Double Murder In Bethel

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

BETHEL — A high school student working in a dry cleaning plant here and a Bethel resident who apparently was a customer in the Main Street business place were murdered Monday, probably some time prior to 6 p.m.

Frances Young, owner of Young's Cleaners, told police she went by the business place about 6:55 p.m. Monday and observed that it looked as if it were still open when it should have closed at 6 p.m. She went back and found an employee, Sheila

Bland, 17, behind a partition inside the building, along with a man identified as John Michael Edmondson, 33, of Route 1, Bethel. Both were dead, apparently killed by gunshot wounds. Bethel

Police Chief Jerry Ratley said.

Ratley said the motive for the deaths is unclear. He said there was some money left and it is not known whether any was taken. He said there were apparently no witnesses and no one who observed anything unusual at the time the crime took place.

Miss Bland was a North Pitt High School student who had worked at the dry cleaners after school since Sept. 16. Edmondson was a teacher of exceptional children at John Small School in Washington, N.C., and the organist for Bethel United Methodist Church.

"These were two of the brightest students I've ever had," Betty Speir, guidance counselor at North Pitt High School, said this morning. "Both were outstanding in every way."

Mrs. Speir said she filled out a scholarship application for Miss Bland only last week. "She was a marshal, chosen for academic ability, in the 11th grade and was serving as president of the school Future Business Leaders of America. She wanted to major in business and held the distinction of having never, since first grade, missed a day of school."

"Mike," Mrs. Speir said, "was a fine young man who'd lived here all his life. He was talented as a teacher and as a musician."

Edmondson, it was reported, had been practicing with some young people of his church earlier in the afternoon for a Christmas program. He commented when he left the church that he had to drop by the cleaners for some clothes.

Ratley said the Bethel Police Department's investigation is being assisted by the Pitt County Sheriff Department and the State Bureau of Investigation. "This is the worst thing that's happened in Bethel since I've been here," he said, "and one of our officers who's been here 26 years says it's the worst he remembers. The whole town is in shock. These were two of our finest citizens killed for no good reason."

Varied Actions Taken By County Commissioners

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday awarded bids for the demolition of the old county home building near Bell's Fork, approved extending contracts for the distribution of surplus commodities from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and witnessed the demonstration of a vote tabulating machine for possible use in local elections.

Bids for the demolition of the old county home building were awarded to E.R. Lewis Construction Co., which submitted a low bid of $3,600 and is to complete the removal in 30 days. Other bids ranged up to $15,888.

Officials had estimated the cost of the demolition at $6,960.

The board voted to renew the surplus commodities contract with the USDA after Agricultural Extension Service Chairman

Leroy James told commissioners that Pitt's allocation for the next three months would be 25,229 pounds of butter, 53,769 pounds of cheese, 5,256 pounds of corn meal, 13,876 pounds of dry milk, and 9,461 pounds of honey.

James also told the board that cheese and butter would be distributed again Wednesday and Thursday at the county office building.

During an afternoon session, commissioners and members of the Board of Elections witnessed the demonstration of a precinct vote tabulator manufactured by Governmental Data Systems of Charlotte.

Ed O'Day, who demonstrated the machine, said the units would cost about $3,400 each.

Pitt Extension Service Submits 4-Year Program For Pitt County

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

A four-year plan emphasizing agriculture, community and rural development, 4-H and home economics was introduced Monday to the Pitt County Commissioners by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

The plan, dubbed "People's Plan '87," is part of a statewide effort by the extension service to set objectives for serving the needs of North Carolina's people, said Pitt Extension Chairman Leroy James.

James told the commissioners the program began in January 1983, when four subcommittees were established to take a look at Pitt County in the four major program areas of the Agricultural Extension Service — agriculture, natural resources, home economics, 4-H and community and rural development.

These subcommittees, James said, involved citizens from all areas and aspects of the county. Through meetings and workshops, they identified specific needs in Pitt County in each of the four target areas and formulated a plan to deal with the needs.

In agriculture, one of the extension's main responsibilities in the next four years, he said, is to "help our farmers become skilled managers, not just commodity producers."

The use of the microcomputer in farm management will be of great importance, he added, since "accurate farm records enable farmers to make sound business decisions."

"In these economically unpredictable times, farms must be operated at a profit," said James "and that means our farmers must have marketing skills and sound business sense."

"An increasing population in rural areas has put the pressures of growth upon our rural communities. Between 1962 and 1980 the county population in Pitt grew from 37,000 to 56,000. The community and rural development phase of the plan will deal with these pressures."

"According to the plan, an interagency council will be formed to keep county citizens informed on problems and needs that presently exist. The council will meet monthly."

For example, James said the need for "wholesome recreation and programs that involve the entire family throughout the year" would be emphasized, along with educating community leaders on issues.

The plan also calls for the selection of a "key leader" in each community.

In 4-H, the plan mandates that a committee will be established to explore ways to increase enrollment in the programs and suggests that annual enrollment drives be held in the fall.

Special emphasis will also be made to recruit Greenville city youth into the program, according to the plan, since "city youth do not often feel eligible for 4-H programs."

A special teen 4-H committee will be formed to deal with what the plan calls "diminishing interest in club membership" by teens. The committee will explore ways to keep teens age 14 and older from dropping out of 4-H.

In the area of home economics programming will be directed for the next four years towards those problems related to family economic stability and security, family strengths, energy and the living environment, foods, nutrition and health, low income and volunteer leadership development.

Families need to develop money management and decision making skills, said the

Tripoli Fled By Arafat Fighters

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer
TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP)

— PLO chairman Yasser Arafat and 4,000 loyalist guerrillas left this northern Lebanese port today aboard five Greek ships, saluted from the shore by a barrage of automatic rifle and rocket-propelled grenade fire.

The guerrillas pulled out one day short of the deadline set by Syrian-backed PLO rebels besieging the city. It was the second time that Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas had been driven from Lebanon.

Arafat, wearing his military cap, olive drab fatigues and a black and white checkered kaffiyeh, was aboard the Odysseus Elytis, which steamed out of the harbor at 2:45 p.m. (7:45 EST). The last of the five Greek ships weighed anchor a half hour later.

Arafat drove straight into the ship, flashing a V for victory sign, after a brief ceremony at an unfinished port building where he handed over his heavy weapons — including truck-mounted multiple rocket launchers — to the Lebanese army.

As he climbed back into the vehicle, Arafat told the Associated Press: "The struggle is not over. We will continue until we reach Jerusalem, the capital of our Palestinian state."

Arafat's bodyguards said his destination was Tunisia, where he has set up political headquarters. But unconfirmed reports said his next port of call might be in Greece or the island of Crete.

where he would fly to Tunis.

Israeli warplanes circled high overhead, watching Arafat's departure with his guerrillas from their last Middle East stronghold to scattered exiles around the Arab world.

Crowds on shore loosed a thunderous barrage of automatic rifle and rocket-propelled grenade fire into the air.

The evacuation took five hours and 45 minutes.

Arafat left behind in Tripoli between 1,700 and 1,900 loyalist guerrillas who made up the original garrison of the city's Baddawi and Nahr el-Bared refugee camps before the eruption of the PLO civil war. They will be allowed to go back to the two camps, now controlled by the rebels.

A few rifle shots were fired in the air as truckloads of guerrilla loyalists began arriving at the harbor for the forced departure. White U.N. pickup trucks drove about 100 families of evacuees, including 250 children, to the crowded harbor area.

It was a far cry from the tumultuous send-off that Arafat received from his leftist Lebanese allies 489 days ago, when he evacuated Beirut with about 8,000 guerrillas under U.S.-guaranteed safe passage from the Lebanese capital of Beirut, then besieged by Israeli troops.

Record Cold In Mid-America

By CYNTHIA GREEN
Associated Press Writer

America's heartland shivered into its fourth day of record-breaking cold as a frigid blast from the Arctic sent chills from the Pacific to the Potomac today, stalling cars, bursting pipes, closing schools and causing at least 22 deaths.

With temperatures well below zero across the northern third of the nation, the National Weather Service predicted that scattered snow would add insult to injury from the Rockies to the Great Lakes. But falling flakes were only a sliver to the main show — a miserably stagnant deep freeze that covered much of the country.

Forty-seven cities reported low temperatures that tied or broke records for the date on Monday, including such cold spots as Eau Claire, Wis., with 31 below, Rochester, Minn., with 33 below, Mason City, Iowa, with 26 below, and Williston, N.D., with 40 below.

Harrison, Wis., took the day's icy trophy with a low of 44 below.

Three Minnesota cities set new lows for the date this morning: Duluth, 34 below, breaking by 13 degrees a 1970 record; International Falls, 36 below; and Rochester, minus 25.

Strong winds made it feel even colder, and the National Weather Service said the wind chill index plunged to 72 below zero this morning in Cut Bank, Mont., which also was lashed with blowing and drifting snow. The wind chill index is a calculation that describes the combined effect of the wind and cold temperatures on outdoor activities.

The cold spell's staying power has some folks wondering if it will ever warm up. Iowans are asking not if there will be a white Christmas, but "if we're going to have a white Fourth of July," said state climatologist Paul Waite.

The arctic air mass is expected to drift slowly east over the next few days, bringing some relief to the Midwest but foisting winter woes on the East, said meteorologist Harry Gordon of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

A winter storm packing 40-mph winds hit Utah this morning, creating near-blizzard conditions.

REWARD MONEY

I am appalled by the murders of Sheila Bland and Mike Edmondson in Bethel yesterday afternoon. The perpetrator(s) of this senseless killing should be brought to justice. I would like for anyone who feels as I do to contribute to a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer(s). I understand that the town of Bethel is setting up a reward fund. C.T.

The town of Bethel this morning set up a reward fund for the apprehension and conviction of the murderer(s). Anyone who wishes to contribute to it, according to Bethel Mayor Frank Hemingway, may send checks to the Town of Bethel Reward Fund, P.O. Box 337, Bethel, N.C. 27812. Inquiries may be made of Martha Mewborn, town clerk, 825-6191.

The trial of Highway Patrol Sgt. Stephen Michael Compton of Winterville on two counts of death by vehicle, set for today in District Court, was continued until Jan. 9 after a key witness could not be located.

Compton was charged by Greenville police with the misdemeanor counts following investigation of a Nov. 12 wreck on Memorial Drive, which resulted in the deaths of Alice Galloway Long, 79, of 1702 E. Fifth St. and Rosa Lee Lang Harrell, 74, of 1106 Rock Springs Drive.

Wake County District Court Judge Philip O. Redwine, assigned to hear the case by the Administrative Officer of the Courts, continued the trial until 2 p.m. Jan. 9 after Special Prosecutor Mary P. Easley said a key witness in the case could not be located.

Ms. Easley, an assistant district attorney from Brunswick County assigned to prosecute the case by the state office, told the judge that sheriff's deputies have been unable to locate Patricia Brett, who was described as "an essential witness."

"The case cannot be tried without that witness," Ms. Easley told Redwine.

At the time Compton was charged, police officials said the patrol car was traveling in excess of 90 mph when it struck the car driven by Mrs. Long, which had pulled from a private driveway on to Memorial Drive. Compton was in pursuit of another car, and the blue light was flashing, when the accident took place, investigators said.

Defense attorney Milton Williamson voiced no objection to the continuance. He told Redwine the trial of the case should take about 30 minutes.

sufficient for all sizes, full instructions and the shipping charges.

Too often knit and crochet patterns don't have instructions detailed enough for the inexperienced needlecrafter. Due to space limitations this is probably unavoidable, so the instruction writer has to assume that the needlworker has knowledge of the basic skills needed to follow the instructions and successfully complete an item.

One thing that is always included, however, is information on the stitch gauge — the number of stitches per inch that you will have to match. While this is the single most important piece of information on the instructions, it is the one thing that is most often taken lightly by the average knitter or crocheter.

You select a pattern and yarn and start working with the needle or hook size given in the materials list — overlooking the fact that these words (or words to this effect) usually follow the implement size: "Use any size needle or hook that will give you the specified gauge."

I speak from experience, dear reader! When I first started knitting more years ago than I care to admit, I made a couple of sweaters for myself that fit beautifully using the suggested needle sizes. So I decided to surprise my husband with a hand-knit for Christmas. It was a handsome ski sweater in dark gray heather with a three-color yoke design.

There was just one problem — it turned out large enough to fit a 250-pounder while my husband was a trim 175 pounds! Terribly distressed, I went to the shop where I had purchased yarn and directions, complaining that something was wrong with the instructions.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Remember the column on the Super Moms who are making life tough for the rest of us?

Well, according to the mail, the overachievers are coming out of the closet waving a white flag (bleached and soft to the touch, of course) of surrender.

Most of them, dazed by years of inhaling too much wax and deodorant, confess they don't know what happened. One day they were wide-eyed brides full of hope and promise and the next thing they knew they were fighting cavities, snapping green beans while calling 15 mothers to chaperone a field trip to a meat-packing plant, and waging a war against ring-around-the-collar.

A reformed Super Mom from New York wrote she never realized how far she had fallen until one day she realized she was working nights, was lunch room mother, reorganizing the school library and ate her lunch from samples in the supermarket as she shopped.

She was almost killed when a crazed mother at an Easter egg hunt which she engineered nearly trampled her in an attempt to find the specially marked eggs that won the children a 10-cent harmonica.

She lost the respect of her own mother when she conned her into making 35 paper tassels to go with the cardboard mortar boards for the graduates of a nursery school.

When she became depressed one night, her husband said, "You oughta get out of the house more and keep busy." He volunteered her for the Ladies Auxiliary of the Knights of Columbus.

One night she dragged home and discovered her son was hanging around the house with nothing to do, so she opened a teen center to keep him busy. She presided over it every Friday for the next two years.

Finally, she did the only thing she could do to save herself. She sold her car. As she wrote, "If anyone wants me to leave home, they have to bus me."

Other letters didn't have such happy endings. One mother wrote, "I didn't realize what I had become. I was just trying to do my job when my husband left me with three children under 13. It cost me. I've only had three dates in 12 years. My teeth are crooked and I can't afford to have them fixed. I've only had one vacation and that's when I cashed in an old insurance policy that I split with my college-age daughter."

But the best letter was from a woman who wrote, "I'm just a woman who cares about my children and what happens to them. There just aren't enough hours in the day. On the night as I was conceiving our third daughter, I was mentally planning a brunch for 10 people. Am I Super Mom?"

Who wants to tell her?

Miss Hines, Mr. Hardy Say Vows In Sunday Ceremony

Landmark Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony Sunday at 3 p.m. of Johnna Kay Hines and Eric Todd Hardy. The double ring ceremony was performed by Wayne King, brother-in-law of the bride of Kinston, and John T. Woodley of Greenville. Ken Rentrow of Greenville, S.C. played the organ. Judy Bowen sang "Surely the Presence of the Lord is in This Place" and Deborah Hines King, sister of the bride, sang "Whither Thou Guest" and "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George S. Hines of Route 1, Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Lee Hardy of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of white silk organza over peau de soie. The Sassoon original was fashioned with an open portrait neckline outlined in a double ruffle of organza banded in satin cording. The short Renaissance sleeves were trimmed in satin cording. The modified fitted waistline was enhanced by a belt of white satin in a tucked effect. The full circular skirt extended to an attached chapel length train. She wore a fingertip pencil edged illusion veil attached to a circlet of silk roses interspersed with silk baby's breath. She carried a cascade of red roses and lily.

Synthia Creason of Bowman, Ga., was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Dena Hines of Greenville, sister of the bride, Cindy Hines of Ayden, sister-in-law of the bride, Sandra Booth, Rhonda Sugg of Asheville, cousin of the bride, and Pamela Azinger of Vienna, W.Va. Kelly Ann King of Kinston, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The best man was Byron Hardy of Cincinnati, Ohio, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers included Donald Hines of Greenville, Ronald and Stancil Hines of Ayden, all brothers of the bride, David Hollingsworth of Greenville and Keith Hearit of Bay City, Mich.

The ring bearer was Danny Haddock of Greenville, nephew of the bride.

MRS. ERIC TODD HARDY

The attendants wore formal gowns of red taffeta designed with an open neckline featuring a ruffle of taffeta outlining the off-the-shoulder bodice and scooped back. Short cap sleeves complemented the gown and a sash of taffeta encircled the modified waistline from which fell the gathered skirt. They wore garlands of white silk flowers with white satin streamers. Each carried three long-stemmed white roses.

The flower girl wore a formal gown of white organza over taffeta fashioned with an open neckline outlined in a ruffle of organza bordered white satin ribbon. The gown also featured long full sleeves with ruffled cuffs trimmed in satin ribbon. A band of satin ribbon with a bow enhanced the modified waistline. The full skirt was styled with ruffled tiers of organza trimmed in white ribbon. She wore a garland of white silk flowers with white satin streamers. She carried a basket of flowers, baby's breath and snowdrift.

The mother of the bride wore a light blue and beige silk gown and matching jacket. The mother of the bridegroom selected a royal blue satin gown with Victorian neckline. Both wore white orchids. The grandmothers wore white carnations.

The bride graduated from Greenville Christian Academy and Bob Jones University. She was a member of the Beta Epison Chi Society. She works at Strossers in Greenville, S.C. The bridegroom is a senior at Bob Jones University and is a member of Beta Theta Society.

The couple will live in Greenville, S.C. after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

A reception was held in the Blue Room of the Dixie Queen Restaurant after the wedding. Iona Moye of Hookerton, the Rev. and Mrs. Wayne King and Louise Bachlotte of Winterville greeted guests. Michelle Woodley presided at the guest register.

A wedding breakfast was held Saturday at the Ramada Inn for the wedding party and out-of-town guests. A dinner was given Saturday night by the bride's parents for the couple at the Dixie Queen Restaurant.

Daughter Looks For A Way To Stiffen Mom's Will

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please put a few words in your column about the importance of having a will. My father died without leaving one because Mother didn't want to scare him by letting him know that he was sick enough to die.

Of course, Dad wanted Mother to have everything, but after he died, Mother had to go through a lot of fancy footwork to settle his affairs. Having gone through all of this, wouldn't you think she would have her own will drawn up? Well, she hasn't, and she is getting on in years.

My sister, who is married to an attorney, called me "greedy and crass" for reminding Mother to have her will drawn up. Mother has asked her attorney son-in-law repeatedly to please get together with her to do it, but he keeps telling her there is no hurry and he's too busy right now. (My sister told me that she and her husband don't have wills either. Can you believe this?)

I am not concerned about my own inheritance, but my mother has a lot in assets, and I don't want to see it lost in taxes. What should I do?

CONCERNED DAUGHTER

DEAR CONCERNED: Tell your mother to give her attorney son-in-law the following message: "If you can't get together with me within the next two weeks, I intend to find an attorney who will." And if he doesn't—she should.

DEAR ABBY: This year I thank God my husband has a steady paycheck coming in and our family will spend the holidays with many loved ones. Our table will be filled with plenty to eat and our children will open many gifts.

I am not unappreciative, just a bit guilt-ridden because I know many families will go hungry and no Santa will visit their kids.

Feeling as I do, I called our parish priest and asked him to find a family we could help during the holidays. He said he knew of a family in desperate need and any help we could provide would be an answer to their prayers.

So my husband and I and our two children are shopping for "our family." Now instead of hearing, "I want, we hear, "Let's get this for them."

Abby, if every fortunate family were to help a family or person in need, it would be a better holiday season for everyone.

G.K.S.

DEAR G.K.S.: Thank you for a great idea.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Jerry and Me" could have been written by me 30 years ago. I was also 15 and madly in love with a 20-year-old man. My parents did everything they could to keep us apart, so I got pregnant on purpose so they would have to let us get married.

I was still 15 when our first child was born, and 17 when we had our second. Six weeks later my husband was sent to Italy with the U.S. Air Force and I was left behind to care for our two babies. Six months later my husband was badly brain damaged in a car accident, and 10 months after that he was killed in another car accident.

At 19 I was a widow with two children, no education and no job skills. I'll spare you the details of those awful years of struggling to survive and make a life for the three of us. Suffice it to say that I became an old lady before I became a woman. Worst of all, I broke my mother's heart. (She died at 55.)

I would like to tell that 15-year-old girl who can't wait to get married: You have a lifetime to be an adult. Once your childhood is gone you can never get it back. The horrors I endured before I turned 21 nearly ruined my life. Listen to Abby. If you are in love, it will last. At 45 I am only beginning to get my life together. I sincerely hope you will not make the same mistake I made. Sign this ...

Protection Needed

Americans seem to be favorite targets of suicidal terrorists throughout the Middle East.

Following attacks in Beirut, the United States Embassy was attacked by a suicide truck bomb in Kuwait last week. The death toll was lower than in previous attacks, although large numbers were wounded.

Washington officials are commenting that it is difficult to halt the suicidal attacks and, indeed, it must be. An Islamic group with Iranian ties is claiming responsibility for the bombings and obviously its number includes those who are prepared to die for their cause.

Civilized nations must maintain diplomatic relations through embassies in the nations of the world and certainly those who carry out the diplomatic work are entitled to reasonable protection.

It is clear that better intelligence is needed on the group or groups which are organizing the attacks. Obviously, they are obtaining aid from some organized government. The United States and other nations which are the victims of such attacks are justified in holding the sponsoring nations fully responsible for these vicious attacks.

We Shall Be Thankful

Beginning in January members of Congress get a 3.5 percent boost in their annual salaries.

It is not easy to believe ... so don't even try; but this is a cost-of-living increase.

We remembered reading a news release about the increase just a few days ago and marveled it stirred so little righteous commentary. But then, it's the Christmas season; and hearts are filled with warmth, understanding and thanksgiving.

In keeping with the season, we shall be thankful for them.

And, because inflation has been held to very modest growth in the past year, we are tempted to think Congress earned the pay raise.

Too bad that larger and more pressing problems are going to need solving in 1984 than the the members solved in 1983. They're really going to have to earn that pay raise this election year.

—Cliff Haas—

Unpopular Occupation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The actual business of legislating has never been considered a very pleasant occupation, judging by the fact that senators and representatives spend most of the year doing other things.

After the First Continental Congress met in Philadelphia on Sept. 5, 1774, John Adams wrote to his wife, "The business of the Congress is tedious beyond expression. ... Every man upon every question must show his oratory, his criticism and his political ability."

Members of Congress still do not like to spend their time on the floors of the Senate and House of Representatives. Instead, they busy themselves with committee and subcommittee work, social events, speeches, travel and campaigning.

During the recently completed first session of the 98th Congress, which began Jan. 3 and ended Nov. 18, the Senate met 150 days and the House 146 — about 40 percent of the calendar year. And many of those days no substantive legislative business was conducted.

This year was really no different than most. In 1982, for example, the Senate met 147 days; the House 140.

Congress is now in the middle of a two-month break before the House and Senate reconvene Jan. 23. But already it is clear that during the 1984 election year the two chambers will spend fewer days in session than they did this year. House Democratic leaders — who control the legislative agenda in that chamber — have mapped plans that would have the House in session no more than 136 days next year. The Senate will follow a similar schedule.

According to the preliminary schedule, the first major break of the year will come 18 days after reconvening, when Congress takes off 10 days to celebrate the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

It's back to work Feb. 21 until April 13, when there is another 10-day break, this one for Easter.

The comes a break for Memorial Day, the close of business May 24 through noon May 30.

Then, June 29 is the last day of business while legislators take off until July 23 to allow time for the Fourth of July celebration and the Democratic National Convention July 16-19 in San Francisco.

After reconvening for 18 days, Congress recesses Aug. 10 to devote 25 days to Labor Day and the Republican National Convention, Aug. 20-23 in Dallas.

That will leave less than a month to meet an adjournment target of Oct. 4.

None of this takes into account those Tuesdays during the year when states will hold primary elections. No significant votes will be taken in Congress on those Tuesdays in deference to legislators who will be back in their home states for the elections.

In addition, little, if any, legislative business is conducted on Mondays or Fridays during election years because so many legislators are fond of using those days for campaigning.

RALEIGH — Someone forgot to tell the health care industry that inflation has been wrung out of the economy. While general inflation has been kept to only a few percentage points in each of the last three years, health care costs have continued to escalate at a double-digit pace. According to Ernest Messer, director of the state's Division of Aging, health care costs are currently increasing by more than 15 percent annually.

This month, a legislative study commission comprised of representatives of most elements of the industry began reviewing the reasons for health care's extraordinary inflation. They're scheduled to make recommendations to both the 1984 and 1985 session of the General Assembly.

The Legislature, in establishing the commission, outlined several general areas for study. The commission is expected to study medical cost trends and cost containment innovations both here and in other states. Medicaid cost trends and cost-cutting moves made by other states, and hospital bad debts. The commission will also review the practice of charging paying customers for some of the unpaid costs of government-sponsored patients.

Two current cost-containment programs will be reviewed: the Certificate of Need program and the health planning agency system.

After telling the commission what the Legislature expected it to study, Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, commission-co-chairman, asked members what they'd like to accomplish. He found that most had some solid ideas for reducing health care costs.

Helen Goldstein of Cary, a former nurse, said greater emphasis ought to be placed on preventive medicine and on educating people about staying healthy. "If people understand more about themselves and their physical and emotional problems, they don't rush to the doctor. They don't rush to have surgery. They don't increase their costs," she said.

Dr. Lawrence Cutchins of Tarboro said doctors have no incentives to keep health care costs down. It's just the opposite. In medical school, doctors are taught to order all types of tests. More appropriate, he said, would be teaching doctors to order only those tests which are really needed. On this point, several commission members agreed that doctors often order the tests simply to protect themselves in the event of a malpractice suit. Changes in the medical malpractice statutes could help reduce this abundance of teaching, they said.

William Eller of Greensboro, a vice-president of Pilot Life Insurance, said greater competition within the health care industry, as has been seen in North Carolina in the past two years, will keep costs down.

Dr. Sandra Greene of Durham, an official of Blue Cross-Blue Shield, said

North Carolinians run up big medical bills not because the cost of the service is extraordinarily high but because they use it so frequently. Compared to other parts of the country, she said, medical rates are low. But people here tend to use medical service more than in other areas. She asked if there is a reason for this and, if so, if something could be done to curtail any over-utilization.

Between the 1977 and 1979 sessions of the General Assembly, a study commission looked at health care costs. Jim Johnson, the chief legislative staffer for the current commission, says recommendations made then and enacted later by the Legislature did save moeny.

This year's commission has plenty of ideas. It's hoped that they can translate them into workable legislation that will put a brake on escalating health care costs. The alternative, said Messer, is for a too expensive health care system "to fall flat on its face."

Picture Of Poor Is Not Clear

Post provided the entire relevant text of Meese's session with reporters from the wire services. When the text is taken as a whole, it becomes clear that Meese's remarks were not "outrageous" at all. His offense matched the recent crime of Martin Feldstein, chief economic adviser, who said that eventually taxes must be raised. Meese committed truth. We do not have any "authoritative" data on hunger in America. Most of the evidence is indeed "anecdotal."

More to the point — and this is the point that Meese made repeatedly — we do not know why conditions of hunger persist. As he said, the federal government is now spending more on food assistance than the government ever spent before. Since 1980, participation in the food stamp program has grown from 19.3 million to 22 million persons; costs have grown from $8.3 billion to $12 billion. The school lunch program has been reformed to focus more sharply on children from truly needy families.

In addition to the nationwide federal programs, states and localities operate supplemental food assistance programs. Voluntary agencies manage soup kitchens and meals for shut-ins. "If people are going hungry," Meese said, "there must be some problem that has not been addressed."

The major thrust of Meese's comments went to the need to find the facts on which new efforts could be based. He did not deny that there are hungry people. He did not deny the existence of poverty, though he thought that because the rate of inflation has been dramatically reduced, the number of persons "living in poverty" has come down.

Look. The truth is that even in this prosperous land, some poor will be always with us. If Walter Mondale should be elected president next year, we will still have some hungry children in 1987. (We will still have demagoguery too, and posturing, and the playing of politics with the po' folks' vote, but put that to one side). That children should be acutely hungry is a tragedy; children have done nothing to deserve the ache of an empty belly. A decent and civilized society has a clear obligation to see to their needs.

All this goes without saying, but Meese doubtless should have said it anyhow. He left himself wide open to haymakers from the Democrats. But in what he did say, he was right on target: The picture is not clear; it is colored by partisan politics; and it is affected by human nature. In my book such comments do not a firestorm make.

Strength For Today

Someone has written that there are two ways to get up into the branches of an oak tree. One is to climb the trunk of the tree and the other is to sit hopefully on an acorn.

Governments often sit hopelessly on acorns. There are reforms to be made which stridently claim our attention, but we are told that the time is not yet. In our personal lives there are often shortcomings which need to be corrected right now, but we postpone the decision to do so on the ground that time will take care of these matters.

Don't trust the sprouting acorn to get you into the branches of an oak tree in time to do any good. The reason why the statement, "Hell is paved with good intentions," has become a cliché is because it is true.

Start climbing the trunk of the tree. It will take that acorn a long time to grow, and you may die of old age in the meantime.

Municipal Bonds Being Abused projects such as housing, roads and airport.

During the last eight years, however, two developments have occurred. First, financially strapped state and local governments began issuing a broad assortment of tax-exempt bonds with enthusiasm. Between 1975 and 1982, these securities rose in volume from $30 billion to more than $85 billion.

Meanwhile, in the interest of economic recovery, state officials encouraged businesses and corporations to issue tax-exempt industrial development bonds (IDBs) for private purposes (profit). Between 1975 and 1982, the share of state borrowing for private purposes more than doubled. (All a business had to do was set up an often flimsy "community improvement corporation" and lobby its legislators for backing.)

money was legitimately used to finance hospitals, new high-tech companies and other "industrial development," other proceeds financed the darndest things.

For example, bond money went to such questionable projects as massage parlors, liquor stores and McDonald's restaurants. In Norfolk, Va., money went to pay for a company airplane; in Atlanta, a law firm refurbished its offices; in Chicago, private "skyboxes" at Wrigley Field were erected, courtesy of Uncle Sam.

Though Congress attached some limits in 1982, the abuse hasn't stopped. Last week, the Boston Globe reported that a group of New Hampshire businessmen, including Ronald Reagan's ignominiously deposed deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Max Hugel, are planning a first: They want to refurbish a horse tract with $29 million in tax-exempt bond money.

Not all the hogs, as David Stockman might say, are feeding. While some states such as Ohio and Pennsylvania each issued more than $1.5 billion worth of IDBs in 1981 alone, others such as Hawaii, Idaho and California steered clear of the boondoggle.

While it hasn't considered the very legitimate question of whether private industry deserves such favorable backdoor treatment, Congress' Joint Committee on Taxation has pointed out that the IDB boom has had perilous effects.

First, the bonds rob the Treasury of about $10 billion annually, a sizable loss in any era. Perhaps worse, the committee noted in a report last June, the popularity of IDBs has drained a disproportionate share of available capital from the credit market, helping to keep interest rates high.

Said one aide on the committee: "The problem is one of overuse. It's like drinking beer: No one beer does it, but if you drink too much, you've got a problem."

Congress tried and failed during November to restrict the use of IDBs and other tax-exempt bonds before it adjourned, and state authority to issue them expires Dec. 31. The Bond Buyer, a daily market journal, reports that fears of further congressional delays led many investors into the market this month, hoping to get a last-minute piece of the action. (State and local governments, too, are floating bonds at record levels to beat the deadline.)

Many may wonder why Congress doesn't just let the program die.

Judge Rules Out Campaign Spending Limitation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Several Democratic gubernatorial candidates have criticized a court ruling which declared North Carolina's limit on campaign advertising expenditures as unconstitutional.

The ruling was issued by Judge James Pou Bailey of Wake County Superior Court. Unless Monday's decision is set aside by a higher court, hopefuls for office in 1984 will be able to spend as much money on media advertisements as they can raise.

Some said the decision would open the financial floodgates.

"To tell a man that you can't spend but X dollars for advertising is an infringement on his right of freedom of speech," Bailey said.

State Elections Director

Alex Brock had interpreted the law to mean candidates could spend nearly $900,000 before the May 8 primary, $450,000 before the second primary and another $450,000 before the general election.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth sought a court ruling on the law after another judge set aside Brock's interpretation of a similar rule on campaign contributions.

Faircloth was taping advertisements in his hometown of Clinton and was unavailable for comment, but spokesman Brad Crone said the Faircloth organization was pleased with the ruling.

"What we were doing was trying to define what the rules would be for the upcoming campaign," said Crone. "We feel the law has been defined and clarification has been provided. All we wanted was a clarification."

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, another Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said the ruling would "open a floodgate of political spending." Officials for his campaign said they would appeal the decision.

"The intent of the law which has been followed in the past two campaigns for governor was to curb spending in political campaigns," said Ingram. "The people are fed up with political spending which ends up costing them money in higher utility and insurance rates."

Tom Gilmore, another Democrat running for governor, criticized Faircloth for requesting a ruling on a law that had not been questioned since it was passed nine years ago.

"Lauch Faircloth apparently thinks he can buy the governor's office," Gilmore said. "I give the people of this state more credit than that. We should not allow Lauch Faircloth to spend millions of dollars to try to buy our governor's office. It should not be for sale to the highest bidder."

Crone responded that it was "an insult to the integrity of North Carolina voters to even imply that the governor's office is for sale."

A spokesman said Attorney General Rufus Edmisten would have no comment until he had read Bailey's ruling. Former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, two more candidates for governor, could not be reached for comment.

The chain of events leading to Bailey's ruling started earlier this month, when Gilmore challenged Brock's interpretation of the state law limiting individual campaign contributions.

The law said a person may contribute as much as $4,000 per candidate per election. Brock ruled that the limit would not take effect until 1984, and thus a person could give up to $4,000 in 1983, the same amount next year before the May 8 primary, $4,000 more for the second primary and another $4,000 for the general election.

Gilmore challenged Brock's claim that a person could contribute the maximum amount this year and again before the first primary. His suit was upheld by Superior Court Judge F. Gordon Battle.

Because Brock's spending ruling was based on the same principle — that the limit didn't take effect until the calendar year began — Faircloth requested the clarification.

Bailey said in a telephone interview that he rejected both Brock's and Battle's interpretations, basing his findings on a U.S. Supreme Court decision six years ago that a federal spending limit was unconstitutional.

Then, the nation's highest court said that "if no one individual could contribute more than a fixed amount, it would be pretty difficult for one individual or group of individuals to 'buy' the officeholder or be a dominant factor in the decisions he makes," said Bailey.

"That makes pretty good sense to me. But to put a limit on how much a person can raise hits me as a clear violation of the First Amendment."

Bailey said he wasn't worried about whether his ruling would result in drastic campaign spending increases. "But even if it does, I would have ruled the same way because that's the law," he said.

Brock said his office would enforce whatever the courts decide.

Truck-Weight Law Is Costing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina officials and trucking executives say fines for weight violations have become a bigger problem since a new truck-weight law went into effect Oct. 1.

"The law has changed the whole scope of enforcement," said Sgt. Larry Turner of the state Transportation Department's license, theft and weight-enforcement section.

"Our weight violations have gone up about 50 percent because of the new law," said Lt. J.M. Nixon, also working for the section.

"The law is causing some serious problems," said Ernie Cox, chairman of the American Trucking Associations and president of Moss Trucking Co. in Charlotte. "It is causing some carriers to have more weight fines than they've ever had."

The law, changed to conform with federal laws, reduced the weight that can legally carried on each axle, making weight distribution more crucial. The law was intended to ease the burden on highways and bridges.

German Urges A Bigger NASA Share For Europe

Fiery Death Said Suicide

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — An unemployed Greensboro woman with a history of mental illness apparently doused herself with gasoline and set herself on fire Monday outside her apartment, police said.

The flaming body was found in the grass shortly after 7 a.m. and Lillian Craddock, 52, was pronounced dead before police and firefighters arrived.

"Everything at this point indicates that the woman was depressed and she set herself on fire," said Greensboro Police Officer D.T. Rooker.

Dental records were used to identify the victim, according to Robert Anthony, an assistant chief medical examiner in Chapel Hill.

Anthony said the death will be ruled a suicide.

The nearby concrete patio of the victim's ground floor apartment contained a two-gallon gasoline can and a small bucket. Officers believe the woman poured the gas into the bucket and then on herself and ran into the yard.

A Palms resident who asked not to be identified said Ms. Craddock recently expressed fear that her rent was going to be increased.

"She said if they went up on the rent, she was going to move in with her daughter," the neighbor said.

A spokesman for the Palms Apartments there was no chance Mrs. Craddock's rent would increase until next September.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The West German who flew aboard the shuttle Columbia says European nations ought to get more for their money in space, and an American astronaut says Europe "should be congratulated" for building Spacelab.

The comments came as the crew of the shuttle Columbia gathered at a news conference Monday, with mission commander John Young minimizing the danger of a small fire on board as the craft landed Dec. 8 and saying the flight may have been his last.

During the two-hour meeting with reporters, the astronauts focused on the merits of Spacelab and the 72 science and technology experiments conducted in that $1 billion workshop mounted in Columbia's cargo bay during the 10-day mission.

"The Europeans should be congratulated," said Owen Garriott, an electrical engineer and one of five Americans in the six-man crew.

Ulf Merbold, a physicist from Stuttgart, West Germany, said he was very excited with the scientific results but criticized NASA for not letting the Europeans make greater free use of the Spacelab which they built and donated to the American space transportation system.

"The return to Europe should be more," Merbold said. "Spacelab is designed for 50 flights, and NASA's return to Europe is just one half of one mission. The politicians of Europe won't be able to sell (future cooperative space programs with the U.S.) without a greater return.

"For the future," he said, "I would like to see the United States of America and the European Space Agency sign a paper to build a space station. If Europe says it will fund 25 percent, they should get a 25 percent share of its use."

European experiments will fly on future Spacelab missions but they will have to pay NASA's shuttle transportation fee.

During the mission, a massive amount of data were gathered in astronomy, life sciences, atmospheric physics, materials processing and other fields, Merbold, Garriott and the two other scientists aboard agreed.

It could be weeks or months before many of the results are known, they said.

"We have shown the world that humans can effectively do meaningful science work in space," said Byron Lichtenberg, a bio-medical engineer from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"Spacelab really proved itself as an orbiting laboratory," said Robert Parker, an astronomer.

Reporters questioned the crew about the small fire that broke out in the rear of Columbia as it returned to Earth and about computer and navigation aid problems in the flight's final hours.

"No, we weren't in any problem," Young said. "The people on the ground did a great job keeping us out of trouble."

He said the fire was quickly snuffed by an automatic safety system and the astronauts didn't even know about it until the day after the landing.

Young, who has made six space flights, more than any other man, said he probably won't make another one. At 53, he said, it's "getting harder and harder" and he is returning to his job as head of the astronaut office at Johnson Space Center.

The mission was so successful that controllers extended it from nine to 10 days, but landing was postponed eight hours while experts on the ground probed why two of the shuttle's five computers failed during firing of jet thrusters.

While this troubleshooting went on, one of three navigation units failed. But controllers determined there was enough backup computer and navigation capability to safely order the astronauts home.

As Columbia descended to a landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., two of three auxiliary power units that operate wings and tail controls, landing gear and brakes, burst and spilled fuel that ignited a small fire in the rear of the shuttle.

Pilot Brewster Shaw said engineers had not yet pinpointed the cause of any of the three problems and there was no easy way of knowing whether any of them scheduled to be launched Jan. 30.

Discontinuing Benefit Fund

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The Board of Directors of North Carolina Memorial Hospital has decided to discontinue the hospital's Benefit Fund until a controversy over the fund can be resolved, officials announced Monday.

"While the hospital has been informed by the state auditor that the fund has been operated in a manner consistent with existing law and policies, the board, nevertheless, feels that the current controversy regarding the fund has raised questions that require resolution by the General Assembly," said a statement issued by the office of the executive director.

Consumers In A Buying Mood

By The Associated Press
Consumers were in a buying mood last month, with spending rising 1.1 percent for the biggest jump since May, the Commerce Department reported today.

The report was in line with retailers' reports of robust sales that continued into the final week of the Christmas shopping season.

In a separate report today, the Commerce Department said housing starts rose 6.4 percent in November, snapping a two-month decline. The government said work began on 1.6 million new housing units in the first 11 months of the year, up 63 percent from the same period in 1982.

On Monday, F.W. Dodge, a unit of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co., said housing starts were 67 percent higher in the third quarter ended Sept. 30 than in the comparable period last year. But the third-quarter construction was up only 6 percent from this year's second quarter as "housing momentum slowed," the private firm said.

The government said the rise in consumer spending outpaced gains in personal income, which rose 0.7 percent in November, the smallest increase since the 0.3 percent of this past August.

With spending rising faster than income, personal savings declined to an annual rate of $118.9 billion from $125 billion in October.

Merchants say there has been no sign of any slowdown in the Christmas shopping season, which so far has matched all its rave previews. One industry official said the holiday momentum may spill over into 1984.

The retailing business is not alone in benefiting from a revival of the U.S. economy.

A survey in the industry journal Metalworking News said 53 percent of the nation's foundries, metal fabricators and other metalworking industries in November reported an increase in orders from the month before.

Also, a steel industry trade group said Monday that U.S. steel production last week rose 1.5 percent from the week before and was 16.3 percent higher than in the corresponding week last year.

Jack Lavery, chief economist at Merrill Lynch & Co., projected the overall economy will grow at a 6 percent annual rate in the current business quarter.

after adjusting for inflation. That would give the economy a full-year growth of 3.4 percent, a turnaround from the 1.9 percent decline in 1982.

Lavery also predicted interest rates would hold at, or slightly above, current levels in the next few months. He said interest rates would edge slightly lower late next spring, turning higher at the end of the year and in early 1985.

For now, however, consumer spending is rising rapidly as the economy roars ahead. As the final week of Christmas shopping got under way Monday, merchants were upbeat.

"Without a doubt, this will be the best season on record," said Maurice Segall, president of Zayre Corp.

Monroe Greenstein, who analyzes the retail industry for the New York investment firm Bear, Stearns & Co., said sales through mid-December were up by at least 13 percent for many of the nation's largest retailers, including Sears, Roebuck & Co., the largest.

At May Department Stores, spokesman Jim Abrams said expectations are that the holiday sales momentum will continue next year, because "the consumer is in such a positive frame of mind."

In other economic developments Monday:

—Striking Greyhound employees overwhelmingly approved a three-year contract ending a seven-week strike against the nation's largest intercity bus carrier. The pact, calling for wage cuts of 7.8 percent and a 4 percent employee contribution to the pension plan, was described as an improvement over the contract rejected last month by more than 96 percent of the union members voting.

—Ashland Oil Inc. said it reduced its offering price for domestic crude oil by $1.50 a barrel, to about $28.50. The reduction matched a cut announced last week by Citgo Petroleum Corp., although no other refiners have followed suit. If the reduction becomes industrywide, oil prices around the world may fall.

—The Bank for International Settlements said international lending fell in the first half of 1983 to $10 billion from $22 billion in the second half of last year. The bank's biannual review attributed the trend in part to "continuing debt-servicing problems, particularly in the developing countries, and the resultant reluctance of banks to increase their exposure to problem debtor countries."

—Banking sources said Brazil is paying commercial banks about $540 million in overdue interest on its foreign debt. The payment brings Brazil's interest payments up-to-date to Oct. 4.

—Tymshare Inc. says talks aimed at a takeover of the computer services company by McDonnell Douglas Corp.

U.S. Team Hunts MIA Clues In Laos

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A U.S. military team trying to locate missing American servicemen has arrived in Laos to survey the site where a transport plane was shot down at the height of the Vietnam war, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

The survey by the team from the Joint Casualty Resolution Center marks the first time the U.S. government has been allowed to investigate the site since 1975, when the communist Pathet Lao regime took power.

The spokesman said the government team arrived on Monday. It will survey an area near Pakse, in the southern Laotian province of Sedone, where a U.S. C-130 transport plane with 16 people aboard was shot down by anti-aircraft fire on Dec. 21, 1972.

U.S. teams found two crew members alive after the crash and remains of another crew member, leaving 13 people still unaccounted for.

The spokesman said the Laotian government is allowing a preliminary inspection of the site to determine what efforts are needed to recover possible remains of U.S. servicemen.

A private group made up of relatives of MIAs visited the site in September 1982, said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified. They found some human remains, pieces of clothing and items of equipment in the wreckage, all spread over a vast area. Pieces of metal from the plane were found sticking out of the ground.

Members of the Joint Casualty Resolution Center visited Laos in February, initiating what was believed to be the first official discussions on MIAs between the Pathet Lao and the United States.

Washington has said some 2,500 U.S. servicemen remain unaccounted for from the Vietnam war — which spilled over into Laos and Cambodia — and that roughly a fifth of them were reported missing in Laos.

The spokesman said the Laotian government's decision to grant Washington's request for the survey was "prompted by its humanitarian policy towards the families of Americans missing in action."

Asked whether the MIA teams' visit represents a significant improvement in U.S.-Laos relations, the embassy spokesman said, "We have agreed with the Lao authorities to improve relations on the basis of concrete actions on both sides. The Laotians are aware that we consider progress on the POW (Prisoners Of War) issue as a principal measure of their sincerity."

Laos, which the World Bank lists as one of the world's poorest nations, needs aid to rebuild its war-shattered economy.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't allow yourself to feel that you are a martyr or put upon. You can get a great deal done today and tonight, especially in getting others to show you how to be more successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid quarrel between a partner and a family tie in order to maintain harmony. Arrange home affairs wisely. Listen to the view of others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid irate co-worker and attend to communications requiring your attention. Visit good friends and relatives in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't go along with a friend who wants to spend too much for entertainment. Give your attention to important financial affairs instead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't get into a dither with a family tie over some emotional situation. Then improve personal affairs wisely.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't let private anxieties slow you down. Be objective. Enjoy the company of the one you love this evening and be happy.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some jealous friend may have an eye on your assets and try to take them. Avoid seeing this person. Have a good time with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be careful not to jeopardize your position through careless actions. Be conscientious in handling all of your affairs. Drive carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have new ideas that could prove to be profitable. Make arrangements so that you can grow gradually.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't argue with an outsider over an expenditure. You can have business transactions on a fair basis. Stay home in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't let a partner interfere in an important matter, or you lose out. Talk over a new deal with an associate and get good results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't let an annoyance stop you from carrying on with important work. Improving your health will make the holidays more enjoyable.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get out and enjoy yourself even though it may be a little expensive. Concentrate on your talents. Be more optimistic.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be someone who has to learn to be more self-controlled and less moody. Education should slant along business lines. One who could do well at public matters. Teach to be more cooperative.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Raising Fees On DWI Cases

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The president of the Buncombe County Bar Association says many trial lawyers are raising their fees on driving-while-impaired cases.

Bill Sawter said the complexities of the new Safe Roads Act means more work on each case. He declined to say how much the fees have been raised.

How to Manage Your AT&T Holdings After the Breakup.

Introducing The Telephone Exchange Fund-AT&T Shares.

(A Unit Investment Trust)

Now you can continue to have an equity investment in the Bell System after the reorganization with all the convenience of a unit investment trust. You can tender your AT&T stock now for an interest in a portfolio that will only hold shares of the new AT&T plus the seven regional phone companies that the divestiture will create. Instead of the paperwork burden of owning securities in eight different companies you own a single investment, which should simplify most shareholders' bookkeeping.

Features of The Telephone Exchange Fund.

As a holder of Units of the Fund you will be able to:

- Receive a pro rata share of the net dividend income from the securities held by the Fund (or have your dividend automatically reinvested). Dividends will be paid monthly.

- Retain investment flexibility (you can redeem your units to the sponsor at any time after the divestiture at the then current market value).
- For six months following the divestiture, if you decide to redeem your Units in the Fund in exchange for Bell System securities you will receive shares in these companies in any combination you wish, without a fee.
- Tender shares currently held in your IRA, Keogh, or SEP plan for Units of the Fund.
- Minimum tender of 10 shares.

Exchange your AT&T stock the easy way for units representing a portfolio that will hold shares in the new AT&T and the seven new regional companies.

To receive a copy of a prospectus containing more complete information including fees and expenses, call the number below. Be sure to read it carefully before exchanging your AT&T shares.

Mabry Paces ECU Romp, 77-51

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Delphine Mabry scored 20 points and three other Lady Pirates were in double figures as East Carolina romped to a 77-51 victory over Appalachian State University last night.

East Carolina led the entire game — with but one exception — a 3-2 lead by the Lady Mountaineers early in the contest. Behind a balanced scoring attack early on the Lady Pirates pushed out into as much as a 12-point lead in the first half of the affair, then broke it open with a 12-0 streak that ran the lead out to as much as 27 before it finally was over.

"I'm pleased, there's no question about it," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said afterwards. "The girls did a good job considering the foul trouble they got into."

Andruzzi referred to the fact that four Pirate players, Mabry, Sylvia Bragg and Anita Anderson all finished the game with four fouls. Bragg got three quick fouls in the first half, and that limited her to a total of just 19 minutes of playing time. Anderson got her fourth just over four minutes into the second half, and that also limited her. Mabry's fourth came with 10:45 left, but she continued to play, going the full 40 minutes.

"The fouls they were calling were erratic," Andruzzi said. "But the people who came off the bench did their job and helped out. They executed according to who was in there at the time."

East Carolina was out-rebounded by Appalachian in the first half, 22-17, and that bothered Andruzzi. "We had to come back and rebound them," the coach said. And her team responded, holding a 23-18 advantage in the half. Anderson and Lisa Squirewell led the way with seven each, while Darlene Hedges picked off six. ASU's Carolyn Cameron led the overall rebounding with eighth.

Andruzzi said she felt the Lady Pirates held their poise throughout the second half, getting the ball where it needed to go.

"Delphine played a superb game. She shot well from the line and from the floor and controlled the offense." Mabry finished the game with six of 12 shots from the field and eight of eight at the line.

East Carolina, overall, shot well, too, making 54.5 percent of their shots for the game. ASU in contrast, hit just 29.3 percent. "They just lost to N.C. State by 15 the other night," Andruzzi pointed out. N.C. State, incidentally, is the next opponent for ECU.

Mabry's jumper in the lane put ECU into the initial lead, but a jumper by Karen Robinson and a free throw by Ruth Young put ASU into its only lead of the evening at 3-2.

East Carolina came back with an Anderson basket from the baseline and two free throws by Mabry for a 6-3 lead and the Pirates were never caught again.

Over the remaining 17 minutes of the first half, East Carolina slowly but steadily pulled away, moving first to eight at 15-7, then to ten at 21-11. The lead finally reached 12 at 27-15 with 7:06 on a Mabry jumper, but ASU rallied and cut the lead back to eight at the half as Carolyn Cameron hit a jumper with one second left for a 34-26 deficit.

In the second half, ECU hit the first two baskets to go out by 12, and then pushed out by 17 16-46-29 in the first five minutes.

The two then exchanged baskets until the Lady Mountaineers hit to cut it to 54-39.

East Carolina then reeled off 12 unanswered points, running the lead out to 66-39, and ASU managed to cut one off that in the time remaining.

In addition to Mabry's 20, Anderson and Bragg each had 14 and Annette Phillips had 11. LuAnne Underhill led Appalachian with 10 points.

East Carolina climbs to 5-3 with the win, its third straight. ASU drops to 3-5.

The Lady Pirates return to action on December 30 in the City of Dogwood Classic in Fayetteville, facing N.C. State. Virginia Tech takes on North Carolina in the other game. On December 31, ECU meets Carolina and State takes on Tech.

Vikings Have Tough Act To Follow

Conley Vikings

Reflector Staff Writer
HOLLYWOOD — Basketball teams at D.H. Conley have a tough act to follow in the 1983-84 season.

Last year's boys team featured the best high school basketball player in the state of North Carolina — Keith Gatlin.

The Valkyries struggled through to the east championship and narrowly missed upsetting the Sugar Jets of Enka in the state 3-A finals at Elon College.

Gatlin's now gaining valuable experience as a part-time starter in his first year under Lefty Driesell at the University of Maryland.

Both starting guards on the girls team graduated leaving a void in the backcourt of the team which finished second in the state.

So the 1983-84 season will be a rebuilding year for Conley basketball — right?

Wrong!

"I think one of our strengths is that we will have good people at every position once we mature," said Vikings Coach Shelly Marsh, who has 12 seniors among 14 players.

"I think that maturity will come quickly because we are a senior dominated team. But leadership has been one of our problem areas because of the losses from last year."

In the Vikings' first five games of the season, Marsh used 13 different players as starters and jokes that the other team member asked that he be left out of the lineup the night he was going to start. But the Vikings are close to settling on a starting rotation.

"There's really nothing special about starting a game," Marsh said. "If it weren't for the introductions before the game, no one would notice. It's more important who's playing well at the end than who was there at the start."

The Vikings trounced Farmville Central last week, and the lineup Marsh used most of that game consisted of point guard Steve Mills, "second" guard Victor Barnes, forwards Kenny Credle and Darryl Daniels, and center Louis Bryant. But there again, Donald Wilson and Glenn Clemmons shuffled in and out of the lineup at guard.

"Wilson and Clemmons are pushing the starters at guard, and I'm sure they'll play a lot all year," Marsh said. "When this team matures, we'll have depth. It's going to be nice as a coach not to have to worry about fouls costing you a game because the person coming in late as a replacement isn't as good as who was in the game."

"I'm sure our returning lettermen are going to miss Keith, but those up from the jayvee team never played with him and never relied on him."

"Unlike in the past, our scoring will be balanced this year. But I expect Bryant, Daniels and Smith will be around double figures consistently. This team will have its own identity."

Aside from Bryant at 6-7 and Daniels at 6-5, Marsh relies on 6-5 Reggie Smith on the front line. Smith, along with Allan Coward and Willie Anderson, returns with experience at forward against Coastal 3-A Conference opposition.

Anderson and Raymond Reddick are credited as the top defensive players on the Conley team, which will play man-to-man most of the time.

"They seem pretty comfortable playing man-to-man," Marsh said. "Every team that I've coached that wanted to play man-to-man has done very well."

"The thing I'm most disappointed with right now is team free throw shooting. We've got to start making more from the line. And I haven't been pleased with our rebounding; we're too inconsistent."

Marsh points to West Carteret with all five starters returning as the team to beat in the Coastal league, with West Craven and North Lenoir figuring into the top four.

"Experience-wise, on paper people say we should finish second," Marsh said. "But that's on paper. This team has a lot of potential; I'm not sure how far they can go."

"I will say that I'm as confident about winning with this team as I have been with any over the past few years."

offense very well.

"Mechio moves well with the ball, but I'd rather have her roving around where she can get open to score more. I did that (last week) against Farmville Central in the second half, and she scored more."

Junior Angela Smith and freshman Trellany Boyd are Conley's most likely candidates to take over at point guard, while senior Kim Chipman will also see action.

Nonetheless, the Valkyries are 7-0 after the first three weeks of the season and have "dodged the bullet" in four of their non-conference games.

"The way we've been playing, there's no way we should be 5-0," Riddick said. "But we have three experienced starters back from last year who have pulled us through. We don't have the talent at each position that we had last year, but I think we have more depth overall. My young players just need time on the court."

Senior center Karen Barrett returns from last year's starting rotation, along with junior forward Lisa Mills. Chipman and small forward Debbie Patrick served as reserves on last year's banner team. Along with Kornegay, they form the nucleus of the team which hopes to repeat as the Coastal champions and return to the state tourney.

To do that, they must get by North Lenoir, which returns all five starters from last year's Coastal tournament championship team. Riddick picks Havelock and North Pitt to also provide strong competition in the east.

"I definitely don't see us as the team to beat," Riddick said. "But no one better count us out. I can see little things we've improved on already."

"At the first of the year, I couldn't get them to set up in the right defense. I think I've got the kind of team that will peak at the right time of the year."

"I think we stack up pretty well in the conference. We won't get blown out by anybody. But on the other hand, we won't blow anyone out either. So far, we've played just well enough that we haven't lost."

beat a zone, you've got to shoot the basketball like out kids did the first half," Faulkner said.

Jim Haller, Baylor coach, was impressed with Clemson's shooting.

"We're not used to seeing a team shoot like that. It was a phenomenal performance. We have been holding opponents to 42 percent for the year. We looked in the record book and 63.9 percent is the best by an opponent."

"We have played Iowa, the fifth best team in the country, and Alabama-Birmingham, and we've never seen anyone shoot like that against us," Haller said.

Holtz Gives Few Answers As To Why He Quit Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — With a quote from the Bible and without elaborating on his decision, former Arkansas head football coach Lou Holtz told reporters it was time for him to resign.

The day after Athletic Director Frank Broyles announced he had accepted Holtz's resignation, Holtz faced reporters in a crowded conference room Monday and read from a prepared statement. He began with a quote from Ecclesiastes 2:16, which says, "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven."

It's the appropriate time for him to leave, Holtz said. "There are many different ways to resign and none of them are very easy, but hopefully this one will be done and reported in a positive manner. The reasons for my resignation are personal. I do not wish to delve into them at this time."

Holtz had been head football coach of the Razorbacks for seven years. He said he had no immediate plans.

In a news conference that followed Holtz's, Broyles said the search for a replacement would begin immediately.

Broyles declined to answer questions about Holtz's resignation. He said he wanted to dwell on the future and mentioned the names of five coaches who would be considered for the job. Among them are former Razorbacks Fred Akers at Texas, Ken Hatfield at the Air Force Academy, Jimmy Johnson at Oklahoma State and Barry Switzer at Oklahoma. "Coming home has an attraction for a lot of people," Broyles said.

He also mentioned John Cooper of Tulsa as a coach who fit the criteria.

Broyles said he wants a proven, successful head coach with high regard for the values of intercollegiate athletics. The guidelines were established in 1976 when Holtz was hired to replace Broyles.

If a replacement isn't named by the end of the week, Broyles said, Assistant Lon Farrell will handle recruiting duties.

Holtz told reporters that he has made honest mistakes. "I'm sorry and I apologize," he said. "Anybody that does know me will realize that I've never intentionally offended anybody."

Arkansas finished 6-5 the past season, the first time that a Razorback team Holtz had coached did not get a bowl bid. Before this year, Holtz had a 54-16-2 record at Arkansas.

Air Force Athletic Director John Clune said Sunday that he got a call from Broyles asking permission to talk to Hatfield. "I said firmly, 'no,'" Clune said with a laugh. "Really, I said, 'yes, go ahead. But now I feel terrible. Absolutely terrible.'"

Hatfield — originally of Helena, Ark., and an All-American for the Razorbacks in 1964 — guided the Falcons to two straight bowl appearances, and a 10-2 record this year.

Hatfield referred questions to Clune. "I'd be interested in talking to anybody, just like I talked to Kansas last year."

Clune, who spoke by telephone with Hatfield — who is in Los Angeles on a recruiting trip — said he hasn't given up hope Hatfield will stay.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Jesse A. Helms of North Carolina, has ordered his staff not to run commercials featuring Holtz, a former coach at North Carolina State.

According to the News and Observer of Raleigh, there were reports from Fayetteville that the endorsements for Helms, who traditionally attracts opposition from blacks, would hamper recruiting efforts toward black athletes at the school.

Tigers Pound Baylor By 102-52 Margin

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Vincent Hamilton scored 20 points and Murray Jarman 18 to lead Clemson to a 102-52 intersectional basketball victory over Baylor Monday.

The Tigers played without head coach Bill Foster, who missed the game with a stomach virus, and lost starting point guard David Shaffer with a stress fracture in his foot.

Shaffer is expected to miss at least two and a half weeks and may return in time for Clemson's Jan. 9 Atlantic Coast Conference opener against North Carolina State, according to Clemson team physician Dr. Byron Harder.

Assistant Coach Jerry Faulkner took over coaching duties for Foster.

Clemson shot 72 percent the first half, to take a 56-29 lead and finished overall with 66 percent accuracy from the field, while Baylor shot a cool 30 percent.

It was the seventh straight win for the Tigers, while Baylor slipped to 3-6.

It was a close game until midway through the first half when the Tigers reeled off 14 straight points to take a 35-18 lead with 5:40 left before intermission.

The Tigers had another rally, outscoring Baylor 11-3 as Jarman scored 6 points and Anthony Jenkins 3.

The game was never in doubt in the second half as the Tigers had five players in double figures. Chris Michael had 14, Marc Campbell and Anthony Jenkins had 11 each.

James Stern led the Bears with 14 points, and Brown had 12.

Faulkner, who has been an assistant at Clemson for four years, said, "Coach Foster told the team prior to warmups that if anything happened, I would be in charge. As far as I know, Coach Foster's alright. He has been having a stomach problem, a virus has been going around campus."

"We made the game easy the way we played. Our shots fell tonight. Baylor played a zone to keep a slow tempo. To

Helms TV Ads May Have Done In Holtz

RALEIGH, AP — Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., ordered his campaign staff not to run advertisements featuring Arkansas football coach Lou Holtz after learning the commercials were causing problems for Holtz, a Raleigh newspaper said today.

Holtz resigned as head coach at Arkansas, and at a news conference Monday cited personal reasons for his decision. He left the school with a 54-16-2 record, including this year's 6-5 mark. This was the first season in the last six that the Razorbacks failed to get a bowl bid.

Under Holtz, Arkansas failed to win a Southwest Conference title.

According to the News and Observer of Raleigh, there were reports from Fayetteville, Ark., that the endorsements for Helms, who traditionally attracts opposition from blacks, would hamper recruiting efforts toward black athletes at the school.

Holtz, asked whether an endorsement he taped for Helms had anything to do with his decision to resign, he did not answer directly. At Holtz's request, the commercials were not aired.

The commercials aroused controversy after they were disclosed in the Arkansas news media. The newspaper said Helms directed his campaign staff "not to run anything because I don't want to do anything that harms Lou Holtz."

Asked by the newspaper whether he thought broadcast of the Holtz endorsement would have hurt the coach, Helms said, "I don't know. If it did, that doesn't speak well for the University of Arkansas. What happened to the First Amendment? What happened to academic freedom? If Lou's standing up for a friend has caused him any problem, it's a sad commentary."

Helms said he had talked to Holtz recently but declined to discuss the nature of the conversation.

Holtz campaigned for Helms in December 1977, when the senator sought re-election in the face of a Democratic challenge from Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

Dr. James Halligan, acting chancellor of the university, declined to comment on Holtz's resignation. He referred questions to Athletic Director Frank Broyles, who could not be reached for comment, the paper said.

Heels Hold To Slim Lead In AP Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina, which did not play last week, retained its No. 1 ranking in this week's Associated Press' college basketball poll released today.

The Tar Heels received 36 first place votes and 1,233 points from the 63 participating sportswriters and broadcasters on the national panel, while second-ranked Kentucky received 27 first place votes and 1,224 points in a result almost identical to the previous week's.

Kentucky trounced Wyoming 66-40 and Brigham Young 93-39 last week to raise its record to 5-0, the same as North Carolina.

Houston and Georgetown, each 7-1, stayed at No. 3 and 5, respectively, each cruising to easy victories last week. Meanwhile, DePaul, 7-0, which overcame scares in the Suntory Ball in Japan squeezing by Alabama 77-76 and Texas Tech 50-47, retained the No. 4 spot.

Two other clubs with 7-0 records, Boston College and Purdue, each climbed two notches to Nos. 6 and 7, with 810 and 710 points, respectively. Maryland, 5-1, advanced one place to No. 8.

The lone newcomer to the Top Twenty is No. 20 Michigan, 7-0, which beat Detroit 84-63 last Saturday. Last week's No. 18 team, Iowa, was idle but the 3-2 Hawkeyes became this week's only casualty as they dropped from the poll.

Entering this week's Top Ten by virtue of nationally televised upsets were UCLA and Louisville, each climbing six places to No. 9 and 10. The Bruins, 4-1, knocked off Memphis State 65-51 and the Cardinals, 4-2, beat last year's national champs North Carolina State 83-79.

Tied for sixth place last week, North Carolina State, 7-2, and Memphis State, 5-2, dropped to Nos. 13 and 16, respectively.

In the Second Ten, Louisiana State, 4-1, saw no action last week but dropped a notch to No. 11. St. John's 6-0, which had little trouble with Manhattan and Wagner, moved up a place to No. 12 as Georgia, 6-1, moved down two to No. 14.

Oregon State, 4-1, fell one slot to No. 15 despite beating Utah and Portland. Wake Forest and Texas El-Paso — both newcomers to the poll the previous week — each moved up two places to No. 17 and 18, respectively, while Michigan State, 5-1, fell two notches to No. 19.

Evansville Upsets No. 7 Purdue

By The Associated Press
Unheralded Evansville led Rich Johnson, Harold Howard and an enthusiastic crowd on its side. Too many Aces, it turned out, for No. 7 Purdue.

Johnson scored 22 points, including a layup and two free throws during a late surge, as Evansville surprised the previously undefeated Boilermakers 80-65 Monday night in college basketball.

The two teams were tied 55-55 with 4:40 to go before a three-point play by Howard put Evansville ahead for good. Purdue's Jim Bullock made a free throw to cut the deficit to two, but a rebound basket by 6-foot-10 Bobby Wallace triggered an eight-point spree that gave the Aces a 10-point lead with just over a minute remaining.

"This was the biggest win of my career," said Evansville Coach Dick Walters, whose team is now 5-3.

"We got what we deserved," said Purdue Coach Gene Keady, whose team slipped to 7-1.

In other Top Twenty action, Fresno State upset No. 15 Oregon State 60-47, while No. 3

Houston crushed Texas Lutheran 129-65; No. 7 Louisiana State edged Houston Baptist 60-59; No. 9 UCLA bounced Howard 63-52 and No. 18 Texas-El Paso downed Louisiana Tech 82-70.

Johnson, a 6-9 forward, scored four points and Howard, who finished with 16, had the other two during Evansville's late streak. The Aces made eight foul shots in the last minute and Wallace's stuff at the buzzer completed the upset.

"The big keys in the game were that we played hard for 40 minutes and we weren't intimidated," Walters said. "The fans were a great factor in our favor also. I can't say enough about the support we had from them tonight."

The teams seasawed through the first half before Evansville took a 35-31 lead at intermission.

"Lack of concentration and impatience were our problems," Keady said. "They just played better than us. And the crowd was really into the game."

Jim Rowinski scored 17 points and Bullock added 16 for Purdue.

Top Ten

LSU, which trailed by 10 points with five minutes remaining, rallied to win when Leonard Mitchell grabbed a missed shot and stuffed home the rebound with 18 seconds left to play.

"It is probably a miracle comeback," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "I never gave up, but I was sitting on the bench thinking of just how we could come back."

The Tigers, 5-1, never led in the second half until John Tudor's jump shot gave them a 58-57 edge with 1:28 remaining. Mitchell and Derek Taylor each had 16 for LSU, while Matt England, who transferred from LSU to Houston Baptist, scored 18 for the losers, 6-2.

Howard scored just nine points in the first half — the lowest point total for a half in the history of UCLA's Pauley Pavilion — and trailed the Bruins 29-9 at intermission.

UCLA, which got 13 points from Stuart Gray and 12 from Kenny Fields, scored the final 13 points of the half in improving to 5-1.

Michael Young scored 22 points and five other Houston players scored in double figures as the Cougars whipped Texas Lutheran. The Cougars, 8-1, raced to a 10-0 lead and opened up a 66-32 margin at halftime.

Freshman forward Ricky Winslow added 20 points, including five dunks, and grabbed 10 rebounds for Houston. Akeem Olajuwon scored 17 points and had 11 rebounds.

"I would say at this point we are executing at our top form," Young said.

Second Ten
In Fresno, Calif., Bernard

Thompson scored 22 points and sparked a 12-point run early in the second half that carried Fresno State past Oregon State. The 49ers' streak gave them a 40-24 lead and Oregon State, 4-2, never got closer than eight points the rest of the way. Fresno State outrebounded the visitors, 45-21.

"Fatigue was a big factor," said Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller, whose team was playing its third game in four days.

Texas-El Paso, 7-0, sank nine of its first 10 shots from the floor and cruised to an 18-0 lead. Kent Lockhart scored 15 points for the Miners as Coach Don Haskins won the 399th game of his career.

Unranked Teams
In other games, Iowa — which had been ranked 18th last week — got 16 points from Greg Stokes and beat Colorado 72-56. The Hawkeyes, 4-2, led 38-21 at halftime.

Vincent Hamilton scored 20 points as Clemson, playing without Coach Bill Foster, breezed past Baylor 102-52.

Foster missed the game with a stomach virus and assistant coach Jerry Faulkner took over.

Center Greg Dreiling scored 19 points, including eight down the stretch, to propel Kansas over Oral Roberts 65-64.

Keith Thomas sank a 16-foot jump shot to break a tie midway through the second half and send Old Dominion past Western Kentucky 75-68.

Charles Barkley, recovering from a back sprain, scored 18 points while playing sprainly as Auburn routed Eastern Kentucky 100-60.

Junior forward Larry Davis made eight of nine shots from the field to lead Southern Methodist past U.S. International 91-70.

Tommy Davis tallied 23 points and Minnesota stalled in the final three minutes to hold off Jacksonville 52-50; freshman guard Andre Laird came off the bench to score 14 points as Mississippi topped Mercer 82-64; and Keith Jones scored 28 as Stanford beat Stanford 79-66.

Nelson Franse and Tim Garrett each scored 22 points as New Mexico beat Eastern New Mexico 74-63; Tim Kuyper's 15 points helped Washington beat St. Mary's 69-51; and Clyde Eads scored 20 to pace Tulane over Georgia State 77-52.

Time Runs Out On Starr At Green Bay

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Nine years of patience with the often lackluster performance of the Green Bay Packers ended abruptly with the firing of coach Bart Starr.

As a record-breaking quarterback in the 1960s, he led the Green Bay Packers to National Football League championships under coach Vince Lombardi. But after taking over in 1974 as coach, he was able to get the club into the playoffs only one season.

"I haven't enjoyed enough victories here, so thus I am being relieved of my duties," Starr, 49, said Monday. "I have no regrets ... I grew up here and became a man as a player."

Club president Robert J. Parins announced Starr's dismissal even before the 45-member board of directors had convened its annual postseason meeting to discuss Starr's contractual future.

He said Starr's immediate coaching staff also was dismissed.

Had the Packers defeated the Chicago Bears Sunday and qualified for the National Football Conference playoffs, "we wouldn't have been here today," Parins told a press conference when asked about the significance of the 23-21 season-ending loss.

Parins said he probably "will make the final decision" on hiring a Starr successor, and that the club had no immediate prospects.

Richie Petitbon, assistant head coach of the Washington Redskins, was mentioned as a candidate by one source.

The firing decision "was difficult, not only because of what it means to Bart — because Bart is almost synonymous with the Green Bay Packers, but also because of what it means to the coaching staff," Parins said in a statement.

The disenchantment had led to occasional booing by usually loyal fans in Green Bay's Lambeau Field. The Packers are virtually a state institution, and their affairs are felt all the way to the state Capitol.

"I feel badly for Starr," Gov. Anthony S. Earl said. "It is regrettable he couldn't have done better. I think it is about time for a change, although I say that with some sad feelings."

In a Milwaukee shopping center within hours of Parins' announcement, a newspaper's random survey of 21 passersby showed 76 percent approved of the firing.

The Packers were 8-8 this season. They finished 8-8 in 1981, their best won-lost record since 1978. In 1982, at 5-3-1, they made the playoffs for the first time in a decade, and optimism was high for 1983.

Then early-season injuries required Starr to round-up substitutes in a hurry, especially for the defense. The Packers labored through the season with some of the worst defensive statistics in the NFL, kept alive only by the persistence of quarterback Lynn Dickey.

Starr's firing saddened some of the Packers.

Even linebacker Mike Douglass, having threatened

Sunday to file a grievance against Starr for having suspended him from a game two weeks ago because of critical remarks to a newspaper, was sympathetic Monday.

"It is like a family," Douglass said. "We have had some things that have happened, but we have had some good things that have happened too. I respect him totally as a man."

"I cannot pass judgment," defensive end Ezra Johnson said. "He was a helluva coach. He was a man of his word, a man I have a great deal of respect for."

Starr still had a year on his contract. His assistant coaches whose contracts also were terminated are offensive coordinator Bob Schnelker, defensive coordinator John Meyer, John Brunner, Lew Carpenter, Ross Fichtner, Monte Kiffin, Ernie McMillan, Bill Meyers, Dick Rehbein and Richard Ulrich.

Schnelker said he is unsure "what they are looking for" in the way of a new coach, but that he is considering applying for the job.

The Board of Directors met Monday evening and ratified Parins' actions.

Much has been made of the fact that Starr did not call a timeout late in the fourth quarter Sunday. It could have interrupted the momentum of a drive by the Bears who, deftly using the clock to preserve their cadence, achieved a game-winning field goal with only 10 seconds to spare.

"I don't know," Starr said when asked if that might have been the final straw in Parins' opinion. "I am uncertain as to how much of a factor that was."

Starr had only two winning seasons, 1962 and 1978 (8-7-1). He lost out on the 1978 playoffs, however, by losing the final two games to Los Angeles and the Bears.

This season's controversies included his firings of defensive back Maurice Harvey and lineman Casey Merrill, who he said were not playing up to standard.

Then tackle Greg Koch quit training camp, fullback Eddie Lee Ivey signed up for drug rehabilitation, and Douglass was suspended for complaining to a newspaper about being criticized in front of fellow players.

"The over-all performance of the team was a strong factor" in the firing, Parins said. "But those other things were disturbing influences. They were to me. So when you put the whole bundle together, it made for my final decision."

Starr was picked by Green Bay as a 17th-round draft choice in 1956.

Studley Quits Oiler Position

HOUSTON (AP) — Chuck Studley, the most recent former Houston Oiler coach, planned a job interview with Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula with no apologies prepared.

Studley resigned his Oiler position Monday when it became obvious that he would not receive serious consideration as the permanent replacement for Ed Biles, who resigned Oct. 10.

It didn't take long for Studley to line up a job interview with Shula, who is seeking a new defensive coordinator.

The Oilers finished the season with a 2-14 record but Studley leaves the job with his head high and convinced he did the best he could under dire circumstances.

"They'll know I'm in Miami tomorrow," Studley said Monday after announcing his resignation. "I won't be wearing a Halloween mask. I don't feel badly. I'm disappointed but not depressed and I'm comfortable with my knowledge of football."

Studley took charge of a team that was on its way to a 17-game losing streak. He had to face a confrontation with the team's star running back, Earl Campbell, who asked to be traded.

He had to contend with the criticism of outspoken Oiler linebacker Gregg Bingham.

The Oilers finished 2-8 under Studley and despite the adversity, said he'd do it all over again.

"Sure, it's been very interesting and rewarding," Studley said. "I think I am a better coach because of it. If nothing else, I'll be more aware of what it's like to be a head coach. It can be a lonely job."

"I was used to having camaraderie with the assistant coaches. Now they avoid me like a leper. I'd like to get it back the way it was."

Studley said he drove home from the airport Sunday following a 20-10 loss to Baltimore with Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog and Studley met Sunday night following the loss to the Colts, Studley said.

"He told me at that time it was not his intention to rehire me as coach," Studley said. "There was talk about me being a candidate for the job but I didn't want to sit around and see how this thing comes out. There might be other positions available."

Studley said he merely wanted to know as soon as possible about his status.

"I thought if there was any reluctance at all to appoint me as head coach, then I should step down," Studley said. "They know me as well as they are going to know me."

Herzog said Studley, along with assistant coaches Kay Dalton, Andy Bourgeois, Vic Rapp, Elijah Pitts, Ralph Staub and Dick Selcer, were free to seek jobs with other clubs.

Offensive line coach Bill Walsh signed a long term contract last season and will remain with the club, Herzog said, adding that he hoped the new coach would consider defensive backs coach Ken Houston for a job.

Counselors Attend Workshop

Ayden-Grifton High School counselors recently attended the Eastern Regional Workshop for Guidance Counselors held at East Carolina University.

The workshop focused on preparing students for post-secondary training and disseminating information on approaches to guidance counseling services in the area. Guidance Counselor Sue Noble discussed the high school's "team approach" to counseling students.

Break-In Investigated

Police today were investigating a break-in at P5 Wilson Acres that was reported at 9:16 p.m. Monday. Officer H.D. Hines said a television and video tape recorder owned by Eric Lee Sox was reported taken.

Kimberly Averette, a sophomore at J.H. Rose High School, served as a page in Gov. Jim Hunt's offices in Raleigh Dec. 12-16. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip A. Averette of 1027 W. Wright Road.

City Posts Holiday Schedule

City Hall and all other municipal offices will be closed Friday and Monday in observance of the Christmas holidays.

Back-yard refuse pickup will be provided by the City Sanitation Division one day earlier than the regular schedule this week and will be running one day behind schedule the week after Christmas. Refuse container service will be provided on a regular schedule, except container trucks will not run the Monday after Christmas. During the holidays, emergency calls for Public Works services may be made to 752-3473.

GREAT buses will continue to operate on a regular schedule through Christmas Eve, but will not run Sunday or Monday. Regular bus service will resume Dec. 27.

City gymnasiums will be closed Dec. 24-25 and will have special operating hours throughout the holiday season. River Birch Tennis Center will be closed only on Christmas Eve and Christmas day. River Park North will be closed Dec. 24-26. To get additional information on Christmas hours of operation for any city recreation facility, call 752-4137.

Shepard Memorial Library and its branches will be closed Dec. 23-26. The library will resume regular operating hours Tuesday, Dec. 27.

Laundry Is Entered

A break-in at the Speed Queen Laundry at the intersection of Fifth and Cadillac streets is under investigation by Greenville police.

Officer J.R. Teel said the break-in was reported at 4:35 a.m. Monday. Teel said entrance to the building was gained by breaking out a window. He said $65 in change was reported taken from a video game and vending machines.

nation in the number of vote tabulating machines in use, he said customers include Cook County, Ill., and the state of Louisiana.

O'Day was asked to submit a proposal for consideration by the elections board and commissioners.

County Manager Reginald Gray told the board that a study of the jail, funded by a federal grant, has been completed by the National Sheriff's Association, but that local officials have not yet received the report.

Gray noted that the NSA has set the cost of a comprehensive study of the Sheriff's Department at no more than $5,000.

Board members indicated that as soon as they review the jail study, they will consider undertaking a study of the sheriff's department.

Gray also reported that a letter received from George Harper of Kinston, a member of the Board of Transportation, said that while interchanges along the new U.S. 264 between Greenville and Wilson will not be built, right of way for future construction of clover-leaf interchanges is being acquired. The road will be constructed with at-grade intersections initially.

Harper's letter also said road separations — overpasses where rural roads cross the new four-lane, but where no access to U.S. 264 is planned — will be included in construction contracts.

A letter from Gov. Jim Hunt, received Monday, advised the board that Pitt farmers will be eligible for Farmers' Home Administration disaster loan assistance.

Hunt's letter said Pitt has been declared eligible for loan assistance "because of damage to 1983 crops caused by drought and high temperatures."

"Farmers who suffered damages should apply for assistance at the county Farmers' Home Administration office as soon as possible to avoid any time restrictions on filing applications," the governor said.

In other business, commissioners approved a request by the town of Fountain to have the county inspections department conduct building, plumbing, electric and insulation inspections for the town.

The board reappointed Joe Butterworth and Daniel Harris to three year terms on the Pitt County Board of Health; reappointed Buck Sitterson, Ed Bright, Stuart Savage and Gibb Chauncey to the Mid-East Region Q Emergency Medical Services Committee and named Dick Carney, chairman of the Pitt County Association of Rescue Squads, as a new member to the EMS group; appointed the Rev. Will Wallace, Peter Anderson, Claude West, Gloria Salley and Mayo Allen to the Nursing Home Advisory Committee; reappointed James Black to the Industrial Development Commission, and named Marjorie Dunn, Rosalie Trotman and Dr. Charla Davis to three year terms on the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women.

Man Found In Restaurant

Lyndell Jerome Eaton, 28, of 110A Emma Place was arrested by Greenville police early today on charges of larceny and concealment in a building after he was found in Darryl's Restaurant at 800 E. 10th St.

Officer J.M. Simonowich said officers responded to Darryl's when an alarm sounded about 2:47 a.m. and found Eaton, an employee of the firm, inside. Simonowich said $36.50 in quarters had been removed from two video machines which had been forced open.

Eaton, who allegedly hid in a restroom until other employees had left the building, was placed under a $7,500 bond pending court action in the case.

plan, and to maximize resources.

In terms of energy and the living environment, the plan sets as its goal for citizens to "incorporate three or more energy efficient management practices and materials not previously used, for them to make better utilization of space and resources and to use and care for appliances to the fullest potential."

In foods and health, the program pledges better prenatal care, more consumer awareness about nutrition, improvement of food preservation skills and of food budgeting for nutrition. The plan also pledges to increase the awareness of low-income families on nutrition through the use of para-professionals and volunteers.

Lay leaders are a vital part of the extension's programs, the plan noted, and must be recruited and trained effectively. Over the next four years workshops and training programs will be held for officers and leaders, including workshops on teaching techniques and principles.

In conclusion, the plan states that the extension staff sees the microcomputer as a new teaching method, particularly in family resource management and budgeting, diet analysis, housing, enterprise budgeting, ration formulation, 4-H annual reports and 4-H computer science projects.

Man Who Used Forged NRC Permit Is Held On $250,000 Bail

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who tried to use a forged Nuclear Regulatory Commission document to get a job has landed instead in jail, facing up to five years in prison.

Cornelius Charles Arnold, 49, of Virginia Beach, Va., was being held on $250,000 bail by federal authorities in New York today awaiting sentencing. He pleaded guilty Dec. 2 to charges of using a forged NRC permit.

A sentencing date has not been set.

A federal indictment handed up in Washington, D.C., in January charged that in September 1980 Arnold used his phony permit to seek a job as a start-up engineer with the Potomac Electric Power Co.

The company was trying to hire someone to test modifications that had been made at the utility's coal-fired Chalk Point generator in Maryland. The company has no nuclear plants.

The job had been advertised throughout Virginia's Tidewater area, which is home to many nuclear-trained Navy engineers whose skills could be adapted to a coal plant, according to Allan Knutsen, the company's manager of financial analysis.

Arnold saw one of those ads and made an appointment, Knutsen said. But his forged license and his resume did not get him far.

"I asked him to leave within about a half hour," Knutsen said. But the time was the utility's chief start-up engineer, recalled. "Normally I'd have spent a whole day with a qualified applicant, showing him the plant."

In June 1981 Arnold was convicted in Virginia of making false claims on a federal income tax return. He was paroled in the fall of 1982 from his 3-year term, and soon thereafter fled to Saudi Arabia, the Netherlands, Britain and Canada. But he returned to this country and was arrested by U.S. marshals in New York on Oct. 28.

It also was unclear whether there have been any instances of job applicants using forged credentials to win access to a nuclear power plant's control room.

"I don't know of any, and I don't really know how you would check it out," NRC spokesman Frank Ingram said Monday.

Gerber Recalls Baby Cereals

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) — The Gerber Products Co. says it is recalling an unknown amount of baby cereal after a couple found aluminum slivers in two jars purchased at different stores.

Recalled was lot No. 468C6 of Gerber Mixed Cereal with applesauce and bananas.

The jars are 4 1/4 ounces and carry an expiration date of Oct. 21, 1985. The lot number can be found on the jar.

The slivers were caused by a malfunctioning capping machine at a factory in Oakland, Gerber spokesman John Whitlock said Monday. He said the machine was fixed and there were no reports of injuries.

Gerber did not know how many jars carried that lot number, Whitlock said.

Jim and Wendy Vankeirsbulck of Garden Grove said they received a letter from Gerber thanking them for bringing the situation to light two weeks ago.

Vankeirsbulck said they found a metal shard in their 8-month-old son's cereal on Thanksgiving morning.

If swallowed or chewed, the sharp bits could cause minor cuts in the mouth or esophagus of a baby, Irvine Medical Center pediatrician Dr. Phyllis Agran said.

However, Stephen Lash, spokesman for a poison control center in Orange County, said, "Kids swallow everything from safety pins to coins, and in most instances the object just slowly passes through the system."

Consumers can return the baby food to the place of purchase for exchange or refund, Whitlock said.

Investigate 3 Accidents

An estimated $2,400 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 9:23 a.m. collision on Arlington Boulevard, 1,500 feet west of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, involving cars driven by Steven Chad Asby of Ayden and Rosa Holden Blount of Greenville.

Damage from the mishap was set at $300 to the Asby car and $1,000 to the Blount auto. Investigators charged Asby with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Vehicles driven by Donald Coleman Graham of Wilson and Donald Winstead Roebuck of Route 1, Stokes, collided about 7:32 p.m. on Arlington Boulevard, 100 feet east of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, causing $600 damage to the Roebuck car and no damage to the Graham truck.

A 2:28 p.m. collision at the intersection of Carolina East Mall and Mall Drive involved cars driven by Ashlie Lamont Tripp of 104 Hastings Court and Karen Silverman Warren of Route 2, Winterville.

Damage was set at $200 to the Tripp car and $300 to the Warren vehicle.

Predicting 18 Holiday Deaths

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Traffic accidents will kill 18 North Carolinians over the upcoming Christmas and New Year's holidays, the North Carolina State Motor Club has predicted.

Dr. John G. Frazier III, president of the club, said 12 people died over Christmas holidays last year and nine were killed over the New Year's holiday. This year's counting periods run from 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 23 to midnight Monday, Dec. 26 and from 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 30 to midnight Monday, Jan. 2.

Frazier suggested holiday partygoers should arrange that drinking guests spend the night or take a taxi home, while partygoers should limit themselves to one drink per hour if they plan to drive home. He also warned motorists to be wary of pedestrians who may have too much to drink.

GREENVILLE UTILITIES COMMISSION CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

• Greenville Utilities Office will be closed on Friday & Monday, December 23rd & 26th, and will reopen Tuesday, December 27th at 8:00 A.M.

• Utility bills may be paid at GUC's Night Depository near the Drive-In Window at any hour.

• Emergency service is available 24 hours a day every day during the year, by calling 752-7166 or 752-5627.

Veteran Of Space Flight To Stage A Comet Fly-By

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 5-year-old American spacecraft is about to embark on a new mission, an unprecedented rendezvous with a comet. But first, it must survive a very close encounter with the moon, space scientists say.

The International Sun-Earth Explorer 3, a 1,000-pound observatory designed for another job, is rushing toward a moon-grazing flyby on Thursday that should fling it out between the Earth and the sun for the first direct measurement of a comet.

ISEE-3 is to swing within 75 miles of the lunar surface for the maneuver, the closest such flyby to a planetary body ever attempted.

Dr. Robert Farquhar of the Goddard Space Flight Center said Monday that ISEE-3 will get a boost from the moon's gravitational field during the close pass. Like a rock propelled from a sling, the moon's gravity will snap the spacecraft around to a new trajectory and increase its speed by 2,200 mph.

The maneuver, which will boost ISEE-3's speed to 5,100 mph, should allow the spacecraft to pass through the tail of comet Giacobini-Zinner on Sept. 11, 1985.

Farquhar said the pass around the moon is risky not only because of the spacecraft's close proximity to the lunar surface, but also because it has to be turned off during the maneuver.

The craft, which draws its power from the sun's rays, will be in the moon's shadow for more than half an hour, depriving it of electricity to power its instruments and of heat to keep it from freezing. Scientists are worried that the cold could damage fuel lines and instruments aboard ISEE-3.

"It is possible for a spacecraft to be turned off like this and not come on again," Farquhar told a briefing at Goddard, "but it isn't very likely. We are confident that we can get it powered up again."

Giacobini-Zinner is a small periodic comet discovered in 1900. It orbits the sun once every 6½ years and is well-known to astronomers if not the general public.

During 1985-86, many scientists worldwide will focus on comets. But most of the attention will be on the fabled Halley's comet, returning for the first time since 1910.

Five spacecraft will intercept Halley's comet, but none will be American. The Russians are sending two spacecraft, the Japanese another two and the European Space Agency is dispatching one. Because of planning and budgetary problems, the U.S. could not get off a mission in time.

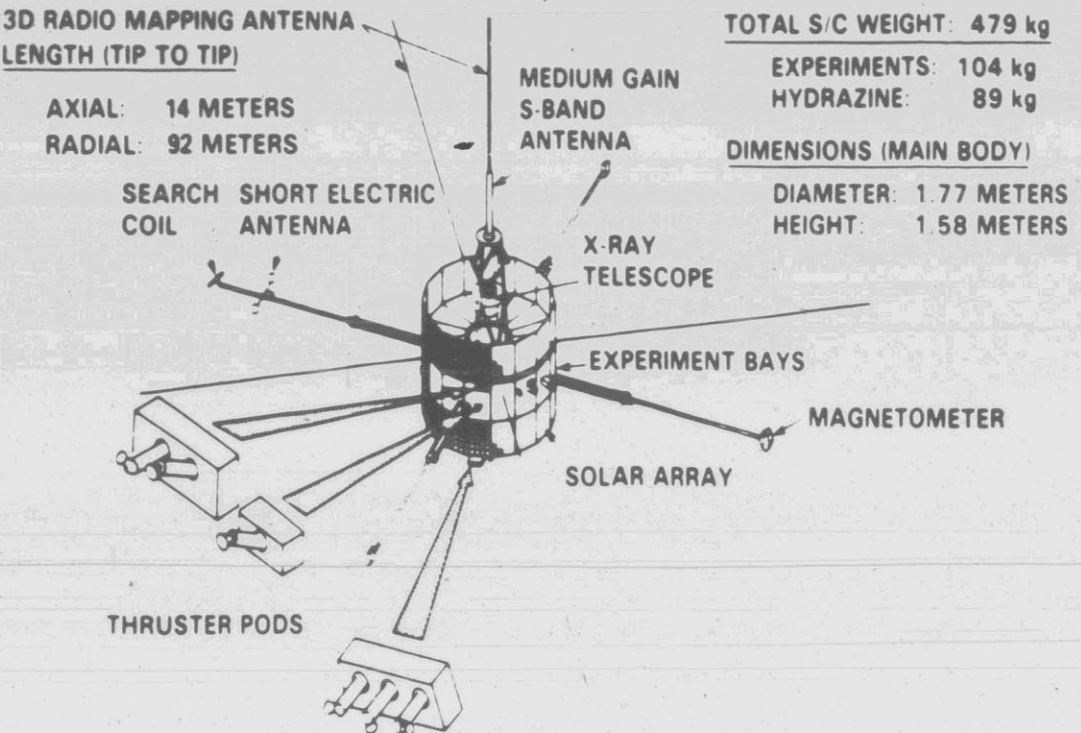

Farquhar first proposed using ISEE-3 to examine Halley's, but researchers found that the comet would be too far away. Farquhar found another comet, Giacobini-Zinner, that would be only half the distance of Halley's and the decision was made to go for that one instead.

ISEE-3, launched in 1978 to study the environment between the Earth and the sun, doesn't have a camera to send back pictures. But other instruments can measure particles in the comet's tail and gather other data.

Farquhar estimates that it will cost between $3 million and $5 million to divert ISEE-3 for the comet mission.

"This compares with some $200 million for new, dedicated spacecraft to do the same work," he said.

ON A MISSION — This graphic by NASA shows the International Sun-Earth Explorer 3. The 1,000-pound observatory is rushing toward a moon flyby Thursday which should fling the craft out between the Earth and the sun for the first direct measurement of a comet, officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. Jody Fined For Gram Cocaine

BOSTON (AP) — Actress Jodie Foster was fined after authorities found one gram of cocaine in her possession following an airline flight from Paris to Boston, according to a U.S. Customs official.

"She was not arrested. It was handled administratively, like it would be for anyone," Chris Nelson, special agent in charge of the customs office in Boston, said Monday.

He said he had "no idea" what the fine was. "Everybody down the line declined (prosecution) because it was such an insignificant amount," Nelson said.

Nelson said the gram of cocaine, valued at about $100, was found during a "routine customs inspection" Monday and confiscated.

The federal Drug Enforcement Administration and the Suffolk County District Attorney's Office were notified but declined to press charges, Nelson said.

"The only information I have from the office is that we are investigating and there is no further comment," said Rodman, executive assistant to District Attorney Newman Flanagan.

Officer Richard McDonald at Logan International Airport said Ms. Foster had already left the Customs office by the time state police arrived about 5:30 p.m. Monday.

"We got a call from the Suffolk County DA's office that they were going to send a couple of officers, but ours got there before theirs and she had already gone," he said.

Ms. Foster, known for her role in the movie "Taxi Driver," has taken a leave of absence from Yale University and is not due back until February, according to school spokesman Stephen Kezerian. She will be a senior when she returns.

John Hinckley Jr., who reportedly became obsessed with Ms. Foster after seeing "Taxi Driver," has said it was to win her love that he shot President Reagan in March 1981. He was confined to a mental hospital after being acquitted by reason of insanity in the shooting.

'Dynasty' Scene Includes Fords

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fans of ABC's "Dynasty" know that Carrington family members are the darlings of Denver society, so it should come as no surprise to see them rubbing elbows at a fancy ball with well known people, including Gerald and Betty Ford.

Former president Ford and his wife have a brief conversation with Blake Carrington, played by John Forsythe, and his previous wife, Krystal, played by Linda Evans, in Wednesday night's episode.

The occasion is Denver's ultra-chic charity Carousel Ball. The TV stars — in character — and real-life celebrities chit-chatted in front of the "Dynasty" cameras at the lavish affair last October.

Viewers also will see the globe-trotting former secretary of state Henry Kissinger as he gets a chuckle out of a conversation with "Dynasty" villainess Alexis Carrington, played by Joan Collins.

The scenes, shot at the real-life ball, are mixed into the usual soundstage production to heighten the series' authenticity.

'Endearment' Is Critics' Choice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Terms of Endearment" clearly endeared itself to the Los Angeles Film Critics Association, which voted it the top movie of 1983 in five out of eight major categories.

Aside from best picture, the Paramount release earned best actress honors for Shirley MacLaine, best supporting actor for Jack Nicholson, and a pair of citations to James L. Brooks for best director and best script.

Robert Duvall was named best actor for "Tender Mercies" and Linda Hunt was best supporting actress for her work in "The Year of Santa Suits Hard To Find In N.C.

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer
About the only thing more scarce than Cabbage Patch dolls in North Carolina is Santa Claus suits and Rudolf costumes, based on comments from costume shop operators across the state.

Costumers say they sold or rented out most of their Santa suits by Dec. 15. They say efforts to get more of the suits from their suppliers failed because the companies ran out of material to make them.

"The demand for Santa Claus costumes has been unbelievable this year," said Philip Morris, owner of Living Dangerously. "Sven Nykvist's work in "Fanny and Alexander" was voted best cinematography. Best score went to Philip Glass and "Koyaanisquatsi". Michael Snow's "So Is This" was best independent experimental film.

The association, which voted on Saturday at the Westwood Marquis, is traditionally the first of the nation's film critics' groups to announce its choices at the end of every year.

Sammy Davis Ready To Work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., battling back from a bout with cracked ribs, is described as fine now and ready to go back to work.

Medical Center Friday after a two-week stay, says his publicist Arnold Lipsman.

Davis cracked three ribs when he fell down while "putting on his pants," Lipsman said Monday.

The World Chess Championships are underway in London. Chess is widely assumed to be both European and medieval in origin. It is neither. Although various sources claim the game began in Egypt, China, Persia and even Wales, it most likely began in sixth-century India. The Indians called it "chaturanga". Arab invaders brought the game to Europe, where it began its transition to the present form. Benjamin Franklin helped make chess popular in the United States.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the first American to win the official World Chess Championship?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Chocolate comes from the "cacao" tree.

At its annual meeting in Stockholm, the International Bridge Press Association announced that its Charles Goren Award for "Bridge Personality of the Year" had been bestowed on Oswald Jacoby. Earlier this year, Jacoby announced that, after more than 50 years of tournament bridge (he turned 82 this year), he was retiring from the competitive game.

As player, writer and theorist, Jacoby contributed greatly to the game. And he holds one record that will never be equaled — he won his first auction bridge crown after he was already a national champion at contract. There is almost no honor in the game that he has not won. This hand was reported more than 30 years ago.

Once his partner showed game-going values, Jacoby wasted no time in getting to where he wanted to play the hand. West led the king of hearts and, as soon as dummy came down, Jacoby claimed the hand on a double squeeze — and his opponents conceded!

Let's see how the play would have proceeded as the cards lie. Assume West shifts to a diamond at trick two. Declarer wins, draws three rounds of trumps, cashes the king of diamonds, and ruffs a diamond. Declarer simply runs all his trumps. West must keep a heart to guard against dummy's queen, and East must keep a diamond to protect that suit. Thus, neither defender can keep more than two clubs, so the ace and king will drop the queen and declarer's jack becomes the fulfilling trick.

What if West has the diamond guard? Then he will have to keep a guard in each red suit, and he will be unable to hold more than one club. In the end position, declarer will be able to lead a club to the ace and take a proven finesse against the queen if it has not already appeared.

There have been other winners of the Goren Award who have done much for the game. But none deserves it more than Ozzie!
