Cubans Unaware Of Cease-Fire Orders

POINT SALINES, Grenada (AP) — U.S. invasion forces battled Cuban and Grenadian soldiers today in the mountains around the capital of St. George's and between the island's two airports, American officials said.

An estimated 200 Cubans were still holding out, according to reports from U.S. military officers.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger predicted resistance would continue "because the Cuban soldiers do not seem to have any communication with Cuba and have not yet apparently heard that they've been ordered to cease fire."

"There were three or four small pockets (of resistance) and the fighting does continue to eliminate that," Weinberger told the "CBS Morning News" today in an interview from Montebello, Quebec, where he was attending a NATO meeting.

"Some of the fighting is in the hills" along the "road between the two airports," he said.

Cuba's vice president, meanwhile, rejected President Reagan's charges that Grenada was being developed as a Cuban military base.

Eight U.S. troops were reported dead in the invasion, eight were missing and 39 were wounded in the invasion, the Pentagon said Thursday.

The Cuban death toll was at least 30, a U.S. intelligence source said in Washington. Grenadian casualties were not known.

When the United States invaded this Marxist-ruled nation about 1,500 miles southeast of Florida on Tuesday, U.S. officials estimated the Cuban presence at 600. But on Thursday they said the figure was "upwards of 1,000."

American military officers on the scene reported 800 Cubans had been captured, indicating about 200 remained at large.

They said about 100 Grenadians and a few people from other, unspecified Caribbean islands also were being detained.

The stated purpose of the invasion was to protect the estimated 1,000 American residents trapped on the island by last week's bloody coup. Most were students or staff at St. George's University medical school.

A Pentagon source said in Washington today that all the Americans who wanted to be evacuated from Grenada have been taken off the island. As of early today, about 360 Americans had been airlifted out.

Asked why the United States didn't know how large the Cuban buildup was, Weinberger said, "I suppose because it was carried on clandestinely and we don't have any representation on the island. We did not have any way of really determining this."

Late Thursday, U.S. artillery pounded Cuban positions in the hills overlooking the captured airfield where American troops seized Soviet and Cuban arms on the southern tip of the island.

An undetermined number of extra U.S. troops arrived Thursday, bolstering the force of 2,800 Marines and Army Rangers already on Grenada, the smallest nation in the Western Hemisphere. U.S. officials said the American assault force was followed by 300 troops from six Caribbean nations.

Journalists on the first media tour U.S. officials allowed to the island reported intense artillery fire in the mountains Thursday night three to five miles east of the airport here. Military officials also said U.S. jets made some strafing runs.

The reporters were returned to nearby Barbados after a six-hour tour.

"The fighting was super intense," said Army Maj. Jim Holt of the 82nd Airborne Division based at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

The unfinished airport area thundered and crackled with artillery and machine-gun fire as helicopters and transport planes ferried in the additional troops at dusk.

U.S. military officials said the Marines and paratroopers crushed the final stronghold of the island's defenders Thursday. One military source said the U.S. forces controlled about two square miles around the airstrip, which had been under construction with Cuban aid.

Blount To Head Knox Campaign

Greenville attorney Marvin Blount has been named Eddie Knox's statewide campaign manager.

MARVIN BLOUNT

Knox, a Democratic candidate for governor, said Blount was chosen as manager because he is "an outstanding business and civic leader." Blount said he is supporting Knox because he is "the quality person we need as governor."

"I am impressed with Eddie's style of leadership. He has a Christian way about him in the fair manner he works with people. He is by far the most qualified candidate for the job," Blount added.

Blount is past chairman of the Greenville Community Services Committee, past vice chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board, former president of the Pitt County Bar Association, former president of the 3rd Judicial District Bar and a former Greenville Jaycees

Wake County Jury Clears Jimmy Green Of Charges

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A jury today acquitted North Carolina Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green of bribery and conspiracy charges.

The jury returned to the courtroom at about 10:45 and asked the judge for a defense exhibit listing the dates of the meetings and conversations between Green and an undercover FBI agent.

They also asked to reread transcripts, but Long said they would have to reread them in jury box and not in the jury room because he didn't want the written word to have more weight than oral arguments. Juror Harry T. Cleland of Cary spoke for the jury before it returned to the jury room at 11:19.

The jury deliberated from from about 10:09 a.m. until 12:27 p.m. with time out to examine testimony. When the verdict was announced, cheers broke out in the Wake County Superior Court.

Green was cleared of two charges of consenting to receive a bribe of $10,000 a month, a charge of consenting to receive a bribe of $2,000 and a charge of receiving a $2,000 check.

Green smiled when the verdict was read.

Long said to find Green guilty of consenting to receive a bribe, the jury must find that Green held office, that he directly or indirectly agreed to receive something of value, that he consented to receive it with corrupt intent and that the thing of value was not part of his salary or benefits.

To find Green guilty of receiving a bribe, jurors must determine that Green held office, that he directly or indirectly received something of value with the intent of using it to his own benefit, that he accepted it with corrupt intent and that the thing of value was not part of his legal salary, Long said.

Long told the jurors to elect a foreman and that they could return if they wished to examine evidence or rehear parts of Long's instructions.

Defense attorneys have portrayed Green as a man concerned about his family's welfare who met with an undercover FBI agent to determine his identity and intentions.

But prosecutors paint Green as a politician who went astray and cautiously investigated the agent to determine if he had ties to the FBI and if it was safe to accept a bribe from him.

Green, 62, is charged with twice consenting to receive bribes of $10,000 a month, once consenting to receive a $2,000 bribe and receiving a $2,000 bribe. He is the state's first lieutenant governor to face criminal charges. Green also has been expected to be a Democratic candidate for governor in 1984.

The charges stem from 1982 meetings between Green and FBI undercover agent Robert Drdak, who posed as Tom "Doc" Ryan in the Color investigation of political corruption.

Defense attorney Howard Twiggs said Green has a lot at stake — possible punishment of up to 20 years in prison, loss of his citizenship and forfeiture of his office as lieutenant governor.

"He agreed to do nothing," Twiggs said. "He certainly has done nothing. He certainly kept nothing. He returned the only check he got by mail."

Twiggs and defense attorney Wade Smith reviewed evidence that Green asked his personal State Bureau of Investigation agent to get information on Drdak, told his staff to show him all campaign contributions, recounted meetings with Drdak to three state Board of Education members and volunteered to testify before a grand jury.

LET'S TALK?

Recently I saw a billboard on Memorial Drive in Greenville concerning "Let's Talk," said to be a campaign for responsible parenthood sponsored by the P.C.A.C.T. I've never heard of this group and would like to know what it is and who is involved. S.R.

According to Pat Byrd, health educator with the Pitt County Health Department, "Let's Talk" is a project sponsored by the Pitt County Action Coalition for Teens. It is composed of parents of teen-agers and other adults who are interested in teens and their families. These people are meeting to discuss concerns they have for teen-agers and to identify ways they as a coalition can promote responsible parenting of teen-agers. Anyone who would like to have such a meeting held or program presented for a church or club may call Ms. Byrd. Anyone who would like to participate in any way or have more information may also call her at the Health Department, 752-4141.

Close Door On Summer Romance

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 years old and I am trying to get over my first love. Last summer I fell in love for the first time and I never knew I could be so happy. He told me he loved me and I never doubted him for a minute. Then he left for college in another state, saying he would send me his address so I could write to him.

He left last month and I haven't heard from him. This hurts me so much. Is this what love is all about?

I was able to get his address from directory assistance. Should I write to him, or try to get over him? I love him so much. Please tell me what to do.

IN PAIN

DEAR IN PAIN: Don't write to him. This is not what a lasting "love" is all about—it sounds more like a summer romance. Don't dwell on thoughts of him. Consider it a good learning experience. You will be the richer and wiser for it. Close that door and don't look back.

DEAR ABBY: I need some advice fast. I have a 13-year-old daughter who is crazy in love with a 19-year-old neighbor boy. Today, you hear about 12- and 13-year-old girls getting pregnant, and I am out of my mind with worry. So how do I keep my precious daughter from making this mistake? I keep close tabs on her. She isn't allowed to date this boy, but she may talk to him in front of the house.

Abby, I pray every night, and I know God hears me, but I need to know how to handle this in a calm manner. Every time I think of it, I cry. I hear her talking to her friends on the phone, and I know she is in terrible danger. She "loves" this boy so much, she would do anything he asked her to do. (I pray to God she hasn't already done it.)

I can't lock her up. I have talked to her about love, making love, and how important it is to save herself for marriage, but I'm not sure I got through to her. Please help me. I am desperate.

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: First, have a calm, non-judgmental, heart-to-heart talk with your daughter and find out what the relationship is between her and the 19-year-old neighbor man—not boy. Does he have a serious interest in your daughter? Or is she (like many 13-year-old girls) living in a dreamworld?

If your daughter is sexually involved with this young man, have a talk with him. Does he know that sexual intercourse with a minor is statutory rape? And does your daughter know everything she needs to know about how to prevent an unwanted pregnancy? (Don't make the mistake some mothers make in thinking that if they discuss this with their daughters it's the same as giving them permission. It's not.)

If your daughter has a father, include him in this discussion. She's his daughter too. (P.S. Prayer is wonderful. But it's a very unreliable contraceptive.)

DEAR ABBY: After a homosexual male has had a sex change operation and becomes a female, is he then a heterosexual, bisexual or is he still a homosexual?

This is not a joke, Abby, it's a question that has been puzzling me for a long time.

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: If the sex-changed female chooses for her sexual partner another female, she is a lesbian. If she prefers males exclusively, she is heterosexual, and if she enjoys sex equally with both males and females, she is bisexual.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Although recipes for buckwheat pancakes abound in American cookbooks — from pioneer years to this day — interestingly enough recipes for yeast breads made with the flour are missing. Apparently buckwheat flour hasn't been used to any extent in breads.

After thorough searching I found only three modern recipes. Two of them made with a sourdough starter, the third prepared a simpler way.

I opted for the simple recipe. But I found it needed reworking because the loaves had a tendency to crumble when sliced and, in our opinion, the color was unattractive. Too much buckwheat flour was used. Not a good idea because it is low in gluten, and buckwheat can cast a dark gray hue.

In reworking the recipe, we were lucky the first time around. Our loaves sliced well and their color was agreeable. Our version makes two loaves, one to eat right away, one — if you like — to store in the freezer. When fresh from the oven, the bread tastes great "as is," slathered with butter. After that we found it was excellent for toasted sandwiches.

BUCKWHEAT BREAD

1 cup buckwheat flour
3 to 3½ cups unbleached all-purpose white flour

2 packages dry yeast
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups very warm water (115 to 120 degrees)
¼ cup honey
3 tablespoons oil

In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together the buckwheat flour, 1 cup of the white flour, the yeast and salt.

In a 1-quart glass measure stir together the water, honey and oil; add to flour mixture. Beat at low speed, scraping bowl constantly, for 30 seconds; beat at high speed for 3 minutes. With a wooden spoon, work in enough of the remaining white flour to make a moderately stiff dough.

Turn out onto a smooth surface lightly covered with white flour. Knead, working in white flour as necessary, until smooth and elastic — 5 to 10 minutes. Shape into a ball. Place in a greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover bowl with saran; let rise in a warm place about 80 degrees until doubled — about 1 hour. Punch down dough; turn out onto a floured surface. Divide in half. Cover with saran; let rest for 10 minutes. Shape each half into a loaf and place in 2 greased pans (each about 8½ by 4½ by 2½ inches). Cover and let rise until almost doubled — about 25 minutes.

Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 375-degree oven for 15 minutes; cover with foil to prevent overbrowning, and continue baking until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 20 minutes longer.

Turn out on wire racks; turn right side up; cool completely. Makes 2 loaves.

Stakes Are Large

While Americans are fumbling for some sort of unattainable "consensus" on what our role should be in the Middle East, we would remind that the forces working against the peace we seek, the social structure we aspire to, the values we place on the human spirit, are not so encumbered.

At the moment a tremendous tide of malevolence is cresting in Lebanon, as witness the bombing of the U.S. Embassy and more recently the bombing of the Marine command center in Beirut.

France has suffered, too, but there is no wavering in that country's course.

In this country we have lawmakers capitalizing on the horror and grief of American families who have suffered a grievous loss and those who dread the possibilities of repetition.

As our president has warned, the stakes are potentially larger than the salvation of Lebanon. He did not spell it out in detail, but we suspect it would be best if any forthcoming debate in the Congress should be tempered with good judgment. There are few things more damaging than spelling out our planning, indecision and faltering determination for avowed enemies.

Happy Occasion

Tomorrow is Homecoming for East Carolina University, and it has become a holiday of sorts for the community, as well as a time when alumni return to marvel at the growth of their university.

The highlight of the day will be the ECU-East Tennessee football game, and the sports enthusiasts will be pleased to find a Pirate team that is winning as it plays a major college schedule.

There have been other activities during the week, culminating in the Homecoming parade starting at 10 a.m. tomorrow. Finally there will be unnumerable parties and gatherings tomorrow night.

Homecoming is a happy occasion for the university and the community. A hearty welcome is extended to all our visitors during the weekend.

Red Faced

It's going to take a long time for the Democrats to get over James Watt's resignation as secretary of interior. His departure was a body blow to every Democratic candidate running for office in 1984.

My first inkling that the Democrats were really taking it hard was when I overheard a Democratic senator talking to his campaign manager in a Washington restaurant the other day. They were both red faced.

"I told you not to come out publicly for Watt's resignation. Watt was the only issue we had in 1984," the campaign manager said.

"I didn't want to do it," the senator protested. "But when I came out of the Senate Interior meeting, I was surrounded by TV cameras and reporters and I had no choice but to say he had to go."

"Do you realize we spent $500,000 in TV commercials showing how Watt had destroyed the environment? I had crews go to the Love Canal, Times Beach, Missouri, and the Stringfellow waste pool. Now we have to dump them in an ashcan."

"But I couldn't just remain silent after his remark about the Jews, the blacks, the woman and the cripple. I had to be indignant."

"Being indignant is one thing. But why did you have to suggest a resolution in Congress that Watt had to go?"

"I wasn't thinking too clearly. Besides I was hoping Reagan would hang tough and keep Watt to placate the conservatives."

"Well, we're really up a tree. You know and I know when you talked about a nuclear freeze, the MX missile, the B-1 bomber and Reaganomics people's eyes glazed over. But every time you mentioned what Watt was doing to the country you got a standing ovation. They didn't stand on their feet; they stood on their chairs."

"The Democrats didn't drive Watt out of office. The Republicans did. They were the ones who put pressure on the president to push Watt off the cliff."

"Yes, but when the president realized Watt was going to be overwhelmingly censured by the Senate and House he had no choice but to get rid of him. What the devil were the Democratic Party leaders thinking of?"

"Watt could have done a lot of damage to the country between now and 1984," the senator said weakly.

"That's what we were counting on," the campaign manager said. "We were going to run clips of him every night during the last week of the campaign. He offended practically every group in the nation."

"What about running against Bill Clark? He said he was going to follow Watt's policy."

"Nobody knows who Clark is. He could strip mine Yosemite National Park and people wouldn't know who did it. Besides he never opens his mouth."

"Why don't we run against David Stockman?"

"Stockman hasn't been heard from since his interview in the Atlantic Monthly."

"I wish Al Haig were still at State. He was good for Democratic votes."

"We can't think of the past. We have to think of what we're going to do now that we don't have Watt to kick around any more. The man was money in the bank for us."

"Maybe Reagan will come up with another cuckoo appointment before 1984, just to placate the conservatives."

"You only find one Watt in any administration. What makes him more dangerous now is that a lot of people think he's a martyr and he'll be able to sell out every $1,000-plate dinner in the state."

The Senator said, "Okay, so what do we do now?"

"We may have to run against Reagan," the campaign manager said.

"That's impossible," the senator said. "He's going to have the whole country believing they're better off today than they were four years ago. Even if we had a truth squad following him around, while he's demagoguing, no one would believe us."

"The Democrats should have thought of that before they started dumping all over Jim Watt."

New Budget Holds Special Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the White House deals with the Grenada invasion and the crisis in Lebanon, government agencies and the budget office are quietly designing a key political document: the fiscal 1985 budget.

It will be the document that, should he seek re-election, President Reagan can point to as proof of his domestic priorities. It will be the document that his opponents can use as the basis for their criticism.

By the beginning of next February, when the campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination should be in high gear, the president will send his proposed budget to Congress.

Behind him will be the battles the Cabinet departments will have had with the Office of Management and Budget, and the budget office will have had with the president's politically minded aides.

Reagan has already had the first of a series of budget meetings that will continue into December, focusing on the overall size of the budget and the individual agency and department requests for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Meanwhile, officials are winding up work on the current fiscal 1984 budget for the period between Oct. 1, 1983 and Sept. 30, 1984. There is little indication the president will do anything other than sign the spending legislation handed down to him by Congress, despite promises earlier in the year to veto any measure he considers "budget-busting."

"I am both saddened and appalled that the liberal House leadership is pursuing a strategy that would jeopardize our hard-earned recovery," the president said last June.

Since then, Congress has filled in the blanks in an $859 billion budget plan it approved over his protests, and sent him individual appropriations and spending authorization bills that he has signed with little fanfare.

With the 1984 budget process nearing completion, the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., pleaded with Congress last week to comply with its earlier goals on reducing the federal budget deficit, which he predicted would rise to $183 billion next year and nearly $200 billion in 1986.

"Failure to act will not only persuade Americans of all ideologies that we are impotent, but will also jeopardize the hard-won (economic) gains of the past few years," he said.

The Reagan administration, anticipating much lower deficits than those forecast by Domenici, is counting on a recovering economy to trim the red ink.

There is little sign that Congress will do the trick, as members focus on the 1984 election and the chance to report home on the money they have provided from Washington for their districts, rather than the money they have shaved.

Referring to the budget resolution approved last spring, envisioning a slimmed-down deficit, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., asked, "Why don't we just do what we said we would do?"

But the signs of that happening are vanishing.

The leaders of the House and Senate want to send Congress home for the year by Nov. 18. It appears unlikely that by then Congress will have enacted more than a fraction of the more than $85 billion in deficit reduction measures it had mandated for itself in the budget outline of last June.

Domenici recommended that if Congress fails to make progress, Reagan call a domestic economic summit conference to consider deficits and the budget.

That was an element in a measure approved by the House on Tuesday. Included in a $10.3 billion package of deficit-reducing measures was an order that Reagan call such a meeting, to come up with one more deficit reduction plan.

GOP Seeks Edge In Open Meetings

HICKORY — North Carolina doesn't have a very tough open meetings law. It's riddled with exceptions that let government officials meet in private and, on the off chance that some board might fail to devise a legal excuse for meeting in secret, there are no penalties for breaking the law.

Generally, politicians like it that way — especially in the General Assembly where the open meetings law was written so as not to inhibit the power of the powerbrokers. But in Catawba County the Republican-controlled Board of County Commissioners is studying the possibility of levying a tougher open meetings law upon itself.

Some North Carolina Republicans are watching closely. They're hoping that the Catawba board — and other boards controlled by Republicans — can set an open meetings example that will help Republicans elect more local officials. At the very least, they predict, Republican boards can create a public mood for a stronger open meetings law which the Democratic-controlled Legislature will be unable to ignore.

The Catawba board began discussing the open meetings law after its state senator, Cass Ballenger, was unable to get a tougher law through the Legislature this year. Ballenger, also a Republican, was a gubernatorial candidate at the time, and the Democratic Senate didn't even let his bill out of committee.

Bob Hibbitts, a Catawba commissioner, says the board is thinking about adding a penalty to the state's current open meetings law. The penalty — maybe a $500 fine and a short jail sentence — would apply only to the Catawba board, its county manager and county attorney. "We want to put some teeth in the current law," Hibbitts said. "The public's business ought to be done in public."

Max Veale, campaign press aide to Republican gubernatorial candidate Rep.

Jim Martin, said that other Republican-controlled boards will be following Catawba's lead. "We hope to get the five Republican-controlled county commissions to do it and really put the heat on the Democrats ... They won't want to appear to be the secret meetings guy. So, we'll be painting them into a corner."

Veale says open meetings could become a good issue for Republicans seeking spots on local boards now controlled by Democrats. "After a couple of years, when this is working really well, our candidates will be able to say, 'Look what republicans have done in other counties. We can bring this here,'" Veale said.

Hibbitts says his board is not pursuing the matter as a partisan issue. But he recognizes that it could be a boost to his party if the Democrats don't jump on any bandwagon that starts rolling. "If I was Joe Blow on the street and I saw this happening, I would think highly of the Republicans who were initiating it and I would think less of the Democrats and the Republicans who were opposing it," he said.

"If there are political benefits from it, so be it," Hibbitts says. "But we're not doing this as a partisan thing ... the public image of officeholders has been tarnished in the past and we're just trying to bring back some of the credibility."

Veale adds that a tougher open meetings law does not have to be a partisan issue. He says a small group of people concerned about the law are readying a "Sunshine Committee" which will lobby for a tougher law. He says the committee will seek both Democratic and Republican members. It is establishing a speaker's bureau to promote open meetings and has already enlisted at least one prominent North Carolina television journalist to work with them.

Departure Could Be Costly

World Resources Council and Randy Kehrer's Nuclear Freeze Campaign.

Federal candidates now must contend with PRO (Progressive) PAC, FOE (Friends of the Earth) PAC and Freeze Voter '84, to name a few of the political action committees born since 1980. Despite his across-the-board cuts in federal support for public-interest groups, Reagan has done wonders for public-interest employment. "From an organizational standpoint," said one pro-freeze group's director, "I wish (he'd) be president forever."

Such cynicism, however, belies widespread concern that the easy work is over and the real challenges lie ahead. For example, recent parting shots at James Watt by some environmentalists have betrayed uneasiness about losing so valuable a fund-raising symbol in the absence of equally inflammatory substitutes.

Leading liberal fund-raisers agreed in separate interviews that the emotional outburst of early 1981 has been undercut by victories in many areas and confusion about the future.

In a way, a Mondale, Cranston or even Glenn in the White House would only mean more uncertainty. With many of its own in the administration, the public-interest community would have to bite its tongue at least for the first year.

Meanwhile, most organizations would have to reduce their operations with a change in the White House; as many as 20 percent of them, Parker estimates, would merge with others or close shop entirely. While some civil rights groups might rise in strength and influence, others, including certain women's and anti-nuclear groups, would fade.

So far, Gaylord Nelson, who as a senator from Wisconsin sponsored the Earth Day legislation 13 years ago, is one who doesn't worry about "slippage." Watt unquestionably "stirred up interest and activity" in environmental issues across the country, conceded Nelson, now of the Wilderness Society. "There may be ups and downs, depending on who's president ... but," he added, "the strength of the conservation movement will continue to get stronger."

Strength For Today

One of the outstanding assertions of the New Testament is the assertion that love never fails.

The Bible tells us that there are three kinds of love. First, there is the love of God for man, and this we experience in salvation. Then there is the love of man for God, and we know this great reality in worship. Last of all there is the love that human beings have for each other, and we know the power and joy of this great love through service.

Preaching may fail, enthusiasm may fail, and knowledge may vanish; only in love is there possibility of eternity.

"God so loved the world that he sent his only begotten son." This is salvation. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, with all thy mind, and with all thy strength." This is worship. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." This is service in the spirit of the Master

Indicators Pointing To More Economy Growth

By PAULINE JELLINEK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
The government's main economic forecasting gauge rose 0.9 percent in September, the Commerce Department said today.

The increase, the 13th straight monthly gain, appeared to be another indication the economy would continue to grow at a more moderate pace into next year.

The forecasting gauge, the Index of Leading Economic Indicators, is a compilation of a dozen forward-pointing statistics covering manufacturing, employment, prices and other areas.

The department revised its August figure up from a previously reported 0.1 percent decline to a 0.3 percent increase and July's down from a 0.8 percent gain to a 0.6 percent gain.

The September, August and July advances were the smallest of the year.

By comparison, the index jumped 3.1 percent in January, as the economy headed for the booming second quarter and by more than a full percent in every other month.

Other recent reports on consumer buying and industrial production have shown a slackening in growth from their brisk spring paces. The department also has estimated that the nation's total output — as measured by the inflation-adjusted gross national product — slowed somewhat to an annual growth rate of 7.9 percent in the third quarter from the rapid 9.7 percent in the April-June period.

And, because the leading index is designed to show economic changes that will occur in coming months, today's report appeared to be another hint that the economy will continue to expand strongly through next spring, although not at the rapid rate of the spring.

Today's leading indicators report said five of 10 available indicators rose last month, with the biggest boost coming from net business formation.

Also boosting the index were increases for the average workweek, contracts and orders for new plant and equipment, stock prices and a decline in unemployment claims.

Indicators showing diminished performance were new orders for consumer goods and materials, building permits, changes in sensitive materials prices and the speed at which vendors make deliveries.

The two not available were changes in business inventories on hand and in business and consumer borrowing.

The overall index rose in September to 160.2 percent of its 1967 base. The accompanying Index of Coincident Indicators, designed to measure current conditions rather than forecast those of the future, rose 1.6 percent to 142.7 percent of its base.

The coincident indicator had increased 0.2 percent in August.

Marines Paying The Air Fares

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps is paying the air fare to Europe of relatives of Marines wounded in last Sunday's Beirut bombing, according to a corps spokesman.

Maj. Jack Farmer, head of the corps casualty unit, said Thursday that the government-paid air fare is "standard operating procedure." It was formally requested in a letter by Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., and signed by House leaders from both parties.

A doctor must certify that a relative's visit to a wounded Marine would be desirable for "health and humanitarian" reasons, Farmer said.

American Student Relates His Grenada Adventures

By JAMES R.B. NASHOLD
For the Durham Morning Herald

I still can't believe it happened. It is like a dream. Last week at this time we were taking mid-term exams.

Tuesday I awoke at 5:40 a.m. to anti-aircraft and small arms fire outside my dorm room at St. George's University Medical School in Grenada.

From my window I saw Grenadian soldiers in the valley 100 feet from my dormitory firing. They were firing at planes I realized must be American. I became afraid for the first time in Grenada.

We had seen the lights of American ships off the coast of Grenada the two previous nights.

The Grenadian government had said the United States was about to invade the island, but we did not believe it. We thought the ships were a show of power to convince the Grenadian government not to jeopardize the lives of Americans and foreigners residing in Grenada.

We had a feeling of fright mixed with incredible curiosity that the fight was actually occurring around the school.

I became one of the hall monitors who kept students in their rooms with the curtains closed. Some students wanted to see what was going on. Others were terrified, especially the younger ones.

I was very happy to see the Americans. There was no doubt that a civil war was going to occur in Grenada, and I felt that at some point we might be in danger.

For the competing factions of the Grenadian government I had no sympathy. There were all Marxist-Communists concerned only with the seizure of power and not with the country or the people.

I was in the last room on the ground floor of my dormitory closest to the fighting and could see the American reconnaissance planes and the helicopters that disappeared and reappeared over the ridge near Point Salines airport.

About 9:30 a.m. Tuesday we established contact by telephone with American military personnel on the other part of the island. They told us to put on light clothing and tennis shoes and to gather all essential documents.

All students were moved immediately into one dormitory adjacent to the beach.

The wait began. On Tuesday night we thought the American troops would arrive soon. The next morning the soldiers told us by telephone they would try to move students from the other campus by noon and that they would try to reach us before nightfall. We put on white arm bands.

About 200 people crowded into six rooms in the dormitory nearest the beach. We took down glass mirrors and removed light bulbs. We covered the windows with mattresses and lay on the floor. We could hear shooting in the distance.

About 12 Grenadian soldiers were outside the dorm. We were afraid they would panic and take American hostages.

At 4 p.m. Wednesday the military told us they would be arriving in 20 minutes. There would be a lot of "noise," they told us.

At 4:12 p.m. American F-14 fighter planes appeared and began laying cover fire.

Helicopter gunships followed and drew sniper fire from Grenadian soldiers across the street from campus. The F-14s flew back over and destroyed houses in the valley near the campus.

Then we heard small arms fire and the voices of American soldiers who had landed on the beach. At 4:22 the American soldiers broke the glass doors of the dorm. "American soldiers, don't move," they shouted as they moved into the dorm. They broke into our rooms and checked for Grenadian soldiers.

We ran out of the dorm to the beach along a stone wall through a corridor of Marine soldiers who were heavily armed. There were two helicopters already waiting in the water.

We were running and the Marines shouted, "Hit the dirt!" The Grenadian soldiers were firing at them from the old resort hotels. After we boarded the helicopters waiting in the ocean surf we were evacuated in less than six minutes to the new Point Salines Airport built by the Cubans and Russians.

At 8:30 we left Point Salines Airport under cover of dark and flew to Barbados on C-141 Air Force transport planes, arriving in Barbados at 9:22 p.m. We refueled and left at 1 a.m. Thursday and arrived in Charleston at 5:30 a.m.

Back 2 p.m. Thursday I was in Durham — glad to be on American soil again.

Shutdown By RR Likely

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A N.C. Department of Transportation planner says he doesn't "think there's any hope" of preventing the shutdown of a 20-mile section of railroad between Henderson and Creedmoor.

Joe Cott received official word Thursday that the Interstate Commerce Commission plans to close the 20-mile track, which is operated by Seaboard Railroad.

Seaboard plans to shut down many of its lines in the state. The company has said they are no longer profitable. County commissioners and users have protested in most of the cases.

Cott said the next step of the transportation department would be a meeting of the users to determine if they want to ask for an appeal. The appeal would have to be filed by Nov. 8, he said.

"I really don't think there's any hope," Cott said. "When you appeal these things it's because you have new evidence, or if you can prove that there's no other transportation, such as trucking, available."

If no one appeals Seaboard's decision, Cott said the track would be abandoned immediately. If an appeal were filed, a decision would be made by Dec. 10.

HULA HOOP BOON

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — "Hula Hoops," which once twirled around millions of waists, helped to launch a widely-used plastic.

Phillips Petroleum says that when the Hula Hoop was introduced in the late 1950s, it was trying to perfect a new plastic. Warehouses were filling up with inventory.

As the hoop's popularity skyrocketed, toy manufacturers desperate for plastic turned to Phillips.

Senators Cutting Off U. S. Government's Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is cutting off the government's credit in an effort to force action on the federal deficit. Senators agreed 70-15 Thursday to extend the government's borrowing authority for only two months, rather than the 11 months asked by the Reagan administration and the Finance Committee. The change, offered by Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., was aimed at pressuring Congress into more spending cuts, tax increases or whatever it takes to bring down the record deficit before the 1984 election campaign gets under way in earnest.

There could be a more immediate result — one that would not as politically popular as cutting the deficit. The Treasury Department plans to borrow $13 billion next Tuesday to deposit in the Social Security system. Unless Congress completes action before Tuesday on the debt bill, Treasury won't be able to make that deposit. That would eventually delay the mailing of Social Security checks.

The House already has agreed to the full borrowing authority asked by the Reagan administration — a $225.6 billion increase, to $1.615 trillion. If the Senate changes so much as a comma in the House-passed measure, it will have to be considered again in the House. And there is considerable doubt that the House would approve it again.

But it was not just Armstrong's amendment that threatened the debt bill. Waiting to be considered was a batch of unrelated amendments dealing with such subjects as the Cuban prisoners taken in the U.S. invasion of Grenada and a nuclear freeze.

The present debt limit of $1.389 trillion is the accumulation of all federal deficits over the years. Without some marked changes in government policies, the debt is expected to hit $2 trillion by 1986.

The federal deficit, which totaled $195.4 billion during the 12 months that ended Sept. 30, has been the subject of more congressional handwringing than any other issue this year. Most lawmakers say the deficit must be slashed, but many agree with President Reagan that the answer is less spending, not more taxes.

Leaders of the House and Senate say there is no way to cut the deficit to a manageable level without a tax increase. The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a package of about $8 billion in tax increases over three years, and the Democratic leadership is behind other amendments that would bring in $73 billion during the period — the total mandated by Congress earlier this year when it approved a budget for 1984.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., the Finance Committee chairman, on Thursday spelled out his own idea: a package that would raise revenues by $56 billion and reduce spending by $64 billion over the next three years. It would give the president power to refuse to spend as much as 15 percent of the money appropriated for any program, and to limit for two years the automatic annual tax cuts scheduled to start in 1985 and yearly cost-of-living increases in Social Security and federal pension benefits.

Except for the limitation on the automatic tax cuts, or indexing, as it is called, details of the tax package have yet to be spelled out. But Dole told a news conference that most of the money would be raised by a temporary 5 percent tax on corporations and the closing of several tax "loopholes" that have been abused.

Dole's amendment is sponsored by Sens. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., David Boren, D-Okla., and Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., members of the Finance Committee. Dole has been trying to sell the plan to Senate and House leaders and the Reagan administration. "I can't say people are jumping with joy but there is a very positive response for doing something," he said.

Danforth said there is a good chance of passing the package because "time is running out and this is the only act in town" for reducing the deficit. There is almost universal agreement that unless Congress acts against the deficit this year, it will have to wait until 1985 because of the election.

Elated By Court Ruling

ATLANTA AP — The father of 4-year-old Nicholas Blackburn says he is elated that the state Supreme Court won't hear an appeal by his ex-wife, who lost, regained and then lost custody of the boy after she had an illegitimate, racially mixed daughter.

Kathleen Blackburn, 28, has 10 days to seek reconsideration of the court's decision Thursday not to hear her appeal of a lower court order giving custody of Nicholas to Mark Blackburn, 24.

"Maybe it's over with," Blackburn said. The case has been in the courts since 1981, when a judge found Mrs. Blackburn an unfit moral example because she had an illegitimate daughter following her divorce from Blackburn.

Reagan Sees Credit Due In Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says his administration deserves credit for spurring a wave of school improvements across the United States with the critical report issued last April by the National Commission on Excellence in Education.

Reagan, in a taped interview that originally was to have been aired today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America," also defended his attempts to cut federal school aid and declared, "Our problem is not a case of not spending enough. It's a case of not getting enough for what we're spending."

ABC said early today it was delaying broadcast of the interview until an as-yet undetermined time next week because of the bombing of Marines in Beirut, the invasion of Grenada and President Reagan's speech on both subjects Thursday night.

Asked by David Hartman what was the single most important step needed to improve the schools, Reagan replied, "In a sense, we did it. When we appointed the commission ... and they came in with their report a few months ago ... they made specific recommendations" on improving the teaching profession, raising graduation standards and eliminating "fluff courses."

"Well, today over 40 percent of the larger school districts in the United States, based on their recommendations ... have taken action to stiffen the requirements for graduation from high school," Reagan said.

Reagan said school standards slid as federal aid rose over the past two decades. "We have short-changed our students by trying to make things easy for them," the president said.

He denied he had cut the education budget, saying, "every part of our budget is still bigger than it was the year before."

But according to White House figures, the Education Department spent $15.1 billion in fiscal 1981 and $14.1 billion in fiscal 1982. The budget rose to an estimated $14.8 billion in fiscal 1983. Reagan requested $13.2 billion for 1984, but Congress is expected to appropriate more than $15 billion. Reagan tried and failed to cut the 1982 budget by a third to less than $10 billion.

Asked by Hartman how poor communities could improve their schools, Reagan said, "Traditionally that difference has been evened out in the states. When we say poor and rich districts, that gives a connotation of rich people having a better break than poor people. That's not true."

"A poor district, as far as the people are concerned, can be a rich district as far as education because of, let's say, surrounding industrial lands and so forth that pay a high tax," Reagan added.

If school spending among districts within a state is unequal, he said, "then it is a case of the states not doing what they should do."

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

THE COMPLAINERS

WHEN IT CAME TO COMPLAINTS, THE ORIGINAL ISRAELITES, WHOM MOSES LED OUT OF EGYPT WERE ALMOST IN A LEAGUE BY THEMSELVES! FIRST THEY THOUGHT THEY WOULD BE DESTROYED AT THE RED SEA. THEN WHEN THE PHARAOH AND HIS HORSEMEN WERE DESTROYED INSTEAD (EX.14:27) THEY COMPLAINED ABOUT LACK OF WATER---THEN IT WAS LACK OF FOOD! WHEN THE DAILY MANNA WAS PROVIDED, THEY AGITATED ABOUT THE SAMENESS OF THEIR DIET AND COMPLAINED BITTERLY ABOUT BEING TAKEN INTO THE WILDERNESS TO DIE, AND A NEVER ENDING COMPLAINT WAS ABOUT THE LACK OF WATER. THE FIRST TIME THEY DEMANDED WATER THEY WERE ONLY JUST ENTERING THE WILDERNESS.....

Stock And Market Reports

Hogs
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market today was steady to 25 cents higher. Kingston 39.25, Clinton, Elizabethtown, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadbourne, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson 39.00, Wilson 39.50, Salisbury 38.00, Rowland unreported, Spivey's Corner 39.25. Sows: all weights 500 pounds up; Wilson 34.00, Fayetteville 33.00, Whiteville 34.00, Wallace 34.00, Spivey's Corner 34.00, Rowland unreported, Durham 35.00.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.50 cents, based on full truckload lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. 59 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 50.15 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is fully adequate for a mostly moderate demand. Weights desirable to heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,430,000, compared to 1,354,000 last Friday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina hen market was firm. Supplies light. Demand good. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter was 28 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed some scattered gains today as traders looked ahead to the weekly Federal Reserve report on the money supply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose .41 to 1,242.48 by noon.

Gainers held a slim lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the opening, the government reported that the index of leading economic indicators rose 0.9 percent in September.

The improvement in the index, which is designed to detect future economic trends, provided support for hopes that the recovery from the recession would maintain its momentum for some time to come.

But analysts said traders' attention was concentrated on the Federal Reserve report, due after the close, on money and credit conditions. Advance estimates show that the figures would show a decline in the basic measure of the money supply.

CSX led the active list, unchanged at 24¼. A 788,000-share block traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .04 to 95.02. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .23 at 213.40.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 33.34 million shares at noon, against 34.77 million at the same point Thursday.

Daylight Saving $5,000 For Time Nears End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans will get an extra hour of sleep this Sunday as clocks are turned back to end six months of Daylight Saving Time.

The exceptions are Arizona, Hawaii and a portion of Indiana that is in the eastern time zone. Those areas do not observe the summer time shift which over the years has been hailed by sports enthusiasts but denounced by many farmers.

The official time change will occur at 2 a.m. Sunday, although many people will shift their clocks back an hour before going to bed Saturday night.

The setting of the clocks, however, will be a bit more complicated in Alaska, where officials are shifting communities into new time zones so that the entire state — with the exception of four communities on the western tip of the Aleutian Islands — will be in one zone.

The move, approved by the federal government at the request of Alaska officials, means for the first time all of Alaska's population centers will be under Yukon time. The state currently has four time zones.

Daylight Saving Time will be resumed in six months.

Last summer, an attempt to extend the summer hours from six to eight months was narrowly defeated in Congress because of stiff opposition from rural and Midwest congressmen.

The bill would have started Daylight Saving Time on the first Sunday in March instead of the last Sunday in April, as now is the case.

The idea of Daylight Saving Time originated with Ben Franklin, who saw it as a way to save candles during summer months since it provides an hour of extra daylight in the evening. Supporters of the time change still cite energy saving as a major argument.

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — You think food prices are stiff in your neighborhood? Just the other day, Joe Frankhauser forked over $5,000 for a pound of coffee.

Frankhauser was at a food wholesalers' show in Bismarck last week when he noticed a briefcase sitting on the ground in a parking lot. He figured someone would be back to retrieve it.

A short time later, he saw that the case hadn't been moved, he recalled Wednesday. So he picked it up and took it to his room to look for identification.

It belonged to Tom Kennedy, a manufacturer's representative for Butternut Coffee.

Upon return of the case, Kennedy told Frankhauser. "You don't realize — I've got $5,000 of the company's money in there. I've been going through a lot of anxiety trying to figure out what happened."

Kennedy asked how he could reward Frankhauser. Well, Frankhauser replied, he and his wife really enjoy coffee . . . and "the next day, before the show closed down, he brought me over a pound of coffee."

Lebanese Say Two Groups In Bombing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A well-informed government source said today that the terrorist attacks on the U.S. Marines and French paratroopers were carried out by two groups backed by the intelligence agencies of two foreign countries. The Pentagon put the American death toll in the bombings at 226.

Undeterred by scattered sniper fire, searchers reached the basement of the bomb-devastated Marine post at Beirut's international airport. It was not clear whether the shooting was directed at the searchers or was stray fire.

The Lebanese government source, who declined to be quoted by name, would not name the foreign countries allegedly involved in Sunday's attacks, which also killed more than 700 French troops. U.S. officials have been quoted as saying Syria and Iran were behind the bombings. Both countries have denied involvement.

Lebanese officials have turned over to the Marines and the FBI the names of 11 men allegedly involved in the bombings, the source said. He said no arrests have been made.

The men who drove pickup trucks packed with explosives into the peacekeepers' quarters met with Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, leader of the Iranian-backed Dawa Party, a Shiite Moslem splinter group, before undertaking their suicide mission, the source said.

Hussein Musawi, a Shiite Moslem militia leader, on Thursday denied any involvement in the bombing but he called it a "good deed" and said he hoped to participate in future attacks.

Several U.S. news organizations have quoted U.S. intelligence officials as suggesting the bombings were planned by Musawi, who controls fundamentalist Lebanese militiamen allied with Iran.

Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said the base took "some sporadic sniper fire during the night" that caused no casualties.

Half Paid Most Income Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Half the nation's taxpayers — 47 million couples and individuals who earned more than $14,000 a year — paid nearly 93 percent of federal individual income taxes in 1981, a new study shows.

The study released Thursday by the non-profit Tax Foundation showed that the average tax paid by that group was $5,599, compared with an average $3,128 recorded in 1976.

The foundation said 48 percent of the nation's tax bill was paid by 10 percent of taxpayers, those who reported annual earnings above $38,777. This group paid an average tax of $14,519 in 1981, compared to $8,147.

Pirates Host Bucs For Homecoming

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

While things haven't been exactly rosy for the East Tennessee State University Buccaneers, East Carolina coach Ed Emory feels that they'll be coming into Greenville Saturday with fire in their eyes.

The Buccaneers have won but two of seven games this season, but they eye East Carolina as their "big game" of the year — the only one against a Division I-A school on their schedule.

For that reason alone, Emory looks for the Buccaneers to be up. Then, add to that the fact that the Pirates have won the last three meetings of the teams by lopsided scores — 24-8, 66-23, and 30-0, and you have a few more reasons.

On top of that, the 2 p.m. contest is Homecoming for the Pirates and there is nothing more a visiting team likes than to spoil the celebrations.

It's also a chance for East Tennessee to do just exactly what the Pirates have been trying to do of late — gain some respect from those teams which normally look down on them.

The Pirates, who had won five straight games going into last Saturday's contest with Florida, nearly set the fifth-ranked Gators on their backs, finally bowing 24-17 in a hard-fought contest. It was a game Emory wanted badly and not just because it was against a nationally ranked team.

"It would have given us a winning season," Emory said, "and it probably would have gotten us ranked." The Pirates, 5-2, could have sewn up the winning year with the victory — and can do it this Saturday against ETSU, and "that would have taken the pressure off us to have a winning season," Emory said.

"I think it would have insured a sell-out for the (ETSU) game, too, and I'm still hoping for that."

That, however, won't happen for a couple of reasons. "We had a lot of rumors prior to the Murray

State game that we were sold out and that kept some people away," East Carolina Sports Information Director Ken Smith said. "It simply was not true. We had seats left and we have them left for this Saturday. We will not have a sell out at any rate, as we will sell standing room only tickets when the seats are full."

Emory, too, felt that a victory over Florida would have boosted the Pirates' hopes for a post-season bowl — the Citrus Bowl (formerly Tangerine) scouts were at the game and expressed interest in the Pirates during the contest.

"All of these goals are still attainable," Emory said, "but they would have been easier had we won."

Nevertheless, the Pirates will be shooting for that winning season, a big crowd, another shot at the rankings and in making an impression on bowl people this Saturday when the Buccaneers come to town.

East Tennessee's two lone wins have come against Tennessee Tech, 14-7, and Georgia Southern, 24-7. They've been beaten by Eastern Kentucky along with bowing to Southern Conference rivals Western Carolina, Appalachian State, Marshall and VMI. The worst loss was against ASU, 27-11, and the closest came in a 17-16 decision to Western Carolina.

Emory has a great deal of respect for the new East Tennessee coach, Buddy Sasser, who brought a 36-26-2 record to Johnson City, Tenn. "He did a great job at Wofford before coming to East Tennessee, and he's molding a fine defense. The most they've given up is 27 and the offense gave up some of that. They're capable and they can make a name for themselves by beating East Carolina."

"We should beat them (on paper), but you play the game out there," Emory said, gesturing toward the stadium.

"They want to do the same thing we wanted to do against Florida State and Florida. Eight points and we might be in the Top Ten. That would be the success story of 1983."

"We're going to start a new season Saturday. We won five in a row and then lost. So we're in a new season now. We play two at home and two on the road. We've never had it that fair before. But we've got to win the rest of our games, and we're capable of doing it. First, we've got to beat East Tennessee."

East Carolina will be without linebacker Larry Berry, out for the rest of the season with a knee injury, and tailback Tony Baker and tight end Norwood Vann are both questionable with injuries.

The Buccaneers have rushed for 1,396 yards this season, while allowing just 913. They are led by tailback Henry Latham, who has gained 456 yards on 82 carries, scoring one touchdown. Fullback

Vince Redd has picked up 407 yards on 68 carries, while wingback Frank Armstrong has rushed 58 times for 254 yards and two touchdowns. Robert Achoe, who has played both quarterback and running back has rushed for 141 yards on 43 carries, scoring four touchdowns. He, however, is questionable for the game.

Achoe leads in passing having hit on 11 of 24 passes for 320 yards and one touchdown. He's been intercepted four times. Robbie White, listed as the starter this week, has connected on 18 of 42 for 193 yards and one score. He, too, has four interceptions.

Chief targets have been Redd with 14 catches for 140 yards and two touchdowns and split end Mark Meely, with eight for 182 yards.

East Tennessee has passed for only 679 yards while allowing 1,119.

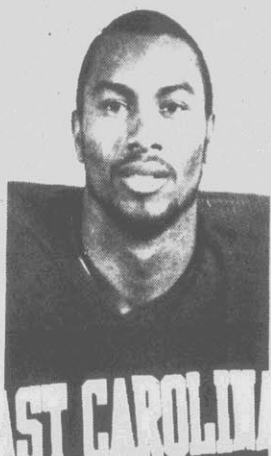

Several members of the Pirate team are close to moving up in career records, with one career record on the line in the game. Jeff Heath, with 24 field goals, needs only two more to tie for the career record of 26.

Kevin Ingram moved into the Top Ten in total offense last week with 2,449 yards and is taking aim at Theodore Sutton's 2,730 now. Earnest Byner, with 1,625 is just 48 yards behind #10 rusher Les Strayhorn with 1,673. Ingram has moved to #5 in passing yards with 1,636 and is chasing Leander Green, who had 2,098. In completions, Ingram has 116 and is 17 behind Green, who had 133. Norwood Vann is #9 in pass receptions with 46, just one behind Jimmy Adkins, two behind Vic Wilmore and five behind Bob Grant in reception yards. Vann is #8 with 743, trailing Adkins who had 825.

Heath, with 120 points, is chasing #10 Tom Michel, who scored 132 in his career.

Ingram, with 1,144 yards, should move into the Top Ten in single season total offense and moved into the Top Ten in passing yards and completions against Florida last week.

Hunt Cruises Past Rampants, 33-0

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

For 45 straight football games, Rose High School had generated enough offense to get on the scoreboard — but last Saturday night that streak came to an end as Wilson-Fike rolled to a 42-0 win over the Rampants.

Last night, Rose appeared headed for a new streak as Wilson Hunt came to town and handed the Rampants their second straight shutout, 33-0.

Hunt, led by two touchdowns each by Juan Jackson and Anthony Best, piled up 26 points in the second period of the contest to put the game well out of reach of the stumbling Rampants.

Oddly enough, Rose dominated the first quarter of the contest, getting off a couple of scoring threats while holding Hunt almost motionless. At the end of the first period, Rose had put together 62 yards in total offense, while holding Hunt to just 28 yards.

But after that, Hunt got off a scoring drive, got another quick one off a Todd Martin fumble, and followed that up with another scoring drive. The half closed out with a 47-yard punt return for a fourth touchdown and Rose never offered again.

By the time it was over, Rose had been held to minus one yard in total offense the final three periods, finishing with 61 total yards — minus two on the ground.

"You really could use a lot of the quotes I gave you last week," Coach Ron Vincent said afterwards. "There wasn't much of a difference after the first period."

"We did play with a lot of enthusiasm in the first period, but three or four plays took all the starch out of us. We were in position both offensively and defensively to make plays all night long, but we didn't make them. We just can't seem to come back from any setback given us."

A prime example of how Rose was in the right place but failed was obvious on Hunt's third touchdown drive when the Rampant defense twice buckled on third and

Looking For Room

Rose High School running back Tom Moore (33) looks for room to run against a number of Hunt High School defenders during their Big long yardage.

On the first third down of the series, Hunt was backed up on its own 26, facing third and 15. Quarterback Darin McClure went back to pass and seemed about to be sacked by Marvin Fleming, who appeared to just let McClure run by him — for a 19-yard gain and a first down. A few plays later, facing a third and 23 at the Hunt 43, McClure just evaded a hard charge by Rose, flipping a screen pass to Jackson.

East football game last night in Ficklen Stadium. Moore finished the game with 38 yards — tops among the Rampant runners in the game which saw Hunt take a 33-0 victory. (Reflector Photo by Katie Zernhelt)

Jackson was wrapped up by Amos Edwards, but he pulled away, again going for 19 yards out of the hole.

On the next play, McClure hit Best for a 38-yard touchdown pass as safety Roswell Streeter went for the interception and missed.

Rose opened the game as if it had the enthusiasm to pull off the upset. The Rampants took the ball from their own 29 to the Hunt 44 before finally having to give up the ball on a punt. After holding the Warriors, Rose got it back at its own 36 and drove to the Hunt 32 before Battle Emory was intercepted — the first of four interceptions against Rose quarterbacks — ending the drive.

Following an exchange of punts, the Warriors began to take command. Taking over on their own 42, the Warriors drove for the first score in the game in eight plays. Three of those produced a first down at the Rose 46 and on the next play, Rose was called for pass interference, awarding a first down at the Rose 31.

On the third play of the second period, Jackson took the ball around the right side and galloped 13 yards into the end zone, giving Hunt its first score. Todd Wiggs added the PAT for a 7-0 lead with 10:33 left in the half.

The Rampants, thrown for two straight losses, fumbled on the third play after the kickoff, with Hunt recovering on the 13. Hunt used a stutter count to draw Rose offside on fourth and one at the four, and after the half-the-distance markoff, Bernard Jones went in from two yards away to up the lead to 14-0 with 8:20 remaining.

Hunt took the ball back on a punt at its own 31 and moved again — this time helped along by the Rampant defensive mistakes. The 38-yard aerial for the score made it 20-0 with 3:03 left as Wiggs' kick was off-target.

Still unable to move, Rose punted from its own 16 and Best gathered it in on the Rose 47, cutting right through the midst of the Rose defense to go all the way. A two-point try failed, and it was 26-0 with 1:11 remaining.

Rose got good field position early in the second half on a Hunt punt to the Rampant 47, and a 16-yard pass interference penalty moved it down to the 37, but the offense failed there to move the ball. Hunt came back to drive to the Rose 42 before a holding penalty helped stall the drive.

Late in the period, Hunt got its final drive off. After backing Rose into a hole, Best returned a punt 10 yards to the Rose 29, setting up the series. Jackson carried three straight times for 17 yards to the 12. Jones got four more, and then Jackson went over right tackle for five to the three, and then scored on the same play from there. Wiggs again booted the PAT and it was 33-0 with 10:05 left.

Hunt had several more scoring opportunities, but went with its second unit, which failed to get in. Hunt's first try came after an interception put the ball on the Rose 40, only to see it turned back on a fumble. On the next Rose play, another interception gave it back at the Rose 36, but again the second unit failed to pick up a first down.

Hunt got it back twice more in Rose territory, at the 42 — moving to the 29 before giving it back on downs — and at the 40 before time ran out at the 31.

Jackson finished the game with 104 yards on 23 carries to lead the Hunt offense.

The Warriors climb to 8-1 overall and 5-1 in Big East play. They can wrap up top seeding for the state playoffs with a win over Northern Nash next Friday night.

Rose falls to 4-5 on the year and 1-5 in the league. The Rampants close out the year next Friday at Elizabeth City's Northeastern High School.

There was a little tightening up in the race for the top in the picking panel last week, but Vickie Spivey remained a game in the lead.

Spivey finished the week with a 63-30 record, while our guests are still in second place with a 62-31 mark. We follow at 61-32, tied with Tom Baines. Joe Jenkins is fourth with a 60-33 mark. Jimmy DuPree trails at 58-35.

Baines outdid himself last week, putting up a perfect 12-0 record. If past history is any indicator, he'll have a horrible week this time out, and he's bracing himself for it.

Our guest of last week, East Carolina defensive coordinator Tom Throckmorton came up with a 9-3 record, still not quite as good as Slim Short's 9-2. This time around, our guest is Art Baker, the offensive coordinator of the Pirates.

Before we move to the panel's picks, we'll review the high school week. Our record last week was 7-1 bringing up to 51-15 on the season.

The key game in the area is, of course, the meeting of Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central, and we've pushed that to the panel this week, so more about that later. Rose, of course, played last night, and won't be considered this week.

North Pitt's Panthers travel to strong SouthWest Edgecombe seeking to jump back onto the winning track. It won't be an easy job for the Panthers, and we don't really expect SouthWest to have any trouble. It's going to be about 35-0.

D.H. Conley plays host to West Craven in what shapes up as the battle for last place in the Coastal Conference. Neither team has enjoyed much success this year, and one of them is going to have a little more. It's Conley's Homecoming so that should be a plus for them, but we're going with the Eagles to win it, 14-12.

In other area games, it'll be Bath over Chocowinity, Jamesville over Mattamuskeet, Roanoke over Roanoke Rapids and Williamston over Washington.

Now to the panel.

The Chargers and Jaguars meet at Ayden-Grifton in a battle that will probably decide second place and the league's Division II playoff berth. Both teams have had success and both have had problems. It's Homecoming for the Chargers, and, as with Conley, it should be a plus. Enough of one? That remains to be seen. The panel likes the home team, giving Ayden-Grifton a 5-1 edge. Our prediction is a close one, 15-14 for the Chargers.

East Carolina is also observing Homecoming — and the Pirates are hoping for a big crowd to cheer them on over East Tennessee State. Now if things go like they usually do, the Buccaneers will score first and the Pirates will then walk away with it. Maybe. The panel gives the Pirates a 6-0 vote and we predict 45-7 as the final score.

Our other consensus picks: Georgia Tech over Duke; South Carolina over N.C. State; Auburn over Florida; Southern Cal over California; Houston over Texas Christian; Clemson over Wake Forest; North Carolina over Maryland; Miami over West Virginia; Baylor over Tulane; and Ohio State over Wisconsin.

Mark Lye Takes Lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Mark Lye took the lead in golf's season-ending event, scattering ten 3's across his card, while Fuzzy Zoeller and Calvin Peete kept alive their hopes for major seasonal honors.

Lye, who scored the first victory of his nine-year PGA Tour career, once holed out from off the green, required only 24 strokes on the putting surface and birdied half the holes he played on the way to a spectacular, 8-under-par 63 in the first round of the $250,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

"I didn't expect anyone to shoot a really low score, and, after missing the cut last week, I sure didn't expect it to be me."

"But that's when these rounds come up," said Lye who had a three-stroke lead.

He started his heroics Thursday with a 4-foot birdie putt on the sixth hole and got a some raised eyebrows from his partners, Cesar Sanudo and Peter Oosterhuis.

"Then I made a 40-footer for birdie on the seventh and Cesar is saying, 'aw, come on now,'" Lye said.

Lye scored a one-putt par on No. 8, and, on the ninth, missed the green again. Using a putter from well off the green, he holed out from about 70 feet.

"Nobody wanted to talk to me by that time," said Lye.

Zoeller and Peete still had hopes of overtaking some absent leaders and nailing down, respectively, the season's money-winning title and the Vardon Trophy, which goes to the golfer with the low scoring average.

Each had 68 on the Perdido Bay Country Club course, Zoeller despite pain from a chronic back condition. He received medical attention shortly after completing his round, and made a date for treatment before teeing off this afternoon in the second round.

"He was hurting. That back was really giving him trouble," said Andy Bean, who played in the same group with Zoeller. "If he wasn't going for the money title, I don't think he'd be playing."

Zoeller, with $415,689, must finish fourth or better in this last official-money event to overtake Hal Sutton, who completed his American play last week with a $426,668 total.

Peete, the defending champion, needs a 72-hole total of 269 or better to overtake Ray Floyd in the Vardon Trophy race.

Bean, who needs a victory here to extend his string of six consecutive seasons in which he has won at least once, was tied for second at 66 with Ronnie Black and Dan Pohl.

"I'm playing well right now, better than in a long time, and I'm putting well," Bean said. "I figure if there's one more tournament to play, there's one more chance to win."

Lon Hinkle and Jeff Sluman were next at 67.

With Zoeller and Peete at 68 were David Ogren, Al Geiberger, Dave Barr, Russ Cochran, Mike Nicolette, Donnie Hammond, Ivan Smith, Larry Rinker and Mark McCumber.

Rose To Braves?

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves are interested in signing Pete Rose.

Rose, a 42-year-old veteran National League baseball player, was released by the Philadelphia Phillies last week.

"Ted Turner, Braves owner, called and asked us to contact Rose's agent and say we have an interest," said Braves Executive Vice President Al Thornwell Thursday. "We told his agent there is an interest."

Thornwell said the Braves have not started negotiations with Rose or his agent, attorney Reuben Katz.

Katz, contacted at his Cincinnati office, refused comment on his preliminary conversation with the Braves.

Turner was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Rose Booters Clinch 2nd

Rose High School's two-year-old soccer team romped to a 4-0 victory over Northeastern yesterday and clinched second place in the Big East standings, along with a state playoff berth that went with it.

The Rampant defense held Northeastern to only seven shots on goal in the contest, handing the Eagles their worst loss of the season. The win was only the first in four meetings with Northeastern, the other three decided by a total of four goals.

Rose scored its first goal in the opening period when Jody Smith, assisted by Derek Leupen, hit at the 18 minute mark.

The Rampants then came back in the second half to score three times in an 11-minute span to put the game on ice. Leupen got the first goal, assisted by David Jester, at the 11 minute mark, and eight minutes later, Smith scored his second goal, assisted by Pedro Gener. Three minutes after that, Mark Sullivan beat the goalie to the nets for the final score.

Gregg Ward picked up his seventh shutout of the year, helped by Steve Childers in the late going.

"We won six of our last seven games, four of them on shutouts, to win a berth in the state playoffs." Coach Will Wiberg said. "This was a tremendous win for us, and we had a good crowd that helped give us a good home field advantage."

Rose will face Raleigh Sanderson in the first round of the playoffs, which draws 16 teams from across the state. That match will be played in Raleigh on Tuesday. Sanderson has been the top ranked team in the state this year.

NBA Opens 1983-84 Season With 3 Games

By The Associated Press

Six of the nine teams with new head coaches tonight opened the 1983-84 National Basketball Association season tonight as the league starts its 38th year.

Those openers include Atlanta and Mike Fratello at New Jersey, with new Coach Stan Albeck; Boston and K.C. Jones at Detroit, with Chuck Daly; San Diego and Jim Lynam at Portland and Golden State and John Bach at Seattle.

In other openers tonight, Indiana is at Milwaukee, Los Angeles at Kansas City, Utah at Denver, New York at Cleveland and Washington at Philadelphia.

The openers tonight will be played without the regular referees used by the NBA. The officials and the league have not reached an agreement on a new contract and union counsel Richie Phillips says there will be picketing at the game in Landover, Md. if no agreement is reached by gametime. According to the league, the officiating will be handled by substitute referees who worked the exhibition season.

Bill Fitch of Houston, Mo. McHone of San Antonio and Kevin Loughery of Chicago must wait until Saturday to begin with their new teams. San Antonio is at Houston for the game that also marks the debut of Ralph Sampson with the Rockets and New Jersey is at Chicago.

Phoenix is at Dallas in another Saturday opener.

Despite the preponderance of coaches with new teams, all of them have NBA experience.

Three were head men last year — Fitch went from Boston to Houston, Albeck from San Antonio to New Jersey and Loughery from Atlanta to Chicago.

Four others — Fratello, Bach, McHone and Lynam — are going from the assistant coaches' ranks to their first head coaching jobs.

Daly and Jones previously had head coaching jobs and are back this season. Daly was at Cleveland in the 1981-82 season and Jones was at Washington for three seasons from 1973-1976.

"I'm very excited and optimistic," Jones said. "This will be our first season at the helm and I feel we have a real solid nucleus of players returning from last year's team, which finished 56-26."

"I have a solid background in defense and that is how you build winners," Daly said. "Turnovers and too many shots blocked really hurt the Pistons last season. If we improve in those two areas, our defense should be substantially better. The playoffs is our immediate goal."

Two more teams will make the playoffs in each conference under the NBA's new postseason format.

The Bullets, at 42-40, missed the playoffs last season and they have a tough first game against the 76ers, who won 65 games and lost only 17 and then rolled to the title with a 12-1 mark in the playoffs.

Philadelphia is hoping to break a 15-year string of the NBA champions failing to successfully defend the title. No team since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics have repeated as NBA champion.

The Bullets, with a bruising front line of Rick Mahorn, Jeff Ruland and Greg Ballard, are considered one of the most physical teams in the league.

"The strategy for the coming season," Bullets Coach Gene Shue says, "will be no different from last year in that we plan to control the tempo of the game by playing strong defense and utilize the 24-second clock in a control-type offense."

Lady Seahawks Top E. Carolina

WILMINGTON — UNC-Wilmington battled back after losing the fourth game 4-15 to defeat East Carolina 16-14, 13-15, 17-15, 4-15, 15-12 Thursday in collegiate volleyball action.

The Lady Pirates slid to 3-14 on the season and travel to Duke Monday. UNC-W improved its record to 25-12.

Chargers Top Jags

FARMVILLE — Alex Chapman rushed for 135 yards and a pair of touchdowns as the Ayden-Grifton junior varsity blanked Farmville Central 22-0 in Thursday football action.

Timmy Best tallied 120 yards on the ground and ran for two point-after conversions. The Chargers totaled 276 yards rushing and 24 passing on the night.

Chapman ran 35 yards for his first TD of the game with 18 seconds left in the opening period for the only points of the first half. A five-yard run by Chapman with 5:43 left in the third period capped a 61-yard drive by the Chargers.

Jesse Hooker powered over from three yards out to close out the scoring with 9:33 left in the game.

Defensively, Best led the Chargers with a 60-yard interception return.

Ayden-Grifton, now 6-2 on the season, travels to North Pitt next Thursday.

Roles Reverse In Mid-Season Of NFL

By The Associated Press

Dave Krieg of the Seattle Seahawks and Paul McDonald of the Cleveland Browns have will be calling their teams' signals Sunday as the National Football League begins the second half of the season.

They're the seventh and eighth quarterbacks this year to be elevated from reserve to starting roles — and that doesn't include those who took over when teammates were injured.

Krieg, who replaces Jim Zorn, will be facing the Los Angeles Raiders. McDonald, taking over for Brian Sipe, goes against the winless Houston Oilers.

They join Marc Wilson of the Raiders, Gifford Nielsen of the Oilers, Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins, Steve DeBerg of the Denver Broncos, Jeff Rutledge of the New York Giants and Vince Evans of the Chicago Bears as former benchwarmers-turned-starters.

Sunday's other games are Tampa Bay at Pittsburgh, Detroit at Chicago, Minnesota at St. Louis, the Los Angeles Rams at Miami, New England at Atlanta, New Orleans at Buffalo, Baltimore at Philadelphia, Dallas at the Giants, Kansas City at Denver, the New York Jets at San Francisco and Green Bay at Cincinnati. Monday night's game is Washington at San Diego.

It's Krieg's second shot as the starter for Seattle. Last year, in the two games before the strike, Jack Patera gave him the job. Then, during the strike, Patera was fired. And after it, Zorn was back as No. 1, the role he'd held since the inception of the franchise in 1976.

Last weekend against Pittsburgh, Krieg came off the bench to help produce 21 points in the second half of the Seahawks' 27-21 loss. "You learn by watching (but) that's rather difficult," he said. "You'd rather learn by doing. I really want to do well ... I'll go along with whatever we can do to get in the playoffs.

The week before the loss to the Steelers, Seattle beat the Raiders 38-36, a game which finally cost Jim Plunkett his job as the Raiders' starter. Wilson took over last Sunday night and threw three touchdown passes in LA's 40-38 victory over previously unbeaten Dallas.

McDonald said he's "excited, apprehensive, nervous and all those things that go along with being named the starter. I'm going to go out and do the best possible job I can and take advantage of the situation."

He got the job because "Sipe has a very tired arm," Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano said. "It's a decision that we had to make because he's got too much courage — he's too competitive to make it himself." He said as soon as Sipe is rested, he will start again.

"Hopefully, he will be ready in a week or two or whatever."

October 30 9:45 a.m.

But whenever it's ready, he'll be our starting quarterback," Rutigliano said. Sipe has had 17 passes intercepted, six of them by Pittsburgh two weeks ago.

The Steelers, who have rolled up a 6-2 record and a two-game lead over the Browns in the American Conference's Central Division with Cliff Stoudt at quarterback in place of injured Terry Bradshaw, aim to hand Tampa Bay its ninth loss of the year.

The Bucs, too, have had quarterback problems. They lost their starter of the past five years, Doug Williams, to the United States Football League's Oklahoma Outlaws and his successor, former Cincinnati backup quarterback Jack Thompson, is near the bottom of the National Conference passing charts.

The Bears, beaten 31-17 by Detroit two weeks ago, hope to avenge not only that score but Eddie Murray's fake field goal that quarterback Eric Hipple ran for a touchdown in that game. Chicago Coach Mike Ditka was so incensed at the time that he told one of the rookies on the special team to go after Murray on the kickoff. That matter is being reviewed by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The Cardinals play against home, the scene of last Monday night's fiasco, the 20-20 overtime tie against the Giants in which Neil O'Donoghue failed three times to kick a game-winning field goal.

In Miami, Dan Marino, the AFC's passing leader, is matched against Rams' quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who threw five TD passes in a losing effort against San Francisco last Sunday. LA rookie runner Eric Dickerson is only five yards away from becoming the league's first 1,000-yard gainer of the season and the first since 1981. Freeman McNeil of the Jets was the leader with 786 yards in last year's strike-abbreviated season.

First Reporters In Grenada Couldn't File A Scoop

By The Associated Press
Seven U.S. and British journalists landed on Grenada in a hired fishing boat six hours after the U.S. invasion began, but they could not file the story — first because lines were down, and later because American forces refused to let them.

The reporters witnessed a U.S. helicopter gunship being shot down and saw Grenadians firing anti-aircraft machine guns while an A-7 Corsair attack bomber shot rockets at the Revolutionary People's Army barracks, reported Don Bohning, Latin American editor of the Miami Herald, in today's editions.

Another member of the group, Ed Cody, of the Washington Post, wrote of meeting an arriving Marine platoon and being asked: What's going on?

Bohning said Grenadian soldiers seemed to want to help the reporters. Later, they fell into the hands of U.S. forces, were taken to the USS Guam and held as "virtual captives" for 18 hours, he said.

The military flew the journalists to Barbados on Thursday.

Meanwhile, the Pentagon on Thursday gave 12 journalists the first authorized glimpse of the battle scene since the invasion, after newspaper publishers accused the Reagan administration of mimicking Soviet tactics in barring the media from the scene of battle.

In the past, reporters usually have been permitted to accompany U.S. forces in combat. The American Society of Newspaper Editors said the restrictions in the Grenada invasion have gone "beyond the normal limits of military censorship."

The administration had said it was concerned for reporters safety, but spokesmen for the news media pointed out that American reporters have always been willing to share risks taken by American troops.

Anticipating the invasion, Bohning wrote, he and the other reporters chartered a 20-foot wooden boat on the islet of Carriacou 10 miles north of Grenada, and arrived in Grenada around noon Tuesday.

"We figured the invasion was all over and the Marines were in control. We were wrong," he wrote.

"The first man we ran into was a Grenadian immigration inspector who calmly took our passports. The next two were Grenadian soldiers, armed with AK-47 automatic rifles and scuttling about town in a jeep."

Bohning said the reporters first were held "under a sort of loose detention for six hours" by Grenadian immigration officials.

"We were anxious to file our stories. A couple of soldiers escorted us to the telex and telephone office downtown," he wrote. "The doors were locked, but the soldiers kicked them in."

However, the telex lines were dead, he said.

"The Grenadian soldiers appeared to be as anxious for us to put out the news as we were. They promptly rounded up a telephone operator. She tried to get a line out, but couldn't," Bohning wrote.

He said that the next morning he went with Cody and Newsday correspondent Morris Thompson looking for the Marines. A colonel put them on a helicopter that flew them to the USS Guam.

"We found ourselves more or less captives of the U.S. Navy," he wrote. They remained on board the ship for 18 hours, unable to file their stories. On Thursday morning, they left the Guam with an assault force to take the Richmond Hill jail.

But there they met Time magazine correspondent Bernard Diederich, who "it seemed, had liberated the prison the previous night," Bohning wrote.

"He had walked into the prison and found about 10 political prisoners ... they were too scared to leave on their own, so Bernie had escorted them out."

Cody described seeing several young Grenadian soldiers firing machine guns at a U.S. A7 Corsair. "Terrified by the mad roar, we dashed across the dockside street seeking refuge in St. George's main fire station."

Cody wrote. "Policemen, firemen and stranded passers-by already were covering in the corridors."

When he finally encountered U.S. forces, Cody wrote, "A Marine platoon leader shouted an order to halt. He checked identification, then smiled and asked for help."

"We just got here last night," he grinned. "Can you please tell us what ... is going on?"

ROTC Members Views Mixed

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps in Greensboro met recent news of U.S. military actions in Lebanon and Grenada with mixed reaction.

Darryl Foster, 17, said he looks forward to his tour of duty with the U.S. Marine Corps. While he said U.S. forces had no business in Lebanon, Foster said he hoped to go to Grenada and help his brother, Randolph Harris, who recently joined American forces on the Caribbean island.

Cadet Ferris Evans, 16, said the 225 American deaths in Lebanon "makes me want to go more."

Cadet Captain Bernadette Polux, 17, said she is afraid for Marines in Lebanon because they can't defend themselves. But she said she would go to Beirut if so ordered.

"I'd be scared. But there are just some things you believe wholeheartedly in," she said. "You back them up 110 percent."

Armed Robbery Investigated

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department today was investigating an armed robbery Thursday at the Players Retreat on Route 5, Greenville, that resulted in the theft of approximately $370 in cash.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said an employee of the club told deputies he was cleaning up when two males with Halloween paint on their faces and stockings over their heads entered the facility. The employee said that one of the men pulled out a knife, put it up to the worker's throat and then tied him to a pole inside the business with an extension cord.

Tyson said the employee reported the men opened the cash register and took out the cash. The men fled out the back door, deputies were told.

The sheriff said a neighbor who lives across the road from the club discovered the employee tied to the pole with tape over his mouth. The worker was not hurt in the incident, which was reported at 2:45 p.m., Tyson said.

Life As It's Lived

A Fine Line In Ceramics Field

MICHAELS
I don't want to be an artist when she grows up. She wants to be a marine biologist, when she can remember two such onerous words. When she can't, she either says that she wants to work with sea animals or she asks me, "What is it I keep saying I want to be?"

But art is her hobby, her consuming passion. She spends her afternoons covering my kitchen floor with paste and construction paper scraps (usually in that order) as she creates masterpiece after masterpiece. And I tolerate the messes (just barely) because I once read that stifling a child's creativity is tantamount to emotional abuse. Guilt-ridden as I am, I live with the certainty that I am inadvertently subjecting her to such abuse every time I raise my voice (which is frequently), so I avoid all deliberate injustice.

I even send her to art lessons and not just because it means that she'll be messing up someone else's kitchen once a week. I want her to have the experience of working with different mediums. We currently have on display in various parts of the house a food group mobile, a bas relief of the sun shining on what appears to be five purple tannies, and a charcoal reproduction of either a log or a dead possum. I'm not sure which and I'm afraid to ask.

At least Meg didn't ask me to guess what it was, a request all mothers fear worse than rabies. She simply showed it to me, and I did exactly what I was supposed to. I studied it from all four possible vantage points, then said, "Hm, that's interesting. Would you like to tell me about it?"

"It's charcoal," she said and skipped out of the room.

Charcoal is "neat" (her word, not mine), but ceramics is even neater. The first time she worked with clay, she brought home an intricate lump and proudly plopped it in my hand.

"I made it just for you," she said.

I turned it over several times. "This is, ahem, very interesting. Would you like to tell me about it?"

She shrugged. "What's to tell? It's a design."

"Oh, I see. For a paperweight or something?"

"Actually, I vision it as a necklace. A lovely ornament to wear around you neck on a piece of yarn."

This was just what I needed to go along with me anniversary present from her, a "ruby" ring that she hatched out of a plastic egg from the chicken machine at a local department store. Nor could I ever forget to adorn myself with these elegant conversation pieces. She was incredibly perturbed in reminding me.

She also rarely failed to call other people's attention to my new jewelry. She was often too modest to tell of its origins, so I always assumed responsibility for giving credit where credit was due. Everyone was astounded at such generosity in one so young.

The other day Meg again demonstrated her largesse by bringing home a ceramic cup.

"Oh, how nice," I said, relieved at the familiar shape of its much pinched and prodded exterior. "We can use it as a decoration on the buffet."

"Oh, no," Meg said. "I made it for you to drink your coffee out of every morning. I made it real big, but it sort of shrunk, but you can still drink out of it."

"But," I hesitated, "I wouldn't want to risk destroying such a beautiful piece."

She was firm. "Don't worry. The teacher assured me that liquids won't hurt it."

I'm finding that there's a fine line between enthusiasm and masochism.

Liberty's Face-Lift
The Statue of Liberty was dedicated on this date in 1886. The statue is built on a framework designed by Alexandre Eiffel, who also designed the Eiffel Tower in Paris. "Liberty" will undergo extensive repairs in time for its centennial in 1986, at a total cost of some 230 million dollars. The original cost of the statue: $250,000.

DO YOU KNOW — What American poet wrote the verse inscribed on the base of the Statue of Liberty?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — William Howard Taft succeeded Theodore Roosevelt as president.

GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

We would like to take this opportunity during textile week to say thank you for the fine job all our employees do in our two plants in Greenville.

We want to especially recognize our employees who are members of the 25-Year Club. Each of you with your loyal service have had an important part in making our plants what they are today.

You have had a part in making yarns that have gone in special places such as the carpet now in the House of Representatives and the White House.

Thank you for your fine work and loyalty to Fieldcrest Mills.
