Two-year-old Misty Cuthrell was flown by air ambulance from Greenville to the Shrine Burn Center in Cincinnati, Ohio, this morning and Friday morning her brother, Curtis Daniel Jones, 4, will be flown there.

The two children are both in critical condition, suffering from burns and lung damage sustained during a flash fire in their mother's car Friday shortly before noon. They are residents of the Bridgeton area of Craven County.

Hiram "Bud" Cuthrell accompanied his daughter today and his wife, Nellie, will go with Curtis. According to Vivian Jones, Mrs. Cuthrell's mother, the father will come home within a few days to continue working while Mrs. Cuthrell will stay as long as either of the children do. The stay could be as BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — The U.S. invasion force on Grenada overcame resistance today at the Grenadian army headquarters of Fort Frederick in the capital of St. George's, a Barbados radio report said.

The privately owned Voice of Barbados said opposition on the Caribbean island continued on the east coast at Calivigny Point, a military zone. In Washington, Pentagon sources said armed Cubans also were still holding out at the Richmond Hill prison, in St. George's.

Holmes Meets Eastern Carolina Police Chiefs

Police chiefs from New Bern, Goldsboro, Tarboro and Kinston met Greenville Chief Ted Holmes at a luncheon here Wednesday.

Guy Langston, one of the sponsors of the meeting designed to give area chiefs an opportunity to meet Holmes and Chief Ross Haigler, who has been in Kinston since June, said several other department heads, who are members of the Coastal Plains Law Enforcement Association, were unable to attend.

Langston, who headed the Greenville department as chief on two occasions for a total of eight years, is one of the founders of the Coastal Plains Law Enforcement Association and the associated Coastal Plains Law Enforcement Academy, based in Wilson, that has served departments in the area as a police basic school since the early 1960s. For the past 16 years, until his retirement earlier this year, Langston was area coordinator for law enforcement training with the community college system.

Tom Parrish, an instructor in the law enforcement and paralegal programs at Pitt Community College, was co-host for the luncheon.

Holmes, who assumed the duties as Greenville's chief Oct. 3, began his career as a police officer in Berkeley, Calif., was the first chief of the Vail, Colo., police department, and for more than 12 years has been a police management consultant, first with the International Association of Chiefs of Police and then with a private firm in Austin, Texas.

Chief Haigler retired with 20 years service from the New York City police department the day before he assumed his duties as chief of the Kinston department in June.

Cuban Force Is Still Resisting Americans

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While U.S. invasion troops on Grenada remained locked in combat today with a Cuban force holding several dozen political prisoners, President Reagan prepared to tell the American people "why we're doing what we are" in the Caribbean island nation and in Lebanon.

A Pentagon source who insisted on anonymity said the Cubans were "holding the high ground" around the Richmond Hill prison, the last large area of resistance on the island. He said there were at least "several dozen" political prisoners inside.

"It's a matter of figuring out how to take them in a way that causes the fewest casualties possible, both to them and us."

The Pentagon official also said that Army units had uncovered a second large cache of Cuban weapons near the Point Salines airfield.

"It seems apparent that there's quite a large and wide range of Cuban stuff there," he said. Earlier, the invasion force overran a Cuban military installation, with its own stock of weapons, about two miles from the airport.

Scattered fighting continued on the island against what Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger on Tuesday called "diminishing Cuban resistance."

He declared that all American students at two medical school campuses on the island were safe.

President Reagan cited the safety of about 1,000 Americans on the island, many of them medical students, as a principal reason for sending the troops into Grenada.

Besides the 2,800 U.S. Marines and Army paratroopers, the

Green Attorneys Contend Green Actions Spotless

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green argued today that actions speak louder than words and that regardless of tape recorded conversations, Green never agreed to accept or accepted a bribe.

"He agreed to do nothing," Howard Twigg said in final arguments to a Wake County Superior Court jury. "He certainly has done nothing. He certainly kept nothing. He returned the only check he got by mail."

Twigg reviewed for the jury the evidence in the case and actions he said Green took to reject bribery attempts by an FBI undercover agent.

Twigg noted that Green asked his SBI agent to investigate undercover agent Robert Drdak's identity, that he took his SBI agent with him to lunch with Drdak and that he told state Board of Education members, his wife and son about meetings with Drdak.

Twigg argued that an FBI committee repeatedly dined to

'A Lot More Resistance' Than Expected, Explains Top Chief

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. invasion of Grenada has met "a lot more resistance than we expected," said Gen. John Vessey Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, explaining why American troops were still fighting to take over a prison on the tiny nation.

More than 48 hours after U.S. forces landed on the smallest nation in the Western Hemisphere, American forces were battling to take the prison at Richmond Hill, the last area of resistance, a Pentagon source said today.

"There are a number of Cubans holed up around the prison and inside the building itself," said the source, who asked to remain anonymous. He added that several dozen political prisoners were being held at the prison, southeast of the capital, St. George's.

"The Cubans are holding the high ground around the prison," the source said. "It's a matter of figuring out how to take them in a way that causes the fewest casualties possible, both to them and us."

Meanwhile, Army troops uncovered a second major cache of Cuban weapons near the Point Salines airfield, the source said. "They stumbled onto it last night," the source said. "They haven't gone through it all yet, but it seems apparent that there's quite a large and wide range of Cuban stuff there."

That would be the second major haul of Cuban weapons recovered. Earlier, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said a Cuban military installation was overrun.

From the start, the Pentagon had been confident the fight could be over quickly. A senior defense official said Tuesday, the morning Americans landed in Grenada, that he thought the operation could be wrapped up by noon Wednesday. That prediction did not materialize.

Vessey told a news conference Wednesday afternoon that the 3,000 Army and Marine troops had expected to run into about 500 Cubans, "of which 350 might have been construction workers" building the Salines airport.

But there were more — 700, according to Vessey. And they were better equipped than had been expected, armed with machine guns, anti-tank weapons, and anti-aircraft cannons.

When the first U.S. planes came into the new Point Salines airfield, they were met with anti-aircraft fire. After the enemy gun was wiped out by a U.S. AC-130 gunship shortly after dawn Tuesday, the airstrip itself was quickly secured by the 700 Army Rangers, some of whom landed by parachute while the rest came off Army transport planes.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the island, Marines had parachuted around the Pearl's airport, taking it quickly.

But there things bogged down. The Cubans retreated north from Point Salines to the capital, St. George's, pursued by the Rangers in jeeps and armored cars.

The Cubans and Grenadian Army also fought fiercely around the two campuses of the St. George's University Medical School and a prison at Richmond Hill, halfway between the two campuses. One campus was taken only Wednesday afternoon and fighting continued around the prison area.

At the True Blue campus, students hid under their beds while the fighting raged, listening to sniper fire and return fire from American gunships.

"We didn't anticipate meeting Cuban fighting units," Vessey said. "We knew there were Cuban construction workers in there who might have been reservists and might have been armed."

Tuesday night, the Rangers and Marines were reinforced by 800 troops from the Army's elite 82nd Airborne Division, which moved into the airfields to permit the other units to go after the Cubans and Grenadians.

Vessey admitted that

Children Face Days Of Caring For Elderly Parents

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Sylvia Kramer (not her real name) is in her 60s and, if you ask her, longevity has its drawbacks.

She and her husband have postponed their dream of retiring to a warm climate. Instead, they have joined millions of older "children" nationwide who are exchanging caretaker days for days spent tending to the needs of their elderly parents, many of whom are living well into their 90s.

This social phenomenon — an America that is living longer than ever before — is fraught with problems, according to Marian Goldstein, Director of Social Work at the Jewish Institute for Geriatric Care, a 527-bed geriatric and rehabilitation facility here.

"Older children are expected to care for their parents at a time when they're facing their own concerns about aging. They are not prepared," said the counselor, adding that "a decade ago, the care of an ailing parent was the responsibility of a person 40 to 50 years old."

Currently, 11 percent of the American population is over 65 and the percentage is increasing annually. Since the passage of the Social Security Act in 1935, the benefits accrued encouraged many older adults to retire in their mid-60s, Mrs. Goldstein notes.

"Retiring is not what it was five years ago," she says. "Families have to make room for their elderly parents in the event illness or a spouse's death occurs. Freedom to travel — leisure time, in general — is restricted. Relocating may be as far in the future as a decade from the time anticipated."

Caring for a frail parent can be a full-time job, she cautioned, adding:

"Many older children feel they want to take care of mother and dad with the same compassion and love given to them throughout their upbringing. Guilt is mixed with love. Without open communication and sensitivity, everyone involved is hurt."

Another problem older children face is that with the high cost of health care, one major illness can wipe out an individual's life savings.

"Children are forced to turn to social agencies knowing little about their parents' financial picture," she says. These details, she suggests, should be worked out well in advance, preferably when the parents are entering their 60s.

To begin the "planning" process, Mrs. Goldstein advises getting acquainted with the 3 R's of aging: "READ as much material on growing old as you can; be RECEPTIVE to your aging parents; and RESPOND to signals that something may be wrong."

"Be prepared. Anything that you plan runs smoother," she said, citing the example of parents-to-be who familiarize themselves with birthing and child-rearing. "It's the same with older parents. It's just another stage for which preparation is necessary."

The majority of older adults lead full and healthy lives, she notes. Only 5 percent of those over 65 actually reside in nursing homes. Experts do agree, however, that the older the people get, the more likely they are to suffer one or more medical conditions. Twenty percent of America's elderly spend at least some time receiving care in a nursing facility.

"If you know what normal aging is," said Mrs. Goldstein, "you'll be able to better spot any abnormalities."

Good sources for information on supportive services are local hospitals and libraries. At JIGC, for example, courses are taught on many aspects of aging, including memory loss and explanations of the Medicare-Medicaid financial programs. Area offices for the Department of Aging act as information and referral services.

Mrs. Goldstein stresses that although parents are living longer and may need extra medical and social services, thus relying on the "older child," there are benefits.

"As you grow older, you will be more prepared to deal with your own aging," she points out. "You will know what to do and what not to do. And you may not be as frightened of the problems that go along with extended life. You will have gone through it before."

Couple Marries In Outdoor Ceremony

Ella H. White and Jimmie Atkinson were united in marriage Saturday evening at 5:30 in an outdoor ceremony performed at the home of the bride in Ayden.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jimmie L. Whitehurst.

Parents of the couple are the late Rev. and Mrs. Aaron Hines. Parents of the bridegroom are Ben Atkinson and the late Mrs. Louviena Atkinson.

Soloist Malcom Moore, nephew of the bride, sang "You and I."

The bride was given in marriage by her children and escorted by her brother, Lem Williams of Brooklyn, N.Y. The bride wore a white suit accented with blue. She carried a bouquet of white lilies accented with blue and white streamers.

Brenda Cannon, daughter of the bride, was matron of honor. Larry Wooten, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception dinner was given by the families of the couple at the home of the bride. Guests were greeted by Carrie Connor. Cake was served by Helen Bridges, cousin of the bride, and punch was poured by Eldress Martha Strong, sister of the bride.

The bride is an employee of Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the bridegroom is employed by Pitt County Truck Line of Farmville.

After a wedding trip the couple will live in Ayden.

Some Women Like Paying Their Way

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I want to congratulate the 16-year-old Iowa girl who didn't think it was fair for the fellow to always treat the girl. She said she had a job and could pay her own way, but her friends and parents thought she was crazy—the boy should always pay.

She is not "crazy"—she is smart. I am a senior citizen and have always felt that boys obligated girls by paying their way, then they expected sexual favors in return. (Maybe not all, but about 98 percent did.)

I say the girl should pay her own way, and if the boy makes romantic overtures, she is free to do what she wants, depending on the way she feels about him, because she won't owe him anything.

WISCONSIN GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Another Wisconsinite shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: When I first started to date about 15 years ago, I was one of those rare girls who insisted on paying for myself. I got some strange looks, but that's the only way I felt comfortable.

My reason was twofold. First, I felt if a man treated me, I would owe him something, and that something could mean sex. Second, I believe male-female relationships should be mutual.

One of the few men I dated told me he appreciated my independent attitude. We're married now, and still share all the expenses.

IT'S WORKING IN EDGERTON, WIS.

DEAR ABBY: My mother was terminally ill, so we decided to keep her home in familiar surroundings instead of having her live out her last months in a hospital.

This decision necessitated constant care, night and day, changing bed linen several times a day, and trying to make Mother as comfortable as possible. This was exhausting enough, but worse yet were friends, neighbors and relatives who felt the need to visit from 7:30 a.m. until 11 p.m.

I had to stop whatever I was doing to prepare coffee for these visitors, make sure they didn't stay too long and answer the telephone, which rang at least 50 times a day—people wanting to know how Mother was.

My husband finally put a "No Visitors" sign on our front door, which did no good because everyone thought the sign didn't apply to him.

Abby, please ask your readers to be more considerate of dying relatives and their families, and not drop in at all hours expecting conversation and coffee.

EXHAUSTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR EXHAUSTED: The "inconsiderate" visitors who need to heed this message will think it doesn't apply to them, so it's up to those caring for the very sick person to meet the visitors at the door with a firm but gentle, "I'm sorry, but this is not a good time to visit." And put a muffler on your telephone.

CONFIDENTIAL TO AMBITIOUS IN CONNECTICUT: There are two ways to get money: Marry it or earn it. Actually, there is only ONE way, because if you marry it, you will earn it.

"ALEXANDER PO PO"

DEAR READERS: From Ralph Martin's new best-selling book about the late Jack Kennedy—"A Hero for Our Time":

"While campaigning for the presidency, Kennedy's Boston accent once backfired on him. He was an hour late for a farm rally in Sioux City, Iowa. In his best Harvard accent, he asked the farmers, 'So I ask what's wrong with the American fahmah today?'"

"While he paused for effect, a farmer yelled, 'He's stahving!' Kennedy almost collapsed with laughter as the audience joined in."

This fascinating, somewhat gossipy book (published by Macmillan) makes wonderful reading. If you can't afford to buy it at $19.95—borrow it.

Low-birth-weight babies occur two times more often to 15-year-olds and young, while infant death risk is twice as high for teen mothers than for those in their 20's. The maternal death risk is 60 percent higher for young teenagers.

End

By Erma Bombeck

Some women dedicate their lives to African violets. Others are fascinated by Russian history. Me? I'm an authority on roaches, ants, mice, crickets and mosquitoes.

My eyes can pick up a shadow running across a baseboard during an eclipse. I can pick a mosquito off a ceiling with a rolled-up copy of Good Housekeeping, using the bed as a trampoline. I can tell when a cricket is chafed just by the way his back legs are rubbing together.

Sometimes I wish I had the Disney-type mentality toward animals that my husband has. To him every mouse is Mickey, every cricket is Jiminy, every squirrel is Rocky, and why can't we all live in the forest together in harmony?

For openers, anything in fur that is not on a hanger terrifies me. If I wanted the animals to live in the house with me, I'd give them their own key.

I'm always looking for a miracle. Some humane way of ridding the house of these pests without my having to track them down, with specially trained guard dogs, bait traps or poisons that reduce them to dust.

I visited a hardware store a few weeks back and the salesman was ecstatic. He showed me one of those sonic boxes that you just plug into the wall and voila, every insect in the house goes running into the streets holding its ears.

I was suspicious. "What's it sound like?" "We don't know," he said. "Only the insects hear it."

"How do we know they hear it?" "You never see them again."

"Do dogs hear it?" "No, only the insects you want to get rid of."

"Can they hear it under the sink when the cupboard doors are closed?" "Yes."

"Does it make them crazy? Destroy their hearing? Maybe we're creating a new threat... insects and rodents with impaired hearing."

"No," he persisted. "Where do they go when they run out of the house?" I asked.

"Probably next door." "And then she buys these sonic things?"

"And they move on," he said.

"Where do they eventually wind up?" "Someplace where they have no electricity," he snapped. "Maybe the ocean."

I bought eight of them at $39.95 each.

I want to believe, but yesterday I thought I saw two crickets dancing in time to something.

Of the 655 abortions to Pitt County residents in 1981, 204 were to teenagers 15 to 19.

Decisiveness Welcome

Ronald Reagan has, at last, backed up the image of the candidate who projected a strong United States of America, one that would act to protect its interests and those of its citizens.

Members of Congress question the legality of Reagan's order committing American troops to an invasion of tiny Grenada and, truthfully, there may be some merit to the question. But after the frustration of Korea, the debacle of Vietnam, the humiliation of the Iranian hostage situation and now the uncertainty and tragedy in Lebanon, we welcome a decisive move on the part of this country.

Reagan says the reason was done to protect the approximately 1,000 Americans on Grenada, some of whom had been denied permission to leave the country, and at the request of other maritime nations in the Caribbean. Dissenters in Congress contend it was more of a unilateral move by Reagan to oust an even more Marxist government so close to home.

We don't know. And until the ardor of the situation cools, we won't know.

The wisdom of age and experience as displayed by House Speaker Tip O'Neill should guide us all at this point.

O'Neill pressed by reporters for comment on the invasion, says simply, "It's no time for the press of America or we in public life to criticize our country when our troops are being caught up."

Vietnam should have taught us that lesson. Hopefully, others less wise than O'Neill will follow his lead, acting calmly and deciding with reason.

Important Gift

The Humber House at 117 W. Fifth St., which was given to the city and county by the Humber family, was dedicated with an open house Sunday.

The new dedicated house will serve as the office of the Eastern Division of Archives and History.

The house was built in 1895 by Robert Lee Humber Sr. and was the home of his son, Dr. Robert Lee Humber, until his death. His son, Dr. John D. Humber, a physician, was present at the ceremonies. Also present were Marcel B. Humber and John L. Humber, sons of Dr. Robert Lee Humber.

The house is an excellent example of 19th century architecture, of which has almost disappeared in the Greenville area. The Humber heirs have made an important gift to the community. Use of the house as an Archives and History office assures that the structure will be maintained, and the new office here will be another asset in making Greenville a focal point of Eastern North Carolina.

It probably is a waste of time, energy and indignation to denounce the latest effort to castrate the Holy Bibles by vandalism of this magnitude ought not to go unremarked. The National Council of Churches is out to take the sex out of Scripture in the name of God, what is the council up to now?

This particular piece of desecration is a 112-page "Inclusive Language Lectionary" intended for use in Episcopal, Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian and Roman Catholic churches. A lectionary is a liturgical lesson for a particular day. Passages come from both the Old and New Testaments.

The council's purpose is to rewrite these passages so as to eliminate references to gender, to be inclusive, to spread the gospel. Thus Jesus no longer would be identified as the "son" of God, but rather as the "child" of God. In this egalitarian version, it is "God the Father" and "Mother." The word "king" gives way to "ruler," and "kingdom" yields to "realm." No longer is a promise made "to Abraham and his descendants," but rather "to Abraham (and Sarah) and their descendants."

Up to a point, it is possible to be sympathetic toward the aim of these misguided revisers. In recent years most of us in the writing business have become sensitive to feminist complaints against sexism in the English language. There is something to be said for the argument that such terms as "man-power" and "man-hours" tend to denigrate the value of women's role in the marketplace. When it is possible to avoid offense by eliminating pronouns of gender, it is a fair and prudent thing to do so.

But the rewriting urged by the National Council of Churches is indefensible. One example will suffice. In Matthew's account of the Last Supper, Jesus announces that he is about to be betrayed, and the apostles ask, "Lord, is it I?" The King James version

WASHINGTON (AP) — The invasion of Grenada and the death of more than 200 American Marines in Lebanon complicates President Reagan's foreign policy just as he draws near to a decision on whether to seek re-election.

Reagan was ready to roll on a platform of "peace through strength," but now may have to justify the invasion of the Caribbean country and his determination to keep Marines on duty — and in danger — in the Middle East.

The death toll in Lebanon, highest since the Vietnam War, is stirring up Congress, and not because the legislators disagree with Reagan's dual goals of bolstering the Beirut government and improving the chances of peace between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

Congress shares those objectives. But it knows how much Vietnam has left its mark on the American psyche. The national interests of the United States must be at stake — clearly, for all to see — before the voters will endorse a military venture overseas.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, a Maryland Republican, reflected that sentiment after the Beirut massacre when he called for a clearer definition of U.S. goals in the Middle East.

Reagan attempted to provide it in a meeting Monday with regional editors and broadcasters at the White House. He said the Marines were in Lebanon to maintain order "while a government could be established... and their military could then acquire the capability necessary to reinstitute their control over their own borders."

In view of Lebanon's recent history, that could take several generations. Congress gave Reagan 18 months, and may be ready to reconsider.

The Grenada invasion is potentially more explosive for Reagan since it conjures up for critics the hip-shooter's image the president worked so hard in the Oval Office to erase.

"It is clear," said Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., "this administration has a cavalier attitude about using a military force to solve a diplomatic problem."

Secretary of State George Shultz said the Rangers and Marines were sent to Grenada to protect the nearly 1,000 U.S. citizens from being hurt or taken hostage "in an atmosphere of violent uncertainty" following last week's coup.

Supporters of Reagan in Congress detected an additional motive: to force the removal of a Marxist government, backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba.

If that is the case, the president may find it harder to defend risking American lives to sweep out Marxists than it is to use Marines as peacekeepers.

"One day we've got the number of Marine deaths which shocked us all, and the next day we find we are invading Grenada," Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., said Tuesday. "Are we looking for a war we can win?"

Reagan and the Republican National Committee were not looking for this sort of potential political trouble. Reagan still hasn't said he'll run again next year. And at a news conference only last Wednesday, he refused to be pinned down, saying only that, "down the road one day, probably in the not-too-distant future, probably before my birthday, I will put your minds all at rest, one way or the other."

Reagan will be 73 on Feb. 6.

The president, in keeping with the tradition of the office, planned to devote the year before the election to statesmanship. He will visit Japan and South Korea next month and make a high-profile visit to China in April.

American negotiators are trying to get an arms control agreement with the Soviet Union, and if Lebanon can be stabilized the president intends to make another stab at promoting an Arab-

Israeli settlement.

He may even hold a summit meeting next year with Soviet leader Yuri Andropov, although that would require a major improvement in relations between the two countries.

Presidents traditionally concentrate first on the economy and other domestic problems, then shift to international affairs in the second half of their administrations. Reagan is following the pattern.

"The main objective of the Reagan administration, as the president has demonstrated by his recent actions, is to preserve peace, security and freedom throughout the world," concluded the newsletter Talking Points in its mid-October issue.

Produced by the Republican National Committee, the newsletter advised GOP candidates to point out that "President Reagan has provided thoughtful, measured responses to the various world crises and initiated policy aimed at bringing about long-lasting peace."

Beginning with his denunciation of the Soviets for shooting down an unarmed South Korean passenger plane, Talking Points scanned Reagan's policies on arms control, the Middle East and Central America and found grounds for confidence.

That could change with this week's developments in the Mideast and the Caribbean. Reagan, suddenly, is on the defensive, explaining why he cannot let terrorists "drive us out" of Lebanon and the Persian Gulf. And why, in another part of the world, he had to introduce an additional U.S. force.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I am a young American Christian who is appalled but not surprised at the cruel and ruthless bombing at our Marine outpost in Lebanon.

I have kept alert on the Lebanon crisis since it started to erupt back when Israel first sent their troops into Lebanon. I have watched it grow into the uncontrollable inferno that it is today. As we try to suppress the fire, or put it out with water, the Russians throw more wood into it by sending military hardware and advisers to Syria.

I believe it is time to stop pretending and start searching for the answers to combat Russia's attempts of gaining footholds to spread their communistic poison throughout the free world. Russia will not stop building up, even if every other country stops. They want to have the power to do as they please, when they please, and the greater the nuclear disadvantage, the greater the possibilities become for their next victims.

What our great country has been doing to combat communism can be commended, but it should not be enough to keep the worry out of our minds. The only comforting thought is that God Himself is against Russia. I would suggest that anyone who hasn't read Ezekiel 38 and 39, written almost 2,500 years ago. Israel is my answer for the hope that will crush the threat of communism, because the Jews are God's chosen people and you just don't mess around with the Almighty. We are living in the latter years, the end of the church age and are approaching the tribulation period. Israel became a nation in 1948, a prophecy fulfilled. Let's wake up and start believing in the Lord. We're too peaceful toward Russia. We can't stop them, only slow them down. But there is hope, the one good thing that escaped from Pandora's box.

To the editor:

Try a little kindness! "Be not overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good." Romans 12:21. If we show kindness in a situation when the natural reaction is to become angry, we create an atmosphere that can bring the best out of people. A gentle understanding response drains off ill will, both in ourselves and in those who offend us. Paul wasn't writing pleasant platitudes when he admonished, "Be not overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good." He was laying down a workable principle that originated in the heart of God Himself.

A story is told of a boy who, with a little practice, could have grown into a juvenile delinquent. Coming from a broken home, he was hostile, undisciplined and a real menace. He was seen one day, hammer in hand, furiously pounding nails into a lady's house. She could have issued a sharp rebuke and a stern warning, but she remained calm, reached into her apron pocket, took out a dime, and held it out to the boy. "Please promise me you'll never do that again," she said. "Also, would you watch my house so that none of the other boys pound nail into it?"

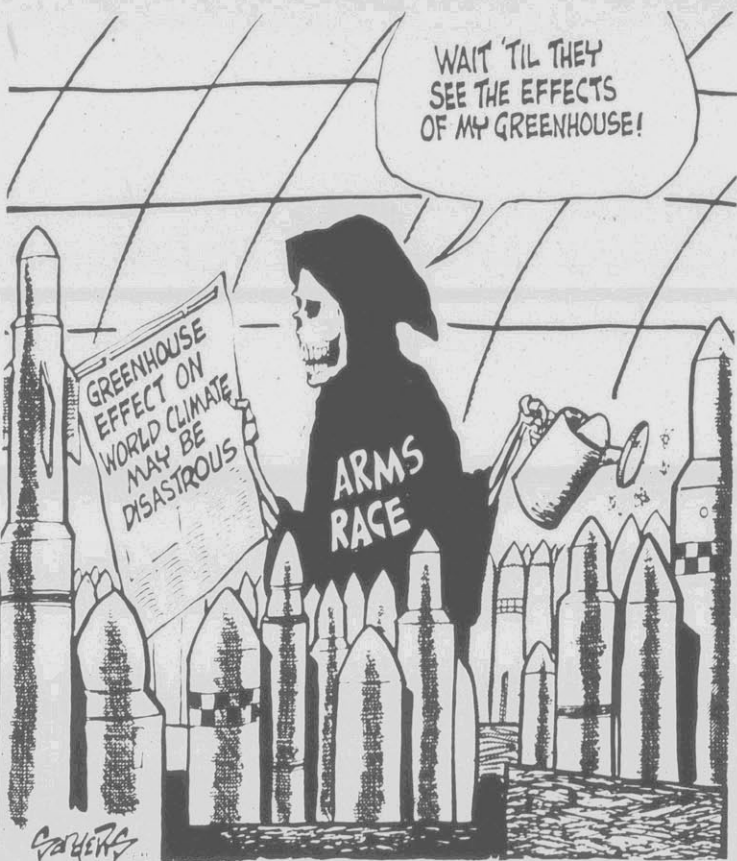

This kind deed had defused his rebellious heart and had taught him respect for property, for older people, and for himself. This could be the turning point in his life — a life away from crime. "Do a deed of simple kindness, Though its end you may not see; It will reach, like widening ripples, Down a long eternity. If you sow kindness, you'll reap a crop of friends."

Biblical Revisions Draw Columnist's Wrath

continues: "And he answered and said, 'He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me. The Son of man goeth as it is written of him; but woe unto that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed!'" The Revised Standard Version is virtually the same.

The NCC's new lectionary would put it this way: "Jesus answered, 'The one who has dipped a hand in the dish with me, will betray me. The Human One goes as it is written, but woe to that person by whom the Human One is betrayed!'"

The first trouble with that abominable revision may be stated simply: Matthew never wrote it that way. The Gospels were written in Greek. I will not be drawn into an argument about divine inspiration and the word of God; theology is off my beat. But I know something of the art of translation and of the respect that is owed to an original author.

It is patent dishonesty — it is an act of corruption in the most literal sense — to put into the mouth of Matthew words that Matthew did not say. John never wrote that "God so loved the world that God gave God's only Child." The Greek passage cannot possibly be mistranslated by anyone who sets out to do a faithful job. The words are not "only child." The words are "only son."

The council's recasting is not only dishonest; it is the product of an essentially mistaken notion that "man" is invariably a sexist noun. This is nonsense. Only the most wildly militant feminists believe that

"Man does not live by bread alone" applies to males only. Who is so blockheaded as to argue that "mankind" excludes women? The NCC revisers evidently are that blockheaded. Observe the contrived and clumsy translations they have cooked up in this lectionary.

My guess is that most congregations will reject the council's neutering out of hand. The new lectionary is only the most recent of a score of well-intended efforts along the same line. None of the predecessors has caught on, and I doubt that English-speaking Christians are yet ready to address their prayers to God the Father (and Mother), or to God the Chairperson either.

Helms May Suffer From King Attacks

WASHINGTON — Professional campaign managers who felt Sen. Jesse Helms was slowly cutting into Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt's big lead in North Carolina's 1984 Senate race have thrown up their hands over his Senate attack on Martin Luther King.

Helms unleashed his futile campaign against the King, holiday bill without the support of even such longtime North Carolina advisers as Tom Ellis and Carter Wrenn. Paid consultants who objected were brushed off by the senator.

Polls show that Hunt's once monumental lead over Helms had dwindled to 10 percentage points with prospects for further narrowing, but the bitter Senate battle last week may change that trend. Although North Carolina's black population is considerably smaller than that of its Deep South neighbors, Helms's stance did not help his shaky position with the state's traditional Republicans.

The choice post of U.S. ambassador to Israel was slated for Robert McFarlane if conservative opposition to his appointment as President Reagan's national security adviser had blocked him.

The current ambassador, Samuel Lewis, has been eyeing a new job for months. His seven years in Tel Aviv mark the second longest tenure of any American envoy to Israel. The selection of McFarlane would have surprised Arab leaders, who erroneously assume that only pro-Israeli Americans are sent to Israel as ambassador. A non-political technician, McFarlane is unusually balanced in dealing with the Arab-Israeli struggle.

Jimmy Carter has sent a warning to Walter F. Mondale through private channels to lay off his strongly protectionist pledges to the labor unions.

The former president is worried that his vice president, whom he is backing for the presidential nomination, has gone too far toward protectionism. Carter particularly objects to Mondale's all-out support of the domestic content bill pushed by the United Auto Workers. Jimmy's message to old pal Fritz: If you have to make protectionist gestures to please Big Labor, that's understandable. But don't go too far or your country will be the loser.

An SOS from Sen. John Glenn to high-powered campaign consultant David Doak for help in his badly lagging Iowa campaign next February is "under study" by Doak's boss, Robert Squier, and may be rejected. Polls show Glenn falling further behind Walter F. Mondale for next February's Iowa caucuses.

Strength For Today

Shakespeare in one of his plays declares:

"Our doubts are traitors.

And make us lose the good we oft might win

By fearing to attempt."

This quotation tells only part of the story. Doubt about the correctness of existing explanations of natural phenomena is the well-spring of scientific discovery. There is no evil in religious doubt if it leads to further understanding. Doubt is evil only when it eventuates in skepticism — an unwillingness to pursue further any proposition under consideration.

Shakespeare had in mind a variety of doubt which paralyzes effort. If we doubt our ability to do certain things, we certainly will not achieve. If we continually doubt our friends, we shall never have close friendship.

So let us remember that doubt should not be a hardened attitude but a process leading to disclosure and discovery.

White House Says Andropov Trying To Split Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says the Soviet Union is trying to "split the allies" by threatening to walk out on the nuclear arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

The State Department also said Wednesday the latest proposals by Soviet President Yuri Andropov contain "critical shortcomings." Andropov's positions were outlined in an interview with the newspaper Pravda and relayed by the official Soviet news agency Tass.

"The public presentation of these proposals before they were presented in the negotiations in Geneva shows that the Soviet intention is to split the allies and their publics," the department statement said.

Andropov said in the interview that the Soviet Union is willing to continue the talks on reducing nuclear weapons in Europe if the deployment of 572 American cruise and Pershing missiles does not begin as scheduled in December.

There had previously been Soviet threats to break off the talks, but the Andropov statement was the first clear statement from the Soviet leader that "the appearance of new American missiles in Western Europe will make a continuation of the present talks in Geneva impossible."

Calling that "totally unjustified," the State Department reaction said that the United States has negotiated in good faith for years while the numbers of Soviet SS-20 medium-range missiles aimed at west European targets has "risen dramatically."

Andropov also said the Soviet Union was willing to end deployment of its medium-range SS-20 missiles in the Asian part of the Soviet Union, and is ready to consider altering its demands for cutbacks by NATO countries in the number of aircraft capable of carrying nuclear weapons.

U.S. spokesmen made these specific responses:

- What Andropov is offering is a freeze on Soviet SS-20 missiles in Asia which appears to seek to legitimize the deployment of such missiles in Soviet Asia.
- In addition, "the offer of a freeze contains a number of loopholes and ambiguities, which make it unclear that Soviet deployments actually would be affected."
- "The proposal regarding aircraft is too vague to evaluate at this point," although the United States stands ready to explore possible aircraft limitations.
- "The Soviet offer to reduce to about 140 missiles in Europe suggests Soviet recognition that a balance does not now exist, and should be established through Soviet reductions. The Soviet Union still seeks, however, a monopoly on (medium-range) missiles which would leave it with some 750 launchers on missiles, while the U.S. had none."
- A Soviet offer to unilaterally reduce medium-range missiles if the United States and its allies accept a delay in their own deployment schedule "would apply only to obsolescent SS-4 missiles, which are in any case being removed, not to SS-20's."

— On the Soviet claim that a moratorium on SS-20 deployment remains in effect: Since the moratorium was first declared in March 1982 the Soviets have added 54 SS-20 missiles in or within range of Europe and have built new base complexes in Asia, "bringing the deployed number of deployed SS-20's to 360 — 63 more than when the moratorium was first declared."

No Economic Slowdown For N. C.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The expected slowing of economic growth failed to materialize in the third quarter of 1983, signalling a brighter future for consumers, according to the senior economist at First Union National Bank.

"The slowing of the growth rate that was expected in the third quarter really didn't show up," G.B. Carrier said Wednesday. "The economy is still robust, still growing."

He said a steady decline in unemployment, decreasing inflation and an increase in personal income have boosted consumer confidence in the economy.

"It gives the consumer more confidence and more willingness to go out and spend the money he earns," Carrier said.

"The consumer can still feel confidence in the economy for the next few months," he added. "The pace of the recovery will slow down somewhat, but we will continue to see a pretty solid growth rate through the first half of 1984."

According to First Union figure, the gross national product increased 7.9 percent in the third quarter of this year — down slightly from the 9.7 growth rate in the second quarter. Meanwhile, the state's unemployment rate dropped to 7.4 percent in September — the lowest since December 1981. Carrier said 3 million new jobs have been created nationwide since February.

starts "one of the strongest and best things going on in the economy, one of the things that helped pull us out of the recession."

Carrier said more housing usually sparks increased consumer demand for durable and nondurable goods, keeping the cycle of recovery going as manufacturers recall laid-off workers to keep pace with the demand.

However, the lack of available money for business loans may be the final roadblock to a full recovery, Carrier said.

"If recovery is to be sustained, we need to see more capital spending in the next few months," Carrier said. "One threat to the recovery is that capital spending may not happen. Capital spending is the key to keeping the recovery moving in the next year."

NATO Ministers To Talk Deployment

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
MONTEBELLO, Quebec AP — Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger is likely to win an endorsement from Western allies today for withdrawing obsolete U.S. nuclear warheads from Europe but could run into critical questioning about the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

Already, the British and Canadian governments have registered their displeasure with the invasion, and smaller countries skeptical of muscle-flexing by the superpowers are apt to follow their lead.

Until President Reagan sent U.S. troops to the eastern Caribbean spice island, this semi-annual meeting of 14 allied defense ministers promised to be relatively smooth.

Reagan ordered U.S.

Marines and Army paratroopers into Grenada on Tuesday, saying the invasion was necessary to protect the 1,000 Americans on the island and restore democracy to a nation run by "a brutal group of leftist thugs."

Greece has let it be known it intends to raise objections to the planned NATO deployment of new medium-range missiles in western Europe beginning in December. Denmark and possibly others may register their reservations, as well.

But Weinberger was expecting approval of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization study commission's recommendation that some 1,500 U.S. battlefield nuclear warheads be phased out. Another 1,000 were retired in 1979.

Some of the warheads are being replaced by the Pershing 2 ballistic missiles and jet-propelled cruise missiles the United States will deploy in West Germany, Britain and Italy beginning in December unless an arms reduction agreement is reached in Geneva with the Soviet Union.

Unlike these intermediate-range missiles, the ones that would be dismantled are unable to reach Soviet territory.

The NATO countries decided in 1979 to set out 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles unless the Soviet Union agreed to cut back its triple-warhead SS-20s aimed at Western Europe.

The warhead withdrawal proposal is part of a report by the study group on modernizing NATO's nuclear forces which Weinberger discussed with Reagan at the White House on Wednesday.

Afterward, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan attached "special importance" to the report and hoped it would be adopted.

But Weinberger may not have an easy time of it in this riverside retreat 40 miles east of Ottawa when the issue of the Grenada invasion is raised.

While British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher did not directly challenge the invasion, she said Tuesday she had expressed "very considerable doubts" to Reagan about the U.S. plan.

Canada, the host country for this NATO conference, took even sharper exception.

Foreign Ministry officials Wednesday summoned U.S. Ambassador Paul Robinson to deliver a note demanding proof that the invasion was necessary to protect American citizens on the Caribbean island.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau told Parliament that it appeared the United States and six small Caribbean nations invaded principally to install a "different kind of government" in Grenada.

"It wasn't so much a question of protecting nationals as ensuring a government which is compatible with their views of how a government should operate," Trudeau said. "And if there is no further explanation than that, I think we would quite clearly say the actions were unjustified."

Canadian officials in Washington expressed annoyance that permission has not been granted for a Canadian armed forces plane to land on Grenada and evacuate about 50 Canadian citizens.

The talks on intermediate-range nuclear weapons reduction continue in Geneva, but with little prospect of a last-minute breakthrough.

The Soviet Union has said it was responding to the NATO plans to deploy new missiles by preparing bases

Brooks said Greenville's total of $5,880,310 ranked seventh among the state's 44 cities of more than 10,000 population.

The Greenville total included $2,355,317 for 62 single-family units; $494,635 for 30 multifamily units; $2,396,985 for 29 nonresidential structures; and $633,373 for 53 additions and alterations. Brooks said 174 units were authorized here during August.

Pitt County issued permits amounting to $5,983,610 in August, including the Greenville total. The county figure included $2,405,317 for 63 single-family units; $494,635 for 30 multifamily units; $2,396,985 for 29 nonresidential structures; and $686,673 for 60 additions and alterations.

The 44 cities authorized 4,321 new construction units during August, up 31.2 percent from 3,294 a year earlier and 8.4 percent from July's 4,087.

Brooks said the estimated value of the units, at $150,321,850, rose 41.3 percent from last August's $106,390,432, and 16.8 percent from $128,675,347 in July.

Compared to last August, the average construction cost for a single-family home rose 15.6 percent, to $45,984 from $39,787. The average gained 9.8 percent from July's $41,886.

Building values for August in several eastern towns included: Elizabeth City, $158,900; Goldsboro, $1,140,700; Jacksonville, $3,755,965; Kinston, $184,500; New Bern, $989,138; Roanoke Rapids, $403,444; Rocky Mount, $4,833,327; Tarboro, $434,900; and Wilson, $1,805,708.

Suspended In Prison Probe

RALEIGH, N.C. AP — Evidence of personal misconduct, falsification of records and excessive force by staff members at Piedmont Correctional Center in Salisbury led to the suspension of Superintendent Robert L. Hinton Jr. and four other officers, an official says.

Rae H. McNamara, director of the state Division of Prisons, said in a prepared statement issued Wednesday that an investigation by the state Department of Correction, legal staff and the North Carolina Attorney General's office was continuing. She declined to elaborate on the violations, citing State Personnel Act privacy guarantees.

Hinton, 44, a correction department employee since 1971, will not be reinstated at Piedmont, Ms. McNamara said.

"His status with the Division remains undecided pending the final outcome of this investigation," she added.

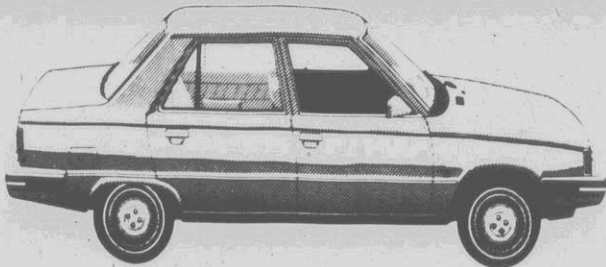

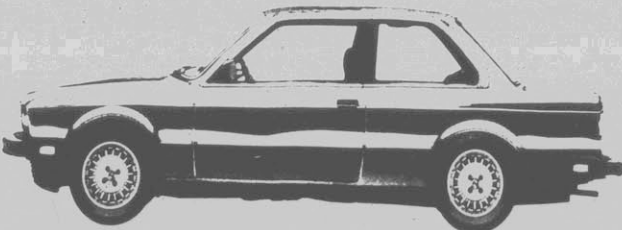

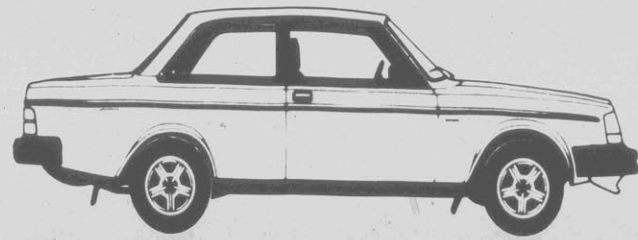

Hinton will be succeeded by Robert M. Gupton, superintendent of the Wayne Correctional Center at Goldsboro, Ms. McNamara said.

Congress Is Stunned By The Events

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
"It's surrealistic," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., of the three days that saw the death of more than 200 Marines in Lebanon and a U.S. invasion of Grenada.

Since last weekend, there has been an atmosphere of stunned surprise and incredulity on Capitol Hill over events in the Middle East and the Caribbean.

"Where is the next war?" was a common wisecrack heard in the halls of the House and Senate.

"This is Wednesday and we must be in Grenada, or Nicaragua or Lebanon or God knows where tomorrow," said Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif. "If we follow the reasoning of some of my colleagues, we may well be cheering on American forces in dozens of countries all over the world."

Similarly, Rep. William R. Hatchford, D-Conn., said, "Every time we wake up, we are committing ourselves somewhere else in the world."

Even as House members and senators sought information about progress of the fighting in Grenada, there was business as usual on the floor of both houses of Congress.

In the Senate, the issue was the Clinch River Breeder Reactor. In the House, the nuts and bolts of how much the Pentagon should spend for Air Force planes and Army tanks.

But off the floor, senators and House members struggled on how to react publicly to the involvement of the United States in two foreign wars.

Support or criticism of President Reagan's policies in Lebanon and the Caribbean generally fell along party lines, but not always.

In an unusual alignment, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., a liberal Democrat from Massachusetts, agreed with conservative Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., that the Marine command failed to adequately prepare for possible terrorist attacks against the military headquarters in Beirut.

"It was a military blunder of a tragic nature," said O'Neill.

"What we need are physical barriers to vehicles so this kind of attack won't be repeated," said Humphrey, almost in echo.

A few, like Rep. Buddy Roemer, D-La., said they support the Grenada invasion, but want the United States out of Lebanon.

Roemer said while the Reagan administration failed to adequately explain what the Marines are doing in Lebanon, "The mission of the Marines and rangers (in Grenada) was clearly enunciated by the secretary of state."

O'Neill made an emotional patriotic appeal for the need to back the American forces during a closed meeting of House Democrats Wednesday. "I think the speaker made the most passionate speech I've heard in seven years in Congress," said Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass.

In reply, Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., O'Neill's principal opponent on Lebanon, said, "It was a great mistake to wrap the mantle of Americanism around himself. We're all Americans."

Planning Own Identity Tests

IPSWICH, Mass. (AP) — The mother of an Air Force pilot shot down over Laos in 1972 says her family plans its own identity tests on her son's remains, which the Air Force told her have been found.

Inge Hardy said Wednesday she was notified last week the body of Capt. Arthur H. Hardy, who would have been 35 on Nov. 7, has been positively identified at the Central Military Laboratory in Hawaii. She is awaiting word on when the body will be returned home.

"If it happens to be true — I don't think relieved is the right word — but the worrying will be over," Mrs. Hardy said.

Marines In Beirut Complete Their Survivor List

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines today completed a list of survivors of the terrorist bombing of their Beirut command post and searched the wreckage for more victims as the death toll rose to 221.

Capt. Wayne Jones, a Marine spokesman, said bodies of those killed in the suicide truck-bomb attack on the Marine command post were being flown to the American Rhine-Main Air Base in West Germany. He provided no specific figures on what the military called its "live list," but the Pentagon said there were 1,700 servicemen not killed or wounded in the bombing and began releasing the names in batches.

Jones said more than 450 servicemen at the camp had called home on telephone circuits that had been set up for them.

The command center at Beirut's international airport was flattened by a truck bomb driven into the building's lobby by a suicide terrorist at daybreak Sunday.

Search efforts continued today both at the Marine post and at the wreckage of a nine-story headquarters of a French paratroop company about a mile away. The French Defense Ministry put its casualty toll from the almost simultaneous truck-bombing at 54 killed, 15 wounded and four missing and presumed dead.

Cpl. Randy Barefoot, 21, of Kenly, N.C., who was helping to dig through the wreckage at the Marine camp Wednesday, said: "We've given up hope anybody is alive. All the floors are pressed down and everything is squished."

Vice President George Bush inspected the disaster site Wednesday and also met with President Amin Gemayel and the commanders of the French and Italian peacekeeping forces in Lebanon.

He landed while the Marines at Beirut airport were on their highest state of alert following a dawn attack with small arms, mortars and bazookas. No Marines were hit.

The vice president returned to the United States Wednesday night. On arrival at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, he said he impressed upon Gemayel "the absolute essentiality of working with all intelligence services to find these culprits. This simply cannot go unpunished."

In Paris, U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and the foreign ministers of Britain, France and Italy held an emergency meeting today to discuss the role of the multinational peacekeeping force after the bombings. All four countries contribute contingents to the force.

Shultz told reporters he expected the meeting would "generate some ideas" on restoring stability in Lebanon. He said there are no plans to increase the size of the peacekeeping unit but added: "All of us will be looking to the security of our own forces."

A U.S. State Department official in Washington said another likely topic was the role of a new force of Italian and Greek observers to police the civil war cease-fire that took effect Sept. 26.

Official Lebanese sources said Italy and Greece were awaiting the outcome of a reconciliation conference among Lebanon's warring factions before finally deciding on sending the observers.

The Gemayel government repeated that it is still planning to convene the conference among Lebanon's warring Moslem and Christian leaders Monday in Geneva, Switzerland.

Leaders of the Syrian-backed anti-government National Salvation Front assembled in Damascus, Syria, today to map out strategy for the conference.

Involved in the discussions are former Lebanese President Suleiman Franjeh, a Maronite Catholic, former Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem, and Walid Jumblatt, leader of the leftist Druse.

Jumblatt announced in Damascus that he was ordering his troops "for humanitarian reasons" to allow 1,000 Christians trapped behind Druse lines in Deir al-Kamar to leave starting Saturday.

Thousands of Christians fled to Deir al-Kamar, 14 miles southeast of Beirut, to escape fighting in surrounding villages last month, only to be trapped because Druse militiamen controlled the roads.

The privately-owned Central News Agency, which has close ties to Gemayel's administration, said Syria and Saudi Arabia were invited on Wednesday to send observers to the meeting.

Such a move, along with the meeting itself, was called for in the Sept. 26 cease-fire ending three weeks of Christian-Druse fighting in the central mountains.

The fighting began after Israeli troops pulled out of the mountains to safer positions in southern Lebanon.

The Israelis, who invaded Lebanon in June 1982 in an attempt to smash the Palestine Liberation Organization, have agreed to withdraw from the country if the Syrians get out.

But the Syrians, in Lebanon since ending the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war, have refused.

Shultz, speaking to reporters during his flight from Washington to Paris, said Israel's redeployment may have contributed to the current Lebanese crisis.

"It is clear that the Israeli redeployment — which we counseled against — has led to a great deal of conflict. There has been a perception in Syria of a different attitude of Israel, and that has made quite an impact on the situation," he said. Washington had argued against Israel's redeployment last month to southern Lebanon on grounds it would reduce chances of a withdrawal of foreign armies and increase the likelihood of a permanent partition of Lebanon.

Families Hear Good, Bad News

By The Associated Press

The news that Lance Cpl. Billy Jay Ritch survived Sunday's terrorist bombings in Lebanon and the news that Cpl. Michael Mercer was killed ended the terrible waiting for their families in North Carolina.

Not so for the family of Cpl. John Williamson, reported missing in action.

Anna Trogon of Asheboro said Tuesday that her husband was a mile away from the explosion.

"I am on top of the world," said Ritch. "Right now, as far as I know, he's fine," she said. "It sounds fantastic to know he's still alive." Mercer's family scrapped plans to meet him at the Beirut airport when he was reported missing in action.

He had a week and a half before he boarded the plane, his mother, Nell Mercer, said Wednesday at her home in Vale.

"We had already made plans to go to Morehead City when the ship came in. He wrote and said he was proud we were going to be there."

"He loved everybody," said Mrs. Eckard. "Even the neighbor's pets were so attached to him. He loved nature — he could get out and walk in the woods for hours — simple things."

For some reason, I think he had to prove himself — that he was man enough to be a Marine," she added. "He made the remark that he was real anxious to go. He wanted to fight for his country if that's what it took."

Jewel and Bill Williamson of Seagrove feared the worst when a white paneled van carrying two Marine officers arrived at Mrs. Williamson's home, little knowing that the news they would receive would only prolong their waiting.

"I saw them (the officers) come out the door and I knew what happened. I don't know how I felt, it was rough," said Williamson. "Missing in action is all they could offer us for the time being ... just missing in action."

Williamson, blinking back tears, said he never wanted his son to join the service.

"But he said, 'Pop I want to see the world.'"

Until recently, the younger Williamson's unit was stationed at the southern end of the Beirut airport but was moved to the headquarters building this month.

"He worked the radar and there was a boy that went out and took his place so Johnny was moved to the building," said his father.

In a letter dated Oct. 12 that Mrs. Williamson got Saturday, her son wrote: "Hi Mom! Only 37 more days!"

Tires Stolen

Greenville police are investigating the reported theft of three automobile tires from inside a vehicle parked in the Econo-Travel Motor Hotel on Memorial Drive.

Owner R.L. Gorham said the tires were reported stolen from a station wagon owned by Tri-County Tire Co. of Chesapeake, Va. Gorham said the value of the property was estimated at $130.

The theft was reported Wednesday at 7 a.m.

Shultz Suspects Israel Pullback A 'Signal'

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz feels Israel's troop withdrawal from Lebanon's central mountains was viewed by Syria as a sign of weakness and made it less willing to remove its forces from Lebanon. U.S. officials said today.

Shultz arrived in Paris this morning for a one-day meeting with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and Italy on the future of the four nations' peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

The one-day meeting was called after nearly 300 American and French troops of the multinational force were killed in twin bombings by suicide terrorists Sunday. Italian and British forces were not attacked.

The senior officials, who asked not to be identified, flew with Shultz to Paris.

Speaking to reporters aboard his flight from Washington, Shultz said, "It is clear that the Israeli redeployment — which we counseled against — has led to a great deal of conflict. There has been a perception in Syria of a different attitude of Israel, and that has made quite an impact on the situation."

Washington had argued against Israel's redeployment last month to southern Lebanon on grounds that it would reduce chances of a withdrawal of foreign armies and increase the likelihood of a permanent partition of Lebanon.

Shultz said he expects the meeting to "generate some ideas" on restoring peace and stability in Lebanon, but indicated he does not foresee any dramatic new steps. He said there are no plans to increase the size of the peacekeeping force.

But he said, "All of us will be looking to the security of our own forces."

Shultz also said he was prepared to answer questions from the other foreign ministers about the U.S. invasion of Grenada. The French have criticized the move and the British, who refused to join in the invasion, also have voiced reservations.

He said he did not know "how much difference of opinion" there is among the allies. He said he talked twice by telephone Wednesday with British Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe, who, Shultz said, voiced support for a return to constitutional government in Grenada.

Shultz told reporters the Cuban presence in Grenada was "more extensive, more in a military mode, more organized" than Washington had thought. He said American troops were uncovering "a lot of interesting material" but declined to elaborate.

Shultz said the United States would respond at the arms control talks in Geneva to the latest Soviet proposals on medium range nuclear missiles in Europe.

But he said it still appears Moscow wants "a monopoly" on such missiles, which he said "is not in the end something we will agree to."

As for the threat of Soviet leader Yuri Andropov to walk out of the Geneva talks when NATO begins deploying U.S.-made missiles later this year, Shultz said the Soviets have continued to deploy their missiles despite NATO's objections since 1979.

"It ill behooves them to take the position that if we deploy, they won't negotiate," he said. He voiced a new U.S. willingness to continue negotiations to achieve an agreement even after missiles are deployed.

Regarding Syria, Shultz said Damascus is still unwilling to discuss a withdrawal of its estimated 50,000 troops from Lebanon's Bekaa Valley. Israel has agreed to a complete pull-out of its forces, provided Syria also withdraws.

Earlier, a State Department official in Washington said the foreign ministers probably would decide on "a show of unity" to demonstrate their resolve in maintaining the 5,600-member force in Lebanon. But he said it was unlikely they would announce any dramatic change in the size or role of the force.

He said they probably would discuss an expanded role for a new force that is supposed to monitor last month's cease-fire between leftist Moslem militias and Christian and Lebanese government forces. The cease-fire force is supposed to be made up of Italian and Greek troops that would be separate from the main multinational force.

The official, who insisted on anonymity, said the cease-fire force may be deployed in some residential neighborhoods of Beirut, in addition to patrolling cease-fire lines that divide contending forces in the Chouf mountains above Beirut.

The official said the foreign ministers also would discuss the outlook for the Lebanese national reconciliation talks, scheduled to open in Geneva on Monday.

Reputed Mob Figures Freed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Ten reputed mob figures, including the alleged bosses in Chicago and Milwaukee, were freed on bond after pleading innocent to conspiring to skim nearly $2 million in gambling profits from Las Vegas casinos.

The 10, who were among 15 people named in an eight-count federal indictment, appeared Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Calvin K. Hamilton. The defendants included Joseph J. Aiuppa, 76, of Chicago and Frank P.

Balistreri, 65, of Milwaukee, both identified by federal investigators as the organized crime bosses in those cities.

The indictment alleged that the money was skimmed from casino receipts and distributed to the mob in 1978 and 1979.

Grenada Evacuees Grateful For Citizenship

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — More American students were evacuated from strife-torn Grenada today, bearing memories of diving under beds to evade gunfire, treating wounded troops in a lecture hall and waiting in terror until they were rescued by multinational forces.

"I can speak only for my own part, but a few of us (Americans) here are able to appreciate the meaning of U.S. citizenship. We are very, very, proud to be a part of this nation," said Stephen Hall of Hastings, Fla.

Some of the passengers kissed the ground after they arrived.

Seventy-four evacuees arrived at Charleston Air Force Base in two flights around 2:30 a.m. today, and 122 more arrived shortly before 5 a.m. Most passengers were American students at St. George's University Medical School.

Two flights airlifted 141 evacuees from the island on Wednesday.

Air Force spokesman George Sillia said later this morning that no more evacuees were expected at Charleston, but that could change.

"We lost everything," said Susan Winkler, a medical student from Oklahoma City who arrived early today. "But we have our lives. Nothing else matters."

Tracy McGahan of Lincoln, Neb., said she and fellow evacuees had to run 100 yards up a beach in shifts to reach helicopters waiting to fly them to safe positions.

"My husband and I and several others in our group had to hit the sand at one point because we were under fire," Ms. McGahan said.

None of those interviewed said they knew of Americans who were choosing to stay on the island.

Jeff Yusin, a medical student from Los Angeles who arrived in Charleston around 2:30 a.m. today, said there was little fighting when he left Grenada late Wednesday.

"At about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday morning we were all asleep and I heard gunshots," said Roxanna Marin of Fresh Meadows, N.Y., in an interview on ABC's "Nightline." "We just crawled to the back of our room and we laid there until about 8:10 praying for our lives because we thought we were going to die."

"The only time I felt safe was when I got into that lecture hall and they told me that it's Americans, don't worry, they're here to save us," she said.

A fellow student, Jeff Geller of Woodridge, N.Y., took photographs of fighting on the island. News reporters have been barred from Grenada.

Geller took pictures of the airstrip beside the school's True Blue campus, noting that "we didn't see much fighting, but we did hear a lot of it."

He said most students headed for a large lecture hall, which they converted into a makeshift emergency room for wounded troops, and stayed there for 26 hours before leaving the island Wednesday.

Army Rangers arrived at the campus about two hours after the first shots were fired, students said.

"In comes this U.S. Ranger. He said, 'We're here to take you out if you want to go,'" said student Matthew Kern of Wayne, N.J., after he arrived at Newark International Airport late Wednesday. "We heard fire which scared the hell out of a lot of us."

"They wanted to get us out by 1 p.m. today," said Luke Megna of Princeton, N.J., who returned to Newark on Wednesday. "There was a lot of firing this morning and there were snipers around us last night."

Megna said he plans to return to medical school, "but not in Grenada."

"There is no way I would go back there," said Katherine Tracy of Stockbridge, Mass. But Geller and Ms. Marin said they were told they might lose their medical school tuition if they departed the island. "We did not want to lose either the money or the time. We were afraid we'd lose that if we left," Geller said.

"We're hoping to continue studying medicine. Many of us are hoping the school will relocate to Grand Turk," an island in the Bahamas, said Mary Antoinette Burns of South Pasadena, Calif.

Philip Underwood of Patchogue, N.Y., said a sniper's bullet blasted through the door of his dormitory room. He displayed the rug burns he got from "diving under my bed" to avoid the bullets.

"I don't think there's a more beautiful sight than being back in the United States or seeing the Rangers at the True Blue campus to save us," said Jean Joel of Albany, N.Y.

HOMEcoming — American students evacuated from St. George's University Medical School in Grenada say they are grateful that U.S. military forces rescued them from that embattled Caribbean nation. Bill Vanarthos, of Queens, N.Y., and Michael Lakow of New Rochelle, N.Y., were among those arriving Wednesday night. (AP Laserphoto)

Ham Operator Hailed As Hero

RIDGEFIELD, N.J. (AP) — The medical student who crouched by his ham radio for 48 hours as the din of fighting grew around him, giving the world its first account of the battle for Grenada, is being hailed as a hero and "the kind of guy to take charge."

Until Tuesday, 22-year-old Mark Baretella had used his radio only to call his family each week in Ridgefield, N.J., from St. George's University Medical School, to chat and to tell them what he needed in the way of food and supplies.

But after U.S. forces invaded the island that radio became the outside world's conduit to the scene of the fighting. The American student described how the multinational invasion force, including 2,000 U.S. troops, turned the island's sweeping beaches and scenic mountains into a battlefield.

"Every time a gunshot goes over, there's fire all around us," he reported, crouched under a table in his dormitory room.

"We're on the ground, waiting for the firing to stop. There's obviously snipers surrounding the entire campus. There are Cobra gunships passing over at this very minute."

Ham radio operators in the United States began monitoring his transmissions as dawn broke, and soon the State Department and reporters barred from Grenada were peppering him with questions.

With touches of humor, he tried to assure anxious parents that other students were safe.

"We're still holding here — machetes in hand," he said at one point. Later, he asked for "a shipment of about 4,000 White Castle hamburgers."

Baretella kept up a steady flow of accounts through Wednesday — at one point saying he could not fetch a car battery to power his radio because "the nearest car is too close to the nearest machine gun."

"When I heard about the situation, I knew we'd be hearing from Mark. He's the kind of guy to take charge like that," said Adrian Pristas of Pottsville, Pa., his former roommate at Pennsylvania's Wilkes College, where Baretella set up a student rescue service.

U.S. Rep. Frank J. Guarini, a Democrat who represents Baretella's northern New Jersey hometown, will recommend to President Reagan that the student be given "the highest possible civilian award," an aide to the congressman said.

May Enjoy Drought Aid

WASHINGTON AP — U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block agreed Wednesday to consider individual farmers' problems in counties not eligible for emergency drought relief, said Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C.

Jones said Block made the announcement during a one-hour meeting Wednesday with most of North Carolina's congressional delegation.

He said the meeting was aimed at getting Block to urge President Reagan to declare the whole state a disaster area because of the drought. So far, 35 counties have been declared disaster areas and thus made eligible for low-interest, emergency Farmers Home Administration loans.

Some isolated areas in counties suffered drought damage, too, Jones said. Block's decision would help farmers in those areas, including Pitt and Lenoir counties.

"It's not as much as I'd like to see but it's as much as we can get," Jones said.

He said Block also told the congressmen that he probably will release 80 million bushels of corn to livestock growers across the nation.

Jones said Rep. Jim Broyhill, R-N.C., was not present at the meeting and the state's Republican senators — John East and Jesse Helms — sent staff representatives.

Biggs

Mrs. Lula Taylor (Dot) Biggs, 50, of Route 13, Greenville, died Wednesday at her home. A graveside service will be conducted at 2 p.m. Friday in Greenwood Cemetery by the Rev. David LeBlanc.

Mrs. Biggs, a native of Greene County, had been a resident of Pitt County for the past 16 years. She was a retired employee of Empire Brushes.

Asserts Chief Was Briefed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The former head of the police department's defunct intelligence unit says he briefed Police Chief Darryl Gates weekly on the activities of various citizens' groups, including the Citizens Commission on Police Repression.

Robert Loomis, a retired captain who headed the Public Disorder Intelligence Division from October 1979 through June 1982, made the statement in a deposition released Tuesday by the American Civil Liberties Union. The ACLU has filed six suits charging the division with spying on individuals and organizations.

Department spokesman Cmdr. William Booth said he had not seen Loomis' statement and added, "Talking about a critic is far different from targeting that critic" for an investigation.

TRADEFAIR

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Tens of thousands of visitors are expected to attend the largest ever telecommunications trade fair, Telecom 83, which opened here Wednesday.

Surviving are three daughters, Miss Patricia Biggs of the home, Mrs. Sylvia Snyder and Miss Debra Biggs, both of Greenville; two brothers, Leslie Taylor and Mack Taylor, both of New Bern; two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Craft of Grifton and Mrs. Irene Barrington of Auburndale, Fla., and three grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the Wilkerson Funeral Home from 7-9 p.m. tonight. The family suggests that, in lieu of flowers, memorials be made to the American Cancer Fund.

Council

Mrs. Julia Slade Council, 84, of Route 11, Greenville, died Monday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at Bethel Temple Holiness in Bethel. Burial will follow in the Council Cemetery.

She was a native of Edgecombe County and made her home in Pitt County. She was a member of Enoch Chapel Primitive Baptist Church where she served on the mother board.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Reatha Mae Yarrell of the home; two sons, William Council Jr. of Bethel and Thomas Council of Philadelphia; 30 grandchildren; 61 great-grandchildren and eight great-great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at Flanagan Funeral Chapel Friday from 8-9 p.m. and other times will be at the home of Mrs. Yarrell, Route 11, Greenville.

Poultry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. The market is steady and the live supply is moderate for a moderate to good demand. Weights desirable to heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,770,000, compared to 1,732,000 last Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined today in selling ascribed to fresh doubts about interest-rate prospects.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial dropped 6.60 to 1,237.20 by noon.

Losers held a 95 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Wednesday the Treasury announced plans to sell $16 billion in notes and bonds next week, pending Congressional approval of an increase in the government's debt limit, adding to fears of upward pressure on interest rates in the near future.

Rates showed little change in credit-market trading this morning.

Precious-metals stocks fell for the second straight day following the drop of gold prices to 14-month lows on Wednesday. ASA lost 1 1/2 to 51 1/2, Homestake Mining 1 to 26 1/2, Campbell Red Lake 1/2 to 22, Dome Mines 1/2 to 11 1/2, and Sunshine Mining 1 1/2 to 10 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 49 to 94.92. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.34 at 213.77.

Volume on the Big Board came to 34.77 million shares at noon, against 36.35 million at the same point Wednesday.

SouthWest Edgecombe holding a 4-0 record with just two games remaining, and the attention now turns to the race for second place between Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton.

The Jaguars hold the edge in the standings this week with a 3-1 mark, but the Chargers aren't far behind at 2-2. Homecoming 1983 for Ayden-Grifton is tomorrow, with the stage set for a gridiron showdown between the cross-county rivals struggling for second place.

"We're looking forward to it; (their homecoming) is a nice incentive," Farmville Coach Gil Carroll said. "I see it as about as even a matchup as you could find. A Farmville team hasn't beaten Ayden-Grifton in the last three years.

and they don't give up a lot of points. We'll just have to wait and see."

The Jaguars spoiled North Pitt's homecoming 14-6 a week ago, and the Panthers have the task of playing at SouthWest to look forward to this time around. The Panther are 1-3 in the conference and 2-6 overall, while their opposition this week is 7-1 against all comers and ranks in the top 10 of the state.

The D.H. Conley Vikings suffered through a 49-12 trouncing at the hands of Coastal 3-A Conference co-leader Havelock, but this week they battle for the cellar with West Craven. The Vikings, motivated by Homecoming week festivities, will have a chance to pick up their first win in four conference outings, while West Craven owns an identical 2-6 overall mark and 0-3 in the league.

In other games involving area teams, Williamston hopes to hold on to its share of the three-way tie for first place in the Northeastern 3-A Conference race when the Tigers host Washington. Williamston, 3-1 in the conference and 7-1 overall, blanked Roanoke 27-0 last week, while the Pam Pack dropped to 3-3 in the league and 5-3 overall with a 33-13 loss to Tarboro.

Roanoke, 2-5 in the conference and 4-5 overall, closes out its schedule at Roanoke Rapids this week.

Elsewhere, second-place Jamesville hopes to improve its standing in the Tobacco Belt 1-A when the Bullets host

DHC's Ricky Rice

Mattamuskeet Friday. Jamesville shut out Belhaven 24-0 and now stands at 4-1 in the conference while 6-2 overall. Also, Chocowinity, now 1-4 and 1-6-1 after losing to Mattamuskeet 24-8 a week ago, hosts Bath.

FARMVILLE CENTRAL
"We knew they were going to be tough," Carroll said of North Pitt. "We moved the ball from 20 to 20, but we got bogged down when we should have scored."

The Panthers stand alone in second place in the conference, but a loss to Ayden-Grifton would even the race.

"They've got as explosive an offense as we've played," Carroll said. "They've got good backs at all three positions. We'll have to tackle well and avoid the big plays."

"If they drive, we want to make them move in 15 plays; make them grind it out. We can't afford to let them go the length of the field in eight plays."

"We've given up over 1,000 yards rushing so far, and they've got a good offensive line — they get off the line well. I just hope they don't move the ball down our throats."

"Defensively, they can confuse your offensive blocking if you're not prepared. We've never been able to move the ball on Ayden-Grifton, so it's a real challenge. But we're in a better position to be able to move the ball this year than we've been since I came here."

The Jaguars have a chance at their first winning season under Carroll, and the young coach thinks his players will be ready for the challenge.

"None of the boys I'm playing have ever had a winning season at Farmville, not even on the jayvee team," Carroll said. "That's a strong

Parrot, Evanses In Quarterfinal Play

WILSON — Rose High School and Washington each advanced a singles player and doubles team into the quarterfinals of the sectional tennis tournament at Wilson yesterday.

A win in the quarterfinals automatically qualifies a player for the regionals to be held next week.

Rose's single entry of Vickie Parrot joined Washington's Missy Fulmer in making it to the quarterfinals. The Rose doubles unit of Susan and Louise Evans qualified for the quarters, along with Washington's Kyle Sterns and Jessica Morse.

Eastern Wayne led the team standings through the first day with 24 points, while Rose and Fike were tied for second with 18 each. Washington was fourth with 13, while Hunt and Goldsboro were tied for fifth with 12 each.

Farmville Central and Roanoke each scored three points, while Greene Central failed to score.

Parrott downed Northeastern's Jackie Tolson, 7-5, 6-4, in the first round of play, then beat Armita Hammond of Plymouth, 6-2, 6-2. That was followed by a 6-1, 6-2 win over Frances Patteson of Hunt, moving Parrott into the quarterfinals.

Rose's other singles entry, Kelly Wall, downed Vivian Roebuck of Farmville Central, 6-0, 6-0, then beat Winborn Thorne of Currituck, 6-1, 6-1. She then lost to Eastern Wayne's Jana Sowers, 6-1, 6-2, bowing out of the competition.

Meanwhile Fulmer, after a first round bye, downed Roanoke's Ginya Smith by default and then topped Kathy Carrawan of Goldsboro, 6-2, 6-4 to advance to the quarterfinals.

Farmville, in addition to Roebuck's first round loss, saw Kathy Messer have a first round bye, then down Carol Voight of Edenton, 6-0, 6-0. She then lost to Cindy Dawson of Kinston, 6-1, 6-1.

Washington's Tammy Metters downed Christi Turner of Northern Nash, 6-2, 6-2, before bowing to Sowers, 6-1, 6-0. While Roanoke's Smith had a second round loss after a bye, its other singles entry, Marty Knox, lost to Paige Temple of Tarboro, 6-2, 6-1, after a first round bye.

Greene Central's Kathy Herring lost to Libby Horne of Roanoke Rapids, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5, while Kim Roth lost to Sowers, 6-0, 6-0.

In the doubles competition, Sterns and Morse, after a bye, defeated Beth Powell and Molly Michaux of Goldsboro, 4-6, 6-0, 6-4, before beating Stephanie Sharber and Celena Chase of Northeastern, 6-1, 6-2. That moved them into the quarterfinals.

Evans and Evans downed Gena Pridgen and Debbie Pittman of Charles B. Aycock, 7-5, 6-2 after having a bye in the first round. They followed that with a 6-0, 6-1 win over Marcie Geriger and Sunata Ghate of Fike to advance into the quarters.

Roanoke's Tara Knox and Debbie Atkinson had a bye, then lost to Aycock's Whitney Musgrave and Dawn Whitley, 6-0, 6-0.

Washington's Michelle Manning and Suellen Day lost to Hunt's Ansley Herring and Jensen Lund, 6-4, 6-3, in the first round.

Greene Central's Carla Edwards and Tangelia Craft, with a first round bye, lost to Sharber and Chase, 6-2, 6-1. Carol Jenkins and Jennifer Gay fell to Mariann Coward and Noell Uzzell of Eastern Wayne, 6-1, 6-0.

Rose's Katherine Land and Ann Davis defeated Karen Keeter and Nichole Robertson of Edenton, 6-3, 6-4, before losing to Musgrave and Whitley, 7-6, 6-3.

Play in the sectionals winds up today.

Best Game For Adams

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

When the East Carolina University football team's charter flight to Gainesville, Fla. detoured to Jacksonville to take on more fuel Friday, Stefan Adams' severe ear problems worried his coaches. Less than 24 hours later, he elevated any concern over his health with his best performance as a Pirate.

A pair of catches in ECU's final desperation drive nearly paved the way to an upset over the sixth-ranked Gators, but the game wound up as a 24-17 disappointment for the Pirates. Adams finished the game with six receptions for 90 yards.

"It was my best game overall since I came here as far as blocking and catching is concerned," Adams said. "But it was a big disappointment; we went down there with a lot of confidence."

The Pirates came out in the first quarter and took the opening drive 80 yards on 10 plays for a touchdown. The Gators had only been giving up 83 yards per game on the ground, but ECU amassed 199 on 49 running plays.

ECU held a 10-0 lead over Florida until the Gators crossed the goal with 42 seconds left in the first half. Florida went on to take a 17-10 advantage after three periods, but the Pirates rallied to knot the score in the fourth quarter.

Neal Anderson's six-yard run with 6:23 left on the clock set the final margin, but the Pirates never gave up.

The Pirates took over with 49 seconds remaining at their 10 yard line, but a sack by Wilber Marshall ECU back to the eight. An incomplete pass and another completed for no gain set up fourth and 12.

Quarterback Kevin Ingram fired over the middle toward Adams, but it was originally grabbed by a Gator defender before Adams wrestled it away for a 29-yard gain to the 37. Again Ingram passed to Adams, this time for two yards.

But the next pass to the junior split end picked up 27 more yards to the Florida 34. With time running out, Ingram set up in the shotgun formation with Adams, tight end Damon Pope and flanker Henry Williams wide to the left.

The result, however, was a fumble on the exchange which the Gators recovered at the horn.

"On the last long pass, (the Florida defender) acted like he didn't want it," Adams said. "So I took it away. I was upset at the team after the game. It seemed like some of them gave up."

"We had 'em, but we let them go. I knew if the defense could hold them, we'd have another chance to score."

"The last play was what we call 'victory pass.' Damon is tall, so he's there to try and tip the ball or make the catch if he can. John (Floyd) snapped the ball and Kevin couldn't handle it. It's a good play, it just never had a chance to work."

Four games remain on the Pirates' schedule, and the chance of a Top 20 ranking and a post-season bowl bid still remain. Adams went beyond what many collegiate football players do to prepare for the season — he set up a personal prognostication chart of what the ECU team would do in each of its 11 games.

So far, he's been correct. Narrow losses to Florida State and Florida have the Pirates at 5-2, and four more wins would prove Adams the expert at picking winners. East Tennessee State visits the East Carolina Saturday for Homecoming, and the Pirates will be ready for the test.

"This year we're going to go somewhere," Adams said. "A bowl game has been on our minds since spring practice. It's what we all want. If we let East Tennessee come in here and beat us, that's it; we can kiss it goodbye."

The ECU program has come a long way since Stefan and twin brother Calvin were recruited. Calvin starts at cornerback, while younger brother Amos is a newcomer this year at split end. Stefan picked East Carolina over N.C. State, Wake Forest and North Carolina A&T.

"When I was being recruited by State, they were playing East Carolina the night I went there for an official visit," Adams said. "I saw the kick return Anthony Collins (now with the New England Patriots of the NFL) ran for a touchdown, and I was impressed."

"When I came here for a visit, the people were nice, and I saw I'd have a chance to play."

"Beside that, Calvin and I wanted to go to the same school. They didn't offer Calvin anything at State, so I told them it was a package deal," he quipped.

Douglas Byrd Takes Over 4-A Lead

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH AP — Unbeaten Fayetteville Byrd, with a helpful nudge from Winston-Salem Reynolds, ended Greensboro Page's reign atop the 4-A division in this week's Associated Press high school football poll.

Kannapolis remained No. 1 in the 3-A division while Randleman strengthened its hold atop the combined 2-A and 1-A class.

Winston-Salem Reynolds defeated the previously undefeated Pirates 31-28 on Monday, allowing Byrd to become the first team to hold the top spot other than Page. Quarterback Jeff Schreiber hit on six of nine passes for 141 yards and the Demons, 6-2, held Page to 81 yards rushing.

Byrd, which edged winless Fayetteville South View 14-7 on Friday, received 11 first-place votes and 154 points to take over the No. 1 spot.

Northern Durham, 8-0, was selected on two ballots and received 127 points to move up from third to second after its 17-0 victory over tough Henderson Vance. The Knights held Vance to 55 yards total offense, including just eight on the ground.

Page, which received three first-place votes, dropped to third followed by Roxboro Person, 8-0, and Charlotte Myers Park, 8-0.

Defending 4-A champion Jacksonville leads the second five, with undefeated Smithfield-Selma seventh. Wilson Fike eighth, Fayetteville Reid Ross ninth and Wilson Hunt tenth.

Kannapolis, 8-0, was picked first on seven ballots and received 137 points to edge out Southern Durham by three points. The Spartans got five first-place votes.

The top seven teams in the 3-A ranks are unbeaten after eight games.

Byrd Paces Reflector Ranking For 4-A's

Douglas Byrd and Robbinstonville held onto their leads in the 4-A and 1-A Daily Reflector High School rankings this week, but new leaders took over in the 3-A and 2-A ranks.

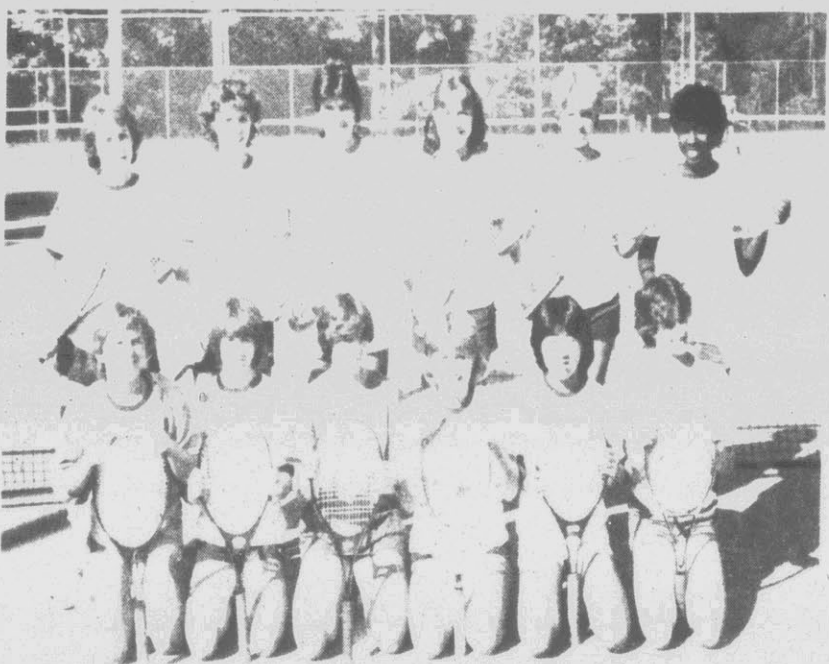

Byrd, 8-0, remained as the leader in the 4-A Division, having collected a total of 66 points on the season. Points are based on classification plus one additional point for each win a victim has. Thus a 3-A team with six wins gives a team which beats it nine points. Where there are ties, points are split.

Myers Park, also 8-0, remained as the number two team in 4-A, while Page, despite its loss, stayed at number three, but only a half-point ahead of Northern Durham and Smithfield-Selma, tied for fourth.

In the 3-A standings, Shelby Crest moved from third to first this week with 56½ points, just ahead of Thomasville, Clinton and Alexander are tied for the number four spot with 55 each. Last week's leader, SouthWest Edgecombe, dropped to eighth with 52 points after an open date.

West Montgomery moved from third to first in the 2-A ranks with 50 points, while Sylva-Webster, the leader last week, is a half-point back. In the 1-A ranks, Robbinstonville holds its first, while Jamesville has replaced Rosman as the number two team.

The leading teams for each of the four classifications:

Junior Champs

The Greenville junior girls tennis team, sponsored by the Recreation and Parks Department, finished the 1983 season with a perfect 8-0 record. Members of the team are, first row, motivation for them. We've won the ones we were supposed to this year, but we've also lost the ones we were underdogs in.

"I think the team — the entire team — with the most desire is going to win."

AYDEN-GRIFFIN

The Chargers have held a share of the Eastern Carolina title for the past three seasons, but this one will be different. This time around, they're fighting for a share of second place.

"We certainly hope our win over Aycock will be a boost," Chargers Coach Dixon Sauls said. "We have enough incentive, we should be ready. We're over the disappointment of not being able to win the conference, but we still have other goals we can reach."

The Chargers' lopsided win over Aycock gave their coach renewed optimism. A win this week would signal hope for a playoff berth.

"Our execution appeared to be better," Sauls said. "We got off the football better than we have the past few games."

"We've been working on basic execution and playing as a team. We needed to cut turnovers, and last week that went 6-1 in our favor."

Farmville Central has excellent size and depth, Sauls said. "They have a line team that's shown a lot of improvement. We may be quicker, but they'll have the advantage as far as size is concerned."

"Our offensive backs are only as good as our line play. If they get off the line well, we can move the ball. But I expect it'll be a close game."

D.H. CONLEY

It's been a tough few weeks since six players were dismissed from the Viking football team, and they've yet to win a conference game in three outings.

But this week the Vikings face a team with the same dismal situation — 0-3 in the conference and 2-6 overall.

"Havelock had only given up 18 points all season before we played them, and we scored 12 against them," Conley Coach Gerald Garner said. "But we were very disappointed with our rushing game."

West Craven runs the wishbone offense and has played some teams extremely close, they're a much better football team than their record indicates.

"We've got to have more offensive production from our running game. We've got to get our backs outside using miss-direction plays or whatever it takes."

I'm also worried because of all the homecoming activities and all the distractions that go along with it. It's hard to keep their concentration level to what it should be but maybe it'll be beneficial to us. We're real excited about the game."

NORTH PITT

The Panthers have their work cut out for them this week, as they visit league-leading SouthWest Edgecombe. A close homecoming loss to the Jaguars last Friday left North Pitt 1-3 in the conference and 2-6 overall.

"We lost by eight points and had had a chance to win with eight minutes left in the game," North Pitt Coach B.T. Chappell said. "No one gave us a chance before the game, so we're real proud of the effort of our players. They came on in the fourth quarter and didn't give up."

Farmville was able to substitute more than we were. They out-muscled us on the line, but we've got an opportunity to do some things now."

"We've been in every game in the fourth quarter. There's just so few of us — I'm pleased with what we've done. If we had 12 more like the ones we've got, we'd have a good football team."

This week the Panthers face what many people consider the best 3-A team in the state — the Cougars of SouthWest. It could be a long night.

"As far as being able to run up the middle, I'm afraid we're not going to have much success," Chappell said. "SouthWest is going to dominate the line. Defensively, they come with a seven-man rush a lot of the time."

"We'll try to open up our offense — go outside, put it in the air. We'll try for the big play, but it can backfire and become a big play for your opponent."

"We're going to have to have breaks or the score may be lopsided. We're going to do some shifting around, anything to compensate for our lack of size."

Cobb Sparks Aycock Win

E.B. Aycock Junior High School got three touchdowns and 264 yards from Anthony Cobb yesterday as the Jaguars rolled over Wilson Hunt, 32-0.

The victory boosted the Aycock record to 6-0 on the year with one game remaining.

Cobb scored the first time he touched the ball in the game, dashing 70 yards on the second Aycock play from scrimmage for a 6-0 lead. In the second period, he added a 45-yard touchdown run with quarterback Tom Moyer running over the PAT for a 14-0 halftime advantage.

Moyer scored from a yard out in the third period with Cobb getting the PAT, and then in the final period, Cobb raced 22 yards for the final touchdown. Moyer passed to Jeff Mahoney for the PAT.

The scoring was closed out when Terry Warren broke through to tackle a Hunt player for safety late in the contest.

The Aycock defense was led by Warren, Devin Gatlin, Robbie McDonald, Jeffrey Green, Bardell Brown, Lee Rogers, Burt Aycock and Rodney Harris. The coaching staff cited the play of Cobb, Moyer, Lee Miller, Lee Smith, Steve Peele, Stacey Best, Jeff Mahoney, Earl Wooten, Rodney Harris, Tim Hines and Jim Gilliam on offense.

The Jaguars close out their season next Thursday, traveling to Elizabeth City.

Late Goal Stops EC

NORFOLK, Va. — Eric Wilhelm scored a goal with three seconds left to give Virginia Wesleyan a 2-1 soccer victory over East Carolina yesterday.

Wilhelm rebounded a loose ball following a penalty kick to score the game-winner past ECU goalie Grant Pearson.

The Pirates led 1-0 on a David Henenlatter from Bill Merwin goal in the second half. It stayed that way until the 13 minute mark when Carey Aliff tied it at 1-1.

"The breaks simply aren't going our way," Coach Robbie Church said. "Our intensity was much better today, but we're having one of those seasons where everything that can go wrong does."

East Carolina is now 3-13 on the year, while Virginia Wesleyan is 10-3-1.

The Pirates travel to Williamsburg, Va., next Wednesday to face nationally ranked William & Mary.

Chicod Tops Woodington

WOODINGTON — Chicod Junior High School's volleyball team wound up its 1983 season yesterday with a victory over Woodington.

Chicod won the first game, 15-13 before losing to Woodington, 15-4 in the second contest. Chicod then came back with a 15-13 win in the final game to take the match.

The Chicod "B" team lost to Woodington in straight games, 15-3, 15-4.

Chicod ends the year with a 6-4 record.

Will Study Canada Geese

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and a number of state wildlife agencies are about to embark on a study of Canada geese in the Atlantic flyway.

"The increase in numbers of Canada geese presently inhabiting the four continental waterfowl flyways stands out as one of the major management highlights of the past three decades," said Dr. Richard Malecki, project coordinator, of Cornell University.

According to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, a growing problem exists concerning changes in traditional migration patterns, despite the record number of birds. For reasons that are not readily proven, large segments of birds in both the Atlantic and Mississippi flyways are migrating shorter distances and spending more time in areas north of their historic wintering sites.

A major goal of the study is to obtain management information to help achieve an increased Atlantic Flyway goose distribution to areas south of the Maryland-Virginia line.

Personnel at Mattamuskeet,

Pungo and Pea Island National Wildlife refuges will participate in the study and plan to collectively band and neck collar 1,200 geese during each of the next three years.

Geese will be trapped and marked throughout the fall and winter periods to provide information on seasonal movements and population shifts that may occur locally and across the state lines.

Refuge biologists recently joined other participants, including North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission researchers, in a workshop at Middlecreek Wildlife Management Area in Pennsylvania in mid-September to share information on capturing, banding, collaring and measuring techniques.

Memories Of Loss Spark Tar Heels

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

There's nothing third-ranked North Carolina can do to reverse last season's loss to

No. 13 Maryland, but the Tar Heels can use memories of the game as motivation to keep their record unblemished this weekend.

Five other Atlantic Coast Conference teams are in action Saturday. Wake Forest is at Clemson, Georgia Tech is at Duke and North Carolina

State goes to South Carolina. Virginia has the weekend off. The Terrapins have given coach Dick Crum the most discomfort in his five years in Chapel Hill. After losing his first two meetings to Jerry Claiborne, the Tar Heels claimed the next two games against the Terrapins. Then came last year and the Maryland rushing attack that knocked North Carolina for a loop from which it never quite rebounded.

"We came out of the game last year sadder, but wiser," Crum said. "They got a great game out of their running backs and we didn't tackle well. Our kids are aware of what happened last year and why it happened."

It was Willie Joyner, whose vision is still fresh in North Carolina minds. Breaking tackles for most of the second half, Joyner scored on runs of 49 and 84 yards and finished with 240 yards.

Maryland coach Bobby Ross doesn't expect North Carolina, nor his own 6-1 Terrapins, to dwell on last year's game.

"The game is every bit as important to us as it is to them," Ross said. "What happened last year is over with. That's why we're playing another game this year."

Both teams have 3-0 ACC records, but the Terrapins have just one more league game left, while the Tar Heels meet Virginia and Duke. The Clemson encounter on Nov. 5 does not count in league records.

Wake Forest broke two long droughts last weekend in the victory over Virginia. The Demon Deacons had not won an ACC game in 12 previous outings, and had not won a conference game at home since 1979. Meanwhile, the Tigers have not lost to an ACC opponent in 16 contests and haven't lost at home in 18 tries.

"It's great to go to Death Valley. It's exciting," Demon Deacon flanker Duane Owens said. "They're a big team and they try to intimidate you from the start. We have to let them know we won't be intimidated."

Clemson coach Danny Ford has seen what Wake Forest quarterback Gary Schofield can do and knows what his defense needs to do.

"We need to improve our pass rush, our pass defense and our offensive execution," Ford said, adding that if Wake Forest developed a running game, "we could be in for trouble."

Ramblin' Wreck running back Robert Lavette is the source of concern for coach Bill Curry. He is suffering sprains of the knee and ankle.

"The knee is a little more painful than the ankle," Curry said. "We'll just let the doctor check him daily and see at the end of the week."

What encourages Curry the most is the opportunity to improve the team's ACC mark in their first year of eligibility for the crown.

"To be in a position to go 2-1 is all we're thinking about," Curry said. "We're very excited about that."

Duke coach Steve Sloan hasn't planned any radical changes to halt his team's seven-game slide. He has named permanent team captains for the remainder of the season.

"I felt it we made radical changes, the players would think we really didn't believe in our philosophy," Sloan said. "We have made subtle changes in our practice routine for instance."

Long Could Now Pose For Body Building Ads

By RICK SCOPE
Associated Press Writer

East Carolina offensive guard Terry Long has not always had 22-inch biceps and a 38-inch chest. There was a time when he sent off for a body-building course that never came.

"I sent my money off but I never got it. That made me mad," said Long, who now poses for the body-building advertisement that attracted him when he played at Eau Claire High School in Columbia, S.C.

Long began weightlifting on his own during a stint in the Army. Six years later, he is touted by East Carolina as the strongest football player in the nation. The 6-foot, 285-pound senior has the numbers to support the claim.

He won the North Carolina State Championship in powerlifting in 1982 with a combined lift of 2,203 pounds — the third highest total in the world. Long bench pressed 501 pounds, dead lifted 865 pounds and a squatted 837 more — all state records.

But Long, an honorable mention all-America last season, can do more than lift weights. He runs the 40-yard dash in 4.8 seconds and has a vertical jump of 37 inches. He was also a member of his high school's Golden Gloves boxing team.

"Terry Long could play for any team in the nation," East Carolina head football coach Ed Emory said. "He redefines the word all-American."

East Carolina offensive line coach John Zernbelt said the first thing he noticed about Long was his quickness.

"He's extraordinarily fast for a man his size," he said. "And he also has got what you would call exceptional body awareness or body control. He's almost got the agility of a real good fullback."

Long said he is somewhat embarrassed by the praise he has received this year.

"As far as the publicity, it makes it harder on you," Long said during an interview in Greenville. "The coaches said that because of the publicity some players will try to make a reputation off me. I don't want anybody doing that."

Thus, Long has endured a season full of illegal hits.

"I just get up and smile and say I'm coming back on the next play," he said, smiling. "Maybe it's their way of trying to tell me that I'm not as good as they say I am."

With Long providing the muscle up front, East Carolina is 5-2 going into Saturday's game against East Tennessee State, the third of four Pirate home games. The losses have come in their trips to Florida, to then-seventh-ranked Florida State and No. 5 Florida.

"We feature our guards in our option-1 offense," Zernbelt said. "It was hard to draw a guard up. Terry's exactly what you'd want."

Not bad for a player who quit high school football after a year to go to work to support his mother and six brothers and sisters.

Long later enlisted in the Army, serving as a paratrooper and playing on the football team at Fort Bragg. As his days in the Army dwindled, college recruiters began calling.

"My mother wanted me to stay in the Army, but I had a burning desire to play football," Long said.

Nebraska and East Carolina were among those vying for Long's services.

"The coaches told me that if I went to Nebraska I could start right away. But I didn't know," Long said. "It was a big decision. I had never heard of East Carolina, but I came here because I thought I could play right away."

The day before Long walked onto the practice field, he walked down the aisle with Pythia, a professional model. The next day, Long spent his honeymoon on the football field.

"It was tough," Long said. "It's hard enough being a college freshman and playing football, but being married makes it three times as hard."

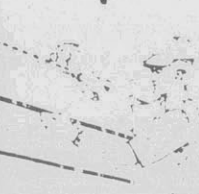

Long played nose guard his first season, but during spring drills the next year he moved to offense.

"He was still learning the position last year," Zernbelt said. "The big thing with him is that his best days are still ahead of him."

But, Zernbelt said, Long has few peers at his position.

"As an offensive guard," Zernbelt said, "he does things few people in the country are able to do. I haven't seen anybody do what he's done."

World Reaction Strongly Against U. S. Invasion

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer
The United States is reporting success on the battlefield in Grenada, but is taring less well on the international opinion front as allies and enemies alike condemn the invasion of the Western Hemisphere's smallest nation.

At the United Nations, a

Security Council session requested by Nicaragua was scheduled to resume debate today on a resolution calling for an end to "an armed intervention of Grenada" and "immediate withdrawal of invading troops." The resolution was introduced by Nicaragua, Guyana and Zimbabwe.

Prime Minister Eugenia

Charles of Dominica told reporters Wednesday at the United Nations that Governor-General Paul Scoon of Grenada asked eastern Caribbean leaders last weekend to invade the island to overthrow the its ruling military council.

President Reagan on Tuesday ordered nearly 2,000 U.S. troops to invade Grenada, saying it was necessary to protect the 1,000 Americans on the island and restore democracy to a nation run by "a brutal group of leftist thugs."

Joining the U.S. troops were 300 soldiers from six Caribbean countries. The Organization of East Caribbean States said it sought a "pre-emptive defensive strike" and asked the United States for assistance.

The invasion followed last week's bloody coup by Marxist military leaders in which pro-Cuban Gen. Hudson Austin seized power and told residents to stay off the streets or be shot. Former Prime Minister Maurice Bishop, also a leftist, and three of his Cabinet members were shot after the coup.

As U.S. officials sought to justify the invasion, there were scattered demonstrations and American flag burnings in Western Europe. French Prime Minister Pierre Mauroy told the National Assembly in Paris, "Nothing can justify the intervention of the United States."

Only a few countries, including Portugal, South Korea, Guatemala, Australia and Japan, expressed any kind of support or understanding for the invasion. The Soviet Union and its Communist allies, as expected, condemned the United States.

Pope John Paul II, at his weekly audience in the Vatican, expressed "anguish and profound concern" about the situation in both Grenada and Lebanon.

While Britain, America's staunchest European ally, refused to formally condemn the invasion, it said Wednesday there should have been more advance consultation. Grenada is a former British colony and a member of the Commonwealth.

"The extent of the consultations with us was regrettably less than we would have wished," Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe told Parliament.

British newspapers today continued to denounce the action. The independent Financial Times said in an editorial that the invasion raises "profound questions about the confidence that the European allies can have in the responsibility of the Reagan administration."

In Washington, the State Department issued a statement saying the invasion was legal under the charters of both the United Nations and the Organization of American States because both organizations allow such action when the security of the region is threatened.

Even so, the OAS appeared hopelessly divided today over the issue with most of the larger Latin American nations opposing the United States and its Caribbean allies.

More than three hours of intense debate Wednesday by OAS members in Washington featured a taped message by Grenada's OAS ambassador,

Dessima Williams, who accused the United States of being "butchers and enemies of mankind."

In a second day of scattered demonstrations in Western Europe, 300 protesters Wednesday burned a U.S. flag outside the U.S. Embassy in Brussels, Belgium, shouting "Yankee go home," and "Let Grenada be Grenada."

In the Netherlands, police dragged away dozens of protesters blocking the main entrance to the U.S. consulate in Amsterdam. Seven hundred people rallied in Stockholm and 2,000 marched in Athens to protest the invasion.

Sweden called the U.S. action a "crime against international law, Denmark expressed "skepticism" about U.S. claims of intending only to protect Americans and restore order, and socialist Greece said Washington had worsened Caribbean tensions.

Peter Boenisch, spokesman for West Germany's center-right coalition government, told a news conference in Bonn: "Had we been consulted we would have advised against the intervention."

Grenada Invasion Upsets Cubans

By JOHN PLATTEN
Associated Press Writer
HAVANA (AP) — Relatives of Cubans ordered by President Fidel Castro to not surrender to invading U.S. forces on Grenada awaited word today on the fate of their loved ones.

"All we can do is wait," said Nery Sanchez, a father of Pablo Espinosa Delgado, 17, who has been in Grenada for nine months. "Like everyone else, we are waiting for some word."

Mrs. Sanchez said her son is an electrician in Grenada, to help build an airport on the southern tip of the island at Point Salinas. As of early today, there was still no official word from Cuba on the number of casualties among the scattered resisting U.S. Marines and Army soldiers.

Estimates of there were 550 Grenada construction workers and about 100 doctors, technicians and agricultural technicians. He said there were also about 40 Cuban military advisers and a "very small" number of Soviet citizens.

He said his government had no official casualty figures. Caribbean radio reports said at least 42 Cubans were killed fighting the invasion force.

"It was a crime to use jets, naval power and heavy weapons against someone using only small arms," Mrs. Sanchez said.

Delgado's mother, Manuela, 76, sat watching the telecast of an evening demonstration in downtown Havana.

She is confined to a wheelchair because of arthritis and Parkinson's Disease and relatives asked that she not be questioned about the fate of her son.

Orderly demonstrations continued Wednesday evening around the Cuban capital as people listened to speeches and shouted anti-American slogans.

One of the largest demonstrations was at the corner of 23rd and 12th streets, where Castro in 1961 eulogized the first Cubans to die in the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Volanda Curbelo recalled talking to her husband, Roger, last Saturday when he phoned from Grenada. The electrician has been on the Caribbean island for four months.

Now, Mrs. Curbelo watches television and listens to radio for any word on the fate of her 47-year-old husband and the more than 700 Cubans who battled Americans troops for more than two days.

"I'm trying to find the words to describe what the imperialists did, but I can't find them," she said, as she sat with her three children. "That was one of the greatest crimes committed by imperialists — against defenseless Cubans."

Castro said earlier the Cubans would not surrender, but "we will not remain in a country that was invaded and occupied."

The official news agency Prensa Latina said the Cuban resistance at the airport collapsed on Wednesday.

Emphasizing that the last Cubans did not give in to the Americans, Cuban television said: "The last six Cubans to resist the Yankees died holding the Cuban flag in their arms."

Women, standing at attention, quietly cried in the Riviera Hotel lobby while the Cuban National anthem was played following the television announcement.

Expanded television newscasts included interviews with relatives of Cubans working on the island as well as reaction to the invasion from people in the streets.

One person interviewed on camera said the invasion was "a crime. An abuse that must be condemned." Another said it was a "savagely attack against Cuban workers who went to help Grenadians."

Schools released students an hour early Wednesday to join in the demonstrations.

ST. PAUL, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. Jacobs said her daughter said the students were flown to Charleston, S.C., where the Red Cross "gave them a towel, a toothbrush and a piece of soap."

Mrs. Jacobs said her daughter had travelers checks and a passport and her camera.

Apparently they were taken hostage at one point by the Cubans. The Cubans surrounded them and perhaps even entered the dormitory at one point, but I'm unsure of that.

"Before they left, apparently 90 Cubans were killed," Mrs. Jacobs said. "They had to go into the water to get the helicopter. They were pulled out of the water."

Mrs. Jacobs said her daughter was expected to arrive in New Jersey later today.

Broadcasters Get A Reminder

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reminder to broadcasters: You are not allowed to use amateur radio frequencies to pose questions for news-gathering purposes.

The reminder was issued by the Federal Communications Commission Wednesday because of the widespread reliance by newsmen on ham radio broadcasts from the island of Grenada, where U.S. Marines led an invasion on Tuesday.

According to the FCC, radio and TV stations are free to monitor ham radio broadcasts and also to air such broadcasts on either a live or delayed basis. But the FCC said broadcasters "may not employ an amateur station as it would use a reporter or a translator in order to convey, directly or indirectly, questions which the broadcast station desires to be addressed."

Confidential Sources Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge says a Wall Street Journal reporter does not have to disclose the names of his confidential sources for an article that said government lawyers were pressuring a prison inmate to talk about organization.

U.S. District Judge Harold

H. Greene said Wednesday at least three of the sources were not essential to the case that the plaintiffs — two government lawyers alleged in the article to have been originating the pressure — were trying to make.

The plaintiffs are William M. Kramer and John M. Dowd.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 5,791 telephone calls received at the White House Wednesday about the invasion of Grenada set a one-day record for the administration of President Reagan.

White House spokesman Peter Rousell said 63 percent of the calls supported the decision to send U.S. troops to the Caribbean island. He said 3,356 of the calls were considered positive, 1,508 negative. Another 927 could not be characterized one way or the other, he said.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said there were also 276 calls backing the Reagan administration policy in Lebanon, and 125 opposed.

Martin To Be At ECU

Rep. James G. Martin, R-N.C., a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in the 1984 elections, will be in Greenville Saturday to attend homecoming activities at East Carolina University.

The 9th District representative will be a guest of Chancellor John Howell for the annual homecoming parade and the ECU-East Tennessee State University football game.

A reception honoring the Republican candidate is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Saturday at NCNB National Bank, 200 W. Fifth St. A press conference will be held during Martin's visit at NCNB.

Survey Planned For Bethel Area

A parks and recreation department survey is scheduled to be given to citizens near Bethel Nov. 1-5 by East Carolina University students.

The survey, which includes telephone interviews and door-to-door surveys, will be used to identify opinions and attitudes toward Bethel Parks and Recreation Department programs and facilities.

Results of survey will help provide information for planning future recreation facilities and programs.

LSU Chairman To Speak

Laurence Siegel, chair of the Louisiana State University Psychology Department, will speak on "Evaluating Faculty Performance" Nov. 10 at 7 p.m. in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center auditorium on the ECU campus.

Siegel will discuss a faculty evaluation system used at LSU which he recommends for adaptation at other campuses. Siegel said he advocates systematic faculty evaluation schemes because tightened funding and legal requirements direct that all employee evaluations be based on fair and valid performance criteria.

Siegel will also meet informally with interested members of the campus and local communities Nov. 11 at 9 a.m. in Speight Building, Room 129.

A past president of the Southeastern Psychological Association, Siegel has published articles on faculty evaluation in several professional journals.

Dance Classes Scheduled

Beginning Nov. 1, the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will offer a six-week session of modern jazz, tap, ballet exercise and acrobat classes each Tuesday. Fee is $10.

The class is for anyone 5 and older, and lasts for one hour from 6:20 to 7:20 p.m. Students are asked to wear leotards and tights and bring tap or hard sole shoes if possible.

Preregistration is required. Call 752-4137, extension 200, or Dianne Lamb at 756-7849.

Junior Crafts Class Set

A new junior crafts class for 7 to 9 year olds, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, will meet each Monday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at Jaycee Park building beginning Monday. Christmas decorations and crafts will be included in the session. Fee is $5 for a seven-week session. To preregister, call 752-4137, extension 200.

Special Week Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed next Tuesday through Friday as "National Medical Assistants Week" in Greenville in recognition of the approximately 500,000 medical assistants in the United States and over 30,000 certified medical assistants.

"These dedicated health professionals make a substantial contribution to the quality of health care in this country through assisting the physician in jobs ranging from scheduling office appointments to office management, and from collecting specimens to assisting with surgery," Cox said.

Ingram Holds Local Hearing

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram held a hearing in Greenville Wednesday to hear local citizens' concerns about the National Investors Life Insurance Co. based in Arkansas, and the University Life Insurance Co. based in Indiana, and the two firm's parent holding company, Baldwin-United Corp.

Ingram said some 12,000 North Carolinians hold life annuity policy contracts totaling about $180 million with the two firms.

He said the hearing in Greenville and hearings in other cities across the state are designed to determine whether or not the two companies are "unable or potentially unable to fulfill their contractual obligations."

A full hearing is scheduled for Nov. 7 in Raleigh, to make specific determinations as to whether the annuity contractual obligations of the two insurance firms is covered by the North Carolina Life, Accident and Health Guaranty Association under the life, accident and health guaranty law.

Isenhour To Present Seminar

Dr. Thomas Isenhour of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill chemistry faculty will present a seminar at the East Carolina University Department of Chemistry Friday at 3:30 p.m.

The seminar subject will be "The role of the Computer in the Development of Combined Gas Chromatography/Infrared Spectroscopy."

The program is one of a series of seminars supported by grants from the Union Carbide Corp. to the ECU Department of Chemistry.

Nursing Professor Wins Office

Eldean Rhodes Pierce, assistant professor in the East Carolina University School of Nursing, was elected to a national office in the Sigma Theta Tau nursing honor society at the society's biennial convention in Boston recently.

Her duties as coordinator of Sigma Theta Tau's Region 7 will include organizing activities among the 18 chapters in the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida and Puerto Rico.

An active member of the local Sigma Theta Tau chapter for several years, Ms. Pierce has served as president, vice president, secretary and is now serving as treasurer.

She is a former resident of Rosewood and a 1965 graduate of Rosewood High School. Her husband, Hal Pierce, is also from the Rosewood area. She received her nursing degrees from ECU and a diploma from Watts Hospital in Durham.

College Day Visits Scheduled

College Day will be held in area high schools next week at the following dates and times:

•Farmville Central, Nov. 4 from 9-10 a.m.; North Pitt, Nov. 3 from 1:30-2:45 p.m.; D.H. Conley, Nov. 3 from 8:45-10 a.m.; J.H. Rose, Nov. 3 from 10:15-11:45 a.m.; and Ayden-Grifton, Nov. 2 from 1:30-2:45 p.m.

Representatives from over 75 public, private two-year and four-year colleges and universities will be available to speak with students concerning programs offered by the institutions.

Brochures, applications and financial aid information will be available.

A&T Representatives To Be Here

Representatives of North Carolina A&T University in Greensboro will be at the Bachelor Benedict Club, 707 Wyatt St., Greenville, at 7 p.m. Wednesday to talk with interested students about opportunities at the university.

The presentation will include an overview of the admissions requirements, financial aid, and of the various schools at the university.

Community Singers To Perform

The Pitt Community Singers will hold a recreational sing Tuesday in room 105 of the Whichard Building on the Pitt Community College campus. The newlycreated group is open to all area residents.

Demonstration Scheduled

The Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters has arranged for a public demonstration of a vote tabulation device during the Oct. 29 Charity Day at Carolina East Mall. The league will also make available copies of its Community Service Guide and other league publications.

Academy To Hold Festival

Greenville Christian Academy will hold its annual fall festival Friday from 5:30-9 p.m. in the school gym. Hot dogs, hamburgers and desserts will be available during the evening.

At 7:30 p.m., an auction will be held for item such as automotive and household goods, country curtains and two vacations.

Homemade baked and canned goods will be available in the bake shop and country store. Various crafts and Christmas items will be featured in the craft shop.

Games and booths will feature activities for the young and old such as a hot shot competition, bean bag throw, dunking booth, jail, basketball and football throw and go fishing.

Truancy Workshop Set Tuesday

Judge Gerald Arnold of the North Carolina Court of Appeals will be the speaker at a conference on truancy scheduled for Tuesday from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Willis Building.

The Rural Education Institute will sponsor the conference in conjunction with several local agencies. The registration fee is $4, which includes lunch. Local agencies such as the public schools, the court system, social services and mental health will be participating.

The conference will address the causes of truancy and cover how the problem is presently treated by local agencies. A discussion on ways of helping these agencies deal with truancy will conclude the conference.

For further information contact Kathryn Lewis at 757-6008.

Choir To Perform Saturday

The Senior Choir of Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will sing in the Union Meeting Saturday night at St. Luke F.W.B. Church. The choir will hold a special rehearsal Friday night at 7 p.m.

Group To Join Bazaar

The Greenville Tennis Association will take part Saturday in the Charity Bazaar sponsored by the Carolina East Mall. The bazaar will begin at 10 a.m.

The Greenville Tennis Association is a non-profit organization. Proceeds from the bazaar will help defray operating expenses.

Rifle Stolen From Truck

Greenville police are investigating the theft of a rifle from a truck parked in a lot at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road here Wednesday.

Officer R.S. Sawyer said Stephen Norwood Spruill of 124 Fletcher Place reported the .308 caliber scope-equipped rifle was taken from his truck about 4:16 p.m. Value of the weapon was set at $510.

Deregulation Still Supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says it still supports airline deregulation despite union calls for limited price controls to stem industry losses.

"The government should not shield airline managements from the financial risks or insulate them against financial opportunities that are an accepted part of doing business," Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said Wednesday.

Mrs. Dole said the airlines should not be protected from competitive pressures any more than other industries.

By TOM JORY - Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Listening to Sid Caesar, Carl Reiner and Mel Brooks reminisce about "Your Show of Shows" is almost as funny as watching the Golden Age comedy itself. Did you know, for instance, that Albert Einstein once asked to talk with Caesar?

Caesar, who joined Brooks and Reiner for the premiere edition of "Nightcap: Conversations on the Arts and Letters" on Hearst-ABC's ARTS cable-TV network, says the Nobel Prize-winning scientist died before the two could get together. The comedian goes on to say he later met J. Robert Oppenheimer, the nuclear physicist, who told him:

"Albert wanted to talk with you. He had figured out the physical equation. He wanted to talk to you about the human equation."

Studs Terkel, the author and radio commentator who is co-host of the ARTS show, with writer Calvin Trillin, marvels at the story. "This is legitimate," Terkel asks Caesar.

He's assured that it is. "I would never have dared to do any double-talk with him," Caesar says.

"Nightcap" will be offered to ARTS subscribers five times — Oct. 29, Nov. 2 and 26 and Dec. 6 and 22.

The program, entertaining and at times downright hilarious, reunites Caesar with Reiner and Brooks, who wrote for the show, for the first time in 15 years, Terkel says. The three seem energized by the experience, and the conversation fairly crackles as they recall their work, still considered a standard to which all television comedy aspires.

Actress Moving

Back To N. Y.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Actress Jennifer O'Neill, who accidentally shot herself last year at her suburban New York home, will be moving back to the area after a brief spell in California.

David Kramer, Miss O'Neill's public relations agent in Los Angeles, confirmed that the 35-year-old actress, who starred in the 1971 film "Summer of '42," is planning to buy the White Plains house she now is renting.

"We were all nuts," Caesar says.

The living room-style conversation is interspersed with worn and slightly blurred filmclips from "Your Show of Shows," a TV classic that was a Saturday-night fixture on NBC from 1950-54.

Terkel is wonderful and eminently comfortable in the role of host. He whips out a handkerchief now and then to blow his nose, an unconscious gesture promoted, no doubt, by the relaxed atmosphere of the show.

"Howaya," he growls, introducing the program. "You know, television, everybody knows, including God, has had its low moments. It has them now, too."

"But its highest moment," he says, "in the eyes and memories of many, in the world of comedy, was a seven-year period, 1950 to '57."

"Your Show of Shows" was introduced on NBC Feb. 25, 1950, and Caesar's gang included, at one time or another, Brooks, Reiner, Woody Allen, Lucille Kallen, Larry Gelbart, Imogene Coca and Nanette Fabray. Gelbart later created "M-A-S-H."

After "Your Show of Shows" left the air, Caesar returned with Reiner, who doubled as a member of the cast, and Miss Fabray in "Caesar's Hour," and that program ran on NBC through May 25, 1957.

"Sid," says Brooks, "had more than anybody that I ever met, two things: the gift of observation ... and the gift of appraising it, mimicking it."

Still, it wasn't easy. Television performers, in those days, were limited in what they could talk about, Caesar says. No sex, no politics, no religion. "We had to stick with things that we knew, and that was the human condition."

Caesar had a talent for improvisation, Brooks says.

adding: "Mistakes were always good for him, because he'd always overcompensate with some burst of insanity. ... Nothing could throw him."

Each show was constructed, largely by committee, from scratch.

"Sid Caesar would come in," Brooks says, "and he would say something insane, like, 'Saturday afternoon, I was sitting in the kitchen and I saw a fly.'"

"So we all sat there, 'OK, it was Saturday and he saw a fly. We gotta listen to this.'"

"And he would say, 'The fly went on an apple ... stood there maybe 10 seconds ... didn't like it.' And he would say, 'Then it got me thinking, 'What was the fly thinking?'"

"With all the silliness and fun we would be making at that," Brooks says, "sooner or later, he would prevail."

FOCUS

"Bully" Birthday

It was 125 years ago today that Theodore Roosevelt was born. Although he was our 26th president, Teddy Roosevelt was "first" in many ways. During his two terms as president, Roosevelt became the first chief executive to ride in an automobile, submerge in a submarine, and fly in an airplane. He was the first president to travel to a foreign country while in office. And in 1906, he became the first American to win a Nobel prize, thanks to his part in ending the Russo-Japanese War.

DO YOU KNOW — Who succeeded Theodore Roosevelt as president?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — The United States' inflation rate was roughly 4% in 1982.

The bidding: South West North East

2 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass

Pass Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♦.

There is nothing unsporting about taking advantage of a penalty imposed on your opponents by the Laws of bridge. But it is appealing to see someone recover neatly from an inadvertent lapse.

This hand is from a recent tournament at a New York club. North-South were not doing as well as they had hoped, and they needed a few top scores if they were to place. That is the only excuse we can offer for North's decision to raise his partner's weak two spade opening bid to game.

West led the two of diamonds, but the seven of diamonds also fell, face up, on the table. That became a penalty card. According to the Laws, it must be played at the first legal opportunity unless some other penalty is exercised. When the offender's partner gains the lead, declarer may require or forbid the lead of that suit. If declarer exercises that option, the penalty card is picked up and play proceeds normally.

Declarer was not overjoyed with his contract. However, he saw a way to take advantage of the fact that West had a penalty card. East captured dummy's diamond ten with the ace, and declarer required that he lead another diamond. West picked up the seven of diamonds, East returned a diamond and declarer sluffed a heart.

OUT-LAWED

Declarer thought that West would win the king of diamonds, setting up two high diamonds in dummy for discards. On those declarer would sluff another heart and a club, then fall back on the club finesse for his contract.

Those plans were soon scotched. West followed with the seven of diamonds, allowing dummy to win the trick. But now declarer still had to lose a trick in each suit for down one — the same fate he would have suffered had there been no irregularity.

They Go To School To Learn How To Win Elections

THE TEACHER — Former President Jimmy Carter talks to one of the several Democratic Party's Campaign Training Academy sessions held last week in Atlanta. (AP Laserphoto)

By EVANSWITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of people are flocking back to school this year for a kind of specialized training they hope will help them get a few select jobs up for grabs in 1984.

But these schools aren't part of a college curriculum aimed at updating computer skills or teaching new wrinkles to engineers.

What they offer is a hard-nosed course in practical politics taught by the Republican and Democratic parties, by women's groups and by conservative and liberal political organizations.

The sole objective: win elections.

It seems to be working.

"It's great to look around the room and know that a lot of these women are going to be sitting in the next Congress," said Dudley Dudley at a campaign school sponsored by the Women's Campaign Fund.

Ms. Dudley, a New Hampshire Democrat who is working hard to win a seat in the 99th Congress, was one of nine potential House candidates and three Senate hopefuls who attended the two-day school here this month.

"In the past few elections, more and more of the successful candidates are getting some kind of candidate training," said Steve Lotterer of the National Republican Congressional Committee. "It's now an accepted part of being a candidate."

"More than 1,500 people attended our schools in 1982," said Yolanda Carraway of the Democratic National Committee. "Ten of them are now in Congress."

Winning elections in the 1980s means raising money, defining the issues, using high-technology and above all, finding the right people. Thus, candidates aren't the only students at the campaign schools.

Potential campaign managers, fund-raisers, press secretaries, research staffers and candidates' spouses gather to learn what to do, what to say and even what to wear.

At least 6,000 activists will be trained at the various schools this year and next in preparation for the 1984 elections. Campaign schools have been around in various forms since at least the 1960s, but the formal instruction sessions have blossomed since 1976.

The lessons cover the entire campaign — from deciding to run and planning a strategy to raising money to phone banks and buying television time.

All include lecturing by experts, but most now emphasize small groups working through case studies of campaign problems and individual presentations.

For example, potential candidates are asked without warning to get up and give a five-minute speech before a camera or answer questions from party professionals posing as reporters at a make-believe news conference. Their performance is then critiqued from the videotape.

With classes held in hotel meeting rooms, corporate halls and even school rooms, the lessons are short on theory and long on political reality.

"Be especially pleasant to Democrats. We need them," GOP consultant Jacqueline Phillips told a campaign school held in early October, just before the annual convention of the National Federation of Republican Women in Louisville, Ky.

"Polls don't have to be made public — unless they help you," said Buddy Bishop, another Republican consultant, at the group's graduate campaign school in Louisville.

"Candidates do not want to talk to everyone in their district," Daryl Glenney, a Democratic consultant, told the Women's Campaign Fund school. "We are only interested in the ones who vote."

She went on to describe, in detail, how to define and to find that target audience. But the lessons also include a leavening of anecdotes on how the best-laid plans can fail.

"We met our vote goal based on previous elections," said LaDonna Lee, the GOP expert teaching the school with Ms. Glenney, of a 1982 House race she advised. "But 30,000 more people voted than in 1978 and we lost."

For all the planning, the key to election victory remains the candidates.

"It is so evident that, despite our sophisticated polling methods and the means to communicate with the elements of the coalitions much more precisely, the candidate is still the critical ingredient in any campaign," said Richard Wirthlin, a Republican pollster whose best known client is Ronald Reagan.

"The better use that is made of the candidate, the better a campaign you will have," said Ann Lewis, political director of the Democratic National Committee.

The driving force behind the increased visibility of women in politics has been the training many women have received from the parties and various women's groups.

"We have to increase the pool of women thinking about running for office," said Rosalie Whelan, executive director of the National Women's Education Fund, one of the largest training organizations. "Women need certain skills to run. It's better to brush up those skills in a supportive environment."

Among the groups putting on campaign schools for the 1984 are the Republican National Committee, Democratic National Committee, Women's Campaign Fund, National Federation of Republican Women, Democrats for the 80s, National Women's Education Fund, the Committee for the Survival of A Free Congress, National Republican Congressional Committee, and National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Trash Cans Are Turned Into Home Furnishings

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer
NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — For years, Robert E. Fahey has worked at getting rid of everything people don't want — garbage. He's now come up with a way of converting a garbage can into something people do want — furniture.

"This keeps me from going nuts," says Fahey, solid waste director for Collier County, as he works over a galvanized steel container in a building that serves as his home and shop.

His biggest seller is the "garbage can chair" — novel enough to earn him a U.S. patent this year. He also turns the common trash can into patio tables and barbecue grills.

To make the chair, Fahey cuts an opening halfway down the can and then wedges the lid upside down into the opening for the seat base. Braces to hold the lid in place are made from the cut section and screwed into the lower part of the can.

A rubber molding is glued over the U-shaped cut. Fahey then stuffs a foam cushion into a round vinyl-coated, polyester cover, places it in the seat base and the chair is completed. The handles remain as is on both sides of the chair, making it easy to move about.

Fahey's chairs are remarkably comfortable and are immediate conversation pieces wherever they're seen.

"So far, I've limited myself to selling them to garbagemen. They're my kind of people."

He does this by advertising his furniture in two trade magazines. There are 300,000 people involved in the solid waste industry in the United States alone, he says.

"That market is enough for me," he adds.

Most of his chairs wind up as retirement gifts, awards or door prizes at Government Refuse and Collection Disposal Association regional meetings which are rotated not only in Florida, but in other states.

Each time one is presented, his Sitan Corp. gets additional orders. Inquiries are starting to come from as far away as Tangiers and Malaysia.

"You've got to pep up people in the garbage business," he comments. "They never get a thank you."

Fahey makes his furniture in the late night hours after he's left his office or on weekends. His teen-age son helps him on occasion.

Whatever is ordered, the chair, patio table or

CONTAINER CONVERSION — Robert E. Fahey, solid waste director for Florida's Collier County, stays busy in his Naples workshop fashioning patio tables, barbecue grills and — his biggest seller — chairs from common galvanized steel garbage cans. Fahey won a U.S. patent on the furniture this year and hopes to sell to 300,000 people involved in the solid waste industry in the United States.

NOTICE OF BIDS FOR
RESIDENTIAL REHABILITATION GRANT WORK
TOWN OF WINTERVILLE, N.C.

Notice is hereby given that the Town of Winterville will receive and open bids on November 14, 1983 at 3:30 p.m. in the Winterville Municipal Building for the rehabilitation of approximately six dwelling units. This work is funded through the State of North Carolina's FY 1982 Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program. Instructions to Bidders may be obtained Monday through Friday during normal office hours, from the Town Clerk at the Town of Winterville Municipal Building.

The Town of Winterville is an equal opportunity employer and encourages bidding by small and minority businesses.

barbecue grill, the price is the same — $79.

"I'm not too good with figures," he says with a laugh.

His furniture needs little care. "If the can gets dull, you just wipe it down with vinegar," he advises.

Fahey has spent much of his life in Akron, Ohio, where he worked for city government from 1957-1965. From 1972-1979, he was superintendent of sanitation for that city.

The idea for his chairs came two years ago as he drank coffee from a plastic foam cup. "First I cut the cup and then I bought a garbage can and cut that."

He's been making chairs ever since.

Speaking of Your Health... Aftermath of a Mastectomy

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

About two years ago my left breast was removed for cancer. I have been assured that I have been completely recovered. Now I would like to have a breast implant operation. I can't convince my husband or my family about this even though my doctor thinks it is perfectly safe. How do you feel about this? — Mrs. M.C.S., Mich.

Dear Mrs. S.:
Most women who have had a breast amputation because of cancer are so happy to be alive that they accept the disfigurement with grace and with psychological stamina.

This is especially true when they have the added assurance from their husbands that the operation has in no way altered their loveliness or physical attractiveness.

Even though they have this assurance, many women understandably still want to support their ego and image by having a breast reconstruction after a mastectomy.

The total human being is evaluated. The extent of the original surgery, the patient's age, the social circumstances, and the psychological makeup are all taken into consideration. If radiotherapy had been used this adds another element to the decision.

It should be a concession to your ego that your husband and your family are so devoted to you and that they feel that there is no need for the operation.

Yet it must be explained to them that it is your self-image that needs fortification and that they must understand your need to compensate for the psychological hurt that so frequently is associated with the removal of a breast.
