United In Demanding Soviet Explanation

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan and members of Congress have united in demands for a full accounting from the Soviet Union for the deaths of 269 people aboard a South Korean airliner that was reported shot from the skies near a remote Soviet island military installation.

The Soviet Union is steadfastly denying any responsibility for the fatal incident, but those denials are being rejected as totally inadequate by the United States and other nations which have erupted in a burst of global outrage.

President Reagan, who had planned to end a vacation at his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch next Monday, was instead returning to Washington today for a round of White House meetings with his national security advisers and the bipartisan congressional leadership.

Congress is in the midst of a five-week recess due to end Sept. 12, but there are no indications the House and Senate will reconvene earlier.

Charge 'Hysterical' Campaign

In Paris today, the Soviet Embassy today accused the United States of launching a "hysterical anti-Soviet campaign" over the plane.

The embassy added no information about the fate of the plane, however. It called the loss of the airliner "a catastrophe," but said the jet had twice violated the Soviet Union's airspace and the crew did not respond to signals addressed to them.

U.S. officials said Thursday in detailed accounts that a heat-seeking missile fired by a Soviet SU-15 jet fighter destroyed the unarmed 747 passenger plane, killing all its occupants — including Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga. Korean Air Lines said today that at least 51 Americans were on the flight.

Find Oil Slick Off Island

A Japanese Maritime Safety Agency patrol boat reported finding a 330-foot-long oil slick 18½ miles off the southwest coast of the Soviet island Sakhalin, where the South Korean jumbo jet is believed to have gone down Thursday. Search boats and planes, including two U.S. military aircraft, hunted for traces of the jumbo jet in frigid Sea of Japan waters. Some wreckage was reported seen from the air, but Japan said Soviet officials had refused to allow search boats into Soviet waters.

The United States and South Korea demanded an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council, which was likely to be convened today.

"Words can scarcely express our revulsion at this horrifying act of violence," Reagan said, uniting with congressional leaders in strongly worded condemnations and calls for a full accounting from the Kremlin.

"The United States joins with other members of the international community in demanding a full explanation for this appalling and wanton misdeed," the president declared.

More Than Apologies Demanded

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., called it "an unbelievably barbaric act," adding, "explanations and apologies will not suffice."

Members of Congress are calling for direct action against the Soviets, including calls for restrictions on trade, the cancellation of Soviet landing rights in the United States and the closing of the U.S. embassy in Moscow.

Reagan, while using strong rhetoric to denounce the incident, is taking a cautious stance on the issue of retaliation with aides emphasizing that the upcoming White House discussions will focus equal attention on the Mideast and Israel's plans to redeploy troops in Lebanon.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said that despite the attack he would go ahead with a previously scheduled meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko next week in Madrid at the conclusion of a European security meeting.

Nonetheless, the attack on the civilian airliner is a jolt to U.S.-Soviet relations at a time when they appeared on the upswing in the areas of arms control and trade.

"It is certain that the impact and the seriousness of this attack will be felt long after the half-masted flags of mourning have been raised," said Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich.

Summoned Around The World

Elsewhere, Soviet ambassadors stationed in capitals around the globe were being summoned to provide details of the incident.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman in Moscow told The Associated Press there was no information he could provide about the incident. It was believed, although not confirmed, that a top-level U.S. diplomat was seeking an audience at the ministry today.

Jobless Rate Still 9.5 Percent

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's civilian jobless rate held steady at 9.5 percent last month, the government reported today, leaving nearly 10.7 million people out of work on the eve of the nation's Labor Day weekend.

Some 300,000 people found jobs in August. But the overall civilian unemployment rate remained unchanged because 100,000 other Americans resumed their search for work, but failed.

Nevertheless, the total number of people with jobs reached 101.6 million, an all-time high. Since last December, when joblessness hit a post-Depression peak of 10.8 percent and more than 12 million Americans were out of work, some 2.5 million have found jobs.

But, on a sour note, joblessness among black male teen-agers soared last month from 47.6 percent to 56.8 percent, an all-time high. In contrast, the unemployment rate among white male teen-agers rose only from 20.4 percent to 21.1 percent.

The stagnant jobless rate came as no shock to Reagan administration officials and private analysts, who had said in advance of today's Labor Department report that they saw the dramatic 0.5 percentage point plunge in civilian joblessness from June to July as a one-time phenomenon.

Indeed, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, with the vacationing Reagan on the West Coast, noted that "this pause in declining unemployment rates comes on the heels of an unusually large drop in July. A downward trend over several months, combined with the increase in payroll employment, point to a steadily improving jobs picture. Economic news continues to be encouraging."

Some analysts, meanwhile, noted the growing number of recent reports signalling a slowdown in the economic recovery as pointing the way to little dramatic news on unemployment in the months ahead.

An alternate unemployment rate, which includes the more than 1.6 million armed services personnel stationed in the United States, rose minimally from 9.3 percent to 9.4 percent in August.

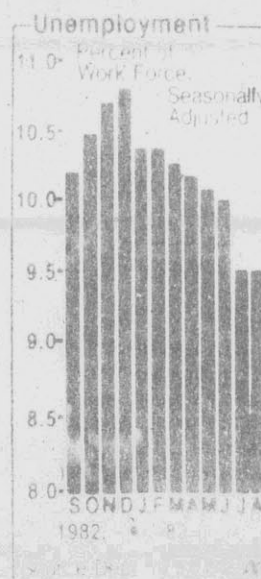

Department analyst Deborah Klein termed that rise "statistically insignificant."

A separate survey of business payrolls showed a net drop of 410,000 in employment last month, due largely to the strike by three unions against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which idled more than 675,000 workers. In the compilation of the business establishment employment survey, which is not included in the department's unemployment rate calculation, a person who is employed — but not at work — cannot be counted among those on business payrolls.

Altogether, total unemployment stood at 10,699,000, up from 10,590,000 in July.

There was no further improvement in the jobless rates of various categories of workers, as unemployment among adult men, the traditional family bread-winners, remained at 8.8 percent in August.

Shamir Is Party's Successor To Begin

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yitzhak Shamir, a former underground fighter and Israel's hardline foreign minister, won his party's nomination today to succeed Prime Minister Menachem Begin and swiftly reached agreement with coalition partners to form a new government, a spokesman said.

There appeared still to be some areas of disagreement among the partners, but gave their endorsement to Shamir as the next prime minister. He said he hoped to conclude negotiations for setting up his new government "in two or three days."

Shamir won a solid victory over Deputy Prime Minister David Levy with a 436-302 vote by the central committee of the Herut Party, the movement formed by Begin in the 1940s that now dominates the governing Likud bloc. Seven votes were invalidated.

Twelve hours later coalition Chairman Avraham Shapira told reporters the coalition parties signed an agreement to ask President Chaim Herzog to designate Shamir as prime minister.

The agreement went a long way toward assuring Shamir's succession of Begin. "We've accomplished 99 percent. We have a government, and all that remains are small details," said Communications Minister Mordechai Zippori. Shamir told reporters: "I hope that in another two or three days we will conclude the negotiations and we will be able to bring a new government to the Knesset (Parliament)."

The swift action apparently was prompted by strong indications that the opposition Labor Party would try to lure some of the coalition partners out of the government and form an alternative coalition.

Begin's departure loosened the bonds of the coalition, and Shamir needed to make sure agreement was reached in principle on his succession before the ties grew any weaker.

One wavering faction is the three-member TAMI Party, a champion of Sephardi (Oriental Jewish) rights, which was never ideologically akin to Begin's Likud bloc and had been threatening even before Begin's resignation to quit the coalition. Without TAMI's three members Likud has a majority, with exactly a 61 votes in the 120-member Parliament.

TAMI leader Aharon Abu Hatzeira called today's agreement "a declaration of intentions" and said he still did not rule out talks with the Labor Party.

Labor issued a statement to Israel radio this morning that TAMI and the National Religious Party, the senior coalition partner, had agreed to talk to it about an alternative government.

But the National Religious Party's Yehuda Ben-Meir, who is also deputy foreign minister, denied "any intention at all" of negotiating with Labor.

Another problem for Shamir is that six of 64 coalition members say they will not support his government unless it invites Labor to join it in a broad-based "national unity Cabinet."

Shamir said "We don't oppose" such a government, but did not elaborate. His comment might satisfy the demand that Labor at least be given the opportunity to join.

Pitt-Greenville Crime-Stoppers Program Is Launched Here Today

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt-Greenville Crime Stoppers program was kicked off this morning at a press conference at the offices of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, where officials said that, beginning next Tuesday, persons can furnish information about crimes to law enforcement agencies anonymously by calling 758-7777.

The Crime Stoppers telephone will be manned from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday of each week. Chamber of commerce President Ed Walker said Crime Stoppers is "one of the finest programs we've been involved in," and is designed to "get back stolen property" and "arrest criminals."

He said the chamber's crime prevention committee worked with law enforcement agencies throughout the county to establish the program.

Sgt. Doug Jackson, crime prevention officer with the Greenville Police Department, described Crime Stoppers as "a program that rewards people for giving law enforcement agencies information" about crimes which have been committed.

Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information about a crime, Jackson said.

The amount of the reward is determined by an anonymous 15-member civilian board of directors.

Jackson emphasized that persons calling the Crime Stoppers number to give information will remain anonymous. The person is assigned a code number and all dealings are done by using the code, Jackson noted.

Jamie Allen, crime prevention officer with the Pitt County Sheriff's Department, said Crime Stoppers is "not solely a Greenville or sheriff's department program. It unites all law enforcement agencies in the county together."

The size of the reward depends on the seriousness of the crime, Allen said, adding that the persons who commits the crime, law enforcement officers or members of their families, or members of the Crime Stoppers board are not eligible.

Money for the rewards comes from contributions, which are tax deductible, Allen noted.

The men said newspapers and radio stations in the county will feature a crime of the week, and reenactments of serious crimes will be broadcast over local area television stations. They said the drama department at East Carolina University is cooperating in the reenactment of major crimes.

Jackson said that while the person giving information will remain anonymous, "if the informant's testimony is needed in court and if he agrees to testify, the reward can be doubled."

Allen and Jackson emphasized that the Crime Stoppers number is not de-

Speculates Soviet May Rely On Technicality As A Defense

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soviet Union may not have technically violated international law by apparently shooting down a Korean Air Lines jumbo jet. But an attack on a civilian jetliner certainly violates the spirit of the law, according to legal experts.

"The law is not completely clear," said Oliver Lissitzyn, a longtime international law professor at Columbia University. "Legally speaking, this is a very messy situation."

By law, any nation may intercept foreign aircraft violating its air space. That air space corresponds to the 12-mile border limits under the law of the sea.

Any foreign aircraft that is intercepted can legally be escorted out of the air space it is violating, or it can be ordered to land either by radio contact or by accepted international signals. The most common signal is for the intercepting plane to fly alongside, in visual contact, and tip its wings.

If the intruding plane refuses to be escorted out of the air space or refuses to land, the traditional procedure is for the interceptors to fire a warning shot similar to the shots fired "across the bow" at sea.

If the intruding plane still refuses to leave the air space or land, the interceptors may fire upon it.

The problem is that there is no clear-cut legal distinction between how to handle intruding military and civilian planes. The world agrees that a nation has the perfect right to knock down a bomber from an unfriendly country. The world also agrees that an unarmed, clearly marked commercial plane carrying passengers should never be fired upon for merely straying off course.

But what if the civilian plane ignores radio messages or visual signals and tries to escape? What if there is reason to believe the civilian plane is loaded with sensitive electronic spying devices? The experts say the Soviet Union could use those arguments in their defense.

"I would be surprised if the Soviets apologize on their knees," said John Hazard, a Columbia professor who specializes in the Soviet legal system. "I'm sure they will try to justify it."

Malls Serve as 'Hang Outs' As Well as Shopping Places

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Do people go to shopping malls to shop, or to kill some time?

John Jacobs, a professor of sociology at Syracuse University who has been studying the social and economic aspects of shopping malls, says that people spend the hours around the time they go to escape the trivia of everyday life.

Says Jacobs, "In these times, people are looking for a stimulus. They develop a black attitude toward all that is happening in the suburbs, and they go to the mall to escape it." Jacobs says that people go to malls to escape the boredom of their daily lives. He says that people go to malls to escape the boredom of their daily lives.

Jacobs says that people go to malls to escape the boredom of their daily lives. He says that people go to malls to escape the boredom of their daily lives. He says that people go to malls to escape the boredom of their daily lives.

Malls provide people with somewhere to go, something to do," he notes. "Unfortunately, nothing out of the way, or interesting, happens at malls. Malls are designed to filter out the very things people seek there — namely, something unusual."

Why, then, do people go to malls? "They go there and they keep coming back because the place they are coming from has even less to offer than the place they are going to. They go there in self-defense."

Jacobs says some form of time-out activity, away from the trivia of everyday life, is necessary. What concerns him, is that more and more of the time-out activities that people are choosing are ones that isolate them from others.

Most people spend two-thirds of their lives either sleeping or engaged in solitary pursuits such as watching television, going to the movies, or watching video. Jacobs says that people go to malls to escape the boredom of their daily lives. He says that people go to malls to escape the boredom of their daily lives.

Jacobs, whose observations are based on first-hand interviews with mall tenants and customers, has studied large suburban malls in mid-sized Eastern cities and on the West Coast. He notes there are about 23,000 shopping malls in the United States. "Malls are becoming defined more and more as the place to go," he says. "The danger in this is that our social world is shrinking. If spending large amounts of time at malls continues as a trend, that would be bad.

"As social interaction decreases, I would expect that socialization — knowing how to interact with others appropriately — in some circles would decrease and, in the long run, it could become a major social problem."

Dear Abby

Husband Drops Out Of Reunion

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last July, my wife and I went to a small town in Minnesota to attend her 30th high school reunion. This was the first class reunion I had ever attended, and it will be my last.

On our arrival we were met by a lady with a big smile who took my $30 for the dinner and said, "Thank you." That was the only time anybody other than my wife spoke to me. I tried on four separate occasions to talk to people, but they turned their backs on me.

I'm an average-looking man, quiet by nature, but I don't have leprosy. I finally felt I had had enough of these rude people, so I went out and sat in the lobby. I didn't feel like eating, so I found my wife and told her I'd be waiting for her in the lobby when the banquet was over.

My wife is still mad at me for skipping the dinner, but Abby, those people really hurt my feelings. Please comment.

NO MORE REUNIONS

DEAR NO MORE: Since you are quiet by nature, your wife should have made an effort to introduce you around.

I know it's not easy to have a good time with a bunch of strangers, but you could have been a good sport and sat with your wife at the banquet. Your conspicuous absence at the table probably embarrassed her. (To quote, myself: "When you pick a lemon, make lemonade.")

Some general advice: Never drag a reluctant spouse to a class reunion.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the man who spent $2,500 for a cat's funeral, then another $1,200 to have the cat dug up and moved across the country:

You should have given him your standard answer: "Get professional help!" Anybody who would throw away that much money on a dead cat needs to have his head examined.

If you print this, I will send a check for $10 to the American Red Cross Disaster Committee in your name, Abby. It puts its money to good use.

ARTHUR IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR ARTHUR: You just made a deal. But let me add that the cost of burying a pet is nowhere near what that cat lover spent.

Peggy Morris, the manager of Pet Haven Cemetery in Gardena, Calif., wrote to say that the basic cost for a complete burial service with a satin-lined casket is $240 — and even the fanciest special-order casket would not bring the total to $500.

Ms. Morris wrote: "We have a saying here at Pet Haven: You bury people because you have to; you bury pets because you want to."

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest your 10 tips on how to be a good wife, followed by 10 tips on how to be a good husband.

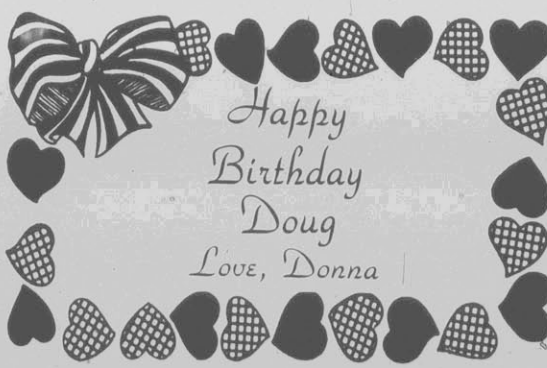

How about inviting your young readers to submit their 10 tips on how to be a good son or daughter?

That would not only make interesting reading, but it would tell us something about the younger generation.

OLD-TIMER

DEAR OLD-TIMER: A great idea! Children?

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Riding In Horse Shows Is Way Of Life For Youngsters

By LEEANNE SPIGNER

The Jonesboro Sun IMBODEN, Ark. (AP) — Hundreds of trophies and plaques attesting to fine horsemanship cover the walls of the kitchen, living room and hallway in the Hufstetler home, but Jeff, 15, and his sister, Jennifer, 10, hope to add more.

The son and daughter of Bob and Kathy Hufstetler say they can barely recall the time they first hopped up on the back of a horse. Jeff was 4 and Jennifer was 3 when they entered their first horse shows.

"I didn't really get interested in it," Jeff said. "I just grew up in it."

The Hufstetlers started taking their children to an arena when the two were just tots. "They'd hold us on with one hand and lead the pony with the other," Jeff said. Pretty soon, the two were ready to take over the reins themselves as dad coached from the sidelines.

"When we wouldn't do something right, he'd tell us what we did wrong and we'd try it again," Jeff said.

He remembers when his sister rode in her first horse show. "She got up there and just rode around the arena. Dad and mom were right there at the gate," Jeff said. "They still stand right there at the gate."

Mrs. Hufstetler doesn't ride, but helps out. "She polishes saddles, cleans chaps, and stays nervous," Jennifer said.

By the time they were 7 or 8, they had graduated to the big horses, Jennifer said. Now, Jeff rides his quarterhorse mare, Jet, and his quarterhorse gelding, Buck, in the speed events, and both ride another gelding in the showmanship events. Jennifer also rides her quarter pony, Little Buck, in the pony class.

The two saddle up and ride into an arena more than 50 times a year, and it's always a nerve-racking experience, they said.

"Everytime daddy leads me up to the gate, I get butterflies," Jennifer said.

"You're always nervous, no matter how many times you do it," Jeff said.

Only once has either been hurt in an event. In 1981, Jeff and his father were in the barrel pickup event. As Jeff was attempting to swing onto the horse behind his father while his father was rounding a barrel, Jeff fell into a fence. A long scar over his right eye is a memento.

Jennifer once tumbled head first off Buck after the horse, following Hufstetler's yelled instruction, "Whoa," obeyed instantly. She climbed back on and finished the event.

Ten or 15 years from now, Jeff and Jennifer want to be veterinarians. The reason is simple.

"We'd get to keep on working with horses," Jeff explained, "and, we'd get paid for it."

—Victim Speaks Out To— —Save Others Pain—

By MARY PREVOST

YORK, Pa. (AP) — John Heim sits quietly in the wheelchair in his room at the Colonial Manor Nursing Home in York. He is dressed in a T-shirt, sneakers and warm-up pants, and at 6 feet 2 and about 155 pounds, he has the build of an athlete.

But he can't dress or feed himself or help himself out of bed in the morning. And he doesn't get out much of the time.

Seven years ago, when Heim was 15, he was in a car accident that police said was caused by a drunken driver. The accident left him paralyzed from mid-shoulders down.

Until this year, Heim felt "like a bum," because he couldn't work or support himself. Now he is the president of a new corporation, A Victim Speaks.

The firm was formed recently by his nurse, Evelyn Mason, so Heim could travel to neighboring schools and tell students about surviving a serious alcohol-related accident.

The big difference between AVS and other anti-drinking and driving campaigns is that Heim presents himself directly to the audience as a victim, he said.

"Most programs emphasize the number of young people killed in accidents, but we don't emphasize death," Ms. Mason said. "We emphasize those who go on living with severe mental and physical difficulties."

"Lots of people think 'If I harm myself, I can live with it.' Then they see John and ask themselves 'How would I live with myself if I did that to an innocent person?'" she said.

The program has two parts. First, the audience sees a movie, "Not Me," in which Heim talks about his accident and how life has been for him since.

The second section of the program involves Ms. Mason and Heim performing a comedy act to lessen the audience's embarrassment, and then answering questions.

A major point he brings up is that he never tells people they shouldn't drink.

"I don't say 'don't drink' because I still drink," he said. "I just say don't drive drunk."

At first Heim was nervous about speaking to the students in public. He doesn't even like to see himself in the movie because "it just slaps it right in your face," he said. But Ms. Mason prodded and pushed him until he had no choice but to go, he said.

Ms. Mason said several service organizations had asked Heim to speak. The first part of the program has been shown in 14 school systems this year, but he has appeared only once because of transportation problems.

But a new van, equipped with a hydraulic lift and other necessities, now enables Heim to travel.

Ms. Mason took out a $20,000 personal loan for the equipment to allow Heim to travel to every engagement. Now she hopes to set up appointments at more schools and service organizations to raise funds to pay off the loan and eventually open chapters of the organization in other counties.

"We're asking the community to help, and in return, we hope we can educate people," she said.

"We already have invitations to come back to some of the schools and John must have gotten about 400 letters from students. They've offered to have dances and bake sales to raise money for him, but that won't come to much. We need more."

The letters have made Heim believe he was really doing something worthwhile with his life and he wants to continue.

One Fairfield student wrote:

"Having you here after the film ... made me think about how many times I had put my life in danger. If something like this was to happen to me, I don't think I would have the courage and will to live and do the things that you do with your life. I really admire you and what you do. Thank you."

Read Labels For Proper Preparation

Chicken, turkey and other poultry are often a bargain but read the label to discover the best way to prepare it.

"Young means tender. The label will have words that show the age of the poultry. Use young poultry for frying, broiling, roasting or barbecuing. Stew older birds," says Rachel Kinlaw, foods and nutrition specialist, N.C. State University.

Young chickens are labeled fryer, broiler, roaster, young chicken, capon or Rock Cornish game hen. Young turkeys are labeled young hen, young tom, young turkey or fryer-roaster.

Older chickens are called stewing chicken, hen or fowl.

Use refrigerated chicken within one to two days says the extension specialist.

No Escape

Assassination of Benigno Aquino, a Philippine opposition leader, has shaken that country's people to a surprising degree.

True, the exiled senator courted martyrdom when he returned to his homeland (he was warned of what probably lay in store); and true, too, members of President F.E. Marcos expected an assassination attempt would be made. But not even the wildest speculation could have envisioned the hundreds of thousands of mourners and protesters that demonstrated their grief and repugnance over the murder.

The Philippine police and army wisely stayed aloof from the demonstrations and refrained from customary harsh action against any anti-government display which would have fanned ever higher the flames of unrest.

Even Carlos Romulo, the elder statesman of the Philippine Republic and confidante of Gen. Douglas MacArthur wept ... not so much for Aquino, perhaps, as for his homeland.

President Marcos has a problem surpassing anything he has encountered in his years of near-dictatorial rule. And if he has a problem, you can bet your bottom dollar the United States is also facing more problems not of its own making.

We never cease to marvel at how many problems our government has to contend with, that are created and blown up to near-crisis proportions by actions of other governments. We are not an island, and there's no escaping forces over which we have little or no control.

New Era Looms

Greenville Chief of Police Glenn Cannon has stepped down after 27 years in police work. He has been replaced by Floyd Holmes of Austin, Texas, who will assume his duties Oct. 3.

During his time as a member of the force and as chief, Cannon has seen the department grow in numbers of personnel, budget and professionalism. He can take pride in being a major force in that growth.

In choosing a new chief, the city manager has followed a different pattern from the past in that a nationwide search was conducted.

Holmes has an impressive record in police work and has a lifetime law enforcement background.

The local police department begins a new era under Chief Holmes. We trust it will be a period of continuing to build professionalism and efficiency.

—John Cunniff—

Statistically Speaking

NEW YORK, AP — Sometimes things aren't all what they seem, no matter how uncritically they are accepted or how often they are repeated.

There is nothing new in that observation, as can be attested to by almost any middle-aged person who was taught in a brief brush with high school economics that stocks fluctuate but bonds do not.

Any lingering faith in that overly simplistic view of the financial markets was, of course, dispelled in the past decade perhaps with a financial shock.

Fed up with the almost constant complaints that electric rates in its New York City market had risen and were rising at a faster clip than prices in general, Consolidated Edison this year sent a little reminder to users.

Not so, it said. While it conceded that electric bills had risen 34 percent since 1951, it reminded customers that the maximum amount deducted from their paychecks for Social Security had exploded by 4,324 percent.

When you can find percentages such as that a mere 34 percent seems small. Con Ed found many big ones, like the New York State budget, up 2,858 percent, the New York City budget, up 1,023, and heating oil, up 767 percent.

Other price increases that exceeded those for electricity, it said, were for local newspapers, first-run movies, bread, subway tokens and local bridge tolls.

That took care of that, and probably also served to make some people forget, temporarily, that no matter what the rate of increase, they are still paying among the highest electricity bills of any area in the country.

At William M. Mercer Inc., the big employee benefits consulting firm, they are seeking to put into perspective a percentage that is as important to them as that 34 percent figure is for Con Ed.

Why, they ask, are there reports that employee benefits make up 30 percent to 50 percent of payrolls? They claim the true figure isn't anything like that.

"The selective use of statistics as a smokescreen to hide the real truth has become an art form," says the company's Barnett Bern. He blames politics, especially as practiced in a pre-election year.

But contrary to the conventional wisdom, Bern states, employee benefits as a percentage of wages and salaries average 9 percent to 12 percent, exclusive of legally required payments and taxable benefits.

Legally required payments include Social Security, unemployment compensation, workers' compensation and the like, while taxable benefits might include vacations and holidays.

Moreover, he adds, what occurs with pension contributions is tax-deferral rather than tax-exemption, since pension payments are taxed when payable to retirees.

No debate, especially a political one, he says, "should proceed on the mistaken assumption that these tax-favored benefits represent a third, or more, of payroll."

It's just one example, he concludes, "of the current misuse of statistics to validate a political point-of-view."

RALEIGH — When John Dornan assumed the administrative reins of the N.C. Association of Educators last summer, there was a good bit of speculation that NCAE would back away from the confrontational politics it had practiced in recent years.

Any such change failed to become apparent during the 1983 legislative session, however. NCAE supporters and detractors alike reported that the teachers' group was still trying to lobby by intimidation.

There are indications this summer, however, that NCAE is setting off in a more conciliatory direction. Dornan says the friction between NCAE and other segments of the educational establishment was a natural development of an NCAE shake-up several years ago. Now it's time, he says, for people to start working together again.

"In practically every state in this country, when the teachers and administrators split, it has taken between five and 10 years to correct the situation," Dornan says. "That's what happened in North Carolina. There was a big power dislocation. The people who had power, the superintendents, lost it when they left NCAE, and some people, the teachers, who never had power before, all of a sudden had plenty of it."

NCAE once served as a primary representative for teachers and school administrators packing into two separate organizations of their own. Ever since, the organizations have been waging open warfare and, at the same time, a brash group of teachers, led by John Wilson of Raleigh, set NCAE on a course of confrontation with the Legislature.

"The answer to all of that is time and getting people to accept change," Dornan says. "I think that now you'll hear us saying some different things."

Dornan says that NCAE is trying to re-establish relations with its opponents of the past several years. NCAE groups have met with Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, for the first time in several years. They've also talked with Gene Causby, director of the School Boards Association. Both men have agreed to participate in NCAE seminars.

The principals group of NCAE has met with principals from the two other school administrators' groups, he says, and some joint projects have been undertaken with the Parent and Teacher Associations.

"When you consider that we haven't done anything cooperatively with these groups for four or five years, I feel pretty good that we at least have people talking with each other. We've been collectively suffering for the past few years because we haven't been working together," Dornan says.

"We've been spending 40 to 60 percent of our time fighting each other and that has been a disservice to the people in the schools and to each other. We were involved in a game of organization one-upmanship."

Still, Dornan doesn't think the war is over. The upcoming year, he feels, could be quite disruptive. Get past the election and the 1984 short session without any new major rifts and real progress will come much more easily.

In the short session, a lot of education ideas, most especially merit pay, will be battled about and the potential for division among teachers and administrators is very strong. NCAE is expected to be very active in the elections — something that will always bring hurt feelings. And another Raleigh education source, from outside NCAE, reports that several legislators appear anxious to fan the fires between the groups. Their "irresponsible" statements, she said, could nip the cooperative bud that's beginning to sprout.

So, while NCAE and other education groups appear on the brink of peace, don't break out the white flags.

A Process Of Elimination

was in charge of foreign policy?"

"Kirkpatrick could be the power behind the throne," Christmas said. "Yet I believe it's someone right in the White House."

"What about Vice President George Bush?"

"Let's be serious, guys. When has a vice president ever had anything to say about foreign policy?" Cannon said.

"There's Jim Baker. Mike Deaver and Ed Meese."

"They're too busy worrying about the president getting reelected to get involved in foreign affairs. The only time they mix in is if they think a policy is going to affect votes in the U.S."

"Well, that leaves the President's National Security Adviser William Clark. He's a hardliner on the Soviet Union."

"He's too obvious," Trenchant said. "Besides, I just have a gut feeling he doesn't have the smarts to conceptualize foreign policy. His strength is carrying out orders."

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

A sundial in Spain has this motto engraved upon it: "I mark only the bright hours."

How much better it would be for you and me if we marked only the bright hours. We think of the times were we slighted, of the day when someone moved in ahead of us and won a promotion we coveted. We think of the opportunity we missed but someone else embraced and we on to success.

We suspect that someone lied about us and got us in wrong with people whose favor we wanted.

If we set ourselves to remembering the dark hours we can be miserable indeed. The Bible says, "If there be any virtue or if there be any praise, think on these things."

Get into the habit of trying to see the best in the world and its people, not the worst — the best in yourself, not those weaknesses which fill you with discouragement and disdain.

Mark the bright hours. And don't forget that there are plenty of them.

"But whose orders?" I asked. Everyone tried to think hard. "Bill Casey of the CIA?" Vagrant suggested.

We ignored him. "Is there someone in the kitchen cabinet that could be running things?"

"The kitchen cabinet doesn't exist anymore. They all went back to California after the election. Look, the foreign policy of the U.S., as it stands now, is to blame the Soviets for everything, but still sell them wheat. Show American power around the world, but don't get American soldiers involved. Give a bloody nose to Kaddafi, reward all our friends with military equipment by claiming they are not violating human rights, stall the arms talks until we get the Pershing missiles placed in Europe, make Castro the biggest threat to worldwide peace, and consult with our allies only after we've decided to do something that they might object to. Now who is behind all that?"

"This is just a crazy idea," Trenchant said. "But could Reagan himself be Mr. Big?"

"You mean the president of the United States?" I asked, flabbergasted.

"Why not? He's got the authority," Bramhall said. "Reagan doesn't know anything about foreign affairs."

"So?"

The thought was so mind-boggling none of us could finish our salads.

Tower's Departure Opens The Door

Texas politicians in both parties say privately that Baker would be the strongest candidate and that the Tower seat offers him a rare second shot at elective office (he lost a bid for state attorney general in 1978).

A footnote: Reaganite hard-liners who have been drawing a bead on Baker for many months would shed no tears if he left the White House.

After a worrisome six-week delay, President Reagan has personally promised 34 Republican senators in an Aug. 3 letter that he "will not submit" any more nuclear treaties for Senate ratification that cannot be fully verified by the U.S.

The letter, replying to the senators' strongly-worded June 22 warning about Soviet nuclear weapons cheating, was a pleasant surprise to Republican conservatives led by Sens. Jesse Helms, James McClure and other signers of the warning. They believe it shows an intent by the president to go to the mat with the Soviets on repeated allegations of cheating.

"It is critical that the Soviet Union comply in full measure with obligations undertaken in current treaties and agreements," the president wrote in his letter, reported here for the first time. That implies a presidential decision to press charges of cheating on new radars and missile testing.

Lawrence Brady, the Reaganaut assistant secretary of commerce for trade administration has told intimates he thinks he could win the Republican nomination — and election — to the House seat that will be vacated by Democrat Norman D'Amours, who will run for the Senate next year against New Hampshire Republican senator Gordon Humphrey.

If Brady does run, it will cost the Commerce Department its toughest, strongest brake on the sale of war-useful technology by the U.S. to the Soviet Union. Insiders told us that Brady was horrified at the recent decision by Reagan to remove pipe-laying machinery from the list of products requiring export licenses.

Brady, an early Reagan backer, unsuccessfully sought the Republican nomination to the Senate in 1980, running fifth in a field of 11 candidates.

Sen. John Tower's stunning decision not to seek his fifth straight election to the Senate infuriated some Texas Republican leaders who personally contributed to a re-election campaign fund that is now close to $1.5 million.

One Republican county chairman, who dug deep to find a $500 contribution for Tower, wants his money back. He will not get it back. But Tower, one of the most fastidious senators in his careful use of both campaign funds and his own relatively small personal holdings, will make a full accounting of his re-election kitty and give it to other Republican candidates.

County Board Meets Tuesday

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St. Included on the agenda for the meeting, being held Tuesday because of the Labor Day holiday, is consideration of: a date to sell the county's tobacco allotment, appointments to various boards, a noon meeting with the ABC Board, and a 2 p.m. reception for volunteers sponsored by the Pitt County Involvement Council.

Post Office To Be Closed

The Greenville Post Office and ECU Station will close Monday to observe Labor Day, according to H. Lloyd Mills, postmaster.

Mills said no deliveries will be made by rural and city carriers and no window service will be provided. Mail will be delivered to post office boxes. Special delivery mail will be delivered within the city.

The postmaster said a special 3 p.m. holiday collection will be made from all collection boxes that have any specified time indicated on the side of the box. This collection of mail will be dispatched at 5:30 p.m., he said.

Mills noted that the self-service postal unit located in the lobby of the main post office will supply customers with most postal items and permit them to mail parcels.

City Lists Holiday Schedule

City hall, all municipal offices and recreation centers and gymnasiums in Greenville will be closed Monday for Labor Day, the city announced. River Birch Tennis Center will remain open throughout the holiday weekend.

Greenville Area Transit System buses will not operate Monday. The city sanitation division will be closed Monday, delaying refuse and trash pickup one day from the normal schedule. The regular collection schedule will resume Thursday. Emergency calls for public works services may be made to 752-3473.

Sheppard Memorial Library and its branches will be closed Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Health Center Names Coordinator

Catherine Radecki has been named coordinator of adult services of the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

She came to Greenville from New Jersey, where she was the coordinator of emergency-screening services for the Northern Ocean Counseling Service in Lakewood. She received the B.S. in psychology from the University of Maryland and the M.A. in psychology from the University of Delaware. She served a pre-doctoral approved internship at the Memphis Clinical Internship Consortium and received her Ph.D. in clinical psychology from the University of Delaware.

She has served in mental health centers in Tennessee, Arkansas and New Jersey and has taught courses at the University of Delaware.

Black Child Care Group To Meet

The Greater Greenville Black Child Care Association will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Bishop Payton Child Learning Center in Stokes.

Janet Farrar, child nutrition consultant for the Department of Education, will speak on the topic "Proper Nutrition for Our Children." For further information contact Margie L. Smith at 752-9329 or 757-1197.

Cancer Society Issues Report

The Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society reports that $42,650 was raised during its 1983 Education Funds campaign. The campaign was chaired by Kathryn Lewis and Kelly Barnhill.

The unit also reported that its "I Can Cope" program for assisting family and friends of the cancer patient as well as himself has been well-received and will continue in 1984. During the year, the report indicated, 161 Pitt County cancer patients were assisted by referral by the Cancer Society, special programs, financial aid and equipment loan.

Family Reunion Scheduled

The Smith-Joyner-Hardy family will hold a reunion Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Elinor Waters O'Neal, 521 Greenfield Blvd. At 2:30 p.m. Sunday the family will worship at Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church, with dinner following.

For further information contact Elinor O'Neal at 752-4158; Herman Waters, 756-6575; Evelyn Smith McNeil, 823-8850 or Annias Smith, 752-9299.

Notary Public Workshop Set

A notary public workshop will be held at Pitt Community College Sept. 13.

The course will prepare notary public candidates for their license as notaries. It is open to all notaries and required for all notaries seeking their first license.

For further information call PCC at 756-3130.

Woman Remains In Critical Condition

A Greenville woman remained in critical condition today at Pitt County Memorial Hospital after being injured in a collision with a Seaboard System train Thursday, authorities said.

A car driven by Helen Farmer Roberson of Route 4, Greenville, was struck directly on the passenger side by the train's engine at the railroad crossing near Burroughs Wellcome on rural paved road 1590, Trooper Robert Backus said. The engine dragged the car 596 feet down the track.

Backus said the crossing's warning signals were working, but Ms. Roberson apparently did not stop. There were no passengers in the car, he said.

The car, according to Backus, was a total loss, and damage to the train was estimated at $100.

Family Reunion Set This Weekend

The Ellison-Whitehurst family reunion will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Riverside Inn in Greenville. Sponsors ask that family members and friends bring a covered dish.

Anniversary

The Joseph Branch Senior Choir will celebrate its anniversary Sunday. Registration will begin at 5:30 p.m. Various choirs will participate.

Black Dollar Days, sponsored by the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP, are under way in Pitt County.

The NAACP is urging black citizens to obtain $2 bills and Susan B. Anthony dollar coins from local banks and shop with them. This, the demonstration planners say, will show the community how important the black citizen's buying power is.

Banks in the community have been asked to stock the $2 bills and Anthony dollars local SCLC; Wilbert Little, Pitt County field secretary of SCLC; D.D. Garrett Sr., president of the Pitt County chapter of the NAACP, and Clarence Moore, vice chairman of the NAACP. The NAACP is sponsoring the event and SCLC is supporting it. (Reflector Staff Photo) for the event. NAACP President D.D. Garrett Sr. said he expects between 15,000 and 20,000 persons to participate.

According to Bennie Rountree, president of the local Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the SCLC is supporting the effort, as is the local chapter of the National Organization of Women.

Garrett pointed out that black Americans spend more than $150 billion each year in this country.

Suggs Class To Have Reunion

The 1953 graduation class of H.B. Suggs High School, Farmville, will celebrate its first class reunion Friday at 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Greenville. The keynote address will be given by Ethel T. Best of Route 2, Farmville.

Family Reunion Set This Weekend

The Ellison-Whitehurst family reunion will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Riverside Inn in Greenville. Sponsors ask that family members and friends bring a covered dish.

Bethel Union Class To Meet

The 1968 graduating class of Bethel Union High School will hold its class reunion Saturday and Sunday. For more information contact Curtis Sneed at 758-4262 or Glenda Randolph at 756-8202.

Best Family Reunion Set

Descendants of Luke and Dinah Pridden Best will hold their second reunion at Warren Chapel Church beginning Saturday at 7 p.m. with registration and a talent program.

On Sunday family members and friends will attend Warren Chapel or a church of their choice as a memorial to deceased ancestors. On Monday, family and friends will assemble for a short literary program to be followed by a dinner.

The first generation of the descendants of Luke and Dinah Pridden Best are the Best, McLawhorn and Willoughby families.

Teen-Ager Charged In Bus Fight

Greenville police arrested Edward Earl "Bo" Powell, 17, of 604 Griffin St. Thursday on assault charges following investigation of an incident on a city school bus Wednesday afternoon.

Capt. John Briley said an argument erupted between Powell and William Paul Rivera, 17, of 2518 Sunset Ave., and Powell allegedly struck Rivera several times with his fists. The bus, No. 187, was near the intersection of Howell and Perkins streets at the time.

Briley said Rivera was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment of a broken nose and other injuries suffered in the affray.

Revival

The new Church of God located on Mumford Road, behind the old Piggly Wiggly, will have Bible study Saturday at 10 a.m. and a special service at 1 p.m.

Revival services will be held Monday-Friday at 7:30 p.m. with evangelist Mary Martha Collie of Hempstead, N.Y., as the guest. The following choirs will sing each night: Monday, Best Chapel; Tuesday, Fleming Chapel; Wednesday, Whitchard Chapel; Thursday, W.O. Chorus of Holly Hill; Friday, Best Chapel.

Massive Heart Attacks Killed Sen. Henry Jackson

By DOUG ESSER
Associated Press Writer
EVERETT, Wash. (AP) —
Sen. Henry M. "Scoop"

Jackson, the powerful Democrat who combined hardline anti-Soviet stands with liberal views on social issues, is dead after suffering a massive heart attack at his home. He was 71.

Jackson, who failed in two bids at the presidency but never lost an election in his home state of Washington, died Thursday night, just hours after holding a news conference to condemn the Soviet Union for shooting down a Korean jetliner the day before.

He was known as an advocate of a strong national defense, a friend of Israel and supporter of emigration for Soviet Jews. He played a major role in the creation of the Environmental Protection Agency and was considered a champion of organized labor and of civil rights for minorities.

The 45-year congressional veteran who came to Congress when Franklin Roosevelt was president, died within an hour after being brought to Providence Hospital, just 12 blocks from his Everett home. Jackson, whose death stunned those who knew him for his hard-driving schedule and energetic lifestyle, had never been in the hospital before, except to meet with its board of directors and sip tea with its Catholic nuns.

"I always thought he was indestructible. ... He took exceptional care of himself," said former Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who served 28 years in Congress with Jackson. "I lost a great personal friend. We were very close."

Denny Miller, Jackson's administrative assistant, said Jackson had been at home with his wife, Helen, at retired early at about 7:30 p.m. "complaining of not feeling too well."

Miller and a family friend, Dr. Haakon Ragde, later came to the house and found Jackson stricken in bed. He was rushed to the hospital and pronounced dead of a massive heart attack at 9:25 p.m., after attempts to revive him failed.

The senator did not smoke, drank little and exercised religiously. The son of Norwegian immigrants, he delivered newspapers while in school, earning him the nickname "Scoop."

He apparently had few medical problems in the past several years. The last time he was hospitalized was in 1975 for a gallstone operation.

The ranking Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee, Jackson sought his party's presidential nomination in the 1972 and 1976 campaigns, losing to George McGovern the first time and Jimmy Carter the second. He was third on the Senate seniority list.

Jackson was born in Everett on May 31, 1912. He married Helen Eugenia Hardin on Dec. 16, 1961. They have two children — a daughter, Anna Marie, 20, and a son, Peter, 17.

He won his first elective office at age 26 when he was chosen prosecuting attorney in his native Snohomish County. In 1938 he was elected to the U.S. House where he served six terms before being elected to the Senate in 1952.

In 1976, his vote total was the largest in the history of the state for any office — winning re-election by 710,000 votes.

In 1976, he cast his 11,000th roll call vote as a senator and drew an ovation from his colleagues for the milestone. He was in the majority on a 50-49 vote to kill an effort to delete funds for nerve-gas production from the Pentagon's 1984 authorization bill.

In 1960, Jackson was one of the contenders for the vice presidential nomination on John F. Kennedy's ticket, which eventually went to Lyndon B. Johnson. As a consolation prize, he became the Democratic national chairman in 1960 and 1961.

As chairman of the Senator Interior Committee, he pushed through the Environmental Protection Act which created the EPA.

His unswerving support for Israel and his mistrust of the Soviet Union came together when he insisted on amending a U.S.-Soviet trade agreement so that the Soviets would have to liberalize their immigration laws in exchange for U.S. trade concessions. The proposal would have chiefly benefited Soviet Jews, but the Soviet Union repudiated the agreement in 1975.

Jackson's colleagues considered him "the last of the cold warriors," according to political writer Richard Reeves.

A conservative on defense matters, Jackson had an opportunity to join the Cabinet in 1969, but he turned down President Nixon's invitation to be secretary of defense.

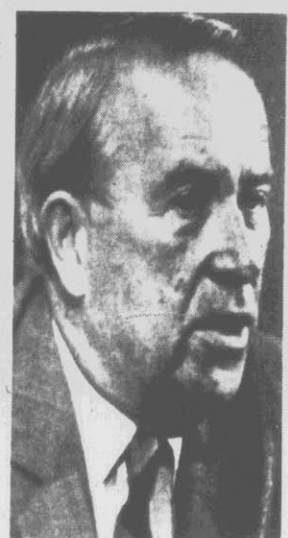

Because major airplane factories were in his home state, Jackson sometimes was called the "Senator from Boeing."

Although he opposed noise pollution, Jackson supported the construction of the supersonic transport plane, which opponents successfully halted.

Jackson, Washington's senior senator, had been suffering from a chest cold since returning from a trip to China on Sunday, Miller said, but had been well enough to keep appointments and hold the news conference in Seattle.

At that session, his last public appearance, Jackson called the reported Soviet downing of the Korean Air Lines Boeing 747 an "act of barbarism."

Hazardous Waste List Is Added To By EPA

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Environmental Protection Agency has singled out another 133 hazardous waste sites as the worst in the country, bringing the total number of dangerous dumps to 546. But the agency says before its inventory is finished the figure could reach 1,000.

The agency made the latest additions to its national priority list on Thursday, allowing the dumps to compete for $1.6 billion in federal money under the "superfund" cleanup program.

The 546 dumps are from a total 17,000 abandoned and inactive dumps known to exist.

EPA Assistant Administrator Lee Thomas, head of the "superfund" program, told reporters that the number of hazardous waste sites could well reach 1,000 before the agency completes its survey in the next two years.

The entire effort is being conducted under a 1980 law passed by Congress which set up a $1.6 billion fund to pay for cleaning up hundreds of dumps spreading poisons into the air and water across the United States.

With the additions Thursday, a total of 46 states have sites on the national list. New Jersey ranks No. 1 with 85 sites, followed by Pennsylvania with 39, New York and Florida with 29 each, Minnesota, 23, Ohio, 22, and Wisconsin, 20.

New Jersey and Wisconsin had 20 dumps added in the new round, the most of any state. Only Alaska, Hawaii, Nebraska and Nevada have no sites on the national list.

The sites added Thursday ranged from a 40-mile stretch of the Hudson River in New York which is contaminated with PCBs to the Quail Run trailer park west of St. Louis, where dioxin has been found.

The EPA was rocked earlier this year by allegations of improper conduct of the cleanup program, including charges that money was being spent to help political friends and that "sweetheart" deals to finance the cleanup were being reached with polluters.

The charges led to the resignation of more than 20 top EPA officials, including former Administrator Anne M. Burford and Rita Lavelle, the former assistant administrator in charge of "superfund."

Thomas said the agency has regained the momentum lost during the months of congressional investigations. He said new Administrator William Ruckelshaus had instituted needed reforms to speed up cleanup efforts.

Still, only five of the original sites have been completely cleaned up and officials said Thursday it could be well into the next century before some of the most troublesome areas are free of contamination.

While adding to the list, the agency also dropped seven sites from the original tally of 420 because the sites had either been cleaned up or new information showed the contamination wasn't as severe as originally thought.

Youth Services

Youth services will be held at Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. James Nobles of Arthur's Chapel FWB Church. Music will be rendered by the Sweet Hope Youth Choir.

Sunday at 7 p.m. members will meet at the church to gather information for the church history book. Sunday at 7:30 p.m. the Home Mission Department will hold a service, with the Youth Choir of Elm Grove FWB Church. Ayden, rendering music.

Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. the pastor and the officers will meet.

New Jersey's Lipari Landfill, a six-acre gravel pit and industrial chemical dump, moved from fifth place to being ranked the worst dump in the country based on new information the agency received on threats of air pollution. Minnesota's Fridley plant, formerly No. 1, was downgraded to 17th because officials overestimated the level of contaminants at the site.

Candidates for the national list are nominated by the states and regional EPA offices and selected based on their scores on the ranking system.

"In all cases, the ultimate aim of this effort is to make sure that the attention given a site is commensurate with the public health and environmental risk it poses," said Thomas, who replaced Ms. Lavelle as head of the superfund program.

Ms. Lavelle faces a five-count federal indictment which includes a charge she lied to Congress when she denied awarding or delaying cleanup grants based on political considerations.

In answer to a court suit from environmentalists, the agency announced that in future updates of the national list it would include federal facilities. Even though the federal sites, most owned by the Defense Department, will not be eligible for fund money, critics argued that the ranking was needed to bring public pressure to correct serious pollution problems on federal lands.

Demand Soviet Explanation...

quoted by name, said that if the Soviets do not supply an adequate explanation, a formal diplomatic protest "or something further" could be forthcoming.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said there were no survivors aboard Korean Air Lines Flight 007.

The passenger plane was in Soviet airspace above Sakhalin, a mountainous island 20 miles from the Soviet Union's east coast and within 100 miles of Japan, U.S. officials said.

A missile, called an Anad, was fired from a 1960s-vintage Soviet interceptor which was one of eight fighters which tracked the airliner, according to Pentagon intelligence sources who asked that they not be identified. The sources said the Soviets have about 35 SU-15s and 30 MiG-23s based at Sakhalin.

Hughes said a message from Gromyko to the State Department claimed the plane was flying without lights and did not respond to signals of Soviet interceptors and their attempt to direct it to a landing site. The message did report that "signs of a possible crash have been found in the area of Moronen Island," near Sakhalin, and in the Sea of Japan inside Soviet territorial waters.

But it made no mention that the plane had been shot down, Hughes said. And the Soviet Embassy "has been informed that the U.S. government finds this reply totally inadequate."

The KAL jumbo jet was destroyed at 2:26 p.m. EDT Wednesday, U.S. officials said. The flight originated in New York, had refueled in Anchorage, Alaska, and was about 1,000 miles from its destination, Seoul.

The Soviet pilot was close enough to see the airliner, and the Soviets had tracked it for 2½ hours — ample opportunity to know it was a civilian flight, officials said.

CBS News reported that intelligence sources in Japan say monitoring of a conversation between a Soviet SU-15 pilot and Soviet ground controllers showed the following conversation:

Ground: "Take aim at the target."

Pilot: "Aim taken."

Ground: "Fire."

Pilot: "Fired."

Those who boarded the flight in New York, according to the airline, numbered 238 adults, two unidentified infants, and a crew of 29.

Advise Checkup For Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal safety investigators have recommended immediate inspections of 150 airplanes used for commuter and executive flights for possible hydraulic or oxygen line leaks that could cause cockpit fires.

The National Transportation Safety Board on Wednesday urged the Federal Aviation Administration to require inspections of the Swearingen SA 226-TC Metro.

The recommendation resulted from the NTSB's investigation of a fire that broke out while one of the planes, owned by Scheduled Skyways Inc., was about to take off last Saturday night from Hot Springs, Ark. The plane's occupants escaped without injury. The blaze was similar to a 1982 fire in Palm Springs, Calif., involving another Swearingen SA-226 TC Metro. The aircraft is manufactured by a division of Fairchild Industries, Inc.

Farm Crops Sharply Off

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Farm production this year will be down sharply in the United States, and that is driving up prices for grain, according to farm economists at North Carolina State University.

Based on conditions Aug. 1, American feed grain production is forecast at 167 million tons, down 35 percent from a year earlier. Forecasts expect the production estimates to drop even lower in September due to the hot, dry weather.

In addition, the acreage expected to be harvested is down nearly one-fourth because of the government's payment-in-kind and related acreage reduction programs.

The United States enters the harvest season with record large carryover stock of feed grains, the economists say, which will help reduce the impact of the smaller 1983 crop. Supplies are still expected to fall more than 15 percent from last year's levels.

For the 1983-1984 marketing year, corn prices are forecast at $2.95 to $3.20 a bushel, up from the previous forecast of $2.65 to $2.90 a bushel. The average price in 1982 was $2.65 a bushel.

POW Fled

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss authorities have asked West German officials to return a Soviet prisoner of war captured in Afghanistan who escaped during a visit to a Swiss shopping center in July, officials say.

Authorities said Thursday that Yuri Vatchenko disappeared July 8 during a shopping trip in Zug. The town is near a military facility where he and seven other Soviet POWs are interred.

The International Committee of the Red Cross brought the eight Soviet soldiers to Switzerland under an agreement between the Soviet Union and Afghan guerrillas in which Soviet POWs are to be held in Switzerland. The Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in 1979 to prop up the pro-Moscow regime.

Official August forecast figures also call for production drops of 19 percent in soybeans, 14 percent in wheat, 33 percent in grain sorghum, 35 percent in cotton and 24 percent in tobacco.

Embassy Terms It 'Catastrophe'

PARIS (AP) — The Soviet Embassy in Paris today accused the United States of launching a "hysterical anti-Soviet campaign" over the Korean Air Lines plane reported shot down off the coast of the Soviet Union.

The embassy added no information about the fate of the plane and the 269 people aboard, but called its loss "a catastrophe."

It issued a statement also criticizing France for having been "skept up" by the "campaign without having its own independent information as to what happened."

The only information the Soviet Union has so far released did not directly address the U.S. government's statement that the Soviet Union shot the plane down with an anti-air missile.

The official Tass agency followed the plane after it intruded into Soviet airspace, failed to make contact with it, and that the missile went off.

The Soviet Embassy's statement, in a translation, by The Associated Press from the French-language original, read:

"What is concerned is a catastrophe of an aircraft which, furthermore, twice violated the airspace of the Soviet Union. For two hours the crew of the aircraft did not reply to insistent signals addressed to them in ways conforming to the universal international aerial code."

The hysterical anti-Soviet campaign unleashed as if by signal by the Americans is absolutely unacceptable. It is even more incomprehensible that France has let itself be swept up in it without having its own independent information as to what took place."

City Counts 3 Collisions

An estimated $5,250 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Marty Ray Griffin of Route 4, Williamston, Susan Renee Collins of Route 3, Thomasville, and Steven James Folmar of Route 1, Lumberton, collided about 4:27 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard at the Greenville Square Shopping Center entrance.

Police, who said three passengers in the Folmar car were injured, estimated damage of $100 to the Griffin car, $2,000 to the Collins vehicle and $500 to the Folmar car.

William Fate Elks Purser of Route 2, Chocowinity, was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, following investigation of a 10:33 a.m. collision on Greene Street, 50 feet north of the Morgan Street intersection.

Police said the Purser car collided with a car driven by Lester Andrews of Stokes, causing $500 damage to the Andrews car and $1,000 damage to the Purser vehicle.

A car driven by Jeffrey Macon Haddock of Route 1, Grimesland, and a truck operated by John Benjamin Jones of 315 Glenwood Drive collided about 5:15 p.m. on Dickinson Avenue, 27 feet west of the Line Avenue intersection, causing $750 damage to the car and $400 damage to the truck.

Industrial Policy Now 'Sleeper Issue'

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

It's an issue that has yet to sweep the electorate, but all the Democratic presidential contenders are trying hard to grab hold of it. One veteran strategist says it could mean millions of votes — and a House chairman says it will be the hottest question of 1984.

President Reagan's supporters say it's no issue at all, and deride his rivals' attempt to make it so — even if Reagan himself has named a national commission to study it.

Reduced to three words, "national industrial policy," it sounds like a guaranteed snore in the coming political debate. But reduced to one, "jobs," — namely those lost to foreign competitors — it may be a sleeper of a different sort, especially in a year of continuing high unemployment.

Still, the issue is complicated for punchy campaign slogans. The question is whether the federal government should establish a broad, long-term plan for helping American companies battle industry in Japan and elsewhere, and there are at least a dozen separate proposals on how to go at it.

Long-time Democratic strategist and former U.S. trade representative Robert Strauss says the candidate who gets out front on the issue can reap millions of votes next year, including his.

And Rep. John LaFalce, a New York Democrat who has been running congressional hearings on the subject, says industrial policy "will be or certainly ought to be the leading issue for 1984." And he means the hundreds of races for congressional seats, too.

That's plain silly, in the view of some conservative Republican backers of the president. They contend a strong economy at home is the only medicine companies need to get well enough to compete overseas.

Politics aside, there is wide agreement that millions of jobs — and even general national prosperity — depend on successfully competing with foreigners for sales both in the United States and abroad.

The main arguments for a central industrial policy are:

The Japanese and others have robbed Americans of jobs by taking business from such U.S. industries as steel and auto manufacturing. And the foreigners' success is based on their governments subsidizing private companies, targeting national resources to help increase exports and erecting trade barriers to keep out other nations' goods. The way to fight them is to use some or all of the same tactics.

Opponents say bureaucrats could never steer industry more expertly than private managers. And putting up new trade barriers against foreign goods would inspire even bigger foreign barriers in retaliation.

Some advocates would go so far as to have the government try to pick "winners and losers," giving special help to high-technology industries while putting some heavy old industries to sleep. Others want elderly and ailing industrial giants such as steel revived with government aid — or their workers retrained through big federal programs. Still others simply want more tax-reduction programs to encourage private research and development.

LaFalce, noting the government's array of import quotas, export-supporting loans and other trade aid, says the nation has a "very substantial set" of industrial policies — but no coordinated strategy. "To frame the issue as industrial policy vs. the (free) market is to set up a straw man, a simplistic caricature which distracts our attention from the real points at issue."

Almost everyone on both sides advocates free and unfettered trade. But even Reagan, a leading proponent of that view, has clamped restrictions on imports of such goods as steel and motorcycles.

Bruce Bartlett, executive director of the Republican-led congressional Joint Economic Committee, says it's understandable Reagan took those actions, in light of current pressures. But he also suggests many Democrats have jumped on the issue simply because they need a new economic scheme to challenge the president.

Denying that, the Democrats say the issue is vital for many workers and their companies. Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale says that "If we don't have an all-out attempt, a strategy to reassert America's competitiveness in international trade ... we're going to find our children getting the dead-end jobs ... the growth is going overseas."

But Reagan, in naming the Presidential Commission on Industrial Competitiveness, said that the government should not "dictate detailed plans or solutions to problems for particular companies or industries."

Rather, he said, the commission would try to point out the problems and opportunities presented by international competition and merely suggest what private companies might want to do about them.

Like Mondale, the other Democratic contenders want a stronger approach, as reflected by the statements many made to the Industrial Union Department of the AFL-CIO in May. For example:

—Sen. John Glenn of Ohio: "Our national security, and that of our allies, depends on our ability to mobilize our industrial strength. We cannot defend ourselves with fast foods and video games or by launching microchips at enemy tanks. That's why government has a legitimate role in preserving the basic industries that will keep us strong."

—Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado: "At the center of this new national industrial policy must be the recognition that the world has changed around us. We are no longer an island nation" able to ignore the rest of the world.

—Sen. Alan Cranston of California: Proposed a national Reconstruction Finance Corp., "an agency whose first priority will be to restore America's basic industries."

Former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, who followed Strauss as President Carter's trade representative, has said that trade problems must be met "in an entirely new way" that includes federal participation.

And Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., has said that most issues "pale alongside the importance of economic survival in the face of international competition. We are being told by this president that government is your enemy. We need a president who understands and appreciates government."

Quick Recovery From Blindness

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Burlington man who claimed he went blind in the Alamance County Jail experienced a recovery Wednesday after prosecutors asked that he be sent to Central Prison Hospital in Raleigh for an eye examination.

Clyce Groce, 22, of Mebane, who is in jail on charges of larceny of a firearm and drunk and disruptive behavior, told Superior Court Judge Thomas Lee he had been to Central Prison and did not want to go back.

"I think I'm starting to see some light now," Groce said, after being led to the witness stand with his eyes closed. "It's getting better because before I couldn't see anything."

Groce told a District Court judge last week he was losing his eyesight, but an eye examination showed nothing wrong with his eyes. Ever since then, Groce has told jailers he was blind and has been led around the jail.

Strife Erupts Again In Symphony Pay Dispute

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Strife between North Carolina Symphony musicians and management has erupted again, with the orchestra's executive director threatening to stop rehearsals until a salary dispute ends.

"Until we have a contract concluded, the position of the symphony board and management is that we cannot begin our services," director Thomas H. McGuire said Thursday. "There will be no rehearsals until we have reached that agreement."

Richard B. Fecteau, a member of the musicians' negotiating team, said the players may proceed with rehearsals anyway — "simply to demonstrate that we are locked out."

The musicians also have decided to sponsor a free concert in Raleigh next weekend in defiance of management's decision to postpone the season until a contract is signed.

Negotiators have failed for six months to agree on a pact to replace the three-year contract that expired Aug. 15. McGuire said this week that progress had been made on some issues but wouldn't elaborate.

But negotiators for the musicians said concessions made by management had not improved substantially over the original offer. "I think we have recognized how far apart we are for the last few weeks," said Craig Brown, another union negotiator.

The musicians' decision to give a free concert is a demonstration of their position, Brown said.

"Unlike other labor groups, we have an audience that we care about," he said. "We want to offer them music. We also want to emphasize that this is not a strike. There will be no pickets. ... We will not take advantage of our audience."

Musicians' negotiators say management wants to eliminate more than 100 items from the previous contract and to increase the players' working hours and number of performances.

The symphony society also wants to cut the musicians' health, disability and life insurance, said Patricia Banko, spokeswoman for the musicians. She called that move unprecedented, even when compared to events that provoked the musicians' weeklong strike in 1980.

R. Peyton Woodson, chairman of the symphony's board of directors, confirmed that the musicians would have to pay for their health benefits beginning Sept. 10 if no agreement was reached. He said changes sought by the board were designed to put the orchestra on a more stable financial footing.

Controversy has plagued the symphony for the past several years. After the 1980 walkout, musicians nearly struck again the next year in a dispute over a new conductor. The orchestra has encountered money problems in the past and most of the disputes have involved finances.

Life As It's Lived

The Perfect Appliance In All Things, Except...

By GAIL MICHAELS

I have this problem with my dishwasher. The only way to operate it with any ease whatever is to leave it empty.

It does beautifully under that particular circumstance. The shelves slide in and out without balking. The door flies closed with the snap of a crocodile's jaw. But place more than two dishes on either side of the bottom shelf and the wheels refuse to sit on the ledges on which they were designed to roll.

One side slips down and the other side flies up, and to reposition them takes about the same amount of patience and wit required in a successful encounter with a Rubik's Cube.

Needless to say, the situation leaves me somewhat frustrated. At least I had the satisfaction of hurling the Rubik's Cube across the room after 30 minutes of fruitless manipulation. But my dishwasher is attached to my counter. I would have thrown the dishes instead, but I believe that Phillip would frown upon that practice.

I have therefore tried to approach the problem rationally. I find this quite difficult not only because I do not normally respond rationally to frustration but because I simply cannot reconcile myself to a hostile dishwasher. It is the one machine I have always venerated. When Phillip's parents offered to buy one for our last home and Phillip asserted that we could do without, I quickly informed him that a taller, more ambulatory household fixture might be more expendable. I am simply not vain enough to wish to spend all that time letting my hands soak in Palmolive, no matter how beneficial it is.

But if this machine and I don't come to an understanding soon, I may have to give up my scaly hands. The other evening, after a full day of miserably but dutifully putting up vegetables from my parents' garden, I loaded up the machine and gave the wayward shelf a push. The left side immediately fell.

"I thought this company was supposed to bring good things to living," I groused. "It just goes to show that good is relative."

I tried to disengage the shelf from its awkward position, but given that the wheels were now hanging tenaciously to the underside of the ledge, I had considerable difficulty. I concluded that the men (it couldn't have been women) who engineered this product were either unconsciously sadistic or else they were given to drinking heavily on the job.

After finally succeeding in hoisting the offender back onto the open door, I guided it into the allotted space once more. Once more it keeled over, sending my favorite serving bowl soaring forward.

Seething but determined to remain rational, I screamed and stamped the floor only two or three times before I marched upstairs and commandeered the bathroom scale. With it I weighed the dishes. I then distributed the weight evenly and again guided the shelf toward its intended destination. Again it flipped.

At this point, I lost all control. I remember hearing Phillip shout, "Don't break it!" as he came galloping in to find me kicking the door of my nemesis as I sucked a bleeding finger.

"I cut it on this stupid excuse for a labor-saving device," I moaned.

The children, who had been watching the proceeding in wide-eyed horror, rushed to my aid. "Poor Mom!" Meg said.

"It's not nice to say stupid," Zachary added.

I'd be willing to bet that I can think of a better way to be brought closer to the ones I love.

'Cleared' In Shooting Death

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A Wilson police detective acted properly when he shot and killed a 22-year-old man at the Wilson Police Department last month, District Attorney Howard S. Boney said Thursday.

Boney said he planned no prosecution or further investigation of Detective M.C. Raper in connection with the Aug. 2 slaying of Larry Alan Lamm.

Boney said the investigation revealed that Lamm, who pointed a gun at Raper, had written notes indicating he intended to provoke a shooting in a suicide attempt.

Boney said Lamm was being questioned in connection with a break-in when he pulled the loaded handgun and pointed it at Raper.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

AS A THIEF IN THE NIGHT

THE HIGHLY TRAINED RANGER-SCOUT OF MODERN WARFARE HAS NOTHING ON THE BIBLICAL SOLDIER WHO WAS ALSO TRAINED TO BE CRAFTY AND CLEVERLY BY STEALTH. EVALUATE HOW BEST TO SPY OUT THE LAND IN A SITUATION WHICH DEMANDED GREAT SKILL IN ORDER NOT TO BE DISCOVERED. THEY OPERATED MOSTLY AT NIGHT, HAVING TO OUTWIT THE KEEN-EARED SENTRIES, WHERE A CARELESS FOOTFALL MIGHT BETRAY THEIR PRESENCE AND RESULT IN THEIR IMMEDIATE DEMISE! SMALL WONDER THIS KIND OF SOLDIER HAD TO OPERATE, TO QUOTE JOB, (24:14). "AS A THIEF IN THE NIGHT".

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied today in an advance led by defense issues.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.20 at 1,213.01.

Gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some traders were encouraged by the market's calm response to all the news Thursday and today about the reports that a Russian fighter plane had shot down a Korean passenger jet with 269 people aboard.

The most clear-cut response to the news occurred in defense and aerospace stocks. Rockwell International rose 1 1/2 to 28 1/2; Raytheon 2 to 49 1/2; Lockheed 2 1/2 to 111 1/2; and McDonnell Douglas 2 1/2 to 51 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index gained .39 to 95.22. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.43 at 231.69.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 28.08 million shares at noon, against 38.57 million at the same point Thursday.

USS Monitor Relic Is On Road To Greenville

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A 120-year-old relic from the USS Monitor was loaded onto a flatbed truck today for an 80-mile journey to East Carolina University, where it will be cleaned and preserved.

The 1,300-pound, four-fluted anchor was returned to land Thursday evening aboard the Research Vessel Johnson after spending more than a century on the seabottom 16 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras. The anchor was brought to the surface Monday by using a bag filled with air.

Dr. William Still, director of underwater research at ECU, said the anchor will put into a large metal vat of water for conservation and preservation. He said electricity will be run through the water to remove salt and stabilize the metal.

"If we don't remove the salt, the anchor would fall apart in time, corroding and rusting," Still said.

The anchor was expected to arrive at ECU around noon today. Program directors will weigh the anchor on the truck, unload the anchor and then weigh the truck to determine how much the anchor weighs.

"About 1,300 pounds is what we believe now, but there could be some deterioration as far as weight is concerned," Still said.

The Monitor is a Civil War ironclad gunboat that was sunk off Cape Hatteras Dec. 31, 1862. It was discovered in 1973 in 210 feet of water.

After the anchor is cleaned up, a process expected to take two years, the anchor will probably be put on display, Still said.

He said the anchor will probably go on display at the Smithsonian Institution, but "there is always a chance they would show and display it in North Carolina. We'd like to see it," he said.

Flue-Cured Prices Are Mostly Steady

By The Associated Press
 Flue-cured tobacco prices were mostly steady or a little lower Thursday on North Carolina's three tobacco belts, the Federal-State Market News Service reported.

On the Eastern Belt, prices for heavy volume grades showed only minor changes from Wednesday. The practical top price remained $205 per hundred pounds.

Sales in the belt Wednesday grossed 7,744,954 pounds returning $188.26 per hundred up $1.07 from Tuesday. Season marketings rose to 115,992,084 pounds averaging $173.21 per hundred.

On the Old and Middle Belt, heavy volume grades varied only $1 per hundred from Wednesday, with gains out numbering losses. Volume was moderate.

Gross sales for Wednesday totaled 4,756,904 pounds and averaged $171.94 per hundred — up only 61 cents from the previous day. Totals for the season reached 57,643,344 pounds averaging $158.80 per hundred.

Prices were a little lower on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt on Thursday. Losses from Wednesday ranged mainly from $1 to $3 per hundred.

Sales in the belt Wednesday totaled 5,419,592 pounds averaging $187.21 per hundred-down 72 cents from Tuesday. Season sales reached 88,397,063 pounds returning $170.07.

'Bandit' Has A Reprieve

CAVE JUNCTION, Ore. (AP) — Authorities say they won't prosecute the Soles family for harboring a masked Bandit — now that they've learned Bandit is a pet raccoon.

Sharon and Bob Soles found the ailing newborn in May, abandoned on their property, and nursed him back to health. He roams free, wandering in and out of their house, is fed by the family and is housebroken.

State game officials had threatened to take Bandit away and destroy him because the Soles didn't have a wild animal permit. Holding a wild animal in captivity without a permit violates state law.

But Bandit got a reprieve on Thursday after game officers determined that he wasn't actually being held against his will, said state police Lt. Mike Hays.

"We feel very good about it. We're in seventh heaven," said a jubilant Mrs. Soles, adding that more than 300 local residents had signed a petition asking the state to make an exception to its permit law.

"The community support has been great. Bandit has been getting flowers and everything," she said.

To celebrate, Bandit got two poached eggs for breakfast. Sole said.

Emory: Pirates Won't Be Intimidated

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Four years ago, when Ed Emory was in his first year as East Carolina's head football coach, he carried his young team down to Tallahassee, Fla., to face strong Florida State.

Saturday evening at 7 p.m. in Tallahassee, the Pirates and Seminoles again clash, but Emory thinks that this year's situation will be different.

"We were obviously intimidated that first year down there. When their mascot rode out on the field and jabbed that spear into the 50-yard line, we were intimidated," Emory recalled. That night, Florida State romped to a 63-7 victory, the only ECU score coming on a 100-yard touchdown return by Anthony Collins, now of the New England Patriots.

Last year, the Pirates again ventured into Seminole territory and Emory kept his team inside the locker room until the spear-planting was over — still a bit of intimidation.

Florida State rolled up a 56-17 win in that contest.

This year, however, Emory has no plans to keep the team under wraps until the pre-game activities are over. "It's just a passing thing now. The kids feel like they belong now," Emory said.

Florida State comes into the game ranked seventh on the polls of both the wire services, and is considered by many as a top candidate for the national championship.

Jeff Bolch

"ABC listed their top ten teams and Florida State was ahead of Nebraska (No. One on both wire service polls), and you saw what they did (Monday) night. Florida State is definitely in the top three or four teams in the country."

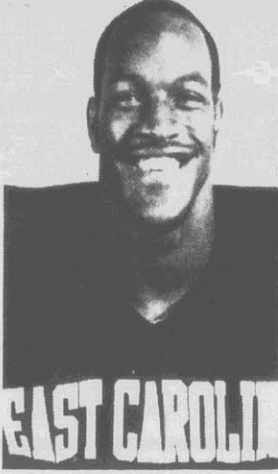

Emory is optimistic about the game, however, as the Pirates approach it the healthiest they've been at the start of any season since Emory came to ECU. "We do have some injuries that we're concerned about. Greg Thomas (center) will be out, but may be back for the State game. Ricky Hilburn (guard) is doubtful, but John Williams (quarterback) is back and about 90 percent. We hope he'll be around 100 percent for the game."

However, Williams is not likely to punt. Jeff Bolch will handle those duties.

On the defensive side of the line, the Pirates will be without linebacker Ron Reid for several weeks, following orthoscopic surgery. "Steve Hamilton is back and so is Lawrence Brooks, but we have a problem of depth at nose guard."

Emory noted that the Pirates have lost three players during the past week. Greg Quick, a potential starter in the offensive line, and Tony Smith, the backup nose guard, became academically ineligible, while Brian Herndon, the number three quarterback, has given up football for health reasons following a slow recovery from hip surgery last year.

Reggie Branch

"Because of this, we'll probably take three freshmen on the trip with us," Emory said. Those three will be quarterback Ron Jones, quarterback-running back Darrell Speed, and nose guard Ron Gilliard.

"I think we are ready physically, mentally and technically, and I think we are a disciplined football team," the coach said. "I'm excited to see how much we have closed the gap."

"But one game is not a season. We are looking for respect, for credibility. A big blow out doesn't give you that. And we're not looking for a moral victory. If we do lose, a close win will help us more than a blow out, of course. They are so capable of the big play and we've got to prevent that."

The big play was a crucial part of last year's game, as FSU scored following a fumble, a pass interception and another fumble prior to the half. Also, the Pirates gave up a 67-yard pass that set up another FSU score, giving the Seminoles a 35-3 halftime margin.

Quarterback Kelley Lowery passed 15 times, hitting nine for 237 yards and two scores as the Seminoles ground out 706 yards against a Pirate defense that went into the game ranked 16th in the nation.

Lowery, a senior this year, suffered a shoulder injury last week, but is now expected to be ready to play on Saturday night. Last season, he passed for 1,671 yards and 11 touchdowns, and only eight interceptions.

Joining him in the backfield is speedy tailback Greg Allen, a 5-11, 200-pound junior. He rushed for 776 yards as the number two man last year, and is the nation's top returning scorer with 126 points and 21 TDs last year.

The top defender is Alphonso Carreker, a 6-6, 260-pound senior tackle, while Tom McCormick, a 6-2, 240-pound senior center leads the offensive line.

While some FSU supporters might tend to look past the Pirates to Louisiana State, Coach Bobby Bowden says he doesn't believe his team can afford to do that. LSU, however, drubbed the Seminoles last year, 55-21.

"I'm more fired up for this season than any other in the past," Emory said. "I expect so much more from our players this year. I demand excellence."

And, if FSU is as strong as indicated, excellence will be necessary.

Houston Tramples Rice, 45-14

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston running back Donald Jordan saw his long touchdown runs against Rice as his way of showing that he is ready to play a dominate role in the Cougar offense.

UH quarterback Lionel Wilson saw them another way. "Those are Cotton Bowl plays," Wilson said after Jordan scored Thursday night on runs of 47, 45 and one yard to help thrash the Owls 45-14 in the Southwest Conference season opener for both teams.

The victory gave Houston the early lead in the SWC race and made Rice a loser for the 13th straight game, tying Kent State for the longest losing string in the nation.

Six of the AP Top Twenty teams begin their seasons Saturday night. Seventh-ranked Florida State hosts East Carolina, No. 15 Georgia plays No. 20 UCLA at Athens, No. 11 North Carolina visits South Carolina, Louisville meets No. 10 Southern Methodist at Dallas and 14th-ranked Arizona hosts Oregon State.

Jordan, who missed spring practice because of knee surgery, didn't miss his chance against the Owls. Rice was reeling from his three touchdowns and Mike Cleaden's 22-yard field goal by the midway point of the second quarter.

"For three years, I've had great backs in front of me," said Jordan, a senior. "Tonight I got my chance. Our offensive line performed superbly. I had great blocks on the touchdown runs."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman said Jordan also helped his own cause.

"What helped was when Jordan ran over two or three people," Yeoman said. "That's the difference between a long run and a nine-yard gain."

"Jordan is significantly stronger than a year ago,"

Yeoman said. "Donald claims his marriage got him going in the right direction. I don't care what it is, he's a talented kid."

Wilson, criticized for his turnovers last season, did not yield a fumble in the game although he tossed an interception to Donahue Walker, who returned it 65 yards for a touchdown.

"I feel comfortable with our backs," Wilson said. "We didn't fumble when I was in there. We've worked extra hard on that."

Rice Coach Ray Alborn said Owl defenders were in position to stop Jordan's runs but didn't get the job done.

"On his second touchdown run we put two guys right where they are supposed to be and they don't make the tackle," Alborn said. "I don't know what you're supposed to do. You've got to give Jordan credit for making a helluva a run. Two kids put their helmets on him just like they are supposed to."

Houston turned the game into the expected rout with three third-quarter scores on Dwyane Love's five-yard run, a 47-yard run by freshman Raymond Tate on his first college carry and Albert Pope's 32-yard interception return after UH tackle T.J. Turner chased Rice quarterback Doug Johnson into the Owl end zone.

Rice quarterback Phillip Money, intercepted twice in the game, tacked on the game's final score with a 20-yard pass to Tony Burnett with 4:14 left in the game.

Rick Neuheisel, a fifth-year senior, will be starting for the first time Saturday as UCLA quarterback before an expected turnout of 80,000 at Sanford Stadium, where Georgia has 20 straight games.

"I think we'll be ready to play a very good football game," Neuheisel said. "We've been thinking about Georgia since last April. We'll be ready."

He will be throwing to a trio of wide receivers — Mike Sherrard, Karl Dorrell and Mike Young — who caught only seven passes among them a year ago.

"I'm not nervous," said Neuheisel, who completed 13 of 22 passes for 235 yards last season as Tom Ramsay's backup. "I have prepared for it (the starting assignment). I know that when I get off the plane in Georgia, I'll have a few butterflies. I'm looking forward to that feeling again."

Georgia, the defending Southeastern Conference champion, is going into the nationally televised game against the Bruins with critical injuries in its offensive line and its secondary.

"What we've got is a scrambled, hodgepodge situation," said Coach Vince Dooley said. "The offensive line potentially is our strength, and while the injuries don't make it a weakness, it's not what it should be."

Right tackle Guy McIntyre suffered an injured ankle injury in Monday's practice and left tackle Jimmy Harper has back spasms. Dooley said Harper's condition is improving and that he might start against the Bruins, but McIntyre remains doubtful for the game.

The defense also remains a question mark. Originally, Georgia had six starters returning on defense but when back Jeff Sanchez's broken arm failed to heal and end Stan Dooley was declared academically ineligible, it left the Bulldogs with only four.

"Our defense carried us last season until the offense got rolling at midseason," said Dooley, whose players are coming off an 11-1 1982 campaign and are playing for the first time in three seasons with Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker.

In light of what happened last year in its opener at Arizona, Oregon State Coach Joe Avezano is ordering his kickers to keep the ball away from Vance Johnson at all costs.

All the all-purpose Johnson did the last time the Beavers met the Wildcats in the rain at Arizona Stadium was: return the opening kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown, rush for 119 yards and two more touchdowns and catch four passes for another 39 yards in a 38-12 victory.

SMU, led by quarterback Lance McIlhenny, meets Louisville without its "Pony Express" backfield of Eric Dickerson and Craig James. Dickerson was drafted by the Los Angeles Rams and James signed with the Washington Redskins of the United States Football League. The two running backs led the team to No. 4 ranking last season and a 7-3 victory over Pitt in the Cotton Bowl.

The 1983 football season has arrived! And it just seems like yesterday that we were totaling up last year's total to crown the champion.

This year, we have one new member to our panel, as sports writer Jimmy DuPree takes over for Rick Scoppe. Scoppe, by the way, is our alumni guest for this week. He's now with the Associated Press in Raleigh, along with another of our ex-writers, Tom Foreman Jr.

Back again are Tom Baines, Vickie Spivey, Joe Jenkins and this writer.

Everyone is a little apprehensive about this week's picks, since they have little to build on. With the small schedule of games, finding those rated a toss-up is difficult and some of our members are questioning some of the "off the wall" matchups. Nevertheless, there they are, and they'll be up shortly.

First, we take a look at the high school slate. Our record last week, with a limited slate, gave us a 3-1 record, missing only on Roanoke and North Pitt.

North Pitt hopes to get back on the winning side against East Carteret, which will be playing its first game of the year. The Panthers must hang onto the ball better, and also must go with a new quarterback. The Mariners have a veteran backfield, and we'll have to give them the benefit of the doubt, East Carteret to win, 14-6.

Ayden-Grifton opens its season with a visit to Roanoke. This should be somewhat of a better test for the Redskins, who have that important game under their belts. The "Skins appear to have a good quarterback and good receivers and

Morris, Hoyt Win 18th

By The Associated Press

While teams are involved in their respective pennant races, Detroit's Jack Morris and Chicago's LaMarr Hoyt are staging a personal race of their own for most victories in the American League.

Thursday night, Morris got to the winner's circle just about one hour ahead of Hoyt.

Morris, the major leagues' hottest pitcher, won his 10th straight game and 18th of the year with a six-hit, 5-0 victory over the Texas Rangers. Shortly thereafter, Hoyt tied him for wins by pitching a four-hit, 12-0 beauty over the Kansas City Royals. Ironically, it was the first shutout for each this season.

"It's that time of year, I guess, where you have to reach down inside yourself and get the job done," said Morris, whose victory pulled the Tigers within three games of the AL East-leading Baltimore Orioles.

Meanwhile, Thursday night's victory was Hoyt's seventh straight and ninth in his last 10 starts.

"He looked like a Hall-of-Famer," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said of Hoyt. "In fact, they all looked like Hall-of-Famers."

Morris, 18-8, struck out five to boost his league-leading total to 194. The 18 victories represent a career high for Morris, who twice has won 17.

Tom Brookens and Chet Lemon backed the Tiger right-hander with home runs.

"I've never had a guy pitch with this magnitude, never," Anderson said after Morris' sparkling performance in Detroit.

Morris feels there's pressure on him every time he takes the mound.

"We had to win tonight," Morris said. "We just had to win. It's been that way the last two times out for me. Even though Chet (Lemon) was the hero with that ninth-inning homer Sunday, I had to keep them in it."

In Chicago, Hoyt, 18-10, got batting support from Carlton Fisk and Tom Paciorek, each of whom hit home runs. The homer by Fisk, a solo shot in the first inning off Bud Black, 8-5, was his 22nd of the year and tied him with Sherm Lollar for the most homers in a season by a White Sox catcher.

A crowd of 30,852 witnessed the blowout. The total season attendance reached 1,671,149, the largest in Chicago White Sox history. The club is only 3,784 from the all-time Chicago attendance record set in 1969 by the National League Cubs.

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 3

In Toronto, Jesse Barfield smashed two home runs and Ernie Whitt and Willie Upshaw each hit one to back the six-hit pitching of Doyle Alexander, lead the Blue Jays over Baltimore and snap the Orioles' winning streak at eight.

Barfield, who has five homers in his last five games, has 19 for the season — 16 at Exhibition Stadium.

Alexander, 2-8, outpitched Jim Palmer, 3-4, for his second consecutive victory. The Toronto right-hander struck out six and walked two in hurling his third complete game of the season.

"In 1980 during winter ball I once hit eight home runs in eight games," Barfield said. "I've always been a streak hitter as far as home runs are concerned."

Twins 11-3, Red Sox 0-9

In Boston, Tom Brunansky drove in six runs with a pair of home runs and Al Williams pitched his first major league shutout with a five-hitter as Minnesota breezed over Boston in the first game of the doubleheader.

Backed by the slugging of Brunansky and Lenny Faedo, who contributed a three-run homer, Williams cruised to his 10th victory, a career high, against 12 losses.

Tony Armas drove in four runs and AL batting leader Wade Boggs knocked in two in powering the Red Sox over the Twins in the second game. Left-hander Bobby Ojeda, 7-7, blanked Minnesota on three singles through six innings, and allowed a run in the seventh before being lifted in the eighth for Mark Clear.

A's 2, Yankees 0

In Oakland, Chris Codiroli pitched a three-hitter, topping the four-hit performance of New York's Dave Righetti, to lead the A's over the Yankees.

Codiroli, 12-9, struck out five and walked four in pitching the second shutout of his rookie season. He preserved the shutout by pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth.

Righetti, 14-5, struck out 10 and walked five. Three of the A's hits came in the third when Righetti gave up soft singles by Tony Phillips and Rickey Henderson and a solid, two-run double by Bill Almon.

Rookies Team Up To Boost Phils Into Share Of First Place In East

By The Associated Press

On a team known for its veterans, a pair of rookies teamed up to boost the Philadelphia Phillies into a share of first place in the National League East.

Al Sanchez, promoted from Triple-A just hours earlier, triggered a three-run fifth inning with a pinch-single to give Tony Gelfi, called up from Double-A the same day, the victory as the Philadelphia Phillies downed the San Francisco Giants 4-2 Thursday night.

"I didn't think about where we were in the race," said Gelfi after the Phillies drew even with Pittsburgh, which lost to Houston 3-0, atop the NL East. "I just concentrated on keeping us in the game."

"I wanted to give them five good innings," said the rookie right-hander, who had not pitched for Reading in two weeks.

With the Phillies trailing 2-1, Sanchez was sent up to pinch hit for Gelfi to start the bottom of the fifth.

Sanchez promptly singled, as did Juan Samuel. Gary Matthews then doubled into the left-field corner to drive in both runners and later scored on Tony Perez's sacrifice fly, making it 4-2.

"We're back where we want to be," said Phillies Manager Paul Owens. "Now we have to get ahead and stay there."

In other NL games, Montreal tripped Los Angeles 8-3, St. Louis bounced Atlanta 8-3 and Chicago beat Cincinnati 3-1.

Matthews' double accounted for his first game-winning RBI of the season. Last year, he was third in the NL with 17.

"I think you can attribute it to a slow start and then not playing regularly as I've been used to doing," Matthews said.

"I feel confident at the plate. If I had hit the same pitch earlier in the season, it would have been a pop-up or a ground ball."

Matthews has raised his average to .273 with 19 hits in his last 55 at-bats. And with other Phillies' veterans having trouble this year, the big outfielder wants to make his presence felt during the stretch drive.

"I hope to pick up the slack this month," he said. "I think I'm seeing the ball well. The double didn't hook, just went straight down the line."

The Philadelphia rally pinned the loss on Atlee Hammaker, 10-8, who lost for the fourth straight time since coming off the disabled list.

After the Phillies went ahead, Willie Hernandez pitched three scoreless innings and Al Holland pitched the ninth for his 17th save.

San Francisco Manager Frank Robinson was not in a talking mood after the game. He only said that his team failed to take advantage of its opportunities.

"We've done a lot of that this year," Robinson said.

Expos 8, Dodgers 3

Montreal jumped on Rick Honeycutt early and dealt the left-hander his first NL defeat.

Gary Carter's RBI single gave the Expos a 1-0 lead in the first inning and Montreal scored three more runs in the third.

Manny Trillo singled home one of the runs, Al Oliver doubled home another and Carter's groundout produced another.

Honeycutt had won his first two games for the Dodgers since being acquired from Texas Aug. 19.

Los Angeles pulled within 4-2 in the sixth against Charlie Lea, 13-8, before reliever Bob James pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam to preserve the lead.

Dusty Baker's 14th homer made it 4-3 in the top of the eighth, but the Expos scored four runs in the bottom of the inning, three of them Baker dropped Carter's two-out fly ball with the bases loaded for a two-base error.

Cardinals 8, Braves 3

Darrell Porter belted three doubles and one of them drove in a run during St. Louis' six-run fourth inning.

The visiting Cardinals jolted Pascual Perez, 13-6, and relievers Rick Camp and Pete Falcone for 14 hits as Atlanta lost for the fourth straight time.

Seven of those hits came during the big inning, which included David Green's two-run single, an RBI double by Dane Iorg and a run-scoring single by Willie McGee.

Doubles by Porter and pinch hitter Bill Lyons accounted for another run in the fifth.

Bob Forsch, 8-11, the third St. Louis pitcher, got the victory.

Astros 3, Pirates 0

Nolan Ryan went seven shutout innings, giving up three hits while striking out 10.

The game was still scoreless when Ryan, 13-6, left in the bottom of the seventh for pinch hitter Kevin Bass, who belted a bases-loaded triple with two outs off Kent Tekulve.

Houston had loaded the bases as reliever Ceciliano Guante, 2-2, gave up a single to Jose Cruz and walked Ray Knight. Rod Scurry came on and walked Denny Walling. Tekulve got two forceouts at the plate before Bass' triple.

Frank DiPino pitched the final two innings for his 14th save.

Pittsburgh starter Lee Tunnell pitched six shutout innings, extending his string to 19.

Cubs 3, Reds 1

Rookie Carmelo Martinez, called up from the minors Aug. 22, hit his fourth home run in 28 major-league at-bats to help Chicago.

Martinez's homer came in the second inning and followed an RBI double by Bill Buckner, who was thrown at trying to stretch it into a triple.

Dick Ruthven, 11-10, allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings. Lee Smith pitched hitless relief over the final 1 2-3 innings, striking out three, for his 23rd save.

Bruce Berenyi, 6-14, took the loss.

Lady Pam Pack Downs Roanoke

ROBERSONVILLE — Washington High School opened its 1983 girls' tennis season with a 9-0 victory over Roanoke High School.

The Lady Pack was devastating in the victory, allowing Roanoke now more than one victory in any set during the singles and only two during the doubles. Overall, Roanoke won only nine games during the afternoon.

Now 1-0, the Pam Pack plays host to Roanoke Rapids on Tuesday. Roanoke, 0-1, is at home to Tarboro on Tuesday.

John Lloyd Posts Biggest Open Upset

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors led the seeded players' parade into the third round of the United States Open and continues to flourish at the National Tennis Center, a setting many players find nightmarish.

Planes from nearby LaGuardia Airport soar noisily overhead. The fans are boisterous, frequently ambivalent to the pleas for silence from the chair umpire. The wind is capricious and Connors, who ignored celebrating his 31st birthday today, loves it all.

He ignored the distractions Thursday and dispatched Sweden's Thomas Hogstedt

6-1, 6-2, 6-3, advancing along with No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina. No. 11 Gene Mayer and No. 14 Eliot Teltscher.

Vilas ousted Tom Cain 6-7, 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2. Mayer and Teltscher also survived five-set tests, Mayer defeating Cristó Steyn of South Africa 3-6, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2 and Teltscher eliminating Sammy Giammalva 6-2, 6-3, 5-7, 4-6, 6-2.

John Lloyd of Great Britain, husband of Chris Evert Lloyd, posted the tournament's biggest upset so far, stunning No. 10 Jose Higuera of Spain 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Among the women, top-ranked Martina Navratilova started another quest for her first-ever Open crown with a 6-1, 6-0 destruction of Argentine Emilse Raponi Longo.

Third-seeded Andrea Jaeger downed Elise Burgin 6-2, 6-3; No. 6 Wendy Turnbull of Australia defeated Sharon Walsh 6-3, 6-3; No. 7 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany beat Peruvian Laura Arraya 6-1, 6-3; No. 9 Andrea Temesvári of Hungary defeated Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 6-3; and No. 12 Kathy Rinaldi defeated Vickie Nelson 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Seeded women losers were No. 11 Barbara Potter, beaten by Lisa Bonder 7-5, 6-7, 7-6, and No. 13 Claudia Kohde of West Germany, who bowed to Bonnie Gadusek 5-7, 6-1, 6-2.

Connors, the defending champion, is seeking a fifth U.S. Open crown. No man in the last half century has won the title more frequently and the ones who did it before him had more serene surroundings in which to play.

The other Grand Slam events, Wimbledon, the French Open and the Australian Open are like libraries compared to the Open. But that's fine with Connors.

"Here you must put up with the conditions," he said. "I just happen to love the atmosphere and I always have."

"Here you have the planes flying over and 20,000 people crowded in animalistic style. The people get you revved up to play good tennis because they have every kind of sport here and they want you to go out there and kill yourself for them. I don't mind giving that to them."

Against Hogstedt, Connors controlled the match.

"I don't think I missed too many balls," he said. "We had a lot of good points and he was hitting the ball hard. If I am playing, moving and concentrating like I am doing now, I cannot complain."

A year ago, Connors slipped through the tournament almost unnoticed while Ivar Lendl of Czechoslovakia and John McEnroe hogged the attention. In the final, he defeated Lendl for the crown.

How does he view the competition this time?

"A lot of guys are playing good tennis," Connors noted. "But there are not a lot of guys who can win this tournament."

He's one of them, though. Navratilova needed just 40 minutes to advance into the second round, losing only one game to Longo. Even though her match was one-sided, she was excited about it.

"This is the U.S. Open, so everything is stimulating including the practices," she said.

And, like Connors, Navratilova likes the frantic pace of the Open, the only major tournament she has failed to win.

"I don't feel jinxed here at all," she said. "I like the city too much to feel jinxed here. I've looked forward to playing here. I don't dread it."

Her victory gave Navratilova a 60-1 record this year and 150-4 over the last two years.

Lloyd, ranked No. 272, pulled the upset of the tournament by beating Higuera. Usually, it's John's wife, Chris, who gets the tennis attention in the family. He's in the also-ran qualifying section of most tournaments.

"I'm tired of playing qualifying," Lloyd said. "I doubted I could win again and even though others believed in me, I did not. I would get through the qualifying, get to the first round and become nervous and lose."

Lloyd dedicated himself to changing that routine with a regimen of hard work, both mental and physical.

"I knew I was capable of winning, but I have known that in matches that I lost. I wanted to go out on the court and play the way I am capable of playing, which is something I have not been doing. I play great in practice and qualifying, but once in the main draw, I wasn't producing the goods. Now I try to relax and I want to have some fun."

Cain seemed in position to pull a similar surprise against Vilas. But he twisted his left ankle in a spill in the fifth set and the match swung to the Argentine star after that.

"I went over to hit a shot and he wrong-footed me," Cain said. "I stopped to change direction and it just went out."

The ankle was taped and play continued after the injured player was assessed a delay-of-game warning penalty. But Cain was tentative and Vilas seized the advantage.

"He picked up his game," said Cain. "It always helps when you see the other guy limping around."

Can 49ers Regain It?

By The Associated Press
The opening bell is about to ring. And if the San Francisco 49ers don't want their rung again in 1983, the offense must regain the touch both it and quarterback Joe Montana had in 1981.

The 49ers have been a mystery ever since Montana ran off the field at the Pontiac Silverdome on Jan. 24, 1982 as the Most Valuable Player of Super Bowl XVI.

Last year they didn't even make the expanded playoffs, although Montana threw just two fewer touchdown passes — 17 — than in the championship season. This year they finished the preseason with a 1-3 record and recorded only four offensive touchdowns.

"The plays were the same, but we'll be re-designing things for the regular season," Montana said in anticipation of Saturday's National Football League opener against the visiting Philadelphia Eagles.

In addition to the Eagles-49ers matchup, there are 12 games Sunday and the first Monday night game, featuring Dallas at Washington.

The Sunday games have Miami at Buffalo, the New York Jets at San Diego, St. Louis at New Orleans, Green Bay at Houston, Atlanta at Chicago, Baltimore at New England, Denver at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Tampa Bay, the Los Angeles Raiders at Cincinnati, the Los Angeles Rams at the New York Giants, Minnesota at Cleveland and Seattle at Kansas City.

The 49ers went through their preseason paces with what Montana calls "pretty basic stuff."

"We don't have any mystery offense. But hopefully, it will be much better than it has been," said Coach Bill Walsh, who has added former Los Angeles Rams' star Wendell Tyler to his backfield arsenal. San Francisco had only one serious preseason injury, safety Carlton Williamson's broken leg. Tight end Russ Francis has recovered from a broken hand, and the new starting fullback, rookie Roger Craig, is sound after missing two weeks of work because of a rib injury.

The Eagles, meanwhile, are under a new regime, following the winter retirement of Dick Vermeil. Coach Marion Campbell, one of the NFL's most respected defensive planners, has been handicapped by injuries to several players, including starting linebackers Reggie Wilkes and Frank LeMaster.

Campbell's offensive emphasis during training camp had been on the running game, despite the absence of injured Wilbert Montgomery. But quarterback Ron Jaworski is poised and ready, following a 3-1 exhibition season.

"But we're still going to mix it up," Jaworski warned. "It doesn't mean we won't throw 30 or 35 times some games. The coaching staff wanted to get toughness back in our offense, and you do that by establishing the run."

Beacham Gains Putt Victory

Lee Beacham won the Thursday Nite Amateur tournament at the Greenville Putt-Putt.

Beacham combined scores of 31 and 34 to finish with a seven under par 65 after two rounds of play.

Darrell Cox finished second after shooting a 69.

The win was Beacham's second this season.

A Review

'Hercules' Is Singular As Source Of Disbelief

Any of you movie fans who harbor a secret desire to see a movie that is outrageously bad should by no means pass up "Hercules," now at the Plitt Theaters. It's a golden opportunity to constantly shake your head in disbelief as unintentionally funny scenes follow each other in plotless succession.

Lewis Coates, writer and director of the film, has faithfully avoided most of the well-known legendary labors of the semi-divine Greek strongman. Instead, he has pouting Hera and her heavenly henchmen and henchwomen — who stand around in an outer space blue room with furnishings that resemble paper rocks and oversize melted candles — concoct various computerized toy monsters to laser beam down to earth in enlarged versions to test ill-fated Hercules.

Without fail, our hero (played in top-grunt style by "The Hulk," Lou Ferrigno) somehow manages to find just the right spot to short-circuit the threatening monstrous metal toys with any old wooden pole that happens to be lying conveniently nearby.

You'd think papa god Zeus would eventually say "enough, Hera, enough," but he merely mumbles bits of profound philosophy — "he will either go to destruction or survive," or sends cheerful encouragement to his earthly son, i.e., "incarnate your mighty energies."

Some observations jotted on-the-spot will serve to give a general idea of the happily erratic proceedings:

•In the beginning, according to scriptwriter Coates, the universe, its moon and planets, came about as the result of Pandora's jar being smashed, with fragments zooming into space, the flying fragments releasing both good and evil forces into the chaos of space. All these years I've been under the delusion Pandora had a box, not a jar.

•I know it's possible Greek gods and goddesses may have included blonde as well as darker specimens — in this Olympian hideaway, however, all the exalted ones are true-blue-platinum blondes.

•One of the goddess handmaidens, endowed on a par with Dolly Parton, has a formidable talent for heaving her endowments twice between each spoken word — an unneary re-enactment of a performance given by young Sophia Loren who perfected this peculiar form of acting some 30 years ago miming the voice of Renata Tibaldi in the film version of "Aida."

•When angered, Hercules

hurls objects that zoom off into outer space to become orbiting debris — except on one memorable occasion. The bear he slew and in snarling anger flung away, settled and took root in the great beyond. That's how we got to have the constellation Ursa Major.

•When Hercules first encounters the sorceress Circe, she's a ragged hag doing a hilarious mimicry of Bette Davis, but after drinking 10 drops of the hero's blood, she achieves (in full camera view) a metamorphosis to become a stunning, willowy seductress — and defies heavenly assignment by taking Hercules' side in his non-ending battles. Incidentally, one stop in their through-the-sky travels takes them to a replica of Easter Island. (I'm still trying to figure that one out.)

•All the time Hercules is racing about on one or another air, earth or underwater misadventure, his true love lady friend, a princess (Sybil Danning) is coming closer and closer to becoming a cinder as she is lingeringly lowered into a pit of phoenix fires on a gold chain, lace and satin Ziegfeld Follies type swing. Her cry of "Hurry! Hurry! Hercules!" when he finally arrives on the scene, is a memorable bit of second grade school play acting.

•The handsome toddler playing the role of the infant Hercules steals the film's best-acting honors in the scene where he strangles two rubber snakes with flashlight eyes — his baby talk, by the way, is the most interesting dialogue in the film.

A few other nice touches — the breastplates worn by Greek soldiers who crop up for instant slaughter from time to time are resplendent works of art reflecting influences obviously derived from Persian, Egyptian, Adam Ant and Liberace sources. Also this — the cardboard set of the Acropolis features at the base of the cliff a row of Egyptian pyramids.

If you're a purist who treasures the traditional Hercules legend, don't let this 1983 film version dismay you. A hero who survived all those long ago labors can certainly survive this bizarre interpretation of his life.

Manufacturers Accept Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the nation's largest manufacturers of special diet food has agreed to provide scientific evidence before advertising that its products are helpful to diabetics.

Estee Corp., of Parsippany, N.J., also agreed to pay $25,000 for diabetes research under the proposed consent agreement with the Federal Trade Commission, agency officials said Wednesday.

The FTC had accused Estee of misleadingly claiming that sweeteners were "useful to diabetics on the advice of a physician." In a prepared statement, company president Lester Rosskam denied that consumers had been misled by product advertising. Rosskam said the company signed the consent decree because it had already complied with its provisions.

Mississippi Executes Killer In Gas Chamber

By DAN EVEN

Associated Press Writer
PARCHMAN, Miss. (AP) — Inhaling deeply as wisps of lethal gas curled from under his chair, Jimmy Lee Gray moaned 11 times and died today with a series of wrenching spasms in Mississippi's death chamber for the rape and murder of a 3-year-old neighbor girl.

"I think he's finally paid his debt," said Sheriff John Ledbetter of Pascagoula, who watched Gray die for the sex slaying of Deressa Jean Scales.

Gray's death shortly after midnight in the steamy silver gas chamber was Mississippi's first execution in 19 years and the eighth in the nation since the U.S. Supreme Court reaffirmed the death penalty in 1976.

Gray kidnapped the toddler from her Pascagoula apartment, then raped and sodomized her and finally suffocated her in a muddy ditch in 1976. The child's body was thrown from a bridge.

"He took the life of my daughter and therefore I did not think he should live," Richard Scales of Dallas, father of the slain child, said today.

After the state executioner, T. Berry Bruce, dropped cyanide crystals into a solution under Gray's black steel chair to form the deadly gas, the 34-year-old former computer programmer inhaled deeply.

His head slumped forward and then pitched backward. Gray moaned 11 times before falling quiet.

At one time, his head struck a metal pole behind the chair with such force that it shook the six-sided gas chamber.

Two doctors witnessing the execution in the maximum security section of the state penitentiary, monitoring his heart through a stethoscope attached to his chest, said Gray died two minutes after gas wafted through the chamber.

But Gray's attorney, Dennis Balsek of Montgomery, Ala., claimed his client was still alive when Balsek and 14 other witnesses were ushered from the execution room eight minutes after the gas first appeared.

"He was alive — he was breathing when they asked me to leave. There's no doubt about it," Balsek asserted. "That's why I was told to leave while he was still breathing, so I couldn't come out here and say he was suffering."

Balsek said Gray suffered "a painful death." "He was in pain," the lawyer said, adding that "He was breathing in as heavy as he could" to speed his own death.

State Corrections Commissioner Morris Thigpen said the official log filed by Bruce, a 64-year-old grandfather paid $250 for his work, showed Gray was dead three minutes after the cyanide crystals were dropped into the solution of water and sulfuric acid.

Gray died 14 hours after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear a new series of appeals, including a claim that Mississippi's use of the gas chamber is cruel and inhuman punishment. Over his seven-year legal fight, Gray's appeals were heard by more than 50 state and federal judges. Three times his case went to the Supreme Court.

At the time of the Scales slaying, Gray was on parole after serving seven years of a 40-year prison term for killing his 16-year-old girlfriend, Elda L. Prince, in Parker, Ariz.

He trained in computer programming while in the Arizona prison and was working at a Pascagoula shipyard for a Chicago-based computer firm at the time of the Scales child's murder.

Gray, who became a born-again Christian while in jail, spent most of his last day conferring with ministers and speaking on the telephone with his mother, father and brother.

His mother had twice appealed to Mississippi authorities to carry out the death sentence but telephoned her son on his final day.

Gray ate a "hearty" last full meal of salad, burritos, tacos, enchiladas, rice, refried beans, strawberries and milk, prison officials said. His ministers later brought him a pizza he had requested.

A small group of demonstrators, about 20 opposed to capital punishment and a half-dozen in favor, kept a vigil near the gates of the 15,000-acre penitentiary grounds as the death drama.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Minor annoyances that are in effect today are apt to be taken more seriously than they actually are, since most persons are inclined to feel sorry for themselves and to have some self pity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get those little odds and ends of jobs done at home enabling you to improve conditions there considerably.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get at all that shopping you have delayed doing of late and then get at home chores that are important.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on how to improve your financial status and handle all business affairs wisely, well. Go out on the town tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You feel that others are deliberately annoying you, but it is only because your nerves are on edge, so get control of yourself.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have been procrastinating about doing certain duties, so get them handled today, particularly if they are of a personal nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do little favors for good friends and add to your present popularity. Concentrate on how to better yourself in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to improve your career work and gain more prestige as well as make more money. Gain a good deal more backing from a higher-up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study into new outlets today that can bring you greater prosperity in the future. Don't change your views because a friend is insistent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show that you are thoughtful and considerate. Avoid a bigwig who could be on the warpath today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Situations arise so that you know how to handle career matters better and also get credit matters straightened out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A talk with co-workers on detailed matters can bring greater co-operation in the future. Take time to improve your health in some way.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan your entertainment well so that you get more enjoyment from it. Don't permit a gossip partner to annoy you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those charming young persons who can early make a plan and then carry through with it ably and get views across to others very well, so give a fine education and there can be much success during this lifetime.

Khadafy Warns Americans Stay Away, Or He Will Bomb Bases

By JOHN WINN MILLER

Associated Press Writer
TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Col. Moammar Khadafy marked the 14th anniversary of his rise to power with a threat to bomb U.S. bases in Europe if the United States ever invades his country.

"If the Americans land and occupy our lands... we will bomb all the American bases in Europe that we can reach," Khadafy, speaking in Arabic, told 15,000 cheering people in the capital's Green Square, which was bedecked with banners and the green flags of the revolution.

In his 90-minute speech Thursday night, the radical Libyan leader did not specifically say he expected a U.S. invasion. He repeatedly has tried to portray the United States as an aggressor in the Middle East.

He also warned that any U.S. ship entering the Gulf of Sidra would be "attacked and destroyed." Libya claims the entire gulf off its Mediterranean coast as its territory, but the United States only recognizes a 12-mile limit.

In 1981, two U.S. Navy fighters shot down two Libyan jets that opened fire on them over the gulf.

Dressed in a white naval uniform, the 40-year-old leader said he had made frequent attempts to reach peace agreement with the United States, but to no avail, and now "discussions with the United States are closed."

The Wall Street Journal had reported that Libyan representatives met with U.S. officials recently to seek "coexistence" with the United States.

Khadafy also lashed out Thursday night at his old enemies Egypt and Sudan, saying they had become slaves of the United States.

The only surprise in Khadafy's address was his decision not to mention the civil war in Chad between forces loyal to President Hissene Habre and former Chadian President Goukouni Oueddei, who is backed by Libyan arms and reportedly by Libyan troops and planes. Libya denies its forces are involved.

Nor did Khadafy attack France — which is aiding Habre with arms and troops — as he has done on several recent occasions. This fueled speculation that Libya and France have worked out an understanding about the conflict in Chad, which has seen no serious warfare since the middle of August.

Goukouni was represented at the Libyan celebration by his second-in-command, Col. Wadal Abdel Kamougue. Goukouni has not been seen in public for more than a month and there have been rumors he was killed in battle.

The speech was preceded by a parade of tanks, troops, rocket launchers and armored personnel carriers that took more than two hours to pass in review. A half dozen military bands, some with bagpipes, kept time for the marchers.

The annual ceremony marked the 1969 coup that Khadafy and 11 other junior officers staged to oust vacationing King Idris.

Then only an obscure signal corps captain, Khadafy has since gained absolute control of this oil-rich North African nation of 3 million people.

After surviving a coup attempt in 1976, Khadafy consolidated his power and renamed Libya the "Socialist People's Arab Jamahiriya." Jamahiriya in Arabic means mass power, and refers to the scores of People's Congresses set up by Khadafy to give Libyans what he calls direct democracy.

Locate Veterans In Employment Here

Don Anders, veterans employment representative in the Greenville Job Service office, said today the office registered 800 veterans for employment during the first 10 months of the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, 1982.

Of this total, 94.5 percent received some type of service in locating employment. There were approximately 500 contacts made with various area employers on behalf of the veterans, 108 received job counseling and 306 were placed in jobs.

Many others were referred to supportive services, tested for available openings or placed in training. Anders said "veterans coming into the Greenville office are given 24-hour referral preference on job openings so it is very important that we have on file their most current address and phone number. Often we are unable to contact qualified applicants, veterans as well as non-veterans, due to an unreported change in address and phone number."

Jim Hannan, manager, stated that the local Job Service office has recently added to its staff a disabled veterans outreach specialist, Lenwood Spells, formerly of Wilson, began work Aug. 15 and will be primarily involved in providing assistance to disabled veterans. Spells is a disabled Vietnam-era veteran and a graduate of Campbell College.

Spells encourages disabled veterans seeking employment to contact the Job Service office, located at 3101 Bismarck Street, telephone 756-2686.

Hearing On Execution Date

Evacuation Due Chlorine Leak

KNIGHTDALE, N.C. (AP) — A firefighter was in satisfactory condition today after leaking chlorine gas at an electrical equipment manufacturing plant sent him to a hospital and forced evacuation of 125 workers. Seven people were slightly injured in the incident. Assistant Knightdale Fire Chief Richard N. Pope, 24, was removed from Rex Hospital's intensive care unit Thursday night.

The chlorine gas leak came late Wednesday from a ruptured line in a pressurized cylinder containing 120 pounds of chlorine in a storage room at the Square D plant, said Knightdale Fire Chief George Gupton.

An Epidemic Of Cheating

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The economic recession is causing an epidemic of cheating which is costing the nation billions of dollars a year, a researcher at North Carolina A&T University says. "Cheating is riding on a recessionary pillar," Mrs. Hattie Liston told the annual convention of the American Psychological Association in Anaheim, Calif. "Cheating has become one of the strongest survival tactics and we are in an era of survival." "Cheating is the most satisfactory survival technique that we have," said Mrs. Liston, a licensed psychologist and teacher at A&T. "When the economy is more stable and we are not under such pressures to obtain our goals, we will again listen to that inner voice which tells us right from wrong." Mrs. Liston said cheating is used the most among the young and the affluent. "Cheating in America is epidemic and big business," said Mrs. Liston, who worked on the cheating project for over two years. "It's a moral dilemma. Many persons play solitaire and even cheat at that." She said cheating includes a broad range of areas from fraudulent telephone calls to extramarital affairs.

A Sure Sign Schools Hot

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — You know it's really hot when even the teachers at parochial schools are wearing shorts.

With temperatures over 90 degrees indoors and out this week, officials at public and private schools in St. Cloud were loosening up the rules to help students and teachers cope with the heat.

Cathedral High School relaxed its dress code for the first time in the Roman Catholic school's 113-year history, allowing students and staff members to wear "appropriate and tasteful summer attire."

"I don't recall it ever being so hot in this school," said Mike Mullin, director of development and a 10-year veteran of the school's brick building. "It was the humane thing to do."

In the Sartell public school district, teachers brought fans from home to cool their classrooms, which are not air conditioned, and lightened up on the workload a bit.

"We've been pretty lenient as far as what the kids wear, and teachers are gearing their programs understanding that the kids are pretty hot," said elementary school Principal Donald Raffanbeul.

But Apollo High School Principal Jerry Larson had a few words of wisdom, noting Minnesota's notoriously bitter cold winters: "Remember, we'd pay a lot of money for a day like this in January, wouldn't we?"

FIELD EXERCISE

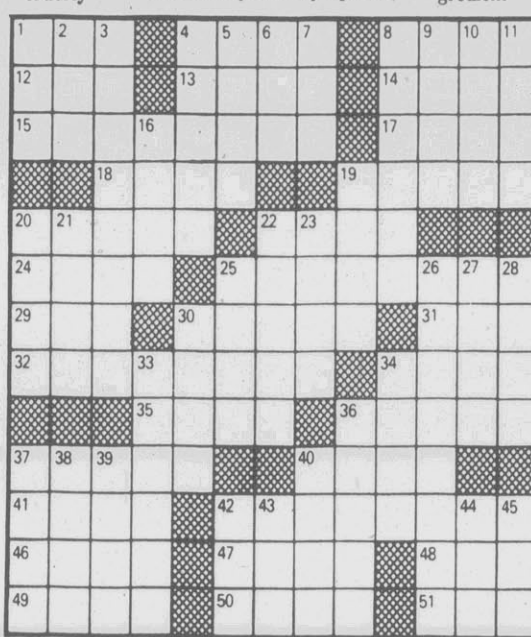

CASTEAU, Belgium (AP) — More than 11,000 troops from eight NATO countries will take part in a field exercise in Denmark from Sept. 4 to Oct. 2 to test Western alliance defenses in Northern Europe.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 9-2

OQL IYGMJMCRCJYDQO C ZHD TYSV-MRD QMG OSHITHRL MR OQL VCSZ.

Yesterday's Cryptogram — THE HOT DOG DEALER IS WELL KNOWN FOR TAKING FRANK STANDS.
Today's Cryptogram clue: T equals B.

The Cryptogram is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.
