Heating Oil Up — In Usage And Costs

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Two weeks ago, spokesmen for the Greenville Utilities Commission warned customers that utility bills received in January would be among the highest on record, not because of an electric rate increase — there has been no rate hike — but because December's record cold temperatures forced customers to use twice as much heat.

December's record cold and chilly weather this month are having the same effect on households that heat with oil.

Charles Gaskins, who heads Quality Oil Co., said last week, "Our sales have increased ... they are up about a third. It appears to us that our customers are using a third more oil this year than they did last year for the same period."

The increase in consumption, Gaskins said, "looks as if it started in December."

"The thing that really worries us," Gaskins said, "is the increase in price."

Along with the increase in usage, Gaskins said, "over the past week or 10 days, the increase in price to us has gone up almost daily. Today it's $1.079 a gallon." That same day, other oil distributors prices ranged from $1.069 to $1.109.

Gaskins said the price "was $1.039 10 days ago. A week prior to that it was $1.019. It's bad and really concerns us."

Leon Moore said sales at Leon L. Moore Oil Co. "ought to be up 40 to 45 percent. People have used more oil, I think, than at any other time.

"Because of the temperature and wind blowing, it takes so much more oil. You can have the thermostat set at 65 degrees, but when the temperature is down there at 7 degrees, that 50-some degrees variation and the heating plant will sit there and run and run and run to maintain that heat."

NCAE Refuses To Endorse Hunt

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's budding campaign to unseat U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms received a retaliatory slap Saturday when the powerful North Carolina Association of Educators refused to endorse Hunt for the May 8 primary.

The move doesn't mean that the 42,000-member NCAE is warming to Helms, said executive secretary John Dornan. Rather, the state's largest teacher organization wanted to voice its displeasure with Hunt's refusal to lift a state pay freeze and support funding of other education projects, Dornan said.

The NCAE might reconsider its decision and endorse Hunt for the general election if he lends education greater support during the 1984 legislative session, Dornan added.

"If you look at his record, almost all the things he did for education were in his first term," said Dornan. "His second term was quite undistinguished. There were no major program initiatives."

Frances Cummings, NCAE president, said she hoped Hunt would "reclaim his title of education governor" when the Legislature convenes for its June budget session.

The decision not to endorse a candidate in the Senate race came on a recommendation by an 11-member steering committee. Of the 146 local NCAE presidents attending Saturday's session, 145 voted to accept the recommendation. One voted for endorsement.

Stephanie Bass, spokeswoman for Hunt's still-unannounced Senate campaign, said the governor had always supported education.

"He will do what he feels is right for education ... but not for just one segment of the education community," said Ms. Bass.

Press secretary Gary Pearce added that Hunt wouldn't change his stands just to get the NCAE endorsement.

Hunt last year headed a national commission on education and has forged a reputation as a leading education advocate. Nevertheless, he has steadfastly resisted tax increases to raise money to reduce class sizes, repair school buildings and buy new books and equipment.

Dornan said the NCAE was particularly displeased that state employees and teachers had gotten only one 5 percent pay increase over the last two years.

"While we can't conceive of endorsing Sen. Helms, we are hoping that Hunt will at least see that the education community is very disenchanted," said Dornan.

The politically active NCAE provides funding and campaign workers to candidates it supports — almost always Democrats. Dornan said, however, that no one should take the NCAE for granted.

"We want to retain our integrity," he said. "We don't want to support someone just because he's the lesser of two evils or because he's a Democrat."

Ms. Bass said she didn't think the NCAE action would harm Hunt's campaign. "He does have strong support among rank-and-file teachers and other members of the education system," she said. She declined to speculate on whether the NCAE would endorse Hunt later.

NCAE local presidents also voted Saturday to endorse Democrat Lacy Thornburg for attorney general and state Sen. Richard Barnes, D-Forsyth, for labor commissioner.

On Friday, the NCAE en-

Deaver: Reagan Will Say Yes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will disclose his re-election plans Sunday night in a $400,000 televised speech and the senior aide with the closest personal ties to the president said "I'm sure he's going to announce" his candidacy for a second term.

The statement by Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of the White House staff, came as close as any to a flat declaration that Reagan will run.

The 72-year-old president has been coy himself, telling people to tune in a 10:55 p.m. EST to find out.

But the establishment of an extensive re-election apparatus, the mood of his aides, and the timing of the announcement — too late in the political cycle to give fellow Republicans a chance to organize a thorough campaign for themselves — leaves almost no suspense.

"He feels a great sense of duty and he knows the job isn't finished," said Deaver. "In his own frame of mind, it would be very hard to go back (to his California ranch) and dig post holes and get out on the mashed potato circuit" delivering after-dinner speeches as a retired president.

"I'm sure he's going to announce," Deaver said, adding that "no one ever runs" for the presidency for just a four-year term and then steps down voluntarily.

Reagan remained at the White House over the weekend, rather than visiting Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland. The only events on his Saturday schedule were his weekly radio speech to the nation and a black-tie dinner with the members of the Alfalfa Club, an exclusive Washington men's club that conducts its meetings in secret.

But his aides were busy preparing for a round of television appearances Sunday morning. Senior White House officials and the already functioning Reagan campaign were booked for interviews on network news programs leading up to the president's announcement.

Reagan political allies were invited to a private White House reception late Sunday afternoon, and a party at a downtown Washington hotel several blocks from the executive mansion was planned during the evening.

Taft Seeks Seat In State Senate

Greenville attorney Tom Taft has filed for election to the North Carolina State Senate seat representing Pitt, part of Martin and part of Beaufort counties.

"I am seeking this seat in order to give our district a young, hard-working, experienced senator who can establish for us a clear leadership position in keeping with the central role our district plays in North Carolina in agriculture, medical care, education and industrial development," Taft said in a statement released after he filed Friday.

Two Candidates File For County Commissioner

East Carolina University teacher Tom Johnson filed Friday as a candidate for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners representing the Greenville township. Johnson will seek the board seat now held by Charles Gaskins in the May 8 primary election.

A member of the ECU faculty for 17 years, Johnson previously held administrative and teaching positions at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Clemson University.

A native of Wayne County who continues to manage the family farm there, Johnson said, "I will use my experience in farming and education to promote effective and efficient government which is responsive to the needs of the citizens of Pitt County."

He said, "Comprehensive planning and cooperation with town and city governments as well as voluntary agencies is essential to continued strong and orderly economic growth in our county."

Annette Watson MacRae of Bethel filed Friday afternoon as a candidate for the Pitt County Board of County Commissioners from District 2, which includes Bethel, Belvoir, Pactolus and Carolina townships.

The seat is now held by R.L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel, who is seeking election to the North Carolina Senate.

Mrs. MacRae, a teacher at North Pitt High School, attended Bethel High School and East Carolina University, and has also done graduate work at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She holds master's degrees in both education and English.

Mrs. MacRae has taught in public schools in Granville and Harnett counties, has taught and was audio-visual director at the Camp Lejeune Dependent's School, and has been an instructor at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, with the extension division of ECU at Camp Lejeune, and at Coastal Carolina Community College.

Reflector Changing Formats

The Daily Reflector will change its appearance Wednesday in a switch from the present eight-column news page to a six-column format designed for easier reading and more compatibility with a national move to standardize the size of U.S. newspapers.

About 90 percent of the U.S. daily newspapers polled by the American Newspaper Publishers Association say that they plan to conform to the new standard, designed to ease the task of preparing national advertising for use in many newspapers, by July 1.

Mike Brocato, retail advertising manager for The Daily Reflector, said the change will result in a newspaper that is easier to read.

"The new, wider columns, which are 2 and 1/16th inches wide, are much easier to read and cleaner looking and comprehension is greater," he said, noting that the full-page size will retain its length of 21.5 inches.

"Newspapers adopting the new system will be a great help to the advertiser in buying advertising space in more than one market," Brocato said.

Candidates Gather

State Candidates Match Ideas

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Five announced candidates for the 1984 state gubernatorial nomination underlined education as a common concern as they matched ideas and contentions in responding to questions posed by a student panel at East Carolina University.

The candidates who accepted invitations to appear at a forum Friday sponsored by ECU's delegation to the N.C. Student Legislature and the Student Government Association addressed an overflow gathering at the Jenkins Fine Arts Center.

Taking part in what amounted to a cordial debate were former State Rep. Tom Gilmore, Lt.Gov. Jimmy Green, state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox, and U.S. Rep. Jim Martin.

Candidate responses generally exceeded the time limits imposed by moderator Chris Townsend and the length of the remarks precluded the panel from asking but half of the questions scheduled for the two-hour forum.

Gilmore, in his introductory remarks, said the state is in an educational crisis with too many citizens who can not read or write and too many school dropouts. He proposed higher teacher salaries and suggested that a plan for education be brought forth, accompanied by a change in the funding mechanism. Gilmore said he also saw another need first-hand in traveling to Greenville from Raleigh: the improvement of U.S. 264.

Green told the gathering that he has served the state since 1960 when he was elected to the General Assembly. Green, who has occupied the lieutenant governor's chair since 1976, said in that capacity he has had the opportunity to "see every day more of what a governor can and should do." He said, "You couldn't do better than to put Alice (Mrs. Green) in the governor's mansion as first lady."

Ingram, recalling that three of his children earned degrees at ECU, said he has a "special place in my heart and pocketbook" for the university and has traveled U.S. 264 as much as any candidate. The commissioner emphasized that he is the only candidate who has called for an elected state Utilities Commission. He pointed to his record of "believing and working for young people all of my adult life."

Knox pointed to education as the "most important issue in the state" and suggested that increased pay for teachers, old fashioned discipline in schools, and conscientious parents is necessary to make improvements possible. Knox said education is "tied closely to jobs." The Mecklenburg County resident said environmental issues need attention and an interesting transition is under way from agricultural predominance to industry.

Martin, the lone Republican candidate on hand among four Democrats, said eastern North Carolina has not experienced its share of industrial growth. He said the next governor of the state will be an education governor who will have to address classroom teachers and their pay as a top priority. Martin recalled that under former GOP Gov. Jim Holshouser teacher salaries in the state ranked as high as 20th in the nation.

Gilmore said that he hopes the economy will allow for

Finch Regains Calif. License

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A doctor who killed his socialite wife 25 years ago and practiced in rural Missouri for 10 years after his parole has regained his California physician's license.

The state Board of Medical Quality Assurance granted Dr. R. Bernard Finch's request for reinstatement last month, saying "it would not be contrary to the public interest."

Finch and his present wife, Betty, are living in California now, but he has not yet reopened a practice in the state.

His California license was revoked in 1964 after he and Carole Tregoff, his former receptionist, were sentenced to life in prison for the 1959 murder of Barbara Jean Finch, 33, in the back yard of the couple's West Covina home.

Kremlin Sees No Change In U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin's top spokesman said Saturday he foresees no major change in U.S. foreign policy before the fall presidential election and described President Reagan's new conciliatory tone as a campaign ploy.

The spokesman, Leonid M. Zamyatin, said he saw "nothing new" in recent speeches by Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz that called for renewed U.S.-Soviet dialogue.

"Reagan wants to introduce a cosmetic element to Soviet-U.S. relations with an eye to the forthcoming election campaigns in the United States," Zamyatin said in an interview on Soviet television.

During the television program, Zamyatin replied to written questions about the campaigns. Interviewer Valentin Zorin said the questions were submitted by viewers.

"Can the foreign policy of the United States and most especially relations with the Soviet Union and such things be changed during the election campaign? I think not," Zamyatin said.

Electoral campaigns might be able to influence such policy if the incumbent were someone other than Reagan, he suggested.

"But to expect that now a radical change will occur in these positions of the Reagan administration under the influence of election campaigns — I think there are no grounds for that," he said, "because Reagan started this military machine and now considers that he can go on conducting international relations from the position of force."

Zamyatin did not predict how Reagan's policy would be judged by American voters.

But he cited a recent poll which he said showed that 37 percent of American voters list as their chief worry the threat of war and international tension, compared with only 6 percent in a poll in 1982.

He said it was this public mood that prompted Reagan to adopt a new, less aggressive tone toward the Soviets.

He also noted that most of the eight Democratic candidates for the presidency supported a freeze on nuclear weapon deployment — but he chastised them for speaking out "more against each other than against Reagan."

Zamyatin heads the international information department of the Communist Party's Central Committee. His comments were the first from a leading Kremlin official on the U.S. presidential campaign.

The tone of his comments on Reagan's policy were pitched to suggest to Soviet viewers that they should prepare for four more years of bad relations with the United States if Reagan is re-elected.

The official news agency Tass did not carry any of Zamyatin's comments on the campaign either in its Russian or English language services, indicating the Kremlin was not yet ready to promote a definitive position toward the campaign. Tass did carry a long summary of Zamyatin's remarks on other subjects.

William H. Taft Dies At Age 75

William Holston Taft, 75, of 1701 E. Fifth St., a partner in Taft Furniture Co. for 56 years, died Saturday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church by the Rev. James H. Bailey. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Taft, a life-long resident of Greenville, graduated from Greenville High School and attended N.C. State University. In addition to the partnership in the furniture store, he had served as a director of Home Federal Savings and Loan and was director emeritus at the agency when he died.

He was a former member of the Greenville Kiwanis Club and a life-long member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church where he served as chairman of the administrative board. He was recently named an honorary member of the administrative board.

He is survived by his wife, Mamie Ruth Fleming Taft; three sons, William H. Taft Jr. of Greenville, Dr. Chrles V. Taft of Winston-Salem and dorsed Carl Stewart for lieutenant governor. Tom Gilmore, who has finished far behind in most polls involving the Democratic gubernatorial race, pulled a major political coup by gaining NCAE backing in his run for the state's top office.

"We are very pleased," said Gilmore. "This will give us a tremendous boost, it will really start our momentum. This is the endorsement I value the most. It will enable many other organizations to endorse Tom Gilmore and start a movement across the state."

Ms. Cummings said Gilmore favored salary increases for teachers, smaller classes, and opposed "extra pay for extra work." She said the NCAE was especially attracted to his willingness to consider tax increases to fund education improvements.

"The delegates ... endorsed the man the steering committee felt was clearly the best candidate for public education," said Ms. Cummings. "We intend to help Mr. Gilmore lead a crusade to make our schools the best in America, and we believe he is precisely the man to lead that crusade."

Police Seal Off Student Quarter In Paris Rioting

PARIS (AP) — Riot police sealed off Paris' student quarter for hours Saturday, fighting pro-Armenian protesters and arresting hundreds. A second big demonstration in an immigrant neighborhood protested conditions in Morocco, but broke up quietly after dozens of arrests, police said.

It was the worst street violence in France since thousands of students battled police with rocks and bottles in cities across France last spring during a week of protests against educational reforms at French universities.

There were no official reports of injuries Saturday, but spokesmen for both groups claimed several demonstrators were injured in attacks by the security forces.

Police had refused to issue permits for either demonstration.

They said they arrested more than 200 people in the Latin Quarter when the protesters refused to break up a demonstration over the trial of four self-proclaimed members of the terrorist Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia. The four are on trial for the bloody takeover of the Turkish Embassy three years ago.

Hundreds of police from the Republican Security Company, France's tough anti-riot force, sealed off Paris' traditional student quarter and then fought a series of hit-and-run skirmishes for several hours with small groups of demonstrators.

Officials said that earlier Saturday, security squads arrested "several dozen" people during a demonstration intended to "show solidarity with the Moroccan people" following rioting last week in three northern cities of that North African nation.

Police said the demonstration, held in an immigrant neighborhood in northern Paris, broke up quickly after officers arrested several people. The crowd dispersed quietly, they said.

Kirkpatrick To Get Award

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, whose "plain speaking" as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations "has added a new note in world diplomacy," will receive the 1984 Harry S. Truman Good Neighbor Award, the award sponsor said Saturday.

In naming this year's recipient, the Good Neighbor Award Foundation said Mrs. Kirkpatrick is a "diplomat extraordinaire, a public servant in the best Truman tradition."

The Good Neighbor Award was established in honor of Truman, who was born 100 years ago in Lamar, Mo., and served as the nation's 33rd president. The award will be presented to Mrs. Kirkpatrick May 8 in Kansas City at the 32nd annual luncheon celebrating Truman's birthday.

"Her love of country, her plain speaking, has added a new note in world diplomacy, and her devoted service to her president has helped blaze new trails in the implementation of American foreign policy," the foundation said in a news release.

EDUCATION

The Republican Party believes that our children deserve an education second to none. We are proud of the dedication of both our public and private educators.

We are greatly distressed that the Democratic leadership in our state has allowed the percentage of our state budget devoted to education to decline during the past six years. We call for a rearranging of priorities to put education above the other spending priorities of state government. State priorities are indeed confused when $3.5 million is spent for horse show arenas while teachers' salaries are frozen by Governor Hunt and the Democratic leadership.

We call for the upgrading of math and science programs in the public schools and for stronger computer technology training at the community college level. We call for a reversal of the Hunt administration policy of concentrating all high technology job training in a small section of the state..

Campus Safety Conference

"The Responsibility and the Training" is the theme of the 31st National Conference on Campus Safety this summer to be hosted by the East Carolina University Office of Occupational Health and Safety.

The conference, set for June 24-29, will feature lectures and panel discussions of staff liabilities for health and safety, safety for maintenance personnel, stress management, environmental monitoring, ventilation requirements, back injuries, traffic safety and hazardous waste disposal.

Coinciding with the conference is North Carolina's observance of the 400th anniversary of the first English attempts to colonize the New World. Conference participants and their guests may join a group to visit the site of the famous "Lost Colony" and view the replica of the original 16th cenmtury ship, the "Elizabeth II," in Manteo Harbor.

The visit will also include a tour of the Wright Brothers Memorial, site of the first successful airplane flight. Other activities have been scheduled for spouses and children during conference sessions.

Further information about the conference is available from the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Academy PTA To Meet

The Parent-Teacher Fellowship of Greenville Christian Academy will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the main auditorium of the People's Baptist Temple.

A film, "The Christian Home: Problems and Priorities" will be shown. Information regarding the school year will be presented by Rev. J.M. Bragg, president, and Gene Lewis, principal of Greenville Christian Academy.

Society To Meet Tuesday

The Winterville Historical and Arts Society will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the old Episcopal Church building, Church Street, Winterville.

PCC Schedules Workshop

A workshop covering a new program, "The Adult High School Diploma Program," at Pitt Community College will be held from 12:30-3 p.m. Friday in room 209 of the Humber Building on the PCC campus.

The workshop will present a detailed prospectus of what the program is and how it works. Other topics to be covered include GED testing, adults basic education and human relations development.

York Pastor Elected

The Rev. Luther Brown Sr., pastor of York Memorial AME Zion Church, was recently elected chairman of the quadrennial reception of the AME Zion Church to be held in Greenville in June.

Bishop Alfred C. Dunston of Philadelphia was presiding officer at the conference held at the AME Zion Church of Kinston. Also in attendence was D.D. Garrett of Greenville.

Nags Head Man Arrested

A Nags Head man has been arrested and charged in connection with a December break-in at a home off N.C. 33 that resulted in the theft of between $11,000 and $12,000 worth of silverware and other property.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said deputies arrested Mark Timothy Graham, 25, Thursday night in Currituck County and charged him with the Dec. 16 breaking, entering and larceny incident at the home of Donnie Brewer, 100 Farmington Road. Bond for Graham was set at $10,000.

Tyson said the Brewers reported that silverware valued at approximately $11,000 was taken from the home as well as a watch and other pieces of jewelry. Officers recovered about $8,000 worth of silverware, he said.

Entrance was gained by breaking a window in the breakfast room, according to Tyson. He said the house was ransacked in the incident.

Investigation is continuing, Tyson said.

Annual Meeting Scheduled

The Bethel Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual meeting at 7 p.m. Feb. 9 in the Bethel Elementary School Cafeteria, according to Robert Young, chairman of the board.

Special awards will be presented including the citizen of the year award. Other highlghts include a message by Frank Grooms, plant superintendent of Yale Materials Handling Corp., and music by the North Pitt High School Vocal Ensemble.

Tickets at $9 per person and reservations must be made by Feb. 6. Further information may be obtained by calling 752-4101.

A&T Alumni Plan Meeting

The Pitt County chapter of the North Carolina A&T Alumni Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Gloria Dixin, 1303 Reaves Road, Ayden. Reports will be made by committees.

Tax Aid Available

Personnel to assist in filing state income and intangibles tax returns will be available each Monday through April 16 at 300 W. First St., the State Employees' Credit Union Building. Aides will be working between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Taxpayers should take their preaddressed forms mailed from Raleigh when they seek assistance.

Musical Program Scheduled

Selvia Chapel Church, located at 1701 S. Green St., will present a musical program at 4 p.m. Sunday. Featured guests will the Faithfulettes of Greenville.

Society To Receive Charter

The Society of Manufacturing Engineers will officially charter a new chapter in Greenville Feb. 14. Marcus B. Crotts of Winston-Salem, national director of SME, will be the chartering official.

Joe Humensky of Greenville will serve as the charter chapter chairman. He has served as interim chairman of the provisional sub-chapter for the past year. The newly formed chapter has 47 members from the Greenville area.

The Society of Manufacturing Engineers is an international professional technical society of 64,000 members dedicated to manufacturing education and research.

There are 215 chapters in the United States and 6 chapters in North Carolina.

Rotary Applications Available

Applications for the Rotary Foundation Fellowship for one year of foreign study are available from the local Rotary Clubs. The deadline for submitting applications is March 1.

The five Rotary Foundation Scholarships include undergraduate scholarships, graduate scholarships, volcational scholarships, teacher of handicapped scholarships and journalism scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded by District 773 in May.

For further information about the fellowship, contact a local Rotary Club.

Hunt To Appear Here

Gov. Jim Hunt will be in Greenville for a fund-raiser and reception at the Greenleaf on Memorial Drive from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

Betty Speir, who said the Pitt County Democratic Women are in charge of the arrangements, said Hunt will formally announce his candidacy for the U.S. Senate at Hunt High School in Wilson, then travel here for the reception and fundraiser.

"We expect 300 or more people," to attend the $50-a-ticket affair, Mrs. Speir said.

Additional information or tickets may be had by calling Mrs. Speir in Bethel; or Kenneth Dews of Winterville.

Public Hearing Scheduled

The Farmville Board of Commissioners will conduct a public hearing Feb. 7 to receive public comment regarding the reprogramming of approximately $400,000 of excess funds from the fiscal year 1980 and 1981 Department of Housing and Urban Development community development block grant programs.

The hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the town courtroom

Eligible activities under the federal programs include: certain land acquisitions; land disposition; certain public facilities and improvements; neighborhood facilities; solid waste disposal facilities; fire protection facilities located in or serving community development areas; street improvements; water and sewer facilties; pedestrian malls and walkways; flood and drainage facilities; clearance activities; certain public services, interim assistance; payment of the non-federal share of a grant-in-aid program;

Urban renewal completion, relocation; loss of rental income; removal of architectural barriers; rehabilitation of both public and private property; code enforcement; historic preservation; economic development activities; development of comprehensive plans; consultant fees, and administrative costs.

Revival Starts Monday

Revival services will be held at Simpson Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Monday through Friday. Pastor James Corbett, and his wife, Delores, from Christian Community Church will preach each night at 7:30 p.m.

Program Cuts Suspensions

An in-school suspension program at Rose High School has effectively reduced the school's number of out-of-school suspensions, according to school administrators.

Beginning in 1980, the number of out-of-school suspensions was 134. In 1981-82 the number decreased to 99; and in 1982-83 the number was 29. At the mid point of this school year, the number has dropped to only nine.

The program provides an ongoing tutoring for students for each class as well as individual counseling in a classroom separated from the main building and the student body.

After a specific period of time or upon the recommendation of Gloria Olds, the ISS coordinator, the student is then permitted to move back to the regular class routine without having lost valuable class instruction time.

Has Your Life Been Affected By Someone's Drinking?

Beginning on Tuesday, February 7th the Pitt County Al-Anon Family Group will meet each Tuesday at the St. James United Methodist Church, 2000 East 6th Street at 8:00 P.M.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

I have written this column in several maternal wards, in service stations and locked bathrooms, on the beach and in the car. I have written when the sound barrier was being broken in the children's bedrooms, when Phillip and I weren't speaking, and when we were speaking too much.

I have written it while grieving for lost loved ones. I have written it while all the neighborhood Visigoths were sacking the house and I was expecting dinner guests within the hour.

For nine years, week in and week out, it has been as much a part of the fabric of my life as marriage, dirty dishes, dust and in-laws. But now the time has come for me to stop. Today's column will be my last.

The decision to quit was not an easy one. I was raised to stick like a barnacle to anything I started. If I read more than two pages of a book, I have to finish it even if it was written by Norman Mailer. When I had my children, I knew that I was committed to raising them even if I did occasionally harbor thoughts of retiring to an easier life in Antartica or some other remote place where Phillip and the laundry couldn't follow me.

But commitment doesn't preclude burn-out. If Gary Trudeau is any example, even money doesn't preclude burn-out, although I can no more speak on that subject than I can on quantam mechanics. I do know, however, that I need some time to breathe without worrying about a deadline, some time to be cantankerous without worrying about being funny, and a few fresh horizons.

The one thing I will miss is my audience. I will always treasure the friends I've made through this column and the opportunity to share my quirky but lovable family with them. Each time I strip Meg's bed and find a flashlight and a book under the covers I will regret my decision a little, as I will each time I close the draperies in the kitchen so that Zachary will stop mugging at himself in the window when he's supposed to be eating.

And I'm immodest enough to hope that you'll miss me, too. If my mail is any indication, I've brought back memories to you older parents and grandparents, and I've shared the enthusiasm of you younger parents for those provoking but fascinating juvenile eccentrics who never make it between the covers of child-rearing books.

Writing humorously about my children's resistance to socialization (and Phillip's, too, for that matter) has often reminded me at crucial times of how much I prize their individuality. For this and for you, I have been and will always be grateful.

NCAE Report Has Merit But Goes Too Far

A task force created by the North Carolina Association of Educators has produced an interesting, if somewhat impractical, report proposing drastic changes in teachers' salaries and experience designations. Much of the report has merit and should be given serious consideration, but we suspect legislators will take one look at the salary proposals — $22,000 annually for a new teacher — and say no to the entire package.

In summary, the task force called for a three-level classification of teachers, opposed merit pay, called for more authority for principals, and recommended a one-year internship for prospective teachers. The intern would receive half pay. As teachers assumed added responsibility, they would become "teacher residents" or "teacher mentors," with differentials in pay ranging up to $8,000 a year.

The report also calls for revamping curriculum statewide, restructuring vocational education and shifting paperwork and bureaucratic workload from the principal to a business manager. The shift would free the principal to focus on the instructional program, the task force said.

NCAE officials estimate the salary proposal would cost the state about $720 million the first year. And that's the rub. We, like the NCAE spokesmen, believe North Carolinians are willing to pay more for good education, but an increase in that range seemingly would be out of the question. It also seems out of line to raise the starting salary quite so much — teachers now start at $12,769 — in one jump.

It seems logical to us that a much smaller increase for starting teachers, say in the $15,000 range, and larger increases for the more experienced teachers would provide stronger incentives for good educators to remain in the public schools. That probably would sound too much like merit pay, however, to the NCAE, which steadfastedly insists on higher salaries for everyone regardless of quality.

We are willing to pay more for quality education, but let's make it count. Just adding more money isn't the answer.

University Pay Plan Also High

The East Carolina Faculty Senate has asked through a resolution for a 15 percent cost-of-living and a 7 percent merit pay increase. The resolution will be forwarded to the board of governors and the General Assembly.

Chancellor John Howell said he would be working toward better salaries for faculty and other university employees. He cited faculty salary levels as "our most critical problem."

A faculty raise of 22 percent next year is not likely at East Carolina or any other state university. It is clear, though, that improvement in salary levels are necessary if we are to attract and hold the outstanding faculty members that a university of ECU's stature must have.

Sunday Morning Notes

Chet Emerson, director of the Boy's Club here, was in the other day.

The conversation turned to jogging, which Chet allowed was good exercise.

"I'm just glad I've got a bad knee so I have an excuse not to do it," he chuckled.

"I'm just glad I've got a bad attitude," staffer Jerry Raynor chimed in.

Well, January is as good a month as any to find some excuse not to jog.

Aw, come on. Meredith coeds are no wilder than anybody else.

On June 7, 1907, the town's board of aldermen activities were duly noted.

One action taken was, "The superintendent of the water and light plants was given permission to ride his bicycle on sidewalks to enable him to get to the work around town quicker."

Now there's a good idea. If the city manager, director of utilities, public works and all the other divisions of the city can be persuaded to ride bicycles to work, we taxpayers will be glad to get off the side walks and give them free access.

Annette Watson MacRae handed out notices to friends tht she would be filing as a candidate for county commissioner on Jan. 27 at 4:30 p.m.

You can't depend on the weather this time of year, however. Mrs. MacRae listed a snow date of Jan. 31.

Another reason for shorter campaign periods. There's always the danger of being snowed out on filing day. Perhaps the law should read that no filing for office will be allowed until the average historical date for the final snowfall of the winter.

At any rate, snow wasn't a problem last week. In the newspaper office where many computer terminals combine to pour heat into the news room, there were cries for air conditioning here in the middle of January. How quickly we forget the bitter cold of late December.

Rules

RALEIGH (UPI) — Last year's legislative debate over migrant worker slavery could pale in comparison with the furor farmers now are in because of a set of health and safety standards proposed for migrant labor camps.

Farmers and legislators call the rules absurd and warn they could force some growers to stop using migrants entirely. But farm worker advocates counter that the proposals in some cases are less stringent than current laws, and seem tough only because many of those current regulations are not enforced.

The state Commission for Health Services launched the controversy in November when it voted for the proposed new standards. The commission then staged a series of hearings in Edenton, Hendersonville, Benson and Raleigh, and will consider those public comments at its Feb. 8 meeting. Unless it changes the proposals then, the new regulations would take affect April 1.

Among other changes, the proposed rules require that:

— Each sleeping room contain at least 50 square feet of floor space per occupant. The old standard was 20 square feet.

— Each bed must be at least 36 inches away from any other bed, with 48 inches being the minimum spacing when bunkbeds are used.

— Smoke detectors, fire extinguishers and alarm devices must be installed in every sleeping and cooking room.

— Separate toilet facilities must be provided for men and women, along with appropriate signs in both English and the native language of the migrants.

— Crew leaders are responsible for having toilets and privies cleaned daily.

— Every habitable room in migrant housing must have a ceiling light fixture.

— In housing where food is prepared and sold for the migrants, all utensils must be washed after each use; all cooking equipment must be located under proper ventilation systems; and all storage containers must be kept clean and rat-free. No food preparation is allowed anywhere but in specified areas.

— No animals are allowed in any structure used for migrant housing, and it is the farm owner's or crew leader's responsibility to clean up any animal droppings in the camp area.

Rep. Edith Lutz, D-Cleveland, whose family operates an apple orchard, said she thinks many of the proposals violate common sense.

"How are you going to keep a stray dog out?" she asked, adding that if a fence was put up around the migrant compound to keep animals awuy, "somebody would be sure to say that you've got the migrants fenced in."

Even motels don't always have overhead lights, she said, and some migrants who like outdoor barbecues aren't going to like the requirement that food be cooked indoors.

William B. Jenkins, a lobbyist for the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, said his group thinks the proposals may be too tough.

"If the requirements are so stringent that a person's home wouldn't even qualify, then we have to look at the question of how much a person has to pay to provide housing for someone that is going to live in it temporarily," Jenkins said.

"There comes a point of no return, when you think it may be cheaper to go to mechanical picking."

Chuck Eppinette disagrees. As community education coordinator for Farmworker Legal Services, he said he has seen too many cockroach-infested, slum-like migrant camps over the years.

"One of the things that hits me about the protest is that it's a sign the state housing rules were not being followed," he said. "The majority of these rules are modeled after OSHA (the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration) that ought to be enforced anyway."

The proposals on kitchens, for example, replace 25 pages of state codes and 50 pages of federal rules that have required migrant labor food areas to be as clean as restaurants, he said.

If farmers t'ink the food rules are too strict, there's nothing that says they have to provide meals to the migrants, he said. But many probably will continue, Eppinette said, because they have traditionally made a lot of money off migrants that way.

As for keeping the animals penned, "I've never known a farm worker to have a pet," Eppinette said. "Now crew leaders have pets, and sometimes they are Doberman pinschers, which I think sometimes might be used to scare the migrants. I don't think that is an unreasonable requirement."

Mrs. Lutz and Eppinette did agree on one point — the regulations' importance. These proposals are likely to have a greater impact on farmers than did the migrant slavery law, both said, because the regulations will affect more people and carry a greater financial cost.

Glenn Prepares Advertising

MANCHESTER, N.H. — The only realistic prospect for stopping Walter F. Mondale's juggernaut from virtually clinching his nomination in the Feb. 28 New Hampshire presidential primary rests with sulphurous anti-Mondale television spots prepared by Sen. John Glenn's campaign.

In the can, ready for use but not yet on the air at this writing, the anti-Mondale commericals paint the Democratic front-runner as a fork-tongued, free-spending captive of liberal special interests. The question is not whether they will be aired but when — particularly after Mondale nicely survived the Jan. 15 debate at Dartmouth. However, Glenn's strategists want the spots preceded by positive commercials showing that the senator has done more than orbit the earth.

Advocates of other candidates contend it is too late for that and argue anti-Mondale commercials must begin now. Lacking Glenn's funds, they want to piggyback on his negative spots. Whether or not Glenn or a dark horse (perhaps Sen. Gary Hart) is the real alternative, Democratic politicians privately agree that an impressive Mondale victory in New Hampshire will wrap up the nomination.

New Hampshire has been a microcosm of the nation, with Mondale doing everything right and Glenn not doing anything. Mondale political organizer Chuck Campion came up from Boston a year ago to take up residence and build a superb organization. The map of the state in Mondale's headquarters is decorated with pins signifying dozens of visits from Fritz and wife Joan.

In contrast, Glenn's organziation did not start in earnest until early this month when Paul Shone, another professional from Boston, took over. The previous year was marked by fleeting Glenn vists with no time for Yankee-style socializing and by alienation of Democratic leaders, who were informed by Glenn national chairman Bill White that the senator's campaign here would not coordinate with them. Glenn's travels still are so criticized in news accounts for their disorganized quality that an 11th-hour reformatting of his schedule is under way.

Consequently, party insiders here consider Mondale's victory a foregone conclusion. But like most regulars they are bemused by organization and insufficiently attuned to mass opinion. Mondale's potential vulnerability is attested to by the high undecided vote and his soft support.

That opens the way for Glenn's television campaign, orchestrated by New York-based media expert David Sawyer. The pro-Glenn commericals now running here try to show him as a man of character leading the nation into a uncertain future.

Even at this late date, however, TV spots must unveil Glenn as more than an astronaut: "Do you know he's been in the Senate for almost 10 years?"

But the mainstream that Glenn coverts has been staked out by Mondale, who at the Dartmouth debate placed himself to the right of several opponents. He unexpectedly veered from liberal, Carter administration position by endorsing the Reagan administration's withdrawal of the U.S. from UNESCO, a position not contained in Mondale's briefing book.

Grace Reports Covers All Details

WASHINGTON — The first thing to be said about the report of the Grace Commission is that no one — not the president, not the budget director, not the chairmen of appropriations committees — nobody is likely ever to read the whole of this multi-volume production. Life is too short, and the books are too long.

The second thing to be said is that our nation might begin to get out of the perilous fiscal mess we are in if ever a few people in high places read even a few parts of the report. In 40 years of covering the reports of study groups, task forces and ad hoc commissions, I have seen nothing to compare with this voluminous investigation into waste, abuse and mismanagement in the whole of the federal government. The report is downright awesome.

For the record, the commission functioned entirely within the private sector. Not a penny of tax funds went into the $75 million project. All told, 161 top executives and 2,000 volunteers contributed their time and expertise to the two-year study. They came up with almost 2,500 separate recommendations for reducing federal outlays and increasing federal revenues.

In his final report to the president on Jan. 12, chairman J. Peter Grace offered a blunt warning: "If fundamental changes are not made in federal spending, as compared with the fiscal 1983 deficit of $195 billion, a deficit of over 10 times that amount, $2 trillion, is projected for the year 2000, only 17 years from now. In that year the federal debt would be $13 trillion and the interest alone on the debt would be $1.5 trillion per year."

Note the emphasis upon "fundamental" changes. A fair criticism of the Grace report is that its recommendations go far beyond the elimination of waste, abuse and mismanagement. For one large example, the commission urges massive reductions in outlays for military and civilian retirement. These costly programs cannot fairly be stigmatized as wasteful or abusive; they represent deliberate policies adopted by successive Congresses over many years.

For another example, "the Davis-Bacon Act should be repealed." This is the act that effectively compels the payment of high union wages on federal construction projects, even though prevailing local wages may be much lower. But Congress has had abundant opportunities to repeal Davis-Bacon and has chosen, as a policy matter, to retain the law.

But many of the Grace recommendations do not require fundamental changes in law or policy. In page after exhaustive page, the report delves into little inefficiencies and small economies. A typical section deals with the purchase of spare parts by the defense establishment:

"The Pentagon has been buying screws for $91 which can be purchased for 3 cents, breather caps for compressors for $100 each which can be purchased for 25 cents, and silicon-electric cells at $114 each when they can be purchased for 9 1/2 cents. The Navy's Training Equipment Center, Orlando, Fla., has paid $511 for lamps which cost 60 cents ..."

Most of the Grace report deals with reductions in spending. At the Treasury Department, the task force had ideas for increasing revenue. As of June 30, 1982, the Internal Revenue Service estimated that its accounts receivable had reached a record level of $23.2 billion. The commission urged a combination of aggressive measures for going after the delinquents. Efficient collections could bring in a billion dollars a year above current levels.

Preliminary reaction to the commission's final report has been both predictable and disappointing. In the Pacific Northwest, for example, the prospect of higher rates on federal electric power has generated no enthusiasm. The armed services are indignant at the idea of the government's reneging on promised retirement benefits. Organized labor surely will oppose any renewed effort to repeal Davis-Bacon. So far, just about every comment has amounted to a defeatist expression that such-and-such a saving is "politically unrealistic."

Very well. Congress and the White House surely are not going to buy the whole nine yards proposed by the Grace Commission, but we ought to be politically realistic on one thing: The reality is that our government is headed for financial disaster, and we had better pay attention to most of the ideas the commission advances. Amazing Grace, how sweet thy sound!

Public Forum

To the editor:

In response to Dr. Aldridge's article concerning the world not being ashamed to identify themselves, I believe it might not be that Christians are timid. Many are probably ashamed to let people know whose side they're on. Christ and a minority are a majority.

Jesus said, "Whosoever, therefore, shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation; of him also shall the Son of Man be ashamed when He cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels."

Jesus said, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth, and lo, I am with you alway."

Christians are to exercise this authority. Remember, silence is not always golden; sometimes it's just plain yellow.

To the editor:

In this New Year there have been several letters in The Daily Reflector by apologists for communism and the U.S.S.R. On Sunday, Mrs. Edith Webber in her letter conjured up the "US-Today" and projected it back to just before our Revolution. According to her portrayal, "US-Today" would abhor the loss of "profits" by the Colonists interfering with the tea trade. Both "profit" and "US-Today" were visualized as dubious.

Then Mrs. Webber depicted "US-Today" as viewing the Colonists to be communists and being aided by communist France. She considered our people of "US-Today" to be simple-minded morons who are unable to distinguish communism from any tyranny and thus judging France in the 1770s under Louis XVI as being communist. By implication she would question whether we today are justified when calling anyone "communist."

Another author wrote her letter about, and to, those who hate commuism. Hate, she wrote, harms the hater more than the hated. Surely this is true when hatred becomes a phobia. But when hating is strong dislike, great aversion, or abhorrence, then hating is not a phobia, and is even a safeguard. Our Bible teaches us to hate evil.

Are we not to consider communism as evil? Every founder and leader of communism taught and practiced, by brute force,the imposition of the details of commusism upon nations, peoples, societies and individuals. In the 67 years of national communism, more than 67 million people have been killed in those countries, not to establish communism, but to maintain it. Those 67 million murdered people did not die in warfare (when people are expected to die) but in supposed peacetime: they were potential dissenters.

Should we hate communism? Yes, for our very lives! Not as a phobia, but as dislike, aversion, abhorrence, and fear: for care for our future.

To the editor:

The customary State of the Union address is given by the president of the United States. And, this is followed immediately by a Democratic Response on the major TV networks. Couldn't we do without partisanship on the occasion of a State of the Union address? Where, oh where, is the patriotism and Americanism of our nation? Shouldn't that take precedence over the self-interests of specific groups and parties?

For example: deficit spending is the problem we Americans are faced with and it affects each and everyone of us detrimentally in one way or another. Why not adopt a bi-partisan approach in an attempt to remedy this particular problem?

Here is a suggestion as to a step that could be taken towards making a start. As a symbolic and token gesture, President Reagan, former Presidents Nixon, Ford and Carter and every member of Congress could volunteer to take a 1 percent cut in salaries or pensions. This would be the setting of an example and could result in the start of an attitude making for or leading to action on the part of each and every American, in whatever way possible, to work for this common cause: the end of deficit spending.

Reagan Can Start With A Stroll

WASHINGTON (AP) — One thing Ronald Reagan doesn't have to worry about, if he runs for re-election, is a battle for the Republican nomination. If he wants it, it is his for the asking.

Nothing extraordinary about that. Most presidents who have sought the office a second time have been handed renomination.

But it's a gift nonetheless. While the opposition party is letting blood over the choice of a nominee, the incumbent president, above politics, acts serenely presidential.

It is one reason presidents seeking re-election enjoy an advantage, and usually win.

The opposite's true, too. Presidents who are vulnerable to a challenge from within their own party are equally vulnerable when they place their records before the public.

If a big faction in his own party can't stomach the thought of four more years, a president's in the soup.

The record shows that in three instances where an incumbent president was challenged within his own party — Jimmy Carter in 1980, Gerald R. Ford in 1976 and Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968 — the opposition party won, regardless of whether the challenge was turned aside.

But three times when the incumbent faced only a lightweight challenge — Richard Nixon in 1972 — or was unchallenged — Johnson in 1964 and Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956 — the incumbent won.

The only exception was the feisty Harry S. Truman, whose victory in 1948, in the face of all sorts of internal disillusionment with him, is still startling. A banner hung at the 1948 Democratic convention in Philadelphia read, "I'm just mild about Harry," and that pretty much summed up his party's feeling toward its candidate.

For 1984 politics, what Ronald Reagan's freedom from internal challenge shows is that he is lucky or popular within his party, or both.

Nobody from what's left of the Eastern establishment wing of the GOP — the Mark Hatfield, Charles Percy, Charles Mathias wing — has made an effort to challenge Reagan and no one from the conservative right, unhappy as it sometimes says it is with his presidency, is talking seriously about opposing Reagan in the primaries or at the convention.

Just how much an advantage this can be is illustrated by a look at incumbent challenges in the modern age of politics, inaugurated by Franklin D. Roosevelt. Here's the record:

1980: Incumbent Carter is severely challenged for re-nomination in 34 primaries, by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Carter wins 24, but the battle goes right into the Democratic convention. Carter is renominated — and defeated.

1976: Incumbent Ford is severely challenged by Reagan in 26 primaries, wins 16 of them, and wins his party's nomination by a scant 117 votes out of 2,257 cast.

A wounded Ford is defeated by Carter.

1972: Incumbent Nixon wins renomination at a lullaby-peaceful convention and wins re-election. He is virtually unchallenged, having long since brushed off mosquito-sized challenges in the primaries from anti-war congressman Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California and from conservative congressman John M. Ashbrook of Ohio.

1968: Incumbent Johnson is challenged in the New Hampshire primary on his Vietnam War policies by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota. Johnson wins the primary, but by so narrow a margin — less than 8 percent — that his victory is taken as a defeat. He withdraws from the race.

McCarthy, in turn, is challenged by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, defending the Johnson record, and by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, another war critic.

The nominating process is turned sour by Kennedy's assassination on the night he defeated McCarthy inn the California primary and by street violence in Chicago as Humphrey claims the mantle. The incumbent party is defeated.

1964: Incumbent Johnson is renominated by a party still in mourning over the murder of his predecessor, John F. Kennedy, and grateful for the way Johnson has seized hold. Unchallenged, he wins the election in a landslide.

1960: No incumbent president.

1956: No challenge to incumbent Dwight D. Eisenhower, and he wins in a walk against Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson.

1952: Incumbent Truman, having served almost eight years, is constitutionally eligible to run again but chooses to retire. Both parties see struggles for the nomination.

The Republicans' battle is between the Old Guard lined up behind Midwestern Robert A. Taft and the internationalists behind Eisenhower, who wins on the first ballot.

The Democrats need two ballots to nominate a somewhat reluctant Adlai E. Stevenson over Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, a popular winner in most of the primaries.

Serenely overconfident, Dewey loses.

What this history means for incumbent Reagan is that if he runs, he can start out strolling.

Knowing For Sure

WASHINGTON — As the time for President Reagan's expected announcement for a second term approaches, the last item of discussion might seem to be presidential health. The popular media have virtually eliminated any debate on the subject; Reagan, they imply, has grown more fit with age.

But the fact is, no outside observer knows for sure. President Reagan's image-makers have skillfully improved on a pattern of secrecy about presidential health established during administrations long ago. In so doing, they may have fueled the argument for a more thorough standard of pubiic accountability.

Reagan has fought both life-threatening and chronic physical ailments since he first entered full time political life during the 1960s. In 1967 he underwent surgery for the removal of an enlarged prostate gland. While one such operation in five finds the prostate to be malignant, in Reagan's case the finding was benign.

Even before his election to the presidency, Reagan suffered from some of the afflictions subsequently more publicized by the press: arthritis, myopia (a partial loss of eyesight), a hearing impairment (now corrected by a hearing aid) and infrequent heart irregularities during stress tests.

At the same time, however, Reagan's Los Angeles physician, John Reynolds, disclosed that his famous patient was in "remarkably good physical condition." Reagan, Reynolds said, "displayed no signs of diseases that lead to heart attacks, strokes, kidney failure, lung troubles or cancer."

Since then, the assessment hasn't changed. Reagan's White House physician, Daniel Ruge, has consistently judged the president's health satisfactory since John Hinckley's insane try for the history books in March 1981. (Tests in spring 1982 for a minor urological disorder showed normal results.)

Yet, none of Ruge's positive verdicts have been accompanied by the evidence used to make them. When asked for a "state of the man" report, the White House simply refers to Dr. Reynolds' detailed assessment of four years ago.

Without the burden of potentially discoloring facts, the White House has been able to foster Reagan's healthy image. Presidential aides have steered their boss away from first-person encounters with reporters who might question his health and toward cover stories that picture him pressing weights or posing in jodhpurs.

Indeed, the White House is only following a custom established by earlier administrations. As James Chandler, professor of surgery at the University of Virginia medical school, has discovered, past presidential impairments and dysfunctions have often been treated with more discretion than anything heard from Reagan's examination room.

Among the most notorious cases may be those of two very sickly presidents, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt. Wilson suffered transient ischemic episodes even before the major stroke that devastated him early in his second term, but his paralysis was hidden from public view with the help of artful photographers. Meanwhile, FDR wore big hats and a cape and clenched a cigarette holder between his teeth to divert photographers' lenses away from his paralyzed legs.

Historical tradition does have its exceptions, of course. President Eisenhower told the public about his physical condition after his heart attack in 1955. And LBJ, who suffered a celebrated heart attack while still Senate majority leader, showed photographers the scars from his gall bladder operation.

But even in the cases of these more candid patients, the public has usually learned only after the fact how health problems may have left their cheif executive unable to administer.

While Reagan will turn 74 shortly after a second inauguration, he may not be the best case for a statutory medical examination of presidents by an independent physician.

But any corporation would want to know whether an executive were fit to serve — not whether he only appeared to be. Voters should be able to know the same.

Fallout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There once was a time when Democrats were often compared to one of those big, old-fashioned families that spent much of its time squabbling, but locked arms in fierce unity when someone from the outside horned in.

That picture has been proven wrong too often in the recent past to be plausible in 1984. The squabbles certainly were there in 1968, 1972 and 1980, but the unity never materialized. It was during those campaigns that the Democrats were described as people who formed their firing squads in a circle.

After watching the Dartmouth debate earlier this month, it seems entirely possible, despite the repeated statements that "the first priority is to beat Ronald Reagan," that the Democrats are in for another fratricidal year.

The cannonading between former Vice President Walter Mondale and Sen. John Glenn, abetted by sniping from Sen. Gary Hart, got so bad that even some of their rivals became alarmed.

Former Sen. George McGovern, who saw his own presidential hopes go glimmering 12 years ago in part because of internal party feuding, warned the combatants about the nasty tenor of their disagreement, implying that no one but Reagan was being served by the verbal shrapnel that was flying around the Dartmouth stage.

Even Jesse Jackson, who was supposed to be the confrontationist in the group, tried to cool the situation, and former Gov. Rubin Askew may have put the Mondale-Glenn fracas into context when he told them, "Both of you are right ... about each other."

And, of course, there was some truth in what Glenn and Mondale were saying.

It was true that Mondale was the first mate of an administration during which inflation reached 17 percent, but it ill behooves a Democrat to blame Jimmy Carter and his associates for the price spiral. Enough has been seen of what happened to the inflation level when oil prices drop to give belated credence to the Carter explanation that OPEC was responsible for a lot of his grief.

And it also was true that Glenn was one of the Democratic senators who voted for the Reagan economic plan that has presented the country with deficits in the range of $200 billion, but it comes with poor grace for another Democrat who didn't have to cast a vote in Congress during the 1981 session to second guess someone who did.

In short, Glenn and Mondale, and to some extent Hart, succeeded in giving the Republicans powerful ammunition to use against whichever of them — if either — wins the Democratic nomination. Just as Vice President George Bush's 1980 campagn charge that Reagan was practicing voodoo economics has been quoted back at him many times since, what was said by the Democrats at Dartmouth doubtless will be heard again from the Republicans.

All of the Democrats in the debate made much of the danger of nuclear arms and their potential for blowing up the world.

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — The latest Gallup Poll presidential trial heats, completed Sunday, show President Reagan in a dead heat with both leading Democratic contenders, Walter Mondale and John Glenn.

Reagan and Mondale are tied, with 45 percent of the vote apiece. Reagan is also tied with Glenn, and by the same score.

Mondale is far stronger than Glenn in a just-released nomination showdown, 68 percent to 24 percent, but fares no better than Glenn in test races against Reagan because of Glenn's greater appeal to voters outside the Democratic Party ranks.

The current findings represent a leveling out of the slight rise in support recorded for Reagan in test elections against Mondale and Glenn in November and December.

President Reagan continues to run far ahead of Rev. Jesse Jackson, 65 percent to 23 percent, and Sen. George McGovern, 56 percent to 32 percent.

Here is the question asked of registered voters:

"Suppose the 1984 presidential election were being held today. If President Reagan were the Republican candidate and (Walter Mondale/Sen. John Glenn/Rev. Jesse Jackson/Sen. George McGovern) were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win? (Those who were undecided were asked) As of today, do you lean more to Reagan, the Republican, or to (Mondale/Glenn/Jackson/McGovern), the Democrat?"

Here are the latest findings and trends:

In the latest national Gallup survey, Mondale receives 47 percent of Democrats' nomination votes to 16 percent for runner-up Glenn, followed by Jackson with 11 percent. The remaining five candidates receive 3 percent or less of the vote each. Mondale has widened his lead since December when he led the field by 40 percent to 24 percent for runner-up Glenn.

The latest trial heat findings are based on in-person interviews with 868 registered voters, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Jan. 13-15.

For results based on the sample of registered voters, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be 5 percentage points in either direction.

Too Much Too Fast

RALEIGH — In the past several years, the Legislature has made several changes in the criminal justice system.

The Speedy Trial Act put a limit on the time a case can be held before trial. The Fair Sentencing Act overhauled sentencing procedures. The Administrative Procedures Act reorganized the process for moving cases through court. A new evidence code is set up to go into effect this year, and the Safe Roads Act means a whole new way of handling drunken driving cases.

Now a legislative committee is preparing another monumental piece of courts legislation and the state's district attorneys are saying, "Enough is enough." A 267-page recodification of the state's criminal laws is before the Criminal Code Commission. If the court system is asked to adjust to another major change so quickly, a district attorney told the commission this month, it could undermine the effectiveness of the whole system.

The criminal code recodification is an extensive rewrite and repackaging proposal. It would take all of the state's criminal laws, either statutory or common law, and put them in one neat package. Duplication, overlapping statutes and anachronisms would be excised. This proposal involves more than editing, however. It also includes some substantive changes in law.

David Waters, district attorney for Franklin, Vance, Warren, Person and Granville counties, told the commission that the N.C. Association of District Attorneys opposes the recodification. Too much change has been foisted on the overpressed court system recently, he said. The court system needs time to catch its breath, to digest the change it's already been dealt.

"The system has a grand case of legislative indigestion in terms of the amount of legislative change that has taken place in the last several years," Waters said.

Waters said the state's judges and district attorneys need a great deal of time to prepare themselves for a major change in law and then to get accustomed to it. Right now, the system has enough to worry about with all the recent changes. But the recodification proposal would drop another major duty into the system's lap. As now proposed, the recodification would go into effect on Jan. 1, 1985. That's just not enough time to prepare, Waters said. (That date would require passage of the act this June, in the short session, and that is unlikely.)

If the recodification is passed in 1984, or even in the 1985 session, it would put a tremendous strain on the daily operation of the courts. Judges and lawyers would, in effect, have to learn an entire new set of laws. Where the system now runs smoothly due to experienced court officers, it would become bogged down as lawyers and judges constantly kept checking back with the law books, Waters said.

One of the legislators on the commission agreed, although he didn't support Waters' position. Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, a lawyer for 20 years, said, "With this, we'll effectively repeal my entire education." But Rand went on to say that the recodification "is a better mousetrap and everybody is going to have to shoulder the burden."

Waters disagrees. He sticks to his contention that the Legislature may end up fixing something that isn't broken.

"Somewhere along the line, this momentum to legislate and re-legislate ... needs to be examined as to whether it has an overall positive effect or if we've gotten into the habit of change for the sake of change. ...," Waters said. "I'm afraid we're going to break the criminal justice system in an effort to improve it."

Candidates ...

teacher salaries to be raised above the national average but he said that if funds are inadequate, he will "go to the people and ask for additional taxes" to meet those needs. "Ignorance is costly," said Gilmore.

The number one immediate priority for a new governor, according to Green, must be higher wages for public school employees, particularly teachers. Green said that until base salaries for teachers are at least competitive, any talk of a merit pay structure would be premature.

"When you talk about education, you are talking about learning to think" and having a "meaningful association with your teacher," Ingram said. He said the spendable incomes of teachers need to be brought up and the red tape and paperwork duties that he said are "strangling teachers" should be pared.

Martin said that as more and more money has been sent into the school programs, classroom teachers have received less and less. Martin proposed increases in base salaries and a merit program that would encourage teachers to better themselves.

All of the candidates endorsed the completion of Interstate 40 to serve the Wilmington port needs and connect the coastal area with the rest of the state, as well as the continued improvement of U.S. 264. Martin cautioned, however, that while it is a "good applause line" to tell citizens across the state that a candidate favors road improvements in their areas, there will not be enough funds to support all of the needed projects.

"Anybody can drive through this state and tell where the highway commissioners live," Gilmore said. He said North Carolina has the only seaport in America that is not served by an intrastate highway.

Knox said improvement of I-40 is needed in order to improve ingress and egress across the state and he said there is a need to finish the dual laning of U.S. 264. He said "everyone promises roads and no one does anything about it." Saying bond issues might be the answers to help fund road work, Knox said that "if you don't take the risks, you don't get the other benefits."

According to Green, there are three pressing political issues: "roads, roads, roads ... because we haven't had any." He said I-40 could be completed in three years and the timetable for U.S. 264 is too far in the future. "I'm going to fix 264 and 40," he promised.

Ingram said that since there have been changes made in the tobacco support program, there is "real pressure on the amount of tobacco in Stabilization," the government operated loan program. He said the control of foreign tobacco that is sold to the United States as scrap "has to be related to Stabilization."

Martin noted that trade is a "two-way street" and the tobacco industry is also an exporting industry.

Knox said the issue involves more than scrap tobacco. He said not only are farmers affected, but "the person who sells the equipment, it's the whole industry." He said the purchase of scrap tobacco hurts the eastern farmer.

Knox said there is a need to "raise our perception of tobacco — not just something I chew or Jimmy Green smokes."

Something has to be done about the amount of scrap tobacco coming "into our state and nation," said Gilmore. He said tobacco is the "lifeline of our state. The economy depends on it."

The candidates discussed the issue of having the state Utilities Commission remain an appointed body or elected by the general populace.

Gilmore said he supported an appointed board and stated that the "worst thing they could do is to have an elected Utility Commission."

Knox said that if he thought an elected commission would help to improve rates and solve problems, he would run for the chairmanship of the board rather than governor. He said if the argument for an elected board is more consumer-minded representation, "why not appoint more consumer-oriented people."

Ingram, who has strongly supported the idea of an elected board, said a government which governs best is one which is closest to the people. He said Green's contention that 11 states with elected utility commission do not have better rates is not true.

Green said he favored the current system of appointment and charged that the promise that an elected board would be more consumer oriented or result in lower rates is a "hollow argument."

Green said the public needs opportunities such as the forum to "see us and hear us and decide for yourselves." He said a "vote for Jimmy Green will be the best vote you ever cast.

Ingram left the gathering with, "You are looking at the person who can lead this state and the person who will be in there fighting for you."

Martin expressed pleasure at having the opportunity to match wits and ideas with those of the other candidates and said it is up to the public to "continue to test us."

"It's time for the beauty contest to be over," said Gilmore. "It's time for candidates to quit hiding behind their press agents." He said the public may not agree with him on all issues, but "you will know where I stand."

Knox said government is "people working together to reach reasonable solutions." He said a governor's role is to provide vision; while people provide solutions. "We have a lot to do but working together we can do it."

Oil ...

In fact, the utilities commission reported that for three days in a row in December, the temperature fell below 8 degrees and the highs barely reached 30 degrees.

George Reel, customer service representative at the GUC, said there were 729 degree days (a measurement of the amount of cold) of heating during the month of December. "In November, there were only 380.5 degree days. You can also compare this to December 1982 when there were 470.5 degree days heating."

Walker Allen of W.L. Allen Oil Co. said his firm's sales are up, and said this heating season has been "30 percent colder than last year, through Jan. 15." Although this heating season is "only 5 to 10 percent colder than normal, a couple of warm winters in the past have made it seem worse. Last January was very mild," Allen said, while "this December was the coldest on record.

"People are using more oil. I would say we are way ahead of last year," Allen said, suggesting that his sales for the first three weeks in January this year are "ahead of the entire month of January last year."

While consumption is up, "people are conserving ... not using as much more as the difference (in temperature) would indicate," Allen said. "They are using probably 20 to 25 percent more, roughly."

Another oil jobber, who asked not to be identified, said his fuel sales have increased, and expressed concern over price increases.

"The price has gone sky-high," he said, suggesting that the increases in prices is "man made," rather than the result of any shortage of oil.

Director Ed Garrison said the Pitt County Department of Social Services distributed $96,971 in crisis intervention funds to 881 housholds between Oct. 10, and the last of December, to help pay fuel and utility bills in emergency situations. He noted that the department received an additional $22,750 in crisis intervention money early this month, but said "we don't have a final breakdown of the total program participation."

In addition to the crisis intervention program, Garrison said, "the first week in February, 3,924 low income households in Pitt will receive payment" under the law income energy assistance program.

Those payments, Garrison explained, involve "a one-time check mailed from Raleigh directly to persons who made application" last year, and total $525,140.

While the average payment under the low income energy assistance program in Pitt County is about $133, Garrison emphasized that "not everybody will get that. That's just the average." Payments, he said, will range "probably from $40 in some households, up to $250 for those households with no income."

Garrison noted that the "Church Ministries United group has done an outstanding job in helping us," in emergency situations. But the DDS director said, "Their resources are limited."

"I have a personal hope," Garrison said, "that the weather continues to moderate. There is just not going to be enough resources available to meet emergency needs if the weather goes back to what it was over the Christmas holidays."

Taft ...

"Our area has become the recognized leader in these fields and we must develop and send to Raleigh a new generation of political leadership in the style of Leo Jenkins and others who have had the courage to say what this region needed and set about to accomplish it in the state Legislature even when others so strongly opposed them. The simple fact is that our region has been 'short-changed' on roads, industrial development and the booming prosperity of the Piedmont and the Research Triangle. Too little recognition is given to the fundamental role and importance of agriculture in our state's economy and life," Taft stated.

"We must have leadership that is committed to insuring greater participation in decision making and a fairer allocation of the state's limited funds and resources to our district. We must send someone to the Senate who is knowledgeable of state government, statewide issues and experienced in the legislative process."

"I am proud to have worked as the legislative counsel to the president of the state Senate for two years during which key decisions were made in establishing the East Carolina University School of Medicine and important steps were taken in so many other areas.

"As a father with two school-aged children in our public schools, I feel that education is the most important factor in moving our area forward and in creating a solid base for job development in the future," Taft said.

Taft, 38, is a native of Greenville and is an attorney and partner in the firm of Taft, Taft and Haigler of Greenville and is active in other business endeavors. He is also a member of the American Bar Association, The North Carolina Bar Association and the North Carolina Academy of Trial Lawyers.

He is a graduate of Rose High School and Duke University and he received his law degree from the University of North Carolina in 1972, where he was the editor of the North Carolina Law Record and president of the senior class. In 1979, he was named one of the Outstanding Young Men in America. From 1968-1974 he was a member of the U.S. Army Reserve.

Long active in government and politics, Taft was a page at the 1964 Democratic National Convention. He has also served on the North Carolina Equal Opportunity Commission and has been a member of the Southern Growth Policies Board, as well as a director of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Rehabilitation Center and chairman of the Pitt County United Way and the ECU Medical Foundation.

Taft is currently chairman of the board of directors of the North Carolina State Ports Authority and served as legislative counsel to then Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt from 1972-1974.

He is a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville. He is married to Kathy A. Taft and they have three children, Jessica, Paige and Thomas.

MacRae ...

Classroom Teachers, Mrs. MacRae has been local unit president in Harnett and Pitt counties, district president and member of the state executive council. Her activities as a member of the North Carolina Association of Educators includes being local unit president in Pitt County for three terms, district president, and currently a district director and member of the state board of directors.

Mrs. MacRae is also treasurer of the Pitt County Political Action Committee, has been appointed to serve on a consulting committee for the Governor's Commission for Education for Economic Growth, and is a member of a subcommittee of the Juvenile Crime Commission.

In addition to her professional activities, Mrs. MacRae is a member of the Greenville chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, the White Shrine of Jerusalem, and the Pitt County Democratic Women. She is vice chairperson of the Bethel Precinct and is a member of the Bethel United Methodist Church.

"Pitt County is my home and has been my family's home for over 150 years," Mrs. MacRae said. "I'm proud of my county and I want to contribute to its continued progress.

"I believe that my record of elective and appointive leadership, and my training and experience in administrative positions, qualify me for the challenge of serving as Pitt County commissioner."

Mrs. MacRae said "Pitt County has become the hub of eastern North Carolina and the many fine activities going on here should be carefully planned and coordinated so as to carry the county into the coming century with the most effecient and effective services possible.

"Toward that end," Mrs. MacRae said, "education will be one of the most significant programs. I want for our children the finest possible education. It deserves our very careful attention as do other social services."

According to the candidate, "crime, unemployment, and the economy are issues which must be treated, including the problems of our farmers.

"I believe in open government and I call for greater citizen particiation in solving our problems and in planning for the future."

Mental Health Association and the Greenville Rotary Club.

As a state employee for 25 years through his teaching profession, Johnson has held various leadership positions in state, district and national associations including that of president of the N.C. Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation in 1974-75.

At ECU, he was elected chairman of the faculty for three consecutive years from 1979 through 1982. He now serves as chairman of the Educational Planning and Policies Committee and is a member of the University Planning Commisson and Faculty Senate.

He has served as president of the Agnes Fullilove PTA, as a member of the Greenville Middle School planning commitee on guidance and health, and as a member of the executive comittee of the Elmhurst PTA serving as chairman of the ways and means and physical fitness committees.

He is a member of St. James United Methodist Church where he serves on the administrative board. Johnson graduated from Goldsboro High School before earning bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees from UNC-Chapel Hill.

Johnson is married to the former Sandra Walsh of Winston-Salem. He and his late wife Nancy had four children. Sons Tom Jr. and David attend UNC-Chapel Hill; Stephen, Pitt Community College, and daughter Nancy, Rose High School.

Johnson said that in compliance with state party rules, he has submitted his resignation as treasurer of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee. He has been a member of the committee since 1974.

German Leader Visits Shrine

JERUSALEM (AP) — Closely guarded by police, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl visited Judaism's holiest shrine, the Wailing Wall, on Saturday and stood before it in silence, his head bowed.

He endured some heckling from Jews with bitter memories of the Nazi German Holocaust as he spent the Jewish sabbath, the fifth day of his planned six-day visit to Israel, touring religious sites in Jerusalem.

A threat of violence also lingered.

Hussein Rejects Plan For Large Strike Force

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — King Hussein said Saturday he will not accept a Reagan administration proposal that Jordan form an 8,000-man strike force funded and armed by the United States for use in emergencies in the Persian Gulf.

But he confirmed Jordan is building up its army with U.S. backing and equipment to aid other Middle East nations in the event of a direct request.

At sessions with reporters at the Royal Cultural Center, Hussein denied he plans to accept American funding for a Jordanian "rapid deployment force" capable of protecting U.S. interests in the strategic oil-producing region.

"There are no plans to form or build a force that would carry that name," Hussein said.

Hussein's comments came after U.S. officials said late last week they would renew efforts to include $220 million in a supplemental request for the 1984 Defense Department budget to begin equipping a Jordanian strike force.

The proposal has been opposed both in Congress and by Israel, but the officials said they were diminishing the resistance.

Hussein said he would not rule out the possibility that Jordanian troops could be dispatched to another Middle East nation during a crisis.

He said Jordan is building up its army to help other Arab nations if asked to do so with "aid from the United States," saying it "is something we are carrying out."

But he said he would do so on a direct request from the nation itself.

France Warns Will Strike If Lybyans Move In Chad

PARIS (AP) — Five months after reluctantly committing troops in Chad, France has made clear there will be a direct confrontation if Libya's troops or the rebels Libya supports dare cross the French forward line.

The French troops are backing the forces of Chadian President Hissene Habre in their civil war against Libyan-backed rebels loyal to former President Goukouni Oueddei, the man Habre ousted.

On Friday, the French expanded their area of control in Chad an average of 90 miles north of the 15th parallel — to the 16th parallel, and beyond in some areas — and told their 3,000 troops to fire "without warning" on any "hostile elements" that tried to cross the new line.

Additional F-1 Mirage interceptor jets and Jaguar fighter planes have been dispatched to Chad's capital of N'Djamena, and French helicopter patrols began Saturday along the new defensive perimeter.

"No hostile presence was detected," the Defense Ministry reported.

The moves were in response to a ground raid — allegedly by Libyan forces —inside government- and French-controlled territory, which resulted in the downing of a French jet fighter plane Wednesday. The pilot was killed, becoming the first French casualty since France intervened in August.

Libya says the raid was carried out by Goukouni's rebels.

The new tough posture by France indicates President Francois Mitterrand is no longer simply trying to contain the Libyan and rebel advance in Chad. He is trying to push it back for the first time in this latest outbreak of what has been almost continual civil war for 19 years in Chad.

The new French defensive line for the first time places French forces inside the potential range of Libyan warplanes based in southeast Libya and the disputed Aozou Strip in northern Chad.

It also advances the French position to within 120 miles of the oasis town of Faya-Largeau, Libya's main advance base. France claims Libyan forces have enlarged Faya-Largeau's air strip to handle transport planes.

Apartment Fire Kills 5 People

WALDEN, N.Y. (AP) — Fire destroyed a three-story apartment building early Saturday, killing five people, critically injuring one man who jumped to safety and leaving 11 others homeless in freezing temperatures.

The blaze broke out at 4:51 a.m. at a brick and wood-frame building on Main Street that housed two floors of apartments above a pizzeria, said Fire Chief Jim Ryan.

Firefighters said the heat from the blaze was so intense that they could not enter the building until 6:30 a.m., 15 minutes after it was brought under control. A nearby senior citizens' home was evacuated as a precaution.

The dead included a woman and her two young children and a teen-age boy and teen-age girl, he said. He did not identify them, pending notification of their families, and had no further information on their ages or relationship. The causes of death had not been determined, he added.

The injured man, reported in critical condition at a nearby hospital, landed on a cement driveway at the rear of the building. He had jumpd from the roof of the burning structure to a lower building's roof and then to the ground, Ryan said.

Other residents escaped down fire escapes and "any way they could," he said.

Ryan said the fire's cause was under investigation, but that he had concluded it began on the second floor and that investigators had ruled out arson.

"The building is so badly damaged, it's really hampering our investigation up there," he said. "The second floor is destroyed and the third floor fell in on top of it so we are digging to find out what happened. That's why it took us so long to get the bodies out."

The fire was battled by more than 100 firefighters from Walden and four surrounding communities, he said.

Walden, an Orange County town of 5,000, is about 55 miles northwest of New York City. The destroyed building was next door to the former Eagle Hotel, said officials, who earlier erroneously identified the hotel as the site of the fire.

Meanwhile in Newburgh, about 10 miles east of Walden, a fire burned through an apartment building at about the same time, injuring one person slightly, but leaving about 100 people homeless.

Manerva Roman, 39, a tenant of the apartment complex, was charged with setting the blaze that destroyed or damaged 69 apartments, police said.

She was arraigned on a charge of second-degree arson Saturday and was being held in the Orange County Jail without bail.

Police said the woman apparently started the fire in her apartment in a fit of anger Friday night, after arguing with a person she lived with. Ms. Roman suffered burns on her hands and forearms when she tried to put out the fire in its early stages, officers said.

Customs Agent Is Found Dead

DRYDEN, Texas (AP) — The handcuffed body of a U.S. Customs agent abducted from a Rio Grande bridge was discovered near the border Saturday, and a man later stopped for questioning about the killing shot himself to death, authorities said.

The body of Customs agent Richard Latham, 50, was found a half-mile outside the border city of Eagle Pass, 55 miles southeast of Del Rio, where he was kidnapped Friday when he stopped a van carrying four armed men. The men were believed responsible for the robbery of a Mexican jewelry store, authorities said.

Later Saturday, in Dryden, in far southwest Texas about 140 miles from where Latham's body was found, police stopped a car with three people for questioning. The agent's gun was later found in the car, along with a bag of jewelry, officers said.

One of the passengers fired a .357-Magnum he was holding and shot himself, dying instantly, said Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells.

He identified the man as Jesus Reyes Ramirez, 26, believed to be from Mexico.

"It is not known at this time whether it was an accidental shooting or a (purposeful) self-inflicted gunshot wound," Wells said.

The two other men in the car were taken into custody.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals S.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

We wonder what five-card major addicts would have made of the late, great Adam Meredith. Not only did he believe in opening four-card majors, he was a proponent, and practitioner, of the theory that a one spade opening bid had considerable preemptive value, and that, therefore, you could afford to open one spade on a three-card suit!

While you could argue about the merits of some of Meredith's bidding ideas, no one questioned his playing ability. This hand was played many years ago, but it is still making the rounds of the bridge columns in one form or another.

East's preempt achieved its desired effect in the auction. It robbed North-South of the bidding space they needed to explore for the right contract. Meredith was never one to be shut out of an auction, and he cheerfully drove the hand to what, to most players, was an unmakable slam.

West led the king of clubs, and East discarded a diamond on dummy's ace. Obviously, East had been dealt 13 red cards, and Meredith found a way to take advantage of the distribution, providing that West held exactly three hearts headed by the queen-ten.

The hand was going to have to be played at no trump, because Meredith had to draw all of West's trumps. On the spades he discarded four clubs and the ace of diamonds(!) from the table. East did as well as he could by pitching six diamonds from his hand.

Now declarer finessed the jack of hearts successfully, then cashed the king. Next he led a diamond from the table, and now his genius in discarding the ace of diamonds became apparent. If East played low, declarer's queen would win the trick and the ace and nine of hearts would bring his total to 12.

However, it did not help East to rise with the king of diamonds. He had only red cards to return, and no matter which suit he chose, declarer would have the rest of the tricks.

Shuttle Launch Friday To Kick Off Ambitious U.S. Space Schedule

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five astronauts and the space shuttle Challenger are to launch from Cape Canaveral on Friday to kick off the most ambitious year in NASA's history — with a total of 52 men and women scheduled to make 10 flights.

This week's mission will feature the first untethered space walks, with two astronauts testing jet-powered backpacks to roam up to 300 feet away from the orbiting shuttle.

The flight starts at 8 a.m. EST Friday, and much of what the crew does, including the backpack tests, is rehearsal for the next flight in April when another crew will attempt to retrieve and repair the defective Solar Max satellite.

The astronauts also will chase an orbiting balloon to test maneuvers needed to track down Solar Max and will practice the necessary repairs. They plan to end the flight Feb. 11 with the first landing on a 15,000-foot runway near the launch pad at Kennedy Space Center.

"This flight will be a bridge to the next one," said commander Vance D. Brand, veteran of two earlier space flights.

Other crew members are Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert L. Gibson, the pilot; and three mission specialists, Navy Capt. Bruce McCandless; Army Lt. Col. Robert Stewart; and Ronald E. McNair, a physicist who will be the second black to fly on an American spaceship.

After the April flight, the NASA launch rate accelerates to one a month. The most manned flights ever launched by NASA in a single year was five, during the Gemini program in both 1965 and 1966.

The 1984 missions will include deployment of a dozen commercial satellites, the second Spacelab science flight and the first all-military mission in June with a secret payload. A third shuttle, Discovery, will debut in June, joining Columbia and Challenger in the fleet.

Six women and three blacks have been assigned missions during the year. An August flight will have two women in the five-person crew — Sally Ride and Kathryn Sullivan, the first female astronaut ticketed to make a space walk.

Brand said the major goal of the upcoming flight — the 10th for the shuttle — is to deploy two commerical communications satellites for paying customers, Western Union and the Indonesian government.

These are to be dispatched on the first and second days of the mission. Then the crew will concentrate on the tools and techniques for the April Solar Max mission. Solar Max is the $100 million Solar Maximum Satellite, which has been ailing in orbit since an electronic box fuse failed shortly after it was launched four years ago. The plan is for astronauts to replace the electronics box, enabling the satellite to do its job of studying the sun.

The key for retrieving Solar Max is the backpack, or MMU as it is called, for Manned Maneuvering Unit. There are two mounted in Challenger's cargo bay, and they both will be tested by McCandless and Stewart, with McCandless making three flights and Stewart two, each flying out to about 300 feet from the shuttle as it orbits 190 miles high at 17,400 mph.

In April, 300 feet is the distance the shuttle will "park" from Solar Max while astronaut George Nelson jets over to latch onto the satellite to bring it into the cargo bay.

Neither McCandless nor Stewart consider their pioneering tetherless space walks daring or risky.

"The backpack is very easy to fly and risk is very minimal," said Stewart.

If something goes wrong and one of them is unable to steer himself back to Challenger, Brand and pilot Gibson are trained to fly over for a rescue.

"This is a very critical test to the future of the program. They're not going out there more than 300 feet and we're not going to let them out of our sight," said Brand.

Carrier-Based Jets Sweep Beirut Area After Helicopter Fired On

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. jets swept over Beirut's southern suburbs on reconnaissance missions Saturday minutes after a ground-to-air missile was fired at, and missed, a Navy helicopter over the U.S. Marine base, state radio said.

Saturday evening, a cab bomb blew up in predominantly Moslem West Beirut wounding 16 people, and an explosion in a print shop near the high-rise Murr Tower injured two people, according to police.

The private Voice of Lebanon" radio station said gunmen in a passing car killed Walid el-Jamal, once a leader of the Mourabitoun Moslem militia who was known to have cooperated with Israel. There were no claims of responsibility for his death or the bombing attacks.

The U.S. jets staged no attacks and drew no fire, the government's Beirut radio said.The Marines would not comment on the radio reports.

Formations of F-14 Tomcat interceptor jets took off from U.S. aircraft carriers in the Mediterranean off Lebanon's coast, the radio said.

Four Phantom F-4 fighter bombers staged similar sweeps about three hours later at 1:15 p.m (6:15 a.m. EST), it said.

The official radio reported the missile incident, but gave no details. The Voice of Lebanon radio station of the rightist Christian Phalange Party said the missile was fired from Beirut's Hay el-Sellum neighborhood, a stronghold of anti-government Shiite Moslem militiamen.

The Hay el-Sullum militiamen are known to possess shoulder-fired SAM-7 "Strella" missiles, but neither station reported the type of missile or the type of helicopter involved.

Capt. Keith Oliver, a spokesman for the U.S. Marines based at Beirut's international airport, said he could neither confirm nor deny the helicopter incident. Nor would he confirm the reported reconnaissance flights.

"We cannot comment on any tactical air maneuvers," Oliver said.

Meanwhile, U.S. special Middle East envoy Donald Rumsfeld and Richard Murphy, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for Near East and South Asian affairs, met with Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, the state radio reported.

Neither American official made any statement after the 90-minute meeting at the presidential palace. Both then flew to Amman, Jordan, the radio said. It said the talks focused on the progress of a Saudi-sponsored plan to establish a true cease-fire in Lebanon.

In Amman, officials said Rumsfeld and Murphy met with King Hussein, but there was no word on what they discussed.

Government troops and Syrian-backed Druse insurgents exchanged intermittent artillery and mortar fire in the Baissour bluffs east of Beirut and the Kharroub region to the south. No casualties were reported.

The Lebanese magazine al-Shirra on Saturday quoted Druse leader Walid Jumblatt as demanding an international investigation be conducted into U.S. naval bombardment of Druse villages in Lebanon's central mountains. U.S. ships have fired in support of the Marine contingent on several occasions since last September.

The magazine also quoted Jumblatt as saying in an interview that he plans to meet soon in northern Lebanon with former President Suleiman Franjieh, a Maronite Christian, and former Prime Minister Rashid Karami.

Study Shows Insurers Fail To Check For Points

One Of A Series

By CRAIG WEBB

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Flaws in North Carolina's auto insurance pricing system enable hundreds of thousands of people to escape the higher rates their driving records indicate they should pay, a UPI study shows.

The six-month examination found that insurance companies in 1981-82 missed more than 60 percent of the Safe Driver Insurance Plan (SDIP) points they should have assessed from 1979 through 1981. Those are the most recent years for which data is available.

The point system generally follows the state's method for determining whether a driver should keep his license. But under SDIP, points are imposed for traffic violations and accidents in order to figure what a driver's rates should be. A one-point assessment for an illegal turn, for example, would hike a driver's rates 10 percent. The surcharges go as high as 450 percent for 12 SDIP points.

That scale makes it impossible to calculate the amount of money the insurance companies lost because of the missed surcharges. It appears clear, however, that the total must mount in the millions of dollars.

When SDIP violations aren't converted into higher rates, insurance experts said, drivers incurring the missing violations don't pay enough for their share of the losses. At the same time, truly safe drivers pay more than they should, the experts said.

UPI's study found problems exist because:

— Drivers don't tell agents about their traffic tickets. Insurance companies can check a driver's record by getting it from the state Motor Vehicles Division, but copies cost $4 each and some insurers don't want to pay the price.

— Many drivers who are caught avoid rate hikes by canceling insurance on their own auto and driving someone else's car, without that other person telling their insurer about the new driver.

— In North Carolina, only the car has to be insured, not the driver. The result is that a safe driver can loan his car to a friend for a trip around the block and end up paying dearly if that friend gets a ticket.

— Only three of the state's 10 largest firms check drivers' records at least once a year. The rest check no more than every other year, even though surcharges can be imposed for only three years after the conviction or accident. More than a third of the 19 firms questioned check only every three years or more, thus missing the potential revenue from surcharges entirely.

— North Carolina's auto insurance rates are among the nation's cheapest, making people less likely to protest inequities in the rating system.

Those problems combine to create the dilemma — and the solution — which confronted a Greensboro teacher.

The schoolteacher told Rep. Mary Seymour, D-Guilford, that her husband is an alcoholic who had turned in his driver's license. One day the husband took the teacher's car, and soon after was charged with driving while impaired. That's when the schoolteacher learned that, under the rating system, her auto liability premium of $110 a year would soar to more than $500.

"She was crying and she said 'What am I going to do? I can't afford that,'" Mrs. Seymour recalled. "I said 'Have you talked to your adjuster?' She said yes, and he told her 'Don't worry, the company probably won't ever catch it.'"

What North Carolina's rating system has become, then, is a paradox: a system that depends on drivers' records to set fair rates but does not provide any guarantees those records will be checked.

That paradox appears likely to cause more inequities. In December, the insurance industry gave Insurance Commissioner John R. Ingram a set of proposed changes in the rating system. One would hike the surcharge for one SDIP point to 15 percent from the current 10 percent.

Those changes are based on analyses of the losses incurred by drivers who are paying for one SDIP point. But the group studied does not include those drivers who actually should be assessed one SDIP yet aren't. As a result, the group being studied is not a reflection of the true experience by all those people who actually have one-point infractions against them.

Insurance executives protest that they can't assess surcharges exactly because some of the missing SDIP points are for people who are dead, who moved or who got accidents while driving the company car rather than their own. Thousands more hide their points, they said.

But the protests conceal two more basic reasons. First, insurance companies dislike searching for points because they don't want to enrage customers with rate increases that easily can run 10 times larger than the cost of a traffic ticket.

And second, insurers never wanted the system. Only Massachusetts, Hawaii and Michigan ban the same rating factors as North Carolina, and most insurers wish the Tar Heel State would rejoin the rest of the country.

Insurance companies everywhere have been little more than bookie operations, figuring the odds of a person getting involved in a wreck. Viewed through insurers' eyes, all drivers are accidents waiting to happen. The difference between profit and loss lies in figuring out which drivers will cause accidents the most often and charging them accordingly.

In most states, insurers do their handicapping partly by viewing the driver as the member of a particular group. Young unmarried males under 25, for example, were considered nearly twice as likely to cause an accident in 1982 as married males under 25.

But Insurance Commissioner Ingram generally dislikes such groupings because they penalize good drivers who happen to be in a wreck-prone age, sex or territorial class.

Only after a driver causes a loss or gets a ticket should the insurance companies begin charging higher rates, he says. One consultant to the commissioner calls this philosophy "proving your badness."

Donald T. Zimmerman, regional manager for State Farm Mutual Insurance Co., the state's second largest auto policy writer, said Ingram's system encourages deception.

"Suppose you come to me today and ask (about rates with) your driving record and I tell you five points — a 140 percent surcharge," he said. "You say 'I'll think it over.' You go down the street, lie.

"What I'm saying is that this is cruel. It forces people to make integrity decisions. People are scared to report accidents."

SDIP surcharges aren't the only extra charge faced by a driver who proves his badness. Insurance companies also impose on drivers with SDIP points a surcharge to cover losses by the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility. That surcharge of 18.7 percent will jump to 27.2 percent starting April 1.

The Reinsurance Facility is the pool where insurers put all the drivers that companies don't want to cover but must, by state law, write insurance policies for. The companies share the losses caused the drivers in the facility but cannot collect any profits if the drivers they cede to the facility go accident-free.

Although the base rate for drivers in the facility is 10 percent to 14 percent higher than that paid by drivers getting ordinary insurance, the industry says drivers in the facility don't pay large enough premiums to cover their losses. So until 1981, all drivers paid surcharges to help cover those losses.

But then Ingram pushed a bill through the Legislature banning surcharges on any drivers with clean driving records. The result was to pile more of the financial burden onto those drivers who had SDIP points.

Insurance executives complain regularly that Ingram's system has forced as many as 25 percent of all North Carolina drivers to drop their insurance, but there is mixed evidence for their claim.

The North Carolina Rate Bureau, which handles filings for rate changes on behalf of the industry, reports that the amount of money paid for claims by people with uninsured motorist coverage has shot up 90 percent between 1980 and 1982. The coverage protects drivers who get in wrecks with people who don't have the state-mandated liability coverage.

That 90 percent increase contrasts with only a 13 percent rise between 1980 and 1982 in the number of convictions for driving without insurance. And state Motor Vehicle Division officials believe just 2 percent of the state's autos do not have some kind of coverage, although this figure does not reflect the number of people who don't buy insurance themselves but regularly drive another person's insured auto.

Imbalances in rates aside, North Carolina's auto insurance is fairly cheap. One consultant's study ranks North Carolina 48th among all states and the District of Columbia for private passenger automobil insurance.

North Carolinians paid an average of $210.72 per car per year for coverage compared with the national average of $298.30, the study found. New Jersey led the group at $455.80 per year, while insurance coverage in Alabama cost just $190.55 per car annually.

Insurance experts say those low rates reflect North Carolina's dispersed population, low court judgments, meager wages and cheap hospital beds. The state's economic growth and trend toward higher judgments are changing those factors, however, and as a result rates aren't expected to stay low for long.

In the meantime, look for a continued struggle over how rates are figured. Ingram has spent 12 stormy years in the commissioner's office, and despite nearly nonstop quarrelling with the industry he has been able to bring about some changes, such as unisex insurance rates.

Ingram is leaving office now to run for governor, but the most determined candidate to replace him is a former state representative — James Long of Burlington — who helped get the unisex law passed.

The insurance lobby, one of the biggest and most potent in the Legislature, has won a few battles of its own. The most important came in 1977, when the industry won the right to put rate increases into effect over Ingram's objections while fighting Ingram in court. The result, industry executives say, is a climate that finally is generous enough to let some companies offer rate cuts of as much as 21 percent below the industry standard.

Nuclear Leak Repaired

ROWE, Mass. (AP) — A tiny leak that dripped radioactive water at the nation's oldest operating commercial nuclear power plant was repaired Saturday and crews began working toward restarting the reactor.

New England Power Co. spokesman William McGee said crews replaced a leaking tube at Yankee Rowe during the morning. The tube is used to measure water pressure in a larger pipe.

McGee said it takes between two and three days to heat up the reactor to its full capacity of 185 megawatts.

"We should be able to start up the reactor later this weekend and have it operating at full capacity by the middle of next week," McGee said.

The plant declared an "unusual event," the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's lowest classification for a nuclear power plant problem. McGee said the leak posed no danger to workers or the environment.

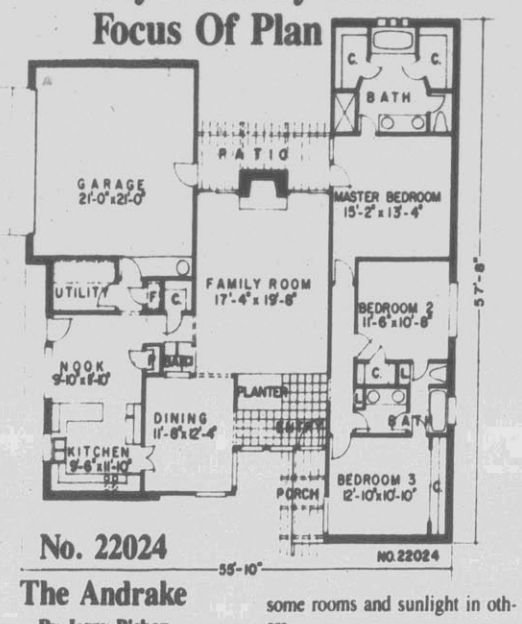
Skylit Family Room Focus Of Plan



No. 22024

The Andrake

By Jerry Bishop

Airy and accessible, the 19-ft. family room with light-catching skylight promises a focal point for family living in the Andrake, a sleek single level contemporary.

Informal living is stressed, and this three bedroom home combines kitchen and dining nook and includes a patio and double garage for convenience.

On the exterior, the Andrake's clean and simple lines account for its appeal. Inside, windows are well-placed to assure privacy in some rooms and sunlight in others.

An entry porch leads to the bright foyer, where a planter is provided for an indoor garden effect. Directly at front, the family room welcomes guest and family alike and is edged by a walk-in closet and wet bar, both handy for entertaining. Two pairs of sliding glass doors join family room to patio and allow guests to mingle outdoors.

Solar Pond Project Completed

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A solar pond project described as the largest of its kind in the world has been completed here under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Consisting of 80 pond modules covering 11 acres, it supplies domestic hot water to the post laundry and 26 barracks buildings housing approximately 6,500 people at Fort Benning.

The mammoth project's original design is the result of collaboration between Lawrence Livermore Laboratories and the Savannah District of the Corps of Engineers. Construction cost was approximately $4 million.

"The advantage of this design is its relatively low cost and high efficiency," says Ronald G. Sibold, area engineer for the Corps of Engineers' West Georgia office.

"The original investment is expected to save $8 million to $10 million over a 20-year period. By using the sun, the Army is saving energy equivalent to 11,300 barrels of oil each year."

Approximately 3.6 miles of underground piping was installed to supply water to the barracks and laundry. A 500,000-gallon-capacity water storage tank and 50,000-gallon-capacity sump tank are included in the system, which is monitored and controlled by a computer system.

Each pond module measures 15½ feet by 200 feet. Modules consist of concrete walls, an insulated sand bedding and a water bag under arched glazing covers of translucent panels made with a polyester resin based on NPG glycol, supplied by Eastman Chemical Products Inc. The glycol helps provide the panels with weather and chemical resistance.

The glazing panels are rated to transmit 89 percent of available solar energy, enabling the black plastic water bags, filled with about 4 inches of water, to reach 140F to 160F on most afternoons.

At peak temperature, the water is pumped to the insulated storage tank for distribution during the night and next day to the barracks and laundry.

The project was constructed by Construction Management Engineers Inc. of Miami under Corps of Engineers supervision.

Here's the Answer

Q. — My brother and I expect to build a house or, at least, get started on one, some time this year. We have been doing some pricing of materials and have found them very high. We have been told we can save a lot of money by using green lumber. Is this a practical idea? We plan on doing most of the work ourselves.

A. — Yes, you can save considerable money by using green lumber, but it is usually moist and rough, requiring a lot more work than dried lumber. If you want to get a proper perspective on working with green lumber, get a copy of a book by Leigh Seddon. It is called "Green Lumber Construction" and is published by Garden Way Associates, Charlotte, VT 05445. It gives a true picture of working with green lumber, including its many disadvantages, and is frank about costs.

Q. — We have a toilet bowl that is partially stopped up. After a number of tests, I have concluded something is caught in the bowl apparatus, since water readily drains. The partial stoppage occurs when there is paper in the bowl. Can I remove the bowl and find the object blocking the passageway?

A. — Yes, but it is a tricky chore that requires knowledge of what you are doing, plus a measure of skill. It is a job best left to the plumber. Tackle it only if you have had some plumbing experience.

Q. — I will soon have to repaint the outside of our house. It is badly in need of fixing before the painting. I first planned on removing the old, scaling paint with a burner, but my neighbor has convinced me that is too dangerous. One of the paint stores in my neighborhood is advertising an electrical heating unit to soften paint. It says the device has no flame and therefore is safe. Do you think this will do the job?

A. — Probably, but it will use a lot of electricity. Remember that such a device can only soften the old paint. You will still have to scrape it off, just as you will have to if you apply a chemical remover. It's the scraping that is the hardest part of the job. Ask your dealer if he has a chemical remover which is applied and then hosed off rather than scraped off. A friend who tried it said it was faster, but that it was also messy. When you get down to it, there is no simple method of removing old paint from the outside of a house.

Q. — We plan to put up a small building on our property about 25 yards from the house. It will need an asphalt shingle roof. In some preliminary discussions with the roofer, I have suggested roofing felt over the wooden deck before the shingles are put on. He says this sometimes traps moisture between the covering and the surface of the roof deck, but I read somewhere the felt is a necessity. What is your view?

A. — It is generally agreed by roofing experts that the roofing felt serves a number of useful purposes, not the least of which is to prevent the entrance of wind-driven rain onto the deck should any shingles be damaged or torn later by abnormally high winds. The roofer is right in one respect. Coated sheets of heavy felt could trap the moisture, as he says. But this will not occur if 15-pound asphalt-saturated felt or other "breather" materal of low vapor resistance is used.

(You can get Andy Lang's "Guide to the Selection of Roofing," which contains as asphalt color chart, by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Clocks Are More Than Timepieces

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

If there is such a thing as a right time to consider the subject of clocks, then the beginning of a new year would seem to be that time.

You may think of a clock as a utilitarian item — one which most households could not get along without — but for many people buying a decorative clock is an exercise in nostalgia, according to Philip Miller, vice president of Howard Miller Clock Co.

Telling time is not the primary function of a decorative clock, says Miller. Instead, the clock is seen as an accessory that enhances a home and, perhaps, provides a sense of tradition and history.

"Our research indicates people look for appearance first, then they consider the cost of the clock in relation to its features," he said. Functional considerations come last.

According to officials at Seth Thomas Clock Co., the industry generally divides the clocks it sells into types. There are alarm clocks, wall clocks, mantel and table clocks, and floor clocks as major categories. In addition, there are marine clocks, metronomes and barometers, all of which are forms of clocks.

Although clocks appear to have changed little from decade to decade, the industry recently has gone through a major technological change as quartz crystals have replaced traditional clock mechanisms.

The quartz crystal has made deep inroads into all clock categories except floor clocks which still tend to be the traditional key-wound grandfather clocks.

The long-term accuracy and tiny size of quartz crystals have produced a revolution, particularly where wall clocks are concerned. Not only are quartz clocks more accurate than other clocks, they require less maintenance. Since there is no plug, no necessity to wind the clock, and no maintenance beyond changing the battery about once a year, the advent of quartz crystals has meant an increase in the number and sales of wall clocks.

One indication that decorative clocks are more home accessories than home appliances is the fact that such clock manufacturers show their wares at furniture markets.

At the most recent North Carolina Furniture market, a great variety of traditional and modern clocks were on view in a number of showrooms. Designs ran from reproductions of 18th-century and 19th-century case clocks to avant-garde designs created by architects and industrial designers.

At the retail level, clocks are sold in specialty clock shops, at furniture stores and in department stores.

Miller recommends shopping at a variety of outlets to see a good selection of clocks before making a purchase.

"Clock shop personnel tend to be the most knowledgeable and can answer questions about care and make comparisons of one clock to another," he said.

Although digital clocks and watches are currently popular, Miller predicted the old-fashioned clock face with hands that revolve would never completely go out of fashion.

He noted that digital clocks have become popular several times in the 20th century. On each occasion, they have gone out of style and the old fashioned hands of time have returned to favor.

Today, most people tend to take clocks for granted. They are available in remarkable plenty, and some models are so inexpensive that we tend to discard them even when they are in working order.

We might marvel more over the timepieces we casually toss out if we were to consider that the meanest clock today would have been considered a miraculous invention some centuries ago.

Julius Caesar never saw a clock like the ones we throw away without a thought. Caesar had to rely on sundials and water clocks to measure the passing of his hours, according to David S. Landes, author of "Revolution in Time — Clocks and the Making of the Modern World."

Today, though time may be at our command, we are also hostages to the tyranny of time, since our lives are run by the hour, the minute and the second.

Our bondage to time started in the monasteries of Europe in the Middle Ages when a regular routine of devotions and work was set up, says Landes.

The sound of the "cloche" or bell (the French word from which our word clock descends) told the monks what to do next.

Outside the monastery, the world was regulated by the sun and the tolling of the hour was not so important. But as modern industry triumphed over an agricultural way of life, time took on secular importance.

One way to get an extra smooth, professional-type finish on a piece of furniture that has been varnished, lacquered or shellacked is to rub it with pumice stone in the form of powder.

Different wood finishers have different pet methods in the use of pumice powder. Some favor a felt pad for the rubbing, some a burlap pad. Some think water is the proper lubricant to use in combination with the pumice, some think oil is better. And some feel that a light machine, such as an oscillator, gets superior results.

Years of experience with powdered pumice have produced certain conclusions. One is that a felt pad is the ideal instrument for the rubbing. Another is that oil is a better lubricant for the beginner. Water cuts a little faster, but if not used very carefully, can damage the finish. Later, when you become more skilled at rubbing with pumice, you can try it with water.

If this is so, then why not use oil all the time and forget about water whether you are an expert or a novice? Because, for one thing, water should never be used on shellac. Secondly, water leaves an unsoiled finish on varnish or lacquer, whereas oil leaves a bit of stickiness. Oil, therefore, requires an extra step — wiping. A clean, damp cloth is used for the wiping, followed by a second going-over with a clean, dry cloth. In all rubbing and wiping, always work in the direction of the grain.

In rubbing with the powdered pumice and a lubricant, whether oil or water, dip the pad lightly in the liquid, then rub without much pressure. The oil can be paraffin oil, crude oil, a light mineral oil and even the ordinary oil used for sewing machines.

The slightest foreign ingredient in the pumice, on the rubbing pad or in the wiping cloth can cause scratches, so everything should be carefully inspected before being used. Some wood finishers sift the powder through a piece of cheesecloth to eliminate any bits of grit.

When the pumice rubbing has been completed, the finish should be very smooth and with a kind of satiny appearance. Some persons prefer a higher gloss. If you are one of those, you will have to get the desired look by repeating the rubbing procedure, but this time with rottenstone or a rubbing compound. Rottenstone also comes in powdered form. The principles for its use are the same as pumice; that is, when water is used as the lubricant, it will cut faster but is a bit trickier to use. Also, as with the pumice, the water should not be used on shellac.

Q. It looks like the cold weather has killed all the leaves on my azaleas. Will they bloom this spring, or are the flower buds dead too? (O.L., Cary)

A. Just because the leaves are dead does not mean the flower buds have been killed. Winter injury varies across the state. Wait until spring before doing any pruning or you may cut off unharmed flower buds.

Q. I would like to know how to take care of Concord grapes. Mine don't ripen and only grow to about half size. (K.K., Catawba)

A. 'Concord' bunch grapes do not perform well in North Carolina except in the mountains. Our summer evenings and nights are too warm for the pigments in the grapes to change color and for the grapes to ripen properly. The symptoms you describe are typical for gardeners who have grown Concord in the state. 'Alden' is a blue-black variety that is similar to Concord, but is adapted to the Southeast. You may want to try it.

Q. With what and when do you fertilize a magnolia? (C.W., Cerro Gordo)

A. Southern magnolia (Magnolia grandiflora) should be fertilized in January or February while the tree is dormant. Magnolia trees seem to grow best when fertilized with organic materials such as cotton seed meal, tankage, fish scrap and decayed cow manure. If these materials are unavailable, one cup of complete fertilizer per inch in diameter of trunk will be sufficient. Do not use a fertilizer with a high nitorgen content. You may fertilize again in midsummer. Do not fertilize in autumn, since the plant's growth rate is slowing down. Excessive plant food at that time can stimulate growth and result in winter injury.

Developers Get 'Barren' Sites

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Herman Melville, in "Moby Dick," referred to the Albany pine barrens as "desolate" and "inhospitable wilds."

A newspaper article in 1867 called the miles of sand and pitch pines "a mistake in nature, an enormous fraud on the worms and bugs which usually get a living on bad land."

Today, "this wretched land" is considered prime territory for developers as the cities of Albany and Schenectady encroach upon its eastern and western borders.

Despite the efforts of preservationists, the pine barrens have become crisscrossed with four major highways and dotted with expensive homes and condominiums. A giant $54 million shopping mall on 180 acres is to open in March.

Donald Rittner, a local historian and naturalist who has spent 11 years fighting to preserve the pine barrens, is manager of the preserve and is also founder of the American Pine Barrens Society, which is dedicated to studying and preserving pine barrens, and author of a book on the pine bush.

The Albany pine bush, now reduced to 4,000 acres but once 40 square miles, is a sand delta formed 14,000 years ago by a glacial lake.

In order to survive the encroachment of more common woodland species, the pine bush has to burn every five years or so. Pitch pine cones release their seeds only in fire, and dormant buds spring forth from beneath the scabby bark after a tree burns. Other characteristic species have extensive root systems which send up new sprouts after a fire.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
is getting an exciting, fresh new look!!!

In a recent survey of Pitt County residents 91% agreed with the statement, "THE DAILY REFLECTOR is well organized and it is easy to find what I want to read".* The new, updated look will make your local newspaper better than ever.

*RMH Research, River Edge, N.J., December, 1983

Starting Wednesday, February 1, THE DAILY REFLECTOR will change from the current 8-column format to a cleaner, easier-to-read 6 column format newspaper.

Over the past several years, the newspaper industry in the United States has been working on a plan that would standardize the size of all newspapers published in this country. So far, over 90% of the daily newspapers have voluntarily agreed to change to the new standard by July 1, 1984.

A LOOK AT THE OLD AND THE NEW!

OLD
8 COLUMN
This column is an example of the old look. It represents the narrow newspaper columns of the past which are giving way to the wider, easier to read look of the six column format.
Experts have long contended that numerous eye movements from line to line make reading tiresome and difficult. And, they say, the frequent hyphenations which are necessary in a narrow column make comprehension poor.
The Daily Reflector will be changing from this old format on February 1, 1984 to the new 6-column format.

Filming Mishap Severely Burns Michael Jackson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Michael Jackson checked out of a hospital Saturday after being treated for severe scalp burns he suffered when his hair was ignited by special effects while he filmed a TV commercial.

More than 200 calls a minute had streamed into the switchboard at Brotman Memorial Hospital and avid fans had poured into the medical facility in attempts to see him.

Dr. Steven Hoefflin said Jackson left the hospital in a wheelchair at 12:30 p.m. and was escorted by a bodyguard and relatives.

"He's home, and he just wants his fans to know that he's all right," said Jackson's tour manager Larry Larson.

Hoefflin said Jackson will receive daily outpatient treatment consisting of removal of bandages and application of ice to the burned areas.

Hoefflin, a plastic surgeon, said Jackson still had some discomfort from the burns but "he wanted to leave the hospital and I thought it was appropriate to discharge him at this time." He had said earlier Jackson could suffer some permanent hair loss.

Jackson, 25, a multimillionaire who won eight American Music Awards this month and could win 12 Grammy awards next month, had a palm-sized patch of his scalp singed Friday night while filming a commercial for Pepsi-Cola — one of two that will be shown during the nationally televised Grammy presentations on Feb. 28.

Jackson's tour manager, Larry Larson, said a "special pyrotechnical effect" somehow ignited Jackson's curls, which had been pomaded for the filming.

Doctors said Jackson suffered second- and third-degree burns.

Jane Korsi, a spokesman for the hospital's communications operation, had said earlier the hospital was getting an average of 200 calls a minute through the switchboard. Brotman had called in 13 additional employees to handle the calls.

"Everybody wants .o talk to him. Some people are crying, and they get very upset when they can't get through. Many are trying to pass themselves off as relatives — sisters and cousins," she said. "If the president of the United States came here, I don't think he'd get as many calls."

Before Jackson's discharge, doctors had described him as exhausted and in pain, but he spent Saturday morning visiting other patients in the burn unit to cheer them. Jackson previously had visited patients there twice at Hoefflin's request.

Doctors had said earlier that Jackson might spend several days in the hospital because he was "slightly exhausted."

Jackson had managed to sleep during the night "but was up watching TV to 1 a.m.," Hoefflin said at a news conference earlier Saturday at the hospital in the western Los Angeles suburb of Culver City.

Jackson's boy-soprano lead vocals made him the teen idol of the Jackson Five singing group in the mid-1960s. Few black performers have come close to Jackson's success. His "Thriller" album catapulted Jackson to superstardom.

The accident in the Shrine Auditorium near downtown occurred as Jackson was coming down terraced steps toward the front of the stage, singing a Pepsi jingle to the tune of his hit song "Billy Jean," said Margaret Watkins of Fullerton, who was watching the taping.

John Branca, a spokesman for the singer, said a smoke-bomb canister may have exploded on Jackson's hair, which was treated with pomade for the scene. But police Lt. Marion Helenkamp said he understood the fire was ignited by sparks from fireworks that were going off during the filming.

Fire At Orlando Hotel Leaves 34 People Hurt

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A suspected arson fire broke out in a 14-story hotel early Saturday, injuring at least 34 people and forcing guests onto balconies where some were rescued by ladder, officials said.

About 250 people were evacuated from the Howard Johnson's Hotel after the fire broke out on the seventh floor of the 270-room building at 1:51 a.m. and began spreading upward, officials said.

"People were on the balconies, of course, and tying sheets together to come down the sheets," said Orlando Fire Capt. Bill Smith. "We had to convince them not to do that."

Fire department spokeswoman Leslie Brewington said 34 people, including four firefighters, were treated at the scene for burns and smoke inhalation. Officials at four local hospitals said they admitted 10 people and treated and released 22 others.

"Suspicious persons" were seen leaving the hotel, but no arrests had been made, Smith said. "Our investigators ... termed this an arson case," he said, adding that the fire began in a conduit that carries electrical wiring through the building. The blaze was controlled about an hour later.

Guests, most awakened by a hotel intercom, fled to balconies to escape smoke that spread as high as the 11th floor, said Ms. Brewingon.

Ten people were plucked from seventh-floor balconies with a ladder truck but those on higher floors were beyond the reach of rescue equipment, Ms. Brewington said. They waited until firefighters ventilated halls and arrived with paramedics carrying oxygen equipment to escort them to safety, she said.

"It was terrifying," said 32-year-old Diane Mangum of Salt Lake City, who was staying with her husband, Karl, in a 10th-floor room. They made their way through smoke-filled halls to a ninth-floor balcony and awaited help with 24 other guests.

Among those hospitalized were Ampro Morales, 32, of Houston, and her 6-year-old son, Paul. They were listed in serious condition at Orlando Regional Medical Center with second- and third-degree burns.

Harley Moore, 64, of Augusta, Ga., also was in serious condition after suffering smoke inhalation and requiring resuscitation, said a hospital spokeswoman who asked not to be identified.

A Costa Rican man, Augustin Guillen, 37, his daughter Beatrice, 12, and son Eric, 10, were listed in fair condition with respiratory problems at Florida Hospital Orlando.

The entire hotel was evacuated after the people on balconies were rescued and the guests were sent to other lodgings.

Among them were sequestered jurors in the grand-theft trial of suspended Orlando City Councilman Ernest Page, and members of an international banjo show who entertained the evacuees as they waited in the parking lot.

On Dec. 3, 1981, an arsonist threw flammable liquid on 13th-floor carpeting at the hotel, forcing more than 100 people to be evacuated but causing no injuries.

Chicken-Hearted

NEW YORK (AP) — A poultry farmer who couldn't bear to let 6,500 chicks die turned her family's home into an incubator and spent the night "watering, feeding, watering and feeding" the chirping orphans, officials said Saturday.

"It's unbelievable — when you talk to them you can hear all these chickens in the background," said Joyce Richards of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. "They must be really devoted people."

The ASPCA on Thursday confiscated the chicks from a cargo terminal at Kennedy Airport, where they had spent two days without food and water after their scheduled flight to Istanbul, Turkey, was canceled because of fog.

About 2,500 chicks already had died, and the remaining 6,500 were to be put to death Saturday if the society could not find a home.

But a Long Island poultry farmer, who requested anonymity until Monday so her family could concentrate on saving the chicks, took them under her wing Friday evening, said Ms. Richards, the ASPCA's animal placement director.

The farmer, with help from her husband and daughter and other farmers in the area, expected to save more than half the chicks, Ms. Richards said.

The family was "walking around in shorts because they have (the heat) up to 90 degrees," Ms. Richards said. "They've been up all night and they are still working to save these little lives."

Drivers Charged In Two Wrecks

Greenville police charged two drivers with safe movement violations Saturday following investigation of traffic accidents.

Cars driven by James Alfred Evans of 2514-B Dickinson Ave. and Alvin David Parrott of Route 13, Greenville, collided on Dickinson Avenue, causing $350 of damage to the Evans car and $250 to the Parrott vehicle. Parrott was charged with a safe movement violation.

John Aites Jenkins of Vanceboro was also charged with a safe movment violation Saturday following an accident on 10th Street involving his vehicle and one driven by Hall Ryland Tankard of Washington. Damages to both cars were estimated at $500.

Nancy Harrison Wilson of 2004 Fairview Way was charged with a safe movement violation Friday following an accident on Greenville Boulevard involving her vehicle and one driven by Kimanh Phan of Riverbluff Apartments. Damages to the Wilson vehicle were estimated at $300 and $400 to the Phan car.

James Benjamin Langley of 2605 Crockett Drive was charged with driving while impaired Friday after his car struck a tree on East Fourth Street. Damages to Langley's car were estimated at $3,000.

No charges were pressed in an accident Friday involving Gregory Scott Tucker of 102-D Belk Dorm. According to police reports, the car Tucker was driving struck a utility pole. Damages to Tucker's car were estimated at $400.

Timothy Ray Wilson of A-16 Glendale Court was charged with a safe movment violation Friday following an accident involving the car he was driving and one driven by Dorothy Stauffer Paschal of 1709 Rosewood Drive. Damages to the Wilson car were estimated at $750 and $175 to the Paschal car.

No charges were pressed in an accident involving cars driven by Sammy Gene Hodges of Winterville and Johnny Louis Lemon of 809 Eagle Road Friday on Memorial Drive. Damages to the Hodges car were estimated at $800 and $400 to the Lemon vehicle.

Classes Starting

Mondale, Hart Say Reagan Plans Tax Hike

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aiming direct shots at President Reagan a day before he announces his re-election plans, Democratic candidates Walter F. Mondale and Gary Hart on Saturday accused him of planning a secret, post-election tax increase and condoning wrongdoing in his administration.

"Obviously, Reagan is planning to raise taxes after the election," Mondale told a news conference in Sacramento, Calif. "There's no question they're going to raise taxes. What they are trying to keep from the American public is who's going to pay those taxes."

In Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Hart told about 200 students at George Washington High School that Reagan shows a "contempt for the public trust" by tolerating unethical behavior and abuses of power within his administration.

"Abuse of government has become a way of life in this administration," he said. "Yet, it seems to concern no one very much, including the president himself."

"We can no longer tolerate an administration that keeps people in office as long as they cannot be found guilty of criminal offenses. Our public servants much be charged with a higher duty than merely staying out of jail."

Meanwhile, Sen. John Glenn pushed through New England with his new slogan as the candidate of "the sensible center" and Sen. Alan Cranston told voters in Washington State he was the one Democratic candidate with the "clear, strong message" necessary to defeat Reagan.

With the Democrats pounding at him from coast-to-cast, Reagan flashed his best Cheshire-cat smile for photographers at the White House and held up a folder with "Presidential Statement" printed on the outside in big letters.

It contains the text of the five-minute speech he will give Sunday night on a $400,000 telecast paid for by his re-election campaign committee. The president remained coy to the end about what he would say, but all his aides and associates said there was no doubt in their minds he will ask for four more years in the White House.

Reagan was heading out for dinner later in the evening with the members of the Alfalfa Club, an exclusive Washington men's group that conducts its meetings in secret.

Mondale, who picked up the endorsement Saturday of former Gov. Pat Brown and several other leading California Democrats, contrasted what he said is likely to be Reagan's approach to raising taxes in 1985 which his own $60 billion proposal.

"What he's talking about is a flat tax that hits the very people who didn't get any relief (in earlier Reagan tax cuts) and leaves the wealthy and the profit-making corporations in a position where they continue their enormous tax relief, or a national sales tax, which slugs that average family the hardest," Mondale said.

The proposals outlined this week by Mondale, the acknowledged front-runner among the eight Democratic candidates, is aimed primarly at the wealthy and corporations — calling for a 15 percent minimum income tax on corporations.

Glenn, trying to rejuvenate his his campaign to stay within striking distance of Mondale, told New England audiences the "bosses and barons" were trying to dictate votes for the former vice president.

"Democrats are fully capable of thinking for themselves," he said. They can read and watch television."

Sen. Ernest Hollings took his campaign from town to town in New Hampshire, former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew was winding up a week-long offensive via camper through the small towns of Iowa, where former Sen. George McGovern also was campaigning, and Jesse Jackson met with his campaign steering committee in Washington before flying to Greenville, S.C., for dinner with his mother Saturday evening.

GOP Official Ties Reagan Future To Fate Of Southern Republicans

By WILLIAM COTTERELL

ATLANTA (UPI) — The head of the Republican Senate campaign committee said Saturday President Reagan and Southern GOP Senators are mutually dependent for re-election next fall.

"Our fate as Republican senators rides with the president this time around," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind. "As unemployment goes down, Ronald Reagan's approval rating goes up, along with the standing of our party."

In a speech at the Southern Republican Leadership Conference, Lugar added that "the economic issue is cutting our way" this year.

Lugar, re-elected in 1982 when Indiana's jobless rate stood at 14 percent, and Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., a winner in Reagan's near-sweep of the South in 1980, told partyofficials the president's second term strategy depends heavily on keeping a GOP majority in the Senate. Both Republicans said Reagan's own popularity is a major plus for the 17 Republicans seeking re-election and GOP challengers for the other 16 seats up for grabs this year.

Republicans hold six of the 11 Senate seats up for a vote in the South this year. Two GOP incumbents, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and Armed Forces Chairman John Tower of Texas, are not seeking re-election.

Lugar said the 55-45 Republican majority may slip to 52 or 53 seats this year, but that he is confident of keeping control of the Senate at least through the first half of a second Reagan term. He told the GOP officials that "1986 is very much in our minds" because many southern winners of the 1980 Reagan rout — including Mrs. Hawkins, Sens. Mack Mattingly of Georgia, Jim East of North Carolina and Jeremiah Denton of Alabama — will be up that year.

Lugar said the size of a Republican majority next term will depend largely on Tennessee and Texas. He said former "bollweevil" Democratic Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas, who switched parties after being ousted from the Democratic caucus for supporting Reagan's budget proposals, is leading two other Republicans in polls to succeed Tower but that the GOP has no strong Tennessee candidate since Gov. Lamar Alexander refused to run.

Similarly, Lugar said the party is looking for candidates to run against Sen. Bennett Johnson, D-La., and Howell Heflin, R-Ala. He said he would like to see a Republican oppose Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., although Nunn has been endorsed by Georgia GOP officials this year.

"I don' think it does Mack Matting's re-election campaign for 1986 much good to have the party dormant this year in Georgia," said Lugar.

He said Sens. John Warner, R-Va., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., "are in very good shape" in polls taken by the party. He said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has regained ground lost last year to Gov. Jim Hunt, his likely opponent, and predicted that a survey early this year will show Helms back in front.

"The president is a plus factor there," said Lugar. "North Carolina obviously is a place where massive armies of the night are contending."

Reagan Expected To Propose Budget With Few Surprises

By ELAINE S. POVICH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's budget, which goes to Congress this week, is likely to contain few surprises and do very little to change the course the president has set in his first three years in the White House.

Reagan is expected to send Congress a $924 billion spending plan that includes a 13 percent increase in defense spending, several billion dollars in proposed domestic budget cuts and no major tax initiatives except for plugging a few loopholes.

"It's going to be a bland budget," a House leadership aide said. "Normally we get bits and pieces coming in weeks before, but we really haven't gotten anything. I think that's been the intention all along."

In past years, members of Congress got a look at the budget a few days in advance, usually over a weekend. This year however, the administration wants to wait to brief members until a day or two before Wednesday's official release of the fiscal 1985 spending blueprint.

Reagan has said defense spending will account for 28 percent, or $305 billion, of the budget. That is less than Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's request for $325 billion, but still a 13 percent increase over last year.

Another area where Reagan appears ready to put more money is Latin America. Administration officials said the president will ask Congress to follow the recommendation of the Kissinger commission and appropriate about $8.4 billion for a five-year Central American aid program.

Congressional tax experts and many economists were looking for Reagan to support some kind of taxes that would help ease the projected $180 billion deficit. But Reagan insists on no new taxes.

"Why bother to increase taxes when you can get it through loophole closings," Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said last week.

Shultz To Begin 5-Nation Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz sets out Tuesday on a nine-day tour of five Latin American and Caribbean countries, bearing a message of American support and sympathy for the democratic processes in each one.

Shultz was to have visited El Salvador and Brazil last fall but postponed the trip after the bombing of the U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut. On his forthcoming trip, he will visit those two countries as well as Venezuela, Grenada and Barbados.

All the countries on his itinerary are in varying stages of democratic development, and a U.S. official who briefed reporters Friday said the unifying theme for the Shultz trip is American support for democratization of the region.

Shultz's tour will begin in El Salvador where presidential elections are scheduled for March 25. El Salvador is currently headed by an unelected civilian president, Alvaro Magana, and the Reagan administration is hopeful that the March balloting will represent a major step toward making the country more democratic.

Shultz is scheduled to meet with Magana, Foreign Minister Fidel Chavez Mena, Defense Minister Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova and with opposition political leaders.

Shultz will depart Tuesday evening for Venezuela, one of Latin America's most stable democracies where a new president, Jaime Lusinchi of the Democratic Action party, will be inaugurated on Thursday.

Panel Blocks Voting in 7 Districts

By GENE WANG

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A decision by a three-judge federal panel overturning reapportionment of seven legislative districts is a "disaster" for the May 8 primary elections, a legislative leader said Saturday.

"This is a complete disaster," said Rep. Allen Adams, D-Wake.

The three-judge panel ruled Friday that 1982 reapportionment plans for seven legislative districts — five in the House and two in the Senate — violate the federal Voting Rights Act because they deny blacks the opportunity to elect black candidates.

The House districts affected are Mecklenburg County, with eight seats; Forsyth County with five seats; Wake County with six; Durham County with three; and a district made up of Wilson, Edgecombe and Nash counties with four seats.

The Senate districts affected are a three-seat district made up of Mecklenburg and Cabarrus counties and the single-member 2nd Senate District, which covers Bertie, Chowan, Gates, Hertford, Northampton counties and portions of Edgecombe, Halifax, Martin and Washington counties. The court barred the state from conducting primaries in the disputed districts until changes are made. If new plans are not adopted by March 16, the court said it would draw its own.

"It completely messes up the primary elections," Adams said, because realigning the districts affected by the court order might require changes in adjoining districts to meet federal court standards requiring each legislator to represent roughly the same number of constituents.

Legislative leaders must decide whether to appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court or comply with the decision and call a special session before the March 16 deadline.

"You've got to appeal," Adams said. He said he had expressed his opinion to House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, Friday night but Ramsey did not indicate his opinion.

State Sen. Marshall A. Rauch, D-Gaston, said, however, the General Assembly should call a special session and comply with the court ruling.

"Redistricting is a political matter, something legislators are extremely interested in. I don't think the demand from the people will be there to continue to spend money or time to fight the court decision," he said.

"I am willing to accept it," said Rauch, the chairman of the Senate committee that prepared the reapportionment plans.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, the chairman of the House Legislative Redistricting Committee, said he was disappointed at the court ruling and wanted to discuss it with Ramsey and other leaders before reaching a decision on what the Legislature should do.

"What is the effect of an appeal?" he asked. Lilley said he was concerned that if the state took the case to the Supreme Court and lost, the Legislature might be ordered to go further than the lower court required.

The challenge of the 1982 reapportionment plans was filed by blacks who contended the use of large, multi-member districts in the state's major urban areas deprived black candidates of the chance to win in legislative races because their votes were diluted.

Hunt Campaign Names Finance Committee

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate campaign of Gov. Jim Hunt has announced its finance committee members, including dozens of corporate executives, two former congressmen and former U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps.

The 119-member finance committee's purpose is to raise money for Hunt's expected challenge to U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms. Aides say the campaign's goal is to raise about $5 million.

Joseph W. Grimsley, Hunt's campaign manager, said Hunt was able to win broad business support because of his efforts to recruit industry and create a favorable business climate in the state.

The co-chairmen of the finance committee will be C. Felix Harvey of Kinston, chairman of Harvey & Sons, and Arthur Cassell, chairman of Casard Furniture Manufacturing Corp. of High Point.

Members include Hugh McColl, chairman of NCNB National Bank; John McNair, vice president of Wachovia National Bank; C.C. Cameron, chairman of First Union National Bank; Jim Martin, chief executive of Ti-Caro in Gastonia and president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute; Dewey Trogden, chairman of Cone Mills and president of the N.C. Textile Manufacturers Association; former governor and Duke University president Terry Sanford; and former Democratic congressmen L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro and Nick Galifianakis of Durham.

Hunt Says DWI Arrests Falling

RALEIGH (AP) — Drunken driving arrests in North Carolina dropped 13 percent in 1983 from the previous year's total, Gov. Jim Hunt said Saturday, attributing the decline to the Safe Roads Act.

Hunt's office released official state Highway Patrol figures showing that arrests on charges of driving under the influence and driving while impaired totaled 44,153 last year, compared with 50,639 in 1982 — a reduction of 6,486.

"I credit this significant decline in arrests for driving while intoxicated to the tough new laws against drunken driving mandated by the Safe Roads Act ... and the positive response our citizens are showing," said Hunt.

"Removing drunken drivers and speeders from our roads is our troopers' top priority. Our troopers are simply finding fewer drunken drivers out on the highways now," he added.

The Safe Roads Act, a comprehensive rewrite of the state's drunken driving laws, was introduced in the Legislature in January 1983. It was approved after months of debate and revision and took effect Oct. 1.

The law created the offense of driving while impaired, provided for immediate, 10-day driver's license suspension upon arrest, and raised the minimum drinking age from 18 to 19. It also made plea bargaining more difficult and set forth a strict sentencing plan that makes most offenders serve time in jail or perform community service work, pay fines and forfeit their license for a year.

The decline in DUI arrests by the highway patrol began in February 1983, when charges were down 195 from the same month the previous year. There were steady declines in each ensuing month.

Arrests fell more sharply after the law took effect in October. October 1983 DWI charges totaled 2,833, compared with 3,878 in 1982 — a decline of 1,045. November's arrests fell by 1,246 from the previous year and December's charges were down by 1,053.

Lt. Col. W.A. (Billy) Bishop was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in 1918. The flying ace had previously been awarded the Victoria Cross and was officially credited with destroying 72 enemy aircraft during World War I.

Madison Rolls Up 71-54 Win Over ECU

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

HARRISONBURG, Va — It was the classic matchup: strong inside game versus hot outside shooting.

In the end, James Madison's front line prevailed, as the Dukes rolled up a 71-54 ECAC-South victory over East Carolina Saturday at the Convocation Center despite Curt Vanderhorst's 20-point effort and 17 from freshman William Grady.

Eric Esch posted a career-high 19 points for JMU while hitting on nine for 12 attempts from the field. John Newman added 10 points for the Dukes, while Eric Brent and Darrell Jackson scored nine each.

Madison's 23 out of 30 from the free throw line made the diffence in the game as the Pirates shot just five free throws in the first half — making two — and none in the second. The Pirates were whistled for 24 fouls on the night, compared to just 11 against Madison.

"If this is the best officiating the ECAC-South has to offer, then we better start looking around for new ones," ECU Coach Charlie Harrison said. "The officiating didn't cause the outcome of this game, but it can really change the tempo. There's got to be some degree of consistancy; it's not just this game.

"My kids work too hard not to get a well-officiated game."

But again the young Pirates were beaten on the boards, as JMU hauled down 35 to the Bucs' 27.

"They play very physical basketball," ECU Coach Charlie Harrison said. "Our kids got intimidated early, but they never gave up. Once (our players) learn to be a little bit more physical we'll be all right, but right now we're getting beat up inside."

Vanderhorst came alive with 18 points in the second half for a game-high 20 on the night, while Grady contributed nine of his total in the frame.

Madison held a 34-18 lead at halftime and quickly spread the gap to 18 on a field goal by Esch, but Vanderhorst popped in three from outside and Grady added another to trim the margin to 39-28 with 16:26 left in the game.

Esch and Newman muscled inside to help the Dukes build their lead to 15 at the 14:32 mark, but again Vanderhorst and Grady connected from outside to cut the margin to 45-36 with 12:33 to be played. After Jackson scored again inside for JMU, Tony Robinson drove in for a layup on a fast break to set the margin at nine with 11:31 remaining.

But that was as close as the Pirates would come, as a pair of 17-footers was all the offense ECU posted while Madison manuevered inside for 14 points and a 61-42 advantage at the 3:43 mark.

The ECU backcourt continued to produce points, but JMU connected on all

No Let-Down As Heels Rip Tech

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — After blowing out Wake Forest Wednesday night, North Carolina coach Dean Smith was naturally concerned about a letdown against Georgia Tech.

The top-ranked Tar Heels struggled, but finally pulled away from the Yellow Jacket 73-61.

"I thought we played exceptionally well on defense," said Smith. "I was worried about a letdown, but the defense is where it usually shows."

The offense was another matter.

"Offensively, I thought we were careless," Smith said. "We had five super shots, shots you dream about, but they wouldn't fall and Georgia Tech was in the game the rest of the way."

The Tar Heels received a little help from Georgia Tech when the Yellow Jackets got into early foul trouble.

"I thought it was a great basketball game, except for the last two minutes," said Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins. "They killed us on the boards."

It was Michael Jordan who worked his way out of a second-half shooting slump at the foul line and helped the Tar Heels to pull away. He was 2 of 7 from the field in the second half before making repeated trips to the foul line to give the Tar Heels some breathing room.

The Tar Heels, now 16-0, used their stall game to augment Jordan's free throws and continued to build their lead from the foul line. The 12-point margin at the end of the game was the largest lead North Carolina held during the afternoon.

Georgia Tech trailed by only 2 at halftime at 33-31. The Yellow Jackets overcame foul problems on their front line to tie the score four times in the first eight minutes of the second half.

The Yellow Jackets were able to stay inside with the Tar Heels briefly during that period as center Yvon Joseph and Bruce Dalrymple got free for layups.

But the fouls began to pile up against Georgia Tech. Joseph, who had three fouls in the first half, picked up his fifth with just under 12 minutes left. John Salley, a 6-11 forward, followed Joseph to the bench soon after, taking away the Yellow Jackets' height and board strength.

Sam Perkins added 16 points for the Tar Heels, who are now 7-0 in the conference. Dalrymple was the top scorer for Georgia Tech with 16, and Mark Price added 14. The Yellow Jackets are now 14-3 overall and 4-2 in the ACC.

Peartree, Wright Out

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

HARRISONBURG, VA. — East Carolina junior guard Bruce Peartree will sit out the remainder of the season and bronchitis forced forward Barry Wright to miss the Pirates' weekend trip to face James Madison and Navy, according to university reports.

Peartree, whose knee was operated on prior to the start of the season to repair bone chips, elected to work on improving his academic status while rehabilitating for the rest of the semester. But ECU Coach Charlie Harrison has also given Peartree the opportunity to talk to other schools about his collegiate future.

"Bruce wasn't happy with the way he was playing," Harrison said. "He wasn't satisfied with having to come off the bench, and he wants to get himself back in shape. It was his decision; I told him we'd sit down later and talk about what he'll be doing after this season."

Wright, meanwhile, didn't play in the Pirates' 44-43 win over UNC-Wilmington Wednesday and missed practice Thursday, as well. Harrison said the doctors would not have let Wright play even if he had made the trip.

Clemson Strategy Blunted; Duke Takes 67-65 Victory

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson coach Bill Foster wanted Anthony Jenkins to take the last shot, but Jenkins was covered and passed to the open man.

But Warren Wallace missed an 18-footer and Duke had a 67-65 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over the Tigers Saturday night.

Jenkins had the hot hand for Clemson Saturday night with 26 points, and Foster regretted that he didn't shoot. scored 26 points for the game. Jenkins was covered and passed to Wallace.

"Jenkins made a good basketball decision and passed to the uncontested man. I wish he had taken the shot," Foster said.

The results gave Duke and Clemson identical 2-4 ACC records. Clemson is 11-6 overall and Duke is 15-5.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski thought it was a timely win.

"It's a game we needed to win going down to Georgia Tech next week," said Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski. "We've been struggling on offense the last two weeks. But in the final 15 minutes we played with confidence.

"We should have recruited Jenkins. He had 30 against us here last year. His eye has to light up when he sees us.

"Mark Alarie continues to play well. He's been very consistent."

Alarie had 21 points and eight rebounds to pace the Blue Devils' offense and fellow forward Dan Meagher had 10 rebounds and 10 rebounds. Johnny Dawkins added 13 points.

The Tigers took control in the first half, when Chris Michael hit a three-point play with 5:14 left in the period, for a 23-21 Clemson lead. Clemson stretched that to 33-28 at halftime.

Early in the second half, Clemson raced out front by nine points, at 43-34, on a slam by Michael. But starting center Horace Grant, Jenkins, and point-guard Mike Eppley each collected four personal fouls midway in the period.

Tommy Amaker, David Henderson and Alarie hit consecutive baskets to pull Duke ahead 53-50 with 9:20 to play. Clemson knotted the score twice and had a chance to tie the game, but a shot by Warren Wallace with six seconds to play, bounced off the rim.

Irish Take Upset Win Over Terps

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Tom Sluby's three-point play with 18 seconds left helped boost Notre Dame to a 52-47 upset victory over fifth-ranked Maryland Saturday in non-conference college basketball.

The victory was the sixth straight victory for the Fighting Irish, now 13-5. Maryland dropped 13-3.

Sluby scored a game-high 19 points, including five in the last two minutes of the game.

Both teams swapped the lead seven times in the second half, with the score see-sawing by a point or two until Sluby put the Irish ahead 45-44 at 1:48.

Maryland's Len Bias tied the game on a free throw at 1:14.

The Irish went into a delaying game, passing the ball back and forth until Sluby spotted an opening and drove in for a layup with 19 seconds to go to put the Irish ahead for good, 47-45.

Sluby was fouled on the play by Bias and made the free throw as the sold out Irish Athletic and Convocation Center exploded in a deafening roar.

Ken Barlow was intentionally fouled under the basket and got two free shots with 14 seconds left to put Notre Dame up by five, 50-45.

With eight seconds to go, Tim Kempton also got two free throws when he was fouled intentionally and sank both.

Maryland's Jeff Adkins scored the final points for the Terps at the buzzer.

The Terps were led by Ben Coleman with 12 points. Adkins was the only other Maryland player in double figures with 10.

South Carolina Tops Lady Pirates, 67-51

COLUMBIA, S.C. — The University of South Carolina, led by Brantley Southers and Sharon Gilmore, pulled away from the Lady Pirates of East Carolina and recorded a 67-51 victory in women's basketball Saturday afternoon.

Southers tossed in a game-high 24 points and Gilmore added 16, 12 of them in the second half, as South Carolina pulled away from as little as a one-point lead over the Pirates in the final 20 minutes.

The two teams shot almost the same, the Lady Gamecocks hitting 30 of 63 for 47.6 percent, while ECU cashed in on 21 of 49 for 42.9 percent. Free throw shooting was also almost even, with ECU hitting nine of 17 and USC seven of nine.

The Lady Pirates, led by ten from Lisa Squirewell held a rebounding advantage of 35-30.

The big difference came in the turnover department, where ECU committed 22, and the Gamecocks had only 10.

The contest was close throughout most of the first half. The score was tied on eight occasions, and both teams held short leads. South Carolina, finally opened up a five-point edge at the end of the half, 32-27.

In the second half, East Carolina got the first two baskets from Jody Rodriguez and Sylvia Bragg, closing the gap to 32-31, but South Carolina then scored seven straight points to pull away to an eight point lead.

After that, the Lady Gamecocks pulled away to as much as a 14-point lead, 52-38 with 8:43 left in the contest. ECU closed it back to nine at 53-44 but could get no closer.

"We did a better job than we've been doing in executing our game plan," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "Our shooting was good, especially against a big ball club like South Carolina.

"In the first half, we were shooting well and controlling the boards. We held their fast break down and got the ball inside against them. Most of tehir points came from the outside in the first half."

Andruzzi said that in the second half, things were not that bad off until Gilmore "exploded" and got the inside game going for the Gamecocks.

"Sylvia had her second good game in a row," Andruzzi said. "(Lisa) Squirewell had a super game in the first half. She put the ball in the hole and got some key rebounds."

Bragg led the East Carolina scoring with 18 points while Squirewell had 13 and Delphine Mabry added 10.

The loss drops the Lady Pirates to 8-9 on the year, while South Carolina, winning its fourth straight, is now 8-5.

East Carolina travels to Williamsburg, Va., on Wednesday for an ECAC-South game against William & Mary.

Cline Takes Heed; Leads Wake Win

Cline scored 20 points while playing in a reserve role. Delaney Rudd added 18 as Wake Forest bounced back after a 100-63 loss to top-ranked North Carolina earlier in the week.

"Coach had called me into his office and told me to start looking to shoot more," Cline said. "Virginia gave me room to shoot."

Tacy said Cline played "his best game of the season. His shooting and defense meant a lot to us."

Virginia coach Terry Holland said his team had a chance to get back into the fight but failed to stop Wake Forest, which shot 57.7 percent from the field, including 69.6 percent in the second half.

"We just didn't play with the kind of intensity we have to play with to win," Holland said. "We just couldn't keep them from scoring in the second half to get back into the game."

Cline hit a free throw with 16:08 left to break a 45-45 tie. He was shooting for guard Danny Young, who was fouled by Othell Wilson and removed from the game. Kenny Green, who added 16 points, hit a jumper and Anthony Teachey threw in a short jumper to give Wake Forest a 50-45 edge with 14:20 remaining.

Rick Carlisle's jumper from the top of the key pulled the Cavaliers to within 50-47 at the 14:04 mark, but the Demon Deacons outscored Virginia 11-2 in the next five minutes to wrap up the victory.

Virginia held an 18-15 lead after two free throws by Tom Sheehey with 8:16 left before halftime. Cline retaliated with a jumper and Chuck Kepley added two free throws with 6:51 left to give Wake Forest a 19-18 lead. Virginia never caught up again.

Teachey added 16 points as Wake Forest climbed to 13-4, 2-4 in the ACC.

Wilson led Virginia with 18 points. Carlisle had 14, Jim Miller added 12 and Kenton Edelin finished with 10 before fouling out. Virginia is 12-4 and 2-4 after losing its second straight ACC game.

Stewart Holds To San Diego Lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Payne Stewart, the third round leader, took a look at the Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open scoreboard and snapped his fingers.

"The lead can go like that," he said. "It doen't mean anything at this point.

"I'd rather be leading than trailing, but it doesn't mean anything.

"It's pretty much wide open," he said, and counted 11 men grouped within four strokes of each other going into Sunday's final round.

"What's the tournament record? Nineteen under? I feel like the record will be broken. The golf course is good, the weather is good and there are a lot of good players right there capable of shooting lights out," said Stewart.

He used his longest putt of the day, a 15-footer, for a birdie on the final hole to complete a 4-under-par 68 that could have been much better. It enabled him to retain a one-stroke advantage at 201, 16 shots under par with one round to go.

Andy Bean, the man in closest pursuit, and veteran Ray Floyd agreed that some exceptional scoring will be necessary for the winner.

"Tomorrow, you can look for some more of the same type scores, low and a lot of 'em," said Bean, an eight-time PGA Tour winner who last season has his first non-winning year since 1977.

He had a 67, 5-under-par on the 7,002 yard South course at Torrey Pines and was a single stroke back at 202.

Floyd, tied with Chip Beck another stroke off the pace, also took note of the crowd at the top of the standings.

"With that many players that close, someone will have to take command, go out and shoot a 66 or 67, to win. With that many players that close, it'll take a very good score to win."

Floyd, who had a birdie-birdie finish, and Beck each managed a 69 in the bright, warm, sunny weather and completed 54 holes at 203.

The group at 205, only four off the lead with 18 holes remaining, included Joey Sindelar, Dan Pohl, Ed Fiori, Gil Morgan and Don Pooley.

Pooley, who bounced an approach shot off the top of a spectator's head on the 18th, had a 71. Sindelar closed up with a 67. Pohl, Fiori and Morgan, a two-time winner last season, all had 69s.

Stewart, a winner in each of the past two seasons, hit 17 greens and putted from the fringe on the one he missed in a performance that was marred only by a reluctant putter. He used 28 strokes on the greens, three-putted for his only bogey, two-putted for two of his birdies and missed twice from four feet or less.

"I can't say I let one get away, because 68 is a good score," Stewart said. "I didn't make the putts I could have, but yesterday (Friday) I made some I shouldn't have.

"Tomorrow (Sunday), I'll just try to do the same thing: put it in the fairway, on the green and give myself a chance for some birdies."

Floyd, who played with Stewart in the final threesome, saluted his partner's play as "a fine round of golf. I don't remember him missing a green. It was a very easy 68 he shot. He didn't have to work hard at any time."

Stewart, who out-drove Floyd by 50-60 yards a couple of times, reached two of the par-five holes in two and two-putted for birdies. He holed from four feet on the fifth hole and missed from the same distance on the next hole.

Stewart made a 12-foot birdie putt on the 14th hole, three-putted the 15th, then regained sole control of the top spot with the birdie on 18.

"I'd rather be leading than trailing, but one shot, two shots, that can go immediately. All it means is that I happened to post the best 54-hole score," he said.

Still The Leader

Payne Stewart watches his putt on the fifteenth green during third round play of the Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament Saturday in San Diego. Stewart was the leader after the second round and has held onto the lead through the third. He stands at 15-under par 201. (AP Laserphoto)

Chargers Nip N. Pitt, 43-40

BETHEL — Ayden-Grifton inched ahead of North Pitt at the end of the third period and held on to take a 41-37 victory over the Panthers in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game Saturday night.

North Pitt's girls topped Ayden-Grifton, 43-40, in their game.

The Chargers inched out into an 8-5 lead in the first period of the boys' game. Ayden-Grifton continued to hold onto the lead in the second period, outscoring the Panthers, 17-14, to take a 25-19 halftime lead.

North Pitt came back with an 8-4 advantage in the third period, tying it at one point, but falling behind again, 29-27, as the final period got underway. In that, AG outscored the Panthers, 12-10, to hold on for the win.

Doug Anderson led Ayden-Grifton with 14 points while Marvin Smith added 11. No one scored in double figures for the Panthers.

North Pitt built up a 12-7 lead in the first period of the girls' game, and then outscored Ayden-Grifton, 10-9, in the second. That gave the Pant-HERS a 22-16 lead at intermission.

In the third quarter, the Lady Chargers rallied, cutting the lead down to 31-30. But North Pitt outraced the Chargers to the wire, 12-10, to take the win.

Alice Pittman led North Pitt with 15 points while Delores Pittman added 12. Cora Faison paced Ayden-Grifton with 19 points.

Ayden-Grifton travels to C.B. Aycock on Tuesday, while North Pitt visits Southern Nash.

Pirate Tankers Dunk Charlotte

CHARLOTTE — East Carolina University's men and women swam to easy victories over UNC-Charlotte Saturday. The men left the 49ers in their wake, 71-14, while the women overcame their foes, 66-26.

"The wins we had today assured both our mens and women's teams of a winning record," Coach Rick Kobe said afterwards. "That's the first time that's ever happened here.

"We have Duke coming up on Saturday and we're always psyched for the ACC. This is the biggest meet of the year for our girls because they will be going for national cuts."

Both Rene Seech and Lori Miller made national cutoffs for both the one and three-meter diving events during the meet.

The women go to 7-4 with the win while the men are now 7-3.

Madison...

eight attempts from the free throw line in the closing 3:20 of the game to set the final margin.

"We did a good job building the lead, but we didn't maintain it too well," Madison Coach Lou Campanelli said. "We haven't been aheal that far very often this year, and (ECU) did a good job outside."

Though Madison shot 47.8 percent from the floor in the opening half, the Dukes' 12-2 free throw advantage helped them to a 34-18 lead at intermission. JMU controlled the boards with a 17-11 tally.

The Pirates once again suffered early in the game, as the Dukes bucketed five points before ECU got on the board and raced to a 12-2 advantage at the 13:35 mark.

Mosten, Esch and Newman provided the inside punch early in the contest, but Jackson came off the bench to lead Madison with seven in the opening half. Grady set the pace for East Carolina with nine points while controlling six rebounds in a reserve role, but it was Sledge who first got the Pirates into the offense with a pair of field goals to trim the margin to 12-6 with 12:13 till halftime.

A pair of free throws by Jackson put the Dukes up by eight wtih 10:03 left in the half, but a free throw by David Harris and a pair of jumpers by Grady cut the gap to 14-11 with 7:31 remaining.

Once again, though, the Pirates struggled through an offensive drought, as Madison outscored ECU 9-2 over the next three minutes. Grady added a baseline drive and a free throw for the Pirates, but Todd Banks scored his only four points of the half as JMU ran off another 10-2 scoring edge for the 34-18 halftime score.

Vanderbilt 69

NASHVILLE, Tenn, (AP) — Tennessee guard Tony White scored 20 points as the Volunteers snapped a two-year, eight-game Southeastern Conference road losing streak with a 76-69 victory over Vanderbilt Saturday afternoon.

The victory gives the Vols a 13-7 overall mark and levels Tennessee's SEC record at 4-4.

Vanderbilt, also 4-4 in the league, is now 9-8 overall.

Bertolaccini In Front By Shot In Tourney

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Silvia Bertolaccini of Argentina emerged as the sole leader by one stroke in the third round Saturday of the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $200,000 Mazda Classic.

Bertolanccini produced a 35-36-71 for a 54-hole total of 211, 5-under-par in the 6,079-yard course.

She moved ahead of four other players with whom she was tied for the lead after Friday's second round.

"I'm confident going into the last round now," Bertolaccini said.

"I feel the toughest round was the third one, to keep myself in play after playing so well (Friday) when I even had a couple of eagles," she said.

Five players trailing Bertolancci at 212 were Patti Riz-zo, Kathy Postlewait, Lauri Rinker, Rosie Jones and JoAnne Carner.

The field was cut to the top 70 players and ties after the third round.

Bowie Couldn't Be Happier Now

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Sam Bowie, a forlorn figure on the Kentucky bench the past two years in street clothes and a cast on his left leg, couldn't be happier these days.

"I've worked on my stamina, but I still have a way to go," says the 7-foot-1 senior. "I'm kind of rusty."

Bowie was anything but rusty in helping the Wildcats, ranked third among the nation's college basketball teams, beat powerful Houston and 7-foot Akeem Olajuwon 74-67 last Sunday.

Although he scored only eight points, he grabbed 18 rebounds and joined with teammates Melvin Turpin, 6-11, and Kenny Walker, 6-8, to stop the Cougars.

"Twin Towers" Bowie and Turpin are a major reason Kentucky has been projected as the repeat Southeastern Conference champion and a strong contender for its first NCAA title since 1978 and sixth overall.

After winning their first 12 games this season, the Wildcats lost SEC road games to Auburn and Florida before bouncing back against Vanderbilt and Houston.

Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall is well satisfied with Bowie's progress, but he expects Bowie to return to no more than 80 percent of his old self before the season is over.

"I don't see myself in the limelight," says Bowie, whose enforced layoff was caused by hairline stress fracture of his left shinbone. There were doubts he would ever play again, but successful bone graft surgery in October 1982 and offseason conditioning has extended Bowie's career.

The native of Lebanon, Pa., was one of the most sought-after schoolboys. He averaged 12.9 points and 8.1 rebounds as a freshman and 17.4 points and 9.1 rebounds as a sophomomore before the injury struck.

This season, as a starting forward, he's averaging eight points on 50 percent shooting from the field and is the Wildcats' leading rebounder with nearly eight a game. Bowie trails Turpin as the Wildcats' top shot-blocker, 34-32.

His best game offensively this season was 15 points on 7-of-12 shooting from the field against Auburn.

Bowie was often reluctant to talk to the media during his hiatus, but his mood has changed these days.

Bowie, who often speaks in the third person, says, "I just hope Sam gets six or seven shots a game, gets double figures rebounding, blocks shots and backs up his teammates. It's a natural role. I'm a forward this year. I mentally accept that.

Bowie believes his injury was a key factor in Turpin's development as one of the nation's most imposing centers.

"Melvin's wasn't a superstar coming here as a freshman," Bowie points out. "I was the center and he sat behind me. He might never have gotten a chance if I didn't get hurt.

"I don't want to take anything away from Olajuwon," Bowie says, "but I still think Turpin is the best center in the country. Playing with him has made my job easier."

Turpin, a 240-pounder who has fought excessive weight problems in the past, trimmed down when he realized he would have to take over for Bowie.

Turpin is averging the same 15 points and six rebounds he attained last season.

Along with Walker, averaging 13 points, six rebounds, and 6-7 reserve freshman Winston Pennett, the Wildcats present a formidable front line.

If Hall has any worry this season, it's his backcourt.

Senior Jim Master, a long-ranger bomber, is battling a slump, shooting under 50 percent, and has fallen below double figures in scoring. Sophomore Roger Harden, a sophomore, is a steadying influence and played his best game against Houston but rarely shoots.

For quickness, Hall uses James Blackmon, a sometimes out-of-control freshman, and senior Dicky Beal, who has been hampered by tendinitis.

Leroy Byrd, a 5-5 guard, recently became eligible but has yet to play. He previously played at Nevada-Las Vegas and Wabash Junior College.

During the Wildcats' 12-game winning streak, Bowie told the local press that the team's goals were to become the greatest team ever, go undefeated and win the national title.

Immediately after the Auburn loss, Hall claimed the press was the cause, pointing to a Lexington sports writer.

"He knows all about us being the best team ever," Hall said. "Our local press has a way of getting our opponents ready to play. We never thought we were the best team ever.

"It's just a shame our kids set goals and the press uses them to sell papers. I cringe every time I'm asked that question because I know our kids don't deserve it. They set high goals. That's all."

Hall later backed down on his post-game comments, saying the team itself was responsible for the loss.

It's doubtful that Kentucky will prove to be the greatest team ever, but Houston Coach Guy Lewis called the Wildcats a "great" team. Lewis also said he was impressed with Kentucky's "big horses," and he wasn't talking about the thoroughbred farms which ring this bluegrass country.

Larry Nance Takes Slam Dunk Contest

DENVER (AP) — Intent on defying the laws of gravity, nine of the National Basketball Association's top aerobatic experts soared, skyed and gyrated Saturday in the league's first official slam-dunk contest, with Larry Nance of Phoenix emerging as the winner.

The contest, part of the NBA's All-Star weekend at McNichols Sports Arena, saw Nance, a 6-foot-10 forward for the Suns, outpoint Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers in judging by a five-person panel.

"It was a thrill taking the title from Dr. J," Nance said. "I've always wanted to be like him. I grew up watching him. It's a great thrill for me."

Although it was the first slam dunk championship for the NBA, Erving won an earlier dunking title at halftime of the 1976 American Basketball Association All-Star Game.

Eight years later, the Philadelphia superstar was back in Denver to play in the 34th annual NBA All-Star Game on Sunday and defend his title.

Erving — the favorite of a sellout crowd of 17,251 — easily made the finals with one dunk that started a full court away, another that began at half-court, and a third where he slid the ball across the backboard before rifling it through the hoop.

Nance glided into the finals with his own trio of crowd-pleasing dunks.

First, he bounced the ball off the top of the backboard, then slammed it home. Next, he picked up two balls and drove both through the net with a whirling arm action.

Finally, he ran straight at the basket, whirled the ball in front of his chest in a tight circle, and blasted it through the hoop.

On his second try, with his head and shoulders above the rims, Erving slammed the ball down, but hit the back of the rim and the ball sailed 40 feet in the air.

"I shoud have taken off a little farther back," Erving said. "I was just too close to the backboard."

Nance, taking no chances, went straight up on his second try and calmly buried the ball in the net.

Trailing badly because of his miss, Erving got the only perfect score of the day, a 50, when he started from the opposite free throw line and made a determined running jump that had his head and shoulders above the rim.

Nance responded with an overhand dunk that began with the ball around his knees while he was in midair.

Nance finished with 134 points, out of a possible 150, while Erving finished with 122.

Nance won $10,000 along with the title, Erving took home $3,-000, and Dominique Wilkins, of the Atlanta Hawks, took third place and $2,000.

The five judges, using a 10-pointer as perfect, judged the dunks for creativity, athleticism and style.

ECU Captures Soccer Event

East Carolina's Team One went through the field at the second annual Budweiser-East Carolina Indoor Soccer Tournament Saturday afternoon undefeated, and beat Atlantic Christian, 7-2, to win the overall title.

The Pirates defeated the Kinston Soccer Club, 11-1, N.C. Wesleyan II, 4-2; Pembroke State, 4-0; and N.C. Wesleyan II, 1-0, to gain the finals of the event against Atlantic Christian.

The Bulldogs, meanwhile, downed Pfeiffer Alumni, 10-6; Virginia Wesleyan, 6-4; Richmond, 10-4; Pembroke State, 3-2; and Pfeiffer, 6-1, to reach the finals.

The indoor game, differing from the outdoor in that it is played on a smaller area, uses six-man squads and 10 minute halves, saw the Pirates have little trouble against ACC. Mark Hardy and Brian Colgan each scored twice for the Pirates, who built up a 4-1 lead in the first half. ECU also outscored ACC, 3-1, in the second. Alan Smith, David Pere and Scott Bondurant each added single goals for ECU. William Diamond and Mike George scored the Atlantic Christian goals.

"I feel the tournament went well," ECU Soccer Coach Robbie Church said. "Our first team went through the tournament without a loss. I'm well pleased.

"We played with a lot of intensity and we really wanted to win. dThis is the first indoor tournament East Carolina has even won. We took a beating during the outdoor season but now some of our hard work is beginning to pay off. We are showing more maturity and these are a real group of winners. But we have to keep working hard."

While ECU went 5-0 for the tournament, ACC finished at 5-1. Other records included: Pfeiffer, 3-2, Wesleyan II 2-2-1, ECU II 2-2; Pembroke State 1-2-1; Virginia Wesleyan 1-2-1; Pfeiffer Alumni 1-2; Richmond 0-2-1; Wesleyan I 1-2; Buies Creek Club 1-2; and Kinston Soccer Club, 0-3.

Barry, Hudson, Monroe Pace West Old-Timers

DENVER (AP) — Rick Barry scored 14 points, Lou Hudson 12 and Earl "The Pearl" Monroe 11 Saturday to lead the West to a 65-63 victory over the East in professional basketball's first-ever Old-Timers Game.

The West, getting off to a fast start behind Barry and Jerry West, led by as many as seven points in the first half and fashioned a 28-25 advantage at intermission. But Pete Maravich and Oscar Robertson triggered a 7-2 spurt at the outset of the second half and the East took its first lead at 36-35 on a bucket by John Havlicek with 13:32 to go.

The old-timers played two 20-minute halves as a prelude to Sunday's National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

Many of the aging greats were huffing and puffing by the end of the contest, played before a large, appreciative crowd at McNichols Arena. The lead changed hands four times before the West took command for good on two free throws by Barry for a 39-38 advantage.

With 11:06 left, the game's only comedy surfaced when Tommy Heinsohn and Johnny Kerr, rival centers from the mid-50s through the mid-60s, engaged in a bit of horseplay. Kerr, 51 and noticably paunchy, went to the free-throw line after Heinsohn pulled on his shorts several times.

Kerr, after donning a pair of eyeglasses, then sank one of two free throws to put the West on top 40-38. A moment later, Kerr made a nifty behind-the-back pass to West, who glided in for a layup and a 42-38 lead.

Maravich, the youngest of the old-timers at 35, led the East with 18 points and Robertson had 12. Havlicek finished with nine for the East.

The West led by as many as eight points as the game wound down, then Havlicek and Maravich led an East rally that trimmed the lead to 63-61 on a pair of free throws by Maravich with 1:22 to play.

A moment later, Barry, fouled by Nate Thurmond, sank both free throws for a 65-61 West lead. Sam Jones, who finished with 10 points, put in a short jumper with 30 seconds to go, but the East could not get the ball back for another shot before the buzzer sounded.

Davidson Downs VMI

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Kenny Wilson scored 17 points as Davidson, which hit 14 of 18 free throws in the final six minutes, defeated Virginia Military Institute 62-55 Saturday in a Southern Conference basketball game.

The Wildcats didn't get a field goal during the final 8:22, but foul shooting and seven key offensive rebounds by center Jim McConkey helped Davidson improve to 7-11 and 3-4 in conference play. VMI fell to 4-13 and 1-6.

Davidson took a 28-25 halftime lead, but VMI guard Cedric Wins scored the first five points of the final period to put the Keydets ahead 30-28 with 18:46 left.

No. 2 DePaul Blasts UCLA By 84-68

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tyrone Corbin scored 18 points and Kevin Holmes added 17 as No. 2 ranked DePaul blasted UCLA 84-68 in a nonconference basketball game Saturday at Pauley Pavilion.

Corbin and Holmes led a second-half onslaught that saw a tight 56-48 game turn into a blowout.

The Blue Demons improved their record to 16-0 and the Bruins fell to 12-4.

With the score 61-52, DePaul went on a 15-4 blitz to take a 20-point lead, its biggest lead of the game.

The Blue Demons held a tight 38-34 lead at halftime before their team speed and rebounding strength took control of the contest.

Kenny Fields had 16 points for 15th-ranked UCLA, but only two in the second half. Ralph Jackson added 12 points.

DePaul guard Kenny Patterson had 14 points and Tony Jackson 11 off the bench for the Blue Demons.

Stuart Gray, UCLA's 7-foot center, had no points and no rebounds in the first half and only five free throws for the game. In last year's upset at the Horizon in Rosemont, Ill., Gray was a major factor in the Bruins' 73-70 upset victory, scoring 10 points and grabbing 10 rebounds.

DePaul's victory broke a two-game UCLA winning streak. It was only the 18th loss at Pauley Pavilion for the Bruins, with present Coach Larry Farmer suffering five of those losses.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Melvin Turpin reeled off 10 points in the second half Saturday as third-ranked Kentucky breezed by Georgia 66-40 and regained a share of the Southeastern Conference basketball lead.

The Wildcats, 6-2 in the SEC and 15-2 overall, scored 16 unanswered points in the second half, holding Georgia off the boards for 10½ minutes with a tough 2-3 zone defense.

The loss dropped Georgia, which hasn't won at Rupp Arena since 1922-23, to 4-4 in the league and 12-5 overall.

The Bulldogs, who trailed only 28-24 at intermission, managed just 16 points in the second period.

Turpin, who finished with 18 points and nine rebounds, hit three straight baskets in a one-minute period to start the Wildcats' 16-point spree.

Forwards Sam Bowie and Kenny Walker added 12 and 11 points, respectively, and guard Jim Master, seeming to come out of his midseason shooting slump, hit three field goals and two free throws for 10 points.

Guard Vern Fleming and forward Horace McMillan paced Georgia with 11 points each, and Gerald Crosby had 10. No other Bulldog player managed more than two points.

Pittsburgh.....52

PITTSBURGH (AP) — All-American Patrick Ewing scored 20 points and was an intimidating force at both ends of the court as fourth-ranked Georgetown eased by Pittsburgh 63-52 in a Big East Conference game Saturday.

Ewing added nine rebounds and five blocked shots and scored all but seven of his points in the second half as the Hoyas, 6-1 in the league, built their record to 17-2. Ewing was eight of 11 from the field.

Michael Jackson added 12 points and Gene Smith 10 for the Hoyas, who broke open a tight game by scoring eight consecutive points to move into a 50-42 lead with just over five minutes remaining.

David Wingate gave the Hoyas the lead for good at 44-42, freshman Reggie Williams hit a follow-up shot, Gene Smith scored on a driving layup and Bill Martin converted a pair of free throws.

Pitt, losing for the third time in four Big East home games this season, never got within four points after that and Smith secured the victory by making four free throws down the stretch, three in the final minute.

Pitt is now 11-6 overall, 2-5 in the Big East.

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Forward Frank "Spoon" James hit two free throws in overtime to put sixth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas ahead to stay as the Runnin' Rebels downed Cal State Fullerton 82-75 in a Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball game Saturday.

Fullerton, which scored the last six points in regulation to send the game into overtime, led twice in overtime on baskets by Tony Neal and Gary Davis before James' free throws. The Runnin' Rebels hit 15 of 21 free throw attempts in the extra period.

James led the Rebels, now 18-1 overall and 9-0 in the PCAA, with 23 points. Center Richie Adams scored 20 points and had 15 rebounds.

Guard Leon Wood scored 31 to lead the Titans, whose record drops to 14-5 and 5-3. Neal scored 13 points and had a game-high 20 rebounds. His free throw with eight seconds to play sent the game into overtime where he missed four consecutive free throws after James put the Runnin' Rebels ahead.

Fullerton led by as many as six points in the first half, but UNLV outscored the Titans 19-8 in the final seven minutes of the half to take a 38-33 halftime advantage.

The Runnin' Rebels' biggest lead in the second half was seven points — a margin they enjoyed with 1:19 left.

Nevada-Las Vegas made 32 of 49 free throws on the game. Fullerton committed 36 fouls and had five players foul out.

Michigan.....66

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Efrem Winters scored 23 points and keyed an explosion of free throws in the fourth overtime period Saturday to carry No. 9 Illinois to a marathon 75-66 victory over Michigan in Big Ten college basketball.

The quadruple-overtime decision, two short of the Big Ten's six-overtime record set by Minnesota and Purdue in 1955, lifted Illinois to 6-1 in the conference and preserved a first-place tie with Purdue. The Illini are 15-2 overall. Michigan tumbled to 4-4 in the Big Ten and 12-6 in all games.

Michigan overcame a 12-point lead built up by Illinois early in the second half when Eric Turner sank an 18-foot jumper to deadlock the contest 46-46 with 4:09 to go in regulation time. The teams spent the rest of regulation playing cautiously for a final shot, with the Illini missing a free throw chance.

Illinois drew ahead 54-51 in the first overtime after Quinn Richardson's free throw, but the Wolverines roared back to tie it 57-57 on Turner's jumper at the top of the key with one second left in the period.

Illinois moved ahead 59-57 in the second overtime, but Michigan quickly tied it on a pair of free throws by Dan Pelekoudas. The Illini then went up 62-59, but Michigan made three of four free throws — two by Antoine Joubert — to forge a 62-62 impasse that stood for the remaining 3:13 of the second overtime.

The teams managed just two points apiece in the third overtime — two free throws by Winters and a bank shot by Turner.

Illinois finally broke loose in the fourth overtime. The Illini scored the first four points and Michigan replied with a Roy Tarpley basket. But Illinois then plunked in seven of 12 free throws — three by Winters — without a Wolverine reply, sealing the victory.

Also in double figures for Illinois were Doug Altenberger with 16, and George Montgomery and Bruce Douglas with 10 apiece. Turner paced Michigan with 19 points and Tim McCormick added 11.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Keith Lee broke out of a scoring slump to score 22 points and grab 18 rebounds in leading No. 13 Memphis State to a 69-65 nonconference basketball victory over No. 11 Oklahoma Saturday.

The nationally televised game (NBC) was the seventh straight win for the Tigers, 14-3, while Oklahoma had its four-game winning streak broken and now stands at 16-3.

Lee, a 6-10 junior who had scored only four points in each of his last two games, scored 14 points and grabbed 12 rebounds in the first half when Memphis State clung to a 36-35 lead.

Wayman Tisdale, Oklahoma's 6-9 All-American who entered the game with a 30.1 point average, was limited to 12 points by the Tiger's collapsing zone defense. Tisdale grabbed 14 rebounds while Tim McCalister, a freshman guard paced the Sooners with 24 points.

Oklahoma, which trailed 51-41 with 11:38 to play, bounced back to tie at 53 by outscoring the Tigers 12-2. After that, the Tigers' biggest margin was five points, and McCalister's goal with 1:57 remaining cut Memphis State's lead to 60-59.

The Sooners could not get any closer as Bobby Parks hit a goal and two free-throws and Andre Turner made three foul shots down the stretch to hold off Oklahoma.

Phillip "Doom" Haynes and Parks scored 14 points apiece.

Syracuse (20).....78
St. John's.....74

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Andre Hawkins assisted on one basket and scored two himself in the first 1:06 of overtime and 20th-ranked Syracuse survived seven consecutive misses on one-and-one free throws late in the game Saturday to defeat St. John's 78-74 in a Big East college basketball thriller.

Rafael Addison missed his first four shots, but led all scorers with 24 points. He scored 14 of them after intermission, including two free throws with 24 seconds left in overtime to break the Syracuse cold spell and ice the game.

Defeating the Redmen for the first time in three years, Syracuse improved its season record to 14-3 and completed the first half of the conference schedule undefeated at 8-0.

The loss dropped St. John's to 12-5 and 3-4 and cost Coach Lou Carnesecca a chance to become the winningest coach in the school's history. Carnesecca's teams have won 334 of 454 games, compared to the 334-130 record of the legendary Joe Lapchick.

Hawkins scored 15 points and guard Dwayne Washington added 12 as the Orangemen shook off one of their coldest shooting performances of the season.

Seven-footer Bill Wennington, who had a sore ankle but played 42 of the game's 45 minutes, paced the visitors with 19 points. He was followed by guard Mike Moses with 15 and Jeff Allen with 14, while Chris Mullin, whose basket with 26 seconds to play sent the game into overtime at 64-64, added 12.

St. John's led 38-35 at intermission.

In the second half,the Orangemen took command at 58-56 on a three-point play by Wendell Alexis with 5:25 left in regulation.

About 90 seconds later, another Alexis basket gave the Orange a 64-60 lead, but Washington started the string of missed free throws and Wennington and Mullin recorded clutch baskets to force the five-minute overtime.

After Hawkins' pass to Gene Waldron for a basket on the opening jump in overtime, the 6-8 Syracuse center pumped in two of his own and Addison added two more for a 74-68 lead with 2:45 remaining.

Strong defensive play by the Orange prevented the Redmen from taking advantage of free throws in the remaining time.

Peugeot reinvents the big wagon

It's bigger than the best-selling imported or American wagons.

With its back seat up, it holds even more than the hold-over dinosaurs from Detroit.

Yet—here's a pleasant surprise—this is one big wagon that is designed not to wag its tail clumsily from side to side on the highway.

The Peugeot 505 GL wagon. Huge inside. Not too huge outside. A wagon with the road handling of a European sedan.

We've got it. Come and try it.

Bud Grant Resigns As Viking Coach

HONOLULU (AP) — Bud Grant formally announced Saturday that he was stepping down as the Minnesota Vikings coach, ending a successful 17-year stint at the helm of the National Football League club.

It appeared virtually certain that Vikings assistant Les Steckel, 37, will be named Sunday as the new Minnesota coach.

Grant, 56, will remain with the organization in some yet to be determined post. He flew to Honolulu to personally tell Vikings President Max Winter, who has a home here, of his decision.

Grant said at a press conference that he decided sometime "around the Super Bowl" that he wished to quit coaching in order to pursue other interests, something that time had not permitted during his NFL coaching career.

Also at the press conference, Mike Lynn, the Vikings' general manager, said that "a nominee" for the coaching post was on his way to Hawaii. It was learned that Steckel was scheduled to arrive in Honolulu later in the day.

"We will meet with the nominee tonight and hopefully tomorrow (Sunday) morning at the Pro Bowl game, we'll be able to announce who is the new head coch of the Vikings," said Lynn.

The Minnesota general manager indicated the only details to be worked out with Grant's successor was length of contract and compensation.

Grant emphasized that any speculation that he was quitting the coaching job because of "inner turmoil, personality clashes or health problems," was not valid.

"The only reason for leaving is to do some things that coaching didn't allow me to do," he said. "I'm 56 years old and in good health. Some of the things I may want to do are things that I may not be able to do when I'm 65.

"In other words," Grant said, "I want to get out while I can still walk through the woods, still wade a trout stream, still climb a mountain, while I still can go out in those breakers.

"I'm going to do nothing specific, not going to get in a sailboat and go around the world."

Grant's career coaching record of a combined 283 victories at Minnesota and Winnipeg of the Canadian Football League makes him the second-winningest coach in pro football history, ranking behind only the late George Halas' mark of 326 victories.

His Minnesota teams won 161 games, captured 11 division titles and appeared in four Super Bowls, losing each time.

Grant voiced his appreciation of the support given him by Winter over the years. Their first association came when Grant played for the National Basketball Association Minneapolis Lakers, and Winter was president of that organization.

"I don't think there's a better job in professional sports than to be coach of the Minnesota Vikings," Grant said. "Max has been like a father should be with his children — give them guidance, then let them go about their job. That's what the Vikings have done for me."

Grant said one of the "highlights" of his career in pro sports was that he had never been fired.

"All my associations with professional sports, I've always left of my own volition," he said. "I left pro basketball on my own, went on to the Philadelphia Eagles, left and went to Winnipeg ... then left Winnipeg to come to the Vikings."

He was only the second coach in the history of the Minnesota franchise, having taken over after Norm Van Brocklin's stint that ran from 1961-1966.

Only two active NFL coaches, Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys and Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins, have won more NFL games than Grant.

Grant was second only to Landry among active coaches in length of service with the same team. Landry has been head coach at Dallas since the team was formed in 1960.

Grant's resignation jolted team officials and players.

"I was returning home from a walk when I noticed Bud and Mike sitting on my porch," Winter said. "I was hoping that nothing was wrong. And when he told me his decision, the tears rolled down my eyes."

Dave Osborn and Bill Brown, former Viking running backs who played with Grant for more than eight years, remembered the coach as a practical joker who was uncomfortable with the big-money football of the 1980s.

"It was tough on Bud under today's situation; he kind of lost control," Osborn said. "It isn't like back in his era when he could tell players how long they could wear their hair and how to dress. Bud made the comment to me that some of his players today probably didn't want to be playing, but because of the money they had to."

Brown said the stoic, emotionless Grant known to fans was merely a facade.

"He was a great practical joker, a real comic," Brown said. "On April Fools' Day, he'd put mice and salamanders in the secretaries' drawers. But he would take care of it early in the morning and leave so no one knew he did it."

Brown said the fact that Grant failed in four trips to the Super Bowl disappointed the coach.

"When you work as hard as he does, you want to be the best," Brown said. "After four times, it's got to be a little frustrating. But he reached most of the goals he tried to reach and just figured it was time to hang it up."

Carl Eller, an All-Pro defensive end who played under Grant for eight seasons, said Grant's four Super Bowl defeats — in 1970, '74, '75 and '77 — "are certainly a testimony to his coaching ability that we did go to four."

"He was an even-tempered guy who let players get emotional but stayed pretty low-key himself," Eller said. "When it came to playing, he was a hands-off guy who allowed players to become responsible for themselves."

Rose In Swim Win

Paul Mark Kelly, Marshall Moore and Kelly Barnhill each were double winners as Rose High School's swimming team romped to an 83-41 victory over the School for Math and Science Saturday.

Arleen Song led the Rampettes through their meet with wins in the freestyle and backstroke as the Rose girls gained a 66-45 win in their half of the afternoon's activities.

Rose's boys won each of the contested events in gaining the overall victory.

Steckel Flying To Honolulu

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Les Steckel, a Minnesota Vikings assistant coach, was on a jet bound for Honolulu Saturday amid speculation that he would be named Bud Grant's successor as coach of the Minnesota Vikings.

Northwest Airlines confirmed that Steckel had a reservation on its flight to Hawaii, while WTCN-TV in Minneapolis reported he was en route to Honolulu to accept the position at a news conference scheduled for 3 p.m. EST Sunday.

Minnesota Vikings spokesman Merrill Swanson, meanwhile, said the National Football League team planned to name Grant's successor Sunday in Honolulu, "if they come to terms with the nominee."

Steckel's home phone in Eden Prairie, a Minneapolis suburb, was busy for hours Saturday. His wife, Christine, said he was unable to come to the phone 'because he was involved in Vikings' business and I cannot comment."

Steckel, 37, was one of four finalists for the coaching job at the University of Minnesota after Joe Salem resigned last season. Steckel withdrew his name from consideration for the post later filled by Lou Holtz.

Steckel joined the Vikings as receiver coach in 1979. A former national Golden Gloves boxing champion, he played football for Kansas in 1964-67. In 1969-70 he served as a infantry officer with the U.S. Marines in Vietnam.

Grant, 56, went to Honolulu Friday to tell Vikings President Max Winter he was resigning. Winter lives in Hawaii in the off-season.

Winter and General Manager Mike Lynn said after Grant resigned they hoped to name a new coach within 72 hours.

LCC Tops Pitt Five

WINTERVILLE — Lenoir Community College jumped into an early lead and romped to a 127-79 victory over Pitt Community College Friday night.

"They are something like 8-1 since Christmas," Pitt Coach Charles Coburn said. "We came out cole and up tight. We played well in the second half, but I just wish we could have put two halves together instead of one. They have a good club, no doubt about it."

Lenoir placed seven players in double figures led by John Brown's 22. Rodney Rhodes had 18, Antonio McCray had 17, Greg Carter and Douglas Pearson each had 12 and Frazier Bryant and Boyce Wooten each had 10.

Pitt was led by Albert Brown with 24, while David Joyner had 19 and William Rollins had 12.

Bears Fail In Last Gasp Try

Aurora's girls also came away with a win taking a 38-21 decision.

The Bears fell behind in the first period, 14-10 and scored only two points in the second quarter. Aurora dumped in 11 and shot out to a 25-12 lead at intermission.

In the third period, Bear Grass got back on track and cut one point off the lead, trailing 38-26 going into the final period. In that, the Bears outscored Aurora, 20-9 and had the chance to win it. Down by three with just seconds to go, the Bears got two free throws on a technical foul and had the ball out of bounds with three seconds to play. But a final shot at the net fell away, allowing Aurora to escape with the victory.

John Davis led Aurora with 13 points while Danny Ephriam added 12 and Arthur Harris had 10. Lawrence Walson led Bear Grass with 13.

Aurora's girls eased ahead, 5-4, after one period, then upped that lead to 13-8 by the end of the half. Aurora still held their slim advantage, 21-14, as the final quarter opened. In that, Aurora outscored the Lady Bears, 17-7, to win going away.

Lynette Smith led the win for Aurora with 14 points, while no one scored in double figures for the Bears.

The Bears fall off to 4-7 in the conference and 7-8 overall, while the girls are now 6-5, 6-8. Bear Grass entertains Bath on Tuesday.

Patriots Hand Vikes 1st Loss

MOREHEAD CITY — West Carteret High School handed D.H. Conley its first Coastal Conference wrestling match of the year Saturday, gaining a 38-29 victory.

Conley had little success in the match, winning only six weight classes. Of those, three were by forfeit and one by a disqualification.

The Vikings, now 13-2 overall and 6-1 in the league, close out the season on Tuesday at Havelock. A victory will give the regular season title to the Vikings, while a loss would mean a three-way tie between Conley, Havelock and West Carteret.

Summary:

Picking It Off

North Pitt's Levon Shaw (50) leaps high to pick off a rebound during action Friday night against Charles B. Aycock High School. Aycock's Myron Sanders (40) and Perry Jones (24) also make an effort to get the ball as North Pitt's Lenny Langley (4) watches. North Pitt gained a 49-43 win in the contest. Panthers Overhaul Aycock

By JEFF ALLEN
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — North Pitt's Panthers, shut out in the first four minutes of the game, came back to take a 49-43 win over the Falcons of C.B. Aycock Friday night.

In girls' action, the Pant-HERS, led by Delores Pittman's 12 points, coasted to a 49-39 victory over the Lady Falcons.

The Falcons jumped out to an early 3-0 lead when Darrell Spencer connected on a lane drive and teammate Perry Jones tossed in a free throw. Then the Falcons used their 2-3 defense and held the Panthers scoreless for four minutes. Linwood Harris broke the zone and plunged in for a short jumper and put North Pitt on the board. A minute later Levon Shaw drove in to score and added a foul shot giving the Panthers the advantage 6-3, and a lead which they would hold the rest of the evening.

Starting the second quarter the way he finished the first, Shaw dropped in two foul shots and increased the score to 8-3. North Pitt continued to surge advancing with Keith Clark's 20 footer and Shaw with two more free throws to lead 12-3 with 6:37 left in the second quarter. Ray Spruill answered for the Falcons with a driving lay up. But it wasn't enough to stop the red hot Panthers who came back with jumpers from Alfred Braxton and Harris. With 2:47 left the Panthers held a 17-9 lead. Spencer and Spruill each added field goals for C.B.Aycock while Shaw hit on a jumper and Braxton made his two free throws. At the half the Panthers led 21-13.

Pulling the Falcons to within five, Spruill hit on a lane shot and his following free throw. Shaw came back with a bucket from under the goal making it 23-18 with 7:20 left in the third quarter. After Lenny Langley's inside jumper, Aycock cut the lead when Spencer hit on a line jumper and a layup. North Pitt's Ronnie Howard, Alvin Grimes, and Harris each added inside jumpers to give the Panthers a little breathing room, 31-24. Spruill, along with teammates Myron Sanders and Terry Fuller fought back to with three at the end of the quarter, but North Pitt remained in control, 35-32.

In the forth quarter the Panthers broke free again when Harris, Clark, and Langley each hit on side jumpers while Aycock's Spencer drove in for a layup. With 2:40 left in the game, Shaw hit on a lane shot to give the Panthers a 45-37 lead. Then with 1:28 left in the game, Ronnie Ebron drove inside to put the Panthers up 49-38. Switching to a man to man defense in the final minute, the Falcons managed to score when Spencer again connected for two and Fuller sank two free throws while Jones had one, closing it to the final 49-43 margin.

The win improves the Panther's record to 3-3 in the conference, 8-8 overall,while the Falcons fall to 1-6, 5-10 overall.

The Pant-HERS opened up a 6-1 lead with 1:35 left in the first quarter when Delores Pittman drove inside twice and Alice Pittman scored once while Lady Falcon Kelly Malpass managed just one free throw. Coming back in the final minute, Malpass connected from the lane and dropped in another free throw while North Pitt managed only one score from teammate Melody Harrington. By the end of the first the Pant-HERS held an 8-6 lead.

In the second quarter, Aycock's Dawn Whitley kept them with striking distance by answering shots from both Pittman girls. But towards the end of the period Alice Pittman, Regina Cox, and Peggy Lathan, helped the Pant-HERS stretch the lead to seven. Malpass quickly added four foul shots to close the lead to 19-14.

Malpass pulled it to within one with 5:54 left in the third period when she hit on both of her free throws making it 21-20. Bernestine Williams lent North Pitt a helping hand when she and Sudie Sharpe scored three buckets to give the Pant-HERS a 27-20 lead. Delores Pittman also scored on a driving lane shot making it 29-20. Toni Coley and Malpass each added a free throw while teammate Whitley hit from the top of the circle to cut the lead. Alice Pittman connected from the side to cut it to 31-25 at tne end of the period.

Pittman scored twice while Sharpe scored once to stretch the Pant-HERS lead to 37-28 in the final quarter. Sharpe again hit from inside and Regina Moore added a free throw to give North Pitt a 40-28 lead with 2:18 left in the game. Malpass scored five points and Whitley added a bucket to rally the Lady Falcons in the closing seconds but could only pull them to within ten, 49-39.

The win moves the Pant-HERS to 3-3 in the conference and 9-7 overall while C.B. Aycock drops to 0-7, 1-15 in the conference. Following a game with Ayden-Grifton on Saturday night, North Pitt travels to Southern Nash on Tuesday.

Eagles' Free Throws Top Rampants, 65-53

ELIZABETH CITY — Northeastern High School struck for 15 of 20 free throws to slip past Rose High School's Rampants, 65-53, Friday night in a Big East Conference basketball game.

Northeastern's girls also downed the Rampettes, gaining a 55-36 victory.

Things didn't go right for the Rampants most of the evening. While they did outshoot the Eagles from the floor, 26 field goals to 25, the difference came at the foul line. Northeastern banged through 15 of 20 while Rose made only one of ten tries, that by Mac Walston.

"We shot poorly," Coach Jim Brewington said, "both from the field and the foul line. I doubt that we shot 35 percent from the floor and when the shots aren't falling for us, we're in trouble."

Brewington said that he feels the team went to the boards well, getting several shots at it on a number of occasions, but the ball just wouldn't fall for them.

"It seems like we're just not playing good basketball right now," he added. "We're in the right places, but we're still having mental lapses. We got beat a couple of times in getting back on defense, but that wasn't the whole story. It's just a matter of our not making the shots we're getting."

Northeastern took an early lead in the game, outscoring Rose 17-12, during the first period. The Rampants were not able to get back in the game after that, as the Eagles continued to pull away. Northeastern built up a 19-10 margin in the second half and ran the lead out to 36-22 by the end of the first half.

Rose was able to keep it from getting much worse in the third period, as the Eagles managed only a 16-14 margin. That allowed the lead to expand to 52-36. Rose rallied some in the final period, 17-13, but fell far short.

George Pledger led the Eagles with 19 points while Claude Nixon hit for 15, Joe Jenkins had 13 and William Overton had 10.

Rose's scoring was led by Walston with 17 while Carlton Wilson added 14 and Hunter Bost had 10.

The loss was the third straight for Rose, now 2-4 in league play and 7-7 overall.

The Rampettes were also losing their third in a row as Elizabeth City took the win. The first period was closely contested with Northeastern holding a 10-8 lead at the horn. But in the second frame, the game changed. Northeastern outhustled Rose 19-10 and built up a 29-15 halftime lead. They further expanded on that in the third period, 12-10, raising the score to 41-23. Northeastern held off Rose, 14-13, in the final period.

Nelgryn White led Northeastern's scoring with 23 points while Teresa Tyler hit 13. Rose was led by Doris Richardson with 15.

"Their fast break really hurt us," Coach Dennis Gibson said. "We got beat badly on the transition game. Then, Tyler hurt us inside and we shot poorly for the game, about 23 percent. They have a good team, big and physical."

Rose is now 3-3 in the conference and 3-11 overall.

Rams Top Farmville

SNOW HILL — Greene Central jumped out to a big lead in the opening minutes of its Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game with Farmville Central Friday night and recorded a 59-38 victory.

The win kept the Rams in a virtual tie with Southern Nash for the league lead. The Rams are 6-1 in the league standings, while the Firebirds are 5-1 with an open date.

In the girls game, the Lady Rams stayed close to the top with a 61-52 victory over Farmville.

The Rams raced away from the Jaugars in the first period, streaking out to an 18-6 lead by the time the buzzer sounded. Farmville could do no better on its offense in the second quarter, again scoring six points, but they held the Rams back to 12, and trailed 30-12 at intermission.

Farmville put on a rally in the third period with a 16-11 edge in scoring. That closed the gap to 41-28. But the Rams pulled away again, 18-10, in the final period to complete the win.

Theodore Edwards led the Greene Central scoring with 17 points, while Anthony Thompson added 14 and Boneree Johnson hit 10. Farmville was led by Bobby Evans and Kent Hardy with ten each.

Greene Central's girls, also 6-1 in league play, also raced away to an early lead, taking an 18-7 margin into the second quarter. Farmville rallied, however, outscoring the Lady Rams, 19-11, to cut the lead back to 29-26 at the half.

Both teams tossed in 12 points in the third period, leaving Greene Central up, 41-38 as the final period opened. In that, the Rams outhit the Lady Jags, 20-14, to gain the win.

Cyndi Hicks led Greene Central with 16 points while Allison Battle added 15. Stephanie Newton scored 11 to pace the Jaguars.

Greene Central's boys are now 14-3 overall while the girls are 13-4. Farmville's boys fall to 0-7 in the league and 2-14 overall. The girls are 3-4 and 8-9.

Quick Start Tops Chargers

PINETOPS — Ayden-Grifton, coming off its exam break, saw SouthWest Edgecombe streak out to a 14-point first period lead and record a 66-46 Eastern Carolina Conference basketball win.

SouthWest's girls, in first place in the league, also came away with a win, downing A-G, 60-35.

"It makes a difference when you don't practice and your oppenent does," Coach Bob Murphrey said. "Under our county rules, we can't practice during the exam period. We came our flat for the game and that did it. I'm not saying we would have won otherwise, but we might have made it a better game."

The Cougars raced out to an 18-4 lead in the opening quarter of the game. Ayden-Grifton cut one point off that in the second frame and trailed, 32-19, at the half.

SouthWest pulled away in the third period, building the lead out to 48-30. They outraced the Chargers to the wire, 18-16.

Kelvin Knight led SouthWest with 27 points while Darrell Clark had 12 and Columbus Sharpe had 10. Ayden-Grifton was led by Doug Anderson and Mike Dixon with ten each.

The loss drops Ayden-Grifton to 3-3 in the league and 9-6 overall.

SouthWest, unbeaten in league play, rolled up a 17-4 lead over the Lady Chargers in the first quarter. That was stretched to 31-12 by halftime. SouthWest ran that out to 48-26 in the third period and outscored A-G, 12-9 in the final period.

Teresa Mayo and Phyllis Gorham each had 20 points for SouthWest while Pam Gorham added 14. Cynthia Hicks had 12 and Cora Faison had 10 for Ayden-Grifton.

The Lady Chargers fall to 3-3 in the league and 5-10 overall.

Knights Survive Four Overtimes

Greenville's girls also came away with a win, taking a ho-hum 59-28 regulation time win.

Friendship powered into a 22-15 lead in the first period of the game, but Greenville rallied, 14-10, in the second frame to cut the lead to 32-29 at the half. The Knights continued in control in the third period, taking a 45-44 lead into the last quarter.

In that, the two swung back and forth and Dan Andrews hit for GCA to knot it at 54-54 with about a minute to play. After Friendship missed a shot, GCA held fof the final shot but missed.

In the opening overtime, Friendship's Charles Maynard hit with about a minute to go to tie it at 58-58 and neither team scored again. In the second overtime, Maynard again scored with 1:30 to go, making it 60-60. Chris Harris tied it at 66-66 with a minute and a half left in the third extra period and again both teams missed shots at winning it.

Finally Harris ended it all with five seconds left in the fourth overtime — the only points of that extra period.

Harris led the GCA scoring with 18 points while Mike Griner added 15 and Dan Andrews picked up 13. Marshall Cain led Friendship with 14, while Steve Watkins had 13, Maynard had 11 and Todd Jones and Brian Goodwin each had 10.

Greenville Christian's girls had no such problems in their easy victory. The Lady Knights pushed out to a 15-4 lead in the first period and upped that to 30-12 by halftime. In the third quarter the GCA lead rose to 47-19. GCA outscored Friendship, 12-9, in the final period to complete the rout.

Kathy Vernelson led GCA with 27 points while Kelly Vinson led Friendship with 17.

The GCA boys are now 8-5 and the girls are 6-5. GCA entertains Wilson Christian on Tuesday.

Plymouth Takes Two From 'Skins

ROBERSONVILLE — Plymouth High School swept a pair of Northeastern Conference basketball games from Roanoke Friday night. The Vikings took the boys' game, 82-53, and ran off a 52-38 win in the girls' contest.

Plymouth worked up a 16-12 lead in first period and pulled away from there on out. The Vikings outhit Roanoke, 20-15, in the second quarter and built up a 36-27 lead by halftime.

Things got no better for Roanoke in the third quarter as Plymouth continued to build on its lead, running it out to 56-40. The Vikes outhit the Redskins, 26-13, in the final period to complete the rout.

Jimmy Franklin led the way with 29 points for Plymouth, while Kelvin Kornegay had 12 and Travis Brown scored 10. Roanoke was led by Garrett Baker with 13 and James Duggins with 10.

The loss dropped the Redskins to 5-6 in league play and 5-9 overall.

Plymouth's girls wasted little time in showing Roanoke what it was in for. The Valkyries ran out a 23-11 lead in the first period and outhit Roanoke, 12-6 in the second. That made it 35-17 at intermission.

In the third period, Plymouth stretched its lead to 49-26 before allowing a 12-3 Redskin rally in the final period.

Jane Fenner led Plymouth with 14 points while Debra Norman added 11. Gloria Duggins led Roanoke with 15 while Teresa Brown added 10.

Roanoke's girls are now 5-6 in Northeastern play and 6-8 overall.

The Redskins travel to Ahoskie on Tuesday.

Trinity In 57-48 Win

Trinity Christian made their homecoming a happy one Friday night with a pair of victories over Faith Christian of Goldsboro. The boys took a 57-48 win while the girls eased to a 28-22 victory.

The first period of the boys' game was a tight one with Trinity taking a 10-8 lead at the horn. The Tigers were able to make a little more headway in the second frame, building up a 26-20 halftime margin.

Faith came back with a 13-12 margin in the third period to cut the Tiger lead to 38-33, but Trinity outhustled the Conquerors, 19-15, in the final quarter behind a late surge by Jimmy Powers and Art Reynolds to pull out the win.

Reynolds led the Tiger scoring with 17 points while Powers had 13 and Maury Harris had 11. Junior Fields led Faith with 21 while Todd Jones added 11.

Trinity raced out to a 13-1 lead in the first period of the girls game, taking what appeared to be an unsurmoutable lead. But Faith came back with a 6-4 margin in the second frame and trimmed it to 17-7. Trinity then held Faith scoreless in the third period, running the lead out to 23-7. Faith again rallied, 15-5, but was too far behind by then.

Mary Harris led Trinity with 10 points while Janie Willoughby had 10 for Faith.

Trinity travels to Rocky Mount on Tuesday.

Edenton Nips Pack

EDENTON — Rodney Leigh hit a field goal with 15 seconds to play and John Downum added a free throw seconds later to give Edenton a 57-55 Northeastern Conference basketball victory over Washington Friday night.

Edenton also won the girls' game, taking a 34-31 decision.

Washington, despite shooting 61 percent from the floor and outrebounding the Aces couldn't pull out the win. The Pam Pack held a 16-14 lead after one period and increased that to 30-25 at the half.

But Edenton rallied, 17-12, in the third period and knotted it at 42-42 going into the final quarter. Trailing 55-54, Edenton got a basket from Leigh with 15 seconds left and when the Pam Pack missed, Downum was fouled on the rebound, giving the Aces a two-point cushion.

Leigh and David Walker each had 12 for Edenton, while Downum added aa. Jeff Cox and Steve Austin each had 18 points for Washington with Earl Randolph chipping in 10.

Edenton's girls took a 10-7 lead after one period, but held only a 14-13 margin at halftime over Washington. Washington erased that lead in the third period and it was 23-23 as the final period opened. Edenton then outscored the Lady Pack, 11-8, to pull out the win.

The Pam Pack plays host to Plymouth on Tuesday.

This past week, we celebrated 20 years at the sports desk of the Daily Reflector and in thinking back over those years, we find that a lot has changed in the sports picture.

There have been many exiting times for us, and times of great sorrow. But all in all, it has been fun.

On the high school level, our coverage area 20 years ago was Pitt County, Greene County and the edge of Martin around Robersonville. We had J.H. Rose and C.M. Eppes highs here in Greenville, each playing football, basketball, baseball and running track. Rose also had wrestling and swimming. At that time there were no sports for girls at either school.

In Pitt County, there were Bethel, Bethel Union, Belvoir-Falkland and Stokes-Pactolus, which later merged to former North Pitt; Winterville, Robinson, Chicod, Grimesland and Whitfield, which combined as Conley; Ayden, South Ayden and Grifton, merged into Ayden-Grifton; and Farmville and H.B. Suggs, consolidated as Farmville Central. All were 1-A schools, and only a few of them offered football. The "white" schools had boys and girls basketball, while the "black" schools offered only boys basketball. Most had baseball in the spring and a few had track teams.

We also covered Greene Central and Robersonville (now merged with two other schools to form Roanoke High School).

At East Carolina, there was college-divison football, basketball, baseball, track, swimming and a few other sports, all for men. There was no intercollegiate women's program at that time.

It was quite easy, in those days, for a one man staff to handle things with a little part-time help.

Eighteen high schools, all 1-A except for 3-A Rose and 4-A Eppes. Perhaps in those days, we worried about a total of 50 different teams on the college and high school levels.

Then came consolidation on the high school level and expansion on the college level. Sports grew over the years. Some have come and others have gone. Wrestling was once a thriving sport in the county and at ECU. Now only two programs remain in Pitt, at Conley and Rose. Track teams sprung up and faded away.

Programs for girls and women have greatly expanded, however. There have been times when over 4,000 jammed into Minges Coliseum to see the Lady Pirates play.

And as the sports in our area grew, so did we. We expanded the coverage area to include Jamesville, Bear Grass, Oak City (since merged with Robersonville) and Williamston in Martin County. This past fall, we began coverage in Beaufort County of Washington and Chocowinity high schools.

Our staff has expanded two. There are now two full-time writers. But there is much more to do, too.

East Carolina now fields a Division I-A football program and a growing basketball program. Where 20 years ago we didn't staff any basketball games on the road for ECU, we now staff nearly all of them. Baseball has grown at ECU, also. Twenty years ago, ECU played about 20 games, now they schedule almost 50.

ECU alone now fields 14 sports for men and women. The 12 high schools we cover, along with several church-related schools, field approximately 100 teams during the year.

Recreation sports have grown considerably during those 20 years. Softball has grown by leaps and bounds; baseball has greatly expanded. Golf has become much more prominent and other sports are becoming more and more popular as the days go on.

Where will it all lead to. We don't know. Certainly the American people enjoy their sports, but there are times of crisis ahead. High school sports are facing tough financial situations right now. A big realignment is scheduled for 1985 and who knows what kind of traditional patterns are going to be broken by that.

Collegiate sports face the upcoming battle over TV rights. The have's will grow much bigger if the NCAA loses out — as it appears almost certain to do — and the have not's will suffer for it. Where that leaves ECU is yet to be seen.

We recall happily such things as bowl victories in the Tangerine and Independence; an amazing Southern Conference basketball championship over Furman in overtime; ECU's stunning victory over North Carolina in football, and a lot more.

We recall with sadness such things as the crash of the Marshall football team, killing all of that group; the death of ECU athletic director Clarence Stasavich one day before his school's proudest moment.

In life there are highs and lows. Fortunately, for me, these last 20 years have produced many more highs than lows.

May the next 20 be as fortunate and memorable.

West Out To End Streak

DENVER (AP) — The West squad, which includes the National Basketball Association's four top scorers, will try to snap a four-game losing streak Sunday in the league's 34th annual All-Star Game.

A capacity crowd of 17,251 was expected for the midseason extravaganza, set for a 2 p.m., EST, tipoff at McNichols Arena.

Utah Jazz Coach Frank Layden, coaching the West, will have plenty of firepower, including his own star forward, Adrian Dantley, who leads the NBA in scoring with a per-game average of 30.1. Dantley is followed on the scoring chart by West teammates Mark Aguirre of Dallas, 30.07; Kiki Vandeweghe of Denver, 29.3; and George Gervin of San Antonio, 27.4.

The East, coached by the Boston Celtics' K.C. Jones, suffered a blow when Philadelphia 76ers center Moses Malone, the top vote-getter in fan balloting with a record 927,779 votes, suffered an ankle injury Tuesday in Philadelphia's game with the New York Knicks. Malone, averaging 23.3 points and a league-leading 13.7 rebounds a game, was expected to be out a week.

Commissioner Larry O'Brien named Bill Laimbeer of Detroit, averaging 12.7 rebounds a game this year, to replace Malone.

Joining Laimbeer in the East's starting lineup, as decided by fan balloting, are forwards Larry Bird of Boston and Julius Erving of Philadelphia and guards Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee and Isiah Thomas of Detroit.

Starting for the West will be Dantley and Denver's Alex English at forward, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles at center and Gervin and Magic Johnson of Los Angeles at guard.

The East reserves, chosen in a vote of coaches, include guards Otis Birdsong of New Jersey and Andrew Toney of Philadelphia, forwards Bernard King of New Jersey, Kevin McHale of Boston and Jeff Ruland of Washington, and center Robert Parish of Boston.

Abdul-Jabbar will be making his 13th All-Star appearance, tying a record shared by Wilt Chamberlain, Bob Cousy and John Havlicek.

Sixteen teams are represented on the rosters. Making their first All-Star appearance will be Aguirre, Green and Sampson for the West and McHale and Ruland for the East.

Sampson, the No. 1 player taken in last year's draft, is the only rookie on either squad.

"It's always a thrill," Magic Johnson said of the All-Star game, in which he set a record last year with 16 assists. "We must win one, though. I'm getting tired of losing in the All-Star Game. I hope I can do well and represent my team."

Erving led the East to a 132-123 victory last year. He was named the game's Most Valuable Playerafter scoring 25 points as the East widened its overall advantage in the All-Star matchup to 22-11.

Daugherty Charged

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — University of North Carolina basketball player Brad Daugherty has been ordered to appear in court Feb. 2 on charges of attempting to injure personal property and disorderly conduct.

Daugherty, a sophomore center, was charged Jan. 14 when an Apex man identified him as one of three men who threw something at his car. Chapel Hill police said the object thrown was candy.

Douglas Wayne Goodwin of Apex told Chapel Hill police he and his wife were sitting in their car near Granville Towers, where the UNC basketball players live, when three men approached his car.

Goodwin told police, the three men threatened him when he objected to them throwing the candy at his car.

Indians Stop Losing Skid

The Chocowinity girls rolled up a 48-28 win in their game.

The Indians eased in front of the Bullets, 14-10, in the first quarter of the boys' game. They followed that with a 20-14 margin in the second quarter, working up a 34-24 halftime advantage.

Jamesville hung in close in the third period, but saw the Indians add two more to their lead, taking a 56-44 edge into the final period. In that, Jamesville rallied, 28-22, but it wasn't enough.

Reggie Ross led Chocowinity with 28 points while Terry Moore had 16, and Mark Smith and Melvin Tripp each had 10. Richie Ange led Jamesville with 24, while Robbie Harris had 17 and Horacie Stotesbury had 12. One of Jamesville's top players, Tracy Peele, did not make the game.

Chocowinity's girls kept hot on the heels of the league leaders with their win. The Lady Tribe inched into a 10-7 lead in the first quarter and upped that to 20-11 by halftime. In the third period, Chocowinity really did the damage, outscoring the Lady Bullets, 22-4. That made it 42-15 as the last quarter opened. Jamesville outscored Chocowinity, 13-6, in that period.

Wendy Elks led Chocowinity with 14 points while Zina Warren added 12. No one scored in double figures for Jamesville.

Bertie Holds Off Williamston, 50-44

WINDSOR — Bertie Senior High School gained an early lead and then held off Williamston for a 50-44 Northeastern Conference basketball victory Friday night.

Bertie's girls also came away with a win, downing Williamston, 40-37.

The Falcons managed to built up a slim 11-8 lead after one period of play, then continued to pull away in the second period, 17-13. That gave the Falcons a 28-21 halftime edge.

Bertie was able to add another point to that margin in the third period, leading 36-28 going into the final frame. Williamston rallied, 16-14, but it wasn't enough.

Calvin Cook led Bertie with 11 points while James Ward and David Little each had 10 to pace Williamston.

Bertie's girls held Williamston to only four first period points and scored 12 of their own to take the lead early. Williamston, however, turned the tables in the second period, outscoring Bertie, 12-3, and took a 16-15 lead at the half.

The third period saw Bertie regain control, outscoring Williamston, 17-6, to take a lead of 32-22. Williamston again rallied, 15-8, but never caught up again.

Joyce Holly led Bertie with 15 points while Coretta Gilliam added 10. Timberly Rodgers led Williamston with 14, while Jane Edwards hit for 11.

Lewis Tops Indoor Record

NEW YORK (AP) — When Carl Lewis is "in control," as he says, he's hard to beat. When he's not, he's even tougher.

In the unaccustomed position of having to come from behind, Lewis finally made good in the sixth and last round of competition Friday night to break his own world indoor best in the men's long jump at the Millrose Games.

"The main factor was that I came from behind and jumped well when I had to," said Lewis, who shattered his own mark by 9¼ inches and equaled his best leap outdoors, soaring 28 feet, 10¼ inches.

Lewis' spectacular performance at Madison Square Garden came after desultory performances in the earlier five rounds. The 22-year-old from Willingboro, N.J., considered the most consistent long jumper in history and the 1983 world champion, surprisingly was in second place. He trailed veteran Larry Myricks, entering the final round of the long jump.

"I started out with problems," Lewis said. "The runway was short and the pit was hard, and I didn't feel well."

But after a rest, Lewis said he felt better. He also was thinking back to a poor performance in a track meet in Japan earlier this month and Lewis said he was "determined to come back."

"Usually I'm in control of an event," said the ubiquitous Lewis, a favorite not only to win the long jump title in the Olympic Games this summer at Los Angeles, but considered the No. 1 runner in the 100 and 200-meter runs. He also is expected to run a leg on the United States 400-meter relay.

"I wasn't in control today," he added. "I really wanted to make it on my fifth try. I didn't want the pressure of having to make it on the last one. But I was pretty relaxed throughout the competition."

There has been only one better jump in history than Lewis' Friday night — Bob Beamon's 29-2½, in the 7,400-foot altitude of Mexico City during the 1968 Olympic Games.

Lewis' performance was clearly the highlight at the 77th annual Millrose Games before an enthusiastic, hand-clapping crowd of 18,210.

Among the other winners were Steve Scott in the prestigious Wanamaker Mile in 3:59.38, Greg Foster in the men's 60-yard high hurdles in 7.07 seconds, Emmit King in the men's 60-yard dash in 6.12, Chandra Cheeseborough in the women's 60 sprint in 6.69, and Stephanie Hightower in the women's hurdles in 7.47.

Hightower won despite a continuing pain in her back from a pinched nerve that had kept her out of action for several months.

"It was a bit of a pressure situation for me," she said. "Being off since June and coming in tonight with a field like that was awfully tough for me."

Among other world-class women hurdlers, the field included Candy Young, who shares the Millrose Games record of 7.37 in the event with Hightower.

Also winning were James Robinson in the men's 800 in 1:49.69, Robin Campbell in the women's 800 in 2:05.91, Stanley Redwine in the men's 600 in 1:09.04, Tony Darden in the men's 500 in 56.73, Michael Paul in the men's 400 in 47.60, and Grace Jackson in the women's 400 in 53.87.

Scott stayed off the early pace set by Adam Dixon, then beat Tom Byers by a hair in a stirring finish to personally retire his own Wanamaker Cup and reach "one more milestone in my career. I wanted the Cup. That's why I ran the way I did tonight."

In the pole vault, Billy Olson, the first to ever clear 19 feet indoors, won at 18-8¼ inches, a meet record. He tried three times at a world indoor best of 19-1, but failed.

"I wanted the world record when I came here," said Olson, "but it wasn't my top priority. The first thing was winning and the second was jumping well. Two out of three isn't bad."

Cindy Bremser scored a surprising victory in the women's mile in 4:35.81, outclassing Joan Benoit, the fastest woman marathoner in history. In the women's high jump, 1972 Olympic champion Ulrike Meyfarth of West Germany won at 6-4.

Doug Padilla, the American indoor record holder in the men's 5,000 meters, beat a first-class international field in winning the event for the third straight year in 13:33.83.

In the final event of the night, Dwight Stones outdueled Jimmy Howard in the men's high jump. Both cleared 7-6½, but Stones was declared the winner of his third Millrose title on fewer misses.

Record Landing

Unlucky Night For LSU, Arkansas Teams

By The Associated Press

There were but two ranked teams in action on a slow night in college basketball Friday. And when the cheering was over, both probably wished they had taken the night off with the rest of their rated brethren.

Unranked Auburn upended No. 10 Louisiana State 80-78 Friday night to move into the lead in the Southeastern Conference race, while lightly-regarded Rice upset 16th-ranked Arkansas 65-62.

Auburn Coach Sonny Smith, whose team now leads idle third-ranked Kentucky by a half-game in conference play, said, "I think the key was that we faced a fast-break offensive team and held them to only four fast breaks. I think we made 11.

"LSU played super and we did, too. It was just a big team win. Everybody has made a lot over how crucial this game was, and it was important because it was the next one."

Auburn pulled the game out in the final 40 seconds when Chuck Person, the SEC's leading scorer, connected on a tie-breaking basket and added four consecutive free throws in the final 12 seconds. He wound up with 22 points.

Auburn, 12-5 and 6-2, came back from a 64-58 deficit in the final 7½ minutes behind the dominating play of 6-foot-6, 270-pound Charles Barkley, who had a game-high 17 rebounds, a school record eight blocked shots and 19 points. But the Tigers then blew a five-point lead before Person broke a 74-74 deadlock with 39 seconds remaining by hitting a 17-footer from the top of the key.

"(Auburn) can play with anyone in the country," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "And Charles Barkley is as good a player as there is in the country. If he is not on the Olympic team, then they better have Paul Bunyon and Samson."

Louisiana State, which had won 12 of its last 14 meetings with Auburn, fell to 12-4 and 5-3.

At Houston, Rice senior Mike Cunningham scored 16 second-half points to pace the Owls to their first victory over Arkansas since 1974, their first at home since 1971 and the first win in 19 games with Eddie Sutton as Arkansas coach.

The Owls came away 7-10 and 3-4, while Arkansas fell to 15-3 and 7-1.

The Razorbacks led 39-31 with 17:05 left in the game. But Rice ran off 12 unanswered points to move into the lead. The Owls built the margin to 51-43.

Arkansas came back, cutting the margin to 53-51 with 5:35 left, but Tyrone Washington hit two shots and Ivan Pettit pumped in four free throws to ice the victory.

Joe Kleine led Arkansas and game scorers with 24 points.

In other games Friday night, Frank Dobbs scored 20 points as Villanova ran past Big East rival Connecticut 69-58, Holy Cross stopped Colgate 77-54 and Tampa knocked off Rollins 78-54.

USFL Could Cost Money

HONOLULU (AP) — If players' salaries are bid up substantially by the new league, "more than a few" National Football League teams could lose money in the next few years, says Pete Rozelle.

"Our owners in the strike settlement last year gave substantially to the players; now they're being asked to 'give again at the office,'" the NFL commissioner said Friday at Aloha Stadium, site of Sunday's Pro Bowl.

"It's funny, but from our reports, some of the USFL (United States Football League) owners are as concerned as we are about escalating salaries."

The USFL's high stakes bids for players is one of a number of nagging worries for the NFL, and Rozelle reflected back on the league's younger days with some longing.

"The challenges certainly aren't as much fun as in the earlier days, which were mainly football — trying to promote the game and do all we could to make it better," he said.

"The new type of problems we have are obviously more distasteful. With courts and strikes and agents and matters of that sort, it's different from the old days when the big issue at the league meetings was whether to have a 33-or 36-player limit."

Another problem still lingering for the NFL is the fact that it remains in limbo in the long-running legal battle with the Super Bowl champion Raiders.

The league is awaiting a decision on its appeal of the jury verdict that declared the NFL acted in violation of antitrust law when it sought to block the team's 1982 move from Oakland to Los Angeles.

Another suit, not involving the NFL, has been filed by the City of Oakland, which is attempting to regain the Raiders under eminent domain law.

The legal questions remaining to be resolved have scotched any talk of the NFL expanding in the near future, Rozelle said.

On another issue affecting the NFL and most other pro sports, Rozelle said he hopes players "are getting the message" about drug use.

"We're going to continue to do the same three-pronged program — education, rehabilitation and, when necessary, discipline," he said.

"It's a tough thing for some of the players to understand that they can't have the same so-called rights of other people. But as I've told them, the public and the media treat them differently from other people.

"It's not like a department store guy getting caught with a drug problem; the public and the media are not that interested."

On the positive side, Rozelle said holding the Pro Bowl in Honolulu has worked out well. Sunday's game will be the fourth straight played in Aloha Stadium, and the existing contract guarantees that at least three more will be played there.

The commissioner cited Hawaii's enthusiastic response to the game, and also mentioned that bringing the players to the resort spot was a good incentive for them.

"When we upped the money to 10-5 ($10,000 and $5,000 individual winner's and loser's shares) and moved it to Hawaii, it had a very healing effect on some of the post-season injuries that we'd had in previous years," he said, smiling.

Walsh Marvels Over West Team's Talent

HONOLULU (AP) — Bill Walsh, coach of the National Football Conference team, marvels at the aggregation of talented players who'll compete in Sunday's Pro Bowl.

"It's kind of mind-boggling for me, because everbody here is so great," said Walsh, the San Francisco 49ers coach who is drawing his first Pro Bowl assignment. "I look at all these players from the other teams and wonder how we ever win a game."

Walsh said the contest is a showcase for NFL talent and added that they have plenty of incentive to play well.

"It's an important game to the players because they know it's the best against the best," he said. "It's up to us as coaches to use all their great talents."

Seattle's Chuck Knox, guiding the AFC in his fifth Pro Bowl coaching assignment, echoed Walsh's statements, saying: "Pride makes the players play hard in this game. As the coach, you try to let them show their skills, let the players decide the game."

While some of the key players in the Super Bowl — notably Los Angeles' Marcus Allen and Washington's John Riggins — weren't selected to the Pro Bowl, the nationally televised, 4 p.m. EST contest will have a Raiders-Redskins flavor.

The Raiders, who whipped Washington 38-9 in the Super Bowl last Sunday, had seven of their players, an AFC high, voted onto the squad in balloting by the league's coaches and players. The Redskins duplicated that with an NFC-high seven players tabbed.

Starting at quarterback for the NFC will be Washington's Joe Theismann, who led the Redskins to a single-season scoring record of 541 points. He'll be operating behind Washington teammates Jeff Bostic at center, Russ Grimm at guard and Joe Jacoby at tackle.

A number of the Los Angeles defensive players who shut down the Redskins in the Super Bowl will line up on the opposite side, including end Howie Long, linebacker Rod Martin and cornerback Lester Hayes.

In the NFC's starting backfield with Theismann are rookie Eric Dickerson of the Los Angeles Rams, who led the league in rushing; and William Andrews of Atlanta, the NFL's second leading rusher.

San Diego's Dan Fouts is the starting quarterback for the AFC, with Bill Kenney of Kansas City the backup. Miami rookie Dan Marino was voted the AFC starter at quarterback, but is recuperating from knee surgery.

Earl Campbell of Houston and rookie Curt Warner of Seattle will open as running backs for the AFC.

Hamilton Sidelined

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson senior guard Vincent Hamilton suffered a bone fracture in his foot Friday and will be lost to the Tigers for at least three weeks, coach Bill Foster said Friday.

Hamilton, who leads the team in rebounds and is second in scoring, played the final three minutes of Thursday night's game against Georgia Tech with the injury. An x-ray on Friday revealed the injury.

Foster said Warren Wallace would replace Hamilton.

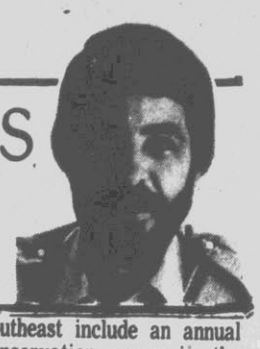
OUTDOORS With Joe Albea



Wildlife Commission News — A schedule was adopted for the establishment of hunting, fishing and trapping regulations for the 1984-85 seasons. Public hearings on proposed changes in regulations will be held in each district in mid-March, and the dates and locations of these hearings will be announced later.

The commission also presented a check for $7,750 to Ducks Unlimited for waterfowl habitat development in Canada. By statute, one dollar from the sales of each non-resident hunting license sold in North Carolina is contributed to Ducks Unlimited.

"These funds will be earmarked for a black duck project in the Maritime Provinces," said Don Manley, regional supervisor of Ducks Unlimited. "Ducks Unlimited is very concerned about the continuing decline in black duck populations in the Atlantic Flyway."

In addition, a resolution honoring the late Dr. Joe Anderson of New Bern was adopted. Dr. Anderson served as Wildlife Commissioner for District 2 from 1965 through 1971.

"Dr. Anderson was always a strong supporter of wildlife convervation in North Carolina, and served the Wildlife Commission well," said Woodrow Price of Gloucester, current Wildlife Commissioner for District 2. "We regret his passing."

The commission also heard a status report on the Wildlife Endowment Fund. On November 30, the Wildlife Endowment Fund — supported by the sale of lifetime licenses and tax-deductable contributions — had a cash balance of $2,107,595. Only the interest from this fund will be used for wildlife conservation.

Wildlife Federation sponsors Outdoor Expo — The Third Annual Outdoors North Carolina Expo, the largest outdoor sports show in the Southeast, will be held from Thursday, March 22, through Saturday, March 25, at the Raleigh, N.C., Civic Center. It will be sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation.

The Expo will feature exhibitors of a wide range of outdoor products and services, as well as entertaining and educational attractions. Highlighting the show will be daily appearances by a life bald eagle, which is currently on loan to the National Wildlife Federation.

"We're pleased to sponsor the Expo," said Jay D. Hair, executive vice-president of the NWF. "It represents an important opportunity to further promote our goal of wise resource management through contacts with outdoorsmen and women from across the Southeast."

The National Wildlife Federation, headquartered in Washington, D.C., is the nation's largest conservation organization, with 4.1 million members and supporters. The Federation, a non-profit organization, publishes Ranger Rick, National Wildlife, and International Wildlife. Other NWF activities in the Southeast include an annual conservation camp in the Smokey Mountains, and a Natural Resources Center in Raleigh.

Fishing Report — The annual spring migration of white and hickory shad should begin in a couple of weeks. If water conditions permit, it should be a good year. Crappie had been biting well before the high water came in. It is also time for the sporty racoon perch to bite.

DISABLED ATHLETES

NEW YORK (AP) — Physically disabled individuals who compete in special events for other people like them can still be considered athletes. That was the finding of a nationwide sports media poll, taken by the International Games for the Disabled.

E.B. Aycock Sweeps Games

The boys won their game, 83-81, and boosted their record to 5-1 on the year. Terry Warren led Aycock with 28 points while Melvin Jenkins had 14 and David Lee had 11.

The Aycock girls rolled up a 46-28 win over Northeastern, and are now 4-0. Kim Dupree led the way with 18 points while Kim Bridges had 10.

Aycock travels to Kinston on Tuesday.

RECORD INCOME

Branch Corp. reported record net income for the year ended Dec. 31 of $15,816,000, an increase of 38.4 percent over $11,428,000 reported for 1982.

Net income for the quarter ended Dec. 31 was $3,669,000, up from $2,546,000 earned for the fourth quarter of 1982.

Total assets for the corporation at the end of the year were $1.71 billion, an increase of $338 million or 24.8 percent over the total reported at the end of 1982. Year end loans outstanding increased by 39 percent and deposits rose by 27.3 percent over balances reported Dec. 31 of the previous year.

HIGHS REPORTED

Heilig-Meyers Co., Richmond-based home furnishings chain, announced that earnings increased 48.4 percent to a record $3,166,000 for the third quarter ended Dec. 31 from $2,134,000 a year earlier.

Revenues for the period increased 22.4 percent to $40.4 million, also a record, compared with $33 million the previous year.

For the first nine months, earnings increased 48.3 percent to $8,260,000 compared with $5,571,000 in 1982. Revenues exceeded $100 million for the first time, reaching $105.5 million, up 15.4 percent over $91.4 million in 1982.

AWARDS BANQUET

Barry C. Chesson, CLU, Greenville district manager, and agents Robert J. Powell III, CLU, G. Edwin Porter, William S. Johnson, Alan Pittman, Jerry Carawan and Barry Kearney recently attended the 1983 awards banquet of the Raleigh agency of Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Johnson received the "Agent of the Year" award while Porter was presented the "Developing Sales Force Agent of the Year" citation.

Chesson said the Greenville district wrote in excess of $52 million of life insurance in 1983, a 55 percent increase over 1982.

JOINED FIRM

Ann Bass, broker/owner of Century 21 Bass Realty, announced the affiliation of Geneva Creech and Sadie Edwards as new associates with the firm.

Mrs. Creech, originally from Middletown, Ohio, has lived in the Greenville area for the past 38 years. A graduate of Middletown Business College, she attended Columbia University in New York City. For the past three years, she has been associated with Raynor, Forbes and Clark.

A native of eastern North Carolina, Mrs. Edwards was administrative assistant/bookkeeper for a federal project serving a 29-county eastern region. She attended Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, and Kutztown State College in Allentown, Pa. She and her husband live in Washington.

PROMOTION NOTED

Empire Brushes Inc. announced the promotion of Ronald R. Leary to programming director in the company's data processing department with responsibility for Empire's programming design and development.

Leary has been associated with Empire for over six years and became senior programmer last year. He graduated from Pitt Community College with an associate degree in data processing. Learey and his wife, Joanne, live with their son in the Washington area.

BANKING OFFICERS

Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. announced that Stephan Kraszeski and John Spilman have been elected banking officers in Wachovia's Greenville and Jacksonville offices, respectively.

A Stamford, Conn., native, Kraszeski graduated from East Carolina University in 1980 and joined Wachovia in 1981 as a sales finance trainee here. He was named retail loan administration officer in January. He is married to the former Debra Stancil of Wilson and they have a daughter, Elizabeth Grey.

A Greenville native, Spilman is a 1980 ECU graduate and joined Wachovia that year as a sales finance trainee here. After serving in Morehead City, Spilman was named branch manager of the Jacksonville office last November. He is the son of Joyce and J.B. Spilman Jr. of Greenville.

SALES WINNERS

Paul V. O'Donnell, president of Utelcom, Inc., announced that five people from the Greenville district were among the winners of 1983 "100 Percent Club" sales awards announced at meetings held in the Kansas City regional offices.

O'Donnel said Jordan Best, district sales manager, and Gail Nichols, James Jenkins, Dave Halby and Don Bunn of the Greenville district were winners from Utelcom's Mid-Atlantic region.

Utelcom is an independently operated subsidiary of United Telecommunications Inc.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

The board of directors of Vermont American Corp. declared a regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents per share on Class A and Class B common stock, payable Feb. 24 to shareholders of record Feb. 3.

Vermont American, which has a plant in Greenville, manufactures cutting tools, power tool accessories, and hand tools for consumer and industry.

CASH PAYMENT

The board of directors of The Planters Corp. declared a quarterly cash dividend of 21 cents per share payable March 15 to shareholders of record on Feb. 29.

Planters said the new rate is a 23.5 percent increase from the year ago rate of 17 cents per share and translates into an annual dividend payment of 84 cents per share. The corporation said 1984 marks the 18th consecutive year in which Planters has increased its dividend.

Planters National Bank has 48 offices in 19 North Carolina cities.

AREA EXECUTIVE

Burney S. Warren III, president of First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Pitt County, announced that Bobby L. McLawhorn has joined the firm as assistant vice president and area executive with managerial responsibilities for the Ayden and Grifton offices.

Warren said McLawhorn was formerly assistant vice president and loan manager with Planters National Bank in Ayden, where he had been employed since 1967.

The new area executive and his wife, Lucille, have a son, William Benjamin. They are members of Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church.

C&A STAFF CHANGES

Collins & Aikman in Farmville announced that Johnny O. Mitchell has been named to the newly created post of division systems manager for C&A's knits division, while Robert Davies has joined the division as a fabric development dyeing and finishing specialist.

Mitchell, who attended Guilford College, joins the firm from Dan River where he served as data processing manager. He and his wife, Judy, have three children and will reside in the Farmville area.

Davies, who began his career as an industrial engineer with C&A in Pen Argyl, Pa., most recently served as a department head of Hillsborough Fabrics. He and his wife, Georgeanne, have three children and live in the Farmville area.

INCREASE REPORTED

Tandy Corp. reported that consolidated sales for the second quarter of its 1984 fiscal year were $898,266,000, a 15 percent increase from 1983 sales of $778,155,000. Net income for the three months ended Dec. 31 rose 9 percent to $101,241,000 from $92,982,000 in the Christmas quarter of fiscal 1983.

Sales for the six months ended Dec. 31 increased 14 percent to $1,481,695,000 from $1,295,266,000 a year earlier. Net income for the first half of the year was $160,880,000, 10 percent above the $146,676,000 earned in the first six months of last year.

Forum Planned For 18 Teachers

ECU News Bureau

Eighteen teachers from eastern North Carolina have been selected to participate in a Consumer Economics Forum sponsored by the East Carolina University Center for Economic Education and the ECU School of Home Economics.

ECU is among 17 campuses across the national selected as a site for the forum by the Joint Council on Economic Education, which, along with the state Council of Economic Education, is furnishing funds to cover some of the participants' costs.

According to Beth Eckstein, director of the ECU Center for Economic Education, the selected teachers represent 10 school systems and a variety of disciplines and grade levels.

Mrs. Eckstein said representatives from such businesses and agencies as Weyerhauser Co., Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., Piedmont Airlines, Quaker Oats Co. and the Federal Reserve will meet with the group to bring first-hand knowledge of topics discussed during the forum.

The primary instructor is Renny Meyers of the ECU Department of Home Economics Education, assisted by forum co-directors Mrs. Eckstein and Dr. Vila Rosenfeld, chairperson of home economics education at ECU.

Names and schools of participating teachers include: Lu Ann Neese, Bethel Elementary School; Frank O'Neal, Aycock Junior High School; Carol Bland, Bethel Elementary School and Debra Gray, D.H. Conley High School.

The City Council, the administrative staff, and all city employees are here to serve your needs. If you have a concern, call Nadine Bowen, Citizen Concern Coordinator, 752-4137.

Warner Cites Trade Barriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Warner says restrictive trade practices, especially for tobacco, by Taiwan, South Korean and Hong Kong may lead him to reconsider his support for the duty-free trade status those nations have with the United States.

Warner, R-Va., in an appearance Friday before the trade subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee, cited the three nations for excluding U.S. tobacco products or imposing such heavy tariffs and discriminatory taxes "that trade in these nations is impossible or severely handicapped."

Warner said he supported the purposes of the duty-free trade program, since it assists "strategically important countries" in developing their economies.

But he said he would reconsider continued support for their privileged trading status if they continue discriminating against U.S. products, "including cigarettes from Virginia."

He noted that South Korea denies all forms of access to foreign tobacco competition and subjects its citizens possessing foreign cigarettes to fines or imprisonment.

He said the government of Hong Kong has used its tax policy to force U.S. manufacturers to relocate jobs from Virginia to Hong Kong or lose market share or profitability.

"This is a country whose very life's blood depends on free access to U.S. markets," Warner said.

In Taiwan, a strict and decreasing quota system limits foreign competition to less than 1 percent of the entire market, he said.

He said such trade policies "must be combatted early and vigorously."

Crabtree Mall Sold

RALEIGH (AP) — Crabtree Valley Mall has been sold, and the new owners say they plan to renovate it.

The price was $33.8 million in cash and the assumption of the remainder of a $26 million mortgage loan, according to records filed with the Wake County Register of Deeds. That means the price would be something less than $60 million, depending on how much of the loan had been paid off.

The buyers were Chandon Investment Co. N.V., a company based in Curacao, Netherlands Antilles, and Samuel M. Longiotti of Chapel Hill, one of the original owners.

Seby B. Jones and Dr. Edgar B. Baker, both of Raleigh, were the sellers, along with Longiotti. Jones, a former Raleigh mayor, is chairman of Davidson and Jones Corp., a construction and real estate managment company. Baker is an orthodontist.

Longiotti, a 20-year resident of Chapel Hill, owns Plaza Associates Inc., a real estate development and investment company that operates throughout the Southeast.

Card Fraud Found

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A credit card fraud ring uncovered in the Southeast is part of a nationwide organization of Nigerian nationals who use foreign student visas to gain credit, a police detective says.

"You could say it involved almost every national business which offers a credit card ...," said Athens police Detective Art Moore.

The Athens Daily News, in a series of copyright stories last week, outlined an investigation by Moore and other law enforcement authorities of the alleged credit scam.

Three men have been arrested in the case and three other suspects have been identified but are believed to have left the country, authorities said.

Other groups of Nigerians have been charged around the country in the past five years.

Five months ago, Athens police began uncovering phony credit card applications in the area.

Such companies as Shell Oil, Texaco U.S.A., American Express, Diner's Club, J.C. Penney's, Davison's, Amoco and others, were investigating Athens residents for credit applications which the residents contend they never mailed, the newspaper said.

TAKE SHELTER

With an IRA from Peoples Bank

IRA

You can still open or make a deposit in a Peoples Bank IRA through April 15, 1984 and benefit on your 1983 tax. And under Peoples Bank's IRA Loan Program, you may borrow up to $2,000 to deposit in an individual account or $2,250 for a spousal IRA account.

The interest rate on a loan between $1,000-$2,000 is 2% higher than the rate paid by Peoples Bank for the IRA and may be paid back monthly or quarterly. All loans are subject to approved credit.

By borrowing money to deposit in an IRA, you can benefit on your taxes in two ways. Your deposited money is sheltered from taxes, and the interest you pay on the loan is tax deductible. Take a look at the chart below and see what an IRA loan can do for you.

Then come into Peoples Bank for more details and start leading a sheltered life.

TAX effect of loan interest and IRA contribution for the year ended 12/31/84*

Assumed Tax Rate	IRA Contribution	Interest Deduction	Tax Savings If Taxpayer Itemizes Deductions	Tax Savings If Taxpayer Does Not Itemize Deductions	Net Cost If Taxpayer Itemizes Deductions	Net Cost If Taxpayer Does Not Itemize Deductions

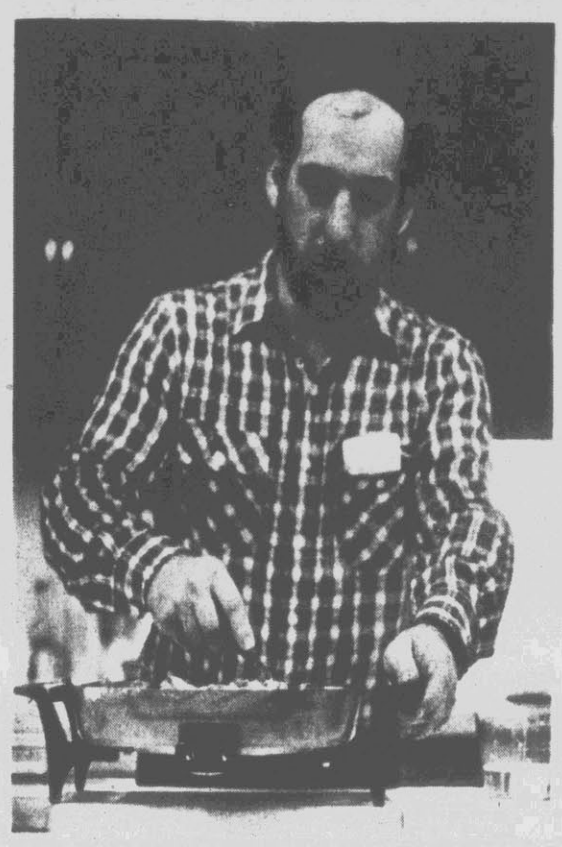
Gourmet Delicacies From Eastern North Carolina Forests



Rick Hamilton prepares Dove Amandine.

Each person in line looked apprehensively at the dish on the table before spooning some of the "mystery meat" onto his plate. As the participants in the class chowed down on the long strips of brown meat, Agricultural Extension Forestry Specialist Rick Hamilton said jokingly, "Now isn't that the best 'possom you ever tasted? Hope it doesn't taste like rubber from the tire tracks."

Fifty people, mostly hunters and their spouses, attended the third annual wild game cookery class held Monday night at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension kitchen in the Pitt County Office Building. The class was led by Hamilton and area Extension Agent Jim Kea, with help from Forestry Technician Moreland Geath.

Opossom was not one of the ten wild game dishes prepared during the informal class, but the extension specialists kept the participants guessing as to what delicacy they would taste next. The "opossom" was really venison terriaki — deer meat marinated in soy sauce and cream sherry.

Kea said that in the five-county area he represents there are two game cookery classes per year. Hamilton said ten classes are held across the state. The classes, which are limited to about 40 people, are almost always filled quickly. "There is a lot of interest in wild game cookery," Hamilton said.

The purpose of the class, he said, is to demonstrate how wild game can be used more efficiently.

"A lot of game is trapped or shot for the hides," Hamilton said. "We want to expand the uses of meats traditionally not eaten. Wild game is under-utilized and wasted. We use game that otherwise wouldn't be used — we'll cook anything we can get our hands on."

One of the recipes demonstrated was deer hearts stuffed with Pepperidge Farm dressing and topped with slices of bacon. This normally wasted organ tasted like chicken gizzards.

Eel, possom, turtle, raccoon and beaver dishes are included in the recipe book distributed by the extension agents, as well as recipes for the more traditional game meats like venison, dove, duck, goose, rabbit and squirrel.

Even though the purpose of the class was to share and sample recipes for wild game, it also included tips on how to take care of the game in the field and how to prepare the game for eating.

"The care of any game begins with planning before the hunt," Kea said. "Game must be cooled as soon as possible to preserve its natural taste. The gamey flavor associated with venison in particular is associated with improper care after the kill as well as game being run for long periods."

Suggestions for care and cooking of wild game include:

•If the temperature is 60 degrees or higher when the deer is killed, it should be dressed, skinned and cooled within one hour. If the temperature is 30 degrees, the deer should be prepared within three hours.

•Skinning before gutting deer will prevent excess hair from sticking to the inside of the body.

•Ideally, when a deer is shot, it should be hung by the back feet, skinned, gutted and placed in a cooler or refrigerator between 32 degrees and 40 degrees for at least four or five days before freezing or cooking.

•Avoid using a saw when cutting up a deer because bone dust is not only hard to wash off, but it also will give the meat an odd flavor.

•Because cold water will clot blood and prevent proper drainage from tissue, avoid spraying cold water on the carcass before it cools down.

•Before freezing venison, the bone should be taken out to prevent gamey taste. Fileting the meat saves freezer space and makes the venison taste better.

•Because the fat on venison causes it to turn rancid and gives it a gamey taste, it should be removed before freezing or cooking.

•Aging two or three weeks before freezing or cooking will produce advantageous results in taste and tenderness. During this aging process, the venison should be rotated to let the blood drain so the meat will dry evenly. Aging doesn't change the taste, it changes the texture; the longer venison is aged, the more tender it gets.

•Use several layers of freezer paper, not plastic, for wrapping any kind of game. (Venison's low fat and high water content make it extremely susceptible to freezer burn. Date packages and use within eight months of freezing.)

•Because dove will spoil in the 90 degree temperatures of the early season, the birds should be cooled after they are killed to avoid spoilage. Carry a six-pack cooler and ice with you and put the dove in it as soon as it is killed.

•Before freezing small game such as squirrel, rabbit, fish, dove and quail, cover with water to prevent contact of air with meat. This method will eliminate freezer burn and extend the freshness of the game for up to two years.

Kea said that about "half of the game that is killed is thrown away. That's a lot of game in the state of North Carolina." The recipes the extension agents prepare in the cookery classes each year utilize wild game that are not usually eaten.

"No soaking is done in these recipes," Kea said. "Traditionally, people will take vinegar and salt water to soak deer and other game in. But, the meat generally has a good taste" without soaking.

"Most people have a tendency to overspice game meats because they are afraid of the gamey taste," Hamilton said. The spices he uses in the recipes enhance the flavor of game, rather than smother it.

"Most of the game meats are low in fat," Kea said. "You must be careful in cooking them because they will dry out in a hurry and get tough. But the meats have some surface fat and will grow rancid and give you a gamey taste if it's not removed. We use bacon, butter and quick cooking in the recipes. Dutch ovens are used for better heat and slow cooking.

"Many of these recipes can be adapted to other game and work out real well," he added.

RECIPES

VENISON BITES

1/3 cup vinegar
1/3 cup sesame seed
1 cup oil
6 tbs. soy sauce
1 1/2 tsp. garlic powder
1 to 2 tbs. crushed red pepper (or more if desired)

BEAR ROAST

1-4 lbs. young bear meat
1/4 cup cooking oil
1/3 cup vinegar
1/3 cup water
2 tbs. sugar
2 tsp. dry mustard
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 tsp. salt
1 garlic clove
1 onion, minced
2 bay leaves
1 tbs. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. chili powder
1/2 tsp. cayenne pepper
1/2 cup catsup
1/4 cup soy sauce

Place roast in a skillet and add cooking oil. Braise roast on all sides using high heat. Add remaining ingredients and simmer for 30 minutes. Place roast in an open pan, add sauce and cook for 3-4 hours at 350 degrees; baste often. Roast should be served well done. Yields 6-8 servings.

VENISON CHILI

2 chopped medium onions
2 chopped medium green peppers
pepper and salt to taste
3 lbs venison stew and ground venison
3 tsp. garlic powder
1/2 tsp. oregano
1 tsp. ground red pepper
5 tbs. chili powder
1 1/2 tsp. paprika
dash worchestershire sauce
4 16-oz cans tomatoes or equivalent
1 16-oz. can tomato paste
1 32-oz. bottle catsup
42 oz. red kidney beans
28 oz. pinto beans

as much of your favorite liquid hot sauce as you and your doctor see fit

Sautee onions and green peppers and brown venison. Add all ingredients and cover, simmer over low heat 3 hours. Serve with grated cheese and/or chopped onions. NOTE: Best when you refrigerate one or more days after cooking and reheat prior to serving.

WOODCOCK, QUAIL, DOVE OR SNIPE AMANDINE

6 woodcock or 12 dove or snipe, split down the back
1/4 cup flour
salt and pepper
4 tbs. butter
1/2 cup white table wine
2 tbs. lemon juice
1/4 cup blanced sliced almonds
or smoked almonds

Dust birds in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Melt butter in a heavy skillet or electric fry pan and sautee birds until nicely browned. Add wine and lemon juice. Cover and continue cooking slowly for 15-20 minutes. Add almonds and cook for 5-10 minutes or until birds are fork tender. NOTE: Allow two quail or woodcock per serving, 4 dove or snipe per serving.

HASENPFEFFER (SWEET AND SOUR RABBIT)

1 large or 2 small rabbits, cut in serving-sized pieces
1 quart vinegar
2 tbs. salt
1 tbs. pickling spices
1 tbs. peppercorns
2 large sliced onions
2 tbs. fat
2 tbs. flour
1 cup cold water
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. allspice

Put the disjointed rabbit in a crock and cover it with the vinegar combined with salt, pickling spices, peppercorns and 1 onion. Let this stand in a cool place 24 hours. Drain, put the meat in a pan, cover with boiling water and simmer until tender (about 1 1/2 hours). Remove meat and strain broth. Melt the fat in a skillet, blend in the flour and add water, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Add the rabbit, the strained broth, cinnamon and allspice and the remaining onion. Simmer for 1 hour. Serve the meat with the gravy.

Miss Bath, Mr. Kelly Are Married

MRS. ROBERT HARRIS KELLY JR.

Pamela Anne Bath and Robert Harris Kelly Jr. were married Saturday in a high noon ceremony performed in St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The Rev. John R. Price conducted the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bridal couple are Dr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick Bath of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris Kelly of Erwin.

Sharon Irwin of Greenville was organist; Edith Gettes played the violin and Gretchen Gettes played the cello.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her honor attendants were her sisters, Patricia Lynn Bath of Chapel Hill and Andrea Catherine Bath of Greenville. Bridesmaids included Stuart Kelly Davis of Erwin and Leslie Broadhurst Davis of Wilmington, sisters of the bridegroom, Gaither Kelly Fleming of Smithfield, Anne Pender Griffith of Charlotte, Serena Matney Murad of Raleigh and Ann Dinan Wilson of Covington, Va.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and ushers included Stephen Charles Bath of Greenville, brother of the bride, Robert Kedar Bryan of Washington, Ronald Dean Davis and Alan Odom West of Erwin, John Dixon Fleming Jr. of Smithfield, William Huske Kelly of Chapel Hill, Kenneth Dexter Randolph of Raleigh and Thomas Robards Royall of Smithfield.

The honor attendants were dressed in formal gowns of mauve tissue taffeta designed with an open squared neckline featuring short pouf sleeves trimmed in a gathered ruffle at the shoulder. The fitted bodice featured a modified natural waistline enhanced with a pleated cummerbund of burgundy moire taffeta. They carried bouquets of dried cream and burgundy roses accented with blue zinnias, tied with streamers of cream and burgundy ribbons.

The bridemaids were dressed identically.

A reception followed the ceremony and hosts and hostesses were Dr. and Mrs. Joe Davis, Dr. and Mrs. Erwin Hester, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Koontz, Dr. and Mrs. Ira Hardy, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Welch. It was held at the King and Queen North. Edith and Gretchen Gettes of Chapel Hill and Carole Walker of Burlington provided music.

The couple will live in Chapel Hill after a wedding trip to Jamaica.

The bride received a bachelor and masters degree in music from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She teaches violin in Chapel Hill and Meredith College. The bridegroom graduated from UNC-CH and is property manager/sales associate with Johnston Realty in Chapel Hill.

A dance followed the rehearsal dinner given by friends at King and Queen North. Mrs. Michael Murad, Mrs. Bronson Matney and Mrs. Edward Petrie entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon at Brook Valley Country Club. The family and bridal party were honored at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Welch Thursday evening. Several parties and showers were given for the couple prior to the ceremony.

Appellete Court Orders Visitation

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ruling that children benefit from grandparents' visits, a court has granted a couple the right to see their daughter's 5-year-old son despite her objections.

California's 4th District Court of Appeal voted 2-1 Wednesday to allow Carol and Raymond Froze a visit of one weekend per month with their grandson, whom they helped raise for two years before their daughter married and her husband adopted the child.

But dissenting Judge Robert O. Staniforth said, "Without doubt, judicial resolution of the custody dispute has failed to quell these hostilities or improve the parties' relationship. Robert (the boy) continues to be a pawn in an ongoing battle."

The boy's mother, Lisa Desjardins, and her husband, Thomas, sought to overturn a lower court ruling upholding the grandparents' right. They argued the Frozes interfered with the rearing of the boy, refusing to cooperate with their methods.

In the majority opinion, Justice Howard Wiener said, "Grandparent visitation is beneficial for a child's development, allowing for the establishment and later maintenance of an important familial relationship extending beyond childhood."

A similar two-year legal battle ended last week when New York state's highest court ruled unanimously that George and Catherine Layton had a right under state law to visit their 6-year-old grandson.

The Laytons had been denied access to the boy, Mark Foster, when he was adopted by his stepfather after the child's mother remarried. She had been divorced from the Laytons' son, who surrendered his own visitation rights.

Layton and his wife lost a family-court suit to see the youth, but the decision was reversed by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court.

The Court of Appeals upheld the appellate ruling last week, clearing the way for the Laytons to visit their grandson this weekend.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

All my life I've been looking for a sport that (a) features a cute outfit that I can wear to do my grocery shopping, (b) requires no more effort than putting one foot in front of the other, (c) has your next meal strapped to your back and (d) offers the cheap thrill of having someone breathe heavily behind you. I've found it! Cross-country skiing.

Imagine. No ambulance parked at the bottom of the hill waiting for you. No tents at the finish line offering blankets and I.V.'s. No standing around trying to find your pulse to see if it's accelerated.

I know there's a lot of curiosity about cross-country skiing, so I'll try not to get too technical.

As with any sport, basically what we're talking about is coordination. I cannot tell you how important it is to coordinate your entire outfit at one time. The knickers should fit well and be something eye-catching, preferably matching your lightweight jacket. A cotton turtleneck or scarf tucked smartly under a blouse is a nice touch. Socks should be dark to help keep your thighs from looking like piano legs. A lot of people wear thermal underwear, but personally, I found it too warm for the supermarket.

What I really love about the sport is that you don't have to wear those awful caps that flatten your hair and make it look like an unmade bed. I prefer earmuffs. They're cute.

Another tip is to avoid needless exertion. That's why I fry my chicken the night before and pack the knapsack with small bread-and-butter sandwiches, thermoses of hot soup and chocolate, candy bars and of course, a corkscrew.

Setting your pace as you go is very important in cross-country skiing. If you tear off in a kick-glide movement the way you are supposed to, you'll never meet anybody. I prefer to stand helpless and unsteady until I hear fast, heavy breathing behind me. It's a real ego-builder.

As in most sports, cross-country skiing improves with time and practice. After awhile you learn that if you look too frightened to move, someone will clamp your skis on for you, pull your gloved hand through your poles and never leave your side. As for the promise of great personal satisfaction, I wouldn't know. Maybe next week, when I venture outside of the parking lot.

Today, Cars Are A Status Symbol

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Having or using a car today is a status symbol for most young people, says a family life extension specialist.

In a study that asked boys what impresses girls the most, the boys said having or using a car was No. 1, says Herbert L. Lingren, of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

Lindgren said cars also symbolize power to young people.

"The more noise a car's muffler makes, the more power a person thinks he has. For boys, especially insecure ones, the car offers a means of controlling an enormous amount of power and strength."

Lindgren said a boy may also use a car to express his masculinity because some still think being a virile male means being powerful.

The car has always symbolized freedom as well, he said.

"The teen can get away, move into a new neighborhood or go to a new city or town. And sometimes in a new neighborhood, he or she can act differently without worrying who knows them. It gives the teenager the much sought after independence that he or she has dreamed about for years."

For some adolescents, Lindgren said, a car is a way to express hostility, frustration and anger — "When the angry teen gets behind a wheel, a car becomes a weapon with the potential to kill and destroy."

Candlelight Wedding Ceremony Held

MRS. JOHNNY LEE STOCKS

Mary Lorraine Dail became the bride of Johnny Lee Stocks in a formal candlelight, double ring ceremony Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Frances Bullock and Carson Dail of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stocks Jr. of Ayden.

The Rev. R.M. Stewart and the Rev. James E. Gurkins, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the ceremony. A proram of organ music was presented by Debbie Potter. She sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Endless Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white chiffon over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with floral Venise lace and seed pearls. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of imported English net and the sheer bishop sleeves were appliqued in Venise lace. The full chiffon skirt extended to an attached chapel length train. She wore an imported garden hat accented with lace and double tiers of organza illusion. She carried a cascade of roses, daisies, stephanotis and minaiture carnations in shades of pink and burgundy interspersed with bridal greenery tied with satin streamers.

Terrie Dail, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a fomal gown of dusty rose and carried a lace fan accented with pink and burgundy roses, carnations, and gypsophila.

Bridesmaids were Lisa Smith of Ayden, Teresa Walker of Rocky Mount, Kim Roberson of Winterville, Elizabeth Allen and Shirley Peede of Greenville and Bridget Douglas of Virginia Beach. The bridesmaids were dressed in formal gowns of burgundy and carried a fan like that of the honor attendant.

Amy Dail, sister of the bride, was miniature bride and carried a cascade identical to that of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Andrew Stocks III, brother of the bridegroom of Ayden, Billy Holland, Clayton McLawhorn, Kenneth Smith, Joe Colenda, Wesley Deal of Greenville and Sam Walls of Ayden. Scott Dail, brother of the bride, was miniature bridegroom.

The mothers wore formal gowns and were remembered with corsages of cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Rebbie Mills and Mrs. Louise Dail, grandmothers, wore corsages of silk roses.

After the ceremony the bride's family entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. The bridal table was centered with an arrangement of pink and burgundy mixed flowers flanked by burning tapers. Cake was served by Mavis Hall and punch was poured by Mary Elizabeth Graves. Barbara Holland and Pat Wells assisted.

The parents of the bridegroom gave an after-rehearsal dinner Friday night for members of the wedding party and friends.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and the bridegroom graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School.

After a wedding trip the couple will live in Ayden.

A Family Soup Develops Into An Industry

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

Back in 1905, a Russian immigrant named Louis Tabatchnick came to America, pockets crammed with recipes from his homeland's Jewish community, including the family formula for vegetable soup.

Tabatchnick eventually set up a chain of delicatessens in New Jersey featuring pickled herring, smoked salmon and other native specialties. To wash them down, his wife brewed a daily pot of the family soup.

Years later, grandson Seymore Tabatchnick opened a delicatessen chain of his own in New York and New Jersey, featuring the Russian delicacies, plus the soup.

So popular did the soup become that Seymore's wife, Isabel, began brewing a dozen varieties, ranging from the original vegetable, to chicken dumpling, barley and cabbage. Soon she was making a hundred gallons a day.

Today the family is turning out soups in 500-gallon drums in a factory, packaging them in boil-in bags, and shipping them to supermarkets in many states.

Mrs. Tabatchnick and her mother still test new soups in the family kitchen and try them out on customers in the family delicatessens before brewing them in bulk.

"There are problems," she told me recently. "To go from a pot of homemade soup to a 500-gallon drum involves more than multiplication. It never comes out right that way. You have to keep testing as you increase the amount, to retain the original flavor."

They freeze the soup in bags before shipping, she told me, because to can it would necessitate using stabilizers and other additives.

The soups are made along kosher guidelines and are generally low in fat.

Quite naturally, Mrs. Tabatchnick will not reveal the recipes for her soups. But she did give me the formula for a curry stew in which her chicken soup is used. Here it is.

Whole chicken (about 2 pounds) cut into eighths
2 packages of the family's frozen chicken soup with noodles and dumplings
2 small onions, quartered
1-3rd teaspoon yellow curry powder
1 pound frozen peas
2 cups chunky apple sauce
1 red Delicious apple, unpared, sliced and cored

Brown chicken. Defrost soup and heat. Drain soup, taking out noodles and dumplings and setting aside. Add soup to browned chicken. Add onions and cook 30 minutes. Add apple sauce, the sliced apple, peas and curry, which has been mixed with 1 cup broth from pot. Cook 15 minutes. Add the noodles and dumplings, cook 5 minutes more and serve. Serves 4

Dear Abby

Man Won't Speak His Opinion

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was once advised that at all costs I should try to keep peace in the family, yet when I'm with my in-laws I feel as though I've landed on another planet.

They are the most bigoted people I've ever known. They make their feelings known in many ways. My father-in-law always has a new "joke" that invariably insults a minority group.

I have kicked myself for not speaking up and thereby encouraging further incidents. How can I tactfully make my feelings known, contain my anger and keep peace in the family? I don't want to suddenly blow up at the next family gathering and ruin everything, and I don't want my wife to do my talking for me.

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Speak up! You may not educate your in-laws with one speech, but you can let them know that you disapprove of racial "jokes" and do not care to hear them.

Apropos remaining silent when one should speak up is this gem of a piece I have kept for nearly 30 years. It was written by a German Lutheran pastor who was arrested by the Gestapo in 1938 and sent to Dachau concentration camp until he was freed by the Allied forces in 1945.

I DIDN'T SPEAK UP
by the Rev. Martin Niemoeller

"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

DEAR ABBY: Recently I attended a funeral service at a church. The family of the deceased filed in in this order and sat in the front row: first the sister of the widow, then the widow, next her sons and their families.

To be correct, shouldn't the widow's sister have let the widow and her immediate family go first and be seated in the front row, then she (the widow's sister) bring up the rear?

A QUESTION OF PROTOCOL

DEAR QUESTION: The funeral director usually instructs the mourners concerning the "correct" order to file in and be seated for the service. However, at a time when most families are numb with grief, if the correct protocol is not strictly observed, only the pettiest of the petty would take note and be critical of the lapse.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the older woman who was hoping to get her attorney son-in-law to draft her will:

In Mississippi, when an attorney stands to benefit directly or indirectly from the terms of a will he has drafted, there is a presumption of undue influence, and if undue influence is found, the will is voided.

Beauty Author Susan Sommers Tells Over 40, 'Feel Good About Yourself'

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — There you are looking at the calendar and it talks back, "Birthday coming up." That's okay, just another birthday if you are turning 20, but some sort of psychological crisis sets in if it means you're turning 40.

Susan Sommers, who has arrived at the latter age, says that becoming 40 really is meaningless — "It is a number of our own creation, an imposed cutoff for being young, for being beautiful, since our culture usually equates beauty with youth."

She remembers actress Joan Fontaine telling her, "There is beauty in the morning, and there's beauty in the afternoon too."

Ms. Sommers, whose career is writing about beauty, health and fashion, is the author of "Beauty after 40" (Dial Press, $19.95) that is an all-encompassing guide to how life can begin at 40.

"I just set out to clear up some misconceptions about the aging process," said Ms. Sommers, in an interview. "So many women, and men, approach that figure with such trepidation. Yet, consider that statistically by 1990 the majority of Americans will be past that age."

"We should appreciate as we get older that our goal should be to feel good about ourselves. Even the young should have that goal.

"My body is better now than it was two and a half years ago. Then, just for the hell of it I started going to an exercise class three times a week. I'm stepping up the class to five times a week. I do stretch exercises at home every morning.

"And this is the girl who used to hide in high school from volleyball and hated physical education classes."

Ms. Sommers is 5-foot-6, weighs 114 pounds, but admits she has problems with controlling caloric intake. "When I'm writing," she said, "I go on eating binges. I'm a cookie freak and I probably drink too much coffee. But I don't smoke.

"I believe one should not go around feeling guilty about an occasional lapse.

"Weight really shouldn't be the criterion you go by, anyway. It should be how you look in the mirror. Exercise may not change your weight, but it will change contours. And remember, muscle weighs more than fat."

Ms. Sommers said it was time society reexamined the way it looks at the aging process.

"Try to find the best that is in you at any age," she said.

Turning 40 apparently was no trauma for her, for as she said, "What's the difference really in being 39 or 41?"

Her book includes photographs of famous faces after 40 — actually befores and afters, plus interviews with many famous women. There are Raquel Welch, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Brigitte Bardot, Lauren Bacall, Sophia Loren, Audrey Hepburn, Angie Dickinson, Jane Fonda, Elizabeth Taylor, Ali McGraw and Lena Horne.

In-depth interviews are with the Baroness Nadine de Rothschold, Diahann Carroll, Polly Bergen, the model Carmen, actress Sunny Griffin, and Helene Rochas, beauties all.

Diahann Carroll, the entertainer, told her, "Women can improve with age if they nurture and take care of their minds as well as their bodies and faces. With time, the personality softens ... I've learned to laugh a great deal, to take things less seriously than I did at 25, and most important of all, when to remain silent ..."

"I feel I've improved with age," Polly Bergen, the actress and businesswoman, told her. "I know who I am and out of that comes everything, dealing with strengths and handicaps, knowing how to dress and make up, being comfortable in my skin.

"When I think of the money women have spent on diets, I want to shake them. I am violently opposed to nut diets ... dieting can only be done by changing your attitude, and a diet you can't live with for the rest of your life is impractical, a fad."

Carmen, modeling since she was 14, told Ms. Sommers, "When my hair turned gray, I decided to keep it that way. My facial shadows looked different — I looked much better with lighter hair.

"I started to enhance the gray by frosting it several times a year ... people don't know if I am gray, silver, blond or whatever."

Ms. Sommers, a native of Bayonne, N.J., currently lives in a New York apartment. She is a regular contributor to several magazines, and worked for two years in Paris as correspondent for L'Officiel-USA and Beauty Fashion magazine.

On The Young Side

By Clay Deanhardt

The 1984 Pitt County Quiz Bowl is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at East Branch Library in the auditorium. All five area high schools will field a team in the competition.

The final team for Rose is Elizabeth Ellen, Derek Dickens, Betsy Kane and Steve Worsley. Alternates are Clay Deanhardt, Doug Frelke, Kevin Hewett and Charles Moore. Best of luck to the Rampant team!

Thirteen students from Rose have been selected for the Eastern Regional Honors Orchestra. Selected for strings are Elizabeth Ellen, Amy Moore, Andrea Bath, Robert Haggard, Sarah Jones, Sheila Pearson, Vickie Petrie, Danielle Nieman and Aaron Nieman. Representing winds and percussion are Bruce Thompson, Celeste Pickett, Evan Hause and Lewis Roberson.

These students will travel to Wilmington March 2-4 where they will audition for seating placements and perform in a concert. Those qualifying as best in their division will continue on to the All-State Orchestra next fall.

The National Guard, in cooperation with the guidance department and in observance of Financial Aid Awareness Week, presented the "Funding Game" to all senior government classes Thursday. The speakers dispelled many myths about financial aid and assisted students with how to package for financial aid.

Many representatives from different colleges will be on hand in the guidance office this month to answer any questions the students might have about their institutions. These people, their colleges and the date of their visit are:

It Can Be Bad To Be Old

By JEFF MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Some day you are going to get to my age, and I hope you don't have to go through the hell that I have," a 76-year-old witness told the House Select Committee on Aging.

Elsie Parsons of Forestville, Md., told the committee Thursday of what she called "the direct effect that exorbitant uncovered medical expenses have on our lives and income."

It was the first in a series of hearings on health care and the elderly by the select committee which functions mainly to gather information for possible future legislation.

She said her husband has had two strokes that left him partially immobile. He is deaf in one ear, suffers from diabetes mellitius, has a gastrointestinal problem that requires special foods and has a chronic heart disease.

In addition, she said she has a hernia. "I had to resort to seeing a physician for the first time and the first thing he said was that I had to pay cash up front and that I would have to bill Medicare mycelf," Mrs. Parsons said.

She said their income is $632 per month and expenditures for medical care, food, rent, electricity, laundry, telephone, food, transportation and a newspaper "leave us only $8 for miscellaneous items."

"Many times I have taken items that are discarded or thrown away and recycled them for my personal use," Mrs. Parsons said.

Another witness, Velma Whitely of Oakton, Va., said her 80-year-old mother had a lump in one breast in 1982. "The surgeon she consulted gave her the option, should the biopsy prove the lump to be malignant, of a modified radical mastectomy immediately following the biopsy or the biopsy alone followed by a modified radical mastectomy at a future date. She told the surgeon that if he discovered she had cancer she wanted him to get the surgery over with before she woke up," Mrs. Whitely said.

Later, she was told that Medicare would pay for both a biopsy and a mastectomy only if the procedures were separate. The mother was told to pay $1,320.40 while she was getting $303 per month from Social Security, Mrs. Whitely said.

Dr. Albert B. Sabin, famous developer of a polio vaccine, proposed full-time salaried physicians to treat patients on Medicare. He told the committee that this would help hold down the mounting cost of the Medicare system.

CRANBERRY WALDORF MOLDED SALAD

No sugar is added.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 cups cranberry juice cocktail
1 medium (4 ounces) red eating apple, unpeeled and cubed (¼ inch) to make about 1 cup
2 small inner ribs celery, diced (¼ inch) to make about ½ cup
Lettuce, mayonnaise and coarsely broken walnuts

In a 1-quart measure sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup of the cranberry cocktail and let soften — about 5 minutes. In a small saucepan heat remaining cranberry cocktail until it begins to boil; pour over gelatin mixture and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add apple and celery; chill until partly thickened. Stir to distribute apple and celery. Turn into six ½-cup molds or 6-ounce custard cups. Chill to set. At serving time unmold and garnish with lettuce, mayonnaise and walnuts. Makes 6 servings.

Teens Are Best For Treating Eating Disorders

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR
United Press International

It's a mistake to tell children to eat everything on their plates or to use food as a reward or punishment, says a specialist in adolescent eating disorders.

Ordering children to clean their plates, sending them to bed without dinner when they misbehave or suggesting that they eat something sweet after a bad day in school "to make them feel better," can lead to trouble, says Dr. John W. Greene. director of adolescent medicine at Vanderbilt University Medical School in Nashville, Tenn.

Greene, director of adolescent medicine at Vanderbilt University Medical School in Nashville, Tenn., said eating attitudes and habits are formed when children are very young.

As early as infancy, feelings and patterns are established which later may lead to eating disorders, particularly obesity, he says. About 20 percent of American teenagers have eating disorders.

"The greatest number, probably 10 to 15 percent, are overweight," Greene aid. "Another 1 to 2 percent suffer from anorexia nervosa and a similar number from bulimia."

Anorexia nervosa is a personality disorder, chiefly in young women, characterized by an aversion to food and obsession with weight loss. Bulimia is a constant and insatiable craving for food.

Although eating disorders currently are treated after they develop, Greene is working on the theory that they can be predicted. He recently completed a study of high school students' eating habits aimed at spotting potential problems before they arise.

"Physicians usually see kids after they've developed a problem — become too heavy or too thin," he said. "We wanted to see if we could determine which kids are at risk before a problem develops."

He said preliminary results indicate researchers can successfully predict which children might develop eating disorders, especially anorexia. The next step, according to Greene, is active intervention to treat incipient problems, beginning with changing attitudes about food and eating.

Greene said parents often think a fat baby is a healthy baby and that they often overfeed an infant. But worse than that, he said, is giving infants or toddlers a bottle whenever they cry.

"It teaches you that if you're unhappy, put something in your mouth. The same pattern is repeated when you're older, only instead of a bottle, it's candy or cake."

Children, he said, form more bad habits and attitudes as they learn food is not just nourishment. It's a reward, a punishment, a token of love and respect, a way to cope with stress. Gradually food and emotional association, both good and bad, are welded together.

If eating disorders have already developed, the teenage years are the best time for treatment, Greene said, because teenagers are extremely conscious of their bodies and appearance and they want to be attractive to their peers.

There also are medical considerations, according to Greene.

"Eighty percent of obese adolescents carry their excess weight into adulthood. This can lead to heart disease, stroke, diabetes, high blood pressure and orthopedic problems. Many of these problems can be avoided if the weight is lost before becoming an adult."

Greene also tells patients to be aware of their eating, to eat slowly, have a wide variety of foods and to drink low-calorie beverages. He stresses the importance of not eating while doing other things like studying or watching television, which divides concentration and leads to over-eating.

Ephemera Grows In Collectibles

By DAVID ANDERSON
The Tucson Citizen

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The next time your elderly relative asks you to clean out the garage, instead of complaining when you lift that crate of Depression-era Vogue magazines, be grateful.

Such a find could have your wallet bulging.

Just ask Larry Michael Sandusky. For the past two years, Sandusky, 36, has made a living by buying and selling old magazine covers, advertisements, automotive literature, sheet music and comic books.

Collectively, the paper goods are called "ephemera" in the antique business. Ephemera is a comparatively new field in antiques, and has only about 100 purveyors nationwide, said Sandusky.

"It started as a hobby in 1976 when I bought a hundred car ads from an antique dealer in Bisbee," he recalled. "I bought them because I was restoring antique cars at the time and I wanted anything that had to do with antique cars.

"I liked them and I began to look for large quantities of magazines because it was cheaper to find them that way," he continued.

Sandusky soon realized that there were people who were selling the yellowing car ads at automobile swap meets.

"When I saw that people would buy them, I decided to do this occasionally on weekends at automobile shows. I did this for about five years, just automobile things," Sandusky said.

The turning point came at a swap meet in Fort Worth, Texas, when Sandusky was offered a batch of pre-1914 Saturday Evening Post magazines. He snapped them up solely for their automobile ads.

"I brought them home and somehow, somebody heard that I had other things besides car ads," including magazine covers. "They came over and I sold them some ... extremely cheap because I didn't know what they were," he recalled.

Sandusky decided he was on to something and he hasn't looked back since.

Today, he works out of his Santa Catalina foothills home, spending an estimated 70 hours a week thumbing through dog-eared copies of Scribner's, Harper's Bazaar, The Atlantic and dozens of more obscure glossy periodicals, scanning worn pages for marketable art works.

In sheer numbers, the automobile ads are still his best sellers, but at an average retail price of only $3 to $4 each, they produce only a fourth of his mail order revenue.

The real money is in magazine art; first, that on the outside covers, and then that on the inside displays used to hawk Jell-O, Crosley refrigerators, Holeproof Hosiery and other goods.

Sandusky is not a collector by temperament. He was not the kid on the block with 2,000 Marvel Comics.

"Everything is strictly from a business standpoint," he said. He does admit, however, that his work has given him a new appreciation of art.

New Carhops Like Nostalgia Of Old Job

By DENICE A. RIOS
San Bernardino Sun

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Kathy Jackson skated about 15 feet on the bumpy asphalt, then turned and glided back to a wrought-iron fence surrounding Angelo's Drive-in restaurant.

When she reached the fence she smiled and breathed a sigh of relief that a loose pebble had not ruined her tryout.

Ms. Jackson was hired a few minutes later for a job her mother had held years before. She is now a carhop.

More than 40 skaters — all young women — tried out for the carhop positions at Angelo's. Approximately 150 more men and women braved a slow-moving line for a chance at 40 openings working inside the nostalgic drive-in.

Although the basic need for money was a motivation for many of the people applying for jobs, the skaters seemed more captivated by nostalgia.

"I like the '50s atmosphere. It seems like crazy times," said Judy Harding, 19, as she nervously glided back and forth on her skates while waiting to be interviewed.

Another carhop hopeful, Hazel Fisher, 18, of San Bernardino, thinks the work will be more fun than most.

"The job sounds really neat. It sounds like a lot of fun exercise, and you get to meet all kinds of different people," Ms. Fisher said. "It doesn't seem like it would be heavy on your head as long as you do your job right."

Owner Tony Strammiello, who owns two other California drive-ins, one in Anaheim and one in Santa Ana, thinks fascination with the "time of innocents" makes his restaurants a success. In fact, he said the idea for the carhop revival stemmed from a club whose members dress in the 1950s style for their monthly meetings.

Strammiello said that at one of the club's get-togethers, a woman came as a drive-in carhop. He said he took one look at her and knew the idea would be a success.

"Bringing back the 1950s is bringing back good times. There were less hassles then. Kids weren't into drugs. It was fun," he said.

Sue Eaton, who works as a carhop at the Anaheim eatery, agreed with her boss. She said that many times families bring their children to Angelo's to show them what it was like when they were growing up.

Along with nostalgia, there are some other benefits, according to Ms. Eaton and fellow carhop Traysi Vasco. "You get a lot of presents — flowers galore," Ms. Vasco said. The two also agreed on the best benefit of the job.

"You make good tips," Ms. Eaton said.

"Real good," Ms. Vasco added.

MRS. JERRY THOMAS SWINDELL

Couple Marries On Saturday

The wedding ceremony of Diane Gayle Tetterton and Jerry Thomas Swindell took place Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the Greenville Church of God. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Paul Lanier.

Billy Stinson was guitarist and was joined by Sandra Stinson in singing "The Rose," "Be My Lady," "Seven Daffodils" and "If."

For the ceremony, the bride wore an antibellum styled formal gown of white satin and calloone lace. The gown was fashioned off-shoulder, encircled with satin edging and double rows of gathered lace. The lace fitted sleeves featured a pointed edge at the wrist edged with satin. Attached to the fitted bodice was a full gathered skirt that swept into a cathedral train edged with a lace ruffle. Her three-tier veil of bridal illusion was attached to a Juliet cap covered in satin and lace, embroidered and outlined with pearls. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of silk rosebuds, miniature carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath accented with lace and knotted streamers. The gown, headpiece and flowers were designed and handmade by the bride.

A reception was given in the church parlor by Virginia Brown of Greenville.

The couple will live in Ayden.

The bride is a graduate of Pitt Community College and the bridegroom graduated from Wayne Community College.

Glisson Rock Group Issues Its First Album

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A studio in his father's house on the Stokes Highway is where new ideas for songs and practice with his band takes place for Tom Glisson and his band. Tom is the band's guitarist and singer. Other members of the trio are Rich Chapman of Doylestown, Pa., bass player, and Kyle McBride, drummer.

"Kyle and I are both military brats," Tom said, noting he was born in Heidelberg, Germany and that Kyle was born in Norfolk, England. However, both consider themselves full-fledged Tar Heels.

"Our fourth member, the man the audience doesn't often see is Al Carroll, our sound and lights man."

For the past three years the Tom Glisson Band has been performing rather extensively — "eight states actually," Tom explained, "but mostly in North Carolina, Florida and West Virginia. We've played a lot in the Jacksonville (N.C.) area, both off and on base at Camp Lejeune. Primarily, our appearances are held to within a two or two and one-half hour one-way traveling area of Greenville, as two of our group, Rich and Al, are both in school."

What is a highlight in any group's road to hoped for recognition is the milestone of a first record. The Glisson Band has just recently reached that point with an album, titled simply, "Glisson."

"It's self-financed, self-produced," Tom said. "I was in charge of doing the actual mix-down, responsible for the total sound. We did our own tracks, mostly on one or two takes." Mixing-down, Tom explained, is equivalent to editing a story.

"Of the six songs we recorded on the 33 1/3 album, five are original, one is a remake of an old popular Jimi Hendrix hit, 'Hey Joe.'" Titles of Tom's original songs in the album are "Biding My Time," "Rock Died," "Hey You," "Leaving Tomorrow," and "Keys."

"We cut the album in Audio Concepts, a studio in Chapel Hill with a 16-track capacity, with Vic Lipscomb doing the engineering," Tom said.

"I write both the music and lyrics for my material, and sing them too," Tom commented. Asked if he had a specific approach to writing songs, or a particular angle for his material, he said, "Not really. There's no set time I devote to composing a song. It could be a week, it could be a month. What I put into a song depends on my mood, or moods, at the time. Some are about girls, some are not. My music is not pop."

At first, the Glisson band included Tom's brother, Fred. "But he left the band to go on his own, in November 1982. That's when Rich Chapman joined me."

One of the attitudes that Tom feels has contributed to his success on the area rock circuit is "we direct our music to a particular audience. Ours is high energy rock and roll. Because of that, I don't think we have much appeal to teeny boppers or pop rockers. People who come to hear us are quite often people who have heard us play before. They know what our music is like, and they know what they want to listen to."

Groups which Tom feels has influenced him and his associates include "Jimi Hendrix and the Grand Funk Railroad. Especially Hendrix, probably one of the greatest musicians of our times."

Among the spate of well known contemporary rock groups that appeal to him personally, Tom lists "ZZ Top, Van Halen, and V-2. V-2 has a fresh new sound. Loverboy too has done some good things. So much in American rock now sounds the same."

With a first album out (available in outlets in Greenville) and a rather solid booking schedule in hand, Tom says he has no immediate plans to expand, to become a bigger band. "Some people tell us there's no way a three piece group can make it, that most clubs want a five piece band," he commented, "but I've found there's a niche of clubs who cater to smaller bands, so actually being one of the few smaller bands around is an advantage to us." And, Tom candidly admits that if necessary he can always fall back on the business degree he holds from East Carolina University. "Right now I'm devoting full time to my music, and I hope it can stay that way.

Despite having to work around school schedules for Rich and Al, the Tom Glisson Band manages to fill a rather full calendar of playing dates. This past Friday night they played at the Cross Roads Lounge near Pine Tops. "And tonight we'll be appearing at the Attic in downtown Greenville."

Choral Concert

GREENSBORO — Two choral groups from East Carolina University are among singers from nine colleges and universities in North Carolina scheduled to gather at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, on Saturday for the 13th annual Intercollegiate Choral Festival.

The festival, sponsored by the state chapter of the American Choral Directors Association, will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Aycock Auditorium on the UNC-G campus.

Performances are free and open to the public.

This is the third time that the festival has been held at UNC-G, said Dr. Richard Cox, an organizer of the event and director of the choral at UNC-G. "This festival should be an excellent sampling of the high quality of choral activity found on our North Carolina campuses," Cox said.

The choral groups will perform on each half-hour during the morning and afternoon. Groups to sing in the morning are: 9 a.m., Guilford College Choir; 9:30 a.m., Elon College Chamber Singers; 10 a.m., Carolina Choir from UNC-Chapel Hill; 10:30 a.m., East Carolina University Women's Glee Cub; 11 a.m., Appalachian State University Singers; 11:30 a.m., East Carolina Choir.

Afternoon performances scheduled are: 1:30 p.m., UNC-G Men's Glee Club; 2 p.m., Gardner-Webb College Choral; 2:30 p.m., Chambers Singers from UNC-Wilmington; 3 p.m., UNC-G Chorale; 3:30 p.m., Glee Clubs, UNC-CH; and 4 p.m., Winston-Salem State University Choir.

Winter Camping

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Rugged individuals who enjoy the adventure of outdoor camping in wooded area near quiet waters can take advantage of the 12 primitive campsites located at Goose Creek State Park between Washington and Bath.

Park Ranger James Sessoms has provided guidelines for those who might want to give the sites a winter try. All sites are allocated to visitors on a first-come, first-served basis. Reservations cannot be made in advance for the sites.

Applicable regulations are:

• Camping Rigs — (1) Vehicles must park in designated parking areas. Only one vehicle allowed at each site due to insufficient space. Additional vehicles must park at the camping area entrance. (2) Two tents are allowed at each campsite with the exception of sites numbers 1 and 3 which can accomodate a maximum of four tents. (3) Pop-up type campers should use campsite number 5.

• Facilities Provided — (1) Each campsite has a picnic table and grill. (2) There are no electrical hook-ups, showers, or flush toilets. (3) Pit toilets are located close to campsites 5 and 10. (4) A hand operated water pump is located close to campsite number 7. (On days when water may be frozen at this pump, water can be procured from the office).

• Fires — Fires are to be built only in fireplaces or in the grills at each site. Dead wood on the ground in the camping area may be used as firewood.

• Animals — Dogs and other pets are pemitted to accompany campers, but must at all times be kept on a leash not to exceed 6 feet in length.

• Sign-up Procedures — Persons wanting to use the campsites must register in at the park's office, located a short distance inside the camp. Campsite fees are a minimum of $2 for an overnight stay for up to four persons, with a charge of 50 cents for each additional person. There is no charge for pets. Camp-outs for more than one night can be arranged at the same basic fee per night.

• Park Location — Goose Creek State Park is located on State Road 1334, off U.S. 264 just before 264 branches to the Bath Highway, N. C. 92. Opening hours of the park through February is 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days each week. For more details, call 923-2191.

Hospitality House Today

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Two on-site interviews and a taped interview will be shown today on Kay Currie's Hospitaltiy House show, airing from noon to 12:30 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

Kay's first guest will be Tracy Gagnon, a spouse abuse victim from Canada who will give a detailed account of her ordeal. The second guest is Roland Hill, a jingle writer from Raleigh whose jingles include ones used on WITN-TV.

The final segment is a taped interview with author James Michener who discusses his best seller, "Space."

Landscaping A House At Historic Bath

BATH — The first phase of the landscaping plan for the Van der Veer House at Historic Bath is currently in progress. The work is being done as a project of the Historic Bath Commission as a memorial to Dr. Herbert R. Paschall Jr.

Dr. Paschall was a longtime professor and history department chairman at East Carolina University. He was a member of the Historic Bath Commission and author of "A History of Colonial Bath," published in 1955.

The work in progress consists of a variety of fence types that will divide the lot into various usages. The completed plan will consist of restored or reconstructed dependency buildings, an orchard, garden space, herb and flower beds, and a variety of period trees and shrubs.

The work is being carried out by Leland Flanagan of Bath in accordance with plans developed by landscape architect F.G. Proctor of Charlotte.

Contributions and memorial gifts to the Historic Bath Commission for this project are welcomed.

A Feathered Thief Stole Hodja's Liver

Discovering little-known facts about a country and it's culture is one of the pleasures that is the lot of stamp collectors. Facts not revealed even in the most extensive literature of a country's history or culture often come to light on a stamp or series of stamps.

One example is a set of three stamps issued by Turkey in July, 1976 that call attention to Turkish folklore. The lower value, 150 kurush, depicts a legendary folk character by the name of Nasreddin Hodja proudly carring a package of liver down a street lined by fanciful Turkish houses. The second stamp, a 250 kurush one, shows a good Samaritan friend giving Hodja a recipe for cooking liver; and the third, high value stamp, 600 kurush, depicts a hawk carrying off Hodja's prized package of liver with Hodja calling out to the feathered thief that he cannot enjoy the liver without a recipe for cooking it.

All three stamps are printed in attractive multicolors by the lithograph process.

The subject matter may not rate as being an important one for a country to commemorate through its postage stamps, but the trio rates high as a charming tale briefly told on little pieces of colored paper. And such a set will surely appeal to a child collector much more than the many stamps Turkey has issued honoring Kemal Ataturk, the revered founder of modern-day Turkey.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MEREDITH FOLTZ

Can you name the abolitionist newspaper begun in 1831 by William Lloyd Garrison? Do you know the name for molten rock material located in the crust or upper mantel of the earth?

Questions such as these are put to players in the matches of the Pitt County Quiz Bowl. Each match involves two four-member teams of high school students who answer 10-, 20-, and 30-point questions. The Pitt County Quiz Bowl is a double-elimination tournament usually consisting of eight matches.

For five years public libraries across the state have sponsored local Quiz Bowls as competitive events to showcase the abilities of academically talented high school students. In 1984, 50 public libraries or library systems serving 71 North Carolina counties will have local Quiz Bowls.

Sheppard Memorial Library began sponsoring the Pitt County Quiz Bowl in 1980. Each of the county's five public high schools — Ayden-Grifton, D.H. Conley, Farmville Central, North Pitt, and J.H. Rose — has entered a team every year. The local bowl was won in 1980, 1981 and 1982 by the team from J.H. Rose. North Pitt High School's team claimed the championship trophy in 1983.

The first place team in the Pitt County Quiz Bowl advances to a district competition and, if successful there, to the state finals Quiz Bowl.

The state championship was won by the J.H. Rose team in 1980. Rose was represented again in the 1981 and 1982 state finals and became the first school in the state to reach the state finals for three consecutive years.

The fifth annual Pitt County Quiz Bowl will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday. The competition will be held in the auditorium of the building which houses the East Branch Library and the administrative offices of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department at 2006 Cedar Lane. Spectators are always permitted to attend and cheer their favorite teams.

For more informatin, call Sheppard Library at 752-4177.

Poetry Forum Meets Thursday

The first meeting in February of the East Carolina University Poetry Forum will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in room 248, Mendenhall Student Union building on the ECU campus.

Peter Makuck, director of the forum, asks that all who bring poem manuscripts to be read and critiqued come prepared with eight to 10 copies for distribution among those attending.

Auditions Set For 'Madwoman'

NEW BERN — Auditions for "The Madwoman of Chaillot" will be held on two dates — at 8 p.m. Feb. 5 and at 7 p.m. Feb. 6 in the Parish Hall of Christ Episcopal Church, Middle Street, New Bern.

Patsy Bruce will direct. There are roles for five female and six male leads, as well as for about 25 minor characters.

Winterville Woman Wins An Art Award

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Mary Langston Jones of Winterville, N.C., has been selected as the winner of a Merit Award in the 14th annual Athenaeum juried show of the Northern Virginia Fine Arts Association held recently.

The award winning work by Mrs. Jones is a charcoal sketch, "Woman with Boar." Juror for the exhibition was Willem de Looper, curator of the Phillips Collection of Washington, D.C. Of the 540 works submitted, de Looper selected 62 works for the Athenaeum show.

In 1782, nearly 1,100 people drowned when an English man-of-war sank while being repaired in Portsmouth Harbor.

Mature matures

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Victor Mature, who starred as Samson in Cecil B. DeMille's 1949 version of "Samson and Delilah," has returned from Mexican locations of the ABC-TV two-hour movie version of the Biblical saga.

This time around instead of playing Samson, Mature, who is in his 60s, portrays Samson's father. The lead character is played by Australian newcomer Antony Hamilton.

Folk Art Of Yugoslavia

By LARRY GERBER
Associated Press Writer

HLEBINE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Half a century ago, the mentor of northern Yugoslavia's emerging primitive painters urged his followers to think for themselves and "never copy post cards."

Their pictures became so popular that post cards now copy the painters. So do dozens of reproducers, souvenir hawkers and educated dabblers. Some artists worry that imitation is diluting the quality of their flourishing genre.

"At the time of the Renaissance, there were also many imitators," said Ivan Lackovic, one of the most productive and most copied of today's recognized "naive" artists. "There is nothing you can do about it. You just close your eyes and go on.

"'Naive' art is not naive," he said. "Critics gave us the name. They say 'you have no diplomas, you are naive and dumb.' But we have something in our heads."

Self-taught and "primitive" by definition, naive artists, particularly some Yugoslav painters, can be simple game for trained copiers. Their landscapes, peasants, cows and roosters may recall the simple renderings of a child or a neolithic cave painting as well as the classics of Bruegel or Rousseau.

The difference between the art and the imitation, say followers of the movement, is in the innocence and originality of the "true" naive works.

Lackovic, a former mailman who was born near here 51 years ago, is a specialist in the local technique of "painting behind glass," or brushing layers of oil paint onto a glass pane so that the finished work is viewed from the other side in reverse.

His landscapes of bare trees and villages hang in galleries and homes from Manila to Pittsburgh to Rome. Prices of his full-sized glass paintings range upwards from $1,000. An imitation Lackovic sells for $7-$12 in a Belgrade tourist shop, or even less from a waterfront vendor in the Adriatic resorts.

"People will see a cheap painting and say 'ah, it is a naive.' Then they buy it," Lackovic said in an interview at his apartment in Zagreb, the Croatian capital 50 miles southwest of here.

He waved his big hands in a gesture of distaste. "Real naive art is not cheap," he said.

Lackovic and hundreds of other Yugoslavian painters trace their beginnings to this low-lying farm region on the Hungarian border. In the late '20s, peasants of the "Podravina," working from their age-old artistic traditions, began to attract the attention of outsiders.

Professor Krsto Hegedusic, revered here as the father of the movement, organized a Sept. 13, 1931, Zagreb exhibition of Hlebine painters Ivan Generalic and Franjo Mraz, giving critics a first look at primitive masters who had previously painted only for themselves and their neighbors.

It was Hegedusic who counseled the young artists to open their eyes to the rural world around them and "never copy post cards."

Local devotees estimate that 500 or more northern Yugoslavs, not all from the Hlebine region, make some sort of living from painting. Many of them have mastered the style but have added little of originality.

Still, business flourishes. An estimated 20,000 tourists each year visit this quiet town of about 1,000 farmers, painters and their families.

"When I have time, I do painting. Mostly, it's housework," said Tereza Dolenec, one of the few women painters of Hlebine. The Dolenec home is next door to the town's only bar and across the street from the small art gallery — a good location to keep an eye out for the rare winter tourist.

Her husband, Drago, handles the business, joking with guests in German or Italian and translating for his wife. Mrs. Dolenec, a painter for 30 years, serves homemade apple strudel, Turkish coffee and plum brandy. A half-finished glass painting dries on the kitchen table.

Much of her work is on exhibit in Austria. They have only one picture for sale, a small glass rendering of peasants asleep under a tree.

The original $200 price goes down to $150 over another coffee, and the sale is made.

Hlebine naives are in the mainstream of Yugoslav primitive artists, but they are not the only ones. The village of Kovacica, north of Belgrade, also has a rich tradition of primitive painting by artists of Slovakian descent. Uzdin is known for its ethnic Romanian painters.

Then there's Zagreb's Drago Jurak, who pays homage to no ideas but his own. A 72-year-old retired cabinet maker and theater carpenter, he churns out acrylic-on-silk palaces, fantasy cities and multicolored houses shaped like mushrooms, women or balls.

Grinning and chain-smoking cigarettes, he showed guests in his cramped attic apartment about 100 paintings, most dated last year. A frequent international exhibitor and prize winner, Jurak said he had no artistic models.

"When I started, I didn't even know there were other painters," he said. He set a price range of $400-600 for his work.

"My technique takes a long time to learn, and the young people don't have the nerve to imitate me," he said in Croatian through a translator.

—— Temple returns

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Shirley Temple Black makes a rare return trip to Hollywood to become a presenter at the April 9 Academy Awards ceremony at the Los Angeles Music Center.

It will be the former child star's fourth visit to the show as a presenter. She first appeared in that capacity as a 10-year-old movie moppet in 1938 to give a special award to Walt Disney for "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

ECU Art Faculty Show On View At Gray Gallery

The annual faculty exhibit of art now on view at Gray Gallery in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center, East Carolina University, is one of the nicer surprises of the new year 1984. Not that these annual shows are ever humdrum, but this year there are many fresh new works by a large majority of the talented people who teach art at ECU.

Several of the faculty artists — specifically Betty Petteway, Roxanne Reep, Donald Sexauer and Paul Hartley — have obviously been hard at work this past year, judging from the number of pieces each are showing.

This show confirms that busy as these people may be teaching, and in many instances being family people, they have retained the spark, drive, call it what you may, to find time to create.

Another consideration worthy of attention is there's reassuring evidence that here are artists who, despite success achieved in past work, are not reluctant to venture into new approaches or variations of individual styles in expressing themselves in their art. In brief, vitality is an important factor in their efforts as evidenced by the work in this show.

Each viewer will come away from this exhibit with the rememberance of individual pieces that impressed them, that for one or another reason gave them special pleasure, visually, emotionally.

Among a sizeable number of individual or collective works that have strong appeal for me are Ray Elmore's pencil drawing, "Waterscape," poetic though crisply formal in structure; Betty Petteway's magic with colors rendered in the most abbreviated means; Henry Stindt's ability to tell a story in each of his black and white photographs of people in a series titled "Friends"; the superb skill exhibited by Terry Smith in crafting a harp and stool and other items in wood; an exquisite jeweled piece, Bonnie L. Deutsch's "Blood Bank With Heart Lock"; and for its lyrical context, a drawing of fish by Randy Osman, "Salmon Dance."

Children will be intrigued with Ed Levine's angled, modernistic "Wall Construction," a building-sculpture of laminated wood that in imagination can easily be peopled with elves coming in out of the eastern Carolina winter rains.

Faculty artists exhibiting in this year's show total 29. This once a year opportunity to see a wide spectrum of art by community artists is not to be missed.

Gallery hours at Gray are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sundays. For ease in finding a parking place without the harassment of a parking ticket, it is recommended that a visit to the show be made on Sundays whenever possible.

The three seated on the gallery floor are students making notes on works in the show. In the foreground are David Yarbrough of Olney, Md., and Debbie Neustadt of Raleigh. Peggy Poe of Kinston is seated in the background. The show, containing art by 29 faculty artists, is one of the most rewarding of recent years.

Student Art Show

ECU News Bureau

Deborah Morrison Shaw of Matthews, a senior in the East Carolina University School of Art, is displaying examples of her work in the foyer of the Jenkins Fine Arts Center. The exhibit went on view yesterday and will remain up through Feb. 4.

It includes ceramic pieces, primarily handbuilt, an intaglio print, a woven piece done on a backstrop loom, and an oil painting.

Shaw is a candidate for the BS degree in art education with a minor concentration in ceramics. She is an intern teacher this semester at Conley High School and at Wellcome Middle School.

SECCA Shows On View

WINSTON-SALEM - Three changing shows are currently on view at the Southeastern Center for Contermporary Art (SECCA) in Winston-Salem with a fourth to open on Saturday.

In the museum's Gallery A, recent paintings by Michael Smallwood of Washington, D.C., and ceramic sculpture by Elaine Reed of Durham are being shown. In the Porch Gallery, the exhibition is that of color Xerox, photography and sculpture by Pam Chapklin of Winston-Salem, and in the sculpture garden Dempsy Calhoun of Eden has a solo exhibition of outdoor sculpture.

The show due to go up on Saturday, in the Main Gallery, is a group exhibition of 8 Southeastern photographers using color in their work.

Admission to SECCA is free. For gallery hours and other information, write to: SECCA, 750 Marguerite Drive, Winston-Salem, N.C., 27106, or call 725-1904.

Women's Fashions In Norfolk Shows

NORFOLK, Va. — "Mystique and Identify: Women's Fashions of the Fifties," opens on Friday at the Chrysler Museum of Art, Norfolk. The show, to be housed in the large changing gallery on the first floor, will be on view through March 18.

Guest curator Barbara Schreier of the University of Massachusetts has organized this exhibition of about 50 costumes from the museum's permanent coilection.

Fashions from the '50s include creations by Balenciaga, Chanel, Dior and Schiaperelli. A number of garments from the '40s, illustrating the tailored, mannish cuts typical of those years, will also be shown as a prologue to the exhibition; with an added glimpse of the world of the '60s to be seen through the theatrical designs of Courreges and Yves Saint Laurent.

Other exhibitions opening Friday and continuing through March 18 are an "Eye for Elegance," fashion photographs by George Hoyningen-Huene in the Sol B. Frank Photography Gallery on the second floor; and "The Year One (1884-2001)," centered around two literary works, George Orwell's "1984" and Arthur C. Clarke's "2001: A Space Odyssey." This exhibition of tomorrow is located in the small changing gallery on the first floor.

Two lectures are being offered in conjunction with the fashion photo exhibit — "The History of Fashion Photography" by fashion scholar Nancy Hall-Duncan on Feb. 3, and "The Photographs of George Hoyningen-Heune," by William Ewing, Director of Exhibitions at the International Center of Photography in New York. Both lectures begin at 7 p.m., with admission priced at $3 each.

Admission to Chrysler Museum and parking are both free.

Pyle, Wyeth Art In New NCMA Show

By SHARON BROOM
N.C. Museum Of Art

RALEIGH — Works by three generations of the Wyeth family, reflecting the influence of 19th-century American illustrator Howard Pyle, will be the subject of an exhibiton opening Saturday at the North Carolina Museum of Art, Raleigh. The exhibiton will be shown through April 1.

"Howard Pyle and the Wyeths: Four Generations of American Imagination" traces common themes through the work of Pyle and N.C., Andrew and Jamie Wyeth. It demonstrates how the narrative tradition, underscored by an especially strong and vivid imagination, unites the work of these four artists across a century of painting and illustration.

The exhibition is organized according to subject matter: portraiture, animals, fantasy and history, and landscape and seascape.

Pyle (1858-1911), the foremost American illustrator of his time, founded the "Brandywine School" in the Brandywine Valley near Chadds Ford, Pa., where all four artists have lived and worked. Pyle's genius for illustration is clearly seen in his paintings and drawings created for popular literary magazines and literary classics such as "The Story of King Arthur and His Knights."

His pupil, N.C. Wyeth, (1882-1945) continued this narrative tradition primarily in book illustrations for classics such as "Treasure Island," "Kidnapped," and "Robin Hood." Toward the end of his career, however, N. C. Wyeth began to experiment with landscapes, portraits and other independent works.

His son Andrew (born 1917), although interested in illustration as a young artist, quickly moved into the mainstream of independent painting to become one of the most successful painters of our time. Included in the exhibiton are landscapes, portraits, and other works. The influence of the narrative tradition is seen in paintings such as "Peter Miller, d. 1702," and "Winter, 1946" in which the viewer senses an underlying story.

In the art of Jamie Wyeth (born 1946) the familiar subjects of his father, grandfather and Howard Pyle assume an eerie, surreal quality. Paintings of animals, for example, which played a major role in the works of Pyle and N. C. Wyeth, take a bizarre turn, as in "The Raven" and "Pig and Train: Summer Study." Jamie Wyeth's portraits become disturbing images, as with his portrait of artist Andy Warhol, which confronts the veiwer with an expessionless stare.

The exhibition is comprisd of about 60 paintings, drawings and sketches by the four artists, ranging from an 1877 magazine illustration by Howard Pyle to 1982 works by Jamie Wyeth.

Also in the exhibitioin are six books illustrated by N.C. Wyeth.

The exhibition was organized by the Memphis Brooks Museum of Art, Memphis,. Tenn., under the supervision of Dr. Douglas K.S. Hyland. It is being coordinated at the N.C. Museum of Art by chief curator Dr. Wiliam Chiego. A 104-page catalogue of the exhibition, written by Hyland, will be available in the museum shop. A free gallery guide also accompanies the exhibition, and a recorded tour can be had for a smalll rental fee.

Museum hours are 10 to 5 Tuesdays through Saturdays, 1 to 5 on Sundays, and closed Mondays. No admission is charged. For more inforamtion, call 833-1935.

THE BUCCANEER WAS A PICTURESQUE FELLOW — is the title of an illustration by Howard Pyle from "The Fate of a Treasure Town," published in Harpers Monthly Magazine in December 1905. This is one of about 60 works in the exhibition, "Howard Pyle and the Wyeths: Four Generaations of American Imagination," which goes on view Friday at the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh. Controversy In London

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Trafalgar Square in London should have a new look on its north side within four years, but the protracted birth isn't a bright one.

Controversy continues to rumble around the design of an extension for the famous National Gallery, built by William Wilkins in the classical style in 1838.

The dispute erupted a year ago when a design by Chicago architects Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, favored by the gallery staff and trustees, was edged out for one by the British firm of Ahrends, Burton and Koralek.

Government officials and technical advisers urged acceptance of the Ahrends design.

Sir Hugh Casson, architect-president of the Royal Academy of Arts and one of the project judges, reacted to charges of patriotic bias by saying: "There was obviously no question of anyone being American being disqualified from winning."

The choice, after an international competition attracted 79 entries, drew fire from journalists, art critics and specialist writers on architecture. But when revised plans were presented at a news conference at the gallery recently, reaction was muted.

Critics appeared to accept that the government and the architectural establishment have won.

The National Gallery houses one of the world's most magnificent collections of state-owned art, now containing about 2,300 paintings and overcrowded since the 1930s.

From under its portico, sightseers have splendid views over Trafalgar Square, beyond the fountains and Admiral Nelson's column, down Whitehall to Big Ben.

Next door on the westward side is a one-acre vacant lot that has had a wooden fence around it since the German bomber blitz of 1940 blew Hampton's furniture repository to bits.

The eyesore on one of the most prestigious city sites in the world has been a disgrace for 43 years. After the bombing, the government bought the land for a gallery extension and then said it didn't have the money to build one.

Developers would lease the site at an undisclosed "peppercorn rent" and build an office block, topped with a linked extension to the National Gallery. After 125 years, the gallery would get the whole building.

The complex will cost $26 million and should be completed by the end of 1987, the gallery trustees' chairman Lord Annan said.

It will be financed by Trafalgar House Developments Ltd., headed by millionaires Nigel Broackes and Lord Matthews, who also owns the Cunard shipping line and the Daily Express newspaper group.

Broackes said they might make the building their headquarters rather than rent it out.

After Lord Annan said the trustees had reservations about the top of the tower, architect Peter Ahrends explained that the tower and masts "respond to" the spire of St. Martin-in-the-Fields church at the other end of the gallery facade.

Asked what the masts are for, Ahrends said: "We have suggested that they could fly banners on special occasions."

Small Works Competition

HARTSVILLE, S.C. — Artists in North Carolina and 10 other Southeastern states may enter the Southeastern Small Works show for an exhibition and competition being conducted by Coker College in Hartsville.

The exhibition is open to all media, traditional and experimental, including photography and crafts. More than $1,000 in purchase and merit awards will be made. Ted Potter, director of SECCA in Winston-Salem, will be the juror.

Each artist may submit two entries of work completed in the past two years. Each work should be identified with the artist's name, title of work, medium and instruction for display if necessary. A non-refundable fee of $10 for one or two works will be charged. Make checks payable to Southeast Small Works and ship with entry form no later than Feb. 22.

In case of framed works, use plexiglass only. Works are to be sent in sturdy, re-usable cartons suitable for return shipment via parcel post or UPS. Return of works will be by UPS-COD. Shipping fees and insurance are the responsibility of the sender.

Send entries to: Southeast Small Works, Bell Art Gallery, Coker College, Hartsville, S.C., 29550. All works accepted will be insured for the duration of the exhibition.

Accepted works will be exhibited in the Cecilia Coker Bell Art Gallery from Feb. 27 to March 23.

Publicity Workshop

WILSON — A workshop on publicity for those in industry, non-profit organizations, clubs, churches, etc., who need hands-on experience in print media and production is being sponsored by the Arts Council of Wilson.

The workshop will be held beginning at 9 a.m. Feb. 7 at the office of the Arts Council, 205 Gray St. Graphic artists Mike Killion, Libby Baskervill and Karen Broddie will guide the sessions.

Enrollment will be limited. For details on registration and fees, call the Arts Council at 291-4329.

In 1813, an American flotilla defeated British ships in the Battle of Lake Erie, which gave the Americans command of the lake.

The broadcast begins at 1:30 p.m. In addition to Kanawa, the cast for the performance include Nicolai Gedda, Alfredo; Cornell MacNeil, Giorgio Germont; Ariel Bybee, Flora Bervoic; James Atherton, Gastone; and John Darrenkamp, Baron Douphol. The conductor is Sir John Pritchard.

Life Goes On For Roger Daltrey

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A year after the final breakup of The Who, Roger Daltrey has discovered there is life after the rock supergroup.

Not only life, there is Shakespeare.

In one of the oddest bits of casting since Dustin Hoffman played a soap opera queen in "Tootsie," Daltrey appears as both Dromio twins in "The Comedy of Errors" on PBS Feb. 20. No one could be more surprised than Daltrey.

But then, his life has often taken surprising turns, from the time he was a kid in London street gangs. He was born almost 40 years ago in Hammersmith, and in his early years his future seemed clouded.

"I've often said that I could very easily have landed on the other side of the law, except for music," he remarked on a visit here. "Many of my friends ended up in crime. Fortunately I had an incredibly large ego, and what I wanted for myself was money and girls. When rock 'n' roll came along, that seemed like the best way to get both."

Daltrey began his music career in a Brighton bar "for a dollar a night and all the beer I could drink — at that age, half a pint." At 15 he was thrown out of school, and he hired on as a sheet metal apprentice. But by night, he was playing clubs with school buddies, including Peter Townshend and John Entwistle.

After five years at the metal shop, Daltrey was emboldened to try music full time. Joined by drummer Keith Moon, the musicians first called themselves the Highnumbers, then The Who. Their slambang style electrified English audiences, and by the late 1960s young Americans had succumbed to their musical violence.

Millions of singles and albums later, The Who came to an end. It happened Dec. 17, 1982, in Toronto.

"Do I miss it? The answer is yes," declared Daltrey. "But we thought it was time to quit, before we became a parody of ourselves. We weren't breaking any new ground, and if we continued we would have become a circus act."

The Who's system of "creative friction" contributed to the breakup, he added. "Peter is the North Pole and I am the South Pole," he explained. "Each of us spent a great deal of time placating the other, or one of us was placating the other three. We decided it was better to quit while we were still friends."

Daltrey, a rich man, could have retired with his second wife and five children to their farm in Sussex. But he has spent less time there during the past year than when he was a member of The Who. Among his activities: a solo album, "Parting Should Be Painless"; a BBC production of "The Beggar's Opera," directed by Jonathan Miller; a short film, "Bitter Cherry."

He is no stranger to films, having played the title role in the rock opera "Tommy," Franz Lisztin "Lisztomania," and a fugitive in "McVicar." But Shakespeare was something he never counted on.

"I was turned off by Shakespeare at the age of 11, when it was taught in school as an English lesson, not as drama," he said. "They took us to see the movie 'Richard III,' but again it was supposed to be an English lesson."

When his agent called about "The Comedy of Errors," Daltrey replied, "I can't stand Shakespeare." He was persuaded to read the play and didn't understand it. But he studied enough to audition, and to his surprise, he was cast. Now he's a Shakespeare enthusiast.

"When I started, I didn't know what an iambic pentameter was," he admitted. "But the more I studied, the more I realized that Shakespeare is really like music. Change one note and it doesn't make sense."

He played the two Dromios — appearing together at the end via split screen — in his own native tongue, cockney.

"I'm proud of being a cockney," he said, "and I think cockney fits the 17th century speech. After all, Shakespeare wrote for the people, didn't he?"

LIFE AFTER 'WHO' ... Roger Daltrey has found life after the breakup of the rock group "The Who." The 39-year old Daltrey will appear as both the Dromio Twins in the upcoming PBS presentation of "The Comedy of Errors," scheduled to air Feb. 20. (AP Laserphoto by Wally Fong)

Student Recital

Soprano Denise Miller of Colerain, a senior in the school of music, East Carolina University, will present her senior recital at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the ECU campus. The concert is free and open to the public.

Ms. Miller, a student of Gladys White, will be accompanied by Dr. Timothy Hoekman, pianist, and will be assisted by Gary Rivenbark, tenor; Geraldine Laudati, gamba, and Charlene Carlson and Kelly Via, both recorder players.

For her program, she has chosen Henry Purcell's "How Pleasant Is This Flowery Plain and Grove;" Leoncavello's "Stidono lassu," a bagatelle from "Pagliacci;" Debussy's "Proses Lyriques" and a group of American mountain songs.

Selected As Finalist

CHARLOTTE — Carol Moore, 17, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore and a student at Rose High School in Greenville, has been selected as one of six regional finalists in this year's North Carolina National Bank Competition.

As a finalist, she will compete Feb. 7 in Charlotte with other finalists for a four-year, all-expense-paid scholarship to the school of music at the N.C. School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

Her current teacher is Joanne Bath of Greenville.

This is the third year that NCNB has sponsored the music competition as part of its overall support of the arts in North Caorlina. In the previous two years, one-year full scholarships were awarded, but this year the prize has been increased to two full four-year scholarships.

New company

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Silver Screen Partners, a newly formed production company, has announced plans for two major feature films, "Flashpoint" and "Catholic Boys," for release later this year.

Recital By ECU Saxophone Class

A saxophone class recital by students in the school of music, East Carolina University, will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday at the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus. There is no admission charged to the recital, which will be open to the public.

The musicians, all students of Brad Foley, will present a program consisting of pieces by six composers.

The program will open with Alec Wilder's "Sonata," featuring Jay Parker, alto saxophone, accompanied by Alisa Wetherington, piano. This will be followed by Paule Maurice's "Tableaux de Provence," to be performed by Mark Sutphin, alto saxophone, Cynthia Bullock, piano; and Bernhard Heiden's "Sonata," Ed Schutte, alto saxophone, Alisa Wetherington, piano.

The next three pieces to be performed on the program are: "Syrinx" by Claude Debussy (performers not listed); Eugene Bozza's "Improvisation and Caprice," with Lurrene Donelick, alto saxophone, and Jacques Ibert's "Concertino da camera," featuring Charlie Carlson, alto saxophone and Alisa Wetherington, piano.

Piano Students Recital Today

The Greenville Piano Teachers Association will present a recital by student pianists at 3 p.m. today in the Fletcher Music Building on the East Carolina University campus.

There is no admission charged and the recitals are open to the public.

—— Foreign race

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Twenty-six countries have submitted entries for consideration for Best Foreign Language Film Award achievements in this year's Academy Awards competition.

Only feature-length films with non-English sound tracks first released in the country of origin between November 1982 and October 1983 are eligible. The films need not have been released in the United States.

Three films have won both the foreign language award and another award in addition — "8½" also won best costume design in 1963; "A Man and a Woman" also won best screenplay in 1966, and "Z" also won for best film editing in 1969.

Spanish, Brazilian Songs Now The Rage In War-Weary Israel

By BARBARA KINGSLEY
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — What began as a radio show jingle has burst into a national craze in Israel. Spanish love songs and Brazilian rhythms, their lyrics artfully translated into Hebrew, have become a soothing balm for a war-weary nation.

Israeli singer David Broza, whose career was going nowhere with standard pop music, became a superstar last year after recording "The Woman With Me," a collection of Spanish love songs translated into Hebrew. His concerts are regularly sold out and the album has sold more than 130,000 copies, a record for Israel.

"He is the most popular male singer in Israel today," says Arye Barak, head of international promotion at CBS Records in Israel.

"Broza released his album during the Lebanon War, when people were looking for comforting, tender, romantic songs to take them away from the pressures of the present," says CBS's Danny Litani.

Spain's international superstar, Julio Iglesias, who has sold more than 200,000 records in Israel, and Mercedes Sosa of Argentina, have also drawn a phenomenal Israeli following. But it is the artists who translate Spanish and Brazilian tunes into Hebrew who have garnered the most popularity.

The translation is easy, says Broza, 28, who lived in Madrid for eight years. "The sounds are very similar to Hebrew," he said.

Eli Yisraeli, a disk jockey for popular Israel Army Radio, is credited with bringing Brazilmania to Israel when he used a Brazilian melody called "The 11 O'Clock Train" as his signature tune.

"It caught on like a fire," said Yisraeli. "It was a slow samba, a gimmick really. The words say 'I have to go, I can't stay.' It's a simple tune."

The Brazilian boom started with that in the late 1970s. Such Brazilian artists as Gal Costa and Gilberto Gil began to move briskly on Israeli record shelves. Most of the top Brazilian singers performed here to huge outdoor audiences. And barely a week passes without a Brazilian or Spanish pop singer appearing on Israeli television.

Israeli singers Yehudit Ravitz and Matti Caspi capitalized on the trend with "A Beautiful, Tropical Land," a collection of Brazilian songs in Hebrew. The record sold more than 20,000 copies, an impressive showing in a country whose population is 4.2 million.

Now music experts see a shift away from Bazilian music toward the Spanish wave initiated by Broza.

"In the 1960s, it was Italian music," says Yisraeli. "In the late 1970s, it was Brazilian. In the 1980s it will be Spanish."

Brazilian music is known for catchy samba and bossa nova rhythms, while the Spanish songs flooding Israeli airwaves are sentimental and dramatic, with lots of violins and rippling guitars. Some Israelis call it schmaltz (Yiddish for syrupy), but almost everyone seems to love it.

Music critic Yoav Kuttner says the Spanish music appeals primarily to the older set.

"The teen-agers like pop and rock," he said in an interview. "You are a teen-ager until the army, then your head is completely changed. You become an old man. All you buy is schmaltz, not pop and rock."

Many experts believe the slow, sentimental Spanish ballads have a calming effect on a population bedeviled by wars, terrorism and economic crisis.

"They're songs of everyday life, of unhappy love affairs," said Yisraeli. "They convey feelings that are the opposite of what we have here — war."

Said Broza: "Here it's a bit depressing. There's pressure. People are worried about war. They put on the Spanish music and it's so innocent, so naive, and hardly anybody here is naive."

Dance Concerts

DURHAM — Dance premieres by Ron Paul, Bruce Vrana and Lee Wenger will be featured in the New Performing Dance Company's concert at 8:15 p.m. on Feb. 9-10.

High tango and low punk types of dances will be performed, and 20 masked dancers will be involved in this dance concert at Duke University in Reynolds Theater on those two days in collaboration with Dr. Frank McCarty, music professor at UNC-G.

Other company members include Vicky Bassett, teacher at the N.C. School of Science and Math; Antonio Beh, company choreographer and dance teacher for the Raleigh Magnet Schools, and Marian Roh, actress, dancer and athlete from New Mexico.

Also contributing to the concert are Neill Clark, writer; Fred Fox, actor; Fredrick Hall, performance artist, and Chuck Holton, musician.

Funding for the February concert has been provided by the N.C. Arts Council, the Durham Arts Council and the Dance Center of Durham.

Tickets are priced at $5, and at $4 for students and senior citizens. For more information and reservations, call 684-4059.

The Hostage At UNC-CH

CHAPEL HILL — Brendan Behan's play, "The Hostage," opens Thursday at the Paul Green Theater on the UNC-CH campus. A production of the Playmakers Repertory company, the play will run through Feb. 12 with evening productions nightly (except Feb. 6) at 8 p.m. Matinees at 2 p.m. will also be presented on Feb. 5 and 12.

Tickets are priced at $7.50 and $9.50. For more information and reservations, call 962-1121.

Michael York, Richard Thomas Star As Brothers In TV Swashbuckler Tuesday

Notes On The Good Guy And The Bad Guy

GOOD AND BAD ... Actor Michael York plays the "evil" brother to Richard Thomas' "good" brother in "The Master of Ballantrae." Set in the mid-18th century, the story follows the life-long enmity between the two brothers as they travel from Scotland to France to India and to North America. (AP Laserphoto)

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael York thought that he was being offered the part of the good brother when he was asked to appear in the television movie "The Master of Ballantrae," based on the novel of the same name by Robert Louis Stevenson.

He wasn't, but that made the role even more appealing.

"I've played so many nice guys that when I found out it was the evil brother I accepted with alacrity," said the English actor, now sporting the beginnings of a sandy-colored beard for an upcoming screen role.

"It was an opportunity to do this devilish character. Someone who raises a horsewhip to a woman. The story revolves around the two brothers and their respective fortunes," he said. "One goes off to fight for Bonnie Prince Charles and the other stays home. But their lives are constantly intertwined. The simplest way to look at it is to say one is a good brother and one is evil."

The good brother, in this adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's novel, is played by Richard Thomas. Sir John Gielgud, Timothy Dalton, Finola Hughes and Ian Richardson also star in the three-hour film, to be broadcast Tuesday on CBS.

The story, set in the mid-18th century, follows the life-long enmity between the two brothers as they travel from Scotland to France to India to North America. Douglas Hickox directed from a script by William Bast.

York said he was also attracted to the film because he wanted to work with Thomas and Gielgud.

Despite the locations the movie was filmed entirely in western England. York said, "We even built a little American Indian village. Fortunately, a big Indian sun came out from behind the clouds."

"The role was a marvelous change for me," he said, "just as was John the Baptist in the miniseries 'Jesus of Nazareth.' He had such charisma, he must have been extraordinary. He was impassioned, mysterious, mystical.

York, 42, acted in school plays while growing up and at 16 joined a youth theater group. He continued acting while attending University College, Oxford.

In 1966 he joined the National Theater in London, where his first performance was in Franco Zeffirelli's production of "Much Ado About Nothing." It was Zeffirelli who later cast him in the movie "Romeo and Juliet" and "Jesus of Nazareth."

York played young Jolyon in BBC's "The Forsyte Saga" and made his movie debut in 1967 in "Smashing Time." Among his other films are "Cabaret," "The Three Musketeers," and "Murder on the Orient Express."

His upcoming movies include "The Riddle of the Sands," which he describes as a great sailing and spy story, "For Those I Love," from the epic book by Martin Gray, and the miniseries "Robinson Crusoe," with Gene Anthony Ray of "Fame."

York and his wife, Pat McCallum, a photographer and former fashion and travel editor, left England in 1976 and live principally in Monte Carlo. He said he never knew she had been an actress until he ran across something on her in a Screen Actors Guild magazine.

"She was on something on television recently, but it was brief and I missed it because I was making tea," he said.

• Friday — 6:40 a.m., the guest is auctioneer Richard Harris; 7:15 a.m., the Humane Society is the topic; 7:40 a.m., Bill Plutaman and John Bush discuss Scout week.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Thomas has been a working actor since he was 9 years old. Today, at 32, he may well be television's busiest leading man.

On Jan. 31, he appears on CBS in his first swashbuckler, "The Master of Ballantrae," co-starring Michael York and John Gielgud. Last month, he appeared with Sharon Gless and Jack Warden in "Hobson's Choice" on CBS.

"It only got a 24 share, but that's because we were opposite 'Dynasty,'" Thomas said. "Most of my TV movies get a respectable rating — good though not monster. The exception was 'Roots,' but that was something unique."

Many of the Thomas TV movies have been memorable: "The Red Badge of Courage," "All Quiet on the Western Front," "To Find My Son," "Johnny Belinda," "The Hank Williams Jr. Story." They have displayed a versatility that was not expected when Thomas left "The Waltons" after five years as John-Boy.

"The Master of Ballantrae" runs Tuesday night for three hours.

The Robert Louis Stevenson adventure was filmed last year in England, with Thomas the only American in the cast. That presented problems with British Equity, which finally agreed to let him work. It still was an uncomfortable situation.

"The British were a little standoffish at first," he said. "They weren't cool, but I think they were waiting to see if I was going to be another series actor thrown in to help the rating in America. I was a bit nervous the first few days, then I announced, 'You gotta help me; I'm the only Yank here!' After that, I found them very affectionate and sweet."

Thomas is content to do TV movies and stage productions, where he has stretched his talents with everything from "Saint Joan" to "Streamers." Theatrical movies, he admitted, rarely come his way.

"I don't get a lot of feature scripts," he admitted. "The studios seem to be opposed to hiring actors who appear often in TV.

The actor has enough to keep him occupied at home. He and his wife, Alma, have four children: son Richard, 7, and triplets Barbara, Gwyneth and Pilar, all 2½.

"I think that having one problem child would be more difficult than having triplets," he said. "Fortunately, none of our girls is a problem. That doesn't mean they can't be difficult, and it would be a real problem if they were all difficult at the same time. But I think they have learned that they all can't clamor for affection at once, so they take turns."

Auditions By Beaufort Group

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The Beaufort County Arts Council will hold auditions for its upcoming production of Preston Jones' "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia" on three dates — Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Times are 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. each date, in the South Studio of the Arts Council building on the corner of Main and Gladden streets, Washington.

Nine men (one black) are needed for the roles in this Texan "good ole boys" comedy set in 1962. Performances are scheduled for March 16, 17, 22-24. Joey Toler will direct.

Dr. Herbert Hadley Going Into Active Retirement

Late in December he posted small signs on the outer doors to his office building at the corner of Forbes and East 10th streets informing the public he was retiring as of Jan. 1, 1984.

This month, Dr. Herbert Wood Hadley, his wife, Helen, and nurse Dorothy Parker, his "faithful sidekick" for 25 years, have been devoting time to getting patients reassigned to another doctor.

So comes to a close the nearly 38-year career of one of Greenville's few remaining general practitioners, or family doctors.

"I suppose you could say I'm not really retiring, just getting ready to change life-styles," Dr. Hadley responded to a question about future plans.

"For the time being, I'm going to stay here in this building, use it as my office for farming operations. The way I've got things scheduled, along with taking care of the family farms, I'm going to spend the first six years of retirement working in my woodshop, the next 10 years cleaning out our attic, then I'll give five years to getting my garden in shape. After that I'll decide what I'll want to get into," he said.

The 65-year-old doctor added he plans to live as long or longer than his mother, Bruce Forbes Hadley, did. She died last August at the age of 102.

Well known for his subtle Irish wit laced with a touch of Italian bravado, the silver-haired, blue-eyed doctor nonetheless is very serious about things that touch him deeply. "I'm going to miss my people, my patients," he remarked. "You don't deal with people for more than 30 years without developing a close bond with them, a compassion for their problems." He showed several souvenirs that long-time patients have given him as reminders of their friendship.

One of the achievements over the years he mentioned with pride is the number of babies he delivered until he gave up obstetrics several years ago. "I delivered all 11 children of Edgar and Natalie Cox," he noted. The Cox children, seven girls and four boys, range in age from 14 to 28.

Greenville Native

Dr. Hadley is among that rare breed, a native-born son who has spent most of his life in Greenville — with the exception of several years attending school and serving in the military.

The son of George Bacon Wood Hadley and Bruce Forbes Hadley, he was born on Evans Street in one of the spacious frame houses downtown which was torn down about 10 years ago. A brother, Jake N. Hadley, labeled by Dr. Hadley as "the real entertainer in the family," is a retired insurance man.

Dr. Hadley's wife, the former Helen McGinnis, "was born in West Virginia, but came to live in Greenville when she was 12. Helen's father, Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, for years was the registrar and for a time the acting president at East Carolina University. McGinnis Theater was named for him."

The Hadleys have two children: a son, Howard Forbes Hadley, an insurance representative who lives in Raleigh, and a daughter, Marcia Ann (Mrs. Joseph) Volpe, living in Philadelphia.

"We're proud new grandparents," Dr. Hadley said. "We have a granddaughter, Mary Elizabeth, who's now 5 months old." He noted that before becoming a grandfather last year, when people asked about grandchildren, "I'd give them a puzzled look and ask them if they thought I looked old enough to be a grandfather."

Best Carpenter

After attending East Carolina University for two years in the mid-1930s, Dr. Hadley realized he wanted to study to become a doctor. "When I transferred from ECU to Wake Forest, my friends asked why a good Methodist decided to attend a Baptist School. That was during the Depression years, so I told them that I started out for Duke, but gave out of gas on the way, then managed to reach Wake Forest."

Hadley graduated from Wake Forest in 1939, and in 1943 he was in the first graduating class from Bowman-Gray Medical School in Winston-Salem.

"At Bowman-Gray I helped make a lot of the equipment. Some of the display cases I made are still in use at the school. In fact, the president of the school used to introduce me as 'the best carpenter ever to graduate from Bowman-Gray.'

"Last year," Dr. Hadley commented, "we had our 40th graduation anniversay get-together. Of our graduating class of 28, 22 are still living. When I arrived, the first thing that impressed me was that it was a gathering of a bunch of old fossils. I was by far the youngest one there."

Initially, Hadley wanted to specialize in orthopedics. "I went to work in the New York Orthopedic Hospital, but soon came back to Greenville and started work as a general practictioner, or family doctor, setting up practice with the late Dr. Joe Smith, a fine doctor."

Military Service

Soon after setting up practice during the days of World War II, Dr. Hadley went into the Navy "for two and one-half years." Like most military veterans, he recalls those years with a touch of nostalgia for things out of the adventurous past of young years.

"I went in as a lowly ensign, and when I reported to my ship in Charleston, I was a little nervous about it all. I was one of those who at first saluted sea gulls or anything else that moved around the ship," he said. "My ship, the USS Ancon, was the oldest ship in the Navy. We were attached to the flagship of an amphibious force."

The Ancon saw service in several areas of the Pacific — Saipan, Okinawa, Iwo Jima, and finally anchored in Tokyo Bay following Japan's surrender in September, 1945.

"As a medical corpsman, it was my job to go to anyone in trouble, any member assigned to my ship, that is. For example, if a LST attached to my ship was in trouble with anyone injured, it was over the side into a speedboat to take me to the site." He admitted there were some close calls, "the kind of things you don't like to remember, to talk about."

And there was the lighter side of war days, too. "I was the only Rebel in a shipload of Yankees, so you can imagine the ribbing I got." And unexpected moments. "Once, in Tokyo, someone called to me across the street. 'Hello Herb, how's your mother?' Not the kind of thing you expect someone to call out to you 10,000 miles away from Greenville. It was Charles King, who was a naval aviator."

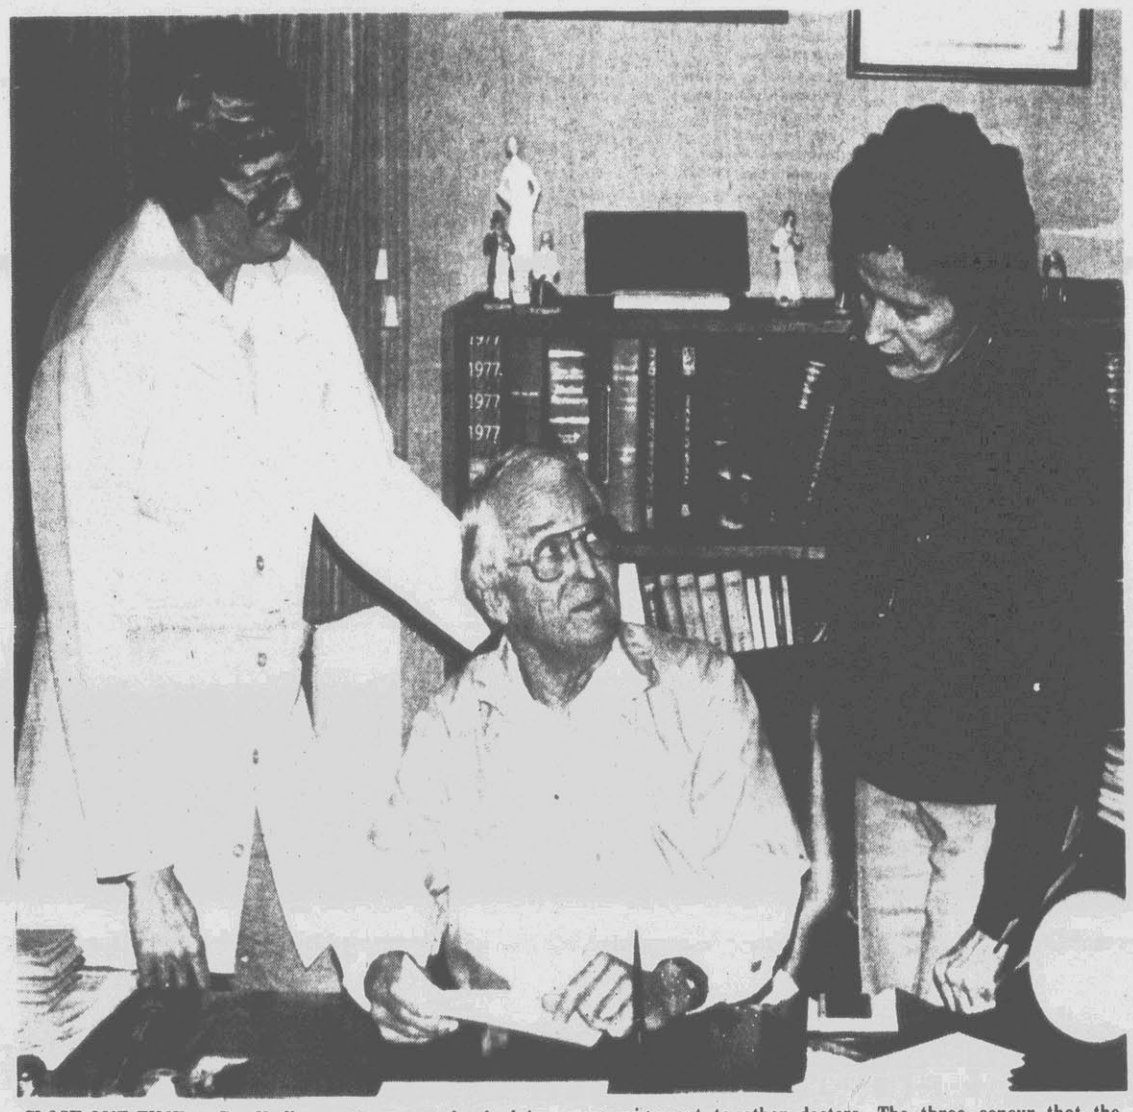
And the slightly absurd. "An honorary position had been created for Admiral Richard Byrd, the famed explorer. His ship was in Tokyo harbor. Once, when he wasn't feeling well, I was called in to examine him. When I told him he had pleurisy, he was highly indignant. 'Young man,' he said, 'are you trying to tell me I've got a childhood disease?'"

Not long ago, members of the USS Ancon held a reunion in Carolina Beach, "close enough to Greenville so that I could manage to go." One of those unable to attend "was a Cuban doctor who served with us. It's been more than 20 years now since I've heard from him."

Touching briefly on an American military situation of a later date, the Vietnam war, Dr. Hadley became serious again. "The way returning veterans from Vietnam were treated really worried me. It was so different from the heroes' welcome we received when we came back.

"I visited the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington recently, and I feel this monument, this recognition, is at least a step in righting what I feel has been a wrong to lots of fine young American men."

AMONG RECOGNITIONS ... Herbert Hadley has consistently given time and effort to several community programs, including the Scouts, the rescue squad and the Greenville Foundation. Here, he is recognized for 10 years service to the Greenville Parks and Recreation Commission by Sid Carraway at a ceremony held in June 1973.



CLOSE-OUT TIME ... Dr. Hadley gets some words of advice from his nurse of 25 years, Dorothy Parker, left, and his wife, Helen, as he goes over patients' charts to recommend their reassignment to other doctors. The three concur that the process of saying goodbye to patients after many years has been an emotional experience.

Civic Involvement

It was with considerable reluctance that Dr. Hadley agreed to talk about the numerous community projects and programs he has actively been involved in over the past three decades.

"People I've worked with will know about these things anyway," he commented, "and for others it would probably not matter." Assured that people would want to know, he pinpointed a few highlights of his public service.

"Some things I've always been interested in," he said, "such as Scout work and health and public safety services."

"Maybe because the Scout troop I was in disbanded before I reached first class sharpened my interest in Scout work. Anyway, I worked with Scouts for 30 years, until last year. Over the years, these young lads would mention to me that I had worked with their fathers in Scouting, but for the past two or three years it had come to the point where boys were telling me I'd worked with their grandfathers. I figured it was time for me to step out of the picture."

One momento, a Scout jacket given to him on the occasion of 25 years in Scout work, "has been a very practical recognition gift. I'm still wearing it."

His free service to the public has included physical examinations for football players at D.H. Conley, for members of the local rescue squad since its inception, and for youths joining the Boys Club of Greenville.

The field of recreation in Greenville is another of his continuing interests. "I served on the Recreation and Parks Commission for 10 years, the allowable maximum, so they had no choice but to kick me off," he smiled. "I loved being a part of it, seeing the park system and recreation facilities grow. We have an outstanding program here in Greenville, one that's active and designed for all our people."

A program he remains actively engaged in is that of the Greenville Foundation, of which he is the chairman. "I feel strongly that the foundation is something that Greenville needs and will need even more in the future," Dr. Hadley said. "I helped create the foundation, a job that took 12 years of work before it finally got under way."

A View On Medicine

Medical changes, Dr. Hadley feels, "have been incredible during the years I've been in practice. I've been told that the fastest thing in the world was Einstein's mind, or by others that the fastest thing was light passing light, but I believe both of these are a snail's pace compared to the speed of changes in medicine and medical practices in recent years.

"I'm in no way anti change. I've enjoyed watching, being, I hope, a part of this progress. It's good to see these new innovations, to see the tremendous growth in Greenville of medicine. When I began practice in 1946, there were no more than 20 or 22 doctors in town. Now, with the hospital, the medical school, and private practice, I understand the figure is approaching 300 doctors."

Dr. Hadley admits to being proud of his part in helping create the first family practice clinical department in Pitt Memorial Hospital. "Now we have our own representative on the board of directors," he remarked.

And So, Farewell

This past week, as Dr. Hadley's patients finished coming in to make arrangements to be assigned to other doctors, the last of Greenville's downtown doctors offices ceased to exist.

"Naturally I'm going to miss my work, the people I've served for such a long time, and I'll miss being a part of the everyday scene," Dr. Hadley said. "But retirement will mean that Helen and I will have time to visit our children, to have more time with our grandchild, and for us to do some traveling we've never had time for. It will mean too that I can get back into woodwork.

"There's only one thing I'm afraid of," he grinned. "That the governor or somebody will try to take my hugging license away from me. That's one of the nicest things about being an old doctor, you get a lot of hugs, especially when you're ready to leave the scene, saying farewell to old friends."

Most people who are over 50 and grew up on farms in eastern North Carolina will recall vividly the details of sweet potato harvest and curing potatoes in dirt hills in the years before the introduction of the commercial process of oil curing potatoes.

Timing of the harvest was considered an important factor. Generally, farmers waited until the first frost of late October or early November came, wilting and turning dark the dense foliage of sweet potato vines. Connoisseurs of sweet potato cultivation agreed a chilling frost was necessary to "strike" or "set the best flavor" in the tubers growing beneath the soil's surface.

A small number of varieties — red or white — were cultivated extensively in the local area back before the development of today's market hybrids. A few farmers grew several rows each of reds and whites, but in most cases farm families were strong devotees of one or the other variety, ready to express pointed support for their own preference.

I recall one Martin County farmer, a heavy set, mustached man retired from farming in the 1930s, emphasizing that the juicier reds were best to eat along with fresh backbone, roast chicken or ham, supplemented by collards or salad (green leafy vegetables such as kale, mustard and turnip tops); and that white sweet potatoes couldn't be beat as a side dish to add a nice touch to a meal of squirrel, rabbit, deer or snapping turtle meat. The reds were also the preference of the majority of farm wives in the preparation of sweet potato pies and sweet potato fritters.

A bright, cool clear autumn day was considered ideal for the harvest and the art of "hilling" sweet potatoes. The typical procedure involved a start as soon as the morning dew was "burnt off the land." The first step was using bush axes to cut through the vines on the top of rows, followed by gathering and removing the thick tangle of vines. Any farmer who bypassed this step was looked on as something of a lazy bones, a trifler in the honored tradition of doing things the right way.

Next came ploughing up the potatoes, using a single mule hitched to a turning plow with a deep sidesweep point. This brought to surface the rich yield of potatoes nesting beneath the earth. Then came the arduous task, with women and children (if it was not a school day) helping out. The finest specimens were gathered first, placed in bushel baskets — these were the sweet potatoes destined for curing in the potato hills. Once this selection was made, the second best, which included fairly oversized and small potatoes, were gathered — to be stored in the kitchen pantry, or in a barn for immediate consumption. The remaining potatoes, those cut-damaged by the plow and the lunkers (oversize potatoes which had burst their skins), were relegated as hog and cow feed.

Preparation of the hill for storing and curing sweet potatoes was considered a fine skill. Often, a farmer who felt that he or one of his grown sons were not up to devising the best possible hill, would call on a neighbor known for his expertise.

The first step in constructing a sweet potato hill was selection of the site — some place that would be convenient to the wife, and most important, on ground high enough to escape wet damage from heavy rains. Depending on the number of bushels to be stored in a hill, a circular dirt base was prepared, usually about six feet wide. The soil at the site, cleaned of surface debris and roots, was pulverized and mounded about 16 to 18 inches high. The mound was then hollowed out to give a shape somewhat similar to commercial shells sold today for shortcake concoctions. The hollow was lined with a layer of clean pine straw (a few used broomstraw instead) to a depth of about ten inches. A layer of potatoes was carefully placed on this bottom layer. Then came successive layers of straw and sweet potatoes, each layer smaller until the top layer was only about two feet in diameter. At this point, an enveloping layer of pine needles or straw was packed over the pyramidical mound. Next was the placement of corn stalks, stripped of leaves, laid two or three inches apart over the dirt. The final touches were those of packing a four to six inch covering of dirt from top to bottom all around the mound. A hole, loosely packed with straw, was left in the peak of the mound to provide air circulation down into the stored potatoes, with the hole protected from rain and snow by capping it with an inverted trough of wood or metal.

There were variations on this method, but in eastern North Carolina the manner of constructing the sweet potato hills was basically that given above.

Large farm families quite often had three or four sweet potato curing hills to insure a sufficient supply until late spring when the family garden began providing a wealth of other vegetables.

In those days too, livestock, particularly hogs, roamed free. To keep one's own or a neighbor's meandering hogs from rooting into and damaging the potato hills, most farmers erected a sturdy fence around the prized family supply of sweet roots.

Once the storage hills were completed, there followed a period of waiting — about a month — until the potatoes had acquired peak flavor. It was a happy occasion when a farm wife announced it was time to dig into the bottom of the hill to sample the potatoes.

To insure protection against extreme cold, the potato hills were wrapped with old quilts or burlap bags (tow sacks) weighted down against wind by bricks or blocks of wood.

And lots of housewives were purists about baking sweet potatoes. Some claimed that only pine wood was suitable for the fire that heated up ovens of cast iron kitchen stoves — others opted for mixed wood in the stove's firebox, including the addition by the more adventurous of a small piece of sassafrass root to spice up the potato's flavor.

Whatever the option, hungry diners agreed there was nothing finer than a Carolina potato property cured in a dirt and straw hill — so tender that the skin slipped off almost by itself, and so juicy that the eater had to be careful not to let the pool of sweet syrup drip down onto one's clothes.

The hard, tedious work involved in harvest and hilling carried it's reward.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a perfect Sunday for you to consider the school of thought or the philosophy of life under which you wish to operate in the future and to make headway and advancement.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) By combining hunches with your good judgment wisely, you will know how best to go after your goals and gain them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Fine day for having a long talk with your mate concerning new plans and long-time interests and coming to a fine understanding.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be on the alert for some new conditions to develop which can be most helpful to you and utilize them. Enjoy a good meal tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You can make your outside affairs more productive if you study data pertinent thereto. Be happy.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Early contact good friends and plan the recreation you want to enjoy with them. Plan time to perfect a talent.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Fine day for having family fun and enjoying all the comforts of home and hearth. Invite interesting friends to your home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to attend some fine lecture that can be very enlightening and educational in the daytime. Give someone a thoughtful gift.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to figure out what can be done to increase your income in the near future so that you can better your situation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There are benefits accruing to you so be prepared to seize any opportunities at hand. Drive with utmost care.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Add more scope to present enterprises so that you gain greater success in the near future. Plan to have more harmony at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be enthusiastic about personal affairs and pursue them vigorously. Contact those friends who are anxious to see you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can accomplish much in the outside world today, so step out early and get busy seeing the right people.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will express self very well, but be sure to teach to first think about what is to be said and to have all the facts and figures straight. Much travel is indicated here, so be sure to add foreign languages to the courses in school.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JANUARY 30, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds you able to start the week in a constructive fashion by organizing and arranging your career activities according to your long-time desires. Seek advice.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get into activities that can put you in the public eye and will give you a chance to get ahead in your career.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Before getting into that new course of action, be sure to consult one who has much experience along such lines of endeavor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use those systems that have worked successfully in the past in dealing with persons in business and gain profit.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Showing your partners that you operate very sensibly is wise and you gain their added cooperation.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you understand your job thoroughly and handle it efficiently so you gain the respect of higher-ups and co-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care you do not overspend where recreation is concerned and try to cut down on such in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure that all home matters are solidly based and rid yourself of whatever is obsolete or unworkable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Begin the week properly by answering any letters that are important and putting in motion any new enterprises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look into the monetary side of any situation today and everything turns out all right for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get that new course of activity started that will last for some time. Tonight, be sure to rest up for the week ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan and handle practical affairs wisely and stop all that daydreaming and socializing that gets you nowhere.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have fine capability for getting projects down to a workable level and also handling details precisely. Utilize this.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a born organizer, especially where property and land development is concerned. Be sure to slant the education along financial and business lines in order to make the most of this capability.

Kroeger Meets New Challenges On 'SNL'

By Joe Haviland

It is a case of local boy makes good. If you make a trip to Cedar Falls, Iowa, and ask about Gary Kroeger, the residents will smile with pride. For Kroeger, who's now in his second season as a cast member on NBC's "Saturday Night Live," joining the Emmy-award winning comedy series last year represented not only a dream come true but also a crucial point in his career.

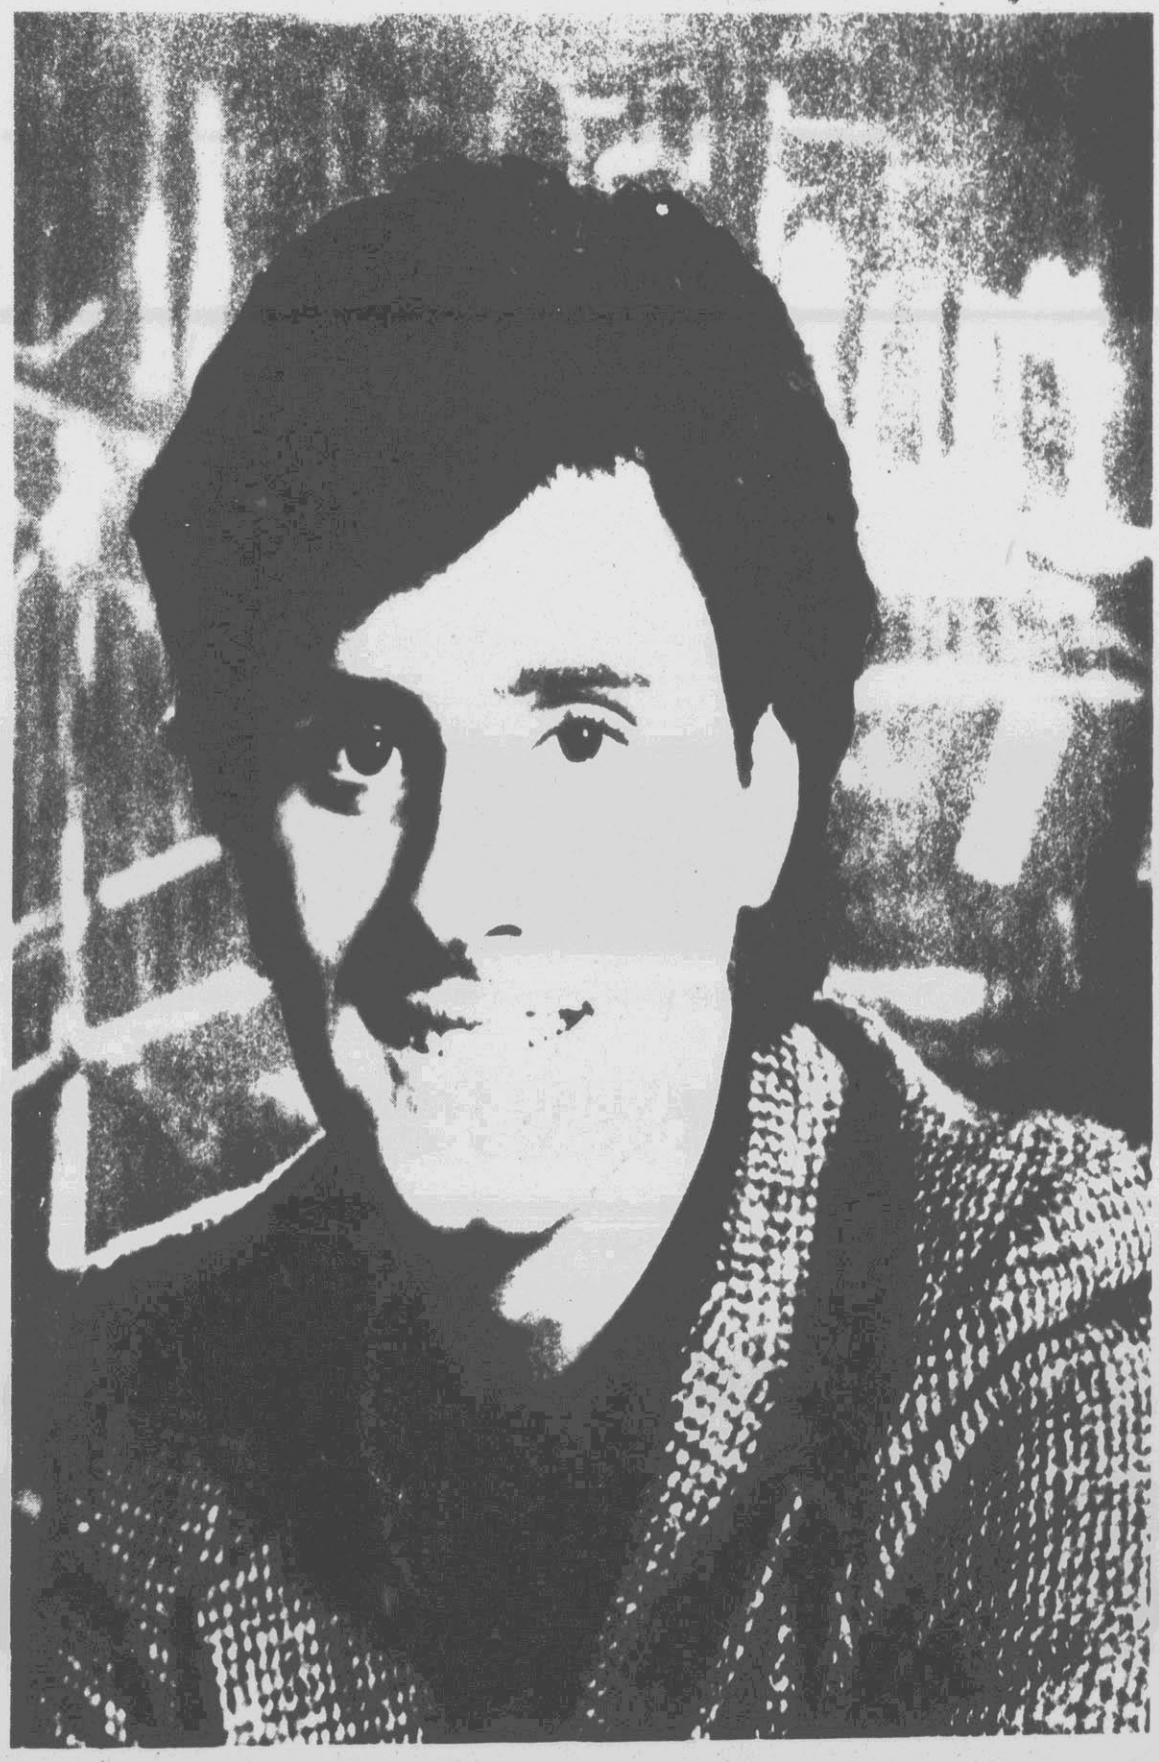
"My parents are as thrilled as I am," says the 25-year-old Kroeger, discussing his success. "And it's very important to my little community that I've gone out of high school and am now doing television."

Occasionally the actor/writer returns to his hometown, not minding his celebrity status. "It's a lot of fun and I enjoy it thoroughly. But I will admit to my mother's constant case of nerves, thinking, 'Oh I hope he doesn't do a woman again this week or do anything to embarrass me.' "

Actually she's quite proud of her son, who upon entering Northwestern University in Chicago had dreams of being a serious actor but found himself attracted to comedy writing and improvisational theater instead. It was in 1980 that Kroeger, fellow cast mate Brad Hall and writer Paul Barrosse formed Chicago's Practical Theater, which was their vehicle to success.

Kroeger is candid about the direction he wishes to pursue. "I'm not all that excited about developing those returning type of characters," says the comedian, who in the summer of '82 was caught in the act along with Hall, Barrosse and Julia Louise-Dreyfus by Dick Ebersol, the executive producer of "SNL." "I know there are advantages to returning characters in terms of recognition but it's not really why I'm a performer. It has its place and it works but it's not really the kind of performer I want to be. It's a little one dimensional."

Kroeger, who in the fall of '82 found himself, Hall, Barrosse and Julia Louise-Dreyfus winging their way east to the Big Apple and the set of "Saturday Night Live," prefers having different characters to come up with each week. "It's much more of a challenge to me," he says. "And in terms of this show, that's really what I like doing most."



Gary Kroeger is into his second season of improvisational comedy as one of the nine-member repertory company that makes up NBC's Emmy-award winning "Saturday Night Live."

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

DEAR MICHELE: Please settle a bet. I say Ed Marinaro played Rhoda's boyfriend Johnny Venture on the series "Rhoda." My cousin says no. Am I right? — N.W.

To N.W.: It's too bad you have to start the New Year off this way, but get ready to pay. Michael Delano starred as egomaniac Johnny Venture — not Ed Marinaro. I can easily understand why you may have made the mistake — many of us remember Marinaro's ego from when the former Cornell football star publicly proclaimed he should have won the 1971 Heisman Trophy instead of Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan.

DEAR MICHELE: Please provide me with information on Billy Moses and an address where I may write to him. — K.K.M.

To K.K.M.: Running neck-and-neck with Lorenzo Lamas for heartthrob of "Falcon Crest," William R. Moses was born Nov. 17 in Los Angeles to realtor Richard Moses and actress Marian McCargo. A star high school basketball player, the 6-foot-1-inch, 165-pound Moses went on to play for the University of Southern California while majoring in internal relations. His show business career began when he met his brother Rick's agent at a party — you remember Rick Moses, formerly of "General Hospital?" A series of commercials led to a co-starring role opposite Victor French in the film "Choices." The Moses brothers appear to have taken after their mother — in addition to Billy and Rick, brother Harry is also an actor and another brother, Graham, is a musician. I suggest you write to Billy in c/o CBS, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90036.

DEAR MICHELE: Is Diana Ross married? Who is the father of her children? — J.N.

To J.N.: Diana has flown solo ever since she split from Robert Silberstein. The couple married in 1971 and divorced six years later. They have three daughters; Rhonda (born 1971), Tracee (born 1972) and Chudney (born 1975).

DEAR MICHELE: Could you please give some information on Peter Duel, who played outlaw Hannibal Heyes on the Western series "Alias Smith and Jones?" — M.P.

To M.P.: Perhaps you are too young to know, but Duel was found shot to death in his Hollywood Hills apartment on New Years Eve 1971. It was apparently a suicide. He was hastily replaced by Jacqueline Smith's first ex-husband, Roger Davis, for the series' final year. The son of a physician and nurse, Duel grew up in Penfield, N.Y.

DEAR MICHELE: How many years has Charita Bauer (Bert) been on "Guiding Light?" Can you tell me anything about her? Also, is there anything significant about the fact that her real name, and her character's name are the same? I bet there is. — J.K.

To J.K.: Believe it or not, it is only a coincidence that Charita's real surname and that of her character are the same. However, she did name her real-life son Michael after her on-screen son in order to avoid confusion on the show.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

More about "THE DAY AFTER" — EUROPEAN countries, even some behind the IRON CURTAIN, are expressing an interest in televising the ABC movie, which focuses on the effects of a nuclear blast on residents in a Kansas town.

The film has been a ratings success on British television and in WEST GERMANY, where it was shown as a theatrical release, and has grossed more than $3 million.

Other countries expressing an interest in the film are POLAND, BULGARIA and CZECHOSLOVAKIA. Representatives of the SOVIET UNION's government have requested a cassette of the program in order to determine whether it should air on Soviet TV. (It certainly makes me feel better to know that we share the same "fear" with these countries. That could make a difference.)

I didn't need BETTE DAVIS' attorney, HAROLD SCHIFF, to tell me that she is "feeling fine and ready to return to work." The news that she has not been happy with the "HOTEL" story ideas submitted to her thus far, tells me MISS DAVIS is back in rare form and is still the perfectionist she is noted to be. Producers AARON SPELLING and DOUGLAS CRAMER feel that the "right script" will be ready for her late January return to the series.

Showtime Police Concert Arresting, But Cops Out

By Andrew J. Edelstein

The Police, unlike many other megastars, haven't been content to release formula LPs. Rather, each succeeding LP has expanded their musical frontiers, incorporating African and Caribbean rhythms in their material.

In February, Showtime will air "The Police: The Synchronicity Concert," taped in November 1983 at the Omni in Atlanta. The concert captures the blond, Anglo-American trio at the height of their talents. The band has come a long way from the "white boys playing reggae" tag that detractors pinned on them six years ago.

The repertory ranges from the newest songs "Synchronicity" and "King of Pain" to the old favorites such as "Walking on the Moon" and "Message in a Bottle." Members of the trio — Sting, Andy Summer and Stewart Copeland — play a variety of exotic percussion instruments and are augmented by three women backup singers, wearing the flimsiest majorette outfits you'll ever see.

The band's music is strong enough to stand on its own. But since this is a TV presentation, the directors have opted to use gimmicks to jazz up each song. They're obeying the unwritten dictum that says TV rock concert footage has to be shot in pseudo-arty techniques that were new when "Woodstock" was released.

Thus, "Every Breath You Take" was shot in black-and-white, just like the video of the song. "Wrapped Around Your Finger" was shot in slo-mo, giving a spacey out-of-synch feeling, like tripping sequences in bad 1960s movies. "King of Pain" was shot in ever changing garish hues, ranging from electric blue to nuclear-fireball orange.

All these techniques are tiresome and detract from the music itself. Are the directors (Godley and Creme, musicians themselves, members of the rock band 10 CC) afraid that no-frills concert footage will bore the viewer? With some bands, that's a problem. It isn't with the Police. But instead of a fine concert, we end up with what's little more than a collection of rock video clips.

'Celebrity' sets cast

Tony Award winner James Whitmore and Jennifer Warren have joined the roster of stars in NBC's six-hour miniseries "Celebrity," airing Feb. 12, 13 and 14.

Whitmore portrays Houston newspaper editor Clifford Casey and Miss Warren plays Assistant District Attorney Martha Dalton.

Previously announced stars include Joseph Bottoms, Mickey Rooney, Hal Holbrook, Ben Masters, Michael Beck, Tess Harper, Debbie Allen and Karen Austin.

"Celebrity" traces the lives of three 1950s Texas high school graduates who share a night of violence that haunts them into middle age. Miss America sails

Miss America, Vanessa Williams, has been signed to make her television acting debut on an upcoming episode of "The Love Boat."

O'Brien Ends Run As NBA Commissioner

This week, Larry O'Brien will step down as Commissioner of the National Basketball Association. Despite the fact that the league's Advisory Committee proposed renewing his five-year contract, O'Brien says, "There comes a time when you have to move on. Eight and a half years is the longest I've ever held one job in my life."

There were several major achievements during his tenure, including the settlement of the Oscar Robertson suit that paved the way to the absorption of the four surviving ABA teams in 1976, several successful television and labor negotiations and innovative collective bargaining and anti-drug agreements.

Also during those years, television revenue increased 300 percent, gate receipts increased 200 percent and no teams folded. Perhaps the most noticeable rules change during O'Brien's tenure was the 1979 adoption, of the three-point field goal rule, which has proven to be a popular success with fans since it adds still more suspense to the final minutes of many games.

The NBA has continued to grow under O'Brien's guidance. In the 1980 the Dallas Mavericks became the NBA's 23rd franchise and they're operation has become a model for expansion teams in all sports. With the international popularity of basketball growing by leaps and bounds, several clubs have toured foreign countries and there has been serious discussion about playing regular-season NBA games overseas.

"He was very effective in marshaling his side to make common-sense deals that would help the sport," said Larry Fleisher, general counsel for the players association. "I think the sport is better off by far than it was in 1975 when he came in and I think that's the measure of success or failure in a commissioner."

In other notes and quotes from around the NBA:

Houston coach Bill Fitch says he has no master plan for bringing along his prize rookie center Ralph Sampson: "It's like baking a homemade cake. I'll do it from scratch, by feel."

New York Knicks coach Hubie Brown has a simple formula for success: "Get good people who understand planning and who want to sacrifice to win." As for his reputation as something of a martinet, Brown says, "The problem with our rules is that we enforce them."

Any time modern athletes complain about the traveling they do, assistant coach Jack McMahon thinks back to the early days of the NBA, when most trips were by train or bus. Even the occasional flights were no bargain. His worst flight? "Easy — a DC-3 that made four stops from Syracuse to St. Louis," he recalls. "Ice kept coming off the wings and hitting the fuselage. There were headwinds, so we were making about 75 miles per hour."

Corbett really nice guy

Warren Carter, that scoundrel on "Search for Tomorrow," hasn't been punished for his behavior yet, but Michael Corbett, the actor who portrays him has. "Over the weekend as I was parking the car in front of my apartment, I heard some people shout, 'Warren, you louse, keep away from Wendy.' I ignored it. But later, I found my tires had been slashed and the paint scraped off my new car. It's really troubling to realize that people can't distinguish between the character and the person playing the role, because I'm really a nice guy."

Award for Gish

Lillian Gish will receive the 1984 American Film Institute Life Achievement Award at ceremonies to be held March 1 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

Stars who will toast Miss Gish include Carol Burnett, Sally Field, Jane Fonda, Goldie Hawn, Diane Keaton, Jessica Lange, Marsha Mason, Jeanne Moreau, Sissy Spacek, Mary Steenburgen, Meryl Streep, Elizabeth Taylor, Lily Tomlin and Debra Winger. CBS will televise the event at a later date.

Priscilla & 'Dallas'; Elliott Takes A Chance

By Peter Meade

Priscilla Presley says her character, Jenna Wade, was added to "Dallas" this year "to blast Bobby Ewing (played by Patrick Duffy), because she's seen the world and he hasn't."

Priscilla Presley

The series' producers, Philip Capice and Leonard Katzman, warned her about Duffy. "They said don't take anything he says seriously," says Ms. Presley.

Even though Duffy, like Ms. Presley, is a very private person who shuns most publicity, he has a quick mind and keeps the cast and crew loose with his constant joking.

Although Sam Elliott has always been at home in the saddle, he has been leery of episodic TV.

"It looked like a dead end," says Elliott. "Clint Eastwood and Steve McQueen were the only ones to make the transition from television to movies."

The 39-year-old California native made his movie debut in 1969 in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." He didn't steal the show from Robert Redford or Paul Newman as his name can be found second from the bottom of the cast list as "Card player No. 2."

His only regular series work before joining "The Yellow Rose" this season was a 1970-1971 stint on "Mission: Impossible."

But he has always wanted to be a cowboy, so when the opportunity to play the mysterious Chance McKenzie came up, the 6-foot-2-inch actor was so ready he even brought along his own horse.

Although Dabney Coleman has made a name for himself playing callous characters such as his current "Buffalo Bill," the series' co-executive producer Tom Patchett says Coleman was not that interested in playing the ascerbic talk-show host when he and his partner, Jay Tarses, first approached Coleman.

"He had just finished 'Young Doctors in Love,' " says Patchett, "so he was interested in doing a series about the medical profession."

But Coleman had worked with Patchett and Tarses on "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" and knew the team's work from their days on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "The Bob Newhart Show." So after turning down the chance to reprise his role in "9 to 5" when it became an ABC series, Coleman agreed to playing the role of Bill Bittinger on the Thursday night comedy.

The right suit
may not get you to the top.

But the wrong suit could keep you from getting there.

In the business world, "you are what you wear" isn't a far-fetched thought. Your suit is an unfailing signal to others about the way you view yourself.

We at Coffman's have been at the business of business clothing for over 25 years. So we've learned a thing or two about the particular level of quality that helps men present themselves best.

Evidently, they feel our approach is right. Because our Hart Schaffner & Marx brand is the one men who've arrived- as well as the men who will- choose above all others.

Doesn't that suggest we're right for you?

ANNUAL REPORT TO THE
CITIZENS OF GREENVILLE
JANUARY 1 - DECEMBER 31, 1983

"WE ARE PLEASED TO PRESENT THE 1983 ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE."

JANICE B. BUCK, MAYOR

CITY OF GREENVILLE
NORTH CAROLINA
27834

January, 1984

Dear Fellow Citizens:

It is with pleasure that we, the elected officials, present to you the 1983 Annual Report of the City of Greenville.

Greenville is now recognized as the "Golden City" - a fitting name for a city located in a region filled with "golden" opportunities, taking pride in being the home of ECU's purple and gold as well as the heart of the gold leaf tobacco belt.

We are a growing, progressive community. Numerous improvements, continued growth and development, and other noteworthy accomplishments highlight 1983 as a year to be remembered. This Annual Report is published to share with you many of the events and activities which made 1983 a year to use as the basis for continued progress.

As chosen representatives in serving the needs of our community, we join with the City's administrative staff and employees in pledging our very best efforts that we may continue to merit your support.

Sincerely,

Janice B. Buck

"ONE OF THE BEST TOWNS IN AMERICA!"

As I reflect on the City's many activities and accomplishments during 1983, I can remember the year as being a prosperous and productive one. You will see, as you read through this report, the results of a busy year. The report will give you a retrospective of 1983 accomplishments and events, as well as provide you with information on City services.

In a recently published book, "The Best Towns in America", written by Hugh Bayless, Greenville is cited as one of 50 cities in the United States where people can come to find "the better life". When we consider all the growing cities and beautiful towns across our country, we cannot help being extremely proud.

To those of us in City government, it will be a daily challenge to maintain the reputation of being one of America's best towns! We have no doubts we can meet that challenge! We have only to look around us to know that we have everything going for us...a rich heritage, interested and active citizens, and an enviable quality of life!

A CHANGE IN MOTOR VEHICLE LICENSING LAWS

The City Council adopted a new method of billing and collecting the motor vehicle property tax in July, 1983. Under the new system, the City is adding a $5 license fee for each motor vehicle to the property tax notice. Citizens are no longer required to purchase and display a metal City license plate on the front of their vehicles. Metal plates are available to those citizens who would like to have them if their City taxes have been paid.

Questions regarding the new law should be referred to the City Collector of Revenue at 752-4137.

27834

January, 1984

Dear Fellow Citizens:

It is with pleasure that we, the elected officials, present to you the 1983 Annual Report of the City of Greenville.

Greenville is now recognized as the "Golden City" - a fitting name for a city located in a region filled with "golden" opportunities, taking pride in being the home of ECU's purple and gold as well as the heart of the gold leaf tobacco belt.

We are a growing, progressive community. Numerous improvements, continued growth and development, and other noteworthy accomplishments highlight 1983 as a year to be remembered. This Annual Report is published to share with you many of the events and activities which made 1983 a year to use as the basis for continued progress.

As chosen representatives in serving the needs of our community, we join with the City's administrative staff and employees in pledging our very best efforts that we may continue to merit your support.

Sincerely,

Janice B. Buck

"ONE OF THE BEST TOWNS IN AMERICA!"

As I reflect on the City's many activities and accomplishments during 1983, I can remember the year as being a prosperous and productive one. You will see, as you read through this report, the results of a busy year. The report will give you a retrospective of 1983 accomplishments and events, as well as provide you with information on City services.

In a recently published book, "The Best Towns in America", written by Hugh Bayless, Greenville is cited as one of 50 cities in the United States where people can come to find "the better life". When we consider all the growing cities and beautiful towns across our country, we cannot help being extremely proud.

To those of us in City government, it will be a daily challenge to maintain the reputation of being one of America's best towns! We have no doubts we can meet that challenge! We have only to look around us to know that we have everything going for us...a rich heritage, interested and active citizens, and an enviable quality of life!

A CHANGE IN MOTOR VEHICLE LICENSING LAWS

The City Council adopted a new method of billing and collecting the motor vehicle property tax in July, 1983. Under the new system, the City is adding a $5 license fee for each motor vehicle to the property tax notice. Citizens are no longer required to purchase and display a metal City license plate on the front of their vehicles. Metal plates are available to those citizens who would like to have them if their City taxes have been paid.

Questions regarding the new law should be referred to the City Collector of Revenue at 752-4137.

PUBLIC WORKS PROVIDES A VARIETY OF IMPORTANT SERVICES

The list of accomplishments by the Public Works Department during 1983 goes on and on. An additional three-bay garage was added for Transit operations. The Garage Division now maintains 188 motorized vehicles and 42 other vehicular equipment items. During the past year, the Garage maintained its first controlled inventory of spare parts and major items necessary for repairs. This stockroom has eliminated many days of down time for City vehicles and equipment. A preventative maintenance program was established during 1983.

More Sanitation services were provided during 1983 with even fewer employees. A program was initiated to offer the general public, on a volunteer basis, roll-out cart sanitation service. A Litter Patrol was established to work the downtown area early Friday, Saturday, and Sunday mornings. Over 2,500 cubic yards of litter were collected by the Litter Patrol during 1983. And, if that seems like a lot of litter, the amount of raw garbage collected by the City Sanitation workers will stun you! Approximately 124,108 cubic yards of garbage and 2,534 two-ton truckloads of heavy and bulky yard trash were collected.

The Public Works Right-of-Way and Traffic Control Division was called upon a number of times in 1983 to do special landscaping jobs and electrical work. Two additional responsibilities were placed on the Right-of-Way and Traffic Control Division. This Division now installs and maintains two-way radios for all departments with the exception of Police and Fire-Rescue. The maintenance and upkeep of all traffic signalization heads and control boxes is another responsibility of this Public Works division. Prior to last year, traffic signal failure was a common occurrence in Greenville. Now, through the annual maintenance program, many of these problems will be eliminated.

GREAT SERVES COMMUNITY COLLEGE

ROLL-OUT CART SERVICE

Ditches were given a great deal of attention by the Public Works Street Maintenance crews during 1983. Heavy trees were removed from weak ditch banks. Banks were sloped, reseeded, and the bottoms of drainage ditches were stabilized by utilizing railroad cross ties, heavy concrete, and large stones. At the request of the Parking Authority, the Street Maintenance Division redesigned, repaired, and remarked eight City parking lots. For the first time, the City's Street Maintenance Division was called upon to assist in the inspection and repairs to bridges located on the City's street system.

During 1983, the City was reimbursed by federal and state grants for 50 percent of operational costs and 90 percent of administrative costs in operating the GREAT City bus system. These grants provided new shop equipment for the transit garage, bus stop benches, and bus stop shelters. The three transit routes were reorganized providing for fewer miles of operation and an increase in ridership by approximately eight percent. Additional ridership and revenues were created by providing transit service to Pitt Community College.

CITY EMPLOYEES···GROWING, LEARNING, ACHIEVING

City staff members and employees will remember 1983 as a year marked by many promotions, service retirements, and employee commendations and achievements.

The City currently has 381 fulltime employees. In support of promoting equal employment opportunity, the City of Greenville recruits its employees locally, statewide, and from across the nation.

Staff members and employees are encouraged to develop their chosen careers through enrollment in special training and educational programs and through active participation in associations and organizations whose goals relate to their City job responsibilities. Our employees have a remarkable track record in this area. Permit us to name for you just a few of our employees' accomplishments during 1983.

LOIS WORTHINGTON, City Clerk, elected President of the N. C. Association of Municipal Clerks.

TERRY ANDERSON, Superintendent of Sanitation, elected to Board of Directors, Sanitation Division, of N. C. Chapter of American Public Works Association.

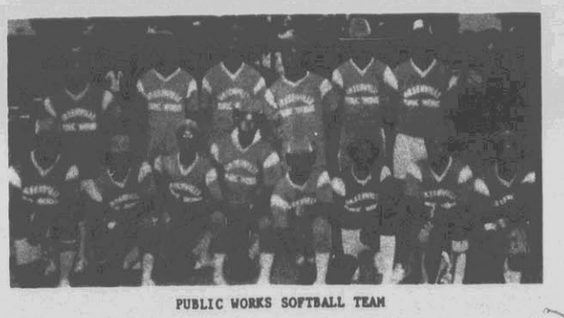
LOIS WORTHINGTON, CITY CLERK



PUBLIC WORKS SOFTBALL TEAM

ANDY HARRIS, Community Development Administrator, graduated from the Leadership Institute sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

MAYO ALLEN, Director of Public Works, elected Treasurer of the N. C. Chapter of the American Public Works Administration.

BOYD LEE, Director of Recreation and Parks, chosen by N. C. Recreation and Parks Society as recipient of prestigous "Fellow Award".

GERRY DAIL, Personnel Assistant, and NADINE BOWEN, Administrative Assistant, graduated with the 1983 Class in Municipal Administration, offered by the Institute of Government, UNC-Chapel Hill, N.C.

HENRY HOSTETLER, elected to Board of Directors, N. C. Tennis Association.

FLOYD LITTLE, Collector of Revenue, elected President of the Coastal Plains Tax Supervisors Association.

BILL SHAW, Engineer, elected Secretary-Treasurer of the N. C. Society of Surveyors.

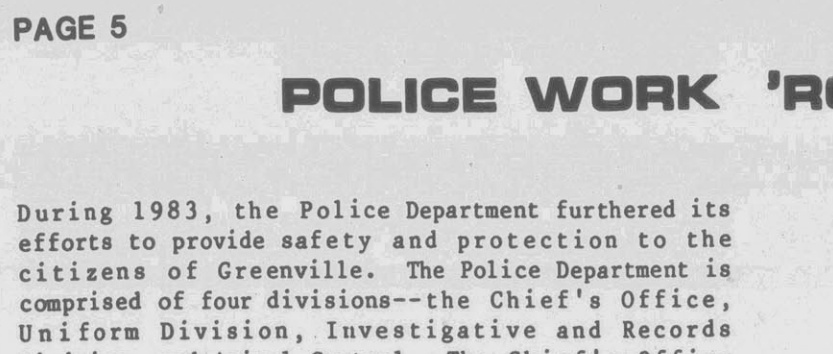
BEN WHITE, Fire-Rescue Department, chosen "Fire-Rescue Officer of the Year" by the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women.

POLICE WORK 'ROUND THE CLOCK

During 1983, the Police Department furthered its efforts to provide safety and protection to the citizens of Greenville. The Police Department is comprised of four divisions--the Chief's Office, Uniform Division, Investigative and Records Division, and Animal Control. The Chief's Office serves as the administrative arm of the Department. Services provided by the Uniform Division include traffic investigations, traffic control, patrol of residential and business districts, general surveillance of the City, response to citizen complaints, crime prevention and juvenile services. Extensive investigation of major crimes, identification services, and maintenance of police records and criminal history data are services provided by the Police Investigative and Records Division. The Animal Control Division provides for enforcement of the City's leash law and other animal control regulations.

In May, with assistance from the East Carolina University Human Performance Lab, the Police Department implemented a physical fitness program. Officers were evaluated as to the level of their fitness, and individual exercise programs were suggested.

The Crime Stoppers program was initiated in September. Crime Stoppers provides a mechanism for citizen involvement without interference in police operations. There is a private telephone line which can be used by residents of our community to furnish the Greenville Police Department and other law enforcement agencies with information about crimes that have been committed.



MEASURING NOISE LEVEL

BICYCLE AUCTION

Enforcement of the City's decibel-based noise ordinance began in October. The new law categorizes permissible noise levels on the basis of use occupancy. Sound measuring equipment was purchased by the City, and police officers were trained in its correct use. The law prohibits outdoor amplified sound without a permit from the Police Department.

Ted Holmes joined the Department in early October, taking the reins as Chief of Police. Several new programs have been developed and implemented since Holmes' arrival. The "Ride Along" program is available to Greenville residents who want to learn how police operate while on patrol. They can "ride along" with officers and get a first-hand glimpse of police operations. A special Narcotics-Vice Squad has been formed to concentrate on the City's drug problems at the street level. In an effort to reduce the high number of traffic accidents in Greenville, a selective traffic enforcement program has been started.

The Animal Control Division closed its records on another busy year. Statistics will show that City animal control officers picked up 683 dogs and 399 cats during 1983. Over 125 dogs were adopted, and homes were found for 83 cats.

ENGINEERS & INSPECTORS REPORT YEAR OF GROWTH

During 1983, the Engineering and Inspections Department provided design, specifications, and contract administration for other City departments and the Community Development program. In conjunction with the First Street Emergency Repair Project of 1982, the design and construction of an open channel from First Street to the Tar River was completed in 1983. The new Transit Garage facility, designed and planned by the City Engineering Division, was completed. Complete re-roofing for the newer additions of Sheppard Memorial Library was accomplished. With Community Development funding, a new elevator was installed in the Community Building to improve public access to the many City offices and programs located within this building. As part of the continuing Community Development program, plans were implemented for 1,400 linear feet of new street construction, 3,000 linear feet of street resurfacing, and 1,095 feet of storm drainage.

FIRST STREET CHANNEL

NEW CONSTRUCTION

The Inspections Division, charged with the issuance of all building permits and enforcement of the Zoning Ordinance and other codes, saw a busy year. Greenville continues in its economical growth by remaining among the top cities in North Carolina in the amount of construction per capita. In 1983, 1,054 building permits were issued for various types of planned construction valued at $52,558,250.

SPEND YOUR FREE TIME WITH GREENVILLE RECREATION & PARKS

HOWARD VAINRIGHT SHOWS DISPLAY IN AWARENESS CENTER, RIVER PARK NORTH

The principal responsibility of the Recreation and Parks Department is to provide wholesome recreation for the citizens of Greenville. This Department offers services and programs in the areas of arts and crafts, athletics, aquatics, tennis, senior citizens, special populations, drama, music, summer playground, and special activities. In 1983, the Recreation and Parks Department offered over 180 programs and activities which served 281,000 participants--children and adults. In 1983, the Department had a volunteer force which saved the City in excess of approximately $250,000 and to honor these volunteers, the Department sponsored a Volunteer Appreciation Banquet.

The Department is also responsible for planning and constructing, equipping, maintaining, and landscaping parks, playgrounds, recreation centers, tennis courts, ballfields, and all buildings and structures necessary and useful to the conduct of Recreation and Parks Department programs, and owned or controlled by the City. The Department presently maintains 600 acres of parks and land at 16 locations and has a total of 30,000 square feet of recreational floor space.

In the spring of 1983, River Park North, a 380-acre wilderness and nature park was officially opened. The park provides many outstanding opportunities to study the environment and natural resources of the area. The Environmental Awareness Center (a nature center located at the park) offers many educational opportunities including a live animal touch tank and exhibit and informative displays. Other interesting activities include hiking, boating, camping, fishing, picnicking and pedal boating.

A map of all Recreation and Parks facilities, buildings, and park areas and brochures containing seasonal program information are available at the Administrative Offices on Cedar Lane.

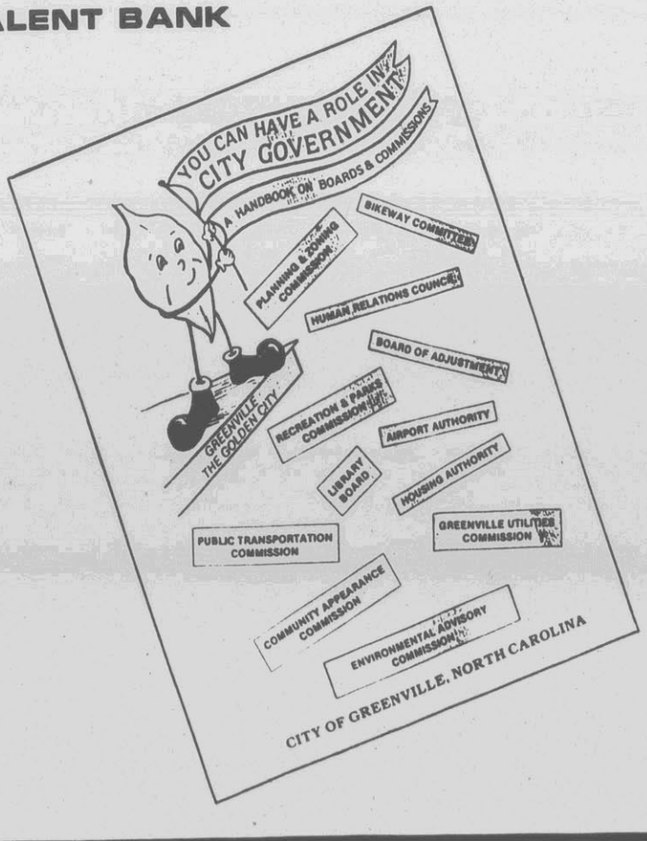
RIVER PARK DEDICATION

TALENT BANK



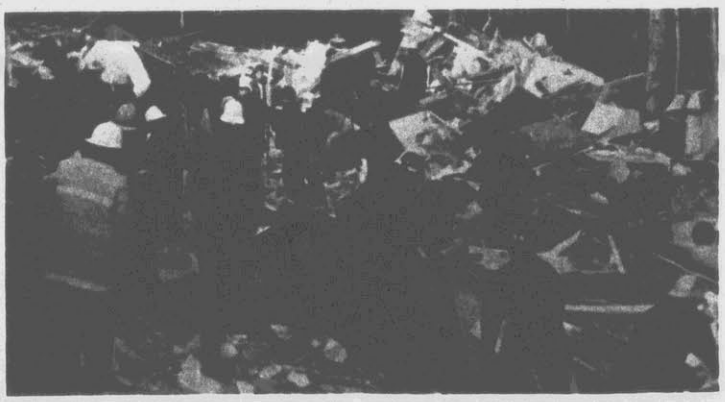
The Talent Bank was created in January, 1980, for the purpose of listing citizens who are interested and willing to serve on a City board or commission. The Council utilizes this source extensively in making selections for appointments to boards and commissions. The Talent Bank is updated every six months to keep applicants current. Since January, 1983, the Council has considered 32 vacant positions on various boards and commissions. These positions have been filled by reappointing 20 citizens of which ten had resumés in the Talent Bank and by appointing 12 citizens of which eight had resumés on file. In September, 1983, a letter was sent to each applicant in order to update the Talent Bank.

A Handbook on Boards and Commissions was released by the City's Public Information Office in November, 1983. This booklet contains a brief description of the duties and purpose of each committee. Information is included on when and where meetings are generally conducted. The last page of the booklet is a tear-out card for citizens' convenience in notifying the City Clerk of their interest in serving on a particular board or commission. To obtain a copy of this handbook, or if you have specific questions relative to the Talent Bank, please call the City Clerk's Office at 752-4137.

IN FIRE-RESCUE, TEAMWORK IS THE KEY

For several years now, the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department has been grooming its team building program, and Chief Jenness Allen will tell you that teamwork is the key to having an efficient and effective fire-rescue operation. The Greenville Fire-Rescue Department has received national recognition for its efforts and involvement in the organizational development process of team building. The purpose of the team building program is to improve the problem solving and planning abilities of senior Fire-Rescue staff members. Daily emphasis is placed on group problem solving and decision making. A follow-up training session was held during 1983 to evaluate the effectiveness of the team building program.

The only major fire in Greenville during 1983 was the Cannon Warehouse fire which occurred in January. In total, the Fire-Rescue Department responded to 985 fire calls and 2,321 calls for emergency medical services during the year.



EXPLOSION AT VILLAGE GREEN

On March 2, 1983, a major explosion occurred at the Village Green apartment complex. This disaster caused the death of one East Carolina University student and injured several others. The Fire-Rescue Department displayed true professionalism in its handling of this serious incident. Without the quick response, alert enactment of a disaster plan, swift transport of the injured, and the expert provision of emergency medical service, this disaster could have been considerably more costly in the loss of lives, in addition to the extensive loss of property.

A Hazardous Materials Response Team was formed in 1983. Until creation of this squad, the Fire-Rescue Department did not have the equipment or the expertise to respond to any type of hazardous material spill that posed a threat to the community. The Hazardous Materials Team can respond to almost any type of hazardous chemicals leak.

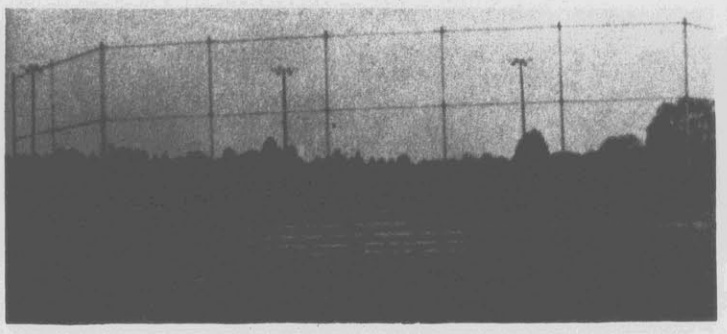
HAZARDOUS CHEMICALS RESPONSE TEAM

FUTURE GROWTH & COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

PLANNERS REVIEW ANNEXATION PLAN

The Planning and Community Development Department can reflect back on 1983 as one where staff members were kept busy monitoring current development and planning future City growth.

The Planning Office received and processed nine annexation petitions and prepared annexation feasibility reports on two areas. Work was begun on an annexation plan at the direction of the Five-Year Annexation Subcommittee. Eighteen rezoning requests were processed by the Planning Office involving 188.2 acres of land. A total of 67 subdivision final plats were reviewed by City planners, which included 165 residential lots, 24 commercial sites, 865 multi-family units, a 35-unit mobile home park, and a 60-bed care home. Other activities included zoning ordinance amendments, street closings, and providing staff assistance to a number of City boards and commissions.



COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FUNDS BUILD NEW PARK

Many improvements to our City were made possible in 1983 through Community Development funding. The list of accomplishments is long, but we have cited a few of the major ones.

Twenty-six parcels were acquired and 18 dilapidated houses were demolished in the South Evans neighborhood. The Division relocated 29 families and individuals and rehabilitated 25 houses. An elevator was installed in the City's Community Building. Lighting was provided for the West Meadowbrook Ballfield and for tennis courts in Tom Foreman Park. Meadowbrook Drive and a portion of Glen Arthur Avenue were paved, and several other street sections were resurfaced. The historic Robert L. Humber House was restored and landscaped. Drainage projects in East Meadowbrook, the Southside Neighborhood, and in other areas of the City were completed. The Office of Community Development developed new housing rehabilitation programs for the South Evans neighborhood, and developed a Rental Rehabilitation Program for several neighborhoods. A Community Development Grant of $998,200 was obtained for the City in 1983.

AUDITORS REPORT SOUND FINANCIAL CONDITION

The City made significant improvements in its financial condition during the past twelve months. The 1982-83 audit report presented to the City Council on December 1, 1983, indicated only a 3.88 percent increase in total City expenses. This nominal increase in expenditures resulted in a $635,452 increase in the City's cash-on-hand balance as of June 30, 1983. Auditors indicated that this increase was made possible by City department heads and employees keeping expenses to a minimum.

A change in the City's financial management philosophy has allowed the City to base its annual expenditures on anticipated annual revenues, thereby allowing the City to continuously maintain a sound financial condition.

CONSTRUCTION BEGINS ON NEW WASTEWATER TREATMENT PLANT

GREENVILLE UTILITIES COMMISSION

The administration of Greenville Utilities Commission will tell you their greatest accomplishment in 1983 was beginning construction of the new Wastewater Treatment Plant in August. The contractor expects to finish the plant by early 1985. The new 12 million gallons per day Water Treatment Plant was placed in full operation in 1983. While some cities in North Carolina are experiencing water shortages or limited long-term supply sources, Greenville is unique in having a firm base water supply with "room for growth".

Because the new Wastewater Treatment Plant is under construction, Greenville's utility facilities are in excellent condition for orderly growth and expansion. The Commission is meeting it goals: to provide adequate facilities and services, to provide service at competitive rates based on cost-to-serve principles, to compensate citizen stockholders fairly for their investment, and to plan for the future.

AIRPORT AUTHORITY

Federal and State grants totaling over $300,000 during 1983 enhanced the continuing progress and improvements being made at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Emphasis was placed on safety as additional land was cleared for a higher degree of visibility, navigational aids were improved to provide a more positive approach, and reconstruction of the instrument runway's primary surface offers an extended safety area. Administratively, the Airport Authority adopted a comprehensive Standard Manual of Airport Rules and Regulations to further promulgate safety and aviation services offered.

Air traveling citizens received a boost when Sunbird Airlines and New York Air announced a working partnership, which resulted in a substantial reduction in air fares from Greenville. With these improvements and the new Commuter Terminal, Greenville and Pitt County travelers are now afforded the comfort and availability of commercial flights from their own airport. With additional projects planned to upgrade the airfield, the Pitt-Greenville Airport will continue to be a showcase for our rapidly developing community and its citizens.

HOUSING AUTHORITY

The Housing Authority of the City of Greenville owns and manages 702 public housing units. These units are located throughout the City, including six family projects and University Towers apartments for the elderly. Standard housing is provided for over 2,000 residents, 53 percent of whom are widows, elderly, or disabled.

The Housing Authority was established in 1961, and the 160-unit Kearney Park project was the first available for occupancy in 1965. These units are almost 20 years old and the Housing Authority has begun work on a major modernization project to completely renovate these units. The primary emphasis in the modernization program is energy improvements to contain the high cost of energy.

Final plans and specifications for 40 new units of new public housing to be built in the West Meadowbrook Community Development Area have been completed and approved by HUD. In addition, a private development, Greentree Village, consisting of 40 units, is under construction north of East Tenth Street in the vicinity of Kings Row Apartments. These units will be assisted by HUD but are privately owned. Financing for this project was assisted through the Greenville Housing Development Corporation, a subsidiary of the Housing Authority.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK, APRIL 18-24

SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

1983 was an exciting and eventful year for Sheppard Memorial Library. Use of the library continued to increase, as many people discovered the opportunities awaiting them at their local public library.

Youngsters were especially active in the summer reading program, which involved over 1,000 children. This represents a 25 percent increase over 1982. In an effort to provide better access to library facilities, East and Carver Branches were opened 10:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. throughout the year. Previously, the branches were open from 10:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. only during the summer months. Public access copy machines were also provided for each branch library during the year. At the Main Library, a microform reader/printer was purchased to provide patrons with the capability of producing paper copies of items stored on microfilm or microfiche.

During the year, the Library prepared plans for expanding the Children's Room. These plans were presented to the City Council, which endorsed the proposed concept. The Library continued to expand the use of its microcomputer, developing programs to prepare notices for delinquent material.

In an effort to solicit patron input, a survey of users was conducted in October. The results of this survey will be used to assess current levels of service and to plan for future needs.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

FROM THE "ASK" EDITORS

LOS ANGELES — The early life of Bob Hope will be captured in a two-hour TV biography this fall on CBS. The teleplay begins with Hope 60 years ago — when he was a young lad of 20. Asked the 80-year-old Hope when he found out: "Do you think I can play it?" Joked the quick-witted screenwriter in reply: "We may have to go to George Burns."...With Debra Winger in prop pregnancy gear for an upcoming movie, Steven Spielberg took her to dinner at his mother's dairy restaurant, Milky Way, in Los Angeles. Between the blintzes and herring, the pair teased Spielberg's mother, Leah Adler, that Winger's "baby" was in fact the real thing — an out-of-wedlock grandchild. By dessert, though, after having ruined enough of Leah's evening, Debra and Steve came clean and explained they were just kidding.... During her next Dynasty hiatus, Joan Collins will star in a remake of the 1964 Bette Davis mystery, Dead Ringer. Collins, whom viewers found picture perfect in last year's TV movie The Making of a Male Model, will continue in her witchy image by playing murderous twins, as Davis did in the original.

—Robert Windeler

Hope: Even with the Desert Classic over, life still has its traps.

WASHINGTON — One of the most popular and entertaining after-dinner speakers making the convention rounds here these days: a trio of high-powered wives — Carolyn Deaver, public-relations specialist and wife of the White House Deputy Chief of Staff; Lynne Cheney, Washington author and wife of Representative Dick Cheney (R-Wyo.); and Sondra Gotlieb, novelist and wife of the Canadian ambassador to Washington. Says Cheney, "What we do is tell funny stories about our experiences here." Their talk provides an insider's look at how after-hours hobnobbing in the nation's capital is in fact an extension of official life. As they put it, Washington really does have a three-party system: Democrat, Republican and Social.

—Kathleen Maxa and Jane Ottenberg

Lane: All tressed up and ready to glow.

NEW YORK — When Diane Lane made a recent trip to L.A. to reshoot scenes for the movie Streets of Fire, due out this summer, the 18-year-old actress posed some heady problems to the hairstylists. Why? Because the short, swept-back look she's been sporting for her new film, Cotton Club, is a rather hair-raising contrast to the long-flowing mane she has in Streets....."I'll be working quite a lot now," was the word from director Mike (Silkwood) Nichols on a recent trip to town. So it seems. He just finished staging the Broadway play The Real Thing with Jeremy (French Lieutenant's Woman) Irons and Glenn (The Big Chill) Close and is gearing up to direct Nora Ephron's autobiographical novel, Heartburn. The reason for Nichols's eight-year absence from Hollywood: "I didn't find anything I liked."...Though the media always have a field day with the ever-quotable Richard Harris — particularly his less-than-sedate disputes with ex-wife, superknockout and, now, exercise guru Ann Turkel — the actor takes it all in stride. "They have only reported on 10 percent of my life, which is incredible," grins Harris. "If they get their hands on the other 90 percent, I'll be in deep trouble. Under the circumstances, they've been very gallant." Or gullible.

He is one of the most charming, self-effacing men I know, easygoing and pleasant, with a marvelous sense of humor. I suppose you want to know about his sex-symbol image. He's bewildered by it, especially when women swoon. He says he hasn't changed from the days before he became a star, so why wasn't he considered sexy then?

Do you in any way resemble Erica, the "bad girl" you play on the show? —A.T., Monterey, Calif.

There's a little something of Erica in everyone. I share her impatience and desire to have everything. Like Erica, I have a terrible temper, but I'm working on it. She also thinks she is always right. Well, I still have flashes of that in real life, and yes, I'm working on that, too.

ABOUT THE COVER

Jerry Mathers, the star of Leave It to Beaver (1957-1963), posed for FAMILY WEEKLY in a studio in Los Angeles. The internationally recognized photographer Gary Bernstein presided, using a motorized Nikon F3 with a short telephoto lens (85mm F 1.8 auto Nokor). The set's background was brightened with a pair of 600 watt flash units. The main subject was lit with a 1250 w/s (watt-second) Rollei-pan main light; for a fill light, a 600 w/s Larson soft box sufficed. It was all recorded on Kodachrome 25 film. The "mother's" hands leading Jerry Mathers to the wash basin were those of a professional model.

AMERICA: WASH OUT YOUR MOUTH!

BY CHRISTOPHER PORTERFIELD

© Universal City Studios

In Al Pacino's Scarface, one well-known obscenity is uttered more than 180 times.

Generations since time immemorial have complained that standards in our everyday language were going straight to — well, were showing an appalling decline. Nowhere does this hold more true than in those lower regions of daily speech known as abusive, adjuratory, exclamatory, execrative, hortatory and objurgatory. In short: swearing and cursing.

They seem to get worse all the time. As a result, every older generation thinks that every younger one deserves to have its mouths washed out with soap.

I feel the same about my children's usage as my elders felt about mine. As early as age 8, I perceived my parents and teachers as a hopelessly blinkered and stuffy bunch for the way they clamped down on my half-ignorant experiments in cussing Tom Sawyer style. Now that I'm the father of three children, however, I can see that, in contrast to my parents' day, suppression is exactly what is called for.

My younger son, who at 4 showed an early flair for invective by denouncing me at the dinner table as a "jive turkey," now, at 11, swears like a lumberjack when he loses patience and wants me to "get off his case" or "bud out" of his life, or at least his room. His vocabulary at such moments features several words that I not only didn't use at his age, but also didn't know.

When my two teen-agers argue about fundamental issues like squatters' rights to the telephone or who borrowed whose David Bowie cassette, they fire off verbal missiles that could ionize the atmosphere over an area of hundreds of square yards, making it unsafe for human habitation for hours afterward.

Nor are they unusual in this respect. From what I gather, most of my nephews and nieces and the children of friends and colleagues do the same thing. These are all decent, well-brought-up kids. So where do they learn such startling language?

We cannot "pin this rap" on the schools, as one of my children's teachers quickly pointed out when I raised the subject with her. "That sort of thing is totally unacceptable around here," she said with admirable firmness. For that matter, it is unwelcome in my household, too, but that still brings us back to the question of where it comes from and what, if anything, we should do about it.

To find the sources of the profanity and obscenity that bespeckle our youngsters' conversation, we need only look where they look: to the streets, the media, the arts, and in a sense, ourselves. Whatever the virtues of our jumbled, boisterous contemporary culture — and no doubt they are many — we may as well acknowledge that it is also extraordinarily foulmouthed.

"Whatever the virtues of our boisterous contemporary culture, it is extraordinarily foulmouthed."

Of course, we expect to hear rough language in certain settings, such as sitting at a hockey game or riding on a rush-hour bus, or even struggling through the grocery checkout counters on triple-coupon days.

But this language has now spread to the greeting-card displays where, right next to the traditional teddy bears, wide-eyed moppets and flowery sentiments, stand the kind of messages that were once only to be found underneath the counter.

And then there are the T-shirts we pass on our daily travels, wondering as we read their emblazoned off-color mottoes how many of the wearers would dare to say them aloud (alas, probably most). Peter DeVries scarcely exaggerates in his latest novel, Slouching Towards Kalamazoo, when he has his unwed, pregnant heroine dream up a T-shirt bearing the scarlet letter A+, thereby transforming a mark of shame into a sexual boast and launching a lucrative T-shirt business that solves virtually all of her problems.

In 1939, movie audiences gasped when Clark Gable uttered an unprecedented four-letter word in his famous kiss-off to Vivian Leigh in Gone With the Wind: "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn." Since then, Hollywood has surpassed mildly scandalous items, like The Moon Is Blue in the 1950's, and moved into an era when nearly everything is blue, from Last Tango in Paris to *M*A*S*H* to Raging Bull to An Officer and a Gentleman.

As an example of where we are today, Time magazine's critic Richard Corliss reports that in Scarface, the gangster film starring Al Pacino (who will probably garner an Oscar nomination), the commonest, crudest four-letter word — and he doesn't mean "damn" — is used, by his conservative count, 181 times.

In the theater, the insights of some of our finest young dramatists, like those of Sam Shepard in True West and David Mamet in American Buffalo (both currently enjoying successful runs in New York), often come to us in an unremitting skein of four-, seven- and twelve-letter words.

Television has to curb its tongue, at least on commercial-broadcast channels. (I am referring to scripted language, not the blazing epithets of a John McEnroe on TV sports, or the unguarded moments of public figures that TV news zooms in on with such relish.)

Nevertheless, following the lead of that lovable bigot Archie Bunker, TV's dramatis personae have spiced up the spoken word considerably. In fact, at a time when the Rev. Donald Wildmon's Coalition for Better Television objects to Mary Tyler Moore sweetly exclaiming, "Oh, my God!" on faded reruns, the frothy naughtiness of Three's Company or the gritty street argot of Hill Street Blues must rank as bold indeed.

NBC

Swear words may not be used outright, but many current shows project a climate in which the words seem implicit — for example, Dallas and all the sagas of sex and chicanery that imitate it. (The byword of TV families seems to have gone from "Father Knows Best" to "J.R. Knows the Score.")

Cable TV and videocassette records allow a great deal more in through the back door, starting with many of the R- and X-rated (and unbleeped) films that children may not have been able to get into at local theaters. Some of the most brilliant comedy performances on cable — the taped nightclub appearances of Eddy Murphy, say, or Robin Williams — inextricably mix quicksilver wit and hip obscenity. Other more specialized cable television programs settle for hip obscenity undiluted.

Swearing used to have a distinct class dimension: The lower the socioeconomic level, supposedly, the cruder and more frequent the swearing. This is no longer necessarily true. One of the sociological fillips of John Updike's novel Couples in 1968 was that, among cultivated upper-middle-class people, four-letter words had taken on a modish allure and were being tossed around freely — as they have continued to be, in and out of novels.

In 1974, during Watergate, the White House tapes of conferences among Richard Nixon and his associates revealed that a rash of expletives had infected the highest office in the land. And in more recent years, spirited remarks made in public by Britain's Princess Anne have demonstrated that commoners do not have a monopoly on frightful expressions.

Swearing also was once considered a preponderantly male trait, but that is shifting as well. Thanks in part to the women's movement, it is not unusual to hear a well-groomed female attending a business meeting or a cocktail party let loose with language that, in days of yore, would have made a longshoreman blush.

Technically, this activity remains illegal in all 50 states, and more than half of the labor contracts negotiated across the nation still make it a firing offense to cuss out the boss. But enforcement of these proscriptions is sporadic; the law is tending toward a more permissive approach to the issue, as Robert Swoboda of St. Louis found out to his relief a few months ago.

Swoboda had vented so loudly and obscenely in his house one day that a neighbor complained to police. He was fined $250 for disturbing the peace. But when he appealed the conviction, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled that the First Amendment gives people a constitutional right to swear, as long as they do not mean to provoke trouble.

All of these changes reflect what has been happening in society at large: the waning of traditional institutions, the upheavals of radicalism, the jostling together of diverse social and ethnic groups, the exalting of the self and of individual assertiveness. As such, they probably go back to World War II, wars being, among other things, the great watersheds of swearing.

But vilification goes back, of course, much farther, to the beginning of history. Sigmund Freud maintained that when primitive man first flung an epithet instead of a weapon at his enemy, civilization began.

"Children take up dirty language to see where their parents will draw the line."

Psychologists tell us that the harsh consonants of curse words are physically satisfying, and that, more importantly, such behavior provides an escape for emotions that otherwise might explode in aggressive action. As Mark Twain put it, "When angry, count four; when very angry, swear."

Chaytor Mason, a psychologist who teaches at the University of Southern California's Institute of Safety and Systems Management, explains that four-letter words are "an outlet for the frustrations that occur in our dealings with nature and with one another." The person who employs them "is proving that at least he has mastery over something, if only his mouth."

Children have special reasons for taking up dirty language, say experts. At an early age it gives them a handle on their fascination with anatomy. It also provides a potent device for their endless testing of just where parents will draw the line. In adolescence, it becomes part of the jargon of their peer groups, a means of expressing solidarity among themselves, as well as rebelliousness toward authority.

Is swearing, then, an altogether healthy thing? Should we welcome our foulmouthed culture as a sign that we have left our hang-ups behind and swung into a mode of open, vigorous self-expression?

Not quite. Two things are wrong, I believe, with the talk we hear around us these days. One is that it is pervasive and indiscriminate. Not only does it lack restraint, but it shows no sense of occasion.

When Alice-Leone Moats wrote No

Nice Girl Swears, her best-selling handbook for debutantes of the 1930's, she advised readers who felt they must use racy language that "it is wise to have a little geographical discretion; adapt your conversation to your surroundings." Allowing for the differences that half a century have made, it remains good advice (and it had better, for the publisher has just reissued the book).

In the right time and place, like-minded people may indulge in a few rounds of ribaldry. This can be a form of relaxation and camaraderie, and no harm is done. Elsewhere, even the constitutional freedom of speech should not include the right to abuse the freedom of others.

The second, more basic problem with today's abusive lingo: It's numbingly dull and ugly. People mindlessly and endlessly repeat the same few words and phrases. They are employed to mean anything and everything and end up meaning nothing; even their shock value is lost.

Swearing, like any other form of expression, ought to have dash, variety, imagination. It demands the vividness and spirit of George Washington's outburst on a day during the Revolutionary War battle of Monmouth, as recalled by one of his generals: "He swore that day until the leaves shook on the trees. Charming, delightful! Never have I enjoyed such swearing before or since. Sir, on that day, he swore like an angel from heaven!"

Movie Star News

This is the sort of thing that Burges Johnson had in mind in 1948 when he wrote The Lost Art of Profanity.

Probably the last Americans to be masters of the art were the frontiersmen and early settlers, with their colorful regional dialects. Puritanism still held sway in those times, so it was imperative that their most inventive exclamations be euphemistic, as in "Gee-hospiphat" for God, "dad-blasted" for God damned and "Jiminy Christmas" for Jesus Christ.

Quaint as those phrases sound now, we could do worse than to come up with similar variations today. A case in point is the way an irascible editor of my acquaintance — the product of a Catholic upbringing and education — reacted when something went infuriatingly wrong at the office. "Oh—" he began vehemently, then, apparently catching himself, finished: "—mother-of-pearl!" Now that is an ornamental oath.

Another enlightened form of coping was worked out by one woman whose adolescent son began swearing around the house. "Initially I objected, but then I realized I had used the same language, and I couldn't continue to do that and still reprimand him," she says. "Finally I suggested that with his interest in vocabulary, he and his friends might find ways to rake one another over the coals without using foul words. Now they're very sophisticated and they use a lot of colorful language from Shakespeare." Others might prefer colorful language from old sci-fi comics: It's the principle that counts.

As Shakespeare's King Lear states, "Nothing will come of nothing." Unless we find more such ways to offset all the dreary excess, then even our salutary swearing, the kind that is judicious and appropriate, will ultimately get a bad name. And that would be a blankety-blank shame. PW

Christopher Porterfield collaborated with Dick Cavett on the best seller Cavett (1974) and on Eye on Cavett (Arbor House, 1983). A senior editor at Time magazine who resides in Manhattan with his wife and three children, Porterfield only swears when provoked.

THE DISEASE DOCTORS DON'T UNDERSTAND

By Kathy Crump

Systemic lupus erythematosus. It's an appropriately strange name for a strange but all too common disease, one that has more than half a million people in this country in agony. Lupus can strike anyone, but most sufferers are women of child-bearing age. Fifty thousand new victims are hit each year.

Basically, lupus is a disorder of the body's immune systems. Explains Dr. Peter Schur, professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School, "Antibodies normally protect us against viruses and bacteria. But in a lupus patient, the antibodies attack the body itself, rather than protect it from outside elements."

In the last 10 years, expanding knowledge has led to new treatments for lupus.

The disease has no known cause (though overexposure to sunlight, stress and drugs can trigger flare-ups), no cure and no predictable series of symptoms. For some victims, lupus begins as arthritic swelling or joint pain. Others develop a skin rash or hair loss. Many experience overwhelming fatigue or high fevers. And in its more severe form, lupus can attack the kidneys, lungs, blood vessels or brain. Ten percent of the cases are fatal.

The difficulty in diagnosing lupus adds to its reputation as an odd ailment. Not only is there a wide array of symptoms associated with lupus, but they mimic the warning signs of many other illnesses, including arthritis, diabetes and even mental disorders.

According to Dr. Schur, a typical patient recites a laundry list of symptoms, and then when the doctor is baffled, she seeks help from another — or several others. "The problem is that the physician often doesn't consider lupus," says Dr. Schur. "The trick is to educate doctors — and patients — to think of the disease as a possibility so they'll order the appropriate blood tests." Even then, such tests are unfortunately far from fool-proof.

Like other lupus patients, Henrietta Aladjem, author of Lupus: Hope Through Understanding, met with a variety of symptoms during the time her doctor attempted to come up with a proper diagnosis. Sudden exhaustion gave way to increasing weakness to collapse to phlebitis to life-threatening kidney disease, which is a frequent by-product of the illness.

"It was just one thing after another," says Aladjem, "almost as if the organs in my body were taking turns to show which could do more harm.

"But at least I had a doctor who wouldn't quit looking for the cause. Some patients begin to believe that the disease is in their minds." This feeling of "I must be crazy" is just one of many psychological pressures that a lupus patient must face.

"The struggle of getting a diagnosis may cause anger or frustration," points out Dr. Malcolm Rogers, assistant professor of psychiatry at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. Another hardship is "the obscurity of the disease, which makes it difficult to explain to friends what is wrong."

Patients must also contend with the changes in physical appearance: skin rashes and lesions. Female sufferers may have to reconsider their feelings about having children. Not only can pregnancy exacerbate the illness, but, says Dr. Rogers, "If a woman chooses to have a baby, she may not have the energy to provide initial care."

Still, there is hope. In the last 10 years, a rapidly expanding knowledge of the immune system has led to new treatments — for example, separating blood cells in order to remove the defective plasma that may be contributing to the disease. There are also therapies designed to suppress symptoms and lessen discomfort, such as the administering of aspirin-type drugs, or cortisone treatments for skin lesions and rashes. In addition, doctors have also found anti-malarial drugs very useful for treating those who have skin or drug-reaction problems. One of the more basic recommendations made by physicians is the use of sunscreens to help protect a person from ultraviolet light. And finally, for those with arthritis-like symptoms, they are prescribing anti-inflammatory agents.

In addition, doctors and researchers are learning more about the important role that genetics and nutrition play in triggering flare-ups of the disease.

Years ago lupus was automatically considered fatal. But with new knowledge and drug therapy, 90 percent of all patients will live 10 or more years after the onset of the disease.

THE NATIONAL HISTORICAL SOCIETY

CIVIL WAR CHESS SET

Richly detailed portrait sculptures of great American heroes —in solid pewter, solid brass and fine enamels.

An heirloom chess set to be enjoyed for generations.

Created by the world-famous craftsmen of The Franklin Mint.

THE NATIONAL HISTORICAL SOCIETY is dedicated to bringing the excitement and power of American history—as well as its significance—to people in every part of the land.

It is in keeping with this purpose that the Society is about to issue its own Civil War Chess Set. A dramatic tribute to the heroes of both North and South—and a work all the more intriguing because the playing pieces include richly detailed three-dimensional portrait sculptures of the great Generals of Union and Confederacy, captured for the ages in solid pewter, solid brass and fine enamels.

This extraordinary new chess set will be crafted to the highest standards of quality and historical authenticity—a masterpiece of precision and artistry. The National Historical Society has appointed The Franklin Mint to create the sculptures and prepare the set for issuance to subscribers. Each figure in the set will be a new and original design. Some will be shown standing, some seated, some kneeling, some mounted on horseback. And each figure will be painstakingly crafted of solid pewter, hand-finished, then set atop a solid brass pedestal base embellished with a circular band of richly colored enamel—blue for the soldiers of the North, gray for those of the South.

Every sculpture, moreover, will be so rich with authentic detail that only the artists and master craftsmen of The Franklin Mint, steeped as they are in the tradition of precision coinage, could have achieved it. Indeed, every nuance of facial expression, uniform and weaponry—right down to the buttons, braiding, sabers and carbines—will be depicted with uncompromising accuracy.

As a result, The National Historical Society Civil War Chess Set is also a magnificent col- lection. A triumphant achievement of portrait sculpture—and the ultimate in micro-detailed miniaturization.

A dramatic showpiece for your home or office

The chessmen themselves are scaled so that each one will suit the function assigned to it in the game of chess. And the handsomely crafted, pewter-finished playing board has been sized with equal care. Specially fitted, to also serve as the cover for the case which will house all 32 playing pieces, the board completes a presentation so attractive that the chess set will be played and displayed with pride and satisfaction. A Certificate of Authenticity, and specially written reference materials, will also be provided.

Exhibited on a table or cabinet in your living room, family room, den or office, this is a possession certain to evoke both admiration and respect from all who see it. A unique tribute to unique Americans. A work of heirloom quality, that will bring you endless pleasure through the years. And a chess set eminently worthy of being passed on from generation to generation.

The subscription rolls are now open. The work may be obtained only by direct subscription, with a limit of one set per subscriber.

The chessmen will be issued to you at the attractive price of $17.50 each, with the specially designed playing board and protective case provided at no additional charge. As a subscriber, you will receive two sculptured pieces every other month. You will, however, be billed for only one chessman at a time—a total of just $17.50 per month. In addition, you will be given the option to complete your Civil War Chess Set earlier, if you wish—but you will be under no obligation to do so.

Here, then, is a work that will bring lasting pleasure to chess enthusiasts, history buffs, collectors of military miniatures—to anyone who appreciates our nation's heritage. An unmistakably American chess set, that will make a dramatic addition to any room. And an exciting showpiece that will be displayed, enjoyed and treasured by each succeeding generation.

To acquire The National Historical Society Civil War Chess Set, no advance payment is required. But please note that the accompanying Subscription Application is dated and should be returned postmarked by February 29, 1984.

WOK'S NEW?

EXPRESS MEALS FROM THE ORIENT

By Marilyn Hansen

If you've already broken your Jan. 1 resolutions, here's your chance to try again. Chinese New Year falls on Feb. 2, the perfect time for resolving to make these stir-fry foods, suggested by Chinese-cooking expert Norman Weinstein in his recent book, 32 Wok Dishes. And what's more, these two delicious vegetable mixtures take just minutes to prepare.

STIR-FRIED BROCCOLI FLOWERETS

1 large bunch broccoli
1 knob ginger root, 2 inches long
2 cloves garlic
3 tablespoons oil

Sauce

3 tablespoons oyster sauce
2 tablespoons chicken broth
2 teaspoons dry sherry

1. Separate broccoli flowerets from the main stalk, leaving 1½ inches of stem. Trim tough outer skin from stem, then trim it to a point. Peel the ginger and cut into 6 to 8 thin slices across the grain. Peel and slice the garlic. Combine the sauce ingredients.

2. Heat a wok, add the oil and warm for 10 seconds. Add the ginger and garlic, stir for 10 seconds, then add the broccoli. Stir to coat thoroughly with oil, continuing until the color begins to change toward a darker green. Add the sauce down the side, stirring to coat. Cover the wok and cook for 1 minute. Remove to a platter and serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings

Variation: Add one or two scallions cut into 2-inch pieces along with the ginger and garlic.

QUICK-FRIED SPINACH WITH MUSHROOMS

12 to 16 fresh mushrooms
2 cloves garlic
2 tablespoons oil
¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste
Freshly ground black pepper

1. Rinse the spinach in the sink or a large bowl filled with cold water to remove sand. Pat or spin dry. Wipe mushrooms with a damp towel. Do not de-stem, but cut off stem ends; cut into ¼-inch slices to yield 2 cups. Peel and slice garlic.

2. Heat a wok, add the oil and heat 5 seconds, then add the garlic. Stir 10 seconds, then add the mushrooms and toss to coat with oil. Stir 10 seconds, then add the spinach. Press down with the spatula.

3. Stir constantly, bringing the contents from the bottom to the top, coating the spinach with hot oil. Cook until the spinach has wilted but is not yet soggy. Sprinkle with the salt and pepper to taste. Mix well, then remove to a platter and serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings

HOME SAFETY

THE FIRE NEXT TIME: HOW IT MIGHT HAPPEN

By Andrea Pawlyna

According to statistics from the Consumer Product Safety Commission (C.P.S.C.), an estimated 70 percent of the 5,600 Americans who die as a result of house fires each year succumb from inhalation of smoke and toxic gases — not from the flames.

"Very few people in domestic fires are burned to death," observes Dr. Walter G. Berl, a chemist who specializes in combustion and fire research at the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory in Laurel, Md. "The chemical content of the smoke is what causes most fatalities."

Many people probably do not realize that the ordinary furnishings they have in their homes — the chairs, tables, carpeting, curtains, etc. — produce a deadly feast of poisonous gases when they burn. The single most toxic element is carbon monoxide, the same colorless, odorless, tasteless gas that is emitted by a car's exhaust system.

Carbon monoxide gas is present in all fires, no matter what type of material is burning. A wooden coffee table, a sofa, a plastic toy all give off this gas as a primary toxicant. It causes death within minutes because it attaches itself to red blood cells in the body and prevents them from absorbing oxygen.

Although carbon monoxide is acknowledged to be a major killer, it is not the only gas produced by burning objects. Wool, silk, nylon and polyurethane, a plastic used in cushioning for sofas and mattresses, present special hazards when they catch fire. Because these materials contain nitrogen, they also give off hydrogen cyanide, which is used in gas-chamber executions.

Researchers have also found concentrations of heavy metals such as lead, zinc and antimony (which presumably come from paint and burned fixtures) in soot that gets deposited in the lungs of fire victims. The combined effect of these and other noncarbon monoxide products may be only a minor factor in immediate fire deaths, but according to a 1981 report by the National Bureau of Standards' Center for Fire Research, it may play a "substantial" role in the delayed fatalities that can occur days later.

In recent years, efforts have been underway to make household objects more fire resistant. The C.P.S.C., for instance, has set mandatory flammability standards for mattresses, carpets, clothing and children's sleepwear. The Upholstered Furniture Action Council in North Carolina, an industry trade group, is pursuing a voluntary program to encourage manufacturers to produce fire-resistant furniture.

If there is a fire, the safest escape is generally by crawling close to the floor, where there may still be some breathable air; gases tend to rise to the upper part of a room. It's essential for every household to devise an escape route, even to stage regular fire drills. FW

GETTING POLITICAL WITH

SENATOR ERNEST HOLLINGS

Third in a Series of Interviews with 1984's Presidential Candidates

Allan/Sygma

Ernest "Fritz" Hollings, 62, has sought to stake out the middle ground this Presidential primary season between what he calls "the Reagan extreme" and the left-liberal Big Government attitude that, he says, got his party in trouble with the voters in the first place. But whatever course he steers or race he runs, Hollings usually wins widespread praise for his intelligence, good humor and occasional willingness to take an unpopular stand or two. In his 17 years as Senator (and, before that, in his one term as South Carolina's Governor), on the whole he has projected a thoroughly moderate image — and one that today leaves the press corps somewhat underwhelmed by his campaign. Nonetheless, Hollings has kept his name in the news with a call to freeze all Federal spending at current levels and a fervent stump-speaking style second only to Jesse Jackson's, another candidate for the Presidency. Washington writer David J. Lynch interviewed the Senator for FAMILY WEEKLY recently.

Lynch: What do you see as the major concern of America's families?
Hollings: The main preoccupation of America's families, of course, is economics. It starts right with the breadwinner and the job. There's no question about that. We still have high unemployment, and the financial hardship caused by job loss can lead to serious problems for a family, such as divorce and alcoholism.

Q: Should sex education be taught in the public schools?
Hollings: Well, I'd leave it up to the local authorities. I agree with those who believe that it should be taught.

Q: What level of aid, if any, should the Federal Government provide for day-care centers?
Hollings: I advocate a nationwide day-care system which would cost around $9 billion. I'd rather have that money spent on day care than on a $40 billion B-1 bomber, which is obsolete. A day-care system would be far, far more helpful. You'd begin to save, in my opinion, in rehabilitation and penal costs and everything else of that kind.

Q: How about Federal assistance for abortion?
Hollings: I agree with the Supreme Court opinion that abortion is an individual decision. No woman should be denied the right to make that choice because she is economically deprived. I would provide Federal assistance. No person should be refused that treatment as a result of economic circumstance.

Q: Should the Federal Government provide for birth control?
Hollings: Birth control is a matter of personal decision. The Government hasn't anything to do with that.

Q: Do you approve of Federal Government legal intervention in cases where parents in effect decide not to prolong the life of a seriously deformed child, such as in the case of Baby Jane Doe?
Hollings: I don't think that's a Government decision; it's up to the individual.

Q: What is your reaction to the growing involvement of the Roman Catholic Church in national security issues, especially the nuclear freeze debate?
Hollings: I respect the Catholic faith and I think the duty of the Government to all religions is to leave them alone. When the bishops come out for a nuclear freeze, that is a matter of human survival which is not particularly connected to a religious faith, but rather to a belief in mankind.

Q: Are the children of working mothers as likely to receive good parenting as the children of non-working mothers?
Hollings: I would think the majority of the children of women who work outside of the home are getting perhaps even better nurturing than offspring of women who don't have jobs, because day-care centers offer expert teaching and make certain that children get a chance to play with their peers, learn the alphabet and do many other things they might not get to do at home. I think that most of the children of employed mothers are getting a lot out of going to day-care centers. On the other hand, this doesn't apply to all kids in that category, because hungry and poor parents can't afford to put their children in these centers. FW

High Blood Pressure Can Be Lowered WITHOUT Prescription Drugs!

(Atlanta, GA)—

FC & A, a nearby, Peachtree City, Georgia publisher, announced today the release of a new research report for the general public, How to Lower High Blood Pressure Without Prescription Drugs! It reveals a startling new discovery at a world famous medical center: the reversal of high blood pressure without prescription drugs! A discovery unknown to most people.

The Good Effects of Lowering High Blood Pressure

You or those you love may take prescription drugs to lower blood pressure, relieve pain, reduce fluid build up, regulate heartbeat or prevent strokes and heart attacks. All doctors know that reversing high blood pressure is a great health benefit. People have a much longer life expectancy if they don't have high blood pressure. They have far fewer health problems that cause tiredness, poor sleep, shortness of breath, headache or pain.

Dangerous Side Effects of High Blood Pressure Drugs

Unfortunately, high blood pressure drugs can cause miserable side effects like headaches, poor appetite, upset stomach, dry mouth, diarrhea, stuffy nose, tingling or numbness in the hands or feet, dizziness, cramps, depression, rashes, chills, fever, constipation, aching joints, difficult urination or low sex drive.

Now Blood Pressure Can Be Lowered Without Drugs

Recently, a university study has proven that most cases of high blood pressure can be lowered without drugs. 85.3% of patients with high blood pressure were able to quit taking drugs. Amazingly, their blood pressure remained lower than when they were on drugs. Cholesterol levels also dropped 26%. The doctor in charge said of this program, "You lose your tiredness. You feel much more active. You have a general feeling of well being."

How Did They Do It?

How did the hundreds of people in this study free themselves from the miserable side effects of drugs — drugs they thought they would have to take for the rest of their lives? Why are medical doctors saying that the findings are "very exciting" and that many patients have "a new lease on life."

These questions are all answered in a new research report, How to Lower High Blood Pressure Without Prescription Drugs!

Easy To Read

Facts about lowering blood pressure without drugs are listed in 10 easy-to-understand sections. You'll learn about the latest research in nutrition. How the presence or absence of 4 minerals and 4 other nutrients in your food and water can dramatically change your blood pressure. How poisons in the environment can make blood pressure skyrocket! How relaxation training can help. Why blood pressure medicine is overprescribed.

PEOPLE QUIZ

GIVING YOUR SMARTS THE TIME OF DAY

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Intelligence is the ability to retain a large number of facts.
2. You're smarter at certain times of the day.
3. Exercise not only strengthens your muscles, it also gets your mental faculties into good shape.
4. Daydreaming inhibits your creative abilities.
5. A high IQ can help you be the life of the party.
6. Analyzing a problem too long can interfere with your ability to solve it.
7. Creative thinkers have specific personality characteristics in common.

ANSWERS

1. False. In a recent study, Stanford University researchers defined intelligence as a "style of work," rather than a storehouse of knowledge. It involves, they said, the tendency to take and maintain a definite direction when working on a problem; the capacity to make adaptations to a desired end; and the power of self-criticism. The investigators emphasized that more intelligent performers prevent errors before they occur or catch them soon after they are made.
2. True. A person's ability to think, reason and absorb new information varies depending on the time of day, according to research done at the University of Nebraska and Texas A&M University. In the studies, some people scored best on IQ tests in the morning, others did better in the afternoon. The researchers suggest that people schedule their most critical work and important decision-making for the part of the day when their mental faculties seem to operate at top efficiency.
3. True. Research at Purdue University indicated that people who are involved in a regular exercise program make 60 percent fewer errors when dealing with complex situations. Although fitness can't increase the decision-making capacity a person is born with, it can optimize his ability to resolve problems. The researchers pointed out that most jobs today require sound decision-making skills at all levels. For example, the factory worker who used to operate machinery with his hands may now use a computer and be required to make several decisions within a short period of time.
4. False. Yale University researchers investigated the nature of daydreaming and noted "its constructive powers of releasing tension, making boredom tolerable and improving creativity." The findings indicated that people should not feel they are wasting their time by daydreaming, but should use it as a means of increasing their fantasy and imagery potential.
5. False. Studies conducted by a team of University of South Florida investigators showed that you can have a high IQ and still be inept where social competence is concerned. A person's ability to size up and adjust to a situation involving outside emotional and personality factors is unaffected by his IQ level, which, according to the researchers, measures only such abilities as reading, writing, comprehending mathematics, evaluating, analyzing and classifying information.
6. True. You can think too much when making decisions. Continuing to mull over the pros and cons of a project after a thoughtful decision has been made can seriously disrupt your ability to perform the task, according to behavioral scientists from Harvard University and the City University of New York.
7. True. University of California researchers assessed the temperaments of people who worked in a wide range of occupations and who scored high on creative-intelligence tests. Though their jobs differed considerably, the subjects did have several traits in common: They tended to be active, impulsive, sensitive, uninhibited and unconventional. FW

To Celebrate Our 10 Millionth Sale!

FAMOUS "MULTI-WRENCH"

(Fits every size nut and bolt)

ONLY $2 WITH THIS AD

This is NOT a Misprint.

This special offer is being made to celebrate the 10 millionth sale of the famous New York importing firm of Abernathy & Closther. It is open to every person who mails this original printed ad to the company address (below) before Midnight, February 28, 1984.

To celebrate its 10 millionth sale, the New York importing firm of Abernathy & Closther will distribute one million nationally advertised MULTI-WRENCHES for only $2 apiece to the first one million people who mail this printed ad to the company address before Midnight, Feb. 28, 1984.

NOTE: This original printed ad must accompany your request. Copies or photostats are not acceptable.

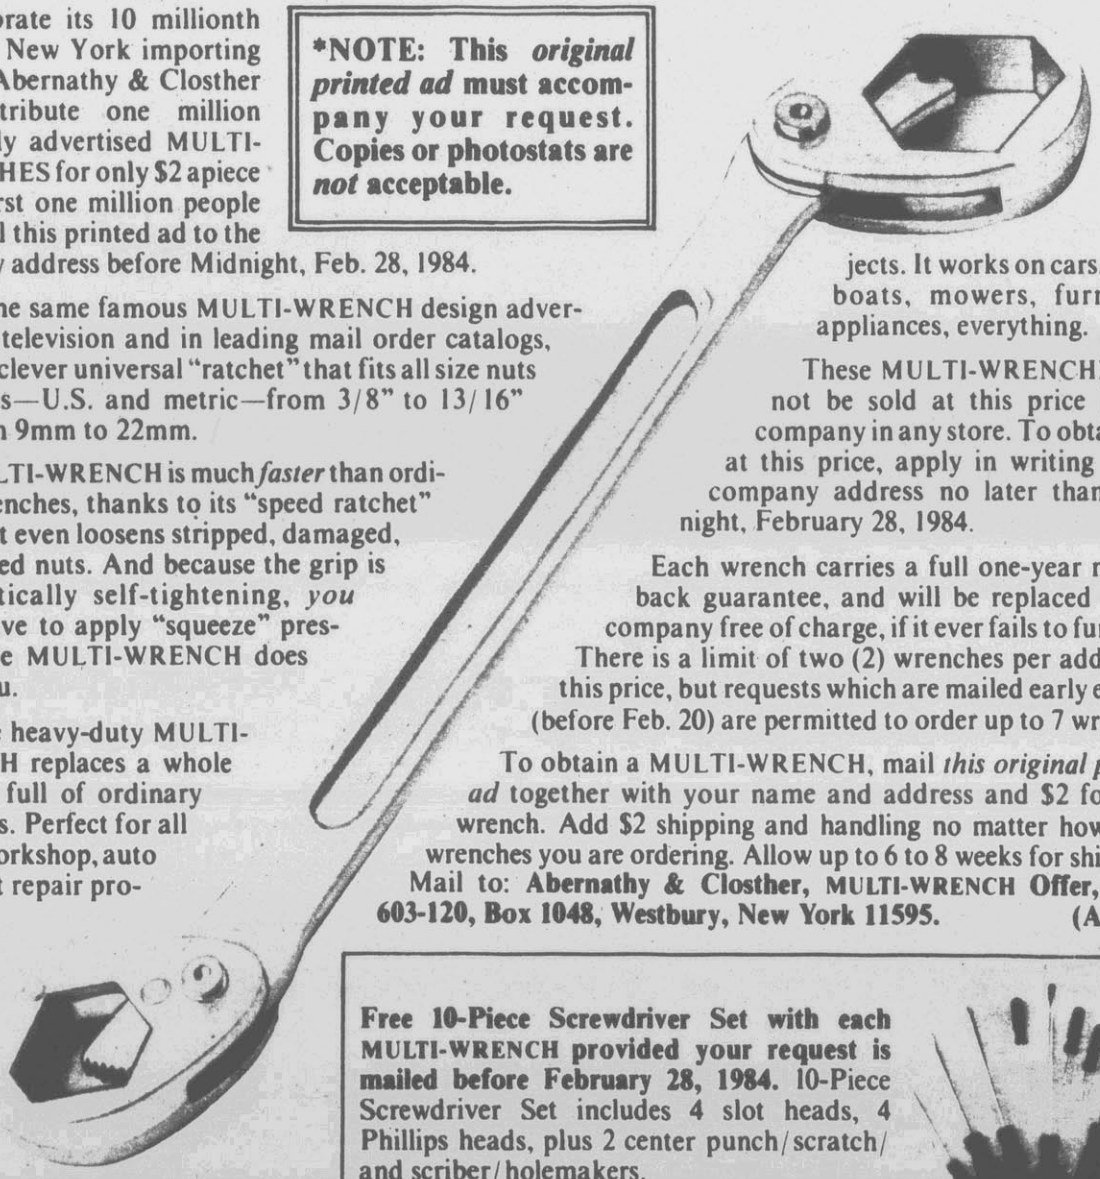
This is the same famous MULTI-WRENCH design advertised on television and in leading mail order catalogs, with the clever universal "ratchet" that fits all size nuts and bolts—U.S. and metric—from 3/8" to 13/16" and from 9mm to 22mm.

The MULTI-WRENCH is much faster than ordinary wrenches, thanks to its "speed ratchet" design. It even loosens stripped, damaged, and rusted nuts. And because the grip is automatically self-tightening, you don't have to apply "squeeze" pressure—the MULTI-WRENCH does it for you.

This one heavy-duty MULTI-WRENCH replaces a whole toolbox full of ordinary wrenches. Perfect for all home, workshop, auto and boat repair projects. It works on cars, bikes, boats, mowers, furniture, appliances, everything.



These MULTI-WRENCHES will not be sold at this price by the company in any store. To obtain one at this price, apply in writing to the company address no later than Midnight, February 28, 1984.

Each wrench carries a full one-year money-back guarantee, and will be replaced by the company free of charge, if it ever fails to function. There is a limit of two (2) wrenches per address at this price, but requests which are mailed early enough (before Feb. 20) are permitted to order up to 7 wrenches.

To obtain a MULTI-WRENCH, mail this original printed ad together with your name and address and $2 for each wrench. Add $2 shipping and handling no matter how many wrenches you are ordering. Allow up to 6 to 8 weeks for shipment. Mail to: Abernathy & Closther, MULTI-WRENCH Offer, Dept. 603-120, Box 1048, Westbury, New York 11595. (A23830)

Free 10-Piece Screwdriver Set with each MULTI-WRENCH provided your request is mailed before February 28, 1984. 10-Piece Screwdriver Set includes 4 slot heads, 4 Phillips heads, plus 2 center punch/scratch/and scriber/holemakers.

GETTING BRIEFED BY

BARBARA GELB

WHY POLICE OFFICERS SOMETIMES GET THE BLUES

Pat Redding

With all the books, movies and TV shows about cops, it would seem as if we'd have more than a clue of what it's like to be a man — or woman — in uniform. But even realistic shows like Hill Street Blues don't reveal the horrors, the violence and the personal turmoil police officers face. Veteran journalist Barbara Gelb decided to take a firsthand look at their world. She was permitted by the top chiefs of the New York City Police Department to spend 10 years sitting in on their meetings, riding in their cars, getting to know their families. The result is the recently published book Varnished Brass (G.P. Putnam's Sons), which Paramount TV plans to make into a miniseries. FAMILY WEEKLY Associate Editor Mary Ellin Bruns interviewed Gelb about her tour de force.

Bruns: What surprised you the most about police?

Gelb: They have a fantastic sense of humor. They are also hopeful. They arrest people who are out a couple of months later doing the identical crimes. Still, the police do not become cynical.

Q: What are the most prevalent myths concerning police?

Gelb: One is the belief that when a murder occurs, the cops go get some clues and half an hour later they've got the killer. In actuality, catching a felon takes weeks and months of the most boring kind of door-to-door investigation. People lie to the police, people are not at home, people don't care if the crime is solved. There is a lot of disillusionment in police work. It's a terribly tense, demanding job. It's not just the heroics that are portrayed in fictional accounts, there are many divorces, cases of alcoholism, nervous breakdowns and suicides.

Q: It's been reported that many police marriages are troubled. Is infidelity a problem?

Gelb: Well, yes, of course it is, because the hours police officers keep are so crazy. If they are doing night tours, for example, they don't want to go home to a house where the wife has gone to sleep. So they go out and drink in bars. If a girl comes along, they are susceptible.

Q: You've remarked that some police feel they might have ended up as hoodlums. Why is that?

Gelb: It's because they often come from the same underprivileged, socially disadvantaged backgrounds as many criminals. As a result, police usually have less sympathy than anybody else for crooks. They feel that if they could make themselves into straight people who are protecting society, rather than attacking it, then everybody should be able to do the same. On the other hand, this similarity of backgrounds is one of the reasons for police corruption: Because they do come from that world where temptation lurks, it's sometimes easier for them to succumb.

Q: What causes police brutality?

Gelb: As one of the chiefs whom I studied put it, when you deal with the sewage of the city, you are terribly tempted to take the law into your own hands. At times you just want to beat the living daylights out of someone you know is a rotten, horrible individual who has done something brutal or vicious, especially a rapist or a person who has hurt and mutilated a child. But there are also police who have unstable characters or sadistic natures and get into law-enforcement work because they want to have the chance to beat people up. Having a gun and a club makes them feel powerful.

Q: What effect do you think the growing number of female officers will have on policing?

Gelb: Women are terrific on the police force. Anyone who is not a total male chauvinist idiot thinks women are doing a fantastic job. They are very, very good in situations that require tact and patience without rushing in and being macho. I think they will probably make police departments more humane.

Q: What was your most important research finding?

Gelb: I learned that police officers are men and women who are dedicated to trying to serve society. We live in a very sophisticated and cynical world, and the fact that there are these people putting their lives and careers on the line every day is impressive. FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Marion Long

THE SUN WILL COME OUT

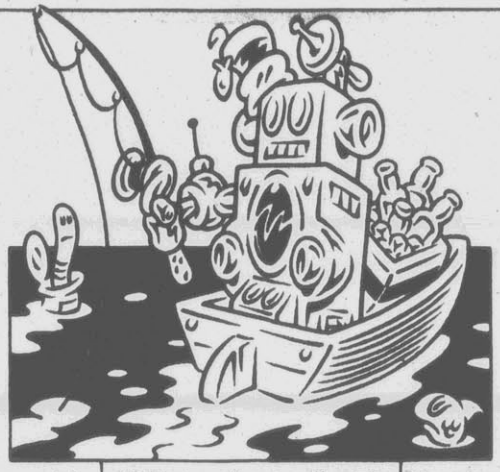
Shelley Bruce once lived the fantasy of countless little girls in America: From 1978-79 she played the title role in the Broadway smash musical Annie. With standing ovations nightly, her life was taking wing.

But two years later, Shelley learned she had leukemia, an often fatal disease that attacks the bone marrow.

"I didn't understand the illness and I tried to deny it," says Shelley, who is now 18. But slowly, with the love and encouragement of a dedicated hospital staff and her own close-knit family, she came to terms with the disease.

It required a different kind of performance, and Shelley handled it triumphantly. With her leukemia in remission, she's the author of the book Tomorrow Is Today (Bobbs-Merrill), which was published this month.

"I wrote the book to say to others who might be going through something similar: 'It's hard, but it is possible to pull through,'" says Shelley, whose optimism seems a lot like Annie's.



FISH AND CHIPS

It used to take reel talent for fishermen to bring in the big ones. The right bait, the right boat, the right brook. Now technology has wormed its way into the picture and is angling for a spot in the market.

Miyamae Corporation of Japan is about to offer a microprocessor-controlled, fully automatic rod and reel. The microprocessor chip will keep track of how much line has played out, adjust the drag resistance to match the pull of the fish and include an electric rewinder that automatically stops the reel when the fish is hoisted to the side of the boat. The whole gizmo will also give digital read-outs on the weight of the prospective catch. No more excuses about the one that got away.

ALL BOTTLED UP

Soon after light beer made its big splash, the nation's whisky distributors decided they didn't want to be barred from a good thing. But while a low-cal liquor makes sense, bureaucracy has turned the idea of light whisky to mash.

Under current regulations set by the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, distillers are free to sell spirits of almost any proof. But if the alcohol content is below a certain level, the bottle must be labeled "diluted." Now, calling a whisky "mild" sounds mellow; calling it "diluted" simply sounds weak.

Industry bigwigs, who refuse to take the matter lightly, are petitioning the U.S. Government to permit a label like "mild" or "low-strength." That would definitely cheer them up.

GAME RADIO

1. In the comic strip "Mutt and Jeff," what was Mutt's full name?

2. What is the oldest vegetable that is known to mankind?

These are just the sort of questions you'd hear on a TV game show like "Tic Tac Dough." Right? Try again. The carefully orchestrated blend of trivia and greed, once a staple of daytime television, is returning to the radio, bringing back memories of such shows as "Information Please" and "Quiz Kids."

Last month, WNIR, an all-talk station in Akron, Ohio, began broadcasting five hours of game programming a day. "Game Radio: America's Audio Arcade" differs from TV game shows, according to its originator Bill Klaus, because the competition is open to anyone who wants to pick up the phone and dial the D.J. Prizes ranging in value from $10 to $10,000 include cash, vacation trips, kitchen appliances, televisions and cars.

WNIR has 50 games — from fact and word challenges to chance encounters like Blackjack. And local response has been so keen that Klaus is preparing to sell his concept nationally. (Oh yes, the answers are: 1. Augustus P. Mutt 2. Peas.)

A LAST-GASP SOLUTION

The smog doesn't always come in on little cat feet in Los Angeles; sometimes, it seems to take up the lion's share of air — a prospect of considerable concern to athletes who will be lunging for the gold at this summer's Olympic Games.

Their problem will be ozone. When nitrogen oxide and hydrocarbon emissions (such as from cars) undergo a photochemical reaction with sunlight, the result can be breathtaking. In three lab studies, cyclists and runners experienced breathing difficulties at ozone levels of 0.2 parts per million. This is the level of a Class 1 smog alert, an infrequent but not uncommon condition in L.A.

The solution: Athletes competing in high-endurance events like track and field won't have to perform in heavy smog, which is reason enough to (high) jump for joy.

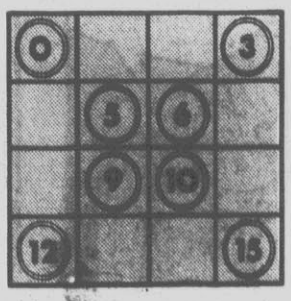
- Bank Note! Jimmy's piggy bank contains three times as many quarters as dimes, eight times as many dollars as dimes and nine times as many pennies as his one dime. How much is in the bank?

Eight dollars and ninety-four cents.

- Word Play! This takes initiative. With how many toothpicks — without breaking or bending any — can you form the word INITIATIVE? Give it a try.

It can be formed in any letters with twenty toothpicks.



PUZZLE OUT NUMBERS!

Eight numbers between 0 and 15 are in place above. How long will it take you to insert the eight remaining numbers — 1, 2, 4, 7, 8, 11, 13, 14 — in the vacant squares so that the four vertical and four horizontal rows and the two diagonals each total 30?

Remember, eight numbers are already in place.

One way to tackle the problem is to paste numbers to buttons and move them around in open squares.

Sol.: Top row: 0, 14, 13, 3
Next row: 11, 5, 6, 8. Next: 7, 9
10, 4. Bottom: 12, 2, 1, 15.

INSIDE STUFF! Connect dots to observe the long and the short of a curious magic trick in progress above.

Prince Valiant

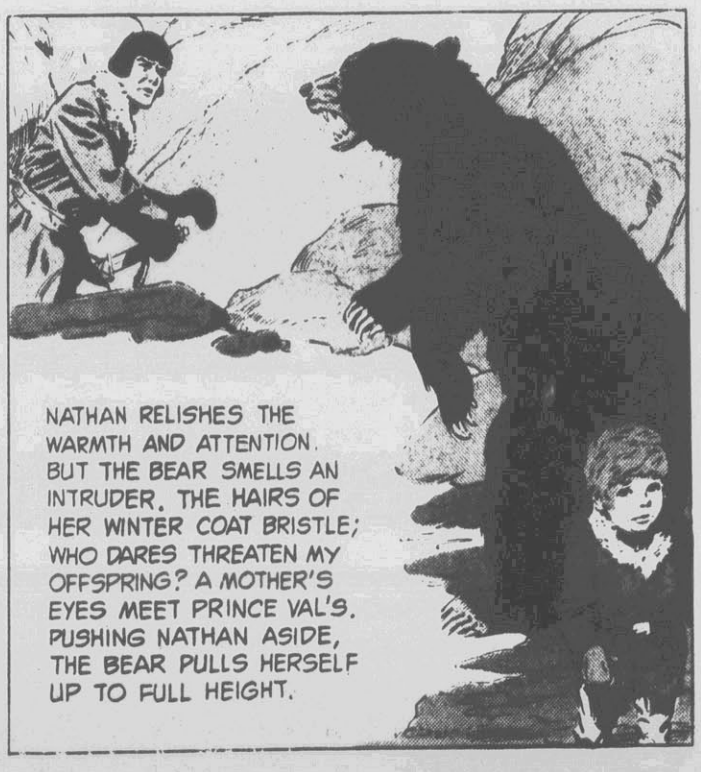
CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: THROUGH A SMALL CREVICE YOUNG NATHAN HAS CRAWLED INSIDE A BEAR CAVE. VAL SCOURS THE HILLSIDE, SEARCHING FRANTICALLY FOR A LARGER OPENING. UNDER THE SNOW, TREACHEROUS GULFS SEAR THE HILLSIDE LIKE THE THIN WHITE VALLEYS TWIXT THE VEINS OF AN OLD MAN'S HAND. MORE THAN ONCE VAL FALLS VICTIM.

THE 'SINGING SWORD' SPARES TWO SAPLINGS THE TRIAL OF OLD AGE. STRAPPED TO HIS FEET, THEY HELP BRIDGE ONE GAP AFTER ANOTHER.

FINALLY A HOLE IN THE ROCK APPEARS. VAL EASES INSIDE. AT THE SIGHT OF NATHAN HE SWALLOWS HARD TO GET HIS HEART BACK DOWN HIS THROAT. FOR THE SHE-BEAR HAS BEEN AWAKENED FROM WINTER'S SLEEP. MISLED BY NATHAN'S BEARSKIN COAT, SHE TREATS HIM LIKE A CUB.



NATHAN RELISHES THE WARMTH AND ATTENTION. BUT THE BEAR SMELLS AN INTRUDER. THE HAIRS OF HER WINTER COAT BRISTLE; WHO DARES THREATEN MY OFFSPRING? A MOTHER'S EYES MEET PRINCE VAL'S. PUSHING NATHAN ASIDE, THE BEAR PULLS HERSELF UP TO FULL HEIGHT.

A SHOWDOWN LOOMS, BUT NATHAN WILL NOT SEE IT. "DA!" HE SAYS IN FAREWELL. HE CREEPS OUT OF THE CAVE THE WAY HE CAME IN. ONCE MORE NATHAN IS ON THE LOOSE.

PRINCE VALIANT DRAWS THE 'SINGING SWORD' BUT THEN RETURNS IT TO ITS SCABBARD. "YOU WERE MERELY PROTECTING YOUR 'YOUNG,'" HE THINKS. "I WILL SPARE YOU IF I CAN." HE REMEMBERS THAT BEARS WITH THEIR LONG HIND LEGS CANNOT RUN DOWNHILL. THE CAVE MOUTH IS BEHIND HIM AND QUICKLY HE IS THROUGH. MOMENTS LATER HE HAS NATHAN UNDER HIS ARM. NEXT WEEK: Mountain Man
