Voting Day Tuesday In Pitt Communities

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville voters will elect a new mayor Tuesday and choose six City Council members from an 11-candidate field that includes five present members of the local governing board.

With Mayor Percy Cox opting not to seek a new term, the race to fill his seat involves current Mayor Pro-tem Janice Buck and first time candidate A.B. Whitley Jr., a retired Greenville businessman. Mrs. Buck was successful in her initial attempt two years ago to gain a seat on the council.

The decision by Mrs. Buck to vacate her council chair in order to run for mayor creates an open board seat, while incumbents Judy Greene, George Pugh, Louis Clark, Stuart Shinn and William Hadden hope to gain new two-year tenures.

Opposing the incumbents tomorrow will be M.W. (Henry)

Aldridge, Edward (Ed) Carter, Sallie C. Keel, Mildred (Millie) McGrath, Francis H. Mebane and Alton Warren. Mrs. McGrath and Aldridge are former members of the council.

The local race will be non-partisan and decided by a simple plurality with the top six council candidates and the mayoral aspirant receiving the most votes elected. There will be no run-offs.

In addition to Greenville, municipal elections will be conducted tomorrow in Ayden, Bethel, Falkland, Fountain, Gritton, Grimesland, the Village of Simpson, and Winterville. Farmville voters went to the polls on Oct. 11 to select their new governing officials.

The polls will open Tuesday at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m. Absentee ballots will only be allowed in the Greenville elections.

Andropov Absence Stirs Illness Speculation

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — President Yuri V. Andropov was too ill today to attend a major military parade marking the 66th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution that brought the Communist Party to power.

It was believed to be the first time a Soviet leader has failed to attend the annual celebration in Red Square.

It also was the second major event of the holiday weekend marked by the 69-year-old Andropov's conspicuous absence, further fueling speculation that he is seriously ill.

A government spokesman said he missed a speech Saturday night at the Kremlin Palace of Congresses because of a cold. He has not been seen in public in 111 days.

Andropov's predecessor, Leonid I. Brezhnev, last year climbed the stairs to the reviewing stand atop Lenin's tomb and stood an hour in freezing weather to view the parade. He died three days later of a heart attack.

This year, Red Square was bathed in sun and the temperature was an unseasonably high 46 degrees as tanks, armored personnel carriers and missiles mounted on trucks rumbled over the cobblestones.

Despite his absence, evidence that Andropov remained firmly in power was plentiful. A 9-foot-tall portrait of Andropov was displayed in the first float that followed the military hardware.

It was trailed by much smaller pictures of his 10 fellow Politburo members, many of whom watched the high-precision drill from the reviewing stand about 20 feet above the red granite and marble mausoleum at the base of the red brick Kremlin wall.

Less than two hours after the parade crossed the cobblestone plaza, a man set himself afire about 20 yards from Lenin's tomb where Politburo members stood.

Witnesses said the man appeared to be alive when KGB agents took him away about 3 minutes after he lighted the fire. They said the man could not be heard saying anything, and the reason for burning himself was not clear.

Shells Of PLO Mutineers Said Taking Many Lives

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — PLO mutineers in north Lebanon bombed Yasser Arafat's last stronghold with up to 50 shells a minute today, and the state radio said the barrage forced the guerrilla chief to retreat into Tripoli.

Lebanese police said more than 1,000 people have been killed and 3,000 wounded since the rebels began their attack Thursday, many of them Palestinian refugees in squalid camps outside Tripoli and residents in the port city.

In Syria, the Soviet-backed government put its armed forces on alert and declared a general military mobilization. Sources in Damascus said Syria feared a U.S. attack in retaliation for the terrorist bombing of Marines in Beirut, though American officials have not specifically blamed the Syrians.

In Beirut, Lebanese army experts defused a "huge amount of explosives" in a stolen French jeep parked near Iran's Embassy, apparently meant to blow the building up, police said. They said they had no clue as to who was responsible.

A pro-Iranian extremist group claimed responsibility for the suicide truck-bombing last Friday that killed 60 people at an Israeli military post in southern Lebanon and similar attacks at the U.S. Marine and French bases in Beirut on Oct. 23 which killed 230 U.S. servicemen and 58 French soldiers.

Beirut radio stations said Syrian-backed mutineers of Col. Saeed Mousa, who broke away from Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, rained heavy artillery fire today on the Palestinian refugee camp of Baddawi, outside the northern port city of Tripoli, apparently preparing for a final assault.

Outgunned loyalists of Arafat, the PLO chairman, abandoned the Nahr el-Bared camp Sunday to make a last stand around his headquarters in Baddawi. Today, state-run Beirut radio said Arafat abandoned his Baddawi command post at midmorning and retreated to a PLO political office in the old quarter of Tripoli. The report could not be independently confirmed.

Burning oil tanks at a refinery near Baddawi spewed thick black smoke for a fifth straight day over Lebanon's second largest city. Police said thousands of Tripoli's 500,000 inhabitants have fled to safer areas.

The rebels say they want to oust Arafat because he has abandoned the struggle with Israel. Arafat's men say Syria is backing the assault because it wants to control the PLO.

Christian and Moslem religious leaders in Tripoli have appealed for a ceasefire and the International Red Cross is seeking medical supplies for hospitals overwhelmed by the wounded.

Arafat's control over the PLO began to collapse 13 months ago, when Israeli invaders forced him and his fighters to evacuate Beirut. Syrian-backed guerrillas openly split from Arafat's leadership in May.

Kings And Emirs Arriving For Persian Gulf Summit Session

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

DOHA, Qatar (AP) — Leaders of Persian Gulf nations arrived today for a three-day summit meeting, with the country virtually sealed off after police said they foiled an attempt to blow up the hotel where the kings and sheiks are staying.

The main seaport was closed to most traffic, as was the airport where Sheik Isa bin Hamad al Thani spent most of the day greeting King Fahd of Saudi Arabia.

Sultan Qaboos of Oman and sheiks Zayed bin Sultan of the United Arab Emirates, Jaber al-Ahmed of Kuwait and Isa bin Salman of Bahrain as they arrived in separate jets.

The airport road was heavily guarded. Abandoned houses were bulldozed into the ground along the route to the pyramid-shaped Sheraton Hotel, which was patrolled by anti-terrorist squads with attack dogs flown in from France.

Schools near the hotel were closed, and local residents were instructed to stay away from their windows and balconies.

Information Minister Isa al-Kawari said Sunday that security forces had uncovered a recent plot to blow up the hotel. He said, "I wouldn't call it a conspiracy, it was a criminal attempt by a single person which was smashed."

Al-Kawari refused to provide details, but sources who insisted on anonymity said the bombing plot was uncovered two months ago and about 30 conspirators were arrested. The sources said it was led by a pro-Libyan prayer leader from a local mosque.

The leaders, who make up the Gulf Cooperation Council, plan to discuss a proposed joint defense of the oil-rich region amid threats by Iran to block the Hormuz strait, the gulf's only route to the open sea.

Iran has said it will block the strait if Iraq, which has been at war with Iran for three years, attacks Iranian oil installations in the gulf.

Arab diplomatic sources today said the U.S. destroyers La Salle and Lawrence had docked at Dubai in the United Arab Emirates on a courtesy visit. The two ships carry 46 officers and 802 Marines, with Rear Adm. John Addams, U.S. Middle East forces commander, aboard the La Salle.

The sources said the ships' visit was seen as a demonstration of U.S. support for the Gulf council's resolve to keep the Hormuz strait open.

Congress Returns To A Spending Battlefield

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, its attention for the past two weeks riveted to hostilities in Lebanon and Grenada, returns this week to the spending battlefield and renewed skirmishes over major money bills.

The Senate was to resume work today on the largest military spending measure in the nation's history, one that would earmark $25.5 billion for the Pentagon for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

But before the Senate can finish the bill, it is expected to deal with several major amendments — including one by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., to eliminate $2.1 billion for construction of the first 21 MX nuclear ballistic missiles.

The Democrat-controlled House turned back a challenge to the MX money by a nine-vote margin last week before approving its version of the legislation.

An attempt may also be made in the Republican-led Senate to restore money to the bill to allow the Pentagon to begin producing a new generation of nerve gas weapons. Sponsors are hopeful that the Senate can vote final passage of the bill by late Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Congress faces a midnight Thursday deadline for providing funds to keep much of the government operating. The process may be complicated if House Democratic leaders follow through with their plans to try to add to the emergency bill nearly $1 billion for various aid-to-education programs, a move that could provoke a presidential veto.

The spending bill — due up in the House on Tuesday and in the Senate on Wednesday — is needed because many federal agencies have not yet received money from Congress and an earlier measure, giving them temporary funds since Oct. 1, is about to expire.

At the same time, Senate leaders were expected to press their search for a compromise that would avert another possible fiscal crisis — the need to raise the national debt limit above its current $1.389 trillion.

The House has already approved an increase in the debt limit — the government's borrowing authority — but the Senate refused to follow suit earlier last week.

The debt limit was reached last Tuesday without major impact on federal operations. But Treasury Department officials say the real crunch will come if Congress has not acted by Nov. 15 at the latest.

The House today was scheduled to consider a major dairy bill, one that would trim government support prices for milk and begin a 15-month program of paying dairy farmers not to produce. The Senate already has passed a nearly identical bill.

Meat producers oppose the bill, claiming that it's incentives would idle up to 30 percent of dairy herds, resulting in large numbers of dairy cows being slaughtered, flooding the market with meat and depressing their prices.

The Senate also is expected to take action this week on legislation to renew the Civil Rights Commission. (Please turn to Page 12)

Supreme Court Sidesteps Issue

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, sidestepping a growing debate over the rights of severely handicapped infants, today refused to study the case of a Bloomington, Ind., baby boy who died after his parents decided against life-saving surgery.

The justices, without comment, left intact Indiana court rulings that the boy's death had caused the controversy surrounding his parents' decision to become moot, or legally irrelevant.

Just last week, the Reagan administration filed a federal lawsuit in a case of a severely handicapped New York baby girl whose parents have chosen to forgo corrective surgery.

In the case acted on today, a boy referred to in court records only as Infant Doe was born in Bloomington on April 9, 1982 with a surgically correctable condition that prevented him from eating or drinking.

He was also born with Down's syndrome, a form of mental retardation.

Infant Doe's parents decided against the surgery that would allow him to eat, stating it was best for him, their two children at home and the family as a whole. The child died a short time later.

In seeking Supreme Court review, former Monroe County, Ind., deputy prosecutor Lawrence Brodeur, Infant Doe's appointed guardian, argued that the state courts "abdicated their responsibility" in not protecting the baby's rights.

"Does a newborn handicapped infant have rights of his own or do his parents have a right of privacy that transcends his rights and allows them to determine whether he will live or die?" Brodeur asked in the appeal.

In the New York case, Justice Department lawyers are seeking to force the state University Hospital in Stony Brook to release the health records of a month-old child known only as Baby Jane Doe.

The infant was born Oct. 11 at St. Charles Hospital in Port Jefferson, N.Y., with spina bifida, a failure of the spinal cord to close properly. She also has an abnormally small head and excess fluid on the brain.

Doctors have said that without surgery, Baby Jane is likely to die within two years. With surgery she could survive into her 20s but would be bedridden and mentally retarded.

After consulting with neurosurgeons, social workers and clergy men, the baby's parents decided against the surgery.

CHRISTMAS CARDS REFLECT TRENDS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Christmas cards often reflect significant trends and lifestyle changes on the American scene, says an official of a greeting card company.

This year, it is the move to the Sun Belt, says David LeMoine, Hallmark product manager of packaged seasonal cards. "Our research has shown that 40 percent of all the people who moved last year moved to this area of the country. And these people want to show their environment to their family and friends back in the North and East."

Illustrations on the current Western-theme cards include wild horses, cactus flowers, Mexican pottery and weavings and mountains and cabins, LeMoine says. One card shows a prairie dog family leaving food for Santa.

Dear Abby

North Carolina Bride Had Family Wedding

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the 58-year-old feminist who is enraged by the phrase, "Who gives this woman in marriage?"

I always wanted my father to walk me down the aisle, but I never particularly cared for the tradition of being "given away." Although I did not express my feelings about this, after my father walked me down the aisle, and the minister asked, "Who gives this woman in marriage," my father said, "With her mother's and my best wishes, she happily gives herself."

By the way, I had a real "family" wedding: My grandfather was the minister, and my grandmother was my matron of honor!

LISANNE IN N.C.

DEAR LISANNE: Beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: Last week I read in your column a letter from a young woman who discovered that her mother had been having an affair with her husband. Believe it or not, I was happy to read it because I realized that I was not alone! My mother and husband had an ongoing affair for 16 years before I found out. It had been going on right under my nose and I never suspected a thing.

It's been a year now, and I'm still struggling with the anger, bitterness and feelings of betrayal. I'm seeing a counselor who is helping me deal with this. Until I read that letter in your column, I thought I was the only person in the world in such a bizarre situation.

Abby, you do such a great service by allowing people to tell their stories. So many times we feel we're so alone that no one could possibly know what we're going through and how we feel.

Now I'm sure I'm going to make it. Thanks for being there.

CLIMBING BACK UP IN COLORADO SPRINGS

DEAR CLIMBING: Don't thank me; that's what I'm here for. Please write again and let me know how you're doing. I care.

For Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages — send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Here's a clever set of "Christmas Quickies" — little 2 1/2-inch square ornaments to needlepoint in your spare moments. Or put the children to work on them — they will love being a part of the holiday preparations and this will keep them quietly occupied while you are busy at other things.

If you happen to have scraps of 7-mesh plastic canvas and odds and ends of yarn on hand — and what needlepointer doesn't have drawers or boxes full of leftovers — these can be "free" decorations!

To obtain directions for making the Christmas Quickies, send your request for Leaflet No. NL-1106 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. N-1106 by sending a check or money order for $11.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and sufficient materials for making up to 24 ornaments.

Dear Pat: Having enjoyed your needlework column for many years, I would now like to share an idea with your other readers. I have a frame for working my needlepoint but found it a little too big to hold. So I took an old TV tray table — the kind with a snap-off tray — and used the legs to hold my frame. I just tied the needlepoint frame on to it.

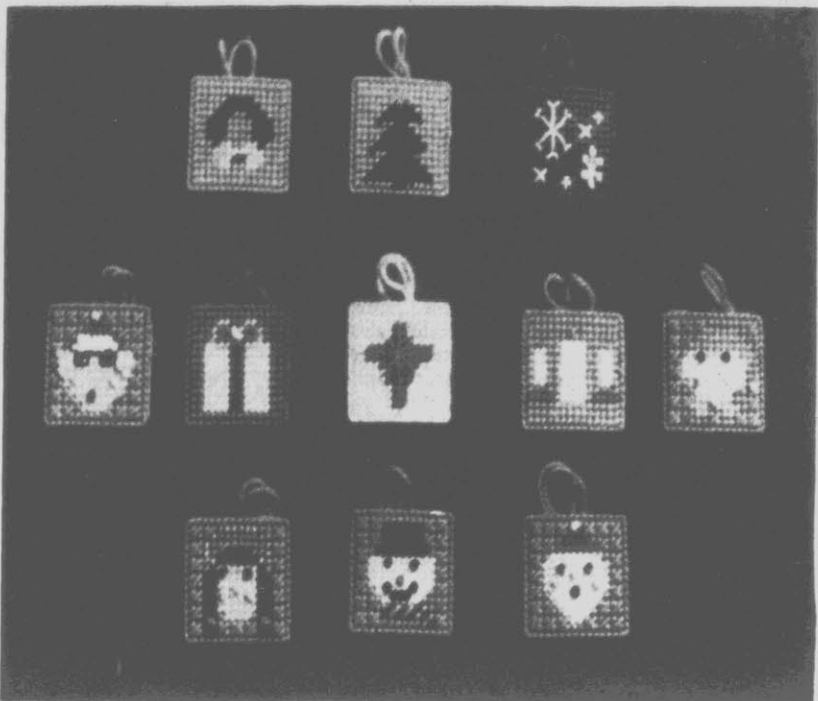

Also, in finishing off loose ends of yarn, as I finish with a strand, I bring my needle up a few holes down from the last stitches made. As I work with the next strand, the old strand is covered as I stitch over it. — Mrs. J.S., Germantown, Pa.

Another reader shares these directions for making a tiny knit toboggan that makes an adorable tree ornament.

Dear Pat: On a size 6 needle, cast on 20 stitches with white yarn. Knit 8 rows in garter stitch. Change to red yarn and knit 8 more rows in garter stitch. On the 17th row, knit 2, knit 2 together, repeating these steps across the row. Continue to work even on the remaining stitches for the next 2 rows.

On the 20th row, knit 1, knit 2 together, repeating across the row as before. Knit 1 more row on the remaining stitches. Break off the yarn, leaving a 12-inch "tail" and thread this back through the stitches. Pull tight and sew down the side until you reach the white cuff. Use white yarn to sew the seam in this section.

Make a small pompon

CHRISTMAS ORNAMENTS...are plastic canvas. 2 1/2-inch square and are made on and attach it to the top of the toboggan, turn up the white cuff, attach a small loop to the top and hang on the tree.

I did a project this year of knitting one ornament each day, using directions for various items I found in your column over the years, plus the above toboggans. I shared these with friends and with children in classes with my grandchildren. Since I am employed full time, it was sometimes quite a hassle, but I found it most rewarding. — Dorothy T. Kinston, N.C.

OLD-TIME PANCAKES
The delightfully tender kind recently requested by a reader.

1 cup fork-stirred unbleached all-purpose flour

1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 large egg

1/4 cups buttermilk
2 tablespoons butter, melted

On wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and sugar. In a deep medium-size bowl beat egg until thickened and lemon color; add buttermilk and butter and beat to blend. Add flour mixture; stir only until it is moistened. Drop batter, by scant 1/4 cups, onto a lightly greased electric griddle heated to 375 degrees. Bake until bubbles break on top and bottoms are brown; turn and brown top sides. Serve hot with butter and maple syrup. Makes a baker's dozen.

NEED TO KNOW

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — It's a big jump from high school to college, and many college freshmen are likely to say "I wish I'd known that before I came."

With this in mind, some University of Rochester freshmen were asked what they wished they'd known before coming to Rochester.

The biggest response, even among top students, was "how to study" or "how to organize my time." Others cited lack of experience with large lecture classes, with reading for a college course, and with note-taking.

One student advised high school students to take a college course at night or during the summer before entering college "to prepare you for being in a group of your intellectual equals."

Motive Questionable

Despite a plethora of welfare programs (including school lunch funds), the House of Representatives recently voted to add another $100 million-plus to the federal child nutrition spending to bring back "children of the working poor" into the school lunch program

Billions of dollars are allocated annually to families at or below the poverty level, including large sums for the school lunch program which critics have contended is so abused that it would be better to throw it open to all children. Under the subsidized lunch program, a family of four making less than $19,305 but more than $12,871 a year would be eligible for the reduced-price meal.

It was a generous gesture whose motive is questionable. It has been our observation that no advocate of a welfare program has ever acknowledged sums were adequate to meet their needs. Could it be that House members who approved this additional outlay were actually saying "look what we want to do for you?"

Visit The Polls

Tomorrow citizens in Greenville and many area municipalities will be going to the polls to choose mayors, councilmen, commissioners or aldermen.

The winners in tomorrow's elections will be determining how tax funds are to be spent in the months ahead. They will decide whether tax rates will be increased, and to a large extent they will determine the directions their communities will take in the years ahead.

It is an important day for every voter in that the people who are elected will chart our futures. All registered voters should make it a point to visit the polls and to make their choices carefully.

Perilous Times

NEW YORK (AP) — These are perilous times as well as times of opportunity for some of the big names in American industry.

Names such as Eastern and Greyhound and Texas Instruments and International Harvester and Grumman and Gulf, to name a few, in industries such as airlines, buslines, computers, heavy manufacturing and oil.

All are involved in predicaments of one sort or another, and in almost every case their problems arise from change and their approach to it. This is a period of rapid, turbulent change that is rare in American industry.

To begin with, the times themselves have changed, with new lifestyles creating a demand for new products and new products forcing changes in consumer and producer behavior.

What happened in the area of personal finance is probably the best example of the phenomenon, with bankers, insurers and brokers all competing for the same consumer dollar by offering very much the same products.

No more than 15 years ago each of these industries was distinctly different, but as individuals became more financially sophisticated, and as electronics allowed each industry to develop new products to serve them, the lines blurred.

Gradually, the industries intermingled. Now, old-line insurers sell stocks, brokerage houses offer insurance, and bankers peddle mutual funds.

What has emerged is a new financial services industry, but in the process scores of brokerage houses, the least heavily capitalized of the three old industries, have had their names disappear into mergers.

The new industry could never have taken place without the emergence of the electronic computer industry, but now this industry too is feeling the pains of adaptation.

Well-known computer makers, just a few years ago sitting atop a mountain of expectations, are in trouble. Texas Instruments, a giant, has apparently backed out of the personal computer market altogether. Those who study the industry expect more to follow, voluntarily or otherwise.

Old industries are changing. Steelmakers have been forced outside their old boundaries by foreign competition and new technology, and diversification is seen by some of them as the only way to survive.

American Can is now in life insurance, as is American Brands. Grumman, an aerospace manufacturer, tried building buses and met disaster. Xerox spent three years trying to be a retailer of office products but is now retreating.

Deregulation is adding to the confusion, primarily by inviting competition, as some of the large airlines have learned. Eastern Airlines has been forced to seek wage concessions from workers. Continental Airlines sought to lower payrolls by firing workers. Greyhound, which operates bus routes, has done likewise.

Imports — made easier by the dollar's high valuation — have created havoc and forced wage concessions in many companies and several industries, most notably automobiles. Chrysler, the third-largest U.S. automaker, still might not have overcome the financial problems that almost led it to bankruptcy.

In such a climate, a climate of change, the perils do not always come from the obvious directions.

A company whose shares are depressed, for example, might find itself pursued by an unwelcome suitor seeking not just to take it over but perhaps bust it up as well. Gulf Oil, a giant, is now fighting that battle.

In fact, the entire oil industry, made up of multibillion dollar giants, seems to be under pressure to reorganize its assets.

Says Business Week: "As investors grow impatient with lagging returns, those companies slow at the task of improving performance risk having it done for them — through takeover attempts, breakup of assets or even liquidation."

Days of opportunity. Times of peril.

RALEIGH — Since the legislative introduction of the Safe Roads Act, the number of drunken drivers on North Carolina roads has been dropping. According to Highway Patrol statistics, 3,000 fewer drunken driving arrests were made during the first eight months of 1983 than during the same months of 1982. When the law finally went into effect on Oct. 1, local police departments reported unusually small numbers of drunken driving arrests.

A Chapel Hill highway safety researcher is encouraged by these early indications of the new law's effects. But before he's ready to pop open the champagne and celebrate, he wants to see if North Carolinians are willing to make the basic social changes needed to really reduce drunken driving.

John Lacey, program manager for alcohol studies at UNC's Highway Safety Research Center, warns that drunken driving laws have been toughened before.

England did so in 1967. France did so in the late 1970s. In both countries, drunken driving dropped immediately. Before long, however, the improvements eroded and the problem was soon as bad as ever.

"We can hope the laws will have an effect on reducing drunken driving and crashes," Lacey says, "and that we'll be able to show that drunken drivers are more likely to be arrested, and once arrested, that they will be dealt with swiftly." This scare 'em sober strategy will work so long as the tougher drunken driving law remains a matter of public conversation, he says. It depends on continued media publicity.

Lacey feels that tougher laws are just a "quick fix which don't get at the more deeply rooted problems." As in Europe, they'll work in North Carolina only so long as they are reinforced by the publicity their novelty creates. Solving the problem of drunken driving — or at least reducing it significantly — is a job for society in general. The government can't do it all with tougher laws.

"The challenge now is to maintain the effect of the new law," he says. "We must keep up the visibility of the problem and make it so it is no longer socially accepted behaviour to drive while drinking."

In the past, the government has failed in its efforts to maintain high visibility of the drunken driving problem. "Public service announcement — TV ads — shown at three o'clock in the morning don't do the trick," he says. But citizens groups like Mothers Against Drunken Driving (MADD) "have shown unflagging interest in the area and tend to generate interest in others. It may be that they will succeed in generating continuing interest," he says.

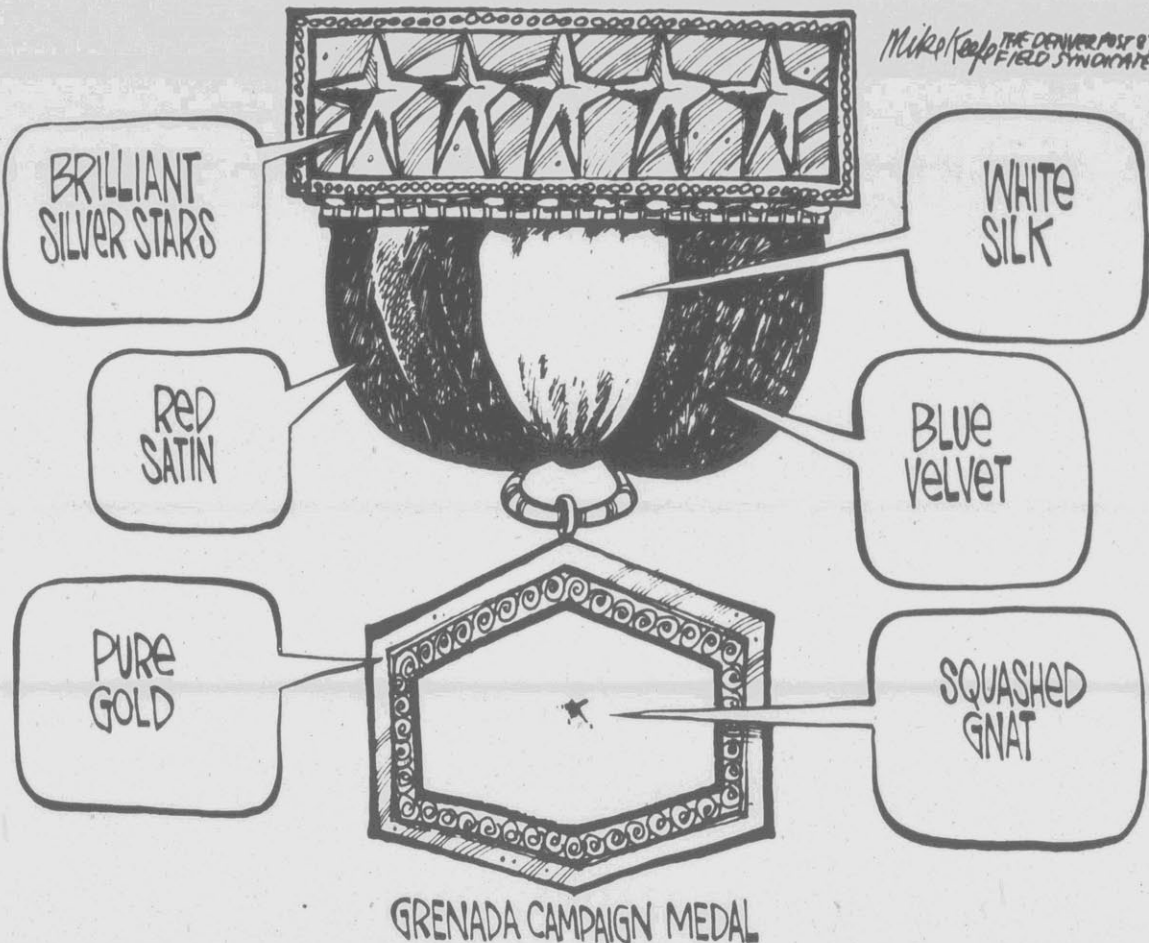

Lacey says North Carolinians must also make a personal commitment to change the way they perceive drunken drivers. "Rather than feeling sorry for that guy who just got caught, we should show some concern that he was in that situation in the first place," he says.

There are elements of the Safe Roads Act which go to the heart of the drunken driving problem, he says. The dram shop provision, for example, is designed to discourage the service of alcohol to those already drunken and to those underaged. Thus it seeks not to punish but to prevent drunken driving, he says.

Community programs that seek to prevent drunken driving are being established. Some provide emergency rides for those who can't drive home. Others seek to discourage the young from drinking.

"I'm not a nay-sayer about the Safe Roads Act," Lacey says. "I'm just saying we need to capitalize on it and move forward." The law's been changed, he's saying, but unless society makes a major commitment to fight drunken driving, the new law is likely to make only a temporary difference in the casualty lists.

Immigration Reform Is Bypassed

WASHINGTON — It won't make the official casualty lists, but among the wounded in last week's explosion of news was the pending bill for reform of our immigration laws. Until the news from Lebanon and Grenada swept everything out of sight, an effort had been planned to revive the ailing legislation.

"Who wants to talk immigration now?" That was the forlorn question raised by a Senate aide who has worked hard for the bill.

"Nothing now is likely for this year," said a top committee staff member in the House. "It's off until February."

All this is a pity, because the long-suffering Simpson-Mazzoli bill represents the best possible legislation that can be achieved in this field. It is not a perfect bill — we rarely see perfect bills on Capitol Hill — but it is the product of years of patient labor by devoted members in both houses. Because of the opposition of Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, the bill now lies in a coma. O'Neill has vowed not to let the measure reach the floor of the House in this first session of the 98th Congress, and in the House the speaker's word is close to law.

Unless O'Neill somehow can be mollified (which was the White House hope), it will be the spring of next year before any realistic hope can be raised for agreement between the Senate and the House. That prospect evokes the application of Pickle's Law, named for the Texas congressman whose wisdom teaches us that "if anything politically dangerous is to be done, it must be done in an odd-numbered year."

The bill does carry political risks. The Hispanic vote in 1984 will be critical in Texas, California and Florida, where nearly 100 electoral votes will be at stake. O'Neill feared — or professed to fear — that if Congress passed an immigration bill, the president would veto the measure and thus curry favor from Hispanics who oppose it. Because significant differences remain between the House and Senate versions, the White House understandably has been unwilling to pledge the president's signature in advance. There the matter stands — or rather, slumps.

The whole business is keenly regrettable. Hundreds of thousands of immigrants slip into the U.S. illegally every year. Five years ago a select commission on immigration estimated the number of "illegals" already in residence at 3.5 million to 6 million persons; the number surely is much larger now. Immigration today — the legal plus the illegal — now accounts for 30 percent to 50 percent of our annual population growth.

Under the Senate bill, the illegals already in residence would be divided into two categories. Those who have resided in the United States continuously since 1977 would qualify at once for permanent resident status. Those who have been here since 1980 would qualify for a three-year temporary status, after which permanent status could be sought. Under the House bill, all those who had taken up residence prior to Jan. 1, 1982, would become immune to prosecution.

Strength For Today

Jesus declared that all authority had been committed to him.

Think of what this means. We are told in the Bible that our lives can become one with Christ. Our life and his life may merge, if we are willing to pay the price of having it that way. And when our life merges with his, then the authority and power which were put in his hands comes into our hearts and within the circle of our lives.

Now this does not mean that we are necessarily elevated to a position of trust. Neither does it mean that we are able to dominate others and have our own willful way. It just means that the same type of power which fills the life of Christ comes into our lives and gives them a new and higher significance.

This vast reservoir is placed at our disposal for use under the providence of God. What a glorious opportunity.

Harry F. Rosenthal

Former Presidents Could Be Source For Advice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Why doesn't the United States make better use of its presidents once they've left office? Right now we've got three of them sitting in mothballs, their minds still sharp, human libraries of the kind of knowledge that only can come from having been there.

The cheapshot answer, with variations on the theme, is that they had plenty of time in the White House to make a mess of things. Still, we paid for their on-the-job training and we're still paying them well, so why not — as Jimmy Carter might say — get the best advice?

Harry Truman, who lived 20 years after he left the White House, had strong ideas about what ought to be done with retired public officials.

"A man who has had the experience of a president, or a vice president, or a speaker of the House gets a chance to become much more familiar with our government than anyone else," he said.

"We must not shelve or thrust into obscurity men with such unique experience."

But sheldom is what the United States bestows on its former chief executives.

Richard Nixon was discredited and brought down by his flaws, but he also achieved detente with the Soviet Union and opened the door to China. He writes and talks extensively about foreign affairs. It was once rumored he would be appointed ambassador to China and why not?

Gerald Ford, who calmed a nation rent by Watergate, knows from 25 years in the House all there is to know about how administrations can work their will with Congress. It was knowledge that could have benefited his successors.

Carter, the president who sat on Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat until they reached their Camp David agreements, now sits in Georgia carving chairs while blood flows with renewed vigor in the Middle East. Special envoys come and go, using the Camp David accords as their benchmark, but none of them is Carter.

All three former presidents testified recently before the Kissinger commission on central America. It was the first time there was a formal bid for their advice.

Former presidents do, of course, have many forums to make their views known. Nixon has written four books since leaving Washington. Ford is on the lucrative convention circuit and he's lectured to more than 130 college audiences since leaving Washington. A news conference called by any of the three is bound to be well attended.

Truman worried about wasting presidential talent. "I was not thinking in terms of what the nation could do for outgoing presidents," he said. "They have already enjoyed honors greater than they could expect. What I was thinking about was what further benefits the nation and the people might get from these men who have acquired an enormous amount of knowledge and insight into the operations and aims of government."

Truman always was one to let deeds speak and he wasn't blinded by his strong partisanship. He chose Herbert Hoover, a Republican, to head the American effort to feed the hungry around the postwar world and called on him again to streamline and reorganize the government.

Only three other presidents held government jobs after leaving office. John Quincy Adams became a congressman; Andrew Johnson, a senator; and William Howard Taft was appointed chief justice of the United States — a job, he later confided, was the best he ever had.

Truman thought a non-voting seat in the Senate might be a good use for former chief executives; that way, he reasoned, they could take part in debate. In 1981 the Senate decided that former presidents "shall be entitled to address the Senate" — a step in that direction.

Former presidents receive regular updates from top men in the current administration. The briefings are a matter of courtesy, but they have their practical side. A former president who has been taken into confidence about a controversial decision might be much less inclined to criticize it than one whose knowledge comes only from a newspaper. It also tends to turn him into an ally when the incumbent goes looking for support. Few presidents treat their predecessors as Truman did Hoover. Reagan called on all three living former presidents only once — to attend the funeral of Anwar Sadat as his representative.

No sitting president, of course, would be willing to be upstaged by a former president. When Ford set a kind of deputy president role as the price for being the Republican vice-presidential candidate in 1980, Reagan decided the cost was too high and turned to George Bush.

Some observers say the problem with appointing a former chief executive as, say, a special envoy or head of a special commission, is that he wouldn't want to report to a secretary of state.

But that ignores a trait common to every ex-president of the United States. They all want to be useful to their country, and having been in the highest office doesn't prevent them from wanting more. It's an offer the country shouldn't refuse.

Supporters Hope Stave Off Attacks

By The Associated Press
The federal tobacco program could be spared attacks by anti-smoking forces if the U.S. House approves proposed dairy legislation this week, says Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C.

A vote is scheduled for Wednesday on the dairy bill, part of a package containing proposed changes in the tobacco program. Supporters hope approval of the dairy bill would permit sending the package directly to a joint conference committee to work out differences with a similar Senate version.

That way, anti-smoking lawmakers couldn't try to dismantle the tobacco program on the House floor, supporters say.

"The outlook is pretty good" for the plan to work, said Rose.

The tobacco measure would continue a freeze in price support levels for 1984 and possibly 1985. It would eliminate the current system of leasing and transferring allotments off the farm.

Supporters have been trying to steer the tobacco revisions through Congress for four months. They say if the bill makes it to a conference committee, the House and Senate probably would quickly approve whatever compromise is reached.

The legislation must pass by December, when Agriculture Secretary John Block must set the national quota and price support levels and make other decisions about the 1984 tobacco crop.

The bill's biggest problem has been getting through a maze of politics involving other commodities.

It was stymied for weeks in the Senate before Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, separated it from wheat legislation that was the target of a filibuster. It finally passed Oct. 7.

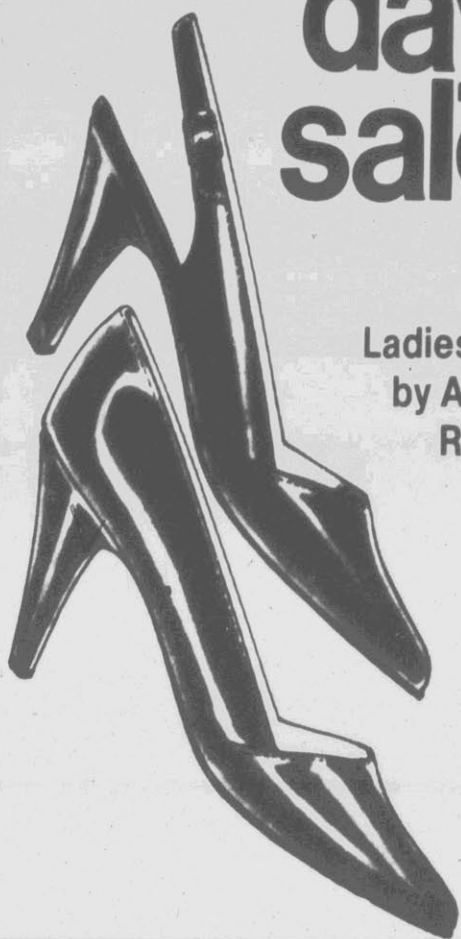

Rose, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts, had hoped to send the House version to conference immediately, but the plan was rejected Oct. 18 on the House floor.

If the dairy legislation is scrapped or changed enough to threaten a prolonged fight with the Senate, Rose said as a last resort he'd offer a stripped-down tobacco bill including continuation of the price-support freeze.

Hold Youths For Murder

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Two Garner teenagers face court appearances Monday after being charged in connection with what Atlantic Beach police have called one of the most brutal murders in the history of the Carteret County town.

Following a 16-month probe, Atlantic Beach police said they arrested Terry Lee Moore and Lee Dwight Johnson, both 19, in connection with the slaying of Angela Willis Ballard, 23, of Morehead City. Police said a tip from a Wake County teenager led investigators to the arrests.

Atlantic Beach police chief Capt. J.R. Rose announced the arrests Sunday. he said Moore has been charged with murder and Johnson with being an accessory after the fact of murder. Moore is being held without bond in the Carteret County jail and Johnson was being held Sunday in lieu of $50,000 bond. Both are scheduled for first appearances in court Monday in Carteret County District Court.

The nude body of Ms. Ballard was found on the morning of July 9, 1982, by two boys who were playing in a sand dune in a vacant lot between the Oceanana Resort Motel and the Dunes Club. Police said Ms. Ballard had been beaten, strangled, and sand was found in her mouth and throat.

NCR Is Proposing Evacuation Change

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Evacuation of anyone living within two miles of a nuclear power plant would be virtually automatic during an emergency under a proposal being considered by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, officials say.

The draft proposal prepared by NRC staff members has yet to be presented to NRC commissioners, said Robert Bernero, director of the division of risk analysis.

Current NRC regulations call for Emergency Planning Zones reaching out in a radius of about 10 miles from power plants. Bernero, who sponsored the proposal, said current regulations tend to make people think of evacuation as an "all or nothing response."

"This wouldn't remove the planning at all," he said from the NRC's Bethesda, Md., headquarters. "All we're doing is sharpening the regulations. The difference in the planning is in the first two miles you're talking about a much different sense of urgency. ... I hope it increases the safety."

An NRC panel is currently holding hearings on Duke Power Co.'s effort to license the Catawba Nuclear Plant in York County, S.C. The Carolina Environmental Study Group has contended that the plant's Emergency Planning Zone should be extended to include Charlotte, whose southwestern limits lie about 10 miles from the plant.

Jesse Riley, former president of the group, said he opposes reducing the size of the planning zone but that he could support an attempt to set priority responses.

Experiment Draws Viewers

SEATTLE (AP) — A $3.5 million experiment to harness an underground coal fire to produce gas has drawn observers from Thailand, Brazil, France, Belgium and Canada as well as from two U.S. oil companies and several states, an official says.

The coal gas resulting from a controlled fire in a coal seam 200 feet below ground could be burned in power plants, converted to chemicals or upgraded to the equivalent of natural gas, said Roger Paul, chief geologist for Washington Irrigation & Development Co.

Two fires have been ignited so far, and the quality of the gas piped to the surface has been better than expected, Paul said.

Aver Dumps Threaten Pure Water

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A report warning that toxic chemical sites might be polluting North Carolina groundwater is "the most non-professional thing I've ever seen put out," a state official says.

The report, prepared by Donald Huisingsh of N.C. State University and Janet R. Hatley of Louisburg College, says about 2,000 toxic chemical sites are so close to the state's water supplies that they "are or may be contaminating our groundwater."

Funded by the state and based on information provided by state agencies, the report uses nine maps, three appendices and three tables to support its contention.

The researchers plotted the locations of 260 North Carolina towns whose 477,000 residents are dependent on underground reservoirs. They then showed how near the towns are to what they called known or possible sources of pollution including landfills, chemical spill sites, waste lagoons, pesticide container dumps and abandoned hazardous waste sites.

But O.W. Strickland, director of the state Division of Health Services' solid and hazardous waste branch, said the report was "the most non-professional thing I've ever seen put out."

He said maps in the document have a small scale that could give laymen a distorted impression of the distance between public groundwater sources and existing sanitary landfills.

"To my knowledge, only one public water supply well (in Brunswick County) is anywhere near a landfill," Strickland said. "That well was put in after the landfill. And I'm not saying that is too near."

Huisingsh responded: "We aren't saying any of them are presently contaminating municipal water supplies. We're saying: Here are problem areas, or potential problem areas."

The report listed previously identified potential hazardous waste problems, including:

- 70 sites identified this year by regional hydrologists, including places where groundwater pollution is said likely because of spills, buried chemicals or other reasons.

- 657 pits, ponds and lagoons that contain agricultural, industrial, mining and municipal wastes.

- 124 applications to bury pesticides in conventional landfills evaluated — and in most cases permitted — by the state between June 1974 and May 1977. Such burials are now prohibited.

- About 150 sanitary landfills now operating with state approval.

- 627 abandoned hazardous waste sites listed in government surveys that the report calls "very imprecise."

- More than 350 open dumps for pesticide containers, as recorded in a 1981-82 state survey.

Complexities In Any Forecast

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The computer revolution will have enormous impact on our way of life, but it is impossible to predict or control what those changes will be because society is too complex, says a University of Rochester professor.

"The best thing to do is accept and adapt to whatever comes," says William H. Riker, a professor of political science.

That includes facing more unemployment in some fields as cheaper imports are favored and some workers are replaced by machines, he notes.

"Still, new jobs will be created," he says, "and we probably will have less unemployment than we did 100 years ago in a farm society that was based on seasonal labor."

LEFTIST DEFEAT
PARIS (AP) — Opposition forces defeated candidates of the Socialist-Communist alliance in two municipal elections in Paris suburbs, continuing a string of local defeats for the left.

Christian Unity Goal Is Underlined By John Paul

By JOHN WINN MILLER
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II's historic overtures to Protestants, his praise for Martin Luther and his plans to join a Lutheran Church service, reflect a driving passion of his papacy — the search for Christian unity.

On the very day he was installed as pope five years ago, John Paul set that tone by holding a special meeting with 42 representatives of Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches at the Vatican.

Calling Christian disunity "a scandal," he launched a worldwide ecumenical mission that has taken him from the heart of Eastern Orthodoxy at Istanbul to the bastion of Anglicanism at Canterbury Cathedral in England and to the "spiritual heirs" of Martin Luther in West Germany.

On Saturday, two more bold initiatives were announced.

First, John Paul praised Martin Luther's "profound religiousness" and called for a re-evaluation of the man who shattered the unified Catholic Church by launching the Protestant Reformation 462 years ago.

Then Lutheran officials announced that the 63-year-old pontiff accepted their invitation to preach next month at a Lutheran Church in Rome — the first time a Roman pontiff has ever preached at a Protestant church in his own diocese.

The comments on Luther, the warmest ever by a pope, and the historic visit were characterized in Vatican circles as the boldest steps yet for Christian unity.

However, some Vatican analysts said all of John Paul's moves to date have been largely symbolic and that the pontiff has yet to make a significant concession on substantive issues, such as papal supremacy and infallibility.

But most agreed that John Paul's initiative would give new impetus to the unification process begun by the Second Vatican Council, 1962-65, and by Pope Paul VI.

The Council led to the formation of dozens of joint commissions between the Roman Catholic Church and other Christian churches in an effort to eliminate factors that led to division.

Paul VI took the initiative to heal the rift between the world's 790 million Roman Catholics and 125 million Eastern Orthodox Christians.

A conflict over the authority of the pope resulted in a schism in 1054 when Pope Leo IX and Patriarch Michael Cerularius of Constantinople excommunicated each other.

Rapprochement began when Paul VI kissed the feet of Patriarch Athenagoras in a historic meeting in Jerusalem in 1964, and they lifted the excommunication orders the following year.

In 1979, John Paul traveled to Istanbul for talks on reunification. A year later he announced the beginning of a "dialogue" with Orthodox Christians aimed at agreement on celebrating Mass together.

Differences on papal primacy and divorce still divide the two churches, but an agreement on celebrating Mass together would virtually seal their unity because

Mass is the most important rite in both churches.

Great strides have also been made to heal the rift between Roman Catholics and the church founded by Luther. The German priest was excommunicated in 1521 for attacking widespread views that salvation could be earned by good works, such as paying for Masses and indulgences to avert penalties in purgatory.

His theory that salvation came only through faith in God's mercy became a basic doctrine of the Protestant faiths, formed after his excommunication.

In September a U.S. team of Roman Catholic and Lutheran theologians delivered a historic declaration of convergence on basic doctrines.

The report, the result of five years of work, said much of the real fight between Luther and the Roman Catholic Church was over the power and income of much of the ecclesiastical establishment.

Another commission is set to discuss the Virgin Mary and the saints — who Protestants think are given too much weight. The two churches also still differ over purgatory and the papacy.

In addition, for the first time ever, Roman Catholics will join Lutherans on Nov. 10 in celebrating the anniversary of Luther's birth 500 years ago.

Since the Second Vatican Council, the Roman Catholic Church and Anglicans also have been moving closer together.

A report last year by an international commission of the two churches found a wide measure of agreement on doctrine. But its members agreed that unity is far off.

Mental Health Perspectives

Loss of a Parent
by Barbara Vosk, Ph. D.
Coordinator/Children Services

When children are faced with the loss of a parent, either through death, divorce or separation, it is common for them to express a wide range of emotions. Anger, depression and withdrawal from others are typical reactions. Some children do not appear to be experiencing anything unusual, but this does not mean that they have not been affected by what has happened around them.

Children need to be able to talk about what has happened to them. Parents who are experiencing their own emotions following a loss may find it difficult to discuss their children's reactions to it. Listening to your children, answering their questions, allowing them to ventilate their anger or sadness are all healthy ways in which you can help your children through this difficult time.

If there are marked changes in your child's behavior, if long-standing problems get much worse, or if their strong emotional reactions last more than six weeks, professional help may be indicated to help all family members return to their optimal level of functioning.

Urge Punishing 'Death Squads'

By CHRIS ANGELO
Associated Press Writer
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — U.S. embassy officials say they are pressing the Salvadoran government to clamp down on right-wing terrorist groups who have been killing and threatening prominent Salvadorans and acting more openly in the last two months.

"Yes, there's embassy pressure," said a U.S. official who insisted on anonymity. He declined to say how the pressure was being applied, but said it involved specific cases and occurred in regular contacts between embassy officials and Salvadoran leaders.

Defense Minister Gen. Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova on Friday delivered the strongest criticism yet of the groups by a current government or military official.

He said the armed forces will "combat with special energy" terrorism from both the "extreme left or the extreme right, regardless of who is backing them."

Human rights groups blame rightist death squads for the vast majority of the 47,000 deaths in political violence during the civil war in this Massachusetts-sized country of 4.6 million people.

Widespread reports link the death squads to officers in the nation's security forces and to other prominent figures, although no one has publicly acknowledged involvement with the squads and none of their leaders has been prosecuted.

Several names are repeatedly mentioned by political observers, who spoke on condition they not be identified. Two provincial military commanders and three officers have been implicated in the 1981 killings of two American land reform advisers. The intelligence chiefs of two security forces and an official involved in security for the Constituent Assembly also have been linked to the squads.

Two death squads that have claimed responsibility for recent bombings, kidnappings and murders call themselves the Secret Anti-Communist Army and the Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez Anti-Communist Brigade.

But a university political analyst said the squads may be phantom organizations that frequently change their names and personnel.

Vides Casanova, speaking at a graduation ceremony for officers, said continued rightist terrorism could jeopardize U.S. military aid to the Salvadoran government. In 1983 El Salvador received $85 million in weapons and training to continue its 4-year-old war against leftist guerrillas.

Military leaders, he said, "fully repudiate the unhealthy existence of these groups, whose barbarism scandalizes the civilized peoples of the world and blocks the legitimate aid we need so much."

The U.S. embassy official said neither aid nor ideology were factors in the American interest in eliminating the squads.

"Whether they say they're anticommunist or not is not the point," he said. "What this country needs is less murder, less torture, less night-riding and it doesn't matter what the ideology of the people is."

Death squad activity began in the late 1970s and has continued over the course of the war, human rights groups say. After a period of silence, the squads resurfaced recent to gain publicity.

Early in September they kidnapped several labor leaders. At the time, the Constituent Assembly was debating land reform, an issue which affects the country's wealthy minority, labor unions were resurging and the government was beginning contacts with leftists.

Among recent actions by the groups was a threat to take "drastic sanctions" against the two highest officials of the Salvadoran Roman Catholic Church unless they stopped giving Sunday homilies critical of the squads.

The latest squad victims include eight professors killed in a six-week period. Four radio stations and an afternoon newspaper were warned they would be "judged" if they published advertisements by labor groups, the Christian Democratic Party or any "Communist group."

Like Change In Medicare

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A new federal plan for reimbursing hospitals for treatment of Medicare patients appears likely to benefit hospitals and patients in North Carolina, according to hospital officials.

The plan is expected to provide larger reimbursement to most hospitals in the state. Also, those higher payments could be passed to non-Medicare patients in the form of lower charges, hospital administrators said.

"The new system has a good chance of reducing spiraling costs," said Charles R. Beale, director of finance for Raleigh's Rex Hospital. "If Medicare begins to carry more of its load, Rex's policy will be just not to raise prices as often."

Under Medicare, the federal government pays hospitals to treat the elderly and certain categories of the disabled. The new payment system, which began last month in most local hospitals, will be phased in over four years. It is designed to give hospitals incentives to keep costs down.

Hospital officials predicted that North Carolina would benefit from the new system because hospitals would be lumped together with those in states where costs are higher.

those who think there is a sinister, and still secret, story behind the assassination of President John F.
Kennedy.

To these people, Kennedy's death 20 years ago was part of a conspiracy and an ill-defined but chilling cover-up that continues today.

Their common target is the Warren Commission and its conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting on his own, fired three shots into the presidential motorcade.

Their common complaint is that crucial evidence was destroyed and distorted or overlooked and ignored.
Important witnesses, they insid, ere discredited or dismissed while others vanished or died mysteriously.

But they disagree about whose plot it was, and why, and why the government would embrace or perpetuate a cover-up.

They all believe, however, that the 24-year-old Oswald was nothing more than a patsy.

The critics — an international collection of authors, historical researchers and "assassinologists" — raise provocative questions but provide precious few answers.

"After 20 years, I can't say who did it," said Mary Ferrell, a Dallas legal secretary,
"but I can definitely say that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone."

If there is one thing upon which all the critics agree it is that Mary Ferrell is among the foremost Kennedy researchers.

They say Paul Hoch, a professor at the University of California-Berkeley, is among the most respected, Penn Jones of Texas the "gutiest" and Bud Fensterwald of Washington, D.C., the most valuable for his efforts in getting documents declassified.

There are conspiracy theorists who write a lot:
Mark Lane ("Rush to Judgement"), Sylvia Meagher ("Accessories
After the Fact"), Harold Weisberg ("Whitewash"), Anthony Summers ("Conspiracy"), David Lifton ("Best Evidence") and Seth Kantor ("Who Was Jack Ruby?").

But Mary Ferrell remains in a class of her own, an ultimate authority, a researcher to whom other researchers turn.

Now in her 60s, she is a forthright woman who likes good brandy and bad jokes and reads everything, good or bad, that might shed light on the case.

She has compiled what all the researchers say is the most extensive Kennedy library in existence and has cross-indexed everything imaginable, including thousands of pages of FBI and CIA documents.

"Before I die, I hope someone comes along to take this up," she said, apologizing for the boxes of documents scattered about her living room.

Mrs. Ferrell is currently poring over 200,000 pages of material recently declassified by various agencies. The government routinely declassifies documents, and most of the assassination theory critics are on mailing lists to get the latest material from FBI, CIA and Secret Service files.

The critics don't consider the trail too cold to follow. It is only in the last 10 years, Mrs. Ferrell noted, "that we learned our government took part in the assassination attempts on Castro ... that our government, the CIA, was playing footsie with the Mafia and that the Mafia had a vested interest in getting Castro out of Cuba."

The Cuban connection is a prominent theory.

Although Cuban President Fidel Castro accused the CIA, under Kennedy, of multiple attempts on his life, he has denied complicity in the assassination.

Most critics point to a purported alliance of dissident intelligence personnel, mobsters and CIA-trained Cuban exiles.

"There is a strange alliance between the CIA and the mob and the Cuban exiles who watched their friends and relatives slaughtered at the Bay of Pigs," said Gary Shaw, 45, an architect in Cleveland and author of a book called "Coverup."

"They had the motive, the means and the opportunity ... and you can trace them right straight to Dallas, Texas."

Shaw, a history buff, said that until he read the Warren Commission Report in 1964, he believed Oswald to be the lone assassin and Jack Ruby the lone avenger.

"But the more I got into it,
the more it stunk," Shaw said. "The evidence is overwhelming that Oswald did not act alone. I think the evidence indicates that Oswald did not fire a shot. I think in a court of law he would have been exonerated completely. He was exactly what he said he was, a patsy."

Shaw contends that the government's handling of the case proves there was a conspiracy.

"They manipulated evidence, falsified evidence and destroyed evidence," he asserted, citing the disappearance of Oswald's military records, a note written by Oswald warning the FBI to stop harassing his wife, Marina, and the laboratory slides of Kennedy's brain tissue. "You've got to ask yourself, 'why?'"

Some people think organized crime was behind the assassination, partly because of Attorney General Robert Kennedy's crime-busting crusade, partly due to impatience with Castro, who had run mob-backed gambling interests out of Havana.

Robert Blakey, formerly chief counsel to the House Select Committee on Assassinations, now at the Notre Dame law school, emerged from the two-year congressional investigation convinced Oswald had acted on orders from organized crime.

"We were worried about whether Cuba did it. We were worried about whether the CIA did it. We were worried about whether the FBI did it," he said in an interview in 1979. "And the mob must have been thinking to themselves, 'Good.' ...
There's only one theory that makes sense out of it, and that's that the mob did it."

There has also been speculation that the body buried in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Memorial Park was not Oswald's. In 1981, the grave was dug up at the insistence and expense of British author Michael Eddowes, who for years had claimed that body was that of a Russian im-poster. Pathologists confirmed the body was Oswald's.

One of Shaw's specialties is tracking down and rein-terviewing witnesses, but the person he most wants to question is in prison for the sniper slaying of federal Judge John Wood in San Antonio.

"Charles V. Harrelson — an associate of Jack Ruby and Santos Trafficante, the Mafia chieftain in Florida involved in the Castro assassination attempts — has admitted publicly that he participated in the Kennedy murder," Shaw said.

Law officers who captured Harrelson in Van Horn, Texas, in September 1980 quoted him as saying that he had not only killed the judge but had also killed Kennedy. The authorities also said Harrelson seemed affected by drugs at the time and made his claims after a six-hour standoff.

In a subsequent interview on Dallas television, Harrelson backed off his confession. "At the same time I said I had killed the judge, I said I had killed Kennedy, which might give you an idea as to the state of my mind at the time," he said. "It was an effort to elongate my life."

Nevertheless, Shaw and Jack White, a 56-year-old Fort Worth graphics expert and Kennedy researcher, believe Harrelson was one of three "tramps" photographed in police custody
Nov. 22, 1963.

The critics refer to the three — never officially identified — as Frenchy, the Old Man and the Tall Tramp, the one they believe to be Harrelson.

"If I was going to pursue one story, one aspect that has not been explored, that would be the one," Shaw said.

televised the movie footage taken by bystander Abraham Zapruder, recording the moment the president was shot, Gary Mack, 32, had only a passing interest in the Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.

WHAT EVER HAPPENED TO NOVOCAINE?

The vast majority of dental treatments are done with local anesthetic. It's safe and easy to use, and the patient is comfortable and conscious. The whole system is not affected, only a specific area; there are no side effects, such as grogginess, and the loss of sensation in the localized area does not last for a long time after the work is done.

The anesthetic is injected at or near the point where the dentist is going to be working. The nerves in the area are anesthetized—there is a loss of sensation only in a "localized area". The patient can respond to instructions, is conscious of the work being done, but doesn't feel it.

Most people associate local anesthesia with Novocaine (the scientific name is Procaine), which was, in fact, a staple for many years. Nowadays, however, Novocaine is seldom used. We've come a long way in dental anesthesia. Procaine has been replaced by safer and more effective local anesthetics. The most commonly used today is Lidocaine (commercially, often called Xylocaine), which is stronger than Procaine and thus can achieve the same effect with a lesser dosage.

How to buy group health coverage.

Since the cost of health coverage has been rising much faster than other business costs, business people have to become much more skillful at evaluating competitive health-benefit proposals.

Here are some of the issues you'll want to consider.

Are the rate and cost containment strategies effective?

The cost of coverage is related directly to the cost of health services.

Therefore, does the carrier have effective ways to contain both your group's need for health care and the price of that care?

For example, does the carrier have cost-containment agreements with area hospitals and physicians?

Can the carrier offer your employees built-in incentives to use medical services efficiently?

Is your carrier achieving the dream of paperless claims processing? We are.

Can the carrier offer options that reduce both the incidence and severity of illness? Membership, for example, in a health maintenance organization?

Will the plan be affordable?
Can you assume variable levels of risk?

Can payments be geared to your cashflows? Are a variety of financing arrangements available?

Will the service
be rapid, accurate and trustworthy?

What is the carrier's reputation for prompt, accurate payment?
For adequate disclosure of claims paid or denied?

To what extent is the carrier achieving the dream of "paperless" processing? Can claims be filed by computer?

Will your employees appreciate the coverage as a true benefit, the way having our benefit plan is appreciated, or will they take it for granted?

To prevent problems for you down the road, will your carrier make the plan's provisions perfectly clear to them?

Take advantage of us.

All of these questions should enter any evaluation of alternative group-health plans.

The subject is complex, however, so please take advantage of our 50 years of experience. Just call your nearest service office, or write to: Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, Room 558, Post Office Box 2291, Durham, North Carolina 27702.

Why do we want you to become a better-informed customer?

Because the better you understand health coverage, the more you'll prefer ours.

The better you understand health coverage
the more you'll prefer ours.

Does your carrier have cost-containment agreements with area providers? We do. And that's only one of the strategies that enabled us to save our subscribers more than $125 million last year.

Dog-Jogging Could Be Risky To Pet's Health

By JAMES E. WALTERS
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jogging may keep people's bodies from going to the dogs, but some veterinarians say owners who take their pooches running could be risking canine collapse.

"Dogs with pulled muscles or inflamed muscles are very common," said Dr. Rick Wells of Tempe Veterinary Hospital Ltd. "A lot of people go jogging and expect their dog to keep up, and it doesn't work."

"Dogs have to work into condition, just like humans," he said. "You just can't take Rover out of the back yard, where he hasn't run more than a few yards for a year, and expect him to go a couple miles."

Another problem, said Wells, is that streets and sidewalks can get extremely hot in the summer, burning a dog's footpads.

"Then, too, dogs overheat much easier than humans, so while you may feel OK, your dog may be about to have a heat stroke," he said.

Dr. Rick Sampson of Ingleside Animal Clinic said that while he doesn't see a high percentage of dogs with jogging-related injuries, the number has increased noticeably and those he does see have major problems.

"I think the owners believe the dog will recover naturally, and when that doesn't happen they bring them in," he said.

Dr. Kenneth Jeffrey of Mesa Veterinary Hospital said, "We are seeing more dogs for emergency treatment for injuries than we did, say, five or 10 years ago. In just about every case the dog was out with a jogging owner."

Jeffrey said most of the injuries he sees are of a twisted-leg type, from a dog stepping into a hole.

"Then, too, there are accidents such as a dog running without a leash being hit by a car or getting into unfamiliar territory and tangling with a cactus," he said. "We also see snake bites fairly often, where the owner and dog are running in the desert and the dog gets off the beaten path."

All three vets recommended that a dog be kept on a leash while jogging and that the owner pay close attention to whether the pet might be in trouble or need a drink of water.

"Their feet and legs need to be watched carefully," said Sampson. "Dogs are susceptible to joint stress and abrasions of the feet, particularly when running on pavement. The owner must remember that while he has shoes, the dog doesn't."

Wells said he recently treated a dog with a badly cut foot from stepping on broken glass. He said dogs also tend to get weed seeds stuck between their toes when running alongside area canals, starting an infection that frequently requires surgery.

Dr. Doug Hauser of Sun City Animal Hospital said folks in the suburban retirement community of 50,000 aren't much for jogging, so he doesn't see many jogging-related injuries among dogs.

"The big problem here," he said, "is dogs getting injured when they fall off golf carts, which are utilized a great deal here."

$3.5 Million Buys A Town

SASABE, Ariz. (AP) — For $875,000 down, this tiny border town can be all yours — all but the church featured in the movie "Lilies of the Field."

Domingo Pesqueira, who bought the 100-person town in 1977, lives in nearby Altar and wants to sell Sasabe because of his extensive ranching interests in Arizona and Mexico, said Conrad Mendez, the town's manager and Pesqueira's brother-in-law.

The total price, payable over 10 years, is $3.5 million. That includes 450 acres, the town's businesses and 24 homes.

Claudia Hartman of First American Realty and Development Comp. in Tucson, the listing agent, said that included in the package are a bar, two liquor licenses, a bakery, hardware store, general store, service station, auto-parts store, post office building and the town's water wells.

Not included are the elementary school, the U.S. Customs building and the mission church featured in the 1963 movie for which

Superchicken

In 1970, Perdue Farms began crossbreeding for a better broiler. Since then, the White Rock/Cornish hybrid has grown more meaty and tender through genetics and nutrition. For the growers, these and other advancements have meant improved feed conversion, faster growing flocks, and extra pay for a better product. For example, in 1973 it took 60 days to produce a 4.4 lb. broiler. Today it takes only 52 days.

Perdue still spends more than most companies on research and quality control. In the highly competitive poultry business, standing still won't keep you ahead. That's why Perdue's veterinarians, nutritionists, and geneticists keep working to develop a "Superchicken." In the meantime, the market for Perdue's superior chicken increases every year. In fact we're planning to open a second shift at our Robersonville processing plant to help us meet this growing demand. As a result of our expansion, Perdue needs 145 more broiler houses. So if you're a North Carolina farmer who'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-4151 or send in the coupon below.

Strong Aftershock Hits Central Idaho

CHALLIS, Idaho (AP) — The strongest aftershock in a week has hit this central Idaho town, the site of a major earthquake that killed two schoolchildren and caused millions of dollars worth of damage 10 days ago.

The aftershock, termed "small to moderate," registered 4.5 on the Richter scale and occurred at 2:04 p.m.

Sunday, said Dr. Robert Smith of the University of Utah Seismology Center in Salt Lake City.

Its epicenter was the same as that of the Oct. 28 quake, which measured 6.9 on the Richter scale.

The area has been hit by waves of aftershocks since the major tremor, and aftershocks of magnitude 5.5 and 5.1 were measured the day after the quake, Smith said.

Custer County sheriff's dispatcher Sylvia Markley said there were no reports of damage or injury from Sunday's aftershock.

"I guess people are getting used to it," she said. "I definitely could feel it, but it didn't shake anything off the shelves or make anything sway."

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs; every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. An earthquake of 4 on the Richter scale can cause moderate damage in the local area; a 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

Solar Fraction

The solar fraction for this area Sunday, computed by the East Carolina University Department of Physics, was 67. This means that a solar water heater could have provided 67 percent of your hot water needs.

Investigating Gunshot Death

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating a gunshot death which occurred Saturday evening in the St. John's community near Grifton, Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported.

Tyson said Alton Barfield, 34, of 807 East Avenue, Ayden, was reportedly killed by a gunshot wound to the chest some time before 8:25 p.m. He said no arrests have been made.

Possession Count

Robert Allen Bland, 33, of Richmond, Va., was charged with possession of marijuana following a 2:51 a.m. incident on Charles Boulevard Sunday.

Officer D.R. Best said Bland was charged when investigators found marijuana in the Bland car after the vehicle was stopped for a traffic check.

Man Arrested

Greenville police arrested Christopher John Flynn, 17, of 442 W. Third St. on shoplifting charges Sunday following a 12:45 p.m. incident at the Fuel Dock at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive.

Officers said Flynn allegedly took a bar of candy from the firm.

embroiled in controversy since President Reagan fired three of its six members last month.

Authority for the panel technically expired Sept. 30. A move led by Sens. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., and Joseph Biden, D-Del., to restructure the commission as a congressionally appointed body has already gained 54 Senate sponsors.

Also pending action in the Senate is a House-passed measure that would require American forces to be withdrawn from Grenada by Dec. 24 unless Congress allows them to stay longer. But the Senate's Republican leadership is expected to sit on the bill and postpone a vote, in light of the administration's reported plans to begin withdrawing troops within the next few days.

Tampa Bay Celebrates First 1983 Win

By The Associated Press

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers finally could celebrate a victory, but there were no celebrations for Houston, Denver, Minnesota and the Los Angeles Raiders — the latter despite posting another National Football League victory.

"I think our rallying cry of late has been, 'Whatever it takes,'" said quarterback Jack Thompson after Tampa Bay captured its first game of the season after nine losses by downing Minnesota 17-12. "James Wilder had the right stuff. It wasn't artistic, but the bottom line is we won."

Wilder banged out 219 yards in 31 carries, including a 75-yard touchdown sprint that put the Bucs ahead to stay in the third quarter. The TD run was the longest ever by a Buccaneer and the 219 yards broke the team's single-game rushing record.

"It's something to celebrate about," said Wilder. "It feels great when you want to win and you never get tired."

In other games Sunday, it was Dallas 27, Philadelphia 20; Pittsburgh 26, San Diego 3; New Orleans 27, Atlanta 10; Cincinnati 55, Houston 14; Green Bay 35, Cleveland 21; Los Angeles Raiders 28, Kansas City 20; New England 21, Buffalo 7; Miami 20, San Francisco 17; Seattle 27, Denver 19; Los Angeles Rams 21, Chicago 14; Baltimore 17, New York Jets 14, and Washington 45, St. Louis 7.

Tonight, the New York Giants will be at Detroit.

Wilder's performance came a week after he carried the ball a league-record 42 times against Pittsburgh.

"He's a genetic mutant," Thompson affectionately said of the 6-foot-3, 225-pound Tampa Bay running back. "When you have a body like James Wilder, you never get tired."

Wilder broke the Ricky Bell's single-game team rushing mark of 167 yards. The 219 yards also was the second-most rushed against the Vikings. Chicago's Walter Payton had 275 yards in 1977.

Three teams lost their quarterback, while Houston running back Earl Campbell threatened to leave the Oilers after being benched in the second period.

Steve DeBerg suffered a separated left shoulder and will be lost to Denver for virtually the remainder of the season. The Raiders' Marc Wilson will be sidelined for at least six weeks because of a broken left shoulder, while Minnesota's Steve Dils was hospitalized overnight for observation after becoming disoriented after taking some heavy hits.

Bengals 55, Oilers 14

Pete Johnson slammed into the end zone for three touchdowns and Ken Anderson came off the injury list to direct 34 first-half points to lead Cincinnati to victory and extend Houston losing streak to 17 straight games — 10 this season.

Johnson scored on runs of five, one and one yards, and Anderson hit Chris Collinsworth with a 14-yard touchdown pass. Rookie Stanley Wilson added a 1-yard TD run, Reggie Williams returned a fumble 59 yards for a score and Larry Kinnedrew went three yards for a score.

Houston running back Earl Campbell was upset after being taken out of the game in the second period after gaining 42 yards on 16 carries.

"I think now the only thing they (Oilers) can do is put me off this team," said Campbell. "The Houston Oilers treated me bad today. They treated me like a dog today."

"Something's going to have to happen this week because of the way I had to sit down. Even if the game was out of control, I can do more in the game than on the sidelines."

Rams 21, Bears 14

Rookie Eric Dickerson ran for 127 yards and scored twice to power the Los Angeles Rams over Chicago.

Dickerson ran his 1983 rushing total to 1,223 yards and scored his 16th and 17th touchdowns of the season, both tops in the NFL.

The Rams' victory overshadowed the achievements of Chicago running back Walter Payton. He carried 14 times for 62 yards to become the fourth man in league history to top 11,000 yards in career rushing. With 11,020 yards, he trails only Jim Brown, Franco Harris and O.J.

Simpson.

Payton also caught four passes for 32 yards to move ahead of Simpson and behind only Brown on the all-time combined yardage list with 14,440.

Cowboys 27, Eagles 20

Quarterback Danny White completed 21 of 24 passes, including two for touchdowns, as Dallas stopped Philadelphia.

The Cowboys trailed 10-0 in the second period when they put together a 39-yard field goal by Rafael Septien and a touchdown pass from White to Timmy Newsome within a 3:09 span to tie the score.

Tony Dorsett, who had minus-5 yards rushing through the first 2½ periods, had a 29-yard TD sprint and White teamed up with Tony Hill on an 18-yard TD pass.

Allison, Bonnett: Result Surprising

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — It was not the finish that Bobby Allison nor Neil Bonnett had envisioned just minutes earlier. Allison, who is tracking down the first Winston Cup season championship of his illustrious 22-year Grand National stock car career, had all but wrapped up a victory Sunday in the Atlanta Journal 500 at Atlanta International Raceway.

The 46-year-old Allison — who had things pretty much his own way after Cale Yarborough's engine blew while he was leading on lap 259 — was cruising along a solid three seconds ahead of second-place Bonnett when chaos erupted with just nine laps remaining in the 328-lap event.

"I didn't even see the accident," said Allison, referring to a fourth-turn collision between Mike Potter and Jimmy Means that brought out the sixth and final caution flag of the day.

Allison, with Bonnett hard on his heels, drove his Buick around the 1.522-mile banked oval under the yellow flag, then dove for pit road to get a tire change and some gas for the final sprint.

"I apparently ran over some junk (from the accident) in the (fourth) corner, cut down the right-front tire, and I hit the inside pit wall," Allison explained stoically. "It bent the toe-in (suspension) and I had all I could do just to keep it on the racetrack."

Buddy Baker, who had made up a lost lap by passing Allison with about 40 laps remaining, took a calculated risk and stayed on the track.

His Ford Thunderbird was just ahead of Bonnett's Warner Hodgdon-sponsored Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS when the green flag fell with four laps remaining.

But Bonnett's RahMoc Team car had fresh tires and he was able to pass Baker easily on lap 326, going on to beat him across the finish line by .41-100ths of a second. Meanwhile, Allison limped to the finish in third place, far behind the first two cars but still far ahead of his closest Winston Cup rival Darrell Waltrip.

Waltrip, the two-time defending Grand National champion, was plagued by tire problems and an ill-handling car throughout the race. He wound up ninth, five laps off the pace.

That cost him 37 points, giving Allison a 64-point edge going into the season finale on Nov. 20 at Riverside, Calif.

"I sincerely hate to see him (Allison) have that kind of luck," said the 34-year-old Bonnett, a protege and friend of his fellow Hueytown, Ala., resident. "I was really prepared to finish second."

"If you'd been riding with me the last 30 laps, you wouldn't have believed I was running for second, though. I didn't run an easy lap from the last caution, with about 100 laps to go or so, to the end. But Bobby was just outrunning me."

Waltrip, shrugging off his disappointment, said, "We had a couple of tires go bad early, lost a lot of time and just did not run good. After that, all we could do was finish and hope for the best."

"There's no give-up in this team," he added. "We'll be at Riverside and we'll go after them. They'll have to win it."

Allison now needs only to finish 13th or better in the California race to win the title — worth more than $250,000 — no matter what Waltrip does.

The graying driver, who each of the past two seasons has seen Waltrip come from far behind to deprive him of the title, wasn't talking about strategy for the finale.

Running For The Record

Reuss, Nettles Avoid Baseball's Re-Entry Draft With Contracts

NEW YORK (AP) — The most popular pick could have been Jerry Reuss, the Los Angeles Dodgers left-handed pitcher. Even Graig Nettles, the New York Yankees Gold Glove third baseman, could have drawn some interest.

But they chose to stay with their clubs, leaving 46 other players to test baseball's free-agent market in today's re-entry draft.

Reuss re-signed with the Dodgers on Wednesday, Nettles with the Yankees the next day, one hour before the midnight deadline Thursday. That left 20 pitchers, 13 outfielders, 12 infielders and one catcher to go through the re-entry draft.

This year's draft included five Type A players, all pitchers, and two Type B players. Teams losing these players will get additional compensation, beyond the usual amateur draft choices.

The Type A players included two Detroit Tigers pitchers, starter Milt Wilcox and reliever Doug Bair. The other three were Kent Tekulve of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Dennis Lamp of the Chicago White Sox and Tom Underwood of the Oakland A's.

The Type B's were infielder Manny Trillo of Montreal and outfielder Ruppert Jones of San Diego.

Compensation for the loss of a Type A player is an amateur draft choice and a professional player from a special pool created for the purpose. The pool is comprised of unprotected members of each major league team's 40-man roster. Compensation for Type B players is two amateur draft choices. Unrated players are compensated for by one amateur draft choice.

The Seattle Mariners, by virtue of their 60-102 record in 1983, were accorded the first draft choice, but it didn't really matter. Any club may choose any number of players it wants, and each club continues to draft until it has passed in consecutive rounds. The draft ends when each club has passed in two straight rounds.

This year's draft promised to depart from some longstanding traditions.

The free-agent hungry California Angels were among five teams that asked to be excluded from Type A drafting, meaning they have promised to stay away from what baseball has classified as the top free agents and will not have to contribute to the talent pool for Type A compensation. In addition, the Angels have said they will break with another tradition and reserve the right to try to re-sign first baseman Rod Carew, a seven-time batting champion who hit .339 this year.

The other Type A excluded clubs were Boston, Los Angeles, Minnesota and Seattle. By promising not to draft any Type A players, the clubs are not required to participate in the Type A compensation pool.

And New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, another normally busy free-agent grabber, has said he would draft only those players the Yankees stood to lose — pitchers Rich Gossage and Dale Murray, outfielder Oscar Gamble and infielder Bert Campaneris — while trying to rebuild the team through trades and the farm system.

The Yankees by re-signing Nettles were able lift their captain and All-Star third baseman out of the re-entry draft.

San Antonio Finds Bench Strength

By The Associated Press

The San Antonio Spurs, with one of the most celebrated starting lineups in pro basketball, may be finding some bench strength to go with the stars.

Spurs substitutes scored 34 points, grabbed 23 rebounds and handed out 13 assists Sunday night as San Antonio took a 132-115 National Basketball Association victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Leading the way was Spurs backup center Mark McNamara, who relieved Artis Gilmore and had eight points and five rebounds in 23 minutes. McNamara was acquired from the Philadelphia 76ers on Friday.

"McNamara is real aggressive and he can rebound, which has been one of our weaknesses," Spurs Coach Mo McHone said. "He is really going to help this team."

"I think it's great to be here," McNamara said. "They really have such great players, it doesn't put a lot of pressure on me. It felt great to get a nice welcome from the fans. It really helped my confidence."

In the only other NBA games Sunday, Milwaukee beat Atlanta 97-84 and Portland bombed Phoenix 122-96.

Despite the strong contribution from the bench, the Spurs still need the bulk of their offensive punch from the starters. On Sunday, they got 32 points from George Gervin, 24 from Mike Mitchell and 22 from Gilmore, while Johnny Moore had 18 assists.

In addition to McNamara, Keith Edmonson came off the bench for the Spurs and scored 12 points. Another San Antonio substitute, Edgar Jones, totaled eight points and nine rebounds, including eight in the fourth quarter.

Seattle guard Gus Williams led the Sonics with 26 points and 10 assists. Center Jack Sikma finished with 11 points and four rebounds.

The Spurs were in control of the game from the opening moments, taking a 25-15 lead with five minutes left in the first quarter.

San Antonio led 36-32 at the end of the period, stretched the lead to 73-61 at halftime and was up 105-92 at the end of the third period.

"We didn't get the job done tonight," Sikma said. "There was a great deal of pushing and shoving going on out there. They (the referees) called some fouls on me early, and the Spurs were putting good pressure on us defensively."

Spurs forward Gene Banks and Sonics forward Danny Vranes were ejected from the game with six minutes left in the third quarter following a fight that cleared both benches.

"Gene grabbed my jersey and I pushed him away," Vranes said. "Then we got face-to-face, and said some things we shouldn't have said."

"We just bumped heads," Banks said. "The game got heated up and we just got upset at each other. He's an intense player, especially with his size."

There have been things said about moral victories. Coming close to the great teams and losing is fine, some might say, when you haven't had that opportunity before.

Well, those platitudes just don't hold water when it comes to East Carolina's Pirates. Three times this year they have come close to upsetting a team ranked in the Top Ten. And three times they've come away with what can only be counted as a "moral victory."

That's something Coach Ed Emory just can't stand. Moral victories don't bring you anything but heartache.

So it was Saturday afternoon at the Orange Bowl in Miami. For 58 minutes, East Carolina outplayed the fifth-ranked Hurricanes, leading all the way. But the fates apparently had just decreed that it was not to be. Miami's Bernie Kosar completed a long pass in the final two minutes to put the Hurricanes into scoring position, and they finally pushed through the determined Pirate defense to score a go-ahead touchdown. That touchdown drive came just after the Pirates had driven most of the field to reach as deep as the two yard line only to come away empty.

Jeff Heath missed a 21-yard field goal at the end of that drive and that could well have been the key to the game. It would have given the Pirates a 10-6 lead and could have totally destroyed the Hurricanes. In retrospect, it might have been advisable for the Pirates to have taken a deliberate delay of game penalty here to give Heath a better shot at the kick. A short boot like that from a wicked angle at the hashmarks is tough for any kicker. Five more yards could have opened up that angle a little more for him.

Nobody can call this team a bunch of quitters, though. In all three trips to Florida — the only place they've been beaten this year — they've had a chance right up to the final play.

And it was the final play that did it again. East Carolina drove to the 31 only to be pushed back by two penalties to the 41. From there Kevin Ingram fired up what the Pirates call their "victory" play. All of the receivers gather on one side of the field and race out from there, hoping to confuse the defense and get someone open.

It worked — almost. Stefon Adams got open at the goal line and Ingram got the ball to him. But as fate would have it, Norwood Vann didn't see the whole picture and went over to also try and make the catch. His bump into Adams caused the ball to drop — and it was all over.

Now, the Pirates have to come back and play against two pretty good teams in William & Mary and Southern Mississippi. Beating them won't be an easy task. But the Pirates still have something to play for.

While their chances at a bowl bid were somewhat shattered with the loss, they have not completely vanished. There is still an outside chance depending on what happens the rest of the season. One thing they can point to with pride is their victory over Missouri — which appears bigger every week. The Tigers appear headed for a bowl game themselves as the Number Two team in the Big Eight. If they are good enough to go, certainly the Pirates are too.

It all depends on their showing in the final two contests.

Hagler Pleased By Fight Promotion

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler has arrived at a station befitting his ability.

"This is the fight I've been waiting for," said the undisputed middleweight champion, who has fought in the shadow of Sugar Ray Leonard, Larry Holmes, Thomas Hearns and a few others.

"This is what a championship fight is all about. This is what a fighter wants ... to get the proper exposure, to get the proper attention."

And to get the big money. Hagler is getting the spotlight and the huge purse — he will probably earn between $8 million and $10 million — for his scheduled 15-round title defense against Roberto Duran Thursday night at Caesars Palace.

Hagler is enjoying his role on center stage, and seems not upset that big story of the match is Duran's rebirth as a fighter and his bid to become the first man to win four championships.

Duran, disgraced when he quit in the eighth round against Sugar Ray Leonard Nov. 25, 1980, became a triple champion when he stopped Davey Moore in the eighth round for the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title last June 16. He also was lightweight and welterweight champion.

But Hagler has not let the attention or his 31-1 favoritism over the 32-year-old Duran in man-to-man betting turn his head from the job at hand.

Hagler trains one way for all fights — hard. "You know Duran is ready for this fight," said Hagler. "I believe I'm in better shape than when I won the title. "If you're going to beat me, you're going to beat me at my best."

Hagler will be making the eighth defense of the title he won when he stopped Alan Minter of England after three rounds Sept. 27, 1980.

He also apparently will be fighting Duran without the political hassle that accompanied his last fight — a fourth-round knockout of Wilford Scypion May 27 at Providence, R.I.

The WBC, which was to run the fight, at first balked at Hagler's insistence that the bout be scheduled for 15 rounds rather than the WBC's 12-round limit. Then after agreeing to 15 rounds, the WBC refused to sanction the fight after the Rhode Island commission allowed the fledgling United States Boxing Association International to appoint the fight officials.

The WBA went along with the WBC, but neither group withdrew title recognition from Hagler and the Scypion bout is considered a title defense by most people.

Promoter Bob Arum said he expected an agreement to be finalized today in which the WBC will join the WBA in sanctioning the Hagler-Duran fight and also agree that should Hagler win, his next fight would be a WBA mandatory title defense against the winner of the Frank "The Animal" Fletcher-Juan Domingo Roldan fight Thursday night.

East Carolina Turning Heads

Bowl Pictures Taking Shape

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

In Miami, fans threw oranges — as in Orange Bowl — on the field to celebrate the home team's win. In South Bend, representatives from seven bowls watched Pitt beat Notre Dame. Even Kentucky was talking bowl and it wasn't the Basketball Bowl.

It's that time of year again.

With October having turned into November, bowls are foremost in the dreams of coaches with four losses or less. Bowl bids don't go out for another two weeks, after the games of Nov. 19, but now is the time to shine before the bowl scouts.

One bid may have been clinched at the Orange Bowl, where freshman quarterback Bernie Kosar dove over from the 1-yard-line with 1:04 left to give Miami a 12-7 win over that least-known of major college powers, East Carolina. Kosar heaved the ball into the stands and the fans heaved oranges back.

The fifth-ranked Hurricanes are 9-1 with only Florida State left and will probably stay home New Year's night, to meet (most likely) top-ranked Nebraska. While the Orange Bowl committee might prefer an out-of-town team to bring thousands of spenders to town, it has said it will select the top-ranked team available.

Assuming No. 2 Texas stays on top of the Southwest Conference, it will host the Cotton Bowl. Nos. 3 and 4, Auburn and Georgia, meet Saturday — the winner becomes Sugar Bowl host; the loser drops below Miami.

Thus, Miami can figure on staying home.

As for the Rose Bowl, Illinois needs only to beat Indiana to clinch the Big 10's Rose Bowl spot, probably against UCLA, which leads the Pac-10.

There are a host of other bowl-eligibles to fill the ever-growing lineup of postseason attractions.

There are the traditional bowl teams — Ohio State, Michigan, Maryland, North Carolina, Pitt, Penn State, Notre Dame, Washington, Alabama, Oklahoma, Missouri, Florida, Arizona State plus the Auburn-Georgia loser.

There are some new or resurgent powers —

Brigham Young, Boston College, Southern Methodist, West Virginia, Iowa, Baylor.

And there are the likes of East Carolina and Kentucky, which beat Vanderbilt 17-8 Saturday night to run its record to 6-2-1. A fixture in postseason basketball tournaments, the Wildcats were 0-10-1 last year and have made only one bowl appearance (Peach Bowl, 1977) since the late Bear Bryant left in 1952.

But factors other than records enter into bowl selection.

Teams like Notre Dame, Penn State, Michigan, Ohio State, Southern Cal and Pitt are big names from major television markets, which make them more attractive to networks that pay the bowls' bills. So they can afford an extra loss or two.

Pitt for example, lost early to Maryland and West Virginia. But the Panthers could still end up in or Cotton or Sugar Bowls, providing they win their final two games against Army and Penn State.

"I told the team after two losses that if we keep on winning, the polls and bowls will recognize us," says Coach Foge Fazio.

And so will television, which tends to prefer teams from populous areas like the Northeast, Midwest and West Coast.

"We have to be cognizant of the national TV ratings," says Tom Starr, executive director of the Sun Bowl who was at West Point Saturday watching Doug Flutie cavort for 8-1 Boston College. "Boston College would help us, being from the East. We would love to have a team from the East."

Coversely, that works against the East Carolinas of the world.

The Pirates, who have lost to Miami, Florida and Florida State by a total margin of 13 points and have a win on the road against Missouri, drew only 39,225 to the Orange Bowl Saturday.

"If the names on their helmets had been Penn State or Texas, there would have been 70,000 fans here screaming their hearts out," said Miami Coach Howard Schnellenberger. "East Carolina is that good."

Good on the field. But bowl scouts watch the turnstiles and the ratings as much as the results.

Victory Smiles

first prize money in the World Mixed Doubles Championship Sunday night in the Astroarena. (AP Laserphoto)

Connors, Lloyd Win Doubles

HOUSTON (AP) — The jokes early in the week turned to cheers in the end for Chris Evert Lloyd and Jimmy Connors, who were together again on the tennis court for the first time in nine years.

"At the beginning of the week, the players were joking about the fact that Jimmy and I were playing together because we are not established doubles players," Lloyd said.

But Lloyd and Connors confounded the odds and, after struggling in some early round matches, rolled to a smooth straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 victory Sunday over Andrea Jaeger and Roscoe Tanner in the finals of the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Championships at Astroarena.

"People think that all you need in doubles is a serve and volley," Evert Lloyd said. "But return of serve is so important and Jimmy and I are the best returners in the game so that helped a lot."

Connors and Lloyd will share the $100,000 first prize with $50,000 going to Tanner and Jaeger.

Connors mixed clowning with masterful tennis and served for the match in the 10th game of the third set. Lloyd-Connors won it at the third match point when Tanner's forehand sailed long.

Connors and Lloyd each hit volley errors at the first two match points.

"To be able to try hard and deep down want to win but still having a good time is great," Connors said. "Everybody wanted to win but everybody was smiling."

Although Connors took time out for antics with the crowd he said it didn't bother him.

"I only concentrate during the points anyway," he said. "For me to concentrate for the entire match would be wrong."

Lloyd-Connors broke Jaeger in the third game of the match to take control of the first set.

The second set started with Tanner, Connors and Jaeger losing their serves in order.

But Lloyd, who did not lose her serve throughout the match, held in the fourth game and Jaeger was broken again in the seventh game.

A dream finals pitting Lloyd-Connors against Evert Lloyd's husband, John Lloyd and Wendy Turnbull, the top-seeded team, was lost in the second round when Jaeger-Tanner upset the No. 1 seeds.

Tanner, who has one of the strongest serves on the men's tour, said he didn't use power against Lloyd or Connors.

"A flat serve isn't the way to serve to Chris," Tanner said. "I can give her a spin that causes her trouble. You don't give Jimmy a flat serve, either. It just comes back at you a little faster."

Heels, Terps Disappoint Bowls

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Bowl scouts who were depending on No. 7 Maryland and No. 10 North Carolina teams to participate in their post-season football extravaganzas were left scratching their heads after Saturday's action.

The Terrapins watched Tommie Agee rush for 219 yards and two touchdowns as Auburn took a 35-23 victory, possibly putting Maryland in the also-ran category for the Orange Bowl. Bob Pauling's three field goals and Mike Eppey's touchdown pass propelled Clemson to a 16-3 triumph, effectively taking the Tar Heels out of the major bowl chase.

Duke rallied for a 31-21 victory over Wake Forest, while North Carolina State raced to a 33-7 victory over Appalachian State in a non-conference tilt. Last Thursday, Georgia Tech took its second ACC victory with a 31-21 triumph over Virginia.

Boomer Esiason's three touchdown passes and record 355 yards went for naught when Auburn's Bo Jackson scored from 5 yards out to give the Tigers a 21-17 lead in the fourth quarter. Agee added his 44-yard dash for the clincher, and Auburn defensive tackle Donnie Humphrey pounced on an Esiason fumble with nine seconds left for another score to raise Auburn's record to 8-1 and enhance its chances for a Sugar Bowl spot.

Maryland dropped to 7-2 and faces Clemson next week in Death Valley. That game does not count in the ACC standings because of Clemson's probation, but don't say that too loudly around Tiger town.

"If we beat Maryland next week, somebody's going to be the ACC champ, but they won't have beaten us," Clemson safety Tim Childers. "Today, it feels like we just won the conference championship."

Clemson might have gotten the best pep talk this season from North Carolina football coach Dick Crum, who was quoted in a Philadelphia newspaper as saying the Tigers "bought" their 1981 national championship. Those words stuck in Clemson's collective craw and the Tigers responded with a victory.

"Coaching doesn't win games like this," Clemson coach Danny Ford said. "You get the players ready, you challenge them. Then it's one-on-one. We thought we could handle them defensively and we did, even with their good offensive line. I thought we'd shut them out."

North Carolina, which travels to Virginia on Saturday, avoided the shutout with Brooks Barwick's 27-yard field goal in the third period. The Tar Heels, 7-2, have not been held scoreless since a 1976 Peach Bowl loss to Kentucky, 21-0, and they have not gone without a touchdown since a 7-6 loss to Pittsburgh last season.

Saturday's anticipated air war between Duke's Ben Bennett and Wake Forest's Gary Schofield didn't occur. Blue Devil Mike Grayson stole the headlines, gaining 152 yards on 39 carries and two second-half touchdowns. Duke is 2-7 and 2-2, while the Demon Deacons dropped to 4-6, ensuring their 11th losing season in the last 12. Wake Forest is 1-4 in the ACC and heads for Georgia Tech on Saturday.

"We played with a lot of determination in the second half," Grayson said. "Our blockers were able to pick off their defensive people as they tried to slide along the line of scrimmage."

In the battle of the quarterbacks, Bennett hit 22 of 32 passes for 189 yards, two interceptions and a 15-yard touchdown pass to Gary Frederick. Schofield was 14 of 26 for 174 yards and one touchdown, a 21-yard strike to David Richmond.

Detroit Lions Counting On Rookies Against Giants

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Coach Monte Clark is counting on six rookies to help the Lions in tonight's National Football League game with the New York Giants.

The Lions, 4-5, have won three of their last four games and Clark gives much of the credit for that turnaround to fullback James Jones, the team's No. 1 draft choice from Florida, and center Steve Mott out of Alabama.

"Jones has stepped right in," Clark said. "His vision is really unbelievable. He's even better than we thought, and we thought he was pretty good when we drafted him."

Jones, who has started every game, has rushed for 382 yards and six touchdowns on 107 carries. He also has caught 29 passes for an additional 314 yards.

Mott took over at center three weeks ago after beating out veteran Amos Fowler.

"It shows the value of a quality program like Alabama's," Clark said. "Steve really is aggressive."

Other rookies who see a great deal of playing time are tackle Rick Strenger, the No. 2 draft pick out of Michigan, and wide receiver Jeff Chadwick, a free agent walk-on from tiny Grand Valley State who has become the Lions' favorite target in clutch third-down situations.

On defense, Clark has turned increasingly to end Mike Cofer and middle linebacker August Curley.

"Those two guys were relatively low draft choices, but they can really play," Clark said. "It's a real tribute to our

The Giants, 2-6-1, making their third appearance this season on Monday night, will be trying hard to protect quarterback Scott Brunner — the only experienced signal-caller they have left after injuries knocked out Phil Simms and Jeff Rutledge.

Brunner will employ the services of two fine running backs — former Michigan star Butch Woolfolk, who has rushed for 422 yards on 104 carries, and Rob Carpenter, who has lugged the ball 154 times for 560 yards.

Hydrant Pranks Concern GUC

A spokesman for the Greenville Utilities Commission today said someone over the weekend opened 12 fire hydrants in the eastern part of the city, and over the past several days, removed seven manhole covers from streets. John Ferrin, GUC's assistant director, said such actions can be costly and lead to heavy damage. Ferrin said by taking manhole covers off, cars can run into the holes, causing heavy damage to vehicles. He also said that in addition to the loss of water, open hydrants can cause severe erosion to yards and even to streets. Ferrin asked that persons finding manhole covers missing or hydrants call the utilities commission and report it. He also asked that if anyone sees another person removing a manhole cover or turning on a hydrant report it to the police department.

Farmers Can Be Violent Over Foreclosure Move

By JOEL RUTCHICK

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — James Jenkins, 46, got so angry about a bank foreclosing on his farm and giving him a bad credit rating, authorities say, that he shot and killed two bankers.

The tragedy points up a growing problem of farmers losing their farms in foreclosures or giving them up voluntarily because of debts — a growing problem these days, and worse than at any time since the Depression and Dust Bowl days of the '30s.

The Buffalo Ridge State Bank of Rutherford, Minn., foreclosed on Jenkins' 10-acre farm near Tyler in 1980 and officials said the bank gave him a poor credit rating when he tried to buy cattle for another farm this year.

Authorities said Jenkins and his son, Steven, 18, lured two bankers from the Buffalo Ridge bank to the Tyler farm Sept. 29 and shot them to death. The two men then fled to Texas, where Jenkins killed himself and the son surrendered.

Lenders and farmers say the strain on debt-ridden farmers is likely to lead to some protest and possibly violence.

Orson Swindle, director of the Georgia Farmers Home

Administration, said, "I hope to God people don't go around shooting each other, especially me."

"Many farmers are not going to walk off and be good sports," said Merle Hansen, a Newman Grove, Neb., farmer and chairman of the North American Farm Alliance. There may be some violence, he said.

Farm mortgage foreclosures are on the increase, and even more farms are being lost nationwide through "voluntary liquidation," agreeing to give up farms to meet debts.

"That (foreclosure) is really a devastating experience," said Anne Kanten, Minnesota's assistant commissioner of agriculture. "They usually follow the best advice and voluntarily close down."

Records from a number of states and lending agencies show low commodity prices and high interest rates, often combined with poor weather, have triggered a surge in foreclosures and farm bankruptcies.

A report issued in March by Gov. Rudy Perpich's Commission on the Farm Crisis shows farm foreclosure rates in Minnesota were two to five times as high in 1982 as in the mid-1970s.

In Iowa to the south, newspapers advertised at least 488 farms for public auction in February. At least 95 farms were auctioned off on one day — Feb. 26 — said Carol Hodne, Midwest coordinator for the Farmers Association.

"It is very clearly a crisis," Hodne said. "A lot of them are liquidations that are encouraged and pressured by the lenders."

A pending lawsuit has prevented the FmHA (federal Farmers Home Administration) from foreclosing on about 700 farms in hard-hit Georgia, where a whopping 5,500 of 9,200 FmHA borrowers are delinquent in loan payments.

Several years of drought, low commodity prices, inflation and the liberal farm credit policies of former President Jimmy Carter's administration have contributed to the plight of FmHA borrowers in Georgia, Swindle said.

In 1976, he said, the FmHA held only 2 percent of the state's short-term farm credit. Today the figure is 55 percent, and many of the farmers overextended themselves.

In Texas, FmHA officials scotched reports the agency planned to foreclose on 120 farms in drought-stricken Gaines County in the cotton-growing southwestern corner of the state.

The federal payment-in-kind program — designed to idle farm acreage and reduce crop surpluses depressing farm commodities — is one of the factors that has put Texas FmHA borrowers in "better shape" than at this time last year, said John Barnes, assistant state director of the agency in Texas.

He predicted, however, that as many as 5 percent of Texas' 15,700 FmHA borrowers will not farm or ranch next year.

Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Hightower believes farmers and ranchers are angrier now at a "precarious loan situation," caused primarily by what he called a disastrous national farm policy and drought.

"Five years ago at least we could afford to drive tractors to Washington," Hightower said. "Now it has gotten worse." Bankruptcies and delinquency rates are higher among the nation's 270,000 FmHA borrowers. But farmers who get other types of financing have more difficulty keeping afloat now.

Of people who obtained loans from 425 privately-held Production Credit Associations nationwide, 2.7 percent were behind in payments in June 1982. The number of PCA delinquencies soared to 6.3 percent in March, before leveling off at 3.7 percent in June, said Kim Bowersox, director of congressional and public affairs for the Farm Credit Administration.

The number of foreclosures reported by PCA cooperatives declined over this time, however. The Minnesota Legislature, for instance, passed a foreclosure relief bill which went into effect earlier this year. It delays farm foreclosure sales up to one year, while the farmer tries to pay the delinquent amount. The law allows farmers who contend they cannot pay because of the national economy to petition district courts, which decide how much time to delay the foreclosure. The statute expires next July.

Minnesota also is the site of a pending class-action lawsuit filed against the FmHA.

The farmers contend in the lawsuit the FmHA should not take farm income, liquidate equipment or foreclose on borrowers' farms until initiating a loan deferral and moratorium program passed by Congress in 1978.

The lawsuit is similar to about a dozen suits in other states seeking a more lenient policy on FmHA loan repayments. The outcome of the suits could determine how FmHA treats farm debts.

Whitewater Rafters Clash Over Use Of River By TVA Diversion

By JEFF WOODS

OCOEE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Tennessee Valley Authority has taken the Ocoee River — one of the nation's most popular whitewater streams — and turned it back into a stretch of dry rocks.

Nature lovers and small town businessmen have formed an unusual coalition locked in a bitter battle against the nation's largest electric utility.

The rapids have been diverted into a wooden chute that snakes along a ridge above the river's natural bed for nearly five miles to a 70-year-old hydroelectric plant.

TVA unwittingly created a whitewater craze by letting the river flow into its natural channel in 1976 while it revamped the power plant. When the work was completed, TVA took back the river but found it choked with rafters and swarming with businesses catering to tourists.

"We're pushing every panic button we can," said David Brown, a former federal bureaucrat who leads the fight against TVA. "I got into the Ocoee baddle as a labor of love. There are very few rivers like the Ocoee."

"Save the Ocoee" T-shirts and bumper stickers abound and some of Tennessee's most powerful politicians have sided against TVA.

Rafters, canoeists and kayakers by the hundreds of thousands swooshed down the Ocoee in the seven years that TVA let the river to run wild. The 93,400 whitewater enthusiasts who rode the river in 1982 pumped $3 million into the economy of tiny Polk County.

The agency's revival of the plant has brought fears of an economic disaster to many of the 14,000 people in rural Polk County.

The popularity of the river spawned 15 raft outfitting businesses and river guiding services at dozens of roadside groceries.

"Most people in this area have to go outside the county to find work," said John Thomason, who added a guide service to his grocery store six years ago. "You take away the rafting from this area and it's dead."

Marc Hunt and Bill Chipley scraped together $2,600 to start the first raft outfitting business with three used rafts in 1976. They guided 300 people down the river the first year.

Sunburst Wilderness Adventures now boasts 17 rafts, two buses and 25 employees. Some 10,000 people paid Sunburst $20 each for a ride down the river this year.

TVA officials privately admit they underestimated the river's popularity when they decided to start renovating the hydroplant's two generators and rebuild the flume line as a replica of the original. The flume line's foundation was shodder than first believed and the project's cost has jumped from $20 million to at least $34 million.

The hydroplant will produce enough electricity to power only 9,000 of the nearly 3 million homes in TVA's seven-state region but officials insist the project is worth it.

"There's no doubt that TVA is going to look like the bad guy no matter how this turns out," said Gary Stansell, TVA's southeastern district manager.

"But TVA is required to provide the lowest cost power possible. You can't get any cheaper power than water power. It's inflation-proof."

Black Voter Sign-Up Is Not Yet Attaining Goal

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Black voter registration in North Carolina grew by 36,652 during the past year but that's still far short of the goal of 200,000 new black voters by the 1984 elections.

That goal was set by Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson, who visited North Carolina in May as part of a national effort to register 2 million more black voters.

Increased registration of minorities also has been supported by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Democratic Party and Gov. Jim Hunt and his administration.

Hunt set out in April 1982 to register the 1.7 million North Carolinians who are eligible to vote but not registered and he put particular emphasis on reaching minorities.

Since then, the General Assembly has passed laws allowing voter registration in public libraries and driver's license examining offices.

Statistics show that 36,652 black voters were added to registration rolls between Oct. 10, 1982, and Oct. 10, 1983, an 8.1 percent increase. For the same period, 22,954 white voters were added, a 1 percent increase.

According to the 1980 census, 63.7 percent of the whites eligible to vote in North Carolina are registered while only 49.2 percent of the eligible minorities are registered.

Elections Board Chairman Bob Spearman said he thinks there still is a good chance to reach the 200,000 goal.

"There probably will be very substantial additional increases in registration of both blacks and whites in 1984 ... which is of course an election year," Spearman said. "From what everyone can see it will be a hotly contested election year."

He said the increase in minority registration was "very substantial" although the increase in registration was smaller than the increase from October 1981 to October 1982, just before congressional elections.

"There was an increase earlier than has been the case previously," said state elections director Alex Brock.

Brock said it is often difficult to get people to register until election year.

Spokesman Brent Hackney said Hunt does not think the latest increases are enough.

"We want more people registered and more people voting," Hackney said. "He is pleased there has been a significant increase in voter registration but to say it's enough would be overstating the case."

Unreliable, So Can't Charge

LAKE WORTH, Fla. (AP) — Police and prosecutors agree that an elderly sufferer of Alzheimer's disease was raped, but say they can't press charges because the ailment makes her an unreliable witness. And her husband says laws should be changed to protect people like his wife.

Rape charges against an ex-convict were dropped Sept. 26 on grounds that the 72-year-old victim would not be able to give coherent testimony because of the nerve disorder, which destroys brain cells.

"She's a victim of Alzheimer's disease, and there's nothing in the law to protect these people," said her husband, a 75-year-old semi-retired lawyer. "It should be the same as raping a child."

voters the chance to side with a famous crooner or a former president, both residents.

The issue is whether to change local zoning laws to block construction of a luxury development on a mountain plateau. Frank Sinatra opposes the project; former President Gerald Ford, an investor in the project, is one of its chief backers.

A celebrity has also entered the fray over moose hunting in Maine. Bullwinkle, the cartoon character, is appearing on TV advertisements for an organization calling itself SMOOSA, Save Maine's Only Official State Animal.

If moose hunting is banned in Maine, it would be the first time the hunting of a game animal has been outlawed through the ballot box, according to David F. Allen, executive director of the pro-hunting Sportsmen's Alliance of Maine.

The alliance claims the six-day hunt, held each September, is a form of wildlife management. A thousand of the 25,000 moose in the state can be killed in any given season.

But SMOOSA says the moose is too tame and unintelligent to be hunted for sport. "You don't just go and blow away somebody who trusts you," said spokesman John N. Cole.

In San Francisco, voters will decide whether to keep a city ordinance that requires non-smoking areas in workplaces if non-smokers request them. Another issue there would redraft the city's master plan to place tough environmental restrictions on future construction.

A few of the ballot topics this Election Day are familiar — drinking water flouridation, school bond issues and transportation bond issues.

Springfield, Agawam and Chicopee in Massachusetts are deciding whether to flouridate their water supplies.

St. Louis' bond issue would generate money to improve city schools as part of a federal desegregation order.

The transportation bond issue in New York state is supported by the governor as a "Rebuild New York" measure, but the state chapter of the American Automobile Association is among opponents who argue that the bonds will place a heavy burden on the state's economy. If passed, the money would go for rebuilding roads, bridges, waterways, rail lines and airports.

Some of the ballot issues have political overtones.

If voters decide to create a nuclear freeze zone in Cambridge, $100 million in missile design contracts would have to be halted. The main target is the Charles Stark Draper Laboratory, which employs about 1,800 people.

Final results probably won't be available for days because the town, home to Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, counts ballots by hand.

San Francisco and Seattle will vote on measures protesting U.S. involvement in Central America, and Philadelphians will consider a "Jobs with Peace" initiative that asks the federal government to put jobs ahead of defense spending. Fifty cities have passed similar referendums.

—In Dover, N.H., voters will decide whether a private security firm should take over administration of the town's fire department.

—The District of Columbia will decide whether to preserve the Rhodes Tavern, at age 183 the oldest commercial structure still standing in the district. Rhodes Tavern, located near the White House, sits on property slated to become part of a retail and office complex that is already 60 percent complete.

—Voters in unincorporated areas of Los Angeles County will decide whether to roll back rents to January 1981 levels. Opponents of rent control, mostly homeowners and landlords, have collected more than $1 million in their campaign to defeat the measure.

—Ohio will decide whether to raise the legal drinking age for beer to 21 from 19. The age for hard liquor is already 21.

Stork Outraced 85-Mph Dash

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Despite an 85 mph dash and some fancy driving, David Oines just wasn't fast enough to beat the stork.

His wife, Deena, gave birth to the couple's third child, Tamera, in the cramped front seat of their compact car somewhere near Muldoon Road on the outskirts of the city early Saturday.

The couple had been briefed in emergency birthing procedures because they live in the Matanuska-Susitna Valley, far from the hospital in Anchorage.

Mrs. Oines said after the baby was born she wrapped the infant in her rabbit coat, so "she was born in luxury."

She said her husband calmly continued to aim the car toward the hospital and, driving with one hand, cradled the baby's head with the other.

"Maybe I should buy him flowers," Mrs. Oines.

Some Prefer Living In Grenada

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Gazing from his living room at a panoramic view of lush tropical greenery and gentle seas, Don Atkinson explained why he refused to abandon his paradise after the U.S. invasion of this Caribbean island.

"We go back with this island a long time," said Atkinson, a 64-year-old retired engineer who moved here from New England with wife Barbara in 1971. "We started vacationing here in 1958. We were looking for an island to buy some land on for retirement, and we visited all the others first.

"As soon as we got here, we knew this was the one. Besides the beautiful scenery, the people here are just fantastic."

The Atkinsons were among about 50 of the nearly 1,000 Americans on Grenada who declined to be evacuated after the Oct. 25 invasion, which was sparked by a bloody military takeover.

Atkinson called President Reagan's claim that Americans were being threatened by Grenada's leftist army junta "as phony as a three-dollar bill."

"That's not to say that some of the students weren't concerned. But I don't know of any American who was threatened," he said.

However, most of the students at the St. George's University Medical School were evacuated, and many said they welcomed the invasion.

"The only time I felt safe was when ... they told me that it's Americans, don't worry, they're here to save us," said Roxanna Marin of Fresh Meadows, N.Y., after her return to the United States.

Atkinson said the only frightening moment for the couple came on Oct. 26, when U.S. forces rescued American medical students from the Grand Anse Beach campus.

The Atkinsons huddled in their bathroom for three hours as the battle raged on the beach below their hilltop home.

"But we've never felt any desire to leave. There have been a lot of changes on this island, but there's never been any impact on the foreigners," Atkinson said.

Edyth Leonard, who moved here from Chicago eight years ago and works as a travel agent, said she also visited other islands before settling on what she calls "Shangri-La."

"I've never regretted it for 30 seconds, including in the last two weeks," she said.

Phil Kilmer, 29, from Valparaiso, Ind., was one of five medical students who stayed. He said "the war was over" by the time the U.S. troops made their way over the several miles of hilly terrain to Lance-aux-Epines, where the remaining students and several faculty members lived.

While most of the other students left, Kilmer said he preferred to stay and guard against looting. Most other students' homes had been looted, he said.

He said he sat on his veranda, sipped cocktails and watched the fighting during the first days of the invasion.

"I could see the tracers at night," Kilmer said. "I'd see the flash of the cannons and the house would shake. I was afraid it was going to slide down the hill."

He said he didn't know of any student being injured, but said an errant American rocket blew up a student residence a few hours after it was vacated.

Kilmer's major concern, he said, is the fate of the American medical school. He was in his fourth semester.

Two young American schoolteachers in the northwestern fishing village of Gouyave said they had been hoping for a dramatic rescue — although they never felt threatened.

"Every time an army helicopter would fly low, we'd say they're coming for us," said Katie Caruthers, 27, of Morristown, N.J.

"I kind of resented that at first. Apparently nobody knew about us," said Kelly Watson, 25, of Fort Collins, Colo.

The women, who came here three years ago as part of a Mennonite-sponsored service group, said they weren't worried, though there was virtually no combat in the northwest.

"We were in a different situation than the students at the medical school," Miss Caruthers said. "We had been here and we were known in the community. People would look out for us."

The most chilling night for them was when the army slaying of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop on Oct. 19 was announced over the state-owned Radio Free Grenada.

"Bishop had the complete support of the people," Miss Watson said. "I felt they wouldn't do anything to Americans, but I feared for the Grenadians. I thought it was going to be like Stalin or something."

Both teachers said they want to spend at least one more year in Grenada.

"We really like the people here. There are many Grenadians living in the United States, and the people have strong ties to America. They really like Americans," Miss Caruthers said.

Mother Identifies Boy Who Claims Amnesia

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — Thanks to a photograph in a newspaper, a mother has been reunited with her missing 17-year-old son, three days after he told police he was suffering from amnesia and could not remember much more than his middle name.

The reunion took place Sunday at Jersey Shore Medical Center, where the teen-ager, Frank Manasseri, was treated for injuries apparently sustained in a fall from a bicycle. He told authorities he had hidden here from Newark, hospital spokeswoman Bobbe Nicoletti said.

The youth arrived in this borough Wednesday and told police that he remembered his age, that his middle name was John and that he had flown to Newark International Airport from his home in Los Angeles, although he did not know when, Detective Kenneth Mount said before Manasseri was identified.

Manasseri said he bought a bicycle in northern New Jersey for $5 and bruised his back in a fall from the bike, Mount said.

After the youth sought help at a church and an anti-poverty agency, state social service workers and police were notified, Mount said.

Officers circulated a photograph of the youth and his mother, Marie Castronovo of Jackson Township, about 20 miles from Freehold, told officials that she saw her son's picture in a Sunday edition of The Asbury Park Press, Ms. Nicoletti said.

"We really don't know at this point whether he's a true amnesia victim or not. It's hard to tell," said Doris Holder, the medical center's nursing supervisor. She suggested it was possible that the youth was a runaway.

Hospital officials declined to comment on the reunion or other details of the case, except to say that Manasseri is listed in stable condition at the hospital with a cervical injury.

Mrs. Castronovo reported her son missing on Thursday, Freehold police Sgt. Walter Semblewski said.

When the youth arrived in Freehold, he went to St. Rose of Lima Roman Catholic Church looking for a place to stay and a priest paid for a room at a local hotel, police said.

On Thursday, Manasseri went to a borough office of Monmouth County Check-Mate Inc., an anti-poverty agency, where he told a social worker about his situation and the state Division of Youth and Family Services and police were notified, Mount said.

The teen-ager was taken to Freehold Area Hospital, but was then transferred to the Jersey Shore Medical Center for treatment, police said.

Nixon Looks To Contacts

SEATTLE (AP) — An author who has seen advance copies of a forthcoming book by Richard Nixon says the current president urges the current administration to increase its contact with the Soviet Union for the sake of world peace.

Robert Scheer, the writer who conducted the 1976 Playboy interview with former president Jimmy Carter in which Carter said he had looked at women with "lust," spoke Sunday at the Target Seattle-Soviet Realities meeting, a series of seminars on the nuclear arms race.

Scheer is also author of the book "With Enough Shovels," which is sharply critical of Reagan's defense policies.

Scheer said Nixon's book, "The Real Peace," says that in spite of the tensions of U.S.-Soviet relations, talks and communication between the superpowers are more essential than ever.

Nixon makes the point that "you have to have a leader in the Soviet Union or United States who takes the initiative and says, 'Look, if we keep going this way, we're going to destroy the world,'" he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Coal use is expected to increase to a greater extent than the use of oil or natural gas over the next 10 years to generate electricity in the United States, according to Energy User News.

The energy-oriented journal says coal is generally a less expensive fuel than oil or gas.

The projected changes in fossil fuel requirements for the next 10 years show coal use expanding 35.6 percent by 1992, to 862.2 million tons from 635.6 million tons this year. Total oil consumption is projected to drop by 13.4 percent over the 10 year period to 212.6 million barrels from 1983's 245.5 million barrels.

Natural gas use is expected to decrease by 22.3 percent over the 10 year period.

Support Group Is Organized For Ex-Wives Of Movie Land Stars

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A group of ex-wives of celebrities have formed L.A.D.I.E.S. — Life After Divorces is Eventually Sane — to establish new lives after their movie-TV star husbands dump them.

They are women marooned with shattered egos, kids to rear alone, empty social calendars and non-person status in a society that once catered to them.

Many are victims of their spouses' desires for younger women.

So what sets them apart from jilted wives the world over?

The fact that their husbands are famous, rich and powerful men, which sometimes makes the spurned wives figures of public ridicule, pity, contempt or all of the above.

Most L.A.D.I.E.S. members maintain anonymity. A few are visible and outspoken.

Some of the founding members are Jackie Joseph, actress and former wife of actor Ken Berry; Marilyn Funt, ex of TV's Allen Funt; Patti (Mrs. Jerry) Lewis; Kay St. Germain, ex-wife of Jack Carson; Marion Segal, ex of George Segal, and Lynn (Mrs. Michael) Landon.

Others are Sondra Blake, former wife of Robert Blake; Billy Jean Campbell, ex-Mrs. Glen Campbell, and Patti MacLeod, formerly Mrs. Gavin MacLeod.

The group was pulled together about a year ago after Marilyn Funt appeared on a cable TV show publicizing her book, "Are You Anybody?" the question commonly asked of celebrity wives by insensitive peasants.

The question is ironic. If a woman's identity depends on her status as the wife of a celebrity, she must find herself asking the same question once she becomes his ex-wife.

When a wife is dropped by a star it's almost as if she died in some respects. She no longer is seen at smart parties, in fashionable boutiques or at industry banquets.

"When other women are divorced by their husbands, they can begin new lives without constant outside reminders of their marriages," said Jackie Joseph, one of the most outspoken of the L.A.D.I.E.S.

"If you were married to a star you try to change your life, but you turn on TV and see a re-run of your husband. You pick up a newspaper or a magazine and there he is with a girlfriend."

"People who knew you as a couple, acquaintances or strangers, ask about your ex-husband even if they know you're divorced. They still like to make contact with someone who was once close to a celebrity."

American Products Forced To Adapt To Foreign TV Codes

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — One sunny and savory Kellogg's Cornflakes television commercial in the United States and Britain was reduced to an empty cereal bowl after other European countries attached assorted restrictions.

It was one example of how American advertising agencies selling abroad often must tailor their pitches to accommodate local customs and regulations.

A demonstration tape, compiled by the J. Walter Thompson ad agency, showed how, one by one, ingredients in its nutritionally effervescent cornfakes commercial would have to be dropped.

—France doesn't allow children to endorse products, so the kid wearing Kellogg's on his T-shirt would be out.

—In Austria, his brothers and sisters would have to leave because that nation forbids the use of children for commercials. Advertisers in the Alps get around this by using midgets, provided they're over 16 years of age.

—West Germany is sensitive about competitive claims, no matter how valid. There, the reference to "only" Kellogg's makes "the best" flakes would have to be pulled.

—In Belgium, the company can mention added vitamins, only if they had once been removed. So "extra vitamins" would have to be deleted. Holland's regulations on nutrients are more onerous, and the advertiser would have to knock out the reference to all vitamins and minerals there.

"The fact that you have the technical capacity to transmit a message to everybody at once," said J. Walter's Denis Lanigan, "does not mean that everybody will find that message equally persuasive, or interesting, or relevant, or, as a matter of fact, legal."

Lanigan is vice chairman and chief operating officer for the world's largest ad agency. With satellite delivery and the U.S. commercial culture gaining greater international exposure, the message to "Buy American" has become garbled a bit when selling European.

Many broadcasting systems are state-controlled, and these countries place more regulations on advertising than exist in the United States. In Holland, for example, candy commercials require the inclusion of a symbolic toothbrush on-screen, while Britain outlaws TV commercials for undertakers and bedding shops.

However, in the area of alcohol, cigarettes and nudity in commercials, "the United States is more puritanical," Lanigan said.

DIAMOND FIND
MOSCOW (AP) — Miners in the Yakutia Republic of eastern Siberia have found a 95-carat diamond "of rare beauty," the official news agency Tass said Sunday.

"When the average divorced woman hears her husband has remarried, that's the end of it. But we read quotes or hear him say on a talk show how he has at last found happiness. Or worse, how he is looking forward to being a good father with his new wife when you are rearing his other children."

Jackie said some ex-wives had to live with drunkenness, drug addicts or wife-beaters. Some husbands filed for bankruptcy after depositing their fortunes in Swiss banks.

Almost always the wife has to gear down her life, move from a mansion in Bel Air to a modest home in reduced circumstances.

"You have to adjust to the loss of perks," Jackie said. "You marry a struggling unknown and with success you get extras like limousines to the airport, free flights to New York to stay in elegant hotels. Free shrimp wherever you go is a nice little luxury."

"You miss those things because they were fun and special. Like your house, however, they aren't your marriage."

"You also find you miss the parties, seeing the pictures of your family in publications. You miss visiting the wonderful homes of other celebrities and the admiration of the public."

"Reading about your ex-husband with a pretty girl at exciting parties is something the average divorcee doesn't have to contend with."

"The purpose of our group is to help each other over the rough spots. We're all supportive. We laugh a lot and there are tears, too."

♦A J83 ♥Q109542 ♦A Q6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—A guiding principle of our bidding philosophy is that, with four-card support for partner's suit, you should agree the trump suit immediately. Therefore, we are inclined to rule out "clever" bids like two diamonds or a jump shift to three diamonds (a distinct overbid). In support of spades your hand revalues to 18 points, and three spades describes it nicely.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦K J8 ♥K7 ♦K J83 ♦A1087
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 NT Pass
4 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—First of all, if you think that North is asking for aces, may we suggest you invest in one of the many excellent bidding texts on the market today. North has made a quantitative raise in no trump, asking you to bid a slam if you have a maximum two no trump response. Since that is exactly what you have, you should be happy to advance to six no trump.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A843 ♥9 ♦KQ10872 ♦93
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—The trouble with a jump to three diamonds is that, if partner rebids three no trump, you won't know what to do. To avoid the possibility of missing your 4-4 spade fit, start with a Stayman two clubs. No matter what partner does, you can follow up with three diamonds. That is forcing, and should allow you to get to your best spot.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦Q87 ♥95 ♦A Q8 ♦A J1063
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—We would not fault you greatly if you jumped to three spades to show your good three-card support for partner's first bid major suit. However, you can't be sure that you should play in spades rather than no trump, and you cannot yet rule out the possibility of slam. The way to investigate while leaving open all possibilities is to make a temporizing bid of three diamonds.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q J1097652 ♦6 ♦Q J107
What is your opening bid?

A.—You have a hand rich in offense, but with no defensive value whatsoever. You can expect to make eight tricks in your own hand, and by the Rule of Two and Three that qualifies for an opening bid of four spades. Why not make the bid that describes your hand so accurately?

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦84 ♥Q954 ♦A Q108 ♦952
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You have to decide whether you should go on to game with your holding. Since you have a maximum raise, the answer is yes, but not at no trump. You have at least a combined eight-card holding in hearts, and you have a ruffing value in spades. Jump to four hearts.

GJWCX LUXLRFG HMKQGXHT WMT
WGZHT, 'ULFKT Q XWZH FR WCJG?'

Saturday's Cryptokuip — IN HUGH HIGHWAY SNARLS IS LITTLE BOY BLUE BLOWING HIS HORN?
Today's Cryptokuip clue: W equals A.

The Cryptokuip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

A Woman's Place

On this date in 1916, Jeannette Rankin became the first woman elected to the United States House of Representatives. A Republican, she served as representative from Montana. She was the only member of the House to vote against entering World War II. The first female member of the U.S. Senate was appointed in 1922. Currently, there are 21 women in the House and two in the Senate.

DO YOU KNOW — Which state has the most women in Congress?

Panels To Hide Slum Damage

NEW YORK (AP) — Painted panels that will disguise the burned-out buildings of the South Bronx slum aren't meant to trick anyone, officials say. They just want to make the area more attractive.

City planners will spend $300,000 in federal money to install hundreds of the panels — showing shades, window panes and even house plants — in the gaping windows of abandoned tenements and other buildings.

Attracted Grasshoppers

HOUSTON (AP) — Exterminators will have to tackle a massive invasion of egg-laying grasshoppers that were drawn to Houston's skyscrapers by the heat and light the buildings emit, officials say.

Hundreds of thousands of the insects coated windows of several downtown buildings over the weekend.

"It was like there was a shade over the windows," said Tanie Trapolin, a store manager.

Usually grasshoppers swarm in sparsely populated areas to lay their eggs and die, said entomologist Phillip J. Hamman.

Black Doctor's Private Hospital Part Of The Past

By Karen Richardson
The Tarboro
Daily Southerner

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — The beds are sheetless now and the once-sterile operating room is dusty. The times that forced Dr. Milton D. Quigless to build a hospital for black patients have passed and his hospital is closed.

Now a can of lard on the kitchen counter, plastic flowers on bedside tables and a pile of surgical instruments in the delivery room are the only physical reminders of the days when Quigless Clinic was a 25-bed hospital building with doctors, nurses and patients.

But there are the memories of Dr. Quigless, 78, of the days when black patients died in their homes because there weren't enough hospital beds for people of their color.

DR. MILTON
QUIGLESS

"When I built this place it was badly needed," Quigless said in a recent interview. He borrowed money to build the hospital in 1947, after 10 years of frustration at watching black patients die at home because beds in the local hospital were always full.

Those 10 years also were frustrating for Quigless personally. Again and again he was denied privileges at the county hospital because of his color.

"Segregation was strictly enforced," Quigless said. "I had to do the best I could in the country. In the country. For ten years. ... I stood it for as long as I could."

In 1947 Quigless used $10,000 he had saved and borrowed $30,000 to build his two-story hospital.

"From the day I started it was filled up," he said.

The hospital was open until 10 years ago, when Quigless could no longer keep up with the changing rules and regulations of the Medical Care Commission.

"They told me I had to do this and do that," he said. "Gradually they choked me off."

Now, he practices on the bottom floor of the old Quigless Clinic. He works only four days a week because of his age, he said, though he feels fine.

"The good Lord takes care of fools and babies," he said.

Quigless, who grew up in Mississippi, said he knew at age 8 or 9 that he wanted to be a doctor. "I followed the local doctor around and peeked in his back door."

Quigless quit school in the 5th grade and stayed out for four years because he liked fishing better. When he went back, he attended a land grant college in Akorn, Miss., where adults could finish high school. Then he studied pre-med in Chicago.

Quigless went to Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn., and interned in St. Louis.

Quigless planned to teach at Meharry for a year and save enough money to open an office. He had been to North Carolina once while playing trombone in a band, and liked what he saw.

He visited a former classmate in Rocky Mount, who suggested that Tarboro would be a good place to open an office.

"It sounds like tar and feathers to me," Quigless said he responded.

But Quigless visited the town. A black pharmacist persuaded him to open a practice immediately.

That was in 1936. There were 6,000 black residents, a pharmacist and no doctor. Quigless said. "It looked good to me," he said.

He resigned his Nashville position and returned to Tarboro with $7 in his pocket, his possessions stuffed into a wardrobe trunk.

Homeless for a few weeks, a woman took him in as a boarder. He borrowed some money to open a practice in an old fish market where Quigless Clinic now stands.

The next 10 years were spent trying to get hospital privileges and treating patients as best he could in their homes. He tried to get some admitted to local hospitals.

His own hospital had an operating room, X-ray room, delivery room, women's ward, pediatric ward, nursery, kitchen, private rooms, and living quarters for the nurses. Much of the equipment was military surplus.

He started with four registered nurses, three aides, a cook and an orderly. A black doctor from Raleigh assisted with surgery.

Quigless' hospital was open 15 years before white patients began coming, he said. "When it closed I was operating on black and whites," he said.

Quigless practiced at the county hospital after he closed his facility. "I couldn't have been treated better," he said.

But those early struggles to get those privileges are still fresh in his mind. He's describing them in a book he's writing about his life.

"I found a lot of good people in Tarboro," he said. "But I found a lot of prejudice, too."

Closed-Circuit Opportunities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans looking for business opportunities in overseas markets will get an assist soon from the joint efforts of the federal government and a number of private firms and non-profit organizations.

A nationwide, closed-circuit TV videoconference will be held in 50 cities in 30 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, to provide information on federal programs available to help U.S. firms in investing, exporting, marketing or contracting overseas.

The videoconference, which originates from here Nov. 16, is designed to explain exactly how American companies can find and use the various services and programs of the government to compete effectively in overseas markets. During the program, business executives will have the opportunity not only to hear but to ask questions of high-ranking government officials in charge of the various federal agencies dealing with overseas trade, exporting and investment.

STUART SHINN

Dear Concerned Citizen:

I am seeking re-election to the Greenville City Council on Nov. 18th. I know you are all aware of the many changes that have taken place in city government and management in the past two (2) years. City government is running smoothly and on a sound fiscal basis. A few of the programs I am proud of as a business man follow:

- ✓ A joint annexation/facility extension agreement between the city and its utility commission to assure growth.
- ✓ Establishment of a capital reserve fund for municipal facility expansion and improvement.
- ✓ Creation of an inner city and neighborhood revitalization program.
"Heart of the City"
- ✓ An organizational study and restructuring of the Greenville Police Department to assure quality protection and safety for business and families.
- ✓ The advisory committee on comprehensive planning was supported and expanded in partnership with community organizations.

As a resident of Greenville for 29 years and one who lives in an older residential area, I am especially concerned about the preservation of our neighborhoods. During my first term on the council, I supported many ordinances which positively affected the quality of life in city housing, older neighborhoods and downtown business.

- ✓ For the first time since 1967, Greenville zoning ordinances were updated in order to preserve and protect older neighborhoods.
- ✓ A new Noise Ordinance was developed and implemented because too many families were being subjected to senseless inner city noise.
- ✓ Conversion standards were changed to encourage the preservation of older neighborhoods.
- ✓ A housing rehabilitation program was initiated in South Evans and Riverdale which enables property owners to receive financial assistance for housing rehabilitation.

There is still much to be done. Exciting growth is on the horizon. This growth must be planned and orderly and not overlook the special needs of our existing neighborhoods. When re-elected I will continue to be an advocate of progress while providing safety, protection and responsible government for us all.

Thank you for voting on Nov. 8th.
