Proceeding On 40-Unit Housing Project

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A notice to proceed with construction of the Housing Authority's new 40-unit conventional housing development in the West Meadowbrook area has been executed with the general contractor, who has a year to complete the project.

Joe Laney, the authority's executive director, said Monday night that Eastern Construction Co. of Greenville has initiated site work and hopefully will get started on foundations before cold winter weather sets in.

Laney urged commissioners to consider a possible name for the project, which has been designated as N.C. 22-8. The new units will be constructed on scattered sites.

The director said construction is progressing well on the 40-unit Greentree Village townhouse development off East 10th Street, with initial occupancy possibly 30-60 days away. Greentree is being developed by the Westminster Co. of Greensboro through financing made possible by the authority's creation of the Greenville Housing Development Corp. Laney said Westminster plans a two-phased development for Greentree.

Section 8 activity continues to be steady, Laney reported, with 99 out of 100 authorized units leased under the existing housing segment and 108 leased out of 109 units allowed under the moderate rehabilitation program. All 60 units in the University Towers mid-rise for the elderly are rented, he said.

Laney distributed copies of an audit report of authority activities for the two-year period ending Sept. 30. The review indicated that all of the projects operated by the agency are in sound financial shape.

Ken Noland, director of operations, said phase one of modernization activities in the Kearney Park development are continuing, with about 50 workers on hand each day. He said new windows are going in at a rapid pace and siding is being installed. The installation of furnaces continues and interior painting is progressing, Noland said.

Sallye Streeter, director of resident affairs, reported that four temporary vacancies existed among the authority's 702 housing units at the end of November. She said average rents included N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $110.69; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $116.82; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $114.63; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $107.69; N.C. 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $89.06; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $103.51. The overall average amounted to $108.57.

Laney said Martha Roberson, who has been with the authority for 15 years, is leaving to join a Greenville firm. Commissioners adopted a resolution citing Mrs. Roberson for her years of service.

Bus In Jerusalem Bombed

Report 3 Israeli Aircraft Lost

By G.G. LABELLE
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria reportedly shot down three Israeli aircraft and captured an Israeli pilot today, and a bomb tore apart a bus in Jerusalem, killing at least one person and wounding more than 40. One witness in Jerusalem counted five people killed.

The Tel Aviv military command said one pilotless Israeli reconnaissance drone was shot down over eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley. Syria said it shot down two of the unmanned craft, and Beirut radio said a manned Israeli warplane was downed and its pilot captured.

The explosion in Jerusalem blew the roof off the bus as it waited at a traffic light. Hadassah Hospital said it received one dead person and 10 wounded, and Shaarei Zedek Hospital said it received 33 wounded. Photographer Eli Hershkovitz counted five people killed by the blast.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility. Moslem west Beirut, meanwhile, closed down in a general strike to protest the car bomb that killed 16 people Monday.

A shadowy group calling itself the Front for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners claimed responsibility for Monday's bombing, which shattered a nine-story apartment building in west Beirut. The same group claimed responsibility for several previous attacks on Palestinian and Syrian targets, but in this case there seemed to be no political target.

The state radio, which reported the group's claim, said the official death toll was 16 killed and 100 wounded.

On a brighter note, the English-language Beirut Daily Star resumed publication today, exactly eight years after suspending operations during the 1975-76 civil war.

In a front-page column, publisher Jamil K. Mrowa called the renewal of publication "an act of faith in this Lebanon which many think nor longer exists... We believe Lebanon will make it."

However, the paper was filled with news of the car bombing, the drop of the Lebanese pound to its lowest level ever, and American and Syrian threats tsemning from the first U.S. air raids in Lebanon — carried out Sunday against Syrian positions in the central mountains.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Beirut said today the body of Lt. Mark A. Lange, 27, of Fraser, Mich. — killed when two American planes were shot down in the raid — had not yet been turned over to U.S. officials.

Another U.S. pilot, Lt. Robert O. Goodman, 26, of Virginia Beach, Va., was captured by the Syrians, who say they will hold him until U.S. forces leave Lebanon. U.S. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick appealed Monday to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar for help in gaining Goodman's release.

Damascus radio, Syria's government-run station, warned today of a growing conflict with the United States.

"The United States is playing with fire, pushing tension in the Middle East to the brink of war," the radio said.

NATO Ministers Urge New Proposals To Limit Missiles

By ROBERT WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — NATO's European defense ministers urged Moscow today to come up with new proposals on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe and to return to arms negotiations in Geneva.

The issues of the medium-range missile talks — broken off by the Soviets — and recent developments in the Mideast were the top subjects of discussion for a two-day NATO strategy session. U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was ready to defend the U.S. military role in Lebanon when he joins the talks later.

The 12 European defense ministers of the alliance met and declared that the possibilities of reaching an accord on the medium-range weapons in Europe "were not exhausted."

"We should have Soviet indications and proposals on how to resume the negotiations," said Norway's defense minister, Andres C. Sjaastad.

"Bi and large we think the time is ripe to try to reconstruct the dialogue" between the Soviet Union and the United States at Geneva, Switzerland, but, Sjaastad added, "we do not think that we should now be the one to initiate" the move.

The Soviets left the Geneva talks on medium-range missiles on Nov. 23 after the first of 572 U.S. nuclear missiles began arriving in Western Europe.

The ministers said the deployment of the cruise and Pershing 2 missiles "could be halted or reversed if an agreement was reached."

Sjaastad said the European defense ministers discussed the possibility of merging negotiations on long-range, strategic weapons, which continued in Geneva, with the talks on medium-range missiles.

The Soviet Union and the United States have so far opposed merging the talks.

In discussions about Lebanon, mounting Marine casualties and U.S. air strikes against Syrian positions have increased questions about the role of the multinational force in Lebanon. Italy hinted Monday that it may withdraw its contingent of soldiers.

Parker To Seek Assembly Seat

AHOSKIE — Publisher Joe M. Parker announced today that he will be a candidate in the Democratic primary next May for the 6th District seat in the N.C. House of Representatives.

The district includes parts of Pitt, Bertie, Martin and Hertford counties.

He is president of Parker Brothers Inc. and two other printing and publishing firms headquartered in Ahoskie. Among the firm's publications are the Bertie Ledger-Advance in Windsor and the Ahoskie News-Herald.

Parker said he will seek to succeed incumbent Rep. John B. Gillam III of Windsor, who has announced he will challenge U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones for the 1st Congressional District seat.

"With the reduced delegation northeastern North Carolina can send to the Legislature because of redistricting, it is vital that we send people to Raleigh who know how to get things done to adequately represent our part of the state," said Parker.

He stated, "Because of my past work on behalf of northeastern North Carolina and

County Saves Money In Work Program

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The community work experience program — CWEP — operated by the Pitt County Department of Social Services is saving the county money, Director of Social Services Ed Garrison told the Board of County Commissioners Monday.

Garrison, reminding the board that Pitt is one of seven counties in the state participating in the demonstration program, said that for the July-August-September quarter, CWEP, also known as "workfare," saved the county $34,000.

Since the program began in July 1982, 279 people formerly receiving financial assistance have been placed in jobs after receiving on-the-job training and work experience with public and non-profit agencies in the county. The retention rate for people placed in jobs,

Garrison said, is 85 percent. "It is not a lucrative program as far as federal participation is concerned," Garrison said. But he suggested that, through training gained under CWEP, welfare recipients can become "tax-paying citizens and contribute to the community."

According to a Department of Human Resources report on CWEP activities, Pitt County is leading the other six counties — Ashe, Caldwell, Davidson, Moore, Nash and Rowan — in participation and success.

The report showed that the 176 persons actively participating in CWEP in Pitt during the quarter which ended Sept. 30 worked a total of 6,237 hours with public and non-profit agencies as part of their work training.

Since July of 1982, the 1,135 participants have worked a total of 32,005 hours. Garrison set the value of the community service work performed by CWEP participants at $107,000.

The 499 active participants in the other six counties worked a total of 15,953 hours, while for the entire program period, the 2,144 participants in the other counties worked a total of 64,867 hours.

World's Yuletide Fare Differs

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

For many food writers, Christmas is the signal for eulogizing roast turkey and the trimmings. We occasionally pay tribute to the yuletide roast goose of England, and that's about it.

This year, I have been browsing through foreign cookbooks to see how the yule is celebrated abroad and have made some interesting discoveries. In many countries Christmas Eve is as big an occasion for feasting as the Big Day, and many omit turkey on both occasions.

In Germany, which is rich in game, many cooks build the holiday feast around a wild boar or saddle of venison, especially if there is a hunter in the family. The Germans also have a lavish supper the night before Christmas, usually omitting meat and serving carp or some other fish instead.

In Poland, Christmas Eve is a festive day, with the meal running 12 courses in many homes, to symbolize the Apostles. As in Germany, the Poles avoid meat the night before Christmas with the accent on fish. Herring salad and stuffed pike usually lead off the feast, followed by a large fish, baked or fried and accompanied by sauerkraut or cabbage-stuffed dumplings.

In provincial France, Christmas Eve is also a time-honored event. In the Mediterranean region of Provence, the main dish is usually eel, baked on a layer of chopped leeks moistened with white wine and flavored with garlic, bay leaves and black olives.

In Scandinavia, where December is the bleak time of year when nights are longest, Christmas is an antidote for the gloom. Christmas Eve is the most lavish meal of the year in most homes, but most Scandinavians keep feasting right on through Christmas Day.

In Sweden, for instance, they usher in the yule with a ham and red cabbage that is deliciously flavored. This is accompanied by many side dishes in this land of smorgasbord, such as liver paste, spareribs, spicy sausage and pickled herring. A high point of the meal comes when everyone dips bits of rye bread into the pot of broth in which the ham and sausages were boiled. Here's a recipe for the Swedish red cabbage, called Rodkaal.

- 1 medium head red cabbage,
- about 2½ pounds
- 4 tablespoons butter, in small pieces
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1-3rd cup water
- 1-3rd cup white vinegar
- ¼ cup currant jelly
- 2 tablespoons grated apple

Wash cabbage in cold water, remove tough outer leaves and cut head in half, top to bottom. Lay flat sides down on chopping board, cut away core and slice cabbage finely. Combine butter, sugar, salt, water and vinegar in 5-quart casserole, preferably stainless steel.

When mixture comes to boil and butter has melted, add shredded cabbage and toss well. Bring to boil again, cover and cook in 325-degree oven 2 hours. If cabbage becomes dry, add water. About 10 minutes before vegetable is done, add jelly and grated apple. Replace cover and complete cooking. Serve hot with the roast.

Forced Heirship In State Of Louisiana

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Heartbroken Mother," who had a decision to make concerning how her estate should be divided among her children, you responded with the question: "Where is it written that children should automatically get what their parents have worked and saved for?"

The answer is: "In the Constitution of the state of Louisiana," Abby, Louisiana is the only state in the United States that has what is known as "forced heirship." It's 25 percent to 50 percent—depending on the number of children—of the deceased parent's estate, irrespective of whether the children are deserving, or whether it was the wish of the parent to exclude a child from the inheritance.

The majority of Louisiana residents are not aware of this law. You would be doing the people of Louisiana a great service if you would print this letter and make them aware of this archaic and unjust law in order for them to take action through their legislators and correct this injustice.

STUCK IN LOUISIANA

DEAR STUCK: If anyone living in the state of Louisiana wishes to challenge this so-called "archaic and unjust law," I recommend that he/she retain a Louisiana attorney and go to work on it. I have an agreement with the Louisiana Bar Association—its members don't write advice columns and I don't practice law.

DEAR ABBY: Being a single girl, I am at a loss as to how to graciously turn down a date. There are some men whom I choose not to date for one reason or another, but I can't think of a polite way of saying, "Thanks, but no thanks" without hurting their feelings.

If I say, "I'm busy next Saturday night," they ask for Sunday, or Monday, or Tuesday, and I have to lie again. And when I say I'm busy on all those dates, I am asked when my first free evening is, and then I am stuck! Abby, can you, or any of your readers, suggest a polite way to decline without hurting a man's feelings?

THANKS, BUT NO THANKS

DEAR THANKS: Although it would save him a lot of time and repeated turn-downs, it's not easy to tell a man that you don't want to go out with him next Saturday, Sunday, Monday or ever, without hurting his feelings.

Gentlemen? Ladies? Here's a tough one for you, and I welcome your suggestions.

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago our home was burglarized. Fortunately, we were insured. Among the items that were stolen I listed a pair of diamond earrings valued at $3,500. My insurance company reimbursed me for the earrings and I replaced them with a similar pair.

A few days ago I discovered my "stolen" earrings in an evening bag I seldom use. What should I do now?

MIXED EMOTIONS

DEAR MIXED: Inform your insurance company immediately that the earrings you thought were stolen were only misplaced. And be prepared to return the $3,500.

(If you're single and want to know how to meet someone decent, see page 20 of Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular." Send $2, plus a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A few decades ago, two food entrepreneurs in Oregon started a new trend. They made a round, fairly shallow fruitcake of candied fruit and whole nuts with the merest lacing of batter.

Eventually, an acquaintance of mine — the distinguished director of a large test kitchen — copycatted the recipe for home use. It has been in my files ever since.

This year a friend of mine asked to borrow the copycat recipe so she could try it with whole macadamia nuts and update it. She did just that and sent me a sample. I think devotees of macadamias will be pleased with this confection.

MACADAMIA FRUITCAKE

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup unbleached all-purpose flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon baking powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoon ground allspice
 $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1-3rd cup butter, cut up or at room temperature
3 tablespoons firmly packed light brown sugar
3 tablespoons honey
2 large eggs
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 cup (7 ounces) candied cherries
1 cup (7 ounces) candied pineapple chunks
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup (6 ounces) candied orange peel, finely cut $\frac{1}{2}$ cup (6 ounces) candied lemon peel, finely cut
 $3\frac{1}{2}$ cups (16 ounces) salted macadamia nuts
Grease a round layer cake pan (8 by 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches). Line bottom with wax paper and grease paper.

On another sheet of wax paper or in a small bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt, allspice and nutmeg.

In a large bowl cream the butter and brown sugar. Beat in the honey until blended. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, until blended each time. Stir in one-third of the flour mixture and then 1 tablespoon of the orange juice; repeat, ending with the flour. Spread 1-3rd of the batter over the bottom of the prepared pan.

Reserve some cherries for a garnish. Into the batter in the bowl, stir in remaining cherries, pineapple, orange peel, lemon peel and macadamias. Spoon over batter already in the pan. With a small spatula level the top. Decorate with the reserved cherries, pressing down firmly. Cover with greased foil.

Place in a larger baking pan containing $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch hot water. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven for 1 hour. Remove from water bath. Continue baking until cake is firm — about 1 hour longer. Place on a wire rack for 10 minutes. With a small metal spatula loosen edge; turn out on

When Prof. Irwin Corey wore gym shoes with a tuxedo, little did he know he was 30 years ahead of his time.

When there was a transit strike in New York, women, faced with walking long distances, wore tennis shoes to work. That was several years ago.

They're still wearing them.

Tennis shoes have become a shoe for all seasons.

Frankly, I never thought I'd accompany my husband to a formal wedding where the stars on his shoes matched the groom's tie.

I was going out with my son the other night when he looked at my shoes.

"Where do you think you're going in those tennis shoes?"

"What's the matter with them?" I asked.

"Nothing if you're shooting baskets in them. You go right upstairs and change them this minute."

"But everybody else's kids let them wear gym shoes."

"I'm not everybody else's kid," he said. "Go!"

"But they're comfortable," I said stubbornly.

"Of course they are, but they're not supposed to be worn 24 hours out of every day. You'll ruin your feet."

Managing Events Is Big Job

By JAMES E. WALTERS
Associated Press Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Miriam Boegle, who is in charge of an operation with a $7.2-million annual budget, says being a woman boss with many male employees doesn't pose a problem — and shouldn't.

She says she has found that "for the most part it's a matter of getting a job done — professionals working with professionals."

"You have a handful of people in a lifetime you work for," she told a reporter. "I can look back at my former bosses, and I can look at problems and things that were good."

"But it wasn't at all related to whether they were men or women. It was strength or weakness, or characteristics they had as individuals."

"So the woman-man thing just falls right in with the various characteristics as individuals, and to my mind, that's what makes a person hard or easy to work for."

She said she was pleased to see more women assuming executive roles.

At the age of 38, she is assistant vice president for public events at Arizona State University, a job she has held since 1979.

Her management responsibilities range from Gammage Center for the Performing Arts, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and internationally recognized for its acoustics, to Sun Devil Stadium, which seats some 70,000 for football.

She feels her own job probably is easier since she specializes in the entertainment field: "The entertainment field historically has been color-blind, race-blind, sex-blind. It's what you do as a performer that counts."

"The nuances are there at all kinds of levels, of course," she said. "Actually, it makes it interesting. I think men dealing only with men, or women dealing only with women, or one race dealing with one race, is well, sort of boring."

She doesn't decide on opponents for athletes — the Athletic Department does that — but she does manage the sports facilities and makes the decision on performers such as the San Francisco Symphony, country singer John Denver, the Newport Jazz Festival All Stars, the Dance Theater of Harlem or rock stars The Who.

"We can do pretty much what we want to, as long as we remain self-sufficient," she said.

She and her staff must be doing something right, as attested to by the box office receipts — much of them from the Phoenix area general public — and the autographed pictures from stars that fill an entire wall of her spacious office in Gammage.

Arizona State, with the nation's sixth largest enrollment, is not isolated like many college campuses but is located near the heart of the metropolitan Phoenix area.

"We have the facilities to provide the highest quality not only for students but for folks who want to see a Broadway musical, say, and can afford a $19.50 ticket," she said.

As a student at the University of Wisconsin, she dreamed of being on the stage as a major-leaguer in music.

"But I wasn't good enough for a career as a performer. There's only a handful of people who are. About that time I became impressed with the fact there weren't too many people who could do administrative type of work either," she said.

"And while the great performers need to be heard unless they have people such as our staff giving them the opportunity."

She says a good staff is an absolute necessity in making sure the entertainers will fill a facility.

Little Has Changed

We read that results of North Carolina's adopting the mixed-drink sales measure didn't match supporters' predictions and failed to match the opposition's predictions. It should be no surprise.

Rarely does any legislation passed in the heat of debate match extravagant views of the debating sides.

For instance, supporters said mixed drinks would bring in billions of dollars in tax revenue. There was some revenue attributable to the measure; but not even close to those rosy estimates fed the public.

And while some travel industry businesses undoubtedly had their attention drawn by the then-new N.C. legislation, "demographics and geographic potentials" of the area were primary factors to a spokesman of a Dallas-based restaurant chain which has opened in four North Carolina cities in the past five years.

Opponents said mixed drinks would lead to a severe increase in drunken-driving accidents; but state officials say that has not happened. Instead, a tougher view of driving-while-impaired is a matter of record.

"We've looked at it from several different measures at several different points in time", said J. Richard Stewart, a researcher at the N.C. Highway Safety Research Center. "Overall, there have been no major changes (since the advent of mixed drinks) either way. Things are generally the same."

It's well to remember these things when people get carried away with their arguments pro and con over any legislative changes. They do tend to exaggerate.

Sense Of Sadness

It is regrettable, indeed, when a high government official is convicted of any crime.

It happens, and the latest to be convicted is Rita Lavelle on charges of perjury and obstructing an investigation into the management of the nation's toxic waste cleanup program. It is expected that the conviction will be appealed.

Miss Lavelle had been an official with the Environment Protection Agency who was fired by the president.

If the conviction holds up through the appeals process, Miss Lavelle will eventually pay the penalty.

The conviction will not change the course of the nation, nor even that of the Reagan administration. It only leaves us all with a sense of sadness that one government official could have let us down.

Soft Justice

WASHINGTON — No one at the Department of Justice wants to say much about it, but top officials are fuming at what they regard as an appalling decision by a softhearted federal judge in Los Angeles. They regard the incident as symptomatic of the kind of jurisprudence that makes a cop turn gray.

This particular case involves a convicted racketeer and mobster by the name of Louis Tom Dragna. The story goes back at least five years, to the time the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force went to work on the Los Angeles family of the Mafia.

It was a difficult and dangerous investigation. Los Angeles is the acknowledged center of the sordid traffic in pornographic films and publications. Members of the Strike Force were dealing with such figures as Dominic Brooklier, whose record shows convictions for armed robbery and extortion, and Samuel Sciortino, who boasted of his involvement in 20 murders.

Early in 1980 the several defendants were indicted for attempting to shake down various pornographers in Southern California. The FBI had set up a fake company, "Forex," to deal in obscene films, and this undercover operation helped to make the case. A confessed hit man named Aladena "Jimmy the Weasel" Fratanno turned state's evidence.

In November 1980, after a seven-week jury trial, five of the mobsters were convicted of charges under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act. By this time thousands of man-hours and hundreds of thousands of dollars had been invested in the case. Look what happened: Brooklier, identified as the boss of the Mafia family, was sentenced to four years. Sciortino suffered the same slap on the wrist. Michael Rizzitello, who had four prior convictions for robbery, kidnapping and fraud, got five years. Jack LoCicero, identified as a Mafia figure for 32 years, got two years.

During the period covered by the indictment, the acting mob boss was Louis Tom Dragna. He is now 63. His father and his uncle have been identified as top-ranking figures in the Los Angeles family. Though Dragna has no record of prior convictions, his involvement as acting boss of the pornography extortion racket was abundantly proved to the jury.

But federal Judge Terry J. Hatter Jr., a Carter appointee to the bench in 1980, formed the opinion that Dragna was "genteel." The judge thought Dragna had been drawn into the conspiracy out of a sense of family loyalty. The judge saw Dragna as no more than a little old man trying to make a living in the dressmaking business. So Judge Hatter imposed a sentence of only two years and let the defendant go free on bail while the case was appealed.

To cut a long story short, the convictions were affirmed in September 1982. Months rolled by. In August of 1983 the Bureau of Prisons said Dragna would begin his sentence at a medium-security penal institution in Seagoville, Texas. Judge Hatter could not stand the thought of this "genteel" person in such bad company. He announced publicly that unless the bureau assigned Dragna to a "level one" institution — a treatment center without walls or armed guards — he would reduce the token sentence.

On Oct. 17, Judge Hatter did exactly that: He cut Dragna's sentence to one year in a community center.

The policeman's lot is not a happy one. Stories like this story tell us why. According to a Justice Department survey released last week, in one unidentified Western state in a recent 12-month period, only eight of every 100 persons arrested on felony charges were actually prosecuted. Of those eight, only five were convicted. Of those five, only two went to prison, and one of the two went to prison for less than a year. The wonder is that cops keep working at all.

State Attracting Foreign Investments

—Paul O'Connor—

RALEIGH — North Carolina is enjoying a banner year for the recruitment of foreign industry, the director of the International Division of the Department of Commerce reports.

James R. Hinkle writes in the November issue of "North Carolina" magazine, the official publication of the N.C. Citizens for Business and Industry, that new international investment in the state this year should reach $220 million. That would eclipse the state record of $206.2 million set in 1979.

As of the end of September, 18 foreign companies had announced $206 million worth of investment in new and expanded business and industrial facilities this year. When Gov. Jim Hunt returned from Europe in November, he announced four more foreign investments which amounted to about $17 million.

This year's figures represent a dramatic improvement over 1982 when $127.5 million was invested in the state by foreign industries and businesses. Hinkle saw a silver lining even in 1982's gray cloud, however. Of the 88 new foreign investments made in the entire United States that year, 22 were in North Carolina. In all, 33 foreign firms either came to the state for the first time in 1982 or expanded their operations here.

In one area of foreign investment, Hinkle does not expect North Carolina to be a national leader. That investment comes when a foreign firm either buys out an American firm or its parent company. Speaking of Northern states like New York and Pennsylvania, he said there are "many, many more companies there for sale." In North Carolina, there are "fewer and fewer companies that are willing to sell."

England has traditionally led all foreign countries in the amount of money invested in the state. According to figures compiled by the Commerce Department, it continues to do so after 1983's announcements are added. Next comes West Germany, then Japan, Canada and Holland. (The Commerce figures, however, do not include investment made before Hunt took office in 1977.) For the 10 years prior to 1977, Hinkle says, there was little foreign investment in the state, only about $30 million a year.)

Hinkle says that the major story in those rankings is Japan. Until a few years ago, the Japanese had made little investment in the state. It "was almost nil," he says. "They had previously concentrated their investments on the west coast." But several years ago the Japanese, for a number of reasons, began locating new investments in the east and especially in the Southeast.

Japan was certainly the biggest investor this year. Three announcements made this summer alone amounted to $79 million in new investment.

Hinkle says that the great number of new foreign firms operating in the state portends a great deal of expansion in the next decade. North Carolina has "a large new base (of foreign-owned firms) here being formed that really hasn't had time to do the expansion ... They're just getting started up. This $824 million (in new investments since 1977) — I would expect that in the next 10 years will probably add another billion dollars of expanded facilities if the normal course of events takes place."

With all of this new investment, the question still remains as to whether any new jobs are being created for North Carolinians. According to the Commerce Department, this year's foreign investments will create 3,050 new jobs in the state and the total of all foreign investment since 1977 has meant 16,229 new jobs. Some of those jobs have not come on line yet, however.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I am upset and disappointed with the actions taken by the city of Greenville regarding the flags flying over the Town Commons. I am especially concerned over the apparent decision to remove two flags which were freely donated to the city by the Pitt County Historical Society.

One of these flags, known as the Confederate Battle Flag, is recognized as the flag of the Confederate States of America. While it was not adopted as a national flag, it was officially designated as the Battle Flag of the Confederate Army after the first Battle of Bull Run, and was the flag carried into battle for the remainder of the war. This flag has kept its distinction through the years and appears countless times in Civil War literature and memorabilia. It is even incorporated into the state flags of Georgia and Mississippi. It also appears on thousands of Confederate monuments scattered throughout the South, including the one on the courthouse lawn in Greenville.

The flag which will be the replacement for the Battle Flag is commonly known as the "Stars and Bars." It was adopted by the Confederate Congress in March 1861, before North Carolina seceded from the Union. It was later replaced by a new flag incorporating the Battle Flag in the upper left hand corner on a field of white. Neither of these two national flags approaches the historical significance of the Battle Flag.

The history of our county, state and country make up our heritage which we, as Southerners, all share. Our forefathers, through their courage on the battlefields, the hardships they endured and the monuments they inspired, showed the devotion they felt toward the flag they had fought for. I urge the citizens of Greenville to contact the mayor and City Council members to ask that the Battle Flag be restored to its proper place with the other flags of history flying over the Town Commons.

To the editor:

I would like to address this letter to the people whose dog I hit Monday morning at 5 a.m.

Dear Dog owner:

You apparently don't realize that Greenville has a leash law which forbids you to let your dog run around indiscriminantly. When I hit your dog, it was standing in the middle of the street. Fortunately, I didn't kill it, but its broken leg and whimpers of pain as it crawled away didn't make me feel very happy about your lack of care for your pet. If you truly loved your pet, you would accept the responsibility that goes along with owning one; that means looking after its welfare, not pushing it out the door at dark like a piece of trash.

I called the Police Department, since they are in charge of animal control, but they were unable to find your dog. That means your pet had to wander around with broken bones from 5 a.m. until you got up to go to work. Can you imagine what it might feel like to wander around, unaided, for several hours with a severely broken leg?

I called animal control later in the morning to ask about the leash laws. A very polite, concerned woman gave me some facts that might interest you for monetary reasons, since your pet's life apparently isn't a good enough reason for you to keep track of where your pet is. If your dog is found, there will be a $10 pickup fee and you will be issued a warning citation — this is if your dog has tags (which yours does not). If your dog is picked up a second time, there will be a $15 pickup fee, plus a $15 citation, plus a $5 fine for each tag your dog is missing. Of course, if the dog has no tags, it would be put up for adoption after seven days. If not adopted, it will be put to sleep.

To leave you with a final question, if you don't care enough for your dog to look after it, why did you get it in the first place?

To the editor:

I feel I must respond to Mr. Charles G. Clark's letter appearing in the Nov. 29, 1983, issue of The Daily Reflector. Mr. Clark's letter dealt with the cost of the new holiday in memory of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Let me preface my remarks by stating that my personal beliefs concerning this holiday are now, and will remain private, but logic demands revenge.

Mr. Clark states that according to figures available to him, the new holiday will "cost" ... a staggering $5.26 billion ... I accept Mr. Clark's figures, and agree, the amount is indeed staggering.

But, if I read the information correctly, doesn't this cost apply to ANY holiday, not just the one for Dr. King? In other words, doesn't Thanksgiving cost $5.26 billion? Doesn't Washington's birthday cost a staggering $5.26 billion?

If the costs apply across the board, let's do away with all holidays. (Just think how happy Thanksgiving turkeys would be.) If the costs pertain only to Dr. King's holiday, I question their validity. The merits of Dr. King's holiday MUST be argued using terms other than money. I am sure the cost argument has nothing to do with Dr. King's race ...

Strength For Today

The word "gregarious" means the disposition of people to get together with their fellows and not habitually to live a life of solitary isolation. The word comes from a Greek term which means to gather together.

Nothing is more productive of unhappiness than a complete lack of the gregarious instinct. The solitary man or woman leads a pathetic and miserable life.

But gregariousness also has its dangers. One can easily be swayed by the ideals of the crowd if he has a pronounced liking for that crowd. The gregarious person seldom makes strong protest against evils in his environment.

Furthermore, the gregarious person is always being prodded to be popular. If he is in politics, the gregarious instinct is a great asset. Quite likely he can see his influence over other people increase. But in this very process, gregariousness may also lead to compromise and a persistent moral anemia.

Congress Set A Record Of Sorts

Both records have been eclipsed in the intervening even-numbered years, when Congress holds its second sessions and customarily passes more measures than in the first sessions.

So if history is a guide, the 611 that were passed by the House and the 590 by the Senate in the session that ended Nov. 18 will be nothing to what the lawmakers accomplish, in quantity anyway, after they return Jan. 23.

The Democratic group says the House's record for this year was 178 more than were passed in the first session of the last Congress, but 55 shy of the 652 passed in the first session of the 96th Congress in 1979.

The Senate's output exceeded its 1981 mark by 103 measures but was 62 fewer than the 652 that the Senate cleared in 1979.

Fewer measures were approved by the committees than by the full House and Senate, because some minor resolutions such as those declaring national doughnut day and the like do not require committee action.

For the record, House committees reported out 497 measures this year, compared with 336 in 1981 and 614 in 1979. Senate committees approved 570 measures this year, 460 in 1981 and 614 in the first session of the 96th Congress.

When Israeli Prime Minister Yitshak Shamir visited the Capitol, the announcement said the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Senate Armed Services Committee, the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the House Armed Services Committee would meet with him in Room S-116 of the Capitol.

Now, Senate Armed Services has 18 members, Foreign Relations 17, House Armed Services 45 and Foreign Affairs 37. That adds up to 117 people in a room that will seat about a third that many with some squeezing.

Santa the Turk

Today is the festival of St. Nicholas, the figure on whom the modern Santa Claus is based. St. Nicholas was the Bishop of Myra who, in the fourth century, presided in a region that is now Turkey. In eastern nations, St. Nick is the patron saint of sailors. In the West children are his special concern. St. Nicholas was the patron saint of Russia before the 1917 Revolution. Northern Europeans began the tradition of giving gifts in his name.

Seven Charged In Arson Cases

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)

Seven people, including a Seagate firefighter, have been charged with setting five fires, and more arrests are expected, authorities say.

New Hanover County Sheriff Joseph McQueen, who announced the arrests on Monday at a news conference, said the investigation will continue until "we are satisfied" all arsonists in the Seagate area are caught.

More than 35 suspicious fires have hit the Seagate fire district in the past two years, McQueen said. Seagate is a small town located near Wilmington.

Among those arrested was firefighter Kenneth L. Smith, 18. Smith was charged with unlawful burning in three 1982 Seagate fires and was being held under $9,000 bond, authorities said.

Shoppers For Christmas Trees Wear Few Frowns

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer
There's something special, even magical, about walking between rows of freshly cut Christmas trees.

Maybe it has something to do with the pungent pine aroma, or the bright eyed children, maybe even fantasies of Christmases past or dreams of what the holidays could be. But no matter what the reason, you won't see any frowns on the faces of the thousands of Pitt Countians who will visit local Christmas tree lots this season.

The selection of trees this year is as varied as the people who come out to buy. According to Jan Kittrell of Kittrell Greenhouses, tree shoppers are looking for beauty as well as value this year. "People are just as particular about the looks of the trees as they ever have been and are also shopping for prices more than usual."

Kittrell's is offering two varieties of trees this year. Canadian Balsam Firs (regular old Christmas trees) and local Virginia pines that look almost like Scotch pines, but are not as thick or heavy.

The Optimists have their traditional lot near Nichols this year and expect to sell more than 1,500 trees, according to V.D. Omary, who has been manning the pay booth since 1972. Omary said that the Christmas tree business has boomed since he first started working the Optimist tree sale. "Back then we would sell maybe, 100, 125 trees a season; 1,500 is a long way from that," he said.

There are a multitude of other lots around town in addition to these two, but if you're in a rush and want to combine tree shopping with grocery shopping, local grocery stores are the places to go.

"It's just another service we can offer to our customers during this season," Winn Dixie Manager Phillip Ward said. The trees available at the Carolina East Convenience Center Winn-Dixie are grown in Avery County.

If you're not in the market for a cut tree, you might consider visiting Sunshine Garden Center where live and artificial trees are available as well as cut trees. A center spokesman said that Sunshine is selling live Norway Spruce trees this year because they tend to grow better in this area than some of the other conifers. Should you purchase a live tree, he advised planting it in an area that receives "full sun".

Artificial trees are leaving Rose's in droves, according to store manager Bill Jones. "I was on the phone just this morning (Monday) ordering more trees because we had already sold all that we had anticipated. We had even gone up to the Raleigh store to get more, and sold all of those, too. It's just been phenomenal."

Jones said that the most popular artificial trees this year are the green Scotch and Canadian pines. "We got away from the silver, pink and other colored trees several years ago, but the flocked trees — the ones that already have snow blown on them — are selling well."

Not everyone, however, buys their trees. Quite a few people are plunging into the woods to scout out a natural tree to save money, and as one potential lumberjack said: "It kind of makes Christmas a bit more meaningful to have the simple things. Of course, we only cut on our own land and when we cut a tree, we make sure it's one that won't grow very well because it's shaded in by others. I guess that's sort of silly, because the trees that are sold on the lots are grown specifically for Christmas and you're not 'killing' a tree when you buy

one. I guess it's just my way."

New Drug Is Given Approval

Burroughs Wellcome announced that the Food and Drug Administration has approved what the company termed a "unique surgical muscle-relaxing drug with a built-in, self-destruct mechanism," the most recent advance in a medical field that began 40 years ago with the therapeutic use of the poison curare.

The pharmaceutical company said its new neuromuscular blocker, Tracrium brand atracurium besylate, prevents muscles from contracting to allow surgeons easier access to internal organs during procedures such as heart-bypass surgery, gall bladder and colon surgery.

Burroughs Wellcome said the drug's self-destruct mechanism, termed a "major advance in anesthesia," makes it relatively safer than currently available muscle relaxants and especially useful for patients at high risk for surgery — the elderly and those suffering from liver and kidney dysfunction.

The use of neuromuscular blockers as an adjunct to general anesthesia began in the 1940s with drugs derived from curare, a natural substance long used by South American Indians to poison the tips of darts and arrows. Curare relaxes muscles by blocking neurotransmitters, chemical messengers that carry signals from nerves to muscles.

Curare can be lethal because total muscle relaxation ultimately stops respiration, it was noted, but the potential benefits of its muscle-relaxing properties to surgeons were recognized as early as the 19th century.

Dr. Charles Lineberry, who led the Tracrium project group at Burroughs Wellcome, said the drug, a novel compound unrelated to curare, quickly breaks down in the body to inactive by-products. He said the self-destruct mechanism is the key to its safety.

Prison Stabbing Investigated

Officials are continuing an investigation into an incident Friday at the Eastern Correctional Center at Maury in which one inmate stabbed another in the neck, shoulder and back of head. The victim of the attack was treated at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and released.

Former Greenville Man Killed

Former Greenville resident Jon Catlett, 19, of Raleigh was killed in an automobile accident Sunday morning near Cary. His car, which ran off an embankment on old U.S. 1, was not found until Monday morning.

Trooper Billy George said Catlett was last seen by his girlfriend early Sunday morning when he dropped her off at her dormitory. He was headed home; he told her, and his parents alerted authorities after he did not arrive later Sunday. Catlett, a 1983 graduate of Millbrook High School, lived in Greenville during his childhood. He was employed by a Raleigh design firm and was taking flight lessons and planning to enter military pilot training in January 1984, his parents, L.G. and Cindy Catlett, said.

Cause Of Death Listed

Medical Examiner Stan Harris has ruled that a Route 5, Greenville, man whose body was found on the side of a road near Pactolus Monday died of alcoholism and exposure, according to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

The sheriff said the body of 69-year-old Manassus Moore, clad in socks and underwear, was discovered Monday morning at the edge of Secondary Road 1557 near the old Pactolus post office. He said the remainder of Moore's clothing, which contained his wallet, was found about 50 yards from the body.

RECORDS - HOW LONG?

Organizing, filing and retaining old records is a burden for many businesses and households. The following types of records and retention periods are general guidelines and should be tempered by your own business and investment concerns.

RECORDS	RETENTION PERIOD
Cancelled Checks	3 Years
Bank Deposit Slips	3 Years
Bank Statements	6 Years
Tax Returns	Permanent
Expense Reports	3 Years
Entertainment Records	3 Years
Financial Statements	Permanent
Contracts	Permanent
Minutes of Meetings	Life of Company
Corporate Stock Records	Permanent
Employee Records	Period of Employment plus 3 years
Depreciation Schedules	Life of Business plus 3 years
Real Estate Records	Permanent
Journal & General Ledger	Life of business plus 3 years
Inventory Record	3 Years

The normal statute of limitations on federal returns is three years. Under some circumstances it is six years, and if you fail to file a return or there is fraud involved, the statute of limitation does not close. This means that the Internal Revenue Service under normal conditions would audit your return any time up through three years. Since the statute of limitation in some states exceeds the federal statute, you should tailor your years of retention to the longer of the two statutes.

In deciding your own record retention schedule, consider keeping indefinitely those records which cannot be recreated by any other office, institution or governmental unit.

Concerned

ST. JOHNS, Antigua (AP) — Attorney General Keith Forde says his government is concerned about the discovery of a cache of arms with Cuban and Soviet markings on one of Antigua's offshore islands.

"In view of the recent developments in Grenada, the government is treating the matter very seriously," he said Monday.

Antigua is one of the five small Eastern Caribbean states that joined in the Oct. 25 U.S.-led invasion of Grenada.

Taped Try To Bribe Sheriff

PAMLICO BEACH, N.C. (AP) — A Beaufort County man allegedly offered the county sheriff up to $100,000 to "look the other way" on drug-smuggling operations, according to a tape-recorded conversation.

Beaufort County Sheriff Nelson Sheppard testified Monday he made the tape of a July conversation with Masco E. Daniels without Daniels' knowledge. The tape was played during the first day of Daniels' trial on a charge of trying to bribe Sheppard.

Daniels has pleaded innocent, saying he was acting on behalf of federal authorities when he contacted Sheppard. But federal officials deny Daniels was authorized to bribe officials.

Prosecution testimony was scheduled to continue today before Judge Thomas S. Watts of Elizabeth City.

According to the tape recording, the voice identified as Daniels described smuggling activities in eastern North Carolina and told Sheppard that he had a letter of immunity from prosecution from federal officials.

Sheppard testified he met with Daniels on July 22 to discuss another legal matter and that Daniels told him he had a way to make money.

Sheppard said Daniels said the sheriff could make up to $100,000 from drug-smuggling operations, and later said Sheppard could make $25,000 every three weeks.

Sheppard told the jury of nine men and three women that he used a secret microphone and recording device when he met with Daniels at his Pamlico Beach store on July 28.

During that conversation, Daniels said at least half of the illegal drugs in the country came through Hyde County and he said he had gathered information on participants, according to Sheppard and the recording.

"Quite frankly, I thought he was working for the federal government," Sheppard testified. He said he believed Daniels was trying to entrap him.

Long Named To AP All-America Team

NEW YORK (AP) — East Carolina offensive guard Terry Long has been named to the 1983 Associated Press All-America football team, along with Mike Rozier, Nebraska's Heisman Trophy-winning tailback, and Steve Young, Brigham Young's record-setting quarterback, and four players from the University of Texas, the most ever in the two-platoon era.

Long, a 6-0, 280-pounder from Columbia, S.C., is the first ever first team selection by the AP for East Carolina, which has had a number of second and third team selections in recent years. Long has already been named to the first team of the Kodak (Football Coaches of America), Walter Camp Football Foundation and the Football Writers of America All-America teams.

Four other Pirates were named to the Honorable Mention list. They included offensive lineman John Robertson, running back Earnest Byner, defensive end Jeff Pegues, and defensive back Clint Harris.

Rozier rushed for 2,148 yards, Marcus Allen's single-season record of 2,342 for Southern Cal in 1981. The Nebraska star led the nation with a per-game average of 179.0, some 27.4 better than the runnerup. Although he played only three seasons, Rozier is the sixth leading rusher in major-college history with 4,780 yards and only Georgia's Herschel Walker had more in a three-year career.

Young led the nation in total offense (4,346 yards, 395.1 per game) and passing efficiency and finished his career with at least 13 NCAA total offense and passing records. The senior left-hander connected on 306 passes this season — an NCAA record — in 429 attempts for 3,902 yards and 33 touchdowns, with only 10 interceptions. His 71.33 completion percentage also was a national record.

The Texas representatives are offensive guard Doug Dawson and three members of the nation's No. 1-ranked defense — linebacker Jeff Leiding, cornerback Mossy Cade and free safety Jerry Gray.

Only once before since the AP All-America team began in 1925 has a school placed as many as four players on the elite squad. That was in 1945 when Army had five players on what was then an 11-man All-America team.

Since the All-America squad has consisted of both offensive and defensive teams — 1950-52 and beginning again in 1964 — only Oklahoma, with three defenders in 1975, and Michigan, with three members on offense in 1981, have placed three players on one unit.

Nebraska and BYU each has two players on the 1983 All-America team. Rozier is joined by wide receiver Irving Fryar, while BYU tight end Gordon Hudson made it for the second year in a row, one of four repeaters.

The AP All-America team will be featured Monday, Dec. 19, on Bob Hope's Christmas show (NBC-TV, 8-9 p.m., EST).

The 24-man team consists of 19 seniors, four juniors and sophomore running back Bo Jackson of Auburn. Besides Hudson, others who made the team for the second year in a row are offensive tackle Bill Fralic of Pittsburgh, outside linebacker Wilber Marshall of Florida and inside linebacker Ricky Hunley of Arizona.

The juniors are Gray, Fralic, placekicker Luis Zendejas of Arizona State and middle guard William Perry of Clemson.

The rest of the offense consists of wide receiver Gerald McNeil of Baylor, tackle Brian Blados of North Carolina, guard Terry Long of East Carolina and center Tom Dixon of Michigan.

Others on defense are outside linebacker Ron Rivera of California, tackles Rick Bryan of Oklahoma and Reggie White of Tennessee, inside linebacker Carl Banks of Michigan State, deep back Russell Carter of Southern Methodist and punter Jack Weil of Wyoming.

Rozier, Bryan and Carter all moved up from the 1982 second team to this year's first team, while Perry jumped from the third team to the first unit. Penn State wide receiver Kenny Jackson made the second unit this year after being a first-teamer in 1982 and roverbater Terry Hoage of Georgia, one of the nation's top defensive players and a first-teamer a year ago, is on the 1983 honorable mention list. Hoage probably would have made the first team had he played enough but he missed three games and a large portion of several others.

Auburn's Jackson concluded a superb regular season by rushing for 256 yards against Alabama on Saturday, including touchdown runs of 69 and 71 yards. He led the Southeastern Conference with 1,213 yards and was 10th nationally with 110.3 yards per game, but his average of 7.7 per carry was second only to Rozier's 7.8.

Hudson caught 44 passes for 596 yards and six touchdowns before he suffered a season-ending knee injury against Utah State on Oct. 29. However, his 178 career receptions and 2,484 yards are NCAA records for a tight end.

McNeil, Baylor's 140-pound speedster, caught 62 passes for 1,034 yards and eight touchdowns this wingback. Fryar, Nebraska's wingback, helped make the Cornhuskers the highest scoring team in history by catching 40 passes for 780 yards — a 19.5-yard average — and eight touchdowns and rushing 23 times for 318 yards and two scores.

With one season remaining, Zendejas has kicked an NCAA record 65 field goals in 85 attempts. This season, he was 28-of-37, with six of his misses from 50 yards or beyond.

Carolina Back Atop AP Poll

By DAVE KAPLAN
Associated Press Writer

Unbeaten North Carolina, the preseason No. 1 college basketball choice, regained the top spot from Kentucky today in the second weekly Associated Press poll.

After beating Stanford on Saturday for Coach Dean Smith's 500th career victory, the Tar Heels, 4-0, usurped Kentucky by four points in the nationwide balloting by a panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters.

Each collected 30 first-place votes. North Carolina attracted 1,221 points and Kentucky, 2-0, drew 1,217 points after struggling to beat unranked Indiana 54-64 Saturday to fall to second.

Kentucky had grabbed the top spot last week by three points over North Carolina. The Tar Heels managed to win Saturday despite getting only 7½ minutes of action from All-American Michael Jordan because of foul trouble.

Impressive showings by Georgetown — which received the other three first-place votes — and Memphis State secured the third and fourth spots, respectively. Georgetown, 4-0, got 1,115 points, and Memphis State, 4-0, drew 1,067 points.

Iowa, 3-0, remained No. 5 with 1,007 points after knocking off Oregon State 56-45 Saturday. The Beavers, who were previously ranked No. 10, dropped to No. 18.

No. 6 Houston, 3-1, and No. 7 UCLA, 3-0, each moved two notches after posting victories. The Cougars received 794 points and the Bruins, 784.

Defending NCAA champion North Carolina State, 5-1, which was humbled by Virginia Tech 89-65, slipped a rung to No. 8 with 771 points. Louisiana State, which raised its record to 4-0, advanced from 12th to ninth by collecting 690 points.

Georgia, 3-0, which squeezed by Georgia Tech 64-62 in its only game last week, also jumped three places, from 13th to No. 10 with 529 points.

Maryland, 2-1, which was rated No. 6 a week ago, fell to 11th place after losing to Ohio State.

Completing the Second Ten were Boston College, DePaul, Wichita State, Arkansas, St. John's, Michigan State, Oregon State, Purdue and Fresno State.

The only newcomer to this week's Top Twenty was Purdue, which claimed No. 19 after an impressive victory, its fourth straight, over Louisville. Dropping from the elite was Virginia Commonwealth, No. 20 last week.

AP Rankings

The Top Twenty teams in the Associated Press' 1983-84 college basketball poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 record through Sunday and last week's ranking.

Nebraska and Texas will continue their season-long race for the national championship in the bowl games — although not against each other — while Alabama enters post-season play as an unranked team for the first time in Ray Perkins' initial season as head coach.

In today's final regular-season Associated Press college football poll, the Top Ten remained the same as last week, while Alabama dropped out of the Top Twenty and Baylor and Oklahoma tied for the 20th spot.

The Associated Press will announce the 1983 national champion at 6:30 p.m., EST, on Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1984.

Nebraska, which has been No. 1 in every poll this season, received 51 of 54 first-place votes and 1,077 of a possible 1,080 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The 12-0 Cornhuskers will meet fifth-ranked Miami in the Orange Bowl.

Texas, 11-0, received the other three first-place votes and 1,028 points. A week ago, with 55 voters participating, Nebraska led 52-3 in first-place votes and 1,097-1,048 in points. Texas faces seventh-ranked Georgia in the Cotton Bowl.

Third-ranked Auburn was the only Top Ten team to play over the weekend. The Tigers clinched an undisputed Southeastern Conference championship by defeating Alabama 23-20 and received 961 points. Alabama, which had been as high as third during Perkins' first season as Bear Bryant's successor, will face Southern Methodist in the Sun Bowl.

The rest of the Top Ten, followed by the points: Illinois, 889; Miami, 875; SMU, 813; Georgia, 731; Michigan, 671; Brigham Young, 619; Iowa, 566.

In other bowl games which could have a bearing on the national championship, Auburn meets Michigan in the Sugar Bowl and Illinois plays UCLA in the Rose Bowl.

The Second Ten consists of Florida, Clemson, Boston College, Ohio State, Pittsburgh, Air Force and Maryland tied for 16th, followed by West Virginia, East Carolina and the Baylor-Oklahoma tie for 20th.

Last week, it was Clemson, Florida, B.C., Ohio State, Pitt, Maryland, Air Force, West Virginia, Alabama and East Carolina. Florida's 53-14 rout of Florida State lifted the Gators over Clemson, while Air Force's 38-7 triumph over San Diego State moved the Falcons into a 16th-place tie with Maryland.

Baylor, 7-3-1, made the rankings for the first time this season. The Bears meet Oklahoma State in the Bluebonnet Bowl. Oklahoma, which completed an 8-4 season with a 21-17 victory over Hawaii, returned to the Top Twenty after a four-week absence.

Young Jags Look Ahead To Improvement

FARMVILLE — When the Farmville Central Jaguars graduated eight players from the 1982-83 basketball team that won the Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference championship, Coach Mike Terrell knew rebuilding the team would take a lot of practice time.

But when eight of his new players were involved in the state Division II football playoffs until eight days before the start of basketball season, Terrell discovered their training would have to be "on the job."

That training started Friday with a 41-22 loss to Wilson Beddingfield, with Kent Hardy—the only Jaguar in double-digits with 12 points.

"We have a whole new team with the exception of (Donald) Tyson and (James) Newton," Terrell said, "and neither one of them played a lot last year. With our situation this year with football season carrying over, there's a lot you have to talk about rather than work on; it put us about two weeks behind everyone else."

"I didn't think we were in good shape (against Beddingfield). It's a big adjustment from football; basketball is all running. At the same time, the aggressiveness developed in football and the winning attitude should carry over."

Hardy and senior point guard Donald Tyson direct the Farmville offense, while Toronto Moye, Nat Norris, Eric Baker and Scott Lewis will fight for time at guard, as well. Thomas Ragins, Bernard Taylor, Andre Vines and Ronnie Barnes battle for slots in the Jaguars' front court.

"Any of those could move in and play," Terrell said. "They'll all get playing time until we determine the best people at each position. There's no way to develop a sound defensive team in just eight practices. Offensively, with a new team, it takes time to get used to each other and blend in."

"We must blend in as a team, work together on offense; we don't have any one outstanding player. Evans is a good shooter, but Hardy is our strongest player inside. We run a team offense — motion offense. It takes longer to learn, but in the long run it pays off."

Defensively, Terrell will rely on a trapping zone press from either a 3-2 or 1-3-1 configuration.

"I like the zone press on defense," Terrell said. "I like to play man-to-man, but that takes a lot of time to learn. Eventually we'll get to all of those things."

The Jaguars only have until December 16 before they enter the battle for the Eastern Carolina title. Farmville hosts Greene Central in the traditional inter-county rivalry.

"Greene Central has a good group returning," Terrell said. "They should be one of the stronger teams this year. North Pitt is always a factor in the conference, as well as SouthWest Edgecombe."

"If you play well as a team, that can go a long ways. We've been in this situation before; three years ago we lost a lot of people, but at the end of the season we beat the top two teams in the conference. Our team that won the championship last year played as sophomores and got their tails kicked; it could happen again."

"We may take a few lumps to begin with, but down the stretch I feel like we'll do all right. We may not be factor to win the championship, but I feel like we'll decide who does. We have a chance to be in the top four in the league."

The Lady Jaguars had more time to prepare, and came away with a narrow 48-46 victory for their efforts. Joy Peaden led Farmville with 11 points, while Stephanie Newton had 10.

Senior center Cynthia Hart is the Lady Jags' tallest player at 5-11, but Coach Hilda Worthington believes her team will compete with the best the Eastern Carolina 3-A has to offer. Newton and Peaden join Hart in the front court, while junior guards Debra Joyner and Kim Smith share the ballhandling.

"Newton has a soft touch around the basket, but she didn't show it Friday night," Worthington said. "She should be one of our leaders on offense. And Joyner has one of the best outside shots of any of them."

"I think a lot of it had to do with it being their first game, while Beddingfield had played one already. Our turnovers were not so bad, just our shooting."

But one of the biggest weapons the Lady Jaguars have is Lisa Lang, a 5-9 freshman who also excels on the track. Lang had nine points against Beddingfield but missed several shots inside when she was open.

"Lisa has a lot of athletic ability," Worthington said. "She jumped over 19 feet in one AAU (track) meet this summer and was part of the 400-meter relay team that went so far."

"She's very quick; maybe too quick right now. She has to let the ball catch up to her. She wants to be good, and she's got to learn the soft touch around the basket. She's going to be vying for a starting spot; she's going to help out a lot inside."

The Lady Jags will also rely on zone defense early in the season, while trapping at half court. But they had trouble offensively Friday when Wilson shifted to man-to-man.

"I thought we handled it well in the first and second quarter," Worthington said. "But we had trouble later in the game."

Worthington favors Greene Central and SouthWest Edgecombe in the conference race, but she's not willing to count anyone out.

"It kind of goes in cycles," she said. "When I first started coaching, North Pitt had it all; then Ayden-Grifton had the good teams for a couple of years. SouthWest has been strong for the last few years; maybe this year it'll be someone else."

Blue Devils Fly By South Florida

DURHAM (AP) — Duke captured its fourth straight victory thanks to a 23-3 scoring spree in the first half that left the Blue Devils flying and South Florida reeling.

Mark Alarie poured in 21 points and David Henderson scored a career-high 20 points off the bench as the Blue Devils whipped South Florida 95-66 Monday night.

South Florida led 31-29 midway through the first half, but Duke guards Tommy Amaker and Johnny Dawkins combined for 17 points in the final eight minutes as the Blue Devils outscored the Bulls 25-3 for a 54-34 halftime advantage.

"They scored 31 points in the first 12 minutes of the game. Then after a time out they only scored three more in the next eight minutes," said Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski.

"We were a little shell-shocked. They were just taking the ball by us. When we finally made the adjustment and started playing some defense, that was the turning point," he said.

South Florida coach Lee Rose said the Blue Devils full-court pressure "took the ball away from us. That was my fault because I had a couple of young players in there."

Duke, 4-0, coasted through the second half as South Florida, 2-2, never drew closer than 15 points and suffered its worst loss since a 75-39 setback at North Carolina in Dec. 1981.

Dawkins finished with 18 points and seven assists, while Amaker had 17 points and nine assists and Danny Meagher, a junior, chipped in 10.

Charlie Bradley paced South Florida with 17 points, far below his 30-point average entering the game. He also made only three of his last 17 shots.

"It wasn't the crowd," Bradley said. "It was my poor shooting. I have to forget this and get ready for the next game."

Jim Grandholm, a 7-foot-1 forward, added 14 for the Bulls and pulled down seven rebounds.

Duke outscored the Bulls from the field, hitting 27 of 67 shots to South Florida's 27 of 63. From the free-throw line, the Blue Devils were 21 of 30 while the Bulls hit 12 of 33.

Sasser Edges Robinson As Top AP Coach

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press

RALEIGH (AP) — Charlotte Myers Park second-year coach Glenn Sasser, who was selected Coach of the Year in North Carolina by The Associated Press, says he's not an easy coach to play for.

"I push them physically and mentally, but I don't feel bad about that," Sasser said. "You've only got 10 shots at it and we might as well take our best shot at it."

"But I think I'm fair with them. I think we have an obligation to work with the kids and do more than just showing them how to put on shoulder pads," he said.

Sasser guided his Mustangs to an unbeaten regular season, which helped him capture Coach of the Year honors by a 6 to 4 margin over Williamston coach Harold Robinson.

Fayetteville Douglas Byrd coach Bob Paroli was third with three votes in a vote of 25 North Carolina prep sportswriters. Ten other coaches also received votes.

"This is unreal," Sasser said after being told of the award. "I can't believe it."

"There's so many good coaches in this state. This has to be a reflection of my team and my assistant coaches because I ain't smart enough to coach by myself," he said.

"But, I'm not going to give it back."

Under Sasser, Myers Park won the Southwestern 4-A Conference title and finished the regular season with a 10-0 mark. The Mustangs advanced to the second round of the state playoffs before losing to eventual state champion Greensboro Page.

"It was just one of those things that everything fell into place. We had some decent kids and I don't have a weak assistant coach on the staff," he said.

"I don't think we have any major college prospects," Sasser said in a telephone interview. "But anytime you go 10-0 or 11-1, you've got to have some good players. It's just one of those things that everything fell into place."

In fact, Sasser said last year's team — which finished 5-5 — may have been better than this season's.

"We never got beat by more than six points, and that football team may have been better physically than this year's team," he said. "But I think the program is better this year because we've had a year to work with the coaches and players and the administration."

Sasser, 40, a Tarboro native, played defensive tackle for North Carolina State and played in the Blue-Gray game. After graduating in 1964, he played for the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL for one year before returning to N.C. State to coach the freshman team.

Later, Sasser was an assistant coach at Sanford before spending six years as head coach at New Hanover. He then left coaching to sell insurance. But two years later he was back coaching at Wilmington Laney. He stayed there as head coach six seasons before moving to Myers Park two years ago.

Still, he said he is not quite sure why he decided to return to coaching.

"I don't know why," Sasser said. "When I was out of coaching I really missed it. I just enjoy coaching. I guess it's sort of like a fraternity. But it's also a challenge. Every year it's something new."

Michigan Tops 'Dawgs'

By DICK JOYCE
AP Sports Writer

Michigan's Wolverines are off to a hot start in college basketball, making 10th-ranked Georgia, which made the NCAA Final Four last season, its fifth straight victim.

"We've got a good shot at getting in the Top Twenty," said Tim McCormick, 6-foot-11 junior center who tossed in a career-high 25 points and grabbed 12 rebounds in leading the Michigan to a 76-70 triumph at Atlanta Monday night. "And next year, the sky's the limit."

It was the Bulldogs' first loss in four starts this season.

In other games involving the Top Twenty, No. 12 Boston College ripped Puget Sound 88-71; No. 15 Arkansas scored a 79-50 home rout over East Tennessee State, and No. 20 Purdue downed visiting Boston University 77-65.

Michigan coach Bill Frieder was happy, yet apprehensive about his squad.

"I think this game proved to the kids that if they work hard and play well, they can win against almost anybody," said Freider. "We've got to prove we can win our league."

Michigan got off to a 9-1 start last season against non-conference opponents, then met its match in Big Ten play, finishing with a 15-13 overall record. The Wolverines finished ninth in the Big Ten with a 6-12 mark and returned all of their key players.

Michigan held the Bulldogs scoreless for nearly seven minutes in the second half. The Wolverines went on a 10-0 spree to build a two point lead to 68-56 with 2:38 remaining.

Butch Wade added 17 points and Leslie Rockymore 13 for Michigan, while Vern Fleming scored 25 and James Banks 23 for Georgia.

Boston College increased its record to 5-0, while Puget Sound, 3-4, lost for the third time in a four-game Eastern swing. B.C.'s Jay Murphy played only the first half because of the flu, and Michael Adams, 18 points, Martin Clark, 17, and Roger McCready, 13, took up the scoring slack.

Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton won the game but lost a sophomore point guard in Willie Cutts. After Cutts missed a 20-foot jumper, Sutton took him out of the game. Cutts left the arena immediately, prompting Sutton to say: "Willie Cutts will never play another game at the University of Arkansas."

The game itself was contest with the Razorbacks piling up a 22-point halftime lead against East Tennessee for their fourth win in five starts. Joe Kleine's 18 points and 10 rebounds paced Arkansas, while James Tandy hit 18 for the Buccaneers.

Purdue, 5-0, overtook Boston U. with a 16-0 surge in the first half and pulled away as Steve Reid scored all 14 of his points after intermission. BU, paced by Mike Alexander's 16 points, fell to 2-2.

Meanwhile, new Arizona coach Lute Olsen, who coached Iowa for nine years, got a rude homecoming to the state of Iowa. It was unbeaten Iowa State which sent Arizona, 1-3, to its third loss behind Barry Stevens' 37 points.

Lamar, paced by Tom Sewell's 24 points, extended the nation's longest homecourt winning streak to 70 with a 77-56 thumping of Southwest Texas State. The Cardinals last lost at home on Feb. 15, 1978.

Dave Ponce's eight-foot jump with six seconds left earned Nebraska a 71-69 double overtime victory over host Wisconsin. Dave Hoppen, who finished with 20 points, blocked a last-second 30-foot attempt by Wisconsin's Rick Olsen to preserve the Cornhuskers' third win in four outings.

At South Bend, Ind., Tom Sluby's two field goals helped Notre Dame survive a second-half rally by St. Francis (N.Y.) 71-49; Mark Alarie and David Henderson combined for 41 points in Duke's home 95-66 triumph over South Florida; Kerry Boagni hit 20 points and Greg Dreiling 18 as Kansas belted visiting Jackson State 89-57.

Threatened Sims Leads Lion Win

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Billy Sims has given a new meaning to the word "courage," as far as Detroit Coach Monte Clark is concerned.

Sims, playing with a pre-game death threat hanging over his head, gained 137 yards on 23 carries to spark the Lions' offense in Monday night's crucial 13-2 National Football League victory over Minnesota. The Lions took a one-game lead over the Vikings and Green Bay in the National Conference's Central Division.

Not until after the game was it disclosed that an anonymous caller had telephoned a threat on Sims' life to Silverdome security officials about 90 minutes before the kickoff.

"I've never experienced anything like that before," Clark said. "I felt the right thing was to tell Billy about it. He said, 'I'm not going to worry about that. I'll worry about it after the game.'"

"That was the damndest thing I ever saw. Wasn't that something for him to say that?"

Sims laughed the whole thing off with reporters, too. "It's hard to hit a moving target," he quipped.

Detroit's victory put the Lions in the driver's seat with an 8-6 record in the division. The Vikings and Packers are tied at 7-7 with two games remaining. One more victory will clinch the Lions' first title of any kind since 1957.

"I think it's great," said owner William Clay Ford. "We've been looking for revenge against the Vikings and to have it come in a game with the division on the line makes it especially sweet."

It was the Lions' seventh victory in their last nine games while the Vikings have lost five of their last six.

"When you have a Sims, who is a first class player, you find ways to get the ball to him," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant said. "They did and he had a good game."

The Lions compressed all their scoring into the second quarter, sandwiching a 10-yard touchdown pass from Eric Hipple to Jeff Chadwick between field goals of 50 and 42 yards by Eddie Murray.

Both clubs came up with goal line stands in the second half and the Vikings got their only two points with 2:43 to play when Detroit elected to have punter Mike Black run out of the end zone for an intentional safety, rather than risk a blocked kick.

"The Detroit defense made the big plays when they had to," said Minnesota quarterback Steve Dils, who was sacked seven times. "We also hurt ourselves by getting to the 1-yard line twice and not scoring — first on a penalty, then Detroit stopped us."

Minnesota running back Darrin Nelson said, "If you can't score a TD from the 1, you can't beat anybody."

Hipple, who found Chadwick open five times for 89 yards and the touchdown, finished with completions on 9 of 17 passes for 120 yards with no interceptions.

"At this point, it looks like we're in the driver's seat," Hipple said. "Not only from the won-lost standpoint, but the way we're playing right now. We're getting off the line and really beating some people back right now."

Dils completed 20 of 33 for 177 yards with one interception. However, the Vikings' ground game was limited to just 94 yards.

The Lions' defense has not yielded a touchdown in the last 10 quarters of regulation play — plus about eight minutes of an overtime period against Green Bay.

"The Detroit defense is darn good," Dils said. "They have some good people and play well as a unit."

Chadwick, whose touchdown grab came at 7:44 of the second quarter from a third-and-5 situation, said he was a little nervous before the game.

"One of the team doctors came up to me on the sideline and said, 'Relax, just relax,' the rookie free agent from Grand Valley State recalled. "I went out a few minutes later and scored the touchdown."

Clark gave the Lions the day off today before they begin preparing for their game Sunday against the Bengals in Cincinnati. Detroit closes out the season a week later at home against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Kuhn Gives His Farewell

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bowie Kuhn normally stretches 6 feet, 6 inches in his low-heel shoes but he stood 10 feet tall when he gave his farewell as commissioner of baseball.

He let them have it with both barrels.

The "them" are the minority of owners — five of a total of 26 — who composed a hanging party that went out to get him, and succeeded.

As he made his final speech to club directors and other baseball personnel Monday in the giant ballroom of Nashville's Opryland Hotel, one could see a lot of people squirming.

Kuhn spoke openly of "knives in the back," "undermining" and "killing of the spirit." He numbered the game's great gains — attendances double those of when he took office, new $1 billion-plus TV contracts, radio plans exceeding fond dreams and success in keeping baseball as "the family game."

He enumerated the dangers — drugs and drug abuse, a financial structure that despite all the gains continues to permit "no sunlight" teams — non-competitive clubs which can't emerge from the cellar — and deteriorating player relations — "an opportunity rather than a problem."

Adroitly, the commissioner struck back at the small clutch of owners whose peevishness brought about his dismissal.

When it was over, friends and foes alike gave him a standing, resounding ovation. It was almost as if baseball was telling him it was sorry it let him get away.

The towering Kuhn wasn't the stodgy, stiff-backed former Wall Street attorney that some have imagined him to be when he rose to lectern.

"I think I've made more retirement speeches than Muhammad Ali," he said.

"Borrowing from my old friend, Happy Chandler, I feel like the mosquito that flew into the nudist colony and began,"

Then the outgoing commissioner got serious. He said he wishes the baseball screening committee would hurry up and name his successor because he had other irons in the fire.

"It's my Christmas wish," he said.

The owners, he said, shouldn't be satisfied with getting an executive whom they regard as "a good man who can do a good job."

"He must be a strong commissioner," Kuhn said, "with special powers."

He then harked back to 1921 when baseball, its integrity shattered by the "Black Sox Scandal," reached out to get "an old, curly-haired judge named Kenesaw Mountain Landis" to restore the public's confidence.

"He helped them draw up the first Major League Agreement," Kuhn related. "He told them, 'I want more than a legal document. I want a moral covenant with the ownership for support.'"

"The judge said he wanted the owners to support him every day in every way, stand by him thick or thin, no knives in the back."

"The owners wrote a letter. All signed it."

Kuhn said present owners would be wise to follow the same example — "not undermine him, not break his power, not break his spirit" — but offer him "power and protection, more than I had."

"Nobody worth his salt should consider the job unless given that kind of commitment by the ownership," he added.

Owners feared Landis but, when Happy Chandler succeeded him as commissioner, they regained the upper hand. Chandler was fired for mandating that Jackie Robinson, a black, be allowed to play in the majors and giving players other concessions.

Kuhn, seeking to be even-handed, offended influential owners such as Charles Finley, George Steinbrenner and Ted Turner with fines and suspensions. He antagonized others by ordering that spring camps be opened during a contract squabble with the players in the mid-1970s and a split-season in strike-plagued 1981.

When his name came up for contract renewal, five National League clubs, harboring old peeves, cast negative votes — enough to unseat in the undemocratic baseball structure.

He, like others, have been critical of Kuhn on occasions — such as heavy fines against owners for chance remarks construed as "tampering," rulings affecting the status of Hall of Famers Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle because of gambling casino connections, and other instances.

We often have thought him too legalistic.

We have never challenged his integrity or ethics. Perhaps what we have construed as fault in the man really is fault in the game itself. Bowie Kuhn is a man of great class. Baseball will be hard pressed to fill his shoes.

Being The Best Has Its Own Problems

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The problem with becoming the best at a particular skill is that everyone expects — demands — constant perfection.

Witness Mark Moseley, place-kicker extraordinaire for the Washington Redskins.

In 1982, he established records for the most consecutive field goals (23) and the highest field-goal percentage (95.24), surpassing marks held by Garo Yepremian and Jan Stenerud. And he was the National Football League's Most Valuable Player.

In 1983, a few blips appeared.

He missed a 31-yard attempt in the fourth quarter of the season opener against Dallas. Washington lost 31-30.

Six weeks later he missed a 37-yard field goal on the final play against Green Bay.

Washington lost 48-47.

They are Washington's only losses in 14 games this year.

The Redskins' fans who had elevated Moseley to heroic status began to boo. Some said if he hadn't missed those two kicks — which Moseley himself says he should have made — Washington just might be unbeaten today.

"Everybody still had last year in mind," he said. "They expected me to make every one of them ... Well, I'm going to miss a few. Those things are going to happen. If you play the game long enough, you're going to have some downs. The object is to try to stay up as much as possible."

"It's just been a typical year for a kicker. What I've gone through this year is everything that every kicker goes through at one time or another."

Moseley, a "dinosaur" (that's what Washington quarterback Joe Theismann calls him), the only straightaway kicker in a soccer-style world, began to question his own abilities after those misses and a few others well within his range.

"Mark was in a situation where he had to fight it himself," said Theismann, the holder on Washington's place-kicks. "Oh, if he wanted to practice a little bit more, work on a few things, I was there for support. But whatever it was that was bothering him had to be cured from the inside out. Nothing anybody on the outside could do would have helped him."

"I think anytime you have a season like I had last year, you have a tendency to set your sights maybe a little too high," Moseley said. "Then, when you don't live up to them, you start wondering if you've lost it."

If he did, he's found it again.

After making his first 50-plus-yard field goal of the season, after going 3-for-3 in field-goal attempts and kicking 13 of Washington's 37 points against Atlanta on Sunday, Moseley owns yet another NFL record.

He has scored 147 points, the most by any kicker, surpassing the 145 by Jim Turner of the 1968 New York Jets.

No serious student of the game can afford to be without The Bridge World, the foremost magazine on bridge. At $21 per year, it remains one of the great bargains. It makes an attractive gift and if, in addition, you subscribe yourself, you can choose a free book as a bonus. Among the books being offered is Dave Daniels' "The Golden Age of Contract Bridge," published at $7.95. Indeed, you might want this book ($4.25 post free from Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, N.Y. 10025) just to get to know some of the legendary characters who made contract bridge the world's greatest card game.

This hand features the inventor of contract, Harold S. Vanderbilt, as East and the game's greatest showman and publicist, Ely Culbertson, as South. It was played in a high-stake rubber bridge game in the days before the invention of the various ace-asking conventions. North's jump response showed at least 2½ honor tricks, so Culbertson could be sure that his partner would produce at least A-Q, A. He wasted no time in getting to six hearts.

Declarer won the spade lead in dummy and led the ten of trumps to tempt a cover. East played low, declarer won the ace and cashed the king of trumps to learn about the 4-1 trump split. Culbertson abandoned trumps and led the king of diamonds, and Vanderbilt could do no better than win the ace and return a spade.

Dummy won, and declarer ruffed a diamond in hand. Since he needed two more entries to the table to set up a trump coup, he led a low club and finessed the jack! Culbertson ruffed another diamond to shorten his trumps to the same length as East's, crossed to the ace of clubs and simply ran winning diamonds. Whenever East chose to trump, declarer would overruff and claim the rest of the tricks.

UNC Reaffirms Movie Decision

Dancer Is Cast For Major Role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vicki Frederick, dancing star of the Broadway hits "A Chorus Line" and "Dancin'," has been cast by director Burt Reynolds for a major role in Universal Pictures' "Stick."

Miss Frederick, whose previous movies include "All That Jazz" and "All the Marbles," will play a millionaire's girlfriend. Reynolds will double as star of the picture, which includes a cast of George Segal, Candice Bergen and Charles Durning.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has reaffirmed its decision not to let Warner Brothers film "Everybody's All-American" on campus this spring.

A revised shooting schedule submitted Monday after UNC officials declined a request for use of its campus did not satisfy them, said Rollie Tillman Jr., vice chancellor for university relations.

"The film company gave us a detailed proposal for an optimal filming schedule," he said. "We determined upon seeing it that it was not much different from what we had anticipated, and therefore no change in the decision was warranted."

Executive Producer Bob Larson said last month that if UNC refused the film, he would take it and its $13 million budget to another state.

Tillman said the 10 days of filming would disrupt the academic schedule.

While there are racial themes in the script, which begins in the racially segregated 1950s, Tillman said that was not an issue in turning down the film.

Pallid Script Damages Impact Of Steinbeck's Novel On Film

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Winter of Our Discontent" tonight on CBS is an unimpressive adaptation of John Steinbeck's novel, its downfall a pallid script that seems to demand very little emotion from an extraordinary cast.

You know from this television movie, for instance, that Ethan Hawley and his friend, Danny, are unusually close, constantly hugging one another and professing mutual affection. But why?

Ethan explains the relationship in half a paragraph in the book: "In me Danny is a raw sorrow and out of that a guilt. I should be able to help him. I've tried but he won't let me. Danny is as near to a brother as I ever had, same age and growing up, same weight and strength. Maybe my guilt comes because I am my brother's keeper and I have not saved him."

For TV, the "raw sorrow and ... guilt" is left to the viewer's imagination. Most times, that's OK. But here, it's a big part of the story, and the friendship comes across as strangely hollow.

In fairness to those responsible for the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" production, dramatizing a work of literature for TV is no easy task.

It means compressing some scenes and dropping others altogether. You can imagine Steinbeck, were he still alive, squirming over someone rewriting his meticulously crafted prose for a two-hour screenplay, minus 20 minutes for commercials.

(Don't worry about Shakespeare, who wrote the title. The lines from "Richard III," Act 1, Scene 1 — "Now is the winter of our discontent ... Made glorious summer by this sun of York — come through intact.)

Sometimes, a top-flight cast can carry a show in spite of a bloodless script. And the cast here is indeed impressive: Donald Sutherland in his first American TV movie as Ethan; Terri Garr as his wife, Mary; Richard Masur as Danny, and E.G. Marshall as Baker, the town banker. Nonetheless ...

Ethan toils as a clerk at Hawley's, a grocery store once owned by his family, proud and prominent New England stock. He's determined to buy the store back from Marullo (Michael Gazzo) and regain for the Hawleys an eminent position in the community.

He's a likable fellow who talks to himself, to his father's portrait on the wall, to the canned goods in his store: "You think you can pull the wool over old Hawley's eyes. I know what goes on here at night. ... I'm speaking specifically to the beans ..."

He won't budge on the high standards maintained by his family for generations — until Baker offers him the chance to get the store back without investing a penny of his own money.

The banker wants to buy Marullo's store and Danny's inherited property next door, and he promises Ethan a prime location in the mall he plans to build there. All Ethan has to do is talk Danny into selling his home.

That's no problem, Ethan assures Baker, and he accepts a check for $10,000 — a gift, the banker says.

Then, Margie Young-Hunt (Tuesday Weld), whose first husband died and second ran off, tells Ethan that Marullo is in the country illegally.

Does Ethan use his friendship with Danny for personal gain? Does he snitch on Marullo to get the store back?

It's not exactly the way Steinbeck wrote the story, but certainly sufficient for a good TV movie. It doesn't work, and it's too bad.

Citing Lucas Philanthropy

NEW YORK (AP) — In this season of lists, add "Star Wars" creator George Lucas to the list of Americans who have donated millions to worthy causes.

In an article entitled "The Most Generous Living Americans," Town and Country magazine lists Lucas, noting that at 39 he's the youngest of those it names.

The film producer-director gave $4.7 million to create the School of Cinema-Television at the University of Southern California, where he went before making "American Graffiti" and the "Star Wars" films, the magazine says.

Town and Country came up with over 100 living Americans who have donated more than $5 million to charities in their lifetimes.

Five people have given away over $100 million: Walter Annenberg, 75, of Philadelphia and Palm

Singer Faces Ruling Appeal

LONDON (AP) — Singer Gilbert O'Sullivan last year won $10.5 million from his former manager in a court case, but now faces an appeal aimed at overturning the judgment.

Irish-born O'Sullivan, whose hit songs include "Clare" and "Alone Again," worked as a messenger until he was discovered by Gordon Mills. But the High Court ruled in May 1982 that Mills exploited O'Sullivan. It canceled the manager's contracts and returned to the singer the copyright and master tapes of his hits.

Back in court on Monday, lawyers for Mills argued that Mills should be able to keep some reward for helping the singer climb in the 1970s from an urchin image to international stardom.

The judges adjourned the case to an unspecified date.

Cities In Southern California Hope Christmas Spirit Strong

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Children aren't the only ones with wish lists this Christmas season. Orange County and at least eight of its cities are asking taxpayers to play Santa by donating such gifts as computers, trucks and even a $7 million park.

"We aren't overly optimistic about that gift," assistant Laguna Beach city manager Terry Brandt said of the 522-acre park, listed in the city's eight-page catalog of suggested presents.

Nor does Placentia recreation director Jim Soto expect to get the $50,000 lift truck listed in that city's 24-page catalog.

But Soto, Brandt and other local officials hope the Christmas spirit prompts citizens to make at least some tax-deductible donations — and the catalogs are intended to help those not quite sure what to give. Brandt said Laguna's catalog, distributed after Christmas last year to 500 businesses and residents, elicited about $1,000 in gifts including park benches and picnic tables. A local garden club coughed up cash for bedding plants.

"Last year we didn't get our list out in time for people to want to donate as a tax writeoff," he said. "We are hoping for more contributions at the end of this year when people are looking for deductions."

Soto said Placentia's first-ever catalog, which he compiled, is due out by mid-December. So is a debut catalog titled, "Gifts from the Heart: a Fullerton Gift Guide."

Placentia, Fullerton and other first-time catalog issuers, including Fountain Valley and Huntington Beach, were inspired by the success of cities like Anaheim, which has been putting out catalogs since 1979.

Anaheim's citizen Santas have donated $60,000 to $100,000 in years past, and this year the city hopes to receive $70,000.

"Sometimes people just need to be asked," said Marie Dixon, the city's recreation manager, who shows the catalog to community groups.

Taking its cue from the Anaheim approach, Orange County will mail only a few of the 2,000 catalogs it has printed. Most will be distributed through personal visits, said administrative analyst Helen Lotos.

Ms. Lotos, who compiled the 30-page county catalog, was somewhat "skeptical about the response at a time of year when gift dollars may be in short supply.

"There's a lot of competition at Christmas, but we can't just wait for them (donations) to roll in; we have to ask for what we want," she said.

She said the most popular item requested by department supervisors is a computer to streamline office operations.

Some items listed in the catalog are already funded in the county budget, but Ms. Lotos said donations would allow the budget money to be used elsewhere.

Buena Park recreation supervisor Chris Adams said the city's catalog is used to solicit gifts from civic groups such as the Lions and Kiwanis.

"Actually, most of the items are things we can function without, but the donations would increase the quality of our operations," Ms. Adams said.

LOCAL SADD CHAPTER FORMED...Students from high schools across Pitt County attended an organizational meeting Monday for a local chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD), a statewide group that stresses peer pressure to discourage students from drinking and driving. Steve Streater, seated at left, and Brenda Brinson of the North Carolina Youth Advocacy and Involvement Office in Raleigh, were in Greenville for the meeting. Students were given information on how to start a SADD group in their individual schools.
