New Storm For Midwest

By CYNTHIA GREEN
Associated Press Writer

While Midwesterners dug out from a record blizzard and a trickle of travel resumed, forecasters warned that a new sister storm threatened to dump more icy inches on the Great Plains today as the fierce weather's death toll rose to 68.

Snow from the new storm began falling in Utah early today and the National Weather Service said up to 4 more inches could top the 1 to 2 feet that paralyzed the nation's midsection Monday. Travelers' advisories were in effect today for much of Wyoming, northern Utah and eastern Colorado.

As the western Plains braced for another, though milder, onslaught, the storm that left 9-foot drifts in some areas and brought the Midwest to a halt was still packing a wallop further east.

Snow continued to fall today in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, with up to 6 new inches expected before it ended. Freezing rain and sleet left a slippery sheen over northern New England.

At least 15 more storm-related deaths were reported Monday, including four stranded motorists who were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes from their idling engines in Kansas and seven people who suffered heart attacks while shoveling snow in Minnesota and Nebraska.

At the same time, a doctor in Colorado hitched a ride on a snowplow to reach a blizzard-bound Colorado home and deliver a baby.

The Nebraska State Patrol advised the hundreds of stranded travelers — many of whom bunked on church pews and armory floors Sunday night — to stay off the roads another day. Although Interstate 80 was cleared of 8-foot drifts and reopened Monday afternoon, "we're telling everybody that it's still ice- and snow-packed, that there is still snow and blowing snow, and that travel is not recommended," said a patrol spokesman in Lincoln.

"I can see drifts from the office here, and it looks like they're six or seven feet deep," said Greeley County, Neb., Deputy Bill Callister. "There's nothing moving here in town."

"You're just asking for it by being out," said Bill Brennan of Grand Island, Neb. "There's cars strewn all over the place."

Ranchers in western Nebraska labored to get food to livestock herds that were caught on the range during the storm. The Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association canceled its convention, which was to have run Monday through Wednesday in Kearney, because so many cattlemen would be tied up trying to save their animals, spokesman Rex Messersmith said.

Denver city officials were keeping a "snow emergency" in effect today after Stapleton International Airport was reopened to 50 percent of capacity Monday and more than 3,000 stranded passengers began to move out. Bob Coates, director of operations, said he expected to have all runways operating this morning — "except we've got another small snowstorm coming in and that could slow down things a bit."

Power was still out today for about 8,000 customers in northeast Kansas as crews worked to hook up lines downed by ice and snow, said Bill J. Ohlmeier of the Kansas Electric Cooperatives Inc. As many as 21,000 customers were without electricity at the height of the storm, he said.

Monday's tortuous excavation brought tales of triumph as well as tragedy.

A physician hitched a ride on a snowplow to deliver a healthy baby boy at a home in Limon, Colo., which was isolated by the storm. Danny Ray Brown and his mother, Mrs. Leonard Brown, were both in good condition Monday after Dr. Thomas Jeffers' house call.

A seriously ill Colorado toddler was rescued from his family's snowbound farm after a radioed plea for help was heard 1,000 miles away in Oregon. Two-year-old Bryan Kester was taken to the hospital through 18 miles of swirling snow.

Newlyweds Dwayne and Paul Simmons of Oklahoma City returned to their snowbound car Monday after spending the first night of their honeymoon on the floor of a National Guard armory in Garden City, Kan. But sympathetic emergency workers helped the couple salvage some romance — they were the only stranded travelers given a private room, a makeshift bridal suite in an armory office.

NEW FLAGS ORDERED ... Two new flags, replacing the traditional Confederate battle standard and the British Union Jack, have been ordered by the city for the Town Common. They will fly with two current American flags, a North Carolina flag, and a Betsy Ross flag, which was the first flag of the United States.

Order New Flags For Town Common

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The city, after consulting with the state Division of Archives and History, has ordered two new flags for the Town Common to replace two that were questioned by an East Carolina University student as to their relevance in local history.

City Manager Gail Meeks said today that she and Mayor Percy Cox received letters back in the spring from Glenn Maughan, who she said expressed concern about the symbolic meaning of the Confederate Stars and Bars. She said Maughan also questioned why the British Union Jack was being flown here.

Mrs. Meeks said the standards, along with four others, were presented to the city by the

Scientific Experiments Are Begun In Spacelab

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The scientists aboard Spacelab, not content with testing their own bodies to learn how humans adapt to space, turned today to a related question: How do plants know which way is up when there is no up?

Except for the usual minor hitches, the shuttle Columbia and the $1 billion European-built laboratory in its cargo hold were doing well after their Monday launch. And so were the six men aboard the orbiting spacecraft, with one fleeting exception.

Byron Lichtenberg, a biomedical engineer from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was unable to complete a "hop and drop" test in which he jumped, then let elastic bands pull him to the Spacelab floor. Lichtenberg complained of "a little dizziness and disorientation" and Mission Control assured him that "you did the right thing to stop when you did."

The astronauts split into two teams for their round-the-clock, round-the-world experiments and about midnight EST — dawn in Europe — the red shift took over with West German scientist Ulf Merbold in the laboratory along with Robert Parker.

One of Merbold's first tasks was to photograph some dwarf sunflower seedlings, in various stages of growth, to observe the growth movements of the plants in weightlessness. On Earth, growing plant parts move in tiny spiral patterns, but scientists don't know why. The movement, called nutation, is affected by gravity and scientists want to see, through a series of time lapse pictures, what happens when there is none.

Merbold and Parker continued the Spacelab mission of subjecting orbiting humans to tests to see what causes space sickness, at one point placing their heads into a rotating dome painted inside with dots of various sizes and colors.

The slowly whirling dome was designed to induce a sensation of left to right rotation while a camera records the subject's eye

Full-Time Job

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners agreed Monday night to hire a full-time registered civil engineer.

The board, meeting at a workshop session, agreed to retain former Greenville City Engineer Charles Holiday on a part-time basis. Holiday has been working part time for the county since his retirement from the city several years ago.

One of the duties of the engineer will be to work with the county planning board.

In other business the board and representatives of the town of Farmville met with representatives of the N.C. Department of Transportation to ask DOT's assistance in finding a site to relocate the Farmville solid waste container site.

The present site serving the Farmville area will be closed when a portion of the new U.S. 264 freeway between Wilson and Greenville is built across it.

Anti-Drug Program Spawns Parent Groups

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

"Come on America! Stick your neck out for kids and help prevent adolescent drug and alcohol use," says a brand new flyer funded by the American Medical Association and circulated by the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth.

The quote is from Nancy Reagan.

The card also features a picture of the nation's first lady with her arms around a 6-foot-tall stuffed giraffe, given to her when she attended the group's annual meeting recently in Washington, D.C.

One million of the flyers are being distributed to participants of the more than 10,000 town meetings held Nov. 2 and 9 in conjunction with the television broadcast, "The Chemical People," an anti-drug show featuring Mrs. Reagan as host.

Mrs. Joyce Nalepka, senior vice president, said the giraffe was given to Mrs. Reagan for sticking her neck out in the battle against teenage drug abuse.

"The secret service men took it home in a limousine," Mrs. Nalepka said. "Ann Wroblewski, special projects director for the first lady, told me the giraffe is residing in the first family's living quarters on the second floor of the White House."

An informal link between the federation and Mrs. Reagan's campaign against the teenage drug epidemic also involves the Nancy Reagan Speakers Bureau, created by the parents group last year and recently funded by the National Football League.

Mrs. Nalepka, a founder of the national parents' group that has spawned more than 4,000 community parent groups nationwide, said the Nancy Reagan Speakers Bureau was named to salute Mrs. Reagan for trying to get more parents involved in preventing and fighting drug abuse among children and teenagers.

In response to Mrs. Reagan's recent appeals to parents during "The Chemical People" broadcasts, the federation opened a drug hotline for parents.

Congressional wives are among those manning it from 9 to 5, Monday to Friday. Mrs. Nalepka said the hours will be expanded with need.

The line is for parents seeking help with a drug problem affecting one of their children or wanting to know how to protect children not yet into chemical abuse.

Among the first callers was a girl, 13, who wanted to know if she could still be saved.

"She said she was into marijuana and alcohol for a few weeks," Mrs. Nalepka said.

Some children wanted to know what to do about their parents using marijuana.

Mrs. Nalepka said the NFP was founded in May 1980 to help parents.

"We were desperate to find help for those children already involved and even more determined to prevent the rest from becoming involved," she said.

Mrs. Nalepka said she learned of the epidemic levels of use when a teenage neighbor asked her to provide transportation to a rock concert.

Her sons were only 5 and 9 and her reasons for becoming an activist were simple.

"I was terrified for my own children, angry that it was happening to anyone's children and determined to help stop it," she said.

She baked bread for the children to eat when they came home from school and in other ways provided a good upbringing and a nice warm homelife, all the things meant to make a kid feel secure.

But when she witnessed young people tripping on drugs and alcohol during the rock concert, Mrs. Nalepka said she saw that more was needed if her children were to be protected.

The way to protect any children against the drug epidemic, she said, is with education that starts at age 6 or 7. But even that may be too late.

She said one way to protect children against the possibility of drug abuse is by teaching them about the responsible use of even over-the-counter drugs.

Take orange-flavored aspirin for children. Mrs. Nalepka said children should be taught that it's medicine, and eating it like candy can be dangerous.

Bob Kramer, NFP's new president, said the federation can give parents guidelines that will prevent the spread of drug use among adolescents — and help parents see when they need to seek professional treatment.

"I learned the hard way — after my boys were already so heavily involved that both needed treatment," said Carolyn Burns of Burtonsville, Md., director of the NFP Nancy Reagan Speaker's Bureau.

"There's lots more help available now and we want to share it.

"My advice to parents is, get yourself educated, prevent drug use by younger children, get help for those already using drugs."

"Our family was hurt but still we feel lucky. NFP gets many calls from parents whose children have committed suicide or died as a result of an accident caused by drug or alcohol. We want you to pick up that phone and call."

Welcome to teaching, Miss Stevenson.

Your mission is to teach 26 first-graders how to read. Should you decide to accept the job you will be reinforced by every modern bit of technology known to education, including visuals, computers and teaching aids.

You will have the confidence of the parents, the support of the administration and the love of the children. You have nine months in which to accomplish this miracle with three and a half weeks of holidays and an occasional closing of the schools for an Act of God. Good luck.

Oh, just one thing. You won't forget to instill good nutrition habits, teach the gifted, the neurologically impaired, the emotionally disturbed, and develop civic responsibility, will you? Good.

And check for head lice, make sure they have a hot breakfast, collect milk money and arrange their transportation to and from school.

Did I mention eye testing and inoculations and instruction of first aid procedures? It goes without saying you will provide sex education... in a tasteful way, of course.

By the way, don't forget to maintain birth information and age certification data, be on the lookout for child abuse, and collect money for the repairing of the Statue of Liberty.

And you'll have to make time to build economic awareness, assist in bladder control, stress bilingual development and eliminate sex discrimination.

Just be glad, Miss Stevenson, you aren't in secondary education. They have to assist in career planning, money management, teach kids how to drive a car, counsel them in their career, place them in jobs, identify and solve alcohol and drug abuse problems, and counsel them in pregnancy.

You're fortunate. All you have is bicycle safety, training in pulmonary resuscitation, promotion of physical fitness and metrics, building self-worth and respect, and instilling in them a sense of patriotism.

Teaching them to read, I know, sounds simple, but it's important. But then so is daily fund-raising, protecting students' privacy, following due process procedures, counseling problem children, maintaining discipline, fostering integration, and teaching the principles of free enterprise. All we expect from you is to give the public what they want... a back-to-basics education. Good luck, Miss Stevenson. MISS STEVENSON! Another one self-destructed. No one wants to teach kids how to read anymore.

About 2,300,000 North Carolinians use alcohol.

On The Young Side

Congratulations and kudos for Christine Gantt who has added another award to an already growing list for the 1983-84 school year. Mrs. Gantt, head of the math department at Rose High, was presented the "Governors Award for Outstanding Contributions to Mathematics and Science Education" by Gov. Jim Hunt. Earlier this year Mrs. Gantt and Virginia Read received a $2,500 grant from GTE.

Leaders in school spirit, the Rose High Marching Band and both cheerleading squads have recently received awards for excellence in their fields. The band, for the first time in three years, received a rating of excellent at the East Carolina University Band Day. The majorettes placed second in their division while the drum line placed third. The cheerleaders competed at the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival and both squads did well. The junior varsity team placed first in their category and the varsity squad placed second in theirs.

As part of several foreign exchange programs, Rose is being attended this year by 10 students from different countries. These students and the countries they hail from are: Bertram Pfisterer and Kirsten Soetebier from Germany; Anne Stormoen of Norway; Kirsi Arvola from Finland; Pedro Gener of Spain; Didier Uzan of France; Katherine Jamieson from England; Malin Forsberg of Sweden; Hugo Rondino of Italy; and Stratos Lakios of Greece. They will be staying for the remainder of the school year.

Tickets for the drama club's production of "The Drunkard" are still available from club members or by contacting the Rose High office. The play is scheduled for Dec. 24 at the Wahl-Coates auditorium.

The date — Nov. 30 — is very important at Rose for two reasons. The ASVAB (Armed Services Vocation Aptitude Battery) will be given and all creative work for Insights (the school's literary magazine) is to be submitted.

Christmas, for many, is a special time of sharing. So it is very fitting that these clever plastic canvas needlepointed Christmas ornaments are the original designs of two of my readers who are willing to share their ideas with all of us.

Although all the ornaments appear to be flat in the photograph, seven of them, designed by Josephine Bridwell of Franklin, Ind., are three-sided — a most unique shaping for ornaments and one that will have everyone wondering how you did it. The two-sided circles and squares are the work of Olive Wightman of Bellevue, Pa. Many thanks to both of these generous ladies!

All the ornaments are quick, easy and fun to make from odds and ends of yarn and plastic canvas. Make a few extra for little "I'm-thinking-of-you" gifts for friends and neighbors.

To obtain directions for making these Designer Ornaments, send your request for Leaflet No. NL-1127 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. N-1127 by sending a check or money order for $11.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes the shipping charges, full instructions and sufficient materials for making up to 20 ornaments.

Dear Readers: I am writing this column before Thanksgiving, but today I feel so thankful that I have been blessed with the opportunity to share ideas with other needlecrafters each week.

Through the years I have always known that you who love to do handwork are very special, warm and giving people and this was brought home to me again this week when I called the two ladies who designed the Christmas ornaments featured today.

I have met neither of these ladies, but feel that I have two new friends. Both were so warm and friendly and their conversations just sparkled with enthusiasm over their needlework.

When I called Olive Wightman, I immediately pictured from her voice a busy young homemaker. Imagine my surprise when she volunteered the information that she was 81 years old and full of ideas for needlepoint designs.

Josephine Bridwell told me that she saw a three-sided Santa ornament demonstrated at a crafts club she attends and then went home and started "playing around" with the idea and in doing so, developed her own designs.

Both have shown a lot of creativity in their designs in a perfect willingness to experiment and to slant their stitches in any direction to achieve a desired effect. Too many people still think of needlepoint as simply small diagonal stitches slanting from left to right and therefore limit themselves in the area of design.

Now, just before the start of the busiest of holiday seasons, most of you will probably want to work from other people's designs for your hand-made gifts and decorations. But why don't you plan to make it a new year's resolution to try your hand at designing original items? Plastic canvas particularly lends itself to this in many ways — not the least of which is the ease of ripping out a design area that doesn't come out as well as you'd like.

Someone once asked me how I went about the creation of an original design. My rather flip answer, which popped out unexpectedly, was that I rip a lot! There was more than a little truth to that, however.

I often sit with needle, yarn and canvas and try out a variety of stitches and color schemes before a good design forms. I never feel that this is wasted time, though, as nothing is more relaxing.

The real thrill comes when a design I have just worked out looks special and someone says "I like that!" Here's hoping you can have that thrill with one of your own original designs one day.

Dear Readers: Several of you have written me to express confusion about the tiny toboggan tree ornament I described in my Nov. 6 column. My fellow Southerners and I associate a winter cap with the word "toboggan," whereas the rest of you probably think of a sled. The directions I have given you are for making a toboggan cap — not a sled!

Dear Abby

Christmas Bride Is In A Panic

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My wedding invitations went out two weeks ago and the response cards are coming in, Abby, they are throwing me into total panic!

I sent invitations to 31 single people. Nowhere on the invitation did I indicate "and guest," but so far 14 of these single guests have returned cards with the names of their "guests" written in.

Two couples have informed me that if they can't bring their children, they will not attend. I do not want children under 12 years old. And if I allow one, I will have to have at least 20.

Abby, due to space limitations and a tight budget, I cannot accommodate any more than I have already invited.

Please tell me what to do.

CHRISTMAS BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: If you can't personally write or phone those who have informed you that they are bringing a guest (or their children), enlist the help of one or two close friends. Be assured that you are in no way being rude or unreasonable to inform invited guests that due to space limitations you regret that you cannot accommodate their guests or children.

DEAR ABBY: Has there ever been a book written on wheelchair etiquette? If so, I would like to buy several dozen copies and pass them around.

Because of an accident, I am confined to a wheelchair. It is a difficult enough adjustment to make without having to put up with the thoughtlessness and insensitivity of some people.

When I am shopping with my husband, the salesperson will invariably ask my husband, "What size is she?" Being unable to walk does not necessarily mean that I am deaf, mute or of diminished mental capacity.

Also, when I am out with friends, I have had so many coats, hats, pocketbooks and packages piled on top of me that I look like a rolling rummage sale!

And, lest I forget, there's the clown who likes to let go of my wheelchair at the top of an incline, only to run up after a few steps to catch it with a jerk.

Please print this, Abby. I'm sure there are thousands (at least) who get around in wheelchairs who would appreciate it.

Riding A Gamble

Farmers have to be the biggest gluttons for punishment we know. Year after year, they face the hazards of weather and inflation, of labor that doesn't want to work or labor that wants all of the profits, of political expediencies that tend to hurt those being helped more than anyone else.

This year certainly has not been different. Congress has battled tooth and nail over legislation that would virtually wipe out tobacco as a cash crop. Weather conditions were terrible for tobacco, corn, soybeans, virtually everything that grows in the soil.

Tobacco yield fell 22 percent this year, to the lowest level since 1941. The corn crop declined 57 percent and the soybean crop is forecast to fall 42 percent below last year's record crop. Peanuts are down 29 percent. Even cotton, no longer really a major cash crop in this state, still makes its presence felt. Cotton is expected to fall 56 percent below the 1982 yield.

Gamble? No doubt about it. Farming is a gamble of the first order. Even if you get past the harvest with a good yield, chances are the market prices will fall.

As the saying goes, you can't win for losing. But North Carolina growers have shown in the past that they can win and, although many have dropped by the wayside in the last 10 years, agriculture will continue.

The classic tobacco farmer always vows "I'm quitting" midway through the harvest season. But when fall comes and it's time to get the seed beds ready for the following year, seldom indeed does that farmer not show up.

It's the native pride in his work, the enjoyment of what he or she is doing and, of course, the possibility of "making it big this year" that keeps the farmer going.

Idea With Merit

Katheryn Lewis, director of the Rural Education Institute at East Carolina University, recently discussed with Pitt County Commissioners the establishment of a nature museum at River Park North.

The Greenville-owned park would be ideal for an outdoor education program and a children's museum, she said.

She suggested participation by city-county governments and schools and said an outstanding fossil collection and one of the best taxidermy collections in the Southeast could be made available.

It strikes us as a positive idea. It would seem that costs could be held to a reasonable level if the governments and the schools participated and drew on support from the university. The museum would provide an education exhibit which would be impossible to duplicate in individual schools.

Democratic Tangle

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the best of motives, Democratic Party officials got themselves in a terrible tangle that threatened to turn party priorities upside down and distract the rank and file from the goal of beating Republicans next year.

Ironically, the current trouble can be traced to the rules revision designed to do away with the internal bloodletting that characterized earlier battles for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Outsiders might reasonably wonder what possible difference it could make if Iowa holds its caucuses and New Hampshire its primary a week earlier than the new party rules require.

But to party Chairman Charles T. Manatt the rules are the rules and everyone signed off on the deal and ought to stick by it.

Recently Manatt has acted as if prepared to fight to the last Democrat to prevent Iowa and New Hampshire from undoing the caucus and primary calendar.

His concern goes beyond those two states. If Iowa and New Hampshire can buck the rules then how can Manatt insist that Wisconsin abandon its open primary, a tradition which permitted any voter, including Republicans, to vote in the Democratic primary?

That made it a battle worth fighting but only if there were a chance of victory.

It took no time at all for the contenders for the party's presidential nomination to decide their best interests lay in giving support and comfort to the two states which kick off the delegate selection process.

Sen. Alan Cranston needs Iowa and New Hampshire votes more than he needs his fellow Californian, Manatt.

Neither former Vice President Walter F. Mondale or Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, the contenders who rank one and two, respectively, in the opinion polls, has been willing to anger party officials in Iowa or New Hampshire by siding with Manatt.

So Cranston declared last week that he wouldn't join other presidential candidates in a fund-raising tour sponsored by the national party. It was time, said Cranston campaign manager Sergio Bendixen, for Manatt to concentrate on resolving the calendar dispute.

It seemed a little extreme for a leader of a party that needs every dollar it can get to compete with the bulging Republican treasury which is constantly fed by a fund-raising apparatus far more efficient than anything the Democrats can hope to have for many years.

But the dispute seems to have moved beyond the point where people can act rationally. There now is too heavy an investment in egos and what the candidates perceive as their chance for a slight edge in the states that will hold the first caucuses and primary in 1984.

Both states jealously guard their first in the nation status which attracts all the presidential contenders and a lot of national attention every four years.

The calendar everyone seemed to accept two years ago began to unravel when New Hampshire officials balked at sharing March 6 with a non-binding straw poll in neighboring Vermont. New Hampshire officials invoked a state law which provides that their primary be held one week earlier than any similar event and set a new primary date of Feb. 28.

Then Iowa moved its caucuses from Feb. 27 to Feb. 20.

Manatt's muscle in the dispute was the national party's authority, affirmed by the Supreme Court, to override state laws when it comes to determine who gets seated at its national convention.

But the party can't override its presidential candidates and the longer the dispute drags on, the likelier it is that Manatt will have to find a face-saving way to cave in.

RALEIGH — Environmentalists lobby at the General Assembly under the burden of a stereotype. Rural conservative legislators often show little political respect for environmentalists because they see them as a bunch of wealthy- or professional-class city slickers who are left of center in the political spectrum.

"The stereotype is of a white, upper middle-class person who's got their's and wants to protect it. He's the person who's bought a cottage at the beach and is opposed to development," explains Bill Holman, the Sierra Club's North Carolina lobbyist.

North Carolina environmentalists are touting a new poll and saying it proves that the stereotype is incorrect. They say the poll shows that the stereotype exists only in the minds of people like former Interior Secretary James Watt and not in the general population.

"I've been working in the environmental field for five years and found environmentalists to be as diverse as you're likely to come across," Holman says. "We've got Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives, white-collar and blue-collar workers ... the stereotyped image doesn't stand up and this poll shows that a lot of blue-collar people, blacks, farmers, businessmen, consider themselves environmentalists or conservationists."

The poll was conducted by the Friends of the Earth Foundation and funded by the Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation. In all, 609 North Carolinians were randomly interviewed in early October.

The major finding of the poll was that 72 percent of the North Carolinians interviewed "described themselves as sympathetic to the environmental movement or active participants in it." That compares to a national average of only 61 percent as determined by other polls.

Equally important to the environmentalists is a finding about their own public image, that the stereotype doesn't exist in the public's mind. "The frequent allegation that the environmental movement is elitist, aloof and preoccupied with peripheral issues is rejected by most North Carolinians," the poll report says.

The poll found that 65 percent of all North Carolinians agreed with the statement, "Environmentalists really care about people like me." An equal number of people rejected the statement, "The environmental movement is led by a bunch of wealthy people who don't understand my problems."

The poll did find a "minor Achilles heel" for environmentalists, however. Of those polled, 37 percent of the respondents agreed with the statement, "Even though the environmental movement does some good things, I don't trust it because there are too many radicals and extreme liberals in it."

One frequent target of state

environmentalists is Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, powerful Senate Appropriations chairman and sponsor of legislation that says no state environmental regulation can be stricter than that promulgated by the federal government. After being read the results of the poll, Hardison said, "One hundred percent of the people are concerned about the environment ... I'm an environmentalist, too. I want clean water, clean air and the public safety protected ... But a lot of them (people who care about the environment) don't agree with the methods of those who call themselves environmentalists."

The poll shows that North Carolinians want the environment protected and that they respect environmentalists. But before the environmental lobby becomes a major force in the General Assembly, the environmentalists will have to provide more evidence that the public supports their methods of protecting the environment.

ERA Isn't Dead, Yet

WASHINGTON — It is said of the fabled phoenix that this rare bird lives for an unusual span of years, then builds a massive nest on a hill, sets fire to the nest and burns itself to ashes. After a decent interval, the bird comes forth anew. In the continuing life cycle of the Equal Rights Amendment, we have just passed through another self-immolation. Further resurrection is yet to come.

What happened in the House of Representatives on Nov. 15 was a piece of political cynicism as raw as any such demonstration we have seen this year. You will recall that the ERA first was approved by Congress in 1972 for a seven-year period of ratification. When the seven years ran out, Congress provided an unprecedented 39 months more. The states still refused to ratify, and the ERA expired in the summer of 1982 in flames of bitterness and recrimination.

But when Congress reconvened last January, behold: The ERA, unchanged by so much as a comma, arose from its ashes as House Joint Resolution 1. Its sponsors resisted every effort at amendment. Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill succumbed to the kind of devious temptation that old pols find irresistible. He fixed things so that the ERA would fly out of committee on one procedural understanding, but would land on the floor under a wholly different procedure; and he figured he would win either way the vote went.

This was a catch-22 of magnificent dimensions. Critics of the Equal Rights Amendment were eager to add five or six amendments to the original text. These were amendments to say that the ERA would not create a right to an abortion, that it would not require the drafting of women for military service, that it would not require women in the armed services to undergo combat, that it would not affect the preference given to veterans in civil service jobs and that it would not apply to private and parochial schools.

Some of these proposed amendments, notably the ones dealing with abortion, combat service and veterans preference, had strong support. Brought to a vote on the floor, they probably could have commanded simple majorities, and thus would have been added to the resolution.

But these same amendments were absolutely opposed by such outfits as the National Organization for Women. The more militant proponents of ERA wanted the original version, pure and undefiled; and they threatened political reprisal against any member who sought to make changes.

The House leadership had promised proponents of the amendments that they would have an opportunity to offer their proposals on the floor. But in a change of mind that infuriated many of the ERA's supporters on both sides of the aisle, Speaker O'Neill reneged. He sent the resolution to the floor under a rule that barred amendments and permitted only 40 minutes of debate. When the roll was called that Tuesday afternoon, the resolution fell half a dozen votes short of the two-thirds required for passage.

The debate, such as it was, saw demagoguery on one side and resentment on the other. "This is not a vote on procedure," cried Don Edwards of California. "This is a vote on whether you oppose or support equality." This was rubbish, but we heard a vast deal of rubbish that afternoon. "This Constitution was never intended to be amended in such a cavalier fashion," cried Hamilton Fish of New York. And in that remark the gentleman was exactly right.

Did the speaker win? Or did he lose? My own guess is that his ploy will fail. The resolution lost only because of the ruthless power play attempted by the leadership. Democrats will insult the intelligence of the American people if they propose to get away with hanging Edwards' simplistic formulation on opposing Republicans.

O'Neill and Edwards lost this round because they deserved to lose. The proposed amendments were not frivolous amendments. Their purpose was to clear up deep uncertainties about what ERA would mean as a matter of constitutional law. The House should have been granted the chance to vote them up or down. Eventually, because this phoenix will rise again, that time will have to come.

Israel Sees Solution In Syria

JERUSALEM — When he came here at the beginning of November seeking help in Lebanon, Undersecretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger received little sympathy but did get an unusually blunt warning from top Israeli leaders.

The warning: President Reagan had better not think U.S. air and naval pressure, with or without Israeli help, can end disorder in Lebanon and permit withdrawal of the Marines. If so, they told Eagleburger, he will be "turning the 1984 presidential election over to the Syrians and the Russians."

The problem is Reagan's pledge to leave the Marines in Beirut until domestic tranquility is restored or all foreign forces are pulled out. That, the Israelis believe, gives trump cards to Soviet-backed Syria to force delays any time it wants, at a mounting cost of Marine casualties. The answer, these Israeli leaders warned Eagleburger, cannot be found without dealing with Syria — directly and at length.

Such a warning to the diplomat respected in Israel as Reagan's most experienced policy-maker exposes the concern here that the U.S. has lost its way in the quicksand of Lebanon. Eagleburger's plea for closer U.S.-Israeli collaboration to avoid recurrences of the Oct. 23 Marine massacre in Beirut was listened to, but specific pledges were not even asked, much less given.

The specifics are supposed to be unveiled when Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Moshe Arens meet in Washington. But the White House failure to arm Eagleburger with specific proposals on his mission here left Israeli politicians alarmed.

They are alarmed because, with all the talk from Washington about "strategic" cooperation with Israel, they don't know exactly what it is Reagan wants from them. A few Israeli air attacks on extremist Iranian-Shiite camps in the Syrian-controlled northern Bekaa Valley of Lebanon are not seen here as adding muscle to Reagan's bargaining power with Damascus.

Beyond that, Shamir's Israel privately rules out the kind of large-scale ground assault on Syrian forces in the Bekaa that might, if successful, force Syria's President Hafez el-Assad to do Washington's bidding and withdraw from Lebanon. A lieutenant of the prime minister told us: "If they push Shamir to do that, it will be very bad because we will not oblige."

Even talk about restoring the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU), a deal for vague strategic cooperation between the U.S. and Israel, arouses little interest among the men who are closest to Shamir. Temporarily shelved in 1981 as a gesture to "punish" Israel, the MOU is looked at here as the property of former defense minister Ariel Sharon. Shamir sees it as a made-by-Washington trick to limit Israel's freedom of action.

Concern over the immediate future of relations with the U.S. is tied to Israeli bewilderment over the baffling course of American diplomacy since Israel's invasion of Lebanon in June 1982. Reciting chapter and verse of his country's effort to keep the U.S. from inflicting major damage on itself, a prominent political leader told us that "the whole American position on Syria was wrong, and wrong in the most basic way."

This Israeli leader warned Secretary of State George Shultz in May that he would have to deal directly and at length with Syria's Assad to resolve the stalemated troop-withdrawal issue. But Shultz became "extremely angry." The secretary of state then rejected Israel's assurances that Syria is the ally but not the puppet of Moscow and that without extended talks with Assad the troop withdrawal puzzle would never be solved.

Shamir will reject any appeal from Reagan to use Israeli military power as "America's sword" to bring home the Marines.

Then, much of what the world calls practical wisdom appears in its true light — upside down.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Several weeks ago I wrote to you regarding the national holiday for Martin Luther King. I had no estimate of the cost of a national holiday at that time. I would like to give your readers an estimate of those costs found in Sen. John East's "Washington Update."

The Library of Congress estimates a cost to the federal government of $270 million — and for state and local governments a cost of $692 million is forecast. That comes to a total of nearly $1 billion in pay, benefits and lost productivity for all government workers.

In addition, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce estimates that the cost of King Day to the private sector will be about $4.3 billion per year. Added to the public sector costs, this means that the total cost of the new holiday will be a staggering $5.26 billion. Collier's Encyclopedia states, "In 1940, total government expenditures amounted to $38.5 billion."

What will this day cost our grandchildren?

Strength For Today

So often do the sayings of Jesus seem to be contrary to the practical ideals of the world in which we live that we wonder whether or not such counsel is sound. Someone has expressed it by saying that what Christ said seems upside down when we look at it through the eyes of the world.

We are told to love our enemies, to turn the other cheek, to take no thought for the morrow, to have faith that whatever needs to be done for the fulfillment of our lives can indeed be done.

In the physical process of perception the image of the things which our eyes behold is upside down, but the brain turns these images right side up so that we can see things as they really are. In the same way, when people enter sympathetically into the ideals of Jesus' kingdom, then the precepts of the Gospel shine forth right side up.

Then, much of what the world calls practical wisdom appears in its true light — upside down.

New Stay Of Execution Given Death Row Veteran

By KEN KLEIN
Associated Press Writer
STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Convicted killer Robert Sullivan, who has been on Death Row longer than any other American, drew a rare mercy plea from Pope John Paul II and a temporary stay of today's scheduled execution from a federal judge.

Sullivan, 36, was scheduled to die in Florida's electric chair for the April 9, 1973, murder of a south Florida restaurant manager. Sullivan, who has been on Death Row a record 10 years, says he is innocent.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham rejected the appeal.

and an aide said the governor would not stay the execution.

But the chief judge of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta, acting on a motion by Sullivan's lawyers, delayed the execution until the 12-judge panel could be polled on whether to consider a last-minute appeal. On Monday, a three-judge panel of the same court voted 2-1 to reject his appeal.

State officials expected the full court to act on Sullivan's request for a hearing by noon today. If they deny a new hearing and a last-gasp appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court failed, Sullivan could be executed anytime before noon Wednesday, according to the terms of a death warrant signed by the governor.

Roman Catholic Church officials said Archbishop Edward McCarthy of Miami, with authorization from the pope, telephoned a mercy plea to Graham on Monday.

A Roman Catholic bishop in Florida has said a Boston man confessed to a priest that he was with Sullivan at the time of the killing. The unidentified priest is barred from revealing details of the conversation but he and several of his colleagues asked for clemency because they believed Sullivan was innocent.

In Washington a spokesman for Archbishop Pio Laghi, the pope's personal representative in the United States, said the pope had not formally asked for mercy, but had "joined his voice in a pastoral way to those of his brother pastors."

"I appreciate the thoughts and concern of the holy father," Graham said, according to Steve Hull, the governor's press secretary.

"We're not going to commute Mr. Sullivan's sentence," Hull said today. "We're not going to stay the execution."

If Sullivan's execution is carried out, he would be the first person executed in Florida since John Spinkelink died on May 25, 1979, and the ninth in the United States since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment in 1972.

In an emotional interview with a reporter Monday, Sullivan was not optimistic. "If I had to say yes or no, I'd say I'd be executed tomorrow," Sullivan said.

But he denied killing Homestead, Fla., restaurant manager Donald Schmidt and said Florida officials wanted "to show that they will execute a middle-class white boy."

Prosecutors said Sullivan and an accomplice robbed Schmidt at gunpoint of $2,700 and then drove him to an isolated section of the Everglades in western Dade County.

Originally Sullivan confessed but later said he had been at a bar frequented by homosexuals and was drunk and frightened when he spoke to police.

He is appealing his death sentence on three grounds:

racial discrimination, the fairness of his sentence compared to others who have committed similar crimes and the alleged failure of his trial attorney to investigate his alibi claims.

Shortly before 11 p.m. Monday, Chief Judge John Godbold granted a temporary stay in order to poll the 12-member court on whether to grant a hearing.

The Rev. Joe Ingle, director of the Nashville, Tenn.-based Southern Coalition of Jails and Prisons, spent Monday evening with Sullivan at Florida State Prison. Ingle called the court action a "shaky stay" and was hopeful for a permanent stay.

The state viewed the 11th Circuit action as inconclusive, said Don North, spokesman for Florida Attorney General Jim Smith.

Meanwhile in Tallahassee, about 60 death penalty foes held a candlelight vigil outside the governor's mansion Monday night.

Graham was unmoved by their pleas and anti-death penalty placards. "I support the death penalty because I believe it is an effective deterrent," Graham told the somber gathering. He talked with protesters for about 20 minutes.

In Starke, a small town about 40 miles southwest of Jacksonville, several clergymen of various faiths led a candlelight ceremony at the tiny St. Edwards Catholic Church.

Filipino Guard Says He Killed Alleged Assassin

By RUBEN G. ALABASTRO
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP)

An air force sergeant testified today that he fired nine bullets at the alleged assassin of opposition leader Benigno Aquino because the man "tried to get up" after another airman shot him several times.

Sgt. Ernesto Mateo, 29, told the commission investigating the slaying of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' chief political foe that he was the first of several troopers to leap from a "special weapons and tactics" van immediately after Aquino was shot Aug. 21 at Manila's airport.

Last week, Sgt. Rolando de Guzman of the Philippines air force told the commission he saw Aquino being shot and immediately shot the alleged gunman, identified by the government as Rolando Galman. He said he shot the gunman in the head and fired six more bullets into his body before he hit the ground.

Today, Mateo told the commission that as soon as he jumped out of the van, he saw Aquino lying on his face on the tarmac and de Guzman, armed with a 45-caliber semi-automatic pistol, firing on another figure sprawled a few feet away. Mateo said he then opened fire with his M-16 automatic rifle on the same man his companion was shooting.

Asked by commission deputy general counsel Mario Ongkiko why he fired on a man already lying on the ground, Mateo replied, "All I know is that while Sergeant de Guzman was shooting, he (the alleged gunman) was trying to get up."

The man was "moving his hands and lifting his head," Mateo said. "I was afraid he might harm Senator Aquino again or anyone of us."

Mateo, who wore two medals he said were awarded as a sharpshooter and expert with M-16 rifles, said he fired nine bullets from a distance of about eight feet and all found their mark.

The opposition has accused the Marcos government of complicity in Aquino's assassination, provoking a steady wave of anti-government demonstrations and calls for Marcos to resign.

Marcos, in power for 18 years, has repeatedly denied the charges, claiming Galman killed Aquino on orders from communist subversives.

Aquino, a former senator, was jailed by Marcos between 1972 and 1980. Mateo said at today's hearing that he had been assigned to pick Aquino up in his van and take him to the same military camp where he had been held earlier.

In Manila today, squads of police and soldiers stopped an anti-U.S. protest near the U.S. Embassy, arresting 12 of the estimated 100 demonstrators.

Two truckloads of police, two dozen helmeted riot troops and firemen with a water truck had been guarding the embassy for several hours when the youths, on a march from the university district, appeared.

Child Center To Continue

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A Davidson County Superior Court Judge ruled Monday that the Creative Learning Center, a day care center targeted by allegations of child abuse, may remain open.

Judge Judson DeRamus handed down an 11-page ruling that provides for strict supervision of the day-care center and certain stipulations that owner Jean Drum must follow.

The ruling followed six days of testimony earlier this month, including charges by several parents that their children had been neglected. Some alleged that children were placed in closets and their noses were held as a disciplinary measure.

Mrs. Drum had been allowed to continue operating the center pending the ruling.

DeRamus found that Mrs. Drum repeatedly, willingly and knowingly failed to maintain adequate child-staff ratios and that continued violations would seriously threaten safety of children.

He said he couldn't find a continuing threat of harm to children from evidence in case, and that even if the alleged mistreatment did occur in the past, it doesn't constitute a continuing danger to the children.

Mrs. Drum had testified that she hadn't been in compliance with all state regulations, such as keeping enough staff on duty during children's lunch breaks.

Trying Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today launches a new effort to "lick the mob" and assess the extent of organized crime in the United States, including the relatively new gangs that have formed in prisons or around motorcycles.

The new Commission on Organized Crime is chaired by Irving R. Kaufman, a judge for the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York who said, "organized crime today is a more dangerous and pervasive force than ever before." In a statement he added, "It affects virtually every aspect of our nation and its economy."

Attorney General William French Smith is lead-off witness at the first public hearing called by the commission which has been authorized by President Reagan to make a complete analysis of organized crime.

The commission is to report to the president by March 1, 1986 with proposals to change laws and to improve the administration of justice.

Commission member John Duffy, sheriff of San Diego County, Calif., resigned Monday from the panel because of allegations that he had had connections to organized crime, though the Justice Department found no basis for the allegations.

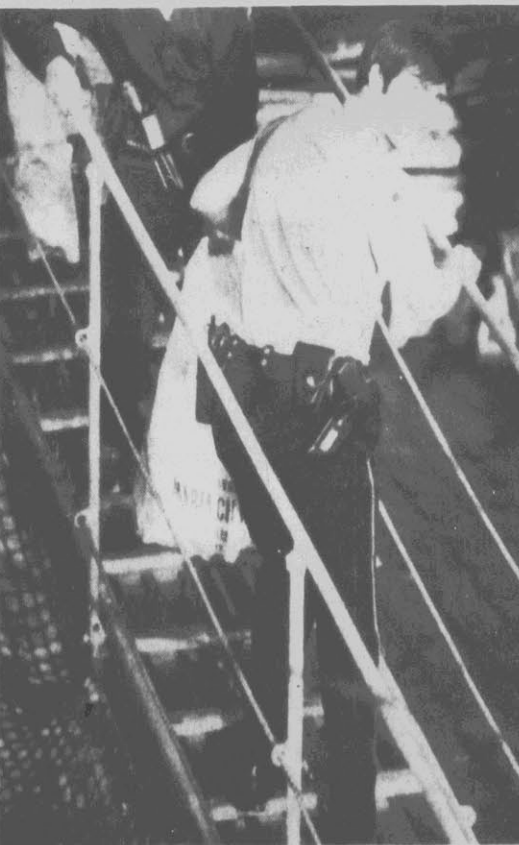

Duffy said the commission should be "completely free of any controversy" arising from the allegations.

Hearings are planned in several regions of the country following today's hearing in Washington called to hear Smith, FBI director William H. Webster and Drug Enforcement Administration chief Francis M. Mullen.

Dates for the additional hearings have not yet been set.

To do its job, the commission is seeking the "broadest possible powers" to subpoena witnesses, according to Justice Department spokesman Art Brill. He said the commission wants the authority to compel people to testify, authority that must come from the Congress. Congress has adjourned for the year and is not scheduled to reconvene until Jan. 23.

"We need that subpoena power. It'd be very important and we don't have any doubt we're going to get it," said Brill.

Claims 'New' Money Plan Is Considered

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK

Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Pink and blue money could replace the familiar U.S. greenback, with a metallic strip on the bills to trace how much cash is being taken out of the country, a Texas congressman says.

Rep. Ron Paul said Monday he learned of the federal plan Nov. 3 in a closed meeting which included the Treasurer of the United States, Katherine Ortega.

Paul said representatives of the Federal Reserve and the Secret Service also attended the session, along with members of the House subcommittee on coinage and consumer affairs, of which Paul is a member.

Besides new colors, Paul said Monday, the bills would carry a metallic strip running vertically next to the picture of the person on the bill to allow authorities to determine whether huge amounts of money are being taken out of the country.

"The solution is not to change the color of our money," Paul, a Republican, said at a Houston news conference. "The inflation, the monetary system, as well as the tax system — that's where the problems are."

In Washington, a Treasury spokesman who would comment only if he remained unidentified said any discussion about changing the color of currency was "very, very premature." The motive for any change would be to foil counterfeiters, he said.

"The point to be stressed here is that while a number of options are under review, there have been absolutely no decisions made," he said.

As for the metallic strip, the congressman said it would violate a citizen's freedom to leave the country.

"Americans must have the freedom to travel out of the United States without any restrictions," he said, calling any attempt at restrictions "outrageous and a violation of our rights."

Paul said federal officials who showed him examples of the proposed money would not let him to keep the bills. So he had an artist draw renderings of the bills, which he unveiled at the news conference.

The drawings were of a blue $10 bill and a pink $1 bill.

Paul said the size of the bill would remain the same.

The colors of the bills had not yet been decided, he said, with each denomination a different color and each bill only one color.

lision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Charles Street.

Officers said drivers of the cars were Kim Jean Mertz of Danville, Pa., and Bobby Maurice Harris Jr. of 430 Pittman Drive. Harris was charged with exceeding a safe speed.

Devising Robot For Army Guns

DOVER, N.J. (AP) — A robot designed to load howitzers during the heat of battle could be ready for use by the 1990s, taking "a lot of stress off soldiers," the Army says.

A spokesman said Monday that engineers at the U.S. Army Armament Research & Development Center are developing the robotic system which will automatically load 155 mm shells weighing more than 100 pounds each into the Army's M-109 howitzers.

Currently, a crew of four soldiers must load shells into the howitzer from an interior rack or from the resupply truck that follows the self-propelled guns on battlefields, said Ralph Ahrens, a civilian public affairs officer for the Army.

The Army estimates the robot will load five rounds per minute, he said. While a trained crew of soldiers can load as many as eight rounds per minute, their efficiency decreases as they become tired, Ahrens noted.

"You have to keep moving on a battlefield because if you stop in one place for long, you're going to get blown up," Ahrens added. "This will take a lot of stress off soldiers in battle."

The design is an advance over systems now being used in private industry, officials say.

"One of the problems we have to overcome is that commercial robots generally operate in controlled environments, such as factories," said Steve Floroff, the project engineer. "This is the first mobile robotic system in this country that we know of."

He said Army officials think the loading systems may eventually be used in tanks.

The howitzer loader will weigh 1,500 pounds and have an arm about 40 inches long, with a 30-pound gripper to handle the 155 mm projectiles and charges.

In addition, the Army's engineers are developing a second loader that will be able to transfer as many as three projectiles at once from the resupply vehicle into the howitzer, said Ralph Becker, the project engineer for the resupply loader.

The loaders will receive instructions from a computer program on the size of charge needed and where the gripper must go to load the gun, Army engineers said.

Army strategists will be able to change the type of projectile with ease by changing the computer program, officials said.

A small model of the loading device is being used in testing by the engineers in the Weapons Division of the center's Larger Caliber Weapon Systems Laboratory.

Ahrens said the M-109 howitzer may have been last used by U.S. soldiers in Vietnam and is presently being used by the Israeli army.

The Army expects to test the howitzers loader in 1986 and the resupply loader in 1987, with tests of both expected to follow in 1989, he said. He said he could not estimate the cost of developing the system.

YEAR-END TAX PLANNING

(With Stocks)

If you have investments in stocks, some planning before year-end may cut your 1983 tax bill.

If you own some stocks that have dropped in value since you purchased them, consider selling them if you've held them for less than a year. Such a sale would produce a short-term capital loss that offsets your other income dollar for dollar. If you hold the stock for more than a year before selling it and still suffer a loss, it will be a long-term loss and it will then take $2.00 of the loss to offset $1.00 of ordinary income.

If you are planning to make charitable contributions before year-end, give some thought to giving appreciated stock instead of money. You avoid the capital gains tax and you get a deduction equal to the fair market value of the stock.

If you're an investor in public utility stock, take stock dividends rather than cash dividends this year to allow for the exclusion of up to $750 of income on a single return, $1,500 on a joint return.

Selling stock for a gain near the end of 1983 but not delivering the stock to your broker or receiving payment until 1984 gives you the option of reporting the gain on the sale in either 1983 or 1984. Your decision will, of course, depend on which year will create the lower tax consequences on the sale. Here's how it works.

The sale was made in 1983, but because the money was not received until 1984, you qualify for an installment sale and could report the gain as income in 1984. However, because it is an installment sale, you may elect to have the installment sale method not apply and report the gain in 1983. The election is made at the time of your 1983 tax filing; therefore, you have until then to determine which year is better for reporting the income.

Consult your tax advisor for assistance with your year-end stock transactions.

Officials Say Drug Traffic In N.C. Hasn't Abated

Afghan Official Is Assassins' Target

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghan Defense Minister Gen. Abdul Qader reportedly survived an assassination attempt in Kabul on Nov. 10, a Western diplomatic source here said today.

According to the source, Qader was shot at by two gunmen in a passing car as he climbed out of his limousine near his home after work.

Qader was not hit but two soldiers, presumably his bodyguards, were slightly wounded in the attack, said the source, quoting "credible reports" from Kabul.

The source, who declined to be identified, said the attack was staged in the early evening. He said the assailants escaped by the time helicopters arrived on the scene.

He had no further details of the assault, which could not be independently confirmed.

In mid-May, Qader reportedly was severely beaten by his deputy, who was said to be disgruntled over being passed over in a list of promotions at the Defense Ministry. According to one account, Qader was shot in the leg while another had him being hit over the head with a chair, and most accounts agreed the beating was severe enough to warrant hospitalization.

Despite increased efforts to stem the flow of marijuana and cocaine into North Carolina, officials say the drugs appear to be coming in as fast as ever because of the smugglers' increasing sophistication.

"We don't know how much is coming in, but we have the feeling that many, many more (drug smugglers) get away than are being caught," said Robert Pence, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina.

State and federal officials seized more than 166,000 pounds of smuggled marijuana and almost 200 pounds of smuggled cocaine in North Carolina during fiscal year 1983, said Gil Payette of the U.S. Customs Service in Wilmington. That was about twice the amount seized in 1979, he said.

The increase probably reflects increased smuggling as well as tightened law enforcement, he said.

Over the weekend, federal authorities seized an airplane carrying almost 1,000 pounds of pressed marijuana valued at $714,000 in Raeford. No arrests had been made Monday, said Hoke County Sheriff D.M. Barrington.

Pence said more people have been added to the state's arsenal of narcotics agents, but they still are greatly outnumbered. He added that drug trafficking now is the bureau's highest priority, just one year after the agency joined the State Bureau of Investigation, federal Drug Enforcement Agency, U.S. Coast Guard and the customs service in the business of patrolling for narcotics.

But as state and federal governments have beefed up their efforts, so have smugglers, Pence said.

A presidential task force on drugs is putting pressure on smugglers in Florida, so "a lot of the activity is apparently moving up the coast to Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Tennessee," Pence said.

The state is especially attractive because of its hundreds of miles of coastline and sheltered harbors.

"North Carolina has had a history of smuggling back to the pirates and Blackbeard," Payette said. "We've had an enforcement problem forever."

And as patrols intensify on the coast, smugglers increasingly have moved inland, using aircraft and some of the state's many airstrips.

"If anything, more is coming in by air than by sea," Pence said.

The smugglers "know everyone's looking at them," Pence said. "They're putting out more money for protection and taking extra precautions. So it isn't as easy to catch them now as it was a year ago."

But Pence said he doesn't think the drug agents are fighting a losing battle.

"We're playing a game of catch-up now," he said. "It's a battle that hasn't been pushed with the fervor that the opposition has been using. But that's changing now."

As law enforcement (agencies work together), we're going to identify a lot more people. They're beginning to feel the pinch now.

"But I'm not saying we're going to put the drug people out of business," he said. "We don't even know how big the business is."

Twice Accused Of 'Brutality'

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A state Highway Patrol trooper who shot and killed an Asheboro man on Sunday has been investigated and cleared twice this year after citizen complaints of brutality, officials say.

In both previous cases, Trooper G.D. Blackwood was found not to have used excessive force, said Heman Clark, secretary of the N.C.

Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, which oversees the patrol.

The circumstances of the Asheboro shooting are being reviewed by the State Bureau of Investigation.

Clark declined to detail previous accusations against Blackwood, but said it is "not uncommon" for such active troopers to have complaints lodged against them by citizens.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were mixed through morning trading today but the Dow Jones industrial average rebounded from its loss in the previous session.

Steel and drug issues paced the gainers, while auto, utility and mining stocks retreated.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 7.62 on Monday for its biggest drop in three weeks, recovered 6.40 to 1,276.22 in the first two hours of trading today.

Gainers held a slight edge over losers on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index rose 0.09 to 96.28.

Big Board volume totaled 43.50 million shares at noon EST, against 34.76 million at that hour Monday.

Traders said Monday's pull-back was not surprising since, after a three-week rally, some investors were expected to sell and take profits.

Analysts were encouraged by the market's ability to stabilize its slide in late trading Monday, and they noted the broader market was not as weak as the Dow Jones industrial average.

"New" American Telephone & Telegraph, off 1 1/2 to 20 1/2, was the early leader on the NYSE's active list today.

Other active issues included "old" AT&T, down 3/4 to 64 1/4; Comsat, down 1 1/4 to 33 3/4; Coleco, up 2 1/4 to 23 3/4; and Westinghouse, up 1 1/4 to 53 1/4.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.95 to 223.65.

Seek To Block Beach Access

EMERALD ISLE, N.C. (AP) — The town of Emerald Isle is trying to block construction of a beach access facility mandated by the General Assembly over town officials' objections.

"The town board is convinced that most if not all of the bill is unconstitutional," said Town Administrator James E. Caldwell on Monday.

Officials have filed a lawsuit in Carteret County Superior Court saying the legislation was illegal because it would force the town to maintain a state facility while closing its vehicle access ramp, which officials want to leave open.

Caldwell said the town would continue to operate the access ramp until "we are ordered to shut it down by a court of competent jurisdiction."

The lawsuit claims the law would give exclusive privileges to area property owners while forcing the town to maintain the facility without providing for voter approval.

New Helmet Saved Life

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A soldier with the 82nd Airborne Division says he could have been killed in a gunfire exchange with the enemy in Grenada if it hadn't been for his new U.S. Army plastic helmet.

"I didn't know the helmet took a direct hit until someone brought the helmet and showed me the round," said Spec. 4 Brent Taylor, showing a Soviet-made AK-47 round still imbedded in the $104 Kevlar helmet. The 82nd Airborne was the first U.S. group to receive the new helmet.

Taylor, 20, said he was securing an area about a mile from St. Georges on Oct. 27 when three uniformed soldiers fired at him with automatic weapons.

First to go were his helmet and glasses. A bullet and shrapnel then tore through his leg, said Taylor. As the ammunition clip in his weapon was about to run out, Taylor felt another bullet tear through his upper left arm.

A horseshoe-shaped dirt mound 15 yards behind him gave Taylor cover. Temporarily separated from his squad, Taylor and the three exchanged gunfire for several hours.

Taylor said they used automatic weapons fire while he continued to shoot on semi-automatic mode, hitting one of the three uniformed soldiers.

Town Common Flags...

Pitt County Historical Society in 1974 for use at the Town Common to reflect flags that have been flown over Greenville.

She said she decided that, until research could be completed regarding which flags would be proper, the two flags questioned by Maughan would be removed.

Mrs. Meeks said the Division of Archives and History of the state Department of Cultural Resources was contacted and asked what it considered would be proper flags for Greenville. Based upon the division's recommendation, two new flags have been ordered.

The new banners will include the British Union Flag of 1606 that combines the English Cross of St. George with the Scottish Cross of St. Andrew, and the first government flag adopted by the Confederate Congress in March of 1861. She said the British Union Flag is considered appropriate for the Colonial period, while the Confederate flag differs from the traditional battle flag that had been flown here in that it has a blue canton of seven stars on a field of three red, white and blue stripes.

The new flags will be here in several weeks, Mrs. Meeks said, and will be flown with two current U.S. flags, one Betsy Ross flag and the state of North Carolina flag.

Shiite Gunmen Kidnap Lebanon Airline Employees On 2 Buses

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Muslim gunmen kidnapped about 60 Lebanese Christian employees of Lebanon's Middle East Airlines on the airport highway today, airport sources reported.

The employees were heading to the Christian sector of Beirut aboard two buses when hooded gunmen blocked the way, jumped into both vehicles and forced them into southern Beirut's Shiite-inhabited slums, the sources said.

The sources, who declined to be named, said it could not be determined to which Shiite group the kidnappers belonged.

A spokesman at the office of Nabih Berri, head of the Shiite Amal militia, told The Associated Press by telephone that Berri had issued orders for the immediate release of all the abducted employees.

The spokesman, who declined to be named, said the abduction was a reaction to kidnappings of Shiite travelers by rightist Christian militiamen of the Phalange Party in southern Lebanon earlier in the day.

Israeli troops today freed seven Palestinians from Lebanese Christian militiamen who kidnapped them after their release from an Ansar detention camp in south Lebanon last week, Israeli military sources said.

The Christians were quoted as saying the Palestinians were terrorists who could not be allowed to go free, but Israeli troops forced them to release the men, who were among some 4,600 Arab prisoners exchanged last week for six Israeli prisoners of war.

The sources said the Palestinians were seized by the Christian troops while traveling north near the town of Jezzine, intending to leave Israeli-controlled territory for their homes in the central Lebanese mountains.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Marine base was shelled twice during the night and one U.S. peacekeeper suffered a concussion when he fell off a bunker, a Marine spokesman said.

The injured Marine was evacuated by helicopter from the base at Beirut's international airport to the amphibious assault ship Guam off the coast for medical observation, said Maj. Dennis Brooks.

Brooks said the Marine was injured Monday evening when five rounds of artillery crashed just east of the airport, sending the leathernecks ducking into foxholes and bunkers.

The second attack came early today when six artillery rounds hit close to the southern edge of the airport, Brooks said. In both cases, he said, there was no damage and the Marines did not return fire.

It was the fourth attack on the Marine base in two days of sporadic clashes between Lebanese army troops and anti-government Druse and Shiite Muslim militiamen in Beirut's southern suburbs and surrounding hills.

On Monday, a bombardment of the port wounded four construction workers. Police were unable to determine who was responsible for the first shelling of the harbor area since Israel's 1982 summer invasion of Lebanon.

The rightist Christian Phalange Party and the Progressive Socialist Party of leftist Druse leader Walid Jumblatt blamed each other for the widening breaches of Lebanon's Sept. 26 civil war ceasefire.

Jumblatt's weekly newspaper, Al-Anbaa, accused the Phalangist-dominated Lebanese Forces militia of waging a war of attrition in central Lebanon's Chouf mountains, the Druse' main base. The newspaper said a "conclusive" response will come after President Amin Gemayel returns from a visit to Washington this week.

"Either Lebanon's national reconciliation talks will be resumed in Geneva, or a military blow will be dealt to check this war of attrition," Al-Anbaa said.

A conference of Lebanon's top Muslim and Christian leaders was held in Geneva, Switzerland, last month in an attempt to work out a new balance of power to end eight years of civil warfare.

Gemayel, now in Italy, had a private audience Monday with Pope John Paul II in the Vatican and met with Italy's premier, Bettino Craxi.

Gemayel's Washington visit will follow a visit by Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who meets President Reagan today for a second time. U.S. and Israeli officials say the talks will mark a new era of cooperation aimed at resolving the impasse in Lebanon and stopping Syrian advances in the Middle East.

In Israel, the respected Haaretz newspaper reported Monday that Shamir had taken to Washington a military position paper calling for a speedy pullback of Israeli troops from Lebanon's coastal area to the international border and a de facto partition of Lebanon.

According to Haaretz, the position paper says Israel should withdraw from Lebanon as soon as possible after securing its northern settlements from guerrilla attacks through arrangements with the Lebanese government.

But while it calls for a pullback along the Lebanese coast, the paper recommends keeping troops on the eastern front to face Syrian forces, Haaretz said.

movements. The pictures will be analyzed when the shuttle returns home.

This first use of Spacelab, with 73 experiments scheduled before Columbia lands in California on Dec. 7, monopolized air-to-ground conversations. Little was heard from spacecraft commander John Young and pilot Brewster Shaw, who had to guide the spacecraft through a series of changes in position to satisfy requirements in five major scientific disciplines.

"Our new Spacelab systems appear to be working great," said Chuck Lewis, a flight director. The crew had trouble with a computer that communicates between the pressurized laboratory and an experiment pallet that is open to space, but a way was found to work around it.

There were periodic problems with communications and a temporary anxiety when the hatch to the Spacelab tunnel seemed to defy all attempts to open it because one clasp was hanging up.

"That's not much in the way of problems and that's the way we like it," Lewis said.

Lichtenberg and astronaut Owen Garriott spent two hours on the complex job of turning on equipment in the 23-foot-long Spacelab, reached from Columbia's middeck by a tunnel. Astronauts and scientists worked in jumpsuits.

Garriott and Parker are mission specialists, able both to work on shuttle systems and in Spacelab.

Merbold, a physicist with the Max-Planck Institute in Stuttgart, West Germany, is the first non-American aboard a U.S. spacecraft. He and Lichtenberg, a researcher from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, are the first payload specialists — non-astronauts — to be on a U.S. spacecraft.

Lottery Winner Tore Up Ticket

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A winner of $1.6 million in the New Jersey Lottery had ripped up his winning ticket by mistake and later "almost cried" when he read on it, "Void if torn or altered."

But state officials said Monday they were ignoring the damage because the ticket was in good enough shape to pass the lottery's validation process.

Joseph R. Wyatt of Union Township will receive the bonanza over 20 years. He told a news conference he tore up the ticket after hearing a number on the radio that didn't match his. That number was from the previous week, and he later saw his winning number in the newspaper.

Unemployment Is Below N.C. Level

Pitt County's unemployment rate for October stood at 7 percent, one-half of a percentage point below the statewide jobless level, the Employment Security Commission reported today.

ESC Chairman Glenn Jernigan said 3,430 members of Pitt County's 48,990-member work force were unemployed in October.

Greene County's rate was even better, at 5.6 percent, while Martin County reported a 10.2 percent jobless figure.

Across the state, Jernigan said unemployment rates in October increased in 50 counties, decreased in 45 counties and remained the same in five counties.

Statewide, the North Carolina unemployment rate for October was 7.5 percent, compared to the national unadjusted rate of 8.4 percent.

Double-digit unemployment rates were posted in 27 counties with Graham the highest at 15.9 percent. Other counties with high rates of unemployment were Pender, 15.7 percent; Brunswick, 14.5 percent; Bladen, 14.4 percent; Swain, 13.8 percent, and Tyrrell, 13.7 percent.

Orange County had the state's lowest unemployment rate at 3.5 percent. Other counties with low unemployment figures were Dare, 3.9 percent; Gates, 4.3 percent; Wake, 4.4 percent; Watauga, 4.5 percent, and Durham, 4.6 percent.

In the state's ten largest metropolitan areas, Raleigh-Durham registered the lowest rate, 4.3 percent, with Wilmington at the highest end of the scale with a rate of 12.1 percent.

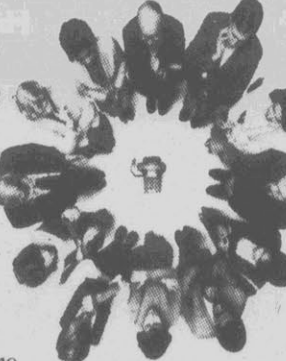

Solar Fraction

The solar fraction for this area Monday, as computed by the East Carolina University Department of Physics, was 6. This means that a solar water heater could have provided 6 percent of your hot water needs.

Demoted Heels Blister UT-C

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

North Carolina got a demotion in the Associated Press college basketball poll, then went right out to prove that it wasn't worthy of the change.

The Tar Heels fell to second behind Kentucky in the poll. Although both teams captured 24 first-place votes, North Carolina missed first place by two points. A re-election campaign was started immediately as junior guard Michael Jordan scored 28 points, including 18 points in 10 minutes, to lead North Carolina to an 85-69 victory over Tennessee-Chatanooga.

Junior guard Delaney Rudd scored 18 points as Wake Forest opened its season with a 74-59 triumph over Furman. Georgia Tech started the season with a 95-75 victory over Alabama A&M.

Tennessee-Chatanooga claimed a one-point lead midway through the second half before a 14-2 spur took the Tar Heels out of danger. The Moccasins broke that streak, only to suffer a 10-point spree which Jordan capped with a dunk with 9:45 left.

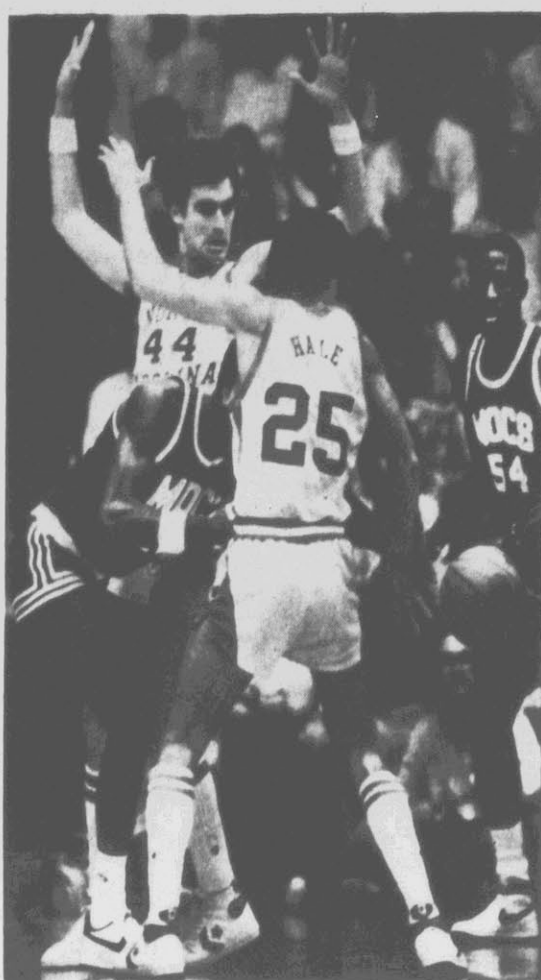

It was North Carolina's second straight victory and coach Dean Smith's 498th triumph. "UTC came in and played with poise," Smith said. "They handled our scramble defense pretty well and attacked the zone extremely well."

Furman pulled to within 33-29 at halftime, but Rudd and forward Kenny Green led the Demon Deacons to 11 straight points and a safe cushion.

"It was really good getting into the season and meeting somebody besides our own players," Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy said. "We've been playing each other for so long, it's a very welcome thing."

John Salley scored a career-high 23 points as the Yellow Jackets fell behind by as much as 12 points before using man-to-man pressure. Mark Price added 21 points and freshman Bruce Dalrymple scored 21 points and pulled down 17 rebounds.

Virginia meets Randolph-Macon tonight in the only action involving an ACC team. Wednesday night,

North Carolina State, fresh off a victory in the Great Alaska Shootout, went to seventh in the AP poll.

East Carolina Cagers Hosting Christopher Newport Wednesday

East Carolina's basketball Pirates go after their second straight victory Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum, as they host Christopher Newport.

The Pirates opened their season with a 75-66 victory over Campbell University on Saturday night in a game that some think play with moments of brilliance.

The youthful Pirates will seek to show Coach Charlie

Harrison some improvement in this second game of the new year.

Harrison was fairly well pleased with most of the play on Saturday night. "After looking at the film, I saw some positive things," Harrison said. "We got impatient at times on offense, but when we were patient in allowing things to happen, we generally got the shots we wanted and scored easily. But in the second half, we got impatient and didn't shoot well. That didn't allow us to get into our pressing defense and we got sloppy at times."

"They got 18 of their points in the second half on defensive breakdowns by us," he added. "After we shut them down on their first and second and third and fourth option, they still got a basket. When we force things like that we've got to take advantage of it and not give up easy points."

As to Wednesday's foe, Harrison noted that while Christopher Newport is a small team, they have several athletes who shoot the ball well. "They're very patient and run a patterned offense. Last year, our pressure defense didn't seem to bother them. They'd just clear out and bring it down the court. That gave us problems at times. Like a lot of Virginia schools they run the flex offense. This is the first time we've seen that much movement and it gives us a chance to work against it."

"I anticipate them running a lot of zone against us, and I hope that we'll be able to pull them out of it," Harrison said.

The Captains come into the game with a 1-3 record, having beaten Newport Apprentice School, 80-74, in their opener. They have since lost to Randolph-Macon, 74-61; Apprentice School, 66-57; and to St. Mary's (Md.), 52-40.

Christopher Newport's leading scorer is 6-1 forward Buck Moore, with a 16.3 average. He's also the leading rebounder with a 6.0 average. Jimmy Deans, a 10.7 scorer, is not expected to play this weekend.

Vince Eure, a 6-3 forward, is hitting 9.3 points and pulling 5.3 rebounds.

The other starters are expected to be 6-0 guard Keith Cobb and 6-0 guard Brian Schuhart, and 6-4 center Joel Fortune.

Schuhart has started in three of the four previous games, while the other four have started in all four games.

Following the Wednesday game, the Pirates take to the road for the first time, traveling to Richmond to face #20 Virginia Commonwealth.

Nebraska Tops Regular Season Poll; ECU 20th

By The Associated Press
Nebraska finished its regular season just where it started — as the No. 1 college football team in the nation — while runnerup Texas managed to inch a little closer to the top-ranked Cornhuskers in the Associated Press poll.

Nebraska, bidding to become the first team to be ranked No. 1 in the preseason poll and to hold that ranking through the end of the post-season, received 52 of 55 first-place ballots Monday.

The 12-0 Cornhuskers wrapped up their regular season by beating Oklahoma 28-21 Saturday and got 1,097 of a possible 1,100 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters in the next-to-last regular-season poll.

Texas, 11-0 and the only other unbeaten-untied major college team in the country, remained second for the 11th consecutive week. The Longhorns crushed Texas A&M 45-13 and got three first-place votes and 1,048 points.

Last week, Nebraska led Texas 58-1 in first-place ballots and 1,179-1,118 in points.

The rest of the Top Ten remained the same as last week with Auburn, Illinois and Miami holding onto the 3-4-5 positions with 973, 910 and 885 points, respectively. Auburn, 9-1, winds up Saturday against No. 19 Alabama, while Illinois and Miami have completed 10-1 regular seasons.

Southern Methodist, Georgia, Michigan, Brigham Young and Iowa complete the Top Ten.

SMU beat Houston 32-14, Georgia edged Georgia Tech 27-24, while the others finished the season earlier. The points were 824 for SMU, 732 for Georgia, 694 for Michigan, 649 for BYU and 586 for Iowa.

The 10 teams that were in the Second Ten remained there, although there was some shuffling.

This week's Second Ten are:

Terry Long Named To Kodak All-America Football Squad

For the second time in less than a week, East Carolina offensive guard Terry Long has been named to prestigious all-America football team.

Long, a 6-0, 280-pound senior from Columbia, S.C., was today named to the Kodak All-America team, one of only two players from the state, and just one of seven from the South picked to the 24-man team.

The Kodak team is picked by the American Football Coaches Association.

Some 137 Division I-A coaches participated in the selection process which Charlie McClendon, AFCA executive director, termed as "not as easy thing to accomplish."

"There are so many great young players around," McClendon added. "We expended considerable blood, sweat and tears coming up with the team."

McClendon added that players were selected for the team based on their ability to work within the framework of their college teams as well as their individual performance. Because football coaches are perhaps the toughest judges of athletic talent, many observers consider the Kodak All-America Team college football's most prestigious.

The team's roots can be traced directly back to 1889, when Yale's Walter Camp originated the All-America concept. Kodak has sponsored the team since 1960. In early December, the entire squad will be assembled in Hollywood, Calif., for a weekend of honors and relaxation.

The Camp team is also still in existence, sponsored by the Walter Camp Football Foundation. Long was also named to that All-America team, announced last week.

While in Hollywood, a television special will be taped to introduce the team to the country. It will be shown in this area on December 10 over WITN-TV, at 12:30 p.m.

Long, who has also been named to play in two all-star post-season games, said he was honored by the selection. "I hope that it will be easier for East Carolina to get players on these teams in the future," Long said. "Some of them should have made it this year."

However, Long doesn't feel that being named to a number of All-America team would have helped the Pirates get into bowl games this year. But he is hopeful that it will help him when it comes to the draft.

"Several teams have been in touch with me, but none of them have given any indication as to what will happen in the draft," Long said. Long has a couple of choices, Pittsburgh and Dallas, but isn't limiting himself to those two only. "Pittsburgh has shown a tendency to draft guards who aren't real tall and Dallas is the team that's been in touch with me the most."

But while Long is hopeful of staying at the offensive guard position, he admits that he might be moved to center or even to nose guard. "It doesn't really matter to me."

He also said that a few of the USFL teams have also talked with him, and he's not eliminating that league. "I'll see where they draft me and what they have to offer, then I'll make up my mind."

Seven years ago, Long completed his first year of football as a senior at Eau Claire High School in Columbia as a 160-pounder. "I was just getting into weight lifting them, and I had no idea that it would lead to all this," he said. "Of course, it's always been my dream to make someone's all-America team."

That dream has been answered, and may be repeated a few more times before it's over.

Also picked to the team from the state was North Carolina defensive lineman William Fuller. Other players from the South included running back Bo Jackson of Auburn, defensive lineman Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech, defensive lineman Reggie White of Tennessee, linebacker Wilber Marshall of Florida, and defensive back Terry Hoage of Georgia.

GCA Captures Opening Win

KINSTON — The Greenville Christian Academy basketball teams rallied from first-half deficits to win their opening games of the season Monday and advance to the finals of the Bethel Christian Invitational Tournament. The boys team downed Wilson 59-49, while the girls earned a 34-25 victory over hosting Bethel.

The girls, who play Wilson for the championship today at 5:30, trailed 14-8 at halftime, but outscored the tourney hosts 26-11 down the stretch. Kathy Vernelson led GCA with 18 points, while Patti Carr added seven. Christy Ormand paced Bethel with 16 points.

The GCA boys were behind 25-20 at intermission and came back with 39 points to earn a spot in the finals against Bethel at 8:30.

Mike Bragg bucketed 16 points for GCA, while Brian House added 12 and Mike Griner 10. Jeff Attie and Todd Boykin led Wilson with 15 points, and Michael Barnes added 11.

Kentucky Takes First In Basketball Poll

By The Associated Press
Kentucky climbed past preseason choice North Carolina in the first weekly Associated Press college basketball rankings of the 1983-84 campaign.

The Wildcats had a scant two point-edge for the No. 1 spot in the results announced Monday as both schools attracted 24 first-place votes from the nationwide panel of 51 sports writers and broadcasters.

Kentucky, a 65-44 winner in its opening game over previously sixth-ranked Louisville, received 988 points. North Carolina, which drew 986 points, opened the season with an unimpressive 64-57 opening win over unranked Missouri, and defeated Tennessee-Chattanooga 85-63 Monday night after the rankings had been announced.

Both teams played their season-openers Saturday. Kentucky routed No. 6 Louisville 65-44, while North Carolina downed unranked Missouri 64-57.

The setback dropped Louisville from the Top Twenty.

Georgetown, fourth in the preseason, drew the only other three No. 1 votes for 868 points, good for the third spot. The Hoyas opened with two victories over Hawaii-Hilo over the weekend.

Memphis State, 2-0, advanced one place to fourth with 819 points. Iowa, 1-0 and No. 7 in the preseason, took over the No. 5 spot with 706 points. Maryland, 1-0, advanced two spots to sixth with 612 points.

Defending NCAA champion North Carolina State, unranked in the preseason, is back among the elite — No. 7 — with 602 points after winning its first four games. After upsetting Houston, No. 3 in the preseason, in the Hall of Fame Game Nov. 19, the Wolfpack swept past Alaska-Anchorage, Santa Clara and Arkansas, rated No. 14 in the preseason, to win the Great Alaska Shootout title over the weekend.

Houston, which beat Kansas Saturday, fell to the No. 8 spot with 589 points. No. 9 UCLA and No. 10 Oregon State remained in the same place.

UCLA, 2-0, received 562 points. Oregon State, which opens its season Friday, collected 454 points.

Michigan State, 2-0, advanced a notch to rank 11th. Then, in order, came Louisiana State, Georgia, Arkansas, Boston College, DePaul, Fresno State, Wichita State, St. John's and Virginia Commonwealth.

In addition to N.C. State, other newcomers in the Top Twenty were Wichita State, St. John's and Virginia Commonwealth.

Besides Louisville, other losers dropped from the Top Twenty were Kansas, Indiana and Oklahoma.

Perkins, Smith Miss Meal; Benched At Game's Tipoff

By The Associated Press
Sam Perkins and Kenny Smith, key operatives for No. 2 North Carolina's attack, were late for the team's pre-game meal and, consequently, were not in the starting lineup for their game against Tennessee-Chattanooga.

But Michael Jordan had a strong game with 28 points and Perkins came off the bench to add 16 as the Tar Heels broke open a close game early in the second half and ate up their visitors 85-63 Monday night.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, who won his 498th career game, disciplined Perkins and Smith for being five minutes late to the meal as Dave Popson started ahead of Perkins and Steve Hale replaced Smith.

The Tar Heels, 2-0, led 33-30 at halftime before Tennessee-Chattanooga, the Southern Conference champions, surged ahead early in the second half. That's when North Carolina used a 14-2 streak to get out of trouble.

Brad Daugherty added 16 points for the Tar Heels, who had dropped from No. 1 to second behind Kentucky in the Associated Press poll released earlier in the day.

Only two other Top Twenty teams played Monday — 12th-ranked Louisiana State beat North Carolina-Wilmington 94-59 and No. 15 Boston College routed Stonehill 97-63.

Jordan said he felt slightly miffed that Moccasin defenders were talking to him during the game in an attempt to distract him.

"It got me angry and it gave me extra incentive," Jordan said. "I concentrated on executing the defense a lot harder."

Despite the loss, Tennessee-Chattanooga Coach Murray Arnold saw some bright spots for his 1-1 team.

"I saw some pretty nice things I feel we can build on," Arnold said. "Before we came in here, I felt North Carolina was No. 1 in the country and I still feel that way."

"If we leave here tonight as a better team, then our time was well-invested," he said.

Jerry Reynolds scored 14 points and four other Louisiana State players were in double figures for the Tigers. Derrick Taylor and reserve Nikita Wilson each had 12 points as LSU, 2-0, scored the first eight points of the game and was ahead 39-21 at halftime.

Senior forward Jay Murphy, who underwent arthroscopic knee surgery three weeks ago, scored 17 of his 22 points in the first half to help Boston College win its season opener. Junior guard Michael Adams scored 17 of his 19 points in the first half as the Eagles raced to a 57-30 lead at intermission.

Kenneth Perkins had 17 points and Tom Sewell 13 as Lamar extended the nation's longest homecourt winning streak to 69 games with a 78-57 triumph over St. Mary's of Texas.

Robert Morris College, which has reached the NCAA tournament the past two seasons, opened its season with an 86-63 victory over Lock Haven as Forest Grant scored 20 points. It was the Colonials' 22nd straight victory game at home.

Delaney Rudd hit for a game-high 18 points as Wake Forest started its season by breezing to a 74-59 victory over Furman.

Charles Barkley, an all-Southeastern Conference junior recovering from back injuries, played only 2½ minutes early in the second half but helped rally Auburn past Columbus College 58-54. Barkley scored just two points but blocked two shots during a streak in which Auburn scored 10 straight points to overcome a one-point halftime deficit.

Buck Johnson hit 27 points as Alabama downed Cincinnati 83-64.

Senior forward Art Aaron's 21 points paced Northwestern past Bradley 63-42. The game was the first for Northwestern in the Welsh-Ryan Arena at newly remodeled McGraw Hall.

Ron Tarpley scored 17 points and Leslie Rockmore had 16 as Michigan raced to a 15-3 lead and cruised to a 71-55 triumph over North Carolina A&T.

Reserve guard J.J. Crawl tallied 14 points to help West Virginia past Indiana, Pa., 73-46 in a sloppy game.

Fred Lee hit 10 of 13 shots from the floor and finished with 27 points, leading Rider over James Madison 76-68.

John Dixon and Al Young keyed a 15-point spree in the first half that carried Virginia Tech over Towson State 93-53. The winning Hokies hit 37 of 52 shots from the floor.

Freshman Bruce Dalrymple made his college debut by scoring 21 points and grabbing 17 rebounds as Georgia Tech downed Alabama A&M 95-75.

Junior guard Vernon Moore hit an eight-foot jump shot over three defenders with two seconds left to lift Creighton past Southern 57-55.

LaSalle guard Steve Black scored eight of his 23 points in the final eight minutes as the Explorers topped Monmouth 75-60.

Guard Terrence Stansbury stole a pass and scored on a breakaway dunk with just over a minute remaining to give Temple the lead, and he then blocked a last-second shot as the Owls held off Drexel 61-60.

Chargers Prepare For Opener

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — When the 1983-84 version of the Ayden-Grifton basketball squads take the court tonight to open the season against Roanoke, both the boys and girls teams will be faced with the same dilemma — the lack of a proven point guard.

"If we have one glaring weakness, it's ballhandling," Lady Chargers Coach Kathy Frazier said. "We lost Linda Brown at the point guard position from last year, and we just have no one who has proven they can handle the ball consistently."

The Charger men lost point guard Jeff Dixon, but Calvin Peterson returns to give A-G experience in the backcourt. Last year, however, Peterson was used at the shooting guard position, and the transition could make the difference in the Chargers' early schedule.

The Chargers finished 12-10 in the regular season a year ago, including a 7-6 mark in the Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference race. But the Chargers lost a trio of starters from a year ago — Dixon, Thomas Anderson and Tyrone Gay. Youth will be the key through the early portion of Ayden-Grifton's schedule.

But Ayden-Grifton has 6-2 sophomore Marvin Smith returning at center, and senior guard Mike Woods served as the top reserve a year ago. Fighting for the other starting slots are junior Mike Dixon, senior Billy Wiggins and sophomores Leavy Thompson and Doug Anderson.

"We lost quite a bit of scoring from last year," Charger Coach Bob Murphrey said. "We expect Peterson to score well from the perimeter, but we're not sure if he'll be our point guard through all the way. He's more of the shooting guard, or we may even use him at the small forward; he's a good jumper."

Peterson was benched from his starting role for disciplinary reasons late last season, but later returned to the lineup.

"I guess you could attribute that to growing up," Murphrey said. "He's matured, and I hope he's going to provide leadership for us this year. I think he can be a steady performer."

"Right now, Peterson, David Wiggins and Mike Dixon are working out at the gym. But I'd have to give the edge to Peterson because of his experience. (Mike) Woods and (Gerald) Newton should be good outside shooters for us, as well."

"We've got some people back from last year," Murphrey said. "But not many with experience. We've got three sophomores I'm really high on. Marvin Smith started for us a year ago as a freshman and should continue to be strong inside. Leavy Thompson and Doug Anderson are both good on the boards."

"We're relatively small, although we have a little more height than we had last year. I hope that before the year is over, we'll be a pretty good rebounding team."

The Chargers play in six non-conference games before the Christmas holiday, then participate in the Tri-County Classic at North Lenoir before entering the Eastern Carolina 3-A schedule.

"I would prefer to have 14 conference games; an eight-team league rather than seven," Murphrey said. "Our goal for this year is to finish in the top two or three in the conference and make it to the district tournament."

"We're not completely ready to play right now, but I guess no one else would say they are either. We're not hampered by players coming in late from football this year; we don't have any reason not to be ready."

"If I had to point to one weakness it would be our lack of returning scorers. That's going to be a weakness early, but it'll be less and less as the season moves on — someone's always willing to shoot."

Murphrey picks "SouthWest Edgecombe and maybe Greene Central" as the strongest teams of the Eastern Carolina group, but quickly adds "Farmville is mighty young and could come through, and North Pitt is always good in the conference race."

"The thing I hope is that this year's team will improve as the season goes on — I think they will," Murphrey said. "Last year we had the nine-game winning streak, then faded at the end of the year."

"A necessity of this team to survive is to play well together. They've got to play team defense and be willing to give up the ball on offense. If we have one strength, it's that we have good team spirit and depth."

The solution to the Lady Chargers' point guard woes will likely be sophomore Stelena Rountree, but Ayden-Grifton could use six different lineups in as many non-conference games trying to find the right combination.

Frazier said the likely starters for the opener are Rountree and Cynthia Hicks at guard, with seniors Tracy Durant and Danita McCotter at forward and senior Cora Faison at center.

"I'm going to use the first five or six non-conference games to determine who will be the starters," Frazier said. "I'll be trying combinations with basically seven of the girls, but we're going to be stronger off the bench than we have been in a while. In eight games, there's no telling what will happen. We have some speed — they're faster than my team last year."

"Rountree started a year ago, but did not stick out in a crowd by any means. This year she'll be moving to the point and running the offense at the start of the season. Her shooting has improved, as well as her ballhandling."

"Faison and Hicks will probably be our leading scorers, but under them it's pretty even."

Durant is the tallest player on the Lady Chargers' roster at 6-1, with Faison following at 5-11 and McCotter at 5-8.

Defensively, the Lady Chargers will rely on zone coverage, with Frazier instilling the idea that "one person can't do it all on defense."

The Lady Chargers finished the 1983-84 season with a 7-16 overall record while 3-9 in the conference, but Frazier attributes that finish to a lack of killer instinct.

"We started stronger in the early part of the season and deteriorated from then on," Frazier said. "Ayden-Grifton has a tendency over the years to not play as hard in the fourth quarter — that's what wins or loses ballgames."

"I'm hoping to be .500 or better this year. The conference looks pretty strong overall. SouthWest has a pair of freshman twins that played volleyball this year — they showed a high level of athletic ability for ninth-graders. But North Pitt, Greene Central and SouthWest will probably be the best in the league."

Rec Spikers In State Tourney

A team representing the Greenville City League volleyball league will play in the State Regional Tournament in Beaufort on Saturday.

The tournament is a double elimination event for the eastern regional title. Games will start at 8 a.m. at Beaufort Middle School with Greenville's first game scheduled for 10 a.m. The winner of the tournament will advance to the state tournament, scheduled for Charlotte on December 10.

Last year in a best of five series with Beaufort, Greenville, losing 2-1 and behind 10-2 in the fourth game, rallied to win the tournament, three games to two.

Marino, Duper Best Bengals

MIAMI (AP) — The red-hot passing combination of Dan Marino to Mark Duper is setting the National Football League on fire and blazing the trail the Miami Dolphins are traveling toward the playoffs.

The Cincinnati Bengals are but the latest victims of the dynamic duo's destruction, yielding a pair of touchdowns to the tandem Monday night during a 38-14 loss to the defending American Conference champions.

"They've got my vote for the Pro Bowl," Bengals wide receiver Cris Collinsworth said of Marino and Duper. "We've been around the league now, and those guys are in a special class at their positions."

Marino, the AFC's passing efficiency leader, threw for 217 yards and three TDs as the 9-4 Dolphins took a two-game lead over Buffalo in the Eastern Division and moved to within a game of wrapping up the title.

Duper, who caught scoring passes of 7 and 15 yards, had five catches for 84 yards, allowing him to maintain a pace that would give him a 1,000-yard receiving season — the first in Dolphin history.

"They're the best defense I ever played against," said Duper, a second-year pro who moved into the starting lineup eight weeks ago. "They really punish you after you catch the ball. Half of my body was numb."

Marino, meanwhile, boosted his record as a starter to 6-2 and a victory over Houston next Sunday will clinch the division crown and send the Dolphins into the playoffs.

"You have to say Marino really kept his cool. He was able to move around and find his receivers," said Miami Coach Don Shula, who earlier in the day signed a new, multi-year contract to remain with the team he's guided to four Super Bowl appearances.

"It's been a good day," Shula added. "First the announcement, and to have that precede an effort like this would have to make you feel pretty proud."

The loss all but eliminated the 5-8 Bengals from the playoff picture, and Coach Forrest Gregg and players agreed they were their own worst enemy Monday night.

Cincinnati, which trailed 17-14 at halftime, lost two fumbles and quarterback Ken Anderson threw two interceptions, one that led to Marino's 3-yard, fourth-quarter touchdown toss to tight end Dan Johnson.

Anderson and Isaac Curtis teamed on an 80-yard scoring play in the second quarter, and the Bengal quarterback set up Pete Johnson's 1-yard plunge with a 48-yard completion to Collinsworth.

"Those two big plays were the biggest part of their offense the entire night," said Shula. "It was one great effort by our football team."

"The defense got the ball and the offense was able to take advantage of the field position and put points on the board," he added.

Gregg said errors were the key to the contest, played before an Orange Bowl sellout of 74,506.

"It gets down to this: you can't turn the ball over four times against a team as good as the Dolphins and expect to win," the Cincinnati coach said.

"We played well enough in the first half offensively, but frankly we didn't execute in the second," he added.

Anderson completed 23 of 36 passes for 342 yards and was sacked twice for 17 yards in losses.

The 13-year veteran said the Bengals were forced out of their game plan when the Dolphins extended their halftime lead.

"They didn't show us anything fancy (defensively), nothing that we didn't expect," said Anderson. "We started off O.K. in the first half, but then when you get behind you have to throw it."

As a result, Johnson, the Bengals leading rusher, was held to 44 yards on 15 carries.

"We were gonna do whatever it takes to win," he said. "Tonight, nothing worked. They just outplayed us. They beat us and we lost."

Shula Elects To Stay With The Dolphins

MIAMI (AP) — Don Shula's contract to coach the Miami Dolphins may be new, but the boss says the wording isn't.

"I still own the football team and he still runs it," Dolphins owner Joe Robbie said Monday after he and Shula signed the new deal. "Coach Shula's contract is the same contract he had a year ago, except for the numbers."

Both Shula, 53, and Robbie said terms of the deal, including its duration, were "personal to both of us" and would remain secret.

Neither man would say whether the pact will make Shula, whose current contract expires in February, the National Football League's first $1 million-a-year coach. But they did say the contract doesn't include any real estate.

Shula turned down an offer of at least $1 million from the New Jersey Generals of the rival United States Football League after Generals owner Donald Trump said on national television Shula would sign if given a luxury apartment in New York City.

"The key to this was a one-bedroom efficiency on Biscayne Boulevard," Shula quipped after agreeing to stay in Miami.

But then he got serious, looking back on his four Super Bowl seasons here and the nine times his Dolphins made it in the playoffs over 13½ seasons.

"Rather than wait to see what would be available in February, I decided there were a lot of things here that were positive. I've been happy here and this is where I want to be," said Shula, who is 210-80-16 in 21 years as coach of the Dolphins and Baltimore Colts.

"I was very impressed with the attitude that Joe Robbie had. He wanted to continue to put the best possible product on the field," Shula said, noting that the owner took over contract negotiations with a third of the team going into their option years after the death of personnel director Joe Thomas last spring.

A small group of fans roared their approval and slapped the grinning coach on the back early today as Shula left the locker room after his team routed the Cincinnati Bengals 38-14, capping what he called "a pretty good day."

This was the first time since joining the Dolphins that Shula, already the NFL's best-paid coach at a reported $450,000 annually, entered his option season without being sewn up in a new pact.

Southern California Atop Women's Poll

By The Associated Press Southern California's back-to-back victories over previously No. 8 Maryland and No. 5 Tennessee in the Notre Dame tournament chased away the doubters as the Women of Troy grabbed 59 of 60 first-place votes and 1,197 points in the first weekly Women's Basketball rankings announced today.

The defending NCAA champions had 28 first-place votes but led Louisiana Tech by just one point in the preseason rankings with the entire nationwide panel of 65 women's coaches participating. The balloting is compiled by Mel Greenberg of The Philadelphia Inquirer.

Louisiana Tech, which opens its season tonight at Arkansas, remained second with 1,113 points and received the other first-place ballot.

Georgia, which received 18 first-place votes in the preseason rankings, remained third with 1,083 points after opening the season with wins over St. John's and Bowling Green to take the University of Detroit Tournament.

"I didn't vote for them at the top before but I'm voting for them now," Maryland Coach Chris Weller said after USC defeated the Terrapins last weekend, 86-68. "They really looked strong for this time of year."

Texas opened with a win over visiting Alabama and held fourth with 1,018 points. Tennessee, which lost to USC, 78-64, and snapped a three-game winning streak, held fifth with 896 points, but sixth-place Long Beach State drew closer with 890 points. The 49ers open the season at Pepperdine tonight.

Kansas State won its own tournament and jumped from ninth to seventh with 764 points. Mississippi, which doesn't open its season until Southeastern Conference rival Vanderbilt visits Saturday night, reached an all-time high at eighth with 757 points. Maryland fell a notch to ninth with 710 points while North Carolina State climbed to 10th with 611 points.

The big news was Old Dominion's 84-80 overtime loss to host Western Kentucky in the Bowling Green Bank tournament last week. The defeat sent the Monarchs tumbling from seventh to 11th. It is the first time Old Dominion has been out of the top 10 since finishing 12th in the final poll of the 1977-78 season.

The second 10 in order are Old Dominion, Auburn, Louisiana State, Rutgers, Penn State, Ohio State, Missouri, Western Kentucky, Clemson and Cheyney. The second 10 last week was North Carolina State, Auburn, Louisiana State, Rutgers, Missouri, Arizona State, Penn State, Ohio State and South Carolina.

Western Kentucky's win enabled the Lady Toppers to become the 71st team to be ranked since the poll began eight years ago. Clemson moved back after a year's absence with a three-game sweep, including a 95-75 win over Stephen F. Austin in the title game of the Wayland Baptist tournament.

Arizona State ended a 33-week run in the rankings after losing to Colorado, 95-73. South Carolina, which opens by hosting South Carolina State tomorrow night, also fell from the list.

UTC Coach To Showboat

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Bill Oliver, stepping down after four seasons as football coach at Tennessee-Chattanooga, says he hopes one of his assistants gets his old job.

"I have no idea who they'll hire," Oliver said Monday after announcing that he had taken a position as secondary coach of the USFL's new Memphis Showboats.

"I wish they would hire somebody on the staff, like Joe Pate, Mike Hand or Tom Grant...they could do the job. They could do everything (UTC) needs — and more."

Pate, assistant head coach and defensive coordinator, has been at UTC for five years, producing the No. 1 defense in the Southern Conference the last two seasons.

Grant has been offensive coordinator and backfield coach for two years, while Hand just finished his first season at UTC as offensive line coach.

But observers feel UTC will look elsewhere for Oliver's successor. Candidates most often mentioned are South Carolina offensive coordinator Frank Sadler and Jacksonville (Ala.) Coach Jim Fuller. Both have expressed interest in the job.

UTC Athletic Director Harold Wilkes said he planned to meet with university President Frederick W. Obeor today to begin the search for a new coach.

Oliver compiled a 29-14-1 in four years at UTC, the third-winningest record in the school's history.

'Captives Of Care' Has Point To Make For Public

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Captives of Care" is the real-life story of some courageous patients who take over the hospital to prove, in the words of one named Neil, "that freaks are people, too."

The television docudrama, starring five of the wheelchair-bound rebels who challenged authority at the Leumeah Home for the Handicapped near Sydney, Australia, will be broadcast tonight as part of public TV's "Nova" science series.

The widely acclaimed Australian production was based on a book by one of the disabled protagonists, John Roarty, a prominent player in "Captives of Care," along with fellow revolutionaries Jeannie Best, Neil Russ, Les Hume and Jill Dennis.

An actress, Julianne Newbould, is Sister Robin Bishop, an idealistic young nurse who listens to the patients' complaints and ultimately helps them in their campaign for respect and responsibility.

Many of the patients are grossly deformed, and others are virtually immobile without assistance. They play out the drama naturally, without calling undue attention to their disabilities. It is their dignity, and their concern for one another, that is the dominant image created by "Captives of Care."

A decision by Leumeah's administrator to bar one patient, Les, from obtaining an electric wheelchair touches off the revolt. "It would give me more freedom to go where I want," says Les, who can't even cross the room without help. "And it would allow the staff to do things more important than pushing me about."

"There are going to be others who want the same thing and can't afford it," the bureaucrat reasons, "and then they will feel deprived. And let's face it, our job is to see that they don't feel any more deprived than they already are."

Sister Bishop suggests that the patients be allowed to vote on Les' request. "If we allow the patients to make those kinds of decisions," she's told, "before you know it, they will be deciding all

Prince Has Stage Debut

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Prince Edward, youngest son of Queen Elizabeth II, sounded a bit philosophical after making his Cambridge University stage debut in Arthur Miller's "The Crucible."

"Life is one big act," he commented. "You may be nervous but you don't show it."

The 19-year-old prince, who played Deputy Governor Danforth, the 60-year-old Puritan judge in the play about the 17th-century Salem, Mass., witch trials, admitted having stage fright before he went on, but still found the experience thoroughly enjoyable.

"The part suits him like a glove," said Nicholas Walsley, who directed the production Monday in the chapel of the university's Jesus College.

However, Edward, who is studying history and archaeology at Cambridge, said he doubts he will appear in another university production. "It has been fun," he told reporters. But he said he felt the press attention he received was not fair to the other people involved.

"As much as I want to lead the life of a normal undergraduate, I cannot because of who I am," the prince said.

kinds of things, and we would be in all sorts of trouble."

The patients, led by Roarty and Neil Russ, the bearded activist in the group, organize in protest and take their case to a local TV station. The patients' feelings, expressed in interviews with a television reporter, are interspersed throughout the show.

Neil: "I think I'm pretty normal, really..."

Jeannie: "The thing that bugs me is that we all are looked upon as one big blob of people."

Neil, again: "They try to impose in areas that you people accept as your own privacy."

The hospital's administrators are enraged by the TV show, and announce their intention to evict the dissidents. Now it's Sister Bishop's turn to be angry: "Every one of these people have more basic humanity in their little fingers than you," she shouts at her boss.

Ultimately, Australia's Council of Civil Liberties enters the dispute, and the patients prevail.

"Captives of Care" is an extraordinary film, sensitive and life-affirming and universal in its message, that the physically handicapped are not children unable to make the decisions that affect their lives.

In a separate segment toward the end discussing the problems of the disabled in the United States, Jim Woods, a victim of cerebral palsy, offers an impassioned argument in favor of more freedom and responsibility for the handicapped: "I understand that I can't do much for myself," he says. "But I can't understand why they put me in prison for it."

Or, as Roarty says in his book, "I'm not worried about things I can't do. I just want the right to do things I can do."

Farm Girl 'Playmate'

SPRINGVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Playboy Magazine's 30th Anniversary Playmate, 18-year-old Penny Baker of Springville, is described as a "real farm girl" by her mother.

Mrs. Frances Baker says Playboy founder Hugh Hefner apparently was looking for something different for this anniversary playmate, noting he wanted a person with a rural background.

PENNY BAKER

The Bakers live on a farm in this rural area of Erie County and the family does raise cattle, says Mrs. Baker, but more as a hobby than for a living.

She said of her daughter, "She's a real farm girl. She can drive a tractor and all of that."

Mrs. Baker also said Penny, a 1982 graduate of Springville-Griffin Institute Central School and a model-actress in New York City, was selected over more than 7,000 candidates.

"The whole family is proud of her," she said.

The 30th anniversary issue is due out today.

Survey Shows Revenue Gains For The Typical TV Station

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The typical American television station employs 78 full-time workers, depends almost equally on national and local advertisers and returned a pre-tax profit of $1.25 million in 1982, up roughly 25 percent from 1981, a new survey shows.

The survey, performed annually by the National Association of Broadcasters, shows local TV stations enjoyed their best year in 1982 from the standpoint of profit gains since 1978. And they did so largely by holding down expenses.

While net revenues did climb more than 7 percent thanks to increased advertising — to $5.37 million in 1982 compared to $5 million in 1981 — the typical station managed to hold operating expenses to just a 3 percent increase over 1981 — $4.1 million vs. $4 million.

That produced a pre-tax profit figure of $1.25 million in 1982, or a profit margin of 23.3 percent, compared to $1 million and a margin of 21 percent in 1981, the NAB said.

The 1982 survey is based on a questionnaire that was completed by 447 commercial TV stations, or almost 60 percent of all the commercial stations operating in the United States. For the purposes of the survey, the association describes a "typical" station by using median figures, meaning 50 percent of all those surveyed did better than the totals while the other 50 percent did worse.

The survey found the typical station sold $6.3 million worth of advertising time to produce net revenues of $5.37 million after sales expenses and commissions.

"The typical station's expense dollar was spent as follows: 11 cents for engineering; 26 cents for program and production; 13 cents for news; 13 cents for sales; 4 cents for advertising and promotion, and 33 cents for general and administrative," the survey adds. "Typically, station payroll totaled $1.6 million in 1982."

That typical station employed 78 full-time workers and seven part-time employees, although those figures change dramatically depending upon the size of the market in which the station is located and whether it's affiliated with a major network or is independent.

According to the study, 1982 expenses at network affiliates totaled $4.1 million vs. $6.8 million at independents. But the independents managed to beat local network affiliates in advertising income and thus ended up with the same pre-tax profit figure — $1.34 million.

The United States beat Italy by 5 International Match Points over 160 boards to win the 1983 World Team Championship. The lead see-sawed throughout the final, and the United States clinched the title with only a couple of boards left to play when an Italian pair bid a slam off two cashing aces.

Earlier, the Italians had come from behind in the semifinal to defeat a highly rated French team by 11 IMPs. Benito Garozzo and Giorgio Belladonna, architects of so many Italian comebacks in recent years, were benched for the last session by the Italian captain.

This deal, with only five boards left to play, was decisive in Italy's semifinal win. The French North-South pair got no further than four spades. For Italy, Arturo Franco and Soldano De Falco bid as shown. De Falco's jump to three clubs as a passed hand showed a strong club suit with little outside. It was not difficult for Franco to visualize slam if his partner held the ace of clubs, so he checked via Blackwood and then bid the small slam.

West led the king of hearts, knocking out a key entry to the dummy. Now declarer cashed two high trumps, and when the suit split evenly, he had no problems. He went after the spade suit, and the slam was safe if that suit broke no worse than 3-2 or if East held four spades to the queen — the lady could be ruffed out and declarer still had an entry to the table by leading the two of clubs to the five.

Against a 3-1 trump division, declarer would probably have gone down. He would have had to set up spades, and the percentage play in that suit would have been to finesse. Had the slam failed, France would have been in the final instead of Italy.

Doubled Fines Collections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Debts, civil fines and criminal fines brought in $477.8 million to the Justice Department in fiscal 1983, more than double the $200.1 million collected a year earlier.

Of the 1983 total, $71.9 million came from criminal fines. The other $405.9 million came from civil, tax, antitrust, civil rights or environmental judgments, collected debts, and civil fines.

The Justice Department has placed more emphasis on seeking monetary damages in both civil and criminal cases and is participating in a government crackdown on individuals who have failed to repay federal loans. Attorney General William French Smith says. The department has increased resources and instituted special training devoted to debt collection.

The City Control can designate certain areas of Greenville as controlled residential parking area. For more information, call 752-4137. Ask for Engineering.

Resume Inquiry Into Social Security's Mistakes

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman who says the U.S. Treasury raided her widowed mother-in-law's bank account is testifying before a Senate committee on complaints about poor service from the Social Security administration.

The Senate's Special Committee on Aging, chaired by Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., was also to hear today from an official of the General Accounting Office, the investigatory arm of Congress, about the errors that Social Security makes in computing benefits and handling retirees' accounts.

In testimony prepared for delivery to the committee, Carole Williams of Pittsburgh, Pa., said the government withdrew the money from the bank account because the Social Security administration made a mistake on her father-in-law's date of death.

The federal government was making Social Security retiree payments into the account of Joseph E. and Naomi Williams under a special direct deposit program.

Naomi Williams' husband died on March 11, 1982 and Carole Williams' written testimony related how her family notified Social Security five days after the death.

According to the testimony, the family was called by two Social Security offices in September and October 1982 asking for information about Williams' date of death.

Then last January, a doctor's office informed the Williams family that Medicare was refusing to pay his bills because its records showed he died in February 1982. A Social Security official again told the family it would be straightened out. But in late February, the family got a letter from their savings and loan "informing us the U.S. Treasury made a claim against her (Mrs. Williams) account for $381.50.

"Even though the savings and loan was aware that Mr. Williams died on March 11, 1982, they had no choice but to debit the account. It would seem that Mrs. Williams had direct deposit but also direct withdrawal because this was done without any type of notification being given my mother-in-law," Mrs. Williams' testimony said. The family finally got the matter straightened out by asking Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., to intercede.

There was no answer Monday night and early today at the home telephone of Social Security spokesman Jim Brown.

Meanwhile, the Social Security Administration said Monday that 99.6 percent of its payments to retirees and survivors were correct in 1981-82, but the 0.4 percent in mistakes wasted more than $500 million.

The agency revealed Monday it made $243.3 million in incorrect payments from March-through-September 1981, and $258.5 million from September 1981-through-March 1982.

However, an official of the GAO reported that in a review of 208 retirement cases, auditors from the GAO and Social Security found that the agency made mistakes in 41 percent of the cases. In 18 percent of the cases, there were errors in the amount the beneficiary received, with underpayments and overpayments ranging from $1 to more than $4,800.

The agency also made errors in documentation or the notices sent out to beneficiaries in a third of the cases in the sample, which involved people who turned 68 in October 1982, according to the testimony prepared for today's Senate committee hearing by Joseph F. Delfico, associate director of the human resources division of the GAO.

The Social Security administration, meanwhile, in response to an inquiry from The Associated Press, also released on Monday its latest error rates and overpayments in two welfare programs.

In the Supplemental Security Income program for elderly, blind or disabled poor people, the error rate during the 12 months ending in March 1983 was 4.1 percent, with $360.2 million in overpayments during that period. That error rate was down from 4.8 percent a year earlier.

The average error rate nationwide in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program — which is administered by states but primarily funded by the federal government — was 7.3 percent in the six months ending in March 1982 and 7 percent in the previous six months.

Total overpayments during those 12 months were $963.2 million. The AFDC error rate was down from 8.3 percent in March 1981.

All figures are the latest available. Social Security is spending $162 billion this year on retirement and survivors' benefits.

FOCUS

America's Record Keeper

Today is the birthday of an important but little known figure in American history — Charles Thomson. Thomson was the Secretary of the Continental Congress for the duration of its existence. As Secretary, he was one of only two men who actually signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. In April of 1789 Charles Thomson traveled to Virginia to inform George Washington that he had been elected the new Republic's first President.

DO YOU KNOW — Who proposed the name United States of America?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Roald Amundsen led the first expedition to reach the South Pole.

Why pay 18% on theirs...

when ours costs less.

Wachovia You'll pay less interest on your Wachovia Prime-Plus MasterCard® balance than on almost any other card you carry — with no strings attached. Wachovia's Prime-Plus MasterCard® MasterCard rate for the month of November 1983 is 16% Annual Percentage Rate* (APR), compared to 18% APR charged by most other financial institutions and merchants. So if you're carrying a Wachovia MasterCard, use it and save. If you don't have one, see or call a Personal Banker.

Wachovia
Bank & Trust

*Based on Wachovia's prime rate in effect on the next to the last business day of each month plus 5%. The prime rate is set by Wachovia as the basis for interest on many loans and will vary with money market conditions. While automatically providing the benefit of any decline in the prime rate, under current North Carolina law, the Wachovia MasterCard variable rate cannot exceed 18% APR. Like many other bank cards, the Wachovia MasterCard is available for an annual fee of $18.
