City Council Defers Action On Ordinance

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council voted Thursday night to continue action until next month on a proposed ordinance regulating and licensing transient and itinerant merchants and vendors in order to study the matter further and consider new provisions.

The decision to wait until the November meeting followed a public hearing during which the new ordinance was endorsed with various suggested amendments.

Mac McCarley, assistant city attorney, said the new ordinance was drafted basically as a licensing, regulating and consumer protection-oriented enforcement program. He said the ordinance deals with such things as the identity of the merchant or vendor, the source and quality of his goods, where the temporary business is being set up, bond requirements, and penalty provisions.

The proposed document identifies a transient merchant or itinerant merchant or vendor as any person, firm or corporation who engages in a temporary business of selling and delivering goods, wares and merchandise within the city. The draft proposed that any person selling farm produce be exempt.

Eddie Harrington, who operates Sunshine Garden Plaza here and Sunshine Garden Center near Greenville, said he endorsed the ordinance with certain stipulations.

Harrington recommended that: the application process require that itinerant merchants list their state merchant registration numbers to assist in the collection of sales tax receipts; that an exemption apply only to persons selling edible farm produce; that a penalty be added against property owners who allow itinerant merchants on their property; and that the proposed application process be amended by deleting a requirement for three letters of reference from local businessmen or property owners.

Harrington said he did not like restrictions on free enterprise but he felt there had to be a law protecting the citizens.

David Dufus Jr., representing the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce as its board chairman, presented a resolution adopted by the chamber's executive committee which asked the council to adopt the proposed ordinance with certain amendments. Dufus said the board recommended that the sale of edible farm goods be exempt from licensing requirements, that there be no requirement of three letters of reference, that the state sales tax number be required, and that the trade shows here be exempted.

Leslie Mills of Evans Seafood said there needs to be some changes made in the itinerant merchant situation and he endorsed the new ordinance.

Mayor Percy Cox said he felt the measures represented a good ordinance, although it would put a burden on the city to do additional paperwork as required in the merchant licensing.

Councilman William Hadden, who offered the motion to continue the matter, said a lot of work is needed before the ordinance will be satisfactory to the council.

The mayor pro-tem, Janice Buck, also pointed to a need for "more time to study and get the facts together" in order to "protect the citizens of Greenville."

Councilman Stuart Shinn said the board must watch out for loopholes in the ordinance or the city will "be back to square one."

Present regulations call for itinerant merchants and vendors to pay an administrative processing fee of $25 in order to do business in Greenville. The proposed ordinance would increase the fee to $50.

In other business, the council approved a request following a public hearing to rezone 1.01 acres in the South Evans

Tobacco Spill

OOPS!! ... Driver William Gates of Mims, Fla., made a left turn at the intersection of U.S. 261 and the Northeast Bypass Thursday morning, when the load of tobacco shifted and the tractor-trailer rig overturned. According to Trooper A.G. Wright, Gates received a minor arm injury. Workers worked for much of the afternoon trying to right the truck and reload the tobacco onto another vehicle. There were no damage estimates in the 11 a.m. accident. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Tabulator Confusion

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Some confusion has cropped up regarding the possible use of vote tabulators in upcoming Pitt County municipal elections, according to an election official.

Apparently, election officials and members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners were under the impression that Airmac, the California company that manufactures the tabulators, would be willing to conduct the November municipal election free of charge — with no strings attached. However, after requesting confirmation that the company would indeed provide this free service recently, election officials found that the company would require some kind of commitment.

Airmac representative Ed Tyson said in a telephone interview this morning that the company would be willing to conduct the November election as a free service only if it had a firm commitment. "We also said we would be willing to give Pitt County a purchase price of $3,475 versus the original $4,500, a savings of $20,000 on the purchase of 20 vote tabulators," he said.

Tyson said if the company did organize and run the election, it would cost Airmac approximately $5,000 — $5,000 that the county would not be charged for.

Commissioners will hear an update on the situation Monday by Pitt County Board of Elections Chairman Clifton W. Everett Jr., Commissioner Kelly Barnhill said.

"We asked Cliff to go back to the company and see if they would be interested in giving us a demonstration for one of the municipal elections under a no obligation basis for us to try them out. I assume he has had a report from the manufacturer and will discuss it with us Monday," Barnhill said.

Everett could not be reached for comment.

Airmac vote tabulators are now being used in 24 North Carolina counties, according to Tyson.

Small Increase In Wholesale Prices Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices edged up 0.2 percent last month, pushed ahead by the biggest food cost increase in five months, the government reported today in a new indication of the severity of this summer's drought.

Food prices rose 0.7 percent, the most since the 1.1 percent gain of April, with fresh vegetable prices soaring 16.3 percent. Analysts have said crop damage from the drought will cause further strong price gains for months to come.

The overall rise was restrained by a 2.1 percent decline in new car prices, "largely reflecting the inventory liquidation allowances granted dealers by domestic manufacturers to close out the 1983 model year," the Labor Department's Producer Price Index said.

Energy prices, held down by a small decline in gasoline costs, rose just 0.3 percent, matching the gain of August.

The overall September increase was half the size of the previous month's 4 percent gain. Economists are still expecting the figure for all of 1983 to be well under last year's 3.7 percent, itself the lowest in more than a decade.

For the first nine months of this year, the wholesale price calculation rose at an annual rate of 0.2 percent, potentially the best yearly mark since the 0.2 percent decline for all of 1982.

At the White House, presidential press secretary Larry Speakes said the inflation report was "good news on the economic front. It indicates inflation remains under control."

Detailing food price trends, the department said vegetable costs rose 16.3 percent after a 16.5 percent August increase. In July, before the effects of the drought were widely felt, vegetable prices had dropped 11.9 percent.

Fresh fruit prices rose 3.5 percent after declining 5.6 percent in August; egg prices were up 1 percent following a 4.4 percent gain; pork prices declined 4.6 percent after rising 0.6 percent in August, and poultry prices rose 5.8 percent, a bit ahead of August's 5.1 percent hike.

Beef and veal prices dropped 3.9 percent, meanwhile, as ranchers continued to cut down their herds rather than pay higher feed prices. Those prices had fallen 3.1 percent in August.

When the meat supply falls off next year, as widely expected, beef prices should reverse themselves, analysts say.

As for energy prices, today's report said that gasoline costs dipped 0.1 percent after rising 0.4 percent. Natural gas costs, however, rose 0.5 percent after declining 0.2 percent, while fuel oil costs rose 2.5 percent, five times the 0.5 percent gain of the preceding month.

Prices for capital equipment — the machinery and other items used by business — declined 0.3 percent after rising 0.7 percent.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations. Before such adjustment, the price index for finished goods stood at 285.1 last month, meaning that items costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $28.51 in September.

If the September increase were repeated for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 2.1 percent.

Snipers Kill U.S. Marine In Continuing Harassment

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Snipers shot and killed a U.S. Marine and wounded another today while they were on patrol in jeeps near Beirut airport, and two Marine positions came under grenade and small arms fire.

The latest casualties brought the toll to five Marines killed and 41 wounded in the last six weeks of peacekeeping operations in Beirut.

"We are seeing a pattern evolve of individuals firing to harass the Marines and trying to draw them into some kind of confrontation," Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said.

Asked about the mood of the American contingent, he said: "It is one of tension. We still have hour jobs to do and get gill continue to do them. But at the same time there's a note of caution and we are going to maintain caution."

In Washington, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said President Reagan had been told about the Marine's death and would call his family. Speakes said the death did not change Reagan's belief that the Marines were deployed in a non-combat zone.

The Marine killed today was hit in the chest and the one wounded was hit by a bullet that tore through both thighs. The shots were fired from a road between two slums controlled by Shiite Moslem militiamen.

Associated Press photographer Don Mell said a Marine M-60 tank rumbled down the road afterward.

Clark's Move To Interior Has Opened Guessing On Successor

WM. P. CLARK

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Clark's shift to the Interior Department opens one of the most sensitive jobs in the government — head of the super-secret National Security Council — and speculation on his successor centered on Middle East envoy Robert C. McFarlane and U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick.

The two are as different as night and day.

Former Marine Lt. Col. McFarlane, 45, is a faceless public servant who shuttles easily between the council, where he is Clark's deputy, and his office in the State Department, without creating waves.

In the Middle East, he operates quietly — without the splash of Henry Kissinger, Sol Linowitz and some other American diplomats who also have tried to find a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, 56 next month, is by contrast one of the best-known officials in President Reagan's administration — an outspoken advocate of administration policies at the United Nations and on the speakers circuit.

Her attempt to draw a distinction between authoritarian and totalitarian regimes, finding the former group not so objectionable, got her into hot water with liberals. The fact that she is a Democrat, the highest-ranked member of the party to serve the Republican president, did not ease their criticism of her.

She travels in a blaze of bodyguards, on flights between New York and Washington and even when making shopping trips to crowded department stores.

A White House official said Secretary of State George P. Shultz would participate in the selection of Clark's successor and that whoever Reagan chooses would be someone with whom Shultz can work smoothly.

The official, who declined to be identified, said Clark was moving to the Interior Department to help the president and not because of any differences with Shultz.

Alleging Village Green Residents Share Blame

Three companies named as defendants in suits filed by 11 survivors and the family of a man killed in a March 2 gas explosion at Village Green Apartments contend residents of the apartment complex contributed to their injuries by remaining in the apartments in spite of reports that gas was leaking.

The three companies — Fenwal Corp. of Massachusetts, Pargas of Farmville and Blount Petroleum Co. of Greenville — in their responses filed with the Pitt County Clerk of Court, said they are not liable for damages because the tenants knew or should have known of the gas leak.

Twelve lawsuits seeking more than $7 million in damages have been filed in Pitt and Wake counties against apartment owners Reginald M. Fountain of Washington and Samuel A. McConkey of Morehead City and six companies involved with the installation and maintenance of clothes dryers and gas service at the complex. The suits charges the apartment owners and companies were negligent in the sale, installation and maintenance of the equipment.

Investigators blamed the explosion, which killed David Martin of Raleigh and injured a dozen others, on a liquid propane gas leak.

United Technologies, an Alabama firm, denied all allegations of negligence in its response. No response has been filed by Fountain or McConkey.

Fenwall's response said tenants "were aware or should have been aware for some time that there was a gas leak from the laundry room and that one of the dryers had malfunctioned," yet had continued to reside in the apartment complex "with full knowledge of the unreasonably dangerous condition created by the leaking gas."

Therefore, the response said, the tenants "assumed the risk incident to such continued tenancy" and should be barred from recovering against Fenwall.

Similar responses were filed on behalf of Blount Petroleum and Pargas.

Housewares Mirror National Interest According To Study

By JEANNELESEM
UPI Family Editor

Food preparation appliances make up the largest segment of America's small electrical appliances industry, a new market study shows.

The FIND SAP survey shows housewares manufacturing has been an area of many short-lived fads and a few major new products, such as the food processor.

The growing national interest in fitness and health is reflected in both cookware and exercise equipment, the study says.

Non-stick finishes are increasingly used in utensils, bakeware and appliances to help reduce fat consumption.

Mirco's new Masterbilt Broil & Bake Pan has both a Silverstone interior and guide markings on the rim for cutting baked goods into 24 equal portions. It is broiler-safe because water in the well below the rack protects the non-stick surface while preventing fat flareups. The $16 pan also doubles as an open roaster. Minus the rack, it can be used for gravies and sauces on the range top.

Makers of small electrical appliances also are diversifying with citrus and vegetable juicer attachments for blender or processor motor bases or even, in one case, the base from Waring's 2-quart electric ice cream maker.

Other new housewares include:

Sunbeam's Cookmaster Multi-Cooker trypan, a time and temperature controlled unit. The control can be set to operate for 10 minutes to three hours from the time it is turned on, or by-passed and turned off manually. The unit also includes a steaming rack and a high-dome tilt cover with five positions to help reduce spattering. About $62.

Corning's new brown tinted, transparent, range-top Vision cookware is made of a new Pyroceram glass.

Patsy Garzik Gives Talk

Patsy Garzik presented a program on "Dress for Success" to the Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Tuesday.

The demonstration showed how clothing color and texture, personality, job task, figure and personal color could be tied together to present a total image. A question and answer session followed.

President Georgia Potter conducted the business session and plans for the annual casino night fund raiser were completed. Chairman Ann Pfeiffer said the event will take place Oct. 22 and that a few tickets are still available.

Gail Costello and Pat Lindsay were announced as pledges for the year. Their installation ceremony will be held in November.

Stephanie Evancho was a special guest.

Paula Schollers was meeting hostess.

District Church Women To Meet

The 11th annual meeting of Greenville District United Methodist Women will be held Oct. 26 at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church in Greenville.

Registration will start at 9:30 a.m. The featured speaker will be Tibbie Roberts of Morehead City, a director on women's division of board of global ministries of the United Methodist Church.

The program will also include the candle burning ceremony, reading of the memorial roll, pledge service and the election of officers, who will be installed by Becky Hackler, conference coordinator of supportive community.

The cost of the luncheon is $3 and will be served by Jarvis United Methodist Women.

Dear Abby

Hard Of Hearing Wants Letter Printed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please find room for this in your column and a million people will bless you. I am one of many people over 60 who have a hearing loss. I am not deaf, and I hear most everything that's said, but I wish people would not speak with their heads turned in another direction from the person they are speaking to. This is so important. It just drives me up a wall when someone talks to me and keeps turning his head every which way except where I am!

EXASPERATED IN ST. AUGUSTINE

DEAR EXASPERATED: I hear you. Now let's hope they hear me and act on this valuable suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: While my 12-year-old daughter was visiting her cousin in another state, I cleaned out the gear she brought back from camp. In her backpack I found 24 large color photos of teen-aged boys, naked and in a state of arousal. I also found a box of a dozen condoms; one had been removed from its inner foil wrap. Her father and I have always talked openly with her about sex ever since she was old enough to ask questions. When she was 4, she expressed curiosity about the male anatomy, so I showed her a picture of Michelangelo's David.

We've had long talks about menstruation, dating, petting, intercourse, birth control, morals, etc., with no embarrassment on either side.

I have concluded that she was probably given or sold the pornography by a college-age girl camp counselor who was discharged mid-season with no explanation. I don't know where she got the condoms.

She's a well-adjusted, normal 12-year-old girl who appears to be no more boy-crazy than any of her girlfriends. I don't know whether I should be outraged, amused or even proud of her precocious interest in erections. I've heard of girls 12 and even younger having sex, but she is such a baby, I can't imagine her in such a situation.

I haven't the foggiest idea of what to say when she returns, but I know I must talk to her about this. Perhaps I've told her too much already, or somehow failed in preparing her for this phase of her life. What do I do now, Abby?

TROUBLED IN PARADISE

DEAR TROUBLED: When she returns, tell her what you found in her backpack, but not in an angry or accusatory way. If she is into sex at this early age, be grateful that she is taking no chances on becoming pregnant or contracting a venereal disease.

Don't punish, berate or put her down. Do assure her that you love her and will be there for her no matter what. Then stress the importance of respecting herself and her body. Also stress the high price of promiscuity, which includes a low self-esteem, a bad reputation (boys talk) and ultimately confusing sex with love. And don't blame yourself for telling your daughter "too much." What our children don't know can hurt them.

DEAR ABBY: When "Happy Atheist" took you to task for your many references to "God," you might have responded with this quotation from Christian Scientist Dr. Robert Milliken, winner of the Nobel Prize in physics:

"We have come from somewhere and are going somewhere. The Great Architect of the universe never built a stairway that leads to nowhere."

Leave oven control at 350 degrees. At once spread with Meringue; sprinkle with pecans. Continue baking in the 350-degree oven until meringue is browned — 25 minutes longer. Cool and cut into bars.

Meringue: Beat 2 large egg whites until they hold soft peaks; gradually beat in 1/2 cup granulated sugar and 1 tablespoon lemon juice until whites hold stiff glossy peaks.

POPOVERS

Baked this way, the tops won't over-brown.

2 large eggs
1 cup milk

1 cup sifted unbleached all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Place the center oven rack on the rungs just below. Turn oven control to 450 degrees. Place black iron popover pans (11 cups each 1/2-cup capacity) in the oven while it is preheating so it will become very hot. In an electric blender whirl together the eggs, milk, flour, salt and butter, scraping down once or twice, until smooth. Generously brush the hot popover cups with extra butter. Pour in the batter, filling each cup about 1/2 full. Bake in the preheated 450-degree oven for 15 minutes; continue baking at 375 degrees until high, crisp and golden-brown — 20 to 25 minutes longer. Do not underbake or popovers will collapse. Serve at once with butter. Makes 11.

Sen. Wilma Woodard Gives Seminar Keynote Address

Senator Wilma C. Woodard was keynote speaker Thursday evening at the "Women Changing The Future" seminar held at the King and Queen North.

Her topic was "Legislative Issues of Interest to Women."

"The subject matter of your workshops are timely and a reflection of the women's issues of the eighties. Pick up any newspaper or magazine today and nearly all women's issues are economic. Whether those issues surface as bills before the General Assembly or as needs and anxieties and concerns of individuals or groups, they are pocketbook issues."

"And rightly so — this focus — for by all data, from all sources, the evidence that women are falling further down the economic ladder is clearly drawn in spite of decades of advancement and opportunity for women. We flood labor markets (as we have historically done)—women work in North Carolina and always have..." she said.

"We are now the majority on college campuses and we are entering fields previously denied to us. But the truth also is — that our financial responsibilities have increased even more dramatically during these past decades. Lifestyles, marriage and family has changed," she said.

Sen. Woodard announced the Governor's Conference on "Women and The Economy" would be held in Raleigh Oct. 31, Nov. 1-2 at the Raleigh Civic Center.

Sen. Woodard represents the 14th District including Wake, Harnett and Lee Counties. She is co-chairman of the Governor's Conference on Women and the Economy and has served on the Steering Committee for the N.C. Project 2000.

For information on the conference, write to Governor's Conference on Women and The Economy, Department of Administration, 116 Jones St., Raleigh, 27611.

Workshop topics were "Women in the Workforce — Are They Equal?" by Jean Darden, "How to Create a Voice in the Political Mainstream," conducted by Janice Faulkner, "The Two Career Family," by Sally Keel and "How Women Can Help Themselves Enroute to Success" by Kathryn Lewis.

The seminar was sponsored by the Pitt Community College Women's Advisory Council, Pitt County Council on the Status of Women, Pitt County League of Women Voters and Women's Network.

Louise Downing, chairman of the Pitt Community College group, gave the welcome and introduced special guests. Helen Simpson of Robersonville, regional director of the N.C. Council on the Status of Women, introduced county council chairman including Les Riley and Rosalie Trotman and Robin Allen and Juanita Burtette of the Rocky Mount Network.

Other special guests recognized by Mrs. Downing included Rep. and Mrs. Walter Jones Jr., Rep. and Mrs. John Gillam, Janice Buck and Millie McGrath.

Cooking Is Fun

A number of cooks who have acquired pastry bags have asked me to give a recipe for ladyfingers that may be pressed out of such bags. Apparently nowadays there are more pastry bags in kitchens than old-fashioned ladyfinger pans.

The following recipe gives directions for making ladyfingers with a pastry bag and a plain round tube that is one-half inch wide. The ladyfingers that result are delicious. They may be used for trifle and other desserts.

LADYFINGERS

1/2 cup sifted unbleached all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sifted cornstarch
3 large eggs, separated
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Confectioners' sugar
Grease and flour two large cookie sheets.

On wax paper sift together the flour and cornstarch; reserve.

In a bowl of an electric mixer at high speed beat the egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in 1/4 cup of the sugar until stiff peaks form.

Without washing beater, in another bowl with mixer at high speed beat egg yolks, remaining

1/4 cup sugar and vanilla until thickened and lemon color. With mixer at low speed, gradually beat in the reserved flour mixture until blended. Gently fold in the egg whites, about 1-3rd at a time, until blended.

Spoon batter, a portion at a time, into a pastry bag fitted with a plain round tube (1/2-inch wide). Holding the bag diagonally at a 45-degree angle, press the batter onto the prepared cookie sheets into "fingers," each about 3 1/2 inches long and 1 inch wide, well apart from one another. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Let stand 5 minutes. Sprinkle again with confectioners' sugar.

Bitter Medicine

There is no easy medicine for inflation. Israel knows. There the inflation rate stands at 125 percent annually (compared with the present U.S. rate of below 10 percent).

Just as Americans learned, a remedy carries with it a bitter taste. Israel devalued its currency this week; and further, the government also cut subsidies of basic commodities, resulting in prices rising on domestic goods by 40-50 percent.

There was more bad news. The government will not follow its past policy of giving wage earners automatic cost-of-living increases to compensate for the price hikes.

By comparison, the poorest Americans felt the impact of their own economic medication less than will the average citizen of Israel. Their consumers face trying months ... more likely, years.

The Israeli people will endure. They may grumble, but they are realists and survivors. Such stringent measures would not be willingly accepted in this country. While heads might not exactly roll, the social and political impact on Washington would be devastating.

In retrospect, our own economic leadership set a relatively moderate course, and has achieved much of what it sought. Congress has proven itself an unwilling partner.

Even so, on the whole, the American people are incomparably better off than they were a year ago; and forecasts suggest their future promises even better times.

Let's Go Caterwauling

If there are any thoughts about Democratic candidates for the presidential nomination being nice to one another, they are vanishing as Sen. John Glenn and former Vice President Walter Mondale take swipes.

Mondale criticized some of Sen. Glenn's votes on economic issues, saying they would help re-elect Ronald Reagan.

Sen. Glenn, in turn, accused Mondale of "caterwauling", which, if you do not know, means to make a harsh cry or to quarrel noisily.

Glenn counseled that the candidates should not hack away at each other "and give President Reagan a free ride to the White House."

There seems to be a little feeling of No More Mr. Nice Guy arising in Democratic politicking. And why not? Some caterwauling could be good for the party.

'Industrial' Policy Has Image Problem

WASHINGTON — September was the cruellest month yet for those who want to chart America's economic future. Their cause, "industrial policy," took a thrashing from Right and Left.

Yet October, and the prospect for consensus in Congress on the need for government activism in the economy, won't necessarily bring a better reception. Outside the incestuous confines of Washington and academia, industrial policy may always have an image problem.

In a Sept. 30 speech in San Francisco, James C. Miller, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, condemned the notion that America needs a central authority to select and subsidize industries most likely to be internationally competitive. Miller warned implicitly that such a body, "insulated from politics," would encourage "despotism."

Only two days earlier, Charles L. Schultz, the former chief economic adviser to Jimmy Carter, had expressed his own doubts that a collection of government, business and labor leaders could pick "winners" more efficiently than the marketplace without protecting "losers" against foreign imports. Having challenged the very premise of industrial policy in a paper for the Brookings Institution, Schultz blamed recession and the dollar's strength — not, for example, private mismanagement — for industry's troubles.

The professor's critique came just as the AFL-CIO was preparing to release a report echoing many Democrats' calls for massive government participation in industrial development. It could only have been a blow to those who are trying to inject credibility and clarity into what appears to be a confusing and partisan concept.

Yet industrial policy enthusiasts face a more significant obstacle to public support. That is the highly-hyped emergence of modern-day Horatio Algers.

Take Bill Gates. Eight years ago, while a sophomore at Harvard, the Seattle native concocted an easily understood language, called BASIC, for programming personal computers. Today, Gates' dorm room/lab has evolved into Microsoft Corp., a supplier of software for almost half the personal computers shipped in America and a $70 million company this year.

Take Mitch Kapor. Five years ago, Kapor interrupted a career that had included transcendental meditation and psychological counseling to buy a personal computer and refresh programming skills he'd learned in high school. Last week, Kapor's 18-month-old company, Lotus Development Corp., went public, basking in profits ($2.8 million during the first six months of this year) principally from the sales of a computer program designed by the 32-year-old Long Island native.

Shultz Goes On Warpath

Clark's deputy on the National Security Council staff.

So, the mission's control officer is Clark and the sounding board for McFarlane's progress is the White House, not the State Department. Although McFarlane sends his written reports through Shultz, his most delicate messages are coded phone calls to Clark in the White House Situation Room. "They've given McFarlane his own cipher," one insider, not on Clark's staff, told us.

However, at the heart of un-

American diplomatic activity is concentrated in the hands of special U.S. emissary Robert C. McFarlane. There has been at least one report that he is working on a secret deal to have Syria crush the Palestine Liberation Organization while Israel carves out a sphere of influence in southern Lebanon.

Actually, McFarlane's mission is much less cosmic in nature, but important nevertheless. Especially since the Soviets have stepped up their military buildup in Syria.

The National Security Council official is trying to bolster the central government in Beirut by promoting unity talks among the 17 distinct and often warring Lebanese groups. That may be the only way to maintain the 19-day (as of Friday) cease-fire and get the Syrians to withdraw their troops from the country.

The cost is likely to be at least some residual Syrian influence in Lebanon, but unless the ruling Phalangists share authority with other Lebanese factions it may be impossible for the central government to remain in power.

At the same time, McFarlane is trying to lay the groundwork for the eventual withdrawal of both Israeli and Syrian troops by encouraging Israel to take the first, unilateral, step.

Some Israeli units would retreat to new lines and wait for Syria to carry out a matching pullback in the areas under its control. If all goes well, the two armies would methodically quit Lebanon in stages.

Paradoxically, however, the Reagan administration is not demanding an Israeli pullout right now. In fact, the Israelis are being encouraged to stand nose-to-nose to the Syrians in the Bekaa region until tensions are reduced.

The idea is keep the Syrian forces in check, while reconciliation efforts proceed. In fact, U.S. officials were miffed that Israel did not delay its withdrawal to the Awali river early last month to mid-October.

The administration is voicing concern over the Soviet buildup. President Reagan described it as "massive" and asked rhetorically in his national radio broadcast last Saturday: "Can the United States, or the free world, stand by and see the Middle East incorporated into the Soviet bloc?"

The Soviets have not slowed the pace of their arms shipments to Syria, despite U.S. diplomatic appeals. The new missiles still may not give Syria enough muscle to fight a successful war with Israel without Arab allies.

Public Forum

To the editor:

As a nurse employed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, I was both appalled and dismayed with the recent events surrounding the mysterious dismissal of Mrs. Betty Trought — vice president of nursing.

For a public-supported institution, I find myself puzzled by the hospital's refusal to inform the tax-paying citizens of this county of the reasons concerning Mrs. Trought's "probation."

When one views the situation without personal bias, it sadly becomes clear that this decision was made in haste and without concern for nursing as a profession and the national trends (advocated by the American Nurses Association).

I personally neither advocate nor condemn Mrs. Trought's administrative nursing policies or ideologies, but I fear her dismissal will mean that nursing at PCMH will be controlled by non-nursing persons who have no grasp of the nursing profession. A sad day in nursing this will be, should it ever occur.

Strength For Today

On the threshing floors of the ancient world, small amounts of grain were sometimes beaten with a heavy instrument known as a "tribulum" which separated the grain from the chaff. The English word "tribulation" is derived from this instrument.

Tribulation, therefore, is a very significant word designed to describe trouble, frustration, pain and sorrow. Tribulation is human discomfort endured in a spirit of courage supported by religious faith. The result is that the wheat and chaff in our lives are separated. We come through the experience knowing that we were benefited by what we went through, not permanently injured by it.

The hard experience was a tribulum — beat in us, to be sure, but in the painful process separating the wheat from the chaff.

"In the world," said Jesus, "ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer, for I have overcome the world."

U.S. Taking Short-View Approach

Or take Walter Martin, Paul Moriates and Andy Udleson. Two years ago, the young trio (none is over 26) pooled savings and founded Flying Foods to supply gourmet restaurants with fresh — and imported — fish and vegetables. According to Venture magazine, Flying Foods is now a $3-million company, with offices in five cities.

These successful entrepreneurs, and others like Apple Computer's Steve Jobs and Fred Smith of Federal Express, have come to rival professional athletes and actors in star quality. More than any disciple of Adam Smith, they've helped to convince many Americans that free enterprise survives rather well in the shadow of adversity. Unfortunately for advocates of industrial policy, such deification has only helped to sap their momentum.

Industrial policy suffers for a number of reasons, not the least of which is its proponents' continuing proclivity for vague and often impractical explanations. Everyone involved still seems to have his or her own idea about what an industrial policy should be. Moreover, despite calls for a "national development bank" and "infrastructure refurbishment," staff members now drafting House and Senate industrial policy statements aren't likely to give their proposals any teeth in the present fiscal climate.

Use At Thy Peril

tune known as the coup de bonheur, the brilliant exploit called the coup d'eclat and the surprise attack called a coup de main. When an effort to overthrow a government succeeds, it is a coup d'etat; when it fails it is a coup manque.

But why use any of these? An absurd notion persists — as it persisted in the heads of the two reporters who wrote the sky-diving piece — that a foreign phrase adds a certain something to our prose: sophistication, perhaps, or a touch of elegance. For certain highbrow audiences this may be true. Idioms seldom translate exactly; the French "mot juste" carries a nuance not quite conveyed by the English "exact word."

For ordinary, everyday comprehension, foreign phrases usually produce not a touch of elegance but a touch of annoyance instead. Ezra Pound amused himself by salting his poems with an occasional Chinese ideogram; God and Pound alone knew what they meant. Lawyers of the old school still garnish their briefs with Latin maxims; not one fighter out of the Chout — providing it stands up over the long haul — is described by one top policymaker as "a signal to the U.S. and Israel that the Syrians will guarantee Israel's northern border if they get out of Lebanon."

Reagan's sharp criticism of Syria in his weekly Saturday radio address Oct. 8 was written in the White House after a State Department draft was rejected. It does not mean that the president fully shares the secretary of state's position.

Verb of the week: to strategize. It doesn't appear in the new Webster's Ninth Collegiate, but it does appear in the Second Barnhart Dictionary of New English, with a first usage traced to 1977. Newsweek magazine put the verb to work last month in a story about members of Congress who returned to their homes during the August recess: "There was also the usual pulse-taking among constituents and strategizing over the issues yet to be confronted on Capitol Hill." I don't believe my own fingers could be compelled to type "to strategize," but at least the verb is less offensive than "to prioritize."

Newsweek irked its sensitive readers again a week later in an item about two sexy women who provide over a "Dial-a-Porn" telephone number in New York: "Priscilla and Jennifer are prerecorded, but productive nonetheless." Is anything conveyed by "prerecorded" that isn't conveyed by "recorded"? As a prefix, "pre" has its useful place, but this was not a place for the "pre."

Warning Polish Churchmen

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party Central Committee today opened a two-day ideological meeting that is expected to produce a stern warning to Roman Catholic priests to stay out of Polish politics.

The carefully orchestrated meeting is the first since Pope John Paul II returned to his homeland in June on a pilgrimage widely viewed as a gesture of support for government opponents, including the outlawed Solidarity labor union founded by Nobel Peace Prize winner Lech Walesa.

It also is the first committee meeting since the July 22 lifting of martial law imposed Dec. 13, 1981. Martial law widened the gap between the party and the public, and the committee is expected to discuss possible ways of reversing that trend.

Western diplomats predict the committee will warn the priests to not take too active a role in politics. In August, the head of the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee's department of internal information, Leonid Zamyatin, warned that militant priests were stepping up actions seen by the government as hostile.

Escalating its campaign against activist priests in this staunchly Catholic nation, authorities are investigating Walesa's confessor in Gdansk, the Rev. Henryk Jankowski, and another priest, the Rev. Jerzy Popielugzko, for alleged abuses of religious freedom, the two clerics said Thursday.

Popielugzko, a priest at St. Stanislaw Kostka Church in Warsaw, said the allegations stem from from a Sept. 25 Mass considered supportive of Solidarity. The basis for Jankowski's charge was not clear.

Meanwhile, police in the Krakow suburb of Nowa Huta used tear gas and water cannons Thursday to disperse several hundred pro-Solidarity demonstrators after a Mass marking the first anniversary of the death of Bogdan Wlosik, allegedly killed by police in riots following the banning of Solidarity.

One source of concern to the party is a drop in membership from 3.1 million in December 1981 to 2.3 million in July, according to statistics from the official Polish news agency PAP.

Although party officials publicly attribute the decrease to a tightening of ranks, others admit the party is having trouble generating support, particularly among the workers.

"There are still many people who doubt, who are disappointed, who don't trust. We have to reach those people," the party secretary in charge of ideology, Wladyslaw Loranc, said Thursday in the government newspaper The Republic.

"We can't make light of the anti-socialist forces still conspiring in the underground," Loranc warned, referring to underground Solidarity supporters.

Loranc said the meeting will define the role of each party member, discuss the activities of the opposition and guide the leadership in avoiding repetition of the 1980-83 upheaval.

Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski is firmly in control of the party, and will seek to pursue the "line of struggle and accord" which emerged from the last committee meeting May 31, sources said.

Jaruzelski appears to enjoy Soviet support, but the Kremlin and its hardline Polish supporters have been trying to nudge him into more orthodox communist policies.

"Forces of internal counterrevolution and international reactionaries have not given up their plan to destroy the foundations of socialism in Poland and to snatch it from the socialist community," Soviet Marshal Viktor Kulikov, commander of the Warsaw Pact military alliance, said Tuesday.

The meeting will be carefully stage-managed, according to party sources, with several speeches urging a harder line and many others endorsing the economic reforms Jaruzelski has pursued with little success for two years.

Party hardliners are expected to attack Jaruzelski's policy of offering higher wages to more productive workers, a practice some say violates communist "egalitarianism."

"Egalitarianism is a popular issue, an explosive issue, which is being exploited by various people dissatisfied with the current leadership, ranging from orthodox communists to Solidarity activists," said one

Jaruzelski backer.

Those around Jaruzelski say their wage policy is a part of an economic plan designed to move Poland away from the Soviet model of central planning, and improve supplies of consumer and industrial goods. The plan, they say, has been hampered by Poland's economic stagnation.

Gun-Ownership Law Is Retained

LYNDON, Vt. (AP) — Every resident of this rural community has "the responsibility and duty" to own a gun and know how to use it, according to a local ordinance that was upheld by voters in a special election.

The ordinance, which encourages but does not require gun ownership, was affirmed Thursday by a 201-90 vote in this town of 5,000 people. The dispute divided sportsmen and gun-control advocates.

"The first thing that communists do is to make guns unlawful under penalty of death," Alfred Smith, a retired Lyndon resident said before the vote. "If anyone doesn't see the need for this ordinance then their sight isn't very good."

Opponents of the controversial ordinance, which was adopted in July and begins as an affirmation of the constitutional right to bear arms, objected to wording of one section of the legislation.

"It is further declared that every citizen, especially every head of household, has the responsibility and duty to self, family and country to possess firearms and acquire the necessary knowledge for the safe and judicious use of said firearms; and they are encouraged, but not required, to do so."

The ordinance was adopted in July by the town's three selectmen at the suggestion of a sportsmen's club. No one attended the meeting to discuss the ordinance and it was approved unanimously.

"The anti-gun movement in this country has been working to take the guns away from sportsmen, and we're sick of it," Selectman James Emery said in explaining the board's position.

When several residents found out about the ordinance they started a petition drive for a special election. Dr. John Manges, who led the drive against the ordinance, said selectmen "don't have the right to recommend a choice of physician or to express their opinion in an ordinance."

Some of the opponents said they opposed anyone having guns, while others said they merely objected to the suggestion that they have one.

Hearing Set On Opening Of King File

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal judge who in 1977 ordered FBI files on Martin Luther King Jr. sealed for 50 years will be asked next week to let U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., see them.

U.S. District Judge John L. Smith Jr. scheduled a hearing for Monday on Helms' lawsuit requesting access to the bugging and wiretap transcripts of the slain civil rights leader's conversations.

Helms, who is leading opposition to a bill that would make King's birthday a national holiday, has accused King of being a communist sympathizer and says the FBI materials might prove him right.

Debate on the Senate bill, which has passed the House and is favored by President Reagan, is scheduled for next Wednesday. Helms asked Thursday that the hearing on his suit be held immediately, but Smith said the opposition needed time to prepare.

Smith in 1977 ordered the FBI transcripts sealed in the National Archives. Last week, he denied a request by a conservative advocacy group to see the material.

The FBI bugged and tapped King in the 1960s under authorization from Attorney General Robert Kennedy because, it has since said, it believed some of King's associates had connections with the Communist Party.

An examination of some 25,000 raw FBI investigative files released Thursday by the Conservative Caucus reveals previously made accusations that King associated with people with Communist Party affiliations, but no evidence that King himself was a party member.

There was also one report sent to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, in which Coretta Scott King was quoted as saying 14 years ago that she didn't want a national holiday in her husband's name because persons have "so much stuff on Martin and will expose it."

Among the documents are dozens of references to Stanley Levison, whom the FBI says is a well-known communist who was also an adviser to King.

A letter to the White House from an unidentified FBI official says King's speeches opposing the Vietnam War "duplicates the communist line on this issue."

This is not surprising because Levison is a concealed communist and King knows it," the letter said.

Helms came under sharp attack last week when, on the Senate floor, he accused of King of espousing "action-oriented Marxism."

Thursday, about 200 critics demonstrated in Raleigh, N.C., outside the federal post office building where Helms has an office.

"This is a movement for a holiday for one of the greatest Americans that ever lived, but it is also a movement to get rid of Jesse Helms," said the Rev. Leon White, director of the North Carolina-Virginia office of the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice.

Students Hurt In Bus Mishap

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Reidsville High School bus overturned as it made a turn, sending 32 students to a hospital for treatment of minor injuries, authorities said.

David McCombs, administrator of Annie Penn Memorial Hospital, said the injuries included cuts, bruises and broken bones.

The bus overturned Thursday around 2:45 p.m., police said. No other vehicles were involved.

James Hardy, superintendent for the Reidsville city schools, said the accident was apparently "driver error." He said the bus rolled onto its roof and hit a tree, stopping its plunge down an embankment.

Opinion polls show that news paper advertising is still considered more believable than that of any other medium.

Transcripts Probe Said Being Stalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are stalling an FBI probe of altered House transcripts until leaders of both parties decide whether agents can talk to key committee staffers. Democratic sources report.

The investigators are trying to learn who altered official hearing transcripts to change the remarks of House Republicans, who said they were made to look foolish.

The chief attorneys of the two House committees figuring most prominently in the investigation have ordered Democratic staff members not to talk to FBI agents, several House Democratic sources said Thursday.

Republican staff members were not affected by the directive, but GOP staffers said the FBI has stopped contacting them until the impasse is resolved.

The Democratic sources, who spoke on condition they not be named, said there would be no further interviews with majority staffers until a legal advisory board meets to determine how far the FBI will be allowed to go.

The board, composed of representatives from the Democratic and Republican leaderships, may meet next week, the sources said.

"Things have come to a halt until they get a determination on how to proceed," said David Jeffery, Republican staff director of the House Science and Technology Committee, one of the two committees involved. The other is the Government Operations Committee.

The order to keep silent was given because the FBI, contrary to House policy, tried to interview majority staff members last week without first contacting the committee chairmen or the office of Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., the sources said.

One source said House lawyers believe Congress' status as a separate but equal branch of government would be damaged if staffers were interviewed without approval from superiors.

"They were given guidance that they shall not discuss congressional activities," said the source, who is close to the situation. "It's not a matter that we have anything to hide from the FBI. It's a question of congressional prerogatives."

Jeffery said he spoke to the FBI last week.

"Our instructions from Republican House members were to cooperate as fully as possible with the investigation," he said. "I did talk with two FBI agents last week and explained if they wanted information or materials, a subpoena may be necessary."

A Justice Department spokesman, John Russell, said he had no immediate comment.

The department, acting on the request of seven House Republicans whose remarks were doctored, announced last month it would conduct a criminal investigation.

The transcripts were compiled from partisan, contentious hearings conducted jointly by five subcommittees on July 21 and July 22, 1982 on operation of the Environmental Protection Agency.

The House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, the ethics committee, is conducting its own investigation of the changes but has yet to issue its findings. One Government Operations subcommittee staffer already has admitted involvement in the changes and was allowed to resign in September.

After FBI agents called committee staffers last week, the contacts were reported to Robert Ketcham, general counsel of Science and Technology, and William Jones, his counterpart at Government Operations. They consulted with House lawyers and advised the staffers to keep quiet.

House counsel Stanley Brand said House officials have "a long-standing arrangement" with the Justice Department that "our internal investigations are just that — internal — until they are completed. We can't have them interfering in our investigations."

Crackdown On Computer Fraud Netted Ten Youths

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO
Associated Press Writer

A nationwide FBI crackdown on computer buffs who tapped into a Defense Department system and an electronic mail network targeted at least 10 youths, and one of the "hackers" said he feared "they are going to make an example of us."

Agents on Thursday raided the homes of four teen-agers in Irvine, Calif., where officials seized thousands of dollars worth of computer equipment. Six others were targeted in Detroit as part of an alleged defense computer sabotage ring. Raids were also reported in Rochester, N.Y., and Oklahoma City by The New York Times.

In Detroit, six teen-agers were implicated in a national ring that federal investigators believe has done at least $500,000 damage while sabotaging computer networks, according to the Detroit Free Press.

The leader of the group, who calls himself "The Wizard of ARPAnet," claims he has penetrated a system that carries sensitive information on phone lines for military use, the Free Press said.

The newspaper quoted a source close to the FBI as saying the probe was focusing on "deliberate, calculated sabotage, with the emphasis on anything defense-oriented."

The Detroit group, known as the "Inner Circle," included youths ranging in age from 14 to 17, the newspaper said. Their names were not released by authorities and they have been not been charged, but the mother of one said federal agents and security officials from Michigan Bell showed up at the family home Thursday morning and seized computer equipment.

The seizure was confirmed by FBI Special Agent John Anthony, who refused to comment further.

"It was a real shock," said Sharon Stadjas, whose 14-year-old son, Eric, has bragged about breaking into a Defense Department computer. "They claimed he had over 30 pages of defense computer listings and passwords to get into them."

Stadjas admitted he had the listings but said, "They don't indicate that I was on those systems."

"He bragged he knew how to do it, but he said he would never harm anything if he got in," Mrs. Stadjas said. "He would just look and leave. It was just the thrill of getting in."

The California raids were part of "a continuing wire fraud investigation" that began after General Telephone and Electronics of Vienna, Va., "became aware of unauthorized access to its system during routine monitoring," said FBI spokesman James E. Mull.

"Investigation is still in its initial phases. It will be several months before the case reaches a prosecutable phase, and search warrants have been issued nationwide," said Mull, who is based at the FBI's field office in Alexandria, Va. He would not elaborate.

"The Irvine kids tapped in GTE Telenet Communications Corp.'s Telemail electronic mail system," Mull said.

At a Thursday news conference, the four Irvine youths said a San Diego computer hobbyist was responsible for the group's unwitting use of the Telemail system.

The youths, all students at Woodbridge High School, said they had no idea that the San Diego youth, whom they know only as "the Cracker," had given them passwords for a pay system.

"I definitely think that the Cracker wanted to get us in trouble," said Gary Knutson, 15.

FBI agents on Wednesday seized thousands of dollars worth of computer equipment from the homes of Knutson and his brother Gregg, 14, Wayne Correia, 17, and David Hill, 17.

No arrests have been made. FBI Special Agent Fred Reagan said.

Hill said FBI agents told him he and his friends were responsible for thousands of dollars in losses by an East Coast company, but Correia said their use of the system would cost only about $30.

"We weren't doing anything to invade anyone's privacy or to destroy or to play tricks with anyone else's information," Correia said. "But I'm afraid that they are going to try to make an example of us to try to stop everyone from accessing computer networks," he added.

GTE Telenet confirmed that the youths had been improperly using its electronic mail system, which links more than 1,200 commercial computers. Telenet said in a statement that it would "pursue all available legal recourse, including criminal prosecution."

The latest crackdown follows discovery in July that a group of youths in Milwaukee had used the Telenet system to enter a computer at the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in Manhattan and some Defense Department computers. That investigation is continuing, but none of those youths, who called themselves the "414s" after their city's area code, have been charged with any crime.

Find Three Missing Children In Aftermath Of Television Movie

ESCONDIDO, Calif. (AP) — A crying 6-year-old girl who said she wanted to "go home to daddy" was carried from her classroom by detectives, the third missing youngster located because of a television movie on child abduction.

Two of the three missing children whose photographs were shown on TV this week — including 6-year-old Jennifer Rae Swisher, who remained in the custody of California juvenile authorities Thursday — were living with fathers who had lost custody disputes.

Elsewhere, 3-year-old Justin Clark was reunited with his mother in Kentucky after being found with his father in Georgia, and 15-year-old Lynn Stockie returned to her grandparents in Arkansas, ending a two-year disappearance.

Jennifer had been missing since 1980 when a court granted her mother custody in a divorce case but authorities said she would not be immediately returned to her mother's home in Buffalo, N.Y., because of questions about the death of her 3-year-old half-brother.

She was living with her father in Escondido and was recognized by an elementary school official as one of 55 children whose pictures were shown at the end of the NBC movie "Adam" on Monday.

The official called police, who verified her identity and took her into custody Wednesday.

Jennifer cried as she was carried from her classroom because "she wanted to stay at school and go home to her daddy. She didn't even remember her real mother," Escondido Det. Jeff Jones said.

She was on the verge of being returned to her father, Bill Swisher, 33, on Thursday when the district attorney's office asked Superior Court to delay her release.

Assistant District Attorney Richard Huffman said the court "talked to the Social Services Department and everyone agreed to get this sorted out at the earliest in the morning."

Jones said Swisher told him he had taken his daughter because he feared he would never get custody, and he said he had never received court papers granting custody to his ex-wife. The girl's mother, Linda Swisher, reported her missing three years ago.

Buffalo Police Detective Chester Zak said that John Devine, father of Jennifer's half-brother, is awaiting trial on charges of first-degree manslaughter. Zak said police believe the boy was beaten while Mrs. Swisher was away from home.

Huffman called child-stealing cases "a study in frustration."

"There is no clear right and wrong in these cases. There are often conflicting court orders, conflicting statements as to what's true and what's not, and you have two human beings who have some legitimate rights under the law to the child."

In Bardstown, Ky., Phyllis Clark said after being reunited with her son Justin on Wednesday, "He didn't recognize me, but he's calling me 'Mommy' now. That's a step in the right direction."

The boy was found living with his father, Owen Douglas Clark, in Cleveland, Ga., after a Georgia resident recognized his picture, on television. Clark was charged with custodial interference, a misdemeanor, Nelson County Attorney Challen McCoy said.

Miss Stockie was allegedly abducted by two male friends of her mother two years ago. The teen-ager saw her own photograph in a TV Guide article about the movie and telephoned her grandparents. She was returned to their Arkansas home Tuesday with the help of Child Find Inc., a 2-year-old organization devoted to locating missing children.

Child Find spokeswoman Cornelia Steckel Steiner in New Paltz, N.Y., said the group has received more than 5,000 calls since the movie.

About 150,000 children are reported missing nationwide annually and roughly one-third of those cases are never solved, Child Find said.

"Adam" told of 6-year-old Adam Walsh, who disappeared in July 1981 from a store in Hollywood, Fla. His severed head was found two weeks later but the rest of his body was never found. The movie, dramatized the lives of his parents, John and Rene Walsh, and their efforts to persuade Congress to change laws to make it easier for parents to search for missing children.

$2,000 Damage In Car Chase

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte police reported property damage of nearly $2,000 caused by a car pursued by police early Friday.

The chase started around 12:15 a.m. after Officer G. L. McFadden tried to stop a car for an apparent traffic violation, police said.

When McFadden asked police dispatchers to check the car's license tag number, he found that the car, a 1983 Oldsmobile, had been reported stolen Wednesday from a rental agency.

In the ensuing chase, the driver apparently lost control of the car and drove into a yard, knocking down a section of a wood fence, police said.

The driver then backed into a police car, struck another car and a newspaper delivery box before coming to a halt.

Frank Robinson Jr., 21, of Charlotte was charged with auto theft, hit-and-run driving, driving left of center and reckless driving. Robinson also was charged with housebreaking and larceny after officers found a 12-gauge shotgun that had been reported stolen in a Tuesday house break-in.

Mr. Robinson was being held Thursday under $12,400 bond in the Mecklenburg County Jail.

Prison For 13 Persons In Drug Case

DOBSON, N.C. (AP) — Thirteen defendants have received prison sentences after admitting involvement with what authorities called one of the nation's biggest methaqualone manufacturing operations.

Twelve of the defendants pleaded guilty in May to conspiracy to manufacture and traffic in methaqualone. The 13th defendant pleaded guilty Wednesday to possession of methaqualone and marijuana with intent to sell.

They were among 21 people indicted in a Wilkes County-centered drug operation uncovered last year. Five defendants were sentenced earlier. Three remain fugitives.

Five drug laboratories had produced since 1981 $13 million of methaqualone tablets, which are sedatives produced commercially as Quaaludes. Four of the hidden laboratories were in Wilkes County and the other was in Alleghany County, said J.D. Miller, a sheriff's department narcotics agent.

Rebecca Anne Luffman of Yadkin County who pleaded guilty to the methaqualone and marijuana charge, was sentenced Tuesday to five years in prison and five years on probation. She also was fined $1,000.

Also sentenced were Donnie Ray Anderson of Roaring River, 14 years and $25,000; David Scott Beillen of Sherman Oaks, Calif., six years and $25,000; Gary Carter of Ronda, six years and $50,000.

Also sentenced were Randall Crouse of Sparta, 10 years and $25,000; Clyde Ray Hawkins of Traphill, six years and $5,000; Boyd Garris of Roaring River, seven years and $25,000; Ralph Burt Holbrook of Traphill, 19 years; and Julius Howell Minton of Roaring River, six years and $25,000.

Also, Donald Wayne Money of Elkin, six years, and $50,000; Dwayne Richardson of Traphill, four years; Jesse McCoy Whitley of Sparta, four years; Steven Anthony Martini of Homewood, Calif., 10 years and $25,000.

Two Injured In Accidents

Two people were reported injured and an estimated $6,250 damage reported in a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 5:23 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Arlington Boulevard, involving cars driven by Dianne Venters Weathington of Route 2, Winterville, and Debrah Parker Corey of 402A Darden Drive.

In Lebanon...

ably in a show of force. Marine company at the northern end of the airport perimeter road and the Marines helicopter base were under fire from rocket-propelled grenades, small arms fire and the jets fired back. Jordan the latest round of violence in Lebanon began Aug. 14, when the Marines were hit by a grenade Thursday night at the security checkpoint near the U.S. Embassy in Beirut.

Attacks came a day after Druse fighters overtook Lebanese soldiers overlooking the base and after Shiite Moslems pulled out of the committee overseeing the latest truce.

Jordan said the Marine died today was hit by sniper fire in the chest and possibly the head. But Jordan said it could not be determined immediately whether the head injury was a gunshot wound or occurred when his jeep overturned as it came under small arms fire.

The Marine, whose name was withheld until his family could be notified, died while being transported to the airport hospital. A helicopter then flew his body to the amphibious assault ship Two Jima off the Beirut coast, Jordan said.

Jordan said the jeep was hit at 10:42 a.m. local time (4:42 a.m. EDT) by sniper fire from the northeastern corner of the road between the Shiite Moslem militia strongholds of Hay el-Sellum and Bourj el-Barajneh on Beirut's southern outskirts.

Jordan said a Marine staff sergeant was riding in the jeep. The sergeant was hurled out of the vehicle but was uninjured. Jordan added

The other Marine was wounded 37 minutes earlier, and in the same general area of the airport, as his jeep came under sniper fire, Jordan said. The Marine, who also was not identified immediately, was evacuated by helicopter to the Two Jima and was in "guarded" condition.

Mell said the Marine was hit by a bullet that tore through one of his thighs and lodged in the other.

The shooting occurred shortly after Druse and Shiite Moslem leaders suspended their membership in a committee overseeing the 18-day-old cease-fire in Lebanon's civil war. Spokesmen for the two anti-government factions said their forces would adhere to the truce.

The boycott of the Lebanese truce committee was first announced by Amal, the dominant paramilitary organization among Lebanon's 1 million Shiite Moslems. Leftist Druse leader Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party followed suit in an expression of solidarity.

Sources close to Amal said militia leader Nabih Berri was protesting disciplinary measures the army command has taken against several Shiite army soldiers for unauthorized absence from combat areas.

On Thursday, representatives of President Amin Gemayel and major warring factions agreed on an agenda for a "national reconciliation conference" that is scheduled to convene Oct. 20.

The conference was called for in the Sept. 26 cease-fire agreement that ended the Christian-Druse fighting in the central mountains, but it has been delayed because of squabbling over where it will be held.

In the northern port of Tripoli, police reported calm today after three days of street battles between Communist and fundamentalist Moslem militiamen that left 87 people killed and more than 200 wounded.

Israel invaded Lebanon 16 months ago in an attempt to smash the PLO. It pulled back from the central mountains Sept. 4 to the Awali River in the south in hopes of cutting casualties and has agreed to pull out of Lebanon entirely if Syria gets out.

Head Lice Cases Up Among Children

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Lice are infesting young heads across North Carolina, but there's no need for alarm because the insects are not a health hazard, say state health officials.

"It's certainly not rare to hear of problems with head lice in the various counties from the mountains to the sea," said Dr. J.N. MacCormack, head of the communicable disease control branch of the N.C. Division of Health Services.

"It's been an increased problem, in terms of people talking about it, for a couple of years now," he said.

In Mecklenburg County, a health official said 96 cases of head lice were found in pre-school and school-age children.

The incidence of head lice is not reported to health departments across the state, so complete figures are unavailable.

Mike Loving of the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control said lice aren't particular whose head they infest.

"Anyone, rich or poor, clean or dirty, can get lice," he said.

Lice are transmitted from person to person and indirectly by shared hats, coats or combs. Loving said the high incidence among children is because of close physical contact common at those ages.

Parents should check especially around the ears and the back of the child's head, Loving said. Intense itching often is the first sign of infestation. The eggs are small, white specks that look like dandruff but are attached to individual hairs.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

'OFF WITH HIS HEAD!'

AMONG THE ANCIENT RULERS WE FIND SOME TYRANTS WHO TOOK THE LAW INTO THEIR OWN HANDS. WHEN DISPLEASED WITH ONE OF THEIR SUBJECTS IT WAS NOT UNUSUAL FOR THEM TO BELLOW, "OFF WITH HIS HEAD!" NO ONE QUESTIONED THEIR AUTHORITY OR COULD DEMAND A COURT TRIAL. IT WAS JUST AN OPEN AND SHUT CASE! ON THE OTHER HAND THE ISRAELITES WERE UNDER MOSAIC LAW WHICH PRESCRIBED CERTAIN PROCEDURES FOR ALL PEOPLE WHO MIGHT BE ACCUSED OF A CRIME. IT FELL TO THE ELDERS, MEN OF MATURE AGE, TO JUDGE THE OFFENDER, CONSIDERING ALL THE EVIDENCE AGAINST HIM AND FINALLY DECIDE HIS INNOCENCE OR GUILT. THE MORALITY OF THE MOSAIC LAW, STRICT AS IT WAS, GAVE EACH ACCUSED THE PERSONAL DIGNITY OF PRESENTING THE FACTS OF HIS CASE. THE PETTY RULERS DESTROYED HUMAN RIGHTS AND DIGNITY, JUDGING ALL CASES ON THE BASIS OF THEIR OWN NARROW VIEWPOINT--USUALLY IN AN AROUSED STATE OF ANGER. THE LAWS WHICH THE ISRAELITES ADHERED TO ALTHOUGH THEY WERE SEVERE, WERE MORALLY EXACT.

The East Carolina Pirates return to the spot where it all began Saturday with hopes of keeping it going.

Last year, the Pirates closed out the season at Philadelphia where they beat the Temple Owls, 23-10, behind an outstanding performance by quarterback Kevin Ingram. Ingram, who had transferred from Villanova to East Carolina when that school's football program folded, was making a return showing in his hometown.

It was that game, many believe, that set the Pirates on course for success.

Now, Saturday night at Franklin Field at 7:30 p.m., the Pirates and Owls clash again, and Ed Emory is certain that Temple will have revenge on its mind.

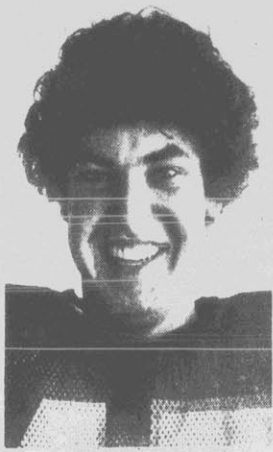

While the Pirates are favored in most circles in this meeting, Emory doesn't feel that things will come easy.

And if the Pirates do not play with more intensity this week than they did against Southwestern Louisiana last Saturday afternoon, it could be a long night, the coach warns.

"Temple will throw everything in the world at you: the shotgun, the option, the wishbone, the I, split backs — everything including the kitchen sink."

Emory said that he has been impressed with Owl quarterback Tim Riordan, a 6-1, 182-pound senior. "He's an outstanding football player and the scouts are high on him." The Pirate coach is also impressed with the Temple line, and notes that they have a big fullback in Roderick Moore (6-1, 220, Jr.) and an outstanding tailback in Paul Palmer, a 5-11, 175-pound freshman.

Palmer is the only rusher with more than 100 yards, carrying 37 times for 202 yards. The Owls as a team have rushed for 499 yards in five games, while allowing 828.

Riordan has hit on 51 of 94 passes for 610 yards and three touchdowns. He's had two picked off. His backup, Lee Saltz, has connected on 15 of 31 for 201 yards and two touchdowns. He's also had two picked off.

They've thrown to a host of receivers. Palmer has 11 catches for 77 yards, while Keith Armstrong has nine catches for 96 yards, Russell Carter eight for 106 yards, and Willie Marshall, seven for 165. Overall, the Owls have passed for 843 yards while allowing 1,035.

The Owls, too, have an outstanding defensive secondary, according to Emory. "It's the best we will have seen thus far in the season."

Leading the way is Kevin Ross with three of the five Temple interceptions.

"Their kicking game is a good one too, and we'll have to play very, very inspired football to beat them," Emory said.

Punter Kip Shenefelt has a 46.1 average.

"Temple is a big, big game for us if we want to do something down the line," he added. "We're going to have to give a great defensive effort and also move the ball on offense. We've got to play much better than we did last Saturday."

Temple has one advantage in the game that might not have been counted on last year. Former ECU aide Spencer Prescott is now part of the Owl staff and Emory has noted that the Temple staff will know ECU's offense and defense because of this.

Emory is also unhappy over the change of game time and site. The contest was originally scheduled into Veterans Stadium at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, but had to be switched because of the World Series. Philadelphia has first claim to the stadium and will be hosting Game Four of the series on Saturday afternoon.

The Owls then moved the game to Franklin Field, an older stadium in Philadelphia, but had to take a night starting time since the University of Pennsylvania had the stadium for the afternoon.

"We like to work out on Friday evening and again on Saturday morning when we have a Saturday night game," Emory said, "and right now we're having a problem in finding a place to work out."

Emory acknowledged that the Owls did a great deal for the Pirate program last year when they bowed to the Bucs.

Over the past eight games, the Pirates have now won seven, losing only 47-46 to then-nationally ranked Florida State.

The Owls come into the game with only a 1-4 record, but they've lost to some fine teams along the way. After opening up with a 19-6 win over Syracuse, the Owls were dumped by Pittsburgh, 35-0. But they bounced back to lose only 23-18 to Penn State, and then nearly upset Boston College, losing late 18-15 to the Eagles. Cincinnati downed them last week, 31-16.

East Carolina brings in just the opposite record, 4-1, having lost to FSU in the opener, and then beaten N.C. State, 22-16, Murray State, 50-25, Missouri, 13-6 and Southwestern Louisiana, 21-18.

East Carolina's next outing will be in Gainesville, Fla., next Saturday against the nationally ranked Gators of the University of Florida.

Tom Baines made a comeback last week, turning in a fine 11-1 slate in a week that — for most of us — didn't turn out to be too difficult.

But Baines' record enabled him to catch up with Jimmy DuPree, 8-4, for fifth place.

Meanwhile, Jackie Spivey continues to lead the way, with this writer and the guests tied one game back and Joe Jenkins another game back.

A few weeks ago, Joe was tied for the top. Could he be headed toward his usual position — at the rear? We'll see soon enough.

Spivey continues at the top with a 45-25 record, while we and the guests are 44-26. Jenkins is in at 43-27, while Baines and DuPree are tied at 41-29.

Last week's guest, Charles Vincent of the Recreation Department, turned in a 9-3 record and moved past ECU Marketing Director Dave Hart, as the best guest of the year.

This week, our guest is TV personality Slim Short of WNCT-TV's Carolina Today. Slim snorted, "I don't know anything about football," when we asked him to join us, but we reassured him that — from our records — one would think we didn't know much either, so he was glad to join in.

Good luck Slim.

Before we get to the panel, a quick look at the high school ranks. Our record last week was 6-1, bringing us to 37-12 on the year.

North Pitt goes out of the conference to face Plymouth, another team that has struggled this year. The home field may turn out to be the big advantage, and that's the way we're calling it. Plymouth by 13-12.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Greene Central looking to get back into the win column after losing last week to SouthWest Edgecombe. The Rams have won only once and should be the underdog here. We'll go with the Chargers to flex their muscles to a 21-6 tune.

C.B. Aycock visits Farmville Central where the Jaguars are seeking to go over .500 for the first time this year. Aycock has been coming on recently, but we still feel like this will be the time for the Jags. We see a 21-14 win.

Finally, West Carteret visits Conley. The Vikings were blown away by White Oak last week, while West Carteret lost to Havelock. Neither team has a great record, and we're going to have to pick the Mariners to win this one, 8-7.

In other area games, it'll be Belhaven over Chocowinity, Jamesville over Aurora, Tarboro over Roanoke, Washington over Bertie and Williamston over Roanoke Rapids.

Now for the panel. First off, the Rampants of Rose High School are struggling to get back into the win column, while the Kinston Vikings are struggling just to get a win. Rose has lost three in a row and Kinston hasn't won in six outings. So it's the battle for the basement. Who'll come out on top? The panel goes with Rose by a 6-0 vote.

East Carolina goes up to Philadelphia to face Temple University. It was against Temple that the Pirates got their boost to vault into this season, and hopefully, the Pirates won't give them the thanks their due — a win by the Owls. The panel sticks with the Pirates, again by a 6-0 margin.

Our other consensus picks: Clemson over Duke; Maryland over Wake Forest; Mississippi over Texas Christian; Auburn over Georgia Tech; North Carolina over N.C. State; Alabama over Tennessee; Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, a toss-up; Kansas over Kansas State; LSU over Kentucky; and Texas A&M over Baylor.

Kinston Wins With Fumbles; Jaguars Topple C.B. Aycock

KINSTON — Kinston High School capitalized on a pair of Rose fumbles and connected on a 99-yard pass play to take an 18-12 victory Thursday in junior varsity football action.

Kinston scooped up a Rose fumble in the first period and ran the ball in for a 6-0 edge, then recovered another at midfield and drove the distance to take a 12-0 lead. A 99-yard TD pass in the fourth quarter gave the Baby Vikings their margin of victory.

Ervin Best scored both Rose touchdowns on a pair of one-yard runs in the fourth period.

Tyrone Jones and Brent Langley played well on offense for the Rampant Cubs, while L.C. Atkins, Waylon Moore, Brian Walsh, Todd Morris and Darryl Perkins excelled on defense.

Rose, now 5-2 on the season, will be at home next week against Wilson Fike.

Dupree Quits Oklahoma, Denies Reports Of Conflicts

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Running back Marcus Dupree says he is quitting the Oklahoma University football team, citing pressure from head coach Barry Switzer as a major factor, according to a published report.

"I wouldn't say we had conflicts, but it seemed like I couldn't please him most of the time," today's edition of the Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger quoted Dupree as saying. "All this criticism I've been getting, almost from the time I first got there, just got to where it was wearing on me."

"I don't feel comfortable at Oklahoma. The things I though were important — playing on television, winning the Heisman Trophy, playing at a school with Oklahoma's tradition — aren't so important to me anymore," a copyright story today in the Commercial Appeal in Memphis, Tenn., quoted him as saying.

Switzer couldn't be reached late Thursday for comment. Earlier in the day, however, Switzer said, "If he doesn't want to come back, that's fine. Then he shouldn't come back."

Dupree was suspended from the Sooners football team Wednesday after he failed to return from a weekend trip back home. He was located Wednesday night but didn't announce his decision until Thursday night.

Dupree described those days as "some of the worst times in my life."

He told the Commercial Appeal he will decide "in a day or so" about his plans, which he says means "trying to get in another school somewhere." The University of Southern Mississippi, Dupree said by telephone from Hattiesburg, Miss., is a good possibility.

"The important thing is to be happy," he added. "Life is too short to be as unhappy as I was. You can have all the fame in the world and not be happy."

Dupree said two losses by Oklahoma this year — to Ohio State and Texas — plus his inconsistent performance and fan reaction to it also were factors in his decision to leave Oklahoma.

"The two losses did hurt me because this was the year we were supposed to win the national championship," Dupree said. "That was a part of it."

Dupree said his decision eased a burden he had carried in Oklahoma.

"People put things on my shoulders," he said. "Like saying I can't play in the big games — I know better."

"I was getting letters from alumni saying I ought to transfer to Texas, saying maybe that would help the Oklahoma team," Dupree said.

Switzer said earlier had said he felt Dupree "doesn't want to play football." He's told too many people that and there have been too many indications of that."

Dupree said he was not tired of playing football, but "I just got tired of Oklahoma. My family was not in the stands and I got homesick."

He hasn't been seen by a member of the Oklahoma team or staff since Saturday's 28-16 loss to Texas.

Dupree turned up Wednesday night in Clinton, Miss., where he visited a friend, Ken Fairly, at Mississippi College and called his family to say he was safe.

U.S. daily newspapers sold $4 billion more advertising last year than did its nearest competitor, television.

New Faces For Pirate Basketball

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

When East Carolina coach Charlie Harrison steps into the gym Saturday to open the 1983-84 basketball practice season, he may look around for a familiar face.

He won't find many, that's for sure — at least not among those who started last year. Two of those starters, Charles Green and Thom Brown went the way of graduation. Green is now serving as a student assistant for Harrison. Also gone is last year's leading scorer and rebounder Johnny Edwards, who transferred to Indiana State.

That leaves two starters returning for Harrison to build around in this, his second year at the Pirate helm. They are 6-1 senior guard Tony Robinson, who played the point last year, and 6-5 junior guard-forward Barry Wright, who was the second leading scorer on the team with an 11.8 average. Robinson averaged 5.5 points.

Joining them will be several players who saw limited action last year, Hebert Gilchrist, a 6-0 senior guard; David Harris, a 6-8 sophomore center; David Reicheneker, a 6-10 junior center; and Curt Vanderhorst, a 6-0, sophomore guard, and 6-1 senior guard John Williams. Williams, however, will not join the team until the completion of football season. He is the number two quarterback for the Pirate gridgers.

Bruce Peartree, a 6-1, junior guard from Pantego, who averaged 10.4 points a game last year, has recently undergone orthoscopic surgery on a knee and is not expected back until at least the end of the month.

Filling out the team will be six freshmen. They are 6-10 center Leon Bass, 6-6 forward Derrick Battle, 6-2 guard William Grady, 6-3 guard/forward Keith Sledge, 6-7½ forward/center Roy Smith and 6-9 forward Jack Turnbull.

Harrison said that most of the players have reported back in good shape, but that they still have a ways to go. "Making the transition from defense to offense and then back to defense takes a lot. These young guys are not accustomed to it. They've come a long way but they still have a long way to go," Harrison noted that strength coach Mike Gentry has done a good job in preparing the team for practice with his weight program.

As for Peartree, a lot is going to be up to him, Harrison said. "I'm confident that he will come back and help us. He's worked hard on weights and in things that he can do (following the surgery). It's a matter of rehabilitation and confidence for him. I think he wants to play and that's going to be the biggest thing."

With Green gone — who led by example and play — and Edwards — who led by his playing abilities — Harrison is looking for Robinson and Gilchrist to provide leadership as seniors. "Herbie has to have a lot of credit for staying at East Carolina for four years, something a lot of players haven't done. Wright is a leader by example too with his work habits. He's a tireless worker."

While Harrison is not sure that the Pirates can replace Edwards' stats, he feels that the team will have to concentrate instead on exploiting the other teams' weaknesses and on a more balanced attack.

How much flexibility the Pirates will have will depend on how quickly the freshmen "decided to play like they are not freshmen," Harrison said. "They can't use 'freshman' as a crutch. If they do, they won't play."

How long that will take, Harrison doesn't know. "How soon they decide to play and have an impact on the team will be the answer."

The freshmen will have to develop a more aggressive style than they are used to, Harrison said. "This is no surprise to them. They were told what I expect and demand of them."

The Pirates get their first test of the season against a Yugoslavian team in exhibition on November 15, about two weeks before they open the regular season, and Harrison feels that this comes at a good time. "We're going to be playing an excellent team, not on the same quality as the team we played last year. So right away, they'll find out what to expect. It will be an indoctrination into the playing of college basketball and they need it. I don't want them to step in against Campbell and find out."

Harrison said that the Pirates have a demanding schedule and that area people probably are unaware of this. "Boston University and Northeastern are picked to finish one-two in their league as are Western and Eastern Illinois, four of the teams we play on the road. Duke is an up-and-coming team this year. Virginia Commonwealth is favored to win the Sun Belt and most see them as a Top 15 team."

"Street and Smith rank the ECAC-South as the tenth toughest in the country and most folks are picking us to finish last. I've been all around the country and I've seen 'em all and our league is good, damn good. In fact, you just don't run into cream-puffs in Division I anymore."

Harrison said the priorities are to teach the freshmen what is expected of them. "They were told that they had the opportunity to make a contribution as a freshman. This is their opportunity. It all depends on how hard they work and how aggressively they go at it."

While Sooners Miss Dupree, Cowboys Welcome Anderson

By The Associated Press

One key running back will be missing and another one possibly returning when 15th-ranked Oklahoma meets Oklahoma State in college football Saturday.

While the celebrated Marcus Dupree has skipped the Sooners, Ernest Anderson is expected to be back with the Cowboys for the 78th renewal of the venerable intrastate rivalry at Stillwater.

"Anderson has been practicing all week," says Oklahoma State Coach Jimmy Johnson of his star tailback. "I think there's a good chance he'll see action Saturday."

Chowan Tops Baby Bucs

Chowan Junior College rolled up a 21-9 victory over the East Carolina junior varsity last night in Ficklen Stadium.

The Pirates got on the board in the first half on a 24-yard field goal by Dave Thomas, then scored in the third period on a 35-yard pass from Darryl Speed to Amos Adams.

Chowan scored in the first half on a pair of long touchdown passes, one of 92 yards and the other of 40 yards.

The contest was the first junior varsity game of the year for ECU.

Rose Wins On Forfeit

STANTONSBURG — Rose High School was awarded a forfeit victory over Wilson Beddingfield in a soccer match yesterday.

Beddingfield was unable to play the match yesterday due to a number of injuries and illnesses, and no other date could be agreed upon by the Bruin coaches, who then forfeited to Rose.

The win boosts the Rose record to 7-3 in the league, 7-4 overall. Rose is in no worse than a tie for second place in the league standings with four matches remaining in the regular season.

Rose travels to Kinston on Tuesday.

While Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer has had to deal with the absence of Dupree, who was dropped from the team Wednesday after missing practice the first three days of the week, Johnson has been without the services of Anderson for a month. The senior, who led the nation with 1,877 yards rushing last year, pulled a groin muscle in the Cowboys' first game and has not played since.

"Our offense has been hurt with the loss of Ernest," Johnson said. "We're awfully glad to have him on the comeback."

Anderson's absence has been at least partially offset by the performance of junior Shawn Jones, who is averaging 124.8 yards rushing a game for the 4-1 Cowboys, whose only loss was a tough 14-10 decision last week to top-ranked Nebraska.

Oklahoma, meanwhile, enters the game with a 3-2 record and a host of problems, among them the fact that Dupree won't be carrying the ball against Oklahoma State. Oklahoma has sputtered offensively in recent weeks and managed fewer than 200 yards in last week's 28-16 loss to Texas.

Dupree, who gained 905 yards as a freshman, managed only 50 on 14 carries against the Longhorns and was apparently distressed about his performance.

Coming off a tough victory over Oklahoma State, top-ranked Nebraska will play at Missouri. In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 2 Texas plays Arkansas at Little Rock; No. 3 North Carolina takes on North Carolina State; Virginia Tech visits No. 4 West Virginia; No. 5 Auburn travels to Georgia Tech; sixth-ranked Ohio State takes on No. 19 Illinois; No. 8 Georgia plays at Vanderbilt; No. 9 Arizona entertains Oregon and 10th-ranked Miami (Fla.) visits Mississippi State.

Elsewhere, it's Tennessee vs. No. 11 Alabama at Birmingham; Northwestern at No. 13 Michigan; Purdue at No. 14 Iowa; No. 16 Maryland at Wake Forest; Stanford at 17th-ranked Washington; No. 18 Arizona State at Southern California and New Mexico at No. 20 Brigham Young.

Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz says his game plan against Texas is an obvious one.

"I don't think there's any doubt we're going to have to throw the ball a tremendous amount of times," Holtz said. "I don't like to do it that way but I don't see any other alternative."

"We'll run some, but I think it's obvious. Oklahoma, the third leading rusher in the country, an excellent offensive line, a Heisman candidate in Marcus Dupree ... not being naive, if Oklahoma could not run with Marcus Dupree, I don't see how Arkansas can."

"Auburn, with an excellent offensive line, and two great backs, Lionel James and Bo Jackson, could not run on them. Auburn has run on everybody before the game and since the game but nobody has been able to run on Texas. I don't think many people will."

Oklahoma failed to make a first down on 11 of its 14 possessions and managed only 114 yards total offense in the first three quarters.

"In all my years of coaching, this is the best defensive team I've seen," Holtz said of Texas. "There is some discrepancy about who is the best in Texas, the Cowboys or the Longhorns."

Representatives of five bowls — the Sun, Citrus, Holiday, Fiesta and Liberty — will be at the Illinois-Ohio State contest and Illini Coach Mike White believes his team has its work cut out.

Seahawks Kick ECU

WILMINGTON — The University of North Carolina at Wilmington romped to a 3-0 soccer victory over East Carolina yesterday.

The Pirates were unable to get the ball into the nets in the contest which saw the Seahawks score twice in the first half.

Pat Brown and Matt Smith scored goals for the Seahawks in the first half, while Sherman Thormand added a second period tally.

East Carolina was outshot, 16-8, by UNCW in the contest.

Now 2-9, the Pirates travel to USC-Spartanburg on Tuesday.

Royals Face Charges

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Several indictments and at least one more guilty plea are expected in a federal cocaine investigation in which two members of the Kansas City Royals have pleaded guilty, sources told The Associated Press.

Outfielder Willie Wilson, the American League batting champion in 1982, and first baseman Willie Aikens each pleaded guilty Thursday to a federal misdemeanor charge of attempted cocaine possession.

Sources close to the investigation said another guilty plea was expected today in the case, and as many as 12 people may be named in federal indictments when a federal grand jury meets next week in Kansas City, Kan.

Although the names of Royals players Jerry Martin and U.L. Washington and former Royals pitcher Vida Blue have been mentioned in connection with the drug probe, federal officials have declined to say whether they are involved.

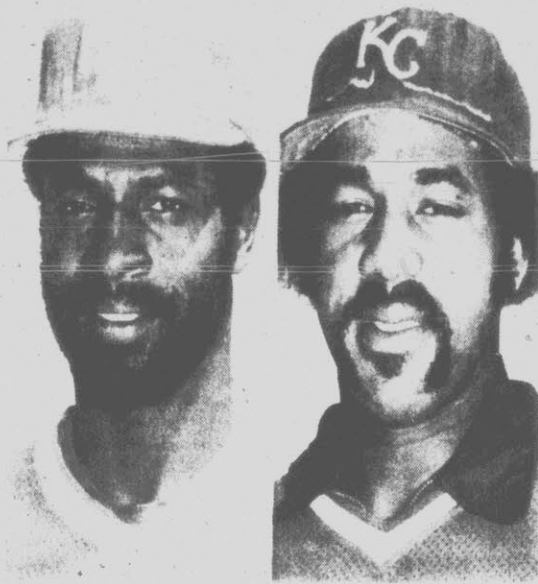

Wilson and Aikens were released Thursday on $5,000 personal recognizance bonds. Sentencing was set for Nov. 17.

The charges carry maximum penalties of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine. However, Assistant U.S. Attorney Amanda Meers said she would not rule out the possibility that both players would be placed on immediate probation.

The players also could face disciplinary action by the American League or baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"Plea bargaining doesn't change the facts. When we have the facts, we will make our decision," Kuhn told the Kansas City Times Thursday night.

"We have been following the case right along," Kuhn said. "Obviously we are going to continue the investigation."

Drug Charges

Willie Wilson, left, and his Kansas City Royals teammate Willie Aikens, right, both pleaded guilty to attempting to purchase cocaine yesterday in federal court. Sources indicated other arrests might soon follow. (AP Laserphoto)

When the investigation is completed, we'll have further comment. I don't know what the discipline might be. I have to see what the facts are."

John Schuerholz, the Royals' general manager, said the club "was saddened by the entire situation."

"We're looking forward to it being put behind us, so we can all look ahead as an organization to playing baseball and winning ballgames again," Schuerholz said.

Wilson, an All-Star outfielder, arrived at the courthouse Thursday with his wife and two attorneys a few minutes after the U.S. attorney's office charged him and Aikens with attempting to possess cocaine.

When asked if he had anything to say, Aikens remarked: "You gotta be kidding, man."

Wilson, who also would not comment while at the courthouse, later issued a statement through his agent.

"Willie (Wilson) asked me to say he deeply regrets his indiscretion of last summer, and he wants to put it behind him," said Jack Sands of Boston, Wilson's agent and the head of Personnel Management Associates.

"This is one of those orange lights in life. Willie has accepted part of the responsibility he's going to bear for involvement with the wrong people who came into his life."

James Kelley, Aikens' attorney, declined to comment on the charges against his client and whether Aikens will give further testimony in the case.

David Russell, Wilson's attorney, said the ballplayer has not made any agreement to cooperate in the continuing investigation or to testify before the grand jury.

"As far as we're concerned, we're finished. Willie (Wilson) has gone in on his own and said he made a mistake," Russell said.

The guilty pleas stemmed from an investigation that began last spring in Dodge City, Kan., and led to the wiretapping of a suburban Kansas City residence. The seizure of four ounces of a substance alleged to be cocaine and the arrest of the owner of the house came later.

Both Wilson and Aikens were taped by the FBI in June as each sought, in separate calls, to buy a quarter-ounce of cocaine.

John P. Gerstle, an attorney for a Dodge City man involved in the investigation, said the federal drug probe appears to focus not on "what the Royals are doing with it (cocaine), but where are they getting it?"

Gerstle said prosecutors appear to be making a case against "social users" who are not involved in widespread narcotics trafficking.

Aikens, who turned 29 today, played the 1983 season on a one-year contract. A five-year veteran, he is not eligible for free-agent status. The Royals have until Dec. 20 to offer him a new contract, trade or release him.

Wilson, 28, has finished the second year of a four-year contract.

Schuerholz said he doesn't know what effect the guilty pleas or the continuing investigation may have on the Royals.

"Until the situation is ultimately resolved, there is very little we can do as far as structuring the club," he said.

State, Heels Clash

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State coach Tom Reed finally got around to worrying about No. 3 North Carolina this week, but only after he taught his team how to play football.

The undefeated Tar Heels and the Wolfpack tangle in the 73rd renewal of one of the state's oldest rivalries Saturday, but Reed was not sure earlier this week that his team could even block or tackle.

"I feel our players do want to win, but I've come to the realization that we don't know how to play football," Reed said. "We do not know how to play for 60 minutes and do it with intensity. To learn how to play football, you have to play football."

N.C. State, 2-3 and 1-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, spent Monday butting heads and pads on the practice field instead of viewing films of last week's loss to Georgia Tech. Reed said the results were encouraging.

"We had an excellent night of practice. There was a different feeling inside of the players," Reed said. "The kids had fun — just kicking the daylight out of each other."

Reed has faced North Carolina on two other occasions, both as the head coach at Miami of Ohio. The first game, in 1978, was his first year after succeeding Dick Crum as the Redskins' head coach. Miami won, 7-3.

Three years later, North Carolina pranced to a 49-7 victory. In 1983, the Wolfpack has been on a roller coaster, rising from an opening-night loss to East Carolina to defeat The Citadel, then losing to Virginia before beating Wake Forest two weeks ago.

"Right now, I think you'll see some consistent improvement out of us each week," he said. "How much, I don't know."

A vital component of the Wolfpack offense was lost last week when wide receiver Ricky Wall was suspended for breaking the team's academic policies. He will miss this week's game as well as next week's contest with Clemson.

"We will not have football players at State who are not going to school to get a degree," Reed said.

The Wolfpack is facing the nation's fourth best offense and fifth toughest defense. North Carolina is coming off a game in which three of its runners gained more than 100 yards for the first time in its history.

In last week's 30-10 conference victory over Wake Forest, tailbacks Ethan Horton and Tyrone Anthony rushed for 116 yards and 119 yards, respectively. Fullback Eddie Colson, normally a blocker for the tailbacks, added 119 yards.

"From a personal standpoint, this is probably the highlight of my career here," Colson said. "Because of this school's great tradition of 1,000-yard rushers and great runners, it's a special feeling to get 100 yards."

Coach Dick Crum sees Colson as one more weapon in an offensive arsenal that will give defenses one more headache.

"I think his emergence as a 100-yard back gives us another threat and presents other defenses with another little problem," Crum said. "Up to this point, our fullbacks had been more blockers than runners. I think Eddie did an excellent job running the ball and as a result enhances our offense and gives the opponent another aspect to defend."

Jets Renew Playoff Hopes Against Miami

The Associated Press

The New York Jets, whose Super Bowl hopes last season died one game short of fruition in the Miami mud, try to put their up-and-down 1983 season back in gear when they play host to the Dolphins in a key National Football League game Sunday.

The Jets, who had seven victories and a tie over Miami from 1978-1981, lost three times to the Dolphins last year. The last was a 14-0 decision in the American Conference championship, played in a quagmire in Miami's Orange Bowl.

New York and Miami, expected to be the class of the AFC East this season, are both 3-3, one game behind Buffalo and surprising Baltimore, who meet Sunday. Both the Jets and the Dolphins lost last week, Miami 38-35 in overtime to the Bills; New York 10-7 to the Cleveland Browns on a last-second field goal.

"It's puzzling to everybody, not just to me," Jets Coach Joe Walton says of his team's record. "We've played well enough to win the games we won and not well enough to win the three games we lost. Still, we're in the race. It's up to ourselves to get cranked up."

In other games Sunday, Houston will be at Minnesota; San Francisco at New Orleans; St. Louis at Tampa Bay; San Diego at New England; Chicago at Detroit; Cleveland at Pittsburgh; Buffalo at Baltimore; Cincinnati at Denver; the Los Angeles Raiders at Seattle; the New York Giants at Kansas City; Atlanta at the Los Angeles Rams and Philadelphia at Dallas.

Washington is at Green Bay on Monday night.

In New York, the Jets will be facing a fresh face at quarterback in Dan Marino, who last week took over an offense that had sputtered under David Woodley.

"I'm happy with the direction our offense is going now," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "Marino's got good awareness. He had a lot of experience setting up and throwing the ball in college. We like everything about him."

The Colts, who won two games in 1981 and 1982, will be trying to run their record to 5-2 and take over outright possession of first in the AFC East.

Buffalo has beaten Baltimore four straight times, including a 28-23 victory in Buffalo four weeks ago.

Parsons' Attorney Drops Defendant

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Attorneys for former University of South Carolina women's basketball coach Pam Parsons have moved to drop school President James Holderman as a defendant in a $75 million dollar libel suit Parsons filed after a magazine article called her a lesbian.

Parsons' attorney, J. Lewis Cromer, said his investigation of the case indicates Holderman did not make statements a Sports Illustrated story attributed to him.

Holderman was quoted in the article as telling the mother of a basketball player that "Pam Parsons has admitted to (Assistant Athletic Director) Ron Dickerson that she is a lesbian and was carrying on with one of the players."

Holderman has denied making the statement. Cromer said the motion to dismiss Holderman from the suit was based on depositions from Jill Leiber, who wrote the article, Ronnie Keisler, the mother of former USC player Brantley Southerns, and Holderman.

"Such evidence clearly indicates that James B. Holderman never made the statement attributed to him in the complaint and that the same was reported in error by Sports Illustrated," Cromer's motion said.

Parsons, 35, is still suing Time Inc., owner of Sports Illustrated, and Chris Vlahoplus, USC senior vice president for administration.

Parsons is asking for $25 million in actual damages and $50 million in punitive damages.

Parsons claims the article destroyed her life and killed her successful college coaching career. She coached the Lady Gamecocks for five years before she resigned Jan. 4, 1982.

One month after her resignation, Sports Illustrated published the story, partly based on quotes from Holderman and Vlahoplus. Vlahoplus also denies making the comments attributed to him.

Interviewed three days after Parsons resigned, Vlahoplus was quoted as saying she initially denied being a lesbian and having an affair with a player, but "finally admitted it."

"We have nothing against anybody who's gay. But to have a coach carrying on with a student ... we just can't let that go on," he was quoted as saying.

Cromer has said the publicity forced Parsons to leave South Carolina. She now lives in Richfield, Utah, where she works in her father's bakery.

Holderman and Vlahoplus have argued for complete dismissal of the case.

Star Of Silent Screen Honored

By MARILYN AUGUST
Associated Press Writer
PARIS, AP — France's cultural elite is shining the spotlight this week on American actress Lillian Gish — who turned 87 today and gained fame on the silent screen when the French were embroiled in World War I.

"I really don't know what I've done to warrant all this generosity and goodness," said Miss Gish, the uncontested grande dame of silent movies who is being honored during weeklong festivities in Paris.

Miss Gish charmed generations of moviegoers as the heroine in D.W. Griffith's 1915 Civil War classic "Birth of a Nation," as the sad mother in "Intolerance," and the luckless damsel in "Broken Blossoms."

Miss Gish, who Thursday received the prestigious Commander of Arts and Letters Award from French Minister of Culture Jack Lang, made her stage debut at the age 4.

She has been working almost non-stop ever since, winning honors for performances in 102 movies and 50 plays that included works of Shakespeare and Tennessee Williams.

French film director Francois Truffaut says her career of 83 years "follows cinema history as closely as two parallel tracks of the Union Pacific."

Miss Gish and her sister Dorothy are the subject of a television documentary by Jeanne Moreau to be aired soon, along with a song-and-dance tribute to their careers.

Her soft face set off by curls the color of champagne, Miss Gish showed no trace of fatigue after a whirlwind week in the French capital that included newspaper interviews, dinners, receptions and television appearances.

"I suppose silent film did speak to the world in a way you don't have today," she said, pressing the arm of a reporter. "You had to write the words so you remember them longer. Nowadays, everything's done for you so you can just sit there and eat popcorn."

Although she had a major role recently in Robert Altman's "Marriage," and believes cinema is the major art of the century, she says going to the movies today "hurts my pride."

"We used to play to packed houses in theaters that held 6,424 people," she said. "I go to the movies today, and there are only six people in the audience and they don't react."

Miss Gish's love affair with France began in 1917 when she, her mother and Dorothy came to film a "movie to make America make up its mind to go to war for France and England."

"I bet there aren't many people here who saw Paris for the first time with not one light burning — only a full moon," she said.

Public Television Has Two Premieres

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Chances are you will never need to know — really need to know — how to throw a curve ball, or why people get goose bumps, or how to tell a dolphin from a porpoise. But now that you mention it...

It's simple curiosity, and it's what makes "Newton's Apple," beginning Saturday night on public TV, so appealing.

Ira Flatow, the kind of guy who doesn't mind telling America that he's carrying 16 percent body fat on a 5-foot-8 frame, is host of "Newton's Apple." "A little more of me to love," he says, although he assures that he's just a few ounces above the average.

rences of nature, like the falling apple, lie fascinating and important ideas."

Flatow, science correspondent for National Public Radio, admits to being "a bit of a ham," and he seems eager to play guinea pig for an assortment of doctors, scientists and "Newton's Apple" regulars like Dr. Janet Searcy from Macalester College and her skeleton-companion, "Dead Ernest," or Nancy Gibson from the Minnesota Zoo.

Flatow's willingness to risk life and limb for the sake of science — "This is safe!" he asks Ms. Gibson before hopping into a water-filled tank with two bottle-nose dolphins. "Listen, I survived," she replies — sets a tone for this fast-paced, witty show that will appeal to adult viewers as well as the young.

In one segment in the first program, Flatow lets a physician demonstrate the uses of fiber optics by probing into his pants pocket with an electronic peeper. They — and the audience, at home and in the studio — sort through keys, cough drops, some change and some Bazooka bubble gum.

Then they take the "experiment" a step further, into Flatow's mouth. Our genial host opens wide to display the expected: tongue, gums, teeth with fillings.

"Life has not been perfect for you," the doctor says. "Too much Bazooka. I think."

There's nothing wrong with the kids at Zilla J. Clinton H.S. that a little understanding won't cure.

Juan Romo tells all his classmates that he's "Mr. Juanderful" and "Numero Juan," but he's actually trying to convince himself of that first. Michael Ray Carter picks a fight with his brother Harold, a whiz in science, but what he's really after is his parents' attention.

There's nothing really profound about "Moving Right Along," beginning Saturday night on public TV just after "Newton's Apple." It's just sound, simple common sense in a dramatic format.

The program is intended for teen-agers and their parents, and each episode concludes with comments and observations from real-life kids and their parents, as well as experts on problems that plague adolescents.

Howard E. Rollins Jr., who was nominated for an Oscar as Coalhouse Walker in the theatrical film "Ragtime," is superb as Austin Barry, who teaches communications at Clinton High but spends most of his time counseling his troubled charges.

Each of the 10 episodes of "Moving Right Along" explores a different issue common to teen-agers and their parents — sibling rivalry, family responsibilities, peer pressure, drug and alcohol abuse, divorce, sex and death.

The kids at Clinton High are too attractive, and their problems too easily solved, but the objective is a good one and that makes "Moving Right Along" worth the time.

Aspires To Host Garbo

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Walters is hurt when she hears people calling her "Baba Wawa," says her job as a co-anchor with Harry Reasoner almost drove her to a doctor and wants most to interview the elusive Greta Garbo.

Miss Walters, 52, says she loves her fame and tries to take her detractors in stride. But she says she is bothered when she hears the nickname Gilda Radner devised for her Walters imitation on "Saturday Night Live."

"What I mind sometimes is when I'm in a crowd, or get in a plane and people say, 'Oh, there's Baba Wawa,'" Miss Walters said in an interview to be published in Sunday's Parade magazine. "And I think, 'Don't they realize I heard? And is this what I am? Is this what I'm thought of?'"

Her move from NBC to serve as co-anchor with Harry Reasoner of the ABC Evening News in an unprecedented $5 million contract brought sharp criticism and pressure Miss Walters said was unlike anything she had known.

"I remember thinking that I should go to a doctor," she said. "It was so hard. ... And I thought then that if I didn't fall apart, I never would."

She says she would still like to interview Jacqueline Onassis, Pat Nixon, Yuri Andropov and especially Miss Garbo.

"If I interviewed Greta Garbo, I'd retire," she said.

The latest in fishing lures and tips on making a good catch will be given by Paul (Turkey) Hodges, owner of Calico Jack's Marina and Hotel.

More than 1,400 daily newspapers are printed by the offset method.

N. Korea Claims Provocations

By C.W. LIM
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan reorganized his Cabinet today, hours after it resigned en masse in response to the Burma bomb attack.

Meanwhile, North Korea — blamed by Seoul for the bombing which killed four Cabinet members — claimed South Korean soldiers fired 500 rounds of ammunition in an overnight incursion across the demilitarized zone between the two countries.

Chun named as his new prime minister Chin Ie-chong, chairman of the governing Democratic Justice Party. He replaces Kim Sang-hyup.

Sports Minister Lee Won-kyung was named foreign minister, replacing Lee Bum-suk, one of four Cabinet ministers killed in the bomb attack.

Earlier in the day, the 18 surviving Cabinet ministers submitted their resignations along with Seoul's mayor, Kim Sung-bae, in a move to assume moral responsibility for the bombing last Sunday in Rangoon and give the president a free hand in reorganizing the government.

Besides the four Cabinet members, several top aides and advisers were among the 21 people killed in the attack.

The developments today came one day after a mass funeral in Seoul, attended by more than 1 million mourners, for the 17 South Koreans bombing victims. The attack also killed four Burmese and wounded more than 40 people.

North Korea today claimed at least 10 soldiers from the South crossed into the northern side of the DMZ during the night and fired 500 rounds of ammunition in what it said was a provocation aimed at raising tensions to "the brink of war."

North Korea's state-run news agency, in a report monitored in Tokyo, called the alleged action "a premeditated military provocation for leading the situation to the brink of war."

The news agency said in its report that North Korea immediately placed a telephone call to South Korea protesting the "armed attack."

South Korean military authorities had no immediate comment on the charge.

The United Nations Command in Seoul said the alleged incident was "being investigated," but declined further comment.

Incidents in the demilitarized zone come under the jurisdiction of the Korean Military Armistice Commission, which consists of the U.N. Command on one side and North Korea and China on the other.

Chun, as part of his Cabinet overhaul, named Shin Byong-hyun, now head of the Korea Traders Association, deputy prime minister and economic planning minister, replacing bombing victim Suh Suk-joon. The Finance Ministry post went to Kim Man-je, former director of the Korean Development Institute and later president of the Korea-America Bank.

Ten ministers retained their posts. The sports minister was the only one switched to another ministry.

The Cabinet changes are effective Saturday.

Chun also filled two key vacancies outside the Cabinet left open by the bombing deaths.

He placed Finance Minister Kang Kyong-shik in the post of chief presidential secretary, replacing Hahn Pyong-choon. The post of senior presidential economic adviser, previously held by Kim Jae-ik, went to Sakong Il, a well-known American-educated economics expert.

The just replaced Prime Minister Kim said the government will seek "as strong countermeasures as possible against the North Korean barbarity in Rangoon."

The bombing at a ceremonial site south of Rangoon came moments before Chun was to lay a wreath at the start of an 18-day Asian goodwill tour. The president's own motorcade delayed, he escaped the bombing by moments.

The National Assembly adopted a resolution condemning the "tragic bombing of South Korea's diplomatic mission to Burma" and called on the Burmese government to assume primary responsibility for failure to prevent the bombing.

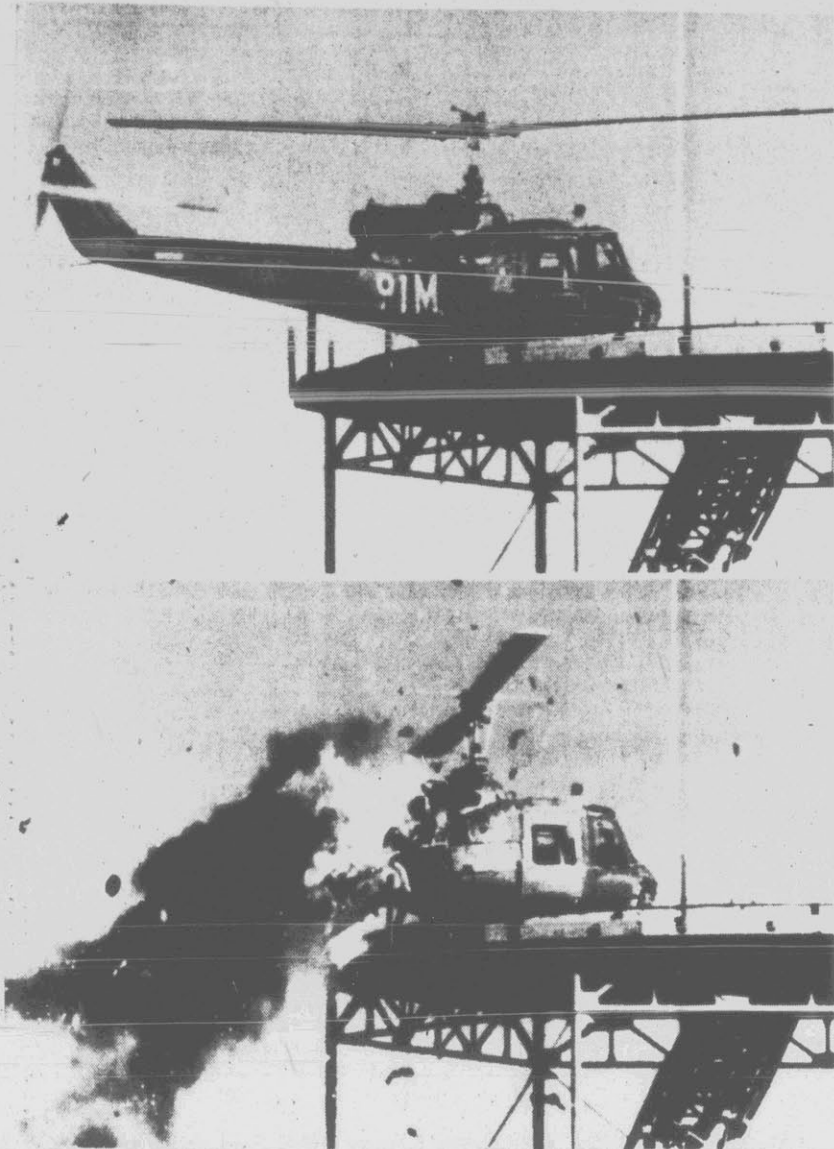

The resolution asked Burma to take strong measures against those responsible, including a break in diplomatic relations with North Korea. Burma, a non-aligned country, has diplomatic relations with both Koreas.

Today, anti-North Korean rallies were held across South Korea. The largest was in the southern port city of Pohang where a 100,000 people reportedly gathered in the town square for a meeting sponsored by South Korea's Anti-Communist League.

Farther south, in Pusan, an estimated 55,000 people were reported to have demonstrated at a sports stadium.

North Korean President Kim Il Sung and his son and heir apparent Kim Jong Il were burned in effigy at some of the rallies.

TARGET DESTROYED — A missile from the Stinger, a portable, shoulder-launched U.S. Army weapon system, approaches a helicopter (above) and destroys it (below), during a test. At a unit cost of approximately $70,000, including training and support equipment, the Stinger represents a relatively cost-efficient air defense system. The Air Force has decided to adopt the system which was designed for the U.S. Army and the Marines. (AP Laserphoto)

Life As It's Lived

The Treat That Almost Wasn't

By GAIL MICHAELS

This week I was experiencing real difficulty in coming up with a column topic. I had observed the children closely, but aside from the usual squabbling and messiness, they weren't being obnoxious enough to justify a column. I was still, of course, making my curtains, but I was sure that any further discussion on that project would soon degenerate from humor to obscenity.

Finally, however, I stumbled upon inspiration. I took the children out to eat.

I would never consciously do something that stupid merely to generate column material, so I know that my subconscious must have been working overtime. After all, I was perfectly aware of the fact that taking my kids into a restaurant is like serving spaghetti with collard greens. But I did it anyway. And without Phillip.

That was the stupidest lapse of all. On our few ventures with the savages into the public eye, we do at least have the advantage of being evenly matched. But Phillip was working late that evening, and I was both exhausted and ravenous. Perhaps I could have maintained some semblance of control if I had settled for hamburgers. Obviously, I was not bright enough that evening to do that either. Certain that a treat would have a positive effect on their behavior, I promised both kids steak.

"I wanna go to Show Biz Pizza," Zachary howled.

Meg agreed. Although she detests pizza, she wanted to win enough tickets at the bowling game to claim a prize of a rubber tarantula.

Masochist that I am, I could not be swayed. We went to Western Sizzlin'. I ordered a steak and a salad. Meg got steak and pudding. Zachary got pudding.

Setting the pudding in front of him and warning Meg to make him behave, I made my way to the salad bar. I was engaged at picking through the cucumbers when I heard that first awful shriek. Only Zachary could have made a noise that fearsome.

I fought an impulse to exit the establishment at once and raced back to the table to find him fiercely trying to reach Meg's legs with his own stubby ones while screeching, "I'm gonna kick you, you mean old sister!"

Meg sat holding her forefinger in front of her terrified face. "Shhhh," she begged.

"What is going on here?"

"She took my pudding away!" Zachary attempted another jab with his foot.

"And I'm gonna kick her!"

"No you are not," I said in the calmest voice I could muster.

"What is the meaning of this, Meg?"

Tears clouded her eyes.

"He was eating it."

"So?"

"I didn't think you would want him to eat it before he ate his dinner."

"That is his dinner. Tonight is a treat!" I hissed from between clenched teeth.

"Now I'm going back for my salad, and if I hear anything out of either of you, your lives will be in great danger."

The occupant of the next table, who had been watching us with undisguised amusement, grinned at me as I passed and said, "Lady, you've got guts."

That was a very nice way of putting it.

Third Brake Signal To Be Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — An extra rear brake light, mounted near the back window, will be required on all new cars in two years under a government regulation intended to reduce rear-end collisions.

The new regulation announced Thursday by Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, the third taillight will be required on cars produced after Sept. 1, 1985.

The red high-mounted lamp, which will light up when the car's brakes are applied, is expected to significantly reduce the number rear-end collisions and eliminate 40,000 injuries a year, Ms. Dole said.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said there were 3.5 million rear-end collisions in 1980 that resulted in 600,000 injuries. The agency estimated that 2.3 million of the cars struck had their taillights on at the time of the crash. The agency estimated that 900,000 accidents could have been prevented in 1980 with high-mounted brake lights.

"Our decision that this new equipment be required is based on solid research findings," said Diane K. Steed, NHTSA's administrator-designate. "We believe it holds promise of being the most effective accident prevention standard in our agency's history — and at a minimal cost to the consumer."

Neither General Motors Corp. nor Chrysler had any comment on the new safety lamp, according to spokesmen for both companies. But Ford Motor Co. said it "is probably a good vehicle safety feature."

In a statement, Ford said it had already been developing high-mounted lamps "and in fact had planned to install high-mounted lamps on four of our 1986 car lines even without regulation."

"Furthermore, we've included high-mounted tail lamps in our bid to provide 5,000 driver-side airbag-equipped cars to the General Services Administration in the 1985 model year," Ford said.

In 1980, the Transportation Department studied the 12-month accident records of 5,400 telephone company passenger cars, including 2,500 cars with the third high-mounted stop lamp.

The study found that cars with the extra brake light had 53 percent fewer rear-end accidents than cars without the device.

Mistrial In Drug Case

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A jury failed to reach a verdict in the trial of two businessmen accused of participating in a drug smuggling operation involving more than 85,000 pounds of marijuana.

Judge James D. Llewellyn proclaimed a mistrial when the Onslow County Superior Court jury remained deadlocked at 7-5 after deliberating for eight hours over two days.

Stanley L. McCauley, 43, and Charley Faye Mitchell, 52, were among 26 men indicted last May in connection with a 1981 drug trafficking scheme.

The state contended that McCauley, of McCauley Brothers Moving and Storage Co., and Mitchell, his employee and business partner, provided a warehouse in New Bern to store the drug.

Assistant District Attorney Joe Stroud called nine witnesses, four of whom had admitted involvement in the drug operation and testified under plea bargain arrangements. They said the defendants were paid $30,000 for use of the warehouse.

Defense attorneys John Drew Warlick Jr. and William J. Morgan of Jacksonville and James Nelson of Wilmington called 36 character witnesses, including Jacksonville Mayor Benno Tschaepe, a former chief and a former state legislator.

Both defendants denied any knowledge of the marijuana operation.

Political Solutions For Water Quality Problems

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

Residents along the Neuse River in eastern North Carolina used to think their water was relatively free of chemical pollutants.

There was little industry along their stretch of the river, and the biggest problem seemed to be blue-green algae that flourished because of nutrients washed into the river from fertilizer and other rich wastes.

Although the algae is still considered a major problem, synthetic chemicals from upstream have begun showing up in the water near New Bern, according to Jamie King, president of the Neuse River Foundation.

"We used to think it was really pretty clear," King said, "but the presence of biocides and other 'third-generation' pollutants has changed our mind."

"Those chemicals come from upstream, which is why we don't want the problems of the Neuse River identified as just a coastal problem," he said. "We believe that water problems have to be considered as basin-wide problems because a basin is dynamic within its range."

"What happens in one part of the basin affects the whole basin," he said. "Even the sounds along the coast affect what happens far back upstream. If the biology of those shallow sounds changes, it can affect the weather pattern clear back to the mountains and possibly beyond."

Inside the state, cooperation on water quality issues can be encouraged because the state has final regulatory authority, said Joseph Grimsley, Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

"In the case of the Jordan and Falls lakes, the state has the authority to ban phosphate use by individual users and consumers," Grimsley said. "That is sort of a last resort, and the local governments involved in that area were willing to cooperate on another solution rather than see it imposed."

"As long as we have that sort of ultimate regulatory weapon at the state level, then local governments are going to cooperate," Grimsley said. "When you get into the areas of quantity — two groups wanting the same water — then you're getting into something that could be very divisive between local governments."

The political factors of water management are beginning to crop up in disputes between North Carolina and other states. Officials of this state are objecting to a request by Virginia to pipe water from Lake Gaston to Virginia Beach. Tennessee has filed suit against North Carolina alleging the state is not adequately monitoring the Pigeon River, which flows across the state line.

Grimsley does not see the federal government stepping into those interstate disputes to protect watersheds.

"I think in the end, the federal government is going to say it's our problem at the state level," Grimsley said. "We will find ways to solve those problems. Once we determine the scientific solutions, then we can handle the political solutions."

The number of interest groups connected to a single basin, even one that does not cross a state line, can be enormous.

The Cape Fear River basin, the state's largest, begins north of Greensboro and winds through 18 percent of the state's land area before reaching the sea below Wilmington. The basin includes more than 20 of the state's 100 counties and affects nearly 27 percent of North Carolina's population.

Protecting rivers like the Cape Fear, scientists say, will involve more than just technological breakthroughs. It will eventually involve political decisions.

"We are primarily technical people, not political," said R. Paul Wilms, assistant director of programs for the state Division of Environmental Management. "But many of the solutions will require political policy decisions."

"Within the last five years we've seen a real jump in citizen interest in water quality," Wilms said. "The hardest thing for government to overcome is apathy from the public. But now we're seeing citizens committed enough to join groups and become knowledgeable about their rivers and streams."

The citizen activist groups, on rivers like the French Broad, Lumber, Haw, Chowan, Neuse and other waterways are keeping an eye on pollution, cleaning up debris and working to enhance the quality of the water.

The solutions, no matter what they are, will cost money and probably lots of it, officials say.

"We project that we'll need $1.7 billion by the year 2000 just to treat conventional wastes," Wilms said. "That doesn't include the new exotic wastes we're seeing and the expense of going to biological monitoring and other practices."

State money may also be needed to help farmers control the nagging problem of sedimentation, the biggest single pollutant in the state's rivers, according to Maurice G. Cook, director of the state Division of Soil and Water Conservation.

"The approach we're taking is trying to encourage farmers to use 'best management practices,'" Cook said. "Those practices involve leaving a strip of vegetation along stream banks and no-till farming to keep the topsoil on the land."

But no-till farming, the planting of crops in the stubble of a cover crop, requires special equipment and an added expense. Because of the cost, most farmers put best management practices low on their list of necessities.

"For the public good, we might need to look at a state share-cost program to encourage farmers to use best management practices," Cook said. "I have no problem justifying the use of taxpayer money for a program like that because the watershed is important to everybody."

"While one person may hold title to the land, the maintenance of the land and the water is for the public good," he said.

Changing state laws to require government approval of erosion plans for private building development could ease sedimentation problems, but that, too, would eventually increase development costs and require more inspectors to check erosion plans, officials say.

"The fact that there has not been more public awareness of water problems is an industrywide problem," said James Blue of the Kinston Water Department. "People in the water industry have been service people, not politicians. We haven't sought the political clout to let people know that clean water is something that isn't just going to go on and on and on without planning."

"We've been negligent in not getting to the right channels to let people know this is a resource we have to manage, something we have to look after," he said. "When people get thirsty, that's news, but we need to make people aware of water resources so that won't happen."

WATER FUTURE — This scene shows a paper plant on the Pigeon River near Canton in western North Carolina. The future of water supplies and quality in the state may be determined in court or through politics. Tennessee has sued North Carolina over a question of monitoring water standards. (AP Laserphoto)

Tuition Hikes In South Faster Than Inflation

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tuition at most major state universities in the South has risen faster than state aid or the inflation rate, says a regional education board.

"The median annual tuition increase for the region comes to about 15 percent, while the average level of state support has increased about 11 percent annually," the Atlanta-based Southern Regional Education Board said Thursday.

"The Consumer Price Index has recently risen about 6 percent annually. Thus, increases in higher education expenditures are growing more rapidly than are prices in the general economy and the average student is paying a somewhat larger share of the increases, compared to state support."

Florida's Board of Regents and Gov. Bob Graham had recommended an 8 percent tuition increase earlier this year, but the 1983 Legislature declined to go along.

Texas continues to have the lowest charges for college and university instruction in the 14-state southern region, the board said.

Here are changes in full-time resident undergraduate tuition and fees, such as lab charges in chemistry classes, at major state universities. The information was compiled by the Southern Regional Education Board.

Dollar figures listed below represent charges for an academic year.

1. University of Alabama: $994 for the 1981-82 academic year; $1,148 in 1983-84, up 15.5 percent.

2. University of Arkansas: $720 in 1981-82; $900 in 1983-84, up 25 percent.

3. University of Florida: $805 in 1981-82; $842 in 1983-84, up 4.6 percent.

4. University of Georgia: $954 in 1981-82; $1,242 in 1983-84, up 30.2 percent.

5. University of Kentucky: $740 in 1981-82; $968 in 1983-84, up 30.8 percent.

6. Louisiana State University: $687 in 1981-82; $954 in 1983-84, up 38.9 percent.

7. University of Maryland at College Park: $1,073 in 1981-82; $1,332 in 1983-84, up 24.1 percent.

8. University of Mississippi: $1,085 in 1981-82; $1,267 in 1983-84, up 16.8 percent.

9. University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill: $694 in 1981-82; $766 in 1983-84, up 10.4 percent.

10. University of South Carolina: $1,180 in 1981-82; $1,440 in 1983-84, up 22 percent.

11. University of Tennessee at Knoxville: $741 in 1981-82; $867 in 1983-84, up 17 percent.

12. University of Texas at Austin: $452 in 1981-82; $452 in 1983-84.

13. University of Virginia: $1,146 in 1981-82; $1,570 in 1983-84, up 37 percent.

14. West Virginia University: $628 in 1981-82; $1,090 in 1983-84, up 73.6 percent.

Shot Ex-Spouse 2 More Times

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A man shot during an argument with his ex-wife Wednesday night received medical treatment, returned to his ex-wife's home and was shot twice more, according to High Point police.

Although the victim said he didn't wish to press charges, police arrested Martha Lee Bailey, 36, after the second shooting. She was charged with assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury and was being held in Guilford County Jail under $2,000 bond.

Charles Bailey told police he and his ex-wife were arguing when he was shot in the leg with a .22-caliber revolver about 10 p.m. After Bailey received treatment at High Point Memorial Hospital's emergency room, he contacted police about 4 a.m. today to report he had been shot twice more.

Bailey said he had returned to his ex-wife's home, another argument ensued, and he was shot in the lower left arm and hip. Bailey once again was treated and released from the hospital, police said.
