Judge Pondering Use Of Evidence

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS ... Milton Williamson (L) and Bob Browning, appointed by the court, flank defendant Dwight Parker, who is on trial in connection with the February shooting deaths of the Rev. Leslie Thorbs and Anthony Ray Herring. (Sketches by Reflector Artist Chris Bennett)

By Roy Hardee

The Pitt County jury hearing the Dwight Parker murder case spent more time out of the courtroom Tuesday than it did in, and was dismissed this morning, with instructions to call the courthouse between 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. today to see if they would be needed this afternoon.

The jury retired to its room on two occasions during the morning Tuesday, and jurors were dismissed for the day after returning from the noon recess at 2 p.m., as the question of admissibility of evidence surfaced on three occasions.

When court recessed at 5 p.m., arguements were still being heard by Judge David Reid and they continued this morning.

A capacity courtroom continued to testify to the interest in the double murder case. Parker's wife and mother sat behind him during the entire day. He talked briefly with his wife prior to Tuesday afternoon's session.

Two Pitt County deputy sheriffs are stationed behind Parker at all times.

When defense attorneys noted that some jury members were making notes Tuesday, it was stipulated that all members of the jury should have the opportunity and the court supplied them with legal pads, pens and pencils. Under court instructions, the notes are to be taken up each afternoon when court closes and redistributed the next morning.

The arguments before the court Tuesday and this morning were about the admissibility of evidence obtained during Parker's arrest, preservation of the defendant's rights while and after being placed under arrest in Newark, N.J. on Feb. 26, and if threats or promises were made in order to obtain two confessions.

During one session Tuesday, former Pitt County Deputy Jackie Moye said he went to New Jersey along with former investigator Lee Pascasio, with a warrant charging Parker, 23, with the murder of the Rev. Leslie L. Thorbs of Grifton, on February 19. Parker was also charged with killing Anthony Ray Herring of Goldsboro.

Variances in the murder warrant showed that Magistrate Elmoore Hodges issued the warrant on Feb. 22. But it also showed that the Pitt County Sheriff's Department received the warrant on Feb. 19, and the date marked served was listed as March 1.

Judge Reid later ruled that there was ample and significant probable cause to support the warrant's issuance, and any defects in the warrant were not fatal or a violation of the defendant's rights.

The question of surpressing any evidence of articles taken from the arrest scene was also debated in the absence of the jury.

The evidence, according to testimony, included keys taken from Parker when arrested, and a fixed blade knife about nine inches long which was taken from a coat belonging to Parker.

Reid ruled that the items were seized during a valid search and that the seizure did not violate the defendant's rights.

The items were ordered admitted as evidence over the defense's objections.

During the day Tuesday, Moye said that Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson received information from a then confidential source about two murders in the county.

He said that acting on information received from the informant, officers went to the Tar River Bridge between Belvoir and Falkland, and found blood and what appeared to be hair on both sides of the bridge.

The bodies of the two men were later found in the river, which had swollen to eight to 10 feet above normal because of heavy rains.

The informant was later identified as Carolyn Denise Pippins, 20, a co-defendant in the case.

Moye later said that Ms. Pippins said she assisted in the disposal of the bodies, in tying cinder blocks to their ankles, and in throwing them from the bridge.

Moye also quoted Ms. Pippins as saying that Parker came to her home off the River Road driving a 1980 Cadillac, and that he told her he had killed two people and wanted her to help dispose of the bodies.

When asked why officers went to New Jersey to arrest Parker, Moye replied "because Carolyn Pippins said Parker had gone there."

Under questioning, both Moye and Pascasio had difficulty at times recalling times and other details of some of the questioning which led to the two confessions.

Both former deputies were asked if any rewards were offered or if they or anyone else made any threats or show of violence towards Parker. Both said, no.

Moye, Pascasio and Essex County (N.J.) Sheriff's Investigator Santos Madica said Parker was warned of his rights at the time of this arrest and before and after the confessions. The former Pitt County officers said that at no time did Parker request a lawyer or ask to make a telephone call.

Madica identified a police photo of Parker, indicating a slight blimish under the left eye. Madica earlier had testified that he struck Parker during his arrest as Parker reached under a sofa cushion as officers approached him.

A written waver of rights, signed by Parker, was also introduced.

Pascasio told the court that Parker, in the early minutes of lengthy questioning, denied the slayings, but then admitted killing both Thorbs and Herring with a gun and knife.

Pascasio said Parker wrote a single paragraph statement during the first hour, saying: "On Feb. 19, I murdered Rev. Leslie Thorbs and Anthony Ray Herring with knife and gun," and signed it.

Later, Pascasio said, Parker hand wrote a nine-page statement which said in part: "I took gun, and shot driver (Herring) three times and passenger (Thorbs) one time."

The statement also said the gun was thrown into the river, blood was washed from the car, and that clothing was burned in a barrel.

Parker's statement also said he killed Thorbs and Herring for money and the car, and that a dimond ring taken from Thorbs' body was thrown away.

Parker's statement also said he told Ms. Pippins the day before the murders that he was "going to kill" Thorbs for money and his car. The statement added that Thorbs was a friend of Parker's and that Parker did not know that Herring would be at Thorbs' home.

PROSECUTING ... Dwight Parker in Pitt County Superior Court on two counts of first degree murder and armed robbery is District Attorney Tom Haigwood.

Parker's statement continued by saying he asked Thorbs and Herring for a ride to Greenville and that they drove to a spot near Ms. Pippins house near the Pitt-Greenville Airport. "I killed the two near Carolyn's house and gave the car keys to Terry Best," the statement said.

Moye testified that Parker was brought back to North Carolina by plane, which landed at Raleigh-Durham Airport, and said Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley and Deputy Geary Johnson met them at the airport.

Defense attorney Milton Williamson then asked Moye "weren't they there because Sheriff Tyson had been warned that Parker had been assaulted?"

Moye responded by saying, "Yes sir."

Planning Group Okays Meadowbrook Units

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission approved a preliminary plat Tuesday night calling for the development of 26 scattered sites in the West Meadowbrook Community Development area with 40 units of conventional housing.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Greenville Housing Authority, told the board that the 40 units were allocated initially in 1981 by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Renewal but problems were encountered with a proposed site on Arlington Boulevard. Laney said the scattered sites, which HUD prefers, were then obtained in West Meadowbrook, including some $60,000 worth of CD property bought from the city.

Laney noted that the 40 units will be similar in appearance to the authority's Hopkins Park development off Evans Street. Thirty-eight of the structures will be duplexes, with two units designed for single family use.

The planning board voted to recommend that the City Council approve a request by M.E. Porter to annex 48 acres, zoned for R-6 residential use, located adjacent to Landmark Street, the Seaboard Coastline Railroad, Belvedere subdivision, and Nichols Shopping Center.

Bobby Roberson, planning director, said the property is located behind the Sheraton Hotel now under construction and would result in real and personal property taxes amounting to over $167,500 at full residential utilization. Roberson said no additional expense to the city operating departments with respect to service is anticipated as a result of annexation.

A request by the city's CD office to rezone 1.01 acres, located at the corner of Greene and 12th and Washington and 12th Streets, from unoffensive industry to R-6 residential, was endorsed for recommendation to the council. Andy Harris, CD administrator, said the city proposes to move two houses suitable for rehabilitation to the property. He said the structures would be brought up to full code standards and then resold.

Harris pointed out that an effort would be made to give residents relocated from the area under the South Evans redevelopment project first opportunity to buy the renovated homes. He said that out of 280 housing units in the 118-acre South Evans project area, 227 were found to be substandard and 82 were beyond repair.

According to Harris, nearly $3 million has been approved so far for the South Evans area, with the total project cost, including acquisition, rehabilitation, relocation assistance, and demolition, amounting to over $4.5 million.

Preliminary plats accepted by the board included:

— Rollinwood, containing 88 units on 12 acres, located on the north side of Greenville Boulevard, S.W., east of Shenandoah-Tucker Farms and south of Greenville Golf and Country Club;

— Shamrock Townhomes, revised, containing seven units on one-half acre, located on the south side of West Fifth Street just west of Albemarle Avenue;

— Colindale Court, containing 45 units on about 3.8 acres, located in Kensington Park subdivision on the west side of N.C. 43 and south of Oakmont Professional Plaza; and — Upton Court, containing 53 units on about 4.5 acres, located in Kensington Park.

Danny Jacobson was welcomed as a new member of the planning board.

Mebane Files For Council

F.H. Mebane, a retired educator, announced his candidacy for one of six seats on the Greenville City Council.

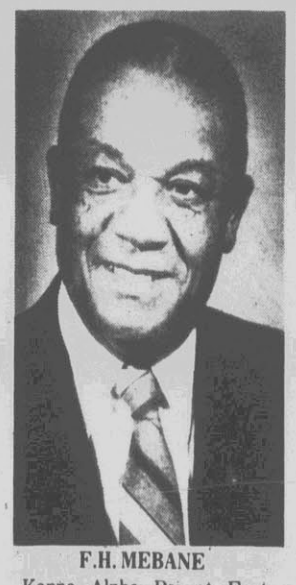
A native of Beaufort County, Mebane has lived in Pitt County 39 years, during which time he taught at and was appointed principal of H.B. Sugg School in Farmville. He later served as administrator at Beaufort Community College and retired in 1982.

"I've always been concerned with those issues which affect the good life of the citizens," Mebane said. "I am people-oriented. As a retired individual I will have time to listen to the concerns of the citizens and the time to study to find out what is best for Greenville in terms of state, local and federal grants and programs.

"I am willing and dedicated to do whatever is necessary and whatever is for the best interest of all citizens of Greenville," added Mebane.

The candidate has served two terms on the board of directors of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center and was chairman of the nominating committee during his last term. He has also served on the board of directors of Sheppard Memorial Library for two terms. Currently he is on the board of the West Greenville Development Commission.

Mebane serves as advisor to the Eta Psi Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi at East Carolina University. He is also a member of the Bachelor Benedict Club, the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP and the A&T State University and New York University alumni associations.



F.H. MEBANE

The candidate is a member of Philippi Church of Christ and serves on the Deacon Board. He is a past president of the General Sunday School convention, Disciples of Christ. He is married to the former Beulah Whitfield and they have one daughter, Gracie M. Vines.

He belongs to the North Carolina Association of Educators, the North Carolina Retired School Personnel and the American Association of Retired Persons.

Key Parts Of Plane May Be Located

WAKKANAI, Japan (AP) — A top Japanese maritime official said today the United States may have located "crucial portions" of the wreckage of a downed South Korean airliner in the Sea of Japan.

Rear Adm. Masayoshi Kato of the Maritime Safety Agency did not specify what the portions might be or whether they had been recovered. But he said the search for debris and victims of the jetliner might be drawing to a close in the next few days.

He noted that the Soviets have set a time and place to turn over "items and documents" recovered earlier from the aircraft, which was shot down Sept. 1 by Soviet interceptors.

"The search operations are reaching a critical point with the news of the Soviets handing over material recovered by their ships," Kato said.

In Washington, both Pentagon duty officer Lt. Col. Bill Hudson and Navy duty officer Lt. Roger Still said they had no information about U.S. vessels locating crucial wreckage.

Korean Air Lines Flight 007 was shot down by air-to-air missiles after it wandered into Soviet air space on a flight from Anchorage, Alaska, to Seoul. The 269 people aboard were killed.

The search — pitting a Soviet flotilla against U.S., Japanese and South Korean vessels — is focused on recovering the flight data recorder that might explain why the jumbo jet went astray.

U.S. officials in Washington said the U.S. Navy salvage tug Narragansett had twice picked up and then lost the "pinging" signals from the so-called "black box" carried in the Boeing 747's tail section.

Pentagon spokesman Benjamin Welles said the signals were heard in international waters about 2,500 feet deep.

There were unconfirmed reports the Soviets had found the black box, but Pentagon sources were skeptical.

"We've heard they may have found something, but it could be a plant," said one source, suggesting the Soviets may announce finding a black box that had been doctored to support Soviet charges the KAL flight was on an American spy mission.

Kato said the Americans had "lagged behind" the Soviets in searching for the flight recorder, "but there is a possibility that the United States has located crucial portions of the aircraft far away from where the Soviet fleet is operating."

HAIR AND HISTORY

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Hair is a keeper of history, says Dr. Taft Toribara, an environmental scientist at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Using a unique hair analyteph maasared the chemical elements in the hair of two 4-century-old, fish-eating Indians discovered frozen in ice in Barrow, Alaska.

The "Barrow bodies" contained more lead than modern Arctic inhabitants, suggesting the ancients used lead utensils or leaded pottery. Their very low zinc levels — not surprising, since fish is very low in zinc — may help explain their small size, says Toribara. Mercury levels were also low, suggesting that fish were less contaminated then.

More Students Preparing For Technology Jobs

By DOROTHY GAST
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — At a time when officials are pressing the need to prepare students for high technology jobs, the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville has doubled its undergraduate enrollment in chemical engineering.

In the meantime, the number of bachelor's degree candidates in computer science in Arkansas has grown from 531 in the 1980-81 school year to 633 the following year, the state Department of Higher Education said. Newer figures weren't available, but department officials expect enrollment to keep growing.

"All the talk about high technology hasn't escaped the attention of young people," Gary Chamberlin, director of the Higher Education Department, said. "They tend to be drawn to areas where they know there will be excellent opportunities. Being prepared in Arkansas is going to be important to attract industry."

Increasing enrollment in UA's chemical engineering department is important because the chemical industry employs more Arkansans than any business aside from agriculture, Jim Gaddy, department director for the past three years, said.

The industry includes paper, mineral and petroleum businesses like International Paper, Reynolds Metals and Murphy Oil.

UA officials say undergraduate enrollment in chemical engineering has doubled to 320 during the past two years and the number of graduate students has increased from seven to 52. Gaddy said there will be 400 undergraduate students in the department this fall, and graduate enrollment will be 65.

Are there jobs in Arkansas for all these chemical engineers? "No," Gaddy said. "Not all our graduates will be able to find employment in Arkansas, but many of them will. The intention is not to simply graduate just the number of students that can be employed in the state of Arkansas. You have to build your technological base, then build your industrial base on that."

UA is the only school in Arkansas that offers a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering, Chamberlin said. But every four-year college and university in Arkansas offers bachelor's degrees in either computer science or data processing.

Gaddy said his department set enrollment goals in 1980. "We visited about 100 high schools last year to talk about chemical engineering and the chemical engineering profession," he said. Last year's freshman class included five national merit scholars and 13 high school valedictorians, he said.

Dear Abby

Dates Turn A Deaf Ear To Money Talk

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My parents wouldn't let me date guys until my 16th birthday last April, so this is a new problem to me. Who should pay for the date?

All the guys I've gone out with insist on paying for everything. I've offered to pay for my own pizza, movie or to contribute for whatever it costs, but I'm not allowed to. Some even take my offer as an insult.

If a girlfriend asks me to eat out or to see a movie with her, I would automatically assume we will go Dutch, right? Why should it be any different with a guy? My parents and friends say I'm crazy — the guy always pays. Why should he? I have a job, too, and can pay my own way.

MONEY MATTERS IN IOWA

DEAR MONEY: When a guy asks a girl for a date, he is asking her to be his guest — so he pays. Feeling as you do (and I think it's a great idea), if you want to treat a guy in return for his treating you — ask him to be your guest.

You're not "crazy," you're just ahead of your time.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My granddaughter, whose father is my son, is being married soon, and I am making the trip from several states away to attend the wedding. I have always stayed with my son and his wife, who have a lovely home, but I was informed that this time they would put me up in a hotel because the parents of the groom will be occupying their guest room.

Abby, I am a 73-year-old woman and not in the best of health. The parents of the groom are much younger and in better health than I am. Just what is the protocol in this situation? Don't you think I am more entitled to stay at my son's home than the parents of the groom? Should I express my disappointment?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR JUST: There is no "protocol" concerning who is more entitled to occupy your son's guest room. Please don't cast a cloud over this joyous occasion by expressing your disappointment.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is for the lady who had the swimming pool dilemma. The neighborhood kids climbed over her fence to use her pool. She couldn't afford to feed the whole neighborhood, and she didn't have time to play lifeguard every day.

Years ago I had a friend who had the only pool in the neighborhood. This friend called a neighborhood meeting and invited all the children and their parents in the block — on both sides of the street. Everyone who wanted to use her pool showed up.

This is what she told them:

"1. If you want your child to use our pool, you will accompany your child.

"2. You must provide your child with his own towel.

"3. You will feed your child at home before he comes to swim. No eating here!

"4. When the pool is open for guests, you will see a flag in my front yard. If you do not see the flag, that means the pool is closed to visitors."

Needless to say, my friend had made herself clear. The kids in the neighborhood loved swimming in her pool, and she was never pestered by ringing doorbells or telephone calls asking if "we" can come over to swim.

I think she handled the situation beautifully. Print this if you think it will help others with this dilemma.

P.M.

DEAR P.M.: I think it's a great idea, though a tad tardy for some this year. But there's always next year.

A Harvest Of Quilts Is Planned

CHAPEL HILL — A harvest of quilts at the Horace Williams House on Rosemary Street here will be held Oct. 9 through Nov. 6. An opening reception for the show, directed by Erma Kirkpatirck, will be held Oct. 9.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 2-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; however it will be closed Oct. 22-23.

There will be approximately 20 quilts in the show, all evocative of the harvest season in color, name or association. The oldest quilts "Cotton Boll" and "Sunburst" were made in the mid-1880s. The newest one "Autumn Orchard" is by Diane Wold. "Cotton Boll" is one of three quilts on loan from the N.C. Museum of History in Raleigh.

Each Saturday of the show, a demonstration of quilting on a frame will be given by members of the Durham-Orange Quilters. On Sunday afternoons, Jackie Forward of Raleigh will demonstrate quilting in a hoop.

A problem solving session will be held Oct. 12 and again Nov. 2. Several local quiltmakers will be available to help interested persons with quilting problems, identify a quilt pattern or guess the age of an old quilt.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler

Pitt Home Agent

Your Wood Can Last For Centuries

Wood siding has displaced brick as the most popular exterior finish for homes in many areas of the country.

Wood can perform well for the lifetime of the building if the homeowner remembers to follow a few simple steps in maintaining the siding.

If you have a newly constructed home the first decision is what type of finish to use on the wood. Homeowners have three basic choices, a semi-transparent stain, a solid stain or a paint.

If you want to show the texture and color differences in the wood a semi-transparent stain is for you. If you want a uniform color but still want to maintain the roughness of the wood you may choose a solid stain. To get a uniform color and smooth finish use a paint. Paints give a thicker film on the wood surface than do stains. For solid wood siding such as cedar or cypress you would probably choose a semi-transparent stain whereas for hardboard siding you would choose a paint.

Extension forest specialist at N.C. State University recommend leaving the siding unfinished because the wood will usually change color unevenly, some areas going silver and others black. Another thing they don't recommend is the use of varnish on wood siding. It just won't last in the sun and rain.

For the longest paint life you should use a top of the line paint, apply one coat of primer and two top coats. The extra life of the finish will more than cover the extra cost of the paint.

When you get ready to refinish the siding be sure to remove dirt and mildew from the surface. One advantage of stains is that they are easier to refinish because they penetrate into the wood more than paints and are less likely to peel or crack.

With paints remove all loose paint, clean with a bleach solution to kill any mildew and then repaint. If you repaint without preparing the surface properly you are wasting your time and money.

MORE VISITORS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The visitor industry, second largest retail industry in the United States and the third largest business in Kansas City, has increased 27 percent here over 1982.

Visitors to this city are expected to generate more than $1 billion in 1983, according to Patrick A. Tierney, convention bureau president.

Tierney attributed this year's increase to an upturn in the national economy and an increase in travel within the region. He says the city is considered an attractive meeting site because of its central location and moderate costs.

Higher Standards

Last week the State Board of Education took action to strengthen the math instruction program in the public schools.

Superintendent Craig Phillips was directed to develop a plan which will implement recommendations including higher pay for math teachers and additional math requirements for high school graduation.

The plan calls for higher standards of math instruction. Also included are financial incentives including loans to prospective math teachers while they are still in college, higher pay for math teachers and payments for attending training sessions.

Emphasis on computer instruction and calculator use would begin in elementary schools.

Cost of the program will be determined as the recommendations are implemented.

There is no question that the bolstering of math instruction should proceed. The young people coming through the schools today will be faced with a world of computers and technology tomorrow. If they do not have a basic knowlege of math they will be ill prepared for careers which will be opening up in the future.

Difficult Decisions

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin formally resigned last week after six years in office which went from peace with Egypt to war in Lebanon.

Begin will remain as caretaker premier until a successor is chosen but it is likely that his time of influence in Israel is over given the reported condition of his health.

The new government will have to deal with dissension at home and with the nation's strongest ally, the United States. It will also have to resolve the matter of Israeli troops in Lebanon.

As always, Israel will virtually have to be obsessed with security which means funds will be drained from the economy for the military.

There will be difficult decisions for the new prime minister.

Conservatives Don't Like Hunt's Press

RALEIGH — Is Gov. Jim Hunt getting a free ride from the state's press? North Carolina conservatives, long critical of the state's major circulation daily newspapers, think so and they've been complaining about it for as long as Hunt's been getting his name in print.

At a recent discussion sponsored by the Eastern N.C. chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, a representative of Sen. Jesse Helms — who is likely to be challeneged by Hunt in the 1984 U.S. Senate campaign — outlined his complaints about a liberal bias in the state's press.

Claude Allen, Helms' campaign secretary, said the press favors Hunt in four ways. First, the press has furnished both Hunt and Helms with labels. Hunt, Allen noted, is often described as a "moderate and a progessive." Helms, on the other hand, is described as "ultra-conservative and right wing" — less flattering descriptions.

Second, Allen claims that the state press has failed to explore issues which would be damaging to the governor's reputation.

Third, Allen claims that the press uses a double standard in reporting political news. Only Republicans get criticized for using negative advertising. Only polls which favor the Democrats get reported.

Fourth, the press fails to hold Hunt's feet to the fire. He's not held accountable for changes in positions.

In the discussion which followed, Allen's charges got roughed up a bit, but a few also stuck. He weakened his complaints seriously when he refused to limit his criticism to the large dailies in the larger cities. Asked if his criticisms were meant for conservative papers in towns like Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and elsewhere, Allen said they were.

Hunt's representative on the panel, deputy aide Brent Hackney, said it was proposterous to lump all of the state's press under one characterization. He noted that in Greensboro, two papers owned by the same company are often diametrically opposed on issues that hit the editorial page. Claiming that the entire state press was biased against Jesse Helms just didn't hold water.

Allen's charge that the press doesn't report stories that damage Hunt is refuted by his own National Congressional Club. The club often runs newspaper and TV ads with all of their allegations supported by press clippings.

On the question of failing to hold Hunt to his previous positions, Allen hits a weak spot in the North Carolina press. Turnover is rampant in the Raleigh press corps. Of the reporters who regularly cover Hunt's press conferences, only two were in Raleigh in 1976 when the governor was first elected. Only two or three more were around when he was reelected in 1980. That lack of experience no doubt makes it easier for Hunt to shift gears and get away with it.

Sen. Gerry Hancock, D-Durham, a fellow panelist, labelled Allen's allegation as a campaign tactic. "This is an effort to intimidate the press, an effort to cause them to overcompensate" and give preferential treatment to Helms.

Running against the press is no novel tactic and Helms won't be the only press critic running this year. Expect at least one Democrat gubernatorial candidate to do the same thing. But for Helms, it's a natural tactic. His National Congressional Club has been doing it for years. This year, he can take a bit of Hunt's shine away if he gets people believing that everything they know about Hunt came through a biased press.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I would like to respond to the front page article in the Sunday, Sept. 18 paper concerning utilization of nursing personnel at PCMH.

The situation is an example of a grevious misunderstanding on the part of the administration as to the definition of a registered nurse.

Until legislation changes the issue, a registered nurse is an individual who has undergone a required course of study in preparation to take and successfully pass a rigid examination set up by the State Board of Nursing. This examination qualifies an individual for licensure to practice as a health care provider. He/she functions under decisions made by physicians and self sound judgement.

I am presently an associate degree nurse with intentions of persuing a BSN. Most nurses are coming to the full realization that nationwide, it will indeed be a future necessity to obtain a BSN for nursing to gain and to maintain a proper professional standing.

A truly professional standing will be realized only when standardized programs for nurse education are developed. This includes the current BSN.

I, along with many other highly skilled, intelligent, devoted and motivated AD and diploma nurses have an absolute right to feel some indignation, frustration and yes, anger, at this absurd editorial (article).

What we have in reality is a matter of instituting a one-entry level nursing education process. It is indeed unfortunate that the current three-entry level nurse education programs all culminate in a universal state board test to be a licensed registered nurse. Therefore, until further notice, a nurse is a nurse is a nurse.

Salaries and positions should be based on performance, merit and experience solely, not on AD, diploma or BSN educations.

Attorneys, Prosecutor Are Well Known

RALEIGH (AP) — When Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green goes on trial Oct. 17 on five bribery-related charges, he will not be the only man in the courtroom whose name is known across North Carolina.

Prosecutor James L. Blackburn and defense attorneys Wade M. Smith and Howard F. Twiggs also have earned state reputations for their experience in the court or Legislature.

Blackburn, 39, is perhaps best known as the prosecutor who helped convict former Green Beret Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald in 1979 in the beating and stabbing deaths of his wife and two young daughters.

The trial is the subject of a recently released novel, "Fatal Vision," by Joe McGinniss. It also was one of the subjects on CBS' 60 Minutes national television show last weekend.

Smith was one of the attorneys who represented MacDonald in that case.

Blackburn has spent most of his life as a prosecutor so it was a natural choice for acting Wake County District Attorney Colon Willoughby to select him as a special prosecutor in the Green case.

After graduating from law school in 1969, Blackburn joined the staff of then Attorney General Robert Morgan. He served in that office until 1977, rising to head of the consumer protection division and special prosecution section.

From 1977 until 1980, he served as first assistant to U.S. Attorney George M. Anderson. Morgan, by then a U.S. senator, recommended him for the job as U.S. attorney when Anderson resigned.

Blackburn left office as U.S. attorney in September 1981 after the Repuublicans took office in Washington.

Before he left, his office indicted former state AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby for conspiracy and defrauding the U.S. government and it launched the Colcor investigation into political corruption that eventually led to the charges against Green.

Smith, 45, became involved in the MacDonald case after serving two terms from Wake County in the state House. Twiggs, Smith and his brother, Roger Smith, are listed among the nation's top criminal defense lawyers by Harvard Law.

It is that reputation which probably sold Green on having Twiggs and Smith, said several Raleigh lawyers who were interviewed.

"They'll rise to the occasion," said Sam Johnson, a Raleigh attorney who served in the Legislature with Smith and Twiggs and who is now a lobbyist. "They won't necessarily try to make a theater out of it."

All three attorneys are known for their preparation, say other Raleigh lawyers.

Smith was a Morehead Scholar and halfback on the football team while at the University of North Carolina. He passed up the chance to play professional football for the Houston Oilers and the Oakland Raiders to go to law school.

When he completed law school in 1963, he became a research assistant for a state Supreme Court justice and then an assistant solicitor in Wake Superior Court. He entered private practice in 1966.

Smith and Twiggs collaborated in an unsuccessful legislative effort to have the new state art museum built in downtown Raleigh instead of the suburbs. They succeeded in rewriting part of the pretrial criminal procedures.

Twiggs said Smith sat next to him on the House floor.

"We've always been very good friends," Twiggs said. "It will be nice to get back with him."

Twiggs, 50, has been in private law practice since 1958. He served four terms in the state House from Wake County, beginning in 1967. At the time he was elected, he was president of the Raleigh Jaycees.

As a legislator, Twiggs tried to set up a board of ethics and more closely regulate conflicts of interest by lawmakers. The former president of the state Mental Health Association led efforts to pass a number of mental health laws, including an update of the state's involuntary commitment law and establishment of a mental patients' bill of rights.

He was instrumental in starting a presidential primary in North Carolina in 1972, getting electronic voting in the General Assembly and making all buildings accessible to the handicapped.

Twiggs became a lobbyist after leaving the General Assembly, working for ERA United in 1975 and for groups including the N.C. Bingo Association in 1983.

Smith also has done some lobbying. In this year's session, he represented such groups as the state chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the N.C. Nurses Association.

Passing The Hat For Ronnie

The Republicans are using President Reagan's reluctance to announce he will run again to their advantage. A friend, Bill Downey from Santa Barbara, just got a letter from Senator Richard Lugar, chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

It said in part "....I just returned from the White House after meeting with the president .... He told me how very worried he was about the outcome of the 33 Senate races that will be gearing up soon.

"He wondered aloud whether that Congressional support would be there if he ran for a second term .... It was then I realized that the president might decide not to run if he thought we were going to lose the only sure support he can count on — our Republican Senate Majority."

Lugar wrote he desperately needed Bill's help to make the president decide to run. "Send President Reagan the special ballot I've enclosed personally urging him to run — before the press, Tip O'Neill and the rest of his enemies convince him not to.... Back your confidence with your contribution of $33. Why $33? Because that's $1 for each Senate seat up for election next year."

The senator from Indiana said he was only sending the ballot to truly dedicated Americans like Bill. "Patriots who'll back up their commitment with their hard-earned dollars."

"Imagine our president's sigh of relief when I personally deliver your ballot to him at the White House. Your personal message and contribution will definitely give him the strength and determination that he'll need to decide to run again."

Lugar ends the letter by saying, "It's in your hands now William L. Downey. I urgently need to hear from you. Tomorrow may be too late."

Well, I wish I could report my friend Bill responded to Senator Lugar's passionate appeal affirmatively. But he feels if the president needs Downey's blessing, plus $33, before he makes up his mind to run for re-election, maybe Reagan shouldn't go for it.

Bill felt very bad about it. But as he wrote me when he enclosed the Lugar letter, "Thirty-three dollars is exactly the amount of the tax cut the president gave me last year, and I don't see why I have to give it back to him."

Meanwhile back at the White House, Senator Lugar walked into the president's office with a grim look on his face.

"Any word from Downey in Santa Barbara?" the president asked.

Lugar shook his head. "It's been two weeks and not a peep."

"well," said the president, "that does it. I'm not going to run in 1984."

"Please reconsider, sir. The letter could have gone astray, or maybe it went to the wrong Downey. Why don't you call him?"

The president shook his head. "It's no use, Dick. I've been talking to Tip O'Neill, the press and the rest of my enemies, and they've convinced me not to run for a second term. If true patriots like Downey won't send in a lousy $33 so I can have a Republican Senate, I might as well go back to the ranch."

"I'll go out and talk to Downey myself. Maybe I wasn't clear in my letter how important his check was in making your decision."

The president looked out the window at the Rose Garden. "It's a waste of time. When Downey makes up his mind, nobody can change it. You've done all you can, Dick. I'm not going to announce for another term if the people don't want me."

"Please Mr. President, you have to think of the country first. There are millions of people out there who are praying you will run again. We could still win the Senate without Downey's $33."

"How?"

"I'll write a letter to another dedicated American."

"Do what you want, Dick. But I'm going to tell Nancy to start packing the china."

Uneasy Leader

AUGUSTA, Maine — Palpable apprehension shadowed Walter F. Mondale last week as he retailed his politics a third straight day in Maine one-on-one with inscrutable Down Easters, seeking support for a straw vote that should be a minor way station in the Democratic presidential marathon.

It is anything but minor for Mondale. The State Democratic Convention here Oct. 1, at which delegates will cast presidential preference ballots meaningless in terms of the actual nominating process, has become crucial to him. A defeat by party regulars, his bedrock strength, would be devastating. Indeed, anything less than impressive victory would hurt.

That's why Mondalites are apprehensive about Maine, a microcosm of his uneasy front-runner status nationally. Most of the 3,000 state convention delegates (of whom about half are apt to show up in Augusta Oct. 1) say they are undecided. Beyond reflecting the Down East personality, these Democratic party workers also are flashing this message: Mondale has not turned them on and they harbor doubts about his electability.

Accordingly, Democratic insiders here doubt an overwhelming Mondale win and even suggest the remote possibility he might finish second. Sen. John Glenn is breathing hard on Mondale's neck nationally, but his political managers decided not to make a major effort for the straw vote. That renders Maine even more politically surrealistic. Mondale's principal challenger here seems to be the other Fritz: Sen. Ernest P. Hollings of South Carolina.

Key 1980 Carter-Mondale leaders here who trashed Ted Kennedy's challenge in his back yard are supporting Hollings. Maine Democrats attribute that to a high-and-mighty attitude earlier this year by the Mondale campaign that ignored its faithful. Mondale insiders concede that as a major cause for defection to Hollings of such prominent Democrats as secretary of state Rod Quinn and former state Democratic chairman Severin Beliveau.

But Hollings has more than big names. The handsome, courtly Southerner has charmed Maine by concentrating his campaign in this thinly populated state. Although the Maine Teachers Assn. is likely to follow the National Education Assn. (NEA) preference for Mondale, teachers who had just heard him speak in Portland told us their hearts are with Hollings.

Earlier that day in Augusta, one liberal delegate confided a preference for Hollings "because he's a real Southern gentleman." That reason may reflect belief that the straw vote really settles nothing, permitting a free vote. Politicians such as Beliveau hardly conceal the fact that backing Hollings is more fun than serious politics.

Compounding Mondale's problems here is his nemesis on the left: Sen. Alan Cranston. Cranston has virtually transplanted his national staff in the soil of Maine, which is not at all rocky for nuclear freeze advocates — including many transplanted city folk — along the Atlantic coast. Meeting such delegates (who seem largely unaffected by the Korean airliner shootdown), Mondale declares a bit plaintively: "I was the first candidate to call for such a freeze."

Realizing that nothing less than victory is acceptable here, the well-oiled Mondale operation has applied the pressure on this small state. The budget is estimated at a staggering $200,000 to $250,000. Over 50 bright young Mondale organizers blanket the state. Jim Johnson, the campaign's acting national chairman, paid a hurried visit last week. Mondale operatives have been pressing Gov. Joseph Brennan for an endorsement before Oct. 1.

Mondale himself has scheduled seven days here in the month of September, showering attention on individual voters that would seem excessive even for a city council race. In understated Maine, Mondale's high-powered stump style was traded in for a conversational tone seldom interrupted by applause.

His remarks at delegate receptions concentrate on reciting the full panoply of President Reagan's alleged sins. Although Mondale's inclusion of nerve gas along with the B-1 and MX as unacceptable "major" weapons systems seems directed against the absent Glenn, he specifically mentions no Democratic presidential rival. Mondale talks about the KAL 007 disaster only when asked, then suggests sanctions that "sting more" than Reagan's.

Strength For Today

What is life? No one knows save that it is a vast and vital force which pervades the planet on which we live. But one things we do know about life is that it comes from God.

Rationalists may be skeptical, but it is hard to move this statement out of the thinking of sensible people. In the beginning God created the world, its creatures, the heavens and last and greatest of all, God keeps on pouring life into the universe. Not only are people born physically, they are born mentally and spiritually.

It is a marvelous thing to get the feel of what is going on around about us. The creator God is still at work conferring life. Our universe is a living universe. Our own dull lives are constantly being assailed by a power which, if we so permit, will cause us to live abundantly.

Seedling Orders Available

Application forms for ordering forest tree seedlings from the three North Carolina state nursuries will be available in early October from the Pitt County offices of the Division of Forest Resources, Agricultural Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service according to county farm agent Sam Uzzell.

The seedlings may be used, said the agent, in windbreaks, forest plantings and erosion control. More seedlings are available this year than last year, Uzzell added, but he noted that many species, particularly the genetically improved lots, are quickly sold out. Increased awareness by landowners of the value of prompt reforestation with good planting stock is credited for the demand.

Uzzell said the following species are currently available: loblolly pine, (Piedmont and improved Piedmont and coastal and improved coastal) longleaf pine, improved longleaf pine, slash pine, improved slash pine, improved shortleaf pine, improved Virginia pine, two-year-old white pine, red cedar, black walnut, black locust, improved sweetgum, yellow poplar.

Seedlings are allocated in the order the applications are received, said Uzzell. Applications must be accompanied by full payment by check or money order (no cash).

Uzzell recommended seeing a forester to match species before ordering. For further information contact Uzzell at 752-2934.

They Call Him Mr. President

ATLANTA (AP) — It's been almost three years since Jimmy Carter was in the White House, but students in a political science class at Emory University still call him Mr. President.

Carter, the university's most famous professor, began his second year of teaching Tuesday by conducting a political science class at the Atlanta university.

Carter answered the students' questions about his administration and occasionally criticized the performance of his predecessor, President Reagan, during the guest lecture of more than an hour.

The former president told the students that many of his accomplishments while in the White House proved damaging politically. He pointed to the normalization of America's relationship with Red China and the Panama Canal Treaty, both of which Reagan criticized as a candidate.

"I felt while I was president, I should do what I thought was best, despite politicial consequences," Carter said. "I addressed the issues forthrightly and tenaciously, and many of them were unpopular."

Carter said he should have campaigned more heavily for re-election in 1980 despite the American hostage crisis in Iran. He said a bolder move against Iran would have been more popular but probably would have cost the hostages their lives.

Carter also told the students that America's escalating involvement in Beirut is of increasing concern to Europeans.

"If we commit ourselves to victory, it will be difficult to extract ourselves from there. I would like to see the government of Lebanon prevail and Americans get out," he said.

Carter spoke to a class of 65 students, who had been assigned to read the former president's memoirs and several other standard political science textbooks before Tuesday's class.

"When I heard he was speaking, I got real excited," said Emory freshman Lee Lazarus, an 18-year-old New Jersey resident. "I can't wait until he comes back. He's supposed to speak two more times. I wish he was our regular instructor."

Homecoming Events Set

ECU News Bureau

A weekend of parades, pageantry, football, awards, entertainments and nostalgia is planned at East Carolina University for its annual homecoming on Oct. 29.

This year's theme, "A Pirate's Keepsake: Years to Treasure," will be carried out in parade floats and in special displays on and off campus. The ECU Pirates will meet the Buccanners of East Tennessee State in a 2 p.m. football game.

Homecoming events begin at 9 a.m. with an alumni coffee hour and open house in the Taylor/Slaughter Alumni Center on Fifth Street and a campus-wide open house throughout the morning. Also beginning at 9 a.m. will be a cross-campus run for alumni, students and staff sponsored by the Intramural-Recreational Services.

The annual homecoming parade down Fifth Street will begin at 10 a.m., followed by two events at noon — the annual alumni awards luncheon in Minges Coliseum and a homecoming tailgate party at which the first 300 people to arrive will be given special "tailgate" packages.

After the game, visiting alumni may attend the traditional "keg" social at the Greenville Moose Lodge, with entertainment provided by "The Monitors," or remain in the stadium for the annual band day exhibition and contest.

Evening events include a jazz concert in Wright Auditorium featuring the trio of Loonis McGlohon (Class of 1943) and the ECTC Club Banquet at the Holiday Inn.

Since admission to the game and other events require advance tickets, interested persons should write the ECU Alumni Center for further information. According to Donald Leggett, director of alumni relations, places at the alumni awards luncheon will be limited to the first 350 persons requesting reservations. Luncheon guests will be given VIP parking at Ficklen Stadium.

Farmers in Pitt County are encouragd to pull soil samples from land placed in the Payment-In-Kind Program and have their soil samples returned early, according to Sam Uzzell, county extension agent.

"As fall approaches and the time for taking soil samples draws near, the agronomic division in Raleigh becomes congested with the arrival of hundreds of soil sample boxes," said Uzzell. "By sampling idle (PIK) land, farmers may experience the benefit of having their sample reports returned early and will enable them to receive a greater result from lime which might be suggested to apply."

Uzzell said the early sampling may also aid a farmer in his fertilization program for wheat in the 1984 season.

Supers Leery Of Merit Pay

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Several school superintendents say they're leery of state efforts to devise a merit pay plan for teachers that could be presented to the General Assembly next year.

Donn Dieter, a N.C. Department of Public Instruction consultant, briefed 11 local superintendents Tuesday on what's been done thus far.

Dieter said the plan could allow teachers to progress up a career ladder and be given more money and responsibility at each level. Such a plan would be similar to the "master teacher" concept spawned in Tennessee, he said.

"We're trying to get some notions from people who would be affected on what the obstacles would be and their ideas on ways to overcome those obstacles," Dieter said.

However, some superintendents questioned the need for a merit pay plan when the concept hasn't been endorsed by the Legislature.

"We need to increase teacher salaries first," Asheboro Superintendent Duane Mattheis said.

Reagan Primes Pump For Thurmond

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — President Reagan helped Sen. Strom Thurmond raise $350,000 for his re-election bid next year and told a crowd of more than 3,000 supporters he is confident South Carolina voters will return the senator to Washington.

Speaking at a fund-raising dinner for Thurmond Tuesday, the president described the 80-year-old legislator as "a man of character, wisdom, energy and leadership, and he's one big reason America is back on the road to greatness again."

While Thurmond has yet to say whether he will seek another term, he is expected to announce he will run for re-election.

Reagan, who earlier in the day received an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of South Carolina, gave his administration straight A's in improving the nation's economy and beefing up national defense.

"We've got a recovery train going," he said to a cheering, flag-waving crowd at the fund-raising dinner at the State Fairgrounds.

"We can hold our heads high. I believe with all my heart that the United States is safer, stronger and more secure today, both economically and militarily, than before."

Republican Party officials said supporters paid $100 to $500 each to attend the dinner, believed to be the largest political fund-raising dinner in South Carolina history.

Reagan said he shares Thurmond's concerns about fair-trade agreements with foreign textile competitors. And he applauded the senator's efforts to save the tobacco price support program.

Calling Thurmond his friend and political ally, the president said, "I'm confident, come November 1984, you'll send him right back to Washington to keep on doing a great job as your senator."

Reagan listed Thurmond's long list of achievements and jobs and quipped, "I couldn't get that many roles if I spent the rest of my life in Hollywood."

A former Thurmond staffer and political consultant who works with the Thurmond campaign and asked not to be identified said the purpose of the dinner is to raise a big enough "war chest" to scare away credible Democratic opposition.

A small band of protesters stood outside the fairgrounds and held up signs objecting to a bill granting federal agents personal immunity while on the job. Rick Tyler of Rock Hill, a Libertarian Party congressional candidate, said the bill would give IRS agents a free hand to harass citizens.

Several Reagan supporters shouted "Go home" to the protestors.

Earlier Tuesday, Reagan drew an enthusiastic response from about 9,000 people, most of them students, who crowded onto the USC Horseshoe.

Students held up signs saying "Reagan be strong" and "More money for education, not guns." One man hoisted a sign saying "Russia is murderer" and drew cheers and applause when he carried it through the crowd.

The crowd booed a small group of hecklers at the rear of the Horseshoe and Reagan responded to the protesters by saying, "Is there an echo here?"

In his speech, the president said he believes the nation's education system can be improved without beefing up funding or regulations.

"We need leadership from principals and superintendents, dedication from well-trained teachers, homework and the efficient use of time and good, old-fashioned discipline," he said.

The crowd interrupted the speech several times with applause, responding warmly when Reagan said prayer should be permitted in public schools.

"I just have to believe that the loving God who has blessed this land and made us a good and caring people should never have been expelled from America's classrooms. It's time to welcome him back," Reagan said.

It was the first time in its 182-year history that the school awarded an honorary degree to an incumbent president.

USC Provost Francis Borkowski, in presenting Reagan with the doctor of laws degree, described the president as a man of "lifelong dedication to the principles of democracy and to peace and freedom in the world."

University officials had covered protest signs on dormitory walls flanking the Horseshoe. Officials said the signs objected to the dormitory being evacuated and searched, then sealed off during Reagan's USC visit.

But one student, Michael Flessas, a Columbia junior, said he had come to listen "not so much as a fan, but it's a historical event for the university. I'd like to hear what he has to say.

"I watch TV and hear all the reports of his faux pas," he added. "I want to see what the man is like up close and in person."

Two other groups protested the Reagan visit.

A group of professors and students held a 2:30 p.m. forum in which they critically examined Reagan's policies and discussed whether he should have been awarded an honorary USC degree.

And a group of activist organizations ladled free soup at an entrance to the fairgrounds to protest Reagan's economic policies.

A light drizzle was falling in Columbia when Reagan arrived at Columbia Metropolitan Airport Tuesday afternoon. But the moisture stopped and the sun began shining as ceremonies began at USC. The rain started again after the campus activities and continued until Reagan left Columbia Tuesday night.

Symphony May Tune Up Soon

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Six months of mostly fruitless contract negotiations between North Carolina Symphony musicians and management may be paying off at last, officials say.

A full day of talks Tuesday failed to resolve the impasse, but spokesmen for both sides say they're nearing an agreement. Another round of discussions was scheduled for today.

"We're closer than we have been before," Patricia W. Banko, a musician representative, said Tuesday. "I'm optimistic that an agreement can be reached very soon."

She added, however, that there were "some very important issues to be resolved."

The symphony season has been delayed and a number of concerts canceled as musicians and management have struggled to hammer out a three-year contract.

Weekend talks brought the two sides closer together, said executive director Thomas McGuire. Both management and musicians made concessions, he said, but he wouldn't elaborate.

Weather Cost Has Been High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bad weather has already cost Uncle Sam nearly $867 million this year, and it will be months before the federal toll from this summer's heat and drought can be determined.

There have been 15 presidentially declared natural disasters in 1983 — 14 related to the weather — according to the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The weather disasters have caused federal agencies to allocate $866.8 million to date, plus $14 million for earthquake damage in Coalinga, Calif.

The secretary of agriculture also has authority to declare an agriculture disaster, which may be proposed after the September crop estimates are made public during the next week or two.

Because of the heat and drought, the federal government has already had to reverse a policy that banned farmers from using land set aside for the payment in kind program, under which the government is trying to reduce its huge grain stockpiles by giving farmers free surplus commodities in return for cutting back on the number of acres planted. Farmers can now use the land for grazing.

Roads were buckled and damaged in many areas, and repairs will come from state and federal budgets.

Indeed, state and local governments will spend million making repairs after the various weather disasters across the nation.

The most costly disaster so far in 1983 was declared Feb. 9, in response to storms, floods and mudslides in California.

Federal agencies provided aid to 17,004 families in that disaster, spending $325.4 million, said Bob Blair, a spokesman for the emergency management agency.

California Gov. George Deukmejian had declared a state disaster in January, and city and state emergency services, as well as those of the federal government, strained to cope with the displaced.

The Army Corps of Engineers was called in to try to shore up dams, particularly in the Simi Valley area.

Hurricane Alicia, which struck the Texas coast Aug. 19, ranks second on the list of the year's disasters, but Blair noted that losses in that huge storm are still being calculated.

To date, Blair said, federal agencies have allocated an estimated $158 million because of Alicia, and 11,410 families received federal aid.

Storms, flooding and mudslides struck Utah in late April, drawing an April 29 disaster declaration with $144.7 million spent to aid 1,267 families.

High waters from the Great Salt Lake eroded highways around the lake, damaged dikes protecting nine wildlife refuges and destroyed 4,000 acres of freshwater marsh in the area.

The flood cleanup efforts reportedly cost Salt Lake City itself an estimated $200,000 to $300,000 a day.

Spring floods and storms displaced 7,419 families in Louisiana, where the federal government incurred costs of $143.3 million, Blair said. A disaster was declared there April 20.

The mild winter reduced snow removal costs in some Northern states and the Coast Guard said ice breaking efforts in the Great Lakes and Hudson River were only 10 percent of normal in February, saving fuel, manpower and wear and tear on equipment.

But deep snow struck parts of Texas in February and other Southern states in March, straining local cleanup and rescue budgets.

Here is a rundown of other federally declared natural disasters this year and aid costs incurred by federal agencies:

—Jan. 11, Louisiana, storms and floods, $25.8 million, 2,500 families aided.

—Jan. 27, Washington state, storms and floods, $1.6 million, mostly municipal and utility damage.

—April 16, Mississippi, storms, tornado and flood, $13.2 million, 1,404 families aided.

—April 30, Virgin Islands, storms, floods and mudslides, $4.5 million, mostly municipal and utility damage.

—May 5, California, earthquake, $14 million, 2,427 families aided.

—June 1, Mississippi, storms and floods, $36.7 million, 2,564 families aided.

—June 6, Illinois, storms, tornado and floods, $3.7 million, mostly municipal and utility damage.

—June 10, Oklahoma, storms and flood, $800,000, municipal and utility damage.

Buying And Selling Of Human Organs For Transplant Deplored

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The chairman of a House subcommittee says buying and selling human organs should be illegal, despite the growing demand for them after the discovery of a drug that eliminates most rejection problems.

Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., chairman of the House Science and Technology Committee's subcommittee on investigations and oversight, said Monday he has heard of two brokers of human organs, including a physician who has formed a company for such a purpose.

"It would set up a system of life to the highest bidder, which is inconsistent with our system of values," Gore said in an interview. "It would obscure the distinction between things and people. Things are bought and sold, people are not, and parts of people are not."

But Dr. H. Barry Jacobs, of Reston, Va., said his service would help meet the critical need for kidney transplants, and his firm would interview donors carefully to make sure they gave informed consent.

Jacobs was convicted of mail fraud in 1977 in a case he said involved a $600 billing. His license to practice medicine was revoked in Virginia, but he said he is licensed to practice in Maryland, and is certified in surgery.

Jacobs said he has agents contacting individuals and hospitals overseas to participate in kidney removals and has sent out 8,000 brochures in the United States telling of his service. So far, he has received about 25 inquiries in response, he said, and several hospitals have indicated willingness to remove such organs from donors.

A kidney can be donated by a living person because the remaining organ will take over the work of both kidneys. Medicare will reimburse hospitals for kidney transplants. It is less expensive than continuing to pay for dialysis, mechanical cleansing of the blood required by patients who need a kidney transplant.

Under Jacobs' plan, a donor would set his own price for a kidney. Jacobs said his research indicates American donors are likely to set an average price of $4,000 to $5,000 while foreign donors probably would charge one-fourth to one-tenth of that.

The recipient would pay the donor's price, traveling expenses and Jacobs' fee, which he said would range from nothing up to $5,000.

Jim Buchen, a spokesman for Surgeon General Everett Koop, said Koop "has attempted to discourage" Jacobs from continuing with his plan. He said the Department of Health and Human Services is looking into the situation to determine if current regulations apply to it.

Gore said he also has heard of a New England company promising $10,000 for each organ donated.

Gore also has proposed legislation establishing a national computer registry of organs and needy patients and a national transplant center in place of the 110 regional networks now in place.

"We are on the verge of a whole new era in transplants" because of the discovery of cyclosporin, a miracle drug that virtually eliminates the problem of organ rejection, Gore said. "That means demand will grow by leaps and bounds," he said. But that demand should be met by voluntary donations, he added.

Health Plan For Your Pets

EDINA, Minn. (AP) -- What could be the nation's first pre-paid health plan for pets is the brainchild of a dog-loving sports promoter, but he says he's in it for the money, not to save animals.

Lyman Walters, a former part-owner of the Vancouver Canucks hockey team, says he will serve as president of Pet Health Plan of Minnesota, which will get under way next month.

"I love dogs, there's no question about it. But I'm not in this because I want to save dogs," Walters said recently. "It's completely for the challenge of it, to see if it's feasible and profitable."

"My first reaction was, 'Pal, you're wasting your time,'" said Dr. Thayer Porter, a Minneapolis veterinarian. But Walters persuaded him to be chairman of the board of Pet Health Plan, one of 10 vets who have invested.

"I guess the stumbling block right now is whether the client really wants it," Porter said. "The client has been asking for it, but will he pay for it?"

Last week, the board of directors of the Minnesota Veterinary Association was briefed on the idea. Dr. James Libby, president-elect of the 1,000-member organization, invested in the plan, but said he doubts the board would endorse it.

"It has no track record," Libby said. "They don't know what they're endorsing."

He said there also are no state regulations for the pet health maintenance organization, because it will be Minnesota's first.

The service will offer three plans and for about $50 a year. A dog or cat will get a checkup, shots, and worm checks.

Dr. Edward Clausman, an Edina veterinarian, said he invested in Pet Health Plan because it could cut administrative costs, similar to health maintenance organizations for people. HMOs for humans, which charge a flat rate for health care in a contract between doctor and patient, have become widely accepted in Minnesota. They eliminate the need for separate contracts by doctors and clients with an insurance company.

Clausman said that Pet Health Plan's biggest selling point will be the prevention of large medical bills for pets. He said he recently helped treat a Labrador retriever whose owner eventually spent $1,500 to have the dog's hip replaced.

Walter faced charges in Canada in 1972 of filing a false stock prospectus in a stock offering by a subsidiary of Medical Investment Corp., of Minneapolis, in which he was top officer. The subsidiary, Northwest Sports Enterprise, Ltd., was owned the Vancouver Canucks.

A jury acquitted Walters in 1973. Medical Investment Corp. also operated the Holiday on Ice and Ice Follies shows.

"Mr. Walters is a promoter," Porter said. "Most veterinarians are conservative people. We're not promoters. We have to deal with a promoter-type person."

Will Get First Stars

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) -- Johnny Cash, Loretta Lynn and Barbara Mandrell -- bright lights on the country music scene -- will have bronze stars in their honor outside the Capitol Music Hall in Jamboree U.S.A.'s new Walkway of the Stars.

Fifty musicians are to be permanently honored with stars embedded in the walkway, said J. Ross Felton, vice president and general manager of Wheeling Broadcasting Co., sponsor of the walkway.

The first 50 were limited to performers associated with the Jamboree U.S.A. concert series, celebrating its 50th anniversary Oct. 15, Felton said Monday. The concerts are broadcast live once a week by radio station WWVA, located in the music hall.

Other stars picked from hundreds of nominees were Buck Owens, Merle Haggard, Charley Pride, Tammy Wynette, Conway Twitty and Mel Tillis, Felton said. Space has been left for 50 more performers to be chosen in years to come, he added.

Seek Clues In Triple Homicide

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The 2-year-old daughter of a slain newspaper editor was recovering today from a brutal attack that left the rest of her family dead, as police promised to "devote every man-hour and piece of equipment" to probe the three killings.

A social worker said Tuesday that young Caroline Osborne, who was found bloodied and wandering in the home where her parents and brother lay dead, "knows she has lost something."

Police spokesman Thomas R. Engle said Caroline is "reading books with nurses and playing with toys and carrying on like any 2-year-old."

The bodies of Caroline's father, Dan Osborne, 35, editorial page editor of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel; his wife, Jane, 34, and their 11-year-old son, Ben, were discovered in their home Monday.

Allen County Coroner Roland C. Ahlbrand said autopsies indicated the three victims were killed by blows to the head between Friday night and Saturday morning.

"The father and son were killed at the same time with the same instrument without awakening," Ahlbrand said. "The mother died after a vicious struggle on the first floor, probably after the other two were killed. She probably was in the basement and came up" to find out what was going on.

Police said Caroline underwent surgery for injuries sustained when she was sexually assaulted, and was in good condition today at Fort Wayne Lutheran Hospital.

Patricia Smallwood, director of the Victims Assistance Program for the Fort Wayne police department, said Caroline will need a "lot of love and security.

"She knows she has lost something. I don't think she knows what it is yet," Ms. Smallwood said.

A police statement described the slaying as "the first triple murder in Fort Wayne memory."

"Every man-hour and piece of equipment is and will be dedicated to the solving of this case," the statement said.

Police said Osborne, his son and the family dog, were killed with a baseball bat sometime between 9 p.m. Friday and 5 a.m. Saturday as they slept in an upstairs bedroom.

Police believe Mrs. Osborne was killed by blows to the head with a different object, flatter than the weapon used on her husband and son. A blood-stained portable radio, believed to belong to Ben Osborne, was found about six feet from her body.

Engle said investigators have no suspects or substantial leads in the deaths.

Ahlbrand, who has described the slayings as a "brutal, sadistic slaughter," said he believed Mrs. Osborne was raped, but he could not confirm it medically.

Police later said they recovered "a bloody baseball bat," believed to be a murder weapon, from the girl's bedroom.

"At this point, we have nothing more to go on than a group of seemingly insignificant bits of information," the coroner said. "We're putting it all together in some form."

The deputy police chief said police will re-examine the beating of an elderly man in the neighborhood last week to look for similarities in the attacks.

The two-story brick home on the city's southwest side showed no signs of forced entry or robbery, Engle said.

News-Sentinel associate editor T. Craig Ladwig discovered Mrs. Osborne's body when he drove to their home after Osborne failed to show up for work Monday.

Moments later a policewoman emerged from the house with Caroline, who had blood smeared across her face and was dressed in a bloody nightgown.

Ladwig, who described Caroline as "beautiful, precocious," saw a crust over the girl's eyes, "as though she'd done a lot of crying."

"She wasn't herself. She said to me, 'You're going to stay with me in the house, aren't you?'"

Dietician Is Found Guilty

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state prison system's chief dietician was convicted Tuesday of misusing her state telephone and a state car.

Marsha W. Lilly, 37, a 10-year employee of the Department of Correction, was given a 10-day suspended sentence and ordered to pay the state $3.10 for two telephone calls she made this year and last.

Remember Vietnam Lessons

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — They labor today in the cool green shadows of Central American volcanoes. But for these hardened American soldiers, struggling against yet another guerrilla uprising, the memories linger of rice paddies, jungle trails and debacle half a world away.

"We're going to do it right this time," says a senior U.S. military adviser here.

El Salvador and Vietnam.

Linking the two wars draws quick rebuttal from the Reagan administration.

"There is no comparison with Vietnam," President Reagan said at a July news conference, "and there's not going to be anything of that kind in this."

In a key respect, the situations differ greatly: At the war's height, 525,000 American combat troops were in Vietnam. Here, the American military presence is limited to several dozen advisers, some shuttling in from U.S. bases in nearby Panama.

But the advisers themselves, the men closest to the action, repeatedly invoke Vietnam and its lessons as they plot strategy and appeal for a stronger U.S. commitment to El Salvador. And they frequently sound bitter.

"Don't talk to me about why we didn't succeed in Vietnam," Col. Nicholas A. Andreacchio, holder of the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry, snapped to a reporter. "I did the best I could."

Like many of his fellow officers, this tough, crew-cut 30-year veteran, who is training hundreds of Salvadorans as commandant of a U.S. Army school in Panama, is more confident about the chances for success this time — if U.S. support remains firm.

The senior adviser, who for security reasons cannot be identified, spent three years in Vietnam, two working with Vietnamese army units.

"There are two lessons in particular I think we learned in Vietnam," he said in an interview here.

"First, we've got to keep away from the body-count thing." Exaggerated reports of guerrilla casualties in Vietnam chipped away at U.S. government credibility.

"Second, we now know that small-unit operations at night are the way to go. We weren't doing that early enough in Vietnam. It takes away the guerrillas' war of movement."

And that is the way the Salvadoran army is going as it tries to seize the initiative in the four-year-old war.

Encouraged by Vietnam-seasoned American advisers, the army has turned to new tactics to clear an estimated 1,000 guerrillas from the central Salvadoran province of San Vicente, sending small "hunter" units on nighttime patrols to keep the insurgents off balance. The guerrillas appear to have pulled back.

"In the past, the operations were large-scale, with minimal contact. The army would leave an area after a week, and the guerrillas would come back in," explained an Army major, an El Salvador specialist and Vietnam veteran, at U.S. Southern Command headquarters in Panama.

U.S. advisers have gone into the ruggedly hilly province, dominated by the brooding, 7,200-foot Chinchontepec volcano, to help prepare the hunter units. But the Americans are under strict orders to stay out of combat.

The Salvadorans are coupling these new tactics with a program — similar to the "pacification" plan of the late 1960s in Vietnam — of training local militiamen and rebuilding the provincial economy.

To a man, the almost one dozen U.S. military men interviewed said more will have to be done — the Salvadoran army will have to be enlarged to about 35,000 men from 25,000, the advisory force of U.S. trainers will have to be at least doubled, and the United States will have to ship more aid dollars to the Salvadorans. Many in the U.S. Congress oppose such a step-up in American involvement.

Similarities between the two wars are clear. In both, Marxist-led guerrilla forces rose up against what was perceived as corrupt, undemocratic governments. In both, Washington, perceived the uprising as engineered by foreign Communist powers. In both, the U.S. strategy for victory included a land-redistribution program and elections.

But the differences — particularly in scale — can be just as striking.

The Salvadoran guerrilla force is estimated to number 6,000. The Viet Cong guerrillas numbered as many as 100,000. "The Salvadoran guerrilla is not nearly as well-trained, well-equipped, tactically not nearly as proficient," said the major.

Jeffreys Given Emeritus Status

ECU News Bureau

Professor emeritus status has been conferred upon Dr. Donald B. Jeffreys, retiring member of the biology faculty at East Carolina University. He is widely known for his research involving plant and marine life of the coastal area.

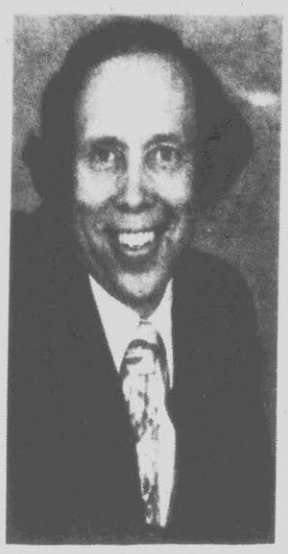
Jeffreys is retiring after 23 years as an ECU faculty member in the department of biology.

"His efforts in teaching, research and service have been of a caliber to which many aspire, but few achieve," said Dr. Charles E. Bland, chairman of the department.

ECU Chancellor John M. Howell conferred professor emeritus status during a departmental ceremony marking Jeffreys' retirement and presentation of the Donald B. Jeffreys Scholarship, established in his honor by the Jeffreys family.

A native of Salem, Va., Jeffreys received his undergraduate degree from Roanoke College, Va., and received graduate degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. A plant physiologist and microbiologist, he taught at Furman University and at UNC-Chapel Hill before joining the ECU faculty in 1960.

His principal areas of research included study of the distribution and ecology of the Venus Fly Trap, an exotic plant native only to southeastern North Carolina, and the microbiology of clams. The UNC Sea Grant Program, the National Science Foundation, and East Carolina University funded much of Jeffrey's research.



DR. DONALD JEFFREYS

In 1978, Jeffreys directed the National Science Foundation's Undergraduate Research Program, held at ECU and at Old Dominion which involved biology students from several colleges and universities.

He is the son of Mrs. George A. Jeffreys of Salem, Va.

Wilson Seeks To End Suit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A discrimination suit against the city of Wilson could end without a trial if a federal judge agrees to a consent order submitted by both parties.

A group of residents had claimed in their suit the city practiced racial discrimination in providing municipal services and the use of federal revenue-sharing funds.

In the consent agreement, the city pledges to implement and complete projects for specific recreation facilities and programs. The city also agrees to pay $65,000 toward the legal fees of the plaintiffs.

The consent agreement submitted Friday says "that the defendants have denied and continue to deny that the city of Wilson has discriminated on the basis of race in the provision of municipal services and facilities."

The agreement will not become final until it is signed by U.S. District Court Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr.

Jewish Museum Treasurers Shown

WASHINGTON (AP) — To museum curator Hana Volavkova, the task she was given by the Nazis was like the biblical Noah's. She cataloged their collected artifacts of Jewish civilization for a gloating "Museum of the Extinct Race."

When Hitler's armies seized the Jewish Museum of Prague, its eight Jewish curators were kept at work rather than sent to the death camps. The Nazis wanted exhibits to ridicule the Jews and to prove that they were an inferior people.

So the curators spent the war years assembling relics of Jewish life — from prayer scrolls to kitchen utensils — seized from 153 Jewish communities in the regions of Czechoslovakia known as Bohemia and Moravia.

The Jews went to the death camps, and their possessions went to the museum.

After 15 years of negotiations, the Czech government has agreed to allow about 350 of those objects to go on display outside of Prague for the first time.

The exhibition, arranged by the Smithsonian Institution's Traveling Exhibitions Service, will open in Washington and visit Miami Beach, Fla., New York, San Diego, Calif., Detroit and Hartford, Conn. in a 22-month tour.

Project director Anna Cohn told a news conference Monday that it was a macabre twist that the Nazis became the overseers of one of the world's greatest collections of Judaica.

She said the project began in 1940 with Hitler's order for the creation of a center of Nazi doctrine and education and Nazi officer Alfred Rosenberg's plan to confiscate Jewish libraries, archives, religious artifacts and personal property.

Soon, trainloads of Jewish artifacts started arriving at the Prague museum. Only two curators survived. In conversation with American curators, one, Hana Volavkova, now 92, likened her task to Noah's and said she viewed the work as a form of spiritual resistance.

The objects that will come to the United States date from the 16th century. The oldest is a banner carried in 1514 by a Jew who claimed to be the long-awaited Messiah.

The display includes richly woven textiles of silk, brocade and velvet; finely wrought objects of silver and gold; stately portraits and other paintings; objects used in Jewish worship, daily life and on the Sabbath; and medieval manuscripts in Hebrew.

The display will be shown at the Smithsonian's National Museum of History Nov. 9 to Dec. 31, then go to the Bass Museum of Art in Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 21 to March 18, 1984; Jewish Museum in New York, April 15 to Aug. 26, 1984; San Diego, Calif., Museum of Art, Sept. 22 to Nov. 11, 1984; to a site still to be announced Dec. 15, 1984 to Feb. 10, 1985; Detroit Institute of Arts, March 12 to May 5, 1985; and Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford, Conn., June 3 to July 29, 1985.

Small Rise In Personal Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income rose 0.2 percent last month, the smallest gain since February, the government reported today.

In addition, the Commerce Department report said personal consumption spending fell 0.3 percent, which was not surprising in light of previously reported declines in retail sales.

The report said total personal income rose $6.5 billion to an annual rate of $2.76 trillion in August after gaining 0.6 percent the previous month.

It was the smallest gain since the 0.1 percent of February and was attributed to reductions in payrolls during the telephone workers' strike and loss of rental income due to hurricane damage in Texas.

Other details of the report said:

—Disposable, or after-tax, income rose 0.2 percent to a rate of $2.36 trillion. It had increased 1.7 percent in July in a jump partly attributed to the tax cut which took affect on the first of that month and a huge drop in the civilian unemployment rate from 10 percent to 9.5 percent.

—Personal consumption spending, which is nearly everything but interest payments on installment debt, fell to a rate of $2.17 trillion in August after rising 0.6 percent the previous month.

Separate government reports have shown that retail sales fell 1.4 percent last month, in what economists said was an inevitable tapering off of the surge in consumer buying during the spring.

—New personal savings reached an annual rate of $123.1 billion. The national savings rate — new savings as a percentage of disposable income — rose to 5.2 percent from the 4.7 percent of July.

—Rental income declined $4.5 billion last month after increasing the previous month because of damage from hurricane Alicia to housing in southwest Texas.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations.

Last month, the report said, American workers' wages and salaries increased $1.9 billion after rising $10.7 billion in July, with the smaller gain "mainly due to the telephone strike" which reduced wages by about $5 billion.

August's total income translates into $10,051 for every man, woman and child in the United States, based on a population estimate of 234.5 million.

Burial Led To Underground Art

RUSHFORD, Minn. (AP) — An artist says he endured unseen bugs, seeping rain water and terrifying visions out of "classic horror movies" during 51 hours in a burial crypt — an underground work he titled "Performance for the Dead."

"It may take a few days to digest this, figuring out what's going on," performing artist Billy Curmano, 34, said Monday night after emerging from his burial for art's sake.

Curmano, 34, was entombed Saturday afternoon by friends and fellow artists. The purposes of the project, he said, were to bring his art to "the other side" as well as to make the living more comfortable with their own mortality.

But if not for some hasty work by friends and foresight on his part, his performance could have had a tragic end.

Water began to leak into the crypt several hours after heavy rain began Monday morning. One end of the crypt had begun to fill with water before Curmano was able to direct the flow to a drainage hole.

Further troubles were averted when friends dug a trench that diverted water away from the grave.

Curmano said he was disoriented by the absence of light and experienced frightening visions, fatigue, a plague of bugs which he couldn't see but could feel and hear, and a craving for an apple.

He said he played musical instruments and tried to dance in the oak vault — which measured 5 feet in height by 3 feet by 8 feet — until fatigue got the better of him. The rest of the time, he meditated, sketched and wrote in his notebook.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, running into some resistance after Tuesday's advance to a record high in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The widely recognized average of 30 blue chips, up 15.25 Tuesday, dropped 2.04 to 1,247.15 in the first half hour today.

Gainers held a slight lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market's strength in recent sessions has been attributed to falling interest rates and hopes for continuing economic recovery.

Today the government issued a preliminary "flash" estimate of economic growth at a 7 percent inflation-adjusted annual rate in the third quarter, with inflation running at an annual rate of 3.2 percent.

But analysts said some traders were concerned that other, broader indicators haven't yet "confirmed" the new high in the Dow Jones industrials. That average was the only one of the several leading market yardsticks reaching a new high Tuesday.

Today's early prices included Coca-Cola, up 1/8 at 48 5/8; U.S. Steel, up 1/8 at 29 3/4, and International Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 44 1/8.

In Tuesday's trading advances outpaced declines by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 103.05 million shares, against 85.63 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .79 to 97.88. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.01 at 237.63.

Proceeding With Plans

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The N.C. Department of Resources Tuesday said it has "no choice" but to proceed with its plans to eliminate 35 beds at Dorothea Dix Hospital in order to reduce the budget.

The Wake County Board of Commissioners on Monday asked the state to reconsider its plan.

"There would be no place for them to go," said James W. Kirkpatrick Jr., county mental health director.

"Wake County does not have alternative services in the community to replace these beds," Kirkpatrick said. "I think pretty clearly that's going to mean that people who need in-patient care are not going to get in, and they are in all probability going to be on the streets."

The department "is sensitive to the concern expressed by the Wake County Board of Commissioners ... But, because of the mandate of the 1983 General Assembly, we have no choice but to proceed with our plan," human resources spokesman Bryan Haskins said in a prepared statement.

Heavy Attack By Druse

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Druse artillery and tanks hammered Souk el-Gharb and Beirut's outskirts today in the heaviest attacks in three weeks, and Lebanese jets and armor battled back.

The U.S. ambassador's residence came under shelling during the night, and the U.S. Navy retaliated with a 10-minute barrage, but the Navy guns were silent today.

Lebanon's army said its Hawker Junter jets flew rocket and strafing sorties over Aley, 9 miles southeast of Beirut, where Druse gun emplacements have been firing at the army trying to hold off attacks in Souk el-Gharb.

Capt. Youssef Atrissi, the Lebanese army spokesman, would not say how many planes took part in the attacks. The air force is believed to have three operational Hawker Hunter jets.

Atrissi said the troops at Souk el-Gharb, which overlooks the U.S. Marine base at Beirut airport, had come under heavy artillery barrages and were returning fire with tanks and mortars.

Western military sources said a tank column was leading the fresh attack on Souk el-Gharb. The artillery blasts coming from Druse guns were so fierce that the entire ridgeline above Beirut was smoking from the shelling.

The Druse attack is a major challenge to Lebanon's army and loss of the strategic town would undermine both the army and the government of President Amin Gemayel.

Lebanon's state radio and the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar said the U.S. ambassador's residence in suburban Yarze east of the capital was evacuated overnight as shells from Druse militia batteries rained around it.

The reports said one shell struck a garden gate and another hit the swimming pool. Personnel in the mansion were taken to the nearby palace of President Gemayel and no one was injured, the radio and the newspaper said.

Associated Press photographer Don Mell, who tried to enter the compound but was turned back by U.S. security personnel this morning, said he saw minor damage caused by a rocket which landed next to the swimming pool.

About 10 yards from the pool, shrub fires were smoldering, but one guard said there was little damage to the residence — "Just some broken glass and a little shrapnel."

A rocket-propelled grenade hit the rear side of an apartment building used as a temporary U.S. Embassy early today, Embassy spokeswoman Beth Samuels said. She said no one was hurt, although the grenade went through two walls of the structure, on west Beirut's main seafront avenue.

Samuels had no comment on the shelling of the residence. But White House spokesman Larry Speakes earlier confirmed that Ambassador Robert Dillon's residence came under fire, prompting a partial evacuation of the compound.

Speakes said Dillon and Richard Fairbanks, assistant to special Middle East envoy Robert C. McFarlane, were at the residence when shells struck, but McFarlane was not in Beirut.

American warships responded to the shelling with a 10-minute barrage against the anti-government gunners in the hills overlooking the capital.

U.S. Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said the destroyer John Rodgers and the guided missile cruiser Virginia "responded" to firing near Dillon's residence. He said the residence was not hit and the 1,200 Marines in the peacekeeping force went on "Condition One" alert at their positions near the Beirut airport.

Police said Druse gunners from Syrian-controlled positions in Lebanon's central mountains escalated their shelling of east Beirut and outlying Christian neighborhoods after the naval bombardment.

The barrages touched off brush fires around the presidential palace, Dillon's residence and the neighboring Defense Ministry compound, police said.

They said at least 71 people were killed and 59 wounded in shelling and fighting around Beirut between Tuesday morning and this morning, raising the overall Lebanese casualty toll to 764 killed and 1,599 wounded since war erupted on Sept. 4.

However, there were no reports of any new injuries during the night among the U.S., French, Italian and British contingents of the 5,400-man multinational peace force.

He did not indicate whether he was referring to the flight recorder or whether he meant "crucial" wreckage had been recovered or located on the sea floor.

Bad weather curtailed the search Tuesday but the weather improved overnight. Japanese observers said the Soviets resumed operations about midnight.

Today, Japanese officials said they observed 20 Soviet surface vessels and two submarines in the search area but only one U.S. ship, the destroyer Callaghen. Seven other U.S. vessels were reported at various times in nearby waters earlier in the week.

Two patrol vessels of Japan's Maritime Safety Agency reported that the Soviet fleet rescue ship Georgi Kosmin and the ocean surveyor Gidronaut lowered two small submarines into waters about 19 miles north of Moneron Island.

Four South Korean trawlers also were in the area, Kato said, while 15 Japanese ships and one South Korean vessel continued their search for debris and bodies in the Sea of Okhostk and in the Pacific Ocean.

The last group of relatives of the passengers killed on board Flight 007 sailed from Wakkanai to a point south of Moneron and threw flowers into the sea. Memorial services were held on board a ferry for the 59 relatives.

Welles said U.S. search ships are being harassed by Soviet vessels.

He cited "continuing instances where U.S. ships have maneuvered to avoid potentially hazardous navigational situations"He also said the Soviets have created "electronic disturbances," apparently to jam the U.S. hunt for the flight recorder.

Soviet officials in Moscow told Japan they would hand over unspecified "items and documents" from the airliner at a rendezvous Monday at Nevelisk, on the western coast of Sakhalin Island.

Kato said a vessel from the non-military Maritime Safety Agency probably would be sent.

In Montreal, the International Civil Aviation Organization opened its 24th assembly Tuesday, and Canada proposed sanctions on nations that use force against errant commercial aircraft and on airlines whose planes disregard rules of interception.

PCMH Discusses Future Expansion

Trustees of Pitt County Memorial Hospital met with Hamilton and Hamilton planning consultant Richard Sawyer of Minneapolis, Minn., during the board's regular meeting Tuesday to discuss plans for further hospital expansion.

"Planning has been completed on Phase I expansion to surgery, emergency room and radiology facilites at the hospital and now we are considering a second expansion phase which was why we met with Mr. Sawyer yesterday," PCMH President Jack Richardson said.

Richardson said trustees also met with medical staff, management personnel and others to determine what areas of the hospital may need additional expansion under the infant Phase II plan.

The board also approved a motion yesterday to purchase two modular units for laboratory and radiology services to be used on an interim basis while Phase I construction is taking place. Richardson said a $60,000 limit was placed on the purchase of the units.

The meeting was closed yesterday with a resolution honoring the late Dr. E.B. Aycock, a Greenville physician who died last month, according to Richardson.

In part, the resolution said: "During his 37 years of practicing medicine in Greenville and Pitt County, he demonstrated that a general practitioner, according to his own remarks, is a little bit of a minister, a lawyer and a confessor as he attempts to help his patients resolve a lot of practical matters as well as treat them for medical conditions ... The Board of Trustees of Pitt County Memorial Hospital wishes to express to Dr. Aycock's family its deep sense of loss at his death and appreciation of his service and devotion to the community and the hospital."

A copy of the resolution has been sent to the family.

Panthers Hope To Control GC Attack

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

The Panthers of North Pitt High School haven't played a game in the 12 days since they sustained a 20-0 drubbing at the hands of cross-county rival D.H. Conley, and now they host a vastly improved Greene Central team to open their 1983 Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference schedule.

While North Pitt had an open date last Friday, the Rams suffered through a narrow 10-8 loss to Northampton West to drop them to 1-2-1 on the season. The Panthers are 0-3 and have not scored thus far.

Farmville Central, which battled to a 21-12 victory over D.H. Conley Friday to improve its record to 1-2, will travel to West Craven, while Conley, now 2-2 on the season, has an open date. The Ayden-Grifton Chargers, now 2-1 after a 26-6 win over North Lenoir, venture to Southern Nash to take on the Firebirds.

In other games around the area, Chocowinity, which tied Mattamuskeet 8-8, travels to Columbia, and Jamesville, a 32-0 winner over Northwest Halifax, travels to Creswell. Roanoke, which lost to Edenton 42-18 last week, hosts Plymouth, while Edenton visits Washington. Bertie travels to Williamston, which defeated Ahoskie 20-13.

NORTH PITT

The first thing the young Panthers will have to do on defense is stop sophomore tailback Anthony Thompson (6-2, 198), who carried the ball 13 times for 134 yards against Northampton.

Edwards, who is averaging 101 yards a game for the Rams, was named to The News and Observer Prep Honor Roll this week for his effort. But as North Pitt coach B.T. Chappell said, Thompson isn't the only player to watch.

"If you concentrate on Thompson too much, they'll come back the other way with (quarterback) Elmer Dixon throwing the football," he said. "They have a very balanced attack. It makes a lot of difference when you've got someone like Thompson can get a couple of more yards with the extra effort.

"We've been running tackling drills this week working on not using arm tackles. I watched their game (against Northampton) and that's a large, physical team they were up against. A couple of breaks either way and they'd have won the game.

"They're doing a lot of positive things I'd like for our team to do. Our seniors look at the way we're executing, and they know we're not playing well enough to win. But they understand they can still win if we play up to our capabilities."

A few changes on offense and defense give the Panthers a slightly different look this week. Along with a few changes in the starting lineup, North Pitt will be without several players who were dropped from the roster.

"If you've got people who won't come to practice and you let them play," Chappell said, "it hurts the morale of the whole team. There may be others who are a little faster or have more raw talent than who we'll put on the field, but at least we know they want to play football and put in the work it involves.

"We've been getting on them about consistency and concentration. We've done a lot of looking at our blocking schemes.

"I don't know if we've improved enough to catch our competition, but I do know we've improved."

AYDEN-GRIFTON

Senior quarterback Doug Coley returned to the Chargers' lineup against the North Lenoir Hawks and announced his arrival by running for one touchdown and passing for another. Coley connected on six-of-nine pass attempts for 82 yards, including a seven-yard TD strike to Maurice Berry.

Ayden-Grifton also got a 90-yard kickoff return for a touchdown from Kelvin Harris, and Chargers coach Dixon Sauls cited the play as one of the biggest of the night.

"Harris continues to be the big force with key blocks and the long kick return," Sauls said. "I'm also pleased with the progress of our kicking game; we covered our kicks well.

"We continued to improve on offense despite an all out nine-man blitz the entire game. Coley returned as a starter, and he's nearly 100 percent.

"Defensively, our play was inconsistant. We didn't play well on goal-line defense; we must defend our goal better."

But the Chargers' conference opener against Southern Nash could be a different story. The Firebirds were shut out 10-0 by cross-county 4-A rival Northern Nash and have an unusual element in the backfield of their slot-I offense.

"Their tailback, Mike Jones, is a 183-pound junior, but the fullback, Bob Maye, is 290 pounds," Sauls said. "He has to get started, but once he does he can cause problems on defense. We have to contain the tailback, but they have outstanding quickness at quarterback as well."

Southern Nash has averaged giving up eight points a game in 1983, but Sauls reamins confident with the Chargers' offense.

"We've got to continue to work on the outside running game," he said. "We have not done a good job so far getting outside with our speed.

"But we're excited about getting into the conference part of the schedule."

FARMVILLE CENTRAL

D.H. Conley quarterback Joel Cox connected on 11 out of 16 passes for 122 yards against Farmville Central, but the Jaguars came away with a 21-12 victory.

"Our pass defense wasn't as bad as it looked on the field last Friday night," Farmville coach Gil Carroll said. "In reviewing the films, you can see that their receivers made some terrific catches.

"I thought our rushing offense was the difference."

Indeed, the Jaguars amassed 184 yards rushing compared to 66 for the Vikings.

But this week the Jaguars must travel to West Craven for their final non-conference game of the season.

"They're a good football team," Carroll said. "We're going to make a few offensive adjustments; we're moving the backs a little deeper. We've got many areas to improve on.

"We'll stay with the fundamentals; we're not going to get fancy. We'd like to pass more, but no more than we need to."

Senior guard Eddie Meeks returned to the Jaguars' lineup last week, and Carroll is hopeful senior Chris Edwards will be ready this week.

"Chris is our biggest player, and he's been out with a broken bone in his hand," Carroll said. "We need him back now; he's been running but hasn't been through any contact drills yet.

"We're going to try to make this our best, most complete game so far. I feel like winning a ballgame makes all the difference in the world on the practice field."

D.H. CONLEY

The Vikings will have the week off to regroup before facing Ayden-Grifton, and coach Gerald Garner is working on discipline.

"The open date comes at an excellent time for us," he said. "We've seen the film (of the Farmville Central game), and it's just a nightmare all over again.

"We've set severe penalties for penalty yardage during a game for the rest of the season.

"I was pleased with the passing game; I think we've formed an excellant passing combination. The shotgun gives our young quarterback (Joel Cox) more time to set up.

"Our punting game with Chris Via kicking the ball continues to be the most stable aspect of our game, and we didn't get blown away on the line."

Aaron's Ring To Be Returned

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Hank Aaron was "absolutely thrilled" to learn he'll get back the diamond ring commemorating his record-breaking 715th home run, a memento stolen from the retired slugger's home two years ago, an Indianapolis television anchorman says.

Cameron Harper, anchorman for WTHR-Channel 13 in Indianapolis, said Tuesday night that he has possession of the ring and hopes to spend the better part of today figuring out how to get it back to Aaron.

The Atlanta Braves, for whom Aaron broke Babe Ruth's home run record, gave Aaron the ring during ceremonies at Atlanta Stadium. The ring was taken during a burglary at Aaron's home a few years ago, Harper said.

"The ring was found here in the black market," Harper said Tuesday. "It was purchased by Indianapolis businessmen Dennis Ahmed. Someone approached him on the street about buying the ring."

Ahmed's attorney, Duge Butler Jr., confirmed the story.

"He bought it for $250, with every intention of giving it back to Aaron," Harper said.

Pirates Banged Up After 50-25 Win

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

The remaining skeptics of East Carolina University's football team wondered how the Pirates could allow an NCAA Division I-AA team such as Murray State to score 25 points. But ECU head Coach Ed Emory was pleased with his troops performance in the 50-25 home opener victory.

"I felt like if we came out and did something good at the start of the third quarter, we could play a lot of people," Emory said at his Tuesday press conference. "We played about 80 people Saturday night trying to get our young players some experience. It was a good time to get a lot of folks in the game.

"I'd rather have the morale of the football team rather than a 40-6 or 50-6 score."

Guard Terry Long and end Jeff Pegues were named the offensive and defensive players of the game by the Pirate coaches, while kicker Jeff Heath and flashy Henry Williams were tapped on specialty teams. Long graded in "the high 90s" for the game, while Heath connected on six extra point conversions and booted field goals of 40 and 27 yards. Williams returned a kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown and maintained second place on the NCAA list of leading returners with a 42-yard per return average.

The Murray State game, along with an open date this week, gave Emory and his assistants a chance to rest some players with recurring injuries.

"We didn't play Steve Hamilton at all that night," Emory said. "Maury Banks and Rally Caparas didn't play. The open date gives us a chance to get back to 100 percent for October.

"I'm very happy we have come out of September as well as we have injury-wise. We're disappointed we aren't 3-0, but we have the opportunity to go into October a better football team.

"Lots of things happened in September; to finish up with with Murray State last week was a good win. I'm thrilled about the notoriety our team has achieved — the players made it all possible."

The Pirates came out of the Murray State game with more injuries than the previous two, with Long heading the list. Emory said Long suffered a bruised shoulder, but it will not keep him out of next week's game against highly-touted Missouri. Also hampered are junior guards Norman Quick and Ricky Hilburn with ankle injuries.

"We haven't been playing many young people on offense," Emory said. "We're going to look at four young guards the rest of this week."

Tackle Jeff Autry may be lost for the season, according to Emory, following a "freak" injury. While hitting a dummy in light drills, Autry injured a knee that will have "him out at least 5-6 weeks."

On the other side of the injury list, center John Floyd and linebacker Ronald Reid should be ready to return to action in October. Floyd had his appendix removed following the Pirates 47-46 loss to Florida State in the season opener, while Reid has yet to see action after a knee injury in pre-season drills.

"We should be in good shape," Emory said. "John Floyd ran (Monday) night and should be back near full strength by the Missouri game.

"Normally, as a coach I don't like to see an open date. But I think this open date came at a good time. We're doing something unusual in that we're giving the players Thursday, Friday and Saturday off, and then come back fresh Sunday to get ready for Missouri."

The victory over Murray State, which lifted the Pirates to 2-1 on the season, evened Emory's record at 18-18 since returning to coach his alma mater. The 1980 ECU squad finished a disappointing 4-7 after a 7-3-1 finish the year before, and the 1981 squad missed a winning record with a 31-21 upset loss to William and Mary in the season finale at Ficklen Stadium.

The 1982 Pirates won four of the last five games of the schedule to finish 7-4.

"We've had a hard time diggin' out of the well," Emory said. "I hope that by the end of the season we'll be in the upper part of the well."

The Pirates trailed Missouri just 14-6 going into the final period a year ago, but the Tigers rallied for 14 more points to finish with a 28-9 victory. Missouri finished with 414 total yards, while East Carolina managed just 205 including 120 rushing. Emory knows the Pirates will have to improve on those statistics to come away victorious.

"Our only chance is to run the football and move the down markers," he said. "It's a great challenge to our offensive line. We think we've got a great offensive line; we'll find out real quick with their defensive line.

"They probably have the best personnel of anyone we play this year. They've gone back to good ol' Big 8 football: knock you down and run over you."

The Pirates also face Temple and nationally-ranked Florida on the road during October. ECU defeated Temple 23-10 last year, while the Pirates have never played Florida's Gators.

"Why wait till January to play a bowl game," Emory chided. "Why not play one in October. The month of October will tell us if we're going anywhere in December or January."

Tigers Pound Orioles For Rain-Shortened Win

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers, needing to cover a lot of ground in a short time, rolled back into the Motor City and immediately cranked into high gear.

Facing the team they need to beat, Detroit tied the major-league record with 10 consecutive hits during an 11-run first inning that sprung the Tigers onto a 14-1 rout of the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night.

For the record:

Alan Trammell singled and then stole second and third. Larry Herndon walked and stole second and continued to third when catcher Joe Nolan threw wildly to second, which allowed Trammell to score.

Lance Parrish singled and Kirk Gibson tripled. Enos Cabell delivered an RBI single and Chet Lemon tripled. Glenn Wilson followed with a run-scoring single, finishing Martinez.

Reliever Jim Palmer gave up Wayne Krenchicki's single and Lou Whitaker followed with his 12th home run of the season. Trammell then singled again and Herndon belted his 19th homer. John Wockenfuss, batting for Parrish, walked before Gibson struck out.

In all, the Tigers sent 16 batters to the plate and collected 11 hits.

Detroit was officially credited with 10 consecutive hits, even though the streak was interrupted by Herndon's walk, said Bob Wirz, a spokesman for the commissioner's office and a member of baseball's records committee.

Only five previous teams had gotten 10 consecutive hits. Boston, the only team to get 10 successive hits, did it on June 2, 1901, to become the only AL team to accomplish the feat.

The last team to do it was Brooklyn in 1930.

Dan Petry, 18-9, breezed to the win.

Rangers 3, A's 2

In Texas, pinch hitter Bobby Jones jolted Oakland with a two-run homer to cap a three-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Jones' first home run of the season came with one out off Oakland reliever Keith Atherton, 2-4.

With one out in the ninth, Bill Stein doubled. Pete O'Brien singled home Stein and then Jones, batting for Bucky Dent, homered to right.

Charlie Hough, 15-12, gave up eight hits for his fifth consecutive victory and 10th complete game.

Blue Jays 7, Mariners 3

Willie Upshaw's two-run single gave him 101 runs batted in this season, making him the first Toronto player to reach the century mark in the team's seven-year history.

Upshaw's hit came during a four-run third inning that included Jorge Orta's two-run homer, his ninth.

Dave Stieb, 16-12, pitched his 13th complete game of the season, allowing nine hits. Mike Moore, 5-8, took the loss in Toronto.

Brewers 11, Indians 7

Cecil Cooper had four of Milwaukee's 20 hits as the Brewers rallied from a 7-0 deficit to end their 10-game losing streak.

The losing string matched the longest in the franchise's history. The 1969 expansion Seattle Pilots, who played only one season before moving to Milwaukee, also lost 10 straight.

The visiting Brewers scored three runs in the eighth to snap a 7-7 tie. Ted Simmons singled home one of the runs and Ben Oglivie doubled home two.

Four Cleveland players homered, including Mike Fischlin, who smacked a grand slam in the second inning.

Toby Harrah and Andre Thornton connected for consecutive home runs in the first inning and Carmelo Castillo homered in the fourth.

Yankees 3, Red Sox 2

Reliever Rich Gossage pitched 2 2-3 sparkling innings to earn his 21st save.

Gossage took over for John Montefusco, 3-0, in the seventh after the host Red Sox had pulled within 3-2. Gossage struck out Jim Rice and Tony Armas on six pitches to end the inning.

The reliever allowed only a bunt single and fanned two more batters in protecting the lead.

Rookie Bob Meacham had three hits, drove in one run and scored another for New York.

Angels 6, Royals 4

Doug DeCinces belted a two-run double in the first inning and visiting California took advantage of six Kansas City errors.

DeCinces' double off Paul Splittorff, 11-8, came after one run scored when right fielder Darryl Motley dropped a fly ball for an error. DeCinces left the game after reaching second, suffering from a twinge in his back.

Tommy John, 11-12, got the win, helped by Mike Witt's relief. John gave up 11 hits and left with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth after yielding Don Slaught's RBI single.

Witt gave up Willie Aikens' sacrifice fly before getting the final out for his fifth save.

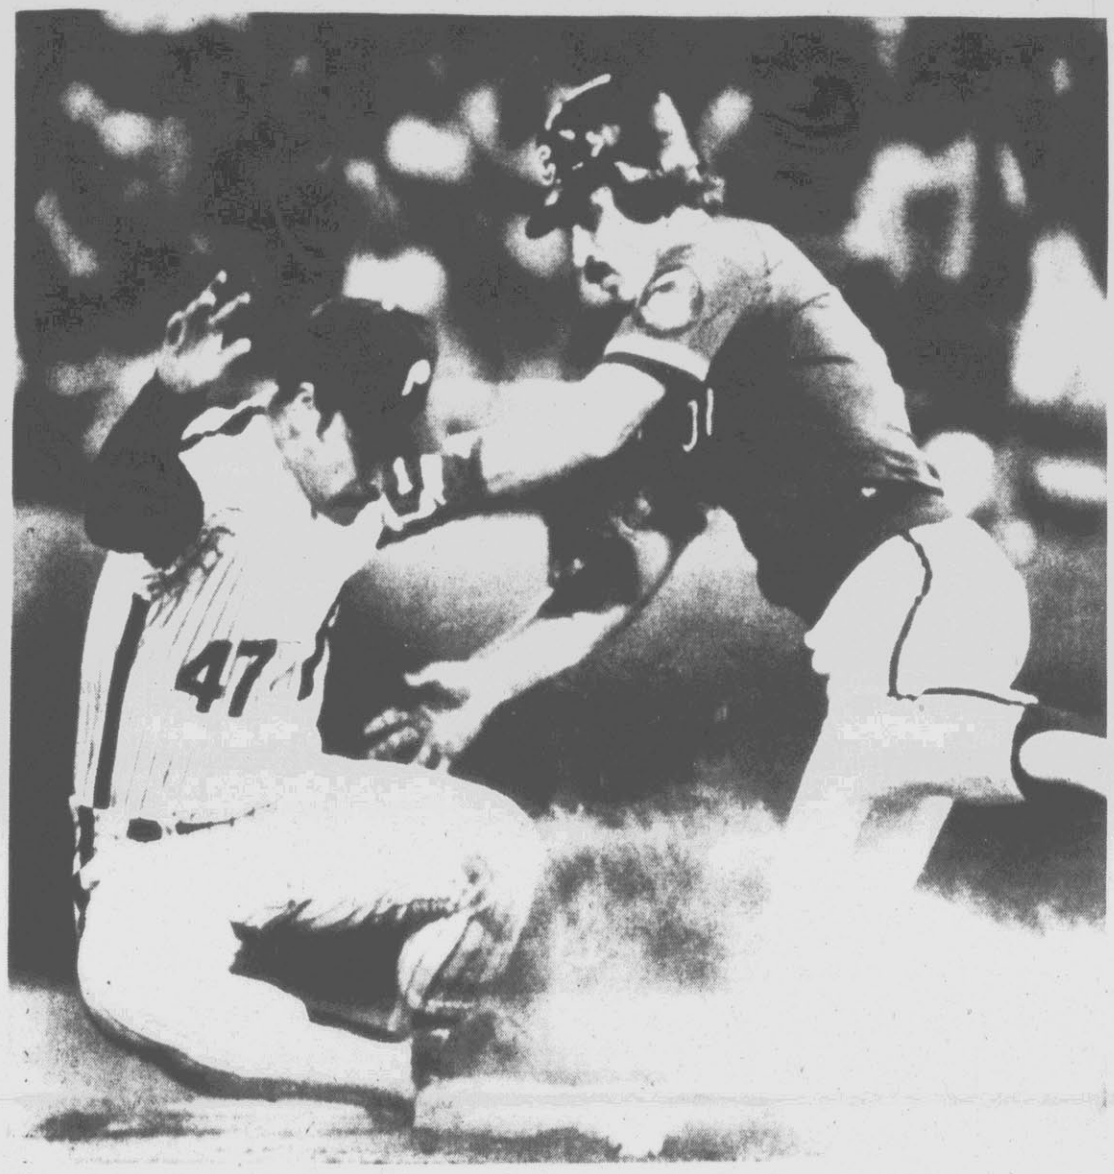
Morgan, Phils Blast Chicago Hurlers



Downed At First

With the ball in the foreground, Philadelphia pitcher Larry Anderson hits the dirt as he is hit by Ron Cey of the Chicago Cubs during Tuesday night's game at Veterans Stadium. Cey was safe sa Anderson couldn't hold onto the throw from Pete Rose. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

Joe Morgan is finding life at 40 to his liking, to the benefit of the Philadelphia Phillies' pennant hopes.

Morgan, who celebrated his 40th birthday Monday with four hits, including two homers, and four RBI, went 4-for-5 again and knocked in three runs Tuesday night as the Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-5 to maintain a two-game lead over Montreal and Pittsburgh in the National League East. All three teams have 11 games to play.

"I've always had success in clutch situations, a good month down the stretch," said Morgan, who is hitting .327 with 14 RBI in September. "I concentrate harder."

"We're all tickled for him," Phillies Manager Paul Owens said. "It's satisfying to see a guy battle that long and hard, through injuries and now carrying the club."

Elsewhere in the NL, Pittsburgh blanked New York 4-0, Montreal bombed St. Louis 10-1, San Francisco ripped San Diego 8-1, Houston clubbed Los Angeles 15-2 and Cincinnati at Atlanta was rained out.

Morgan's 8-for-10 performance the last two days is in sharp contrast to the first five months of the season, when he hit under .200 most of the time. But he declines to discuss those dark days.

"I only look ahead," he said. "When I was 0 for 35, I didn't hit the ball any harder than I'm hitting it now. The difference is that then the ball went inches into the gloves, and now they're just inches out of reach."

When it was over, Reggie Patterson, 0-1, was the loser, and Willie Hernandez, 8-4, the winner. Ron reed earned his seventh save.

The Cubs took a 2-0 lead in the first. Thad Bosley opened with a triple and scored on a single by Ryne Sandberg, who stole second and scored on an error by Morgan at second base.

The Phillies tied it in the bottom of the inning on run-scoring singles by Sixto Lezcano and Garry Maddox. Lezcano's hit scored Morgan, who had also singled.

Bill Buckner's career-high 16th home run leading off the third sent Chicago in front 3-2, but the Phillies took the lead for good in the fourth with three runs off reliever Reggie Patterson, 0-1.

After the Phillies loaded the bases, Morgan singled home two runs, putting the Phillies ahead 4-3. Pete Rose's sacrifice fly made it 5-3.

They made it 6-3 in the fifth on a double by Lezcano and Bo Diaz' RBI single.

Bosley's two-run homer cut the Cubs' deficit to one, but the Phillies restored their three-run lead in the eighth on an RBI double by Morgan, who scored on a single by Mike Schmidt.

The Phillies have won five straight games and 12 of their last 15.

A big reason for their lofty standing is a 51-29 record against East Division rivals. Pittsburgh at 39-37 and Montreal's 40-38 mark are the next-best.

Astros 15, Dodgers 2

Jose Cruz led a 15-hit Houston attack with a grand-slam homer and a two-run single as Los Angeles lost for the fourth time in five games and had its NL West lead trimmed to 3½ games over Atlanta.

Nolan Ryan, 14-8, gave up four hits and struck out seven in six innings to earn the victory. One of the hits was Pedro Guerrero's 30th home run, two less than last year's total, as he became the first LA Dodger with consecutive 30-home run seasons.

Denny Walling's three-run double in the first inning got the Astros started against Alejandro Pena, 12-7, and Cruz's grand slam made it 9-0 in the second.

Pirates 4, Mets 0

Pittsburgh kept pace with Philadelphia in the East behind the sparkling pitching performance of left-hander Larry McWilliams, who hurled a two-hitter, struck out 11 and walked none at New York.

McWilliams, 15-6, who has not lost since Aug. 7 and is 7-1 since the All-Star break, allowed singles to George Foster in the second and Hubie Brooks in the sixth. He retired the last 11 Mets he faced to finish his fourth shutout of the season.

Dave Parker hit a 460-foot homer to knock in the Pirates' first run in the fourth inning.

Expos 10, Cardinals 1

Montreal also stayed two games behind the Phillies as Bill Gullickson tossed a six-hitter and drove in two runs, one of them with his first career home run, to hand St. Louis its seventh straight loss.

Gullickson, 16-11, who entered the game with an .096 batting average, gave the Expos a 1-0 lead in the third inning with his line drive off the left field foul pole against Cardinals starter Bob Forsch, 8-12.

Terry Francona and Gary Carter both had two run-scoring singles for the Expos, while Gullickson had one.

Giants 8, Padres 1

Darrell Evans knocked in two runs with a first-inning single, giving him 15 game-winning RBI this season, and right-hander Mark Calvert made the runs stand up with six innings of five-hit pitching.

Calvert, 1-3, who won his first major-league game, didn't allow an earned run.

Beddingfield added the next two goals for a 5-2 halftime score, but Rose retaliated with Smith and David Ely scoring for a 7-4 advantage.

Fred Carr scored three goals for Beddingfield.

"I was pleased with the first 30 minutes of the game," Rose coach Will Wiberg said. "After that, we played kick-and-run and the match turned into a shootout."

Greenville Chr.....2
Goldsboro 1

GOLDSBORO — Chris Harris scored with 4:02 elapsed in the second half, and Greenville Christian hung on for a 2-1 win over Goldsboro Christian Academy.

Mike Bragg of GCA socred 35 minutes into the first period assisted by Joseph Martin for the early lead. Harris' goal was assisted by Mike Griner.

Greenville Christian, now 2-3 on the season, hosts Ridgecroft Friday.

Trevathan Serves Rampettes Win

Lisa Trevathan rattled off 10 consecutive points on her serve in the first game, and the Rose High School Rampettes went on to take a 15-2, 15-7 victory over Goldsboro in Tuesday volleyball action.

Wendy Jones scored eight points on serve in the second game to lead the Rampettes to a sweep for their first win of the season.

"Overall, we seemed to play well as a team," Rose coach Kim Gruber said. "They worked the ball around and passed well."

Rose, now 1-6 on the year, travels to Wilmington Hoggard Thursday, Sept. 29.

Greene Central....2
North Lenoir.....0

KINSTON — Greene Central's Cyndi Hicks ripped seven hits in the first match and six in the second to lead the Rams to a pair of victories over North Lenoir in girls volleyball action Tuesday.

The Rams won the first match 15-11, 15-9 with Allison Battle adding six assists, Antionnette Wilkes three hits and Jeanie Hardison four assists for Greene Central.

Battle had five assists, Wilkes three hits and Hardison three assists for the Rams in their 19-17, 15-4 win of the second match to complete the sweep.

Greene Central, now 6-0 on the season, hosts Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central Thursday in a tri-match.

Sands Tops Vermaak

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Kim Sands tried but was unable to talk herself out of a first-round upset of No. 4 seed Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa in the $150,000 Central Fidelity Banks Tennis Tournament.

Putting herself down most of the match, Sands outlasted Vermaak 4-6, 7-5, 7-5 in a contest that went nearly 2½ hours Tuesday.

In other first-round matches, top-seeded Barbara Potter and No. 5 seed Rosalyn Fairbank of South Africa posted easy victories Tuesday night.

Potter ousted Elise Burgin 6-2, 6-2, while Fairbank defeated Sue Leo of Australia 6-1, 6-3.

Earlier, No. 8 seed Pam Casale defeated Lena Sandin of Sweden 6-2, 6-3, Julie Harrington ousted Felicia Raschiatore 6-4, 6-4 and Kim Schaefer defeated Rosie Casals 5-7, 6-1, 6-3.

After sending a forehand return over the baseline on her first match point, Sands shouted to herself, "You don't have it. This is a joke. You've been doing this for 10 years, and you still don't know how to win."

Liberty Cruises To 3-1 Lead

Commanding Lead

Dennis Conner, skipper of the the U.S. entry Liberty, thrusts his fist into the air as his 12-meter yacht returns from the race course Tuesday after defeating Australia II by 43 seconds to win the fourth race of the America's Cup. Liberty leads the best of seven series 3-1. (AP Laserphoto)

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Liberty skipper Dennis Conner, with a commanding 3-1 lead in the America's Cup series, is on the brink of giving the United States its 25th consecutive successful defense of sailing's top prize.

Conner won a hard-fought 43-second victory against Australia II skipper John Bertrand Tuesday by making the Aussies "play our game" and avoiding tacking duels with the more manueverable foreign boat on Rhode Island Sound.

"It takes two boats to tango, I guess, and my guess is John would have liked to see the boats tacking more," said Conner, who hoped to clinch the best-of-seven series today. "He tacks very well and we felt we would be better off tacking as little as possible.

"We tried to make him play our game a little more. It's all part of the strategy. Australia tacks awfully well. So unless there's a real good reason to tack, we don't," he said.

Tacking is a zig-zag manuever to change course by bringing the front of the boat through the wind so the sail moves from one side to another.

Conner's strategy paid off because Bertrand apparently had unlimited faith in the speed of his innovative winged-keel boat. The Aussie skipper chose not to take full advantage of his boat's ability to turn quickly during the tacking manuevers on the windward legs. Instead, he tacked only occasionally and tried to out-run Liberty after falling behind at the start by six seconds.

"We were playing the wind shifts ... We were mixing it up. We obviously gained — at one stage Liberty had a two boat-length lead and we were able to get back to no lead at all," Bertrand said.

Midway through the first leg, Conner responded by guiding his ruby red boat to the windward side of the course, picking up a wind shift and surging ahead. Bertrand stuck to his strategy on the two final windward legs but trailed Liberty by at least five boat lengths for the rest of the course.

Bertrand's failure to force a tacking duel is "like having a fast guy on your football team who's good up the middle, and then never running an up-the-middle play," tactician Gary Jobson of Courageous said while watching Australia II fall further behind.

The victory came as a relief to members of the New York Yacht Club, who tried to have Australia II eliminated from the races this summer due to its radical keel. They tipped their traditional straw hats to Conner as he rode by after clinching the victory.

Conner said he was still curious about Australia II's winged keel, which many yachting fans felt would revolutionize 12-meter racing, and remained eager to see what it looked like.

"Have you ever tried to race a racehorse with a blanket around its legs? It's hard not to be in the dark," he said. "Yes, we are in the dark and yes, we'd like to see what we're racing."

Conner, who defended the Cup in 1980 aboard Freedom, insisted that he made no structural changes in Liberty since Sunday when Australia II trounced the U.S. boat by a record three minutes, 14 seconds.

Asked how he spent the lay day Monday, preparing for the crucial fourth race, he issued a one-word reply: "Worrying." He also decided to go with a new mainsail that the Aussies hadn't seen in the final series.

Wind conditions Tuesday were similar to Sunday — 10 to 15 knots, with gentle seas and sunny skies. But a major difference in the races was Liberty's ability to grab a six-second lead and avoid having to chase Australia around the 24.3 mile course.

At the start, "We gave Liberty 10 feet she shouldn't have had," Bertrand said. "That was an opportunity not to be missed. And the closeness and the standard of the racing is so tight now you can't afford to throw 10 or 15 feet away, even in 24 miles. If we had won the start, we would have had a better opportunity to win.

"Nothing's changed after today's race. We still have to win three races to win the America's Cup," Bertrand said. "So we'll be approaching tomorrow with a vengeance — that's what we're all about."

Alan Bond, the Australia millionaire who is making his fourth effort to win the Cup, said he was still optimistic his bone-white boat could win three straight races and clinch the series.

However, Bond conceded for the first time Tuesday that Australia II's design may have been overrated.

"The difference between the winged keels and conventional keels is very small and it's probably only in manueverability," Bond said. "If you can see a 12-meter — Liberty — without a winged keel and Australia with one, you can see how small the differences are. I think there had been, perhaps, an over-accentuation, other than the turning factor."

This is the fifth straight time the Australians have been the foreign challenger for the Cup. The Aussies have won only four of the 24 final races over the five campaigns.

Vikings Acquire Pair From Houston Oilers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When starter Tommy Kramer was lost for the season with a knee injury, the Minnesota Vikings went shopping for a quarterback.

What was expected to be a little deal turned out to be a big trade as the Vikings acquired veteran quarterback Archie Manning and tight end Dave Casper from the Houston Oilers on Tuesday for two undisclosed 1984 draft picks.

"We have never had a catastrophic situation with injuries like this before," said Vikings General Manager Mike Lynn, who indicated one pick was in a high round and the other in a middle round. "We did what is right under the circumstances. It might have caught some people by surprise, but we have nine guys on injured reserve."

Lynn added, "If it's a bad decision, we've live with it and if it's a good situation, we'll live with it."

Houston General Manager Ladd Herzeg said the Oilers will "assume a significant portion of both players' 1983, 1984 and 1985 contracts."

The Vikings had been looking for a quarterback since Sunday, when Kramer tore a ligament on the inside of his right knee in the first quarter of Minnesota's 19-16 overtime victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Lynn said the Vikings initiated the talks with Houston. "In a situation like this, we knew a couple of teams we could have gone to and affected a trade. Houston was the first we called," he said.

The teams originally were discussing trading only Manning, but then Casper came up in the discussions, Lynn said.

"We feel we are in contention for a championship in our division," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant. "We have had injury problems at tight end and now we have them at quarterback. So we went for the best that was available. I'm sure they both will fit into our system."

Grant said both Manning and Casper will be at practice today. "I talked with Manning and Casper and both of them sounded excited about the trade," the Vikings coach said.

Manning told WCCO-TV in Minneapolis that he was "surprised and happy" about the trade.

Kramer, who is hospitalized following knee surgery Monday, could not be reached for comment.

Steve Dils, the Vikings' No. 2 quarterback who was scheduled to start Sunday against Detroit, said he was "a little surprised when I heard the news. You don't expect the Vikings to do that sort of thing.

"But, then again, Archie Manning is an outstanding quarterback and Casper is a great tight end. I don't know what it means for me, but I think I'll start Sunday. I know Archie and he's a class guy."

Grant said the acquisition of Manning, who has started Houston's three games this season, would not effect Dils' starting status for Sunday's game.

Rose Moves Up In Prep Poll

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

Southern Durham regained the top spot in the 3-A ranks, Greensboro Page strengthened its place atop the 4-A division and Randleman remained No. 1 in the combined 2-A and 1-A class in the latest Associated Press high school football poll.

Southern Durham, 4-0, edged out Kannapolis for the No. 1 spot after a 28-0 win over Oxford Webb Friday. Southern Durham, which was rated first two weeks ago but fell behind Kannapolis last week, received 200 points to 198 for Kannapolis, 4-0. However, Kannapolis received 13 first-place votes while the Spartans got but four.

Asheville Reynolds, 3-0, held the No. 3 spot and Thomasville, 4-0, remained fourth, but No. 5 SouthWest Edgecombe tumbled to ninth after being beaten by 4-A Wilson Hunt 40-13.

Thomasville recorded its first shutout of the season — 14-0 over Trinity — and received all the offense it needed from running back Wesley Barnes, who rushed for 194 yards and scored one TD.

West Henderson is sixth followed by Clinton, Brevard and East Randolph. Central Cabarrus is No. 10 after taking a 26-14 victory over Concord, which lost its No. 9 spot after the loss.

Greensboro Page received 20 first-place votes and 229 points overall to outdistance Fayetteville Byrd for the top spot among the state's 4-A teams. Page, 3-0, whipped cross-town rival Dudley 39-14 Friday.

Byrd, 3-0, moved from third to second after beating Lumberton 28-6 while Asheville, No. 2 last week, fell to defending 3-A champ Brevard 14-7. Roxboro Person, 4-0, was third, followed by Northern Durham, 4-0, and Greenville Rose, 3-0.

Tailback Tracy Brooks rushed for 187 yards and one touchdown as Northern Durham downed Raleigh Millbrook 20-6. The Knights have given up just 12 points this season.

Meanwhile, Rose edged Eastern Wayne 14-7 despite having at least half a dozen players out with a virus. Quarterback Battle Emory hit 11 of 26 passes for 212 yards and two touchdowns for the Rampants. Emory is the son of East Carolina head football coach Ed Emory.

Two Wilson County schools — Fike at No. 6 and Hunt at No. 9 — highlight the second five. Asheville is No. 7, with Jacksonville eighth and Charlotte East Mecklenburg 10th.

In the 2-A and 1-A classification, Randleman, which recorded its second consecutive shutout last Friday, received 22 of the possible 23 first-place votes and 221 points overall to remain No. 1.

Randleman, the defending 2-A champions, rolled past West Davidson 34-0 as running back Tony Goss rushed for 248 yards and scored four touchdowns.

Robbinsville, 3-0, remained second and Sylva-Webster, 4-0, third. North Duplin, fourth last week, fell out of the poll losing to Wallace-Rose Hill 28-6.

F.T. Foard, which did not play last week, is No. 4 this week followed by Fuquay-Varina, West Montgomery, Maiden, Franklinton, Wallace-Rose Hill and Albemarle.

West Montgomery, which whipped Northwest Cabarrus 37-14, received the only first-place vote not going to Randleman.

Gill Guides 'Huskers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Quarterback Turner Gill is the man who makes Nebraska's explosive offense click, but he isn't sure whether his future lies in football or baseball.

Gill was drafted in the second round by the Chicago White Sox in 1980 (he turned down a reported $80,000 offer) and in the 17th round last spring by the New York Yankees, although he had previously announced that he would return to Nebraska for his senior campaign.

After three years away from baseball, Gill, a shortstop, batted .284 for the Cornhuskers last season.

"I really don't know what I'll do," he says. "Right now, I just want to concentrate on football. It will be a difficult decision. I really love baseball and I really love football. I made the decision this year that it was best for me to stay in school, get my education and see what happens.

"I'm fortunate God gave me the ability to play both sports. When the time comes to make a decision, I'll make it."

Gill hails from Fort Worth, Texas, where "growing up I had wanted to play for Oklahoma. A lot of people in Texas said I made the wrong decision by going to Nebraska. Why did I choose Nebraska? Maybe because I knew I'd be happy there. I trusted Coach (Tom) Osborne, I liked his staff and he said he would let me play both sports."

When Gill was drafted by the White Sox three years ago, "it was like a dream come true. At first I wanted to go. I didn't care about the money. But I sat down and talked with my parents and decided to get my education."

Now, Gill says his "goal each game is to score 35 points." He's off to a good start. Nebraska has crushed Penn State 44-6, Wyoming 56-20 and Minnesota 84-13. Those 84 points in one game are more than 90 of the other 103 major-college teams have scored all season.

• •

HOW - THE - MIGHTY - HAVE - FALLEN DEPT.: Penn State's NCAA record of 44 consecutive non-losing seasons may be in jeopardy and the three-game losing streak matches the longest in Joe Paterno's 18 years as head coach, but the Nittany Lions' 0-3 start is not the worst by a defending national champion.

After winning the crown with a 10-0-0 record in 1938, Texas Christian lost its first four games in 1939 (to UCLA 6-2, Arkansas 14-13, Temple 13-11, Texas A&M 20-6) before beating Centenary 21-0. The Horned Frogs slumped to 3-7-0 that season, one of only two times since the Associated Press poll began in 1936 that a defending champion has had a losing record the following year.

The other one was Ohio State, the 1942 king, which slipped to 3-6-0 in 1943. The Buckeyes lost their opener to the Iowa Seahawks, a service team, 28-13, and dropped five of their first six games. Notre Dame, 4-4-1 in 1950, was the only other champion which failed to post a winning season a year later.

Besides TCU and Ohio State, the only other national champs to even lose their opener the next year were Minnesota in 1961 (Missouri 6-0); Alabama in 1965 (Georgia 18-17), but the Crimson Tide recovered to win a second consecutive national title; Nebraska in 1972 (UCLA 20-17); Pitt in 1977 (Notre Dame 19-9); Notre Dame in 1978 (Missouri 3-0) and Clemson, which lost to Georgia 13-7 last year. The Tigers then were tied by Boston College 17-17 (the 0-1-1 start was the second worst by a defending champ until this year), but won their last nine games.

There were some hard feelings in last weekend's Nebraska-Minnesota and Syracuse-Northwestern games.

Nebraska tailback Mike Rozier said Minnesota's defenders "would shout junk in your face like they were out to hurt somebody. They did a lot of talking. We were up 50 points and they were still talking. I guess they wanted to talk, not play."

Wingback Irving Fryar said he "couldn't believe it. We were up 40 points and they were still talking like they were winning."

And Syracuse made Northwestern quarterback Sandy Schwab rue his pregame comments that the Orangemen's defense was "slow and small" and their actions were "something you might expect in junior college, not Division I."

Replied Syracuse Coach Dick MacPherson: "I've been in the Big Ten and they think the Big Ten is the U.S. Marine Corps of football. They sell it. They think it's the greatest thing since peanuts.

"I feel he had some right to think that way before the game. We hadn't been playing very well. But I can't control what he says or thinks. But it's to our advantage if the defense is playing well and he doesn't think so."

Fullerton State's three-game winning streak probably will come to an end against fourth-ranked Arizona, but the Titans can look back on two weeks of last-minute ecstasy.

On Sept. 3, Greg Steinke kicked a field goal with three seconds left to beat Boise State 13-10. Last Saturday, Steinke's 45-yard field goal with 19 seconds left lifted Fullerton State over Utah State 25-24. In between, the Titans "crushed" Long Beach State 25-19.

Athletic Stars Not The Same As World Of Show Business

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Being handsome, personable and a sports idol does not guarantee entry to the tough, tinseled world of show business, insists Bruce Jenner. It helps get your foot in the door but it doesn't keep the door from slamming in your face.

"When you've been performing before millions on the sports field and have the cabinets filled with newspaper clippings, you may feel you've got it made," said the handsome Olympic gold medalist and former world record holder in the decathlon.

"Don't believe it. The problem is you expect everything to come easy. You forget you're in a strange business and have to start at the bottom, just as when you began playing baseball or football or training for the Olympics.

"The public and press expect more of you. They can be overly critical. You'd better be good, else the critics will chew you alive.

"It's particularly true when you try to break into TV commentary, as many of the top sports personalities do. The TV veterans and the print media say, 'Hey, this guy is in my territory now.' They sharpen their knives."

Teen Asks The Big Question

WESTONING, England (AP) — Giving Princess Diana's stomach two firm pats, 13-year-old Fiona Passmore boldly asked the question that many Britons are thinking — "How's your baby?"

The incident occurred when 22-year-old Diana, who is widely rumored to be expecting a second child, visited the McIntyre Communities Center for the Mentally Handicapped, 40 miles northwest of London, on Tuesday.

Diana stepped back, smiled and replied "Did I hear right?." But she didn't answer the question.

Fiona, a pupil at the center, then presented the princess with a hand-picked bunch of daisies.

Buckingham Palace has refused to confirm or deny recent newspaper reports that the princess, whose son Prince William is 15 months old, is pregnant again. Diana and her husband Prince Charles also aren't commenting.

The center's principal, Christine Jenkins, explaining her pupil's curiosity, said: "Fiona is baby mad. She loves anything to do with babies."

FAMILY CRUSHED IN CAR — A New York City police officer views a car crushed Tuesday afternoon by a mammoth cement truck. A 23-year-old mother and her two daughters, ages 2 and 3, died in the car. The father had parked the car and stepped away only minutes before. The driver of the truck has been charged with three counts of second degree murder. (AP Laserphoto)

Car Crushed By Truck

NEW YORK (AP) — The driver of a cement truck that crashed into a parked car, crushing it like "a pancake" and killing the three people inside, has been charged with murder and driving while impaired, police said.

A Connecticut woman and her two children were killed about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday when the loaded cement truck, weighing as much as 50 tons, slammed into the car, rolled over its roof and flattened it into a mass of twisted metal, police said.

The accident, at 10th Avenue between 49th and 50th streets, occurred when "the truck apparently made a turn, at which point he lost control and his front wheels ran the car right over," police officer Tony Vallelong said.

Police identified the victims as Karen Murphy, 23, of Bridgeport, and her two daughters, Amlikah Rhaman, 3, and Amera Rhaman, 2.

The woman's husband, Muhammad Rhaman, 37, was in a nearby store at the time of the accident, police said. He was taken to St. Clare's Hospital for treatment of shock.

One of the first police to arrive described it as "a horrible scene. The father came running back to the car to find his whole family wiped out."

A police spokesman, Sgt. Ed Burns, said the bodies of the victims were removed from the car that had been "leveled like a pancake."

Frank Healey, 30, of Brooklyn, the driver of the cement truck owned by Transit-Mix Concrete Corp., passed a sobriety test and the results of other blood and urine tests were not immediately available, police said.

Burns said that impairment charges made before forensic evidence is available are usually based on evidence found at the scene, police observations or statements from witnesses.

A police officer who answered the telephone at the Manhattan District Attorney's office early today said no one was available to explain the impairment charge.

Rally Against Marcos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — An estimated half-million people rallied against President Ferdinand E. Marcos outside the main post office today, and about 1,000 of them split off and battled riot police near the presidential palace. Authorities reported two people killed and 24 injured.

The demonstrators chanted the name of opposition leader Benigno Aquino — assassinated exactly a month ago. They charged over a heavily guarded bridge leading to Malacanang Palace, burned two buses and clashed with anti-riot police 300 yards from the presidential residence.

About 400 riot police and firefighters with hoses at first retreated behind the burning buses, which officials had used to block Mendiola Street leading from the city's university district to Marcos' residence. Later, police charged and cleared the streets of protesters.

At least 23 gunshots rang out as police chased rioters through back streets. Officials said one of those killed was a firefighter and the other an unidentified youth.

Shirtless youths had thrown torches into the buses and pelted police with stones and debris, protecting themselves with makeshift shields of metal siding ripped from a store.

Groups on foot and in car caravans flying yellow ribbons and balloons moved through city streets after the main rally at the post office, where Aquino's widow vowed to continue her husband's opposition to Marcos. Some 5,000 people headed for the palace, and 1,000 of those charged across Mendiola Bridge.

Marcos, meanwhile, appeared on national television from the palace and said he was more saddened than angered by the unprecedented demonstrations. He promised "maximum tolerance" by security officials.

The financial district in suburban Makati filled with smoke and confetti for the third day in a week as office workers poured into the streets to call for an end to Marcos' 18-year-rule. Today marked the 11th anniversary of imposition of martial law in the Philippines, which lasted eight years.

Demonstrations in Davao, Zamboanga, Angeles and other cities attracted thousands of people on what the opposition has called "a national day of sorrow."

Aquino's black-clad widow, Corazon, was hailed by protesters at Manila's central post office.

"I will not allow fear to stop me. Regardless of cost, I will defend freedom," she said.

She and former Sen. Jose Diokno read a "Manifesto of Freedom, Democracy and Sovereignty," calling for an end to Marcos' regime, a halt to government repression and resistance to "all forms of alien control or domination."

As the rally ended, youths set fire to effigies of Marcos and President Reagan, who is scheduled to visit the Philippines in November.

"Let Reagan come and let him find out what the Filipino people will do to someone who supports a dictator," said former Sen. Eva Estrada Kalaw. The opposition has vowed to gather a million people to picket Reagan if he comes.

Demonstrators lit fires in the financial district, burning piles of debris thrown from office windows where government attempts to rally support for Marcos triggered a similar response on Monday.

The government-run Philippine News Agency reported a rally in Laoag, Marcos' hometown, where it said people gathered in front of the provincial capitol to hear praises for the president.

"It saddens more than angers me that this should be happening today, for I feel strongly that today the nation requires of its people to address themselves to national problems with more wisdom than demagoguery," Marcos said in his televised message.

He accused his opponents of engaging in "recriminations, accusations, agitations for changes that are designed not for the public good, but mainly to serve the ends of people who would want to put the political and economic stability of our nation in jeopardy."

In Angeles City, site of the U.S. Clark Air Force base 50 miles northeast of Manila, thousands of residents marched through the streets carrying banners demanding justice for Aquino, release of political prisoners and an end to Marcos' sweeping arrest powers.

In Davao, on Mindanao island, nearly 2,000 people carrying signs reading "Remember Ninoy" and "Marcos resign" marched through the streets, joining about 3,000 others in a rally at a city park.

In Zamboanga City, also on Mindanao, 540 miles south of Manila, Aquino's mother, Aurora, addressed a crowd of about 2,000 gathered in front of City Hall. She urged listeners to "unite and join us in this movement for the restoration of freedom, justice, truth and democracy."

Hardcastle & McCormick Premier Tops Nielsens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC's "Hardcastle & McCormick" show, about an unlikely crime-fighting duo, came on like gangbusters in its two-hour debut — giving ABC two straight weeks on top of the ratings for the first time since May.

The premiere finished No.1 for the week ended Sept. 18, five points ahead of its nearest rival, and helped give ABC its first Sunday victory in non-special programming since October 1980.

The lighthearted adventure stars Brian Keith as a tough, retired judge who collars Daniel Hugh Kelly, a race car driver with a prison record, as his partner against crime.

"Hardcastle & McCormick" was created by Stephen J. Cannell, whose other creation, NBC's "The A Team," finished fourth for the week. Cannell has yet another tongue-in-cheek adventure coming up, NBC's "The Rousters."

ABC won the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings with a network average of 16.2. CBS was second with 14.0 and NBC was third with 13.8. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 16.2 percent of the nation's television homes were tuned to ABC.

Tied for second were the season premiere of CBS' "60 Minutes" and an original ABC special, "Life's Most Embarrassing Moments II."

CBS' "NFL Football Post Game Show" was in fifth place and NBC's telecast of the Miss America Pageant — traditionally first in the week of its broadcast — was sixth. Completing the Top 10 were ABC's "Three's Company," seventh, CBS' "Simon & Simon," eighth, and CBS' "Magnum, P.I." and ABC's "9 to 5," tied for ninth place.

Another ABC premiere, "Webster," was 11th. ABC's "Matt Houston," which made its season debut the week before, was 20th. ABC's "Benson" made its season premiere in 28th place.

In 18th place was "NBC's All-Star Hour," which was a promotion of the network's fall season shows from the saloon set of "Cheers."

NBC's "First Camera," a revamp of its magazine show "Monitor," had a less auspicious debut. In its new spot opposite CBS' "60 Minutes" the show finished dead last in 65th place.

NBC's "We Got It Made," which premiered last week in second place dropped to No. 21. NBC's "Real People" was in 33rd place for its season premiere.

Although the fall season doesn't begin until Monday, the day after the Emmy awards telecast, the networks have already begun sneak previews of their new and returning series.

The final episode of ABC's "Two Marriages" was 35th. It was the highest-rated of all the network summer shows and may be revived. ABC has ordered new scripts from the producers.

The five lowest-rated shows in descending order were a special showing of NBC's "Diff'rent Strokes," the CBS movie "Senior Trip!," NBC's "First Annual Yummy Awards," the NBC movie "Young Frankenstein," and the debut of NBC's "First Camera."

"The CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" was once again the highest-rated news show. NBC, in third place last week, moved ahead of ABC to take second place. ABC slipped into third place. The ratings: CBS 12.6, NBC 9.8, ABC 8.8.

Here are the Top 20 programs:

1. Movie-"Hardcastle & McCormick," ABC, a rating of 26.7 or 22.3 million households.
2. "60 Minutes," CBS, 21.7 or 18.1 million.
2. Tie-"Life's Most Embarrassing Moments II," ABC, 21.7 or 18.1 million.
4. "The A-Team," NBC, 20.9 or 17.5 million.
5. NFL Football Game Post Game Show, CBS, 20.6 or 17.2 million.
6. "Miss America Pageant," NBC, 20.5 or 17.1 million.
7. "Three's Company," ABC, 20.0 or 16.7 million.
8. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 19.5 or 16.3 million.
9. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, 19.4 or 16.2 million.
9. Tie-"9 to 5," ABC, 19.4 or 16.2 million.
11. "Webster," ABC, 19.2 or 16.0 million.
12. Movie-"Beulah Land," Part III, NBC, 19.0 or 15.9 million.
13. "Lottery," ABC, 18.6 or 15.6 million.
14. "Newhart," CBS, 18.5 or 15.5 million.
15. "Hill Street Blues," NBC, 18.3 or 15.3 million.
15. Tie-Movie-"Beulah Land," Part II, NBC, 18.3 or 15.3 million.
15. Tie-"M-A-S-H," CBS, 18.3 or 15.3 million.
18. "NBC's All-Star Hour," NBC, 18.1 or 15.1 million.
19. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 17.9 or 15.0 million.
20. "Matt Houston," ABC 17.7 or 14.8 million.

Teen To Be Tried As Adult

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Wilkes County teen-ager charged with murder will be tried as an adult, a District Court judge has decided.

Judge Edgar B. Gregory Monday found probable cause for the murder charge against Tony Ray Blankenship, 16, who is charged in the July 1982 death of Garry Patrick Sidden.

Blankenship and his stepfather, Tony Mitchell Sidden, had been sought in the shotgun slaying for 14 months before they turned themselves in Sept. 11.

Blankenship was ordered held under $250,000 bond, according to assistant district attorney Michael E. Helms. The hearing was held in juvenile court and was closed to the public.

The principal witness at the hearing was Claude Junior "Sebon" Johnson. Investigators say that Johnson was a witness to the shooting.

Garry Sidden's two sons, Garry Jr., then 16, and Galvin, then 10, have not been seen since the night of the shooting.

Helms said that nothing new was learned about the fate of the two boys at Blankenship's hearing.

'Hotel' Follows Old Formula Of Guest Stars, Flimsy Plots

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — During the Depression, filmmaker Busby Berkeley made leggy spectacles to help a nation forget breadlines. ABC seems to be taking similar flights of fancy in these tough economic times, selling fantasies, fairy-tale endings and stars, stars and more stars in tonight's debut of "Hotel."

"Hotel" is the seventh series on ABC's schedule stamped out of executive producer Aaron Spelling's dream factory. Supremely slick and gaudily opulent, "Hotel," from the book by Arthur Hailey, is not the Holiday Inn.

Immediately following Spelling's rich and steamy "Dynasty" on ABC's Wednesday night schedule, "Hotel" is bound to be heavily booked this season.

Every week, elegant guest stars will check into the hotel, involve themselves in flimsy and whimsical plots about faded romance or blooming love and check out before we can be charged for an extra day's thought. This is the same format milked by Spelling's "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island."

His shows are candy for the cerebrum. Although "Hotel" is never memorable, it does aspire to being a tad more meaningful than just a landlocked "Love Boat." This is the classiest of Spelling's seven current hit shows, which include "T.J. Hooker," "Matt Houston" and "Hart to Hart."

In tonight's pilot, the moral issue concerns a prostitute, played by Morgan Fairchild, who is raped in the St. Gregory's Hotel by a bunch of boys on prom night. Does she have any rights? Should she press charges?

The hotel manager, Peter McDermott (James Brolin), thinks she should. He considers the violation also a violation of his precious hotel.

Brolin brings his distinct style of non-emotional acting to the starring role of Peter McDermott, the bachelor manager of San Francisco's dignified, traditional and luxurious St. Gregory's. Brolin, formerly Dr. Steven Kiley on "Marcus Welby, M.D.," never seems to put his heart into his roles.

This role requires him to be a master plumber in a world of leaky faucets, all of which he manages to fix without getting his hands dirty. Every segment has a deliriously happy ending. While the world outside might be under attack, the St. Gregory's — and Spelling's series — will be a safe haven.

Bette Davis is given top billing as the aristocratic owner of the St. Gregory's, but her contract calls for limited appearances. ABC says she won't show up in every episode. In tonight's two-hour pilot, she appears in four scenes.

The other major characters touch the right demographic bases. Connie Selleca plays the beautiful assistant manager, Christine Francis, who walks off the street and, without any hotel experience, begins running the hotel. Shea Farrell is the handsome head of guest relations who, based on the pilot, will fall in love much too often.

Then there are the spunky, all-too-appealing young newlyweds, Dave and Megan Kendall, who can never find time alone together. Dave (Michael Spound) is a bellhop and law student. Megan (Heidi Bohay) is a desk clerk. They work different shifts, alternatingly frustrating each other in what promises to be a running tease throughout the fall.

Nathan Cook plays a black former convict, who now serves as the hotel's chief of security.

Tonight's stars and storylines: Pernell Roberts and Shirley Jones, each on the rebound, bounce into each other's arms; Erin Moran, a struggling singer, exploits the infatuation of a hotel staffer; Bill Macy and Lainie Kazan depict a stereotypical bickering couple, and Jack Gilford, an older man, is made ecstatic by a younger woman (Stephanie Faracy).

Gilford's character succumbs to a heart attack in the hotel restaurant and, after a day or so of mourning, Miss Faracy's character leaves with the king of Portugal, played by Alejandro Rey.

Give Spelling credit. He doesn't dream small.

If partner doesn't do the expected, there must be a reason. Faith in partner is a cornerstone of good defense. Consider this hand from the Epson Invitation Team Tournament in Japan, won by Canada.

East's three spade opening is typical of tournament bridge. South can do little other than bid four hearts.

Sitting East-West were Canadians Eric Kokish and Sammy Kehela. Kehela led the king of clubs, and it was no mystery to Kokish, who was looking at four spades in the dummy, why his partner had not led a spade — he could not have any. So Kokish rose with the ace of clubs and returned the three of spades.

That was clearly a suit preference signal, so Kehela ruffed the spade and returned a low club. A nasty partner would now play the nine and make you sweat it out until declarer followed with a low club. Thoughtful partners do what Kokish did — they play the ten of clubs to save partner a few moment's anxiety. Another spade ruff and declarer was down one before he had really started to play.

Note the implicit faith that the Canadians displayed in each other. East did not for a moment think that his partner was leading a club from an honor sequence "to take a look at dummy, partner." And West did not hesitate to return a club away from his honors when partner requested that suit by leading the deuce of spades at trick two.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Seek Access To Old Graves

BRYSON CITY, N.C. (AP) — Mountain residents forced to move 40 years ago when their land was flooded for a power dam want the federal government to provide promised access to several old cemeteries.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow Jones delayed Monday a ruling on a lawsuit by 26 former residents of Fontana Lake's north shore. Much of that land, and the valley adjoining the Tuckasegee and Little Tennessee rivers, was flooded when the Tennessee Valley Authority built the Fontana Dam in 1943.

The land that wasn't flooded was added to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

The action forced several thousand residents — mostly loggers, farmers and miners and their families — to move. Although some residents took apart their houses and rebuilt them elsewhere, they left behind an estimated 800 graves now accessible only by boat and foot trail.

Residents say the federal government promised to build a new road across Fontana Lake to the north shore.

But only about nine miles of the planned 34-mile thoroughfare have been constructed. The road winds its panamoric way above the lake, ending at a tunnel through a mountain ridge, and is called the "Road to No Where."

A lawsuit filed June 1 asks that the road be completed so the former residents can drive to the cemeteries and tend the graves.

During Monday's hearing, Jones heard motions to dismiss the suit. The requests came from the defendants — the U.S. Department of Interior, which runs the Smoky Mountains park, the TVA, the state of North Carolina and Swain County.

The defendants say descendants of the people buried in the old cemetery have sufficient access to the graves.

For the past three years, the U.S. Park Service has provided transportation across the lake for cemetery visits. Several trips are made each year, some with more than 100 visitors.

However, after reaching the north shore by boat the visitors often must walk six to nine miles to the cemeteries.

The lawsuit was filed June 1, after state and county officials offered to support the federal government's refusal to finish the road in exchange for a $9.5 million cash grant to Swain County.

In their motions, the defendants argued that the displaced residents have no right to insist on completion of the road since officially it was promised to Swain County, not them.

The defendants added that the residents turned down an offer to dig up the graves and move them to more accessible cemeteries. The residents responded that they rejected the offer because they expected the road to be built.

Some 400 former north shore residents gathered for a reunion Sunday at a park north of Bryson City.

Helen Vance, 56, whose family relocated in Sylva, was instrumental in organizing the get-together. She said it stemmed from the treks to the cemeteries that began in 1976.

"We feel like it's really history, our heritage," said Mrs. Vance. "It's very important to us that our children know where their family is buried."

There haven't been any burials in the cemeteries since 1944, said Mrs. Vance. But she said many former residents would want to be buried there if the cemeteries could be reached more easily.

Harry Vance, Mrs. Vance's husband and a minister, lead the group in prayer and gospel singing.

"God is going to give us that what we deserve," said Vance.

Hero Says He's Not

MIAMI (AP) — A modest "guardian angel" who rescued a woman when a mob of men surrounded her car says he's far from a hero — even though the incident left him so severely beaten that he needed surgery.

"I didn't do much," said John Ayer, 34, before surgery Monday.

"I just stopped and drove her away. I fall pretty far short of a hero."

Angela Vivier, 19, disagrees.

"I probably would have been killed; I know I would have been raped," said Miss Vivier. "No one else I ever knew would have done what he did. It was like having a guardian angel."

Ayer was recovering today at Baptist Hospital after a 1½-hour operation to repair his jaw, fractured in two places in the melee.

"He's going to be wired shut for about six to seven weeks," said Dr. Carl Melzer, an oral surgeon. "He was pretty badly smacked. They really pounded the poor guy."

Miss Vivier was driving home from work Saturday night when her car collided with a vehicle that pulled out in front of her on a dark road near a bar. Her small car skidded off the road and stalled.

Several men surrounded the vehicle, but when she asked them to call her father for help, one of the men tore off her bracelet, another took her purse and a third tried to climb into the car, she said.

"It was the most frightening thing that ever happened to me in my life," she said.

FOCUS

TASTY BIRTHDAY

This week marks the 80th anniversary of the invention of the ice cream cone. In the late 1800s, an Italian inventor named Italo Marchiony began selling lemon-flavored ice from a pushcart on the streets of New York City. Soon Marchiony devised a new way to serve this popular treat. On September 22, 1903 he applied for a patent on his ice cream cone. The first cones were not as tasty as those we enjoy today. They were made of paper.

DO YOU KNOW — In what country did ice cream originate?

Life Hard In Coal Town

BYTOM, Poland (AP) — Sulphur-scented air hangs over this grim and grimy industrial city where miners work six days a week in an effort to boost coal production, the backbone of Poland's crippled economy.

The government is counting on revenues from coal exports to help repay Poland's $25 billion debt to Western banks and governments, and production, which dropped during the 1980-81 Solidarity upheaval, has climbed again, authorities say.

But miners claim that the gains have been made at a price — lower safety standards, dirty air, man-made "earthquakes" and mandatory work on Saturdays in violation of the government's promise, made three years ago, of a five-day work week.

The government says it is doing all it can to maintain safety and reduce the danger of tremors, and claims that "voluntary" work on Saturdays "is still a strategic necessity for Poland's economy."

The authorities have also boosted the salaries of the once militant miners to counter the living and working conditions in the sprawling Katowice industrial complex.

The area around Katowice, the capital of the southern province of Silesia, is a conglomeration of cities and towns with 3.6 million people living amid slag heaps and smoke stacks. Pollution coats buildings, the garden plots, and the faces of the inhabitants with soot, especially in Bytom, a Katowice suburb with 240,000 inhabitants.

"We have slums," said Bytom Mayor Pawel Spyra in a rare concession from a Socialist official. Local residents put it more bluntly.

"I want to get out of here. My building has cracks and I can't grow anything in my garden because of air pollution," said a steelworker who lives in the city center.

He said his building is shaken every two or three days by tremors caused by cave-ins in the 120 miles of mine tunnels underneath the city.

Another resident, a miner, said "If there is a strong tremor, we have to hold our furniture to keep it upright."

He also would leave Bytom, except for the higher wages, special shops that offer miners hard-to-get items, such as refrigerators, carpets and washing machines — and a law that blocks employees from leaving their workplaces without permission.

In 1982, 35 miners died in the Dymitrow Coal Mine, which lies directly under the city's central section. Seventeen others died as a result of tremors and 18 were killed in an underground gas explosion. In addition, a major tremor last October damaged more than 350 buildings in central Bytom.

The disasters prompted reviews of mining and building techniques, and no deaths have been reported from mine-related accidents this year.

Reviews are still under way, Spyra said, and city authorities claim to have redoubled efforts to make buildings safer and prevent further collapses.

The country's leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, has underlined the need to preserve discipline in the mines by appointing two military officers to top administrative posts — Gen. Czeslaw Paszkowski as regional governor and Gen. Czeslaw Piotrowski as minister of mining.

Katowice, once a Solidarity stronghold, has been mostly quiet since the declaration of martial law on Dec. 13, 1981 which suspended the free trade union. The exception was an occupation strike in the Wujek Mine, four days after martial law was declared. Officials acknowledge that seven miners were killed during the incident.

Poland's coal production averaged about 200 million tons before the birth of Solidarity, but fell during the labor upheaval, Deputy Premier Zbigniew Szalajda said during a meeting with miners earlier this month. It cost Poland export earnings worth $610 million in 1980 and $795 million in 1981, he said.

But last year, after the military crackdown, output rose to nearly 190 million tons, and appears headed even higher this year.

Bytom city officials say that 90 percent of the miners work every Saturday and that 15 percent to 20 percent go to the mines on Sundays to do maintenance work. Workers are paid triple time on Saturdays and double time Sundays.

Miners claim that weekend work is not voluntary, that if they refuse to work one Saturday a month, they forfeit the right to work — and earn higher wages, on subsequent Saturdays. And they say they must work one Sunday a month or face disciplinary action.

Air pollution and man-made tremors also plague the area.

A visit to Katowice in June by a parliamentary delegation prompted the immediate closing of Bytom's worst pollutor, a manufacturer of building materials, and provided the impetus for an environmental protection bill now being drafted, said Spyra.

The tremors began in the 1950s, the result of exploitation of the mines by German occupation forces during World War II and post-war production drives by the Socialist government, city officials say.

The damage to the crumbly sandstone lying under Bytom is already so severe, they say, that stopping coal production entirely and filling all the shafts would not eliminate the dangers.

The entrance way of the regional administrative building in central Katowice is shrouded with scaffolding to protect passers-by from materials shaken loose by tremors.

Chemist Contends Pyramids Not Built From Stone Blocks

MIAMI (AP) — The ancient Egyptians built the Pyramids by pouring a concrete-like substance into plywood molds, not by carving stone blocks from quarries as generally believed, a chemist contends.

Joseph Davidovits says the Egyptians of 5,000 years ago used construction methods similar to those of today.

"My colleagues find my theory shocking," said Davidovits, a member of the International Association of Egyptologists who recently moved his Geopolymer Institute from France to Barry University in Miami Shores. "They cannot accept that (the Pyramids) were made of fossil-shell concrete of such high quality that it can't be distinguished from stone."

In his first lecture at Barry, Davidovits said Monday that he discovered air bubbles and human hair embedded in a casing stone from the Great Pyramid, built for the Egyptian king Cheops.

"The air bubbles are the same as those found in cement or ceramic," said Davidovits, who holds a doctorate in polymer science, the study of producing materials with the properties of minerals. "The organic fibers found are human hair."

He considers this proof that the building material was synthesized by some 5,000 workers who built the monument.

He said he manufactured synthetic stone in his laboratory in Saint Quentin, France, about 90 miles north of Paris, using the materials he believes were used by the Egyptians. He found "they had the same characteristics as those of Cheops." He says the hair probably fell off the arm of a worker while making the mixture to pour into blocks.

Not everyone agrees with Davidovits' theory.

"To me, it's a totally crackpot idea," said Ogden Goelet, an Egyptologist at New York University. "It's based on the modern prejudice that the Egyptians were not capable of these enormous engineering feats. I think various sorts of animal fiber do crop up in stones."

"Even if you can prove something can be done, even if Davidovits can persuade me that the Egyptians had the capacity to cast these stones, it doesn't mean they did it that way. It just doesn't ring true to us," said Nick Millet, an Egyptologist with the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto.

Davidovits is undaunted by the criticism.

"We examined the fibers under a microscope and they are completely surrounded by a binder," he said.

He said the wood used to make the mold for the concrete blocks came from Lebanon and it is well known among archaeologists that plywood was found in the tomb of Cheops' mother.

He said he would expand in his next lecture on the chemical processes employed by the Egyptians.

"It is no more difficult (to make concrete) than to make bread or discover how to make beer," he said.

Bubble Boy Has Birthday

HOUSTON (AP) — A boy who has never been touched by a bare human hand or kissed by his mother celebrates his 12th birthday today in the plastic bubble that protects him from the potentially lethal, germ-filled world.

The party for David will be small and private — his family's identity has been kept secret — but there will be a cake, set on a plate sterilized with a paracetic acid solution and passed to David through an airlock.

"He seems happy. He seems to accept his life," said Susannah Moore Griffin, spokeswoman for the Baylor College of Medicine, which directs his care.

Doctors say David is the world's oldest survivor of severe combined immune deficiency, which involves the lack of two types of white blood cells: T-cells, which ward off infection, and B-cells, which produce antibodies against germs.

The condition, discovered while David was in his mother's womb, makes every germ potentially lethal. So the consecrated wafers he receives when a Roman Catholic priest visits to minister communion are irradiated; his books, clothing and bedding are sterilized with ethylene oxide gas.

From inside a four-compartment bubble that takes up most of the living room and dining room, David can watch movies on a video cassette recorder the family installed last year. He plays an electronic game and has started to play a miniature electronic piano.

For his birthday he expects to receive "Jedi" toys, favorites since he was treated to a special showing of "Return of the Jedi" at a local theater. He will also get video game cartridges, electronic toys and adventure books, Mrs. Griffin said.

Doctors had planned after David's birth to transplant bone marrow from his sister, but abandoned the idea when they found the blood types were incompatible. Bone marrow produces lymphocytes, which are used in the production of antibodies.

Since then, except for the filtering of the air in his bubble and the constant protection from the dirty outside world, David has received no treatment for his condition.

He is monitored for two weeks a year, one each in June and December, at the Texas Children's Hospital in Houston. Two rooms are reserved for him at the hospital the year around.

David has been found to have a superior IQ and the scholastic abilities of an eighth-grader. A tutor teaches him at home for two hours daily, and he spends another 2½ hours each morning and afternoon participating by a telephone hookup in a regular sixth-grade class at a nearby school.

His family takes him on outings in a portable isolator which fits in a van. David himself takes care of the inside of his bubble, passing out clothing, bedding and wastes for disposal.

Dr. William Shearer, David's physician, said a bone marrow transplant appears to be the only treatment possible, but no matching donor has been found.

"David's parents and I are watching developments at other medical centers that have treated SCID patients with unmatched bone marrow treated with monoclonal antibodies," said Shearer, but there are no immediate plans to attempt the therapy on David.

Monoclonal antibodies are obtained from cloned cells and appear to kill cells responsible for graft versus host disease.

David's care is supported in part by grants from the National Institutes of Health. Since 1971, the NIH contributions have totaled $1.1 million, said Mrs. Griffin.

Urges Rally Behind Bill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Consumers should rally behind a bill before Congress that offers the best hope for keeping local telephone rates from tripling over the next five years, says state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten.

Edmisten said Tuesday that he and a task force from his office will appeal directly to Congress "to try to reverse this entire fiasco" of rapidly rising telephone rates.

The bill Edmisten supports would stop telephone access charges from taking effect next year. Access charges, a result of the divestiture of American Telephone and Telegraph, are monthly fees paid for the right to make both local and long-distance telephone calls. They supplement the actual charge for each call.

Unless Congress acts, local telephone rates over the next five years will rise from about $12 a month to more than $30 a month for residential customers, Edmisten said. He added that the idea of universal telephone service would be destroyed and a class of "phoneless people" created.

Edmisten said the six lawyers from the utilities, antitrust and consumer protection sections of his office will fight the access charges before the state Utilities Commission, the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington and the Federal Communications Commission.

Edmisten said local phone companies are asking the Utilities Commission for a $1.30 per month fee for in-state telephone access. He said the FCC has agreed to let national phone companies levy charges for access to interstate calls.

Tragedy Build Fear Of Soviet Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some American experts say the Soviet Union probably is not dismayed by world horror generated by its downing of the South Korean airliner because it has helped strike fear in Europe and Asia about the Kremlin's military power.

At the same time, the experts agree the Soviets have done a miserable propaganda job trying to justify to the world shooting down the unarmed Korean Air Lines plane carrying 269 people.

"I think they've done it just about as badly as anybody possibly could do," said Paul Warnke, chief arms negotiator with the Soviets during the Carter administration. "What they need is a good press agent."

In the aftermath of the plane tragedy, American specialists are trying to assess how deeply it has hurt the Soviet Union's image and what lies ahead for relations between Washington and Moscow.

"To some extent, people expect the Soviets to do this sort of thing," said Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a senior specialist on Soviet affairs in the Nixon administration. "They don't like it when they do it, but it doesn't dramatically change their image of the Soviets anyway."

Harvard historian Richard Pipes, who was President Reagan's chief Soviet specialist, said, "It's done them a lot of harm, but they'll shrug it off and, I'm sure, they'll think ... 'Well, the West has a very short memory.'"

Pipes and Sonnenfeldt both said the Soviets may think there is a plus side to the plane incident.

"Probably on balance many of them think it wasn't a bad thing they shot this plane down," said Pipes. "There was a bit of 'hysteria,' as they call it, but I am sure that many of them think it inspired a lot of fear in the people in Asia and Europe and makes them more frightful of the Soviet Union."

Sonnenfeldt said the Soviets expend a lot of effort to improve their image, "but they also do a lot of things, and some of them deliberately, to frighten people so that they can intimidate and coerce them ... And that's a value to them by their standards, trying to impress the Europeans, for example, with how severely they will react" to the planned deployment of new American medium-range missiles in Europe, beginning in December.

"I think from their standpoint, this episode probably frightens Europeans that much more about Soviet intentions," Sonnenfeldt added.

Warnke, however, disagreed. "The fact that they're paranoid, the fact that they can't even tolerate an incursion by a civilian airplane — I don't think that shows strength. It shows weakness," said Warnke.

"I don't think it's anything comparable to the invasion of Afghanistan," he said. "Even that kind of show of Soviet military force has never had the effect of scaring people into greater subordination to Soviet power.

"Remember the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968," Warnke said. "I think that solidified the Western Alliance. So if that's what they have in mind (fear and intimidation), it's a pretty dumb way to proceed."

The experts said the U.S. version of what happened to the plane may have been undermined by the belated acknowledgement that an American reconnaissance plane was flying in the area, and the revision in transcripts of radio messages from the Soviet pilot. Even so, the experts said, those developments did not blunt world anger about the incident.

"There is widespread skepticism about what any government says, and in this country there is skepticism about what the government says about anything, whether it's interest rates or cancer or episodes of this sort," said Sonnenfeldt. "It takes a while and things get changed and corrected and inaccurate things get made more accurate. It's a built-in problem in an era when there is a strong tendency to question anything the government does."

Sonnenfeldt characterized U.S-Soviet relations as being in a "trough" and said they probably will deteriorate further before they improve. Pipes said relations were at the lowest point in 20 years, and that the future depends on what the Soviet Union does. "They are the instigators. We respond."

Warnke said relations depend on whether the Soviets "are more forthcoming in terms of arms control efforts and in terms of other efforts to diminish the numbers of frictions and confrontations. I think it's a serious setback; it's not irrevocable, provided that they, perhaps, learn some lesson from it."

Radioactive Bugs Will Be Studied

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Almost everything in this city, built by the government for nuclear research purposes, has something to do with nuclear energy. Now, so do some of the mosquitoes, gnats, dragonflies and bees.

Some of the insects have become radioactive by breeding in or gathering pollen near atomic waste ponds.

The bugs look normal and probably are harmless to humans, but researchers at Oak Ridge National Laboratory want to know if they are getting into the food chain, said Tom Oakes, the laboratory's environmental coordinator.

"You know insects are eaten by birds. There are pathways to humans, and we're tracking those pathways to determine if there is any significant amount of radioactivity that could get a human," Oakes said. "That's a very complex system and very lengthy, and we're only on the front end."

The laboratory is studying four of 13 ponds that Oakes said contain enough radioactivity to affect insects.

Could mosquitoes transfer radioactivity to humans by biting them? Oakes thinks not.

No measurable radioactivity was found in laboratory mice that were bitten by dozens of contaminated mosquitoes, Oakes said. "We can definitely say there is no human health problem there," he said.

The study was started nearly a decade ago when insects caught at monitoring stations showed some radioactivity when exposed to photographic film.

Researchers are studying honey bees that use contaminated pond water and pollen from nearby plants to make radioactive honey.

Except for bees, no other land-based insects showed signs of picking up radioactivity. "We've looked at grasshoppers, crickets, flies ...." Oakes said.

The Energy Department, which operates the national laboratory and two other nuclear-related facilities at Oak Ridge, is reconsidering its practice of allowing 25 private beekeepers to have hives on the government reservation, department spokesman Wayne Range said.

"We've asked the lab to get into the situation and recommend what ought to be done," Range said, adding that no deadline has been set for the recommendation.

The laboratory keeps 14 hives of its own for research purposes.

The bugs also are helping scientists identify the most contaminated areas of the reservation, where government agencies are planning a massive cleanup following recent disclosures of poor waste-disposal practices over the past 40 years.

Oak Ridge was built by the government during World War II to make fuel for the first atomic bombs. One plant here makes nuclear components for weapons.

New Cancer Tests Find Them Early

WASHINGTON (AP) — Minnesota researchers say they have developed a new test to detect early signs of colon and rectal cancer that is much more sensitive and reliable than existing tests.

The laboratory test reliably measures blood in fecal samples without giving the false-positive and false-negative reactions that have plagued other tests, Dr. David A. Ahlquist of the Mayo Clinic said Monday.

The test, called HemoQuant, was developed by Dr. Samual Schwartz of the University of Minnesota and is undergoing trials at the Mayo Clinic, Ahlquist told a cancer symposium sponsored by the George Washington University Medical Center.

Older tests are designed to detect the mere presence of blood in stool samples, a sign that there may be bleeding tumors somewhere in the intestinal system. But the presence of other substances in the feces can give the same positive reactions in the tests, while other compounds can mask evidence of blood.

Ahlquist said the new test not only specifically reacts to blood in the feces, but also quantifies how much blood is present.

"With HemoQuant, only blood gives a positive reaction," Ahlquist said in an interview. "Based on our studies, it promises to be considerably more reliable than tests used now."

There are about 125,000 new cases of colon and rectum cancer diagnosed in the United States each year and more than 50,000 persons die of these cancers annually, says the American Cancer Society. When the cancers are detected and treated at an early stage, the five-year survival rate is about 75 percent.

Ahlquist said scientists are working on automating the new test, which changes a blood protein called hemoglobin into a substance that glows or fluoresces under special light. Such a machine could take in a small stool sample and produce a printout of test resuls a short time later.

This automated test probably would be slightly more expensive initially than current ones because it would have to be run in a professional lab instead of in doctors' offices, as is now common.

"But because it's more sensitive, it should detect cancers earlier for earlier treatment," Ahlquist said. "And because there are fewer false positives, fewer people will need to have expensive evaluations done later."

When the current tests indicate blood is present in stools, patients are advised to have further tests in a hospital. When tests read falsely positive for blood, many unnecessarily go through these expensive evaluations, experts say.

Don't Sneer At Lowly Housework

By The Associated Press

Don't sneer at housework!

The household labor of women who devote their time to taking care of their homes and families is worth an average of $7 an hour or about $300 for a typical week of chores, according to new studies from Cornell University.

Keith Bryant, a professor of consumer economics and housing in the New York State College of Human Ecology at Cornell in Ithaca, N.Y., said he used "an opportunity-cost concept which says that the value of anything to you is what you had to give up to get it."

Bryant based his findings on families with two parents and two children. "This is the typical family, even though it's going fast," he said. "It's kind of the mythical average family."

Bryant calculated the worth of work done by full-time housewives and by women who are employed outside the home.

"The particular way we got the value of the time for full-time housewives goes like this," he said. "We tried to estimate the lowest wage rate that it would take to induce the full-time housewife to go into the labor market."

The researchers took into account the wages that women are offered as well as individual factors like household size.

"Of course that lowest wage rate will vary from woman to woman, depending on how many children she has, how old she is, how many years of education she has, etc., etc., etc. But on the average, it comes out to about $7," Bryant said.

The labor of women who already are employed outside the home is worth a little less — between $5 and $6 an hour. "The wage rate they're making is a reasonable estimate of what we believe their time is worth in the household," said Bryant. The reason the full-time housewives' labor is worth more is that "they're still in the home. Their time's worth more than what they could have got in the marketplace."

Bryant said the figures can't be applies to "house husbands" — men who stay home taking care of their families. "Husbands behave differently from wives and employers behave differently in the face of males than they do in the face of females. There's a whole discrimination question," he said.

In a separate study, Bryant estimated that married women — employed and unemployed — spend an average of 5.8 hours a day on home-related tasks. That works out to almost 42 hours a week, which is worth $294 at $7 an hour.

He said the amount of time women spend on these chres has declined over the years, but not by much. By the late 1970s, he said, women were spending only 130 minutes less on their daily chores than they did during the 1920s.

Bryant said modern technology may have reduced the amount of time spent on some kinds of chores, but he said other activities have taken the place of the routine.

"Even though women spend today spend less time on chores such as washing dishes, doing laundry or canning food, they spend more time with their families — in activities with their children, driving their children around and fulfilling additional family demands," he said.

He said the smaller size of today's families is probably a bigger factor than improved technology in the reduction of time spent on housework. And he said the machines themselves may actually cause more work.

"For instance, I'm convinced that one of the responses to the automatic washer and the automatic dryer in comparison to the old scrubboard my mother used in the 1930s was that we have simply demanded more clean clothes. Technology has done a lot. It's raised output. But it doesn't necessarily have to mean reduced time spent working in the household."

Is Diana Expecting?

LONDON (AP) — It's the most popular guessing game in Britain: is Princess Diana expecting her second baby or isn't she?

One London newspaper says she is, another says she isn't and the one person who knows for sure isn't saying.

So, did the 22-year-old princess, as widely reported, slip away from the royal retreat in Scotland on Sept. 4 for a secret visit with her gynecologist in London? Did she then break the happy news to the royal family, which celebrated with champagne?

These are questions Britons have been asking for the past two weeks. And the answers vary in the press.

On Monday, The Sun, Britain's best-selling newspaper, assured its 4 million readers that the whole thing is a mistake. "Princess Di Is Not Pregnant, Says Aide," ran a headline.

The story underneath it read: "Reports that she is expecting her second baby in April were dismissed as 'rubbish' and 'pure speculation' by her personal press secretary, Victor Chapman."

He said no such thing, Buckingham Palace spokeswoman Sarah Brennan told The Associated Press.

"I can tell you he didn't make those quotes," she said. "If they asked him, he would have said what we have been saying all along — and that is that an announcement will be made if the princess is pregnant. But that doesn't mean she is."

Chapman himself couldn't be reached to set the record straight. He was at Balmoral Castle with Diana, her husband Prince Charles, 15-month-old Prince William, Queen Elizabeth II and other members of the royal family.

Back at The Sun, a man on the news desk said the paper stood by its report.

"As a journalist involved in the story, I say we talked to him yesterday (Sunday) as he was leaving church with the princess," said the man, who would not allow his name to be used.

But did Chapman say she wasn't pregnant?

"Of course he did," the man answered. "That's what we quoted him as saying. What do you think we are here?"

This follows an "exclusive report" Saturday in the Daily Mirror, The Sun's biggest rival with 3.4 million readers. It said Diana revealed she was pregnant during a royal dinner party at Balmoral after returning from a visit with Dr. George Pinker, the London gynecologist who delivered William on June 21, 1982.

"The royal family was delighted and called for champagne to celebrate," the Mirror quoted "palace sources" as saying. "There was a lot of kissing at the same time."

The Mirror said palace press officers have not been told of the pregnancy to spare Diana, for as long as possible, the kind of publicity that preceded William's birth.

Both Diana and Charles have said they want more children, and this is not the first time rumors of an impending second royal birth have surfaced.

In May, several newspapers published photographs of a slouching Diana showing what appeared to be a bulging stomach. But the bulge, possibly caused by a tightly cinched belt, has not reappeared in recent photographs.

Still, London odds-making firm William Hill has set 5-1 odds in favor of a royal birth sometime during the first six months of 1984.

"Everyone's in agreement that she's pregnant," said William Hill press officer Michael Raper. "We're not getting many bets at those odds."

Several newspapers reported that Diana was asked whether she was pregnant while touring a marmalade factory in Dundee, Scotland, on Sept. 7. Some reports said she blushed.

Elaine Robertson, the worker who spoke with Diana, quoted the princess as saying, "That is a very personal question," then walking away.

The City Council, the administrative staff, and all city employees are here to serve your needs. If you have a concern, call Nadine Bowen, Citizen Concern Coordinator, 752-4137.

How They Voted On Roll Calls

Roll Call Report Service

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes after returning from their summer recess.

House

SOCIAL SPENDING — By a vote of 124 for and 283 against, the House rejected an amendment to keep an Administration-backed spending lid on 10 social welfare programs.

This authorized an additional $1.6 billion in fiscal 1984 for programs such as education aid for poor children and nutrition aid to infants and pregnant mothers who are poor.

Reversing themselves on this vote were many members who supported the ceilings when they were set in 1981 as part of the Gramm-Latta budget resolution, the keystone of the president's budget-cutting program.

The outlays were approved as part of a vocational rehabilitation bill (HR 3520) later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., who voted for the amendment, called it "clever politically" for the Democratic leadership to add the social spending to the popular vocational bill.

Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said voting for the extra education outlay would be "responding to the power of the American people, who are insisting that more, not less, money be spent on education."

Members voting no favored the additional $1.6 billion in social spending.

Voting yes: James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10.

Voting no: Walter Jones, D-1, Tim Valentine, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Britt, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Clarke, D-11.

Not voting: Ike Andrews, D-4.

LITERACY — By a vote of 128 for and 275 against, the House rejected language requiring that high schools deny graduation to the functionally illiterate, as a condition of receiving special U.S. aid for the poor.

The vote came during debate on HR 3520 (above).

It was supported by lawmakers unhappy with the addition of $350 million in education outlays for the disadvantaged.

Sponsor John Erlenborn, R-Ill., said "we should get some results for the federal funds that have been and will be expended ... for education."

Opponent Carl Perkins, D-Ky., said the literacy requirement amounted to "heavy-handed federal control" over state and local education.

Members voting no opposed federally-mandated literacy tests for high school graduates.

Voting yes: Martin, Broyhill.

Voting no: Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner.

Not voting: Clarke.

AID — The House refused, 154 for and 255 against, to kill a provision extending Trade Adjustment Assistance to a new category of the jobless.

Presently, TAA unemployment and retraining benefits go to workers in industries such as steel and autos who lose their jobs directly as a result of foreign competition.

With this vote, the House approved TAA eligibility also for former employees of companies that supply goods and services to firms directly affected by imports.

The vote occurred during debate on a bill (HR 3319) extending the TAA program for two years at a cost estimated by the Congressional Budget Office at $380 million. Benefits authorized by this vote would cost at least $44 million annually. The bill awaited final action.

President Reagan has sought deep cuts in TAA, long a favorite of organized labor and its allies in Congress.

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., who voted yes, said the provision "would create a new entitlement program ..."

Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn., said extending TAA to workers in supplier companies was a matter of "equity," adding "this is not an entitlement program."

Members voting no wanted to extend Trade Adjustment Assistance to a new category of the unemployed.

Voting yes: Britt, Martin, Broyhill.

Voting no: Valentine, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Rose, Hefner.

Not voting: Jones.

Senate

MILITARY — The Senate passed, 83 for and eight against, and sent to the House the conference report on a bill (S 675) authorizing a $187.5 billion military budget for fiscal 1984.

The measure goes $18.9 billion beyond current spending levels but is $10.5 billion short of President Reagan's request for 1984. It funds the MX missile, nerve gas production and the B-1 bomber, among other controversial weaponry.

Supporter Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the Soviets' recent downing of a Korean Air Lines passenger jet "should remind us that military strength and national will are our only deterrents to Soviet aggression."

Opponent Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., cited the MX and B-1 as examples of "wasteful, inefficient and destabilizing weapons" and said "I reject the notion that simply spending more will lead to greater national security."

Senators voting yes supported the defense bill.

Voting yes: John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R.

Notes Hit Low Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on short-term Treasury securities have dropped to their lowest level since late June. The decline also marked the fifth drop in six weeks, officials said.

The government on Monday sold about $12.4 billion in new T-bills — half in three month bills at an average discount rate of 8.99 percent, down from 9.04 percent last week, and half in six-month bills at an average rate of 9.06 percent, down from 9.14 percent.

Monday's yields were the lowest since the June 20 levels of 8.98 percent for three-month bills and 9.02 percent for six-month bills.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 9.35 percent for three-month bills and 9.65 percent for the six-month bills.

Beginning Tuesday, in private accounts linked to the T-bill rates:

—Savings and loan associations and commercial banks may pay as much as 9.53 percent interest on six-month money market certificates compared with the 9.59 percent of the past week.

—Banks and S&Ls may pay as much as 8.99 percent on three-month certificates, down from 9.04 percent last week.

In rates that don't change until next week, S&Ls may pay as much as 10.65 percent and commercial banks as much as 10.40 percent on 1½-year certificates.

He Brings Weather To Court

By ZACK ALLEN
The Asheville Times

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — "Go out Riceville Road," William Haggard said, "then up Shope's Creek Road, take the unmarked right hand fork, then go six-tenths of a mile until you find a mailbox marked CCC and Box 372. We're the white frame building on the left."

The initials CCC stand for Climatological Consulting Corp. and the small white frame building nestled in the wrinkled rural landscape of the Swannanoa Valley is corporate headquarters. CCC is a special firm providing a special service. The name of the game is forensic meteorology — the science of bringing weather data to the courtroom.

"Only 20 percent of the cases we are involved in actually get to trial," says Haggard, who retired as director of Asheville's National Climatic Center in 1975. "Much of what we are involved in is the gathering of information and giving our interpretation of the facts."

This often means putting a mass of very technical information into perspective for a judge and jury who learned all they know about the weather from the TV weatherman. Haggard says his firm leans very heavily on graphic materials to make complex things simple.

"We use a great deal of graphic material," Haggard says. "We depend a lot on art work to do things such as putting radar imagery onto a sequence chart or providing a cross-section of a warm front. It's very much a process of show and tell.

"The case that really got us rolling was a lawsuit involving the construction of a north-south runway at the Anchorage (Alaska) Airport," Haggard said. "A property owner sued to stop construction of the runway. One of his contentions was that it was designed to be a crosswind runway and that it did not qualify."

Finding the answer to that problem required a year-and-a-half of work that included studying 23 years of hourly weather data from the site of the runway. The final analysis included a model that took into account 121,229 separate wind direction readings and showed that there was indeed a crosswind at the site. Their interpretation of the data was enough to convince a federal judge.

Other cases have involved aircraft crashes, marine disasters and even a damage case where an airline passenger was injured when a jetliner pilot flew through a thunderhead.

"That case was of particular interest," said Henry T. Harrison, a former director of meteorology for United Air Lines who retired to northern Buncombe County in 1968. "We had to reconstruct the weather that occurred at a certain time over a particular area in the South Pacific, after a time-lapse of more than two years."

The consulting firm gathered up enough evidence from a variety of sources, including satellite photos and meteorological data from both the Australian and United States governments, to convince a Florida jury that pilot error may have been a factor in the case.

Harrison and Haggard were both consultants in the Tampa Bay Bridge disaster case and, closer to home, they were involved in interpretation of weather data in the lawsuit this spring in which Akzona Inc. sought more than $12 million from Southern Railway after flooding in 1977 caused extensive damage to Enka and Brand-Rex facilities at Enka.

A Buncombe County Superior Court jury awarded Akzona $2.3 million in damages in March. The case has been appealed.

Haggard says he has not kept a log of the thousands of miles he has traveled in his work as a consultant, but he admits that such a log might make a pretty impressive list.

"Last month I was in Chicago, Miami and New York City. This month I am scheduled to appear in a trial in Detroit and a trial in Boston on the same day. Next month, I expect to appear in San Diego, Louisville, Ky., and New York City. That's just the ones I know about now."

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)
Lowe's Reinscheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a rainscheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.
