Beirut's Militia Flood Streets, Press For Kill

By TERRY A. ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem militiamen poured through the heart of Beirut today in running battles with the Lebanese army, and the government appeared to have lost control of much of the city's western half.

A top Moslem leader claimed that U.S.-backed Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, whose Cabinet resigned Sunday, was searching for a new president.

"The battle is about to end, the Lebanon's little shah (Gemayel) is on the verge of collapse!" the Moslem leader, Nabih Berri of the Shiite militia Amal, declared in a radio broadcast.

His claim that the Maronite Christian president would soon resign could not be immediately confirmed.

Later, the army command announced a cease-fire at 4 p.m. (9 a.m. EST) "at the request of political and religious leaderships and an Amal representative.... A committee of officers will be put in charge of overseeing the cease-fire."

But the sound of artillery blasts continued to shake the city past the truce deadline.

The heavy fighting had engulfed several neighborhoods of Moslem west Beirut as Amal militiamen and fighters of the leftist Druse movement took command of the streets, which echoed with artillery, rocket and mortar fire. Government troops holed up in isolated strongpoints or pulled back into the city's Christian eastern sector.

It was the first time in weeks that gunfire had cracked through west Beirut neighborhoods. Civilians dashed toward their homes or into nearby buildings for cover, or sounded their car horns in panic as they tried to drive through jammed intersections.

The U.S. Marine contingent in Beirut apparently was not going to the aid of the embattled Lebanese army. There was no direct word from the Marine headquarters at Beirut International Airport, as telephone exchanges quickly began breaking down, but people fleeing to the city center from the southern suburbs said the Marines were not believed involved in the fighting. The airport was closed.

Earlier, Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks said the Lebanese antagonists were battling around the base.

"There are rounds going off around us, and some going over our heads.... We are staying very close to our bunkers," Brooks said.

But a soldier reached at the headquarters of the French contingent of the multinational peacekeeping force in mid-city said French troops were involved in a firefight. Shells could be heard crashing around the post.

The Lebanese army announced a total curfew on both Moslem and Christian sectors and said anyone seen on the streets would be shot.

There were no reports of casualties in today's fighting, but more than 70 people have been killed and 250 wounded since the new surge in fighting started last Thursday.

The resignation of the Lebanese Cabinet on Sunday deepened the political crisis. Gemayel accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan and his eight-member Cabinet and said he might he might scrap the May 17 troop withdrawal agreement with Israel — a key demand of Gemayel's opponents.

He said the failure of the U.S.-sponsored agreement with Israel, which envisioned the withdrawal of both Israeli and Syrian troops from Lebanon, "has put us in an embarrassing impasse."

Wazzan, a Sunni Moslem, said he and the eight other ministers were stepping down in hopes that a coalition government could be formed to help end the civil war.

Gemayel said he was inviting the warring Moslem and Christian factions to Geneva, Switzerland, for reconciliation talks Feb. 27.

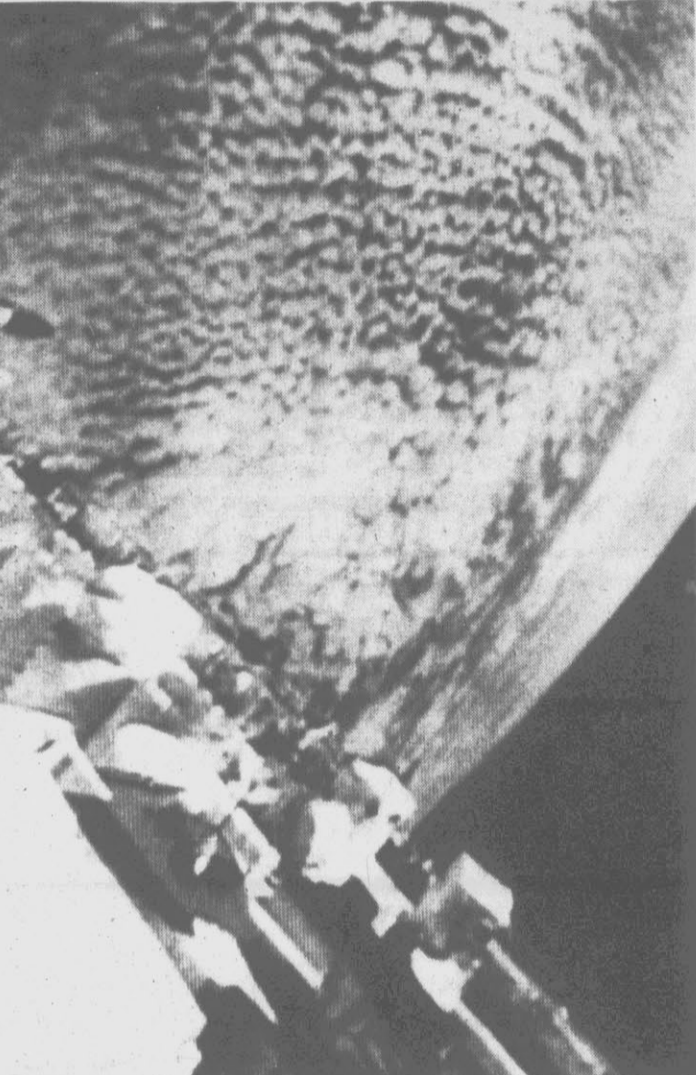

The president said he had a plan for reforms that would guarantee equal rights and power-sharing among Lebanon's various communities.

Sources in Beirut said today the Syrian government had invited five Sunni politicians, including three ex-premiers, to Damascus for talks on the Lebanese situation and that this delayed the designation of a new prime minister.

But later today Amal leader Berri for the first time joined Druse leftist chief Walid Jumblatt in demanding that Gemayel himself resign the nation's top post.

"Amin Gemayel is holding consultations to find a new president," Berri told The Associated Press in a brief telephone interview.

In a statement broadcast later over leftist radio stations, Berri accused the Gemayel government of trying to move army units influenced by the Christian Phalangist right-wing militia from Christian areas north of Beirut into the capital's Moslem sector.

Another Satellite Is Put In Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts dispatched an Indonesia communications satellite into space from the shuttle's cargo bay today, hoping it won't meet the same fate as Westar VI, which has been found alive and healthy — but totally useless.

"The payload has been deployed," reported Mission Control, monitoring the exercise on the ground.

Under the guidance of mission specialists Ronald McNair and Robert Stewart, the 7,300-pound Palapa B2 satellite was spun up to 50 rpm on a turntable. At 10:13 a.m. EST, six latches released and springs pushed the twirling package away from the shuttle.

It was nail-biting time for the astronauts, Mission Control, the Indonesians and the companies that hold the $100 million insurance on Palapa.

Forty-five minutes later, a rocket was to ignite to propel the satellite toward a stationary outpost 22,300 miles above the Earth. It was at this point last Friday that trouble hit Westar VI and its rocket shattered after the payload was ejected by the astronauts.

Commander Vance Brand and pilot Robert Gibson maneuvered Challenger to a safe eight miles away to avoid possible damage to the ship from the rocket firing. The fifth crewman, Bruce McCandless, monitored the operation.

McNair positioned the shuttle's 50-foot robot arm so a television camera on the end could capture the firing, with the pictures to be relayed to Earth later.

2 Segments

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Board of Transportation Friday will consider contracts for construction of two more segments on the four-lane U.S. 264 between Wilson and Greenville.

The contracts to be considered include proposals for grading, drainage, paving, culvert and structure work on a 3.56 mile section of the new highway, from west of SR 1210 to west of SR 1204 west of Greenville, and for 4.57 miles from the Wilson-Greene County line to U.S. 264 and U.S. 264A at Farmville.

Construction has already begun on four other sections of the highway.

If bids are approved by the Board of Transportation this week, only three other segments of the road — 3.91 miles from the Farmville East Thoroughfare to west of SR 1210 in Pitt County, 2.22 miles from N.C. 58 and U.S. 264 to the proposed U.S. 264 east of Wilson in Wilson County, and the 6.65 miles Farmville Bypass (from east of SR 1311 to east of N.C. 121 north of Farmville) — will be left for consideration.

Present plans call for bids on the 3.91 mile section east of the Farmville East Thoroughfare to be received in April, with bids on the 2.22 miles at N.C. 58 in Wilson to be considered in mid-1985.

Construction of the Farmville bypass is scheduled for fiscal year 1992.

Hunt Files Today For Senate Seat

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt formally filed today to oppose Sen. Jesse Helms' re-election bid, saying the signing was "a pledge by Jim Hunt to get more things done for North Carolina in the U.S. Senate."

Hunt and a dozen supporters fought the snow to reach the state Board of Elections and paid his filing fee just hours before the noon deadline.

Hunt, a Democrat, repeated some of the themes he spoke of at his announcement speech on Saturday, including jobs, protecting family farms, improving education, protecting the elderly and saving the environment. He said he'll begin issuing major position papers on six or eight vital issues later this month.

Helms, a Republican, already has paid his filing fee as have Democrat Harrill L. Jones of Gastonia, a real estate agent, and Republican George Wimbus of Charlotte, a businessman.

The primary will be May 8.

While never mentioning Helms by name, Hunt and his top campaign staffers talked Saturday about the need to have a senator the world would respect, who would bring people together instead of dividing them and who would serve North Carolinians instead of a national constituency — all obvious references to Helms.

Former Congressman L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro said Hunt could "do more for North Carolina by gaining the respect of his colleagues" in the Senate.

Wintry Wave

If you weren't out of bed and bright-eyed by 8 a.m. today you missed the start of the first snow of 1984.

Flurries of the white stuff mixed with frozen precipitation dusted Pitt County during the breakfast and get-to work hours and in Greenville flurries continued throughout the morning.

Department of Transportation officials said this morning there were some isolated icy spots on the roads but that they had received no reports of extremely hazardous conditions in the county. In Greenville the Public Works Department reported similar conditions.

According to Greenville Utilities' water plant, one-tenth inch of precipitation fell in Greenville early today. By 10 a.m. the mercury reached only 36 degrees Fahrenheit and the temperature remained in the 30's throughout the day.

Lows tonight may drop into the teens, says the National Weather Service, and highs Tuesday will likely not top the freezing mark.

Brown Files For Her Third Term

Mrs. Lena B. Brown, incumbent member of the Greenville Board of Education, filed today as a candidate for re-election to her third term on the city board.

Mrs. Brown, who filed with the Pitt County Board of Elections, is currently in her sixth year on the school board. First elected to a two-year term in 1978, she was re-elected to a four-year tenure in 1980.

A Greenville native, she attended local schools and received her undergraduate degree from Howard University in Washington, D.C. She received her master's degree from Teacher's College, Columbia University in New York, and has done graduate work at Western Reserve University, North Carolina A & T State University, and East Carolina University.

Mrs. Brown taught fourth grade in Greenville city schools for 11 years. She was the first principal of South Greenville Elementary School and

CAMP RAINBOW

Funds are needed to send about 60 children to Camp Rainbow, a special camp for children with cancer and their siblings to be held at Camp Don-Lee near Arapahoe June 13-15. A fund-raising effort by a committee composed of friends of the potential campers is underway. The East Carolina University Department of Pediatrics and Pitt County Memorial Hospital Department of Therapeutic Recreation are sponsoring the camp for children between the ages of 7 and 18 who live east of I-95. Children served by medical centers other than ECU are welcome to attend. Activities will include horseback riding, swimming, swim lessons, sailing, dance, arts and crafts, theatre arts, singing and camp fires. The cost is $120 per child and persons planning the event are trying to fund every child that qualifies and wishes to attend, regardless of the financial situation of his family. Cancer in children is, of course, expensive to treat and most of the affected families need the assistance.

Any individual, church or civic organization interested in sponsoring a child is asked to contact Susan Hill, ECU Department of Pediatrics, 757-4676.

A slide show is available and someone interested in the project will be glad to show it for any organization which might consider this as a project. Call Ms. Hill, 757-4676.

Smith Files For School Bd. Seat

Incumbent school board member Jerry Smith has filed for election to the Greenville City School Board of Education. Smith, originally an appointee by the Greenville City Council, has served on the board for five years.

A native of Gilbert, S. C., Smith has lived in Greenville for the past 14 years. He is a vice-president and regional retail banking manager at Wachovia Bank.

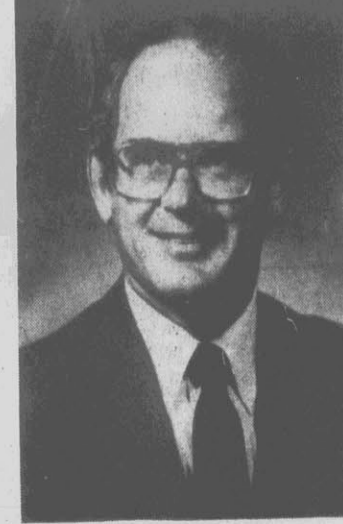

He has been active in community work in Greenville, including president of two Babe Ruth League teams, past president of the Greenville-Martinsborough Lions, and past president of PTA groups in the city schools.

Smith has one child in the Greenville schools, and two who are graduates of Rose High. An avid racquet ball and tennis player, he is a member of St. James United Methodist Church.

"The Greenville City School system is at an important crossroads," Smith commented. "The question of merger must be acted upon, not sat upon, because the quality of education for our children rests upon resolution of that issue."

"For the past five years I've been a member of the city board, the past two years as vice-chairman, and have had a voice in setting goals and

Children Rarely Lie About Sexual Abuse

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The recent ABC television special, "Something About Amelia," caused hundreds of people to come forward and admit that they are — or had been — victims of child sexual abuse.

I am enclosing a column you wrote several years ago. I think it should be printed on the front page of every newspaper in the country.

Please run it again. The message it contains cannot be repeated often enough.

SACRAMENTO SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR SOCIAL WORKER: The column you sent was published in July 1982. Many other professionals dedicated to halting child abuse requested permission to reprint it. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I am a psychiatrist who works closely with a child development specialist. As an example of the power for good that your column has, we want to share this story:

Two years ago, a teacher in a nearby town gave her class an assignment to bring in a news item for class discussion. Expecting current events and human interest stories, the teacher was surprised when a quiet 12-year-old approached her desk with a clipping from your column about a girl who was being sexually abused (raped), and said, "This is happening to me."

The teacher and the school's guidance person obtained our help in providing supportive counseling during the difficult process in which the child was placed in foster care because her mother "stood by" her husband (the child's stepfather) and called her daughter a "lying bitch."

You have many young readers. We urge you to encourage children to seek help from their school guidance people, doctors or community health center if they are being involved sexually by adults. You may use our names or sign us ...

CONCERNED PROFESSIONALS

DEAR CONCERNED: The importance of your message cannot be overstated. Whenever I publish a letter from someone who has been sexually abused as a child, I am inundated with letters from readers saying that this has happened to them. (Many confide that they had lived with that ugly secret for as long as 40 and 50 years — too ashamed to tell anybody.)

It is the responsibility of adults to teach children (3- and 4-year-olds are not too young to understand) that it is not OK for ANYONE to touch their private parts, and if someone does, the child should tell a trusted adult immediately. Stress that even if the person who has made these advances has threatened to "kill" her (or him — little boys are molested, too), the child must tell anyway and be assured she (or he) will be protected.

Some facts: Today in many communities there is a 1-in-4 chance that a child will be the victim of incest, child molestation or rape by the time he or she reaches 18 years of age. Statistics tell us that 80 percent of the offenders had themselves been physically or sexually abused as children.

Children seldom lie about sexual abuse.

Child molesters are rarely strangers. They are usually related to or living near the child and are known and trusted by the child.

A child needs to tell a trusted adult if he or she has been molested; if not believed, the child should tell another adult, and still another adult until believed.

A child needs to be reassured that if he or she has been molested, the shame and blame belong to the adult — the child is the victim!

P.S. To report suspected child abuse, dial this toll-free number:

(800) 422-4453.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Briley, her only surviving daughter of seven children. She has nine grandchildren, 20 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Critics Say Novel Has 'No Driving Force'

LONDON (AP) — William Golding's first novel since he won the Nobel Prize for Literature last year was panned by London critics on the eve of its publication today.

"The Paper Men," a novel about a prize-winning novelist, was called "banal" in the Sunday Observer, lacking any "driving force" in the Sunday Telegraph and "embarrassingly slipshod" in the Sunday Express.

Only one of four reviewers who reported on the book had words of praise for it.

Anthony Curtis in the Financial Times, said it showed "skill, unexpectedness, economy and sustained tension."

Golding, the 72-year-old author of "Lord of the Flies," was the first British novelist to win the Nobel Prize for Literature since John Galsworthy in 1932, although other Britons had won it since then for history, philosophy and poetry.

The award last October led immediately to controversy when Swedish writer Artur Lundkvist, a member of the Swedish Academy that elected Golding, opined that the winner was of "no importance whatsoever" internationally.

When asked about that remark, Golding said there is a bound to be a "dissenting minority" in any democratic vote.

Golding's new, 12th novel, is the story of novelist Wilfred Barclay, an embittered alcoholic and an aging lecher who is fleeing his reputation as a literary giant — and from a young American academic, Rick L. Tucker, who wants to be Barclay's biographer.

Express critic Graham Lord said the novel is full of "unpleasant bores, the plot creaky and the style rambling."

Lord said the story is "startling in its implications" because it "suggests that a lionized, prize-winning novelist like Golding himself may in fact be a sour, cynical old fraud, bored with his shoddy writing and interested mainly in the money."

The critic said the novel "attacks as pseudo-intellectual the very academics who tend to be on committees that award literary prizes like the Nobel, which brought Golding a 128,000-pounds (then worth $192,000) bonanza."

Janice Elliott in the Sunday Telegraph said that Golding's latest hero, a novelist "persecuted by the hordes set upon academically devouring him," is a "hollow creation" compared to the "masterpiece" he published in 1980, "Rites of Passage," which won the British Booker Prize for fiction.

Miss Elliott said that in "Rites" and his other novels, Golding displayed power of vision and drew his readers "in and away on an irresistible journey. Here, alas, there seems to be no driving force ... He must and surely will recover his true, commanding voice.

"Maybe just for the moment he, like Barclay — the hero of his latest novel — has had too much fuss made about his place in the Great Pageant of English Literature."

Acclaimed novelist Anthony Burgess, author of "A Clockwork Orange," wrote in his Observer review that "when a piece of fiction is banal," critics need to take a second and even a third look if its author is "distinguished and universally honored," to see if the "banality is a code or a new mode of profundity or elegance we are too stupid to perceive."

But Burgess concluded that in "The Paper Men" he found nothing like that.

Knit an all-occasion sweater with a tweedy diamond design and a butterfly pattern stitch on the collar, cuffs and lower band. The butterfly stitch is optional and may be replaced with a simpler stitch for a more tailored look.

The stitch gauge is 5 stitches per inch using four strands of Miracle Thin Yarn, giving you an exceptionally light-weight, but warm, sweater with that gauge. Standard 4-ply knitting worsted-weight yarn may be substituted, but will result in a heavier sweater. Easy-to-follow directions are written for small (31 1/2 inches), medium (35 1/2 inches), large (39 1/2 inches) and extra large (43 1/2 inches) sizes. The figures in parentheses indicate the finished measurement at the chest.

To obtain directions for making the Diamond Design Pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-0205 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. K-0205 by sending a check or money order for $20 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and Flere Troder Miracle Thin Yarn sufficient for all sizes. Please specify your choice of ecru with brown, blue, purple, spring green, teal or watermelon.

If someone were to ask me what I considered the very easiest maneuver in knitting, I would quickly answer a "slip stitch." To slip a stitch is to simply pass it from one needle to the other without doing anything else to it.

And yet, surprisingly, some of the most unexpected and unusual effects in pattern stitchery can be achieved with the use of this simple stitch. Unfortunately, many people pass over this type of stitch because it appears too difficult or advanced at first glance. In reality, even the inexperienced knitter can easily master the slip stitch.

As an example, here is a four-color fancy pattern that will appear as though you are constantly changing color across every row when you are actually working with a single color on any given row. The resulting pattern is so complex in appearance that it is almost magical to see how simple it is to work.

In the following directions, repeat the steps given in parentheses over and over until you are given instructions on how to work the ending stitch or stitches on that row. On all even-numbered rows, hold the yarn in the back of your work when slipping a stitch; on all odd-numbered rows that are the wrong-side rows, hold the yarn in the front.

Slip a stitch by inserting the tip of the right-hand needle into the first stitch on the left-hand needle as if you were to purl it, but just pass it to the right needle.

To test the four-color pattern, cast on 23 stitches (or any multiple of 4 plus 3) with Color A. Row 1: With A, knit 1, then purl to the last stitch, knit 1. Row 2: With Color B, knit 2 (slip 1, knit 1), end with knit 1. Row 3: With Color B, knit 1, purl 1 (slip 1, purl 1), end with knit 1.

Row 4: With Color C, knit 1 (slip 1, knit 1). Row 5: With C, knit 1, then purl to the last stitch, knit 1. Row 6: With Color D, knit 1 (slip 1, knit 3), end with slip 1, knit 1. Row 7: With Color D, knit 1 (slip 1, purl 3), end with slip 1, knit 1. Row 8: With Color B, knit 2 (slip 3, knit 1), end with knit 1. Row 9: With Color B, knit 1, purl 2 (slip 1, purl 3), end with slip 1, purl 2, knit 1. Row 10: With Color A, repeat Row 6.

Repeat these 10 rows over and over in sequence for a delightful surprise. It is perhaps most effective when used with four blending shades, but use any combination that appeals to you — vivid contrasts may give dramatic results.

Just take it one row at a time and I think you will be pleasantly surprised at how well you do. If you have trouble keeping track of rows, print each on a separate index card and paper clip them together. When you finish one row, move the card for that row to the bottom of the stack.

("Pat's Pointers: The Needlepoint Handbook" by Pat Trexler guides the needleworker from the beginner basics through more detailed instructions and projects. ## Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Cole Slaw (also called Cold Slaw) is an old-time American cabbage salad or side dish that through the years has undergone changes.

Before the turn of the century, cole slaw was often dressed with an uncooked mixture of sweet cream, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper. Or it was made with a cooked dressing that called for butter, flour, milk or cream, eggs, vinegar, mustard, sugar, salt and pepper.

Nowadays, cole slaw is likely to be made with mayonnaise. I suspect this change came about because New York City delis started dressing shredded cabbage with mayonnaise thinned with milk and vinegar and adding lots of sugar. Residents of the city and visitors to it became accustomed to having this sort of slaw with corned beef sandwiches and frankfurters.

But slaw made with mayonnaise may be flavored a different way. My chief tester tells me that her mother, who was born in Pennsylvania and lived there all her life, never dreamed of making it without adding celery seed. And a friend who lives on Long Island, N.Y., says "her" deli puts celery seed in their mayonnaise slaw and that a larger hamburger chain does the same thing.

Here then is a recipe for Celery Seed Deli Slaw that I like to serve with frankfurters.

CELERY SEED DELI SLAW
1 1/2-pound head green cabbage minus large outer leaves
1/2 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
3/4 teaspoon celery seed
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 and 1/16 teaspoon pepper

Cut cabbage in half. With a sharp knife shave into very thin shreds; when you reach the white fibrous parts near the core, stop cutting. (The white fibrous parts may be cut away from the core and used in a soup or other dish.) Shred the remaining half of the cabbage the same way. There should be 4 tightly packed cups.

In a medium bowl whisk together the mayonnaise, sugar, vinegar, celery seed, salt and pepper. Add cabbage and stir together well. Cover tightly and refrigerate for 12 to 24 hours before serving to blend flavors and have dressing creamy. Cabbage will not be crisp.

Recipe may be doubled. Makes four 1/2 cup servings.

CREDITS FOR CHINA?

TOKYO (AP) — Japan is considering providing China with $1.7 billion in yen credits for a hydroelectric plant, railway, port and telecommunications projects, the newspaper Nihon Keizai says.

Americans consume the equivalent of 840 million 14-ounce bottles of ketchup a year. Del Monte Corp., a maker of ketchup, says this is four bottles annually for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.

SERVICES COVERED BY DENTAL INSURANCE

Today, some 70 million (3 out of every 10 Americans) are covered by some form of dental insurance and estimates are that coverage could increase to 95 million within five years. Individual companies and labor unions are responsible for most of this increase. If you have dental insurance, you may wonder what dental services are covered. Although all plans are not the same, most cover a wide range of services for both the employee and his family.

These services generally include examinations, x-rays, professional cleaning, fillings, crowns and other restorations, root canal treatment, extractions, other oral surgery, and periodontal treatment (for diseases of gums and bone supporting the teeth). Additionally, some plans cover dentures, fixed and removable bridges, and orthodontic care.

Dental insurance programs do not usually cover hospitalization costs involved in dental treatment. However, hospital care may be covered by your medical insurance. Also, nearly every program excludes the cost of dental treatment provided for purely cosmetic reasons.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the offices of Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A., Evans St., Phone: 752-5126. Greenville 752-5126. Vanceboro 244-1179

Mavretic Tackles Tax Picture

How Effective

The R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has introduced a new line of advertising that is causing a lot of people to sit up and take notice. They're looking, at least, because of the different nature of the ads.

The multimillion-dollar campaign encourages smokers to be courteous to others and discourages smoking by the young. The ads make no claim about whether smoking is good or bad for the smoker's health, but repeats the often-stated line that "the controversy" over smoking and health continues.

We tend to agree with Joseph Adelson, a child psychologist at the University of Michigan who evaluated the ads for Reynolds. Adelson questioned whether the ads would reach younger Americans: "They're so inundated with communication that it's probably going to be difficult to have any mass effect."

The question still will remain. Should I smoke, or not smoke? The ads won't have much effect on that even if they are read.

Backup Power

Duke Power Co. has joined other utilities in experimenting with battery power.

Duke is using batteries to provide electricity for its corporate headquarters. The idea is to store electricity generated at low cost during slow periods and drawing on the batteries at hours of peak loads when generation of electricity is so costly.

The system is not yet developed for practical use, but it is a goal that every electric company would like to reach in order to lower cost. The problem has been the development of batteries which are cost effective.

Such systems would have the added advantage of providing backup power for any building in the event of power failure.

Off-peak storage of electricity is a dream worth pursuing and no doubt the work will continue until an efficient system is developed. It can be important in holding down cost of electricity in the future.

RALEIGH — Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, is a legislator who sees the "big picture" of issues.

Prior to the 1983 session, Mavretic was one of the leading players in a study committee's efforts to reorganize the public schools. Early in the 1983 session, he proposed sweeping changes in the way hazardous wastes are handled in the state.

With both issues, Mavretic saw a bushful of problems that could be served best by going back to the starting gate and initiating a comprehensive reform.

It came as no surprise, then, when the Revenue Laws Study Committee began considering repeal of the state's intangibles and inventory taxes that Mavretic would propose a restructuring of the tax system. Simply repealing these two taxes won't do, Mavretic said. North Carolina must bring its tax structure into line with the changing economy of the post-industrial age.

"Our tax system must be contemporary," Mavretic told the committee. "We can't be taxing horsecars in an age of tandem trailers."

In discussions of repeal of the two taxes, legislators have conceded that they must find an alternate source of revenue. Most likely, an increase in the sales, personal or corporate income, or business taxes would be used. But Mavretic said that such a move would be foolish. Repeal of the two taxes is designed to improve the state's competitive position in the battle to recruit new industry. But if other taxes are raised to make up for the loss of these two taxes, North Carolina will simply become more competitive in the areas where taxes are raised.

Mavretic's solution is to write a tax structure which revolved around a services economy rather than a manufacturing economy. "Nationally, about 50 percent of all sales are in information and services," he said. Yet, in North Carolina, there is uneven taxation of information and services.

"If I go to the dry cleaner and get my shirts cleaned, I pay a tax. But, if I drive down the street and get my car cleaned, I don't," he said in an interview. "We should be taxing more services."

Three states have broad-based services taxes. They are Hawaii, North Dakota and New Mexico, legislative staffers said. Other states tax more services than does North Carolina. Mavretic asked the staff to prepare a list of some of the service taxes already in use in other states after David Crotts, chief legislative economist, estimated that North Carolina could raise an additional $300 to $400 million annually by applying the sales tax to all services.

Mavretic isn't necessarily calling for more tax revenue. Rather, he's calling for a taxing structure which more accurately reflects that state's economy. At present, he said, the state's tax structure reflects an economy based on manufacturing. It is time, he said, for the state to change its tax structure, as it did in the early 20th century when it became evident that the economy was no longer predominantly agricultural.

Revenue collections are high now because the economy is booming, he said. But if the anticipated slowdown of 1985 arrives on time, tax collections will flatten out. At that time, the Legislature would have to face the possibility of raising taxes on an already over-taxed portion of the economy while another portion continues to go untaxed. By broadening the tax base, Mavretic says, the state can afford to eliminate some of the taxes which hurt industrial recruitment and avoid increases in other taxes.

Mavretic's ideas weren't fully detailed at the meeting. But if he holds to his usual practice, he'll have a comprehensive plan ready soon.

Recessions

NEW YORK (AP) — One thing you can say in favor of recessions is they teach you lessons — in cutting needless expenses, for example, and in getting more for each dollar spent.

In the past, American businesses learned their lessons during recessions and unlearned them in the cycle of prosperity that followed, which of course helped send them back into another recession, the one they had vowed to avoid.

So often were the promises made it takes no effort to recall them: Staffs would be kept lean and budgets tight, borrowing would shrink, more sensible systems would be used, new technology would be employed, travel would be cut.

"Lean and mean," is the way chairmen described their company's new personality. And lean and mean it became, until the upturn began.

Which brings up the pressing question of the day: Has America really learned its lesson this time, or is it about to go soft again?

So far, so good.

One of the more positive developments seems to be that many companies have lowered their break-even points, especially automobile manufacturers, who have spent hundreds of millions of dollars on automation in recent years.

The introduction of labor-saving devices clearly is beginning to pay off in greater efficiencies. But machines must share credit with another development, relative wage stability, a factor absent in earlier economic recoveries.

Labor must share credit, recent wage settlements having been marked by restraint, in part because of its desire for a non-inflationary environment — a lesson learned painfully over the past 15 years.

Because of efficiencies, companies also have been better able to finance from within rather than in the marketplace, thus avoiding interest rates that remain relatively high — high enough to destroy budgets and profits.

Government has contributed too, its deregulation activities having helped to create a less inflationary environment. Deregulation has hurt in some instances, but the resulting competition seems to be a price stabilizer.

The computer has helped in a million ways. It has helped management make quicker and perhaps better decisions by developing, processing and transferring information. It has accelerated the flow of work throughout industry.

Still, the more efficient American industry of today is more a consequence of human decisions rather than computers, robots or other equipment.

The decision, for example, by industry to lower its fuel costs — not by cutting production but by using energy more efficiently — an achievement dismaying to oil-producing nations and various prophets of doom.

And the decision by executives and blue-collar workers — under the stress of a big recession, to be sure — to return to the American tradition of a day's work for a day's pay.

So far, so good. But now comes the real test.

Things improve swiftly in the early stages of an economic recovery. The job market swells and productivity rises sharply. Factories still have unused capacity, so there is little upward pressure on prices.

Later in a recovery the improvements come more slowly. Production capacity nears its limits and companies must consider borrowing for expansion. Jobs become taken for granted. Dreams become bigger and costlier.

That's when the test comes, the test of whether Americans have truly become more efficient producers, or whether they're better consumers of the easy life instead.

—Art Buchwald—

Politics Is Cold-Blooded Business

American politics is now in the hands of a lot of tough people.

I didn't realize how tough until I walked into Arnie Bridle's office. Arnie runs the "Political Action Committee for a Strong, Healthy and Prosperous United States," a multimillion-dollar front supported by certain special interest groups.

Arnie was seated behind his desk smoking a big cigar. Two hoods were sitting over on the couch. He told me to sit down.

"What can I do for you?"

"I hear you have a contract out on Congressman Finger."

"Who told you that?" he wanted to know.

"It's in all the papers. You're out to get him because he voted against lowering the minimum wage to $1 an hour."

"We warned Finger if he voted against the bill his political life wasn't worth a nickel. Going to the newspapers won't save him."

The phone rang and Arnie picked it up. "Yeh? ... I don't believe it. He said that at a political rally? ... The guy is committing suicide ... I'll get back to you." Arnie hung up and said to one of the hoods on the couch, "Senator Plankton just came out for hazardous waste control."

"What do you want us to do, boss?" one of the hoods asked.

Arnie took $400,000 out of his drawer. "Go into his state and bury him. Rough him up on TV, buy up every billboard in the state, hire as many demonstrators as you need, flood the radio talk shows with calls. We've got to make a lesson of Plankton and put the fear of God into everyone running for office this year."

"The guy is as good as dead," the hood said, putting the money into a valise.

"I don't want any fingerprints leading back to here," Arnie warned.

"You can count on us, boss." The two hoods left the office.

"How many political contracts have you put out on politicians this year?" I asked Arnie.

"Enough to see that the wrong guys don't get back into office."

"You're in a cold-blooded business," I said.

"Everyone we have a contract out on knew what he would be facing if he doublecrossed us."

Another hood came into the office. "Arnie, we just got a tip the 'Anti-Lifers PAC' has just put out a contract on Congressman Dreadnought in Arizona."

"So they want to go to mattresses, do they? How much have we put into Dreadnought's campaign?" Arnie asked.

"Two hundred thousand."

"Tell Sammy we're sending in another two hundred thou, and if he needs more to call. We can't lose Dreadnought in the next Congress. Who are they going to try to knock him off with?"

"Some woman schoolteacher from Tucson."

"Hit her," Arnie said.

"You mean you have a hit list for women politicians too?" I asked.

"There is no gender gap when it comes to political executions," Arnie said. "Look, this is a tough business. For every contract we've put out on a politician this year, there is a PAC that's put out a contract on one of ours. When it comes to the American political process it's kill or be killed."

"And money is the ammunition?"

"That's the name of the game."

The first thing you do when you put out a hit on a politician is break his legs financially. If he still won't listen to reason then you let him dig his own grave."

"There's got to be a better way of electing our officials than putting out hit lists on their opponents," I protested.

"No one's come up with one in '84," Arnie said.

The same hood came back into the office. "Senator Partridge's campaign manager is outside. He wants to know what he can do to lift the contract on his man."

"Tell him it's too late. The moment Partridge voted for mandator seat belts he was a dead man."

Arms Negotiator Is Optimistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward Rowny takes the long view.

He is 66, an age when most people are retired, but he is hard at work, trying to reach an agreement with the Soviet Union to curb the awesome nuclear arms race.

Except not now. The talks are stalled. They broke down two months ago, after the collapse of separate talks on only slightly less frightening weapons — the so-called intermediate-range variety.

Rowny would like to get back to the bargaining table at Geneva, Switzerland, and pursue a deal based on "tradeoffs" — cutting back strategic weapons in which the United States has an edge for cuts in the best weapons in the Soviet arsenal.

With President Reagan's blessing, Rowny had just begun to outline the deal when the negotiating round ended and the Soviet refused to fix a date for another one.

He doesn't intend to chase the Soviets from here to Moscow to get them back to the table. "It's wrong to offer them a concession to come back," Rowny told reporters over breakfast recently. "The onus is on them."

Will Viktor Karpov and his delegation return to Geneva?

Rowny is optimistic. He has a "gut feeling" Soviet military experts know there is an incentive to strike a deal now — before new U.S. nuclear submarines have the potential to destroy their heavy land-based missiles.

But other Kremlin officials must be convinced, and that could take a while.

In the upper echelons of the State Department there is a theory that the Soviets are having a hard time reaching a decision on a lot of things because leader Yuri Andropov is sick.

In the meantime, Rowny is prepared to wait. "It's in their interest to come back," he said at the White House last Monday. "We are now in a position, when we return to the table, to make a breakthrough."

The statement probably was more optimistic than Rowny intended.

So he rolled back a little. He said he was not "wildly optimistic" the talks would resume soon. But his positive side still showed.

"If I thought there were no room for a treaty I ought to be replaced," he said. "I think there is room for an agreement."

Edward Leon Rowny, former soldier and life-long haromince player, is a plugger.

He quit his Army commission to go to West Point where he earned another one. He has two bachelor's degrees — from the academy and Johns Hopkins.

Sent to Yale to get a degree in engineering, he got one in international relations as well.

He went on to earn a doctorate at American University here, helped plan the amphibious landing at Inchon in the Korean war, served in Vietnam and rose to the rank of lieutenant general before retiring to head President Reagan's START (for Strategic Arms Reduction Talks) delegation.

An officer who served with Rowny in Vietnam said the general was "someone who looked beyond the end of his nose. He's a big picture sort of guy."

Rowny speaks Russian, as do six of the seven members of his delegation, which he says is a "good team."

There was some doubt about the team he had last year. A memo found its way from Rowny's office to Kenneth Adelman, who was about to take over as director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and as Rowny's boss.

It rated some of the team members poorly. Rowny said the memo had been prepared for him and did not represent his views.

The storm passed and some members of the team were given other assignments.

This year there is no hint of discord.

Even during recesses, Rowny meets with the delegation at least once a week.

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

There are three Greek words for love, one is "philia," meaning friendship, cordial good will. Another is "eros," meaning romantic or sexual love. The third is "agape."

This last is the word used throughout the New Testament to indicate love. It does not mean friendship or romantic love. It expresses something far more basic than this. It is an emotion and a moral purpose people have because they are children of God, because they are made in God's image, and after his likeness.

It signifies the love God has for man and the love he expects man to have for him. Expressed most simply, it means to live for another.

Everyone who has tried the "agape" way of life has found that it works. Whenever everything else in the world has gone to pieces, love, good will, sacrificial services, and endurance remain. Then we know indeed that love (of the agape variety) "never faileth."

Youth Returns Home

A 15-year-old, who led law enforcement officers on a chase from Chocowinity to Winterville, through Greenville, Saturday, returned to his Owensville, Ala., home with his parents Sunday.

Highway Patrol officers said this morning that Russell Toney's parents picked him up Sunday, but said a juvenile petition detailing a number of traffic offenses, will be filed against him today.

The long chase began when Highway Patrol Trooper Ronald Mills of Chocowinity attempted to stop the car driven by the youth about five miles south of Chocowinity on U.S. 17.

Mills, who radioed for assistance, chased the car into Pitt County on N.C. 33. Pitt County deputies and Greenville police then joined the chase, which led west on 10th Street and Dickinson Avenue, then south on Memorial Drive.

The car was finally stopped on N.C. 11 near the N.C. 903 intersection west of Winterville after it rammed a Greenville police car, causing $200 damage to the city vehicle and $100 damage to the Toney car.

Feldstein Urging Congress Reduce Deficits

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential economist Martin Feldstein, returning to Congress to discuss the administration's 1985 budget plan, is apparently caught in a fresh squabble with White House officials over his outspoken remarks about the spending plan and growing deficits.

Even so, President Reagan still has confidence in his embattled chief economist, according to Vice President George Bush.

And, Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, has no plans to leave his post before his scheduled departure next fall, according to a spokesman.

Feldstein, rebuked late last year by White House officials for his warnings about giant budget deficits, again ran into trouble, apparently because of his less-than-ringing endorsement of the president's new spending plan after it was unveiled last Wednesday.

Feldstein, in testimony before the House Budget Committee today, urged Congress to take the steps necessary to reduce the deficits, which are running close to the $200 billion mark.

In his prepared testimony, Feldstein said "everything is negotiable" in the bipartisan negotiations scheduled to start this week on ways to come up with a $100 million "down payment" over three years to start trimming back the deficits.

"It should be possible to achieve such reductions by a combination of specific spending reductions and revenue increases that can command a widespread consensus," he said.

Feldstein said that action to wash away some of the red ink would send a signal of confidence to financial markets and help ensure a healthy expansion of the economy over the next few years.

But he warned that deficits in the $200 billion range "would be a serious problem for the American economy," causing a more fragile and slower recovery with more inflation than would otherwise occur.

"It is important that last year's stalemate not be repeated this year. The budget negotiations should proceed quickly and legislation should be enacted as soon as possible," he said.

The latest Feldstein flap occurred over the weekend when White House officials reportedly told him to cancel a planned appearance Sunday on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" to discuss the newly released budget. Brinkley said on the program that Feldstein canceled "apparently under White House pressure."

A White House spokesman, Robin Gray, confirmed that Feldstein had canceled a scheduled appearance on the program, but said it was for personal reasons.

On Friday, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said of the Economic Report of the President prepared by Feldstein, "As far as I'm concerned, you can throw it away."

Questioned about the dispute, Bush, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" shrugged it off, saying "these things happen in every administration."

"I've never seen an administration where everybody had to march in lockstep," Bush said. He added that Feldstein "strongly supports the objectives of this president."

He went on to say about Feldstein, "the president has confidence in him."

Geoffrey Carliner, a spokesman for Feldstein, said the chief economist "has no intention of resigning" before his already announced plans to leave in the fall to return to Harvard University.

Bush was asked whether there was confusion within the administration over the 1985 budget. He said "there's not disarray" and suggested, "take your signals from the president."

"Work from the budget he sent up there," Bush said. "Give us another $100 billion worth of reductions over three years. Have the tax reform that he's called for. Go back and look at the cuts that he requested and never got."

Mental Health Perspectives

Self-defeating Behaviors
by Archer Heinzen, Ph.D.

"Self-defeating behavior" is a fancy, new term for what used to be called a bad habit. It is a behavior which works against the owner, such as procrastination, perfectionism, disorganization, boredom, overeating or smoking. People develop these behaviors to cope with the anxiety which comes from rejection, loneliness, fear, hostility or from feeling different. Once a person develops behaviors which lessen anxiety, he often continues them, even when the anxiety is gone.

The most common way that people maintain self-defeating behaviors is by disowning what they do. People say "That's just the way I am." "My parents gave me an inferiority complex." "I always work best under pressure." or "Something won't let me do what I want to do." By using these disowning statements people see themselves as helpless victims without power to change. Four steps particularly helpful in changing Self-defeating behaviors are:

1. Understand how you "do" the behavior
2. Identifying the prices you are paying by continuing the behavior.
3. Identify and take responsibility for the choices involved.
4. Face the fears which underlie the self-defeating behavior.

Pitt County Mental Health is offering a group program which helps people break bad habits using this process. For more information, call 752-7151.

Restructuring Of Medicaid Sought

RALEIGH (AP) — A national study of Medicaid by health officials, including one from North Carolina, recommends replacing the fee-for-service reimbursement system with a monthly fixed fee to cover all services.

The study also recommends splitting the program in two, with one program serving the poor and another serving the elderly and retarded.

"The Medicaid program has become a whipping boy for things out of its control and for things it was never intended to do," said Barbara Matula, state Director of Medical Assistance and a member of the study group.

"People read about these escalating costs and say 'it's just terrible and it has to be due to chislers and cheaters,'" she said. "That's not true. The study shows that while 66 percent of the Medicaid population are mothers and children receiving AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children), they only spend 24 percent of the dollars.

"They're the ones who really need the help, but what we're doing is carrying the water for the Medicare (insurance) program that doesn't cover long-term care illnesses," she said. "The needs and populations aren't the same, and we need to change how we cover and care for them."

Ms. Matula said that North Carolina is considerably behind other states in encouraging health maintenance organizations that tend to increase competition among doctors and hospitals.

She said she believed the recommendations in the study would lead to containing Medicaid costs, and also to a national health insurance movement to prevent hospitals and doctors from shifting their costs to middle class paying and insured patients.

The National Study Group on State Medicaid Strategies recommends one system completely financed by the federal government serve the needs of the poor under national, instead of state eligibility standards,

The Other State Bird

Everybody knows that North Carolina's state bird is the cardinal. But if you looked around eastern North Carolina, you'd probably find more Perdue broilers than red birds.

Over 500 farmers in this state now raise more than 100 million Perdue broilers every year. And these birds are processed at Perdue's processing plant in Lewiston or Robersonville. These broilers get their start in North Carolina as well. Perdue breeder growers in this state ship their eggs to our hatcheries in Murfreesboro, Kenly and Halifax. And their feed? It's North Carolina-grown corn and soybeans purchased by Perdue and processed at feed mills located in Wilson and Cofield, North Carolina.

Facilities like these have helped make Perdue one of the nation's largest broiler producers, and the largest supplier of fresh poultry to the northeast market! And the demand for our products continues! In fact, our broiler plant in Robersonville is planning to open a second shift. As a result, Perdue needs 145 more broiler houses to support the expansion. If you'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-4151 or send in the coupon below.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened sharply lower today, continuing last week's selloff, amid concern over federal deficits and high interest rates.

More than three stocks fell in price for every one that rose in the early going on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which tumbled 16.85 points Friday, plunged another 15.39 points to 1,181.64 in the opening half hour.

The stock market's best-known indicator ended last week with a loss of 32.97 points, with the Friday close of 1,197.03 the lowest for the blue-chip average since last August.

Analysts said traders are concerned that interest rates will remain high in the weeks ahead, keeping returns more attractive on bonds than stocks and cooling off the pace of economic growth.

In the bond market, the Treasury Department is launching a record week of government borrowing and sharp divisions remain in the Reagan administration over the impact of huge deficits on interest rates.

Meanwhile, financial economists said hopes have faded that the Federal Reserve Board would soon consider accommodating lower interest rates. After the close of trading Friday, the Fed released minutes from its December policy-making meeting, at which central bankers indicated the only shift under consideration was to a more restrictive policy.

There were no surprises today as the Fed released its monetary targets for 1984, which are more restrictive than the 1983 goals.

Analysts also said traders have found foreign securities markets more attractive as economic recovery picks up steam abroad.

Today's early prices included Central & South West, up 1/8 at 18 3/4; American Express, unchanged at 29 1/2; Boeing, down 3/8 at 41 1/2; Mattel, down 1/8 at 7 1/2; and Digital Equipment, down 1 at 84 1/2.

On Friday, declines outpaced advances by more than 2 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume was 109.10 million shares, against 111.33 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index fell 1.30 to 92.98. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 2.00 at 213.34.

Lady Pirate Free Throws Top Jackets

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Lady Pirates hit seven of eight free throws in overtime and came away with a 61-56 victory over Georgia Tech Sunday afternoon in Minges Coliseum.

The game had been forced into overtime when Tech's Jennifer Leachman scored on a layup with 27 seconds left in regulation and the Lady Pirates' shot to win it fell short.

Sylvia Bragg made all four of her free throws in the extra period and also hit one of two field goals the Lady Pirates made in the five minutes. She finished the game with a high of 20 points, after having only two in the first half.

"This was a great win for us," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "The kids came back after a tough loss on Saturday and showed a lot of poise out there."

"Georgia Tech is a good team. They lost to N.C. State by only two, to Clemson by just six and to North Carolina by less than ten. They're scrappy and we had to play a smart game to beat them."

Turnovers: GT 21, ECU 17.
Technical Fouls: None.
Officials: Franklin, King.
Attendance: 250.

Smart, maybe, but it wasn't a pretty game. Neither team shot well — ECU hitting only 38.6 percent from the floor and Tech, 28.8 percent. Tech held a 52-40 rebounding edge, led by Kirsten Weinert with 16. ECU was led by Bragg with 11 while Lisa Squirewell had nine and Darlene Hedges pulled eight.

"It was a very physical game," Andruzzi said. "But I don't think that it was a well played game because it was officiated terribly on both sides. When an official has to explain his calls to you, it's ridiculous. It added to the sloppiness of the game."

The Lady Pirates were handicapped by Anita Anderson's being sidelined with the flu, and two other players, Jody Rodriguez and Annette Phillips, both fouled out. Bragg finished the game with four fouls as a total of 26 were called against the Lady Pirates and 23 on Tech.

"We were concerned about their strength in the backcourt, and with Del (Delphine Mabry) slowed by injuries, we didn't know how we'd do. But Jody and Syl did great jobs, and Crystal (Grier) did a fine job when she had to come in."

Bragg worked most of the game on Kate Brandt, averaging 15.6 points a game, holding her to 12. She scored only four in the second half, however.

"We didn't get the ball inside like we should," Andruzzi continued, "and that hurt us. We did handle their press well, especially in the overtime."

"We needed to win this one. The kids knew it and they came to the calling."

Georgia Tech led much of the first half, moving out to an 8-2 lead in the early going. ECU had tied it at 2-2, but trailed until Hedges tied it at 12-12. East Carolina took the lead at 16-14 on a Squirewell jumper, but fell back again until tying it at 20-20 as Hedges made two free throws. Phillips added a pair at the line for a 22-20 lead, but Tech moved back ahead at 23-22 on a jumper by Cindy Cochran. Mabry's driving layup, however, put ECU back up, 24-23, at the half.

After picking up a three-point lead early in the second half, the Lady Pirates fell back again, with Tech moving out by as much as six, 38-32. But Bragg sparked a rally that pushed the Bucs ahead, 40-39, on a short jumper by Squirewell off Bragg's assist. From there, the Lady Pirates moved out by six themselves at 46-40, but Tech wouldn't wilt.

They fought back and finally tied it up on Leachman's layup at 50-50.

Two free throws by Hedges just over 30 seconds into the overtime put ECU ahead for good. Bragg added a jumper and Tech never caught up again, although they did cut it to one once, at 57-56. But Bragg hit four free throws in the final 30 seconds to seal the win.

In addition to Bragg's scoring, the Pirates got 15 from Hedges, Brandt's 12 led Tech, while Weinert added 10.

The win boosts the Lady Pirates to 9-11, while Tech is now 7-13. ECU travels to Norfolk, Va., on Thursday to meet nationally ranked Old Dominion.

Irwin Wins Crosby Playoff

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It took him eight years to do it, but Hale Irwin finally got even with the luck factor in golf.

Luck, in the form of a bizarre bounce off a gallery-stake rope, cost him the title in the inaugural Memorial Tournament.

That time Irwin was the victim. Luck, in the form of an equally-bizarre bounce off surf-washed rocks where sea lions sun themselves kept him alive to win a sudden-death playoff for the title in the 43rd Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Sunday.

Irwin said the shot that eventually won it for him on the second playoff hole was the "greatest second shot of my life." Still, without the lucky ricochet on the last regulation hole, the one that went his way, there never would have been a playoff.

"It is the nature of the game," he said.

"You have to take the bitter with the sweet."

"And this was the sweetest I've ever seen."

His taste of the bitter, of course, occurred on the Muirfield Village Golf Club in the Memorial tournament of 1976.

Irwin was involved in a playoff with Roger Maltbie on that summer day in Ohio. And Irwin appeared a sure winner when Maltbie hooked a shot toward the crowd. But the ball hit a slender metal stake supporting the ropes that restrain the gallery, then bounced onto the putting surface. Maltbie made the par that kept him alive and eventually won the tournament.

Very lucky for Roger. Very unlucky for Hale.

This time, Hale got lucky.

And Jim Nelford, the left-handed putter from Canada who appeared to have his first Tour title in hand, was very unlucky.

Nelford came from four strokes back, finished off his 68 and was standing behind the 18th green at Pebble Beach with a one-stroke lead when Irwin went to the tee on that picturesque par-5 finishing hole. Irwin had to make birdie tie.

He launched his drive from the tee "and I thought, 'oh, my Lord, what have I done!'"

"It was hooking (over the cliffs that separate the fairway from the wave-washed rocks of Carmel Bay). It was definitely out of here, into the rocks and things," Irwin said.

Grady Picked Top Rookie

East Carolina University freshman guard William Grady has been named the ECAC-South Rookie of the Week for his performance in the Pirates' games against Navy and George Mason.

Grady posted 23 points including 10 out of 16 field goal attempts over the two games, grabbed five rebounds and dished out six assists. He is a native of Paterson, N.J. and was East Carolina's first recruit to sign an early letter of intent last year.

Grady is the third ECU player to be selected for top rookie honors, as freshmen Keith Sledge and Derrick Battle were chosen earlier in the season.

"And then it was back in the fairway."

The ball hooked over the cliff, down into the rocks that serve as a playground for seals, sea-lions and otters, and — incredibly — bounced back up over the cliff and on to the fairway.

"It was a tremendous break. The entire tournament revolved around that shot. I've not enjoyed that sort of break before," Irwin said, paused and obviously was delighted to add:

"Now I've got a piece of the rock."

And, after hitting the flagstick with his third shot on the hole, he tapped in for a birdie that gave him a piece of the lead. It finished off a round of par 72 and enabled him to tie Nelford at 278, 10 under par.

Woody Peele

There was a sneak preview Saturday night in Minges Coliseum. About 1,500 showed up to view it.

They really didn't know what to expect. They'd been told that something good was going to happen sometime, but nobody knew when. There were probably few in the building to see the basketball game between George Mason and East Carolina, who expected to see what they did see.

And what they saw was probably the best basketball game that's been played there in some time — at least this year.

Charlie Harrison's youthful team — with no less than three freshmen on the floor at all times — outperformed the older, more experienced team from George Mason University. The Patriots were the pre-season pick to win the ECAC-South this year.

They had Carlos Yates, a junior who is the league's leading scorer. They had a supporting cast that included two seniors and two experienced sophomores. They had beaten the Pirates 83-66 earlier this year on the Patriots' home court.

But Harrison has been saying that one of these nights, these young players were going to put it all together.

And when the lone senior starter on the team, Tony Robinson, drove to the basket for the second score of the night, you could tell that this was going to be a game quite unlike the preceding 17 played by the team. It wasn't Robinson's act to be a scorer, to drive to the basket like that.

And freshmen like Keith Sledge are not expected to hit pressure foul shots or jump shots with two seconds left in the contest.

And freshmen like Roy Smith are not supposed to hit the foul shots in pressure situations when the defense is chasing him all over the floor to foul him.

And freshmen like William Grady are not supposed to hit seven of nine shots from the floor.

Once in a while, maybe, but not collectively, not on the same night.

But they did. And it was a pretty picture.

What is going to happen from here on out this year? Who can say? One would be hopeful that East Carolina learned from the win Saturday night. Harrison has said all along his goal is the learn something from each game and to improve.

Whether the Pirates can continue to play like they did Saturday night is not known. They have a difficult road trip this week, starting tonight at Eastern Illinois. They are far from home in hostile territory.

But Saturday night they are back home again against another ECAC-South foe, William & Mary. Can there be a repeat performance? We certainly hope so.

"If we continue to get better and play like this," Harrison said after the game Saturday, "maybe the cards will fall into place for us."

It would be nice if the enthusiasm shown by the 1,500 fans in Minges Saturday night could continue. It would be even nicer if there were 1,500 more fans there to join them.

Finland Drops Protest

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Finland today dropped its protest against some of the players whose amateur status it was questioning and the Eligibility Committee of the International Olympic Committee reached a decision on the others, but would not immediately announce it.

The committee reached a decision this morning on the eligibility of nine hockey players but delayed announcement of that decision until late afternoon.

Willi Daume, chairman of the Eligibility Committee, said, "The announcement is not ready, but we have a decision. It is not so easy and we still are working on things. We have reached a decision but we cannot say what it is. It has to be discussed with the IOC."

Finnish hockey officials said they had dropped protests over two players, including one who was injured and was not present for the XIV Olympic Winter Games.

The announcements from the committee and the Finns came shortly after a Canadian official said the Finns had dropped protests over two Team Canada players. But the Finns said they had not dropped any Canadian players from the list of players they had protested.

Kalervo Kummoll, acting head of the Ice Hockey Federation of Finland, released the names of the players it had protested after he left the meeting of the commission.

He said his federation was concerned about the professional experience of three Canadian players, three from Italy, two from Austria and one from Norway.

He identified them as Mark Morrison, Dan Wood and Don Dietrich of Canada; Jim Corsi, Rick Bragnalo and Thomas Milani of Italy; Rich Cunningham and Greg Holst of Austria and Bjoern Skaare of Norway.

The Finns dropped protests over Udo Kiessling of Germany, who played one game with the Minnesota North Stars, but said he never signed a contract with the National Hockey League club.

The Finns also dropped their protest over an Italian player who was injured.

Morrison, Wood and Dietrich also are among the four Canadian players that the United States Olympic Committee has said should not be allowed to play as amateurs.

The fourth player that has concerned USOC officials, Mario Gosselin, was not on the Finnish protest list.

Sheehan Wins Arden Classic

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Despite a double-bogey on the final hole, there was never any question in Patty Sheehan's mind who would win the $175,000 Elizabeth Arden Classic.

"I never felt in danger of losing the tournament," Sheehan said Sunday after shooting a closing par 72 for a record-breaking 72-hole total of eight-under 280.

With her earlier rounds of 71, 68 and 69, Sheehan picked up the winner's check of $26,250 for her first tour victory of the year and ninth since turning pro in 1980.

Sheehan, who finished the Ladies Professional Golf Association event two strokes ahead of Sherri Turner, said she was "impressed" with her competitor's style.

"Sherri played very well," said Sheehan. "She must have been nervous. But she looked calm and collected."

Sheehan's total over four rounds of the 6,092 Turnberry Isle course bettered by three strokes the tournament record shared by Jane Blalock, Sally Little and JoAnne Carner.

Turner, 27, missed qualifying for last week's tour opener but earned $15,750 Sunday.

Frazier's Salary Was Not Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — Relief pitcher George Frazier, the fourth straight member of the New York Yankees to be sent packing after filing for arbitration, says he doesn't think the salary dispute had any bearing on his trade to the Cleveland Indians.

"Anyone who says I was traded because of the arbitration is all wrong," Frazier told the Associated Press from his home in Tulsa, Okla., early today. "This (deal) has been going on since the winter meetings (in early December). The Yankees felt they had to get Toby Harrah and (Indians President) Gabe Paul said it was Frazier or nobody."

The 29-year-old Frazier, who was 4-8 with a 3.43 earned run average in 61 appearances last season as the No. 2 man in the Yankee bullpen behind Goose Gossage, was dealt to the Indians Sunday along with minor league outfielder Otis Nixon.

In exchange, the Yankees picked up Harrah, a 35-year-old infielder who batted .266 with 53 runs batted in last season. He spent the last five seasons with Cleveland and has hit 20 or more home runs five times in his 13-year major-league career.

Harrah is expected to platoon with Graig Nettles at third base and could see action at shortstop if Andre Robertson hasn't recovered from last year's auto accident. Robertson reportedly may not be ready until midseason.

McEnroe Still Perfect

By The Associated Press

The year is a little more than a month old, but so far it has been perfect for John McEnroe.

McEnroe, the top seed, used a powerful serve to run his match record for 1984 to 12-0 with a 6-3, 7-6 victory Sunday over Steve Denton in the finals of the $100,000 United Virginia Bank Tennis Classic.

"I don't think I could have served any better," said McEnroe, who collected $30,000. "I was in control at the beginning."

"If (McEnroe) is hitting his first serve that well and disguising it like he does, then he gets about three or four feet from the net and he has the best volley of anybody," said Denton, the No. 7 seed and runner-up in the event for the second straight year. "That combination makes him impossible to beat."

McEnroe, who held service throughout the tournament in Richmond, Va., registered nine aces as he disposed of Denton in 1 hour, 20 minutes.

McEnroe said he was "mentally prepared for the year going into the Masters," where he beat Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia last month.

Meanwhile, Lendl whipped Yannick Noah of France 6-0, 6-2, 6-4 Sunday in the finals of the $250,000 Molson Light Challenge at Toronto.

Lendl completed the five-day, eight-man event undefeated to earn the $100,000 first prize. He slammed 11 aces during his 1-hour, 25-minute match against Noah.

Lendl advanced to the final after Jimmy Connors defaulted in the semifinals Saturday because of a pinched nerve in his neck. Connors, however, was expected to defend his U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championship this week at Memphis, Tenn.

In women's tennis, Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia overcame Bulgaria's Manuela Maleeva 6-4, 6-2 Sunday in the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Houston.

Mandlikova, the fifth-ranked women's player in the world, used an overpowering serve to dispose of her 16-year-old opponent and capture her third Virginia Slims tournament victory in as many tries.

The Virginia Slims circuit moves next to Chicago, where two-time U.S. Open champion Tracy Austin will attempt to return from a layoff that lasted almost eight months because she had back and shoulder injuries.

In the $50,000 Ginny of Indianapolis tournament Sunday, fourth-seeded JoAnne Russell defeated world junior champion Pascale Paradis of France 7-6, 6-2.

Counterprogramming For Winter Olympics

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS and NBC, the networks without the Winter Olympics, won't be running prime-time test patterns the next two weeks. "We're not gonna go dark," said Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment. ABC, once again, has sports' biggest cold-weather spectacle. Four years ago, ABC, benefitting from America's star-spangled hockey team, attracted 40 percent of the viewing audience for the Lake Placid Games.

Give or take a couple of percentage points, ABC should again dominate the ratings Feb. 7-19. But that doesn't mean the loyal opposition at CBS and NBC will stand around and cheer. These networks, and their affiliated stations, believe counterprogramming is the most important non-Olympic sport.

That belief turns most passionate in February, a crucial sweeps month, when ratings at local stations determine advertising rates for the next few months.

But not everybody feels warmed by the Olympic flame. Some viewers aren't sports fans. Some enjoy sports, but don't think watching lugers skidding down an icy tunnel on their backs qualifies. And others will selectively watch ABC's 6 1/2 hours of coverage, two-thirds of it in prime time.

Tartikoff said three types of programming could siphon viewers from the Games: blockbusters, comedies and kiddie shows.

For the most part, NBC is sticking with its regular series, which include 10 comedies. "We're not disrupting our schedule," Tartikoff said. "We normally program for women anyway."

And, for the same women who live and die with their afternoon serials, NBC's prime-time dramas will get soapier. On "Hill Street Blues," for example, Lt. Henry Goldblume (Joe Spano) will be drawn to a prostitute, officer Joe Coffey (Ed Marinaro) will try to deal with his girlfriend's recent rape and a juicy scandal will be exposed.

"We asked them to write it that way," said Tartikoff. Four years ago, NBC had some success with Walt Disney films. Last year, when ABC got Olympic-size numbers with "Winds of War," NBC found that a Gary Coleman movie fared well, beating a Clint Eastwood film on CBS.

All the Disney inventory is on its own cable channel now, so NBC has turned to Coleman's TV movie, "The Fantastic World of D.C. Collins," this Friday and specials this Sunday with the Chipmunks and the Berenstein Bears.

CBS holds a pat hand with its top-rated series, but it has scheduled what programming Vice President Harvey Shephard calls "primarily female" films on its movie nights. On Tuesday, it's "The Sky's No Limit" about female astronauts. On Wednesday, Lee Remick and Ralph Waite star in the romantic comedy, "A Good Sport." Next week, CBS will show "Gone with the Wind" in two parts.

February's blockbuster miniseries have tried to avoid the Olympic snowball as much as possible.

CBS' nine-hour "Master of the Game," based on Sidney Sheldon's book, is scheduled for Feb. 19, 20 and 21, bumping into the Sarajevo Games on only the first night. (Sunday is the most-watched TV night, and every miniseries starts there for maximum thrust.)

"It made no sense to go totally head to head with the Olympics," said Shephard. "But the last night is the weakest for the Olympics with all its ceremonies and recaps."

With the CBS scheduling of "Master of the Game" and ABC starting its "Lace" miniseries Feb. 26, the options were limited for NBC's 6 1/2-hour "Celebrity."

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ98654 ♥KQ5 ♦KQ9
 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ 2♣ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Despite the fact that partner could not bid freely, your hand has tremendous playing potential. You certainly want to coax a bid from partner, but a jump in spades might not necessarily be sufficiently persuasive. The trouble with a takeout double is that partner might convert to penalties, and you don't really want to defend. That leaves only a cue-bid of three clubs. Since you did not open with a demand bid, partner will not expect you to have much more than this.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ98654 ♥KQ5 ♦KQ9
 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ 2♣ Pass Pass 3♣ 3♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—The whole point of this exercise is that you wanted to convey to partner that you have a hand nearly good enough for game with a long spade suit. To complete your message, simply bid three spades—it is up to partner to go on to game if he has any values at all.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠953 ♥A85 ♦KJ985 ♣Q10
 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♣ Pass 1♦ 1♥ 3♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You have quite a bit more than you promised, so you want to take some forward-going action. The trouble is that you don't know where you want to play the hand. Three no trump could be the best spot, but you don't have a spade stopper. Your most flexible action is a cue-bid of three hearts. That should put partner in a position to make the winning decision.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K87 ♥AJ543 ♦K106 ♣83
 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have a hand that is a whit too strong for one no trump, yet not quite good enough for two no trump. Two hearts would also be a distinct underbid, but you cannot jump to three hearts with such a poor suit. And you don't want to raise partner's second suit with only three-card support. The solution is bid two diamonds. A new suit by responder is forcing, and partner's rebid should help clear the air.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠107 ♥J10652 ♦KQ93 ♣A5
 The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 3♥ 3♣ Dble ?

What action do you take?
A.—And you thought it was still 11 months to Christmas. Redouble! We don't know what made East think he had a double, unless he has borrowed some cards from another pack. We trust our partners' three-level vulnerable overcalls. And, should the opponents run, double everything in sight.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠K8763 ♥K1053 ♦KQ73

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♣ Pass 3♣ Pass 4♦ Pass 5♦ Pass ?

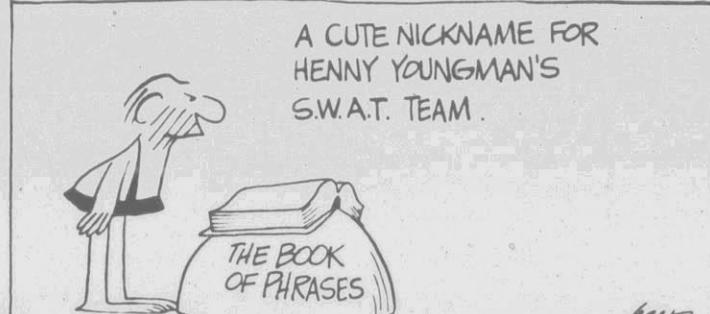

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's cue-bidding sequence denies the ace of clubs. It is inconceivable that, after only a jump raise in his suit, he could be making all these slam tries if he lacked the ace of trumps as well. You can virtually count 13 tricks. Bid seven spades. As in the previous question, it is simply a matter of partnership trust.

Ornamentals can be damaged by cold weather in several ways. Extensive damage occurred at Christmastime during a three-day period of severely cold, windy weather. In many cases pruning will be needed to correct some of the more seriously damaged plants and in some cases plants may need to be replaced entirely.

Cold weather can cause several types of damage to the plant. Different parts of the plant may be affected differently. Open flowers will be damaged first, developing buds next and then foliage. Then roots, stems and dormant buds will be hurt as the weather worsens. Other types of winter injury include ice damage, root injury, bark splitting, frost heaving and winter desiccation.

Winter desiccation or drying out has been severe on broadleaved shrubs like ligustrum, pittosporum, oleander, loquat azaleas and camellias. The weather that occurred during Christmas 1983 was ideal for causing winter desiccation. The temperature dropped to near zero with high winds and bright sunshine. Under these conditions the soil froze and broadleaved evergreens especially were unable to take moisture from the ground. The leaves lost more water than they could replace. As a result water was extracted from the cells of the leaves when the sunshine warmed the leaf surface. The net result is apparent now — loss of leaves and some possible stem damage.

Flowering shrubs such as camellias may not bear an abundance of flowers this year. The interior of the flower buds in many instances has been frozen, turned brown and been aborted. Camellia buds can be cut in half and the interior examined. If the center is white, then it may bloom later. Dormant buds, on the other hand, of azaleas, which bloom later in the spring, may have sustained immeasurable damage at this point. If they have been damaged there will be much less color this spring.

To correct any damage that has occurred use proper pruning techniques. Prune shrubs just before growth begins in spring. The ideal time to prune most plants is the last half of February. New foliage will arise from an early flush of spring growth and proper pruning can enable an ornamental to recover quickly. More severe problems will result from trunk and stem damage (splitting) and root damage.

Conditions over the Christmas holidays developed within a few hours time. It was difficult for most people to prepare their ornamentals for the frigid onslaught. Covering shrubs with plastic or other covering helps keep frost off the plant tissues and lessens the force of the wind. Wrapping the stems of valuable trees or shrubs with white cloth or tape would help minimize stem splitting.

A free copy of the publication entitled "Pruning Shrubs" can be obtained from the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office. This publication might help to renovate ornamentals, both healthy as well as cold-damaged.

Friday's Accidents

Three collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday resulted in an estimated $5,050 damage, officers said.

Jeffrey David Mitchell of 37 Riverbluff Apartments was charged with following too close after investigation of a 4:19 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 330 feet east of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Police, who identified the drivers of the other vehicles involved as James Ray Murphy of Route 10, Greenville, and Eleanor Grainger White of 210 Harmony St., estimated damage from the collision at $100 to the Murphy truck, $2,200 to the White car and $400 to the Mitchell auto.

Cars driven by Randolph Pope Nicholson of 2705 Memorial Drive, and Deanna Marie Hudson of 913 Tyler Dorm, collided about 1:25 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 30 feet west of the Arlington Boulevard intersection, causing $800 damage to the Nicholson car and $700 damage to the Hudson vehicle.

Investigators charged Ms. Hudson with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Wilson Todd Venters of Ayden, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 10:37 p.m. collision at the intersection of Cotanche Street and Reade Circle.

Investigators said the Venters car collided with an auto operated by David Wayne Coburn of 106 Azalea St., causing $250 damage to the Coburn car and $600 damage to the Venters auto.
