Leadership Given A Kremlin Veteran

By ALISON SMALE

Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Konstantin U. Chernenko, a member of the Kremlin's old guard, was named general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party today, succeeding the late Yuri V. Andropov in the Soviet Union's most powerful post.

At 72, Chernenko is the oldest man ever selected to lead the 18-million member party, which governs this nation of 280 million people. For 30 years, he was a close ally of Andropov's predecessor, Leonid I. Brezhnev, but Andropov outmaneu-vered him 15 months ago to become party leader.

The Central Committee formally named Chernenko at a special session, called four days after the death of Andropov at age 69. The succession was decided by the 12 members of the Politburo, the country's ruling body.

In naming Chernenko, the ruling Politburo chose a member of the leadership's old guard rather than hand the reins of power to a member of the younger generation who could be expected to serve a decade or more.

It was a remarkable comeback for Chernenko, who had been pushed aside after Andropov defeated him 15 months ago in a contest to succeed Brezhnev. The four-day delay in announcing the new party secretary had been taken by some as evidence of a political struggle in the Politburo.

In a speech to the Central Committee, Chernenko attacked Western leaders, saying they posed a threat of nuclear war. He said the Soviet Union would strive to avert war by maintaining its nuclear strength.

"We do not intend to dictate our will to others, but we will not permit the military equilibrium that has been achieved to be upset," he vowed.

"And let nobody have even the slightest doubt about that: We will further see to it that our country's defense capacity be strengthened, that we should have enough means to cool the hot heads of militant adventurists," he said, according to the official Tass report of his speech.

The announcement was made by the 300-plus-member Central Committee through the official news media as the country prepared for the burial Tuesday of Andropov, who died Thursday. Andropov had previously been the oldest man to take over as general secretary of the party — at age 68.

Soviet television and radio said Chernenko opened the plenum and called for a minute of silence to honor Andropov, whom he praised for his domestic and foreign policies.

Since Chernenko has had virtually no personal role in foreign affairs, it is difficult to gauge how he will approach the biggest problems of international relations — the deterioration of relations with the United States and the impasse on negotiations on control of nuclear weapons.

But Kremlin foreign policy changed little in the transition from Brezhnev to Andropov, and since Chernenko has been strongly identified with Brezhnev for decades it seemed unlikely that he would institute any radical changes.

The announcement said Chernenko was nominated by Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov and was elected unanimously. Chernenko had nominated Andropov 15 months before, upon the death of Brezhnev.

Chernenko's selection as general secretary still leaves the office of the presidency vacant. The Soviet president is chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the nation's parliament, but in the Soviet system, the party leadership is the paramount post.

A new president, — a job Andropov took last June — will not be named until the Supreme Soviet next meets. Elections for the Parliament are scheduled for March 4, so no announcement is likely before that date.

Chernenko lacks significant administrative experience outside the party, but was the No. 2 man in the ruling Politburo after Andropov and was given the job of arranging Andropov's funeral — traditionally a job handled by the successor to power.

Today he led the other 11 members of the Politburo into Moscow's House of Unions, where Andropov's body lies surrounded by flowers. His funeral Tuesday in Red Square will be attended by dozens of world leaders, including U.S. Vice President George Bush.

Andropov's widow Tatyana, his son Igor and daughter Irina sat grief-stricken at the side of the dead president's funeral bier Sunday.

Reagan To Seek Lebanon Answers From 2 Visitors

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, seeking to devise new strategies for dealing with the deteriorating situation in Lebanon, is holding back-to-back meetings with Jordan's King Hussein and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

Meanwhile, the White House announced today that Vice President George Bush would consult later this week with Prime Minister Benito Craxi of Italy and President Francois Mitterrand of France, both of whom have troops in the multinational Lebanese peacekeeping force.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said that Bush, on his way home from Moscow for the funeral of Soviet President Yuri Andropov, will meet with Craxi in Rome on Tuesday and Mitterrand in Paris on Wednesday. Speakes said, with the discussions focusing on the redeployment of the U.S. contingent in the multinational force.

Speakes also said today that if Lebanon and Israel decide to abrogate their May 17 agreement, under which Israeli troops would be removed from Lebanon if Syrian troops also depart, such a step would be satisfactory to the United States.

He said that the United States supported the May 17 agreement and "we still support it. But if the two nations agree they want to abrogate it," the decision is theirs, he said.

Asked about the U.S. response if Lebanon tries to back out of the agreement without Israeli approval, Speakes said "unilateral abrogation is hypothetical."

Over the weekend, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said he favored the withdrawal of all of the 1,600 American Marines from Lebanon within 30 days, but said he doesn't rule out they could return later. Other officials say a return is unlikely, however.

Speakes said the administration might explore replacing the American troops with a U.N. force, although Undersecretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger said he didn't think troops from other nations should "go into that maelstrom to get shot at."

Eagleburger said he didn't think a U.N. force could be arranged until the situation in Lebanon "is stabilized."

Hussein and Mubarak, both leaders of moderate Arab nations friendly to Washington, met for dinner at a Washington hotel Sunday night. It was only the second time the leaders of Jordan and Egypt have met since before Egypt was ostracized by the rest of the Arab world for signing the 1978 Camp David peace accords with Israel.

They also conferred briefly at a meeting of non-aligned nations in New Delhi last year. But the two nations still do not have diplomatic relations.

The two leaders embraced when Mubarak arrived at the Four Seasons Hotel to greet Hussein. Secretary of State George P. Shultz accompanied Hussein, but left before Mubarak got there. Shultz planned to meet with Hussein later today.

Reagan was scheduled to meet with Hussein at the White House today and with Mubarak on Tuesday. The three are also scheduled to have lunch together at the White House Tuesday.

Speakes said Reagan and the Arab leaders would "discuss the obvious — the current situation, how these two leaders can be helpful in resolving the immediate situation in Lebanon."

So Warm, It Might Have Been May

By MARY SCHULKEN

Reflector Staff Writer

It could have been a day in May — sunbathers, barefoot backyard boaters and the smell of charcoal drifting on the warm breeze.

It was, however, February, the month when few people leave the house without woolies, gloves and boots. Nobody seemed to care what time of year it was this weekend, though, as temperatures soared into the mid-70's in Pitt County and summery sunshine coaxed a flurry of outdoor activity.

Olympics fans watched televised skiing and ice dancing from snowy Sarajevo as warm breezes wafted through open living room windows. Joggers stuffed sweatpants into corners and dug deep into dresser drawers to resurrect summer shorts. Farmers took their tractors to the fields, handymen started on spring projects and even the most dedicated college basketball fans opted to shoot hoops in the back yard instead of watching the boys do it on television.

Coming less than a week after the year's first snow, the taste of spring delighted everyone. In Greenville highs of 74 and 75 degrees Fahrenheit were recorded Saturday and Sunday by Greenville Utilities, and nighttime lows didn't leave the 40's.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Take a lesson in needlepoint and make this eye-catching tote while you learn. One simple pattern stitch is used to create the fascinating design on pastel plastic canvas. It's a surprisingly quick project, as no background stitching is needed on the colored canvas. An alternate design, also worked with smyrna stitches, is included in the leaflet.

To obtain directions for making the "Learn-A-Stitch" Tote Bag, send your request for Leaflet No. NL-0212 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. N-0212 by sending a check or money order for $11 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions, canvas, yarn, needle and lining. Please specify your choice of the following canvas colors: green, lavender, blue, pink or yellow.

Dear Pat: Do you have any special pointers for lining plastics for tote bags made of plastic canvas? When the handle piece is flat the fabric appears smooth, but when I attach it and it falls into the natural curve, the fabric wrinkles up. I don't like unlined handles, however, as the wrong side of my work is not neat enough to show off for all the world to see! — Sally P., Cedar Rapids, Iowa

I have had the same trouble, Sally, and while I never did achieve a lining that stayed perfectly smooth on a curved handle, I feel certain that a lining piece cut on the bias would do the trick. If you are not much of a seamstress, however, you might not be too successful with this, so I'll offer you another solution that is my personal preference anyway.

I simply cut an extra strip of plastic canvas the same size as the handle. I work no stitches on this strip, but lay it flat against the wrong side of the stitched handle strip and join the two pieces along both of the long edges. This works equally well with clear or colored canvas and does a surprisingly good job of covering the wrong side of your stitching.

There is another advantage to this method. A fabric lining on a purse handle soils easily, making it necessary to clean the entire purse or tote bag often, but the plastic canvas lining rarely picks up soil. If it does get dirty, it's a snap to wipe clean with a damp cloth.

Of course, one of the overall advantages of plastic canvas purses is that you can clean them yourself, without the expensive specialty dry cleaning necessary for professionally mounted traditional canvas purses.

I have a beautiful pocketbook I made a few years ago that I rarely use as there is no one in my area who can clean this type of bag and it is an expensive proposition to send it off for cleaning.

When my plastic canvas bags are soiled, I simply soak them briefly in mild suds, rinse them by dunking them in and out of clear water or spraying them with the spray attachment at my sink. Then I just set them on an open shelf or counter to dry naturally.

Theoretically, when you use acrylic yarns, you can wash plastic canvas projects in a washing machine, but I think that the agitation is too rough for most items. I do occasionally machine wash such items as coasters, but as a general rule hand washing is the preferred choice.

Never put your plastic canvas items in a dryer, though, as the heat can do permanent damage. Always let them dry naturally, indoors or outdoors. If you dry them outside, place them in a shady place as the sun can fade the yarn colors.

Chocolate Festival To See Fashion Show Tonight

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — An estimated half-ton of chocolate, featured in salads and cocktails as well as desserts, was on the menu at the "Great American Chocolate Festival."

The five-day festival that started Sunday was to "educate and entertain people who love chocolate" and to promote the products of Hershey Food Corp., said company spokeswoman Deborah Ryerson.

"Chocolate is really a trendy thing right now," said Kyle Nagurny, manager of Hershey Test Kitchens.

The festival, which is put together by the company and the Hotel Hershey, is full of opportunities to taste sweet culinary creations.

Highlights included a "fashion show," tonight in which models will display chocolate desserts.

After the judging, the audience will be allowed to sample the chocolate wine cream slices, chocolate almond cake, chocolate pecan croquette and poached apples in chocolate.

And if that's not enough to sate one's craving for cocoa, the "Great American Chocolate Festival Bake-Off and Country Fair" on Thursday will include ravioli with chocolate and chestnuts and chocolate-crusted pistachio cream pie.

In 19th Century Heart Was In Right Place

By PETER COY
Associated Press Writer
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — "You clumsy, puffy porpoise, 'So flabby, fat and lazy, 'It's too bad you're not a hog, 'For you'd then be quite a daisy."

It's not exactly sweetness and light, but this "Vinegar Valentine" is among the Margaret Woodbury Strong Museum's collection of 700 missives from the 19th century — when folks took Valentine's Days seriously.

"Dearest! an answer soon return 'And let me by that answer learn 'That still I'm not esteemed the less

"Because my love I must express."

So reads another, more sentimental, of the verses on display or in storage at the museum.

"Americans have always been great lovers of Valentine's Day," says Elaine Challacombe, museum librarian, who's cataloging the testimonials to bliss eternal and devotion unwavering.

"It used to be on Valentine's Day, when you chose a Valentine, it was the same as choosing a wife," Mrs. Challacombe said.

That tradition faded over the years, but the Valentines collected by the late Mrs. Strong show that sentimentality remained a powerful force each Feb. 14.

"Oh! grant me, Love, my one desire,

"Thou fairest that was ever seen;

"Then thou shalt reign o'er Love's Empire,

"And sway the sceptre as its Queen."

That verse is inscribed on an 1880s-vintage card by one Ernest Nister of Bavaria, who had offices in New York and London and sold Valentine's cards all over the world.

Nister's card features a pink-and-blue map of the Land of Love, which is a heart-shaped island buffeted by the Sea of Agitation, the Sea of Sighs and the ever Jealous Sea.

The Land of Love's unusual topography includes Bachelor's Bay, the Islands of Introduction, Cape Courting and — horrible thought — the Desert of Indifference.

Another Valentine of the same period shows two flowers on bended knee in front of a third flower, apparently a clergyman who is marrying them. An inscription reads:

"A whisper in the merry dance

"A little flutter of the bosom

"A tender sigh, a melting glance

"Behold, the bud has grown a blossom."

Handmade Valentines were more popular before the Civil War, but the senders often took shortcuts by copying poetry from books published by people who went by such pseudonyms as "A Literary Lady."

The following verse sent in 1854 to William Loveless of Glens Falls may be an example of such a cribbed verse:

"Couldst thou know how fondly

"This bosom beats for thee

"And how my soul still treasures

"The words once breathed to me

"Thou wouldst not deem me heartless

"Nor call me cold and changed."

The signature appears to read Clara Maurice, but Mrs. Challacombe said the museum has many Valentines sent to Mr. Loveless from other lovesick ladies.

In spite of Loveless's name, she said, "He must have been very popular."

To get back to the "Vinegar Valentine," it's from a poster-size card from the 1890s dedicated to "A Fat Slob" that portrays a grotesque woman with the face of an unshaven longshoreman.

"You clumsy, puffy porpoise

"So flabby, fat and lazy

"It's too bad you're not a hog,

"For you'd then be quite a daisy."

"To an oleo-margarine factory

"I warn you, don't go near.

"You'd be such a prize, they'd seize you

Child's Diet Can Help Prevent Later Heart Illness, AHA Says

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Parents can help children past the age of 2 to eating habits that will extend into adulthood and reduce the risks of coronary heart disease by controlling salt and fat intake, according to the American Heart Association.

Smoking, high blood pressure and elevated plasma cholesterol are the major risk factors for coronary heart disease.

In a statement, "Diet in the Healthy Child," the AHA recommends prudent modification of diet in healthy children and adolescents as a means of influencing plasma cholesterol levels.

"The focus is on substitution and modification rather than on elimination of certain foods," the statement says.

"There are some childhood populations in the United States whose diet is not nutritionally sound. In such children, the first step must be to improve their overall nutrition."

The guidelines:
—Diet should be nutritionally adequate, consisting of a variety of foods.

—Caloric intake should be based on growth rate, activity level and content of deposits of subcutaneous fat so as to maintain desirable body weight.

—Total fat intake should be approximately 30 percent of calories, with 10 percent or less from saturated fat, about 10 percent from monounsaturated fat, and less than 10 percent from polyunsaturated fat. The emphasis should be on reduction of total fat and saturated fat rather than increasing polyunsaturated fat.

—Daily cholesterol intake should be approximately 100 mg. cholesterol per 1,000 calories, not to exceed 300 mg. This allows for differences in caloric intake in various age groups.

—Protein intake should be about 15 percent of calories, derived from varied sources.

—Carbohydrate calories should be derived primarily from complex carbohydrate sources to provide necessary vitamins and minerals. Thus, the total of calories from carbohydrates would be 55 percent.

"And melt you down, I fear."
The proliferation of such "Vinegar Valentines" in Great Britain actually led to a law saying recipients could not be reimbursed once they had paid postage — which was then often paid upon delivery.

"They had so many irate fathers going to the post office and demanding their postage back because their daughters had been insulted," Mrs. Challacombe said.

EXPRESSIONISTS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minneapolis Institute of Arts will present an exhibition of the works of early 20th-century masters of German Expressionism, assembled by German collector Lothar-Gunther Buchheim.

The grouping is one of the largest single collections in the world of 20th-century German Expressionist art and is being shown for the first time in the United States.

The exhibition, which opens Feb. 12 and continues through March 25, consists of about 450 paintings, watercolors and prints.

The City Cemetery Division is responsible for the maintenance and care of all City-owned cemeteries — Brownhill, Greenwood, and Cherry Hill. For further information concerning City cemeteries, call the Public Works Department at 752-4137.

—Excessive salt intake may be associated with hypertension in susceptible persons. On the whole, the American diet contains excessive amounts of salt. Therefore, a limitation on most highly-salted processed foods and sodium-containing condiments and the elimination of added salt at the table is recommended.

The advice is based on evidence that atherosclerosis — a process which involves the gradual accumulation of material on walls and linings of arteries — can originate in childhood.

When deposits build up over the years, the passage in the blood pipelines is narrowed. That causes angina, myocardial infarction, stroke, peripheral vascular disease, or sudden death, the AHA statement said.

"Although configurations of atherosclerosis usually (appear) in adulthood, the apparent harbingers of the end-stage atherosclerotic lesions, fatty streak and fibrous plaques are found early in life.

"Further, more advanced atherosclerosis may be present in young adults — for example, young soldiers who died of battle trauma in World War II and the Korean and Vietnam conflicts exhibited severe coronary artery disease."

The AHA says it has not been demonstrated directly by controlled studies whether dietary modification in children will alter the incidence of coronary artery disease later in life. It is unlikely that more conclusive evidence will be forthcoming in the near future.

In the adults, evidence supporting a reduced incidence of CHD in individuals with lower plasma cholesterol levels is strong, however, the AHA said.

"The use of a prudent diet, reduced in fat content, in healthy children is a safe and most likely effective way to achieve ... preventive measures," the AHA statement said.

Parents may obtain a single free copy of the statement by writing to their local AHA chapter or to the American Heart Association, 7320 Greenville Ave., Dallas, Texas 75231. Ask for "Diet in the Healthy Child."

Eastwood-Tripp Vows Spoken In Ceremony

The wedding ceremony of Karen Elizabeth Tripp and Robert Earl Eastwood took place Feb. 4 at 4 p.m. in the Pine Street Baptist Church. Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tripp Jr. of Farmville and Mr. and Mrs. George Eastwood of Route 1, Walstonburg.

MRS. EASTWOOD

Performing the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Richard Calhoun. Mrs. Alan Letchworth of Greenville was pianist and the vocalists were Mrs. Bud Cale of Walstonburg and Emerson Hobgood of Farmville. Kelly Hobgood played the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silked organza over peau de soie fashioned with a Victorian neckline encircled with embroidered alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured a V-shaped yoke of imported English net outlined in a ruffle of chantilly lace overlaid in a scalloped border of the embroidered lace beaded with pearls. The yoke was accented in floral embroidery centered with pearls and a beaded panel of embroidered lace accented the modified natural waistline. The long fitted sleeves were applied in lace with a border of lace edging the cuffs. The skirt and attached chapel train were edged at the hemline with a flounce of chatnilly lace. She wore a garden hat of imported braid trimmed in lace and accented with illusion veiling with a pouf bow. She carried a white nosegay of stephanotis, miniature roses and carnations and lace streamers. She carried a linen handkerchief, a gift from her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Carlyle Oakley.

Beth Oakley was maid of honor and Lisa Walston was matron of honor. Both are cousins of the bride from Farmville. Bridesmaids included Carlissa and Gina Oakley of Farmville, cousins of the bride, Sheryl Sutton of Bell Arthur and Cynthia Eastwood of Walstonburg, sisters of the bridegroom. Ivy Oakley of New Bern, cousin of the bride, was junior attendant.

Honorary bridesmaids included Connie Caraway and Beth Harrison, cousin of the bride, both of Walstonburg, Annette Sauls and Nancy Price of Goldsboro, Cindy Hardy of La Grange and Pattie Smith.

Susanna Dilda of Hookerton, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Rice girls included Vanessa and Jennifer Corbitt, cousins of the bridegroom of Bell Arthur.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Kennedy of Farmville presided at the guest register.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Michael Eastwood of Walstonburg, brother of the bridegroom, Van Jarrell of Fayetteville, Jerry Goff of Maury, Tony Oakley of Farmville, cousin of the bride, and Jeff Harrison of Walstonburg, cousin of the bridegroom. Charles Wesley Tripp of Farmville, brother of the bride, was junior usher.

Eric Lajuiness of Goldsboro, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

The couple will live in Farmville after a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va.

The bridegroom graduated from Green Central High School and works at Hexagon Honeycomb Corp. in Farmville. The bride graduated from Goldsboro Christian Schools and works at the Farmville Family Clinic.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Wesley Oakley of Farmville.

A reception was held at the DAR Chapter House in Farmville. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Oakley, uncle and aunt of the bride, received guests. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Oakley, great uncle and aunt of the bride, said goodbye. Mrs. Jimmy Tyndall of Snow Hill served cake and punch was poured by Mrs. Marl Oakley.

The parents of the bridegroom gave an after-rehearsal dinner in the Marlboro Fellowship Hall.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Notch-Year Problem: Will Congress Act?

DEAR READERS: Many retirees have written to urge me to continue to fight for their rights concerning their Social Security benefits (the "notch-year botch").

Susan Noon, legislative assistant of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, wrote in the November issue of Retirement Life, "Dear Abby Off Base on Notch-Year Babies."

I responded, "If, as Social Security officials and some members of Congress claim, there is no inequity, why then are there now numerous bills in Congress to correct their inequity?"

Susan has the last word in the January issue of Retirement Life:

DEAR ABBY: You have taught me a lot about life over the years through your column. Perhaps I can share a little something with you from my experience. I call it "Political Lesson No. 1."

It's easy to introduce a bill. Doing so can appease a lot of people back home and make them think something is being done on a given problem. But getting serious congressional action on a bill is something else.

That is why the following bills and resolutions have been introduced regarding the "notch problem":

- H.R. 1483—Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y.
- H.R. 1964—Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass.
- H.R. 1965—Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass.
- H.R. 3013—Rep. Fernand J. St. Germain, D-R.I.
- H.R. 3859—Rep. Dan Daniel, D-Va.
- H.R. 3893—Rep. James H. Quillen, R-Tenn.
- H.R. 3925—Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky.
- H.R. 3947—Rep. Don Fuqua, D-

- Fla. H.R. 4093—Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif.
- S. Con. Res. 62—Sen. Mack Mattingly, R-Ga.
- H. Con. Res. 105—Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y.
- H. Con. Res. 152—Rep. Joe Moakley, D-Mass.
- H. Con. Res. 185—Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind.
- H.J. Res. 385—Rep. Christopher Smith, R-N.J.

It is interesting to note that none of these bill sponsors is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over Social Security issues. Also, there has been no indication from Ways and Means that action on this issue will be forthcoming.

In fact, it has been estimated that applying the pre-1979 formula for computing Social Security benefits to those beneficiaries born after 1916 would cost $9 billion the first year, $20 billion the second year and more thereafter, adding up to nearly $169 billion over the next seven years. This is approximately the amount Congress grappled with when it passed the Social Security Amendments of 1983.

Some difficult and often unpalatable choices were made last spring to come up with the $168 billion in increased Social Security revenue over the next seven years. What further choices would have to be made to correct the so-called notch "problem"? Increased taxes, benefit cuts, Social Security coverage for all federal workers, windfall benefits, tampering with cost-of-living, etc. These are the areas that would be revisited once more if Congress wants to come up with the funds to reinstate the old benefit formula.

After all, Congress changed the benefit formula, in part, because the old formula overadjusted for inflation, and potentially many future beneficiaries were going to receive benefits greater than their pre-retirement earnings.

As you pointed out, Abby, there are areas of injustice all right. You can argue that those born after 1916 are unjustly penalized. You can argue that those born before 1917 are unjustly compensated. But realistically — the main question is: Will Congress do anything about it?

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE, Associated Press Food Editor

If you enjoy baking with yeast, you may be interested in the following recipe for Sweet Raisin Coffee Cake.

I like the recipe because it makes two good-size round loaves, one to serve shortly after baking, the other to put in the freezer to offer on another occasion. For example, when you are having guests for brunch.

This coffee cake has a compact, substantial texture. I particularly like it lightly toasted and spread with sweet butter.

SWEET RAISIN COFFEE BREAD

- 4 to 5 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
- 2 envelopes dry yeast
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup warm tap water
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 of a 1/4-pound stick butter (1/4 cup), cut into small pieces
- 3 large eggs
- 1 cup raisins

Egg glaze, see recipe. In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together 1 cup of the flour, the yeast, sugar and salt.

In a small saucepan heat the water, milk and butter until very warm — 120 to 130 degrees; add to the yeast mixture and beat at medium speed until smooth. Add the eggs and continue beating at medium speed until blended.

With a wooden spoon, work in the raisins and enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a lightly floured smooth surface and knead until smooth and elastic — 5 to 10 minutes. (Use only enough flour during kneading to prevent sticking.) Shape into a ball and turn into a buttered bowl; turn to butter top. Cover bowl with saran; let rise in a warm draft-free place until doubled — about 1 hour.

Punch down. Cut in half. Shape each half into a ball. Place each ball in a 1 1/2-quart buttered casserole (6 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches); or place each ball in a buttered black iron skillet (8 inches across the top and 6 inches across the bottom); or use 1 casserole and 1 skillet. Cover casseroles or skillets with saran and let rise as previously until doubled — 1 to 1 1/2 hours. Brush tops with Egg Glaze, being careful not to let any run down the sides.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven on the center rack or the rack below the center until richly browned. Turn out on wire racks; turn right side up; cool completely before slicing.

Makes 2 round loaves. Egg Glaze: Beat an egg (any size) just until yolk and white are blended. If there is any leftover, it may be freezer-stored in a tightly covered container. Thawed and used another time as a glaze.

Choice To Come

It came as no surprise in the capitals of the world ... the news of the death of Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov.

It had been known that the leader of the Soviet Union for only 15 months was ailing. He had seldom been seen in public in recent months and rumors about his health were flying in Moscow.

Many had been questioning for weeks whether the president was still alive. We may never know for certain when he died since his whereabouts during his final weeks alive were so shrouded in secrecy.

What is certain now is that after a year and a half the Soviets will be choosing a new leader, a harrowing task for the Soviet Union and for the world.

There is not a great deal to assess about Andropov's period of leadership since it was so short. He promised to clean up corruption and increase productivity, but had little time to put his programs into action. Internationally relations between the Soviet Union and the other superpower, the United States, sunk to a new low as the two nations continue to argue over arms limitations.

Whatever could have been during the Andropov reign will never be known and now it only remains to be seen if he has chosen his successor. If Andropov loyalists hold sway in the Politburo no doubt someone he selected will be elevated to the presidency. If the leadership selection process goes that smoothly we may all be fortunate. The alternative will be a giant fight among the few who rule in the Soviet Union, because of its creaky system of choosing new leaders. A bloody fight could have adverse consequences for the Soviet people and for the world.

Casting Out Spies

Among the items in the news: at least 135 Soviet diplomats and other citizens were expelled from world capitals in 1983 for spying. The number is nearly triple that of 1982.

While some see last year's figures resulting from a tougher attitude on the part of the host governments, the figures tell us that spying is virtually a routine part of Soviet foreign service.

It means that all nations are justified in watching Soviets very carefully as they serve in their countries. The diplomatic service is designed to provide dialogue between the various nations. Embassies should not become hot beds for spying. If they do then the offended country is justified in taking appropriate action.

Giant Strides

NEW YORK (AP) — A little more than a year of economic recovery has gone a long, long way for the U.S. auto industry.

After three years in the doldrums, General Motors Corp. last week reported record profits for 1983, describing it as "the turnaround year we have been working for."

To highlight its comeback from a nearly fatal run of losses, Chrysler Corp. recently announced its first dividend since the spring of 1979.

Now, industry analysts say, the next several months are shaping up as a good test of the durability of the car makers' comeback.

For one thing, notes Alfred Nelson at the investment firm of A.G. Becker Paribas Inc., car sales are on the rise without being "forced" by rebate offers, below-market loans or other promotional measures.

In addition, Nelson says, car manufacturers have had time to build up inventories of most models to the point where they can meet strong demand from consumers. For several months late last year, low inventories acted as a brake on sales.

"Auto sales are likely to continue moving higher through 1984," declares the Value Line Investment Survey in its latest quarterly appraisal of the industry outlook. "This opinion is based on our belief that there is a lot of pent-up demand for autos."

The springboard for the dramatic resurgence in the industry's profits, most analysts agree, was the cost-cutting the car makers did during their long slump. When business picked up, that allowed a lot of the extra revenue to flow straight through to the bottom line.

Another important plus has been a swing in buyers' preferences from small cars to intermediate-size and big cars. As Value Line observes, "When fuel prices were jumping, and gasoline sometimes was unavailable at any price, the public bought the small, fuel-efficient cars."

"But the mood has changed with the fuel situation, and drivers, especially the more affluent, are giving more attention to elaborate models that Detroit has always done best."

"The larger cars typically carry higher profit margins than their smaller brothers, and they also usually carry higher, and even more profitable, option loads."

Of course, restrictions on imports from Japan, which are due to be relaxed slightly this spring, have helped tilt the odds in the domestic manufacturers' favor. But even without them, Value Line analysts argue that the U.S. companies' share of the business probably would have improved because of their comparatively strong position in the larger-car market.

Beyond the improvement that has occurred in a major depressed industry, recent trends provide fresh evidence that the automobile would be awfully difficult to dislodge from its center-stage role in the daily lives of Americans.

Meese Confirmation Still Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberals soon will be scouring the public records of California, unearthing the early words and works of Edward Meese III. It may become a minor industry. They'll be searching for miscues and misdeeds and hair-raising expressions of outrageous opinion.

The liberal community in Washington — the civil rights, women's rights, labor, civil liberties lobby — has decided to try to block Senate confirmation of Meese and it needs some more ammunition.

Blocking the nomination is impossible, says the conventional wisdom.

"If President Reagan sent Jack the Ripper up here as surgeon general, he would be confirmed," Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said on the day Reagan nominated his counselor to head the Justice Department.

Paul Weyrich, director of the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress, a conservative group, doubts opponents will be able to muster 30 votes against Meese. "If you were a senator, you'd have to think very carefully about voting against Ed Meese," he says. "You'd be voting to take a direct slap at the president. I don't see that sentiment at this time."

The Senate hardly ever rejects presidential nominations, especially candidates for Cabinet posts. Senators feel presidents are entitled to pick members of their official families.

Anyway, the public can pass judgment on the whole of Reagan's record, including his choice of attorneys general, on Election Day.

Moreover, Democrats in the Senate can't have much stomach for a confirmation fight, no matter how enthusiastic their natural constituency may be for challenging Meese.

Confirmation fights are intensely personal. Even the winners are bruised. There's nothing pleasant about dwelling on someone's flaws and indiscretions on the Senate floor for days at a time.

Real pain was inflicted during the successful fights in 1969 and 1970 against Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell, both nominated by President Richard M. Nixon for the Supreme Court.

Privately, Meese's opponents admit that more about him than is now on the public record would have to surface to defeat the nomination. It would take some damaging disclosure about something he'd said or done.

That's why researchers are digging into old newspaper clippings and speeches and other records, scrutinizing the Meese record.

Meese, staunchly conservative, has always been outspoken. He says that the income tax is "immoral" and the American Civil Liberties Union is part of a "criminal's lobby." He thinks that some people go to soup kitchens not because they are poor and hungry but because the soup is free.

The Senate debate will work over Meese's role in removing administration critics from the Civil Rights Commission, seeking to end free legal services for the poor and to grant tax-exempt status to segregated private schools.

An all-out fight against Meese was pledged by the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, a loosely knit group of 160 national organizations that played a big behind-the-scenes role in the Haynsworth and Carswell battles. The National Women's Political Caucus, National Organization for Women and League of United Latin American Citizens say they're ready to fight Meese, too.

Groups like that remember who their friends are. That may cause some senators and some candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination to join in the fight this spring, even if they'd rather be off electioneering.

Pentagon Takes On Foggy Bottom

The rumor in Washington is that Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz can't get together on foreign policy. There is a further rumor that Weinberger is influencing foreign policy more than Shultz.

"This shouldn't surprise anyone," Miguel, my friend at one of the embassies in Washington, told me. "Everyone in this town knows the Pentagon is in, and Foggy Bottom is out."

"Why is that?" I wanted to know.

"Because when a country has a foreign policy based on military strength, the secretary of defense is going to have a lot more to say than the secretary of state."

"That's how much you know. The secretary of defense only carries out the policies set by the State Department," I said.

"It used to be that way, but it isn't anymore. Look at it from our point of view. When Weinberger goes globe-trotting he carries photos of new tanks, classy fighter planes, sleek ground-to-air missiles, and sexy helicopters. When George Shultz travels around the world he has nothing to show world leaders except pictures of his grandchildren.

"When Shultz talks to my colonel-president, all he tells him is that if he wants continued U.S. support, he has to get his financial house in order, hold free elections and stop beating up on the people. That's not the kind of stuff my leader wants to hear."

"Weinberger doesn't give lectures. As long as my colonel-president certifies we're anti-communist, we can have all the ground-to-air missiles and tear gas we want. If you were running my country would you rather have a visit from Shultz or Weinberger?"

"Weinberger, of course." "Our foreign minister is going to make a visit to Washington this spring and I have been setting up his itinerary. He just cabled me and wanted to know why he had to visit the State Department."

"I told him it was tradition, so he agreed to a 10-minute stop there, on the condition he could spend the rest of the day at the Pentagon."

"That's not very diplomatic."

"The Defense Department has offered the foreign minister a ride on a nuclear aircraft carrier, a flight in a B-52 bomber and a military parade in his honor at West Point. All the State Department could come up with was a visit to Disney World."

"Don't you people realize the secretary of state is the second most important position in our government?"

"Not under Reagan it isn't. Rumor has it that when George Shultz starts briefing the president on some intricate diplomatic problem, Reagan dozes off in his chair. But when Weinberger comes in with his bagful of military contingency plans, the president really perks up. Mr. Reagan loves simplistic solutions to world affairs."

"No wonder you people are tilting toward Weinberger."

"It's no contest when you have to choose between a Cabinet officer who has a $2.5 billion budget and one who has $305 billion to toss around."

Strength For Today

As soon as we begin to live, we also begin to die. Is this a ghoulish and morbid idea? Not at all.

Dying is just as much a part of life as birth. Suppose we lived on indefinitely, or even for a couple of hundred years. What would the result be? Eventually, it would transform life into an almost insupportable burden. The planet would become so crowded that we would jostle one another at every turn and be in continual conflict to secure enough food to live.

There is a loving purpose in all of God's arrangements, including death. Untimely death is horrifying, but a life of normal length, well-lived and brought to a close with not too much suffering, is just the way we would have created the world if God had let us do the job.

—Craig Webb—

Courts Still To Act On Workers Comp

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A bit of hesitation creeps into the voices of state officials when they talk about an important new workers' compensation law.

The statute appears to be doing a good job so far of making compensation payments easier for people who didn't get their back injuries through a slip, trip or fall, the administrators say. But then they quickly add that the courts have yet to have their say.

"There have not been enough cases that have been litigated for us to see the effect of the law," said William Stephenson, chairman of the industrial commission.

It was the courts that caused what eventually became the thorniest problem in all of worker compensation.

The system was set up to provide an income for people who no longer can work because of an injury suffered or illness contracted on the job — like textile mill workers who get brown lung disease.

In every other state of the country, courts ruled that an accident means anything unusual that happens in the course of work. Therefore, if a person whose job involved lifting stacks of dishes every day throws out his back one day picking up the usual dishstack, that worker can get compensation.

But that wasn't the case in North Carolina until last year. Judges in this state used a much stricter definition of accident, saying that something out of the ordinary must have led to the accident. Lawyers quickly turned this into the shorthand rule of "slip, trip or fall" — if those things didn't happen, chances for compensation were remote.

Years of lobbying by labor advocates eventually convinced the 1983 General Assembly to amend the slip, trip or fall rule to allow back injury accidents stemming from a "specific traumatic incident ... arising out of and causally related to such incident." Only injuries incurred after the law took effect July 20, 1983, are covered.

Industry representatives fought the change, and the insurance industry has estimated it will cost companies $11 million for compensation

"Do you have any word on the morale of the State Department?"

"The rumor is that they're not too happy over there. The president still lets them write nasty diplomatic notes to Nicaragua, Cuba and Canada. And every once in awhile they can call in a foreign ambassador and read the riot act to him for shipping computers to Bulgaria. But it's hard to sell the foreign country leaders on a peaceful solution to a crisis situation when Weinberger will offer to solve the same problem with 100 helicopter gunships."

"I guess what you're saying has validity, because every time you see George Shultz on television he looks very nervous, and every time Caspar Weinberger comes on the screen he doesn't seem to have a worry in the world."

"It shouldn't surprise you. Shultz deals in soft talk and Weinberger deals in hardware."

In The Area

Vehicles Entered

Greenville police are investigating a series of seven vehicle break-ins at Beau's at the Carolina East Convenience Center late Sunday night.

Officer J.M. Simonowich said $4,120 in cash was taken from the trunk of one car, owned by Betty Lou Talley of Siler City.

Simonowich said the trunk was forced open. Ms. Talley told investigators that she was enroute to South Carolina to purchase a car with the money.

Officer W.B. Price said $88 in cash was taken from a car owned by Louisa Simpson of 600 E. Tenth St., while $45 worth of clothing was stolen from a car owned by Tammy Lou Strickland of 204 N. Elm St.

Vehicles owned by Samuel Michael Weston of Raleigh, Fred Earl Gardner Jr. of Raleigh, and John David Moore of Fayetteville, were also entered, but nothing was taken, Price said.

The break-ins were reported shortly before midnight.

Collisions Reported

An estimated $2,200 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Saturday.

Officers said cars driven by Stephen Francis Donahue of 114D Riverbluff Drive and Julie Ann Edwards of Route 1, Winterville, collided about 12:05 p.m. on Tenth Street, 350 feet east of the Ernul Street intersection, causing $500 damage to the Donahue car and $1,000 damage to the Edwards auto.

Robert Andrew Jones of 103 N. Woodlawn Ave., was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6 p.m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Sixth Streets.

Investigators, who said the Jones car collided with a vehicle operated by Richard Ashe of Country Paradise Estates, set damage at $200 to the Ashe car and $600 to the Jones vehicle.

J.W. Grimes Day Set

The City Council voted to proclaim J.W. Grimes "Citizen of the Day" Tuesday "in recognition and appreciation of his faithful and meritorious service in the city."

The proclamation noted that Grimes, who is the first male graduate of North Carolina Central University, is being honored by Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church and the North Carolina Central University Alumni Association.

Grimes, a Greenville resident for approximately 40 years, was an educator for 38 years, has served as a volunteer to the Boy Scouts, has organized efforts to assist the underprivileged and aided in developing programs to care for the elderly citizens of the area, it was noted. The proclamation also pointed out Grimes' contributions and service to Cornerstone Baptist Church.

Fire/Rescue Calls

Fire/Rescue Chief Jenness Allen reported that during January the department responded to 211 calls, including 174 rescue calls and 37 fire reports.

Allen said 148 of the rescue calls were in the city and 26 were in the county. He said the department transported 134 city residents, 34 county residents and 18 non-residents.

The chief said fire/rescue personnel spent 1,228 hours in various training exercises and skills development.

Department vehicles traveled 1,343 miles on rescue calls, including 1,044 miles in the city and 299 county miles.

Commission To Meet

The Public Transportation Commission will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the public works facility on Beatty Street.

Arrest Is Made

Gene Sherwood Evans, 24, of 704 W. 14th St. was arrested about 11:05 p.m. Saturday on peeping tom charges by Greenville police.

Officer E.M. Haddock said the arrest resulted from an 11 p.m. incident at 408 Greenview Drive.

Break-In Reported

Greenville police are investigating a break-in at Fred Webb Grain Co. on North Greene Street which was reported about 12:10 p.m. Sunday.

Officers said thieves gained entrance to a building through a window, and took an air compressor valued at $400, and a pressure washer, valued at $2,000.

Alumni To Meet

The Pitt County Chapter of the A&T Alumni Association will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Bachelor Benedict Club on Wyatt St.

Dr. Charles Pontan of the Animal Science and Technology Department of A&T will conduct a special symposium. Plans for the March fund-raising project will also be discussed.

parents dialing for help are to give the following information: name, grade and the subject area in which help is needed. The student or parent will be referred to the proper teacher or volunteer.

Award Is Given

Greenville resident Tom Forrest is being featured in the March issue of "Mechanics Illustrated" and has received the magazine's Golden Hammer award for a carved rocking horse.

Forrest is a two-time winner of the Golden Hammer award. A retired rural letter carrier of 30 years, he made the rocking horse for his granddaughter, Susan Forrest of Winterville. The article includes photographs of Forrest in his workshop and Susan with the horse. Forrest said the horse was made from wood of 2 by 10-inch fir and laminated basswood, with oak wood for the rockers. It was then carved to scale using a model toy horse.

Forrest won his first Golden Hammer award in July, 1970, for a miniature grandfather clock pocket watch holder. In 1955, he received a certificate for a television set cabinet he built.

The magazine awards a Golden Hammer award each month for an outstanding project in wood working.

Health Fair Held

The 10th annual Pitt County Medical Auxiliary Health Fair, held Feb. 8-9 at St. Peter's School Hall, was attended by approximately 350 fourth grade students and their teachers from five local elementary schools.

Each school selected three of its top posters depicting good health habits to be displayed at the fair. Those posters, and others, were also entered in a poster drawing contest. Following the fair, the posters were given to local doctors and dentists to display in their offices.

First place winners in the poster contest included:

South Greenville — Mongo Alfred, Sheila Carter, Richie Grimsley, Erin Shumaker, Michael Carmon, Heather McKinney.

Wahl-Coates — Paula Song, Rodney Williams, Garrick Yarnell, Teresa Stocks, Christian Porter.

Saint Peter's — Evan Sinar.

St. Gabriel's — Sam Brooks.
Carolina Country Day — Kim Brookbank.

Two Wrecks Friday

Cars driven by John Frank Ward of Route 11, Greenville and Leah Mariece Force of Riverbluff Apartments, collided about 4:05 p.m. Friday on Tenth Street, 275 feet west of the Rocksprings Road intersection.

Police, who charged Force with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage from the collision at $300 to the Ward car and $700 to the Force car.

Officers are looking for an unidentified car and its driver in connection with an 11:24 p.m. hit-and-run incident on Charles Street, 250 feet south of the Elm Street intersection.

Investigators said a car driven by Conney Earl Meeks of Grimesland was struck in the rear by another car, which left the scene.

Damage to the Meeks vehicle was estimated at $1,000.

Counselor Honored

Mrs. Jean Creech, senior counselor and chairperson of the guidance department at Rose High School, is the recipient of The Order of the Long Leaf Pine from Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. The order was presented to Mrs. Creech by State Rep. Ed Warren during an appreciation banquet honoring Mrs. Creech held at the Quail Ridge Party Room.

The certificate, a state one, acknowledges Mrs. Creech for the integrity, learning and zeal she has displayed during her career.

Persons at the reception cited Mrs. Creech for devotion and outstanding work in the areas of teaching, counseling and Southern Association work. She is a member of the N. C. State Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and was the first classroom teacher in North Carolina chosen to serve on the committee. She is also coordinator of the District I association.

Refreshments were prepared and served by the food services classes of Mrs. Elaine Tschetter, and music was provided by Mrs. Joann Bath and Rose High students Andrea Bath, Elizabeth Ellen, and Amy and Carol Moore. Teachers, parents, students and former students and members of the Greenville Board of Education attended the reception honoring Mrs. Creech.

Dial-A-Teacher Programs Begins

Today is the beginning of a new activity in the city schools — the Dial-A-Teacher program. The DAT is designed so that students can dial for homework assistance in math, science, social studies and English/language arts.

The number to dial is 752-4192 during the hours of 6 to 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

According to Carolyn Ferebee, Community Schools director for the city schools, the program is designed to: assist students with their specific homework problems as a follow-up and reinforcement of classroom teaching; to help parents who help their children with homework; to guide students through processing information and problem-solving; to establish good study and listening habits; to refer students to the library and explain its functions.

The program is staffed by teachers and volunteers. Students or Reading stories to your child is another good way to develop communication skills. Stories introduce new words and ideas to the child. As you read, ask him questions about the story or have him retell the story in his own words.

To develop gross motor skills have your child catch and throw a large, soft ball. For balance, have him jump off the floor with both feet and land on both feet without falling.

The muscles used for writing can be developed by tearing scrap paper and newspaper into small bits. Crayons and pencils scribbled on paper or newspaper will also help develop fine motor skills. Using a pair of blunt scissors to cut fringe on a piece of paper is another good exercise for fine muscle development.

The quality of your relationship with your child is critical to his development. If you are warm and affectionate, you will be an effective teacher helping your child learn new skills that he will build on as he grows.

Even though the southeast is usually blessed with mild winter temperatures nursery systems for weaning pigs are still a good investment. Performance of the pig after weaning is determined by his genetic potential, management, environment and nutritional conditions in which he is raised.

We are all taught that weaning stresses present a great challenge to young pigs. If we can diminish these stresses then we can get off to a good start of raising pigs.

Weaning stresses fall into three categories: environmental, social and nutritional. Environmental stresses are items such as poor sanitation, poor ventilation, drafts, chilling temperatures, diseases and penning conditions.

Young pigs weaned at four weeks generally go off feed and burn up much of their body fat which decreases thermal insulation.

Four-week-old pigs require an initial temperature of about 85 degrees Fahrenheit which can be dropped by about one degree F. every two days. Daily variations in temperature of more than two degrees F. can cause scours and poor performance.

Wet concrete floors and metal slats can also chill young pigs and can equate to a 10-15 degree F. drop in temperature. One of the many advantages of decks is that they will keep pigs drier and thus eliminate this temperature drop.

Fire ants also thrive near and around nurseries since they can tunnel through the walls and floors and attack the tender succulent flesh of young pigs. Care should be exercised to eliminate fire ant beds in and around the farrowing house and nursery even in cold weather. I have observed some severe reactions and even death in young pigs as a result of fire and bites.

Gloom, Doom In Forecast

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite large tobacco surpluses and stagnant markets, the general manager of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. is optimistic the grower-owned cooperative is headed for better days.

"We've been in a period of uncertainty since the fall of 1981," Fred G. Bond said. "But I think we're in a period now where we can see some stability in the market, and I am more optimistic now than in the last two years."

Stabilization uses borrowed government funds to buy tobacco that fails to bring at least 1 cent per pound more than the government support price. The tobacco is then held in storage until it can be resold to private companies.

Bond and other Stabilization officials reaffirmed their optimism in the wake of a recent warning from a farm economist at North Carolina State University.

Dr. William D. Toussaint said the cooperative and federal tobacco program "cannot survive for more than three or four years unless" there are changes in economic trends and government policies.

"Without Stabilization, you can't have a (tobacco) program as we know it," Toussaint said.

Toussaint said Stabilization has been hurt by "background problems" such as a decline in U.S. cigarette production, a decrease in tobacco exports and an increase in flue-cured tobacco production worldwide in the past decade. He said production has grown from 4 billion pounds to 7.6 billion pounds a year.

Toussaint predicts Stabilization will take in another 150 million to 250 million pounds of tobacco from the 1984 crop. He makes that prediction despite an 11.5 percent reduction in the federal marketing quota, the amount of tobacco farmers will be allowed to sell this year.

Bond is more optimistic. "We are not projecting that volume," Bond said. "We have made plans for '84 of taking in about 125 million pounds of tobacco. Who knows, the market may improve here and overseas. So there are indications prevalent (that) we should be able to handle the tobacco from the '84 crop."

Toussaint has also said that the assessment fee farmers pay to keep the tobacco program in business — 7 cents per pound — will only bring in $60 million. That will pay less than half of the interest charges, which Toussaint estimated will be $130 million on all inventory in stock.

If Toussaint's calculations are correct, Stabilization cannot meet its financial obligations unless it sells more of its inventory than it takes in, Bond said.

"Our board has considered ways and means to achieve this objective since last May," Bond said. "Our number one objective is to sell more tobacco than we handle from the '84 crop and to realize a net reduction in inventories by year end."

Bill W. Hill, president of the cooperative, wrote in a recent issue of "The Flue Cured Tobacco Farmer" that he couldn't "be overly optimistic about Stabilization while available stocks worldwide are in such surplus."

George S. Dunlop, agriculture aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said the "huge stocks being held by Stabilization are a very serious problem."

Chickens Laying The Golden Eggs

By The Associated Press

The Avian flu that has hit chicken flocks in Pennsylvania has been "a lifesaver" for many egg processors throughout North Carolina, according to farmers.

Faced with overproduction a couple of years ago, egg producers began to trim the size of their flocks. Then this year an outbreak of deadly avian influenza caused the deaths of millions of laying hens, throwing supply and demand out of balance.

Egg prices have hit an all-time high, and demand has been strong. Easter, traditionally a big time for eggs, is just around the corner.

Tommy Neal, a Cleveland County egg producer and processor, said that the influenza "has just been a lifesaver for a lot of producers. You hate to prosper at somebody else's expense, but a lot of people were just about on the verge of getting out of business 'til this flu hit."

"It's been a long time coming," said Gary Clay, manager of the Cargill Inc. egg processing plant in Albemarle. "We lost a lot of producers in the past couple years when things were bad, but now, for the ones that hung on, they're finally enjoying their reward."

"I don't think anybody thought it would be this good," Clay said. "I certainly didn't plan on it."

In the past year, the wholesale price for a dozen Grade A large eggs has shot from 65 cents to $1.15, Clay said. On Jan. 30, the wholesale price $1.19 a dozen, the highest price ever, according to United Egg Producers, a trade group.

The past three years of low egg prices, dwindling overseas markets and overproduction forced about 2,200 egg producers out of business, leaving about 3,800 producers nationwide.

Ken Klippen, a spokesman for United Egg Producers, said the three years were like a depression for producers.

Now, it's consumers who are getting depressed.

Last week, retail prices at stores were ranging from $1.19 to $1.23 for a dozen large eggs.

"You do hear some consumer complaints, and it's hard for consumers to get used to these higher prices," said Joanne Ivy, director of North Carolina Egg Marketing Association, a Raleigh-based trade group. "But you have to remember that eggs were an underpriced commodity in the past few years."

Prospects Are Cloudy

By The Associated Press

Prospects for $465 million in federal loan guarantees and price supports for a peat mining plant project are cloudy as sponsors of the plant go before federal officials this week.

A spokesman for Peat Methanol Associates, a private developer of the Washington County project, said last week more investors have been lined up to help provide the necessary $172 million in private equity.

Robert W. Fri, president of Energy Transitions Corp., said the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp. board of directors will be told Thursday who the new investors are and that they are "ready to go forward."

But Edward E. Noble said at a congressional hearing Jan. 25 that he wouldn't predict when the federal agency would issue a final contract on the project.

The House subcommittee of the energy and commerce panel also is looking at a briefing paper received from the Congressional Research Service. Researcher Paul Rothberg said final approval wasn't likely.

"SFC (Synfuels) may soon withdraw its letter of intent (to approve the project) because the sponsors may be unable to raise the equity portions of the project," Rothberg wrote.

"Even if this financial problem is solved, SFC may decide not to support the project because its sponsors may face legal challenges and regulatory delays that could make project competition extremely difficult."

The legal challenges come from a lawsuit filed in federal District Court in Raleigh by the National Wildlife Federation.

POSTAL EXAM

(CLERK CARRIER)

STARTING PAY $10.56/HR

Men and women, regardless of age or experience...if you want to work for the U.S. Postal Service, you must sign up at the Greenville Post Office or any other post office in the 278 zip code area between February 13th and February 17th to be eligible to take the local Postal Exam. Since it won't be given again for at least two to three years, don't miss out!

It is possible to get a very high score with adequate preparation. From years of experience and discussions with our Advisory Board (consisting of former postmasters, training managers and examiners), we know that it takes exactly 4 hours to teach everything you need to know to get a score of 95% or better — which is what you'll need to get a job.

4-HOUR WORKSHOP: Score 95-100% or Your Tuition is Refunded

We have helped thousands of people successfully prepare for the Clerk-Carrier exam. But don't take our word for it, take our guarantee! Come to the workshop. If you don't feel, at the end of the course, that it will help you achieve a score of 95% or better, don't pay for the workshop! Furthermore, if your final score is less than 95% after using our techniques, we will refund your tuition in full!

The guarantee is significant because it is necessary for you to get 95% or better to qualify you for one of the clerk or carrier jobs expected to open up during the next three years. We believe 4 hours of workshop along with a dozen take-home practice exams are needed for you to accomplish this.

Benefits derived from this course extend far beyond the postal exam. The skills and attitudes will help in every area of future learning and test-taking.

★ You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal exam review.

★ You may attend as many extra sessions of the workshop as you like (on a space available basis) without additional tuition charge.

WORKSHOP TUITION — $35 (Includes 4-hour Workshop, The Corey Guide to Postal Exams, Sample Exam with Answers, Workshop Workbook, and Take-Home Practice Kit containing: Practice Exams with Answers, Flash Cards, and "Simulated Exam" on cassette tape.) Please bring two No. 2 pencils with you to the Workshop.

Seating is limited; pre-registration by phone is advised. Otherwise, you may register by arriving thirty minutes early. Tuition is payable at the door by cash, check, money order, Mastercharge, VISA or American Express.

Flood Threat In Warm Midwest, Northeast

By RON SIRAK

Associated Press Writer
Unseasonable warmth in the Midwest and Northeast today threatened snowmelt flooding while the Gulf Coast recoiled from severe thunderstorms that dumped up to 8 inches of rain, spawned more than 20 tornadoes and packed gusts of 95 mph.

The Colorado Rockies, meanwhile, braced for up to 8 inches of new snow today.

Record highs were posted early today at South Bend, Ind., where it was 58, and at Marquette, Mich., which hit 41. That followed new highs for the date Sunday in at least 28 cities from Michigan to Maine and as far south as Georgia.

The unusually warm weather brought dense fog that closed airports, snarled traffic and has been blamed for at least six deaths since the middle of last week. Another person drowned Sunday trying to save his dog, which had fallen through the ice on a pond.

Twisters tore through parts of Texas, Louisiana, Missouri and Kansas over the weekend. Winds gusted to 95 mph Sunday near LaPoint, Texas and 8 inches of rain poured down at the Sam Rayburn Reservoir in east Texas, the National Weather Service said.

At the Dallas-Fort Worth airport, 25 passenger jets were forced out of service after being bombarded by golf-ball-sized hail, cancelling 103 flights Sunday and 73 flights today, a spokeswoman for American Airlines said.

"The tornadoes along the Gulf Coast appear to be over," said Hugh Crowther of the Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo. "But the unseasonably warm weather will continue today for the Midwest and the East coast."

Crowther predicted flooding in parts of Ohio and Indiana as a result of snowmelt and rain.

In Ohio, where the mercury soared Sunday to 73 in Marietta, the weather service issued flood warnings overnight for the Tiffin River and the Maumee River in Williams County in the northwest part of the state. Forecasters said heavy rains predicted today could create flooding along other streams in northern Ohio.

Lowland flooding was forecast in Indiana along the Wabash River from Lafayette in Tippecanoe County to Riverton in Sullivan County. Crests as high as three feet above flood stage were predicted this week.

Spring-like weather blanketed much of the eastern third of the nation Sunday, with Portland, Maine, reaching a record 51 degrees. In Athens, Ga., where just last week the mercury fell below freezing, it was a toasty 77. Charleston, W.Va., had a record 72, while Boston checked in at 58, Indianapolis hit 66 and Knoxville, Tenn. was 75.

The accompanying dense fog played havoc with highways in parts of the East Coast, southern Minnesota and northern Indiana. In Indiana, two traffic deaths and the death of a pilot in a small plane crash have been blamed on the fog since Friday.

One person died in a traffic accident in dense fog early Sunday in Wisconsin. Two people were killed in a plane crash in heavy fog last Thursday at Lincoln, Kan.

Kenneth Perkins, 65, of Coventry, R.I., drowned Sunday when he tried to rescue his dog which had fallen through the weakened ice of Johnson's Pond, authorities said. In Stony Creek, Conn., two passersby saved another dog by throwing rocks and logs into a pond, breaking a path through ice and allowing the dog to swim to shore.

Incoming flights to Baltimore-

Washington and Greater Wilmington (Del.) airports were halted by fog Sunday morning, but both airports reported that planes did take off, although with delays.

Fog also halted landings Sunday at Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport.

Twisters that tore through Texas and Louisiana on Sunday hit hardest outside the rural south-central Louisiana town of Arnaudville, where St. Landry Deputy Milton Hargroder reported one house destroyed, a mobile home overturned and three people suffered cuts.

Tornadoes extensively damaged two eastern Texas towns late Saturday, and five tornadoes were spotted Sunday in and around San Antonio, the weather service reported. Southside San Antonio businesses were damaged and utility service interrupted, but no injuries were reported.

Three tornadoes caused minor damage Saturday in eastern Kansas, and a twister at Independence, Mo., uprooted trees.

'Fleeced' By Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire today gave his monthly "Golden Fleece" award to a regional office of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration for "flatly mismanaging $64 million of capital improvement projects" between January 1981 and May 1983.

"Look no further for the classic case of runaway federal spending," said Proxmire in announcing the award, given for what he considers "wasteful or ridiculous use of taxpayers' money."

The Fort Worth, Texas, mass transit office received 399 applications for local transportation projects and accepted all but one, said Proxmire, D-Wis.

He said federal auditors found the office had, among other things, awarded grants to build garages for buses that didn't exist, to buy spare parts that weren't needed and to replace trolley buses whose ridership averaged less than two passengers per trip.

Over a 29-month period office managers took 44 trips to attend various conferences and meetings but only seven to visit projects that were funded, Proxmire said.

He said federal auditors had found "one horror story after another" at the office.

"I think it's unfair for us who are presently here to be hit with that report," responded Scott Tuxhorn, deputy regional administrator of the office, who said the problems cited arose before he and the current regional administrator took office last summer.

Tuxhorn said, "I just wish if he were going to do this that it could be done (in a) timely (way)."

Devoting Time To EDB Search

RALEIGH (AP) — Twenty inspectors and six chemists in the state Department of Agriculture are postponing some routine work in order to check grain products for the pesticide ethylene dibromide.

Changes in federal rules applying to EDB have meant that all inspectors and half of the 12 chemists in the Food and Drug Protection Division must spend their time checking grain products, according to division director Leonard F. Blanton.

Products containing more than 150 parts of EDB per billion must be removed from stores.

Department inspectors normally check about 5,000 grocery stores and warehouses where food and drugs are sold to make sure the products are safe. But Blanton said that routine work has been postponed until EDB contaminated products are located and removed from the shelves.

Concern Grows Over When The Dollar Falls

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The bigger they come, the harder they fall," goes an old saying that people are starting to apply to the robust U.S. dollar. And concern is growing that when the dollar falls, the nation's economic good times may well tumble, too.

Nobody is talking yet about a return to the long and painful recession of 1981-82, when unemployment rose to the highest level in more than four decades. In fact, almost every economist sees continued recovery at least through the rest of this year.

But several top government economic officials — including the normally upbeat Treasury Secretary Donald Regan — used the word "recession" in talking about future risks during congressional hearings last week.

And Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said that though huge federal deficits would likely be the real reason for any new business downturn, a steep drop in the dollar could well be the immediate cause.

The value of the dollar relative to most other nations' currencies has been rising for several years, and there is wide agreement among traders, government officials and private analysts that a sizable decline is due — perhaps overdue. And once that decline starts, they say, there's no telling how far it could go.

The reasons for a possibly abrupt decline, ironically, are partly the same as the reasons that drove up the dollar's value in the first place.

David Ernst, an international analyst with Evans Economics in Washington, summed it up, saying that "right now, there's a balance between fear and greed" in international exchange activity.

"There has been a lot of greed in taking advantage of high U.S. interest rates and the strong stock market," he said. "But now the fear is coming out. People are starting to get worried."

In other words, high rates in the United States, coupled with declining inflation, an obviously recovering economy and a stable political system, have encouraged strong investment in this nation the past several years, driving up the value of the dollar.

But by many accounts, foreigners' confidence is beginning to be eroded by recent indications that the U.S. government deficit may remain at record or near-record levels, perhaps reviving inflation and pushing interest rates to risky as well as attractive levels.

If foreigners should begin turning to other nations' currencies for their investment, that would lower the dollar's value at least somewhat. And that wouldn't be all bad news since it would improve exchange conditions for American companies that export.

The trouble is that the United States has grown to rely heavily on that foreign money to finance a budget deficit that has now reached nearly $200 billion a year. If the money is withdrawn, Volcker said,

U.S. credit markets would have to take up the slack and the resulting squeeze on available money could cause "further pressure on interest rates that could eventually produce a recession."

Ernst said, "Basically, the question is how fast will the dollar fall and how much."

"I wouldn't be surprised if a pretty steep decline in the dollar could add a couple of points to interest rates," he said. And that increase could badly damage such industries as housing by making it harder for Americans to buy houses and other items normally bought on credit.

A big drop, he said, "if not sending the economy back into recession, would slow us down a lot."

Too Late For Transplanting

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Doctors say they cannot go through with plans to transplant the liver of a traffic accident victim who died four days after his life was prolonged because he coughed.

Alan Supergan, 20, of Glenview, died Saturday of heart failure despite four days on a life-support system.

Supergan, who suffered extensive brain injury in a highway accident Feb. 4, had been ruled brain-dead and was being readied for organ-removal surgery Feb. 7 when he coughed slightly. That prompted new attempts to revive him.

A specialist at University of Tennessee hospital, where Supergan's liver had been destined, said the organ is no longer usable because of deterioration while Supergan was on life support.

Haitian Facing Piracy Charge

NEW YORK (AP) — A Haitian army corporal faces a charge of air piracy after attempting to commandeer an American Airlines flight from Port-au-Prince, Haiti, to New York, officials said.

Jean Phillippe Windsor, 34, was scheduled for arraignment in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn today. He turned over a submachine gun to the pilot during the flight, and surrendered to FBI agents after the plane landed late Saturday night, officials said.

Flight 658 was preparing for take-off en route to New York's Kennedy Airport when Windsor, who was not a scheduled passenger, entered the plane and demanded to be flown to New York, authorities said.

FBI spokeswoman Susan Bailliere said Sunday the man was "fleeing to the U.S." but declined to confirm whether he'd asked for asylum.

Superchicken

In 1970, Perdue Farms began crossbreeding for a better broiler. Since then, the White Rock Cornish hybrid has grown more meaty and tender through genetics and nutrition. For the growers, these and other advancements have meant improved feed conversion, faster growing flocks, and extra pay for a better product. For example, in 1973 it took 60 days to produce a 4.4 lb. broiler. Today it takes only 52 days.

Perdue still spends more than most companies on research and quality control. In the highly competitive poultry business, standing still won't keep you ahead. That's why Perdue's veterinarians, nutritionists, and geneticists keep working to develop a "Superchicken." In the meantime, the market for Perdue's superior chicken increases every year. In fact we're planning to open a second shift at our Robersonville processing plant to help us meet this growing demand. As a result of our expansion, Perdue needs 145 more broiler houses. So if you're a North Carolina farmer who'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-4151 or send in the coupon below.

'Selling' A Video Yearbook

DURHAM (AP) — A former Duke University student says his idea of enabling students to record their college days on videotape was a dream he just could not drop.

"Video yearbooks was (a) ... dream and if I didn't try it, I knew I would regret it some day," Bob Levitan said.

"When I graduated, I had some offers from ad agencies in New York. But I had had one idea already and didn't act on it. I decided not to let this one slip through my fingers," he said.

Levitan's video yearbook is a different kind of yearbook, one without paper or frozen images.

Levitan, 22, got started on the idea when he began recording his college days in 1981 at Duke. He was then the head of Duke's student cable television station and began recording an hour's worth of sporting events, interviews and scenes of campus life.

People kept looking at Levitan's version of 1981. He decided to re-edit the tape down to 40 minutes and started selling copies at $45 each. Eventually, more than 100 were sold.

Then the Duke Library bought a copy. Levitan said about 1,000 students have checked out the library's copy of the yearbook. The Duke Alumni association bought a copy and has been using it for recruiting students and entertaining alumni.

After he graduated, Levitan incorporated Video Ventures, whose major subsidiary is "Yearlook," which is now selling the idea at other college campuses. Brown University and the University of Pennsylvania, as well as Duke, have hired the company to make yearbooks on videotape.

"We're selling it like a printed yearbook," Levitan said. "We go to a campus, get the students interested and sign a contract. We provide the expertise and the money. The students actually shoot the tape; they know their own schools and we want to capture that mood," he said.

Levitan handles the marketing of the video yearbooks. Usually the tapes are about 30 minutes long and sell for $39.50. He returns $4 to $7 per tape to the school or campus organization that did the work, he said.

Levitan said his films are not always favorable to the schools.

"The students produce these and sometimes there are negative things," he said. "For example, in the Duke one a student says Duke is too strict socially."

"But the overall statement is positive and it comes across as honest," he said. "You're eye to eye with students and you catch the campus mood better."

But the selling is slow and seasonal, so Levitan is trying to expand into other areas. He is making commercials and selling tapes of special events, such as birthdays, weddings, baptisms and holiday greetings.

His company is also involved in taping wills and resumes.

Hold 4 In Robberies

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Four Shelby men have been charged in connection with six of 10 armed robberies in Cleveland County since the first of the year, according to law enforcement officials.

James Edward Lawrence, 21, was charged with three counts each of armed robbery and second-degree kidnapping and four counts of conspiracy.

James M. McCleve, 20, was charged with three counts each of armed robbery, conspiracy and second-degree kidnapping.

Keith Lamont Ross, 26, was charged with three counts of armed robbery and two counts each of conspiracy and second-degree kidnapping.

Ricky Lee Glover, 23, was charged with armed robbery, second-degree kidnapping, conspiracy and breaking and entering.

The four men are being held in the Cleveland County jail.

Since Jan. 1, robbers have hit 10 fast-food and convenience stores in Shelby, Kings Mountain and unincorporated parts of the county, Cleveland County Sheriff Buddy McKinney said Sunday.

McKinney said that is the largest concentration of armed robberies he has seen in the county in 11 years with the department.

Two weeks ago, the sheriff's department, along with the Shelby and Kings Mountain police departments, met with the State Bureau of Investigation and decided to pool their efforts, McKinney said.

McKinney estimates the bandits collected a total of less than $1,000 in all 10 of the robberies.

BOMB DISPOSAL
ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Military police safely detonated an unexploded bomb found by a gardener near a road outside the capital, a spokesman for the Caribbean Security Forces said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lapsed into a broad decline today after the mild rally that began on Friday faded.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 7.96 Friday, fell back 7.64 to 1,153.06 by noontime today. Losers outnumbered gainers by more than 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was relatively quiet, as expected, with many banks and other investing institutions closed in observance of Lincoln's birthday. The government securities and money markets did not operate today.

Stock staged a modest rally Friday, bringing at least a temporary halt to the slide of the past five weeks. From Jan. 6 through last Thursday's close, the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 125.94 points.

Blue-chip issues posting losses included International Business Machines, down 1 at 108½; General Electric, down ¾ at 52¼, and General Motors, off ½ at 68¾.

Getty Oil rose ¼ to 125¼ and Texaco slipped ⅝ to 39½. The Federal Trade Commission gave its conditional approval to Texaco's plans to acquire Getty.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .63 to 89.44. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .87 at 206.10.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 32.59 million shares at noontime, against 42.82 million at the same point Friday.

House Approves Sum For Dismal Refuge

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. House of Representatives last week authorized $22 million for land acquisition and $12.1 million for development of the Great Dismal Swamp National Wildlife Refuge. Congressman Walter Jones, whose district includes the North Carolina portion of the refuge, called the passage of the bill "vital to the development of our national wildlife refuge system." Jones said that in addition to conserving important wildlife species and critical habitat, the refuge would "provide interpretive and educational programs allowing the public to attain an in-depth understanding of the values of fish and wildlife resources." "There has been an urgent need for prompt action" because the integrity of the refuge has been threatened by the potential private purchase, partitioning and draining of a key Virginia tract designated for acquisition, Jones said. "I have been assured that the Senate will bring this measure to final passage without delay." The Great Dismal Refuge was created in 1974 and includes 113,094 acres in North Carolina and Virginia, of which some 10,850 acres remain to be acquired. The North Carolina acreage still to be acquired totals 4,226 acres in Camden, Gates and Pasquotank Counties. Value of the land is estimated at $3.59 million. The refuge includes the only breeding population of black bears in eastern Virginia, and a small mammal unique to the swamp, the Dismal Swamp short-tailed shrew.

Repairing Defect In Pacemakers

LANCASTER, Pa. — Surgeons will be busy for about a month fixing a potentially hazardous defect in pacemakers implanted in patients between 1980 and 1982, doctors say. The problem involves insulation on a wire, and by Sunday 32 patients had undergone operations to correct the defect, said Dr. Richard Gentzler, a cardiologist at Lancaster General Hospital. Under certain conditions, the wire could short-circuit, causing the patient to lose consciousness, he said. The pacemaker manufacturer, Medtronic Inc. of Minneapolis, had alerted hospitals to potential defects. But a study at Lancaster found more frequent problems than Medtronic's statistics suggested, said Gentzler. The Food and Drug Administration also plans to investigate, said agency spokesman Bill Grigg in Washington.

Streeter, both of Maury; 17 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

So Warm..

By 10 a.m. today the mercury had already reached a balmy 69 degrees F.

In Greenville, East Carolina University sunbathers preparing for the upcoming spring break lined the campus, armed with magazines and sunshades. This morning most students said pink faces were all they had to show for their day in the sun.

Those who ventured beyond their back yard took to the city's parks and recreation facilities. A spokesman for Greenville Recreation and Parks Department said traffic in the city's parks this weekend was very heavy, especially Green Springs and Peppermint parks. In addition, said the spokesman, the tennis courts "stayed very crowded all day."

Golfers took advantage of the weather also as area courses reported heavy use. "It was like a summer Saturday," said Gordon Fulp of Greenville Golf and Country Club. "We had a lot of people playing this weekend."

In the county, most farmers coaxed their tractors into action and turned over fields for the first time. A combination of dry soil and warm temperatures made working conditions in the fields "near ideal" said local agriculture officials.

Rain was expected to spread into the eastern part of the state late today and continue into Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service. Temperatures, however, will remain mild through mid-week with highs in the 60's and lows in the 40's.

The body will be at Norcott Memorial Chapel in Ayden from 6 p.m. Tuesday until carried to the church one hour before the funeral. Family visitation at the chapel will be from 8-9 p.m. Tuesday and at other times the family will be at the home of his sister, Miss Ruth E. Streeter of Maury.

Turner
PARMELE — Mr. Ernest Turner died in Martin General Hospital Saturday. He was the father of Mrs. Fannie Keel of P.O. Box 552, Robersonville. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flanagan Funeral Home, Greenville.

Mrs. W.B. Jones Dies

FARMVILLE — Mrs. Dot Long Jones, 69, wife of U.S. Congressman Walter B. Jones and mother of N.C. State Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr., died this morning in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Her funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church here by the Rev. Ronald Lee Davis. Burial will be in Forest Hill Cemetery here.

Mrs. Jones, a native of Edenton, was a longtime resident of Farmville and a member of the First Baptist Church of Farmville.

Surviving her, in addition to her husband and son, both of Farmville, are a daughter, Mrs. Bob R. Moye of Farmville; four grandchildren; and a brother, Joseph Judson Long Jr. of Smithfield.

The family will receive friends at the Farmville Funeral Home tonight from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Armstrong Gives U.S. First Gold

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Debbie Armstrong, in only her second year on the U.S. ski team, became the first American gold medalist at the 1984 Winter Games today, leading a 1-2 U.S. sweep of the giant slalom.

The gold medal was the first for an American woman in the giant slalom since Andrea Mead-Lawrence won the event at the 1952 Games in Oslo, Norway.

After a slow start, the U.S. team was on its way with a vengeance. The pairs team of Kitty and Peter Carruthers put the Americans on the chart with a silver in the figure skating competition on Sunday.

Today, Armstrong, of Seattle, and Christin Cooper of Sun Valley, Idaho, took the top two spots in the giant slalom in commanding fashion. Armstrong, second to Cooper after the morning's first run, turned in a time of 1 minute, 12.01 seconds over the second run to win in 2:20.98.

Cooper had a time of 2:21.38 — 1:08.87 on the first run and 1:12.51 on the second run.

Perrine Pelen of France won the bronze medal in 2:21.40, nearly a half second behind the 20-year-old Armstrong. Pelen had also won a bronze in the event at the Lake Placid Games in 1980.

Tamara McKinney of Squaw Valley, Calif., eighth after one run, had 1:11.72, the fastest time over the second course, to move into fourth, missing a 1-2-3 U.S. sweep by .43 seconds.

The United States had agonized through the first five days of the Games without even so much as a bronze medal until the Carruthers, a brother and sister duo from Wilmington, Del., finished second in the pairs to world champions Elena Valova and Oleg Vasiliev of the Soviet Union.

In the morning, three-time world champion Scott Hamilton of Denver took a commanding lead after the compulsory figures of the men's figure skating.

Then, with the strong U.S. women's ski team hoping to further take up the slack, Cooper and Armstrong stood 1-2 after the first run of the giant slalom. They were only one-tenth of a second apart and nearly three-quarters of a second ahead of Blanca Fernandez-Ochoa of Spain.

It was a lock. All they had to do was stay on their skis. Armstrong turned in a near perfect second run, charging down the hill in her peppermint-pink and white giant slalom suit, bearing the hopes of the U.S. team. Cooper had a little trouble at the top of the hill, and that probably cost her the gold.

But the two embraced in the finish area, jubilant over carrying their country's colors to victory. The gold medal was the first in Alpine skiing for the United States since Barbara Cochran won the slalom at Sapporo, Japan, in 1972.

McKinney, the 1983 World Cup champion who lives in Lexington, Ky. and trains in Squaw Valley, Calif., recovered from a poor first run of 1:10.11, which had her more than a second off the lead, with the day's fastest second run.

"I'm in shock," Kitty Carruthers said when the couple won the first medal for the U.S. team. "I've never been happier in my whole life. I knew it right before the start. I looked at Pete, and I knew it was going to be magic. This is the best we've ever skated."

There was hope for further U.S. figure skating success in Judy Blumberg and Michael Seibert, who were third halfway through the ice dancing competition. The medals will be decided in Tuesday's free dance.

East Germany led the medals standings after winning gold and silver in the women's 1,000-meter speed skating today. Karin Enke became the first triple medalist of the Games, skating the 1,000-meters in an Olympic record time of 1:21.61. She now has two gold and a silver. The No. 2 finish by Andrea Schoene gave East Germany 14 medals to 13 for the Soviet Union. The East Germans also led the Soviets in gold medals, 6-3.

Lydia Stephens of North Brook, Ill., was 13th.

Sweden's Gunde Svann took his second medal of the Games, winning the gold in the 15-kilometer cross-country in 41:25.6 ahead of two Finns. It was Sweden's second gold. Dan Simoneau of Eugene, Ore., was 18th and Bill Koch, also of Eugene, finished 27th.

Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean continued to improve on perfection in ice dancing, which they led after Sunday's original set pattern, and they were heavy favorites to give Britain its first gold medal.

The schedule for the Alpine skiing was scrambled again by the residue of a snowstorm that has closed rail lines, stranded thousands of motorists and mobilized tens of thousands of people in rescue efforts across the country.

Bonnett Wins Busch Clash

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Neil Bonnett had his mind made up. The place to be was second — until the proper moment.

That moment came on the last lap of Sunday's $170,000 Busch Clash, when Bonnett roared past leader Buddy Baker to win the 50-mile dash and the $50,000 first prize.

"When the race started, I knew I wanted to go to second," said Bonnett, who successfully defended his victory in 1983 and became the first driver to win twice in the 20-lap sprint for the previous year's pole winners.

"He (Baker) didn't have any option," Bonnett explained. "He had to lead or wind up back farther, because I wasn't going to be first."

"They couldn't drive me out of second with a bulldozer once I got it," he added. "That's just the place to be at Daytona going into the last lap."

"When that last lap started, I knew I was in the driver's seat for a Daytona slingshot."

The winner, driving a Budweiser-sponsored Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS in his first race for the newly combined team of Junior Johnson and Warner Hodgdon, went low on the track coming out of the second turn of the last lap.

He shot past Baker, dragging Cale Yarborough along in his slipstream.

That's the way it ended, with Bonnett crossing the finish line less than two car lengths ahead of Yarborough's Monte Carlo, with Baker third in a Ford Thunderbird.

"I thought third place was the right place," Yarborough said. "I was planning on taking both Bonnett and Baker on the last lap, but somebody went into the turn strong and got me up high. I just couldn't recover in time to get both of them."

Mason Downs ECU

FAIRFAX, Va. — East Carolina University's Lady Pirates scored 10 unanswered points to erase a 53-41 margin late in the game, but George Mason held off the rally for a 58-54 ECAC-South victory Sunday.

Delphine Mabry scored eight points during the spurt and finished the contest with 15 points. Sylvia Bragg fired in 13 for the Lady Pirates, now 2-2 in the conference and 10-13 overall.

Jeanne Daunoras pumped 20 points to lead the Lady Patriots and hauled down 10 rebounds.

But sharpest contrast was in the turnover category, as the Lady Pirates committed 30 while Mason had only 16. The first half was close all the way, with Mason holding a slim 24-23 advantage at halftime. But the Patriots pulled away in the second half building a 53-41 margin at the 5:34 mark.

East Carolina rattled off 10 points to cut the gap to 53-51 with 1:22 remaining, but the Lady Pirates were forced to send the Patriots to the line in the closing moments.

"Getting into foul trouble so early really hurt us," ECU Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "We had four players with four fouls and two players with three. At one point Lisa (Squirewell), Darlene (Hedges) and Delphine were all sitting on the bench.

"The girls played real hard — real intense. Everybody played, and everybody did well. We had way too many turnovers."

East Carolina remains idle until hosting Cheyenne State, Fairfield and Marshall in the Converse Lady Pirate Classic Friday and Saturday.

Renner Captures Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU (AP) — For a full year Jack Renner lived with the memory — and the constant reminder — of a dramatic golf shot that deprived him of a victory in the Hawaiian Open.

"By the time I got on the plane going back to the Mainland (last year), it was behind me," Renner said.

"But nobody would let me forget it. I kept seeing tapes of the shot on TV. Everytime I looked up, they were rerunning it."

On that day a year ago at the Waialae Country Club, Renner had finished his round and held a one-shot lead over Isao Aoki as he sat in the scorer's tent, the victory apparently his.

But Aoki pitched in from the rough 128 yards out, scored an eagle and turned the stunned Renner from a winner to a loser.

"It's hard to live something like that down," Renner said Sunday. "Particularly so, when I felt I didn't have anything to live down."

"But they kept rerunning the tapes on TV. That's all anybody wanted to talk to me about."

"Now," he said Sunday, and smiled, "I hope they'll ask me about this year."

A year after the title was snatched from his grasp, Renner returned to Waialae and reversed his fortunes, winning the Hawaiian Open on the second hole of a sudden death playoff with Wayne Levi.

But it very nearly turned out the same.

Levi, from the rough, came within an inch or so of pitching in for an eagle on the 18th.

"I thought, 'if that ball goes in, I'm never coming here again,'" Renner said.

But it just missed the cup, and Levi — a frontrunner most of the bright, sunny day — failed on the little birdie putt that would have won it.

Strangely enough, in both 1983 and 1984, the defeat and the victory

Rock'n'Rollen Questioned

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Rock'n'Rollen, familiar at major televised events with his rainbow wig and religious signs, was held for several hours by Yugoslav officials, according to a witness.

He told a New Zealand newsman who talked with him at the police station that he was picked up on Saturday night in front of Skenderija, the press center, and detained for about three hours.

Rock'n'Rollen, whose real name is Rollen Stewart, said it was his religious beliefs, not his gate-crashing or wig, that got him into trouble in this communist country.

Yugoslav officials continued to deny Sunday any knowledge of the detention of Rollen. Police said it was an "official secret."

"Either the information is false or else nobody wants to tell me, either," Zoran Kadenic, Yugoslav Olympic Organizing Committee spokesman, said.

Rollen told his story to New Zealand Times reporter Peter Hutchinson, who was at the security headquarters on a story assignment.

Rollen had been seen here at the luge and bobsled competitions and at the Czechoslovakia-USA hockey match, holding a sign that read "John 3:16." That's the Bible passage that begins: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Arkansas Nips Heels

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

Top-ranked North Carolina is unbeaten no longer. A tough, quick Arkansas team made sure of that.

Charles Balentine's baseline jumper with four second left gave Arkansas a 65-64 nonconference basketball victory over the Tar Heels Sunday, ending North Carolina's 21-game winning streak.

Meanwhile, Lorenzo Charles scored 26 points to spark North Carolina State to a 68-67 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over No. 18 Georgia Tech.

In ACC action on Saturday, Duke held No. 13 Maryland for an 89-84, the third straight loss for Coach Lefty Driesell's club. Also Saturday, Virginia knocked off No. 15 Louisville 50-45, Clemson edged South Carolina, 61-59, on Anthony Jenkins' basket with two seconds left in overtime and Wake Forest took a 64-50 triumph over North Carolina-Wilmington as Delaney Rudd and Kenny Green scored 18 points apiece.

"When I put it up, I just hoped and prayed it would go in," Balentine said. "When I got the ball, I was surprised for a moment."

North Carolina had one last chance, but Steve Hale's jumper bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

"Hale was the second option on our final shot," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "I don't want to say what our first option was because we may need to run it again."

Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said the victory "ranks with the best of my basketball thrills."

Arkansas, 19-4, led by four at the half and by as much as 10 points, 46-36, three minutes deep in the second half. North Carolina grabbed its first lead of the second half, 64-63, on two straight field goals by Michael Jordan, the game's top scorer with 21 points.

With time running out, the Razorbacks worked the ball to Alvin Robertson who started to drive but ran into traffic before managing to dish the ball to Balentine.

Joe Kleine led Arkansas with 20 points and 10 rebounds and reserve Darryl Bedford added 12 points and Leroy Sutton chipped in 11.

Sam Perkins had 17 points and 11 rebounds for North Carolina, while Hale scored a career-high 15 points.

Charles scored 15 of his 26 points in the final 12 minutes to lead N.C. State to its eighth consecutive victory.

Charles said he was surprised Tech decided to have only one man guard him.

"I'm so used to being double- and triple-teamed I was really surprised," Charles said.

The Wolfpack, 18-7 overall and 4-5 in the ACC, used a three-point play by guard Anthony "Spud" Webb for a 35-34 lead with 16:27 left. Tech never got closer.

Charles hit a jumper and added two free throws to extended the Wolfpack lead to 60-52 with 5:24 left. But the Yellow Jackets fought back and got to within 65-63 on Scott Petway's layup with 42 seconds left.

Charles countered with a free throw and Gannon added two more to keep Georgia Tech out of reach.

"We've been fortunate in this little run," Valvano said of the winning streak. "Even when we haven't had an inside-outside game, we've won."

Cozell McQueen chipped in 13 points and 14 rebounds for the Wolfpack.

Georgia Tech has dropped five of its last six games, three of those losses coming on the road.

"Listen, I knew coming into this league that (winning on the road) would be a problem," Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins said.

Salley paced Tech, 15-7 and 5-6, with 21 points and Bruce Dalrymple had 18 and Mark Price had 10, all in the first half.

Maryland's Adrian Branch returned to the basketball court Saturday after being convicted of misdemeanor possession of marijuana Friday.

Celtics Down 76ers

By The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics were licking their chops in anticipation of manhandling the crippled Philadelphia 76ers. Instead, it was the Celtics' who were licked.

With Julius Erving scoring 30 points and Andrew Toney adding 21, the 76ers rolled to a 109-91 victory over the Celtics in a showdown of National Basketball Association powers. Although again playing without Moses Malone and Bobby Jones, the 76ers manhandled the cold-shooting Celtics, owners of the best record in the NBA, for only their third victory in the last nine games.

"Today was our day," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "It was the best game we had all month. Boston's the best team in basketball right now, but we came into this game with a great attitude to overcome obstacles. Everything went well for us — rebounding, loose balls, everything. It could have happened the other way, though. The Celtics did the same thing to us in Philly once when they were without (Larry) Bird and (Tiny) Archibald."

Boston's Cedric Maxwell, who was 2-for-3 from the floor and 1-for-7 from the foul line, summed up the Celtics' afternoon. "We really played stink, stink, stink today," he said.

Jazz 114, Trail Blazers 112
John Drew's jump shot with three seconds left gave Utah the victory. Drew, who scored 21 of his 23 points in the second half, led a 38-point third-quarter Utah charge that overcame a nine-point Portland halftime lead. Drew had 14 points in the third period as the Jazz broke Portland's five-game winning streak and handed the Blazers only their third loss in 27 home games. Jim Paxson, the game's leading scorer with 26 points, hit a 16-footer to tie the score 112-112. Adrian Dantley, who leads the NBA with a 31.0 average, was held to 21 points, 19 in the first half. Wayne Cooper had 21 for Portland.

Lakers 108, Hawks 87

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points and Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 23 along with 15 assists and 10 rebounds as Los Angeles won its ninth game in the last 10 and sixth in a row at home. Abdul-Jabbar and Johnson each had 15 points in the first half when the Lakers opened a 57-41 lead. Dan Roundfield had 24 points for Atlanta, which lost its third game in a row and dropped out of a first-place tie in the Central Division.

"I blackmailed them before the game," said Lakers Coach Pat Riley. "I told them they would get a day-and-a-half off if they played well. These guys never pass on a chance to get some time off during the season."

"It was one of our better rebounding games. We are a Jekyll-and-Hyde rebounding team. Some nights we get after it, other nights we don't. Invariably, we win big when we dominate the backboards."

The Lakers had a 55-35 advantage over Atlanta in that department.

Bucks 107, Clippers 100

Sidney Moncrief scored 38 points, including eight in overtime. Lorenzo Romar gave the Bucks the lead for good 99-98 with 1:34 to go when Terry Cummings was called for goaltending on Romar's baseline drive. The Bucks also got 16 points each from Bob Lanier and Junior Bridgeman — who hit a 15-foot jumper with n?%?he game into overtime at 92-92 — and 12 from Marques Johnson. Cummings led the Clippers with 23. San Diego forward Bill Walton left the game with seven minutes remaining in the first half after spraining his right knee. He did not return, but the injury was not believed to be serious.

Nets 107, Rockets 103

Darryl Dawkins scored 25 points, including three free throws in the final minute. New Jersey hit eight free throws in the final minute, including one by Buck Williams that broke a 99-99 tie and put the Nets ahead to stay. Williams and Albert King each added 19 points for the Nets, while Lewis Lloyd had 21 for the Rockets. Ralph Sampson, Houston's 7-foot-4 rookie center, left the game with a sprained right arm after playing just 13 minutes and scoring 12 points.

Miller, who held at least a share of the lead after all four rounds, moved ahead for good when Caponi bogeyed No. 10 and hiked her advantage two strokes with a 15-foot putt for birdie on No. 13.

Caponi then bogeyed the par 4, 349-yard 15th to fall three shots off the pace, but applied the pressure to Miller again by sinking putts of three and six feet for birdies on the last two holes.

The $15,750 Caponi won boosted her lifetime earnings to $1,202,793 and she's hoping the second-place finish is a sign of better days to come.

"I thought last year was sort of a sabbatical. I really didn't want to be here (on the LPGA tour) ... I just didn't want to be anywhere playing golf," she said.

"I had a lot of time off and feel rejuvenated," Caponi added. "I played as well as I have ever today and I'm excited."

added. "I knew I had to play my game, and even if I hadn't won, I think I would have been happy with the way I played."

Caponi shot a 68 to finish one shot behind Miller at 281. Former Sarasota winners JoAnne Carner and Amy Alcott were two strokes further back, along with Pat Bradley and Patty Sheehan.

Lauren Howe, Laura Cole and Lauri Peterson, who shared the third-round lead with Miller, were next at 284.

"I haven't won a tournament in two years and it was very gratifying out there," Caponi said. "I wanted to play well enough to stay in contention and get my confidence level up."

Caponi began the day two shots behind Miller and Peterson and technically held the lead after consecutive birdies on the eighth and ninth holes. Miller, playing in a threesome behind Caponi, also birdied No. 9 to leave the pair deadlocked with nine holes remain-

Miller Wins Sarasota

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Alice Miller had been fighting the temptation to play daring golf all weekend long, and sometimes with little success.

But with the $175,000 Sarasota Classic on the line Sunday, she resisted the urge on the 18th hole and walked away $26,250 richer and with a feeling that she is indeed one of the rising stars on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit.

"They always say winning you're first (tournament) is the most difficult," Miller said after her final-round 69 was good enough to hold off late-charging Donna Caponi for a one-stroke victory. "But until you win your second, you're wondering if the first was just a fluke."

Miller, who finished second in this event a year ago when Donna White rallied to win, finished with a 72-hole total of 8-under-par 280. But it took a par-saving putt on No. 18 to secure that long-awaited second career triumph.

The seven-year veteran said she approached the final hole with thoughts of trying to wow the spectator gallery with a tournament-closing birdie, but changed her mind when she gazed at the leaderboard and realized Caponi had sliced her advantage to a single stroke.

"I thought I was ahead by two strokes. I didn't know Donna had birdied (No. 18)," Miller said. "I was going to go for it but decided I didn't want to do anything stupid."

The clincher was a 10-foot putt that marked her first victory since the West Virginia Classic eight months ago and ruined Caponi's bid for a 25th LPGA title, but first since 1981 when the 20-year veteran won five tournaments.

"It was actually a wishy-washy kind of putt ... It was about this long, but looked that long," Miller said, spreading her arms.

"I came out with the attitude that win, lose or draw, I wanted to be happy with the way I played," she

Carruthers Family Pleased With Adoption Choices

BOSTON (AP) — Charlie and Maureen Carruthers could have asked for any kind of child they wanted. They could have told the woman at the New England Home for Little Wanderers that they wanted to begin their family with a short child, or a shy child, or a healthy child.

Instead, Carruthers took a minute when asked what his choice was, and he thought about how he and his wife enjoyed the outdoors, camping, hiking and trips to Maine.

Carruthers asked for "an active child." And that is exactly what the Burlington resident got.

Not once, but twice.

More than 20 years later, the Carruthers' active first child — Peter — and their just-as-active second child — Kitty — are sporting the United States' first medal in 1984 Winter Olympic competition.

The Carruthers told The Boston Sunday Globe that shortly after they decided to adopt Peter, now 22, from the Home for Little Wanderers, they decided to make it a "perfect family" with the adoption of a girl, Kitty, now 20.

Peter was adopted when he was five months old. And as soon as the adoption was finalized at Middlesex Court, where the judge signed Peter's baby book, the Carruthers decided to complete their family.

Carruthers said that on the day before Kitty's adoption was to be made final, she fell off the porch of the family's home. Bruised and bandaged, Kitty went to court, and came home again with her new parents.

No worse for the fall in the minds of officials at the Home for Little Wanderers, the Carruthers were contacted a short time later and offered a third child.

But their family already was complete.

"No," Carruthers said. "That's all right. Active is active. These kids keep us busy. That's for sure."

Living on a busy Burlington street, where the "active" 7- and 5-year-olds enjoyed sledding, Carruthers decided a new form of entertainment was necessary to keep his young family in one piece.

That's about when the brother-sister team's career as figure skaters got off the ground, and also when their dad learned how to build a first-rate backyard ice rink.

He bought a 25- by 40-foot piece of black plastic and laid it across the yard. In the years that followed, the rink grew. Carruthers professionalized his repair methods. Outdoor speakers were added, and the rink became a gathering place for neighborhood skaters.

It wasn't until an early thaw in 1969 that Peter and Kitty eventually got skating lessons at the Billerica Forum.

Carruthers recalled how the teacher spent the entire time with his children and at the end of their first class handed him a card with the name of a costume designer on it. The teacher said Carruthers would need the card because Kitty and Peter were inevitably headed for competition.

That first lesson — at $1 each — was followed by many more, at an approximate total cost of about $150,000 to $180,000.

Characters In 'Celebrity' Make Miniseries Better

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Vibrant, intriguing characters in literature or films can be all things to an audience. These figures can be alluring for the excitement in their lives, for doing the right things or, even, for doing the wrong things.

NBC's $10 million "Celebrity" has three personalities worth following and wondering about, and that's what makes this 6 1/2-hour miniseries, in its second of three installments tonight, such engrossing entertainment.

The movie, about three boyhood chums from Fort Worth, Texas, whose friendship is destroyed by their individual fame and the traumatic secret they share, was adapted from Thomas Thompson's book. In a published interview shortly before his death in 1982, Thompson said these characters, in early drafts, were "bloodless and there was nobody home."

"My prose," he told People magazine, "was lethargic to the point that I began taking breaks and staring at TV game shows, perhaps hoping that others' good fortune would somehow translate into victory over bad writing."

Thompson then sought treatment for writer's block from a UCLA psychiatrist. Under a hypnotic spell, Thompson took an imaginary journey to his hometown, Fort Worth, and saw his face on the body of one of his young characters. It was his psychic breakthrough.

"I tore up the first 500 pages," he said. "This time the characters worked. I found them all where they had been hiding. It took an emotional Roto-Rooting to dislodge them."

Kleber Cantrell (Ben Masters) is the award-winning journalist, Mack Crawford (Joseph Bottoms) is the Hollywood superstar and T.J. Luther (Michael Beck) is the charismatic faith-healer.

"There was a little bit of Tommy in all three men," said Rosilyn Heller, the miniseries' executive producer and a close friend of Thompson's.

The most recognizable similarity was with Kleber Cantrell, who, like

Thompson, covered the major stories of the 1960s and was the first reporter to interview the mother of presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, for Life magazine.

The character of T.J. Luther, with its wide dimension from charmer to con artist to rousing evangelist, was the hot role. Masters and Bottoms both wanted it. Bottoms, toting a Bible under his arm, even read for the part.

Beck's portrayal is dynamic. As a high schooler, he reminds a viewer of Eddie Haskell from the old "Leave It to Beaver" show, in both his looks and his practiced phoniness.

Sunday night's scenes, with the three characters in their teens, was shot last, when the actors were the most drained from their four-month shooting schedule. Yet, the youthful scenes did not strain credibility. "I tried not to smile as an 18-year-old, so the wrinkles wouldn't show," said Beck.

As the faith healer, who called himself "The Chosen," Beck's work soars with power and fury.

"I wanted his show to be a tent revival and rock 'n' roll kind of show," Beck said. "I purposely didn't watch any of the TV evangelists, or I would have copied them."

Young, But Will Sing Love Song

NEW YORK (AP) — The newest member of the Puerto Rico-based rock group Menudo, 13-year-old Robby Rosa, says he's never been in love — "not really. Not yet anyway."

But he'll get a chance to sing lyrics of love songs when Menudo appears Tuesday night — Valentine's Day — at Radio City Music Hall.

Rosa, a native New Yorker who lived in Westbury, N.Y., until his family moved to Puerto Rico when he was 10, will be making his on-stage debut.

In the latest Menudo album, "Reaching Out," the group's first in English, Rosa carries the vocals on six cuts with feature solos in three. Two of them, "Because of Love" and "Theme from Cannonball 2," are love songs.

Rosa had never taken a singing lesson or performed professionally when he answered the call for New Menudo last year.

In New York, where Menudo is putting on 10 shows, Johnny Lazada will be making his farewell appearance, having reached the group's mandatory retirement age of 16.

Rosa says being with Menudo has "changed my life a lot."

"I already get a lot of fan mail," he says, "either addressed to Robby or The New Menudo."

NBC, typically, wanted names with big marquee value to get viewers inside the tent. Beck was in the films "The Warriors" and "Xanadu." Masters was more recognized on Broadway and Bottoms was the best known with his starring role in NBC's "Holocaust" miniseries in 1978.

But, since the characters age over 25 years, Ms. Heller wanted "fresh new faces," and she won. The acting in the leads and the smaller parts (James Whitmore, Tess Harper and Ned Beatty, for example) is quite impressive.

One theme in "Celebrity" is the high price paid for fame, not just in striving for it, but in its aftershocks. Masters said he would never like to be as famous as Mack. And the man who played Mack agreed.

"It made me question my own approach to what I do," said Bottoms. "If you get famous, you can get offered the best roles in town. But it also can be a real inconvenience."

WEAVER — Actor Ben Kingsley, who learned to spin cotton for his role in the film "Gandhi" will take up traditional weaving for the title part in "Silas Marner," the story of a weaver, in a 90-minute television movie by the British Broadcasting Corp. (AP Laserphoto)

Air Travel Star-Coddlers Cater To Celebrity Trips

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ever see Barbra Streisand being jostled at a luggage carousel, or Cary Grant standing on a long check-in line at Los Angeles International Airport?

Probably not, thanks to an elite group of travel experts who cater to globe-trotting celebrities.

While a handful of Beverly Hills travel agents specialize in handling the pre-flight paperwork, people such as Peggy Ganopole, Bob Henry, Kay Mansour and Tom Stout nurse VIPs from limo to first-class lounge seat — and, when the traveler returns, back to the limo.

This routinely involves handling all check-in chores, fending off autograph hounds while whisking the star to a celebrity lounge or aircraft and retrieving luggage. But it's the little extras that make certain celebrity stand-ins extra popular with their clients.

Stout and the others talked about their on-the-job experiences in a Los Angeles Times article Sunday.

Stout says he makes sure there's Fresca on board when Richard Burton is a passenger, and Perrier for others. He'll sneak a celebrity's mistress aboard a plane while the client is kissing his wife good-bye in the VIP lounge.

When Stout learned Miss Streisand loathes airline meals, he left the airport to fetch Chinese food and a banana split he delivered just before her jet departed for London.

A chain-smoking man in his 50s who is happy to share a gin with a departing client, Stout thrives on crises. He recalls one time when Cary Grant boarded a jet to New York to say good-bye to his then-wife, Dyan Cannon, and then decided to accompany her. Stout quickly arranged for a ticket.

The stars often reciprocate with gifts. Once, Stout recalls, Frank Sinatra gave him a Christmas tree decorated with $50 and $100 bills.

Former TWA flight attendant

Peggy Ganopole is employed by the Ask Mr. Foster travel agency to handle airport chores not only for the likes of Paul Newman, Tom Selleck, Ali MacGraw and Cliff Robertson, but — as does Stout — for entire film companies.

During filming of the "Winds of War" miniseries, she dispatched tons of luggage and equipment to locations worldwide.

One of her most unusual moments on the job occurred several months ago when tenor Luciano Pavarotti learned it was her birthday and belted out a few bars of "Happy Birthday" in the midst of a crowded terminal.

Bob Henry of Beverly Hills Travel is considered the dean of the airport stand-ins, having been in the business 45 years. He works for corporate executives but handles the occasional celebrity client as well.

Once he sneaked Elizabeth Taylor onto a jet ahead of other passengers, and another time he escorted Mary Pickford to her seat and gave her a bouquet of flowers.

Kay Mansour, president of Mansour & Mansour, got a special bonus for one celebrity assignment: escorting Richard Pryor's teenage daughter to her mother in Tahiti.

With Pryor's blessing — and at his expense — Ms. Mansour sunbathed in the South Pacific resort island for several days before returning to Los Angeles.

FTC Approves Largest Merger

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission tentatively approved the nation's largest corporate merger ever today, voting to allow Texaco to buy Getty Oil Co. for $10.1 billion.

The commission voted 4-1 to allow the takeover, although it will require Texaco to divest itself of some facilities to satisfy antitrust concerns, commission spokeswoman Susan Ticknor said.

While she did not detail the requirements, it was understood that the agreement requires Texaco to sell two of its refineries, one on the East Coast and one in the Midwest, and an undisclosed number of service stations.

Texaco will also have to guarantee the continued delivery of crude oil now supplied by Getty to independent marketers in the West under the agreement, worked out between Texaco and the FTC staff.

Commissioner Michael Pertschuk was the lone dissenter in the vote to approve the merger, taken before stock markets opened for the day. The commission staff had recommended approval Friday.

Today was the deadline for the commission to act to block the merger, if it wanted to do so, under federal antitrust laws.

The merger had been temporarily delayed in January when the commission sought more information from Texaco and Getty before deciding whether to approve the merger.

The merger would allow Texaco, the nation's third largest oil company, to double its oil reserves. It would still be No. 3, however, behind Exxon Corp. and No. 2 Mobil Corp.

The approval allows Texaco to begin buying stock in Getty, the nation's 14th largest oil company.

Texaco has made a tender offer of $128 a share for 28 million of the 79.1 million shares of Getty outstanding. Texaco already has contracts signed to purchase 41.1 million shares held by Getty family trusts at the same price.

There are still possible roadblocks outstanding, however, in the form of suits brought by the Pennzoil Co. and others opposing the merger.

Pennzoil attorneys have been turned back twice in attempts to block the merger on antitrust grounds.

Earlier this month, U.S. District Judge James Ellison in Tulsa, Okla., said Pennzoil had "failed to show" that it would be damaged by the merger. An appeal to federal court in Denver was also rejected.

Pennzoil, which had previously tried unsuccessfully to acquire Getty for $112.50 per share, had claimed that the Texaco deal was anti-competitive and would serve to drive middle-sized oil companies out of business.

Leadership...

They received condolences from the Politburo delegation led by Chernenko at the start of public mourning Saturday.

Western diplomats had speculated that the elderly Chernenko's health might weigh against him in the selection. He was hospitalized with pneumonia last spring and missed one of the Politburo's key public appearances, the May 1 Red Square parade.

Other possible contenders were Grigori V. Romanov, the 61-year-old former party boss in Leningrad, and agriculture specialist Mikhail S. Gorbachev, at 52 the youngest man in the 12-member Politburo.

The three men are the only Politburo members who also hold office in the powerful Central Committee Secretariat, which controls day-to-day administration of the all-powerful Communist Party.

Arrest 2 In Robbery

Two men were arrested Sunday night by Pitt County deputies and charged in connection with an armed robbery Saturday at a rural store that resulted in the theft of money from the business and wallets from three customers.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said deputies Gordon Sutton and Harvey Gardner stopped a vehicle on N.C. 11 and arrested Ronnie Kadett Sloan, 25, of 217 T Street Northeast, Washington, D.C., and Linwood B. Murchison, 21, who listed a Route 1, Greenville, address. He said Murchison told officers he is employed at Howard University in Washington.

Tyson said the two men were charged with armed robbery with a dangerous weapon of J.T. Nichols Store on the Stantonsburg Road. Bond for each man was set at $50,000, the sheriff said.

Tyson said the store attendant, Dianne Moots, told officers that two men wearing ski masks entered the store around 6:40 p.m. She said one of the men, who was armed with a hand gun, told her to open the cash register and he took out an undetermined amount of money, food stamps and checks.

He said seven customers were in the store at the time of the robbery and the men took wallets from Frank Moots, Sam Harris and Bill Goins, as well as a pocketbook from Ms. Moots. Tyson said various amount of cash, credit cards and papers were stolen from the customers.

Tyson said the robbers apparently fled in a vehicle that was parked down the road from the store. He said one of the theft victims jumped in his car and pursued the vehicle but lost it.

Deputies recovered some of the stolen items, Tyson said. Investigation is continuing.

Investigating Death of Man

ENGELHARD, N.C. — Virginia authorities are investigating the death of an Englehard businessman whose body was found Saturday on the side of a rural road near Williamsburg, Va.

A Hyde County Sheriff's Department spokesman said the body of James Harris, about 43, was discovered Saturday morning. The spokesman said Virginia officials indicated the cause of death has not been established.

According to the spokesman, Harris' car was found Saturday at Military Circle, a shopping center in Norfolk.

Harris operated the Dockside Restaurant and also owned Harris Seafood, both in Engelhard.

Princess Diana Expecting Again

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Princess Diana, the 22-year-old wife of Prince Charles, is expecting the couple's second baby in late September, Buckingham Palace announced today.

A palace spokesman said the princess, who returned Sunday night from a one-day trip to Oslo, Norway, was in "excellent health."

"She is in perfect health at the moment and certainly we are going to try to make sure that none of her planned engagements are canceled," said the spokesman, who spoke on condition his name would not be used.

The baby, whatever its sex, will be third in line to the British throne, behind his 35-year-old father and the couple's first child, Prince William, who was born on June 21, 1982.

Mixed Reviews On Burger's Tongue-Lashing

CHIEF JUSTICE Warren E. Burger warned American Bar Association members the legal system was becoming too costly and inefficient for the people. (AP Laserphoto)

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The nation's legal establishment is giving a mixed reaction to a tongue-lashing from Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, who says lawyers should be healers, not "hired guns."
American Bar Association President Wallace D. Riley said Burger was tweaking the conscience of lawyers and that, for most part, attorneys share Burger's concerns and already are taking steps toward reform.

"It was a twinging of the conscience," Riley said. "I'd agree with that. I don't think he's been too tough on us."
In a wide-ranging criticism of the legal system, Burger told the ABA winter convention Sunday that "the entire legal profession — lawyers, judges, law teachers — have become so mesmerized with the stimulation of the courtroom contest that we tend to forget that we ought to be healers of conflict."
Burger said the system has become "too costly, too painful, too destructive, too inefficient for a civilized society."

"Doctors, in spite of astronomical medical costs, still retain a high degree of public confidence because they are perceived as healers," he said. "Should lawyers not be healers? Healers, not warriors? Healers, not procurers? Healers, not hired guns?"

The nation's top-ranking judge also said the reputation of lawyers may be suffering because of offensive advertising, tolerance for unethical conduct and frivolous lawsuits that clog the courts.

While ABA head Riley and others seemed to take much of the attack in stride, some bridled at the criticism.

Robert Davis of Charleston, W.Va., said he was "disappointed in the failure of the chief justice to recognize the significant and hard-won progress made" in improving disciplinary procedures of lawyers in the last 14 years since a national study charged that lawyers neglected ethics.

Davis is head of the National Organization of Bar Counsel, a group concerned with lawyer discipline.

"By failing to recognize the substantial progress thus far made nationwide, Chief Justice Burger has failed to give deserved recognition to the efforts of state supreme courts and lawyers" to improve ethics in the profession, Davis said.

Riley also disagreed with Burger that lawyer advertising is contributing to a decline in public confidence in the profession.

The ads that Burger considers offensive "are more entertaining than objectionable," Riley said.

Burger said, "We see some lawyers using the same modes of advertising as other commodities from mustard, cosmetics and laxatives to used cars."

He envisioned a time when law firms will come on at halftime of televised football games and a football star will urge potential clients to "score" in court by hiring the advertised firm.

The reference drew appreciative laughter from Burger's audience of lawyers and judges. At least one such ad is already airing in the Washington, D.C., area.

Burger also attacked "absurd lawsuits" that only promote fat fees for attorneys.

"A few carefully considered, well-placed $5,000, $10,000 or $15,000 penalties will help focus attention on the matter of (such) abuses by lawyers," the chief justice said.

Under new rules adopted last year, judges may impose such fines on lawyers for frivolous suits.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey, who said Burger's speech was "the greatest" he has ever heard, said the threat of penalties may make it unnecessary to actually impose them very often.

Burger also urged adoption of a proposal to permit judges to impose "cost shifting" to reduce unjustified suits and delaying tactics.

Cost shifting is intended to promote settlements of suits. If a litigant turns down an offer and the judgment after trial is less than the original offer, all costs of the suit — including attorneys' fees — may be transferred to the plaintiff or defendant who turned down the settlement.

Burger proposed an ABA-sponsored study, with non-lawyers participating, to study that idea and other major changes in the nation's legal system.

Burger's address dealt with some of the same themes of lawyer competence and conduct that have marked his 15-year tenure as chief justice.

He touched off a furor in 1977 when he said that half the nation's lawyers may not be qualified to represent their clients in court.

But Burger also was conciliatory at times on Sunday, telling the lawyers they have made important contributions to America and have improved the practice of law. Nonetheless, he also questioned whether proliferation in the number of lawyers recently is contributing to a decline in public esteem.

There are more than 600,000 lawyers in the United States today, with some 35,000 new law school graduates joining their ranks each year. More than 300,000 lawyers are ABA members.

Burger said the growth in numbers should be increasing competition. But instead, he said, the cost of legal services continues to rise.

"Increasingly in the past few years critics have warned that lawyers must be careful not to price themselves out of the market," he said.

Former Editor Awakened To The Power Of Publicity

DURHAM (AP) — The former editor of The Sunday Times of London says he has a new "sympathy" for newsmakers after his personal battle with Australian entrepreneur Rupert Murdoch.

"I've been in many court cases and public controversies," said Harold Evans, who is a visiting professor of journalism at Duke University this semester. "But they're different when you're representing the newspaper as an editor than when you are conducting a personal battle against Rupert Murdoch."

Evans, editor of The Times of London for 14 years, became a controversial figure when he resigned after a year under Murdoch, who has bought a number of papers in Britain and America, including most recently The Chicago Sun-Times.

"I gained by that experience a new sympathy and insight for the subjects of these stories, which I hadn't gained even when I was an editor appearing in the headlines," he said. "I don't think until it affects you personally, you can understand the terrifying power of publicity."

Evans said he accepted the editor's job after Murdoch's written guarantee that he would not tamper with the editorial independence of The Times. When he resigned a year later, he did not quietly.

Members of Parliament took up his contention that Murdoch had broken his guarantees. They also considered whether Murdoch's acquisition of the London papers had escaped review by the government Monopolies Commission because of a political deal with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

He also wrote a book about his battle with Murdoch, "Good Times, Bad Times," that was a best-seller in Britain and has received good reviews in America.

Since he left the newspaper in 1982, he said, it has become "predictably right-wing. What Murdoch was interested in was having the paper become a party newspaper and support the conservative party in every way possible."

"Under my conception of The Times, it was a paper of independence; it wasn't a party newspaper at all. I'm not anti-Mrs. Thatcher. I just refuse to be pro-Mrs. Thatcher come hell or high water," he said.

Evans said Murdoch has growing ambitions for American newspapers, and represents a style that is alien to the American ideal of a free press.

"His power is growing here," Evans said. "Any community which finds its newspapers taken over by Murdoch will find that the standards of journalism will be eroded, and there's no guarantee that the interests of the community will be put first."

"He is an international tycoon playing many games," Evans said. "The newspapers are pawn in that."

Evans teaches a seminar course on press ethics that deals with the issues of privacy, fair trial, defamation and national security, along with the performance of the press as a defender of citizens' rights.

"I've told my class that the American press has a greater opportunity for excellence than any other national press in the world because of the First Amendment and because of attitudes toward freedom here," he said.

15 People Killed In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

Police say 15 people were killed in weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina, including six killed in three double-fatality wrecks.

Asheboro police said Elaine Michelle Cranford, 9, died Sunday from a Saturday wreck that also killed her 5-year-old sister, Mary Elizabeth Cranford. The accident occurred about 11:10 a.m. as the two rode with their mother, Deborah Cranford, who was treated and released for minor injuries. Police said the car was hit by a second car passing through an Asheboro intersection and slammed into a third car.

In accidents reported by the state Highway Patrol, Douglas Earl Conklin, 71, and Lorena Pierce McLester, 27, both of Mt. Pleasant, were killed around 10:30 p.m. Friday when a car driven by Mrs. McLester turned into the path of a car driven by Conklin. The accident occurred on N.C. 49 south of Mt. Pleasant in Cabarrus County, troopers said.

Killed around 11:50 p.m. Friday were Kay Callahan Smith, 25, and John Carl Green, 22, both of Lumberton. A vehicle ran a stop sign at the intersection of U.S. 401 and a rural Scotland County road and slammed into the side of a vehicle driven by Ms. Smith. Green was a passenger in her car, the Highway Patrol said.

Richard Carrington Hartis, 45, of Charlotte, died Friday around 7:05 p.m. when he stepped into the path of a vehicle on U.S. 29 a mile north of Charlotte.

Edward Lee Cook, 37, of Rt. 5, Wilson, died Saturday around 12:35 a.m. when the vehicle he was driving ran off the right side of U.S. 117, crossed the road, struck a ditch and overturned.

Timothy Parrish, 14, of Wendell was killed at 5 p.m. Saturday when the car in which he was riding sped off a rural road in Johnston County and overturned.

Eric Lee Burgess, 21, of Woodlief was killed early Sunday morning when the car he was driving went off a rural road west of Salisbury, hit a bridge pillar and overturned.

Louise Juergenes Schantag, 61, of Stony Point was killed when the car in which she was riding along N.C. 90 west of Statesville was hit head-on by another car that crossed the center line.

Ricky A. Wall, 26, of Camp Lejeune was killed at 10:20 p.m. Saturday when he lost control of his car on N.C. 24 five miles east of Jacksonville and it ran off the road and overturned.

Donna Loretta Tyson, 22, of Troy was killed at 7:45 a.m. Sunday when the car she was driving ran off a rural road two miles west of Candor in Montgomery County, hit a ditch and overturned.

Kenneth Howard Frady, 39, of Sylva, died at 6:30 p.m. Sunday when his car ran off the road and overturned on one mile east of Clyde on U.S. 10 near Interstate 40 in Haywood County.

Frederick Jackson Veale, 32, of Lewiston was killed at 7 p.m. Sunday when the car in which he was riding ran off the road and into a ditch on U.S. 13 two miles south of Winton in Hertford County.

Monument For Crash Victims

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — A monument has been placed on 7,100-foot Square Top Mountain 20 miles northwest of St. George to honor the seven men killed when their B-52 crashed April 11.

Mike and Dot Cervenak of Jacksonville, N.C., parents of the youngest crewman aboard the Air Force bomber, were flown to the top of the mountain Saturday.

The 300-pound granite monument and seven red roses were placed on the snow-covered peak.

"This is my husband's project ... something he wanted to say," said Mrs. Cervenak.

First Lt. Matthew Cervenak, 24, and the other members of the crew from Robins Air Force Base, Ga., were killed when the 550 mph plane slammed into the mountain 150 feet from the summit while on a low-level "Red Flag" exercise.

Fire Damages Textile Plant

GREENSBORO (AP) — Some 65 employees of Guilford Mills Inc. were evacuated after a fire, apparently started by machinery overheating, swept through part of the Greensboro textile complex, officials say.

There were no injuries, R.S. Burke, staff duty officer with the Greensboro Police Department, said this morning in a telephone interview.

"It was mostly smoke, but there was some fire," Burke said. Damage was apparently limited to machinery.

"None of our building is damaged as far as I know," said supervisor Bill Courtney, who said the fire started when a piece of machinery used to finish cloth overheated.

Tar Heels Told Enjoy '84, Look Out For '85

By The Associated Press
North Carolina's economy in 1984 should be strong as the economic recovery continues across the country, but state economists say that prospects for 1985 and beyond are not nearly as rosy.

The average economic recovery since World War II has lasted 3 1/2 years, said Robert C. Allsbrook, chief economist for First Union National Bank. The present recovery started in December 1982, so the average length would take it through June 1986.

"My argument is that the recovery won't last the average length because of a lack of capital spending," Allsbrook said. Capital spending — business investment in new factories and equipment — usually props up the final year of an average recovery.

"I think now the odds are great that we're talking about the beginning of a recession in the end of '85 or early '86," Allsbrook said.

But for the coming year, prospects remain good.

"One can probably feel the greatest sense of confidence in some time about the economic prospects for 1984," said John G. Medlin Jr., president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

Medlin and other business leaders believe that inflation will be low in 1984, unemployment in the state will continue to decline, and retail sales will continue to be strong.

The housing industry is expected to continue construction at a strong pace, with accompanying benefits to North Carolina's furniture, textile and lumber industries. "However, celebration and relaxation are premature," Medlin said. "The major problems of the economy in recent years have not been solved, only temporarily moderated and obscured."

The main problem, Medlin and Allsbrook say, is interest rates.

Allsbrook says that while capital spending has increased slightly, most of the money is going for new computers and equipment to increase productivity. The larger investments required to build new plants haven't occurred because of the high interest rates on financing such projects.

Interest rates on long-term loans is now about 13 percent to 14 percent, almost 10 percentage points more than the rate of inflation. Historically, long-term rates have been 3 or 4 percentage points more than inflation.

Medlin and others blame the federal budget deficit for the high interest rates. The deficit was a record $196 billion in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1983, and is forecast to approach $180 billion this year.

The deficit forces the government to borrow money and to pay any interest rate. That helps put money in short supply to private borrowers and drives up the cost of borrowing.

Medlin said reducing the deficit is the only way to avoid another deep recession.

"I don't think in an election year it's realistic to expect Congress to raise taxes and cut spending," Medlin said. "The easy way out for a politician is to say 'Let's freeze'" the 1985 budget at 1984 levels.

The alternative, he said, is "another roller coaster business and money cycle in the next few years (that) can only produce disastrous results at home and abroad."

The "Railsplitter"

Sunday marked the 175th anniversary of the birth of our 16th President. Abraham Lincoln was in many ways a most distinctive personality. He was the first President to wear a beard. Subsequently, all U.S. Presidents to 1897 wore a beard. Lincoln never had more than a cup of coffee for breakfast. He was a tall and muscular man — he had a 32-inch waist and wore size 14 boots. During all his years in office, Lincoln was away from the capital less than a month.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was Lincoln's first Vice-President?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Thomas Edison's first invention was the electric voting machine.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You will be tied down today to some condition requiring you to exercise a conscientious approach. It is likely to be of interest where family or emotions are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure that all is operating harmoniously at home. Handle business affairs wisely. Not a good day for entertaining.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Exercise greater care in driving and also in conversations. Make sure that any statements are accurately made.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be careful in handling monetary affairs or you could lose a good deal. You may get some advice that is not good, so forget it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A situation that does not concern you can get you upset if you permit. Not a good day to be social.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) There is an annoyance that you can do little about, so forget it. Don't take up any debatable points with a loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't permit a high-strung friend to take your time. Analyze your personal aims better. Use care and tact.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A higher-up could be in an irate mood and is looking for a whipping-boy, so be sure it isn't you. Don't be nervous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get that annoying matter solved in an adroit fashion instead of trying to work dangerous angles. Not a good day to plan a trip. Relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You feel you have more to do than you can handle; but you will be surprised how much you can do now. Avoid quarreling.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Steer clear of an outsider who is not thinking clearly. Avoid trouble. Not a good day for making contracts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may be using the wrong system and find it hard to get work done. Avoid fellow worker who is itching for a fight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't run off to some expensive pleasure out of frustration or anger. Your mate could have a legitimate complaint.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be someone who will have a positive outlook on life and be very independent. Be sure to teach the facts of life. One who will always make a plan for any venture and then carry through with it.

Old Plant At End Of The Line

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's oldest active hydroelectric plant is closing in on its 90th birthday, but officials say there are no immediate changes in the works.

"There's no reason why it couldn't run another 90 years," said Carl Thompson, Duke Power Co.'s area hydroelectric manager.

Nearly 86 years ago, Marguerite Fries, 7, started the plant by pushing a button. With that, the plant began supplying power to mills and small industries in historic Salem.

The ceremony marked the first long-distance transmission of electricity in North Carolina. The Idols hydroelectric plant, which began operation in 1898 and is one of the oldest active plants in the nation, continues to turn out power from the Yadkin River in a sturdy brick and wood powerhouse.

The same curved stone dam still funnels water to a series of metal "trash racks," where it is combed of debris before flowing by turbines with wooden bearings. The power Idols now generates flows into the Duke Power system.

In December, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers designated Idols a regional "Historic Engineering Landmark" because it was North Carolina's first such alternating current plant.

Idols stopped serving Salem manufacturers long ago. Those companies paid a minimum of $500 a year for electricity. A predecessor of Duke Power bought Idols in 1913 and Duke replaced the original equipment a year later.

"It was just a kind of stepping-stone for things to come in the future," said Joe Stringer, a Duke mechanical engineer who acted as a liaison when the North Carolina section of the society nominated Idols for recognition.

While the voluntary designations don't restrict the owners from modifying or demolishing the machinery, they do have a deterrent effect.

"Sometimes, when the company realizes, they think twice" about destruction, said Carron Garvin-Donohue, society spokeswoman in New York.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ Q.1 - As South, vulnerable, you hold: AK93 ♠ 6 K104 ♠ AQJ92 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ? What do you bid now? A. - Don't get overly excited by your very fine hand. If partner has a minimum response with all his values in hearts, you won't come close to making game. Bid one spade. If partner can't make a voluntary rebid, you are going nowhere.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF © 1984 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc. South West North East Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass ? What do you bid now? A. - Same hand, but this time you passed and partner opened in third seat. With 9 HCP and five-card support for partner's suit, you should make every effort to get to game. Jump to three hearts. Note the difference between these two problems. In Q.3, you could show your values by competing freely; here you must jump to show your strength. Q.5 - As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠QJ752 ♥8 ♦953 ♣J62 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ 3 NT Dble ? What action do you take? A. - Partner has said that he thinks he can take nine tricks at no trump. Why should you doubt him? Pass. Had partner wanted to hear about your spades, he could have doubled two hearts rather than bid three no trump. Q.6 - As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠AQJ7 ♥AJ ♦6 ♣KQJ876 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ? What do you bid now? A. - Partner probably has at least a six-card heart suit on this auction, and he has not yet limited the strength of his hand. However, you have already told the world that you have a strong hand. Therefore, you need no more at this turn than bid four hearts. If partner is weak, that will be high enough; if he is strong, it's his responsibility to make the next move. How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks. Q.4 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠K83 ♥A10765 ♦Q5 ♠952 The bidding has proceeded: North East South 1 ♥ 1 ♠ ? What do you bid now? A. - Your vulnerable partner, in the face of two opponents who are contesting the auction, has on his own contracted for nine tricks. You have a good hand for him, but so far have said nothing. A mere preference to partner's first bid just doesn't do your hand justice. Jump to four spades.
