Soviet Union Announces Nuke Talks Discontinued

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today announced the "discontinuation" of Geneva talks with the United States on limiting nuclear weapons in Europe and denounced West Germany for approving NATO deployment of U.S. nuclear missiles. The announcement that the talks were discontinued came only hours after the West German Parliament reaffirmed that country's pledge to deploy 204 U.S.-built Pershing 2 and cruise missiles on its soil starting next month as part of a NATO plan to install 572 missiles in Western Europe. NATO says the deployment is designed to counter hundreds of Soviet SS-20 rockets already deployed. The Soviets had several times threatened to scrap the Geneva talks if the NATO deployment proceeds.

The official news agency Tass said in a dispatch from Geneva: "A plenary meeting of the Soviet and U.S. delegations at the talks on the limitation of nuclear arms in Europe was held here today. During the meeting, the delegation of the U.S.S.R. announced the discontinuation of the present round of talks without setting any date for their resumption."

U.S. officials in Geneva said the talks were indefinitely suspended and expressed "profound regret."

Earlier today the Soviet negotiator in Geneva, Yuli A. Kvitsinsky, left a session of the U.S.-Soviet talks on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles and told a reporter "the talks are discontinued and there is no resumption date."

The wording used both by Kvitsinsky and Tass left open the possibility that the talks would be resumed. The current round of talks has been held periodically since November 1981.

Before Kvitsinsky departed the Geneva session, Tass issued the first authoritative Soviet comment on the West German Parliament's Tuesday vote affirming West Germany's commitment to deploy the missiles. Tass said the decision meant "The Rubicon has been crossed."

The agency was referring to the name of a stream that Roman leader Julius Caesar led his army across in 49 B.C., defying the Roman Senate and commencing a civil war. To cross the Rubicon means taking an irrevocable step.

"Obedient to Washington's will and disregarding the will of peoples, including their own," Tass said, the West German Parliament has approved "the transformation of West German territory into a launch pad for American first-strike nuclear weapons targeted on the U.S.S.R. and other socialist countries."

A Tass commentary said the West German decision gives "the U.S. president the key to the nuclear missiles whose use would draw a devastating retaliatory strike at West Germany."

$993,022 Allotted Pitt

Net distributable tax proceeds amounting to $993,022 were received by Pitt County for the quarter ending Sept. 30, according to state Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch.

The spokesman said that, on a per capita distribution basis figured relative to population, Greenville received $248,964. Population was listed as 36,869.

Farmville, based on a population of 4,768, received $32,196, while Ayden, with a population of 4,572, received $30,873.

Other Pitt towns, their populations and receipts, included: Winterville, 2,030, $13,707; Bethel, 1,926, $13,005; Grifton (Pitt's share), 1,899, $12,823; Grimesland, 470, 3,173; Fountain, 429, $2,896; Simpson, 417, $2,815; and Falkland, 118,796.

Total Pitt population was listed as 93,558 with the county itself receiving $631,767 and the balance allotted to the 10 towns in the county.

Greene County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $60,524 in net distributions with the county itself receiving $55,828 and the balance shared by Snow Hill, $3,554; Hookerton, $891; and Walstonburg, $249.

Lenoir County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $608,615 with $456,343 going to the county and the rest distributed to Kinston, $138,996; La Grange, 9,611; Pink Hill, $3,307; and Grifton (Lenoir's share), $357.

Martin County, also figured on an ad valorem levy, received $219,678 with $180,094 designated for the county and the balance allotted to nine towns. Receiving shares were: Williamston, $30,426; Robersonville, $6,231; Jamesville, $932; Oak City, $714; Hamilton, $562; Everetts, $314; Parmele, $256; Bear Grass, $92; and Hassell, $52.

Beaufort County totals, figured on a per capita basis, included $393,149 in distributions with $295,626 allotted to the county itself. Seven towns shared in the balance, including: Washington, $63,201; Belhaven, $17,708; Aurora, $5,116; Chocowinity, $5,031; Washington Park, $3,695; Bath, $1,469; and Pantego, $1,300.

Inflation Rises A Moderate 0.4 Percent During October

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices, restrained by the first drop in gasoline prices since the spring, rose a moderate 0.4 percent last month, the government said today.

Food prices, however, rose at their steepest clip since April.

With just two months left in the year, the inflation rate for 1983 was running at 3.9 percent. If that rate persists, it would match last year's rate, which had marked the economy's best performance since the early 1970s.

Prices over the last 12 months have risen only 2.9 percent.

The overall October gain was 0.1 percentage point below the September figure and matched the increases of July and August.

Largely responsible for last month's moderate rise in the Consumer Price index was a 0.4 percent decline in gasoline prices, which are now 8.4 percent below their peak level of March 1981.

But food prices, driven up by higher beef and veal costs, rose 0.5 percent, the Labor Department reported.

Among meats, only pork was cheaper. Fresh vegetable soared 4.3 percent and fruit prices rose 0.9 percent, the result of last spring's freeze.

The bright inflation news has been widely attributed to the fallout from last year's severe recession, worldwide oil glut and abundant harvests.

Economists still expect next year's inflation rate to be a little higher than this year's, a reflection in part, they say, of the economy's improving health.

Their forecast for 1984 is for inflation to be in the range of 5 percent to 7 percent, still well under the 8.9 percent of 1981 and 12.4 percent of 1980.

In today's report, the department said overall energy prices fell 0.4 percent, restrained by the fresh decline in gasoline prices and a 1.4 percent drop in natural gas costs, which had fallen at an annual rate of 4.6 percent over the previous five months.

Gasoline prices had risen 0.4 percent in September and 1.1 percent in August.

Heating oil prices climbed 0.4 percent last month as the winter heating season began in many parts of the country.

Housing costs rose 0.2 percent last month, including increases of 0.4 percent for both homeowners' and renters.

The department reported these other details of last month's price activity:

—Detailing food price changes, the department said beef and veal prices rose 0.9 percent after tumbling through the summer as breeders sent their herds to slaughter rather than pay feedgrain prices pushed higher by the unusually hot, dry weather.

Pork prices fell 1.5 percent. The cost of meals eaten outside the home rose 0.6 percent. Food bought at groceries was up 0.4 percent. Alcoholic beverage prices rose 0.2 percent.

—Overall transportation costs rose 0.6 percent. New car prices were up 0.7 percent and used car prices skyrocketed 2.1 percent.

The higher new car prices, the department added, did not stop buyers from purchasing 1984-model autos at a steeper clip than had been evident at the start of the previous model year.

Over the last six months, used car prices have risen at an annual rate in excess of 20 percent.

CONSERVATION FAMILY OF YEAR ... Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pierce of Farmville have received the 1983 Conservation Farm Family of the Year Award from Area V of the North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts. Farming operation in 16 northeastern North Carolina counties were considered for the award.

Farm Conservation Award Is Accorded

The Robert Pierce family of Farmville has received the 1983 Conservation Farm Family of the Year Award from Area V of the North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

The Pierce family had been selected as Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District's Farm Family of the Year earlier in 1983. Farming operations in 16 northeastern North Carolina counties were considered for the Area V award.

Pierce has been a district cooperator with the Pitt district for over 25 years. The family farms 1,600 acres, including tobacco, corn, soybeans and vegetable crops.

Conservation practices involving erosion control, water management, woodland improvement and wildlife management are used throughout the farm operation. Graded waterways, tile drainage, land smoothing and good irrigation management are part of the total conservation plan the Pierce's have developed.

"The district supervisors and I would like to congratulate the Pierce family for their good work with conservation," said chairman Robert Little of the Pitt district. "A farm improved by good conservation practices is an investment in the future."

Volunteer 'Story Lady' Enjoys Telling Each One

By FRANCEINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

"Children deserve stories, it is their birthright, part of being a child," says Jane Maier. As Pitt County's beloved volunteer "story lady," she has brought stories to thousands of schoolchildren during the past three years.

Her storytelling never fails to hold young, active audiences rapt and spellbound. She has told stories to children of all ages, at programs sponsored by schools, churches, clubs and libraries and says she has "enjoyed every single one of them."

Her listeners enjoy her story sessions, too, greeting her with delight each time she returns. "I get no greater pleasure than watching the faces of children in the audience as they absorb the stories," Mrs. Maier said.

Just this month, her calendar has been filled with storytelling sessions, sometimes two or three in a single day. Her November engagements include sessions at Third Street, Eastern and Elmurst Schools in Greenville; Falkland, Pactolus and Belvoir Elementary Schools; Carolina Country Day School, and Sheppard Memorial Library; and the children's library at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Kinston.

She has also found time to discuss story telling techniques at an ECU child development class and to carry one her regular employment as a coordinator/education specialist in the ECU Office of Cooperative Education.

Mrs. Maier's stories are in demand year round, but near holidays and such special observances as National Children's Book Week in November and National Library Week in April she is kept incredibly busy with scheduled sessions.

In addition to telling stories from her current repertoire of 50 fables, folk tales and stories from children's fiction, she spends many hours searching for new stories to tell, preparing flip charts and other illustrative devices, and gathering hats to wear as props — using different hats to accompany dialogue and description of animal or human characters in a story.

An important item in her story telling paraphernalia is a card file in which she records which stories were told to which groups. Once, she recalled, she had barely begun a story for a primary grade class when one little boy raised his hand to inform her that she had "already told that story" to them the previous year.

"He was right," she said. "I had told that story at his school before, but failed to turn the index card over where it was noted. It's amazing how well little children can remember."

She said she prefers stories with a message. Even the tiniest listener hearing her retelling of Leo Lionni's "Little Blue and Little Yellow" can grasp not only that the color green results from a mixture of blue and yellow; they also find a moral message — that people of all types should live together in harmony.

"I like a good story that teaches a lesson," she said. "After the story, I tell the children what the lesson is."

Her chief purpose in sharing stories and books with the young is not simply to entertain them but to inspire children to go to libraries and seek out books for themselves afterward. Her stories are often accompanied by a display of actual illustrations from the original books which she transfers and enlarges onto flip chart sheets with a pantograph device.

In presenting books as an avenue to pleasure, Mrs. Maier promotes reading to may youngsters who have seldom, if ever, derived personal pleasure from reading.

"Children that don't read lack so much — the excitement, the mystery of books," she said.

"Television is not a substitute; it shows the story, so the child does not have to use his mind to form the images

Dear Abby

People Exaggerate On Census Forms

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is not really a problem, but it's been bothering me.

In the last census questionnaire I put down that our income was at a higher level than it really was—for the ridiculous reason that I didn't want future generations to think their ancestors were poor nobodies. (Actually our income had been much higher, but my husband was laid off at the time.)

I realize now how silly I was. Is there anything I should do about this exaggeration on the census questionnaire?
PROUD BUT FOOLISH

DEAR PROUD: The people at the Census Bureau are aware that some people "exaggerate" their income, while others underestimate theirs. It all averages out. So the word from here (and there) is to skip it.

DEAR ABBY: The man I'm dating exclusively is about to wear me out wanting sex so often. He's 42 and I'm 35. He wants sex twice a day, but he'll settle for once. I don't want sex even once a day; three or four times a week is plenty for me. I dread the weekends.

All our friends knew him when he was married to his first wife. They said he was after her all the time, and after 10 years she was so exhausted she divorced him. I can relate to that. If I don't give in to him, he pouts, nags and acts deprived until I do. I hate having to go through the motions just to satisfy him. I think sex should be a mutual pleasure.

We've been dating for two years and we really care about each other, but I refuse to marry him until this problem is worked out. I think there's something wrong with him. I've never heard of a man wanting sex so often.
NOT UP TO IT

DEAR NOT: Apparently there is a wide disparity in your sexual appetites. Worse yet, he's selfish and inconsiderate.

No woman should feel compelled to "go through the motions" to satisfy a man, or "give in" to stop his nagging.

You are wise to refuse to marry him unless this problem is resolved. If he really cares for you, he will go for counseling. If he refuses to go, say goodbye and wish him luck in finding a more sexually compatible partner.

as he does with stories read or heard.

"Until somebody proves me wrong, I will always be convinced that reading children become reading adults, and that reading adults become the contributing members of society."

Going Too Far

The North Carolina Human Relations Council recently issued an appeal to candidates in next year's elections to keep racism out of their campaigns. The idea is logical and certainly is one that would be desired. Race should not be a factor in a voter's choice of candidates, and the candidates should not cloud the issue.

But the chairman of that council, Jerry Drayton, apparently went beyond the point of cautioning candidates. Wire service accounts of the statement indicate that Drayton specifically aimed his warning to Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, who now — perhaps justifiably — claims Drayton is the only one who has raised the issue.

Helms, who has not yet announced for re-election, and Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt, who also has not announced, are expected to oppose each other for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Helms.

The Associated Press quoted Drayton as saying polls indicated Hunt was the early front-runner and that he and members of the Human Relations Council "were afraid that in desperation the race issue will be exploited" by Helms. Drayton also said the council believes Helms' role in opposing the national holiday for the late Martin Luther King Jr. "was the opening wedge" in a racial campaign. Helms has denied any racial overtones in his opposition to the holiday; contending he only wanted all facts before the Congress before it voted.

We can't say what Helms' motives were; we can only accept his word for his reasons in opposing the holiday, an action in which he was far from being alone.

Drayton, in singling out Helms for such a warning, has done exactly what he said should not be done.

That is wrong, and should never have occurred. Drayton far outstepped the bounds of good conduct. We can only hope that neither camp carries it further.

Common Sense Helps

Thefts of items from parked cars is something that occurs with regularity in Greenville and other cities of the nation.

There have been 194 this year here and the value of the property involved was set at $40,634.

In Greenville, however, Chief Ted Holmes plans to do something about it. He is assigning a team of officers to monitor parking lots and other places where larcenies from vehicles have been reported.

It is a step to be applauded and perhaps it will reduce the number of such thefts.

It might be noted first, however, that the best defense against such thefts lies with the motorist. They should not leave packages or pocketbooks where they can be seen in parked cars and they should never leave unattended cars unlocked.

—Rowland Evans and Robert Novak—

Secret Force Planned

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Secret plans are afoot to convert 600,000 Shiite Moslems in Southern Lebanon into a massive resistance force against Israeli occupation, further threatening vulnerable "peace-keeping" Marines here and presenting menacing implications for the U.S. throughout the Arab world.

The spiritual leader of Lebanon's million-plus Shiites in an interview with us — the first since Israel withdrew its forces to the Awali River — laid bare the advice he is sending his followers in Israeli-occupied territory: "Refuse the occupation, do not communicate or normalize relations with the enemy, express your refusal every minute every day."

Sheik Shams el-Din, the patriarch of Lebanon's near-majority Shiite population and head of the Supreme Shiite Council, sent a collateral warning to Washington that America is held directly responsible for Israel's continued presence in Lebanon.

"We believe that they cannot stay without American acceptance," he told us. One clear implication: The role of the Marines, welcomed here as peace-keepers, is insensibly being converted into that of adversary.

The Supreme Shiite Council should not be confused with the militantly anti-American Khomeini-Iranian strain of Shiite extremists. On the contrary, Shams el-Din is traditionally pro-American. He replaced ill-fated Shiite leader Moussa Sadr, who mysteriously disappeared and is believed to have been murdered by Libyan strong-man Muammer Qaddafi.

He is not anti-western and has never before attempted to exploit his spiritual leadership for political purposes. He is sought out by U.S. diplomats, most recently by Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew last Monday (Nov. 14).

Prospective revolt of the Shiites is one more drop of poison in the Lebanon cauldron. The poison is laced with the same irony that has polluted everything the U.S. has attempted here since the Israeli invasion, and those ironies abound:

* The Marines were welcomed as peace-keepers but are now suspected of arms-length collusion with the Israelis (despite their refusal of Israeli help after the Oct. 23 Marine massacre).

* The Shiites in Southern Lebanon, who never before gave Israel trouble, are now turning hostile even though they benefited from Israel's uprooting of the hated PLO.

* The U.S. is seeking "reconciliation" of sectarian passions that would turn a political wasteland into a stable government, but finds it cannot be done while Israel holds the South. Yet Israel's occupation is directly blamed on the U.S.-sponsored troop withdrawal agreement written with disregard for Syria's historical power throughout Lebanon.

Shiite patriarch Shams el-Din is not trumpeting armed revolt. He is appealing for "civil resistance." He told us that despite his warnings about continued Israeli occupation he is not sure "that Americans understand." Those warnings were taken directly to the State Department last month by one of his agents, a Shiite member of the Lebanese Parliament.

Discussing government paralysis here, he said American "intimacy" with President Amin Gemayel's "ruling regime," a minority faction of Christians, contrasts sharply with American "suspicious" of all other factions in Lebanon's fragmented politics.

WASHINGTON — Two years ago, you will recall, Congress rose with some semblance of statesmanship to the problem of the nation's "entitlement" programs. The programs had gotten badly out of hand. Congress put its pruning knives to work, with the result that some of the entitlements were clipped here and there.

These efforts at restraint aroused widespread, if not universal acclaim. But now two years have passed, and behold: The things grow back again. For an illustrative example, consider the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act. Last month the House voted overwhelmingly — by 306 to 114 — to restore the prudent and reasonable cuts it had approved in these programs in 1981.

Some of us Neanderthal types have a problem in justifying the school lunch and nutrition programs at all. We recollect that no such programs were operating in the pit of the Depression, and we cannot recall that millions of children keeled over from rickets, spavins or tapeworms. Children brought their lunches to school in those days, and the better-off kids shared their brownies and peanut butter sandwiches with playmates who weren't so well off, and we all survived. But let it go.

The original justification for these programs was not to help hungry children; it was to help surplus-ridden farmers. That purpose explains why the programs still are under the Department of Agriculture and not under the Department of Health and Human Services. It's the farmer's welfare that matters. But over the years the several nutrition programs have become entrenched in the welfare state. The subsidies go to all children whose families are entitled to them. Well over 10 million children receive wholly free lunches each year; another million children pay a reduced price for their lunches. About 3 million children get free breakfasts, and more than 1 million get fed in child-care centers and day-care homes. It all adds up to about $3 billion a year.

It took real political courage for members of Congress to vote for even the modest reforms of 1981. Courage now has fled to the hills. Under the bill approved by the House, families of four with incomes up to $19,305 would qualify for the free school lunches. The current limit is $18,315.

There is a little something in the House bill even for the well-heeled families who send their children to private schools. At schools with a tuition as high as $2,500 a year, children would qualify for a subsidy of $37 a year — about 20 cents per lunch.

Many middle- and upper-income families have children in day-care homes or child-care centers. Typically a child is dropped off about 8:30 in the morning and picked up in the late afternoon after school. Until the 1981 cutbacks, these children were entitled to three meals and two snacks a day. The 1981 budget bill cut the program back to two meals and one snack. The bill just passed in the House would restore the third meal and the second snack.

If we ever are to witness a reduction in our $200 billion deficits, Congress will have to come to grips with such programs as the child nutrition programs. The Department of Agriculture places the cost of the just-passed bill at an added $770 million over a five-year period. If this outlay benefited children at or below the poverty level, well and good; we would have to raise the money and pay for it. But it strikes me as preposterous for families with incomes of almost $20,000 a year to be subsidized to the tune of $162 a year for each child in school. The family that can pay $2,500 a year to keep Little Willie in a private school doesn't need help from the taxpayers. Let Little Willie buy his own bananas.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Last Friday the Greenville Peace Committee approved by consensus a statement on the United States invasion and temporary occupation of Grenada. There are substantial arguments both pro and con.

Important arguments in favor are: reversing a brutal coup, enabling early elections, example of early withdrawal, scotching an arms staging area, discouraging similar coups elsewhere in our military orbit, comforting neighbor Windward Islands governments, minimizing casualties.

Major arguments against are: almost no consultation with allies, breaking of our signed treaties (U.N. Charter, OAS Charter), weakened international law, broken U.S. Constitution, disrespect for world opinion, endangered medical students, stimulated Communist recruitment, set dangerous military precedent.

Our conclusion is that negatives far outweigh positives and U.S. long-range interests were hurt.

In all the discussion surrounding the broadcast of "The Day After," I am saddened that so little consideration has been given to the idea of total and, if necessary, unilateral disarmament. I can find no other solution that is acceptable in the light of the ministry and teachings of Jesus. I suspect that that makes me a "radical" in many eyes, but Christ asks that we put our faith in Him, not in reason or reasonable alternatives. Parity, deterrence, stability — all make sense by the world's standards, but each suggests that we should seek to prevent our neighbor from doing evil by saying that we are willing (whether preemptively or in retaliation) to wreak an unspeakable on them as well.

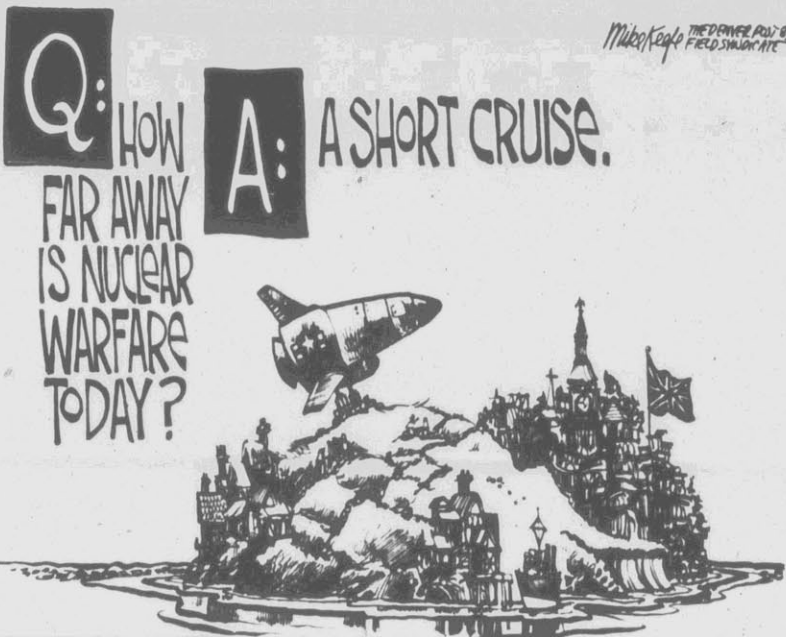

I am not willing to say that, under any circumstances. I am not willing to destroy billions of God's children for the sake of political freedoms. I think that God has said to us that our freedom comes from being His, not being American.

There are many different possible consequences that could follow such a unilateral action by the United States. Some of them I have considered, some have certainly not occurred to me yet. Space does not permit their consideration here. What I think we need to do, though, is struggle with our feelings about those consequences, not seek to cure a worldly illness with the worldly means that caused it.

election. Agatha says even though she does the talking, the electorate is always studying me."

"What do they ask you?"

"They want to know if Agatha is a good mother, and what she really is like at home. I always say she is a real peachy wife."

"You don't sound like you mean it."

"There are times when I get discouraged. I would like Agatha all to myself and it would be nice if she could spend more time with the children. But I never nag or bother her with family problems because I know she's got too many important things on her mind. When she comes home and we can squeeze in a few hours together, the children and I want her to relax."

"Does Agatha depend on you for political advice?"

"Yes, she's very good about that. She lets me sit in on staff meetings at our house after I've served everyone a buffet dinner. She's told me many times I have a better reading on the public pulse than she does, because they say things to me that they're afraid to say to her."

"Could you give me an example of the kind of advice you give her?"

"Well, Agatha, being a woman, is against nerve gas."

"And you're not?"

"There are a lot worse things than nerve gas. But even if she doesn't agree with me, she's very interested in what the male gender is thinking. I wish I could say the same thing for her staff."

"They don't like you to talk to Agatha about politics?"

"They treat me like a dodo."

"How is that?"

"When I'm out campaigning someone is always afraid I'll make a slip if I extemporize, so they insist I stick with the script they've written for me. It's an awful speech, but every time I want to change it they say I could lose the election."

"Are you jealous of the men around Agatha?"

"Not really. I know they are only attracted to her for her power. I can put up with a lot as long as she doesn't humiliate me or the children in public."

"But at least as a politician's husband you get invited to a lot of parties. That must be fun."

"It would be if someone knew my name. Agatha always introduces me by saying, 'I'd like you to meet my better half.'"

"I notice you're darning your wife's pantyhose."

middle we get by."

In accepting the way humans handle affairs, Griffen agrees to be patient, to accept solutions that move in the right direction, and to be satisfied with a balance of imperfections rather than quick and maybe dangerous "solutions."

He reasons, for example, that if the country went too rapidly from fiscal deficit to fiscal surplus it might truncate the recovery, not just in the United States but throughout the world.

Without endorsing deficits as such, he even contends that the imbalance of federal funds and receipts, so often damned by economists, could also be credited with giving thrust to the economic recovery.

"Over time," he agrees, "we have to get there," meaning a position closer to balance between federal revenues and expenditures. But, he says, to do so immediately "would not be responsible in a world setting."

As he sees it, the world setting is one in which the rest of the world, developed and underdeveloped, depends on the U.S. economy to be the engine of recovery, pulling other economies until their own engines turn over.

He maintains that to suddenly cut power to the U.S. locomotive by insisting on a balanced budget and payment of debts would "not be a responsible approach to governance." It would mean, he said, "a cold water bath" for the world, "a replication of the 1930s," an event with terrible social consequences.

"The grubby reality is that once you get too deeply into debt you just have to work your way out of it," he says. It applies, he adds, to individuals, to institutions and to nations.

In accepting human nature, Griffen avoids the distress of many economists. He doesn't insist the world settle accounts now. "Barely enough is enough for now, because another crisis is down the road," he says.

Surveying the economic scene, he concludes that somewhere in the middle is the golden mean — a moderately inflationary recovery in which both expansion and contraction are kept in check.

they should act in reference to it.

Probably the inner voice is more fully developed in all of us than we believe. We can be sure that the voice has more significance for the solution of our everyday problems than anything we might find in books.

The inner voice has a message for us because it is in some way connected with universal wisdom and with God himself. So let us listen, and follow its counsel.

Do we have an inner voice? Not the voice of the conscience telling us what is right and what is wrong, but an inner voice guiding us on matters which perhaps have no particular moral significance?

It would certainly seem that the inner voice is real. In some people it is so marked that they appear almost clairvoyant. They anticipate the coming of good fortune or bad. They can tell pretty accurately when they confront a situation just how

NEW YORK (AP) — Few there are who do not become impatient with economic disorder, and who therefore demand, of nobody in particular, that we clean up the mess, wipe the slate clean and begin again.

The list is long. Settle the budget deficit. Make Third World nations pay up. Force banks to write off their bad loans. Correct the trade deficit. Put Social Security on an actuarially sound basis.

What they ignore, says Jim Griffen, is that humans are imperfect, singly and through their institutions ... and that their economies will, therefore, be imperfect too. In fact, a bit slobbish.

"Pure theoreticians find this distressing, but they're living in an unreal world," says Griffen, an economist who finds little merit to ignoring reality. Theorists, he says, "don't permit people to be human on a national scale."

Griffen, who does his thinking for Aetna Life & Casualty, accepts as being human the propensity of people to go over their heads in debt, to put off major decisions until crises develop, and to somehow muddle through.

He remains suspicious of the various points of view that claim theirs is the way to go. "I am not convinced of the

Outspokenness Is Part Of Israeli Army

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — In Israel's army of civilian soldiers, spit-and-polish is often scoffed at, rank does not always have its privileges, and privates tell prime ministers what they think about policy.

The army of 130,000 regulars and 310,000 reservists reflects the faults and strengths of Israeli society as a whole. It is made up of shopkeepers and farmers, clerks and plumbers whose opinions span the political rainbow and who have made individualism a hallmark of the military.

"In every tank and every armored personnel carrier, you have representatives of contradictory political philosophies. Everybody knows what everybody thinks, but there is no need for a soldier to be in agreement with his superiors on the political level," said army spokesman Brig. Gen. Yaacov Even.

Joining in public debate is against army regulations, but soldiers often express strong opinions when talking politics with reporters. Senior officers customarily explain the reasoning behind their orders to the rank-and-file, and in non-combat situations it is not uncommon for privates to debate their lieutenants about the interpretation of orders.

Individualism and initiative have, in fact, led to sensational battlefield victories for Israel's army. But in a society fretting over 160-percent-a-year inflation and torn by dissent over the Israeli occupation of Lebanon, individualism has drawbacks disturbing to army commanders.

In early November, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir was confronted by an outspoken young soldier while on a tour of south Lebanon. The bearded young man told Shamir he hoped more Israelis would refuse to serve in the military, and said he felt as though he was in a "movie about Germans in World War II or Russians in Afghanistan."

Many young Israelis, more money-conscious than previous generations, are less willing to forsake high-paying jobs in the private sector for long-term commitments to the army.

Even, in an interview with The Associated Press, said the army is having trouble attracting the engineers, computer scientists and electronics experts who can make better money out of uniform.

Under Israeli law every man must serve three years in the army upon turning 18, and every woman two years. Annual reserve duty — for men only — keeps the army war-ready, so that in a matter of hours it can triple its size.

Almost the only exceptions are granted to ultra-religious men, mothers and some youths with criminal records.

The kibbutzim, Israel's collective farms, are a microcosm of the problem.

In the past, the kibbutzim provided the army with the cream of its officer corps, including elite combat commanders. Now the farms produce instead many of the leading anti-war activists, including draft-dodgers.

Even said kibbutzniks still volunteered for elite combat units, but the number willing to invest four years in becoming officers had declined. He gave no figures.

To many observers a more significant trend is the phenomenon called "small heads" — soldiers who accept duty in Lebanon but keep a low profile, avoid volunteering and do the minimum to get by.

"We do suffer from new tendencies, small heads, less willingness to accept challenges or express high motivation. We are not overlooking it," said Even, who was trained as a psychologist.

The anti-war movement got a boost during last year's invasion of Lebanon when a highly regarded armored brigade commander, Col. Eli Geva, quit his Lebanon command rather than be forced to attack Beirut.

Anti-war activists say an increasing number of soldiers resort to subterfuge and fake medical excuses or family problems to get out of reserve duty, which averages 30 to 60 days a year for most Israelis.

Israeli newspapers indicate Defense Minister Moshe Arens is considering proposals to crack down on draft evasion and stiffen jail sentences, now only 20 to 30 days.

Even said he personally favored a tougher policy because "refusal to serve is something that a small country like Israel cannot tolerate in the long run. It is undercutting the foundations of our society. We just can't have it."

The debate in the army's ranks preceded the war in Lebanon, and most observers see it as a permanent fixture resulting from Israel's free-for-all democracy.

A few soldiers refused to serve in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River after the 1967 Middle East War, and rightists in the ranks only reluctantly carried out orders to evacuate Israeli settlers from Yamit when Israel returned the Sinai Desert to Egypt.

Dead Animals Pose Mystery

DOVER, Tenn. (AP) — Twenty-five dead farm animals have been found piled along a road in the Land Between the Lakes recreation area, and authorities say they don't know who dumped the carcasses — or why.

"It's very weird," Stewart County sheriff's deputy Ian Smith said Tuesday. "There were two piles of animals located about 200 yards apart. One pile has probably been there about a week and a half and the other about three or four days."

The animals, including horses, ponies, pigs, calves, bulls, cows, burros and goats, were discovered by hunters Sunday in the 170,000-acre federal recreation area that stretches between Kentucky and Tennessee.

"It appears that the animals were dead when they were loaded. We found no bullet wounds," Smith said. "We don't know who did it or why, but we hope that ear tags that we found on some of the animals will help us determine where they came from."

Phil Fedun, Tennessee livestock enforcement officer, said the finding is "unusual because there are so many different types of animals. It's about the weirdest thing I've ever seen."

Smith said that Land Between the Lakes workers using a backhoe planned to bury the animals near where they were found.

"Possibly someone who doesn't have the proper license collected the dead animals from farms in some other county or counties and dumped them here," he said.

Judge Backs Punishment

HOUSTON (AP) — A school district had the right to place two students in a special disciplinary center because they painted graffiti on walls at a rival high school, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda refused Tuesday to enjoin the Spring Branch Independent School District from taking the action against students Cynthia E. Scott and Donald G. Abbott. The Westchester High School seniors were among 35 students who vandalized property at Memorial High School Oct. 10, investigators said.

Their parents sued the district, saying the punishment of six weeks in the school system's disciplinary facility was too harsh. They said the facility was intended for students with severe disciplinary problems.

DeAnda had temporarily barred the district from imposing the punishment Nov. 9, but reversed his decision Tuesday.

He noted that the offenses occurred on school property and that the students will continue to receive instruction at the center, although they cannot take part in extracurricular activities.

DeAnda also said the students and their parents had received adequate notice and the "opportunity for a fair hearing."

John Pizzitola, attorney for the parents, said he has not decided whether to appeal.

Six of the students were initially assigned to the disciplinary center, but a more lenient penalty was substituted for three of them. The remaining 29 received lesser punishments.

Signs Vets Bill Despite Doubts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan signed into law a $30 million veterans bill despite his reservations about what he called unnecessary and costly compensation provisions in the legislation.

The bill calls for a study of veterans exposed to radiation, extends Vietnam veterans' counseling centers and provides for community care to keep aging veterans out of institutions.

The bill also establishes a women's advisory committee within the Veterans Administration.

Commander Talks Role

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A former battalion commander of U.S. Marines stationed in Lebanon said Tuesday that the peacekeeping role is a good assignment, but one riddled with problems.

Marine Lt. Col. Don Anderson, who commanded Marines in Lebanon from February to June, told a civic club Marines have to use self-control not to attack.

"If someone shoots at us, we can defend ourselves. We can shoot back," Anderson said. "But we are a more offensive kind of animal. We have to use an iron will not to attack. So the peacekeeping role is good for us Marines."

But Anderson said it is hard for military intelligence to help defend against attacks such as the October bombing that killed 230 Marines.

"We have a reasonable idea of what the major factions are doing, but they may have only 15 or 20 members," he said. "Intelligence is a problem. First of all, we don't speak their language, and that's a tremendous handicap."

"The situation in Lebanon changes every day. It is constantly changing," Anderson said. "Someone can tell you there's going to be a big attack. You ask where, when and who's attacking who, but they don't know that — only that there's going to be a big attack."

Predicts Drop In Prime Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker predicts that banks' prime lending rates, which have topped 10 percent for five years, will eventually drop below that level if inflation remains at a moderate pace.

Various government measures of inflation, such as the Consumer Price Index, have been rising at annual rates of 5 percent or less this year — far less than the current prime rate of 11 percent at major banks.

However, Volcker said that many investors and lenders still do not believe that inflation is firmly under control. One reason lenders keep interest rates high is to allow for the possibility that borrowers will be repaying in less-valuable dollars because of inflation.

Cuban Nickel Is Also Banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government, expanding a trade embargo started against Cuba in 1963, is banning the importation of Soviet products that may contain Cuban nickel. The new U.S. ban on all unfabricated nickel and nickel-bearing materials from the Soviet Union will begin 30 days from the announcement. Assistant Treasury Secretary John Walker said. The purpose of the 20-year-old ban is to cut the flow of currency to Cuba, Walker said.

Russians Barred From Sensitive Carolinas' Areas

By The Associated Press
While few Soviet visitors come to North Carolina or South Carolina, the State Department has established rules to make sure such tourists would not infiltrate military bases, nuclear facilities and some seemingly innocent areas.

For almost 30 years, the United States, responding to similar restrictions in the Soviet Union, has kept a list of places where visiting Soviets are welcome or forbidden.

The areas are closed to the traveling diplomat, business person or journalist from the Soviet Union, according to the latest State Department rules. The list was updated last week for the first time since 1967.

In North Carolina, Soviet travel is banned in Cumberland County, home of Fort Bragg, Pope Air Force Base and the Army's 82nd Airborne Division, but allowed in Onslow County, which brims with Camp Lejeune Marines.

The high-technology "Silicon Valley" outside San Francisco was just closed, but the Research Triangle Park near Raleigh gas just opened.

But whether the areas are closed or open, neither Charles Heatherly, director of the N.C. Travel and Tourism Division, nor Bill Lawrence, his counterpart in South Carolina, can recall a single Russian tourist in the Carolinas in recent years.

State Department officials won't say just why certain spots are closed, but one obvious justification is security. Richland County, S.C., is home to Fort Jackson — the nation's largest basic-training center.

The State Department admits that sometimes choices are made simply to match a similar area outlawed to U.S. visitors in the Soviet Union.

HONORED — Major David O. Patton, assistant professor of aerospace studies at East Carolina University, receives a U.S. Air Force Meritorious Service Medal from Lt. Colonel James C. Thomas, head of the ECU Air Force ROTC detachment. Patton was honored for distinguished service while assigned to the 42nd Bombardment Wing, Loring Air Force Base, Me., where he was responsible for air refueling operations over a four-year period. A newcomer to the ECU faculty, Patton joined the Air Force ROTC staff in August and is serving as pilot in charge of the cadet flying program. (ECU News Bureau Photo by Leslie Todd)

Thanksgiving Food For 3,000 Needy Is Stolen

CHICAGO (AP) — The founder of a charity group says she's "more determined than ever" to help the hungry, despite the theft of all the food that was to be given to 3,000 people for Thanksgiving.

"The very people who did this need help themselves, you know," said Dorothy Shavers, president of the Self Help Action of Chicago Food Depository.

Volunteers at the 14-year-old food depository on the South Side arrived Monday morning to find that weekend burglars had made off with about $5,000 worth of food.

Mrs. Shavers said Tuesday that she had been depressed about the loss, "but today, I'm all up again. When something happens, I'm more determined than ever."

"Right now, we won't be doing any (food) baskets," she said. "But tomorrow, we're going to try to do at least 50. We got a few calls today with donations, and if necessary, we'll work late. If we have some items to distribute, we'll work on Thanksgiving Day."

Mrs. Shavers said she believes the thieves were drug addicts who will sell the food to small local stores.

Police Detective Tom Flaherty said Tuesday that there are no suspects in the burglary.

About 75 percent of the organization's clients are elderly, Mrs. Shavers said, and the rest are large families. The areas the center serves

Stolen Shoe Laces Sold

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Four youths broke into a shoelace company, stole 28,000 colorful sneaker laces, and sold about half of them in school before getting caught, police said.

Detective Cyril Rourke said the boys forced open the rear door of the Lincoln Lace & Braid Co. on Sunday and made off with 14,000 pairs of laces valued at $16,000. They have been charged with breaking and entering and referred to Family Court.

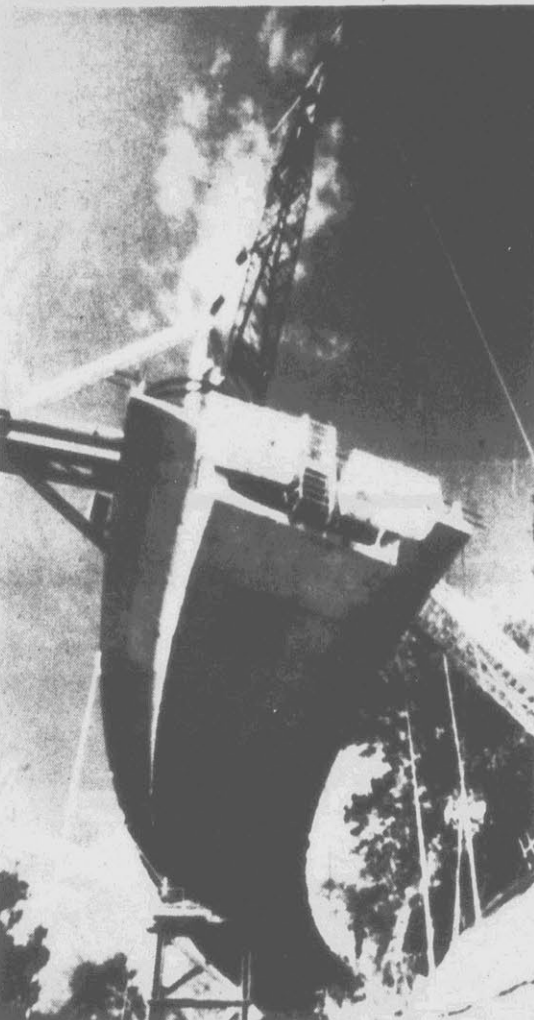

When Rourke went to the boys' homes, all at the same housing project, he said he found "closets full of these laces — I mean literally closets full and bags full of laces."

Detectives spent most of their investigation at the Oliver Hazard Middle School, where "just about everybody had a pair of the things," Rourke said Tuesday.

A teacher at the school helped round up more than a dozen students who had bags of the laces and were selling them.

Police have recovered about half the loot but Rourke was pessimistic about finding the rest.

"I kinda doubt it. Everybody in the neighborhood has got them now," he said.

Tripoli's People Flee Impending Blow

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Citizens terrified by the prospect of more street fighting fled in cars and boats today as Yasser Arafat and his embattled loyalists gave no sign they would bow to an ultimatum from Syrian-backed PLO rebels.

Newspapers in Damascus, meanwhile, claimed President Reagan was setting the stage for an attack on Syria with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's charge of Syrian complicity in the truck-bombing last month of the U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut.

Sporadic sniping flared at Tripoli's northern perimeter, but a lull in heavy fighting continued for a second day as diplomatic efforts to end the three-week-old PLO battle intensified.

The rebels have told Arafat that they will storm the city if he fails to leave within three days. Their deadline for ending the self-declared truce is 1 p.m. local time Friday.

"If he does not go from Tripoli, we will attack him in the streets," Ahmed Jibril, who heads the most radical PLO faction, told reporters in the Baddawi refugee camp on Tripoli's outskirts Tuesday. "This situation will continue for only three days."

A convoy of scores of cars, packed with families and their mattresses, suitcases and other goods stuffed in plastic bags, headed southward out of the city at daybreak.

Other residents were seen sailing in boats to the Isle of Rabbits, a tiny uninhabited patch of land about three miles off the city's coast.

The fighting tapered off Tuesday after the rebels shelled buildings around the headquarters of Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Police said at least 30 people were killed.

The casualty toll among both civilians and fighters since the violence erupted Nov. 3 has reached 428 killed and 2,059 wounded, Beirut Radio quoted Red Cross officials as saying.

The rebels accuse Arafat of forsaking the armed struggle against Israel in favor of a negotiating for Palestinian rights. They also accuse him of corruption.

Arafat has shown no sign of willingness to leave before the Friday deadline. He previously has demanded guarantees of safety for his loyalists, said to number up to 4,000.

France and Italy have said they will provide helicopter-equipped naval vessels to evacuate Arafat and up to 2,000 loyalist guerrillas who came to Syrian-occupied northern Lebanon from other Arab countries.

France has called a U.N. Security Council session for action on the PLO issue and non-aligned nations dispatched the foreign ministers of India, Cuba and Yugoslavia to Damascus, Syria, to mediate an indefinite cease-fire.

Saudi Arabia also sent its foreign minister, Prince Saud al-Faisal, to the Syrian capital on a separate mediation effort, and Arab League secretary general Chedli Klibi set out from his Tunis headquarters on a tour of all Arab capitals aimed at gathering support for a PLO truce.

The U.S. Marine contingent in Beirut went on the highest state of alert after a warning of a possible car bomb in the area, spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said. He said the alert interrupted a Thanksgiving turkey dinner being served a day early for security reasons.

In Washington, Weinberger said Tuesday that the Oct. 23 suicide truck-bomb attack on U.S. Marines in Beirut last month was carried out with "the sponsorship, knowledge and authority of the Syrian government."

The bombing, previously blamed on pro-Iranian Moslem Shiite extremists, killed 239 American servicemen. President Reagan publicly promised that the attackers would be punished, but Weinberger refused to discuss the possibility of retaliation.

The government-controlled Damascus newspapers Al-

Baath and Tishrin today said Weinberger's charge was part of a psychological campaign designed to develop support for a U.S. or Israeli attack on Syria, the Soviet Union's strongest Middle East ally.

"We warn that any aggression on Syria will not be a picnic," al-Baath said. The editorials were quoted on Syria's state radio. "The results certainly will not please Reagan or the American people."

Tishrin noted the scheduled visit next week to Washington of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and his defense minister, Moshe Arens.

"We warn of the consequences of any aggression against Syria and declare that for every alliance there is a counter alliance," Tishrin said, apparently hinting at possible Soviet intervention.

A newspaper in Qatar, meanwhile, quoted Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly as saying plans are under way to revive talks between Jordan and the PLO on a U.S.-sponsored Middle East peace agreement.

The newspaper Al-Raya quoted Aly, who recently visited Jordan's capital Amman, as saying Jordanian officials informed him of the plans but gave no details.

One Glitch For Shuttle Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next space shuttle is scheduled for launch Monday morning, but NASA is still trying to solve a new failure on a communications satellite whose operation is crucial to the success of the mission.

Although one antenna on the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite is out of commission and the other is working only in part, NASA still plans to go ahead with the launch, spokesman Jim Kukowski said.

The nine-day mission of Columbia, the first with a billion-dollar orbiting laboratory called Spacelab in the cargo bay, is devoted entirely to more than 70 scientific experiments. Columbia will carry six men.

On-The-Job Teacher Tests Banned

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Educational Testing Service says tests of active teachers to determine raises or continued employment are "just plain wrong," and is banning such uses for its National Teacher Examination.

Gregory R. Anrig, president of the nation's leading testing service, said it was the first time any such condition for a standardized test was established. He said it came in response to his concern that some education reformers were advocating increased use of teacher testing as a cure-all for the declining state of the teaching profession.

"There is appearing something that is regrettably characteristic of American political behavior — a search for scapegoats and for quick solutions to complex problems," Anrig said Tuesday at a meeting of the Council of Chief State School Officers in Little Rock, Ark.

"It seems just plain wrong to tell someone who has been judged a satisfactory teacher for 10 or 15 or 20 years that the passing of one test on one day is necessary to keep his or her job or salary as a teacher," he said. "We do not require practicing lawyers to retake the bar examination nor do we require ... practicing physicians to retake the state medical examination."

The rule change may throw cold water on plans by some states and school districts, such as Arkansas, Louisiana, the Houston Independent School District and Mobile, Ala., that were considering using teaching exams as a way of raising the standards of already hired teachers.

The ETS revision states that the proper use of the National Teacher Exam is as a hiring tool to show a candidate's academic knowledge and skills — but not to evaluate the performance of existing teachers.

The new guidelines ban use of the exam by school districts or states "to determine the compensation, retention, termination, pay supplements, or change in provisional employment status of teachers once they are hired."

The new rules, however, would allow use of teacher tests for practicing teachers "for purposes of continuing professional education," but only if that didn't violate the restrictions set forth in the new guidelines.

The change doesn't necessarily spell the end to such teacher testing. While states and school districts could no longer use the National Teacher Exam for testing practicing teachers for competence, they would still be free to develop their own tests for that purpose.

The ETS rule change was applauded by the National Education Association, the 1.7 million-member teacher union that took a public relations beating this year for opposing more teacher competency testing.

"ETS is taking a very courageous and helpful stand. It kind of sprinkles holy water on us, for a change," said Sharon Robinson, director of the teacher union's division of instructional and professional development.

The exam, a standardized test, consists of three parts: a "Core Battery," which measures knowledge from teacher education programs, a "Specialty Area Test," to show how well prepared a candidate is in specific subject areas, and the Pre-Professional Skills Test, which measures basic reading, writing and mathematics skill.

Sixteen states use the test to certify future teachers, a use which the ETS says is appropriate: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

They say: "Those who can, play; those who can't, teach!" However, that is not always the case, as was proved again when the pair tournament marking the 50th anniversary of the Northern Ireland Bridge Union was won by R.G. Upton and Patrick Jourdain, editor of the International Bridge Press Association Bulletin.

They were one of the few pairs to reach a club slam on this deal. North's jump to four diamonds following his redouble showed first-round control of diamonds and massive club support, and Jourdain needed no more encouragement to contract for slam.

West led the king of diamonds, and it does not take a great mind to realize that declarer's problem is to avoid losing two spade tricks.

In view of the takeout double, it is equally obvious that West most likely holds the king of spades, possibly the jack as well. Jourdain demonstrated that the distribution of the spade suit was immaterial, but the play required careful groundwork.

Declarer won the ace of diamonds, drew trumps in one round with the ace, then cashed the king and ace of hearts. A heart ruff in hand and a diamond ruff on the table stripped the red suits from the North-South hands.

Now declarer simply led a low spade from dummy and, when East followed low, inserted the eight. West could win the trick cheaply, but he was end played. If he returned a spade, it would be into declarer's major tenace. If he returned a red suit, declarer would stuff one of dummy's two remaining spades while ruffing in hand, cash the ace of spades and the table would be left with nothing but trumps.

'Miss Wilson' Has Relinquished Title

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Jenny Gayle Reynolds, mistakenly crowned Miss Wilson after a ballot miscount Nov. 5, has relinquished her crown and her opportunity to participate in the 1984 Miss North Carolina Pageant.

The resignation means first runner-up, Cynthia Lee Brown, is eligible to serve as Miss Wilson and represent the city in the state pageant next June.

In a statement issued by her attorney, Gregory T. Griffin of Clinton, Ms. Reynolds said the contest mix-up had generated "constant talk and pursuit of the media" which had caused her problems at work and school.

Officials with the Wilson Jaycees, sponsors of the pageant, were meeting Tuesday evening to discuss the controversy and could not be reached for comment on Ms. Reynolds' resignation.

The Jaycees had hoped to work out a compromise by awarding both women $800 scholarships and allowing them both to participate in the state pageant.

But statement issued by Ms. Reynolds said that idea was rejected by Ms. Brown's father, Superior Court Judge Frank R. Brown of Tarboro, during a Nov. 16 meeting between the contestants and the Jaycees.

"What has taken place since that time is something I would not wish on anyone," Ms. Reynolds said in her resignation. "The manner in which this matter was handled in the initial stages were inappropriate and personally damaging."

She said she was not told about the balloting problems until five days after the pageant, and was not told how the error occurred until Nov. 16.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly today, continuing its pre-Thanksgiving rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, up 24.79 points Monday and Tuesday, rose another 1.53 to 1,277.34 in the first half hour today.

Gainers took a 6-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the economic expansion appeared to be proceeding strongly heading into the pivotal holiday selling season for consumer businesses.

Government reports Wednesday showed strong gains in the gross national product and corporate profits for the third quarter, and a 3 percent increase in durable-goods orders for October.

Today the Labor Department said the consumer price index rose 0.4 percent last month, down from a 0.5 percent increase in September.

Middle South Utilities led the active list in the early going, down 1/4 at 15 1/2. A 1.2 million-share block traded at that price.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 7.01 to 1,275.81.

Advances outpaced declines by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 117.55 million shares, against 97.74 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .71 to 221.02. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .41 at 96.33.

Candidate Announces

GOLDSBORO — Gene Baker of Pikeville, principal of Belfast Elementary School, has announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for state superintendent of public instruction.

A native of Wake Forest, Baker received his bachelor's degree in business administration from Campbell University and a master's degree from East Carolina University. He was coordinator of distributive education at Charles B. Aycock High School for 10 years, beginning in 1967, then directed the Wayne County Extended Day School before assuming duties as principal of Belfast Elementary School in 1977. Baker has also been active in the building and insurance business.

He served as chairman of the Wayne County Young Republicans from 1968 to 1972, is a former member of the state Republican Executive Committee, served as chairman of the Wayne County Republican Party from 1975 until 1979, and is now 3rd Congressional District chairman.

Policy Leak Is Being Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating, on President Reagan's orders, the disclosure of secret recommendations made two months ago that the United States increase its military operation in Lebanon, a government source says.

The source said that the FBI has questioned White House and foreign policy officials about the disclosure.

According to another source, Robert C. McFarlane, Reagan's special Middle East envoy at the time and now his assistant for national security affairs, had made the military recommendations and complained that their subsequent public disclosure endangered his life. He was in the Middle East at the time.

Details of the secret investigation were tightly held and even the fact that it was taking place was considered classified.

Several senior White House officials refused to discuss it at all and sources who said anything about it spoke on the condition that they not be further identified. At the Justice Department, spokesman Tom DeCair said "We don't comment on investigations."

Asked to comment on the report as he was leaving the White House to spend the Thanksgiving holiday in California, Reagan said, "I don't comment on any security violations or any investigation of the same."

The Washington Post, in today's editions, said senior administration officials interviewed by the FBI included former national security adviser and now Interior Secretary William P. Clark, White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, Secretary of State George P. Shultz and CIA Director William J. Casey.

The investigation was said to have begun shortly after stories appeared in network television broadcasts, newspapers and on wire services that McFarlane had recommended the use of U.S. artillery and airpower in Lebanon.

That recommendation was said to have been discussed at a National Security Council meeting in the White House Situation Room on Saturday, Sept. 11.

The Post said Clark complained to Reagan about the leaks the following Monday morning, Sept. 13, and that Reagan, also angry, assembled his senior advisers to discuss the situation.

According to the Post account, they discussed the wording of a letter to be sent by Reagan to Attorney General William French Smith requesting a formal investigation.

The newspaper quoted unidentified sources as saying the group rejected a proposal by Clark that the letter authorize the "use of all lawful means" — including the polygraph. Instead, the final version of the letter said national security issues were at stake and that the investigation should be pursued by "all lawful means," according to the sources quoted in the Post.

N.C. Unemployment Is Fourth-Lowest

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina had the fourth lowest total unemployment rate of the 11 most populous states at 7.5 percent, according to figures released today by the Employment Security Commission.

The figure represents 222,700 unemployed persons in a civilian labor force of 2,969,800. The September rate of 7.4 percent, the lowest since December 1981, was a full percentage point lower than the national average of 8.4 percent in October.

Glenn Jernigan, chairman of the state ESC, noted that although there was a slight increase in the unemployment rate for October, that total employment was estimated to be 2,747,100. That represents an increase of more than 52,000 who are now working compared to those employed in October 1982.

Non-manufacturing employment added a total of 11,700 jobs as gains were made in government, trade, service and miscellaneous and transportation, communications and public utilities.

The commission said there were no changes in construction, mining, finance, insurance and real estate.

Average weekly hours for manufacturing production workers increased slightly to 41.1 hours in October. Average hourly earnings for those workers were $6.71 in October, a climb of one cent from the previous month and 32 cents higher than the same time last year.

Elizabeth II Is Launched; Hunt Vows It Will Sail N.C. Coast

THE LAUNCHING — Elizabeth II, whose namesake sailed to North Carolina in 1585, was launched in Manteo Tuesday morning. Carolyn Hunt, wife of Gov. Jim Hunt swung six times before the traditional bottle of champagne (a North Carolina wine) broke across the bow of the 70-foot-long wooden ship. (AP Laserphoto)

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — The Elizabeth II, a replica of the ship that brought the first British colonists to America almost 400 years ago, will sail the North Carolina coast with or without federal help, Gov. Jim Hunt says.

Hunt, speaking at Tuesday's launching, referred to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' refusal to dredge a channel so the ship can leave port.

"I want to promise all of you here today that, whatever the obstacles, whether or not the federal government does its share in the celebration of America's 400th anniversary, this ship ... will sail the sounds up and down the east coast of North Carolina," he told roaring spectators.

The ship, built by hand during the past 1 1/2 years, draws about eight feet of water while the bay's channel seldom gets deeper than

6-5 Powerhouses In Bowls; VPI, Pirates Staying Home

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

Virginia may be a lovely place to spend the holidays, but Bill Dooley would rather be somewhere else ... like Orlando ... Atlanta ... Birmingham ... Shreveport.

Most likely, he'll be in Dallas watching brother Vince's Georgia team play Texas in the Cotton Bowl. But wherever he goes, he won't be taking his Virginia Tech football team with him.

Only eight Division I-A teams have better records than Virginia Tech's 9-2, but the Hokies were overlooked by the bowls, which turned instead to such powerhouses as 6-5 Notre Dame, whose 0-3 stretch run earned it a trip to the Liberty Bowl; Mississippi, which needed a 5-0 finish to overcome a 1-5 start — including losses to mighty Memphis State and Tulane, teams Virginia Tech defeated — and "earn" a trip to the Independence Bowl, and Kentucky, which got off to a 4-0 start thanks to a soft schedule and staggered home — at the Hall of Fame Bowl — at 6-1.

And, of course, virtually all the bowls were signed, sealed and delivered well in advance of Nov. 19, this year's farcical "official" selection date. "Things really didn't start getting hectic until five or six years ago when more bowls began entering the picture," says Bud Dudley, executive director of the Liberty Bowl. "I remember when there were eight bowls and I didn't care who other people took because I knew there were still going to be some darn good teams left. But now that there are 16 bowls, if I sit back like a fool and wait until December, I look around and suddenly there's nobody there."

Dooley says Virginia Tech "had an 'if' bid; if North Carolina had lost or been tied by Duke, we'd have been in the Peach Bowl; if Ole Miss had lost to or tied Mississippi State we'd have been in the Independence Bowl."

"We were high on the list as the Peach Bowl host. But North Carolina has been in the Top Twenty most of the season (Tech still isn't) and they received a lot of publicity. When they lost to Maryland, Clemson and Virginia it knocked them out of the Gator Bowl, so the Peach Bowl had an opportunity to get a team that had received a lot of publicity."

"The Liberty Bowl was pretty well locked. We thought we might get in the Hall of Fame Bowl, but West Virginia's president said it couldn't go to the Citrus Bowl (because of an exam conflict) and the Hall of Fame took them."

"In 1980, we were 8-3 and went to the Peach Bowl. Chances usually are very darn good that if we're 8-3 we'll go to a bowl. But I know all about the politics; I know how it works."

Virginia Tech still is a better shot for a bowl than other teams with comparable records. East Carolina, for example, is 8-3, including a road victory at Holiday Bowl-bound Missouri, with its three losses all on the road at Miami, Florida and Florida State by a total of 13 points.

"We're in better shape than East Carolina," Dooley says. "We've been to bowls before and our name is a little bit better known. We would have been a natural for the Liberty Bowl since we're in the Metro Conference in basketball (with Memphis State). TV is the reason Notre Dame is going."

"You don't let television dictate what teams you have to take, but you're in a partnership with it and you certainly accept its input," says Dudley. "Notre Dame has the most unusual appeal of anyone anywhere. It could be 3-8 and still be appealing. Take a team like West Virginia; the only people interested in it are from West Virginia. The people in Los Angeles or Seattle don't care that much about it."

"But Notre Dame, it's a national team. It has fans all over the country, and there are just as many fans who hate it and tune in to see it get beat. You get the double-dip effect with Notre Dame."

The toughest thing is for Dooley to tell his players no one wants them.

"It's really hard for me to look them in the eye and tell them if they do this or do that they'll get a bowl bid, and they do it and we don't get one."

It's not only the Virginia Techs and East Carolinas who get the short end of the stick. Southern Methodist, No. 2 in the nation a year ago, couldn't get into a major bowl this year with a 9-1 record and only two losses in the last three years, both to Texas by 9-7 and 15-12 scores.

As a result, says Coach Bobby Collins, "I'll use whatever pull I have to fight for a playoff system in major-college football. We felt we had the team that earned the right to the Sugar Bowl. If the kids go out and work hard and play the schedule and the bowl people can't take the top teams and match them, then maybe we should have the playoff system. I feel bowls are important for football and have done a good job. But if they are going to get caught up in the hustling and start putting a squeeze on one another, then something should be done to get a true champion."

The Sugar Bowl, concerned about SMU's ability to attract a national television audience or bring thousands of fans to party on Bourbon Street, opted for the Michigan-Ohio State winner; lots of TV sets in the Midwest, you see. And the Big Ten worked a deal with the Fiesta Bowl, which took the Michigan-Ohio State loser.

The solution? "Maybe," says Dooley, "there should be a rule that unless you win seven games you can't go to a bowl."

White Sox' Ron Kittle Is American Rookie Of The Year

NEW YORK (AP) — If the reaction of Chicago White Sox slugger Ron Kittle to the news that he is the American League's Rookie of the Year was predictable, his mother must accept part of the blame.

"I'm thrilled ... it's exciting," Kittle said Tuesday night. Then, he added: "I'm honored — my mom told me to say that one."

Selected by the Baseball Writers Association of America, Kittle is the first White Sox player to win the rookie award since Tommie Agee in 1966 and only the fourth winner in the club's history. The others were pitcher Gary Peters in 1963 and shortstop Luis Aparicio in 1956.

Asked if he was surprised he won, Kittle said: "Well, everybody hopes for the better. I'm just glad it's over with."

After waiting with his family at their home near Gary, Ind., Kittle broke out the champagne Tuesday night when he received the telephone call informing him of the award. When he was asked if he wanted to play next year with the Sox, who captured the American League West by sweeping the Baltimore Orioles in the playoffs, Kittle said:

"I hope to be with the (Chicago) Cubs ... I mean the Sox." Then, laughing, he said: "I think it's the bubbly I'm drinking. The bottle was gone in 10 minutes. I'm sending someone out for another one right now."

In 1983, the bespectacled outfielder batted .254 but slugged 35 home runs and drove in 100 runs.

He collected 15 of a possible 28 first-place votes and 104 points. Finishing second was shortstop Julio Franco of Cleveland with 78 points while Baltimore pitcher Mike Boddicker was third with 70 points. No other player was named on the 28 ballots cast by the two writers in each AL city.

During the AL Championship Series, Kittle said he didn't quite reach the goals he set for himself this season. But he told ABC Radio Sports Tuesday night:

"I set my goal higher than possible so you have to really strive to work for them. A lot of times you don't get up to your goals, but that's the way I like to work at them. I think I accomplished a lot of things this year I wanted to. That's what it's all about."

Kittle, 25, originally was signed by the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1977 but was released the following year because of chronic injuries. He joined the Chicago organization in 1979 and in his final two years in the minors slugged a total of 90 home runs.

The announcement of Kittle's selection was to be made today, but WBBM-TV in Chicago announced it Tuesday night. A spokesman for the television station, a CBS affiliate, said, "We were at Kittle's house when he got the telephone call" from the Baseball Writers telling him of his victory.

"It's an honor you can only get one year," the player said. "It's a special moment for me."

Franco was a brilliant fielder for the Indians, hit .273 and had 80 RBI. Boddicker, 16-8 with a 2.77 earned run average during the regular season, helped the Orioles capture the AL Championship Playoffs and the World Series by winning one game in each while allowing a total of one run.

Rookie Of The Year

Chicago White Sox' outfielder Ron Kittle relaxes at his parents' home in Aetna, Ind., Tuesday evening just hours before he was named American League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Kittle batted .254, hit 35 home runs and was credited with 100 RBI's in his first season in the majors that included the first White Sox post-season competition since 1959. (AP Laserphoto)

Moffett Ousted From Post

NEW YORK (AP) — In a reported internal power struggle, Ken Moffett was ousted as executive director of the Major League Players Association and replaced on an interim basis by Marvin Miller.

Miller confirmed Tuesday night that he has stepped back into the job he retired from less than a year ago.

According to the New York Times in today's editions, Moffett was fired by the players' executive board after he refused to resign.

Miller denied reports of a power struggle between him and his successor, saying Moffett's firing came as a surprise to him.

"I insisted that if they wanted me to help, it (his interim term) must terminate Dec. 6," said Miller. "Some power struggle."

One source, who asked not to be identified, said dissatisfaction with Moffett began last spring because of his "concept of peaceful coexistence between labor and management." Miller and his aides, the source said, were "militant" in their relationship with the baseball owners.

Prior to taking the job with the players, Moffett was director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. His two aides, Nancy Broff and David Vaughn, who previously worked with Moffett at the mediation service in Washington, also were dismissed.

Moffett had two years left on his contract. He reportedly heard about the move to dismiss him just this past weekend. "A lot of players felt we were going sideways," Don Baylor of the New York Yankees, a member of the executive board, told the Times.

Richard Moss, a former Miller aide and now a player agent, also said no power struggle was involved. But two sources said Moffett's firing was the result of a political battle within the union with players association counsel Don Fehr on one side and Moffett on the other.

"It would have taken those two men (Fehr and Miller) to do it," said a source with contacts in the players union.

However, Moss said said to depict Moffett's firing in a political way "portrays it in a false way."

"It was the unanimous feeling of the executive board that they had lost confidence in Ken Moffett," Moss said. "Marvin Miller was not involved in that thinking, and after they (the players) made the decision, they asked Marvin for their support."

Kent State On Top Of Bottom

Kent State, it would appear, is doomed to be the bottom of the list this year in the college football seasons.

The Ohio team with but one win to its credit, is ranked 105th on the Daily Reflector Computer Poll, and is one of six Division I-A teams with one victory.

Rankings are based on points awarded for wins, victim's wins and victim's victims' wins. It measures success against strength of schedule.

With Kent State in last place, the next four include Minnesota, Rice and Eastern Michigan tied, and Navy. The second five includes Army, Wichita State, Northwestern, Oregon State and Texas El Paso.

Several of the bottom ten still have games to play and have a chance to escape from the cellar crew and give a couple of other teams a chance for the ignominious finish.

The bottom ten for this week:

1. Kent State (1-10)	10
2. Minnesota (1-10)	16
3. Rice (1-10)	18
4. E. Michigan (1-10)	18
5. Navy (2-8)	32
6. Army (2-8)	40
7. Wichita State (3-8)	42
8. Northwestern (2-9)	46
9. Oregon State (2-9)	55
10. Texas El Paso (2-10)	58

Asked what had spawned the loss of confidence, Moss said: "It was the culmination of a number of things that I prefer not to be specific about at this time."

One source said the struggle began when Moffett, 51, was elected to succeed Miller on Dec. 9, 1981, at the Winter Meetings in Hawaii. Fehr, a close friend of Moss, reportedly was upset when he was passed over for the job.

Miller, who held the post for 16 years, said he was enjoying his retirement and made it clear to the committee that he would not take the job on a permanent basis.

Asked what would happen if the board could not find a permanent replacement, Miller said: "We'll face that when we get to it."

With negotiations for a new labor agreement with the owners coming up next year, the board is likely to ask Miller to stay on. The Times reported that sources told it that Fehr may be asked to assume the role of executive director when Miller steps down again.

Miller, 66, is seen as a hard-line bargainer and is credited with creating the free agent system. Miller guided the union through the 50-day players' strike in 1981. Ironically, Moffett was the man who mediated an end to the strike.

Nebraska Could Be The Most Awesome In College History

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

Nebraska's football team is like the overweight, awkward kid, butt of the jokes of his neighborhood pals, who decided to hone his muscles, develop speed and then come back and kick dirt in all of their faces.

The "Big Red" is an awesome, grind-it-out, point-a-minute machine which not only has cemented its position as the No. 1 college power in the country but is so solid and strong that its admirers contend it could compete respectably with some of the clubs in the National Football League.

"In my mind, this is the finest offensive college team I have ever seen," says Bob Devaney, who coached the Cornhuskers for 11 years, starting in 1962 before moving into the athletic director's office and turning the "Xs" and "Os" over to Tom Osborne.

"I don't want to make an overall judgment until we have finished our schedule."

Having run like a berserk tank through all opposition so far, the undefeated Huskers close their regular campaign Saturday against Oklahoma, a traditionally tough rival, in Norman (CBS-TV, 3:30 p.m. EST) and then go against Miami, Fla., in Miami's Orange Bowl.

The Sooners and Hurricanes might do well to not answer the bell.

It was John Riggins, ball-carrying star of the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins, who, when asked how much he feared the Dallas Cowboys, replied: "The only team I fear is Nebraska and they're not on our schedule."

For Nebraska, it was not always so.

While traditionally one of the best teams in the Big Eight Conference and sometimes in the country, the Huskers did not become a potent bowl force until the 1970s, after they'd had a couple of hard and uncomfortable looks at Bear Bryant's skinny, bare-legged kids from Alabama.

In 1966, they played Alabama in the Orange Bowl. At the time, they were the scourges of the Mid-West and they showed up in Miami with a team of big, bruising heavyweights who made Bryant's boys look as if they belonged in a lower league.

But the Bear's sinewy legions faked their huskier foes right out of their cleated shoes, leaving the Huskers puffing with a surprise 39-28 victory.

The next year, Nebraska sought revenge in the Sugar Bowl. The scenario was unchanged. Nebraska was big, tough and slow. Alabama looked like skin and bones. Quickness prevailed: 34-7.

Then something began happening out in the corn country. Devaney, who was coach at the time, denies that these experiences were a factor but the Cornhuskers discovered that speed, not size, was the best barometer of football success.

But they took it a step farther. They learned that a big man could be as quick as a little man. So they melded the two elements — size and speed — to produce the best winning average in college football for the last 20 years.

They beat Georgia 45-6 in the 1969 Sun Bowl, start of six straight bowl triumphs, one of them a 38-6 revenge triumph over the Bear and "Bama" in the 1972 Orange Bowl.

That was the Cornhusker class of 1971, with Johnny Rodgers at tailback and Rich Glover at nose guard, which was acclaimed not only national champion but the "best college team ever" by the Sporting News and others.

The best, that is, until now.

"This year's team may be even better than '71," concedes Devaney.

The Husker offense is spearheaded by the No. 1 Heisman Trophy candidate, Mike Rozier, a 5-foot-11, 210-pound thunderbolt out of Camden, N. J., and a ball-faking Houdini named Turner Gill, who pulls the trigger on the Huskers' option attack.

Rozier, a Walter Payton type with great moves and natural instincts, is college football's top ball-carrier, averaging 176.6 yards a game — eight a pop — with 28 touchdowns. For his three-year career, he is nearing the 5,000 yard mark.

That was the Cornhusker class of 1971, with Johnny Rodgers at tailback and Rich Glover at nose guard, which was acclaimed not only national champion but the "best

Wide Splits Still Remain

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association and its locked-out referees remain far apart on the issues in their labor dispute and also in their versions of how close to a settlement they've been.

The referees' union announced Tuesday it is asking a mediator for help because, according to Richie Phillips, general counsel for the referees, a group of owners last week rejected a previously undisclosed tentative settlement.

Russ Granik, general counsel for the NBA, said, however, that the league will have to consider whether it wants the mediator to intervene. Granik also said the two sides were never close to "any sort of agreement. We were not even close to a deal on the major economic issues."

Phillips, who also is leader of the baseball umpires' union, said the federal mediation service asked three weeks ago to join the dispute, but both sides said then that they still hoped to settle it alone.

"Now it's abundantly clear that a greater obstacle has been put before us," Phillips said, referring to the failure of what he called the tentative settlement.

"It's absolutely untrue," Granik said of Phillips' version of a breakthrough in the dispute last week.

Phillips said that both sides made compromises last week on economic issues, the main problem in the dispute, but he refused to disclose details. The league has said it is offering raises 37 percent above the contract that expired Sept. 1, while the union contends the offer is worth only 4 percent.

Phillips said the mediator would be Robert Kyler of Philadelphia, which is also the headquarters of the referees' union, but Phillips said "we would be willing to meet with him anywhere, anytime."

Granik said the league will consider accepting the mediator's help.

The league's stand on the substitute referees is that they are improving steadily in their performance despite their inexperience, citing a decrease in the number of fouls called each week.

Moe Lets Sonics Set Record

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

With 1:12 to go in the game and Portland leading 146-111, Denver Coach Doug Moe sent the Nuggets into their box-and-none defense.

When Moe noticed the scoreboard flashing that the Trail Blazers were approaching their team record of 150 points in a game, Moe called a timeout Tuesday night and told his players, "Let them have it. You understand what I'm saying, don't you?"

The Nuggets then took defensive positions, but let Portland players drive to the hoop five times without getting in their way. With no opposition, Portland easily surpassed the record.

With a few seconds to go, Portland's Clyde Drexler had the ball at midcourt, and while a few Nuggets players walked off the court, Drexler drove to the basket to score the Blazers' final two points at the buzzer of the 156-116 National Basketball Association game.

In other games, it was Philadelphia 112, Detroit 108; Golden State 102, Washington 101; Atlanta 104, Indiana 93; New York 117, Boston 113 in double overtime; Dallas 118, San Antonio 117; Kansas City 118, San Diego 99; Houston 118, Phoenix 96 and Utah 130, Los Angeles 126 in overtime.

Moe's instruction that his players not try on defense apparently was motivated by frustration over his team's lack of defense against the Blazers.

"What makes that (the final minute) any different from the non-defense we put up against them in the first and second quarters?" Moe asked. "We didn't guard anybody all night long. At least at the end, we didn't play defense due to coaching instruction."

Ironically, the Blazers set the previous team record of 150 points in 1977 against San Antonio, then coached by Moe.

Lafayette Lever scored 14 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter, when Portland scored 44 points, to lead six Trail Blazers with 19 points or more. Drexler, Kenny Carr, Wayne Cooper and Calvin Natt scored 20 points each, while Jim Paxson added 19.

Portland, which took control of the game by outscoring the Nuggets 43-26 in the first quarter, also set a team field-goal record for a single game, connecting on 65 of 100 attempts. The Blazers outbounded Denver 51-26.

Kiki Vandeweghe scored 26 points for the Nuggets, while Alex English added 24.

Moe shrugged off the Nuggets' poor effort, saying, "We were beat after the first quarter. After halftime I told the guys this game was gone and we better start worrying about tomorrow night. When your effort is so poor against a good club like Portland, you might as well mail in the score."

Moe said he was not disturbed by the 40-point defeat because of the team's history of bouncing back from poor games.

Last season, the Nuggets lost one game 146-102 and won their next outing. On another occasion, they lost by 19 points and won by 37 in consecutive games.

Jazz 130, Lakers 126
Utah's Thurl Bailey broke a tie at Los Angeles with his tip-in with 1:20 left in overtime, snapping the Lakers' seven-game winning streak.

Adrian Dantley scored 32 points and Darrell Griffith 28 for the Jazz, while Bob McAdoo had 31 for the Lakers.

Knicks 117, Celtics 113
The Knicks won their sixth game in seven outings and handed Boston its fourth straight setback as Bernard King and Rory Sparrow scored 24 points each and combined for the final five points in the second overtime at New York.

A three-point play by Robert

Parish gave the Celtics a 113-112 with 1:51 to go, but they never scored again. New York's Bill Cartwright led all scorers with 26 points. Kevin McHale led Boston with 25.

Mavericks 118, Spurs 117
At Dallas, Pat Cummings hit two free throws with one second left to give the Mavericks a four-point lead, and they needed all of it as Johnny Moore hit a three-pointer from midcourt as time expired.

Mark Aguirre led all scorers with 32 points for the Mavericks, while Rolando Blackman hit 11 of 11 shots in the second half for Dallas and finished with 31. Moore had 21.

76ers 112, Pistons 108
Philadelphia won at home against Detroit as Julius Erving scored 31 points and Moses Malone 21 for the 76ers.

The Pistons, who got 22 points from Isiah Thomas, rallied from a 17-point first-quarter deficit to pull within 82-80 midway through the fourth period, but couldn't get any closer.

Rockets 118, Suns 96
Backup forwards Robert Reid and James Bailey keyed Houston's easy home victory over Phoenix.

Reid had a season-high 23 points and James Bailey added 20 points and 15 rebounds. The Rockets took control with a 19-2 spurt in the fourth quarter then made it 110-89 after Walter Davis, who led the Suns with 27 points, hit a three-point goal to pull Phoenix within 91-87.

Kings 118, Clippers 99
Kansas City handed San Diego its 21st straight road loss, including eight this season, behind Larry Drew's 24 points and 11 assists.

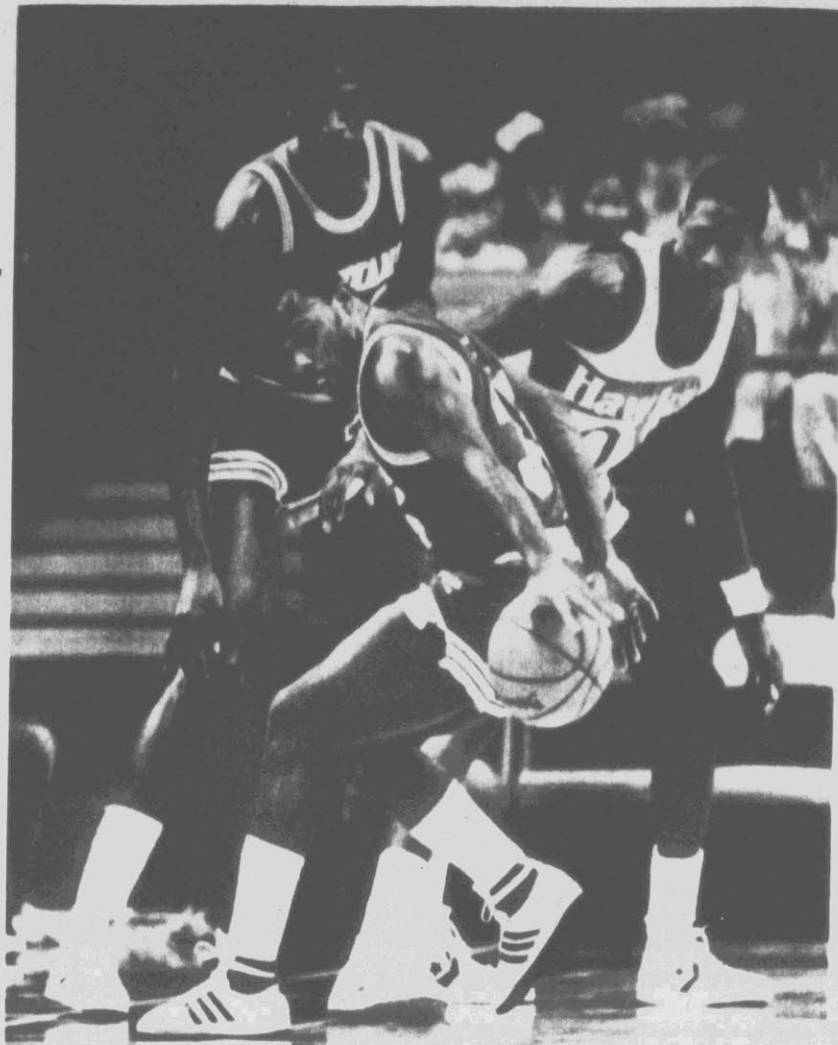

The Kings took control with a 17-2 streak in the last two minutes of the first half and the first minute of the third period.

Warriors 102, Bullets 101
Golden State picked up a road win over Washington when Lester Conner connected on one of two free throws with 15 seconds remaining.

Ricky Sobers led all scorers with 26 points for the Bullets, who had several missed shots in the final seconds.

Hawks 104, Pacers 93
Atlanta stayed unbeaten at home and kept Indiana winless on the road as Dominique Wilkins scored 26 points.

The Hawks, 7-0 at the Omni, dropped the Pacers to 0-6 as visitors and 0-21 dating back to last February. George Johnson led Indiana with 24 points.

Smith To Do Play-By-Play

The Pirate Sports Network, voice of East Carolina University basketball, will have a new lineup of talent for the 1983-84 season. Director of Athletics Ken Karr has announced.

Named to the play-by-play position is Ken Smith, assistant athletic director for public relations, while Dave Hart Jr., assistant athletic director for marketing will handle color commentary.

"We made our first move during the football season to bring our network talent in-house when Dave Hart did our color commentary," said Karr. "Now, we are making the move to put our entire network in-house, at least for basketball, with the addition of Ken Smith to our play-by-play position."

Smith did color commentary last season for the Pirate Sports Network men's broadcasts, while doing play-by-play during the women's broadcasts. The eight-year veteran of the ECU athletic program has a background in broadcasting with high school and college play-by-play experience in football, basketball and baseball.

Hart, prior to Pirate football color work, was a commentator on state-wide radio networks in the state of Kentucky for various high school basketball events, as well as host to his own radio show for basketball in the Louisville area.

The Pirate Sports Network is operated by East Carolina University athletics and sponsored regionally by Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

The first broadcast of the season will be Saturday night as the Pirates host Campbell University in Minges Coliseum. Air time is 7:10 p.m. with tipoff at 7:30 p.m.

Ford Gets AP Honor

RALEIGH (AP)—Clemson's Danny Ford, whose Tigers have been undefeated in the Atlantic Coast Conference for three seasons, edged Virginia's George Welsh 43 to be named ACC football coach of the year by The Associated Press.

"The players and staff did all that was asked of them this season and should receive recognition for what they have accomplished and I would like to share this honor with them," Ford said in a prepared statement after the announcement of the decision by a panel of ACC sportswriters.

Clemson, 9-1-1 this season, finished with the best record in the ACC but wasn't eligible for the conference championship because it was on ACC and NCAA probation for recruiting violations. The Tigers also were barred from post-season bowls.

The NCAA inquiry that led to the sanctions was launched after two former Tennessee high school football players filed suit claiming they were offered illegal inducements to play at Clemson. The suit was dismissed.

In 1981, Ford's team won a national championship, making the 33-year-old coach the youngest to win a national title. The Tigers won their ninth ACC championship in 1982.

Ford took over the head coaching job Dec. 5, 1978, after the sudden resignation of Charley Pell, and won the opportunity to coach the Tigers to a 17-15 victory over Ohio State in the 1978 Gator Bowl.

He has credit for four winning seasons and two undefeated conference seasons. The third undefeated ACC season came this year, but didn't count because of the probation.

Clemson lost to Boston College and tied Georgia this season.

The Tigers, 12-0 and 9-1-1 the past two years, have compiled a 30-2-2 record the last three seasons under Ford. Clemson is 45-11-2 in Ford's four years as head coach.

Ford's college football career began in 1967 when he started for Bear Bryant at Alabama as Ken Stabler's sophomore tight end. He played three seasons for Bryant, including three wins against Clemson and won All-Southeastern Conference honors.

Ford was a graduate and full-time assistant at Alabama. He was an assistant at Virginia Tech for three seasons before coming to Clemson under Pell in 1977.

Virginia's Welch Is ACC Coach Of Year

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Virginia's George Welsh has been chosen Atlantic Coast Conference football coach of the year by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association, edging Clemson's Danny Ford by 32 votes.

Earlier, Duke quarterback Ben Bennett, named Atlantic Coast Conference football Player of the Year by The Associated Press on Monday, got the same honor from the ACSWA.

Welsh was selected on 62 of the 100 ballots, while Ford was picked on 30 ballots. Maryland's Bobby Ross appeared on seven and North Carolina's Dick Crum received one vote.

"I'm kind of floored by this honor because there was a lot of good coaching in the conference this season," Welsh said. "I'm obviously pleased not just for myself, but for the team and coaching staff. It's tangible evidence of the job the team and staff has done."

"We came back from a 2-9 record last year with basically the same people and had a winning season."

Helms In New Charge

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Mike Helms, a former Wake Forest basketball player, has been charged with conspiracy to traffic in cocaine while on work-release from prison, police said.

Helms, 23, was among four men arrested Tuesday by narcotics agents. He had been serving a two-year sentence in the Forsyth Detention Center for 10 felony drug counts.

Helms had pleaded guilty to selling cocaine and marijuana to an undercover police officer. He could have been sentenced to 70 years in prison, but Superior Court Judge Edward K. Washington of Greensboro gave him a seven-year term, with the last five years suspended.

Soccer Champs

Sutter Assists Victory

By The Associated Press

Brian Sutter put on a team record-breaking performance, but he knows exactly which goal was the key.

"The biggest goal of the game was the sixth one," Sutter said after contributing five assists Tuesday night to lead the St. Louis Blues to a 7-4 National Hockey League triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

That came after St. Louis saw a big lead dwindle to just two goals, 5-3.

"If it had gotten to 5-4, it might have been tough," Sutter said. "We were up 5-1 and kind of slacked off. I don't know why."

In other NHL games, the New York Islanders edged Quebec 3-2 and Montreal defeated Boston 4-2.

Sutter's assists topped the old St. Louis record of four in one game.

"You know the guys that want to win, and in my mind we've got the guys," he said. "It's a matter of getting it out of them and everybody playing together."

"Once you start doubting yourself, you might as well take your skates and throw them. People that are doubting us are the same people that were saying we were a great team when we won."

Perry Anderson and Rob Ramage scored 65 seconds apart to cap a four-goal flurry in the middle period in St. Louis' victory.

Canadiens 4, Bruins 2

Guy Carbonneau scored one goal, set up another by linemate Bob Gainey and helped kill a string of second-period penalties to lead Montreal to victory.

The Canadiens evened their record at 10-10-1 and avenged a 10-4 Boston victory earlier this month.

Larry Robinson, on a power play, and Mario Tremblay, with the 200th goal of his 10-year career, also scored by Montreal.

Islanders 3, Nordiques 2

John Tonelli scored once and assisted on two other goals to pace the four-time defending Stanley Cup champions past Quebec. The Nordiques have never beaten the Islanders at Nassau Coliseum, with only one tie in eight games, while the Islanders posted their 10th victory in their last 12 games.

Mike Bossy, with an assist, extended his consecutive-game point streak to 12, while Bryan Trottier was shut out, breaking his streak at 11 games.

New York's Duane Sutter injured his left knee late in the third period and preliminary indications are that he will miss at least two weeks.

Several Surprises In First Part Of Season

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

With the 21 National Hockey League teams rounding the quarter-pole, a look at the opening fourth of the season is in order.

The most pleasant surprises thus far are the New York Rangers, Hartford Whalers, Tony Tanti of the Vancouver Canucks and the falloff in full-scale brawls. The biggest disappointments are the Washington Capitals — who appear to be righting things — Montreal Canadiens, Winnipeg Jets, Chicago Black Hawks, New Jersey Devils, Tom Lysiak and Wayne Gretzky.

Gretzky? Sure. After all, The Great One is only on a pace which would net him in the area of 100 goals and 260 points. It's just not fair. Why doesn't this guy give someone else at least a hope of keeping within reach of the scoring title, most valuable player award and player of the week, month and year honors?

Seriously, the surge to the top of the Patrick Division by the Rangers is surprising because they specialized in slow starts under Coach Herb Brooks in his first two seasons in New York. The Rangers, who last won the Stanley Cup in 1940 and have a total of three — one fewer than their local rivals, the Islanders have accrued in 11 seasons of life — look like genuine contenders as they master Brooks' system of puck control and weaving, constant motion.

And they're getting good goaltending from Steve Weeks and Glen Hanlon. When the season began, the team's biggest question mark was in goal.

The Whalers were expected to founder at the bottom of the standings but they're hanging in there with the big boys from La Belle Province, the Quebec Nordiques and the Canadiens. Hartford still might plunge to the depths but, under new boss Emile Francis and his hand-picked coach, Tex Evans, they're a more spirited and organized bunch. Their specialty teams have been superb, as has rookie Sylvain Turgeon, the No. 2 pick overall in the draft last June.

Tanti is living up to the promise he showed in juniors, when he shattered some of Gretzky's records in the Ontario Hockey League. He's added a touch of excitement to the dull, clutch-and-grab Canucks and is on a sizzling pace of his own, though not quite as stratospheric as The Great One.

On the down side, the Canadiens have become just another team and that's sad. The Black Hawks, one of the league's powers last season, have been inconsistent — strong at home, hopeless on the road. The Capitals lost their first seven and were blanked twice in that span, but now are coming on and might yet make a four-team scramble out of the Patrick race. The Jets already have fired their coach, Tom Watt, replacing him with Barry Long, and show little spark despite some terrific individual talent. The Devils also fired their coach, Billy MacMillan, and replaced him with Tom McVie. They seem to be readying themselves for the top draft pick they'll earn.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Eddie Futch, who worked in Joe Frazier's corner for most of his fights from 1966 through 1976, thinks the former heavyweight champion might be pushing his son too fast in matching him with Larry Holmes.

"If I had my way, I'd prefer to wait another year," Futch, who now trains Holmes, said of the decision to put 23-year-old Marvis Frazier in against Holmes, the unbeaten World Boxing Council heavyweight champion, Friday night in only Frazier's 11th pro fight.

"If he gets destroyed in this stage of his career, it could be the end of his career," the end of his development.

"He wouldn't put me in there if he didn't think I could do the job," Frazier said of his father's acceptance of the scheduled 12-round bout against the 34-year-old Holmes, who has a 44-0 record, with 31 knockouts.

"If I do what I'm told, there's no way I can lose," said Frazier, who is a 4½-1 underdog for the nationally televised fight by NBC at the 4,500-seat Sports Pavilion at Caesars Palace.

The fight, set to start at 7:03 p.m. PST, was originally scheduled for a 15,200-seat outdoor arena, but was moved indoors Tuesday because of the Friday forecast of freezing temperatures and strong winds. The weather has been cold, and winds Sunday were unofficially clocked at about 95 mph.

As of 9 a.m. Tuesday, with the fight was still set outdoors, just 975 tickets had been sold, with 39 of them being top-priced at $300.

Holmes said he didn't care where the fight was held.

"I'm going to go crazy," said the champion. "I'm not going to win any popularity contest, so I'm going to go crazy. I'm going out there and take his head off."

Holmes is angry that the WBC has not sanctioned the fight as a title match. WBC president Jose Sulaiman said there is no sanction because Frazier is not a ranked contender.

Though it is not a sanctioned title fight, the WBC has ruled that Holmes will become an ex-champion if he loses. The title will be declared vacant. In other words, though Holmes can lose the championship, Frazier cannot win it.

Holmes has said that if Frazier should beat him, he would consider him champion.

Holmes' fight against Marvis Frazier comes almost 10 years after Futch used Holmes as a sparring partner to prepare Joe Frazier for his second fight against Muhammad Ali, which he lost on a unanimous 12-round decision.

And Frazier is irked by some things Futch has said about that training session.

Futch said Tuesday that he used Holmes early in sparring sessions while Frazier was fresh because if he used him late when Frazier was tired, Frazier got no benefit because he couldn't match Holmes' speed.

"Eddie's job was to train, but could he train... I don't think so," snapped Frazier. "He came into my life and got 15 per cent (of purses). Yank (late manager Yank Durahm) already had made me a champion."

But Futch was working with Frazier when he became champion, and it was he who stopped the third fight against Ali in Manila after the 14th round when Frazier was unable to see.

Friday night's telecast will run from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. PST

To The Sports Editor:

In reference to David Lee's letter of November 20, it is embarrassing to me as a resident of Greenville with its own newspaper, TV station, numerous radio stations and cable news network to think that a resident of this great city could be so blind!

Mr. Lee's letter concerning the "heels" (sic) prowess in football mentions victories over Texas, Arkansas and Michigan. When? Last year. The year before that. Or the year before that!

Inevitably when UNC doesn't live up to its billing as the state's best, it relies upon history to uphold its esteem. Even a staunch UNC supporter as Mr. Lee must look at this year's records, this year's opponents, and the record of these opponents, and has to know that based on this alone that this year the Pirates are the best team in the state of North Carolina. I don't know what the future holds, but surely we must base our assessment of teams on their present ability, record and competition, not past plaudits or future expectations.

Mr. Lee was sure his "heels" would defeat Duke. Well, they did, and let me be the first to congratulate the mighty "heels" for pulling out another tough one against "stern" competition.

Go Florida State! (UNC's opponent in the Peach Bowl).

To The Sports Editor:

At the risk of becoming extremely unpopular as a former East Carolina University student, I would like to state that the East Carolina University football team does not need a bowl game this year, or at least the bowl scouts think so. East Carolina doesn't need a bowl berth because of its "lack of ability" to draw crowds, despite the fact that it has the best college team record in the state this year of 8 wins-3 losses. The Pirates are considered "football foulups" despite the fact that Terry Long, sixth strongest man in the world and All American plays for the team. The Pirates are unworthy in spite of the fact that they lost to nationally ranked Florida teams by a touchdown or less.

While the overall tone of this letter has been sarcastic, it was done for a reason, which it is hoped will become apparent to anyone who carefully reads this. Since ECU is "obviously" not good enough to be considered major bowl material, why not form a national bowl of its own? The East Carolina Pirates could play Southern Methodist University (who despite a 10-1, two year record, isn't playing in a major bowl this year). The name of the newly formed bowl could be entitled "The Well Deserved Recognition Bowl!" Tickets, anyone? No, me first. I want to be first in line.

To The Sports Editor:

Mr. (David) Lee (letter, Nov. 20) says Carolina isn't afraid to play ECU. He rationalizes this by saying Carolina has everything to lose and nothing to gain. Isn't that saying in effect, they are afraid of losing? He says Carolina is a better team because they have played in bowl games in the past. We are not saying Carolina does not have a great program and a recent winning tradition. What we are saying is this year, our Pirates are the better team.

Carolina people think their football program has the winning tradition of a Notre Dame. Kenan Stadium has not always been sold-out. Remember the "Carolina Fever" ad campaign? Those radio commercials woke me every morning for months! "Carolina Fever" must be something akin to morning sickness.

Is it true Carolina has Lenoir Rhyne and Catawba on next year's up-graded schedule?

To all Tar Heel fans, may the Peaches in your Bowl rot!

In The Area

Democrats To Sponsor Training

The Pitt County Democratic Party will sponsor a training session for precinct officers and other interested persons Dec. 5 at 6:30 p.m. at Parker's Restaurant.

Janice Faulkner, Regional Development Institute executive director, and Kaye Gattis of state executive headquarters will conduct the session. Reservations must be made by Nov. 30. Interested persons should contact Kathryn Lewis, Route 5, Box 325, Greenville, to make reservations.

Public Hearing Scheduled

The North Carolina Commission on Education for Economic Growth will hold a public hearing at the Wahl-Coates Elementary School auditorium from 6:30 p.m. until 10 p.m. Jan. 5.

The purposes of the hearing, to be chaired by Gov. Jim Hunt, are to: inform local area residents about the educational challenges facing the state; to listen to recommendations on how best to respond to the challenges, including what steps should be taken to improve public education, and to build public awareness of the relationships between good schools and good jobs.

Persons wishing to speak at the hearing are asked to sign up between 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

The Greenville hearing is one of four scheduled by the commission. Similar hearings will be held in Raleigh on Nov. 28, Asheville on Dec. 15, and in Charlotte on Jan. 9.

Adult Exercise Class Planned

A new exercise class for persons 50 and older, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, will begin Dec. 1. The class will meet at Elm Street Center Tuesday and Thursday from 10-11 a.m. A $4 fee is charged for the 12-week class.

Class structure is designed on the ability of participants at various levels of exercise. For more details, contact Margaret McGlohon, 752-4137, ext. 259. People may join the class anytime after Dec. 1.

Task Force To Meet Monday

The Pitt County Juvenile Task Force will hold its monthly meeting Monday at 3 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Pitt County administrative offices, 1717 W. Fifth St. For more information contact Mary Lehman at 756-0039.

Adult Swim Program To Continue

The Older Adult Swim Program of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will continue during the holiday season. Beginning Dec. 5, the program will move to the East Carolina Vocational Center on Staten Road and will continue there until Jan. 13, when it will move back to the ECU Memorial Indoor Pool.

The program is free to anyone 50 and old and can be joined at any time.

Swim hours will be at 1 p.m. Mondays and 10 a.m. Fridays. The Dec.-Jan. schedule at the center is Dec. 5, 9, 12, 16 and 19, and Jan. 2, 6, 9, and 13.

For more details, contact Margaret McGlohon at 752-4137, ext. 259.

Concert To Feature Celestrals

Molly Small and the Celestrals will be in concert Thanksgiving day at 6 p.m. at Mount Moriah Holy Church in Farmville. Also appearing on the program will be Herbert Simms and the Soul Seekers, The Eastern District YPHA Choir and the Rev. Dennis Wooten. There is no admission.

Greenville Man Convicted

Willie Earl Pritchard of 100 David Drive (Colonial Trailer Park), Greenville, has been convicted in Martin County District Court on two counts of practicing extermination work without a state license.

Rudolph E. Howell, director of the N.C. Department of Agriculture's structural pest control division, said Pritchard was charged with treating the residences of Raleigh Roebuck and David Roberson, both of Route 1, Robersonville, for termites, without being licensed.

Judge Hallett S. Ward sentenced Pritchard to six months in jail in the Roebuck case and 10 days in jail in the Roberson case, but suspended the jail terms on condition Pritchard pay court costs and make restitution of $100 to Roebuck and $160 to Roberson. Pritchard was also placed on probation for two years.

CP To Sponsor Program

"Working with Handicapped Children: Understanding the Child's Perspective" will be the topic of a program sponsored by United Cerebral Palsy at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the fellowship hall at Hooker Memorial Christian Church.

Speaker for the program will be Annette Lauber, a consultant with the Jubilee Group, Designs for Human Development. Ms. Lauber, who has cerebral palsy, has a master's degree in specific learning disabilities and has been with the Wake County school system for eight years.

Shields To Be Listed

William D. Shields of Greenville will be listed in the 1984 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Shields is the son of Louise Mayo and is a special education major at Appalachian State University.

Local Spokesman Named

Samuel Perry will serve as the local spokesman for the Christian Record Braille Foundation and will be available to local civic groups and organizations as a speaker for the foundation. He also will accept contributions for the foundation in the Greenville area.

The foundation is a non-tax-supported organization which depends on public contributions to support and disseminate Braille literature, recordings, scholarships and clinics as well as supporting camps for blind children and free glaucoma screening. Perry may be contacted by calling 524-4801 or by writing in care of Samuel Perry, Route 1, Box 820, Grifton 28530.

Temple To Hold Service

Golden Rod Temple 368 will have a call meeting Friday at 8 p.m. A memorial service will be held for a deceased daughter.

Thanksgiving Service Planned

A special Thanksgiving day service will be held at Holly Hill Free Will Baptist Church Thursday at 10:30 a.m. The speaker will be Elder J.N. Perry Jr. and music will be provided Holly Hill Male Chorus.

The service will benefit the needy in the community. Donations of food or money will be accepted by the church and distributed.

Harris To Speak Thursday

A Thanksgiving day service will be held at Reddick Chapel Baptist Church Thursday at 11 a.m. with the Rev. G.L. Harris preaching. The choir of Reddick Chapel will provide the music.

Purse Theft Investigated

Greenville police are investigating the theft of a purse, containing $95 in cash, from a car parked at 102 Arlington Blvd. Tuesday.

Police said the pocketbook and cash belonged to Brenda Lutz of 36 Quail Ridge, who reported the theft at 7:40 p.m.

Wallet Stolen At Market

A wallet containing $45 in cash was taken from a pocketbook at a supermarket at Rivergate Shopping Center Tuesday. Officer H.D. Hines said Barbara Savage of 1315 Sonata Drive reported the theft about 6:53 p.m.

County Offices Closing

The Pitt County Offices will be closed Thursday and Friday to observe the Thanksgiving holiday. County Manager Reginald Gray said all offices will reopen Monday at 8 a.m.

Thanksgiving Service Set

Arthur Chapel in Bell Arthur will have a Thanksgiving program Thursday at 11 a.m. at the church with the Rev. Tyrone Turnage as the speaker. The service is sponsored by the Pastor Aide Club and is open to the public.

Solicitation Request Approved

Police Capt. John Briley has announced approval of a request by the East Carolina University Club to conduct a merchant and telephone solicitation through Feb. 4 to raise money for the Lillian Jenkins Scholarship Fund.

Revival Begins Monday

Revival will be held at the Church of God of Prophecy starting Monday and continuing through Dec. 3. Clayton Sherril of White Oak will be the speaker. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Colonial Period Studied

Students at H.B. Sugg Schol in Farmville have been studying Colonial America in conjunction with the holiday season.

Fifth graders involved in the project have completed reports on Colonial lifestyle and local craftsmen have been invited to the school to demonstrate types of crafts used in Colonial times.

Mrs. Carter Smith demonstrated to students examples of basketweaving and tin punching and Mrs. Dan Heizer illustrated hand-tied fringe and cross stitching. In addition, Jerry Flanagan showed students basic of shoeing horses.

Book Week Celebrated

Book Week was celebrated at G.R. Whitfield School with several classroom and media activities.

Students from kindergarten through the third grade were entertained by the eighth-grade players during the week. In addition, student projects were put on exhibit in the media center and on dress-up day students and staff came to school dressed as a character from their favorite book.

Davidson Gets A High Rating

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Davidson College has been ranked ninth among the liberal arts colleges in a survey published in this month's issue of U.S. News and World Report.

Davidson was the only Southern institution to make the top 10 liberal arts colleges with national reputations. The survey was based on a list of 1,308 presidents of four-year colleges who were asked to list the nation's highest quality undergraduate schools.

Davidson was tied for ninth place with Haverford College, Pomona College and Reed College. All the schools were listed by 13.4 percent of those responding.

INFLTRATION? ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The semi-official Anatolia news agency says 89 people have been indicted on multiple charges, including trying to infiltrate the army and "establish a communist regime" in Turkey.

Harvey said his daughter continues to receive oxygen under a plastic hood and that she could soon be removed from intensive care nursery to intermediate care if her progress continues.

Opines Josh Brooks 'Going All The Way'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Joshua Brooks passed the critical 10th day on Tuesday following a Nov. 12 liver transplant operation and his doctor said the nine-month-old Laurinburg, N.C., boy "looks like he's going all the way."

University of Minnesota Hospitals surgeon Dr. John S. Najarian said Joshua should be able to lead a normal, healthy life.

"Everything bad that's going to happen usually happens in the first 10 days," Najarian told The Fayetteville Times Tuesday.

"Joshua has passed that. He's getting better all the time. His kidneys are wide open and functioning. His lungs are better. All the signs are pointing in the right direction."

The parents and doctors, however, remained cautious, citing a "minor" development later Tuesday evening following Najarian's comments.

"The doctors came in and said they are doing a liver biopsy tomorrow," June Brooks, Josh's mother, said Tuesday night. Doctors said the new liver is absorbing bile and putting it into his intestines erratically.

The child was suffering from biliary atresia, an ailment in which his liver was not eliminating bile. Before the transplant, he was expected to die within a month.

Third Quad Has Left Hospital

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The third Harvey quadruplet has gone home and the remaining infant, the only girl, could be released by Christmas, George Harvey said Tuesday.

Harvey said his daughter continues to receive oxygen under a plastic hood and that she could soon be removed from intensive care nursery to intermediate care if her progress continues.

Weather Could Delay Cleanup

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — Foul weather could delay cleanup of oil spilled from a wrecked Japanese freighter for a week, the Coast Guard says.

About 3,000 gallons of oil leaked into Yaquina Bay when the 350-foot Blue Maggie broke up on rocks after ramming a jetty Saturday. An estimated 22,000 gallons of oil remained in the vessel's bow, said Coast Guard Lt. j.g. Kristin Quann on Tuesday.

Rita Lavelle Is Expected To Testify In Own Defense Today

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rita Lavelle's abrupt firing at the Environmental Protection Agency sent her aides into a frantic effort to remove sensitive documents from her office, according to government witnesses.

Two of Ms. Lavelle's former aides testified of cramming three briefcases full of files on members of Congress, controversial hazardous waste dumps and other matters in a 15-minute rush search of Ms. Lavelle's office late on Feb. 4, the day she was fired.

While the witnesses testified that two other aides and not Ms. Lavelle ordered the crash effort to gather up material, they said she knew it was going on as she sat crying in an adjoining office.

The testimony came as the prosecution closed its case against Ms. Lavelle, who is charged with perjury and obstructing a congressional investigation.

Ms. Lavelle was expected to take the stand today in her own defense as her attorneys try to counter prosecution allegations that she deliberately lied about her involvement in a toxic waste case concerning her former employer, Aerojet-General Corp.

Ms. Lavelle is also accused of lying when she denied using her office to boost the political chances of Republican congressional candidates.

In testimony Tuesday, two of Ms. Lavelle's closest aides testified that they hurriedly gathered up sensitive documents after Ms. Lavelle was fired.

Among the items taken were files on three congressmen who had been actively investigating Ms. Lavelle's activities — Reps. John Dingell, D-Mich.; James Florio, D-N.J.; and James Scheuer, D-N.Y., according to Ms. Lavelle's personal secretary, Henrietta Janiszewski.

Also removed, according to Ms. Janiszewski, were files on the Stringfellow Acid Pits in California; a hazardous waste dump in Seymour, Ind.; and dioxin contamination in Missouri.

Ms. Lavelle is accused of lying about the date she learned of Aerojet's involvement in the Stringfellow dump and of ignoring repeated warnings to remove herself from the case.

Prosecutors have said Ms. Lavelle also pushed for speedy action at Seymour to help the re-election campaign of Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., and rushed to issue a controversial press release on an untried method of cleaning up dioxin-contaminated soil to aid Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

Also removed were telephone numbers and addresses from Ms. Lavelle's records, Ms. Janiszewski said. She said only certain cards were taken out to keep the telephone files from looking like that had been "purged."

Another aide, Susan Baldyga, testified that she locked the briefcases in the trunk of her car and later transferred them during a midnight exchange in a restaurant parking lot to another aide while Ms. Lavelle looked on.

Commonwealth Summit Opened With Attack On Grenada Action

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi opened a summit meeting of Commonwealth nations today with sharp criticism of the U.S.-led invasion of Grenada.

"We cannot acquiesce in the reasons being advanced to justify the use of force by one state against another, to install regimes of particular persuasions or to destabilize regimes deemed to be inconvenient," she said.

However, Mrs. Gandhi avoided direct mention of the United States, which invaded Grenada on Oct. 25 in response to a leftist military coup. The small Caribbean island is a sovereign member of the Commonwealth but has no representative at the summit meeting.

Later, President Spyros Kyprianou of Cyprus urged the Commonwealth to ostracize the Turkish Cypriot Republic, the self-proclaimed independent state established last week by Turkish Cypriots on the northern part of his island nation.

In a message read on his behalf, Kyprianou said, "This is the most crucial period of the entire history of Cyprus."

Cyprus is divided between Cypriots of Greek and Turkish descent, with the Turkish sector occupied by troops from Turkey.

Rocket Atop Birthday Cake

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When Guion "Guy" Bluford, America's first black astronaut, got a birthday cake it had an appropriate ornament on top — a rocket shaped like the Challenger spacecraft he rode into space last summer.

Besides getting a 100-pound cake on his 41st birthday, Bluford, making a four-day visit to his hometown, was serenaded Tuesday by students at three public schools he used to attend.

A first-grader at Hanna School, 7-year-old Reginald Smith, wanted to know when Bluford decided to become an astronaut.

"I started a long time ago, when I was in elementary school, when I became interested in airplanes, and I kept reading more and more, and I wanted to fly. I didn't know then I'd be an astronaut, but I'm glad I am," Bluford told him.

Attending the week-long summit conference, which is held every two years, are prime ministers and presidents from 34 of the 44 nations belonging to the association of Britain and its former colonies. Another eight nations sent delegations headed by deputies. The countries range from impoverished Bangladesh to prosperous Canada and Australia.

Mrs. Gandhi, in discussing Grenada, rejected what Commonwealth Secretary General Shridath Ramphal said was an agreement in principle to send a Commonwealth security force to replace U.S. troops on the island.

She urged instead "immediate and appropriate action under the auspices of the United Nations, so that international intervention is ended."

Several nations, including Britain, had hoped to avoid a recriminatory tone to the conference. Leaders of six other Caribbean states which joined the invasion of Grenada listened in silence to Mrs. Gandhi's remarks.

In her opening address, Mrs. Gandhi also urged the Commonwealth to set in motion negotiations for the independence of South-West Africa, or Namibia, from South Africa, which administers the territory under a mandate declared defunct by the United Nations.

She called Namibia "the last major bastion of colonialism."

She said the meeting should "unequivocally reject" the South African position, supported by the United States, that U.N.-supervised elections will be permitted in Namibia only after Cuba withdraws 25,000 troops from adjacent Angola.

Michael Conrad Dead Of Cancer

By JAY ARNOLD
 Associated Press Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Conrad, the Emmy-winning sergeant on television's "Hill Street Blues" who died after a two-year battle with cancer, was remembered by colleagues as a strong, "always positive" actor who inspired respect.

Conrad died Tuesday at age 58 at Kenneth Norris Jr. Cancer Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment for cancer of the ureter, hospital spokesman Gordon Cohn said.

The tall, balding actor who played the fatherly Sgt. Phillip Freemason Esterhaus on the acclaimed series was known for his soft-spoken eloquence and his admonition to patrol officers, "Hey! Let's be careful out there!"

"It's sort of like losing your old man," said Charles Haid, who plays Officer Andy "Cowboy" Renko in the series.

He noted that Conrad continued to work on the show despite worsening health. "He was with us until the last possible minute and for that we have great respect and admiration for him," Haid said.

"We're his family and we're going to miss him. We're going to go on making 'Hill Street' ... but we're going to miss what he brought to it."

The "Hill Street" cast worked Tuesday after they learned of Conrad's 1 a.m. death, but planned to take an extended Thanksgiving break, NBC spokesman Brian Robinette said.

Ten segments of the show involving Conrad, who earned two Emmys for his portrayal of Esterhaus, had been filmed for the current season and six have been broadcast, NBC spokesman Gene Walsh said.

Rene Enriquez, who plays Lt. Ray Calletano in the series, said Conrad knew he was suffering from cancer, but "he thought he was going to conquer it."

"He was a very strong man, always positive and marvelous," Enriquez said.

The 6-foot-4 Conrad was known early in his career for "physical" and bad guy roles. But he found his greatest success with his gentle, elegant expressions on "Hill Street Blues."

He was partly attracted to the role, he said, because "I think I can show softness in a male."

Conrad once described Esterhaus as "a cop who's been out on the street too many years and was burned out."

A New York City native, Conrad was the eldest son of a career Army man and served in the artillery during World War II before attending New York's City College. He studied drama, played summer stock and toured nationally with "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "Mr. Roberts."

"I couldn't make a living as an actor until I was 33," Conrad told The Associated Press last year. "But I knew that if I stuck with it, some day I would make it. I loved the work so much. And I didn't have a lot of middle-class values to support, so I could skimp by."

In 1963, he moved to Los Angeles and appeared on "Wagon Train" and played heavies on "Gunsmoke," "Laredo" and "Rawhide."

More recently, he appeared in "The Longest Yard" and "Cattle Annie and Little Britches," and appeared in the movies "Castle Keep" and "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

Conrad is survived by his fourth wife, Sima, an Israeli actress.

Bob Hope Class In Big Demand

DALLAS (AP) — Students enrolled in a new comedy course at Southern Methodist University next spring will be inspired by "hope" — Bob Hope, that is.

Students have been "knocking down the doors" trying to register for the three-day seminar on the history and techniques of comedy that the 80-year Hope will teach March 26-28 at the Meadows School of the Arts, school officials said Tuesday.

SMU students aren't the only ones trying to get in. The school says it also has received phone calls from two grandmothers, long-time Bob Hope fans, who wanted to register their high-school-age grandsons.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Morning is excellent for getting your business organized and coming to a better agreement with everyone concerned. Improve personal and family matters, but keep temper under control. Be precise and frugal in financial affairs.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You and partners can carry through with some important deal today that can be of mutual benefit. Get busy early.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may have a slow start in the morning, but later everything can work out as you had planned, provided you stick to it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) There are financial matters that need to be taken care of in the morning, so get at those first. Relax at home tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) The situation at home could be very pleasant in the morning. As a result, you are enthusiastic about work to be done.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Morning is fine for communicating very well with others and getting much accomplished of value.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid that person who likes to pop in on you while you are busy at important work and stop putting up with it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You still have a few of yesterday's problems to be resolved, so get at those early. Catch up on routines and plan for the week-end.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you plan your day wisely, you can accomplish a good deal and still have time for enjoying a hobby you like.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Steer clear of one who may be after your job and is trying to get all kinds of information out of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may be contemplating a very foolish move at this time, so think it over well before you get into trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Despite your many-faceted mind, you had better get regular work done and gain the quick benefits.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You had better plan your itinerary early in the morning so you won't get caught in traffic, etc. All will then go smoothly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be born literally with a big sense of humor and will always be laughing and making others laugh. Give gentle discipline

For Over 30 Years, Cue-Card Man To The Stars

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Barney McNulty, cue-card man to the stars, saves Bob Hope's hide every time the comedian walks on stage. But there was one time in the Vietnam War that he really might have saved Hope's life.

In 1962, Hope's road show had just entertained American troops at an airfield in Vietnam. Heading back to their hotel in Saigon, the performer and his entourage were delayed for some time while McNulty put 4,000 pounds of cue cards in order.

Ten minutes before Hope's motorcade arrived in Saigon, a bomb went off near his hotel, killing and injuring more than 100 people.

It wasn't until 1974, when Gen. William C. Westmoreland cornered McNulty at a show, that McNulty learned that the Army had found documents in an enemy bunker detailing plans to kill Hope and his troupe. A truck loaded with explosives was supposed to blow up his hotel.

The terrorists knew Hope's itinerary, said McNulty, but when they couldn't find him at the appointed time, they parked in a different hotel and triggered the bombs.

"The document the army found said that the excuse for not getting our group was that our timing was off," he said.

When the story was related to Hope, McNulty said the comic told him, "Saved by the idiot cards again."

Tonight, when the legendary comedian is getting laughs on NBC's special, "Bob Hope Goes to College," remember that McNulty is feeding him the lines on macroscopic crib sheets. Since Hope has been having eye problems, McNulty's lettering has had to grow — by as much as 10 times for one show last year. It took three days to prepare those cards.

"I had to make 2,200 (cue-card) flips, and let me tell you that's a lot," said McNulty. "My thumb was awfully red."

Jimmy Durante was another near-sighted comedian who needed large jokes, said McNulty, who has been plying his oversized pieces of cardboard for more than 30 years, working for such stars as Lucille Ball, Jack Benny, Orson Welles, Frank Sinatra, Milton Berle and Carol Burnett.

McNulty said Miss Burnett adds little squiggles to his letters. Berle used to underline key words. Improvisational and fast-talking comedians, like Robin Williams, pose different problems. "He'll use you, then he won't use you," McNulty said. "You try to stay with him as best you can."

McNulty is from the old school: cardboard sheets and fast-drying ink, disdaining the electronic age's computerized scrolls. "If I thought we could do better with the modern stuff, I'd use it. But we've never blown a fuse."

Consider the plight of the old-fashioned cue-card man in an alien environment. "The cardboard has to be absorbent and soak up the ink," McNulty explained. "It can't be shiny, and the ink has to be fast-drying, otherwise it will come off on the card before and they'll stick together." Other difficulties include ink that runs in rainy climates, dust that sticks between the cards in dry weather and ill-blowing winds. "One time in Libya, the cards went sailing into the sunset," McNulty said.

McNulty said another danger is sabotage before live shows, although he wouldn't specify who might bear his cards a grudge. "But sabotage has never been effective," he said. "I always check the order of the cards, just in case. Last year at the Country Music Awards, we had a big deck and they were out of order. I got everything cleaned up just six minutes before airtime."

It's a certainty that McNulty has more jokes written down on cardboard than anybody else. He has 100,000 cue cards stashed away in several garages. "I want to keep them because it's a continuing history of show business."

Sophia In Film With Her Son

ROME (AP) — A new movie starring actress Sophia Loren will be a family affair — also featuring her 11-year-old son Edouardo and co-produced by her husband Carlo Ponti.

The 49-year-old Ms. Loren and Edouardo will have the leading roles in "Qualcosa di Biondo" ("Something Blond"), the story of a woman whose son became blind as a child, Rome's daily Il Messaggero reported Tuesday.

The film will be directed by Maurizio Ponzi, who directed last year's box-office hit "Io, Chiara e lo Scuro" ("I, Chiara and the Dark One"), with Italian Guanfranco Piccioli co-producing, the paper said.

"In the film the child has an extremely close relationship with the mother, whom he remembers before losing his eyesight as 'something blond,'" Ponzi told Il Messaggero.
