West Beirut Now In Hands Of Militia

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rebel Moslem militiamen took charge of west Beirut today and called a "final cease-fire" with the beleaguered Lebanese army. A Christian militia commander summoned his fighters for a showdown with the Moslems.

Off Beirut, the U.S. battleship New Jersey opened fire to halt a shelling attack on the U.S. Marines.

One Marine was reported wounded by mortar fire. Another had been wounded Monday, the fiercest day of fighting since the latest outbreak in Lebanon's civil war began last Thursday.

Victorious Moslem militiamen, some riding in armored personnel carriers, took up positions throughout west Beirut. The army, weakened by defections, held on to key government buildings — with the approval of the militias.

Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks said the New Jersey fired its five-inch guns at 12:17 p.m. (5:17 a.m. EST) after the Marine base at Beirut airport came under rocket and mortar fire.

"The ship fired at a position south of Beirut airport," said Brooks. He did not say specify the target of the bombardment. Shiite Moslem and Druse militiamen clashed with government troops on the main crossroads linking east and west Beirut early in the day, and shells rained on the Christian and Moslem sectors of the Lebanese capital. But by midday fighting subsided to scattered outbursts in the capital.

Leaders of the Shiite Moslem militia and their Druse allies continued to press for the resignation of President Amin Gemayel, a Christian whose U.S.-backed government was close to collapse today, 16 months after he took power.

Shiite leader Nabih Berri, Druse chief Walid Jumblatt and the Lebanese army command all issued statements calling for a cease-fire as of 2:15 p.m. (7:15 a.m. EST).

Berri instructed his fighters to protect foreign residents, and to "avoid harassing foreign ambassadors or the multinational force" of Marines and French, Italian and British troops.

But as the cease-fire orders went out, the commander of Lebanon's largest Christian militia called for a virtual general mobilization in east Beirut and all other Christian-controlled areas.

ELECTRIC HEATER WARNING

With the current very cold weather, similar to our weather this past Christmas, I would like to share with Hotline readers an experience that could have created disaster in my house at Christmas. I stayed up late making sure Santa's visit was assured and decided to leave an electric heater on to insure extra warmth on Christmas morning. Just before going to bed, though, I was appalled to find that the cord from my electric heater to the wall and even the wall receptacle itself was HOT! I unplugged it and have had a heavier cord installed. I ask everyone to check the cords of electric heaters, not to use an extension cord unless it's a heavy-duty one that's sufficient, and to feel the receptacle and make sure it's not hot. Electric heaters pull a lot of current and can cause fire. Also, keep the heaters and the cords away from anything easily flammable, including curtains. Dr. H.L.

Mainbocher Salute Is Girl Scout Benefit

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — To cover a fashion collection by Mainbocher was as elegant an occasion as his clothes were elegant. In a way, it was like attending a palace tea.

There was none of the clamor and chaos, the fighting for seating space, the overstuffed showrooms, the photographers with their still cameras and the television crews pushing and angling for better space. Those were the days fashion was fun to watch, contrary to today's push-shove scenes.

Mainbocher's reign in New York was from 1941 to 1971 and in that span he dressed some of the world's wealthiest and best dressed women. Actress Mary Martin was one of his most faithful clients.

Although he designed only made-to-order clothes, he left a huge legacy to the mass market. Mainbocher's contributions included the short evening dress, cloth coats for evening instead of furs, peasant-like cotton fabrics for grand evening dresses, the decorated sweaters that had a long fashion run, and the so-called "little black dress," which he varied by adding flowers, pleups and overskirts.

A classicist, Mainbocher once said, "I've never done eccentric things. I've always made clothes for ladies."

The other night at New York's Hotel Plaza a gathering of Mainbocher's friends and designers whom he influenced staged a salute to the designer as a benefit for the Girl Scout Council of New York.

Mary Martin modeled the wedding dress Mainbocher created for her in the Broadway hit, "The Sound of Music." A pristine, full length gown in white, it was lent back from the Museum of the City of New York.

Miss Martin said she gave all her Mainbocher clothes to the museum because she ran out of closet space. "I wish I had kept some, at least one, to remember."

She first met Mainbocher when she asked him to do her clothes for "One Touch of Venus," another Broadway hit, back in 1943.

That show established Miss Martin, when she sang "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." She stopped the show with that song and today credits Mainbocher with adding a particular luster of glamour.

Mainbocher became her personal as well as her stage designer.

Later, he did clothes for stage appearances of Irene Worth, Katherine Cornell and Rosalind Russell.

One of his most famous dresses was for Wallis Warfield Simpson, for her wedding to the Duke of Windsor. That goes back away, to 1937, but the color, Wallis blue, especially dyed for the Baltimore divorcee, soon was copied for women throughout the world.

Main Rousseau Bocher was born in Chicago in 1891, and had completed one year at the University of Chicago when his father died. He went to work in the complaint department of Sears Roebuck & Co. and said later what he learned in customer relations stood him in good stead when he became a couturier.

He studied at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and the Art Students League in New York before sailing to Europe with his mother and sister.

To help support his family, he started sketching dresses for fashion designers. Later, he worked for Harper's Bazaar and for French Vogue. When he opened his first salon in Paris he ran his name together to form the label Mainbocher.

His salon flourished in Paris but in 1940 he closed it with the comment, "Hitler put me out of business."

He reopened in New York and, although he never turned to ready-to-wear as so many other designers did, he created the uniforms for the Girl Scouts, the WAVES, and the women's auxiliary of the Marine Corps.

Mainbocher closed his salon in 1971, presented scrapbooks of his collections for 40 years to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and moved back to Europe. He died in 1976 at the age of 85.

Said Mrs. Jeanne Murray Vanderbilt, who contributed several dresses to the evening fashion display, "He was such a gentle man. I hope he is watching over us."

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
I've often wondered about the French dish, chicken baked with 40 cloves of garlic (poulet "aux 40 gousses d'ail"). How far back in culinary history does it go?

When recently my friend Richard Olney (who lives in France) was in New York City for a brief visit, I asked him about it. Olney's book, "Simple French Food," is a classic, and his knowledge of food and wine is unsurpassed.

He told me the garlic chicken was an invention of French "country" cooks. It goes back so far it was a long time before it was recorded in a French cookbook. In his own "Simple French Food" he includes his recipe for it.

A few months ago I decided to bake Cornish hens with garlic cloves — 4 hens, 24 cloves. It was so well received and easy to prepare you may want to try it — provided, as Richard Olney says, you "do not share the mental anti-garlic quirk."

- CORNISH HENS WITH 24 GARLIC CLOVES
- 4 fresh Cornish hens (each 1 1/4 pounds)
 - Salt and pepper to taste
 - 24 garlic cloves, unpeeled
 - 1-3rd cup olive oil
 - 2 large ribs celery, thinly sliced
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried crushed tarragon
 - Parsley sprigs
 - Sliced French bread, toasted

Wash and dry hens, including the inner cavity of each. Sprinkle cavities with salt and pepper and insert 6 garlic cloves in each. Fold wings back.

Choose a casserole, ovenproof saucepot or saute pan that has a cover and is just large enough to hold the hens in a single layer. To the casserole add the oil and the celery; stir in the tarragon.

Arrange the hens, breast side up, in the casserole. Cover the top of the casserole with foil so it extends over the edge; add casserole cover — the foil will help make a tight seal.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until hens are tender and garlic cloves are very soft — 1 to 1 1/4 hours. Remove hens, one at a time, to a cutting board and with a kitchen scissors cut in half lengthwise; remove garlic and set aside. Ar-

Leave Old House To Children: Buy Again

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you recommended psychiatric treatment for a couple married 45 years who lived in a house so cluttered that no one could turn around. After 50 years and seven children, my wife and I would like to add our thoughts.

Our home has approximately eight bedrooms. Two rooms are filled with books because our children all graduated from college with Ph.D.s and master's degrees. One room is filled with old radios, games, sports equipment and trophies. All the bureau drawers are filled with children's things.

The cellar is filled with old furniture, which I plan to restore when I get old. (I am 78 now.) My wife still has all the letters, Christmas, Easter and birthday cards received over the last 50 years — plus thousands of snapshots of our seven children and 18 grandchildren.

We are savers, so much so that our children know exactly where to go to borrow anything, including money.

We admit that we need psychiatric help — about four doctors with brooms, mops, shovels, scrub brushes and buckets.

The answer to all this is obvious: Buy another house and leave everything to the kids.

CONTENTED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR ABBY: When "Kathleen" asked you if because her son and his first cousin had gone to another state to marry, then returned to live in Massachusetts, would they be living in sin in Massachusetts, you replied, "A valid marriage is valid in every state."

Then Elaine Trudeau, the registrar in the Registry of Vital Records in Boston, challenged your statement with "Wrong! Not in Massachusetts!"

Your response: "Mea culpa. Mea maxima culpa."

For the record, Abby: Article IV, Section 1, of the Constitution of the United States clearly and unequivocally states: "Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state."

Thus a marriage in any state is valid in all states; and public officials who deny this are violating their constitutional oaths, which according to Article VI, paragraphs 2 and 3, take precedence over all state law and constitutions.

ROBERT J. TURNER,
HOPEWELL, VA.

DEAR MR. TURNER: As I told Ms. Trudeau, "I learned a lesson today. When it comes to law, never assume anything."

Now, how does one go about rescinding not only a "mea culpa," but a "maxima culpa"?

DEAR ABBY: I lived with a woman for six months, and we had sex just like married folks do. We had a fight and I didn't see her for about three months. I stopped at her place one night, and she let me in. I asked her for sex and she said no. I got angry and forced her to have sex with me against her will. She claims I raped her. I say that because she was willing to have sex with me several times before, she can't all of a sudden holler "rape."

Who is right?
ME IN IOWA

DEAR ME: She is. It doesn't matter how many times she has consented previously, if you forced her to have sex with you against her will, you are guilty of rape.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

By the time a woman is married for ten years or so, she will have prepared and served nearly 12,000 meals.

Most of them have all the romance of filling up a trough and shouting, "Come and get it!" It is the loneliest job in the world.

Occasionally, when a boy child reaches the age of nine or ten, he will go through a stage where the kitchen intrigues him. He will use five pans to make French toast, burn the bottoms out of three kettles to make popcorn, and try his hand at baking cookies. It is fun. It is challenging. He wants to make cooking his life. Within hours, the kitchen experience is passe and he goes on to something else.

Girl children never go through the kitchen phase. As a matter of fact, they go out of their way to go through the kitchen, period!

Cooking is a mystique to most of our children. To them, bananas grow in slices on cereal and French fries are hatched under a red light at McDonald's.

That's why a little cookbook, containing the recipes of four-and five-year-olds from Oberlin, Ohio, holds no surprises. This is cooking, the way they view it — from 35 to 40 inches off the floor.

Valentine Jewelry Box Can Be Made In Kitchen

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chocolate hearts and heart-shaped boxes of candy are just two sweet ways of saying, "I love you" on Valentine's Day.

Romantics sometimes replace a piece of candy from a box with a more lasting gift of jewelry — a ring, a pair of earrings, cufflinks or other small gift.

You can also make your own "jewelry box" with homemade chocolate dessert shells, with lids of homemade chocolate hearts or fancier, store-bought chocolate hearts. In either case, make sure the heart lid is slightly larger in diameter than the top of the chocolate shells. And wrap the inedible gift in foil before putting it into the box.

The only ingredients and supplies needed for the National Confectioners Assn. recipe are a 12-ounce package (1½ cups) of semisweet chocolate pieces, 2 tablespoons of vegetable shortening, 12 (2½-inch top diameter) pleated paper or pleated aluminum foil baking cups or about 24 of the midget size (1¾ to 2-inch top diameter) a double boiler, muffin tins, and either a teaspoon or a small spatula — and patience.

Do not substitute butter, margarine or other type fat.

In the top of the double boiler over simmering, not boiling, water, melt the chocolate and shortening together until just blended. With a teaspoon or small spatula, spread chocolate mixture evenly around insides of the paper baking cups. Set cups in muffin pans and refrigerate until firm. Carefully peel off liners, set the cups on a baking sheet, and refrigerate until ready to use.

To make heart lids or garnishes, make fewer cups and spread the excess chocolate mixture thinly and evenly on an aluminum foil-lined cookie sheet and chill only until the chocolate is set enough to cut with a heart-shaped cookie cutter or canape cutter. Trimmings can be remelted and reused — or eaten as the cook's reward.

If you use the cups to serve ice cream, pudding or mousse, garnish with canape size hearts set point side down in the filling or use heart-shaped cookies.

Fashion School Exhibits Dolls

NEW YORK (AP) — Dolls depicting famous actresses dressed in the fashions of their day and covering a period from 1865 to 1932 are featured in an exhibition at the Traphagen School of Fashion through March 31.

Among of 24 dolls are Katherine Cornell, Ina Claire, Ethel Barrymore and Mme. Modjeska. Ethel Traphagen, founder of the trade school, commissioned the dolls to be made by L&R Baitz of Berlin in 1937.

The exhibition includes engravings of theaters, and color lithographs of costumes of Commedia dell'Arte, Italian popular comedy developed chiefly during the 16th-18th centuries. Also on show is a collection of books about dolls, including a book containing watercolor renderings of Queen Victoria's doll collection.

Few Surprises

President Reagan's proposed budget, as expected, provided few surprises as he took a relatively safe course for this, an election year. Now it's up to Congress, which has rejected Reagan's budget proposal for two years in a row, to approve a budget for the next fiscal year.

Although the president's proposal probably will be scrapped, it does offer some interesting fodder for congressional consideration. Reagan is calling for increased spending in law enforcement, including a major move against tax evaders; more power to him in any effort to halt such social parasites. He also wants more restrictions on the use of money going into the federal food stamp program and the Aid to Families with Independent Children program, including wider use of mandatory requirements recipients to seek employment; it's a reasonable proposition and merits careful consideration.

Reagan also offered a new source of revenue by requiring employees to pay income taxes on health insurance premiums paid by employers. Because of its limitations — taxes would be paid only on premiums that exceed $175 a month for individuals or $2,100 a year for families — this proposal would affect mostly employees at the executive level.

In general, the budget proposal is in keeping with previous plans submitted by Reagan: military spending is up, spending for social programs is down. One major reversal, however, is in his plan for education. The president proposes spending $15.5 billion on education in fiscal 1985, while cutting back on some student aid programs but providing bigger Pell Grants to the neediest students. Again, the proposal deserves sincere consideration by Congress.

With the election campaigns getting under way and the haggling over military intervention in the Mideast, it's unlikely much of the president's budget proposal will remain intact. It is, however, a starting point. That's about all anyone can say about it with certainty.

Costly Money

So long to the halfpenny.

The British government has announced that the coin which has been around for seven centuries will no longer be minted.

It is the victim of inflation. It cost more to mint the coin than its actual value. Two hundred halfpennies make a British pound, and the coin is worth about 0.7 U.S. cents.

Alas, as pennies won't buy much in this country a half penny won't purchase very much in England. Thus it is reported that of 3.5 billion halfpennies minted in England since 1971, some 1 billion are no longer around.

The British decimalized the money in 1971 and some of the old coins were discarded. Now the halfpenny will join them. After all, it won't even buy a piece of candy.

Fixing A Salary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr. is leading a Senate effort to change the Constitution to strip Congress of a power he claims it wields poorly: the authority to set its own salary.

The Tennessee Republican renewed his pitch for his constitutional amendment the other day as lawmakers once again found themselves embroiled in a battle over their paychecks.

This time the issue was an effort to repeal the automatic $2,400 cost-of-living increase Congress got last month, to $72,200 a year.

"Congress is institutionally incapable of establishing its own salary and I think we have demonstrated that time and again," Baker groused.

His proposal: establishment of a presidential commission that would set the pay of members of Congress every two years.

The commission could raise salaries, lower them or freeze them.

It would act by July 1 of each even-numbered year, and the new pay level would then take effect the following January.

Members of Congress could not vote to raise their salaries, or to block a pay raise from taking effect. Critics of a salary boost would have only one option: they could individually return the money to the Treasury.

Nothing ties the Senate and House in knots like pay fights.

It happens nearly once a year. Whenever recorded votes are taken, members vote overwhelmingly against salary hikes, especially when elections are near.

But somehow or other, amendments raising congressional salaries seem to keep finding their way into other legislation.

"We have an impossible situation. It is an irreconcilable conflict of interest. It plagues us constantly. It makes us look terrible in the eyes of people. This is always our worst hour," said Sen. Russell Long, D-La.

Baker's bill is now before the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Senate leader, who is not seeking re-election, said he's hopeful Congress will act on it before he closes out his congressional career at the end of 1984. But he adds he's not overly optimistic.

Coming Under Fire

CHAPEL HILL — These aren't great times for the newspaper business. Polls show the public holds the press in all-time low regard. People who feel they've been wronged in print are filing libel suits like crazy, and judges around the country are locking press and public out of pretrial hearings.

When the N.C. Press Association held its semiannual meeting here in late January, two nationally known press experts urged editors to fight back.

"A free and independent press is being threatened by libel suits," said Jack Landau of Washington, chairman of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press. "Fruitless libel suits are bleeding the press.... Most libel cases are like slot machines. (The plaintiff) puts in his quarter in one side hoping to hit the jackpot on the other."

A few plaintiffs are winning their libel cases against newspapers, Landau said. In many of those cases, they're receiving huge awards from juries "hostile to the press." But in 90 percent of all libel cases filed, Landau said, the newspaper wins either before the case ever goes to trial, in court or on appeal.

But even in victory, the newspaper loses. It gets stuck with huge legal fees. It has won nothing and the plaintiff, Landau says, has really lost nothing. In the end, Landau predicts, it will be the public which loses. Newspapers can be literally put out of business by defense costs or jury awards. Because of that, some newspapers have become squeamish, unwilling to report stories which are likely to bring libel suits.

Landau suggested that state press associations go to their legislatures for help. Libel laws should be rewritten, he said. If a newspaper successfully defends itself, the plaintiff should be responsible for the paper's legal fees. That rule applies to other areas of the law.

Applied here, it might reduce the incentive for filing frivolous lawsuits.

Landau, who is both a reporter and a lawyer, also warned that many courtrooms are being closed for pretrial proceedings. The Klan-Nazi trial in Winston-Salem saw jury selection closed to press and public and the NCPA issued a strong condemnation of that action. Landau says the precedents of such courtroom closings are frightening. More than 90 percent of all criminal cases in the United States never go to trial. They're disposed of through either guilty pleas or dismissals in pretrial.

Anyone who thinks the press is only complaining about its own lost privilege in regard to closed courtrooms ought to consider what's happening in our state courts today with drunken drivers. Pesty citizens' groups are sitting in, watching out for judges who go easy on drunken drivers. Courts closed to press for pretrial hearings would also be closed to those groups and life would be easier for judges.

Jim Wieghart, editor of the New York Daily News, confronted the third problem — the question of public animosity toward the press. The press often gets blamed for simply covering a story some readers don't like. The story can be objective and accurate but if the readers don't like a politician, for example, who is quoted in the story, they say the press is biased. The press must work hard, he said, to overcome that misconception on the part of the reader.

Social institutions like the press seem to come under heavy fire on a cyclical basis. In some ways, that's good. A thorough self-examination of public criticism will make newspapers better. But the danger for all is that the press will somehow be shackled. That's done in other parts of the world — places where they fly red flags.

Robots

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Researchers who have studied the effects of robots on mill workers around the country say much of the rank and file force still believes they will not be replaced by mechanical men.

"When workers say they (robots) can't take their jobs, part of it is because the more sophisticated level of robots are not in U.S. factories today. But they're coming," says Paul S. Goodman of Carnegie-Mellon University's Graduate School of Industrial Administration. "The other reason is that it's something most people necessarily don't want to admit to."

Goodman and colleague Linda Argote have been observing blue-collar workers' responses to robots introduced in the workplace since 1981.

"We're looking at how to introduce robots into the workplace, the problems that result and how workers can help to improve it," says Goodman, whose findings have been published in business and psychology journals.

Their first scientific study, which they say is the first of its kind in the country, involved a non-union, metal-alloy manufacturing plant in the Southeast.

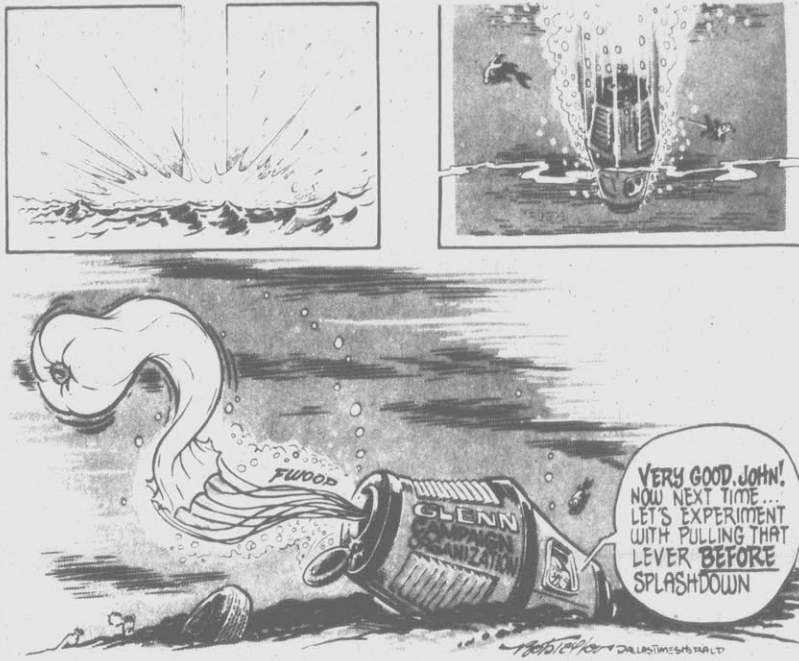

A single robot was introduced at the facility to load and unload parcels weighing up to 30 pounds from two machines, work previously performed by one or two men. One person was retained to operate the robot and both loading machines.

After interviewing about 40 workers following the robot's installation in 1982, the two researchers learned that most of the workers anticipated few accidents. But as time went on, the employees indicated there was more chance of accidents, even though no injuries were reported.

"It's just that they knew more about how it (the robot) worked," Goodman says. "When we talked with them in the first place, they hadn't seen it. Robots don't in general move around like you see in the movies. But they do move and they can be large instruments. So you could be hit."

Employees also were less convinced after working with the robot for about a year that it would increase quality and productivity, reduce costs and make their jobs easier and less boring.

Only about half the workers said in follow-up interviews that robots eventually would displace workers, Goodman says. A third, meanwhile, expressed concern that a robot would "be capable of doing my job," he says.

Downplaying The Accusation

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz's attempt to soft-pedal President Reagan's accusation of Soviet treaty violations, an effort supported by White House political aides, is sending mixed signals to Moscow that portray an administration at war with itself.

Despite unusual use of muscle, it is not yet certain that the soft-pedal can be applied to the gravest charge of treaty cheating ever sent to Moscow. Indeed, the secret Senate session for briefings on the charges was a defeat for those trying to smother them: Shultz, to promote a non-existent warming trend with Moscow; White House politicians, to insulate Reagan from East-West tensions for the November election.

But the mere attempt to soft-pedal raises disturbing and misleading questions about the president's seriousness in accusing the Soviet Union. It also invites political problems in Western Europe, where U.S. allies wonder whether the Jan. 23 cheating charge was nothing more than Reagan appeasing right-wing Republicans.

Applying the soft-pedal, White House aides have quietly silenced high officials who might wax too enthusiastic about the president's charges on TV news and talk shows. But in view of the president's known strong convictions about Soviet cheating, censoring the very voices most likely to uphold him reflects internal doubts, lack of backup and even fear of Soviet reactions. It undermines Ronald Reagan.

When the CBS program

"Nightwatch" sought Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle to discuss President Reagan's U.S.-Soviet speech and the violations charges, the producers were told that a State Department official would be available — not Perle. For unexplained reasons, an interview by the Voice of America with Arms Control Director Kenneth Adelman was mysteriously canceled, and has not yet been rescheduled.

Insiders believe that Adelman and Perle were muffled for one reason: Both took a strong lead in preparing the record of facts and suspicions to document the president's careful charges of non-compliance. Both argue privately for making the case against the Soviets openly and without apology on grounds that Congress and voters must be aware of the implications of Soviet cheating on America's future safety.

The soft-pedal was pressed even before the accusations were publicly made by the president himself. Shultz insisted that a State Department diplomat, not a Pentagon official, brief the press. Foggy Bottom wordsmiths are skilled in the art of soft talk and ambiguous language. In the Pentagon talk is blunt and pointed.

When Reaganite Republicans on Capitol Hill planned the closed-door session of the Senate for full revelation of intelligence findings behind the charges, the White House unsuccessfully pleaded with Republican leaders not to schedule the session: It would attract too much press attention, and it would be dominated by anti-Soviet hard-liners. Wanted instead was a secret briefing session, off the Senate floor, dominated by administration officials.

"Politicians in the White House never wanted to send up the cheating report in the first place," a Senate Republican insider told us, because they feared it might make Reagan look too much like the anti-Soviet hard-liner he really is.

When they lost that round, the men in the White House most concerned about the president's campaign image insisted on appeasing both U.S. voters and Kremlin by blaming transmission of the report on Congress, which asked for it. That made Reagan look like a follower, not a leader. Actually, no senator is more convinced than Reagan of the reality and seriousness of Soviet cheating.

Now that the Senate has held its closed-door session, it remains to be seen whether Shultz and his White House allies will succeed in soft-pedaling the violations charges. If they do succeed, the loser will be Ronald Reagan. Downplaying a charge as grave and foreboding as Soviet violations of treaty obligations is frivolous and beneath the dignity of the U.S.

No matter how fearful of the facts they may be, diplomats and election-minded politicians should be more fearful of standing between the president and his message of alarm: Soviet treaty violations today threaten grave dangers tomorrow to the American people.

Trying To Cook For One

the birth of a third.

I am perforce learning to live alone for the first sustained time in 63 years. Cooking for one, I can tell you, is no damned fun.

But I am learning the culinary arts. Last night I prepared a superb beef stew for one, accompanied by macaroni au gratin and a delectable chef's salad. The stew was by Stouffer's, avec sauce de tomate par Heinz cinquante-sept. The macaroni was by Bel-Air; the salad was my own. On other evenings I have prepared Cheese Cannelloni (remove foil after 30 minutes and continue to bake for 20 minutes more) and Lasagna with Meat & Sauce (bake 60 minutes and let stand five minutes before serving). The lasagna was a little chewy, but the other goo was not half bad.

The hard thing about cooking is to make everything get done at the same time. This is accomplished by counting backward from 7:30, which is when Dan Rather says goodnight for CBS. Start the pork and beans at 7:15, and so forth. Frozen pot pies take five minutes longer than it says on the box. An honest-to-God, nature's-own baked potato takes an hour and 10 minutes in my countertop oven, even with an aluminum nail thrust through the potato's heart. The cardinal rule is never to run out of ketchup.

So I am surviving in the meat and drink department. I am a tidy little pachyderm, as Kipling said of the elephant's child, and wash the dishes nicely when I am done. Actually I don't. I rinse them. That is the way Virginians pronounce "rinse." I rinse the things and hide them in the dishwasher. This is the one home appliance no bachelor should ever live without.

The lonesome time begins about drinking time, 5:30 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon, when I quit work in the office and walk over to the house. By that time I have been fighting either the typewriter or the IBM computer for nine hours of bloody but silent combat, and I tell Happy it's time to call it a day. Happy is the dog, a shely aged 5, and she does her best to fill the cocktail hour. She will talk local politics, and she will discuss the presidential campaign generally, but when it comes to serious conversation on affairs of the day, she soon loses interest.

Our hills are pretty well covered with snow these days, but it isn't picture-book, wedding-cake snow. It's a thin soapy lather with the stubble, sticking through. The back roads are mostly mud.

Making $8,641 Payment In Lieu of Taxes

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Housing Authority's annual report to the city will include checks totaling over $8,600, reflecting the agency's payment in lieu of taxes for fiscal year 1983.

Commissioners approved the submission of the report to Mayor Janice Buck and the City Council and the payment of two checks amounting to $8,641. The payments include $3,295 for the University Towers development for the elderly and $5,346 for the agency's low rent public housing.

The report, submitted by Chairman Patricia G. Rice, points out that this year's payment decreased even through rental income increased 9 percent. However, utility costs rose 22 percent, primarily due to rate increases, particularly in water and sewer.

The authority reported that 80 units of assisted housing are under construction, including 40 private apartments in Greentree Village off East Tenth Street and 40 public units in the West Meadowbrook community development area.

In 1983, a multiyear 453-unit roof replacement program was completed and the modernization of the 160-unit Kearney Park project should be finished by the middle of the year, the report states.

The authority "developed specifications, advertised, and contracted for a computer management system which will address housing occupancy, management, accounting, and maintenance functions," according to the report. The system should be installed early this year.

The report notes, "The current occupancy of the 702 units owned by the ... authority indicates a continuance of the trend to assist more elderly and disabled families." Currently, 53 percent of the units are occupied by widows, elderly and disabled families. Almost 30 percent of the residents are full-time working families who receive no public assistance and less than 20 percent receive public assistance in the form of aid to families with dependent children, according to the report.

Commissioners approved an amendment to the annual contributions contract with the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the West Meadowbrook units. Joe Laney, executive director, said HUD had allotted $1,871,246 for the construction package but it appears that figure will not be reached. A revised contract for $1,587,500 was approved.

Laney said the status of Section 8 activity remains on schedule, with 96 of 100 units authorized under the existing housing segment under lease, 107 of the 109 units allowed under moderate rehabilitation under contract, and three units under the rental rehabilitation program leased. He said all 60 units in the University Towers mid-rise are related. The spokesman said the foundations for six buildings in West Meadowbrook are in place and the Greentree Village development is nearing completion.

A revision in the fiscal year 1984 operating budget for University Towers was approved, reflecting approximately $3,100 in funds saved on an installation contract at the facility. Commissioners authorized the purchase of a color television set for the mid-rise, a vehicle for the Section 8 employment team, and a portable two-way radio for the University Towers janitor.

Ken Noland, assistant director, reported that phase one of the Kearney Park modernization work is moving along as well as can be expected considering the weather. He said over 100 furnaces or 62 percent of the projected total have now been installed.

Noland said the architect is working on specifications for phase two of the Kearney Park work and the documents are expected to be ready for review in two to three weeks. He said funds for the project are now available, as is money for the authority's weatherization program.

Laney reported that HUD representatives made two visits to Greenville recently to complete the biennial housing management review and both visitors were pleased with the overall operations here. Laney said minor findings noted in the report have been addressed.

Only one temporary vacancy among the authority's 702 units occurred at the end of January, according to Sallye Streeter, director of resident affairs. She said average rents included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $107.67; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $111.35; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $108.37; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $105.67; N.C. 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $82.88; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown). The overall average amounted to $103.29.

Killed Self After Killing 4 Others

HILLSBORO, Mo. (AP) — A junior high school teacher who may have been planning more killings murdered four people and set his own house on fire before taking his own life, authorities said.

A note found with two of the victims indicated that seventh-grade teacher George Brandon had committed the murders and may have been planning others, authorities said.

The killings apparently began in rural Leslie, Mo., 40 miles west of St. Louis, where Brian M. Matheny, 53, an eighth-grade teacher at the same school as Brandon, and Matheny's wife, Betty J., 54, were shot to death in their secluded home Sunday night, authorities said.

A note believed to be in Brandon's handwriting was discovered with the bodies Monday morning by a neighbor, the Franklin County Sheriff's office said.

Later Sunday night or Monday morning, Joseph Lennemann, 51, was shot to death with a rifle at his mobile home in Valles Mines, 35 miles south of St. Louis, police said.

Witnesses said Brandon and Lennemann, who were neighbors, had earlier quarreled over the shooting of a dog.

Early Monday, neighbors reported that Brandon's house, which he shared with his former wife, was on fire. Two bodies tentatively identified as those of Brandon, 43, and his ex-wife, Barbara Moore, were discovered in the rubble. Authorities said they would try today to positively identify the charred remains.

"I think he (Brandon) killed the two in Franklin County, came home and killed his neighbor and ex-wife in Valles Mines, set the house afire and killed himself," said Lt. Bimel Wheelis of the Jefferson County Sheriff's department.

Wheelis said two guns found in the burned rubble of the house had been tentatively identified as those taken in a break-in at the home of a neighbor of the Matheny's Sunday night.

The note found at the Matheny home and believed by police to have been written by Brandon said he "had a pain in his head so severe at times that he couldn't stand it," police said.

The note also complained of pressure from officials in the Kirkwood school district, police said.

Dr. Thomas Keating, superintendent of the suburban St. Louis school district, said Matheny had recently written an evaluation which may have been critical of Brandon.

"We're all in a state of shock because we apparently lost two of our teachers," Keating said Monday. "I can only confirm that he (Brandon) was one of our teachers and that he had had some personal problems. He recently went through a divorce."

Officers said police protection had been temporarily provided to school district officials after the note was found and before it was known that Brandon had apparently killed himself.

Tobacco Farmer Gets Short End

WASHINGTON — The federal and state governments collected five times more money from cigarette taxes last year than farmers earned from tobacco used in cigarettes, says a report issued Monday by The Tobacco Institute.

Cigarette sales generated a record $7.8 billion in taxes for governments during the 12 months ending last June 30, according to the trade group. That amounted to a $1.1 billion increase over the previous year.

U.S. Department of Agriculture data included in the study said domestic tobacco used in cigarettes was valued at $1.4 billion.

The federal excise tax on cigarettes, which was doubled from 8 to 16 cents a pack Jan. 1, 1983, raised $3.4 billion for the 12-month period, the Institute said. State taxes yielded $4.2 billion for the period and municipal taxes raised $174.4 million, the report said.

According to a survey by the Institute, the average retail price for a pack of cigarettes last November was 94.7 cents, up from an average of 81.9 cents the previous year. The average price ranged from a low of 75 cents in North Carolina to a high of $1.13 in Connecticut.

TRUCKERS' PROTEST
MILAN, Italy (AP) — Italian truck drivers have begun a week of protest by blocking the Brenner Pass, the busiest road connecting Italy, Austria and West Germany. The action is a protest against a freeze in tariffs and to urge new Europe-wide regulations for road transport.

Inquiry By SBI Asked

District Attorney Tom Haigwood said this morning that he has asked the State Bureau of Investigation to investigate allegations that a juvenile was beaten by officers after the car in which he was riding was stopped at Winterville Saturday.

The youth was a passenger in the car, which was stopped by law enforcement officers following a chase that started on U.S. 17 about five miles south of Chocowinity, came through Greenville and then south on N.C. 11.

Officials said the juvenile displayed two black eyes when he attended a preliminary hearing for the driver, Russell Toney, Monday afternoon at the Pitt County Courthouse.

Toney was charged with speeding, failing to stop for a stop sign, no operator's license, reckless driving, failing to stop for a blue light and siren, and assault with a motor vehicle. He is scheduled for trial in Juvenile Court here on Feb. 21.

Highway Patrol Trooper Ronald Mills of Chocowinity began the chase, which was joined by Pitt County sheriff's deputies and Greenville police, before the car was stopped on N.C. 11 near the N.C. 903 intersection at Winterville, about 2 p.m. Saturday.

Highway Patrol Troop A commander Carl Gilchrist, Greenville Police Chief Ted Holmes, and sheriff's department Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley said this morning that their departments have received no formal complaint about the alleged beating, but all said the matter was under investigation.

Holmes said "we're looking into it" internally. "We don't really know

"A great need exists to coordinate plans with the elected government officials of the ten towns and cities of Pitt County. The commissioners must recognize that the officials of Farmville, Ayden, Greenville, Grifton, Bethel, Winterville, Fountain, Falkland, Grimesland and Simpson represent, understand and are closer to the people's needs than anyone else."

Grooms said education is a critical issue. He also said there is a "need to establish lay citizen leadership in every community in the county to understand rural problems, which resource data, trends, rural issues and policies are incorporated into a county planning process. Jetties Already Said Authorized

WASHINGTON (AP) - North Carolina's two senators claim the construction of jetties at Oregon Inlet was authorized long ago and that proposed legislation now being considered concerns a minor legal dispute.

"The question of the justification of the jetties was settled long ago," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said, referring to Congressional legislation in 1970 that authorized the construction of the jetties.

Helms said opponents were trying to "reverse a commitment made" to the North Carolinians. Jetty foes have "wandered far afield" in their criticism, Helms said Monday at a congressional hearing on legislation that would give the Army Corps of Engineers control over Interior Department land needed to build the $100 million jetties.

But a spokesman for one of several groups opposed to the project said the legislation would "clear the way" for building the jetties. Edward Osann, water resources director for the National Wildlife Federation, said Congress must reassess the environmental risks and economic justification of the jetty project.

A large group of Dare County officials and other jetty supporters spoke Monday at a joint hearing before two subcommittees of the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works.

The supporters repeated arguments that the jetties were the only solution to stabilizing the treacherous channel, which is used by commercial fisherman and other mariners.

A small group of opponents also attended the hearing, reiterating charges that the jetties could cause serious beach erosion and would be a waste of money.

But Sen. John East, R-N.C., said the federal government had a "moral obligation" to build the jetties. East said fisherman who use the channel had tried to expand their seafood industry and convert to larger fishing trawlers on the assumption Congress would fund the jetty project.

Helms and East are co-sponsors of a bill similar to one pending in the House sponsored by Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., that would erase a major obstacle to the project.

The legislation would override objections by the Interior Department and give the corps, which has long backed the project, use of about 150 acres in Cape Hatteras National Seashore and Pea Island National Wildlife Refuge for jetty construction.

Helms said the controversy over the legislation is "purely legalistic technicality," but Osann said the legislation was crucial to the merits of the project.

"Enactment of this legislation would in fact clear the way for the project," Osann said.

Bears No Grudge For Implication

DALLAS (AP) - The uncle of a man accused of murdering his own stepfather by putting a bomb in a newspaper vending box says he has no grudge against his nephew for implicating him in the killing.

Marshall Dewayne Williams, 21, had surrendered last week and was formally charged Monday in the Jan. 27 killing of his stepfather, 60-year-old Ward S. Keeton. Williams was held on $100,000 bond.

Billy Jeff Cornett, who is Williams' uncle and Keeton's brother-in-law, was initially accused but the charge was dropped when his alibi was verified. Cornett refused to say why he thought his nephew implicated him but added, "I'm a caring uncle and I still love the boy."

Five Collisions Here In Monday's Traffic

An estimated $10,800 damage resulted from five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Debra Sue Best of Route 8, Greenville, and Pauline Kelley Alexander of 522 E. First St. collided about 6:23 p.m. on First Street, 100 feet east of the Holly Street intersection.

Damage from the collision was set at $1,100 to the Best car and $3,000 to the Alexander vehicle.

Margaret Christine Cox of 28E Courtney Square was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 3:09 p.m. mishap at the intersection of West Rocksprings Road and Edgewood Circle.

Police said the Cox car collided with an auto driven by Beverly Ann Day of 10 Greenway Apartments, causing $2,200 damage to the Cox car and $1,350 damage to the Day auto.

Re-Attached All 5 Fingers

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) - In an operation that took 2½ hours, a team of surgeons reattached five fingers of a man whose hands were crushed in an industrial accident.

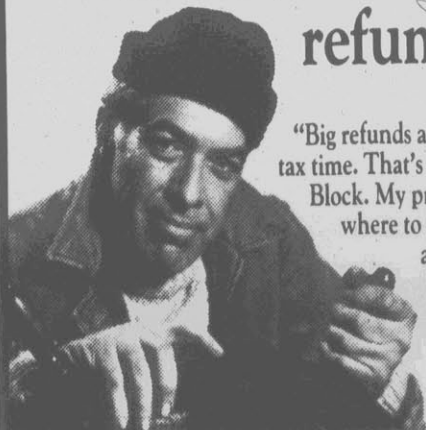

All of the fingers on Len Crockett's left hand were severed, along with the middle finger of his right hand, said Dr. William O. Reed, an orthopedic surgeon who led a team of three surgeons.

The operation was particularly complicated because Crockett's hands were badly injured and his right arm broken, Reed said.

The surgeon said Crockett, 42, of Kansas City, Kan., will need at least 12 months of rehabilitative therapy, but eventually should be able to use both hands.

Crockett was rushed to Bethany Medical Center on Friday after his sleeve and hands apparently became caught in a machine at Kansas City Stamping Inc.

Salute To Boneheads

DALLAS (AP) - Even boneheads deserve some credit, so Jacob Friedrich Brodbeck, an aviator who died in 1910, has been named "Bonehead of the Year" for his utter failure to perfect an airplane nearly four decades before the Wright brothers.

The Bonehead Club - whose motto is "to learn more and more about less and less, until eventually we shall know everything about nothing" - announced the award on Monday.

The prize is presented each year "to a person or group that has committed an act or participated in an event, which in the eyes of the Boneheads, is a monumental goof," the Dallas-based club explained in a statement.

Brodbeck, a German native who came to Texas in 1846, designed a clock-spring motor-driven airship. In August 1865, he got the craft to treetop elevation from a meadow near San Antonio, but then crashed, the club said.

He was unable to raise enough money to perfect his craft, "but true to the bonehead dreamer in all of us, Jacob Friedrich Brodbeck was the first man to achieve sustained controlled flight of a powered aircraft, 38 years before Wilbur and Orville Wright got off the ground," the club said.

Brodbeck's great-grandson, Blanco County Sheriff Sherman L. Brodbeck, will accept the award at a ceremony Friday.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 58.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 100 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 58.10 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is mostly steady and the live supply is light to moderate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 1,424,000, compared to 1,591,000 last Tuesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's selloff resumed today, after an attempted comeback by blue-chip issues fizzled in the early going.

Analysts blame the retreat on growing concern that huge federal deficits and a restrictive Federal Reserve Board will keep interest rates high and slow economic growth.

With more than 1,100 stocks falling in price, declines outpaced advances by more than three to one in the midday tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down 22.72 points Monday in its biggest decline in more than a year, dropped another 4.29 to 1,170.02 at noon. The blue-chip average had been up 1.26 points in the opening half hour before giving ground.

There was little to cheer the markets today.

The Congressional Budget Office said the budget deficit could exceed $300 billion by the end of the decade, the Commerce Department said the nation's merchandise trade deficit widened in the fourth quarter of 1984 and the Treasury Department was in the midst of a record week of borrowing.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker said the government's budget and foreign trade deficits are a "clear and present danger" to continued economic growth.

Also contributing to the market's unease was the intensified fighting in Lebanon.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell 48 to 90.95. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.26 at 206.98.

Rites Wednesday For Jack Boone

Former East Carolina University football coach Robert Lee (Jack) Boone, 65, died Monday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Boone, who lived at 107 N. Elm St., played football professionally with the Cleveland Rams before entering the Navy for service during World War II.

He came to Greenville in 1948 as head coach of the ECU baseball team and also as assistant football coach. He became head football coach in 1952, holding that post until 1961.

He was a member of the sports halls of fame at ECU and Elon College.

"His death is a loss to the university and to a lot of individuals. He had been with the university a long time and had a great many friends, including me," ECU Chancellor Dr. John Howell said.

"Mr. Boone had made a great many contributions to the university athletic department and to the instructional program after he left coaching. Much of the success we've had is built on things he did years ago for the (athletic) programs," Howell said.

"We often say around here that our fine showing last fall in football was built on a long, steady growth. Jack Boone was a part of that early growth to move this program forward," he said.

Urges Action On Schools' Merger

Former Greenville school board member Terry Shank made a strong challenge Monday night to the current school board to do something positive to get action under way on the proposed merger of Greenville and Pitt County schools.

One of several persons making statements at a public hearing on merger, Mrs. Shank began her remarks to the city board by saying, "I'm going to put it to you like it. There was talk about merger 25 years, 15 years, 10 years ago. Ten years ago the county said they wanted it, the city said un-unh. Now the city wants it and the county school board is saying un-unh. The county board doesn't want to talk."

"If things stay as they are you may lose a fine superintendent, you are going to lose students to the point of where it will cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to bring things in our schools back up to standard.

"Something's got to be done," Mrs. Shank said. "You can't wait any more. You've waited too long now. To do what it will take to carry out merger will itself take three years once it's approved. Some plan for action has to come up. You're responsible. It's up to you to take action, the County Commissioners or the county (school) board is not going to."

Durham, and East Carolina University. He is a graduate of the American Academy, McAllister Institute of Funeral Services, New York. He has three children who graduated from Rose High School and a fourth who is a student at Rose.

"I believe in education as the foundation of all our progress, economic, social, or whatever," Phillips said. "We've got to have a good sound education system to survive."

"I'm very much in favor of NCAE's request for more teacher's pay. It's something that has been needed for years, something that will continue to be needed until teachers are paid like professionals. Until then, we will not get the quality education we deserve."

Phillips added, "I believe that merger is inevitable, it has to happen so there can be continuity in the entire community as far as education is concerned. Merger should give us a wide base for an equitable type of education."

Incumbent Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville will have opposition in the Democratic primary from State Rep. John Gilliam of Windsor for Jones' 1st District seat in Congress. Filing Monday in Raleigh for the Republican nomination for the congressional post were Herbert Lee of Greenville and Gene Leggett of Emerald Isle.

Hockey Players Angry Over Decision

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — The hockey players tossed out of the Winter Games over charges of professionalism generally expressed anger and confusion today about the decision and the International Olympic Committee.

"The IOC (International Olympic Committee) has proved they are a bunch of incompetent people," said goaltender Jim Corsi of Italy, one of five players involved in the eligibility dispute of these Games.

The IOC ruled Monday that any player who had ever signed a contract with the National Hockey League was ineligible. That affected Corsi, his teammate Rick Brangalo, Canadians Mark Morrison and Don Dietrich and Mark Holst of Austria. The International Ice Hockey Federation said that any player who had both signed a contract and played in an NHL game was ineligible.

clear, we would have all accepted and respected it, but it is a phoney compromise," Corsi said.

Brangalo called it a "sour joke." "It is like a farce," Brangalo said. "How can they say one league is more professional than another is beyond my comprehension. I am very disappointed and emotionally upset."

Morrison, however, said, "Everybody sort of expected this a little bit. We didn't know until last night. It looked as if four of us wouldn't be able to play, but two of us can and I think the guys felt good about that. I think it was a lift."

IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch said today the IOC will stick to its hockey eligibility ruling and indicated the issue will have to be clarified in the future and this will be a step-by-step process.

"I think that the IOC must try to get all the best players and athletes of the world into the Olympic Games from countries that have different political outlooks and different sports systems," Samaranch said.

Alan Eagleson, the international negotiator for Hockey Canada, charged that the United States stirred the dispute and then left it to Finland to lodge the official protest.

Canada, Italy and Austria have until Friday to replace the ineligible players.

"Rest assured I will do no particular favors for AHAUS," the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States, Eagleson said. "I can make things tough in other circles."

"The USA made the snowballs and gave them to Finland to throw. The Finns got 99 percent of them came back in their face."

Finnish goaltender Hannu Kamppure was left home after he was declared ineligible by the IOC for having played one game in the old World Hockey Association in 1978. Finland had raised questions about eligibility and those questions were taken up by the IOC as an official protest.

Larry Johnson, general manager of the U.S. team, said the Finns "did their own deal. We never talked to the Finns."

"Canada has said six of our players are not eligible. That is totally inaccurate," Johnson said. "Our interpretation is that if you signed a pro contract, you are a pro. It's that simple. We're not against what Canada's trying to do. Maybe some strides have been made out of this meeting and it will be more open in 1988, but you've got to make the rules equal."

The Americans had threatened to protest the eligibility of Morrison, Dietrich and fellow Canadians Dan Wood and Mario Gosselin, but the Finnish questions were taken up and no protest was filed by the Americans.

"I'm not mad at the U.S.," Dietrich said. "I knew there could be a protest. The team knew it and the players knew it."

Morrison played nine games with the New York Rangers two seasons ago, while Dietrich was with the Chicago Black Hawks earlier this season. Corsi spent an NHL season with the Edmonton Oilers, Brangalo played 145 games over four seasons with the Washington Capitals and Holst was a Ranger for 11 games over three seasons.

The disqualifications followed days of talks regarding what constituted an amateur hockey player. Wood and Gosselin were cleared of professionalism, along with Bjorn Skaare of Norway, who played a game with the Detroit Red Wings but did not have a pro contract, and Udo Kiessling of West Germany, who appeared with the Minnesota North Stars but without an NHL pact.

Eastern Illinois Downs Pirates

CHARLESTON, Ill. — East Carolina's Pirates, coming off their biggest win of the year Saturday night, never got into the game last night as they fell to Eastern Illinois University, 78-58.

The Pirates, after their emotional high on Saturday against ECAC-South foe George Mason, came out flat and were unable to do anything as far as controlling the tempo of the game. The Pirates also shot poorly, hitting just 21 of 53 for a chilly 39.6 percent.

Eastern Illinois, which snapped a four-game losing streak with the win, shot 52.7 percent in contrast.

At no time in the game did the Pirates lead. They fell quickly behind and never got into the flow of things. They did have their chances, however, but missed a number of layups and also suffered from a 24-12 turnover disadvantage.

The Panthers, who are now 9-10 on the year, pulled steadily away in the first half, building up as much as a 19-point spread with just over six minutes to go. ECU cut that back to as little as 12, but trailed, 40-24, at intermission.

Eastern quickly built its lead to 21 early in the second half, but again, the Pirates fought back, trimming it to as little as 13 at 58-45.

With just under eight minutes to go, EIU ran off nine straight points, the last coming on a technical foul called against ECU coach Charlie Harrison, and that served to put the game on ice.

The Pirate did more to beat themselves than did the Panthers. They never took the game to the Panthers, and their shooting and turnovers kept them from taking advantage of the opportunities they may have had.

Still looking for their first win of the year on the road, the Pirates saw EIU take the lead on two straight baskets by Kevin Duckworth, their 6-11, 290-pound center. Leon Bass put the Pirates on the scoreboard after that, but Tim Wyss got a back-door stuff and Duckworth scored on a stuff to make it 8-2.

East Carolina fought back to 8-5, but two baskets by John Collins upped the lead to 12-5. After Curt Vanderhorst hit for ECU, Collins made a basket and Duckworth made two free throws to up the lead to 16-7. Not long afterwards, the Panthers stretched it to 20-9, and then canned three straight free throws for a 23-9 edge.

After William Grady scored two free throws, EIU came back to outthit ECU, 9-2 over the next couple of minutes and streak out to a 32-13 lead with about six minutes left in the half. It was their largest lead of the period.

East Carolina had an 11-8 advantage the rest of the way, but still trailed, 40-24 at intermission.

Vanderhorst hit the first basket of the second half to cut the lead to 14, but Troy Richardson and Wyss each scored to up the lead to 18 again. Not long afterwards Duckworth added two free throws and after one shot from the stripe by Jack Turnbull, Richardson's baseline jumper extended the lead to 21, 50-29.

With just under eight minutes left, Derrick Battle's basket cut it to 60-47, but the Panthers scored the next nine points, five of them by Collins and the other four by Duckworth, to run out to a 68-47 lead, and with 5:51 left, it was all over.

Grady led the ECU scoring with 15 points, while Vanderhorst added 12 for the Pirates. Duckworth led Eastern with 18, while Collins had 15, Richardson had 14 and Wyss had 13.

The Pirates fall to 4-15 with the defeat. They continue on the midwestern road trip on Wednesday, facing Western Illinois.

Duke Drawing Attention

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Wednesday's trip to Harvard is part of a campaign to bring Duke's basketball program more national recognition, Coach Mike Krzyzewski says.

The Blue Devils are 17-5 and seek to improve that mark against the Crimson. They also want to bring basketball to their alumni, Krzyzewski said.

"One of the things we think about in setting up our schedule is we want to play an Ivy League team. Playing at Harvard gives us a chance to play in the Boston area, where we have a lot of alumni," he said. "We are a national school and it helps our image and it also satisfies demands from alumni."

Harvard will be facing a Blue Devils squad that has increased confidence, team unity and a stable starting five, according to Krzyzewski.

"We are a good team and we can become a very good team if we keep our heads straight, keep working hard and keep giving ourselves constructive criticism," he said.

After an 11-17 record last season, Krzyzewski has used the same starting five, including three sophomores and a freshman in all 22 games this year. He credited international experience gained by many of his athletes last summer for the improvement.

Tar Heels, DePaul Remain At Top Of Basketball Polls

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a familiar look to the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll with North Carolina and DePaul holding down the top two spots. But the Kentucky Wildcats are in a not-so-familiar position — they've fallen out of the top five.

Kentucky, 17-3, tumbled from third place to sixth — its lowest ranking this season — after a 69-62 loss to Alabama Saturday. It was the third loss in three weeks for the Wildcats, who began the season ranked No. 2.

Kentucky bounced back Monday night with a 77-58 victory over Mississippi State.

No. 1 North Carolina continued its dominance, collecting all 62 first-place votes for the third time in four weeks and 1,240 points from the panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

The Tar Heels raised their record to 20-0 — the 14th straight season Coach Dean Smith has guided them to a 20-victory season — with easy triumphs over Clemson, Furman and The Citadel.

North Carolina is one of four Atlantic Coast Conference teams in the top 20, with Maryland ranked 13th, Wake Forest 14th and Georgia Tech holding down No. 18.

No. 2 DePaul, 17-0, remained unbeaten in Coach Ray Meyer's final season after 42 years at the helm by edging St. John's 59-57 in overtime in its only game last week. The Blue Demons amassed 1,174 points in a system based on 20 points for each first-place vote, 19 for second and so on.

While Kentucky plunged, Georgetown, Nevada-Las Vegas and Houston each climbed a position to round out the top five.

Georgetown's Hoyas, 19-2, collected 1,090 points to nail down the No. 3 spot, with Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-1, fourth with 999 points and the Akeem Olajuwon-led Houston Cougars, 19-3, fifth with 969.

The only newcomer to this week's Top 20 was Washington at No. 17. The Huskies cracked the poll after topping previously 20th-ranked UCLA 89-81 in three overtimes. The Bruins fell from the poll.

Game Changed

BETHEL — North Pitt's Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference game against Farmville Central, which was originally scheduled for tonight, has been changed to Wednesday night because of weather conditions.

Gatlin Named Top ACC Rookie

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland point guard Keith Gatlin has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week for his performance in two league basketball games last week.

Gatlin, a 6-foot-5, 165-pounder from Grimesland, scored 14 points to help the 13th-ranked Terps beat Virginia 67-66. He then scored 19 points in a 71-70 double-overtime loss to Georgia Tech.

Gatlin, who was The Associated Press high school basketball player of the year in North Carolina in 1983, hit 14 of 26 field goals in the two games and also netted on five of six free throws.

Gatlin also dis. d out 14 assists and grabbed nine rebounds.

Earlier, Wake Forest center Anthony Teachey was named ACC player of the week.

The selections are made by a special committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

The death of Jack Boone yesterday brings to an end an era at East Carolina University. While Coach Boone has not been the head coach for the football Pirates for 20 years, he still maintained a closeness with the program and for the past four seasons had worked as a volunteer coach under Ed Emory, who Boone coached while Ed was still an undergraduate.

Boone, over the years, had been one of the most successful coaches in ECU history. He was well-liked by his players and those who came to know him, as we did, following his coaching days.

While he never was able to get the ECU program to the heights some people would have liked to have seen, Coach Boone did lay the groundwork for what followed in the years since the 1950's and early 1960's. He provided the late Clarence Stasavich with some of the players who led the Pirates to great years in the mid 60's.

But unfortunately, Jack Boone's greatest contributions to the game will not be recognized by the football world in general. Many people in this area, however, regard Boone as the father of the "Power I" formation. Boone used that system during his coaching days, something that was generally unheard of then.

Boone sent a copy of a film of a game in which the Pirates used this offense to another school, but never received the film back. Not long afterwards, Southern California — the team that is generally credited with the start of the power I — began to run a system suspiciously like that used by Boone. There are those who believe that Boone's film found its way into the hands of the Southern California coaching staff, who took it from there — and gained the credit.

Coach Boone, however, was always modest about the situation and never tried to press the claim some felt he should have sought.

Boone was honored just a few years ago with his selection into the East Carolina Sports Hall of Fame. It was an honor he well deserved.

We know that he will be missed by those who played under him. In our association with Coach Boone, he was always a man who had a smile for you.

That smile will now be a memory to be cherished by those who had chance to be around him for a brief moment in our lives.

Dryden Interested In Olympic Dispute

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Ken Dryden, attorney, author and ABC television commentator, is an interested bystander in the eligibility battle that has spiced the hockey tournament at the Winter Olympics.

In one of his previous existences, the professorial-looking Dryden was a standout goaltender, first at Cornell University, then with the Canadian National team and finally with the Montreal Canadiens.

Except for a question of amateur eligibility not unlike the one that had International Olympic Committee officials scrambling madly on the eve of the tournament's first games, Dryden might have played at this level of hockey, as well. Certainly, he would have liked the chance.

"It was a regret at the time," Dryden said, while watching the United States team practice for today's opening match against Canada. "It was my intention, my hope when I joined the Canadian National Team."

The Canadians had taken a bronze medal at Grenoble, France, in 1968 and were hoping to improve on that at Sapporo, Japan, in 1972. They were to host the world championships in 1970 and their roster looked a little curious. The problem was the names — National Hockey League names like Al MacNeil and Wayne Carlton, and promising minor league names like Guy Lapointe and Phil Roberto, who would be in the NHL soon.

"Canada felt it had an agreement to reinstate nine pros as amateurs for the world championships," said Dryden. "Whatever the story, whoever was right or wrong, the team was not allowed to use any of them."

Predictably, Canadian hockey authorities were less than thrilled with the ruling and pulled out of the tournament as well as the next two Olympics. They did not return to the Games until 1980.

First Dryden, and soon the NHL, felt the fallout. "The team was disbanded. My three-year commitment (to Canada's National squad) was gone. I transferred to McGill University and started in the Canadiens' organization."

A year later he was in the NHL, leading Montreal to the Stanley Cup. Ironically, the coach of that championship Canadian team was MacNeil, one of the players whose questioned amateur standing had sent Dryden packing to the pros.

The goalie played seven full seasons before retiring at the top of his career following four straight Stanley Cups to pursue other interests. One of those is his new book "The Game," an insightful examination of his sport, which took him 2½ years to write.

"Playing in the Olympics in some sports is a climax," Dryden said. "But not necessarily in hockey. Still, it's a huge step along the way. You'd like that crack once. You don't like to give up that step."

Just then, Pat LaFontaine, the teen-ager who will join the New York Islanders when these Games end, blasted a slap shot at the net.

"LaFontaine ... the pro career is there and waiting for him," Dryden said. "This is his one and only Olympic chance. It's something he'll remember for a lifetime. It's a big moment for him. How often do you get that chance? When you have that chance, you don't want to give it up."

What, then, did he think of the current squabble which sent five players, two of them Canadians, out of the tournament just hours before the first game.

"I am not sympathetic," he said. "In a global sense, I am, but the whole matter of amateur and professionalism is such a specious debate."

"You have a principle. That's fine. But you have to close too many blind eyes to it. A state professional (like the Russian players) is acceptable. Another is not."

ACC Picks Teachey

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest center Anthony Teachey, who led the Demon Deacons to two overtime wins last week, has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference player of the week.

Teachey, a 6-foot-9, 220-pound senior, hit 10 of 11 shots from the field in Wake Forest's 67-66 overtime victory over Georgia Tech, and hit two free throws for 22 points. He also pulled down 13 rebounds and blocked five shots.

The ACC's leading rebounder grabbed 11 rebounds in the Deacons' 76-72 victory over Clemson and scored 21 points. He hit six of 17 shots from the field and was 9 of 11 from the free throw line.

Rose Takes Third Place

ELIZABETH CITY — Paul Michelson of Rose High School took first place in the 115-pound weight class, but the Rampants finished third behind Rocky Mount and Wilson Beddingfield in the Big East 4-A wrestling tournament.

Rocky Mount tallied 129½ points for the win, while Beddingfield posted 97, Rose 90½, Kinston 69½, Wilson Hunt 67½, host Northeastern 54½ and Wilson Fike 14.

The Rampants will compete in the sectionals Friday and Saturday at D.H. Conley.

FSU Upsets Louisville

By The Associated Press

After a 25-point loss to Louisville earlier this season, the Florida State Seminoles did some "adjusting" for the Cardinals — and the result was a 15-point victory the second time around.

"They were really ready to play us and they did just that," said Louisville Coach Dennis Crum after his 15th-ranked Cardinals were upset 75-60 by Florida State Monday night. "They simply outplayed us in every phase of the game."

Contrary to a zone defense that they used in their earlier loss to Louisville, the Seminoles went to a man-to-man this time, and it worked in their favor.

"They didn't surprise us with the man-to-man defense," Crum said. "After getting beat by 25 with the zone, you gotta play man-to-man."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 6 Kentucky defeated Mississippi State 77-58 and Louisiana State edged Tennessee 61-59 in overtime.

Top Twenty
Al Gipson scored 19 points and Randy Allen added 16 as Florida State handed Louisville its first loss in Metro Conference play. The Seminoles took the lead from the start and were behind only once, at 11-10, early in the game. Gipson led all scorers and controlled the defensive boards with seven rebounds. Randy Allen had the best game of his career, most of his points coming on layups after an offensive rebound.

The Cardinals, trying to break through the Seminoles' man-to-man defense, shot only 43 percent from the floor. They were outrebounded by the Seminoles 36-33.

"We knew we were bigger and stronger than they were," said Florida State's Dean Shaffer. "We made them play our game."

Kenny Walker scored 14 points and Jim Master hit 12 during a first-half explosion that launched Kentucky over Mississippi State.

The Wildcats took the early lead on Melvin Turpin's two baskets and never were in serious trouble against the outrebounded and cold-shooting Bulldogs. Kentucky built a 31-point lead, 43-12, with 1:43 left in the first half and were ahead 45-16 at the half.

"Our shooting was good and our rebounding was excellent," said Kentucky Coach Coach Joe B. Hall. "I thought we dominated the boards and did a good job stopping their game inside. We defended well and were able to get a comfortable lead at halftime. That was the difference."

Mississippi State, meanwhile, suffered a cold shooting night, hitting 34.8 percent for the game after a 24.1 percent first half.

"I don't think our team was uptight," said Bulldog Coach Bob Boyd. "I don't think it would make any difference who we were playing if we shot 24 percent. We're not going to shoot that and beat anyone."

Don Redden's six-foot bank shot with two seconds left in overtime boosted Louisiana State over Tennessee. Redden's two free throws with 1:04 remaining in the five-minute overtime had tied the score at 59 and after a Tennessee turnover with 28 seconds left, the Tigers played for the final shot — which Redden hit with three Tennessee players guarding him.

"Lucky for us, Don Redden has really shown what a great clutch player he is," said Louisiana State Coach Dale Brown. "The play was designed for him, and he made it work."

Redden also had the winning points as Louisiana State topped Georgia 69-68 in overtime on Saturday night.

"They had me roaming around on the inside," Redden said. "I gave a little head pump. And when they went for it, I went up and hit the little banker."

Others
In other action, Jeff Tipton pumped in 21 points as Morehead State defeated Tennessee State 73-62; Robert Dickerson scored 13 of his 14 points in the second half to lead Virginia Commonwealth to a 49-43 win over Alabama-Birmingham; Tim McRoberts scored a game-high 26 points to pace Butler to a 73-53 victory over Detroit; Tom Sluby scored 21 points and pulled down seven rebounds to lead Notre Dame to a 63-49 romp over Vermont.

Also, Noel Gilliard collected 19 points and Furman used a second-half shooting percentage of 80 percent to take a 70-58 decision over Virginia Military; Dexter Bailey scored 17 points as Xavier (Ohio) bested Loyola (Ill.) 64-61, and Ralph Lewis scored 19 points and pulled down 15 rebounds as LaSalle defeated Fordham 68-67.

LaVerne Evans scored 20 points to lead Marshall over East Tennessee State 65-63; Perry Young and Dell Curry scored 17 points each to lead Virginia Tech to a 65-56 victory over Southern Mississippi; Rob Roday scored 21 points led Navy over Penn State 100-69; and Clyde Vaughan scored 29 points, seven of them in overtime, as Pittsburgh ended a four-game losing streak with a 75-71 victory over Connecticut.

Aubrey Sherrod scored 30 points and Xavier McDaniel contributed 26 as Wichita State defeated West Texas State 93-84; Ward Farris scored 19 points, including four free throws in the final two minutes, to lead San Jose State to a 59-56 victory over Cal-Santa Barbara, and Rich Strong scored 19 as Colorado State built a 16-point lead and then held on to defeat Hawaii 70-67.

Tacy Avoids Tourney Thoughts

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — With 13th-ranked Maryland looming ahead, Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy does not want to start thinking about the possibility of a bid to the NCAA tournament.

The 14th-rated Demon Deacons claimed overtime victories over No. 18 Georgia Tech and Clemson last week to raise their record to 15-5 overall and 4-4 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Twenty victories is considered by many to be the magic number to gain entry into NCAA post-season play.

"I think it's too early for us," Tacy said. "We're more concerned about how we play the next game and try to prepare as we can for that."

Tacy said his team's development can be linked to a better knowledge of each player's responsibilities.

"I think the roles of the team are better identified and accepted," he said. "The kids are comfortable with what we want them to do and how we want them to do it. They're good, tough kids."

Among those who have played the bigger roles for Wake Forest have been sophomore Kenny Green and senior Anthony Teachey.

Green is the team's leading scorer at 17.2 points per game, including a 16.8 average against ACC foes. Teachey is scoring at 12.5 points a contest, but that figure climbs to 13.8 against league opponents.

Teachey is also averaging 10.4 rebounds a game and is in a battle with North Carolina's Sam Perkins for the league lead in that category.

"Teachey has done a tremendous job the last few times out," Tacy said. "He had a time when he was more concerned with being steady on the rebounding and defensive ends. He has responded very well to what we've asked of him."

Another key player has been freshman Mark Cline.

Endestad Leaves For First Olympics

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Hours after being sworn in as a U.S. citizen, Audun Endestad was set to leave San Francisco to begin his 6,000-mile journey back to the U.S. Nordic ski team and the XIV Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

On Monday, a beary-eyed Endestad raised his right arm and in heavily accented English took the oath of citizenship before U.S. District Judge David Winder in a courtroom packed with reporters and camera crews.

"I would like to thank everyone involved in getting my citizenship," the native of Norway said in a statement just moments after being sworn in as an American citizen.

The 10-minute ceremony ended Endestad's 27-month quest for citizenship and a berth on the U.S. Olympic team. It also marked the successful end of the 31-year-old Endestad's 24-hour air odyssey from Davos, Switzerland, to Salt Lake City. He arrived here Sunday night.

It took a special act of Congress and President Reagan's signature last Thursday to gain a waiver of the final nine months of the three-year waiting period for a citizenship hearing. The process was accelerated so Endestad could compete for the American team in Sarajevo this week.

After signing Endestad's naturalization papers, the judge pumped the new citizen's hand, saying, "Mr. Endestad, congratulations. We're pleased to have you as a citizen of this country."

Asked what went through his mind as he took the citizenship oath, Endestad said, "Believing in what I said and hoping to do all that I said."

Endestad, who is married to U.S. women's Nordic team member Judy Rabinowitz, flew to San Francisco to obtain a passport before departing for Sarajevo to rejoin his wife and the American Nordic team.

John Dakin, information director for the Utah-based U.S. Ski Team, said Endestad would arrive in Sarajevo less than three hours before opening ceremonies Wednesday.

The oath was administered in Salt Lake City because that's where Endestad's citizenship application was filed.

Endestad, a nine-year resident of the U.S. who lives in Fairbanks, Alaska, has been an unofficial member of the U.S. ski team since 1981. He concentrated on training and racing in the World Cup and American cross-country races while his citizenship bid was under consideration.

He finished 29th in a World Cup 15-kilometer race at Reit im Winkl, West Germany, in December.

Big Brother Watches What Public Watches

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Big Brother isn't watching, A.C. Nielsen is. He's watching what America watches.

This is a "sweeps" month, and that means blockbuster movies, sexier series and more vigor in investigative news — all because the viewing choices of thousands of homes will be monitored, tabulated and evaluated by the A.C. Nielsen Co., the nation's preeminent TV pulsetaker.

In the four sweeps months — February, May, July and November — Nielsen questionnaires are sent randomly to 215,000 households. And even though Nielsen encloses some spare change as incentive, only about half the homes will return their daily viewing diaries.

The half that allow Nielsen to snoop into their living rooms will help determine what local stations can charge advertisers for commercials in the ensuing months. This not only serves advertisers and TV stations — the groups paying for Nielsen numbers — it can benefit viewers, too.

So says Art Nielsen Jr. in a letter to prospective diary keepers.

"This may be one of your few chances to inform the TV industry of YOUR viewing preferences by keeping a TV diary," says a letter with Nielsen's signature. The diary is a weeklong record of the participant's viewing choices, broken down into 15-minute slots.

One diary keeper — we'll call this anonymous source "Deep Seat" — shared with The Associated Press the contents of a Nielsen packet, which included assurances that participation was in the true spirit of motherhood and apple pie.

"This cross-section will better represent your community if YOU return a diary for YOUR TV set or sets, and diaries are returned by others in your community," said an accompanying brochure. "In this way the television industry can learn which programs people watch."

The survey "will only take a FEW MOMENTS of your time," the brochure says. "... You will never be approached by someone selling something because you returned your diary."

For his trouble, "Deep Seat" received two shiny quarters, which Nielsen called "a token of our appreciation. You may wish to use it to brighten the day of a child you know."

Its real purpose, however, is motivational. "If we didn't send money, cooperation would be less," said Bill Behanna, Nielsen's director of press relations. Behanna added that, in lower socio-economic areas, the enclosed gratuity is "a couple of bucks."

The cooperation rate traditionally is 50-55 percent, "but the larger urban markets don't return as much," said Behanna.

As a check on minority representation in its sample, Nielsen asks respondents to list whether the head of household is "of Spanish origin or descent," and to note the race of the household. In addition, Nielsen makes certain that homes with unlisted numbers also are surveyed.

Nielsen, without the cooperation of the phone company, runs a computer scan and determines what groupings of numbers are unlisted. Some unlisted numbers are called, and the parties at the other end are asked to participate in the survey. If a party declines, a diary is sent anyway, as is the case with listed numbers.

Behanna said unlisted numbers can amount to 40 percent of the homes in some urban areas. These anonymous lines, he said, are used by rich people, famous people and scofflaws seeking a soundproof barrier from collection agencies.

Nielsen takes these precautions to ensure scientifically fair and representative samples. Nielsen has been criticized in the past for not accurately representing the viewing habits of minorities, and the broadcasting and advertising industries need to know who's watching.

There's a lot riding on diaries from Nielsen — and the similar Arbitron surveys. Based on these returns, programs are canceled or retained, executives and news anchors come and go, advertisers locate the best buys and stations that do well in the ratings can ask, and get, higher ad rates.

An event such as the Winter Olympics, which starts on ABC Tuesday night, can command exorbitant rights fees because the Games are held during the February sweeps. ABC already has agreed to pay $309 million for the 1988 Winter Games in Calgary, also scheduled for February.

Sweeps periods are the only times that Nielsen measures the performances of local stations. Network ratings — and those of the six biggest markets — are measured year 'round through Nielsen's 1,700 metered homes.

One ad agency, which requested anonymity, projected that each rating point in New York City during February will cost advertisers $600 for a typical prime-time minute. A show receiving a 10 rating, or 10 percent of New York's potential TV homes, will get $6,000 in ad revenues for every local commercial minute.

In Indianapolis, the 24th largest market, a 60-second spot in February for a 10-rated program costs $1,050. Advertisers in Davenport, Iowa, — the nation's 75th largest market — must pay $290 for a prime-time pitch on a 10-rated show.

Although sweeps results mean much in money, morale and prestige, they are merely a "starting point for negotiations," Behanna said, since the networks load up on special programs to inflate the performance of their affiliated stations.

"Any agency worth its salt knows that, and adjustments are made for future programs," said Joel Segal, senior vice president at the Ted Bates ad agency.

Behanna said the stations, which "pay most of the freight" for Nielsen's surveys, would never accept surprise sweeps.

"Sweeps in February, May, November and July are historical," he said, "otherwise you'd lose the ability to trend and you'd disrupt a $16 billion advertising industry."

'Hunch' Reveals An Art Forgery

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A painting bearing the signature of impressionist Theodore Robinson looked suspicious because its subject matter wasn't typical of the artist's work, says the college student whose hunch revealed the forgery.

Mary-Anne Belli, a senior at Princeton University, said Monday she was "so surprised" that her suspicions about "Park Scene," donated to the school's art museum by an alumnus, proved correct.

Museum conservator Norman Muller said he checked the 19th-century work under a microscope last month and found that the signature of Robinson, an American who died in 1896, had been added 20 to 30 years after the work was completed.

A Quick Change For Stealing

LONDON (AP) — A quick-change specialist has been convicted of stealing books — between dressing.

Eddie Sire was found guilty of putting on makeup and women's clothes to steal one batch of books from Foyle's bookstore in London's Charing Cross Road on Monday, then taking it all off and going back for more in his usual clothes.

He then did a quick change into drag for a third attempt but was arrested, said prosecutor Christopher Green at Marlborough Street magistrates court.

"All the books he stole were about law," Green said.

Sire, 46, and unemployed, was already on probation for stealing books worth $1,955 last year.

After admitting also stealing books worth $317 on Saturday, Sire was held in custody pending sentencing at Knightsbridge Crown Court.

There are those who are trying to reduce the art of bidding to an exact science. They are sometimes successful, but on occasion they reveal too much. This hand, from the 1983 European Championship, is a prime example.

The tortured sequence shown above was by the Italian pair, Lorenzo Lauria and Carlo Mosca. Of South's three bids in clubs, only the last was natural. The first was artificial and forcing, the second asked about the size of North's hand. Initially, North promised a balanced hand of 8-13 points, and his two spade rebid showed a maximum. When South finally bid clubs naturally, North made an artificial response to deny club support, and South introduced his second suit.

Now that a 4-4 fit had been located, North and South embarked on a series of cue-bids. (In Italian methods, you bid the cheapest available first- or second-round control.) The Italians eventually settled in the second-best slam — six no trump or six hearts, by North, would have been unbeatable.

Sitting West was one of the Koistinen brothers of Finland. He had been listening to the exchange of information, and he knew that he wasn't going to have much time to develop tricks — declarer obviously held an unbalanced hand with long clubs, and his own holding in that suit made it obvious that declarer would be able to discard dummy's losers on his long suit.

There was one valuable bit of information available to West — North held the diamond control. Since West was looking at the ace of diamonds, North's diamond control had to be the king. In the light of that bit of knowledge, the opening lead became obvious — West led the deuce of diamonds!

The underlead of an ace against a slam is a rarity indeed. Not surprisingly, declarer elected to play low from dummy and run the lead to his jack. An astonished East won the queen and returned the suit. West collected his ace for down one.

Adapting 'Stealth'

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Air Self Defense Force has started studying a plan to develop an advanced jet fighter employing the latest "stealth" technology to evade detection by enemy radar, a leading newspaper said today.

The Asahi Shimbun also reported the aircraft would come with a new technology called controlled configured vehicle, or CCV, which would allow the plane to fly in unpredictable patterns.

Asahi said that the plan under consideration calls for construction of more than 100 of the planes by Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Co. Ltd. They would be delivered to the air force after 1993 as the next generation of close-support fighter aircraft, code named FSX.

Officials of the Defense Agency's Equipment Bureau said the agency has been conducting basic research into stealth aircraft and CCV. But they said they have yet to complete plans to develop and produce FSXs using the two advanced technologies.

Stealth aircraft are designed to fly undetected by employing devices to jam enemy detection equipment and by using designs and construction materials which would absorb or deflect, rather than reflect, radar waves.

Unexpected Funds Allocated To City Schools

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Substantial increases in several categories of federal funds above expected allocations has resulted in an addition of $169,074 in the federal fund revenues for Greenville schools in the current fiscal year.

At the information meeting of the Greenville Board of Education Monday night, board members adopted Budget Amendment No. 1 in federal funds to reflect the change, which brings to $985,591 the total of federal revenues for the city schools to date this year. The previous total appropriation in federal funds was $816,517.

Superintendent Delma Blinson noted that a significant portion of the added funds is due to revenues in two increments — $19,790 and $56,877 — for a new federal school program, Job Training and Partnership Act (JTPA). "We will have more details on this new program to give you at a later date," Blinson said.

In another fiscal matter, Blinson cited a report prepared by Finance Officer Naomi Edwards which shows that, for the 1982-83 school year, earnings from investment of temporarily idle school funds totaled $93,929. This represents interest income earned from investment of funds by means of repurchase agreements, certificates of deposit, commercial papers, passbook savings and interest bearing checking accounts.

"We have pooled money from various funds to get the best interest available," Mrs. Edwards reported in the investment report. She noted that the 1982-83 earnings of $93,929 were lower than the $104,136 earned for fiscal year 1981-82.

"Investment earnings vary substantially from year to year because of factors not controlled by the local (school) unit," Mrs. Edwards reported. She mentioned interest rates and the amount of funds available for investments as the two significant controlling criteria.

For the current fiscal year, $38,993 had been earned as of Dec. 31, with $895,000 still invested. Board members lauded Mrs. Edwards for her work in earning money to be added to the annual school budget.

Blinson, expressing his pleasure on the funding boosts provided by this unscheduled revenue, cautioned that, "We cannot count on these earnings as a reliable source of revenue. Interest rates can come down, with the result that earnings could be far less."

Saying he wanted to alert the school board and the public, Dr. Blinson informed the board that "there is a very real possibility we may have to take a serious look at lengthening the kindergarten day in our schools."

He cited a memorandum from Craig Phillips, superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction, which says "it is important that there be uniformity (throughout the state) in the length of the school day for kindergarten children. ... Recently, it has been brought to our attention that a few school systems are dismissing kindergarten children early" (earlier than dismissal of students in grades 1-3.)

Blinson said, "To the best of my knowledge, it is no longer a few school systems who have early release, we stand alone. So far as I can determine Greenville is the only school system in the state that still dismisses kindergartners earlier than students in the first through the third grades."

If it should be decided to continue this practice, Blinson said, it will mean two things will happen. "We will have to provide money from local sources to pay for the transportation of the separate bus runs for kindergarten students, and we can expect to have our state allocations for kindergarten teachers reduced."

The basic issue, Blinson commented, "is whether we conform to state guidelines or maintain the status quo and pay from local funds for transportation and the shortfall in kindergarten teacher allocation funds."

Other agenda items approved or considered at Monday night's meeting were:

- Approval of an easement grant to Greenville Utilities for the installation of a 12-inch water line alongside the curb of the property at Elmhurst Elementary School.

- Approval on a second reading of the policy paper which governs student fees, fines, and charges applicable to the city schools.

- Approval for the superintendent to apply for a charge card from Branch Banking and Trust Co. to be used for making reservations and payment of travel expenses. There will be no additional expense provided payment is made within 30 days.

- A report from Director of Education Charles Ross that the SFTAA (IQ) test is being administered today to students in grades 3, 6 and 9.

- Approval of a joint agreement with East Carolina University which gives university teachers involved in the exchange teaching program the same legal and medical protection provided city school personnel. This agreement covers the university teachers during the tenure of their exchange teaching.

- Approved a recommendation by Blinson that the Jan. 25 high bid of $50,000 for the Live Project House built by Rose High students be rejected, and that the school administration be authorized to negotiate with potential purchasers. Blinson said this approach has been verified by the school attorney as a legal one. The Live Project House has twice been advertised for sale and auctions held, with high bids in each instance not meeting what is considered a price that would pay for the actual cost of constructing the house.

Vote Tabulating Machines In November Said A Possibility

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County voters will face the usual paper ballots and wooden ballot boxes in the May 8 primary election, but may feed their ballots into new vote tabulating machines in November.

Clifton W. Everette Jr., chairman of the Board of Elections, told County Commissioners Monday that makers of vote-tabulating machines that officials have seen demonstrated would be unable to supply the machines for use in May.

A Florida manufacturer agreed to supply the machines only if the county agreed to purchase the units, while a spokesman for a Charlotte-based competitor said his firm would be unable to build enough machines for use in May because of prior commitments.

Under North Carolina law, competitive bids must be received before the vote tabulators can be purchased.

Following a discussion, commissioners instructed Everette to prepare specifications for the vote tabulators and advertise for bids as soon as possible in an effort to have the machines for use in the November general election.

The vote tabulators are expected to cost about $3,400 each. Voters mark a special paper ballot which they then insert into a tabulator unit, rather than regular ballot boxes, which automatically tallies the ballot. At the end of the day, election officials order the machine to print out the vote totals.

Commissioners awarded a contract to Phelps Chevrolet Co. for the purchase of a cab and chassis for an ambulance at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The Phelps firm submitted a bid of $13,195.

The board also voted to appropriate $2,592 in matching funds for a 4 percent raise for Sheppard Memorial Library employees.

Willie Nelms, director of the library, told commissioners that the Greenville City Council authorized the raise effective Dec. 1, and appropriated $5,197 as the city's share.

Commissioners also gave approval for county drainage district assessments to be included on county tax notices. As provided for under state law, the county tax collector now collects drainage district assessments. The law also allows counties to include the drainage district charge on the tax bill.

Tax Collector Bill Smith told commissioners that his office collected $5.33 million during the month of January. He noted that, through January, collections are $385,600 over the same period a year ago.

At a 2 p.m. auction, Johnnie Harris was the successful bidder for leasing county-owned farm land for the coming year. Harris bid $62 an acre for the 79 acres at the county farm near Bells Fork, and the 6½ acres off Moye Boulevard, across from Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Agricultural Extension Service Chairman Leroy James reported that 1984 was not a bad year for Pitt County farmers, even though total estimated farm income was about $10 million less in 1983 than in 1982. Total cash income from farming last year amounted to $115.41 million, James said.

James said income from tobacco was $11 million less last year than the year before, although 14,714 acres of tobacco, averaging 2,108 pounds per acre, were sold for $55.52 million.

The 10.27 million pounds of peanuts raised in 1983, James said, sold for $2.52 million, while the total income from corn, including $3.57 million in payments under the PIK program, reached $17.39 million. The 900,000 bushels of soybeans produced in the county sold for $7.42 million, while the 400,400 bushels of cucumbers brought $2.1 million.

Livestock sales from Pitt farms were about $2 million less in 1983 than in 1982, although $7.45 million worth of hogs were sold for slaughter as were $162,400 worth of beef cattle and $112,500 worth of dairy cattle, James reported.

Sales of Grade A Milk produced on Pitt farms during 1983 amounted to $1.25 million, while the 16.9 million dozen eggs sold for an average 66 cents a dozen, bringing producers $11.15 million.

Commissioners have scheduled a joint meeting with members of the Greenville City Council for Wednesday night, and will meet at 11 a.m. Monday for a workshop session to include a review of priorities set by Sheriff Ralph Tyson for improvements to the jail as recommended by a study by the National Sheriff's Association.

WINTERVILLE SAFETY PROGRAM RECOGNIZED ... Keith Knox, left, accepts a plaque of recognition for the Winterville Police Department from Bill Haskins, right, area coordinator of the National Child Safety Council. The award recognizes the department's safety and drug prevention programs in W.H. Robinson and A.G. Cox schools. WPD is the first department in the county to receive the award.
