Comb Kuwait For Bombing Suspects

KUWAIT (AP) — Authorities scoured the city today for the terrorists in the multiple bombings that killed at least seven people and demolished part of the U.S. Embassy. The United States threatened retaliation if those responsible for the bombings can be identified.

The six explosions Monday — one a suicide truck-bomb attack on the U.S. mission — wounded 62 people, officials said.

"If the offenders can be clearly identified then I think there will be ways of getting at them," Secretary of State George P. Shultz told reporters in Lisbon, Portugal. He declined to elaborate.

The State Department in Washington said five non-American embassy employees were killed and one was missing. An Egyptian technician at Kuwait's international airport also was killed in the explosion of a car-bomb.

Armored vehicles stood guard outside embassies and strategic facilities in the capital of this tiny Persian Gulf nation. Roadblocks were set up throughout the downtown area, but sources said an unofficial ban on travelers in and out of Kuwait's international airport was easing.

The American School remained closed, as did the Hilton International hotel some 50 yards from the U.S. Embassy, site of the largest blast. The hotel was evacuated, and management said it would remain closed for three days. They estimated damage at $400,000.

The Kuwait News Agency said several people had been arrested in connection with the bombings, but did not elaborate.

Witnesses, neighbors and officials gave confusing and sometimes conflicting accounts of the blasts.

The Islamic Holy War, a shadowy group with Iranian ties, said it was responsible for the bombings. It previously said it carried out the similar suicide truck bombings earlier this year at the U.S. Embassy and the compounds of the American and French peacekeeping forces in Beirut, Lebanon.

"I think it is likely that the attacks are linked," Shultz said at his Lisbon news conference.

President Reagan, in an interview with the New York Daily News published today, warned Iran to "curb" terrorist attacks.

"If this is an Iranian group that claims that this is part of a holy war and this is being done in the interest of the government of Iran, then I think that Iran has a responsibility to curb and curtail these things being done in their name."

The Greenville Board of Education Monday night gave tentative approval to accepting four mobile office units offered to the city schools by Burroughs Wellcome Co. The motion authorizes the superintendent to enter into a formal agreement of acceptance.

Superintendent Delma Blinson told the board the only expense involved in accepting the mobile units would be that of moving the units to an appropriate school site.

The four units are each 12 feet wide by 60 feet in length and currently are assembled into a single office unit 24 feet wide by 120 feet long.

"We anticipate use of these units in conjunction with the math and science programs in the schools," Dr. Blinson commented. The units include heat pumps, lighting fixtures and wiring, precast stairs and handrails, and perimeter skirting.

Following considerable discussion on a bus report made by Bob Stewart, director of grounds and maintenance, the board approved a motion by member Frank Grooms requesting the administration to prepare a detailed plan of bus schedule operations. The study will detail various alternatives to include the most cost effective system.

Stewart noted that Cato Devane, Division of Transportation area coordinator, had visited with him and Rebecca Oats, director of secondary education, to discuss the fact that Greenville schools are transporting students in excess of bus seating capacities. The result is standees on some buses.

Two major concepts in future busing were discussed. One would involve a fleet of buses assigned to the elementary schools; the other, to have buses assigned individually to each school with the principal at each school to be responsible for routing. In both concepts, an arrangement of two runs for each bus would be needed — with short runs for students living nearest the school to be made first, followed by a second run for students living a greater distance from schools.

Preliminary estimates made by Stewart indicate that five additional buses would be needed to carry out the first concept, and eight buses for the second concept. For any plan, the estimate needs are based on the premise that the current "hazardous plan" for certain areas would remain in effect. Based on state law, the state is not required to provide transportation to students living 1.5 miles or less from the school they attend. However, state law also permits authorization for transporting students who live closer if traffic conditions constitute a safety hazard. Currently, the Greenville schools have hazardous conditions authorized for several areas — Greenville Boulevard, Memorial Drive, 10th Street, Arlington Boulevard, East 14th Street, Evans Street Extended, and Hooker Road.

Board members agreed they will not want any of those areas removed from the hazardous conditions list.

Another factor that may affect bus planning is that the Legislature may require that all students be seated and that safety belts be used on school buses. Such a law would make more buses necessary.

Approval was given to three planned field trips to be taken by students at Rose High during the 1984 Easter vacation: a trip to England, one to France and one to

New York City. The trip to France also includes excursions to England, Switzerland and Italy.

The board rejected the single bid received on the recent auction of the Rose High Live Project house. The administration will seek new bids on the house, which is located in the Cambridge subdivision.

Budget Amendment No. 8 for the current expense fund was approved. The amendment is for an increase of $9,023 and represents an adjustment of the budget to reflect funds received for

New Winterville Aldermen Are Sworn In At Monday Meeting

WINTERVILLE — Town Clerk Elwood Nobles swore in Aldermen Bobby Crawford and Leland Tucker for four-year terms Monday night at the regular Winterville town board meeting.

Mayor E.C. Hines reappointed Nobles as town clerk and Keith Knox as chief of police.

The mayor also assigned each alderman duties for the next two years. Alderman Bobby Crawford was assigned to the electric department, rescue and sanitation; Alderman Leland Tucker, was assigned to the water, sewer and housing departments, and alderman John Weatherington was assigned to the fire, recreation, streets and drainage departments.

In its meeting business, the board received a certificate from Nobles for street improvements for parts of Cooper Street. A public hearing was set for Jan. 9 for a preliminary assessment resolution.

A report was made by Harriet Britt on the Community Development project. Ms. Britt said 11 house projects had been completed, three were under construction, and the contract had been signed on another. Street improvements that were delayed due to bad weather are to begin immediately.

Payment in the amount of $3,870 was approved to Hendrix-Barnhill for work completed on Cooper Street.

If you have information on any crime committed in Pitt County, call Crimestoppers, 758-7777. You do not have to identify yourself and can be paid for the information you supply.

Nobles said the next step is to obtain the services of Eastern Utilities Specialists of Manassas, Va., to view about 100 feet of the sewer line with television-monitoring equipment to locate leaks. The board approved the motion.

Approval was given to the final plat of the Winterville Square apartments to be located on Mill Street, near Winterville Machine Works.

Additional approval was given for chamber of commerce dues, $20, and to the Ruritan Club for $15 for the annual calendar.

The board also approved a draft proposal for the town to take over the Baywood subdivision water system. The board instructed town attorneys to go ahead with final agreement.

The board was informed about money that the town would receive from the North Carolina Department of Transportation. About $1 million in funds was made available to small urban town for improvements. Winterville will receive funds to aid in the paving of East Blount Street to Sylvania Street. The only cost to the town will be 10 percent of the total cost.

First Woman On Ayden Town Board Is Sworn In

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — The first woman to ever serve on the Town Board of Commissioners took the oath of office Monday night along with the other four commissioners elected in November to serve two-year terms.

Sue Moody, Ayden's first female commissioner, and Marvin Baldree, J.J. Brown, Carl Speight and Robert Harris were sworn in at the board's monthly meeting by Judge Robert Wheeler.

Mayor Ross Persinger also began another term in office Monday. He has served on the Ayden board and as mayor for over 20 years.

Ms. Moody will serve as the 3rd Ward's representative to the board, replacing Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, who did not seek re-election. She said she was "looking forward to serving the people of Ayden and representing their interests."

The board re-elected Commissioner J.J. Brown as mayor pro-tem.

Persinger presented Dixon a certificate of appreciation for his work on the board. "No one has had the best interests of the town of Ayden more at heart than has Dr. Dixon," said Persinger. "The certificate and the accompanying resolution are thanks for the distinguished service he's given in his 10 years on the board."

Dixon said it had been a "privilege to serve on the board" and that the last 10 years had been a "period with a great deal of progress made in the area."

In other business:

•The board authorized Town Manager Don Russell to submit the required documentation to North Carolina for a pre-valuation of the cost of joining the state's retirement system.

•Tom Craft and Dell Tullock were reappointed to three-year terms on the Recreation Commission.

•The town audit for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1983, was approved.

•Bobby Worthington was appointed to serve as Ayden's representative on the Mid-East Commission.

•Bradfield & Associates of Atlanta was selected as the architectural firm for the Housing Authority modernization project for a cost of approximately $18,000.

•The board approved several policies, including a contractor's handbook and a specification handbook, for the town's Community Development Block Grant projects.

•The board approved the addition of $1,537 to the town's 1983 tax levy. Most of the addition, said Town Clerk Ralph Ford, is taxes on previously unlisted automobiles.

FIRST WOMAN ON AYDEN BOARD ... Sue Moody, center, is sworn in as the Ayden Board of Commissioners' first woman member. Judge Robert Wheeler Monday administered the oath of office to Moody and other town commissioners recently elected to two-year terms. Long-time Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger (not pictured) was also sworn in for another term in office.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Walt Briley, brother of the bride, and Steve Foust, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Greenville and Joey Parsons of Robbins, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride was dressed in a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with chantilly lace.

The fitted bodice was enhanced with a sheer yoke of English net embroidered with schiffli lace and overlaid in chantilly lace. The long sheer puffed sleeves were fashioned of organza and trimmed with chantilly lace. The full circular skirt and attached chapel length train were accented with chantilly lace tiers.

The honor attendant wore a wine colored gown with spaghetti straps. She carried a bouquet of burgundy roses with pink and white daisies. The bridesmaids each wore a wine colored crepe dress with a ruffled bodice and capped sleeves. Each carried a single white rose.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church after the ceremony.

The couple will live in Robbins after a trip to the N.C. mountains.

An informal party was held for the bride at the home of Elaine Harrell, wedding director, recently. Mrs. Richard Maness and Tracy Williamson entertained at a miscellaneous shower for the bride in Robbins and a similar shower was given by Phyllis Goforth, Jan Foust and Ruth Bateman in Greenville prior to the ceremony.

I wouldn't say it's the most definitive poll ever conducted on what men want, but a manufacturer of Scotch did a survey among 350 Dads and discovered nearly two-thirds of them would rather receive Scotch for Christmas than a necktie. They're kidding.

The next thing they're going to tell me is men would rather stay home and watch the Super Bowl than get dressed up and attend a ballet of "Beowulf."

Don't you think women know what men think about neckties for Christmas? How stupid do they think we are? For years, we've known men hate neckties—especially those chosen by someone else. So why do we do it?

For some of us it's a test of love. It's a yearly reassessment of our marriage. The tie either brings things to a breaking point or you renew the contract. If a marriage survives a burgundy tie with a coral flamingo on it, the chances are you're good for another year.

For most women the gift of a necktie makes a statement. It makes several of them, actually. It can say, "You're impossible to buy for, but you have to have something to unwrap." Or it can say, "The odds are with me. For 16 years, I've gotten a tie you won't wear. Maybe this is the year." For me, it's a yearly warning to my husband that he is drifting in his appearance and if he doesn't correct his course he could wind up like Woody Allen. There was one year I missed giving him a necktie and when he opened the present he said, "It's nice, but what is it?" I haven't missed a year of tie-giving since then. The survey also discovered that an average man will have 50 or more ties already in his closet. Of that number, he will wear possibly one. It serves him right for having taste. A tie has become more than a gift in this country. To women it is the next stop past puberty for their sons. When do you become a man? The year you graduate from college? The year you own your own car? The year you have your own checking account? Wrong. It's the first Christmas you get a necktie from your mother. It's the year you've become impossible to buy

Dear Abby

Couple Has Mom To Thank For Final Gift

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was married in a beautiful ceremony in our church last Saturday, after which she and her husband took off for a two-week honeymoon.

I had all their wedding gifts on display at my home together with the cards of the givers, and I promised to pack them all up and keep them until they returned so they could write their thank-you notes. They received about 250 wedding gifts.

Well, I don't know where my head was, Abby, but I collected all the gift cards and put them in a large envelope—then I packed up the gifts!

It suddenly occurred to me they won't know which cards came with which gifts! What should I do?

THOUGHTLESS MOTHER

DEAR THOUGHTLESS: In acknowledging a gift, one should make some reference to "the beautiful ice bucket" or the "lovely salad bowl," but unless somebody writes or telephones each giver to find out what was given, your daughter and her husband will have to thank them all for the "lovely gift" and let it go at that.

Your gigantic goof, however, serves a good purpose. It will remind all brides to make a list of each gift together with the name of the giver as soon as it is received.

DEAR ABBY: What should a lady do when she approaches a male friend and she notices that his zipper is down? This happened to me in a hotel lobby where I was meeting a friend for lunch.

I didn't have the nerve to say anything to him about it, so we both sat all through lunch with his zipper open. Naturally I didn't enjoy the lunch very much because I kept thinking that maybe I should tell him.

Well, when we finished lunch and he took the napkin off his lap, he said, "Oh, Lord!" Then he zipped up his zipper.

My question: Should I have told him when I first noticed it? And if so, how?

ON THE SHY SIDE

DEAR ON: Yes. You should have whispered in a quiet and confidential manner, "Please check your zipper."

DEAR ABBY: After seven years of marriage, my husband (I'll call him Joe) and I are divorcing. We have been separated for a year, and here's the situation: Joe lives out of town, and when he comes in without a date (twice a month), we always end up in bed together. We enjoy each other sexually, and neither one of us has found anyone else with whom we are more comfortable sexually. We're not kinky; we just know what pleases each other.

Joe thinks this should go on forever. I have my doubts, mainly because I could very easily fall in love with him again, which I think would be a step backward. (He was a poor husband, and I know he will never change.)

Do you think that to continue this twice-a-month habit is OK since we both enjoy it and are not serious about anyone else right now? Or should we try to break off all ties before the divorce is final?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Joe obviously wants the pleasure of your company "forever" for sexual reasons—a nice convenience—but since you feel that it may cause you to "fall in love" with him again, which would not be in your best interests, let go. Say goodbye to all of Joe so you can be free to go on with your life.

Two Women Authors Advise Men Who Don't Know What To Wear

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor

Men have high regard for their appearance. They just don't spread the word around as women do.

Two women who have written a clothing guide for men say that most men just don't know what to wear for their particular lifestyle. Marge Swenson and Gerrie Pinckney hope to help them get it all together in their "New Image for Men" (Publishers' Marketing Group, Richardson, Texas, $12.95), and through their advisory sessions with men from college graduates to corporate executives.

"There's a definite increase of interest in men's clothing styles," Mrs. Pinckney said.

"Men are as vain as women, if not more so. They just don't want others to know that. A man will say 'Thank you' if told he looks fantastic. Nothing more. I don't know why, unless it's the macho image.

"Men are not interested in each other's appearance, only in self. Women will compliment each other.

"We've done a lot of consultation with corporate presidents and vice presidents. They're already successful but now they're interested in looking good outside the job. They ask, 'How can I look good in private life?' They simply do not know what to wear.

"Men have a different outlook on their builds too," said Mrs. Pinckney in a telephone interview from her office in Costa Mesa, Calif. "A woman will look in a mirror and say, 'Ugh, I'm too fat.' A man will look in a mirror and say, 'Oh, you handsome thing, you.'"

Yet, when it comes to clothing shopping, 85 percent of men's apparel is bought by women — wives or girl friends. Most men don't like to shop. They'll let the women do the advance research, then usually take them along when it's time for final decision.

You might ask what two women are doing advising men on shopping. The answer is, they just seem to have grown into it.

Mrs. Pinckney, born in Pioche, Nev., had a career in fashion modeling, retailing and the theater arts.

Mrs. Swenson, born in Salt Lake City and reared in Los Angeles, was a fashion writer, custom designer and dressmaker.

They met doing church work and started giving charity fashion shows. Twelve years ago they formed the Fashion Academy, as consultants on colors and wardrobe planning. Today, the academy, headquartered in Costa Mesa, Calif., is an international corporation with several hundred certified consultants in the United States and such far-flung places as

A CLOTHING GUIDE...for men has been written by Marge Swenson, left, and Gerrie Pinckney. They say most men just don't know what to wear for their particular lifestyle. (UPI Telephoto)

South Africa, Australia, Saudi Arabia, Canada, England, France and Austria.

When teaching classes for women, Mrs. Pinckney said, the students would ask, "What can I do about my husband?" So now they have regular sessions for men who haven't the vaguest idea of what type of tie goes with what type of shirt or suit.

"They know that 'rep' patterns are safe," Mrs.

Pinckney said, "but they're afraid to get into the so-called 'unsafe.'"

The two women have formulated some shopping suggestions for men.

—Shop alone or with someone who is objective about your needs, colors, style and personality.

—Dress well when shopping to gain respect from salespeople.

—Decide what you really need and put first things first. A priority shopping list controls impulse buying.

—Forget all your preconceived ideas about color. Decide which of your neutrals you want to start with.

—Consider each purchase in this order: Size, color, line, texture, fit and personality.

—If you are not happy and confident about your purchase, don't buy it.

—Fads come in and out but men's fashions in general have a five-year life cycle.

Both Mrs. Pinckney and Mrs. Swenson are married to former Marine officers, now businessmen, who Mrs. Pinckney said "are standard sizes. They can buy off the rack or tailor-made. But we usually go shopping with them.

"Except for shoes. There they do their own thing."

Liberty Flickers

The United Nations' special political committee has approved a resolution calling for a new world information and communication order.

It was mentioned only in passing by the wire service last week, but there will be a lot of commenting when the General Assembly approves the resolution, as it is certain to do after the 102-4 vote.

This is why:

The "developing nations" and "undeveloped nations", the communist bloc and those governments of one-party rule or military rule (which involves most of the rest of the world), take a view of the news totally different from the free world. To them the "news" is a propaganda resource.

In our small corner of the world, the four governments who cast a "no" vote to the proposal for a new "world information and communication order" regard news as something quite different.

Here, purveyors of news are guaranteed such liberties as allow them to cover the full spectrum of happenings and thought, portraying events in their worst or best light ... telling it as they see it. Their readers, listeners or viewers have a choice of opinions; and shape their own opinions. Our philosophy is that's the way it should be.

The free press is logically concerned that in the course of events our world could be flooded with news and commentary favorable to the regimes of an oppressive nature; and opportunities for misinformation will multiply.

We don't like to see Liberty's torch flicker even for a moment.

Rosy Projection

Economists from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and First Union National Bank see North Carolina's economy as continuing to show quick growth in 1984.

It was predicted that the gross state product will grow by 6.3 percent this year and an additional 4.5 percent next year.

Both represent an upward revision from what had been predicted previously.

The state's economy grew by 17.7 percent in the second quarter of 1983 and a spokesman said 1984 is looking more like 1983 economically.

There has been an obvious improvement in North Carolina's economy over the worst times of the recent recession. Now there is evidence that the improvement will continue into 1984. That should help the state government in bettering its revenue picture, give us the opportunity to reduce unemployment and help provide a better life for us all.

'Japanese Conspiracy'

NEW YORK (AP) — One after another once-healthy industries around the world have become weakened by a flood of Japanese products: Television sets, machine tools, automobiles, cameras, semiconductors, consumer electronics.

Is this because of Japanese hard work, skill and shrewdness? Or is it a consequence of economic totalitarianism, a conspiracy of the Japanese "bureaucratic industrial complex," organized and disciplined by the Ministry of International Trade and Industry?

Marvin Wolf maintains that the remarkable Japanese quest to become "itichiban," or No. 1, is supported at least in part by a conspiracy in which unethical and illegal practices are subtly, secretly used.

Among them: Patent theft, violation of marketing agreements, industrial espionage, dumping in foreign markets to depress prices and kill competition, price-fixing, government subsidies, import restrictions, and an undervalued currency that allows its products to sell abroad at relatively low prices.

Wolf, who spent many years in the Far East as an Army officer and civilian, has produced his thesis in a book, "The Japanese Conspiracy," subtitled: "The Plot to Dominate Industry World Wide — and How to Deal With It."

It is bound to offend the Japanese, and it will almost certainly anger many Americans, among them those who have lost jobs because their companies were weakened while American government officials protested — feebly, if at all.

This is how Wolf describes the attack on the American and European machine tool industries, which are basic to almost all manufacturers and are considered a key element in a nation's production efficiency or productivity.

In 1976, he relates, the Japanese were a minor factor in the numerically controlled — which is to say computer controlled — machine tool market, holding less than a 4 percent share in both European and American markets.

But, having acquired foreign technology through, among other methods, the copying of American technology, they were ready to assault the market for numerically controlled (NC) machine tools.

At the very time that U.S. and European manufacturers were cutting output, the Japanese acted seemingly irrationally: They stepped up production with "an enormous amount of new funds supplied from some unknown outside source."

At first it looked like a planning gaffe, but as the recession ended Japanese machine tools were being unloaded cheaply in America and elsewhere at discounts of up to $100,000 on items that rarely cost more than $400,000.

By the end of 1981, the targeting campaign had borne fruit: "Japanese makers of NC machine centers, the leading component of the machine tool market, had taken over a 50 percent share of the American market."

While America's bureaucracy mouthed shibboleths about the failings of U.S. technology and workers, they seemed ignorant to what really had occurred, as viewed by Jack Latona, an officer of Houaille Industries.

"The damn Japanese machine tools are nothing but U.S. machine tools," Wolfe quotes Latona as saying. "They've even copied some of our mistakes."

While the practice of copying might have relieved the Japanese of enormous research and development expenses, their ability to undersell domestic manufacturers had to be accounted for by something else.

Subsidies, arranged by the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, or MITI, was the something else, writes Wolf. He maintains it funneled almost a billion dollars a year to Japanese machine tool makers.

Were You Shopping, Or Listening?

RALEIGH — It's a generally held rule of politics that you give your opponent's campaign as little publicity as possible. Most candidates won't mention their opponents by name. They set their own agendas and stubbornly resist debating any issue that is not on it.

So it surprised state Democrats and other political observers this month when the re-election campaign of Republican Sen. Jesse Helms reacted so strongly to a run of radio advertisements sponsored by the Democratic Party. By its reaction, the Helms camp made the ads an issue which got a great deal of press and broadcast news coverage. As Stephanie Bass, spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt's unofficial Senate campaign said, the Helms' reaction sparked public interest in the ads.

"People who listen to stations which were not running the ads were saying they'd like to hear them to see what all the fuss was about," she said.

The Helms campaign claimed that the ads were inaccurate and they asked radio stations not to run them. When some stations did run the ads, the Helms camp complained to the Federal Communications Commission. The furor led to daily front page stories and the nightly news.

Why did the Helms campaign break such a basic rule and allow a relatively small advertising purchase to attract so much free public attention?

There are a number of reasons. The official reason is stated by Claude Allen, press aide to the Helms campaign: "The ads were inaccurate and hence we feel that if the Democratic Party was not going to take them off themselves, then the radio stations should be liable. We're not trying to take away anyone's right to air ads or attack Senator Helms' record. All we wanted was for them to be accurate and they weren't."

Beyond the accuracy question, however, the Helms camp may have also seen opportunity to score points down the road with their reaction. Helms has been accused of running negative political ads in previous campaigns. The Democrats appear ready to make those as an issue in themselves in 1984 as they did in the congressional elections of 1982. By striking out at these first Democratic ads, calling them inaccurate and negative, the Helms people may be setting in the public's mind that both sides — not just the Helms side — run negative ads. At the least, Helms put the Democrats on the defensive in this regard.

The Democrats say the Helms people were trying to intimidate radio stations. Allen says they were merely trying to get them to accept responsibility for the truthfulness of the ads. Whichever way you look at it, the Helms camp was placing a seed in the mind of station managers.

If they run inaccurate ads, they're in for a fight. This might be important later in the campaign if any independent groups seek to run anti-Helms ads.

The primary reason behind the Helms' reaction may have been an itching to get the contest going. Helms is behind in the polls and has a large campaign treasury. He wants to start now while Hunt wants to wait until spring or later. The Helms folks saw the Democratic ads as a way of pulling Hunt out into the open. The TV ads which Helms cut for airing this month are an invitation to Hunt to come out of hiding.

There's no way to tell which side won this little battle. The Democrats say the fact that the ads are airing prove that they were accurate. The Republicans say they've destroyed the credibility of the ads.

One problem for both sides, however, is that during December, most people are more worried about Christmas gifts than politics. It just might be that few folks were paying very much attention.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I've heard no criticism of the East Carolina production of the play, "Album." It is difficult to understand why. It makes one wonder how long it will take the aromatic smell of manure, human manure, to depart McGinnis Auditorium.

The use of blasphemy, profanity, obscenities and obscene gestures camouflaged any plot, characterization or meaning to the play. Vulgarity for the sake of vulgarity seemed to be the vehicle for entertainment, if it may be called that. When will those in charge of the dramatic productions realize that words, phrases and gestures are intensified and dramatized when presented on the stage? The excuse that 'you hear those terms every day' is outdated and no defense for poor taste.

Is this freedom of speech? No! It is license for cheap sensationalism with little or no regard for the audience. At least the movies rate their productions.

For those who have studied the history of drama, this production seems similar to the post-Elizabethan period when the public went to see child actors utter epithets and obscenities. To find amusement in such productions seems to indicate a perverted sense of humor.

Some people left at intermission. Others stayed on, hoping for some redeeming qualities after intermission. One family had the courage to leave during the performance.

The ECU Drama Department could well remember and put into practice the words of Spain's great playwright Garcia Lorca: "The theater is one of the most expressive and useful instruments for building a country; it is the barometer of its greatness and decline. An intelligent theater, well-oriented in all its branches, from tragedy to vaudeville, can change the sensibilities of a people within a few years. A disintegrated theater with clumsy hooves instead of wings can cheapen and lull into sleep an entire nation."

After sitting through the first half of "Album," I felt I had been run over by a herd of buffalo. Rather than risk being suffocated by the droppings, I left.

Strength For Today

It is interesting to note that clouds played an important part in biblical narrative and teaching.

When God made his covenant with Noah that he would destroy the world no more by water, he set a rainbow in the cloud to be a token of this covenant between him and his creation (Genesis 9:14). When Moses led the Israelites out of Egypt, the holy presence of God was indicated by the pillar of cloud which went before the people by day, and the pillar of fire by night. A "bright cloud" overshadowed Peter, James and John when they went with Jesus to the mountain where he was transfigured before them.

We usually speak of clouds as representing sadness; the sky overcast with gloom. In the Bible, clouds are associated with spiritual glory.

It makes a difference how we look at clouds or anything else — whether from the standpoint of faith or the standpoint of anxiety and despair.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court is now sitting — a bit uncomfortably, I suspect — on two cases involving discrimination by reason of sex. The first of them is of slight national significance, but it has some lively elements of human interest. The second is short on human interest, but it poses a question of immense importance to hundreds of institutions that in some way receive federal aid.

The first case dates back to 1972, when Elizabeth Anderson Hishon, 27, fresh out of Columbia Law School, was hired as an associate at King & Spalding of Atlanta. The law firm was founded in 1885. No Kings or Spaldings remain, but the firm has 50 associates and 50 partners, among them such prestigious figures as former Attorney General Griffin Bell and Charles Kirbo, adviser to former President Carter.

At King & Spalding, the established policy is to consider an associate lawyer for partnership status after a six-year period of apprenticeship. The rule is "up or out." If partnership is denied, the disappointed associate is expected to remain only long enough to find another job. In 1978 Mrs. Hishon's name came up. She was voted down. At the end of 1979 she left for another law firm, but meanwhile she filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. She charged that she had been denied an invitation to partnership because of her sex.

The U.S. District Court rejected her complaint, remarking that it would amount to a "shotgun wedding" to compel partners in a voluntary association to accept an unwanted partner. The 11th U.S. Circuit affirmed. On Oct. 31 the Supreme Court heard argument in the matter. Counsel for the law firm contended that lawyers were different from other employers — an argument that according to U.S. Law Week "appeared to anger" Justices Marshall and O'Connor. Counsel for the government contended that as an employee, Mrs. Hishon was entitled to be considered for promotion regardless of sex. It looks as though we may expect a sharply divided court when the opinion comes down.

By siding with Mrs. Hishon, the government took a broad view of civil rights statutes. In the second case, involving Grove City College in Pennsylvania, the government took a narrower view.

This is the picture at Grove City: The Presbyterian college was founded in 1876. It never has discriminated against anyone by reason of sex; today, 1,059 of its 2,186 students are women. The college is proud of this undisputed fact also: It never has accepted a penny in direct federal aid.

But the college has certified about 250 students from lower-income families as eligible to receive federal Pell grants. These grants, amounting typically to $1,500 ea-h, go directly to the student; indirectly the grants go to the college as part of the $4,630 annual fee for tuition, board and room.

The government contends that these grants amount to "federal financial assistance" to the college. The law says that no person may be discriminated against under any education "program or activity" receiving such assistance. For the past six years the government has been demanding that the college sign an Assurance of Compliance, swearing that it does not discriminate on account of sex. The college steadfastly has refused to sign, partly out of stubborn principle and partly because of a well-founded fear that signing would lead to federal regulation of the institution as a whole.

In argument before the high court on Nov. 29, counsel for the government did not go so far. All that is asked, said the Justice Department, is that the Civil Rights Act be applied only to the specific "program or activity" of student financial aid. The threshold question is whether even one student receiving one grant is sufficient to trigger the act. If so, do the law's provisions apply to the entire college or only to particular programs?

If I were voting, I would vote for both the law firm in Atlanta and the college in Pennsylvania, but these are close cases. The high court could come down either way.

—Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer—

Reagan Standard Falls

WASHINGTON — Less than two months after he was inaugurated, Ronald Reagan set a standard for sending U.S. troops on mission in foreign countries. Recalling Vietnam, he promised, "Never again do we send an active fighting force to a country unless it is for a cause we intend to win."

In the wake of recent events in Lebanon, the president's words have come back to haunt him.

Analogies to Vietnam, usually reserved for Central American entanglements, come to mind because the U.S. role as a peacekeeper was severely tarnished recently Sunday when 20 Navy fighter-bombers swept guerrilla positions in and around Beirut. The bombardment left one pilot dead, another captured and a dozen civilians injured; the shelling deaths of eight Marines later in the day brought to 260 the total number of U.S. troops lost in Lebanon.

Despite his promise, it appears that Reagan has involved "an active fighting force" in a contest which is virtually unwinnable. Even if the American people approved of an all-out involvement in the region (which they do not), few would expect that U.S. troops could match the conviction of the many sects and factions which have, for generations, battled for Lebanon.

The belligerency of the various groups there, in fact, better calls to mind the nature of war than the minor skirmishes of Grenada which so captivated the nation last month.

Meanwhile, where factionalism reigns, U.S. support for the Gemayel government will provoke the inevitable retaliation common to the region. Calling ourselves "peacekeepers" comforts only those whom we protect.

As in Vietnam, however, talk of a pullout is sacrilegious. Not only would the Gemayel government fall, White House officials say, but U.S. administration prestige would suffer. For such a high price, Washington would rather watch the death toll rise.

Apparently anxious to enhance its international reputation, the Salvadoran government recently brought in Argentinian specialists to advise military and police personnel on the "proper" ways of disposing of civilians killed by right-wing death squads.

It's generally believed that the rightist squads have been responsible for up to 80 percent of all civilian murders in El Salvador and that government officials are involved.

Mary Louise Smith's dismissal from the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights demonstrated, among other things, a lack of influence by Vice President Bush in Reagan's White House. Smith, a former Republican National Committee chairman, was one of Bush's early backers for the presidency in 1980.

Yet Bush was not one to resist Reagan's decision to remove the moderate Iowan from the panel, even agreeing to justify the president's action before a recent meeting of women state legislators in San Diego.

A leading academic group has urged that states no longer require education degrees as a prerequisite for teacher certification. The Council of Chief State School Officers, composed of educators from many states, made the recommendation in an effort to bring liberal arts majors into teaching.

School Board...

contracting services outside the school district — in Pitt and Martin counties — and for funds received for in-school optional programs in computer science and foreign language.

In policy matters, the policy paper on health examinations was passed on a second reading, and agreement was given to consider guidelines for student accounting at the next board meeting.

Another policy matter, up for a second reading approval, that of the procedure to evaluate the superintendent, failed to muster sufficient approval votes. The vote was 4-3 against. This policy paper earlier passed a first reading by a break-tie vote cast by board chairman Jack Wall. Board members Ernest Brown and Sue Zadeits both briefly expressed their previous objections to the policy as written — that it is vague in date requirements and calls for individual signed statements of assessment of the superintendent by board members.

"Our objections in no way reflect on the superintendent," Mrs. Zadeits commented. "It is simply that we feel it has too many weak points." The matter will come up again at a future meeting.

In an unofficial report to the board, Blinson gave a rundown on "the completion of phase one, the awareness phase of the Research Triangle Institute merger study. Principals, myself and others in the school system have held 40 meetings with interested groups, ranging from as few as three to more than 100 people," he pointed out. "The general response has consistently been appreciation by the public of the fact that the study has been done and that we are sharing the recommendations with anyone interested."

"Two of the three alternatives, coterminous school boundaries and that of merger, each have drawn expressions of support. The other alternative, that of no change, did not draw any support from those attending these meetings. My perception is that the public in Greenville at this time overwhelmingly supports merger as the best alternative of the three contained in the RTI report."

Board members authorized Blinson to contact the Pitt County Board of Education to determine its willingness to conduct a joint public hearing with both boards present. He was asked to be prepared to designate a date for such a hearing at the first meeting in January.

Four school staff persons were recognized at Monday's meeting. Director of Instruction Charles Ross presented teacher Dottie Jo Knight, recipient of a state music award, to the board. Ross then presented awards to three maintenance department personnel — Francis Dorey, Lamont Patrick and George Roebuck.

In executives session, the board approved one retirement, two requests for maternity leave, two resignations and the election of one person.

Arrest Made In Assault

A 23-year-old Washington man, Winfield Scott Tingle, was arrested on rape charges following investigation of a 12:10 a.m. incident Saturday, Sheriff Ralph Tyson said today.

Tyson said Tingle allegedly entered a car parked in The Daily Reflector parking lot at the intersection of Third and Reade Streets which was occupied by a 20-year-old East Carolina University student. When the young woman attempted to call for help and get out of the car, Tyson said Tingle grabbed her around the neck and pulled her back into the car by grabbing her hair.

The sheriff said Tingle allegedly then drove the woman out into the county and assaulted her.

According to Tyson, Tingle left the woman in the car and went to the home of Harper Manning of Route 6, Greenville, where he stole a truck owned by Toyota East of Greenville, and fled.

Tingle was taken into custody about 4 p.m. Saturday on rape and vehicle larceny charges and is being held in the Pitt County jail without bond.

Employees To Help Family

Employees of the K-Mart Department Store here have decided that, rather than give gifts to each other this year, they will give to a family in need. They have chosen, store manager Herman Johnson said, a family with several children with both parents unemployed and will take Christmas to them a few days before Christmas. The store employs more than 100 persons, full and part time, Johnson said, and nearly all of them are participating in the Christmas project.

Bob DeBardeladen of WRAL-TV has taped the narration and will be featured throughout the program.

Commemoration Scheduled

The commemoration ceremony will be held at 10 a.m., with open house hours from 10 to 4 p.m. The Fleming House, now the headquarters building for the chamber, is located at 302 S. Greene St. The Thursday events are open to the public.

The program is aired each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. on WOOW Radio.

Cantata Planned Sunday

The adult choir of Ayden United Methodist Church, 309 W. Third St., will present a Christmas cantata at 7 p.m. Sunday titled "The Love Gift," with the youth choir participating as narrators and Timothy Parker directing the program. Med School Adopts Goal

East Carolina University School of Medicine has set $250,000 as this year's goal for its annual fund-raising campaign. Private contributions are being asked to help offset the loss of federal funding for higher education and rising costs, Dr. William E. Laupus, dean of the school, said. Letters requesting tax-deductible donations through the ECU Medical Foundation were sent out late last week, as is the school's practice each year. This year's goal is about $50,000 more than last year's, Laupus indicated. The money will be used to help finance research activities of faculty and students beyond what would be available with state appropriations. Funds for student loans have become less available, he indicated, and he said officials are seeking ways to maintain a quality teaching program and not allow a prospective student's ability to pay to be a major factor of acceptance. Approximately 15 percent of the medical school's $28 million annual budget comes from a combination of grants and contracts, he said.

Fire/Rescue Report Issued

Fire/Rescue Chief Jenness Allen reported that the department responded to 202 calls during November, including 181 rescue and 21 fire calls. Allen said that of the 181 rescue responses, 144 were in the city and 37 in the county. Total city residents transported were 34, while the county total was 16 and non-residents transported numbered eight. Rescue calls resulted in 409 total miles traveled, he said, including 292 miles in the city and 117 in the county.

CPA Office Opens

Lowmore, Warwick & Co., certified public accountants, announced the opening of the firm's new Greenville office facility in Suite 401 of the Minges Building. Taking part in ribbon-cutting ceremonies were Mayor Janice Buck; Ray Boleman, representing the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce; William M. Zachman and Stephen H. Locke, partners in Lowmore, Warwick & Co.; David C. Miller, manager of the Greenville office, and Beth Heeter, administrative assistant at the new facility. Lowmore, Warwick & Co. is a regional CPA firm with five offices in North Carolina and South Carolina. The company has practiced public accounting in eastern North Carolina for over 40 years.

Tires Are Recovered

Greenville police said today that four tires reported taken from a car parked at 2605 E. Fourth St. Sunday have been recovered. Cpl. Ken Thompson said the tires were found in the back yard of the residence. Thompson said the owner of the car would still like to know who removed the tires from his vehicle.

Revival Being Held

Revival services will continue through Friday at New Hope Fellowship Tabernacle Holiness Church located off U.S. 64 with Pastor Mable Hargrove of Newport News, Va., as the speaker. Services begin at 8 p.m. Quarterly meeting will be held Sunday. Sunday school will begin at 10 a.m. and the regular worship services will be at noon, followed by afternoon services.

No Problem In Downpour

A dark, cloudy sky dumped almost two inches of rain on Greenville Monday, but the downpour didn't seem to cause problems with street flooding or with Christmas shopping. A survey of a number of local merchants indicated that the rain didn't seem to bother shoppers. In fact, Greenville Banks, manager of the local Belk-Tyler store, said "if anything" the rain helped business at his store. He said bad weather "always helps a mall" because shoppers can "get wet" only once running from their car to a store, then can shop all day without having to get wet again before they leave.

"Definitely, rainy days will increase the traffic flow," and "we had an outstanding day" Monday, Banks said. The Greenville Utilities Commission's weather station reported 1.75 inches of rain fell from midnight Sunday until midnight Monday. High temperature for the day was 67 degrees, while the low Monday was 52. At 8 a.m. today the temperature was 52 degrees. At 1 p.m. Monday, the Tar River stood at 11.1 feet.

Assures U.S. Respect For Free Vote In Nicaragua

By JOSEPH B. FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Anthony Quinton said the United States would respect the outcome of any free election in Nicaragua and predicted that such balloting would cause the rebel movement to disintegrate.

Quinton's remarks were made in a rare appearance on a live radio talk show Monday night. He appeared along with representatives of the Revolutionary Patriotic Front, a group of political parties that supports and includes the governing leftist Sandinista National Liberation Front.

During an hour-long exchange marked by its cordiality, Quinton was asked if the U.S. would withdraw its support for anti-Sandinista rebels "if the Nicaraguan people ... reaffirm its confidence and overwhelmingly back the revolutionary process."

He replied, "The United States would accept whatever government that emerged from free elections in Nicaragua. Our position cannot be otherwise, in free elections with participation of all in the process, in an open and free electoral campaign."

"At the moment that there is a process in which all Nicaraguans can participate freely, there will be no counterrevolution," he said.

"If there is an institutionalization of the process in which all can participate freely ... without fighting for power, then why fight?"

The U.S. government is seeking political recognition of rebel groups now fighting the Sandinistas with CIA assistance.

The Nicaraguan government refuses to recognize the rebels as legitimate, a view echoed in the radio show by Dr. Gustavo Tablada, coordinator of the Sandinista National Liberation Front.

"I cannot accept as true the words of Mr. Quinton," he said. The American-backed rebels "are killing peasants and they are destroying the few material gains, the schools, the health center, the production centers and machinery," he said.

"In no way does this have to do with a fight among Nicaraguans."

Quinton said "up to now, we don't know much" about the electoral process scheduled to start in January for elections in 1985. He said 1984 is a "crossroads for the Nicaraguan revolution. Nicaragua can take a road that is democratic or one that is not."

Asked how the United States can back the rebels and still claim to seek peace in the region, Quinton said: "It is sometimes difficult to explain the policy of my government."

"The people do not want to recognize what is at the base of our concern," said Quinton. "As I have mentioned before, our desire is not to encourage war, but peace."

"And if there are 15,000 Nicaraguans, more or less, fighting against the revolution, you have to ask why. What are the faults of the revolutionary process?"

Quinton said the rebels, called "contras" here, were people who left the country after the July 1979 Sandinista victory over Anastasio Somoza and have complaints about the revolutionary process.

"We want to support all of those who support an open system, who want a democratic system," he said. "We don't want a return to Somocismo in Nicaragua. Obviously not. The old regime cannot return."

Nicaragua accuses the United States and the rebels of trying to reestablish the old-style dictatorship the Sandinistas ousted. The rebels include exiled members of Somoza's national guard.

Quinton said the United States considers some of the reforms announced in recent days by the Nicaraguan government as "a bit limited" and vague. A decree permitting the return of some Nicaraguans fighting against the government "is not a total amnesty but a safe conduct for some who may want to come back," he said.

Oil Dealers Challenging A Charity

BALTIMORE (AP) — Saying they are being subjected to unfair competition, heating oil dealers are trying to stop a church charity from selling fuel to the poor at below-market prices.

The Inter-City Oil Dealers Association of Maryland, a trade group, has filed a complaint with the state Public Service Commission against the Associated Catholic Charities program.

Officials at Catholic Charities said they would urge the public to write the commission to oppose the complaint.

The complaint challenges the role played in the program by Baltimore Gas & Electric Co., which buys fuel oil and then sells it to Catholic Charities at cost.

That enables the charity in turn to sell the oil to low-income customers at prices 20-cents-a-gallon cheaper than those charged by oil dealers.

In their complaint, the dealers charge that the utility's role in the program discriminates against them and that the utility should not be allowed to sell to Catholic Charities unless it agrees to sell fuel to them at the same low cost.

"Our group is bringing this action because we do not feel this is a fair practice," said Steven Shapiro, an official at the Southern Fuel Co. who helped draft the association's complaint.

Shapiro acknowledged that beyond the issue of "discrimination" and others raised in the complaint, the dealers fear they will lose customers to Catholic Charities. Some small dealers could be forced out of business, he said.

"Our problem is not with Catholic Charities. They want to help the underprivileged and we are in favor of that. ... But there are other ways to do that."

Harold A. Smith, executive director of Catholic Charities, said he regretted the dealers' action.

"We're sorry that the oil companies have decided to make this their Christmas present to the poor of Baltimore," he said. "We regard BG&E's help as a charitable contribution from the utility."

Hobby Wins New Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former head of the AFL-CIO in North Carolina won a Supreme Court hearing Monday in connection with his conviction for defrauding a federal job training program.

The court agreed to study the appeal of Wilbur Hobby of Durham, for 12 years the president of the labor organization in North Carolina.

Hobby, 58, was sentenced in December 1981 to 18 months in prison and fined $40,000. He has been free on appeal and working for the American Tobacco Co. cutting stamps for cigarette packages.

Hobby, who left his AFL-CIO post in 1981, was convicted of fraudulently obtaining and misapplying a $129,000 federal grant under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

In 1979, Hobby owned Precision Graphics Inc., a printing company in Raleigh located across the street from AFL-CIO headquarters.

The government charged that $28,000 of the federal grant was supposed to be used to transport students to work at Precision Graphics, but no such service was provided.

Hobby also was accused of using the CETA funds to buy a computer for the union's use.

The court said it will decide whether Hobby's indictment should be thrown out because blacks allegedly were excluded systematically from being appointed as federal grand jury foremen.

Five Collisions In Greenville Monday

An estimated $3.125 damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Heaviest damage, police said, resulted from a 7:34 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, .1 mile east of the Evans Street intersection, involving cars driven by Delores Ann Elks of Route 9, Greenville, Vivian Neal Means of Rocky Mount and Delisa Kay Black of Ayden.

Officers estimated damage at $500 to the Means car, and $750 to the Black vehicle. No damage resulted to the Elks car.

Higher Gas Price OK'd

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Utilities Commission Monday approved increases for North Carolina Natural Gas Corp. that will increase the average residential customer's bill by about 6.8 percent.

NCNG had requested rate increases and changes in rate-making policies that would have increased residential bills by about 25.44 percent.

The company had asked for a 4.99 percent rate increase, plus an end to a special rate-making mechanism implemented when natural gas supplies were dramatically cut in 1975.

The commission, in its order, granted a .67 percent increase and approved an end to the Curtailment Tracking Rate. The rate allowed the company to recover its fixed costs when gas was in short supply.

The commission said the CTR should be ended since there are no serious shortages of natural gas. The commission said ending the policy would generate $3.5 million a year in additional revenues for the company.

The company's requested increase would have raised $8.3 million annually, but the rate hike approved by the commission will increase revenues by about $1.17 million.

The increase is effective Monday.

A 7:31 p.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson and Line Avenues involved cars driven by Shonda Lynn Hubbard of 1905B Kennedy Circle and Alan Wicker Knight of 207B Tobacco Road.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Hubbard with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $300 to the Hubbard car and $700 to the Knight vehicle.

Cars driven by Lisa Marie Tart of 20 College Park and Mary Kathryn Clark of 205 Oxford Road, collided about 12:10 p.m. on 10th Street, 50 feet east of the Cotanche Street intersection, causing $200 damage to the Clark car and $250 damage to the Tart auto.

A 12:57 p.m. collision on Fifth Street, 30 feet east of the Reade Street intersection, involved cars driven by Clifton Stokes of 2702 E. Third St., and Davena Geneva Cherry of 1016 Colonial Ave.

Police set damage from the mishap at $150 to the Stokes car and $275 to the Cherry auto.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 12:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of 10th and Charles streets.

Officers identified the drivers of the cars as Jimmy M. Eason Jr. of Washington, and Richard Alan Miles of 46 Oakwood Acres.

Heels Hold No. 1 Spot

By The Associated Press
Unbeaten North Carolina, a big winner over previously unbeaten Syracuse last Saturday night, remained No. 1 in the Associated Press college basketball poll Monday and increased its margin over No. 2 Kentucky, also unbeaten.

A four-point leader over Kentucky last week, North Carolina landed 37 first-place votes and 1,215 points from the nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and sportscasters compared to 25 No. 1 votes and 1,203 points for Kentucky. North Carolina, which topped the Orangemen 87-64, running its record to 5-0, is idle until Dec. 21 when the Tar Heels face Dartmouth. Kentucky, 3-0 after routing Kansas 72-50, hosts the Kentucky invitational, which also has Wyoming, Virginia Commonwealth and Brigham Young, Friday and Saturday.

North Carolina and Kentucky each landed 30 first-place votes last week. Upsets caused a shuffling in the other spots.

Houston, 5-1 after an opening loss, moved into the No. 3 spot, replacing Iowa, with 1,030 points after defeating Louisiana State, No. 9 last week, and St. Mary's of Texas.

DePaul, which upset Georgetown Saturday for its fifth win without a loss, moved from No. 13 to No. 4, with 943 points. Georgetown, which topped St. Leo earlier in the week and has a 5-1 record, fell to No. 5.

Memphis State, beaten by Mississippi State last week after a 4-0 start, sunk from fourth into a sixth-place tie with defending NCAA champion North Carolina State, each with 743 points. N.C. State, 7-1 and No. 8 a week ago, tripped Western Carolina and Hofstra last week.

Boston College, which beat Puget Sound and Brown for a 5-0 mark, moved to eighth from No. 12 with 658 points. Maryland, 4-1, beat Penn State and Duquesne to gain two places at No. 9 with 592 points.

LSU, 4-1, upended by Houston, rounded out the Top Ten.

Purdue, which downed Boston University and Tampa, jumped from No. 19 to No. 11. Georgia, St. John's, Oregon State, UCLA, Louisville, Michigan State, Iowa, Wake Forest and Texas El Paso completed the Top Twenty.

Louisville, a winner twice last week after two opening losses, joined Wake Forest and Texas El Paso — each unbeaten in five games — as newcomers in this week's poll.

Iowa, which lost to Louisville and Oregon State, dropped from 19th, and UCLA, No. 7 last week, fell to 15th after losing to New Mexico.

Dropped from the rankings were Wichita State, Arkansas and Fresno State. Wichita State lost twice last week, while Arkansas won two of three and Fresno State divided two games.

Packers Nip Bucs, 12-9

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Jan Stenerud knows what he plans to do, but won't tell.

Bart Starr, meanwhile, is not about to encourage Green Bay's 39-year old placekicker to call it quits after 17 National Football League seasons.

"He's a pro, a winner, a clutch player. He's all the cliches we could stand here and conjure up," Starr said Monday night after Stenerud kicked four field goals to beat the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 12-9, keep the Packers' playoff hopes alive and rewrite the NFL record book.

"He's a great player and I'm very proud he is on our team," the Green Bay coach added. "He can play for me as long as he likes."

Stenerud, who climbed past George Blanda into first-place on the NFL's all-time field goal list, was coy about his retirement plans after delivering a game-winning 23-yarder 5:07 into overtime.

"I know what I'm going to do, but I'll announce it at the appropriate time — at the end of the season, whenever it is," said Stenerud, who also converted attempts of 35, 32 and 23 yards and hiked his career total to 338, three more than Blanda.

"I was a little nervous before the game and I rarely am," added Stenerud, whose 23-yarder with 28 seconds left in regulation forced the extra period.

"I was extremely nervous before the field goal to take the game into overtime," he continued. "I tried to block it out of my mind, but it was difficult."

The victory boosted the 8-7 Packers into a first-place tie with Detroit in the NFC Central Division, and Starr's club has two possible avenues to the playoffs.

A triumph over Chicago combined with a Tampa Bay upset of Detroit next Sunday would give the Packers their first division crown since 1972. Green Bay also is in the running for the NFC's second wild card spot, and could get it if it beats the Bears and the Los Angeles Rams whip the New Orleans Saints.

The Bucs, meanwhile, dropped to 2-13 before a Tampa Stadium crowd of 50,763, and Coach John McKay looked no further than a missed extra point and 35-yard field goal attempt for the reason.

Bill Capece's fourth-quarter effort after Jack Thompson gave Tampa Bay a 9-3 lead with a 4-yard scoring toss to Adger Armstrong, hit the left upright. The field goal try, five minutes later, was low and to the left.

"Gentlemen, I lost the football game by being stupid enough to think that we could kick a field goal," said McKay. "Any questions?"

"We will not kick a field goal next week if we are on the 2-yard line, the 1-yard line, none," McKay added. "There will be no more kicked field goals by the Bucs this year, no matter what the score is, no matter what the game is."

"It's over. I'm tired of being crucified," the Tampa Bay coach concluded. "God bless you and Merry Christmas."

"I don't blame him . . . I can't remember when I last made one," said Capece, who hit a 22-yarder in the second quarter but is only 10 of 23 on the season. "I guess he's just a little ticked off, and that's understandable."

Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey — who engineered the 11-play, 65-yard drive leading to the winning field goal as well as a 10-play, 65-yard march that forced the overtime — struggled, despite a 278-yard passing performance.

He became the fifth man — and second this season — in NFL history to throw for 4,000 yards in a season, boosting his total to 4,196, nine more than Kansas City's Bill Kenney, who reached the plateau Sunday.

The New York Jets' Joe Namath, San Diego's Dan Fouts and Cleveland's Brian Sipe are the others who have thrown for 4,000 yards. Fouts, who has done it twice, set the NFL record of 4,802 in 1981.

"I struggled tonight to say the least," said Dickey, who was intercepted three times and never got the Packers' explosive offense cranked up. "Nothing came easy, nothing was in sync."

Except for Stenerud, who is 338 of 509 — 66.4 percent — lifetime as a field goal kicker, and 59 of 73 — 80.8 percent — since joining the Packers in 1980 after 13 seasons with Kansas City.

"The record was very important to me," he said. "I'll admit it's something that crossed my mind the last couple of years."

Johnny Mize, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, hit three home runs in one game six times, a major-league record.

Young Panthers Impressive In Wins

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — The North Pitt Panthers lost all five starters and eight of the top players from the 1982-83 squad which posted a 19-7 overall and 9-3 Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference record, but Coach Cobby Deans hopes team speed and unity will help take the edge off the rebuilding year.

So far, the Panthers have managed a 3-1 record including a win over Big East 4-A neighbor Greenville Rose. But the development of youth will be the key when the conference race starts.

"Our seniors will be the main reason we achieve any success this season," Deans said. "I've been real pleased with their leadership so far. We're much further along than I expected us to be at this point.

"We have to be a balanced team; I see us playing 10-12 people a game and anyone in any situation. We'll use a lot of different combinations of players; we're not tied into any five.

"That should be a big advantage, especially with our lack of size overall. I think we'll do all right until we come up against a real bulky team. We have adequate outside shooting, but we've got to come up with an inside offense."

The Panthers opened the season with a lineup of four seniors and a sophomore, but there, too, Deans is doubtful any five have a lock on a position.

Ronnie Howard (6-3) starts at big forward, while Linwood Harris is the swing forward and 6-2 Ronnie Ebron at center. Keith Clark has been the starter at the second guard, with sophomore Lenny Langley directing the offense at point guard.

"A lot of our players have never played much on the varsity level," Deans said. "But these guys blend together well. I've seen a lot of improvement from different people; that's a good sign."

Senior Alvin Grimes and junior Alfred Braxton are the top candidates for time at forward, while junior Gentry Sneed and senior Troy Parker battle at guard. Juniors Levon Shaw and Paul Streeter provide relief at center.

"I'd have to say one of our biggest assets right now is that we're two deep at each position," Deans said. "It's not a matter of putting in someone at one position and having to juggle the rest of the lineup around. It makes it a lot easier on a coach that way.

"We did a good job rebounding with Rose and got blown off the boards by Roanoke (Saturday). With our height, our offensive and defensive rebounding is really inconsistent now.

"It's a matter of the kids deciding rebounding is important to winning a ballgame. The majority of the time, the team that wins the rebounding battle wins the game.

"This might be one of the best foul shooting teams I've had here. Foul shooting was a factor in five of the seven games we lost last year."

Defensively, Deans will use zone with pressure "from baseline to baseline."

"I like zone, and we'll be doing a lot of different things on defense this year," Deans said.

SouthWest Edgecombe and Greene Central are the favorites in the Eastern Carolina Conference according to Deans, with Ayden-Grifton and Southern Nash as "dark horse" contenders.

"I think we'll improve as the year goes on," Deans said. "How much we improve will determine where we fit in. We may not win it, but I think we'll have a say-so in who does."

While height is a weakness for the boys team at North Pitt, the Pant-HERS will be taller, but slower than most of their opponents. The girls posted a 4-0 record through the first two weeks of the season, after a 11-15 overall and 5-7 conference finish last season.

Five seniors hold the starting rotation for North Pitt, with 6-1 Sudie Sharpe at center and 5-11 Deloris Pittman at big forward. Alice Pittman (5-7) holds down the other forward slot, with Sherry Bradley at guard.

Peggy Latham opened the season as the Pant-HERS' point guard, but a shoulder separation against Roanoke Saturday night will keep her out of the lineup until January.

"It was a freak play," North Pitt Coach Randy Avery said. "She was reaching for the ball and somehow injured her shoulder. She was our main ballhandler, so we'll have to adjust to that."

Sophomore Regina Moore comes off the bench to fill in at the point, but Avery is pleased with performance of all the reserves so far.

"That's a gutsy group we have," Avery said. "That's probably the smartest group coming off the bench I've had since I've been here. They complement our starters well. They picked up our offense as quickly as any; they're going to make a lot of contribution."

"What we lack in experience we make up for with enthusiasm."

Sophomore forward Regina Cox is his first substitute for rebounding in the front court.

"I don't think we've been out-rebounded yet," Avery said. "And we've done a good job limiting our opponents to one shot. I expect that to be one of our strongest points."

"We let some of our big girls work outside with touch passes and move back inside. We'll have Sudie Sharpe and Delores Pittman move outside and shoot over short guards."

The Pant-HERS will rely on zone defense, but Avery admits he'd prefer a man-to-man approach.

"Our man-to-man defense is not as strong at this point as I'd like for it to be," Avery said. "We'll use a sagging man-to-man — more to pester someone than to deny the ball. I believe we'll win more with transition defenses."

"Our main weakness right now is that we're not as poised as I'd like for us to be. We don't use good judgement all the time. And we're not running the fast break as well as we need to."

"We're fairly slow in comparison to other teams, but we make up for it with hustle. The mental outlook of this team is much better than in the past. We have a lot of confidence in ourselves."

A year ago the Pant-HERS finished tied for fourth in the conference, but posted a win over SouthWest Edgecombe. Greene Central and SouthWest are again Avery's picks for the top slot in the race, but North Pitt and Farmville Central will be contenders.

"Last year we went into several ballgames already behind before they started," Avery said. "This year, we match up much better. A lot will depend on how much we improve, and any injuries we may suffer through the year."

Cardinals Rout Indiana State In Best Performance Of Year

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

In some of the basketball season's early games, the Louisville Cardinals have looked like anything but a Denny Crum team.

But Monday night, they were right on the button.

"There's no question we came to play," Crum said after watching his 16th-ranked Cardinals rout Indiana State 105-69.

Earlier in the season, of course, the Cardinals were beaten badly by Kentucky, and just the other night they lost a close exhibition game to Western Kentucky.

"The thing is, this is the first time in our history we've beaten a team that's ranked in the top 20," Crum said.

"You have to respect everybody or you're not going to beat anybody good."

In the night's only other game involving a Top Twenty team, No. 17 Michigan State beat Cleveland State 71-62.

Top Twenty

Milt Wagner led a balanced scoring attack with 17 points as six Louisville players hit double figures in the Cardinals' biggest victory of the year.

"When you play a team like Louisville, every mistake you make they will turn it in their favor," said Indiana State Coach Dave Schellhase. "They're physical, size and jumping ability will make you miss when the ball shot and that's all the more."

Sam Vincent scored 20 points to spark Michigan State over Cleveland State. The heavily-favored Spartans fell behind 16-6 in the early going and got a tougher battle than they expected from the Vikings.

Two Louisville starters, senior guard Lancaster Gordon and sophomore forward Billy Thompson, were benched by Crum for missing bed check Sunday night. Crum said the two players' return to the starting lineup would depend on "what they do between now and next week when we play again."

It was the first time that Louisville had reached the 100-point mark since its 103-70 victory over Morehead State in 1981.

Louisville used a blistering 71 per cent shooting from the field in the first half, and held Indiana State to just 31 per cent shooting, to put the game away early.

Georgia Tech, Duke Both Roll To Lopsided Cage Victories

By The Associated Press
Georgia Tech and Duke both overcame non-Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams Monday, raising the ACC overall season record to 41-3.

The 2-1 Yellow Jackets pummeled Flagler 95-52 in Atlanta, while the 7-0 Blue Devils crushed Massachusetts 88-56 in Durham.

Tech coach Bobby Cremins had no apologies for putting Flagler, 4-5, on the Yellow Jackets' non-conference schedule.

"You look across the country and everyone's trying to gain confidence," Cremins said. "I wish we could schedule six games like this. It allows our younger players to mature and gain experience and confidence."

Blue Devil coach Mike Krzyzewski said Duke played well considering the pressures of exams.

"With exams starting right away tomorrow and the long and tiring schedule that we have had, and knowing we should beat this Massachusetts team, I am really pleased with our effort," he said. "We're a better team than Massachusetts, but I thought we also worked harder than they did."

Georgia Tech ran off 17 straight points after an opening exchange of baskets to take a 19-2 lead over the visitors from St. Augustine, Fla. The lead grew as Flagler hit just seven of 30 field goal attempts in the first half.

Mark Price scored 20 points for the Yellow Jackets, followed by Yvon Joseph with 17. John Salley and Bruce Dalrymple added 15 each and Tim Harvey 11. Dalrymple also had 13 rebounds.

Flagler's Nelson Karrell scored 13 points. Rufus Jenkins had 10.

Flagler coach Bo Clark said his team was "just outmanned," but added: "Georgia Tech wasn't 43 points better than we were. We just did not shoot the ball well."

David Henderson had 18 points as five Duke players scored in double figures. Johnny Dawkins and Mark Alarie each had 14 points, while Tommy Amaker scored 12 and Danny Meagher chipped in 10.

Martin Nessler, a 7-foot freshman center, had a career high eight points and a team leading nine rebounds.

Duke, which has won its last five games by an average of 24 points, capitalized on 18 turnovers by the Minutemen in the first half and outscored Massachusetts 15-0 in one spurt en route to a 54-25 halftime lead.

After Duke built an 82-42 lead with 7:58 remaining, Krzyzewski cleared the bench and the Blue Devils coasted to the final margin.

Center Edwin Green led Massachusetts with 14 points and guard Donald Russell had 12 points and a game-high 10 rebounds as the Minutemen fell to 2-3 and suffered their 26th consecutive road loss.

"This is probably the worst experience I have every had playing or coaching basketball," said Minuteman coach Ron Gerulsen. "I have never been out of a game so quickly."

Meanwhile, North Carolina remains No. 1 in the Associated Press college poll, while North Carolina State moved up from No. 8 to tie for No. 6 with Memphis State. Maryland moved up from No. 11 to No. 6, while Wake Forest moved up to No. 19.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Memphis State football coach John "Rex" Dockery, who died with three others in the crash of twin-engine plane near Lawrenceburg, Tenn., was a "super guy who lived every day of his life to the fullest," says Vanderbilt coach George MacIntyre.

MacIntyre, a Commodore assistant with Dockery in 1973 and 1974, was one of many Tennessee athletic figures stunned by Monday's crash.

Also killed were freshman running back-defensive back Charles Greenhill, Tigers' offensive coordinator Christopher D. Faros, 31, and the plane's pilot, Glenn W. Jones, 40.

"We lost three fine individuals," said Murray Armstrong, Memphis State's assistant football coach. "We are just going to have to collect our wits, get our thoughts organized and see what tomorrow holds. We don't know what to do right now. It's a traumatic moment for all of us."

University of Tennessee head football coach Johnny Majors said Dockery's death saddens "all coaches and Volunteers."

The four were traveling from Memphis International Airport to the annual awards banquet of the Lawrenceburg Quarterback Club at Lawrence County High School, where Dockery, 41, was to be a guest speaker.

The Piper Seneca nose-dived in a heavy fog about 5:30 p.m. CST some 10 miles north of Lawrenceburg, authorities said.

Steve Sloan, Duke University football coach who grew up with Dockery in Cleveland, Tenn., said, "I have just lost my best friend."

"He had the most contagious personality I've ever experienced. He enjoyed living and was just plain fun to be around. The man did not have an enemy, only friends. Friends who know their loss today is certainly the Lord's gain."

MacIntyre said, "I was very close with Rex. He was a super guy who lived every day of his life to the fullest. He didn't back up from anything. I was just shocked."

Majors said, "I got to know Rex when he was on Steve Sloan's staffs at Vanderbilt and then at Texas Tech. Those contacts became more frequent when he took over at Memphis State."

New York Is Seeking Team

NEW YORK (AP) — The city of New York, in an effort to lure a new National Football League team, is preparing to build a $5-million training complex near Shea Stadium, according to a published report.

Today's Daily News, quoting an unidentified City Hall source, said the city was ready to build a training facility on the campus of Queens College. The complex would have an indoor artificial turf field plus outdoor fields, the newspaper said.

"The more I got to know Rex, the more I substantiated what I had already heard about him. He was a warm, kind person and a fine football coach," he added.

Lawrence County sheriff's dispatcher Howard Goode said rescue workers pulled the bodies from the wreckage at the edge of a wooded area about one mile west of state Highway 43.

Charles Cavagnaro, Memphis State athletic director, told reporters Monday night that Memphis State players took the news of Dockery's death "very hard."

"The players were quite upset," he said.

MacIntyre said the ill-fated flight is one of the hazards that goes with coaching and recruiting.

"Sometimes there are pressures on you to get places and you may do it when common sense tells you to back off. I've done it many times and Rex had, too. At least he was doing something in line with something he loved to do and that is coach football," MacIntyre said.

Tennessee Athletic Director Bob Woodruff, who was an assistant coach at UT during Dockery's playing days for the Vols, said, "We are all deeply grieved by his death. Rex has contributed to the coaching profession in high school in Tennessee and in college."

Cavagnaro said a fifth person, Tigers' running back Jeff Womack, 20, was invited to attend the banquet but decided to remain in Memphis.

A Cleveland, Tenn., native.

Dockery took over the Memphis State football program Dec. 17, 1980, leaving Texas Tech where he had a three-year record of 15-16-2.

He compiled a 7-4 record in his first season at Texas Tech and garnered Southwest Conference and NCAA District VI coach of the year honors.

Dockery's Tigers struggled for two years, posting back-to-back 1-10 records, but showed signs of revitalization this season with a 6-5 mark.

Dockery served as an assistant coach at Tennessee, Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt from 1970-74 before moving to Texas Tech as the Red Raiders' offensive coordinator.

Authorities said the cause of the crash was under investigation.

When you are in an unfortunate contract, don't be too ready to lower your flag in resignation. Look around to see if there's some line that will enable you to make your contract. Consider this hand from the Life Master Pairs event from the American Contract Bridge League's Summer Championships in New Orleans.

North's four no trump bid was for takeout. With such a wide discrepancy in the quality of his suits, it might have been wiser had he simply bid five diamonds — a contract which would have made with an overtrick. As it was, South was propelled to a five-level contract in spades on a 4-3 fit — a task which many would just have considered beyond their ability.

Sitting South was Ellie Zepp of Westminster, Md. She soon showed that, though this was her first Life Master championship, she certainly deserved to be in the field.

The defenders started with two rounds of hearts. Declarer ruffed the second heart and cashed the ace and queen of trumps. Next came the ace of diamonds, and when West showed out but could not ruff, the contract was almost certain to make.

Declarer cashed four rounds of diamonds as East followed helplessly. Next came the ace and king of clubs. Declarer now had nine tricks in the bag, and the other two came quickly. Declarer ruffed a club with dummy's remaining low trump, and her king of spades was the fulfilling trick.

Since declarer played in the major suit, she scored 450, which outscores those pairs who played in five diamonds, and netted only 420.

'Cook And Peary' Should Be TV Thriller, But Fails To Make It

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Any movie about exploration of the frozen unknown involving two intensely competitive men ought to be exciting. "Cook and Peary: Race to the Pole" isn't.

In fact, the most thrilling thing about "Cook and Peary," tonight on CBS, wasn't in the script. Richard Chamberlain, who plays Dr. Frederick A. Cook, and six members of the film crew were rescued by helicopter from an ice floe off the coast of Greenland when the frozen mass began to break apart.

Nothing that hair-raising happens in "Cook and Peary."

The two-hour "ITT Theater" production is marginally successful as a study of two men, each driven to become the first human to reach the North Pole: What is not clear is why.

Much of the film was shot on location in Canada's Northwest Territories, above the Arctic Circle. "What cheerless spot this was," Cook is supposed to have said, "to have aroused the ambition of man for so many years."

No studio set could match the effect.

Though the debate rages today over whether Cook, or Adm. Robert E. Peary, was the first to plant the American flag at the top of the world — indeed, there is some question whether either man actually reached the pole — it appears from "Cook and Peary" that the Brooklyn physician, and not the naval officer, won the race.

Cook, in fact, is the sympathetic character: an honest, dedicated family man convinced that the public will accept his claim without corroborating data. Peary, played by Rod Steiger, is portrayed as mean and unprincipled, a man willing to cheat and lie in pursuit of a place in history.

Distinguishing between the two men in such a clear-cut way might be unfair. Members of the Dr. Frederick A. Cook Society of New York State maintain the explorer was the victim of a "witch hunt," but Peary's grandson, Edward P. Stafford, says — admittedly on the basis of second-hand information — that the film mistreats his famous ancestor.

"It's a character defamation of a great and recognized man," said Stafford, himself a retired naval commander, "and a serious distortion of history." Neither man, by at least one well-researched account, was happy as a child, and that probably contributed to the kind of burning desire that only achievement and renown would satisfy. "Cook and Peary" doesn't get into motivation, beyond the most immediate:

"You have to understand," Peary tells Cook before their first, joint Arctic expedition in 1891, "that the man who discovers the North Pole will cover himself in glory. He'll be like another Christopher Columbus."

"They call it North Fever," Cook says later. "The awesome beauty ... the ultimate test of a man's strength."

For the record, Cook claimed to have reached the "The Big Nail" on April 21, 1908. It took him a full year to get back to Greenland, and news of his achievement reached New York Sept. 1, 1909. Peary said he arrived at the Pole April 6, 1909, and his famous cable — "Stars and Stripes nailed to Pole!" — was received in the States on Sept. 5.

Cook left his instruments and the notes made during his expedition in Greenland and, unhappily for him, they never were recovered. Without them, he was unable to prove his claim. Peary, meantime, convinced the world, notably the National Geographic Society and, later, Congress, that he had discovered the North Pole.

"I know what I did," Cook tells his wife and a reporter-friend (Diana Venora and Michael Gross) who suggest that he challenge Peary. "They can't take it away from me. It's in my heart ... and soul."

Peary, meanwhile, is able to ignore Cook's claim, despite inconsistencies in his own account. "I am content," he tells an admiring crowd.

A written message at the end of the film says that Cook was hounded for the rest of his life, and ultimately spent time in prison, but was pardoned, shortly before his death in 1940, by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. The script does not say that Cook's imprisonment had nothing to do with Peary, or the North Pole, but was for mail fraud in connection with a stock promotion.

Dirty Harry Sequel Hospital Treating Leads Box Office Elizabeth Taylor

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Sudden Impact," the movie that returns Clint Eastwood's "Dirty Harry" detective character to the big screen, jumped to the top of the box-office ratings in its first week.

"Sudden Impact" opened in 1,530 screens and grossed $9.7 million during the weekend, edging out "Scarface," starring Al Pacino.

A Warner Bros. spokesman said the three previous "Dirty Harry" pictures, dating back to 1971, each grossed more than $50 million, and the studio expects a bigger success from "Sudden Impact."

"Scarface," the story of international drug dealer Tony Montana, grossed $4.6 million, according to the weekly survey by film distributors.

Here are the top-grossing films of the past weekend, followed by the weekend's receipts, total receipts to date and weeks in distribution:

"Sudden Impact" (Warner Bros.): $9.7 million, one week.

"Scarface" (Universal): $4.6 million, one week.

"Terms of Endearment" (Paramount): $4.2 million.

$14.3 million, three weeks.
"Christine" (Columbia): $3.4 million, one week.
"Yentl" (MGM-UA): $3 million, 4.6 million, four weeks.

"A Christmas Story" (MGM-UA): $1.8 million, $12.8 million, four weeks.

"The Big Chill" (Columbia): $1.1 million, $40.1 million, 10 weeks.

Brenner Turned Briefly Serious

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Comedian David Brenner takes a serious tone — but only for an instant — in a public service announcement for the eye hospital where his aging mother's vision was partially restored.

Brenner begins a 30-second television spot by saying, "Even to me some things aren't funny — such as impaired vision."

He goes on to tell the story of how his mother, Estelle Brenner, began losing her eyesight until she was treated successfully at the William Feinbloom Vision Rehabilitation Center of the Eye Institute of the Pennsylvania College of Optometry.

"Today she can see television. That's the good news," says the comedian. "The bad news is that she can see I have a big nose."

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor, undergoing chemical dependency treatments, traces much of her problem to prescription drugs that she has taken over the years for various illnesses, a hospital official says.

Eisenhower Medical Center announced Monday that Miss Taylor has been at the facility since Dec. 5, and the hospital spokesman, Cliff Brown, would not predict how long the actress would remain.

The 51-year-old Miss Taylor is undergoing treatment at the hospital's Betty Ford Center, a facility named for the former first lady for those recovering from dependency on drugs and alcohol, Brown said.

"She selected the Ford Center because she has great admiration for Betty Ford and believed her problems to be very similar to that experienced by Mrs. Ford in that much of her trouble stems from prescription drugs administered over a period of years to combat her various medical problems," Brown said.

Brown said the usual stay at the center is four weeks.

Miss Taylor entered St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica, a seaside suburb of Los Angeles, on Nov. 28 for what her physician described at the time as a checkup.

Bob Hope Is 'Making A List'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope is making a list and checking it twice so he'll be ready to fly to the Middle East with his usual sleigh full of Christmas entertainment — but whether he'll actually make the trip is still up in the air.

Hope, who has been entertaining the troops during the holidays since World War II, wants to go, and "it's just a matter of everything being sewed up logistically," said his publicist, Ken Kantor.

Kantor said discussions are continuing with the State Department and Defense Department, and a final decision on whether the trip will be made and exactly where the 80-year-old Hope would go is expected by the end of the week, the spokesman added.

Noncombatant Soldiers Returning From Grenada

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — U.S. fighting forces are home from Grenada, and they will be followed this week by hundreds of noncombatants as the tiny Caribbean island continues its struggle to recover from war, military officials say.

The final contingent of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division — about 850 men — returned to Fort Bragg on Monday.

An estimated 700 troops in five military transport planes touched down shortly after noon at Pope Air Force Base, where flag-waving friends and relatives braved driving rain to give them a rousing welcome. A sixth plane was delayed in Grenada by engine problems, but arrived with additional 150 soldiers late Monday night.

Deputy Army Undersecretary John W. Shannon presented 1st Lt. Robert Scurlock, Sgt. 1st Class Jimmy Mayo and Pfc. Samuel Johnson with the Army Combat Infantryman's Badge, which will be given all the troops.

Lt. Col. K.M. Nightingale, commander of the 2nd Battalion, 505th Infantry, which included most of the returning soldiers, presented Shannon a letter to President Reagan from a Grenadian family. Shannon promised that Reagan would get the letter.

In an interview, Nightingale said the family was from the town of Sauteurs. The letter "thanked him (Reagan) for having the courage and morality to rescue that country from what was about to happen," Nightingale said.

Reagan ordered the U.S. invasion Oct. 25, saying Grenada was in the clutches of "Marxist thugs" and that some 1,000 Americans there were endangered.

Nightingale said his troops "performed super, really great," adding: "What they did makes you really proud to be a soldier."

Wearing camouflage outfits and carrying packs and weapons, the soldiers sloshed to trucks that took them to their units at Fort Bragg, where they were reunited with their families.

"It feels great to be home," said Pvt. Brian Guck of Minneapolis. "I feel like we accomplished something great, but I'm glad it's over."

Pfc. Patrick Gilkey of Louisville, Ky., clutched his 18-month-old son Jeremy and his wife, Lynn.

"I was able to call them a couple of times, but ... I missed them a lot and it's wonderful to see them again," he said.

As they stood by the airport tarmac, Louis Swindell of Wilson and his wife, Estelle, said they didn't regret their son's mission, although they worried after learning he had gone to Grenada.

"We went to Russia a couple of years ago and saw pretty much what it's like under communism," said Swindell. "We knew it had to be done."

Between 700 and 1,000 support personnel will be returning through Friday, reducing the U.S. presence on Grenada to about 300 military police and medical, civic action, logistics and administrative support personnel, said Capt. Bill Maddox, Fort Bragg spokesman. They should be able to deal with any problems, Nightingale said.

"All the heavyweights (leaders of the former Marxist regime) have been captured," he said. "The only people left are scattered militia types with little ideological commitment, more small-time thugs than anything else."

It would be difficult to organize a serious uprising because local citizens would turn in anyone suspected of collaborating with resisters, Nightingale said. That's one reason why there were no "Lebanon-style attacks" against U.S. personnel, although snipers were a problem throughout the occupation, he added.

"We're leaving behind a fairly significant residual support force," especially when combined with the troops from neighboring Caribbean islands still on Grenada, Nightingale said.

While declining to speculate on how well Grenada would govern itself and rebuild its economy, he said its citizens appeared eager to try.

"There's no doubt in my mind that they want a government ... that allows them to do what they want to do," he said.

The Grenada mission has been a practical and psychological boon to the U.S. armed forces, he added. It united the troops, showed them the importance of proper training and gave valuable experience.

During "my career in the Army, public support ... hasn't been the greatest," said Nightingale, 40, of Ojai, Calif., who joined the service in 1965. "But this time, we knew we were doing something right. The people there cheered the day we came and bawled the day we left.

That had a good effect on everyone, from the top right down to the privates."
