U.S. Jets Fly Sorties Over Beirut

Ten Killed By Car Bomb Blast

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A powerful car bomb exploded today in an apartment building garage, killing at least 10 people and injuring 84, and U.S. forces tried to determine the source of shelling that killed eight Marines hours earlier.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the explosion, which partially collapsed the nine-story building in a residential neighborhood of predominantly Moslem west Beirut. Beirut radio said rescuers identified 10 victims as they pulled blood-soaked bodies from the rubble.

U.S. jets flew sorties over the Beirut area at daybreak today, the state radio said, apparently trying to pinpoint the sources of a 4½-hour artillery assault Sunday night on the Marines' airport base.

The Marine commanders said today the eight Marines apparently were killed by a single artillery shell. And Druse leader Walid Jumblatt suggested the deaths resulted by accident during a Druse attempt to strike at Lebanese army forces.

Earlier Sunday, 28 U.S. warplanes staged a retaliatory attack against Syrian anti-aircraft positions that had fired Saturday on two unarmed U.S. Navy reconnaissance planes flying over Lebanon. No bombing raids were reported today.

The Pentagon gave no estimate of damage caused by the 1,000-pound bombs and cluster bombs dropped by American planes, but Syria said two of its troops died and 10 were wounded. It also said it lost an ammunition dump.

Two of the U.S. planes were downed and one pilot was rescued after Sunday's raid, while another flier was captured by Syrian forces. Syria's defense minister said today a third airman died of injuries.

The two pilots who fell in Syrian-held territory were identified as Lt. Mark A. Lange, 26, of Frasier, Mich., and Lt. Robert O. Goodman, 27, of Portsmouth, N.H. They were classified by the Navy as missing but Syria's defense minister, Lt. Gen. Mustafa Tlass, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that Lange had died and said the body would be turned over to the U.S. Embassy in Damascus "in the course of the day."

Regarding Goodman, who was captured, Tlass said: "He is in excellent condition, in good health, suffering no injury of any kind."

He said interviews with Goodman would be allowed "as soon as the investigation is finished."

Martin New Commission Chairman

KELLY BARNHILL

R.L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel was named chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners this morning during the board's annual reorganization.

Kelly Barnhill of Greenville, a member of the board since December 1980, was chosen as vice-chairman.

Martin, vice chairman of the board for the past year, replaces Charles Gaskins of Greenville as chairman. A commissioner since December 1956, Martin has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the state senate seat now held by Vernon White of Winterville, in the May 1984 primary election.

It has been the policy of the board to rotate chairman every year.

As part of the annual reorganization, the board reappointed Reginald Gray as county manager, Bill Watson as county attorney, Margaret Roberts and county finance officer, and Assistant County Manager Don Davenport as clerk to the board.

Commissioners also heard reports from various county departments and agencies.

Kremlin Officials Say No Rejoining Missile Parley

MOSCOW (AP) — High-ranking Kremlin officials today made clear the Soviet Union had no intention of rejoining talks on medium-range nuclear arms in Europe while NATO's new missiles are deployed.

In an unusual news conference for Soviet and foreign reporters, they blamed the United States for the negotiations' breakdown and accused the Reagan administration of seeking to disrupt the parallel talks on long-range missiles.

Chief Kremlin spokesman Leonid M. Zamyatin also said President Yuri V. Andropov is "recovering well" from an illness that has kept him out of public view for 109 days. Andropov "is getting better and is tackling in full measure party affairs, affairs of state and affairs of the Council of Defense," Zamyatin said.

He did not elaborate on the illness other than to cite Andropov's Oct. 29 letter to physicians visiting Moscow. In the letter, Andropov said he could not keep an appointment with the doctors because he had a cold.

The Soviets also denounced the U.S. air attack on Syrian anti-aircraft positions in Lebanon Sunday. Zamyatin condemned it as an act of aggression and said the Soviet Union will support those who are fighting "Israeli and American aggression."

On the dais for the news conference at the Foreign Ministry press center were Marshal Nikolai V. Ogarkov, the first deputy defense minister and chief of general staff; Georgi M. Kornienko, the first deputy foreign minister, and Zamyatin.

In an opening statement, Ogarkov vowed never to allow the United States to gain military superiority and restated Soviet plans to retaliate for the start of NATO deployment of new U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Western Europe.

"The United States will not have a superiority," Ogarkov said.

He said the arrival of cruise missiles in Britain and Pershing 2 components in West Germany had "changed the military balance."

Since the Soviet Union views those weapons as first-strike missiles, he said, the Soviet military was being forced to put new nuclear rockets on submarines cruising off U.S. shores.

Andropov announced the Kremlin's retaliatory plans in a statement Nov. 24 that was quoted repeatedly in today's 1½-hour news conference.

Ogarkov and his fellow officials restated the Soviet contention that it was the United States that undermined the Geneva medium-range missile talks because it started the NATO deployment.

The Soviets discontinued the talks Nov. 23, after the first NATO missile parts started arriving in Britain and West Germany — fulfilling a vow Andropov made Oct. 27 in an interview with the Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

Kornienko charged that the United States, from the start of the Geneva talks more than two years ago, sought to torpedo them so it could deploy its new medium-range missiles in Europe. He said the Soviets would not go back to the talks until the situation was returned to what it was before the

LOU GEHRIG'S DISEASE

William (Bill) Williams, 66, of 109 Church Street here, a lifelong resident of Greenville, has recently been diagnosed with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also known as Lou Gehrig's disease. This is a progressive neuromuscular disease for which the cause and the cure are unknown.

Williams, long a mechanic with Barnes Motor and Parts of Greenville, is respirator dependent and his doctors do not anticipate his ever being able to function without respirator assistance. There are no nursing homes in this area which will accept respirator-dependent patients and his family, rather than send him far away from home, are going to attempt to care for him at home. They cannot, however, financially afford the expense of the "round-the-clock care he will need.

Freda Wilkins in the Department of Patient and Family Services of Pitt County Memorial Hospital has asked Hotline to appeal for donations of money and time to assist the family in caring for Williams at home. Monetary donations should be sent to the Bill Williams Fund c/o Linda Weathersby, Planters National Bank, Ayden. Anyone interested in working with him on a paid or volunteer basis is asked to contact Ms. Wilkins, 757-4490.

The Christmas Tree Can Go Up In 'Whoosh'

By SUE HINSON

Reflector Staff Writer
The days of candle-lit Christmas trees are long gone, but that does not mean the danger of fire is gone as well.

"Trees can still go up in a whoosh before you can write your name, just like they've had gasoline poured on them," Greenville Assistant Fire Chief Harvey Case said.

There are certain precautions that can be taken to ensure your holidays don't go up in smoke, according to Case. "The main thing is to be fire conscious, be reasonable," he said. "For instance, don't put candles, plastic or real, behind curtains, or if you do, make some kind of barrier, even pull your curtains back."

Case recommends as well that Christmas tree lights be shut off when there is no one in the house. "The fire department doesn't recommend leaving tree lights on when you're not in your house. It may look pretty, but there is always that chance that your house will be in flames when you come back."

Trees, especially ones that are put up early and taken down late, are potential fire hazards. "Make sure you water your tree and instead of using the old painted bulbs, use the new cool light bulbs. And make sure you remove that tree from your house as soon as possible," he said. Trees should also be kept away from candles and other heat producing agents.

The majority of Christmas fires are caused by improper use of electric cords, according to Case. He suggested wrapping joints with electric tape, making sure the connection is good, and checking your lights and extension cords each season before putting them to use. "Cords should be checked year to year for broken places, shorts and to make sure the proper bulbs are being used," he said. "Don't overload the wall sockets, those outlets are built to take on two plugs and two plugs only. Most of the calls we go out on over the holidays involve a situation where someone has overloaded the sockets either causing the circuits to kick off or causing the

Couple Marries In Florida

PENSACOLA, Fla. — The wedding ceremony of Sheila Ann Bedell and Claude Wesley Coward took place here Nov. 25 at 11 a.m. The ceremony was performed by Jerry P. Bennett at the home of the bride's mother in Pensacola.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Paul L. Peeler of Pensacola, Fla. and Dr. Paul F. Bedell of Norfolk, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Nathan C. Coward of Bethel, N.C. are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a burgundy wool suit with a white and pink silk blouse. She wore a corsage of white and burgundy cymbidium orchids, baby's breath tied with white silk ribbons. She wore a pearl necklace, an heirloom from her maternal grandmother.

Women can help prevent runs and snags in their pantyhose caused by fingernails by using a pair of lightweight gloves when putting on the hose, says Family Circle magazine.

The honor attendant was Catherine L. Douglas and the flower girl was Denise Coward of Bethel, daughter of the bridegroom.

Michael Bedell, brother of the bride of Pensacola, Fla., was best man.

The flower girl presented each guest a small handmade rice packet from a flower-trimmed basket as the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to the Florida gulf coast.

The bride is a graduate of Tate High School in Pensacola and attended Pensacola Junior College. She is attending Jacksonville College in Anniston, Ala. She is serving in the U.S. Army and is stationed at Headquarters, Fort McClellan, Ala.

The bridegroom graduated from Belvoir-Falkland High School and is a sergeant in the U.S. Army at Fort McClellan, Fla.

The couple will live in Anniston, Ala.

Following the ceremony a luncheon-buffet was served guests. It was held at the home of the bride's mother.

IRISH FISHERMAN...knit sweater can be made with or without crewel flowers.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Pat Trexler is ill and is unable to provide a new column. The following is a popular "Pat's Pointers" column that originally ran on Sunday, Dec. 20, 1981.)

Sure and b'gorra, you'll fairly burst with pride when you wear your authentic Irish fisherman knit, made even more outstanding with the addition of charming crewel flowers. With or without the optional embroidery, the deeply sculptured cables and bobbles of this traditional raglan-sleeve Irish knit cardigan will make it a source of pride and joy for years to come.

Directions for sizes 10 through 18 are clearly written without abbreviations. Knitting worsted-weight yarn in either wool or synthetic is used.

To obtain directions for making this Pat Trexler Original, send your request for Leaflet No.

P-1980 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. K-1980, containing instructions, knitting yarn in fisherman white plus crewel embroidery yarns in a variety of garden-bright colors, by sending a check or money order to Pat Trexler at the same address. For sizes 10 through 14, the price is $21 for acrylic or $31.50 for wool yarns. For sizes 16 and 18, the price is $26 for acrylic or $39.50 for wool yarns. All prices include shipping charges.

Did you know that every pattern stitch used by Irish knitters has a special, symbolic meaning? The combinations of patterns tell a story understood by all who see them.

Diamonds and honeycombs are a wish for one's children to have lives of prosperity and plenty. A maze of center panels, all intertwined, might tell a story of many marriages and many relatives.

Trellis stitches, used in panels, represent the rough stone walls that climb the hills of Galway, while cables symbolize the ropes that hold the fishermen's small boats against the sea.

Irish women, like their menfolk, are famous for their love of storytelling, so it is only natural that they carry on this tradition in their knitting, which is as durable as it is beautiful.

Most of us, of course, are not as proficient as these men and women, who create their beautiful designs as they knit — usually with no written instructions. You can, however, knit sweaters just as beautiful by following step-by-step directions furnished to you by today's designers.

Don't be discouraged if at first the work seems to go slowly. Once the pattern stitches are established and you become familiar with them, you probably won't have to continually refer to the directions every few stitches. It's best not to set a deadline for yourself for finishing a fisherman knit. Plan to do it at a leisurely pace, working on it only when you can be free of other distractions.

In closing today, I would like to share with you an ancient Irish Blessing that you might want to needlepoint, cross-stitch or just read and cherish.

"May the road always rise to meet you. May the wind be always at your back. May the sun shine warm upon your face, the rain fall soft upon your fields and, until we meet again, may God hold you in the palm of His hand."

("Pat's Pointers: The Needlepoint Handbook" by Pat Trexler has organized needlework instructions for easy crafting by beginners and veterans alike with a host of patterns to please every needlework enthusiast. Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A

PRETTIER SMILE FROM "BONDING"

One of the most exciting revolutions in cosmetic dentistry is the use of composite materials that can be molded onto your teeth to change their shape, fill spaces, and result in the smile you've always wanted.

The dentist can now close spaces between teeth, cover discolored teeth, making them lighter and more attractive. He can rebuild and reshape disfigured or chipped teeth, often making crowning unnecessary. He can fill in eroded areas; lengthen front teeth that have worn down; and hide gold or amalgam fillings that show when a person smiles. It is also possible to bond tooth-colored plastic facings onto natural teeth, to cover badly stained or discolored teeth. And this can be done almost invariably without drilling and in one office visit.

An acid-etching prepares the tooth surface, the composite is placed on and shaped into the desired appearance and hardens when activated by ultraviolet light. This is today's answer for those who have long been unhappy with the appearance of their smile.

Double Ring Ceremony Is Held Sunday Afternoon

Margaret Elaine Tyson Baker and William Phillip Worthington were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. at Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church in Winterville. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dan Beamon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Tyson of Greenville and granddaughter of C.B. Sautter and Mrs. Katie Tyson, both of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Doris Worthington of Greenville and the late Alfred Poe Worthington Sr.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight silkened organza over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with an open sweetheart neckline and Queen Anne collar outlined in a miniature ruffle of crystal pleated organza. The fitted bodice featured appliques of imported rosepoint chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The long fitted sleeves were fashioned in lace with organza button closures at the wrist. Crystal pleated organza bordered in clipped chantilly lace in a scalloped pattern accented the full skirt and attached chapel train. She wore a fingertip illusion veil edged in chantilly lace to complement her gown. It was attached to a Juliet headpiece trimmed in lace beaded with pearls. She carried red silk poinsettias and white Christmas daisies with jasmine tied with velvet ribbons.

Deborah Barrington of Simpson was matron of honor for her sister and the flower girl was Cindy Heath, niece of the bride. They wore identical holiday plaid taffeta skirts accented with red taffeta sashes and ivory blouses of woven polyester fashioned with a ruffle lace collar and front. They carried arm bouquets of red silk poinsettias tied with velvet bows and wore matching flowers in their hair.

Graham Mills of Greenville was best man and ushers were Michael Baker, son of the bride, Gary Worthington, nephew of the bridegroom, and Tommy Harrington.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Eloise Jackson. Arlene Gurganus sang "More," "If" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Donna Burrus of Greenville presided at the guest register and the wedding was directed by Pauline Stancil of Farmville.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of red georgette fashioned with an embroidered yoke. The mother of the bridegroom selected a street length dress of periwinkle blue knit crepe. Both wore white double carnation corsages. The bride's grandmother wore a single carnation corsage.

A reception was given by the bride's parents in the fellowship hall which was decorated with a Christmas motif. The bride's portrait was displayed. Cake was served by Shirley Spriggs and punch was poured by Ann Robinson and Eloise Ellis, all aunts of the bride. Effie Bailey assisted. Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Nethercutt.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's mother and Mr. and Mrs. Poe Worthington at the future home of the bridal couple. The couple was honored at an open house prior to the wedding.

The bride is employed by East Carolina University and the bridegroom is owner of Ayden Sport Shop, Inc.

After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will live in Greenville.

DEAR WORRIED: No TB patient is discharged while he or she is contagious. You are far safer in the company of former TB patients than people who have never been tested for it. Widowed Son-In-Law Bound By Love Ties

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I lost my wonderful wife to cancer. "Angie" was 23, and we had been married for only a year. The love we shared was beyond description. I can't imagine myself loving another the way I loved Angie.

However, time has a way of changing things, and I know there is a God who sees, understands and perhaps may have plans for my future, so I keep my trust in him.

My problem is my mother-in-law. Angie was Mom's only daughter, and during her struggle with cancer, Mom and I developed a very close mother-son relationship. Now that Angie is gone, Mom considers me "all she has left" of her daughter.

I understand her feelings, Abby, but my life must go on. Unfortunately, Mom has grown so dependent on me that I have no opportunity to get interested in anyone else. Friends have offered to fix me up with some nice women, but I don't dare to accept because Mom would be devastated if I started to date. And I hate to think of what would happen if I were to marry again.

So how do I get out of this trap?

ALONE AND LONELY

DEAR ALONE: Your mother-in-law needs to learn how to "let go." First she must let go of her grief so she can let go of you. You could help her by recommending Compassionate Friends, a national support group of parents who have learned how to deal with life's cruellest blow—losing a child. The address is P.O. Box 1347, Oak Brook, Ill. 60521.

You must get on with your life, my friend. Mom may need individual therapy to help her work through her grief, and you need to resume a normal life without feeling trapped or guilty. Good luck and God bless you. The Lord never gives us a heavier load than we can carry.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for the whole neighborhood. A friendly neighbor of ours just got back from

ZUCCHINI PEPPERS
The delicious way my chief recipe tester, Mary R. Greene, makes this.

2 small (each 5 ounces) zucchini
1 large (5 or 6 ounces) green pepper
1 medium-small (2½ ounces) onion
1 tablespoon olive oil
Salt and pepper to taste
Trim ends from scrubbed zucchini, do not peel; cut into ¾-inch cubes — there should be about 2 cups. Halve, seed and de-vein green pepper; cut into ¾-inch squares — there should be ¾ to 1 cup. Peel and quarter onion; cut into thick strips — there should be about 1-3rd cup. In a 10-inch non-stick skillet, over moderate heat, heat the oil; add the zucchini, green pepper and onion; cook uncovered, stirring often, until zucchini is tender — 10 to 15 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 3 servings.

Mental Health Perspectives
Employee Assistance Program
December, 1983

This month's News Article has been written by Ms. Deborah Wells, Court Counselor for the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

With the return of the holiday season, it is of critical importance that party-goers take necessary steps to protect life and property. Since alcoholic beverages abound and the mood is merry as the year draws to an end, I urge one and all to think about drinking and driving BEFORE the party begins instead of when the patrol car or ambulance approaches. Protection from accidents or criminal charges is simple:

1. Alternate drinking nights with your spouse or escort and make certain the non-drinker has the car keys and a valid operator's license.
2. If you are alone and drinking and are responsible for the car, call someone you know to be sober to take you home. Call a taxi, or arrange to stay put for the night. You can always return for the car the next day.
3. If you must drink alcohol, measure your drinks. Limit yourself to two, drink slowly, and allow 1½ hours per drink before driving. You'll reduce tremendously your accident risk and your chance of being charged with driving under the influence. Hangovers and holidays don't mix.

Hots and hostesses can protect their guest by taking some thoughtful precautions:

1. Have a sober bartender mix drinks using a standard measure — no doubles.
2. Make arrangements ahead of time to have a plentiful supply of heavy foods and non-alcoholic beverages available.
3. Do NOT push drinks on guests or rush to refill an empty glass.
4. Limit the time during which drinks will be served. Follow up the "cocktail hour" with breakfast, supper, buffet, or pot luck, and coffee. The time it takes to serve food and coffee will help guests return to a sober state.
5. Make arrangements for a sober driver to assist those who have over-indulged to arrive home safely.

Friends, if you plan on driving and know you will be drinking, plan to be stopped by law enforcement officers or by serious accident. Is that the kind of gift you would like to give your family? One last hint is that if you don't have to be on the road, stay home. One out of every ten drivers on the road is legally intoxicated and dangerous.

I wish you all a safe and very happy holiday!

True Success

We find room for great satisfaction in the very routineness of space shuttle Columbia's current flight. The flights are becoming almost humdrum.

The astronauts profess to have always felt confidence in their hardware (what else could they say?), but that feeling is also working its way down into the minds of us, the earthbound.

The nine-day space voyage is largely being devoted to matters of research and experiments, thanks largely to the European laboratory which is riding aboard Columbia; so the flight promises to be almost boring for the news media.

A pity, too. The quality of pictures now being transmitted is approaching what it should have been many flights ago.

The absence of feeling this is a spectacular nail-biting adventure is pretty much what had been predicted in the beginning: that it would become just another "bus-ride".

Now that is real success, in any language.

Toeing The Line

Martin Feldstein is a Harvard University economist, who is in Washington as chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers.

He is considered a brilliant economist and a conservative. He should be perfect for the Reagan administration. Right?

Wrong. Feldstein has been speaking out on the federal deficit and recommending a tax increase if it is necessary to bring the deficit under control. That is what an economic adviser with impeccable credentials is supposed to do, isn't it?

Apparently not. Feldstein's comments have drawn a rebuke from the White House and speculation is rampant as to when his departure will come.

There will be implications aplenty in that one. The possibility of being right will not count among presidential advisers. The message will be to keep one's mouth shut in order to survive in the Reagan administration.

—John Cuniff—

Rejoice? Or Cry?

NEW YORK (AP) — A nasty word is deficit, it's better to be deaf to it, and make believe it isn't there or that the country doesn't care.

With the economy improving so smoothly, the Reagan administration seems to be saying that now is a time for rejoicing rather than for dealing with still another problem, especially one whose real impact is many months away.

That's the political approach, and it isn't always appreciated by those who have roots in academe and who make their reputations as economists. Such as Martin Feldstein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Few economic advisers have been so outspoken about an issue, which you might think would put him in accord with the boss, who probably has said more about budget deficits than any man who ever held the highest office.

But after years in which he constantly reminded the public about deficits and the need to lower them, Ronald Reagan appears to have let the matter cool for a bit. Meanwhile, Feldstein has decided the issue is hot.

For Reagan, there is an election coming up and the economy is on a roll and it looks as if damage from the $200 billion budget deficits won't become serious until 1985. And that, on the political clock, is a long way off.

On the economic clock, however, it is coming up fast, and many an economist besides Feldstein thinks it is vital that the issue be attacked and resolved now, even if it means an increase in taxes.

To delay, they say, might allow matters to get out of hand, with the credit needs of the federal government squeezing private borrowers from the market, costing jobs, forcing up interest rates and ending the economic expansion.

But this dire consequence, a familiar one to anyone who experienced the unlamented recession that ended a year ago, now seems unlikely to reach a critical point until after the 1984 elections.

In a report released today, Albert Sommers, chairman of the Conference Board's economic forum summed it up tersely in these words:

"A majority expect that in the end a price will have to be paid if the policy contradictions are not resolved. But the price apparently lies beyond 1984."

An irony — there are always ironies when economics and politics interface — is that the scenario awaiting the economy in 1985, assuming the budget deficit is not reduced, is opposite to what Reagan has fought for.

That, at least, is the position of what appears to be a preponderance of economists issuing yearly forecasts over the past few weeks, and who see budget deficits as forcing the private sector to shrink and government to grow.

Looking ahead, Morgan Guaranty expresses the concern that if federal deficits continue at roughly 4 percent of gross national product, there just won't be enough private-sector saving to finance expansion.

Housing might be hurt, again. Small-business undertakings would be threatened. And the upswing in plant and equipment spending might be curtailed, with a negative impact on cost-cutting, productivity and jobs.

"The hard-won gains in the battle against inflation in the past few years could be lost quickly," says Morgan, "and the risks of renewed recession would be high."

All are areas dear to the politics and philosophy of Reagan. All are areas in which he has battled hard and in some instances had significant victories.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big efforts to register millions of likely Democratic voters for the 1984 elections have Republican political strategists deeply concerned as they plan President Reagan's re-election campaign and the effort to retain GOP control of the Senate.

The addition of millions of dependably Democratic ballots to the voter rolls, particularly in the South and in Northern industrial states, would cast a shadow over Reagan's chances for a second term, assuming he is a candidate.

The irony of a Reagan candidacy is that while an improving economy and rising support for his foreign policy make him look increasingly formidable, the president continues to attract strong opposition among women and blacks.

Adding to the political danger of opposition from these two groups is the impact of the presidential candidacy of the Rev. Jesse Jackson and the House defeat of an attempt to revive the Equal Rights Amendment.

A side effect of the Jackson campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination is likely to be a surge in black voter registration.

Feminist leaders blamed the Republicans for the House defeat of ERA and vowed to redouble their efforts to make women who support the amendment a greater political force in 1984.

Republican pollsters are active in 10 key states as part of a drive aimed at registering up to 3 million new GOP supporters to voter rolls.

But that effort still is likely to be dwarfed by the combined voter registration activities of unions, women's groups, blacks and Hispanics.

Voter turnout is a key factor in the planning of Republicans and Democrats for 1984 and there is bipartisan agreement that the battle for the White House could bring out the highest percentage of voters in 20 years.

Turnout cuts differently for the two parties. Traditionally, Democrats have had an easier time registering large numbers of potential supporters while Republicans could expect a higher percentage of their backers to show up at the polls.

"We've got to plan for higher turnouts and increase our numbers at the same time they increase theirs," said Linden Kettlewell, political director of the Republican National Committee.

"We've been a minority party for so long, we've almost allowed it to get a grip on us," said Mrs. Kettlewell. She cited the 1982 race for governor of Texas in which the Republican incumbent, William Clements, was a surprise loser, defeated by an unexpectedly high turnout among blacks and Hispanics.

"Bill Clements planned for a low turnout," she said.

She conceded that it is much more difficult for the GOP to find areas where there would be large blocs of dependably Republican supporters not yet registered to vote.

"There is much less of a predilection to identify yourself as a Republican in party registration," said Mrs. Kettlewell. That is why Republicans need to spend money on polls to identify likely GOP voters.

Democrats can go into black and Hispanic areas, as well as strong union communities and a high percentage of the people they register will be Democrats.

And there are signs that blacks and Hispanics, once registered, are voting.

By no means are Republican strategists, particularly at the White House, prepared to write off Hispanics as solidly Democratic. Reagan always has run well ahead of most Republicans in Hispanic areas and his political advisers talk about the potential the president could receive between 30 percent and 40 percent of the Hispanic vote in 1984.

For nearly two decades, politicians and political scientists have bemoaned the declining participation of Americans in elections.

Less than 55 percent of the voting age population went to the polls in 1980, continuing a steady decline from 1960 when it was more than 60 percent.

Political strategists in both parties are predicting that the percentage next year could reach 58.

Just One More Time

The president replied, "No, I didn't want to upset her until they started pouring the concrete over the roses. I'd like everyone to take a test as soon as this meeting is over. A leak like this could start a panic in the country."

"Sir, wouldn't it be easier to have a lie detector machine in the Cabinet room so we could find out who was lying right on the spot?" Deaver suggested.

"No," the president replied. "We'd be so busy taking tests we'd never get any work done. Were there any results on the leak to the Washington Post of what the deficit was really going to be in 1985?"

"Nothing concrete. The FBI polygraph director said he caught people lying about other things, but everyone came out clean on the budget deficit," Meese reported.

"Well, someone leaked it," the president said.

Deaver said, "The director was wondering if you might consent to taking a test to make his investigation complete."

"I've never leaked anything to the Post in my life," Mr. Reagan thundered. "Besides, whoever heard of a president of the United States submitting to a lie detector test?"

"It would be very bad politically," Meese agreed. "Particularly since the media would demand the results of the test."

Jim Baker and Bill Casey came in to the room.

"How did you do?" Deaver asked them.

Baker was smiling. "I passed with flying colors."

Everyone looked at Casey. He said, "My lawyers assure me when I told the lie detector I couldn't remember seeing the briefing book I was telling the truth."

Baker said, "I'll bet."

"All right," said the president, "let's knock it off. We all know there is a mole in the White House and I'm going to find out who it is if it's the last thing I do. Are there any other methods of getting the truth out of people besides a polygraph test?"

Casey said, "The CIA has other methods."

"What are they?" the president asked.

"Well, for one thing, we could put the electrodes on other parts of the body."

Everyone looked at the president in horror.

"I'd rather not go that route at the moment," Mr. Reagan said. "If the media got wind of it they would say I didn't trust my staff."

Strength For Today

The great artist, Murillo, once found that he had suddenly run out of canvas on which to paint. A friend, sitting with him in his studio, jokingly threw a napkin to him and said, "Paint on this."

Taking the friend at his word, Murillo painted a famous Madonna on the napkin which now adorns the altar of a cathedral.

We are told in Exodus that when the Lord appeared to Moses and instructed him to lead the children of Israel out of their captivity in Egypt, Moses murmured, saying that he had no ability or equipment for such a task. "What hast thou in thy hand," asked the Lord. Moses replied, "A rod." And with this Moses carried out his great task.

The lesson is that if we take what we have and make the best of it we can often accomplish things we previously thought impossible. For Moses the humble rod became an instrument of liberty; for Murillo the napkin became a masterpiece.

Alcohol Ads Bring Complaints

Commission for a number of new curbs that would virtually ban many beer and wine ads. Unfortunately, no matter how one assesses Billy Martin's bar room antics, extremism in the defense of sobriety is as much a vice as alcohol itself.

This isn't an attempt to ignore or trivialize the concern that drives the ban-the-booze-ad movement. Alcohol abuse or addiction afflicts an estimated 13 million Americans and, indirectly, an untold number of families. According to government figures, it's involved in more than half of the nation's murders, rapes, assaults, suicides and traffic deaths; by some estimates it costs the economy more than $100 billion yearly. For many people, the concern is obvious.

"It's unconscionable to allow the continuation of massive promotions for alcoholic beverages that completely whitewash these tragic results," said David Greenberg of the Consumer Federation of America, one petitioning organization. To that end, Greenberg's and other groups want the FTC to prohibit all "youth-oriented" marketing of alcoholic beverages and all broadcast and print advertising aimed at or reaching large numbers of young people and heavy drinkers. The petitioners, which also include The Children's Foundation and National Women's Health Network, would also require that "balanced messages" accompany any advertisements permitted under the new standards.

Such actions would probably affect not only Martin, former football terror Dick Butkus, comedian Rodney Dangerfield and the other celebrities who've made second careers in the $1-billion-a-year booze promotion business. Losers would also include the television networks, who earned more than $500 million on beer and wine advertising last year. There would be none of the beer-company-sponsored events that college students have come to consider part of their undergraduate experience. For their part, America's alcoholic beverage producers have indulged in a promotional orgy that's touched every facet of our culture and maximized virtually every stereotype.

Yet amid a wine glut and static beer sales (up only one-tenth of a percent last year), the promotional frenzy more likely reflects desperate competition for the drinker's dollar. Though the major U.S. brands of wine and beer would like to stress their differences in taste, it's jingles that divide the pack.

What's more, even George Hacker of the Center of Science in the Public Interest, which helped organize the anti-booze and coalition admits that the linkage between alcohol beverage advertising and alcohol-related tragedies "is difficult, if not impossible, to establish."

Of course, local interests may have the day when the Supreme Court decides next year on the constitutionality of an Oklahoma state ban against promotions for all alcoholic beverages but beer.

Slight Change In Leaf Loans

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Commodity Credit Corp. has decided to implement a slight change in interest calculations on loans to tobacco farmer cooperatives after rejecting proposals for wide-sweeping changes, officials said.

Fred G. Bond, manager of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. in Raleigh, said Friday that the tobacco program had averted a change "that would have been disastrous."

Sen. Thomas Eagleton,

D-Mo., and the Office of Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Agriculture had said that Stabilization and other tobacco cooperatives should start repaying loans to the Commodity Credit Corp. on the same basis that the CCC repays the money it borrows from the U.S. Treasury.

That would have required the tobacco program to pay compounded interest on its loans semi-annually. The inspector general's office estimated that such a change would add $95 million to Stabilization's interest cost on the 1982 crop alone.

Eagleton said the way the tobacco cooperatives now repay loans amounts to a subsidy of the program outlawed by 1982 legislation, which said the tobacco program must operate at no net cost to taxpayers except for administrative costs.

With funds borrowed from the CCC, Stabilization lends money to farmers whose tobacco fails at auction to bring a bid higher than the federal price support level. Stabilization repays the CCC after it sells the tobacco.

In a letter to Eagleton released Friday, CCC Executive Vice President Everett G. Rank said the corporation would not implement a "substantive change" in its interest procedures.

The change to be implemented Jan. 1, Rank said, will require that all loan repayments be applied both to principal and interest at the same time. Rank did not say how much interest would be required along with principal payments.

"It is going to increase the costs," said Hoke Leggett Jr., associate administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. "But I don't think it will be a big thing."

Court To Rule On Draft Registration

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether male college students applying for federal loans or grants must prove they have registered with Selective Service.

The court will review a ruling by a federal judge in Minnesota that struck down the government's draft status disclosure rule as unconstitutional.

There is no draft currently, but registration resumed three years ago. Selective Service officials say that nearly 11 million young men, about 96.5 percent of those eligible, have registered in those three years.

The law reactivating draft registration was signed by then-President Jimmy Carter in 1980, and required all male citizens and resident aliens between ages 18 and 26 to notify Selective Service.

The law, aimed at making it easier to draft young men if that becomes necessary, requires all men born after Jan. 1, 1963 to register within 30 days before or after their 18th birthday.

There are criminal penalties for not complying.

Last year, Congress passed legislation, signed into law by President Reagan, that disqualifies from any federal loan or grant program any male college student who has not met his legal obligation to register.

The law was challenged by six Minnesota college students, sparking a ruling by U.S. District Judge Donald L. Alsop in St. Paul last June 17 that the law is an unconstitutional form of punishment.

He ordered the government not to enforce the law, but the Supreme Court 12 days later set aside the effect of the order pending the outcome of the appeal acted on today.

The proof-of-registration law took effect Sept. 30, and in early October the government for the first time in eight years began issuing draft cards to those men who registered with Selective Service.

Unlike the earlier cards, burned by the thousands in anti-Vietnam war protests, the new ones do not have to be carried at all times. Selective Service officials said the new cards are being offered as a convenience for men called on to prove they have registered.

The Labor Department in October advised young men who want to participate in a new job-training program that they, too, will be required to show proof of draft registration.

In other action today, the court:

—Refused to reverse the conviction of former New Jersey Sen. Harrison A. Williams, who faces a three-year prison term for his conviction in the FBI's Abscam operation. Without comment, the court left the conviction intact. Williams had argued that FBI agents posing as Arab sheiks induced him into accepting a bribe.

—Left intact rulings that California and other states may impose taxes on foreign-based corporations doing business within their borders. Netherlands-based Shell Petroleum N.V. challenged such taxes on behalf of its American subsidiaries.

—For the second time this year, cleared the way for a trial in a Detroit housewife's lawsuit against ABC over a 1977 news program she says insinuated she was a prostitute. The justices rejected the network's appeal aimed at forcing a federal appeals court to retry whether the controversy should reach a jury. The woman was photographed down a public street in an ABC documentary about prostitution.

—Permitted radio and television stations in California to air commercials paid for by the tobacco industry without identifying the industry as sponsor.

In his ruling on the draft last June, Judge Alsop called the proof-of-registration law a constitutionally impermissible "bill of attainder" — a law that legislatively determines someone's guilt and assesses punishment without that person ever receiving a trial.

In seeking Supreme Court review, government lawyers argued that the law "makes benefits available to all qualified students who register at any time before applying."

But lawyers for the six Minnesota students said the government was ignoring the law's 30-days-after-18th birthday deadline and depending on regulations used to implement the law.

"The regulations promulgated by the Department of Education can only be viewed as the agency's post mortem attempt to cure an otherwise unconstitutional statute," they said.

Alsop said the regulations contradicted the law's plain meaning.

He also ruled that the 1982 law could lead violate some students' right against self-incrimination by forcing them to admit to breaking the draft-registration law or to lie about their draft status.

The government's appeal was opposed by two universities and two colleges — the University of Minnesota, Wayne State University, Macalester College and Swarthmore College.

California Tax Allowed Stand

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today steered clear of a raging international business controversy over the power of American states to impose worldwide taxes on foreign-based corporations doing business within their borders.

The justices without comment left intact rulings that the Netherlands-based Shell Petroleum N.V. has no legal right to challenge, on behalf of its American subsidiaries, California's "unitary tax."

The tax system used by California — and at least 22 other states — allows it to collect hundreds of millions in extra taxes from multinational corporations doing business in the state.

The unitary tax is based on the worldwide income of a corporation and its subsidiaries, not just on how much money the corporation claims to make within one state.

For example, the unitary tax allows California to calculate in-state business of Shell Oil Co., a subsidiary of Shell Petroleum N.V., as a percentage of the corporation's over-all business to come with a state tax bill.

The Supreme Court last June 27 upheld California's tax as imposed on U.S.-based corporations and their foreign subsidiaries.

But the court left unresolved whether the tax scheme is constitutional when imposed on foreign-based corporations with American subsidiaries.

That is the issue Shell Petroleum had hoped to raise until a federal judge in California and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the corporation had no legal standing to do so.

Those rulings sparked the Supreme Court appeal acted on today — one that focused on the issue of standing rather than on the legality of the unitary tax.

"This case clearly presents the question whether a state such as California has the legal power under the Constitution ... treaties and international law to impose unitary taxation," lawyers for Shell Petroleum said.

Injuries Fatal

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — A Martin County native died Friday afternoon in Virginia Beach General Hospital of injuries sustained in an automobile accident here Friday morning.

Virginia Beach Police Officer D.C. Lackey identified the traffic accident victim as Dixie Rogerson King, 41, of Virginia Beach. He said her car was found wrecked at 3:40 a.m. Friday, having hit a tree off Shore Drive here. She had sustained multiple injuries in the accident, he said.

Personality Tests Tell If Teenager Drug-Prone

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Psychologists can accurately predict which teen-agers will take up cigarettes, alcohol and marijuana by administering personality tests when the youngsters are still in junior high school, a study shows.

The researchers found that the most rebellious youngsters are also the most likely to turn to heavy pot use in high school.

They tested the children's attitudes toward authority and good behavior and came up with a "socialization" score for each pupil.

"Where you are at an early age on the scale of socialization predicts with significant accuracy where you will be three years later in your use of drugs in high school," said Dr. Gene M. Smith of Massachusetts General Hospital. "This same scale also differentiates those who will become users of the legal drugs — cigarettes and alcohol — from those who will not."

Smith said the test might be used to spot susceptible children early. However, adults must be careful when using these exams, because youngsters may turn to the illicit substances even more quickly if they know they have a drug-prone personality. But he said that proper counseling should be able to stop some of these youngsters' slide into drug use.

The research, published recently in the journal Contemporary Drug Problems, is one of a series of reports resulting from a major 13-year study of the behavior of 15,000 children in six middle-class Boston suburbs.

In the latest analysis, the researchers examined the results of 1,474 pupils from four junior high schools who were tested in 1969. Followup studies were conducted three years later and again in 1980 when the young people had reached their 20s.

Youngsters with low scores described themselves as being willing to lie, cheat, hurt others, break rules and disobey their parents.

The adolescents also rated all the other pupils in their home rooms. The ones with low scores were described by their classmates as being disobedient, rebellious, impulsive, irresponsible, untrustworthy, disorganized, insensitive and lacking in motivation.

When they compiled a final score for each child, the researchers also figured in the pupil's school grades and attitudes toward cigarettes.

None of the youngsters smoked, drank or used pot in junior high.

Those with the kinds of personalities that adults like best scored highest on the tests. They still shunned cigarettes, booze and marijuana when they were in high school.

Those who scored a bit lower dabbled with alcohol and cigarettes in high school but did not try pot.

When scores were still lower, the youngsters became infrequent users of marijuana in high school. And the ones with the lowest scores of all smoked pot often.

When those tests were administered more than a decade ago, about a quarter of the pupils never drank, smoked or sampled marijuana during high school. Smith says he suspects the results would be different if youngsters were tested today.

"I would guess that we would have fewer kids who make it all the way to the high school level without having a taste of the forbidden fruit," he said.

Even though specific taboos may change, Smith says he believes that measuring youngsters' early attitudes toward authority will still foreshadow their actions as they grow older.

"I think that characteristics that have to do with one's willingness to be a good citizen and obey the rules have been an important determinant of human behavior since the beginning of society and probably always will be," he said.

The Good News And Bad News

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The good news was a Forsyth County business soared in value from $250,000 to more than $800 million. The bad news was the clerical error was discovered before the owner had a chance to sell.

W. Harvey Pardue, county tax supervisor, said the error was "an embarrassment," but it was caught in time to prevent a larger one.

"It's just one of those things you're likely to encounter when you're dealing with 112,000 records," he said Friday. "One thing about making an error, you ought to make one big enough to be found."

With the correct figures back in place, Clemmonsville Township is worth $264 million, not $1 billion. And property values have risen 79 percent in eight years — not 651 percent.

When they compiled a final score for each child, the researchers also figured in the pupil's school grades and attitudes toward cigarettes.

None of the youngsters smoked, drank or used pot in junior high.

Those with the kinds of personalities that adults like best scored highest on the tests. They still shunned

Superchicken

In 1970, Perdue Farms began crossbreeding for a better broiler. Since then, the White Rock Cornish hybrid has grown more meaty and tender through genetics and nutrition. For the growers, these and other advancements have meant improved feed conversion, faster growing flocks, and extra pay for a better product. For example, in 1973 it took 60 days to produce a 4.4 lb. broiler. Today it takes only 52 days.

Perdue still spends more than most companies on research and quality control. In the highly competitive poultry business, standing still won't keep you ahead. That's why Perdue's veterinarians, nutritionists, and geneticists keep working to develop a "Superchicken." In the meantime, the market for Perdue's superior chicken increases every year. In fact we're planning to open a second shift at our Robersonville processing plant to help us meet this growing demand. As a result of our expansion, Perdue needs 145 more broiler houses. So if you're a North Carolina farmer who'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-4151 or send in the coupon below.

Hearings Next Year Over Inlet Jetties

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Both houses of Congress have scheduled hearings for next year on the controversial proposal to construct two stone jetties at Oregon Inlet.

Environmentalists still are debating the wisdom of building the mile-long jetties. They say the walls will trap sand needed to replenish beaches farther south on North Carolina's Outer Banks.

Fishermen respond that they can't make a living if they can't navigate a clear channel from Pamlico Sound to the Atlantic Ocean.

Last week, 27 lawmakers signed a letter strongly opposing the House version of a bill to transfer 90 acres needed to anchor the jetties from the Interior Department to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Versions of the bill are stalled in both the House and Senate.

The Interior Department opposes the transfer and jetties because the land is part of the Pea Island National Wildlife Refuge and the Cape Hatteras National Seashore.

The Manteo Bay Project, as the jetty plan is known in Washington, D.C., was projected to cost $11 million in 1970 when first conceived by the Corps of Engineers to keep the inlet from becoming choked with shifting sands.

That figure has grown to $110 million — with another $600 million needed to maintain the jetties for 50 years.

Blame Referendum Results On Agents

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A liquor-by-the-drink referendum called and passed with the help of undercover FBI agents has been invalidated by the North Carolina Board of Elections.

The board unanimously agreed Saturday that without FBI intervention, the April 30, 1982, vote in Bolton never would have taken place, said Chairman Robert Spearman.

Board members also said they did not think it proper for the FBI to be funding one side in a political election.

The referendum passed by a 136-76 vote.

Former County Commissioner Ed Walton Williamson and Bolton political leader Herbert Riggins both testified the referendum was initiated by two FBI agents posing as criminals who proposed to open a bar in Bolton as part of their cover.

Williamson and Riggins have pleaded guilty to political corruption charges related to the referendum. Both admitted taking money from the agents to help get the referendum passed.

"If they hadn't asked me to do it, it wouldn't have happened," Williamson said.

J.C. Hines, a Bolton bar owner, testified the undercover agents offered him $10,000 to renovate his bar if he would help get liquor-by-the-drink passed.

FBI agents Robert Drak and Bradley Hoferkamp were subpoenaed to testify, but U.S. Attorney Sam Curran refused to let them. In a letter to Spearman, he said the agents would not answer the subpoenas under an exception allowed by federal law.

However, documents containing testimony from trials resulting from the investigation were turned over to the Board of Elections.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠983 ♦AKJ76 ♣A10754

Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A. — If you follow point count slavishly, you will probably come to the conclusion that your hand is worth a raise to three clubs. We feel that this jump would be an underbid. There are many minimum hands your partner could hold that would offer excellent play for slam. To investigate the possibilities properly, we suggest that you start with a jump shift of two diamonds. Naturally, you will support clubs at your next turn, vigorously if necessary.

Q.2 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AJ6 ♥A10982 ♦7 ♣KJ65

The bidding has proceeded: North East South 1♦ 2♦ ?

What action do you take?

A. — It is seldom a good idea to make a low-level penalty double when your side has game-going values and you have a fit for your partner's suit. Therefore, we would eschew the double of two clubs in favor of getting to game. We would start by responding two hearts. Since a new suit by responder is forcing on opener, nothing more is required of us now.

Q.3 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQ10962 ♥Q84 ♦954 ♣8

Partner opens the bidding with three no trump. What do you respond?

A. — If you and your partner have a way of asking for aces over a three no trump opening bid, by all means go ahead and use your methods. If you do not, we suggest that you make the value bid of six spades. Partner rates to have three aces but even if he does not, you might get away with the bid if the opponents fail to cash their two aces right away.

Q.4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AKJ ♥Q983 ♦AQ10952

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North 1♦ Dble 2♦ Pass Pass Dble Pass 2♦

What action do you take?

A. — You have forced partner to bid, and he has obliged with what could be a worthless hand with only four spades. Therefore, to either raise spades or pass is risky — in a spade contract partner might lose control of the hand if he is forced to ruff clubs with your high trumps. Bid three diamonds to see how partner reacts. If he passes, you are undoubtedly in the best spot. If he rebids spades, showing a long suit, gamble on game.

Q.5 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠6 ♥K1087 ♦QJ853 ♣J52

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♦ 4♦ Pass Pass

Dble Pass ?

What action do you take?

A. — Had your partner wanted you to bid unconditionally, he could have bid four no trump instead of doubling. His decision to double is primarily for penalties. Since you have some useful defensive assets, you should be quite content to pass.

Q.6 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠95 ♥84 ♦65 ♣AKQ10876

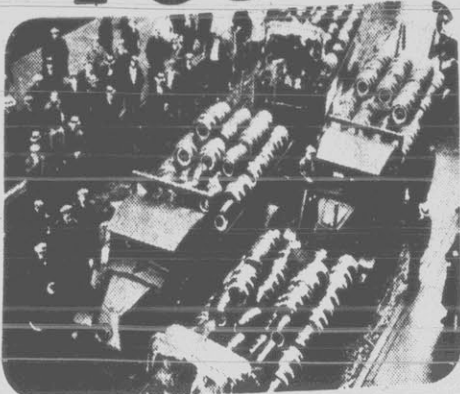

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North 1♦ 2♦ Pass 2NT

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A. — We are going to suggest a course of action that might, at first, seem rather bold. Raise to three no trump. You are bringing partner seven sure tricks so, unless your opponents can take five fast tricks, partner should be a shoo-in for nine tricks at no

Drink Up

Fifty years ago today, liquor prohibition was abolished when Utah became the 30th state to ratify the 21st Amendment. The 18th Amendment actually did not prohibit drinking. It only forbade the "manufacture, sale, or transportation" of liquor. During Prohibition, some breweries made milk. Coors made malted milk for use in candy bars like "Milky Way".

Compensation Said Too Low

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Survivors of a November 1980 plant explosion that killed two people and injured 50 say workers' compensation isn't providing enough money to live decently.

Judy Darlene Brown, Doris Starrett of Matthews and Rita Guy of Lenoir were hospitalized for three months for burns that covered 55 percent to 85 percent of their bodies after the blast at Radiator Specialty Co. of Indian Trail.

The women's compensation — ranging from $85 to $104 a week — amounts to two-thirds of their last week's pay on the job.

Ms. Starrett has retained an attorney to seek an extension of the three-year statute of limitations for filing suit in the accident. All three face hearings next year before the N.C. Industrial Commission on whether they are permanently disabled. If the commission allows only partial disability, they could receive what they're getting now for several years.

Go To Jail If No Beard

LAPLACE, La. (AP) — Men in this town had better grow beards or they'll land in jail — and they won't go to the jail, it will come to them. Three hundred of LaPlace's most prominent men have been asked to show up Dec. 11 in top hats and flashy beards, part of a contest celebrating the town's 100th anniversary. The object is to get the men looking as much as possible like the people who lived here back in 1883. Even St. Charles High School is full of facial fuzz, though it's generally forbidden for students at the Roman Catholic school. "We're not supposed to have beards, but we thought that in the spirit of the centennial it would be nice," says Principal C.J. Tastet. He is growing a beard for the occasion, but his students have been told theirs will have to be shaved off by the time they come back from Christmas vacation. Many aren't waiting that long. "I just didn't like it," said Kyle Bourgeois. "It kind of itched."

Those who still have beards will be judged — with the businessmen and politicians and anyone else who cares to join the contest — on Dec. 17. Judges will award trophies for best beards — including funniest and longest. Later in the day, says centennial chairman Joe "Tardy" Lucia, a "jail" will be paraded through the streets in search of the beardless. Men without facial hair will get the choice of incarceration or a $25 "fine," which will help pay for the celebration.

Kremlin Officials...

NATO deployment started. Any other thought, he said, was "wishful thinking." "The Soviet Union, naturally, would not like to think the obtaining situation is irreversible," Korniienko said. "If on the part of the NATO countries, readiness is shown to go back to the situation that existed before the beginning of the deployment ... then the Soviet Union will be also prepared to do that." Ogarkov said "The U. S. administration did not want a mutually acceptable accord on nuclear arms in Europe and did all it can to avoid such an accord. It seems that it is now seeking the same objective at the negotiations on the reduction and limitation of strategic arms." Ogarkov later pointed out that the medium-range talks had broken down — blaming the United States once again, then said the strategic talks were "moving in the same direction."

Korniienko criticized Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany for statements indicating the Soviets might return to the talks even with the new NATO missiles in place. Korniienko said "one should, indeed, have a very very rich gift of fantasy to believe this." He said Kohl distorted a statement by Andropov, interpreting only the part that said the Soviets hoped the present situation was not irreversible and ignoring the rest — which conditioned renewed talks on a return to the pre-deployment status. Behind the three officials was a huge diagram outlining Soviet and U.S. proposals made at arms talks in Geneva and the Soviet count of warheads, missiles and aircraft the two sides have pointed at each other. Ogarkov stood in front of the diagram and gave the Soviet view of the different proposals put forth by both sides during the arms talks. The Soviet Union has deployed 360 triple-warhead SS-20 medium-range missiles and has targeted about two-thirds of that arsenal against Western Europe. As a counter-measure, NATO agreed to and has started deploying 572 U.S.-built Pershing 2 and cruise missiles, each armed with one warhead. Ogarkov, under questioning from a West German reporter, defended Moscow's SS-20 deployment, claiming it was a modernization of nuclear forces and not an attempt to gain superiority in Europe. The general conceded that the Soviets, before the start of the NATO deployment, had a 10 percent edge in medium-range nuclear delivery systems but said NATO had a 50 percent advantage in warheads. NATO, before deployment, had no nuclear missiles in Europe capable of hitting the Soviet Union. Ogarkov's counting conflicts with NATO's contention that British and French nuclear missiles arsenals are not alliance weapons. Counting those 162 missiles and 695 bombers and fighters with nuclear weapons, Ogarkov said NATO has 857 nuclear delivery vehicles. The Soviets, he said, have a total of 938 such vehicles, 465 bombers and 473 missiles. Today's news conference, broadcast live on CNN television in the United States, was carried on Moscow radio, but not on Soviet television. The same three Soviet officials also conducted a news conference Sept. 9 to explain the Kremlin's position following the Sept. 1 downing of a Korean Air Lines jetliner by Soviet air-to-air missiles. All 269 people aboard the KAL plane were killed when the plane was shot down over Soviet airspace.

2nd Arrest Took Family

MIAMI (AP) — Hodges Rumph landed in jail twice in 16 hours over the weekend — but the second time he took his mother, sister, niece and cousin with him. Rumph was allegedly fleeing from police at 4:30 a.m. Saturday when he ran into his house and right into his mother's bedroom. The police followed. "I was in bed asleep," said Leila Mae Rumph, 51. "I told the police they had no business in my house." She said she tried to push them out, but was "shoved" aside. "All of the residents of the house got into a big fight with police in an effort to keep Rumph from being taken into custody," said Metro-Dade police officer Doug Reese. Mrs. Rumph was charged with battery on a police officer and violently resisting arrest. Besides her son, Hodges, her daughter Linda, 16, granddaughter Lasavne, 16, nephew Martin Jackson, 26, and Henry Nelson, 20, were also arrested for resisting arrest without violence. Hodges Rumph had already been arrested for trespassing on Friday. Authorities said when he was spotted allegedly loitering early Saturday, officers tried to question him and he headed for his mother's house with police in pursuit. As a result of the melee, one officer was knocked unconscious and another received a broken kneecap, police said.

SUICIDE WARNING

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A chemical found in the spinal column may help doctors identify potentially suicidal patients and intervene to save their lives. Researchers at Karolinska Hospital say the chemical, called 5HIAA, exists in particularly low levels among patients suffering from severe depression, and that patients suffering from low 5HIAA levels are twice as likely to attempt or commit suicide.

Lions On Guard

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — A security guard in the nearby town of Casoria had more faith in big cats than watchdogs, police said Sunday. Officers making a check of a liquid gas storage site on Saturday night were greeted by the roar of two lions on guard duty. Watchman Pasquale Renzi later said he bought the animals from a traveling circus for $200 and raised them to help him guard because they made him "feel more secure." The lions, which had been kept in a shed in the storage site, were turned over to the Naples Zoo on Sunday.

Avian Flu Said Near Control

BALTIMORE (AP) — An outbreak of avian influenza that has forced the slaughter of almost 4 million chickens in southeastern Pennsylvania may be under control by next week because of the excellent cooperation of poultry farmers, health officials say. Police and government inspectors in the Lancaster, Pa., area are enforcing a strict quarantine at farms where the disease has been reported. They have also killed some 3.9 million infected birds. Pat Quinn of the New Jersey Agriculture Department said Sunday that an outbreak in Salem County last month was an isolated incident, but a quarantine in much of southern New Jersey will continue through December.

Beirut...

Asked when Goodman would be freed, Tlass said: "Like in all wars, when war is over. That is when the Americans will leave Lebanon." Two former Israeli air force commanders, in interviews with the Tel Aviv newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth, criticized the performance of the U.S. pilots during Sunday's bombing raid. "The American pilots yesterday paid for their lack of operational experience," Maj. Gen. Benny Peled. Added Maj. Gen. Mordechai Hod, "On a purely military level, the American operation cannot be called a success." The car bombing occurred about 8 a.m. today, and Lebanon's state radio said at least 10 people were killed and 84 injured in a blast that set huge fires in several blocks of the residential district. Police said a 330-pound bomb was believed to have been in a Renault 12 car and that an undetermined number of people were believed trapped in the building. The blast, which occurred about 200 yards from the Mokassab hospital, shattered windows and sent up huge billows of black smoke that hampered rescue efforts, police said. The Marine base shelling claimed the heaviest U.S. death toll since the Oct. 23 suicide truck bomb attack that killed 239 servicemen at the base. By unofficial counts, a total of 254 U.S. servicemen have died in hostile action in Lebanon this year. Marine Brig. Gen. James Joy, commander of the U.S. contingent, said the eight Marines were killed by a single large mortar round, probably a 120 mm round, that struck near the base. He declined to identify the exact location. "One round hit on top of a position and the ten casualties are the result of that single round." But Lebanese army soldiers at a site known as Checkpoint 76 said the deaths occurred there. The checkpoint is about 150 yards east of the main base at Beirut International Airport and is close to a Pepsi Cola bottling plant. The U.S.-Lebanese checkpoint is about 200 yards from a Druse militia checkpoint on the road into the Druse stronghold of Shweifat, southeast of the Marine compound. The Marines fired back with 155mm artillery, M-60 tanks, heavy machine guns and small arms while U.S. warships also pounded the sources of fire in the hills overlooking the base. "It got quiet around 11 p.m. and has been quiet since," Marine spokesman Capt. Wayne Jones, said today. He said the 1,600 Marines, who are serving with the multinational peacekeeping force, remained on their highest state of alert. In Washington, a White House official said "it was logical to assume" the artillery attack was in response to the American air strike. Asked who was firing at the Marine base, the Western diplomatic source said "apparently everybody," indicating the attacks were mounted by both Druse militiamen in the hills and their Shiite Moslem allies in Beirut's southern suburbs. Although the hills above the base are mostly controlled by Druse anti-government militiamen, Jones said the Marines were unable to determine who fired on them. The Druse rebels led by Jumblatt are allied with Syria, as are Shiite Moslems who control Beirut's southern neighborhoods facing Marine positions. President Amin Gemayel returned today from the United States where he had talks with President Reagan on peacemaking efforts in Lebanon, the state radio said. The U.S. air strike apparently angered Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, who said in a statement, "it is a dangerous indicator. We reject everything that makes our territory a battleground." Wazzan called in Robert Pugh, U.S. charge d'affaires, and "requested an explanation about the raid," an official statement said, indicating the Lebanese government was not informed of the air attack in advance. In Washington, Reagan, who approved the air raid, said Sunday, "We don't seek hostilities there. But we are going to defend our forces there." The Pentagon said 28 jets staged the attack and a two-man A-6 jet and a single pilot A-7 aircraft were downed and one flier was rescued.

Standoff Over Budget Surplus

NEW YORK (AP) — A standoff over how to spend a $1 billion budget surplus expected for New York City over the next five years ended when Mayor Ed Koch and Gov. Mario Cuomo agreed to modify their positions, city and state officials say. The surplus will be generated by the Municipal Assistance Corp., which was created during the city's 1975 fiscal crisis to sell federally guaranteed bonds as a bailout. Officials said Sunday that the agreement would make the funds available to the city as direct aid for the operating budget, support for capital construction projects and investment in key economic development. The compromise came when Koch dropped his demand that the money be used to pay off the bonds by December 1984 and Cuomo assured him the state was not seeking to control the economic development portion of the funds.

Hunger Strike By 3 Refugees

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Three men who escaped communist Poland as stowaways say they have begun a hunger strike while awaiting a decision on whether they will be granted political asylum in the United States. The men, who landed in the United States last week aboard a Dart Container Line Inc. cargo ship, were already denied asylum, but immigration officials are reconsidering, said Dart President Conrad Everhard. The ship was returning to Newark, N.J. briefly today before steaming for England, and the refugees will be forced to leave the country if asylum is not granted. In a message to reporters Saturday, the men said they began fasting Thursday to show "we are ready for everything to be allowed to stay."

ITHACA, N.Y. Paul A. Cohodes, 20, of Highland Park, Ill., was trying to jump from a fourth-floor hallway into an elevator stopped between the fourth and fifth floors Saturday night after his companions pried open the doors and dared him, college spokesman John Lippincot said. Lady 'Niners Bolt Past ECU, 56-50

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
UNC Charlotte, trailing by 14 points midway the first half, rallied to take a 56-50 victory over East Carolina's Lady Pirates Sunday afternoon in Minges Coliseum.

Just when it seemed that the Lady Pirates might be putting it all together, they suddenly stopped rebounding and shooting and scored only one more point in the remaining nine minutes of the half. Charlotte, meanwhile, using a balanced attack, pushed through 17 points and took a 28-26 lead at the half.

The Lady Pirates moved back out by as much as three points, 31-28 early in the second half, but the Lady 'Niners finally took the lead for good on a Marguerite Parker layup with 9:41 left, making it 37-36 and the Lady Pirates never caught up again.

East Carolina, which dropped its second straight, wasn't plagued by turnovers — as it was against Fayetteville State when it had 26. They had only 13 against UNCC, while forcing 19.

But the 'Niners totally dominated the boards, 45-27, led by Sylvia Akers' 11 and Parker's 8. ECU was led by Darlene Hedges eight and Annette Phillips with seven.

"We did a nice job most of the time," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "We just didn't pull away when we had the chance. I was worried about the substitution situation and I knew foul trouble would hurt us. But we did play under control, and I'm happy about that. We corrected our turnovers, but we didn't hit the boards like we have been doing."

Unable to get offensive rebounds hurt the Lady Pirates, and in the stretch, UNCC grabbed off its misses and put them back for scores, pushing out to as much as an eight point lead late in the contest.

East Carolina also shot poorly, hitting just 38.5 percent of its shots, including just 37 percent in the second half. UNCC canned 42.6 percent with 43.4 in the second half.

The big difference, however, came at the foul line. ECU made only 10 of 15, while UNCC got 16 of 30.

The Lady Pirates used a different starting lineup than usual, substituting Lynn Nance for Sylvia Bragg and Anita Anderson for Lisa Squirewell.

Squirewell was not at the game, and Andruzzi said she did not know where she was, just that she hadn't shown up for the contest.

East Carolina opened the game as if all was right and it was going to be a blowaway. Annette Phillips hit two free throws and Delphine Mabry followed with a jumper.

Candy Lucas, averaging 23 points a game, and held to only 13 by Mabry, got a free throw to open the UNCC scoring.

"Delphine had an outstanding game," Andruzzi said, "both offensively and defensively."

ECU continued to pull away, building its lead steadily until it finally reached 25-11 with 9:32 remaining when Bragg hit on a jumper.

But the Pirates scored only one more free throw — that by Mabry at the 6:16 mark — while UNCC put on its rally that finally tied it up at 26-26 with 48 seconds left on a jumper by Kristen Wilson. Parker added two free throws with 31 seconds left for a 28-26 halftime lead by the 'Niners.

Mabry tied it up early, and Bragg hit the first of two free throws for a 29-38 lead. Mabry followed with a layup to make it 31-28.

But the Lady Pirates were unable to sustain the lead and Charlotte twice moved back on top and tied it once before taking the lead for good on a Parker follow-shot with 10:12 remaining, 37-36.

East Carolina tried to struggle back, but couldn't regain the lead while Charlotte used a Wilson layup and a free throw by Akers to up the lead to 40-36.

The lead finally reached eight at 52-44, and once more reached it at 56-48 before Phillips hit the final basket of the game with two seconds left.

Parker led the UNCC scoring with 16 points, while Lucas had 13 and Akers and Wilson each had 10.

East Carolina was led by Mabry with 19, while Phillips had 13.

The loss dropped the Lady Pirates to 2-3 on the year. The Lady Pirates are idle until Saturday night when they host James Madison in their first ECAC-South game of the year at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Martin Not Aware If Steinbrenner Has Made Change

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Billy Martin does not believe the reports that he is about to be fired again.

"Newspaper propaganda" is what he called them in a telephone interview Sunday night.

"I have a contract with George Steinbrenner and I regard him as an honorable man," Martin told the Associated Press.

"When you give loyalty, you expect to get it in return. That's the reason I'm sure that George would not go back on his word. He has told me his word is his bond, and I believe him."

Martin, whose two previous tenures as Yankees manager since 1975 ended with him being fired and quitting just before Steinbrenner lowered the boom, has four years left on a five-year contract he signed last January.

That agreement, reportedly for $500,000 a year, made him one of baseball's highest paid managers.

Martin said from his home near Oakland, Calif., that he and his lawyer had met with the Yankees owner about a month ago, and, "George never once indicated that he was unhappy with the job I was doing. I haven't heard from him since then and I know that I would be the first one he would talk to if he intended to fire me."

Martin said he saw no clue into a possible firing in the fact he was not invited to the winter meetings, which began here today.

"Sometimes, a manager goes to these meetings but not when the club is pretty well set, the way our club is now. There was no reason for me to be there," he said.

Martin said he was amazed and by reports that he would be replaced Tuesday by Yankee coach Yogi Berra, who had managed both the Yankees and the New York Mets.

When told that Berra was not at the meetings, Martin said, "One of my coaches is there, Jeff Torborg. Maybe if George is going to make a change they are talking about the wrong coach."

"I haven't heard anything," Berra told RKO Radio Sports from his home in New Jersey.

Berra said he and Steinbrenner last talked on Thursday, and he said at that time, "Billy was still the manager. I have to be asked before I can say I want to be manager."

Friction has been reported between Martin and Torborg, a former Cleveland Indians manager, who has criticized Billy in media interviews.

Tabor, Goss Lead AP All-State Football List

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. — Charlotte Independence lineman Chuck Tabor was named on all but three ballots and Randleman running back Tony Goss claimed 21 of a possible 25 votes to pace The Associated Press all-state high school football team.

The team was selected by prep sportswriters from across the state and was based on regular-season performance.

Southern Durham placed the most players on the team — three — while three other teams had two players each. A total of 20 schools had players named to the squad.

Tabor, a 6-foot-5, 290-pound senior, led his team into the quarterfinals of the 4-A school football playoffs while Goss, a 6-4, 202-pound senior, led Randleman to its third straight 2-A title.

Goss gained 1,689 yards and scored 29 touchdowns.

Darryl McGill of Southern Durham and Carey Metts of Asheville Reynold join Goss at running back. Eastern Randolph's Alan Hooker, who led his team to the 3-A state title, was selected as quarterback.

McGill, a 5-10, 181-pound senior, rushed for 1,829 yards and scored 31 TDs and Metts, a 6-2, 200-pound senior, gained 1,379 yards and scored 18 TDs.

Hooker, a 6-2, 175-pound senior, gained 941 yards despite missing one game with an injury and also hit 37 of 93 passes for 772 yards and four touchdowns.

Fayetteville Reid Ross' Bill Carver and Asheville Erwin's Ronnie Ball were named the team's wide receivers. Carver, a 6-3, 190-pound senior, hauled in 27 catches for 636 yards and nine TDs. Ball, a 6-2, 185-pound senior, caught 58 passes for 664 yards.

Along with Tabor on offense are Southern Durham's Mike McClure, a 6-4, 224-pound senior, and Kevin Sowell, a 6-1, 231-pound senior. Northern Durham's Clifton Whicker, a 6-3, 260-pound senior, and F.T.

Foard's Grant Pitts, a 6-2, 235-pound senior.

Central Cabarrus lineman Lenny Rivera got the most votes — 21 — of any defensive player. Rivera, a 6-4, 225-pound senior, had 51 solo tackles and 40 assists.

Joining Rivera on the defensive front are Jacksonville's Scotty Arnold, a 6-1, 223-pound senior; SouthWest Edgecombe's J.R. Jenkins, a 6-2, 262-pound senior; Greensboro Page's Mike Pascucci, a 6-2, 255-pound senior; and Havelock's Leon Station, a 6-0, 180-pound senior.

Arnold spearheaded a Jacksonville defense that recorded a school-record eight shutouts this season while Jenkins averaged eight tackles per game and had six sacks.

Staton had 89 unassisted tackles and 14 tackles for losses, including six sacks.

Henry Carter, a 6-0, 173-pound senior, of Gastonia Huss and Mark Pittman of SouthWest Edgecombe tied for the top linebacker slot while Ricky Shaw of Fayetteville Byrd and Mickey Hayes of Henderson Vance tied for the third linebacker position.

Pittman, a 6-0, 173-pound senior, averaged 12 to 15 tackles a game while recovering seven fumbles — three in one game — and intercepting five passes.

Shaw, a 6-4, 212-pound senior, scored two TDs on defense.

Moreno Takes First, Set For State Meet

MATTHEWS — Kerri Moreno took first place in the balance beam and floor exercise, then tallied a 63.25 for first place in the all-around competition at the State Qualifying Meet at the Matthews Gymnastics Academy this weekend.

Moreno, Peggy Becker and Dana White qualified for the State Championships which will be held in March.

Moreno was competing for the first time in Class I after competing at the Class II Regionals in Hattiesburg, Miss. and the Junior Olympics in South Bend, Ind. last year.

Becker, competing in Class II, took first place on the beam with 15.95, second in floor exercise with 16.95 and fourth on the uneven parallel bars with 15.05 for an all-around total of 62.95.

Turner's total of 50.60 qualified her for the Class III championships. She finished third in the vault and fifth in the remaining three disciplines.

Tracy Sumrell took third in the all-around of the 9-11 year old Class III competition, while Nancy Johnson was fourth in the 15-and-over Class II.

Meyer, Smith Reach Milestones

By The Associated Press
The record says 700 college basketball victories for Ray Meyer. But ask the man they call "Coach" and he'll tell you he didn't win any of them.

"Why do you say I won them?" Meyer asked following DePaul's 69-66 victory over Illinois State Saturday night, a triumph which put Meyer in an exclusive club. It was his 700th victory at the Chicago school where he's been head coach for 42 years, making him only the fifth major college coach to reach that plateau. The others are Adolph Rupp of Kentucky (875), Kansas' Phog Allen (771), Henry Iba of Oklahoma State (767) and Ed Diddle of Western Kentucky (759).

"I didn't win those games," added Meyer, 69, who will retire after this season. "The players won them. Sometimes I think coaches get too much credit and too much blame."

No one could have blamed Meyer for having an extra special feeling Saturday after freshman Dallas Comegys scored 21 points for DePaul, which rode an 18-2 second-half spurt to victory. But he didn't treat No. 700 much differently.

"Seven hundred wins, 100 wins... what's the difference?" Meyer said. "Tomorrow is another day."

"I think 700 wins means DePaul has had some good basketball players through the years."

In the Top Ten, No. 1 Kentucky beat Indiana 59-54; No. 2 North Carolina stopped Stanford 88-75 for Coach Dean Smith's 500th triumph; third-ranked Georgetown belted St. Francis, Pa., 84-61; No. 4 Memphis State romped over Detroit 90-65; No. 5 Iowa won its Amana Hawkeye Classic by ripping No. 10 Oregon State 56-45; Sixth-ranked Maryland routed Canisius 77-55; No. 7 North Carolina State, the defending NCAA champion, lost to Virginia Tech 89-65; No. 8 Houston slammed Biscayne 69-51, and ninth-ranked UCLA beat Notre Dame 51-47.

Also, it was No. 11 Michigan State over Illinois-Chicago 99-82; No. 12 Louisiana State beating Texas A&M 75-65; No. 15 Boston College downing New Hampshire 97-64; 18th-ranked Wichita State over Hawaii 89-68 in the McDonald's Classic; No. 19 St. John's mauling Columbia 78-58, and No. 20 Virginia Commonwealth routing East Carolina 75-44.

Top Ten
Kentucky overcame a lackluster performance to hold off intense Indiana.

Freshman James Blackmon led the Wildcats with 14 points, hit three free throws and grabbed a crucial rebound in the last 41 seconds in the nationally televised game.

"I don't know how we could come in complacent," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "But there was so much praise after the Louisville game (a 65-44 victory) that it's hard for a young team to handle that and we didn't handle it very well."

Sam Perkins scored 17 points to help North Carolina beat Stanford in the final of the Stanford Invitational.

All-American Michael Jordan played only 7½ minutes because of foul trouble and the Tar Heels saw a 16-point halftime lead cut to six. But as happened many times before in his previous 499 triumphs, Smith sent his team into the four-corners offense and increased the advantage down the stretch.

Intimidating center Patrick Ewing had 24 points and 14 rebounds for Georgetown, which took a 20-8 lead in the first nine minutes as Ewing scored eight points, blocked three shots and was credited with a steal.

"Patrick was really into the flow," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson. "I think the biggest thing about Pat is now he understands that how well he plays affects the entire team's play."

Keith Lee scored 22 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead Memphis State over Detroit.

Iowa held Oregon State scoreless for nearly five minutes at the beginning of the second half and pulled away from the Beavers, who were without three suspended players. Greg Stokes had 16 points for Iowa.

Maryland, with Jeff Adkins scoring 14 points, beat Canisius for the seventh time in as many tries.

N.C. State had the nation's longest winning streak, 15 games — all away from home. But Virginia Tech outclassed the Wolfpack from the outset behind Perry Young's 22 points.

Houston's Akeem Abdul Olajuwon blocked a school-record 16 shots, 12 in the second half, and grabbed 18 rebounds to go with 10 points against Biscayne. Benny Anders led Houston with 19 points.

Led by Kenny Fields' 18 points, UCLA withstood a late Notre Dame rally to beat the Irish for the seventh straight time. UCLA center Stuart Gray converted three of four free throws in the closing minutes after twice being slammed to the floor while attempting layups.

Saturday night was a baptismal of sorts for the young members of the East Carolina Pirate basketball team. They went up against 20th ranked Virginia Commonwealth University and got drubbed, 75-44.

For the most part, VCU was able to get the ball inside for easy shots. Nearly all of their baskets came that way. Our own count was that only about eight or nine came from jumpers from further than five feet from the basket.

The veteran Rams team was thus able to take advantage of East Carolina's youth on the inside and one wing to open the back door. Fortunately for the Pirates, VCU didn't shoot all that well from the inside, and also did poorly from the outside, and ECU was able to stick close for a half.

But in the second half, ECU was a victim of its own problems, unable to get the ball inside itself and shooting under 30 percent. That won't win many ball games, and none against the good teams.

Coach Charlie Harrison was disappointed with his team's play, and especially with one veteran player who didn't play good defense.

But he's hopeful that some lessons were learned from the game — mainly that things don't come easy and will come only with hard work.

VCU, meanwhile, as the favorite in the Sun Belt League, could be building a minor dynasty in the Virginia capital. The school has been in post-season play four of the last six years, three times going to the NCAA. Their team this year has few seniors on it, and could be a power in the Sun Belt for several more years.

Most everyone knows where Moses was when the lights went out, but where was the Pirate media when the lights went out?

As it turned out, we were driving down I-95 just below Richmond.

Upon boarding a university van with the ECU Sports Information/Network crew and a television cameraman to return to Greenville, there was some question as to whether we had lights.

But with the high illumination from Richmond's street lights, it was impossible to tell until we pulled onto the Richmond-Petersburg Toll Road. Then, it became apparent.

SID Ken Smith popped the bright light switch and the lights came on, and we headed home — not without hesitation.

A short time later, however, the lights failed altogether. We limped along on the blinker lights until we found a service station just off the highway.

But a bearded, baseball-capped station attendant only shook his head. "I ain't no mechanic. I just pump gas. There won't be any mechanics around until Monday."

So there we were, and a check of three other area stations all resulted in the same answer.

We decided to try the next exit and timidly made our way on down the highway a few more miles on the blinkers. Then, after three more stations yielded no results, headed for a motel.

It got us all back to Greenville about noon Sunday, some 12 hours later than we had expected.

It's just another of those weird trips that we can add to our collection over the years.

Palmer Captures Seniors Event

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, claiming his first tournament victory in 16 months, did so withstanding a late charge from Billy Casper in the $150,000 Boca Grove PGA Senior Classic.

Palmer, who pocketed $25,000 for his victory Sunday, won with a 31-36-67, for a 17-under-par total of 271. Casper had five birdies on the back nine and shot a 33-32-65 for a 274.

Palmer started the final round of the last tour event on the senior schedule tied with Gardner Dickinson five strokes in front of Casper. He was just one stroke ahead of Casper as they went to the 18th tee.

But the duel ended when Casper bogeyed the par 4, 18th hole by missing a 4-foot putt and Palmer birdied the 544-yard, par 5, 17th hole with 2 wood shots and a chip to within 10 feet of the hole.

"I was aware what was happening," said Palmer. "At the 17th I knew Casper was only one stroke back of me. I knew I needed that 10-foot putt for a birdie and some comfort. No sooner did I make it then I heard Casper had bogeyed the 18th. I felt better going up to the 18th."

Palmer, who sank putts ranging from eight to 25 feet to score five birds on the front nine, said it's been "a long time, I can't recall when" since he was 17 under par in a tournament.

"I played the best golf, hit the best shots this week in I don't know when. It's what I've been looking for."

He said the $25,000 first prize may boost his earnings to his highest ever, about $250,000.

Casper said he didn't realize until the 17th hole that he was "that close" to Palmer after being seven down at the turn. "I got birds at the 16th by coming out of a trap close to the pin and then sinking a six-foot putt at the 17th," he said. "I knew I wanted a bird at the 18th for a chance, but I tried too hard."

It was about as un-picturesque as a touchdown drive could be — three fumbles and an injury to the starting quarterback.

But, somehow, the Miami Dolphins managed to land in the end zone, and at the same time land a berth in the National Football League playoffs.

"It was getting to be more and more a situation in which we had to control our own destiny," said running back Tony Nathan, who scored the winning touchdown with 3:51 left Sunday in Miami's 24-17 victory over the Houston Oilers. "Our backs were against the ball but we took control of our destiny."

The Dolphins, who won the American Conference East title for the 11th time, became the fourth team to secure a playoff berth this season, joining the Los Angeles

Raiders, Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys. But the victory might be costly for the Dolphins, who lost rookie sensation Dan Marino to a knee injury on their winning touchdown drive.

Meanwhile, other teams continued to scurry for the six remaining playoff berths.

In other action Sunday, Buffalo took a 14-9 decision over Kansas City, Green Bay edged Chicago 31-28, Philadelphia upset the Los Angeles Rams 13-9, San Francisco beat Tampa Bay 35-21, Cincinnati whipped Pittsburgh 23-10, Denver routed Cleveland 27-6, Washington hammered Atlanta 37-21, New England blanked New Orleans 7-0; St. Louis trimmed the New York Giants 10-6, Dallas blasted Seattle 35-10 and the New York Jets downed Baltimore 10-6.

The results added five more teams — Baltimore, Atlanta,

Cincinnati, Kansas City and San Diego — to the ranks of those eliminated from the playoffs. Already out were Philadelphia, the New York Giants, Tampa Bay and Houston.

Minnesota plays Detroit tonight. In a game last Thursday night, the Raiders beat San Diego 42-10.

Nathan ran five yards for the winning touchdown to rally Miami from a 17-7 third-quarter deficit. The Dolphins, now 10-4, drove 82 yards for the game-winning touchdown. Marino left the game with a knee injury on the play before Nathan's touchdown run.

Marino said later that is knee felt "strained and stiff. We were able to run the ball pretty well in the second half but my passing was awful." He finished the day with 17 completions on 26 attempts for 195 yards.

Bills 14, Chiefs 9

Mike Kennedy returned an interception of a Bill Kenney pass 22 yards for a fourth-period touchdown and Joe Cribbs rushed for a career-high 185 yards to lift Buffalo over Kansas City. With quarterback Joe Ferguson completing only six of 15 passes for 76 yards, Cribbs provided most of the Buffalo offense with 36 rushes as the Bills improved their record to 8-6 in the AFC East.

"He timed the play perfectly," said Kenney, who passed for 306 yards in the losing effort. "They gave me a read and I threw it away from the linebacker. I didn't see him come up from behind."

Packers 31, Bears 28

Jan Stenerud kicked a 19-yard field goal with three seconds left to lift Green Bay over Chicago. The victory gave the Packers a 7-7 record in the National Conference Central Division, one game behind Detroit and Minnesota, tied at 7-6.

Stenerud's field goal brought him within one of tying George Blanda's career field-goal record of 335. During the course of the afternoon, he missed attempts of 37 and 45 yards.

"I have to admit that early in the game I entered my mind that I was closing in on the record," Stenerud said. "It hadn't been on my mind all week. But on that last kick I was just thinking about winning the game."

Eagles 13, Rams 9

Ron Jaworski's 29-yard touchdown pass to Tony Woodruff with 21 seconds left rallied Philadelphia over the Rams and snapped the Eagles' seven-game losing streak. Woodruff fought off cornerback LeRoy Irvin in a corner of the end zone, as the Rams dropped into a first-place tie in the NFC West with San Francisco with an 8-6 record.

"Irvin had his hands on the ball first," said Woodruff, who was relegated to the second string this week after dropping several passes in the previous three games. "He jumped sooner than I did. I just tried to get up higher. We both came down and I just took the ball from him. Everybody on this club needed something like this."

Irvin said, "I had the ball in both hands but he got it away from me. He made the play and I didn't."

49ers 35, Bucs 21

Wendell Tyler ran for 102 yards and rookie fullback Roger Craig powered his way to three touchdowns, giving San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana support as the 49ers returned to a first-place tie by beating Tampa Bay.

Montana passed for 227 yards, hitting wide receiver Dwight Clark for 90, and the 49ers' running game went over the 200-yard mark. One week earlier, in a 13-3 loss to Chicago, the running backs totaled just 41 yards.

Bengals 23, Steelers 10

Cincinnati turned a pair of first-quarter Pittsburgh turnovers into Pete Johnson touchdown runs and an early 14-0 lead and the Bengals went on to beat the slumping Steelers, who lost for the third straight time after seven consecutive wins.

A victory would have assured the Steelers of at least a wild card playoff berth. As it is, they remained one game in front of Cleveland in the AFC Central.

"We have been lousy for three straight games," Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said. "I don't know what to say. 'I wish I could say the Bengals played great. They did play good enough to win. We didn't play well enough. We didn't execute. We just didn't play well on offense, defense or in the kicking game.'"

Broncos 27, Browns 6

Struggling rookie John Elway fired touchdown passes of 39 and 49 yards to rookie wide receiver Clint Sampson, keeping Denver's playoff hopes alive with a rout of the Browns. The victory gave Denver an 8-6 mark and the possibility of a wild card berth.

Elway completed 16 of 24 passes for 284 yards and two touchdowns in his best performance since his heralded arrival this year as the Broncos' quarterback.

"This was a confidence-builder for me, and I really enjoyed myself today," said Elway, who had lost all five of the previous games in which he was the quarterback of record. "The offensive line gave me all kinds of protection, and the receivers ran great routes. I was a lot more relaxed today."

Redskins 37, Falcons 21

Joe Theismann passed for three touchdowns and kicker Mark Moseley set an NFL scoring record as Washington beat turnover-prone Atlanta.

Moseley kicked three field goals and four conversions for 13 points, giving him 147 points for the year. That surpassed the non-touchdown record of 145 by Jim Turner of the 1968 New York Jets. The overall record is 176 by Paul Hornung for Green Bay in 1960.

Patriots 7, Saints 0

Tony Collins scored on a three-yard run after Ricky Smith returned the opening kickoff 53 yards, and the New England Patriots overcame snow, sleet and heavy rain to beat New Orleans.

"A good part of your game plan is scrapped in weather like this," Meyer said. "You go back to the early 1940s, use a basic game plan and you have to play defense."

Cardinals 10, Giants 6

Neil Lomax fired a 20-yard touchdown pass to Roy Green while rookie Lionel Washington recovered a fumble and intercepted New York quarterback Scott Brunner twice to lead St. Louis over the Giants.

The crowd was the Giants' smallest turnout since Giants Stadium opened in 1976.

Lendl Advances In Aussie Open, Angered By Spectator Reaction

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA (AP) — Ivan Lendl was having problems both on and off the court in the fourth round of the $400,000 Australian Open tennis tournament.

The top-seeded Czech yelled at the crowd in anger after several spectators heckled him today as he was in the process of handing Australian Pat Cash a 7-6, 6-3, 6-3 defeat.

"I was very unhappy from the beginning because there was somebody in the crowd who was obviously very drunk and was calling out during the points," Lendl said after the match.

Lendl also wasn't smiling when he returned to the court after a break to learn that Cash had hidden his racket.

The problems weren't confined to the spectators. Lendl admitted he was lucky to scrape through the first set after Cash unleashed a strong attack that kept his him under pressure on almost every point.

Cash was eager to attack the net, but Lendl kept attacking him on the way with short returns which forced the Australian to half-volley, often into the net.

In other matches, No. 2 John McEnroe of the U.S. had few problems defeating compatriot Tim Gullikson 6-3, 6-2, 6-2. McEnroe tempered his powerful serve and volley game with fine touches at the net.

Mats Wilander of Sweden held off a late challenge from Australian Paul McNamee. The Swede played his natural game in a match dominated by base line rallies during a 6-4, 6-2, 7-6 victory.

Wilander said later he was happy with his performance. "I think I've got it as good as I can on grass," he said.

The only surprise of the day was Aussie Wally Masur's 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1 upset of No. 8 seed Anders Jarryd of Sweden. Masur, unseeded and ranked 87th in the world, used his greater experience on grass courts to overcome his opponent.

Masur's willingness to attack the net helped him catch Jarryd out of position throughout the match.

In the third round of women's singles, third-seeded

American Pam Shriver had a tough time at the start of her match against compatriot Barbara Potter.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

It's the time of year to begin planning for 1984 crops in the form of estimating production costs for the purpose of enterprise and cash flow planning.

What a difference a year makes. Twelve months ago we were facing record soybean and grain harvests, low commodity prices and prospects for increased production costs for 1983. Then along came payment-in-kind, designed to reduce the surpluses. With this reduction in acreage came a reduced demand for farm inputs. Prices of most farm inputs remained constant or fell. Consequently most of our 1983 estimates were too high.

Outlook for farm supply prices for next year are, to say the least, uncertain.

It would be logical to assume that the farm chemical industry has a significant inventory on hand. Further assuming there will be no feed grain PIK for next year, demand for chemicals should be greater than in 1983. But inventories are usually sold first so prices of this commodity are uncertain.

The fertilizer industry saw its sales drastically reduced because of PIK. One would expect prices to strengthen if planted acres increased in 1984. But the magnitude of any price movement is hard to pinpoint.

If farmers are hard-pressed for available cash, amounts of fertilizer applied may not increase in proportion to acres planted. In other words, fertilizer use may be restricted if there is no money to pay for input.

Prices of two other inputs — fuel and interest for borrowed funds — are difficult to project because they are determined by forces outside the farm sector.

It seems likely that crop production costs in 1984 will be above last year's levels. More acres planted, which translates into more inputs used, will tend to pull up the price of inputs. But things can change in a hurry. Within the past 10 months we have experienced PIK and the worst drought in many years. It is possible that other unexpected events can occur that can have effects of equal magnitude.

Bobby Baker To Try Clear Name

DALLAS (AP) — Recently released from prison, Bobby Baker, the once powerful Senate aide described by Lyndon Johnson as "my strong right arm," is out to clear his name.

In October, a federal appeals court ordered a federal judge to consider new evidence unearthed from cartons of old documents at the U.S. Justice Department, and Baker, now 55, insists the evidence will prove he should not have been found guilty.

"It's really getting exciting now," Baker told the Dallas Times Herald in an interview published Sunday. The excitement, he said, concerns his attempt to clear his name 20 years after reports came out of a suspicious portfolio of business deals and nearly 13 years after he went to prison for theft and tax evasion.

N.C. Day Care Quality Rapped

By ERICA JOHNSTON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — While North Carolina has almost 2,300 day-care centers serving some 85,000 children, state officials say many offer little beyond satisfying basic needs and licensing requirements.

I don't think our basic licensing job ensures quality care," said Rachel Fesmire, director of the Office of Day Care Services in the state Department of Human Resources. "It addresses only health and safety."

About 125 facilities across the state have a "double-A" license, meaning they voluntarily meet standards higher than those required by the state, including a higher staff-to-child ratio and stricter staff qualifications. Another 500 are approved by the government to receive public money. "That's also a quality assurance," Ms. Fesmire said.

The state's basic licensing requirements, however, are relatively low, she said. "We're 48th out of 50" states in staff requirements, requiring one staff person for each eight children under age 2, Ms. Fesmire said.

All the state's licensed day-care centers must provide each child with cots or mats to rest on, a nutritious lunch and outdoor activities. The facilities are checked twice a year, said Jacqueline Burgess of the Office of Day Care Licensing in the state Department of Administration.

The license of one North Carolina day care facility recently was challenged in court after several parents alleged their children had been neglected.

After a six-day hearing, a Davidson County judge ruled last week that Lexington's Creative Learning Center could remain open. Superior Court Judge Judson DeRamus said operator Jean Drum had violated some requirements but that the children were in no continuing danger.

Mrs. Fesmire said parents recently have become more choosy in looking for day care centers, which has helped boost the quality of care in some facilities.

But selection is still tough, she said.

"Most parents are offered a job on Friday, and they have to go to work on Tuesday or Wednesday," she said. "They've never looked at day care before. ... It's just a real hard decision. Unfortunately, sometimes it's a trial-and-error procedure."

Boards Handbook Available

The city's new handbook on boards and commissions, "You Can Have A Role In City Government," provides information on the talent bank and a summary on each standing and ad hoc committee appointed by the City Council.

The program provides the council with immediate access to persons who have indicated a desire to serve on a board when a vacancy occurs.

The booklet contains a tear-out postal card for citizens' convenience in notifying the city clerk of their interest.

Copies are available at city hall, Sheppard Memorial Library, and at other city buildings. For more information, contact the city clerk at 752-4137.

Officers assigned to the police department's narcotics and vice squad said a small amount of marijuana was found in Gibson's possession in a parking lot at the intersection of Fourth and Reade Streets.

Burglary Tool Possession Charged

Frank Demarco, 30 of 427 West Fifth St., was arrested by Greenville police early Sunday on possession of burglary tool charges.

Fewer Inmates In N.C. Prisons

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After years of severe overcrowding, North Carolina's prison population has declined about 9 percent this year because of alternative sentencing, early release and other programs, officials say.

"That's a very significant drop," said Hardy Rauch, a researcher for the Washington-based American Correctional Association.

In the third quarter of 1983, the combined population of all state and federal prison systems increased by 8,000.

This year, for the first time since 1973, population of the North Carolina system's 85 institutions and field units virtually matches capacity, said Correction Secretary James C. Woodard.

"We don't know everything involved, but for the last three months, the population's been holding steady with a fluctuation of no more than 100," he added.

From 1975 to 1982, the state's average daily prison enrollment increased 31.6 percent, from 12,582 to 16,786. The population reached a record 17,480 inmates early this year, but the decline that began in early spring has lowered the average daily population to 16,434 through Sept. 30.

The population on Dec. 1 was 15,792 inmates in a system with a capacity of 16,200.

Prison and criminal justice officials said more frequent parole reviews, increasing good-conduct credits in the last six months of a sentence and passage of the state Fair

Sentencing Act with its shorter sentences helped cut inmate numbers.

"It's surprising how little time people are actually serving," said Wade Barber of Pittsboro, former president of the N.C. District Attorneys Association.

This year's decline also coincided with the culmination of a $100 million prison construction program launched in 1977.

Included in the program were new 480-man prisons in Greene, Montgomery and Rowan counties, 28-cell additions at 14 field units, 144-cell additions at Halifax County's Caledonia and Northampton's Odom prisons, and conversion of three juvenile training schools to prison units.

The new Central Prison in Raleigh replaced an obsolete facility, parts of which dated to the Reconstruction era, and did not add to the system's capacity.

"Some things we know contributed to (the population decline) and some things we're not sure of," said Rae McNamara, director of prisons.

That uncertainty is reflected in projections by the department's research analysts that the the prison population will rise to 19,000 by 1990. The projection is based on past data, possible shifts in crime rates and estimated future sentencing.

on the world.

Ten winners, who will be selected by a nine-member panel of engineers and scientists, will each receive a $2,000 prize and a summer internship at Honeywell.

Business Computerizes A Rural Iowa Community

By ALICE NOBLE
FOREST CITY, Iowa (UPI) — New things traditionally come slowly to a small rural town like Forest City, isolated as it is amid the cornfields of northern Iowa.

This year, however, the town has started a revolution in the nation's rural education system by allowing a private business to finance the computerization of the public schools, a college and even the homes of community residents.

John K. Hanson, founder of Winnebago Industries and the mover behind the computer concept, says other American businessmen would be "damn fools" if they failed to follow his precedent.

Hanson and education officials recently unveiled the $1 million computer education program last month, showing off rows of computer terminals in the junior high and high schools and the private, two-year Waldorf College.

Educators said every student will have access to the computer, beginning as early as kindergarten, and can carry their skills out in to the work force on the same system in use at Winnebago Industries.

Robert Hall, computer coordinator for the 1,317-student public school district, said the program provides one computer terminal for every eight or nine students, a ratio "which I'm sure is unique in the country."

Hanson, who founded the Winnebago motor home company that employs 2,100 people from the area, kicked off the computer revolution in Forest City when he decided to buy a system for his own business.

In talking with William Norris, founder of Control Data Corp. in Minnesota, he became caught up in Norris' dream to have large corporations cooperating with government on education and other societal needs.

Control Data's PLATO computer learning system, which was developed at the University of Illinois in the 1960s and is in use at a number of major universities, is the key to the Forest City program.

Although Hanson and Norris declined to reveal the financing of the project, a school spokesman said the schools put up about $100,000 with Winnebago paying 60 percent of the remaining $900,000 and Control Data the other 40 percent.

Assistant U.S. Education Secretary Robert Worthington, who was on hand for the unveiling of the program, said he is excited by the concept.

"If you can get a whole community computer literate, it's fantastic," he said. "If this could be repeated in every one of the nation's 16,000 school districts, there's no question we could improve the quality of education."

"It'll put them one up on the competition. They'll be about 10 steps ahead of the kids who don't have this. Iowa has such a good reputation in education already. To add this to it as well, they will really keep Iowa out in front educationally."

While at the schools, Worthington looked over the shoulder of a girl studying the body's nervous system by examining graphics on the computer and then making a copy on a nearby computer printer.

"Do you like that way of study?" he asked, getting an affirmative nod from the girl. "It's more fun than reading a book?" The girl nodded again.

High school science teacher Denny McDonald, who was the first faculty member to embrace the computer program and work it into his class curriculum, said students have accepted computerized learning very well.

"It can do some things I can't do, such as graphics," he said, adding that the computers have struck a responsive chord in students who otherwise drift off during classroom lectures.

"I catch them in here (the computer lab) mesmerized and can't even get their attention," McDonald said. "I can't grab them in a lecture, but the computer can."

Hall said there was some hesitancy to use the computers on the part of other teachers, but McDonald was the "ice-breaker" needed to get the rest of the faculty over the hump.

to $300,000 a year by using computers. "We don't have to work harder, we have to work smarter."

Norris said he advocates turning responsibility for education over to private business until required changes are implemented and a modernized system is in place.

Worthington agreed a partnership between business and the schools is what is needed for education in the future. He said the Reagan Administration's wants to turn more responsibility for education over to local and state officials.

As part of that philosophy, Reagan this year announced an "Adopt-a-School" program, encouraging business to financially take a public school district until its wing.

Hanson, asked if he thought other businessmen would follow his lead and form a partnership with schools, replied, "They'd be damn fools if they didn't."

He said he considered it a wise investment because "not only Winnebago, but also the Forest City community at large is dependent on the area to produce a high-quality labor force. What better way to guarantee this than by maximizing our educational potential?"

Worthington's boss, Education Secretary Terrell Bell, said the results of the Forest City project will be carefully monitored and, if successful, will be pushed in other areas of the country.

"We're keenly interested," he said. "With the nationwide concern there is now on education and productivity, it's a very timely endeavor on your part to initiate this program."

Want Timber-Cutting, Highway Jobs In Area

ROBBINSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Residents of the environmentally sensitive mountains of southwest North Carolina are calling for highway construction and timber cutting, lured by the promise of jobs and economic growth.

"We're talking about the future of our children when we talk about that highway," said Leonard G. Williams, a logger, at a meeting of Graham County residents last week. "Without it, they're gone."

"Our main export is 90 percent of our high school graduates, and we're leading the hit parade again," agreed Mark Huffman of Robbinsville. "Our kids are leaving us because they don't have any choice if they want jobs."

Ironically, the meeting at the county courthouse was called by an environmentalist to bolster opposition to mountain development. Carl A. Reiche had to be escorted away by sheriff's deputies after an explosive confrontation with about 70 residents of the county, which has the highest unemployment rate in the state at 15.9 percent.

"I'm leaving here forever," said Reiche, who for 14 years has fought mountain development. "I will never see this place again. I'm through with North Carolina, disgusted, sick. They can have it all with their mob rule—everything."

Bill Millsaps, the former publisher of a small newspaper in Graham County, said

Reiche's zeal for the environment ran counter to public opinion in an area of the state that relies on the timber industry.

"He doesn't represent the views of nobody in Graham County but his lonesome," Millsaps said. "He said he's leaving. We hope he's a truthful man."

In 1971, Reiche led the public position that beat back the National Forestry Service's proposal to route a two-lane highway through the Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest.

The changing public attitude is good news to W.E. Michael, a Wilkes County native who directs the pro-development Cherokee Commission.

More Rain And Floods Threaten Southern States

By CYNTHIA GREEN
Associated Press Writer

As the Great Plains swallowed another snowy dose of winter today, more rain and cresting rivers threatened cleanup efforts in the South, where tornadoes and flooding left three people dead, one missing and caused millions of dollars in damage.

A one-day respite from the weekend's storms was expected to end tonight as severe thunderstorms move into the lower Mississippi Valley, and the same weather system was already dropping snow and freezing rain from the Rocky Mountains to the Great Lakes early today, the National Weather Service said.

The latest in a series of snowstorms in the West forced the closing of a major highway in Idaho, caused scores of minor accidents in Utah and left up to 11 inches of new snow in Colorado, officials said Sunday.

"Since Thanksgiving, everyone's saying enough's enough," said Ed Honodel of the National Weather Service in Denver.

In the South, flood warnings remained in effect today for streams in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana despite Sunday's partly sunny skies. While hundreds returned home after fleeing over the weekend as fierce twister-spawning thunderstorms dumped several inches of rain in a few hours, the worst flooding was yet to come in some places.

A boat carrying two men dropped more than 100 feet off a dam on the rain-swollen Broad River in Gaffney, S.C., on Sunday, authorities said.

One man was reported missing while the other was rescued.

A Utah police dispatcher said Sunday that about 60 or 70 accidents, most of them minor, occurred in Weber and Davis counties, where roads were slick and visibility low from blowing snow.

Interstate 84 was closed from Tremonton, Utah, to Burley, Idaho, early today because of high winds and drifting snow, officials said.

Up to 2 feet of new snow fell in the mountains of California, and by Sunday morning, 26 inches had fallen at Norden, Nev. A total of 102 inches covered the ground at Powder Mountain, Utah, forecasters said.

Travelers' advisories were in effect today for most of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Nebraska, southern Minnesota, northwest

Kansas, Iowa and South Dakota — which had 8 inches of new snow in places.

Snow and sleet were tapering off today in the Northeast, which was frosted by a remnant of an earlier winter storm on Sunday. Up to 14 inches of snow fell in western Massachusetts, starting a snowball war among 2,000 students at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Northern California was still cleaning up today from weekend storms that buffeted the San Francisco and Santa Cruz areas, forcing the temporary closing of the Golden Gate Bridge on Saturday. About 14,000 Pacific Gas and Electric customers were still without power this morning, spokeswoman Roberta Palm said.

In Columbus, Miss., the Tombigbee River was expected to crest at 6 or 7 feet above flood stage on the west, and Luxapallila Creek was expected to reach 8 feet above flood stage on the east, officials said. Four houses were flooded and 12 families evacuated Sunday.

"This is our fourth flood in 12 months," said David Perkins of the Columbus-Lowndes Civil Defense.

Mississippi Gov. William Winter was considering a helicopter trip today to Grenada, which is seeking cleanup funds. More than 200 people spent Saturday night in emergency shelters.

"You tie up your life savings on a home and look what happens," said Eddie Simmons, whose house, under 38.5 inches of water Saturday, had been inundated just a year ago by a flood.

The storms moved over Georgia and the Carolinas on Sunday, and at least five small tornadoes were spotted in Georgia late Saturday and early Sunday, injuring two people, damaging buildings and downing trees and power lines.

A twister touched down in an industrial area west of Atlanta, causing a gas leak that forced evacuation of workers in the Fulton Industrial Boulevard area and tearing the roof off a maintenance building. Officials put the damage at nearly $1 million.

Two tornadoes also were sighted Sunday in South Carolina. Some power lines were downed and roofs were damaged.

On Saturday, two people were killed and 51 injured when a tornado swept through a crowded shopping center at Oxford, Ala. The high winds leveled a grocery store, trapping dozens of people.

More than 1,000 people were evacuated from their homes in Alabama's Jefferson County, said Woody Odom of the Birmingham Civil Defense, and most started cleaning up Sunday. Flooding also forced the evacuation of dozens more in Tuscaloosa County. One person drowned in Birmingham.

Nationwide, the death toll in the series of storms since Nov. 21 climbed to 89 — 48 last week. Violent weather the previous week claimed 41 lives.

Eleven Dead In State's Traffic

By The Associated Press

An 18-year-old Mooresville man was charged with involuntary manslaughter and driving while impaired in the death of a 2-year-old boy, one of 11 people killed in weekend traffic accidents on North Carolina roads.

Alan Wayne Tate also was charged with hit and run involving personal injury, assaulting a law officer and reckless driving in the Friday wreck that killed Eric Shane Dill, the state Highway Patrol said. "The car Tate was driving struck a vehicle carrying the Dill child and three other people, the patrol said.

The boy's mother, Minnie Dill, 24, was in fair condition Saturday at Charlotte Memorial Hospital with a head injury, while the victim's 3-year-old sister, Christy Dill and Kathy Jo Pogue, 18, of Mooresville, were not injured.

Early Sunday, James Rod Cable, 16, of Catawba, died in Catawba County when the car he was driving left the road and struck a tree. Shortly after that, in Franklin County, Jerry Carrington, 28, of Youngsville, died in a head-on collision five miles south of Louisville.

Tanya Hughes Yoder, 23, of Clayton, died Sunday when the car she was driving left a Johnston County road and overturned, throwing her from the vehicle.

Charles Gentry Gilbert, 54, of Kernersville, died Saturday evening when the car he was driving jumped a ditch and struck a utility pole.

Clyde Darrin Clark, 18, of Forest City, died Friday when the car he was driving crossed the center line of U.S. 221 about 12 miles south of Spindale in Rutherford County and struck another car.

Terry Allan Faulkner, 32, of Clinton, died Friday when the car he was driving ran off U.S. 701 eight miles south of Clinton, overturned and struck a tree.

Kenny Ray Walden, 19, of Wingate, was killed Saturday when the vehicle he was driving ran off a rural Union County road and overturned three miles west of Monroe.

Adrian George Rouillon Jr., 33, of Hendersonville, died Saturday when the car he was driving ran off a rural Henderson County road and struck a ditch.

John Henry Smith, 52, of Robertsonville was killed Friday when a car struck him while he was lying on an unpaved road, about five miles west of Hamilton.

Shannon Louis Corn, 19, was killed Saturday when her car was hit head on by a car that crossed the center line four miles north of Hendersonville. Three vehicles were involved and two more people were injured, troopers said.

The 1983 highway death toll is 1,117 compared to 1,223 on the same date in 1982.

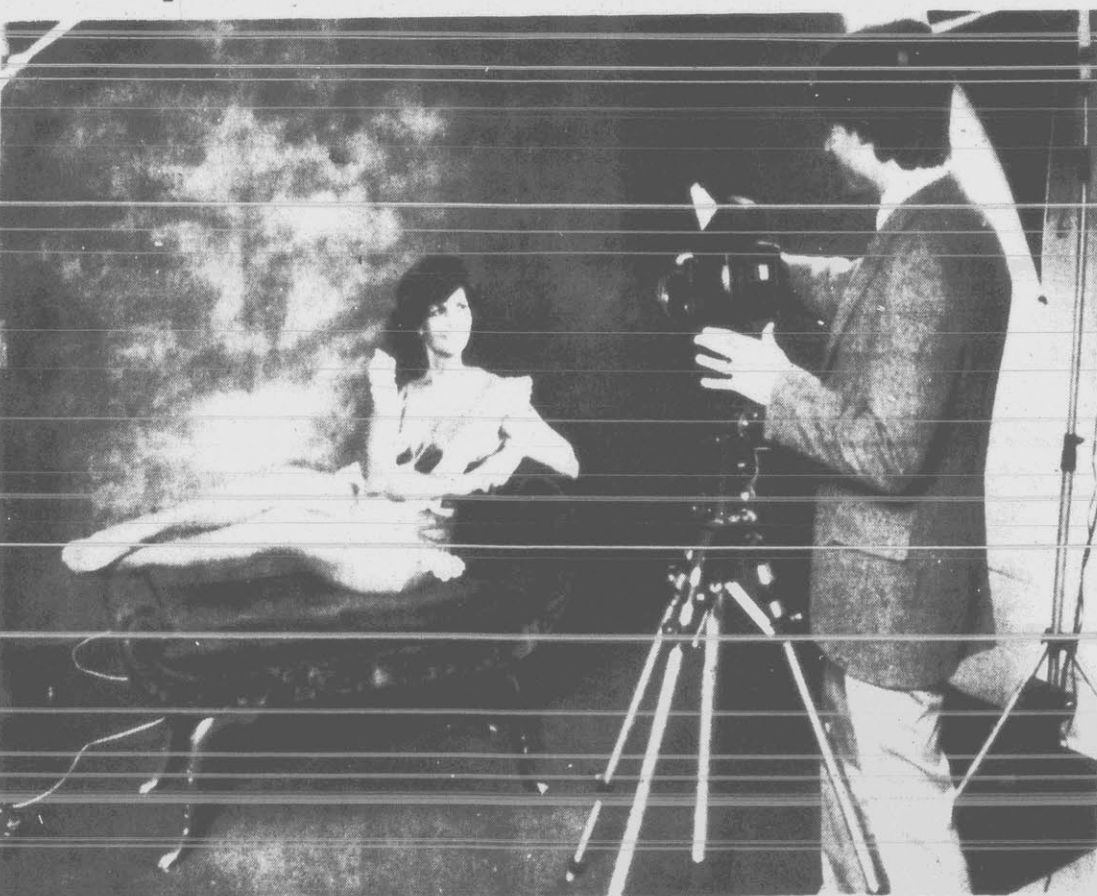

Set Afire After Blaze Insured

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A five-story downtown building here was deliberately set on fire after an insurance company agreed to insure the blaze.

The fires in the General Services Administration annex were set to evaluate fire safety equipment that could save lives and reduce injuries and property losses from fires.

Sponsors of the test purchased $25 million in excess liability coverage from Fireman's Fund Insurance to protect themselves in case the fires spread beyond the test area.

Negligees And Soft Focus Make For Special Intimate Yule Gift

A DIFFERENT LIGHT — Stuart Naideth directs a customer for her "boudoir" photograph that she intends to give a friend for Christmas.

Naideth specializes in the photos which cast a seductive soft light "on even the plainest looking housewife". (AP Laserphoto)

By SCOTT RECKARD
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a glass of wine, they may curl up on a velvet ottoman, soothed by soft music and clad in negligees or even less. They're professional women with money to spend and this Christmas they're spending it on "boudoir photos" for their men.

"It's not what you'd consider dirty in the '80s," says portrait photographer Stuart Naideth. "The most risque one was of a very attractive lady who took off all her clothes, but it was more like a Playboy centerfold than anything else."

He says his customers — mostly professional women from 30 to 45 — are flocking to his studio in increasing numbers as Christmas approaches. On average, each pays $600 for a series of soft-lighted, seductive shots, usually one large wall photo and several small prints.

His soft-focus lens is adapted from the kind used for movie studio portraits of such classic stars as Jean Harlow and Marlene Dietrich.

Negligees are provided by the house. So is the soft music and the wine that most customers accept before the photo session.

Naideth and his wife Joan, who helps run the business, said that most of the women relax quickly. Then they recline on such props as a velvet ottoman, perhaps posed in front of an ornate mirror on a wall with flopped paper or an Oriental screen.

Naideth says his clients included a bank vice president and the wife of a state senator.

"At least 95 percent of them are career women," he says. "Lawyers, people in commodities, brokers and a lot of sales people."

are making money, they are comfortable with themselves and are comfortable doing this."

Naideth, 32, was shooting mostly weddings when, four years ago, a woman walked into his studio in the Orange County community of Costa Mesa and proposed to shed most of her clothes for a portrait to be given to her husband.

"Then I spent a day or two with a guy up in Las Vegas who'd been shooting similar things," he said. Word of mouth produced a steady stream of women seeking what he calls "boudoir photos." Business really soared six months ago when he began to advertise in an Orange County magazine and newspapers.

Since then, he says, four or five women a week pay the $75 fee for a session, plus the cost of prints and other extras.

"Our makeup artists will do a glamour makeover on them, and that costs $35," Naideth says. "It's something that almost everybody will be flattered with. Most of our customers are attractive, but they've all got their faults."

"We make them look good."

Unknown To Nine Of Ten

ATLANTA (AP) — Nathaniel Hawthorne's house had seven of them. Some houses don't have any. A famous actor had one for a last name. They're gables, of course.

But what is a gable? A survey in metropolitan areas indicated 9 out of 10 persons had no idea or harbored a misconception. Columns and windows are the most frequent responses.

But Georgia-Pacific, a supplier of wood products for the building industry, defines a gable as the top of a wall of a building where a triangle is formed under a sloping roof.

Almost all of them leave feeling great about themselves."

He expects business to ease off after Christmas, "but Valentine's Day isn't far off."

And he adds that while nearly all the photos are given on happy occasions, that's not always the case.

"I had one woman come in yesterday, and she was breaking up with her boyfriend," Naideth said Wednesday. "She said she figured it was a good way to say goodbye."

Civilian Conservation Corps Expansion Is Planned

By CLARK MCKINLEY

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — President Roosevelt's Depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps of 50 years ago is taking on a new lease of life.

Several current state programs based on the CCC in providing outdoor work for America's jobless youth will be expanded if and when a proposed federal American Conservation Corps gets under way.

Typical of the work done by the state programs is an all-weather trail system in Yosemite National Park, created by hard-hat youngsters of the seven-year-old California Conservation Corps with hammers, crowbars and muscle.

They created a rippable trail, a mosaic of large and small stones placed deep enough and tight enough to withstand decades of erosion from melting snow and the pounding of horses, mules and hikers.

They labored without mortar, cement or asphalt that would have been too heavy for the mule trains that bring supplies into the back country. Instead, wearing brown denim pants and khaki shirts with shoulder patches and name tags, the CCC members of both sexes wedged small rocks between large stone steps of a path hugging the north bank of the rugged Grand Canyon of the Tuolumne River.

A few weeks later, they would leave the park, and snow would cover its 750 miles of trails. Next spring, other crews will carry on work begun by the CCC's famous forerunner — the CCC, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Tree Army."

Besides trees and trails, the old CCC left such landmarks as the presidential Camp David retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, completed in 1942, the last year of the old CCC.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the popular federal program that gave jobs to about 4 million men, ages 18 to 25, who worked out of 4,000 military-type camps.

Over nine years, CCC workers planted more than 2 billion trees, built thousands of miles of trails and access roads, and spent 6.5 million days fighting forest fires. They laid telephone lines, cleared streams and built dams.

"We got a good start in life," says Californian Steve Kadabek, who served at the Scott Lake camp. "We had camaraderie."

The old CCC was a national solution to a concern expressed by Eleanor Roosevelt.

"I have moments of real terror when I think we may be losing this generation," she said. "We have got to bring these young people into the active life of the community and make them feel that they are necessary."

Those words were quoted in a 1979 letter to the California Legislature by B.T. Collins, a former state CCC director credited with saving it from the budget cutter's ax.

The California program's immediate predecessor was an Ecology Corps established by former Gov. Ronald Reagan in 1971 to provide an alternative for conscientious objectors to the Vietnam War.

Reagan's successor, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., replaced that with a larger CCC that continued to work on conservation and such emergencies as forest fires and floods. Brown proposed "an ecological militia with a high esprit de corps — a combination of kibbutz, a Jesuit seminary and the Marine Corps."

As war with shovels for $3.35 an hour, the CCC became famous under Collins. The colorful former Green Beret captain shored up discipline with the five rules of "No drugs, no alcohol, no destruction of state property, no violence, no refusal to work."

He also introduced the CCC motto — "Hard work, low pay, miserable conditions," and a "nasty letter" warning recruits: "The CCC is a WORK program. You will do dirty, back-breaking work; and no one will thank you for it... in rain, high winds, intense heat, snow, mud and cold mountain streams."

Collins is gone, but some 1,700 Corps members continue to operate out of 21 camps strung 1,000 miles between the borders of Oregon and Mexico. CCC members live at the centers, working in 12-member crews.

To join the one-year program, they need be between the ages of 18 and 23, a California resident, and neither on probation nor on parole. One in three Corps members is a woman. Fewer than half finished high school. Members undergo three weeks' training at a state academy, are required to write journals and encouraged to take off-duty classes. The average stay is about 5½ months.

"There are some complaints about the CCC," says Kurt Delfino, 22, who recently completed six months of trail work in Yosemite. "They're from people who are unhappy because they can't drink, smoke dope and have to get up in the morning."

For those who get up, the CCC works for the same reasons as the old Corps.

"All the people in the program are getting a tremendous amount out of it," says Delfino's co-worker, Nikki Strong, a 19-year-old transplant from Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. "I've learned that my work is my purpose. You're working for other people, and it's a good feeling."

Jane Oram, leader of a Canadian exchange group with the CCC, was impressed by the high morale of corps members.

"Commitment makes the CCC such a successful program," she said. "I think the Corps is about working people harder than they thought they could."

Similar programs are operating in Ohio, Washington, Minnesota, Michigan and Connecticut. Here are some of the highlights:

—Ohio is the only state besides California to have a training academy. It offers cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, water safety, defensive driving, equipment care and wildfire suppression techniques. A notable project: construction of the largest covered bridge in Ohio over the Little Miami River.

—Washington State's CCC is under way with a two-year, $10 million appropriation from the Legislature. The goal is to provide up to 2,500 jobs for school dropouts and others lasting six months, with a possible six-month extension. "Potential projects are only limited by our imagination," says Sen. Jerry Hughes, the Spokane Democrat who sponsored the program.

—Minnesota also has a year-round program. "For many of the kids, this is their first job," says coordinator John Grix. "We had 2,000 applications for 40 positions at one park. We expect them to work hard." Twenty deaf students built trails and log shelters at one park.

—Michigan's version of the CCC is a summer jobs program that put some 25,000 youngsters to work cleaning litter from state highways, sprucing up parks, and performing door-to-door and telephone surveys. Public opinion polls indicate that 69 percent of the state's residents like the program despite complaints from labor unions that it takes union jobs.

—The new Connecticut Conservation Corps has built bridges, crabbing decks and a corral for a mounted patrol at a state beach. It also converted a fish hatchery to Connecticut's first state salmon hatchery.

Several other states are considering CCC-type programs to be implemented if the federal government gets the proposed American Conservation Corps off the ground. New York has enacted a bill providing for year-round conservation projects for 16 to 25-year-olds, including residential programs, if the federal government will pay for it.

The U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill to establish the ACC that has been stalled in the Senate. The House version of the bill would have authorized $250 million a year through 1989 to be distributed to state programs. A Senate committee trimmed the figure to $50 million for fiscal 1984.

Sponsors said the initial proposal would provide jobs for more than 100,000 young Americans to plant trees, halt erosion, control floods, reclaim strip mines, and work on park projects. President Reagan has opposed past federal job corps programs, however.

Proponents who favor reviving the national CCC, albeit under state direction, say it is more than making work to keep youth off the streets. Rather it is an opportunity to help young Americans give something back to their country.

Some legislators have proposed requiring all 18-year-olds to serve one year in CCC-type programs or two years in the military.

Auditors estimate that taxpayers get back up to $1.65 in services for every $1 they spend on the CCC. There's also the incalculable value of transforming mostly urban youngsters who have never held jobs into hard workers.

As Peter Halvorson, said of his CCC trail crew in Yosemite's back country:

"They don't have the store down the street. They don't have electricity, cars, power tools. They're going to be resourceful, and they will carry a lot of energy with them when they leave the CCC. That drive will be channeled to other things..."

Organ Donors' Interest Rises

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Although a liver transplant failed to save Joshua Brooks' life, his highly publicized struggle has sparked interest in organ donation that could help others, officials say.

More than 110 eyes were donated to the North Carolina Eye and Human Tissue Bank in October, when Joshua was in the news frequently, said associate director Susan H. Weatherman.

That's about 35 more than the average number per month, she said. "We had never received that number of eyes in one month."

Nine-month-old Joshua, of Laurinburg, died Nov. 26 after his body rejected the transplanted liver he had received two weeks earlier.

His parents testified before a congressional committee about the difficulty of finding a donor, and contributions exceeding $100,000 poured in from across the nation.

The Human Tissue Donation Program of the N.C. Department of Human Resources has been getting more inquiries about donor cards, which authorize removal of specified organs upon death.

"We've had more requests for information and are sending out more of the cards," said spokesman Sue M. Hanes.

Donor cards are available at state drivers' license offices. There's a space on each driver's license to designate that the holder is an organ donor.

About 8.5 percent of the more than 1 million people issued drivers' licenses last year asked that they be designated organ donors, Mrs. Hanes said.

Brenda Melton, transplant coordinator for Duke University Medical Center in Durham and N.C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, said donations of vital organs have not increased at those facilities in the past few weeks. But public awareness has picked up, she said.

"The more people that are aware, the more who know what we're talking about when we ask for donations," she said. "They know a little about why we are asking."

Something Less Than Potential

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — So many stories have no business showing up on television that it's a shame when one story, so compelling it cried out for dramatization, becomes less than the grabber it should have been.

Tonight's NBC film, "Choices of the Heart," will move viewers, but not far enough. Instead of justifiable tears, the bottom-line feeling, sad to say, will be emotional distance.

"Choices of the Heart" is a fact-based profile of Jean Donovan, one of four American churchwomen murdered in El Salvador three years ago. Five former Salvadoran national guardsmen have been charged with homicide but have yet to stand trial.

NBC deserves praise for treating this tragedy sensitively, particularly since its other Monday movies have taken tackier roads, examining a Playboy centerfold-cop, a woman who loved a dead man and a Japanese prostitution ring.

But poor pacing and the wrong choice of Melissa Gilbert as the lead character turn a poignant concept into a second-rate film.

Miss Gilbert was so taken by the script that her production company bought a piece of the action. Actor-director John Houseman, who was narrator on a public-TV documentary on Jean Donovan, is one of the executive producers.

Miss Gilbert, 19, grew up in America's living rooms. The alumna of "Little House on the Prairie," who gave creditable performances in "Splendor in the Grass" and "The Diary of Anne Frank," displayed a perky personality here, but the heavier parts of this role seem beyond her dramatic reach.

Notice that whenever Miss Gilbert is required to register and hold on to any intensity, the camera quickly flees, or she turns away. Jean should be lighting up the screen, but Miss Gilbert doesn't have the presence to make it happen. Her blank stare doesn't do justice to this remarkable woman.

Jean's metamorphosis from a carousing, materialistic, self-interested girl into a caring, committed woman of the world is the film's focus. It was her lay missionary work, tending to the hungry and the hurt in El Salvador, that saved her from herself.

After a well-to-do childhood in Cleveland, she became an aggressive man-chaser and boozier in college. In Ireland, where she studied for a year, she's visited by a priest, Father Phelan, played by the grand Martin Sheen. She offers him liquor and confessions. "Sin comes so easy for me," she says. "Being good is the hard part."

Through church volunteer work, her consciousness is raised a little. But she still holds back. "I want to change the world, but I don't want to give up anything to do it," she tells Phelan.

She certainly won't relinquish her boyfriends, the first one played by Patrick Cassidy of "Bay City Blues" and then Peter Horton. She's not the typical missionary, arriving for her training in an MG, with her golf clubs.

Yet, something spiritual is stirring in her, and she chooses missionary work over the Peace Corps "to bring people closer to Him." She becomes so affected by the conditions — and her contributions — in El Salvador that she ignores the dangers. Her boyfriend (Horton) urges her to come home.

"You wanted me to go back to the States," she says, "and watch this on the news when I've seen little children mutilated because their fathers were on the wrong side."

In the script, this must have read as a powerful moment. Delivered by Miss Gilbert, it sounds as if she's reciting a schoolgirl's poem. Filmed in Mexico, scenes have the dusty despair of a country torn by civil war. But a pretentious soundtrack of Joan Baez' melancholy Spanish songs, whenever the action returns south of the border, gives the movie a mooney beat.

The story moves through flashbacks, flash-forwards and interviews, a technique that works well, except when Miss Gilbert appears at the movie's beginning and end, looking for all the world like a flaky girl in one of those tightly shot Calvin Klein jeans commercials.

Gems Adorn A Holiday Tree

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — No ordinary boughs of holly deck the halls of one fashionable shop on Rodeo Drive. Cartier's has adorned an unassuming spruce with a fortune in gems.

It's a "wonderful idea," said Tracy Preminger Kolker, manager of the jewelry shop which may or may not have the best Christmas tree on the ritzy block, but certainly has the most expensive one — worth more than $4 million.

Tinsel, garland and glass globes weren't enough for Cartier.

Its Minnesota Blue Spruce is festooned with diamond earrings, bracelets, necklaces, sapphire rings, rubies and pearls.

In all, the tree glitters with 80 pieces of jewelry, including one 42-karat sapphire ring worth $168,000.

"It's really quite elegant," said Ms. Kolker, who doesn't think the tree is at all ostentatious.

"Once you see it, you realize it's really quite beautifully done — the pearls replace popcorn strands and the jewelry replaces tinsel. In its own way, it's understated."

Still, it can't be missed.

"It's tremendous," said Carl Jones, who marveled at the display on a visit from Chattanooga, Tenn. "The longer you look at it, the more you see."

Another passerby, Karen Walker, 30, said she'd like to have such a tree in her living room — despite the uniformed and plainclothes security guards that go with it.

Rock Hudson Is Back In Thriller

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Rock Hudson returns to feature theatrical films after many years of television to co-star with Robert Mitchum and Ellen Burstyn in the political thriller, "The Ambassador," on locations in Israel.

It is Hudson's first feature movie since "The Mirror Crack'd," a 1980 flop co-starring Elizabeth Taylor and Kim Novak.

"The Ambassador" is a story of international intrigue in the Middle East, which J. Lee Thompson will direct for producers Menahem Golan and Yoram Globus.

Cagney Playing In TV Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — James Cagney, who retired from films almost 20 years ago but returned for a character role in "Ragtime," once again has left retirement for a part in a new TV movie.

Cagney will star as an elderly former boxing champion, confined to a wheelchair, in "Battling Joe Moran," co-starring Art Carney as Cagney's companion and friend.

"Battling Joe Moran," a CBS-TV special scheduled for next spring, is being directed by Joseph Sargent in New York City for producer Robert Halmi.

Miss World Is Back On Stage

LONDON (AP) — Miss World, Britain's Sarah-Jane Hutt, is back on stage — the first stage of her prize-winning world tour. The first stop: El Salvador.

The 19-year-old Miss Hutt set out Sunday on a trip to raise money for children in a military hospital.

At Heathrow Airport reporters asked her if there is a man in her life. "No special man," she replied.

She also said as far as deciding what the future will hold, "I am just going to concentrate on my year as Miss World."

Sells Lessons On How To Flirt - A Lost Art

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sidelong glance. A welcoming smile. While it may seem just a social game, flirting in fact is the "antidote to loneliness" that anyone can learn, say two self-certified experts on the sexy subject.

"Flirting is a lost art that can be taught," says Diane Jonasson, and for $45, she and partner Patty Stine will guide even the most timid through their daylong "Learn to Flirt" seminar.

Ms. Jonasson, 40, draws on memories of nights she spent waiting for suitors who never showed and the self-help courses those waits prompted her to take.

Ms. Stine, 36, contributes her experiences with the "gorgeous body-builder jock type" she once favored exclusively — to the point of marrying one — before learning to look at "every thing else that makes a good man."

"Flirting should be a way of life," Ms. Jonasson, a public relations professional, said in a recent interview.

"Babies and toddlers are the most flirtatious people of all. They'll do anything to get your attention. We feel the adult can go back to that little kid in all of us and be a little more friendly, a little more open, a little more excited with life."

Ms. Stine, a Los Angeles County employee, concedes that flirting "got a very bad connotation because people do it just to feed their own egos, when actually some people can really use it to meet people and to keep yourself from being alone. Flirting is promising something that you have no intention of giving, and flirting is a way of communicating with people."

To begin, they say, don't regard the opposite sex as the enemy.

Men and women both want the same thing," Ms. Jonasson said. "The new flirter must overcome often sizable fears of taking risks, of failing and of rejection."

"There are no guarantees that you're not going to get rejected," Ms. Stine added. "You have to take responsibility for the fact that your loneliness is self-inflicted. You can convince yourself there's nobody out there for you, then you don't have to go out and put forth the effort."

The two women based the courses they've offered since summer on similar ones developed by Mollie Meyers

Drug Solutions On Grand Scale

WEST POINT, Pa. (AP) — American research and development in pharmaceutical technology may often have important health benefits for people of underdeveloped nations.

A disease called "river blindness," prevalent in Africa, is the second leading cause of blindness in the world, according to Merck Sharp & Dohme research laboratories here. Now, early research indicates the disease — caused by parasitic worms — may be treatable with a new drug called ivermectin, now in use in the U.S. to cure parasitic roundworm diseases in horses and cattle, it says.
