'Totally Unacceptable'

Gromyko Fails Satisfy Shultz

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said he got a "totally unacceptable" explanation from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today about the Soviet downing of a South Korean jumbo jetliner. Shultz said the matter was not over.

A meeting between Shultz and Gromyko lasted two hours, one hour longer than scheduled. But Shultz said the added time did not bring a more plausible explanation about the plane which carried 61 Americans and 208 other people to their deaths near Sakhalin island Sept. 1.

"The foreign minister's response to me was even more unsatisfactory," that previous statements, Shultz said. "I find it totally unacceptable.... This is not the end of the matter."

Gromyko told reporters he would have nothing to say for now.

Shultz told reporters after the meeting at the residence of the U.S. ambassador that "this brutal Soviet action has vividly displayed the Soviet Union's lack of concern for the human lives involved, and the preposterous explanation that the Soviets have offered and continue to offer to a disbelieving world has only compounded the problem."

Gromyko said in a speech here Wednesday that the Soviets had every right to shoot the plane down since it was flying over sensitive military installations in Soviet territory and had ignored Soviet warnings.

"Foreign Minister Gromyko's response to me today was even more unsatisfactory than the response he gave in public yesterday," Shultz said.

Gromyko arrived at the residence of U.S. Ambassador Thomas O. Enders shortly after 2 p.m. — 8 a.m. EDT. Both Shultz and Gromyko were accompanied by aides. Their meeting ended at about 4 p.m. — 10 a.m. EDT.

Shultz has accused Gromyko of lying about how it shot down the plane Sept. 1 over the Soviet island of Sakhalin and warned U.S.-Soviet relations will sour without what Shultz called a full and truthful explanation by the Kremlin.

But there was no suggestion in a speech given by Gromyko on Wednesday that Moscow was prepared to change its story that the Korean Air Lines Boeing 747 was on a "special duty for the American authorities" — presumably meaning a spy mission — and that the Soviets had every right to shoot it down.

Gromyko said the jetliner flew over some of "our most important strategic facilities" and refused to obey signals to land.

"Our fighters fulfilled the orders of their base to cut short the flight," Gromyko said in a speech to the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Shultz, who sat in the front row of the conference hall during the speech, said later he was "very disappointed" in the speech.

"Falsehoods have been continuous," he said, "and juggling of the facts is too mild a word for the way in which the Soviet Union has responded to this Korean plane shootdown."

Shultz earlier told reporters he wanted to know from Gromyko, "what is their explanation, why don't they tell the truth?"

He said another meeting scheduled with Gromyko in New York later this month may hinge on whether "anything satisfactory" emerged from the meeting here with his Soviet counterpart.

If not, Shultz said, it is "certainly a possibility" that the New York meeting, to be held in connection with the opening of the U.N. General assembly, may be canceled.

When the Shultz-Gromyko meeting here originally was planned, prior to the shootdown, the major issue was considered arms control. It was also thought likely the two would discuss a possible summit between President Reagan and Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov next year.

Shultz decided to narrow the agenda to discussing the airliner incident and alleged human rights violations by Moscow. Officials indicated a summit meeting in the current climate was all but out of the question.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher told Shultz earlier today that West Germany wants a fast, broad response to the shooting down of the jetliner.

A West German source reported Genscher's views after a one-hour meeting with Shultz. The source would not be identified by name, but he was present at the discussions.

Navy Guns Aid Marines Respond To Druze Fire

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. Navy went into action in Lebanon for the first time today, teaming up with Marine artillery to pound Druze gunners who shelled Beirut airport again in violation of a cease-fire pledge.

"We hit the target that we aimed at," Warrant Officer Charles Rowe said after the Marines joined the frigate Bowen in blasting militia positions southeast of the airport that fired on the Marine compound.

Rowe said the Navy and Marines retaliated at 12:45 p.m. — 6:45 a.m. EDT — as the airport was under renewed shelling.

He said the Bowen fired four rounds of high explosives from its five-inch guns and the Marines fired six rounds from their 155mm battery.

On Wednesday, U.S. and French jet fighters streaked over Lebanon for the first time in a warning to Druze gunners who killed at least two French peacekeeping troops and wounded a Marine. Although officials said two French soldiers were killed, reliable sources said three died Wednesday.

The hills southeast of the airport are controlled by leftist Druze militiamen trying to stop the Lebanese army from moving into the Aley and Chouf Mountains from a highway intersection on the airport's southeastern edge.

At least three shells slammed into the airport runway about 200 yards from two American generals visiting the 1,200-man Marine contingent today. One shell blew up the airport's fuel station, state radio reported.

The radio also said Lebanese army positions at the Khalde highway intersection and neighboring hills just a mile southeast of the Marine zone came under heavy shelling.

Lt. Gen. John H. Miller, commander of the Fleet Marine Force Atlantic, based at Norfolk, Va., and Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gray, commander of the 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, N.C., began their inspection visit a few hours before the shelling forced them and the Marines to flee for foxholes and bunkers. No casualties were reported.

The shelling came on the fifth day of a civil war between Druze and Christian militias in nearby mountains, which police say has left 353 dead and 875 wounded since an Israeli pullback from the area on Sunday.

Today's barrage hit the airport only hours after Druze militiamen pledged to stop shooting at multinational peacekeeping forces in Beirut following reported threats of retaliation by the United States, France and Italy.

A statement from leftist Druze opposition leader Walid Jumblatt's Syrian-backed Progressive Socialist Party said it would guarantee that no "accident or erroneous shooting at the multinational positions will occur."

"Our forces will also refrain from directing any fire against areas held by the multinational forces even if the Lebanese army is stationed in these areas," said the statement, broadcast by Syria's state radio.

The statement followed two days of shelling barrages. Officials said two Marines were killed Tuesday and two French peacekeepers Wednesday. Reliable sources said one of five French troops wounded Wednesday later died. But this was not officially confirmed.

Family Flew

MISTLEBACH, Austria (AP) — A famous Czechoslovak cyclist, his wife and their two children flew into Austria early today in a makeshift hot air balloon they secretly built out of raincoats and launched at night, police said.

Police at this northeastern town refused to provide full identification of the rest of the family but said the husband was Robert Hutyr, 38. He, his 36-year-old wife and their children have asked for asylum, police said.

Hutyr, well known in Czechoslovakia as a former member of its national cycling team, brought his bicycle with him, said a Mistlebach police official.

"They built their balloon at home and started in the dead of night just on the other side of the border," the official said in a telephone interview.

The official, who declined to give his name, said the balloon landed near Drasenhofen, a border village in northeast Austria. "They got out and walked into town, where police were notified," he said.

The official, quoting descriptions from Drasenhofen police, said "the balloon was made of raincoats sown together and was propelled with lit propane," from a canister fastened underneath.

"Czech border guards saw the flame about two and a half kilometers (1.6 miles) above them and fired flares but apparently couldn't make the thing out," he said. The flight lasted about 50 minutes.

The duty policeman at Drasenhofen said the family stood "on a platform surrounded by a steel railing." The skin of the balloon is "sewed together from patches of blue and gray nylon-like material."

The family has "left for Vienna, where they have friends," he said.

Russians Recover Debris From Plane

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union said today it recovered debris and documents from the South Korean jumbo jet it shot down and will deliver them to Japan "in the near future," Japanese officials said.

Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Pavlov, in a meeting with Yoshiya Kato, head of the Foreign Ministry's European and Oceanic Affairs Bureau, also said the Soviets will report on search operations off Moneron Island, in accordance with "international practices," the officials said.

They said Pavlov declined to identify the documents and materials and also did not say when they will be delivered or when the report would be made.

As of Tuesday, the Soviets had found no survivors or bodies, Pavlov was quoted as saying. The plane, shot down Sept. 1, carried 269 people, including 61 Americans.

On Japan's requests to enter Soviet waters to look for the wreckage, Pavlov said, "The Soviets consider it unnecessary at this moment because nothing has been found in the Soviet waters."

"If the search in Soviet waters becomes necessary, we will study it again," Pavlov was quoted as saying.

In past meetings, the Soviets have ignored the Japanese requests.

The Soviets have not pinpointed the crash site, but they found debris in four areas on the high seas northeast of Moneron, Pavlov said. Moneron is about 30 miles west of the Soviet island of Sakhalin, site of major defense installations.

Pavlov pinpointed the four sites where debris was found as 46.15 degrees north and 140.15 east, 47.10 north and 140.15 east, 47.10 north and 141.35 east and 46.35 north and 141.25 east.

At least 55 Soviet vessels were sighted today in waters where the South Korean airliner was believed to have crashed, officials of the Japanese Maritime Safety Agency said.

Among the Soviet vessels was an intelligence ship that threw two cables from its stern into the sea, the agency officials said.

The Soviet intelligence ship, the 720-ton Okean, was operating in waters 18 miles northwest of Moneron, said the officials, speaking by telephone from their regional office at coastal Wakkana, Japan's northernmost city.

The officials said an MSA patrol boat, the Rishiri, saw 43 Soviet fishing boats drifting near the Okean. Another 11 Soviet guardships and fishing vessels were massed at a point a mile closer to Moneron, they said.

The officials said 13 Japanese patrol boats were operating this morning in a wide area outside Soviet waters.

Bombs Dropped On Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Two small planes dropped bombs on part of Managua and its airport today, causing heavy damage but no casualties, army spokesman Commander Roberto Sanchez said.

He said gunners at the airport hit one of the planes and that it crashed near the control tower, killing the two pilots.

He said damage to the airport was heavy.

Sanchez said the area around the home of Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto also was bombed, but that he had no further details.

Greece, U. S. OK Agreement

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — U.S. bases will operate in Greece for another five years under a defense assistance pact to be signed today by American and Greek officials, a government spokesman said.

The accord was initiated in July after eight months of negotiations, spokesman Dimitria Maroudas said Wednesday.

Maroudas said the agreement would be signed this afternoon by Deputy Foreign Minister Yannis Kapsis, and U.S. Charge d'Affaires Alan D. Berling on behalf of Ambassador Montague Stearns, who is abroad.

Body Of Aquino's Killer Was Riddled By Bullets

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Security men riddled the alleged killer of Filipino opposition leader Benigno Aquino with 16 bullets shortly after the airport assassination, a government physician said today.

Nieto Salvador, a National Bureau of Investigation doctor who examined the corpse of Rolando Galman, estimated more than three men fired at the alleged assassin, described by the government as a "gun for hire."

Salvador testified before a special commission created by President Ferdinand E. Marcos to probe the Aug. 21 slaying of his chief political rival who had then just returned from three years of voluntary U.S. exile.

The Supreme Court gave the five-man commission headed by Chief Justice Enrique Fernando 10 days to answer opposition petitions questioning the panel's impartiality and demanding Fernando's disqualification.

About 60 students picketed the home of Fernando this morning, demanding he step down in favor of "others who have the people's trust."

In Hong Kong, Asiaweek magazine today reported the alleged assassin spoke to his girlfriend of "a heavy mission" a night or two before the Aquino killing.

Ana "Baby" Oliva was quoted as saying the conversation took place at a motel near Manila's airport. The English-language magazine quoted Ms. Oliva as telling the source that five "mysterious armed men" visited Galman at the motel for three successive nights before the day of the assassination.

Ms. Oliva and a sister, Catherine, apparently were picked up by military men on Sept. 4 from a supper club in Manila where they worked, and have not been seen since, the magazine said.

Aquino's family and many government opponents fear the commission, composed of men considered to be Marcos loyalists, will uphold Marcos' contention that his government had no hand in the assassination. Marcos had described the assassination as the work of a professional killer or of communist subversives.

Today, the government's television station broadcast a two-day-old film clip in which Marcos defended the commission as "the best thing that could be done."

Addressing businessmen at the presidential palace Tuesday, Marcos said the commission will "exert all efforts in order to attain the truth."

"There is no alternative that is more just, fair and certainly effective," Marcos said.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Ben Franklin didn't know it, but he wrote my fashion horoscope: "Be not the first to try the new nor the last to discard the old."

In chicness, I'm somewhere between Bette Midler and Minnie Pearl. I like it that way. I have a horror of walking into a room and having conversation stop. Unlike most women, I want to look like everyone else. The condition has a name. It's called Acute Insecurity.

I had a friend once who went to a formal dinner party dressed in a nightgown slit up to her knees, sans bra. If I had worn it, someone would have yawned and said, "I had no idea it was so late. Just toddle off and I'll put out the lights as soon as I finish my drink."

Some women dress from their husband's closets and are considered pace-setters. I read where a woman in Chicago wears her husband's boxer shorts to cocktail parties and picnics. I tried wearing my husband's shorts one day behind a locked bathroom door and looked like the runner bringing up the rear in "Chariots of Fire."

I've always admired the woman who is the only one in the room wearing a hat with a veil. Have you any idea the uncommon amount of guts it takes to sieve chip dip through a veil strainer?

Face it, I'm a fashion wimp. In 50 years of dressing myself, I have never taken a firm stand on hemlines. The ones in my closet go from Marlo

Thomas in "That Girl" to Diane Keaton in "Annie Hall." Every year I say I am not going to be dictated to by a group of couturiers. But then, every year I promise myself to learn how to pronounce "couturiers" and I've never done that either.

If being conservative has any redeeming advantages, it's that we never throw away anything; ergo, we are always on the fringe of style. Remember that big T-shirt I bought the year we went camping that faded when I washed it with the sleeping bags? All I have to do is rip the shoulder and I'd look like the lead in "Flashdance."

But I can't do it. And I've got all the apparel I saw recently on a girl at the shopping center. She had her jeans and a pair of leg warmers that went all the way up to her hips stuffed into her boots. I could do that. It's just that I don't know where I'd put my legs.

On the few occasions I've dressed a little extreme, I worry about it. Like a couple of Sundays ago, I put a large fake flower in my lapel and wore a wide polka-dotted belt around my skirt. I said to my husband, "This isn't too much, is it?"

He shook his head. "I wouldn't worry. That woman over there is wearing the same outfit."

I was worried. The woman was Sister Monica.

Cigar Smoker

NEW YORK (AP) — Cigar users can show consideration for others by observing several simple rules.

The Cigar Association of America says:

— Do not smoke in a confined space such as an elevator (where it is illegal to smoke) or an anteroom.

— Use a fresh cigar to avoid any stale aroma.

— To make the cigar burn evenly, rotate it slowly when lighting it.

— A half inch or so of ash at the end of the cigar is a signal to flick it into an ash tray.

Dear Abby

Niece Feels Defeated By Write-In Campaign

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe that I, a 51-year-old successful businesswoman, am actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter, but here I am.

I have an 87-year-old widowed aunt living in an exclusive senior citizens residence. She is educated, well-traveled and "has all her marbles."

The problem: She loves to write letters, so every week I get a letter that runs anywhere from 10 to 15 pages! If I don't answer immediately, she writes and asks if I'm "all right," or if I am angry with her. Lately I've been writing postcards because I don't have time to write long letters.

Today I received a letter from my aunt telling me how "hurt" she is that I'm down to postcards. She also scolded me for not answering all her questions. (Abby, she asks dozens in every letter!)

I know she's my aunt, I know she's old, and I know she's alone. So why do I feel frustration, guilt and anger at this moment? And what should I do about it?

READY TO SCREAM

DEAR READY: You feel frustration, guilt and anger because you would like to say, "Auntie, dear, I'm sorry I don't have time to write long letters, but I think I'm doing well to write a postcard every week. What's more, when you complain, you make me feel guilty."

It would be healthier if you could tell her this. But if you can't, put it on a postcard — with my stamp of approval.

DEAR ABBY: My 3-year-old grandson loves to play with the bare feet of women and girls. He even tries to play with mine. The moment he sees a female's bare feet, he persists in fondling, stroking and hugging them. He puts his face between the feet if possible and carries on as though he is in ecstasy. He gets very excited and his face becomes flushed, which makes me wonder if he could be getting sexually excited by feet.

Do you suppose the boy has some kind of foot fetish? Should this be ignored, discouraged or what?

CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: It's possible that the boy has a foot fetish. If he has, there is no reason to be concerned unless he has other behavioral problems. For the moment, ignore his fondness for feet, but if he shows other signs of unusual behavior, your pediatrician can recommend the appropriate therapist.

DEAR ABBY: My husband hates for me to look at him. He says it makes him very uncomfortable, and he resents it. If I look at him at the dinner table, he will pick up his plate and go into the bedroom to finish eating in private. If I look at him in bed, he pulls the covers over his head. And if I look at him while he's driving the car (God forbid), he gets so upset he nearly drives off the road.

I keep telling him that his behavior is unusual, but he claims that I'm the weird one. Frankly, if he looked at me, I would feel honored.

What do you think?

P. IN THE BRONX

DEAR P.: I think your husband is overreacting to an alarming degree. Be on the alert for other signs of strange behavior. And do not hesitate to inform his doctor. This could be a symptom of a physical disorder.

Tragedy In Blue

Special designing costs. Everyone knows that. But the Washington Post recently reported on a little item that really came high.

It seems that an Air Force sergeant out in Oklahoma needed two of those little plastic caps used on chair or stool legs to keep them level and to prevent slippage. The sergeant put in his routine order, got confirmation and then saw the price tag on those two little pieces of plastic — $1,118.26, each. Anything except the 26 cents is mostly profit, according to the newspaper.

Yet the Air Force had not objected as the cost of the stool caps skyrocketed over a two-year period. The Boeing Co., which acknowledged to the newspaper that the cost "seemed high," had a year ago explained that the price was really necessary to assure a reasonable profit.

The Defense Department bought the explanation.

It's bad enough that the government, when it wanted those little caps, was happily paying way too much, but it's downright tragic when you find out what the caps were designed for.

They go on a stool in the Air Force's $91 million AWACS flying radar machine. If the navigator wants to check his bearings visually, he stands on the stool to look through a periscope to look at his sextant — which the Air Force doesn't use any more.

Dream Of The Day

The N.C. Department of Transporation has set the second phase of the 1983 Clean-Up Litter campaign for Sept. 19-24.

Sept. 24 will be Youth Involvement Day.

Last spring DOT and volunteer groups picked up about 2,734 truckloads of garbage from 5,600 miles of highways. DOT Secretary W.R. Roberson Jr. said, "We are pleased with the overwhelming results of the spring litter pick up. From our past experience, we know that by working together, we can accomplish just about anything we focus our combined energies on."

The spring highway cleanup was notable and we hope the fall project will be just as effective.

As we reflect though, we must consider: Wouldn't it be nice if the slobs who throw all that garbage on the highway right-of-ways could be trained to take it to the nearest refuse collection point?

Female Candidates

WASHINGTON AP — Sen Richard Lugar, R-Ind., says he is talking to a lot of Republican women who want to run for seats in the Senate, and thinks some of them have a good chance, despite the celebrated gender gap.

"One of the ways we think we may make the most headway in this particular year against Democratic incumbents is by identification and recruitment of superior women candidates," Lugar said in an interview.

The second-term senator is chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, which has the job of seeing that the Republicans retain control of the Senate, which they won in 1980 and kept in 1982.

With more GOP seats than Democratic seats at stake next year, the Democrats think they have a much stronger chance than they did last year to regain the dominance they held for 25 years.

Lugar says he doesn't share this view, but he isn't taking any chances.

In an article published two weeks ago in The Washington Post and other newspapers, he said he is prepared to commit the committee to the maximum legal financial support for any Republican woman who is nominated next year, "regardless how Democratic the state or how apparently formidable the Democratic candidate."

In addition, he said, "I am prepared to consider direct assistance to women candidates even prior to their nomination, a sharp departure from our usual policy."

Since the article appeared, said Lugar, "I have got letters from women all over the country" and "have spent some time right here in my office visiting" with women who had read it.

"Every woman candidate I have seen is not as promising as every other one," he said.

Among the prospective candidates who Lugar does think are promising are Rep. Claudine Schneider in Rhode Island and Loret Ruppe, director of the Peace Corps, in Michigan. He says the committee is encouraging both of them, but neither has made a decision.

Ms. Schneider would run for the seat of veteran Democratic Sen. Claiborne Pell, and Lugar said she has so much support among women that she "has developed toward the incumbent a gender gap that is equally as formidable as any the president might be facing."

Ms. Ruppe would be seeking to capture the seat of Democratic Sen. Carl Levin, who won his first term in 1978 with 52 percent of the vote. Lugar said she "is not necessarily going to be a candidate just because we are visiting her," but added that she "does much the same sort of thing toward the race in Michigan that Claudine may do for the race in Rhode Island."

"We are visiting with other women who have not agreed to be surfaced until they really have much more chance to think through whether they want to proceed," Lugar said.

"There is at least one other instance where we have a potential female candidate who could win a Senate race if she decides she wants to do it. In at least two other instances, we have women who would be outstanding challengers. They would start behind, but have a pretty good shot if things go reasonably well for the Republican party as a whole in the election."

WASHINGTON — Erwin N. Griswold, a gentleman of uncommon good sense, has favored us with some of that good sense in the current issue of Judicature, the monthly journal of the American Judicature Society. His topic is the workload of the U.S. Supreme Court, which in recent years has become intolerably heavy. His proposal is to lighten the load not at the top, but at the bottom.

Specifically, Griswold would cut down on the number of cases that are filed in U.S. District Courts. The effect would be to cut down on the number of cases reaching the federal circuit courts in appeal. As night follows day, the number of cases thus pursued to the Supreme Court also would diminish.

At 79, Griswold still answers most readily to the title of "dean," which he held for more than 20 years at Harvard Law School. He was later solicitor general. His credentials as dean of the American bar cannot readily be challenged, and his ideas on changes in federal jurisdiction merit the attention of lawyers and non-lawyers alike.

His first proposal is to abolish the antiquated rule of federal jurisdiction based upon diversity of citizenship. A hundred years ago, perhaps it made sense for a citizen of Ohio to sue a citizen of Kentucky in a U.S. District Court. Today's facilities for communication and transportation make the rule "an anachronism." Its repeal would reduce the volume of District Court cases by 25 percent.

Griswold also would repeal the Federal Employers Liability Act, affecting railroad workers, and the Jones Act, affecting seamen. As he notes, this was done long ago for longshoremen and harbor workers, who now are covered by a uniform law on workmen's compensation. "There is no respectable reason why railroad workers and seamen should be treated differently."

Yet another sensible suggestion would be to create additional appellate courts of topical jurisdiction. We already have several such courts, for example, the U.S. Court of Military Appeals, the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals (for cases in the field of energy), and the reconstituted U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, which now has exclusive jurisdiction over cases of patent law, small claims, customs and matters of international trade. Griswold suggests similar courts in such areas as tax law, labor law, antitrust law and certain areas of interstate commerce.

Griswold further endorses the proposal of Chief Justice Burger for a five-year experiment with a new national appellate court. This court, to be made up of panels of circuit judges, would exist primarily to resolve conflicts among the circuits. "I see nothing to be lost by this experiment," says Griswold, "and much to be gained."

All this makes good sense, and coming from a gentleman of Griswold's eminence, it comes from the horse's mouth. He says some other things — critical things — that pack a wallop. The Supreme Court, he says, has brought some of its problems on itself.

The high court has a tendency to back away from the kind of firm guidelines that truly would inform the lower bench, the bar and the public of what the law is. In one 1960 case, instead of laying down a clear rule on a recurring question of tax law, four members of the court feebly concluded that decisions in such cases "must be based ultimately on the application of the fact-finding tribunal's experience with the mainsprings of human conduct to the totality of the facts of each case." That was Justice Brennan's contribution to clarity.)

If the Supreme Court would concentrate upon delivering opinions that are "clear and definitive," everyone would be helped. Alas, says the dean, for a number of reasons, "decisions of the Supreme Court are often not clear and definitive." Many of the court's opinions "are much too long." Every term brings "too many opinions." (This past term saw 151 signed opinions, up from 141 in 1981-82 and 123 in 1980-81.) One result is that "very frequently no rationale can be divined for what the court has done."

As I say, it wouldn't count for much for me to say these things. I've been saying them for years. But Griswold is like the brokerage firm with the clever commercials: When Dean Griswold speaks, everybody ought to listen.

Can A Charlotte Candidate Win

ROCKY MOUNT — To listen to Eddie Knox talk, you'd think the largest city in North Carolina was named "Our City." Knox, mayor of Charlotte and a Democratic gubernatorial candidate for governor, says he's proud to be from the Queen City, it's just that he's not too eager to utter its name on the campaign trail.

An old political axiom in this state holds that no one from Charlotte can be elected governor. Folks in the state's rural corners won't stand for some city slicker running state government. Charlotte already gets more than its fair share, they complain. The argument is made convincing when you consider that no one born in Mecklenburg County has ever been elected governor and the last governor to list Mecklenburg as home was Cameron Morrison who was elected in 1920.

In the early days of the 1984 gubernatorial race, Knox is searching for a way to handle the Charlotte question. On a recent swing through eastern North Carolina, Knox went to pains to avoid even the mention of the city. At a Nash County meeting of Democrats, for example, Knox kept referring to the work he'd done in "our city" or "our community."

He opens his larger campaign events with a 17-minute film that stresses his rural upbringing on a North Mecklenburg farm. In interviews with reporters, he goes out of his way to mention his agriculture degree from N.C. State University. (He's a lawyer by profession.) The Democrat who introduces him at the Nash County event explains that Knox is a "real farmboy."

During an end of day strategy session in his Rocky Mount motel room, Knox concedes that he's "reticent" to mention the name of his hometown. "The political types tell me, 'Don't say that, it'll kill you.'"

But Walter DeVries of Wrightsville Beach, his political consultant and pollster, thinks that approach is a little stupid. He's conducted viewer response tests which show no prejudice against Charlotte among voters in New Hanover County and he thinks the results would hold true for most of the state. If Knox refuses to mention the name of his hometown, DeVries argues in the strategy session, he fails to use the best tool in his portfolio — that is, his experience as mayor of a major city.

"You're the only one in this race who's run a government," DeVries says. Knox should be stressing the point that if he can run Charlotte he ought to be able to run the state. Coincidentally, the next day, a reporter for a Martin County newspaper said exactly the same thing to Knox.

Will Charlotte hurt Eddie Knox? Along the campaign trail, several Knox supporters said he'll have to campaign heavily in the east to overcome the Charlotte prejudice. A couple of tobacco farmers in Ahsokkie, sitting over a pile of leaf, said it didn't make any difference to them. "If he comes in here twice like he's done and he's chewing tobacco, no, it ain't gonna hurt him," one said. (Knox chews only in private but breaks that rule when he's campaigning in tobacco country.)

Fred Turnage, mayor of Rocky Mount and an old law school buddy from Wake Forest, says "there was a time, about five years ago, when I thought Eddie Knox was the one (potential gubernatorial candidate) from Charlotte who could relate to the people of eastern North Carolina. Now, I'm not so sure. Eddie is a country boy but he seems to have lost the naturalness of it. Now his country seems put on."

Turnage isn't sure the change is significant. Maybe it's just something an old friend notices. For Knox, regaining the "naturalness" of his country might be essential to making the move from Charlotte to Raleigh.

Strength For Today

Most religious systems involve a certain amount of formalism. There is a formalism of belief which we call creeds. There is a formalism of church law which we call policy. There is a formalism in the conduct of religious services which we call worship.

Practically every religion in the world involves formalism. Even a conscious desire to avoid formalism can become implicitly a kind of formality itself.

This formalism is necessary but it is also dangerous. People may come to the place where they simply go through certain motions and believe that everything has been fixed up between themselves and God.

The trouble about formalism is that it quickly hardens and becomes dead as a stone. And under these circumstances it performs a function quite the opposite of what was originally intended. It becomes the devil's device for destroying the worth and power of true religion.

Lid Remains Tight On White House Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House probe into how Carter White House documents reached President Reagan's 1980 campaign is a tight ship in a town of leaks.

"I find it very refreshing," says Joe Grimes, the public relations specialist serving as the spokesman for the investigation by the human relations subcommittee of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Had Grimes and other subcommittee aides been so inclined, the probe could have commanded media attention during the August news drought, when Congress recesses and much of Washington's officialdom vacations.

Documents slipped to an anxious newspaper, tidbits whispered to a TV network — traditional Washington gambits for making headlines — would have been like a soaking rain in an Iowa cornfield.

Instead, the lid has remained tightly in place, largely the result of an edict issued by the panel's chairman, Rep. Donald Albosta, D-Mich., shortly after the investigation began in mid June: leakers will be fired.

"I much prefer it with the lid on," said Albosta's special counsel, James Hamilton, a Washington lawyer who saw a sieve-like investigation close up a decade ago when he was assistant chief counsel for the Senate's Watergate committee.

"The leaks during Watergate were terrible," Hamilton said. "We had people who were inclined to talk, both staff and senators. ... Albosta has taken a very strong stand about leaks, and people believe him."

Albosta has hardly been silent. At one point, the chairman described hearsay in which investigators were led to believe there might be a sex twist to the mystery. But Albosta went on the record; there was no leak involved.

Hamilton said, referring to documents uncovered by the FBI in its separate probe of the 1980 case.

Green says that by keeping its findings secret, the subcommittee is avoiding criticism that could focus debate on the panel's methods and lead to charges the probe was being used as a political publicity vehicle.

Secrecy also keeps people guessing about what the panel's eight full-time investigators may be discovering and adds "spontaneity" to interviews, according to Green.

"You want to be able to pull out a document and see a person's chin drop," he said. "You can't do it when the document's been printed in The Washington Post."

The panel's probe has centered on reviewing documents collected from Reagan campaign files and interviews — between 50 and 60 to date — with Carter White House and Reagan campaign personnel, Green said. "We've been concentrating mostly on low- to mid-level people," he said. "We've been building the groundwork to get to the upper-level people. We don't want to go to those upper-level people until we're armed with everything."

Green said the probe lacks the type of know-all, tell-all witness that the Watergate committee had in White House counsel John Dean. But, Green added, "people we talk to refer us to other people. We are getting cooperation from most everyone. They are giving us pieces of the puzzle."

He said Albosta has not decided whether to release the results of the investigation before the subcommittee holds public hearings, now set tentatively for mid-October.

Albosta, at his only probe-related press conference in August, said the subcommittee is making progress but gave no details.

PERSHING FIRED — The U.S. Army successfully test-fired a Pershing II missile Wednesday from Cape Canaveral. The launch marked the last scheduled test flight of the two-stage rocket from Florida. The army reported the missile reached an altitude of 200 miles and traveled 980 miles downrange. The Pershing II is scheduled to be ready for deployment in western Europe in December. warplanes roaring over Beirut on Wednesday for the first time since the multinational force deployed in the Lebanese capital a year ago.

The government requested the force to help it assert control over areas long held by private armies and militias.

French Defense Minister Charles Hernu said Wednesday in Paris that artillery positions of Druse militiamen in the central Lebanese mountains would be destroyed unless the gunners did not stop firing at the headquarters of the French contingent in Beirut.

In Damascus, U.S. presidential envoy Robert C. McFarlane asked the Syrian government Wednesday to convey a warning to the Druse command that U.S. warships and jets would blast any positions firing at Marine positions at Beirut international airport, reliable sources in the Syrian capital said.

The sources said the Italian government served a similar warning on the Druse command through diplomatic channels.

McFarlane held a 100-minute conference with Syrian President Hafez Assad and his foreign minister, Abdul-Halim Khaddam, in Damascus on Wednesday and then had a late night meeting with Jumblatt.

The sources said it was after this meeting that Jumblatt issued the order to Druse forces to refrain from firing at multinational peacekeepers.

The Druse have been fighting the Christian Phalange militia forces and the Christian-dominated Lebanese army since Israeli troops pulled back from the central mountains on Sunday. Fighting flared as the rival groups attempted to seize the vacated territory.

The Israelis invaded Lebanon in June 1982 with the stated aim of smashing Palestinian guerrilla bases.

Pleads Guilty To Poisoning Coffee

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A former technician at a pharmaceutical research firm has pleaded guilty to two counts of attempting to poison co-workers with chemically laced coffee.

The guilty pleas came Wednesday just minutes before the man's case was to be assigned to trial.

Superior Court Judge Thomas G. Duffy set sentencing for Oct. 31 for Joseph William Bohn, 29, of San Diego.

He faces up to a five-year prison term for the poisoning of Peter Cohen, a former employee, in August 1982 and administrative assistant Lucy Gunnill on March 7, 1983.

Three other counts of administering a poison were dismissed by Duffy.

Bohn was arrested in the spring on charges of lacing coffee in the Quidel Corp. lunchroom with acrylamide, a colorless and odorless chemical used in biological experiments.

The Gloves A 'Symbol'

NEW YORK (AP) — Artist Mierle Laderman Ukeles' latest project isn't garbage — but it's been close to it.

Ms. Ukeles is artist-in-residence for the city Sanitation Department and she's gathering gloves used by sanitation workers, to be assembled in some type of art form for a "Touch Sanitation Show." She plans to hold the show in May at the Marine Transfer Station — where the city's garbage is loaded onto barges.

"The gloves serve a vital purpose in protecting the men," said Ms. Ukeles on Tuesday. Garbage collectors are being asked to drop their gloves into 70 bright orange litter baskets in sanitation garages around the city.

Two years ago, the artist shook hands with every sanitation worker in the city, and the show will feature photos and videotapes of the handshakings, with recordings of garbage trucks in the background, she said.

Condo Project By Developer

Groundbreaking ceremonies for a $6 million ski resort in West Virginia, which will include a condominium project developed by Greenville resident Kevin Price of S. K. Price and Associates, were held recently.

Joining Price for the activities launching the construction of WinterPlace Resort and phase one of WinterHaven condominiums were West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller and the staff of Highland Ski Area Ltd., the resort developers. The resort is located on Interstate 77, just below Beckley, W. Va.

The resort is scheduled for opening Dec. 1 with the first season of operation offering 16 slopes with one over a mile-long course, three triple-chair lifts, full snow-making capacities, night skiing, a large reservoir and luxury condominiums.

On a Lonesome Porch

by

Ovid Williams Pierce

Recently honored at the North Carolina's Writers Conference. Noted novelist and former writer in residence at ECU.

Orville Prescott - The New York Times

"For sheer suggestiveness of style and limpid beauty of expression On a Lonesome Porch is remarkable. Each sentence, almost each word, of its tightly compressed and exquisitely wrought prose is charged with emotional tension. There is a meaning in every phrase and idea here beyond the explicit meaning of the words. Rarely do intangibles of thought and feeling seem to fill the very atmosphere of a book with so rich a fragrance. Without being a bit fancy, On a Lonesome Porch comes as close to true poetry as prose ever does."

Pupil Magazine Sale To Supply Needs Of School

Eight and ninth grade students at Aycock Junior High will attempt to raise $10,000 during the school's annual magazine sale beginning Friday and continuing through Sept. 26. Each grade will have a different offering of magazines for the public to choose from. "Schools don't have enough money. That's why there are magazine sales," observed social studies teacher Frank O'Neal. He and Brenda Jones, mathematics teacher, assisted by parent volunteers and teacher colleagues, will share responsibilities for Aycock's primary fund raising event.

Last school year, $7,000 in magazine sale earnings helped Aycock purchase a computer, a riding lawn mower, a floor polisher, herbicide sprayer, edger and courtyard cement — all items for which there were no budget funds allocated. Budget cuts in city school maintenance funds made it necessary to raise funds for needed items.

"Our priority last year was to get the place looking good and get it in good repair," principal Kay Whitehurst explained. "Our priority this year is to get supplementary materials that we need for our new curriculum in social studies. Beyond that, our goal is to replace carpeting in the library."

Part of North Carolina's Pursuit of Excellence campaign, the ninth grade study of economics, laws and government requires two textbooks in addition to supplementary materials; only one book is state funded. These texts will be shared and exchanged at mid-year.

Further improvements to the recently enclosed library include the re-upholstering of furniture. A commercial carpet sweeper and rug shampooer are other school needs.

During the 16-day magazine sale campaign, students will be offering subscription opportunities for records, tapes, books, and a wide variety of magazines.

Present subscriptions can be renewed through the campaign.

Students participating in the sales campaign will identify themselves by name and grade while calling on the public.

Rules Will Forbid Tobacco Holdings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regulations to require schools, churches and other non-producers to sell or forfeit their burley or flue-cured tobacco allotments and quotas will be imposed by Dec. 1, the Agriculture Department says.

The new rules are the result of legislation recently passed by Congress. Officials said the regulations will apply to certain "persons" but not individuals.

As defined, "persons" include governmental entities, public utilities, educational institutions, religious institutions, partnerships, corporations, estates and trusts who are not significantly involved in the management or use of land for the production of burley or flue-cured tobacco.

Everett Rank, head of USDA's Agricultural

Stabilization and Conservation Service, said that "the requirement to sell or forfeit does not apply to an individual who owns a farm having a burley or flue-cured acreage allotment and marketing quota."

Persons who must sell their allotments and quotas to prevent forfeiture must do so by Dec. 1, 1983, or Dec. 1 of the year after the year in which the farm is acquired, whichever is later, he said.

If the quota is not sold by the deadline, it will be turned over to the agency's county committee.

The rules also include guidelines for determining "significant involvement" in tobacco production. A primary requirement is that a person's gross income from the management or the use of land from agriculture during the three preceding years must be more than 20 percent of that person's total gross income during the same period.

Further, the rules specify that sales of allotments and quotas can be made only to producers who are or will become active burley or flue-cured producers within the same county.

Officials said copies of the new rules soon will be available at ASCS county offices.

Burley Tobacco Now Eligible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says untied burley tobacco on burlap sheets at auction markets will be eligible for grading and price supports for 1983-84 and succeeding marketing seasons.

Lionel S. Edwards of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service said the rule change "is a major step towards promoting and maintaining orderly marketing conditions" in the tobacco industry.

The department's refusal to give official grading for sheeted burley tobacco last year prompted widespread protest among producers. Court action prompted the rule change for 1983-84, Edwards said.

Award ECU Grant For Archaeological Survey

By STUART MORGAN

The Maritime Preservation Grants Program of the National Trust for Historic Preservation has awarded a $1,500 grant to East Carolina University's program in Maritime History and Underwater Research.

The grant is to be used by the ECU graduate program to conduct an underwater archaeological survey of two 18th century vessels located in the vicinity of Blossom's Ferry on the Northeast Cape Fear River near Wilmington. Four program students will participate in the four-week project, scheduled from Sept. 12 to Oct. 12, under the direction of Gordon P. Watts, director of underwater research for the program.

The Blossom's Ferry vessels are the first such craft to be located and scientifically investigated, according to Watts.

"The staff and students of the ECU Program in Maritime History and Underwater Research have been pursuing research associated with the Blossom's Ferry wrecks for the past two years," Watts explained. "The two vessels located at the Northeast Cape Fear River site are of considerable historical significance, as they preserve concrete information about the design and construction of early ferries."

Historical records indicate that ferry service on the Northeast Cape Fear existed almost without interruption from around 1733 to the establishment of a permanent bridge there in 1925.

In October, 1982, Watts and graduate students from the ECU program conducted a two-day preliminary reconnaissance of the area to confirm the existence of a wreck at the site. After relocating the first vessel confirmed in July, 1981, the ECU team located a second previously unknown vessel. Working in black water, the underwater archaeologists collected additional information necessary to establish architectural and construction details to facilitate dating of the vessels.

The fragile but well-preserved hulls of both ferries were found resting upright on the Castle Hayne marl river bottom. Light sediments have accumulated, partially burying the lower extremities and interiors of each barge-like craft.

Differences in the designs and construction of the two rectangular vessels, each about 35 feet in length and 11 feet in width, indicate that the two vessels were probably constructed during different periods. While one may have been built as early as 1750, the other may have been built later, between 1775 and 1825.

For over 200 years, ferry service provided instrumental links in the network of American transportation, particularly in North Carolina with its extensive inland waterways.

Until well into the 19th century, such vessels (simple scows, flats, and flat-bottomed boats) were instrumental in communication, travel and trade over the waterways and along the poorly developed roadways in the state. Earlier, such vessels were propelled by cars, poles, rope-pulls and even sails. Later, well into the 19th century, ferries were powered by steam.

While considerable documentary evidence concerning the licensing and regulating of ferries survives, only the vaguest references concern the architectural and construction details of the various types of ferries in use during the colonial and federal periods of American history.

"Continued investigation of the Blossom's Ferry wrecks will provide historians with insight into this important aspect of colonial transportation that is not preserved in archival sources," Watts explained.

The ECU group will utilize "black water" surveying techniques and closed-circuit television to document the two vessels. Adjacent land areas will also be examined for evidence of docking structures or landings.

A modified mechanized landing craft called "Murphy Base" will serve as a research platform, and a 25-foot Privateer will operate as a survey vessel during the project. Data will be collected, and artifacts and other material in and around both ferries will be analyzed, catalogued, and preserved for public display.

The Blossom's Ferry project is the first of two projects scheduled for the fall semester by the ECU program.

The second project, in October, will have students in the program working in conjunction with the Bermuda British Maritime Museum, in the Bermuda Islands.

Teacher Pay Policy Hit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A rule allowing teachers from out of state to earn $660 to $1,650 per year more in North Carolina than teachers already here is drawing opposition from the N.C. Association of Educators.

The NCAE says it will try to have the salaries of in-state teachers brought in line with those of their incoming counterparts.

"One option is to make the salaries of teachers coming in from out of state the same as those in-state, but I don't know what the likelihood of that would be," said Bill Pilegge, assistant controller for the state Department of Public Instruction.

The difference arose because of the July 1982 freeze in the state salary scale and because of the method used to place teachers on the scale.

The freeze has kept state teachers at the same level on the state salary scale as they were two years ago. Normally, their pay would increase for every year of experience. But like all state employees, they received a 5 percent pay raise this year.

But a teacher coming from out of state received credit this year for every year of teaching except the last one, as well as the 5 percent raise.

"We felt it would be unfair to apply the freeze to a teacher who wasn't teaching here last year," Pilegge said.

Jobless Immigrants From Laos Are Leaving Minnesota Homes

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Just as hopes of a better life spurred the Hmong people to flee their native Indochina, many who settled in Minnesota are now heading to California in search of jobs — but are learning that the West can no longer guarantee the American dream.

As many as 3,000 Hmong refugees — one-quarter of Minnesota's unemployment-plagued Indochinese community — have already resettled in California, where about half the nation's 68,000 Hmong live. However, most who have gone west have found jobs scarcer than ever, community leaders say.

"I am trying every way possible to discourage Hmong from coming to California," said Chau Thao, executive director of the National Lao Association in Santa Ana, Calif. "Many who move here miss the town they used to live in. They have spent all their pennies to get here and now they are stuck."

Thao said unemployment is 95 percent among the Hmong in California, who congregate mostly in Fresno, Merced and Stockton. There are few special training or work projects, he added.

The migration has triggered an effort by national refugee resettlement officials to keep the Hmong in place. The U.S. coordinator for refugee affairs, H. Eugene Douglas, has appointed a special adviser on the matter, Jane Hamilton-Merritt.

"We will be making an effort to try and explain why they shouldn't just up and move westward," she said. "I'm trying to persuade them to stay and solve the problems where they already have roots. Beyond that, there is nothing we can do."

An estimated 5,000 Hmong originally came to Minnesota from Thailand or Laos in the late 1970s, many fleeing a Communist regime, and their number eventually swelled to 12,000. But the exodus has left Minnesota with a Hmong population of about 9,000, and one Hmong leader said that could drop to 5,000 if the departures continue.

Kang Vang and her husband, Ku Pao, are among those who are considering moving to California in hopes of finding work. The couple, both jobless, live with their three children in a bare-walled, sparsely-furnished apartment in St. Paul.

"Like many other Hmong, they have relatives in California and say they would prefer a climate similar to the highlands of their homeland, where they farmed year-round before emigrating in 1978."

But after Vang and her husband pay the bills, little is left from the $570 in government assistance they get each month, they say.

"Maybe in 1984 or 1985, if I miss my mother and father enough, I will go," said Vang, 31. "But not now. I need to save money."

Despite more than $35 million spent by the federal government since 1979 to resettle Hmong in the Twin Cities, there is wide agreement among Hmong and refugee resettlement officials that the programs haven't met the refugees' needs.

Hmong unemployment in the Twin Cities is 65 percent or higher. And most Hmong are isolated because they haven't learned English.

Ms. Hamilton-Merritt said Hmong are the most difficult refugee group to settle in America. Their culture and lifestyle in their homeland were simple, and they did not have a written language until Christian missionaries developed one 33 years ago.

Khang Vang, an interpreter at the McDonough project, where about 1,500 Hmong live, said Hmong "over 45 will never learn English. It is too late for them. They are too set in their ways."

A growing number of Hmong are adapting well to the American culture, but they are still a minority, officials say.

"He misses our farm in Laos," Vang said of her husband, who has difficulty speaking English. "They won't hire him because they say his English is too poor."

Compromise Phone Rate Hike Appeal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — General Telephone Co. of the Southeast has compromised on its request for a $9.6 million increase in telephone rates that would have raised basic residential costs by 35 percent.

General Telephone serves Durham County, half of Granville and Union counties and parts of Orange, Wake and Chatham counties.

The company said Tuesday it would no longer seek the $9.6 million. In return, the state Utilities Commission allowed it to keep any money from an expected increase in long-distance calls and to increase certain service rates.

"We're very pleased," said Robert Gruber, executive director of the commission's Public Staff, which represents consumers. "We and Gen Tel were $10 million apart."

Sid Linton, a spokesman for General Telephone, said the company agreed to the compromise because of a projected increase in long-distance calls, an increase granted for some service work, a healthier economy than when the request was filed and cost-saving measures.

The telephone company's original request would have increased residential rates from $12.35 a month to $16.70. Single-line business customers would have seen their rates go from $37.65 a month to $50.95.

Southern Bell has a request pending for a rate increase and another increase was recently resolved. To keep rates the same, whatever increases are allowed Southern Bell will also be given to other phone companies, such as General Telephone.

Patients Pay More Due Malpractice Policy Costs

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Obstetricians and gynecologists, sued twice as often as other doctors, are charging patients for a growing share of their malpractice insurance and using more expensive tests to avoid lawsuits, a survey shows.

Dr. James Breen, president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, said Wednesday that the combination means higher costs for patients.

These trends also conflict with the government's effort to hold down the cost of medical care.

"Medical malpractice actions definitely do increase the costs of health care," Breen told reporters as he released the college's survey of 1,915 of its members. "Physicians do raise their costs. It is only a matter of time until all of these costs are transferred to the patients."

Breen said the survey also showed that physicians are changing the way they practice medicine to reduce the chances of being sued. Although more tests can improve the quality of medical care somewhat, they may not always be justifiable because of their expense, Breen said.

More than half of those sampled said they passed on at least one fourth of the higher costs of malpractice insurance to their patients while one out of five passed on more than 75 percent of the increased costs.

American physicians of all types spent $1.7 billion on medical malpractice insurance premiums in 1982, an increase of 12 percent over the previous year.

Doctors surveyed said about 4.1 percent of the judgments against them cost $500,000 and nearly 20 percent between $50,000 and $350,000.

Between 1976 and 1981, physicians faced an average of 6.2 lawsuits per doctor per year. But obstetricians and gynecologists had a rate more than twice as high — 14 lawsuits per 100 per year, he said. About 60 percent of obstetricians and gynecologists have been sued at least once.

Elvov Raines, associate director of the group's department of professional liability, said obstetricians and gynecologists face so many lawsuits largely because of "extremely high, unrealistically high expectations on the part of the patients. You expect a perfect baby every time. If the baby is not perfect, then somebody must be responsible."

Breen said physicians too often don't communicate well with their patients. "We're a little bit silent about what they have and what the outcome could be," he said.

There are wide variations in the rates charged for malpractice insurance. Nearly one third of the physicians in the survey said they paid more than $15,000 a year for liability insurance premiums. Another third pays between $8,000 and $14,999.

But in New York, three out of four obstetricians and gynecologists pay more than $15,000 a year. The premium in Suffolk County, N.Y., has reached $51,700 a year. More than 60 percent of the obstetricians and gynecologists in Florida and California pay more than $15,000 a year.

More than 90 percent of all obstetricians and gynecologists in Florida, New York and California said the cost of malpractice insurance had directly affected their professional fees.

Raines said obstetricians and gynecologists have incomes averaging between $70,000 and $105,000 a year.

Fear of malpractice suits leads some doctors give up obstetrics earlier than they might have, leaving fewer well-trained, experienced specialists, Breen said. The typical age for a physician to give up obstetrics is 54.

Raines said some type of prescreening system should be established to evaluate the merits of potential malpractice lawsuits and reduce the number that end up in court. Raines also proposed that legislatures limit the amount of non-economic losses that can be awarded to cut settlements and establish a sliding scale for attorneys fees so that the lawyers don't collect 30 percent of every judgment.

Fraternization Policy Violation Reprimanded

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A military judge, saying the U.S. Marines' policy against fraternization is vague, has reprimanded an officer convicted of dating an enlisted woman.

First Lt. Stuart D. Glass was found guilty Wednesday of fraternizing with Cpl. Robin Lynn Hastings, whom he later married. In addition to the letter of reprimand, Col. Robert J. Blum ordered that Glass be moved back 2,650 positions on a list of first lieutenants seeking promotion.

Glass, 26, of Macon, Ga., could have been fined, imprisoned or discharged from the Marines.

Blum said due to the vagueness of the fraternization policy, "An effort should be made by the commandant (of the Marine Corps) to define fraternization so that Marines are working under the same standard."

Glass and Ms. Hastings, 21, of Massachusetts, married last February after dating about two weeks. They're now separated.

Glass also was accused of failing to disqualify himself from membership on a military review board before which his wife appeared.

Testifying in his own behalf, Glass said he still loved his wife and had planned to try to work out his marital problems after returning from a tour of duty in Okinawa, for which he had been scheduled before his court-martial.

Glass said his platoon leader in basic school had told him he married a former enlisted Marine after dating her while on active duty. He said the leader told him such behavior was acceptable "as long as you are discrete and keep it off base."

Col. James L. Cooper, chief of staff of the 2nd Marine Division, testified that Glass was a good Marine. "He had the drive and initiative expected of a Marine Corps officer. If we go to war tomorrow I would be happy to have him, in fact I would desire him."

Cooper added that the Marines' fraternization rules varied.

"I don't know of any clearly defined guidelines in the Marine Corps," he said. "Where does normal social intercourse stop and fraternization begin?"

Glass' supervisor, Capt. Phillip Green, testified Glass was "a good Marine and performed his job well."

But in closing arguments, prosecutor Major Kent Smith said, "We must prevent fraternization as a means to preserve military discipline."

Glass' mother, Marilyn Savchak, also of Macon, pleaded for leniency in her son's sentencing.

Proposing 100 Law Deletions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposals to delete 100 instances of sex discrimination from federal laws are contained in a 50-page report on women's issues that has been sent to President Reagan.

The report was requested by Reagan after Barbara Honneger, a former Justice Department official, charged that the administration's program to eliminate discriminatory federal laws was a "sham."

The report lists laws that have already been changed to eliminate sex discrimination and proposals for more deletions. Kim Hoggard, a White House press officer, said. It also lists about 1,000 women Reagan has appointed to federal posts.

9 reasons why the Texas Instruments Home Computer is the smartest one you can buy.

1. It's easy to use.

All you do is take it home, plug in a cartridge, and you're ready to go. Why is it so easy to use? Because it's also one of the most powerful home computers in the world. And it's that extra power that makes everything easier. It lets us give you most of the instructions you'll need right on screen. In plain English, not computerese. It lets us give you more elaborate programs. And extra options like speech, which most home computers can never give you.

TI gives your child a headstart that could last a lifetime.

It's more accurate.

At the heart of our home computer is a powerful 16-bit microprocessor just like the ones found in expensive professional computers. Its 13 decimal digit accuracy far exceeds that found in such computers as Apple, Commodore and Atari, which use much less powerful 8-bit processors.

3.

It can do wonders for your children.

No home computer can give your child more help than ours. We offer more easy-to-use educational cartridges, developed with more leading educational publishers, than any other computer in the world. Each one is designed to make learning fun. With a TI Home Computer, your child can get a headstart in school that could last a lifetime.

It can help organize your life.

A TI Home Computer can do many of the same things for you that professional computers do for businesses. It can help you make intelligent financial decisions. It can be the world's most efficient file cabinet. It can be your personal secretary. It can help you design a physical fitness program. Or a diet. Its uses are nearly unlimited.

More educational cartridges than any other computer in the world.

It makes it easy to learn to program.

Unlike some computers, our language, TI BASIC, is built in so there's no extra cost. And not only is it easy to learn, you'll also get a free programming manual. And when you start programming, you'll find that our computer is powerful enough to let you write longer and more useful programs than most other home computers. For example, ours is the only home computer that lets you combine color, graphics, animation, sound effects, music and speech all in a single BASIC program.

It lets you play games that challenge your mind, not just your reflexes.

When it comes to games, the power and sophistication of our computer let you play some of the most exciting arcade-style games you've ever seen. But that's just the beginning. We also give you a full range of games that let you and your children exercise your logic, strategy and problem-solving abilities. Once you try them, we think you'll find them the most exciting games of all.

We give you a free course.

When you buy a TI Home Computer, we'll give the family a free course in how to use it. To make sure you know how to unlock the full potential of your new computer. And to let you work with a wide selection of our software, so you can decide which ones would be most useful for you. To register for your free course, simply call our toll-free help number.

We give you a toll-free help number.

We don't just sell you a computer and wave goodbye. With our toll-free help number, you can call us with any kind of question at all. Before or after you buy. The number is 800-TI-CARES. Because we do.

We give you the longest warranty.

Most computers, even those costing thousands more, only give you three months. We give you a full year. We're the only ones who do this because at TI we have some of the toughest quality control standards in the industry.

And if that's not enough, how about...

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 55.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. Too few of the loads offered have been confirmed. The market is steady and the live supply is light to moderate for a good demand. Weights light to desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,801,000, compared to 1,767,000 last Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed some scattered losses today, running into resistance near a record high in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips dropped 5.49 to 1,238.62 by noon.

Liners held a 7-6 lead over gamblers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.39 points, moving within five points of its record closing high of 1,248.30 on June 16.

Analysts have attributed the market's recent gains to encouragement over a slowdown in the growth of the money supply and declining interest rates.

But they said many traders appeared reluctant to chase after stocks today following their recent rise.

For one thing, they noted, the performance of the Dow Jones industrials lately appeared to have overstated the strength of the general market. In Wednesday's session, only 78 of the more than 1,500 issues listed on the Big Board reached new 52-week highs.

Lockheed rose 3 3/4 to 116 3/4, while Rockwell International dropped 2 1/4 to 28. Lockheed won the competition between the two companies for a $2 billion space shuttle contract.

Coca-Cola fell 3 1/4 to 48 1/4. Late Wednesday the company said it was lowering its earnings projection for the year.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 37 to 96.59. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 50 at 235.40.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 36.38 million shares at noon, against 43.47 million at the same point Wednesday.

Five People Indicted In Vote Buying Probe

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Five people have been indicted on charges stemming from a 10-month probe of vote buying in western North Carolina, and U.S. Attorney Charles Brewer says still other charges are forthcoming.

"We don't see an end to them," Brewer said Wednesday after the second wave of indictments in the case were handed down.

The first phase saw in July the indictment of 12 people, including several public officials in Alexander and Clay counties. Four Alexander County residents were convicted last month of plotting a bogus absentee ballot scheme.

Trial for eight Clay County residents on voting fraud charges is set to begin Sept. 19 in Bryson City.

No public or political party officials were named in Wednesday's indictments, handed down after two days of testimony. The charges stem from elections as far back as 1978 and involve both Democrats and Republicans.

Timothy Cox, 47, a Hayesville roofing company owner, was indicted on 30 counts of vote buying and one count of conspiring to buy "one-stop" absentee ballots in Clay County. That's a form of voting in which residents claim they will be out of the county only on election day.

Evidence before the grand jury Tuesday indicated votes were being bought there for as high as $100 apiece last year.

The indictments claim Cox, Sheriff Howard Barnard and at least three others were involved in the conspiracy. Both Barnard and the opponent he narrowly defeated last November, former Sheriff Ernest Moore, were indicted in July.

Christine Roach of Hayesville, also was indicted on vote-buying charges.

Charged with vote buying in Alexander County are William Hammer, 33, co-owner of a Taylorsville car lot; Aaron Mallard, 32, a Taylorsville furniture worker, and his brother, Joseph Mallard, 35, an N.C. Department of Transportation truck driver from Taylorsville.

Bears Test Rose In Home Opener

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Jacksonville High School may have been voted a share of third place in the Associated Press' first weekly high school football poll, but Coach Ronald Vincent feels that his own Rampants of Rose High School should be up there somewhere.

Rose dumped Jacksonville, the defending 4-A state champions, and holders of the state's longest winning streak Monday night, 18-10, in a successful season opener for the Rampants. Unfortunately for the Rampants, that vote took place after the voting had taken place on Monday afternoon for the poll.

"I think we should be in there somewhere," Vincent said after learning that Jacksonville had been picked for third place in the initial standings.

Still, he would rather have the victory than the ranking, and Friday night in the first "home" game of the year, Rose will have a chance to further impress the voters when it meets a strong New Bern team.

The game will be played at

D.H. Conley High School, some seven miles outside Greenville, since the Rampants are unable to use Ficklen Stadium for their first game this year. Ficklen underwent a major overhaul of its surface this spring and East Carolina will be the first to use it next weekend when it hosts Murray State.

"We played pretty good," Vincent said of the Jacksonville game. "I thought we had played well when I saw the game and when I saw the films I didn't change my mind."

The coach said he was very pleased with the play of the offensive line. "They made some mistakes, but they were primarily aggressive mistakes. They came off the ball the best I've seen them all summer."

"Reggie (Smith) and Cyrus (Blackwell) ran the ball well and Battle (Emory) did a good job of running the offense. I really did not expect to be able to move the ball like we did against them. I did feel that we would be able to throw the ball and I was satisfied with our passing game."

Emory hit on five of ten passes for 56 yards, four of those to split end Tyrone Smith. One other pass was dropped.

"With experience, I think we'll have a good offensive team. I believe we have the tools for it," Vincent said.

On the defensive side of the ball, Vincent was pleased with the play of the secondary and the outside linebackers. Roswell Streeter, Marvin Barrett, Tony Johnson, Edward Farley and Amos Edwards. "We got good play out of the line most of the time, but we have seen some things that we need to make adjustments on."

Vincent's biggest concern was with the punting game, however. He was pleased with the kickoff coverage, and the two return teams.

But Arthur Brown had problems in getting the ball for punting. Once the ball was snapped low, and two other times high, one of those slipping through his fingers for a 22-yard loss. A couple of other times, he had to move to his left or right to receive the snap.

"I think we've got some of that worked out," Vincent said. "I thought Arthur did a good job kicking with the problems he had, and we've moved Robert Joyner in to snap for him. He did it the last two times in the game and we had less problem."

New Bern's Bears bring a 1-0 record into the game. They opened the season in a scoreless tie with strong 3-A power Havelock, then added a 25-13 victory over Big East foe Kinston last Friday night.

Vincent said that in that game, New Bern took the opening kickoff and drove it in for a score against the Vikings, who were making their first outing of the season. They got another quick touchdown after blocking a Kinston punt.

After that, things settled down and Kinston rallied to gain a 13-12 lead in the game. Late in the fourth quarter, however, Kinston lost a chance to stop the Bears when, after an interception, the Vikes were called for roughing the passer. Three downs later, facing third and long yardage, the Bear quarterback tossed it up for grabs and Carnell Wallace (5-6, 134, junior) ran under the ball and took it all the way for a touchdown. Later in the game, New Bern intercepted a Kinston pass and returned it for a touchdown, sealing the win.

"New Bern was greatly improved between the first and second game," Vincent said. "And I look for further improvement from them this week."

The Bears run a 5-2 defense and are "big and physical" according to the coach. "This is the strong point of their game."

On offense, the Bears run out of the wishbone, with Vincent picking Darryl Marshall (5-9, 158, senior) as the leading ball carrier. "They look pretty good," he said. "They seem to want to run more than they pass."

"We have to stay away from turnovers and straighten out our punting game if we want to have a chance to win the game," Vincent added.

Another problem the Rampants have had this week is in preparation time. Having played on Monday, they had only three days to turn things around.

"It hasn't been easy," Vincent said. "Monday night the humidity and heat were terrible. And the guys still are beat from it. I think Friday night is going to be just like Monday, too. We're tired and you never know just how well we'll recover from it."

"We have to stay away from turnovers and straighten out our punting game if we want to have a chance to win the game," Vincent added.

Ex-Wake Cager Gets Drug Term

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Wake Forest basketball player Mike Helms was sentenced in Forsyth County Superior Court Wednesday to two years in prison on a felony conviction involving marijuana and cocaine.

Judge Edward K. Washington of Greensboro suspended an additional five-year sentence on the condition that Helms make $1,080 restitution to the Winston-Salem Police Department for money an undercover agent paid him for drugs.

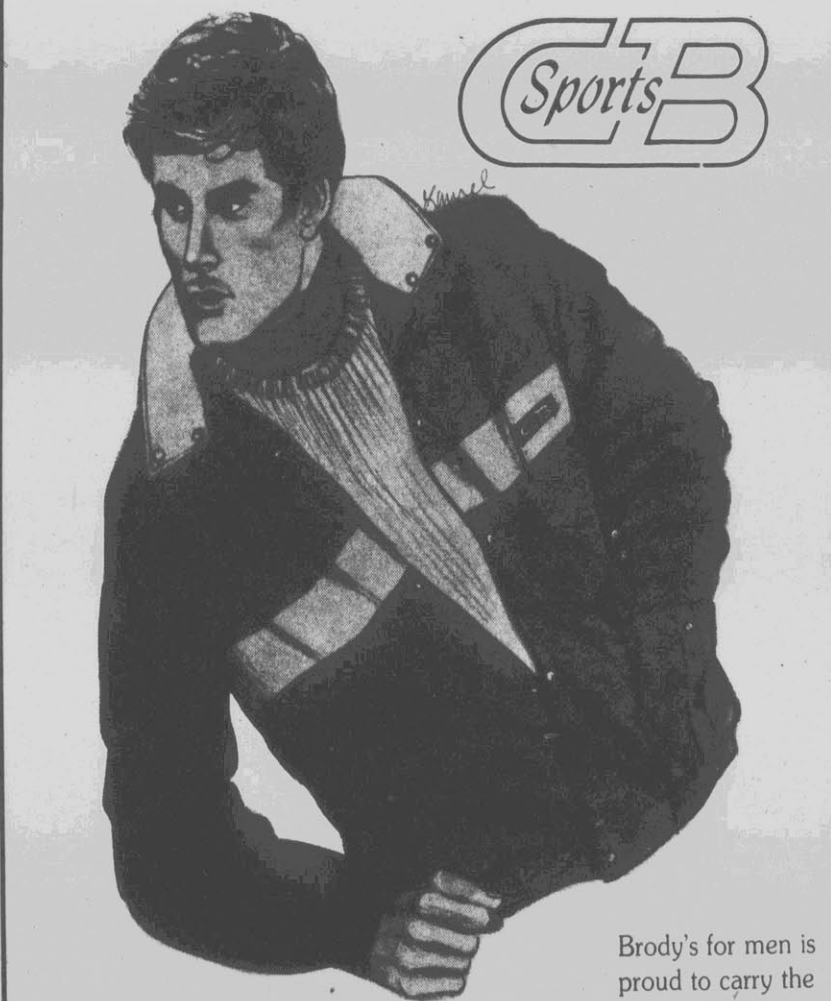

Washington recommended that Helms, 24, be made eligible immediately for a work-release program and ordered that he be assigned to the program by Oct. 1.

Helms, of Bassett, Va., and a starting guard for Wake Forest from 1978-82, pleaded guilty last month to 10 felony drug charges involving marijuana and cocaine.

Helms, who was accused of selling marijuana and cocaine to police undercover agent Sam Slater several times in January and February, told the court he was just trying to do Slater a favor when he sold drugs to him.

"Mr. Helms is a dope dealer just as sure as anybody who's ever been in this courtroom," said prosecutor Charlie C. Walker. "The truth is, he was selling marijuana and cocaine, and it was widely known."

Lloyd, Connors Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — For Chris Evert Lloyd, seeking her seventh U.S. Open tennis title, and Jimmy Connors, seeking his fifth, the obstacles now are similar — avoid upsets by lesser-regarded semifinal opponents.

The third-seeded Connors muddled through a first set with eight straight service breaks, then waltzed by 14th-seeded Eliot Teltscher 7-6, 6-2, 6-2 Wednesday to clinch his semifinal berth. Evert, second-seeded behind Martina Navratilova, followed that with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over eighth-seeded Hana Mandlikova.

The men's semifinals were to be completed today with fifth-seeded Mats Wilander meeting second-seeded Ivan Lendl and No. 4 Yannick Noah taking on No. 9 Jimmy Arias.

Connors, meanwhile, must wait until Saturday, when he meets 16th-seeded Bill Scanlon, conqueror of John McEnroe last Monday. Scanlon topped his friend and practice partner, Mark Dickson 3-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 7-6 in a 4-hour, 14-minute marathon Wednesday night.

Lloyd now takes on Great Britain's Jo Durie, the 14th women's seed, whose path through her half of the draw was eased considerably when fourth-seeded Tracy Austin dropped out because of back injury. Durie, the first British player to get this far since Virginia Wade in 1975, moved into the semis Wednesday with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Ivanna Madruga-Osses of Argentina.

Connors and Lloyd — both of whom won here last year — wanted to talk only about their semifinal matches, rather than looking ahead to possible final matchups with Lendl and top-seeded Martina Navratilova, respectively.

Connors had some problems against Teltscher in a first set in which neither player could hold serve. But after Connors won the tiebreaker 7-0, he seemed to get a second wind and breezed the rest of the way.

Afterward, Connors good-naturedly dodged numerous questions about how easy his path to the finals has become since Scanlon ousted McEnroe, the top seed.

"That's not my fault," he said. "Before the tournament you wrote about how tough a draw I had. I can't worry about that — I just play whoever gets in my way."

And he added: "Scanlon must be playing pretty well or he wouldn't be here."

Scanlon, meanwhile, had all kinds of trouble against Dickson, with whom he practices regularly.

He dropped the first and third sets, then took the lead in the fifth only to lose it serving for the match at 5-4. But he managed to pull himself together and ended up winning the tiebreaker 7-4.

Predictably, he said that after beating the top-seeded McEnroe, he had a hard time getting mentally ready to face Dickson, who entered the tournament ranked 96th in the world.

"It was very tough to get up for this match after beating John, but I get almost as much satisfaction from this," said Scanlon, a 26-year-old from Dallas who now as beaten both Wimbledon finalists, McEnroe and Chris Lewis of New Zealand in this tournament.

And Scanlon added: "You may not believe this but for the last 24 hours I just sat in my room and didn't talk to anybody. Everybody I ever met called me in the past two days. People I hadn't seen in eight years called and said 'nice match against John.'"

Scanlon conceded that most people would write him off against McEnroe, but — sounding very much like Connors — he said: "I can do what I can do and I'm going to perform the best I can."

He had one other backer in Dickson. "I think he's got a really good chance to win this tournament. I hope he knows that," the 23-year-old from Tampa said of the man he calls "one of my best friends on the tour."

As for the women, Lloyd said Wednesday's match against Mandlikova was her best of four in the tournament and added: "If I play the way I played today, I should be in good shape."

But she also spoke respectfully about the 23-year-old Durie, who reached the French Open semifinals earlier this year. They met earlier this year in Los Angeles with Lloyd winning 7-5, 6-2, but she noted that in that match, Durie was nervous.

"You hear so much about a player and you look at her record and you can get intimidated, you can feel nervous and numb out there," Lloyd said of Durie. "She has had a very good year and I think that helps her a lot because her game is based on confidence. And I definitely don't think she is intimidated now."

Durie agreed. "The last time I played Chris I came close and I've got nothing to lose," she said. "I think I've gotten over the awe of playing her, so I will try and treat it like another match."

The winner of the Lloyd-Durie match will face the winner of the other semifinal between the top-seeded Navratilova and fifth-seeded Pam Shriver.

Quarterfinal Win

Chris Evert Lloyd, second seed in the U.S. Open, completes a shot during her quarterfinal match Wednesday afternoon. Lloyd beat Hana Mandlikova, 6-4, 6-3, to advance to the semi-final round at the National Tennis Center. (AP Laserphoto)

State's Reed Expects Pirates To Be Tough

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — If Tom Reed had any hopes of a quiet debut as North Carolina State football coach, they were dashed last week in faraway Florida.

Unranked and unheralded East Carolina visited No. 12 Florida State and nearly upset the Seminoles, losing 47-46 when a fumble stymied a late drive. The Pirates and Wolfpack tangled Saturday night in a game to be televised nationally by Atlanta cable station WTBS.

Thus, what was expected to be an intrastate grudge match has become a regional game with lots at stake.

"The opening game and the situation we have is something that makes this game, if possible, even more special," said Reed. "A national TV audience is something else that makes it special. You put all those things together and we have to be excited."

Reed was in Tallahassee last week for the ECU-Florida State game and came away convinced that the Pirates have the upper hand going into Saturday's clash with the Wolfpack.

"Coaches have said in the past that you will improve more between your first and second game than any other time the rest of the season," said Reed. "If you go by what has been said in the past, playing that first game gives you an advantage."

The Wolfpack is trying to overcome three disappointing seasons under coach Monte Kiffin. The task is made more difficult by the absence of a quarterback who's taken as much as one snap in varsity competition.

Currently, the starting nod goes to senior Tim Esposito, who transferred to N.C. State from California.

The offense is led by junior tailback Joe McIntosh, who is hoping to rebound from a disappointing sophomore campaign and will share time with Michael Miller.

Baltimore Won't Cooperate In Race

By The Associated Press
The New York Yankees, Milwaukee Brewers, Detroit Tigers and Toronto Blue Jays are trying to make things interesting in the American League East.

The only problem is that front-running Baltimore isn't cooperating. The Orioles posted their 13th victory in the last 15 games Wednesday night by downing Boston 5-2. Meanwhile, New York whipped Milwaukee 11-5, Toronto lost 9-6 to California and Detroit split a doubleheader with Cleveland, winning the nightcap 7-3 after losing the opener 7-1.

The Orioles now lead the second-place Brewers by five games, with New York and Detroit both 5½ out and Toronto at eight.
"It's going to be tough to catch us now," said catcher Joe Nolan, who doubled home Baltimore's first run in the second inning and singled to start a two-run rally in the fourth. "The pressure is on the other teams."

"Six games in the loss column can go in a hurry if you don't play good ball. But this is a very loose team, and I don't see us getting too excited going down the stretch."

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago trimmed Oakland 8-7 in 10 innings. Texas defeated Minnesota 3-0 and Kansas City stopped Seattle 3-2.

Baltimore's Mike Flanagan, 10-3, gave up 10 hits before being lifted in the seventh after Reid Nichols smacked a leadoff homer. Tippy Martinez then came on to notch his 15th save of the season.

John Lowenstein added an insurance run for the Orioles with a homer in the eighth, his 11th of the season, off reliever Mark Clear.

Dennis Boyd, 4-5, was the losing pitcher, leaving in the fifth.

Yankees 11, Brewers 5
Reliever Goose Gossage put out a Milwaukee rally in the last two innings to earn his 18th save.

After the homestanding Brewers had cut the lead to 8-5 on Ted Simmons' three-run homer in the eighth of George Frazier, Mark Brouhard and Marshall Edwards followed with singles. Gossage came on to strike out Ben Oglivie and get Jim Ganter to hit into a double play.

New York added three insurance runs in the ninth when Graig Nettles cracked a three-run homer, his 18th of the year. Juan Espino also connected on his first major-league homer in the eighth for the Yankees.

Ray Fontenot, 6-2, was the winning pitcher, allowing seven hits in seven innings, walking three and striking out one.

Chuck Porter, 6-7, took the loss after giving up four runs in the first two innings.

Angels 9, Blue Jays 6
The Blue Jays lost valuable ground in the AL East division race as California rallied for five runs in the top of the ninth.

Pinch-hitter Daryl Sconiers provided the key hit in the ninth, a bases-loaded double that cleared the bases.

Luis Sanchez, the third California pitcher, hiked his record to 9-7. Dave Geisel, 0-2, was the loser.

California's Ellis Valentine hit his 10th homer in the first and Toronto's Jorge Orta homered in the sixth, his seventh of the season.

Indians 7-3, Tigers 1-7
John Wockenfuss' bases-loaded single in the ninth broke a 3-3 tie and helped the Tigers salvage a split of the doubleheader in Cleveland.

In the first game, right-hander Lary Sorenson, 10-9, fired a seven-hitter for the Indians. He lost his shutout when Lance Parrish homered with one out in the ninth, his 25th of the season.

The Indians' Gorman Thomas hit a two-run homer in the first game while George Vukovich added a two-run shot in the second.

Dan Petry, 16-8, won the second game while Ernie Camacho, 0-1, took the loss.

White Sox 8, A's 7
Julio Cruz singled in Harold Baines in the bottom of the 10th inning to lift the White Sox.

Chicago sent the game into extra innings when Greg Luzinski hit a two-out homer, his 27th, in the bottom of the ninth. Carlton Fisk also homered for the White Sox, his 24th of the season.

Rangers 3, Twins 0
Charlie Hough ran his scoreless-inning streak to a club-tying 29 in stopping the Twins on three hits in Arlington Stadium.

It also marked Hough's third straight shutout in running his record to 13-12. He struck out five and walked two. Al Williams, 10-13, was the losing pitcher.

Rookie Tommy Dunbar, just recalled from Oklahoma City, scored one run and drove in another for the Rangers.

Royals 3, Mariners 2
Dan Quisenberry picked up his 37th save, just one away from the major-league single-season record set by the Tigers' John Hiller in 1973.

U.L. Washington drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning single.

Winterville Champs

Marines Under Fire Are Digging Deep Holes

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Marines manning the front lines around Beirut Airport are digging deeper, sleeping in bunkers and forgoing such comforts as showers and hot food. The war in Lebanon has spilled into their compound.

"To be honest with you, it's really been shaky," said Cpl. Gerald Shanley, 22, of Kent, Ohio, a mortar forward observer attached to "Charlie Company."

"They're coming in from out of nowhere and like I said, you don't know when it's going to happen," he said.

Since Saturday, when Moslem Shiite militiamen attacked a joint U.S.-Lebanese outpost, the Marines have come under fire every day from the Aley and Chouf mountains which rise a few miles from their forward positions.

Four Marines of the 1,200-man contingent have been killed by shellfire during the fighting.

Marines say some of the rounds were clearly aimed at them; while others were probably strays, fired either by Phalangist or Druse militiamen or the Christian-dominated Lebanese army, all battling for control of the hills.

"They were fired from the east, from the north, from near and far," said Warrant Officer Charles Rowe of San Francisco.

Since the fighting erupted last weekend, Marines from the three rifle companies manning the perimeter have been sleeping in their underground bunkers in case of attacks at night.

A few nights ago, one rocket slammed into the tent which was home to Lt. Richard Hasey of Arlington, Va.

"I saw this little blur," said Hasey as he fingered the gray metallic remains of the rocket. "I came running over. Somebody was stamping out this little fire. It was my laundry."

With the new fighting, the Marine compound looks like a set of World War I trenches and earthen bunkers.

Marine engineers have been building a new network of trenches and ditches linking bunkers so the troops can move without exposing themselves to fire.

Throughout the day, when the gunners from the hills are taking a break or looking for other targets, troops fill green sandbags to shore up bunkers and observation posts.

If shelling is heavy, the troops stay in their bunkers, eating cold field rations when it is too dangerous to go to the mess tent. Hot showers are an occasional luxury.

In observation posts, Marines standing in shoulder-deep holes and peer through binoculars at the smoking hills to the east. Behind them, only a few hundred yards away, the Mediterranean laps the sand. To the northeast, the graceful curve of the coast reveals Beirut's chalk white buildings on the horizon.

Shelling is not the only danger the Marines face. Snipers in nearby villages pepper Marine positions with small arms fire.

The dirt road from the headquarters compound to two of the rifle company outposts skirts the village of Hay El-Sellum, which remains in the hands of Moslem Shiites.

Gunmen have built two earthen bunkers not more than 20 yards from the Marine road. Reporters riding a jeep back from the outposts could see three gunmen on one mound.

Marines say most of the fire lately has been coming from batteries about 15 miles away, out of sight and hearing.

"The other night we saw them come right over that ridgeline," said Shanley, pointing to a wooded hill to the east.

"You could see the flash, and the rocket would come right down on you. All you could do was get down," he said. "If you see the flash, you got about 10 seconds before impact."

The Druse, whose sect is an offshoot of Islam, have been fighting both the Christian Phalange forces and the Lebanese army since Israel pulled back from the Aley and Chouf mountains on Sunday.

The Israelis invaded Lebanon in June 1982 in an effort to rout the Palestine Liberation Organization. They decided to redeploy south because they suffered a growing number of casualties from guerrillas while occupying the mountains.

More Look To Salvation Army

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Despite the economic recovery, Salvation Army centers in North Carolina continue to be deluged with people seeking help, officials say.

"The people we serve are at the lowest end of the economic scale and almost always are the last to feel the effects of a rebounding economy," said Lt. Col. David Holz, divisional commander for North Carolina and South Carolina.

"Now that many people are back at work and have a regular income I hope they will remember those who are still unable to find work and share with those who are struggling to support their families."

The number of people seeking help at Salvation

Army centers in the two states increased 50 percent during the first half of 1983. The number of people assisted in 1982 increased 20 percent over 1981.

"For many centers this increase has depleted the funds set aside for winter programs," Holtz said.

The number of homeless people assisted increased 54 percent over the six-month period, with the first three months showing an increase of 79 percent.

During those three months, the number of meals served to the homeless increased 111 percent. There was an 81 percent increase over the six-month period. The number of local residents given material assistance increased 20 percent in the first six months.

Holz said donations to the Salvation Army increased last December during highly-publicized cold snaps. But over the last six months, reports of a recovery have reduced public awareness of continuing poverty, he said.

In a few months, home-grown produce will no longer be readily available and heating bills will rise, he said.

The Salvation Army is preparing a winter shelter program in such cities as Charlotte, Winston-Salem and Greenville, S.C., he said. Lodging for the homeless will be reopened in Columbia, S.C. and Fayetteville and other lodge openings are under consideration.

Won't Concede 83rd Birthday

MIAMI (AP) — U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., says he's "discovered some new historical data" about his birthday, and he's not about to concede that today is his 83rd. It could be his 63rd, says America's oldest congressman.

"You know, I was born up there in east Alabama in an area where, at the time I was born, they didn't have reliable vital statistics," Pepper explained in an interview Tuesday, "so somehow or another they got it around that I was born in 1900."

"I looked into the matter and finally I've become satisfied, and recent data has revealed, that as a matter of fact, instead of being born in 1900, I was born in 1920 — just two years after I served in World War I," the congressman added with a laugh.

Regardless, he said, he's not all that concerned about the past.

"I think about the future," said Pepper. "Think about what you're going to do tomorrow. ... I'm so busy I don't have time to get old."

See Sag In Leaf Prices

By The Associated Press
Flue-cured tobacco prices were mostly lower or unchanged Wednesday on North Carolina's three tobacco belts, the Federal-State Market News Service reported.

On the Eastern Belt, heavy volume grades sold $2 to $7 per hundred pounds lower than on Tuesday, although a few remained at their previous levels.

A record high average price of $197.18 per hundred was paid Tuesday for 8,223,523 gross pounds. This was up $8.39 from last Thursday and exceeded the previous record, set on Sept. 7 last year, by $5.72. Season sales were brought to 131,810,359 pounds averaging $175.61 per hundred.

On the Old and Middle Belt, unripe grades of leaf and lugs Wednesday were down $3 to $7 per hundred from Tuesday while better grades were generally unchanged.

Sales in the belt Tuesday totaled 7,372,375 pounds and averaged $181.71 per hundred — up $7.70 from the previous sales day. Season totals climbed to 69,710,386 gross pounds averaging $162.25.

On the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt, grade averages varied $1 to $4 per hundred Wednesday with gains and losses about evenly divided.

A new record daily high average price of $194.99 was paid Tuesday for 5,702,502 pounds. This was up $7.57 from Thursday and $3.81 above the previous high set Aug. 29. Season sales in the belt were brought to 99,362,044 pounds averaging $172.42.

ABC Store Theft Investigated

Pitt County sheriff's deputies are continuing to investigate a break-in reported Tuesday at the ABC Store in Falkland and an attempted break-in at a neighboring business, Sheriff Ralph Tyson said.

Tyson said the ABC Store incident, reported at 6:28 a.m., resulted in the theft of one gallon of whiskey, 12½ gallons of vodka, and a black and white television set. Total value of the missing items was set at $537.

The sheriff said entrance to the package store was gained after a glass door on the front of the facility was broken out. He added that an unsuccessful attempt was also made to gain entrance to a safe at the store.

Tyson said his department was notified at 10:07 a.m. Tuesday of an attempted break-in at Smith's Grocery. He said $100 in damages resulted from an apparent effort to force open a door to the store.

Changes Ordered In PCAs And FBLAs

Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Bank Associations in the Carolinas, Georgia, and Florida will undergo major changes in coordination of services and territorial realignments over the next three years, Arnold Parris, president of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association, said today.

Parris said the 54 PCSs and 46 FBLAs in the four-state area will be realigned into 20 PCSs and 20 FBLAs to save $2.7 million in operating costs.

The PCS spokesman said that, by reducing operating costs, "we'll be able to offer the same services to farmers at less cost."

Parris said PCAs in Greenville, Kinston,

Washington and Elizabeth City will merge into one organization under the plan.

The merger, he said, will provide easier coordination and loan packaging through improved communications, more efficient operations, and better utilization of personnel.

Parris and one association director will serve on an ad hoc committee to study and recommend procedures for implementing the territorial realignment plans.

Directors of the Pitt-Greene PCS include: David Harold Smith of Ayden, James E. Manning of Walstonburg, Arthur Roscoe Barnhill Jr. of Greenville, Wayne K. Stokes of Greenville and Weldon Singleton of Stantonsburg.

Declares N.C. Short-Changed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal drought-relief efforts are slighting North Carolina farmers at the expense of growers from Midwestern states, says state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham.

Graham last week in Chicago hand-delivered a letter to U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block from Gov. Jim Hunt. The letter asked that the state be declared an agricultural disaster area because it has suffered losses in excess of $300 million.

Hardest hit are corn, tobacco, soybeans, turkeys, broilers, breeder hens, livestock and dairy cattle.

Graham said Block "promised help to the state of Indiana, made particular reference to Iowa, Missouri, Indiana, Illinois, and Nebraska but he didn't say one word about North Carolina. ... I don't think we'll see any action."

Graham said he urged Block "cut through the blasted red tape required by the USDA" for loans to relieve farmers who need financial assistance.

"If they don't help North Carolina, I'm going to see him again, and remind him again," Graham said. "I'll be disappointed if I don't see some relief from farmers from the Farmers Home Administration in terms of review and the rearrangement of loans."

Block promised Friday to speed federal aid to farmers in 28 states ruined by drought. He ordered the FHA to hire more workers to process applications for federal assistance and to open for production some land that was lying unused under the Payment In Kind program.

Graham said he wasn't asking for a handout when he went to Chicago.

"I know farming is a risky business, and I understand you can't control the weather and the heat, but these people (farmers) have an obligation to meet," Graham said.

"He (Block) has the power to do what needs to be done. Whether he does it or not, I don't know. Time will tell."

'Godfather' Helps NBC To The Top In Ratings

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Corleone crime family helped NBC muscle CBS out of its four-week hold on first place in the Nielsen ratings, as "The Godfather" miniseries grabbed three places in the television Top 10 for the week ended Sept. 4.

Crafted from the feature films "The Godfather" and "The Godfather Part Two" with added footage not shown in the movies, the gangster saga lifted NBC out of the previous week's third-place finish and helped give it a wide margin of victory over second-place CBS. ABC was third.

A pair of crime-fighting brothers, CBS' "Simon & Simon," won the highest rating of the week. The third part of "The Godfather" was second, with part two in fifth place and part four coming in ninth.

The opening chapter of the miniseries aired on Sunday, Aug. 28, and tied for 11th place in the ratings for the previous week.

NBC won first place with a network average of 13.5 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 13.5 percent of the television homes were tuned to NBC. CBS had an average of 12.8, and ABC had 11.3.

Another gang of good guys, NBC's "The A-Team," took fourth place. Altogether, NBC had nine shows in the Top 20.

Rounding out the Top 10 were CBS' "Magnum, P.I." at eighth and "Newhart" at 10th, and ABC's "Three's Company" at sixth and "The Fall Guy" at seventh.

The week of Sept. 4 was the last in which one Nielsen rating point will equal 833,000 households. Effective Sept. 5 — the first day of the next ratings week — a rating point will equal 838,000 homes, meaning the total number of television homes is up to 83.8 million.

CBS also had the week's lowest rated show, "The Omega Connection." The five lowest-rated shows in descending order were CBS' "Johnny Blue," the ABC movie "The Bad News Bears Break Training," NBC's "The Powers of Matthew Star," and "Casablanca" Part Two, and "The Omega Connection."

Here are the Top 10 programs:

1. "Simon & Simon," CBS, a rating of 20.3 or 16.9 million households.
2. Movie: "The Godfather" Part III, NBC, 18.7 or 15.5 million.
3. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, 18.5 or 15.4 million.
4. "The A-Team," NBC, 18.0 or 14.9 million.
5. Movie: "The Godfather" Part II, NBC, 16.5 or 13.7 million.
6. "Three's Company," ABC, 16.2 or 13.4 million.
7. "The Fall Guy," ABC, 15.9 or 13.2 million.
8. "Miss Teen-USA," CBS, 15.8 or 13.1 million.
9. Movie: "The Godfather" Part IV, NBC, 15.5 or 12.9 million.
10. "Newhart," CBS, 15.1 or 12.5 million.

Ponder Film On Speller

LINN YANN

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The 12-year-old Cambodian who attracted national attention when she won a spelling bee last spring — Linn Yann — may be back in the national spotlight again, as the subject of a made-for-television movie.

But Miss Yann said Wednesday she has declined an invitation to play herself.

"They asked me, but I said no," said Miss Yann, who turns 13 on Oct. 10.

Miss Yann, her five brothers and sisters and her mother fled from Cambodia when she was 5 years old to escape the communist Khmer Rouge regime after soldiers killed her father and forced the children to work in labor camps. The family fled to Thailand, then refugee relief organizations flew them to the United States.

Miss Yann knew only how to count from one to 10 in English upon her arrival in the United States in 1979, but plenty of study changed that and she caught the nation's attention last spring when she won a preliminary spelling bee in Hamilton County.

However, she failed to make it into the national competition when she misspelled "enchilada."

George Thrash, whose family sponsored Miss Yann and her family when they came to Chattanooga, says a California production company, ITC, bought the rights to make a movie about Miss Yann, although it has not yet been determined whether the story will sell.

They Are Drinking More, Smoke Less

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers who sampled three decades of television shows ranging from "Leave it to Beaver" to "Dallas" conclude that drinking is up during prime time but smoking is down.

Their review of "The Twilight Zone," "Perry Mason," "Alice," "M-A-S-H" — 280 1/2 hours of situation comedies and dramas in all — found a 10-fold drop in TV smoking since 1950. But during the same period, on-the-air drinking has risen dramatically.

The research, published in part in today's New England Journal of Medicine, was conducted by Drs. Warren Breed and James R. De Foe of the Institute for Scientific Analysis in Berkeley, Calif.

"We believe that television producers accepted the idea that smoking is dangerous to your health," Breed said in an interview. "We think they have shown good responsibility to the public in terms of health."

The depiction of drinking, however, was excessive, Breed said. TV often fails to show the consequences of overindulgence and rarely portrays people turning down a drink, he said.

"I would say that television does not handle drinking as responsibly as it could," he said.

The use of booze on TV was unchanged until recent years. Throughout the 1950s,

UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —

Parents, wondering why their teenagers dash home from school to glue themselves to the TV set, are learning about the mesmerizing effects of MTV, the hottest gimmick on the tube.

Kids love videos accompanying the latest rock 'n' roll hits, promotional gimmicks by record companies aimed at separating youngsters from their bucks by purchasing new albums, breeding, perhaps, a generation of vidiot.

MTV is a cable presentation running 24 hours a day piped into some 15 million American homes and growing by leaps and bounds.

Viewers hear almost nothing but AOR (album oriented rock), MOR (middle of the road), CW (country-western), and ballads are strictly out.

So popular are these videos (averaging about 4 minutes) that NBC came up with "Friday Night Video," a 90-minute version of MTV that reaches many more millions of homes.

MTV fanatics have revived the lagging record industry and given new life to such stars as Michael Jackson (one of the rare blacks on MTV), Duran Duran, Atom Ant, Bill Idol, Pat Benatar, J. Geils and The Kinks.

Videos have become more and more complex and expensive as the singer or singers gyrate through quick cuts, esoteric scenery, fake fog, blinding lights, special effects and sometimes miniature story lines as the music grinds on.

Early videos cost only $5,000. But Michael Jackson's mammoth hit, "Billie Jean," reputedly cost $250,000.

Videos are given — free of charge — to MTV as promotional gimmicks, cheap at the price when it is considered that promotional and advertising budgets for albums often run twice that much.

Clearly, videos are more effective sales gimmicks than print ads, radio and TV blurbs combined.

Now videos are attracting top directors.

Bob Rafelson, who directed such movies as "Five Easy Pieces," "The Postman Always Rings Twice" and "The King of Marvin Gardens," recently completed a $100,000 video for Lionel Richie's new album, "All Nite Long," with a cast of 40 dancers.

Rafelson shot the video in two days with a non-union crew working 16 hours the first day and 19 hours the second.

With luck, "All Nite Long" will become an MTV mainstay, achieving a heavy rotation schedule with three or four plays a day. Medium rotation is two or three plays daily and light rotation only once or twice.

Richie's new album will be competing with hundreds of other new videos, but under the handicap of any black artist bucking the white oriented videos.

"Videos are becoming an art form," Rafelson said, "but they are quickly abusing themselves because there is no respect for the music. Video directors are trying to cultivate careers for themselves as filmmakers rather than doing justice to the music."

"MTV videos are vital to the artists, however. It is changing careers, putting people on the map, and this is only the beginning. Very soon records will be selling in short-form videos of nine or 12-minutes duration."

"There are 17 new outlets for videos coming up on cable. The whole idea is still evolving on cable and networks."

The point Rafelson makes is that today's kids want to LOOK and listen to their favorite rock 'n' rollers.

Rafelson became involved with Richie through his love for music and street dancing in Los Angeles. Richie heard about Rafelson's hobby of filming youngsters dancing in Watts and asked to meet him.

"Lionel and I hit it off the minute we met," Rafelson said. "I listened to his recording of 'All Nite Long' and designed the video concept. Five days later we had the sets built, signed the cast, picked the wardrobe and shot it."

"Lionel brings his own special magic to the video, making the song a joyous celebration. He is the igniting force for a fantasy party. He learned to dance for the video, bringing a whole new dimension to Lionel as an entertainer."

Rafelson said he chose to direct Richie between movie assignments because "It is a wonderful way to hone my instincts. It's usually four years between feature films for me and I live the rest of my life with each movie. This is different and exciting."

And, Rafelson hopes, profitable. This video, he says, may be the first to make money.

Radio Posting Bigger Profits

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The commercial radio industry posted a sharp improvement last year in profitability, thanks largely to the improving economy and increased levels of advertising, a new survey shows.

The survey, conducted annually by the National Association of Broadcasters, found that 67 percent of the participating radio stations reported pre-tax profits in 1982, compared to only 58 percent in 1981.

The "typical" station that posted a profit also reported much larger profits last year, with pre-tax income tripling from $15,800 in 1981 to $51,100 last year, the survey found.

The increase in profitable stations as well as the jump in the level of their profitability were the first such improvements in four years, the NAB said.

The survey, based on reports from 1,618 radio stations, attributed the improved performance to an estimated 21 percent increase in advertising revenues. National and regional spot advertising increased 37 percent, the NAB said, while local advertising sales rose an estimated 19 percent over 1981.

That strong improvement in advertising time sales was offset by an average 11.2 percent increase in operating expenses, the NAB said.

While the number of employees at the typical radio station remained constant at 14, payroll costs still rose an average 13.9 percent and sales and promotion expenses climbed 31.8 percent, the survey found. News and program production expenses typically rose 12.7 percent, while engineering expenses rose about 5 percent compared to 1981.

When the figures in each reporting category are added up, the NAB concluded, the typical American radio station generated total broadcast revenues of $542,300 in 1982 and incurred total operating expenses of $491,200, producing the pre-tax profit figure of $51,100.

That left the typical station with a 9.42 percent pre-tax profit margin in 1982, compared to a margin of 3.46 percent in 1981.

"In a 1961 episode of 'Dr. Kildare,' both Dr. Kildare and his mentor, Dr. Gillespie, smoked. In contrast, not a single cigarette was seen in 10 hours of two 1971-1977 hospital dramas, 'Medical Center' and 'Marcus Welby, M.D.'"

CHOLERA DEATHS
KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — A cholera outbreak has killed 27 people in southern Shaba province, the newspaper Njumbe reports.

Records Are Not Open To Public View

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina officials won't allow the public to inspect records of faculty members' consulting work and the companies that employ them.

UNC President William Friday said Wednesday the policy was based on the advice of the state attorney general's office.

"Whatever advice we get from the attorney general we carry out," said Friday. "I really don't have much alternative."

Some university researchers and teachers are employed as consultants by private firms. Friday said the attorney general's office told him that documents describing such work are personnel records not open to the public.

Friday's office consulted the attorney general's office after The News and Observer of Raleigh asked to examine the records. The newspaper said in today's editions that one of its reporters was allowed to begin copying the records last month but later was denied access to them.

John Jordan, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors, criticized the closed-record policy.

"We're dealing with a public institution," said Jordan. "We're dealing with public employees. In my mind, that makes it a proper public matter."

Andy Vanore, senior deputy attorney general, said he had advised UNC against opening the records. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said he would meet today with aides before taking a position.

The UNC Board of Governors approved a policy Nov. 9, 1979, governing "external professional activities of faculty or other professional staff" of the 16-campus system.

The policy encourages outside consulting work but says it may be undertaken only if it does not "interfere with the performance of the individual's university duties; involve any inappropriate use of university facilities, equipment or personnel; make any use of the university's name for any purpose other than professional identification; or claim any university's responsibility for the conduct or outcome of such activities."

A faculty member who wants to moonlight must fill out a "Notice of Intent to Engage in External Professional Activity for Pay" and file it with his department head, who decides whether the activity is consistent with UNC policy.

Jordan said he didn't think the board intended for the records to be kept secret.

Vanore, however, said a notice of intent is part of an employee's personnel file and by state law is not public record.

William C. Lassiter, general counsel of the N.C. Press Association, said he didn't think the notices qualify as part of an employee's personnel file as the file is described in state law.

The UNC administration has agreed to release the names of faculty members who consult and the numbers of hours they do consulting work, but not the names of their employers or the nature of their work.

$2.1 Million To '82 Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor unions and membership organizations spent $2.1 million on political literature promoting candidates in 1982, according to the Federal Elections Commission.

An FEC report said 25 unions and five membership organizations spent $2.1 million to promote 714 candidates for Congress and $84,623 to advocate the defeat of another 180 candidates. All but $5,591 of the spending was related to congressional races.

Unions and corporations cannot make political contributions but may spend money to urge members, officers and shareholders to vote for or against certain candidates. There were no reports of corporate expenditures for political messages in 1982, the FEC said.

Gov. Hunt Stops Purge Of Social Security Rolls

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Defying the federal government, Gov. Jim Hunt has halted cutoffs of Social Security benefits to North Carolinians and says the state may establish its own eligibility standards.

Hunt, recuperating from gallbladder surgery at the Executive Mansion, signed an executive order Wednesday freezing the purge of Social Security rolls, which he said had denied benefits to 10,000 of the state's residents in the last year.

In a prepared statement, Hunt said his moratorium "will remain in effect until appropriate disability criteria that incorporates substantial medical improvement or increased vocational skills as a mandatory consideration can be devised."

"In the absence of a federal response to this need, North Carolina will establish and implement its own standards."

Opponents of the purge rejoiced at Hunt's move.

"Hallelujah, hallelujah!" said Dona Montgomery of Waxhaw, whose Alliance of Social Security Disability Recipients was founded in January 1982 to combat the cutoffs. Mrs. Montgomery's husband, William, was disabled in a 1968 car wreck.

Carol Wylie, secretary-treasurer of the alliance, said North Carolina is the fourth state to order a halt to the cutoffs, joining Massachusetts.

Pennsylvania and Arkansas. Social Security is a federal program but is administered by the state's Department of Human Resources. The federal Social Security Administration selects cases it considers questionable and sends them to the state for review.

Hunt ordered the DHR to stop sending termination notices to the federal government "unless fraud has been demonstrated."

Deputy press secretary Brent Hackney said Hunt believed the Reagan administration's policy goes beyond what Congress intended when Social Security reforms were enacted.

"We feel like if it came down to a court fight we would prevail," Hackney said. "Congress never intended cutoffs when cases are reviewed, particularly when the major cases have been upheld anyway."

As many as seven of 10 people whose benefits have been terminated eventually were reinstated, officials say. But many of those people were without benefits for extended periods while their appeals were pending.

The cutoffs saved the federal government almost $9 million last year. About 85,000 North Carolinians were receiving disability benefits during the last fiscal year. Cutoffs jumped from fewer than 600 the preceding year to almost 6,000 in fiscal 1982.

The General Assembly has set up a Disability Review Commission to consider problems in Social Security reviews.

SAVED BY BUDGET — Maxine Ruble, an elevator operator at the Iowa Statehouse, will have her job for another year. Last spring the Legislature voted to replace Ruble's elevator with a modern self-service type; but Iowa's budget crisis, a projected $91 million deficit, came to the rescue. Gov. Branstad cut state spending 2.8 percent, and money for such things as new elevators will not be spent. (AP Laserphoto)
