Economy Continues Expand

U.S. Recoups Recession Losses

By PAULINE JELINEK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew 3.3 percent in 1983, recovering its recession losses in a frenzied spring and summer and then moving on to a calmer expansion, government figures showed today.

The year's advance was the fastest since the 5.8 percent of 1978 and followed a drop in growth of 1.9 percent and a gain of 2.6 percent in the recession years of 1982 and 1981, respectively, the Commerce Department reported.

Adjusting for inflation, it said, GNP climbed to $1.535 trillion last year from $1.485 trillion in 1982 — a growth of 3.3 percent.

Commenting on today's report, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said, "We have had a strong recovery."

Last year's gain was fueled largely by a strong comeback in final sales, in part because of a boom in consumer spending, and business investment to rebuild inventories sharply depleted during the downturn.

Restraining the year's growth was the weight of a deteriorating performance in foreign trade. The net trade figure slumped sharply as merchandise trade posted a record deficit of about $70 billion.

Baldrige, meeting with reporters, predicted a further worsening this year.

He noted the negative effect of the high interest rates and the strong dollar on trade, saying, "the major key" to restraining interest rates is reducing the federal budget deficits, which have resulted in record government borrowing in credit markets.

Economists have blamed that partly on the high value of the U.S. dollar in relation to foreign currency and the fact that the American economy was recovering faster than those of its trading partners.

The report also appeared to confirm analysts' widely held view that growth slowed substantially late in the year as the recovery matured.

But Michael Evans of Evans Economics Inc. said that if the economy were to continue growing at the fourth-quarter pace it would be "great news."

"That's the optimal growth rate to continue to make progress in the fight against unemployment while keeping inflation under control," he said.

"But what worries me is that this may be a prelude to a more severe slowdown in the first half of the year," Evans said.

Although economists generally think the expansion will continue through this year, some have said recently that there is a chance a downturn will come sooner because of the unusually high level of interest rates.

Cloak Of 'Polar Cold' For Eastern Section Of U.S.

By RON SIRAK
Associated Press Writer

A cloak of polar cold blamed for 19 deaths enveloped the eastern two-thirds of the nation today, setting records in more than a dozen cities, and snowflakes fell in Florida.

Never at any time in January had it been so cold in Elkins, W.Va., where the mercury hit 24 below zero as the frigid air that had been punishing the West and Midwest all week pushed into the East and South.

A foot of snow fell near Lake Erie in upstate New York, 4 inches came down at Grand Rapids, Mich., and snow and sleet slickened roads across the Texas Panhandle into the Oklahoma City area.

Every state in the contiguous United States felt freezing temperatures — as far south as New Orleans and Mobile, Ala. — and light snow was reported in Pensacola in the Florida Panhandle.

"In fact, if you want a nice, warm vacation, you can go to Alaska," said Nolan Duke of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo. Juneau and Anchorage were both at or above the freezing mark, he said.

In Washington, D.C., where the mercury flirted with the zero mark, the air valves froze on train cars on the area's subway system, causing major delays for rush-hour commuters. Several school districts opened late because of snow-clogged roadways.

Some of the colder readings this morning included the 35 below zero at International Falls, Minn., 34 below at Williston, N.D., and 32 below at West Yellowstone, Mont., and Alamosa, Colo.

Records for the date were set in at least 13 cities from Binghamton, N.Y., where it was 5 below, to Nashville, Tenn., where it was 2 below.

Some other record readings were Rockford, Ill., 16 below; Charleston, W.Va., 9 below; Pittsburgh, 7 below; Wilmington, Del., and Beckley, W.Va., 6 below; Huntington, W.Va., 4 below; Philadelphia, 3 below; Atlantic City, N.J., 1; Washington, 2, and Roanoke, Va., 8.

In Chicago, the 13 below tied a record and prompted the closing of a many schools in the suburbs.

Those temperatures were warm compared to the 27 below at Duluth, Minn., and Roosevelt, Utah, the 21 below at Idaho Falls, Idaho, and Wausau, Wis.

Temperatures in the teens extended as far south as Louisiana, Alabama and Georgia. New Orleans hovered around the freezing mark overnight, and south Florida could do no better than the 40s and 50s.

In Tampa, Fla., the warm-weather site chosen for Sunday's Super Bowl football game, it was a chilly 47 early today.

But dense cloud cover apparently spared the Florida citrus belt from another killer cold like December's, which destroyed millions of dollars' worth of fruit.

"Think of the clouds as being a roof, and it keeps the heat in," said Emmett Ricks of the National Weather Service in Miami.

That protective roof has been blown off most of the nation by a jet stream of icy air from the depths of the arctic. And while the sun was expected to shine on most of the nation today, it will be an empty light bringing little warmth to a nation weary of cold.

Duke said temperatures will moderate somewhat over the Rockies and the Plains but warned that "it's still only January." He said the worst was still ahead for the Midwest and the Northeast.

From the Rockies to the Northeast and as far south as Kansas and Missouri, the mercury was stuck below the zero mark.

In the Northeast, the bitter cold compounded problems caused by the snowstorms of the last two days.

"Whatever you got from the storm, if you didn't scrape it off you can forget it for the next couple of days," said Jim Eberwine of the National Weather Service in Newark, N.J., where it was 7 degrees. "It's going to be rock solid."

"All the emphasis is on the cold. Just cold, cold, cold," he said.

Temperatures around zero were expected in northern New Jersey through the weekend.

Little Impact On Growers In Pitt County

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Elimination of the "four leaf" program by the U.S. Department of Agriculture earlier this week should have little effect on Pitt County tobacco farmers, Agricultural Extension Service employees said today.

The "four leaf" program allowed flue-cured tobacco growers to plant 110 percent of their federal acreage allotments and still remain eligible for price supports, provided they agreed not to harvest the four bottom leaves on each tobacco stalk.

The program was started in 1978 to help reduce the over-supply of bottom-stalk tobacco held by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. as collateral for price support loans.

The agriculture department said in suspending the four-leaf rule that the supply of bottom-stalk tobacco has been reduced.

Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service Chairman Leroy James said today that, "I don't think it will hurt our farmers a lot. They will still make the poundage without it."

According to James, "only a few farmers went with the four-leaf program last year." If farmers "do a good job, there will be no problem. Management will be the real key this year."

However, James said the 11.5 percent reduction in quota "is going to hurt some. There's no question about it."

Extension service tobacco specialist Mitch Smith mirrored James' lack of concern.

"We don't foresee this as a big thing," Smith said. With the high cost of production,

"nobody can really afford to leave 10 percent of their tobacco on the ground. They have to sell everything they make."

Smith said holding farmers to their acreage allotment will result in "better utilization of land."

Pointing out that the poor bottom leaves have had no support price in the past, Smith suggested that the elimination of the four-leaf program might result in "a support price on it."

Smith also suggested that good management will be the key to successful tobacco farming.

He noted report set the average cost of producing an acre of tobacco at $1,287 per acre, plus an average $55 in interest and $449 in labor.

He said the average return for a large farm, based on a yield of 2,100 pounds per acre, is $922.

"Take from that $1,365 for rent (of allotment), at 65 cents per pound, and you're $443 in the hole," Smith said. "The killer is the rent price that's being paid."

Cary Faulk, head of the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Greenville, said only about a third of the farmers in the county took advantage of the four-leaf rule last year.

Faulk said about "500 took advantage of it last year," compared with the 1,700 farms on which tobacco was planted in 1983.

Russians Remain Firm On No Nuclear Parleys

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Reagan administration is to have an election-year thaw with the Soviet Union it is taking shape very slowly.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz returned home from Europe Thursday night with "nothing positive to report" on resuming nuclear arms control talks.

The Soviets apparently are willing to return to the bargaining table to consider a mutual cutback in troops and armor in Central Europe.

But they refused to meet on missiles until the United States reversed the deployment of Pershing 2 rockets in West Germany. Shultz described the talks as "terminated."

Also suspended are discussions in Geneva, Switzerland, to reduce long-range bombers, intercontinental ballistic missiles and nuclear submarines.

President Reagan had offered in a speech Monday at the White House to forge a "constructive working relationship" with Moscow.

Shultz made some conciliatory gestures of his own at the opening of a 35-nation disarmament conference Tuesday in Stockholm, Sweden, although he jabbed at the Soviets for perpetuating the "heartless division" of Germany.

The Soviet reaction to Reagan and Shultz was acrimonious in public, and a trifle yielding in private.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, addressing the conference Wednesday, swept aside Reagan's olive branch as a "hackneyed ploy." He denounced the United States as "the main threat to peace."

When he met with Shultz Wednesday afternoon at the snow-cloaked Soviet embassy, Gromyko toned down the rhetoric. "Nobody was talking for effect," said a member of the U.S. delegation afterward. "They were talking as diplomats discussing issues."

But Gromyko was tough. And even before the windup of the 5-hour and 10-minute session, Tass, the Soviet news agency, circulated a report that blamed the United States for the "dangerous consequences" of deploying new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles.

Shultz acknowledged Thursday morning, as he flew to Oslo, Norway, for a courtesy call on King Olav, "we made no headway" on nuclear weapons. "We made no agreement to meet again," he said.

And yet, there are a few signs of the thaw Reagan and the secretary of state sought.

Network Aims To See Women Alerted To Drug Dangers

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

From Depo-Provera, the long lasting contraceptive shot, to estrogen replacement therapy, the National Women's Health Network looks out for women as no other group can, says Carol Sheffer-Hartmann, new executive director of the public interest organization.

Its members and expert advisers, including female doctors and lawyers, share information on such matters as breast cancer and testify before federal bodies when the subject concerns women's health.

Last year Network led a challenge to proposals to make the long-lasting contraceptive shot available because of uncertainties about a possible link to cancer.

Network membership includes 300 organizational groups, such as Planned Parenthood, and 16,000 individuals. The Rockefeller and Ford foundations are among groups giving Network grants.

Ms. Sheffer-Hartmann said a long-term efforts is underway to monitor the Food and Drug Administration and see that drugs for women clearly cite risks as well as benefits so patients can make informed decisions about use.

Delegates Elected

The Major Benjamin May Chapter DAR held its meeting Saturday in Farmville at the chapter house. Delegates were elected to attend the N.C. DAR State Conference and the Continental Congress.

Delegates for the state convention, to be held March 7-9 in Pinehurst, are Inga Flake, Anne Holland, Joyce Williams, Pat Carr, Mary Moore and Rachel Bailey. Alternates include Juanita Williams, Nancy Darden, Edna Earle Baker, Ima Mewborn, Alline Mewborn and Charlotte Betts.

Delegates to the national meeting to be held in Washington April 16-20 are Lottie Lewis and Juanita Williams. Neta Riley, Rachel Bailey, Kelly Lewis and Charlotte Betts are alternates.

Hostesses for the afternoon tea were Mrs. Jerry Bailey, chairman, Mrs. Albert Lewis, Mrs. Lawrence Cuthin and Gayle Flanagan. The national defense report was given by Rosalind Britt. The CAR yearly report was given by Nancy Darden.

Ms. Sheffer-Hartmann and Network Program Director Susan Seidler, giving an example of Network actions in Washington, D.C., during an interview cited testimony by lawyer Sybil Shainwald before an FDA committee in December. The subject was estrogen replacement therapy.

Ms. Shainwald, chairman of the Network board, urged the FDA to turn down pharmaceutical company appeals to soften talk about risks in information leaflets for patients, as proposed by drug companies.

She asked for some new warnings, including a prominent box pointing out the increased risk of breast cancer.

Network files show the use of ERT, as it has been called, was the rage in the late '60s, described then as the fountain of youth medicine for postmenopausal women. It became controversial in the mid-1970s when a large study showed increased risk of endometrial cancer among users.

Ms. Seidler said doctors wrote fewer prescriptions for ERT after that and, fewer still after 1978. Before the controversy, Premarin, one of the ERT drugs, had become the fourth most commonly prescribed drug in America.

The Network experts said that in 1978 the FDA required estrogen replacement therapy drugs be packaged with side effect information similar to that given doctors.

Ms. Shainwald, chairwoman of the network's board of directors, told the Fertility and Maternal Health Drugs Advisory Committee of the FDA, she had noted "with profound regret" discrepancies in information given to physicians but not to patients.

Among her citations was this one, for doctors:

"It is not clear that the benefits outweigh the risks of giving estrogen to postmenopausal women prior to the development of overt signs of osteoporosis."

Ms. Shainwald said physicians also are warned there is no substantial evidence that estrogens decrease bone fractures, believed connected with the development of osteoporosis or brittle bones in some postmenopausal women, especially those with normally thin bones.

"Why isn't the same qualification made on statements given to women?" she asked. "Why doesn't the labeling (for patients) include the risks?"

"Only the patient herself can weigh whether a risk is worthwhile, and she cannot make this decision without proper information."

At the conclusion of her testimony, Ms. Shainwald requested that the following be added to the information leaflets for patients prescribed estrogen replacement therapy:

—A prominent box pointing out the increased risk of breast cancer.

—A warning against the trivial use of this potent drug.

—Labeling for osteoporosis that indicates there are safer ways to treat this condition.

Ms. Seidler said facts on file at the Network show that millions of American women had to take estrogen replacement therapy over a 30-year period to discover the increased risk of cancer.

Dear Abby

Big Brothers And Sisters Give A Lift

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was touched by the letter from "Childless and Hurting," the young woman who was unable to bear children and whose husband refused to adopt.

I have a suggestion for her. While it may not fully satisfy her longing for motherhood, she could become a "Big Sister" to a young girl who needs a one-to-one relationship with an emotionally mature and stable woman.

The Big Brothers/Sisters of America is an agency that presently serves some 100,000 children from one-parent homes. Through a careful screening process, children who need positive role models are matched with responsible adults who agree to spend from 3 to 6 hours a week with them for at least a year.

With nearly 12 million children in the United States growing up in one-parent homes, the number of children in need of a positive role model far exceeds the number of adult volunteers.

Here in Lake County, Ill., our newly organized Big Brothers/Sisters Agency just hired its first executive director, and we're about to make our first "match."

What a wonderful way to start the new year!
LYNNE V. IN GURNEE, ILL.

DEAR LYNNE: Congratulations! In checking out the organization, I learned that it is an 80-year-old non-profit agency with over 400 chapters across the country.

So, readers, if you are an adult and willing to devote 3 to 6 hours a week to a child who desperately needs guidance and companionship, look into Big Brothers/Sisters. (It's in your phone book.) Your wholesome influence could turn a child's life around.

Much To Be Done

To read that Rose High School seniors scored slightly lower than the state average in reading, and 3.6 points lower than the state average in math, is an experience in dismay.

In a 17-county region (including Pitt County), Rose seniors scored higher in reading and lower in math than the average for other schools of the area.

Of course, we're dealing with "averages"...which largely conceal achievements of individual scholars as well as scores of the less capable in scholastic fields. It is no comfort to reflect other schools share to a certain degree that mixed blessing.

There is reason to believe no easy answers are at hand. The system is dealing on the local level with hundreds of individuals each posing a diversity in strengths and weaknesses.

One would think that life in a university town atmosphere would have its effect in spurring scholastic interests and effort. Maybe for some it does; but apparently not for all.

We take pride in the exceptional numbers of local grads who earn distinction and scholarships for their achievements; and there is no reason to think their ranks are diminishing.

Still, it is the over-all test record to which we look and is a basis for judgment. On that score, there remains much to be done.

The Fans Win One

Chalk up the first round to North Carolina television-style basketball fans.

Raycom-Jefferson Productions and the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network had all sort of ideas this winter about expanding their cable TV coverage of Atlantic Coast Conference basketball. The idea, of course, included a pay TV plan for some of the Raycom games carried over ESPN — but the "pay" portion of that plan applied only to the ACC area. In the rest of the country, ESPN customers got the basketball coverage as part of their cable package.

The uproar should have been expected. Obviously, someone in those two networks underestimated the intensity of ACC fans — and the plain, outright fact that people don't like to have to pay twice for the same thing.

"Season Ticket," as the pay plan was called, summarily fell by the wayside after the fans balked, went to court in several places and won. Faced with the handwriting, the networks yielded with the rather lame comment that now the fans won't see most of those games at all.

Maybe not, but at least they won't feel cheated.

That 'Affordable' Home

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most enduring topics at meetings of homebuilders is the so-called affordable house, one that ordinary folks can buy rather than just dream about.

There is an awful irony in this. While the talk goes on, a good deal of the technology and techniques of the affordable house — or one that comes close to fitting that definition — are known.

In fact, many cost-cutting practices already are in use — although on a limited scale — including mass production, or factory techniques, for building housing sections and sometimes entire houses.

Clustering, in which more units are placed on each acre, has helped keep costs down. And downsizing is widely practiced, especially in view of today's smaller families.

Nevertheless, for many people the affordable house remains a cliché that gets worked out at every political convention, a myth that evaporates when they get down to the hard reality of dollars and cents.

The National Association of Home Builders, which gathers for its annual meeting in Houston Jan. 21-24, estimates that less than one-third of American families can afford a 30-year, $60,000 mortgage at 12 percent.

At that, they'd have to stretch the budget, because that formula assumes the family would devote one-third of income to running the house and paying the mortgage, instead of the old one-fourth of income formula.

Based on the 25 percent standard, used for decades, only 17.6 percent of families could qualify, since the monthly mortgage payment would be $617 and other expenses $832, making a total that demands a $40,000 annual income.

Such figures explain why the NAHB and the National Association of Realtors and the U.S. League of Savings Institutions have been campaigning for a reduced federal budget deficit. Only then, they say, can interest rates fall.

But there are other ways, demonstrated in test projects, in which savings can be implemented — but aren't.

Among them: Reducing restrictive subdivision standards and overly strict zoning, easing building codes that limit the use of certain technologies and materials, and more realistic attitudes toward factory built units.

The U.S. League offers the example of a Lincoln, Neb. townhouse development as evidence that housing quality can be maintained while lowering prices. The duplex and triplex units contained 844 and 888 square feet of finished living space, plus 500-foot unfinished basements. Prices: $39,950 to $46,000.

The relatively low prices were accomplished mainly through relaxation of usual standards and procedures by the city, which:

—Modified its zoning ordinances for the townhouses to permit 52 units on a site that otherwise would have been limited to 32.

—Revised its standards for paving, sidewalks, flowlines and street lights to permit newer technology in paving, and to allow exterior lighting to be house-mounted rather than pole-mounted. Sidewalks were built on one side of the street only.

—Permitted the units to have unfinished rather than finished basements.

—Cut the processing time for permits, approvals and inspections on the units by eliminating bureaucratic red tape.

Total savings: $10,118.12 per unit.

Other techniques are available too, among them the house whose interior is left for the buyer to finish off, and the house assembled in a plant, trucked to the site, and attached to the foundation and to power, water and sewer.

Three-bedroom, factory built houses are available in some areas for less than $25,000, to which must be added the cost of land, foundation and utilities, all of which can be handled by a local contractor.

For various reasons, however, municipal officials, lending institutions, builders and potential buyers themselves often look askance at something that wasn't put together in the old way and with the old materials.

It isn't just talk.

Keeping Up With The Computers

Forget George Orwell in 1984, and keep your eye on the computer.

The new computers, which are being installed in Washington by the bureaucracy to save money and make our government more efficient, may chip away a little more at our rights to privacy.

The new computers can now "talk" to each other and gather up information from other computers without the average citizen knowing anything about it.

For example, the IRS computer can call up a credit bureau computer and say, "Honeywell, can you give me some idea on how much money Charley Ogilvy spend last year on lunches, dinners, hotels and transportation?"

"Sure, TRW, hold on a second. Here it is, $23,800. Is he in any kind of trouble?"

"He might be. Call me in a few weeks and I'll let you know."

"While I've got you on the line, can you tell me what Sam Knishe filed as his income last year? He claims he's dead broke and can't pay his Lord & Taylor bill."

"Knishe made $150,000."

"Thanks for the data. I'll talk to you soon."

Meanwhile, over at the FBI, its master computer is trying to locate a Fred Lumbach, who bilked them on a sting operation. It calls up the U.S. Census Bureau. "Apple, what's the last address you have for Fred Lumbach?"

"Gosh, our census data is supposed to be confidential."

"We know that but we have to find him."

"OK, 1222 Harding Road, Beesville, Virginia, but you don't know where you got it."

"Is this the Lethargic National Bank computer?"

"Speaking."

"This is Hewlett-Packard, the Social Security mainframe. A Mrs. G.L. Caruthers has been collecting health benefits when she doesn't deserve them. Would you transfer $800 from her bank account to ours?"

"Sure, what are friendly computers for?"

"Hi, Sperry, what's new at Selective Service?"

"Did Frank Dolan ask for a student loan from your bank?"

"If my memory serves me he did."

"Well don't give it to him. He hasn't registered for the draft."

"It's done. You promised me in-depth profiles on Ivan Monk, Donald Grunewald and George Dormer."

"I'll call you tonight, pal."

"This is the New York Welfare Department computer. Am I talking to the Health and Human Services computer?"

"That's correct."

"We have a Mrs. L.L. Jones who says she hasn't received her Medicare check for the past five months."

"Mrs. Jones is dead."

"She's in our office kicking and screaming and seems to be very much alive."

"I'll send you a printout of her death certificate. If that doesn't convince her, nothing will."

Apologia — In a recent column I blamed G. Ray Arnett, assistant secretary of Interior, for wanting to tax non-hunting conservation equipment to pay for the preservation of wildlife. He was not responsible for the user tax rules, but was just following the wishes of Congress, which passed a 1980 act instructing the Interior Department to find new revenues for wildlife conservation.

Public Forum

To the editor:

This is in response to the letter from Charlotte Purrington which appeared in the January 17 edition of this newspaper, and quoted from a letter published in the Providence, R.I., Journal. The writer warned of the effects of habitual hatred of communism and said we should consider the positive side of communism.

I must ask Ms. Purrington to consider the communist strategy which includes the use of mass terrorism to subjugate the entire world — a policy instigated by Lenin himself. We all recall the shooting down of KAL Flight 007, which resulted in the death of 269 people including one of the world's most outspoken anti-communists, Congressman Larry McDonald. This is just one more on the long list of communist atrocities.

In the early days of communist takeover in the Kharkov region of Russia, a number of women were stripped of their clothes and tied to posts after which burning live coals were forced into their bodies. This sort of horror was not isolated, but part of a systematic program conducted throughout Russia against innocent victims selected at random. This use of mass terror convinced the rest of the population to go along with the communists or else!

The unimaginable horrors of communist terror are a chronicle of execution, torture and starvation. The number of deaths attributable to communism worldwide since 1917 is authoritatively estimated to total at least 140 million souls, including 45 million Soviet victims.

I admit, it is a bit hard for me to see the positive side of communism. Yes, I hate communism. This should not be confused with my feelings for the people of Russia or other communist countries. They are merely the innocent victims of atheistic totalitarianism. This brings up one question. How can anyone love liberty and not hate its greatest enemy?

Candidates Use Gimmicks

RALEIGH — In a political year when it seems that a bit more than half the population of the civilized world is running for some kind of statewide office in North Carolina, the politicians are struggling to make themselves known to the voters. A good many of them, it seems, have resorted to the use of gimmicks.

Tom Gilmore, the nurseryman from Julian, is running a gubernatorial campaign that is one big gimmick after another. He's putting in 84 workdays at various jobs around the state as his main gimmick. Other gimmicks include the free packages of "Forget Me Not" seeds and crocus bulbs that he gives away at campaign stops.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten has a Raleigh bus driver following his gubernatorial campaign around the state selling gimmicky little items like Rufus socks, smoking pipes and dolls. In the past Edmisten cut a 45 rpm record. (He often sings in public.) This year he's got a Rufus cookbook for sale.

Former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox, who also sings in public, put together an album of his favorite songs. That album release prompted the Hickory Daily Record to suggest in a recent editorial that Knox and Edmisten form a duet called the "Rufus and Eddie Musical Extravaganza and Road Show."

Fellow Democrat Lauch Faircloth is so envious of his two opponents that he recently threatened to come up with a gimmick of his own — a singing cookbook.

Sen. Bob Jordan wanted to gimmick up his official filing for lieutenant governor. He'd collected enough $1 checks from supporters to pay his filing fee but Elections Supervisor Alex Brock put the kibosh on that idea. No way was Brock going to burden his bookkeeper with more than 500 checks, he said. Jordan filed with just one check.

Rep. John Jordan ran for insurance commissioner for about one day, and then he dropped out. But he still managed to fit in a gimmick. He was handing out free apples at the Democrats' Vance-Aycock dinner.

Copy editors tend to be sticklers for proper English usage. So Kathy Neal, former copy editor at the Durham Sun, was appalled by the bureaucrat she had to learn as public information officer for the state Department of Administration. The telephone, she learned, is known as "the voice communication network." A telephone call is a "telecommunication."

Sam Johnson, former state representative from Raleigh and now one of the most influential lobbyists in town, was talking about the governor's race at the Legislative Building recently.

"There's so many people in the race," he told the receptionist, "that they're going to have to let three in the run-off instead of two."

Decision Due On Use Of EDB

WASHINGTON — In a matter of days, Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus will issue a decision that could flag whether the Reagan administration is carrying water for the chemical industry or deferring to public safety.

The event could indicate whether apparent changes in official attitudes at the EPA have been only illusory.

The issue at hand is controversial: what to do about a carcinogenic pesticide, ethylene dibromide (EDB), that has been found in water supplies and more than 100 products on grocery store shelves throughout America.

Ruckelshaus has one of two options: to ban immediately the widely used fumigant for stored grain and fruit or to allow the chemical companies that produce it to appeal an EPA decision, made last fall, to outlaw the substance. The administration's record to date indicates likely deference to the producers and a contempt for scientific data.

The details of the administration's foot-dragging on EDB comprise one chapter of a forthcoming book, "A Season of Spoils: The Reagan Administration's Attack on the Environment," by Jonathan Lash, a lawyer with the National Resources Defense Council. Lash argues that many of the key decisions leading up to the current crisis were made during the first two years of the administration.

When Ann (Gorsuch) Burford & Co. took charge of the EPA in January 1981, the Carter administration had been in the final stages of a regulatory review of EDB, which had been in use since 1947. Three years of intensive study by Carter administration scientists confirmed that the chemical causes tumors, deformities and sterility in lab animals. On Dec. 10, 1980, the EPA published in the Federal Register a proposed ban of the substance for fumigation purposes.

But the new administration proved unimpressed by the Carter EPA's concern and postponed any further action. Then came Jerry Brown's Medfly crisis during the summer of 1981. When California citrus growers expressed worry that EDB might not be available for such crises in the future, the administration took a more definitive stand.

With the help of the White House (and Reagan-Bush '84 communications director James Lake, then a Washington consultant), administration officials met with citrus growers from Florida, California, Texas and Hawaii. The growers were led to believe that EDB would not be banned without an effective substitute.

That summer, John Todhunter, then the agency's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances, publicly declared that the risk from using the pesticide was 100 times less than the risk from smoking one cigarette in a lifetime.

Then, in a memo dated Dec. 24, 1981, Todhunter aide Bill Wells recommended that "we should not push for an early resolution" on the EDB restriction proposed by the Carter administration. He advised Todhunter to wait for new studies of residues on foods, which might show lower levels of contamination.

Strength For Today

Recently a one-legged man died, leaving an estate of more than a million dollars. Before the loss of his leg he had been a poor clerk, struggling along on a small salary, with neither the opportunity nor the ambition to rise.

Then came his accident. He was shocked into a more energetic frame of mind. He became a salesman, stumping from door to door with a clumsy wooden leg. First he sold magazine subscriptions and books, then clothing and other things.

At last he became a dealer in automobiles and finally real estate. From poverty he rose to competence, from competence to wealth — all because of his "misfortune."

Hardships are like whetstones. They destroy knives if used to beat them, but make them more effective when used for sharpening. Likewise, calamities may destroy us, but can make us sharper if used in an effective manner.

In a letter to Rep. Andy Ireland, D-Fla., dated June 13, 1982, Todhunter seemed convinced by Wells' advice. "We recognize that it is very important to your state's citrus exporters that EDB not be phased out unless there is an alternative available which is effective and acceptable to Japan," one of Florida's most important citrus export markets.

Todhunter, who resigned last year amid the great EPA scandal, and Wells deny stonewalling a well-advised movement against EDB. If their response was slow or cautious, they say, it was only because the scientific data was changing rapidly at the time. One EPA official involved in the meetings between private industry, EPA and the White House told us that he doubted the Reagan administration caved into private industry's fears of losing EDB. But "they didn't have to be convinced," he conceded. "They weren't going to do anything anyway."

Others at last have decided that inaction is a hazardous public policy. Concern about EDB contamination has prompted Florida state officials to recall 77 common grain-based products found to have traces of the chemical. In Texas, Agriculture Commissioner James Hightower has issued a list of 19 similar items.

Unfortunately, no one knows how much warehouse-stocked grain contains residues of the chemicals; nor is anyone sure as to the threshold at which exposure to EDB is hazardous to humans. Worst of all, even if Ruckelshaus orders a halt to the use of EDB, it might take two to three years for it to be removed from the market. Such is the price of inaction that unwitting citizens may have to pay.

AT&T Has Allies In Protesting Access Charge Ban

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A number of politicians and consumer groups have joined the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in criticizing a regulatory decision to postpone the payment of telephone "access fees" by consumers.

The Federal Communications Commission, by a unanimous vote, tentatively decided Thursday to put off the fees from this April until the middle of 1985. That will spare consumers from paying an extra $2 a month to their local phone company, but will also scuttle plans for a major reduction in long-distance rates.

The agency said it would take a final vote on the matter next Wednesday, but no changes are expected between now and then.

AT&T, not surprisingly, criticized the move because it wants to reduce its long-distance rates to better compete against firms like MCI Communications and GTE-Sprint. The politicians and consumer groups chimed in for quite different reasons.

"Today's decision provides no certainty to the public that telephone rates will remain reasonable and affordable in the years ahead," said Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo., who sponsored a bill passed by the House that would permanently bar residential access fees. "The only certainty it provides is that local residential telephone bills will not be unfairly increased by the FCC before the election this November."

"The action delaying implementation is a blatant political move aimed at thwarting legislative action," agreed Samuel A. Simon, the executive director of the Telecommunications Research and Action Center, a Washington-based public interest group. "Congress should not be fooled into believing this 'problem' has been solved."

While approving a delay to provide time for additional studies "and to better educate the public about the issue," the FCC made it clear it still believes access fees should be introduced.

The monthly charges are called access fees by the FCC because they are tied to the ability of customers to "access" the long-distance phone network. Currently, local phone rates are held down for all customers — including those who don't place long-distance calls — through hidden payments that are built into the rates paid by long-distance callers.

The FCC wants to eliminate that contribution, or subsidy, paid by long-distance callers to encourage competition and discourage large corporations from building their own private phone systems. FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler warned Thursday such private systems, by siphoning off revenue from local phone companies, would ultimately drive up local rates much more than access charges.

Wirth and Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who is also sponsoring legislation, counter the FCC plan is unfair because it would spare long-distance callers from making any contribution to hold down local rates. Wirth also claims the access fees would force millions of Americans to give up their phone service.

Citing such concerns, the FCC said it had decided to take most of this year to conduct a study of whether access charges pose a threat to universal phone service. A final decision should be made by December, allowing any fees that are approved to take effect by June 1985, the agency said.

The commission said it had also tentatively decided the fees should be capped at a maximum $4 a month until 1990.

The delay in access fees will also apply to small businesses, which are defined as those companies with only one telephone line. They had been facing a fee ranging up to $6 a month. Altogether, the access charges paid by residential and small business customers had been projected to produce $2.5 billion in 1984.

Large businesses, however, will still have to pay an access fee of up to $6 a month starting in April. That is expected to cost large business customers roughly $1 billion in the first year.

Sentenced In Fire-Setting

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Two employees of Bangle Brothers Hosiery who set a "tragic" fire there last June 27, doing $4 million in damages, have been given prison sentences.

A Cabarrus Superior Court jury found Tandra Brown, 24, of Kannapolis, guilty of unlawful burning of a building used in trade. She was sentenced to 18 years in prison.

Co-defendant Shelia Helms, 25, of Concord, was sentenced to 15 years. She had pleaded guilty earlier to setting fire to a building used in trade and testified for the prosecution during Ms. Brown's trial this week.

"The whole thing is tragic," said Judge James Davis, noting that the incident caused temporary loss of jobs for some 400 employees and loss of company profits.

The fire caused about $4 million in losses, a mill official testified during sentencing. He cited $2.5 million in damages to the building, at least $500,000 in profits, $800,000 in wages and $140,000 in state and federal taxes.

Davis ordered that if the women qualify for a work-release program, they must pay one-third of their earnings to Bangle Brothers "as partial restitution."

Testimony showed the fire was set in two places in the mill's dyehouse during a coffee break that night. All employees escaped without injury, but the center third of the mill, which manufactures pantyhose, was destroyed.

Public Censure Proviso Added

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina State Bar has added public censure to its methods of disciplining lawyers who have broken the rules of professional conduct.

Previously, the only way the State Bar could discipline lawyers was by a private reprimand — usually for minor offenses — or at a full-scale public hearing before a committee — usually for serious offenses.

At public hearings, the State Bar Council considers such action as license suspension or revocation.

"I think everybody's in agreement that we needed an intermediate step," said Wright T. Dixon Jr. of Raleigh, president-elect of the State Bar. "This will give a greater range of disciplinary options to fit the action."

Three local teen-agers were arrested by Greenville police Thursday night on larceny charges after allegedly taking two pizzas and a pizza-carrying case.

Officer B.A. Riggs identified the three charged in connection with the theft as James Ray Staton Jr., 18, of 107 Oakdale, Bobby Earl Langley, 18, of 1609 Hopkins Dr., and George Thomas, 17, of 110 Fairwood Drive.

Biggs said an employee of Domino's Pizza at 1210 Charles St. was attempting to make a delivery at a Greene Street address about 9:10 p.m. when the pizzas and case were taken.

Langley, Thomas and Staton were arrested about 9:45 p.m. at Langley's home, where the case, valued at $22, was recovered.

Biggs said the pizzas were valued at $17.98.

Six Arrested In Car Thefts

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Police are making arrests in what detectives call a "concentrated effort by a small group of people" to steal cars in the High Point-Winston-Salem-Greensboro triad.

Six people were arrested Wednesday and Thursday, and more arrests are anticipated, said Lt. Jerry Raker of the Winston-Salem Police Department.

All of those charged are males between the ages of 15 and 18, and all are from Winston-Salem, Raker said. They're charged with auto larceny or possession of a stolen car or both.

They're accused of participating in a theft ring believed to have netted at least 28 cars.

LONDON (AP) — A British High Court Thursday ordered a man accused of video piracy of the hit movie "ET" to pay damages of $15,000 to Universal City Studios, owners of the film rights.

Universal's lawyer, John Baldwin, said the damages would help finance the search for video pirates.

Universal sued David F. Penney for supplying machinery and blank tapes used to make unauthorized copies of "ET".

Cartoon Pirate Returned

A 4 1/2 foot high cardboard cut-out of the comic version of the East Carolina University Pirate, taken from the front yard of head football coach Ed Emory's 118 Ashbury Road home Jan. 14, has been returned.

Officer J.C. Mulford said the Pirate, valued at $250, was returned to Emory earlier this week after the persons who took it returned the cut-out to the police department.

Mulford said the Pirate was found near the rear door of police headquarters following a call by an unidentified male.

Suit Over Unqualified Duo

RALEIGH (AP) — A state board has sued the North Carolina Board of Education and other education agencies, saying two speech pathologists employed in Kinston public schools do special work for which they're not qualified.

The suit was filed last week in Wake County Superior Court by the N.C. Board of Examiners for Speech and Language Pathologists and Audiologists.

It asks that the Kinston school system not be allowed to use speech pathologists not certified in audiology.

Sentenced To Electric Chair

MARION, Va. (AP) — Lem D. Tuggle Jr. has been sentenced to die in Virginia's electric chair for the rape-murder of a 52-year-old woman.

A Smyth County Circuit Court jury that convicted Tuggle of capital murder 24 hours earlier decided Thursday that Tuggle should be executed for the May 29 slaying of Jessie Geneva Havens. Tuggle, 30, also was convicted of forcible sodomy and using a firearm during a felony. Those convictions brought sentences of 22 years.

The jury learned Thursday, when it had to decide on life imprisonment or the death penalty, that Tuggle was on parole for a similar killing in Smyth County in 1971.

Funds Trickle For Memorial

DURHAM (AP) — A state Vietnam veterans memorial probably won't be erected on the Capitol grounds by Veteran's Day this year because not enough money has been raised, the campaign organizer says.

"I think everyone would just like to forget about Vietnam," said John Saputo, who is heading the North Carolina Veterans Memorial Committee. "Out of sight, out of mind."

The former Marine captain said the committee has raised about $15,000 — $8,000 in the past two months. He said that it will take close to $140,000 to construct the bronze statue. The statue depicts two soldiers carrying a wounded comrade.

Saputo said he's pessimistic about the target date for erecting the statue because of the public response.

He said the committee has hired a professional marketing service to handle another mailing campaign. The committee has previously used mailing lists from dentists and other professionals.

Saputo, who owns a Cary beer distributing company, said he hopes to work out an arrangement with Coors beer which would allow 10 to 20 cents to go to the fund for every case of beer sold in the state for a month. He said he is negotiating with Coors on which month the promotion would take place.

Saputo said the beer campaign could contribute as much as $80,000 to the campaign.

Twenty grassroots organizations across the state are helping raise money, Saputo said, with donations averaging about $10 a person. Saputo said he was satisfied with the average donation, but not with the sparse response.

grounds has already been approved.

The committee has selected a design for the statue, called "After The Fire Fight," by Abbe Godwin of Greensboro. The location of the statue on the Capitol

Egypt Faces High Price By Islamic Conference

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — An Islamic summit has called on Egypt to endorse all its "principles, rules and decisions" as the price for readmission to the 45-nation body, a semi-official Moroccan daily reported today.

Those "decisions" presumably included condemnation of Egypt's Camp David peace treaty with Israel. The Egyptian-Israeli agreements four years ago led to an Islamic boycott of Egypt.

The newspaper, Le Matin, said the summit, which ended late Thursday, decided to send a three-nation delegation to Cairo to discuss with the Egyptian government the invitation to rejoin the Moslem family of nations.

The decision to readmit Egypt — suspended after it signed the treaty — was the major action of the summit and came over the objections of hard-line countries such as Syria and Libya. It remained unclear if Egypt would accept any conditions, but the summit's action was a significant overture to Egypt by the majority of Islamic nations.

While the Islamic Conference Organization was holding its summit Thursday, the government of President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt announced that it would reject any conditional invitation to return to the organization.

Before the summit ended, reports emerged that the invitation was offered on condition Egypt endorse previous Arab and Islamic positions on the Arab-Israeli conflict.

A communique at the end of the summit said merely that "Islamic Egypt" was invited to resume its place in the 15-year-old organization, a loosely structured commonwealth-style body of nations with Islam as their official religion.

The communique did not refer to any preconditions for Egypt's return.

Le Matin carried what it said was the full text of the decision approved by majority vote.

The resolution said "certain member states expressed serious concern over the non-respect of ICO (conference) decisions by the Egyptian government," while others stressed "the overriding need for the unity of action of all Moslem states in order to recover Jerusalem ... as well as all Arab territory arbitrarily occupied by Israel."

Conference sources said the delegation to Egypt would be headed by Guinea's President Ahmed Sekou Toure who, during the three-day summit, led the push for the invitation for Egypt's return.

The summit chairman, King Hassan II of Morocco, scheduled a news conference at his Casablanca palace this evening, when he was expected to clarify the invitation to Egypt.

In Cairo today, a Foreign Ministry spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said there would be no comment on the decision from Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly or any other official.

It appeared the Egyptian government was awaiting the conference delegation to learn details of the invitation.

PUNKER — Craig Metzger, a first-grader at Hillcrest School in Gillette, Wyo., doesn't usually dress as a "New Wave" punk rocker. This month he's also had a chance to wear his sweat suit to class, wear a hat and dress as a "nerd" and a preppy. The student council sponsored the unusual dress-up days to lift spirits after the holidays. (AP Laserphoto)

Investigators Thought Hanging Was Suicide

By KRISTIN GAZLAY
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Investigators suspected suicide from the start in the hanging death of an Army Reserve general who tried to make his death look like a terrorist killing, a medical examiner says.

Maj. Gen. Robert G. Ownby was mired in financial trouble when he lashed his hands behind his back and hanged himself after planting a typewritten note that suggested terrorism, Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Vincent DiMaio said Thursday.

Ownby's brother, Dr. Ralph Ownby Jr., told The Associated Press today that he plans to hire a "competent legal advocate to review the situation. I don't have any reason to believe the investigation wasn't properly done, but I think it's prudent to also look out for our interests."

Ownby, 48, was found hanging in a headquarters building at Fort Sam Houston early Jan. 11, a note pinned to his sweater saying he had been "sentenced and executed" for "crimes by the U.S. Army."

said.

"He probably thought it might just pass off as a terrorist killing," he said. "He probably wanted to save his family from disgrace."

Both DiMaio and the FBI refused to elaborate on the financial problems of the two-star general, who owned and operated Bristow-ONB Corp., a company that manufactures steel doors and frames.

"It was difficult for all of us to accept this. It was absolutely inconceivable to me — not the ruling, but that I can't conceive of this happening," the general's brother said from his office in Richmond, Va.

"In the interests of the memory of my brother, I think it's a reasonable thing to have someone look into this," he added. "I don't mean to be belligerent, but I feel Robert would also do this for me. I owe it to his memory to review the situation."

Ralph Ownby said he was not aware that his brother had any financial problems, but if there were such problems his family would need to be taken care of.

Ownby was the head of the 90th U.S. Army Reserve Command, supervising 63 combat reserve units in Texas and Louisiana.

A handwritten note left at Ownby's desk said he had started some intruders in the building and was going to investigate and that the telephones in the building were not working.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE CONSCIENCE OF A PEOPLE

WHENEVER KINGS AND PRINCES IN THE BIBLE SEEMED TO DEVIATE FROM THE TRUE PATH OF UPRIGHTNESS AS PRESCRIBED BY MOSAIC LAW, INVARIABLY A PROPHET WOULD COME CHARGING FROM THE HILLS, OR FROM THE FAR-FLUNG REACHES OF THE WILDERNESS, TO REMONSTRATE AND AWAKEN THEM TO THEIR SACRED OBLIGATION TO THEIR CREATOR. "THUS SAITH THE LORD," RANG THROUGH PALACE, COURTYARD, AND TEMPLE TO SEND CHILLS OF APPREHENSION THROUGH ALL WITHIN HEARING DISTANCE. SAUL WAS BEDEVILED BY AN INFURIATED SAMUEL, KING DAVID WAS ADMONISHED BY A STERN NATHAN, AND JEZEBEL AND AHAH FOREBODINGLY THREATENED BY A WRATHFUL ELIJAH. NO MATTER HOW MIGHTY A KING, JUST LET HIM GET OUT OF LINE AND AN OUTSPOKEN PROPHET WOULD APPEAR ON THE SCENE TO BLAST HIS SELF-SATISFACTION! THEY WERE TRULY "THE CONSCIENCE OF THE PEOPLE!"

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices headed lower again today as the market's slump of the past two weeks persisted. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 20.62 points over the last nine sessions, dropped 4.29 to 1,261.73 by noon today. Losers held a 5-3 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Malcolm Baldrige, the secretary of Commerce, said today that no meaningful action to reduce the deficit was likely until next year. The Commerce Department reported this morning that the gross national product grew at an inflation-adjusted annual rate of 4.5

percent in the fourth quarter of last year. That figure matched an earlier "flash" estimate by the department.

International Business Machines led the active list, down 1 at 117 1/2 in trading marked by a 1.2 million-share block at 118.

The NYSE's composite index lost .35 to 96.25. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .56 at 227.14.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 42.88 million shares at noontime, against 41.56 million at the same point Thursday.

Report Toddler Enjoys 'Wonderful Recovery' From Liver Transplant

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A toddler who was making an "absolutely wonderful" recovery today from liver transplant surgery has already shown appreciation to the one she thinks made it possible — "Thank you, Mickey," she told her Mickey Mouse doll.

Trine Engebretsen, 2 1/2, of Miami, is a "tough little cookie," and she awoke from the life-saving surgery to find her stuffed friend Mickey — and Minnie — propped at the foot of her hospital bed, her parents said.

"It's just a miracle, it really is," Mary Ann Engebretsen said after seeing her daughter following a 12 1/2-hour transplant operation Thursday at Children's Hospital.

"We told her that we loved her and that we were proud of her that she got through it OK. She responded to my voice, and her eyes started to tear. She moved her arms and was kicking her legs. She knew we were there," said Mrs. Engebretsen, 29, who appeared on NBC-TV's "Today" show Jan. 5 to appeal for a donor. A week later, Barbara Bush, wife of Vice President George Bush, and Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., joined in the public appeal.

Trine's mother said she was touched by her daughter's reaction Wednesday to the news that a possible donor liver had been found.

"She just looked at Mickey Mouse and said, 'Thank you, Mickey,' as if she knew he was going to do it all along," said Mrs. Engebretsen, a former Walt Disney World goodwill ambassador who promoted the entertainment park at various functions and once arranged for Mickey Mouse to visit her daughter at home.

Mrs. Engebretsen and her husband, Lars, called Trine's recovery "absolutely wonderful."

Drifter Is Charged In Dismemberment

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A derelict charged in November with shooting four drifters in Los Angeles has been charged in the shooting and sexual dismemberment of a Charlotte man last summer in Fayetteville.

Fayetteville Patrolman David Pulliam said Thursday he had charged Norman Bernard with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and with maiming in an attack on Manuel Diaz last August.

Los Angeles and Irvine, Calif., police say Bernard, 33, formerly of Fayetteville, told them in November that he fatally shot Diaz three times in the head while they were drinking in Fayetteville.

The gun used in the Fayetteville shooting allegedly is the same cheap .22-caliber handgun used to kill the three drifters and wound another in Los Angeles in late October and November.

But Fayetteville police say Diaz, 58, a drifter, didn't die from the attack. He was found bleeding badly the morning of Aug. 15 near a church that helps drifters. He has recovered and agreed to help Fayetteville police prosecute Bernard.

Meanwhile, Bernard is in Los Angeles County Jail, awaiting trial on three counts of murder and a count of attempted murder in the Skid Row shootings.

Fayetteville police say if Bernard is acquitted in the Los Angeles shootings, they will extradite him to Fayetteville to prosecute him in the attack on Diaz.

Urbach said the first few days are crucial to the girl's recovery because the new liver might be rejected by her body. She will remain hospitalized for at least six weeks.

Both the child's doctors and parents, however, said they were optimistic.

"She's a tough little cookie, and I'm convinced she's going to make it," said Engebretsen, 40, a cruise ship captain for Norwegian Caribbean Lines.

Doctors had given Trine only weeks, or days, to live without a transplant. She suffered from a rare and incurable liver disease called alpha-1 antitrypsin deficiency.

She was rushed into surgery at 2 a.m. Thursday, about nine hours after a chartered jet flew her from Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital to Pittsburgh on the chance that a liver from a 23-month-old Denver boy, who authorities described as a child abuse victim, would be suitable for her.

But blood tests showed the liver was better suited for Austin, who suffers from biliary atresia, a blockage of bile duct tubes in the liver.

Soon afterward, another liver, from 18-month-old Amanda Delapp of Mayfield, Ky., was matched with Trine. The girl had died of a brain tumor Wednesday afternoon at Vanderbilt University Hospital in Nashville, Tenn.

Amanda's parents, Alisha and Billy Delapp, said they agonized over the death of their daughter and the decision on whether or not to allow the liver donation. But once they made up their minds, they were happy with their choice, Delapp said.

"I felt it was the Lord's will. He put her on earth for a reason. The 18 months she was with us were the best months of my whole, entire life," Delapp said. "We wanted a part of her to live on."

Doctors described her condition as critical but stable, normal for recent transplant patients.

The boy had been rushed to Pittsburgh Thursday morning when a liver initially intended for Trine was found to be more suitable for him.

"He's looking forward to having a new liver," his father, Mike Szegda, 33, a laid-off factory worker, said before the operation.

Trine, a blue-eyed blonde, was moved to the hospital's intensive care unit Thursday afternoon after her operation.

Doctors described her condition as critical but stable, normal for recent transplant patients.

"I think at this point it's a little early to make any predictions. Things are going as well as can be expected," said Dr. Andrew Urbach, a pediatrician responsible for the girl's post-operative care.

Last Basket Nails Pirates, 50-49

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Murphy must have been a basketball coach. When of Murph formulated his law: "What ever can go wrong, will," he had to be thinking about basketball — and maybe even Pirate basketball.

Last night, as the Pirates came off a long road trip to host Francis Marion College, East Carolina looked like it might be on the way to snapping a 10-game losing skid. By halftime, the Pirates were up, 31-19, and were shooting a blistering 70.6 percent. Little was going wrong.

But in the second half, little went right for the Pirates, and Francis Marion rallied and freshman Chris Mazzella scored a layup with four seconds left to give the Patriots a 50-49 victory over East Carolina.

Yep, ol' Murph would have been in their groaning with the rest.

"You can't pin it on any one thing," Coach Charlie Harrison said later. "Everyone in the game had the chance to do something good for us and most of them did. But everyone of them did something wrong too."

As a result, ECU's lead of up to 14 points gradually melted away in the second half as the shooting cooled to 35 percent, and Marion used the foul line to make its comeback.

East Carolina made only six field goals in the second half — Marion had nine — and was 6 of 11 at the foul line. Marion cashed in 13 of 17 to aid its comeback.

The real dominant factor was rebounding, where Marion held a 33-22 advantage, including a 19-9 margin in the second half. Mark Thomas pulled off 11 and Hank Foster added 10 for the Patriots.

"I feel bad for the kids," Harrison said. "But we can only do so much for them. They have to come through and put the ball in the hole. It was the little things we did and didn't do that hurt. But I can't put my finger on just any one thing."

One thing that did hurt, however, was in the final 30 seconds of the game. Leon Bass was fouled with 26 seconds to go and the Pirates leading 47-46. Bass missed the first of his one-and-one, but Keith Sledge was there to grab off the rebound, and he, too, was fouled with 24 seconds remaining.

The freshman calmly tossed through both shots, giving the Pirates a three-point edge, 49-46.

Marion quickly came back down the court and Foster hit a layup with 16 seconds to go, immediately using its fifth time out. Two seconds after play resumed, Bruce Peartree was fouled. Peartree, one of the team's top free throw shooters, missed and Joe Hill came off the boards with the ball, driving the length of the court before bouncing the ball down the lane to Mazzella, who dropped in the layup with four seconds to go — ECU calling time out before another second ticked off.

The Pirates tossed the ball the length of the court, but it was knocked out of bounds by Marion with only a second going off the clock. On the inbound, Sledge got the ball but appeared to slip as he tried his shot, double-clutching and coming up short. Time expired as the battle for the rebound went on.

"We had unforced turnovers, no offensive rebounding, the same thing over and over and over again," Harrison said. "Again, you expect freshmen to make these mistakes, but not your upperclassmen. We expect them to come through and they didn't."

Harrison noted that one problem in the second half was that both of the guards, Tony Robinson and Curt Vanderhorst got into foul trouble, along with forward Barry Wright. Robinson got his fourth with 13:33 left, while Wright followed at 9:47 and Vanderhorst at 9:42. When the latter went to the bench, the Pirates held a ten-point lead.

"We couldn't continue the aggressive play we want to have at our guard positions," Harrison said. "It's where we have the most experience."

Harrison praised the defensive job done on Marion's Jerry Lattimore by Vanderhorst. A transfer who was playing his sixth game for Marion, Lattimore has averaged 20 points a game, but got only 11 last night — and just one field goal.

Harrison said the Pirates still had the chance. "But we missed free throws. We had stupid fouls in the paint, and they jump up in your face and hit. They beat us to the ball (rebounding) and got some garbage baskets in the second half. We felt we had to pound the boards at both ends to win. We did it in the first half but we didn't in the second. It's just a lack of experience in the front court, a lack of experience and strength."

"Right now, they don't believe in themselves. It's been so long a road stand, and so long coming up on the short end. God gives you the talent, but you have to do it yourself."

For a while, it looked as if the fates were finally going to smile on the Pirates who continue to stretch a school record losing streak now. In the first half, the Pirates took the initial lead and never trailed. They slowly built up as much as a 14-point lead, 27-13, and held it to until Foster hit with 28 seconds left to cut it to 31-19 — the halftime score. ECU had the chance to stretch it back to 14 but suffered a turnover as the half ended.

Marion cut the lead back to seven early in the second half, but the Pirates pushed it back out to ten, 42-32 with 7:13 to go. After that, however, Marion outscored the Pirates 18-7, to pull out the win.

Marion led for only four seconds in the game — but Murphy would have appreciated those four seconds. They were the only ones that counted.

East Carolina falls to 2-11 with the loss, while Marion boosts its record to 11-4. East Carolina will play host to the University of Richmond on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in their third ECAC-South game of the year.

ECU Gridders To Be Honored

Saturday night's basketball clash between East Carolina University and the University of Richmond's Spiders will showcase several special activities prior to, and during, halftime.

Today and Saturday have been proclaimed Ed Emory/Pirate Football Team Days by the city of Greenville and Mayor Janice Buck. At halftime Saturday, the mayor will present the formal proclamation to Emory and his senior players.

Prior to the game, from 7 to 7:30 p.m., consensus All-America offensive guard Terry Long will sign autographs in the front lobby of Minges Coliseum, with the 74th person getting Long's autograph to receive a framed copy of the nationally-noted poster featuring Long. Long's number was 74.

Head basketball coach Charlie Harrison will make a presentation to Emory at halftime also, while Director of Athletics Dr. Ken Karr will have a special presentation to Long at the half. All seniors will be introduced during halftime.

Prior to the game the Greenville Boys Choir will sing the national anthem. Also, several season-long promotions will continue, among them the T-shirt random distribution whenever a Pirate jams the ball.

The Richmond-East Carolina game is the first ECAC-South contest in Minges Coliseum this season. Game time is 7:30 p.m., with the doors opening at 6:30 p.m.

Ross, Faison Pace Scoring

Chocowinity's Reggie Ross clung to the area scoring lead this past week, but Ayden-Grifton's Cora Faison moved past D.H. Conley's Mechio Kornegay for the girls' lead.

Ross' average dipped from 21.2 to 19.9 during the week, but he held to the number one position among scorers in the four-county area. Theodore Edwards of Greene Central remained second at 18.4, followed by Farmville Central's Kent Hardy, still third at 17.2.

The biggest leap upward was by Jamesville's Richie Ange, who moved from 11th to fourth. Ange is now hitting 16.2 point a game, while teammate Tracy Peele is fifth at 16.0.

Faison, scoring 21.2 points, moved past Kornegay, who now averages 20.5, to claim the girls' scoring lead. Kathy Vernelson moved up a notch to third at 17.6, while Gloria Duggins of Roanoke dropped one to 16.5. Wendy Elks of Chocowinity is fifth at 14.6, up one spot.

Jamesville currently leads the boys' teams in offense, scoring 60.6, while Trinity Christian leads in defense, giving up 46.6. Trinity also has the biggest winning margin, 12.7 per game.

Among the girls' teams, Chocowinity leads in offense with a 54.2 average, while Greenville Christian paces the defense at 31.8. Chocowinity has the top winning margin, 12.6 points a game.

Carolina Swimmers Dunk East Carolina

The University of North Carolina defeated both East Carolina University swim teams Thursday at Minges Natatorium, with the men taking an 81-32 victory and the women winning 88-23.

Kevin Richards of East Carolina set a new varsity record for the 100 backstroke with a time of 53.56 in the opening leg of 400 medley relay, eclipsing the mark of 53.75 set by Jack Clowar in 1980.

The UNC women's 400 medley relay unit of Eeizzi, Sherwani, Huei and Gerhart set a new pool record with a time of 1:06.2.

The ECU men slipped to 5-3 with the loss, while the Lady Pirates are now 4-4. Both teams travel to Richmond Tuesday, with the men facing the Spiders and the women competing against Richmond and James Madison.

Security Thick Around Training Sites

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Security has been routinely thick around the training sites of the Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Raiders as they prepare for Sunday's Super Bowl showdown.

Officials went so far as to drape the cyclone fence around the Redskins' practice field with heavy material to discourage intruding eyes, a move that pleased Washington Coach Joe Gibbs.

He's no more paranoid than any football coach, but Gibbs prefers privacy as he prepares for the big game. If an interloper could peek into their playbooks, though, there would not be any great surprises in the basic approaches of these two teams.

The Redskins will use the straight-ahead power plunges of 1,000-yard running back John Riggins to take them down the field. That is their style.

The Raiders, almost certainly, will use long passes by Jim Plunkett to explore the leaky condition of the Washington secondary, which finished last in the league, allowing more yards through the air than any other team.

"We pass before we run," said Plunkett. "Everytime I drop back, I'm looking for the long pass."

Plunkett threw for 232 yards against Pittsburgh and 214 against Seattle in LA's first two playoff victories. He will be aiming downfield against a reconstructed Washington secondary that surrendered 3,975 passing yards. Of the four defensive backs who started the Super Bowl for the Redskins last year, only safety Mark Murphy is still there.

"There are a lot of reasons for us being last in pass defense," said Murphy, who led the league with nine interceptions. "We have the number one rushing defense, so teams are not trying to run against us. But unless you run, it is difficult to win, so our (passing) yardage (allowed) might be helpful."

"They're the type of team that says, 'We're gonna throw the ball deep.' I guess they feel that will stretch out our defense and if you intercept a long pass, they figure that's as good as a punt."

The Redskins, although perfectly capable of passing, prefer the ground control game that Riggins can supply.

Washington quarterback Joe Theismann, the league's most valuable player and second in passing ratings, said the formula for winning the National Football League championship game is relatively simple.

"Every team that wins the Super Bowl has a great running game and a great defense stopping people," he said. "You control the game with your defense and by running the football."

The Redskins' strategy, then, is simple. Their defense, best in the league against the run, must take the ball away from Los Angeles and then Riggins must advance it down the field.

Certainly Theismann will include his share of passes to talented wide receivers like Charlie Brown and Art Monk, but the basic Washington game plan reads: Riggins left; Riggins right; Riggins up the middle.

Riggins rushed for a record 166 yards as the most valuable player in last year's Super Bowl and has a record six straight 100-yard playoff games. He likes his assignment running 30 or more times a game out of Coach Joe Gibbs' single back formation behind the Redskins' offensive line.

Riggins reviewed "the world famous Hogs" who open his rushing lanes.

"You've got Joe Jacoby. He's Interstate 66. Go West, young man, go West. And Russ Grimm. He'll be tremendous when the (United States Football League Pittsburgh) Maulers sign him. And Jeff Bostic. He's probably the best center in the league. And Mark May. He's a new improved Highway 73. And George Starke. He's like myself, a dinosaur who managed to escape evolution."

"I'm in the perfect situation. I don't have to block. I don't have to catch the football. All I have to do is run with it."

And all the Raiders have to do is stop him. That job falls first to Los Angeles' three-man front with nose guard Reggie Kinlaw flanked by Lyle Alzado and Howie Long.

"It's going to be a war," promised Long. "People are going to need some rest after this game."

"I'm going to crowd the line of scrimmage," said Kinlaw. "I'll be up close. If you play back, you give their line and Riggins a chance to get some momentum and that makes him harder to tackle."

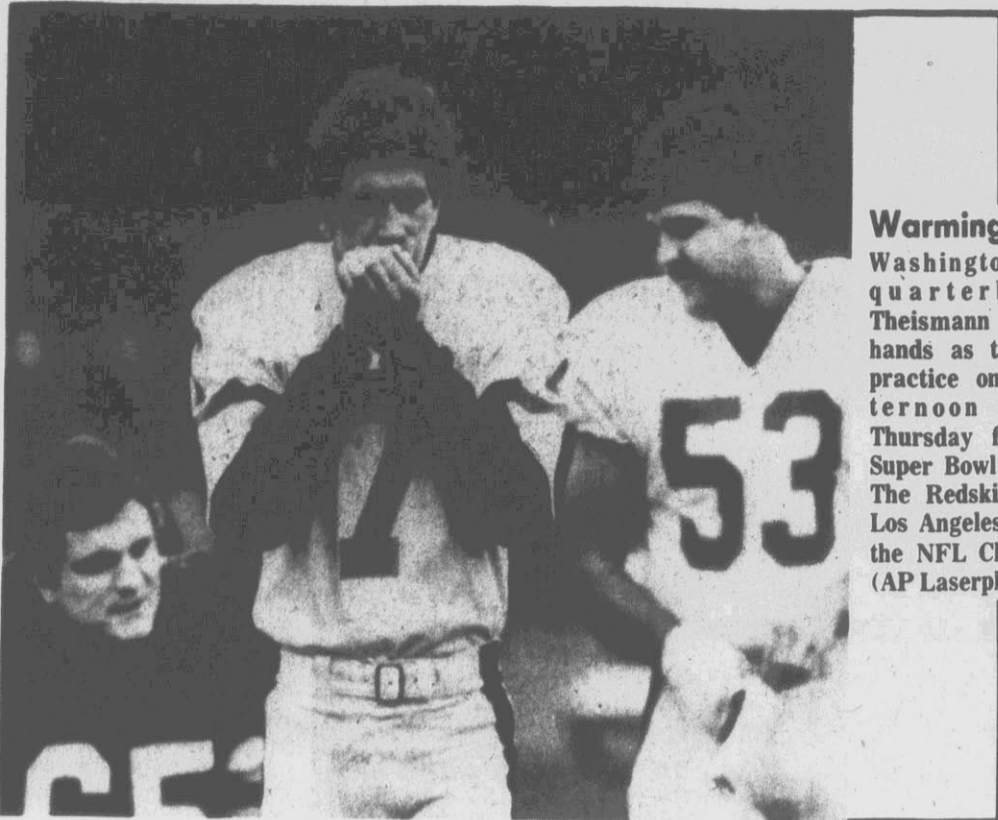

Riggins isn't the only 1,000-yard rusher in this game. LA's Marcus Allen carried for 1,014 yards and his presence in the backfield could keep the Redskins' defense honest.

And Allen is not a one-dimensional threat. He also caught 68 passes for 590 yards in 15 games.

The only game he missed was the Raiders' 37-3 loss to the Redskins, a game in which Plunkett passed for 372 yards including a 97-yard touchdown to Cliff Branch.

A week later, the Washington defensive backs surrendered 403 yards to Green Bay in a 48-47 loss and were labeled from then on, "The Pearl Harbor Crew."

"You know," said reserve lineman Tony McGee, who gave them the name, "because they were seeing so many bombs." They will see some more of them from Plunkett on Sunday.

New Theory Helps Snead Share Lead

PHOENIX (AP) — J.C. Snead found a solution when he was trying to help a friend, and now has something he thinks he can take to the golf course.

"Instead of messing around trying to find something, like I've been doing for a couple of years, I'm gonna go with it; just try to play for a while," the 42-year-old veteran said after a no-bogey 5-under-par 66 had given him a share of the lead Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 Phoenix Open.

He was tied with Gary Hallberg and rookie Corey Pavin.

Lanny Wadkins, once a winner and three times a runner-up in Phoenix who calls this "my most successful stop on the tour" led a group of eight at 67, four under par and a single shot off the pace.

Also at that figure were veteran Al Geiberger, Ben Crenshaw, Larry Mize, lefty Russ Cochran, Mike McCullough and Donnie Hammond.

Johnny Miller put on a birdie-birdie finish to join the group of 12 at 68. Tom Kite, Jim Simons and Rex Caldwell, a playoff loser here a year ago, also had 68s.

John Mahaffey, a winner last week, and defending champion Bob Gilder were in the huge group at 69. Lee Trevino shot a 70 in his first competitive round of the season.

Snead has been in a slump since scoring his seventh victory 2½ years ago.

"I feel better about things now than I have in a long time," he said.

Snead said he was playing a practice round with Gene Littler when he found at least a partial solution to his difficulties.

"I was trying to help him and I helped myself," he said.

"I noticed he had the ball too far forward in his stance. Then, when I got over the ball, I found I was doing the same thing."

"I moved the ball back in my stance. And I got my power back. I'm getting my legs and hips into it more now."

Snead missed only one green and saved par there with a deft little pitch to five feet. He did not have a 5 on his card and got a share of the top spot with birdies on three of his last four holes, capped off by a 15-footer.

Hallberg, one of the last to finish, reeled off a late string of three consecutive birdies and had a shot at leading alone but couldn't coax in a 10-foot putt on the 18th hole at the Phoenix Country Club.

Pavin, a first-year player on the American tour, gained experience in foreign competition last year, winning the South African PGA and the German Open. He spiced his effort with a chip-in for an eagle-3 on his ninth hole.

The start of the day's play was delayed more than an hour by frozen greens.

Hendricks Might Be In Final Contest Of 216-Game String

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Ted Hendricks, who says he's playing the same kind of football he's always played and enjoying it as much as ever, will be taking part in his 216th consecutive National Football League game on Sunday.

It also might be his last. "It's about 50-50 right now," he said when asked about next year. "How many 37-year-old linebackers do you know?"

Not many. Of course, you don't see many 36-year-old linebackers, either. None in fact, right now, other than Hendricks, who will complete his 15th NFL season against the Washington Redskins in Super Bowl XVIII.

"I take it one year at a time," he said. "I evaluate my health in July. I enjoy football as much as I ever have. I wouldn't be here if I didn't."

Hendricks, a 6-foot-7, 235-pounder who began his career with the Baltimore Colts in 1969 known as "The Mad Stork" because of his angular build, has been plagued with injuries just about all season.

His problems began in late September when he strained an abdominal muscle in practice. As he said Thursday, "I won't be healed until March, they told me that a long time ago."

Hendricks, who came to the Raiders as a free agent in 1975, may have been better off now had he not played for a while. But that's not his style. He has played in more consecutive games than any active player.

"Pain is not a part of my personality," he said. "I could get through the games all right and it would stiffen up in the morning."

Manley Letting His Play Do The Talking This Week

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Washington Redskins' outspoken and often outrageous Dexter Manley is letting what he does on the field do the talking for him this week and that could spell trouble for the Los Angeles Raiders in Sunday's Super Bowl.

"I don't lie. When I say we are going to win or kick the other guys around I mean it," Manley says. "But the coaches have asked me to go a little easier this week."

"Dexter has to be muzzled for his own good," adds Dave Butz, Manley's companion on the Redskin defensive line. "Dexter has a knack for talking until he gets hurt."

Raiders tackle Bruce Davis, whose job it will be to stop Manley, doesn't think much of the Redskin defensive end.

"I have Dexter, the mouth of their defense. A good defensive end but I have played against better," Davis says. Manley went past Davis twice in October for sacks as the Redskins edged the Raiders 37-35.

"If he's so good and I'm so bad ask him how I beat him the first time," answers Manley, a 6-foot-3, 250 pounder in his third year out of Oklahoma State.

Manley started the season with a new name, "Mr.D," and a Mohawk haircut. A renegotiated contract was next following a hassle with Redskin owner Jack Kent Cooke.

Meanwhile, Manley was doing what he was doing best, sacking quarterbacks.

The team leader in sacks in 1982 and the man who knocked Dallas Cowboy quarterback Danny White out of the NFC Championship game last year, recorded 11 sacks during the first half of this season. Then the music stopped.

"All the publicity and the Mr.D talk backfired. Everybody was double-teaming me and I wasn't getting near the quarterbacks. Never a standout against linebacker position.

"We don't know how much he'll play," said Flores. "He's still a pretty dominating type of player, especially on early downs. We will take him out in some situations we haven't before."

"Ted is a big game player. This is his kind of game." Despite his injury problems, Hendricks performed well enough to earn his eighth Pro Bowl berth.

Hendricks has had the reputation of being a flake on a team with many flakes.

"I think you'll find characters throughout the league," he said. "We might have more of them. The personality of this team was the way it is long before I got here. As long as you're successful, you can get away with a lot more than you can when you're with a team that's losing."

"We have a good time. When it comes to war time, we have a good time, too."

"But I've always said the Raiders aren't as bad as people say. At Christmas time, we always visit kids at Children's Hospital."

Is he as off-center as many think? "No," he replied with a smile.

Asked about the Redskins, he said, "Their offense is very basic. If they have the opportunity to go to their game plan, it's going to be a long day for us."

"We have to stop John Riggins and their running game and force them to throw the ball more than they want to throw it."

When the Redskins pass, Hendricks might be in trouble.

"That's when I have to cover receivers in the flats," he said. "I might have a hard time getting there."

linebacker position.

"Ted is a big game player. This is his kind of game."

Despite his injury problems, Hendricks performed well enough to earn his eighth Pro Bowl berth.

Georgia Tech Still Lacks Experience

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech basketball coach Bobby Cremins, his Yellow Jackets at 12-2 off to their best start in his nine-year tenure, says the team still has to overcome its inexperience.

"We're getting better but we're not there yet," Cremins said Thursday night after Tech rolled over Wofford 78-44. "We're not the finished product, but I think they're beginning to understand what I want."

Thursday's game was close for the first 10 minutes. Then Tech broke open an 8-3 tie with 16 unanswered points.

During the spurt, Anthony Byrd scored six points and Mark Price and John Salley each added four. Tech went on to take a 32-14 halftime lead.

The Terriers, 5-8, tried to fight back by using the 45-second clock to slow down the pace, shooting sparingly. Wofford also concentrated its defense on Price and Bruce Dalrymple.

But this tactic left the basket open for Salley, who finished with 13 points and nine rebounds. Price, shooting from the outside, managed to lead all scorers with 19 points.

Wayne Rice led Wofford with 14 points, all in the second half.

"I really respect the game plan that Wofford came in here with," said Cremins. "I thought it was a very intelligent game plan."

Wofford Coach Wayne Earhardt said, "We started off well and did the things we knew we had to do. We were able to hold the tempo and hang with them a while."

"There's no doubt about them having a fine ballclub."

Cremins, meanwhile, said he now must work on preparing the Yellow Jackets for a string of eight straight Atlantic Coast Conference games, which begins with a Monday night meeting with Virginia.

"Of course, Virginia is going to be a great test for us," he said. "I think the biggest thing we have to overcome against them is our inexperience. Virginia is a very experienced and intelligent team, and in this game intelligence goes a long way."

Public TV Brings 'Inside Story' To The Superbowl

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Lamar Hunt, one of the founders of the old American Football League, thought the newly arranged championship game pitting his league titlist with the top team from the National Football League should have a flashy name. "NFL Championship" just wouldn't do. That was the old name, and it would have represented another slight by the genteel NFL against the upstart AFL. Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, also wanted a splashy brand name that would help sell the game.

At the time, his daughter was playing with the latest kids' craze of the mid-1960s, a hard-rubber ball that could bounce over tall buildings. Just think how the course of human history would have been altered if the toy had been an Incredible Hulk, and not a Super Ball.

Hunt's Super Ball became Super Bowl to nearly everybody except the NFL, which referred to the game as the NFL-AFL Championship in 1967 and 1968, the first two years the league champions met. The NFL finally deigned to refer to the new name in its 1969 program, but it wasn't until Super Bowl IV that the NFL discovered Roman numerals.

This historical anecdote comes courtesy of public television's "Inside Story," the only regularly scheduled national gaffly critiquing the press. Normally, this program covers the major issues of journalism, as in tonight's new-season opener, when it discusses the Grenada press ban with former President Carter, veteran CBS News anchor Walter Cronkite, President Reagan's chief of staff James Baker and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger.

But next Friday, "Inside Story," with anchor-correspondent Hodding Carter, tackles Sunday's Super Bowl XVIII in "Super Bowl-Super Stakes," reporting on how the event has become much more than a 3½-hour football game and two-hour pre-game show.

"Where else will you find such a concentration of media and fan interest than in the Super Bowl?" asked Jim Maroney, producer of next week's program.

"There's more national interest in this than a presidential inauguration."

Hand in hand, the media and the NFL have raised the Super Bowl into America's greatest shared experience. Maroney says the NFL issued hundreds of hotel credentials for reporters who will cover this week's hoopla, then go home and watch the game on TV.

In the all-time ratings rankings, Super Bowl XVI and Super Bowl XVII are fourth and fifth, respectively, behind the "M-A-S-H" finale, the "Who Shot J.R.?" episode of "Dallas" and one episode of "Roots."

This has not been a banner year for NFL ratings. Its showcase "Monday Night Football" game had its worst ratings in 14 years. But, since Super Bowls are events more than games, that doesn't matter. And it doesn't matter that Super Bowls have never lived up to their two-week hype.

CBS, which is charging advertisers a record $450,000 for a 30-second commercial, hopes the Washington Redskins-Los Angeles Raiders match-up will be the first to top the 50-rating mark, which would mean half the nation's 83.8 million TV homes will be watching.

Last year's 48.6 Super Bowl rating helped the follow-up program, "The A-Team," attract a huge sampling audience, and the series has become NBC's biggest hit. CBS will follow Sunday's game with "60 Minutes" and a two-hour premiere for its new helicopter series, "Airwolf."

"Inside Story" will examine how well the hundreds of newspaper reporters and broadcasters can do their jobs amid the media circus. "The biggest change," said Maroney, "is that local TV stations and small-town newspapers now consider the Super Bowl important enough to assign their own reporters or sports editors."

Yet, except for the game itself, very little news is generated by the inevitable pack journalism. By late in the week, the biggest story was that seven Raiders missed a team meeting and each was fined $1,000. Apparently, the inside story of the Super Bowl is just being there.

Announce Early Presley Record

NEW YORK (AP) — A recording of five songs by the late Elvis Presley, sung on a Louisiana radio show in 1955 and 1956 when he was 20 and 21, will come out Jan. 30, a record company spokesman says.

The LP, titled "Elvis, the First Live Recordings," also has an introduction by the master of ceremonies of the "Louisiana Hayride" radio show and a recent reminiscence by a man who worked on the program, ac-ording to Ben Liemer, publicity director for Jem Records.

The five songs were recorded on a one-track machine in a Shreveport, La., radio studio where Presley sang, for later broadcast on the Armed Services Network. "Hound Dog" was recorded in his last appearance on Louisiana Hayride in late 1956, and "I Wanna Play House with You," "Maybelline," "Tweedle Dee" and "That's All Right Mama" were recorded in December 1955.

Marshall Sehorn, co-owner of a New Orleans recording studio, found the tapes, in a mislabeled box, among several he bought from Louisiana Hayride. Liemer said Presley tapes from the show had long been rumored to exist but hadn't previously been found.

Sehorn made a deal with RCA Records to press the records. He and Kevin Eggers set up their own record label, the Music Works, and went to Jem for distribution. "Maybelline" and "Tweedle Dee" have not been on a Presley record before, Liemer said.

Life As It's Lived

The Neighbors' Dogs Win Point

By GAIL MICHAELS
 "Is there any way we can get a leash law around here?" Meg asked recently. "The dogs on this street are beginning to run in packs and the big ones are simply terrifying."

Considering the absence in our county of such rudimentary documents as a building code, I doubted that we could build any momentum for a leash law. But I understood how Meg felt. The dogs in our neighborhood are pests.

Naturally, I hesitate to malign man's best friend in print. I am certain that before the week is out I'll receive a stack of letters from "dog lovers" who are outraged by my insensitivity. So before I continue, I want to declare my undying love for canines that keep to their own turf. I bear no more malice toward them than I bear toward children whose parents are responsible enough to know where they are at all times.

It has been my experience, however, that children and dogs who are allowed to roam without supervision are destructive. Every time I see someone's pet sniffing around my poor little expensive azaleas, which are trying to establish root systems in solid rock, my stomach churns. I suppose that I'm a confirmed capitalist at heart. I believe in the sanctity of private property, and I believe that people should be responsible for the disposal of all sewage generated by their families, pets included.

Nevertheless, I did attempt to live with the problem without resorting to violence until an extremely large Irish setter moved into the neighborhood. I first met him when he knocked at my front door. As I opened the door, he looked me in the eye, then sauntered into my entrance hall.

Since then, he and I have not been on the best of terms. But I did not declare open warfare until he rendered my "dog-proof" trashcans non-functional by tearing off the rims.

"I can't stand it any more," I told Phillip. "After two weeks of picking up chewed garbage, I'm feeling positively murderous."

"I keep telling you to use the B-B gun."

"I'm not prone to savagery."

"I promise you, it won't permanently damage the dog. Just aim it at his derriere and he'll think twice about scattering our garbage again."

"But I feel so guilty. After all, it's not the dog's fault. It's the owner's."

"Until it becomes legal to shoot the owner in the behind, I think you had better concentrate on the dog."

The next day when I saw the setter saunter into the yard, I grabbed the B-B gun and, with great determination, stomped outside. I was too late. The trash was scattered everywhere, the setter was loping off toward the horizon, and I was confronting a small, shaggy opportunist who dropped his wet styrofoam when he saw me and wagged his tail.

I took a SWAT stance and aimed the gun. He stared at me with liquid brown eyes and wagged harder.

"Turn around, you dumb mutt, so I can shoot you in the rear-end," I muttered. He didn't cooperate. Finally, I lowered the gun, shuffled into the house and called Phillip on the phone.

"Do you think we have enough money in the budget for a fence?"

Town Angry At Loss Of Bridge

FARMER (AP) - The Dunbar Bridge over the Uwharrie River was torn down last year, but time has failed to silence the furor the bridge's removal caused in the small Randolph County community of Farmer.

A DOT work crew, unknown to state transportation planners or historians, tore down the 80-year-old structure last June and sold it for scrap, which has infuriated the residents of Farmer.

The small Randolph County community halfway between Asheboro and High Rock Lake had fought state efforts to remove the bridge.

"Some idiot decided it wasn't safe, and those sneaky S.O.B.s tore it down and carted it away," said Louella L. Hammond, a 61-year-old artist. "It was a gorgeous old bridge, and I was guarding that bridge with my life, I thought.

"We thought they were repairing it, and now all we have is an old hole where people are dumping trash," she said.

The removal of the bridge caught the community - and some state officials - by surprise.

Johnny Owens, who operates the only store in the crossroads village of 50 people, said: "Folks are right angry. It just happened so quick that it was over before anybody heard about it. We were told they didn't want any community uproar."

T.L. Walters, the manager of state transportation planning and research in Raleigh, said he didn't know until last month that the bridge was gone.

We are not the only ones who have stressed the need for a combined holding of at least eight cards for a satisfactory trump suit. While this is surely the most flexible holding, a seven-card fit, especially in a major, is often more than adequate. The great guru of the Moysian fit, the late Sonny Moysie, and it has become known in the trade as the Moysian fit. This hand, from a tournament more than 20 years ago, was one of his favorites.

We do not know why East, who was sure of at least six tricks in diamonds, behaved so tamely throughout the auction. South opened in his long suit, then took advantage of East's silence to show his four-card major at the one-level. North took a preference to clubs, and East belatedly introduced his diamond suit.

That gave South the opportunity for a fine bid. He wanted to play in game somewhere, but he was not sure where, so he showed his power with a cue-bid of three diamonds. That almost surely denied a diamond stopper, for with the enemy suit under control, South could have bid some number of no trump. Now North described the other feature of his hand — three-card spade support. Note that he could not have four spades, since he did not raise spades immediately.

South decided that North could not have more than two diamonds on the auction. If that were the case, the defenders could not force South with diamonds, causing him to lose control of the trump suit. So South boldly bid the game in spades, his known seven-card fit, rather than in clubs, his ten-card fit. Events proved him right. After a diamond lead, he lost exactly three tricks in the red suits. He would have lost exactly the same tricks at a contract of five clubs.

The Cost of Selling

Today, in Chicago, the most outstanding TV commercials from the U.S., Canada, Australia, Ireland, and the United Kingdom will be chosen. The first commercial aired on American television was for Bulova watches. It appeared on July 1, 1941 in New York. The ad cost the advertiser $9. The cost of a one-minute commercial during this year's Super Bowl is $450,000. Roughly 22 percent of TV ad money is paid out by only 10 big sponsors.

Nuclear Utility Giant Finally Encounters A Storm

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — For nearly a quarter century, while financial and technical storms rocked other atomic power companies, Commonwealth Edison Co. remained above the tempest.

No Three Mile Island crises. No WPPSS defaults. No Diablo Canyon tremors. No fatal Marble Hill cost overruns.

Others reconsidered nuclear power. One hundred reactors were canceled since 1974. But Commonwealth Edison forged ahead.

Seven reactors running. One ready to go. Four under construction. An ambitious $8.8 billion investment by the nation's biggest atomic power provider.

"We're talking about a company that's rated at the very top," said Mark Luftig, vice president of utilities for Salomon Bros. Inc. in New York. "We're basically looking at Commonwealth Edison ... almost in a class by itself as far as bringing plants in on time and on cost."

But the utility, which serves 8 million people in northern Illinois and supplies 12.5 percent of America's nuclear power, has now encountered the storm.

Last week, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission panel, citing quality assurance failures, refused to license the utility's $3.35 billion twin-generator Byron nuclear power plant — and offered no list of remedies.

It marked the first time a license was unconditionally turned down. Commonwealth Edison found itself on a CreditWatch by Standard & Poor's Corp., which declared that the NRC decision raised questions about the utility's "timely return on and recovery" of its investment in Byron.

Byron's cost, originally estimated at $902 million, has soared, largely due to inflation and design changes needed to meet new regulations. But it still is considered low-cost, in part because it's built to a standardized design.

The NRC atomic safety and licensing board cited several problems at the plant, including an electrical contractor who had a "long and bad quality assurance record there." Federal records also show faulty instrument panels — critical to avoiding a nuclear accident — were installed despite the utility's quality assurance program.

The utility said it intentionally waited to make repairs to meet new NRC guidelines and they were fixed well before the plant's scheduled startup, posing no safety threat.

Commonwealth Edison says similar problems were discovered at its Braidwood plant — identical to Byron — but those too were repaired.

Some are hailing the NRC panel's Byron decision, saying it reflects a long-needed tightening in the regulatory environment.

"We think the NRC is becoming far more aggressive," says John Hogan, a Commonwealth Edison spokesman. "This is not to say they're not doing their job. This (the Byron action) is in a class all by itself."

And because this situation is unique, some experts say it's hurt Commonwealth Edison.

"I think this is definitely a considerable blow," says Michael Totten, director of the Critical Mass Energy Project, a Ralph Nader anti-nuclear group in Washington. "Commonwealth Edison has been one of the strong-arm utilities that's barreled their way through most problems. It (the Byron decision) definitely casts a wary eye on future plans ..."

But Hogan disagrees, saying "We're just as committed as ever. We view this problem as a short-term phenomena."

In fact, Jim Toscas, another Commonwealth Edison spokesman, said that when the second Braidwood unit is completed in 1986, the utility will be five or six years ahead of its nuclear power needs.

Although the Byron ruling may be Commonwealth Edison's most serious setback, the giant utility has not had an unblemished record. In 1983, the NRC levied 10 fines against Commonwealth Edison, totaling $600,000 — the most ever levied in a single year against a single utility, the NRC said. None was at Byron.

Among the most serious, the NRC said, was a $150,000 fine at the Quad Cities nuclear power station for inserting reactor control rods in reverse order during a reactor shutdown.

Byron also was cited in a report by the Nader group as one of the worst managed plants under construction. The NRC says Byron has only an "average to below average record."

Despite that record, Commonwealth Edison won't speculate on the possibility that it will lose its appeal, creating the prospect of a $3.35 billion plant sitting idle on the Illinois prairie.

However, the utility says, if the plant's Unit 1 reactor is delayed past its late 1984 operating date, it will cost about $30 million a month in added interest payments and higher costs.

The Illinois Commerce Commission would decide whether those costs are passed on to consumers, already paying the nation's fifth-highest rates among large cities. Some state officials have said they are considering asking the ICC to cut Byron out of pending utility rate increase request.

Without Byron, the utility says, far more expensive energy sources would be used. With Byron, Commonwealth Edison says it can't predict what rates will be although they will be higher than older, less expensive nuclear plants.

The setback at Byron, about 70 miles west of Chicago, has caused financial ripples. Commonwealth Edison's stock dropped sharply the first day of trading after the NRC panel's decision, although it rebounded the next day.

In recent years, other utilities have had their troubles.

General Public Utilities had its Three Mile Island accident in Pennsylvania. Pacific Gas & Electric had its fuel-loading license suspended when design errors were discovered in plans for seismic bracing at the Diablo Canyon plant in California, located less than three miles from an off-shore earthquake fault.

Washington Public Power Supply System in Washington state defaulted on $2.25 billion bonds on a debt from two canceled plants under construction. This week, Public Service Indiana abandoned the Marble Hill plant on which $2.5 billion had been spent.

Okay Repeal Of Blue Law

HIGH POINT (AP) — High Point has repealed its Sunday observance ordinance, or blue law, leading several merchants to say they'll probably open their stores on Sunday mornings.

The repeal, which frees retailers to open their stores all day Sunday, was approved unanimously Thursday by High Point's city council. It had been expected for about a month as the council debated the issue.

The blue law prevented retailing between 2 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sunday but made an exception for certain products, including medical supplies, gasoline, periodicals and tobacco products.

Some stores that sold those items, such as convenience stores with gas pumps, were allowed to open Sunday morning. But they could not sell grocery items such as bread and milk, which aroused public opposition.

The repeal takes effect immediately, and some convenience stores probably will respond by Sunday

THE DAILY REFLECTOR is getting an exciting, fresh new look!!!

In a recent survey of Pitt County residents 91% agreed with the statement, "THE DAILY REFLECTOR is well organized and it is easy to find what I want to read". The new, updated look will make your local newspaper better than ever.

*RMH Research, River Edge, N.J., December, 1983

Starting Wednesday, February 1, THE DAILY REFLECTOR will change from the current 8-column format to a cleaner, easier-to-read 6 column format newspaper.

Over the past several years, the newspaper industry in the United States has been working on a plan that would standardize the size of all newspapers published in this country. So far, over 90% of the daily newspapers have voluntarily agreed to change to the new standard by July 1, 1984.

A LOOK AT THE OLD AND THE NEW!

OLD
8 COLUMN

This column is an example of the old look. It represents the narrow newspaper columns of the past which are giving way to the wider, easier to read look of the six column format.

Experts have long contended that numerous eye movements from line to line make reading tiresome and difficult. And, they say, the frequent hyphenations which are necessary in a narrow column make comprehension poor.

The Daily Reflector will be changing from this old format on February 1, 1984 to the new 6-column format.

NEW
6 COLUMN

This column is an example of the new look! It represents the wider and easier to read appearance of the six-column format, which will soon be replacing the narrower newspaper columns of the past.

Experts have long contended that numerous eye movements from line to line make reading tiresome and difficult. And, they say, the frequent hyphenations which are necessary in a narrow column make comprehension poor.

The Daily Reflector will be changing to this new format on February 1, 1984.
