STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Barbara McClintock, an 81-year-old American whose pioneering research in genetics went largely unrecognized for 30 years, won the 1983 Nobel Prize in medicine today.

Miss McClintock, who still works at Cold

Spring Harbor Laboratory on Long Island, N.Y., becomes the first woman to receive the prize in medicine for work she did alone.

Two other women have won Nobel science awards on their own — France's Marie Curie in 1911 and Britain's Dorothy Crowfoot Hodgkin in 1964 — and they both won for

Offering No Evidence In Ross Arson Defense

WASHINGTON — The arson trial of state trooper Kenneth Ross resumed today in Beaufort County Superior Court with the defense announcing that it would present no evidence.

The trial's resumption followed a brief delay last week after the defendant complained of illness.

Ross is charged with arson and conspiracy to commit arson in connection with the burning of two mobile homes in Beaufort County last October.

Ross was in attendance today as defense attorney James R. Vosburgh offered a series of motions for dismissal. All were denied by Judge R. Michael Bruce.

The defendant, a 19-year veteran of the Highway

Patrol, was taken to a local hospital Wednesday after he complained of chest pains. A Washington physician told Bruce on Friday that he did not think Ross had suffered a heart attack and would probably be able to attend court today. Ross was released from the hospital Saturday.

Bruce had delayed the proceedings in the patrolman's absence Friday, saying it would violate the constitution and laws of the state and nation if the trial continued without Ross being present. The judge said that to continue with the case with Ross absent would be unfair to the defendant, even if he agreed with the resumption.

The state rested its case against Ross Thursday morning.

Reagan Accepts Resignation Hunt Watt Replacement

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Watt, the victim of a mouth that misfired once too often, will give up his job as interior secretary as soon as a replacement can be found by the president and confirmed by the Senate. The search begins today.

Watt gave up an 18-day struggle to hold onto his Cabinet post Sunday but vowed to never abandon his crusade for "spiritual freedom and political liberty."

Standing in a California cow pasture, Watt read his resignation letter to a small band of reporters Sunday, his voice quavering at times. His wife stood at his side, holding the reins of their horses.

President Reagan accepted the resignation "reluctantly" and an aide said the president hoped to nominate a successor in one to two weeks.

Speculation in the administration and on Capitol Hill has centered on former Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., who was Reagan's first choice for the job in 1981: former Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y.; Rep. Manuel Lujan, R-N.M.; Energy Secretary Donald Hodel, and Interior Undersecretary J.J. Simmons III. Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III says no formal list has been drawn up.

In his letter to Reagan, Watt said: "The time has come. It is my view that my usefulness to you in this administration has come to an end."

Indeed, the interior secretary had lost so much support among Senate Republicans that he faced certain passage on Oct. 17 of a Senate resolution calling for his dismissal for conduct "unbefitting a senior Cabinet member."

Reagan praised Watt for the "outstanding" job he had done managing the country's natural resources and said his "dedication to public service and his accomplishments as secretary of the interior will long be remembered."

Neither man in their formal statements mentioned Watt's wisecrack

Sept. 21 in a U.S. Chamber of Commerce speech in which he referred to "a black... a woman, two Jews and a cripple" on a coal advisory commission.

But asked whether the controversy over the remark had prompted the resignation, Watt said, "It did accelerate it."

Watt, joking that he wanted to answer reporters' questions from atop his horse so he could get away quickly if necessary, said he felt he had accomplished his objectives as interior secretary and "it's time for us to move on to the next phase of our lives."

Asked what that would be, Watt said, "We will continue our crusade and our efforts to establish spiritual freedom and political liberty in this country, for that is the real battleground."

Watt refused to name a preference for a successor and administration officials said Watt and Reagan did not discuss that topic in a 10-minute telephone conversation Sunday afternoon.

Before talking to Reagan, who was at Camp David,

Md., Watt first called Meese.

Asked if he or other administration officials had tried to talk Watt out of resigning, Meese said by the time Watt called, the interior secretary had made up his mind.

Both the president in his statement and Meese in an interview praised Watt for carrying out Reagan's policies.

"We wanted to support him and keep him in the job," Meese said. "I don't think any Cabinet member has done more than he had toward achieving the president's goals."

Meese said the search for a successor would begin today and he expected Reagan would announce his choice in a week or two. He said the White House hopes the Senate can confirm the nominee before it goes home, probably in late November.

Meese said Watt sounded relieved and "certainly not downbeat" in his telephone conversation. However, a longtime friend, Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., described Watt in recent days as "in anguish" as more and more former supporters attacked him and called for his resignation.

Watt issued an abject apology to Reagan the day after the remark and then dropped out of sight, hoping to ride out his latest gaffe as he had so many in the past. For the past five days, he had been secluded at the Thomas J. Barrack ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

South Korea's President Blames North Korea For Bombing Deaths

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan, who narrowly escaped a bombing in Burma that killed four Cabinet ministers, blamed North Korea for the attack and returned to Seoul today for emergency meetings with government leaders.

The bombing Sunday was "a barbarous crime, unpardonable by the conscience of all mankind," Chun said after returning to his mourning nation, cutting short a planned 18-day, six-nation goodwill tour that began with the Burma visit.

Meanwhile, more than 7,000 people took part in rallies in Seoul and seven other cities to denounce North Korea. Similar rallies were planned for Tuesday, when the bodies of the 16 South Korean victims are to be brought home for a "national funeral service." The service is tentatively set for Saturday with burial in the National Cemetery.

A government spokesman said most sporting events and various cultural and folk festivals would be postponed until after Oct. 20.

The explosion shattered the roof of the Martyr's Mausoleum outside Rangoon, sending up a billowing cloud of smoke and engulfing most of the South Korean delegation waiting for Chun to arrive for a wreath-laying ceremony, officials said.

The blast shook buildings in a mile away in the Burmese capital, killed 19 people, including the South Koreans, and wounded 19 others. It was not clear what type of explosive was used, but South Korean news agencies said it may have been a time bomb planted in the ceiling of the one-story shrine.

The victims included South Korea's deputy prime minister and foreign minister.

Witnesses said Chun's limousine was three minutes away from the memorial site and immediately wheeled around and fled the area. One report said the president and his wife had been delayed because the car was tied up in traffic.

After arriving at the heavily guarded airport in Seoul, Chun said his government "will study all possible countermeasures in punishing such injustice and violence" although he gave no specifics.

"It will not only be our people alone who point to the North Korean communist group, the most inhumane on earth, as the mastermind of the crime who perpetrated an extremely atrocious sin in an attempt on my life," he said.

The South Koreans offered no proof to support their allegation, but they frequently have accused North Korea of terrorist plots to destabilize their non-communist system ever since the Korean peninsula was divided following World War II.

North Korea reported the bombing without comment.

FEE INCREASED, TAX

I recently went to get a used car I had just bought licensed and did not take along enough money. I would like for everyone not to have the inconvenience I did. Everyone needs to know that private passenger automobile registration fees have been increased from $16 to $20 and the sales tax on a used car has to be paid when the registration is paid at a rate of two percent on the price paid for the car or the appraised value, whichever is higher. Most license agents require cash. Also, odometer readings must be provided. A.H.

Yes, the increase in fees was effective Sept. 1, as approved by the 1983 General Assembly. As part of the same legislation, registration fees on private buses of over nine-passenger capacity was increased from $19 to $23. The additional monies are slated to go into the state road system as part of a package to match federal aid user fees. These extra funds are expected to generate approximately $12.25 million for the State Highway Fund this year, Commissioner of the Department of Motor Vehicle R.W. Wilkins Jr. said.

N.C. Streams Are Revived By New Programs

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

Only a few years ago, 4,000 miles of streams in North Carolina were so polluted fish could not live in the water.

But this year the state Division of Environmental Management is including less than 500 miles of streams in its list of water that has some pollution in it. Even the water on that list is able to sustain some fish life.

"We've made tremendous strides in this state in water quality," said R. Paul Wilms, assistant director for programs at DEM. "The amount of conventional waste has doubled in the last several years, but the amount discharged to surface water has been cut in half."

The major factor in cleaning up the state's waters, Wilms said, has been a 20-year boom in developing wastewater treatment plants for towns and industries. The treatment facilities, mandated by state law, ended an era when raw sewage was dumped into streams and rivers.

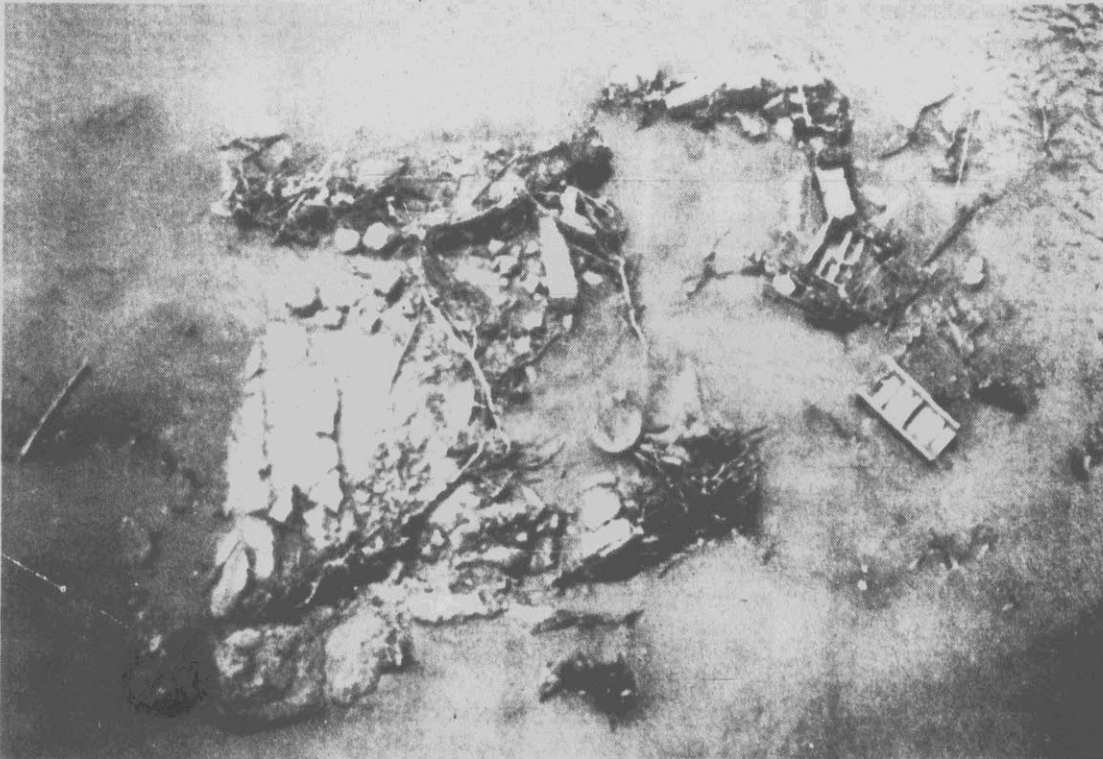

That era — using streams as open sewer ditches — had lasted for generations, and only came under close government scrutiny in the last 35 years.

"Concern about water quality never emerged in full-blown proportions until after World War II," said Dr. David Moreau, director of the Water Resource Research Institute at North Carolina State University. "The state had recognized in 1903 the threat of development to water supplies, so the Board of Health was authorized to control upstream drinking water sources."

"A major survey of water quality was done in 1947 and reported to the Legislature in 1949," Moreau said. "The first legislation came out in 1951 and that put the state into the regulation of water quality."

"The classic problem addressed was the lack of dissolved oxygen in the water and pathogenic organisms," he said. "The concern for water quality started off as a concern for

Neal-Porter Vows Solemnized — Myra Dove Smalls Marries Sunday

The wedding of Angela Porter and Talmage Neal Jr. was held Sunday at 5 p.m. in the gazebo on the East Carolina University campus.

The Rev. Willis Wilson officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride's father gave her in marriage and the bridegroom's father served him as best man.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Porter of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Rusty Neal of Winterville.

The bride wore a sleeveless gown of candlelight satin silkened organza over peau de soie fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline and empire waist. Her chapel train was trimmed in antique crocheted lace. The shoulder length veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of seed pearls. The veil was etched with chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of bridal roses, Rosario alstromerias, and freesias with ming fern and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Annette Porter, sister of the bride of Winterville. She wore a wine taffeta gown with a sweetheart neckline, attached cummerbund and modified melon sleeves with bow trim at the shoulders. She carried an arm bouquet of rubrum lilies, alstromeria and miniature carnations.

Bridesmaids included Susan Puryear, Lynn and Teresa Cox, cousins of the bridegroom, and Lisa Harris, all of Winterville. Felicia Brooks of Washington and Karen Cobb of Fayetteville.

Erika Puryear of Winterville and Tonya Porter of Greenville, sister of the bride, were flower girls.

The ring bearer was Randall Cox of Winterville, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Bobby Puryear, Randy Cox, cousin of the bridegroom, and Chris Neal, brother of the bridegroom, all of Winterville. Mike Meije and Dennis Cobb of Fayetteville and Jeff Wilson of Greenville.

Lois Jane Hardee was organist and Mary Frances Leggett sang "If... Hawaiian Wedding Song" and "Whither Thou Goest."

The bridesmaids wore gowns of mauve and cranberry silkened organza over taffeta styled with a Victorian design neckline, long sleeves trimmed in cluny lace and a natural waistline accented with a ribbon satin bow. The A-line skirt was enhanced with a flounce ruffle at the hem and featured a double bustle back. Each carried an arm bouquet of rubrum lilies, rosario alstromias, pink and cranberry miniature carnations, fern tied with pink and cranberry streamers.

The bride's mother wore a gown of lilac mauve polyester accented with a jacket. She wore an orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of daphne rose lusterlorg with a modified waistline. Grandmothers were honored with carnation corsages.

The flower girls were each dressed in a wine taffeta off-shoulder gown. Beige lace trimmed the bodice. Each carried a natural wicker basket of rose petals.

A reception was held at Pinewood Village Park and was given by parents and friends of the bridegroom. Music was provided by Nicky Harris Band.

The couple will live in Fayetteville after a wedding trip.

The bridegroom is stationed at Fort Bragg Army Base in Fayetteville. He graduated from J.H. Rose High School. The bride graduated from D.H. Conley High School and will be working with handicapped children in Fayetteville.

The bride's parents gave a rehearsal dinner. Sallie Wilson entertained at a cake cutting and a wedding breakfast was held at Shoney's Restaurant.

Myrna Dove Smalls and James Edward Ware were united in marriage Sunday at 2:00 p.m. at the Fairfield Harbour Marina. The Rev. George Royal and the Rev. Raymond E. Price officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Pearl C. Dove of New Bern. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Ware, also of New Bern.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her cousin, Jacob Dove of Greenville. Larry Duval of Pollocksville served as best man.

The bride wore an ivory gown of sheer organza over taffeta. The Queen Anne neckline was bordered with gathered chantilly lace which extended to a peplum bodice enhanced with venise lace. Bishop sleeves of sheer organza with a venise motif. Lace at the hem accented the chapel train. Her chapel-length veil of bridal illusion fell from a cap of chantilly lace with scalloped edge.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Ronnie Dillahun of New Bern. Bridesmaids were Ms. Linda Best and Mrs. Charles Boyd of Greenville and Mrs. Ronald Monse of New Bern. The attendants wore skylark blue floor-length dresses with bishop sleeves and ruffled v necks. They carried long-stemmed roses accented with gypsophila. Their matching accessories and headresses were accented with baby's breath.

The flower girl was Miss Von Gretchen White of Greenville. She wore a skylark blue floor-length gown with matching accessories and carried a basket of flowers.

The ring bearer was Billy Smalls of New Bern. Ushers were Michael Rivers Morgan of Raleigh, and Steven Clary and Ronald Morse, both of New Bern.

Music was provided by Prof. Robert T. Simmons and Mrs. John Humphrey, both of New Bern.

The reception was given by the bride's mother. Assisting were Mrs. W.J. Adams, Mrs. Doretha Bennett, Mrs. Hazel Fields, Mrs. Annie Reed, Ms. Debra Parham, Mrs. Ronni Huffaker, and Mrs. Alyce Hilliard.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in New Bern.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed by the Craven County Health Department as a social worker. The bridegroom is a student at Craven Community College and is manager of the 37th Street Pizzeria of New Bern.

Fire Prevention Takes Yearly Commitment

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Last year in the United States, 6,020 civilians and 117 firefighters died in fires, and approximately 300,000 civilians plus 100,000 firefighters were seriously injured. The total loss in property alone came to $6.4 billion.

In Canada there were 669 fire-related deaths last year, none of which were firefighters. The property damage was approximately $999 million.

This is Fire Prevention Week, and although fires occur throughout the year, each season has its own special fire hazards. Here are some tips for all seasons:

FALL: If you enjoy camping, select a tent made of flame-resistant fabric. Pack a reliable flashlight with plenty of extra batteries to light the inside of your tent — never use matches or candles. When building a campfire, place it downwind of your tent. And never try to hasten the burning by using gasoline or other flammable liquid starters.

If you use your fireplace, have your chimney professionally cleaned in the fall to make sure it's in good condition for the coming season.

WINTER: More fires occur during winter than in any other season. The reasons: home heating and the holiday season.

If you use a portable heater, be sure it is placed away from combustibles — draperies, furniture, paper, etc. Remember, the surface heat of some portable heaters may reach 500 degrees, so keep a careful watch on your children and warn them to keep away from heaters. Hospitals are treating an increasing number of patients with burns resulting from contact with the outside surface of some portable heaters.

For a Merry Christmas, choose a Christmas tree that does not have shedding needles, and keep it standing in water while it is in the house. If you choose an artificial tree, choose one that is flame-resistant.

After holiday parties, before retiring, check your ashtrays for smoldering cigarette butts, and carefully examine all upholstered chairs and sofas to make sure that no "live" cigarette butts have fallen between the cushions. Remember, most house fires occur between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., when people are sleeping.

SPRING: Take spring cleaning seriously — clean out your attic, basement, garage and workshop. Throw out trash, especially combustibles like rags, newspapers, magazines, boxes and scraps of wood. Never smoke while fueling gas-powered lawn mowers or chain saws. If you must store gasoline, store it in a ventilated area in a can designed especially for that purpose. And store oily rags and paint in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

SUMMER: When cooking out, never use flammable liquids near live coals. An explosion or flash fire could result. When you've finished with cooking, soak the coals with water and make absolutely sure they're out when you leave. Smoldering coals that appear to be "dead" can reignite as much as a day later! If you use a propane gas grill, always have the lighted match in position before turning on the gas.

Some tips for all seasons: Never smoke in bed. Never leave invalids or small children alone in the house — not even for "a few minutes." Never use flammable liquids for dry-cleaning indoors.

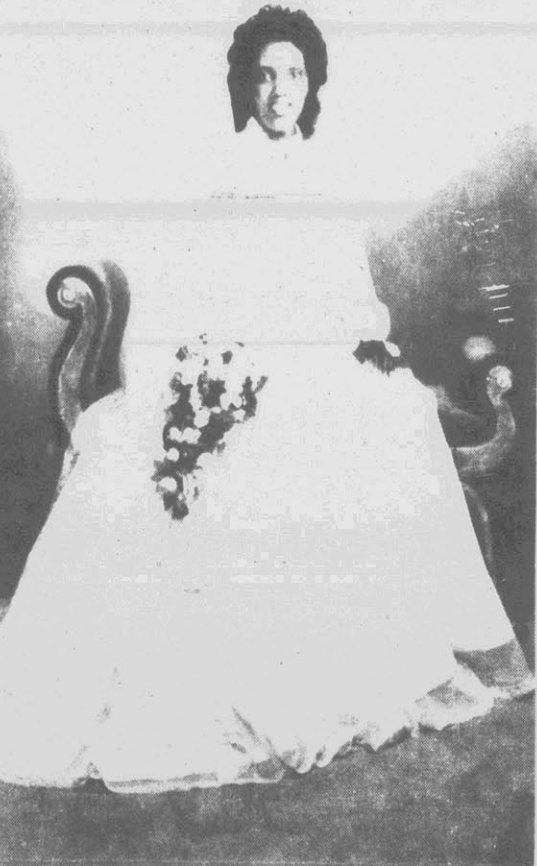

Have periodic fire drills in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Keep easy-to-use fire extinguishers in your kitchen, cottage, back bedrooms and on your boat. And if you can afford smoke detectors, install them and be sure they are always dust-free and in working order.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped to every telephone in your house. If it isn't, should a fire occur, don't waste time trying to find it; get out, and call from a neighbor's house. And once you are out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life for.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

Weddings Vows Spoken In Double Ring Ceremony

Charlene Kaye Wall and Kincey Harvey Worthington Jr. were married Sunday at 3 p.m. in a double ring ceremony at the Evangelistic Tabernacle Church. The Rev. Ron Braxton officiated. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wall of Rt. 4, Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Kincey Worthington Sr. of Rt. 1, Ayden.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with embroidered chantilly lace beaded with pearls. Appliques of the beaded lace enhanced the fitted bodice. French chantilly and silk Venise lace was used on the sheer bishop sleeves finished with matching lace cuffs and on the full sheer organza skirt and chapel train. She wore a hat of sheer braid overlaid in silkened pencil edged organza and applique with chantilly lace beaded with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses, stephanotis, white dendrobium orchids, baby's breath, accented with white lace and satin ribbons.

The maid of honor was Eleanor Wall, cousin of the bride of Rt. 2, Ayden. She wore a formal gown of burgundy taffeta styled with a fitted bodice and ruffled tiers at the shoulders. She carried a colonial nosegay of dusty pink pixie carnations, burgundy daisies, purple statice and white baby's breath tied with dusty pink lace and satin ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Michelle Fleming of Rt. 1, Stokes, and Angela Padgett of Stantonsburg, cousin of the bridegroom. They wore dusty rose dresses similar to that of the maid of honor. Their similar nosegays were tied with burgundy lace and satin ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Kevin Worthington of Rt. 1, Greenville, brother of the bridegroom; Charles Wall Jr. of Rt. 4, Greenville, brother of the bride; and Kelly Wall and Ogden Wiggins, both of Rt. 2, Ayden, cousins of the bride.

Music was provided by Faye Bland of Greenville, organist, and Mike Pollard of Raleigh sang "We've Only Just Begun," "If" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Hilda Smith directed the wedding.

The mother of the bride wore a formal grape colored gown, the mother of the bridegroom, an aqua long chifon gown. Each wore a corsage of white butterfly roses and baby's breath. The grandmothers were remembered with corsages of white carnations.

The reception was given by the parents of the bride, relatives of the couple and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Nelson of Greenville presided at the guest register. Edna Mills served cake. Sue Wall, cousin of the bride, and Judy Whitford, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. William Wall. Rice bags were distributed by Sherry Wall and JoAnna Foster, both cousins of the bride, and Suzanne Worthington, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's parents entertained during the rehearsal dinner held at the Three Steers Restaurant. Angela Padgett gave the bridesmaids' luncheon.

MRS. KINCEY H. WORTHINGTON JR.

After a wedding trip to West Virginia, the couple will live on Rt. 1, Ayden. The bride is a graduate of North Pitt High School and is enrolled in Pitt Community College. The bridegroom is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and Lenoir Community College and is employed at Worthington Farms.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

If you like to have your home say "Merry Christmas" in every room, here's another bright new way to solve that knotty problem. Make a macrame container to use as a holder for Christmas cards or as a centerpiece filled with leaves and berries, flowers, candles or whatever you like. Then, when the holidays are over, just take out the Christmas ribbon, add a fresh ribbon and enjoy it all year as a flower container. This clever idea was sent to me by Susan Strange of Oak Lawn, Ill.

To obtain directions for making the Macrame Container, send your request for Leaflet No. ML-1009 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. M-1009 by sending a check or money order for $12.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Please specify your choice of snow white or Christmas green macrame cord. The kit price includes shipping charges and sufficient macrame cord, metal frames and Christmas ribbon for making one container. The foliage, snowman and cards shown in the photograph are not included.

Most macrame projects start with the cords being attached to a holding cord, ring, frame, dowel or some similar object, most often with some type of larkshead knot. To keep things simple, I will refer to the cords being attached to a frame, but you are aware that this is only one of many choices.

The standard larkshead (Illustration 1) is worked as follows. After folding the cord in half, place the fold (A) behind and below the ring. Bring the two cord ends (B and C) over the top of the ring and down through loop A, pulling the knot tight. To make a reverse larkshead (Illustration 2) place fold A in front of the ring, take

B and C over the top of the ring and down through loop A.

The "reverse larkshead plus half hitch" may sound and look complicated but it consists of just one additional step. Make a reverse larkshead as described in the previous paragraph — then make a half hitch (Illustration 3) on the left of the larkshead knot with the left-hand cord.

A double-reverse larkshead is worked in the same way with an additional half hitch made on the right side with the right-hand cord.

If you are having trouble understanding these knots, you can practice first by tying any yarn onto some object. I taught myself by tying the knots onto a knitting needle!

Good luck and happy knotting!

("Pat's Pointers: The Needlepoint Handbook" by Pat Trexler guides the needleworker from the beginner-basics through more detailed instructions and projects. drink. We specify the number and size of ice cubes to add.

Almost any of the popular main dishes served for brunch taste good after Orange Colada. For example, eggs with bacon or ham and hominy grits. Or eggs with chicken livers and mushrooms plus toasted English muffins. Or a classic Quiche Lorraine — made with an unsweetened egg custard, Swiss cheese and ham.

To nibble with those last cups of coffee after the main dish, you might like to serve petite Danish Pastries or slices of Hungarian Nut Roll made with yeast-risen coffee-cake dough. All this, of course, for a weekend company brunch.

FRESH ORANGE COLADA

3 to 4 medium oranges
2-3rds cup white rum
1-3rd cup orange-flavor liqueur
1-3rd cup cream of coconut, at room temperature and stirred before measuring 18 ice cubes (3 cups), from trays whose sections each hold 2 tablespoons Orange slices, halved
Fresh mint sprig, if desired

Squeeze enough juice from the oranges to make 1 cup; turn into an electric blender with the rum, liqueur, cream of coconut and ice cubes. Whirl rapidly until ice melts and mixture foams. Pour into cocktail glasses, garnish with orange slices and, if used, mint sprigs. Serve at once. Makes 4 cups.

Note: Valencia oranges, abundant now, are excellent to use in this Colada.

MYSTERY CREAM

A rich dessert drink patterned after one from the 1940s.

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown creme de cacao
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup apricot flavored brandy
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup heavy cream

Stir together until blended the creme de cacao, apricot flavored brandy and cream; cover and chill. Makes 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups. Serve in 6-ounce brandy snifters or other small footed glasses. Makes 6 servings. Good offered with fresh fruit.

Is It A Blessing?

For North Carolina's tobacco farmers, nature has done what they could not bring themselves to do voluntarily. This year's tobacco production, according to the market experts, will fall nearly 100 million pounds short of the prescribed amount that could be sold legally.

That's tragic for many farmers, who of necessity live on an economic shoestring and cannot survive a major reduction in their incomes. For the industry as a whole, it could — in the long run — prove a godsend.

The shortage has prompted more competition among buying companies: that in turn has increased the market price. And, that, in turn, has kept the tobacco away from the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., the grower-run organization that operates tobacco's price support system.

For the first several weeks of this auction season, it seemed that the pattern that has come to be routine would be followed — with Stabilization getting a third or more of the leaf as buyers ignored rows of leaf at a time on the auction floors. Remember, under the new no-net cost to the government program, every pound going to Stabilization costs the grower that much more.

But now, with the offerings slim on the auction floor, buyers are doing what they are supposed to do — buying — and Stabilization's take has dropped to less than 15 percent of the offerings. That clears the way, just possibly, for Stabilization to sell some of that record 259 million pounds it took in last year.

There are other factors, too.

The secretary of agriculture could set next year's quota slightly higher in view of the shortage this year. But that's doubtful. It probably will remain about the same as this year. If it does, all that poundage not used in 1983 will be available in 1984 — as well as the regular quota for 1984.

And next year, too, more of the non-tobacco interests will have divested their ownership of quota. That quota will go into the overall pool. Coupled with the additional carryover from this year, one would expect lease costs to fall next year, also. At any rate, they certainly will not increase.

It boils down to one thing farmers have always known: If they can survive this year, next year might be better.

Matter Of Control

If things seem quieter around Greenville today, it is because the noise ordinance is now being enforced.

Chief of Police Ted Holmes said enforcement of the ordinance got under way last week after sound measuring equipment was purchased and officers were trained in its use.

The ordinance provides for certain maximum noise levels in various areas of the city, and at various times. Those who have complaints can call the police department. The callers do not have to give their names.

The easiest way to avoid investigation on a noise complaint is to keep noise below the levels specified in the ordinance. For those who persist in being too noisy the ordinance provides a way to bring things under control.

Surprising Clout

RENO, Nev. (AP) — For a state which only recently qualified for a second seat in the House of Representatives, Nevada has a surprising history of sending powerful members to Washington.

Over the past half century, Nevada senators have included the McGarran, Howard Cannon, Ray, Pittman and Alan Bible — powerful, conservative Democrats who brought a conservative, public works perspective to the Senate.

But it's doubtful that any Nevada politician there has done more clout than that now retired Republican Sen. Paul Laxalt. Under Laxalt's guidance, the state has been a major force in the national Republican Party and played a key role in the Reagan administration.

"We're getting some attention," says state GOP Chairman Curtis Patrick. "Everywhere you go in Washington, people are talking about Nevada."

"Nevada has always been thought of as populated by jackrabbits and sagebrush," he adds. "Easterners thought we were a bunch of hicks out here. I think they've suddenly come to realize that we have some folks here who have something to offer."

Nevada "talks" in the Reagan administration include:

—Reese Taylor of Carson City, a former law partner of Laxalt's, now chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

—Former Clark County Commissioner Bob Broadbent of Las Vegas, commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation.

—Bob Horton, former associate director of the Nevada Bureau of Mines in Reno, now director of the national Bureau of Mines.

In an unprecedented move authorized by President Reagan, Laxalt was named to the new executive position of general chairman of the party.

His handpicked choice for the working role of party chairman was Frank Fahrenkopf, a Reno lawyer who was the longtime chairman of the Nevada Republican Party.

"For a state that has only four electoral votes, we seem to have a great deal of influence in national politics," says Fahrenkopf. "I think the major thing we must attribute it to is the relationship between Sen. Laxalt and President Reagan."

Much has been written about that relationship: how the two men became close friends while Reagan was governor of California and Laxalt was governor of Nevada; how Laxalt guided Reagan's bids for the presidential nomination and later his campaign for president; how he became Reagan's trusted adviser on Capitol Hill.

Republicans say the Laxalt-Reagan tie has been beneficial for the state. "The more clout you have, the better off you are," Laxalt aide Ed Allison says.

Allison says Laxalt has played Nevada gain highway funds and helped a key role in scrapping plans to locate MX missiles in the state.

Allison says the state's new power also has helped in the day-to-day grind of Senate business, the "casework" of helping constituents.

"If you call an agency and they know who you are, and they know who the senator is, it's naive to think it doesn't help," he says.

White House Belatedly Sees The Light

WASHINGTON — The main political fallout of the struggle over James G. Watt's survival was belated recognition at the White House that President Reagan's reelection prospects are endangered by his steady, undramatic erosion on the Right.

That was the key argument by Dr. Richard Wirthlin, Reagan's longtime pollster and unofficial political strategist. But even some West Wing "pragmatists" concluded that after months of concentrating on feminists, blacks, Hispanics and other anti-Reaganites, they had better start worrying about the president's own base.

Thanks to his notorious disinclination to fire anybody, Reagan was sure not to give the presidential nudge that Watt felt necessary for him to quit. But arguments posed in the White House for his retention transcended the latest Watt affair, making the case for the first time in memory that the president had better secure the Right — specially the born-again Christian evangelicals — if he is to win a second term.

The West Wing pragmatists who control re-election strategy long have argued that the evangelicals have no place else to go. In fact, they can stay home Election Day. That was the burden of a confidential report to the Reagan administration by an observer at a recent national meeting in Indianapolis of Christian school heads who reported unhappiness among the conservatives on a variety of issues (including the president's reaction to the Korean Airlines disaster).

Sacking born-again Watt not only would cement their disaffection, but also would deprive candidate Reagan of his only Cabinet-level emissary capable of mending fences with the evangelicals. Watt himself conveyed this argument in the days after his latest gaffe. Nevertheless, remorseful over the new disturbance caused the president, he was ready to jump if the word came from the Oval Office.

The president did not lack for advisers who wanted him to give that word — including Los Angeles-based political consultant Stuart K. Spencer, another longtime Reagan insider slated for a major role in the 1984 campaign. Spencer came to Washington to give the president the same advice he delivered personally after the 1982 election: Watt must go.

Spencer was backed by Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of staff who has been courting Reagan's enemies while ignoring his friends. Contrary to reports (some of which were conveyed to the Interior Department) that chief of staff James A. Baker III intervened to save Watt, he actually neither opposed nor supported the Watt-must-go drive.

It was Wirthlin who argued that submitting to the stampede against Watt would be political folly. While lacking a single friend in the Baker-oriented political structure that dominates campaign strategy, Wirthlin does have a friend in the Oval Office. He had 30 minutes with the president last week, during which he repeated those arguments made to White House staffers.

Wirthlin contended that whereas Reagan might well retain most votes on the Right, he was in danger of losing their hearts — an essential commodity in a close election. Besides, he maintained that rolling a Cabinet member's head down Pennsylvania Avenue is no sign of strong leadership.

That rebutted anti-Watt pleas by Republicans in Congress including such East-of-the-Mississippi conservatives as New York's Sen. Alfonse D'Amato and Georgia's Rep. Newt Gingrich, who see their own destruction as a byproduct of the lynch mob against the free market interior secretary.

Although Reagan would not have sacked Watt under any conditions, the Wirthlin arguments helped build realization that it would be unproductive to treat Watt as unproductive. Anne Burford, abandoned as Environmental Protection Agency administrator and replaced by moderate William Ruckelshaus. When Watt probably leaves sometime before the 1984 election, there will be debate whether a moderate (perhaps Ruckelshaus) should succeed him. But the mere fact there will be a debate shows new White House sensitivity to the Right.

Baker had ceased courting conservatives personally after the New Right put the president himself in their line of fire. Once that happened, Baker needed no longer to worry about himself. More is at stake, however, than the fate of Jim Baker — or even of Jim Watt.

To shore up his neglected right flank, Reagan cannot throw his interior secretary to the establishment wolves. The embryonic campaign hierarchy has decided it needs watt walking out of office under his own power next spring, ready to battle for Reagan's re-election. That is a new way for the West Wing to view the election.

Method

I am constantly fascinated when I read in the newspapers that the Justice Department or a federal agency has just arrived at an agreement with a large company or powerful individual accused of wrongdoing.

The stories read something like this: "The Double Jeopardy Automobile Company agreed with the Justice Department not to manufacture any more of their Double Y cars without brake pedals. The company paid a $50,000 fine, and said it would recall all Double Y cars now on the road that are missing the brake pedal. While paying the fine and making the recall, Double Jeopardy executives denied that there was a problem with the Double Y car, or a reason for the recall."

I consulted a lawyer friend, of which I have many in Washington, to ask him what exactly it meant when the company was fined, agreed to recall all its cars, and still was able to maintain its innocence.

"They have to do that," he said. "Otherwise the company would open itself up to a lot of frivolous lawsuits."

"I understand that. But why would the government allow them to maintain their innocence when Double Jeopardy forgot to put a brake pedal on the car?"

"The government is more concerned with getting the cars fixed than punishing the company for incompetence. If they bring Double Jeopardy to trial it's going to take years to resolve the problem, and in the meantime a lot more people could get killed."

"Suppose the company knowingly was selling cars without brake pedals? Isn't that a criminal offense?"

"Possibly. But let's start at the beginning. Double Jeopardy puts out a Double Y car without brake pedals. The engineering department catches it after the millionth car is on the market. They inform their salespeople, who tell them to shut up. Finally, the government safety people get wind of it and, after testing the vehicle for two years, come to the conclusion that the Double Y could cause a danger on the highway."

"They contact Double Jeopardy and say their data indicates the Double Y car may have a flaw in its braking system. The company responds by saying the safety agency did not test the car under road conditions, and the only time people have accidents in a Double Y car is when they try to stop it."

"The safety agency studies the data submitted by Double Jeopardy and concludes the only thing that can stop a Double Y car is a brick wall. In preparation for this negative reaction, Double Jeopardy has hired the best law firm in Washington — that usually means the law firm with the best connections to the present administration. The lawyer calls his friends at Justice and says he is shocked that the auto safety agency would pick on an American car firm just as the economy is starting to shape up. He offers to meet with the Justice Department lawyer to work out an equitable solution that will satisfy the company and the government. They make a date for a golf game at the Burning Tree Club."

"It sounds so civilized," I said.

"It is. Usually by the ninth hole an agreement can be hammered out. In the case of the Double Y car, the Justice man says, because of the publicity, he can't look the other way and Double Jeopardy will have to be fined and go ahead with a recall."

"The lawyer for the company says this is all right with him, providing Double Jeopardy doesn't have to admit there is anything wrong with the car, or else the settlement could be construed as an admission of guilt."

"The Justice Department lawyer says he is sure he can get the auto safety agency to agree to the stipulation, providing Double Jeopardy promises not to do it again."

"This is where I always get confused," I said. "Double Jeopardy agrees with the government there is a serious defect in the Double Y car, but doesn't have to admit it to its customers."

My lawyer friend said, "That's because you don't understand how the government and big business work. The government's job is to protect the consumer; the company's job is to protect their sales. As long as both sides sign an agreement that they know the company botched the law is satisfied without admitting it, and no one really gets hurt."

Promising No Promises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Promise me no promises, interest me in no special interests. Would-be presidents think they hear that cry abroad in the land and that it will lead them to the White House.

A campaign without promises would be like a speech without words. It can't be done. But that is what some candidates now are pledging.

Or is the right word, promising?

"My program is not a set of promises, but a set of challenges," said Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina.

"Our people are tired of being promised what can't be delivered," said Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, moments later.

They gave back to back speeches at a Democratic Party conference in Maine. The theme was one they echo in Maine and New York, in California and Texas.

At this point that talk often seems aimed at Walter Mondale, the Democratic Party's unabashed king of promises, and the candidate with a lock on the support of some of its most powerful interest groups.

In Maine, Glenn promised ... oops, said, he would "talk sense to the American people."

Hollings recited with some pride the groups to whom he had said no. To senior citizens on their cost of living adjustment, to the rich on their tax cut, to a defense contractor on the MX missile and the B-1 bomber and to church groups on tuition tax credits.

Maybe they are out there, those voters who want a candidate who says no, who promises them nothing.

But they weren't in the Civic Auditorium in Augusta, Maine, on Oct. 1. Mondale delivered a three and one-half page speech that was two and one-half pages of old-time political promises such as "I'll help our teachers make this the best-educated generation in our history ... I'll get those toxic wastes cleaned up ... I'll get those interest rates down."

Did those Democrats shake their heads and mutter, there goes Walter again, promising anything and everything?

They did not. They applauded Mondale louder and heartier than they did any of his rivals and it was Mondale who received 51 percent of their votes in the straw ballot conducted at the convention. Hollings got 11 percent and Glenn 6.

It's certain that Mondale's rivals will ask again and again how he plans to "bring those deficits down" at the same time he's trying to come through on all his other promises.

Bargain On The Rails

TOKYO (AP) — Japan National Railways, perennial poorboy of governmental corporations here, is trying to improve its abysmal financial status by appealing to those with time and money to spend.

That often means middle-aged women and elderly couples, groups of which embarked Oct. 1 on a 14-day, 2,080-mile tour of the country in a luxurious maroon-colored car modeled after the Orient Express.

They left with considerable fanfare, mainly from Japanese railway officials, who maintained that the cost, up to $4,219 a person, was a bargain in view of the panoramic view of the country the trip presents.

"The price is not that steep, considering you get to travel 14 days on a luxurious coach, stay at good hotels or inns and enjoy 40 meals of local delicacies," said Sakae Hashimoto, spokesman for the Japan Tourist Bureau.

He said four couples had bought the top-cost, million-yen tickets for the inaugural tour. Many passengers were elderly couples celebrating 50th wedding anniversaries or the husband's retirement, Hashimoto said.

"My daughter took care of the finances," said one elderly man occupying a compartment with his wife. The daughter, who asked not to be named, said the trip wasn't for any special occasion. "They rarely traveled together before, and the plan sounded interesting when I first heard about it," she said.

Among the accessories on the tour are "karaoke" sets, a mainstay for Japanese bars and other places of entertainment that cater to the nation's predilection for breaking into song after a few drinks.

"Karaoke," short for "empty orchestra," is an audio cassette tape of the instrumental part of popular songs. The set, equipped with a microphone, gives the singer a feeling of actually singing with an orchestra.

The "European style" coach and tour is one of 100 special, comfort-oriented travel plans to which railway has given the name "toku-toku," the meaning of "toku" being profit or gain.

The national railway staged a six-week campaign this past summer, advertising toku-toku tickets on 60,000 posters throughout the country, according to JNR official Akiyoshi Uriu.

The biggest hit was the "full moon" pass, which, for 70,000 yen, or about $295, gives seven days of unlimited first-class travel to married couples whose ages add up to 88 or more. In its second season between October 1982 and March 1983, some 66,432 couples took the tour, paying JNR almost $21 million.

"We have letters from more than 50 couples who used full moon passes, thanking us," Uriu said. "Many of these people put themselves into the romantic image of the couple on our poster," which showed a contented-looking middle-aged couple, wrapped in a veil of steam from a hot spring.

"The fact that the couple on the poster were a famous actor and actress who are not actually married might have added an element of fantasy to the deal," Uriu said.

The pass is supposed to be used by married couples only, but there is no strict check, Uriu said. On one occasion, he said he received a telephone call from a woman asking him to stop her husband who "she knew" was traveling with another woman on a full moon pass.

Another special coupon, the "nice midday" pass, is the first designed specifically for women. Two or more women over 30 are entitled to four days of unlimited first-class "green car" travel for $125 dollars a person.

Its campaign poster reads: "Please let women go sometimes." It features three women, in their 20s, 30s and 40s, flipping their skirts a la Marilyn Monroe. It attracted 36,273 "midday" during the 4-month season this year, Uriu said.

JNR is hoping to boost income from the toku-toku tickets by $190 million during fiscal year 1983, said Uriu, adding that they were "JNR's hope for improving both its image and its finances."

The railway corporation was in debt for the 20th consecutive year last year, when it lost $5.9 billion, bringing the total accumulated debt to a staggering $59 billion.

Little-used lines in remote areas, an overabundance of employees (390,000) and a trend toward auto and air transportation for long-distance travel are cited as major causes for the losses.

N.C. Black Voter Registration Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Black voter registration has risen in North Carolina since Jesse Jackson's highly-publicized swing through the state, but the extent to which he should be credited remains a subject of dispute.

State officials say it's hard to say exactly how much progress has been made toward Jackson's goal of registering 200,000 new black North Carolina voters before the 1984 election. There have been no statewide statistics compiled since last spring, said Alex Brock, state elections director.

Ben Ruffin, Gov. Jim Hunt's special assistant for minority affairs, estimated that 45,000 to 50,000 black voters have registered since May.

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported today that it checked with four of the 10 counties Jackson visited in May, and that black registration was up sharply in each.

Black registration had increased 6.8 percent from May 1 to Sept. 30 in Wake County; 12 percent from May through mid-September in Nash County; 3 percent from May through mid-September in Wilson County; and 20 percent from April 1 to Aug. 31 in Mecklenburg County.

William B.A. Culp Jr., election supervisor in Mecklenburg, says that county's black registration rise "would have been just as great if Jesse Jackson never came to Charlotte."

The Jackson crusade coincided with ongoing black registration drives by a half-dozen groups in Charlotte, including the North Carolina Democratic Party, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Voter Education Project Inc. of Atlanta.

Aquino Investigation Commission Resigns Today

SLASHED PELICAN — Monterey County (Calif.) area SPCA inspector Trisha Algoe shows slashed pouch from beak to neck of pelican here. Twenty pelicans have been slashed or stabbed in the chests during the last two weeks by unknown assailant. The SPCA is offering $7,000 reward for arrest of the slasher. The pelican shown survived surgery but has developed a respiratory infection. It's doubtful if it can return to the wilds, even if it lives. (AP Laserphoto)

By MIGUEL SUAREZ
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — All five members of the commission investigating the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino resigned today, saying they wanted to clear the way for appointment of a more credible investigative panel.

The announcement was greeted with a standing ovation from an audience of about 300 people who had gathered for the scheduled resumption of public hearings on the Aug. 21 slaying.

Acting commission chairman Felix Antonio, a former Supreme Court justice, said the commission wanted to give a "free hand" to chairman-designate Arturo Tolentino, who announced earlier today he would not accept leadership of the group as it had been appointed by President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Tolentino, who did not appear at the hearing, said in a separate statement released by his office, "My conclusion was that under the present circumstances my designation would only serve as a cosmetic for the commission."

Tolentino said Marcos had asked him to draft legislation that would establish an independent investigation conducted by private citizens.

A news release issued later at the presidential palace said Marcos had received the resignations and "remains receptive to suggestions in order to allow a full, impartial and unrestricted inquiry into the truth behind the Aquino killing and to punish whoever might be guilty."

Tolentino had told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that the commission appeared to have "prejudged" the assassination at Manila's airport, which the government says was carried out by a gunman promptly shot and killed at the scene by guards.

Opposition leaders say they can produce witnesses who saw soldiers kill Aquino and the reputed gunman, Rolando Galman.

The assassination triggered massive demonstrations by government opponents who accused Marcos' forces of complicity in the killing of his arch rival. Marcos has denied the charge.

The commission's session today lasted only 15 minutes, and the commissioners then left the hall in the Philippine International Convention Center where the hearings were to have been conducted.

Tolentino said he met with Marcos on Saturday and told the president "perhaps the commission needs some drastic changes. Its image, its nature and its present membership have to be altered. I told him I can't be of any effective help to the commission as it is now constituted."

Tolentino said Marcos created the commission through an administrative order that rendered the body "not an independent commission — but a mere arm of the president."

The commission's hearings had been suspended since Sept. 12 amid charges from the opposition and Aquino's family that the panel was biased and under the influence of Marcos.

The accusations, and three petitions before the Supreme Court which questioned the legality of the commission, prompted the resignation of its first chairman, Supreme Court Chief Justice Enrique Fernando. Two weeks ago Marcos named Tolentino, who was out of the country at the time, to replace Fernando.

The commission was scheduled to call Gen. Prospero Olivas, who headed the military probe into the killing, along with five men identified as the security personnel who escorted Aquino off an airliner when he was shot. Gen. Luther Custodio, head of the military group charged with protecting Aquino, also was to testify.

Tolentino, a former senator and respected constitutional expert, said he suggested to Marcos that he issue a decree setting up a new commission. He said the president "seems to be receptive."

The resigning commissioners said they notified Marcos of their action at the same time as they announced it publicly.

"It is unfortunate that notwithstanding all the efforts that have been exerted by your excellency to sustain the independence and integrity of the commission, it appears that the image of the commission for impartiality and capacity of its members to do justice to every man are being questioned," the letter said.

It said the decision to resign was "painful for us considering that we have retired as associate justices of the highest tribunal of the land after a long record of public service of integrity, impartiality and objectivity in the administration of justice."

The letter was signed by Antonio and three other commissioners, all former Supreme Court justices.

Filemon Fernandez, an opposition member appointed to the commission during the suspension of hearings, said he also was stepping aside because of public mistrust in the commission.

Rustico Nazareno, who was named general counsel after the commission had opened its investigation and who also is resigning, said he thought a new commission could be organized within a week. He said he was not sure whether investigation work by committee staff would continue but said there would be no one to direct it.

Tax Table

LONDON (AP) — A government survey of income taxes in eight industrialized countries shows France imposes the highest rates on single people and the Netherlands the highest rates on the average married earner with two children.

A table produced by British tax officials and published in the Sunday Times showed that an unmarried person pays 43 percent of his earnings in tax in France, and 42 percent in the Netherlands.

The paper said the table was apparently calculated to rebut a widespread belief that British income tax rates are among the world's highest.

The highest rate for a married person with two children is 33 percent in the Netherlands. The two lowest rates were the United States, 16 percent, and France, 6 percent, the report said.

Japan imposes the highest rate of the eight nations on the highest earners — 88 percent on incomes of $363,255 or more, compared with 60 percent in Britain.

Voters Facing A Blank Ballot

DANBURY, N.C. (AP) — The 96 registered voters in Danbury will elect a mayor and four members of the town council Nov. 8, but they'll have to do it without the benefit of candidates for the offices.

"No one's filed," said J.B. Joyce, chairman of the Danbury Board of Elections. "This is not too common, but it has happened before in Danbury."

Mayor Earl German said voters can write in the candidates of their choice and that the people with the most support will be asked to serve. In fact, that's how German was elected mayor eight years ago.

"I hadn't filed, but I guess enough people wrote in my name," he said.

German said he's not sure if he will take the job again if re-elected.

"I'll just wait for the election and see what happens," he said.

Meanwhile, Steve D. Shelton said Friday that he planned to run for town council again but he said the filing deadline slipped his mind.

Helps N.C. Principals

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — School principals in North Carolina soon will be able to get extra management training, which some teachers fear could cause them to place too little emphasis on instructional skills.

Starting next fall at the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill will be a program based on the premise that school principals need business skills to properly oversee their complex operations.

Participants will be taught by University of North Carolina business faculty, public health and education teachers and business and industry leaders.

"To the best of my knowledge, it is the only program of its type which is under consideration or in existence in the country," said Reeves McGlohon, special assistant to Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction.

Jay Robinson, superintendent of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools, said some teachers in North Carolina are concerned about the program's emphasis on management skills rather than instructional skills.

For principals to say were instructional leaders, not managers is a cop-out," said Robinson, who will help design the new program. "As far as I'm concerned, there's not as much difference in the skills needed in running a school and a people-oriented organization as many folks would like to think."

The state Board of Education last month approved $40,000 to finance planning the program, proposed by board Chairman C.D. Spangler Jr. That money will be added to $10,000 provided by the UNC Board of Governors.

The Leadership Institute for Principals, operated by the state Department of Public Instruction, conducts regional seminars each year to give principals information in areas such as student discipline or computer services.

"Typically, we've had 30, 40 or 50 seminars all over the state, usually lasting for three days, open to 200 principals per seminar," McGlohon said. "Now we're going to contrast that with a very comprehensive training program ... over a much longer time, providing more in-depth training to fewer people."

How to buy group health coverage.

Since the cost of health coverage has been rising much faster than other business costs, business people have to become much more skillful at evaluating competitive health-benefit proposals.

Here are some of the issues you'll want to consider.

Are the rate and cost containment strategies effective?

The cost of coverage is related directly to the cost of health services.

Therefore, does the carrier have effective ways to contain both your group's need for health care and the price of that care?

For example, does the carrier have cost-containment agreements with area hospitals and physicians? Can the carrier offer your employees built-in incentives to use medical services efficiently?

Will the service be rapid, accurate and trustworthy?

What is the carrier's reputation for prompt, accurate payment? For adequate disclosure of claims paid or denied?

To what extent is the carrier achieving the dream of "paperless" processing? Can claims be filed by computer?

Will your employees appreciate the coverage as a true benefit, the way having our benefit plan is appreciated, or will they take it for granted?

To prevent problems for you down the road, will your carrier

Does your carrier have cost-containment agreements with area providers? We do. And that's only one of the strategies that enabled us to save our subscribers more than $125 million last year.

Will the plan be affordable? Can you assume variable levels of risk?

Can payments be geared to your cashflows? Are a variety of financing arrangements available?

Take advantage of us.

All of these questions should enter any evaluation of alternative group-health plans. The subject is complex, however, so please take advantage of our 50 years of experience. Just call your nearest service office, or write to: Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, Room 558, Post Office Box 2291, Durham, North Carolina 27702.

Why do we want you to become a better-informed customer? Because the better you understand health coverage, the more you'll prefer ours.

The better you understand health coverage the more you'll prefer ours.

Accidents Mar City Weekend

Several injuries and damages exceeding $16,000 resulted from a rash of traffic accidents investigated Friday, Saturday and Sunday by Greenville police.

Officers said heaviest damages occurred in a 9:01 p.m. wreck Friday at the intersection of Ninth and Evans Streets involving vehicles operated by Evelyn Ann Graham Pruden, 2007 Hermitage Road, Wilson, and Katherine Leath Kimberly, Route 3, Wilmington.

Police said Ms. Pruden and two passengers in her car were injured, while Ms. Kimberly and one passenger in her vehicle received injuries.

Officers, who charged Ms. Pruden with a safe movement violation, estimated damages at $5,200 to the Pruden car and $2,800 to the Kimberly vehicle.

Edward Richard Webb of Branch Trailer Court was injured and taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital after the motorcycle he was driving was involved in a Friday night collision with a vehicle operated by Joy Bennett Farrell of 208 Templeton Drive, police said. The 9:15 p.m. accident took place near the intersection of East Fifth Street and Reade Circle.

Officers, who preferred no charges, estimated damages at $2,000 to the Farrell vehicle and $1,200 to the motorcycle.

Two passengers in a car operated by Pamela Denise Davis of Route 1, Farmville,

PWP MEET SET

A meeting of the Parents Without Partners (PWP) will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of 14th and Elm Streets.

were reported injured in a 5 p.m. accident Friday at Dickinson Avenue and Reade Circle. Officers said the wreck involved the Davis vehicle and a car operated by Rodrick Dean Best of Route 4, Greenville.

No charges were preferred and damages were estimated at $1,100 to the Davis car and $800 to the Best vehicle.

A pedestrian, James Edward Pierce of Route 10, Greenville, was injured Friday when he was struck by a vehicle as he stood in the highway on Memorial Drive 200 feet south from Greenfield Boulevard, officers reported.

Police said Pierce was hit by a vehicle operated by James Arthur Spencer of Porter Road, Bethel. No charges were preferred in the 8:10 p.m. accident. Damage was estimated at $50 to the Spencer vehicle.

No injuries occurred or charges preferred following investigation of a 7 p.m. accident Saturday on East 10th Street 125 feet east from Fifth Street. Police said the wreck involved vehicles operated by Phyllis Brown McGlohon of 312 Sylvan Drive, and Khalifah A. Buresli of 303A Eastbrook Apartments.

Damages were estimated at $850 to each car.

Debra Elaine Cherry of 816 Fleming Street was reported injured in a 9:54 a.m. accident Sunday near the intersection of 14th Street and Farmville Boulevard. Officer said the accident involved vehicles operated by Ms. Cherry and Wiley Daniel Carney of 1222 1/2 W. Cary St., Richmond, Va.

Police charged Carney with making an improper turn.

No injuries or charges resulted from a 6:07 p.m. mishap Saturday on 10th Street 50 feet west from South Greene Street. Police said the accident involved vehicles operated by Booker T. Vines of 209 W. Paris Avenue, and John Schenck of 205A Stencil Drive.

Damage was set at $500 to the Schenck and $50 to the Vines car.

Bethel Elementary Is Honored

BETHEL — The Bethel Elementary School was recently selected as one of the North Carolina schools to receive the governors "School Program of Excellence Award" at a banquet held in Raleigh.

As part of the 1983-84 "Year of the Public School" program, Gov. Hunt appointed a committee to select schools which exhibited outstanding characteristics and programs to be honored with a plaque certifying the schools' excellence in public education.

Janie Manning is principal of the Bethel Elementary School.

UW Division Chairman Announced

Katherine Gray will be chairman of the Special Gifts Division of the 1983 United Way Campaign. She is originally from Robersonville where she graduated from Robersonville High School.

From 1967 to 1975 she worked at Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. in Greenville. She then worked for three years at the Coastal Chemical Corporation. In 1978, she began working at NCNB National Bank and is currently a banking representative at the NCNB downtown branch in Greenville.

In addition to being active in the community, Mrs. Gray is the treasurer of the Pitt County Unit of the American Heart Association and is the past president of the Junior Women's Club of Greenville.

She is a member of the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church where she teaches Sunday school. She is married to Joe Gray and they have two sons, Chris and Ryan.

Morehead Nomination Announced

Grayson Morris of Greenville has been nominated by the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics for a Morehead Scholarship at UNC-Chapel Hill. Morris was among 21 students chosen by the school for their outstanding personal characteristics as well as scholastic ability.

The Morehead Scholarships provide funds for four years of undergraduate study at UNC-CH as well as for summer enrichment programs. Scholars are selected on the basis of merit rather than need. The program was established in 1945 by John Motley Morehead, a native of North Carolina and a 1891 graduate of the university.

Wreck Death

A Marine stationed in Jacksonville was killed in a two-car accident near Winterville Saturday evening and one of his passengers was seriously injured.

Investigating officer Trooper Wayne Taylor said Michael Jacob Jordan, 21, of the Marine Corps Air Station at Jacksonville was dead on arrival at Pitt County Memorial Hospital the result of a collision four tenths of a mile north of Winterville Saturday at 6:55 p.m. His passenger, David Rodavaugh, 19, is reportedly in guarded condition in Pitt Memorial suffering from injuries sustained in the accident. Another of Jordan's passengers, Ronald Usher, 19, was treated at PCMH and released.

The driver of the truck which struck the Jordan car was charged with death by vehicle. Trooper Taylor said Timothy O. Minor, 46, of 111 Depot Street, Winterville, apparently stopped at a stop sign at the intersection of N.C. 11 and Rural Paved Road 1128, crossed the southbound and was attempting to cross the northbound lane when he struck the Jordan car in the side.

Education Meet At Williamston

Rep. Josephus L. Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, who served as co-chairman of the Legislature's 1982 Select Committee on Education, will discuss governance, finance and personal issues in education at the Northeast regional district meeting of the North Carolina Association of School Administrators Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The meeting will begin at 3:15 p.m. at Williamston High School and the program will include a presentation by Dr. Robert Hanes on the Career Development Plan of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools. Other program participants include: Dr. Ronnie Capps, associate superintendent of the Currituck County Schools; Mrs. Janie Manning, principal of Bethel Elementary School; Ms. Jean Haislip, coordinator of research of the Northeast Regional Education Center; Ms. Peggy Griffin, supervisor Tyrell County Schools; and Ms. Tina Drye, supervisor Pitt County Schools.

Contractors Meeting Here

Fred Hart, president of the Carolinas Council of Painting and Decorating Contractors of America (PDCA), will be the guest speaker at the next Down East chapter meeting of the PDCA.

In addition to Hart's presentation, a slide show for the 1984 Carolinas Council Convention will be shown at the Tuesday meeting.

All members and their spouses are encouraged to attend.

For more information and dinner reservations, call Cathy at 756-7910 or Debra at 756-7611. Dinner will start at 7 p.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant with a half-hour social hour preceding.

Charges Are Brought

A Greenville man has been charged with taking $150 in currency from a lady as she sat in her car at a local service station.

Officer K.E. Thompson said Willie James Payton Jr. was placed under $5,000 bond following his arrest in connection with the incident last Thursday at the Etna Station on West Fifth Street.

Thompson said Denise Kay Moore of Route 1, Washington, N.C., told police she had stopped at the station to purchase a soft drink and was sitting in her car counting her money when the theft occurred. She reported that a man leaned into the car on the driver's side and took the cash out of her hands before fleeing.

Christian Church Moderator Named

FORT WORTH, Tex. — William E. Tucker, formerly of Greenville, N.C., has been elected moderator of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Chancellor of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Tucker will serve in the church's top volunteer post for the next two years. He will preside at the Disciples General Assembly Aug. 27, 1985, in Des Moines, Iowa, and at meetings of the church's general board and administrative committee.

He co-authored the "Journey in Faith," the 1975 history of Disciples of Christ. He has been chancellor of TCU, the largest disciples-related institution since 1979.

Tucker was at TCU from 1966-76 in capacities ranging from associate professor of church history to dean of the university's Brite Divinity School. He became president of Bethany (W.Va.) College from 1976-79 and was a professor at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, N.C. from 1959-66.

He is the son of Mrs. Ethel Tucker of Greenville.

Candidate Files In Simpson

Bruce Edwards, a fireman for the Simpson Rural Fire Department, has filed as a candidate for the Simpson Village Council in the Nov. 8 elections.

A native of Simpson, Edwards is a graduate of Chicod High School and attended Atlantic Christian College in Wilson.

He is a member of the Methodist Men and the Ruritan Club and is a former Boy Scout leader.

The candidate and his wife, Frances, have three children, Cheryl Johnson, Don Edwards and Todd Edwards.

Charges Are Brought

Roger Monroe Blackwelder of 100 Kings Road, Greenville, was arrested early Saturday by local police and charged with a controlled substance violation, driving while impaired, and driving while his license was suspended, according to police.

Officer M.C. Jernigan said Blackwelder's vehicle was stopped at 2 a.m. Saturday at the intersection of 12th and Pitt Streets. Jernigan said a bottle containing 47 tablets of a controlled substance was confiscated from the vehicle.

The officer said bond for Blackwelder was set at $500.

Septien Saves Another Dallas Rally

By The Associated Press

Somehow, they do it. Every week, the Dallas Cowboys do it.

This time, though, even the Dallas players were wondering whether they'd pull out another comeback victory.

And, of course, they did.

Rafael Septien booted a 42-yard field goal with 4:38 gone in overtime Sunday to lead the National Football League's only unbeaten team to a 27-24 decision over winless Tampa Bay. In all six of their victories this season, the Cowboys have come from behind. None of those rallies was more improbable — or more dramatic — than this one.

"We can't even lose if we try," said Septien, who had missed a 50-yard attempt earlier in the overtime, only to be roughed by Tampa Bay's Thomas Morris, giving Dallas the ball on the 28. "I was feeling terrible because I missed my first shot."

Dallas trailed 24-17 in the final moments and was deep in Bucs territory, when quarterback Danny White was intercepted in the end zone by Cedric Brown. But the Cowboys forced a punt, taking the ball with 79 seconds left on their own 26.

White hit Ron Springs three times, then passed to Timmy Newsome on the left sideline. Newsome tightrope the final 35 yards of the 52-yard scoring play to tie it with 47 seconds left.

"It was amazing ... a miracle," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "That's what I say every week. It's nothing new."

"I think we are trying to lose all of our games on purpose and nobody wants to beat us," said wide receiver Butch Johnson. "Tampa is the type of team that shouldn't be on the field with us."

But, after James Wilder's 23-yard TD run with 8:53 to play, the Bucs were in position for their first victory this year.

Then Dallas did what it's done to Washington, St. Louis, the Giants, New Orleans and Minnesota, and the Bucs were 0-6.

"I think we are the best 0-6 team in football," said Bucs Coach John McKay. "But I don't really know if that means anything."

Elsewhere, it was Buffalo 38, Miami 25, also in OT; Cleveland 10, the New York Jets 7; New Orleans 19, Atlanta 17; the Los Angeles Rams 10, San Francisco 7; the Los Angeles Raiders 21, Kansas City 20; San Diego 28, Seattle 21; Washington 38, St. Louis 14; Denver 26, Houston 14; Minnesota 23, Chicago 14; Lions 38, Green Bay 14; Colts 12, Patriots 7, and Philadelphia 17, the New York Giants 13.

Tonight, Pittsburgh is at Cincinnati.

Bills 38, Dolphins 35

Joe Ferguson riddled the NFL's No. 1 defense against the pass for five touchdowns and 419 yards. He hit Byron Franklin for two TDs and also found Joe Cribbs for a pair of scores, including the tying touchdown from the 1 with 23 seconds to go.

Joe Danelo hit a 36-yard field goal at 13:58 of OT after Miami's Uwe von Schamman missed from 52 and 43 yards in the extra session.

"This is something I really wanted to do before I got out of football," said Ferguson. "I'd like to do it again sometime."

Browns 10, Jets 7

Matt Bahr's 44-yard field goal — helped by a gusting wind listed at 16 mph — as time ran out moved the Browns to the top of the American Conference Central Division. Cleveland's touchdown came on Bobby Jones' spectacular first-half reception of Brian Sipe's 32-yard pass. The Jets' Richard Todd connected with Bruce Harper on a 15-yard TD pass with 1:28 to go.

"I don't like to say this, but when you're tied, it's not quite as pressure-oriented," Bahr said. "You always know you might get another chance. When you're a point behind, you know you just have to make it."

Saints 19, Falcons 17

New Orleans, at 4-2 off to the best start in its 17-year history, got a game-winning field goal from Morten Andersen for the second time this season. Andersen, who beat Chicago in overtime earlier this year, kicked a 35-yard field goal as time expired. He had four field goals in all.

"I knew it would come down to me," Andersen said. "Once we were inside the 35, I knew I could make it. I feel comfortable from the 50 on in."

The Saints had been shut out in their last two trips to Atlanta.

Rams 10, 49ers 7

The 49ers went into the game as the highest scoring team in the NFL but managed only a 3-yard touchdown run by Roger Craig with 4:52 left. Eric Dickerson, the NFL's leading rusher, picked up 132 yards and the visiting Rams' only touchdown. Chuck Nelson kicked a 41-yard field goal for LA and Ivory Sully blocked Ray Wersching's last-second field goal attempt.

Raiders 21, Chiefs 20

Marcus Allen recovered teammate Frank Hawkins' fumble in the Kansas City end zone with 8:29 remaining to lift the host Raiders over KC. Hawkins was hit around the Kansas City 1 and the ball rolled into the end zone, where Allen fell on it capping a comeback from a 14-0 deficit.

"This was not what you'd call a pretty game," said Allen. "We didn't play that well but we always seem to be able to come from behind."

The Raiders, 5-1, marched 46 yards on six plays for the winning touchdown. Hawkins gained 29 yards on four carries in the drive, which was aided by a defensive holding penalty and an offside penalty against the Chiefs.

Chargers 28, Seahawks 21

At San Diego, the Seahawks blew a 21-0 margin. The much-maligned Chargers defense got the clinching score when Andre Young streaked 40 yards with an intercepted pass with 2:04 to go.

Quarterback Dan Fouts — playing his third game with a broken wrist — ignited the 21-point second-half rally by hitting Bobby Duckworth for a 59-yard TD in the third quarter.

"That's something I've dreamed about," said Young, a second-year safety from Louisiana Tech. "And it's as great as I thought it would be."

Redskins 38, Cardinals 14

Washington continued to roll, winning on the road for the eighth straight time. Joe Theismann passed for two scores and John Riggins ran for three while moving into fifth place on the all-time rushing list.

The Redskins took advantage of four St. Louis turnovers and seven penalties.

Broncos 26, Oilers 14

Houston lost its 13th straight as visiting Denver, ranked 28th in the NFL in total offense with an average of 245 yards, had 262 at the half. Steve DeBerg, replacing John Elway at quarterback, threw for two scores. Rich Karlis kicked four field goals and Sammy Winder rushed for 165 yards.

Vikings 23, Bears 14

At Chicago, Tony Galbreath ran for 104 yards — including a 52-yard scoring jaunt — and Darrin Nelson added 78, with a 36-yard TD romp. The Bears committed five turnovers, offsetting a 102-yard effort by Walter Payton.

"We've been fortunate this year in the turnover ratio," said Viking Coach Bud Grant. "With the injuries we're having, we've been lucky. They've compensated for the lack of offense."

Lions 38, Packers 14

After a pep talk from their owner, William Clay Ford, the Lions snapped a four-game slide with a home victory. Rookie fullback James Jones ran for

Black Achieves Golf Goal Early

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Unknown Ronnie Black said he never wanted to be a golf bum so he set a three-year time limit for a victory on the PGA Tour.

Black, 25, realized his goal Sunday by winning the $250,000 Southern Open golf tournament on the fourth hole of sudden death playoff and earn $45,000, nearly doubling his previous earnings of $46,358 in two years on the tour.

Black came from three strokes off the pace set by Scotland's Sam Torrance, finishing with a 1-under-par 69 over the 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Torrance had a 72, including a double-bogey 5 on the par 3, 210-yard 14th hole that enabled Black to catch him.

Both golfers then parred the rest of regulation and the first three holes of overtime before Black dropped in a 6-foot putt on the par 4, 378-yard 13th hole for a birdie and the victory.

"Winning a tournament came earlier than I thought it would," said Black, who played at Lamar University and lives Kountze, Texas.

"I gave myself three years to start making money on the tour. I didn't want to be a golf bum. But, I'm not worried now," said the slim 6-foot-2, 170-pounder, whose best previous finish was a tie for 14th in Milwaukee this year.

"My major goal this year was to make the Top 125 on the money list with a goal of $60,000. Maybe I should have set my goals higher," said Black.

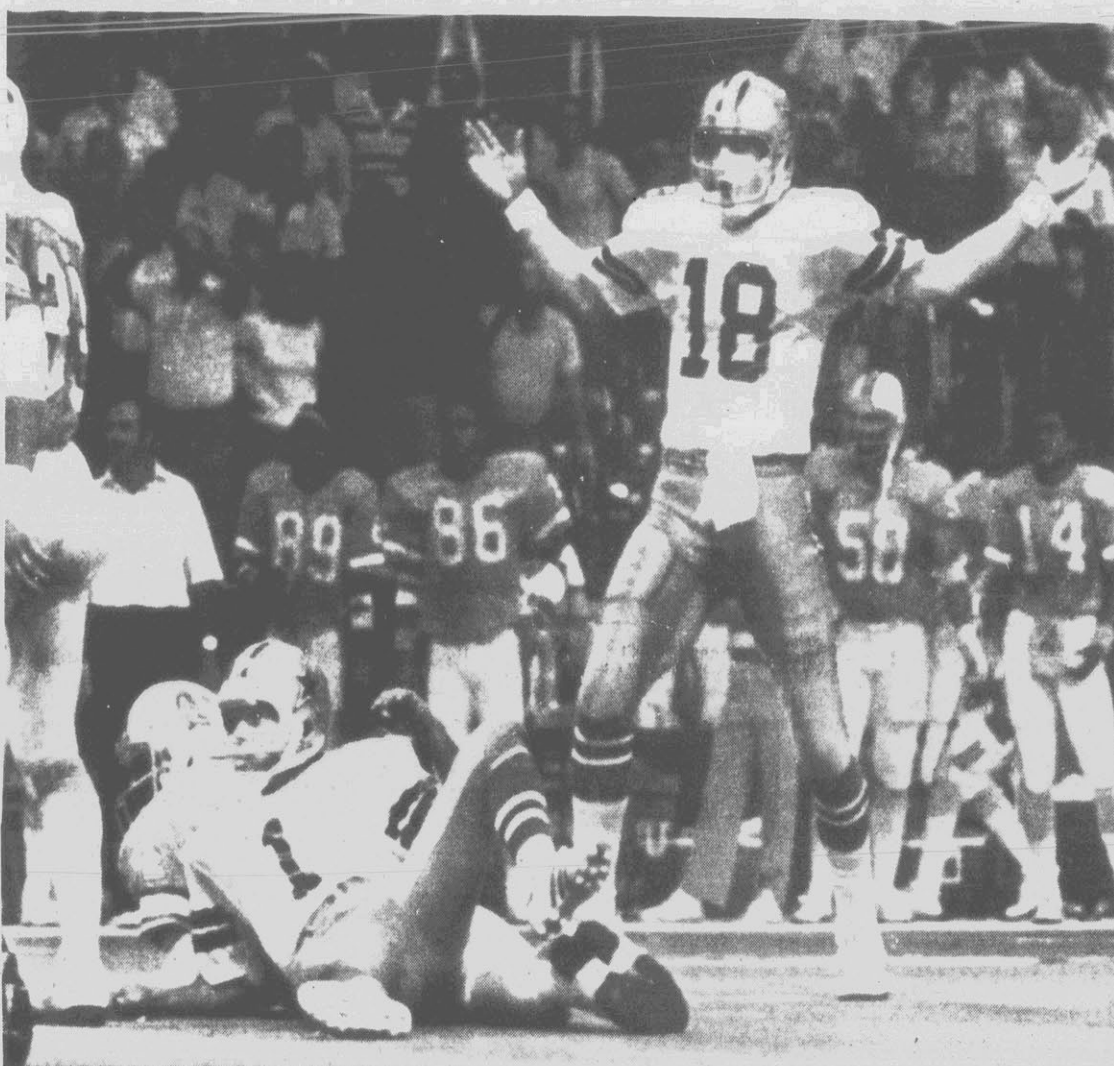

As for his winning putt, Black said he hit it quick so he wouldn't have to think too much about it.

"I've always said that there are plenty of players out here that can win, but it takes a little heart to step up and make a 5-footer when you have to," he said.

Torrance earned $27,000 for his runnerup finish, the first time he had made the cut in 10 American tour tries in 10 years.

"I was tentative on the greens all day. I went out just to try and play a solid round, but that's golf," said Torrance, a European Ryder Cup player who was here to prepare for next week's matches against the United States at West Palm Beach, Fla.

"I'd have said thank you if you'd have told me I'd be in a playoff at the beginning of the week," said the 30-year-old Torrance, who has captured 10 foreign tournaments since turning pro in 1972.

'King' Has Tarnished Crown

By RICK SCOPPE

Associated Press Writer HARRISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Richard Petty, nicknamed "the king" of NASCAR racing, had his crown tarnished after winning the Miller High Life 500 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Petty, who has won 198 races in his 23-year career, was fined $35,000 — the largest in NASCAR history — and lost 104 Winston Cup points Sunday. The Randleman, N.C., veteran was penalized for using left-side tires on the right side and because his engine measured 381.983 cubic inches instead of the maximum allowed size — 358 cubic inches.

Petty, driving an STP Pontiac, had pocketed $40,400 for winning the $417,270 race at the 1.5-mile speedway.

Bill Gazaway, director of racing operations for NASCAR, announced the fine nearly three hours after Petty had swept by Darrell Waltrip on second turn with 22 laps remaining and surged to his first victory this season.

Gazaway said NASCAR was faced with three options: fining Petty, subtracting laps from his total or disqualifying him outright.

"We took the option that seemed to be in the best interest of the sport," Gazaway said.

Junior Johnson, Waltrip's crew chief and owner of his Chevrolet, blasted NASCAR for failing to take action that would change the race's outcome.

"In my opinion, NASCAR is crookedier than what Petty's done," Johnson said in a telephone interview. "The credibility of the sport will be questioned because of the decision."

Petty attended a "business meeting" after the race and was unavailable for comment, said Steve Tucker, spokesman for Petty's STP team. In a prepared statement, however, Petty said: "I just drive the car. I don't know anything about the engine or the tires."

Waltrip, of Franklin, Tenn., gained 24 points and moved within 67 of Winston Cup points leader Bobby Allison, who finished seventh. Waltrip said he was angry that NASCAR didn't take stronger action.

"There is no question I am the winner," he said. "At Martinsville earlier this year, Tim Richmond was penalized five laps for left-side tires, and that was supposed to be the standard. I am not mad at Richard Petty, but I think somebody has failed to do their job."

Benny Parsons finished third, followed by Terry Labonte and pole sitter Tim Richmond. Defending champion Harry Gant finished 29th.

The race featured 30 lead changes among 13 drivers and was delayed 10 minutes by morning rain. Their were eight cautions for 35 laps but no accidents.

Petty said the race was "mentally tough," adding, "All the top drivers ran good — or had a chance to. I was lucky to run good while it counted."

Parsons sped past

Richmond on the opening lap and led until Buddy Baker captured the lead at lap 10. Parsons regained the lead on lap 52 and relinquished it only once until lap 68.

Bill Elliott took command one-third of the way through the race but Richmond went back on top on lap 223. He led until lap 293, when Waltrip took over after a quick pit stop.

Waltrip came out of the final caution in first while Petty, after picking up the tires later judged illegal, was third.

"We used a lot of tires, but at the last pit stop, we put on two new tires and two used tires," Petty said. "We just kept searching until we got it right."

Petty said no driver had a clear advantage.

"All the top drivers ran good, or had a chance to," he said. "I was just lucky to run good when it counted. There was no one person who dominated the race."

Santa Cruz Named ECAC Defensive Star

East Carolina University linebacker Chris Santa Cruz has been named the ECAC Defensive Player of the Week for his performance against the Ragin' Cajuns of Southwestern Louisiana Saturday.

Santa Cruz, a junior from Lillian, Ala., had four tackles and one assist, but he is credited with stopping a pair of Cajun scoring threats.

On third and goal at the Pirates' one-yard line, Santa Cruz stopped Thomas Jackson for no gain and the Cajuns had to settle for a field goal on their first drive of the game. The Cajuns drove from their four to the ECU 23 in the third quarter. But on third and four, SWL tried a reverse and Santa Cruz dumped Gregory Hobbs for an 11-yard loss.

Tailback Tony Baker was listed on the offensive honor roll for his 108 yards and two touchdowns on 23 carries.

ECU-Temple Game Reset

The Philadelphia Phillies bid for the World Series championship has forced the East Carolina University football game against Temple to be moved from Veterans Stadium to Franklin Field.

Kickoff time will be 7:30 p.m. instead of the original 1:30, as the Pennsylvania football team will playing there in the afternoon.

East Carolina University came up against some adversity Saturday afternoon when it played Southwestern Louisiana, but as Ed Emory said, the mark of a good team is when it wins the tough ones.

The 21-18 win came after four Pirate fumbles had allowed Southwestern to rally from a 14-3 deficit to take an 18-14 lead early in the final period of play.

But East Carolina came back with a fine series to pull out the win, then got some good defense during the final minutes to hold onto the victory — even when the fourth fumble gave the Ragin' Cajuns a final chance at pulling it out.

It was obvious, however, that the Pirates took Southwestern, a winless team, a little too lightly. The intensity needed just didn't seem to be there. The pass rush wasn't what it was against Missouri, nor was the pass coverage.

Even against the run, where the Pirates are usually the strongest, there was a lack of concentration. On one touchdown run of 37 yards, no less than four Pirates had a hand on the runner enough to have brought him down.

Lessons should be learned from games like this. There is no question that the Pirates were the better team, but for much of the game, they didn't show it. Even in the second half, when they drove up and down the field practically at will, the fumbles cost them — nearly cost them the game.

This week, against Temple, a team that has won just one game, the Pirates cannot afford to be lax at all. The Owls felt that they were the better team last year when the Pirates came to Philadelphia and won that contest. This year, they are sure to want revenge.

And their record is somewhat deceiving. They were beaten by Pittsburgh, Penn State, Boston College and Cincinnati — teams that have been impressive at times this year. Pitt just beat Florida State, which beat the Pirates by one point. Penn State had fits against Temple and appears to have turned its season around with an upset win over Alabama Saturday. Boston College defeated Clemson, and beat Temple by only a field goal. Cincinnati, of course, earlier upset Penn State on the Nittany Lions' home field.

So Temple is better than its record.

And there definitely will be a time change for the game. Since Philadelphia won the National League playoffs — barring some unexpected and long rain delays — the Phillies are supposed to be playing in Veterans' Stadium on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, so no football will be played there. Not only does Temple have to move its game, the Dallas-Philadelphia game scheduled for Sunday will be switched to Dallas, with a later date scheduled at Dallas to be played then in Philadelphia.

The ECU game will be played at Franklin Field — also in Philadelphia — at 7:30 p.m. The University of Pennsylvania has the stadium for its use that afternoon.

What really would have been nice would have been to switch the site to Greenville. We're sure that ECU officials would have been glad to host the game here. Only some 6,000 attended last year's game, and if that is an indication of how many will be there Saturday night, it would be financially sound for both teams to move, the game to Greenville, even if some ticket money had to be refunded in Philadelphia.

We doubt, however, that Temple would look at it that way.

Steelers-Bengals Renew Rivalry

CINCINNATI (AP) — A pair of changed teams renew an undimmed National Football League rivalry tonight when the injury-hobbled Pittsburgh Steelers play the struggling Cincinnati Bengals at Riverfront Stadium.

A debut crowd and a national television audience will see the 12 Steelers attempt to keep pace with 4-2 Cleveland for first place in the AFC Central Division while the 1-4 Bengals try to claw their way back into the chase.

Both teams have struggled at times through the first five weeks of the regular season, but for different reasons.

The Steelers have relied on a ball-control game to make up for the absence of injured quarterback Terry Bradshaw. The once-explosive Steeler offense now leans more on the run than the pass to reach the end zone.

The Bengals have won just one game after several off-season jolts, including the future loss of two receivers to the rival United States Football League and two player suspensions for cocaine involvement.

Cincinnati has won four of the last five games with Pittsburgh, and hasn't lost a game to the Steelers in Riverfront Stadium since 1972.

When you play Pittsburgh, I don't think there's any doubt about where you stand about where you're going to fight for your life," said Bengals Coach

Turner Stoops. "And you'd better be prepared for a tough physical battle. Game every time you line up against them."

More often than not, the Steelers have had the run in mind when they line up. Without Bradshaw, the Steelers have gone to a ground-oriented attack highlighting the running of 215-pound veteran Franco Harris.

Pittsburgh is the only National Football League club with more yards on the ground.

Perry To Speak To Sports Club

Garland Perry, the only pitcher to win the Cy Young Award in both of baseball's Major Leagues, will be the guest speaker of the Greenville Sports Club Tuesday at the Ramada Inn at noon.

Perry recently announced his retirement after finishing the 1983 season with the Kansas City Royals. He started the season with the Seattle Mariners and has played with the San Francisco Giants, the Texas Rangers and the New York Yankees during his career.

He finished third in the career strikeout list behind Nolan Ryan and Steve Carlton.

Phillies Shoot For The Top

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three years after they won baseball's world championship, the Philadelphia Phillies are shooting for the top prize again.

They captured their second National League pennant of the still young 80s by beating the Los Angeles Dodgers, champs of the NL West, in a best-of-five series that ended in four games with Saturday night's 7-2 victory.

Yet, despite the brief time between pennants, with a couple of exceptions, the Phils go into the World Series against the American League champion Baltimore Orioles with an almost entirely new cast.

In 1980, Philadelphia's catcher was Bob Boone. He's with California now while Bo Diaz is behind the plate for the Phillies.

The shortstop-second base combination were Larry Bowa and Manny Trillo, now accepting their mail with the Chicago Cubs and Montreal Expos. Ivan DeJesus and Joe Morgan are the replacements.

Left field belonged to Lonnie Smith, now a St. Louis Cardinal, and Greg Luzinski, who doesn't need a glove anymore as a designated hitter with the Chicago White Sox. Now Gary Matthews, the National League playoffs' most valuable player, plays there, often interchanged with other outfielders like Greg Gross or Von Hayes or Bob Dernier.

Bake McBride handled right field, but he was shipped out to Cleveland, replaced by Joe Lefebvre and Sixto Lezcano.

So this is largely a new-look Phillie team which opens the 1983 World Series in Baltimore with 19-game winner John Denny, another newcomer, going against Scott McGregor.

Pitcher Steve Carlton was on last Phillies team in the World Series, but only third baseman Mike Schmidt, first baseman Pete Rose and center fielder Garry Maddox are starting lineup holdovers.

And the 42-year-old Rose is playing only because Len Matuszek, who forced him to the bench in September, was called up too late to be eligible for the playoffs and World Series.

The man who oversaw the reconstruction of this team is General Manager Paul Owens, who took the changes so seriously, that he even went down from the front office to the dugout in July to run the club himself as field manager.

That move had a fascinating parallel. When the Phils won in 1980, it was under Dallas Green, who also had left the team's executive suite to take the manager's job.

Green, now president and general manager of the Cubs, was supposed to be an interim manager when he took over the club in 1979. But he stuck around for a pennant. Might Owens, also an interim, decide to do the same thing?

"Dallas Green was 47," observed Owens.

Pitching Leads Orioles To 1983 World Series

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pitching is what did it for the Baltimore Orioles in the American League Championship Series and put them in their sixth World Series since 1966.

"For three weeks all I heard about was Chicago's pitching," Baltimore pitching coach Ray Miller said of White Sox starters LaMarr Hoyt, Floyd Bannister and Richard Dotson, who were a sensational 4-2-5 over the second half of the season. "But we've got some guys here who can pitch, too."

The Baltimore pitching staff held Chicago's power hitters in check, limiting the White Sox to three runs in four games.

Four of the six pitchers used by the Orioles in the series didn't allow any runs and Mike Flanagan, who yielded one of the two earned runs, had a 1.80 ERA that was the worst on the staff.

Manager Joe Altobelli and his staff were to decide today on a pitching rotation to use against the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies in the World Series opening here Tuesday night.

Scott McGregor and rookie Mike Boddicker, who fanned 14 White Sox while turning the playoffs around in the second game, are definitely set for the first two games. But Miller said the Orioles would have to decide whether to use a three or four-man rotation.

Storm Davis and Tippy Martinez allowed 10 hits in Saturday's final game, but turned aside four Chicago scoring threats to complete a frustrating series for a team which led the league during the regular season with 800 runs scored.

A home run by reserve outfielder Tito Landrum snapped a scoreless tie in the series finale, and the Orioles added two more runs to win the emotionally draining 10-inning struggle 3-0.

Going into their record seventh playoff, the Orioles figured they had to keep Rudy Law and Julio Cruz off the bases so they wouldn't become table setters for sluggers Greg Luzinski, Ron Kittle, Carlton Fisk and Harold Baines.

As it turned out, Law batted .389 and Cruz .333 to lead the White Sox, combining to reach base 14 times with 11 hits and three walks, and each stole two bases.

But Luzinski batted .133, Fisk .176 and Baines was .125 despite hitting numerous hard shots. Kittle hit .286 before being sidelined after being hit with a pitch on the left knee in the third game.

Gary Roenicke drove in four runs for the Orioles and Eddie Murray had three RBI, each hitting a homer. John Lowenstein, who platoons with Roenicke in left field, chipped in a two-run double.

The World Series brings together two teams who have been dominant in their leagues for an extended period without ever getting to the fall classic in the same year.

Philadelphia has won five division titles since 1976 and Baltimore seven since the system was inaugurated in 1969. The Orioles last reached the World Series in 1979 and the Phillies made their first appearance in 30 years in 1980.

Ken Singleton, Baltimore's designated hitter who will not see action in that role since the National League rules prevail in odd-numbered years, dubbed the best-of-seven set as the "I-95 Series," in honor of the highway connecting the two cities which are some 100 miles apart.

Baltimore came from behind to win 36 regular season games, 23 in the seventh inning or later, as the Orioles more than upheld the club's "Orioles' Magic" promotional theme.

"This is a gutsy team," said Singleton. "We've come through more this year, especially with the injuries. These are the greatest clutch players I've ever played with."

Arnold Palmer was the first professional golfer to reach the $1 million mark in tournament winnings.

"I'm 59."

That should make him right at home in the cast of senior citizens Philadelphia fields. The Phillies have the oldest team in baseball and call themselves the Wheeze Kids, a play on their 1950 champion Whiz Kids. The important thing is, they weren't the Was Kids.

Or were they?

Morgan, 40, was invisible until September and, even with a sizzling finish, he batted just .230. Rose, benched for the first time in his life, suffered through his toughest season, batting just .245.

That's why Owens' platoon system was so important.

Or was it?

"This was a team that did it all themselves," said Rose.

And how about Owens?

"The P on my uniform stands for Philadelphia and not for Paul," said Rose. "I'm a team player and I always felt the team was the difference. You need someone to write the lineup card out and make the changes."

And how about Owens?

"Let me say this about Paul," Rose continued. "When he took over, we were one game over .500 and now we finished up 18 over .500. So he must have been good."

What Owens did was to turn the Phillies into a team of role players, situational specialists with a revolving door, using his whole squad.

Faldo Expects Close Race In Match Play

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Nick Faldo, one of Europe's big hopes in the Ryder Cup matches against the United States next weekend, predicted a close encounter.

After his 3 and 2 defeat by Greg Norman of Australia in Sunday's 36-hole final of the Suntory World Match Play tournament at Wentworth, Faldo said, "We'll give the Americans a good run."

"It's always an uphill battle against the United States. You lose a match by one hole and the other side gets a point."

"But looking at the pairings in our team, we have a good blend of long hitters and short hitters. I think it will be close."

The match is set for the PGA national course at Palm Beach, Fla. The United States has won the Ryder Cup 21 out of 25 times — always against Britain until the opposing team was broadened to represent Europe two years ago.

If Faldo is to help Europe to make a match of it he must putt better than in the second half of his 36-hole final against Norman.

Between the 8th and 12 holes on the second time around the 6,945-yard, par-72 Wentworth course, Faldo missed his chances on the greens and Norman pulled away to victory.

"That's where I blew it," Faldo said.

Awards In Country Music Scheduled Tonight

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. AP — Alabama and John Anderson's catchy song "Swingin'" are nominated for top awards tonight at the nationally televised Country Music Association awards show.

Awards will be given in 11 categories in the 17th annual ceremonies at the Grand Ole Opry House to be broadcast live by CBS from 9:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. EDT.

Alabama, a four-piece band, is a finalist for entertainer of the year, album of the year for "The Closer You Get," vocal group of the year and top instrumental group.

The group was chosen entertainer of the year, the top award, last year. Barbara Mandrell had won the award the previous two years, and is a finalist again this year.

Anderson's "Swingin'" about front-porch romance, is up for single of the year — and song of the year — awarded to the songwriter. The tune helped Anderson become a finalist for No. 1 male vocalist, top album, for "Wild and Blue" and for the Horizon Award for a promising performer.

Hosts for the show will be Anne Murray and Willie Nelson. Tentatively scheduled to perform or present awards are Alabama, Anderson, Eddy Arnold, John Conlee, Lacy J. Dalton, Janie Fricke, Larry Gatlin, Crystal Gayle, Lee Greenwood, Merle Haggard, Emmylou Harris, Julio Iglesias, George Jones, Brenda Lee, Miss Mandrell, Reba McEntire, Ronnie Milsap, the Oak Ridge Boys, Dolly Parton, Charley Pride, Eddie Rabbitt, Kenny Rogers, Ricky Skaggs, T.G. Sheppard, the Statler Brothers, George Strait, Sylvia, the Whites and Don Williams.

Finalists by category:

Actress Joan Hackett Dead At 49, Of Cancer

By ROBERT JABLON
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Joan Hackett, a Broadway actress who branched out to TV and movies, winning an Oscar nomination for her portrayal of a hypochondriac socialite in the 1982 film "Only When I Laugh," is dead of ovarian cancer. She was 49.

Miss Hackett died Saturday at Encino Hospital, where she had been under treatment for about three weeks, said nursing supervisor Parvin Pasha.

Miss Hackett received an Academy Award nomination and a Golden Globe Award for her role as Marsha Mason's best friend in "Only When I Laugh," a Neil Simon comedy.

She discovered she had cancer during filming of that movie, said New York publicist and friend Bobby Zarem.

"She'd been hospitalized two or three times over the last year and a half," Zarem said, adding that, "Even to her closest friends, she didn't actually acknowledge it."

The actress arrived at the 1982 Golden Globes in a wheelchair, but walked to the stage to receive her award, said publicist Jacqueline Green.

Miss Hackett was born March 1, 1934, in Harlem to an Irish father and Italian mother. She became a teen-age model in New York City's garment district and made her acting debut in the 1960 Off Broadway play "A Clearing In The Woods." She then moved to Broadway for a revival of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing."

She won an Obie award for her stage performance in the 1961 Off Broadway production "Call Me By My Rightful Name."

She started her film career with the 1966 Sidney Lumet movie "The Group," in which she played a Vassar College graduate struggling with marriage and motherhood.

Miss Hackett was married for two years to actor Richard Mulligan, who starred in the TV series "Soap" and the film "S.O.B." The marriage ended in divorce, Zarem said.

Her TV movies included "The Young Country," "How Awful About Allan," "The Other Man," "Five Desperate Women," "Class of '63," "Reflections of Murder," "Stonestreet," "The Possessed," "Pleasure Cove," "The Long Days of Summer," and "The Long Summer of George Adams."

In May 1982 she was in ABC's movie "Paper Dolls" as the pushy mother of a teen-age model, and this year she starred in a TV pilot with Karen Valentine, "A Girl's Life." It was broadcast by NBC but did not become a series.

New Yorker critic Penelope Gilliatt wrote that Miss Hackett had "the beauty, humor and racehorse nerves to equal Katharine Hepburn."

Off screen, Miss Hackett was active in many causes, including feminism and adaptation of solar energy. A member of the National Organization for Women, she toured the country in support of the Equal Rights Amendment and was an outspoken supporter of the 1980 Screen Actors Guild strike.

Miss Hackett recently hosted a wedding reception at her Beverly Hills home for her close friend, "Star Wars" actress Carrie Fisher, and rock singer Paul Simon, Zarem said.

"She was considered among her peers to be one of the finest people in her craft," Zarem said. "She was a real purist. In a way, she was just coming into her own as a person and a commercial actress."

Billionaire Hosts Celebs

DENVER (AP) — Cary Grant was there. So were Linda Evans, Jill St. John and Robert Wagner. In fact, the Carousel Ball attracted so many celebrities that Denver Mayor Federico Pena didn't know who half of them were.

About 2,400 people attended a dazzling Saturday ball sponsored by Barbara Davis, wife of Denver billionaire Marvin Davis.

"My problem is, I don't watch TV, so I don't know who half these people are," said Pena as he made the rounds. "I just fake it."

The guest list included Lucie Arnaz, Lucille Ball, Ernest Borgnine, William Christopher, Gary Coleman, Joan Collins, Jamie Farr, Betty Ford, Gerald Ford, John Forsythe, Merv Griffin, Ron Howard, Timothy Hutton, Ann Landers, Michael Landon, Hal Linden, Rich Little, Dolly Parton, Stephanie Powers, Wayne Rogers, Diana Ross, Robert Stack, James Stewart, Donald Sutherland, Loretta Swit and Raquel Welch.

The Davises began the event, which benefits diabetes research in 1978 after they learned their daughter Dana, 15, suffers from the disease. The goal this year was to raise $2 million, and organizers said it appeared that figure was topped.

Ford's Foundation

The Ford Motor Company is celebrating the 75th anniversary of the Model T. In the nineteen year period between 1908 and 1927, more than half the automobiles sold in the United States were Fords. Henry Ford built his first automobile in 1896. This odd-looking car had bicycle wheels and a single cylinder made from the exhaust pipe of a steam engine. Now on display at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Michigan, this car still runs!

DO YOU KNOW — What was the nickname for the Model T?

Police Fear Violence

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A shooting spree that injured three musicians, one fatally, may have signaled a new outbreak of motorcycle gang violence in North Carolina, authorities say.

On Sept. 21, a man entered a Charlotte house where four members of the Cosmic Blues rock band were rehearsing.

"OK, guys, this is going to be your last gig," band members quoted the intruder as saying.

After ordering them into a corner, the intruder opened fire with a .45-caliber automatic pistol, witnesses say. Three people were wounded, including John Hefferon, 27, who later died.

Clifford Dean Freeman, a 23-year-old mechanic, turned himself in to police Sept. 27. He is charged with murder and is in the Mecklenburg County Jail awaiting trial.

Police say Freeman is a member of the Southern Cross Motorcycle Club, which before the shooting was considered a loose affiliation of four or five men who drank beer and drove motorcycles. Now, however, authorities fear it has more members and is better organized than originally believed.

When Charlotte police entered the Southern Cross clubhouse after Hefferon's killing, they discovered a ledger with the names of 13 dues-paying members. They say they also found semiautomatic assault rifles, several high-powered rifles and three or four .45-caliber pistols.

According to police, the Southern Cross president is David Lowery, 23, brother of George Lowery, 27, whom police have identified as a member of the Charlotte chapter of the Outlaws.

Police say their search of the clubhouse also turned up numerous personal effects of William "Chains" Flamont, once interim president of the Charlotte Outlaws chapter.

The Outlaws, according to police, are a rival gang to the Hell's Angels motorcycle gang. That rivalry, they say, has been blamed for several violent incidents in the Charlotte area.

'Other Authors' Said Conceited

NICE, France (AP) — American novelist Erskine Caldwell, conceding that he finds other authors "very conceited," and prefers to avoid them, was nevertheless honored by writers with a showing of the 1941 film version of "Tobacco Road."

The film was shown Sunday at the World Writers' Conference, a gathering of more than 250 writers at this Mediterranean resort.

Caldwell, 79, also the author of "God's Little Acre," said in an interview, "I am not a member of a school or coterie of writers, so I do not associate with writers."

"Writers are very unpleasant people to live with," said Caldwell, known for his realistic and earthy novels of the American South.

Postpone Decision On Using Fake Pizza Cheese

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A final decision on a federal proposal that would require less imitation cheese — and more of the real thing — in frozen meat pizzas has been put off until at least next spring.

The Agriculture Department announced the proposal on Aug. 4 and allowed time for public comments until Oct. 3. But the deadline has been extended through next April 2.

Donald Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, said the department got a number of requests for additional time on the proposal, which could affect half of the nation's pizza industry.

"Since we are interested in receiving more information on this proposal, the agency has determined that there is sufficient justification on this proposal," Houston said.

The proposal would require frozen meat pizzas to contain a minimum of 12 percent cheese, at least half of which would have to be natural cheese. Pizzas bought fresh at pizzerias and restaurants would not be affected.

Current USDA rules do not define cheese or specify a minimum amount.

Also, the proposal would require labeling of cheese substitutes to be more prominent in frozen meat pizzas and other food products which feature cheese and include meat or poultry.

The USDA has regulatory jurisdiction over processed food that contains meat and poultry, while the Food and Drug Administration enforces rules on other foods. Thus, if the frozen pizza contains sausage, the USDA is in charge of federal rules. If it's a plain cheese pizza, the FDA is in charge.

Many of the requests for additional time for filing comments — which are part of the government's official rule-making process — apparently came from processors and other industry types who could be expected to oppose the rule change or push for a modification.

The proposal, however, is supported by the National Milk Producers Federation, a Washington-based group which represents thousands of dairy farmers and their co-ops.

An article in the federation's current newsletter explains the proposed pizza regulation and noted that "opponents are gathering steam" and have asked for "at least a nine-month extension in which to prepare comments."

"Under current USDA labeling policy, manufacturers ... can use nine parts fake cheese and only one part real cheese, but the consumer really has to work to find the information buried in the ingredient list (label)," the federation said.

"The frozen meat pizza industry doesn't like this proposal. It claims that if manufacturers have to use six percent real cheese, which may cost a little more than the fake stuff, the industry won't be able to make a profit. Or if the cost is passed on to consumers that sales will decrease."

According to the federation, this argument is flimsy because "the cost of real mozzarella, for example, hasn't gone up in the last two years."

The federation said opponents claim that dairy producers favor the proposal as a means of getting rid of more of the nation's cheese surplus.

But the federation said it "has actually been seeking a change in imitation labeling policy since 1973, long before a surplus existed" in dairy production.

According to an analysis provided by the agency, the proposed rule changes could cost an estimated $11 million the first year and thereafter about $5 million a year.

Frozen pizza sales total $1 billion annually.

County Extension Chairman

I have had several calls from growers in different parts of the county regarding the percentage of shrinkage that will occur in high moisture wet corn being dried from a wet state to the moisture content for sale.

Each year at this time, growers have to go through the process of deciding what the value of the water in the corn is and at what level it becomes uneconomical for them to dry the crop. The higher moisture in the corn the higher the dockage will be, but the higher the weight loss or shrink will be due to drying.

Let's assume that a grower has 1,000 bushels of 20 percent moisture content corn loaded on his truck and is going to have his crop dried to 15 percent. According to the grain shrinkage table when 20 percent moisture corn is dried to 15 percent, so 6.38 percent times 1,000 bushels equals 63.8 bushels that will be lost when the grain is dried.

The value of the weight or bushels lost due to shrinkage must be compared to the cost of the moisture discount which is normally charged by most buyers. This year several sources say that they will discount sales price of corn as shown in the moisture discount schedule. So corn sold wet at 20 percent moisture would be discounted 15 percent of the selling price. Fifteen percent times $.33 per bushel is 45 cents per bushel discount.

In deciding whether to sell wet or dry the following information must be obtained:

1. Shrinkage and weight loss data for your cropping conditions.

2. Discount schedule from your local buyers.

3. An economic analysis of cost drying based on the type or dryer that you desire to purchase.

4. How farm drying fits into your cropping and livestock operation.

If you store and feed your own corn you probably want to dry it and eliminate labor and trucking expenses to and from the elevator. If you farm a large amount of rented land, a dryer and bins probably won't fit your plans.

Swine Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says pigs are making a comeback in Haiti, where all the swine were killed in 1979 to eliminate an outbreak of African swine fever.

Thousands of swine were slaughtered after the disease appeared. Once free of the disease, the plan now is to use about 2,000 imported sanitized hogs as "sentinels" to see if African swine fever recurs. If not, commercial herds will be developed again.

Haitian pig owners were paid $9.5 million in indemnities and were allowed to keep the meat to consume or sell, since the meat is considered safe to eat. The project was conducted under an international cooperative program to keep the disease from spreading into other countries, including the United States.

The first sentinel hogs arrived in Haiti last spring and the final shipment is expected this month, says the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Pesticide Information

WASHINGTON (AP) — A computerized system to provide the latest information on pesticides will go into full-scale operation this week, the Agriculture Department says.

Management of the system, which has undergone pilot testing the last year, will continue at Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind. The system was developed at Purdue in cooperation with several USDA agencies.

Jim White, the system's user service manager at Purdue, said the system "provides the latest information about key characteristics of pesticide products" currently approved by the Environmental Protection Agency and participating state regulatory agencies.

For what White called "nominal membership and user fees," the information is available to member organizations such as land-grant universities, state and federal offices, the pesticides industry and others.

White said 30 state agencies, a dozen industries and half a dozen state agencies have signed up so far.

Top Auctioneer At A Loss For Words

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — For the first time in 20 years, Walter B. Wilkerson found himself at a loss for words.

Fortunately, that didn't happen until after the Kenbridge resident had been judged winner of the $5,000 top prize in the 1983 World Tobacco Auctioneering Championships.

To someone in my profession, Wilkerson said afterward, "it's a scary thing when the words don't come out. I just got choked up for a minute there."

But not when it counted.

Based on their decision on style, ability to raise bids and showmanship, seven judges chose Wilkerson over nine other finalists from the 70-auctioneer field. Sandy Houston of Reidsville, N.C., finished second and Charlie Faulk of Greensboro, N.C., third.

The contest, sponsored by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and showpiece of Saturday's annual Danville Harvest Jubilee, was based on actual warehouse procedures.

Two rows of bright-leaf tobacco bales were arranged on the stage, and the auctioneers performed their 120-year-old litany for the benefit of five tobacco company buyers and four Danville warehouse sellers.

"I've been thinking about this contest all year," said Wilkerson, who sold his first bale of tobacco 26 years ago in Jasper, Fla. "but I didn't practice especially for it. I just do my practicing on the warehouse floor."

A third-place finisher in 1982, Wilkerson became the third Virginia winner in the contest's three-year history. Mack Burnett of Clarksville won in 1981, Page Roberts of Clarksville last year.

A crowd estimated at 50,000 wandered through Danville's historic warehouse district Saturday, listening to assorted bluegrass and country bands, examining crafts and antiques and sampling concession-stand food.

Earlier, Gordon McCutcheon of Lake City, S.C., blew away the rest of a 30-man field to win the World Tobacco Spitting Championship.

The 19-year-old Francis Marion College student saved his best effort for the climactic five-man spitoff, hurling a glob of Work Horse juice 22 feet, 4 inches

Helms Says Threat Aids Tobacco Vote

By The Associated Press

U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms says his threatened filibuster against a bill to make the Rev. Martin Luther King's birthday a national holiday led directly to Senate approval of sweeping changes in the federal tobacco program.

Helms, R-N.C., said in return for dropping the filibuster threat and agreeing to an Oct. 19 vote on the King bill, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., brought the tobacco bill to the Senate floor Thursday.

"I did not propose the quid pro quo," Helms said. "I just worked out the window of opportunity."

The tobacco bill, which freezes support price levels for two years and would return tobacco allotments to actual growers by 1990, had been in limbo because of political complications.

But the Senate rejected several amendments Thursday that could have killed the program or put the bill back on hold. The measure won overwhelming Senate approval Friday and now goes before the House.

Helms created a furor in the Senate last week when he said King practiced "action-oriented Marxism" and questioned whether the slain civil rights leader deserved the holiday. He also questioned its cost to government and private industry.

Helms said in an interview Friday he had a twofold motive in speaking out: stating his sincere opposition to the King bill and creating an opening for the tobacco legislation.

"What I wanted to do ... was to have senators do something about that King proposal they hadn't done — think about it," Helms said. "So I got everything I had desired."

In a related development, Helms introduced Friday a resolution calling for the Senate to seek secret FBI and Justice Department files on King.

Helms said the files should help determine "in a confidential setting" what ties, if any, King had with communists.

"We know for certain that the National Archives has this information, because it was sealed under a court order in 1977 for 50 years," Helms aide Tom Ashcraft said.
