Holmes Realigns Police Shifts

"It's kind of like the old neighborhood cop on foot, except the officers will be on a car," Holmes suggested. "The officers will get to know the businesses, get to know the people, get to know the kids."

The Greenville Police Department's uniformed division shift structure will change Jan. 29 in an effort to match people to the workload by time of day and day of week, as much as possible, according to Chief Ted Holmes.

Holmes said the department's present structure of four rotating uniformed shifts, which provide the same number of officers on duty around the clock each day, will change to include three non-rotating shifts, designed to equalize the workload and response time, and maximize officer safety, performance and efficiency.

The coming shift changes are based on a recently completed manpower deployment study supervised by Holmes, who came to Greenville in October of last year after more than a dozen years' work as a police management consultant.

Data for the study, Holmes said, was gathered between

TV Marathon Launches Season

Democrats Hold Debate Today

By EVANS.WITT
Associated Press Writer

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Front-runner Walter F. Mondale braced for political potshots while the long-shot Democratic hopefuls looked for national recognition Sunday in the first presidential debate of 1984 — a three-hour marathon that kicks off the longest series of such confrontations yet faced by American voters.

The debate, co-sponsored by the House Democratic Caucus and Dartmouth College, brings all eight Democratic hopefuls on one stage for the first time, five weeks before the Iowa caucuses and six weeks before the New Hampshire primary.

It will be televised nationally by the Public Broadcast System.

ABC News' "Nightline" anchor Ted Koppel and talk show host Phil Donahue will split the moderator and questioner roles, with Donahue inviting questions from the audience.

Previous debates have featured panels of journalists or academic experts asking questions and some have criticized the format as smacking of show biz.

The cast of candidates brings together Mondale; Sens. John Glenn of Ohio, Gary Hart of Colorado, Alan Cranston of California, and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina; former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew; former South Dakota Sen. George McGovern; and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Generally, the candidates say they are looking forward to the debate, including Mondale, who considered passing it up because of the format.

"Mondale benefits from the contrast every single time he is put up against the others," said Maxine Isaacs, Mondale's press secretary.

But his staff is worried a bit about what the others will do.

"We won't be surprised if the other candidates take shots at us," said Robert Bickle, Mondale's campaign manager. "We expect that everybody is going to have their cannon loaded for us."

The League of Women Voters kicks off its series with a Feb. 23 debate in Manchester, N.H., and follows with one in Atlanta on March 11, two days before the first "Super Tuesday" of the primary season.

The league also has debates set in Pittsburgh on April 5 and Dallas on May 2.

Sunday's debate will be quite different from those of past presidential election years.

For one thing, it will be longer — three hours versus the hour or hour-and-half length of previous meetings. And the questions will not come from a panel. Instead, Koppel will moderate the first half of the show, asking questions and allowing candidates to question each other.

Then Donahue will take over, moving into the audience of 800 gathered in Hopkins Center on the Darmouth campus to find questions for the candidates — a format similar to his syndicated show.

Soldier Claims Activists Hold Him Hostage

SCHWAEBISCH-GMUEND, West Germany (AP) — A U.S. soldier told his wife Saturday that anti-nuclear activists kidnapped him and threatened to kill him unless West Germany removes the new nuclear missiles based here, police said.

Hans-Peter Sturm, a senior police officer in Stuttgart, identified the missing soldier as Lane Fowler, 20. However, another police source who declined to be identified said the soldier's name was Liam Fowler.

The U.S. Army confirmed the soldier was missing but did not give his name or details.

Police said the soldier telephoned his wife at their home in southern Germany at 2:35 a.m Saturday (8:35 p.m. EST Friday) to say six people kidnapped him and threatened to kill him if U.S.-made Pershing 2 missiles were not removed from the Army base where he serves.

A police spokesman in southern Germany, Gerhard Koller, said the soldier told his wife his car, a red Dodge Charger, was rammed from behind by another vehicle and forced to stop.

The soldier said the people got into his car, covered his eyes, then pulled him from the car and took him on a long drive in the other vehicle, according to police.

Koller said police were searching for the soldier's automobile and trying to locate anyone who witnessed the car being rammed. He said the scene of the reported kidnapping was unknown and no trace of the car or witnesses to the abduction were found by Saturday night.

Police sources reported the soldier's wife said he had not spoken clearly and she was unable to understand everything he said.

They said the soldier told his wife during that call that his captors' anti-missile sentiments had to publicized by American media within 72 hours.

Shultz Prepares For Pivotal Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz headed for Europe on Saturday and a pivotal meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko against the backdrop of a 35-nation conference to reduce East-West tensions.

Shultz, whose plane took off from Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington at 8:10 p.m. EST, carried hopes for a thaw in the icy relations between the two superpowers and a resumption of stalled negotiations to reverse the nuclear weapons race. He vowed he would approach Gromyko "in a constructive spirit" when they meet Wednesday in Stockholm, Sweden.

But Shultz left behind an administration report approved by President Reagan and to be sent to Capitol Hill within the week that contends the Soviets have violated at least three arms agreements and most likely ran afoul of others.

"This is not an issue that can be easily swept under the rug," said a senior U.S. official who was insisted on anonymity.

Other than the report, the administration went out of its way to suggest it was ready to turn a new corner in dealing with Moscow.

The administration publicized three days of technical U.S.-Soviet talks on modernizing the so-called "hotline" between the two capitals, and officials said Shultz was prepared to discuss a wide range of issues, including the impasse in arms talks.

ECU Concern For Pay Isn't 'Overwhelming'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

While faculty salaries at East Carolina University — and at other University of North Carolina system campuses too, for that matter — are not near the top nationally, there is apparently no "seething undercurrent of dissatisfaction" in the pay scale.

"North Carolina is not near the top in faculty salaries," Dr. James Smith, chairman of the Faculty Senate at ECU, said last week. "Faculty (members) are always concerned about equity ... concerned about equity from one state to another."

The Faculty Assembly of North Carolina, representing all 16 UNC system campuses, has expresesed concern and is "interested in urging the General Assembly and the General Administration of the University of North Carolina to consider improving" the pay scale, according to Smith.

But Smith said, "I'm not aware of any seething undercurrent of dissatisfaction" at ECU or other UNC campuses. "We're concerned, sure. But it's not anything overwhelming, on the other hand."

Saying that while faculty salaries at ECU are not near the top in the nation, Smith suggested there may be more equality than the figures show, because "the cost of living is higher in other states."

The figures do show that ECU's salaries are not near the top.

ECU Chancellor John Howell, citing a report by the American Association of University Professors, said faculty pay at East Carolina ranks in the mid-range for comprehensive universities nationwide.

"For a long time, salaries in North Carolina and at East Carolina University

New Surgery Takes More Time But Patients Can Recover Faster

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Up to the minute development is the operative phrase in medicine today, according to Dr. Edward O. Janosko II — one of several local urologists now using a new technique to break up and remove kidney stones at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

While the new surgical procedure (called Percutaneous stone removal or Nephrostolithotomy) takes a bit longer than open stone removal, it does decrease time spent in the hospital and the recovery period.

"Percutaneous stone removal takes two to four hours of surgery over a two-day period — an open operation takes anywhere from 30 minutes to three hours on one day," Janosko said. "Therefore the surgical cost is going to be more, but the hospital stay should be shorter and people can go back to work in one week instead of six. There also is essentially no scarring with this new procedure," he said.

Percutaneous stone removal involves making a 3/4-inch incision in the skin on the back through which tubes are inserted in increasing size until the opening through the back and into the kidney is large enough to allow the doctor to remove the stone through the (nephrostomy) tube with a forcep-like instrument. (See corresponding diagram.) If the stone is too large to be taken through the tube, Janosko said ultrasound is used to shatter the stone into more malleable pieces which are then drawn out through the tube.

"However, not all those with kidney stones (said to cause the most excrutiating pain imaginable ... worse than child birth) are candidates for the procedure," Janosko said.

"If the stone is embedded (in the finger-like interior parts of the kidney), if there is a lot of infection, if the stone is way down in the ureter or if there is a problem with the person's physique (obesity), the procedure would not be used," he said.

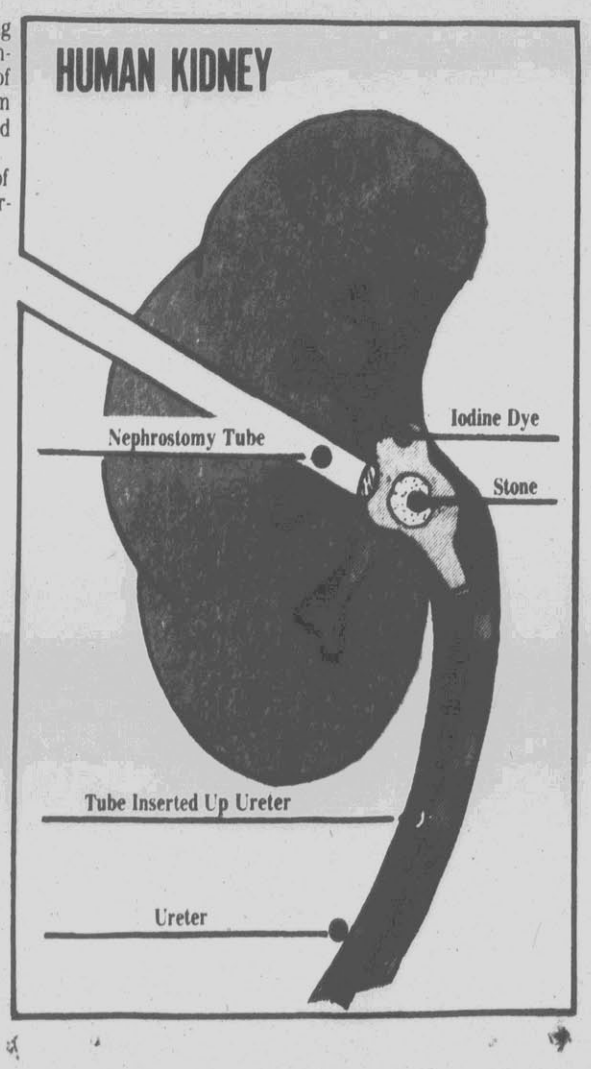

"Also, if a person is experiencing the excruciating kind of pain I described earlier, it's usually too late for percutaneous removal, because that means the stone has passed down into the ureter," he said.

According to Janosko, the reason this type of stone removal was not attempted earlier is that doctors "just didn't like to stick things into kidneys because of the fear of damage." However, recent advances in radiology, catheters, X-ray equipment, lenses and scopes have made the operation possible. "It is a new procedure," he said, "but it is by no means experimental."

The procedure, developed over a period of 15-20 years and first done in Scandinavia in 1976, has been done by Janosko about nine or 10 times since late 1983. He said he has approximately eight more stone removals scheduled for the early future.

"As big a breakthrough as this might be, there are some problems with this type of surgery just

Kevex Donates Research Tool To ECU Med School

By TOM FORTNER
ECU Medical Writer

A West Coast manufacturer of sophisticated electronic equipment has donated one of its major units to the East Carolina University School of Medicine so researchers may explore additional applications of this technology to medicine and biomedical research.

The device, called an Ultra-trace 0600, was donated by Kevex Corp. of Foster City, Calif. Medical school officials estimate the market value of the unit in the range of $130,000.

The Ultra-trace 0600 uses a process known as X-ray fluorescence spectroscopy to analyze the elemental composition of virtually any material. The technique has been used for a number of years in such fields as geology and metallurgy, where bulk samples are analyzed to identify the components of, for instance, mining ore.

"We're planning to explore the application of this kind of analytic technology to the biomedical sciences," said medical school spokesman Dr. Robers G. Crounse. He added that the studies will represent "a new area" of research.

In turn, the scientists will report on their experience with the Ultra-trace 0600 to the Kevex Corp., providing feedback the company will use in product development.

Crounse called the donation "an excellent example of co-operation between industry and academic medicine.

"This was only the second instrument donated by Kevex to an institution related to biomedicine in the United States, so we're extremely fortunate," Crounse said.

The donation was arranged through Dr. Selig R. Gellert of Kevex by Crounse and Dr. John T. Bray, director of the medical school's Trace Element Laboratory. Crounse said the device will be housed in a new shared instrument facility at the medical school for broad use by many departments rather than to support the work of one or two individual scientists.

The Ultra-trace 0600 will allow biomedical scientists to determine the elemental composition of the tiniest samples of organic matter such as a single human hair or a drop of blood serum. By determining the distribution of minerals, metals and trace elements in such samples, they may then be able to delineate imbalances having medical implications.

Once Crounse and Bray are comfortable operating the new equipment, they will invite colleagues from the medical school and from the main ECU campus to take advantage of it in their research. Already the Trace Element Lab is "backed up" with requests from potential users of the new machine, Crounse said.

In Memory Of
JOHN MICHAEL EDMONDSON

Down the aisle of the church I walked
All was hushed--no one talked
A stillness, a sadness filled the air
I felt the pain of the loved ones gathered there
I saw their tears and my eyes were flooded too
Why, oh why, dear Lord, did this have to be true.

The organ, the instrument he loved so well
Was closed, silent, in mute tribute
To the one gone from our midst
Who had coaxed the beautiful notes to swell
Interspersed with the melodious bells
Filling the church with joyful sound.

It was as tho he could see, a Mighty Director of choir
High, lifted up above our heads, in the air
Beckoning the fingers to play
The beautiful notes,
Making our breath catch in our throats
As his fingers played the chords.

He was in his early teens
When the Shepherd of the sheep
Whispered to him then, and now to us all,
My son, follow thou me;
He placed a gentleness within his heart,
A love for life, people, children, flowers and home
And a promise that never from him would he depart.

Jesus the great giver of gifts to this special one
Planted deep within his heart--music
Not to be used for worldly pleasure
Did he use this precious treasure
But, within the church he loved so dear
There he ministered year after year.

Many years ago I heard him say
As his slender fingers upon the organ lay
Mom, I pray to play this organ some day;
God answered his prayer--He realized his dream
His cup did overflow; it seemed
He used this gift in churches far and near
For all who would come and hear.

Today, to his friends he would say--Grieve not for me
Be steadfast and true, let your light shine for all to see,
The master director of choir has need of me;
My music in heaven with joyful sound will ring
For our departed friends and My Lord and King.

Martin Luther King Holiday

Senator Jesse Helms was in Greenville last Friday night and in an address to a crowd of over 500, discussed his opposition to the Martin Luther King Holiday. This additional federal holiday will cost American taxpayers an estimated $5.26 billion per year. Senator Helms reported that many Senators approached him and said, "Jesse, you are absolutely right on this thing but I have to vote for it or the newspapers in my home state will eat me alive." Senator Helms replied, "Well, what do you think they will do to me? If I have to sell my soul to remain in the United States Senate, then the price is too high."

We admire Senator Helms' courage and we are proud to support this man who puts principles above politics. If you are a Republican or Conservative Democrat and want to help in the reelection of Senator Helms, call or write us—we need you!

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Della Moore Kornegay of the home; two sons, Leonard Kornegay of La Grange and Rommie L. Kornegay Jr. of Dudley; four daughters, Ms. Mildred Kornegay, Ms. Katherine Cannon, Mrs. Eloise Kornegay and Mrs. Annie Jones, all of La Grange; a sister, Mrs. Emma Carter of La Grange; three brothers, James Kornegay of Farmville, Nathaniel Kornegay of Youngstown, Ohio, and Phillip Kornegay of Snow Hill; 14 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The body will be on view Sunday from 3-8:30 p.m. at Mitchell's Funeral Home in La Grange.

Smith

Daniel Lee Smith, 31, died Friday at his home in Greenville. A graveside service will be conducted Monday at 11 a.m. in Pinewood Memorial Park by the Rev. Norwood Wiley.

Mr. Smith, a native of Miami, had lived in Illinois prior to moving to Pitt County four years ago. He was employed by Kitchen and Bath Designs.

The family will receive friends at Wilkerson Funeral Home Sunday from 7-9 p.m. and at other times will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Hartman, Pinewood Trailer Park, Lot 17, Ayden.

Wilkins

BALTIMORE — Mr. Edward Lee Wilkins, 55, died Friday. He was the brother of Mrs. Mary Barnhill of Greenville, N.C. Funeral arrangments are incomplete at Hardee's Funeral Home of Greenville.

Williams

GOLD POINT — Mr. Thurman Lee Williams, 73, died Saturday morning in Wake Memorial Hospital. A funeral service will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Monday at Biggs Funeral Chapel in Robersonville by the Rev. Melvin Rawls and the Rev. William Butler. Burial will be in Martin Memorial Gardens, Williamston.

Mr. Williams was a native of Martin County and a member of the Gold Point Church of Christ. He was a charter member of the Gold Point Ruritan Club and of the Gold Point Gun Club.

Surviving are two sons, Delmas Williams of Gold Point and Joe Williams of Greenville; one brother, Jesse Williams of Robersonville; three sisters, Mrs. Lacy Stalls and Mrs. Estelle Blase, both of Robersonville, and Mrs. Addie Geary of Williamston; seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Family visitation will be from 7-9 Sunday at the funeral home.

Six Traffic Accidents Investigated

Greenville police investigated six traffic accidents Friday in which damages exceeded $350.

Cars driven by Lisa Carlene Jackson of Ayden and Curtis Earl Green of 612 S. Pitt St. collided on Dickinson Avenue, causing $450 in damages — $400 to the Jackson car and $50 to the Green vehicle.

Michael Earl Bottoms of Alberta, Va., was charged with a safe movement violation as the result of an accident on Greenville Boulevard involving cars driven by Bottoms and Norman Glen Warren of Route 2, Kenland Manor. Damages to the Warren vehicle were estimated at $500 and $25 to the Bottoms car.

Robin Marie Langley of Conover was also charged with a safe movment violation following an accident involving the car she was driving and a vehicle operated by Paul Simon Antoon of 155 Walnut St. Damages to the Antoon vehicle were estimated at $200 and $2,500 to the Langley car.

A South Memorial Drive accident resulted in $1,100 in damages to vehicles when cars driven by Earl Murphy of Ayden and Edgar William Kilby of Tarboro collided. Murphy was charged with a safe movement violation and Kilby was charged with exceeding a safe speed. Damages to the Murphy car were estimated at $400 and $700 to Kilby's car.

More than $5,000 of damage occurred in a traffic accident on Cotanche Street when cars driven by Williams Russell Petty of 258 Garrett Dorm and Suzanne Moore Shepherd of 231 Country Club Road collided at approximately 6 p.m. — $2,400 to the Petty car and $3,800 to the Shepherd vehicle. Petty was charged with a safe movment violation.

No charges were pressed in a Pitt Street traffic accident when cars driven by Jeffrey Wayne Hunnings of Winterville and Judith M. White of 300 N. Oak St., Apt. 8, collided. Damages to the Hunnings vehicle were estimated at $1,500 and $900 to the White car.

Pioneer French Pilot Dies

PARIS (AP) — Maurice Bellonte, one of the pioneers of French aviation who made the first non-stop trans-Atlantic flight from Paris to New York in 1930, died Saturday at his home in Paris, family members said. He was 87.

Funeral services had not been set, but the family said they probably would take place in Les Invalides, the French military memorial and museum, at a date to be announced later.

On Sept. 1-2, 1930, Bellonte and Dieudonne Costes, aboard the Breguet biplane Point d'Interrogation (Question Mark), made aviation history with their trans-Atlantic flight.

One year earlier, he established, also with Costes, the world distance record over a straight line by flying from Paris to Tsitsihar, China, a 4,940-mile flight. In November of the same year, he made the first flight from Hanoi to Paris.

Bellonte was born Oct. 25, 1896, in Meru and was a combat pilot in World War I. He was part of the First French Aviation Group, based at Dijon, before being sent first to the French front and then to Morocco.

Beginning in 1928, he was in charge of organizing the Breguet company's long test and publicity flights. He also developed new methods of navigation and radio systems.

School Officials Skipped Chance To Give Advice

Imagine standing in total darkness. Suddenly one spark ignites and for a brief instant, everything that was shrouded by the darkness is illuminated.

Many such sparks were struck at a recent regional public hearing on education held locally by the North Carolina Commission on Education and Economic Growth. Despite the all-too-true, yet all-too-familiar cries of "teachers need more money" and "educators need less paperwork," most ideas expounded at the hearing were fresh, exciting, meaningful, even inspirational, to anyone remotely interested in the future of education in this state.

Special incentives to attract superior teachers to isolated, often-neglected rural counties, where the hypothetical "darkness" is least penetrable, were proposed, along with the use of computer lines between schools and county offices to reduce despised and frequently time-wasting paperwork. Both suggestions are innovative and suggest concrete solutions to complex problems.

It should boost anyone calling Pitt County home to know that most of these suggestions came from local professionals in the field of education. In addition, an overwhelming number of Pitt Countians, some educators, some parents and some just plain citizens, were at the hearing to absorb what was said and cast their lot with the future of education.

What was missing from the hearing, which had so much to offer the remote, sparsely populated counties in the outlying areas of eastern North Carolina, was the presence of leaders from these areas.

Never mind that half the jam-packed auditorium was from Pitt County and the other half from Craven or Lenoir or Onslow counties. What about Columbus, the third largest county in the state, or tiny Currituck or even nearby Martin and Bertie counties? Were there leaders from these communities at the hearing and if there were, why didn't they take this opportunity to bend Gov. Jim Hunt's ear?

No county will ever have an adequate supply of superior teachers until every teacher in every county is superior. We feel that Pitt has a generous share of the excellence but worry that other counties, because of special problems, do not. We have leaders with vision here, but they were not given to us. They were developed through a series of sparks that created a permanent light.

We, the counties with the so-called advantages, must share responsibility for ensuring that sparks fly in each of these special, geographically distant areas.

Six hours is a long time for weary teachers or administrators to drive on a school day just to get a glimmer of inspiration. But one carload of motivation can make a world of difference in an otherwise unaroused county.

Sunday Morning Notes

The rains came in buckets last Tuesday night, but fortunately the temperatures were above normal for this time of the year so the rain remained just that, rather than turning to snow.

Not so, farther north. In fact, a Washington, D.C., television station was telling viewers on the 10 o'clock news to stay inside. Accu mulations of up to six inches of snow were being predicted.

Washington is not that far away from Greenville, but by the luck of our location there is frequently snow in northern Virginia when it is raining here.

It recalled for your columnist Army basic training at Fort Belvoir, Va., which was as far north as I had ever spent any length of time at that point in my life. The snows came regularly and the army training didn't cease because of them.

One day it snowed all day while we were in the field for training. We had come over a hill that morning and we were marched back up the hill upon returning that evening. There was no getting up the hill covered with several inches of snow and finally the entire company was stacked up at the bottom after valiantly trying. That accomplished, the sergeants in charge regrouped us and marched the company around the hill.

Snows also developed frequently to the west of Greenville. Often it will be raining here while snow or sleet is falling as nearby as Rocky Mount. That accounts for the frequent warnings about travel conditions to the west, when all we are seeing here is a cold rain. All of which suggests that, under such conditions, it might be best to stay home.

One freak condition we occasionally see, however, is the winter low which sneaks up from the south, combines with a cold high from the north and produces a late winter snow. Sometimes western North Carolina and the Piedmont are spared such blows. Easterners, already indoctrinated for spring, suddenly find themselves shoveling the first snow of the year.

The final conclusion is the weather is most unpredicable here. While we often find ourselves reading about our neighbors' snow when it only rains here, it is prudent to be prepared. Almost surely there is snow ahead for this winter.

Expenses

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The political committee formed for Gov. Jim Hunt's 1980 re-election campaign continued to raise money last year to support Hunt's political activities.

The Jim Hunt Committee raised $45,521 last year and spent $31,789, according to reports filed this month with the State Board of Elections.

The money was used to pay for travel, postage and telephone bills and other expenses for Hunt's 1983 political activities. Those expenses could not be paid from state funds because they did not involve official duties.

"That's where we paid for all his expenses that were primarily political," said Gary Pearce, Hunt's news secretary. "Anything that was a political expense was paid for out of a separate account."

The state report shows the committee also purchased a car that had been leased from a Raleigh company.

The committee, registered under state campaign laws, will close down when Hunt announces next month for the U.S. Senate, said Stephanie Bass, a spokesman for the exploratory committee formed last year to begin organizing Hunt's challenge to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

"The Jim Hunt Committee will be merged with the Senate campaign account under the laws governing transfer of funds," Ms. Bass said.

As a Senate candidate, Hunt's campaign will be covered by federal campaign finance laws, which require all finances be handled through a single account.

Another state committee, the Friends of Jim Hunt, closed down at the end of 1983, according to reports filed with the state. The committee was formed in 1977 to receive small donations and support Hunt's political activities.

The Friends of Jim Hunt received no contributions during 1983 and spent the $910 left in its account, according to a final report filed with the state. The expenditures included $497 for postage, $13 for rental of a post office box and $400 for bookkeeping services.

The report filed by the Jim Hunt Committee listed $5,455 in payments for postage and post office box rentals. The postage was used for political mailings by Hunt.

The committee also reimbursed the state $5,342 for occasions when Hunt traveled in a state-owned airplane. Another $1,695 was spent for travel by the governor and aides on commercial airlines.

Pearce said reimbursements were paid to the state in cases where the governor traveled in the state plane on official business and also attended political functions at his destination.

He cited a trip to Washington for a National Governor's Conference meeting when Hunt also attended a political fund-raiser.

The committee's report also listed a total of $3,638 in payments to Leith Leasing Co. of Raleigh for a Fiat leased by the committee.

The costs included monthly lease payments plus a final balloon payment to purchase the car, which was used by the governor and his family for non-official travel.

The car also was driven occasionally by Hunt's son, James B. Hunt III, a student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Other expenditures by the committee included $2,650 to Southern Bell Telephone Co. and $2,000 to pay Hunt's membership dues in the Democratic Governors Association.

Schools Play Major Role In Hunt Campaign

RALEIGH — Opponents of a merit pay plan for teachers argue that, given the many ways to evaluate a teacher's performance, it would be nearly imposssible to assure that the most deserving teachers get the best salaries.

Voters in North Carolina might better understand that arguments this year as they assess the education performance of their governor and try to decide if he deserves a seat in the U.S. Senate.

Gov. Jim Hunt has long promoted himself as a champion of public education. He lists his achievements for the public schools as the brightest spot on his record of 12 years in the state's top two elected offices. But a report out from the U.S. Education Secretary Terrel Bell gave North Carolina a report card that any child would quickly hide under his pillow in fear of getting a whupping from dad.

As reported by The Associated Press, North Carolina stands in the bottom half of the states in five key education areas.

Bell's report found that North Carolina's average Scholastic Aptitude Test score ranked 19th among the 21 states and District of Columbia which administer the test. (In 29 other states, a different "college board" exam is given.)

The report also found that the average teacher salary in North Carolina ranked 29th among the states, that the state ranked 41st among the states in its high school graduation rate, that the pupil-teacher ratio was 38th and the average per-pupil expenditure was 36th.

Hunt was asked about this report card at a recent press conference. He agreed that the state had plenty of room for improvement but he also repeated some of the statistics which shine favorably on North Carolina. For example, he said, test scores show that second grade students in the state now read at a level almost a year ahead of the national average. Math scores for elementary students are up, and scores are rising on the high school competency test. Later, his aides added that the drop-out rate has dropped five points since 1977 and that SAT scores are leveling off.

Hunt said that Bell's rankings also showed that North Carolina has improved when measured against other states. For example, the state moved from 46th to 41st in graduate rates over the past 10 years. Teacher pay, over the same period, moved from 27th to 29th and the pupil-teacher ratio was down, even though the state's ranking hadn't changed.

Claude Allen, press secretary to Sen. Jesse Helms' re-election campaign, says Helms will make a point of these education figures in their upcoming campaign. "That report confirms our suspicions ... that Governor Hunt has blown a lot of hot air on (education)," Allen said. He promised that Hunt's attempts to claim credit for education improvements would be turned against him.

Jackson May Have Opened Door To Negotiations

WASHINGTON — Contrary to views of downbeat Foggy Bottom bureaucrats, White House insiders privately credit Jesse Jackson with opening a negotiating door to Syrian President Hafez Assad that has yeilded its first dividend: a confidential letter from Assad to Ronald Reagan.

The letter was read in the Oval Office as strictly upbeat, a mood matching that of the U.S. Embassy in Damascus, where the Syrian leader had his message delivered with unusually friendly flourishes.

What pleased Reagan most was Assad's promise to see Mideast presidential envoy Donald Rumsfeld, who was denied entree during his last visit. That guarantees the long-sought Assad-Rumsfeld parley and, in White House eyes, opens the possiblity of negotiations between the U.S. and Syria. Without some compromises, no possibility exists for Reagan to withdraw the Marines from Beirut without creating more chaos in Lebanon.

The reopening of talks between the U.S. and Syria comes none too soon. On Capitol Hill, those Republican leaders who have made the most serious analysis of political liabilities to their party from the Leathernecks-in-Lebanon issue say privately that March is the terminal point for the Marines' timely withdrawal. Continued deployment beyond that will hand the Democratic candidates at all levels an issue of damaging magnitude.

Thus, on the basis of early returns Reagan is using Jackson's daring dip into big-time diplomacy as an instrument that could lead to saving administration policy in the Middle East.

The president immediately jumped to turn Jackson's breakthrough to his own advantage. He told Assad in an unpublished letter that Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr.'s freedom offered Reagan a chance to "communicate" directly with Assad. That letter also complimented the Syrian for his apparent return to good health.

Considering the low esteem in which Assad is held on in some State Department offices and by some of Reagan's favorite political cronies, the president's effort to turn Jackson's triumph to U.S. advantage was a political gamble. White House aides knew that Assad could have ridiculed Reagan by contrasting the adminstration's failure to free Goodman with Jackson's success.

But such a Syrian ploy was ruled out in the White House, if not the State Department (where high officials had warned Jackson before he left Washington there was no chance Assad would deliver Goodman).

One reason presidential aides were more buoyant than cautious diplomats at State was private assurance from Assad to U.S. Ambassador Robert Paganelli that the release of Goodman should not be seen as a slap at Reagan. The Syrian president sent word to Paganelli that Reagan's own "gestures" to Syria were also a factor in Goodman's release.

Reagan will use his new line of diplomatic credit with Damascus by quietly pressing Assad to ease way from his demand for total abrogation of the May 17 Israeli troop-withdrawal agreement with Lebanon. "The only way to handle May 17 is with mirrors," one U.S. official told us.

The first mirror will be taken into Assad's office by Rumsfeld soon: an Israeli agreement to pull back its troops from the Awali River if the latest peace plan for Lebanon can show signs of working.

Buy any peace plan for Lebanon is a mirage without the blessing and active support of Assad. Rumsfeld's offer of Israeli troop withdrawal — without concurrent Syrian withdrawal — could persuade Syria to restrain anti-government forces in Lebanon and create more political stability.

Dawdling Hurts Congress

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Congress always winds up near the bottom of those polls that measure confidence in public institutions. Even the much-maligned press ranks higher than the Congress, and only lawyers and labor unions rank lower.

Why the low esteem? Observers offer several reasons. The high costs of political campaigning leave an impression that many members are bought by their big contributors. Congress takes long vacations, and members seem forever to be junketing abroad. An occasional scandal stains the image of integrity. All these things matter, but my own thought is that the people are disgusted with Congress for one overriding reason: Members will not do the work they are well paid to do.

Many examples of ineptitude could be cited. Let me dwell upon only one — reform of our bankruptcy law. It is not the sexiest subject ever addressed, but it is of critical importance to the 551,000 persons and firms (and their creditors) who went into bankruptcy last year. Moreover, blame for the mess rests squarely upon Congress.

This is the situation. In 1978, after 10 years of study, Congress made comprehensive revisions in the then-existing bankruptcy system. The 1978 act abolished the old bankruptcy "referees" and provided new bankruptcy "courts" in their place. The courts were to be presided over by "judges," and the law spelled out the terms and conditions under which the judges were to sit.

Now, Article III of the Constitution seems to be explicit on the matter of federal judges. They are to serve, in effect, for life. They can be removed only by impeachment. Their salaries never can be reduced. But Article I of the Constitution also appears to permit the creation of certain specialized courts of limited jurisdiction, and by inference it may be supposed that the judges of Article I courts may be differently treated.

The judgeships that were created under the 1978 act had none of the protections provided by Article III. Bankruptcy judges were to serve for terms of 14 years; they could be removed by judicial councils; their salaries were to be adjusted under general law. Yet the new courts were to have broad jurisdiction over everything related to a bankruptcy proceeding. They were granted all the "powers of a court of equity, law and admiralty." The judges could issue writs of habeas corpus, and they could punish for contempt of court.

Congress was abundantly warned at the time the 1978 bill was pending that the judgeship provisions could be held unconstitutional. So it turned out. On June 28, 1982, in what is known as the Northern Pipeline case, the Supreme Court ruled 6-3 that the bankruptcy judges had been granted the powers of Article III judges but had been denied the protections due them. A key section of the act was held void.

The high court acknowledged the hardship and confusion that would be created by its decision. Therefore the court stayed its order for four months, until Oct. 24, 1982, so that Congress would amend the law, either by restricting the powers of the new judges or by giving them full protection under Article III.

Congress wasted the opportunity. In October the court reluctantly granted another stay, this time to Dec. 24, 1982. Again Congress dawdled. Attorney General William French Smith pleaded in vain that congressional inaction was creating an intolerable situation for those involved in bankruptcy cases. Members could not have cared less. Democrats were unwilling to give President Reagan a chance to nominate 200 Article III judges. Various special interests wanted changes in other parts of the act. Thus all of 1983 passed into limbo.

That is where bankruptcy law stands today — in limbo. Most of the old referees still are sitting as judges under an emergency rule, but it is anyone's guess if their decisions are valid. The situation invites chaos. But will the incoming Congress do its job anytime soon? Don't hold your breath.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Once again Pactolus Elementary School volunteers have contributed time and talents to enriching and expanding our students' learning environment. From the legends of Dracula to the realm of computers, our volunteer speakers conducted our students on a never-ending learning adventure.

Through the Adopt-A-School program, our students' health needs were assessed by student nurses from the East Carolina University School of Nursing. Parents were contacted by phone and home visits when health problems were revealed. Carol Cox, from the School of Nursing, and some of the graduate nursing presented a series of faculty seminars on school health issues. Dr. James Markello of the ECU School of Medicine, Department of Pediatrics, also participated in these seminars and contacted parents of children with specific health needs.

These special volunteers worked to ensure that our students are physically prepared for learning. Our faculty and students witnessed the acts of caring and sharing. What a valuable lesson we have learned. Helping hands and loving hearts are what life is all about.

To the editor:

Having recently read my friend Luther Moore's letter to the Public Forum about the excellent care he received while a patient at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the unselfish devotion shown by Mr. Eli Bloom to those who are in the hospital, I felt it necessary to add my own commendations to the staff members and other workers. I, too, received the utmost medical care and constant dedicated attention during my stay at the hospital in December 1982. For all of this, I am very thankful.

In addition, I would like to add much praise for my friend of many years, Mr. Eli Bloom, who so unselfishly goes about giving his time to make the hospital atmosphere even friendlier and warmer. This warmth which radiates from his smile and handshake has done much, I am sure, to cheer many who otherwise would have found the hospital a formidable place.

In contrast to the previous positive cheerful thought, I continue, however, to be reminded of those negative aspects of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital System in Mr. Fred T. Brown's letter of Dec. 25, 1983. In admitting that specific charges (already stated in another of my letters to the Forum) were correct and approved by the Finance Committe, the Board of Trustees and North Carolina Blue Cross-Blue Shield, I now wonder if the time period of 51 minutes was included in the explanation of the charges for the particular patient involved.

Medicare is predicted to be depleted by 1990 at the latest. With bills of over $4,000 for 51 minutes of medical care occurring seemingly frequently, will Medicare still be there in 1990?

Another cause to think!

Columnists Raise Query On Drivers

WASHINGTON — Something has bugged us for a long time, but seemed unsuited for our comment. Nevertheless, we've decided that the nation's interest, let alone our own, demands debate on one of the more serious safety hazards on American highways: elderly drivers.

This call to action was inspired the other night as one of us was driving home from work. Waiting at a stop light, he suddenly heard the unnerving sound of another car slowly grinding along his automobile's left side. He opened his car door, looked first for possible damage and then at the driver behind the other car's wheel. The culbrit bore a startling resemblance to Florida's keen-minded octogenarian, Rep. Claude Pepper.

But there was nothing alert about Pepper's look-alike. He seemed oblivious even to the elderly lady sitting beside him. Fortunately for both drivers concerned, the damage was too slight (a broken tail-light) to make an issue of the accident and involve their insurance companies (they probably would have increased each driver's rates anyhow).

Drivers throughout America have probably encountered similarly frustating incidents. One need not live in Sun City, Ariz., or drive aggressively to understand the hazards and headaches thay many motorists must endure when senior citizens take the wheel. In fact, though elderly drivers are involved in a minor share of U.S. automobile mishaps every year, their accident rate in terms of miles driven makes them as dangerous as 16-year-old boys.

But according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) only three states — Illinois, Maine and New Hampshire — and the District of Columbia require "road tests" in cases where the license renewal applicant is over 65. While some states require vision or general physical examinations, 20 don't even ask that.

One need not wonder why this dearth of precaution continues. Retired persons' groups have been in the forefront of a movement to rid state law books of age-related tests on grounds that the examinations were discriminatory. Indeed, in North Carolina they were a key factor in the state Legislature's decision to remove parallel parking from the state driver's examination, even though NHTSA had found a correlation between poor parallel parking performance and involvement in automobile accidents.

It's against this backdrop that CBS News' "60 Minutes" attempted to point out problems of elderly drivers last November with a segment, "Too Old To Drive?" If nothing else, the program (reported by Harry Reasoner, a clever choice) illustrated how old age can undermine a good driver's most important assets — vision and coordination — as effectively as alcohol and narcotics, and with similarly tragic results. (In one Miami accident, an 81-year-old woman ran into a sidewalk bench full of people, killing three and injuring five, yet later declared under oath that she couldn't remember the accident.)

The "60 Minutes"' conclusion was evident in the comments of judges, bus drivers and even some interview subjects over 65: states should deny licenses to those for whom old age is sufficiently incapacitating.

Although CBS says "Too Old to Drive?" sparked a normal flow of letters both pro and con, the segment gave strong reasons to focus on elderly drivers in the movement to make U.S. roads less hazardous.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) and similar groups could argue that their efforts have been a far more important factor in reducing the number of traffic casualties nationwide. After all, according to NHTSA estimates, 60 percent of all fatally injured drivers are found to have been legally intoxicated (.10 percent blood alcohol content); the College of American Pathologists recently reported that drinking drivers are involved in nine out of 10 fatal traffic accidents.

But highway safety crusaders risk zealotry in focusing exclusively on one side of the dangerous driver equation. If their efforts are to be comprehensive, they need to be equitable. Whether the impairment is chemically induced or simply old age, persons who lack the physical and mental skills essential for driving don't belong on the road.

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — The 1984 presidential election year opens on a cheerful political note for President Reagan. He makes his best showing to date in test races against his cnief Democratic rivals Walter Mondale and John Glenn.

Reagan leads Mondale 51 percent to 44 percent among registered voters. His best previous race since these tests were started on a regular basis in 1982 was in September when the two men were in a statistical tie.

The president leads Glenn by a 49 percent to 45 percent vote, a margin that is small enough to be a statistical tie. Reagan's best previous showing against Glenn was in November when they each received the support of 47 percent of registered voters.

Analysis of the strength of support given Mondale and Glenn shows a similar lack of commitment to either Democratic hopeful. In the case of both Mondale and Glenn, those who strongly support them are outnumbered 2-to-1 by those who only moderately back them in test races against Reagan.

In contrast, Reagan supporters are 2-to-1 on the strong over moderate side.

Here is the question:

"Suppose the 1984 presidential election were being held today. If President Reagan were the Republican candidate and (Walter Mondale/Sen. John Glenn) were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?" Those who were undecided were asked: 'As of today, do you lean more to Reagan, the Republican, or to (Mondale/Glenn), the Democrat?"

Following are the latest standings and trends:

Reagan vs. Mondale
(Based on registered voters)

	Reagan	Mondale	Other, undecided
Dec. 9-12	51%	44%	5%
Nov. 18-21	47	48	5
Oct. 7-10	44	50	6

The latest trial heat findings are based on in-person interviews with 1,119 registered voters. The nomination test is based on interviews witn 613 Democrats. The interviews were conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across tne nation during the period Dec. 9-12.

For results based on the sample of registered voters, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be 3 percentage points in either direction. The possible effect for the Democrat sample is plus or minus 5 points.

Awards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anne C. Lewis, editor of "Education USA," gave her funnybone a workout this week, passing out the newspaper's 1983 dubious distinction awards."

Anonymous California high school students who fired a shotgun into the computer holding their poor-attendance records were named by Ms. Lewis to a "sign of the times award." Other awards went to:

— An unidentified Virginia school district which purchased Breathalyzers to test students for alcohol use before they entered schools.

— A Michigan district which set up metal detectors to test for weapons.

Ms. Lewis admits education's nothing to laugh at. But she says rib-tickling things do happen. She likes to focus on them, with help from her newspaper staff in Arlington, Va., every January.

"People in education are like people anywhere," she said. "They make goofs and can laugh at themselves or cause other people to laugh at them.

"It's good to laugh at yourself now and then."

She created a "getting a toe-hold-on award" this year for "the Rhode Island school board chairperson who refused to wear shoes at board meetings."

She named the National Advisory Council on Women's Educational Programs to the "skirt the issue award." The citation said the group skirted the issue by refusing to discuss its top agenda — Title IX, the part of the Civil Rights law that prohibits discrimination against women in education.

In the fifth annual strewing of the dubious distinction awards there also were two "preservation of childhood" awards.

One went to the Tennessee families who sued their school district for allowing the reading of "Goldilocks and the Three Bears." Ms. Lewis said they claimed the story is anti-religious because Goldilocks isn't punished for breaking into the bears' house.

A "stating the obvious award" was reserved for a Farm Bureau official who told an audience at a school board meeting — "Education is important."

The "grand prize plucked eagle award" for 1983 — and for the third year in a row — went to the Reagan Administration and some of its individuals for a "continually astonishing performance."

"A special 'let them eat ketchup' version of this award to White House Counselor Edwin Meese for remarking there are no hungry people in the United States," Ms. Lewis said.

Also listed for a plucked eagle award was Alfred Regnery, head of the federal Office of Juvenile Justice, "for the bumper sticker on his car that read: 'Have you slugged your kid today?'"

Ms. Lewis said President Reagan was named to a special plucked-eagle award "for his response to the National Commission on Excellence in Education report — to continue to work for passage of tuition tax credits, vouchers, school prayer... none of which were advocated in the report."

Ms. Lewis said the awards take the place of tongue-in-cheek education reports she used to do at the start of each new year.

"They were written tongue-in-cheek but education is so serious," she said, "the new year imaginings tended to be taken as truth.

"One year, for example, we did a tongue-in-cheek report on some alleged Harvard research.

"We said, 'According to a longitudinal study by Harvard University of several thousand Boston school children a statistically significant improvement in math skills takes place between kindergarten and the twelfth grade.'

"I can't tell you how many requests we had for more information on the study. That's when we decided to try to highlight real happenings rather than write about imaginary ones.

"What dubious distinction award sticks most in Ms. Lewis' mind when she runs past previous ones?

"It's got to be the school principal who one year sent another school principal a belly dancer, timed to arrive during a PTA meeting," she said.

Strike Causes Can Surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — A study of why workers strike has produced the tantalizing theory that most walkouts originate in matters having little to do with money or benefits.

That conclusion is certain to come as a surprise to many corporate chiefs, and probably to union leaders as well, because strikes inevitably seem to focus on the so-called dollar issues.

Woodruff Imberman, a consultant, claims the seeds of strikes are sowed when workers' "needs, wants and ideas go unheard, unheeded or unanswered," leaving them to see managers as adversaries.

Imberman's study, reported in the latest issue of the Harvard Business Review, is considered especially significant in view of the relationship of strikes to defense buildups, such as the one now under way.

Seeking to determine what breaks the peace, Imberman looked for distinctions in 28 "strike" companies and 28 unionized "non-strike" companies. He found quantitative differences in five areas:

— How grievances are handled.
— Third-shift working conditions.
— Frequency of and attitudes toward overtime.
— Use of seniority in consideration for promotion.
— Methods of disciplinary action.

In strike-prone plants, Imberman found that management stressed the letter of the contract must be observed and that managers took the position that the purchase of labor under the contract was the same as buying a ton of coal.

That position, he found, led to foremen making little effort to resolve problems, instead telling workers to file grievances. Moreover, management responded more slowly in the strike plants.

The "foresaken third shift," he found, was a source of much discontent that eventually developed into thoughts of strikes.

Attitudes on the third shift are considered a sensitive indicator of how rank and file feel about management, and hence of a plant's strike potential.

The reasons are many: Equipment, materials, parts and tools are often faulty, misplaced or scarce, and maintenance is often poor in strike-prone companies. Foremen are inexperienced. Personnel representatives are rare.

Research showed that companies not prone to strikes had far fewer complaints from the third shift than did the strike-prone companies, where irritations festered.

Overtime, Imberman found, provides a sometimes overlooked area of irritation. As expected, extra pay for working overtime is generally welcomed by workers, but "prolonged overtime is another story."

Too-frequent overtime, he found, tended to make workers increasingly irritable and led to their loss of control over children, household chores and personal business, as well as to general discord at home.

Nevertheless, Imberman found that strike-prone companies inclined to insist on overtime rather than hiring additional workers. In contrast, other companies periodically suspended overtime, enabling workers to plan outside activities.

"Grievances over seniority are a vexing source of anti-management sentiment," Imberman said.

In the 28 strike-prone plants, union leaders accepted no deviations from the seniority rule — applied to promotions, layoffs and recalls — because they distrusted management's motives.

Imberman found the non-strike plants operate differently, in part because labor and management were able to discuss matters. About three-quarters of the plants had job-posting rules, but union committees and management often were able to reach understandings rather than rigidly following the postings.

The study found that attitudes toward discipline also varied between strike and non-strike plants.

In 12 strike plants, the foreman could effectively terminate a worker's employment, although official firing was handled by the personnel department or plant manager.

However, in only once instance in the non-strike plants did the foreman have such power. In the other 27 non-strike companies the foreman's hands were tied in one way or another on the matter of termination, Imberman said.

Reagan's Stand On China Takes A Turn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ronald Reagan who welcomed Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang to the White House last week seemed light years removed from the ideologue whose allegiance to Taiwan has cast a shadow over U.S.-Sino relations for three years.

In praising "the courage and foresight of those who opened the doors" to full diplomatic relations in 1979, Reagan crossed another threshold of the difficult but inevitable political conversion that began before he took office.

This was, after all, the same Reagan to whom thought of rapprochement with the communist government on the mainland once was anathema, his loyalty to the nationalists on Taiwan unqualified and unquestioned.

As the process instigated by Richard Nixon moved toward consummation in 1978, Reagan said President Carter appeared "willing to pay the price Peking has put on normalization, though it is hard to see what is in it for us."

Even as recognition of the sole legitimacy of the Peking regime loomed as a fait accompli, candidate Reagan accused the architects of normalization — and Carter in particular — of deserting an old and trusted ally by breaking off formal ties with Taiwan.

Reagan promised to seek a restoration of "official" relations with Taiwan, raising the specter of an abrogated agreement with Peking. A campaign-season trip to China by his running mate, George Bush, who headed the first U.S. liaison office in Peking, only backfired.

Reagan intensified the flap when, after Bush had returned, he reaffirmed what became known as his "two-China policy" with the remark: "I would not pretend, as Carter does, that the relationship we now have with Taiwan, enacted by our Congress, is not official."

The confusion Reagan created during the campaign spilled over into the early stage of his presidency. The Chinese treated the new U.S. administration with suspicion as Reagan sought to reassure Peking he would uphold the policy set into place before him.

Soaring Dollar Spurts Tourist Bonanza

LONDON (AP) — With the dollar orbiting in the exchange market stratosphere, Americans are streaming to Europe in record numbers for down-to-earth bargain vacations.

Buoyed by the United States' robust economy, high interest rates and huge budget deficit, the greenback has been thrashing other world currencies for months.

The dollar's strength is a boon for European exports which have suddenly become more competitive in America, but critics of U.S. monetary policy say it is damaging Western Europe's efforts to recover from the recession by driving up inflation and luring domestic investors into U.S. markets.

Although most economists say the dollar is probably overvalued and headed for a fall, it's anybody's guess just when that might occur.

In the meantime, the dollar is so strong that Americans can visit London, Paris, Amsterdam — almost anywhere in Western Europe — for less than it cost their countrymen for the same vacation four years ago.

Even figuring for inflation, that has produced bargains. For example:

—Dinner at chef Paul Bocuse's three-star restaurant near Lyon, France, including black truffle soup and crusty sea perch but no wine, now costs about $30. The same meal cost $58 in 1981. This in spite of a rise in the menu price from 260 to 300 French francs over the same period.

—A good seat for "The Mousetrap," at London's St. Martin's Theater, which cost $11.40 in 1982, now costs $8.43, even though the box-office price has gone up from 5 pounds to 6 pounds.

—Despite a sharp increase for public transportation costs in the Netherlands, an American pays the equivalent of 32 cents for an average bus ride in Amsterdam, instead of the 40 cents paid three years ago.

Since January 1980, the dollar has risen in value against the French franc and Ilalian lira by about 114 percent, against the West German mark by 64 percent and against the British pound by 61 percent.

In fact, the only major currency to escape the dollar onslaught has been the Japanese yen, which continues to reflect Japan's booming export-fueled economy.

After a lull during the Christmas and New Year's holiday period, the dollar resumed its march on European and U.S. exchange markets, shattering records against the British pound, French franc, Italian lira and Danish kroner, hitting a 10-year high against the West German Deutsche mark.

like there are with any other," he said. "Bleeding could start, the stone may not come out or it might break into unmanageable pieces, or there could be some kidney damage." Janosko said he has only had one failure.

There is also another development on the horizon for sufferers of kidney stones that was recently developed in West Germany — one that will more than likely surpass Percutaneous stone removal, Janosko said. "But it won't be avaliable for years and then it will probably only be done in major metropolitan centers."

This other procedure, referred to in layman's terms as outside the body shock wave stone removal, involves placing the patient in a large tub of water and administering three shock waves from three different axes which meet approximatly where the stone is, pulverising it into sand. "Then all the gravel is passed out naturally," Janosko said.

"The West German method will be the coming thing in three years or so with centers in Houston, Los Angeles and New York. The equipment for this costs about $5 million, though, so I don't think we'll be seeing a lot of it around here until many years later," he said.

"This procedure goes right along with the trend in medicine now days. We're striving to be able to help people without having to cut, or cut as little as possible, and to be able to help people so there will be less recovery time so they can go home or back to work," he said.

ECU Salaries ...

have been low in comparson with those scales," Howell said. "We've not been anywhere near the top," but ECU has ranked a little higher at times in the past than it does now, the chancellor pointed out.

While the ECU pay scale is in the median percentile, Howell suggested that "in some ways we are better off" than schools in some areas of the nation. "We're not suffering the declining enrollment, not losing jobs like they are in some places.

"There has been a big drop-off in enrollment" in some areas, Howell said, adding that "this, as much as anything, has kept us from losing faculty. We can fill our positions. We get applications from all over the country. In many places the number of jobs is declining."

"In the mid-1960s we were losing faculty" members to other schools, Howell said. "It was a seller's market. There were more positions than people to fill them." But now, with a declining enrollment nationally, "persons can't just quit" and find a job somewhere else.

Howell noted that "there is a lot of discussion right now about public school teachers ... dropping behind." He said the public school teachers do need an increase but, at the same time, "the same thing is happening to university faculty" and other state employees.

Dr. Angelo Volpe, vice chancellor for academic affairs, mirrored Howell's feeling that salaries "can be improved upon."

Over the years, Volpe said, faculty salaries have lagged behind because pay hikes "have not kept up with the rising rate of inflation ... have lagged behind (increases in) the cost of living and the consumer price index."

But Volpe said ECU has not been losing faculty because of the pay scale.

"I think we have been the beneficiaries of hard economic times in states in other parts of the country. If anything we've seen an increase in quality and quantity of applicants ...," he said.

Blount ...

tunity to serve all citizens," Blount said. "The chance that our children get in school is many times the only chance that these children will get to improve their lot in life.

"This is the reason it is imperative that we provide these children, as well as all children," he added, "with an opportunity for growth that only an excellent public school system can provide. I am committed to seeing that each taxpayer gets a 100 percent return of his or her educational investment."

Blount, a native of Pitt County and Bethel, graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1972. He is a life-long member of the Bethel United Methodist Church and has served as member and chairman of the administrative board and is currently serving as the church's lay leader.

Blount has served on the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Gifts Committee since 1975 and as chairman of that group in 1982. In addition he is a member of the Bethel Volunteer Fire Department, the Bethel Rotary Club and the Bethel Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

He is currently manager of Blount Petroleum Corporation.

The candidate said he is "convinced that education is Pitt County's key to continued success" and that he hopes voters will allow him to "continue to serve them on the Pitt County Board of Education.

Hotel Fire Kills 37

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A fire that swept through a 10-story tourist hotel in the port city of Pusan on Saturday killed 37 people and injured 75, police said. Military helicopters lifted many people from roofs and windows but others plunged to their deaths while trying to escape the flames, reports said.

Authorities said an overheated kerosene stove in a sauna area of the Daea probably started the fire.

Sixty-eight pieces of fire-fighting equipment, including eight ladder trucks, battled the fire and aided in the rescue work. Some firefighters came from U.S. military units stationed in the Pusan area.

South Korean military helicopters were credited with saving at least 18 people. But reports from the site said one man died when he plunged from a line lowered by a helicopter.

The Joong-Ang daily in Pusan said some guests trapped in rooms on the upper floors died when they tried to leap to the roofs of adjacent shorter buildings or fell from makeshift ropes of sheets and blankets tied together.

A Pusan fire department statement said 19 men and 18 women died in the blaze or from injuries. Eight of the victims died Sunday at hospitals.

Pope Urges More Talks

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Saturday appealed to the United States and the Soviet Union to revive talks on limiting nuclear arms, warning, "not a single day can be lost." It was his strongest plea yet for such a dialogue.

"Anybody who backs out of such negotiations would face great responsibility before humanity and history," the pontiff said. "We are convinced that there is a grave duty on the part of all interested parties (in the negotiations)."

John Paul discussed a wide range of international issues in a traditional New Year audience for some 200 diplomats and their families at the 16th century Sala Regia in the Apostolic Palace.

The papal appeal came four days before Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were scheduled to meet in Stockholm.

Police ...

Nov. 5 and Dec. 3. Information on the 967 calls for service during that 28-day period included such things as time of day, day of week, geographic location and nature of complaint.

Officer Chet Jernigan, who helped compile the study, said 30 percent of the calls were received between midnight and 8 a.m., 33 percent between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., and 37 percent between 4 p.m. and midnight.

A further breakdown of the calls showed that the most calls, 7.75 percent, came between 1 a.m. and 2 a.m., while 6.2 percent were received between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m., 5.9 percent between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m., and 5.4 percent between midnight and 1 a.m.

The smallest number of calls for service, 2 percent, were received between 6 a.m. and 7 a.m., while 2.1 percent of the calls were received between the hours of 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. and 11 p.m. and midnight, Jernigan said.

Holmes said 88 patrol planning areas were used during the study to locate the calls geographically. He noted that when the shift changes occur, officers will be assigned to beats that have approximately equal workloads, based on the number of calls received from each planning area.

Based on the study, when the department is at full strength, 22 officers and four supervisors will be assigned to the midnight to 8 a.m. shift, while 14 officers and 3 supervisors will be assigned to the 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift. The 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. shift will be staffed by 23 officers and 4 supervisors.

Officers assigned to the day and midnight shifts will work five 8-hour days a week, while officers assigned to the evening shift will work four 10-hour days a week, Holmes explained.

The chief said patrol sections or beats will be altered for each shift, with the midnight to 8 a.m. shift having six sections, the 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift having seven sections, and the 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. shift having nine sections.

Under the new shift structure, 26 officers will be scheduled to work between midnight and 2 a.m. on Sundays, the time with the heaviest workload for officers. Only seven policemen, because of days off, will be scheduled to work between 2 a.m. and 8 a.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays and between 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, the times of least activity.

Hoping to "increase the level of police efficiency" by the restructuring, Holmes said officers will be assigned "permanent patrol sections" on their respective shifts.

He said by assigning policemen to permanent sections, officers will have "greater familiarity" with an area and be better able to plan and apply various crime prevention, enforcement and criminal apprehension measures.

The deployment study said officers will be "encouraged to leave the vehicle periodically" and initiate inspection of bars, inspection of buildings for security, general foot patrol and interaction with the public.

"It's kind of like the old neighborhood cop on foot, except the officers will be on a car," Holmes suggested. "The officers will get to know the businesses, get to know the people, get to know the kids."

Comparing the results of the local manpower deployment study, Holmes said that on the average the 4 p.m. to midnight shift is the busiest, accounting for about 43 percent of the workload, while the 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift accounts for about 34 percent of the workload. The midnight to 8 a.m. shift, Holmes said, is normally the quietest time for policemen, accounting for about 23 percent of the workload.

With shifts of equal size, Holmes said, the 4 p.m. to midnight shift will be understaffed and overworked, while the midnight to 8 a.m. shift will normally have more officers on duty than are needed.

At present, the four rotating shifts are staffed with eight or nine officers.

At a recent meeting with department employees to review the results of the study, Holmes said the manpower deployment study is "one chapter of an overall management study of the police department."

The chief also said that a new records system will continue to look at the time and location of calls for service "on a continuing basis" so the department will know "when and where the work is taking place."

According to Holmes, "half the departments in the country" operate with fixed shifts. Locally, the chief said, officers will be assigned shifts according to seniority and preference.

Holmes said the department will be receiving eight new cars and 22 new hand-held radios as part of the new deployment plan.

Other changes are also scheduled to take place Jan. 29.

A new support services division will be added to include records, communications and community relations sections. The community relations section, Holmes said, will handle crime prevention, juvenile and community relations officers.

Lt. D.R. Bullock, presently heading the detective division, will be promoted to the rank of acting captain and placed in charge of the uniformed division, while Capt. John Briley, now directing uniformed division operations, will take charge of the detective division.

Grants Approved

RALEIGH (AP) — The Environmental Management Commission has approved $1.7 million in state Clean Water Bond grants and $143,000 in supplemental EPA grants for wastewater treatment and collection projects across the state.

"These grants will help North Carolina communities protect the quality of our water," said James A. Summers, secretary of natural resources and community development.

Airline Resumes Service

CHICAGO — Air Illinois, which halted operations during a federal probe of a plane crash that killed 10 people, returned to the skies for the first time in a month Saturday carrying a dozen passengers, including the company president.

"I think the crash is the last thing on everybody's mind at this point," said Air Illinois President Roger Street, after stepping off the morning flight at O'Hare International Airport. "The thing that sticks in people's minds is that we were shut down for 30 days and even that will go away quickly."

The company voluntarily grounded its 13-plane fleet Dec. 15 during a federal investigation that followed an Oct. 11 crash near Pinckneyville in Southern Illinois. All 10 people aboard were killed.

ADA Endorses Mondale

WASHINGTON — The liberal Americans for Democratic Action Saturday endorsed Walter Mondale for the Democratic presidential nomination by more than a 2-1 margin over George McGovern.

On the third ballot of voting by the venerable liberal group's governing board, the former vice president won 80 votes to 26 for the former senator from South Dakota and 16 votes for no endorsement.

Other candidates were eliminated in earlier balloting.

Ministers Skirt Egypt

RABAT, Morocco — Foreign ministers of the Islamic world adopted a program Saturday for next week's Islamic summit in Casablanca, but avoided debate on the meeting's most controversial issue — the proposed readmission of Egypt.

Habib Chatty, Tunisian secretary-general of the 44-nation Islamic Conference Organization, told reporters that Egypt's application for readmission would be discussed in a closed meeting of the three-day summit, which opens Monday in a specially constructed meeting hall in Morocco's largest city.

Egypt was suspended from membership in the organization because it signed the 1979 Camp David peace treaty with Israel.

Aid Level Falls Short

WASHINGTON — World Bank President A.W. Clausen said Saturday that 34 nations have agreed to contribute $9 billion over the next three years to aid poor countries — a figure he described as "both sad and disappointing."

Criticizing the Reagan administration, Clausen said the decision had resulted from U.S. refusal to provide more than $750 million a year for the International Development Association, a World Bank affiliate that handles low- or no-interest loans to developing countries.

Aside from the United States, Clausen said, every other donor country "stated a willingness to support a $12 billion replenishment."

Japan Sees 'Day After'

TOKYO — Nearly 39 years after atomic bombs destroyed two Japanese cities and killed some 230,000 people, "The Day After" movie about nuclear war opened Saturday at local movie theaters.

Survivors of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings said the film produced by America's ABC television network failed to show how horrible a nuclear attack is, but it was important because it made people aware of the threat of such a war.

Flu Strikes Alaskan School

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — A viral infection, possibly the flu, forced more than 700 students out of Anchorage schools, and officials say the entire Anchorage area eventually may be affected.

"There's some evidence the virus is spreading," said state epidemiologist John Middaugh. "It's very probable this virus may spread throughout the entire Anchorage area. I really think that what we're seeing is the onset of a major outbreak."

It will be a week to 10 days before lab tests identify the virus, Middaugh said. But it's unlikely the illnesses were caused by contaminated food or water.

Zhao Arrives In N.Y.

Zhao left San Francisco on Saturday morning and arrived at 4:20 p.m. at John F. Kennedy Airport, where he was given the key to the city by Mayor Edward Koch. The premier was met by members of China's United Nations delegation and was whisked to his hotel.

His three-day New York itinerary included a joint interview Sunday with television networks ABC, NBC, CBS, the Public Broadcasting Service and Cable News Network. He also planned to attend an IBM-sponsored dinner Saturday with corporate leaders interested in developing trade relations with China. Improving business between the two countries has been a key goal of Zhao's visit.

Poland Detains Union Advisers

WARSAW, Poland — Police picked up two advisers to the outlawed Solidarity labor union for questioning Saturday on unspecified charges, according to relatives and Solidarity sources.

They named those detained as Bronislaw Geremek, a historian, and Jadwiga Staniszkis, a sociologist at the University of Warsaw. Both were instrumental in the establishment of Solidarity during nationwide strikes in August 1980.

Under Polish law, authorities may detain people for up to 48 hours without making a formal arrest, a tactic they use frequently against Solidarity and other opposition figures.

Atlanta Marks King Birthday

ATLANTA (AP) — Politicians and celebrities joined a church service, march and rally Saturday to honor slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King and urged his followers to renew their commitment to his nonviolent philosophy.

Actress-activist Jane Fonda and her husband, Tom Hayden, comedian Dick Gregory and Atlanta Falcons football star Billy "White Shoes" Johnson were among those attending an ecumenical service Saturday morning at Ebenezer Baptist Church, followed by a march and rally in downtown Atlanta.

The activities were the highlight of an eight-day celebration of King's 55th birthday Sunday. He was praised as a hero and prophet for his work in the civil rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s.

"Let us not pack away this day after Jan. 15, but let us know that while the day is over, our work is just beginning," said the Rev. Joseph L. Roberts.

As King is being remembered in Atlanta and around the nation, legislation is pending in the Georgia Legislature to make his birthday a legal state holiday. At least 18 states and the District of Columbia currently observe such a holiday, and last year, President Reagan signed a bill creating a national King holiday in 1986.

King was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., in April 1968. His widow, Coretta Scott King, is president of the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change.

Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, who served as one of King's lieutenants in the civil rights movement, said the federal holiday "symbolizes a nation finally committed to bring about justice without violence."

"It symbolizes a nation committed at least by law and spirit to overcome the diversity of our population and involve us together in a brotherhood and sisterhood of spirit ... Let us know that the significance of this holiday is that Martin's struggle continues in our nation and in us."

An estimated 2,000 marchers joined Young, members of King's family — including Mrs. King — in a one-mile march from the church to the Capitol, where they listened to more speakers and joined gospel choirs in traditional civil rights hymns, including "We Shall Overcome."

The march drew a variety of participants, ranging from a girls' drill team from Asheville, N.C., to union members from New York. The marchers carried banners such as "Feed the Jobless, Not the Pentagon," and "U.S. Out of Lebanon and Central America."

King week ceremonies continue in Atlanta on Sunday and Monday. Absent from this year's observance was the awarding of the King center's annual Nonviolent Peace Prize. Mrs. King announced Saturday that the prize may be awarded later this year, but she did not give a reason for the postponement.

Highlights this year in remembrances around the nation were the planting of trees as a reminder of what King's widow called "the potential of human spiritual growth." The living memorials include a tulip poplar in Tennessee, a sugar maple in Michigan and two flowering dogwoods in New Jersey.

Marches and rallies were planned in cities from Trenton, N.J., to St. Paul, Minn., and Phoenix, Ariz., and churches around the country scheduled memorial services and breakfast meetings.

Virginia Iced In By Freezing Rain

By The Associated Press

Snow and high wind blasted the central Rockies on Saturday, with light snow showers scattered ahead of the storm all the way to the Northeast, and freezing rain left roads "right treacherous" in Virginia, causing hundreds of traffic accidents.

"How would terrible and crummy sound to you?" Virginia state Trooper R.M. Kranchick said of highways around Fairfax County during the night. "They're icy and slushy. The roads are in real bad shape."

More than a foot of snow fell in the Colorado Rockies, wind gusts of up to 75 mph whistled through canyons in Utah and temperatures fell below zero in the northern Plains from Montana across the Dakotas to Minnesota.

A winter storm warning was issued for extreme western Kansas, with 5 to 10 inches of snow expected.

Snow fell over all of Colorado, except for a few Western Slope areas. A travelers' advisory was posted for all of Colorado as highways were slick and snowpacked, and there was a threat of blowing and drifting snow in the high country and the east.

Colorado's heaviest snowfall was in Larimer County, with 12 to 14 inches in Big Thompson Canyon and 10 to 12 inches at Loveland.

Wind chill factors down to 40 degrees below zero hit Wyoming on Saturday afternoon as wind gusted to more than 35 mph at Casper and Rock Springs.

A natural gas line broke early Saturday at Douglas, Wyo., leaving two-thirds of the town without service as wind combined with an 8-degree temperature at noon to produce a 21-degree below-zero wind chill. Police drove through town telling people by loudspeaker to leave their faucets running to prevent frozen water pipes.

Police chief Kyle Sowell said officials were worried people would use electric stoves to keep warm and cause an overload and possible failure for Pacific Power & Light Co.

A high wind warning was issued in Utah from Salt Lake City north to the Idaho border as winds gusted up to 75 mph in canyons of the western Wasatch Mountains.

Hunt For Copter Called Off

MIAMI (AP) — Rescue crews have abandoned the search for five men missing since an Air Force helicopter went down while trying to stop a drug dropoff in the Bahamas, and authorities have "little reason to be optimistic" for survivors.

Frank Chellino, a spokesman for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration in Miami, confirmed rescue efforts were halted Friday afternoon.

Four of the nine people aboard the helicopter were rescued several hours after the aircraft crashed Monday night in about 6,000 feet of water.

Earlier Friday, Coast Guard and Air Force helicopters and planes concentrated on waters eight miles northwest of Nassau, Bahamas, after finding the belly of the downed aircraft.

Chief Petty Officer Bob Baeten of the Coast Guard in Miami said that before the search was called off around 3 p.m. EST, the Air Force and Coast Guard had covered about 9,000 square miles.

"We've covered and recovered, and the weather conditions have been good," Baeten said of the five-day search.

The twin-engine Air Force Huey helicopter crashed about 10 miles north of Nassau while chasing a DC-3 airplane suspected of dropping marijuana bales into the water. Bahamian authorities later arrested four Florida men on drug-related charges and seized the plane in Freeport.

The helicopter was part of a joint-U.S.-Bahamas aerial task force known as Operations Bahamas-Turks designed to intercept drug-carrying planes and ships. It had been summoned to assist in pursuit of two suspected marijuana smuggling planes, the DEA said.

The missing men were identified by authorities as: Larry Carwell, 39, of Houston, a DEA agent; Air Force Capt. Dyke Whitbeck, 27, of Warwick, N.Y., the pilot; Air Force Lt. Thomas Hanby, 25, of Conyers, Ga., the co-pilot; Air Force Sgt. Edgardo Acha, 29, of Chicago, and Autry Jones of the Royal Bahamian Police Department.

Woman's Kick Kills Policeman

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A policeman died Saturday, apparently of a heart attack, after a woman under arrest kicked him in the chest, breaking six ribs, authorities said.

Augusta police said Lt. James C. Haupfear, 51, was injured while helping arrest a woman who caused a disturbance after police stopped three speeding cars in her neighborhood at about 3:20 a.m.

Detective Sgt. Lou Thorington said Pamela Joyce Michael, 26, kicked her way out of a patrol car and struggled with officers, then kicked Haupfear in the chest and over the right eye.

Haupfear, a 21-year veteran of the force, drove himself to University Hospital to receive treatment for his injuries but collapsed at the emergency room entrance and was pronounced dead at 6 a.m., Thorington said.

Ms. Michael has been charged with murder, the detective said.

An autopsy was conducted and pathologists believe Haupfear died of a heart attack caused by the assault on him, the detective said.

Ms. Michael was also charged with aggravated assault on a police officer, driving under the influence, improper driving, speeding, using abusive language, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and defacing police property, the detective said.

Police said the incident began when another patrolman, Officer Alan Alspaugh, spotted three fast-moving cars and followed them for about two blocks. The cars stopped on an Augusta street and the occupants fled inside a house.

They refused to come out and other officers arrived and decided to tow the cars to a police storage area.

When a tow truck driver arrived and began hooking up one of the cars, Ms. Michael ran out and attacked him, Thorington said. She was handcuffed and placed in the back of a patrol car, but kicked out a window and crawled out of the car.

Officers forced her to the ground, and as Haupfear stood behind her, she kicked him with the toe of a boot, police said.

Newlyweds' Plight May Be Hoax

MILTON-FREEWATER, Ore. (AP) — A couple who drew offers of support after reporting they had been robbed in New York City, a story which has since been widely questioned, now are being sought by Oregon state police.

Oregon officers said Saturday they want to question Michael and Diane Hoskins about a $1,200 diamond ring and other jewelry reported missing by Hoskins' mother.

Mary Lou Hoskins told police the ring was taken sometime within the past two weeks and that a $50 pair of earrings was stolen within the past month, state police Detective Phil Arnold said Saturday.

The Hoskinses, who said they were on their honeymoon, reported they lost all their money to a Times Square pickpocket Jan. 8 in New York City and had to sell Diane's $450 wedding ring to a pawn shop for $60 in order to eat.

Their plight drew news media attention and resulted in several offers of financial help.

But Travelers' Aid officials in New York later challenged their account, and a Pendleton, Ore., woman has said she is married to Michael.

Arnold said he didn't know whether the ring the Hoskinses claimed to have sold was the same one reported missing by his mother.

"I haven't been able to compare descriptions of their ring to the one that was allegedly hocked," Arnold said. "By now, there's been enough press attention that if they did have the ring, they don't have it any more."

He said New York City police told him the Hoskinses repurchased the ring before apparently departing for Florida.

The Hoskinses accepted two free one-way bus tickets from Greyhound enabling them to return home to Oregon via Florida, where the couple said they wanted to visit Disney World, officials of the bus line have said.

Co-Op Ordered To Pay Refunds

To NEWBERRY, S.C. (UPI) — Nearly 2,600 customers of the rural Newberry Electric Cooperative will get $10 to $12 refund checks soon — if they're still alive.

The cooperative is making refunds to member-customers who bought power between 1944 and 1946.

The Internal Revenue Service advised the cooperative last year to make the refunds to retain its status as a non-profit corporation. Co-op manager Larry Longshore said the payments are for profits that were not distributed to members.

The checks were in the mail several days ago.

"Our people went through early address records and contacted people by phone," Longshore said. "If the member is dead, the check goes to their closest surviving relative."

He said the utility may mail additional payments later this year for undistributed profits from 1947 and 1948.

Longshore said revenue has exceeded operating expenses since the co-op was founded, but the excess funds are usually re-invested in the business.

Hong Kong Struck By Rioting

HONG KONG (UPI) — Elite police units Saturday patrolled Hong Kong's "Golden Mile" and other districts battered by the British colony's worst riots in 17 years. Police said 32 people were injured and more than 100 arrested.

Three police officers were among the injured Friday during the looting and arson rampage that police said grew out of a two-day taxi drivers strike over government proposals to increase license fees.

Work crews cleared overturned cars and damaged buses from the streets of Nathan Road, the main thoroughfare on the Kowloon peninsula and the colony's principal shopping street.

Looted shops, their windows shattered, were boarded up and guards with shotguns stood watch inside several of them.

At the height of the disorder, more than 10,000 people were involved, and police made baton charges and fired tear gas shells to disperse the crowds. At least 700 riot-equipped police officers were deployed, police said.

"Effective control" was restored early Saturday, police said. Officials reinforced police patrols and vowed to take "firm action" against further disorders.

Police took 158 people into custody, all of whom were under 30 years of age, police said. Some 130 were charged formally with riot-related offenses.

Rumsfeld Arrives In Israel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Druse gunners traded sporadic artillery and rocket fire with the Lebanese army and Christian militiamen Saturday, and a key Shiite Moslem leader charged that the army was sabotaging peace efforts.

Maj. Saad Haddad, leader of an Israeli-backed militia in southern Lebanon, died Saturday.

U.S. Middle East envoy Donald Rumsfeld arrived in Israel Friday night after talks with Syria's president on ways to ease Lebanon's tensions.

With objections from the Syrian-backed opposition casting further doubt on the fate of a proposed peace plan, Christian religious and political leaders began meeting to map a political strategy regarding the nation's Moslems.

A heavy winter rainfall helped bring an end to intense fighting the two previous days in and around the capital.

Christian and Druse fighters traded shells and rockets on and off Saturday in the Kharroub region, along the southern foothills of the central mountains. State-run Beirut radio reported afternoon artillery clashes between the Lebanese army and Druse militiamen near the mountain town of Souk el-Gharb.

Nabih Berri, leader of the dominant Amal Shiite Moslem militia, said in an interview Saturday that implementation of the peace plan was being held up by Moslem and Druse objections to a recent promotion list announced by the Lebanese army.

Echoing a complaint voiced earlier by Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, Berri charged that the army was being unfair in failing to promote officers and soldiers who refused to fight in September's civil warfare because they would be fighting militiamen of their own religion. Berri said that the problem "includes Christian and Shiite soldiers" as well as some 900 Druse fighters.

"I have asked the government to either put aside the promotion list or to give promotions to everyone," Berri said. "If they accept, we are ready from tomorrow to execute the plan."

But he added, "In my opinion, the army doesn't want it (the plan) because they want to get more time, more equipment and more chance to attack the suburbs and the mountains."

The southern suburbs of Beirut, heavily populated by Shiite Moslems, and the Druse-inhabited mountains east of the capital were the sites of the heaviest clashes in the September civil war.

The Saudi-mediated peace plan, which Lebanese President Amin Gemayel had hoped to announce more than a week ago, would set up buffer zones between warring factions and expand territory patrolled by the Lebanese army and other national security forces.

SANA, the Syrian news agency, reported that Syrian President Hafez Assad stressed Lebanese national reconciliation efforts in his meeting with Rumsfeld on Friday, suggesting Syria was focusing more on an overall political settlement for Lebanon than the interim security plan.

As if to underscore the Syrian position, Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party said Saturday, "We are not going to agree to using the Lebanese army for security purposes before reaching political detente."

Reagan To Seek Funds For C. America

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Saturday he will ask Congress to help shore up the economies of Central American nations "to improve the lives of our neighbors so they can vote with ballots instead of bullets."

And a senior administration official said Reagan does not believe the Kissinger commission's target of providing $8.4 billion over five years is exorbitant, given the gravity of the turmoil facing the region and the threat it poses to U.S. security.

Reagan made clear he also will seek to provide additional aid to help the government of El Salvador defeat the leftist guerillas who seek to topple it.

He also warned the leftist leaders of Nicaragua that they must understand "they cannot threaten their peaceful neighbors, export subversion and deny basic human freedom to their own people."

Reagan said he will send a plan to carry out the Kissinger panel's basic recommendations to Congress when it reconvenes later this month.

He said the plan — the Central American Democracy, Peace and Recovery Initiative — will be known as the Jackson Plan in honor of the late Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who first suggested a bipartisan commission be formed to consider the challenges posed to U.S. policymakers by strife in the region.

The president commented during his nationally broadcast weekly radio address.

Later, Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., a congressional adviser to the commission, said he is sure the Democratic leadership of the House and Senate will work with the administration to see that any necessary legislation to implement those policies is passed by the Congress. But he added that Democrats want "a peace plan for Central America and not a war plan."

Barnes, who gave the Democratic response to Reagan's speech, said Democrats have differed with the administration on how the United States can best help solve the region's political and military conflicts.

"Military aid is not the solution ...," he said. "The purpose of military aid must be to make political and diplomatic solutions possible."

Reagan said the plan he envisions will support democratic institutions in the region to "improve the lives of our neighbors so they can vote with ballots instead of bullets."

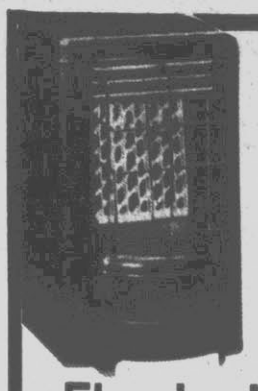

Referring to what he said is the "controversy" between the White House and Congress over human rights and military aid in El Salvador, Reagan said he agrees with the objective of improving prospects for democracy and human rights.

But he added: "I am also committed to preventing Cuban and Nicaraguan supported guerrillas from violently overthrowing El Salvador's elected government."

Reagan said he can offer "no quick fix" to the problems of the region.

But he said the United States "can and must help because it is in our interest to do so and because it is morally the right thing to do."

The commission recommended an immediate increase in U.S. economic assistance as part of an $8.4 billion Marshall Plan-type effort over the next five years.

Cancer Strikes Israeli-Backed Militia Leader

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Lebanese army Maj. Saad Haddad, commander of the Israeli-backed militia in southern Lebanon, died Saturday. Israeli officials said the 48-year-old Haddad died of cancer in his hometown of Marjayoun.

Haddad was hospitalized in the northern Israeli city of Haifa for five days until Jan. 5, when he was flown home. Observers here said he apparently wanted to die on Lebanese soil.

The death of Haddad, Israel's most unabashed Arab ally, complicated Israel's search for a proxy force in south Lebanon that would enable the Israeli army to speed up its withdrawal from the country it invaded 19 months ago to rout Palestinian guerrillas.

For five years, Haddad's 1,000-man force of Moslems and Christians protected Israel's northern border from raids by Palestinian guerrillas.

Gen. Avignor Ben-Gal, the former head of the Israeli northern command who worked with Haddad for several years, said in a television interview that the major's death posed "a new problem. I don't know what will be."

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, when informed at his home in Jerusalem of Haddad's death, expressed deep regret and said, "We salute this distinguished personality," according to his spokesman Avi Pazner.

Israel Radio reported that Col. Elias Khalil, a Lebanese Christian from the Sidon area, would succeed Haddad as militia commander. Israeli news media identified Khalil as a colonel in Lebanon's regular army and a former classmate of Haddad at the Lebanese military academy.

The radio said both Israelis and Lebanese had agreed on the appointment, but gave no indication of exactly who was involved in selecting Khalil.

Church bells in Marjayoun, four miles north of the Israeli border, tolled as news of his death circulated, Israel Radio said. It said Haddad's wife, Therese, and the couple's six daughters were at his bedside when he died.

U.S. Says Syrians Blocking Plan

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration believes Syria is blocking a security plan in Lebanon, apparently confident that American Marines and the multinational peacekeeping force will be withdrawn regardless of whether there is a plan, a senior official says.

But the official insisted a U.S. withdrawal wouldn't be considered without a security plan, although he said the administration might take "a fresh look" at the Marines' status if there is a plan and if a stronger Lebanese government emerges from follow-up negotiations.

The withdrawal of 1,600 Marines and other members of the multinational force is no longer dependent on an arrangement for the withdrawal of Syrian and Israeli forces, which occupy about 60 percent of Lebanon. But the official said that is still a U.S. objective.

The administration had previously said a withdrawal of the Marines was linked to a pull-out of foreign troops.

The official, who holds a senior position in the State Department, discussed the situation in Lebanon on the condition he not be identified.

A proposed security plan to extend the authority of the government of President Amin Gemayel into previously contested areas was expected to be approved last weekend but fell apart at the last minute.

The senior official said the Syrians apparently concluded that public support in the United States and other countries participating in the multinational force is wavering and that the force will be withdrawn soon.

"Syria has decided they don't want it to go forward," said the official. "We are convinced of that."

He said the Syrian opposition is reflected in last-minute demands, which he called "ridiculous," by Druse leader Walid Jumblatt. He said all evidence indicates Jumblatt is doing Syria's bidding. Jumblatt was in Moscow on Friday, a fact that tended to reinforce the view here that he isn't an independent player in Lebanon.

The development comes as a disappointment to administration officials in several respects, not the least of which is that it closes a potential path for withdrawal of the Marines.

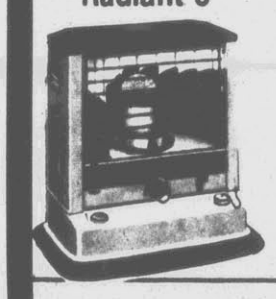

The official said there are no plans by the administration to pull out the Marines without a workable security agreement for the parts of Lebanon not occupied by either the Syrian or the Israeli armies.

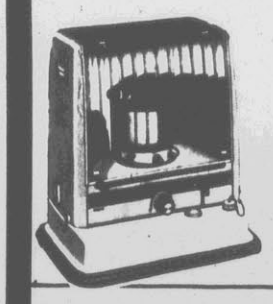

"If they think they can wait us out ... Syria is on the wrong track," he said.

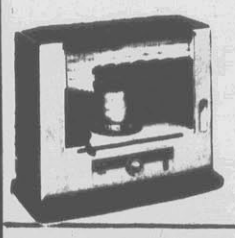

Although recent polls show that a slight majority of Americans may now favor a Marine withdrawal in the wake of the heavy casualties suffered in the Oct. 23 bombing of the Marine headquarters in Beirut, the official said President Reagan still has sufficient support in the Congress and among the public to keep the Marines in Lebanon.

Hutchins Execution Delayed

Death Date To Be Reset

By GENE WANG

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A hearing will be held within the next seven days to set a new execution date for triple murderer James W. Hutchins, a prosecutor said Saturday, a day after Hutchins won a dramatic reprieve 40 minutes before his death warrant expired.

Alan Leonard, district attorney for the 29th Judicial District, said he will schedule the hearing next week so a new date can be set for Hutchins to be executed by a lethal injection of barbiturates.

"It'll be next week. I don't have a specific date," Leonard said.

"I wasn't terribly surprised" by the postponement, he said. "It didn't bother me."

Hutchins, 54, was convicted for the May 1979 slayings of Rutherford County sheriff's deputies Roy Huskey, 48, and Owen Messersmith, 58, and state Highway Patrolman Robert Peterson, 37. He was sentenced to die for two of the deaths.

The execution — North Carolina's first since 1961 — was set for 6 a.m. Friday, but 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge J. Dickson Phillips granted him a stay at 12:05 a.m.

The U.S. Supreme Court lifted the stay late Friday afternoon in a 5-4 decision, opening the possibility Hutchins could be executed before the death warrant expired at 6 p.m. Minutes later, the North Carolina Supreme Court ruled Phillips' stay automatically required the execution be delayed under state law.

The state court sent the case back to a trial court to set a new execution date within 60 to 90 days of the hearing in compliance with the law.

Hutchins, who was already dressed in a green hospital gown in preparation for his scheduled execution, was moved Friday evening from a special holding cell to a Death Row cell at Central Prison.

"He seemed to be very relieved. He seemed to be pleased and very exhausted," said defense attorney Joseph B. Cheshire V, who met with Hutchins after he had changed into regular prison clothing.

Although the delay was required on legal grounds, Cheshire said, "We've gotten more time for the man to live, which we're very pleased about, and more time to present what we consider to be highly valid legal arguments to convince the courts to stop the execution forever."

He declined to say what issues the defense will raise.

The Supreme Court was sharply divided in its opinion vacating the stay of execution for Hutchins. The majority opinion written by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. called the raising of last-minute appeal issues "another example of the abuse of the writ."

But Justice William Brennan wrote an angry dissent calling the majority opinion "ghoulish" because a life was at stake and Justice Thurgood Marshall said the court's haste to resolve the issue was "outrageous."

"I think that Justice Brennan and Justice Marshall made the response of all clear-thinking attorneys" to the court's majority view, Cheshire said.

"I can't imagine our Supreme Court thinks that technical words are more important than life. That's what the majority seems to say.

"As a human being, I have a real problem with that," he said.

Relatives and friends of the slain officers were equally concerned that Hutchins' execution had been delayed.

"I am very disappointed they did not execute Mr. Hutchins," said Alice Messersmith. "I think if he is not executed, my husband died in vain."

UNC Lagging Behind Racial Goals

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina is behind in reaching a court-ordered desegregation goal, university officials say, despite efforts to increase the racial mix in the system's 16 campuses.

In 1982, a U.S. District Court judge gave UNC four years to increase enrollment of whites to 15 percent at five predominantly black campuses and enrollment of blacks to 10.6 percent at 11 percent at 11 predominantly white campuses.

Blacks totaled nearly 8.1 percent of the 104,404 students on predominantly white campuses this fall. The University had set an interim goal of 9 percent, UNC officials said Friday.

Whites accounted for 13.4 percent of the 17,527 students enrolled at the system's predominantly black schools. Officials said that is about where white enrollment should be now as black campuses try to reach the goal of 15 percent.

Dr. Raymond Dawson, vice president for academic affairs, told the Board of Governors Friday the university plans to increase its efforts to reach the goals by the fall of 1986.

Dawson would not predict what would happen if UNC failed to meet the enrollment targets.

"We'll cross that bridge when we get there," he said. "It'll be quite clear that if we don't, it won't be from a lack of effort."

Also Friday, UNC President William C. Friday said the system can help public schools by improving the teachers it trains.

Friday told UNC's board of governors Friday that the Quality Assurance plan is being used to upgrade teacher training and make the teacher certification process more rigorous.

He also said math-science training centers, in partnership with local school systems, are helping math and science teachers already working in the schools get certification and recertification. Officials say there are now three such centers and that UNC hopes to operate seven by 1986.

Friday also said a principals' management program is being developed at Chapel Hill to provide four to five weeks of intensive training programs from leadership to budget preparation.

Friday Says Teachers' Training Improving

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina system has taken steps to help improve the public schools by improving the teachers it trains, UNC president William C. Friday says.

Friday told UNC's board of governors Friday that the Quality Assurance plan is being used to upgrade teacher training and make the teacher certification process more rigorous.

He also said math-science training centers, in partnership with local school systems, are helping math and science teachers already working in the schools get certification and recertification. Officials say there are now three such centers and that UNC hopes to operate seven by 1986.

Friday also said a principals' management program is being developed at Chapel Hill to provide four to five weeks of intensive training programs from leadership to budget preparation.

Meanwhile, chairman John R. Jordan Jr. told the board that North Carolina A&T University has made steady progress toward settling its $1.8 million debt since UNC system officials became involved.

He said Friday and his staff have spent many hours in Raleigh and Washington since November, helping A&T officials negotiate the amount that must be repaid to state and federal granting agencies. Jordan gave no details about the negotiations.

A&T Chancellor Edward B. Fort, who has been directed to submit a full report of A&T's financial status this month, did not attend the meeting.

Fort has said he hopes to announce settlement of at least part of the deficit in the next few months. He is asking the federal government to waive more than $1.4 million in debts caused by confused accounting of more than 700 grants received at A&T since 1972. He also is asking the state to waive a debt of $340,000 and appropriate an additional $500,000 to bring the university up to date in paying its bills.

In other action Friday, the board approved a new master's degree in accounting for the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. The degree will supplement UNCG's master of business administration degree, which stresses general business and management but not accounting. The program, scheduled to begin this fall.

NOTICE TO OWNERS OF PROPERTY IN PITT COUNTY

The listing of property for tax purposes in Pitt County will begin January 3, 1984, and will continue through January 31, 1984.

Any person, firm, corporation or organization owning property in this county as of January 1, 1984, whether real or personal, must list such property within the listing period or be subject to the penalties prescribed by North Carolina Law. Property must be listed in the township in which it is located.

Persons who requested to list by mail should receive their listing forms early in January. These forms must be completed and returned to the office of the Tax Supervisor before the deadline of January 31, 1984.

Bring your social security number and your motor vehicle registration cards with you when you come to list.

Application for the Age and Disability Exemption should be made at the time of listing, but no later than April 15th. Once application is made and approved you will not have to reapply unless circumstances change within the household.

Owners and operators of parks or storage lots renting spaces for three or more trailers or mobile homes are required by law to furnish the Tax Supervisor of the county in which the lot is located, the name of the owner and a description of each trailer or mobile home situated thereon. This list must be submitted by January 15th of each year. Owners and operators failing to comply with the law shall be liable to payment of taxes in addition to a penalty of $250.

Persons having custody of taxable tangible personal property belonging to another firm or individual that is held for storage, sale, rent, or any other business purpose shall furnish the Tax Supervisor a report of such property by January 15th or will be liable for the taxes on the property plus a penalty of $250.

Red-Hot Tribe Blisters East Carolina

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Keith Cieplicki swished 16 points and Kevin Richardson added 14 as the William and Mary Indians blistered the nets for 60.9 percent from the field en route to a 64-48 win over the Pirates of East Carolina University Saturday at William and Mary Hall.

Cieplicki connected on eight of 12 from the field, mostly from beyond 15 feet, while Richardson controlled the inside lane. Herb Harris added 12 and Gary Bland 10 for the Indians.

The loss drops the Pirates to 0-2 in the ECAC-South with a 2-10 overall mark. ECU has not won since a pair of season-opening victories, setting a record for the longest losing skid in the school's history. It was the conference opener for the Indians, who are 3-7 overall.

Freshman center Leon Bass and guard Curt Vanderhorst led the Pirates with 10 each. Bass was the top rebounder of the game with seven, though William and Mary held a 26-22 edge in that category.

The Pirates shot well from the field, connecting on 47.1 percent of their shots, but never had an opportunity from the free throw line as W&M was called for just nine fouls on the night. The Indians, by contrast, hit on eight of 12 from the charity stripe.

The Indians outscored the Pirates 13-2 through the 11:45 mark of the second half, building to a 51-32 lead. The Pirates battled back after matching William and Mary with Peartree following his own miss inside, and Jack Turnbill and Peatree swished jumpers from outside to trim the margin to 56-42.

But East Carolina could come no closer, as Traver gave William & Mary

Perkins Rallies Tar Heels To 70-62 Win Over Deacs

AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO (AP) — Top-ranked and unbeaten North Carolina is developing two habits: falling behind early and finishing ahead — often far ahead.

The routine was played out again Saturday, as Sam Perkins scored 17 points to lead the Tar Heels to a 70-62 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over 12th-ranked Wake Forest.

The victory extended the North Carolina's winning streak to 12 games and raised its conference mark to 3-0.

Perkins scored one basket in a 6-0 run early in the second half, then added two more crucial baskets down the stretch as North Carolina overcame a five-point halftime deficit.

"It feels good that we're capable of coming back," Perkins said. "We saw a lot of defenses coming at us. Wake did everything it possibly could."

North Carolina coach Dean Smith said the second half was "our best half of the year. I'm talking about a half against quality opposition."

Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy admitted that North Carolina deserved its top billing but added that his team was no slouch, either.

"I have to say that if they are number one, then we are equally as deserving of our ranking," Tacy said. "The toughest part of a loss like this is coming back from such an emotional game as this one and getting ready to play a very good Duke team on Tuesday."

Trailing 32-27 at intermission, Matt Doherty scored four points and Perkins added a hook to give North Carolina a 33-32 edge with 18:29 left. The teams exchanged baskets and Wake Forest tied the score on a Danny Young free throw.

Michael Jordan broke a 37-37 tie with two free throws and the Tar Heels led the rest of the way.

With the Demon Deacons trailing 58-57 after a Delaney Rudd jumper at the 5:42 mark, Perkins scored on an alley-oop with 5:22 left. He added a hook with 4:52 remaining to raise North Carolina's lead to 62-57.

Wake Forest cut the lead to 62-59 when Anthony Teachey got credit for a basket on a goal tending call, but Brad Daugherty got one of the points back on a free throw with 1:49 left to play.

John Toms scored on a tap of a Teachey miss with 1:29 left to cut the gap to 63-61, but Tar Heel freshman guard Kenny Smith got a layup off the four corners to give North Carolina a 65-61 edge with 1:14 left.

Doherty and Jordan each missed the front end of bonus situations, but Teachey dribbled the ball off his foot for one turnover and, after a Doherty free throw with 19 seconds left, Danny Young missed a jumper and Perkins added two free throws with 10 seconds remaining.

Perkins added 11 rebounds to his performance.

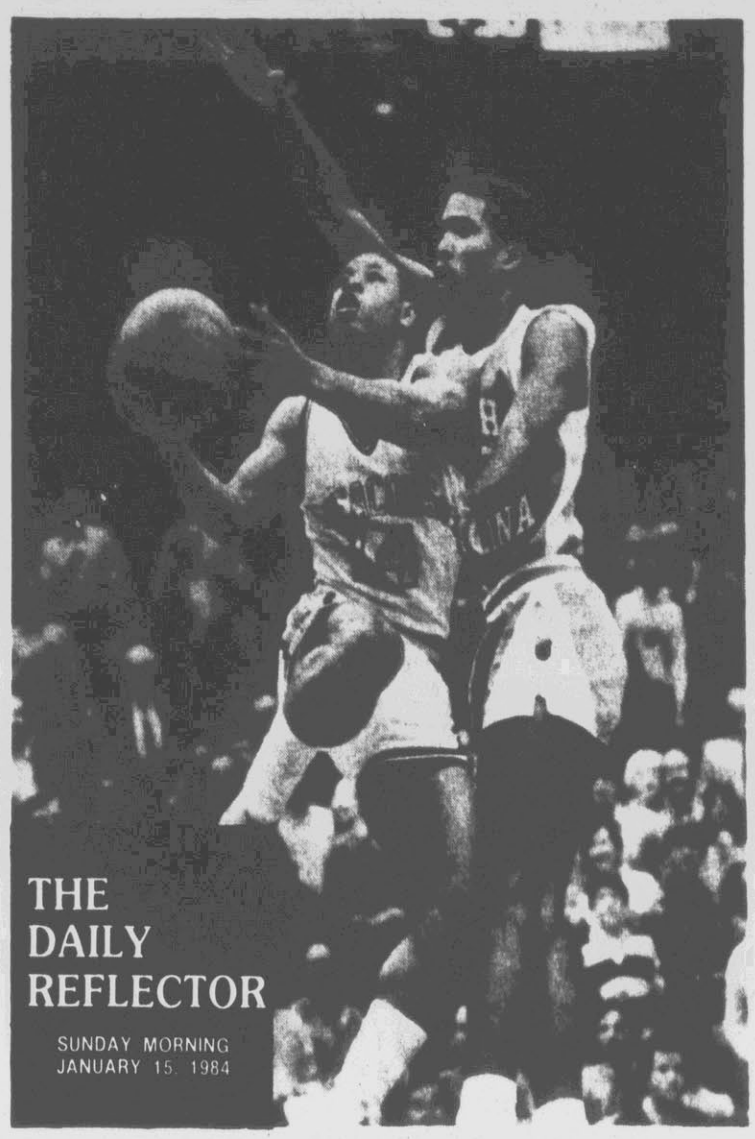

North Carolina, which shot 65.4 percent from the field in the second half and 56.6 percent overall, got 15 points from Jordan, 13 from Doherty and 10 from Smith, all in the second half.

Wake Forest, winless in two ACC games and 11-2 overall, got 19 points from Kenny Green. Rudd added 16. The Demon Deacons had identical halves of 43.8 percent shooting with 14 for 32 from the field.

Eagle Saves Hope Lead For Miller

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A simple change of scenery, to more spacious Bermuda Dunes for Sunday's final round of the Bob Hope Desert Classic, will cure his ailment, Johnny Miller said.

"I have a very severe case of white-stake-itis," Miller said Saturday after he'd holed out a pitching wedge shot for an eagle-2 that salvaged a 69 at Indian Wells and enabled him to retain a one-stroke lead through four rounds of this five-day, 90-hole tournament.

"I hate white stakes," Miller said, referring to the markers that define out of bounds areas on PGA Tour golf courses.

"It makes you play golf like you've got training wheels on," said Miller, who now has completed one round over each of four desert courses and now faces the final round at Bermuda Dunes, the most wide-open of the four.

"I like Bermuda Dunes the best of all of them," Miller said. "At least you don't feel like you have to bunt the ball, hit soft line drives. You can take a full swing and go for the home run."

Although he was able to retain the top spot in the tournament, Miller was less than completely satisfied with his 3-under-par effort.

"I felt like I was going to get run over out there — and for a while I was. I was, what, two or three behind at one time?" Miller said.

"I passed up a lot of opportunities. Now it's anybody's tournamnt. I had a chance to open up a three-, four-, five-shot lead. And I didn't do it. I don't like to let the other guys creep up on me.

"I guess, though, it's nice to come in with a 69 and be feeling like you didn't do too good," he said.

Miller, who has won unofficial titles in his last two starts, completed one round over each of four desert courses with a 270 total, 18 under par.

Jim Simons remained one stroke off the pace with a 69 at La Quinta. Simons, who also scored an eagle, will take a 271 total into Sunday's final round at Bermuda Dunes.

The two leaders played in something approching peace and quiet, while a massive, party-making gallery gathered at Bermuda Dunes where the celebrity field — including the host comedian, former President Gerald Ford and House Speaker Tip O'Neill — performed before the national television cameras.

Slender Jack Renner also was at Bermuda Dunes and ignored the confusion well enough to shoot a 68 and move within two shots of the top spot at 272.

Lee Elder, with a 70 at Bermuda Dunes, and John Mahaffey, with a 68 at La Quita, were another two shots back.

Arnold Palmer, a five-time winner of this event who played with Hope, Ford and O'Neill as his pro-am partners, had a 69 and missed the cut for the final round at 293. Defending champion Keith Fergus, with a 74-289, also failed to qualify for the fifth round.

Miller, who used two victories in this tournament as key steps toward his storied domination of the desert in the mid-'70s, simply couldn't get anything going this warm, sunny day. He was even par through his first 13 holes and, he said, "sort of upset. I felt like I was letting a good round out of the bag."

At that point, he was three behind Simons and then it changed.

Simons had played his front side in 31, including a 15-foot putt for an eagle-3 on the fifth. On the back, however, nothing dropped and he suddenly bogeyed two straight, the result of a three-putt and a poor bunker shot.

At about the same time, Miller birdied his 14th hole then vaulted into the lead when a 105-yard pitching wedge shot took one hop over the flag then backed into the cup for the eagle-2.

"It's somewhat discouraging," Simons admitted. "I had the momentum going, had it in cruise. Then I had a little lapse."

"Has Johnny Miller ever lost when he had the lead going into the last round?" Simons asked.

There was no answer.

"Well, that's the challenge," he said.

Maryland Bounces Back, Takes 81-75 Victory Over Blue Devils

DURHAM (AP) — Duke's Cameron Indoor Stadium is a difficult place for visiting basketball teams under the best of circumstances — which Maryland and coach Lefty Driesell seldom enjoy.

Duke fans heaped abuse on Driesell and his players Saturday, but the stolid Terrapins, led by Len Bias' 17 points, defeated the Blue Devils 81-75 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

"I was happy to win here," said Driesell. "This is a tough place to play. I didn't know how our team would react to (this week's loss to top-ranked North Carolina). But we went ahead, fell behind and then bounced back.

"I think the game could have gone either way, but I was pleased with our poise."

"I think Maryland made a number of big shots in the second half, and I think that has something to do with experience," said Krzyzewski. "We played an excellent basketball team and a team that made big shots."

Krzyzewski also praised Bias, whom he said scored key points "under pressure when we could maybe have gone up by 5 or maintained the lead. He stuck some big ones."

Duke, which trailed by as many as 10 points in the first half, went ahead briefly midway through the final period. The Blue Devils' sticky man-to-man defense forced three Terrapin turnovers which helped Duke build a 58-55 lead with 12:08 remaining.

Maryland retook command, scoring eight unanswered points behind the front-line play of Bias and 6-foot-9 center Ben Coleman.

Several short scoring bursts brought Duke to within 1 point with 4 minutes left. But Duke resorted to fouling and Maryland preserved its lead by hitting six of eight free throws in the final 2 minutes.

Guards Jeff Adkins and Adrian Branch scored 14 points apiece for the Terps, who improved to 11-2 and 2-1 in the ACC.

David Henderson came off the bench to lead Duke with 19 points, including the last eight of the first half, bringing the Blue Devils to within 41-36 at intermission. Mark Alarie added 16 points.

ACC scoring leader Johnny Dawkins was 4 of 18 from the field and finished with 12 points for Duke, which fell to 14-2 and 1-1.

Lady Pirates Face Mason In ECAC-South Game Today

East Carolina's Lady Pirates, after a week off, will return to the hardwood this afternoon, playing host to George Mason's Lady Patriots at 3 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The game is the second ECAC-South game for the Lady Pirates in this, the first year of competition in the loop for women. While a full schedule is not set for the women, a post-season tournament will be played — here at East Carolina.

George Mason brings in a 5-5 record, not counting their contest last night at Richmond. The Patriots were 0-1 in the league going into that game, having lost to James Madison. ECU beat Madison earlier in the year, 57-47.

Mason will be playing without its leading scorer and rebounder, Tracey Martin, who has been declared academically ineligible for the rest of the season. Martin was hitting 11.4 points a game, fourth best in the league, and was leading the conference in rebounding with 11.7 per game.

However, 6-2 senior Jeanne Daunoras, who missed the first semester, has returned to the team and is averaging 20 points a game and five rebounds. Valerie Douglas, a 5-11, forward, is hitting 10.7 points and pulling 10.5 rebounds for the Patriots. Douglas scored 20 points last year again the Pirates in their meeting, won by ECU 69-65.

The other starters are expected to be Linda Jones, 5-6 junior, at guard; Demetra Kee, 5-10 freshman, at the other guard; and 6-0 senior Patty Amidon at center. Jones is hitting 9.6 per game, while Kee has a 6.4 average and Amidon is scoring 4.3 points an outing.

Jones is tenth in the league in scoring and leads the league in assists with 3.5 per game. Backup Bobbie Pugh is the league's top free throw shooter, hitting 90.9 percent.

East Carolina comes into the game following a 67-58 victory over Fairleigh Dickinson last Sunday night. In that contest, ECU trailed by 11 points with just under two minutes to go in the first half and pulled away to lead by over ten in the closing minutes of the contest as Darlene Hedges scored a career high 23 points and pulled off 14 rebounds.

The Lady Pirates have three players in double figures, led by Sylvia Bragg with an 11.2 average. Delphine Mabry is hitting 10.3 and Anita Anderson has scored 10.0.

Anderson, however, has been sidelined for the past two games with a back problem, and her status for today is still doubtful.

Following the game this afternoon, the Lady Pirates play host to UNC-Wilmington on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Lendl, McEnroe Meet In Net Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and John McEnroe agree on one thing: McEnroe is the world's No. 1 player for 1983.

But they will settle who will take home the $100,000 first-place prize here at the $400,000 Volvo Masters tennis championships Sunday when they battle in the final of this year-ending event. The loser will pocket $60,000.

McEnroe advanced to the final by ousting top-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden 6-2, 6-4, while Lendl, the defending champion, stopped Jimmy Connors 6-3, 6-4.

Asked if his victory over Wilander, who won the year-long Volvo Grand Prix points race, meant he has clinched the No. 1 spot, McEnroe said: "In my opinion it does. I mean I won't even play the match tomorrow. Actually it's a nice title to win tomorrow, but the other thing is decided."

Lendl, who is making his fourth straight trip to the Volvo Masters final and seeking his third consecutive crown, said Friday night that McEnroe, who finished first in the Atari-ATP computer rankings, should be considered the top player for 1983.

"I played a little bit smarter and didn't rush it," McEnroe said of his victory over Wilander, who had held a 3-1 career edge over the left-hander and had beaten him in their last three metings. "Mats thought that if he won here he'd be No. 1 for the year, but this showed Mats that sometimes experience counts."

It was mistakes, not experience, that sent Connors down to defeat against his Czech opponent.

"As I said yesterday, the balls here are slower and I had no trouble running them down. And he made more errors today" than he did at the U.S. Open, Lendl said of Connors. "He returned serve well, but I was serving well and had more aces than usual, which must be the Garden, because it only happens here."

Then both McEnroe and Lendl turned to Sunday's encounter.

"With Lendl, I have to not do what I did last year and let him dominate with the serve and be overpowering," McEnroe said.

Lendl said that "when I play John, it depends on how well I'm returning serve, so then I have chances to pass him at the net and break his serve."

"I'd like to serve well and return and pass well tomorrow (Sunday)," Lendl said. "That's all I want to do."

Lendl roared through the opening five games of the match, his booming serve and rocketing groundstrokes simply overwhelming Connors. Before the stunned crowd could barely get seated, Lendl had a 5-0 lead.

Connors, the street battler, was getting mugged in his own territory.

The crowd came alive when Connors held service at love in the sixth game. They cheered when Connors swept the next four points to break Lendl. And when he held serve at 30 in the eighth game to pull to within 5-3, he received a standing ovation.

Connors, who has won the last two U.S. Opens and has an on-going love affair with New York fans, thrilled the crowd when he closed in on another break, taking a 15-40 lead.

But Lendl, who has been the victim both years in the final of America's premier tennis tournament, hushed the crowd and Connors' momentum when he ripped a backhand passing shot cross-court, slammed a winning forehand into the corner, powered his second ace of the match, then closed out the game and first set with a service winner.

Connors held serve to begin the second set, at 30. Lendl needed only four points to pull even.

Then, in a 16-point game, Lendl broke Connors' service to take an advantage he would never relinquish. Connors fought off four break points, but on the fifth, the Czech right-hander closed it out with a backhand cross-court volley.

Lendl then held service the rest of the way to advance into the final and another meeting against the 24-year-old McEnroe, whom he defeated in straight sets here last year.

Against Wilander, the 19-year-old Swede who captured the Australian Open last month, the tempestuous McEnroe was superb, for the most part, as he controlled the tempo, the pace and, eventually, the match. But he slammed a chair with his racket, told a photographer to "stop what you're doing," informed the crowd to be quiet and argued several line calls.

The first time the two met was on an indoor carpet at St. Louis in 1982 when Sweden played the United States in the Davis Cup. That time, McEnroe outlasted Wilander in a 6½-hour marathon match.

Since then, the Swede has beaten McEnroe on three different surfaces: clay at the French Open, cement in the ATP Championships at Cincinnati and grass at the Australian Open.

In the opening set, McEnroe broke Wilander in he fifth and seventh games in winning easily. In the seventh game, McEnroe won the last three points as Wilander tried to get to the net first.

The two traded service breaks in the second and third games of the second set. And when Wilander broke McEnroe again in the fourth set, then held serve for a 4-1 lead, it appeared the top-seeded player in this select 12-man field finally was back in the game. He didn't realize it was the beginning of the end.

He traded groundstrokes from the baseline with Wilander, waiting for just the right ball to come in on. And he moved his opponent around the court, directing almost all the motion with a variety of shots to the corners and an occassional drop shot.

When McEnroe did get to the net, his crisp volleys ended points quickly. He broke Wilander at 15 in the seventh game to begin a four-game sweep that sent him into the final of the tournament he last won in 1979.

Both the eighth and ninth games went to deuce. Once McEnroe, playing the big points to perfection, won them both.

Then he served out the match, winning a love game, punctuating the victory on the final point with a remarkable cross-court forehand victory.

McEnroe also is in the final of the doubles, teaming with Peter Fleming. They will meet the Czechoslovakian pair of Pavel Slozil and Tomas Smid following Sunday's singles final.The winning doubles pair will split $34,000, with the losers sharing $16,000.

Complaint

MLPA Sets Meetings On Drug Suspensions

NEW YORK (AP) — The Major League Players Association plans to begin meetings with management in the "next several days" over grievances of drug suspensions levied against four players by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, union head Don Fehr said Saturday.

Fehr said the union, for which he is general counsel and acting executive director, filed the grievances on Friday with the commissioner's office. The grievances will attempt to overturn one-year suspensions meted out to Willie Wilson, Jerry Martin and Willie Aikens, all present or former Kansas City ballplayers, and Los Angeles relief pitcher Steve Howe.

The first step in the grievance procedure is for Fehr and his people to meet with representatives of the owners' Player Relations Committee. Former American League President Lee MacPhail heads the PRC.

"I expect the meetings will begin in the next several days, next week sometime," Fehr said. "If not, then the week after."

If the two sides cannot come to an agreement at that time, the grievance will go to baseball's three-man arbitration panel, consisting of a management and player representative and an impartial arbitrator, Richard Bloch of Washington.

While the union and PRC were not expected to be able to come to accord on the suspensions, Fehr said he hoped the two sides could set a new trend in the process.

"We haven't had a lot of success doing it (negotiating with the PRC) in the past," Fehr said, "and there's really no reason to expect that to change now. But maybe this could be the beginning of some change in that area."

Wilson, Martin and Aikens, all of whom were convicted of drug misdemeanors in October, were sentenced to three-month sentences in federal prison in Kansas City, Kan. Wilson, still with the Royals, and Martin, currently without a team, will be out of prison by spring training. Aikens, who was traded to Toronto, gets out of jail a month later. The one-year suspensions of these three will be reviewed on May 15, with reinstatement possible at that time.

Kuhn withheld decision on the case of another former Royal, pitcher Vida Blue, who also was sentenced to three months in jail on drug charges. Any action against Blue apparently awaits the outcome of a Kansas City drug investigation.

Supports Crack In New Center

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — University of North Carolina officials have asked designers to re-examine the $30 million Student Activities Center after a recent inspection found that three concrete tie beams had cracked and separated from towers that support the roof and walls.

The officials also have asked a New York firm that reviewed the sports arena design in 1982, Weidlinger Associates, to look at structural design plans, shop drawings, field modifications and construction records for the domed sports center, said UNC-Chapel Hill vice chancellor Farris W. Womack.

After a subcontractor complained of construction irregularities last October, the center was inspected both by its design team — Geiger-Berger of New York and Hakan-Corley and Associates of Chapel Hill — and by Paul Z. Zia, an N.C. State University civil engineer. Zia found some deviations from design plans but said the building's structural safety had not been impaired.

No one really knows what caused the concrete beams to crack and separate from the towers, which provide the main vertical support for the building's walls and roof, said Thaddeus M. Bonus, UNC-CH public information director. One engineering theory is that record cold temperatures in December caused the cracking, he said.

The Indians controlled the boards 9-5 in the first half after not pulling down a rebound until the 13:30 mark.

Bass fired in 10 points manuevering inside in the first half, while Sledge held the hot hand outside.

The Pirates connected on 11 out of 22 shots from the field for a hot 50 percent, but the Indians were even hotter hitting on 15 out of 18 for 83.3 percent. Cieplicki led W&M with 10 points on a perfect five-of-five from the field in the opening period.

The Indians got on the board first as Cieplicki connected from 15 feet with 30 seconds elapsed, but Bass got the Pirates on the board and Vanderhorst gave put them ahead 4-2 at the 17:02 mark.

After Richardson knotted the score, ECU went on to score the next six points with Bass scoring inside and Sledge swishing a pair from beyond 15 feet for a 10-4 advantage with 15:23 remaining.

The teams traded buckets for a 12-6 score with 14:04 on the clock, but that was to be the biggest lead for the Pirates in the half. Herb Harris hit on a pair of free throws, and Gary Bland connected from outside to trim the margin to two points.

Bass scored inside to put ECU ahead 16-12 with 12:10 till intermission, but the Indians scored 10 unanswered points over the next five minutes to move ahead 22-16 with 7:10 left.

William Grady hit on a pair from the field for ECU and Bass scored on a turnaround to cut the William & Mary lead to 28-22, but Harris scored inside twice in the final minute of the half for a 10-point halftime bulge.

DePaul Rolls; UCLA, St. John's Upset

CHICAGO (AP) — Tyrone Corbin scored a career-high 25 points and Kevin Holmes added 17 Saturday to carry No. 3 DePaul to a 98-63 thrashing of Alabama-Birmingham in college basketball.

Freshman sensation Dallas Comegys added 16 points for DePaul, 13-0 and one of only four NCAA Division I teams still unbeaten. The Blazers dropped to 14-3.

The Blue Demons took advantage of several UAB turnovers and poor shot selection to run roughshod over the visitors from the outset. DePaul opened up a 13-6 advantage after nearly nine minutes in the first half while the Blazers made just three out of 13 shots from the field. In the remainder of the first half, DePaul outgunned UAB 33-20 for a 45-26 lead at intermission.

The Blue Demons continued to control the ball and dominate play in the second half, reeling off a 13-2 scoring streak in a seven-minute stretch to move ahead 75-45 with seven minutes remaining.

Jerry McMillan and Tony Jackson added 10 points apiece for DePaul.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Blair Rasmussen, Oregon's 7-foot center, scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half Saturday as the Ducks stunned sixth-ranked UCLA 62-51 in a Pacific 10 Conference basketball game.

It was Oregon's first victory over the Bruins in seven years. UCLA had won 12 consecutive games in the series. Oregon improved its record to 8-6 overall and 3-1 in the conference.

The game was tied at 45 with just under six minutes to play on a rebound basket by UCLA's Gary Maloncon. But Oregon scored the next 10 points, six by Rasmussen, for a 55-45 advantage with 1½ minutes left.

The Bruins, 10-2 overall and 3-1 in the Pac-10, scored the game's first eight points for their biggest lead.

Despite cold shooting, the Ducks managed to rally within 26-25 by halftime.

UCLA rebuilt a 36-29 lead five minutes into the second half before Rasmussen, a junior, got hot. At one point, he scored 10 straight Oregon points.

Guard Chris Harper added 16 for the Ducks, 12 in the second half. Guard Ralph Jackson topped UCLA with 16 and Kenny Fields added 10.

Boston College.....69
St. John's.....67

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Guard Michael Adams, held to just two points in the first half, tossed in eight straight free throws including two with four seconds remaining Saturday to give 18th-ranked Boston College a 69-67 basketball upset victory over 10th-ranked St. John's.

A capacity crowd of 4,000 at Roberts Center saw the Eagles break a three-game St. John's winning streak and hand the visitors their second loss in 13 games.

Roger McCready, moved to center by the Eagles for the Big East contest, responded with 18 points, while regular scoring leaders Jay Murphy and Adams collected 14 each for the winner.

St. John's built a 33-28 first-half lead but the Eagles went on a 12-4 spurt to start the second half and took charge of the game with a run of nine straight points midway in the period.

But foul shots made the difference. The Eagles were held to only one basket — a McCready layup — in the final eight minutes of play. But the Eagles hit on 10 straight foul shots in that time.

The upset was a replay of last season's contest, when Boston College broke a 14-game St. John's winning streak to keep the Redmen out of a probable No. 1 ranking.

Georgia.....60

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Freshman guard Craig Dudley made four free throws in the last two minutes to ice Alabama's 65-60 victory over 15th-ranked Georgia in Southeastern Conference basketball action Saturday.

His last free throw came with 43 seconds to play.

Georgia never led after 8:12 into the first half, although they tied it three times in the second half. The last time came at 56-56 with 4:43 remaining when Alabama was called for goaltending on a drive by Gerald Crosby.

Cold-shooting Georgia hit only 43.5 percent for the game, while Alabama hit on 50 percent of its shots.

Leading scorers for Alabama were Terry Williams with 15, Neal with 13, and Johnson and Bobby Lee Hurt with 12 each.

Alabama held a slight rebounding edge, 35-33.

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Steve Woodside scored 19 points and A.C. Green added 16 to lead the 16th-ranked Oregon State Beavers past stubborn Southern California 51-45 in a Pacific 10 Conference basketball game Saturday.

The victory boosted the Beavers' record to 9-2 and 2-0 in Pac-10 play. The Trojans, paced by 19 points from forward Ron Holmes, dropped to 6-11 overall and 1-3 in the conference.

Southern California kept the game close until the final minute. The Trojans cut the lead to 43-40 with 2:34 to play on a driving layup by Glenn Smith.

Holmes scored from outside and Wayne Carlander hit two free-throws to rally the Trojans from a 43-35 deficit.

Green hit a pair of free throws and Woodside connected on four from the line in the next minute for a 49-40 margin, putting the game out of reach.

The Trojans never led in the first half after a 4-2 edge to open the game but had six ties in the period before the Beavers moved ahead for a 29-24 intermission lead.

Green, who had hit all 10 of his field goal attempts in an earlier victory over Stanford, added his first three in the Trojans-Beavers contest before missing. He also missed a free throw to stop his string at 14 straight.

The Beavers shot .514 from the field, hitting on 19 of 37 attempts. The Trojans, sizzling hot from the outside early in the game, finished with .383, managing only 18 of 47 field-goal attempts.

Memphis State.....52
S. Mississippi.....47

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Keith Lee's 21-point performance paced Memphis State to a 52-47 win over Metro Conference rival Southern Mississippi Saturday at Mid-South Coliseum.

The win was the fourth straight for Memphis State and brought the Tigers' record to 11-3. They are undefeated in three conference games while the Golden Eagles, 7-7 overall, have yet to win in the league.

A 3-point play by guard Andre Turner insured Memphis State's win and capped Memphis State's second-half comeback. Memphis State had the ball and a 47-43 lead with less than a minute to go when Turner hit a driving layup and was fouled.

He sank the free-throw, Lee followed with two more free-throws and the Tigers, who trailed by three at the half, had another victory.

After a first half that saw Southern Mississippi open up a 9-point advantage with five minutes remaining, the Tigers' Phillip "Doom" Haynes made six unanswered points in the early minutes of the second period. Haynes finished with 14 points during the afternoon.

Memphis State took the lead for good at 31-29, although the Eagles closed the gap to a single point several times in the final five minutes.

Lee had 10 rebounds for the Tigers.

South Carolina....69

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marc Marotta brought in a career-high 21 points, 16 coming in the first half, to lead Marquette to a 74-69 victory over South Carolina in a non-conference college basketball game Saturday afternoon.

Marquette, 8-7, snapped a four-game losing streak with the victory. South Carolina, losing its second game in a row, fell to 8-4.

Marquette held a 34-27 halftime lead, but the Gamecocks had a 12-4 run six minutes into the second half to go up 39-38. The Warriors regained the lead on Terry Reason's tip-in at 13:27 and led the remainder of the game.

The Warriors opened the game up with a seven-point spurt, three of the points coming from Marotta, to go up 49-41 with 9:57 to go. Their biggest lead came at 66-52 on Reason's basket at 3:14.

Dwayne Johnson tallied 20 points and Kerry Trotter added 19 for the Warriors.

Jimmy Foster, who set up much of the second half with four fouls, led South Carolina with 20 points while Brad Jergenson added 11 and Jimmy Hawthorne had 10.

The game was marred by a bench-clearing brawl with 1:28 left in the first half. Marquette's Tom Copa and South Carolina's Gerald Perry were both ejected from the game for fighting.

Marquette Coach Rick Majerus, whose team has had second-half letdowns in other games, admitted that he was worried when South Carolina rallied to go ahead 39-38.

'Bama Connection Wins For South

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Coach Kay Stephenson of the Buffalo Bills said Saturday he thought the South's Alabama connection gave the Rebels an advantage in their 21-20 Senior Bowl football victory over his North squad.

"They've worked together throughout their careers," Stephenson said. "They had a decided advantage."

Four of the South's offensive performers came from Alabama, including quarterback and most valuable offensive player Walter Lewis, his primary collegiate receivers, Joey Jones and Jesse Bendross, and running back Joe Carter.

The South surged to a 21-0 lead with Lewis setting up the first score on a 59-yard run and Wilbur Marshall of Florida tallying the second when he raced 42 yards with an interception return.

Defensive tackle Andre Townsend of Mississippi preserved the victory when he blocked a potential game-tying extra point early in the fourth quarter.

"The team hung in there and was never out of the game," Stephenson said.

Coryell, who also coached in this all-star game in 1978, said this year's crop of players was more talented, especially defensively.

"Our defensive backs really played well," he said of a group that accounted for three of the South's four pass interceptions. "They put on a good show. The entire defense did."

The North, rallying on second-half touchdown passes from Terry Nugent of Colorado State and Frank Seurer of Kansas, closed the deficit to one point when Seurer hit Penn State's Kevin Baugh with a 9-yard scoring strike with 14:54 left in the game.

Townsend, who had two quarterback sacks earlier in the game, then blocked the extra point attempt by Kansas' Bruce Kallmeyer to preserve the lead.

The South sealed the victory with 18 seconds remaining when Tony Lilly of Florida intercepted his second pass of the game, stopping a last-ditch threat that had reached the South 28 before a 15-yard penalty took the North out of field goal range.

The South built its 21-0 lead in the first 17 minutes of the game.

Alabama's Walter Lewis raced 59 yards to the North 14 on the South's first play of the game, scrambling out of trouble. Three plays later, he fired a 9-yard touchdown pass to Glenn Dennison of Miami, Fla.

Marshall, a two-time All-American linebacker, gave the South a 14-0 lead with 3:08 left in the opening period when he wrestled Nugent's pass away from Indiana's Duane Gunn and returned it the 42 yards for his touchdown.

Wayne Peace of Florida scored on a 7-yard quarterback draw to cap a 58-yard drive less than two minutes into the second quarter. Peace completed four passes in the drive for 42 yards and had two carries for 11 yards.

The North scored 5:17 before halftime on a 2-yard run by Ernest Anderson of Oklahoma State, capping a 62-yard drive in which Seurer hit on four of six passes for 42 yards.

The North marched 66 yards in eight plays in trimming the deficit to 21-14 on Nugent's 5-yard pass to David Lewis of California with 7:20 left in the third period, then moved 24 yards for the Seurer-to-Baugh TD after Todd Shell of Brigham Young intercepted Peace's deflected pass.

South 'Just Had Fun'

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Defensive tackle Doug Smith of Auburn said the South "just played ball and had fun," in the 35th Senior Bowl football game Saturday.

Smith and his defensive cohorts had the most fun, shutting down a North attack by intercepting four passes and coming up with a blocked extra point that preserved the Rebels' 21-20 victory and lifted their series lead to 17-15-3.

"Every thing we did on defense was basic," said Smith, who won an automobile after being named the game's top defensive performer. He was in on nine tackles and broke up two passes.

"The second half they got real tough," Smith said of a North squad that rallied from a 21-7 intermission deficit. The North had a late drive stalled by a 15-yard penalty and then ended by the second interception of the game by Tony Lilly of Florida.

All members of the South squad received $2,500 in their professional debut and the North players each received $2,250.

Walter Lewis of Alabama was named the game's outstanding offensive player and also won a new automobile. He passed 9 yards for one touchdown, which he set up with a 59-yard run.

Four other players received an additional $1,500 for being named their team's outstanding offensive and defensive players — Kevin Baugh of Penn State and Jackie Shipp of Oklahoma for the North and Louis Lipps of Southern Mississippi and Wilbur Marshall of Florida for the South.

Lewis said he hoped he made enough impression to be drafted as a quarterback, rather than as a running back.

"I've been a quarterback all my life," Lewis said. "I'd like to throw for a lot of yardage in a game and maybe for 3,000 yards in a year."

"We just wanted to come out and play as good as we could," Shipp said, adding that the coaching strategy gave him more opportunity to roam freely, resulting in his four unassisted tackles.

"We were shocked a little bit early in the beginning, but the TDs were not that hard to overcome," Baugh said.

"The last drive we were in perfect position to win," Baugh said. "It's too bad the penalty took us out of range, but we came back and showed what kind of football players we are."

The North drove to the South 28 in the final minute, drew a 15-yard penalty for blocking below the belt, and then Lilly claimed his second interception with 18 seconds to seal the victory.

Stamps Leads SWAC To Freedom Victory

ATLANTA (AP) — Sylvester Stamps of Jackson State caught three touchdown passes and Harold Smith of Texas Southern threw for three to lead the Southwestern Athletic Conference to a 36-22 college football victory over the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference in Saturday's Freedom Bowl.

SWAC pulled ahead to stay early in the fourth quarter on a 4-yard touchdown pass from Smith to Stamps that capped a 96-yard, 12-play drive. Michael Harrington's extra point gave SWAC a 29-22 lead, and the MEAC all-stars were unable to score again.

Smith, who completed 15 passes for 170 yards, was named most valuable player for the game, played at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. Stamps was named outstanding offensive player, and R.C. Eason, a noseguard from Florida A&M, was outstanding defensive player.

MEAC scored first on a 10-yard pass from Lamont Green of South Carolina State to Ray Alexander of Florida A&M, taking an 8-0 lead on a two-point conversion.

SWAC scored three unanswered touchdowns in the second quarter to build a 22-8 halftime lead. MEAC rebounded in the second half, scoring two third-quarter touchdowns to even the score at 22 on a 9-yard pass from Green to Alexander.

Teams Are Set For Japan Bowl Monday

TOKYO (AP) — College football all-stars, including 14 All-Americans, will hold their final practice Sunday for the ninth annual Japan Bowl game Monday in Yokohama, south of Tokyo.

A total of 67 players, 33 on the East team and 34 on the West team, will practice while marching bands and cheerleaders are scheduled to take part in a colorful parade in downtown Yokohama to stimulate Japanese football fans.

The West team's offensive unit features Nebraska's Mike Rozier, the 1983 Heisman Trophey winner, and Dean Steinkuhler, winner of the Lombardi Award as the best lineman, and wingback Irving Fryar, along with Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young, who set 13 NCAA offensive and passing records during his career.

The West's nine All-Americans also include wide receiver Gerald McNeil of Baylor, center Tony Slaton of Southern California, defensive end Ron Faurot of Arkansas, linebacker Ricky Hunley of Arizona and defensive back Don Rogers of UCLA.

In contrast, the East team lineup features powerful linemen, five of them All-Americans.

Defensive tackles Reggie White of Tennessee, who registered 15 quarterback sacks in the past season, and William Fuller of North Carolina are expected to give a hard time to the West's offensive unit.

For its offense, the East has 6-foot-3, 300-pound Brian Blados of North Carolina along with center Tom Dixon of Southern Cal and guard Stefan Hunphries of Michigan to protect quarterback Ben Bennett of Duke, who has an NCAA passing record of 9,614 yards in four years.

Many of the players came here from either the Hula Bowl in Honolulu on Jan. 7, won by the West 21-16, or the East-West Shrine game in Stanford, Calif., won by the East 27-19.

Eldredge Is Run Winner

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Todd Eldredge, 21, of Douglasville, running in his second marathon, won the seventh annual Savannah Marathon on Saturday with a time of 2 hours, 21 minutes and 5 seconds over the 26.2-mile course.

Finishing second was Kevin Moats, 29, of Atlanta, at 2:23:38. Third was Jonathan Perrotto, 24, of Hershey, Pa., at 2:26:24.

Padres' Owner Ray Kroc Is Dead

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Ray Kroc, who built McDonald's Corp. into a fast-food empire after buying the franchise for a California hamburger stand, died Saturday in San Diego at the age of 81.

Kroc, who also owned the San Diego Padres baseball team, died at 8:30 a.m. PST of heart failure in Scripps Memorial Hospital, said Dick Starmann, vice president of corporate communications for McDonald's.

Kroc suffered a stroke on Dec. 23, 1979. He said his required medication was "incompatible with the use of alcohol" and as part of his treatment he entered an alcohol rehabilitation center.

He unveiled his first set of golden arches on April 15, 1955. That red-and-blue-tile store was closed in 1983 to make way for a more modern McDonald's across the street.

The McDonald's empire comprises 7,000 restaurants around the globe, with 500 new outlets opening every year. The chain had sales of $7.1 billion in 1981.

Ray Kroc

"We take the hamburger business more seriously than anyone else," Kroc said when asked to explain his success.

Kroc purchased the Padres of the National League in 1974. He turned over administrative duties to Ballard Smith in 1979 after Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn fined Kroc $100,000 for publicly stating he was going to go after two players on other teams if they were available in the free-agent re-entry draft.

Kroc paid the fine and said "baseball can go to hell."

Krock also was involved in numerous charitable activities, primarily through the Kroc Foundation, a non-profit organization that provides funding and educational programs for people suffering from diabetes, arthritis and multiple sclerosis.

He was born in Chicago in 1902 and at age 15 went overseas during World War I as a member of the Red Cross ambulance corps. He returned to Chicago after the war and became music director of radio station WGES, playing the piano with Harry Sosnick's well-known band between jobs.

He became salesman for a company marketing a milkshake machine in 1940, and in 1955 hit upon the idea of fast-food franchises.

When Kroc bought the Padres on Jan. 25, 1974, the team was about to move to Washington, D.C. San Diego had been last in the National League West in each of its five years of existence and had drawn no more than 644,000 fans in any year.

Under Kroc, who engaged in an aggressive promotion campaign that included the now nationally reknowned San Diego Chicken, attendance jumped immediately, although it took longer for the on-field performance to improve.

In fact, in Kroc's 10 years in charge of the team, the Padres failed to draw 1 million only once and reached a high point in 1978, when attendance reached 1,670,107 fans.

Kroc also aggressively pursue high-price free agents, although many turned out to be disappointments. His two last such acquisitions were first baseman Steve Garvey, who joined the team last season and relief pitcher Rich Gossage, who signed with San Diego Jan. 6 for $5.5 million over five years.

But despite tha, the Padres still have never finished higher than fourth in the NL West. Their best mark was 84-78 in 1978 and they were fourth at 81-81 each of the past two years.

Funeral services will be private, Starmann said. A memorial service is planned Friday at Christ Church in Oak Brook.

Anderson An Outlaw

GREENSBORO (AP) — Elon College head football coach Wright Anderson said Friday he has signed on as an assistant coach with the Oklahoma Outlaws of the United States Football League.

"I've got mixed emotions about leaving," Anderson said. "I hate it and don't hate it. The timing is bad for Elon's program but it's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for me and just too good to turn down.

"Though it's going to be tough to leave Elon College, where I feel comfortable and like the area, I'm excited about the future," Wright said. "It was a spur-of-the-moment-type thing which just came about so fast I hardly knew it was happening."

Anderson will join the team in Tampa where they open practice for the new season Monday. His coaching responsibilities with the Outlaws will be with the receivers and specialty teams.

Within the past few weeks, Anderson had turned down two other opportunities at Marshall and the Air Force Academy.

"We're sorry to see him leave," said Athletic Director Alan White, "but we wish him well. The financial consideration was just too much for him to refuse. He upgraded our program even more during his short stay of two years after succeeding Jerry Tolley.

"We are going to start an immediate search for a replacement. There are some viable candidates on the staff, but we'll also look elsewhere."

Wake Defeats GCA By 58-36

RALEIGH — Wake Christian Academy gained a pair of victories Saturday afternoon over Greenville Christian. The boys won their outing, 58-36, while the girls took a 40-31 decision.

"Their big guys inside were more than we could handle," GCA coach Dale Thatcher said, "and it took its toll along the way. The Wake girls always have a good team, and while we played our usual good defensive game, they were just too much for us."

In the boys' game, Wake rushed out to a 13-8 lead after one period but GCA held them off in the second period to trail only 25-22 at intermission.

But in the third period, Wake outscored the Knights, 16-6, and built up a 41-28 lead to carry into the final period. In that they outscored the Knights, 17-8, for the win.

James Buffaloe led Wake with 15 points, while Billy Prince added 12 and Billy Buffaloe added 11. Greenville was paced by Chris Harris with 11 and Dan Andrews with ten.

In the girls contest, Wake eased out into an 8-4 lead during the first period of play. The action stayed close in the second period as Wake boosted its lead to 18-12 at the half. Wake was able to add another point to its margin in the third period and held a 28-21 lead going into the fourth quarter. In that, Wake outhit GCA, 12-10.

Annette Stone led Wake with 13 points, while Kathy Vernelson had 17 to pace GCA.

The GCA boys are now 5-4, while the girls are 5-3. The Knights travel to Wilson Christian on Friday for their next outing.

Kroc Never Got Championship

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ray Kroc, who owned the San Diego Padres baseball team for a decade before his death Saturday, was remembered as a "wonderful" man by present and former team officials who regret never giving him a championship team.

Kroc, who purchased the National League team in 1974 after making his fortune at the head of the McDonald's fast-food corporation, died of heart failure at the Scripps Clinic's Green Hospital Saturday morning. He was 81.

"One of the things that bothers most of us is we could never bring in a winner for him," said Jerry Coleman, the current team broadcaster who managed the Padres from 1979 through 1980 and and spent almost the entire season in last place.

"It's not been unknown for owners to talk to managers and say, 'Why did you do this and why that?' I got one phone call in all of 1980. He asked why I pitched a certain pitcher in a certain game. I explained why and he just said 'Go get 'em.'

"When you're in last place, ownership sometimes gets very testy. But we had lots of players who were really trying. He never at any time bothered me or interfered in any sense. I was having a tough time; he recognized that."

Kroc entered the hospital on Dec. 5, suffering from diabetes and the effects of numerous strokes in the past four years, said Ballard Smith, Kroc's son-in-law and club president.

E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi, who was general manager of the Padres from 1969 through 1977, had visited Kroc a week ago in his hospital room.

"Evit (Bavasi) and I were very fond of Ray; we owed him a great deal," said Bavasi, now executive vice president of the California Angels. "Baseball and the entire city will miss him."

McCrory Stops Guest In 6th, Retains Title

STERLING HEIGHTS, Mich. (AP) — Milton McCrory pinned challenger Milton Guest on the ropes in the sixth round with a barrage of right hands and stopped the former Marine at 2:59 to retain his World Boxing Council welterweight championship Saturday.

McCrory, 21, of Detroit, was in command throughout, knocking down Guest twice in the first round and once again in the fourth.

The victory could send McCrory to a big payday later this year in a fight against former champion Sugar Ray Leaonard.

The fifth round was uneventful, but McCrory came on again in the sixth, trapping the 147-pound Guest along the ropes once to the right of his corner and then beginning the final assault with Guest helpless in his own corner.

The fight, which was nationally televised by ABC, was held at the Premier Center in the Detroit suburb of Sterling Heights.

The title defense was McCrory's first since winning Leonard's vacated crown Aug. 13 with a decision over Colin Jones of Wales. McCrory, who also weighed in at the 147-pound limit, now is 22-0-1 while Guest is 17-2 as a professional boxer.

Barnhill Paces Rose Tankers

Kelly Barnhill won two events yesterday as Rose High School's swimmers gained revenge for an earlier loss to Goldsboro High School, 85-72.

The Rose girls, meanwhile, won their second straight meet from Goldsboro, taking a 90-60 decision.

Chapel Hill, which was supposed to have participated in the meet, cancelled out.

The Rose girls took first place in four individual events as Arleen Song won the 100-yard backstroke; Susana Pera took the 50-year freestyle, Luanne Wallace took the 100-yard breaststoke and Betsy Barnhill won the one-meter diving. The Rose girls also won the medley relay with Song, Anissa Boyer, Lisa Wallace and Luanne Wallace swimming.

Barnhill sparked the boys with victories in the 50-yard freestyle and 100-yard backstroke. Paul Mark Kelly took a win in the 100-yard breaststroke and Les Turner won the 500-yard freestyle, while Chris Van Sant won the 1-meter diving. Rose also won the medley relay as Barnhill, Jon Jolly, Kelly and Turner combined for that win.

Rose is now 1-1, while the girls are 2-0. Rose travels to Goldsboro next Saturday with Durham Jordan is also to join in.

Rose Tops Beddingfield

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Carlton Wilson scored 22 points, but it was eight free throws in the final period by Tyrone Smith that clinched a 64-55 Big East basketball win over Wilson Beddingfield for Rose Friday night.

Smith banged through eight of ten attempts in the final period when the Bruins attempted to use the foul line to carry their rally from as much as 12 points down to a climax.

Rose, which took some poor shots during that final period and made eight turnovers, scored ten of its 18 fourth quarter points at the line to hold off Beddingfield.

Earlier in the evening, Rose High's surprising Rampettes won their third straight league game, but also had to hold off a rally, gaining a 45-42 victory.

"Beddingfield is a scrappy team," Coach Jim Brewington said afterwards. "But we played better defense than we did in a long while, and that really helped too."

Brewington had his team in a zone defense most of the way, noting that against the quicker teams like Beddingfield, it would be necessary for the Rampants to have a shot at winning.

"I thought we handled ourselves well out there tonight. We got a little nervous in the press, but we pulled through."

Brewington praised the effort of Jeff Hopkins, who finished the game with 14 points, most of them off offensive rebounds. "He did an outstanding job on the boards," Brewington said. Rose held only a 44-41 edge on the boards, but much of the catching up came after Hopkins left the game with 5:03 left, having picked up his fifth foul.

"When Jeff went out, Carlton picked up the slack for us on the boards and kept us in there."

True — but it was Smith's key free throws that enabled the Rampants to keep the lead and hold onto the win.

The first period saw the two swap baskets back and fourth. After Beddingfield scored the opening basket, the lead changed hands three times, and the score was tied on six occasions. Rose finally pushed ahead by four late in the period, on a steal and a dunk by Mack Walston and a jumper in the lane by Wilson. That made it 16-12 with 11 seconds left in the period.

Beddingfield twice more tied it in the second quarter before Smith scored on a layup and Hopkins hit from underneath for a 22-18 edge. Rose stretched that to six, 26-20, on a drive by Smith, and held a 30-24 lead at halftime.

While Beddingfield was missing its first seven shots of the second half, Rose scorede three baskets and moved out to a 36-24 lead — the largest of the game. But five straight points by Eric Batts brought the Bruins back to 38-31 before Wilson hit two in the lane for a 42-31 lead. Rose held that 11-point edge at the end of the quarter, 46-35.

Beddingfield scored the first four points of the fourth period, and Andre Pegues added four more near the mid-point of the frame to cut the lead back to 52-47.

Rose, however, managed to match points by the Bruins until Smith hit two to up the lead to 62-53 with 39 seconds left, sealing the win.

The Bruins had a chance to pull it out — especially after Hopkins left the game. They hit on just four of 16 from that point on, however, and were just 6-of-27 for the quarter. Rose was only four of 13 in the period as both teams missed on a number of layup opportunities.

While Wilson finished with 22, Smith had 16, Hopkins had 14 and Walston had 10.

Beddingfield was led by Batts with 19, while Marcus Parker added 13.

Beddingfield's girls pushed out into a 6-0 lead before Rose finally scored with 4:47 left on a jumper by Doris Richardson. Rose outscored the Lady Bruins, 6-1, over the next few minutes and took an 8-7 lead before Beddingfield moved back ahead, 11-10 at the end of the period.

Rose, led by Niansa Outlaw, came back out to score six straight in the second period before Beddingfield got its only points of the quarter on a baseline jumper by Tracy Hooker. Outlaw hit again off a rebound and Vickie Parrott added two free throws for a 20-13 halftime lead by the Rampettes.

The Rose girls added the first two baskets of the second half, and after Beddingfield hit, added three more buckets for a 30-15 lead with 3:51 left in the quarter.

"I think we looked up at the scoreboard and saw that lead and got a little careless," Coach Dennis Gibson said later. From that point on, Rose was outscored, 27-15, as the Lady Bruins rallied and nearly pulled it out.

Paced by Hope Loften, the Bruins came back on Rose, outhitting the Rampettes, 10-3 the rest of the quarter. Then, in the first six minutes of the final period, Beddingfield continued its rally, outscoring Rose, 13-8, to trim the margin back to only three, 41-38, with 2:06 left to go.

But Rose was able to hold on, as Richardson hit a free throw and Lori Woolard tossed back a missed free throw to up the lead to six again, 44-38.

Loften, however, hit two free throws with 48 seconds to go to cut the lead to two, 44-42, but the Bruins never had the chance to move ahead.

After Woolard missed a free throw, Rose got the rebound and Cindy Humphrey hit the first of a one-and-one with six seconds left to insure the win.

"I knew that Beddingfield was the kind of team that could come back on us if we weren't careful. But it sure is good to be 3-0 in the conference right now," Gibson said.

"Niansa did an outstanding job for us on the offensive boards. Doris really didn't get into the game like she can, but Niansa was there to create something for us.

"Beddingfield is scrappy, and their full-court pressure paniced us a little.

"But we've got Fike next and they are probably one of the best teams in the state. We'll have to play very good just to stay close enough to have a chance to win. And we'll have to play an outstanding game to win."

Rose was led by Outlaw with 19 points while Richardson had 11. Loften had 14 and Jackie Thompson had 12 for Beddingfield.

Rose is now 7-4 overall, and 2-1 in league play. The Rampettes are now 3-8 and 3-0. The Rampants are idle Tuesday because of exams, returning to action on Friday at Wilson Fike.

Knights Down Falls Road

Greenville Christian Academy built up an early lead and cruised to a 49-37 basketball victory over Rocky Mount's Falls Road Academy Friday night.

The Knights eased their way into a 12-9 lead after one period of play and outshot Falls Road, 10-6, in the second period to up it to 22-15 by the end of the half.

In the third quarter, Greenville again outhit its guest, 13-6, running the lead out to 35-21. Falls Road cut two off that in the final period.

Mike Griner led the Knights with 15 points, while Dan Griffin had 10 for Falls Road.

"We were ablé to take advantage of our height and get the ball inside, accounting for Griner's totals," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "It was a good win for us and we played well as a team."

The Lady Knights inched ahead, 8-7, after one period, but Falls Road came back to hold GCA to only three second quarter points and took a 14-11 halftime lead.

GCA rallied, however, 12-4 in the third quarter, moving back out, 23-18. In the last period, Falls Road rallied, but Greenville Christian spread it out and Kathy Vernelson hit several key free throws as the Lady Knights never lost the lead.

Vernelson led GCA with 24 points, while Amy Fuller and Michelle West each had 12 for Falls Road.

Both GCA teams are now 5-2 on the year. Following a Saturday meeting with Wake Christian in Raleigh, the Knights travel to Wilson Christian next Friday.

Roanoke Rapids Stuns Redskins In 55-46 Win

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapids High School, floundering along without a win in nine contests, surprised Roanoke High Friday night, taking a 55-46 victory over the Redskins in a Northeastern Conference basketball game.

Roanoke Rapids inched ahead, 6-5, after one period, then outhit the Redskins, 15-9, in the second quarter, taking a 21-14 lead at the half. Things go no better in the third period as Roanoke Rapids boosted its lead to 35-22. The Redskins tried to rally in the final period, outscoring the Jackets, 24-20, but were too far back.

The game was deciced at the foul line where Roanoke Rapids hit on 27 of 45 attempts, as compared to only 14 of 19 for the 'Skins.

Ed Pant led Roanoke Rapids with 22 points, 14 of them at the stripe, while Jack Barbour added 11. Roanoke was led by James Duggins with 14 and Garrett Baker had 10.

For Roanoke's girls, it would be nothing like that. The Lady Tribe scampered out to an 18-5 lead after one period and was never in trouble. Roanoke boosted its lead to 30-11 at intermission and took a 40-18 lead into the final period. In that, Roanoke allowed an 18-13 rally.

Roanoke's boys fall to 5-3 in Northeastern play and 5-6 overall. Roanoke Rapids is 1-6, 1-9. The Roanoke girls are now 5-3, 5-6, while the Lady Jackets are 0-7, 0-10.

Greene Central Slips By Chargers, 38-37

SNOW HILL — Greene Central held onto its perfect record in the Eastern Carolina Conference by the hair on its chinie-chin-chin Friday night, escaping from Ayden-Grifton's Chargers, 38-37.

The Lady Rams also remained unbeaten in three ECC outings, 50-37.

For a while there, it looked like the Rams might have an easy time of it. They pushed out into a 13-7 lead after the first period and boosted that out to 28-19 at halftime.

But Ayden-Grifton began to rally in the third period, cutting the margin back to 34-28. Then, in the final period, the rally closed the Chargers to within one of the Rams.

"They fouled us with two seconds left on the rebound, but as usual, we missed when we could have put the game away," Greene Central Coach Lewis Godwin said. Fortunately for Godwin's Rams, not enough time remained for the Chargers to get off a decent shot.

The Rams are now 11-2 overall and 3-0 in league play. Ayden-Grifton falls to 8-4, 2-2.

In the girls' contest, it was close for the first period as both teams scored eight points. But in the second quarter, the Lady Rams outshot the Chargers, 16-8 and took a 24-16 margin at intermission.

Ayden-Grifton clipped one off that in the third frame, but still trailed, 32-25. The Lady Rams outscored AG, 18-12, to the win, taking the win.

Cyndi Hicks led Greene Central with 16 points, while Anntionette Wilkes had 14 and Allison Battle scored 11. Cora Faison scored 13 to lead Ayden-Grifton.

The Greene Central girls are now 10-3 overall and 3-0 in the conference. Ayden-Grifton is 4-8, 2-2.

Conley Game Is Postponed

JACKSONVILLE — D.H. Conley's Coastal Conference basketball game at White Oak High School was postponed Friday night because of problems with the lighting in the White Oak gym.

The contest has been rescheduled for Wednesday night at White Oak.

Auburn Upsets Kentucky, 82-63

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn Coach Sonny Smith called it "a combination of the inside game and the outside game combined with the running game" after the unranked Tigers handed second-ranked Kentucky its first defeat of the season.

Auburn got 25 points from Chuck Person and romped to a stunning 82-63 Southeastern Conference victory over the Wildcats Friday night in the only game involving a ranked team.

The Tigers overcame an 8-0 deficit to take first place in the SEC with a 4-0 conference record.

Kentucky, 12-1 overall and 4-1 in the SEC, got 22 points from Melvin Turpin and 15 points from Sam Bowie.

Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall called Auburn "as talented a team as any one we've played. He said that statements attributed to his team's being the grestest ever were totally misrepresented in the press.

Charles Barkley had 21 points, and Greg Turner and Gerald White each added 12 points for Auburn, 10-3.

Turpin and Sam Bowie, who scored 15, were the only Kentucky players 3n double figures. Jim Master, who was averaging 10.8 points per game, scored two. Kenny Walker, averaging 12 points a game for the Wildcats, was held to six.

Auburn outrebounded Kentucky 41-36 and also took advantage of turnovers. Kentucky gave the ball up 25 times, while Auburn gave it away 17 times.

Smith conceded that scheduling was on Auburn's side. The Tigers were playing their first game this week and Kentucky was on the court for the third time.

Others

In other action, Paul Anderson scored 25 points to lead Dartmouth to a 62-52 victory over Harvard; Tom Meekins scored 18 points to lead Marist College to a 67-62 win over Siena; Larry Westbrook's two free throws with one second remaining lifted Holy Cross past Manhattan 83-82; Robert Jones scored 17 points and David Wynn added 16 as Howard defeated North Carolina A&T 75-68; John Stockton scored 26 points and contributed 12 assists as Gonzaga defeated Seattle Pacific 84-67; Butch Hays scored 21 points, including nine in the final seven minutes, to lead California to a 66-64 victory over Stanford and Earl Harrison pumped in 16 points to help Morehead State beat Tennessee Tech 79-72 in a game that started a midnight local time.

Also, Dave Urban tallied a game and career-high 24 points to lead Loyola College to 79-71 triumph over St. Francis College of New York. At 0-13, St. Francis is one of two Division I schools that has not won a game yet this season. The other is Prairie View A&M.

Aycock In 60-41 Win

The victory was the second in three starts for the Jaguars.

Aycock was led by Terry Warren, who scored 17 points, while Melvin Jenkins added 16 and David Lee had 10.

Panthers Nip Farmville By 41-39

By JEFF ALLEN
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's Kent Hardy, after making what appeared to be a winning basket, must have looked around for a black cat as a foul erased the bucket and allowed North Pitt to escape the Friday the 13th Eastern Carolina basketball game, 41-39.

In the girls game, Stephanie Newton and Lisa Lang scored a total of 35 points to pace the Lady Jaguars past North Pitt's Pant-HERS 52-49 in overtime.

In the final period of the boys' game, Hardy made three free throws and a short lane shot, while teammate Evans battled in for a layup to pull the Jags to within three of the Panthers. Then, with just under two minutes left to play, Toronto Moye hit a 15 footer, narrowing the margin to one, 40-39. Then, with three seconds left on the clock, Hardy worked his way into the lane and hit a turnaround jumper that seemingly gave Farmville the win. But when North Pitt's Keith Clark was fouled, the basket was disallowed, and Clark sank one of his two foul shots and North Pitt walked away with the win.

For Hardy, it was truely Friday the 13th.

North Pitt put the first points on the board when Levon Shaw drove in for a layup and Ronnie Ebron sank a free throw. Farmville came back with a pair of jump shots from Hardy and Bobby Evans. One minute later, it was Hardy and Evans again with another pair making it 8-5. Farmville kept the pressure on with its 2-3 zone defense, but with less than a minute left in the first quarter, Keith Clark drove inside with a lay up and a free throw to make it 14-12 at the buzzer.

Maintaining the lead, North Pitt's Lenny Langey hit on a 10 footer from the lane. With 5:46 remaining in the half, Hardy made a three point play when he drove in for the score. The Panthers increased their lead with just over a minute to go when Ebron connected on a short jumper. North Pitt led at the half, 24-21.

North Pitt continued to surge in the third quarter when Linwood Harris and Paul Streeter each connected for two to make it 30-26. Evans came back to hit on a line jumper and made each of his free throws, but it wasn't enough to stop the Panthers. Langley then scored eight more points by himself to give North Pitt a 38-30 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Then came the Jaguar rally that nearly pulled it out.

The Jaguars fall to 0-3 in conference play and 2-10 overall while North Pitt moves to 2-2 in the conference and 6-6 overall.

• •

After a series of early steals, Sudi Sharpe put the Pant-HERS on top first with single foul shot. Farmville answered with the combination of Newton and Joy Peadon, who put in eight points and gave the Lady Jags a 10-3 advantage with 2:20 left in the first quarter. Sharpe returned fire by hitting on a 10-foot side shot, while Regina Moore drove in for a lay up, making it 12-7 at the end of the quarter.

The Pant-HERS quickly caught up in the second quarter when Alice Pittman made both of her free throws and tapped in a shot from underneth the rim. Then Deloris Pittman went under for two and snatched the lead from the Lady Jags. The Pant-HERS held the Lady Jags to just five points in the quarter while breaking down their 2-3 defense. At intermission, North Pitt led 20-17.

Sharpe streched the lead to 24-19 with 5:08 left in the period on a free throw. But the determined Lady Jaguars bounced right back with the combination of Lang and Newton. Lang added four while Newton sank a free throw and a jumper. With 1:03 left in the third, Newton again went to the line and dropped in the two which gave Farmville the lead 31-28.

Farmville kept the lead until the Pant-HERS switched to a man-to-man defense with 1:43 left in the game, and that sparked a rally. Alice Pittman took the lead away by hitting both of her free throws to give North Pitt a 42-41 lead with 35 seconds left in the game. With 12 seconds left, Lang went to the line, but could only make one of the two shots,leaving it 42-42.

The Lady Jaguars regained the lead early in the extended period, and never looked back. Newton fought for a layup and also made the bonus foul shot, making it 45-43. Lang again drove in for another score to put the Jags ahead by four. With only 1:08 left in the period, Regina Cox hurried to tie it at 49.

Fouled with eight seconds left Sylvia Williams went to the line and made her first shot. Then with three seconds of the clock, Lang stole the ball on the inbounds pass and laid it up for two more, for a final of 52-49.

Farmville climbs to 6-7 overall and 1-2 in the Eastern Carolina Conference. North Pitt drops to 7-5, 2-2 in the league.

Tuesday the Jaguars travel to Ayden-Grifton while North Pitt, after a Saturday night visit to Tarboro, plays host to D.H. Conley on Tuesday.

Washington Rally Overcomes Williamston In Fourth Quarter

WILLIAMSTON — Things seemed going fine for Williamston High School Friday night. By the end of the third period, the Tigers had worked up a 46-36 lead over Washington's Pam Pack and seemed in complete control of the Northeastern Conference basketball game.

But obviously coming back onto the court for the final period the Tigers must have walked under a ladder or broken a mirror or let a black cat cross their path. For in the fourth period, the Tigers managed but nine points while Washington was scoring 23 to pull out a 59-55 win over Williamston.

Williamston cruised out to a 17-11 lead in the first quarter of the game, and upped that to 31-21 at halftime.

Both squads dumped through 15 points in the third period and Williamston appeared in control. But in the final period, Earl Randolph, scoring seven of the 23 points, led the rally by the Pam Pack that pulled it out in the end.

Steve Austin led Washington with 17 points, while Jeffrey Cox added 16 and Randolph had 11. James Ward led Williamston with 14 points with Craig Brown hitting 13.

Williamston's girls eased out into an 8-7 lead after one period of play, but Washington hung close and came back to knot it at 17-17 at intermission. In the third period, neither team scored much, each hitting two points for a 19-19 tie.

Dailey led the Washington scoring with eight, while Kim Bowen had 10 to pace Williamston.

The Washington boys are now 3-4 in the league and 5-8 overall, while the girls are 1-6, 3-8. Williamston falls off to 1-6 in the Northeastern Conference, 3-6 overall, while the girls are 1-6, 2-8.

Washington plays host to Roanoke Rapids on Tuesday, while Williamston travels to Edenton on Monday night.

Bears Upset Chocowinity

CHOCOWINITY — Bear Grass High School took an early lead and stunned Chocowinity, 41-26, Friday night in the Tobacco Belt Conference basketball race.

The Bears pushed out into an 11-6 lead in the first period of their game but Chocowinity rallied, 8-6, in the second. That still left the Bears up, 17-14, at intermission. Bear Grass continued to lead in the third period, running its lead out to 27-22.

The final period proved decisive as the Bears held the Indians to just four points while scoring 14 of their own to clinch the win.

Chocowinity's girls more than doubled the score on the Lady Bears in the first quarter, 22-10. They continued to pull away in the second period, holding a 39-20 lead at the half. Chocowinity boosted that to 53-32 in the third frame.

Wendy Elks led Chocowinity with 15 points, while Wanda Congleton had 14 and Cynthia Gibbs had 13. Amy Lilly and Lauri Cowen led Bear Grass with 10 each.

The Bears climb to 5-2 in the league and 5-5 overall. The Lady Bears are now 2-5 in conference play and 5-6 overall. Chocowinity's boys are now 7-1 in the league and 8-4 overall. The girls are 7-1 and 8-2.

JV Game: Chocowinity 45, Bear Grass 38.

Kinston Star Picks State

RALEIGH (AP) — Charles Shackleford, a 6-foot-9 junior at Kinston, N.C., High School, says he will enroll at North Carolina State on a basketball grant-in-aid in the fall of 1985.

"I really like the people at State," Shackleford said Friday. "I attended the basketball camp down there when I was in the ninth grade and everybody was extremely nice to me. They spent a lot more time with me than at the other places I've been."

Currently midway through his junior year, Shackleford is averaging 19.8 points and 14.1 rebounds for the Vikings. He chose the Wolfpack although getting offers from Maryland and Iowa.

"Charles is a tremendous talent," said N.C. State coach Jim Valvano. "We are very pleased that he has decided to come to State. Hopefully, this will alleviate some of the pressures of recruiting and he will have a productive junior and senior year."

Shackleford was named the Most Valuable Player in the Durham Sun Tournament, scoring 33 points and getting 13 rebounds in the championship game. As a sophomore last year, he averaged 15.2 points and 11.3 rebounds per game.

The "grand" wagon... from Peugeot

So big is the Peugeot 505 S wagon that you can carry over half a ton. And so richly appointed that almost every imaginable luxury is standard equipment.

Best news of all, this is one big wagon that's designed not to wag its tail clumsily from side to side on the highway.

Lakers Run Past Bullets

SWAN QUARTER — Harry Burrus scored 31 points and led Mattamuskeet to an 83-66 Tobacco Belt basketball victory over Jamesville Friday night.

Jamesville's girls, however, rallied in their contest and pulled out a 37-35 victory in the final seconds.

Mattamuskeet's boys eased out into a 19-16 lead after one period of play, then shot away from the Bullets. The Lakers outhit Jamesville, 22-13, in the second quarter, building up a 41-29 lead at intermission.

In the third, things got no better for the Bullets, as they saw the Lakers build up a 64-41 lead. Jamesville was then allowed a 25-19 rally in the final period.

In addition to Burrus' output, the Lakers got 20 from Steve Farrow and 15 from Jay Ethridge. Jamesville was led by Richie Ange with 24 points, while Tracy Peele had 15 and James Anthony had ten.

Mattamuskeet's girls inched in front of Jamesville, 9-7, after one period, but the Bullets stayed close and trailed at the half by just one, 17-16. The Lady Lakers pulled away in the third frame, however, with a 13-6 margin, taking a comfortable 30-22 lead into the final period.

But the Lady Bullets put together a good defense and offense and rallied to tie it up at 35-35 with about a minute left when Cindy Getchell hit. Then, after Mattamuskeet missed, the Bullets rebounded with 36 seconds to go, and Getchell provided the winning basket with five seconds to go.

Robin Gardner led Jamesville with 15 points, while Mary Brummage led Mattamuskeet with 11 and Nadine Whitfield added 10.

Jamesville's boys are now 2-6 overall and 2-5 in the Tobacco Belt Conference. Jamesville's girls climb to 3-5, 2-5 in league play.

The Bullets travel to Aurora on Tuesday.

Bruins Hand Rose 1st Loss

STANTONSBURG — Wilson Beddingfield handed Rose High School its first defeat of the year in wrestling Friday night, gaining a 47-22 decision.

The Rampants lost the first three matches, two of them by forfeits, and never were able to catch up to the Bruins as their record fell to 8-1 on the year and 2-1 in league action.

The biggest win of the night for Rose came at the 140-pound level when Sherry Frank, behind 14-4, managed to pin Anthony Newton and gain the win.

Rose, Beddingfield, Hunt and Rocky Mount are all tied for the league lead now with 2-1 records. Beddingfield is 8-3 overall.

Rose returns to action next Friday, hosting Wilson Fike.

Currituck Wildlife Refuge A Reality — A national wildlife refuge on the Currituck Outer Banks in northeastern North Carolina will soon be a reality. Parcels of land owned by The Nature Conservancy, a national, non-profit organization dedicated to preserving unique natural areas, will soon be sold or transferred to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for the refuge.

"In 1977, the Nature Conservancy bought two large, undeveloped tracts of land located north of the village of Corolla for a future wildlife refuge," said Greg Low, vice president of the Nature Conservancy. "These parcels, known as the Swan Island and Monkey Island Hunt Club tracts, total about 6,000 acres."

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is buying 512 acres of marsh on the Monkey Island tract from the conservancy for the refuge. The conservancy will also transfer a conservation easement, which is a legal device that protects land from future defelopment, on 4,600 acres of wetlands on the nearby Swan Island tract to the Fish and Wildlife Service for the refuge. Both of these transactions should be completed within several months. The Nature Conservancy will retain several hundred acres of upland area on both tracts.

In additions, the N.C. Office of Coastal Management has received $1.3 million in federal funds to develop a national estuarine sanctuary in Currituck Sound. This sanctuary will border the refuge and conservancy lands and portions of the sanctuary are being sold or donated to the Office of Coastal Management by the Nature Conservancy. This sanctuary will total about 2,800 acres of dune, beach, marsh and shallow coastal waters and will include Mary Island, portions of Monkey Island, Raccoon Island and Ship's Bay.

All told, the refuge system — including the Nature Conservancy lands, the refuge itself and the estuarine sanctuary — will protect about 7,000 acres of land, marsh and shallow coastal waters. While this is a far cry from the Fish and Wildlife Service's original proposal to establish a 15,000-acre wildlife refuge stretching from the village of Corolla north to the Virginia line, it will still protect valuable wildlife habitat.

"Currituck Sound is very important to wildlife —especially waterfowl," said Debbie Paul, assistant to the executive director of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission. "Six percent fo the waterfowl in the Atlantic Flyway winter in Currituck Sound, and 32 percent of North Carolina's wintering waterfowl can be found in these waters. The refuge will preserve the quality of this habitat by protecting lands and waters and preventing further development on the isolated, northern portions of the Currituck Banks.

"The refuge will also protect a heron rookery on Monkey Island. About 900 herons of five different species breed in this rookery. In addition, the ocean beaches on the Currituck Banks offer nesting habitat for endangered loggerhead sea turtles."

Bowhunters Association Supports Wildlife — The North Carolina Bowhunters Association recently presented the wildlife resources commission with a $1,000 contribution.

The contribution will be used for rabbit and black bear projects in the state this year.

"I know I'm in good hands when Block prepares my tax return. My preparer goes to school every year to get special training. And she does taxes hundreds of times. Training and experience — that's what makes you good at your job. I'll care for the animals and let Block take care of my taxes."

Trinity Rally Tops Temple

WILSON — Trinity Christian rallied from as much as 13 points down to pull out a 59-50 victory over Temple Christian Academy of Wilson Friday night.

Temple jumped out to a 13-4 lead in the first period of the boys' game, but the Tigers were able to match the Patriots in the second frame, each scoring 12. That left Wilson on top, however, 25-16, at the half.

Trinity began its rally in the second half, outscoring Temple, 17-11, in the third period to trim the lead to 36-33. In the final quarter, Trinity completed its rally, surpassing the Patriots, 26-14. In that final period, Trinity cashed in at the foul line, hitting ten of ten.

Jimmy Powers led the Tigers with 18 points, while Art Reynolds had 17 and Maury Harris had 14. Al Adams led Wilson with 34 points.

Trinity's girls jumped off to a 14-8 lead in the opening period, but saw Temple rally, 8-5, in the second period to trim the lead back to 19-16. But in the third quarter, Trinity outscored Temple, 26-2, to rush out to a 45-18 lead. Temple rallied against the Lady Tiger bench, 18-6, in the final quarter.

Renee Deans led Trinity with 14 points while Mary Harris had 10. Jennifer Revis led Temple with 28.

Trinity's boys are now 7-2 while the girls are 4-1. Trinity travels to Kinston to face Bethel Academy on Tuesday.

Stone Veneer, Balcony Enhance Exterior

No. 10128 — The Chartrand

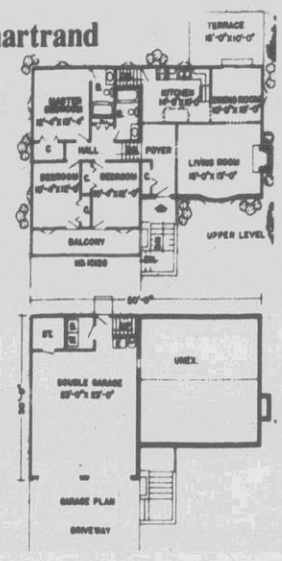

By Jerry Bishop

The sleeping areas of this lovely split-level have received as much designing as the living areas of the home, insuring luxurious living throughout the three levels of the Chartrand.

A 23-foot balcony fronts two bedrooms, each with large closet and sharing a full bath. The master bedroom, toward the rear of the home, has its own full bath and walk-in closet. The sleeping area is confined to the top level of the home, providing necessary privacy for comfortable family living.

Down a few steps is the kitchen, dining and living room, which opens from a large foyer. A back stairs from the kitchen to the sleeping area allows private latenight snacking, even though other members of the family may be entertaining visitors in the living room.

The living room is decorated with a bow window and wood-burning fireplace, and the dining room opens to the terrace via sliding glass doors. The kitchen is designed with refrigerator, range and sink in an L-shape for efficient cooking. Eating space is also included here, as well as in the more formal dining room.

The lowest level includes a double garage, storage space and a laundry area. Vertical siding at the balcony area combines with French doors and a stone veneer to create an unusual exterior for the "Chartrand."

Solar Expert Takes His Work Home With Him

By JAN McCONNAUGHEY
Associated Press Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Keith Overdyke's utility bills are much smaller than his neighbors' because he took his work home with him.

It all started in 1974, when the state Department of Natural Resources assigned him to study solar heating and cooling, with an eye to using it in Louisiana.

"All this stuff made sense to me," Overdyke said. "I said, 'Gee, whiz. People aren't building houses this way, but I don't see why we shouldn't be building them.'"

Overdyke, 44, started work on plans for his own house in 1979, and decided to use those ideas. Now he's even more convinced of their worth.

"I've been absolutely delighted with it. And having lived in it two years, I don't know why people would build a house any other way."

He said his three-bedroom house cost $36 a square foot. It has about 1,700 square feet, putting the total at a reasonable $61,200.

Overdyke's utility bills have been averaging $55 a month, about one-half to one-third the size of his neighbors' bills, even though some design features were included because he wanted them, not because they save money.

A fireplace, for example.

"Wood heat is a very expensive way to heat a house unless you have your own woodlot," he said. "It's more there because it's nice and it's pleasant."

However, after deciding to have a fireplace, he made sure he had the most efficient type, and put it in the middle of a room so heat wouldn't be wasted to the outside air.

The high ceilings also are just for looks.

"It doesn't have anything to do with energy except to say you can have high vaulted ceilings and still be energy efficient.

"The thing I like about the house is that it looks like a house. The steep-roofed house is Acadian type architecture — a very Baton Rouge-type house."

And indeed, there are no shiny solar collectors on the roof. The design is what's called passive solar — that is, it makes the best possible use of sunlight and shade rather than using sunlight to turn wheels or heat water.

For instance, huge water oaks shade the house during the summer but don't get in the way of winter sunlight. Big camellias act as a windbreak during the winter — and even though they and the azaleas keep out some of the winter sun, their beauty makes it worth it, Overdyke said.

"It looks like the house has been there forever. It's just nice living among azaleas and camellias and oaks," he said.

The south windows were designed with overhangs that again keep out the summer sun but let it in during the winter, and there are as few windows as possible on the east and west sides of the house.

The roof has an airspace between shingles and insulation, and is vented top and bottom.

"A solar collector is essentially just a box with a piece of glass over it. You just design windows so they serve that function," he said.

The air conditioner, a high-efficiency two-ton unit, cost about $250 more than a standard unit. But Overdyke said lower cooling bills paid back that difference within a year.

"Whatever energy-efficient item you get should pay for itself within about three years," he said.

He also keeps the thermostat at 80 during warmer months and turns on three big ceiling fans to keep the house comfortable, he said.

Overdyke did get an unexpected break on his architect. He asked the head of Louisiana State University's school of architecture to recommend someone for the project and got Ricki B. Fisher.

The workhorse of the portable sanding field is the belt sander. It's the tool that is required when a lot of heavy-duty sanding is to be done. That includes what you might call "messy" sanding, such as removing paint, sanding rough surfaces smooth and covering large areas from which sizable amounts of wood must be taken off.

If you seldom do this type of work and have some other electric sanders, you can probably get by without the belt sander if you utilize coarse abrasives with the machines you have. But this kind of sanding places a heavy burden on the finishing sanders and should be undertaken only on rare occasions.

A belt sander uses a continuous belt, which runs over pulleys, drums or cylinders at both ends. Because the sanding apparatus is so powerful, it is important that you do not touch the belt to the work surface until the motor is in full operation. It is then lowered slowly so that the back part of the belt touches the wood first, after which the belt is quickly brought to a horizontal position as it is moved forward. Once the sander is in action, guide it back and forth in a sort of stroking action, applying very little pressure.

The machine should always be moving forward or backward. If it is left in one spot, even for a second, too much wood will be taken off in that area. When you are ready to call a halt, temporary or otherwise, lift the sander from the surface and then — and only then — turn off the motor. At the edges and corners, be extra careful that you don't take off too much wood, so lift it off the wood as you reach the edges. This will prevent it from tilting over the edges, which is the cause of excessive wood removal.

When you first begin using a belt sander, test it on scrap wood. After you have handled it a while, you will get the knack and have little trouble. In fact, those who use the belt sander a few times find they have such control of it that they can even use it as a finishing sander by using the proper abrasive paper. But this should not be attempted until you feel you have mastered the sander.

Because a belt sander is meant for tough work, it must be held firmly, which is why most of them have two handles. There are different ways to activate the motor, one of the most convenient being via trigger switches. It is even more convenient when the model also has a device which locks on the switch while you are doing prolonged sanding and then releases it when you press the trigger.

Changing a belt on this type of sander is easy. Sanding belts are spliced and have designations on them which show which way the belts should be installed so that the splices will not break.

Most belt sanders include instructions on how the sander can be mounted in an upside down fashion to perform as a stationary sander. Some come with dust bag attachments, which are most helpful, since belt sanders usually stir up a lot of dust particles that can be annoying to gather up. In any case, dust bag or not, it's a good idea to wear goggles.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I am finishing our basement and intend to handle all the work except the electrical and plumbing chores. If we decide on a downstairs bathroom, can we have a special toilet installed that will not call for ripping up the floor, which is concrete? I thought I read about such a toilet once, but can't recall the details.

A. — Yes, there is an upward-flushing toilet for just such an installation. Since you are not going to take on the plumbing yourself — a wise decision — tell the plumber what you want and he will know where to get it.

Q. — My wife, who has done the wallpapering in our three houses over a period of 20 years, soon will be redoing our bathroom. This is one room she has never done. I have heard that ordinary wallpaper paste will not stand up too well in a bathroom. Since we plan on using unpasted wallpaper, is there some special kind of paste that is good in bathrooms?

A. — Actually, a good wallpaper paste of almost any kind resists moisture a lot better these days than years ago, but if you want to be doubly sure, use a vinyl adhesive.

Q. — I conduct periodic examinations of our asphalt roof, using binoculars while standing on the ground. In doing this the other day, I noticed that a couple of the shingles at the ridge of the roof are broken on one side. We have not had any leaks. Are those broken shingles likely to result in leaks at a later time? Should they be fixed right away?

A. — It depends on where the breaks are and what kinds of breaks they are. Nobody can make an accurate guess for you unless they look at the shingles close up. Assuming therefore, that you do not want to hire a roofer to take a look, you'll have to decide whether you want to tke a chance that there will not be a leak soon. There may not be one for years or there could be one tomorrow. If you do not have the matter taken care of right away, better keep a sharp eye out for a leak. Remember that if water is coming in where the shingle breaks up, it will not necessarily show up on the inside directly under that area. It could come through many yards away.

(For a copy of Andy Lang's booklet, "Selecting Quality Roofing," which includes an asphalt shingle color chart, send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Garden Clinic

Q. How much sunlight should a vegetable garden receive? (W.W., Smithfield)

A. All vegetables need some sunlight each day. Eight to 10 hours each day is ideal. Therefore, vegetables should be planted away from buildings, trees and shrubs which shade the area. The roots of the trees and shrubs will compete for nutrients and water. If a shaded area has to be used, vegetables like broccoli, collards, spinach and lettuce should be grown.

Q. How can I tell when to re-pot house plants? (U.H., Asheville)

A. One of the first signs that a plant should be re-potted into a larger container is frequent wilting of the plant due to rapid drying of the soil. In order to determine if a plant needs re-potting, turn the plant out of the pot and check the soil ball. If a heavy mat of roots is present on the outside of the soil ball, the plant usually benefits from re-potting. Re-potting can be done at any time, preferably before new growth starts.

Q. What are some annual flowers that will tolerate seashore conditions? Our garden is near the beach. (P.G. Wrightsville Beach)

A. Some annuals that will tolerate seashore conditions are: calendula, cornflowers, Drummond phlox, dwarf nasturtium, four-o'clock garden balsam, gaillardia, godetia, heliopsis, Joseph's coat, love-lies-bleeding, marigold, petunia, portulaca, prince's feather, Scotch pink, snow-on-the-mountain, spiderflower, strawflower, stock, sunflower, sweet alyssum and zinnia.

Q. I recently received a garden catalog. Several of the vegetables and bedding plants were All-American Selections. What does this mean? (B.G., Gastonia)

A. An "All-American Selection" award means the vegetables and flowers have been grown in trial gardens throughout the United States and Canada. All-American Selections are evaluated strictly on their performance under home gardening conditions. Both vegetables and flowers are awarded points by professional judges at the trial grounds on the basis of certain quality factors. Vegetables must have a superior taste and texture, produce abundant yields and be resistant to multiple diseases. Flowers must be uniform in plant size, exhibit good bloom formation, possess good color intensity and be resistant to insects and diseases. When you plant an All-American Selection, you can be sure it is among the best in the class.

— Business Notes —

PROMOTION NOTED

The Utelcom Inc. Greenville District announced that James V. Jenkins, who has been with the company since its start last Jan. 1, has been promoted to senior sales consultant.

Jenkins, who was twice presented the firm's "outstanding salesperson of the quarter" award in 1983, is a graduate of Appalachian State University. He resides in Greenville with his wife, Beth, and daughter, Sara.

A spokesman said Utelcom separated from Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Co. due to telephone deregulation to market new business telecommunications systems.

JOINS LOCAL FIRM

Connally Branch of Realty World-Clark-Branch Realtors Inc. announced that Ed Perry of Greenville is now associated with the firm as a broker, specializing in residential-investment properties.

Born in Kinston, Perry graduated from Southwood High School in 1963, served four years with the U.S. Air Force, and later attended Lenoir Community College and N.C. State University.

CITED FOR SERVICE

Wilbur H. Potter Jr., a PBX installer-repairer in the installation and repair department of Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Co. in Greenville, was recognized recently for having completed 10 years of continuous service with CT&T.

A native of Pamlico Beach, Potter now resides in Greenville.

ASSISTANT VP-MANAGER

Gwen S. Tyson has joined Planters National Bank as assistant vice president and manager of the mortgage loan department here, according to D. Douglas Wade Jr., senior executive vice president, and Reuben M. Harris, vice president.

A Farmville native, Ms. Tyson is a 1970 graduate of Farmville High School. She attended Pitt Community College and has received the certificate of achievement from the Savings & Loan League.

Prior to joining PNB, she served as mortgage loan representative at Branch Banking & Trust Co. in Greenville. She previously served as assistant manager of First American Savings & Loan Association's Greenville office. She and her husband, Marty, have one child, Ches.

INSURANCE AGENT

Timothy A. Emanuel has joined the local agency of The Life Insurance Co. of Virginia as a representative, according to Harold H. Pittman, CLU, agency manager.

Life of Virginia has more than 120 offices in the United States with over 2,000 sales and service representatives.

APICS MEETING

Mitchell W. Manning, quality circle coordinator with Burroughs Wellcome Co. in Greenville, will have the program for Wednesday's monthly meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Chapter of the American Production & Inventory Control Society. Manning will discuss "Introduction to Quality Circles."

The meeting at the Ramada Inn here will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a social hour, followed by a buffet dinner. Reservations are required by Monday.

PREVIEWED TOURS

Janet Stoughton of Quixote Travels Inc. in Greenville has returned from a three-day American Express conference in Marco Island, Fla., where she was briefed on the company's 1984 vacation product line.

The meeting marked the third time that Ms. Stoughton has attended the annual gathering where American Express tours to Europe, China and the Orient, Mexico, South America, and the United States are previewed.

SALES POSITION

W.F. Scheper, manager of Home Security Life Insurance Company's Scheper Agency district, announced that John Poland of Greenville will join the company as a sales representative. He said Poland will work from the agency's district office, which serves policyholders in New Bern, Jacksonville, Greenville and surrounding counties.

BUILDER AWARD

Merle L. Bowser, president of Bowser Construction Co. Inc., has been named recipient of the Builder of the Year award given annually by the Greenville-Pitt County Home Builders Association.

Bowser has been a builder for the past 14 years. He said during that time he has built several hundred new homes and 500 multifamily units.

He has served on the board of the home builders association for the past eight years, has been an officer for four years and is a past president of the organization. Bowser has also served as a director for the North Carolina Home Builders and is presently a director for the North Carolina Home Owners Warranty Corp.

MERLE BOWSER

CAREER COURSE

Donald McKenny Hardison, agent for Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co. in Greenville, completed the five-day career development course held at the company's training center in Dallas, Texas.

Agents who have completed the company's video training series and introductory training course are invited to attend the session.

STAFF CHANGES

Empire Brushes Inc. announced three new staff developments in Greenville.

Paul A. Ricciarelli has joined the firm as product coordinator with responsibility for marketing strategies of the existing product line. Ricciarelli is an East Carolina University graduate with a degree in marketing. He and his wife, Janet, live in the Grifton area.

Thomas N. Harris is transferring from his position as twisted-in-wire technical supervisor and quality circle facilitator to become project engineer in the manufacturing engineering department. An Empire employee for over 17 years, Harris is a Winterville High School graduate. He and his wife, Deborah, live with their two daughters in the Stokes area.

Charles M. Greene will transfer from the distribution warehouse where he has been foreman to become quality circle facilitator. Greene, who has been with Empire over six years, has an associate degree from Pitt Community College. He and his wife, Janet, live with their son in Winterville.

RECORD FIGURES

Family Dollar Stores Inc. of Matthews said that for the first quarter ended Nov. 30 sales were $77,258,227 or 32 percent above sales of $58,748,024 a year earlier.

Net income was $4,821,447 or 78 percent above net income of $2,714,944 for the comparable quarter in 1983.

The company, which operates 700 discount stores in a 14-state area, said the figures represented the highest first quarter sales and earnings in its history.

TAX SUPERVISOR

Doris H. Pruitt has been designated as tax supervisor for the Raleigh office of the international accounting firm of Deloitte Haskins & Sells.

Ms. Pruitt, an East Carolina University graduate, resides with her two daughters in Raleigh.

STOCK SPLIT

The board of directors of Rite Aid Corp. approved a two-for-one stock split and a dividend increase. The quarterly dividend based on the old shares was increased from 16 cents to 20.5 cents per share. Both will be payable Jan. 30 to shareholders of record on Jan. 16.

INCOME ROSE

The Wachovia Corporation's income before securities transactions for the fourth quarter was $21.742 million compared with $18.790 million, according to John G. Medlin Jr., chief executive officer.

For the year, income before securities transactions amounted to $88.613 million, up from $77.746 million a year earlier.

Net income for the fourth quarter was $20.234 million compared with $11.561 million the prior year. For the year, net income of $84.582 million was up from $53.432 million in 1982.

DECLARED DIVIDENDS

Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. said that regular monthly dividends of 13 cents per share were declared on the common stock and Class B common stock, payable on Jan. 31, Feb. 29 and March 30 to shareholders of record on Jan. 16, Feb. 15 and March 15.

Adjusted after a five-for-three stock split last October, the dividend rate represents an 8.3 percent increase over the previous year.

NEW STORE OPENS

The scheduled Monday opening of a new lighting store in Greenville, Hamilton Lighting Inc. at 2506 S. Charles Blvd., was announced by Nancy Ball, the firm's manager and part owner.

Ms. Ball said the store will feature a complete lighting showroom carrying light fixtures, track lighting, table and floor lamps, mirrors, ceiling fans, central vacuum systems and door chimes. She said the store will have a full selection of light bulbs.

Hamilton Lighting will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturdays.

SALES INCREASED

Tandy Corp. announced that consolidated sales for December were $414,697,000, up 11 percent over December 1982 sales of $375,049,000.

Tandy's U.S. Radio Shack division recorded a 10 percent gain to $349,222,000 in December from $317,080,000 a year ago. Sales of the Radio Shack stores in existence more than one year rose 9 percent during December.

Consolidated sales for the quarter ended Dec. 31 were $897,898,000, a 15 percent gain over the year earlier sales of $778,155,000.

MERGER REPORTED

Effective Dec. 31, Piedmont Bank and Trust Co. became part of First Union National Bank, according to C.C. Cameron, chairman of First Union Corp.

Cameron said the 11 offices of Piedmont Bank located in seven cities and towns will become branches of First Union National Bank, bringing the combined bank's branch total to 212.

The spokesman said the addition of Piedmont Bank's $153 million in assets raises the combined bank's assets to about $6.5 billion, based on third quarter figures for both corporations.

Warner Delays Filming In State

RALEIGH (AP) — The filming of "Everybody's All-American" scheduled to begin in North Carolina March 1 has been delayed by Warner Bros. until at least September, the studio's location manager said Friday.

Michael Apted was scheduled to direct the $13 million movie based on Frank Deford's novel about a fictional University of North Carolina football player. Tommy Lee Jones was to play the title role of a football hero trying to adjust to life after his campus glory days have ended.

Mark Indig, the location manager, said casting and budgetary problems have been cited for the delay.

Indig said the movie "needed a time of year when we could have three seasonal changes within three continuous months. March through the end of May was the ideal time to make this movie."

Prices Mixed In Light Trading

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
AP Business Writer

Grain and soybean futures prices were mixed Friday in light trading on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Activity was curtailed throughout the session because the Agriculture Department was scheduled to release an annual crop production report after the close of trading.

The report showed an unexpected increase in the USDA's estimate for the soybean harvest and analysts said

Wall Street Watches 'Super Bowl Predictor'

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports-minded Wall Streeters are eagerly awaiting the Super Bowl showdown Jan. 22 between the Washington Bulls and the Los Angeles Bears.

At first glance, these "fans" might seem to be pretty short on football savvy. They haven't even got the teams' names right.

Their special interest in pro football's championship extravaganza stems from an exotic phenomenon known as the "Super Bowl predictor," and its consistent, if utterly illogical, relationship to the stock market.

Every year since the big game was first played in 1967, it turns out, rising markets have been preceded by Super Bowls in which the winner was a team from the original National Football League.

By contrast, Super Bowls won by teams that joined the NFL when the American Football League was merged in have, with one narrow exception, been followed by declines in stock prices over the ensuing year.

Under that script, a win in this year's game by the Washington Redskins, a product of the old NFL, would be taken as a bullish omen for the market, and a victory by the Los Angeles Raiders, from the AFL, as a bearish signal.

Both teams have won previous Super Bowls. The Redskins did it last year, "foretelling" a rise of 17.3 percent in Standard & Poor's composite index through Dec. 31.

The Raiders, in two championships won while they were operating with an Oakland address, "predicted" S&P-500 declines of 11.5 percent in 1977 and 9.8 percent in 1981.

What possible sense could all this make? "There is no apparent reason," readily concedes Robert Stovall, an analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. and an avid collector and dispenser of stock-market lore. "It just happens that way."

Super Bowl Sunday comes this year at a time when many investors would settle for anything, however whimsical, that would clear up the outlook for a very confusing market.

After getting off to a strong start in the first few sessions of 1984, stocks suddenly went flat in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 16.54 to 1,270.10, giving back more than half of the previous week's 28-point gain.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 1.05 to 96.66, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was down .91 at 226.82.

Frivolous or not, the Super Bowl stock market predictor has been "amazingly accurate" over the years, Stovall says. In the market's two worst years in recent history, 1973 and 1974, the Miami Dolphins of the old AFL scored back-to-back Super Bowl triumphs.

In the three best market years of the past decade — 1975, '76 and '80 — the game was won by the Pittsburgh Steelers of NFL origins.

The one near miss, as measured by the S&P 500, occurred in 1970, when the Kansas City Chiefs, born and bred in the AFL, upset the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl IV. The stock market had some tough moments in the months that followed, but the S&P index finished the year up 0.1 percent.

Surely the sober, prudent money managers of America won't start buying or selling stocks on Monday, Jan. 23 based on the outcome of a football game. But it won't hurt the confidence of many people in the financial community if Washington should happen to win.

Dollar's Climb Holds Inflation

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the same week the dollar soared to all-time highs, the government reported that one measure of inflation in the United States has been held to its lowest increase in two decades.

Economists say the strong dollar goes hand in hand with curbing inflation, which only a few years ago was considered the economy's No. 1 enemy.

Wholesale prices, as measured by the Producer Price Index for finished goods, edged up 0.6 percent in 1983, the lowest rise since the 0.5 percent increase of 1964, the Labor Department said Friday.

That report provided fresh evidence of the substantial progress made in slowing inflation over the past five years. Wholesale prices rose 12.8 percent in 1979, 11.8 percent in 1980, 7.1 percent in 1981 and 3.7 percent in 1982.

In the same period, a Federal Reserve Board measure of the dollar's value, weighted on the basis of international trade, has soared more than 55 percent. The Fed's index, which goes back to 1967 and stood at 86.50 at the end of 1978, reached an all-time high of 136.19 on Wednesday before slipping at week's end.

"The strength of the dollar probably reduced the U.S. inflation rate by one percentage point in each of the past several years," said David Ernst, an international economist at Evans Economics Inc., a private consulting firm in Washington.

"A strong dollar cuts the cost of imports and it forces U.S. industries which compete with imports to keep a lid on prices," Ernst said.

But the strong dollar also is causing problems for the economy.

Exporters are having a tougher time selling U.S. products abroad because the dollar's rise has made their goods more expensive in comparison to goods produced elsewhere.

For example, while the U.S. foreign trade deficit widened to record levels last year, Japan reported Friday that it had a record $20.46 billion trade surplus.

Final U.S. trade figures have yet to be reported for 1983. But for the first 11 months of the year, the merchandise trade deficit stood at $62.96 billion, compared with the annual record $42.7 billion for all of 1982.

In other business and economic developments this past week:

—The Commerce Department said businesses plan to increase spending for modernization and expansion by an inflation-adjusted 9.4 percent in 1984, the fastest pace since 1977. Capital spending declined by 3.5 percent last year.

—The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production rose 0.5 percent in December, down from gains of 0.8 percent in October and 0.7 percent in November, and tying February for the smallest monthly increase of 1983. But the December measure of factory and mine output was 16.1 percent higher than a year earlier, when the economy was beginning to emerge from a sharp recession.

—The Commerce Department said retail sales edged up 0.1 percent in December after rising 1.1 percent a month earlier. Total sales rose 9.1 percent in 1983. The Federal Reserve Board said outstanding consumer debt rose at an annual rate of 15 percent in November after rising 16 percent in October.

— The Justice Department said the Federal Trade Commission would investigate Texaco Inc.'s proposed $9.9 billion acquisition of Getty Oil Co. for possible antitrust violations. If the deal is completed it would be the largest business combination in U.S. history. Texaco said that if the merger attempt succeeds it might sell at least some of Getty's non-oil assets. In addition to oil refining and marketing operations, Getty owns a 70 percent interest in the cable television Entertainment and Sports Network Inc. and has interests in real estate, insurance, forest products, non-petroleum minerals and agriculture.

— Gulf Oil Corp. said a final vote count confirms the company won a proxy battle against an investor group led by T. Boone Pickens Jr., chairman of Mesa Petroleum. Pickens' group failed in its campaign to defeat a proposed reincorporation of Gulf and a by-laws change that would make it harder for dissident shareholders to gain representation on the company's board. The Gulf board rejected a plan by Mesa to spin off part of Gulf's domestic oil and gas reserves into a royalty trust. Pickens, however, filed a federal court suit Friday seeking to overturn the vote. In a royalty trust, income from petroleum properties would be paid directly to owners of the trust's shares rather than to the corporation.

Water Park To Reorganize

GREENSBORO (AP) — Aqua Gardens, the partially completed water amusement park, has been allowed to seek reorganization under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Code.

Documents filed Friday in the U.S. Middle District bankruptcy court in Greensboro show that the park's parent corporation, Edhul, owes approximately $3 million, most to firms that have provided services or supplies to the park.

In seeking reorganization under Chapter 11, Edhul indicated it would seek to continue operations and pay off its creditors.

Father's Love Given Winnie After 42 Years

His first gift to her was his love and his second was a gold Irish shamrock necklace set with emeralds to be worn for good luck. The necklace was given to Winnie Weeden by her father, Bill Conlan, when they were reunited in April 1983 after being separated for 42 years.

Their story through the years follows:

Winnie was born April 8, 1941, in New Haven, Conn., to Bill (Bud) Conlan and Edwina Laighton, who were 18 years old. Within a year they divorced and Winnie lived with her grandmother, Bertha Laighton, for appromixately three or four years. Edwina remarried and moved to New Jersey with Winnie and her new stepfather. Winnie was raised to believe her stepfather was her real father and didn't question the matter until many years later.

As a teen-ager she visited her grandmother often and, during one visit, heard friends of her grandmother mention that she looked so much like her "real father." She questioned her mother and learned the truth about her natural father, but was discouraged from learning anymore about him, what his name was or where he lived, etc.

Knowing that her mother disapproved, she dropped the issue.

Winnie married Jack Weeden and, after he was hired by Union Carbide, they moved to Charlotte where they lived for eight years. Their four children — Donna, 23, Todd, 21, Laurie, 20, and John, 17 — were born there. In 1966, he was transferred to Greenville and the family relocated in Brook Valley. The family later left Greenville and went to Avon Park, Ohio, in another transfer move.

Winnie later received a newspaper clipping from a friend of her grandmother that contained a picture of her biological father along with his name (William J. Conlan) — this was the first time she knew her real name. Her father was employed by Sealtest Co. in New Haven, Conn. Again, Winnie didn't pursue the matter further as she still didn't want to disturb her mother.

Many years passed, Winnie's stepfather died and her mother moved to Florida.

A void had existed in Winnie's life as she never had a close relationship with her stepfather but did not have the courage to go against her mother's wishes.

Jack felt that Winnie had every right to learn about her dad and, considering the fact that her real dad was getting along in years, he encouraged her to locate her father. She consented, so Jack went back to the newspaper clipping and called the Sealtest Co. in New Haven, hoping that Conlan was still employed there.

Jack learned that the company had gone out of business in New Haven. He then asked if a William Conlan was listed in the New Haven phone directory. There were only two William Conlans and one of those was a William J. Conlan. With another phone call he reached Conlan's home, where he talked to Bret Conlan and learned that the father was vacationing with his grandchildren in Florida. Bret took Jack's name and phone number and promised to have his dad call when he returned. No call came for three weeks so Jack called again and talked to Bea, Conlan's wife.

In all of these conversations, no one in Connecticutt knew what the purpose of the calls was for. Jack felt that he could only explain the story to Winnie's father.

Jack finally contacted Bud at the West Haven ice rink which he manages for the city.

Bud was overwhelmed by the call but was ecstatic at the thought of being reunited with the daughter that he had not seen in so many years. He had tried to locate Winnie once before but did not have accurate information about her married name or where she lived.

Jack told Bud that the only thing that Winnie needed was to find the father's love that she never found as a child.

The news of his long-lost daughter brought with it a whole new list of things he had to do. He talked to his wife, Bea, and each of his five children — Bill, 38, Beverly, 37, Harry, 32, Wendy, 28, and Bret, 23 — and told them of what happened and that he wanted to find his first daughter. His entire family was supportive. That resulted in numerous phone calls and a trip to Ohio, where Bud finally met his daughter and family at their home there.

The resemblance was unbelievable — Winnie was the mirror image of her father, an occurrence that thrilled both father and daughter. "Bud is an honest, sentimental and loving person who has more than fulfilled Winnie's desire for the father's love that she was denied," Jack said.

"During the first two months they were reunited there ... (were) three visits made between the two families, including numerous hours of questions, answers, crying, laughing and loving. It was a happy and very rewarding happening in our lives."

Winnie has not only found her father but now has five brothers and sisters as well as eight new nephews and nieces to fill her life with. "We are thankful that his change has affected our lives, but regret that it has taken so long to happen," said Jack.

"I feel more complete and I know I'm a better person, strengthened by his love. I've never been so happy in my entire life." Winnie said. "I never realized what a void there was in my life. Daddy is so honest and loving. If I could go out a chose a dad — he's the one. He has added so much to my life and makes me feel good about myself.

"After our first telephone conversation — he called me to see if I had second thoughts about meeting him — he told me once he came into my life, he'd never leave me again. Of course, I told him I had not changed my mind — that I wanted to meet him. The following week, Dad and Mom flew out to Ohio for four days to meet his new family. We were all nervous — we wondered if we would have anything to talk about. There weren't enough hours in those four days," said Winnie.

"When Jack, Laurie, Donna and I went to meet my brothers and sister, they all made me feel that I belonged. It was so easy for my children to call Dad Grandpa and Mom, Grandma."

In one week, Conlan's family grew from seven grandchildren to 11, which included Winnie's children and a new grandchild, his son's new baby.

FATHER GREETING DAUGHTER ... at their first meeting at the airport in April. Winnie gave Bud a "No. I Father Medallion," which he is wearing in the picture.

THEIR FIRST FOUR DAYS ... included a lot of questions and answers, crying, laughing and loving. Shown with Winnie and Jack Weeden are Bud and Bea Conlan in Ohio.

FANTASY POSES...are done of women wearing apparel of their choosing by photographer John Crispino. He also doubles as a drummer in a rock band. (UPI Telephoto)

Photographer Caters To Women's Fantasies, Specializes In Poses

By JOHN O'BRIEN

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Women flock to John Crispino's studio from three states to be photographed in apparel of their choosing as they assume attitudes and expressions to accompany their fantasies.

Crispino, 29, calls his service "unique." Since going into the business last fall he has photographed 50 women from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia in as many costumes or lingerie. He has even shot a 66-year-old woman who had dyed herself blue to match her Smurf outfit.

"She was the hardest to do because she was the funniest to look at," he said.

Women pay $25 for 20 prints or slides at his studio in nearby Rochester, Pa. They have come to him attired in a nun's habit, skydiving outfit complete with parachute and crash helmet, Indian garb with headdress, Miss America gown, Marilyn Monroe look-a-like dress and pllatinum wig, street walker's attire, motorcycle gang garb, hockey uniform, grass skirt, cowgirl outfit, cat costume, exotic dancer's attire and a rock musician's clothes.

But most popular among women in their 30s and 40s is the little-girl look, said Crispino.

Why do women choose particular costumes?

"I think all of these things are done with some sexual thing in mind," he observed.

"I don't know for sure, I'm not a psychologist," he said, adding the photos frequently are given to friends or lovers, while some are sent to magazines in hopes of boosting careers.

But his subjects must be at least 18 years old and everything is lawful, he said.

Crispino, who calls himself monogamous, contends most women no longer want portraits taken "standing beside a fake bridge or trellis, smiling."

The photographer, who doubles as a drummer in a rock band and runs a recording studio in the building that also houses his photo studio, said he had shot promotional photos of his girlfriend, a model, dressed in sports uniforms.

"Some women saw the pictures and started saying, 'I'd like to have my picture taken like that, in a costume'," Crispino said.

He decided to let women bring in apparel of their choosing and pick their poses and expressions. He placed a small classifed ad in Pittsburgh newspapers. "And everybody called."

Many calls came from men, whom he will not shoot, and women who want to be photographed in raw sexual poses or with a male partner they hope Crispino will provide. He will have nothing to do with pornography but he does allow see-through clothing and some nudity — only if the woman feels comfortable about it.

"Women want something where they can go and be a bit risque, to do something out of the ordinary without being criticized," he said. "In 15 minutes with me they are totally comfortable, there is nothing underhanded and they are in control."

He describes most of his clientele as "mainstream successful businesswomen."

"These are not low lifes," he added. "They take the way they look and heighten it a little."

Both he and the subject have fun, as he encourages her and suggests different poses, Crispino said. Just the two of them are present at shootings.

"When they leave, it's like we've been friends for life," Crispino said.

Dietitian Urges More Education

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — As a result of the current emphasis on health and exercise, Donna R. Watson expects dietitians to be in new areas as well as in traditional ones in the years ahead.

Mrs. Watson, as president-elect of The American Dietetic Association, feels preschool and early primary-grade children should be indoctrinated with the notion that nutrition is basic to preventing disease and maintaining health.

Acknowledging that it is impossible for the school system or day care centers to do all the nutrition education, she says, "You really need to educate adults to be committed to good nutrition and good health or they'll never really inculcate it in their children."

She adds that The American Dietetic Association and dietitians in general are promoting exercise in conjunction with good nutrition. Less salt, less sugar, less fat and fewer calories, and eating a variety of foods to be sure of getting all the essential nutrients are among accepted recommendations for good nutrition, she says.

Mrs. Watson and a graduate student at Oklahoma State University are designing some microcomputer programs to help children in grades 4 to 6 learn about nutritional requirements in relation to exercise or energy expenditure.

"I really believe in exercise combined with nutrition," she says. "I walk at least three miles a day, and on weekends eight to 10 miles. And I've been doing exercises for a long time."

Since January 1983, she had directed the OSU administrative dietetic internship program. Before that, she was director of nutrition in the Department of Community Health at Emory University School of Medicine in Atlanta.

Besides strengthening educational programs for dietitians, Mrs. Watson is encouraging graduates to consider burgeoning areas of employment as well as traditional ones.

"Some dietitians are now going into product development and marketing with large food distribution companies. Other dietitians are going into private practice or into health promotion programs with business and industry," she points out.

Among major goals of ADA in the coming years, she cites fund raising to build a National Nutrition Resource Center that will also house the association headquarters and offices. Other thrusts include:

— Achieving third-party reimbursement for dietary services or nutritional care.

— Continuing to develop a leadership role in nutrition education for the public.

— Promoting the management role of dietitians in the foodservice area and in the clinical nutrition area.

Mrs. Watson predicts greater use of communication technology to teach nutrition instead of face-to-face workshops. She also envisions computer nutrition programs people can use in their homes or a combination of computer and video programs for home use.

She notes that dietitians are becoming increasingly involved in international nutrition projects. In 1983, she was co-director of a two-week course, "Nutrition and Health Care in China," that included a tour to the People's Republic of China.

For research toward a Ph.D. from Emory University, Mrs. Watson is comparing nutritional care competency of physicians, dentists, nurses and physician associates with nutritional care competencies of clinical dietitians.

Fran Antel Gives Talk

The Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority held its recent meeting at the home of Ann Simo. Fran Antel was speaker for the group.

She talked on stress and emphasized the importance of relieving stress without the use of drugs.

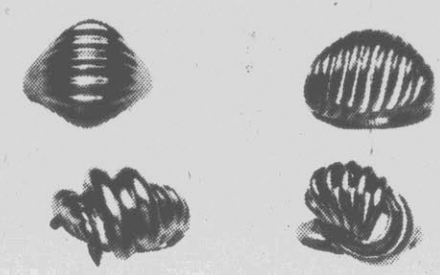

The social committee announced a square dance for members and their husbands or dates for next weekend. Plans were finalized for a Valentine dinner to be held in February at Brook Valley Country Club.

Also discussed were several moneymaking projects for the remainder of the year.

Georgia Potter, president, conducted the business session.

On The Young Side

By Clay Deanhardt

Governor's School is a six-week long summer program designed to give gifted students a chance to further their talents in their field and expand their horizons in philosophy and the study of oneself and society.

Nominations for this school year have been announced including: Leigh Lanier; Charles Moore; Clay Deanhardt; Anne-Lynne Davis; Betsy Kane; Ingrid Lalik; Alicia Speight; Leah Harris; Doug Frelke; Amy Dohm; Ginny Close; Beth Parham; Andrea Bath; Sarah Burden; Danielle Nieman; Sheila Pearson; Samantha Steingold; Amy Moore; and Robet Haggard.

Marjorie Jones and Cissy Taft have been nominated by the Rose chapter of the National Honor Society for $1,000 scholarships given in the NHS Awards Program. This competition, sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, judges the nominees on excellence in the areas of character, leadership, scholarship and service. Winners will be notified in May.

The Rose High band has placed 11 students in the N.C. Eastern District All-State Band. The students are: Celeste Pickett; Kelly Jones; Ginny Close and Rene Meteye, flute; Bethe Parham, clarinet; Will Hester and Stacy Hamilton on the alto saxaphone; Chris Love on trumpet; Bruce Thompson, trombone; and Lewis Robertson and Evan Hause on percussion.

Celeste, Chris and Lewis all achieved the distinct honor of being first chair in their section and along with Kelly qualified to try out for the N.C. Honor Band.

The Rose High Early Bird Jazz Band will be appearing on the telethon for cerebal palsy during the weekend. They will appear on WITH-TV around 12:30.

Four soldiers from the Green Berets were at school Friday to help students who were thinking of a career in the services. A Naval petty officer was also present to help students.

Financial Aid Awareness Week has been declared by Gov. Jim Hunt on Jan. 22-28. In conjunction, the Rose guidance department will be sponsoring several activities for seniors, culminating in a workshop Jan. 22. More information is forthcoming and will be sent home to parents.

Two big testing sessions are coming up for students. Exams at school will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and the SAt will be given Jan. 28 on the East Carolina University campus. Students who have registered to take the test are reminded to take some sort of identification with their picture, name and signature on it. Birth certificates and social security cards are not acceptable. If a student has no such identification, he or she must read their SAT pamphlet on how to still be admitted for the test. Good luck to all!

After mildew has been scrubbed off ceramic tile, help keep it from coming back by applying a coat of silicone wax or a good liquid car wax. Never wax the floor.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Some say our national pastime is baseball.

Not anymore. It's gossip.

In every supermarket check-out counter are lines of "inquiring minds" who want to know why Shelley Winters cried on her wedding night. ("Room service was closed.")

At bookstores, literature lovers ponder how two of America's sweethearts, Joan Crawford and Bing Crosby, grew up to be Mommie and Daddy dearest.

Crowds cluster around Joan Rivers waiting to hear intimate commentaries on her best friend, Elizabeth Taylor. ("Is she here?")

The appetite for the empty calories that comprise gossip ie insatiable. We want to know when they started taking drugs, if their affair began when she consoled him at his wife's funeral. We want to know if they had their faces lifted and when they discovered they were missing. We want to know how much money they take home after taxes and who's gay and how does their illegitimate child feel about being maid of honor at their overdue wedding. We want to know what we'd have a civilian arrested for if he intruded into our lives.

A random poll revealed that 83 percent of the "inquiring minds" who read supermarket tabloids do not believe one single word of what they read.

A total of 83 percent of "inquiring minds" who read the supermarket tabloids are known to lie when polled.

A friend of mine is your average closet gossipmonger. She is 53 years old, has a high school diploma, and honestly believed Ingrid Bergman wore her own clothes In "Bells of St. Mary's." She doesn't know what kind of car her neighbors own, refuses to spread rumors that Johnny Carson is moving into her condo and closes her ears to gossip about other people's children.

BUT . . . every Friday, as she is putting away her groceries, she gushes gossip like a new oil field.

"Guess who had a vasectomy after death?" she asked the other day. "I know, you don't believe this stuff, but they finally nabbed the guy who went all the way with Linda Evans. He was a cab driver who went all the way to Oakland with her. Not only that, but there's a three-parter starting on the true story of why Burt Reynolds lost his hair. It's all tied up with nuclear testing where he was making a movie."

I miss baseball. You'd sit outside and the air was fresh and you could eat a hot dog and talk to people. Occasionally, someone would chew tobacco and spit near your foot, but that's as bad as an "inquisitive mind" got!

Personal Finance Classes Offered

A five-week series of classes on personal financial management will be held at the Agricultural Extension Service Thursday evenings from seven to nine o'clock starting Jan. 19.

Participation will be by pre-registration only. Persons interested should call 752-2934 by Tuesday.

The class is designed to provide basic financial information for discriminating among various investment vehicles available on the market today. Participants will become informed about uses of cash reserves, comparison insurance buying and evaluating pros and cons of fixed versus equity investments.

A basic introduction to types of financial alternatives available to the consumer will also be given. Jim Bengala of IDS Marketing Corp. will conduct the series at no cost.

Higher Prices Due To Freeze

The recent freeze in Florida has produced higher prices at the fruit and vegetable counter of the local supermarket.

"Your best vegetable buy is in the canned food section," says Rachel Kinlaw, extension foods specialist, North Carolina State University. "Some stores also have good sales on orange juice made from concentrate, lemons, sweet potatoes, rutabagas and apples."

But in order to get the most food for the dollar spent, families may need to change habits and learn to use dried, canned or frozen vegetables instead of fresh ones.

"Be sure to compare prices each time you shop, and be flexible enough so you can make changes when you spot an unadvertised special," says the extension specialist.

Wedding Vows Exchanged Saturday

NORFOLK, Va. — Lee Anne Pullen and Robert Remon Rapp were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony in the Norview United Methodist Church here Saturday evening at seven o'clock. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph L. Lotts.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. George D. Pullen and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Rapp, all of Norfolk. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ester Lee McLawhorn of Ayden and Mrs. Ruby Lee Pullen of Norfolk.

Music was provided by Janet Moore, organist and soloist, and Jeff Garris, pianist and soloist. Vocal selections were "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and was escorted by her father. Lucy Wright of Norfolk was honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Ruby Rapp, sister of the bridegroom; JoAnne McLendon, cousin of the bride; and Tammie Glisson, all of Norfolk. Flower girl was Dawn Anderson of Norfolk.

Joe Vaccarella was best man and ushers included Phil Pullen, brother of the bride; Steve Smith and David Cordner, all of Norfolk. Ring bearer was Jamie Walker of Norfolk.

The bride wore a white formal gown of sheer organza and re-embroidered alencon lace with a high choke neckline of matching lace and pearls. Beaded alencon lace enhanced the fitted bodice. The bishop sleeves were of sheer organza with alencon lace cuffs finished in calla points. The full circular skirt swept to a chapel train and was edged with an alencon lace border. The chapel length veil of bridal illusion had a rolled edge and a waterfall of alencon lace appliques cascading the full length of the veil. Her only ornament was pearl earrings, a gift from her parents. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, baby's breath, stephanotis and sprays of English ivy.

The bridesmaids wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor and carried matching satin muffs. The attendants wore a single pearl necklace, a gift of the bride. The flower girl wore a white organdy formal length dress and carried a white net basket trimmed in the wedding colors and filled with silk flower petals.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church social hall. Joyce McLawhorn of Ayden, aunt of the bride, served cake.

A bridesmaid's dinner was given by Ester Lee McLawhorn and Gloria Carter at ARJ Doubleday Restaurant. The couple was honored at a rehearsal dinner given by the parents of the bridegroom at The House of Windsor Restaurant. Several parties and showers were held in honor of the bridal couple.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of Old Dominion University, Norfolk. The bride is employed as a civil engineer at the naval station in Norfolk. The bridegroom is a computer program analyst at Comptek Research, Inc. in Virginia Beach, Va.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas and Nassau, the couple will reside in Virginia Beach, Va.

Finding Help When You Need It

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A consumer who cries "Help!" may get a lot of answers these days, but finding someone who can actually do something about the problem may be another story, and the government is trying to make things easier.

There are company consumer representatives. Industry-wide associations whose job involves the consumer. State and local licensing boards to protect the consumer. Courts. Agencies. Organizations. Institutions.

Now, the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs has a 116-page guide to get you through the maze. It covers people and places, names and numbers, in business and in government, at different levels, all watching over some aspect of your rights.

The guide says there are some basic steps for almost all complaints.

First, complain to the seller. If that doesn't work, contact dhe company that made the product. After that, try an industry dispute program, the Better Business Bureau or a state or local office. Still no luck? Try a federal agency or use a trade association dispute program. Finally, you can consider going to court.

Here are some of the organizations and institutions you can go to for aid or information along the road to successful problem-solving:

—Third-party dispute-resolution programs set up by industry. Association staff people act as informal mediators to try to settle complaints between consumers and businessmen or companies. If they can't work out an agreement, they'll refer you to an independent panel or person for a ruling. Before you get involved, find out whether the ruling is binding for either or both parties.

—Better Business Bureaus. The BBBs are non-profit organizations sponsored by local businesses. There are about 150, across the country. Services vary with location, but include information on products, on company reliability and background and records of past complaint-handling performances. Some bureaus handle individual complaints; others do not. More than 100 of the BBBs also offer arbitration programs.

—Occupational and professional licensing boards. There are about 1,500 state boards which license or register more than 500 professions and occupations. They set the standards for licensing, prepare and give the exams and take disciplinary actions. A state board can bring your complaint to the attention of a license-holder and, if necessary, suspend or revoke his or her right to do business.

—Federal Information Centers. You can call the number of the Federal Information Center nearest you to get information about any federal service or agency. The call will usually be free or will involve only a minimum long-distance charge. If the center can't answer your question, it will direct you to the right place.

—Small claims courts. These courts are designed to solve problems that don't involve lots of money or legal expertise. Court procedures are usually easy and informal and fees are small — generally $15 or less. You probably won't need a lawyer and, in some places, lawyers are actually prohibited. The maximum amount that can be claimed or awarded averages about $750, although it may range up, to several thousand dollars. Procedures for enforcing court orders vary. As a rule, however, if you win your case and can't get your money, you can go back to the court for help in collecting.

—Legal Aid and Legal Services. More than 1,000 of these offices across the country help people who can't afford a lawyer. You must meet financial eligibility standards to qualify. Both Legal Aid and Legal Services offices are financed by the federal government; some Legal Aid offices also get money from private contributions, state or local agencies or bar associations. Offices handle problems like tenant-landlord disputes, welfare issues, credit denial and family strife.

Hilda Hiner Gives Talk

Xi Gamma Xi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its first January meeting at the home of Evelyn Darden. Hilda Hiner presented a program on "Home and Family."

Members participated by telling a favorite memory or thought about their family and the holidays.

Reports were given and a thank you note from the University Nursing Center for Christmas gifts provided residents was read. Linda McGehee scheduled members for the Cerebral Palsy Telethon this weekend. Joyce Sawyer reminded members of the square dance to be held Jan. 21 at St. Peter's Hall.

Plans for the Valentine social were presented. It will be held Feb. 11 at the Brook Valley Country Club.

Shirley Williams Is President

Other officers are Patricia Rouse, secretary, Anne Moore, treasurer, and Anne Barrett, sergeant at arms.

Committee chairmen are Vivian Kennion, dress committee, Anne Moore, condolence committee, Nedra Harris and Elnora Henderson, organizational committee, Patricia Rouse, chauffeur. Ms. Williams will chair the public relations and photography committe.

Members are considering projects for this year and one of their major concerns will becoming involved with the youth in the county.

Electric Bill

Be conservative when it comes to using a hand iron, say extension specialists at North Carolina State University.

An iron consumes as much energy as 10 100-watt light bulbs, so it is best to let the ironing pile up. Iron large batches of clothing at one time to avoid wasting money reheating the iron.

Miss Ramsey, Mr. Covington Marry

Cheryl Ann Ramsey of Greenville and William H. Covington Jr. of Ayden were united in marriage at the Marantha Free Will Baptist Church Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The Rev. Alvis Harris performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman L. Ramsey Jr. of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Rebecca A. Covington of Winterville and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Covington Sr. of Woodbridge, Va.

A program of wedding music was presented by Debbie A. Mills, organist, and soloists, Viola Harris and Walter Shore.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal gown of white silkened organza over peau de soie fashioned with a high neckline encircled with appliques of floral silk Venise lace centered with pearls. The sheer scooped yoke featured appliques of the beaded lace. The fitted bodice was outlined in a border of silk Venise lace and the lace enhanced the modified natural waistline. The full bishop sleeves were appliqued in motifs of chantilly lace with chantilly lace edging the fitted cuffs. The full skirt and attached chapel length train were edged at the hemline in a wide ruffled flounce featuring chantilly lace interspersed with rachel lace. Appliques of beaded chantilly lace trimmed the skirt and train. She wore a walking length illusion mantilla edged in floral silk Venise lace to complement her gown. Her veil was held in place by a Juliet headpiece trimmed in beaded silk Venise lace. She carried a cascading bouquet of white silk bridal roses, carnations, stephanotis and fern tied with Queen Anne's lace and streamers.

Maid of honor was Joanna Ramsey of Greenville, sister of the bride. She wore a formal gown of daphne rose matte taffeta. The sleeveless gown was fashioned with an open squared neckline featuring rolled fabric straps. A full flared skirt extended from the fitted bodice. The gown was complemented with a high neckline encircled in ruffled chantilly lace and banded in the taffeta. The jacket featured three-quarter length pouf sleeves; a ruffled peplum and a corded tie sash encircled the modified natural waistline. She carried a lace fan trimmed with burgandy silk roses, stephanotis and fern tied with Queen Anne's lace and burgandy velvet ribbon and streamers.

Bridesmaids were Cynthia Ramsey, sister of the bride; Jo Ann Covington, sister of the bridegroom; Lynn Coward and Sandra Jackson, all of Greenville. Flower girl was Dawn Covington of Woodbridge, Va., sister of the bridegroom. Each attendant wore a gown identical to that of the maid of honor and carried a mixed bouquet of silk burgundy and dusty rose flowers tied with burgundy and dusty rose velvet ribbon and streamers. The flower girl carried a white wicker basket tied with burgundy and dusty rose ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Mills and Edward Mills, both of Greenville; Daniel Todd of Durham, cousin of the bridegroom; and Bobby Padgett of Winterville. Ring bearer was Kristopher Walz of Richmond, Va., cousin of the bridegroom.

The ceremony was directed by Peggy Paige and Susan Causey.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride at the Ramada Inn. Mr. and Mrs. William V. Stocks and Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Gaskins, aunt and uncle of the bride, greeted guests. Debra G. Mills presided at the guest register. Programs were distributed by Danny Lassiter. Cake was served by Linda Autry and Helen Ramsey, aunts of the bride. Punch was poured by Jody Gaskins, aunt of the bride, and Dot Lassiter. Joanna Ramsey, sister of the bride, Jeff Majette and Mr. and Mrs. Steven Gaskins, aunt and uncle of the bride, said goodbyes.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Holiday Inn. A wedding breakfast given by the father of the bridegroom was held at the Ramada Inn. Several showers were given in honor of the couple.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is attending Pitt Community College. She is employed by Greenville Urology Clinic, P.A. The bridegroom is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is employed by Yale Materials Handling Cor.

Brazilians Take English Lessons

By BRYNA BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — English lessons are becoming popular in Portuguese-speaking Brazil. Many Brazilians pursing professional careers say the nation's economic crisis has made it necessary that they understand English.

"English is now the universal language that I see every day and have to learn," said Jurandyr Mamede, 46, an employee of the Bank of Brazil. "The bank is paying for the courses because they think, and so do I, that it is important."

Mamede is typical of the new breed of English-language learners. He is a professional, has career goals and wants to keep up and get ahead.

Scores of English-language schools operate in Brazil, a country that tries to maintain its Portuguse language although surrounded by mostly Spanish-speaking neighbors. English has not been widely spoken here.

"Attitudes have changed," explained Dotti Jones, a U.S. foreign service officer who runs the American-supported Casa Thomas Jefferson in Brasilia. "The people who come here to take lessons are serious."

In many cases, Ms. Jones said, students enroll in the classes to learn to read and understand English but do not care if they master speaking it.

"They want to be able to read economic and political reports," she said. "And this interest has definitely increased since the economic crisis."

Brazil's record $93 billion foreign debt has made words such as "bridge loan," "overnight" and "rollover" commonplace in the media.

"We are more dependent on the international banking world, and they deal in English," said economic journalist Helival Rios, 34. "Everyday Brazil's contacts with the outside become greater and therefore the need to learn English becomes greater."

After 18 months of studying three hours a week, Rios said, he can converse "very little" and is not ready to read an English-language newspaper.

Geraldo Avila, a Brazilian born in New York, stood before a class of 16 students at the Brasas language school. The group, mostly young adults, ranged from secretaries to soldiers.

"Who will let you know when the cake is baked?" Avila said, snapping his fingers to create a rhythm. The students repeated the words.

"Most of our students need these lessons for their work," said Brasas' director, George Hoersting, a native of Dayton, Ohio. "They get nowhere without English."

The students come from private companies, such as IBM's Brazilian branch, government ministries and banks, he added. In about 50 percent of the cases the companies or government agencies pay for the courses.

Costs and methods vary widely. The costs range from the equivalent of about $10 to $100 a month for group classes. Some instruction is only oral; others use audiovisual methods, tapes and books. Some schools use books that deal in English with Brazilian situations while others focus on typical British or American life.

Brazilians also have a choice of accent — British or American.

Banker Mamede said he preferred a British accent because, "I like the sound and it's easier."

Journalist Rios said: "An American accent is easier and is more useful."

Hoersting described the work as fulfilling.

"What's nice is the satisfaction you get when you know someone who 10 years ago never spoke a word of English and now they are in top levels in a (government) ministry or going to the United States for graduate work," he said.

Jean Hiott To Present Music

Jean Hiott from Greenville, S.C., will be the guest musical artist and speaker for the Greenville Christian Women's Club luncheon Tuesday.

The luncheon, starting at 11:30 a.m., will be held at the Greenville Country Club.

Ann Cherry, Jazzercise, Inc. instructor, will demonstrate "Renewing the Body" as the special feature.

A free nursery will be provided at the First Christian Church. Reservations for the luncheon and nursery should be made with Faye Barber at 756-3610 or June Johnson at 752-5810.

Nutritionist Should Have Proper Training

How should a person choose a qualified nutritionist?

Framed certificates declaring membership in professional nutrition associations look impressive, but many are meaningless, says Dr. Robert Brackett, extension food safety specialist, North Carolina State University.

To illustrate a point, a member of the American Council of Science and Health recently enrolled his dog Sassafras in the American Association of Nutrition and Dietary Consultants and his cat Charlie in the International Academy of Nutritional Consultants.

"Anyone can use the term 'nutritionist.' Some people who call themselves nutri*tionists in fact have no* training in the field. Others have received degrees and certificates in nutrition from unaccredited colleges," Dr. Brackett points out.

Anyone looking for a trained nutritionist can:

•Call the public library to see if the nutritionist's school is certified.

•Look for membership in a professional organization with strict requirements, such as the American Institute of Nutrition, the American Society for Clinical Nutrition and the American Dietetic Association.

•Ask the nutritionist if he or she is a registered dietician. These people must have college training and professional experience. They must also pass a comprehensive examination in order to be registered. Not all good nutritionists are R.D.s, but those who can place these initials after their names are highly trained.

Southern Living Show Planned

Crafts like precisely turned out pottery, baskets, stained glass and rugged wooden toys will be just a few of the heirlooms on sale. The orchid section, bonsai pavilion, travel booths, home and garden and the gardener's marketplaces will be included.

The Charlotte Council of Garden Club's annual standard flower show will also be staged.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays.

Computer Software

If Santa left expensive computer equipment under the tree, it is time to check insurance coverage.

"It is probably covered against fire, theft and lightning, as any other possession in your home. But computers can be damaged by an electrical surge or extremes in temperature. The Insurance Information Institute advises home owners to see if their policy provides for a computer system's hardware and software," says Dr. Thelma Hinson, extension family resource management specialist, North Carolina State University.

A homeowner's policy may also not provide coverage if the home computer is used for business. A special policy may be needed. Policies even exist which cover the time and energy needed to place lost information back onto the software.

Personal savings dropped to 3.9 percent in May, down from 6.6 percent in 1981.

Dear Abby

Bride Feels Crushed Between Mothers' Love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged to marry a wonderful man. We're both 22. His mother and I get along fantastically. I call her "Mom." She says that I am the "daughter" she's always wanted but never had.

"Mom" asked me if she could come along with my mother and me and help pick out my bridal gown. Seeing no reason why she shouldn't, I told her I'd love to have her.

Well, I told my mother, and she said she thought it was totally rude of my future mother-in-law to include herself. Then she said if "Mom" wants to help pick out my wedding gown, she should pay for half of it.

Abby, I've already told "Mom" she could come along, and it would break her heart if I had to tell her I changed my mind. How should this be handled without making my own mother look bad?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Tell your mother that you've already made your future mother-in-law welcome, and there is no way you can exclude her now without causing hard feelings.

Be patient with your mother. She could be jealous of the woman with whom she must now share her daughter. Tell your mother that you want yours to be a happy, lasting marriage, and one of the most essential ingredients is a loving relationship with your husband's mother.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I've been overweight all my life, so I read with special interest the letter signed "Thin but Healthy," and when I came across the line, "No one would ever say to a fat person, 'Gee, you're fat,'" I plotzed!

Abby, I wish I had a dollar for every time someone has said to me, "You have such a pretty face, why don't you do something about your body?"

I have a twin sister, and we are both in show business. Sometimes our weight works against us, but it usually works in our favor because we're glamorous, dress well and have no trouble accepting ourselves the way we are. Like most fat people, we've lost weight and gained it all back, but it became too much of a struggle to stay thin, so we decided to "be our natural selves"—fat.

Wouldn't it be a boring world if we all looked alike? I, for one, plan to continue being myself, and if some people don't like me, that's their problem.

MARILYN IN NEWARK, CALIF.

DEAR MARILYN: I like your style.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Worried Sick," who said her kids didn't need seat belts because she was covered by prayer—and if anything happened to them it would be "God's will."

I'm reminded of the story about a man named John who was caught in a flood. As the waters rose to the level of his porch, a man came along in a boat to rescue him, but John refused to leave. He said, "No, I will stay here; the Lord will provide."

The waters kept rising until John was sitting on the roof of his house. Another boat came along, but John refused to budge. Again he said, "No, thank you. The Lord will provide."

Finally, the waters rose even higher, and John was forced to sit on top of his chimney! A helicopter came by to rescue him, and once again he said, "I'm staying here. The Lord will provide."

The water continued to rise, and eventually John drowned. As he entered the pearly gates, John said to St. Peter, "All my life I was a devout Christian. I prayed to the Lord and kept the faith. Why then did the Lord not save me?"

St. Peter replied, "My son, he sent two boats and a helicopter. What more did you want?"

Moral: If we are provided with safety devices and the intelligence to use them, we should not depend on the Lord to save us.

Brazilian Forest Reserve Suffering Encroachment

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Writer

POCO D'ANTA, Brazil (AP) — It is supposed to be a wooded nature reserve, but mature forest covers only 10 percent of its 12,500 acres.

The quiet is broken by the roar of bulldozers and cement trucks as a dam takes form beside it. Soon one-fourth of the reserve will be under water.

The scattered woodland of the Poco d'Anta Reserve, cut by a dirt road in one direction and a rail line in another, is the last hope of the golden-lion tamarin, a small, fiery orange monkey with a lion's mane of fur around its tiny head.

The skittish monkeys will not leave the trees to cross the open ground of the road or the railroad tracks, so they are divided into separate little groups within the reserve.

Poco D'Anta is the only remaining home of the golden-lion tamarin. "Fewer than 100 now survive and extinction is imminent unless the Poco d'Anta Reserve established for its protection is greatly improved," says the conservationist's bible, the Red Data Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources.

It is also the site of a unique conservation project. If current plans succeed, it may become the first place in the world where captive-bred primates are returned to the wild, says Adelmar Coimbra-Filho, director of the nearby Rio Primate Center.

Virtually all of the remaining wild golden-lion tamarins live at Poco d'Anta, less than 100 miles from Rio de Janeiro and 20 miles inland from the Atlantic coast.

A few of the animals live in a forested area on the coast, but their wooded home there will soon be gone. "It's all cut into housing lots already," says Russell Mittermeier, primate specialist for the U.S. World Wildlife Fund and a leading expert on the golden-lion tamarin.

The golden-lion tamarin's unusual appearance — its leonine face and mane and bright orange fur — have contributed to its downfall. It has been known since the early 16th century, when Ferdinand Magellan encountered it on his voyage to South America. It became popular as a pet in Europe.

As recently as the turn of the century, it was still found within the city limits of Rio de Janeiro, Mittermeier says.

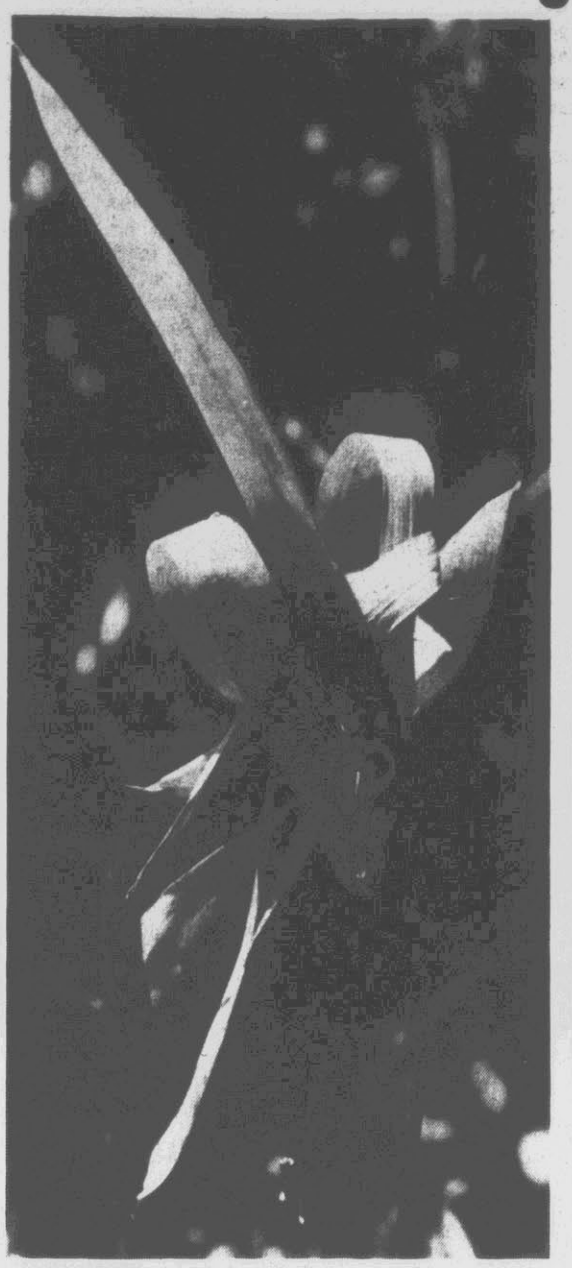

Now it has been pushed into retreat in Poco d'Anta, where it is under the stewardship of the Brazilian forestry department.

If Mittermeier, Coimbra and their colleagues prevail, the golden-lion tamarin will soon be a much more common sight at Poco d'Anta.

There are more than 200 golden-lion tamarins in captivity in 25 centers in Brazil, the United States and elsewhere. Soon there may be enough to begin bringing some to Poco d'Anta and releasing them.

According to Coimbra and Mittermeier, that has never been done before.

"That would be the first time we have ever come full circle with primates," says Mittermeier.

Tops In Fantasy

FANTASY HALL OF FAME. Compiled by Robert Silverberg & Martin Greenberg. Arbor House. 431 Pages. $16.95.

"The Hell-Bound Train" is a story by Robert Bloch, and it's a dandy.

As are most of the 22 other stories in "Fantasy Hall of Fame," a collection of fantasy tales that editors Robert Silverberg and Martin Greenberg felt were the best examples of modern fantasy.

The line that divides science fiction from fantasy is a very thin one, but Silverberg puts out a good rule to follow in his introduction when he observes, "I tend to think of stories about spaceships, robots, computers and the like as science fiction, and of stories about vampires, werewolves, angels and such as fantasy."

The Devil, for example, plays a prominent role in "The Hell-Bound Train." He is, as usual, looking for souls to buy, granting a wish in return. But in Bloch's very funny story he gets more than he bargains for when he makes a deal with a bum named Martin. Bum though he is, Martin has a mind more devious than Satan's, and how he triumphs is a joy to read.

Although some of the stories included here date back quite a few years and the prose gets a bit purple at times for modern tastes, they still are good examples of their kind and interesting to read. Among these, number Ambrose Bierce's "An Inhabitant of Carcosa," Lord Dunsany's "The Sword of Welleran," and A. Merritt's "The Women of the Wood."

Among the newer entries, the very best are Ray Bradbury's "Homecoming," "O Ugly Bird!" by Manly Wade Wellman, and John Collier's "Evening Primrose."

Dorene Rountree Senior Show

ECU News Bureau

Paintings and drawings by Dorene Rountree, a senior in the East Carolina University School of Art, will be on view today to Jan. 22 in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Whichard Building.

The exhibition includes acrylic paintings based on landscapes and natural objects and several figure drawings.

Ms. Rountree is a candidate for the BFA degree in painting with a minor concentration in drawing. She holds membership in Alpha PHi sorority and Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horton Rountree of Greenville.

Waialeale is a mountain on the island of Kauai in Hawaii. It draws an average of 460 inches of rain a year, making it the wettest spot on earth, according to National Geographic.

Poetry Forum Meets Thursday

A meeting of the East Carolina University Poetry Forum will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in room 248, Mendenhall Student Center.

The twice-monthly meetings are held at that location at 8 p.m. on the first and third Thursdays of each month and are open to anyone interested in the writing or reading of poetry. Those having manuscripts of poems to be read should have on hand eight to 10 copies of each poem to be read in order to allow distribution for reading and critique.

Still Practices His Cafe Art

By RODNEY BOWERS
Southwest Times Record

HEAVENER, Okla. (AP) — Most cafe artists left the scene in the late 1950s with the passing of the beatnik generation. Ples Pilkington, though, was not among them.

He didn't join the ranks until 1970, the year he retired as a conductor with the Kansas City Southern Railroad. Now at 80, Pilkington has visited most every town in LeFlore County as well as towns like Hartford and Mansfield in the mountains of western Arkansas. He leaves behind a legacy of art created with deft strokes of felt-tip pens.

Though his works may never grace the halls of the Louvre, most people are pleased to get a Ples original.

"I never charge," he said. "I just enjoy doing it."

Sometimes Pilkington sketches the waitresses at work in the cafes he visits. Often he draws the signs that entice customers to order biscuits and gravy or another mug of coffee.

Pilkington, whose first name is short for Pleasant, began painting as a little boy. He joined the railroad in 1923 and began painting signs a few years later when the Great Depression hit.

Now, he lives in a large green house along U.S. Highway 59, a stone's throw from the tracks he once rode.

"I like to live in a little town where you know everybody and you can help them run their business," he said with a smile.

Pilkington took his business on the road a few years back, visiting cafes and diners along the way. Equipped with his colored felt-tipped pens, he was able to earn a cup of coffee at each stay.

Though he has visited most of the towns in the area — "I've got a couple more I'm going to" — the random visits are over. "I have a schedule I go by now," he said.

Up each day at 3:30, he arrives at the Rock Diner no later than 4:45. Next stop is the Wooden Rail, then the doughnut shop by half-past six. "I have coffee at all three places, come home, eat breakfast and go to T and M Pharmacy to meet my friends," he said.

"People always check on him if he fails to show," waitress Dee Graham said. "He's the sweetest person I know. I just love him."

He says his life has been blessed with good friends and health. "If I had my life to live over," he said, "I believe I'd go back over it the same way again."

Although a great deal of his time is spent visiting, Pilkington still finds time to draw. "He'd plaster all my walls if I'd let him," cafe owner Nellie Byers said.

Pilkington often draws words like "Biscuits and Gravy" and "Catfish Special Today." Sometimes he draws a squirrel holding a mug of coffee. "I've made 'possums, I've made rabbits," he said. "I don't know, I just like squirrels better."

Mariners Museum Events Scheduled

BEAUFORT — Two events of interest to the public, both free, are on the calendar of Hampton Mariners Museum, 120 Turner St., Beaufort, during the coming week.

On Monday, an exhibit, "Four Famous Shell Families: Helmet, Murex, Olive, and Cowrie," from the Watson Shell Collection, is going on view and will be shown through April.

At noon Thursday, "Historical Small Craft: Shallops, Shadboats, and Sharpies" is the topic to be discussed by Mike Alford, curator of maritime research at the museum.

Also currently on view at Mariners is an exhibit, "Washington, North Carolina; River Town," which will be on view through April.

Tours Of NCSA Are Available

WINSTON-SALEM — Tours of the Stevens Center and the North Carolina School of the Arts campus are now available. Tours of the Stevens Center are one-hour long and arranged by appointment only. Tours of the NCSA campus are offered at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday mornings, with an option of concluding the tour with a student music performance and lunch in the cafeteria. Reservations three weeks in advance are required for group tours, but individuals can join a tour on short notice. For more details and reservations, call Nancy Dawson-Sauser at 784-7170, ext. 2554.

Tours For Disabled

BAYONNE, N.J. — Fully accessible tours of Britain and Ireland, designed for travelers with disabilities, will be conducted next summer by Whole Person Tours Inc. The 16-day "Best of Britain" tour will feature visits to London, Oxford, North Wales, the Lake District of Scotland, etc.

For interested persons, brochures listing schedules and prices are available by writing to: Whole Person Tours Inc., P.O. Box 1084, Bayonne, N.J., 07002-1084. The telephone number is 201/858-3400.

OVER TWO MILLION

TAMPA, FLA. — Busch Gardens, The Dark Continent, has reported a total attendance of 2,895,548 visitors in 1983, making the park Florida's second most popular attraction. This is slighly less than the 3 million visitor total for 1982. The best attendance year for the park was 1980, with 3.1 million visitors registered.

Committee Endorses Bill To Protect Shipwrecks

RALEIGH - The Archaeology Advisory Committee, established by state law to advise the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, has endorsed passage of a new federal law intended to protect historic shipwrecks.

The bill is now in Washington being studied by the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, chaired by Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C.

If enacted, the proposed law would remove historic shipwrecks from maritime salvage laws. Instead, such wrecks would be treated as historical, archaeological or scientific objects, subject to applicable state laws.

Historic shipwrecks in North Carolina are proteced under state statues which place shipwrecks defined as "historic" under the jurisdiction of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources.

Dr. William N. Still Jr., a diretor of the program in maritime history and underwater archaeology at East Carolina University, Greenville, chairs the Archaeological Advisory Committee.

According to Still, the new law is crucial to the protection of historic shipwrecks. "For hundreds of years, North Carolinians have relied upon coastal and river waters for transportation and communication, in peace and in war," Still said after the committee's endorsement of the legislation at a recent meeting.

"Now we are faced with the loss of valuable historical, educational and scientific information about shipbuilding, cargo and transportation if treasure salvors are given free rein to recover artifacts any way they choose. They do this work for a profit, while we see historic shipwrecks as a public trust which should be studied properly for the benefit of all."

Flight Hall Authorized

KITTY HAWK — The First Flight Society, dedicated to perpetuating the memory of the Wright Brothers and other authentic "first-flighters," has been given a go-ahead by the National Park Service to provide special housing for the portraits of individuals so honored.

The portraits of the "first-flighters" will be displayed in a wing to be added to the Visitors Center at the Wright Memorial on the Outer Banks. The wing will cost an estimated $700,000, with the First Flight Society to campaign to raise the needed money.

Portraits paid for by the society to date include those of the Wright Brothers, Charles Lindbergh, Adm. Richard Byrd, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, "Chuck" Yeager, Louis Bleriot, Amelia Earhart, Jimmy Doolittle, Igor Sikorsky, Billy Mitchell, John Glenn and the crew of the Apollo XI.

Keith Saunders, chairman of the fund-raising committee, said contributions for construction of the new wing are tax-deductible and may be sent to: The First Flight Society, Box 1903, Kitty Hawk, N.C., 27949. The society's IRS number is 23-7365923.

Paintings of "The Last Supper" were common during the Renaissance. Practically every monastery dining hall displayed one.

Book News

By WILLIE NELMS

College basketball follows college football as surely as winter follows fall. A new book by Robert Stern, on the shelves of Sheppard Memorial Library, "They Were Number One," describes the history of the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

"They Were Number One" recounts the story of the most exciting tournament in American sports. Never before have all of the games played in the 44-year history of this event been described in one volume. From the first tournament, won by Oregon before a handful of fans, to the 1982 game, which climaxed in front of more than 61,000, and millions more on TV, it has created its own unique identity.

Not only are the final games covered, but the various regional contests are included as well. Author Stern, a member of the United States Basketball Writers Association, is very effective in weaving the narrative story of the various games into a meaningful whole.

In addition to the game narrative, numerous black and white photographs are provided, lending a sense of authenticitiy to the book. A foreward by former Marquette head coach Al McGuire helps put the tournament into perspective.

Stern is very effective at providing interesting insights into the players and coaches who have been participants in the tournament. This is a major accomplishment considering the large number of games included in the volume. His long experience as a sportswriter shows in the descriptions of the changes that have taken place over the years.

Faculty Art Show

"Pieces," the annual exhibition of art by faculty members of the school of art, East Carolina University, opens Thursday in Gray Gallery in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the ECU campus.

A reception, open to the public, will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Ski Trip Offered

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is offering a program of cross country skiing, for the beginner or intermediate, at Roan Mountain State Park near Boone. The program will be from Sunday, Feb. 19 through Tuesday, Feb. 21.

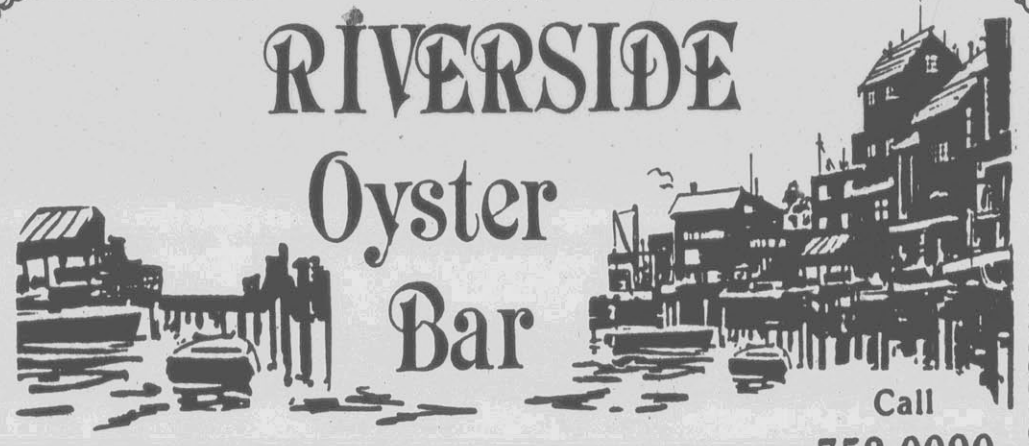

In winter, the South's most consistent snow cover blankets the 6,300 foot summit of Roan Mountain. The ski tour will follow trails through the evergreens and cross open, mile high meadows.

Cost of the program, which includes two nights lodging in mountain cabins; ski equipment for a day and a half; a day long lesson with guided tour; and breakfast and lunch each day is $60. Minimum age for participation is 18.

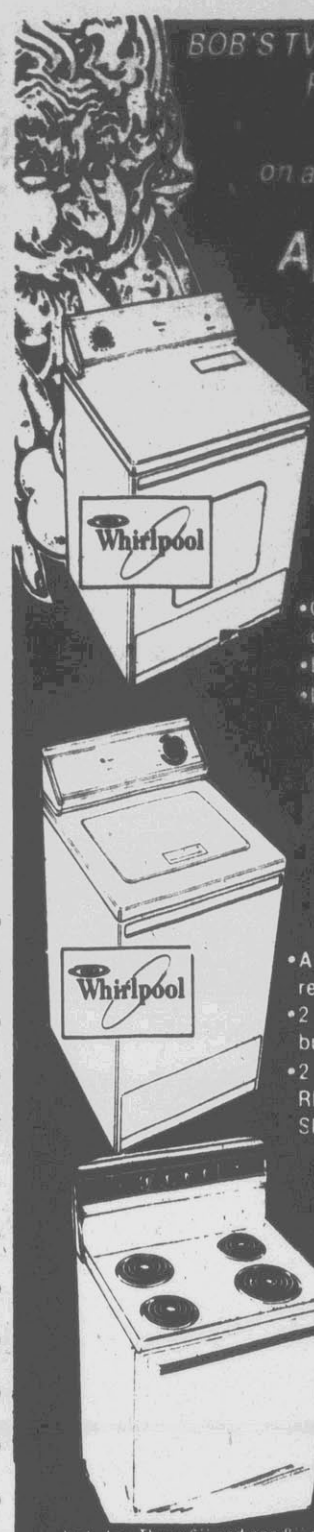

For more information and reservations, interested persons are to call Bill Twine at 752-4137, ext. 201.

Two new shows are up at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 South Evans Street. A collection of 19 multi-exposure photographic landscapes and cityscapes by Charlotte photographer Carl Bergman is the show inaugurating the newly completed Upstairs Gallery of the museum. Formerly a combination classroom/storage area, the room has been renovated to provide much needed additional exhibition space for the museum.

The photographs are all black and white silver point taken by a multi-exposure in-the-camera process. By using this method, Bergman creates photographs in which the initial vision of an artist is carried out through a technological process. He achieves interesting juxtapositions — a billboard with smiling faces advertising an entertainment is sandwiched in space with a view of somber gray tombstones in a cemetery; a near field brimming with Queen Anne's lace in flower is exposed in combination with a larger, distant landscape of open fields and trees. The end product is a graphic visual work, much like an imagined garden floating in water.

In several of the photographs, Bergman employs a mixture of images of new, modernistic buildings with their facades of grid lines to form a sharp contrast to buildings of an entirely different architecture. Bergman holds back, does not carry mixed images to the point of pictorial chaos, so that the surprising landscapes and cityscapes have essential reality maintained, although touched by a mystery removed from the ordinary scope of seeing things as they really are.

Intentionally, or unintentionally, Bergman has several times created photographic images that are strongly reminiscent of typical English countryside landscapes in late afternoon light, a fleeting time when the world seems suspended in a veil of gentle gray.

One factor bothers me in the show. Each photograph is of the exact same size and identically framed.

In the North Gallery downstairs, the current show is that of nine large paintings by Robert E. Daniel. Daniel, an M.F.A. graduate from East Carolina University, was formerly artist-in-residence in Harnett County. His paintings of the female figure are predominantly in oranges, yellows and blues. Daniels, quoted in The Greenville Museum of Art Newsletter, says he "uses the human figure in both organic and geometric motifs 'to create an imaginary environment,'" and adds that his paintings are "individual 'events of abstract marks and shape indications.'"

The word "indication" is significant, as at this point the paintings convey a search on the part of the artist to find something more definitive that will take the artist beyond the nebulosity that now exists in his paintings. His designs, (shapes), are much better defined than his handling of color. The strongest works in this show are a couple of barely sketched in outlines of the female body with minimum application of color.

Also currently on view at the Greenville Museum of Art is the charming collection of children's art and sculpture in the window-lit small upstairs gallery, a few works in the upstairs hallway, and works from the permanent collection in the South Galleries downstairs.

Onslow County Quilt Show

RICHLANDS — Jan. 22 from 1 to 5 p.m. is the exhibition time for the Annual Quilt Show of Onslow County, to be held in the Jacksonville Mall.

The staff of the Onslow County Museum, Richlands, invites quilters and quilt owners to bring their quilts to the exhibit. These are to be registered without charge at the Jacksonville Mall between 9 a.m. and noon Sunday, and are to be picked up at 5 p.m.

Martha Battle, of the Archives and History Division, Raleigh, will be the guest speaker.

Any club or organization interested in setting up a booth at the exhibition may contact the museum at 324-5008.

American Author Is A Moroccan Resident

By SUSAN LINNEE
Associated Press Writer

TANGIER, Morocco (AP) — The last time Paul Bowles went to the local authorities to renew his Moroccan residence permit, an official looked him straight in the eye and said flatly, "You've been here too long, sir."

How long is too long?

Bowles — writer, composer and collector of Moroccan folk music — has been living in Tangier off and on for the past 50 years. He celebrated his 73rd birthday Dec. 30.

"Well, the Moroccans are suspicious, I guess," said Bowles. "They can't imagine why I hang around here. They probably think I'm a spy. And they can't conceive of an American spending all his life without making much money."

It was Gertrude Stein and her companion, Alice B. Toklas, who sent Bowles to this small city on the extreme northwestern tip of Africa in 1931.

For many years, Tangier was an international zone belonging to no country with a reputation for vice and easy living. That lasted until 1960.

"I was in Paris on my way to Villefranche in the South of France," Bowles said during an interview in his apartment. "Stein told me, 'why go to Villefranche? Everyone goes there. Why not Tangier? That's the place for you.'"

Bowles said he never really understood Miss Stein's enthusiasm. But it turned out that during the time Tangier was an international zone, there were no restrictions on currency trading, and money went much further than it did in Europe or the United States.

Tangier attracted many writers looking to get away from the confines and repressions of the '50s, including Tennessee Williams, Jack Kerouac, William Bourroughs and Alec Waugh.

Someone, "maybe it was Burroughs, I can't remember," Bowles says, once referred to him as "the original hippie."

In his white floor-length hooded wool "djellaba," worn to keep out the cold December draft, he looks more like Alec Guiness as the Jedi knight in "Star Wars."

Echo Press and Black Sparrow Press recently reissued four of Bowles' novels: "The Sheltering Sky," "Let It Come Down," "The Spider's House" and "Up Above the World."

Bowles was last in the United States in 1968, teaching literature at California State University at Northridge. That was after he had lived for a while on a small island he bought in the Indian Ocean just of the coast of Sri Lanka.

Bowles says he refuses to fly, and since there are few if any scheduled steamship sailings, he will probably never go to New York, where he was born.

"Actually, I stopped traveling five years ago," he said. "I used to drive over to Malaga (Spain) to see Mrs. Bowles in the hospital before she died, but that was 10 years ago."

Bowles owns a mustard-colored 1967 Ford Mustang in which his Moroccan chauffeur drives him to the post office and the market every afternoon.

For 34 years, he was married to writer Jane Bowles with whom he traveled extensively in Morocco. She suffered three serious strokes over a period of nearly 20 years, which caused her to partially lose her sight and her physical ability to write.

For the past four summers, Bowles has been teaching writing to groups of students coming to Tangier from the New York School of Visual Arts. One, a 23-year-old Guatemalan named Rodrigo Rey Rosa, has become his protege. Bowles, who speaks fluent French and Spanish, is translating Rey's short stories into English.

Bowles says he doesn't really think writing can be taught, and he has little patience with discussions of his own works.

"I don't know what there is to say about writing that isn't in the writing itself," he said.

He also says he can't see why anyone would want to interview him, though he recently spent six days with a young Rome-based American freelance television producer and crew.

"She seemed to feel she had a very important story to tell about me," he smiled, then added, "I was wired up with a microphone so that I couldn't even walk around my living room without stumbling."

Bowles says he still writes daily in longhand, but not much fiction.

He enjoys reading Ernest Hemingway, "for the style rather than the content," and Marcel Proust.

"I finished 'Remembrance of Things Past' (by Proust) at the Hotel Transatlantique in the Moroccan Sahara. It was a French-run hotel where there were always fresh oysters flown in. The Sahara is really the best place to read Proust.

Bowles went to Berlin in the early '30s to study music with Aaron Copland. He wrote the incidential music to the Williams' play, "The Glass Menagerie," and an opera, "The Wind Remains," with a libretto by Spanish writer Federico Garcia Lorca, which was performed in New York in 1943.

Estaban Echevarria Samson, Typical American

By FRANCISCO PEREZ RIVERA
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How can a Cuban-American actor make it big in Hollywood nowadays? By changing his last name to Bauer — to avoid typecasting — and then playing a Cuban opposite Al Pacino.

That's the story behind Esteban Echevarria Samson, now known to American moviegoers as Steven Bauer, who plays Pacino's sidekick in the new gangster epic "Scarface."

"I changed my name mostly because I found that I was running into a kind of limitation in terms of the roles I was considered for," Bauer says. "Not specifically because of my physical type, but because the Latin name preceded me.

"The irony about it is that when the dream role came up, it was a Cuban role. But I thought that in this case, the chance of playing a Cuban with an accent was not so risky because of the quality of the role and of the rest of the people involved".

Those people included director Brian DePalma, whose films include "Carrie" and "Dressed to Kill."

Working with Pacino was "an incredible experience, because I didn't even have any opportunity to have any fear or any nerves," says the 27-year-old Bauer. Even though he had considerable experience in television — his credits include "Hill Street Blues," the made-for-TV movie "Nichols and Dymes," and the miniseries remake of "From Here to Eternity" with William Devane — "Scarface" was Bauer's movie debut.

Pacino "welcomed me immediately," says the Havana-born actor who came to the United States with his parents after the 1959 Cuban revolution. "He helped me tremendously and was very generous with his time and ideas. And we soon became the friends that the characters are supposed to be."

Working with DePalma also was a positive experience.

"He is a very nice man who is hard to know because he always concentrates on his work," says Bauer. "But we are good friends now.

"The film was the break of a lifetime," says the young actor. "The kind of role in the kind of company that I could only dream of as a debut."

Now he ready for more movies and the stage.

"My next film is called 'Thief of Hearts' and will be directed for Paramount for Douglas Day Stewart. I'm playing the lead," says Bauer, who, using the name Rocky Echevarria, played the teen-age son in the public television series "Que pasa, USA."

"A typical American character" — a playboy, says Bauer.

TYPICAL AMERICAN — Esteban Echevarria Samson, above, known as Steve Bauer, is a Cuban-American who changed his name to avoid typcasting. Bauer plays opposite Al Pacino in the new gangster movie "Scarface." The irony of it all is that Bauer play a Cuban in the movie. (AP Laserphoto)

Latin America's industrial output declined 5.3 percent from 1981 to 1982. Production of heavy industry declined even more sharply — nearly 14 percent — in 1981, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. The bank says, "Latin American manufacturing is in the midst of what may be the most serious situation to confront it in the 20th century."

Foley Recital Slated

IN WEDNESDAY RECITAL ... Saxophonist Brad Foley will be in a faculty recital in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the ECU campus at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday. He will be accompanied by faculty pianist Donna Coleman. The recital is free and open to the public. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

A faculty recital by saxophonist Brad Foley will take place at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the East Carolina University campus. The recital is free and is open to the public.

Foley will be accompanied by pianst Donna Coleman. Both are faculty members of the school of music.

For his program, Foley has selected compositions by five composers. The program will open with George Philipp Telemann's "Partita in G Minor," dated 1716 and transcribed for soprano saxophone and piano.

This will be followed by a 1981 work by Richard Lavenda, "Iridescence," and a 1954 composition, Michael Head's "Three Pieces."

After an intermission, Foley will play "Distances Within Me," a 1979 composition by John Anthony Lennon, and conclude his program with Jacque Ibert's 1935 work, "Concertino da camera."

Two of the composers, Lavenda and Lennon, are recent doctoral graduates of the University of Michigan, where Foley also recently earned the doctorate degree in music.

Scholarship Gala Scheduled Jan. 28

A soprano, a baritone, two pianists and the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra University are to provide a dual program of music for the annual Scholarship Gala of the Friends of the School of Music of East Carolina University. The event is being held at the Greenville Country Club on Jan. 28.

Entertainment will be provided in three stages. The first will feature the two singers, soprano Antonia Dalapas and baritone Ed Glenn. The two, to be accompanied by pianist Tom Hawley, will present a selection of popular favorites from various Broadway musicals. All three are faculty members of the school of music.

The second portion of the evening's entertainment will spotlight ECU faculty member and pianist Paul Tardif in a performance of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," with the orchestra under the direction of Robert Hause. The American classic was first performed in the 1920s by the Paul Whiteman Orchestra with the composer as soloist.

Other works to be played by the orchestra include a medley of songs by Barry Manilow, selections from the musical "Chorus Line" by Marin Hammlisch, Blue Danube waltzes, Handel's "Water Music," and John Philip Sousa's famous march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

The annual Scholarship Gala is a primary fund-raising event for music scholarships for students in the ECU School of Music. It is open to members of the Friends of Music. Persons wanting information on membership in the organization may call 757-6851.

'Jewish Problem' Is Next At GMA

The January spotlight for the Playwrights Fund of North Carolina falls on "The Jewish Problem," a one-act play by J.T. Barbarese of Philadelphia.

The comedy, directed by Don Roebuck, will be presented at noon at the Best Lunch Theater Ever event at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 S. Evans St. The production, as is customary at these monthly presentations, will be a stage reading.

"The Jewish Problem" is an examination of cultural perspective, focusing on the inability of one character to identify individuals beyond an ethnic definition, and the unwillingness of another character to be confined by this approach.

The playwright, Barbarese, teaches composition at The Tyler School of Art in Philadelphia as well as creative writing for the annual Philadelphia Writers' Conference. His poetry has been published in The Kansas Quarterly, Nimrod, Telescope, The Smith Paunch, and Flowers and Goose.

Barbarese's plays have been produced at the Performing Arts Workshop in Lancaster, Pa., the Manhattan Punchline, and the Philadelphia Company.

Five Actors In UNC-C Residency

CHARLOTTE — Five actors from the Royal Shakespeare Company, considered the greatest repertory company of the English-speaking world, will spend a week in residency at the University of North Carolina, Charlotte, Jan. 31 to Feb. 4.

The five are Trevor Baxter, Patrick Godfrey, Domini Blythe, Louise Jameson and David Gwillim.

The home theaters of the company are Stratford upon Avon and the Barbicon Theater in London. The company recently produced Broadway and television versions of "Nickolas Nickleby" in the United States.

The quintet of performers will provide five full days of performance-oriented educational activities on the UNC-Charlotte campus and two performances at Spirit Square. They will also give master classes for theater and literature students and guest teach classes in English, drama and humanities. A special workshop is planned for junior and senior high school and college teachers as well as two free public evening lectures and dramatic readings.

The appearance of the actors is made possible through an educational program provided by the Association for Creative Theater, Education and Research of the University of California at Santa Barbara. Financial support is being provided by several university groups and agencies within the Charlotte area.

For more information about the UNC-C residency of the Royal Shakespeare Company actors, contact Roland Reed at 704/597-4471 or Ann Carver at 704/597-4208 from 8 to 5 weekdays.

PROGRAM MOVE

WINSTON-SALEM — The Community Music Program of the North Carolina School of the Arts will move to Stevens Center this month.

Student Recitals

Two graduate recitals and one senior recital by students in the school of music, East Carolina University, are scheduled during the coming week. All are to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus, and are open to the public without charge.

•Graduate voice student soprano Amie S. Keyse of Scott City, Kan., will have her recital on Monday. A student of Gladys White, she will be accompanied by Patricia Foltz, piano, and assisted by Kelly Via, flute, and Todd Barnhart, clarinet. Selections she has chosen include works by Trimbel, Poulenc, Robert Ward, Wolf, Schubert, Strauss, Schoenberg, Barber, Rorem and Puccini.

•On Thursday, graduate voice student Karen E. McCall of Charlotte, a soprano, will present her recital. She also is a student Mrs. White and will be accompanied by Alisa Wetherington, piano, and assisted by Amie Keyse, soprano, and Todd Barnhardt, clarinet. Songs she will sing are ones by Bach, Rossini, Brahms, Schubert, Menotti, Ives and Sears.

•Senior music student Mark Deal of Wilmington, a French horn student studying with James Parnell, will be in recital on Friday. He will be accompanied by Peggy Shuping, piano, and assisted by members of the Woodwind Quintet — Jonathan Sills, flute; Penny Hartland, oboe; Amanda Leon-Guerrer, clarinet; and Robbis Casson, bassoon. His program will feature works by Mozart, Adler, Bozza, Read, Gliere, Cohen and Grainger.

Carowinds Auditions Set

CHARLOTTE — Greenville is one of six Carolinas cities on the itinerary of a search for talent for the 1984 live shows program opening March 17 at Carowinds, Charlotte.

Representatives from Carowinds will be conducting auditions for singers, dancers and musicians.

The Greenville date is Jan. 31 from 3 to 6 p.m. at the A.J. Fletcher Music Building, East Carolina University.

Carowinds live shows manager Bill Miller says there are about 85 performer and technician positions to be filled for the 1984 season. Representatives will also be looking for performers for parks in Cincinnati and Richmond, Va.

Auditions will be for singers, dancers, instrumentalists, technicians and specialty acts.

Each audition is expected to last no longer than two minutes, and are on a first-come, first-served basis. No appointments will be taken. Minimum age for auditioning is 16. Singers should bring sheet music, and an accompanist will be provided. Dancers should bring their own recorded music, and a casette player and phonograph will be available.

Instrumentalists should be prepared to play individually, and asked to sight read. Carowinds does not hire musical groups except for bluegrass bands.

Anyone wanting more information is to write to: Carowinds Live Shows Department, P.O. Box 240516, Charlotte, N.C., 28224, or call 704/588-2606.

Competition Winners

RALEIGH — Soprano Teresa Ringholz of Rochester, N.Y., and violinist Peter Winograd of New York City are top honors winners in the 1984 Kathleen and Joseph M. Bryan Young Artist Competition held last week in Raleigh. Each received a $1,500 cash prize as top performers in the vocal and instrumental categories.

Presented each year by the North Carolina Symphony, the competition offers young musicians from all over the U.S. the opportunity to win cash prizes and solo appearances with the symphony.

•Second place, $750, Jonathan Spitz, New York City.

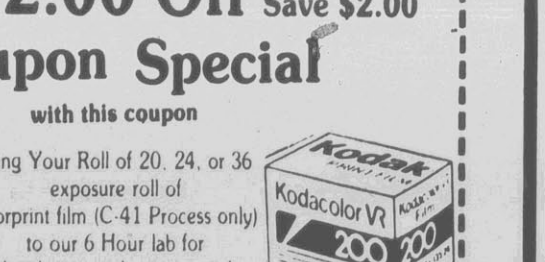

•Third place, $400, Chin Kim, native of Korea and a resident of New York City.

Vaughan Concert

CHARLOTTE — Jazz singer Sarah Vaughan will appear in concert with the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra at 8:15 p.m. Friday at Ovens Auditorium. She will bring with her a combo consisting of Mike Wofford, piano; Andy Simkins, bass, and Harold Jones, drum.

Tickets are priced at $18, $15 and $12 and can be reserved by calling 704/332-6136.

Old Irving Berlin Tune Paid Off In Rock Gamble By Taco

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Irving Berlin was No. 1 on the pop record charts for two weeks in 1983, with "Puttin' on the Ritz." The person who put him there was Taco.

"A lot of people know 'Puttin' on the Ritz' and don't know Taco," says the singer. "So I do a lot of promotion to try to link the two together."

Taco did a long American tour in the fall. He sang three numbers on Bob Hope's Thanksgiving TV special.

"Puttin' on the Ritz" was No. 1 in September and the RCA Records album it's from, "After Eight," climbed to No. 20. It was still on the chart, at No. 134, as the year ended.

The record was made with Taco singing and two musicians. Werner Lang did the arrangements, programmed the drum machine, played synthesizer for trombone, guitar, etc. A bass player played bass. Taco says, "People say to me it's a great brass section. No. It's all played on synthesizer. It is amazing what you can get out of the machines."

When he performs in Germany, where he lives, Taco says, "I do backing-track shows. The music comes from a tape and little old me is on stage singing. That is hard work, 60 minutes just focused on you. Your eyes can never wander off to some guitar player."

In America, where bands, not techno-pop, are expected, Taco hired a drummer, a bassist and two musicians to play eight synthesizers.

Taco's name is Taco Ockerse. He doesn't make a secret of it; it's on the album. Taco is easier to pronounce, spell and remember than the whole name. "Ockerse is a Dutch name," he says, "but it's not common in Holland. It's from a northern island. The family dates to the 11th century."

The family moved to Indonesia in this century. Taco's parents were both born there. One grandparent is half Indonesian. He was born in Jakarta in 1955, left at 2. His parents chose Taco from a baby name book. It's a Dutch name, too, also not common.

"My Dad worked for Arrow Shirts and was constantly put on the transfer list," he says. "My younger brother and I went to American schools wherever we were. I speak English, French, German and Dutch, because of all the traveling."

"I did choir in school. I had the grandest time," Taco says, "but I never really thought about singing." In an American high school in Brussels he was in several musical comedies. Then the family moved to Hamburg, where Taco's father went into import-export.

"I studied interior decorating. I went to the big furniture companies thinking of taking an apprenticeship, but there wasn't a job free. My father said why didn't I go to acting school. I'd always done it at school, and he thought I was good."

Taco went to acting school for 2½ years.

"Before I knew it, I was working at a theater as an extra to make some money to finance private acting studies," he recalls. "I'd do children's theater. At night I'd go to rock clubs and jam. I wrote lyrics for other artists. I did backup vocals for records. I'd do a commercial here or there.

"I was in 'West Side Story' in Hamburg, in English. It was my first chance to speak English again and work with Americans.

"It was great training. The theater helped me for the project I'm doing today, which is all very theatrical."

In 1980, he put his own band together, Taco's Bizz.

"We did disco punk music," he recalls. "We wore glitter suits and had plastic palm trees on stage. I'd be jumping all over the place.

"I took it very seriously. In Europe you face a record industry that is constantly turning you off. They'd say, 'You're too American. We can import it from the U.S.'

"We were left in the streets. Very few professional musicians can live from music in Europe. They all have other jobs. Thank God, I had my theater I could live off of.

"New Wave finally evolved. It finally gave us a break."

Taco's Bizz was together a year and a half. He says, "We had personal differences and we weren't making anything. There was no record contract, which is the most important thing to keep a band alive. The critics raved, but we were too Vegas-like for the record companies."

A demonstration record by Taco led to his making two records in German. "No way were they going to let me sing English," he says, "so I gave that up.

"What was I going to do now? I'd wanted to do standards five years before but there was no interest whatsoever. Manhattan Transfer came to Europe and took it by storm. I thought, there goes that idea.

"I went to David Parker, a producer who specializes in pop and told him my idea. He got Werner Lang, who is a 60-year-old jazz musician, to work on it. My soul is in rhythm 'n' blues. I said, 'It has got to be funky.' David said, 'We have to sell records; it has got to be commercial.'

"There are so many beautiful old songs. We started with a song everybody knows."

Taco cut the album in French for France, half in German, half in English for Germany and all in English except the French "La Vie en Rose" for America.

Eddie Fisher had a top 10 hit with Berlin's "Count Your Blessings" in 1954. Bing Crosby's "White Christmas" record, released in 1942, was in the top 10 in 1955. And "Blue Skies," sung by Willie Nelson, was a hit in 1978.

ADF Offers Dance Program

DURHAM — The American Dance Festival is offering an expanded Community Services program during the months of February through May. The program will be condcuted by Chuck Davis and the African American Dance Ensemble.

Davis, a native of Raleigh and a member of the Education Panel for the National Endowment for the Arts, has given performances throughout the U.S., Europe and Africa, highlighted by a U.S. Department of State tour of Europe in 1980.

The ADF Community Services program is sponsored by a number of North Carolina university and cultural agencies including county and city arts council.

Any interested community organization or school system not yet involved in the program and wanting more details are to contact: Denise Dickens, American Dance Festival, P.O. Box 6097, College Station, Durham, N. C., 27708, or call 684-6402.

'Mahagonny' To Air Saturday

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Kurt Weill's contemporary opera, "Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny," will be broadcast Saturday on the Texaco-sponsored "Live from the Metropolitan in New York" opera series. The opera will be heard locally over WITN Radio, 930 on the dial beginning at 2 p.m.

The cast of "Rise and Fall" includes Patricia Craig as Jenny; Lili Chookasian as Leocadia Begbick; Richard Cassilly as Jimmy Mahoney; Ragnar Ulfung as Fatty; Cornell MacNeil as Trinity Moses; Paul Plishka as Alaska Wolf Joe; Michael Best as Toby Higgins; Arturo Sergi as Jacob Schmidt; and John Darrenkamp as Billy Bankbook. Nicol Castel is the narrator.

Those singing the roles of the ladies of Mahagonny are Cynthia Barnett, Sherry Zannoth, Shirley Love, Isola Jones, Karla Cook, and Joann Grillo. Jeffrey Tate is the conductor of the opera orchestra, and announcer is Peter Allen.

NCSA Subject Of Radio Show

WINSTON-SALEM — The North Carolina School of the Arts will be the subject of the "Music in America" radio program the week of Jan. 9-15. The program is produced by Evans Mirageas who produced what he describes as "a portrait in sound" of the school.

"Music in America," produced by WFMT radion in Chicago and underwritten by the Lincoln Mercury division of Ford Motors, is carried weekly on 155 public and commercial radio stations. It is taped on location all across the country in an attempt to show the diversity of the arts in America.

APPOINTED

WINSTON-SALEM — Janet Fox has joined the public affairs department of the N.C. School of the Arts as associate director for media relations. Previously, she was a reporter for The Sentinel in Winston-Salem.

Ferdinand Magellan set out on his round-the-world voyage in 1519.

Excitement Was Keynote In Couple's China Trip

YOUNG CHINESE CHILDREN . . . are part of the "masses of people" that impressed the Kellys during their visit to the People's Republic of China as part of a 82-member North Carolina Friendship Force delegation.

A STATUE OF GOATS . . . form the background for this photograph of Barbara Kelly during travels last November in China.

Text By Jerry Raynor

Photographs By Richard and Barbara Kelly

Dr. Richard Kelly and his wife, Barbara, were among the 82 North Carolinians who made a November trip to the People's Republic of China. Traveling as members of The North Carolina Friendship Force, the Tar Heels covered many areas not normally accessible to lone tourists or small groups.

"Of all the traveling I've ever done," Barbara Kelly remarked, "this exceeded any tour I've ever been on. We really got out into the countryside and the cities to see the people." This is quite a statement, considering that Barbara is an incurable traveler, who has "made many other trips in past years, all over Europe — Spain, Greece, France, England, Germany, Italy. "Some of these trips I made with my husband, others as a school teacher or a language student."

Masses Of People

"I think above all else, what impressed me most," Barbara commented, "is the masses of people who live in China. You read about these things, but really cannot comprehend it until you see it for yourself. And I was literally overwhelmed at the simplicity in which these millions of people live.

"I was amazed, too, at the shopping fever I saw, both by the natives and tourists. Shopping, by the way, was not our top priority. Many items are by no means inexpensive, especially considering the average wage of $300 a year for the Chinese."

Tour members, because of their special status as members of a large friendship force group, had opportunities to visit a wide range of places. "We went to communes, to schools, kindergartens, hospitals," Barbara said. "I was surprised when we visited one factory and discovered it was one that made shirts for K-Mart stores in America. The production process was complete right down to the placement of American price tags on the shirts."

Freedom In Travel

Richard Kelly, who has practiced in Greenville with Dr. Allen Taylor for the past one and one-half years, said, "I was very much impressed by the fact the Chinese knew where you were every minute of the day. We were permitted a lot of freedom of movement, so I feel this watchfulness to a great degree was a feeling of responsibility for our well-being."

Richard said, "We visited a family practice clinic as well as a commune hospital. The conditions in their medical facilities are austere. Their medical facilities in no way compare to what we have in the U.S. But you have to consider that medical care costs only 75 cents, so perhaps it's a case of you get what you pay for."

Richard pointed out that the Chinese "are beginning to send a lot of students to the U.S. for all types of education, including medical training. They know they're behind other nations, that their former Cultural Revoluation has held them back.

"I get the impression they are ashamed, that they want to be more progressive, more Westernized," Richard commented.

Aspirations

At this time, Richard said, "the Chinese are presently in the process of buying CT scanners. They have bright young people with aspirations to become top doctors. Folk medicine still plays an important part in Chinese medical care. I found a tendency to blend the best of the old with the new in their application of medical treatment."

Richard expressed a desire "to do some work in China. I'm interested mostly in traveling to larger cities. The Chinese government is inviting people with special skills, qualifications to visit for work on a specific project. I'd like to return to travel and give lectures in my field, radiology."

The North Carolina Friendship Force left Raleigh, flew to Atlanta, to Seatlle, then on to Tokyo and Hong Kong. From Hong Kong travel into China was by train to Canton in southern China, then by air to Peking and to Shanghai before coming back to Hong Kong. "Views in southern China from the train were like leafing through a picture book of China, with rice fields, villages and water buffaloes in the countryside," Barbara commented.

Tourism Important

Barbara said one thing she noticed is that in their contacts with English-speaking Chinese, reference to the Communist Party "was played down. Tourism is China's third largest industry, and I think the Chinese are making special efforts to turn attention to things other than politics."

Recollections voiced by Barbara is that "the Great Wall is an awesome sight, but while we were there it was windy, cold, a brutal place. Peking was austere, windy, with dust blowing in off the nearby desert.

"Shanghai strikes me as still being very much influenced by its past European connections. There are still many Europeans there now, and it's here that the masses of people really impress in their huge numbers."

Given Welcome

Officially, the Chinese government extends an elaborate welcome to groups such as the North Carolina one. "We were treated to two banquets, provided entertainment, their best folk performers," Barbara said.

At the conclusion of their travels in China, the North Carolina contingent was treated to a special banquet in Hong Kong, one given by the R.J. Reynolds firm.

Despite the cold weather Richard and Barbara Kelly encountered once away from southern China, the two enthusiastically agree they are ready and eager for a return trip. "It's not only the excitement of seeing the country, but the friendliness of the people that make us want to go back," Barbara commented.

Choral Society Guild Seeking Memberships

GUILD BOOSTERS . . . Mr. and Mrs. G. Henry Leslie, at left, and Carolyn Hampton, right, are three of the persons involved in a campaign to increase the membership support for the Greenville Choral Society Guild. Hampton is chairperson of the drive. A reception for guild members will be held at the Lelise Home following the Jan. 22 concert by the choral society. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forest)

The newly formed Greenville Choral Society will hold a newcomers reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Henry Leslie, 209 McGregor Lane, following the Jan. 22 concert of the society. The reception is for all guild members and particularly for new members in the guild.

The guild is a means for citizens of estern North Carolina to help develop the cultural areas in the area through strenthening choral music offerings. An example of this strengthening of cultural opportunities will be the April 29th performance of the Brahms "Requiem" with chorus, orchestra, and soloists.

Carolyn Hampton, chairperson of the guild, explains that "the guild is a way to support choral music in our community without actively singing. Increasingly, Greenville is becoming the cultural center of the east and more and more people in our area are appreciating the beauty of classical music. The choral members and their director spend may hours giving time and energy in rehearsals, and it is only fair that the general public who enjoys the benefits should support the group.

"The best way to give support to the society is to make a tax-deductible contribution which will help defray the cost of music, and provide outstanding soloists and instrumenalists needed to perform choral masterworks," Hampton added.

Guild memberships are avaiable in several categories: Individual, $15; family, $25; contributor, $50 to $100; donor, $100 to $250; sponsor, $250 to $500; patron, $500 to $1,000; and benefactor, $1000 or more. Those wishing to join are to send their contribution to: The Greenville Choral Society Guild, P. O. Box 1357, Greenville, N. C., 27834. Memberships will also be accepted during the intermission at the Jan. 22 winter concert of the Choral Society to be held at Wright Auditorium on the East Carolia University campus at 3 p.m.

• It has also been announced that the Greenville Choral Society is opening its membership to singers in the community who wish to join. Dr. Rhonda Fleming, director of the group, states "the opulance of the Brahms 'Requiem' requires large choral forces. We need a very large choir for this massive work." The work is scheduled to be presented with orchestra on April 29.

Auditions are not required, however, those planning to join do need to meet with Dr. Fleming for voice placement. A voice placement session will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. today at Immanuel Baptist Church, 110 South Elm Street.

Dues to join the society are $10 plus the cost of purchasing music. The "Requiem" will be sung in English.

Regulr rehearsals are held Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 at Immanuel, with the first rehearsal for the spring concert to be on Tuesday, Jan. 24.

Stamps In The News

A "History of Ships" is the theme of a new 14-cent stamp issue by the Turks & Caicos Islands. The beautiful pictorials range from Indian canoes to modern vessels and thus portray an ongoing history of the islands.

The 4-cent shows a dugout canoe paddled by a pair of Arawak Indians, the first inhabitants of the islands. In the background are their dwellings as described by Columbus and other early explorers.

The 8-cent displays an encounter between a privateer and a Spanish treasure galleon off South Caicos island. The 10-cent illustrates a 60-ton Bermuda sloop off Grand Turk in 1678. The 25-cent pictures HMS Boreas, one of Lord Horatio Nelson's frigates which sank near Salt Cay.

The 30-cent shows the Warship HMS Endymion battling a French warship. The 35-cent features the three-masted bark Caesar, which was wrecked off the Turks in 1822. The 50-cent depicts the three-masted "Grapeshot" in 1869 running the blockade of Cuban ports. The 65-cent illustrates the battleship HMS Invincible. The 95-cent displays HMS Magicienne in 1896.

The $1.10 stamp depicts the arrival of HMS Durban in 1928 with HRH Prince George aboard. The $2 pictures the "Sentinel" in 1946 laying coaxial cable wire. The $3 features HMS Minerva in 1973 with Junior Officer Prince Charles on board. The $5 (highest value) shows the "Caicos Sloop," a popular vessel now being used for inter-island trade.

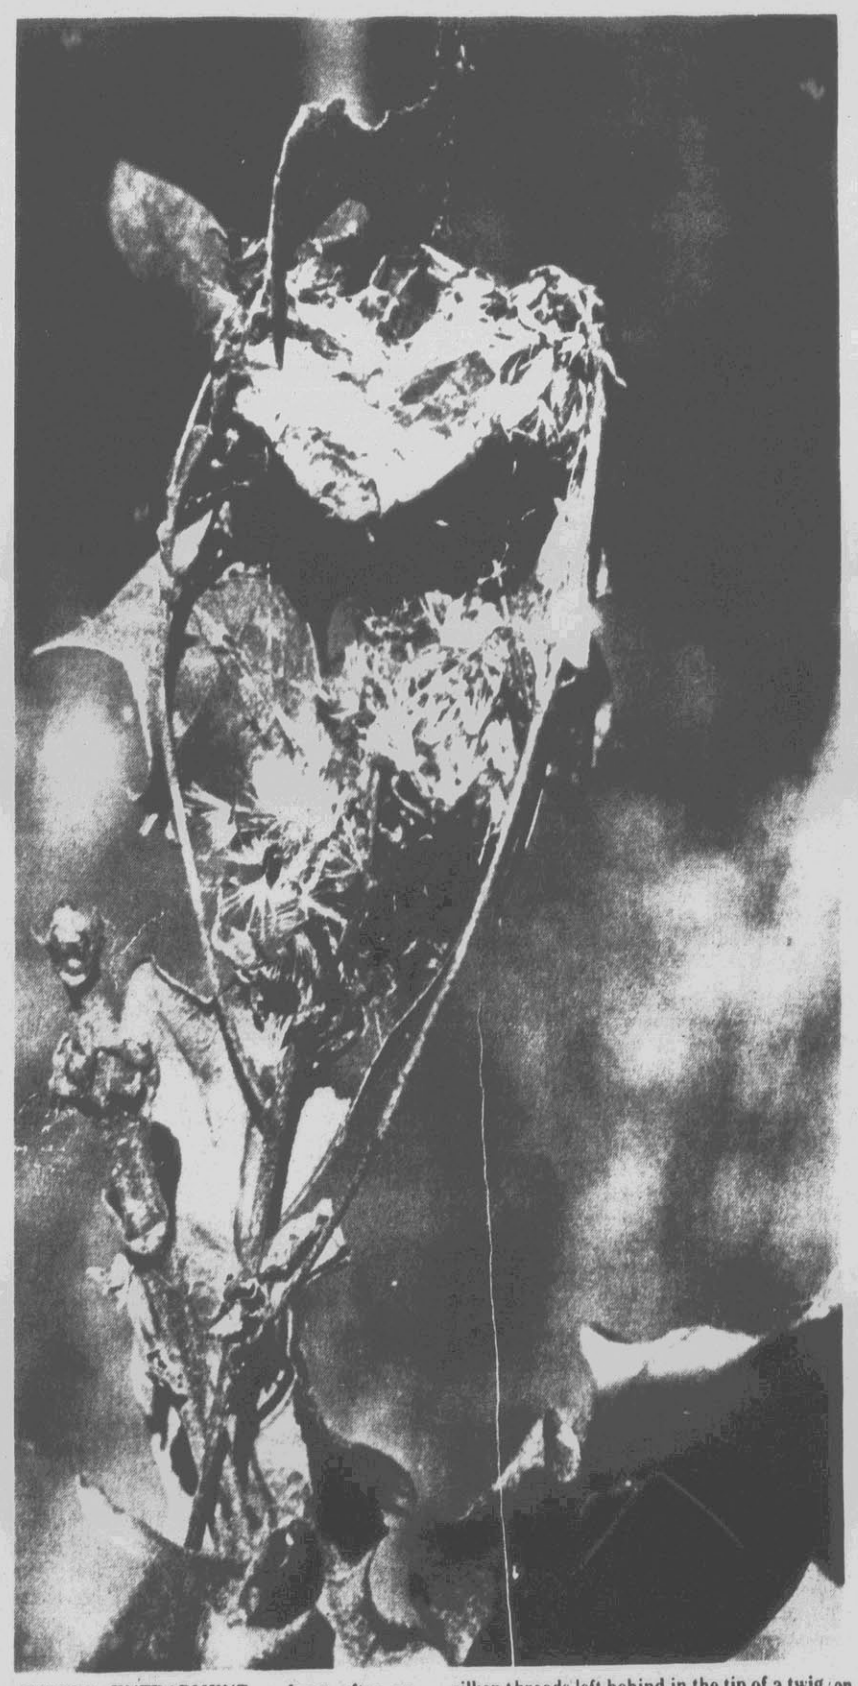

This set makes a fine addition for topical collectors who specialize in ships on stamps. The adhesives are available at your local dealer.

Fifty years ago, the Isle of Man government decided that "risque" type post cards would not be allowed through its mail system. Thus, it passed the "Postcard Censorship Act."

To commemorate the anniversary of the Act, the Isle of Man postal authorities have issued a special postcard which reproduces one of the cards that was disapproved a half century ago by the original Postcard Censoring Committee. The card depicts a group of young women — circa 1933 — bending over the railing of a boardwalk. Their undergarments are clearly visible. The caption on the card reads: "There's So many Nice Views I Don't Want To Leave."

Cards may be purchased directly from the Secretary, Postcard Censoring Committee, Government Office, Douglas, Isle Of Man.

Old Roxboro Railroad Station Serves As Modern Restaurant

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Clarksville Station Restaurant near Roxboro gets all kinds of traffic, much like it did in its previous life as the Clarksville, Va., train station.

So it wasn't much of a surprise one night when a train engineer, a brakeman and a fireman stopped their locomotive on the nearby Norfolk and Western tracks and came in to eat.

"They were just curious — and hungry," said Mike Wilkins, the manager and one of the owners of the restaurant.

The trainmen dined in railroad passenger cars that adjoin the station building, originally built in 1905. On the walls are railroad spikes and lanterns and even a rake-like tool used to hand mail from the train to the station. There are hundreds of train pictures.

"I once could tell you how many we had, but we've lost track now," Wilkins said.

Wilkins sits with a cup of coffee. It's a couple hours before the lunch crowd descends. He looks over the menus, which feature such items as "Split Rails" (grilled Polish sausage with cole slaw and french fries,) the "Casey Jones" (eight ounces of ground beef) and the Norfolk and Western (a five- to six-ounce ribeye steak.)

Wilkins said the restaurant has become a popular place for local business people to lunch and a fun outing for out-of-town residents on Saturday nights. He estimated that 40 percent of his weekend business comes from Durham, about 30 miles south. The restaurant is on U.S. 501 just south of the Roxboro city limits.

Wilkins, a Person County commissioner, is a native of Roxboro. When he got out of the Air Force in 1971, a childhood friend, Roxboro businessman Jim Stovall, wanted him as a partner in a convenience store, a laundromat and a pizza restaurant in Roxboro.

Those stores are still in business today. In 1974, without really knowing why, they bid $500 on the old railroad station in Clarksville, Va., and it became theirs, Wilkins said. The building had to be dismantled and trucked to its new site.

The year 1974 was not a prime time for opening a new restaurant, especially one courting out-of-town business. The oil embargo was keeping drivers home. But Clarksville Station managed to keep its doors open.

"This has sort of been our hobby," said Wilkins. "For a while our company supported it. But we've managed to hold our own now."

From an economic standpoint, the spread-out configuration of the rooms has not been practical. Some electric bills have been as high as $2,000. And because the building is old, insurance premiums have been high.

But the restaurant began to catch on. Wilkins and Stovall expanded in 1976 by enclosing what had been the porch of the station. And they converted an old baggage car into a dining area. The car was named the Bicentennial Room and was filled with patriotic memorabilia.

In 1979, the two bought a car that had been used to haul troops during World War II. They also enlarged another portion of the station deck for dining.

In 1981, they built a replica of a small, circular water tower adjoining the troop car. It sits close to the ground on a deck out front. The room contains a single round table, ideal for a party of about 12.

With all the additions, Clarksville Station now has about 6,000 square feet, and it seats about 300 people.

Georgia Farmers Turn To Irrigation

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — More Georgia farmers are investing in irrigation systems this year to forestall a second season of hot, dry weather that devastated crops last summer.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture declared 139 of Georgia's 159 counties eligible for disaster aid because of last summer's drought, which resulted in millions of dollars in crop and livestock losses.

Farmers probably can expect more of the same this summer, said Dr. Gayther Plummer, the state's acting climatologist.

"We're still in a drought trough," Plummer said. "This drought trough will probably continue for a few more years. I don't see any evidence yet that we're coming out of it."

Kerry Harrison, an engineer with the University of Georgia Extension Service, said drip irrigation, used primarily with orchard crops such as pecans and peaches, "is growing by leaps and bounds."

"Last year's drought was more or less the final straw," Harrison said. "It really convinced a lot of people because it was such a dry year."

Exact figures weren't available. Harrison said about 35,000 to 40,000 acres of orchard crops are currently under irrigation. "I think we're looking at a doubling of drip irrigation systems if not by the end of this year, then by the next year," he said. "A lot of people are talking about this."

In drip irrigation, water from a deep well is piped to orchards, and a steady trickle of water is concentrated on the trees.

VANDERBILT'S VICTORY

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for those hands that we consider to be our favorites. That makes quite a list. For the time being, therefore, we are devoting the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series, we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

Both vulnerable. West deals.

It has always seemed to us that Harold "Mike" Vanderbilt has never been accorded his just due by historians of contract bridge. Not only did he invent the game in 1925, but he became one of its great practitioners. He donated the cup for the National Team of Four Championship that bears his name, then proceeded to win it the fifth year that it was in competition. He developed the first artificial club system back in the early days of the game, and his methods were largely incorporated into all the succeeding artificial club systems. And he was close to being the world's slowest player, sometimes driving partner and opponents to distraction as he pondered over a problem.

This hand is from a high-stake rubber bridge game many years ago. North can be excused for his three spade bid — even today's stars would be in a quandary with the North hand. Vanderbilt felt that, since the opponents held the diamond suit, all North's cards would be working, so he ventured to four spades, and East expressed doubt that he would fulfill his goal.

West cashed two high diamonds and then shifted to the jack of hearts — had he simply continued with a third diamond, he would almost surely have set the hand. Vanderbilt was quick to take advantage of his reprieve.

He ducked the heart in dummy and won the queen in hand when East, too, played low. Since West surely had the ten of hearts for his shift to the jack, declarer continued with a low heart to the eight. East took the ace and, with nothing better to do, exited with a heart to the table's king.

Declarer ran the nine of spades, then led the jack of clubs. When that won, he took another club finesse and cashed the ace of clubs to bring about this position:

NORTH

SOUTH

The rest was easy. Declarer ruffed his diamond with the ace of trumps as East underruffed, then ran the ten of trumps to pick up the suit and make his contract!

GENERAL TENDENCIES: In contrast to yesterday's casual planetary positions, today is one that is filled with potential activity and important situations, so try to utilize them as much as possible. Your mind is clear and logical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Your mind is full of ideas for progress in the future, so make notes of them. Have a family conference in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Even if it is Sunday, concentrate on ways to get ahead faster so that you can be happier. Save time for family in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Apply some effort and gain personal desires that mean much to you and gain more happiness. Plan to see close friends. Be generous.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A good day to study your philosophy of life. Come to an understanding with the one who means the most to you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to analyze your hopes and wishes and to apply effort so that you can gain them more easily. Drive with utmost care.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know what your position is with those in the outside world and strive to improve it. Make vocational plans. Gain greater happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get out of that rut you are in and seek more lucrative outlets. Show that you appreciate new acquaintances. Take no risks with your name.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your hunches are good today so be sure to follow them and you can advance more quickly. Be with your mate. Be careful in motion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Situations arise that will make it easier for you to communicate better with others. Visit a good friend in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good day to get your work for the future nicely planned and to show gratitude to those who have been of assistance to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get your work done early and have a good time with friends later. Plan time to perfect some special talent. Avoid someone depressing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A fine day for being with family. Invite friends in for dinner. Show that you are artistic and courteous. Avoid arguments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be someone who can have a fine life provided you give as much worldly knowledge as you can, to better equip your progeny for the business of living. An inventive nature here and one who will love to work with the hands.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JANUARY 16, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon, changes in your attitude and conditions about you will bring you a great deal more efficiency, so be alert to achieving this worthwhile purpose. Relax the rest of the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Extra care must be exercised in communicating with others and in travel today and tonight. Make arrangements in the morning.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Come to a better understanding early on a monetary matter. Later, make calls and visits you have in mind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do not lose your temper in the morning so you can handle business affairs well and become more prosperous as a result.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't worry about something that cannot be helped and get busy improving your appearance. Entertain this evening.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) One who likes to tease could make you angry, if you permit. Later, be with one you love for a romantic evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't take any chances with your reputation in the morning. Later, join a group affair that is to your liking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Changing your perspective in the morning could be wise. Later, do nothing that can downgrade you in the eyes of bigwigs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure you pay that annoying bill in the morning. Then you can get into whatever is contructive and profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Steer clear of that annoying individual in the morning and then you can carry through with a wise plan.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Work may seem tedious in the morning, bug complete it and then you can get into more interesting activities.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't enter into any argument at home. Everything will work out well for you, whether at work or play.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be apt to be a little nervous and easily irritated, but soon gets over this phase to become outgoing and more sure of self. Slant the education along the lines of merchandising for the greatest amount of success.

Patient Who Wants To Die Has Become Hospital Nightmare

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The bustling psychiatric ward had become a grim chamber full of teen-agers who wanted to die. The doctor was wringing his hands because they weren't dying quickly enough.

That bad dream recently woke Dr. Donald Fisher, chief of psychiatry at the hospital where quadriplegic Elizabeth Bouvia, 26, wants to be kept comfortable and pain-free while she starves herself to death.

"It was a rat race," Fisher said of his dream. "We were turning over beds as quickly as we could. I was uptight, anxious for people to die so we'd have a new bed."

Ms. Bouvia's four-month stay at Riverside General Hospital has been a nightmare for the doctors, nurses, social workers and administrators there. The lofty goals of a hospital dedicated to healing have been unhinged by one patient, by all accounts of sound mind, who wants to die there.

mStaff members feel frustrated because she rejects efforts to change her mind, afraid because they are forcing care on her and resentful because she has criticized them.

Dr. Habeeb Bacchus, the acting chief of medicine, said he is depressed by the whole case. "I feel abused emotionally. I've never felt as abused as I have in the past few weeks," he said.

Secretaries have been inundated with telephone calls for Ms. Bouvia. While she was in the mental health unit, the pay phones there rang 100 times an hour and nurses had to answer them all.

Security guards have found photographers roaming the halls looking for her room. Twenty pounds of mail arrives for her daily. A custodian says her presence has messed up the hospital routine. "I just wish she'd go on her way," the woman said.

Patients have been following the case, too. One man brought to the hospital in a coma thanked doctors for not letting him die. "I'm glad your hospital has the reputation that you don't give up," he told them.

Two schizophrenic patients wanted to emulate Ms. Bouvia, "to die like Elizabeth," they said. "Practicing medicine in this unit has become more difficult," said Dr. Christian Rutland, a staff psychiatrist.

A psychiatric patient said he would help Ms. Bouvia carry out her wish to die if the doctors would let him on her floor. A caller threatened to get himself admitted to the hospital and kill Ms. Bouvia.

"I couldn't live with myself if I let that happen," said Administrator Neal Asay, who ordered an around-the-clock guard posted outside Room B323.

At the flower shop across Magnolia Avenue, Debbie Sypolt said Ms. Bouvia "has the whole country talking about her and the hospital is stuck. She's not considering the doctors' and nurses' feelings."

Merrill K. Nelson, a quadriplegic who sells peanuts near the hospital, tried to see Ms. Bouvia to urge her not to give up on life. She wouldn't see him. "She doesn't need pity," he said. "I know. I used to be like her."

The family of one nurse thinks the hospital should kick Ms. Bouvia out on the street. The friends of another think the hospital should just leave her alone.

The staff is defensive about the criticism. They also feel, as Dr. Douglas Hegstad, the chief medical resident and Ms. Bouvia's primary doctor, put it, "a bit famous, like we're close to something important."

Ms. Bouvia's protracted legal effort, now on appeal to the California Supreme Court, has raised ethical questions for the entire medical profession.

That's apparent at Riverside General, which, like every other hospital in America, is staffed by professionals trained to preserve life, ease suffering and promote health.

They have been wrestling with conflicting emotions: a personal feeling that Ms. Bouvia has the right to determine her fate and a professional obligation to keep her alive, against her wishes, as long as she remains in their care.

"If she really wanted to die," said nurse Jan Kibler, "she would never have come to the hospital."

Her wish goes against "everything within the nursing profession," added Greta Jaqua, director of nursing. "What would we put on her chart? 'Patient wasting away as planned?'"

But, as Rutland said, "You can't help but put yourself in her position and wonder what you would do."

Many nurses worry that forcing care on Ms. Bouvia has put their licenses in jeopardy. Several nurses covered their name tags with masking tape to keep outsiders from identifying them, fearing crank calls and possible legal action.

"Who's going to take care of us if this thing doesn't fall favorably to the hospital?" Mrs. Jaqua asked. No one has answered her question.

Ellen Brooks, a nurse assigned full-time to Ms. Bouvia for several weeks, said she feels "like I'm not putting in my good eight hours of work."

"I offer her fluids, ice cream, sherbet, but she continually refuses, usually with a smile or a smirk," Mrs. Brooks said. "Never in my life have I had a patient like this."

Fisher has trouble talking to her. "I get to the point where I want to see her," he said, "but I end up walking away and I want to cry."

Although the staff insists that other patients have not been overlooked, Ms. Bouvia's presence has upset the operation. Nurses have been working extra shifts and doctors have been spending more time with her than they would other patients in her condition.

"Everything that happens to her, even the most minor complaint, gets reported to the doctors," Dr. Larry Loo, a third-year medical resident, said before dawn one day as he checked on the sickest patients in intensive care.

"If every patient got the care she's currently getting, we'd just need a lot more doctors and nurses in the hospital," Loo said.

Joan Munson, a hospital social worker, has been spending much of her days looking for a place that will take Ms. Bouvia; more than 100 facilities all over the world have turned her down.

Mrs. Munson came in before dawn one Saturday and called St. Elizabeth's Hospice in London. "They indicated they weren't any more anxious to have her than we were," Mrs. Munson said.

The hospital refuses to deal with private placement offers. A dozen have been received and passed directly to Ms. Bouvia's attorneys. "I have real difficulty with the thought that I have any part in helping her carry out her life's — or death's — plan," Mrs. Munson said.

The problems began when Elizabeth Bouvia's father wheeled her past tall palm trees and into this 354-bed county hospital 50 miles east of Los Angeles.

It was Sept. 3 and she had come all the way from Oregon because she was eligible for medical benefits in California, where she had once lived.

Ms. Bouvia was born with cerebral palsy and developed severe arthritis about three years ago. She told the doctors she wanted to die, to escape her "useless body" and a life she believes will be spent in a nursing home "depending on someone for the most humiliating of needs."

As a voluntary admission, she had the right to refuse certain treatment and she was not sick enough to be held against her will.

"We lost total control of this lady," Fisher said. "Her attorneys took over and we felt impotent at times. Why are we here? Why is she here?"

Some of the nurses were angry. Others were sympathetic and wanted to help Ms. Bouvia change her mind. "But there was nothing they could do," Mrs. Jaqua said. "They knew what their jobs were and they felt like they were being kept from doing them."

Sales - Commercial

Start as a Trainee Make Money Like a Pro

At Cleveland Cotton Products you're treated like a pro even during in-depth field training. You're expected to catch on fast and play a productive role. Your progress will depend strictly on your own performance.

If you're sharp and willing to get the job done, you'll soon get the opportunity to handle an established territory and earn the high income levels of successful salespeople.

You will train locally for 4-6 weeks; then be promoted to your own territory. Your customers will be manufacturers, fleet operators, automotive shops and other commercial accounts who need our industrial materials and related products.

You'll represent the industry leader and enjoy one of the best compensation plans available, including a salary and expense allowance to start and draw against top commissions later. Travel is limited but you must drive a late model car.

If a "Pro" income motivates you, set up an immediate personal interview. Call:

The Best Selection of Previously Owned Toyotas

The Best Buy

You see, Toyota's reliability and documented low incidence of repairs means that new or used, you get a very dependable car for your money.

The Largest Selection

But right now, we have the largest selection you'll find anywhere.

Pontiac T-1000

A special repurchase allows us to offer these 1983 Pontiac T-1000 4-door Hatchbacks starting at just $149.95 per month.

We have 20 to choose from, all with low mileage and all are fully equipped, including: automatic transmission, air-conditioning, and radio.

*With approved credit and $600 down, cash or trade. Term is 48 months at 13.99% APR. Amount financed $4900. Amount shown does not include tax and license.

The Nicest Bonus

Bring us this coupon, and we'll give you $200 off the price of any previously owned Toyota in stock.

Or, you may use it toward the purchase of almost any other used car or truck in stock.

All of these previously owned Toyotas represent a remarkable automotive value. In fact, many qualify for our 2 year/24,000 mile Tender Loving Care Warranty.

Of course, financing is available with approved credit, on all models in stock.

$200 $200

Use this coupon at Toyota East for $200 Off the price of any previously owned Toyota, or any other used car or truck, except a Pontiac T-1000.

The One Word In Our Business That Makes A Difference

And it's the word that's been said over and over again during 1983 by satisfied customers who turned to us with their housing needs.

Whether you're buying or selling, you can be sure of quick, courteous, competent and professional service when you rely on the firm that gives the word "SOLD" special meaning for you.

CRYPTOQUIP 1-14

BVMLD LRVGRWM KRGID'C USLVERWB DLRGIV RC L KGLWM UGIDSMCELW.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals A.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The Soviet Union sent its third cosmonaut, Maj. A.G. Nikolayev, into orbit around the earth Aug. 11, 1962. The next day, Russia launched Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich into orbit. The two cosmonauts spent many hours in constant communication with each other by radio.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

The best part of winter vacation is the end of it. I like to get back to my old rituals. The piles of unironed clothes, the piles of unpaid bills, the piles of dirty dishes all seem like old friends after two weeks of mediating in a full-scale sibling war.

It's a mystery to me how two children who by their own admission are perishing from boredom cannot play together for more than five minutes without quarreling.

"He's just hateful, that's why," Meg explained when I expressed this sentiment aloud. "He can't touch anything without ruining it."

"If I was Mr. T, I'd stomp you," Zachary growled.

"Well, you're not Mr. T," I said, "so if you can't get along with your sister, you'll have to stay away from her."

"Fat chance of that. He'll just wait till he thinks you're not looking and then he'll come over and poke me with that gun he made out of Tinkertoys and tell me that I'm going in or under the jail — it's my choice."

I made a mental note to cancel all Sunday morning television viewing. "Meg, has it ever occurred to you that you're just giving him ideas by talking like that?"

She sighed. "You know as well as I do that there's nothing he hasn't thought of already."

On the whole she was right. "Then just play along," I begged, "You might enjoy it in spite of yourself."

"Would you enjoy being told to stay under the rocking chair for the rest of the day and being rammed with a Tinkertoy if you didn't?"

"Then play by yourself. Just stop complaining."

"But there's nothing to do."

I shuddered in desperation. There were stacks of games, books, tapes and records all over the den. There were giant cardboard bricks, the Millenium Falcon, the X-Wing Fighter and an Ewok Village. Darth Vader and his cronies lay scattered about. I had already crunched See-Threepio. "You could always clean up."

My suggestion had the desired effect. Meg grabbed her two books and her Dominoes and disappeared. Zachary decided that he would play outside. Then he disappeared, too. After a frantic search I found him caught in the thorns in the forbidden territory behind our back fence.

His punishment did not daunt him. He proceeded to entertain himself by coloring as many new puzzle pieces as he could get to with Magic Markers. He also decorated my folding table. While I was assembling the last of the cardboard bricks, he tried to cut my hair with the new scissors from his portable desk, but I looked up in time. I was beginning to share Meg's perspective. He was in his pajamas very early.

"Tomorrow?" he repeated.

"That's right. I'll be here all by myself."

"Will you miss me?"

"Oh, yes," I lied. "Will you miss me?"

He thought for a moment. "Naw."

Thank heavens for small favors.

In a recent survey of Pitt County residents 91% agreed with the statement, "THE DAILY REFLECTOR is well organized and it is easy to find what I want to read".* The new, updated look will make your local newspaper better than ever.

*RMH Research, River Edge, N.J., December, 1983

Starting Wednesday, February 1, THE DAILY REFLECTOR will change from the current 8-column format to a cleaner, easier-to-read 6 column format newspaper.

Over the past several years, the newspaper industry in the United States has been working on a plan that would standardize the size of all newspapers published in this country. So far, over 90% of the daily newspapers have voluntarily agreed to change to the new standard by July 1, 1984.

A LOOK AT THE OLD AND THE NEW!

OLD
8 COLUMN

This column is an example of the old look. It represents the narrow newspaper columns of the past which are giving way to the wider, easier to read look of the six column format.

Experts have long contended that numerous eye movements from line to line make reading tiresome and difficult. And, they say, the frequent hyphenations which are necessary in a narrow column make comprehension poor.

The Daily Reflector will be changing from this old format on February 1, 1984 to the new 6-column format.

NEW
6 COLUMN

This column is an example of the new look! It represents the wider and easier to read appearance of the six-column format, which will soon be replacing the narrower newspaper columns of the past.

Experts have long contended that numerous eye movements from line to line make reading tiresome and difficult. And, they say, the frequent hyphenations which are necessary in a narrow column make comprehension poor.

The Daily Reflector will be changing to this new format on February 1, 1984 to the new 6-column format.

Bertinelli In 'The Seduction Of Gina'

Valerie Bertinelli portrays a young woman who risks her marriage and jeopardizes her future happiness when she becomes a compulsive gambler in the CBS TV movie, "The Seduction of Gina," on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Jan. 17.

Gina Breslin (Miss Bertinelli), a 20-year-old student, who is married to a medical intern (Fredric Lehne), goes from making a hunch bet in which she wins $25, to becoming indebted, morally and financially to a cynical casino operative (Michael Brandon), who is only too willing to extend credit to an attractive, vulnerable young gambler in return for certain favors.

The crisis reaches a critical point when Gina cashes in her $30,000 trust fund to make a desperate, final "big killing" at the tables.

Gina Breslin (played by Valerie Bertinelli) risks her marriage when she becomes a compulsive gambler, indebted financially and morally to a cynical, seductive casino operative (Michael Brandon), who extends her credit, in "The Seduction of Gina," on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Jan. 17.

Manilow Slated

Barry Manilow will perform at the eleventh annual presentation of "The American Music Awards," which will be broadcast live from Hollywood, Monday, Jan. 16 on ABC.

This lively ceremony, honoring the favorite artists and records as selected by a poll of 20,000 record buyers throughout the country, features many of the nominees for awards in pop, rock, soul and country. They, as well as other top artists, are expected to be on hand to perform or present awards.

Phone Home Game

Via telephone, home viewers are able to share in playing the "Phone Home Game" with a studio contestant, playing in partnership, and sharing in possible cash winnings of up to $15,000.

Home viewers who wish to participate in the game should print their name, complete address, area code and telephone number, along with their Social Security number on a postcard and mail to: The Phone Home Game, P.O. Box 1, New York, N.Y., 10046.

Daniel Hugh-Kelly stars as a young race car driver, Mark "Skid" McCormick, in ABC's "Hardcastle and McCormick," Sunday, Jan. 15.

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

DEAR MICHELE: I would like some information about Lee Horsley, who plays Matt Houston. Also, where can I write to him? RENEE JOHNSON, HIGH POINT, N.C.

TO RENEE IN HIGH POINT: Lee's first inclination as a young boy was to be a rancher like his grandparents back in his hometown of Mulshoe, Texas. Even after his parents moved to Colorado, he longed for the rolling plains of north Texas. But Lee also loved singing, and after appearing in a production of "Hello, Dolly," he he wanted to become an actor. Following graduation from the University of Northern Colorado, Lee headed for New York, and subsequently went to Hollywood for an audition for a part in NBC's miniseries "The Gangster Chronicles," a role he didn't get. He returned to New York, but the producers of "Nero Wolfe" remembered Lee from his "Chronicles" audition and brought him back to co-star with William Conrad in "Nero Wolfe." He also starred in a movie, "The Sword and the Sorcerer," then did the "Matt Houston" pilot. He has only temporarily put aside his vocal aspirations. He still plays the guitar, writes music and intends to pursue recording in the future. Lee, his wife, Stephanie, and their young daughter live in a suburb of Los Angeles. Fans may write to him in c/o "Matt Houston," ABC-TV, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, Ca., 90067.

DEAR MICHELE: Could you please give me some information and an address for Barbara Mandrell? J.E. COOPER, RALEIGH, N.C.

TO J.E. COOPER IN RALEIGH: Barbara Mandrell was born on Christmas Day (1948) in Houston, Texas. Her mother, Mary, began teaching Barbara the accordian before she could read. The family moved to Oceanside, California, when her father, Irby, bought a music store. By the time Barbara had reached her teens she had mastered the steel guitar, saxophone, banjo and bass guitar. Her father eventually formed a family musical group, "The Mandrells," with Barbara, her mother and father and two young men on guitar and drums. In 1967, she married that drummer, Ken Dudney, temporarily gave up her musical aspirations and became a serviceman's wife. Ken was overseas in the Navy when she moved with her family to Nashville. A visit to the Grand Ole Opry, however, prompted those old familiar feelings. Halfway through the show Barbara turned to her father and said, "Daddy, if you'll manage me, I'd like to try to get on the other side of the microphone again. I wasn't cut out to be in the audience." The rest is, as they say, history. Along the path of success Barbara and Ken had two children, Matthew, 13, and daughter, Jaime, 7. With all her successes, Barbara still has hopes and goals for more. She would like the opportunity to become involved in acting and broaden her career in general as an entertainer. "I'm watching our business grow and hopefully I'm a little part of what's making it grow." I suggest you write to Barbara Mandrell in c/o MCA Music, 70 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Ca., 91608.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

More about "THE DAY AFTER" – EUROPEAN countries, even some behind the IRON CURTAIN, are expressing an interest in televising the ABC movie which focuses on the effects of a nuclear blast.

The film has been a ratings success on BRITISH television and in WEST GERMANY, where it was shown as a theatrical release, and has grossed more than three-million dollars.

Other countries expressing an interest in the film are POLAND, BULGARIA and CZECHOSLOVAKIA. Representatives of the SOVIET UNION's government have requested a cassette of the program in order to determine whether or not it should air on Soviet TV. (It certainly makes me feel better to know that we share the same 'fear' with these countries. That could make a difference.)

I didn't need BETTE DAVIS' attorney, HAROLD SCHIFF, to tell me that she is "feeling fine and ready to return to work." The news that she has not been happy with the 'HOTEL' story ideas submitted to her thus far, tells me MISS DAVIS is back in rare form and is still as selective of her roles as ever. Producers AARON SPELLING and DOUGLAS CRAMER feel that the 'right script' will be ready for her late January return to the series.

BARRY MANILOW has established music-department endowments at NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY, EASTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY, THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY, SAN FRANCISCO CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC and UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, to be awarded annually to students based on merit and financial need.

Spound's timing is perfect in 'Hotel'

By Joe Anthony

At the age of six, Michael Spound didn't really have a choice of whether to play baseball or act. His father made that decision for him. Looking back, however, Spound, who plays bellman Dave Kendall on ABC's Wednesday night series "Hotel," doesn't regret his father's decision.

"Everything seems to be falling into place," says Spound, whose character on the series is working his way through law school while working at the St. Gregory. "It's great for a young actor to just sit around here and watch what's going on."

Born in Santa Monica, Calif. Spound grew up in Concord, Mass. By the age of 7, he was sharing his father's passion for acting. With two amateur stage performances under his belt, the young Spound's career was underway.

He continued to act at Philips Academy and later at Northwestern University, performing in numerous summer stock productions while earning his bachelor of arts degree in theater.

Michael Spound

After graduation he was planning on trying the New York stage. But again his father influenced his path, because Spound decided to visit him in Los Angeles before heading for Broadway. Once there, he auditioned for and won the role of Riff in a Shrine Auditorium production of "West Side Story."

Although "Hotel" is not a sitcom, Spound's character is often called on to provide a moment of comic relief.

"That's OK," says Spound, "even though I studied mostly the classics at Northwestern. But I did a bit of comedy and the timing is much more difficult."

But again Spound, who has guest-starred on such TV series as "Family Ties" and "Laverne and Shirley," and appeared in the TV movie "The Emergency Room," reminds himself that everything is falling into place. He has a spot on one of the season's most successful new shows, and the show has "Dynasty" as its lead-in each week. Spound can't help but be impressed and so is his father.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Hastings wedded former cast mate

By Kimberly Redmond

I think the new soap opera "Loving" is really great, and I'm especially interested in the actor that plays Mike Donovan. Could you please tell me something about him? — B.M., Euclid, Ohio

James Kiberd, who portrays the emotionally scarred Vietnam veteran Mike Donovan, is a native of Providence, R.I. After living in several major European cities, Kiberd settled in Rockland County, N.Y., where he devoted his time to being an artist. Kiberd began acting at the Penguin Theatre of Rockland where he also served as a management consultant. He appeared briefly on "All My Children" and "As The World Turns" before he joined "Loving."

James Kiberd

Can you please tell me who Don Hastings (Bob Hughes on "As The World Turns") is married to? I believe his bride was a former cast mate on "ATWT," and I'd like to know her name and which character she played. — R.P., Shenandoah, Va.

Don married former cast mate Leslie Denniston who portrayed Don's on-screen romantic interest Karen Peters. Don and Leslie have a 1-year-old daughter.

What is the name of the song Donna Cortlandt sang several times to Chuck Tyler (Richard Van Vleet) on "All My Children." — J.M., Holiday, Fla.

Donna and Chuck's theme song is "You Needed Me" and it's one of four songs that actress Candice Earley (Donna) has recorded on a special album.

Edward Stratton (Joel Higgins) has another father-to-son talk with Ricky (Ricky Schroder) on NBC's "Silver Spoons," Saturday, Jan. 21.

Soft-Spoken Buck Williams Works Hard

Buck Williams, the outstanding power forward of the New Jersey Nets, is one player whose actions most definitely speak louder than his words. Quiet and soft-spoken off the court, the 6-8, 215-pounder is a firm believer in the work ethic on the court. Few athletes put more effort into developing their skills than the third-year pro from Rocky Mount, N.C.

"I want people to know that every night I step onto the floor, I come to play," says Williams, who will be on the floor Sunday, Jan. 15, on ESPN, when the Nets take on the Indiana Pacers.

Williams has established himself as one of the outstanding young forwards in the NBA and ranks alongside Dan Roundfield of Atlanta, Maurice Lucas of Phoenix and Jeff Ruland of Washington among the league's finest power forwards.

He was chosen NBA Rookie of the Year in 1982 after averaging 15.5 points and 12.3 rebounds per game. Last season he was picked for the East All-Star team by the conference coaches and for the All-NBA second team by writers and broadcasters after averaging 17.0 points and 12.5 rebounds per game.

Despite those impressive credentials compiled during his first two seasons, or perhaps because of them, little was written or said about Williams this fall. All the preseason Nets stories centered on the impact of the new coach Stan Albeck, the ability or inability of Darryl Dawkins to stay out of foul trouble, the arrival of Foots Walker or the departure of Michael Ray Richardson. It's as if people are taking Williams' contribution for granted. He hasn't let it stop him from working to improve his game.

"I've been trying to put the ball on the floor outside and create some moves," he explained. "Last year, playing in the low box, I wasn't able to do that. This year I think I've developed my game to a second stage, and hopefully I can come on and really become a good outside player as well as an inside player."

Sports Planners Keep Heads Above Water

Herb Kraft, ABC's Director of Telecommunications and Olympic Venues for the 1984 Summer Olympics, has had to pool all the network's resources to figure out a way to cover the rowing and canoeing events on Lake Casitas.

"The irregular shoreline makes it difficult to build a paved road beside it where you can track a camera," he explained. "Wind conditions make it necessary to hold the events in the morning, which means any shore-bound cameras would be shooting into the sun. On the other hand, if we were to follow the races from the water, we might create a wake that would disturb the rowers."

Given this set of complications, Kraft and his staff designed a base platform that rests on twin covered racing shells. A 10-foot camera platform sits atop the base, enabling the cameras to get a high view of the eight lanes of rowers.

While the pontoon camera platform is hardly like your typical yacht, it will have a skipper and a second mate who will guide its two 50-horsepower engines down the course, making sure the cameras keep up with the racers. The "captain" will have monitors and be able to communicate via headset with the ABC director in the production truck.

To compensate for the roll of the water, a gyroscopic mount was developed to keep the cameras steady. "Otherwise," Kraft said, "viewers would feel seasick watching the coverage."

There will be two of these pontoon platforms motoring up and down Lake Casitas because of the limited amount of time between the races (eight minutes). One pontoon boat will finish covering a race and will be returning to the start line as the second pontoon camera platform covers the next race.

The two cameras on each pontoon platform (one for the ABC national feed and one for the world feed, which ABC must provide as the host broadcaster) will microwave their signals back to the production truck near the lake. From the truck, the signals will be satellited back to the ABC Broadcast Center.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I heard that both Luke Spencer (Tony Geary) and Laura Spencer (Genie Francis) are going to leave "General Hospital." Is this true? — P.S., Mexico, Maine

It's true. Geary and Miss Spencer have already taped their last episodes for the popular soap opera. But the memory of the Luke-Laura romance will linger for a long time with fans.

Now that Christopher Atkins has landed a part on "Dallas," I'd like to know if he'll be a regular on the show. Where can I get a picture of him? — K.H., Feasterville, Pa.

Atkins is now a regular on "Dallas" and you can write to him in care of the series at MGM, Culver City, CA 90230 and ask him for a picture.

Recently you answered a question about Joan Collins and said she made her first film, "Lady Godiva Rides Again," in 1981. Is that right? — N.R. Marysville, Calif.

Thanks for noticing. The title of Miss Collins first film was correct, but the year was 1951.

I'm a fan of "The Yellow Rose" and I wanted to know something about the actor who plays Quisto? What is his real name, where does he live and where can I write him? Is he married? Does he play an Indian in the show? — A.W., Lone Grove, Okla.

Edward Albert

Edward Albert plays Quisto Champion, not an Indian but the Mexican-American illegitimate son of the late owner of the ranch. Edward is Mexican-American, just like his character. He was born in Los Angeles on February 20, 1951 to Eddie ("Green Acres") Albert and his Mexican-born wife, Margo. The younger Albert is married and the father of a 2-year-old daughter. He and his wife and child live in Malibu on a ranch, where they raise horses and live close to nature. Write him in care of the series at NBC-TV, Burbank, CA 91505.

Famous Sweats

Those sweatshirts worn by Ted Knight on "Too Close for Comfort" have become profitable items for the colleges they represent. Ted autographed the one he wore from Sarah Lawrence and it was sold at a student-organized charity auction for $250.

12 days of SALE

Jan. 16 thru Jan. 28

WHY— Sale periods seem to us to be long drawn out, awkward periods for both the store customer and the store itself. No one ever seems to know when the sale is going on or where it ends. Service to the customer sometimes becomes a forgotten matter. The customer and the salespeople both get tired and disgusted.

WHO— YOU, the customer, are the one who will benefit because from DAY ONE of our sale you will get the lowest possible prices. We will only take markdowns once and prices will be as low on DAY ONE as on DAY TWELVE.

WHAT— Unbelievable bargains on 1st quality men's clothing all chosen from our regular stock. Our sales do not represent manufacturers' mistakes or special manufacturer closeouts. On our sale you will only find our regular top quality merchandise offered at greatly reduced prices by our experienced sales staff.

- All sales for this Semi-Annual Clearance will be for cash only or your credit card. All alterations are extra.

IS IT ALWAYS THE PARENTS' FAULT?

ASK THEM YOURSELF

FROM THE "ASK" EDITORS

LOS ANGELES — Victor Mature, who will be 69 on Jan. 29, clearly has his priorities in the right place. When asked to play Samson's father in the TV movie Samson and Delilah (Antony Hamilton is set for the lead), Mature, who starred as the best-tressed strong man in the 1949 movie, knew just what to say: "I'd play Samson's mother if the money were right."... Producer Allan (La Cage Aux Folles) Carr is considering Tony Franciosa and former talk-show host Mike Douglas for the leads in the West Coast version of the hit Broadway musical. If cast, Franciosa will be mincing in the footsteps of his Name of the Game TV co-star, Gene Barry, who plays the drag queen's lover in the Broadway Cage.... With that TV debut in The Dollmaker under her belt (and set to air in the spring), Jane Fonda will return to the big screen in Old Money, adapted from the novel by Lacey (Closing Time: The True Story of the Goodbar Murder) Fosburgh.... Producer David Wolper has Jane Seymour in mind to play the empress of France in his eight-hour ABC miniseries, Napoleon and Josephine.... Chuck Barris, who's been busy writing Confessions of a Dangerous Mind (An Unauthorized Autobiography), is working on a new version of his Newlywed Game for ABC. If it's all the same to you, Chuck, we'll just take a toaster.

—Robert Windeler

WASHINGTON — Two years ago Jackie O. was in court to stop paparazzo Ron Galella from snapping at her heels. Recently, she had another day before the judge, this time because of a lawsuit against haute couturier Christian Dior, who has been using a Jackie look-alike to peddle perfume and clothing. The identity of the daring double: Barbara Reynolds, 45, a mother of two and the appointments secretary to Representative Carlos J. Moorhead (R-Calif.). Onassis contends that the ads violate her civil rights by using her likeness to endorse a product without her consent. Still, Reynolds remains one of Jackie's biggest fans — although they've never met. "I didn't go to court," Reynolds explains, "because no one knew for sure when Mrs. Onassis was going to show up. Otherwise I'd have been there, too."

—Kathleen Maxa and Jane Ottenberg

NEW YORK — Tennis star Bjorn Borg quickly learned that retirement is no match for the active life. "I knew that one day — in my late 30's, perhaps — I'd succumb to boredom. But not in my 20's," says Borg, 27. He's currently looking for something that he'll love as much as tennis, but is having a deuce of a time finding it.... Britain's Prince Andrew — better known as Randy Andy, partly because of his exploits with porn-again "actress" Koo Stark — had an interesting request for theater producer Breck Wall, who offered the Prince an introduction to the actress of his choice. "Do you know Miss Shirley Temple?" Andy asked eagerly. "I've been a fan of hers for years."... Diet doyen Dr. Robert Atkins has put his sheepdog, Bumbles, on a strict regimen: It seems that patients visiting the doctor's office leave their food behind, and it goes to the dog. How about a leash on his appetite? —Anita Summer

LINDA BLAIR

Of The Exorcist fame

Is it true you're into ESP and spiritualism? —L.M., Lowell, Mass.

Yes, but not the kind of stuff in the movie The Exorcist. Six months ago, my terrier, Sheba, ran through an unlatched door and never came back. I took out ads and put up posters offering rewards — no luck. As a last resort, I got in touch with a professional mental telepathist. She told me that Sheba is living happily with an elderly lady in Los Angeles and recently gave birth to two puppies. She didn't tell me the address where my dog lives but gave me the area. I believe her. At least I know Sheba is alive and well.

HALSTON

Fashion designer

I'm all in favor of it. The trends are so varied now that it is quite proper to do your own thing anyway. Of course, if the current styles are fun and work for you, then join in. Fashion is highly individualistic and depends on a person's life style. It's a reflection of personality; one makes a statement through it. In other words, the blue-jean fashions make you part of the jean world. People should wear whatever makes them feel comfortable.

Announcing Avon's Big

Bigger Earnings Than Ever

Avon just announced a change—a real improvement to the Representative Earning Plan. In fact, it's the biggest earning opportunity Avon has offered in 98 years. So, there's never been a better time to be an Avon Representative. Now I can earn more money than ever before. And in more ways than ever before.

Not only can I earn more on sales, but now I can greatly increase those earnings just by sponsoring new Avon Representatives. And to help me take full advantage of this opportunity, Avon is making better training available, too. Because they know that better training means higher earnings. And that's what the new Avon is all about.

New Sponsorship Plan

I'd recommend selling Avon to anyone who wants to earn good money. Especially now. With their new earning opportunity, if I personally sponsor a new sales Representative to Avon, I'll make an extra 5% on everything she purchases from Avon. For as long as we're both Representatives.

And that bonus comes directly from Avon, not from the earnings of the person I sponsor. So while I help someone else by selling her on the benefits of the new Avon, I benefit, too.

Your Own Business

With Avon, the way I want to work is my own business. Because it is my own business. I'm the boss. Which means I work how and when I like. The harder I work, the more I earn.

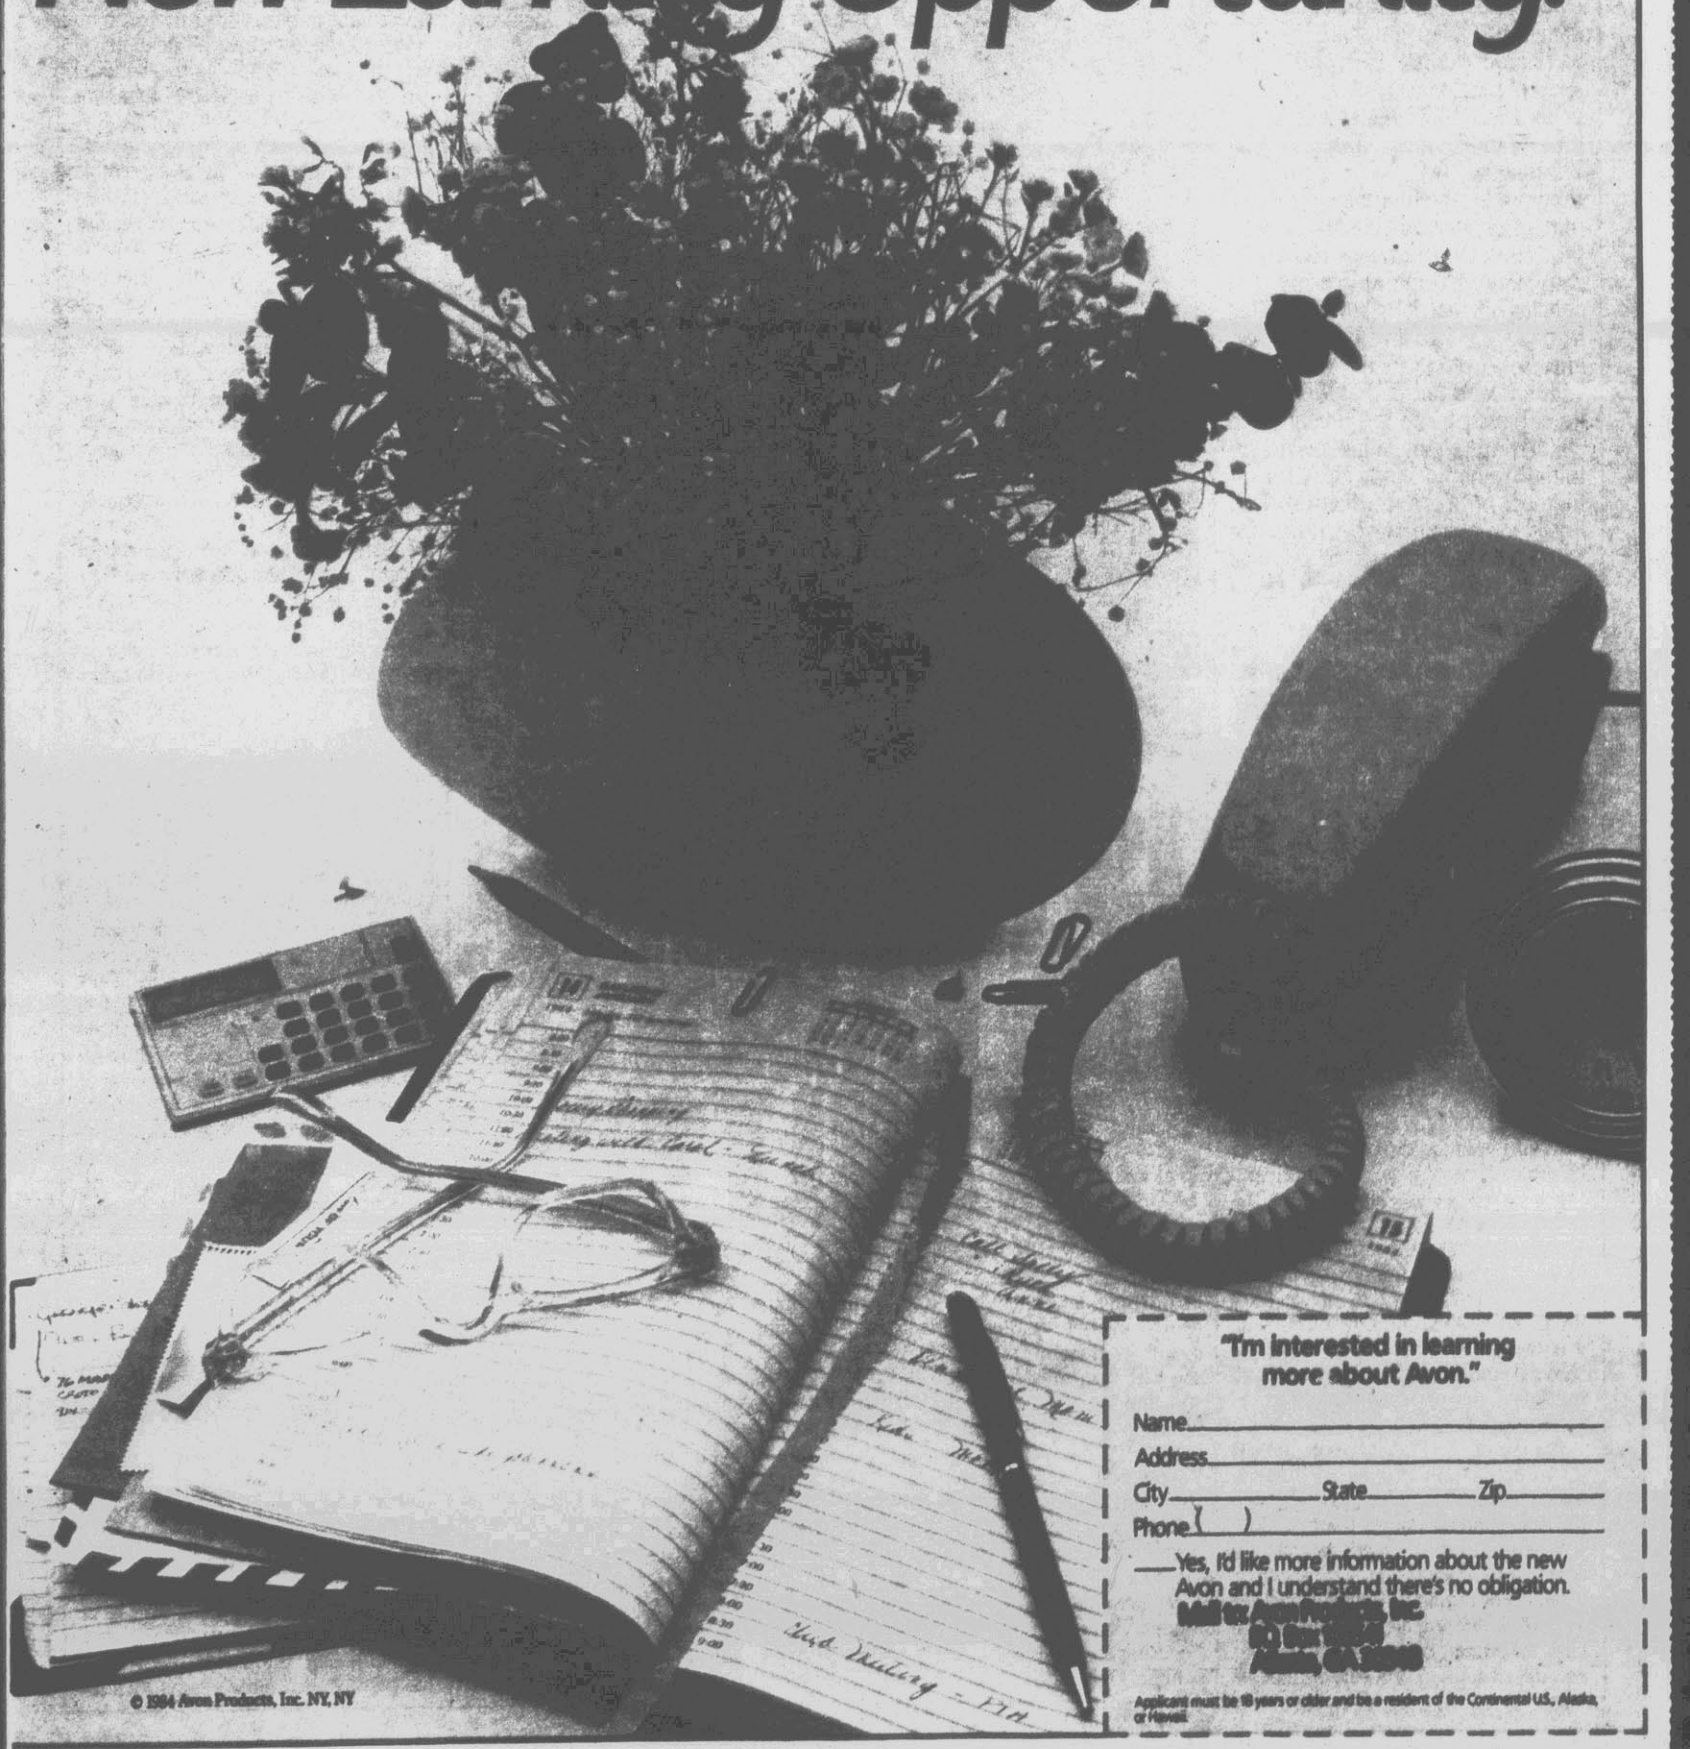

I'm putting a lot of effort behind this job. But the rewards are worth it. And those rewards aren't just monetary. My husband is behind me all the way. My whole family, in fact. They're really proud of me. But more importantly, I'm proud of myself.

If you think selling Avon is the opportunity you've been looking for, ask your local Avon Representative to be your sponsor. Or fill out the coupon and send it to us. Of course, there's no obligation.

When children turn to crime, the traditional view has it that it must be the parents' fault. But are there times when parents are not to blame? The answer, according to clinical psychologist Stanton E. Samenow, is an emphatic yes. Dr. Samenow studied the career patterns of hard-core criminals for eight years at Saint Elizabeth's Hospital — the world-famous institution in Washington, D.C. — as part of its Program for the Investigation of Criminal Behavior. In conjunction with the late Dr. Samuel Yochelson, Samenow reluctantly reached the conclusion that it is simpleminded to point an accusing finger at parents, or even society in general, without considering that there is little parents can do to prevent some children from gravitating toward criminal thinking and behavior. A member of President Reagan's Task Force on Victims of Crime, Dr. Samenow has evolved a point of view that seems likely to trigger a furious national debate.

Ed Soyka

A CONTROVERSIAL LOOK AT YOUNG CRIMINALS

IS IT ALWAYS THE PARENTS' FAULT?

BY STANTON E. SAMENOW, Ph.D.

Since the late 19th century, conventional wisdom has held that society is more to blame for crime than the criminal is. Sociologists have tended to assert that the inner-city youngster responds with rage to a society that has pushed the American dream beyond his or her reach. The suburban delinquent is also regarded as a victim — of intense pressure to compete, of materialism, of parents who neglect him, push him to grow up too fast or are overly protective.

Every social institution has been blamed for contributing to crime. Schools have been singled out for alienating youngsters who don't fit the academic mold. Churches have been accused of not providing leadership to wayward youth and to the community at large. Newspapers, television and movies have been charged with glamorizing crime.

Economic hard times have also been associated with an increase in lawbreaking. But then, so have good times. When the economy is booming, it is thought that the gap between the "haves" and "have nots" widens and the latter, out of resentment, turn to violent action.

But current sociological explanations for crime, plausible as they may seem, are simplistic. If they were correct, we'd have far more criminals than we do.

When I began my work as a clinical research psychologist at St. Elizabeth's, I believed criminal behavior was a symptom of buried, unresolved conflicts that stemmed from early traumas and deprivation of one sort or another. Before long, however, I had to unlearn nearly everything that I had been taught in graduate school. I began to see that crime resides within the person and is "caused" by the way he thinks, not by his environment. In fact, research conducted by my colleague Dr. Yochelson and I showed that criminals think differently from responsible people, and that these thinking patterns show up in early childhood. If we are to combat crime in this country, what must change is the way the offender views himself and the world. Focusing on forces outside of the felon is futile. Only when we understand the criminal mind can we be effective in helping to change some of these people.

Criminals come from all kinds of families and neighborhoods. Most poor people are law-abiding, and most kids from broken homes are not delinquents. Children may bear the scars of neglect and deprivation for life, but most do not become criminals. The environment does have an effect, but individuals perceive and react to similar conditions of life very differently.

Although law-breakers frequently claim to have been rejected by parents, neighbors, schools and employers, rarely does the felon explain why he was rejected. Even as a young child, he may have been sneaky and defiant, and the older he grew, the more he may have lied to his parents, stole and destroyed their property and threatened them. He may have made life at home unbearable as he turned even innocuous requests into declarations of war. In some cases, it is the criminal who rejects his parents rather than vice versa.

The school does not reject the antisocial youngster until he is impossible to deal with. Many of these children have no use for school whatsoever. For them, school is boring, its requirements stupid, the subjects meaningless. The youngster predisposed to crime rejects his school life the same way he rejects his home life.

The media have been criticized for making crime enticing by glorifying both specific crimes and criminals. Neither scientific studies nor Congressional hearings have shed much light on how much the media contribute to violent behavior. And the economic adversity which has been blamed for encouraging crime affects us all. The responsible person reacts to economic pressures by sacrifice and hard work. What of the observation that a disproportionate number of people incarcerated for crimes are both poor and from minority groups? This is less a commentary on those groups than on the processes by which the criminal justice system arrests, adjudicates and confines. For a more serious crime, the person with money and connections may get probation, while the disadvantaged offender is imprisoned.

Most psychiatrists, psychologists, counselors and social workers would not agree with my conclusions. They have promulgated the view that a human organism comes into the world like a lump of clay to be shaped by external forces. This approach renders us all victims of social conditioning, however, and, what is worse, provides all sorts of easy rationales for anti-social behavior. If your child has problems, you will be faulted for your child-rearing practices, whatever they were. If you were strict, you will be told your child has been affected by your harshness. If you were permissive, you will be accused of having been too indulgent. Worst of all, you might be tagged as having been inconsistent, something of which every parent is guilty to an extent.

In varying degrees, all human beings suffer trauma as they grow up. But if a domineering mother or an inadequate father produces delinquent children, why is it that most of these children are not criminals?

Interviews with criminals who have been apprehended invariably reveal tales of horrors about their early lives. By portraying themselves as victims.

To be sure, some of society's chronic lawbreakers do come from volatile, conflict-ridden families in which they suffered abuse. But that is usually only part of the story. In their accounts, they relate only what others did to them, omitting what they did to make a bad situation even worse. A felon, for example, may describe beatings by a maniacal father, but not tell what he did to provoke such treatment. This is not to defend harshness in discipline. Rather, it is to suggest that we ought not limit our inquiries to what parents have done to their children, but strive also to determine what children have done to their parents.

The criminal will contend that his parents did not understand him and failed to communicate with him while he was growing up. If we could be invisible observers in the home of such a youngster, we might reach a different conclusion: He shuts his parents out of his life because he doesn't want anyone to know what he is up to.

Though delinquent youngsters come from all social classes and from all kinds of homes, they are strikingly alike in some of the behavior patterns they display. Each thinks and acts differently from responsible members of his own family. At an early age, each begins making a series of choices to live a life he considers exciting, a life in which he is determined to do whatever he wants, a life in which he ignores restraints and eventually turns against his family. Such delinquent youngsters, though certainly not all, choose the life they want.

As early as the preschool years, patterns begin to unfold that become part of a criminal life style. As a child, the delinquent is a dynamo of energy, a being with an iron will, insistent upon taking charge, expecting others to indulge his every whim. He takes risks, becomes embroiled in difficulties and then demands to be bailed out and forgiven. No matter how much his parents try to understand and guide him, they are thwarted at every turn. They assume that this waywardness is merely a stage of development and therefore do not perceive that this is a pattern that is evolving. This "stage" never

Whether you've got a sweetheart in Stockholm or a daughter in Dublin, your post office has the perfect way for you to stay in touch.

We'll help you send letters, packages and postcards to virtually any country, on almost any timetable, for the lowest rates in the world. Use an aerogramme, the lightweight letter and envelope in one, to any place but Canada and Mexico. Or Air Parcel Post for heavier items.

And if you're in a hurry to contact the Continent, use International Express Mail service.

How to make sure your letter makes the grade.

By addressing a few little details, you can help us do what matters most to you—deliver the mail. Make sure that your address and return address include P.O. Box numbers, apartment numbers and, of course, the correct ZIP Code.

These may seem like little points, but when you consider that the Post Office handles over 375 million pieces of mail every day, you'll see how your efforts can make a big difference.

ends, however. The parents become the first in the criminal's string of victims.

As an adolescent, the criminal has contempt not only for his parents' advice and authority but also for the way they live, no matter what their social and economic circumstances. Many a teen-ager adopts a critical, if not disparaging, view of his parents' life style. After all, one task of adolescence is to evaluate what one has been taught and has subsequently internalized. But most of those who flirt with danger do not become outlaws. They discover that breaking away from legal and moral restraints exacts too high a price. For a criminal, it's just the opposite.

When there are other children in the family, they are often victimized by their delinquent sibling, who bullies them, helps himself to their belongings and "pins the rap on them" when any discipline is about to be meted out. This behavior is far more extreme than the rivalry that usually exists among siblings.

Once the personality of the criminally-inclined child takes hold, his parents become gripped by a gnawing fear that something terrible is going to happen; every time the phone rings, their hearts sink. As their concerns mount, parents try new ways to modify the youngster's misbehavior. They restrict his privileges, but end up suffering more than the child, who by this time has developed the skills to circumvent the new rules or flout them. In fact, it is a relief to the parents when they can bring themselves to lift the restrictions: There are fewer battles then.

In many of these families, corporal punishment is an unpalatable solution because the parents find it just doesn't work. The child absorbs the physical punishment to show that he can take it; he still does as he pleases. Sometimes even the parent who believes he will never strike his child finds his patience so depleted that he lashes out in frustration only to feel intense guilt later.

No matter how much upheaval there is in the family, and no matter how serious the wayward child's offenses, for a long time his parents believe that he is basically good. As the child enters adolescence, however, they become perturbed because the frequency of serious incidents starts increasing. As one criminal's mother told us: "The cute gave way to the unbelievable."

Few parents give up on the child. They do what they can: spend more time with him, enroll him in a different school, support his joining organized sports and clubs, send him to a counselor, seek counseling themselves. In grasping at possible solutions, the soul-searching goes on. Mothers and fathers blame themselves, each other and people and events outside the family.

There comes a time, however, when these parents have to face the fact that they are powerless to change the course of events. "I'm learning to let go," said one father. "I don't want to tie my life to this problem. It's like a very ill relative: You prepare yourself for death."

The criminal child knows that one way to be free of hassle is to strike out on his own. However, such children usually think things through enough to realize that if they run away, their parents will summon the police and they will be caught and brought back only to have more restrictions piled on. Parents often wish they could let their child leave and live the way he says he wants to. But when he is under 17, the responsibility is theirs.

A major disagreement may arise when a delinquent youngster does become old enough to live independently. The parents may want the child to leave but fear they'll force him into doing something drastic if they try to push him out.

The final break rarely occurs. Some sort of tie, no matter how tenuous, is maintained between parents and the very difficult child. Some parents finally decide that confinement of their offspring is necessary both to bring him to grips with reality and to protect innocent people. Said one mother, "It's the most horrible thing in the world to say: I am afraid of my own son. I'm afraid I'll go to bed some night and never wake up in the morning."

A parent who reads this may be alarmed if he has a child who is showing any of the behavior just described. But before concluding that there is a budding criminal in the family, the parent should ask himself whether his youngster is showing isolated instances of the behavior, or whether he is evidencing patterns over time that are expanding and intensifying. Not every child who swipes a few coins from a cookie jar or steals a candy bar from a store becomes a criminal.

The reader may conclude that I have let all parents off the hook, no matter what their inadequacies. This is not so. Parents who are abusive, neglectful, inconsistent and psychologically disturbed are likely to have an adverse impact on their offspring. This is not to say, however, that they will invariably produce criminals. Fortunately for society, most youngsters who suffer neglect or abuse do not become felons. Furthermore, it is striking to observe that some criminals are the sons and daughters of parents who are devoted, stable and responsible. Unfortunately, the best efforts of parents to help and correct this kind of child can and usually do fail. As it turns out, the parents are usually the victims, the child the victimizer — not the other way around. FW

THE LAW

WINTER SPILLS: WHOSE FAULT ARE THEY ANYWAY?

By Gary Fidel

It seems as if you can't get through a winter without it happening at least once: You're walking down an icy sidewalk, when suddenly your feet fly out from under you and you fall. If you're lucky, you stand up and walk away. But some slip-ups cause downfalls that require medical treatment — and all the attendant expenses.

Milton Knight Jr.

Legally, when a person slips and falls as a result of negligence, he can recover monetary damages from the party found liable by a jury for the condition that caused him to fall. For example, if you slipped on a wet spot inside a store or restaurant, the proprietor may have been negligent for not wiping it up. Similarly, if you visit a neighbor's house and fall on your back after stepping on their son's roller skate, the neighbor may be found liable for your injury.

But ice and snow are a different story. They're considered natural conditions, and generally you can't recover damages if such factors cause you to fall on someone's property, whether it's a business or a private home. However, if the owner somehow aggravated the naturally dangerous conditions by some act of his own — such as permitting the snow to accumulate to the point where it created an unreasonable risk — there may be cause for a suit.

Even if a property owner is negligent in cleaning up ice and snow, in many states a victim of such a fall may not be able to recover damages unless he belongs to a legally defined class of people called invitees.

Who are invitees? Assume that you drive to a business district to return a pair of shoes. It's just after sunset and there is a light snowfall. You park at the end of the lot maintained by the shoe store and get out, stepping onto the new snow. Unfortunately, lighting is poor and the store has neglected to clear away the ice underneath the snow. As you take your first steps, you slip and fall, breaking your back. Since the store has "invited" shoppers to park in the lot, it has a legal duty to make that area reasonably safe for your use. Thus, you are an invitee and can ask a jury for damages for the injury suffered in the fall.

What if you intend to go to another store, but because there are no more parking places in the public lot, you pull into the shoe-store lot, ignoring the well-lit sign that says the area is for customers only, and that anyone else parking there is trespassing. If you slip and fall, you will not be able to recover damages from the store, because in the eyes of the law you are a trespasser. The owner does not have to maintain his lot in a safe condition for trespassers: They have no right to be on the property in the first place.

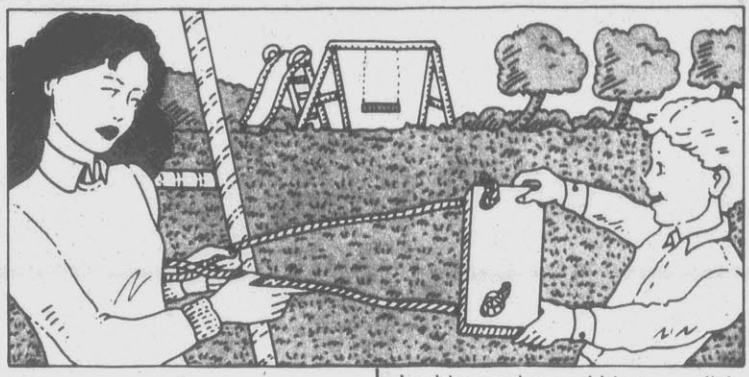

If you should slip and fall, be sure to follow these suggestions:

- Don't shrug off the accident out of embarrassment. An injury may not be apparent for several days.
- Take the names, addresses and phone numbers of anyone who observed the accident.
- Have someone take pictures of the area where the fall took place as soon as possible. Timely photographs will prove invaluable to you if you decide to pursue a negligence claim.
- Contact your attorney immediately — not to mention your physician. FW

CHILDREN

AVOIDING THE TEARY TUG-OF-WAR

Teresa Anderko

By Dr. Thomas Lickona

Parents hear it all the time: Reason with your children. The question, however, has remained the same for decades: How?

The problem with reasoning is the way we do it. Too often it's parents who do the reasoning, not their children. How can you get the kids in on the act? Simple. Ask questions.

When we ask kids questions — "What will happen if you keep that up?"; "How would you feel if somebody did that to you?" — we capture their attention and get the wheels turning. A question, by its very nature, requires a child to think.

You can use questions to help kids see that it's in their own interest to cooperate. Suppose you've taken your 5-year-old to the playground, and now it's time to go home. Your child says, "I don't wanna go!" Here's how questioning could help you avoid a tug-of-war ending in tears:

Parent: If you cry and make a scene when it's time to leave, will I want to come to the playground when you ask the next time?

Child: No.

Parent: So what should you do now?

Child: Leave.

Questions also help children develop a moral imagination — an ability to see the consequences their behavior has on others.

The parents of 7-year-old John learned from the school-bus driver that he and two other boys were throwing stones into the road as cars passed by the bus stop. John's parents asked questions that got him to do the thinking about the possible consequences of his behavior.

"He'd get hurt."

John promised his parents that he would never throw stones again, and he kept his promise.

A single-parent father explains how questioning helped him defuse a highly emotional situation involving his teenage son. "I've talked frankly with my three sons about girls and sex, about what it means to treat a girl like a person, to respect her feelings and not exploit a situation.

"We've also had a clear agreement that they could bring girls to the house when I wasn't there, as long as they respected my feelings about what was appropriate behavior. One night I came home and found my son, Art, involved with his girlfriend in a way that was way out of bounds. They were embarrassed. I was furious. I told Art to take Carol home and that I'd talk with him in the morning.

"I was still just as angry when morning came. He came into the kitchen as I was fixing breakfast. I took a deep breath: 'Art, why am I upset with you?'

"'I know Dad. You trusted me to respect the agreement we had. I have no excuse, and I don't blame you for being mad.' After that I felt calmer, and we had a good, long talk."

Asking a question enabled this father to control his feelings. It also gave Art a chance to show awareness of his father's feelings — and to make up in part for the insensitivity he'd shown by violating a trust.

Questioning doesn't always work, and it has diminishing returns if overused. But used wisely, it can help achieve a long-range goal of parenting: to get kids to develop and use moral reasoning. When we ask our children questions that require them to reason, we help them develop a conscience — the habit of asking themselves about right and wrong. FW

GETTING PERSONAL WITH

MERYL STREEP

Eva Sereny/Sygma

Meryl Streep's performance in her most recent film, Silkwood, has the critics in almost unanimous agreement: Streep has done it again. The raves include praise not only for her acting but also for her uncanny ability to alter her physical presence in one role after another. She was blond and sensual for the Oscar-winning performance in Sophie's Choice; pale, gaunt and red-headed in The French Lieutenant's Woman; and now as Karen Silkwood, the plutonium-plant worker who died mysteriously in 1974, she's a brassy, hip-swinging, dark-haired Oklahoma girl.

In person, Streep is reserved, modest, soft-spoken... but luminescent. Wearing clogs and a new green suit (she recently gave birth to her second child, Mary Willa), she spoke with FAMILY WEEKLY Executive Editor Kate White about the personal choices she's made as an actress.

White: You only do a couple of interviews for each movie you're in. Why is that?

Streep: I don't really like doing a lot of promotion because I never know what to talk about. With somebody like me it's tough, because I'm sort of boring — except for this incredibly fascinating career I have. Day to day, you know, I'm just like everybody else.

Q: Would you prefer not to do any publicity?

Streep: I would prefer if somebody would do it for me, sort of this Meryl Streep clone who would be very flashy and catch the public's eye, and basically, I wouldn't really have to be her. She would just promote the movies.

Q: Being an actress doesn't have anything to do with being a movie star, does it?

Streep: That's true, they don't have anything to do with each other. And the better you are at one, concentrating on your work, very often the worse you are at promoting the other — because your interest is in the next project you're doing or saving yourself up and gathering your life around you in the moments you're not working, because the work itself is so intense, it takes so much time.

Q: You've said that you enjoyed acting in college plays but couldn't see making a career of it at the time. At what point did you make a commitment to acting?

Streep: I remember a very snowy, beautiful day up in Woodstock, Vt., which was where I lived right after graduation from college. I was waiting on tables and sort of working with a little theater company, perfectly nice people. We did some interesting things and some dreadful things. I woke up one morning, and I just felt that I wanted to be where people were doing a little bit better than we were doing there. I knew this was nice and fun, an easy existence and a pleasant one, but it wasn't good enough.

Q: Had you fantasized about being a movie star when you were younger?

Streep: I think every kid who sees a movie wishes that. My little boy [Henry, 5] wishes he were Elliot in E.T. Certainly, there's great ego gratification in seeing your work just huge, and somehow, emotions seem bigger in the movies, stances seem more significant. It's part of why people love movies, I think. It makes them see that certain characters are great and makes them glad to be human.

Streep: No, otherwise why do it? I go to all the daily rushes; I have to feel like I'm doing something. And it's another thing you can put your hand on. In the theater it just disappears. Everybody comes back and says, "That was good," and you think, "What was?" It's just this ephemeral shadow or something. In film you can actually see it.

Q: Do you watch your

"Christ turns me on but..."

"Christ turns me on but the Church turns me off!" It's a nice phrase. And no doubt many use it sincerely.

But the idea that Christ can be split from the Church is totally false. Christ is the Head, the Scriptures assure us, and the Church is His body. Anyone who divides them, therefore, is wrong about Christ. And wrong about the Church.

So, maybe it's time to put away the nice phrases. Time to ask ourselves if it is the real Christ we are serving. If it is the real Christ who turns us on. Or is it our own romantic version of Christ, cut down to comfortable size?

One way to see through the fog is to go back to the Scriptures and rediscover how the Church is foreshadowed in the Old Testament and realized in the New, and how Christ is at the very heart of the Church both in shadow and in reality. EXCITING DIET BREAKTHROUGH!

Lose Pounds & Inches WHILE YOU SLEEP!

LIPOGENE-GH™—The OVERNIGHT DIET Sensation!

NO MORE FAT!
NO MORE FLAB!
NO MORE CELLULITE!
NO MORE DIETING!

FACT: LIPOGENE-GH™ IS NOT REALLY A "DIET" IN THE TRUE SENSE OF THE WORD. THIS POWERFUL, FAT EMULSIFIER ACTUALLY ATTACKS AND DISSOLVES UNSIGHTLY POCKETS OF EXCESS FATTY TISSUE AND DOES IT OVERNIGHT WHILE YOU SLEEP!

A DIET SO EASY EVEN YOU WON'T FAIL THIS TIME. NO CALORIE COUNTING, NOTHING TO MIX, NOTHING ELSE TO BUY, NO STRENUOUS EXERCISE, NO BORING FOODS, AND NO SUPERMARKET DIET MIRACLES—JUST TAKE LIPOGENE-GH™ AN HOUR BEFORE YOU GO TO BED AND WAKE UP THE FOLLOWING MORNING SLIMMER, TRIMMER AND BETTER LOOKING THAN YOU WERE THE NIGHT BEFORE. THERE IS NOTHING ELSE TO DO AND NO OTHER DIET TO BUY!

LIPOGENE-GH™ Is Finally Available!

The LIPOGENE-GH™ compound is so new, so revolutionary, it has the entire diet industry buzzing. Why? Because this incredible compound can make very ordinary "diets" obsolete. For the first time you don't have to diet to lose excess fat. You'll be thinner and your body will be firmer overnight!

How Can The LIPOGENE-GH™ Compound Be So Easy To Use Yet So Visibly Effective?

Doctors and scientists have known for many years that the release of the "GH FACTOR" is responsible for accelerated fat metabolism (the burning of fat for energy) and the production of youthful, firm muscle tissue. As we approach the 25 to 30 age bracket, the release of the "GH FACTOR" diminishes sharply. Research now believes this could be the single most important reason why after that age bracket you tend to gain weight (in the form of fat) much faster and keep it on a lot longer. To combat this fat buildup there is now this exclusive LIPOGENE-GH™ Formula.

NOTE: Because METABOLITE 2050™ is an extremely powerful and effective weight-loss compound check with your physician to make sure you are in overall good health.

P.S. When you are visiting Florida, we cordially invite you to stop by our offices and retail outlet to say hello and see what is being planned for future release.

LIPOGENE-GH WORKS FROM WITHIN TO DISSOLVE FAT, OVERNIGHT!

Amazing new breakthrough formula stimuates the release of "GH FACTOR" (growth hormone). Targets your body's "Fat Storage Pockets" and literally dissolves them while you sleep! Wake up slimmer, firmer and happier each and every morning! LIPOGENE-GH™ will do all this quickly and effectively or it costs you absolutely nothing.

LIPOGENE-GH™ Works While You Sleep!

The most incredible aspect of the LIPOGENE-GH™ compound is that it works while you sleep. The LIPOGENE-GH™ compound acts overnight to begin its biologic attack on pockets of stored, unsightly fat (you know where they are; around the waist, hips, buttocks, thighs and arms) literally burning them away AUTOMATICALLY! Now, all you need to do to shed unsightly pounds and inches is remember to take your LIPOGENE-GH™ tablet an hour or two before you go to bed at night. THAT IS IT! No more starvation diets, no more fad diets, no more foul-tasting powder diets, no more supermarket pills.

No More Exercise, No More Calorie Counting, No More Books, Suits or Supermarket Miracle Pills!

This "Non-Diet", superstrength, overnight fat emulsifier is so easy to use, so fool-proof that even you WILL NOT FAIL THIS TIME. Just think of it, if you can just remember to take your LIPOGENE-GH™ tablet about two hours before you go to bed, your diet problems will be over. You'll wake up thinner, healthier and looking much better than you did the night before—and that's guaranteed!

The Exclusive LIPOGENE-GH™ Compound Is Laboratory Certified.

In the next few months you will see more and more products that claim to be "GH FACTOR" activators. We at the Robertson-Taylor Company, a Division of Intra-Medic Formulations, Inc., want you to know that just because they may contain similar ingredients that does not necessarily mean they will work the same way. The basic raw materials are expensive to produce and must be prepared properly to stimulate the release of the "GH FACTOR". To ensure the proper amount and correct proportion necessary to activate the "GH FACTOR", order LIPOGENE-GH™ today! By no means are we suggesting that all other products in this new classification are worthless, but to be absolutely sure, order LIPOGENE-GH™, laboratory certified and guaranteed by the Robertson-Taylor Company.

UNCONDITIONAL MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!

As with all Robertson-Taylor Company's formulations, LIPOGENE-GH™ is covered by our no-nonsense money back guarantee. Our guarantee contains no fine print or misleading terms. Simply stated, if you use our fine LIPOGENE-GH™ fat eliminating compound and do not see incredible overnight results, results you would have, until now, thought impossible, just return the empty container (we would like you to use all of this fine formula) for a full, prompt, no questions asked, total refund (including the $2.00 shipping and handling). Again, let us restate it for any reason you are not totally satisfied with LIPOGENE-GH™, it will cost you absolutely nothing.

NOTICE: DO NOT ACCEPT SUBSTITUTES OR LOOK ALIKES!

LIPOGENE-GH™ is a precise blend of free form amino acids. When taken before going to bed, LIPOGENE-GH™ will stimulate the release of "GH FACTOR" during the first few hours of sleep. You must understand that the release of the "GH FACTOR" will only occur when the combination of free form amino acids are in the correct proportions.

Streep with Kurt Russell in Silkwood: "It was a wonderful, complex part."

movies when they come on TV?
Streep: Well, certain movies don't work on the little, bitty screen. It just seems so puny, and I sort of like to hold the memories. They're significant to my life somehow. Now, that's not to say all of them don't work. Kramer vs. Kramer worked great on TV.

Q: Do you ever "sneak" into a movie theater to see one of your films?
Streep: I saw Silkwood with a real audience, and that's the first time I've done that. I never wanted to do it before because, even if I'm proud of a movie, I'll worry that people will laugh or say, "Oh, isn't that stupid?" And then I'd crumble inside. I can have my own feelings about what I like or don't like, what I think is good or what just doesn't make it, and keep it to myself. But to hold yourself open to ridicule is really hard, and in the movies people do talk to the screen.

Q: While success was getting closer, was there a point when you sat down and said, "O.K, I'm going to have to accept what I'm getting into"?
Streep: No. I thought I could control what I was getting into. I really didn't know that it goes so far out of your control. And in my case, there was all this hyperbole that got out of hand. I didn't say I was the greatest actress ever born into the universe, but suddenly I was defending that as if I'd postulated it as a position. It was absurd.

Q: When you were first breaking into movies, theater producer Joseph Papp said one frustration for you might be dealing with the compromises that come up in the movie business. Have you had to make compromises?
Streep: Why do people have to make compromises? If you're supporting eight children and there's no other way but to say, "Yes, I have to do this," I could understand that. But I don't buy it. People are in the movies they are in because they want to be there — nobody's holding a gun to anybody's head. If you don't want to do it, you don't have to do it.

Q: You wrote part of your character's courtroom speech in Kramer vs. Kramer. Do you feel actors should be allowed to do that more often?
Streep: Oh God, it's not what I want to do at all, no. I'd rather have it written first. I don't want to have to invent it at the same time that I represent it. I like the finite responsibilities associated with acting. Otherwise it's not only an extra burden, but it also has a distancing effect on you if you're thinking, "How would this fit into the rest of the story?" That's not your business in a way. Some people do it: act, write the movie they act in or direct it. I have a lot of admiration for them, because I know it's really tough to do that.

Q: Did you decide to make Silkwood because you wanted to do something with a message?
Streep: Well, I think everything has a social message. Risky Business has a social message, whether it intends one or not. And I think that as smart, responsible people in a free society, we have a great opportunity to raise all these problematic issues. But none of this is why I was drawn to Silkwood. My first priority was obviously, and like everything else, just ego gratification. Karen Silkwood was a wonderful part. She was a very complex, contradictory woman, and I like the people you make a judgment about who then turn out to be a different way. That always happens to me in life: I might decide somebody's a jerk, and then I hear something terrific about him. I like those contradictions in people. I think the world is complex, and the more we realize that, the better off we'll be at solving these problems.

Streep: Yes, usually. Even in Sophie's Choice, which was probably my most involving role. Silkwood had a hold on me that was quite strong, but it haunted me rather than interfered with my coming home and making dinner and stuff. It's always a relief to go home and forget about it.

Q: Did it bother your little boy to hear you speaking with a Polish accent when you were making Sophie's Choice?
Streep: Oh, he didn't like it. I had my teacher come to the house before we started shooting, and we would speak Polish to each other, and he would say, "No — no Poshish, Mommy — no."

Q: Do you like being a mom?
Streep: Yeah, I do. I do. I'll see if it all works out. God — I can't believe I'm doing this. It's really very, very difficult, and I applaud anybody who comes through it unscathed. FW

GUARDING YOUR CHILD'S FUTURE

By Kate Kelly

If you're a parent, one of the most important reasons for drawing up a will now is to name a guardian for your children. After all, explains New York attorney Paul Franken, you're the best judge of who should take care of them in the unlikely event that you're not there to do so yourself.

Choosing a guardian is a difficult, emotional task, but with a little knowledge of the law, it can be made easier. First, there are two major responsibilities involved in taking care of children whose parents have died. One is to raise them — to see to their physical and emotional well-being. The other is to manage the estate so that their financial needs are met while they are growing up.

You may be relieved to know that you need not look for a loving nurturer who is also good at managing money. While the job can be done by one individual, you may also appoint one person to raise the children, while you select another to be conservator of the estate (sometimes called a guardian of the property), who will manage their finances. Indeed, the children may benefit by having two separate individuals looking out for their welfare.

Who Should Raise the Children?

"Ideally, you want to find someone who will follow your traditions and respect your intentions for the children," says Jeremy Mack, M.D., a clinical associate professor of psychiatry at New York University Medical Center. "But the most important thing is to look for someone who will love them and treat them well."

While the best person for the job may be a married sister or youthful grandparents who want the job, many parents are making reciprocal guardianship agreements with good friends who understand family philosophy and live in the community where the children are being raised.

"Ask the couple (one of whom you'll actually name as guardian) if they are willing to take that responsibility," continues Dr. Mack. "Then discuss with them the hopes and plans you have for your children. You may want to talk about experiences you would like them to have, or schools you want them to attend."

Is it necessary to tell the children about your decision? "It depends on their age," says Dr. Mack. "There's no practical function in telling a 3- or 4-year-old that their uncle is going to be their guardian," he explains. "Unless a single parent is very ill and there's a great risk he or she will die, it's not worth raising anxiety about it."

Frances Jetter

Also keep in mind that you need not discuss the guardian issue with anyone other than those you've selected. According to Eric Damian Kelly, an attorney in Pueblo, Colo., many parents are reluctant to make the decision because they're afraid it may cause dissension among their relatives. Since the odds are that you will live to see your children grow into adulthood, there's really no need to bring it up. But if you think there will be hurt feelings, you can have the reasons for your choice explained in the will.

Who Will Manage the Money?

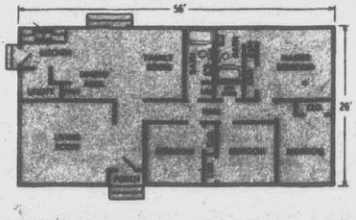

If you decide your children's interests will be best served by appointing a separate person to serve as conservator, look not only for a good money manager but also for someone who will work fairly with the guardian to see that he or she receives the money needed for raising the children.

Guardianship only lasts until a child reaches the age of majority — usually 18 — and many parents worry that an 18-year-old will spend his or her inheritance on a fancy car instead of college. If this is a concern, then the solution is to form a trust to be managed by a trustee whom you appoint. (Naming a trustee would usually replace the naming of a conservator.) Assets will be passed on to the children, but you determine at what age.

Like all other aspects of your will, the appointment of a guardian needs to be re-evaluated regularly. The couple you've originally named may get divorced, or you may decide that the people you chose when the children were toddlers are not the ones to look after them as teen-agers. FW

Let's talk about MONEY... YOUR MONEY... and building a new home.

You can save 10 years of monthly payments and as much as $58,000 on the financing of a $35,000 home. IT'S A FACT!!!

Yes, let's talk facts about building your new home ... and let's talk facts about saving your money ... LOTS of your money!!! To begin with, when you plan to build a new home and finance it, even a difference of only 1%, 2%, or 3% in the financing rate can, over the term of the mortgage, mean the savings of many, many thousands of your hard-earned dollars. This is where Jim Walter Homes can help you.

For example, would you believe that you can save more than $58,000 when you finance a $35,000 home with Jim Walter? IT'S TRUE ... WE CAN PROVE IT!!! First, while other financing rates are as much as 11%, 12%, or 13%, Jim Walter's annual percentage rate is still ONLY 10%. Secondly, your home can be paid for in only 20, rather than 30 long, long years. And third, when you compare 13% financing of a $35,000, 30-year mortgage with Jim Walter's 20-year financing of this same amount, you'll not only save more than $58,000, your monthly payment will be nearly $50.00 less, and you'll make only 240, not 360 payments. That's only 20 years, not 30 years of mortgage payments. (A glance at the chart in this ad will show you comparisons.) Furthermore, there are no "points" or closing cost ad-ons to increase what you will pay.

Jim Walter financing can be arranged FAST ... in a matter of days, rather than weeks and weeks. Then, construction of your new home can begin almost immediately, almost anywhere that you own property. We'll complete the outside and, if you like, stop right there so that you can finish the interior to suit yourself at tremendous savings. Or, we'll finish the inside, up to 90% complete. Do as much or as little as you like, but the more of the work you do for yourself ... the more sale-priced interior finishing material you can buy ... the more money you'll save. And, the more home you'll have for your money.

CROSS-COUNTRY FAVORITES

By Marilyn Hansen

When winter's chill sends you running to the warmth of your kitchen, try out some of these recipes from America's Best. This cookbook, a collection of regional and ethnic favorites, was put together to benefit the U.S. Ski Team, and we agree: Every dish is a winner.

SKIERS FRENCH TOAST

2 tablespoons corn syrup (light or dark)
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup packed brown sugar
1 loaf unsliced white bread, crusts trimmed
5 eggs
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste

1. In small saucepan, combine corn syrup, butter and brown sugar and simmer until syrupy. Pour this mixture over the bottom of a 9×13-inch casserole dish.
2. Slice the bread into 12 to 16 slices and place over sugar-butter mixture in the dish.
3. In a bowl, beat together the eggs, milk, vanilla and salt and pour over the bread. Cover dish and put in refrigerator overnight.
4. Preheat the oven to 350°. Uncover the pan and bake for 45 minutes. Serve hot or warm, or the French toast will harden in the pan. This can be reheated.

Makes 6 to 8 servings

CHICKEN PICCATA

4 whole chicken breasts, halved, skinned and boned
½ cup all-purpose flour
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
4 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon capers
1 lemon, cut into wedges

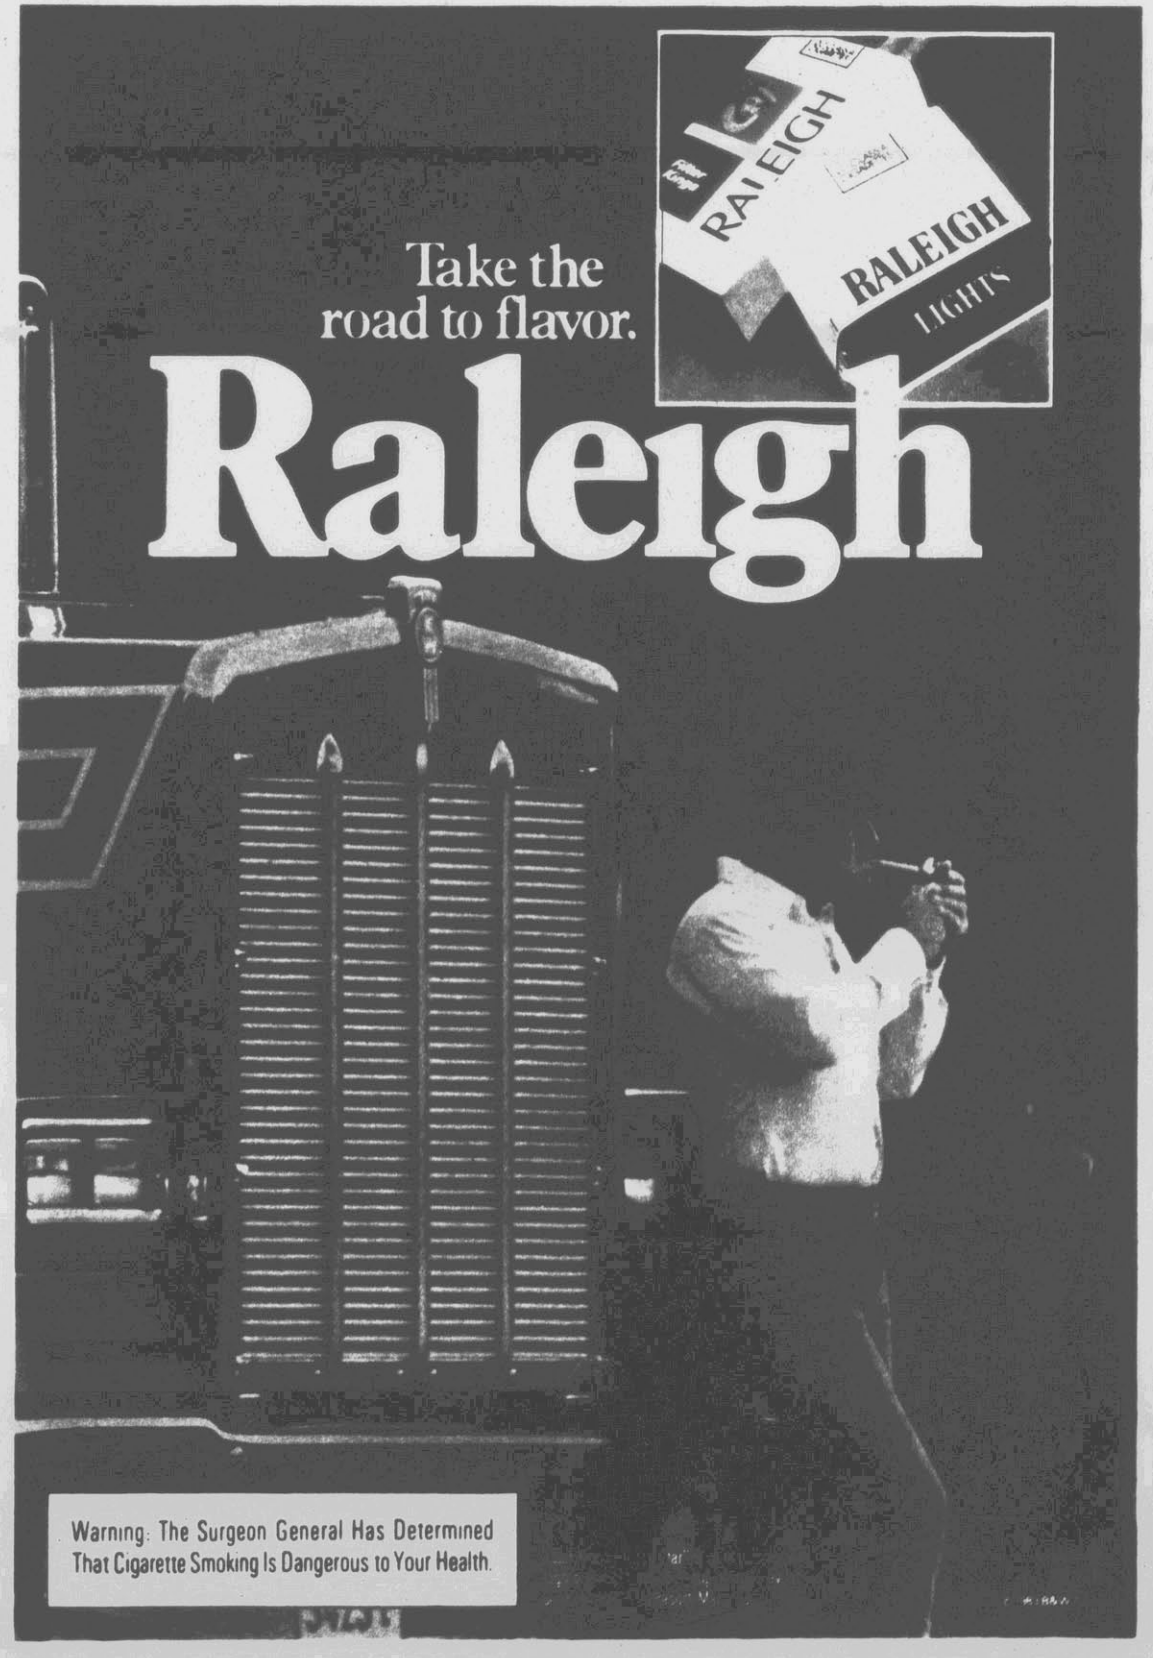

1. Dredge chicken in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Combine eggs and Parmesan cheese, then dip chicken into mixture.
2. In large skillet, heat the butter until golden brown; sauté the chicken breasts on both sides until crisp and brown, about 3 to 4 minutes on each side. Remove chicken to a warm platter.
3. Add capers to the butter and heat through. Spoon capers and butter over the chicken. Garnish with the lemon wedges and serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings

BLACKHAWK HOT-FUDGE SAUCE

1 cup butter or margarine
2 squares (1 oz. each) semisweet chocolate
1½ cups granulated sugar
½ cup unsweetened cocoa powder
1 cup heavy cream
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

1. Melt the butter and chocolate in a saucepan. Add the sugar, cocoa and cream. Stirring constantly, bring to a full, rolling boil, then add vanilla. Remove from the heat and blend well.
2. Refrigerate in a covered container and heat before using. Makes 3 cups

Horses have always been a very special part of Lanford Monroe's life. There has never been a time when she hasn't owned or worked with them. And, as an experienced equestrian, she has the most profound understanding of their inner spirit as well as their physical beauty. It's no wonder, then, that her enormous artistic talent finds its finest expression in the extraordinary bronze sculptures she creates portraying these magnificent creatures.

Now, The Franklin Gallery takes pleasure in announcing "Challenging Stallions," a compelling new work by Lanford Monroe – a work that will win her further acclaim as one of the great horse artists of our day.

In this original sculpture, two rival stallions—vying for territorial dominance—are locked in combat. The fury of their encounter is evident in the powerfully muscled haunches . . . the thrashing hooves . . . the thrust of their proud heads. All portrayed with stunning realism — the quality most highly valued by knowledgeable collectors of bronze horse sculpture.

To capture every detail of the artist's work, "Challenging Stallions" will be crafted in cold-cast bronze. Each piece will be individually shaped from a carefully prepared sculptor's blend of powdered bronze and resins, then meticulously hand-finished to achieve the lustrous patina that is characteristic of the finest bronzes.

This important new sculpture will be issued in a single, limited edition. It is available only from The Franklin Gallery, only by direct application and only until the end of 1984. There is a further limit of one per order. Thus, the total edition will be forever limited to the exact number of valid orders received by the final closing deadline. Thereafter, the artist's model and the casting molds will be destroyed, so that the sculpture can never be offered again.

Displayed in the home, this vibrantly life-like work will be enjoyed, admired—and talked about—by all who see it. A superb example of horse sculpture at its exciting best.

To acquire "Challenging Stallions," simply return the accompanying Advance Order Form no later than February 29, 1984. You need send no payment now. But be sure to mail your order to The Franklin Gallery, Franklin Center, PA 19091, by February 29th.

SENATOR ALAN CRANSTON

First in a Series of Interviews with 1984's Presidential Candidates

Senator Alan Cranston, one of eight announced candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination, is a former real estate broker and newspaperman from Palo Alto, Calif. He is unabashedly liberal and fiercely outspoken in his opposition to the arms race. The gaunt 69-year-old has pegged his campaign to a no-holds-barred attack on Ronald Reagan. Washington writer David J. Lynch recently asked the Senator a series of questions about social policy that FAMILY WEEKLY will also pose to the other candidates in the weeks to come.

© Bart Bartholomew/Black Star

Lynch: What do you see as the major concern of America's families?
Cranston: I think their major concern is the economy. That's the most tangible, painful, visible thing in their lives. I think apprehension over nuclear war and the arms race runs a close second — to many people, but not all. It takes a leap of the imagination to concentrate on the nuclear peril. It's much easier to realize what's going on in the economy because it affects your life every day.

Q: How do you grade President Reagan on both of those questions?
Cranston: Well, he certainly hasn't done well on nuclear arms. There's a widespread feeling that Reagan is just too prone to use force. On the economy, there are some signs of improvement, but wherever I go I ask, "How's the economy doing around here?" and I find people saying, "Not very well around here. Maybe it's improving somewhere else." The fact is that unemployment is higher than when Reagan became President.

Q: What level of aid, if any, should the Federal Government provide for day care centers?
Cranston: We can't do a lot, obviously, on new social programs or anything like that until we have the deficit in hand. But I have introduced a bill for day care, and I was the only one willing to do that when Reagan was assaulting present programs. But we need it. We need it to provide opportunities for mothers and fathers to go to work and know their children are being cared for properly. One of the causes of the so-called "feminization of poverty" is that we don't have any good day care centers, so mothers who want to work to rise above poverty can't. Not all day care requires Government expenditure; there can be tax credits to businesses that provide day care — and we need it.

Q: What level of abortion and birth-control aid do you think the Government should provide?
Cranston: Well, I think there should be substantial research into birth control to try and find an effective alternative to abortion. But I do not favor the restrictions to abortion that have been coming up in the Senate.

Q: Do you approve of Federal Government legal intervention in cases where parents in effect decide not to prolong the life of a seriously deformed child, such as in the case of Baby Jane Doe?
Cranston: I just have not focused on that issue enough to have any view, but I differ with what the Government's been trying to do.

Q: Should sex education be taught in the public schools?
Cranston: Yes, with prudence and care, I think so.

Q: What is your reaction to the growing involvement of the Roman Catholic Church in national security issues, particularly the nuclear freeze debate?
Cranston: I find it healthy, provided there's an effort to give moral leadership and thoughtful consideration to the issues. Religious leaders, like others, have every right to express their views and try to provide leadership.

Cranston: I think so, if parents maintain a sense of responsibility about the family. Because of economic difficulties, in many families both parents have to work so they can have a decent living standard, and that decent living standard is necessary to get proper health care and other opportunities for their kids. FW

NEW HOPE FOR KIDS WHO DON'T GROW

By Jane Sasseen

Being short isn't a life-threatening or even serious condition, but in a society that often equates tallness with success and sex appeal, growing up small can be traumatic. There are more than one million "short-statured" children in the country, kids whose height falls into the bottom 3 percent for their age group. This is due to a variety of medical, genetic and environmental factors.

"It's hard on children who can't reach cafeteria shelves or have trouble climbing onto the pedals of a bike," says Jeanne Le Clere, whose 16-year-old daughter has a disease called growth hormone deficiency (G.H.D.). "Their teachers tend to baby them and their peers just tease."

Until now, doctors haven't been able to do much for many of these youngsters. But Genentech Inc., a San Francisco firm, is working on a human growth hormone that duplicates the natural substance responsible for the growth process. Company officials believe their drug which is due to receive Food and Drug Administration (F.D.A.) approval this year for use in G.H.D. kids, could potentially help increase the growth of many children.

One thing the hormone has sparked so far is controversy. Doctors worry that with easy availability, it may be given in cases where it isn't necessary. Already, some weight lifters buy the hormone from drug companies in Europe because it builds muscle mass. And what about those parents who want to provide their budding young basketball star with an extra boost? "This hormone isn't just something to be taken by anybody who wants to be tall," says Dr. Phillip Lee, a specialist in children's growth at the Stanford University Medical Center. "The possibilities for abuse are too great."

The biggest potential application, and the most hotly debated, is its use on children who do produce growth hormone — but are simply genetically short offspring of diminutive parents, or those other kids who develop more slowly but eventually reach normal size.

Doctors don't know what the effects would be of giving large portions of the hormone to someone making his own. Furthermore, there is no way yet of identifying the short-statured kids who would definitely benefit from therapy.

Genentech is now targeting other possible areas for utilizing the product. The most widespread is for those children with G.H.D. Some 10,000 to 15,000 kids are known to suffer from this condition, though many more may go undiagnosed.

Untreated, these victims usually look several years younger than their true age. While a healthy child grows about two to three inches a year after the age of 2, G.H.D. children grow less than one and a half inches a year.

"This isn't just something to be taken by anybody who wants to be tall," says Dr. Lee.

Around 3,000 youngsters a year now get injections of hormone extracted from cadavers — a steady but limited source. Typically, therapy lasts six to eight years, and children often jump four to six inches in the first year alone. Growth levels off at about three inches annually, and the shots can continue through adolescence.

But with the hormone in low supply, the program has its drawbacks. Not every G.H.D. sufferer can take advantage of it. And once boys reach 5-foot-6 and girls 5-foot-4, the limited amount forces doctors to stop medication. That's one area where Genentech hopes to pick up business. But doctors advise caution about helping growth along. "The idea that every short kid should get a dose is simply not right," says Dr. Salvatore Raiti, program director of the National Hormone and Pituitary Program, sponsored by the National Institutes of Health. And small adults should not be given hope that the hormone will alter their stature: The substance is ineffective in those who've passed puberty. FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Marion Long

Eric Cartier

CHOW!

When Weight Watchers International set up its first diet center in Milan, Italy, two years ago, the organization knew it had a long "weigh" to go. There are now 200 centers in the country where tortellini and gelati (ice cream) reign supreme.

Initially, W.W. attempted to spread the word in a razzle-dazzle, slick Madison Avenue style. But since most of the women interested in the program came from poor families in rural towns, W.W. changed its tactics and began by wining and (very lightly) dining the wives of town mayors. The ploy paid off: The days of the stereotypical heavyweight Italian lady may soon be pasta.

But it seems some things never change — for example, the stereotype of the macho Neapolitan. Explains Donatella Pelematti, a U.S.-based representative of the organization: "In one instance, women who were going to a hotel for the weekly classes suddenly stopped attending. It seems their husbands were suspicious of any classes held in a hotel."

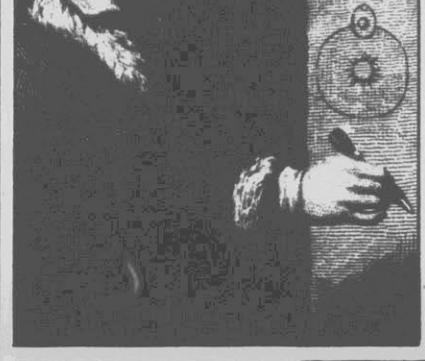

BREATHTAKING

Take your head out of that paper bag, pal. Quit holding your breath. Stop asking friends to yell "Boo!" It appears that there's a simpler and more successful way to get rid of stubborn hiccups.

According to Dr. Steven Goldsmith of the Baystate Medical Center in Springfield, Mass.: "You should use a cotton-tipped swab to massage the roof of the mouth near the throat. Hit the center of the soft palate just beyond the point where it joins with the hard palate. It only takes a minute, involves no special medical equipment and can be performed easily at home by a layperson."

A REAL BALL OF FIRE

How's this for a hot story? The sun may be much fatter than scientists have believed. That's the word from Dr. Eric Becklin, a professor of physics at the University of Hawaii. He bases his opinion on new measurements taken aboard NASA's Kulper Airborne Observatory — a four-engine jet airplane outfitted with a large infrared telescope. They reveal that radiation is emitted from an area well outside the sun's visible rim. The hidden portion may be as much as 1,250 miles wider than its visible segment. Now we know why they call it "broad daylight."

OH, YOU BEAUTIFUL DOLL

Barbie is quite a gal. At 25, she has her own house, car, boyfriend, several adoring chums and a wardrobe that could make her the only doll on the best-dressed list. Well, now she has a magazine named after her, put out by the publisher of Muppet Magazine, Telepictures Corp.

Targeted for girls age 4 to 10, the quarterly Barbie ($1.25 per issue) debuts this month to give the preteen set the low-down on "dazzling party dresses" and "super hairstyles," along with items on pets, crafts, good looks and "tips for a successful shopping trip." Though not a doll magazine per se, each issue will include a "Barbie adventure."

"It's like a baby Seventeen," explains executive editor Karen Harrison. "The girls just love her and project all their fantasies onto her. Barbie has the ideal life, I guess."

Barbie isn't the only woman with a magazine dedicated to her. For grown-ups there's now the quarterly One Woman magazine. The first issue was devoted entirely to Morgan Fairchild; the winter edition will feature Cathy Lee (That's Incredible) Crosby — all dolled up.

FIGGIE'S FIGURES

People in this country, according to a new study, are scared. They have deliberately restructured their lives out of fear. An astonishing 52 percent of the population have purchased guns and are taking classes to learn how to shoot. They've dead-bolted their doors and installed complicated alarm systems. Fear has changed their habits and attitudes, but often, the apprehension is way out of proportion to the amount of crime that actually occurs.

These are the conclusions of the Figgie Report, a privately commissioned multi-part study of crime in America. Part I, a survey of society's fear of crime, is followed by a study of how that fear has infected corporate America, and the final segment focuses on the concerns of community leaders. This installment examines community crime-prevention programs, such as mutual surveillance, C.B. patrols, walking and motor patrols and senior-citizen escort programs.

Diana Kassir

"It's a very significant work," says F.B.I. Director William Webster. "I've sent a copy of it to all my field officers."

Although most law enforcement officials seem to share Webster's esteem for the report, some academics doubt the accuracy of its findings. Says Wesley Skogan, a professor of political science and urban affairs at Northwestern University: "It exaggerates the nation's fear of crime. Americans have not altered their life style as dramatically as the Figgie Report suggests. Fear-inspired changes in the lives of most Americans basically consist of routine behavior — like leaving lights on."

Take any 4 for $2 with membership in The Literary Guild.

The Literary Guild, Dept. ER-634, Garden City, N.Y. 11530

Please accept my application for membership in The Literary Guild and send me the 4 books whose numbers I have printed in the boxes below. Bill me only $2, plus shipping and handling. Also send my FREE Tote Set, which is mine to keep, even if I don't remain a member. I agree to the membership plan as described in this ad and understand that I need only buy 4 more books, at regular low Club prices, whenever I want them.

Note: All prices quoted are for publishers' editions. First number listed below each book is the order number.

Members accepted in U.S.A. and Canada only. Canadian members will be serviced from Canada, where offer differs slightly. 28-G630

Here's how The Literary Guild works:

Books you love—delivered to your door. Once your membership is accepted, you get 4 books for only $2 (plus shipping and handling). We reserve the right to reject any application. However, after you're accepted, if not 100% satisfied with your introductory shipment, return it within 10 days at our expense. We will cancel your membership and you will owe nothing.

We're the most pressure-free book club you can join. If you decide to remain a member, take as long as you like to buy just 4 more books at regular low Club prices, after which you may cancel any time.

Relaxed shopping, plus savings. You'll receive a FREE subscription to The Literary Guild Magazine (14 issues a year, one about every 4 weeks) describing one or two Main Selections and over 100 alternates at savings up to 40% off publishers' edition prices. In addition, up to 4 times a year, you may receive offers of Special Selections. To receive either the Main or Special Selection(s), do nothing; we'll ship them to you automatically. If you want an alternate, or no book, return the completed order form by the date specified. Every book you buy at regular low Club prices earns Bonus Credits good for special books at discounts up to 60% off publishers' edition prices.

Buy only the books you want. If you ever receive a Selection without having had 10 days to decide, return it at our expense. The Guild offers its own complete, hardbound editions, sometimes altered in size to fit special presses and save members even more. There is a shipping and handling charge on all books shipped.

HOCUS-FOCUS

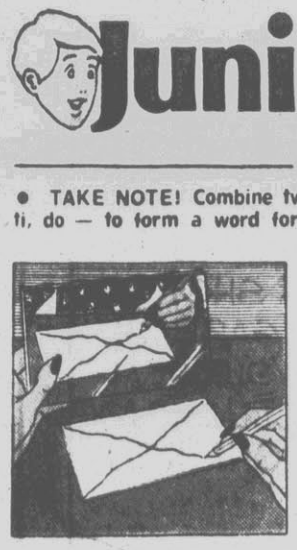

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1 Arm is moved. 2 Foot is moved. 3 Letter is missing. 4 Newspaper is thinner. 5 Tie is shorter. 6 Plant is missing.

Junior Whirl

● TAKE NOTE! Combine two or more musical syllables — do, re, mi, fa, sol, la, ti, do — to form a word for each of the following: 1. An extinct bird. 2. Travel fee. 3. Car wheel part. 4. Small monkey. 5. Deep mud. 6. Texas city. Example: No, 1 is a dodo.

1 Dodo 2 Fare 3 Tire 4 Titi 5 Mire 6 Laredo

● Meter Made! To three-fifths of a stere, add two-thirds of a ton. Then a stone you will see, if it's properly done. How's that? If you didn't know, a stere is a metric measure of volume.

STand E (3/5 of stere) plus ON (⅔ of ton) combine to form STONE

● KIN GAME! Your father's sister's son's only uncle's only child would be who? You should know.

It would be you.

TEST PATIENCE WITH A MIRROR

"It's done with mirrors," is a favorite explanation of many of the mysteries of magic, but here is a feat in which a mirror is more of a hindrance than a help.

Hold a mirror so that it reflects a rectangular sheet of paper. Now, peering into the mirror (not at the paper), try to draw diagonal lines as straight as possible across the paper.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words.

SPRAINED

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

Possible answers: Sped, rain

SURE.

WE'LL PLAY WINTER RULES.

NOW WHAT EXACTLY ARE WINTER RULES?

WELL, WHEN YOU PLAY IN LOUSY WEATHER...

OR THE COURSE IS IN BAD SHAPE.

YOU PLAY WINTER RULES..

WHICH MEANS YOU CAN MOVE YOUR BALL AND IMPROVE YOUR LIE...

YOU MEAN, IF I CAN'T PLAY THE BALL BECAUSE OF BAD CONDITIONS..

HÄGAR!

YOU NEVER TAKE ME ANYWHERE!

I'M TIRED OF BEING STUCK IN THIS HOUSE!

I WANT TO GO OUT TO DINNER!

I WANT TO GO OUT DANCING!

I WANT TO GO OUT AND VISIT FRIENDS!

DAGWOOD, YOUR BOSS IS COMING UP OUR WALKWAY

HE WANTS ME TO WORK! I'LL PRETEND I'M SICK!

I'M SICK AS A DOG

I'M GOING TO THE KITCHEN AND MIX UP A BATCH OF MY MOTHER'S SECRET HOME REMEDIES

HE'LL BE GOOD AS NEW IN NO TIME

LET'S GET THOSE JAMMIES OFF SO WE CAN GET DOWN TO BUSINESS

THIS HOT MUSTARD PLASTER WILL LOOSEN UP YOUR CHEST

NEXT, SOME HOT MILK AND GARLIC JUICE

THANK YOU, MR. DITHERS

YOUNG GERSHER

YEAH, BUT NOW I'M NOT FOOLING

CREATED BY Hal Foster

Our Story: "THIS IS CHLOTAR, SON OF OUR ALLY THE FRANKISH KING," ARTHUR TELLS THE ROUND TABLE. "THE VISIGOTHS PRESS IN UPON HIS PEOPLE LOOTING AND PILLAGING. WHO OF YOU WILL HELP TEACH THE SONS OF ALARIC A LESSON?" WITH A LUSTY CRY THE KNIGHTS JUMP TO THEIR FEET.

ONLY ONE MAN REMAINS SEATED, AND A ROYAL EYEBROW IS ARCHED IN SURPRISE: "AND YOU, SIR VALIANT?" VAL SHUFFLES UNCOMFORTABLY.

"SIRE," HE SAYS AT LAST, "I PROMISED TO SPEND TIME WITH MY FAMILY. I PROMISED ALETA THAT I WOULD NOT LEAVE YOUR KINGDOM FOR ONE YEAR." THE HOOTS OF HIS COMRADES PRICK LIKE A HUNDRED ARROWS. THERE WILL BE SCORES TO SETTLE LATER.

DAYS LATER VAL WATCHES THE KNIGHTS DEPART FOR GAUL. "YOU MAY BE THE JOKE OF THE ROUND TABLE," ALETA TELLS HER HUSBAND, "BUT TO THE WIVES LEFT BEHIND, YOU ARE A HERO." VAL LAUGHS BITTERLY. "YES, IF I WERE NOT MARRIED I COULD HAVE MYSELF QUITE A TIME."

"IF YOU WERE NOT MARRIED," ALETA REMINDS HIM, "YOU WOULD BE PLUMED LIKE A PEACOCK AND ON YOUR WAY TO GAUL."

WITH TIME ON HIS HANDS, PRINCE VALIANT FINDS HIMSELF ALONE ONE DAY WITH NATHAN. HE THINKS OF HIS OTHER SONS--OF SELF-CONFIDENT ARN, EAGER TO BE AN ADULT SINCE THE DAY HE WAS BORN; OF BOOKISH GALAN WITH HIS SCHOLAR'S MIND. "WHAT ARE YOU LIKE, LITTLE ONE?" VAL ASKS NATHAN. NATHAN'S REPLY IS, "DA!"
