Contract Awarded On 40 Housing Units

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

The general contract for construction of 40 units of conventional housing in West Meadowbrook was awarded by the Housing Authority to a local firm Monday night, subject to concurrence by the U.S. Department Housing and Urban Development.

Commissioners voted to accept the low bid of Eastern Construction Co. of Greenville for the new units. Joe Laney, executive director, said the firm submitted a figure of $1,165,000 for the general package.

Laney told commissioners that although the Eastern offer, one of nine received by the authority at a Nov. 2 bid opening, was about $43,000 over budget allocations. HUD will be asked to approve the amount through a revised budget. He said he did not anticipate any problems with the bid gaining HUD approval.

Laney said bidding on the N.C. 22-8 project, which will be constructed on scattered sites in the Meadowbrook section, was competitive with proposals ranging from Eastern's low offer up to $1,283,000. All but one of the bids were submitted by North Carolina firms.

In other business, the authority's director of operations, Ken Noland, reported that phase one of the Kearney Park modernization project is "progressing slowly." Noland said it is hoped the work will speed up as everyone becomes more familiar with the various items involved in the project.

A note sale for $600,000 involving phase two of the modernization work will be scheduled in February, so it will be some time before that segment of the project gets under way, according to Noland.

Commissioners authorized Noland to make several equipment purchases with available funds and to submit budget revisions to HUD around the first of the year.

Board members also approved an amendment to the authority's purchasing policy and adopted a new set of house rules for the University Towers mid-rise for the elderly on Third Street.

Commissioners approved a revised schedule of income (Please turn to Page 8)

Award $79,934 In Computer Contracts

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners took little action, at Monday's regular meeting other than awarding contracts for $79,934 worth of computer equipment for the county's data processing center.

Bids for the magnetic disk and tape storage units and other equipment were received in mid-October, with only IBM submitting a proposal. The contract was awarded Monday following a review of the bid.

In other business Monday, the board adopted a resolution supporting the location of nursing home beds in the Bethel community, rejected bids received last month for fuel oil, approved advertising for bids to tear down the old county home building near Bell's Fork, and approved an $800 expenditure to hire a consulting firm to review unemployment insurance claims filed against the county.

Commissioners agreed to negotiate with the state's Department of Transportation, which has offered $39,000 for improvements made to the Farmville solid waste container (Please turn to Page 8)

Arafat Tries Avoid Tripoli Bloodbath

By FAROUK NASSAR

Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beleaguered PLO chairman Yasser Arafat today offered to stop fighting Syrian-backed guerrilla mutineers if they halt their onslaught to drive him from Tripoli, his last Middle East stronghold.

In Beirut, U.S. Marines abandoned a vulnerable outpost on the capital's southern outskirts, trimming their peacekeeping zone after the worst outbreak of Lebanese fighting around their positions in six weeks.

"I am now in the protection of Tripoli, this ancient Islamic city," the Palestine Liberation Organization leader told dozens of Western reporters after a meeting held at midday with religious and political figures. They had been pressuring him to renounce his vow to fight unconditionally.

"They have my word that I will do everything in my power to avert a bloodbath in Tripoli," Arafat said. "I will only fight in self defense, and the decision on war or peace is theirs."

The committee of Tripoli's religious and political leaders issued an appeal to Syrian President Hafez Assad to intervene personally to stop the mutineers from pushing into the northern Lebanese city to hunt down Arafat and his loyalists.

Sources close to the committee said it also had contacted breakaway PLO Col. Saeed Mousa, urging him to rein in his forces. But one source, who refused to be identified, said the mutineer leader insisted Arafat "should either get out of Tripoli or face a court martial before a revolutionary court."

The mutineers claim Arafat has abandoned the cause of violent struggle to reclaim a homeland from Israel. Arafat claims Syria supports the rebels because it wants to dominate the PLO.

Since Monday, Arafat and most of his defenders have fled the heavily shelled Palestinian camp of Baddawi on Tripoli's northeast edge and regrouped in residential neighborhoods near the port area, their backs to the sea.

Shek Saeed Shaaban, leader of the dominant Tawheed Islami (Islamic Unity) militia in Tripoli and a staunch Arafat ally, appealed to the Syrian president "not to create a massacre for this city."

"We do not want a fight. But if the city is attacked, the whole of Tripoli is going to be out on the streets fighting because we feel we would rather die fighting than have our dignity crushed," Shaaban said after the meeting with Arafat.

Sources in Beirut, who declined to be identified, suggested Arab mediators might seek an arrangement to let Arafat fly out of Tripoli by a helicopter of a neutral party or sail out on an Egyptian vessel to avoid interception by Israeli gunboats.

About 150 to 200 Marines in the multinational force in Beirut were pulled out of their position at the northeast corner of the U.S. base at Beirut airport and moved to Navy ships offshore. Marine spokesman Robert Jordan said.

The post, at Lebanese Scientific University, was one of the positions caught in a barrage of artillery, rockets, mortar and machine-gun fire between Lebanese army troops and Shiite Moslem and Druse militiamen Monday night. One Marine was slightly wounded in the crossfire, Jordan said.

The fighting forced authorities to close the airport for the first time since a truce was called six weeks ago in the war among Lebanese religious factions, but the facility reopened this morning.

although a spokesman in the division's Raleigh office confirmed that plans are under way for the facility.

The spokesman said state law now requires that juveniles not be housed with adult prisoners after June 30, 1984, so efforts are being made to have the detention facility completed before that time.

Youth Services has about $250,000 for construction of the detention center in Greenville, which will house about a dozen juveniles, and serve other counties in the east.

The local facility will be one of three in the state to be operated by the Division of Youth Services.

An open house will be held at the new detention center in Gaston County next week, the first of the three to open.

Plan Juvenile Center Here

The state is scheduled to build a juvenile detention center at Greenville on a site near the Department of Corrections' facility off the Belvoir Road.

Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray told members of the Board of Commissioners Monday that he has received a letter from Wiley Teal, chief of detention for the Department of Human Resources' Division of Youth Services, saying the division will build the detention facility on a site near the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Commissioners have been working with Teal and W.R. Atkinson, the division's assistant director for institutional services, for several months in an effort to find a site for the facility.

Neither Teal nor Atkinson were available for comment this morning,

A Moderate Turnout

Municipal voting in Greenville this morning compared favorably with early turnout figures reported here two years ago when "generally steady" was the term applied to poll activity throughout the city.

However, in several other Pitt County municipalities holding elections today, voter turnout figures reported to the Pitt Board of Elections by 10 a.m. appeared in most cases to be running behind the 1981 level.

Elections Supervisor Margaret Hardee said that early totals in Greenville included: Precinct I, 61 voters, compared with 36 two years ago; III, 134, (100 in 1981); IV, 192 (175); V, 264, (309); VI, 96, (101); VII, 225, (207); VIII, 150, (155); IX, 137, (173); and X, 117, (134).

The Pitt County activity included: Ayden,

207, compared with 235 two years ago; Bethel, 157, (204); Fountain, 35, (55); Grafton, 72, (185); Grimesland, 46, (24); Simpson, 79, (77); and Winterville, 70, (150). Falkland did not report its early activity today, Mrs. Hardee said.

She said today marked the first time that citizens who have moved to another precinct in the county within 30 days of the election have been allowed to go to their old precincts, receive an election day transfer form and vote at the elections board office. She said "quite a few" voted this morning under the new provision.

Precinct holders in Greenville and in the other Pitt towns are reminded to call "The Daily Reflector" with election returns as soon as they are available tonight.

Inspirational Piece Is Reader Request

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A number of years ago, perhaps 10 or 12, I clipped a poem from your column. It was one of the most inspirational pieces I have ever read, and began, "Slow me down, Lord."

I want to pass it on to my grandson, but I can't find the clipping. I would be so grateful if you would print it again. Sorry, I can't recall the author's name. Thank you.

MARGARET G. IN MANKATO, MINN.

DEAR MARGARET: The inspirational piece was written by Wilfred A. Peterson, and here it is:

Slow me down, Lord!
Ease the pounding of my heart
By the quieting of my mind.
Steady my harried pace
With a vision of the eternal reach of time.
Give me,
Amidst the confusions of my day,
The calmness of the everlasting hills.
Break the tensions of my nerves
With the soothing music of the singing streams
That live in my memory.
Help me to know
The magical restoring power of sleep.
Teach me the art
Of taking minute vacations of slowing down to look at a flower;
to chat with an old friend or make a new one;
to pat a stray dog;
to watch a spider build a web;
to smile at a child;
or to read a few lines from a good book.
Remind me each day
That the race is not always to the swift;
That there is more to life than increasing its speed.
Let me look upward
Into the branches of the towering oak
And know that it grew great and strong
Because it grew slowly and well.
Slow me down, Lord,
And inspire me to send my roots deep
Into the soil of life's enduring values
That I may grow toward the stars
Of my greater destiny.

Divorce Law Clashes With Tribal Customs

By MICHELLE FAUL
Associated Press Writer
HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Unmarried couples are granted divorces. Men who think they are divorced remain married in the eyes of the law. Wives find out suddenly that they are divorced.

Such predicaments abound in Zimbabwe as the young nation tries to resolve contradictions between tribal customs of male domination and new laws granting rights to women.

Six months ago, after a bitter political debate, Parliament approved a law dramatically increasing women's rights. The "Age of Majority Act" gave women over 18 the right to choose their husband and petition in court for divorce, alimony and custody of children.

That law clashes with tribal custom in which guardianship of a woman passes from her father to her husband. Traditionally, Zimbabwean women have been treated as minors. They have been prevented from doing business, renting a house or even spending money without the permission of their husbands.

The new act is still widely ridiculed in a society where customs have deep roots, especially in family matters.

In a traditional "family" divorce, the families of the couple gather in a circle to hear the arguments of both sides for or against a separation. Oral decisions by the family elders are final. If the consensus is for a divorce, the woman is returned to her father with only her cooking pots and clothes.

That also has applied to widows. The new act gives widows the right to go to court to inherit their husband's estate.

The Majority Act gives a woman the right to choose her own spouse even if other suitors offer her family more "lobola," a dowry paid by the man to the family of the bride. Lobola traditionally entitles a husband to ownership of his wife's fertility, and by custom it ensures that he gets custody of children in a family divorce.

In the past, the lobola payment amounted to a few cattle or goats. Now a city man can be required to pay as much as $4,000 to $5,000 for a college-educated wife.

Parliament refused to abolish the practice of lobola altogether, despite objections from women who took part in the black nationalist guerrilla struggle against the white-minority government in what then was called Rhodesia.

Formal independence from Britain in 1980 brought a more equitable distribution of wealth and created a new black elite. Zimbabweans who have lived abroad, especially in Britain and the United States, returned with views that often conflicted with tribal customs.

"Many people have one leg firmly entrenched in the old world and another in the new," said High Court Registrar William Chirambasukwa, who records all legal marriages and separations in Harare.

As in Western societies, divorce is believed to be soaring in Zimbabwe, but the unregistered "family divorces" make it impossible to arrive at reliable figures.

Joan May, a Zimbabwean sociologist and author of a new book on women and the law, said the courts have granted divorces to couples whose marriages were unrecognized except by tribal tradition. Legally wed couples have accepted traditional "family divorces," while remaining married in the eyes of the government.

Ms. May said Zimbabwe society still accepts polygamy and leads husbands to believe it is their right to womanize. The transition to a Western-style system, although encouraged by the Mugabe's socialist government, is more difficult because of lack of education.

In one case, a woman was notified by mail that her husband was seeking a court divorce. She sought a family meeting to discuss it, and after several weeks of discussion she turned up in court only to find the divorce had been granted two weeks earlier.

"Sixty percent of Zimbabwe's women are illiterate," Ms. May said. "The woman doesn't understand what it's all about, nor does she understand the formality of the high court."

Marriage counselor Janet Khumalo commented, "Rarely in the past have African women sued for divorce, no matter how unhappy."

DEAR ABBY: My wife's 23-year-old nephew from Europe and his 21-year-old girlfriend, touring the United States and Canada for six months, popped in for a visit with us. They had bought a station wagon and had often slept in their car.

Without consulting me, my wife asked our 13-year-old son to give up his room and double bed and sleep downstairs in the family room so the guests could have complete privacy.

Since both visitors still live with their parents in Europe, I feel that my wife encouraged something which she and I personally disapprove of.

In my opinion it would have been better to let them "camp" in the family room. What do you think?

OLD-FASHIONED IN N.Y.

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: What difference would it have made if your guests had "camped" in the family room instead of in your son's room? If either you or your wife "disapproved" of their sleeping together in your home, you could have let them sleep in their car.

Problems? Everybody has them. What are yours? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hardest Part For Cabinet Wife Is Long Hours Of Being Alone

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — She goes to parties and receptions almost every night and says people look right through her.

She says she was scared about coming to Washington "and I would have been more scared if I'd known what we were getting into."

She does not lead a life of champagne and limousines; she cleans her own house, washes the family car, sets her own hair and takes care of the yard.

Meet Suzanne Block of Knox County, Ill., a high school teacher for 17 years, mother of three, wife of Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block.

"People romanticize this cabinet," she said in a recent interview. "They like to think we all have maids and servants. But we don't."

At a time when it is considered chic for a woman to boast an MBA or a law degree, Mrs. Block is a Cabinet Wife.

"In Illinois, you're invited to someone's house because they like you," she said. "Here you're invited because you have a title. I'm invited because my husband has a title."

In the three years since President Reagan nominated her husband, a wealthy Illinois hog farmer, Mrs. Block has gotten an inside look at life in Washington's fast track. She has dined at the White House, glittered at embassies, met with the Pope.

"I was scared to death before I came," she said. "These were people I'd read about. Suddenly, here I am. I sat next to Zbigniew Brzezinski at a dinner and was so scared. I said to my husband, 'What shall I do?'"

He said, "Just listen." And it was fascinating. It turned out we had a lot of interests in common.

Mrs. Block savors these moments, knowing that Washington is a fickle town, catering only to those in power, that if the president — or the people — decide against a second Reagan administration, it's back to Illinois for John and Sue Block.

Mrs. Block said she is friendly with the wives of men who have resigned from Reagan's cabinet and are no longer in the news or on the social circuit.

"In Washington, when you're in, you're in," she said. "You have a title and prestige. But when you're out, it's like you vanish from the face of the Earth."

Mrs. Block has also learned that this is a city where people frequently save their energy for those who can boost their career.

"The hardest thing for me is when you're with your husband at a cocktail party and you're invisible," she said. "My husband will say, 'Meet my wife,' and they don't look at me. They're thinking what they'll say to my husband."

Mrs. Block, 47, was sitting in her kitchen, farm style, sipping tea from a mug that read "Hogs and Kisses." Family snapshots and a "Viva Reagan" bumper sticker decorate the refrigerator.

"I don't want to pay somebody $20-$25 a day to clean

SECRETARY'S WIFE — Suzanne Block, wife of Agriculture Secretary John Block pets their dog "Shadow" outside their Washington home. Mrs. Block has learned to live with the long hours of being alone as her husband works. (AP Laserphoto) my house or mow the lawn," she said. "I'd rather do the work myself and save the money for special things like trips."

The Blocks have been married 25 years, the children grown. Mrs. Block said she has luncheon dates almost every day and that the Blocks attend two or three receptions every night.

"Protocol is another thing that slays me about Washington," she said. "Some people are so caught up in it, so conscious of where they sit. Here they notice if they sit on the right side or the left. My husband ranks No. 8 in the cabinet, behind (former Interior Secretary) Watt and in front of (Commerce Secretary) Baldrige."

Mrs. Block doesn't pretend to understand the politics of all those she meets and was once embarrassed at a State Department luncheon that she asked the wife of the president of Bangladesh when her husband was elected.

She said, Mrs. Block recounted, "he had taken over in a coup."

The hardest part of being a cabinet wife, she said, is the long hours alone.

"The biggest con for me is not having a family life," she said. "You don't have a husband. He's busy all day and into the evening. I have to cope with problems myself. You don't dare bring up a problem because he's had problems since 7:30 in the morning."

Parenting Should Be Enjoyed

"You'll never survive parenting if you don't get a little fun out of it," says Fran Wagner, human development specialist at North Carolina State University.

She urges parents to look for things to celebrate. "Celebrate the first time he sleeps all night, turns over, sits alone, walks, talks, smiles, laughs, shows appreciation, dresses himself, feeds himself or masters some other skill or task," Mrs. Wagner says.

She also recommends parents try to find the time to keep a diary of the funny things the child says and does. "I wish I had done more of that for my niece and nephews. You think you will never forget it, but unless you write it down, it will slip your mind," she says.

That diary can be particularly comforting after a long, hard day.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

There's a joke making the rounds these days where a rabbi and a priest are debating when life begins. The priest says it begins from the moment of conception, to which the rabbi replies, "Wrong. Life begins when the kids leave home and the dog dies."

I have no intention of opening a discussion on when life begins but I can tell you the exact moment life ends. It ends the minute you yell, "Dinner's ready."

I don't presume to know why. I just know those two little words cause children to bolt out of the kitchen and disappear. Men will run to the bathroom and clean out the medicine chest. And guests will make a mass exodus and take their drinks to the curb to finish them.

I've never seen anything like it. One minute, you have an entire family hanging over your shoulder who will hear you say, "We're going to be ready to eat in five minutes." They'll watch you get the salad out of the refrigerator. They'll watch you lift the meat out of the skillet. They'll watch you transfer the gravy from a pan to a serving dish, when you yell, "Dinner's ready," you feel a chilling draft, followed by deadening silence. You're standing in the kitchen alone as if life had never been.

"Dinner's ready" is another one of those Mother Mysteries like the washer that eats one sock out of every pair you put in, and the coat hangers that have sex and multiply.

It's one of those buzz phrases that trigger a physical response that no one can explain. For example, the phrase, "whose turn is it to do dishes?" is a signal for every bladder in the house under the age of 20 to reach its capacity and head for the bathroom.

"Could someone help me unload the groceries from the car?" is another phrase that for some reason makes the phone ring. (It's never for you.)

"Does anyone hear the dog scratching to go out?" will throw an entire room of people into temporary deafness, while, "Has anyone seen my car keys?" produces mass paralysis.

Restaurants have the right idea. They get all the diners in the chairs first and THEN they serve. Families don't want to give you that much time. They demand the split-second timing of an aerial trapeze performer who can drop into a seat, catch a spoon in mid-air and lower it in time to dip into the soup.

Mothers have learned throughout the years to deal with adversity. The other afternoon around 2 p.m., I felt like a little quiet time, so I shouted over the din, "Dinner's ready." The kitchen emptied out in six seconds. The dog stared at me as I drank my coffee in peace. I said to him, "Whose life is it, anyway?"

The photograph album can also be very important. "People who have lost everything in home fires report that their greatest loss was the family photographs," Mrs. Wagner notes. A picture is an appropriate way to mark the many causes for celebration in a family.

MR. AND MRS. LONNIE EVANS

Couple Celebrating 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Evans are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary today. They were honored at a reception Sunday given by their children and grandchildren at Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Their children are Mrs. Robert Harper, Mrs. Donnie Wynne, Davis Evans and Mrs. Robert Arndt.

Their grandson, Davis Jr., presided at the register and greeted guests. The honorees and their children received guests. The couple has nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A grape colored formal gown was worn by Mrs. Evans. It was complemented by a corsage of yellow roses and purple violets with lace and tied with gold ribbon.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and decorated with gold bows. It was centered with an arrangement of lavender gladioli, yellow and purple chrysanthemums and yellow carnations. Hurricane lamps held gold lighted candles. Ferns, yellow and purple chrysanthemums with lighted candles were used throughout the reception area. Pictures of the family were displayed.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Billy Evans, grandaughter, who poured punch and Mrs. Davis Evans, their daughter-in-law, served cake. Gifts were received and displayed by Mrs. Ralph Dalton, granddaughter, and grandson, Chris Evans.

Others assisting were Mrs. L.B. Garris, Mrs. Norman Sutton, Eula Mae Sutton, Mrs. Steve Whitehurst, Pam Briley and Mrs. Milton James.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Keith Wynne, grandson.

The couple was married in 1933 by the Rev. W.M. Hardon.

Bridge Winners

Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts were first place winners in the Wednesday morning game played at Planters Bank. Their percentage was .666.

Others placing were: Mrs. J.N. LeConte and Mrs. George Martin, second; Mrs. Charles Mitchell and George Martin, third; Mrs. Blanche Kittrell and Mrs. Bertha Jones, fourth; Mrs. Ralph Sullivan and Mrs. Van Jones, fifth.

North-South winners Wednesday afternoon included: Mrs. J.S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., first with .631 percent; Mrs. Bertha Jones and Mrs. Blanche Kittrell, second; Mrs. Kathleen Metz and Mrs. Stuart Page, third.

East-West winners were: Mrs. Clifton Toler and Mrs. John Tayloe, first with .538 percent; Mrs. J.N. LeConte and George Martin, third; Mrs. Sibyl Basart and Ed Yauck with Marilyn Bongard and Bill Bowden.

East-West game winners Saturday were: North-South: Dr. and Mrs. Charles Duffy, and Mrs. Harold Forbes, second; Mrs. Harold Forbes and Mrs. M.H. Bynum, second; Mrs. Lacy Harrell and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts, third.

East West: Mrs. Wiley Corbett and Mrs. George Martin, first with .583 percent; Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. C.D. Elks, second; Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. Bertha Jones, third.

Voting Power

The Rev. Jesse Jackson has announced that he will seek to be the first black presidential candidate to be nominated by the Democratic party.

He called for a new covenant with the Democratic party of organized labor, big business and blacks.

Jackson said blacks have an investment in the Democratic party and "we want a return on that investment."

Jackson joins a rather large field of hopefuls who are seeking the Democratic nomination. Certainly, at this point, he is not a front runner. Those positions are probably occupied by Walter Mondale and John Glenn.

Yet, Jackson is recognized as a serious candidate for the nomination. He has ability as a speaker. Certainly he represents a large portion of the registered voters with considerable support among blacks and some following among other voters.

Jackson will make a determined race, probably to fall short of the votes needed to win the nomination. He may, however, control a bloc of delegate votes which can make a power to be dealt with in determining who the Democratic presidential nominee will be.

Struggle Ahead

In Argentina Raul Alfonsin of the centrist Radical Civic Union has won election as president to replace a seven-year military rule.

The victory concluded four decades of the Peronist Party's predominance in Argentine government.

We can only hope that the new president will lead his country into an era of prosperity, economic stability and personal freedom.

There are few nations in the Western Hemisphere that have the promise that Argentina does. Yet the nation has gone from one military government to another and one financial crisis to another during the past 40 years. The nation has energetic people, temperate climate and the resources to form an outstanding democratic society, but for some reason it has never reached its potential.

Now the Argentine government is starting over with the president saying, "We're setting out for a new Argentina that is going to struggle for human dignity."

We wish the new leadership every success, both for the well being of the Argentinian people and the stability of our hemisphere.

Foreign Policy

Every time something serious happens, my relatives from around the country call me to find out what is going on. They do this on the false assumption that someone who lives in Washington must know more than they do.

Last week was a busy one. Cousin Ziggy, who is a nervous Nelly when it comes to the Caribbean said, "Why are we landing in Grenada?"

"Because of leftist Marxist thugs who overthrew the other leftist Marxist thugs running the government."

"But why would we care if one Marxist government overthrew another one?"

"Because the guys who took over made the Marxist thugs who were in power look like altar boys."

"Can I ask you a serious question?"

"Shoot."

"Does the Reagan administration have a foreign policy?"

"Of course it has a foreign policy. You can't be a super power without having a foreign policy."

"What is it, then?" Cousin Ziggy asked.

"Our foreign policy is not to have one."

"What does that mean?"

"If the other side knows that we have no foreign policy, then the Kremlin thugs have no idea what we'll do next. Up until recently when a president spelled out a foreign policy, the Soviets immediately worked out a policy to counteract it. But now they're as confused as the American people as to what our objectives are, and they're climbing the Kremlin walls."

"Under the 'no-foreign policy-foreign policy' of the U.S. are we getting closer to going to war with the USSR?" Ziggy asked.

"No, but they are getting much closer to going to war with us."

"What's the difference?"

"The Soviets will not sit down with us unless they know we are willing to fight."

"Are the Soviets willing to fight if they know we are?"

"That's the 64,000 megaton question. Until that moment comes we must do everything to make them understand that we will use every weapon in our arsenal, up to and including the big 'H', before we'll bow to blackmail."

"And that's our foreign policy?" Ziggy asked.

"That's our broad policy. We are also in the business of destabilizing governments favorable to Moscow's thugs, and supporting governments that Moscow is trying to destabilize."

"We'll give the job to a third party which will be financed and trained by the CIA. The Soviets use the KGB to find and train their third parties. If destabilization doesn't work through third parties then we are prepared to use American brute force, just as the Soviets do when one of their covert operations fail."

"What ever happened to diplomacy where nations talked things out first, before flexing their muscles?"

"Our foreign policy is to use diplomacy only as a last resort, when all else fails. The president can't endanger the lives of 220 million Americans, not to mention everyone else on the globe by using diplomacy, when the only thing the other side understands is armed might."

"It doesn't sound like a foreign policy that can last for a very long time. At some moment one side will test the other to see if it's bluffing or not."

"Reagan doesn't bluff," I said. "That was the true message of Grenada."

"And Andropov?"

"He doesn't bluff either. That was the true message of Afghanistan."

"So what do we have to look forward to?"

"More of the same, with clearing skies and light parachuting on Thursday."

Martin Has Edge Among Republicans

GREENVILLE — While 9th District U.S. Rep. Jim Martin was working the crowd at a recent Saturday pancake breakfast here, a diner asked him where he was from. "Davidson," Martin said. When the name of the town didn't strike a responsive chord, Martin explained that it's near Concord.

The questioner smiled and tried to bluff it. "Concord's in the mountains, isn't it?"

That little episode sums up to the first order of business for Martin's gubernatorial campaign. He's spent 11 years in Congress representing a district comprised of Mecklenburg, Iredell, Lincoln and part of Yadkin counties. Now as he tries to run a statewide campaign, he's finding that people outside of his district have never heard of him or the place he's from. He's got to change that.

Martin says he's not surprised that people don't know who he is. He's never made a lot of speeches outside his district. Out west, where folks may think Concord's a seaport, he's just as unknown as he is in the east. In fact, he thinks his name identification is pretty much limited to the circulation and viewership of the Charlotte area news media.

In some ways, Martin, a Republican, faces a challenge no different from that which confronts most of the Democrats seeking the governorship. Name identification outside their home regions is certainly a problem for Eddie Knox of Charlotte, Lauch Faircloth of Clinton and Tom Gilmore of Greensboro.

But the challenge for Martin is different. In some ways, he's got a bigger job ahead of him than any of the Democrats. In other ways, he'll find things easier.

Martin has a narrower base of support. Every major Democrat in the race has held either an elected or appointed statewide office. Martin has represented only one congressional district. The Democrats all have political contacts throughout the state. Martin's are all in his district.

Every candidate must learn the many local issues they'll be questioned about. The Democrats all got a headstart on these by serving in state office. Martin admits to not having known many of these issues before he started his campaign. The Democrats also benefit from having lived in North Carolina the last 11 years. Martin's been in Washington.

In several ways, Martin is better off than the Democrats. He is currently the only major Republican political figure announced for the race. There is a growing sense in Republican circles that he's the party's nominee and that he will not have to fight a tough primary. So, when Martin came into Pitt County, and later into Brunswick County, he found Republican loyalists ready to help him even though they didn't know much about him. His party appears to be unifying behind him.

Also, Martin benefits from Sen. Cass Ballenger's withdrawal from the Republican race. Ballenger threw his support to Martin and handed over the fruits of several years of work — campaign organizations in a number of counties.

Finally, Martin can aim at the general election. He's not spending his time in the Piedmont, where he's known and where Republican primary voters are concentrated. Instead, he's spending an inordinate amount of time in the east, where a lot of conservative Democrats might help in the general election.

Concord, by the way, is in the Piedmont, in Cabarrus County and it is not part of Martin's district. It's just down the road from Davidson.

Public Forum

To the editor:

When the 145 alcoholic beverage control boards authorized their attorney to sue the state ABC Commission (AP, 10-31-83), the truth finally surfaced.

Some of us have had doubts if these boards really desired to control the sale and distribution of our No. 1 addicting drug, alcohol, but their pending law suit just substantiates those feelings.

Because of the recent emphasis on drinking and driving, liquor sales are down. You would think that responsible liquor control boards would be rejoicing. However, just the opposite has occurred.

Sales and profits are declining. In fact, one million fewer bottles of liquor were sold in North Carolina during the past year, and the 145 liquor systems experienced a $653,000 reduction in profits.

Research has documented that for every $1 received in liquor revenues, there is a corresponding $6.10 expense because of liquor-related costs. This is why no community has ever cut its taxes after it has gone into the liquor business. Some of us have been saying for years that liquor at least ought to pay its own way if it is to be merchandised.

However, when the 1983 General Assembly added a dime to the cost of a bottle of liquor to fund the budget of the Division of Alcohol Law Enforcement, the 145 control (?) boards really became upset. Any sensible person would say that liquor ought to pay for this enforcement of liquor laws rather than digging further into the pockets of the taxpayers.

Nevertheless, the pending law suit of the liquor control boards just makes it even more imperative that the name of the Alcohol Beverage Control boards be changed to Alcohol Beverage Promotion boards. By their action, these boards prove they are only interested in promoting and selling MORE liquor with the end result of killing more people and adding a greater tax burden to the already overloaded taxpayer.

We just had one of the nicest Saturday "Day Camping" experiences imaginable! Our Girl Scout Troop No. 633 spent the day at River Park North administered by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department. Not only are the facilities of top quality, but the personnel, especially Howard Vainwright, knowledgeable and very willing to help. The Science and Nature Center, though at present not heated, is something every child should experience.

The paddleboats, sandhills, lakes, numerous paths through the woods and around the river, and, of course, the Nature-Science Center are something we are proud to have in Greenville. We plan to pass this "find" on to other Scout troops and hope more people will enjoy it. We are sure they will, for good news travels fast!

Strength For Today

In the Epistle to the Hebrews we find the statement that it behooved Christ to be made like unto his bretheren, "that he might become a merifull and faithful high priest in the things pertaining to God."

In the last analysis, it takes a human being to help a human being. There are a few divine revelations on mountain tops recorded in the Bible, but the greatest revelations came to men through other men. Even the Word, the creative power and message of God, had to become flesh at last and dwell among men. This happened when Christ took on flesh and entered the stream of history.

If you want to help somebody, get down and walk with him along the pathway of life. Try to get your line of visison as close to his as possible.

He needs someone made "like unto his bretheren," and who because he is so made, can help others in the things pertaining to the tribulation, pain and problems of the world.

Congress Shows Recess Fever

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again, Congress is beginning to show signs of its perennial affliction, recess fever, that incurable itch to beat a hasty retreat before the year's first snow falls on the capital.

Lawmakers have set a Nov. 18 adjournment date, but already some slipage is being rumored. Usually Congress misses its late-fall recess target, often by weeks.

Leaders are trying their hardest to get things wrapped up by Thanksgiving. Even Senate Chaplain Richard Halverson has rushed to the aid of legislators, seeking some help from above.

"Father in Heaven, Thou knowest the frustration which seems to build as the Senate nears the end of a session," the Rev. Halverson began his morning prayer the other day.

"Senator (Howard) Baker and Speaker

(Thomas P.) O'Neill have expressed a determination to adjourn Nov. 18, yet few believe it will happen and disbelief is mixed with cynicism.

"Dear God, move in our midst to make this desire of leadership a reality ... Prove Thy relevance to the hard business of legislation. Do it Lord."

Baker, the Senate Republican Leader, expressed appreciation for the appeal for divine intervention. "If there is anything I need, it is help to get this place adjourned," Baker said.

"Not even I had thought to invoke the help of the Lord," Baker added. "But I appreciate the prayer this morning of the chaplain. I am impressed, overwhelmed and wish to state that I believe we shall make it on the 18th."

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., like many senators running for re-election, scarcely misses a chance to show the folks back home that he's in Washington pulling for their interests. This time, Domenici took mocking umbrage with a newspaper account that extolled the delights of New Mexican "chili."

Humbly, protested Domenici. Spelling the spicy concoction with an "i" at the end instead of an "e" is tantamount to "New Mexican's definition of original sin." Domenici contended in a speech inserted in the Congressional Record.

"New Mexicans know that 'chili' is that inedible mixture of watery tomato soup, dried gristle, half-cooked kidney beans, and a myriad of silly ingredients that is passed off as food in Texas and Oklahoma...."

"Contrast this to New Mexico, where ordering a bowl of chile is a delightful experience ... We have chile that is mild enough to make a baby coo in delight, or hot enough to make even the strongest constitutions perspire in a sensual experience of both pleasure and pain."

No matter that the dictionary approves of both spellings. "Unequivocally, the dictionary is wrong," Domenici said.

"Would Florida be any less offended if oranges were suddenly spelled 'orangs'?" Would there be no outcry from the state of Washington if their apples were suddenly spelled 'appis'?"

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., speaking in support of a new effort to win approval of an Equal Rights Amendment, told the Senate Judiciary Committee that any job in the military service should be open to women — if they are qualified.

"Of course, they must meet the physical requirements," he said. "A pilot can't be too tall or she couldn't fit into the cockpit. Or too fat."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who constantly fights a weight problem, retorted with a laugh: "I wish you wouldn't stare at me when you say that."

Grifton Man Found Dead

A 22-year-old Route 2, Grifton man, Jerry Dean Houston Jr., was found shot to death at the Wildlife Commission boat ramp here about 9 a.m. Monday.

Police Chief Linwood Outlaw said Houston, an East Carolina University student, died of a shotgun wound to the head. Saying the death has been ruled suicide, Houston said medical examiners placed the time of death at about 7 a.m.

No Arrests Made In Death

No arrests have been made in the Saturday night shooting death of 34-year-old Alton Barfield of Ayden in the St. John's community near Grifton. Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said today.

Tyson said his department is continuing its investigation of the incident. Barfield died of a gunshot wound to the chest.

Refrigeration License Granted

The State Board of Refrigeration Examiners said today that D.C. Golden of Greenville has been granted a license to engage in the business of refrigeration contracting.

The license was issued after Golden passed the regular refrigeration contractor examination given last month.

Retired Educator Is Honored

Mrs. Lillian Bradley, local educator, was honored recently at a luncheon held in Williamston by members of Region I of the North Carolina Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development.

A Farmville native who is past president of Region I, NC-ASCD, Mrs. Bradley was thanked and given a gift by the association, with Charles Ross of Greenville, current president, as spokesman for the group. An elementary education supervisor with the Pitt County Schools, she retired in June 1983. She had been in public education for more than 30 years.

Library To Be Closed

Sheppard Memorial Library will be closed Friday in observance of Veteran's Day. The library will resume its normal operating hours at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Veterans' Ceremony Scheduled

American Legion Post No. 160 will hold a Veteran's Day ceremony on the Pitt County Courthouse steps Friday at 3 p.m. and at Brown Hill Cemetery on Howell Street at 4:30 p.m.

Relatives and friends of deceased veterans buried at Brown Hill Cemetery are asked by the Legion to contact members of the post to help identify unmarked graves. American flags will be placed on identifiable American veterans' graves.

For more information contact Ben Braswell at 732-1383 or Curtis Best at 732-0604.

Winterville Offices To Close

The Winterville Town Hall will be closed Friday for Veterans Day according to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles. The office will reopen Monday morning at its usual time, he added.

Investigation Continuing

Officer D.W. Nichols said Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a break-in at Harvey's Restaurant at 823 Memorial Drive. According to Nichols, entrance to the restaurant was gained through a window, and an estimated $150 in change was taken from a coin operated machine.

The incident was reported at 5:05 a.m. Monday.

Lou Haddock of Greenville served as a page in Gov. Jim Hunt's office in Raleigh the week of Oct. 31-Nov. 4. A junior at Rose High School, she is the daughter of Ms. Iris Kimery of Greenville.

Joyner Speaks To Kidney Chapter

Steve Joyner, administrative transplant coordinator at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, spoke at the November meeting of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of the North Carolina Kidney Foundation.

Joyner reported that 32 kidney transplants have been performed at PCMH with more planned in the near future. He said organ procurement programs have been set in several hospitals in eastern North Carolina with a campaign to educate professional personnel on the criteria for organ donation.

June Thompson, president of the chapter, will speak to the Health Occupation Students of America organization at Eastern Wayne high school in Goldsboro on Wednesday.

Plans for a Christmas party for transplant and dialysis patients and their families were discussed. A 28-minute film entitled "Bridging the Gap" concerning kidney disease, dialysis and the organ-donor program is available to organizations for educational programs.

To schedule the film or for more information call Beverly Spence at the Greenville Dialysis Center at 732-1520.

The next meeting will be Dec. 1 at the Gaskins-Leslie building adjacent to PCMH.

Tucker Heads Chamber Unit

Leland Tucker was elected Monday night as president of the Winterville Chamber of Commerce for 1984. His election came at a reorganizational meeting attended by 35 guests and members.

Other 1984 chamber officers are vice president, Paul Hunsucker; secretary-treasurer, Elwood Nobles, and director-at-large, Ed Stanley.

According to Elwood Nobles the chamber's last meeting was in 1979. "We feel the attendance was excellent because of the time since our last meeting," he said. The chamber agreed to sponsor the Governor's Award of Excellence program for the town in 1984.

According to Nobles 1984 dues are $20 and interested merchants may contact him at the town hall.

Green To To Make Airport Visit

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green will be at the Pitt-Greenville Airport for about an hour, beginning at 3 p.m. Thursday.

Green's office said this morning that the Greenville visit is one of 15 stops Green will make this week on a statewide tour to greet friends and express thanks for their support. The 3 p.m. local visit will follow a stop at Elizabeth City. Green will then fly to Sanford.

Wednesday, Green is scheduled to visit Lumberton, Wilmington, Jacksonville and Fayetteville.

Engineering Director Appointed

The appointment of Thomas N. Tysinger Jr. as the city's new director of engineering and inspections was announced today by City Manager Gail Meeks.

Tysinger, who will begin work here on Jan. 9, is currently public service and land development engineer with the city of Charlotte. Tysinger has been associated with Charlotte's engineering department since January 1976 and from September 1976 until joining the department was employed with the U.S. Geological Survey.

Mrs. Meeks said that Tysinger, who was selected from a field of 30 applicants, will begin his employment with the city at a salary of $36,067.

A Charlotte native, he is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and is a registered professional engineer. Tysinger, 31, and his wife, Jan, have two children.

Mrs. Meeks said that Lee Murphy, who has served as acting director of engineering since April following the resignation of Ron Sewell, will serve as an assistant under Tysinger.

THOMAS N. TYSINGER JR.

Armed Robbery Investigated

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating an armed robbery at Lee's Grocery and Grill at Stokestown about 10:20 a.m. today.

Handouts, catalogs and applications were available to students and video presentations were given. About 1,100 students attended.

Two-Car Mishap Investigated

Cars driven by James Ray Holton of 102 Rackley Drive and Connie Lee Glast of 206 Greenfield Blvd. collided about 5:20 p.m. Monday at the intersection of Greenfield Boulevard and Ashton Street. Police estimated damage from the collision at $600 to the Holton car and $250 to the Glast auto.

Senior Citizens Give Donations

Town and Country Senior Citizens met Thursday and members voted to give $100 to the Foster Children's Christmas Fund and $26 to the Mental Health Association to Adopt a Forgotten Patient.

Club President Sarah Ashton said reservations for the Nov. 17 Thanksgiving luncheon at noon must be made by Nov. 11 by calling 756-9666. The Christmas luncheon will be held Dec. 7 at the Greenville Country Club. Reservations must be made by Nov. 17, according to Mrs. Ashton.

Gifts for Operation Santa Claus will be collected at the Thanksgiving luncheon, and the Gift Wrapping Project at Carolina East Mall will begin Nov. 28. Senior Citizens Games Day will be held April 11, 1984. Volunteers may call 752-2912.

Dick Flye, manager of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph in Greenville, was the guest speaker for the meeting and showed a film on phone service.

Employees Honor Manager

John L. Watson, manager of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Ambulance Service, was honored Sunday night with a surprise birthday dinner given by employees of the ambulance service.

The dinner, held at Tar Landing Restaurant here, was attended by employees of the ambulance service and their spouses, by Watson's wife, sisters and nieces, and by other colleagues at the hospital. Charles Mayo acted as master of ceremonies and Rose Wilkinson and Nancy Bell planned the event.

Watson has been director of the ambulance service since its establishment in 1968. He is a Hyde County native who has lived in Bethel most of his life.

Pair Charged By Drug Squad

Officers assigned to the Greenville Police Department's drug and vice squad Monday arrested two people for the sale and delivery of marijuana.

Capt. John Briley said Eva Jean Wooten, 26, of 1307 Powell St. was taken into custody about 3:45 p.m. while Sugar Ray Ward, 17, of Route 5, Greenville, was arrested about 8:15 p.m. Both were taken into custody at 1307 Powell St.

Eagle Badges Awarded

Four Scouts At Rites

Four members of Boy Scout Troop 30, sponsored by Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, received the Eagle Scout award at a ceremony held at their local campsite at Galloway Farms recently.

The Eagle Scout awards, which are the highest awards Boy Scouts can earn, were presented by the boys' mothers with Assistant Scoutmaster Walter Shepherd officiating.

The Eagle Scout oath was given by John Bush of Kinston, who is an executive in the East Carolina Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Also attending the presentation were Heber Adams, Tom Harwell and Bill Pleuddeeman of the Pitt District of the Boy Scouts of America, and the Rev. Jim Bailey, pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Prior to the Eagle Scout presentations, over 100 other types of badges were awarded to troop members by Scoutmaster Charles H. Moore.

In order to achieve the rank of Eagle Scout, a Boy Scout must be active in his troop, display spirit, earn at least 21 merit badges, hold a leadership job in his troop and participate in a service project.

Boys who received the award and their service projects follow:

James C. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Thomas of Greenville, collected books and magazines for the Alcohol Rehabilitation Center for his service project. He is a senior at J.H. Rose High School.

Clay Deanhardt, a junior at J.H. Rose High School, held a bike-a-thon to raise money for the Ronald McDonald House in Durham. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Deanhardt of Greenville.

A senior at J.H. Rose High School, Joseph Murray Rayle coordinated a drive to collect clothes for a clothing shelter and medical clinic for Haitian migrant workers in Newton Grove. He obtained a solicitation permit from the city of Greenville and, with the help of other troops members, collected clothes door-to-door and through a Hotline appeal in The Daily Reflector. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Rayle of Greenville.

Charles Henry Moore II, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Moore of Greenville, planted 21 dogwood trees in Green Springs Park for his service project. He is a junior at J.H. Rose High School.

Libel Law Issues Before Court

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is considering some libel law fine-tuning that may make nationally distributed magazines and newspapers, and the people who work for them, more tempting targets for lawsuits.

In three separate cases being argued today, the justices must study these questions:

—May people who sue a national publication, such as Hustler magazine, shop for the state offering the most favorable laws and filing deadlines? A federal appeals court said no.

—May reporters and editors of a national publication, such as the National Enquirer, be forced to defend themselves in distant states where they neither live nor work? California courts said yes.

—Does an appeals court have the power to overturn a judge or jury finding of "actual malice" by a news media defendant? That's what a federal appeals court did in throwing out a $210,000 libel award against Consumer Reports magazine.

In all three cases, the legal questions are technical, even esoteric. But their practical impact might be measured in cold cash.

In the Hustler case, publisher Larry Flynt's sexually explicit magazine was sued by Kathy Keeton of New York City, vice president of competing Penthouse and described in court papers as the common law wife of Penthouse publisher Robert Guccione.

Ms. Keeton says she was libeled by a 1976 issue of Hustler in which a cartoon indicated that Guccione infected Ms. Keeton with venereal disease.

She first filed suit in Ohio, where Hustler is based, in 1977. But after being told she had missed Ohio's filing deadline for such a suit, she sued in New Hampshire.

At the time, New Hampshire was the only state in the nation with a filing deadline leisurely enough to allow the suit.

The 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals threw out Ms. Keeton's suit last June, ruling that neither she nor Hustler had sufficient contacts with New Hampshire to justify federal court jurisdiction there.

Less than 1 percent of Hustler's circulation is distributed in New Hampshire.

The second controversy stems from actress Shirley Jones' $20 million lawsuit over a National Enquirer article she says libeled her and her husband, agent

Marty Ingels.

Ms. Jones' suit was filed in California, where she lives, and named as defendants the weekly newspaper, its editor Ian Calder and reporter John South.

Calder and South, who work at the newspaper's offices in Lantana, Fla., are urging the high court to rule that California courts do not have the authority to include them as defendants.

Ms. Jones sued over an Oct. 9, 1979 article that appeared over South's byline. It said "insiders" reported that Ingels had "terrorized his staff, cheated stars, outraged advertisers and scandalized Hollywood."

It said Ms. Jones was so upset by Ingels' behavior that "by 3 o'clock in the afternoon she's a crying drunk" not able to work.

The third case today involved Consumer Reports, a monthly magazine published by the Consumers Union of the United States. It features articles on the safety, efficiency and reliability of products offered to the public.

The May 1970 issue of the magazine included an article evaluating 24 loudspeakers, based on tests conducted by Consumers Union engineers.

Bose Corp. sued for libel because the article said that musical instruments heard through one of its speakers "tended to wander about the room."

A federal trial judge ruled for Bose, and ordered Consumers Union to pay the speaker manufacturer $210,905 in damages. To do that, he had to find that the article was written with "actual malice" — that it was written with knowledge of its falsity or with reckless disregard of its truth or falsity. The 1st Circuit court threw out the libel award, saying, "We are unable to find clear and convincing evidence that CU published the statement with actual malice." Bose lawyers are urging the justices to rule that the appeals court exceeded its authority in overturning the trial judge's factual findings.

Road Lemons Clog Traffic

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — There were more lemons on the road than in a dozen used car lots, but no one was driving them.

A truck pulling two trailers full of lemons overturned about 1 p.m. Monday just east of the Interstate 10 overpass, clogging traffic for nearly three hours, said Officer Larry Murphy.

"It was solid lemons," Murphy said as workers shoveled thousands of whole and squashed lemons into garbage trucks.

No one was injured, and some bystanders used boxes to carry off free fruit, he said. Juice poured into gutters.

The truck, driven by Donald Sherman, 26, was traveling north on the interstate exit ramp and overturned while turning right, Murphy said.

Sherman, an employee of the Tempe-based Central Citrus Co., was cited for running a red light, speeding and having faulty brakes, Murphy said.

Advertised For A Child

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — A divorced mother of three teen-agers who advertised for a baby to adopt says she received dozens of calls from men — but none from women — offering children.

Nancy Skaggs, a nurse who advertised in the Contra Costa Times that she had "no money to give, but a warm home & lots of love," said Monday she also received several calls from couples and single women hoping she could help them find children to adopt.

The men who called on behalf of pregnant girlfriends or of mothers wishing to give up young children said they "want to protect the women involved," said Ms. Skaggs, 37. The ad was pulled after five days after it was discovered that it was illegal for an individual to advertise for a child, City Editor Nancy Ward said.

Siamese Twin Dies In Separation Try

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — One Siamese twin died late Monday night while doctors were trying to separate the twins at the heart and liver, a doctor at Charlotte Memorial Hospital said today.

The infant girl died at about 11:30 p.m., said hospital president Dr. Harry Nurkin. The second girl, whom doctors determined to be the stronger of the two during the operation, received an artificial shunt from the aorta to the pulmonary artery to help give her an adequate oxygenated blood supply.

The surviving infant came through the rest of the surgery with no further major complications, Nurkin said. She was in the hospital's neonatal intensive care unit in extremely critical and guarded condition this morning.

"The surgery performed was of a life-sustaining nature," said hospital spokesman Al Pruitt. "If the child does survive, there will be much more additional surgery to correct other defects."

Pruitt said the parents were well-prepared for decisions that were made during the surgery and frequent consultation between the medical team and the parents was made.

The twins were born Sunday night at the hospital by Caesarian Section. They weighed a total of 9 pounds, 10 ounces at birth. The identity of the infants and their parents have been withheld at the request of the family.

Nurkin said the surgical team determined during the 5½-hour surgery the infants shared a heart and liver.

limits, as recommended by HUD, for admission to local low rent public housing. The new schedule sets an income limit of $9,200 for one person and ranges up to $16,400 for eight or more family members. The old limits ranged from $7,100 for one person up to $12,700 for eight or more.

Sally Streeter, director of tenant affairs, said three temporary vacancies existed among the authority's 702 housing units at the end of the month. Average rents included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $115.51; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $116.32; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $125.87; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $114.45; N.C. 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $89.94; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $101.97, for an overall average of $112.61.

Laney reported that 98 of the 100 units authorized under the agency's Section 8 existing housing program are leased, while 108 out of 109 allowed under the moderate rehabilitation segment are leased. All 60 units in the University Towers complex are occupied, he said. Laney said the first of 20 units allowed under a new rent rehabilitation demonstration program sponsored by the N.C. Housing Finance Agency is now leased.

Homecoming Mums Becoming Burden

HOUSTON (AP) — Mums is the word, but it's almost an understatement for the flowers adorning homecoming belles these days in Texas high schools.

While corsages for football homecoming used to be something simple, now they're apt to be made of a half dozen flowers, 6-foot streamers, balloons, bells, miniature plastic goal posts, megaphones, helmets, glitter, lace, feathers — and may even be lit with battery-operated flashing lights. Florists are delighted.

With the homecoming mums — as traditional in Texas as homecoming queens, pep rallies and high school football — bigger, flashier and a lot more expensive than ever, some high school officials think "mum mania" has to stop.

"Some of these mums go from their shoulders to their waists and cost $60," says Jeanne Henson, assistant principal at South Houston High.

In Wichita Falls last year the school district banned corsages after third- and fourth-grade girls started showing up with $50 worth of flowers to school. Some schools in Dallas and Fort Worth, where corsages were selling for as much as $200, also imposed bans.

"Sometimes I feel sorry for the little girls who have to wear these things," says Lynn Schweke, owner of Flowers by Lynn in the suburb of Alief.

Mike Rich of Simmons Florist says Houston high school homecomings are like "adding six holidays to a year or having three or four weddings in one weekend."

Paper Closing; Staff Stunned

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Staff members on deadline reacted first with stunned silence and later with tears after they learned that the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the city's morning newspaper, will cease publishing Dec. 31 after 131 years.

News of the impending shutdown came late Monday just before the publication's first deadline. The newspaper's publisher, G. Duncan Bauman, said he did not anticipate any way to save the paper.

"The Globe-Democrat has incurred substantial losses for many years, and we do not foresee that any substantial contraction in its operations will bring relief," said Bauman in a prepared statement.

"The closing of the Globe-Democrat is a sad event. However, it is a fact that few cities in the United States are now able to support two daily newspapers."

The closing of the paper, which was founded in 1852 as the Daily Missouri Democrat and was bought in 1955 by the S.I. Newhouse Publishing Co., will leave the afternoon Post-Dispatch as the city's only daily newspaper.

"As a journalist, I am saddened by the demise of any newspaper, but it seems the trend," said David Lipman, managing editor of the Post-Dispatch. "We have contemplated moving into the morning field. We will have to sit down and evaluate."

An industry source, who asked not to be identified, said the decision to shut down stemmed from a shrinking advertising base and losses over a period of several years. The source said virtually no chance for sale of the newspaper existed.

George Killenberg, executive editor of the Globe-Democrat and a staff member since 1941, said, "We should be used to this. We deal with problems of people every day. But it's another thing when it hits home. It's a little different when it's you."

Mark Edgar, a city reporter, said Bauman's announcement first elicited little vocal response. "Then people shouted, 'My God, it's true,' and many of the women broke into tears," Edgar said.

Both St. Louis Mayor Vincent C. Schoemehl Jr. and Gov. Christopher S. Bond expressed regret.

"I am deeply saddened to learn that the St. Louis Globe-Democrat will cease operations at the end of the year. The St. Louis community, as well as the entire state, will miss the Globe's aggressive reporting and thoughtful commentaries," Bond said.

Joe Gallagher, a city desk editor and employee for 38 years, noted that the newspaper's daily circulation of 260,572 as published for 1982 exceeded the 235,520 of the rival Post-Dispatch.

"We're still ahead of the Post-Dispatch circulation-wise," Gallagher said. "We just don't know anything. There may have been other factors."

provements were still being drafted.

"We don't know who did it," Smith said. Minutes before the explosion, however, an anonymous caller telephoned the Washington Post and claimed responsibility on behalf of a group calling itself the Armed Resistance Unit. The caller said "the action" was in response to U.S. military involvement in Grenada and Lebanon.

The Senate convened today, as scheduled, although both Republican and Democratic cloakrooms were closed and senators had to use a side entrance to the chamber, which was not damaged.

"The Senate is convening at 9 a.m. notwithstanding the act of violence perpetrated against the Capitol last night," Baker said, speaking above the sound of clinking glass from the nearby clean-up operations.

"It's fortunate indeed that the Senate did not meet late, as had been planned," Baker said. "After looking at the damage, especially to the cloakrooms, had the Senate been in session there would have been grave injury to senators and perhaps loss of life among senators and staff."

A layer of dust from the explosion had covered the carpeted chamber floor and maintenance workers were busy with vacuum cleaners and dust clothes before the Senate convened.

The building's first floor was to be opened to the public later today, although the second floor was blocked off on the Senate side of the Capitol.

The bomb blasted a hole "several feet wide and about 15 feet high" in the wall between the main, tile-floored corridor outside the Senate chamber and the nearby Mansfield conference room, said Mike Willard, an aide to Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd. "It's a big, gaping hole," he added.

Byrd's own office had both doors blown off their hinges, Willard said, but the inside of his office appeared to suffer no major damage.

The explosion damaged or destroyed several works of art, including historic paintings of Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and John C. Calhoun, and caused heavy damage to a grandfather clock near the Senate chamber, Senate officials said. The blast also shattered numerous pieces of heavy furniture.

"It may have caused a $1 million worth of damage," Willard said.

site. The state will acquire the site for an access road as part of the U.S. 264 freeway project.

The board also appointed Linwood Spells to the county's Committee for the Employment of the Handicapped; reappointed David A. Leech, Mrs. Joe Ball, Redding B. Elks, Addie Gore, Peggy Chandler, Acolia Simon Thomas and G. Carl Worthington Jr. as members of the Juvenile Task Force; an reappointed Commissioner Kelly Barnhill as the county's representative on the Mid-East Commission.

County Manager Reginal Gray reported that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has agreed to conduct a feasibility study on a proposed snagging of the Tar River. Commissioners, in September, adopted a resolution asking the Corps of Engineers to snag the Tar River from Tranters Creek to Tarboro, in an effort to improve the recreational use value of the river.

Jack Richardson, director of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, told the board that ground-breaking ceremonies for the medical center's Phase I expansion project is scheduled for noon Friday. The expansion will include building new emergency department facilities and enlarging surgery and radiology facilities.

Ralph Hall, PCMH vice president in charge of facilities, said the project will give the hospital "one of the nicest trauma centers in the state," and said new construction will take about a year to complete. He said renovations within the hospital will take six to eight months after completion of the new construction.

Assistant County Manager Don Davenport reported that, from mid-August to mid-October, county-owned trucks have hauled 995 solid waste container boxes to the landfill.

He said contract haulers during the same period in 1981 hauled 1,043 boxes, while during the same period in 1982, contractors pulled 1,229 boxes to the landfill.

The county began hauling containers with its own trucks in mid-August, after a study suggested that $100,000 a year could be saved. In the past, the solid waste containers have been hauled by contractors charging $45 per haul.

Commissioners will meet at 10 a.m. Thursday for a workshop session.

Mannequin Is On Police Duty

HIGH SHOALS, N.C. (AP) — When controlling speeders through the tiny Gaston County town of High Shoals proved too much for its one-man police force, the department instituted a one-mannequin speed trap.

Since then, motorists on U.S. 321 have put on their brakes under the ever vigilant, if glassy, eyes of Oscar, who occupies the police department's spare cruiser, said High Shoals Police Chief Sam Lockridge.

"I have two police cars and I can't drive but one of them," said Lockridge, who explained the situation about eight weeks ago to store officials at the Matthews Belk Co. in Gastonia. The company donated Oscar to the cause of safe driving.

"Many of the cars were going 55 to 60 mph and that's just too fast, even for the road conditions," said Mayor Clyde Garver, who is also postmaster in High Shoals. Now Garver says from his vantage point at the post office, he sees brake lights flash and car fronts go down as motorists in the 35 mph speed zone spot Oscar and his patrol car.

"It's just instinct," he said. "People automatically put on the brakes when they see a policeman. Besides there's something built into a person. They don't want to stare a real policeman in the eye."

Garver said Oscar has even fooled some of the local residents.

"One of the ladies started to carry it a glass of water because he had been sitting out there so long and not moving," he said.

Some people have stopped to ask Oscar directions, only to find him as closed-mouthed as a mummy.

Oscar frees Lockridge to direct traffic around High Shoals Elementary School, or for other tasks he has in his double duty as police chief and manager of the town.

But just in case drivers grow wise to the ruse, Lockridge occasionally trades places with Oscar and motorists expecting to zip by a dummy find it's learned to drive — and hand out tickets.

The plan also has some public relations problems. One highway patrolman thought Lockridge was acting snobby when he failed to return a friendly wave. The patrolman later confessed to the chief, he had more than once grumbled, "You wait until (he) needs my help."

Hard Decisions To Face N.C. Schools

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The first step to improving America's public schools is to remove poor teachers from the nation's classrooms while shutting down inferior schools of education, a North Carolina educator says.

"It has to start in the training institutions, the schools of education that are sending people out to be teachers," said David Reilly, dean of the School of Education at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. "And it has to start with the public because they must support the folks who need to be making the hard decisions."

"It won't be easy to close them," he said. "Many of the schools I'm talking about are the traditional black institutions. The federal government's going to have a fit if you try to touch them, and the boards of review are going to be afraid to try. They need public support."

New Cigarette Is On Market

By The Associated Press
Recently introduced cigarettes targeting value-conscious smokers and style-conscious women are an indication of a market-conscious tobacco industry, according to tobacco officials and industry analysts.

The latest entry is American Tobacco Co.'s Carlton Slims Deluxe 100s, introduced Monday. Company officials hope the cigarettes, packaged in sleek, gold-trimmed boxes, will attract female smokers.

American Tobacco Vice President Charles Mullen said the company hopes the brand will attract a new market, rather than detract customers from its other brands.

Meanwhile, Brown & Williamson of Louisville, Ky., has started selling 25-to-the-pack Carltons to attract economy minded smokers. And five other major new brands have been introduced in recent months.

Initial sales reports "make us optimistic," said B&W spokesman Mark Ahearn.

Other new brands recently introduced include low-tar Luckies by American Tobacco; mint-flavored Bright by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.; Players by Philip Morris USA; Satin by Lorillard; and 25-to-the-pack Century by R.J. Reynolds.

already in the schools, Reilly said, peer review boards and procedures for documenting poor performance must be established.

"It's possible to fire poor teachers who are tenured, but it must be carefully documented," Reilly said. "Right now, nobody's doing that. Teachers themselves know who the good and bad teachers among them are."

Teachers now spend so much class time on administrative duties that they have little time to teach, Reilly said.

"They need a free period to plan," he said. "They shouldn't be doing lunch duty and bus duty and playground duty."

To help teachers identify the type of children in their classrooms and plan the best approaches to teaching them, classes should be no larger than 18 to 20 students, Reilly said. That means more teachers and more money, he said.

In a slow-growth market, "about the only way to grow is to grow at someone else's expense," he said.

Pickler said there are two strategies to facilitate growth in sales.

"One is to try to take market share from other brands, and the other is to more precisely target the market. Find a niche and fill it," he said.

Despite the recent brand introductions, sales have sagged since the doubling in January of the federal cigarette tax from 8 to 16 cents a pack.

Domestic sales volume was down about 6.5 percent through August, according to the Tobacco Institute, a Washington-based tobacco trade group.

In North Carolina, the nation's leading tobacco producer, cigarette sales were off 8.25 percent, the institute said.

Sales dropped more than 11 percent in several states. Sales were up in only two states, Hawaii and Nevada.

Given Prison For Extortion

HOUSTON (AP) — A former policeman who planted five bombs inside a Gulf Oil Chemical Co. refinery in a $15 million extortion plot was sentenced to 15 years in prison after telling a judge, "I have done all I could to right the wrong I've done."

Timothy K. Justice, 31, was sentenced Monday on his guilty pleas to using a long-distance telephone call to aid extortion and transporting explosive devices in interstate commerce.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Proper identification of drinking customers is the best defense against liability lawsuits under the Safe Roads Act, lawyers and law enforcement officers say.

"To prevent liability you have to have a systematic way of checking the identification," attorney Marvin Pope of Asheville told those at a Monday workshop on the new law. "It is negligent not to check. If you do a spot check, you run the risk."

Under the "dram shop" provision of the new act, negligent sales of alcoholic beverages to underage drinkers can bring liability actions of up to $500,000 against lounge owners or their employees. Victims in automobile accidents involving underage intoxicated drivers can hold the establishment liable if they can prove the driver was served illegally.

The new law also increased the drinking age for beer and wine to 19 and maintained the age at 21 for drinking liquor and fortified wine.

Pope said that the new law, effective Oct. 1, has had no test in the state's high courts. However, high court panels have rendered judgments in similar civil cases which would tend to support the law, he said.

"The plaintiffs in these suits tend to look to the establishment because they have the money and 18-year-olds do not," Pope said.

The law has been challenged by the N.C. Restaurant Association, which claims that restaurant owners and employees have been given too much responsibility in enforcing the law. If liability lawsuits are filed, it will be difficult for retailers to remember who drank what, they claim, and checking all identification cards during peak hours is difficult.

Under penalties in the dram shop law, sellers can lose their liquor licenses until they pay judgments against them.

Proof of good practices can prevent liability, Pope said, even if a bartender or other employee allows someone to drink with an identification card that later proves false. The law also allows sellers to hold ID cards for verification.

"And if there is no sale there is no liability," Pope added. "You always have the right to refuse to sell a beverage if you don't like the identification card."

"Don't be embarrassed to ask for an identification," said Jack Bradley, an enforcement officer for the county Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. "I've checked cards on people 35 years old."

Pope said he has advised his restaurant and lounge clients to train waiters, waitresses and bartenders in checking identification cards and watching drinking customers.

"If you don't have good help, you'll get caught," Bradley said. "The money you make selling liquor to a 20 year old won't be worth it if you lose your permits."

Bartenders also have responsibilities to other drinkers, Pope said.

"Even if you have good practices, you can get caught by the other statute of selling drinks to intoxicated persons," Pope said. "Even the common law says don't sell to a drunk. The law puts the onus on you."

Pope predicted that more restaurants and lounges will start offering to help drinking customers get home.

Reed Brown, a Waynesville lawyer, predicted that the law will have its greatest effect on traveling businessmen and tourists — some of the best seasonal customers for lounges and restaurants.

"A lot of people will have a bad taste in their mouths about the new law," he said.

"It will scare a lot of people away. I see some problems with handling the out-of-town person who does not understand the law and may get mad, say the wrong thing and have to spend the night in jail for contempt of (magistrate's) court."

The law allows a magistrate to revoke a driver's license if the driver refuses a Breathalyzer test or if he has a 0.10 alcohol concentration as measured by the tester.

At BB&T, The Quality Comes Through.

When more and more banks seem preoccupied by the idea of crossing state lines, we thought you might appreciate hearing from a bank that calls North Carolina home and not just home base.

Our overriding interest is in delivering the highest quality financial services to the people in North Carolina in ways that offer the best overall value.

A case in point is UVEST[®] Brokerage Services. UVEST was designed as a way for our customers to save up to 70% in brokerage commissions.

With toll free service, UVEST provides up-to-the-minute market information as well as prompt execution of trades.

But it's what UVEST doesn't have that's really impressive.

UVEST commissions are up to 70% lower than those of most brokerage houses. And since the brokers receive no commissions, you'll find you're never under any pressure to buy anything.

UVEST is available by itself or as a part of a much more comprehensive personal financial plan we call OMNI BANKING.

OMNI BANKING supplies a wide range of financial services designed to facilitate, not only your day-to-day banking, but also your long-term financial planning.

Every element of OMNI BANKING is of the highest quality. You receive, for example, interest-earning checking with checks designed to identify you as a special customer.

You have access to a pre-arranged line of credit at prime rate for your personal use. We even provide a special personal financial review to assist you in analyzing your financial objectives and devising strategies to meet them.

And that's just a sampling. At BB&T, we realize that the quality of the service is inseparable from the quality of the person who renders it.

That's why we place such importance on the attitude of our people. It's an attitude that's reflected, for example, in our deeper commitment to understanding the full range of your long-term financial needs.

It becomes apparent, too, in our responsiveness to your requests. Because we know that, in today's fast changing world, your requirements will become ever more varied and complex in the future.

Finally, the BB&T attitude is evident in the kinds of insight we can provide. Because we realize that, the more insight we can provide for you, the more rewarding the relationship will be for both of us.

Come to BB&T. And discover how the quality comes through in everything we do.

Rabies Killed Rare Red Panda

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rabies killed a rare red panda at the National Zoological Park in Washington but has not harmed Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling, the giant pandas given to the United States by China, a pathologist says.

Dr. Richard Montali told an international symposium Monday the red panda died Oct. 23, a victim of a rabies outbreak reaching epidemic proportions in the mid-Atlantic states. Thirteen raccoons that wandered into the zoo since May also had the disease, Montali said.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.75 cents. The final weighted average was 50.76 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market tone for next week's trading is steady to firm, and the live supply is moderate, in instances light, for a good demand. Average weights are desirable, instances heavy. Estimated slaughter Tuesday in North Carolina was 1,764,000 head, compared to 1,773,000 last Tuesday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was steady. Supplies adequate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter was 30 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were mostly lower in early trading today amid Wall Street's concern that interest rates could soon climb.

Auto, financial and some oil issues were among the declines, while mining and forest-products stocks advanced.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 22.46 points over the past three sessions, managed a 1.32-point gain, to 1,216.16, after an hour of trading today.

But losers held a 7-5 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index slipped 0.07 to 93.39.

Big Board volume totaled 29.63 million shares at noon EST, against 29.28 million at that hour Monday. Turnover was expected to remain moderate given the election-day closings of many banks and the U.S. government securities market.

BankAmerica, off 1/8 to 18 1/2, topped the NYSE's active list. A 780,000-share block traded at 18 1/2.

Among other active issues, American Telephone & Telegraph rose 1/8 to 62 1/2, General Motors lost 1/4 to 74 1/2 and

School Bd. Hears Views At Session

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City School Board held a public hearing Monday night at Agnes Fullilove School to hear public opinion on whether the school, which houses a multifaceted alternative program for grades 6-12, should be closed.

It was pointed out that the closing is being considered because it seems likely that costly major repairs will have to be made if it is to be kept open next year. Several alternate plans have been studied for continuation of the alternative program now housed there, including moving it to Rose High School and Aycock Junior High Schools (days and afternoons and evenings — separate alternatives), dividing it up by grade and housing it at different schools, moving it to a school now housing a K-3 program, combining it with the now-defunct Pitt Community College Extended Day Program, housing it in a rented building, and leaving it at the present site until the pending merger of city and county school systems is completed.

Superintendent Delma Blinson said school representatives have met with city officials to see what repairs and improvements absolutely must be done if the building is to be used another year. He said he expects to hear the answer from city officials within the next two weeks.

Several citizens, including representatives of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference — Mary Williams and Bennie Rountree — and Greenville Preservation Association members Richard and Louise Duncan, expressed hope that the program can be left at the present site. One citizen complained that those attending the meeting were not better made aware of the pros and cons of each of the alternatives being considered. He said written material should have been provided each for this purpose.

In other action, the board: •Approved minor changes in the schools' personnel health examination policy. •Gave permission for Rose High School students going to Europe during spring vacation to have excused absences for three school days.

•Approved a budget amendment pertaining to the school food service fund.

•Approved the awarding of certificates of attendance to foreign students at Rose High School who complete a course of study here without qualifying for graduation.

•Noted that the city schools LIVE project, a house in the Cambridge subdivision, will be sold to the highest bidder at noon Nov. 23.

•Heard that the administration has requested that the Greenville Traffic Commission consider more no-parking areas on the south side of Fleming Street adjacent to Sadie Sauter School so that loading and unloading of children can be better monitored.

•Was advised of the establishment of a system-wide emergency planning committee.

During executive session, the board acted on three elections, two maternity leaves, one retirement and one resignation.

Rose's Finishes Its Remodeling

Rose's of Pitt Plaza, following the completion of storewide interior remodeling, will kick-off "grand reopening" activities Wednesday morning with a ribbon cutting.

Bill Jones, manager, said various city and county officials have been invited to be on hand for the ceremonies. He said the reopening activities will continue through Saturday.

Jones said the East Carolina cheerleaders will be at the store Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Hot air balloon rides will be offered in the lot behind the business Saturday from 2-5 p.m.

The manager said the interior work at Rose's, which included carpeting, repainting and the redesigning, expansion and relocation of merchandise layouts, was done with emphasis on "making shopping easier." He said the installment of new eight-foot wide aisles, free of display tables or other merchandise, was a key addition.

New carpet has been installed in all wearable departments, according to Jones, involving about one third of the store's 47,750 square feet.

Also undergoing refurbishing was the cafeteria area with ceiling fans installed, exposed rafters added, booths recovered and painting aimed at complementing the store's new earth tone color scheme.

Checkout areas at the front and rear of the store and the main entrance service desk were also changed.

The store remained open throughout the remodeling schedule, Jones noted.

Flunked Diet, But Fattened Treasury

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Local folks flunked a community-wide test of the Pritikin reducing diet, but in the process they helped fatten the town treasury as tourists poured in to find out what's so irresistible about Natchitoches cooking.

"I wish they'd do it all over again," says James Lasoyne, who watched sales of his Natchitoches meat pies soar as word spread about the town that couldn't — or wouldn't — shed pounds.

Two years ago, in "Project Life," the federal government asked Natchitoches to adopt the Pritikin diet — forgoing salt, sugar and fats in return for better health.

Results of the study were never released, but most residents of Natchitoches, where the cuisine combines the best of the Southern and Cajun styles, admitted they simply couldn't stomach the diet and quickly abandoned it.

That, according to local tax records, brought a record number of tourists eager to sample the cuisine that led to the diet's well-publicized downfall.

It's not the most attractive image, says city tourism director Betty Jones, adding, "We'd rather be known as the oldest settlement in the Louisiana Purchase than the town that couldn't keep a diet."

But Lasoyne, who also makes the popular Cane River creme pie, has had to add a third dining room to his restaurant and is planning a fourth.

Given Chance For New Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A state appeals court will hear a motion for a new trial for Jean Harris, whose lawyer says she was psychotic, addicted to amphetamines and incompetent to stand trial when she was convicted of murdering Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower.

Justice Milton Mollen of the state court's Appellate Division granted permission Monday for Mrs. Harris to appeal Westchester County Court Judge Aldo Nastasi's denial of a new trial.

Illegal Alien Value Cited

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A university study shows that illegal aliens contribute more revenue to the state than Texas provides in public services to them.

However, the report prepared by the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas says urban areas lose money when the public services provided to illegal aliens are compared to revenues from those persons.

The "Use of Public Services by Undocumented Aliens in Texas" report, released Monday, found that education is the most costly service for illegal aliens at both the state and local levels and that most illegal aliens pay for their health services.

"When costs and revenues are disaggregated (broken down) by state and local levels, our conclusion is that local governments bear the brunt of the cost burden and the state receives the bulk of the revenues."

In comparing revenues and costs, the study looked at two levels — the state and the six urban areas of Austin, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, El Paso and the Rio Grande Valley centering on McAllen.

State and local agencies provided data about public services of illegal aliens and in addition, 253 illegal aliens were interviewed in Spanish. The total sample population was 868.

The report shows the state spending $97 million in fiscal 1982 and the six localities spending $132 million, for a total of $132 million.

The state received $157 million in revenue from aliens while the six localities got $5 million, for a total of $162 million.

The report said the complexity of the problem is that a large percentage of households include both legal and illegal residents.

"Attempts to deny services to undocumented persons are likely to exclude numerous legal residents as well," the report said.

Skeleton Is Not Victim

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — Charred bones found in a fire-gutted car were not those of the man who leased the auto, but of a 100-year-old display skeleton from a medical warehouse.

Michael Ernest Haynes, 32, of Lake Bowen, S.C., who rented the car, is probably still alive and is wanted for questioning, said Rutherford County Sheriff Damon Huskey.

Huskey confirmed Monday the state medical examiner had determined Haynes did not burn up in the fire and that the bones were like those used for medical school anatomy lessons.

Huskey said the fire looked "like an insurance thing to me."

"The skeleton was put in that car with some identification from him (Haynes). It was pushed off the cliff and the car was set afire," he said.

An FBI agent notified Huskey on Monday that the bones have been traced to a medical supply house in Chicago. Huskey said Haynes, who is employed by a chain of fitness centers, apparently purchased the bones through a medical student in Spartanburg, S.C.

The burned car, leased Sept. 9 in Spartanburg, was found Wednesday down an embankment near Rutherfordton.

A key, a necklace, a Masonic belt buckle and Masonic ring believed to be Haynes' were found in the ashes with the charred bones.

McNorton Intercepts Giants

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Bruce McNorton, the Detroit Lions' second-year right cornerback out of tiny Georgetown College, earned the nickname "Chili" in training camp — but he also learned how to play one of the most demanding positions in professional football.

Monday night, McNorton put those lessons to work, coming up with two of the Lions' three interceptions as Detroit earned a 15-9 National Football League victory over the New York Giants.

"During training camp, the defensive backs had to put a dollar in the chili fund if you missed a ball at practice and I missed so many that the other guys said I was paying for the whole chili party we were planning," explained McNorton, who earned one of three game balls. "So, they started calling me 'Chili' and it stuck."

McNorton also explained that balls began sticking to his hands after he started wearing gloves four weeks ago.

The victory was the fourth in five games for the Lions who lost four of their first five. Their 5-5 record tied the Lions with Green Bay for second place in the NFC Central Division — one game behind the Minnesota Vikings.

Running back Billy Sims, who was the game's leading rusher with 86 yards and the only touchdown of the contest on 14 carries, earned the second Detroit game ball. Robbie Martin, whose 51-yard kickoff return set up Sims' TD, got the other.

"It wasn't pretty," Detroit Coach Monte Clark said. "In fact, it was kind of ugly. But, it was a win and got us back to the 500 mark."

"It wouldn't have been possible without Bruce McNorton. He did a fantastic job of coming up with those interceptions. I felt he personally won the game for us."

McNorton's interceptions both came in the fourth quarter as the Giants tried in vain to post their first victory in six games.

"I thought we ran the ball well, but we couldn't get the passing game going," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said. "I have no rating for Scott Brunner's quarterback performance tonight."

"We had a couple of real good drives on them, but we had trouble putting the ball in the end zone. We just made a couple of critical errors that cost us points."

All of the Giants scoring came on field goals by rookie Ali Haji-Sheikh who boomed kicks of 27, 56 and 35 yards. Haji-Sheikh is the first player in NFL history to boot two field goals of at least 56 yards in one season.

Still, it was little solace as the Giants fell to 2-7-1, last in the NFC East.

Ingram Approaching ECU Offensive Marks

East Carolina quarterback Kevin Ingram is approaching a new Pirate single season total offense record.

The Philadelphia senior has rushed and passed for a total of 1,422 yards this season and needs only 292 more to draw even with record-holder Leander Green. Green compiled 1,714 yards in 1979 to establish the current mark.

Ingram would need to average only 146 yards a game over the next two contests to draw even with Green, and he's averaged 158 yards a contest so far this year.

Ingram moved from ninth to seventh place in the Top Ten season total offense for a Pirate and needs only 62 yards to move up to sixth. His 1,041 yards in passing for the year have moved him from eighth to fifth this week and he needs just 41 more to move to fourth.

In single season completions, Ingram moved from sixth to fourth and needs just four to move to third. He has 78 completions on the year.

In career total offense, Ingram has 2,725 yards, ninth on the Top Ten list. He needs just five more to advance. In career passing yards, he is fifth and needs 222 yards to move into fourth place. He has 1,876 yards. His 135 completions have moved him to fifth on the list with 18 more needed for number four.

Kicker Jeff Heath, who has gone three games now without a field goal, still needs two more to tie the career record of 26. His 49 points for the year leave him 10 away from breaking into the single season Top Ten, while his 124 career points left him just eight away from the tenth spot.

Fullback Earnest Byner has 645 rushing yards on the season and needs 185 to break into the top ten. His career total of 1,735 has taken over tenth place and he needs just 19 more to move to 9th.

Stefon Adams is moving in on Top Ten listing in both season and career records. He has 19 catches and needs five to break into the Top Ten. His 261 career reception yards leaves him 172 short of the Top Ten, while his 33 career catches leave him just eight short to the Top Ten.

Norwood Vann currently has 15 catches on the season and could break into the Top Ten with nine more catches, depending on Adams' progress. Vann's 49 career catches have moved him to seventh place and he needs only two more to take over sixth. His 798 yards for a career in receiving make him eighth and he needs 27 to move to seventh.

Ricky Nichols currently has 36 career catches and needs five to take over tenth place. His 657 yards in receptions leaves him 46 short of the Top Ten.

One career record has already been set by a Pirate. Safety Clint Harris' 360 yards in pass interception returns broke the old record of 275 set by Reggie Pinkney from 1973-76.

The Pirates close out their home season Saturday against William & Mary, then travel to Southern Mississippi the following week in the season finale.

Johnson Wins Grid Contest

Margie M. Johnson of 503-B Battle St., Greenville, is the winner of this past week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Johnson correctly picked the winners in 25 of the 32 games listed in last Tuesday's contest section. Her victory, however, comes through her point total guess with a guess of 80. The actual total points scored by both teams in any one of the contest games was 101.

Bobby Jones of 217 Marshall Ave., Williamston, placed second, also correctly picking the winners in 25 games. His point total guess, however, was 78, two further off the total.

The final contest in the 1983 series appears in today's paper.

Re-Entry Draft Losing Stature

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1983 free-agent re-entry draft may have signaled the end to wholesale movement of players in what had become baseball's most lucrative open market.

The major league's 26 teams Monday went through the formality of a round-by-round draft, which really is of little significance since any player may be picked any number of times by any team.

Still, 29 of the 45 free agents were picked by less than four teams, meaning they have been cut loose to negotiate with any club they want, if any wants them.

"As far as a player is concerned, they may now see some danger in going for the re-entry draft," Al Campanis, Los Angeles Dodgers vice president, said. "People are going more for their own farm systems. Some players in the future who aren't outstanding might think twice about becoming free agents."

The Dodgers, who traditionally have eschewed the draft, were not alone in thinking this way. Even the New York Yankees, rebuilt in the 1970s through free agency, chose only one player in the draft, Darrell Evans of the San Francisco Giants.

The busiest drafter was the Texas Rangers, who picked 13 players. Seattle took 12, Toronto 11 and Pittsburgh 10. But 13 clubs, half of those in the major leagues, selected five or fewer players.

"We came here with the intent of drafting only one player," Yankees General Manager Murray Cook said. "The Baltimore Orioles had a lot to do with this. When they won the American League pennant this year, it had a profound effect on the approach of a lot of teams."

"They're going more with their farm systems and away from free agency," Cook said.

Evans was the No. 1 pick in the draft, selected by 17 teams. The next two most popular players were relief pitchers Kent Tekulve of Pittsburgh, who was selected 12 times, and Rich Gossage of the Yankees, who was picked by 11 teams.

Two players, pitcher Dan Schatzeder of Montreal and first baseman-outfielder Dennis Walling of Houston, were chosen by eight teams. Six players — pitchers Jerry Kosman of the Chicago White Sox, Frank LaCorte of Houston, Larry Sorensen of Cleveland and Milt Wilcox of Detroit; outfielder Oscar Gamble of the Yankees, and utilityman Derrel Thomas of Los Angeles — were chosen by seven teams.

But several of the big-name free agents received little or no attention in the draft, which was completed in 18 rounds. Rod Carew of the California Angels, a seven-time AL batting champion who hit .339 in 1983, was not chosen at all. Manny Trillo of Montreal, a second baseman,

W&M Coach Set To Speak

William and Mary basketball coach Barry Parkhill, former All-Atlantic Coast Conference forward at Virginia, will be the guest speaker of the Greenville Sports Club Wednesday at noon at the Ramada Inn.

Parkhill is in his first year as head coach of the Indians after succeeding his brother, Bruce, who is now the coach at Penn State University.

Hooker Leads Indians Past Aurora, 21-20

AURORA — Roy Hooker rushed for 184 yards including a four yard touchdown in the fourth quarter to lead Chocowinity to a 21-20 victory over Aurora in the final game of the 1983 Tobacco Belt I-A Conference football race.

Hooker scored with 8:05 left in the game to put the Indians ahead to stay. He finished the season with 1,325 yards rushing.

Aurora made a final run at the Indians with a 73-yard touchdown pass from Holmes to Danny Ephraim with 6:20 on the clock. But the run for the point-after conversion failed, and Chocowinity held on for the victory.

Chocowinity finished the season 2-7-1 overall while 2-5 in the conference. Aurora slipped to 1-9 on the year with a 1-6 mark against league opposition.

Chocowinity got on the board first with a 39-yard TD pass from Victor Baluis to Jamie Stokes with six minutes left in the opening period. But Chocowinity, went ahead to stay on a nine-yard run by Todd McMillan with 2:30 remaining in the first half.

Top Four Hold Poll Slots

By The Associated Press

Nebraska, Texas, Auburn and Georgia held on to the top four spots in the Associated Press college football poll today, while Illinois moved ahead of Miami into fifth place and traditional powers Oklahoma and Notre Dame fell out of the Top Twenty and were replaced by Clemson and Pitt.

Nebraska, which routed Iowa State 72-29, received 58 of 60 first-place votes and 1,198 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Texas, a 9-3 winner over Houston, received the other two first-place ballots and 1,140 points.

Last week, with 59 voters participating, Nebraska led Texas 57-2 in first-place votes and 1,178-1,123 in points.

Auburn defeated Maryland 35-23 and remained in third place with 1,063 points — the losers dropped from seventh to 11th — and Georgia's 10-9 squeaker over Florida kept the Bulldogs fourth with 999 points, while pushing Florida from ninth to 14th. Auburn visits Georgia on Saturday.

However, Illinois' 50-23 victory over Minnesota boosted the Illini from sixth to fifth with 975 points, while Miami's 12-7 triumph over East Carolina on a touchdown with 1:04 remaining dropped the Hurricanes from fifth to sixth with 951 points.

Southern Methodist, a 20-6 winner over Rice, climbed from eighth to seventh with 815 points. Michigan trounced Purdue 42-10 and jumped from 13th to ninth with 642 points. Ohio State pounded Indiana 56-17 and vaulted from 14th to 10th with 557 points. The Buckeyes replaced North Carolina, which lost to Clemson 16-3 and fell from 10th to 19th.

The Second Ten consists of Maryland, Iowa, Boston College, Florida, West Virginia, Alabama, Clemson, Washington, North Carolina and Pitt.

Last week, it was Oklahoma, BYU, Michigan, Ohio State, Iowa, Boston College, West Virginia, Notre Dame, Alabama and Washington.

However, Oklahoma and Notre Dame both suffered their third setbacks of the season — Oklahoma losing to Missouri 10-0 and Notre Dame bowing to Pitt 21-16. It was Pitt's fifth consecutive triumph and seventh in nine games and earned the Panthers a Top Twenty ranking for the first time in seven weeks. Clemson, 7-1-1, made the rankings for the first time this season.

Auburn Takes Over Reflector Poll Lead

Pat Dye's Auburn University, with its victory over Maryland Saturday moved ahead of Nebraska for the number one position in the Daily Reflector Computer Rankings.

Auburn is 8-1 on the year, having lost only to Texas early in the season. By its own victories over a strong schedule, Auburn has put together a total of 502 points to lead Nebraska, 10-0, by 12 points. The Cornhuskers, ranked first on both of the wire-service polls, have 488 points.

The rankings measurers success against strength of schedule. Six points are awarded for each victory a team gets, with four additional points awarded for each win its victim has. An additional two points are then awarded for each game the second level team has won. Where ties occur points are divided equally, 3-2-1.

Third place is taken this week by Illinois, which was tied with Nebraska last week for first place. The Fighting Illini have 424 points on the year. Texas comes fourth with 420, followed by Georgia, with 414.

East Carolina's opponent of the past weekend, Miami of Florida, is tied with West Virginia for sixth place with 390 points, while Brigham Young is eighth at 384. Maryland, with 243 and Missouri, an earlier Pirate victim, with 334, round out the top ten.

The second ten consists of Iowa, Michigan, Clemson, Pittsburgh, Florida, Ohio State, Baylor, Kentucky, Washington and Arizona. East Carolina, unable to pick up points with a victory this weekend, slid to 53rd place in the standings with 154 points, tied with Arkansas.

Duran's 'Walkaway' Still Haunts Him; Worries Hagler

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Three years have passed since Roberto Duran turned his back and walked away from Sugar Ray Leonard, losing the welterweight championship under the disgrace of "No Mas." Marvelous Marvin Hagler believes the cloud of that tumultuous loss still hangs over the proud Panamanian.

And that, says Hagler, could spell trouble for Duran when he reaches for the middleweight title Thursday night against the bald brawler who has not lost a fight in more than seven years.

"He's got a lot of pride and a lot of pressure because of that thing that happened," Hagler said. "It could be bad because he could stand in there and take a beating. If it goes 15, he'll take a beating."

Hagler has been known to administer those before, and the warmup shirt he wore for four rounds of sparring Monday delivered the message: "Destruction And Destroy," it said on the front. "Don't Play With Him, Bust Him Up," was the advice on the back.

From Duran's standpoint, the battle of New Orleans, when he abandoned his title against Leonard, is ancient history. He has come miles from there, first discarded as a washed-up quitter, and then reaching into a reservoir of determination to fight his way back to another title.

"I am redeemed," he said after his workmanlike wipeouts of Pipino Cuevas last January and Davey Moore for the World Boxing Association junior middleweight crown last June. That gave Duran his third championship — he earlier owned both the lightweight and welterweight crowns — and if he conquers Hagler he will become the first man in boxing history to win four titles.

It is no small incentive.

Old friend Luis Spada, who stayed with Duran when others thought he was through, guided him through those comeback bouts and is convinced that his man is in the best shape of his career for Hagler. Spada also sees no problem moving up in weight class to the 160-pound division.

"I am sure Roberto is in shape and when he is in shape, he can beat anybody from the middleweight division down," said Spada.

The victories over Cuevas and Moore positioned Duran for this $20 million bonanza in the outdoor stadium constructed in the parking lot at Caesars Palace. And nobody is happier about that than Hagler, who has been hungering for that big payday but never had anybody in the other corner who could help him produce it.

Until now.

Hagler's purse is a guaranteed $5 million and Duran will get $4 million. When percentages from other income are added, the package could balloon to a combined $15 million. That's why there is a certain respect in his voice when Hagler talks about Duran.

"Duran is gutsy," he said. "He'll fight anybody. And he has an edge because he's been through this (the big fight buildup) before."

Hagler also is aware of Duran's reputation and the shape Moore's eye was in after being prodded with a thumb early in their fight.

"Sure, I think he's dirty," Hagler said. "And he'll get more dirty when he's in trouble. But when I dump Duran, there will be no excuses."

Spada believes that each of the four losses in Duran's fabulous career have come because the fighter was not in shape. And Duran, who has sparred nearly 250 rounds and run 300 miles for this fight, pledges that will not be a problem on Thursday night.

"I think I trained harder for this fight than for any fight of my life, because I am going for the fourth title and most people say Marvin Hagler is invincible."

That is understandable. Hagler has won 31 fights since 1976 with only a draw in a title fight against champion Vito Antuoferno Nov. 30, 1979 marring the streak. He is convinced he won that fight, too, but all the draw did was delay his claiming the division crown for a year. Hagler won it by knocking out Alan Minter on Sept. 27, 1980 — barely two months before Duran's "No Mas" loss to Leonard.

Since then, these fighters have traveled different roads. Hagler with a string of seven defenses, all of them knockouts, and Duran riding a career roller coaster which has delivered him to the threshold of another championship.

All he has to do to win it is beat Hagler — no simple task.

In Title Bout

Marvelous Marvin Hagler, shown here in action during an earlier bout, places his World Middleweight title on the line Thursday night against former champion Roberto Duran. The fight will be shown locally over closed circuit TV at the Greenleaf.

Hagler Seen As Victor In Decision; KO Seen Unlikely

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Sugar Ray Leonard says "I wouldn't be shocked if Duran wins."

"Shock" would too strong a word to describe a victory by Roberto Duran over Marvelous Marvin Hagler Thursday night for the undisputed middleweight championship.

"Shock," that's what Duran did when he quit in the eighth round and lost the World Boxing Council welterweight championship to Leonard Nov. 25, 1980.

But it would be a surprise, at least to this writer, if the 32-year-old Duran beats Hagler and becomes the first man to win four titles.

Duran, a champion again after his junior middleweight title victory over Davey Moore, seems to be at peace with himself and ready for a big effort.

But this is the showcase, big-money fight the 29-year-old Hagler has long been looking for — the kind of fight, which, he had said, if he didn't get soon, he would retire.

"This is the fight I've been waiting for," said Hagler, who looks to be in peak mental as well as physical condition.

"If you're going to beat me, you're going to beat me at my best."

Hagler could win inside 10, but it's difficult to picture Roberto Duran being counted out.

My pick is Hagler by a unanimous 15-round decision.

Duran's chief strength could be in the area of emotion.

Most of Hagler's opponents in the champion's seven title defenses and many opponents before he won the title seemed to be in awe of him.

Duran is not awed by Hagler, and he is not thinking about looking good. He is thinking about winning. He sees himself as a man with a mission — a chance to make boxing history after his career apparently had ended in disgrace almost three years ago.

It was emotion that tipped the scales in Duran's favor when he narrowly outpointed a younger, faster, stronger Leonard to add the WBC 147-pound class title to the lightweight championship he held for most of the 1970s.

Duran finally has realized that he must maintain a semblance of good shape between fights if he is to train properly for a match. When he arrived here last week, he already was under the middleweight limit of 160 pounds.

Luis Spada, Duran's new manager, says he's no magician, but he has worked some magic in convincing Duran that if he takes care of himself between fights, he can beat anybody.

But, as mentioned before, Hagler will be emotionally high, too. He knows a loss would throw into question, fairly or not, his considerable achievements in the ring.

Emotion aside, Hagler holds major physical advantages, and he can match or surpass Duran in most areas of boxing.

The 5-foot-9½ Hagler has a two-inch height advantage and an edge of eight inches in reach over Duran.

Duran's plan is to use quickness and not to try to match strength with Hagler, who is a natural middleweight.

But Hagler is quick, too, with excellent foot speed. His hand speed might be a shade slower than Duran's, but his combinations are crisper and harder than the Panamanian's.

Duran is a better body puncher, but Hagler has the superior jab, especially when he fights left-handed, as he usually does, and jabs with the right. It is the punch that could control the fight.

Hagler also can handle pressure better than he is given credit for in some quarters.

It will be a good fight, and both men still will be champions when it's over.

Allison Moves Close To Win

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Allison has moved one step closer to winning his first NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National championship.

Allison placed third in Sunday's race at the Atlanta International Raceway, increasing his lead over second-place Darrell Waltrip by 64 points to 4524-4460.

Allison will now need only a 13th place finish in the season finale Winston Western 500, Nov. 20 at Riverside, Cal., International Raceway, to take the championship. For the last five years, Allison has been runnerup in the points chase.

However Waltrip, who finished ninth Sunday, has a history of come-from-behind victories. In 1981 and 1982, he overtook Allison to win the Winston Cup. This time last year, Waltrip held a 22-point lead over Allison and clinched the title by finishing third at Riverside.

In other Winston Cup standings, Bill Elliott is third with 4099 points; Richard Petty is fourth with 3903; and Terry Labonte is fifth with 3858.

Rounding out the top 10 are Harry Gant, 3720; Neil Bonnett, 3677; Ricky Rudd, 3636; Dale Earnhardt, 3567; and Tim Richmond, 3452.

Waltrip is the leading money winner in the Winston Cup circuit with $630,830. Allison is second with $597,850. Earnhardt has $388,266; Petty $380,410; Bonnett $360,990;

Steinbrenner's Father Passes On Monday

WESTLAKE, Ohio (AP) — Private family services were planned for Henry Steinbrenner, father of New York Yankees' principal owner George Steinbrenner. Steinbrenner, 79, died Monday at his Westlake home, near Cleveland. Cancer was diagnosed four years ago.

Steinbrenner was retired president and board chairman of Kinsman Transit Co., and represented the fourth generation of his family to become a major figure in Great Lakes shipping. He was president of the company from 1947 until 1963, and continued as board chairman and adviser until he retired in 1979.

Guided by Steinbrenner, Kinsman was one of the few independent fleets that prospered when the lakes shipping declined sharply in the 1960s. He was named as Great Lakes Man of the Year in 1968.

George Steinbrenner presently is board chairman of the family company, now Kinsman Lines Inc., and is board chairman of his own firm, American Ship Building Co., based in Tampa, Fla., in addition to being majority owner of the American League baseball team.

Chuck Noll, Despite Success, Hasn't Been Coach Of Year

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Chuck Noll has never been Coach of the Year.

Chuck Noll has four Super Bowl rings.

Call it a triumph of substance over style.

Style is two teams throwing the ball all over the field and running up final scores approximating high school basketball games.

Substance is winning.

The National Football League, ever mindful that pizzazz sells, spends each off-season looking for new and different ways to open up the offense.

And, each season, Noll finds new and different ways to shut it down.

His Pittsburgh Steelers might well have crumbled under the loss of Terry Bradshaw, their starting quarterback, and enough injuries to count on two hands.

But Noll and the Steelers have adapted. Their defense is vastly different than the Steel Curtain of the 1970s, yet almost as effective. Only one team in the American Conference has allowed fewer points this year.

Pittsburgh has become the winningest team in the AFC, owner of a six-game winning streak and a three-game lead over Cleveland in the Central Division with six games remaining.

Contrast that to Coach Don Coryell's San Diego Chargers and their Steel Sieve defense.

For years, the Chargers were survivors, not so much defeating the opposition as outlasting it. No playoff team scored more points or allowed more than the Chargers did in 1982 ... and in 1981 ... and in 1980 ...

And when they lost their quarterback, Dan Fouts, and a fistful of starters, their defense couldn't carry them through the lean games and they crumbled.

Only one team in the conference has allowed more points this year and the Chargers have lost four in a row and are 3-7 and last in the AFC West.

Only the NFL's success at achieving parity — nine of the conference's 14 teams are at .500 or within a game of it — is keeping San Diego in the running at all.

In the '70s, when the Steelers were labeled an NFL dynasty, the bulk of the defense from year to year was carried essentially by 11 players, with only an occasional substitution from time to time.

This year, Noll has 18 or 19 defensive players shutting in and out, sharing the playing time almost equally. With free safety Ron Johnson, nose tackle Gary Dunn and defensive end John Goodman among the missing at one time or another, the coach has managed to make the mix of youngsters like defensive end Keith Gary and veterans like linebacker Jack Lambert work.

"I think it's the attitude of the people who are playing the game that makes the difference," Noll said when asked to reflect on the similarity of the Steelers' and Chargers' injuries and the opposite directions of the two teams. "The guys believe that they can do it. We have guys that are looking for the opportunity to play. Sometimes an injury allows somebody to step in and play and then the other fellow doesn't get a chance to come back."

"We're still growing right now. What's happening is that a lot of people are getting experience because of those injuries and that's going to make us better in the long run."

Among the injured Chargers this year have been free safety Tim Fox, strong safeties Andre Young and Bob Gregor.

Wake Seeks To Rebound

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest will try to rebound from Saturday's loss to Duke when they face Georgia Tech in their season finale, but Demon Deacon football coach Al Groh said the Ramblin' Wreck's 2-7 record doesn't mean an easy conquest.

Georgia Tech head coach Bill Curry has "taken a very sound approach to his program," Groh said Monday in his weekly news conference.

"Something that is very apparent to me from watching their team play is that the direct, specific approach they use hasn't changed through the years," Groh said. "They haven't hopped from one system to another."

Groh said Wake Forest played "below our standard" in Saturday's 31-21 loss to Duke.

"Up until (Saturday), our team had progressed and was playing relatively well," he said. "I think we had reached a certain standard of performance that we were capable of, but Saturday we played below our standard."

Wake Forest blew a 21-7 lead early in the third period as Duke ensured the Demon Deacons of their 11th losing season in the last 12 years. Wake Forest is 4-6 overall and 1-4 in the ACC.

"There were no specific areas that broke down, just general overall poor play," Groh said. "There is no equation on turning a team around after a bad performance."

Re-Entry Draft...

was chosen once (Chicago White Sox), and only two clubs each picked catcher Ted Simmons of Milwaukee (Pittsburgh, San Francisco) and outfielder Dave Parker of Pittsburgh (Cincinnati, Seattle).

"Many of these players are leaving contracts that are awfully strong," Expos President John McHale said, "and if there's a great rush for these players, I would suppose they'd think they could get even more."

"Clubs all think somewhat alike when they say, 'Are these players playing at an important position and are they going to do that much for the club?' And perhaps they are reaching the same answer, 'no,'" McHale said.

The compensation required for rated players may also have played a part in reducing interest in them. Compensation for Type A players is an amateur draft choice and a professional player from a pool created specifically for that purpose. Type B players draw compensation of two amateur draft choices.

Tekulve and Wilcox were the only Type A players, all of whom were pitchers, to elicit much interest. Tom Underwood of Oakland was picked just once. Doug Bair of Detroit was selected twice and Dennis Lamp of the White Sox five times.

Likewise, the Type B players, Trillo and outfielder Ruppert Jones of San Diego, were unpopular. While Trillo was picked just once, Jones was picked by only three teams.

Campanis said some of these players might find themselves to be "real free agents. If I'm in that position, I think it would put a little fear into my heart."

And he said those players picked by less than four clubs might not be getting any bargain by being able to deal with any team.

"That could mean there'll have to do a little solicitation, a little selling to even get a job."

Ignoring Cardinal Rule Shatters Two Lives

By BILL SCHULZ

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Aaron Hester was trying to rattle up the buck he'd seen opening day when a shotgun blast shattered his neck and two lives, his and that of the man who shot him.

Hester, his spinal cord damaged beyond repair, will spend the rest of his days in bed, paralyzed from the neck down, a respirator doing his breathing for him.

The young man who shot him ignored a cardinal rule of hunting safety and fired blind at a movement in the bushes. He is charged with aggravated assault and, if convicted, faces 10 years in prison.

Hester and his brother, Dennis, were hunting Oct. 23, recalled Jerry Hester, the third of Jack Hester's three sons.

"We heard the gunshot. I heard Dennis screaming my name. He came running through the woods, saying somebody had shot Aaron," Jerry said Thursday.

"My first reaction was revenge, of course," Jerry said. "My thought was, 'he better not be there.' Then I got ahold of myself. I knew I had to get to Aaron and help him."

"I felt his neck. He had a pulse. I could see he couldn't breathe and all I could see to do was give him CPR."

"He stayed conscious through the whole thing. He said, 'getting shot is so weird.'"

Jerry recalled running into the man who shot his brother. "The guy kept saying, 'I shot somebody. I shot somebody.' The guy went all to pieces."

The doctors credited Jerry with saving Aaron's life, said his mother, Fay.

Rattling up a buck, banging a set of antlers together, simulating a fight between two bucks to try to draw in a curious buck, is a highly successful hunting technique.

Aaron had hidden in bushes and was rattling antlers. He was not wearing a fluorescent orange safety vest. Jerry said as the Roswell family sat in the lobby of Atlanta's Shepherd Spinal Center.

One of the cardinal rules of hunting safety is "Don't shoot unless absolutely sure of your target and what is beyond it."

The law in most states, including Georgia, calls on hunters to wear fluorescent orange clothing to be more easily seen.

"Knowing whether a shot at game is safe — or whether it's not — is the most important judgment call a hunter faces each time he shoulders his gun," according to the National Shooting Sports Foundation, a leading advocate of hunter safety education.

"Always take whatever time is necessary to be sure that your intended target is fully and clearly visible. If you're not absolutely sure, don't shoot."

"I don't blame hunting," Jerry said. "It's not the gun. It's the man behind the gun. If it had been an auto accident, it wouldn't have been the car, it would have been the driver."

The man who shot Aaron was one of two brothers camped near the Hester's tent in Monroe County. Jerry said. "The one guy said last he shot three deer down in there, never saw them, never knew what they were until he went in and drug them out," Jerry said. "That should have tipped me off."

Now for 11 days, Mrs. Hester, one or more of her four children with her, has been at the hospital, visiting Aaron, hoping, praying. They said Aaron wanted the story told so maybe it might prevent another careless shooting.

"It's so strange," Jerry said. "Ten minutes before this happened, we were all sitting up in camp, joking, kidding Aaron about missing the buck he'd rattled up yesterday. He's just 16. To think he'll spend the rest of his life like that because of one stupid incident."

For Mrs. Hester, the worst moment of the first 11 days came at home, after Aaron had been flown from Macon to Atlanta for specialized treatment.

"I went home that night and plugged the bathroom heater. I like to get it warm for him for when he gets up to take his bath. I always call him to tell him to get up for school."

"Then I realized he would never get up."

Duke Defense Worrisome

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Duke's ability to come back and its recent defensive resurgence may give North Carolina State trouble Thursday night. Wolfpack coach Tom Reed says.

"I see a dramatic change," he said Monday at his weekly news conference. "At this point, Duke has given up 248 yards total offense to Georgia Tech and Wake Forest."

"The other dimension this team has is that they can come back and win. You can't put that on the stat sheet. That comes from inside."

Reed is also impressed with Duke tailback Mike Grayson, who leads the conference in receptions.

"Grayson is a complete football player. He is the most dangerous man with the football under his arm in the conference," Reed said. "He's just tough."

Duke, 2-7 and 2-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, also may have an edge over N.C. State's 3-6, 1-3 team in defensive lines, Reed said, adding that he does not want to get into a scoring battle.

"I don't think we want to do that," he said. "I don't think we'll have any problems with Duke in that they won't try to ram it down our throats. But if we try to get into a scoring battle with Duke, we're going to have serious trouble."

The game, which is the first night contest ever at Wallace Wade Stadium, will be televised nationally by WTBS of Atlanta. It will be the fourth time N.C. State has appeared on television this season. The Wolfpack has lost the three previous meetings.

No Closer To Agreement

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After their second negotiating session, the referees and the National Basketball Association reportedly are no closer to a final contract agreement than they were when their talks began.

Some minor progress was made Monday at a meeting of less than three hours between NBA officials and representatives of the National Association of Basketball Referees.

Attorney Richie Phillips, representing the union, commented after the session. "I don't feel we're close at all."

Russ Granik, general counsel for the NBA agreed. No new talks were scheduled.

The NABR contract expired Sept. 1, and the referees have been idle since training camps opened. They've been picketing arenas around the league.

The referees describe the dispute as a lockout, claiming they have offered to return to the job. The NBA, however, said it would allow them back only if they promised not to strike. They refused.

They agreed Monday on two issues, life insurance and disability.

"We increased the life insurance from $50,000 to $100,000 (per man) and the disability from $2,000 to $3,000 per month maximum," Granik said.

On the major issue, salaries,

Granik said the NBA agreed to increase the salaries of officials with 15 years or more of service from $65,000 to $71,500 in the first year of a three-year agreement. Under the league's offer, those officials would get $74,500 in the second year and $78,000 in the third.

The union is asking $90,000, $92,500 and $95,000 over the same period.

The NBA also proposed that expenses be adjusted according to the cost of living index, which would mean $1,175 compared to $2,000 sought by the NABR.

Phillips said the expenses offer amounted to only $57 per day and noted that baseball umpires get $104 for the same expenses.

The NBA also backed off its demand that referees use tourist-class air fares on all trips less than 3½ hours.

Phillips said that last year the cutoff on plane fares was two hours.

The league also boosted its previous offer of first-round playoff pay from $900 to $1,200 and increased the fees slightly over the later rounds.

Granik said the playoff pool for referees would be increased from $150,000 to $200,000 under this proposal.

On another major issue, the right to dismiss officials, the union wants a panel to decide whether or not a referee is doing a competent job.

The United States Air Force Tactical Air Command Band from Langley Air Force Base, Virginia, is known throughout the East for its versatility, quality, and showmanship.

Performing musical selections ranging from traditional through the musical spectrum to contemporary, light "pop" music, and the latest in Broadway shows and novelties, the concert band can arrange its programs to suit the age and cultural preference of its audiences.

In addition to performing for such dignitaries as the President, governors, United State Senators, heads of state and military leaders, the band performs annually for thousands, bridging the "generation gap" with the universal language of music. Members of the band also assist the music educators throughout the East by conducting music clinics consisting of both individual and group presentations in all phases of band activities.

Because of the rigid entrance requirements for Air Force bandsmen, the Tactical Air Command Band is comprised of some of the most outstanding musicians in the nation, attesting to the continuous high performance level of this most outstanding musical organization.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION: The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

CRYPTOQUIP 11-8

NXEEM NFJHRK 'N RJNNXF XN

LKYEEM YUNJLUXHR.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — SMART OCTOPUS ENLISTED AND ASKED, 'COULD I TAKE UP ARMS?' Today's Cryptiquip clue: N equals S.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Heifetz Asserts He Quit Class

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Violin virtuoso Jascha Heifetz says "I didn't resign. I quit" in a dispute over his master classes at the University of Southern California.

Earlier this year the 82-year-old Heifetz sued the university for allegedly renegeing on promises to fund the program, in which he coached gifted musicians.

CONFLICT — Fred Rogers has taped a series of shows called "Conflict" for his children's television show "Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood" seen on public television stations. The five half-hour shows were taped during the summer, but Rogers said the recent events in Grenada and the deaths of U.S. servicemen in Lebanon give the series even more meaning. (AP Laserphoto)

They Watch Wall Street Week

By JULIANNE HASTINGS
UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — When "Wall Street Week" host Louis Rukeyser speaks about the economy, people actually listen — and many even understand!

Rukeyser has a knack for casting out the mumbo jumbo and breathing fresh life into a topic most Americans considered the eerie domain of gray-faced men in gray suits who lumber through the shadows of a gray canyon called Wall Street.

His program, 13 years old Nov. 20, is one of the most widely watched public service series on PBS, something almost unthinkable when it was launched for a 30-week season on the 30-station Eastern Educational network.

"Not all 30 took it,"

Rukeyser said in an interview. "Even small public television stations, at that point, had the attitude — as some program managers put it — 'Who's going to watch it — two rich widows and one tycoon somewhere?'"

But right from the start the audiences were surprising, Rukeyser said. Some skeptics said it was because the market was doing better in the early 1970s. Then the market took a plunge and they said it was because the show provided a sort of group therapy. Then there were two or three boring years for the financial market and still the audience grew.

"Now they say it's because the market's doing better," Rukeyser said. "That's a lot of hokey. If you look at the audience level for 'Wall Street Week,' it's been going up steadily over the years and it has nothing to do with the market.

"We now have over 10 million viewers and millions of those have never owned a share of stock."

All of those hammy puns that some viewer like to refer to as "Louisms" are off the cuff. They also crop up in his lectures and are quite evident in his just-published book, "What's Ahead for the Economy?"

Such as the physical ailment that afflicts almost every Congressman: "... the first finger of his right hand was about one quarter normal size — from having been held wet in the wind for so many years."

Rukeyser commutes to Baltimore from his Connecticut home Friday afternoon to do the show and starts writing at 5 p.m., an hour after the market closes. It takes about two hours to write the opening commentary and the introduction for the guest.

"Most of the rest is entirely spontaneous," he said. "The only exception is the viewer questions." Those are picked at the end of each show and given to the panelists early in the week to research for the next show.

"The reasons for violating the spontaneity rule on that are reasonably obvious," Rukeyser chuckled. "First, if we didn't give them the questions they're asked, they might not know the answer. Second, even though they didn't know the answer, they might respond."

"And third, even if they did know the answer, you'd probably get a long-winded and diffuse answer when what you want is 30 seconds of conciseness."

Rukeyser did not always cover economics, although it runs in his family.

"My father (Merryle) was a boy wonder of financial journalism," he said. "He was financial editor of the old New York Tribune when he was 23 in 1920." (The former syndicated columnist, who will be 87 in January, views both "Wall Street Week" and the repeat each week, Rukeyser said.)

Rukeyser studied economics at Princeton but when he graduated, "I didn't want to follow in daddy's footsteps."

"I was a political correspondent and a foreign correspondent for more than 10 years, but it's like the old story, you might as well take the pea soup when they first offer it to you, because wherever I went in the world, I kept finding that the worst covered story was invariably economics."

"So I found myself covering more and more economic stories. There's no way you can cover stories like Britain and India without understanding the economics."

"If you didn't understand the economics, you didn't know what was happening in those places."

In 1968, after serving as London bureau chief for ABC News, Rukeyser came home and invented the job of economic commentator on television. He stayed in that post for five years, the last two of them working both at PBS and ABC.

Rukeyser said he has had offers from the commercial networks since getting "Wall Street Week" off the ground. But there are advantages to public service TV he isn't interested in giving up.

The Friday night time slot is one.

"That's exactly when it belongs on," Rukeyser said. "Commercial networks, while they frequently come to me with flattering offers, aren't going to put that show on at 8:30 Eastern time Friday, which in my judgment is just where it belongs — you're 18 hours ahead of the Sunday newspapers and you're in a position to sum up the end of the week."

Lawyer Fights 'Alabama' Ruling

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The singing group Alabama has been told it should pay $1.7 million in a contract dispute, but a lawyer for the group says he'll file "numerous objections" to the finding.

"There is no way Alabama would have made that much money" if it had stayed with the booking agency called the International House of Talent, said lawyer Malcolm Mimms Jr. in response to the assessment filed Friday by Davidson County Clerk Christian Norris, the master assigned to the case by a judge.

Mimms said the assessment against his clients, two-time winners of the Country Music Association's entertainer of the year award, is "completely wrong."

Chancellor C. Allen High ruled in April that Alabama breached its contract with International House of Talent when it permitted Dale Morris and Associates to take over its bookings. Jack Norman Jr., a lawyer for IHT, said he was pleased with the assessment.

Alabama's hits include "Close Enough to Perfect," "Take Me Down," "Mountain Music" and "Love in the First Degree."

Crosby Party Decision Soon

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Kathryn Crosby says she'll decide by Friday where and when she'll put on a big bash "for all of Bing's friends."

Mrs. Crosby had planned the party over the next 11 days in the three-story mansion she and the late crooner shared, but because there was a commercial aspect to the affair, the Hillsborough town officials in this exclusive suburb south of San Francisco blocked it. Mrs. Crosby planned to use the open house to promote a drapery and rug cleaning company.

She said the details will be worked out by week's end, noting that a problem is trying to find a place big enough.

In Line Again To Be Owner

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Wayne Newton is in line to become owner of the Aladdin Hotel — again.

Attorneys involved in the complicated sale said Monday the papers have been signed and all that's needed now is the approval of state gaming officials.

Newton, 41, and Ed Torres, who gave Newton his first job in Las Vegas in 1957, became partners in the resort when they bought the hotel for $85 million in October of 1980. The partnership lasted 21 months, with the pair splitting in July 1982 over what Newton called business differences.

Attorney Mike Sloan declines to disclose details of the sale, but previous reports have said it tops $70 million.

Newton is not expected to actually take over the Strip property until after the first of the year.

Celestial Birthday

Today is Edmund Halley's birthday. Halley is best known for his accurate prediction that the comet of 1682 would return in 1758. The comet was named in his honor. At least 27 appearances of Halley's Comet have been recorded through history. In 1066, it was regarded as an omen after King Harold died that year at Hastings. In 1910, people sealed their windows to protect themselves from supposed poisons in the comet's tail. As recently as 1979, one astronomer blamed comets for diseases such as influenza.

DO YOU KNOW — When is Halley's Comet due to cross Earth's orbit?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Maryland has the most women in Congress.

Can Prepare For Spring Now

Farmers can prepare now for the spring rains and winds that could wash topsoil away, according to the Soil Conservation Service, by keeping a cover crop of fields.

A cover crop of small grain or legumes builds up organic matter in the soil, say SCS officials, that helps the soil work better and holds moisture for next year's crop. Corn and soybeans can be planted directly into residue using no-till methods.

Farmers can plant a winter cover crop after harvesting tobacco and peanuts because of the small amount of residue left by these crops. Grain or legumes provide good cover and protection from erosion. If the winter cover is allowed to grow in the spring, it can be harvested for hay or grain with late soybeans or grain sorghum planted directly into the stubble.

A good ground cover protects fields from wind erosion and water erosion. By managing crop residues and planting winter cover crops, the topsoil is built up and improved with organic matter.

The City Control can designate certain areas of Greenville as controlled residential parking area. For more information, call 752-4137. Ask for Engineering.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1983

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: One of those highly important days to proceed with whatever your career or vocation happens to be with firmness and utilizing your most constructive and practical qualities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can get much accomplished in the outside world, if you get an early start. Concentrate on the practical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You get fine new ideas for advancement, so get them in motion as quickly as you can, and get fine results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You get practical ideas and can improve your business affairs greatly at this time and have a far greater income in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be more business-like with an associate and less emotional and thereby come to a better understanding.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Planets are favorable for getting much profitable work done, so dig into it with enthusiasm and much vigor.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Deciding what entertainments you want to enjoy in the days ahead is wise now, so get them set up nicely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) While in the outside world you can still do errands of a home or family nature. Use care when traveling today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Sit down with allies and get mutual problems worked out wisely and avoid any unnecessary confusion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Think about what can be done to extend your monetary affairs, since the aspects are good for such.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You understand now how best to accomplish a great deal so that you can raise your status in life admirably.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget all that imagination and get down to practical matters that need your attention and handle them well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Gain your long-time wishes by going after them in a positive way, but tactfully as well.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those charming young persons who can easily understand whatever has to do with property and finances, and should have the education slanted along lines of business administration.

"The Stars Impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Opening lead: Nine of ♣.

About six years ago, our late colleague Harold Ogust won the International Bridge Press Association's "Hand of the Year" award. The central theme of his play forms the basis of this problem composed by Swedish star Jan Wohlin.

Despite the fact that North had not shown much more than a six-card diamond suit with his two diamond rebid, South had not yet fully expressed the value of his hand, especially since the king in partner's suit was an important card. Two no trump was as good a forward-going move as any, and North had just enough to go on to game.

West was reluctant to lead any of the bid suits, so he attacked with a heart. Obviously, declarer would need diamond tricks to make his contract, and it might seem that the only way to tackle the suit is to cash the king, then cross to the table with the king of hearts and play off the high diamonds in the hope that the suit would break 3-3.

That would indeed be the case if declarer needed six tricks in diamonds for his contract. However, since declarer had four fast tricks in hearts and clubs, five diamond tricks would be enough to bring home the bacon.

Declarer found an elegant method to increase his odds. He won the opening lead in hand, led the king of diamonds and overtook with the ace on the board! He cashed the queen of diamonds and, when the 10-9 appeared from East on these two tricks, all was well. Declarer simply continued with the eight to force out West's jack, and his nine tricks were there.

Note that declarer's play would succeed if diamonds were 3-3 — all he would be giving up was an overtrick. But it would also succeed in those cases where diamonds were 4-2 and the doubleton was either J-10, J-9 or 10-9.

Telephone Companies Ask Record Rate Boosts

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Telephone companies nationwide are asking for a record $6.7 billion worth of proposed rate increases, but state regulators have been turning down many more requests than they're approving.

A survey by The Associated Press, conducted over the past three weeks, revealed the huge number of requests filed by either Bell System companies or independent phone companies such as affiliates of the GTE Corp.

But the survey also found that some telephone companies are having a hard time winning their cases. Figures compiled by the Federal Communications Commission and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. show that as of Oct. 13, state commissions had rejected 62 percent of the Bell System rate boost proposals they had reviewed.

If that pattern of authorizing only 38 percent of what is requested holds up, consumers would face roughly $2.55 billion in local telephone rate increases in addition to the $1.5 billion already cleared this year.

The $6.7 billion figure tabulated through the survey is solely for local rate increases and does not include proposed "access charges" or other fees tied to the provision of long-distance service, either interstate or intrastate.

The rate increases are defended by telephone executives as essential to reflect faster depreciation of equipment; to earn larger profits to attract investors, and to shift to more efficient pricing — charging customers on the basis of use, just as is the case with natural gas or electricity.

"With the removal of subsidies from our industry, it's really important that our prices be based on our costs — that the individual services pay their own way," says Tom Leweck, a spokesman for General Telephone of California, which has a $221.1 million rate boost pending.

Following orders of the Federal Communications Commission, every local phone company in the country has proposed to begin levying a $2-a-month access fee on consumers next year. That fee would be paid by all consumers to help replace subsidies for local service that are now collected through interstate long-distance rates.

The interstate access fees will cost consumers an estimated $2 billion in 1984. Legislation is pending in Congress to block the access fees.

The legislation, however, would not prevent local telephone companies from pursuing their local rate increases or "intrastate access fees" — monthly fees that are levied to replace subsidies contained in long-distance rates for calls that don't cross the boundaries of a state.

The AP survey and data obtained from the Bell System show there are at least 18 states where local phone companies are proposing to duplicate the FCC-mandated access fee with an intrastate fee.

Those requests total some $934 million. When those proposed fees are added to the pending rate increases for local service — excluding the FCC-mandated fee — state regulators are actually grappling with more than $7.6 billion in rate boost requests.

Most of the rate increase proposals for local service, in dollar terms, have been filed by Bell System companies — approximately $5.8 billion is still pending. The GTE Corp., the nation's second largest telephone company, reports its affiliates have roughly $461.3 million in local rate increase requests pending. The U.S. Telephone Association, which represents independent telephone companies, says its members had $469.67 million pending as of July 31, excluding GTE.

The local service proposals — excluding all access charges — are not spread evenly. They range from highs of $1.18 billion in California, $775 million in New York and $524 million in Texas to $279 million in Tennessee, $257 million in Pennsylvania and $217.4 million in Alabama.

When intrastate access charges are added, some of those numbers rise much higher. The pending rate hike request in Texas, for example, jumps from $524 million to $691 million; Pennsylvania, from $257 million to $379 million, and Alabama, $217.4 million to $307 million.

In 16 states — Alaska, Colorado, Connecticut,

Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont and Washington — plus the District of Columbia, there are no pending rate boosts for local service. In most, that's simply because local regulators granted increases earlier this year.

In some of those states, however, notably Oregon, Florida, North Carolina, Michigan and Washington, rate increases tied to intrastate access are still before state regulators.

The effects of the proposed rate boosts, if granted, would also vary widely depending upon what type of local service a consumer takes. The sharpest increases, in some cases a proposed doubling of rates, will be faced by consumers who want the right to dial an unlimited number of local calls each month — the most common option.

For example, the Pacific

Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s request in California, if granted in full, would boost basic rates for unlimited dialing from $7 a month to $14.50 a month. In New Mexico, Mountain Bell's basic unlimited rates in some towns could jump as much as $17.64 — from $8.25 a month to $25.89. In Kansas, Southwestern Bell's basic rates would jump from $9.65 a month to $22.60 a month. In Maryland, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.'s basic rates would climb from $11.82 to $21.30. And in Texas, Southwestern Bell's basic rates would jump from roughly $10 to $18.60 a month.

In other states, the proposed increases are much smaller. In Montana, Mountain Bell's rates for basic service would rise from $8.18 to $10.95. In Wyoming, basic rates would rise from $13.45 a month to $17.05 a month. In Utah, the rate would rise from $10 to $12.10 a month, and in Idaho, from $10.63 a month to $12.68 per month.
