SPEAKS ON PROBLEMS IN RURAL EDUCATION — Kathryn Lewis of East Carolina University's Rural Education Institute told members of the North Carolina Commission on Education for Economic Growth that incentives must be created to attract and keep good teachers in rural areas. The commission, chaired by Gov. Jim Hunt, held the third of its statewide public hearings in Greenville Thursday. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Teachers Aver Incentives Prime Need Of Education

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer
Public school teachers say they need more incentives, including higher salaries and improved working conditions, as one quick way of improving North Carolina's educational system.

Pleas for more money topped the list of demands and suggestions as 35 teachers and politicians presented their views

Thursday night to Gov. Jim Hunt and the North Carolina Commission on Education for Economic Growth. The commission held a public forum at Wahl-Coates Elementary School to receive input from eastern North Carolina in its statewide quest for recommendations on how to improve public schools.

Those who signed up to speak in the forum included public and private school teachers, North Carolina Association of Educators (NCAE) leaders, administrators and politicians.

The largest round of applause during the forum was given to Raleigh science teacher Michael Tally when he stated that he was making the same amount of money after finishing four years of graduate school at N.C. State University that a teacher with no post-graduate training receives. Tally suggested incentive pay for teachers and higher teacher pay scales.

His call for incentives was backed up by Kathryn Lewis of Greenville, representing the Rural Education Institute at East Carolina University.

"We can't let our heads rest easy on the pillow until all students in the state have equal opportunities in learning," Mrs. Lewis said. "That means we need the best teaching staff."

She said incentives were needed to help attract and retain teachers in rural areas.

Dr. Eddie West, superintendent of the Pitt County school system, expressed concern for higher standards for public school administrators. He suggested "a professional examination to demonstrate the competence" of superintendents and principals of the public schools. Dr. West said the test would provide the administrators with a "measure of accountability to the citizens."

Dr. West also said that paperwork for the teachers and administrators could be reduced through the use of computer lines linking the schools with the county offices and the State Department of Public Instruction.

David Mulder, principal at the privately operated Terra Ceia School in Beaufort County, asked the commission to include non-public schools in their planning efforts. Hunt replied, "There are many fine non-public schools in North Carolina, educating 50,000 students. If those students were in public schools, they would cost another $140 million per year. I am proud of their (the

Teachers' Score Minimum Voted

By JERRY RAYNOR

The State Board of Education, meeting in Greenville, approved a number of items Thursday, including accreditation of school systems, funds for school projects and establishment of a minimum NTE score for teacher certification.

Based on 1983 reports on the National Teacher Examinations, and recommendations of the State Department of Public Instruction, the board approved a minimum score of 644 as the projected minimum prepared graduate score on the Professional Knowledge examination for certification of teachers.

On the assumption that all procedural requirements will have been met, the final rule-making decision will be made at the next meeting of the board.

Next Major Funding For Schools: Hunt

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

The next major funding commitment for education North Carolina must go to the public school system, Gov. Jim Hunt told a capacity crowd at a public hearing on education Thursday in Greenville.

In the past, said Hunt, the state has made what he called "huge commitments in terms of dollars" to the state's university and community college systems. The next step, he said, must be funding for public schools to "ensure that we (North Carolina) are competitive with other states in education and attracting economic growth." Education is the key to economic growth, said Hunt.

A crowd that brimmed out of Wahl-Coates School Auditorium and numbered over 450 persons attended the eastern regional hearing for the North Carolina Commission on Education for Economic Growth, chaired by Hunt.

In addition to the governor, eight invited speakers from the business, legislative and professional communities told commission members and the public that too many teachers are mediocre, teacher salaries aren't high enough, methods of funding education aren't balanced and that coverage of education by the media is negative.

The solutions proposed ranged from raising the base pay of teachers to more careful screening of potential teachers to a return to the funding methods of the 1930s. "The high school diploma has lost its credibility," said Paul Schmitt of Weyerhaeuser

Co. in Plymouth. "We (Weyerhaeuser) are finding graduates that are lacking basic skills such as communication skills." Schmitt concluded that the state must re-examine its social promotion policy.

Isabel Fletcher, formerly chairman of the board of directors of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. and member of the Lenoir County Board of Commissioners, told the commission that learning time in the classroom must be expanded and uninterrupted and that mediocre teachers cannot be tolerated in the system.

Ms. Fletcher also suggested that the 141 school systems in the state be merged into 100 — one for each county — for funding purposes, a suggestion that started a resounding murmur in the crowd.

State Rep. C.R. Edwards of Fayetteville said the state's education system "needs more of the good things" it presently has. In addition, he said, the state must find funds to back important programs and the teacher-training institutions must promote "greater contact between those who teach the teachers and the teachers."

Bill Owens, a member of the Pasquotank County Board of Commissioners, said education funding is "broken up too much."

"Perhaps we should return to the funding methods of the 1930s," he said, "where the counties are responsible for maintaining the schools and capital expenditures and the state is responsible for the needs of the students."

The present method of funding, said Owens, is "not fair to the poor counties who cannot afford to fund things for students more wealthy counties can."

Education in North Carolina must produce civic excellence, Janice Faulkner of the North Carolina Humanities Committee, told the commission. Civic excellence, she said, will sponsor economic growth.

Ms. Faulkner had two specific recommendations for producing civic excellence. First, she said the relationship between the academic community and teaching and public schools must be re-established. Second, Ms. Faulkner advocated

Well Educated People Crucial Says Governor

By STUART SAVAGE

Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday that excellent schools and well educated people are crucial to economic development in North Carolina.

Hunt, speaking at a press conference at the home of East Carolina University Chancellor John Howell, said there is "no area in the state that needs good jobs and economic growth" more than eastern North Carolina.

"The way to have good jobs," Hunt suggested, is to have "well educated people. It's really crucial to have excellent schools."

Hunt, who chaired a public hearing Thursday night by the Governor's Commission on Education for Economic Growth, was among some 50 dinner guests at the chancellor's residence. Other guests included Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, state Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips, members of the State Board of Education and members of the Commission on Education for Economic Growth.

"Industry comes into an area because they want to make money," Hunt said, and one of the considerations in attracting industry is the

Record Electric Load In Cold

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

December and January rarely cause anyone in Pitt County to drag out woolen blankets and long underwear, but this season almost everyone was surprised with below-freezing temperatures that stressed pipes, blackened prize azaleas and turned the ground to a rock-hard consistency.

And while you were sitting in your toasty house, looking out of the window admiring the way the cold made the air snap and everything seem bright, your heat pump was working double time — in fact, it might not have cut off at all Christmas Eve.

According to Malcolm Green, Greenville Utilities' Electric Department supervisor, holiday temperatures dipping as low as 4 degrees Fahrenheit brought the highest winter usage peak he's ever seen.

"Christmas day we were putting out 132 megawatts.

Having a load like that on a holiday and on a weekend as well is unheard of — those are usually our lowest usage times," he said.

"And just think, we reached that peak without 13,000 college students, without the industries which constitute 25 to 30 percent of our load, and without the majority of our commercial customers. It really shocked me," he said.

Christmas Eve and New Year's Day also brought record highs in electric power use as did the intervening days when most of the Southeast experienced unseasonably cold temperatures in the teens.

Because of the cold and increased electrical usage, Greene said GUC customers can expect their bills to be higher than usual for the month of December. "Exactly what percent of an increase was created I can't say, but when usage goes up, the consumer pays for that increase," Green said.

Soloist Becky Carraway and pianist John Barker III, both of Farmville, presented the wedding music. Vocal selections were "Calm as the Night" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Joyner Erwin and Mr. and Mrs. Garland Person Windham, all of Farmville.

Jilayne Erwin Johnston of Greenville, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Elizabeth Andrea Jones of Greenville was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Carolyn Tyson Erwin, sister-in-law of the bride, Angela Griffin and Sheri Von Schritlz, all of Farmville; and Margaret Yelverton of Raleigh. The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of white organza featuring a Queen Anne neckline and long fitted lace sleeves. The fitted bodice was enhanced with chintilly and Venise lace appliques and iridescent sequins to accentuate the modified natural waistline.

Layers of chintilly lace fell into a ruffled chapel train. She wore a fingertip pencil-edged veil trimmed in appliques of silk Venise lace attached to a Camelot headpiece overlaid in silk Venise lace accented with seed pearls and chintilly lace appliques. She carried a cascade bouquet of silk burgundy and white roses and lily of the valley interspersed with baby's breath and greenery and tied with white satin and lace streamers.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore formal gowns of burgundy whipped satin fashioned with spaghetti straps and fitted bodice. The modified natural waistline was enhanced by a rolled fabric belt and a full gathered skirt. A matching bolero jacket complemented the dress with its high ruffled neckline and long fitted sleeves finished in ruffles.

Each attendant carried a bouquet of silk burgundy and white roses, miniature carnations, lily of the valley and baby's breath. The bouquet was surrounded in lace and was tied with white satin and lace streamers.

The flower girl wore a formal length gown of burgundy organza dotted in white. The gown was styled with a portrait neckline encircled with white ruffles at the wrist.

Wheelchair Users Appreciate Common Sense And Courtesy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: "Four-Wheeler" asked why someone hasn't written a booklet on wheelchair etiquette. Well, someone has. The Schoitz Medical Center in Waterloo, Iowa, has prepared a pamphlet titled, "What do I do when I meet a person in a wheelchair?" It offers suggestions for non-wheelchair users who encounter wheelchair users.

Below are the 12 guidelines from that booklet:

1. Always ask the wheelchair user if he or she would like assistance before you help. Your help may not be needed or wanted.
2. Don't hang or lean on a person's wheelchair because it is part of the wheelchair user's personal body space.
3. Speak directly to the person in the wheelchair, not to someone nearby as if the wheelchair user did not exist.
4. If conversation lasts more than a few minutes, consider sitting down or kneeling to get yourself on the same level as the wheelchair user.
5. Don't demean or patronize the wheelchair user by patting him or her on the head.
6. Give clear directions, including distance, weather conditions and physical obstacles that may hinder the wheelchair user's travel.
7. Don't discourage children from asking questions about the wheelchair. Open communication helps overcome fearful or misleading attitudes.
8. When a wheelchair user "transfers" out of the wheelchair to a chair, toilet, car or bed, do not move the wheelchair out of reaching distance.
9. It is OK to use expressions like "running along" when speaking to the wheelchair user. It is likely the wheelchair user expresses things the same way.
10. Be aware of a wheelchair user's capabilities. Some users can walk with aid and use wheelchairs because they can conserve energy and move about quickly.
11. Don't classify persons who use wheelchairs as sick. Wheelchairs are used for a variety of non-contagious disabilities.
12. Don't assume that using a wheelchair is in itself a tragedy. It is a means of freedom that allows the user to move about independently.

The center will be happy to send the pamphlet free to anyone who requests it with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Write the Public Relations Office, Schoitz Medical Center, Kimball and Ridgeway Avenues, Waterloo, Iowa 50702.

Chinese Student Learns English And Succeeds In Triple Major

By MELINDA STOVALL GREENSBORO — Tran M. Ly remembers her freshman year in college as one filled with frustration, isolation and despair.

That first year, she recalls tearing up at least three Chinese-English dictionaries.

For this young Chinese woman, her frustration and her pain were caused by an age-long barrier: language.

Arriving in the United States on New Year's Day nearly six years ago, Ms. Ly knew she wanted a further her education — even though she didn't know a word of English.

With drive and desire matched by few, Ms. Ly took on her adversary, the English language. At the same time, she has managed a triple major at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and seems likely to maintain her solid B average when she graduates this May.

Even though she completed in December the degree requirements in accounting, business administration and economics, Ms. Ly is remaining at UNC-G another semester to take a needed elective, as well as two computer courses.

The planned computer courses should complement her minor concentration in computer science at the University. Besides, if that isn't enough to do, Ms. Ly also will be reviewing for the certified public accountant's exam coming up in May.

But succeeding in a foreign country hasn't been easy for the good-natured and friendly Ms. Ly. It has been a constant battle for her to ward off self-doubts and fears, while trying to conquer the English language.

"The day before I came to the United States, I was really scared," Ms. Ly recalled recently. "We have such different cultures and different languages ... Before I came here, people told me I couldn't survive in this country. They told me that so much discrimination was going on. But I've found you can get more equality and freedom here than anywhere else in the world."

Lack of equality and limited freedom hold special meaning for Ms. Ly. Born in China, she and her family escaped the country when she was six years old, she said.

"I don't want to be controlled — that's why I escaped from my country, and that's why I work hard," Ms. Ly said, displaying her fervor for independence.

Since leaving China, Ms. Ly has lived in South

COMING TO THE U.S...in 1978, Greensboro, knew no English. (Photo Tran M. Ly of China, a senior at the University of North Carolina at Services) By Bob Cavin, Office of Information

Vietnam, Malaysia, Hong Kong and most recently Singapore. She has 15 brothers and sisters, some of whom she has never seen, and her parents died 12 years ago when she was in her middle teens.

But Ms. Ly still has made a way for herself. For seven years, prior to coming to the United States in January 1978, she worked for a bank branch of the Taiwanese government, which has branches in different parts of Asia.

While working at the bank, Ms. Ly also went to Chitri College in Singapore, double majoring in home economics education and literature. She was one of the top students in her class.

But not content to stand still at the bank, Ms. Ly began evaluating the tools necessary for advancement. "I'm a goal-oriented person," she said. "I actually make a certain plan."

Her career plans seemed to require more education in business, and she looked at the United States as a place to go. Bank officials, Ms. Ly said, had even mentioned UNC-G as a possibility before she left.

Sponsored by St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Winston-Salem, Ms. Ly gained entry into the United States. Even though she came to this country by herself, she received support from Robert Witherington, a retired Winston-Salem insurance executive and a member of St. Paul's Church and its refugee committee.

"He helped me with everything. The most important thing I need is motivation, spiritual support, and he has helped me a lot," Ms. Ly said.

Though he has helped her, Witherington stressed that Ms. Ly has done much on her own — from working to help raise money for school to learning English.

"She's actually done most of it on her own," he said. "She is about the most determined person I've ever seen. She has a very good record. She's just a good, all-around person."

For Ms. Ly, the biggest task ahead was learning to communicate. "When I came here, I knew no English. I couldn't even understand 'How are you,'" she said.

Ms. Ly, who is able to speak seven dialects of Chinese, the official Vietnamese language and some French and Japanese, wasn't quite prepared for the complexity of the English language.

"English is so hard," she said, displaying a surprising ease with the language.

Largely on her own, Ms. Ly learned enough English to pass the general education diploma test and the test for English as a second language before enrolling in UNC-G in the fall of 1979 as a special student.

After a semester as a special student, she officially became a freshman at the University. She has worked with the Special Services Program on the campus to learn to read and to write English. In addition, she remembers taking an entire semester to learn punctuation, which doesn't exist in the Chinese language.

"During my first year living in the International House on campus, I didn't communicate. That experience was so painful," Ms. Ly said.

But she kept pushing herself — learning 60 vocabulary words (in English) a day, forcing herself to memorize the language and always carrying a Chinese-English dictionary with her.

"She's extremely dedicated. She works harder than most anybody else," said Dr. Michael Cornick, a UNC-G accounting lecturer who has taught Ms. Ly. "She's told me that she reads a chapter, then rereads it and next, to a great extent, translates the chapter into Chinese to get the full meaning."

To master a section of course material, Ms. Ly said, often requires as much as four hours. Overall, she said she dedicated 10 to 12 hours a day to studying, and this doesn't include class time.

Her short-term goal is to pass the CPA exam in May, and then she probably will go back to Singapore for a job, Ms. Ly said. "I always tell myself that I don't know how long I will exist in my life, but before I die I want to do something for society," she said.

To help people, Ms. Ly envisions owning her own business one day, possibly in food processing or some industrial endeavor that can provide jobs and finished products in exchange for raw materials.

In the meantime, she plans to continue studying English until she feels more comfortable with the language. "Who knows, maybe one day I will come back to UNC-G as an English major," she said with a laugh.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

But this year a new accompaniment for plain sliced cold turkey, calling for fresh winter pears, came my way and I thought it interesting and nutritious enough to pass along.

It was probably inspired by the French styles of cooking called "nouvelle cuisine" and "nouvelle pinceur." It's a combination of vegetables cooked in broth to which sliced winter pears are added. You can leave the pears unpeeled, if you like. We prefer to peel them. Take your choice.

PEAR VEGETABLES

- 3 medium leeks
- 3 medium carrots
- 2 medium ribs celery, minus leaves
- 2 cup clear fat-free chicken broth
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 2 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoon dried crumbled marjoram
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

2 (medium or large) winter pears (peeled if desired), sliced

1/4 cup lemon juice

Finely chopped parsley

Cut heavy green tops from leeks down to the pale yellowish-green part; cut off roots; cut each remaining part of leeks in half lengthwise. Holding leaves apart, thoroughly wash in cold water to remove all dirt. Cut into 1/2-inch crosswise pieces.

Pare carrots and slice into 1/2-inch thick rounds.

Wash and dry celery; cut into thin 1/2-inch-long strips.

In a medium skillet bring to a boil the leeks, carrots, celery, broth, sugar, salt, marjoram and pepper; mix well and simmer, covered, until tender — about 20 minutes.

Toss sliced pears with lemon juice and toss with vegetables. Sprinkle with parsley.

Serve warm as an accompaniment to cold sliced turkey. Makes 4 servings.

Actions Speak

An admirable young Navy officer is home after being held a month as a prisoner or hostage of the Syrian government.

Lt. Robert Goodman Jr. was one of those rare victims of circumstances over which he had no control, as well as being the recipient of circumstances of almost incredible good fortune.

As to the first: he was simply performing his duties as bombardier-navigator on an aircraft which was shot down by the Syrians in Lebanon.

As for the second: he was soon brought home by perhaps the only person in the country who could have persuaded the Syrian government to release the airman.

The qualifications of the Rev. Jesse Jackson — not the least of which were those of a political opponent and critic of President Reagan — tilted the odds in Goodman's favor.

Afterthoughts pose a question. For instance, will every serviceman who is held by an unfriendly regime receive a Rose Garden "welcome home"?

And, while the returnee for whom the welcome was held proved a modest and unassuming guest, Jackson postured, lectured and talked at great length to all who would listen.

There are times when actions alone suffice, and speak much louder.

Thoughtful Matter

There comes a time after a mid-day meal when languor envelops the body and mind to an extent that neither the joys of labor nor pleasures of a favorite pastime can hold their fair share of attention.

In their place is a yawning void of zest ... a great somnolence takes its place. In other lands, among other peoples, it is known as siesta-time.

We find it mildly surprising that so much of the rest of the world has recognized such an unscientific fact of life and adapted to it; but the West, non-tropical West, that is, shuns matter-of-fact acceptance.

That non-acceptance must have roots in a traditional work-ethic which presumes unbroken labor from dawn to dusk is the proper order of life. Such a heritage is not always easy to accept. Our forebears had some strange ideas.

We have been ruminating on the flaws of the no-siesta philosophy for some time and find it positively fascinating ... if we close our eyes for a moment in deeper contemplation it is understandable, because thinking requires so much concentration a-n-n-d ...

Important Dates

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's time to circle dates on the 1984 calendar — birthdays, anniversaries, the Super Bowl. For those addicted to presidential politics, March 20 is a good date to keep in mind.

That's the date of the Illinois primary. It's the date Walter Mondale might lock up the Democratic presidential nomination. Or, it might be the day Mondale's White House dream is shaken, if not shattered.

Of course political buffs also will circle Feb. 20, the day of the Iowa precinct caucuses and Feb. 28, when the New Hampshire primary will be held, and then March 13, Super Tuesday, when Democrats in nine states will hold primaries or caucuses.

Any of those early contests could reveal a fatal vulnerability in the Mondale candidacy, which now looks so formidable, buttressed by a string of endorsements and a well-financed, highly skilled organization.

It could unravel quickly for the former vice president if he suffers the fate of other presidential front-runners and stumbles in Iowa or New Hampshire.

A victory in Iowa could still be a loss for Mondale if Sen. John Glenn of Ohio or Sen. Alan Cranston of California comes close. Iowa is home ground for Mondale, a native of neighboring Minnesota and it's a caucus state where organization means a lot.

The New Hampshire primary is another traditional booby trap for front-runners. New Hampshire voters seem to delight in turning their backs on popular favorites and giving a boost to a dark horse. Sens. Gary Hart of Colorado and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina are counting on them to take that path this year.

With Alabama, Georgia and Florida, Democrats voting on March 13 and caucuses being held in Arkansas, Mississippi and South Carolina four days later, the South's voice speaks loudly in the post-Iowa and New Hampshire flurry.

Will the Rev. Jesse Jackson benefit from an outpouring of black voters in the South? Will former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida lock up his home state delegation? Does Glenn's background as a Marine and astronaut give him a special appeal in the South?

If the answer to all those questions turns out to be yes, Mondale is in trouble.

But a more likely result from Iowa through Mississippi is that Mondale will win more than he loses and the big question will become, can he be stopped and, if so, by whom.

Glenn is the likeliest challenger. There may be hordes of voters out there ready to respond to his All-American image and give the lie to accounts that his campaign has been a disappointment.

Sen. Alan Cranston is counting on mobilizing the peace movement into an effective base.

Jackson wants to build on a base of the have-nots in American society, while Hart, Hollings, Askew and former Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota are hoping to benefit from the votes of people anxious to send a message that they want "none of the above," when it comes to choosing between Mondale and Glenn.

The economics of the campaign forces those second-line candidates to choose between Iowa and New Hampshire and one or two other states. They must pick their spots and hope to attract attention, to wound if not eliminate Mondale or Glenn.

If one or two of them manages to hang in the race thanks to surprising showing in one or two early states and if Mondale doesn't lock it up with an overwhelming showing in events through March 17, then Illinois becomes decisive.

That diverse state would present a good test if the contest is down to Mondale vs. Glenn. The impact of the Byzantine politics of Chicago, the bitter rivalry between Mayor Harold Washington and Cook County Democratic leader Edward Vrdolyak, would finally get a test.

WASHINGTON — Close friends report that Secretary of State George Shultz, who entered the Cabinet with universal esteem 18 months ago, is frustrated and unhappy in his job as President Reagan's No. 1 Cabinet officer and might resign after the November election.

What bugs the World War II Marine officer is the failure of almost everything he has tried in the Middle East, particularly trying to get the Marines out of Beirut before the president's re-election campaign begins in earnest.

Shultz was a cherry figure in his previous incarnations as secretary of labor and secretary of the treasury. But friends say privately he has lost his bounce and much of his optimism in the political quicksands of Lebanon. If he does quit, Donald Rumsfeld, Reagan's special Mideast envoy, would rank high as a possible successor.

An SOS has been sent to the White House by key Texas Republicans, who foresee a tight battle for the state's electoral votes in November, that retiring Sen. John Tower just is not working out as President Reagan's state re-election chairman.

Tower is a formidable campaigner and strategist, but is renowned in Texas as not much of a political organizer. Nothing has really been done so far in the state for the Reagan campaign, and Tower's official duties in his last year as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee will conflict with political chores throughout 1984. Almost the entire month of February is blocked out for a European trip by him.

Besides competing demands on his time, Tower is troubled by enduring animosity toward him by right-wing Texas Republicans who never have forgiven him for backing Gerald Ford against Ronald Reagan in 1976. They were outraged when old-line Reaganite Ernie Angelo did not share the state chairmanship with Tower and since then they have refused offers of lesser campaign posts.

Top Soviet analysts in Washington are studying unpublished reports indicating that Soviet President Yuri Andropov has suddenly taken a turn for the worse in his apparently deteriorating health.

The evidence is strong that a well-publicized comeback of the Soviet leader had been planned to coincide with recent meetings of the Communist Central Committee and the Soviet Parliament. He also had made a hard date for about the same time to see U.S. industrialist Armand Hammer, a longtime Soviet admirer.

But Andropov's health apparently failed to perform as the doctors had predicted. He did not show up for either political session, and Hammer was informed by the Soviet Embassy here that his appointment was being canceled. Whether Andropov has been undergoing dialysis for a kidney ailment or suffers from something more serious, U.S. experts simply do not know.

The highly respected Sen. Sam Nunn has set aside the full day of Jan. 21 to campaign across his state of Georgia with Sen. John Glenn to bestow on Glenn his long-awaited endorsement for the Democratic presidential nomination, but the timing creates a new problem for Glenn.

Jan. 21 is the day of the Iowa Agricultural Forum in Ames, a potentially important event in the campaign to win the Feb. 20 Iowa caucuses, where Glenn must do well in his race to catch the front-running Walter F. Mondale. All other Democratic candidates are expected to be on hand, and Glenn's absence would be noted.

Marching across Georgia with the popular Nunn is an invitation Glenn cannot reject, even though it may make it impossible for him to be in Ames. The conflict in dates is symbolic of Glenn's campaign problems.

Navy Secretary John Lehman won an internal tactical tug-of-war with his boss, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, when President Reagan issued his statement taking full blame for the Beirut Marine tragedy before the special Pentagon commission released its highly-critical report.

Lehman wanted to get the chain of command exonerated before the commission captured the headlines. He was supported by Robert McFarlane, President Reagan's national security adviser (and a retired Marine Corps lieutenant colonel). Weinberger did not disagree with their motives in seeking to get the Navy off the hook, but wanted both the report and the Reagan statement issued the same day so the commission's criticism would be eclipsed by the president.

When Weinberger made his pitch to the White House Dec. 28, McFarlane told him, sorry, sir, it's too late. That gave the Navy its single day of exonerated. But Weinberger was correct in foreseeing that release of the report the next day would overshadow Reagan's blame-taking.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Earlier this year I was a patient at Pitt County Memorial Hospital as a result of a complete knee replacement. I could not wish for or receive better treatment from the entire staff — nurses, doctors, therapist, dieticians — than I did. Yes, all of them were great.

One of the nicest services or courtesies I received, however, was from the non-salaried Good Will Ambassador of our hospital, Eli Bloom, our retired solicitor of this district. Eli makes it his business to note the floor, wing, room number of the patients. And knowing and being known by most Greenville and Pitt County citizens, he takes or directs families, relatives and friends to the patients' rooms. He distributes morning and afternoon papers to many patients. He gives candy to small children. He delivers flowers and gifts that are left at the desk to patients. In other words, he is still a very busy public servant, even though he is retired.

The beauty of all of this giving of self is that Eli will not accept any pay for papers or any of his good deeds from anyone. He told me that such deeds were his pleasure. He also told me and I quote, "The citizens of Greenville and Pitt County accepted me as one of them many years ago and have been mighty good to me and my family. So doing this is a small way to say thanks to my friends."

Eli, I salute you as a gentleman and a concerned and appreciated citizen. I assure you that you are loved, respected and greatly appreciated.

Strength For Today

"He has shown thee, O Man, what is good; and what does the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God" (Micah 6:8).

Certainly it is not the whole of religion to say that we must do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with God. There are vast areas of faith outside the boundaries set up by these few words. But there can be no sound religion until we conform our thinking and acting to this formula laid down by Micah.

Jesus did not disagree so much with the scribes and Pharisees over theology but over the use they made of their theology. He denounced them because they did not put their religious theory into practice.

All sound religion is practical — Christianity especially so. Religion is valid and useful to the extent that it improves us and the world.

Plastic Man Arrives

Toggle woke up on January 2 bleary-eyed. A man was standing by his bed.

"Who are you?"
"I'm the Plastic Man."
"What the hell is the Plastic Man?"

"I represent American Express, Visa, MasterCard, Diner's Club and every other charge account that uses plastic."

"What do you want from me?"
The Plastic Man pulled out two fistfuls of flimsy tissues from his pocket. "You seem to have had quite a Christmas."

Toggle took the flimeies and studied them. "It does look like my signature."

"Then there is no doubt in your mind that they are yours?"

"I don't know. I went on a Christmas bender all of December. I remember going into stores and if I saw something I wanted I just bought it. I bought things for my wife, I bought things for my kids, I bought things for my friends, and I think I even bought things for people I didn't know. I had too much good spirits."

"And how did you budget to pay for all these things?"

"It never occurred to me. No one ever asked me for money. They just asked for a credit card. Then they put the card into a machine, wrote something on a form, handed a piece of flimsy paper to me and said, 'Have a Merry Christmas.' Not one person who waited on me ever mentioned the word money."

"Are you trying to tell me that you thought everything you got in store was free?"

"I'm just telling you I was drunk with spending power. Everybody else in the stores was too. People almost came to blows trying to hand the salespeople their credit cards."

"Do you know what a credit card is?"

"Yeh, it's a piece of plastic that has your name and a number and expiration date on it. If you have enough of them it makes a terrible bulge in your pocket."

"A credit card is more than a piece of plastic. It is an agreement between you and the issuer that it can be used in lieu of cash when you purchase something or receive a meal or a hotel room for the night."

"Did I use it for meals too?"

"Six-hundred and seventy dollars worth."

"Oh, does my head hurt. Wait a minute, now I remember. I felt so good about buying so many things for Christmas that after I did my shopping I took the family and my friends out to celebrate. Boy, was I drunk, but did I have a great time. You should have been here on Christmas morning. You couldn't get into the living room it was stacked with so much junk. The big joke was all the time I was out using my piece of plastic, my wife was out using hers.

We couldn't stop giggling for two days."

"I can appreciate how you felt. Now can we talk about these flimeies?"

"What's there to talk about?"
"We need the money these pieces of paper represent. I believe they total up to $8,760.70. We'd like your personal check or cash."

"I haven't got that kind of money."

"Then we'll have to charge 21 percent interest a month until you pay it."

"That's fine with me."

"It isn't fine with us. We have to pay for all the things you bought because we have guaranteed the stores and restaurants that you would fulfill your financial obligations."

"Well, as longs somebody pays them I guess I'm out of the woods."

"You're not out of the woods, Mr. Toggle. You're up to your hips in debt, and I'm here to collect it."

Whether you were drunk or not, we can't accept Christmas hysteria as an excuse for not honoring your flimeies."

"Wait a minute. Don't get excited. Toggle turned over to his sleeping wife and shook her. "Honey, there's a guy here that wants $8,760 for what we spent for Christmas."

Mrs. Toggle mumbled sleepily, "Well, give him one of my credit cards. They're in my purse on the dresser."

Job Market Better

NEW YORK (AP) — The job market should be better for those who graduate from college in 1984, which isn't saying a lot in view of the two preceding years, which were probably the most depressing in a decade or more.

The challenge to these new entries into the labor market during the big recession wasn't nearly as well publicized as, for instance, the plight of blue-collar manufacturing workers in the Midwest. But it was tough.

It was tough because, among other things, new graduates usually are without much experience, and few businesses had the money or desire to train them. In fact, throughout 1983 some companies were laying off white collar help.

Convinced that overhead must be cut, thousands of companies thinned their management ranks. Outplacement, or the art of relieving workers of their employment, became for some companies more important than hiring.

But now the post-recession blues are fading, and companies are looking to the future. They are interested in young college grads again, as indicated by a College Placement Council survey that suggests hiring might rise by 24 percent.

Increases in anticipated hiring at the bachelor's level ranged from 19 percent in the "business" category to 36 percent in the "sciences, math and other technical" category, according to the council's "Recruiting 84."

Big increases, to be sure, but from a small base, and the net result is to leave the job market still a bit below where it was several years ago when, says the Council, engineering grads sometimes received eight job offers.

The news in another part of the job market, that for manufacturing workers, is not quite as good.

During the recession that ended late in 1982, more than two million jobs were lost in manufacturing, and it appears certain that not all of them will be recovered. Even as the expansion continues, for example, steel jobs are lost.

Continental Bank comments that this is the only recovery of the past six "which has not regenerated within a year after the trough all the jobs that were lost."

And to lose jobs permanently, as may be the case in autos and steel, is unprecedented, it says.

Sindinger & Co., market researchers offer one explanation: Imports. Without realizing the full extent of it, he suggests, the spurt of buying at Christmas helped retailers enormously but U.S. workers much less.

"We estimate that from $6 to $7 of every $10 in 1983 gift-giving bought goods with a 'country of origin' outside the United States," said Albert Sindinger, chairman. Retailers gained, but not U.S. workers, he says.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
4 ♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.
Here's a chance to test your declarer technique. Cover the East-West hands with your thumbs and decide how you would play four hearts after the defenders start with two rounds of diamonds.

The auction is simple enough. When a player chooses to rebid his own suit rather than take a preference in one of the suits his partner has bid, he almost surely has a six-card suit. Therefore, a doubleton high honor is adequate support, and North had just about enough for his jump to game.

West led the king of diamonds, and East played the queen to show that he had the jack as well. However, West realized that, if he led a low diamond to his partner's jack and it won the trick, East would probably be end played. So West continued with the ace of diamonds, which declarer ruffed.

It would be easy to get careless in this situation. Suppose you play a trump to the king and return the suit. When East shows out, you are well on your way to losing control of the hand. The defenders will have to gain the lead with the queen of trumps and either a spade or a club, and they can force you with a diamond each time. You will end up down one at least.

The contract is almost a lead-pipe cinch if you apply the right technique. At trick three, lead a low trump to dummy's nine. Assume that East has the queen and wins

New Standards For N.C. Water

RALEIGH (AP) - The source of drinking water for more than 60 percent of North Carolinians are better protected since new standards went into effect Dec. 30, says state Natural Resources and Community Development Secretary James Summers.

He said in a prepared statement Wednesday that new rules protect groundwater below a depth of 20 feet to drinking water standards while groundwater from the surface to 20 feet will serve as a buffer zone over more protected waters below that depth.

"Our department's challenge is now to implement the new regulations and standards forcefully so the groundwaters of this state are truly protected," Summers said.

Division of Environmental Management Director Robert Helms said the regulations will allow penalties for new facilities that pollute groundwaters either within 250 feet of the source or within 50 feet of adjacent property.

Proved Year Of Video Boom

WASHINGTON (AP) - 1983 appears to have been the year of the video boom in America. Manufacturers sold more TV sets and video cassette recorders by last Dec. 16 than in all of 1982, according to the Electronic Industries Association.

Assuming the sales pace was maintained during the final two weeks of the year, manufacturers will be setting records not only for TV sets and video cassette recorders but also for big-screen projection TV sets and video cassette color cameras, the figures show.

the trick - he cannot make any damaging return. His only safe exit is a trump. Win the ace, draw the remaining trumps and run the jack of spades. Whether that wins or loses, you will lose at most three tricks.

As the cards lie, the nine of hearts will win. Cash the king of hearts and lead a low spade to your jack. The defenders can take the king and force you with a diamond. Ruff and cash the ace of trumps, then simply continue leading high spades. West can ruff with his master trump whenever he wishes, but eventually you will be able to discard your potential club loser on dummy's long spades.

Paid $131,367 City Tax

Carolina Telephone's 1983 city tax payment of $131,367 for 1983 makes the Tarboro-based company the largest taxpayer in Greenville, according to Floyd E. Little, tax collector. Dick Flye, CT&T's district commercial and marketing manager here, said the company's total tax payment within Pitt County, including all city taxes, amounts to $366,706. Flye said county and municipal 1983 taxes paid by the company in its 50-county operating area totaled nearly $8 million. He said the taxes reflect CT&T's investment in buildings and equipment to provide service to approximately 600,000 customers in eastern and Piedmont North Carolina. The firm's total tax bill for the year, including all state and federal taxes, is expected to total nearly $75 million, Flye said. The figure does not include over $9.5

million in 3 percent federal excise tax payments which were billed in 1983 to telephone users by the company. Flye said CT&T has over $1 billion invested in its service area. In recent years, the company's construction programs have cost about $80 million annually, he said.

Terrorized In Home 2 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — A gang terrorized a man almost daily for more than two years, lounging in his apartment and stealing money from his welfare checks, authorities say. The victim lost 60 pounds and had to be hospitalized for a week because the youths left him no cash for food, he told police. John Denny, 43, told authorities about his ordeal after Housing Authority police arrested two of the alleged tormenters Thursday. "I've been a psychological hostage," Denny said. "Everybody in the building seemed to know what was going on, but no one called police," said Detective John Ruiz. "He looked like a POW. He's 43, but he looks like he's 80."

Police arrested Tyrone Ridges, of the same apartment building, and his girlfriend, Lola Darden, of Brooklyn, in Denny's bedroom after a tenant patrol group that just had learned of Denny's plight called police, the police said. The pair, both 18, faced charges of grand larceny and burglary, police said. Police alleged that Ridges and another youth broke into Denny's apartment in April 1981, stole his money, jewelry and keys at gunpoint and threatened to hurt him if he called police. Since then, a gang of youths entered the apartment almost daily, lounging around, using the bedroom and stealing money — leaving enough for rent but not for food, police said. Denny told police he lost 60 pounds and was hospitalized for malnutrition for a week in November 1982. Denny said he had complained to welfare officials, police said. Denny has lived in the sixth-floor apartment in the Coney Island section for 30 years, and has been alone since his mother died 11 years ago, the Daily News reported today.

Holmes said the goal of the department's new traffic enforcement policy is to "achieve voluntary compliance with traffic laws."

New Effort By Lorne Michaels Will Debut Tonight

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With the debut tonight of "The New Show" on NBC, Executive Producer Lorne Michaels, the creator of

"Saturday Night Live," has a bigger burden than trying to follow one hit with another. Expectations being what they are, Michaels may be called upon to re-invent the wheel. Not only did the original "SNL" revolutionize television comedy in 1975, but its anti-authoritarianism also became weekly battle cries for the generation that wore cloth diapers in the 1950s, threw bricks in the 1960s and laughed at the world in the 1970s.

Michaels can't carbon his comedy success. He has to do something different enough to avoid unflattering comparisons with an original "SNL" that developed its cult status slowly, yet, in our fading memories, glows more brightly every day.

Now that's one tough act to follow. "Almost to a fault, it seems Lorne has to veer away from anything that resembles 'Saturday Night Live,'" said Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment who has urged Michaels to do another series since he and the original cast left in 1980, when "SNL" was still riding high and mighty.

The 39-year-old Michaels doesn't see it exactly that way. "You don't gain anything by backing away from your hits," said Michaels. "The rock 'n' roll star who comes on stage and announces he'll only play his new songs gets booed. I'm not embarrassed by my work on 'Saturday Night.' It's the best work I did.

"But I also know you can't ever be new again. The extent that this show will be revolutionary is in the fact that it will be on prime time (10 p.m. EST)."

So, it seems, Michaels will strive for the attitude of "Saturday Night Live" transplanted to today's concerns, and a cast of more famous names than the unknown 1975 crew that became Chevy Chase, Gilda Radner, John Belushi, Dan Aykroyd and Co.

"I knew if I did 'The 7 New Faces of 1984,' I'd get killed (by the comparisons)," Michaels said.

Buck Henry and Dave

Thomas ("SCTV") are among the regular writer-performers. Steve Martin and Catherine O'Hara ("SCTV") are guests on tonight's premiere episode. Miss Radner is scheduled for the third show.

"It's very much like doing an all-star game," said Michaels. "To push and stretch the comedy form, you need people who know how to do that. Some of the stars miss series television but can only be here four-five times a year."

Michaels zealously guards the specific components of "The New Show," preferring to surprise the audience. He does promise that his first prime-time series "will be innovative and daring, and I know we could fall on our faces."

He won't ignore the sketch humor and parodies made famous by the original and current "SNL," but there will be distinctions. "The times are different," he said. "To a large extent 'Saturday Night Live' was a '70s reaction to the '60s. The stuff that was radical for TV then are not the big issues today."

NBC has already cautioned Michaels that prime time is not 11:30, Saturday night. "They say we can't do much about drugs anymore," he said. "But they're judging us by 1975 standards. Just because drugs were a big issue back then doesn't mean they're worthy of discussion today."

To illustrate the show's shifting focus, Michaels referred to a skit, which might make tonight's lineup, about a faculty marching band. "Ten years ago, we would have done it on the students," he said.

"The New Show" will not be "Friday Night Live." It will be taped before a studio audience the day before.

"Although I don't feel I'm coming back with the same show, the aim, above all else, is the same — to be funny," said Michaels. "It's performance comedy, the same thing 'Saturday Night Live' had. It's the honesty of performing before an audience and seeing if it doesn't work, it doesn't work."

Pre-Recorded Shows To Be Aired For Cassettes

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC has come up with a way to keep American television sets busy even when nobody's watching with a program that beams recent movies and other shows onto home video cassette recorders in the wee hours of the morning.

For $25.95 a month, viewers can have a night's worth of pre-recorded entertainment ready to be watched each day — taped automatically while they sleep.

The new delivery system, TeleFirst, is scheduled to debut Jan. 17 in Chicago, when ABC-owned station WLS-TV will begin broadcasting the 1983 movie, "WarGames," before it appears on any other pay-TV service.

TeleFirst also will broadcast older movies, as well as music, cooking and financial shows to anyone with a decoder box attached to the TV set, said Arthur I. Cohen, president of Telefirst Entertainment Recording Service.

The box, manufactured by Sony Corp., will decode the scrambled TeleFirst signal and feed it onto a regular VCR — all while the viewer is tucked in bed. The viewer must make sure the decoder is ready to receive the TeleFirst signal and the VCR is programmed to turn on at 2:30 a.m.

If viewers don't want to receive, they simply turn off the box. If customers do not want to view a new movie offering, they tell TeleFirst in advance of the broadcast and get $2 knocked off their monthly bill.

Cohen said the new service seems to be a hit in Chicago, where only 12 percent of television viewers can get cable TV.

overwhelming and is exceeding any of our expectations," Cohen said by telephone from TeleFirst's Chicago-area sales center, which began accepting subscriptions Wednesday.

But Cohen would not reveal how many viewers had paid a $75 installation fee for the new service, which was scheduled to offer 1,000 hours of programming a year, including such recent movies as "Octopussy," "Risky Business," "Staying Alive," "Superman III" and "Porky's II: The Day After."

Following a six- to nine-month test in Chicago, ABC Video Enterprises will decide whether to extend the service to other areas of the country.

Cohen notes that because the delivery system uses existing broadcast facilities, start-up costs have been relatively low. That also means fewer subscribers will be needed to assure the success of the service, he said.

Cohen claims that because of the sophisticated Sony decoder, TeleFirst will not be boarded by the video pirates who have plagued over-the-air subscription television companies around the country.

Doctor Is Out Of This World

My pediatrician has about as much connection with the real world as the Crab Nebula. Don't get me wrong. As a doctor he's excellent. But the emotional health of a mother never seems to enter his mind.

He tells all mothers that they shouldn't expose their babies to nasty germs for at least three months after birth. He also tells them to breastfeed. This means that the mother cannot set foot beyond the front door for 12 weeks after delivering except when she's visiting the doctor, who is far from a noteworthy conversationalist.

Moreover, he believes that all babies should be weaned cold turkey from bottle, breast, and/or pacifier at the tender age of nine months. Even Zachary knows that to mention his precious pacy in the presence of the good doctor is to risk losing it. So what if he has nightmares for a week or two.

Then there's toilet training. This feat should be accomplished by the time a toddler is 18 months old. The doctor has developed a fail-safe training method: the mother simply tells the child that she is sick of changing diapers and that, if he wets his new underpants, he has to stay by himself in the bathroom until he changes them.

Thank goodness, I encountered this man after guiding one child through the preschool years with relative success. Had I encountered him on the first go-round, I would never have retained the semblance of sanity with which I greet the world each day. As it is, I ignore his non-medical advice.

I occasionally ignore his medical advice as well. The last time I took Meg to him for a check-up, he asked her how she exercised. "I play outside," she said. He looked at me gravely. "I recommend that allergy-prone children avoid outdoor activity. She should swim in an in-door pool and take gymnastics and dancing lessons."

His advice would cost me approximately $200 a month plus four or five afternoons a week, but that didn't seem to phase him. He was, however, more conservative in his recommendations for Zachary.

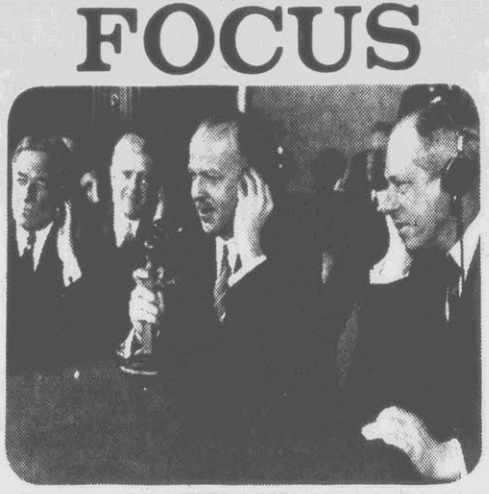

"I want you to put on a record every morning and do aerobics with this boy." "I hope you're kidding." "Of course not."

Somehow I knew that. "But we go for a walk almost every day. Isn't that enough?"

"I told you, I don't believe in outdoor activity for allergy-prone children. The aerobics will be much healthier."

For Zachary maybe but not for me. I'm allergic to housebound children.

FOCUS

Reach Out

The recent divestiture of AT&T has focused attention on the phone. The first regular transatlantic phone service began just 57 years ago. Americans make more than 350 billion phone calls each year. The average person alone makes 382. An undertaker in Kansas City invented the first automatic telephone exchange. He wanted to bypass the operators, one of whom he suspected of diverting his calls to her husband, who was also an undertaker.

DO YOU KNOW — What do the initials AT&T stand for?

Appointees Will Run The Hotel

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A court-appointed management team will continue to run the Stardust Hotel after two owners agreed to pay a record $3 million in fines and give up their licenses to three casino hotels because of an alleged skimming operation. Under the tentative agreement announced Thursday, the license revocations will be stayed for 130 days to give Allan Sachs and Herb Tobman an opportunity to sell the resorts. During that period, a court-appointed management team will continue to run the Stardust. The state also has the right to appoint supervisors for the Fremont and Sundance resorts.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market hovered around Thursday's closing levels today after its sharp rise of the past two sessions.

The pace of trading, which set a record Thursday, remained heavy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 29.50 points in the past two days, dropped back .73 to 1,281.51 by noon-time today.

But gainers held a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened, the government reported that the civilian unemployment rate fell to 8.2 percent in December, its lowest level in more than two years, from 8.4 percent the month before.

Financial-services stocks were broadly higher for the second straight session. Merrill Lynch rose 1/2 to 34 1/2; Phibro-Salomon 1 1/2 to 33 1/2; E.F. Hutton 3/4 to 37 1/2, and Paine Webber 3/4 to 37 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index edged up .07 to 97.41. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .03 at 226.84. Volume on the Big Board came to 62.57 million shares after two hours of trading. On Thursday, 74.13 million shares were traded in the same period on the way to a full day's total of 159.99 million.

recommendations were made. A mid-March date has been set as the target date for presentation of recommendations to be drawn up by the full board and business, education and community leaders appointed as a commission by Governor Hunt.

The report notes that the budgeted average teacher salary for school year 1982-83 was $16,876 with the actual average for the year amounting to $16,766. For the current school year, the budgeted average has been set at $17,720.

Craig Phillips, superintendent of public instruction, devoted the major portion of his report to thoughts on the possibility of future inclusion of 3- and 4-year-old children in the overall state school system. Phillips pointed out that with more and more mothers working, the need for including nursery age children in the regular state school program could conceivably gain more public favor in the near future. He pointed out that day care centers, home child care centers, and a few pilot programs in public schools are now filling the need for the care of pre-kindergarten age children.

Those serving on the 13-member North Carolina State Board of Education include Betty Speir of Bethel, Lt. Gov. James C. Green, and State Treasurer Harlan E. Boyles.

In other action, the board decided not to revoke accreditation of Barber-Scotia College's teacher education program, giving the Concord school one year to upgrade the embattled program.

The board discussed the matter in executive session and then voted unanimously to grant the program provisional approval that will expire May 31, 1985.

Board members did not elaborate on the decision.

"They apparently feel (Barber-Scotia) can do something in a year to pull it out," said Kaye Bullard, spokeswoman for the state Department of Public Instruction.

After visiting the small, predominantly black liberal arts school in February, an eight-member team of educators commissioned by the state board found the college was deficient in three areas.

The team said there were too few full-time education faculty members, that the science education program was inadequate because it didn't offer genetics and that the general education courses were inadequate in teaching English and Western civilization.

College officials disputed some of the claims and acknowledged others, but said they were making improvements and pleaded for more time.

DETROIT (AP) — The number of different automobile models offered by American carmakers for 1984 has declined by 10 to 286, an industry journal reports.

The greatest number of models offered in a single year since World War II was 375 in 1970. The lowest was in 1946 when only 160 models were offered.

Another Decline In Jobless Rate

By The Associated Press

The nation's civilian jobless rate fell to 8.2 percent in December as the labor market enjoyed its best recovery in 33 years, the Labor Department said today.

The U.S. economy's bullish performance also has put the stock market back on a record-breaking course, and the dollar is smashing records on foreign exchange markets.

And the major retail chains said December sales were the best in several years, while the big five domestic automakers reported the first year-to-year sales increase in four years.

The jobless rate was 8.4 percent in November. Since unemployment hit a post-Depression high of 10.7 percent in December 1982, total U.S. civilian employment has soared by 4 million.

The labor market recovery from the business slump of 1981-82 was at the fastest pace of any post-recession rally since 1951, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The agency initially reported the December 1982 unemployment rate was 10.8 percent, but today the BLS revised jobless statistics for the past 13 months and the new figures put December 1982 unemployment at 10.7 percent.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 13.19 points to 1,282.24 Thursday, leaving it less than 5 points below the record of 1,287.20 set Nov. 29, 1983.

Trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange jumped to 159.99 million shares Thursday, easily surpassing the previous record of 149.35 million set Nov. 4, 1982.

Wall Street analysts said stocks, which took a moderate dive in December, were pulled out of the doldrums by a drop in interest rates and non-public school's cooperation."

Manley Midgett, science supervisor for Wayne County, suggested altering the daily school schedule rather than lengthening the school day or school year. Two of the state's school systems are operating pilot programs to determine the feasibility of extending the school day and school year.

Midgett suggested that by having the same classes taught on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and different Tuesday and Thursday classes, students and teachers could spend the "same amount of time (in school), but more time on task." The change in the daily schedule, Midgett said, would benefit science classes that require setting up and gynn classes that require changing and showering, for example.

Frank Layne of the Educational Advisory Council at J.H. Rose High School stated, "High school is in fact preparation for work." He asked that the com-number and quality of available workers. Because of that, "we've got to have more productive workers ... the best production workers" to attract new industry, the governor suggested.

"We've got to stress the basics ... and add other things to it" such as "good vocational education programs."

Hunt said during the two previous education for economic growth hearings, there were two things that were stressed above all others.

First, Hunt said, the public stressed, "We want you to do a better job with what you have."

Secondly, the governor said, speakers said "the most crucial thing about a good school is a good teacher."

Saying "our (public school teachers) salaries are not competitive," Hunt suggested that higher salaries "and some form of merit pay is needed" to attract and hold the best teachers.

"We've got to have it so the best teachers are making in the high $20,000 a year," even $30,000 or $40,000 a year.

"If North Carolina doesn't make a major step forward in improving its schools," Hunt said, "we'll start losing industry to other states. In the years ahead, we'll begin to lose out."

Commenting on a federal study released Thursday that showed Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores for North Carolina students ranked among the lowest in the nation, the governor said the figures used in the comparison could be "misleading."

Hunt explained by saying that "half the students in North Carolina take the SAT test. In Iowa, which ranks number two in SAT test scores, only three percent of the students take them (the SAT). If only the top three percent of our students took the test, we might rank number one."

Commenting on non-education matters, Hunt said he was "delighted" that Navy Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., shot down over Lebanon and captured by Syrian forces, has been released. The Navy flyer was freed after Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson met with Syrian officials last week.

"It's my belief," he said, that negotiations between countries "ought to be done by the government. But, as President Reagan says, 'you can't argue with success.'"

Pirates Face Two More On The Road

East Carolina's basketball Pirates take to the road again Saturday night, traveling back to Boston, Mass., for the second time this year, facing Northeastern University this time.

Then, it will be into the ECAC-South wars Monday night as the Pirates stop off in Fairfax, Va., to meet George Mason — the team ECU coach Charlie Harrison has picked to win the league title this year.

"It's going to be a tough road trip," Harrison, who is no stranger to tough road trips, said. The Pirates have yet to record a victory away from Minges Coliseum, and, in fact, are mired in a seven-game losing skid.

Northeastern brings an 8-2 record into the 7:30 p.m. contest, having lost only to nationally ranked Purdue and Cornell. Among their recent victories are two over St. Bonaventure and Princeton in the Kodak Classic, and wins over Maine, 83-81, and New Hampshire, 91-86, this week.

"Northeastern returns four starters off last year's team, and one of them isn't even starting this year," Harrison said. Returning off last year's team are 6-2 senior guard Glen Miller, 6-8 senior center Roland Braswell and 6-6 senior forward Mark Halsel. They are joined by 6-7 freshman forward Reggie Lewis and 6-3 freshman Andre LaFleur, a guard. The latter beat out former starter Phil Robinson for his job.

A total of 11 lettermen are back for the Huskies, who qualified for the NCAA tournament in each of the last two seasons.

Halsel is the leading scorer for the Huskies with a 25.0 average, while Lewis is hitting 11.8 and Braswell, 10.1. Halsel is pulling down 11.0 rebounds per game.

"Northeastern has some very, very good athletes," Harrison said. "From what I understand, they didn't play well against Maine Tuesday, but they were coming off that tournament win and may have been a little satisfied with themselves. But I don't think they'll be in that mood against us."

Harrison said that the Pirates can't use gimmicks to try and get something started, but that "there are certain things that have to be done, but they have to be done by the players.

"We're getting good shots, and on defense we've been in a position and have taken away the strengths of the other team. But there are other things that have hurt us. It's a matter of the little things and mental toughness, more than anything."

The Pirate coach admitted that one of the problems is that no one has emerged as the one the team can go to when it needs the points. "When we need this, we have to go inside. You just can't do it from the perimeter. We can't look to Tony (Robinson) or Bruce (Peartree). We need someone to come up with a key rebound, a stickback and a three point play."

Harrison said each of the front court people have had the opportunity, but no one has stepped forward to get the job done. "That's what I meant the other night about getting over the hump, to have someone who can break the other team's momentum."

In an effort to try and find the right combination of players, Harrison has been experimenting and will use still another variation this Saturday night. It will include Robinson and Curt Vanderhorst in the backcourt, Barry Wright and Derrick Battle in the forecourt and freshman Leon Bass at center.

"Leon has played better in practice than the others, so he's earned his chance. We really wanted to go with him last week against Charlotte, but their man was so experienced when they didn't play their freshman (Ray Gromlowicz)."

Following the Northeastern game, the Pirates fly back to the nation's capital to face the Patriots in the first ECAC-South game of the year for both teams.

Mason is currently 8-1 after a 77-64 win over UNC Charlotte Wednesday. The Patriots face Monmouth Saturday night.

Leading the way for them is junior forward Carlos Yates, 6-5, averaging 23.0 points a game. Two other Pats are also in double figures, 6-3 sophomore guard Ricky Wilson at 14.5, and 6-5 sophomore forward Rob Rose at 11.6. The other two starters are 5-10 senior guard John Niehoff and 6-4 senior center Ricky Dillard.

Mason took a pair of regular season wins over the Pirates, 59-58, and 69-68, before losing to ECU in the league tournament, 68-65. "I don't think that (the tournament win by ECU) will be a factor Monday night. It just made them realize that we could win against them, and with the way the two earlier games went, they should have known that."

The Pirates will have to do more than stop Yates to come away with the win. "They have five of their six best players back from last year. They can all shoot and they are all very quick. They play with confidence. I picked them to win the conference and I haven't changed my mind."

While Harrison admits that he'd rather not face Mason just two days after a non-conference road game like Northeastern, the coach said, "That's what we've been dealt and that's the way we'll play it."

"You know we've played some damn good teams — not great teams, but good ones. We've come so close, but ended up short."

"We could really use a win about now...."

Kuester Gets Dose Of Painful Experience

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE — As a player, John Kuester watched North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith torment many an opponent. Kuester now coaches Boston University and when he faced the top-ranked Tar Heels, he got a painful example of what those coaches went through.

Sam Perkins scored 21 points as the Tar Heels trounced the Terriers 87-54 to set up Saturday's battle with No. 12 North Carolina State, the last two teams to conquer the college basketball kingdom.

Boston University had pulled to within 21-17 on a Paul Hendricks free throw. Tar Heel center Brad Daugherty converted a three-point play but Gary Plummer came back with a follow shot to bring Boston University to within 24-19 with 8:59 left in the first half.

Then, the Tar Heels clicked off a 19-2 spree in which the entire starting five scored at least a bucket. That gave North Carolina a 43-21 lead with 3:08 left and essentially gave the undefeated Tar Heels their ninth straight victory.

In the first half, North Carolina shot 77.8 percent on 21 of 27 field goal attempts.

"We did poorly in the first half. We gave them too many opportunities with our turnovers," Kuester said of his team, which committed 18 turnovers in the period. "They are so capable of creating different types of situations with their defense."

Smith, who was able to empty his bench midway through the second half, preferred to think it was North Carolina height advantage that was the key.

"The big difference was the size. They just didn't have the size to go with us," Smith said, adding that the experience of coaching against a former player was a bit unusual.

"Yes, it did feel a little funny to coach against a former player," he said. "Of course, I'd rather coach against John Kuester's team than Billy Cunningham's (Philadelphia 76ers coach)."

Daugherty added 18 points on seven of eight from the field. Dave Popson scored 12 points while Michael Jordan added 10 for the Tar Heels.

Mike Alexander led the Terriers, 44, with 14 points, while Plummer had 12.

Conley Defeats Havelock, 32-27

HOLLYWOOD — Senior All-Conference wrestler Stacy McCarter pinned Eric Storm 38 seconds into the heavyweight match to give D.H. Conley a 32-27 victory over Coastal 3-A Conference rival Havelock Tuesday.

The win lifted the Vikings to 7-0 on the season, while Havelock sustained its first loss.

"That was a key Coastal Conference match," Conley Coach Milt Sherman said. "It was definitely our closest and biggest win of the season. It's going to be a three-way race between Havelock, Conley and West Carteret, so we needed a win here. The lead see-sawed back-and-forth before McCarter won his match to put it away."

The Rams held a 23-17 edge going into the 169 pound match between newcomer Alton Mobley of Conley and second-year starter Marty Rivenbark. Mobley's pin 1:03 into the match knotted the score, and Ricky Rice put the Vikes ahead with an 8-7 decision over Chip Greenbush.

But Havelock took the lead again when Kevin Sublette decisioned Gerald Harper 18-1 in the 197 pound match.

Conley will host West Craven tonight in another Coastal Conference match, and the Vikings entertain West Carteret Tuesday.

Irish Down Lady Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The University of Notre Dame used a four-plus minute period to outscore East Carolina's Lady Pirates, 14-2, and broke open a close game on the way to a 66-50 victory last night in Minges Coliseum.

The Lady Pirates, hampered by having junior center Anita Anderson sidelined with a back injury, saw Notre Dame take advantage of problems East Carolina had in getting its game in order and pushed out to as much as a 20-point lead in the closing minutes of the contest.

East Carolina led through much of the early going, but never by more than four before the Irish came back to take the lead as push out by ten in the first half. After trailing by 12, ECU rallied to within six with 13:20 to play, but then the Irish hit their hot streak.

Carrie Bates led the Irish through the next 4:13, scoring six of the 14 points, while Laura Dougherty added four. East Carolina got only a layup by Delphine Mabry during that period as the Notre Dame lead climbed to as much as 18 points, 38-56. Mabry and Sylvia Bragg finally halted the streak with a pair of long range baskets, but the damage had been done.

"I'm very disappointed," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said afterwards. "We have to work hard to get things done, and we did for the first 15 minutes of the first half. But we didn't execute like we should have after that."

Andruzzi said that Notre Dame was a very patient team that worked for the good shot. That was evidenced by the fact that the Irish shot 56.6 percent for the game, including 60.7 percent in the first half. East Carolina — playing much less patient — hit only 35.2 percent, including a cool 27.6 percent in the second half.

"We failed to implement the things that we have to do. Like instead of playing hard defense for the whole 30 seconds, we slacked off with ten seconds left (on the shot clock)," Andruzzi said. "They got the ball inside on us and got the scores. We're inexperienced, but that's no excuse. We're capable of playing better."

"We're not shooting the ball, we're just throwing it up. If we got the ball inside we got the shot or we got fouled. But instead of getting the ball into the passing lanes to get it inside, we tried to force it in. We didn't think. We have to be more disciplined and more intense."

Andruzzi said the Lady Pirates were flat for the game. "We stood around and watched a lot. We didn't move our feet and we didn't get our hands into the passing lanes."

"We missed Anita and that hurt us. She had been playing well and it's one of those unfortunate things," Andruzzi said that Anderson had suf-

Freak Accident Kills Ex-Diver Sitzberger

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Former Olympic diving champion Ken Sitzberger apparently died from a head injury incurred when he struck his head on a table during a party at his home on Sunday, according to his mother.

Bette Sitzberger said relatives came to the former diver's home on Sunday for a holiday party. Sitzberger, 38, hit his head on a table when he leaned over to retrieve some ice cubes, she said.

"It was really a fluke accident," she said in a telephone call from her home in Oak Brook, Ill. She was not at the party.

Sitzberger later complained of a headache "but there were no external signs, no bump," said Mrs. Sitzberger, who added that her son apparently "died in his sleep."

Sitzberger's wife, Jeanne, summoned an ambulance Monday morning when she was unable to awaken her husband. He was pronounced dead a short time later.

Coronado Police Commander Robert Hutton said his department became involved after an autopsy report indicated a head injury.

Young Leads Cougars Past SMU, 60-59

By The Associated Press
Houston's Michael Young stole the show, pulling the curtain on Southern Methodist.

"I'm going to Michael Young's commencement exercises to make sure he graduates," SMU Coach Dave Bliss said after a 60-59 loss to the seventh-ranked Cougars Thursday night. "He's really killed us offensively for the last few years."

Young was not only an offensive spark for the Cougars with 24 points, but personally pulled the game out with a steal and basket in the last minute.

"I'm the senior and it's my responsibility to pick up the slack," said Young. "I feel like every ballgame we play somebody has to carry the load and I take it upon myself every game."

"On that steal, I just waited back and things worked out. I guess that's what experience does for you."

With the victory, the Cougars, 11-2, became the first team to win 25 straight Southwest Conference games.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 1 North Carolina drubbed Boston University 87-54, No. 3 DePaul beat Pepperdine 81-73, No. 6 UCLA trimmed Arizona State, 79-57, No. 9 Louisiana State stopped No. 11 Georgia 81-77, 10th-ranked Texas-El Paso hammered U. S. International 85-59, No. 13 St. John's walloped Rutgers 71-43, 14th-ranked Illinois turned back Minnesota 80-53, No. 15 Oregon State trimmed Stanford 64-59 and No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas crushed Long Beach State 103-66.

Young's 10-foot jump shot came after he stole an SMU pass and drove the length of the floor. Houston freshman Rickie Winslow batted a ball away from Larry Davis to break up an SMU in-bounds play with two seconds left to preserve the Cougars' victory.

The Mustangs were led by Jon Koncak, who had 21 points and 15 rebounds in his battle with Houston's Akeem Olujuwon, who finished with 14 points, five rebounds and four blocks.

SMU lost despite outrebounding the Cougars 45-24.

"How can you win a ballgame and get outrebounded like that?" said

Houston Coach Guy Lewis. "I feel fortunate to win."

Top Ten
Sam Perkins scored 21 points to lead North Carolina's over Boston University. The game matched Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith against former North Carolina guard John Kuester, who became head coach at Boston University prior to the start of the season.

"Yes, it did feel a little funny to coach against a former player," Smith said. "Of course, I'd rather coach against John Kuester's team than Billy Cunningham's (head coach of the NBA Philadelphia 76ers)."

Kenny Patterson scored 18 points to lead DePaul over Pepperdine. Marty Embry added 17 points and pulled down a game-high 13 rebounds for DePaul, 11-0.

Kenny Fields scored 21 points and gathered six rebounds to pace UCLA over Arizona State. UCLA led only 59-50 with five minutes remaining, but the Bruins scored the game's next 16 points to turn what had been a competitive contest into a blowout.

John Tudor hit two free throws with two seconds left to seal LSU's victory over Georgia. Tudor was fouled after Georgia missed a chance to tie the game when Donald Hartry missed a 20-foot jumper with six seconds remaining.

LSU's Derrick Taylor missed two free throws in the final minute, but led all scorers with 26 points and impressed Georgia Coach Hugh Durham.

"Derrick Taylor shot the eyes out of the basket and we could not rattle him," Durham said. "He is the key dominant player for LSU. The other guards are good and playing alongside him makes them even better."

Dave Feitl and Kevin Hamilton scored 16 points apiece to lead unbeaten Texas-El Paso over U.S. International. Feitl, a 6-foot-10 sophomore, poured in 15 of his points in the first half as UTEP took a 37-21 lead at halftime and coasted to its 12th victory.

Second Ten
Chris Mullin scored 20 points and St. John's overcame the loss of seven-foot center Bill Wennington to beat Rutgers. Despite the loss of Wennington, who injured his left ankle with 2:15 gone in the game and didn't return, the Redmen had too much height and muscle for the Scarlet Knights.

Efrem Winters scored 22 points to lead Illinois past Minnesota. The Illini led throughout the game, although Minnesota kept close for the first nine minutes.

"We played pretty good and they were a little flat," said Illinois Coach Lou Henson. "That was the difference. The reason we're better this year is because we feel each player has gotten a little better."

A.C. Green grabbed a key rebound and scored a layup with 1:26 remaining to put Oregon State ahead for good as the Beavers defeated stubborn Stanford. The Beavers had committed three turnovers within a two-minute span late in the game as Stanford took a 55-54 lead before Green pulled it out for them.

Ed Catchings scored 17 points to lead six Nevada-Las Vegas players in double figures as the Rebels overwhelmed Long Beach State.

Others
In other action, Charlie

Bradley's 22 points led South Florida to a 71-57 victory over Old Dominion, Jim Rowinski scored 20 as Purdue pounded Wisconsin 84-65, Michigan's Eric Turner scored 16 points as the Wolverines rolled to a 68-51 victory over Northwestern and Emmett Sellers had 22 points as Duquesne defeated Massachusetts 69-64.

Also, Steve Harris scored 30 points in leading Tulsa to a 91-79 victory over Drake, California's Dave Butler hit a layup with 29 seconds left to lift the Golden Bears to a 55-54 decision over Oregon, Michael Cage scored 26 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to lead San Diego State to a 61-47 over the University of San Diego and Leon Wood scored 24 points and had seven assists to lead Fullerton State to an 82-65 victory over Utah State.

It's all over now — including the shouting — but the blow to the male ego will probably go on for about a year.

With the conclusion of the 16 bowl games, our panel of experts' year has come to a close, and we must offer our congratulations to Vickie Spivey for topping the list this year. Vickie turned in a 10-6 mark for the bowls, giving her a 106-50 record for the year.

And while that was a blow to the ego of the rest of the panel — all male — it certainly is our contribution to the equal rights effort.

And contrary to what some have said, we will NOT kick her off the panel for next year.

This writer finished in second place, with a 104-52 record after also going 10-6 in the bowls. Tom Baines, with an 11-5 record — the best individually for the bowls — ended up with a 102-54 record, claiming third place.

Our guests ended up with fourth place at 101-55 after Slim Short went 9-7 for the bowls.

Joe Jenkins found himself in the unaccustomed situation of not being in the cellar. Jimmy DuPree managed to edge him out for that, going 7-9 for the bowls — he went for the upsets and didn't get them all. Jenkins also went for a number of upsets, and finished 9-7. The result left Jenkins with a 98-58 record, while DuPree was a game back at 97-59.

Again, congratulations to Vickie. Just, ah, don't let it, ah, happen again!

passes, 820, and gained more yards, 9,615, than any college player in history. He was the ACC player of the year.

Young also set numerous NCAA records, including gaining 200 or more yards in 22 consecutive games, passing for touchdowns in 22 consecutive games, and completing 65.3 percent of his career passes. He was the Western Athletic Conference player of the year, and was runner-up in this year's Heisman Trophy balloting.

Young will be relying on protection from an offensive line that includes Nebraska guard Dean Steinkuhler, winner of the Outland and Lombardi awards. The East offensive line will include East Carolina strongman Terry Long, who was selected over Steinkuhler on the Associated Press All-America first team.

Hula Bowl executive director Mackey Yangisawa has assembled 68 of the nation's top football players from 54 schools, the most schools ever represented in the 38 years of the all-star game.

One school not represented is national champion Miami. Miami coach Howard Schnellenberger is coaching in Saturday's East-West Shrine game at Stanford, Calif., and two of his players elected to follow him there, Yangisawa said.

Also at the Shrine game will be Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier and Nebraska teammate Irving Fryar, who earlier had signed agreements to play in the Hula Bowl. Fryar said he and Rozier decided to go to the Shrine game so they could stay with Cornhusker quarterback Turner Gill.

But an ankle injury suffered in the Orange Bowl loss to Miami will keep Rozier out of that game.

Rozier and Fryar were replaced on the West team by running back Donald Jordan of Houston and wide receiver Jeff Champine of Colorado State.

Coaching the East will be Vince Dooley of Georgia, assisted by Hayden Fry of Iowa and Joe Restic of Harvard. LaVell Edwards of Brigham Young will coach the West, and will be assisted by Jim Johnson of Oklahoma State and Bill Yeoman of Houston.

Greene Central Sweeps E. Duplin

BEULAVILLE — Greene Central romped to a pair of basketball victories last night, dropping host East Duplin High School. The Rams rolled up a 62-35 win over the boys, while the girls took a 53-42 decision.

The win boosted the Greene Central record to 9-1, while the girls are now 8-2.

The Rams held only a slim lead for most of the first three quarters in the boys' game, however. Greene Central eased out into a 14-12 lead after one quarter and increased that to just 23-18 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Greene Central added three more to its margin and took a 32-24 lead into the final period. But in that the Rams caught fire and outscored East Duplin, 30-11, to run away with it.

Theodore Edwards led the Rams with 25 points while Anthony Thompson added 13. Tony Sealy led East Duplin with 14 points.

The Lady Rams, meanwhile, had somewhat of a closer contest the whole way. They built up only an 11-9 lead after one period and outshot East Duplin, 20-15, in the second frame. That gave the Lady Rams a 31-24 lead at the half.

Greene only outscored its host by one in the third period and led 40-32 as the last quarter opened. In that they outthit East Duplin, 13-10, to insure the win.

Cindi Hicks led the Rams with 21 points, while Cynthia Jones added 10. Ginger Lewis led East Duplin with 14 points.

Greene Central returns to action tonight, traveling to North Lenoir.

Bennett, Young Aerial Attack Set To Highlight Hula Bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — Two quarterbacks who rewrote the NCAA record book will face each other in Saturday's 38th annual Hula Bowl here.

Ben Bennett of Duke will lead the East attack, while Steve Young of Brigham Young will direct the West in the 11 a.m., HST, all-star game at Aloha Stadium.

Bennett set seven NCAA records, 13 Atlantic Coast Conference and 39 school records. He completed more than 200 passes, 820, and gained more yards, 9,615, than any college player in history. He was the ACC player of the year.

Young also set numerous NCAA records, including gaining 200 or more yards in 22 consecutive games, passing for touchdowns in 22 consecutive games, and completing 65.3 percent of his career passes. Both teams scored nine points in the third period, and Plymouth outscored Williamston, 13-6, in the final quarter to claim the win.

Debra Norman led Plymouth with 15 points while Fondella Biggs added 11. Timberly Rodgers had 16 to pace Williamston.

Williamston's boys are now 2-4, while the girls are 1-6. Both are 0-4 in league play.

Williamston plays host to Roanoke Rapids tonight.

Franklin's Shot Boosts Plymouth Over Tigers

WILLIAMSTON — Plymouth's Sidney Franklin scored a field goal with 31 seconds left to give the Vikings a 44-42 basketball victory over Williamston last night in the Northeastern Conference.

Plymouth's girls rolled up a 44-29 victory over the Lady Tigers in their game.

Plymouth fell behind in the early going, 10-8, in the boys' game, but came back with a 17-15 margin in the second quarter. That pushed the Vikings into a 25-25 tie at intermission.

Williamston moved back into the lead in the third quarter, outscoring Plymouth, 12-7. That made it 37-32 as the final quarter opened. But in that last period, Williamston was held to only five points, while Plymouth got 12, including Franklin's goal that made it 44-41 with 31 seconds left.

Franklin led the Plymouth scoring with 14 points, while Travis Brown had 10. Williamston was led by James Ward with 14.

Plymouth's girls eased ahead in their game, taking a 10-7 lead after one period. That was increased to 22-14 by halftime by the Valkyries.

Robertson Drafted By Arizona

East Carolina University tackle John Robertson was drafted by the Arizona Wranglers in the 10th round of the United States Football League draft Thursday.

A 6-6, 257-pound native of Eden, Robertson was a member of the offensive line which helped the nationally-ranked Pirates to an 8-3 record in 1983 including wins over Missouri and North Carolina State.

In earlier selections, All-America guard Terry Long was chosen by the Washington Redskins in the fourth round along with safety Clint Harris in the sixth.

Defensive lineman Steve Hamilton was drafted by the Michigan Panthers, while trenchmate Hal Stephens was tabbed by the Memphis Showboats. Quarterback Kevin Ingram was picked in the fifth round by the Tampa Bay Bandits, but rumors indicate he has already signed with the Edmonton Oilers of the Canadian Football League.

Watson Waits For Season Opener

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — An eager, enthusiastic Tom Watson has one more day to wait before starting his 1984 golf season in the $1 million Seiko-Tucson Match Play Championship.

"I'm very enthusiastic, really anxious to get started," Watson said Thursday when the double-barrelled match play championship — with brackets for both the regular PGA Tour players and the seniors — took a break from competition for the pro-am. The pro-am eventually was rained out.

"I'm really ready to go," Watson said, then flashed that small-boy grin.

"I said the same thing last year, but I didn't mean it."

The difference, he said, is a change in his swing, a change that he said "is exactly what I needed to do."

"I hadn't played that well for the last couple of years. I was just gutting it out. It's been frustrating," Watson said.

But it's been frustrating only by his own elevated standards. Watson, who dominated world golf for five years, has won only twice since June of 1982. Both of those victories came in the British Open.

"But I haven't won a Tour event in a long time. I've had a real long dry spell," Watson said.

"I've made a change I believe will help. I've made a change in my swing that I think is very important."

"It involves pitching and chipping. I wasn't staying down through the ball. I haven't changed my backswing, but I've changed my follow-through, so that I'm keeping the clubhead on the ball longer."

"It worked like a charm so far. I'm anxious to put it to the test."

Watson stopped off in Dallas en route to Tucson for a visit and practice session with his longtime friend and mentor Byron Nelson.

"Byron was real excited about the change. He wanted me to call and tell him how it worked after I got it in play," Watson said.

Seattle Has Been Raiders' Nemesis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can a wild card team make it to the Super Bowl? Yes, indeed, and nobody knows more about that than the Los Angeles Raiders.

Just three years ago when the Raiders, then playing in Oakland, not only got to the Super Bowl as a wild card. They won it decisively.

Now, the Raiders are favored in their attempt to return to the National Football League's showcase event. Standing in their way are the Seattle Seahawks, a wild-card entry in post-season action for the first time.

"What impresses me about them is what impressed me about us three years ago," said tight end Todd Christensen of the Raiders. "They appear to be a team of destiny and that, a lot of the time, is a lot more scary than their ability."

"I think we have a collection of better athletes, but that really at this time of the season is irrelevant. The year that we won the Super Bowl, there were at least three teams that were better than we were but we went all the way because we got the breaks and we made things happen."

The Seahawks will be trying to make things happen Sunday in the American Football Conference championship game at the Los Angeles Coliseum before a hostile crowd of more than 90,000 and a national television audience. Kickoff time is 1 p.m., PST.

The winner will advance to Super Bowl XVIII at Tampa, Fla., on Jan. 22 against the survivor of the NFC Championship game between San Francisco and Washington earlier Sunday.

Three years ago, the Raiders went 11-5 and finished second to San Diego in the AFC West. They got to Super Bowl XV by beating Houston, Cleveland and the Chargers, and won it with ease, whipping Philadelphia 27-10.

The only other wild card team to make it to the Super Bowl was Dallas, which accomplished the feat in 1975. The Cowboys were beaten 21-17 by the Pittsburgh Steelers in Super Bowl X.

"If you'd asked me if I would be surprised to be in the AFC game the first of the season, I would have said yes," said Seattle wide receiver Steve Largent. "But at this point, taking them one game at a time like we have, I would say no. Last week (a 27-20 upset of Miami) was no fluke. We deserved to win."

The Seahawks were 9-7 during the regular season including 38-36 and 34-21 victories over the Raiders. They earned their wild-card berth by beating the New York Giants 17-12 and the New England Patriots 24-6 in the final two games of the season.

After whipping Denver 31-7 in the AFC wild card game, Seattle disposed of the favored Dolphins last Saturday to earn its berth in the title game.

The Raiders, runaway winners of the AFC West title, were 12-4 before blasting Pittsburgh 38-10 in their first playoff action last Sunday. Seattle tied for second in the AFC West with Denver.

"Our team has been such an up-and-down team all year," said Largent, who has played for the Seahawks since they were established as an expansion franchise in 1976. "We were fortunate to be able to come into the New England game with a chance for a wild-card spot."

"In the past, we hadn't played well in big games. In that game, we did. That gave us confidence."

"We're a team that's improving and improving the most in the last three games we've played," said Largent. "We're still an unpredictable team. If we can stay in our game plan and run the ball well, we can be awfully hard to beat."

Not only did the Seahawks beat the Raiders twice this season, they've beaten them five times in the last six meetings.

"It doesn't take much to get motivated for the Raiders," said Largent. "You have to be ready emotionally and physically and every other way to play them."

"We played the Raiders twice. We're going to have to do things differently. In both of the earlier games, we scored defensive touchdowns. Our defense got a lot of turnovers (13). It didn't have a great deal to do with our offense."

Riggins To Get Ball Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins' back-to-basics offense — John Riggins left, John Riggins right — is warming up for a busy afternoon Sunday when the defending Super Bowl champions play San Francisco for the National Football Conference Championship.

"We are not so bullheaded as to say we are going to run John 50 times no matter what," said assistant coach Joe Bugel. "But you know that sooner or later John is going to get the ball. The fans would kill us if he didn't."

Riggins, averaging 23 carries a game, rushed for 1,347 yards and scored a record 24 touchdowns this season. In last Sunday's playoff victory over Los Angeles he carried the ball 25 times for 119 yards, the fifth straight playoff game he has rushed for over 100 yards.

Earlier this week, Riggins predicted that he would carry the ball some 37 times.

Bugel, architect of an offensive line that includes All-Pro Joe Jacoby, Russ Grimm and Jeff Bostic, says the Redskins will run straight ahead against the 49ers, moving inside the tackles.

"That's our cup of tea. If you don't stop us there you don't stop us," he said.

Defensively, the 49ers will use both three-four and multiple four-three defenses.

"They show you a number of different looks depending on the situation," Bugel said.

Bugel, who came to the Redskins three years ago after building the Houston Oilers offensive line that carried Earl Campbell to the rushing crown, says the 49er defense loaded with talent.

"There are some guys back there who can hurt us. (Fred) Dean, (Dwayne) Board and (Jack) Reynolds are three of the best. Their secondary is the best we have seen this year. All hard hitters and all talented athletes," Bugel said.

Board, the 49ers right end, was injured last year. He has returned to the form he displayed in 1981, when the 49ers won the Super Bowl.

Dean, the 49ers designated pass rusher, has recorded 17.5 sacks while playing on passing downs.

"What the 49ers have in Dean is a super rusher. What Lawrence Taylor means to the Giant defense Dean means to San Francisco. They move him around from left side to right, up the middle and around end. He is the guy they use when they want something to happen," Bugel said.

Reynolds, playing at inside linebacker, has been stopping running backs in the NFL for the past 14 years.

"He's a crafty veteran who can smell out a play soon as we lineup," Bugel said.

The Redskins, 15-2, go into Sunday's championship with a 10-game winning streak. The 49ers, who edged Detroit 24-23, last week to advance to the title game, have won four straight in raising their record to 11-6.

The first meeting between the two teams in three years, it will mark the first time that a conference championship game will feature the winners of the two preceding Super Bowls.

"This will be a classic," said Bugel. "They won a Super Bowl and then we won a Super Bowl. What more can you ask?"

The 49ers were to workout today and Saturday at the University of Maryland.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

WAITING AT THE WELL

THE WELL WAS OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO THE PEOPLE IN ANCIENT BIBLE LANDS. WELLS WERE OFTEN SCOOPED OUT OF THE SANDY SOIL BY THOSE WHO KNEW OF THE PRESENCE OF WATER. OTHER WELLS WERE DUG OUT OF THE LIMESTONE ROCK IN THE HILLY PALESTINE COUNTRY. NO MATTER WHERE THE WELL HAPPENED TO BE, IT WAS THE CENTER OF ACTIVITY FOR THE PEOPLE, WHO NEEDED ITS WATERS TO LIVE. BECAUSE ALL PEOPLE HAD TO COME TO THE WELLS THEY BECAME A COMMON MEETING PLACE. A PERFECT ILLUSTRATION OF THIS IS THE ACCOUNT OF ELIEZER, ABRAHAM'S STEWARD, WHO WAS SEARCHING OUT A BRIDE FOR ISAAC, ABRAHAM'S SON. (GEN. 24) BEING IN A LAND NOT HIS OWN, ELIEZER KNEW HE COULD ASK DIRECTIONS, OR INQUIRE AFTER THOSE HE WANTED TO MEET AT THE COMMUNITY MEETING PLACE---THE WELL! AS ON A CERTAIN DAY.....

ELIEZER AND HIS PARTY WAIT WITH PATIENCE FOR THE WOMEN TO COME AND DRAW THE EVENING WATER, FOR IT IS STRICT ETIQUETTE OF THESE ANCIENT DAYS THAT A STRANGER NEVER TAKES WATER FROM A WELL THAT DOES NOT BELONG TO HIM, BUT WAITS UNTIL IT IS OFFERED TO HIM AND HIS ANIMALS !

Gjoni Prend Bardh, 37, had been shot twice in the heart and twice in the abdomen at close range, said Clarkstown Police Chief G.R. Schnakenberg in a telephone interview Wednesday.

Bardh had testified for the prosecution in 1981 against Mike Hakaj, owner of the Italian Village Restaurant in Boone Mall. He said Hakaj had promised him $50,000 to burn the restaurant. Watauga County District Attorney J. Thomas Rusher said Hakaj was acquitted of arson, conspiracy, burning an occupied building and intent to defraud an insurance company. But Rusher said those charges were still pending against Bardh.

Professional Acting Program Established At ECU

CEDRIC WINCHELL

A new degree is being offered by the East Carolina University Department of Theater Arts which is designed to teach people how to function as professional actors. Called Professional Actor Training, the program is based on the Stanislavski System and the teaching principles of both Sanford and Lee Strasberg.

The need for a revamped acting program has been on the minds of theater faculty at ECU for a long time. According to Edgar Loessin, chairperson of the department, "The core of an theater department has to be the acting classes because acting is, in a sense, what it's all about. Everything that everybody else does in the theater really is to help the actor do the playwright's words. It begins with the word, I guess, but finally, no matter how great the scenery is, how beautiful the lighting or costumes are, or how brilliant the direction is,

it's still the actors who make it happen."

Not Easy

Setting up a new acting program has not been easy. One problem, Loessin states, is finding faculty who agree philosophically with each other so that there is a sense of continuity. In the past, this has not always happened.

Dr. Cedric Winchell, associate professor in charge of the acting program, remembers how instructors having different teaching philosophies helped cause problems in the teaching of advanced acting.

"The beginning acting was taught by two, sometimes three people; sometimes we'd have transfer students; sometimes we'd have people who had studied two or three years before and come back to school. So, I would start every semester (of advanced acting) saying, 'Who did you study with?' I had no commonality of any of the students," Winchell said.

With the installation of a program based on the Stanislavski System, such problems will cease to exist. The key word for the new training is practical. Unlike some academic methods of teaching which rely on textbooks and don't possess a real, basic understanding of studio work, this program will enable a student to train in a way that will increase his employment potential when he leaves school and enters the marketplace.

Biehn Returned

Don Biehn, who formerly taught at ECU, has returned after studying in New York and redeveloping a program at West Virginia University, as well as initiating an MFA program there. He explained the degree's content.

During the freshman year, the student is prepared both athletically and mentally. Athletic preparation involves getting the body responsive to immediate stimuli. Coordination work and responsive work can involve activities such as swordplay or juggling, which help quicken and sharpen a person's reaction time.

Mental preparation involves making the student more aware of the life that surrounds him. He begins to study other people and their behaviors so that he'll start becoming more sensitive to the human condition.

Meisner Method

Following the preparation is two years of work based on the Sanford Meisner method. The student begins by learning to free himself emotionally, getting back in touch with the child that exists in everyone. Steady use of repetition aids the student in this effort. With the assistance of a partner, he relies on using the same phrases and sentences over and over again, so that he can get in touch with his emotions instead of thinking about words. It is imperative that the emphasis be on feeling, as thinking inhibits both emotional freedom and honest reactions toward one's partner. The student does what his partner make him do — in voice reflection, and in physical and emotional reactions. Focusing on the partner has an additional benefit: it helps prevent the students from feeling self-conscious since his attention is drawn away from himself. Once he develops ability to freely react and use immediate impulses without thinking, he is ready for the work of the second semester which focuses on emotional preparation and defining relationships.

Preparation

Emotional preparation is what an actor does to himself before a scene begins so that he is already emotionally alive when he comes into a scene. For example, if a situation involves his coming home from the funeral of his father, he must come on stage with the emotion that would exist in someone whose father had really died and left him.

Defining relationships is the other goal of the second semester. For example, a conventional relationship between two characters in a play being done by the actor might be that of husband and wife. However, in defining the real relationship in the play, the actor may see that it is actually that of mother and son, due to the female character's mothering of her husband who, himself, is rather submissive and loyal to her in an unusual way. In order to truthfully act out the scene, the actor must get in touch with the real relationship that is there and work with that.

The third semester has the student continuing to work with inner life and truthful emotions, while he begins to stretch into character work. It's rare these days for this kind of work to be done. There are so many actors in the profession now that a director can cast according to type. Character work is a very rare ability and talent which the faculty chooses to have developed in the ECU program so that the actor will be able to do particular and very difficult work.

Works With Partner

For the first three semesters, each student works with a partner. It is the belief of Sanford Meisner that an actor should work with someone for this long before acting alone. During the fourth semester, however, solo work does occur. It is during the second year the actor discovers that 85 percent of his work is done at home, not at rehearsal. Unlike members of many amateur groups who come in to rehearse and experiment, a professional actor must work with a limited amount of time. In the professional world, rehearsals can be as short as two days, so the actor must be able to come into his job already prepared with the life of the character he is portraying.

The fourth semester involves monologue work. By this time, the student has been given the tools to learn how to interpret a piece and make it his own. For the first time, he is working off his own impulses instead of those of his partner. Monologue work is the hardest work there is in this field, but it is the way an actor is hired, so he must be capable of doing it well.

The final year of the degree program is advanced acting, which enables a student to master his craft.

In addition to the intensive acting training, the student will take voice and speech courses, dance courses and other classes that will more fully develop him professionally.

Trained Faculty

A very trained and experienced faculty will work with the prospective actors. In addition to Don Biehn and Cedric Winchell, the instructors include master ballet teacher and choreographer Mavis Ray, speech

"The core of any theater department has to be the acting classes because acting is, in a sense, what it's all about. Everything that everybody else does in the theater really is to help the actor do the playwright's words.

"It begins with the word, I guess, but finally, no matter how great the scenery is, how beautiful the lighting or costumes are, or how brilliant the direction is, it's still the actors who make it happen."

ECU Department
Of Drama and Speech

EDGAR LOESSIN

"that's part of the curriculum. But, once you are 'weeded out,' so to speak ... and put in professional concentration, you're on a railroad track. You can't get off it. If you get off it, you've already lost a year. We make that very clear. You've got to proceed in the sequence the way it's set up."

Department Chairperson Loessin feels that the program will be extremely beneficial for its students.

Solid Foundation

"We can say with all honesty that when we turn out a student who has applied himself to these classes and gone through them, he or she will have had a very, very solid foundation in acting and will have developed a technique or working and a method of approaching the craft," Loessin said.

Reception to the revamping of the acting program has been very good. Loessin, Winchell and Biehn all found theater faculty and students, as well as other members of the university, very supportive.

Spotting Talent

Spotting talent in acting is like seeing it in sports.

"Anyone can learn how to play baseball, but when you see someone who has exceptional talent, you say, 'Now that person can be a professional baseball player.'" The same is true with acting.

"After a certain amount of time in the classroom (using the Meisner technique)," Biehn continues, "even the student himself knows whether he has talent or not ... Anybody can learn how to act, but very few people can do it well."

As the four year program progresses, the attrition rate will increase.

"It will be very natural where certain students will not be responsive to the work so that there will be less students in the third and fourth years of the professional program than there were in the second year," he commented.

"Everybody in this department takes beginning acting," Winchell explains, being taught in another department and that there is enough substance and approach to the course to make it valid for the university.

Program Approved

Various committees studied the revamped program and passed it. Finally, on Dec. 6, 1983, the program was approved by ECU's faculty senate. Pending approval by Chancellor John Howell, the degree will be official.

"We will be unique, certainly in the state," Loessin claims, "and I would say within many universities in offering this specific technique for our students. What our students will get is the same thing that they would get if they went to New York and paid a great deal of money to study at the Neighborhood Playhouse. It's not going to be really any different, and ... since we can augment the acting classes with the other classes we have — the work in speech, and of course we have enlarged our speech program to provide courses for actors specifically — and ... the dance classes ... we feel we have all the necessary teaching opportunities or class opportunities that a student needs."
