Green Light For PCC Building Plan

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday told Pitt Community College officials to move ahead with preliminary design work for the first phase of a proposed building program that could cost $10 million or more.

President Charlie Russell told commissioners that, based on a Department of Community Colleges formula, PCC needs an additional 131,000 square feet of assignable space to provide adequate classroom facilities for the 2,425 full-time equivalent students now enrolled. In order to provide the space, Russell said total construction would amount to some 157,200 square feet to provide for hallways, restrooms and other facilities.

Russell said the cost of construction, at $60 a square foot, would amount to $9.43 million, with an additional $568,000 needed for parking, lighting, landscaping and walkways.

The PCC president said that by the 1985-1986 fiscal year, the school's projected 2,698 enrollment would require 184,000 square feet of space.

Russell emphasized that the number of full-time equivalent students does not include persons enrolled in non-curriculum programs.

Clifton Everett Sr., chairman of the board of trustees at PCC, said the school is "face to face with limiting expansion" of the student body and of programs, because of the crowded conditions.

Everett also said the school is in danger of losing accreditation because of inadequate library facilities. "The library has got to be dealt with," he said, even if other facilities are not provided.

Outlining a three-phase construction program, Russell proposed a facility containing 74,500 feet of assignable space to include new library facilities, several labs (farm machinery mechanics, masonry and welding), and office space, as phase one.

Phase two construction would include 27,800 square feet of assignable space and provide facilities for nursing, surgical technology, radiologic technology, respiratory therapy and allied health programs, while phase three would provide 28,700 square feet of assignable space for general classrooms, offices, physical education instruction, seminar rooms, student lounge areas, and an 8,000-square-foot auditorium.

Following the presentation, commissioners told Everett and Russell that the board would attempt to work out funding for phase one as soon as preliminary designs and cost estimates could be secured.

Present facilities at PCC provide some 97,976 square feet of assignable space.

Established in 1961, PCC is the 12th largest of the 58 schools in the state's community college system. The school has 190 full-time employees and about 100 part-time employees, with a budget of $7.5 million.

Commissioners discussed, but took no action, on a prioritized list of recommendations submitted by Sheriff Ralph Tyson to implement recommendations made in a study of the jail by the National Sheriff's Association.

The top item on the sheriff's list was the addition of five deputies to the jail staff, while the No. 2 recommendation was to increase the salaries of the present jail staff to that of field deputies.

Assistant County Manager Don Davenport told the board that an additional five employees would cost $73,275 per year in salary and fringe benefits, while increasing the pay for the present staff would cost $3,968.

Dr. Robert Ehinger, director of the county health department, discussed providing health care at the jail.

Ehinger suggested contracting with East Carolina University Medical School's Family Practice Center or with a local physician to provide medical service, suggesting that with the use of physician assistants, medical service might be provided at a cost of $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

Davenport noted that during the past nine months, the county has paid $9,000 in medical charges for inmates, while the time involved and cost of transporting prisoners to the emergency room at the hospital or to private physicians, has been about $2,750.

The jail study recommended that a physician visit the jail at least three times a week to hold sick call, give physical examinations, and treat minor health problems.

Dr. John Ball, director of the division of social work at ECU, told the board that in his opinion, "the greatest deficiency" pointed out by the jail study is "the absence of OFFICIALS FORMALIZE PROGRAM ... A new adult high school diploma program has been completed by the top administrators of the three school units involved in the program. The instruction will be offered at Pitt Community College's Learning Center and diplomas will be issued by Pitt County/Greenville schools. Above, left to right, are Superintendent Eddie West of Pitt County schools; PCC President Charles Russell and Superintendent Delma Blinson of Greenville schools. Joy Sasser, coordinator of PCC's Learning Center, is seated at front.

Adult Diploma Program Formalized By Schools

A new adult high school diploma program emphasizing academics has been formalized by the three school units in Pitt County that are involved in the project.

Dr. Charles E. Russell, president of Pitt Community College, along with Superintendent Eddie West of Pitt County schools and Superintendent Delma Blinson of the Greenville schools, on Monday signed the academic-oriented program recently approved by both the city and county school boards.

Students from both city and county who lack high school degrees and meet requirements for the program may receive instruction toward their degree through the program. Instruction will be given at Pitt Community College's Learning Center utilizing the center's staff.

According to school officials, the new program will not replace the present Graduate Equivalency Diploma program but will be "more academic offering than the GED." It will, as the GED does not, meet requirements for armed forces enlistment, officials pointed out, and will be a more extensive preparation for the student to enter college.

When a student completes the program a diploma will be awarded by the Pitt County/Greenville schools. The program will be coordinated at PCC by Joy Sasser.

"In Pitt County there is a significant and alarming number of adults who have less than a high school education," said Sasser. "Each year a large number of high school dropouts join this undereducated segment of our population. Most of these people are finding it more difficult to gain employment or to secure and maintain adequate employment or to realize on-the-job advancement."

According to Russell, providing basic education that enables citizens to gain occupational skills through further training is "part of the role and mission of Pitt Community College."

"Although both PCC and the public school systems have resources available to those desiring this basic education," Russell said, "there is evidence that the total needs of some of this group up to this time have not been served. We believe this new program will help fill the gap."

The program, noted officials, is currently being offered at the PCC Learning Center. For more information call Joy Sasser at 756-3130.

About 200 Marines To Stay In Lebanon

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's decision to withdraw most U.S. servicemen from Lebanon will still leave more than 80 trainers there to help develop the Lebanese army, as well as approximately 200 Marine guards, the president's spokesman said today.

Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman, said that 81 trainers are stationed in Lebanon now. More than that number of Army trainers will be assigned to Lebanon after the Marines pull out, he said.

Administration officials have said the Army trainers will teach counter-terrorism tactics and perform other tasks, including communications.

Speakes said it remains the administration's hope to have most of 1,200-1,300 Marines, now stationed at the Beirut International Airport, taken out of Lebanon and put on ships offshore within "a rough 30 days."

The Marines who stay in Beirut will guard the embassy, officials said.

A senior administration official says, meanwhile, that the "national obsession" with the role of the U.S. Marines in Lebanon should end when they are pulled out. Once that happens, he said, chances of restoring stability to Lebanon may be enhanced.

The White House is expected to disclose either Wednesday or Thursday a plan for withdrawing most of the Marines. Speakes said Reagan favors the plan, but first wants to clear it with other nations in the multinational peacekeeping force.

Sources said Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger presented three options to the White House on Friday for withdrawing the troops — one for a brief pullout lasting a few days, a second for a withdrawal taking 30 days, and a third that would stretch the process out, possibly over several months.

Speakes also said that Reagan had not directly approved the firing of 300 rounds from the battleship USS New Jersey's 16-inch guns last week into Syrian-backed positions around Beirut.

"He didn't say 'fire 300 rounds of 16-inch.' No, he never did," Speakes said. But, he added that Reagan did not think the firing was excessive.

The spokesman confirmed that the decision on firing the New Jersey's huge weapons was "made by military" under the "rules of engagement" that guide the use of firepower. He said no new guidelines had been issued.

"The New Jersey was responding to a fairly extensive artillery attack on American facilities," he said.

Reagan, in the midst of two days of meetings with Middle East leaders, is warning of an "ominous cloud of war that hovers over much of the Middle East" and wants people to join in the search for peace and stability in the region.

Reagan planned to meet jointly today with King Hussein of Jordan and President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt, two moderate Arab leaders who share Reagan's concern over instability in the Middle East, but occasionally differ over how to attain it.

Reagan met separately with Hussein on Monday and planned to meet alone with Mubarak today before having lunch with the two leaders at the White House.

With Hussein at his side Monday, Reagan said cooperation between Jordan and the United States "is increasingly vital in the face of the tragic violence in Lebanon, a growing terrorist threat, and the ominous cloud of war that hovers over much of the Middle East."

Elaborating, he said, "Today we witness bloodshed and conflict between Iran and Iraq, in Chad, in the Western Sahara and Lebanon. And now, as never before, it behoves people of good will to work together for peace and stability."

He said he and Hussein agreed "that terrorism cannot be tolerated and that the leaders of all states must stand together against this new barbarism that threatens civilization."

He also said "America's commitment to help Jordan meet its security needs remains firm and unwavering."

Retail Sales Saw Boost In January

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales by U.S. retailers rose a strong 2.2 percent in January, the biggest increase since May, the Commerce Department reported today.

Total sales, spurred by good showings for cars and food, reached a one-month record of $104.4 billion. The 2.2 percent rise from December sales was the biggest since a 3.1 percent jump in May 1983. Then the nation's economic recovery was being spurred by a strong surge in consumer buying.

In recent months, however, the surge in consumer spending has slowed somewhat, including a tiny 0.1 percent December increase in retail sales. That figure surprised a lot of analysts who were expecting the December selling season to be at a record pace.

However, the strong upturn in January sales bolstered the belief by many analysts that December sales were held down by unusually severe weather.

"January weather was a little better than December and people were able to get out and spend the money," said David Berson, an economist with Wharton Econometrics.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the robust sales reflected growing consumer confidence in the nation's economic health reflected by "expanding household incomes, lower inflation and smaller tax burdens."

"Though we should expect some slowing of retail gains after last year's heavy growth, consumer spending should continue to participate fully in the economy's healthy expansion," he said in a statement.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes noted that the January increase was the fifth in a row and called today's report "a positive sign that indicates further improvements are in store for the economy."

Automotive sales continued strong, rising 1.2 percent from December and were 33.3 percent ahead of the level of January 1983. The $21.3 billion in sales was a new record for a single month.

Food sales were up 2.7 percent from December with some of that rise attributed to the fact that prices also went up in January.

The January 2.2 percent jump in total sales compared to a 1.1 percent increase in November and a 1.7 percent hike in October.

Other details of the January report:

—Sales of durable goods, those expected to last three or more years, were up a slight 0.1 percent to a January total of $35 billion.

—Sales of non-durable goods rose a hefty 3.3 percent in January to a total of $69.4 billion. It was the largest monthly increase since May 1975 and followed a 1 percent rise in December, when, the report said, "unusually bad weather had a negative influence on sales."

Sees Completion In Six Months

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board was told Monday night that the town's community development project should be completed within six months.

In making the report, Dale Holland told the board curb and gutter projects in the development area should be finished by May 1.

In other matters, the board held two public hearings. In the first hearing the board approved a resolution confirming the assessment roll and the levying of assessments for the West Cooper Street improvements. The board also approved the publication of the assessment roll 20 days from confirmation.

In a second public hearing the board heard no responses from citizens on the additional revenue sharing funds received by the town. Town Clerk Elwood Nobles said the town has received $24,000 additional funds. The board ordered the funds placed in the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District fund.

In new business heard by the board, approval was given for the enforcement of the town stickers. The board said the police department would begin enforcing the stickers after the deadline of Feb. 15. A warning ticket will be issued and then, if the sticker is not purchased in five days, a citation will be issued for the driver at a cost of $37.50 plus $1 for the sticker.

Engineer Linwood Stroud was employed by the town to determine if curb and gutter would be needed on a portion of East Sylvania Street before paving. Nobles told the board Riley Cox and the county agreed to pay their share to pave the street. The street is to be paved when the state paves Ange Street.

Approval was given to Mayor E.C. Hines to sign a letter of intent to receive federal funds from a federal grant for the Recreation Commission on a matching basis.

The board also said it would enforce building permits in the new Knoll Acres subdivision located on the old Tar Road outside Winterville. Nobles said this is in the one mile planning and zoning district of the town.

Seek Link To Cancer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University officials say it's too early to say whether a link exists between the cancer deaths of three professors and the campus building where they all worked.

"We are looking into the problem," said Don Gray, a campus safety officer in charge of the investigation. "But I just found out about it.... We are in the position of not saying anything because we don't have enough information yet."

Gray said Monday he had met with radiation protection and safety services officials. He said he would also meet with medical officials.

Two of the professors shared an office in Winston Hall and a third worked in offices next door. All three taught English, were in their 40s or 50s and died of bladder or liver cancer during the past three years.

Last week a speech professor who has an office in the same building was diagnosed as having bladder cancer.

William G. Franklin, head of the university's speech-communication department, last week wrote Chancellor Bruce Poulton asking that Winston Hall and Tompkins Hall, which have housed the English and speech departments for more than 15 years, be investigated.

Winston Hall once housed the chemistry department.

"There ought to be some way to find out if chemical agents or traces of that stuff are here," Franklin said. "Did they change all the plumbing, or are we stuck with the plumbing in the old chemistry building?"

"The buildings might indeed be the culprit," he said. "Some way, it's strange."

Winterville police also charged Jeffrey Eugene Gray, 22, of 116 Gardner's Alley, Winterville, with breaking into the home of William M. Durham of Winterville Feb. 9. According to Knox, Gray was arrested shortly after Durham notified the police department that he had surprised someone in his home. Bond for Gray was set at $1,000.

Class In Baby Sitting Offered

A unique course for teen-age baby sitters will be offered free by Pitt Memorial's education department March 9, the first of a series of similar workshops on how to care for others.

The baby-sitting course is different from most in that upon successful completion, participants are given a wallet-sized card signifying that they have been taught the essentials of caring for youngsters. They can show the card to parents for whose children they would like to baby-sit.

On the back of the card will be phone numbers for the local fire department, rescue squad and police — a handy resource for a teen-ager in event of an emergency.

Dr. Nancy James, director of hospital education, said the idea for issuing certificates in the form of wallet cards came up in brainstorming among the committee planning the course. Planning began last July, she said.

"We think we have come up with a rather unique program," James said, "particularly in terms of the course content." It will be taught by the hospital staff.

The course is open to young people in the community aged 11-15. It will be held from 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. March 9 at the Gaskins-Leslie Center adjacent to the main hospital building. That date coincides with a teacher work day for Pitt County and Greenville City schools, which means students will have the day off. The hours were set to allow parents to drop off their teen-agers on the way to and from work.

"It will be an active course," James said. "There will be a lot of role playing and demonstration on the part of the participants." For example, students will practice feeding each other to get an idea of how it feels to infants to have food spooned into their mouths. They will practice bathing and dressing children, as well as learning to play age-appropriate games.

It will not be a lecture course, James emphasized. And to give everyone in the course an opportunity to take part, the class size is limited to 10 to 12 teens, she said.

Every aspect of baby-sitting will be covered, from potty-training toddlers to properly strapping children in car seats. Poison control, cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and household safety will be covered as well.

The instructors will also give advice on handling uncomfortable situations with parents, such as how to negotiate a fee, what to do if an intoxicated parent wants to drive the sitter home, how to handle an overly aggressive parent and how to refuse responsibilities one doesn't feel capable of accepting.

For example, James said some parents expect a sitter to serve as "lifeguard" while their children are swimming in the backyard pool. A teen-ager who is not a strong swimmer or who is afraid of water might find himself helpless if a child started to drown, she said. To avoid such an instance, the sitter should be assertive enough to refuse the lifeguarding responsibilities.

Another unique part of the course is the Code of Ethics, Rights and Responsibilities, which the teen will be taught. The code will include the expectations parents have of their sitter. For example, most parents don't want their sitter's friends over, nor do they want loud music blaring from their home.

Although the immediate goal of the course is to teach teens to be responsible, capable baby-sitters, its long-term goal is to prepare young people for parenthood. Much of what will be gleaned from the course will be valuable to them later when they have children of their own. This course may be the only instruction some young people ever get about how to care for youngsters, she noted.

Be A Sweetheart On St. Valentine's Day

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's St. Valentine's Day again? Well, it is, so here's my updated annual message:

Be a sweetheart; call someone who's lonely and say, "I'm thinking of you." Or better yet, say, "I'm coming over to take you to lunch ... or to run some errands ... or to give you a ride." Visit someone in a nursing home or a prison. Say a prayer. Donate some blood. Adopt a pet. Will you eyes, your kidneys and all your usable organs to someone who can use them after you're gone. Quit smoking. Listen to your teenager. Write a fan letter. Tell your parents you think they're great. Pay your doctor. Spay your dog. Neuter your cat. Forgive an enemy. Register to vote. Hug a child. Listen to a bore. Send a donation to the Salvation Army, Care or to the charity of your choice.

If you love someone, tell him or her now; don't wait until next Valentine's Day to be a sweetheart again.

Love, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago my mother died of a lingering illness. Now my father will soon remarry. The big problem: He is planning to take the diamond out of Mother's wedding ring and have it reset for his new wife.

My sister and I both voiced our objections for sentimental reasons. By the way, my mother promised the ring to my sister, but toward the end, she told Da, (in our presence) that if he need to sell it for financial reasons it was OK with her.

I am shocked that Dad would actually give that diamond to another woman. He said it was just a piece of jewelry. When we told him that we disagreed with him on this point, he held to his position.

Abby, this woman my dad is marrying has been married before (she's a widow) and is not in need of any more jewelry. Is Dad wrong? Or are we? Whose ring is it?

MAD AT DAD

DEAR MAD: You say that your mother promised the ring to your sister unless your dad needed to sell it for financial reasons, so since your dad did not sell it, the ring "belongs" to your sister, which is what I would tell your dad were he to ask me.

However, he didn't ask me; you did. So my advice to you is to forget it unless you want to take your father to court for breaking a verbal contract, which I think is unthinkable.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 29-year-old married woman (no children) and do not have a job outside my home. My husband and I are very happy with our lives and we have an excellent relationship.

when I meet people for the first time, they usually ask, "And what do you do?"

I don't want to say, "I'm just a housewife." And I don't want to say, "I don't do anything," because actually I do a lot of cooking, cleaning, shopping, laundry and entertaining. I make a nice comfortable home for my husband and myself.

Abby, do you know of some witty comeback?

AT A LOSS FOR WORDS

DEAR AT: Don't say, "I'm just a housewife." Say proudly, "I hate to brag, but I'm a housewife."

Bridge Winners

Club championship winners Wednesday morning were Barbara Wright and Elizabeth Roque, first with .625 percent. Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts placed second, Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, third, and Mrs. Sidney Skinner and Mrs. Stuart Page, fourth.

A club championship was played during the afternoon game at Planters Bank. Winners were: Mrs. Barry Powers and Charlie Brown, first with .618 percent; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew deSherbinin, second; Mrs. Barbara Wright and Mrs. A.L. Roque, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. Eli Bloom and Mrs. M.H. Bynum with Mrs. Harold Forbes and Emma B. Warren; Ray Gunderson and Dot McKemie, sixth; Mrs. David Stevens and Mrs. William McConnell, seventh; Mrs. Effie Williams and George Martin, eighth.

Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts and George Martin were first place winners Saturday afternoon at Planters Bank with .657 percent; Dave Proctor and Ray Neeland, second; Mrs. A.L. Roque and Mrs. Barbara Wright, third; Mrs. William Parvin and Emma B. Warren, fourth; Mrs. Barry Powers and Lee Hastings, fifth; Robert Crandall and Dr. Robert Hankerson, sixth; Mrs. Robert Hankerson and Mrs. Robert Crandall, seventh; Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. C.D. Elks, eighth.

If the first course proves popular, other sessions may be scheduled for young people who want to participate. Although there is no charge for the first baby-sitting workshop, later sessions may require a fee, James said, depending on the cost of the materials. Her department is soliciting donations of items that can aid in instruction. High chairs, bassinets, infant clothing, diapers, infant seats and toys are needed. Call 757-4466 with new or used items or to register for the course.

Hospital educators are also planning similar workshops for adults who care for the elderly and those who care for the handicapped. Dates for the programs will be announced later.

Healthy Forecast Could Boost Pay

RALEIGH — In the formula used to determine if teachers and state employees will get pay raises, one factor looks exceptionally promising this year. At the same time, that factor looks extremely vulnerable to talk that the current economic recovery might have a short future.

The factor under discussion is the unusually low revenue projection which was used to formulate the fiscal 1985 budget. State tax collections need to grow only by 6.2 percent during the 12 months following July 1, according to the State Budget Office, for the 1985 budget to be balanced. If the Legislature projects tax collections to grow at a rate higher than 6.2 percent, it can assign all that new anticipated revenue to a pay raise.

How low is a 6.2 percent increase? Lower than actual revenue growth during the two worst recession years in recent memory. In fiscal 1975, collections rose 6.8 percent. In fiscal 1983, they rose by 6.5 percent.

Ever since fiscal 1978, the state has averaged annual revenue growth of 9.85 percent — and that includes the dungeon year of fiscal 1983. Drop 1983 figures and the average is 10.52.

When the assembly comes back to Raleigh, that 6.2 percent projection is almost certain to be raised. For each percentage point of increase, the state budget can be increased by $36.5 million — enough to raise teacher salaries by almost 3 percent.

If the economists predict that fiscal 1985 will be an average non-recession year, then a projection of 10.5 percent might find favor. That would mean $157 million in the pot. Add to that this year's surplus tax collections. They're currently running at a rate almost $23 million ahead of projections. That would give the Legislature $190 million to spend on salary increases.

What will that buy? One plan under discussion would provide state employees with a 5 percent raise and teachers with 10 percent. That would cost about $205 million. State employees oppose this move. They say they should be treated equitably. But public opinion supports a big teacher pay raise and there is the 1980 precedent of giving teachers bigger raises than other state workers.

Under this scenario, the Legislature would still have another $130 million or more to spend. The money comes from Gov. Jim Hunt's spending cutbacks this year. This is one-time money which can't prudently be used to pay for items — like salaries — which must be funded every year. It's likely to go toward capital projects then. Hunt is talking about new equipment for the schools and community colleges.

All of this optimism can be snuffed out, however, by pessimistic economic forecasts for fiscal 1985. "I'm not ready to say that 1985 won't be a good year," one state economist said privately. But he noted two concerns — the huge federal deficits and the normal pattern of business cycles.

Fears are being raised on the national level that the deficits could stop the recovery in its tracks. Some conservative economists are now saying that things could start getting bad as early as August 1984. Others are saying 1985 or later. But the state economist noted that with or without the deficits the economy will be due to enter a down cycle near the end of 1985.

This spring, the state's economists will issue a 1985 revenue forecast. The Legislature will then tinker with it, magically manipulating it by points and half-points to match political spending pressures. But there's only so much that even legislative slight of hand can accomplish. In the end, a big teachers' pay raise relies on a healthy forecast for 1985.

Checklist

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government seems to have a form for everything and everyone, and now it has one for those who threaten to blow up federal buildings.

As part of the general tightening of security at the Capitol following last November's blast near the Senate chamber, congressional staffers have been given a checklist for bomb threats.

"Place this card under your telephone," it states.

Listed are these "questions to ask" the would-be bomber: "1. When is the bomb going to explode?; 2. Where is it right now?; 3. What does it look like?; 4. What kind of bomb is it?; 5. What will cause it to explode?; 6. Did you place the bomb?; 7. Why?; 8. What is your address?; 9. What is your name?"

If the caller is still on the line after that set of questions, the person answering the phone is supposed to determine the phoner's sex, race and age.

The checklist goes on to request information on "caller's voice," in categories that include: calm, angry, excited, slow, rapid, soft, loud, laughter, crying, slurred, nasal, stutter, lisp, raspy, ragged, clearing throat, deep breathing, accent, familiar.

"If voice is familiar, who did it sound like?" the questionnaire asks.

And, bomb threat recipients are asked to characterize the "threat language." Checkoffs are listed for: well-spoken, foul, irrational, incoherent or taped.

A second form passed out to congressional staffers gives pointers on how to recognize letter and parcel bombs.

Some of the giveaway hints: "handwritten or poorly typed addresses," "oily stains or discolorations," and "protruding wires or tinfoil."

It wasn't intended that way, but color-coded badges being issued by security-minded Capitol Police, to those who work in the Capitol and surrounding office buildings have become signs of status.

There are red badges, yellow badges, green badges and blue badges.

Red badges were first issued only to those who worked in the Capitol building itself and deemed to need 24-hour access to the building, while yellow badges were given to congressional staffers who worked in House and Senate office buildings and didn't need round-the-clock Capitol access.

That brought howls of complaints from those given yellow badges. Officials modified the order: those who worked in office buildings and who were lawyers could qualify for the more-desirable red badges. More howls of protest.

Finally, officials modified the code again.

"The red (badges) have unfortunately become status symbols and those people with the yellow (badges) apparently feel like second-class citizens," said a memo from Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Larry Smith. "None of these intentions were intended on our part and we sincerely regret that this has occurred."

Henceforth, those with yellow and red badges alike will be allowed full access to the Capitol, Smith wrote.

Green badges are being issued to reporters and blue badges to registered lobbyists. They all carry lesser degrees of access to the Capitol than the much-sought-after red badges and the now-equal yellow badges.

"They made a mistake in the colors," suggested one bemused Senate staffer. "They should have given the green badges to lobbyists. The color could have varied in tinge depending on how much money the lobbyists had."

Under the new arrangement, separate doors have been designated in the Capitol complex for different color badges. And public access has been severely restricted. "Official visitors" can use certain doors, run-of-the-mill visitors must use others. And it isn't always clear which doors are open to which visitors.

Day For Lovers

This is the day for lovers.

Sweethearts and spouses make this a day to remember the person who is closest to them with a Valentine or candy or flowers. It is a time to say 'I love you' in a tangible way.

The thoughts of the day extend to other loved ones, children, parents, grandparents, even special friends.

The day is associated with two St. Valentines. One was a Roman priest and the other the bishop of Terni, Italy. Now the day is celebrated as a lovers' festival. The custom of sending Valentine cards may be connected with the Roman fertility festival of Lupercalia (Feb. 15) or with the mating season of birds.

At any rate now it is a day of the year when we can say or do something nice for people ... so why not remember those you are fond of in some small way.

Rusty Harmony

It would appear the economic inner sanctum in the White House has finally gotten its hinges oiled and all members are now locked arm-in-arm in support of Ronald Reagan's fiscal 1985 budget.

At least on the surface all appeared to be harmony when Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, Budget Director David Stockman and White House economist Martin Feldstein appeared before the House Appropriations Committee side by side to defend the budget. It had been only a few days earlier that Regan had told congressmen there was no merit to Feldstein's economic projections. Stockman has been at odds with each of the other two.

Feldstein, especially, has been the victim of repeated admonishments from within the White House, including public ridicule and forced cancellations of public appearances where he was scheduled to discuss the budget or other Reagan economic proposals.

We cannot help but wonder aloud if the new unity is the product of a glue that might disappear when it rains. Discord has been too prevalent, too intense, to disappear overnight.

—John Cunniff—

On The Human Side

NEW YORK (AP) — Because its profits were so spectacular — $3.73 billion for 1983 — the human side of General Motors' comeback probably cannot be given its due.

But it could be worth more to America's industrial future than that big dollar figure.

To measure it you have to look for the moment at something other than dollars, which is to say you must measure it in terms of greater productivity, in a worker's sense of belonging, in a new spirit of entrepreneurship.

As everyone knows, the automobile industry has had worker problems, marked by sloppiness, absenteeism, apathy, strikes and even on occasions by sabotage. Few worker problems were solved. Instead, they were passed on year to year.

Answers were sought in technology. Early in the 1970s General Motors opened what it considered the world's most modern assembly line at Lordstown, Ohio, and soon found that technology wasn't the answer.

As Prof. Louis Davis of the University of California Los Angeles suggests in the National Productivity Review, they forgot about the personalities of the people that would do the work. The workers didn't like the line.

After two wildcat strikes GM had to concede defeat. They had produced a super-fast assembly line, but they hadn't produced super-fast assemblers.

Says Davis: "It was a textbook case of a failure to synchronize the organization and job structure — the social system and the technical system."

The worker's role, he says, was to act as a fill-in "to perform tasks that the assembly line and its related equipment could not." But, he explains, the workers were young, and believed in the individual over the system.

There were many variations of the error, including a strange one. For years the automobile industry sought to avoid strikes by giving regular raises to workers. But money didn't solve the alienation problem.

But now, if you judge from the statements of Chairman Roger Smith, something has been learned from the tribulations — the competition from imports, and lost jobs and lost profits. And a big recession to boot.

Profit-sharing, said Smith, "puts entrepreneurship back in the free enterprise system." Sharing profits with workers, he said, "is an idea that's right for the auto industry and right for America."

Quite a shift for GM, which once argued that sharing profits with workers was something foreign to the spirit of free enterprise, which is roughly the same as saying it was un-American.

There have been other shifts of thinking too, as indicated by remarks made recently in New York by Lloyd Reuss, elevated recently to a major role in the company's reorganization.

GM, he said, will seek to cut costs and keep its profits strong with the help of highly motivated workers. Anybody can copy technology, he said. "Nobody can copy workers."

Especially, you might add, workers who in March will receive from profit-sharing a total of $322 million, an amount that Smith reminds us in more than the total earnings of all but the top 45 largest U.S. companies.

NOT THE ANSWER!

—James Kilpatrick—

Message Of Baloney

WASHINGTON — Composing a budget message is like composing a sonnet. A certain prescribed form has to be followed. Ronald Reagan's message of Feb. 1 fell perfectly within the rules, which is to say, the message was mostly baloney.

Thus the president spoke gravely about "the threat of indefinitely prolonged high budget deficits." That threat, he said, "raised the specter of sharply higher interest rates, choked-off investment, renewed recession and rising unemployment." Perceiving so awful a prospect, did the president recommend ways to halt these deficits at once?

No, indeed. The president's budget projects a deficit of $180.4 billion in fiscal '85, a deficit of $177.1 billion in '86, a deficit of $180.5 billion in '87, a deficit of $152 billion in '88 and a deficit of $123.4 billion in '89. That adds up to $813.4 billion for the five years. On top of the deficit of $183.7 that is estimated for the current fiscal year, the president is talking of an additional debt of just under $1 trillion over the next six years.

In the classic pattern of presidential budgets, those mind-boggling figures are the end product of much wishful thinking. They are predicated partly upon certain increases in revenue and partly upon certain reductions in non-defense outlays. The Congress last year spurned these selfsame increases and rejected the recommended reductions.

In their refusal to grapple effectively with the deficits, both Congress and the White House are cynically reflecting the will of the American people. Responsible public opinion polls find that the people not only oppose an increase in taxes, but also demand continued high outlays for social programs. If the president's "specter" materializes, the people will be getting about what the people deserve. It is a melancholy thought.

How could the specter be exorcised? Relief will demand bipartisan leadership and bipartisan statesmanship, and neither of these commodities is in large supply in this election year. To his credit, the president has taken the lead in urging bipartisan negotiations on the deficits, but unless the president gets his feet out of the concrete in which they now are fixed, negotiations will go nowhere.

The president seems to be dead set against a significant increase in taxes. Such increases, he says, "pile unfair burdens on the people, hurt capital formation and destroy incentives for growth." There is a further reason for his opposition. With good reason, Reagan fears that if he consented to an additional $30 billion a year in taxes, the big spenders on Capitol Hill would spend every dime of it on expanded programs of strong political appeal. There would be no reduction in the deficits.

If anything useful is to be accomplished, increases in revenue must be accompanied by substantially identical reductions in outlays. There's the rub. Forty-two percent of federal spending is for social services; 29 percent is for national defense. Congress is too timid to cut the former; the president is too stubborn to cut the latter.

It's time to make a deal. The specter conjured by the president is not a gauzy illusion. It is real, and it ought to be dealt with now. Under the best of circumstances, it would be 1985 or 1986 before significant reforms in taxes and spending could be fully reflected in our national accounts.

The president will have to yield on some points. He will have to yield on his request for $231 billion in defense spending this year and $264 billion next year. In his message, he said cheerily that "everyone's tax rates must be reduced." He will have to yield on that pretty prospect too.

But Congress also must yield in such areas as civilian retirement benefits, Medicare, Medicaid, farm subsidies and other entitlement programs. Such compromise will be painful, but if they are achieved through bipartisan agreement, the political pain will be widely shared. Gentlemen, get thee to the bargaining table!

Strength For Today

The word "fanatic" is derived from a Latin word which means "temple."

The fanatic is a person who has religious zeal — temple zeal — although this zeal is usually unreasonable, excessive and characterized by hatred rather than by love.

"I am God's good soldier," cries the fanatic, pounding his breast with pride. "I am on the Lord's side." What he really means is that the Lord is on his side.

Religious zeal is much to be desired. Let us never look upon it with scorn. The evil of the fanatic is not the measure of his zeal but the quality of it. It is lacking in love. This poor creature is the center of his own universe. God has really nothing to do with his life. He is his own god.

Let us have zeal for our religion and for every noble cause, but let our zeal be healthy and not diseased. Fanaticism is diseased enthusiasm.

Ayden Board Approves Exchange Of Trucks

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners has approved the exchange of the town's utility bucket truck for two other utility trucks that officials say are more suitable for the town's needs.

The board approved the swap at its monthly meeting Monday with the stipulation that the two new trucks be conditioned and outfitted to the town's specifications. In January the board authorized Town Manager Don Russell to negotiate the trade with a Burlington utility truck firm.

Russell reported that an examination of the two new vehicles Friday by town mechanics convinced him and other personnel the trucks "were in good shape and will give us good service." Mechanics will check the trucks again before the trade is made, he noted.

Ayden will swap its present 1980 model bucket truck for 1970 and 1973 model line and bucket trucks. Utilities Director Jordan C. Horne told commissioners at the January meeting that the present bucket truck is "more truck than the town needs, does not satisfy the department's requirements and has a negative maintenance record." The bucket truck extends to a height of 70 feet, according to Horne, and most power lines maintained by the town are 35 feet in the air.

In addition, he said, the town's line truck is in poor shape and needs to be replaced.

The trade will not cost the town any money, officials noted, since the cost of the two new trucks totals $35,000 and the truck firm is allowing Ayden $40,000 for the 1980 truck. An additional $5,000 of equipment is being added to the new trucks, however, to outfit them for the town's specific needs.

Town Manager Russell said he expected delivery of the new trucks sometime in March.

In other business:

•A 6.75-acre tract of land located behind North Hills subdivision was rezoned from RA-8 residential to M-1 manufacturing. A public hearing was held and no opposition to the rezoning was expressed. The land is outside the town's corporate limits and is owned by Chester Stox.

•An ordinance requiring traffic at the intersection of Cedar Lane and Wildwood Drive to stop was adopted by the board. A stop sign will be erected at the intersection.

•Town Manager Russell reported that the town's electrical bill for January was the highest ever — $241,410. The kilowatt usage, he reported, was also the steepest ever — five million.

Ford Profit Aided By Big Car Sales

By EDWARD MILLER
AP Auto Writer

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co.'s record earnings of $1.87 billion in 1983 can be attributed to the overall improvement of the auto market and Ford's ability to sell more of the big cars that carry large profit margins, an industry analyst says.

"They not only sold more cars, but more of the right kind of cars," said David Healy of the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York.

"The mix was better than in 1982 and there wasn't the necessity of rebates and deals to keep the cars moving," Healy said following Ford's announcement Monday. "People aren't as worried about gasoline (prices) any more, so they buy the Grand Marquis and the LTD instead of the Escort."

The 1983 profit snapped three straight years of major losses at the nation's second-largest automaker and eclipsed Ford's previous record earnings of $1.67 billion, set in 1977.

General Motors Corp. last week announced a 1983 profit of $3.73 billion. When Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. release their figures later this month, the industry-wide profit is expected to top $6 billion — well above the record profit of $5.18 billion in 1977.

Ford put its worldwide sales of cars and trucks in 1983 at 4.93 million, up nearly 16 percent from 4.27 million in 1982. In dollars, sales were up 19.7 percent, to $44.4 billion from $37.1 billion in 1982. Earnings equaled $9.64 a share following a 3-for-2 stock split in October.

For the fourth quarter of 1983, Ford reported earnings of $781 million, or $4.29 a share, compared with a loss of $236 million in the final three months of 1982. Sales were up 34.8 percent, to $12.4 billion from $9.2 billion in the same period in 1982.

Ford lost $657.8 million in 1982, $1.06 billion in 1981 and a company record $1.54 billion in 1980, the year the American car industry lost $4.2 billion.

Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell told a news conference Monday that "many more good years lie ahead." But he warned that higher interest rates brought on by the rising federal budget deficit could bring back losses for the whole industry.

The United Auto Workers' contracts at GM and Ford expire on the same day, Sept. 14, and the union has made it clear that it wants a share of the profits the automakers are now making.

According to a statement released by the union and attributed to UAW Vice President Stephen Yokich, "There is a wide gulf between the amount earned by workers and the amounts paid to company executives."

The investment banking firm of Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb Inc. in New York estimates that GM and Ford will be paying each production worker an average of $23 an hour in wages and benefits by September.

Townships Quiet But Tense, Too

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Extra police patrols were deployed today in Pretoria's tense black townships after a teen-age schoolgirl was killed in a clash between police and boycotting black students.

The townships were reported quiet, but police in camouflage dress and milling groups of boycotting students were visible on the streets.

There were some earlier reports of continued unrest, but witnesses and police said no trouble had occurred since Monday night.

A police spokesman said 20 students were arrested Monday night in Atteridgeville.

Plan Help Herdsmen

GREENSBORO (AP) — Two North Carolina A&T State University professors say a project to help nomadic herdsmen in the west African country of Niger seeks to improve the present system of herding rather than trying to change it.

John O'Sullivan, an agricultural extension specialist, and Glenn Howze, a rural sociologist, will take part in the $19.1 million, five-year project to improve livestock management in drought-stricken Niger.

"There have been projects in the past that tried to get these people to settle in one place around the established water holes," Howze said. "In almost no time, they had totally stripped the area of grass and were having to go as much as 140 miles away to graze and then come back to the water hole."

"Their system of production, their migratory patterns, didn't develop by chance," he said. "It's a response to the conditions they face. We're trying to work within that system rather than replace it."

The grant for the project, one of the largest ever made by the U.S. Agency for International Development, will be administered by a three-university consortium that includes A&T, Tufts University and New Mexico State University.

"About 90 percent of Niger's population is engaged in some form of agriculture, and Howze said well over half of those are nomadic herders. The country's average annual income is $475 per person, O'Sullivan said.

The herders live in a harsh, arid section of the country called Sahel, which borders the Sahara desert. The rainy season lasts less than three months, O'Sullivan said, and no rain falls in the other nine. The herders move their cattle, goats and sheep almost continuously, searching for water and grass.

Although conditions always have been harsh, 15 years of drought have devastated the herds, killing more than a third of all the animals, O'Sullivan said.

"This is the time of year when the dust storms come, and it's not unusual for the temperature to reach 120 degrees," O'Sullivan said. "It's so dry that if you buy a loaf of bread in the morning, you can't eat it by lunch."

The herders live off the milk produced by their animals, O'Sullivan said. As the dry season progresses, the milk dries up and the herders must sell some of their animals to buy grain.

One of the goals of the project, he said, is to develop a credit system so that herders can buy grain without selling portions of their herds.

Kill Plan To Elect Education Bd. Members

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislative committee has rejected a proposal to have the North Carolina Board of Education elected by popular vote, saying it would be unrealistic to expect candidates to incur the expense of campaigning.

In rejecting the proposal, the Governance Committee of the legislative Public Education Policy Council leaned toward a board appointed by the governor and the legislature.

The committee said a full-time board, paid with state salaries, was too expensive and unnecessary. The committee also said board members from the state's 11 congressional district should be limited to two consecutive four-year terms.

The committee is drafting options for the Legislature to consider in an attempt to streamline public education in North Carolina. Some of the proposals could alter the role of the board, while others would require constitutional amendments.

State Sen. James H. Edwards, D-Catawba, committee chairman, said that the Legislature could consider the recommendations at its short session in June, but said it was more likely that the issues would be taken up in the 1985 legislative session.

The panel left open four options for a final recommendation at its next meeting, scheduled for March 6. Three of the proposals would reduce the authority of the superintendent of public instruction.

Most of the group's discussion centered on a plan that would enlarge the state board of education from 13 to 21 members, with 11 members being appointed by the General Assembly from the state's congressional districts.

Under the proposal, local school boards would nominate a candidate to the county's commissioners, who would then select a county representative. The Legislature would then choose from among those candidates.

The governor would appoint eight members as is now the case, but three at-large appointments would be eliminated. The lieutenant governor and state treasurer would remain members of the board.

The board would then appoint the state superintendent, who is now elected statewide.

Dr. E. Michael Latta, executive director of the state Advisory Council on Education, said the proposal was the most workable but not the most politically acceptable because it would require a constitutional amendment after initial approval by the Legislature.

Sen. Cary D. Allred, D-Alamance, said populous counties would dominate the selection process, but other members said the governor could use his appointments to offset any imbalances.

A second option would leave the superintendent of public instruction as an elected official but his role would be diminished. The governor would still appoint the state board, which would appoint a commissioner of public schools to run the day-to-day operations.

A third proposal would enhance the authority of the superintendent, who would continue to be elected.

The state board would also continue to be appointed by the governor.

Under a fourth plan, which had little backing, the state board would still be appointed by the governor, but the board would elect the superintendent.

High Lead Level In Hoke's Soil

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP) — Hazardous levels of lead have again been found in soil samples from a battery and transformer salvage site in Hoke County, a state analyst says.

Soil samples show "extractable lead levels in about the 10 (parts per million) level" at one of the three sites tested, said Richard Davis, waste management specialist with the state's Solid and Hazardous Waste Management Branch.

Davis said Monday he did not know the exact lead level at the site, a wooded area near the Ashley Heights community. Davis said the soil samples — taken last fall — from the other two sites didn't show high lead levels.

Extractable lead levels of more than five parts per million are considered hazardous, according to state officials. Extractable lead separates naturally into the environment.

School Will Host The First Lady

SEATTLE (AP) — New paint glistened on walls at Island Park Elementary School and students pasted valentines to welcome first lady Nancy Reagan, visiting as part of her campaign against drug and alcohol abuse.

The school, with an enrollment of 500, boasts an excellent drug and alcohol awareness program, and Mrs. Reagan was to sit in on a drug class today with fourth- and fifth-graders.

She planned to lunch with children and producers of an anti-drug television program she narrated, "The Chemical People," which was shown by Public Broadcasting System stations last fall.

Fourth Arrest In Selling Diplomas

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Seneca, S.C., man has become the fourth person to be arrested in connection with the FBI's investigation of phony colleges that sold diplomas and other professional papers.

Charles Alfred Durham was arrested in Greenville, S.C., Monday according to Robert Pence, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina. Pence said a federal grand jury meeting in Charlotte returned a six-count indictment Feb. 9 charging Durham with mail fraud.

Pence said Durham used the alias Dr. Alfred Charles Durham and operated Professional Degree Consulting Services of Clemson, S.C.

The indictment against Durham charges that he offered to sell degrees from Roosevelt University, which listed the same address as his business in Clemson; as well as DePaul University in Paris, France; and Metropolitan Collegiate Institute in London, England.

The indictment charges that Durham offered to sell degrees from Roosevelt University with prices ranging from $760 for a bachelor's degree to $940 for doctorate degrees.

Durham required no course work for the degrees and offered transcripts to back up the degrees for an extra $50, the indictment said. He also allegedly offered a 10 percent discount if more than one degree was purchased.

Durham was taken before a federal magistrate in Greenville, S.C., Monday and released on $10,000 bond. He could receive up to 30 years in prison, a $30,000 fine, or both if convicted of the six charges.

Durham and three others have been arrested since the FBI announced its "Dipscam" probe last year. Two others indicted have been convicted and are in federal prisons, and a third is awaiting trial, Pence said.

The investigation covered several states and involved 50 suspected "diploma mills" that allegedly offered to sell degrees and professional papers.

Promotion For Navy Astronaut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Capt. Richard Truly, with two space shuttle rides into space under his belt, is about to get a boost in military rank.

President Reagan has approved selection of the 46-year-old Truly for promotion to the rank of commander, the Navy announced Monday.

It was not clear whether the nomination has gone to the Senate for confirmation, which normally is routine. Congress is in recess this week.

Truly, commander of the new Navy Space Command at Dahlgren, Va., flew aboard the Columbia space shuttle on its second mission in November 1981 and went up again in the Challenger on the eighth space shuttle flight last August.

No Payload, No July Shuttle Flight

MAKING VALENTINES — Handmade Valentines never seem to go out of fashion. They are prettier and the messages they carry, because they're original, are much more personal. At least that's how Chris

Easterbrooks of Ayden said he felt about this card he was making for a friend. (Reflector Photo by Sue Hinson)

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A space shuttle mission scheduled for July may be scrubbed because the Defense Department is removing a secret payload it had planned to launch, officials say.

An Air Force spokesman confirmed that the secret payload would not be sent aloft in July.

Glynn S. Lunney, space shuttle program director at Johnson Space Center, said Monday night that he had not been told of the Air Force plans, but that without the cargo the July mission will not be launched.

"If they are removing the payload, then we won't fly," Lunney said.

Air Force spokesman Maj. Ron Rand said Monday night that the secret payload "will not be there" for the July launch.

"We have dropped from the mission we had scheduled in July," said Rand. "The DOD (Department of Defense) will not have anything to fly on that mission." He declined to give further details, citing Defense Department policy.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration had originally scheduled 10 missions in 1984, including the Challenger flight completed Saturday.

One of the remaining missions, scheduled for September, is carried on the NASA manifest as either a Defense Department flight or a mission to launch a NASA communications satellite. Rand said he did not know whether the military would have a payload for that mission.

James Beggs, a NASA administrator, had said last week that the July flight was "in jeopardy."

Other NASA officials had said the Air Force might scrub the secret payload mission because of problems with the Inertial Upper Stage, a rocket booster used to send payloads of 5,000 pounds or more from the low orbit of the shuttle into orbit 22,300 miles above the Earth.

The booster failed in April 1983 and left the $100 million Tracking and Data Relay Satellite in a low, elliptical orbit. Engineers were able to raise the satellite to its proper high orbit by firing its small rocket thrusters repeatedly over several months.

After that failure, the Defense Department canceled a mission that had been scheduled for the fall.

NASA and the Air Force have been studying the failure. However, Air Force Lt. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, NASA's associate administrator for spaceflight, said in a briefing last week that the booster problem has not been solved.

Plan Rites For The Last McCoy

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (AP) — The patriarch of the McCoy family, who shook hands with the Hatfields to end the nation's most famous family feud, will be buried Wednesday — and the Hatfield Funeral Chapel is handling the arrangements.

It was Jim McCoy himself who chose the funeral home in nearby Toler, Ky., before his death Saturday at age 99, said chapel owner David Hatfield.

"This is where he wanted to come," said Hatfield, 42, who said he "really never did try to run down" his exact ties to the family involved in the legendary dispute.

McCoy, a gentle man who claimed to have once drawn water from a well to give outlaw Jesse James, was born in 1884. Two years earlier, the first blood had been shed in the decades-long Hatfield-McCoy feud that by some reports took 150 lives.

Despite the violent legacy, McCoy tried to keep the feud in the past and is remembered fondly by Hatfield.

"He and my dad were real close. He'd known me since I was a kid," Hatfield said Monday night. "He was just a fine man. He wouldn't even talk to you about the Hatfield-McCoy thing. He just didn't want to have anything to do with it."

McCoy succumbed to congestive heart failure Saturday morning at the Casey County Hospital in Liberty, Ky., where he had been making his home with a daughter, Hatfield said.

At a ceremony in May 1976, McCoy, representing his family, shook hands with the late Willis Hatfield, then 88, signaling the end of their grievances. The ceremony was held in the old McCoy cemetery on Blackberry Fork near Hardy, Ky., where Jim McCoy will be buried Wednesday.

But even before the truce was officially called, the two families had been friends and Hatfield said he expects both sides to be represented at the funeral.

"We live right here together. We get along fine. That was just something to do away with — everything that happened before."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were mostly ahead in early trading today although prices slipped from higher levels reached just after the opening bell.

A morning rumor that President Reagan died, quickly denied by the White House, appeared to have no major effect on trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 10.57 Monday to a 10-month low, was up 2.40 to 1,152.53 after two hours of trading. The measure had been up more than 7 points earlier in the session.

Advances maintained a 4-3 lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index rose 0.15 to 89.43.

Big Board volume totaled 39.27 million shares at noon EST against 32.59 million at that hour Monday, when many investing institutions were closed for Lincoln's birthday.

Monday's retreat extended the market's steep slide this year, which largely has been attributed to investors' fear that interest rates are not soon coming down.

Today's opening upswing came despite economic news that raised fears of even higher rates.

Retail sales rose 2.2 percent in January, the biggest gain since May 1983, the Commerce Department said today. The gain might signal renewed economic strength, which some fear could lead the Federal Reserve to be even more restrictive with credit so as to curb higher inflation.

Houston Natural Gas slumped 9 1/2 to 43 and topped the NYSE's active list. Houston Natural and Coastal Corp. said Monday they dropped their offers to acquire each other. Coastal fell 4 1/4 to 32 3/4.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 0.13 to 205.15.

Blamed In Fish Kill

The lack of oxygen in water in a bar pit at the old Greenville landfill, behind Greenwood Cemetery, resulted in the death of about 2,000 fish over the weekend, Milan Muzinich, regional manager of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, said this morning.

Muzinich, who said employees of the department's division of environmental management investigated the incident, said the fish kill was reported Saturday morning.

Muzinich said "last spring or summer, the (Tar) river rose to overflow into the bar pit," which had been dry, and has been used as a disposal site for "grass cuttings and the like."

When the river overflowed into the pit, Muzinich said "along with the water, juvenile fish and larva got in there," and "these fish began to grow."

Recent warm weather, and the decomposition of the vegetable matter in the pit, "depleted the oxygen," and caused the death of "about 2,000 ... trash fish," Muzinich explained.

City Manager Gail Meeks, who said about 400 "scavenger fish ... a low class of fish" were dead when she visited the site Saturday afternoon, said there was no negligence on the part of the city in connection with the fish kill.

She also said the pond at the old landfill "does not connect with the river."

Andropov Hailed For Peace Role

MOSCOW (AP) — Hailed as "an ardent champion of peace" and saluted by volleys of gunfire and shrieking factory whistles, Yuri V. Andropov was buried today in Red Square at the foot of the Kremlin wall among other heroes of the Soviet Union.

His successor as Communist Party leader, Konstantin U. Chernenko, called Andropov "an ardent champion of peace" as the open, red-draped coffin stood before the mausoleum of V.I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet state.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, also speaking from atop the mausoleum, said the Soviet Union had sought to strengthen peace and attacked "those who are pursuing policies of militarism." Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov, in his remarks, praised Andropov for building up the armed strength of the Warsaw Pact.

The speeches by the three leaders stressed the twin themes of Soviet desire for peace and determination to maintain the armed might of the Soviet Union. Chernenko reiterated that the Soviet Union was ready for talks, "but we will not be scared by threats."

The weather was clear, bright and cold and the mourners' breath steamed in the 19-degree air. Chernenko and Ustinov rubbed their noses with handkerchiefs during the eulogies, and Chernenko coughed several times.

After the speeches, the coffin was then carried by soldiers and Politburo members around the mausoleum to the grave. Andropov, who died Thursday, served as Soviet leader for only 15 months.

Two men escorted Andropov's sobbing widow to the graveside, while his son and daughter stood nearby, appearing stricken with grief.

With tens of thousands of Soviet soldiers and civilians, and hundreds of diplomats and world leaders looking on, the coffin was lowered into the grave.

 policy and procedure. There's no manual," Ball said, adding that the formulation of a policy and procedure manual is "absolutely the sheriff's responsibility."

County Manager Reginal Gray noted that Tyson has requested the National Jail Center for assistance in preparing an operational policies and procedures manual.

In other business Monday, the board approved a recommendation by Gray and Davenport, that an employee pay reclassification study be conducted before the beginning of the next fiscal year, and accepted the resignation of Davenport as assistant county manager, effective March 9.

Davenport will become county manager for Beaufort County in mid-March.

ECU Hosts Young Howard Team

East Carolina University's Pirates play host to Howard University of Washington, D.C., tonight at 7:30 p.m.

The Pirates will be seeking to snap a three-game losing streak with a victory in the contest. ECU's last win was against George Mason a week ago this past Saturday, 70-68. Since then, the Pirates have dropped two straight road contests, 78-58, to Eastern Illinois, and 65-62, to Western Illinois. They also lost Saturday night at home to ECAC-South rival William & Mary, 67-52.

The Pirates are 4-17 overall and are only one game off the ECU single season record for losses — 18. That mark was established in the 1976-77 campaign when Dave Patton's final team went 10-18.

Howard meanwhile is 10-11 on the year, having lost two straight games. They were defeated Saturday night by North Carolina A&T, 73-70, and then fell to South Carolina State last night, 67-61.

However, they had won seven of their last eight prior to the two losses.

The Bison got off to a poor start, however, bowing in eight of their first 11 contests, including six in a row at the start of the season. Among their losses, it might be noted, is a 63-52 setback by UCLA at Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles.

Coming off a 19-9 year last season, the Bison are much like the Pirates this year, having to rely on youthful players. They are expected to start at least two and possibly three freshmen. The alternate starter is a sophomore, with two seniors rounding out the starting lineup.

Senior Kevin Scott, a 6-5 forward, is the leading scorer with a 13.8 average prior to this weekend's games. He also pulls in 5.1 rebounds, second best on the team. The other senior on the team is David Wynn, a 6-6 forward, hitting 11.4 points a game and leading the team in rebounding with 6.2.

Starting at the guards will be two freshmen, 6-2 Fred Hill, averaging 12.1 points, and 6-3 George Hamilton, hitting at an 8.8 clip. The center will either be 6-9 freshman Robert McIlwaine, 5.6 ppg, or Derek Caracciolo, a 6-8 sophomore, hitting 6.2 points a game.

The Pirates, after several games without having a player average in double figures, have one now as Curt Vanderhorst is hitting at 11.1 points a game. His 29 points this past Saturday against William & Mary, was a personal high for the sophomore guard, and a season high for the team. The last time a Pirate player scored as many, in fact, was nearly four years ago when George Maynor hit 30 points against Wisconsin-Milwaukee on March 1, 1980.

The next best average is that of senior guard Tony Robinson, 7.2, followed by William Grady, a freshman generally the first man off the bench, who is scoring at 6.5 per game.

The game is one of only two scheduled for the Pirates this week. Saturday night they travel to Richmond, Va., to face the ECAC-South-leading Spiders in a 7:30 p.m. game at Robins Center.

Mahre 8th In G.S.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 14, 1984

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — The United States had struck gold, then, suddenly, the vein was played out.

On Monday, Debbie Armstrong was 24-karat, leading a 1-2 U.S. finish in the women's giant slalom at the 1984 Winter Olympics.

But today, the luck of America paled when three-time World Cup champion Phil Mahre finished eighth in the men's giant slalom, won by Max Julen of Switzerland.

"I wish I could always feel this way," said Armstrong, who won America's first gold medal of these Games. It was the first gold in Alpine skiing for the United States since Barbara Cochran won the slalom in Sapporo, Japan in 1972.

"Try to imagine my emotions," she said. "Try to imagine. Whatever you imagine, you're probably right. It was pretty special."

Christin Cooper finished second, and less than a half second separated Tamara McKinney, 1983 World Cup champion, from third place as the United States finished 1-2-4.

The United States now has three medals, one gold and two silver. East Germany leads the medals race with 15 total, six gold. The Soviet Union has 14 medals, three gold.

But there was more U.S. gold yet to be mined.

Scott Hamilton, the three-time world champion from Denver, led in men's figure skating going into today's short program. Hamilton built a large lead over Jean-Christophe Simond of France after the compulsory figures on Monday.

"My coach told me if you see an opportunity, take it," Hamilton said. "If you see the door open, kick it in. And I'm going to nail it shut."

Judy Blumberg of Tarzana, Calif., and Michael Seibert of Washington, Pa., were third going into today's free dance finale, led by overwhelming favorites Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean of Britain.

Julen, who finished second to Mahre in last season's World Cup giant slalom standings, led after both runs, finishing in 2:41.18. Jure Franko gave Yugoslavia its first Winter Olympic medal ever, winning the silver in 2:41.41, and Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein was third.

Mahre stood 10th after the first run, more than a second off the lead. It was too much time to make up as he finished in 2:43.25. Phil's twin brother, Steve, was 18th after the first run and never in the chase.

Gaetan Boucher became Canada's first gold medalist with a victory in the 1,000-meter speed skating. Boucher clocked 1:15.80 seconds, well off the 1:15.18 Olympic record set by American Eric Heiden at Lake Placid in 1980.

Sergei Khlebnikov of the Soviet downed West Germany 6-1, Sweden beat Poland 10-1, Yugoslavia defeated Italy 5-1 and Czechoslovakia beat Finland 7-2.

Armstrong, 20, of Seattle, Wash., is only in her second year on the U.S. Alpine squad and began the season on the B Team. The grand dame of U.S. skiing, Cindy Nelson, once predicted future stardom for her.

The future was Monday, and Armstrong knew it as she stood center-stage on the platform at the awards ceremony later in the day. With the medal hanging around her neck and the Stars and Stripes waving, she shook her hands in the

Heels Still #1

NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of stirring upsets to previously undefeated North Carolina and DePaul helped create something of a stir in the Associated Press college basketball poll.

Despite losing to Arkansas 65-54 Sunday for its first setback in 22 games, North Carolina remained No. 1 today. The Tar Heels gained 53 first-place votes from a panel of 61 sports writers and broadcasters nationwide.

But previously second-ranked DePaul, which was beaten by unranked St. Joseph's 58-45, dipped to

No. 3. The Tar Heels and Blue Demons had been the only remaining NCAA Division I teams with perfect records.

The surging Georgetown Hoyas were awarded six first-place votes and a total of 1,127 points, to become the new No. 2. The point system is based on 20 points for each first place vote, 19 for second, etc.

North Carolina, which was off to its best start since winning the 1957 championship with a 32-0 record, collected 1,203 votes. DePaul, 18-1, received 1,061.

The new wrinkle in this week's Top 20 are four newcomers.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, 19-4, who dropped out of the poll three weeks ago, have now won four games in a row and re-enter at No. 14.

air in victory and laughed.

"I just couldn't stop laughing," she said. "I just couldn't believe I was up there. You can't put it into words. To be here in Europe and see your flag go up."

"I said to myself, 'This is yours and nobody can take it away now.'"

"Second behind Cooper after the first run, Armstrong turned in a time of 1 minute, 12.01 seconds on the second heat to capture the gold medal in 2:20.98. Cooper, of Sun Valley, Idaho, a World Cup veteran, had runs of 1:08.87 and 1:12.51 for 2:21.38. Perrine Pelen of France had a total time of 2:21.40 to repeat her bronze medal performance of four years ago.

McKinney, of Lexington, Ky., was fourth, only .43 seconds behind Pelen. After her first run, McKinney was more than a second off the lead in eighth place, but she had the fastest time in the second run, 1:11.72, to move into fourth.

"It would have been nice to be 1-2-3," McKinney said, "but 1-2-4 isn't bad."

In fact, it was the best Alpine finish ever for an American Olympic team. And Armstrong's giant slalom victory was the first for the United States since Andrea Mead-Lawrence won the event in 1952 at Oslo, Norway.

As Armstrong and Cooper embraced at the finish area, knowing the gold and silver were in hand, someone shouted from a small but uproarious knot of U.S. partisans: "America has been waiting for this!"

"Now, America's got it!" Armstrong replied.

Armstrong broke her leg at the 1982 world championships, but since then, she has steadily climbed the ladder, until today she was at the top. She had finishes as high as third in World Cup giant slaloms and fifth in downhill.

"From the minute I got up this morning I felt good," Armstrong said. "I knew if I kept my head together and skied positive, I had a chance to win a medal. Those were the two runs of my life. All the way down I thought this was my only chance, and I better do it now, so no holding back."

Cooper, 24, also is coming back from injury. A broken leg cut short her 1983 campaign after finishing third overall in the World Cup the year before. Cooper said a slip at the top of the second run probably cost her the gold.

"It hurts to be so close," Cooper said, "but I'm happy with the silver."

Torvill and Dean set precedent with perfect 6.0 scores in both the compulsory dance and original set pattern portion of their programs, taking an insurmountable lead into the free dance.

Blumberg and Seibert trailed the Soviet couple of Natalya Bestemianova and Andrei Bukin. The American couple had virtually no chance of overtaking the British pair, but the silver medal was in sight.

"I don't want to be third. You always shoot for the top, but I would feel very pleased with a silver medal, and that's what we're going for," Seibert said.

Kentucky Survives Gators' Trap

By The Associated Press
For many years, the Florida Gators have been the dormats in the Southeastern Conference as far as basketball is concerned. Nobody's stepping over them this season, however.

"I think they're underrated — they're a Top Twenty ballclub," Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said after Monday night's 67-65 victory over the Gators.

Earlier in the season, the Gators had handed Kentucky a 69-57 beating at Gainesville, Fla., at a time when the Wildcats were ranked No. 2 in the country. They're currently No. 6.

"They kept their composure. They just kept coming at us," said Kentucky guard Dicky Beal, whose free throw gave the Wildcats their 67th point. "That's the sign of a good team. I thought we had them, but they kept their poise even when the crowd was yelling."

In other action involving the Top Twenty, No. 8 Memphis State tripped South Carolina 72-61. Three other previously ranked teams also saw action — as former No. 13 Maryland defeated Dayton 61-59, No. 15 Louisville lost to Virginia Tech 76-74 and No. 16 Auburn stopped Vanderbilt 73-67. All fell from the rankings in voting announced today.

Top Twenty

Blackmon's layups, at the 2:09 and 1:44 marks, gave the Wildcats a 66-61 advantage before Beal added a free throw.

The Gators got back into it on a field goal and a pair of free throws by Ronnie Williams, but a flying, last-ditch shot by Florida's Darryl Gresham bounced off the rim and the Wildcats pounced on the rebound to preserve their grudge victory.

"We didn't have the luxury of being careful at that point," observed Florida Coach Norm Sloan. "They're the best team in the league. They know how to handle pressure."

Melvin Turpin, who also sank two straight baskets in the final five minutes, led Kentucky with 15 points, while Sam Bowie had 12 points and 11 rebounds.

Meanwhile, Philip Haynes scored 19 points and Keith Lee collected 18 points and nine rebounds as Memphis State defeated South Carolina. Lee had a formidable game although sitting out most of the first half with three fouls.

Memphis State took the lead for good with eight minutes remaining in the first half when the Tigers turned a 12-9 deficit into a 19-12 advantage in the space of two minutes. The Tigers played most of the second half with a 16-point lead after breaking for intermission with a 34-23 advantage.

South Carolina Coach Bill Foster was "proud of our effort" despite the loss. "With about five minutes left in the game we had their lead down to nine or 10 points and had put ourselves in a position to come back. Memphis State is a heck of a team. They took away our inside game with their great size."

Others
Ben Coleman scored 26 points, including a five-foot baseline jumper at the buzzer, to boost Maryland over Dayton and end a three-game losing streak for the Terps. Coleman rebounded a shot from the opposite corner by Jeff Adkins and put the ball back up as time expired.

Roosevelt Chapman led Dayton with 20 points to give him a career total of 1,983 which broke the all-time Flyer record of 1,980 set by Donnie May.

Dayton Coach Don Donoher said the Flyers were matched up well for Adkins' shot from the corner, "but the ball kicked out in their favor. It was an almost impossible situation."

Perry Young scored 24 points and hit two free throws with 55 seconds left to help Virginia Tech stifle a rally by Louisville.

The Hokies were up 70-61 with 4:22 to go. But the Cardinals scored eight straight points on two baskets apiece by Jeff Hall and Lancaster Gordon to pull within 70-69 with 1:26 left.

Louisville later tied the score at 72 on a three-point play by Manuel Forrest, but with 55 seconds left Young was fouled and sank both free throws to make it 74-72.

Charles Barkley scored 22 points to lead Auburn over Vanderbilt and keep the Tigers a half-game behind Kentucky in the SEC race.

Barkley, who became the 11th player in Auburn history to score 1,000 points in his career with a tip-in at 14:43 of the first half, got plenty of help from forward Chuck Person and guard Gerald White, both of whom scored 16 points.

Vanderbilt guard Phil Cox led all scorers with 24 points and forward Jeff Turner added 14.

Elsewhere, Chris Mullin scored 25 points and hit a tie-breaking foul shot in the last minute as St. John's defeated Boston College 68-65; Horace McMillanny Wilson's three-point play with 35 seconds left lifted Davidson to a 47-44 victory over VMI; Bruce Morris came up with three steals in the final 14 seconds as Marshall defeated Appalachian State 84-77; Willie White hit two free throws with five seconds left to give Tennessee-Chattanooga an 85-83 win over The Citadel, and Charlie Sitton hit 10 for 10 from the field and totaled 23 points to lead Oregon State past Arizona 53-48.

Coleman's Shot Lifts Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Jeff Adkins had a deflated feeling when his shot bounced off the rim, certain that Maryland was headed into another overtime game.

"I thought the it was all over and said, 'Here we go again,'" Adkins recalled of his miss from the right corner.

But Ben Coleman, who scored 26 points, grabbed the rebound on the opposite side of the basket and sank a five-foot baseline jumper at the buzzer to give Maryland a hard-earned 61-59 decision over underdog Dayton.

Coleman sank 11 of 14 shots from the floor, giving him 22-for-26 in his last two games, and also snared nine rebounds.

Adrian Branch, playing his second game since being reinstated following a drug conviction, was the lead option on the final play set up during a timeout.

"If they had gone man-to-man I could have maneuvered," said Branch, who passed off to Adkins from the top of the key. "But they went zone, and I didn't want to force it. I felt we could get a better shot."

The victory ended a three-game losing streak for the Maryland, 15-6. The team had been ranked No. 13 in the nation before its last two losses, but was dropped from the rankings today.

Two of the defeats in the streak came in double overtime, and the Terps were not particularly anxious to try their luck in another extra period.

Although he scored only three points and missed his game-winning attempt, Adkins averted a possible loss with a fine defensive play.

The Flyers, 13-8 after having a six-game winning streak snapped, went ahead 59-57 on a basket by Ed Young with 3:05 left.

After Coleman forged a 59-59 tie,

Dayton tried to control the ball for a final shot. But Adkins knocked down an attempted pass by Larry Schellenberg, who had 12 assists for the Flyers, and regained control with 1:40 remaining.

Maryland ran the clock down to 11 seconds before calling time to set up the final play.

Dayton hit 67 percent of its shots while taking a 38-30 halftime lead. Until Coleman's winning shot, the Terps led only at 9-7 and 56-55.

The Flyers hit 67 percent of their shots in the first half, with 28 of their points coming on shots from 12 feet or beyond.

"We needed to sustain another offensive half," said Dayton Coach Don Donoher, "but we didn't get it. They were a lot more aggressive in the second half."

Roosevelt Chapman led Dayton with 20 points while becoming the leading all-time scorer in the school's history. His total of 1,983 broke the mark of 1,980 held by Donnie May.

Gervin Returns To Spur San Antonio

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — George Gervin's return to action appears to be the right medicine for the road ailments of the San Antonio Spurs.

The Spurs have won three consecutive road games since Gervin rejoined the team on Friday — after only winning twice in their previous 24 road starts.

The latest victory was a 117-108 decision over Indiana in Monday's only National Basketball Association game.

Gervin scored 26 points against the Pacers, giving him 70 points in the three road decisions after he missed three games with muscle spasms in his left shoulder. "It sure makes a difference having George Gervin back," said San Antonio Coach Bob Bass. "I mean we went into Detroit the other night and they had 35,000 people to honor Isiah Thomas and we beat them."

Gervin, who had 12 of his points as San Antonio rallied from behind in the second quarter, passed Elgin Baylor to become the league's 10th leading career scorer with his 23rd point and finished the night with 23,152.

For one quarter, Gervin and his mates struggled. But, Indiana's big men soon got into foul trouble and San Antonio began enjoying a mismatch up front as George Johnson and Clark Kellogg, both 6-foot-7, had to battle 7-2 Artis Gilmore.

"We had them in foul trouble in the second quarter, which created a mismatch on the inside," Bass said.

The mismatch helped Gilmore finish the night with 20 points on an 8-of-10 performance from the field. He also had 10 rebounds to help the Spurs gain a 51-43 rebounding advantage.

Jerry Sichting had nine of his game-high 28 points in the first quarter, helping the Pacers open a 27-15 lead during the period. Indiana was still up by 10 early in the second period, but the teams were deadlocked at 58-58 at halftime.

Indiana trailed 94-96 with 7:51 left when Mike Mitchell, John Lucas and Gilmore scored to give the Spurs' an eight-point advantage and the Pacers never seriously challenged again.

"I'd like to think our offense confused them at the end of the game," said Gervin. "They played well until the last two or three minutes down the stretch."

"Our fast break wasn't there in the second half. We didn't get as many chances. Most of our points in the first quarter were off the break," said Indiana Coach Jack McKinney. "I don't think our defense was that bad for the game. They just shot awfully well."

Herb Williams scored 20 for Indiana, which lost for the sixth time in the last seven games.

Trinity Downs Ruth's Chapel

The Trinity Christian School Tigers won their 15th straight game last night, taking a 72-49 over Ruth's Chapel Bulldogs.

Art Reynolds paced the Tiger attack with 20 points while Jimmy Powers added 17 and Darryle Wells added 10. Jeff Pope led the Bulldogs with 17 while Bill Jewell adding 16.

Trinity pushed out into a 14-10 lead after the first period, and then streaked away to grab a 35-21 lead at halftime. Trinity continued to pull away in the second half, moving its lead out to 53-35. The Tiger bench then outthit Ruth's Chapel, 19-14 in the final period.

The win boosts the Tiger record to 16-2 on the year. They will play host to Immanuel of Edenton in a game postponed from earlier in the season on Thursday night. A victory in that game would clinch at least a tie for the conference championship.

Murdered Man's Hands Bound

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — A body found near the Williamsburg Country Club has been identified as that of the owner of an Englehard, N.C., seafood business.

James Franklin Harris, 43, who was found in bushes Saturday with his hands bound behind his back, was shot once behind the right ear, said Capt. Ronald Montgomery of the York County Sheriff's Department.

Harris was identified by Hyde County, N.C., Sheriff Roland Dale, a personal friend of Harris.

Montgomery said police could establish no motive for the killing. But he said no wallet was found on the body, leaving robbery open as a possible motive.

Harris was the owner of Harris Seafood Inc., a wholesale distributor.

The bidding:
South West North East
4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♦.

Sometimes, a defender is able to direct his partner toward the winning defense. At other times, however, a defender has to come up with the right play without help from anyone.

We are not sure that we would have opened the South hand with four spades, for two reasons. First, the 7-2-2-2 distribution is most unattractive; and second, South has a shade too much defensive strength for a preempt. Our vote goes to an opening bid of one spade, followed by a series of spade rebids.

Had West come up with an opening heart lead or a heart shift at trick two, which would have removed one of dummy's entries, this hand would never have attracted any attention. But he selected the more promising lead of the king of diamonds, and then, rather unimaginatively, continued the suit after declarer allowed West to win the first trick.

Declarer took the ace of diamonds and led a third round of the suit from the dummy. East sluffed a club, and declarer ruffed. He drew two rounds of trumps, finessed the heart queen and ruffed another diamond to set up a long card in the suit. He returned to the board with the ace of hearts and sluffed a club on the 13th diamond. He lost only a trump, a diamond and a club.

East missed his opportunity to defeat the hand. When declarer led a third diamond from the table, East should have ruffed with the lady.

There is no combination of cards where that would have cost a trick. And as the cards lie, the uppercut gains a trick. If declarer does not overruff, he must still give up a trump trick and a club to West for down one. If he does overruff, West must come to two trump tricks by force, plus the ace of clubs, for down one.
