THE BEGINNING ... The county extension service began another distribution of surplus commodities today and by early morning the line stretched from the basement of the County Office Building (above) to the west side of the complex. An unidentified woman at the head of the line said she had been waiting since 2 a.m. Commodities earmarked for distribution included cheese, butter, flour, cornmeal, rice, milk and honey; and extension service personnel said some items weighed 27 pounds. The Manmade Comet Shuttle Launch Set Sky Ablaze

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space shuttle Challenger, a manmade comet trailing a 500-foot geyser of fire, set the sky ablaze in a brilliant show of sight and sound as it left Earth in the wee hours today. Aboard was a five-man crew, including America's first black astronaut.

Only hours before liftoff there was another celestial spectacle: thunder boomed across the Kennedy Space Center, lightning danced around the spaceship and rain drenched the launch pad and thousands of spectators drawn to the area for the first night launch of a shuttle. The remnants of that storm delayed the launch by 17 minutes, until 2:32 a.m. EDT, and almost resulted in a scrub.

"You should have seen it from here!" spacecraft commander Richard Truly said of the launch as the ship neared orbit. "It was daylight almost all the way up."

He described the liftoff as "like driving through a fog bank, except there was an external orange light source within the fog bank."

Truly added: "You couldn't see anything because of the light ... it got brighter and brighter" until the two solid rocket boosters burned out and fell off. Then, Truly said, "the light from the solid rocket motors was about 500 times more than I remember on STS-2."

Truly was aboard the second shuttle flight in November 1981.

Fellow astronaut Daniel Brandenstein said the separation of the boosters "was the inside of a bonfire. That was a real experience."

It was quite an experience as well for those watching from below. Flame billowed from the base of the shuttle, fanned across the pad with white-hot light and steam.

And then Challenger, illuminated at the birth of flight by 800 million-candlepower floodlights, rose swiftly off the pad, the flame from its solid rocket boosters building to a tower of fire that could be seen from the launch area for 2 minutes and 42 seconds.

The sky grew ever brighter as the flame bounced off the clouds. It looked like a murky, gray dawn created by a white-gold sun. It was bright enough at the press site three miles from the pad to read a newspaper.

First the light, then the sound: loud, louder and still louder until it shook the ground and rattled windows. Still the shuttle climbed, its boosters pumping hellfire for more than two minutes before they flamed out.

There was a moon, but it was pale and weak. The launch, a

French And British Peace Keepers Also Fired Upon

By ROBERT H. REID

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — One French Foreign Legionnaire was killed and two others were wounded in an ambush in Beirut today, 24 hours after two U.S. Marines were killed by mortar fire. British peacekeeping forces also were attacked for the first time, in the same area where the French were hit.

The U.S. aircraft carrier Dwight D. Eisenhower moved closer to the Beirut coast, and Marine spokesman Maj. Bob Jordan said it was there to "support" the Marines. He did not elaborate.

Meanwhile, Israel agreed to a new request from President Reagan to further delay the partial pullback of Israeli troops from Lebanon's central mountains, Israel radio reported from Tel Aviv.

The latest fatality raised the toll to 49 dead in and around Beirut since Sunday. The state radio said President Amin Gemayel convened an emergency Cabinet meeting to deal with the deteriorating security situation.

Maj. Alain de Lestrade, spokesman for the French contingent in the multinational peacekeeping force, said the ambush took place at the Galerie Semaan crossing point in Beirut.

He said in addition to the legionnaire killed that one of the wounded was in serious condition. He said all three were members of the same company but did not identify them further. He said the ambushers fired a mortar or a rocket-propelled grenade at a water truck operated by French forces.

He said the area around the ambush site was "very dangerous" and there was still shooting at midday.

Police said six Lebanese soldiers died in a hospital today from gunshot and shrapnel wounds suffered in the previous two days of battles with Shiite Moslem militiamen.

This raised the casualty toll to 49 killed and 217 wounded in the worst round

Next Step For Monitor Team Is Recovery Of Ship's Turret

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Now that the elusive anchor from the sunken Civil War ironclad USS Monitor has been recovered, researchers are turning their attention to salvaging other parts of the vessel.

Divers retrieved the coral-encrusted anchor Monday, nearly 121 years after it was dropped in a futile attempt to save the warship during a violent storm. The recovery mission by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and East Carolina University began Aug. 21 but was hampered by bad weather.

The Monitor sank Dec. 31, 1862. Dina Hill, a coordinator of the project to recover the ironclad, said crew members had tried desperately to keep the ship afloat by detaching the 1,300-pound anchor from its 700-foot chain.

Thanks to the improved weather that permitted 15-foot visibility, divers were able Monday to get the first clear videotapes of the wreck. Last week, visibility was limited to 5 feet, said Jack Stringer of NOAA.

The next step, said Stringer, is to "make sure the turret is safe; that the ground around the base of the turret is stable."

Some scientists hope to build a supporting structure for the hull so the turret can be removed from the Monitor, which rests upside down under 230 feet of water 16 miles off the coast.

Nancy Foster, chief of NOAA's sanctuary programs division and director of the expedition, said it would take until next year to accomplish some goals.

"We didn't get a chance to get any sediments of the ocean bottom around the turret," she said. "We need those to help determine the feasibility of recovering the turret, which lies underneath the overturned wreck."

She said the sediment samples would be taken next year, when engineering studies on the turret will be made.

Meanwhile, the anchor, measuring 4½ feet by nearly 5 feet, will remain in a specially designed tank aboard the research vessel RV Johnson while scientists do unrelated work for the Department of Marine Fisheries.

Ms. Hill said the anchor would be taken off the Johnson on Thursday and transported by flatbed truck to ECU. Once there, it will be placed in a tank of water through which electricity will be run to remove encrustations, she said.

$987,182 To Pitt In Distributable Tax Proceeds

Net distributable tax proceeds totaling $987,182 were received by Pitt County for the quarter ending June 30, according to state Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch.

He said that, on a per capita distribution basis figured relative to population, Greenville received $249,418. Population was listed as 36,803.

Farmville, based on a population of 4,852, received $32,882, while Ayden, with a population of 4,519, received $30,625.

Other Pitt towns, their populations and receipts, included: Winterville, 2,065, $13,994; Grifton (Pitt's share), 1,943, $13,167; Bethel, 1,913, $12,964; Grimesland, 470, $3,185; Fountain, 434, $2,941; Simpson, 419, $2,839; and Falkland, 120, $813.

Total Pitt population was listed as 92,126 with the county itself receiving $624,348 and the balance allotted to the 10 towns in the county.

Greene County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $56,234 in net distributions with the county itself receiving $51,871 and the balance shared by Snow Hill, $3,302; Hookerton, $828; and Walsenburg, $232.

Lenoir County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $611,364 with $458,404 going to the county and the rest distributed to Kinston, $139,624; La Grange, $9,654; Pink Hill, $3,322; and Grifton (Lenoir's share), $358.

Martin County, also figured on an ad valorem levy, received $209,623 with $171,851 designated for the county and the balance allotted to nine towns. Receiving shares were: Williamston, $29,034; Robersonville, $5,946;

Jamesville, $889; Oak City, $682; Hamilton, $536; Everetts, $300; Parmele, $244; Bear Grass, $88, and Hassell, $49.

Beaufort County totals, figured on a per capita basis, included $408,449 in distributions with $307,496 allotted to the county itself. Seven towns shared in the balance, including: Washington, $65,140; Belhaven, $18,486; Aurora, $5,334; Chocowinity, $5,186; Washington Park, $3,885; Bath, $1,545, and Pantego, $1,374.

Mother Of Five-Year-Old Battles Elephant Man Disease

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Kelly Krug, 5, melted hearts all around when she returned home from a checkup, her mother Pat Krug recalled the other day. "She smiled and smiled," Mrs. Krug said. "As usual."

That's some feat for a child who's had three craniotomies this year to remove tumors, to reconstruct bone on the side of her head, to remove a non-functioning eye, and put a bone between the eye and brain where bone was missing.

The Dedham, Mass., girl on her most recent trip to the hospital submitted to a spinal tap. Doctors checking her over also probed where they had implanted bone from her hip weeks earlier. It was still in place — where an eye would be.

The bone segment was not being pushed out by pressure behind it, as an earlier bone piece had been.

The spinal tap revealed fluid was not collecting inside Kelly's head. For the time being, Mrs. Krug said, Kelly's winning.

Mrs. Krug, mother of three and wife of an electrician, related other good news. Since the bone fragment was staying in place, Kelly could be measured for an artificial eye.

The eye will not see but will give Kelly the appearance of other kids.

Transitory joy over a fake eye is all that Mrs. Krug can manage as the heartbroken mother of a child born with neurofibromatosis — Elephant Man's disease.

The inherited disorder is called that after the famed neurofibromatosis victim in 19th century England whose story in recent years became a hit play and a movie.

The disorder, commonly called NF, happens once in every 3,000 births. Mrs. Krug, as other parents of stricken children, wishes people would stop calling it Elephant Man's disease. Only about one-third of the cases include severe deformities.

Some 100,000 Americans are affected by the inherited disorder that results from a spontaneous gene mutation, said Dr. Alan Rubenstein, co-chairman of the medical advisory board of the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation.

An associate professor of neurology at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York, Rubenstein is a founder of the foundation. He said NF is as common as muscular dystrophy and multiple sclerosis.

But until the foundation started up in 1978, it was an orphan disorder, one misunderstood by the medical profession and the public.

"From the day she was born, what should have been should have been a happy occasion was a sad one," said Mrs. Krug, a part-time lab technician.

"Kelly had a bulging, enlarged, blind eye. Naturally our family loved her just the same."

"Several doctors examined her not knowing what her diagnosis was until at age 4 months her ophthalmologist asked if she had birthmarks."

"She did have 24 cafe-au-lait marks. We finally had a diagnosis — neurofibromatosis. We had never heard of it."

"Still there was no information about NF except that it can be a mild disorder, or sometimes severe. Kelly's — prognosis seemed okay. Someday they will do cosmetic surgery."

By the time Kelly was 2, Mrs. Krug said she heard a chapter of the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation was starting up in Massachusetts. She went to a meeting. Her life has not been the same since.

"At my first meeting," she recalled, "I met two women with NF, covered from head to toe with skin tumors. Large and small bulbous tumors."

"One looked like she had two noses. One couldn't comb her hair without her head bleeding."

"I met mothers of kids with serious problems: deaf, internal life-threatening tumors, enlarged arm — three times larger than normal."

"I couldn't sleep for a week. Neurofibromatosis, I learned, was like a time bomb. And my daughter Kelly had it."

"There was no publicity, no funding, no research to speak of. We as parents of kids with neurofibromatosis or adult NF victims had to do it. Get some help started. And research."

"It isn't easy. We have family obligations and regular jobs. But I've been an active officer for three and a half years now."

Dan Nichols Gives Talk

Dan Nichols was speaker at the meeting of the Greenville Credit Women-International held last week at Abram's Family Restaurant. His topic was on laws governing collection.

Betty Womack gave a scholarship committee report. Gail Stephenson and Ann League were recognized as new members.

The slate of officers presented by the nominating committee included: Patricia S. West, president; Jean McLawhorn, first vice president; Gloria Hathaway, second vice president; Marian Hardee, secretary; and Sandy Simmons, treasurer.

Officers will be installed at the annual Bosses' Night to be held in October.

Mrs. Krug, president of the Massachusetts chapter of the NF Foundation, detailed some of the psychological problems of the disease.

"We want Kelly to have a normal life but her condition keeps getting worse," she said.

"After the third craniotomy in June there was more bad news. Brain tumors were found on the frontal lobe."

"She's happy, outgoing, loves her Strawberry Shortcake collection, and rock 'n' roll and 'Sesame Street.'"

"She wishes she didn't have the eye problem. But she will always add — 'It's OK, Mommy. I can see with my good eye.'"

"I'm thinking I wish that's all Kelly had to deal with. She is stared at, pointed at, sometimes shunned by other kids."

Mrs. Krug said she would like to think that with the help of doctors and research that Kelly could have a fighting chance for a good life.

"All I can do about NF is try to fight it."

Mrs. Krug said there are times she is overwhelmed by the many things that need to be done in research.

"And money is hard to come by," she said. "But it is my hope that kids like Kelly can be helped."

A case of NF as severe as that of Joseph Merrick's — the English Elephant Man who died in 1890 at age 27 — is not usual. One that severe, the NF Foundation claims, has not been reported since. But about 60 percent of the patients have some type of physical impairment, such as multiple skin lumps or deformation of an arm, leg or hand.

Rubenstein said the disease can almost always be identified in babies shortly after birth by the appearance of light brown — cafe au lait — spots on the skin. Doctors look for six or seven spots.

Other signs of the disease in children:

— Abnormal rate of growth, too slow or too fast.

— Curvature of the spine and other bone deformations.

— Learning, speech and vision troubles.

There is no cure for NF. Research aims for one, as well as finding the cause.

Treatment, as in Kelly Krug's case, involves orthopedic surgery to correct bone deformities, plastic surgery for cosmetic improvements, and neurosurgery to pluck out or pare brain or spinal tumors.

Genetic counseling can help adults who carry the NF gene and wonder about passing it on to offspring. A person with NF has a 50-50 chance of doing that.

(Questions about NF will be answered by Joan C. Rudd, president, The National Neurofibromatosis Foundation Inc., 70 West 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

Belle Boyles, past state president of Kinston, made the presentation. She is currently serving as state cancer chairman.

Ms. Brewer reported that $107.50 had been realized from cake sales for the cancer fund. Carrie West reported that $200 had been made for the general fund during the month.

A memorial contribution for Louise Jordan was also received.

Mildred Skinner and Frances Cobb were inducted as new members. The obligation of membership was given by Dorothy Turnage,

Flashy Diamond Rocks Budget

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Sally Ann (not her real name) and I have gone together for four years. We're announcing our engagement soon and plan to marry in about three months.

I planned to buy her a modest little diamond, but she has other ideas. She wants a "big rock" that costs $2,000.

Until recently I was willing to buy her the "rock," although I am far from rich. Then I saw a synthetic diamond that looked so much like the real thing, most jewelers couldn't tell the difference. I can get a ring that looks like the one Sally Ann wants for about $300.

That's the problem. She wants the real thing. With all the other expenses we'll have, I think a $2,000 ring is a waste. That's where it stands. I really love her, but I can't see spending that kind of money on a ring.

Entirely by coincidence I came across this quote by Ralph Waldo Emerson: "Rings and jewels are not gifts but apologies for gifts. The only true gift is a portion of yourself."

What do you say?

DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: If you were Van Gogh, you could give her an ear. But seriously, you can't blame a woman for wanting the real thing. However, don't go in hock for a rock. Spend whatever you can — but let it be genuine.

DEAR ABBY: You are wrong when you say that North America and South America are two separate continents. You must be kidding, Abby. According to universal geography, there are six continents: America, which includes North, Central and South America; Antarctica; Africa; Asia; Europe; and Oceania.

Citizens of the United States are the only people in the world who proclaim the United States and Canada to be the North American continent. It sounds like a joke to the rest of the world.

R. GONZALES

DEAR MR. GONZALES: According to my Rand McNally World Atlas, there are seven continents: Africa, Antarctica, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America and South America. Geography (like history) differs — depending on where it's taught.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter just gave birth to her second child. Her first child was left in the care of a baby sitter while our daughter was in the hospital.

Our daughter told her husband that he should tell the sitter — a young woman of 20 — to go home nights to sleep. (She lives across the street.)

We were very much upset to learn that the young lady did not go home nights; instead, she stayed in the same house with our son-in-law.

We are not making any accusations, but we are very much upset about this. What should we, her parents, do?

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: Nothing. And the less said about it, the better.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Commission Sees After Needs Of Diplomats

By JOHN C. GIVEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The diplomat was worried. His landlord, he said, was threatening to have him killed.

"We asked him what happened," said Andrew Odell, deputy commissioner of the city's Commission for the United Nations and Consular Corps.

"He said he had come home and found a letter under the door. It said the exterminator was coming the next day."

Sometimes the ways of this city are hard to understand, especially for people who don't speak fluent English. The "exterminator," in this case, was trying to rid the apartment of cockroaches.

Each year, the commission's 12-member staff handles about 5,000 queries — landlord-tenant problems; commercial, security and family matters; legal issues and the like.

"We're the first point of contact," said Commissioner Gillian Sorensen. "We're problem solvers, interpreters, negotiators, buffers, a complaint bureau. We try to resolve disputes that could escalate into international incidents, and we try to respond to the special needs and concerns of the diplomatic community, without compromising the interests of the city."

It is an unusual task for a municipal office. New York hosts the largest diplomatic community in the world: 90 consulates, 157 missions to the United Nations and the U.N. complex itself — about 35,000 employees and families in all. But the city is not a national capital, Mrs. Sorensen noted.

Thus, she said, "We perform some of the responsibilities of a state department without a foreign policy, like a protocol office."

The commission works with every country represented here, including more than 20 that have no diplomatic relations with Washington, she added.

The commission helps New Yorkers and officials of the federal and city governments deal with foreign governments. It also helps the city deal with Washington.

Last year, it helped win a federal promise of up to $7 million a year to help pay for police protection of foreign diplomats.

"We have a vested interest in making their stay as palatable and enjoyable as possible," Odell said, explaining that the city "draws $700 million every year into its economy — restaurant, hotels, cars," in addition to office and personal expenses.

At the same time, mostly because of legal immunities, officials estimate the diplomats cost New York and its businesses and residents $15 million annually.

In 1980, officials calculated that New York City lost $1.82 million in unpaid parking tickets, traffic summonses and towing fees, as well as $12.2 million for tax exempt properties. In addition, there were $42,000 in reported unpaid debts to businesses and individuals.

For example, Odell said the office negotiated a $3,600 maintenance payment in 1980 to Pan American World Airways because Ugandan dictator Idi Amin's personal jetliner sat idle at nearby Newark International Airport after he was overthrown.

Sometimes, potentially explosive conflicts arise involving real or misunderstood applications of diplomatic immunity, Odell said.

Most common are real estate disputes, which can easily involve huge sums of money in this crowded city. One-bedroom apartments near the United Nations can rent for as much as $1,000 a month — and up.

In one example, the interchange over a certain chunk of real estate between two U.N. missions became so heated that at one point "the countries threatened to retaliate with their foreign relations," Odell said. "Then there are the others. Someone buys a $1,000 carpet worth $200 ... a $1,000 camera worth $400."

In such cases, the commission attempts to negotiate a compromise, lacking the power to impose a settlement.

Always, staffer Jeffrey DeLaurentis said, the commission is conscious of the value of keeping the diplomats happy.

"New York is aggravating enough as it is, and if people aren't aggravated, they're happy and can do a better job," he said. "... You never know when that might translate into a vote. Who knows? Maybe it could make a difference whether a vote goes for or against the United States."

With landlords or merchants, usually a phone call or two will do.

"New York is a tough place. But, you know, we're the mayor's office," Odell smiled.

The commission also helps newcomers make contact with compatriots already living here, a program especially valuable in this notoriously impersonal city. The need became obvious in 1962, when the lonely wife of a Third World diplomat jumped to her death with two young children from an 18th-floor window.

Sometimes, however, things do not work out. Staffer Phil Goldberg recalled a diplomat who brought a maid to New York.

"Basically he had her working seven days a week, 24 hours a day, with no contact with the outside world. ... He paid her $80 a month. She slept in a tiny room, along with a child of the diplomat she was caring for. ... He forced her to eat on the floor.

"A relative came to us and begged us to help her. ... She was a virtual prisoner there," Goldberg said.

The case was never satisfactorily resolved.

Just when the commission was about to take action, he said, the diplomat reported that the maid had run away.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There's a current joke among female broadcasters where their child asks, "What are you going to be when you grow up, Mommy?" and she answers, "Unemployed."

Ironicly, being an anchorwoman is the only profession in the world where experience is a liability.

In recent years, she has become one of the most visible symbols of equality in our society. For years, women pilots have been hustled into the cockpit before passengers got a chance to see them board. Women garage mechanics have kept a low profile while men still confront customers with the bad news regarding their cars. But at 5, 6, 10 and 11, she's there.

That she is there at all is nothing less than a miracle. The demands made on women broadcasters are still pretty superficial, as is evidenced by the case in the Midwest of a television newswoman who was threatened with dismissal not by what she said or how she said it, but how she looked when she said it.

Imagine for a moment that male newscasters are chosen by the same prerequisites set up for women.

Mr. Rather: I can write under pressure and am free to travel 300 days of the year.

Interviewer: Yes, but can you tie a scarf 63 different ways?

Mr. Brokaw: I can "fill" with a minute and half on the impact of chewing gum on the Western world if I have to.

Interviewer: But can you control and do your own hair at a space launch?

Mr. Jennings: I can pro-

Let Sheppard Memorial Library help you with your information needs. Call 752-4177 for more information.

nounce Yuri Andropov five times without stumbling.

Interviewer: How many beauty pageants have you entered? Won? Do you shave your legs?

Mr. Moyers: I can assess a press conference two minutes after it has happened.

Interviewer: Do you have to wear glasses?

Mr. Seavard: I am in my 70s and bring to this job 50 years of sitting on the 50-yard line of the world.

Interviewer: Yes, but can you get the top men's store in town to dress you for a line credit?

They surveyed some people recently about male and female anchorpersons and generally people said a woman's voice creates a feeling of well-being. That maybe the news they were giving wasn't so bad after all. The bad news is that most of those surveyed didn't believe what she was saying.

Maybe if the woman was older, had gray hair and looked like Walter Cronkite, they would

Antique Show, Sale Planned

CHAPEL HILL — The Chapel Hill Preservation Society's ninth annual antiques show and sale is slated for Oct. 21-23 at the Community Center here.

Twenty-eight dealers from the eastern United States are expected. The weekend will begin with a patrons' party at the Horace Williams House from 5-7 p.m. Oct. 21. The show and sale will continue on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 1-6 p.m.

A highlight of the event will be a breakfast Saturday morning at 9 a.m. followed by a slide-lecture by antiques appraiser Ann Daniel of Raleigh. Her topic will be "Current Antique Auctions: What's Selling."

Cora Himadi is serving as general chairman of the show and sale.

Few men owned even one pinstriped suit just a few years ago, but now some of them own several. Marvin A. Blumentfeld, the president of April-Marcus, a merchandising consulting firm, says the pinstriped suit is now as popular as the navy-blue suit for "business and client meetings."

You are invited to a Leslie Fay Trunk Showing

At Brody's, Pitt Plaza, Tomorrow, Wednesday, August 31, From 12:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Join us for this once-a-year trunk showing of all that's new for Fall 1983 in dresses, and meet Sharon McGinn, fashion representative from Leslie Fay, who will give you a preview of new fall fashion trends. This is a great time to select your own style and color in sizes 6 to 20.

Special orders taken. Allow four weeks for delivery.

Cycle Goes On

As concerned followers of the local employment scene it was a point of great satisfaction to read in The Daily Reflector there were nearly 300 job openings in the area for persons with specialty skills.

To be sure, we read it was still an "employers' market", which means those openings would be largely filled by applicants who could meet specific standards of skill and experience. Even so, it was gratifying.

One could bask in reflecting over that "good news for the day" for several hours before that glow was jolted by realization that so many of the openings cited by the Employment Security Commission did not offer a lot of immediate hope to those who presumably most needed employment.

The really down-and-outers in today's economy are often the untrained, unskilled, inexperienced ... and so on. There are always too many of them.

Can they be trained?

Some few, yes. But we fear too many would be lacking in the basic requirements of adequate schooling, personal discipline, meeting certain health standards, or perhaps being within those age limitations that prevail in some fields of employment.

It has already been determined that the children of people with those shortcomings are apt to be similarly infected; so the "cycle of poverty" has not been broken for all our people. The numbers so entrapped should be of great concern to everyone.

He Made His Mark

Seldom has anyone had more impact on our community than did Dr. Edwin Burtis Aycock, the local physician who died Friday.

For many years he was one of the mainstay family practice physicians, who saw to our medical needs during a time when doctors were in short supply.

In addition to his rigorous schedule as a physician, Dr. Aycock was concerned with local affairs, particularly the education of our young people. He served on the Greenville Board of Education as a member and chairman for 15 years. During that time of service he helped guide local schools through some of Southern education's most difficult times. He also provided care for school athletes for over 30 years and was a past president of the Greenville Lions Club.

Failing health had kept Dr. Aycock from being active for the past several years. He had made his mark here, however, and we are a better community because of the leadership and service he provided.

Policy Is Failure

LOS ANGELES — As one reason for supporting his hard line on El Salvador, President Reagan has offered the prospect of refugees flooding this country to escape communism.

But if pre-empting uncontrolled immigration is his purpose, then the president's policies are a failure. Central Americans have fled to the U.S. in the hundreds of thousands, and a large number — possibly as many as 500,000 — have come from El Salvador, a nation of only 4.7 million.

Here in Reagan's former hometown, some 200,000 Salvadorans are said to live, with 50,000 squeezed into L.A.'s downtown Pico-Union district.

While on Pico Boulevard commercial symbols of El Salvador's growing U.S. presence stare openly at passersby, the sidestreets overflow with families who hide in Pico-Union's dilapidated apartment buildings, often in one room. As mostly undocumented aliens, the occupants are hiding from U.S. authorities.

"The Salvadorans are a frightened refugee population," says Aurora Martinez, a retired nurse who coordinates health care efforts for Pico-Union's Oscar R. Romero clinic. "They exhibit all the worst symptoms of a stressed, war-torn population."

Origins only exacerbate the bleak employment picture. Says social worker Cynthia Anderson, referring to proposed federal restrictions on employers who hire undocumented workers: "With the passage of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill in the House, no employer wants to hire an illegal alien and get fined."

Few Salvadoran refugees, however, seem prepared to return home just yet, or even if and when Central America's strife subsides. But, they say, serious peace negotiations to end El Salvador's civil war might encourage more potential refugees to stay home.

Donald Woods, a South African journalist once imprisoned for his anti-apartheid activities, has formed an organization to inform foreign journalists and government officials about developments in his home country. The new group, Lincoln Trust, will have its U.S. office in Washington.

John Tower's decision to step down from his Senate seat after nearly four terms has irked white House officials. Tower, a Texas Republican and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, had already received substantial political assistance from the administration in anticipation of a tough re-election fight next year. As an expression of its interest in Tower's stand on immigration issues, the White House is said to have established its latest task force on border problems, the Southwest Border States Working Group.

Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino's brutal assassination at the Manila airport last weekend should have fueled the imagination of anyone who remembers the Nicaraguan revolution. In 1978, a similarly charismatic opposition figure, La Prensa editor Pedro Chamorro, was gunned down on the streets of Managua. As is likely in Aquino's death, Chamorro's killers were never identified but were nonetheless linked to the nation's long-ruling dictator (in Nicaragua's case, Anastasio Somoza Debayle).

It's generally concluded, too, that Chamorro's death served most to unite all of Nicaragua against Somoza's rule. Time will tell whether history repeats itself in the land of Ferdinand Marcos.

Should There Be A King Holiday?

WASHINGTON — Now that emotions have subsided in the wake of Saturday's march on Washington, it may be possible to address a few observations to this business of a federal holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. without getting everybody stirred up.

The idea is wholly unwise. As a matter of principle, as a matter of perspective, and for several practical reasons, the idea ought to be abandoned in favor of some other means of honoring the civil rights leader.

I knew King very slightly; we once debated on national network television, and though we were poles apart on legislative issues, I admired his skill as an orator and his courage as a man. When he went out to disturb the peace, he put on his go-to-jail clothes; unlike today's gutless wonders on college campuses, who want to violate the draft registration law and still collect subsidized student loans, Martin Luther King never sought impunity. He accepted whatever punishment came his way, and there is no denying his profound influence on the adoption of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965. He became the foremost symbol of the revolutionary racial changes that began in 1954 with the Supreme Court's decision in the school segregation cases.

But the question at hand is a legislative question: Should the Congress enact a law making King's birthday, Jan. 15, a legal holiday for the District of Columbia and for federal workers everywhere? Let me argue the negative side of that proposition.

First, the practical matters: Legal holidays are supposed to serve a dual purpose. They honor particular individuals or events, and they provide working people with a day of rest from their everyday burdens. We have nine federal holidays: New Year's, Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Holidays cost money. There is no way accurately to fix the cost to the government and to industry for the lost production that unavoidably results from a paid legal holiday, but the cost runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars. Must we add one more such consequence to the nine federal holidays already observed? If King's birthday in January were to be made a national holiday, we would wind up with six holidays in a period of two and a half months — Election Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's and then King's Day. The argument in favor of easing the burden on the labor force ceases to hold water.

These practical objections provide the least of the objections. Note that of the nine federal holidays, only two honor specific individuals: George Washington and Christopher Columbus. We have no federal holiday for such towering figures as Jefferson, Madison and Lincoln. A decent sense of historical perspective should tell us that Martin Luther King, influential as he was in the field of civil rights, was no John Adams, no John Marshall, no Benjamin Franklin.

It is a sound principle in these matters to take the long view. Congress ought never to name a federal building for a living politician. The FBI building on Pennsylvania Avenue never should have been named for J. Edgar Hoover. A long period of years should elapse before individuals are formally ranked in the pantheon of national greatness. It takes time to assess character and to appraise achievements, and this truism applies in the matter of Martin Luther King.

The FBI's files on King were deposited in 1977 with the National Archives, under seal for 50 years. The year 2027 is no farther in the future than the year 1939 is in our past, and that seems not so very long ago. The files will document King's intimate association with communist figures. The files will remind us of King's vitriolic attacks on his own country in the 1960s, when he publicly found the United States worse than Nazi Germany.

To say that the pending holiday bill is a legislative question is to stop short of the whole truth. The bill is a hot political question. It is preposterous to contend that if one opposes the bill, one is therefore anti-black, but political life is filled with preposterous propositions. It will take courage of a high order to vote against the measure. Soon enough we will discover who has it, and who doesn't.

Shift In Workforce Increasing

where between 63 and 77 percent of the workforce will be female. That translates into two million workers.

A labor shift of that magnitude must create ripples throughout society. A state conference on the mergering role of women in the economy is planned for Raleigh this fall to discuss those ripples. Already available, however, is a report from the Bush Institute for Child and Family Policy which mentions some of the challenges this shift in workforce is creating.

With women working, modern day children don't get the parental attention previous generations received. So, there is pressure to restructure the typical workweek. State government has expanded its flextime and job-sharing options for working mothers and there are pressures being brought to bear on private industry to do the same. Also, employers are being asked to provide day care service, and in some cases, to allow children to come to work with their parents.

Suggestions have been made that some of the day care squeeze on parents could be relieved if the public schools would enroll children at earlier ages. Already, there are a number of educators who feel we could be starting children in school earlier and many parents already pay for private preschool. (Conversely, there are those who think we're starting children too early.) Preschool programs could satisfy both concerns. But it creates a real funding problem for the taxpayers.

The number of women in the workforce also raises questions about worker safety. Women of child-bearing age are now taking jobs which, because of environmental conditions, could prove dangerous to their unborn offspring. Some employers are refusing to grant such jobs to women but they then face sexual discrimination suits.

And, of course, the most serious question arises from the growing number of women who are working to support a family. They don't have a husband to bring home the bacon. As this percentage of women in the workforce grows, and it's already high, there's going to be pressure to raise the wages on jobs that were traditionally low paid.

Democrats Have The Advantage

prominent Republicans — Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and John Tower of Texas — have now said they won't run again.

Both come from states in which there are strong Democratic hopes — Democratic Rep. Albert Gore in Tennessee and former Rep. Bob Krueger in Texas — and Democrats already are counting those states as likely pickups. Both have a history of electing Democrats to Congress.

By contrast, only one Democratic incumbent has announced he won't run again, Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, a state which also has a history of sending Democrats to Washington.

Republican sources report a widespread feeling of unease among Republican leaders in the Senate about the upcoming elections, although publicly the same leaders are predicting that the WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are enjoying math for the first time in years as they gear up their campaign to regain control of the chamber next year.

Republicans, who won the Senate in 1980, now hold a relatively thin 54-46 majority. So Democrats, who controlled the Senate for more than 25 years continuously before that, need a net gain of only five seats to win the chamber back.

Mathematically, the Democrats have a built-in advantage. Of the 33 seats on the ballot in 1984, 19 are now held by Republicans while only 14 Democratic seats are up for grabs. Thus, Republicans go into the elections with five more seats to defend than Democrats.

And the math recently has started looking even better to Democrats. Two upswing in the economy and the popularity of President Reagan could translate into another good year for Republicans. But it won't be without a fight. Again, the math is just wrong for them.

In addition to the retiring members, at least three GOP incumbents are viewed to be in political trouble back home, or at least face close races: Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Charles Percy of Illinois and Roger Jepsen of Iowa.

None of the Democratic incumbents now looks as vulnerable, polls by Democrats and others suggest — although tough races may be shaping up in Michigan, where Sen. Carl Levin is the Democratic incumbent, and Massachusetts, where Sen. Paul Tsongas is seeking another term.

In Delaware, what could have been a spirited challenge to Sen. Joseph Biden, the Democratic incumbent, appeared to vanish with Republican Gov. Pierre du Pont IV's recent decision not to run against him.

Against this backdrop, there have been persistent rumors in the Senate of at least one other senior GOP incumbent jumping ship before re-election campaigns get under way.

Speculation that it might be Percy was quickly quashed the other day by aides, who claimed the Illinois Republican, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has no intentions of making such an announcement.

Meanwhile, Helms and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the 80-year-old chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, both have held open the possibility that they may not run again. Both are expected to announce their decisions early next year, aides said.

Wheelchair-Bound, But Qualifies In SCUBA Field

By CAROL TYLER
Reflector Staff Writer
Roy Pate was certified as proficient in SCUBA diving by the National Association of Underwater Instructors recently, culminating a year of practice of the sport which gives him "the greatest freedom of movement I've had since I was seven years old."

Pate, 32, originally from Goldsboro, has been confined to a wheelchair because of rheumatoid arthritis since his early teens.

"I'm no different from anyone else in my head," he said. "I've always had an adventurous sort of spirit and I think about things I'd like to try. Something over a year ago I started thinking about how gravity seemed to be the most limiting factor on my physical movement. While there's nothing I can do to change that on land, I got to wondering about neutral buoyancy. Just how would it feel, I wondered, to have gravity let go of me to some extent and be able to use the physical capacity I have more efficiently and effectively."

"I went to see Coach (Ray) Scharf, who directs aquatic programs at ECU. He was very receptive to the idea — said he'd agree to teach me if I could find some other persons proficient in SCUBA who'd be willing to provide the extra assistance I'd need."

"Last fall Rick Flickinger and Wade Bunting assisted me. And this spring I'd been training with the instruction of Bruce Shackleford, Dwight Erlichman and Sherrill Norman."

"I found out once I started training in the ECU pool that I'd been right. It's not that I can move my limbs any better in the water, but underwater, with my breathing, I can control my movement to a large degree. And the buoyancy that my wetsuit gives me is wonderful. I highly recommend this or some other aquatic activities to anyone with arthritis or any other crippling condition. The lack of stress on the body that you experience in the water is just exhilarating!"

Once he had graduated from the ECU pool to coastal outings, Pate discovered the beauty of the undersea world. "I don't know what Our Maker had in mind when He was making the undersea environment," he said, "but it's entirely different from what he planned for dry land. It's awe-inspiring, a whole different world and I love it."

Diving, he has found, taxes his powers of concentration and self-discipline. "You have to completely detach yourself from the cares of the day, think only positively and directly about what you're doing. You just can't give your mind permission to let your thoughts be scattered or you may find yourself in serious trouble."

Asked if he has experienced any fear of the water and of diving, he said, "No, even though I'm not even a very good swimmer, I really haven't been afraid. I think I just knew I couldn't allow myself to be. I had two strikes against me — inexperience and my disability. If I'd allowed fear to be a third strike, I'd have been out. And I didn't plan to be out."

The fearlessness and dedication that Pate exhibited in his quest to experience deepsea diving help him deal with his physical disability. "I don't even wish to be out of this wheelchair," he said. "I used to and it caused me a lot of anguish. It was when I accepted that I'd always be in it that I found I could get on with my life and do the things I wanted to do."

A graduate of East Carolina University, he was a campus leader in the efforts to make ECU and the Greenville community architectural barrier-free. "Years ago when I first came to the ECU campus, there were many architectural and attitudinal barriers for handicapped people to deal with," he said. "Today, I can get around Greenville in my electric wheelchair just about anywhere I need to. And I've come to believe that the only barriers a handicapped person has now are those he or she creates with his or her own attitude. People are much more understanding and open than they used to be and ECU now has the most barrier-free state-supported school campus in the state."

Coach Ray Scharf said of his student, "I've learned to respect Roy Pate's courage and ability. He has an adventurous personality and heart. He never let his handicap stop him, never made excuses, always did whatever improvising was necessary to do whatever he needed to do to become a proficient diver. He now has a proficiency that will enable him to enjoy diving for many years to come."

Tobacco Prices Up On All Three Belts

By The Associated Press
Flue-cured tobacco prices rose Monday on North Carolina's three tobacco belts, the Federal-State Market News Service reported.

On the Eastern Belt, gains mostly from $2 to $9 per hundred pounds. More bids of $205 per hundred pounds were noted than on previous sales.

Sales in the belt last week

grossed 29,564,110 pounds and averaged $182.37 per hundred — up $9.90 from the previous week. Season sales were brought to 92,924,833 pounds returning $169.41 per hundred.

Prices were stronger
Monday on the Old and Middle Belt as the fifth week of sales began. Most heavy volume grades gained $2 to $6 per hundred from Thursday levels.

Sales in the last week
totaled 18,898,500 pounds and averaged $159.89 per hundred — a gain of $13.32 from the previous week. Season sales through Aug. 25 stood at 39,687,348 pounds returning
$152.71.

Higher grade prices and improved quality marked the beginning of the fifth week of auctions on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt. Gains were mostly $1 to $7 per hundred.

Gross sales in the belt last week totaled 21,281,198
pounds and averaged $181.99
per hundred — up $11.20
from the previous week. Season sales reached 72,027,654 pounds returning $165.81.

Don't Count

PEKING, China (AP) —
China's unemployment rate, once as high as 5.5
percent, has dropped to 2.6
percent, the Xinhua news agency says.

China's government said
that urban employment totaled 112.9 million at the end of June, the 2.6 percent figure would mean about 3 million city
dwellers remain unemployed.

China does not count its 800 million peasants in employment statistics.

Block To Offer Tax Course

H&R Block will offer a basic income tax course starting Sept. 8 with morning and evening classes available.

During the 14-week course, students will study all phases of income tax preparation and receive experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced personnel will teach current laws, theory and application as practiced in Block offices nationwide.

Registration forms, brochures and fee information for the course may be obtained at the Block office in Greenville Square Shopping Center office or by calling 756-9365.

Vines Family Reunion Planned

The descendants of Charles and Mahelia Vines will hold their annual family reunion on Labor Day weekend. On Saturday, a banquet at the Ramada Inn in Greenville will be held at 6 p.m., followed by a social at 9 p.m.

A program in memory of Thomas Vines will be presented Sunday at 1 p.m. at Saint John Free Will Baptist Church in Farmville. The guest speaker will be Marsha (Vines) Johnson of Los Angeles, the great-great-granddaughter of Charles and Mahelia Vines. Music will be directed by Addie L. (Vines) Askew.

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday, the family will meet at Southern Sportsman Restaurant for its annual family dinner and fellowship. Details will be given at the dinner about a trip to Florida that is tentatively planned for June 1984.

Sugg Homecoming Scheduled

The H.B. Sugg Charitable Organization of Farmville will host its annual homecoming banquet and fund-raising social Labor Day weekend at the Ramada Inn, Greenville.

On Saturday, classmates and their guests will participate in the crowning of a king and queen for a day, a fashion show hosted by Ruby Dupree and a buffet dinner. The fund-raising social dance, managed by Johnnie Vines, will be held in the main ballroom from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Class reunions will include students from the classes of 1940, 1951, 1952 and 1948.

The H.B. Sugg Organization, established in 1964, is composed of graduates and students of H.B. Sugg High School in Farmville. For more information, contact Johnnie M. Vines, 211 Harry S. Truman Drive, Upper Marlboro, Md., 20772.

Realtors Join Campaign

Thelma Whitehurst, president of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors, said the area association is participating in a statewide grass-roots campaign to urge Congress and the president to "take immediate action to solve the deficit crisis" and to ensure that "the recovery continues."

The campaign, called "Three-for-All," advocates limiting the growth of spending for federal entitlement programs to 3 percentage points less than the increases in consumer price index and setting the indexation of personnel income tax brackets, scheduled to begin in 1985, at the same amount.

She claimed that in North Carolina the program, when fully implemented, would increase the number of permanent jobs by 69,000, increase average household income by $1,400 a year, increase existing home sales by 39,300 units a year, and result in 38,300 new home starts.

Open House Set At Student Union

An open house featuring a free dinner will be held at the Baptist Student Union, 511 E. 10th St., beginning at 5:30 p.m. today to acquaint the public with the interior redesign work in the facility, as well as to announce programs scheduled for the current school year. Ice cream, provided by a local outlet, will be served with the dinner. Dinner will be served until about 8 p.m.

VOA Retirees To Hold Reunion

The first reunion of retired Voice of America foreign service employees will be held in Greenville Sept. 23-25.

Retired VOA foreign service employees residing in Greenville will host the event, which is expected to draw more than 100 VOA retirees. A welcome party will be held at 7 p.m. Friday at the Greenville Woman's Club building. A banquet will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Ramada Inn. Recreational activities are also scheduled Saturday. The finale will be a pig-picking Sunday afternoon at Bayview.

The reunion is planned to coincide with VOA's 30th anniversary as an independent government agency.

Scouts To Hold Planning Conference

The annual planning conference for all Cub and Boy Scout volunteer leaders in the Pitt District of the East Carolina Council will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Red Oak Christian Church.

The leaders will make plans for the new Scouting year and discuss the "1983 Fall Roundup" program which will be under way Sept. 1 through Dec. 31. The roundup is designed to give prospective Scouts and their parents an opportunity to learn about Scouting and to join a pack or troop.

Troop open houses will be scheduled during September and October in an effort to show prospective new members what Scouting is all about. "New Cub and Dad Day" for Cubs and dads is planned for Nov. 6 at Camp Bonner.

Tarboro's Kelvin Bryant, former football star at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and current member of the Philadelphia Stars of the United States Football League, is serving as the council's honorary roundup chairman.

Cooling Units Taken From PCC

The theft of two window air conditioning units from mobile classrooms at Pitt Community College is under investigation by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said PCC reported the two units, rated at 11,500 British thermal units and 18,000 BTU, were stolen from the classrooms located on the southwest side of the campus. He said the units were valued at $600 and $800.

Entry to the mobile facilities was gained by prying open side doors to the classrooms, he said.

Tyson said the thefts were reported at 7:07 a.m. Monday. He added that PCC indicated the units were apparently taken between Saturday and Monday morning.

Solicitation Requests Approved

Police Chief Glenn Cannon has announced the approval of three requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

He said the requests were submitted by: the Stars of York to conduct a merchant solicitation through Sept. 10 to raise funds for the building fund of York Memorial AME Zion Church; the Ebenezer SDA Church to conduct a door-to-door, sidewalk and merchant solicitation Sept. 1-Oct. 1 to raise funds for religious programs at the church; and by the Roxy Music & Crafts Center Inc. to conduct a door-to-door and merchant solicitation through Sept. 26 to raise money for the Green Grass Cloggers Day celebration.

Ayden Student Graduates

Titina Lynn Cannon of Ayden recently was graduated from Louisiana Tech University. She received a bachelor of arts degree.

Tax Discount Ends Tomorrow

City Tax Collector Floyd Little reminded Greenville taxpayers today that Wednesday is the last day to take advantage of the 2 percent discount for payment of 1983 city taxes. Little said that from Sept. 1 through Jan. 5, the net tax becomes due.

Taxpayers with questions should call the tax office at city hall, 752-4137.

Break-In Reported At House

Greenville police today were investigating the reported theft of $2,955 worth of cash and other property from a house at 2107 Montclair Drive. Chief Glenn Cannon said Larry Eugene Barrett reported the theft about 2:30 a.m. today.

He said entrance to the home was gained through a front window. Cannon said $1,530 worth of clothing, a radio and amplifier value at $825, and $600 in cash were reported taken.

PCC Offers Electronics Course

Pitt Community College will offer a course in fundamentals of digital electronics (ELN 214) beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Classes will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 7-10 p.m. The course will introduce the student to number systems and codes, gates, TTL circuits, Boogian and Karnaugh methods of simplifying logic circuits, arithmetic logic units and flip-flops. It is a prerequisite for advanced digital electronics (ELN 215) and introduction to microcomputers (ELN 231).

In addition, PCC will offer a course in fundamentals of digital electronics II (ELN 215) beginning at 7 p.m. Sept. 7. Classes will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 7-10 p.m. This course is a continuation of ELN 214.

Registration for both courses will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 11, Whichard Building, PCC campus. The deadline for enrollment is Sept. 7.

Charge Filed

Sarah Elizabeth Taylor, 41, of 602B Hudson St., has been charged by Greenville police on charges of false pretenses, failing to return rented property and making a false report to police following investigation of an alleged break-in at 1908 S. Pitt St. on July 23.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Ms. Taylor reported a $1,200 television set rented from a local rental firm had been taken from the Pitt Street dwelling in the July incident. Cannon said investigation of the case revealed that there had been no break-in.

Man Charged In Phone Call Complaint

Greenville police have arrested Simon David Boone Jr., 28, of 63 Greenway Apartments on two counts of making harassing phone calls.

Cannon said the arrest Monday of Boone, who identified himself as a minister, resulted from an investigation begun following a complaint received August 19. The chief said the charges were based on telephone calls to two young women at Eastbrook Apartments on Aug. 25 and Aug. 27.

Letter Of Resignation Is Prepared By Begin

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin wrote his letter of resignation Tuesday after telling his political colleagues, "I cannot go on any longer."

However, it was still not clear when he would submit it to President Chaim Herzog.

Cabinet ministers who called on the 70-year-old prime minister in a last-ditch attempt to change his decision said they found him in his office writing his letter of resignation.

They asked him to delay sending it to Herzog for a few days, until they could choose a successor, and Begin promised to let them know by Wednesday morning whether he would hold up the letter.

The eight Cabinet ministers from Begin's Herut (Liberty) faction of the Likud bloc were to meet later Tuesday to try to pick a successor.

The likeliest candidates appeared to be Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, 68, and Deputy Prime Minister David Levy, 45, with former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon an outside possibility.

"I think they're trying to do it very fast, maybe today or tomorrow morning," said coalition chairman Avraham Shapira.

Ronnie Milo of Herut said he expected a decision within hours.

Begin spent almost three hours meeting with members of his political party and left his office without speaking to reporters. As his car sped away from his office building, he slumped in the back seat and a crowd of supporters chanted "Begin, king of Israel" behind the security fence.

Shlomo Lorenz of the Agudat Israel Party said Begin told his visitors over and over, "I cannot go on any longer." He did not elaborate.

Begin's spokesman Uri Porat told reporters: "The prime minister said explicitly that he intends to give the president of Israel his letter of resignation. It has not yet been decided when he will go to the president."

Shapira said Begin appeared determined to step down as soon as possible and was reluctant even to accede to requests that he delay for a few days. "He was barely willing to do even that," said Shapira.

Ehud Olmert of the ruling Likud bloc said, "All we asked the prime minister to do was to put off the implementation for a few days so that in the meantime we can establish new political facts and set up an alternative government."

Begin's motives were unclear. Israel radio quoted him as telling his political partners the reasons for resigning were personal, and said he denied rumors that he felt too ill to lead the nation at a time of economic and political strife.

Outside Begin's home in Jerusalem, hundreds of supporters chanted "Begin, king of Israel, lives," and carried placards saying, "Our Begin, the people need you." Some had come from northern border settlements, the frequent targets of Palestinian shelling until Begin launched the invasion of Lebanon 15 months ago.

Down the street, a few members of the anti-Begin Peace Now movement maintained a quiet vigil, holding up their own placards urging Begin to "Go to the president" and submit his resignation.

Stock And Market Reports

Hogs
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market today was mostly 75 cents to 1.00 lower. Kinston 47.00, Clinton, Elizabethtown, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadbourn, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson 47.00, Wilson 47.00, Salisbury 45.00, Rowland unreported, Spivey's Corner 45.50. Sows: all weights 500 pounds up: Wilson 40.00, Fayetteville 40.00, Whiteville 39.00, Wallace 40.00, Spivey's Corner 40.00, Rowland unreported, Durham 36.00.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 50.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. The final weighted average was 52.41 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market tone for next week's trading is steady to firm and the live supply is light to moderate for a good demand. Weights light to desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 1,779,000, compared to 1,788,000 last Tuesday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina hen market was 4 cents higher. Supplies adequate. Demand moderate go good. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter was 22 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices nudged higher in lackluster trading today, extending Monday's late advance.

More than seven stocks rose in price for every six that fell in the midday tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which reversed an early 9-point deficit to finish up 2.04 points Monday, climbed another 2.54 points to 1,196.65 at noon.

Analysts said that despite continued concern over the course of interest rates, traders were encouraged Monday when the market's early setback was reversed.

Meanwhile, more signs emerged that the pace of economic recovery is slowing down, something that reduces the risk of a resurgence of sharply higher inflation and interest rates.

The government said Monday that sales of new single-family homes fell 6.5 percent in July, the first monthly decline since February. But sales remained 70 percent above the depressed level of July 1982.

The trading pace remained dull.

Big Board volume reached 27.42 million shares a third of the way through the session, up from 23.13 million in the same period the previous day. The 53.03 million shares that changed hands Monday was the lowest volume so far this year.

The NYSE's composite index rose .16 to 93.96. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .66 to 227.66.

National Steel topped the active list on the NYSE, up 1 1/8 at 26 1/8.

Other steelmakers were mostly higher, with Republic Steel adding 1 1/4 to 24 1/4, Bethlehem Steel up 3/4 to 22 1/4, Armco gaining 1/8 to 19, and U.S. Steel unchanged at 27 1/4.

Aquino's Killer Said Identified

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The government today identified the man it said killed opposition leader Benigno Aquino and said he was a notorious "gun-for-hire" employed previously by crime syndicates or subversives.

Chief military investigator Maj. Gen. Prospero Olivas said the man, who was gunned down by security forces immediately after Aquino was shot Aug. 21, was named Rolando Galman y Dawang.

The presidential palace said he was a member of a gang of robbers and car thieves and had been suspected of at least two murders last year.

Olivas said laboratory tests pointed to Galman as the man who fired the .357 Magnum allegedly used to assassinate Aquino at Manila International Airport.

Galman's allies have accused the government of involvement in Aquino's killing. Marcos denies the charge.

of fighting in Beirut since the Israeli invasion last year. Among the dead were the two U.S. Marines killed Monday and 21 Lebanese soldiers.

The wounded included 14 Marines, one Italian sergeant and 70 Lebanese troops, police said.

Military officials said British troops in Beirut were sprayed with rifle fire and rocket-propelled grenades, the first time the British have come under attack in seven months of peacekeeping.

No one was injured in the attack and the British forces did not return the fire, they said.

Police said army troops and militiamen of Amal, Lebanon's largest Shiite faction, resumed fighting in Beirut's southern suburbs at dawn after an overnight lull.

Police said machine gun exchanges also flared on parts of the "Green Line" that divides Beirut into predominantly Christian and Moslem sectors.

Amal guerrillas had taken control of much of west Beirut, as well as intersections leading to Christian east Beirut. The militia reportedly captured several army soldiers and armored personnel carriers.

Today, police said only two intersections remained open to traffic between the two halves of Beirut.

The leftist newspaper As-Safir, which is close to the Amal leadership, said an agreement had been reached by President Gemayel and Amal on measures to defuse the confrontation.

The newspaper said the agreement included the return of the army to positions it held before the outbreak of fighting Sunday. Amal militiamen would evacuate the streets of west Beirut and abandon checkpoints they set up in the past two days, As-Safir said.

The Cabinet issued a statement calling on the Lebanese to "unify all ranks and stand by the government's side." It urged the United States to "continue all its efforts and carry out its commitments quickly" to help restore peace and national sovereignty in Lebanon.

Shuttle Flies...

magnificent sight in daylight, was awe-inspiring at night. In downtown Miami, 200 miles to the south, people on the roof of a five-story building saw the shuttle as a small red-orange glow. Others on the street below cheered.

As Challenger circled the Earth 184 miles high some of the conversation with the ground was relayed through a communications satellite for the first time. One of the flight's major tasks is to check out the orbiting Tracking and Data Relay Satellite system which promises, eventually, to give the shuttle round-the-world communications as well as serving as a switchboard for orbiting satellites.

"The highlight of the shift has to be the first TDRS pass," said Jay Greene, the first flight director of the mission. The quality of communications, he said, "was as good as any com we've had during the program."

President Reagan, in a message read to the astronauts, said: "Good luck and may God go with you." He said that "we acknowledge proudly the first ascent of a black American into space."

Among spectators at the press site was Sally Ride, who broke the gender bar on the last flight of Challenger just as Guion Bluford, an Air Force lieutenant colonel who flew 144 combat missions in Vietnam, is breaking the color line on this one.

It was still raining on Pad 39A when the astronauts climbed into the cabin they will occupy for the next six days until they land, at 12:40 a.m. Pacific Time, at Edwards Air Force Base in California next Monday, Labor Day.

Along with Truly, 45, a Navy captain, are pilot Brandenstein, 40 and the three mission specialists, Bluford, 40, Dale Gardner, 34, and Dr. William Thornton, who at 54 is the oldest American to go into space.

Hardy folks, many in campers and recreation vehicles, parked beside highways, river banks and beaches for an unforgettable experience.

The lucky ones were among 45,000 guests invited by NASA to choose viewing sites on the space center. A number of black leaders, including congressmen, were in the VIP stands as a tribute to Bluford. Celebrities included former basketball star Wilt Chamberlain.

On Wednesday, Gardner and Bluford launch a communications and weather satellite for India. Also on board Challenger is an experiment for making pure drugs, 260,000 stamped envelopes for collectors, and six rats whose travel comfort is of interest to scientists.

Bluford quickly set about activating the drug manufacturing process, which involves for the first time separating living cells, and reported he had completed the first test.

The astronauts will also test the ability of the shuttle's 50-foot mechanical arm to move payloads with great mass, maneuvering a package that weighs 7,640 pounds on Earth around the cargo bay.

The early-morning liftoff time — and the middle-of-the-night landing — were dictated by the need for Challenger's crew to release the Indian satellite into a precise slot above the equator within radio range of a tracking station at Hassan, India.

IMF Is Looking For Loan Of $6 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressed to increase aid to debt-ridden developing nations, the International Monetary Fund is negotiating with Saudi Arabia and several industrial nations for a $6 billion loan, officials say.

The United States has not been participating in the loan negotiations, which included West Germany, Japan, Switzerland and Great Britain, according to officials who spoke Monday on condition they not be identified by name.

Jacques de Larosiere, the fund's managing director held "discussions with the Saudis and other potential lenders" in Europe recently, said a monetary official who also did not want to be quoted by name.

The IMF is over-committed by about $3 billion on its borrowed resources because of the growing demand for aid from developing nations, the official said. The fund makes loans to developing nations that agree to impose stringent measures to curb their economic problems.

Nebraska Trounces Lions

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — For one game at least, Penn State has gone from the penthouse to the flophouse.

Fresh from their first-ever national college football championship, achieved last Jan. 1 in a 27-23 Sugar Bowl triumph over Georgia, the Nittany Lions wore their crown for the first time on the field of battle Monday night. Embarrassing is putting it mildly. Devastating is more like it.

The final score of the inaugural Kickoff Classic was Nebraska 44, Penn State 6. It wasn't that close, not until the final 20 seconds when Penn State scored to avert what would have been its first regular-season shutout in 17 years.

The 38-point whipping matched the worst loss ever suffered by a Joe Paterno-coached squad — a 49-11 rout by UCLA in 1966 — and left everyone wondering whether Nebraska, the No. 1-ranked team heading into the season, is that good or fourth-ranked Penn State is that bad. The answer probably lies somewhere in between.

"I was kind of amazed at the way it went," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne. "I don't think you can say the game was a true indication of the strength of Penn State or the strength of Nebraska. I think the thing snowballed. I'm still concerned because I'm not sure what the final score really means.

"I don't know if we're very good or not. We're good, but I don't think we're that good. I thought if we played well and they played well it would be a five- or seven-point game. I thought we could win strictly on Turner Gill's experience."

Gill, a senior quarterback, is the ringleader of the dynamite Nebraska offense which led the nation a year ago with 518.6 yards a game. The Cornhuskers settled for 500 on the nose this time, with 298 coming in the first half when they built a 21-0 lead and allowed Penn State out of its own territory just once.

"I thought we'd beat them by two or three touchdowns," said Gill, who completed 11 of 14 passes for 158, scored the game's first touchdown on a 1-yard sneak and fired a 19-yard scoring pass to Monte Engebretson on the final play of the opening period to make it 14-0. "When we got a 21-0 lead, I knew then all we had to do was score one more touchdown. After we got 21 points I knew deep down we had the game."

Gill, who returned for his senior year rather than sign a baseball contract with the New York Yankees, directed scoring drives of 78 and 86 yards in the first period and teamed with backup Nate Mason on a 66-yard march in the second quarter, capped by Mason's 20-yard touchdown pass to Todd Frain.

The Nebraska defense chipped in with a score of its own early in the third quarter when linebacker Mike Knox made a juggling one-handed interception of a Doug Strang pass and returned it 27 yards for a touchdown. Dave Schneider kicked a 34-yard field goal later in the period, Mason darted 21 yards for a touchdown early in the final quarter and third-stringer Paul Miles dived across from one yard out with 2:06 left to cap an 88-yard drive and make it 44-0.

The losers finally scored when Dan Loneragan fired a 35-yard touchdown pass to Sid Lewis with 20 seconds remaining.

That just gave the Lions a respectable 227 yards through the air, but juniors Strang and Loneragan, who have a long way to go to reach the level of the departed record-setting Todd Blackledge, completed just 13 of 39 passes and were 3-for-16 in the first half for a meager 57 yards, with 39 coming on one play.

"You can't get much worse than I was tonight," said Strang, who was 2-of-10 for 22 yards. "Nebraska was a great team, but we didn't help matters, especially the way I played."

Loneragan hit on 11 of 29 for 205 yards, mostly after the outcome was no longer in doubt.

"Nebraska knew we'd be weak in our skill areas," said Kenny Jackson, Penn State's All-American wide receiver, who managed only four catches for 54 yards. "We don't have a quarterback who can go out there with consistency. The only thing we can do is go back and try to improve."

With virtually no offense to speak of when it counted, Penn State's heralded defense was unable to stem the tide.

"I don't think our defense played too badly," Paterno said. "I just think our offense couldn't get anything going. You don't beat Nebraska with defense. You have to score some points. Unless you get some points, nobody is going to handle these people."

"Other schools know that if you take one thing away, we've got something else. You really can't stop Nebraska," said tailback Mike Rozier, who rushed for a game-high 71 yards on 16 carries and needs only 112 yards to break I.M. Hipp's school record.

A crowd of 71,123 turned out at 76,891-seat Giants Stadium and saw Nebraska extend the nation's longest major college winning streak to 11 games and avenge last-quarter losses to Penn State the last two seasons.

The Kickoff Classic, approved last January by the NCAA, counts as part of the regular season and is a benefit for the National Football Foundation to help pay the mortgage on the College Football Hall of Fame at Kings Island, Ohio.

Golf Pros Participate In Benefit

NORTH MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — More than 50 golf professionals took a day off from the pro tour to participate in a pro-am that raised more than $200,000 for fellow golfer Jack Newton.

The benefit tournament, held Monday at Bay Tree Golf Plantation, drew 56 professionals, including Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Devlin, Fuzzy Zoeller and Ben Crenshaw.

Proceeds will go to pay medical expenses for Newton, who was critically injured last month when he walked into a propeller on a small plane. The accident severed his right arm and injured his eye.

More than 12,000 people jammed onto the golf course to watch the pros and amateurs. Participants paid as much as $5,000 apiece to play in the tournament.

Other top golfers attending were Hal Sutton, John Cook, Bruce Lietzke, Bob Shearer, Tom Purtzer, Howard Twitty, Lon Hinkle, Ed Sneed, Bobby Watkins, and George Burns.

Devlin predicted Newton will recover from the serious injuries he suffered in the accident in Sydney, Australia.

"Jack's a great competitor, and that's the reason he's alive. The average person wouldn't have come through that ordeal," Devlin said.

"I watched Jack come up as an amateur," said Devlin. "I think it's fair to say that he did not have a lot of natural talent, but he was such a fighter that he always did well."

Tournament officials said they would know in a day or two exactly how much money was raised.

Only one of the 56 scheduled professionals failed to show up. Jerry Heard of North Carolina had car trouble, and missed the teeoff.

At the last minute, area professional Harris D'Antignac replaced Heard and he and his four amateurs walked away with top honors on the Green course.

D'Antignac's team of Orb Elam, J.B. Webster, Bill Tillett and Gene Hester won with a net score of 55.

The team of PGA pro Chip Beck, Dick Elliott, Wayne Livingston, Jerry Blount and J. Fitzgerald O'Connor won top honors on the Gold course with a 54.

No Where To Go

Coaches Make Tough Decisions As NFL Teams Trim Rosters To 49

By The Associated Press

Ask any National Football League head coach. The toughest part of the job is taking back the playbook. They all received a break this year when the league increased the rosters from 45 to 49, but that did not make this year's final cuts any easier to administer.

"The last thing I needed today was a news conference," said the Houston Oilers' Ed Biles, who Monday axed nose guard Daryle Skagstad and guard Ralph Williams — two of last year's starters — and tight end Walt Arnold. "I'm more concerned about the lives of the young men we'll have to cut."

Coach Joe Gibbs, who cut 10 Washington Redskins players to reduce his roster to the required opening-day limit, agonized over his dismissal of running back Clarence Harmon.

"It was a hard decision," Gibbs said. "It's the one thing you don't like about this job. The coaches have been living with him day after day for three years. It's just a hard thing to do."

It would have been a lot more difficult had Harmon, the Redskins' third-leading rusher last season, not been arrested this spring and charged with possession of cocaine. He continued to work with the team pending resolution of the case, carrying the ball just four times in pre-season games.

Another coach wrestling with names Monday was Monte Clark, who was dismayed about letting punter Ray Stachowicz go in favor of rookie Mike Black. The three-year veteran from Michigan State was picked up by the Detroit Lions late last week after being cut by the Green Bay Packers.

"We didn't have a lot of time to make a decision. We just had the game Saturday to look at him," said Clark, who also traded wide receiver Tracy Porter to the Baltimore Colts for a 1984 draft choice. "He just didn't seem to turn the ball over like he did in college."

"I'm certainly not knocking the guy. I just had to make a quick decision and Black has been here all year."

Bart Starr had so much difficulty choosing between 17-year veteran Jan Stenerud and rookie Eddie Garcia that he kept both placekickers.

"We've looked at our football team, and we feel that this was a move not only for the present, but for the future," the Green Bay Packers' head coach said. "We likewise feel that we will not be seriously hurt ourselves by carrying two kickers as opposed to another player at another position."

Joe Danelo would feel a lot better if Coach Bill Parcells had shared Starr's attitude. The veteran ended a seven-year association with the New York Giants Monday when Parcells named rookie Ali Haji-Sheikh as his placekicker.

The Giants' ninth-round draft pick from Michigan won the job, Parcells said, because he is "22 years old, with youth, potential and production."

The Giants' coach also is keeping rookie John Tuggle, the 33rd and last player selected from this year's 12-round college draft.

"He can run, block and catch and he could play on special teams," said Parcells, who will start the season with eight rookies on the squad. "I realized about three weeks ago that he'd be here."

Tuggle, a 5-foot-11 fullback, is only the fourth final draft pick since 1970 to remain with an NFL team after his first training camp.

Three teams, the Minnesota Vikings, Pittsburgh Steelers and St. Louis Cardinals, withheld the announcements of their cuts until today in order to inform the players, who had Monday off.

"Because the players weren't there, we couldn't tell the players who were cut," Vikings spokesman Merrill Swanson explained. "We feel we owe them the courtesy of telling them personally."

Among the other notable veterans cut was Cincinnati Bengals defensive back Mike Fuller, who needs seven punt returns to break the late Emlen Tunnell's NFL record of 258. Fuller has been hampered with a knee injury.

Others included safety Benny Barnes by the Dallas Cowboys, tight end Riley Odoms by the Denver Broncos, quarterbacks Matt Robinson and David Humm by the Los Angeles Raiders, three-time All-Pro defensive tackle Louie Kelcher offensive lineman Russ Washington and defensive lineman Wilbur Young by the San Diego Chargers, running back Vagas Ferguson by the New England Patriots and offensive lineman John Yarno by the Seattle Seahawks.

The San Francisco 49ers cut lineman Cody Jones and punter Jim Miller and got Tom Orosz in a deal with the Miami Dolphins to fill Miller's spot. Another trade sent veteran offensive tackle Charlie Getty from the Kansas City Chiefs to the Packers for a future draft choice.

State-ECU Ticket Sale

A limited number of tickets to the East Carolina-N.C. State football game are still available at the ECU Athletic Ticket Office at Minges Coliseum, it was announced this morning.

The tickets are $12 each and are available to anyone on a first-come-first-served basis. Those interested are urged to make their purchases as quickly as possible.

Injuries Force Shifts On Florida State Front Line

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's seventh-ranked college football team has made wholesale shifts in its offensive line, once considered the Seminoles' deepest area, because of a series of pre-season injuries.

The Seminoles open their season at home at 7 p.m. Saturday against East Carolina.

The most notable change is a move from center to guard by Tom McCormick, an Associated Press All-America honorable mention at center last year.

The 6-2, 240-pound senior from Panama City will replace Parrish Barwick, a 6-0, 285-pound sophomore from Crawfordville, who is expected to be out for at least eight weeks with fractured foot.

Moving into the center position is Sam Restivo, a 6-0, 245-pound senior from Jamestown, N.Y. He had been pressing McCormick for the starting position and was expected to snap for punts and place kicks, anyway, as he did last year.

Barwick, who may be redshirted to preserve his eligibility for another year, was himself a replacement for Ricky Render, a 6-4, 255-pound senior from Newton, Ala.

Render had suffered a knee injury that initially was expected to end his playing days. But based on a new, more optimistic medical examination, Render began rehabilitation Sunday.

Render isn't expected to be ready for the opener, but he could be ready to go the following week at Louisiana State, said Don Pauls, FSU's trainer.

Another change on the offensive line will see John Ionata, a 6-3, 265-pound sophomore from Dunedin, starting at tackle despite a badly bruised hand that will require the wearing of a cast.

Ionata is a replacement for Jim Thompson, a 6-6, 235-pound junior from Midlothian, Va., who is expected to be out about three weeks with a knee injury.

The juggling leaves only tackle Terry Widener, a 6-4, 265-pound senior from Donaldsonville, Ga., and guard Jamie Dukes, a 6-0, 290-pound sophomore from Orlando, in their original positions on the interior line.

"Needless to say we are in a bind," said offensive coordinator Wayne McDuffie. He said McCormick was moved because he is adaptable, intelligent and "the personification of the team player."

"If you ask me what I would rather play, I would rather play center," McCormick said. "But I want to do what it takes to win."

Meanwhile, quarterback Kelly Lowrey is showing improvement following a slight shoulder dislocation last week. The 6-1, 225-pound senior from Lake City should be ready to start Saturday, quarterback coach Mike Kruzek indicated.

Rice Slams Three HRs

By The Associated Press
Once again this season, Jim Rice is starring in the soon-to-close Boston Red Sox show.

And on Monday, he staged another remarkable performance. Rice slugged three two-run homers — the final one in the top of the ninth inning — to lead the Red Sox to an 8-7 victory over Toronto and a split of their two-night doubleheader with the Blue Jays.

"I don't think about hitting home runs when I go to the plate," said Rice, "I just try to hit the ball hard." Rice's effort, combined with a 2-for-4 effort in Toronto's 5-1 first-game victory, gave him a major league-leading 33 home runs, along with a .302 batting average and 100 runs batted in.

"He can hit," commented Toronto Manager Bobby Cox. Despite Rice's best efforts, the Red Sox are lagging in sixth place in the American League East, 15 games behind Baltimore, as the final month of the season approaches.

In other AL games, Minnesota nipped Detroit 5-4 in 11 innings, Chicago squeaked by Texas 2-1, Baltimore trounced Kansas City 9-2, Cleveland downed Seattle 6-4, and Seattle tripped Milwaukee 2-1.

Rice's first two home runs came off Toronto starter Jim Aker. His first ball made it 2-0 in the first inning and the second pulled Boston within 5-4 in the sixth.

"The first one was a slider and I didn't think I'd hit it well enough to get it out," Rice said. "The next one was over my head but I hit it hard enough."

Boston still trailed 7-6 when Wade Boggs led off the ninth with a double. Rice then homered again to pin the loss on Randy Moffitt, 6-2, who was the fourth Toronto pitcher of the game.

The Blue Jays bullpen has been getting roughed up lately, and Cox says his nerves need some immediate relief.

"You find someone who can get me three outs — even one out — and I'll consider him," Cox said.

Red Sox reliever Mark Clear got the win and is now 4-5.

In the first game, Jesse Barfield smacked two home runs and Buck Martinez added another solo shot for the Blue Jays.

Orioles 9, Royals 2

Scott McGregor continued his hot streak, as did Baltimore.

McGregor, 16-5, allowed eight hits in his 11th complete game of the season as the Orioles won for the sixth straight time.

Baltimore has now won 13 of its last 16 and, coupled with Milwaukee's loss, leads the Brewers by 2½ games in the AL East.

Cal Ripken belted a two-run homer, his 20th, in the first inning to get the Orioles off to a fast start against Gaylord Perry, 6-13.

Baltimore completed the triumph at Royals Stadium with a five-run ninth inning, capped by John Shelby's grand slam, the first of the career and his fifth home run of the season.

White Sox 2, Rangers 1. Richard Dotson retired the first 12 Texas batters and finished with a three-hitter against the slumping Rangers.

Dotson, 15-7, dealt visiting Texas its seventh loss in eight games and 13th defeat in 17 outings.

Carlton Fisk singled home Rudy Law, who had tripled, in the first inning and Julio Cruz delivered an RBI single in the fifth to make it 2-0 against Mike Smithson, 7-13.

The Rangers broke through in the sixth when Wayne Tolleson drew a two-out walk, stole his 30th base and scored on Billy Sample's single.

Chicago is now 8½ games ahead of Kansas City in the AL West.

Mariners 2, Brewers 1. Don Sutton's hard luck continued in Seattle.

The Milwaukee right-hander, 7-11, tossed a three-hitter, yet lost for the sixth straight time. He is now winless in his last eight starts, dating back to July 14.

The Mariners managed to win on Steve Henderson's home run in the second, his seventh, which made it 1-1 and Al Cowens' double and Ricky Nelson's RBI groundout in the fifth.

Ted Simmons singled home Milwaukee's run in the first inning against Bryan Clark, 6-6, who scattered seven hits in his first complete game of the season.

Twins 5, Tigers 4. John Castino doubled home Tom Brunansky with two outs in the top of the 11th inning to lead Minnesota.

Brunansky opened the inning by drawing a walk from reliever Aurelio Lopez, 8-7, and went to second on a wild pitch. Brunansky moved to third on a fly out and scored on Castino's double into the right-field corner.

Rick Lysander, 4-10, allowed just one hit over five innings to get the win. Ron Davis pitched the 11th for his 26th save.

Alan Trammell drilled his 13th homer in the first inning off Twins starter Frank Viola, who has now surrendered 30 home runs, most in the majors.

Indians 6, Angels 4. In California, Jim Essian's two-run homer in the sixth inning sparked Cleveland.

His home run, his second off the season, capped a three-run inning and padded the Indians' lead to 5-0 against Mike Witt, 7-10.

The Angels battled back against rookie Neal Heaton, 10-4, with three runs in the seventh. Ron Jackson's sixth homer led off the inning.

But Bud Anderson went the final 2-3 innings for his fifth save.

Dodgers Take Over First

By The Associated Press

A shove from Tom Lasorda has pushed the Los Angeles Dodgers to the top of the National League West.

"He really got us going," said pitcher Steve Howe, remembering a pep talk by the Dodger manager back on Aug. 10 in Cincinnati. "He's a great motivator."

Since Lasorda held that closed-door meeting with his team, the Dodgers have won 13 of 15 games, including Monday night's 6-1, 7-3 twilight sweep of the New York Mets. That gave the Dodgers a one-game lead over the Atlanta Braves, who dropped out of first place for the first time since July 4 after a 7-5 loss to Chicago.

"To have made up so much ground in such a short period of time makes me really proud of this club," said Lasorda, whose team was as far behind as 6½ games on Aug. 13.

"We left Cincinnati (the Dodgers salvaged the finale of a three-game series, 4-3, on August 11) a lot closer team. I realized something had to be done the way we were going — and I did it."

In other NL action, St. Louis tripped Houston 6-1, Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 2-1, Montreal blanked San Francisco 5-0 and San Diego defeated Philadelphia 6-5 in the opener of a doubleheader before losing the nightcap, 8-6.

Bob Welch and Tom Niedenfuer combined on a four-hitter and Ken Landreaux knocked in two runs to lead the Dodgers in the first game. In the nightcap, Greg Brock's two-run homer keyed a four-run fourth inning for the Dodgers. The sweep, incidentally, gave the Dodgers 12 victories in their last 13 games.

"The Dodgers are like a stick of dynamite ready to explode," said Mets Manager Frank Howard. "They still haven't hit the way I think they can. But now they're on a roll. I think it's going to be a dogfight, right down to the last day of the season again."

Cubs 7, Braves 5

In Atlanta, Mel Hall knocked in five runs with two homers, including a grand slam, and Keith Moreland lashed a tie-breaking, two-run shot in the seventh inning to lead Chicago over the Braves.

Atlanta was ahead 4-0 when Hall connected against Braves' starter Phil Niekro in the fifth inning with the bases loaded for his 10th home run of the season and the first grand slam of his career. Then, after the Braves had regained the lead in the sixth, Hall opened the seventh with another homer.

Leon Durham followed with a walk and scored when, two outs later, Moreland powered a shot over the fence in left. It was Moreland's 14th homer of the season, but only his first since July 13.

Bill Campbell, 4-7, gained the victory for Chicago but needed help from Lee Smith, who entered the game in the seventh and earned his 21st save.

Cardinals 6, Astros 1. In Houston, Willie McGee knocked in four runs with a double and single to pace St. Louis over the Astros.

McGee gave the Cardinals a 2-0 edge in the first inning with a two-run double off loser Mike Madden, 6-3, and made it 4-0 in the sixth when he drove in two more runs with a single.

Winner John Stuper, 9-8, allowed 10 hits, struck out three and walked one while notching his fourth complete game.

Pirates 2, Reds 1

In Cincinnati, Rick Rhoden scattered six hits over seven innings and singled home a run in the fifth to help Pittsburgh beat the Reds.

Rhoden, 10-11, struck out nine and didn't walk a batter, allowing just one runner to reach second base. He scattered six singles over the first seven innings, then left in the eighth when his right shoulder stiffened.

Kent Tekulve pitched the last two innings for his 16th save, giving up the Reds' run in the ninth on a triple by Gary Redus and groundout by Dave Concepcion.

Expos 5, Giants 0

In Montreal, recently-acquired Manny Trillo had three hits and drove in two runs and Bryn Smith pitched a six-hitter as the Expos defeated San Francisco.

Trillo, obtained from the Cleveland Indians on August 17, has 10 hits in 23 at-bats for a .435 average since joining Montreal.

Trillo's single brought in one run in the first inning off Mike Krukow, 9-8, and he later scored the second run of the inning on a single by Warren Cromartie. In the fifth, Trillo led off with his first home run since returning to the National League.

Smith, 4-7, broke a personal three-game losing streak. He struck out seven and walked none in posting his first career shutout. Smith was helped by three double plays.

Padres 6-6, Phillies 5-8

In Philadelphia, Sixto Lezcano tripled home the tie-breaking run and Luis Salazar followed with a two-run homer in the eighth to carry San Diego over Philadelphia in the opener of a rain-delayed doubleheader. The contest was held up in the sixth inning for nearly two hours because of rain.

Mike Schmidt's first of two home runs and a bases-loaded double by Ozzie Virgil highlighted a four-run sixth as the Phillies won the nightcap. The homers gave Schmidt 30 for the season.

Rogers Gets His Chance At Tech

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Stu Rogers has spent the last several months throwing a ball and he doesn't plan to let up now, especially since he's Georgia Tech's starting quarterback.

The Miami native had been relegated to three years of backup duty at Georgia Tech while Mike Kelley and Jim Bob Taylor tried unsuccessfully to raise the Yellow Jacket fortunes to respectability.

Taylor succeeded as Tech climbed to 6-5 in 1982 after successive one-victory seasons under Bill Curry. As for Rogers, he completed 12 of 30 passes with three interceptions.

Now, Rogers has a chance to lead a team in its first shot at the Atlantic Coast Conference title.

"I just want to quarterback a winning team," Taylor said. "We want the chance to win the ACC and perhaps go to that one more extra game. I just want to win."

When Rogers wasn't tossing footballs in spring drills, he was firing fastballs for the Yellow Jacket baseball team. In one outing, he twirled a no-hitter against Ball State. But he saw the need to concentrate on his football career after Georgia Tech recruiters brought in three freshmen to accompany the other two already in camp. Given the three previous years of bench time, it looked a little bleak.

"The feeling to quit has been there plenty of times. There were times when I thought it just didn't look good for me," Rogers said. "I just wasn't ready to quit, so I stuck it out. Things got better and better."

His dedication is more intense. Two years ago, he skipped spring football drills for baseball. With a combination of daytime practices and night-time baseball this spring, Rogers was able to enjoy both sports and not lose out on either career.

"I had to be there if I wanted the starting job. I couldn't afford not to be there and expect to start," he said.

Rogers has adequate help in the backfield from junior tailback Robert Lavette and fullback Ronny Cone. Wide receiver Michael Harrington suffered a broken kneecap but is expected to return in four weeks. But Rogers has also been working on his own game, making sure he can contribute his share.

"This year, I recognize more from the standpoint of defenses, their philosophies and what we can do with our offense. That's helped tremendously," he said. "I can read defenses a lot more quickly when I did when I was a freshman."

Curry has noticed the difference, too.

"Stu Rogers was on the spot last spring because we knew we had some real good freshmen coming in. He just had a great spring, then he came out this summer and threw on his own," Curry said. "We thought he was throwing the ball extremely well and he's done nothing so far to indicate otherwise. Rogers is ahead on merit."

Navratilova Is Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second straight year, Martina Navratilova was named Player of the Year by the Women's Tennis Association.

Navratilova and Pam Shriver were selected as the top doubles team of the year, Carling Bassett was honored as the most impressive newcomer, and Andrea Temesvari of Hungary as most improved player.

The Karen Krantzcke Award for sportsmanship went to Sharon Walsh, while Lele Forood captured the Player Service Award.

Last Man In Draft Is Safely On Giant Roster

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — John Tuggle says he knew all along he could make it in the National Football League, even though the odds were against him. He was the 335th, and last, player taken in the 12-round draft.

"My back was to the wall because I was the last pick," said Tuggle.

The 5-foot-11 fullback out of California learned Monday that he was among 49 players on the New York Giants' regular season roster.

Tuggle said Coach Bill Parcells told him during the Giants' third exhibition game with the Baltimore Colts that he had made the team, but he was apprehensive until the final cutdown was made.

"It was after I had made a big block on a cornerback. I knocked the guy over, just killed him," said Tuggle, a reserve behind starting fullback Rob Carpenter.

"I was on the sidelines and (Parcells) said, 'Come here.' He told me, 'You can play on my team any time.' He said I could call my wife and tell her. It didn't really sink in then."

Tuggle relayed to his wife, Stephanie, what Parcells said, but he also told her not to move their belongings from their California home to New Jersey until it was made official.

He gained 1,813 yards on 434 carries during his college career, including 438 yards on 143 carries as a senior.

"He can run, block and catch and he could play on special teams," said Parcells of Tuggle. "I realized about three weeks ago that he'd be here."

"He's only 210 pounds, but he blocks like he's 250. He can play," said Carpenter, Tuggle's adviser throughout training camp. "He's the strongest back here. He's a better power blocker than me."

Tuggle is only the fourth final draft pick since 1970 to make an NFL roster. Offensive lineman Tyrone McGriff started 10 games for the Pittsburgh Steelers as a rookie in 1980 and remained with the club for two more years before going to the United States Football League.

Defensive back Tim Washington, the last pick of the 1982 draft, played one game for the San Francisco 49ers and then, after his release, played one game for the Kansas City Chiefs. In 1973, wide receiver Stanley Wade was on the Miami Dolphins taxi squad and then played briefly for the Chiefs in 1977.

Tuggle was one of eight rookies to make the club. First-round choice Terry Kinard, a safety from Clemson, topped the list that included two players from Louisiana State — defensive end Leonard Marshall, the No. 2 pick, and tight end Malcolm Scott, the fifth-round selection.

Other draftees on the squad are guard Kevin Belcher of Texas-El Paso, a sixth-round choice; No. 8 pick Andy Headen of Clemson, a linebacker; and placekicker Ali Haji-Sheikh, a ninth-round choice from Michigan who ousted veteran Joe Danelo. Free agent tight end Zeke Mowatt of Florida State was the other rookie on the final roster.

Anyone wishing to bid on the cutting and cleaning of lots for the City of Greenville should call the Inspections Department at 752-4137 to have their names included on the list of bidders.

'Mr. Mom' Zoomed To Top Of Movie Charts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mr. Mom," a tale of mother-father role reversals in an era of recession-spawned layoffs, was the top moneymaker at North American box offices last weekend.

The 20th Century-Fox comedy, starring Michael Keaton as the househusband and Teri Garr as his working wife, earned $6.4 million in 1,235 theaters throughout the U.S. and Canada between Friday and Sunday, bringing total receipts to $20.4 million for its first six weeks.

"Risky Business" from Warner Bros., was the weekend's second highest-grossing film with $4.8 million in 1,089 theaters.

Orion's "Easy Money," the prior weekend's winner, took in $4.5 million in 1,171 theaters and fell to third. It stars comedian Rodney Dangerfield.

"Flashdance," "Trading Places," "War Games" and "Octopussy" remained top draws and are among the five top-grossing films of the summer. "Return of the Jedi" is the summer's No. 1 hit.

Other top weekend earners included MGM-UA's new sword-and-sandal epic, "Hercules," which grabbed $3.47 million after opening Friday in 1,001 theaters and "National Lampoon's Vacation," from Warner Bros., which took in $3.41 million on 1,246 screens.

Warner's "Cujo" earned

$1.94 million in 1,025 theaters. MGM-UA's "Strange Brew," which opened Friday, took in $1.91 million in 849 theaters.

Paramount's "Staying Alive" earned $1.3 million in 761 theaters.

Universal's "Metalstorm: The Destruction of Jared-Syn" took in $1.2 million on 784 screens.

Here are the top five grossers for the last weekend:

1. "Mr. Mom," $6.4 million, 20th Century-Fox, 1,235 theaters.
2. "Risky Business," $4.8 million, Warner Bros., 1,089.
3. "Easy Money," $4.5 million, Orion, 1,171.
4. "Hercules," $3.47 million, MGM-UA, 1,001.
5. "National Lampoon's Vacation," $3.41 million, Warner Bros., 1,246.

Here are the five top grossing films of the summer:

1. "Return of the Jedi," $227 million, 20th Century-Fox, 14 weeks.
2. "Flashdance," $78 million, Paramount, 19 weeks.
3. "Trading Places," $77 million, Paramount, 11 weeks.
4. "WarGames," $65 million, MGM-UA, 13 weeks.
5. "Octopussy," $62 million, MGM-UA, 12 weeks.

FORCED LANDING
SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — A 72-year-old Frenchman was arrested Monday after a bomb threat and restroom fire forced an Air France 747 to land in Ireland.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe you're watching the third part of "The Godfather" on NBC tonight because a raspy voice over the phone made you an offer you couldn't refuse.

"So you finally called your Godfather, good ..." begins the recorded message on a special 900 number. "I would consider it a personal favor if you would watch the film and then if you made enemies they would become my enemies as well ..."

"Now you must excuse me please. I'm late to attend the funeral of a very close friend. It seems he was watching another network and his television set exploded. Very strange. Thank you for calling."

Hardly your normal hard sell. But you can expect the unexpected from NBC promotions boss Steve Sohmer, whose spots often are better than the programs he's pushing.

"There are two neat things about the Godfather character," says Sohmer, now in charge of NBC's daytime programming, in addition to his promotional responsibilities. "He's very polite, though powerful, and he's got an unmistakable voice. This lent itself to a creative approach."

NBC ran two TV segments identifying the special phone number last Wednesday, and Sohmer says 26,000 50-cent calls were made nationwide that day. The telephone company reported overloads in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

This week, NBC starts another phone gimmick. Callers dialing 1-900-40SMITH can hear from a talking orangutan who happens to be the star of NBC's new comedy "Mr. Smith."

Since arriving from CBS last summer, Sohmer has done more than arrange for phony phone calls. His campaigns poking fun at the competition created a big fuss a year ago, and similar promotional messages are running now.

In one, a J.R. Ewing lookalike is lounging in his pool, when he's attacked by a shark. "Just when you thought it was safe to go into TV again," says the announcer. NBC's "Manimal," about a man who turns himself into all manner of fish and fowl, will be on Friday nights against CBS' "Dallas."

Another spot takes aim at ABC's Saturday night leader, "The Love Boat." An ornery grandmother from NBC's new series, "The Ropers," which is set in a carnival, shoots the daylight out of model ships in a carnival

Jamie Shuns 'Star' Image

PONTIAC, Ill. (AP) — Actress Jamie Lee Curtis worries that people in this central Illinois community expect her to "drive around wearing leopard skin" just because she's a movie star — but "that's not who I am."

The 24-year-old daughter of Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh arrived early to prepare herself for filming "Grandview USA," a light comedy-romance about the owner of a demolition derby, played by Ms. Curtis, a high school valedictorian and a demolition derby driver.

"I'm here two weeks early to meet people, to drive the streets of Pontiac," Ms. Curtis said. "Every day I'm getting closer to the character."

Wearing bluejeans, sandals and a long-sleeved T-shirt, she went into a local restaurant. She said she was worried she wouldn't appear glamorous or flashy enough to satisfy the image people have of Hollywood stars.

"I want people to realize that I'm just me. I think people expect me to drive around wearing leopard skin. That's not who I am. I hope they won't be disappointed."

Ms. Curtis' first purchase in town was an old Chevrolet, complete with rust spots and Illinois license plates.

Actor Troy Donahue will have a supporting role in the film, but the names of the two male stars have not been announced.

game called "Sink the Love Boat."

Sohmer says he only uses this approach "when a new show is up against an incumbent that has a level of vulnerability." He never tried a knock campaign when he was promotions chief at CBS. "It didn't fit there. CBS is the leader in prime time, and we're the hungry, eager underdog."

CBS isn't amused by NBC's tactics, and officials there believe it might turn off audiences. Sohmer contends that viewers know it's competitive fun, not nasty attacks.

"We want to communicate that we're not dealing with holy orders. This is an entertainment business," he says. "We also tip our hats to the success of those shows. We have J.R. saying 'Friday night is sewed up,' and 'Seven years and still afloat' for the 'Love Boat.'"

Kicking the competition in the shins had mixed results last year. "Our two principal successes were with 'Knight Rider' and 'The A-Team,'" says Sohmer. "But I was disappointed in the tune-ins for 'Cheers' and 'Taxi.'"

Sohmer's current campaign for "The A-Team" capitalizes on the popularity of the show's Mr. T. In one spot, Mr. T's Mohican hairdo is sported by a poodle, businessman and blushing bride.

Sohmer's methods may be rubbing off on one competitor. ABC has a promotion in which The Fonz (Henry Winkler) of "Happy Days" appears with T.K. Carter, who plays a genie on the new series, "Just Our Luck." Carter transforms a Mr. T lookalike into a midget.

"The A-Team" out-rated its competition, "Happy Days," last season, and Sohmer welcomes more successes — and competitive knocks — for the third-rated network.

"Nothing would give me more pleasure," he says

Progress After Heart Surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Burt Lancaster is "not marching up and down the aisles yet," but he's progressing so well from his quadruple bypass heart surgery that he's still scheduled to begin a new film next month.

The 69-year-old actor, winner of an Oscar in 1960 for his portrayal of an evangelist in "Elmer Gantry," underwent the operation Friday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

He has been moved out of the cardiac intensive care unit where he has been since the surgery, his secretary, Sandie Wisenthal, said Monday. He had "gotten out of bed and walked to the chair. He's not marching up and down the aisles yet, but they are real pleased with his progress."

"He'll be in the hospital another 10 days to two weeks," she added.

Lancaster plans to begin filming a Dino De Laurentiis film called "Firestarter" in October in North Carolina.

Travolta Buys A New Aircraft

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Actor John Travolta, who has logged more than 1,000 hours behind the controls of his twin-engine Cessna, has a new aircraft to help him relax — a 15-year-old Lockheed Jetstar worth $1.5 million.

Jim Kelley, owner of Jim Kelley Buick and Consolidated Airways, a firm specializing in industrial airplane sales, declined Monday to say how much the 29-year-old actor paid for the 10-passenger jet.

"I've wanted to fly since I was 5 years old," said Travolta, who has had a pilot's license for years. "It's an escape from the pressures of acting. I suppose."

He said he'll use the Jetstar during a European tour to promote his newest movie, "Staying Alive."

FOCUS

Island Power

The assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino in the Philippines drew world attention there in recent weeks. Though we often regard the former U.S. colony as a "tiny" country, the Philippines has a greater land mass than the United Kingdom and nearly as many people. It is the 17th largest country in the world in population outranking such countries as Canada, Poland, Iran, and Egypt.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the President of the Philippines?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — The calm center of a hurricane is called the "eye."

There was great excitement recently in New Orleans in the final of the Grand National Team Championship between Atlanta and San Francisco. With one hand to play, San Francisco led by 2 International Match Points, and this was the final deal.

The auction shown features San Francisco in the North-South seats, and Peter Pender became declarer at three hearts. West led the king of clubs and declarer made the normal holdup play. East ruffed the club continuation and led a diamond to his partner's ace to get another club ruff. The defenders continued with ace of spades, on which declarer dropped the king, and a spade ruff. A club was ruffed with the ace of trumps, but declarer was able to pitch his last spade on this trick, so he ended up down three for a loss of 150 points. Had declarer won the ace of clubs at trick one and led a trump, he could have held the set to one trick. In the other room, the San Franciscoan in the West seat opened the bidding with one club and Larry Gould of Atlanta became declarer at two hearts. If he went down no more than two tricks, the match would be tied; if he went down only one or made the contract, Atlanta would win.

Here the opening lead was the singleton spade. East won the ace and shifted to a club. After much thought, declarer decided that he could make his contract if East started with a doubleton club, so he, too, ducked. Now it went ace of clubs, club ruff, spade ruff, club ruff, spade ruff, and declarer still had to lose a trick to each of the two red aces. So it was down three here as well, and San Francisco retained the title it had won in 1982.

Black Student Scores Rising

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The gap is narrowing between black and white students' scores on standard achievement tests, says a University of North Carolina psychologist.

Dr. Lyle Jones, alumni distinguished professor of psychology, presented the results of his study Monday at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association in Anaheim, Calif.

The study shows a steady lessening of the differences between average scores of blacks and whites in tests that measure both verbal and mathematical skills. The probe is based on tests given at ages 9, 13, 17, 18 and 22 and included the National Assessment of Educational Progress exams, the Scholastic Aptitude Test and the Graduate Record Examination.

On subjects in which white children have improved, black pupils have improved more, said Jones. On subjects in which achievement scores for whites have declined, black students' scores have fallen less.

"The consistency of these trends in National Assessment of Educational Progress exams ... suggests that a further reduction in the black-white average differences for these test scores will be seen in the future," said Jones.

Statistics showing the black improvement vary and depend on the tests, subjects and students' ages, he added. Thus, it's not possible to state a simple percentage denoting black gains although in some cases the differences have been halved.

For example, blacks born in 1953 scored 20 percent fewer correct answers than whites on the verbal skills section of the NAEP exams. But black children born in 1970 had only 10 percent fewer correct answers than whites on that section.

The reasons for the differences between blacks' and whites' rate of improvement aren't clear, said Jones. They might include such programs as Project Head Start, public school integration, affirmative action and educational television, he said.

But Jones added that blacks still lag behind whites in overall test performance. "While recent progress in average achievement levels of black students has been dramatic, we should not lose sight of the continuing large average achievement differences between white and black children," he said.

One problem apparently is that black students don't take enough courses in such basic subjects as mathematics, he said.

"Our findings strongly support the hypothesis that an effective way to improve mathematics achievement levels is to encourage black students to take more math courses in high school," said Jones.

No Funeral For Atheist

GROTTOS, Va. (AP) — A prison inmate has become the first person to be buried in what its founder calls the nation's only cemetery for atheists.

Frederick Conway's body, wrapped in clear plastic and bound with quarter-inch rope, was unceremoniously taken from a pickup truck Monday and dragged through about 50 yards of woods to its final resting place.

Arnold Via, founder of the American Atheists Infinite Cemetery and the state director of American Atheists, cut the plastic shroud from Conway's naked body before rolling it into the grave.

There were no final words or coffin for Conway. State officials said the 34-year-old Norfolk man died of cancer while serving a prison term.

Via, who said Conway was a member of the Prison Atheist League, recorded the funeral with a movie camera.

A 1983 penny was dropped into the grave before the body was covered. Via said the coin may help date the burial, if future archaeologists stumble across the grave.

The cemetery, near Via's home, is a wooded 1-acre parcel about one mile west of Shenandoah National Park.

There are no fences around the cemetery and no monument or sign gracing its entrance. A small foot path, littered with an old tire or two, leads to Conway's grave.

Today's Cryptopuzzle clue: E equals O.

The Cryptopuzzle is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Now you have a very good day and evening that has to do with seeing conditions from a broader scope of action as well as where romantic and social interests are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine creative ideas and are enthused about accomplishing something, so get busy and get good results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into whatever activities will give you a feeling of abundance and that your fundamental affairs are in order.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A friend shows you how to make your recreational life more profitable, so go along with it. Utilize your talents.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A project begun with enthusiasm can bring more success and a better status in the area where you live.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have fine goals and should work hard in order to gain them, and show you are very creative. Socialize with friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study private aims and then confer with some bigwig privately who can give you advice and backing you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look to good friends for the assistance you need in order to put new projects across more cleverly for mutual gain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A bigwig could give you very valuable advice to follow so that you can get all of your affairs in far better order.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be broadminded where some data you previously knew nothing about is given you, since it can be useful to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have fine ideas that can be incorporated in your daily work with fine benefits following. Be more patient today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can have many a pleasant time by getting those recreations set up with good friends. Seek help from associates.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discussing problematical affairs with kin is wise, particularly if you are kind and thoughtful with them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those delightful young persons who will be very capable and also be Johnny-on-the-spot in case of any emergencies arising. There is also much ability at selling, so slant the education along lines of public relations work.

No Problem In Hunt Check-Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt was reported "doing well" Monday as doctors continued routine studies in preparation for a gall bladder operation, possibly as early as Tuesday, an aide said.

Press Secretary Gary Pearce said Dr. Larry Ture, the governor's personal physician, saw Hunt on Monday and said he found no problems.

Ture said Hunt is in excellent health and he expects the surgery to be routine.

Ture said a patient is normally hospitalized for about a week after such an operation, but it would be several weeks before Hunt could resume his full schedule.

Organized Labor's Membership Sags; Role Fading

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

The American labor movement is in trouble.

The holiday solidarity that will mark Labor Day 1983 masks problems that go deeper than the recession and will not be solved by economic recovery. They range from foreign competition to automation to new kinds of industry.

For example:
—Only 20 percent of American workers belong to labor unions, down from a peak of 35 percent after World War II.

—Major labor contracts signed in the first half of this year contained average annual wage boosts of 2.7 percent — the smallest increase in the 15 years the government has been keeping statistics on the subject.

—Wage concessions and contract givebacks have become routine in settlements over the last 18 months.

—Unions are not adapting quickly to the "Information Age;" they are failing in efforts to organize high-technology workers.

—The drop in membership, combined with the large number of unemployed union members, has hit the treasury of the labor movement. Unions themselves are laying off staff.

It is 90 years since Samuel Gompers preached that unions wanted "more justice and less revenge."

Today's labor leaders still demand justice as they prepare for union rallies and celebrations in some 140 cities across the country over the holiday weekend.

Seeking to regain self-esteem in an era of hard times, big labor has selected the battle cry: "We Will Be Heard!"

The Labor Day observance has been dubbed "Solidarity Day III" by the union leadership, whose blueprint for a labor recovery hinges on Nov. 6, 1984, and election of a president considered friendly to the union cause.

To that end, the AFL-CIO hierarchy approved a political strategy in August that seems sure to bestow labor's endorsement on former Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

The rank-and-file seems to be marching in political cadence — much more so than in 1980, when more than 40 percent ignored the exhortations of their leaders and voted for Ronald Reagan for president.

Ironically, however, Reagan may have helped the labor movement.

"If there hadn't been a Ronald Reagan, we would have had to invent one," says Kenneth T. Blaylock, president of the American Federation of Government Employees.

Reagan, he says, has unwittingly given the labor movement more unity than it has seen in five decades. Blaylock was referring in part to the president's firing of 11,500 unionized air traffic controllers, who undertook an illegal strike against the government in August 1981.

But the holiday celebrations and political planning only camouflage the problems.

The once-mighty International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which remains outside the AFL-CIO, accepted givebacks to the unionized trucking industry in early 1982, and more recently sanctioned a "relief rider" to the National Master Freight Agreement, which would turn money back to management.

Similar concessions have been granted by a host of other unions.

Major labor contracts reached in the first half of this year netted an average pay raise less than the rate of inflation as 25 percent of some 1.2 million workers took pay cuts and 20 percent had no wage gains. Pay raises averaged 0.9 percent in the first year of the new contracts.

During negotiations in 1980 involving the same sets of workers, the unions had won average raises of 6.7 percent each year over the life of the pacts and 8.4 percent in the first year.

Money is not the only issue. The Communications Workers of America pulled its 525,000 American Telephone & Telegraph Co. members off the job in August in a contract dispute over not only wages, but also job security and the replacement of humans with machines.

And while the tentative contract settlement accepted by the leadership of the CWA and two smaller AT&T unions included a pay raise, it also included a company promise to spend $34 million in the next two years retraining workers whose jobs are made obsolete. AT&T also agreed to substantial severance benefits for workers forced to leave because of new technology.

Noting the rapid acceleration of automation in the auto, heavy equipment, oil refining and shipping industries, Rex Hardesty of the AFL-CIO calls the AT&T settlement "a demarcation in terms of retraining."

The problem dramatized by the telephone company strike won't go away, however. A recent Ford Foundation study, "Not Working: Unskilled Youth and Displaced Adults," concluded:

"Unlike past recessions, many plants currently closed are not expected to reopen as the economy recovers. Those that do reopen will be forced by increased international competition to employ fewer workers and to rely as much as possible on automated systems."

Fewer workers mean fewer members for unions. And as millions of blue-collar workers hit the unemployment lines, they stopped paying union dues.

The ranks of AFL-CIO-affiliated unions have contracted by 1.2 million since early 1981 — from 14.9 million members to 13.7 million. This spelled financial hardship for the national labor federation, whose income for the most part comes from the 27 cent-a-member per capita dues payment sent to Washington each month by the 96 affiliated unions.

Federation Secretary-Treasurer Thomas R. Donahue hasn't ruled out asking the AFL-CIO's convention in October to approve another increase in per capita dues, labor officials say.

The AFL-CIO managed to avert large-scale layoffs at its Washington headquarters by enticing scores of veteran staff employees to take early retirement. Other unions, such as the steelworkers, simply gave out pink slips.

"I've lost 35,000 (members) this month," says William Wimpisinger, president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. "We're hanging by our fingernails."

"We've lost about 80,000 (members) because of import competition," says Sol Chaikin, head of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

The AFL-CIO is not alone in loss of members. The Teamster membership has plunged from 2.3 million in 1979 to 1.9 million today. Layoffs in the coal industry reduced the ranks of the United Mine Workers of America by 45,000 last year; membership stands at about 120,000. Among the major non-affiliated unions, only the National Education Association, with 1.7 million members, is thriving.

Labor has won less than half of all union certification elections in recent years.

Moe Foner, a veteran activist with District 1199, the health care workers union in New York, says young workers are not aware of the bitter struggles of early 20th century that led to the laws giving legitimacy and protection to unions. "Many of these things are taken for granted today," he says.

Union organizers, Foner says, must be better prepared for people "asking and demanding (information) about what unions can do for them."

In addition to the membership loss caused by the long business slump and the decline of such industries as autos, steel and rubber, the labor movement has also encountered difficulty in organizing workers in high technology, banking, insurance and other "gray-collar and white-collar" fields.

The AFL-CIO leadership clings to the hope that it can restore the strength that it has enjoyed for decades in old line manufacturing industries even if its best organizing opportunities today are in such areas as service and high-technology industries.

"We're not interested in a society in which McDonald's (the hamburger chain) employs more people than U.S. Steel," AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland has said on many occasions.

But there is a new marketplace. Organized labor is discovering that the problems go beyond America's borders, that competitive pressures faced by U.S. businesses with sales in overseas markets can hit close to home. The collective bargaining strategies employed in the past have become outmoded and the old weapons of labor — like the strike — don't always work.

Prosecutor Says Green Protected By Statute

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green could not be charged with crimes a former employee has accused him of committing because a five-year statute of limitations has expired, says a federal prosecutor.

Assistant U.S. Attorney J. Douglas McCullough made the statement Monday, according to a story published today by The Fayetteville Times.

Meanwhile, testimony ended Monday in a pretrial hearing to determine whether the former Green employee, Sandy White, should stand trial on arson charges. U.S. Magistrate Charles McCotter said it may take two weeks for him to rule on whether White could be prosecuted.

White was charged in July 1982 with arson stemming from the burning of Clarkton Farmers Exchange. He was granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for testimony against others involved with the case.

But federal agents said subsequently that White lied to them in several pretrial interviews and now are trying to have his immunity revoked. He's already pleaded guilty to counterfeiting and is serving a four-year prison term.

According to FBI documents submitted as evidence last week during White's hearing, White told agents that numerous illegal activities had taken place at Green's tobacco warehouses. Green is a Bladen County resident.

White has been quoted as saying he did Green's "dirty work," although Green has not been charged on the federal level.

White, who managed some of Green's farms and leaf warehouses during the 1970s, reportedly said the alleged violations took place between 1975 and 1977 although federal officials didn't learn of them until last year.

The statute of limitations for crimes described by White is five years, and Green thus could not be charged with them even if the government had enough evidence, McCullough told the Times.

Green, expected to run as a Democratic candidate for governor in 1984, was indicted June 21 on state bribery charges stemming from the FBI's Colcor probe into alleged corruption in southeastern North Carolina. A trial date has not been set.
