President Is Home From Tour In Asia

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, declaring "it's great to be home," ended his Asian tour today and said it brought stronger partnerships and better prospects for a more secure peace.

Reagan returned to the United States after leaving behind a renewed commitment to South Korea's security and a public reminder by Secretary of State George Shultz that the threat from communist North Korea must be kept in mind when assessing progress in human rights to the south.

Air Force One also carried two ailing Korean youngsters from poor families to the United States for heart surgery in New York. The children roamed about the airplane, giggling at tape recordings of their singing voices, and sitting on Nancy Reagan's lap.

In a statement prepared for delivery at a White House welcoming ceremony upon his return from the 15,650-mile, 6½-day journey, Reagan said that in Japan, an agenda for progress on a variety of economic and security issues was set, with plans made to deal with trade barriers, auto industry problems and investment.

In Seoul, he said, "I reaffirmed to the Korean people America's commitment to their peace and freedom. And I encouraged them to develop further their democracy." This was a reference to the president's comments on human rights issues in several speeches.

During the visit, however, several political dissidents were said by colleagues to have been taken into police custody or placed under house arrest by the regime of President Chun Doo-hwan.

"I know I speak for Nancy and everyone when I say — oh, my, it's great to be home," the president said.

"Working as partners to make tomorrow better and more secure is what this trip was all about," Reagan said, adding "I'm pleased to report some good news: America's partnerships are stronger, and prospects for a more secure peace and prosperity are better today than a week ago.

"Those who disagree with the United States get plenty of publicity," Reagan said. "But one thing becomes more plain to me each time I travel. Across the globe, America is looked to as a friend and as a leader in preserving peace and freedom."

"Coming home from Korea and Japan, all of us bring with us renewed energy and renewed commitment to our fundamental goals: building a new era of peace and prosperity."

Reagan said his visit Sunday with "our brave troops in the demilitarized zone between South and North Korea was "one of the most unforgettable experiences in my life."

"If you could have been with me, you would have been at the church service we had with our soldiers in an open field less than a mile from one of the most tyrannical regimes on Earth," he said.

"There's more than symbolism in the danger to our American soldiers helping to guard the border of the DMZ, often in weather that leaves them freezing from their heads to their toes," he said.

Wreck Injuries Fatal To Two Greenville Women

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a Saturday night collision which killed two people and injured two others — including a Highway Patrol sergeant — on Memorial Drive, near the Fairlane

Road intersection.

Officer D.C. Johnson said Alice Galloway Long, 79, of 1702 East Fifth St., and Rosa Lee Lang Harrell, 74, of 1106 Rocksprings Drive died in Pitt County Memorial Hospital following the 10:36 p.m. collision.

Mary Gaskill Harrington of 1 Quail Ridge, and Patrol Sgt. Stephen Michael Compton of Winterville, were admitted to the hospital for treatment of serious injuries, Johnson said.

Mrs. Harrell and Mrs. Harrington were passengers in a car driven by Mrs. Long.

According to Johnson, Compton was driving a patrol car south on Memorial Drive, when the Long car pulled from a private driveway into his path.

Compton applied his brakes and swerved to the left in an attempt to keep from hitting the Long car, but the Compton car struck the Long car in the left side.

While comments at the accident scene Saturday suggested that Compton had been in pursuit of another car, both police and highway patrol officers said today that no chase was underway at the time.

Hospital officials this morning said Mrs. Long died at 11:13 p.m. Saturday, while Mrs. Harrell died at 11:52 p.m. Both Mrs. Harrington and Compton were listed as in "fair" condition today.

The collision resulted in heavy damage to both vehicles. It also caused a fire to erupt in the engine compartment of the Long car. However, the blaze was quickly controlled and caused no injury.

'Iron Arrow' Status Is Upheld By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in 16 months, the Supreme Court today set aside rulings that student honor organizations excluding women must, in effect, be banned from college campuses.

The justices told a federal appeals court to restudy its decision forcing the University of Miami to withdraw all significant support from one such group, Iron Arrow, or lose all federal funding.

The high court, by a 5-4 vote, suggested that the appeals court was wrong when it decided that the University of Miami controversy is not now moot, or legally irrelevant.

Iron Arrow, founded in 1926 by the University of Miami's first president, long has been regarded as the school's most prestigious campus organization.

In 1973, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare received a sex-bias complaint about the honor fraternity. After an investigation, HEW — now the Department of Health and Human Services — told university officials in 1976 they either had to forfeit federal funding or drop all "significant assistance" to Iron Arrow.

Soon afterward, the university told Iron Arrow it could not conduct its activities on the Coral Gables campus. That sparked a lawsuit by the organization against the school and HEW.

A federal trial judge, upheld by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, ruled that the challenged HEW regulation was valid under a 1972 law known as Title IX.

It states: "No person ... shall ... on the basis of sex be ... subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

Acting on Iron Arrow's first Supreme Court appeal, the justices in 1982 ordered the 11th Circuit court to restudy the case in light of their then-recent ruling in a Connecticut case.

In it, the high court said that "an agency's authority under Title IX ... to terminate funds is subject to the program-specific limitations" of the law.

Whichard New SNPA Prexy

BOCA RATON, Fla. — David J. Whichard II, president, co-publisher and editor of The Daily Reflector, was elected president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association at the association's 80th annual convention in Boca Raton this morning.

Whichard, who served as a member of the SNPA board of directors from 1979 to 1981 and as president-elect since November 1982, will be installed at a Wednesday morning meeting.

Outgoing SNPA President Rhea T. Eskew, president of Multimedia Newspaper Co. and publisher of the Greenville, S.C., News-Piedmont, was elected chairman of the SNPA board of directors, replacing J.S. Bryan III, publisher of the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch.

Other officers chosen this morning include: President-elect Ruth S. Holmberg, publisher of the Chattanooga, Tenn., Times, and Treasurer Tom J. Hardin, general manager of the Alexandria, La., Daily Town Talk.

The SNPA, one of the major newspaper organizations in the nation, includes 430 member newspapers in 14 Southern states from Texas and Oklahoma in the west to the East Coast.

SNPA was founded in 1903. The Daily Reflector has been a member since 1953.

The purpose of SNPA is to provide a forum for the exchange of ideas and information between newspaper publishers in the southern United States.

Whichard said the organization, during the coming year, will "continue to function much as it has," by providing "seminars, workshops and meetings aimed toward improving newspapers."

"There will be no major changes in the emphasis or direction of the organization," Whichard said.

About 650 newspaper people are attending the SNPA convention, which is featuring speakers and workshops centering on various aspects of newspaper operations.

A Greenville native, Whichard, 56, began his newspaper career as a carrier for the Reflector and, during his high school and college years, worked part time in various departments of the newspaper. He joined the Reflector's staff as a reporter after graduating Phi Beta Kappa from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1954, and was named editor in 1954.

Whichard became president and co-publisher of the Reflector — founded in 1881 by his grandfather — in January 1965.

Whichard is also affiliated with non-daily newspapers in Kenansville, Belhaven, Ayden, Grifton, Farmville, Williamston and Robersonville.

In addition to his newspaper career, Whichard has been a member of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors since 1972, is chairman of the eastern regional board of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. and a member of the board of directors of Home Federal Savings & Loan Association.

He has also served as a member of the Governor's Committee on State Government Reorganization, was — for 10 years — a member of the board of trustees of East Carolina University, and was a member of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education from 1969 to 1971.

Taft Seeks Senate Seat

Thomas F. (Tom) Taft of Greenville announced today his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the North Carolina Senate's District 8 seat, which includes Pitt County and parts of Martin and Beaufort counties.

Taft, who said he will officially file for the seat in January, said he announced his candidacy now "in order to gain as much input as possible from colleagues and voters." The Democratic primary will be held May 1, 1984.

The Greenville attorney said, "Though I've been involved with the political process since the 1964 Democratic National Convention, this is my first campaign for elected office. It's important for the voters of Pitt, Martin and Beaufort counties to know that I will be running and to meet with me personally."

Corporate Tax Take Shrinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corporate income taxes accounted for 8.1 percent of all federal revenues last year, less than one-third the level of 1950, a new congressional study disclosed today.

The study, conducted by the Joint Committee on Taxation and the General Accounting Office, found that corporations carried 11.5 percent of the tax load in 1981 and 28.3 percent in 1950. By comparison, personal income taxes accounted for 49 percent of federal revenues last year, 47.5 percent in 1981 and 39.2 percent in 1950.

Effective tax rates paid by various industries ranged from a negative 17.7 percent for chemicals to 39 percent for rubber manufacturers.

The study, carried out at the request of Reps. Donald J. Pease, D-Ohio, and Byron L. Dorgan, D-N.D., showed seven of 29 major industries had effective tax rates of less than 10 percent last year. While the average corporation paid 16.1 percent of its U.S. earnings to the federal government, the average tax on foreign income was 55 percent.

"The tax system has become a punchboard of gimmicks," Dorgan said in releasing the study. "While some industries, such as the trucking industry, pay a fairly heavy income tax, others, such as financial institutions, including many of the largest banks, pay no U.S. income tax."

Added Pease: "This study bears out my contention that the United States needs an alternative minimum corporate income tax. It is clear that corporations ought to make some contribution to the operation of our country."

Quiltfest Seminars Offer Variety Of Subject Topics

By ROSALIE TROMTAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

Eight quilters new to Greenville arrived here during the weekend to be guest seminar speakers as part of the Quiltfest which started Saturday with a quilt show at the Village of Yesteryear.

The seminars opened this morning with sessions at the Agriculture Extension Office, Willis Building and Community Building. Speaking during the two days are Laurel Horton, Eleanor Young, Juanita Metcalf, Carla Hassel, Jane Hall, Nancy Garver, Kathy Kunst and Yvonne Amico.

Three of the women were interviewed this morning prior to the opening sessions.

Laurel Horton lives in Webster in this state and works in Columbia, S.C. as a guest curator for a quilt project at McKissick Museums at the University of South Carolina.

She will be giving two workshops on quilt documentation. "There is a growing interest in quilt history and one of things I will be doing is giving an overview of quilt research in progress across the country. About three weeks ago, I attended the American Quilt Study Group meeting in California. There were 10 papers presented from across the country. I gave my paper on "19th Century Quilts in Macon County North Carolina," she said.

She will also be talking about styles of fabrics and styles in quilts. People have been invited to bring in their old quilts which will be discussed and they will be given an approximate idea of when they were made.

Ms. Horton became interested in both making quilts and quilt history when she was working on a master's degree in folklore at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1975. She did a term paper on quilts for a class and a thesis on "Pre-Civil War Quilts in Rowan County."

"When I was supposed to be studying for final exams, I started my first quilt," she said.

Transferring Tradition is being discussed by Carla Hassel of Des Moines, Iowa.

"I am discussing four aspects of quilting, in my opinion — the history, craft, sentimentality and art. I would like to bring modern day quilters into this understanding of quilting and show how they can combine all four aspects into each quilt," she said.

Carla Hassel

"I was a pre-med student in college and my background is to be very scientific and analytical. I never considered myself a creative person. In 1969 I gave up a career and chose a traditional role — that of wife and mother fulltime and turned to quilting to fill the quiet time of day. I brought something analytical into a creative folk art. Originally I taught technique and then I found a way to make color and design a logical endeavor. My philosophy is that if a person can analyze and understand anything, she can make it 'her own' and therefore become self-expressive. Through this folk art becomes fine art and that is the tradition transformed," she continued.

"Women in Iowa encompass the entire range of quilters. We are all very aware of the importance of technique — we believe very strongly in the cliché — do it right or don't do it at all.

"What I really enjoy is taking something traditional and doing something a little bit different with it. That difference can be color, the layout of the quilt or by combining several patterns in an unconventional arrangement," she added.

Kathy Kunst of Durham will be discussing "Chinese Design as Seen Through the Eyes of a Quilt-Maker."

Her husband was director of the Duke Study in China

Program and she and their two sons joined him there last August through January, living first in the north and then in the central part.

"What I observed is that Chinese decorate everything — their temples, government office buildings and train stations. They way they do this is to paint the background in red and then very ornamental designs in other brilliant colors. In addition to official buildings, they also decorate their own houses, which are as attractive as the official ones, only much simpler — a better source of design ideas.

"One of the interesting design sources were geometric shapes and another was lattice windows — brick walls, fences and tiles (in floors). It's easy in another culture to have your eyes opened to new design ideas and as a result of observing China very carefully, I have noticed I have started being more observant of things around me here in the United States," she said.

Kathy Kunst

"Chinese women machine piece quilt tops — putting together squares and triangles or squares and squares. They use them either for pillow covers, tote bags, cushions or as quilt tops. The quilts they make are very different than the ones made here. They have a very heavy and thick cotton batting and the back of the quilt is bought around to the front and the three layers are basted together. When they wash the quilt, they take it apart, wash it and then baste it back together," she said.

Celebrating Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hardee of Greenville are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary today. They were honored Sunday at a reception given by their children and friends of the family. The reception was held at the home of the honorees.

Guests received by Mr. and Mrs. Hardee and daughter, Connie Rae. Presiding at the guest register was Amy Leigh Hardee, daughter of the couple.

The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and decorated with yellow bows. It was centered with an arrangement of mixed fall flowers flanked by hurricane lamps holding white lighted candles. Similar arrangements adorned the gift table and reception area.

Assisting in serving were Russell Forbes, who poured punch and Joyce Worthington, who served cake. Gifts were displayed by Cassie Worthington, mother of Mrs. Hardee. Others assisting were Margaret Hargett and Melonie Tyson.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tyson.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Even though kiwifruit is now grown in California, its exotic appeal has not worn off. I encounter the fruit a great deal in fine restaurants and at home parties.

Recently I came on a recipe for Kiwifruit Chutney that I thought would be good to have on hand to use for winter's holiday entertaining and for gifts. When we tried the recipe in my test kitchen we found it much less sweet than the usual chutney — a quality that nowadays is more appealing than it once was.

KIWIFRUIT CHUTNEY

3 medium apples (about 1 pound)
1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons lime juice
1 cup firmly packed light

brown sugar
1 cup cider vinegar
1 cup golden raisins
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
6 kiwifruit

Pare, quarter and core the apples; cut into 1/2-inch cubes — there should be about 3 1/2 cups. Peel and finely chop the garlic. Into a 3-quart saucepot turn the apples, garlic, lime juice, brown sugar, vinegar, raisins, salt, cinnamon, ginger and cumin; stir together. Boil gently, stirring occasionally, for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, pare and cut the kiwifruit into 1/2-inch cubes; add to the apple mixture. Bring to a boil again and boil gently, stirring often, until thickened — about 20 minutes longer.

Ladle into clean hot canning jars to within 1/4-inch of jar tops. With a clean damp cloth, wipe rims and threads of jars. Seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Place jars on a rack in a large saucepot of boiling water — water should cover jars by 1 or 2 inches. Cover saucepot; bring water to a boil; boil 10 more complicated and more time consuming than basic stitches. This is often not the case with needlepoint — a good reason for incorporating patterns into the background of your piece, as Chris did with the wastebasket cover featured today.

The mosaic stitch she used for the background is simply a combination of long and short stitches, adding an interesting texture to the finished design. This stitch, worked after the completion of the design area, can be worked horizontally, vertically and diagonally.

In following pattern stitches that are charted on graph paper, you need to realize that each line of the chart represents a canvas rib or thread and each square represents a canvas hole.

To work the mosaic stitch horizontally, look at the smaller of the two charts shown. Starting near the upper right corner, follow the numbers from 1 to 6, bringing the needle up in odd-numbered holes and taking it down in even-numbered holes. At this point, you will have completed one full mosaic stitch. Work in the same manner with the remaining numbers on the chart. This will show you how two pattern stitches share the same holes at certain points. Continue across the row in this way, until you have made a full row across the top of your canvas.

To start a second horizontal row, count down to the second empty hole below the place where you started your first stitch on Row 1, bring the needle up in that hole and follow the same sequence as before. To see how to work this stitch vertically, simply turn the chart sideways.

The beginner will probably find it easier to learn the stitch by working in straight rows, but after a little practice you might want to experiment with the diagonal version, shown in the larger of the two charts.

To follow this chart, start near the top left corner, following the numbers from 1 to 10 in the top section. Complete this row, following the bold stitch lines until you reach either the bottom or the right edge of your canvas.

Start the second row where the number 1 appears at the lower right portion of the chart. Continue up this row, following the lighter lines at the top of the chart. To fill in the area to the right of the starting row, simply turn the canvas upside down and work as before.

Children's Newspaper: A Teaching Tool

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

The newspaper you're reading contains a vast amount of information that can be used to help your child's math education.

The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics makes the claim and gives some directions in a new free pamphlet, "How To Be the Plus In Your Child's Math Education."

The pamphlet also tells how to use the home as a math learning center.

"Newspapers can be used to help your child develop and reinforce computational and graphing skills," the NCTM says.

Start with something simple, such as keeping track of daily temperatures listed in the paper. Do this by constructing a graph.

Adding prices on an order drawn from food ads provides easy practice in computation. The same for figuring the sum of prices in a wish list put together from toy store ads.

There even are elementary economics lessons from math exercises your child can perform from information in the paper, the NCTM said.

Take coupons. "Evaluate the economics of coupon clipping by having your child clip out and save food coupons for a week," the NCTM said.

"Then raise questions like, 'How much money could be saved in a week if all the coupons were used? Would that amount pay for the newspaper for a week?'"

The NCTM says problem solving activities can be created anywhere and describes one keyed to eating out.

"Using a menu, have your child total the cost of meals for four and the number of items ordered."

"Then have the child compute the average cost of each meal, and the average cost of the items ordered. Finally, have child determine the tip for excellent, fair and poor service."

As for using the home as a math learning center, the opportunities are numerous and unique, said Joe Caravella, director of membership for the NCTM.

He said there is an unlimited supply of data in a home and that lends itself to the collection, display, use and understanding of data — an important skill.

One data exercise given in the pamphlet:

—Help child make a chart with blocks for the days, Sunday to Saturday. Divide the blocks by activities — sleep, eat, play, travel, school, homework, electronic entertainment and other.

—Help child put down the number of hours spent on each activity during the seven 24-hour periods. By week's end, the chart displays a record of how time was spent.

Caravella said the pamphlet was developed in response to enormous interest among parents wanting to get involved in the math education of their children.

"Polls show that they want to," he said, "and we found with your child's mathematics education and let the NCTM help you be that special plus."

For a copy of "How To Be the Plus In Your Child's Mathematics Education," send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "PLUS," National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, 1906 Association Drive, Reston, Va. 22091.

Notch-Year Babies Raise Robust Cry

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: It all started when I received a letter that read in part: "If you are drawing Social Security and were born in 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920 or 1921 (called 'the notch years'), you are being unjustly penalized by receiving lower benefits than those born prior to and after the above-mentioned years. For example, if you worked until you were 65 before starting to draw Social Security, you are receiving about $100 less in your monthly check than those born before 1917 or after 1921." — NOTCH-YEAR BABY

I checked with a spokesperson at Social Security who informed me that the facts in that letter were correct, so I ran it on Sept. 5 (1983), adding: "Your congressman is your elected representative. Let him know that you want this inequity corrected."

On Sept. 13, Rep. J.J. Pickle, chairman of the Social Security subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, made the following comments, which were inserted in the Congressional Record: "My colleagues, and especially 'Dear Abby' readers, one thing we have learned in the past week is that something written in 'Dear Abby' is faster than a telegram and more powerful than the evening news. When 'Dear Abby' says write to your congressman, people do not just listen, they act. Unfortunately, the letter on the Social Security notch in a recent 'Dear Abby' column was partially wrong and somewhat misleading."

Readers, for the record, I was correct in stating that those born from 1917 through 1921—the "notch years"—are being unjustly penalized by receiving lower retirement benefits than those born prior to the above-mentioned years. But Mr. Pickle was right, I was incorrect in stating that those born in the notch years would receive lower benefits than those born after 1921. The fact is, everyone born after 1921 will be unjustly penalized by receiving lower benefits than those born before 1917.

In a column dated for release Sept. 26, I ran a detailed explanation of my original item. I have since received a blizzard of letters from legislators and their constituents concerning this issue. Some samples:

I received a copy of a letter written by the late Sen. Henry M. Jackson to a constituent, dated Oct. 14, 1981. It read in part:

"In order to control potential 'runaway' benefits that would overcompensate Social Security beneficiaries for inflation, the Congress altered the manner in which initial benefits are computed. Unfortunately, the new benefit formula blatantly discriminates against Social Security recipients born after 1916, since they will receive substantially lower benefits." (The italics are mine.)

After my column of Sept. 5 appeared, I heard from Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md.:

"Dear Abby: I was delighted to read your column bringing the Social Security problem to the public's attention. Don't back down. You were right. I have been pressing for years to correct this inequity. In fact, I was the first member of Congress to introduce a measure to resolve that problem."

Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., wrote:

"Dear Abby: Nothing since the controversy over gun control has prompted more mail and telephone calls. Our office has been inundated! I am aware of this inequity, and as a member of Congress, I have sponsored two or more bills to rectify this inequity."

From Edward R. Roybal, congressman from California and chairman of the Select Committee on Aging, came this message:

"As the chairman of the Select Committee on Aging, I must agree with the letter writer who is upset by the considerable differences in benefits paid to persons simply because one reached age 65 in 1981 while the other reached 65 in 1982."

"I am convinced that although we needed to correct a problem in the old benefit formula, it was not necessary to reduce benefit levels for people born after 1916. Consequently, I have introduced HR 4093, which guarantees that persons born in or after 1917 will receive a benefit which is equal to the benefits paid to those who were born in 1916."

I asked for a copy of Roybal's bill, which he promptly sent. After reading it, I telephoned him and asked, "Won't your bill be costly to the taxpayers?" He replied, "Yes, but money paid to our senior citizens will be pumped right back into the economy because they have to spend their Social Security checks in order to survive—unlike the younger generation who are saving for a rainy day."

I agree with Rep. Roybal. Our senior citizens should be treated at least fairly, if not generously, in their retirement years. For them it is already raining!

If you agree with me, let your elected representative know that Abby was right when she said there is an inequity, and you want it corrected.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

FILM GETS PRIZE

NEW YORK (AP) — A French film, which begins with six skiers perched precariously atop a French Alpine peak, "Ski Space," won the 10th annual International Ski Film Festival.

"Ski Space" also won the co-prize for best special skiing film in a week-long film competition, sponsored by Salem.

"Wintersong ... an Ode to Skiing" won as best ski resort and travel film. It highlights the Beech Mountain, N.C., ski area. "Rivals" won as best ski racing and competition film. It was about the 1982-83 world cup downhill racing season.

Festival Is Welcome

It has become a major event in Pitt County, the center of bright leaf tobacco production.

The Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival and the Tobacco Farmers Show are under way here. There are many events planned which visitors and local residents alike can enjoy.

The Tobacco Festival Scholarship pageant was held last weekend at which a reigning queen was chosen. There has also been a pipe-smoking contest and various activities were held around the city during the weekend.

The awards banquet will be held tonight and the Tobacco Farmer of the Year, chosen from the five tobacco producing states, will be announced.

Tomorrow the Tobacco Farmers Show will open at Farmer's Warehouse where the newest farming equipment will be on display.

There are many other events planned to make this an enjoyable and informative occasion. Thousands come every year to take part in the festivities and we welcome them all to Greenville and Pitt County.

Action Was Needed

A group of United States congressmen have visited Granada and concluded that the invasion was needed to protect American citizens.

House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, Jr. said last week that the fact-finding delegation concluded the invasion was justified.

"The overwhelming consensus of the members of the delegation was that a real potential threat to the American citizens existed in Grenada," O'Neill said.

All the evidence now points to real danger to the considerable number of United States citizens on the island. A hostile government had taken over and Cuba and the Soviet Union were supplying it with arms.

We needed to move to protect lives. If we improved our security by wiping out a communist base in the western hemisphere, that is a plus.

Striking It Rich

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Stegall wants to save your sole, and you won't even need to get out of your car.

Stegall, a former International Business Machines Corp. marketing representative who stepped off the corporate ladder to chase entrepreneurial dreams, wants to become the Ronald MacDonald of shoe repair.

He's opening drive-in shoe repair huts as fast as he can.

Stegall's firm, Shoe Thru America Inc., collects worn shoes at three small stands on busy street corners, takes them to his repair shop, fits them with heels and soles and has them back on the street the next day, in most cases.

The concept, he says, is in the tradition of drive-in banks, fast-food restaurants and photo-developing services.

"I think it's a big business," said Stegall, president of the fledgling firm that is scheduled to have several more sites this year. "We believe it will work here and we'd like to believe that it will work in other places."

Stegall, 29, and his backers believe that the northside of Dallas, with its upper-income, in-a-hurry population is the perfect place to launch Shoe Thru.

Traffic is getting worse, Stegall said. "That works for us. Drive-thru is just so much more convenient for busy people." After working at a couple of the booths he observes that people accept his idea nonchalantly, seeming to have the attitude that "it's about time someone did this."

Stegall says he left the world of big business to found his own marketing company, and became interested in the shoe repair market while conducting a survey for a client who manufactured leather cleansers.

"A lot of shoe repair shops are in shopping centers that are crowded.

Parking is a problem. And they're not very visible, so people sometimes drive around with a pair of shoes in their car that need repair. It's consistent all across the country — shoe repair shops are hard to find," he said.

Some of Shoe Thru's busy locations are converted photo stores, and all his huts are manufactured by a Dallas firm that makes concrete automatic bank teller stands.

Stegall and two friends, all graduates of Southern Methodist University, formed the company and sold a small percentage of stock to raise capital.

Knowing little about the trade, he designed an assembly line process for the repair business: One cobbler removes the old sole and heel, another cuts the new one in place and a third puts the finishing touches on the renewed shoe.

The success of the operation, he said, depends on how consistent the quality of his product is, and on how well his customers accept the speed and convenience he offers them.

"Probably the biggest difference between us and existing shoe repair shops is turnaround time," he said. "If you have your shoes in by 9 a.m., they'll be out by 5 p.m. the next day."

Shoe repair was not Stegall's first idea for striking it rich. But he believes it was his best one, so far.

"I've had a lot of ideas, but this is the first one I've gone all the way with. As I kept working out the plans, I kept saying, 'Hey, this thing could really work.'"

RALEIGH — The political editors of The Washington Post must have lost their collective common sense a couple of weeks ago. They ran a story in the premiere edition of their national weekly saying, "For Jesse Helms, it's all over but the counting. There won't be any battle of the titans against Gov. Hunt in 1984 because Helms can't win."

The story was written by Richard Whittle, former Washington correspondent for The Raleigh News and Observer. Whittle brings forth no new information in writing Helms' political obituary. He simply restates some historical facts from the careers of Helms and Gov. Jim Hunt, Helms' expected 1984 opponent.

Whittle certainly could have made a good case that Helms has plenty to worry about. He notes that Helms has collected only modest vote totals in wins against two fairly weak Democratic opponents, Nick Galifianakis in 1972 and John Ingram in 1978. Hunt, on the other hand, has won by big margins in three statewide races, two of which saw him bucking the state's tide to Republican presidential and federal candidates. Whittle doesn't report, however, that Hunt also whipped fairly weak opponents.

The raw numbers theory also arises in Whittle's piece. Helms has never collected more than 795,248 votes while Hunt has collected more than one million votes in his two races for governor. (Around Raleigh, proponents of this theory say these numbers are pertinent because this will be a big turnout year.)

Whittle's piece, however, is devoid of any current assessment of the political situation in North Carolina. And, it makes the foolish assumption that Hunt and Helms will have equal amounts of money to spend. (It is more likely that Helms will outspend Hunt by more than two to one.) It fails to address the fact that governors make a lot of enemies in eight years and that the battle will be fought over federal issues. That's Helms' home turf.

Whittle's story caused more than a few derisive chuckles in Raleigh. Gary Pearce, Hunt's press aide, praised Whittle for his salesmanship. "There's no way the Post would have bought the story saying it's going to be a close race. So, I commend him on his business sense."

Pearce, also a former N&O reporter, went on to say, however, that he couldn't believe the Post ran such a speculative story. "This shows Rich has been in Washington too long."

Claude Allen, Helms' press aide, said, "The Post is often called the Pravda of the Potomac," a reference to the Soviet newspaper. "There was a recent article in Pravda to the same effect so I think this just lends credence to that belief about the Post."

Whittle's piece was clearly marked as "opinion," and should not be taken as the editorial policy of the Post. But, in publishing the piece first on a Sunday section front and then in the national section, the Post clearly placed its credibility behind the story. Post editors might not agree with it, but their publication of the story says, at least, that they think the reporting and reasoning are sound.

What's wrong with the story? How does it differ from much of the speculative political news that appears in this and other political columns?

The answer to those questions is that it completely writes the candidate off. It says Helms CAN'T win. Had the story simply been edited to say Helms faces immense problems, it would have had more credibility.

Anyone who doubts the old saw that "anything can happen in politics" need only look at Sen. John East, Helms' colleague from North Carolina, who was a political unknown a year before the 1980 election.

If Helms is in the Senate in 1985, he's going to have a lot of fun with this one.

Guilt

The computer companies are now laying a real guilt trip on parents through TV commercials. They state that you're really cheating your children out of a chance to make it when they grow up if you don't go out immediately and buy them a computer. The kids see these commercials, too, and it's causing a lot of trouble between the haves and have-nots in our school system.

"Johnny, where is your report card?"

"Here."

"Why did you get a D in math?"

"Wasn't my fault. You wouldn't buy me a computer."

"We can't afford a computer right now. They cost $200."

"Don't matter to me. The man on TV said if you don't want to give me a head start in life you'll have nobody to blame but yourself."

"That's a lot of television commercial nonsense. I did math without a computer."

"Maybe that's why you can't afford to buy me one."

"We didn't have computers in those days. Besides, it hasn't been proven yet whether computers are good or bad for children. There is a school of thought that they can be harmful to the learning process and kids should depend on their own brains instead of machines. The computer can tell you what 4 plus 4 is, but you don't know how you arrived at the answer."

"They don't care in school how you arrive at it as long as it comes out right."

"Let's forget math for a moment. Why did you get an F in deportment?"

"I hit Jill Gleason with a book."

"Why did you hit Jill with a book?"

"Because she's got a computer, and she wouldn't tell me the answers to the math problems."

"You can't go hitting people because they have a computer and you don't."

"You got to if they say your parents are too cheap to buy you one."

"Did Jill say that?"

"Yeh. She said you were depriving me of a chance to make something of myself and I should be taken away from you and put in a foster home."

"She couldn't have said that."

"The other kids heard her. Those that had computers laughed, and those that didn't all wanted to hit her too."

"What did your teacher do?"

"She sent me to the principal's office and he put my name in his computer and said if I did it again, I'd be kicked out of school."

"What about spelling? How do you explain the D in that subject?"

"I have to do all my own spelling. If I had a computer it would check my spelling for me. When Jill Gleason hands in her paper she never has a mistake on her printout. She says she gets her homework done five times as fast as I do."

"Yes, but is she learning how to spell?"

"She said her father told her it doesn't make any difference because when she grows up computers will do all the spelling for you anyway."

"Her father apparently doesn't realize that the disciplines you learn by doing your own work in school are far more important than whether you make a mistake or not in your papers."

"That's what Johnny Parks' father said. His father won't get him a computer either."

"Well, I'm not about to buy you one, so you'd better straighten out and come home with a better report card than this the next time, or you can spend your weekends in your room."

"I don't care. I'll probably wind up in jail anyway."

"Who told you that?"

"The guy on TV. He said if parents didn't buy their kid a computer, the kid would probably wind up sticking up liquor stores when he grew up."

Memories Of Founders Day

Every year on Founders Day North Carolina State University presents its Watauga Medal to not more than three persons for "notable and distinguished contributions to the advancement of the university."

It is the university's highest non-academic honor. Its name honors a group of young men who banded together to form the Watauga Club and played a leading part in persuading the 1887 General Assembly to pass legislation creating a college of agriculture and mechanic arts.

According to a history by Richard Walser, the Watauga Club grew out of a chance meeting near the post office on Fayetteville Street in downtown Raleigh in May, 1884. While a group that included William Joseph Peele, Walter Hines Page and C. Edgar Leach were discussing the sad state of affairs in North Carolina, they were joined by Alfred D. Jones coming from the post office with a letter he had received from U.S. Sen. Zeb Vance.

"Boys," he said, "Vance wants us to form a Tariff Club."

Page thought for a moment and then said, "Why not form a club to discuss other economic questions as well as the tariff?"

Peele's reaction was to issue an invitation for the group to meet in the dingy office he shared with law partner Ernest P. Maynard in the Dodds Building on South Wilmington Street. His idea was to form a club to discuss the sorry plight of North Carolina and some ideas he had for reforms.

Peele, then 29, was elected president. He was described by a contemporary as "a scholarly, public-spirited man, a historian and philosopher, who devoted his life to advancing the educational and literary interests of the state."

Thereafter, the members discussed at every meeting ways of alerting the people of the state on the need of an industrial school in the state and how to go about the task of getting the backing of persons in power and authority.

The club petitioned the 1885 General Assembly to establish an industrial school at Raleigh for instruction "in wood-work, mining, metal-lurgy (and) practical agriculture." Copies were circulated among the legislators and sent to newspaper editors and other influential citizens throughout the state. Peele wrote later that agriculture was included on Page's insistence that they would never get the bill through the "damned farmer Legislature unless there was some agriculture in it somewhere."

After a struggle, the Legislature passed the bill, but since it carried no appropriation to fund the school, no school was established.

But the Watauga Club continued the battle. Among other things it sponsored a mass meeting in Raleigh "of friends of industrial education throughout the state," which unanimously adopted resolutions offered by Peele.

The following year, Leonidas L. Polk began publication of the "Progressive Farmer" in Raleigh. Polk, too old for membership in the Watauga Club, was a formidable advocate of the state's hard-pressed farmers. He took over the Watauga program for an industrial school and combined it into a struggle for a land-grant agricultural and mechanical college. Before the end of the year, citizens of Raleigh offered money and a site for the institution.

Under Polk's leadership, another bill was introduced in the 1887 General Assembly.

It was passed, and at ground-breaking ceremonies for the new school, Peele again lambasted the "fossils" who "oppose everything." Those present for the ceremony included Gov. Alfred Moore Scales, a revered Civil War hero who is said to have taken "great offense" at Peele's castigation.

During the years that followed, the Watauga Club was active at times, as when it led in the battle to establish a textile school at N.C. State. At other times it was more or less moribund and dropped from sight completely in 1902.

It was revived a decade or so later and continues to meet each month. Beginning with O. Max Gardner every governor of North Carolina, except Gov. Gregg Cherry, has been a member. History is silent as to why Cherry did not join.

—Evans Witt—

Some Polls Are Overlooked

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Glenn likes to talk about polls, but he is very careful just which polls he brings up in stump speeches.

The Ohio Senator seems to favor the polls that show him making the strongest showing of any Democratic presidential hopeful in the hypothetical 1984 election contests against President Reagan.

But there is a whole category of polls Glenn doesn't mention much. Those are generally the ones showing the race between him and Walter Mondale, Alan Cranston, Gary Hart and the rest of the Democratic field.

You see, Glenn doesn't do very well in many of those polls of Democrats' preferences for their party's nominee.

In a recent series of state polls done by the Gallup Organization Glenn was far behind Mondale in nine of 10 states. Only in his home state of Ohio did Glenn manage to take the front-runner's spot away from the former vice president among registered Democrats. The 10 states have 1,902 delegates, almost half of the Democratic total.

And if he doesn't win the hearts, minds and votes of his own party's faithful, Glenn won't ever have the chance to test his strength in a general election against Reagan.

The matchups with Reagan in those same 10 states — all big, all important in the 1984 political season — show the weakness of Glenn's whole argument that the polls prove he is more "electable" than Mondale.

Glenn's edge over Mondale isn't much — five percentage points at the most in any of the states. In Michigan and Florida, for example, Glenn is essentially tied with Reagan, while Mondale is slightly behind. In Pennsylvania, Glenn does a bit better than Mondale, but both are well ahead of Reagan.

In the other states — California, New Jersey, Illinois, North Carolina, Texas and New York — there is essentially no difference between Glenn and Mondale's performance against the GOP incumbent.

An ABC News-Washington Post poll released last week confirmed those state findings at the national level.

In the wake of events in Grenada and Lebanon, Reagan and Glenn were essentially tied: Reagan, 48 and Glenn, 45. Mondale was a bit farther behind Reagan, trailing 44 percent to 50 percent in the ABC-Post survey.

Statistically, there is no difference between Mondale and Glenn's performance in such a poll. The sampling error margins alone could account for those gaps.

Thus, Glenn's performance against Reagan can only be considered very marginally better than Mondale's showing — with those margins vulnerable to being wiped out by any significant developments.

Going back to the Gallup state polls, however, shows just how meaningless such matchups can be at this time.

For they say Glenn would never get to the general election.

Strength For Today

A well-known evangelist once said that in the world seeing is believing, but in things of the spirit believing is seeing.

Religious certainty comes not so much by an action of the mind as by a commitment of the will; not so much through reason as through the response of the whole personality to the revealed truths of God. When people treat religion as merely an intellectual problem, much of it can easily be explained away and it loses its vitality.

Blind acceptance of theological propositions is, of course, unwise and in the end often self-defeating. But there is much in religion which can never be explained and must be accepted.

Does this mean that we have to accept religious truth by abandoning our reason? Not at all. It means that we approach religious truth first by taking the step of faith, then slowly we will begin to see that there is a harmony of reason and commitment in this truth.

Pork producers should take special precautions against TGE in the winter and spring. TGE survives the cold weather which enhances its ability to spread. The viral disease is spread between herd in feces from recently infected pigs and by anything that moves between herds or is likely to be contaminated by manure. This includes equipment, feed spread by birds or other wildlife, livestock trucks or

When TGE strikes a herd during a concentrated farrowing period it is not unusual to lose most of the pigs farrowed over the next two-three weeks. Diarrhea plus vomiting may be noticed in baby pigs.

The cause of death in TGE is starvation, dehydration and acidosis. Prevention of a TGE outbreak is the best medicine. Keep down traffic, isolate new stock and watch house environment.

Bitter Over Karen Carpenter's Care

NEW YORK (AP) — In his first public comment on his sister's death, Richard Carpenter says he's bitter about the treatment singer Karen Carpenter received in her eight-year battle with anorexia nervosa.

Carpenter, the other half of the singing duo The Carpenters, says that the shock of his sister's death from heart failure Feb. 4 was "tremendous."

"I knew she was ill, but not that ill," he writes in this week's issue of People magazine.

He was aware that his sister suffered from the eating disorder as early as 1975. "Although her voice was never affected, you could hear gasps from the audience when she came on stage..." he said.

Last year, Carpenter became convinced that his

However, therapist Steven Levenkron and Dr. Gerald Bernstein, who treated Ms. Carpenter at Lenox Hill, said they have re-examined their records for possible omissions in her treatment and found none. "Every way we could measure her heart, we did it and it was normal," Levenkron said.

"The terrible tragedy of Karen's death," he added, "is that she had recovered from anorexia nervosa when she died."

Druse Shell Beirut Area

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Druse militiamen shelled Beirut's Christian sector today for the first time in a seven-week-old truce, and U.S. reconnaissance jets resumed flights after the United States warned Syria not to fire at them.

Formations of F-14 Tomcat interceptors scrambled off the aircraft carrier Dwight D. Eisenhower in repeated runs over Beirut and surrounding mountains before midnight and at dawn, Lebanese police said.

The flights followed a stern warning by the Reagan administration to Syria against firing at U.S. planes over Lebanon. Syrian batteries fired at U.S. planes last week, but police said today's flights drew no ground fire.

The late night sorties by the F-14s coincided with a meeting between President Reagan's new Middle East envoy, Donald Rumsfeld, and Lebanese President Amin Gemayel. A presidential palace statement said they discussed "existing conditions and the latest developments in Lebanon and the Middle East."

Shortly after the meeting ended at midnight, police said Druse gunners in the central mountains fired artillery and Soviet-made Grad rockets into east Beirut.

At least 13 Grads crashed into Christian residential neighborhoods, Christian-controlled radio stations said. No casualties were reported.

One rocket slammed into the parking lot of the city's electric power station, setting a truck and crane ablaze.

There were no new reports of casualties or major battles from northern Lebanon, where Yasser Arafat and his loyalists in the Palestine Liberation Organization are trying to hold off a force of Syrian-backed mutineers. More than 1,000 people have been killed since the PLO fighting began Nov. 3 around the city of Tripoli.

Qatar's official news agency and the Kuwaiti newspaper al-Qabas reported that the Soviet Union has shipped large quantities of weapons to Arafat's loyalists. A PLO official reached in Tripoli said "we have no comment on either report."

No reason was given for the overnight shelling barrage in Beirut. Druse militiamen of Lebanon's Socialist Progressive Party frequently shelled the Christian sector during civil warfare last September. But since the Sept. 26 ceasefire, they have refrained from hitting the capital.

The civil war has pitted Syrian-backed Druse and Shiite Moslem militias against the Lebanese army and rightist Christian irregulars of the Phalange party. The fighting frequently caught the U.S. Marine base at Beirut's international airport in the crossfire.

U.S. Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said the Marines could hear the shelling this morning but did not come under fire.

On Sunday, efforts to reconcile Lebanon's warring factions hit another snag when the government said Syria had asked Gemayel to cancel his planned trip to Damascus today to meet with Syrian President Hafez Assad. It reported the Syrian Foreign Ministry said Assad was ill and hospitalized, but did not specify his ailment.

Lebanon's state radio said the Syrian president had to undergo an appendectomy. An official announcement today said Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam will instead come to Beirut on Thursday for talks with Gemayel.

Beirut radio said one Lebanese soldier was killed Sunday in clashes in mountains overlooking Beirut. The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said a booby-trapped car in the southern city of Tebnit killed two Lebanese civilians.

In Seoul, South Korea, U.S. National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane warned Syria that the United States will respond if Syrian gunners continue shooting at American aircraft over Lebanon.

Dental Hygiene Week Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed this week as Dental Hygiene Week in conjunction with the 60th anniversary of the dental hygiene profession.

The observance is sponsored by the North Carolina Dental Hygienists' Association. Cox said dental hygienists have "served the public in clinics, schools, hospitals, and private practice with dedication and with an unassuming profile."

He said their main function has been to treat and educate the public about prevention of dental disease.

"It is the continuing goal of this nurturing profession to stress dental disease prevention," he said.

Society Meeting Is Set

Unit 218, Woodmen of the World Insurance Society, will have its covered-dish supper meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. at the home of Mrs. H.B. Randolph. Plans for the Christmas meeting will be discussed.

Project Dedication Is Planned

Pitt County Drainage Districts No. 3 and No. 7 will hold a dedication ceremony Nov. 23 for the Swift Creek Watershed Project outdoors at Chicod on N.C. Hwy. 43 approximately 10 miles south of Greenville.

In case of rain, the ceremony will be held at Timothy Christian Church in Gardnersville.

Speakers include Congressman Walter B. Jones, Coy Garrett of the Soil Conservation Service and Carroll Pierce of the N.C. Division of Soil and Water Conservation.

Tar River Civilians To Meet

The Tar River Civilians will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church.

The speaker will be Brenda Gray, executive director of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County. Her subject will be "Mental Health and You."

Weeks Observed At Falkland

Falkland Elementary School will observe Book Week and American Education Week Tuesday-Friday with the following activities scheduled:

•Tuesday, 9:30 a.m., assembly program entitled "The First Thanksgiving" will be presented.

•Wednesday, 1:30 p.m., storytelling by Mrs. Jane Maier from East Carolina University.

•Thursday, 1:30-2:30 p.m., film on "Mystery of Bear Valley."

•Friday, 1 p.m., storytelling by Dottie Bryant of Sheppard Memorial Library and Bernard Haselrig of Pitt County Schools.

Course On Women Planned

A course entitled "Self Preservation for Women" will begin Wednesday from 7-9 p.m. in room 213 Whichard on the Pitt Community College campus and will last for four weeks.

The course will cover goal-setting, career growth, personal image, attitudes and personal attainment.

For further information call 756-3130, extension 317.

Organization Plans Meeting

The Pitt County Black Concerned Women will meet Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Rosa Barrett Barnes, 1226 Farmville Boulevard.

Internship Is Announced

Ms. Rebecca Lynn Lister of Shelby has received an internship appointment to the Pitt County Health Department.

Under the supervision of Ms. Patricia Byrd, senior health educator, she is engaged in a variety of educational activities, including the auto safety seat program for infants, family planning and the Pitt County Action Coalition for Teens. Upon graduation, she will be eligible for certification as a public school teacher or a public health educator.

Branch Bank Gift Is Made

A gift from Branch Banking and Trust Company is being used to purchase new carpeting and drapes for interview areas at the East Carolina University Career Planning and Placement Service offices in the Bloxton Building.

The contribution was recently presented to ECU officials by BB&T Executive Vice President Henry Williamson and Vice President Henry Skinner. Representing the university were Chancellor John Howell and Furney James, director of the career planning and placement service.

In voicing his appreciation, James said that the new drapes and carpeting will make the office "a more comfortable and productive setting for students and company representatives to conduct their interviews."

Conley Band Boosters Have Drive

Members of the D.H. Conley Band Boosters are conducting a drive to raise funds for uniforms and instruments for Conley's five-year-old musical unit which has already performed at numerous parades and activities, including Mardi Gras.

Bill Plueddemann, band boosters spokesman, said the organization hopes to raise at least $10,000 through several activities in order to meet band needs and provide an opportunity for students to participate in the Conley program.

Plueddemann said the third annual auction of items given by area merchants and supporters is planned for Saturday at the school auditorium and a barbecue dinner is set for Dec. 3. The club has an on-going pizza subscription project, he said, and a spring flea market and weekend car wash efforts are also aimed at raising money.

The Conley band has 86 members and includes four musical segments, said Plueddemann, including marching, symphonic, stage and concert units. The Marching Vikings includes 60 instrumentalists, 20 flag girls and six majorettes.

The spokesman said uniforms and instruments will be needed for 80 additional students who will join the band program from area feeder schools.

James M. Fleming serves as band director.

Sales Gallery Will Open

The Greenville Museum Sales Gallery is holding its gala opening this week Wednesday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The public is invited to come out, browse or invest in watercolors by members of the North Carolina Watercolor Society, lithographs, ceramics, turkish rugs, jewelry, belts, handcrafted toys and miniatures and much more.

All proceeds will be turned over to the Greenville Museum of Art.

Artists who would like their work represented may contact the gallery at 758-1946. The gallery is located in the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 S. Evans St.

Most Passed Teacher Exam

ECU News Bureau

Ninety-five percent of 300 East Carolina University students who took the National Teacher Examination Area Exam during the 1982-83 academic year passed, according to Dr. Charles R. Coble, acting dean of the School of Education.

Dr. Coble, who is also coordinator of teacher education programs, said only 15 students out of 300 failed.

One hundred percent of the students in the fields of mathematics, media/library science, industrial arts,

English education, art education, music education, foreign language, business education, guidance counseling and theatre arts passed the exam.

In early childhood, 94.23 percent passed; in special education, 94.74 percent passed; intermediate education, 90.24 percent passed; speech and audio pathology, 92.86 percent passed; science education, 90.91 percent passed; home economics, 90.91 percent passed; social studies, 90 percent passed; and in physical education, 93.94 percent passed.

Tickets Still Available

A small number of tickets for the Tuesday evening concert by the TAC Air Force Band of Langley Air Force Base remain available.

As long as the supply lasts, these can be picked up at The Daily Reflector Office or at the AFOTC office, Wright Annex building, on the East Carolina University campus during regular operating hours.

The concert is will begin at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. It is free and open to the public; however, admission is by tickets secured in advance. The concert will feature classical, popular and military music.

SOCCER PLAY DAY ACTIVITY...A youngster prepares to put the ball in motion at Pitt County's annual Soccer Play Day Saturday. Seventeen teams from across the county participated in the event which featured a skills competition and a single elimination tournament. The soccer program and the Play Day is sponsored by Pitt County Community Schools and local recreation departments. Results will be announced later this week. (Barry Gaskins Photo)

P&Z Agenda

An eight-item agenda, including three rezoning requests, is scheduled for consideration Tuesday by the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission, meeting this month at 6 p.m. at city hall.

Business includes: consideration of a proposal regarding sections of the zoning ordinance referring to nonconforming structures and uses and parking area location criteria; a request by Residence Quarters Investors to amend the zoning ordinance; a report and recommendation of the five-year annexation subcommittee;

A request by the city to zone 301 acres in the extraterritorial area adjacent to and in the vicinity of Eaton Corp. to nonoffensive industry and 125 acres to RA-20 (residential-agricultural); a request by the city to rezone 11.1 acres north of Secondary Road 1529 and east of Secondary Road 1590 from RA-20 to nonoffensive industry;

A request by John H. Wellons to rezone .924 acres at the eastern corner of Verdant Street and East 10th Street from shopping center to R-6 (residential); a request by Collice Moore to rezone .60 acres at the southeast corner of Eastbrook Drive and Luci Drive from shopping center to office and institutional; and a request to name a portion of a street Dexter Street, located at the end of Country Club Drive.

The board's annual meeting will be at 7 p.m. following the regular session.

Mental Health Perspectives

Understanding Stress

by Lou Gilbert
Adult services, Psychologist

Stress in everyday life basically comes from three sources: our body, our environment, and our thoughts. Physiological stress may result from illness, accident, or poor diet. Environmental stress include pollution, weather changes, crowding, time limits and other visible pressure producers. Environmental threats also produce body changes which are themselves stressful. When we feel threatened, physically or emotionally, our brain automatically speeds up in preparation to confront or escape the threat. Our pupils become larger to see better, muscles tense, heart and respiration rates increase and the body mobilizes its resources to fight or flee. This is called the "stress response."

This response may also be activated simply by thinking of a past or anticipated problem. These thoughts can increase muscle tension, and raise heart and blood pressure rates causing an unpleasant feeling commonly labeled "anxiety." Anxiety, then, may contribute to other stress-related problems such as headaches, ulcers, high blood pressure or other illnesses.

When indicators of stress are persistent or recurring it is advisable to have a thorough physical examination and then to consult a mental health professional trained in stress management. Stress management involves a learning approach emphasizing health maintenance through self-control of behavior and body functions.

If you are interested in reducing the stress in your life by learning stress management techniques contact Lou Gilbert at the Mental Health Center-752-7151.

THE ROUNDHOUSE BRIDGE

The roundhouse is one of the most difficult esthetic procedures in dentistry. All of the teeth in one jaw are joined into a fixed bridge. It is generally suggested when the remaining teeth are weak and the best hope for maintaining them (and the replacements for the missing teeth) is to encompass them into one solid unit. "United we stand. Divided we fall."

Like most fixed bridges, the roundhouse is done in either porcelain fused to metal or acrylic veneers. The acrylic veneer is lighter and more flexible, but will abrade and discolor. The porcelain fused to metal will retain its color and texture, but is heavier.

The teeth must be ground parallel to one another so that the fit is passive and true. This is particularly important with porcelain fused to gold, because if the bridge does not fit smoothly, pressure from within the crowns could cause the porcelain to fracture.

A roundhouse can be done in sections, with the individual bridges interlocked, but the greatest support for loose teeth occurs when the bridge is one solid unit.

Two Grenadian Politicians Relate Ordeal In Prison

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Two Grenadian politicians imprisoned by Prime Minister Maurice Bishop say they spent most of their time locked in their cells, passing the days by talking to walls and writing poems on toilet paper.

Lloyd Noel, 48, a former attorney general and friend of Bishop, spent 2½ years in a 6-by-9 foot cell, 22 hours a day, until freed from Richmond Hill Prison on Oct. 26, the day after the U.S.-led invasion of the Caribbean island.

"The only way I could see the sun was through 34 tiny holes at the top of my cell. I counted them every day," Noel said in an interview after his release.

Winston Whyte, 39, said he spent 4 years, 11 days at Fort Fredrick, an army installation on Richmond Hill where several dozen political prisoners were held. He said he was beaten during the first three weeks of confinement and that he knew of several people who were tortured.

At age 24, Whyte was a minister in Sir Eric Gairy's government, which was overthrown by Bishop in March 1979. Later he broke with Gairy, formed the relatively conservative People's Action Liberation Movement and was imprisoned six months after Bishop's Marxist government took power.

Bishop, who was killed during a Oct. 19 military coup by more radical Marxists, had defended the jailing of his opponents by saying it was more humane than killing them — which he said was the only other alternative for a revolutionary government.

Whyte said he spent a 560 consecutive days in solitary confinement, writing poetry on toilet paper, reading the Bible and the Koran and devising a calendar and a code to communicate with other prisoners.

"Sometimes I walked up and down the cell and spoke to great crowds ... just looking at the walls," Whyte recalled in a recent interview in Kingston, Jamaica.

Bringing Pets To Meet Santa

MENTOR, Ohio (AP) — 'Tis the season to see Polly — or even a collie — for a pet shop Santa Claus who's held just about every kind of animal in his lap for Christmas pictures.

"We just did a macaw and a Scottie (Scottish terrier)," said photographer Fran Barkas at Petland of Mentor.

"Some dogs growl at first ... but we make friends. We keep a supply of treats."

"I love this work," added Ms. Barkas, who once helped run a zoo. "It means meeting a lot of new people and is hysterically funny. We've had people and their pets lined up all the way out the door."

"We've even had guard dogs from the police force. And would you believe it, we've never had any trouble."

Whyte estimates more than 3,000 people passed through the prison system during Bishop's 4½ years in power. Grenada, a tiny island in the eastern Caribbean, has a population of 110,000.

Noel said he was never beaten or directly abused in prison, but the "psychological and emotional" punishment was intense.

He said the prisoners got Complete Radiator Service

Sixteen Died In State Traffic

By The Associated Press
A 17-month-old boy was killed when the car in which he was riding ran off U.S. 74 in Rockingham County, struck a ditch and overturned, the state Highway Patrol reported.

Brandon Duran Almond was one of 16 people killed in accidents on North Carolina roads during the long Veterans Day weekend. The Rockingham child was killed Sunday afternoon.

Other accidents included a double fatality involving a highway patrol car and two triple fatalities.

Alice Long, 79, and Rosa Lee Harrell, 78, both of Greenville, were killed Saturday night when the car they were in pulled in front of a Highway Patrol car inside city limits and was struck, said Greenville police officer Wanda Hart.

The driver of the patrol car, Sgt. Steve Compton, was in Pitt Memorial Hospital on Sunday with several broken ribs and a broken ankle, Ms. Hart said. Hospital officials said his condition was not available.

In an accident reported by the Highway Patrol, Curtis Lee Bohné, 21, his wife, Linda Turnage Bohné, 18, and Roy Eastwood, 17, all of Wilson, were killed Saturday morning when a car driven by Bohné was struck by a train after it crossed tracks about two miles south of Wilson on a rural road.

Another accident Friday night took the lives of three Kannapolis residents, the Highway Patrol said. James Donald Campbell, 25, David Sherman Joplin Jr., 16, and Cecil Jackson Bennett, 16, died when a car driven by Campbell lost control, went off the side of the road in Rowan County and overturned in a creek.

The latest reported fatality was Carolyn Lester Holmes, 40, of Rocky Mount, who died when the vehicle she drove failed to yield and was hit by another car in Nash County. The accident occurred Sunday around 7 p.m. on N.C. 97 south of Rocky Mount.

Pedestrian Jerome James Fingeroff, 23, of Rydal, Pa., was killed early Saturday just west of the Greensboro city limits. The Highway Patrol said he was lying on a rural road and was struck by an oncoming vehicle.

Jeffrey Lane Sink, 17, of Lexington was killed at 7:15 p.m. Saturday when he walked into the path of an oncoming vehicle on U.S. 52 north of Lexington.

David Marion Young, 6, of Asheville died at 4:45 p.m. Saturday when the car in which he was riding on Interstate 40 west of Winston-Salem lost control and was struck by another car.

Three people died in separate highway accidents Thursday night.

Nathaniel Levan Gales, 42, of Statesville was killed when his car caught on fire, ran off the road just west of Thomasville and struck a fence.

Pedestrian Clyde Huston Parker Jr., 20, of Lincolnton, was killed when he was struck by a motorcycle operating without a headlight five miles north of Lincolnton in Lincoln County.

Frank Ora Maultsby, 38, of Midland was killed when the vehicle he was driving ran off a rural road in Mecklenburg County four miles east of Mint Hill and struck an embankment.

The patrol said the accidents brought the state's death toll for the year to 1,056, compared to 1,140 on the same date last year.

Car Sales In N.C. Mount

North Carolinians bought more cars last month than during recession-plagued October 1982, although the state's sales rate still lags behind the nationwide rate, dealers say.

Car dealers in the state sold 21,237 imported and domestic cars last month, an increase of 12 percent over last year, based on the number of new car registrations in the state.

Nationally, the increase was 31 percent, according to the National Association of Automobile Dealers, as the number of cars sold jumped to 860,769.

The North Carolina figures could be slightly off because the figures for registrations could lag behind sales, according to the N.C. Automobile Dealers Association.

But local dealers say October still was a good month after several years of weak car sales during the recession, when owners kept their cars longer or bought less expensive models.

"We had a lot of lookers last year," said David Michael Arp, general manager of Bill Arp AMC-Jeep-Renault Inc. in Fayetteville. "This year we've had a lot of buyers."

The beginning of the model year has become less important since the early 1970s, dealers say. This year, some dealers received 1984 models as early as July. Car companies also have been introducing new models, such as Ford's Tempo, in the spring, when cars also sell well.

Still, the glamour of new models and the appeal of lower-priced cars nearing the end of their model year traditionally make October a big selling month.

The Other State Bird

Everybody knows that North Carolina's state bird is the cardinal. But if you looked around eastern North Carolina, you'd probably find more Perdue broilers than red birds.

Over 500 farmers in this state now raise more than 100 million Perdue broilers every year. And these birds are processed at Perdue's processing plant in Lewiston or Robersonville. These broilers get their start in North Carolina as well. Perdue breeder growers in this state ship their eggs to our hatcheries in Murfreesboro, Kenly and Halifax. And their feed? It's North Carolina-grown corn and soybeans purchased by Perdue and processed at feed mills located in Wilson and Cofield, North Carolina.

Facilities like these have helped make Perdue one of the nation's largest broiler producers, and the largest supplier of fresh poultry to the northeast market! And the demand for our products continues! In fact, our broiler plant in Robersonville is planning to open a second shift. As a result, Perdue needs 15 more broiler houses to support the expansion. If you'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-1151 or send in the coupon below.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 50.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 75 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 54.60 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is light to moderate for a mostly moderate demand. Weights are desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,342,000, compared to 1,379,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a broad advance today, extending last week's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 32.01 points last week, rose 8.64 to 1,258.84 by noon today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Last week the credit markets gave a better-than-expected reception to the Treasury's sale of $16 billion in notes and bonds.

Among actively traded blue chips, General Electric rose 1 1/4 to 56 1/4; International Business Machines 1 1/8 to 128, and American Telephone & Telegraph 1 1/4 to 63 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index gained 59 to 96.41. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.17 at 219.96.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 39.81 million shares at noon today, against 27.11 million at the same point Friday.

Pipeline Hearing Today
ROANOKE RAPIDS — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is holding a public hearing at 5:30 p.m. today at the Roanoke Rapids High School on the proposed construction of a pipeline from Lake Gaston to Virginia Beach, Va.

A spokesman from the N.C. Attorney General's office said Attorney General Rufus Edmisten is attending at the request of Gov. Jim Hunt to speak against the proposed pipeline.

The spokesman also said Edmisten has hired former Virginia Attorney General Andrew Miller to represent North Carolina's interests in the matter.

Hunt and other state officials, as well as residents of the Lake Gaston area, have voiced opposition to the proposed pipeline.

The Corps of Engineers has said in preliminary findings that the project will have no adverse effect on the environment, while state and local officials suggest more study is needed.

U.S. Catholic Bishops Told No Confrontation With Pope Seen

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II's recent pointed advice to American bishops on a number of subjects is merely the pope's reasonable focusing of attention on a church with "exceptional influence" worldwide, the head of the bishops' national organization said today.

"Suddenly we read of a confrontation supposedly under way between a rebellious American church, led by its bishops, and a stern pontiff bent on taking us to task," said Archbishop John Roach of Saint Paul-Minneapolis.

Roach conceded that the pope "has spoken candidly" on subjects as parochial as the conduct of American seminaries and as far-reaching as the bishops' widely publicized pastoral letter condemning nuclear weapons earlier this year.

But the archbishop said, "His basic message to us has been one of collegial encouragement and support, not rebuke."

Roach added that the reasons for all the attention were easy to understand.

"Pre-eminent among these is the fact that the church in the United States, because of its size, wealth and access to the media, has an exceptional influence — a ripple effect — on the church in other countries," he said.

Roach, whose three-year term is expiring as president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, made his remarks at the opening session of the group's annual meeting.

This year's meeting has drawn less attention than the one last year, at which the bishops approved a teaching letter condemning even the threat of using nuclear weapons, resisting Reagan administration efforts to soften their stand.

But other important issues remain, including the long-secondary role of women in church positions. That issue was the subject of a pre-meeting weekend conference at which early-arriving bishops heard scholarly reports on women in the early church and talked things over with groups of nuns and other Catholic women.

That conference ended with not even a hint the church might soon relax its ban on female priests — an expected result since the pope himself recently renewed his opposition to the idea in remarks to American bishops.

Roach said questions had even been raised about the wisdom of the bishops' scheduling the conference to talk about the subject.

"Some have been quick to accuse us of defying the Holy Father by doing so, but that misses the point," Roach said today. "Our aim, while remaining entirely faithful to the church's teaching on the question of ordination, has been to address a serious pastoral issue: the perception on the part of many women that the church does not understand or appreciate their legitimate aspirations."

One issue to be considered this week by the bishops — nearly 300 in all — is drafting a pastoral letter aimed at reassuring disenchanted Catholic women. But members of the drafting committee said they were not so sure that would do much good after listening to the women's comments.

During the weekend conference, most of the main speakers supported the idea of wider church roles for Catholic women, contending that limiting the priesthood and other leadership offices to men rose in the second century and later, not directly through the Christian gospels.

None of the main speakers was a bishop, and none of about 75 bishops in attendance said outright that women should indeed be ordained.

Still, it was to American bishops that the pope made his enormous gem he found says the court should analyze the powdery contents of a vial he submitted — what was left after he tried to cut the stone he believed was a 112-carat emerald.

When a woman sued Galen Shaver for money she said he owed, Superior Court Judge Herbert O. Phillips III ordered him to turn over the stone. Instead, he tried to cut the gem, which might have been worth $300,000 if it had been an emerald, and shattered it.

Shaver, now in his fourth week in a Manteo, N.C., jail said by telephone that the court should test the fragments and release him. However, Dare County Chief Deputy Rodney Midgett said Sunday that the burden of proof is on Shaver because the case is a civil one.

No one was shot in the 10 1/2-hour standoff, which ended when police rushed into the Sands motel early Saturday when Lawrence Dennis Hamile, 38, of Santa Ana, opened the door to let his dog out. Eighty people at the Sands and two other motels were evacuated, and Disneyland temporarily closed its main gate.

Hamile returned from service in Vietnam "hating everything" and had been treated in a mental hospital, his father said.

Glenn To Visit Wilmington

WILMINGTON — Ohio Sen. John Glenn, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, will be at the Hilton Inn here Saturday for a wine and cheese reception.

Herb McKim, Glenn's North Carolina campaign coordinator said tickets for the 6:30 p.m. affair are $50 each and will be available at the door, or from the John Glenn Committee, P.O. Box 3667, Wilmington, N.C. 28406.

Glenn, a former astronaut, served two tours of duty at the Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station while a Marine officer.

Lee Walton of Route 1, Greenville, is a member of Glenn's state organization committee.

Cerebral Palsy Telethon Set

Some 75 people from Greenville, Washington and the surrounding area gathered at the Greenville County Club last Tuesday evening in support of a VIP kickoff effort for "Weekend with the Stars Telethon for Cerebral Palsy" to be broadcast on WITN-TV from the Greenville Moose Lodge Jan. 14-15.

The event was sponsored by national sponsors and a local distributor. Many local businesses and organizations committed to the VIP program and fund-raising event for the upcoming telethon, coordinator Nita Rasberry said. VIP chairmen, Connally Branch and Dick Jones, were present, as were Kay Currie and Paul Oughton, representing WITN-TV, and Barbara Thurber and other members of the staff of the Greenville United Cerebral Palsy Center. The goal for this year's telethon is $100,000, Ms. Rasberry said.

Robinson, ECU Set To Open

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina basketball fans get their first look at the young Pirate cage team Tuesday night when the Bucs go up against Yugo Plastika of Yugoslavia. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The Pirates, who may start as many as three freshmen, return three starters from last year's squad, but one of them, Bruce Peartree, is currently on the sidelines recuperating from off-season knee surgery.

In the meantime, the Pirates have only two veterans with extensive game time, point guard Tony Robinson and swing-man Barry Wright. Robinson and backup guard

Herb Gilchrist, are the only seniors on the squad which features six rookies on the 14-man squad. Currently, however, only 12 are practicing. While Peartree is sidelined, John Williams has not yet reported being still with the football team where he is the backup quarterback.

Robinson, a 6-1, 180-pounder from Hyde Park, Mass., is one of two players who started every game last year. Much of that time, although he was the point guard, he remained in the shadow of such players as Wright, and the departed Charles Green and Johnny Edwards.

This year, however, Robinson hopes to come to the fore.

"I've got my hands full," he admits. "I have to show a lot of leadership. A lot depends on me keeping the guys together. They're young, but I like playing with 'em."

Robinson says he's still not sure what character this Pirate team, coach Charlie Harrison's second for the Pirates. "I don't know yet what everyone can do. I do know that they have a lot of heart and they love this game."

He also adds that with the possibility of starting three freshmen, the Pirates may be unique this year. "I expect them to make freshman mistakes. But I hope that they won't make the same mistake twice. They seem to be coming on pretty quick. We weren't near a team when we first started, but we're becoming more of one every day. They're getting used to the system and taking criticism."

Robinson wasn't a big scorer last year, averaging only 5.5 points a game, with a high of 13 against UNC Charlotte. However, he expects to do about twice that this year. "I think if I can score about ten a game, and we work the ball well to our big guys, we can be okay. I'm just hoping that we'll come around by February."

Of the exhibition against the Yugoslavs, Robinson says he's ready. "This is a big test for us. If we can come out and play together and don't panic I think we can win. We're much quicker than they are, and I think that'll be a factor. They have good size, but I don't think they can run with us."

Harrison says that strenght and defense will be big factors in the game. "They are big and they have some fine perimeter shooters. They are a typical European team and they've been together for a while. They're all about 21 or 22."

"The biggest adjustment we'll have to make is against their size. They're not real quick, but they like to pass over you and hit from the outside. They won't take it to the bucket, but they're probably as good a shooting team as we'll see."

Harrison says that it will be good to see how his young charges do against a team like this. "They'll have a good chance to see the physical nature of the game. You can tell them and talk to them, but now they'll have the chance to experience it."

The coach said the Yugoslavs had started their tour — ECU is their fifth game — playing mostly man-to-man defense, but were moving more toward a zone defense. "I don't know whether it's a fatigue factor or that they're just not quick enough to keep up."

The Pirates play their first "real" game of the year on Saturday, November 26, hosting Campbell University in Minges Coliseum.

Cowboys Fall Short After Year Of Rallies

By The Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys have spent all season falling behind and then rallying to win.

And on Sunday, the Cowboys seemed to have the San Diego Chargers right where they wanted them; Dallas trailing 24-6 early in the third quarter.

"We reminded ourselves that they are a great comeback team," Chargers Coach Don Coryell said. "The game was not over."

Once again, the Cowboys came on strong at the end, but the often-maligned San Diego defense managed to hold on for a surprising 24-23 National Football League victory.

"They came out to play and we were ripe for the picking," said Dallas running back Tony Dorsett, held to 58 yards in 17 carries.

In other games, Houston downed Detroit 27-17, Kansas City tripped Cincinnati 20-15, Chicago shaded Philadelphia 20-17, Green Bay beat Minnesota 29-21, St. Louis outscored Seattle 33-28, Cleveland blanked Tampa Bay 20-0, New England bounced Miami 17-6, Buffalo got past the New York Jets 24-17, Pittsburgh defeated Baltimore 24-13, San Francisco shelled New Orleans 27-0, the Los Angeles Raiders slipped by Denver 22-20 and Washington beat the New York Giants 33-17.

The Los Angeles Rams played the Falcons tonight in Atlanta.

The Cowboys entered the game as the only 9-1 team in the NFL while San Diego, with its offense still wobbling since the loss of quarterback Dan Fouts a month ago, was 3-7 after four straight losses.

Yet San Diego's Ed Luther enjoyed his finest day as a pro, completing 26 of 43 passes for 340 yards and one touchdown.

"It's a great feeling," Luther said. "Seems like it's been ages since everyone has been happy."

Host San Diego built a 14-0 lead on a 2-yard touchdown run by Chuck Muncie and 21-yard TD return by rookie Derrie Nelson of a blocked punt, the first time that's happened for the Chargers since 1961.

The Chargers led 17-6 at halftime and increased their lead on Luther's 18-yard scoring strike to Pete Holohan early in the second half.

But Rafael Septien kicked a 37-yard field goal to pull Dallas within 24-9 in the third period and Danny White threw touchdown passes of 35 yards to Tony Hill and 4 yards to Billy Joe DuPree in the fourth quarter.

Dallas got the ball one last time deep in its own territory, but was unable to move and the Chargers ran out the clock.

"It was a lousy, stinking, rotten game," said White, whose team is now tied with Washington for the NFC East lead.

Redskins 33, Giants 17

John Riggins and Washington continued to roll while New York endured another dismal day at home.

Riggins scored on a pair of 2-yard runs, and now has rushed for a touchdown in 11 straight regular season games, tying the NFL mark set by Lenny Moore in 1963-64.

"Who would have thought San Diego would beat Dallas today?" asked Washington quarterback Joe Theismann. "We had to stay with them."

The Giants, 2-8-1, are winless in their last seven games.

"It was our worst performance of the season in certain phases," said New York Coach Bill Parcells.

Oilers 27, Lions 17

Houston finally won a game as quarterback Oliver Luck, making the first start of his career, threw two touchdown passes.

The triumph snapped a 17-game losing streak that dated back to September 1982. The Oilers had lost their first 10 games this season.

"It's only one win, it isn't redemption," interim Coach Chuck Studley said. "Today, we literally rose from the dead." "We feel terrible that it had to happen to us," said Detroit Coach Monte Clark, whose team is 5-6.

Packers 29, Vikings 21

Lynn Dickey threw two touchdown passes as the Packers tied Minnesota for the NFC Central lead.

The visiting Packers, 6-5, recorded their first safety in seven seasons when reserve defensive end Greg Boyd sacked Minnesota quarterback Steve Dils in the end zone for a 19-0 halftime lead.

"This is the most important game for us," said Green Bay's Jan Stenerud, who kicked two field goals. "But so is next week and the next week."

Minnesota running back Darrin Nelson accounted for 278 total yards, 119 of them rushing, to break the Vikings' team record of 265 set by Chuck Foreman in 1976.

Patriots 17, Dolphins 6

Quarterback Steve Grogan sparked New England over Miami and rookie Dan Marino, who began the game as the NFL's top-ranked passer.

Grogan sneaked in for a 1-yard touchdown and set up the host Patriots' other TD with a 44-yard pass to Stanley Morgan.

Marino completed just 14 of 37 passes for 141 yards. The Dolphins, 7-4, are tied with Buffalo for the AFC East lead. New England is 6-5.

"We shut down the rush and made it a one-dimensional game," said New England Coach Ron Meyer. "We thought we could deal with Marino."

Raiders 22, Broncos 20

North Carolina, which has finished either first or second in the Atlantic Coast Conference for almost 20 years, was picked Sunday by sportswriters and broadcasters to win the 1984 conference basketball championship.

The Tar Heels, coming off a 28-8 season in which they advanced to the finals of the NCAA East Regionals, received 860 points and a total of 104 first place votes and four votes to finish second.

"Expectations should be high," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said Sunday during the ACC's Operation Basketball meeting in the Greensboro Coliseum. "But, they're always high in Chapel Hill. We could be a good team, or we could be the first team in 18 years not to be first or second."

Maryland, which reached the second round of the NCAA tournament last season, was chosen second. The Terrapins drew 745 points on two first-place votes, 93 ballots for second place and 13 ballots for third.

"We don't have superstars, but we've got a bunch of kids who work hard and play together well," Driesell said.

Wake Forest was picked third with 627 points. The Demon Deacons, semifinalists in last year's National Invitation Tournament, received the remaining two first-place votes, nine second place votes and 73 votes to finish third.

Virginia, now in the post-Ralph Sampson era, received 493 points, followed by reigning national champion North Carolina State with 390 points and Georgia Tech with 310.

Duke was chosen seventh with 238 points and Clemson was picked last at 225 points.

The Tar Heels and the Cavaliers finished tied for the regular-season title last year with 12-2 records. Maryland finished third and N.C. State was fourth.

Evert Lloyd Tops Gadusek In Final

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd won the $125,000 Lynda Carter Tennis Classic for the fourth straight year Sunday, battering third-seeded Bonnie Gadusek 6-0, 6-4.

Gadusek, 20, of Largo, Fla., playing with one thigh bandaged and one knee wrapped, duelled strongly through the first set, but couldn't play steadily enough to take advantage of some errors by Lloyd.

Lloyd double-faulted twice in the fourth game, but held on with a drop shot and an error by Gadusek.

Lloyd, ranked No. 2 in the world behind Martina Navratilova, took home first-place money of $22,000.

Lloyd, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., has now won 22 of 25 tournaments in Florida, and has won 47 straight matches in the state since her last loss four years ago.

During the 1983 football campaign, East Carolina's Pirates have gained a lot of national attention. Their three games in Florida, lost by a total of 13 points, raised a lot of eyebrows.

The fact that they are one of three teams to have beaten what is proving to be a very strong Missouri team also cannot be ignored by anyone.

But, come this Saturday when the bowl bids are handed out, don't be surprised if the Pirates are left out in the cold.

The NCAA has little say in who goes to the bowls. They only say who cannot go for reasons of probation.

There are 32 spots available in bowls and seven of those are automatically taken. That leaves 25. Our own rough estimate is that there are about 32 teams who have some sort of shot at those 25 places. They range from teams with 8-2 records at this point to those who are 7-4 or 6-5.

Six-and-five? You bet! There are a number of teams in the past few years who have earned a bowl bid with just that sort of record. ECU, with a win over Southern Mississippi this next Saturday, could be 8-3 and guess who's going?

The primary reason: big names mean big bucks. They mean big bucks to the bowl promoters and big bucks to the television people. And for the most part, it's television network officials who'll have a big role in who goes to the bowls that are not considered the "majors," and even in those, they'll have some say so.

They want matchups that people will instantly recognize. Whether or not they are deserving is not the question.

Once upon a time, long, long ago, the type of season you had qualified you for a bowl game. And there weren't that many bowl games either. But now there are 16 for Division I-A schools and "class" isn't always the criteria for selection.

It's unfortunate, but it's a fact of life.

We think — if ECU wins Saturday — the Pirates have proven themselves worthy of a bowl bid. We would like to hope that somewhere there's a bowl committee that thinks so too.

Up For The Shot

John McEnroe reaches high for the ball during his match against fellow American Jimmy Connors in the final of the Benson and Hedges

Grand Prix tennis tournament Sunday. McEnroe defeated Connors 7-5, 6-1, 6-4 to take the title and $48,000. (AP Laserphoto)

McEnroe Behaves In Three-Set Title Sweep

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — John McEnroe defeated a strangely laid back Jimmy Connors 7-5, 6-1, 6-4 Sunday to win the Benson and Hedges Grand Prix tennis tournament for the fifth time in six years.

Near the end of a fiercely contested first set, Connors shouted out and was warned for an "audible obscenity."

It was the second time this week he had been warned for obscenities, and Connors appeared to lose interest in the match after that. He hit loose shots, made flippant comments to the crowd and later renewed his criticisms of the strict way some umpires apply the Volvo Grand Prix Code of Conduct.

"They are taking all the joy and fun out of the game," Connors said. "If they go on like this next year, you won't see me around any more."

Connors, fined $500 for an audible obscenity in a previous round, was fined $750 this time.

He said to American tournament supervisor Keith Johnston: "The number of fines I've had from you this week must be enough to buy you a first-class ticket home."

Connors also was fined $500 for a visible obscenity earlier in the tournament, so he finished up the week with penalties totalling $1,750.

McEnroe, a model of good behavior throughout the tournament, sympathized with Connors.

"He was distracted by what happened, and he never quite got back," McEnroe said.

"I was a little surprised by his attitude in the last two sets. He has always given his best in matches against me before."

McEnroe won $48,000 and Connors picked up $24,000 as runner-up.

Connors still has an overall career lead of 12-11 in matches against McEnroe.

For almost an hour, this final was exciting, played before a sell-out crowd of 9,000. Connors, a service break down, came back with some magnificent returns to level at 5-5.

In the next game, the incident happened. McEnroe hit a winner down the line and Connors let himself go with one word, shouted at the top of his voice.

"Violation of the Code of Conduct," said British umpire Ian Stark. "Warning to Mr. Connors for an audible obscenity."

Connors seemed to treat it all as a joke.

"How many times do I have to say that word to get disqualified?" he asked.

"Go ahead," said McEnroe, and the crowd roared with laughter.

Connors carried on clowning and making funny comments to the crowd. But underneath the flippancy, his game cracked.

He lifted a half-hearted lob for McEnroe to finish.

first set with an angled overhead. In the second set, Connors hit careless shots wide and long as McEnroe pulled easily ahead.

"I think the umpires are coming down on his head," said McEnroe, who has had his own share of discipline from the chair.

"I don't even know what he said, so I can't comment on that. But it's just wrong that this thing has to happen."

It was the second controversial final at Wembley between the two stars.

In 1981, Connors won after McEnroe had collected penalty points in a running feud with the umpire and linesmen.

McEnroe promised before Sunday's match that there would be no repetition of those scenes, and he kept his word.

He apparently got a raw deal at 5-3, 40-30 in the first set. Connors saved the set point with a shot most of the fans thought was out.

McEnroe looked pained but kept his cool. Connors won that game and then pulled level at 5-5, but the umpire's warning came in the next game and the match began flowing McEnroe's way again.

"I was having fun out there and enjoying myself until it happened," Connors said.

He has been playing with a new racket and has told newsmen day after day it was working well. But McEnroe thought the racket might have had something to do with his rival's substandard play.

"You can't use the same racket for years, and then change to a different one and immediately say it's going fine," McEnroe said. "It takes time to play well with it."

Stars Know 'Lonely Feeling'

By The Associated Press

At no time in a basketball game is a player more alone than when he goes to the foul line with no time left on the clock.

That lonely, pressurized situation had no effect on all-star guard Sidney Moncrief as he hit two free throws to give the Milwaukee Bucks a 108-107 National Basketball Association victory Sunday night over the Seattle SuperSonics.

"I felt very little pressure to make the free throws," said the soft-spoken Moncrief, who finished with 30 points. "I knew I was going to make them."

In other NBA games, Portland bombed Atlanta 135-105, Philadelphia outlasted San Diego 124-116 in overtime, Phoenix defeated Golden State 113-98 and Los Angeles outscored Utah 124-118.

Al Wood had given Seattle the lead at 107-106 with a baseline jumper with five seconds to go.

The Bucks' final play was to get the ball to Moncrief, who took a lob pass from Bob Lanier, drove under the basket and was fouled by Wood at the buzzer.

"He threw that lob pass with about 4 1/2 seconds on the clock," Seattle center Jack Sikma said of Lanier's pass. "If he had hesitated a little longer, we may have got him (Moncrief). But Al played it right. It was all he could do."

Wood thought he made a clean block on Moncrief's shot.

"I'm sure I got all ball," he said.

Wood, who scored 11 points, added that "it was a shame the game was decided at the free-throw line with no time on the clock."

After the score was tied 20-20 in the first quarter, Marques Johnson, Nate Archibald and Moncrief scored to give the Bucks a six-point advantage. Milwaukee went on to a 32-27 first-period lead.

With Tom Chambers scoring 12 of his team-high 24 points in the second quarter, the Sonics charged to their biggest lead of the game at 45-40. But Milwaukee scored six straight points to go up 57-53 with 1:02 left and went on to a 59-57 halftime edge.

The Bucks' biggest lead came at 65-59 on Archibald's steal and layup at 9:33 of the third quarter.

Johnson, playing for the first time in four games because of a bruised knee, scored 21 points, while Junior Bridgeman had 16, Lanier 15 and Archibald 11 for the Bucks, who hit 44 of 80 shots for 55 percent.

Seattle also got 20 points from Gus Williams, 16 from Sikma and 13 from Danny Vranes.

76ers 124, Clippers 116

At Philadelphia, the 76ers handed San Diego its sixth straight road loss this season and 19th in a row since Feb. 17 behind Moses Malone's 28 points and 16 rebounds.

Bill Walton's tip-in with eight seconds to go in regulation tied the score at 105-105, but Julius Erving, who hit 10 of 10 free throws, put Philadelphia in front to stay with two foul shots with a minute to go in overtime.

Terry Cummings led the Clippers with 26 points.

Lakers 124, Utah 118

Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 30 points, 13 rebounds and 16 assists as Los Angeles won at home against Utah.

Jamaal Wilkes and Michael Cooper both had three-point plays late in the game to pull the Lakers ahead. Wilkes' layup and foul shot with 1:20 to go broke a tie and gave Los Angeles a 119-116 lead, and Cooper followed with another three-point play to make it 123-118 with 29 seconds left.

Adrian Dantley and John Drew kept the Jazz in the game with 36 and 30 points, respectively.

Suns 113, Warriors 98

Walter Davis scored 10 of his 16 points in the second period, when Phoenix took control of its home game with Golden State.

The Warriors, who got 24 points from Purvis Short, led 24-22 after the first quarter, but the Suns outscored Golden State 30-21 in the second period for a 52-45 halftime lead.

Maurice Lucas, who along with Larry Nance scored 18 points, had 10 in the third quarter as Phoenix built its margin to as many as 17.

Blazers 135, Hawks 105

Jim Paxson, Wayne Cooper and Clyde Drexler led a first-half explosion at Portland that carried the Trail Blazers past Atlanta, which lost its fourth straight game.

Paxson scored 12 of his 24 points and Cooper 10 of his 22 as Portland took a 37-24 lead after the first period. Drexler added 13 of his total of 20 in the Trail Blazers' 39-point second quarter that lifted them into a 76-55 halftime advantage.

The game was never close in the second half. Eddie Johnson led all scorers with 29 points for the Hawks.

ATLANTA (AP) — Los Angeles fights for a share of the division lead and Atlanta fights for survival when the two National Conference West rivals meet tonight on national television.

The Rams, 6-4, need a victory to retain a share of the division lead with the San Francisco 49ers, who defeated New Orleans 27-0 Sunday to drop the Saints one game off the pace in the torrid West race.

Atlanta carries a 4-6 record into the game and will remain in the division cellar, but could close to within one game of the Rams and Saints and stay two games behind the 49ers with a victory.

Despite the records, Atlanta is a 1 1/2-point favorite in the Monday Night Football telecast (ABC), set for a 9 p.m. EST kickoff in Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. The Falcons were assured of a sellout of just over 60,000 when a local television station gobbled up some 1,000 unsold tickets Friday so a local blackout would not be in effect.

The Falcons have lost all four of their games within the division this season, including a 27-21 setback at the hands of the Rams four weeks ago that built Los Angeles' commanding advantage in the series to 25-6-2.

Coach John Robinson of the Rams reviewed the films of the initial contest last week and said that "looking at the first quarter again makes you want to vomit." The Rams were dominated in the first period before claiming the victory.

Five of Atlanta's losses this season have been by a total of 19 points, but the Falcons were trounced last week by the Saints 27-10, blowing a 10-0 lead.

Coaches Differ On Rule Changes

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

AP Sports Writer GREENSBORO, N.C. — Sharpshooters in the Atlantic Coast Conference received a setback earlier this year when the 3-point field goal was eliminated, but that isn't the only rule change for the upcoming basketball season.

Told by the NCAA they could use but one experiment, ACC officials chose the 45-second shot clock (last year the ACC used a 30-second clock). The 19-foot, 3-point basket was scrapped.

Several coaches interviewed at the conference's annual Operation Basketball meeting at the Greensboro Coliseum said they were not pleased with the changes.

"I don't like the new rules," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "Players won't do as well as they did last year because of fewer possessions."

Smith said he expects a return to the low scoring games of two years ago as well as the more deliberate style of play that led to the experiment.

"I think experiments are healthy," Smith said. "Still, the game of the future is the ACC game of last year."

It was North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano who joked last year that his mother could have hit a 3-point shot under the ACC's rules.

"This year, she'd enjoy the pace," Valvano said.

"I thought the games (last year) were great. I loved being in them," he added. "Forty-five seconds is an eternity. Forty-five seconds is absurd."

The conference had five proposed rule changes to choose from, according to supervisor of officials Fred Barakat. It opted for a 45-second shot clock that will be turned off during the final four minutes of a game. Other choices were a 45-second clock to run the entire game, a 3-point shot from the top of the key, a box inside which

Times Change Cage Strategy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Times and customs change, even in basketball.

Julius Erving, the celebrated "Dr. J." of the NBA champion Philadelphia 76ers, recalls one big change during his time as a player.

"I remember in high school one day a guard threw me a leading lob pass near the basket," he said. "I think it was accidental. But the coach was furious and chewed the player out. Now it's become an accepted way to beat a pressing defense by throwing the ball over it, especially to a man near the basket."

coaches would be restricted during the game and a possession arc.

According to Barakat, the arc would have replaced the 10-second mid-court line. Once a team took the ball inside the arc, it couldn't come out.

Another change for the upcoming season gives a team two automatic free throws if a foul occurs in the last two minutes.

"It takes the monkey off the back of the referee," Barakat said, adding that the rule does not apply to a foul in the act of shooting; a player cannot get four points if fouled while making a basket.

The two-shot call will not apply on player-control fouls, Barakat said.

Coaches now have just three timeouts in a televised game. Television usually calls commercial timeouts three or four times per half.

"I think that will keep our game in the two-hour time frame," Barakat said.

T-shirts worn underneath game jerseys must match the color of the jersey, a rule that might have been prompted by Georgetown's Pat Ewing, who has worn two shirts since his collegiate career began. In addition, Barakat said, the t-shirt cannot have any commercial logo.

Officials must now notify coaches and players of a fifth personal foul, and the penalty for a flagrant personal foul is the same as a technical foul — two free throws and possession.

Still Fans Of Old-Time Radio

By ROB WRIGHT
Associated Press Writer
NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — In a high-tech world of cable TV and video recorders, old-time radio fans say no new-fangled entertainment can turn them on like the crackling strains of "The Lone Ranger," "The Shadow" or "The Jack Benny Show."

The 150 nostalgia buffs who attended the eighth annual Convention for the Friends of Old-Time Radio over the weekend shared memories, listened to panel discussions and shopped at a memorabilia bazaar.

The convention, billed by organizers as the only one of its kind in the country, brought together actors from several programs with fans and collectors.

Jay Hickerson, publisher of a bimonthly radio nostalgia newsletter and one of the convention's co-chairmen, said the event attracted fans from California, Florida, Canada "and every place in between."

Hickerson, of Hamden, Conn., said he enjoyed radio because "it's all imagination — you don't see what you're hearing."

He said he specialized in collecting tapes of "Jack Benny Show" broadcasts and named his newsletter "Hello, Again," after Benny's famous opening line.

Seminars were offered on such topics as the career of Edgar Bergen, a review of the radio days of "Gunsmoke" and the collecting of radio logs. At a banquet Saturday evening, awards were given and cast members of "The Shadow" recreated an episode of that series.

The center of attention was a room where memorabilia dealers had set up shop. Collectors could purchase tapes of popular shows including "Amos and Andy," "Fibber McGee and Molly" and "Dick Tracy," and those of lesser-known ones like "The Baby Snooks Show" and "I Was a Communist for the FBI."

Other dealers sold glossy photographs, serialized comic books and mimeographed scripts from the programs.

Among the actors present were Miriam Wolfe, who started in radio in 1926 at age 4 and appeared on "Let's Pretend" and "Studio One," and Jackson Beck, who acted in "Superman" and "The Cisco Kid."

One of the most popular tables was manned by Fran Striker Jr., whose father wrote and developed "The Lone Ranger" series, which branched out into books, film, comic books and eventually television after starting on WXYZ radio in Detroit in 1934.

Listeners waited in line to buy autographed copies of Striker's recently published biography of his father, who died in 1962.

Striker, of Lansdale, Pa., said his father came up with the idea of writing a western series while running a radio station in Buffalo during the 1920s. He began selling mimeographed copies of his scripts to other stations, and in a few years had 90 subscribers to his service, which also included science fiction and mystery programs.

After WXYZ offered the elder Striker a job writing dramatic scripts full time, "The Lone Ranger" resulted. "It was a regular paycheck rather than waiting by the mailbox for the mailman. Those were Depression times and it appeared to be a good decision," the writer's son said.

Striker said that his father, who had never visited the West until "The Lone Ranger" became a TV series in the 1950s, developed the settings for the program "out of his imagination and his reading."

He studied maps, Striker recalled, adding that the name of Tonto, the masked man's Indian companion, came from a "hole in the desert" in Arizona called Tonto Springs.

Of the heroic character his father created, Striker said, "It was the intent of everyone involved — they wanted someone children could look up to and model their lives after."

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Sidestep any arguments and disagreements during the daytime and use more care on the highway against any accidental conditions. You will be able to handle meetings easily.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be most careful in handling private affairs during the daytime. At night, concentrate on methods for expanding.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be careful not to quarrel with a friend, otherwise it may result in serious trouble. Being sure of yourself is important.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you take any risks during the day, you could jeopardize your worldly status. Tonight is fine for discussions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You will be giving an opponent the upper hand if you permit your feelings to get hurt. Be objective.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Pride could deter your progress today. Bend a little for good results. A loved one needs your attention tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't be forceful with others, but use tact and safeguard your reputation. Spend some time improving your appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you keep that promise made since trying to squirm out of it could get you in big trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Steer clear of that overly fussy pal and concentrate on increasing your assets and income. Be frugal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't argue with one in the business world and then you find that career affairs improve.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new contact can prove aggravating, so side away as quickly as you can. Seek out those who are agreeable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Postpone business affairs that require much wrangling and handle those that are pleasant early in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A partner may be in a fighting mood and want to scrap with you, but avoid him and be happy in the company of good friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young persons who is able to understand and handle problematical affairs in a most intelligent way. Teach early to be more harmonious with others and not bullish or forceful.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Had To Drop Plan Of Divorce Auction

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — A lawyer who offered a "free divorce" as an auction item to help his Roman Catholic parish raise money had to drop the idea after a storm of protest.

"There were enough eyebrows raised that we asked (the auction committee) to withdraw the item," said the Rev. Dennis Duggan, assistant pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower in suburban Detroit. "It remained on the list, but it wasn't sold."

Numerous phone calls from angry parishioners persuaded the church to take the action before the weekend event, Duggan said.

Attorney Patrick O'Connor, a church member, said he was "a little disappointed" the item was not auctioned.

"It was part of a package of free legal service I offered," O'Connor said. "It was partly in jest."

The Roman Catholic church frowns on divorce, and allows remarriage only if the first marriage is annulled by a church court.

The Rev. Robert Sable, who heads the church panel that governs annulments, said Sunday that the "free divorce" offer was a "gross error" by auction planners.

"There were a lot of disappointed people there (at the auction), including a group of women who were going to bid on the divorce. They said they wanted to hold it as a threat over their husbands," O'Connor said.

Today's Cryptquip clue: G equals M.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♣KJ72 ♦K954 ♠J10762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take now?

A.—What started out as a moderate hand has improved tremendously because of the double fit. We feel that anything less than a jump to three spades does not come close to doing your hand justice. Naturally, we prefer the major suit since we need only ten tricks for game instead of 11 in clubs.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK ♠AK9763 ♦AQJ ♠92
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♦ Pass 2 NT 4 ♦ ?
What action do you take?

A.—First, you cannot bid four hearts — partner might have nothing, and you can't guarantee ten tricks in your own hand. Once you realize that, your course of action is obvious — pass. Since your opening bid was forcing, partner cannot pass. If he has no offensive values, his only recourse is to double four clubs. That might be your only plus score.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥A105 ♦93 ♠Q9852
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—You have the values for a jump raise to three spades, but you should avoid taking that action with only three-card support if you have any reasonable alternative. Make the temporizing bid of two clubs — you can jump raise spades at your next turn.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable with 60 on score, you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥A105 ♦93 ♠Q9852
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Now a bid of two clubs would not be forcing, because that would complete the game. Since clubs might be an inferior contract, you cannot take the risk of partner passing. We would make the slight underbid of a raise to two spades. Partner should allow for the fact that you could be a bit heavy for your response. If he has a very good hand, he is still free to make a move toward slam. Naturally, you will be glad to cooperate.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K8 ♥A1052 ♦AK96 ♠Q7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass
3 NT Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Your hand is too good to give up on slam just yet. You should continue searching for the best spot to play the hand by bidding four diamonds. If partner raises to five diamonds, we would continue to slam. If he signs off with four no trump, we would make one more try by raising to five no trump.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Glenn Miller of Johnston County says he's finding it difficult to get a word in edgewise with the crowded field of 1984 candidates.

Miller says it may have to do with the fact that he is leader of the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan but argues that's no reason to limit his right to speak.

"The liberals ... want to establish an extreme, leftist, socialist government in society that leaves no room at all for right-thinking people," said Miller, who announced his candidacy Oct. 12.

None of the recent polls on the governor's race has included the names of Miller or Robert L. Hannon of Greensboro, the only black running for governor. Hannon announced his candidacy Sept. 9.

Philip Meyer, a professor at the University of North Carolina Journalism School and director of the recent Carolina Poll, said he didn't include Miller's or Hannon's names because he didn't know they were running.

He said journalism students gathered the names of potential candidates from newspapers and interviews. The survey was begun just days before Miller announced as a candidate.

"At this stage of the game a lot of people are thinking about who to vote for governor," Miller said. "This has a tremendous effect on their thinking."

He argues that because he is a conservative the media is not concerned whether he gets equal treatment but if he were a liberal candidate, "They'd be screaming bloody murder."

He said a right-wing candidate is forced to spend three times as much money as a liberal to get the same amount of publicity.

Miller hasn't been invited to any of the candidate forums and was angered at his exclusion from the weekend meeting of the North Carolina Association of Educators' Political Action Committee for Education.

Frances Cummings, NCAE president and PACE chairman, said she had no intention of inviting Miller.

"The NCAE does not consider him a viable candidate," she said. "The NCAE knows of no law which requires it to provide a podium for the representative of an organization whose views it abhors."

Hannon is having exactly the opposite kind of problems as Miller.

"I'm getting too many invitations," he said. "My main concern is getting around where a lot of blacks are."

He said very few blacks have attended the meetings to which he was invited.

Hannon said he gets a schedule of events from the Democratic Party and the invitations follow. He said he thinks the fact that he's black "has been something that has stimulated interest in inviting me."

Democratic Party Chairman David Price said he keeps a calendar of campaign events and provides groups that want to hold forums with a list of Democratic candidates. He could not say whether Miller's name is on the list.

"We have not really known about him because he has not been active in the party," Price said of Miller.

Emergency Spending Bill Now Ready For Signature

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government was open for business as usual today after the House and Senate spent part of the holiday weekend passing an emergency spending bill that President Reagan is expected to quickly sign.

Much of the government has been technically without money since midnight last Thursday due to congressional inaction on five of 13 regular annual appropriations bills.

In this case the midnight Thursday deadline was met at 12:40 p.m. Saturday, when the Senate gave final congressional approval on a voice vote. Earlier Saturday, the House approved the measure 173-136. There were 126 House members absent and not even enough senators on hand for a roll call in that chamber.

Despite the lapse in funds, there had been no noticeable impact on federal operations because Veterans Day, followed by the weekend, gave federal workers three days off. The indication that the president would sign the legislation upon his return from Asia today was sufficient to allow government agencies to open today.

The emergency bill will provide money for the operations of the departments of defense, state, justice, commerce, treasury and agriculture as well as the Postal Service and various smaller agencies for the remainder of the fiscal year — which ends Sept. 30, 1984 — if a regular appropriation is not enacted.

A veto confrontation over the bill was averted when Democratic leaders in the House backed off on nearly $1 billion in additional education and social spending and settled for 10 percent — $98.7 million.

As with previous emergency measures that are required to avert a shutdown of government operations, the legislation headed off a scramble among legislators who eagerly lined up to tack on pet projects that, under ordinary circumstances, would have little chance of enactment.

The desire for add-ons was so great that senators subjected themselves to a 19-hour session lasting until nearly 4 a.m. Friday to pin 47 amendments onto the legislation.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, called it "self-flagellation."

Once the House and Senate pass different versions of a bill, negotiators from each chamber gather to write a compromise measure. Here, the pleading begins on behalf of the pet projects.

Some legislators, like Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-

Tenn., have an easy time keeping things they want in the bill.

At Baker's behest, the emergency bill included $6.4 million — to be refunded through user fees — for the use of the Tennessee Valley Authority to improve white-water rafting conditions on the Ocoee River.

One of those drafting the compromise bill, Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., the senior Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, said during the negotiations that the item "is really an embarrassment." But the item stayed after little discussion.

Another of the negotiators, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., sought an exception to existing maritime rules to allow a steamship company in his home state to acquire four vessels built in Japan.

"It's one of those things I've just got to plead with you on," Johnston told his colleagues gathered around a green felt-covered table.

House members grumbled about it.

"If a member asks for something as vital as this is to me, I think you ought to give it to him," Johnston responded after repeated expressions of reluctance from colleagues.

At the end of the negotiating session, Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, agreed Johnston's request could be accommodated, but "I still don't like it very well."

"I am deeply grateful," said Johnston, who is up for re-election next year.

Beast Just 'Browsing'

BALLSTON SPA, N.Y. (AP) — A little aimless browsing on Main Street wouldn't normally attract crowds of gawkers — but when the pedestrian is a quarter-ton of moose on the loose, that's another matter.

The "healthy, happy" antlered beast was spotted over the weekend in Saratoga County, at one point ambling casually past astonished patrons at a diner.

"Everybody's listening to their (police radio) scanners" to hear of sightings, said Hilary LeBlanc, an officer of the state Department of Environmental Conservation. "As soon as there's a report, everybody floods out to see the moose."

There may be only 20 moose in upstate New York, and officials think the young bull that startled residents of Saratoga Springs' Yaddo artists retreat and later wandered into a state park near Ballston Spa is likely a New Englander who lost his way.

"He was just browsing there," said LeBlanc after Sunday's sighting in Saratoga Spa State park.

The 600- to 700-pound moose may be the same one that strolled down Main Street in the village of Hudson Falls, less than 20 miles away, last month.

LeBlanc says the moose, protected from hunters by state law, will not be tranquilized and relocated unless he strays too close to more heavily populated areas. And it's at least a few days' lope to New York City.

Honor Barney Clark Widow

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The widow of the first artificial heart recipient, Barney Clark, has received an award honoring her husband's pioneering role in medicine.

The American Heart Association, at an annual meeting Saturday, presented Una Loy Clark with a special Presidential Award citing her husband's contribution to heart care.

"It's a comfort to me to know you remember and care enough to honor him," Mrs. Clark said.

Clark, a Seattle dentist, died March 23 at the University of Utah Medical Center after 112 days on the polyurethane heart.

Anniversary

Services honoring the pastor's eighth anniversary will be held today through Sunday at 8 p.m. at Well Chapel Church of God in Christ with the following guests in charge:

Monday: Bishop R. Griswold and Brown Chapel and Friendship Holiness churches; Tuesday, Elder M. Dean and St. Paul Church of God in Christ of Rocky Mount; Wednesday, Elder J. Barrett, Holy Trinity Church; Thursday, Elder J. Boyd of Deliverance Temple of Aurora; Friday, Elder J. Hoggard of Hoggard Temple in Belhaven; Sunday, 3 p.m., Elder J. Spencer of Davenport Temple; 11 a.m. worship, Deacon R. Brewington and the members of Wells Chapel Church.

The services are open to the public.
