 30 million pounds of burley tobacco leaf, held in storage since the close of the 1982 market season, has been sold in the past week by the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative.

Two sales, completed Aug. 19, were worth $100 million to the cooperative and reduced the group's stored supplies of processed leaf by 18 percent. Buyers purchased 500,000 pounds in the first sale and 30 million in the second.

The sales, coming when burley growers are fretting about the possibility of reduced earnings this season because the summer drought has stunted plants, were greeted with smiles.

"This (30 million pound sale) is a real shot in the arm for us, the producer and the industry," A.R. Beckley, the cooperative's executive secretary-treasurer, said Monday. "It comes at a time when any good news on the tobacco front is welcomed with opened arms."

Because of the recent sales, Beckley said, farmers probably will get a penny break on money earmarked for the no-net-cost program this year.

Trump Tower Mall - A Showcase Of Elite Stores

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The portly man with silver hair struck a casual pose against a gleaming brass rail, then motioned his wife to move over two steps to make sure her snapshot included the indoor waterfall.

These tourists weren't photographing familiar sights like the United Nations or Lincoln Center, but a shopping mall that is the city's newest and undoubtedly one of the world's priciest — Trump Tower.

The $150 million project, a joint venture by real estate magnate Donald Trump and the Equitable Life Assurance Society, rises like a glistening onyx jewel 68 stories above Fifth Avenue between East 56th and East 57th streets.

The tower, which includes 49 floors of private condominiums and 13 floors of office space, stands on the site of the old Bonwit Teller building and dwarfs its nearest neighbor, Tiffany's.

Customers entering the six-story-high atrium are greeted by crimson-coated doormen wearing white Prussian spiked helmets and crisp, white gloves.

A similarly suited violinist awaits his cue while browsers stroll past to a mirrored, brass-trimmed escalator that climbs past an 80-foot waterfall and looks down upon an indoor bistro with decks of lush greenery.

The 40 stores inside the mall, which is finished in a warm, peach-rose marble called Breccia Pernice, are as exclusive as the building's design.

Jeweler Harry Winston has a "boutique" inside the tower, as does Asprey of London, the noted leathermakers. Ludwig Beck of Munich, which features fine porcelain, linens and traditional Bavarian clothing, is making its first venture into the United States. The Lina Lee fashion boutique of Beverly Hills is making its East Coast debut.

Although nearly all the stores have items that cost less than $100, most merchandise carries three- and four-digit prices.

Shoes at Charles Jourdan begin at $110; a small gold ring at Buccellati, a noted gold and silver merchant, costs about $1,000.

The Harry Winston shop plans to cater to "young working women who can afford to buy their own jewelry," says spokeswoman Norma Smith, adding that the price for such a trinket will be in the $3,000 to $5,000 range.

More eclectic tastes may prefer a lifelike Boehm porcelain statue of a wild American turkey for $15,000 or a green-and-gold trimmed porcelain chess set that sells for $11,000 at Ludwig Beck.

Despite the sometimes astronomical prices, or perhaps because of them, the atrium has attracted a kaleidoscopic clientele since it opened in February.

Men wearing Bermuda shorts with cameras slung across their chests mingle with nattily dressed businessmen. Women in jogging shorts and sneakers pushing toddlers in collapsible strollers lunch next to impeccably dressed women adorned in diamonds and gold.

Celebrities Jane Fonda, Pia Zadora and Joan Rivers have reportedly been spotted in the marbled atrium.

"This is definitely a place where the poor can rub shoulders with the rich," said celebrity-struck Ella Lightfoot of Piscataway, N.J., who moments earlier had stopped a stranger to point out a woman she thought was Jackie Onassis strolling down the hallway.

It was someone else, but Mrs. Lightfoot was undismayed. "I'm sure I'll hang around long enough I'll see the real Jackie walk by," she said.

Most store owners, who pay monthly rents of $150 to $400 a square foot, plus a percentage of sales over a set amount, were not overly concerned about the curious.

"We encourage browsers. People shouldn't be intimidated by our reputation," said Ms. Smith at Harry Winston. "Besides, it's good to let people dream about that special little something. Someday they may buy it. Hopefully it'll be from us."

Charles Jourdan

spokeswoman Terry Pandel said she estimated that the store would have to sell about $7,000 worth of merchandise a day just to cover the cost of its prime, ground level location. "I think we're doing it already. It shouldn't be a problem," she said.

But other store owners hope that the luxurious condominiums, scheduled to open by Sept. 1, will bring in a better and perhaps more international sort of customer. The 263 condominiums are priced at $500,000 for a single bedroom apartment to $12 million for the penthouse triplex, reportedly purchased by a European countess.

"Right now we don't have the type of client we ultimately hope to attract," said Bill Brown of Ludwig Beck. "But like any new venture we realize it will take time to cultivate the right customer."

Some customers gaped when they checked certain price tags. But the Lightfoots remained undaunted. "Just to walk through here is reason enough to drive into the city," Mrs. Lightfoot said during lunch at the bistro.

"This is heaven." Her husband, Victor, agreed. Leaning back in his rattan chair, he sipped at a frosty glass of iced tea and said, "I wonder how the other half is living today."

TRUMP TOWER — The elegant Trump Tower Mall of 5th Avenue in Manhattan has become one of the city's newest tourist attractions. Customers entering the six-story atrium are greeted by crimson-coated doormen and entertained by a tuxedo-clad pianist playing Cole Porter tunes. (AP Laserphoto)

Tobacco Prices Mostly Steady

By The Associated Press
Flue-cured tobacco dropped or remained mostly steady Tuesday on North Carolina's three tobacco belts, the Federal-State Market News Service reported.

Grade prices were a little lower on the Eastern Belt. Most grades lost from $1 to $5 per hundred pounds from Monday, but a few were unchanged to slightly higher.

A season high average price of $182.63 per hundred was paid Monday for 7,601,345 gross pounds. This average exceeded the one for last Thursday by $8.37. Marketings for the season rose to 70,962,068 pounds averaging $165.43 per hundred.

On the Old and Middle Belt, most heavy volume grades slipped $2 to $5 from Monday's levels. Top price remained $205 paid for selected offerings of cutters. Volume of sales was moderate at most points Tuesday.

Sales on the belt Monday amounted to 6,244,222 pounds and averaged $157.01 per hundred — up $4.92 from last Thursday. Season sales reached 27,033,070 pounds returning $148.68.

Grade prices held fairly steady on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina

SMOTHERED IN FRESH SOUR CREAM,

WITHOUT LEAVING YOUR CHIP IN THE DIP

Here's how our BREAKSTONES GOURMET DIPS end up with a taste that's easy to love and a texture that's easy to dip. We start with real, creamy, fresh, natural sour cream. Next we add special ingredients that make each of our five gourmet dips so special. Mounds of mushrooms and green herbs; or toasted onion bits; or blend of Jalapeno pepper and natural Cheddar cheese; or for sea-food lovers, real Chesapeake Clams (and lots of them).

Then each is blended to be smooth and creamy, not too thick—not too thin.

So, if you've got gourmet tastes, sink your chips into our delicious dips. The only thing that'll crack is the smile on your face.

Four Killed In Plane's Crash

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Four people were killed today when a plane practicing touch-and-go landings crashed at the Elizabeth City Coast Guard Air Station, Navy officials said.

Tom Connor, a Navy spokesman in Norfolk, Va., said the plane was a C-1A twin-engine turboprop based at the Norfolk Naval Air Station.

Tracing Of Ancestors Is Big Challenge

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Clayton Cox and Theodore Walter recall that the search for their ancestral roots in eastern Kentucky began with simple questions.

But their digging for answers grew into a hobby that now consumes their evenings, weekends and vacations.

The hobby is genealogy. It inspires people to tramp through old cemeteries, pore over moldy records in dusty courthouse basements and shower letters on distant relatives in distant places who might know something about where they came from.

"I had an aunt of mine ask me for some information from my grandfather's Bible," said Cox, an accountant. "She wanted to mark some graves."

That was 16 years ago. Cox has the Bible, long separated from its bindings but preserved in a cigar box.

The box is hard to spot, though, among the thousands of books, ledgers, card files and cartons that clog the basement of his South Lexington home.

His wife, Elizabeth, is equally dedicated to the hobby. She is a member of the Kentucky Genealogical Society's board of directors.

Walter, a Lexington attorney who is president of the society, said he had begun researching the various branches of his family in Johnson County 24 years ago.

"I never knew my granddaddy Walter because he died about 13 years before I was born," he said. "I began to ask questions. One thing led to another and I began to acquire books."

"Just about any book I could find on the Big Sandy (River area), I collected. It wasn't too long before I became kind of an authority on families up in there."

Walter said he had researched 13 families of his ancestors, many of whom migrated west to Kansas, Oklahoma, Washington and California. He has published three family histories.

He spends Tuesday nights in Frankfort as a volunteer worker in the state archives, helping new hobbyists get started.

"Genealogy is in your top 10 hobbies," Walter said. "People don't realize how big it is, but you've got a continuing number of people continually seeking who their ancestors were."

"It's like working a puzzle," said Cox. "This is the biggest puzzle you can get into. It's never-ending and it becomes a challenge to you after a while."

Cox is compiling the list of his Caudill ancestors, whose descendants are scattered throughout eastern Kentucky.

The Caudills came west by way of Lawrence County, but spellings changed along the way, so Cox also has Caudells, Caudles and Cordles to contend with.

His labor will produce a thick directory priced at about $40 a copy and Cox said he hoped to sell enough to relatives to recoup his expenses.

That will take a while, however. This business is time-consuming.

Cox said he and his wife had spent a two-week vacation in the Letcher County courthouse at Whitesburg, thumbing through 286 volumes of marriage records — "most of them in the 300- to 400-page range" — and copying all the Caudill entries. "Then we had to come back here and try to piece it back together."

Acceptable If Done Discreetly

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Mothers may breast-feed their children on Belgian buses if it is done "discreetly," according to Communications Minister Herman De Croo.

"There are no regulations forbidding a woman to breast-feed her child during a trip on the bus as long as she does it discreetly," De Croo said in reply to written question from a senator.

The senator complained that a woman in Ghent, 28 miles west of Brussels, was asked recently to get off a bus because she was breast-feeding a child.

Little Known Outpost Trains Salvadoran Soldiers

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
FORT GULICK, Panama (AP) — Seasoned American hands are running hundreds of young Salvadoran soldiers through firing ranges, classrooms and jungle trails on Panama's Caribbean coast, training them in tactics designed to crack the back of El Salvador's insurgency.

The 37-year-old U.S. Army School of the Americas, tucked away on this rain-drenched little post beside the Panama Canal, is a little-known U.S. military foothold in the region.

But the School of the Americas has long been a key instrument of U.S. policy in the area, tightening professional ties between the U.S. military and Latin America's uniformed elite, and today its role grows with each new explosion of civil war in Central America.

In the past three years, the annual enrollment has more than tripled, to 2,441 students from 10 Latin American countries, almost half of them from El Salvador. The U.S. Army now wants to double the training staff.

Over the years, the school has graduated 42,557 soldiers of 22 countries, from courses ranging from squad-leader training to year-long general staff studies.

The alumni, many remembered in brassplate honor-roll plaques in the headquarters' marble foyer, have included platoons of future Latin American military strongman, among them Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, the former Argentine junta chief who launched the Falklands war last year; Brig. Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez, the Honduran military leader now readying his country for possible war with Nicaragua; the late Gen. Omar Torrijos and his two successors as commander of the Panamanian national guard, which controls this country; and hundreds of others who have filled the officer ranks in military-dominated countries from Guatemala to Chile.

The school commandant, Col. Nicholas A. Andreaacchio, a crew-cut, back-slapping former tank commander, is sensitive to suggestions he is running a "school for dictators."

"In my experience, dictators and oppressors don't need any training," the 50-year-old colonel told a reporter.

"What needs to be nurtured are the democratic things," said Andreaacchio, who is married to a Salvadoran. "And it seems that more and more in Latin America the military is giving power back to civilians... So I'll take the blame for the bad things if I can take credit for the good things, too."

Since he took charge a year ago, Andreaacchio says, he has established an ethics course and extended the instruction of Geneva Convention rules to all students. Apparently some needed it.

"There was a recent case of a trainee who was asked what you do with a wounded prisoner, and who answered, 'Shoot him,'" the colonel said. "So they've got to be taught that, besides the moral responsibility, there's, a professional responsibility — dead men give you no information, and if you start killing them, pretty soon there won't be anyone surrendering."

The mission of the school, which is housed in a dozen tropical-style buildings on this 1,843-acre installation, is to "train the leaders," spokesman Maj. John Taylor said.

Whether the school will exist after next year is officially uncertain.

The 1979 treaty turning the old Canal Zone over to Panama stipulates that Fort Gulick revert to Panama in October 1984. The Panamanians are expected to agree to allow the school to continue operating under U.S. Army control and with U.S. financing, but it still could become a contentious issue.

"That place is a death university," Erasto Reyes, leader of Panama's leftist Socialist Workers' Party, charged in a Panama City interview.

"It is a school for oppressive regimes. They teach them how to put down popular insurrections, to treat the people as the enemy."

The army says it could move the School of the Americas to the southern United States if necessary. But Andreaacchio says the millions of dollars the school brings into the faltering local economy may be enough reason for the Panamanians to keep it here.

Instruction is entirely in Spanish, conducted by a permanent staff of about 70 U.S. Army men and 36 instructors from Latin American armies, including officers from two military regimes officially out of favor with the United States — Chile and Guatemala.

The United States pays all the bills — about $3 million this year in direct costs, plus $1.5 million that the students' governments return from their U.S. military assistance funds.

The Salvadorans have been streaming down to Fort Gulick for grounding in techniques of long-range patrolling that are supposed to give their army new momentum in its war against leftist guerrillas.

Most of the arrivals are NCOs, many of them 18- or 19-year-old veterans of four years of fighting. Telltale bullet or shrapnel scars streak their bodies.

On one recent afternoon, two U.S. Army sergeants pushed a double column of 50

Salvadorans up a jungle road on a five-mile forced march. Some of the trainees, plodding along at a trot, appeared near collapse. Their camouflage-smeared faces glistened. The temperature verged on 100 degrees.

A 19-year-old Salvadoran sergeant who first saw action four years ago as a 15-year-old told a reporter the 14-week squad-leader course was invaluable.

"What we're getting here is what we needed — training on equipment, theory and practice," he said. "When we get back, our job will be to train the others."

Surgery For Gov. Hunt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt will have gallbladder surgery after an expected special legislative session on the state's new discovery law is over, aides said.

Zebulon D. Alley said Hunt wants to have his gallbladder taken out after the legislative session, which has not yet been scheduled.

"He'd like to get it (the special session) wrapped up," said Zebulon D. Alley, Hunt's chief legislative lobbyist. "I'm sure he'd like to have this attended to before he goes in for surgery."

Hunt is expected to call the Legislature back to Raleigh soon to work on changing the discovery law.

Hunt had his appendix taken out in January, and at that time doctors told him he was suffering from gallstones and would need to have his gallbladder removed.

Hunt's deputy press secretary, Brent Hackney, said the governor's staff had been "on standby, waiting to hear when he wants to go to the hospital. No decision has been made on that."

Hackney said whenever Hunt goes in to be operated on he will probably be confined to bed for "a couple of weeks at least," and then require another week or two before returning to "full stream."

Star Comic Said 'Self-Taught'

BENJI ON TV — Canine star Benji, and co-star Joe Rainer take some time out from their filming. After two years of negotiations, "Benji" will air on CBS this fall, not as a cartoon, but as the only live-action series on Saturday morning network television. (AP Laserphoto)

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The television executive who helped create NBC's original cast of cutups and sketch artists on "Saturday Night Live" says the show's current sensation, Eddie Murphy, is unique because his comedic acting is "completely self-taught."

"The stars on the original show were all brilliantly prepared repertory players," says Dick Ebersol, who helped develop "Saturday Night Live" in 1975 and now is executive producer of the retooled version, which starts another season this fall.

"Danny (Aykroyd) and John (Belushi) were the best character actors. They could perform completely outside themselves," says Ebersol. "But what makes Eddie so different is that he's a natural actor and a stand-up comedian who can react to live audiences."

The 22-year-old Murphy is hotter than this summer's heat wave. Without any formal training, he became an instant movie giant, winning raves in his first two films: last year's "48 Hours" and "Trading Places" this summer.

Ebersol says Paramount was so taken by Murphy's on-camera naturalness that the movie studio guaranteed him $1 million for a follow-up film "even before a single box-office customer had paid for '48 Hours.'"

Then, after "Trading Places," Paramount signed him to a five-picture, $15 million deal. Now, how's that for natural talent? Murphy also holds another distinction from the "SNL" alumni: He's the only star who gained movie fame AND THEN stayed with the program after the expiration of his original contract. Even though his first contract was for three years and the deals with the "SNL" originals were for five seasons, Ebersol boasts that Murphy The Movie Maker hasn't forgotten his TV roots.

Of the original "SNL" ensemble, Chevy Chase left after two years, Belushi and Aykroyd left the year before the end of their five-year contracts, and Gilda Radner and Jane Curtin stayed the full five years but didn't renew.

"Eddie said he signed again for two reasons," says Ebersol. "He said he was having fun doing 'SNL,' and that he liked working with his friends."

Remarkably in this day of TV holdouts and holdups, Murphy, as the "SNL" headliner, could have demanded the NBC Peacock as ransom for his renewal — but he didn't. His recently signed agreement gives him the same salary as the other, more anonymous "SNL" troupe members. For each episode, he'll get the standard $7,500 for performing and $6,000 for writing.

"It's important to me that everybody makes the same amount of money," says Ebersol. "The show has always had that policy."

Ebersol's concern was that unequal pay might tilt the fragile balance of egos and jeopardize the show's harmony. He suggested that Murphy make his best deal with NBC in other areas, such as prime-time specials and TV movies, but allow him to maintain pay parity on "Saturday Night Live."

Characteristically, Murphy didn't rock the "SNL" boat. And he turned down NBC's extras, except the chance to co-host NBC's Emmy-Award telecast Sept. 25. (Incidentally, his one other TV appearance will be on HBO. In October, he'll perform his raunchy comedy act, which is not ready for prime time — at least not NBC's.)

Murphy, however, did get one significant concession from NBC. Because his movie career will take up so much of his time, he's being allowed to tape his appearances on half of this season's 20 shows.

Although there have been filmed and taped segments before, never has a cast member mailed in his week's performance. Murphy's tapings will be done during one week in September before a "living" — not live — audience, says Ebersol. "Eddie is special. He never went through that six months of craziness which happens when everybody else becomes a star," says Ebersol. "Before our final show last season I made a point to tell him that not once did he make the other members of the cast feel uncomfortable."

That doesn't mean Murphy's ego is missing. "He's got a gigantic ego," says Ebersol. "But his ego is always coupled with what's the best movie, best material and best sketch for him. Other people counted minutes on the air."

"Since he was 14, Eddie has known he would be the best and the biggest. He's known his strengths. He won't put himself into something unless it has what he calls 'whoosh material,' capable of getting belly laughs. That's why he's been so successful in the movies. He's picked the right characters with the right scripts."

Bette Davis On Recovery Road

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Bette Davis is described by her agent as "doing fine now" after two months of treatment for a neurological disorder and an operation that a newspaper says may have been for cancer.

The agent, Robert Lantz, said Tuesday the 75-year-old actress is "planning to get back to work just as soon as possible. She's already reading scripts for her new TV series, 'Hotel.'"

The New York Daily News, reporting the operation may have been for cancer, also said Miss Davis suffered a mild stroke.

A New York Hospital spokesman, asking not to be identified, would confirm only that she was discharged on Monday.

FISHING TREATY

SAN JOSE, Honduras — (AP) — Honduras has signed a fishing treaty that the Reagan administration hopes will end a long-running dispute over tuna fishing rights in the Pacific Ocean.

Catherine Bach A Figurehead

DANA POINT, Calif. (AP) — Beauty alone didn't qualify actress Catherine Bach to be chosen as the model for the figurehead of a schooner, but officials of the Nautical Heritage Museum admit it didn't hurt.

Museum Executive director Steve Christman says Miss Bach, who plays Daisy Duke in the TV series "The Dukes of Hazzard," met several criteria as a model for the legendary Amazon queen Calafia as figurehead of the Californian. The vessel is a recreation of the 1840s Coast Guard Cutter Lawrence.

For one, he said Tuesday, "Catherine is a descendant of Southern California's Verdugo family, and thus has a connection with historical California." He also said, "She is an outstandingly beautiful woman."

The 145-foot Californian, being built at the Spanish landing site in San Diego, is scheduled to be launched in May in time to represent California in the 1984 Olympics Official Tallship Parade in July.

A Taste Of Space Provided Would-Be Astronauts

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Press Writer
HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — For Chad Stone, 12, the toughest part of the week was shedding the 25-pound space suit.

"I felt like a butterfly trying to get out of a cocoon," said the seventh-grader from Plano.

After Chad and nine other youngsters tried on the space suit, they turned to 10 video screens to work on space mission programming.

"Pretty soon I want to be an astronaut or be involved in space," he said. "I'm especially interested in computers, rocketry and how fuels are used in rockets. Science is neat."

Dr. Werner von Braun would have approved.

Less than a year before he died in 1976, von Braun, the father of the U.S. space program, conceived of a place where kids could learn about science and space travel. The U.S. Space Camp, located in a 2,500-square foot vinyl tent down the hill from the Alabama Space and Rocket Center, a museum containing items from the nation's space program, is the result of von Braun's idea.

"He asked, 'Why not have a science camp like others have sports camps?'" recalled Ed Buckbee, director of the center.

"When he was trying to put together his team of rocket experts, it was difficult because not too many people were trained in that area," Buckbee said. "He knew that with a second generation of space workers coming along, we must begin thinking about that and preparing people. The space-flying generation is here now."

Every week this summer, 100 youngsters, 12, 13 and 14 years old, are spending five days at the Space Camp. By the end of September, 1,400 children from 45 states and six other nations will have experienced weightlessness, built miniature rockets and fired them, run a mock shuttle mission and visited Marshall Space Flight Center.

There are few lectures. Each weekly group is divided into 10 teams, and a team spends no more than 30 minutes on any one exercise.

Science teachers around the country are regularly sent literature about the camp, which charges a weekly fee of $250.

The camp had 11,000 applications for its second summer, during which Sally Ride, the first American woman in space, was part of the seventh space shuttle crew and the first black astronaut is scheduled to fly aboard the eighth shuttle next week. The first 1,400 children who applied were accepted; the ratio of girls to boys at the camp is 1-to-9.

"I'd like to be an astronaut or work with the space program," said Susan Muldowney of Hillsdale, N.J. "We talk about different jobs and the different kinds of degrees we will have to get."

Scott Shildt, 12, and his brother Dave, "almost 14," are at the camp together. Their parents drove them here from their home in Cyclone, Pa.

"Making rockets is the most fun," said Scott, who also had trouble getting into and out of the space suit. "It was pretty hard because it has tubes in the legs, and it was heavy," he said.

He said he didn't want to be an astronaut, but wanted "to learn about the moon and the stars."

"I came here because it sounded like a fun place where I could do a lot of things and learn a lot," Scott said. "It's more fun than a pony camp I went to."

Buckbee said he was working on plans for an advanced camp and for weekend camps throughout the year. The goal is to accommodate 10,000 youngsters a year.

"Last year," he said, "we hadn't thought about the fact that most of the kids here weren't born when Neil Armstrong walked on the moon in 1969."

"The kids started asking a lot of questions about the moon landing, and we started pumping more information on that into the program."

One aim of the camp, he said, "is to give kids the opportunity to be around science and technology at a young age and to be exposed to some unique experiences before they have to make their choice of study in high school."

"Dr. von Braun would be particularly pleased with the response the camp has had. The nationwide interest caught us by surprise."

Each team ends its training by simulating a space flight, with five youngsters in a shuttle cockpit and the other five connected to them by headsets while they operate mission control.

Halfway through the mission, the computer drops a problem on them.

They have to try to solve it. If they do, they land safely. If not, they "crash" somewhere in the ocean.

At graduation, each child gets a certificate and "Space Camp" wings. Two who do exceptional work each week get special awards.

The campers, Buckbee said, "are highly motivated young people. I think they will do a good job of carrying our flag into space."

'Dumping' Cloth Said Damaging

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Trade Commission has ruled that China's "dumping" of printcloth at prices 22.4 percent below the fair market value is hurting the U.S. textile industry.

The decision announced on an unfair-trade practice complaint filed by the American Textile Manufacturers Institute means that importers of Chinese printcloth will have to pay 22.4 percent penalty duty.

The Commerce Department ruled last month that the cloth was being imported at below-market prices. The ITC was asked to determine if the dumping was hurting the U.S. textile industry.

Ham Radio Operators Sought To Join ET Search

By D.J. FREDERICK Nat'l Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — It may take a real ham to get in touch with an E.T.

Ham radio operators are being encouraged to join the Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence (SETI).

SETI operates on the premise that evidence of intelligence elsewhere in the universe probably will come from radio signals produced by advanced civilizations.

"We hope to encourage and coordinate a network of small radio telescopes operated by hams that would probe the sky for intelligent signals from space," says Stan Kent, president of the Delta Vee Corporation. Based in San Jose, Calif., the nonprofit organization promotes space exploration and research.

Do-It-Yourself

"Most hams already have the technical know-how to put together a SETI system," points out Kent. "The components are all available or can easily be built and linked together."

NASA scientists at Ames Research Center, near San Jose, helped launch the Delta Vee program by showing how to build the necessary equipment and providing computer programs that will sort out valid incoming signals from false alarms.

Kent hopes the hams will concentrate their efforts on microwave frequencies, the types that now carry television and radar transmissions.

"If an intelligent civilization 15 light years away picked up the signal from a stray TV broadcast, it just might beam back on the same frequency," he reasons.

John H. Wolfe, program scientist for SETI at Ames, and a former ham operator, is enthusiastic about the program. "It's an opportunity for the public to get actively involved in space research. Ultimately, I'd like to see the amateur SETI thing mushroom into an international network encompassing hams all around the world."

NASA has already embarked on its own far-reaching SETI program. Crucial to the initial stage is a multi-channel spectrum analyzer, a device that can scan 74,000 radio frequencies simultaneously for meaningful signals.

Bound for Aricibo

This prototype will be hooked onto NASA's radio telescope at Goldstone, Calif., for testing this fall and will be tried next spring on the world's largest radio telescope, the 1,000-foot-wide dish at Aricibo, Puerto Rico.

Testing and refining this prototype is expected to take five years so that a much larger and more sophisticated version can be developed — one that will scan eight to 10 million frequencies at the same time.

This extraordinary interstellar telephone attachment then will be used to listen for signals and eavesdrop on transmissions that may be going on elsewhere in the universe.

"Initially we'll zero in on quiet, well-behaved, middle-aged stars similar to our sun", says Jill Tarter, an astronomer at the NASA Ames Center.

"Life elsewhere may have evolved around such stars just as it did here. Our first target list contains about 800 such stars that are relatively close to us."

The NASA search won't of course, be limited to such stars. Large swaths of the sky will be included. Of average size, Earth's galaxy, the Milky Way, contains hundreds of billions of stars, and billions of other galaxies of varying sizes fill the universe.

Harvard University physicist Paul Horowitz approves of a broad approach. "We may have an extremely bright civilization in another galaxy or perhaps in a rather obscure place in our own. It would be a shame to miss them because we only looked at nearby sources."

In an Orchard Supported by the Planetary Society, Horowitz recently began his own SETI endeavor with a radio receiver and an 85-foot antenna that for the next four years will scan 131,072 channels simultaneously. Set in an apple orchard not far from Boston, Horowitz's receiver won't be able to listen in on other galaxies or very distant stars in our own.

Why would an E.T. want to get in touch with a ham, or an ordinary earthling for that matter?

"I'm not sure", says Horowitz with a shrug. "It's hard to second guess the psychology of these guys when we don't even know whether they're green and slimy and how many heads they have."

"Communication may be a fundamental urge in the Universe. Perhaps they're interested in the art of Picasso, the music of Bach. There must be some things on Earth that might amuse them."

The world's largest radiotelescope at the Arecibo Observatory in Puerto Rico will soon eavesdrop on the stars in the first large-scale Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence (SETI). HAM radio operators are also being encouraged to join the SETI program using their own equipment and advanced technology developed by NASA.

By CINDY HUBERT
The Arizona Daily Star
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Barbara Hartmann is less eager to "join the Navy" than a poster in her University of Arizona office suggests.

But the work that has placed her right alongside sailors and naval commanders all over the world for the past 18 months has admittedly been adventurous. For the past year and a half, Ms. Hartmann has taken a close look into a dark side of Navy life: the problem of alcohol and drug abuse.

An assistant professor of family and community med-

The Navy signed a $7.2 million contract with the university in 1981 to evaluate an existing program to prevent alcohol abuse, and to tie in a similar program geared

The program, which was previously run by the University of West Florida, has expanded from 28 sites to 39 since Arizona took over, Ms. Hartmann said. The number of people employed on the project has grown from 634 to 1,050.

people have graduated from the course Ms. Hartmann designed. Statistics are being compiled now, but Ms. Hartmann said the program was an obvious success.

Ms. Hartmann set out to develop a program to help sailors cope with what she found to be an "extremely stressful lifestyle" in the Navy.

"There is more demand for precision in the Navy than in any of the other services," she said. "That, combined with how much time they spend on the ship, detached from their family ... they have an extremely stressful mission.

"Many of these Navy tasks are very complex. You can't be stoned on duty. There are too many lives depending on it," she said.

The Navy appears to have a more serious problem with drug and alcohol abuse than other branches of the military, and stress is probably a contributing factor, Ms. Hartmann said.

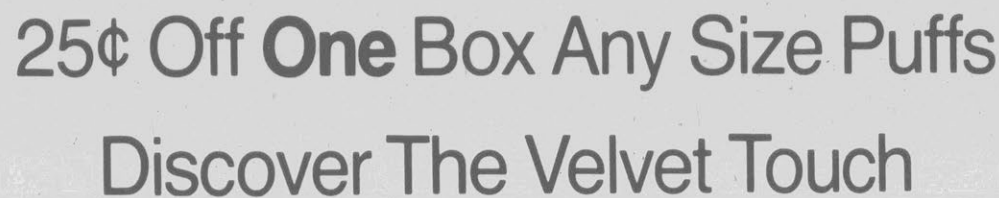

But unlike the other branches, she said, the Navy is determined to rehabilitate its problem drinkers and drug users rather than immediately discharging them.

"They felt that, rather than kick all of the mari-

The program in place before the university took over was based on the idea that actions are controlled by feelings, Ms. Hartmann said. She switched the focus.

Votes Cast In Congress

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the days before the current summer recess.

HOUSE
RIGHTS By a vote of 286 for and 128 against, the House adopted an amendment providing that a member of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission can be removed by a president only for "neglect of duty or malfeasance in office." This six commissioners presently serve open-ended terms and the law specifies no basis for removal. President Reagan's recent dismissal of three members prompted this amendment, which was attached to legislation extending the life of the commission. The bill (HR 2230) was sent to the Senate.

Supporter Peter Rodino, D-N.J., said the amendment would "thwart a president who 'might willy-nilly remove someone because he disagreed with them' on civil rights issues."

Members voting yes wanted to make it more difficult for a president to remove a civil rights commissioner.

NORTH CAROLINA
Voting yes: Walter Jones, D-1, Tim Valentine, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Britt, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Broyhill, R-10, James Clarke, D-11.

Voting no: James Martin, R-9.

Not voting: None.
WASTE The House adopted, 236 for and 180 against, an amendment to increase federal regulation of hundreds of thousands of small businesses that produce hazardous waste.

The amendment required businesses generating at least 25 kilograms of such waste per month to report to the government and tell the hauler that the material is hazardous. The goal is to bring about safe disposal of the toxic waste.

Supporter Ron Wyden, R-Ore., said that "absent any simple notification requirements the horror stories of explosions, fires, acid spills and water contamination in ordinary sanitary landfills will continue."

Opponent Richard Shelby, D-Ala., said the requirements will be impossible to enforce and is likely to cause "illegal dumping to such a degree as this country has never experienced."

Members voting yes wanted to increase the number of small business subjected to hazardous waste reporting requirements.

NORTH CAROLINA
Voting yes: Walter Jones, Neal, James Martin, Clarke.

Voting no: Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Britt, Rose, Hefner, Broyhill.

Not voting: None.

BENEFITS The House passed, 338 for and 84 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 3409) whose effect is to provide at least a few more weeks of jobless pay in states where the economy is improving.

At issue was a special category of unemployment pay, known as Federal Supplemental Compensation (FSC), that goes to individuals whose basic eligibility for state and federal unemployment compensation has expired.

Many states are to be dropped from FSC eligibility as the economy brightens. However, an error by the Labor Department in administering the program created confusion as to when FSC money will stop flowing. This bill guarantees that affected states will get at least four more weeks of payments.

Support Olympia Snowe, R-Me., said the bill "clarifies the intent of Congress regarding the current extension of long-term unemployment benefits."

Opponent Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said it was wrong for Congress "to legitimize a bureaucratic error and spend a couple of hundred million dollars providing these extra benefits to which no one is entitled under the law."

Members voting yes want more jobless benefits to be provided under the FSC program.

NORTH CAROLINA
Voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Hefner, James Martin, Broyhill, Clarke.

Voting no: None.

Not voting: Rose.

SENATE

BALLOUT By a vote of 40 for and 57 against, the Senate refused to block by parliamentary means a planned federal bailout of the Washington Public Power Supply System (WPPSS).

The main issue is whether to create a federal lending authority to save the system, which has been called "Whoops" following its default on $2.25 billion in bonds for construction of two of five planned nuclear power plants in the Pacific Northwest.

The question at hand was whether the bailout could be offered as a rider to a pending appropriations bill (HR 3363). This vote reversed a parliamentary ruling that blocked consideration. The final outcome is to be determined after the summer recess.

Senators disagree over whether the new authority would risk taxpayers' dollars.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., who voted to block consideration of the legislation, called it his "duty...to insist that we will not act further on this bill, which can involve a $7.2 billion obligation from the federal government."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, sponsor of the legislation, said "zero, not one penny" of U.S. Treasury funds would be risked because the new lending authority would be backed by ratepayers and the Bonneville Power Administration.

Senators voting no wanted the Senate to consider the bailout measure.

John East, R, voted no. Jesse Helms, R, voted yes.

Set Goals For Saturday Rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organizers of Saturday's 20th anniversary March on Washington say the rally will focus on urging Congress to cut defense spending and create jobs and worker re-training programs.

The group's legislative priorities were announced by Walter E. Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's non-voting delegate to Congress who is the national director of the march.

Fauntroy said the organizers of the march "for jobs, peace and freedom" also support a freeze on nuclear weapons, an equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution and improvements in the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

The march will coincide with the 20th anniversary of the famous "March on Washington" when the late Martin Luther King Jr. made his "I have a dream" speech.

JUNGLE TRAINING — A group of Brazilian soldiers pose in the Amazon jungle during a five-day training session in an almost inaccessible part of the jungle. They are given the barest necessities, but no food; and are told to survive on what nature provides — monkeys, alligators, leaves and roots. (AP Laserphoto)

Protest Banning Writers' Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — A statement protesting Poland's decision to ban the Union of Polish Writers has been sent to Polish authorities by four U.S. organizations that represent 75,000 journalists, writers and poets.
The statement, which was sent to Wojciech Jaruzelski, head of the Polish government and Jan Szczepanski, president of the now-banned writer's union, called the ban an "arbitrary decree" that amounts to a "direct attack on the rights of all Polish people."
The statement was signed by The Newspaper Guild (AFL-CIO); Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists; the National Writers Union; and the Committee for Protection of Journalists.

Teacher, 97, Unworried By Critics

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — The fresh rush of concern for American education, with accompanying calls for better teachers, doesn't worry Dr. Laura Cushman. At 97, and after 70 years of teaching, she's heard her share of criticism.

On the whole, she says, "teachers are better now. They know more about children and what to reach for."

As for the kids, "I can't say whether children are smarter now than they were 50 years ago, but today's children know how to use what they have better."

Laura Cushman arrived in Miami in 1913, straight out of teacher's college in Iowa. She first taught kindergarten and home economics. Nine years later, she opened the forerunner of The Cushman School, which has become the area's oldest private grade school, and initiated teaching practices there that the times have only recently caught up with.

Located on a U-shaped street not far from downtown Miami, the Spanish-style, two-story stucco schoolhouse has changed little since it was built in 1924.

The original hardwood floors glisten and much of the school's original furniture is still in use. High ceilings, plenty of screens on the big windows and ceiling fans have made air-conditioning unnecessary. An old school bell still rings each day.

"Dr. Cushman's philosophy of teaching has not been changed here over the years," says the school's principal, Dr. Joan Lutton. "The No. 1 priority here is character development. Being a good student is a fringe benefit of good character. Cushman School produces solid citizens."

Teaching practices started by Miss Cushman and currently in use in many schools include "contract teaching," which deals with teacher-student planning for learning goals, and "study centers," in which pupils work together on reading and science projects.

Besides the 10 classrooms, there also are music, art and computer rooms. All children, including those in kindergarten, learn Spanish. There are monthly plays and two large productions each year with every pupil participating.

"I wanted children to have everything," recalls Miss Cushman, who still lives in a house her father built about four blocks from the school. "My motive was not only to educate them, but to teach them music, art and physical education."

The Cushman School got its start when Miami's population surged from 6,000 to 30,000 people after World War I. Faced with overcrowded schools and a strained budget, Dade County officials decided in 1922 to do away with kindergartens.

Miss Cushman, already a power in local education, resigned her job and set up school on her front porch. It was called the Park Primary School. Her first class had 12 pupils.

Enough children attended the following year that she could move the school off the porch and into three open-air shacks, says Mrs. Lutton. This became The Cushman School. Parents paid $20 a month for each child. Teachers earned $125 a month. In 1924, the school was moved to its current building.

Miss Cushman said she always intended that her school be accessible to all economic groups. That policy remains unchanged.

"We have 22 youngsters on scholarship and there's no endowment," Mrs. Lutton explains. "In some cases we use the barter system. Perhaps the father can do some painting or the mother can help out in the office. ... We know they'll pay us when they can."

Through the second grade, classes are limited to 15 children per teacher. After that the limit is 20 to 1. The Cushman School now has 22 teachers and 175 pupils. No letter grades are given until the fourth grade, and Miss Cushman has never had a chair or desk bolted to the floor.

New British Crooks Are 'Baffling'

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — A cat burglar suspected of stealing antiques and art treasures worth $1.48 million from stately homes is one of a new generation of British criminals who in recent months have pulled off a string of big robberies that have baffled police.

Over the last five months, the cat burglar dubbed "Raffles" by tabloids after the gentleman crook of fiction, and other bandits have stolen jewels, gold, cash and art works worth an estimated $22 million.

So far, Scotland Yard's famed sleuths and other detective squads have failed to track them down, despite hefty rewards.

When Raffles struck May 18 at Waddesdon Manor, a national trust estate west of London, he scaled a tower, slid down a rope ladder to a first-floor window, snaked over a pressure-pad alarm on the sill and snatched 25 antique gem-studded gold snuffboxes and jewelry worth $740,000.

He triggered an alarm inside the room, but when police raced up four minutes later Raffles had vanished.

Detective Chief Insp. Phil Thomas of Thames Valley police said the robbery was a "brilliantly executed crime." Police suspect Raffles "may be responsible for up to 20 large burglaries."

Most of the big heists have taken place in London. Scotland Yard, headquarters of the capital's Metropolitan Police, is faced with six armed robberies a day, twice as many as in the rest of England and Wales combined.

There were 1,772 hold-ups in London last year. A decade ago the total was 380; in 1962 there were 62.

The robbers' haul last year totalled 12 million pounds (now worth $17.76 million). But the loot from major hold-ups so far this year already exceeds that total.

Among the major heists: — Three armed, hooded bandits handcuffed and gagged five clerks in a London bank Aug. 8 as they arrived for work, forced them to hand over the safe keys, stole 70,000 pounds ($103,600) and locked the bank doors when they fled. Armed policemen in flak jackets arrived 20 minutes later.

— Five gunmen wearing monkey masks scooped up gems and coronets worth $8.9 million June 20 from a store in London's Mayfair district after a gang member gained entry through an electronically controlled door by posing as a customer.

— Four con men got away with 2,500 gold Kruggerand coins worth $1.2 million June 15 after tricking bullion dealers with forged credentials. One gang member cut telephone cables in London's Islington district and tapped into the system to intercept dealers' calls to the gang's phony business front.

— Fourteen gunmen scaled walls around the London headquarters of Security Express, overpowered guards and looted vaults packed with untraceable banknotes. They drove off with what one detective termed "a mountain of money" valued at $10.36 million.

Scotland Yard has reorganized its crime-busting force, including breaking up the legendary Flying Squad into divisional units around London in hopes of countering the new breed of criminal.

"In the old days, the big gang bosses all hung out in the East End or Soho (London's red light district)," said Cmdr. Frank Cater, onetime head of the Flying Squad and now leader of the newly formed Robbery Squad at the Yard.

"Now everyone's a specialist. The head man calls them in for specific jobs and after it's over they all go their separate ways. It makes detection very difficult."

The Met's new chief, Sir Kenneth Newman, has reorganized the Yard's resources on criminal intelligence-gathering, targeting known crime tsars for day-and-night surveillance.

But Newman's strategy has yielded few results. No one has yet been arrested for any of the recent hold-ups.

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed as "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our small stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.
