U.S. Embassy Again Terror-Bomb Target

KUWAIT (AP) — A dump truck packed with explosives crashed through the U.S. Embassy gates today and blew up, killing four people and injuring 14, officials said. Five other bombs exploded in other parts of the city — including one at the French Embassy and another at the airport — and injured about 40 people.

The bomb blitz in the small Persian Gulf country was claimed by a radical group that calls itself "Holy War." The shadowy group has said it was responsible for other recent suicide bombings of American, French and Israeli targets in Lebanon.

The blast collapsed a three-story annex of the U.S. Embassy. The explosion shook buildings several hundred yards away and hurled chunks of concrete into nearby buildings. The truck blew up before it reached the four-story main embassy building, but initial reports spoke of severe damage in the American compound.

Kuwait's news agency said 54 people were injured by the explosions and said several arrests had been made.

U.S. State Department spokesman Brian Carlson in Washington said four people were killed, 14 were seriously injured and one embassy employee unaccounted for in the U.S. Embassy blast. No Americans were killed or seriously injured, but a few suffered minor injuries from flying glass, he said.

In Beirut, the Islamic Jihad, or Holy War, group claimed responsibility for the blasts in a telephone call to the Agence France Presse news agency.

The same group claimed responsibility for two other major attacks on Americans and Frenchmen in the past eight months: the Oct. 23 bombings of the U.S. Marine and French bases in Beirut that killed 240 U.S. servicemen and 59 Frenchmen and the April 18 bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut that killed 63 people, including 17 Americans.

The caller claimed a seventh bomb was scheduled to explode in Kuwait, but officials said earlier a seventh bomb had been defused after it was found in a truck parked near the American compound.

Carlson said the embassy compound's three-story annex building, which took the brunt of the explosion, collapsed after the blast.

Normally, the U.S. Embassy has a strong security force, including armored cars. CBS News reported Aug. 25 that U.S. intelligence had thwarted a plot to bomb the embassy and that security was beefed up at the time.

The other explosions were at the French Embassy, in a car in a parking lot near the Kuwait International Airport control tower; in a residential district where U.S. technicians and diplomats live at Al-Badah, nine miles north of the city; at the Al-Shoibab industrial complex 30 miles south of Kuwait; and at an electric power station.

The Kuwait News Agency said 54 people were injured in all the explosions and also said several arrests had been made.

Carlson said two of the dead were embassy employees, whom he did not identify. As for the other two victims, he said, "The bodies are quite charred and we have not been able to make an identification."

"There are no Americans killed, no Americans hospitalized as far as we know in Kuwait," Carlson said.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz condemned the attack and said it would not deter U.S. efforts to bring peace to the Middle East. He was in Rabat, Morocco, where he met with King Hassan II before flying to Lisbon, Portugal.

He said the attacks were directed against "the American peace effort but we are determined as a nation to continue these efforts for peace and stability."

State Department spokesman John Hughes said the bomb exploded about 9:30 a.m. (1:30 a.m. EST) at the U.S. Embassy. Hughes was accompanying Shultz.

In Paris, the French government also condemned the attacks. A Foreign Ministry spokesman said the blast at the French Embassy "injured several persons slightly and caused substantial damage."

The Kuwait news agency said air traffic at the airport was not affected by the bomb there. The offices of the radio room below the control tower was damaged by the blast, it said.

REA Loan Set

FARMVILLE — The Rural Electrification Administration has announced the approval of a $756,000 loan to the Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corp.

The money will be used to extend 23 miles of line to serve 402 potential customers, and increase the capacity of 13 miles of line, improve a substation, and replace old equipment.

The interest rate of the 35-year loan is 5 percent. The REA, part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said the loan will be made through the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund to provide 70 percent of the money, while the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corp. will provide 30 percent of the funding.

Returned To Fort Bragg

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — The return of 1,000 members of the 82nd Airborne Division who "did the fighting" on Grenada seven weeks ago marks another step in the relaxation of the U.S. grip on the Caribbean island.

A welcoming ceremony for the infantrymen was planned for today, with an additional 700 troops due to return to the United States later this week, leaving a custodial force on the island, officials said.

"The infantry soldiers, those who did the fighting, are coming back," said Jerry Steelman, spokesman for Fort Bragg, the 82nd Airborne's home base.

The troops were due about noon at Pope Air Force Base, officials said.

The returning infantrymen began landing on Grenada Oct. 26, the day after Army Rangers and Marines spearheaded the invasion.

President Reagan said the invasion was intended to restore order after a coup overthrew the island's Marxist government, and to protect about 1,000 Americans there, many of them medical students. Reagan said the leaders of neighboring islands called for U.S. help.

Nine C-141 transport planes were to deliver the soldiers to the airfield.

"It should be a pretty good event," Steelman said. "We've asked the Air Force to provide good weather."

After landing, the troops were to join their families at Fort Bragg, adjacent to the airfield.

The remaining 700 servicemen will be returning home in smaller groups Tuesday through Friday, reducing the American presence on Grenada to about 300 support personnel who will remain indefinitely, Steelman said.

"Those who are left will be performing civil duties," he said. "They'll include military police, signal corps units, public affairs people and workers in different types of civilian projects."

Reagan had said he wanted to bring the U.S. troops home from Grenada by Christmas.

The invading force, with troops from neighboring islands, met resistance from Grenadians and from Cubans on the island to help construct an airfield.

A nine-member council appointed to run the island government plans to conduct voter registration in the spring and elections are expected before Christmas of 1984, said council chairman Nicholas Braithwaite.

President Salutes Armed Forces And Urges U.S. Moral Strength

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan, stressing the need to defend freedom, saluted the nation's armed forces today and declared "our days of weakness are over."

On the day U.S. combat troops were set to return from Grenada and while Marines remain on duty in Lebanon, the president said "our military forces are back on their feet and standing tall."

Reagan mixed praise for the nation's servicemen and women with a discussion of the need to keep the United States "morally strong." He said:

"If we turn a blind eye and a deaf ear when totalitarian regimes brutalize the hopes and dreams of people, we demean the valor of every person who struggles for human dignity and freedom — and all those who have given the last full measure of devotion."

"The price of freedom is high, but never so costly as the loss of freedom," Reagan made his comments in a speech prepared for delivery to the 1983 convention of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society.

"Weakness, on the part of those who cherish freedom inevitably brings on a threat to that freedom. Tyrants are tempted," Reagan said.

He continued: "With the best of intentions, we have tried turning our swords into plowshares, hoping others would follow. Well, our days of weakness are over. Our military forces are back on their feet and standing tall."

He said U.S. forces are being given up-to-date equipment while mobility and firepower are being strengthened.

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger is seeking a further build-up, with a 22 percent increase in the Pentagon's budget request for next year.

The president said the buildup was not "because we seek war."

"But when our citizens are threatened, it is government's responsibility to go to their aid. We did so in Grenada," he said, referring to the Oct. 25 U.S.-led invasion of the tiny Caribbean island where 1,000 Americans were living under a leftist regime.

"The United States will do whatever it takes to protect the safety and freedom of the American people," Reagan said.

The goal of the congressionally chartered society, composed of all living Medal of Honor recipients, is to preserve and foster "the ideals of service to America and a dedication to peace and freedom."

The president was being given the Patriots Award, which in the past has gone to George Meany, the late president of the AFL-CIO; actor Jimmy Stewart; and Philip C. Habib, the president's former special Middle East envoy, among others.

HOUSE NEEDED

Fleming Chapel A.M.E. Zion Church has asked Hotline to appeal for a house to live in for a family of 10. The family is now living in a church fellowship hall and needs a reasonably priced house in which to live anywhere in the Greenville area. Anyone who can help is asked to call Wilbur Edwards, 757-3142, or the Rev. Jasper Perkins, 752-1014.

SKUNK LOST

Linda Smith has asked Hotline to appeal to everyone in the Brook Valley area to look out for a skunk lost Friday morning along the creek that runs on the west side of Brook Valley. The descended skunk named Claudius has been a pet since he was born 4½ years ago, eats only cooked meat and some greens and may not survive long in the wild, especially if he comes up against dogs, since his natural protection, his scent, is not present. Anyone seeing him is asked to confine him in some humane manner and call Mrs. Smith, 752-9838. Since skunks are night animals, the Smiths will be searching along the creek at night and they ask that no one be alarmed by their presence there until Claudius is found.

POPOVER SWEATER VEST...is made with a mohair-acrylic blend yarn on large needles.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Here's a knitter's delight — a popover vest knitted on big needles with an exciting yarn. The stitching is beginner-easy and the yarn a luxurious mohair and acrylic blend with confetti-like slubs of contrast color. There is an optional opening down the left side with a contrasting band of garter stitch.

The easy-to-follow directions are written for sizes 8 through 16 to fit body bust sizes of 30 to 38.

To obtain directions for making a Confetti Popover Vest, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-1211 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. K-1211 by sending a check or money order for $17.50 for sizes 8 to 10 or $22 for all other sizes to Pat Trexler at the same address. Please specify your choice of the following colors: claret wine, grape, misty blue or natural. The price includes shipping charges, instruction leaflet and yarn.

Though you may prefer sweaters and jackets with pockets, you probably have a difficult time finding a pattern that includes pockets. Good news, though — it's not hard to add pockets to almost any garment pattern.

The simplest type is the patch pocket — just knit the pocket to any desired size and sew it to the outside of the garment when completed. But you can have a more professional look by knitting the pockets in as you go.

Make the pocket lining first by casting on the number of stitches needed for the desired width of the pocket opening plus 2 additional stitches.

Suppose you want a 4-inch opening. Multiply four by the number of stitches per inch in your stitch gauge and then add two more. For example, with a 5-stitch-per-inch gauge, you would cast on 22 stitches (4 inches times 5 stitches equals 20 stitches plus 2 more).

Work this lining piece until it measures 3 or 4 inches or is the desired depth of the pocket. Place this lining piece on a stitch holder or strand of contrast yarn and set aside.

Now, work on the garment piece until you reach the point where you want the pocket opening to be. You would then bind off 20 stitches (or 2 less than were used in making the pocket). Slip the pocket lining stitches to the left-hand needle and join to the garment piece.

To do this neatly, slip the last stitch on the right-hand needle over to the left-hand needle. Knit this stitch together with the 1st stitch of the pocket lining. Knit across until just 1 stitch of pocket lining remains. Knit this stitch together with the garment piece. Upon completion of the sweater, whip the pocket lining pieces in place.

Tips On Making Clothes Last

CHICAGO (UPI) — People who once bought clothing for a single season and still can afford to do so now expect certain garments to last several years, says the laundry-valet manager of a luxury hotel.

Armand Birkens of The Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Chicago said this policy applies as much to the average consumer as to the international jet set.

Birkens thinks men's suits, regardless of cost, and men's and women's sportswear and expensive raincoats are being worn longer.

With women, it's mainly business suits, classic dresses and the sportswear coordinates, he said.

His tips for prolonging the life of clothing include:

—Read labels before you buy. Look for labels that tell you about colorfastness, shrinkage, trim and fiber content. A sewn-in label is the best protection against improper handling.

—Buy quality garments, well-constructed and well-finished, but not necessarily expensive, with good linings and buttons.

—Buy from reputable retailers who stand behind what they sell.

—Be especially careful in buying delicate fabrics, such as silk.

Marriage Announced

MRS. ROGER JOYNER...is the former Marian Tutton, daughter of Mrs. Audrey Jones of Farmville and Johnnie Ray Tutton of Washington, whose marriage to Mr. Joyner, son of Mrs. Lula Lee Joyner of Farmville and the late Milton Joyner. The wedding vows were solemnized Saturday.

—Select clothing by fit, not the labeled size, and try on garments before you buy. Clothing that is too small will be uncomfortable and wear out faster because of strain on the seams.

Birkens said the common supposition that dry cleaning damages fabrics is untrue. Dirt particles cause friction and hasten wear.

"Clothes cleaned regularly last longer, especially delicate ladies' garments that are exposed to perfumes and cosmetics as well as perspiration.

"Be especially careful with silk, which can be damaged by water, alcohol and stains in general."

In case of accidental spills, take the garment to a professional cleaner as soon as possible. If you can identify a spot or stain, tell the cleaner. If you're traveling, send a note along to the hotel valet.

A hotel with full valet service can cope quickly with emergencies such as spills, splashes and stains, Birkens said.

He said his staff often helps not just hotel guests but also banquet or wedding guests and restaurant patrons.

Birkens advises regular clothing checks, after a garment has been worn, for loose buttons, split seams, loose hems, holes in pockets.

His other tips:

—When clothing comes back from the cleaner, remove the plastic covers promptly. Fabrics need to breathe.

—Don't store clothes in damp or hot areas.

—Use shaped hangers for jackets and coats. Birkens said it's worth a trip to a good closet shop to find hangers the proper size and shape for your clothes.

—When you wash clothing at home, avoid overloading or underloading the machine. Underloading leads to inadequate agitation, and clothes won't come clean.

For small loads, he suggested a small tub insert or adjusting the water level. He said soft or conditioned water is essential.

"It improves the performance of the detergent and makes clothes cleaner, brighter and softer."

Birkens said his department gets most of its garment care tips from a commercial cleaning company that supplies its laundry products and sets up custom wash formulas.

Information also is provided by the National Association of Institutional Laundry Managers and the International Fabricare Institute.

Views On Dental Health

OVERCOMING DENTURE "GAGGING"

The most common problem with new dentures is gagging. The presence of this foreign body (the denture) causes an increased flow of saliva which may cause a person to gag. A lozenge sucked continuously for the first few days will increase the rate of swallowing and thus get rid of the extra saliva. Within a few days, the body will gradually adjust to the new dentures.

The upper denture is held in place by adhesion and cohesion (suction). The back of the palate must be covered (sealed) for the denture to fit properly. Unfortunately, some patients have difficulty adjusting to the back end of the denture. They gag, feel uncomfortable and often plead with the dentist to shorten the denture. There is little the dentist can do. If he were to shorten the denture, the seal would no longer fit. Lozenges are useful, but it is up to the denture-wearer to adjust to the new environment, it might help to know that the full upper denture is almost always successful. But you must give your body a few days to get used to it.

Double Ring Ceremony Performed On Sunday

The wedding ceremony of Pamela Ruth Hardee and John Walter Jenkins was solemnized Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Bethany Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Winterville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. C.L. Patrick of Winterville, pastor of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin G. Hardee of Ayden. Parents of the bridegroom are MSC and Mrs. James E. Jenkins of Des Moines, Iowa, formerly of Ayden.

A program of wedding music was presented by Louise Wainright, pianist, and Judy Bowen, organist and soloist. She sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Wedding Song."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown of chiffon, point d'esprit and silk Venise lace. The gown was designed with a Queen Anne neckline encrusted with pearls and sheer lace appliqued bishop sleeves that closed with satin buttons and chiffon cuffs. The flowing chiffon skirt flowed into an attached chapel train. Her walking length veil of silk illusion, bordered in lace and applique, was attached to a lace capulet. She carried a bridal cascade of white miniature carnations, pink sweetheart roses, baby's breath and pink rubrum lilies.

Wanda Allen of Greenville was honor attendant and bridesmaids were Rhonda Vernelson, cousin of the bride, Diane Mullen of Grifton and Leann Pate Avery of Rocky Mount.

Each of the attendants wore a formal gown in wine chiffon over matching taffeta. The sleeveless gown was fashioned with an open neckline outlined in a double flared ruffle of chiffon which draped the gown back. The modified natural waistline was enhanced by a satin tie belt. A diagonal cascade of chiffon was featured on the gathered skirt. Each carried a nosegay of pink miniatures and baby's breath.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Wayne Hardee, brother of the bride, Paul and Scott Smith, cousins of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a mauve long sleeved chiffon dress and the bridegroom's mother wore a dove gray polyester crepe dress with a wine cummerbund. Both wore corsages of pink rubrum lilies.

MRS. JOHN WALTER JENKINS

The grandmothers of the bride couple were given pink miniature carnations.

Following the ceremony parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rogers greeted guests.

Presiding at the guest book was Sandra Jones, cousin of the bride. Cake was served by Marie Gardner and Debra Adams. Letitia Willis poured punch. Assisting were Hope Smith, Judith Jones, Ellen Vernelson and Polly Hardee.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hardee said goodbyes. Paula Hardee and Laurie Vernelson gave rice roses to the guests and Jay Wainwright, nephew of the bridegroom, gave each a scroll.

The wedding was directed by Dot Dail of Winterville.

After a wedding trip to the Boone the couple will live in Ayden. The bride is employed at Harris Supermarket in Ayden and the bridegroom works at Miller and Davis Construction of Greenville.

On Saturday evening the couple was honored at a rehearsal party in the fellowship hall of the church given by the parents of the bridegroom and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Heuay.

Dear Abby

Older Reader Sends Poem To Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last February at a luncheon given in celebration of my 90th birthday, my hostess deplored the fact that she'd been unable to play with her son when he was a little boy. She said she never had the "knack." "But I read to him all the time," she said.

I told her I thought that was wonderful and very important, and that I had a poem I'd clipped from somewhere years ago entitled, "I Had a Mother Who Read to Me," and I would look it up for her.

The very next morning, my daughter, who was present at the luncheon and had overheard our conversation, pointed out your column in the Arizona Republic in which you quoted several lines from "I Had a Mother Who Read to Me," by Strickland Gillilan.

Odd? Imagine having that beautiful poem surface after so many years!

In case you don't have the entire poem, I am sending you a copy.

AN OLDER READER

DEAR READER: Thank you for your kindness. Although the entire poem will not fit into this limited space, the final stanza is worth repeating: You may have tangible wealth untold; Caskets of jewels and coffers of gold. Richer than I you can never be — I had a mother who read to me.

DEAR ABBY: "Climbing Back Up in Colorado Springs" ended her letter with, "Thank you for being there, Abby." And you replied, "Don't thank me. That's what I'm here for."

Wrong! You should have replied, "You're welcome. That's what I'm here for." As a therapist myself, I am very sensitive to people's reluctance to accept thanks or a compliment graciously.

Abby, as a role model, you should graciously accept the thanks you so often deserve. Thanks for being there, Abby.

MICHAEL C., VENICE, CALIF.

DEAR MICHAEL: You're welcome. That's what I'm here for. (I'm a fast learner.)

DEAR ABBY: Christmas is near and so is the office party when the wife comes face to face with the secretary who's been messing around with her husband.

For the last couple of years I've been trying to come up with something to say to this girl when she comes up to us and boldly asks my husband to dance with her. How's this: "Sorry, he's saving all his dances for his wife tonight. He dances with you enough at the office." Do you think she'll get the message?

A while back my husband told me the boss had been having an affair with this secretary, then he dumped her. Soon my husband began spending more time at the office than usual. And when he started coming home with perfume on the shoulders of his shirt, I knew for sure what he'd been up to. I think it's time I let them both know I'm not exactly stupid.

What do you think?

TIRED OF PLAYING DUMB

DEAR TIRED: You'll never win with that technique. Tell your husband privately of your suspicions, but don't attack the woman or you will come across as a miserable old battle-ax whose husband has good and sufficient reasons to lie in the arms of another woman sobbing, "My wife doesn't understand me."

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I moved to another state, I had to find a new physician. Right off the bat, he started calling me by my first name, so I said, "Since you are calling me 'Melanie,' I suppose I may call you 'Milton.'"

He looked a bit surprised and replied, "No, just call me

"Doctor." I suppose rank has its privileges, right?

MRS. JONES

DEAR MRS. JONES: This is not the Army, Mrs. Jones. Ask your doctor to please call you "Madame" or "Mrs. Jones."

(If you're single and want to know how to meet someone decent, see page 20 of Abby's booklet "How to Be Popular." Send $2, plus a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

- 2 large eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons butter, melted and cooled
- 1/2 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry

- 3 tiny scallions, finely chopped (3 tablespoons)
- 1/2 pound Monterey Jack cheese, shredded medium fine
- Canned pimientos

In a medium bowl with an electric beater, scraping the sides of the bowl often, beat together until smooth the eggs, milk, butter, flour, baking powder. Thoroughly stir in the spinach, scallion and cheese. Turn into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pan; smooth top. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until browned — 35 minutes. Let stand about 10 minutes. Cut in small squares. Remove with a small metal spatula. Top each square with a star cut from the pimientos with a small star-shape canape cutter. Test Shows U.S. Students Rank Poorly Elsewhere

DALLAS (AP) — In a test designed to rank the achievement of students in eight industrialized nations, Americans wore the dunce cap in math, science and geography — with over 20 percent of sixth-graders at a

A Certified 'Frozen Nut'

CHICAGO (AP) — Mark Stabler likes to take a dip in Lake Michigan — when the weather is freezing. He's a certified "Frozen Nut."

He likes having an icy spray slashing into his face. And he prefers having nothing between him and the water but a wetsuit and surfboard.

Stabler, a gold futures trader, concedes that most people consider winter-weather windsurfers "a little nuts."

But he's enjoys skimming along the lake when the temperature is below the freezing mark, which helped him win the "Frozen Nut" certification from the Windy City Windsurfers club.

Stabler and Ed Coyne are a couple of the dozen or so members of the 50-member club who can be found regularly on the lake when most of the surface-side population is walking stiffly under layers of winter clothing.

"Windsurfing is great fun when it's snowing," says Coyne, an insurance broker. That's one of the best times. The snow goes across your sail so you can get a good sail trim just watching it. And you feel isolated — all alone on the lake."

"It's a water sport that combines all kinds of neat things," says Stabler. "Control, balance and a great sensation of speed. Actually it's not as fast as water skiing, but the sensation is faster."

The "Frozen Nuts" wear wetsuits which trap water at body temperature next to the skin, or dry suits, which are like big plastic bags.

"We may stretch it a bit, but we're not really nuts," says Coyne, noting that they don't sail when the air temperature dips below 30.

Thought Gunman Peace Activist

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — One of three people injured in a robbery attempt at a coffeehouse poetry reading in memory of a peace activist says she originally mistook the gunman for part of the tribute.

Lorenzo Davis, 25, was being held in lieu of $50,000 bond on charges of attempted murder and armed robbery, police said Sunday. Poet Nathan Butler was critically injured with a gunshot to the head and a woman was shot in the elbow when guests jumped the gunman during Friday's holdup, police said.

K.C. Caliendo, who was pistol-whipped during the robbery, said she first thought the gunman was "a crazed poet acting something out" as part of the memorial.

Used UPS To Ship Marijuana

DEL NORTE, Colo. (AP) — A woman charged with possession of marijuana was the third town resident to be arrested for allegedly using the United Parcel Service to ship the illegal weed, police said.

Karen Lynn D'Amato was charged with possession of less than one ounce of marijuana after UPS suspicions prompted a police search of her home. Rio Grande County Sheriff John Kammerzell said. UPS reported delivering three packages a week to her home during the past year, he said.

Two other residents were convicted of the same charge last month after shipping a marijuana plant via UPS, authorities said.

Dallas school unable to find the United States on a world map.

The test, developed by four prominent American educators for the Dallas Times Herald, was given over the past month to more than 600 sixth-graders in Australia, Canada, England, France, Japan, Sweden and Switzerland, as well as at two Dallas schools, the newspaper reported in a copyright story Sunday.

The results showed the American children were among the worst at mathematics, not much better at science and only a little better in geography.

The United States finished last in mathematics. Japanese students significantly outscored all the other countries, doing twice as well as the American youngsters.

In science, Swedish pupils ranked first, with Americans placing sixth.

In geography, the Swedes again scored at the top, while the Americans placed fourth.

"This is embarrassing," said Stephen Willoughby, president of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, who developed the math portion of the test.

The Dallas schools were selected to represent the United States because their levels of academic achievement were close to the national average, as indicated by scores on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills, the nation's most widely used achievement test.

The Times Herald said it asked foreign governments, and in some cases leading foreign newspapers, also to select schools where students' performance mirrored the national average.

After the tests were translated into Japanese, French and Swedish, they were given to students in the equivalent of the American sixth grade under the same one-hour time limitation.

U.S. Education Secretary T.H. Bell said the study "validates" the conclusions of the National Commission on Excellence in Education, which reported last spring that the United States has been committing "unilateral educational disarmament" with its declining standards.

"I think it tells us that we are not requiring our students to study enough math and science," Bell said.

"It's too bad we can't give a test on football or drill team so we could finish first," said H. Ross Perot, chairman of the Texas Select Committee on Public Education, who has criticized Texas schools for their emphasis on extra-curricular activities.

Members of the panel that drew up the test also voiced concern over the results.

"It's alarming," said Glenn T. Seaborg, a member of the national commission and a Nobel Prize-winning scientist who directed the development of the science portion of the test. "It's consistent with what we found in our investigation."

Here are the scores for each country in each category:

In science, Swedish pupils scored an average of 55.4 percent correct, followed by students in England with 54.5 percent; Canada, 49.2 percent; Australia, 49.2 percent; Japan, 45.3 percent; United States, 43.7 percent; France, 42.1 percent; and Switzerland, 41.3 percent.

In geography, Sweden's students had an average score of 54.1 percent; followed by England, 50.5 percent; Canada, 48.0 percent; United States, 45.8 percent; Switzerland, 43.4 percent; Australia, 42.7 percent; France, 41.3 percent; and Japan, 40.5 percent.

In math, Japan led with an average of 50.2 percent, followed by Sweden, 39.7 percent; Australia, 37.9 percent; England, 37.8 percent; Canada, 35.8 percent; France, 33.3 percent; Switzerland, 31.0 percent; and the United States, 25.3 percent.

Heroes Saw A Necessity

By The Associated Press
Being a hero is mainly just a matter of doing what needs to be done, according to North Carolinians honored recently for saving lives.

"I feel like the world's full of heroes — or potential heroes, at least," said E.C. "Zeke" Godfrey of Rocky Mount, who swam through the breakers at Morehead City last June to pull a drowning woman back to shore.

"I thought about it a little bit afterwards and I really can't tell you what takes over," said Godfrey, who had no lifesaving training.

"Maybe instincts, maybe knowing someone's in trouble and you're the one who's got to do something about it. You think of heroes from time to time, but I never suspected that I would be considered one. It's just something you do."

Pratt Hambright of Raleigh, who was honored for heroism Friday by Gov. Jim Hunt, said he was "scared to death" when he made a third trip back to a burning car to rescue a young boy from the wrecked vehicle's back seat.

He had already pulled two people to safety on the edge of the Raleigh Beltline after coming on the accident when he made the trip back for the little boy.

"The hardest part was the third time," he said. "I almost didn't do it. I was scared to death."

"I think a hero is someone who does something that needs to be done," Hambright said. "Maybe it's something out of the ordinary that needs to be done. But there is that (strength and potential) in all of us. I think policemen and firemen are heroes every day."

Lois Staton of Asheville said she did not feel like a heroine when she pulled an 80-year-old woman from a burning house.

"There are heroes all the time," she said. "In our daily lives there are things that we do to help others in different degrees."

"I didn't feel like a heroine. I felt I had done what I expect myself to do — or what was normal to do — which is, rationally save someone else's life."

Pablo Caceres of Roanoke Rapids was 14 years old in 1981 when he heard a small girl scream as she fell through the thin ice on a pond.

Seeing no one else around to help, he pushed himself out on the ice, crawling toward the girl. "I never thought I would have gone on that ice — that's what surprised me," he said. "But I couldn't sit around doing nothing. I had to do something."

Caceres helped get the girl to adults who had arrived at the shore before breaking through the ice himself into waist-deep water. The adults pulled him from the freezing water.

He said he does not consider himself a hero, despite recognition from the state.

"If anyone else were there, I think they would have reacted the same way," he said.

A GATHERING OF HEROES — Some 175 Medal of Honor recipients line up aboard the Intrepid Sea-Air-Space Museum in New York Saturday at a dedication ceremony for the museum's new "Hall of Honor" exhibit. North Carolina Has Tax Revolt

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A growing number of people in North Carolina are refusing to pay local, state and federal taxes, officials say.

U.S. Internal Revenue Service officials say at least 690 North Carolinians have been identified as tax rebels who refuse to pay federal income taxes. Officials at the state Attorney General's Office estimate that a similar number of residents are ignoring North Carolina laws in state income taxes.

The numbers could be even greater, said B. Glenn Jones, an IRS spokesman in Greensboro.

"We have no idea how many there are because we have no way to track them," he said. "They are significant, but they are not in the thousands."

But tax dissenters say the numbers are much higher. The Rev. Paul Davis of Fayetteville, who is campaigning against the IRS and federal income taxes on workers' wages, said a conservative estimate would put the number at close to 30,000.

"If you were to ask me what will destroy the United States, I would say it's not Russia, the A-bomb, or Catholicism or anything like that," Davis said. "It's going to be the Internal Revenue Service and the Federal Reserve."

Davis, head of the Irwin Schiff Freedom League chapter in Fayetteville, gave up his Baptist ministry of about 15 years to become a full-time evangelist. He now travels across the state to meet with interested groups as a "tax educator."

Meanwhile, an estimated 1,000 Duke Power Co. workers have filed tax-withholding forms that claimed total exemptions from federal taxes. About 600 gave in this fall when the IRS threatened them with fines. The other 400 have been fined $500 and held liable for back taxes and interest.

Citizens Against Unconstitutional Trend in our Nation (CAUTION), established by Richard S. Tyler of Rock Hill, S.C., says it has a membership in North Carolina and South Carolina of 400 to 500 people who are fighting what they say is the misapplication of tax laws.

Tyler, who is running for Congress in South Carolina, estimated that there are 70,000 tax rebels in the two states.

"Our people don't file because they don't have to,"

he said, adding that tax protesters are filing fewer and fewer tax returns "because essentially that's waving a red flag."

Marshall E. Sprague, an IBM engineer, has announced his candidacy for the 4th Congressional District seat now held by Ike F. Andrews. Sprague, who is running as a Libertarian, has adopted an anti-tax platform.

Meanwhile, the News and Observer of Raleigh quoted an IRS official as saying a violent paramilitary anti-tax group is operating in eastern North Carolina. But the official declined to identify the location or provide specifics, citing agency rules on protecting the confidentiality of taxpayers, the newspaper said.

Takes Nobel Prize Home

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The wife of Solidarity leader Lech Walesa today left for Poland with the Nobel Peace Prize awarded to her husband, who vowed his banned trade union would not be crushed.

Danuta Walesa and son Bogdan, 13, left from Oslo airport for Warsaw via Copenhagen. They were seen off by Egil Aarvik, the Norwegian Nobel Committee Chairman.

Walesa remained in Poland for fear authorities would not allow him to return if he left to accept his prize. He also said he must not leave the country so long as other activists remain in jail.

His Peace Prize lecture was read Sunday on his behalf by close associate Bogdan Cywinski.

"He who once became aware of the power of Solidarity and who breathed the air of freedom will not be crushed," Walesa said in the lecture.

Dialogue between the government and Solidarity "is possible, and we have the right to it," he said.

The lecture drew a one-minute standing ovation from the estimated 600 people who came to Oslo University's Aula Hall.

The Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded the Peace Prize, which carries a $190,000 stipend, to Walesa for his work in leading Solidarity — once the only independent labor union in the Soviet bloc, and now outlawed.

In his lecture Sunday, Walesa spoke of the struggle for a better life for the people of Poland, where economic crisis has caused food shortages and left the country deeply in financial debt to Western nations.

"Despite everything that has been going on in my country during the past two years, I am still convinced that we have no alternative but to come to an agreement," Walesa said.

"The difficult problems which Poland is now facing can be resolved only through a real dialogue between state authorities and the people," Walesa said.

"We are ready for the dialogue. We are also prepared, at any time, to put our reasons and demands to the judgment of the people. We have no doubts as to what verdict would be returned," Walesa said.

At another point in the lecture he said, "The Polish people have not been subjugated, nor have they chosen the road of violence and fratricidal bloodshed."

Supreme Court Upholds Parents Of Baby Jane Doe

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to order a life-prolonging operation for Baby Jane Doe, the New York infant with severe birth defects whose parents have decided against surgery.

The justices, without comment, let stand decisions upholding the parents' wishes.

Baby Jane Doe, whose real name has not been made public, was born Oct. 11 with her spine exposed outside her body, a condition called spina bifida. She also has an abnormally small head that is swelling with excess fluid.

Her parents, after consulting with doctors and members of the clergy, decided against surgery that might allow the child to live for 20 years but still leave her retarded, in constant pain, epileptic and paralyzed below the waist.

Without the surgery, she is not expected to live beyond age 2.

The case attracted national attention with the intervention of right-to-life advocates and the Reagan administration.

The New York courts have refused to order University Hospital in Stony Brook, N.Y., to operate on the child. A state appeals court said the infant's parents chose a "reasonable" course of treatment for their daughter.

In other action today, the court:

- Upheld an important provision of the settlement that broke up the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. In a case involving an estimated $5 billion nationwide, the court ruled unanimously that the AT&T break-up will not unfairly saddle new regional phone companies with huge hook-up costs. It rejected challenges to the plan by California and New York officials.

- Blocked a trial in the United States of negligence claims arising from the 1981 explosion of a jet over Taiwan that killed all 110 persons aboard. The court, without comment, let stand a ruling that Taiwan is the more appropriate place for trying the lawsuits.
- Agreed to decide in an Arkansas murder case whether prosecutors must honor a plea bargain agreement they withdrew three days later. The court said it will review a ruling that threw out a 21-year prison term for a convicted killer.

In a separate federal court case involving Baby Jane Doe, the administration has sought — thus far without success — to force the hospital to turn over the infant's records to the Justice Department.

That case is pending before a federal appeals court.

The appeal acted on by the Supreme Court today was an attempt to overturn the New York state court rulings against surgery.

The appeal was brought by William Weber, a lawyer from Hauppauge, N.Y., who briefly served as court-appointed guardian to Baby Jane Doe.

Weber was removed as guardian by a New York appeals court after three days in that role.

He was appointed after Lawrence Washburn, a right-to-life activist, sued to force the hospital to operate. Washburn acted as Weber's lawyer in the appeal to the Supreme Court.

He said that denying surgery to Baby Jane Doe violates her constitutional rights. Since she is unable to make this "life and death" decision herself, he said, the choice should be made "through a judicially appointed legal guardian" and not by the parents or doctors.

The New York state attorney general's office urged the Supreme Court to reject Weber's appeal. It said Weber "has continued to interfere" in the case even though New York courts have ruled he lacks the authority to be the infant's guardian.

Northeast Hit By Ice Storm

By The Associated Press
An ice storm glazed roads across parts of upstate New York and southern New England this morning, closing many schools and causing scores of smashups on treacherously slick highways.

"All our cruisers are tied up with numerous accidents on the interstates — one car, multiple car, property damage, personal injury, the whole nine yards," said Massachusetts State Trooper Ron Waskiewicz at the Northampton barracks.

About 15 cars were reported off the road on Interstate 91 near the Connecticut-Massachusetts border and a multiple-car pileup was reported on the interstate in Chicopee, Mass., during the morning rush hour.

Dozens of schools from the Berkshires to the Connecticut Valley closed or opened late.

In Connecticut, parts of highways were closed by accidents from Bridgeport to Hartford. In southwestern Connecticut, the Merritt Parkway and Route 8 were closed during the morning rush hour.

A pileup on Interstate 84 just west of Hartford closed the highway in both directions.

The Connecticut Transportation Department said its crews had been at work since 5:30 a.m., but their efforts to apply sand and salt were hampered by the clogged roads.

The freezing rain moved into the southern Berkshires and Connecticut Valley of Massachusetts about 6:30 a.m. and within minutes city buses were spinning in Springfield and commuters were finding that getting to work was a challenge.

Frank Coppola, a spokesman for the National Weather Service in Boston, said forecasters expected the ice to be confined to the inland areas of the state.

Meanwhile, showers and thunderstorms swept across the Southern states today as a tornado watch was posted for central and southern Florida.

At least two tornadoes touched down in Alabama on Sunday evening, spawned by heavy thunderstorms and high winds with golfball-size hail. No serious injuries were reported.

A string of tornadoes tore through eastern Texas over the weekend, severely damaging homes, farms and businesses and downing power lines.

Candidates, Holidays Compete

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A lot of statewide political candidates in North Carolina probably would like to wake up Dec. 25 to find campaign buttons and television commercials beneath their Christmas trees.

Advertising and campaign paraphernalia are some of the concerns now as the campaigns enter a season of relatively low visibility before filing for office begins Jan. 2.

The candidates are competing with the holidays for attention and only the most avid supporters seem able to keep their minds off shopping and celebrating.

Aides to D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth say the Democratic gubernatorial candidate is shooting television commercials this month to air in January, when the campaign will "move into a more visible phase."

Faircloth has been putting together a statewide organization and last week held a first, major statewide strategy meeting.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green is doing some organizational work too. His campaign staff recently moved into an office overlooking the back yard of the Governor's Mansion, where Green hopes to make his home in 1985.

Green says he'll announce his gubernatorial candidacy on Friday, Jan. 13.

Insurance Commissioner

John Ingram began radio advertising early this month and former Rep. Tom Gilmore of Guilford County is in court challenging campaign contribution laws.

Supporters of Republican gubernatorial candidate Rep. Jim Martin started a media fund this month to help make Martin's name more familiar next year. Martin says he faces little opposition in the GOP primary from Ruby Hooper of Burke County so he's using time now to tour the East in preparation for the general election.

"My first objective has been achieved and that's to unite the Republican Party around my candidacy,"

Martin said.

Mrs. Hooper disagrees and is making appearances at almost every Republican function.

Other candidates are holding fund-raisers and reminding people that this is the season for giving.

Former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten are holding Christmas parties designed to celebrate and raise money.

Edmisten also is expected to unveil new television ads in the next 60-90 days.

Supporters of Gov. Jim Hunt and of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., also are trying to build war chests for their anticipated contest.

Black leaders paid $100 a person Dec. 3 for a luncheon with Hunt and about 2,000 people turned out for a Wake County fund-raiser that generated $100,000 for Hunt last week. He has another fund-raiser in Wilson this week.

The Jim Hunt Exploratory Committee will get a director Jan. 1, 1984, as Joseph Grimsley joins the team. The group is getting other campaign machinery in place, developing issues and ordering buttons and bumper stickers.

Similar activity is going on in the Helms for Senate Committee. Last week, Vice President George Bush attended a $250-per-person dinner for Helms and Senate Majority leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., was in town over the weekend to help raise more money.

Stock car driver Richard Petty acknowledged last week that he's talking with Helms supporters about making some advertisements.

In the presidential race, former congressman Gene Johnston of Greensboro said county campaign machinery still is being put in place. Johnston, who is heading up President Reagan's re-election committee, said he's also doing research on the issues.

Johnston said he's preparing to announce some voter registration drives to help Reagan. He said the drives will be aimed at the "person with an education who has a good job and may, by apathy, not register."

Chinese Hear Touring Prelate

PEKING (AP) — The Rev. Robert Runcie, archbishop of Canterbury, told a congregation of Chinese Protestants that despite cultural differences, "We worship the same God."

"We had rather lost contact, and we have established contact once again," said the 62-year-old Runcie, head of the Church of England, during a service Sunday at Peking's Chong Wen Men Protestant church.

When the communists gained power in 1949 they expelled foreign missionaries and closed churches and seminaries. While still espousing atheism, the Chinese leadership has since taken a more lenient stance.

"We may look different, we may speak different languages, we may wear different clothes," Runcie told the parishioners as he praised them for rebuilding their church. "But we worship the same God and we try to follow the same word of Jesus Christ and that is the deepest unity we can have."

'WE WORK FOR UNITY' — Pope John Paul II chats with Pastor Christoph Meyer upon his arrival at the Lutheran Church Sunday in Rome. The pontiff, in his historic visit, said that despite bitter differences between Roman Catholics and Lutherans in the past "we desire unity, we work for unity". (AP Laserphoto)

'Bar Cars' May Be Reinstated

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A commuter rail line which has been on the wagon may put bar cars back on the tracks — by popular demand.

By spring the state's mass transit agency hopes to have nine bar cars in operation on its New Jersey Coast Line.

Return of the bar cars after an absence of nearly three years has been prompted by a steady flow of letters from commuters, say New Jersey Transit officials.

Coffee would be available along the route to New York City in the morning, said spokeswoman Margaret Starr, and liquor for the return trip.

Since the car bars were taken off, "there has been continued interest," she said.

Mental Health Perspectives

Emergency Services by Robert C. Moore
Coordinator, Emergency Services

The Pitt County Mental Health Center provides 24-hour emergency service seven days-a-week, including all holidays by providing a core team of trained, volunteer, emergency service clinicians. This team consists of staff from all four services: adult, aftercare, children and substance abuse. These clinicians, social workers, psychologists, and R.N.'s rotate on a regular schedule and are backed up by the Medical Director and Associate Medical Director during clinical hours and by the psychiatrist on call from Pitt County Memorial Hospital at all other times.

Bona fide emergencies requiring immediate intervention, are seen, evaluated, and treated by the emergency clinician. Some examples of emergencies handled by emergency services are: suicide attempts, depression, drug and alcohol abuse, interpersonal difficulties, sex problems, and suspected child abuse.

After hours and weekends, the same emergency clinicians rotate on call, receiving referrals through the Pitt County Mental Health Center contractual answering service. Many calls are handled on the phone; others may be referred to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital emergency room for direct care. The clinician on call contacts both the emergency room and the psychiatrist on call to inform them of the problem and facilitate care.

The emergency team also serves as the Disaster Relief Team, covering mental health problems in the event of disaster occurring within the Pitt County catchment area. This activity is under the auspices of the Pitt County Director of Civil Defense.

The telephone number to call if you need emergency service is 752-7151.

The Other State Bird

Everybody knows that North Carolina's state bird is the cardinal. But if you looked around eastern North Carolina, you'd probably find more Perdue broilers than red birds.

Over 500 farmers in this state now raise more than 100 million Perdue broilers every year. And these birds are processed at Perdue's processing plant in Lewiston or Robersonville. These broilers get their start in North Carolina as well. Perdue breeder growers in this state ship their eggs to our hatcheries in Murfreesboro, Kenly and Halifax. And their feed? It's North Carolina-grown corn and soybeans purchased by Perdue and processed at feed mills located in Wilson and Cofield, North Carolina.

Facilities like these have helped make Perdue one of the nation's largest broiler producers, and the largest supplier of fresh poultry to the northeast market! And the demand for our products continues! In fact, our broiler plant in Robersonville is planning to open a second shift. As a result, Perdue needs 145 more broiler houses to support the expansion. If you'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-1151 or send in the coupon below.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground today, extending last week's losses, amid lingering concerns over the course of interest rates.

Double-digit yields on U.S. government bonds are providing stiff competition to the stock market for investors' dollars, analysts said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 13.72 points in the previous two sessions, was off another 2.13 points to 1,257.93 at noon.

Slightly more stocks fell in price than rose in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. But the NYSE's composite index of all its common stocks nudged up .05 to 95.45.

American Express, one of the 30 blue-chip issues in the Dow Jones industrials, fell 2 1/2 to 29 1/2 in trading that included a block of 300,000 shares changing hands at 29 1/2 a share.

American Express said a fourth-quarter loss at its Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. subsidiary would reduce its 1983 profit by about 10 percent from last year's levels.

Meanwhile, interest rates edged higher in the bond market today after dipping slightly late Friday. Credit markets got a lift at the end of last week from reports by the Federal Reserve Board that the basic money supply plunged $2.1 billion at the end of November and that banks were flush with funds early this month.

But economists said that while the reports calmed some fears that interest rates were headed higher, rates are still expected to hold close to current high levels.

Big Board volume reached 35.77 million shares a third of the way through the session, against 46.37 million in the same period Friday.

American Telephone & Telegraph rose 1/4 to 63 1/2, and stock of the new, "smaller" AT&T that will emerge from the Jan. 1 breakup of the Bell System gained 1/4 to 19 1/4 on a when-issued basis. A block of 1 million shares of the "new" AT&T crossed at 19 1/4, and a 1 million-share block of the "old" AT&T changed hands at 64.

The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that the break-up of AT&T on Jan. 1 will not unfairly saddle new regional phone companies with huge costs, rejecting challenges to the plan by California and New York officials.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 27 to 221.87.

Two Dead In Irish 'War'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Gunmen shot and killed two young men in separate incidents in Belfast today, after 1,000 policemen were assigned to protect prominent figures in Northern Ireland against a possible Christmas bomb blitz by the IRA.

Neil Kinnock, leader of Britain's opposition Labor Party, began a visit to the predominantly Protestant province, where police fear the Irish Republican Army is going to terrorize holiday shoppers in its campaign to wrest control of Northern Ireland from Britain and unite it with the Irish republic.

John Molloy, 21, was shot in the head and found in a house in the Protestant Tyndale housing complex, police said. A police source who asked not to be identified said Molloy was believed to be a victim of a feud between Protestant paramilitary groups.

Earlier, gunmen in a passing car killed Tony Dawson, an 18-year-old Catholic. Dawson was shot in the head as he stood talking with a friend on a street corner in the heavily Catholic enclave of Short Strand, said Inspector Jim Craig, a police spokesman.

"It looks at this stage like a random sectarian murder," Craig said. The killings raised the death toll in a two-month surge of sectarian violence to 27, the bloodiest spell in the province in two years.

Police sources reported that five soldiers in the mainly Protestant Ulster Defense Regiment were arrested in raids early today in County Armagh and were being questioned by anti-terrorist squads.

Last week, seven members of the regiment were charged with the murder of a 24-year-old Catholic in Armagh in November.

Kinnock came to Belfast to meet with British Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior. "I am here to familiarize myself with what's happening and to talk to trade unionists," Kinnock told reporters.

Building Destroyed

FARMVILLE — A four-family apartment house here was destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon.

Fire Chief H.P. Norman said the house at 504 W. Church Street was totally involved in fire when firemen arrived shortly after the 1:58 p.m. alarm went in.

The house was owned by Dalton Corbett and was occupied by the Bennie Clayborn, Ed Hudson Jr., Steve Futrell and Sanra Salyers families.

The cause is under investigation, Norman said, and an estimate of loss has not been determined. Very little of the contents of the house was saved, he indicated.

Russians Admit Space Problems

MOSCOW (AP) — Cosmonauts and Soviet space officials today confirmed that a manned spacecraft had a launch pad accident in September and that a fuel leak created a problem on the orbiting space station occupied by two cosmonauts.

The launch pad accident delayed the return to Earth of Alexander Alexandrov and Vladimir Lyakhov, whose space station mission started June 27 and ended Nov. 23, the officials said at a news conference.

They insisted the orbiting cosmonauts were never in danger.

"Indeed, a launching was planned for Sept. 26 and it is indeed true that there was an accident, but the crew was catapulted and safely returned," Lyakhov told reporters. He said he and Alexandrov had been preparing to receive the new cosmonauts aboard the space station.

Soviet sources have said that there was a launch pad accident in which three cosmonauts — two men and a woman — were ejected without serious injury.

A Western journalist remarked that two, rather than three, cosmonauts were involved in the launch pad accident. Lyakhov did not dispute that, but he did not say whether two or three cosmonauts were aboard the manned spacecraft at the time of the accident and did not provide details of what went wrong.

During the Alexandrov-Lyakhov space mission, Western intelligence agencies reported that the orbiting Salyut and Soyuz T-9 space complex had a propellant leak and was drifting in orbit. Soviet space officials denied those reports at the time.

Western journalists today asked whether there had been a propellant leak.

Vladimir Shatalov, chief of cosmonaut training, replied that on the orbiting Salyut 7, "in one of the subsystems... indeed there was a problem."

There was a leak of some amount of fuel, but the station continued to be viable and that part of the system was... switched off."

Salyut 7 is still viable, he said.

Discussing the launch pad accident, Lyakhov said: "We were told about it immediately, and indeed, our flight lasted longer and the program work was expanded and adjusted because of the accident." He did not specify how many extra days the cosmonauts had to spend in space.

Lyakhov said he never worried food and oxygen would run out before he and Alexandrov could return to Earth. And, he said, "we could" have returned to Earth "at any given moment."

Redskins Topple Dallas In Rematch

By The Associated Press

The long-awaited rematch between the Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys turned into a real yawner. Of course the same can't be said about the National Football League playoff situation.

While the Redskins won going away from the Cowboys 31-10 in the heralded battle of playoff-bound teams Sunday, the playoff picture still had plenty of suspense in it with just one week to go in the NFL's regular season.

The Denver Broncos were the only additional team to actually clinch a playoff spot Sunday when they beat the Baltimore Colts 21-19 and earned a wild-card spot in the American Conference. The Broncos joined three other AFC teams in the playoffs — East Division champion Miami, Central Division champion Pittsburgh and the West champion Los Angeles Raiders.

Pittsburgh actually clinched at least a wild-card playoff berth with a 34-7 victory over the New York Jets Saturday, then claimed the Central championship when Cleveland was upset by Houston 34-27 Sunday.

Four teams with 8-7 records are still in the hunt for the other AFC wild-card berth — Buffalo, New England, Cleveland and Seattle. Among the four, Seattle has the inside track because of a better conference record. The Seahawks, who beat the New York Giants 17-12 Sunday, can clinch a berth with just a victory next week over New England and don't need help from any other team.

Both Dallas and Washington have already qualified at least as wild cards in the National Conference and one will go to the playoffs as champion of the NFC East, depending on next week's results. The Redskins have but to beat the lowly Giants next Saturday at home to qualify as the East winner, while the Cowboys face San Francisco next Monday night. The other three berths will be next weekend.

The 49ers, New Orleans Saints, Detroit Lions, Los Angeles Rams and Green Bay Packers remain in contention for those berths.

On Sunday, the 49ers beat Buffalo 23-10 and need only to beat Dallas next Monday night to be assured of a playoff berth; the Saints defeated Philadelphia 20-17 in overtime; the Lions lost to Cincinnati 17-9; the Rams lost to New England 21-7 and Green Bay has two games left, including Tampa Bay Monday night.

Also, the Chicago Bears knocked the Minnesota Vikings out of playoff contention with a 19-13 victory and St. Louis was eliminated from mathematical contention despite a 34-24 victory over the Los Angeles Raiders.

In a game involving two teams out of the playoff picture, San Diego took a 41-38 victory over Kansas City. The Dolphins beat Atlanta Saturday 31-24 in the weekend's only other action.

Redskins 31, Cowboys 10

Joe Theismann threw two touchdown passes, John Riggins ran for two more and Washington's defense shackled running back Tony Dorsett and victimized quarterback Danny White as the Redskins seized first place in the NFC East. The Cowboys had won their earlier meeting in Washington 31-30.

The Redskins, 13-2, will win the NFC East title if they beat the Giants next Saturday or if the Cowboys, 12-3, lose next Monday night to San Francisco. If the Cowboys and Redskins finish tied at 13-3, the Cowboys would win based on a better division record.

"I wouldn't have thought it would be like this," said Washington coach Joe Gibbs. "It was just one of those things where we got things going our way. Everybody on our side fully believes we will play them again and that will be the biggie."

Broncos 21, Colts 19

Rookie John Elway, sparking against the team he wouldn't play for, fired three touchdown passes in a furious fourth-quarter rally as Denver overcame a 19-0 deficit and squeaked past Baltimore.

The victory improved the Broncos record to 9-6 and, coupled with a Buffalo loss to San Francisco, put them into the NFL playoffs for the first time since 1979.

Elway — the No. 1 draft choice of the Colts who was traded to Denver after he refused to play with Baltimore — completed one scoring toss of 21 yards, then fired a pair of 26-yard scoring strikes, the last coming with only 44 seconds left in the game, and giving the Broncos the victory.

Oilers 34, Browns 27

Wide receiver Tim Smith caught two touchdown passes, the second a 43-yarder, with 6:17 left to rally Houston over Cleveland. The Oilers, who blew an early 24-6 lead, completed their comeback with a two-play, 65-yard drive leading to Smith's game-winning catch.

"We were down 24-6 and we came back and had a chance to take control and we didn't," Browns coach Sam Rutigliano (Please turn to page 12)

Redskins, Dallas 'Clash' Falls Short Of Buildup

IRVING, Texas (AP) — So, with Super Bowl XVII½ out of the way, it's on to the National Conference Championship for the Washington Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys — with a few steps in between.

Sunday's game between the National Football League's two fiercest rivals was supposed to be a titanic, ferocious death-struggle. It was, instead, as one-sided a regular-season game as the 'Skins have ever won against Dallas.

"I don't know why a big game like this doesn't always bring out the best in each team," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said after the Redskins' 31-10 victory built on Joe Theismann's two touchdown passes. John Riggins' two scoring runs and a defense that forced the Cowboys into numerous mistakes and several bursts of uncharacteristic pique. "It didn't bring the best out in us today. We didn't make a battle of it, really, in a game that would have given us the championship of the East.

"When you get whipped as badly as we got whipped, there's not much you can say," Landry added. "The Redskins are a better team right now, obviously."

A Cowboys victory would have given them the championship of the NFC East. Instead, Washington, 13-2, has the best record in the league and a one-game lead over Dallas with one to play before the playoffs begin. The only way Dallas can win the division title is if it beats San Francisco next Monday night and the 'Skins lose next Saturday to the New York Giants.

They have the two best records in the league and, barring an upset, they'll meet again Jan.

8 with the NFC title on the line — as it was a year ago, when Washington routed the Cowboys 31-17 en route to Super Bowl XVII.

"If we're fortunate enough to beat a few teams along the way," said Landry, "we'll play them again. But we have to beat a few before we'll get to them again."

There's no doubt in the Redskins' mind that they'll be facing Dallas for the conference championship. "We did sort of dominate the Cowboys, but they weren't up to their potential today, as far as I'm concerned," said Dexter Manley, their outspoken defensive end. "They will be when we play them again. Yes, we will be playing them again."

And defensive tackle Darryl Grant, who lines up alongside Manley, said: "We'll be waitin' for 'em back home in the mud. Want to get 'em in that mud bowl."

Theismann completed 11 of 17 passes for 203 yards, including TDs of 40 yards to Clint Didier in the 14-point first quarter and 43 yards to Art Monk that broke the game open in the third period. John Riggins had runs of 3 and 1 yards en route to his 89-yard day — which was 55 yards more than the Cowboys gained on the ground.

Tony Dorsett had 34 yards and Ron Springs minus 1 and Danny White, who threw a 29-yard TD pass to Doug Cosbie in the first period, was intercepted three times, all in the second half. Dallas' total offense amounted to 205 yards.

"We stopped Dorsett and that's what it takes," said Manley. "If you can stop Dorsett, you can stop Dallas and we stopped Dorsett today."

Early Anger

fenders in on the play are Anthony Dickerson (on ground), Harvey Martin (79) and Don Smerek (right). The Redskins were forced to punt on the next down but won the game 31-10. (AP Laserphoto)

Rumors Tab Miami Coach

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J.

(AP) — The local teams from both pro football leagues are reportedly interested in hiring Coach Howard Schnellenberger away from the University of Miami, where his fifth-ranked Hurricanes are preparing for an Orange Bowl appearance.

Schnellenberger, 49, was away on a recruiting trip when the reports surfaced Sunday and couldn't immediately be reached for comment. His wife, Beverlee, said her husband scheduled a news conference for this afternoon but she did not know the subject matter.

But a source with the United States Football League's New Jersey Generals said "Schnellenberger is one of five coaches being considered. Nothing has been done. When it's done, it will be done by Donald Trump, not Jimmy the Greek."

Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder said on CBS-TV Sunday that a "handshake" agreement between Schnellenberger and the Generals got in the way of his being offered the head job with the National Football League's New York Giants.

Management of both teams denied the claims.

Snyder said Schnellenberger, who has three years left on his contract in Miami, had met with Generals' owner Donald Trump. The Miami coach made a trip to New York last week to hype the

Jan. 2 Orange Bowl game, in which his Hurricanes, 10-1, will face unbeaten and top-ranked Nebraska.

Last year, the coach turned down an offer to be head coach at Kentucky, his alma mater.

"I'll lay odds he denies everything," said a source with the Generals who asked not to be named.

He didn't have to. Trump issued a statement that Schnellenberger is not a candidate and that he hoped to name a new Generals coach within two weeks.

Holmes Vacates World Council Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Five and a half years and 17 title defenses after he won the crown, Larry Holmes has resigned his World Boxing Council heavyweight title following a bitter dispute with promoter Don King over a contract to fight top-ranked Greg Page.

Holmes, in a surprise announcement Sunday at the final day of the WBC's convention at Caesars Palace, said he will fight as champion of the fledgling International Boxing Federation. His first opponent reportedly will be John Tate, a former World Boxing Association champion.

The resignation came just before the WBC was to announce it would back off its threat to strip Holmes of the title and instead give him and King 30 days to settle their contract differences before an arbitration panel.

"I don't want to destroy or try to destroy an organization that has been good to me," Holmes told WBC President Jose Sulaiman during the Sunday morning session. "I have not refused to fight Greg Page, it's just that the circumstances are not right. We cannot come to an agreement. Therefore, I want to resign from the WBC."

WBC vice president Sig Rogich said an elimination bout would be held between Page and No. 2-ranked Tim Witherspoon to determine a new heavyweight champion. That fight reportedly will take place Feb. 24 at a site that has not yet been named.

The WBC had threatened to strip Holmes of the title for refusing to fight Page for the $2.55 million he had earlier agreed upon with King. Holmes, who said Saturday he signed the contract with King under duress, was adamant he would not abide by its terms.

Holmes, King and Page went before the WBC's executive committee in a closed session late Saturday in an effort to iron out the differences.

Holmes reportedly lambasted King repeatedly during the meeting and King also had sharp words for the champion.

The 34-year-old Holmes, who won the crown from Norton June 9, 1978, was conciliatory when he addressed the WBC convention Sunday, in sharp contrast to the night before.

"I said a lot of things during the meeting I think I shouldn't have said," said Holmes. "But sometimes when you push somebody up against the wall, they push back."

Sports Club Cancelled

The meeting of the Greenville Sports Club scheduled for Tuesday has been cancelled.

Running back Tony Collins, who played collegiate football at East Carolina University and now plays with the New England Patriots, was scheduled to be the guest speaker. The Patriots defeated the Los Angeles Rams 21-7 Sunday and will remain on the west coast through the week to prepare for Seattle.

The next meeting of the club will be January 10 with former Duke basketball star Jeff Mullins as the speaker.

Saturday night, East Carolina Coach Charlie Harrison hopes that he got a look into the future. His Pirate basketball team played Duke University, losing 80-64. Duke at one point was up by 26 points, but the Pirates rallied to within 13 and had the chance to cut it to 11 twice but missed on both opportunities.

In some ways, East Carolina's Pirates this year resemble Duke University's team of a year ago. The Blue Devils were young and started several freshmen. Those freshmen, now still young sophomores, are a seasoned group this year and have run off six straight victories. They still have to be really tested, however, but they are several steps up on the team of last year.

East Carolina is starting three freshmen, a junior and a senior. While East Carolina doesn't have a Johnny Dawkins, it does have some potential and Harrison is hopeful that come next season, the Pirates will do as well as the Blue Devils are doing this season.

Saturday night, they were able to put together a rally against Duke, and at one time during the rally, they had one sophomore and four freshmen on the floor.

The experience the Pirates need will come hard at times this year but Harrison feels they have already benefited from it. There was a definite difference in the team over the past two weeks when they lost to Virginia Commonwealth by 31 points and didn't seem to ever get started. This time, they did get their game under control.

What Harrison is most hopeful of, however, is that the ECU fans will be patient — and, more importantly — present. He feels that the players need to look in the stands and find that the fans appreciate what they're trying to do. One of Harrison's goals is to stop the swinging door of players who come to ECU, stay a year or so, then transfer to other grounds.

One factor, Harrison feels, will be fan support, both from the student body and from the community in general.

There's one last chance for this support this calendar year, and that is Saturday. The Pirates play host to Drexel on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Sunday afternoon, the "Battle of the Giants" was held on national television as Dallas hosted Washington in a key NFL contest. The first half, it was a ball game, with Washington on top 14-10. But as the Cowboys continued to be frustrated by the Redskin defenses, emotions gradually took away from the game — and took Dallas out of it.

Sunday afternoon, Washington was clearly the best team.

But if history is correct, the two will probably meet again once more in the playoffs. That will serve as the rubber game for 1983 — and the most important, since the winner will be in the Super Bowl again.

Nixon Leads Clippers

By The Associated Press

Before the game, Norm Nixon and Terry Cummings talked about providing some leadership for the San Diego Clippers.

Then they showed their teammates what they meant.

Nixon scored a career-high 35 points and added 17 assists while Cummings scored 28 points to lead the Clippers to a 118-116 National Basketball Association victory on Sunday night over the Dallas Mavericks, who got 40 points for the second straight game from Mark Aguirre.

Nixon said he told Cummings that "he and I have to set the example for the team."

"It's up to us to start the leadership thing," Nixon said. "I've got to try not to get down. I've got to stay positive and be a cheerleader."

Nets 141, Nuggets 130

New Jersey made its first eight shots from the floor and took a 43-34 first-quarter lead, aided by Albert King's 16 points. King finished with a season-high 30, while Otis Birdsong had 25 and Buck Williams added 24.

Denver pulled within 50-47 in the second quarter until a Nets' spurt put them ahead 77-58 just before halftime.

76ers 97, Bucks 87

Milwaukee had won seven straight games and had not lost any of its nine home games this season. Philadelphia, led again by Julius Erving and Moses Malone, changed the Bucks' luck.

Skins Downs Dallas...

said. "This is the last way we thought we would lose this game. We've lost the ability to control our own destiny. The only thing that stopped us today was ourselves."

Seahawks 17, Giants 12
Dave Krieg fired a pair of first-half touchdown passes, each set up by turnovers, as Seattle defeated the Giants.

New York quarterback Jeff Rutledge's 10-yard touchdown strike to Earnest Gray with 25 seconds to play was nullified by a holding call against offensive tackle John Tautolo on fourth down. On the next play, Rutledge's pass was batted down.

"We did win the game, but the other team self-destructed," Krieg said. "They had a lot of turnovers. I thought the New York Giants played better than the Seattle Seahawks. If they hadn't had so many turnovers, they might have won."

49ers 23, Bills 10
Roger Craig and Wendell Tyler each scored in the third quarter as the 49ers beat Buffalo. The 49ers, 9-6, took the lead for good 13-10 after intermission on Joe Montana's 4-yard TD pass to Craig.

"The turning point was our first touchdown," said San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh, referring to Montana's TD pass that wiped out a 10-6 Buffalo lead. "After all the hard work Buffalo did, suddenly we were ahead."

Saints 20, Eagles 17
Morten Andersen's 50-yard field goal 5:30 into overtime lifted New Orleans over over Philadelphia. Earlier, Andersen had kicked a 52-yarder which gave New Orleans a 17-3 lead, but Philadelphia rallied for a pair of late touchdowns to send the game into overtime.

"If I don't make those 50-yarders, I'm not doing my job," said Andersen, who has made 17 of 23 this season. "I'd have made that one from 60 yards out, because I got all of it."

Bengals 17, Lions 9
Pete Johnson rambled for 118 yards and a pair of first-half touchdowns, leading Cincinnati over Detroit.

The Lions, 8-7, still can win their first division title since 1957 by beating Tampa Bay next Sunday at home. They had a three-game winning streak snapped with Sunday's loss.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Retirement made me appreciate my talent; it made me appreciate what it took to be champion," says Sugar Ray Leonard, who plans to be a champion again.

Saturday night, the 27-year-old Leonard, who retired Nov. 9, 1982, five months after surgery for a detached retina, fought a six-round exhibition at Andrews Air Force Base, then announced he was ending his retirement.

Leonard, who said has been working out for several months and decided about two months ago to return to the ring, said Sunday he was told by Dr. Ronald Michels, who operated on the detached retina, that the eye "is excellent and I don't see any problem with the retina."

"I'm coming back for the challenge, not for the money, not for the adulation," said Leonard, who was the undisputed welterweight champion of the world, when he retired with a 32-1 record. "It's for me."

No sooner, did Leonard announce his comeback, than he was asked about fighting Marvelous Marvin Hagler, the undisputed middleweight champion; Roberto Duran, the World Boxing Association junior middleweight champion, and Thomas Hearns, the World

Boxing Council super welterweight champion.

"He fought Hearns and Duran and what has he got to prove," Goody Petronelli, trainer and co-manager of Hagler, told ABC Radio Sports Sunday. Leonard lost the WBC welterweight title to Duran then won it back in the famous "no mas" fight, and he beat Hearns for the undisputed welterweight title.

"I think his big challenge is Marvin Hagler," said Petronelli.

But Leonard, who said wants to fight every three months beginning in February, said he wanted to have a couple of 10-round fights then go after the welterweight title.

He then gave a small group of reporters Sunday a script of how he would like his new boxing career to go.

"First I'll knock out Milt McCrory (the WBC welterweight champion), then I'll knock out Don Curry (the WBA welterweight champion), knock out Duran, knock out Hearns and knock out Hagler."

"I always knew I could beat Hagler. Hagler knows I can beat Hagler."

"After Duran lost to Hagler (on a decision), he said to me, 'You Ray, you knock him out,'" said Leonard, who was at that fight as commentator for Home Box Office.

Leonard said he will continue to serve as a boxing commentator for HBO and CBS and continue to pursue other interests, but "fighting is primary. Everything else is secondary."

"I think I'm destined to do something special in boxing. I just can't pinpoint it," said the 1976 Olympic gold medalist who also was the WBA junior middleweight champion before relinquishing that title.

Leonard last fought Feb. 15, 1982, when he stopped Bruce Finch in the third round of a title defense at Reno, Nev. He was supposed to defend against Roger Stafford at Buffalo May 15, but five days before that fight he underwent eye surgery.

Then about three months ago, he started sparring, "it dawned on me that wasn't any threat (from the repaired retina). The workouts I've had erased that psychological scar."

"My injury has been corrected, and it's given me a second chance," said Leonard. "In my heart, I wouldn't risk my life or my eye if the injury hadn't been corrected."

"I'm in position, I feel, to totally initiate safety boxing. Thumbless gloves is an example. I'll only fight with thumbless gloves."

Leonard has been using thumbless gloves in the gym and he used them Saturday night when he sparred three rounds each against Herman Epps, who weighed 172, and Odell Leonard, no relation, 160.

There was a lot clowning during the exhibition — he threw a couple of punches behind his back — but Leonard appeared to be in fighting trim at 151 pounds (the welterweight limit is 147) and his dazzling hand speed was in evidence.

Then Leonard told a news conference, "It's not a comeback. I am back."

But while Leonard has decided two months ago to resume fighting, he did not tell his wife, Juanita, who has been against him coming back.

Sunday morning when he left a hospital, where Juanita, who is expected the couple's second child in June, is recovering from an illness, she asked him where he was going. He told her to see some reporters.

"For what," she asked. The she asked, "You're fight, right?"

"Well, sort of," said Leonard.

"She gave that look," he said. "but she went along with it."

Pack, Heels Enjoy 'Easy' Weekend

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

They say life is hard at the top, but No. 1 North Carolina and reigning college basketball champion North Carolina State each had it easy this weekend.

North Carolina played before the second-biggest crowd to see a regular-season college basketball game at Syracuse and sent most of the audience home disappointed. The Tar Heels took an 87-64 victory over the Orangemen — the same score they defeated Syracuse by in Charlotte nearly one year ago.

The N.C. State Wolfpack crushed the Hofstra's Flying Dutchmen 82-56 behind Lorenzo Charles' 23 points. Terry Gannon added 20 points and helped his teammates earn four days off before going back to the practice floor in preparation for Louisville next Saturday.

In other games involving Atlantic Coast Conference teams, Duke whipped East Carolina 80-64 while Wake Forest raced by Appalachian State 72-46. Eleventh-ranked Maryland got by Duquesne 78-67 while Clemson trounced

The Citadel 92-70.

Michael Jordan scored 19 points to lead a balanced Tar Heel attack. Sam Perkins and Matt Doherty added 16 points apiece, while Brad Daugherty scored 12 points and freshman point guard Kenny Smith had 11. The crowd of 32,235 was second to the 32,382 that saw the St. John's-Syracuse game last season.

Smith was compared with Syracuse freshman guard Dwayne Washington since both played prep ball in New York City. Washington was 3 of 11 from the field and had 8 points.

"I really don't think it is a fair comparison," Kenny Smith said. "With Sam, Matt and Brad ... they really play so well. He doesn't have those people up front."

Charles did his work in 24 minutes, hitting 10 of 12 from the field and adding 10 rebounds to tie teammate Cozell McQueen for honors in that category.

"He comes ready to play and he's a real force," coach Jim Valvano said of his junior. "He shoots well, he's got great hands and he's always working."

Duke is now 6-0 after Johnny Dawkins scored 19 points and Dan Meagher added 18 points. The Blue Devils took command by a 52-31 count at halftime, but could manage 16 points in 15 minutes as the Pirates closed the gap.

"In the second half, East Carolina did not hang their heads," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "They came out really fired up and kept working and I don't think we were as sharp."

Wake Forest scored 16 unanswered points off the jump ball, while Appalachian State missed its first 10 shots. Delaney Rudd led the Demon Deacons with 16 points and was the only player in double figures for his team.

Ben Coleman scored 19 points as the Terrapins opened a 15-point lead on the shorter Dukes. Maryland, in raising its record to 6-0, shot 66 percent from the field.

Senior Murray Jarman scored 22 points as the Tigers took their fifth victory without a loss and sent The Citadel to a 2-2 mark. Jarman scored 12 points in the first half, including six of the first 12 Clemson points en route to a 41-28 edge at halftime.

Duke is the lone ACC team working tonight, hosting Massachusetts. Maryland is at home to Maryland-Eastern Shore on Wednesday.

Buccaneers To Help Decide NFC Central Representative

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay will miss the National Football League playoffs for only the second time in five years, but the Buccaneers could have plenty to say about who represents the NFC Central Division in post-season play.

The 2-12 Bucs, struggling through their worst season since 1977, entertain the Green Bay Packers tonight and visit the division-leading Detroit Lions in their season finale next Sunday.

While the playoff picture remains complicated, at least one possibility is plain and simple: a Tampa Bay victory over the 7-7 Packers in the nationally televised game would give the Lions their first title of any kind since 1957.

If Green Bay wins, Coach Bart Starr's team would move into a first-place tie with Detroit, and a victory over Chicago combined with a Bucs' upset of the Lions next week would give the Packers their first division crown since 1972.

If Green Bay and Detroit finish with the same record, the Lions would win the title by virtue of a better record within the division.

The Packers, 55-14 winners over the Bucs on Oct. 2, have been a model of inconsistency this season, failing to put together a winning streak of more than two games despite an explosive offense that's scored 396 points — third, highest in the NFL.

"I guess we haven't been good enough," says Packers quarterback Lynn Dickey. "I guess you could make up a lot of reasons, but that's the only one I can come up with."

The Green Bay defense has been the most generous in the league, allowing 407 points as the Pack closes in on becoming only the second team in NFL history to score more than 400 points in a season and give up a like amount.

SPORT LINE

To The Sports Editor:

The grapevine is alive and well, and thank goodness for its dependability. It was by this means that I learned quite recently of a newsworthy item about Kelly Heath. Now that name apparently holds little meaning for the informed sports writers down at the Daily Reflector. But most of the Greenville community knows that Kelly Heath is the baseball playing son of Cecil and Jackie Heath. And to those of us who had watched Kelly play ball here in Greenville during his youth, it was no surprise when he was signed by the Kansas City Royals upon his graduation from Louisburg College. This year he became a part of the New York Yankee organization; and it is relative to this transaction (or rather to the manner in which it was reported in the Daily Reflector) that I am writing this letter.

Quite by accident I heard an out-of-towner refer to the fact that Kelly's name had appeared on the sports page of this newspaper. With the closest scrutiny I searched for the article, only to discover that there was no article. Just the briefest reference to Kelly was made in small print under "Scoreboard-Transactions." Such scant attention to the career of a young local man seems somewhat inappropriate when we regularly see headlines and lengthy articles about topics and people of much less relevance to Greenville than this story.

One would think that an item about Kelly's performance in professional baseball would at least rate a captioned story of perhaps one paragraph.

Yankee Follies Linger On For Martin

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

If you're waiting for the other shoe to drop in the Steinbrenner-Billy-Yogi Follies, don't hold your breath.

George Steinbrenner, iconoclastic owner of the New York Yankees, is not a man to be easily pushed into a decision. He acts on whim and impulse, it's true, but he insists on being the one who pulls the trigger.

That's the facet that put such a ludicrous flavor to the big story that never happened last week at baseball's winter meetings in Nashville, Tenn.

"I have nothing to say," said the Tampa, Fla., shipowner, when pressed on the identity of the 1984 Yankee manager. In effect, he indicated the Yankees already had a manager, Billy Martin, with four more years to go on a lucrative contract.

Yet some of the newspapermen who cover the club persisted in writing that Martin was a doomed man to be replaced by the pixieish Yogi Berra, whom Martin had brought over from the Mets to serve as first base coach.

They even set the date. First it was Sunday a week ago. When it didn't happen then, the headlines screamed: "The Axe Will Fall Tuesday."

Like vultures thirsting for the kill, others joined the scalping party.

Time passed. The "Get Martin" crowd waited and fidgeted. Nothing happened.

Meanwhile, Martin professed ignorance of any move to get rid of him a third time as Yankee manager. He made a speech to save a high school in Kansas City, flew East to see friends and joined Mickey Mantle, Whitey Ford and other former Yankee players in a baseball wingding at Claridge's Hotel over the weekend in Atlantic City, N.J.

"George hasn't said anything to me," said Billy. "Not for a month. If he was gonna fire me, I'm sure he would talk to me first. We have become good friends. He is an honorable man — a man of his word."

And there was Yogi twiddling his thumbs in his Montclair, N.J., home not knowing whether to come or go.

Asked if George had made him an offer to manage, he replied with a typical "Yogi-ism."

"Yeah, a little bit."

To understand this baseball opera, it is necessary for one to have a scorecard and a clear understanding of the principals.

George M. Steinbrenner III is a complex individual — a tough businessman, a perfectionist who expects the ultimate from his underlings, yet an idealist, particularly as it relates to Yankee pinstriper.

He will fire a clerk for small negligence yet turn around and write a $25,000 check for underprivileged kids without blinking an eye.

He has made 12 managerial changes in 11 years, repeating with Bob Lemon and Gene Michael and hiring Martin three times.

He fired Dick Howser after the latter had won 101 games and the American League pennant. But in 1982, having decided to rehire Michael, he changed his mind overnight because faithful Bob Lemon had asked a chance for one more year — a sentimental gesture.

The boss is a restless, impatient, impulsive man, wanting quick results. But beneath that crusty facade has been seen a compassion and a sense of loyalty.

Steinbrenner knew what he was getting a year ago when he rehired Billy to a long-term contract for a reported $1.5 to $2.5 million — an established winner, rated the best dugout tactician in the game, at the same time no Dale Carnegie in player relations and an itchy-fingered gun-slinger out of uniform.

Billy improved the team by 12 games, drew 300,000 more fans than the year before and might have won the pennant except for the silly pine tar incident in late July that derailed the Yankees' momentum.

If Steinbrenner now fired Martin with no concrete excuse for doing so, it would make him look foolish in the sight of fans, many of whom would be immediately turned off.

The present knock against Martin, as reported by his critics, is that he alienated key players, particularly star reliever Goose Gossage, by not using them as they liked.

Player agents reportedly were saying, "We won't sign unless Billy goes."

That is equivalent to blackmail.

Modern players, with their million-dollar paychecks, tend to become prima donnas who seek special privilege. Martin is not a school marm but a manager of an old-fashioned cut — in the business of winning ball games.

Steinbrenner must be aware of this. But one thing is sure. When he gets ready to change managers, he'll pick the time and place.

DePaul Overcomes Hoyas, Early Jitters

By The Associated Press

The DePaul Blue Demons are now hoping their show plays well on the road to Japan.

No. 13 DePaul overcame some early jitters and a halftime deficit to overtake third-ranked Georgetown 63-61 at home Saturday night, just one of several upsets to hit Top Twenty teams during the weekend.

"I'm very proud of this team," said DePaul Coach Ray Meyer. "They may have grown up in the face of adversity."

The Blue Demons left today for Osaka, Japan, where they will take part in a round-robin tournament with Alabama and Texas Tech later this week.

Georgetown led by 15 points late in the first half and went into the locker room with a 38-28 advantage. Then DePaul managed to turn things around.

"In the second half, when they were pressing us full court and using a half-court trap, we only made three turnovers," Meyer said.

Said John Thompson, coach of 5-1 Georgetown: "We lost our concentration and they capitalized on it. In the second half we slowed down, stood around a lot. But you got to give DePaul's defense some credit."

Kenny Patterson and backup guard Tony Jackson each scored 15 points for DePaul, now 5-0. Another guard, Jerry McMillan, provided the margin of victory with a pair of foul shots.

After his free throws, the Hoyas took the ball and ran the clock down to the final five seconds before calling time out. Thompson said he designed a play for freshman guard Reggie Williams because "he's a good one-on-one player." Williams eventually missed an 18-foot shot that would have tied it.

Along with Georgetown, the weekend spelled trouble for No. 4 Memphis State, which lost at home to Mississippi State 50-49. No. 5 Iowa, a 53-48 loser to 18th-ranked Oregon State. No. 7 UCLA, which fell at home 65-60 to New Mexico. No. 14 Wichita State, beaten by Oregon 75-60; No. 15 Arkansas, which lost to Nebraska 67-54; and No. 20 Fresno State, which fell to Boise State 60-52.

No. 1 North Carolina and No. 2 Kentucky each escaped the upset bug with impressive victories on the road. North Carolina routed host Syracuse 87-64 and Kentucky trounced Kansas 72-50. Other Top 20 winners were No. 6 Houston, which beat St. Mary's of Texas 71-55; No. 8 North Carolina State, 82-56 over Hofstra; No. 10 Georgia, which won the Drake Classic by beating Northern Iowa 80-58 Saturday night and Drake 93-59 Sunday night; No. 11 Maryland, 78-67 over Duquesne, and No. 19 Purdue, impressive win for us," said Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall.

Mississippi State's Kevin Hildreth sank two free throws with 12 seconds left to upset Memphis State, 4-1. Keith Lee, Memphis State's star forward, drew his third personal foul midway through the first half and was held to 10 points.

Oregon State went into its game against Iowa without three players, two of them starters, who are unable to play in the Beavers' first six games because they violated NCAA rules by selling complimentary game tickets.

But Oregon State, 2-1, raced to an 8-0 lead and never trailed in downing Iowa, 3-2.

Houston Coach Guy Lewis is accustomed to high-scoring efforts by his 5-1 Cougars. So his team's victory, led by Michael Young's 24 points, did not particularly please him.

"This is not a 100-point ballclub. I'll just have to be content with 60 or 70 points and a win," Lewis said.

New Mexico Coach Gary Colson won the 384th game of his 25-year career on Saturday night, and said no victory was ever bigger. Playing at UCLA, Phil Smith and Alan Dolensky each scored four points in the final 1:58 as the Lobos defeated the Bruins.

North Carolina State ran its record to 7-1, paced by Lorenzo Charles' 23 points and

'Dump' Some Nightline Guests

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Finding the right guest for "Nightline" can be tough. But so can telling someone who's just been flattered and cajoled into coming to the studio in the middle of the night that time has run out and he's off the show.

In the television business, guest-dropping is called "dumping," and that's something Tara Sonenshine and Stephen Lewis have to do. They're associate producers, also known as guest-grabbers, for ABC News' "Nightline."

Miss Sonenshine said her job included being "a detective to track down people, a researcher to pore over files, a reporter to determine if the guest will be any good, a psychologist to convince the guest that 'Nightline' is more important than his dinner reservations, and a travel agent to make sure the guest gets there."

"And part masochist," added Lewis.

Lewis once booked a woman for a pre-Halloween broadcast who was going to warn viewers how to check for doctored goodies. "She brought in bags of candy and apples, and prepared a whole presentation," he said. "It was my first dump and it was awfully difficult telling her. She asked if she could use my office to call everybody she had told to stay up. I felt miserable."

At one time or another, science writer Isaac Asimov, Undersecretary of State Richard Holbrooke and Time magazine managing editor Ray Cave have stayed up late for nothing. "Most of them take it well," said Lewis. "Most of them come back."

In the pursuit of good guests and effective programming, feelings can get hurt and family harmony can be imperiled.

One time, "Nightline" planned a show on Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, and Lewis had room for only one author. Trouble was, the author of "Invitation to an Inquest" came in pairs: the husband-wife team of Miriam and Walter Schneir.

Lewis swallowed hard and picked Mrs. Schneir. "I had the distinct feeling that I could cause a divorce here," he said.

For another show, Lewis invited labor writer A.H. Raskin. He was game, but said his wife would be upset because they had special plans that night for their 50th wedding anniversary. "I'm bleeding," Raskin told Lewis. "But I'm coming on."

"Nightline" normally treats its guests to a moderately priced dinner. "This time, we sprung for Lutece (one of New York's ritziest restaurants)," Lewis said.

Guest-grabbing is an important arm of TV journalism, a long tentacle seeking experts who will be articulate and interesting enough to keep a show moving. Ted Koppel is a superb anchor, but he doesn't do monologues as well as Johnny Carson.

"It's up to you to know whether the person will clam up on the air and whether the subject knows his stuff," said Miss Sonenshine.

Miss Sonenshine has a list of telephone numbers longer than most cities' directories. "You'd be surprised how many people are in the regular phone book," she said. "We dug for days before we found out that John DeLorean was in the phone book."

Earlier this year, a man wired with explosives commandeered a jet to Havana. "Nightline" wanted the woman from the plane who translated and negotiated for the hijacker.

Miss Sonenshine learned that she was a Jamaican resort owner who was visiting prep schools in Connecticut with her kids. "I left messages at every school, but we felt defeated," Miss Sonenshine said. "Then she called collect. When she started telling her story, it was music to my ears. You knew she would sing on the air."

The woman was told to rent a car and drive fast. "What direction is New York City?" she asked.

"She got here and was a great guest. Ted loved her," said Miss Sonenshine. "She said the best part of the hijacking was landing in the Havana Airport because the Jordache jeans there were so cheap."

Mud-Wrestler Says It's Part Of Show Biz

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Sassy Sandy showed a half-dollar-sized bruise on her elbow, suffered when The Gypsy Queen sent her flying into the special sanitized Illinois topsoil mud for about the 15th time.

But the bruise, she said, wouldn't stop her from wrestling. The Gypsy Queen, The North's Luscious Lisa, The Apache or her other adversaries on the Chicago-based mud wrestling show.

At 21, Sandy, who is Sandy Ponce, said she had been wrestling for about a year. She has been getting bruises, but she said she didn't mind. "It's part of the show," she said. "I'm a professional. I know what I'm doing."

The final was a tag team match that put two local men against two others. The men got the mud with their hands and feet, and the women by winning a challenge. The men were defeated by the women.

waitress. Night after night, she and her teammates put on one-piece swimsuits, strut into the ring and, after a few preliminaries, get down in the mud and wrestle.

Their audiences are mostly male and mostly appreciative. Only about 300 people paid the $5 or $7 price of a ticket for the show in Greensboro Friday, but Knockers' manager Tom Sailor said most audiences are much larger.

For their money, the spectators see a brief dance routine and several matches between the Knockers' members — including one that as planned, spilled out of the ring into the front-row seats and culminated with The Nighthawk and The Raging Apache throwing folding chairs at each other.

The final was a tag team match that put two local men against two others. The men got the mud with their hands and feet, and the women by winning a challenge. The men were defeated by the women.

in a preliminary tag-team bout.

Miss Pomykala said she enjoys mud-wrestling for a living, despite the physical demands — the "wrestling" is mostly synchronized tumbling — and constant travel. She said the fact that most of her audience comes to be titillated by the sight of scantily dressed women rolling around in the mud doesn't bother her.

"We have our pride, and that takes care of it," she said.

"When we're on stage, we expect to do certain things, but we know what some of the people expect — especially sometimes when they're drunk. But they're not going to get that."

Added The Nighthawk, who is really Mary Beth Colella of Hammond, Ind.: "It's in the eyes of the beholder. If you want to see something dirty in it, you will."

She said she didn't mind being gawked at on stage. "If I was walking on the beach, guys would do the same thing," she said.

The Knockers were created by Sailor, a 29-year-old Chicagoan, who said he was a burned-out insurance broker when he put the team together.

Sailor, who serves as the team's manager and ringside announcer, spends his time recruiting Knockers members, booking engagements and taking care of problems like bus breakdowns.

Like the 35 women on the team — only about a third of the team travels at a time — Sailor thinks of the Knockers as family. He says he still enjoys the lifestyle — although his parents still have trouble telling people their son manages a mud-wrestling team for a living.

"But my friends kind of expected it out of me," he added. "I've always been sort of crazy."

Taking Up Same Goals

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. John Y. Brown, who gives up his office Tuesday to Martha Layne Collins, says one of his objectives was to "create an image of Kentucky as a place to do business."

And as the nation's only female governor and the highest elected woman in the Democratic Party, Mrs. Collins says she hopes to follow up on what Brown has accomplished.

"I am a rather private person," says Mrs. Collins in an interview in People magazine.

Brown and his wife Phyllis George Brown also are interviewed in the article, and described as a "flamboyant first couple."

In her interview, Mrs. Collins says she hopes she, too, can bring attention to Kentucky to "open doors for us."

"I have a background of not being a very public person or someone who seeks recognition," says the incoming governor. "I just want to get the job done."

'Still Looking' For Fulfillment

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock singer Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones says he's doing more now onstage than when he was 20, but concedes "it can't go on forever."

As the Stones close out their 20th year together, the 40-year-old Jagger says "I don't want to sound like a spoiled child, but I'm still looking for fulfillment."

His personal wealth is reported to exceed $10 million and he says he recently signed a $3 million contract to write his autobiography.

But concerning his unsettled feelings, Jagger says in the Dec. 19 issue of Newsweek "I'm poised in every direction."

The man whose voice still can be heard shrieking "I Can't Get No Satisfaction" suggests he might like to do straight acting roles in movies.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ82 ♥AQ5 ♦A874 ♣Q6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♥
2 ♠ 3 ♥ 3 ♠ 4 ♥
? What action do you take?
A.—Usually, we don't like to defend when we have four-card support for partner's suit. Here, however, our two queens are of doubtful value offensively, but at least one should be a trick on defense. Therefore, we would opt for a double of four hearts — to warn partner not to bid on. But change the queen of hearts to the queen of diamonds, and we would prefer four spades.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQJ ♥AKQ107 ♦KQJ ♣A3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—You have a very good hand, but you have nowhere to go. Partner's jump to game over your demand bid shows a hand with good trump support, but it denies first- or second-round control of any side suit. Since you therefore have a certain diamond loser, at best your slam will depend on two finesses — not very good odds. More likely, will have no play at all. Pass.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥AQJ10852 ♦KQ6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥K8 ♦A865 ♣AK93
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Something funny is going on here. You and East should have at least 33 HCP between you, so where does partner get the strength for a jump bid? Obviously, East must be taking advantage of the vulnerability for a psychic bid. You must alert your partner to the situation — cue-bid three spades.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ93 ♥K8 ♦76 ♣9543
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Partner is in the balancing seat — if he does not act, the opponents will buy the contract at one no trump. If he had a good hand, he would have acted immediately over West's opening bid by either overcalling or making a takeout double. Since he did not, the most you can expect of him is a smattering of points and long hearts. Don't penalize him for refusing to let the opponents steal the hand. Pass.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ1062 ♥3 ♦854 ♣QJ109
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ 2 ♥
2 NT Pass 3 NT Dble Pass Pass Pass
What is your opening lead?
A.—Remember the words of "The Charge of the Light Brigade": "Theirs not to reason why, Theirs but to do, or die." Partner has asked you to lead a heart so, even though you have only a singleton and a reasonable suit of your own, lead a heart. That is how you build partnership trust.

Today is Poinsettia Day, in honor of the popular Christmas plant. Although the green and red poinsettia is often depicted covered with Christmas snow, it is actually a tropical plant. The red blossom-like configurations are not the plant's flowers. They are special leaves called "bracts". Dr. Joel Poinsett, an American diplomat, brought the plant to the U.S. Dr. Poinsett once served as a member of Congress and as Secretary of War.

Newlyweds Are Together Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Flowers, hugs, kisses and tears sweetened the reunion of newlyweds whose Mexican honeymoon soured when a bureaucratic snafu kept the bride from re-entering to the United States, says an aide to a congressman.

Dr. Christopher Soprenuk greeted his wife, Marcelina, at Kennedy International Airport on Saturday, said Lynn Hurwitz, an aide to Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J.

The bride, a Filipino nurse, was barred from returning because her travel documents had expired, and officials said they could take two months to replace. With Toricelli's help, Mrs. Soprenuk was granted a humanitarian parole so her papers could be processed here.

Sen. Baker Joins Helms' Campaign

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr., R-Tenn., campaigning in Raleigh Saturday for the re-election of Sen. Jesse Helms, said the two-term conservative Republican was the most effective member of the Senate.

"Without any reservation, there is no senator on either side of the aisle who is more effective than Jesse Helms in representing the interests of this state and in making his philosophy and point of view felt in the halls of the Senate," Baker said. "I'm convinced he represents the majority view of the people of this state."

Gov. Jim Hunt, Helms' expected challenger in the 1984 Senate race, has questioned Helms' effectiveness in the Senate.

Baker spoke at a news conference before a $250-a-ticket fund-raising reception for Helms' campaign treasury.

Baker criticized presidential counselor Edwin Meese III's statement Friday that some people go to soup kitchens "because the food is free, and that's easier than paying for it."

"Ed Meese is a good and decent person," Baker said, "but even good men sometimes put their foot in their mouth and that's what Ed Meese did. I think he will take those words back. I would bet on that."

Bond Sales Reported

J. R. Hooper, voluntary county chairman for the sale of U.S. Savings Bonds in Pitt County, has reported that during July, August and September the sales of Series EE Savings Bonds in Pitt County amounted to $82,868. This brings the sales total for the first nine months of 1983 to $240,534.

The three month third quarter sales in North Carolina were $14,045,348, or 9.1 percent above the same period in 1982. North Carolina sales total for the first nine months was $40,768,402, up 10 percent from a year ago. The figure represents 79.3 percent of the state's dollar goal of bond sales of $51,400,000 for calendar year 1983.

Professor Says Loopholes Permit Unfit To Teach

Eight Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Eight people, including a 3-year-old boy, were killed in North Carolina traffic accidents over the weekend, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

Shelton Maurice Jordan, 3, of Walstonburg was killed on a rural paved road in Greene County when he ran in front of an oncoming vehicle.

Mattie Frazier Cole, 76, died Saturday night when the car in which she was riding was struck head-on by another car on N.C. 168 two miles south of Chesapeake, Va., in Currituck County.

Linda Anne Munao, 20, and Cheryl Lynn Branch, 20, both of Charlotte, died early Saturday morning when their car ran off the road and struck a utility pole on N.C. 51.

Carroll Eugene Reep, 23, of Lincolnton and Rachel Sain Wright, 47, of Vale died in a two-car accident early Sunday on N.C. 27 one mile west of Lincolnton. Officers said a car driven by Reep crossed the center line and hit Ms. Wright's car head-on.

Michael Ray Tucker, 16, of Gibsonville, died Friday night when the car in which he was riding ran off the road and hit a tree one mile south of Graham.

Lester David Ray, 54, of Fayetteville died early Saturday when the car he was driving was struck by another car two miles north of Raeford.

The weekend deaths bring the total for the year to 1,137. Last year at this time, 1,252 people had died on the state's highways.

Paid More Than It Got

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state paid about $16,000 more in legal fees than it collected in a five-year civil suit to collect money it said the operators of a Wilson rest home owed it, authorities said.

The state paid about $223,000 to its lawyers to press the claim and about $17,000 to put all the motions into a computer, according to a memorandum for Jack Cozort, Gov. Jim Hunt's legal adviser, to Commissioner of Labor John Brooks.

The rest home operators settled the suit in July with a $225,000 payment to the state.

"There are principles that are expensive. It's the price you have to pay to do the right thing," Cozort said.

In 1975 the state leased part of North Carolina Specialty Care Center in Wilson to Wilson Community Rest Home, Inc. In 1978, State Auditor Henry L. Bridges told the Council of State the lease was improper, had cost the state more than $400,000 in lost revenue and advised the state to break the lease.

The state filed suit in March 1978 to get the money it said it lost and canceled the lease. The defendants filed a countersuit asking the state for money the rest home did not get after the lease was broken.

The suit was settled in July with a $225,000 payment to the state and the dropping of all other claims.

Children Like Voice Cadence

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) — Young children who beg their parents to read stories aloud are attracted more by the cadence of the voice than by the story line, a professor at Hobart and William Smith Colleges says.

"Kids come into tune with the music of the language well before they comprehend the plot," according to Charles Temple.

Although children don't grasp the plot until the age of 2 or 3, the simple act of reading aloud can create a "fantastic association" that can start a lifelong love of books, Temple says.

at East Carolina University.

The state requires that math teachers in middle schools have at least 18 hours of college credit in the field.

But the state Board of Education, prodded by school superintendents, now allows superintendents to give uncertified math teachers up to nine hours of credit for teaching while uncertified, said Dr. Caroline Hodgins of ECU.

The uncertified teachers could receive one hour of credit for each year they taught math while uncertified, she said Thursday.

The board also allows individual superintendents to give additional credit for previous math courses, no matter when they were taken, along with in-service training.

"Conceivably these people could be properly certified by superintendents without making one step toward improving instruction," Ms. Hodgins said. "As far as their credentials on paper are concerned, they will have the same creditation as one of our graduates" with complete training in math education.

The new rule was one of several the board passed to answer criticism of out-of-field teaching. Out-of-field teachers are instructors who have no certification for the subject they teach.

Ms. Hodgins said an institute last summer for middle school teachers needing college credit to be certified in math showed some teachers were capable, while others were "woefully ignorant."

"We'd get to a subject and I'd say 'Well, you understand this. It's in your books.' Then I'd find they didn't understand it and were just skipping over it in their teaching."

"Some of them (uncertified teachers), if the truth were known, are responsible for the problems we have," she said.

Ms. Hodgins said superintendents were concerned about getting enough teachers certified in math to teach this year. She said she realized the change would require a transition period, but is worried that some superintendents may short-circuit the intent of the new rules by handing out certifications.

"I've heard of one system that had 55 uncertified teachers at the beginning of the year," she said. "But after this review process by the superintendent, 50 of them were certified. It looks like we've done a wonderful thing."

"At that rate, if it happened in other systems, we wouldn't have any demand next summer for institutes to get teachers certified," she said. "Having out-of-field teachers in the classroom is just a problem we've had for a long time, but this new thing is just handing out paper certificates for breathing."

Dr. J. Arthur Taylor, director of the certification branch for the state Department of Public Instruction, disagreed that the change in the requirement would lead to wholesale paper certification of teachers.

"I don't think it's open to abuse," Taylor said. "This only applies to individuals already assigned out-of-field who have been teaching the same subject at that level."

"We take the strong position that the person who has taught that subject at that level for nine years has the equivalent of nine semester hours of college," Taylor said.
