Stabilization Rescued The Tobacco Industry

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writers
RALEIGH (AP) — In 1933, tobacco was selling for about 6 cents a pound and the Depression had closed down all the leaf markets in North Carolina.

A 33-year-old farmer named Carl T. Hicks gathered some colleagues and called on officials in Washington. They hammered out a temporary plan by which the government agreed to support tobacco prices if growers agreed to reduce the size of the next year's crop.

Hundreds of farmers signed up, markets reopened and prices jumped to about 15 cents a pound. Federal legislation in 1936 and 1938 established official quotas and minimum prices. In 1946, Hicks founded the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. to run the program.

Prices for the state's largest crop have been rising ever since. Thanks to the cooperative, tobacco remains what many believe is the last bastion of the small independent grower — the "yeoman farmer" Thomas Jefferson saw as the cornerstone of democracy.

But 38 years after it began, Stabilization is in trouble — a victim of new federal legislation, declining demand for tobacco and swelling foreign leaf imports that have forced the cooperative's stocks of stored, unsold tobacco up to 761 million pounds.

Here's how the program works, according to Fred G. Bond, Stabilization's secretary-treasurer and general manager:

Farmers own or lease an allotment, or the right to grow a certain amount of tobacco. About half of the flue-cured producers now lease their allotment, but that system is under study by the U.S. agriculture secretary and may change. Growers agree in referenda to accept acreage and marketing quotas set by the secretary.

The farmer brings his leaf, cured and bundled, to one of more than 300 auction warehouses in the growing region of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Warehouse officials, acting for the farmers, sell the tobacco to buyers for domestic and foreign manufacturers and brokers. Stabilization buys the tobacco that fails to bring at least 1 cent above the support price for each grade.

That support price — frozen at 1982 levels by federal legislation — now averages out to $169.90 per hundred pounds. The freeze was designed to make U.S. tobacco more competitive. Ordinarily, the support price is set by a formula based on production costs, inflation and other factors. Without the freeze, the support price for the 1984 crop would be about $2 per hundred, Bond said.

At the end of the sales day, the warehouse pays the farmer for his tobacco. The warehouse later bills the tobacco companies and Stabilization. Stabilization pays for its tobacco with funds provided by loans from the federal Commodity Credit Corp. The interest rate on those loans stood at 10 percent in February, Bond said.

Under contracts with 17 factories, Stabilization has the tobacco redried and destemmed so that it can be stored without deteriorating. The leaf is stored in airtight warehouses in 22 towns from Lake City, S.C., to Danville, Va.

Stabilization sells the stored tobacco whenever it can, recovering the money it owes the Commodity Credit Corp., plus interest, processing costs and some profit. If the tobacco must be discounted to such an extent that the sales price won't pay off the principal on the loan, Stabilization dips into a special revolving fund designed to make Stabilization run at "no net cost" to the government.

Farmers pay 7 cents per pound into that fund. The assessment began in 1982 with a fee of 3 cents per pound and was raised to 7 cents effective 1983 as Stabilization found it increasingly difficult to sell its stored tobacco.

Companies don't mind buying old tobacco because the leaf must be aged anyway, Bond said. But the tobacco becomes more expensive with each passing year because its cost reflects processing and storage charges and the interest Stabilization tried to pay back to the Commodity Credit Corp. For example, with 10 percent interest, tobacco that sells for $2 per pound in 1982 would have to sell for $3.35 in March this year, he said.

Before the assessments began, the CCC wrote off the loss if Stabilization failed to recover all the principal and interest on the loan, Bond said.

"I'm concerned about the producers," he said. "They were told you can't have a program unless you underwrite it. No other crop is like that."

Since 1946, the total loss to CCC under the tobacco program has been about $42.8 million — most of it incurred in the 1950s when Stabilization tried to sell unpopular "discount varieties" of leaf, Bond said.

"That's not much when you consider the dairy program runs up about $2 billion in one year," he said.

In effect, Stabilization does for tobacco farmers what farmers in other crops can do for themselves — use the crop as collateral to obtain loans when the crop fails to bring a minimum price. But tobacco cannot be stored and sold later unless it undergoes expensive processing — and Stabilization takes care of that on a large scale that makes it economical for small growers, Bond said.

The cooperative is run by participating farmers who elect directors from 10 regions. An 11th director is appointed by the governor of North Carolina. The board of directors sets policy, hires professional staff — including Bond and processing, storing and accounting experts — and appoints a president. Hicks served as president from 1946 until his retirement in 1978, when he was replaced by farmer Billy W. Hill of Jasper, Fla.

Notice In Fine Print

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Signs along the state roadways catch motorists' attention with the word "NOTICE" in 4-inch red letters, but what are the drivers supposed to notice?

The 200-word message that follows remains a mystery to most — it's in fine print and can't be read from a passing car.

But the state Department of Transportation says not to worry, because the 8-foot by 4-foot signs aren't meant for passers-by anyway.

They're put up to meet a state regulation of uncertain origin and purpose, explains spokeswoman Debbie Lawler.

The postings warn that road work is about to begin and that the pavement can't be dug up again for five years. Those who might be concerned, mainly utilities and municipal authorities, also get the message through the mail, Ms. Lawler says.

"They are a legal requirement providing yet another piece of information to the public that if they have any intention to deal with or fix anything — like a utility — they better do it now because we are about to pave the road or something like that and they will not be able to dig it up for five years."

"You don't have to be able to read them to drive safely," Ms. Lawler adds. "They don't say a bridge is out or you are about to detonate dynamite if you go over a trip wire."

So who's supposed to read the signs, which cost a minimum of $30, not including the wages for the installation crew.

"Who knows?" says Ms. Lawler.

Issue Could Go To Regulators

WASHINGTON (AP) — CBS is breaking off negotiations with Hollywood producers over whether networks should share in the millions of dollars generated by reruns of television programs.

ABC and NBC broke off talks earlier.

The decision to break off negotiations, announced by CBS, could throw the volatile issue into the hands of federal regulators.

The Federal Communications Commission agreed last fall to suspend further consideration of the dispute until May to give the two sides time to work out a compromise. One CBS source said that since the talks have broken down, there is nothing to prevent the FCC from devising its own solution later this year.

ABC, CBS and NBC are currently barred from syndicating old reruns or from acquiring any interest in the future syndication profits of independent producers.

Back Off From Strike Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A union of 5,500 flight attendants has backed off on an earlier strike authorization and tentatively agreed to a three-year extension of its labor contract with United Airlines, the nation's leading carrier.

M.J. Berenne, director of communications for the Association of Flight Attendants, said the accord will be sent to the membership soon for a ratification vote.

Company spokesman Joe Hopkins said in Elk Grove Village, Ill., that a settlement had been reached on a new 37-month agreement, but said "we are not discussing any details pending ratification by the membership."

It was not immediately known whether the flight attendants granted wage or other concessions to United.

SEOUL RESPONDS

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea delivered a letter to North Korean representatives today, responding to a proposal for three-way talks on unification of the divided peninsula, officials said. Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

Orders Airbag In Government Car

WASHINGTON (AP) — The official word on airbags and passive seat belts won't come until April, but Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole has already ordered an airbag installed in her government car.

"I do feel that the airbag is a good safety device," she said.

But Mrs. Dole said no decision has been made on whether to require the devices in all new cars, a move that is being vigorously opposed by the auto industry.

Department spokesman Bob Beasley said Mrs. Dole's official car is part of larger contract that involves installing airbags in about 500 state police cars around the country to observe their performance. He said the cost is estimated about between $600 and $700 per car.

Fund-Raising By United Way Drives Grew

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's United Way campaigns increased their fund raising by 9.5 percent to nearly $2 billion last year, the largest growth in more than a quarter-century, campaign officials announced today.

"Given the fact that many communities in our nation's breadbasket, mid-America, are still in the throes of economic uncertainty, I characterize this year's campaigns as extraordinary — the best ever," United Way Chairman Robert A. Beck said in a prepared statement.

The increase to $1.95 billion donated represents growth of nearly three times the nation's inflation rate, or an infusion of $170 million new dollars for the 2,200 local United Way campaigns across the nation, Beck said. That was the largest growth in 27 years, he said.

The results "demonstrate that Americans are the most caring and generous people in the world," Beck said. He estimated that more than 75 million people contributed to the various local campaigns in 1983.

Many cities hard-hit by economic problems sharply increased their donations nonetheless, Beck said. He singled out such cities as Detroit, Cleveland, Decatur, Ill., and Youngstown, Ohio, for attention.

U.S. May Finish Grenada's Airport

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, which once viewed Grenada's partially-completed international airport as a potential security threat, is now recommending that the project be finished with the help of at least $15 million in U.S. money.

U.S. and Grenadian officials said Tuesday a study by the Agency for International Development urges that $24 million be spent to complete the facility, the most visible legacy of Cuba's previously influential role on the island.

The political upheaval on the island last October that culminated with the U.S.-led invasion. According to U.S. estimates, $65 million already has gone into the project.

The Reagan administration had contended that the airport, with its 9,700-foot runway, would be used by Cuban MiG jet fighters to project Cuban military power in the Eastern Caribbean and in northern South America.

The Bishop government insisted the facility was meant exclusively for commercial purposes.

With a pro-Western government in power, the Reagan administration now sees merit in the airport, contending that anticipated tourism and industrial development make completion of the facility essential. Grenada currently is served by an airport with a runway capable of handling only propeller-type aircraft.

To keep costs down, officials said they are recommending a "no frills" international airport, omitting such amenities as a shopping plaza, VIP lounge and restaurants. But, in view of the administration's past statements on the issue, officials said they expect some congressional opposition to administration fund requests.

Nicholas Brathwaite, head of Grenada's caretaker government, told a news conference an administration announcement on the subject is expected later in the week.

A U.S. official, speaking privately, said the Reagan administration is likely to recommend $15 million to $20 million for the project, with other donor countries providing the remainder.

With cash contributions from Soviet bloc countries and substantial Cuban manpower and materiel, the government of the late Grenadian Prime Minister Maurice Bishop had completed most of the project before

Secretary of State George P. Shultz recommended completion of the project last week during a visit to Grenada in which his Boeing 707 made use of the new airstrip.

In contrast to the Bishop government, which had "aggressive intentions," Shultz said the "new regime is different."

Brathwaite, here for World Bank meetings on Caribbean development, said his government has put together proposals calling for about $150 million in assistance from industrialized countries and international lending institutions over the next two years.

He said Grenada's new leadership inherited an economy in "very grim" condition from the Bishop government and needs outside financing for tourism and agricultural development and for a skills training program.

Sunshine After Drenching Rain

Sunshine returned today to began the task of drying out yards, driveways and fields in Pitt County inundated by a whopping near-three-inch rain on Valentine's Day.

Galoshes, overcoats and umbrellas got a workout Tuesday as constant, often heavy precipitation, made the day of traditional romance a better one for ducks than lovers.

In Greenville 2.85 inches of rain was recorded by Greenville Utilities from midnight Tuesday through 8 a.m. today. Two inches of that precipitation fell in a two-hour period early Tuesday, officials said.

Temperatures remained mild through the period. GUC recorded a high temperature of 65 degrees Fahrenheit Tuesday and a low of only 50 degrees. At 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 50 degrees.

Highs are expected to remain in the 60s the remainder of the week, the National Weather Service said, and lows will dip only into the 40s. The forecast for Thursday calls for a possibility of more showers.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz recommended completion of the project last week during a visit to Grenada in which his Boeing 707 made use of the new airstrip.

In contrast to the Bishop government, which had "aggressive intentions," Shultz said the "new regime is different."

He said Grenada's new leadership inherited an economy in "very grim" condition from the Bishop government and needs outside financing for tourism and agricultural development and for a skills training program.

Dawn Jordan Marries James Kay Madden

KINSTON — Dawn McKay Jordan and James Kay Madden, both of Charlotte, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Westminster United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. Julian W. Scott performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by organist Ned Brad Berry, flautist Ilya Sarasohn and soloist Jeff Smith.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Annie S. Cray of Kinston and Wilton G. Jordan of Ayden. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil G. Madden of Charlotte.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal white satiness gown fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk Venise lace etched with pearls and iridescents. The Edwardian sleeves with lace insets closed with lace cuffs and traditional bridal buttons. The flowing skirt edged with silk Venise lace flowed into an attached cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion bordered in lace was attached to a matching lace caplet.

Maid of honor was Jewel L. Jordan of Kinston, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Shirley Debnam of Raleigh, Ann Jones, Bonnie Bailey and Margaret Rhinehart, all of Charlotte. Honorary bridesmaids were Sally Sauls of Wilmington, Rhonda Jordan of Grifton, and Lisa Madden of Charlotte, sister of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids each wore a long dress of burgundy and carried a cascade bouquet of burgandy, pink and white flowers with baby's breath and satin streamers. Honorary bridesmaids wore long dresses of pink and burgundy and carried a pink rosebud.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Steve Jordan of Grifton, brother of the bride, Chuck Madden, brother of the bridegroom, Pat Alsop and John Jones, all of Charlotte.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the church fellowship hall by the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Cray and Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Jordan.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Holiday Inn in Kinston and was given by the parents of the bridegroom. A bridal luncheon was held at the Holiday Inn, Kinston, by Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Cray and Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Jordan. Several other parties and showers were given in honor of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and East Carolina University. She is employed as an accountant with the Cameron-Brown Co. in Charlotte.

MRS. MADDEN

The bridegroom graduated from East Mecklenburg High School in Charlotte and Nashville Automotive Diesel College, Nashville, Tenn. He is employed by Gowan Motor Co. in Charlotte.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Charlotte.

Dear Abby

Write Him A Letter And Write Him Off

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. I met this man through a mail club last summer. The first time we met in person, he talked me into going to bed with him, I'm not usually that easy, but he was such a fast talker, before I could think of a good argument against it, he won.

He lives in Jacksonville and I live in Palm Beach, and we have been together almost every weekend since we met. I still don't know much about him. I just know he's the best salesman I've ever met. I have yet to meet any of his family, but he has met all of mine. He almost talked me into marrying him last Christmas. When we are apart and I can think straight, I ask myself, "What is his hurry?"

I guess I don't really trust him 100 percent. I don't like the way he looks at other women when he's with me. I think he's still shopping, even though he says he loves me.

I need to tell this turkey my true feelings, but I don't have the nerve. What do I do now? I'm a nice-looking, 64-year-old widow and I'm not hard up for anything. He says he's 65, but I don't believe that either.

BEING RUSHED

DEAR RUSHED: I think your instincts are good. Go with them. If you don't have the nerve to tell him that you don't trust him, don't like the way he looks at other women and don't like being rushed — write him a letter, and write him off.

with the dogs in the room." Now he puts them out, but they scratch on the door and whine the whole time. And the first thing he says after lovemaking is, "Let the dogs in."

These dogs are with Jim constantly. The minute he sits down, one dog sits beside him, the other one jumps on his lap and the third one lies at his feet. There is no room for me. It's almost as though the dogs have a conspiracy to keep us apart.

What do you think of this situation? My mother says I should give Jim an ultimatum: me or the dogs. COMPETING WITH DOGS

DEAR COMPETING: It's no canine conspiracy; Jim has trained his dogs to come between you and him. Don't give Jim an ultimatum. The dogs will win — paws down.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. I am 51 and my husband is 52. We have a good marriage, which includes a satisfying and active sex life.

My periods ceased two years ago, but I still insist we take contraceptive precautions. My husband objects to this, saying it is reducing his desire for me.

I don't want him to grow cold. Am I being silly? If there is even the slightest chance of getting pregnant, I don't want to risk it.

Please advise me. I trust you. TAKING NO CHANCES IN IRELAND

DEAR TAKING: Would you trust another Irishman? Dr. John A. Haugen, my gynecologist of many years, says, "The rule is: No periods for 12 consecutive months means pregnancy is not possible, so the lady is doubly safe."

Nimoy Keeps Star Trek's Finale Secret

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — They blew away Mr. Spock in "Star Trek II," and if Leonard Nimoy doesn't find the pointy-eared Vulcan in "Star Trek III: The Search for Spock," the sci-fi series will self-destruct.

Nimoy, who has played Spock from its TV beginnings back in 1966, is searching for himself inasmuch as the multi-talented actor-producer-writer-poet is directing the second sequel of the outer space movies.

Future sequels hinge on whether Spock is found. If not, scrub the series. Who needs "Star Trek's" other spacemen clowning around without the emotionless Vulcan who evokes so much affection from Earthling moviegoers.

As spacemen go, Spock is supreme, far more acceptable than such cutie pies from the far stellar reaches as Yoda, E.T. and that hairy sap Chewbacca, the inarticulate Wookiee from "Star Wars."

"Star Trek" without Spock makes as much sense as "Dallas" without J.R., who is a spacy characterer himself.

Nimoy won't say if Spock is reVulcanized, reincarnated, or whatever happens to born-again Vulcans.

"We can't divulge that," said Nimoy with a wry grin.

Was it difficult for him to direct himself as Spock?

"That would be a giveaway, wouldn't it?" The grin broadened.

Will Spock reappear on another life plane or as an image in a time warp? Maybe as a shade who, like the ghost of Jacob Marley, tells Commander James Kirk to scrap the starship Enterprise?

"We're saying nothing," Nimoy said, "except the picture deals with Spock's presence. I hope it works. We'll know June 1 when the picture opens."

and Nichelle Nichols (Uhura) would accept him as boss after rubbing elbows with him as fellow actor.

"They were a little chary at first," he said. "They wanted to check me out. Shatner said publicly he was concerned because he and I used to compare notes and present a united front to the producers and directors. Now he felt alone and insecure."

"Two or three weeks into the picture we had our moments, feeling each other out and reaching agreements. One day he said, 'I gotta talk to you about my scene.' It was the first time he totally opened up to the director. It was a nice feeling."

"When we finished shooting I got a wonderful response of gifts and letters from the cast. The crew gave me a beautiful hand-tooled leather director's chair."

Nimoy is proud he brought his picture in on time and under budget.

"This time around the characters in 'Star Trek' are fully exploited," he said. "They come to life in a fresh kind of way. We struck a balance between people and display (special effect). I was very pleased."

Will there be a "Star Trek IV?"

"We'll discuss that June 3 after this one opens."

Will Spock be a part of it?

"Case closed."

Nimoy spent $16 million and 49 shooting days on his film, devoting 10 weeks to pre-production, not counting script development, and another 16 weeks in post production — a year of his life.

Paramount's choice of Nimoy for director came out of the blue.

"I had a play or pay deal for two other jobs at the studio," Nimoy explained. "That means they had to come up with two pictures for me in a specified time or pay me anyhow. The first one was the TV movie, 'A Woman Called Golda,' (opposite Ingrid Bergman and for which he won an Emmy nomination)

"No second project was ready. When they asked me about 'Star Trek III,' all I could think of was to direct. I was 17 years behind my schedule to direct and I liked the idea."

I began my career in theater in the '50s. I did TV in the '60s and '70s, and was side-tracked by success playing Spock."

Nimoy did manage to direct his one-man show, "Vincent" (Van Gogh), which he played on stage in 35 cities and on cable TV. He also directed episodes of "The Powers of Matthew Starr" and "T.J. Hooker."

He says the reactions of the "Star Trek" cast were curious. Suddenly cast members found themselves taking direction from one of their ownkind.

Nimoy wondered how William Shatner (Commander Kirk), DeForest Kelley (Dr. McCoy), George Takei (Sulu), Walter Koenig (Chekov), James Doohan (Scotty)

Judge Says Social Security Benefits Denied

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Social Security Administration has been ordered by a federal judge to change its policies that resulted in some 15,000 North Carolinians being illegally denied benefits.

U.S. District Judge James McMillan said Tuesday U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services Margaret Heckler disobeyed the law in denying disability claims and terminating benefits to the North Carolina residents.

McMillan ordered Ms. Heckler to immediately cease what he called her policy of refusing to follow the law as established by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for North Carolina.

The 49-page decision came in a class-action suit filed by three recipients whose benefits had been denied. The ruling raises the possibility of a re-evaluation for some of the North Carolinians whose disability claims have been denied or benefits terminated since September 1981.

The state Department of Human Resources estimates that since 1981, when the Social Security Administration toughened its disability review process, about 15,000 North Carolinians have had disability benefits terminated.

"We're delighted for our clients with Judge McMillan's ruling today," said John Wester, an attorney for one of the plaintiffs. "I would expect that this decision will be a bright ray of hope for thousands of North Carolinians."

McMillan's ruling doesn't order immediate restoration of disability benefits, but Wester and Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Poe said it could lead to the re-evaluation of thousands of claims.

Poe, who represents the Social Security Administration, said the federal agency probably will appeal McMillan's ruling to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"We are disappointed in his ruling and with the fact that the judge feels the secretary is willfully disobeying the law," Poe said. He added that he believes the issues raised in the lawsuit that led to McMillan's ruling will ultimately be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

While there have been similar lawsuits filed across the nation, McMillan may be the first federal court judge to rule following a trial on the controversy surrounding the way the Social Security Administration terminates disability benefits or denies disability claims.

Last October, Herman Caudle of Winston-Salem and Patrick Hyatt and Mary Lovingood, both of Mecklenburg County, filed a class-action lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Charlotte, challenging the Social Security Administration's policies. Caudle has since died.

The class-action lawsuit, tried before McMillan last month, contends that the Social Security Administration has refused to comply with at least three rulings by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in terminating disability benefits and denying claims.

The Social Security Administration, McMillan wrote, "has engaged in a consistent practice of terminating Social Security disability benefits without making any finding that a recipient's condition has improved since he or she was originally determined to be disabled."

"Respect for the law means obeying the law," McMillan wrote. "In taking the position that (a federal appeals court) decision need not be followed by her, the Secretary has disobeyed the law of this Circuit.... A cabinet member is not above the law of the land, but is obligated to follow it."

McMillan has given the Social Security Administration 30 days to provide the Department of Human Resources with enough information to identify persons who might be entitled to relief under his ruling.

Last September, Gov. Jim Hunt ordered a halt to most cutoffs of Social Security disability benefits.

Hunt said McMillan's ruling was a "victory for the state of North Carolina and all recipients of Social Security Disability benefits."

"It means that the Social Security Administration must stop its arbitrary and unfair efforts to cut off benefits to people who are unable to work," Hunt said. "It vindicates the moratorium that the state of North Carolina imposed against unjust terminations."

North Carolina is among at least 13 states that have recently refused to comply with federal Social Security laws and regulations.

Electrical Romance

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — That crackling listeners heard on the air waves wasn't static — it was the electricity of romance as a lover proposed and his intended accepted, all on a Valentine's Day radio talk show.

Rick Johnson, the afternoon disc jockey on WING, said he was playing some "sickie sweet old songs" and tape-recording valentine messages from listeners Tuesday when Cupid's arrow struck.

A caller who identified himself as Milt told Johnson he had met the woman of his dreams, Roseanne, through another WING program.

The show, called "Love Line," invites men and women to get to know one another through offbeat question-and-answer sessions on the air. Those who get in touch through the show often follow up by dating.

Milt "was nervous and seemed to find it difficult, but finally he said, 'I don't know if she is listening, but I have been thinking about it a lot, and I would like to ask Roseanne if, well, if she would marry me,'" Johnson said.

Then Milt went on the air live and repeated his proposal.

Two commercials, one weather break and one Barry Manilow record later, Roseanne called the station.

"Do you want to answer this guy?" Johnson asked. "I do," she said. "The answer is yes."

While Johnson put Roseanne on hold, Milt called back, and then they went on the air together.

"In all the excitement, I forgot to ask them last names, or where they live or work, or when they'll get married," Johnson said. "But I rather imagine we'll get an invitation."

Responsibility

TOKYO (AP) — A member of North Korea's Politburo was officially reported Tuesday to have been demoted to alternate member, but no reason was given.

Japan's Kyodo News Service speculated the demotion of Kim Jung Rim (in charge of South Korean affairs) was to place responsibility for the terrorist bombing in Burma on Oct. 9 that killed 17 members of South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan's delegation on a state visit.

Spotty Farm Year

With the dawning of the election year 1984, the politicians are beside themselves in support of the farmer.

Farming goes on in non-election years, however, and it appears that the farmers of Pitt County didn't do too badly in 1983, considering overall economic conditions.

Agricultural Extension Service Chairman Leroy James told County Commissioners last week that, for Pitt County farmers, 1983 was not a bad year, even though total estimated farm income was some $10 million less in 1983 than in 1982.

Cash income in 1983 was $115.41 million. Much of the loss in total dollars was due to lower tobacco income. County farmers grew 14,714 acres of tobacco, averaging 2,108 pounds per acre. It sold for $55.52 million. Tobacco income was $11 million less in 1983 than 1982.

Peanut income reached $2.52 million, corn income was $17.39 million, soybeans $7.42 million and cucumbers, $2.1 million.

Livestock sales were down $2 million in the county last year. Hogs sold for $7.45 million, beef cattle $162,000 and there was $112,500 worth of dairy cattle.

Sales of Grade A milk were $1.25 million and eggs brought producers $11.15 million.

It was a spotty year for Pitt County farmers and clouds of uncertainty hung over farming, particularly tobacco. All-in-all, however, it could have been worse.

Cooperative Spirit

The Pitt County Commissioners and Greenville City Council have approved the merging of the city and county animal shelters.

The county will fund the construction of a new animal shelter near Bells Fork and the city will operate the facility. Funds will be allocated to the two governments on a cost per animal basis.

Advantages will include having an attendant on duty and more convenient hours for the public.

Merging of the animal shelters makes good sense. A more efficient operation can be maintained and the animal control programs for both governments should be more effective.

We applaud the spirit of cooperation between the city and county on this particular project.

Being A Citizen

RALEIGH — John McKnight was teaching a collegiate seminar recently when he says he "felt a shiver down my back. Here was a room filled with (American) 21-year-olds and I realized that there wasn't a citizen in the room."

McKnight is a "citizen organizer" in Chicago and a professor at Northwestern University. He does a great deal of thinking about citizenship and he told a group of educators at N.C. State recently that the state of citizenship in this country is pretty weak.

Speaking of his seminar students, McKnight said, "They had never made a decision in their lives which affected their communities. They couldn't make a difference. The test of a citizen is if I know, with you, that we can really control the world around us. If you don't know that, I don't think we should say we are citizens because I think we are kidding ourselves."

McKnight criticized more than just students. He spoke of a hypothetical middle-aged American male who many of us would say is a good citizen. The man works in a large corporation, reads the paper every day, votes every election, is active in the PTA, supports a mother in a retirement home, belongs to a church and contributes to charity.

But that man is not a good citizen, McKnight said. He is a consumer, he is a client. He lets other people, he lets institutions, run his community and his life.

McKnight detailed his complaints about this man. The PTA doesn't run the school to which he sends his children. It serves the school. Professional educators who may or may not reflect the views of the community run the school. Reading the paper every day is no way for a citizen to stay informed, he said. That's getting the news second hand, with the citizen having no input into the discussion of the issue. Better, he said, to meet with a group of other citizens, at the corner store or the Grange hall, to discuss current events.

This hypothetical citizen's job encompasses only a small part of his company's work. He doesn't know the full system. He doesn't know how all the parts fit together. "If you don't know how things work, you can't be a citizen," McKnight says.

McKnight criticized those who would put their mothers in a rest home or feel satisfied with making charitable contributions. A citizen cares for his community, for his family. That means they get involved. Paying the rest home bill and making contributions are nothing more than an attempt to buy caring, he said.

People don't form communities. Citizens should get together and discuss the issues of the day. Instead, people take their news from TV or the newspaper. They take their news analysis from editorial writers and syndicated columnists. There are no old storytellers to pass the history of communities along to the young. Oldtimers get hidden away in rest homes.

Americans, he said, have allowed bureaucrats and professionals to dominate the system. Communities don't decide what kind of schools, hospitals, banks or government they'll have. Professionals do.

McKnight was speaking from his experience in Chicago where he has helped communities organize for better citizenship. Some of his complaints about the modern citizen are true for North Carolina. Many aren't.

Mondale Gets A Reagan Bonus

—Donald Rothberg—

OTTUMWA, Iowa (AP) — Walter F. Mondale has a problem and he's using President Reagan to help solve it. The incident tells something about the political styles of both men.

With Mondale being repeatedly described as the heavy favorite in Monday's Iowa precinct caucuses, his campaign aides are worried that many of his supporters won't bother showing up.

They devised a "Five for Fritz" gimmick in which Mondale backers are urged to bring four people each to their caucus. Democrats identified as Mondale supporters also are getting printed invitations that begin, "Joan and Fritz Mondale respectfully request the honor of your presence at one of the most important events of their lives." The event, of course, is the caucuses.

These are standard devices for trying to boost turnout.

But Reagan gave Mondale a bonus in his turnout campaign when the president decided to make a caucus-day visit to Iowa.

It demonstrated both men at their political best.

It was an irresistible opportunity for Reagan to mix nostalgia and politics. He'll visit the state where he was Dutch Reagan the radio announcer in the 1930s.

Republicans hope his trip will generate some enthusiasm for their caucuses where there is no presidential contest and, more importantly, for the re-election campaign of Sen. Roger Jepsen, regarded as one of the most vulnerable Republicans running this year.

Iowa Democrats and some of the presidential candidates were quick to cry "foul" when the Reagan visit was announced.

Mondale was quick to turn it to his advantage.

At every campaign stop, he told supporters that on Feb. 20, "The voters of Iowa will be the most powerful citizens on Earth."

"Mr. Reagan has decided to come to Iowa that day. Why don't we all deliver just a little message to him while he is here about what we want for this country and who we want to lead it."

It's an appeal that always draws a cheer from the partisan audiences and gives one more incentive for Democrats to turn out for the caucuses.

Each in his way took advantage of the situation and each probably will benefit from it.

The local politicians who set up the Ottumwa rally for Mondale proudly pointed out that Wapello County is the most Democratic County in Iowa.

The Mondale rally was in the YWCA gymnasium. Momentous events were occurring across the world in Moscow, where a new Soviet leader was named.

Mondale referred to the change in the Soviet Union at the start of his speech.

But this was an audience that cared about pocketbook issues, about Social Security and Medicare and he knew that and quickly switched to those topics.

"I watched the faces of these people as he was talking about Medicare and utilities," said State Sen. Don Gettings. "You could see agreement."

But weren't people worried about nuclear war and U.S.-Soviet relations?

"It's been talked about so much," replied the state senator "and it's way over there. Who... understands all these nuclear missiles?"

PRESENTING THEIR RESUMES!

—Art Buchwald—

Covering All The Bases

"Okay, you guys, hold it down. We have to work on the president's trip to the Midwest. Harry, what have you got lined up for Detroit?"

"We have the president sitting on the stage with a Green Beret Medal of Honor winner, two Korean orphans who have just had kidney transplants, a lady astronaut, an Hispanic Nobel Prize winner, and a 100-year-old former black slave from Georgia."

"If we use them all up in Detroit, what have we got left for St. Louis?"

"Eddie's working on that now. He's lined up a one-armed Little League baseball player, a Polish fireman who pulled six Irish kids out of a burning house, and a teacher who beats up kids who give her any back talk."

"Where does that leave us in Madison, Wisconsin?"

"Larry thinks we're in pretty good shape in Madison. We have a former unemployed steel worker who was retrained to become a nuclear physicist, a pregnant high school girl who refused to have an abortion, a survivor of the Bataan Death March, and a great-grandmother who used part of her Social Security payments to buy up a string of Pizza Huts in the Midwest."

"Listen, Mike, don't you think we're overdoing it on this trip? We've got a long campaign ahead of us."

"What do you suggest?"

"I'd like to save the pregnant high school kid for the Fourth of July."

"You mean after she's had her baby? What kind of TV picture do you think that's going to make?"

"I see what you mean. What about the two Korean kids with kidney transplants? We've done that one already."

"It played in Peoria and it will play in Detroit. Besides the kids have to go back to South Korea in a couple of weeks."

"All right. But how about saving the Green Beret for September? He isn't going anywhere."

"Don't be too sure."

"You know something we don't?"

"I'm not at liberty to say. Anyone come up with somebody we haven't thought of?"

"We found a former pilot in Minneapolis who flew a B-25 in World War II. His plane was hit in a bombing run over Dresden and caught on fire. The crew bailed out, except for the 18-year-old gunner who didn't have a parachute. So the pilot gave him his and said, 'Jump kid, I'm going down with the plane.'"

"If he did that what he's doing living in Minnesota?"

"It turns out the fire wasn't very serious, and the guy flew his B-25 back to England."

"What the hell kind of story is that for the president to tell in Minneapolis?"

"That's what I thought. I'll tell the pilot we don't need him."

"I still have a feeling we haven't covered all our bases on this trip."

"We have a rabbi saying the invocation in Grand Rapids, a priest in Milwaukee, a Baptist minister in Cincinnati, and the football coach of Ohio State University in Columbus."

"What about the gender gap? How are we dealing with that for the nightly news?"

"We're going to get Mrs. Dole, the secretary of Transportation, Mrs. Heckler, the secretary of Health and Human Services and U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick to warm up the audiences wherever the president goes. We tried to get Justice Sandra O'Connor to come along in her black robes, but she said she couldn't do it while the court was in session."

"Okay, I guess that's as good as we can do on such short notice. Any questions?"

"Who's working on the president's speeches?"

"What speeches? He's going to stick with the State of the Union one until the end of the campaign."

Strength For Today

In the famous "Hymn of Love," found in chapter 13 of St. Paul's first Epistle to the Corinthians, we encounter these words: "When I was a child I spake as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man I put away childish things. For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face."

The older we get, the more do we "see through a glass darkly." This is not a pessimistic declaration. It is simply a realistic facing of the fact that increased knowledge gives us a profoundly enlarged view of the greatness of the universe and the complexity of everything we see, know and hear.

As we endure the situation and strive to improve our sight, we are receiving the greatest training God can give us. And best of all, we know that the time will come when we shall see "face to face."

To the editor:
Recently you carried a letter decrying the poor fare offered on network television. I would like to endorse those feelings with a hardy AMEN!

The world just celebrated the 500th birthday of Martin Luther, a man whose influence on German history and culture is incomparable, not to mention the staggering influence on world culture of the Protestant reformation that he led and almost died for. Surely one network could have found the time and resources with which to provide us unbiased and inoffensive profile on this most important historical figure.

Instead, I could find only one small news item on the pope preaching in a Lutheran church in Rome.

In an area school I could not find one child who even knew who Martin Luther was (a sad commentary on educational content). I think that people should be indignant that a medium that devotes so much time to "trivia ad nauseum" could not find the time to do some cultural education that might just also be entertaining.

One need not be an adherent of the Lutheran Church (I'm not) to appreciate the man as his influence far superseded the bounds of the Lutheran Church, or even the German nation. But you would never know it if you relied on TV.

To the editor:
This letter to all taxpayers and animal lovers in Greenville concerns the idea of the merging of city and county animal shelters. Last year the city pound picked up 1,087 cats and dogs, while the county picked up 2,294. Do you as an animal lover want your pet exposed to 2,294 animals from the county which have a much higher rate of diseases such as parvo, distemper and all types of worms?

The cost to the city for putting to sleep and disposing of animals is less than $900 a year. The cost to the county is $1,100. The cost of an incinerator would be enormous, but let's consider the cost of operating such equipment. Most incinerators have a maximum holding capacity of 150 pounds per four hours of operation. The cost of operating the equipment runs between $20 and $40 an hour. That gives us a weekly cost of $1,000 or more, $4,000 or more a month or $48,000 a year just for disposing of animals' bodies. But don't forget you must put these animals to sleep first at a cost of at least $1,000.

One of the main reasons behind the merger was to make the shelter more available to the public, but how is a shelter in the county more available to the city of Greenville. As a Greenville citizen, I would have to drive 10 miles outside city limits to rescue my animals, whereas now I merely have to drive a few miles to the city facility which has been quite adequately serving the public for 40 years with very few complaints. Let's not forget the additional cost in gas and repair bills on city trucks from the extra miles to the county shelter that we as taxpayers already must pay. This would mean a possible increase in taxes.

I ask you, if something works, why change? Please call your City Council and voice your disapproval today.

In a letter to the editor published Feb. 8 and written by Merrilee Harrison, two sentences had errors. These were: "I'm not convinced that Americans are very ignorant!" and "Others will just take whatever propaganda the establishment media vomits for the daily as being Holy Writ." The word "now" should be substituted for "not" in the first sentence; the word forth for the words "for the" in the second sentence.

Competing For The IRA Cash

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
The competition for IRA dollars has heated up again, as financial institutions try to attract consumers looking for last-minute tax shelters. Thousands of Americans rush to open individual retirement accounts in the first few months of the year because they offer an unusual opportunity for a sort of after-the-fact tax cut. Anyone who works and has earned income can contribute up to $2,000 to an IRA and deduct that amount from his or her adjusted gross income. You don't pay federal income tax on the money — or on the interest it earns — until later, when you withdraw it.

You can open an account any time up to the filing deadline — April 16 this year — and deduct the money from last year's income. You can claim the deduction even if you haven't actually made the contribution — as long as you make it by April 16.

The U.S. League of Savings Institutions, in a guide to IRAs and Keogh accounts (retirement plans for the self-employed,) points out that if you file early enough and are entitled to a refund, you can even wait until you get your refund and use it to make the promised contribution.

The same deadlines apply to contributions to existing accounts; you must make sure, however, that you don't deposit more than $2,000 in one year. (Working couples may contribute $2,000 each, but must open separate accounts. If you have a non-working spouse, you may deposit up to $2,250 in a single IRA, known as a spousal account. President Reagan has proposed increasing the allowable contribution for spousal IRAs.

The advantages of an IRA are twofold: You trim your tax bill now and you save for retirement.

The amount of the tax cut will depend on your tax bracket and on the amount you contribute. Suppose you're in the 28 percent marginal tax bracket. A $2,000 contribution will reduce your tax bill by 28 percent or $560. If you're in the 38 percent bracket, the same contribution will cut the bill by $760.

Your ultimate nest egg depends on the amount of interest you earn. And remember, that inflation will eat away some of the dollars; the sum that looks big today, may shrink when seen through the eye of the future. Here's an example of what can happen, however: Contribute $2,000 a year and earn a constant 10 percent annual return, compounded daily. According to the savings league, you'll have $13,632 in five years; $36,101 in 10 years; $134,185 in 20 years; $400,668 in 30 years; and $674,056 in 40 years.

When trying to calculate the value of what you will have in the future, it is also important to remember that the IRA is not a permanent shelter; the bill will come due eventually. But you should be able to time your withdrawals — and your tax payments — so you are in a lower bracket than you are now.

You can open and contribute to an IRA at any time until the year you reach 70½. You cannot start withdrawals until you are at least 59½; you must start them when you are 70½.

If you take the money earlier, the Internal Revenue Service will charge a penalty of 10 percent of the amount withdrawn, unless you are permanently disabled. And, whether you are disabled or not, the amount withdrawn must be included in your income in the year you take it out. You also may be subject to penalties for early withdrawal from a fixed-term investment like a savings certificate.

You can get a complete guide to IRAs and Keoghs from the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, 111 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., 60601. Ask for publication 15958, IRA-Keogh Q&A. There is no charge for single copies.

Protected Witness Indicted

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A grand jury has indicted a missing witness under federal protection on murder and kidnapping charges in the 1981 Ashe County mineshaft slayings.

A Buncombe County grand jury on Tuesday indicted Joseph Eugene "Jo Jo" Vines for kidnapping Lonnie Gamboa of Asheville and pushing him to his death down a 250-foot abandoned mineshaft on Dec. 24, 1981.

Vines told authorities he acted under orders from Allan Ray Hattaway and Gary Hansford Miller, both of whom pleaded guilty to murder last week in Buncombe County Superior Court.

District Attorney Ronald C. Brown said indictments were returned under the names of Jo Jo Vines, Joseph Eugene Vines and Eric James Olson. Brown said Olson may be Vines' alias under the Federal Witness Protection Program.

Vines was being counted on by Brown as a key witness in last week's trial of Hattaway and Miller. When Vines could not be located, Brown settled for a plea bargain rather than go to trial seeking the death penalty without Vines' testimony.

Hattaway and Miller pleaded guilty to two counts of second-degree murder in the deaths of Gamboa and Tommy Forester, and three counts of first-degree kidnapping that included the abduction of Darlene Callahan.

Hattaway and Miller were sentenced to 90 years in prison.

Brown said on Tuesday he would request that the FBI issue a warrant for unlawful flight against Vines.

But U.S. Attorney Charles Brewer said federal officials have no authority to force protected witnesses to appear for testimony.

"It's not incarceration. They are perfectly free citizens," he said.

Brown, however, said he "clearly understood" federal authorities would produce Vines for testimony if needed. Brown also said he "never asked that Vines be put into the program."

But Brewer said Brown was party to placing Vines in the program. Brewer said he, Brown and 23rd District Attorney Michael Asburn met in Wilkesboro in February 1982 to discuss Vines' role in the cases.

Brewer, who forwarded Vines' application for the witness program to the Justice Department, produced two letters on Tuesday stemming from that 1982 meeting.

One document was a letter from Brown to Asburn, dated Feb. 15, 1982.

In the letter, Brown wrote that he wanted "to make it perfectly clear I have no objections to protecting Vines, or him going into the Federal Witness Protection Plan as long as we do not compromise any future action we might want to take against Mr. Vines."

In a letter dated Feb. 18, 1982, Asburn's office officially requested that Vines be entered into the program.

"In the spirit of cooperating with the state authorities, we offered to see if we could place Vines into the program," Brewer said. "If it was a mistake, it was made at the request of the state."

Thank-You Is 'Late'

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — The federal bureaucracy has never had a reputation for speedy service — but isn't a decade for a simple "thank you" a little excessive?

George and Louise Daniels were somewhat bemused last week when a dusty, musty "patriotic response" citation arrived from the Treasury Department — nearly 10 years after their children lugged 8,000 pennies to the bank during a national penny shortage.

"What got me was wondering where it's been the last nine years and eight months," Daniels said Tuesday. "It had a real moldy odor to it. It's been laying in a box or something, evidently."

The Danielses probably will never know what held up their award for responding to Treasury Department's 1974 plea for return of millions of pennies holed up around the country in shoe boxes, dresser drawers and, in the Danielses' case, plastic milk jugs.

Because the envelope carried no postmark, there is no way to tell when the citation was mailed, in 1974 or last week, said Lynchburg Postmaster Jim Woody.

As for the Danielses, they're happy to have the citation, however belated.

"It's a real keepsake," Daniels said.

The penny shortage has abated because, as of last year, pennies are being made with only 2 percent copper, Treasury spokesman Frank Deleno said by telephone Tuesday. Since the cents aren't worth as much, people aren't saving as many, he said.

Kinston Runs Past Rose, 68-52

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

KINSTON — Charles Shackelford and Travis Freeman pumped in 21 points each for Kinston, but in the end it was the Vikings' defense which came through in their 68-52 thrashing of Rose High School Tuesday in Big East 4-A basketball action.

The Lady Vikings placed four players in double figures while holding off Rose rallies for a 60-51 victory, while Niansa Outlaw scored 19 and Doris Richardson 17 points for the Rampettes.

Dwight Smith led the Rampants with 16 points, and Jeff Hopkins added 11 although sidelined part of the second half with four fouls.

Hunter Bost added 10 points for Rose, now 5-6 in the conference while 10-9 overall.

"I thought we'd play a little better than that," Rose Coach Jim Brewington said. "But when you're playing like (Kinston was tonight), it's hard to win. We took good shots and made a few runs at them, we just couldn't sustain it."

The Vikings rolled up an 18-5 advantage at the end of the first quarter with hot outside shooting from Freeman providing eight of that total. It was Shackelford's turn to lead the offense in the second period, and he posted six points through the 4:09 mark as Kinston ran up a 28-11 margin.

After a field goal by each team, Freeman added a jumper and a pair of free throws to give the Vikings their biggest lead of the first half at 34-14 with 2:12 till intermission.

But Carlton Wilson connected on a field goal and a pair of free throws, and Hopkins added four free throws to trim the margin to 36-22 at halftime.

The Vikings and Rampants played evenly through the first three minutes of the third quarter, as Freeman and Shackelford combined for seven points and Wilson and Hopkins tallied six for Rose as the margin stood at 43-28 with 5:35 left in the period.

Then the Rampants mounted their biggest rally of the night as Rose outscored Kinston 8-2 through the 2:15 mark to trim the margin to 45-36.

But Kinston's Ced Kilpatrick — who finished the game with just two points — turned out to be the rally killer, as he scooped up a loose ball and shuffled it inside for a Shackelford stuff, then stole a pass to set up a free throw by Freeman as the Vikes rolled up a 48-36 lead.

After Hopkins picked up his fourth foul preventing a dunk by Shackelford, Kilpatrick again intercepted a Rose pass to end a fast break opportunity. Kinston guard Paul Jones stole the ball with five seconds left and passed inside for an assist on another Shackelford dunk.

Shackelford was whistled for a technical foul for hanging on the rim on the play, and the free throw by Bost set the margin at 51-37 going into the final period.

Any hopes the Rampants had of another run at the Vikes faded when Kinston rattled off nine points to open the fourth quarter while Rose managed just three as the margin ballooned to 60-20 with 2:52 remaining.

"This (game) and last week's against Wilson Fike we've played better as a team," Kinston Coach Paul Jones said. "What we've got essentially is a group of role players: 'Shack' and Freeman are scorers while Ced and P.J. (Paul Jones Jr.) do things many people don't notice like settle the defense."

The Vikings are now 6-5 in the Big East and 12-8 overall after being tabbed as one of the preseason favorites for the title. Jones looks for Kinston to finish in the top three.

"We're aiming for second or third right now," Jones said. "It's going to be tough (in the conference tournament). It'll all depend on who's playing well that week. I think we've got a shot at it if we play together as a team."

Cathy Morrell paced the Lady Vikes with 16 points, while Terry Sims added 14 and Jo Ann Whitfield and Kim Williams had 10 each.

The Rampettes trailed by just a point after the first quarter, and it appeared they would be down by two at halftime after Kinston scored with four seconds left. But Rose called timeout with two seconds left to set a play, and on the inbound play the ball went to Richardson who turned and fired in the tying bucket at the horn for a 24-24 halftime knot.

"Turnovers seem to determine our ballgames," Rampettes Coach Denns Gibson said. "Again tonight, we just made too many. We've got our two seniors handling the ball as much as possible, but they're used to playing inside."

"Usually when a team goes to a press, we're so young we panic and make mistakes. We just can't execute against it. If we were quicker, we could press more. Once we pull our big girls out, there isn't anyone who can get back and cut off the lane to prevent them from scoring inside."

The lead changed hands six times and the score was tied two more through the 3:42 mark of the third quarter, but Kinston balance prevailed as the Lady Vikings outscored Rose 12-3 for a 47-39 advantage going to the final period.

The Rampettes posted eight points including a pair of field goals by Outlaw while Kinston managed a lone field goal as Rose quickly trimmed the margin to 49-47 with 5:57 left.

But again Kinston mounted an offensive, as the Lady Vikes out-gunned Rose 9-2 through the 1:28 mark to set the final margin.

Kinston improved its record to 6-5 in the conference while 10-8 overall. Rose is now 3-8 in the Big East while 3-16 overall. The Rampants entertain Wilson Fike Friday.

Lone Star State Is Shrinking

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Tide and time, wind and sea are nibbling at the Texas coastline. The Lone Star State is slowly shrinking, inch by inch.

In some areas, the loss is just barely perceptible. But on other beaches, the shoreline is retreating at a rate of more than three feet a month.

Longtime Texans, returning to Galveston or to Surfside or to Padre Island a few years away, are startled to find missing some of the beaches they knew as children.

Scores of houses that once stood beside the Gulf of Mexico are now part of it. Roads have been washed out, small inlets have become large bays. Islands have grown smaller and some have been cut in two by the sea.

This process continues daily, but powerful hurricanes, such as Alicia last August, are particularly damaging.

"It's amazing what a 12-foot tide will do to a little ol' bit of sand," said Mark Sweatt, operator of the Sandy Hook stables on the west beach of Galveston Island.

He looked across a few acres of sand toward new fence posts he put in recently to mark what is left of his horse lot.

"We had 40 acres here in 1975 and now we're down to about six," he said. "We had a 40-by-60 barn about where the fence is and Alicia took it out. Before that, another storm took out a concession stand and another barn."

He shook his head in wonder at his shrinking empire: "If it keeps up, we'll have to move."

According to the experts, it will keep happening.

Robert Morton of the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas and Mike Kieslich of the Army Corps of Engineers in Galveston have studied the changing coastline of Texas. They believe the natural processes of wind and tide will keep chewing up beaches no matter what man tries to do.

Kieslich said Hurricane Alicia cut away up to 200 feet of Galveston at San Luis Pass; part of the island lost four feet of vertical elevation. The lost land, he said, is gone forever.

"There's a long term trend of erosion on Galveston Island," he said. "I don't expect the beach will rebuild itself significantly. The Gulf is advancing."

Sand is being swept away on both sides of Galveston Island, Kieslich said. The surf skims sand off the beaches on the Gulf side, and currents carry away soil from the mainland side of the island. Galveston loses five to 10 feet of shoreline a year.

Morton said the loss of beach is even more dramatic on the Matagorda Peninsula or near Sargent's Beach in Matagorda County.

"Rows of houses have been lost in that area and the erosion is progressing at up to 40 feet a year," said Morton.

A highway on Bolivar Peninsula, he said, has repeatedly been washed out and parts of Padre Island also are disappearing into the Gulf.

The scientists said the erosion is part of a natural force that cannot be halted, no more than man can control earthquakes, stop volcanoes or slow the seasons. It is all a part of the continuing, forever changing evolution of the Earth's land form.

"You cannot overcome this problem — it's simply too big," said Morton. "If you build some grandiose barrier, drawing a line in the sand and say 'it will stop here,' it will beat you. You'll still lose the beach."

The changes of coastline are not recognized in Texas land law, and about 100 coastal residents who once owned houses well behind the public beaches now find their buildings may actually be on what is defined as public land.

In Texas, public beaches are those areas between the low tide surf and the permanent vegetation line. But, as Morton noted, there is no such thing as "a permanent vegetation line" on the Texas coast. The vegetation line moves constantly, advancing and receding.

Robert Matcha of Houston recently challenged the law in an Austin court because Hurricane Alicia had moved the vegetation line back of his house, leaving the structure on what the state was claiming is now public beach.

An Austin judge granted a state request for a restraining order that forbids Matcha from rebuilding his house at its present location. Morton said at least 80 other landowners, caught in the same trap, are expected to challenge the law.

The University of Texas professor said such suits are naive.

"As long as people build on the beach, they've got to realize that the shoreline will change," Morton said. "There's nothing that can be done to prevent it."

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market advanced broadly today, continuing the rally it began on Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 5.13 to 1,168.97 in the first half hour.

Gainers opened up a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders were heartened by the market's showing Tuesday, when it posted its best gain in almost six weeks.

But they said it would probably take several more days at least to see whether traders' concerns about the federal budget deficit and interest rates had abated.

In today's economic news, the government reported that industrial production rose 1.1 percent in January, after a revised gain of 0.6 percent the month before. The numbers gave no sign of any impending slump in business activity.

Among today's early volume leaders, International Business Machines K rose 1/4 to 111 1/2; Xerox 1/4 to 42; Schlumberger 1/4 to 44 1/2, and General Electric 1/4 to 53 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 13.71 to 1,163.85, for its best showing since it rose 16.31 points on Jan. 4.

Gainers led losers by about 5 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume increased to 91.80 million shares from 78.46 million in the previous session, when many investing institutions were closed for Lin-corn's birthday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .84 to 90.12. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 1.20 to 206.22.

Load Management Pays Off

Utilities Saved $105,374

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The use of the Greenville Utilities Commission's load management system in January saved an estimated $105,374, members of the commission were told Tuesday night.

GUC Director Charles Horne said some 5,300 kilowatts were shaved from the peak — which occurred between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. on Jan. 12 — by the use of load management switches, while another 4,100 kilowatts were cut by a slight reduction in voltage during the one-hour period. That amounts to a reduction of 9,400 kilowatts, Horne said.

Horne reminded members of the commission that under the new power supply arrangement, which became effective in January, the commission is billed each month on the actual demand at the time of Carolina Power & Light Company's monthly peak. Money can be saved, Horne said, by reducing Greenville's demand at that time.

In a related matter, the commission voted to participate in a North Carolina Eastern Municipal Power Agency project to install a central computer in Raleigh to be used to predict more accurately CP&L's peak and transmit the information to the cities participating in the program.

Greenville's share of the cost of the project would be between $30,000 and $40,000 a year.

Horne and Malcolm Green, GUC's electric department superintendent, said that predicting CP&L's peak locally is based on estimates, and that a central control system could more accurately predict the peak. Participation in the project could pay for itself if the system could predict the peak more accurately just one month.

Members of the commission agreed not to track a 14.5-cent per thousand cubic feet natural gas rate increase received from North Carolina Natural Gas because of a $149,767 credit received from NCNG due to the curtailment of a tracking adjustment.

Commissioners agreed to contract with R.W. Beck and Associates, an engineering and consulting firm, for an electric rate study. Horne told commissioners that the cost of the study, to up-date a study made in 1981, would be between $27,000 and $31,050.

The cost-of-service study is scheduled for completion by the first of September.

The commission also scheduled a meeting for Feb. 22 to give final approval to proposed water and sewer rates that will be presented at a public hearing which is scheduled for March 6.

The proposed rates, based on a cost-of-service study completed in late 1983, would increase water revenues by about 20 percent over the next three years to fund current operating costs, maintain and extend the water system and make debt service payments on the new water treatment plant. The proposed sewer rates would increase only slightly above current levels.

In other business, commissioners approved the expenditure of $20,000 to extend a sewer line along SR 1203 from the intersection of SR 1202 west of Greenville, and approved the purchase of equipment for the eastside substation.

The substation equipment approved for purchase included: structure equipment from R.W. Chapman for $69,530; circuit breakers from Westinghouse Electric Supply Co. for $19,820, and relay panel from Clark Corporation for $10,735.

The commission also approved the purchase of 100 transformers from Hesco Inc. for $48,700.

The jet-black, long-haired 150-pound animal was awarded the trophy primarily for his balance and movement. The show's judge, K. K. 'Continuity' By Chernenko MOSCOW (AP) — New Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko told visiting dignitaries today he would continue the policies of his predecessor, Yuri V. Andropov, and signaled continuity by attacking U.S. policy in Central America.

Cuban leader Fidel Castro and Nicaragua's Daniel Ortega were among the first visitors Chernenko received, in what Western analysts saw as a clear signal that Moscow retains its interest in Central America.

At the meeting with Castro, Tass reported that "the Soviet side ... reiterated its invariable solidarity with the Cuban people."

Both Chernenko and Ortega were quoted by Tass as denouncing "Washington's intention to whip up tension" in Central America. Chernenko, the official Soviet news agency said, "reiterated the Soviet people's firm support for the just cause of the Nicaraguan people."

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi also talked with Chernenko. Tass quoted her foreign minister, P.V. Narasimha Rao, as saying that, "We sensed in Moscow a firm resolve to carry on the policy the Soviet Union had pursued under the leadership of Yuri V. Andropov."

Chernenko also met with Truong Chinh, the Vietnamese premier. Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov received Cypriot President Spyros Kyprianou, and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met with Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe.

Scrupulously matching rank for rank, Soviet First Deputy Premier Geidar A. Aliev received Deputy Premier Wang Li, the highest-ranking Chinese official to visit Moscow in 20 years.

Tass reported that both China and the Soviet Union expressed a wish to improve relations between "the two neighboring great powers," a standard pronouncement since they began talks on normalizing ties in late 1982.

Western analysts noted Chernenko saw Western leaders Tuesday immediately after a routine meeting with the assembled heads of state from Eastern Europe. They held out little hope, however, that the Kremlin would soon change its stance on the main dispute dividing East and West — the deployment of nuclear missiles in Europe.

Tass reported that the new Kremlin boss rebuked some Western leaders Tuesday for the NATO deployment of U.S.-built cruise missiles in Western Europe and re-emphasized Moscow's insistence that the deployment stop.

Canadian spokesman said Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau planned to make his plea for world peace and better East-West relations directly to Chernenko in their afternoon meeting. The Canadian leader has visited numerous countries as part of his crusade and had hoped to meet with Andropov, who died Thursday.

Several Western leaders who met Chernenko after Andropov's funeral Tuesday said later they were hopeful of a warming in relations. Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany repeated his call for a U.S.-Soviet summit "without any preconditions."

But Vice President George Bush, who met privately with Chernenko, said it was "way too soon" to talk about a meeting between the new leader and President Reagan.

Britain's prime minister, Margaret Thatcher, added: "I don't think you should leap to expecting big summit meetings. We're working from the bottom up for a program of increased contacts."

Militia Surround Marines At Beirut

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Anti-government forces surrounded the U.S. Marine base at Beirut airport today after Druse insurgents linked up with Shiite Moslem militiamen and took control of the highway into the city.

A Druse advance overnight seized the last area, south of the airport, in which the battered Lebanese army acted as a buffer between the Marines and militia forces. Shiite militia controlled the areas north, east and west of the airport base.

A Marine spokesman said the U.S. forces did not come under fire in the offensive. The advance by the Syrian-supported Druse "has raised some concern, obviously," said Army Col. Ed McDonald, chief spokesman for the U.S. contingent in the multinational peacekeeping force in Beirut.

He said the Marines were ordered to don flak jackets and carry weapons but could leave the bunkers. Marines can leave their base by helicopter to U.S. chis offshore.

With his U.S.-trained army falling apart, President Amin Gemayel today was reported ready to give in to opposition demands that he scrap Lebanon's troop withdrawal pact with Israel.

But Druse leader Walid Jumblatt said today he would demand Gemayel's removal from power even if the withdrawal accord were abrogated.

"Amin Gemayel has to step down. There will never be any talks, any dialogue, any reconciliation with the Phalangists or Amin Gemayel while he is in power," Jumblatt told a news conference in Damascus, Syria, today.

Scrapping the pact is just one of several demands by opposition groups seeking a government that is more representative of Lebanon's factions in the civil war.

Israel, which invaded the nation in 1982, has warned that it would keep its army in southern Lebanon if the accord is scrapped. Although it signed the pact last May with Lebanon, Israel refused to remove its troops from Lebanon until the Syrians pulled out their forces. Syria has refused to do so and the U.S.-mediated agreement that was designed to get foreign troops out of Lebanon has not gone into effect.

The Druse militias captured a strategic mile-long corridor to the sea after defeating government troops on Tuesday. It was the second defeat in eight days for the Lebanese army, which was pushed out of Moslem west Beirut last week.

The corridor lies between the Chouf Mountains southeast of Beirut and the Aley Mountain ridge east of the capital. It gives the Syrian-backed militia a long-sought path to the sea.

President Reagan has ordered a phased withdrawal of the Marines in Beirut, but no exact timetable has been set.

The Marines could depart on amphibious landing craft from the beach near the airport. They would have to cross the coastal highway to get to the beach and Amal, the largest Shiite militia, has checkpoints along that stretch of highway.

Beirut's leading newspapers, the independent An-Nahar and leftist As-Safir, said Gemayel had decided to scrap the accord after the militiamen forced his army out of the coastal highway linking Beirut with Israeli-occupied southern Lebanon.

Druse insurgents capped their surprise advance Tuesday by rolling down the hills from a mountain corridor they took from the army to link up with Shiite Moslem militia allies in west Beirut, the Moslem half of the Lebanese capital.

A foreign resident at Doha said the area took heavy shelling for two nights and a day before the army pulled out late Tuesday.

May Recommend A Tax Overhaul

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department is likely to recommend a wholesale overhaul of the nation's complex tax system later this year, says the department's chief tax specialist.

John E. Chapoton, assistant Treasury secretary for tax policy, said Tuesday that the department, still in the early stages of studying the nation's tax code, is taking a look at four main proposals as part of its research.

The proposals include a flat tax and a consumption tax, Chapoton said in an interview. At this point, he said no proposal is rated higher than any other.

"The effort here is to see if you can make the system more efficient, more equitable and more simple," he said.

"Our goal is to suggest a fundamental reform of the system," he said.

President Reagan, in his State of the Union address last month, called on Treasury Secretary Donald Regan to come up with a series of recommendations by December to revamp the tax system.

The current tax system is complicated by dozens of deductions, exemptions, allowances and credits, resulting in a variety of hard-to-understand tax forms.

Chapoton said the intent of the study was to design a system that, while broadening the tax base, would still produce about the same amount of revenues as raised currently.

"It's not an attempt to increase total receipts," he said.

While noting there was no guarantee any tax revisions would be accepted, he said, "there's enough disquiet in Congress with the present system" to produce major reform.

Even so, he said it would take "a major political effort by a president" to lead to restructuring the system.

"Whether this president or any other would make that effort ... would depend on how attractive the package we would come up with would be," he said.

As part of the study, Chapoton said the Treasury is looking at four main proposals:

—A flat tax that would require most people to pay the same percentage of their income to the government. Deductions and exemptions would be reduced. A strict version of the flat tax would mean higher taxes for middle- and lower-income families.

—A modified version of the flat tax that also would trim back the current number of tax brackets and the number of deductions, credits and exemptions. It could, however, retain such popular deductions as home mortgage interest. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., have introduced legislation for such a hybrid substitute.

—A tax on consumed income that would apply to the sum that families' spend, rather than earn. Money set aside for savings would escape taxes — or at least be taxed at a lower rate than that spent.

—A consumption tax that would basically be a national sales tax, or a value-added tax as it is called in Europe, where it is widely used.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

At a party the other night, the women got on the subject of marriage contracts.

All of us agreed that the "better-or-for-worse, richer-or-for-poorer, sickness-and-in-health" deal was pretty ambiguous and had a lot of loopholes and room for interpretation.

All except one. She said marriage contracts left her cold. They were just too "unromantic."

Is she kidding? Realistically, she's talking about passion, and passion statistically consumes a national average of 26 minutes a week. That amounts to about a day a year. What about the other 364?

Besides, marriage contracts aren't just for the benefit of one partner. They spell it out for both parties.

My husband alys felt like I should have marched down the aisle with a Buyer Beware sticker on my forehead. The week after we got married, I fell apart. My tonsils became infected, my teeth began to rot, the kidneys put me in the hospital, I got three childhood diseases and my vision went.

He said I would have made a great little fixer-upper for some pre-med student, but frankly he couldn't afford me on his salary.

He wasn't the only one who was disappointed. When he got a cold, the world stopped while he climbed into a warm bed and we all watched him cough. When I got a cold, I walked it to death.

We knew we owned the house together, yet for no apparent reason, I got the lawn. He was always saying to me, "Your grass is getting ahead of you. After awhile, you're going to have to rent tractor to cut it."

He could never understand about the appliances. They were mine until the warranty ran out and they needed fixing, then they became HIS toaster and HIS mixer. Even though the septic tank was on MY lawn, it was always within his jurisdiction, especially when MY lawn began to fall away from it.

As for the kids, I never understood why they were his between 6 and 8 p.m. when they were clean or when they were in school pageants, and they were mine between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., when they were hungry, throwing up, failing in school, or throwing brick through someone's window.

A marriage needs rules, especially if you use up all that passion the first week and split. Who gets custody of the kids? The relatives? The friends?

I'd like to see marriage contracts that came up for renewal every so often so you could assess what you've got. Consider options, negotiate for better hours, more benefits, and who knows... bring the gross national passion average up to 27 or 28 minutes week!

Critical Of N.C. Legislative Budget-Making

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — One state legislative budget leader says he disagrees with a report that criticizes the General Assembly for amending state laws through its budget bills.

The North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research Inc. says in a report released Tuesday that the 1983 Legislature inserted 57 "special provisions" in the budget to amend laws instead of direct spending.

Some of the provisions create a Board of State Contract Appeals, a state Farmworkers Council, set up a retirement system for legislators, amend a bingo reform law, property tax exemptions for stored tobacco and prohibit the University of North Carolina Board of Governors from restructuring the School of Public Health Nursing.

"The problem with these special provisions is not that they are necessarily bad laws, but that they are passed without any debate because they are hidden away in a 190-page budget bill," said Ran Coble, the center's executive director, in a prepared statement.

"And because these provisions are in the budget bills, few legislators are willing to challenge the legislative leadership for fear of losing funds earmarked for their local projects," Coble said.

However, Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said that most of the special provisions stemmed from bills that were introduced and discussed by committees before going to budget committees because they required an appropriation.

"They're not just something we got out of the blue," Adams said. "It is not a perfect system. It does not lend itself to the fullest debate but this (report) is a rather simplistic treatment of the process."

The center also criticized the state's executive branch for putting money to expand existing state programs in the budget for continuing operations at the current level.

The criticisms were part of a 197-page report called "The 1983-85 N.C. Budget: Finding the Missing Pieces in the Fiscal Jigsaw Puzzle." The issues raised in the report stem from a symposium sponsored by the center last year.

The center is a private, nonprofit, nonpartisan organization formed in 1977 to examine state government programs and practices. It receives funding from memberships, corporate contributions and grants.

Sen. Bob Jordan, D-Montgomery, another budget leader, said some of the report's criticisms are valid. He said some bills are sent to the budget committees to die while they should be accepted or rejected in committee before going to budget leaders for financial consideration.

"We should see these areas of legislation are put before a committee as far as humanly possible to give a chance for full debate," Jordan said.

Coble said lawmakers can use the budget bill to accomplish things they are unable to do in other bills. He cited the 1983 repeal of the Administrative Procedure Act. The repeal failed as a separate bill in the Senate but passed in the budget bill and will take effect in 1985.

Use of the special provisions has increased gradually, the report says. The 1978 budget bill contained 21 policy provisions compared to 57 this past year, the report said.

Some provisions enacted in the 1981 short budget session were ruled unconstitutional in an advisory opinion from the state Supreme Court. They dealt with the amount of control the executive or legislative branch would have over federal block grant money.

The center also criticized the executive branch for seeking money for new programs in its proposed budget to continue current programs.

Legislators examine budget requests in three categories — one for continuing services at the current level, one for expanding the level of service and one for construction and land purchases.

Gov. Jim Hunt proposed only one expansion item, lifting the salary freeze for state employees. The report said there were 22 items in the 1983 budget that were classified as continuation items although they expanded services. The items included money to add a writing component to the state competency test.

Adams said the 1983 budget was unique because Hunt proposed only one expansion item because of sagging state revenues.

Jordan blamed the Advisory Budget Commission, which helps Hunt prepare budget proposals for the Legislature, for mislabeling some of the expenditures. He said it's desirable to have projects in the continuation budget because they get first shot at the money.

"By the time you get to the expansion budget most of the money is already gone," Jordan said.

The report recommends the General Assembly amend the Executive Budget Act to require the executive branch to identify new programs, expansions of existing programs, increases in population served and inflationary increases.

Adams said legislators already have adopted such guidelines in committee.

Plans For Hatteras

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — The National Park Service has proposed a general management plan for the Cape Hatteras National Seashore calling for an $1.8 million expansion and improved visitor facilities over the next 10 years.

The plan would include improved visitor facilities at Whalebone Junction, Little Kinnakeet, Hatteras Weather Bureau Station and Ocracoke Island.

It also calls for improvements in campgrounds and parking facilities, new boat launching ramps at Ocracoke and bicycle paths at the Cape Point area.

Under the proposal, the 80 miles of barrier island would be managed generally to allow current uses, but would better accommodate visitors and would respond to some environmental problems, officials said.

Thomas L. Hartman, park superintendent, said Tuesday that the primary changes from the proposal would be additional facilities for the public.

Hartman said the plan, unveiled this week, would be reviewed after comments from the public.

The park service said the proposal provided necessary development to support appropriate visitor use and needed improvements for staff and operations.

If approved, the park's annual operating costs would rise to $5.2 million from $3.4 million.

Weyerhaeuser Plant In Moore Considered

CARTHAGE, N.C. (AP) — Weyerhaeuser Co., the second largest forest products company in the country, is considering Moore County for the location of a new $50 million wood processing plant, company officials say.

Glenn Wood, external affairs officer for the company's North Carolina regional offices in New Bern, confirmed Tuesday his company is considering several counties for the plant, including Moore County.

A general manager for the new plant is expected to be named soon, but a decision on the plant's location is "three or four weeks away," said Keith Hundley, public affairs director for the company's New Bern offices.

Speculation about the plant has run high in Moore County the last several weeks. But Reese Hart Jr., Moore County's economic development officer, warned that any early revelations about the size, location or specific nature of the plant could jeopardize the county's chance of landing the facility.

However, Jimmy Garner, chairman of the Moore County Economic Development Commission, said in a news release last week that if the company decides to build the plant in Moore, it is expected to locate on a 30- to 40-acre tract in the northwestern part of the county near its border with Montgomery County.

Garner said Hart had been furnishing the company with information on tax rates, employment, transportation and other information needed for comparisons with other counties.

Weyerhaeuser, which has its headquarters in Federal Way, Wash., is second in size only to Georgia Pacific Co. in American forest products industry.

The company has been operating in North Carolina for more than 30 years.

No Detectable Drugs Or Alcohol Involved

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — The state's chief toxicologist has testified that Charles Klutz was not under the influence of any detectable drugs or alcohol when his truck slammed into a row of cars at the Stratford toll plaza, killing seven people.

Testifying before Judge James Bingham at Bridgeport Superior Court on Tuesday, Dr. Abraham Stollman said there was no evidence of either drugs or alcohol present in blood samples taken from Klutz after the accident on Jan. 19, 1983.

The truck driver from Mocksville, N.C., is charged with seven counts of misconduct with a motor vehicle in the crash on the Connecticut Turnpike.

State Police Det. James Craig, who was assigned to count and identify the bodies of victims, after the crash also testified Tuesday. He described the scene and told of picking up toll and gas receipts and bills of lading.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Satti Jr. asked to question Craig about the papers and receipts that were strewn about after the crash.

However, defense attorney John Goulash objected.

Bingham had the jury leave the courtroom, then ruled that questions about the papers would not be allowed because the papers weren't introduced as evidence. Satti said the state's case should last about two more days.

The day's proceedings ended earlier than expected when two prosecution witnesses failed to show up for the afternoon session.

Koch Valentine Is Star Item

NEW YORK (AP) — Supporters of an anti-drug-abuse organization paid more than $100,000 at auction for everything from tooth bonding to a red Jeep.

But the star item in the show to benefit Phoenix House was a valentine handmade by Mayor Edward Koch.

It was a simple, grade-school-type creation of red construction paper and a white paper doily, but the message inside was signed by the mayor. It read:

"Roses are red,
"Brooklyn is south,
"Happy Valentine's Day
"Phoenix House.
"This poem's not so hot,
"I know, but look,
"That's why it didn't
"Appear in my book.
"So roses are red,
"The Bronx is north;

"Now let's find out
"What this Valentine's worth."
The valentine sold for a measly $60.

Refuses Dismiss Morehead Suit

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — A Carteret County Superior Court judge has refused to dismiss a lawsuit by Morehead City over the proposed location for a controversial bridge to Atlantic Beach.

The suit was filed against the state Department of Transportation.

In a Friday hearing, Judge David E. Reid Jr., granted a motion by the state to dismiss a claim that the department abused its discretion in selecting the downtown location.

But Reid said the issue of whether the city or state could control streets in the state highway system would stand for further court action.

Teachers, Take Note!

National Newspaper in Education (NIE) Week is coming March 5-9, 1984. The Newspaper in Education program encourages the use of newspapers for a variety of educational purposes. National NIE Week emphasizes the importance of reading and writing and is a cooperative effort of the International Reading Association and newspapers.

Teachers, use ads, maps, graphs, and schedules to teach reading and math. Show students how to write news stories, editorials, ads, and reviews. Also have them write letters to the editor and use newspapers to update research projects. Ask them to discuss the judgments that are made in interviews and editorials. Most important, have them read daily to develop the habit of reading and to keep well informed.

Locally, THE DAILY REFLECTOR has an intensive NIE program complete with newsletters, student presentations, teacher workshops, tours, activity sheets and manuals, and an NIE lending library. To find out more about the NIE program at THE DAILY REFLECTOR, call 752-6166, ext. 312. Or write: NIE Coordinator, THE DAILY REFLECTOR, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27835.

A special edition of the state's Newspaper in Education newsletter, DATELINE NC, is available free of charge. The newsletter features teaching ideas for use during NIE Week. To receive the newsletter, send the coupon below to the N.C. NIE Foundation. Return the coupon before February 24.

Pirates' 2nd Half Boosts Howard

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 Like the old camping ditty — same song, different verse, won't be better, might be worse.
 Such it was last night as East Carolina University's Pirates played host to Howard University of Washington, D.C. However, it looked like it just might have been a replay of the Saturday night game against William & Mary.

 It just might have been a little worse as the Pirates bowed, 71-57, and in the process tied the school record for most losses in a single season — 18.
 That old mark was set back in 1976-77 when the Pirates went 10-18 under Dave Patton in his final year as head coach.
 Just like Saturday night, East

Carolina played a good first half — not great — but good. The Pirates shot 60 percent in the half and while they got tentative after gaining an eight-point lead, they hung on and came from behind to take a 31-29 lead at the half.
 Saturday night, it had been the same story — ECU scoring on the final shot of the half for a 29-28 lead.
 Then, just like Saturday night, the Pirates came out after intermission and got very hesitant about going to the basket. They made bad passes that led to turnovers and layups for the Bison. And although they did put on one rally, it wasn't sustained and didn't carry through.

 By the time the second half was over, the Pirates had shot an icy-cold 26.7 percent, had been outrebounded, and had committed 14 turnovers.

Scramble For The Ball

"Howard has a group of aggressive athletes who are fairly young," ECU coach Charlie Harrison said. "But I'm a lot more concerned about the way our team is backing off when it gets a lead and trying to do things it is not capable of or which are not in our repertoire."
 "(Howard) got more aggressive in the second half and our guys just hid. They did nothing we didn't expect. They threw all kinds of zone traps against us, and we just gave it away. We didn't look for the open man to get the ball to. We had people open but we just can't seem to pass the ball to them. We can't locate the open man. We shy away from pressure. And even when we get the ball inside they take fall away jumpers after we work on the power duck-ins and the like.

"It's just very frustrating," Harrison said, "when we continue correcting errors in practice and they keep on coming."
 Harrison said that perhaps he is second-guessing, but "maybe we tried to make them into a team before they are fundamentally ready to be there. Hubie Brown says that you have to let your veterans carry your rookies and bring them along. Well, we don't have any veterans.

"When people come out aggressively on defense against us, we act like there's a bomb in the ball. We throw it away, or put up a quick shot or get trapped."
 For a while, things went well. After Howard scoring the initial basket, the Pirates took the lead at 4-2 on a jumper by Curt Vanderhorst and except for one tie, led for the first 15 minutes of the contest. The margin reached eight on three occasions, the first at 18-10 on a break-away by Roy Smith, and the last on a jumper by William Grady at 24-16.

But Howard rallied and finally tied it at 25-25 on a free throw by Derek Caracciolo with 4:23 left in the half. ECU went back out, but a basket by Kevin Scott and two free throws by Caracciolo put Howard back ahead for the first time since the opening minute, 29-27.

 Tony Robinson tied it up on a drive, but missed a chance at a three-pointer. Vanderhorst, however, scored with four seconds left to give ECU the lead, 31-29, at intermission.

But the Pirates were a different team in the second half. They went through 6:08 without a point before Robinson scored on two free throws. And the first basket didn't come until 43 seconds later.

And during the first 13 minutes of the half, the Pirates made only eight points while Howard was pouring in 26. That made it 55-39 with 7:53 left in the game.

Of those 26 points, 20 came on layups that Harrison said were created by the lack of aggressiveness of the Pirates on offense. "We were turning it over, letting them take it away on the trap and giving them the fast break," the Pirate coach said.

Then, the Pirates did come briefly to life, cutting the margin from 16 down to eight in a matter of less than a minute. After Vanderhorst scored to cut it to 55-41, the Pirates stole the ball before it could cross mid-court five straight times, scoring off four of those, cutting the lead to 55-47.

But after that, Howard was able to solve the puzzle and push the ball back down court, quickly running back out by 13 and finally to the end margin of 14.
 Kevin Scott led the Howard scoring with 15 points while David Wynn added 14 and McIlwaine and Fred Hill each had ten.
 East Carolina was paced by Vanderhorst with 13, Grady with 12 and Robinson with 10.
 The Pirates now fall to 4-18 on the year and travel to Richmond on Saturday for an ECAC-South Conference game.

 Howard heads out with an 11-11 record, snapping a two-game losing skid.

North Pitt's Boys, Girls Stun SouthWest Edgecombe Fives

PINETOPS — North Pitt's girls handed SouthWest Edgecombe a rare home defeat last night, 55-50, while the Panther boys finished off the upset evening with a 60-58 triple overtime win on Levon Shaw's last second basket.
 The loss by the girls dropped SouthWest, now 10-1 in the Eastern Carolina Conference, into a tie for first with Greene Central. Those two meet Friday to settle the title. North Pitt's girls are now 7-4 and have clinched third place in the standings.

 The loss by the SouthWest boys drop them to 7-4 on the season while North Pitt ups its record to 6-5, tied for fourth with Ayden-Grifton, idle last night.
 SouthWest pushed into a 12-9 lead in the first period of the boys' game and increased that to 28-23 by the end of the first half. SouthWest looked like it was going to take the game easily after three frames, holding a 44-38 lead.

Knight hit 15 and Walker had 14.
 SouthWest slipped into an 8-7 lead after one period of the girls' game and added a point to that lead at the half, leading 25-23.
 But in the third period, North Pitt's defense was at its sharpest, holding the Lady Cougars to just two points. The Pant-HERS meanwhile were drilling in 13 and taking a 36-27 lead. SouthWest rallied in the final quarter, 23-19, but couldn't overcome that third period letdown.
 Delores Pittman led North Pitt with 17 points, while Sherry Bradley had 11 and Sudi Sharpe and Regina Cox each had 10. Phyllis Gorham led SouthWest with 16, while Pam Gorham had 12 and Phyllis Mayo had 10.

But the Panthers rallied in the final period and Keith Clark tied it up at 51-51 at the end of regulation time, scoring with six seconds left to play.
 In the first overtime, SouthWest gained a 56-54 advantage but Clark again scored to tie it up with 40 seconds left. The Cougars went for the final shot, but missed, forcing another overtime. In that, neither team scored.
 Then, in the third overtime, Shaw put the Panthers up on a couple of free throws, only to see that matched by Tim Walker's two for SouthWest. The Panthers then held for the final shot, and while it missed, Shaw was there to score off the rebound with one second left, giving North Pitt the upset win.

North Pitt winds up the regular season Friday, traveling to Ayden-Grifton.

How Tar Heels Voted In The House, Senate

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 2-8.

HOUSE
BABY DOE — By a vote of 182 for and 231 against, the House rejected an amendment to delete tough "Baby Doe" provisions from the federal child abuse law. Right-to-life groups applauded the vote.

Proponents of the amendment did not want the child abuse statute broadened to cover parents who allow their newly-born child to die because it has life-threatening handicaps. They said the civil rights of such infants already are protected by Department of Health and Human Services regulations.

Defeat of the amendment left intact a new requirement that states determine whether parents in Baby Doe cases can be charged with child abuse when they choose death for their seriously handicapped baby. The overall bill (HR 1904) was sent to the Senate.

Supporter James Quillen, D-Tenn., said "the inevitable agony will be less if these decisions are left with the families involved."

Opponent Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said "you would not starve a yellow dog in your basement to death without the cruelty society prosecuting you."

Members voting no wanted greater federal and state power to keep severely handicapped babies alive.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1, Tim Valentine, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Britt, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7 and James Clarke, D-11.

Those representatives voting no were W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9 and James Broyhill, R-10.

RATES — The House passed, 288 for and 113 against, a bill (HR 555) preventing utilities from automatically requiring consumers to help pay for a new power plant during construction of the facility.

This would void a Federal Energy Regulatory Commission policy under which utilities can raise rates to recover one-half the cost of financing a project that is not yet completed.

The bill, which was sent to the Senate, stipulates that any pass-throughs to consumers during construction are to be determined by the commission on a case-by-case basis.

Supporter Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., said it was wrong to shift the financial risk "from the shareholders, who stand to make all the profits, to consumers, who do not stand to enjoy ... those profits."

Opponent James Broyhill, R-N.C., said the bill would slow much-needed construction of power plants. He added that "sooner or later ... the ratepayer pays all the costs of new utility construction."

Members voting yes favored delaying rate hikes to cover utility construction until after the project is completed.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner and Clarke.

Those representatives voting no were James Martin and Broyhill.

Walter Jones did not vote.

SENATE

EVIDENCE — The Senate passed, 63 for and 24 against, and sent to the House a bill (S 1764) whose effect is to soften the Constitution's prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures.

In federal proceedings, judges and magistrates could admit illegally seized evidence if police had a "reasonable, good-faith belief" they acted properly in confiscating it.

This would ease the "exclusionary rule" that required judges to bar illegally obtained evidence. Critics say the rule sometimes permits known criminals to go free on what they call "technicalities."

Supporter Don Nickles, R-Okla., said the bill "will help restore the balance between the rights of an accused and of the public to a fair trial."

Opponent Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said the U.S. legal system's absolute ban on unreasonable search and seizure "is the thing that sets this country apart from the Soviet Union and every other totalitarian government in the world."

Senators voting yes wanted federal judges to be able to waive the exclusionary rule in certain criminal proceedings.

North Carolina Sens. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted yes.

TAPING — By a vote of 41 for and 51 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to ban government officials other than law enforcement and intelligence personnel from secretly taping their telephone conversations.

The amendment was offered to a crime-control bill (S 17620) that later was sent to the House.

It was prompted by disclosures that Charles Wick, head of the U.S. Information Agency, had secretly recorded his calls. Although he had done nothing illegal, Wick publicly apologized for his actions.

Sponsor Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said that "from Watergate to Charlie Wick to other instances of taping, Congress has failed to address this problem."

Opponent Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., called the amendment "ill-prepared" and said it should be studied in committee rather than hurriedly attached to the pending crime bill.

Senators voting yes wanted to outlaw the secret taping of telephone calls by government officials except those dealing in intelligence and law enforcement.

Sens. East and Helms voted no.

Jury Ends Bull Feud

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — High noon on an October day. A half-dozen bulls wander past the county building. Folks brace for a showdown between cowboy David Alan Miller, who had turned the big critters loose, and Dwaine Sauers, Charlie Henderson's hired man.

"We were both irritated," says Miller. Especially Sauers. Those bulls belonged to his boss.

A brawl breaks out and somebody calls the sheriff. He steps in and somehow winds up with spurs in his face. Doc's got to sew him up.

"But this isn't the Old West. This is Castle Rock, Colorado," county prosecutor William Ritter argued last week, as he tried in vain to persuade the jury to convict Miller.

When the dust cleared Friday, the jury found the 26-year-old cowboy innocent of two charges of third-degree assault and one count of disorderly conduct. He got his black boots and spurs back and walked out of Douglas County Court a free man.

Miller, who raises cattle on leased land outside Castle Rock, testified that the feud leading to the events of Oct. 13 was over Henderson's bulls, which kept breaking through a fence to mangle with his heifers.

The day before the incident, Miller testified, he called Henderson and asked him to retrieve his bulls. The men argued and settled nothing, said Miller.

So the next day Miller loaded up a half-dozen of Henderson's bulls, carted them into downtown Castle Rock and turned them loose on the lawn of the Douglas County administration building.

Henderson's wife, Diane, said she happened to be in town and spotted the bulls.

"I couldn't believe it," she testified. "The first thing I thought was, 'How did somebody get a permit to show their bulls?'"

But she quickly recognized the bulls as her own after "I saw one I really hated."

She summoned the Sauers, who drove a truck and trailer into town and spotted Miller and the bulls on the street next to the administration building.

"He (Sauers) looked irritated," Miller said. "Just by the set of his jaw and the pace he was walking. We were both irritated."

Miller said he tried to explain to Sauers that his quarrel was with Henderson, but Sauers wouldn't listen and the men began to fight.

County Planning Consultant John B. Darling Jr., who witnessed the fight, told the jury it was a "huggy brawl."

"It was not a quality fight, I would say," Darling said.

"They were both fully involved, both really pushing each other," said Kirk Kimball, another witness.

That's when Sheriff Steve Zotos, who had been in the administration building, went outside to break it up. Somehow, Miller spurred him under the eye. The gash required 14 stitches.

Defense attorney Michael Williams said in closing arguments that it was unclear what really happened as Zotos and others tried to break up the fight. He said Miller did not deliberately wound the sheriff.

"I admit this is a little confusing," prosecutor Ritter said.

Ancient 'Secret' Is Sought

By RUTH SINAI
Associated Press Writer
ASHALIM, Israel (AP) — Almost 4,000 years after Joseph of the Old Testament saved the ancient Egyptians from starvation by stockpiling grain in the desert, Israeli scientists are puzzling over his methods in hopes of offsetting famine in drought-ridden 20th century lands.

By a barren stretch of road in the western Negev Desert, a white-domed tent rises on cracked sandy-colored ground. Inside are stored 550 tons of wheat.

The wheat is the object of a joint U.S.-Israeli research effort to perfect grain storage methods in the desert.

Professor Moshe Kalderon, who heads the project at the government-funded Volcani Institute, said in an interview that his team is utilizing elements of the desert climate which are traditionally regarded as man's enemies:

— Cold night air, which kills insects incapable of surviving under 59 degrees Fahrenheit.

— The summer heat, which can reach 122 degrees and also destroy insects.

— The arid climate year-round which keeps away mold.

Kalderon said he did not know how Joseph did it, storing grains during the seven "plenteous years" in preparation for the seven "lean years." All is says in Genesis is: "And Joseph opened up all the store houses and sold unto the Egyptians, and all the countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn."

One of the theories Kalderon suggested was that Joseph, the Israelite who acted as the Egyptian pharaoh's viceroy, used mud huts and sealed them hermetically with ashes, much as some Africans do nowadays.

Another member of Kalderon's team, Jonathan Donahaye, speculated that Joseph may have stored the food in pits in the ground, as nomadic Bedouin tribes do to this day. The disadvantage of that method, Donahaye added, was that moisture from underground water could breed mold.

Donahaye, a British scientist working toward a doctoral degree in insect control at the Volcani Institute, said in an interview that the team is trying to perfect hermetic sealing of the tent to fight insect infestations.

"If they can't breathe, they'll die. We have very few resources against pests, because we're dealing with what will one day become food and we can't poison it with too many insecticides."

The scientists are also experimenting with funneling gases such as nitrogen or carbon dioxide into the tent to replace oxygen and create a "controlled atmosphere" in which insects cannot live.

Donahaye pointed to glass vials housing flower beetles, in which their resistance to various gases is being tested in laboratory conditions at the institute near Tel Aviv.

The advantage of the tent, which looks roughly like a muffin the size of a beach cottage, is its mobility and low cost. In emergencies, Donahaye said, it could be a portable silo for areas hit by drought or it could be used as a "buffer stock" in countries with little rainfall.

"It's much better having the grain there than waiting for it to be shipped from the United States while people are dying of hunger," he added.

Kalderon said the research is being carried out jointly with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, whose institute in Savannah, Ga., is performing laboratory tests connected with insect control.

"The Americans have a lot of wheat to sell and they're interested in knowledge about it so they can promote their sales to African and other countries," he said.

Once the storage method is made fullproof, he added, it can also be used in tropical climates where high humidity damages grains, because many tropical countries have desert corners. He cited Venezuela as one such example.

"In Israel, desert storage would be useful in the Negev Desert, which takes up about half the country and which "hopefully will one day be more heavily populated than now," he said.

Heavy Outlays On Hiking Trails

BOSTON (AP) — How much does it cost to manage a hiking trail?

The Appalachian Mountain Club says that if Uncle Sam does it the cost is $51,000 per mile of trail, but volunteers can do it for less.

The club, which operates 1,000 miles of trail in the Northeastern United States, estimates it costs it $150 to maintain each mile of trail because of volunteers who are willing to work in exchange for food, lodging, shelter, tools and training.

New Greenville Cheese Shoppe Features Imported Cheeses & Foods

In recent years, independent research teams have interviewed hundreds of thousands of Kroger shoppers to find out what they wanted in a store. Many customers responded that they would like to see a wider variety of cheeses and imported foods at their regular store, rather than having to drive to an expensive specialty store for their favorite items.

For the types of drugs for which the FDA requires Pre-Marketing approval, it has published comparative evaluations between the brand-name and the various therapeutically equivalent generics that are on the market. Many, but not all prescriptions can be filled with generic drugs. A Kroger Pharmacist will not substitute a drug product that he does not consider to be equivalent. We at Kroger, are dedicated to serving you with dependable products - at the lowest-possible prices consistent with the highest-quality drugs.

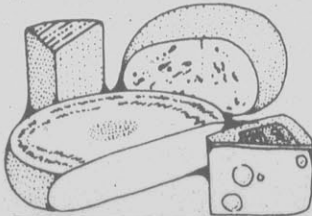

Kroger is involved in the Prescription Drug Program honoring Paid Prescriptions, PCS, and MediMET. You can always rely on personal attention to your health needs when you go Krogering. Give us a call at 756-7393.

Please Don't Eat the Daisies...

You wouldn't purchase a hot tasty meal in the average grocery store, but Kroger Sav-on is not just an "average" store.

Two of the many specialty features of our Greenville store are a sit-down restaurant/snack bar and a new floral shoppe featuring fresh flowers and live plants. A professional florist is on duty at the floral shoppe during regular business hours, and most arrangements ordered can be prepared while customers do their shopping. Choose from beautiful fresh cut flowers, healthy long-lasting foliage, artificial arrangements and gorgeous flowering plants from all over the world. For birthdays, anniversaries, weddings, parties, etc., let the new Kroger Floral Shoppe help you make your personal statement and add to your touch and decorating.

The restaurant/snack bar offers a complete menu daily, including at least four fresh vegetables such as mashed potatoes, greens, squash, and snap beans; and hot entrees that might include fried chicken, lasagne, fried flounder or beef tips. A fresh baked biscuit or dinner roll is included with each meal and a salad bar is also available. The daily luncheon special includes an entree and two vegetables. A wide selection of hot or cold sandwiches are also offered. Visit Barney's Cafe today and enjoy an old fashioned sit-down meal.

Grading Stricter for Meat Here

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture recently broadened the guidelines for awarding the "U.S.D.A. Choice" beef shield. Meat buyers for the Kroger Sav-on chain have chosen to maintain their own more strict standards, however.

Kroger's strict second inspection on every side or quarter of beef accepted from their suppliers will assure Greenville shoppers that they are getting only the best U.S. Choice grade of beef, the most flavorful, tender and juicy for the most meat value.

Individual cuts must also meet strict guidelines. At Kroger Sav-on, round steaks must always be "full cut" containing the top, bottom and more tender "eye" of round. Chuck roasts are always center-cut. T-Bone steaks don't have fatty "tails." Veal cutlets are light-colored, small-boned U.S.D.A. Prime.

All ground meats are subject to rigid grading standards. Four grades of meat are offered: Ground Round (fat not to exceed 17%); Ground Chuck (fat not to exceed 20%); Extra Lean (fat not to exceed 25%); and Ground Beef (fat not to exceed 30%).

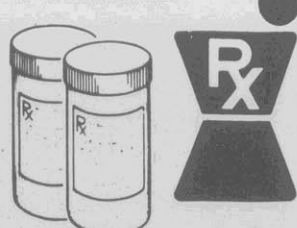

Holly Farms supplies the store with Grade A Fresh tender young whole baking hens and fryers. Poultry is also available in many Holly Farms pre-packaged assortments. Breasts or legs can be bought individually packaged, in addition to the normal parts or "quarters" packaging. All are guaranteed for total customer satisfaction by Kroger Sav-on.

Vikings Clinch Second With Victory

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Vikings clinched second place in the Coastal Conference with a 69-60 victory over West Craven last night.

The second place finish carries a first round tournament bye with it.

Conley's girls also came away with a win, 49-40, iceing no worse than a tie for third and giving them the chance to tie to second with a win on Friday.

Havelock's boys, who were alone in third coming into the week, lost to North Lenoir last night and fell into a tie for third with the Hawks.

Conley's girls are now 6-3 in the conference and 17-5 overall.

Conley streaked away in the first period to take a 19-5 advantage over the Eagles. West Craven put on a two-point rally in the second quarter but still was far back at 33-21 at intermission.

In the third period, the Eagles managed to clip only two more off the lead and trailed by 45-35. The Vikings allowed one more point off the margin in a 25-24 dash to the wire.

Donald Wilson led Conley with 14 points while Louis Bryant and Reggie Smith each added 13. West Craven was paced by Morris Jones with 10.

Conley's girls had also raced out to

Perfect Scores Give British Skaters Gold

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — In an exhibition fit for a king and played before a princess, British ice dancers Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean produced solid gold with an unprecedented string of perfect scores.

Never before in Olympic history had such perfection been reached. When they were through Tuesday, all nine judges awarded them the ultimate — nine perfect 6.0 scores for artistic impression.

Add three 6's for technical content and the 12 perfect scores were something for history.

"We couldn't believe it, really," Torvill said.

Skating before 8,000 mesmerized spectators at the Zetra Arena, including Princess Anne, the former insurance clerk and former policeman staged their interpretation of Ravel's "Bolero" — a sultry dance of passion and death.

On the ice today, Rosalyn Summers, 19, of Edmonds, Wash., got off to a smooth start in her Olympic gold hunt.

In the first round of the compulsory figure skating she was second behind Elena Vodnizova of the Soviet Union. Those 1-2 postings were reversed in the second round.

Andrea Schoene led East Germany to a sweep in the women's 3,000-meter speed skating with a time of 4 minutes, 24.79 seconds.

Poor visibility forced postponement of the women's downhill on Mount Jahorina, further scrambling the oft-delayed Alpine schedule. Officials were trying to wedge it in between Thursday's events.

The postponement came after two of the first 10 skiers fell on a poorly-prepared stretch made more difficult by cloudy conditions. The event was originally scheduled for last Saturday because of bad weather.

In the men's downhill, which has been repeatedly postponed from last Thursday's scheduled run, Bill Johnson of Van Nuys, Calif., continued his strong showing by clocking the fastest time in training. He was timed in 1 minute, 49.11 seconds.

Helmut Hoeflner of Austria trailed Johnson at 1:49.31 and West Germany's Klaus Gattermann was third in 1:49.49.

Karin Enke, with 4:26.33, became the only four-medal winner of the Games. She added a silver in the 3,000 to her golds from the 1,500 and 1,000 and her silver in the 500.

Washington Rolls Over Williamston

WASHINGTON — Washington High School rolled up a 69-53 victory over Williamston last night and pulled into a tie for second place in the Northeastern Conference standings with one game left to play.

The Washington girls beat Williamston, 36-29, and clinched the number seven seed in the league's tournament for next week. Williamston will be the number eight seed.

Washington's boys are now 10-5 in the league while Williamston drops to 3-12, tied with Roanoke Rapids for the basement. The Lady Pack is 5-10 in the league and Williamston is 3-13.

Washington eased into a 16-12 lead after one period, but Williamston came back with a 19-17 margin in the second quarter. That left the Pam Pack up, 33-31, as the two teams went to the locker rooms.

Washington came out firing and moved out to a 49-39 lead during the third period. The Pam Pack outshot Williamston, 20-14, in the final quarter to wrap up the win.

Jeff Cox led Washington with 19 points, while Steve Austin had 17 and Adrian Dudley had 14. He also pulled 18 rebounds for the Pack.

Williamston was led in scoring by James Ward, Craig Brown and Donnell Griffin, each with 12.

Williamston's girls shot out to a 14-8 lead in the first period, but could score but four points in the second. Washington came up with 10 points and tied it at 18-18 at halftime.

In the third period, both teams scored seven points to make it 25-25, but Washington outscored the Lady Tigers, 11-4 in the final period to win it.

Creswell Downs Bears In OT

CRESWELL — Creswell High School connected on three field goals in overtime while Bear Grass managed a lone field goal by Lawrence Watson as Creswell took a 33-29 victory Tuesday in Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference basketball action.

In the girls game, Amy Lilley bucketed 19 points to lead Bear Grass to a 42-39 win over Creswell. Misty Davenport posted 15 points and Sidney Leigh 12 for Creswell.

The two teams battled to a 2-2 tie at the end of the third quarter, but Bear Grass took a 13-8 lead at halftime of the slowdown contest. Creswell trimmed the lead to a point at the end of the third period and outscored the Bears 7-6 in the final quarter. Darrell Brown of Bear Grass missed an opportunity at the free throw line to send the game to overtime.

Moore, Rogers and Webb posted field goals in the overtime to lift Creswell's record to 11-4 for second place in the Tobacco Belt race, while 14-7 overall. The Bears slipped to 7-8 in the league with an overall mark of 7-12.

The Lady Bears improved their record to 6-9 in the conference and 10-10 overall, while Creswell slipped to 2-13 in the league and 3-18 overall.

Battleship's Huge Guns Proved Terrifying

SHELLED OUT — Rubble is left of these shell fired from the U.S. battleship New Jersey's 16-inch guns. (AP Laserphoto)

By SCHEHEREZADE FARAMARZI
Associated Press Writer

TIBIYAT, Lebanon (AP) — This Druse village was one of the targets of last week's bombardment by the battleship New Jersey and residents spoke Monday of their terror as shells from the big 16-inch guns shattered their homes.

The incoming rounds "made a strange sound ... a sound that would shake the whole village," said Nohad Abu Shahin, 30.

This Syrian-controlled area east of Beirut was struck by 250 shells from the New Jersey, the world's only active battleship, last Wednesday, blasting buildings and setting fire to the forests.

No specific casualty figures were given, but the official Syrian news agency said "dozens of civilians" were killed.

Wadad Swaid, a 51-year-old woman recovering from a leg wound, said, "We were hiding in the basement of the house. There were 25 of us, including children."

"Shells came closer and closer. Suddenly I felt I could not breathe. The house had collapsed on our heads."

Her nephew, Khaled Swaid, 33, took reporters to the broken remains of his aunt's home beside a crater 12 feet wide and four feet deep. The front wall was blown away, furniture was strewn about and there was a bloody mat on the floor.

"That is my brother's blood," he said. "We were together that night. You see this hole? We pulled 16 injured people through it."

He said when the bombardment began he left his aunt's house and ran to his home nearby.

"Not three minutes had passed when I left this house that a shell hit the front of it," he said. "I heard screams and looked at the house and saw the rubble all over."

"When I came back I found my brother Ali dead and the ceiling caved in. My uncle was injured, so was his wife."

Officials at the hospital in the town of Falouha said 16 members of the Swaid family were wounded and six were taken to Damascus, the Syrian capital, for further treatment. They said two of those sent to Damascus were children who needed psychological care.

At least two other houses in Tibiyat, which has a population of about 250, were hit by the battleship's shells.

In nearby Bmariam, a dozen houses were destroyed or heavily damaged.

U.S. officials said the shelling was ordered after Druse gunners fired rockets and artillery at predominantly Christian east Beirut and the capital's suburbs where the U.S. ambassador's residence is located.

The reporters saw no evidence of gun positions in Tibiyat, 13 1/2 east of Beirut, but the action had occurred six days earlier.

Tiny TV Camera Now Marketed

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A palm-sized, color television camera which weighs only 2.2 pounds has been introduced by RCA.

The miniature camera uses a solid state sensor instead of a picture tube. It has a built-in microphone, power zoom lens and a small TV-screen viewfinder through which scenes just shot can be replayed.

RCA's first home video camera came out in 1978 and weighed 12 pounds.

Nawal Swaid, a 22-year-old woman hospitalized in Falouha, was asked by the journalists about Americans and she said, "I curse the earth they walk on. They hit this village where there is no gun, nor any artillery position, nor fighters."

Suleiman Abu Shavhin of Bmariam said when the shelling began "we saw something like

Fewer Deaths In Coal Mines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seventy coal miners died in work-related accidents last year compared to 122 deaths in 1982. The government says the improvement probably is linked to declines in coal production and the number of miners.

The Mine Safety and Health Administration said the rate for fatal injuries in coal mining last year was .04 per 200,000 employee-hours, down from a 0.6 rate in 1982. But the report also showed that miners worked fewer hours and put out less coal than in 1982.

It said coal miners worked a total of 343.1 million hours last year, a decrease from 410.9 million hours reported in the same period from January through December 1982. Average employment, or the number of people digging coal or working in coal mining-related operations, was down from 240,155 coal miners in 1982 to 198,039 last year, the report said.

lightening coming towards us. Then we saw dust when the shell would land, and then black smoke. Of course I was scared. After all, I'm a 70-year-old man."

"We, the people of the mountains here, want and like peace," he added. "To be honest, I was surprised by the shelling, especially when the United States claims it is here for peace and to help the Lebanese people. This is not the way to do it, by killing people."

Virtually all of the residents of Tibiyat are members of the Druse Islamic sect. The Druse are allied with the Shiite Moslems battling Christian militias and some units of the Lebanese army controlled by President Amin Gemayel, a Maronite Christian.

Lottery Arrest

Arthur Thomas Bynum, 48, of 1304 Battle St., was arrested by Greenville police Tuesday on charges of possession of lottery tickets. The charge resulted from a search of his home last week by officers assigned to the department's narcotics and vice squad.

Bynum was suspended from his job as janitor at the Pitt County Health Department after his arrest last week on charges of selling prescription drugs without a license. Bynum allegedly sold undercover officers an antibiotic, which resulted in the search of his home and the recovery of a quantity of antibiotics and birth control pills.

Break-In Reported

Greenville police were continuing their investigation today of a break-in at 106 Contentnea St., which was reported at 9:04 p.m. Monday. Officer M.C. Jernigan said entrance to the home was gained through the front door and a quantity of china dishes and cups were taken.

TV Stolen

According to Officer W.A. Moore, Greenville police are investigating a break-in at 806 Ward St., which was reported about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday. Moore said entrance to the home was gained by prying open the front door. A television, valued at $818, was reported stolen.

Sticker Deadline

Today was the deadline for Winterville residents to display town stickers for 1984 on their vehicles, according to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

Police officers will now begin issuing warning tickets, Nobles said, to residents who are not in compliance. The warning tickets give those in violation of the sticker ordinance five days to purchase a sticker before a citation is issued.

The 1984 stickers may be purchased at the town hall Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. at a cost of $1.

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight's second installment of public television's "Smithsonian World" has several interesting tidbits on mankind's insatiable desire to get from here to there — even if the program does say so itself.
"Crossing the Distance" includes a rare interview with Anne Morrow Lindbergh, who was co-pilot, navigator and radio operator for her globe-trotting husband, Charles Lindbergh; an on-location profile of the Panama Canal, and a piece on "animal detente," with Siberian tigers from the Moscow Zoo traveling to the United States to improve the breed in American zoos.
These segments, however, are diminished by incessant back-slapping and boosterism. It's grating — and undignified — for "Smithsonian World," which utilizes the resources of Washington's Smithsonian Institution, to frequently congratulate itself about the museum's research and acquisitions.
After hearing so many gratuitous remarks about the Smithsonian's good works, viewers might think public TV has gone commercial.
For example, during the segment on Mrs. Lindbergh, the broadcast says her husband was greeted in Paris, following his famed solo trans-Atlantic flight, by 100,000 people and a telegram from the Smithsonian: "It wanted his plane."
Time and again, the program
bends over for the Smithsonian link:
The National Zoo, "incidentally, is part of the Smithsonian." The Panama Canal "holds a vital research outpost of the Smithsonian."
And, how about this piece of pretentious narration from the show's host, David McCullough?
"Why is 'Smithsonian World' starting out on a tramway in New Mexico? First of all, this is an amazing place, and the Smithsonian Institution is interested in every fascinating place, person and thing in the world."
With the vast resources of the Smithsonian, as the broadcast is wont to say, "Smithsonian World" should have been better. For instance, a superficial interview with a trans-Atlantic balloonist should have produced more insight than he does it for "the challenge."
The best segment is on Mrs.
Lindbergh, an engagingly passionate woman, who has not consented to interviews in recent years. This interview, by McCullough, sticks to her exploits as an aviator, and does not touch on the celebrated kidnap-ing and death of her son.
She comes across as a willful woman who put great pressure on herself to become a flyer worthy of sharing the controls with her husband.

"I wanted terribly to live up to my husband's expectations," she says.
"My landings were pretty bumpy, and I was always so grateful when I got down on the grass, and he said,
'Have to go round again 'til you make a good landing.' And someone times it was quite late in the evening before I made that landing."
The segment on the Siberian tiger is also good, although its connection with the time-and-distance theme is somewhat tenuous. The story line is that Ulysses S. Seal, who keeps track of the family trees for all Siberian tigers in the United States, noticed, through a computer check, that every one of the species here is descended from the same 17 animals.
The danger in this degree of inbreeding, said the show's executive producer, Martin Carr, is that the animals can become less disease resistant, less hardy and more high strung.
As a countermeasure, officials in the U.S., playing the role of diplomatic matchmakers, successfully negotiated with the Moscow Zoo to bring three foreign Siberian tigers to American zoos.
Although negotiations took two years because of a tangle of bureaucratic red tape, Soviet animal lovers were quite sympathetic to the Siberian tigers' plight. "People who love animals and are interested in preserving species have no political problems," Carr said in an interview.

Guilty Plea In Porn Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A mother of five, dubbed the nation's "kiddie porn queen" by prosecutors, faces up to four years in prison and a federal trial that could bring another 85 years behind bars after pleading guilty to distributing child pornography.

"Guilty," Catherine Stubblefield Wilson, 44, murmured Tuesday in the surprise plea before state Superior Court Judge Diane Wayne. The judge set sentencing for April 12, about a week after Ms. Wilson's retrial on separate federal charges is to begin.

"We felt we had a strong case all along," said Deputy District Attorney Lael Rubin, who added that she was delighted by the defendant's decision to plead guilty, because it would save the state the cost of prosecuting her.

Prosecutors alleged that Ms. Wilson's mail-order pornography business controlled 80 percent of the U.S. market for movies of explicit sex involving children. She made $500,000 a year from the business, they said.

The films and literature, about a decade old and apparently made in Scandinavia, showed children as young as 6 engaging in sex acts with one another, adults and animals, Ms. Rubin said. Ms. Wilson was not accused of making the films.

Although three misdemeanor counts of possessing obscene materials will be dropped, Ms. Wilson could face up to 85 more years in prison and $85,000 in fines if convicted on federal charges of unlawfully using the mail system and violating the Child Exploitation Act.

Ms. Wilson entered the guilty plea on the day her trial was to begin, after a series of conferences between attorneys and the judge.

In October, a U.S. District Court jury deadlocked 11-1 in favor of conviction. A mistrial was declared and retrial set for April 3.

Ms. Wilson also faces state charges that she violated probation and illegally received $12,000 in welfare payments between 1980 and 1982. When arrested in May 1982, she was on probation from a 1980 child pornography conviction for which she had received a two-year suspended sentence, three years' probation and a $3,750 fine.

Ms. Wilson solicited business by writing people known to have previously bought pornography and inviting them to join her "club" by mailing $3 to a Danish address for a brochure on films and literature, Ms. Rubin said.

Payments were sent to another address in Denmark. Danish contacts forwarded orders to Ms. Wilson and sent her money through banks in Switzerland and the Cayman Islands, Ms. Rubin said.

The banks sent her weekly checks of $990, small enough that they were unlikely to trigger authorities' curiosity, Ms. Rubin said.

Ms. Wilson was linked to the business after a postal official found himself on a mailing list offering the pornography and traced it to Richard Trolio of Woodland Hills, Calif., who offered to testify against Ms. Wilson, prosecutors said.

Trolio, a key witness at Ms. Wilson's federal trial last year, is awaiting sentencing in state court for distributing pornography.

During last year's federal trial, jurors squirmed in their seats as they viewed films entitled "Randy Lolitas" and "Kinder Orgy." One woman refused to watch.

Ms. Wilson has been free since posting $1.1 million in equity and real property, Ms. Rubin said.

If convicted of the federal charges, Ms. Wilson would be allowed to serve both sentences in a federal institution, Ms. Wayne said.

Tobacco Imports Increased Sharply

By DIANA SMITH
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Tobacco imports have increased sharply in the United States recently because foreign countries can produce and sell it cheaper than American growers, an agronomist says.

The United States is finding it harder to compete with countries such as Zimbabwe and Brazil in the international tobacco market, said Bobby Miles, a tobacco specialist with the Georgia Cooperative Extension Service in Tifton.

"We used to be the big frog in the pond, but that's not the case any more," Miles said Tuesday in a telephone interview.

Tobacco grown in other countries costs less because foreign growers pay less for labor than American growers, and those countries don't subsidize growers to the same extent through price supports.

Domestic and foreign manufacturers also have found it more profitable to buy cheaper grades of tobacco from other countries.

"It's hard to compete when you've got those strikes against you," Miles said.

The United States still exports more tobacco than it imports, but the gap has narrowed in the past decade, he said.

"Tobacco contributed about $2 billion net to the balance of trade last year, which means we're still selling that much more than we're importing," he said.

But, Miles added, "Imports over the past six or eight years have been increasing." Specific figures were unavailable.

The problem can't be blamed solely on other countries. American tobacco growers are in "a sloppy rut," Miles said. "We're just not doing the job we used to do and we have lost ground."

"If we're going to get back into the world market then we're going to have to compete with those other countries price-wise and take more pride in our tobacco."

Less tobacco is being grown because of a smaller market for American-grown tobacco.

If Georgia had maintained its share of the world tobacco market, Miles said, growers would be producing 250 million to 300 million pounds annually. In 1984, Georgia tobacco growers will produce between 80 million and 85 million pounds, Miles said.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., based in Raleigh, N.C., has a backlog of about 760 million pounds of tobacco that has not been sold, said Fred Bond, general manager of the Stabilization Corp.

Area Complains Over Incinerator

SPRUCE PINE, N.C. (AP) — Mitchell County residents are complaining that a licensed hazardous-waste incinerator at Altapass is making them "a toilet for other areas."

People living near the plant are bothered by odors from the incinerator, and don't like the idea of waste from other areas being brought to Mitchell Systems Inc. for burning, said Bruce Biddix, who is heading a petition drive to revoke the plant's permit.

The company president said Mitchell Systems operates within state regulations and has provided information concerning hazardous waste and its treatment to residents, with little response.

"Bad odors and thick smoke come from there," Biddix said. "Mitchell County and this area generate very little hazardous waste, but these tankers keep the roads hot rolling it in from out of the county and out of the state. We're willing to take care of our own, but not everybody else's. We highly resent being the toilet for other areas."

'Les Troyens' Aims Saturday

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Hector Berlioz's "Les Troyens," an opera in three acts, will be broadcast beginning at 12:30 p.m. Saturday. The live-from-the-Metropolitan Opera broadcast will be heard locally over WITN Radio, 930 on the radio dial. The weekly Saturday afternoon broadcasts are in their 43rd year of sponsorship by the Texaco Co.

Cast members in "Les Troyens" are Titiana Troyanos as Cassandra; Jessye Norman as Dido; Edward Sooter in the role of Aeneas; Allan Monk as Cordebus; Paul Plishka as Narbal; and Jocelyne Taillon as Anna. James Levine will conduct the orchestra.

LEO's ... the restaurant of the new Sheraton Greenville, served its first customers today as the hotel complex opened for business. The dining section is designed to seat 140 people. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Sheraton Greenville Opens Doors Today For Business

The Sheraton Greenville, featuring not only guest rooms but a restaurant, lounge and banquet-meeting facilities for 350 to 550 people, opened its doors for business today.

Ruth Matous, the Sheraton's director of sales here, said that while no special activities are planned now, a formal grand opening will be held during the latter part of March or the first of April.

The new facility, located at the corner of Greenville Boulevard and Landmark Street on a 5.75-acre tract, has a four-story tower with 121 rooms for guests, including nine suites and six rooms designed for handicapped visitors.

The Sheraton's restaurant, Leo's, has seating for 140 customers and will feature a complete menu, Ms. Matous said. The hotel's Off the Cuff lounge will accommodate over 200, she said. Facilities are also available to serve 350 guests banquet style or 550 theater style with chairs.

Ms. Matous said three other smaller meeting rooms are available, including a board room with a conference table for 16 people, and a directors room that will accommodate 50 people or divide into two sections for 25 people each. The restaurant, lounge, banquet and meeting rooms, as well as the lobby area and hotel offices, are included in what Ms. Matous referred to as the commercial section of the complex.

A pool, located in back of the hotel, will be ready for use by the spring, she said. A gallery to the meeting rooms is gassed to feature the pool area.

Ms. Matous said the hotel has incorporated a "soft" color scheme, including peach-colored room carpets, in all areas except the lounge which has brighter, flashier hues. Plants are prominent throughout the hotel, she said, and a seven-foot planter with a circular bench has been installed in the lobby. Skylights are located in the lobby and restaurant areas.

The spokeswoman said the Sheraton has installed a "sophisticated fire protection system" that includes smoke detectors and sprinklers throughout.

The hotel has been designed to accommodate expansion, Ms. Matous said, noting that plans call for the addition of 80 guest rooms during 1984.

Bill Lingle is the hotel's general manager and Bill Houston is assistant manager. Don Brown, regional operations director from Raleigh, has been in town to oversee the opening of the facility.

The Greenville Sheraton is owned and operated by First Greenville Properties, headed by Roddy Jones of Raleigh as president. In addition to Jones, the other principal stockholders are Seby B. Jones and Keith Harrod. All three are associated with Davidson and Jones Corp., a Raleigh-based construction and development firm.

Spy Plane Claim By North Korea

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea's official news agency claimed today that an U.S. SR-71 "high-speed, high-altitude" spy plane flew over North Korean territorial waters.

The Korean Central News Agency report, monitored in Tokyo, said the plane had "committed espionage" by flying Tuesday over North Korean waters east of Kosong.

It said the senior member of North Korea's delegation to the Korean Military Armistice Commission "lodged a strong protest with the enemy side and demanded it take responsible steps to prevent the recurrence of such incidents."

 Opening lead: Ace of ♣.

There is nothing more exciting than the thrust and parry between a good declarer and an experienced defender. This hand is from the China-Australia match in the recent Far Eastern Championships in Hong Kong.

In one room the Chinese East-West pair reached four spades and went down one trick when declarer managed to get rid of a losing club on a diamond. In the other room, the Australian East-West pair sold out to four hearts. East-West were playing a forcing club system, so West could not have opened one club even had he wanted to — his hand was not good enough.

West led the ace of clubs and another. Since there was no way for declarer to avoid losing a spade, his problem was to limit his diamond losers to one — no easy task. He won the club continuation and drew two rounds of trumps, ending in his hand. Now he led a low spade.

To prevent a possible throw-in later, West grabbed the ace of spades and exited with another club. Declarer now prepared for an end play by cashing the king of spades. He returned to his hand with the ace of diamonds and led a low diamond.

Had West carelessly played low, or even had he gone in with the jack of diamonds, declarer would have been home free. East would have been forced to win the queen and, with nothing left but spades, he would have been forced to yield a ruff and sluff, allowing declarer to get rid of his losing diamond.

West, however, had seen this tactic before. If declarer had the ace-queen of diamonds, he would have finessed, for even if the finesse lost, he would have still made the contract if West held the jack of diamonds as well. So West rose with the king of diamonds — the "crocodile coup" — to swallow his partner's queen — and he could take the jack of diamonds for down one.

Counted 3 Collisions

An estimated $6,000 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said cars driven by John Wesley Joseph Warren of Scottish Manor Apartments and Evelyn Buchanan Moye of 100 N. Harding St. collided about 5:57 p.m. at the intersection of Fourth and Student streets, causing an estimated $1,800 damage to the Warren car and $1,500 damage to the Moye vehicle.

Ms. Moye was charged with failing to yield the right of way in connection with the collision.

Police said a truck driven by Bobby Gene Whitaker of Winterville and cars driven by Patricia Costin Hamby of 405 Harrell St. and Joni Sams White of Edgewood Trailer Park were involved in a collision about 5:20 p.m. on Evans Street, 141 feet south of the Eighth Street intersection.

Damage from the collision was set at $300 to the truck, $1,000 to the Hamby car and $400 to the White auto.

A 5:28 p.m. collision on 10th Street, 50 feet east of the Cedar Lane intersection, involved cars driven by Stephen Keith McCall of 137 Hollybrook and Amy Luann Bowen of 125 Tyler Dorm, officers said.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $400 to the McCall car and $600 to the Bowen vehicle.

Decapitated By Exploding Tire

WYTHEVILLE, Va. (AP) — A MECHANIC in a quarry was decapitated when a tire he was loading onto a trailer exploded, hurling a metal truck wheel rim through him and 75 yards beyond, authorities said.

Dennis R. Sutphin, 35, of Hillsville, died instantly Monday at the Crowder Quarry in southwest Virginia's Wythe County, said county Sheriff G. Wayne Pike.

"I've never seen anything quite so bad," Pike said. "I'm just appalled that a tire, which is seemingly an innocent piece of equipment ..."

Pike said Sutphin and another man were loading the split-rim tire on a low-boy trailer when the accident happened about 2:45 p.m.

"They dropped it about six inches onto the trailer and it blew up and it decapitated him," Pike said.

The force of the explosion knocked the other man backward but he was not hurt, Pike said.

Sweden's Person Numbers Come Under Fire

By BIRGIT LOFGREN

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A recent announcement in the Engagements column of the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said:

Someone — authorities can find out if they want to — was spoofing Sweden's Person Numbers, a 10-digit figure that tells who you are, where and when you were born and your sex.

In the Swedish government's computers, each citizen is a number. Every computer file in Sweden is based on the Person Number, whether it's at a bank, a hospital, an employer, the social welfare office or the tax authorities. Whatever a person does is in somebody's computer. The system recently has come under fire, however, from Swedes who contend that a computerized society ultimately could infringe on the integrity of individuals. In mid-January, conservative opposition leader Ulf Adelsohn presented a 50-page "Freedom Bill" aimed at abolishing nearly 50 laws enacted by the Social Democratic government of Prime Minister Olof Palme, many of them designed to prevent tax evasion. Adelsohn assailed what he called "the abuse of Person Numbers" and demanded legislation to limit their use. The Person Numbers, which went into effect Jan. 1, 1947, and were computerized 20 years later, follow the 8.3 million Swedes from cradle to grave and are as integrated in a Swede's personality as any trait of character. One reason for giving everyone a number is that many Swedes have the same name. There are hundreds of thousands of Carlssons, Svenssons and Jacobssons, for example. Fueling Adelsohn's argument was a recent government study suggesting a streamlined super databank, integrating up to 150 computer files with all kinds of data on citizens — all based on the Person Number, which one gets at birth. The study proposed that the Central Bureau of Statistics be allowed to use files without permission from Data Inspection, a government department that guards against abuse of computerized information.

The statistics bureau would be allowed to combine into the super databank the files of everyone from practically everywhere — including people's files from banks, hospitals, employers, the social welfare office and the tax collector, for example. By calling up a Person Number on a computer, the bureau would be able to find out details ranging from a Swede's illnesses and criminal record to his income and debts. The bureau insists it would do this only for "statistical research" and that people would not be identified by name. Critics, among them Data Inspection chief Jan Freese, contend that an integrated system could lead to an erosion of civil liberties.

"The files will collect more information on a person than he can remember himself," Freese commented. Sten Johansson, head of the Central Bureau of Statistics, defended the system as necessary "for democracy and public opinion." He said his files are intended strictly for scientific use. Police Superintendent Hans Wranghult has reported a rise in computer crime in Stockholm, but there has been no evidence of computer whizzes trying to tap into the statistics bureau's computers to see the files of individuals. Attorney-General Magnus Sjoberg, Sweden's chief prosecutor, has called for education for prosecutors to teach them how to handle such crimes because of the lack of a body of law about them. It technically is possible for people to withhold information from their Person Number file, but it would be disadvantageous. Failure to register a newborn child would mean that the child didn't exist as far as Sweden was concerned. He or she couldn't get into schools, would be outside the medical system or couldn't open a bank account, for example. In one recent case, a 10-year-old boy injured in a skiing accident was refused treatment at a hospital until his Person Number was produced. The basic Person Number contains figures representing date and place of birth, sex (even number for female, odd number for male) and one control digit that mathematically ensures that no two people have the same number. Swedes have been compiling numbers of this sort since the 1760s. They've even numbered their lakes: 50,000 lakes can be identified and located by a 12-digit number listed in a 300-page directory. One Stockholmer, however, carried his protest of Person Numbers to the grave. The epitaph on his tombstone in a local cemetery reads: "Neither name nor number the Lord will seek. 'When He gathers His faithful sheep.'"

Cite Needs For Port Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Atlantic coastal area must invest over $1.3 billion by 1990 to upgrade and expand port facilities to remain competitive in the world shipping market, according to the Associated General Contractors of America. The group says that with about 8 percent of the region's facilities rated in "poor" condition and another 27 percent rated "fair," the improvements and new terminals are needed to handle the region's share of a projected 32 percent increase in national shipping by 1990. It adds that surveys of the nation's shipping facilities indicate over $5 billion in construction will be needed by the end of the decade at nearly 200 deepwater ports.

Urging Laws Of Accountability

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty national groups ranging from the AFL-CIO to the Sierra Club are launching a nationwide campaign for more comprehensive laws on toxic wastes and accountability from lawmakers who ignore the issue. John T. O'Connor, coordinator of the campaign, said the organizations will circulate petitions calling for stronger federal laws against toxic wastes, including the right of citizens to know of toxic substances in the community, the right to participate in decisions about public exposure and the right of victims to compensation for harm to them from toxic substances. The petition drive is aimed at reaching 15 million homes by November.

Southern Nash Downs Rams

STANHOPE — Southern Nash pulled away from Greene Central in the final period and took a 68-56 Eastern Carolina Conference basketball victory last night, clinching no worse than a tie for the league title and insuring top seeding in the tournament next week.

The Firebirds are 9-2 on the season and can only be overhauled by the Rams, now 8-3, and since Southern won both of their meetings, they will take the top seed — and a first round bye — in next week's tournament at Farmville Central.

Meanwhile, Greene Central's girls, with a 47-30 win in their game, moved into a tie with SouthWest Edgecombe — an upset loser to North Pitt — and can clinch, or lose, the title Friday when the two meet on the Lady Cougar court.

The Rams, saddled by fouls early, fell behind in the opening period, 16-10, but rallied to close the gap to 32-30 at intermission. Theodore Edwards, the top scorer for the Rams, played only five minutes in the first half due to foul troubles.

In the third period, the Rams stayed within striking distance and trailed 45-42 going into the last period. Greene Central then scored the first two baskets to take a 46-45 lead with 5:30 left in the game.

But then Edwards, Anthony Thompson and Mike Fulton all fouled out of the game and the Rams lost their composure. "We had hit all of our free throws to that point but we missed on four one-and-ones after that," Coach Lewis Godwin said.

Southern regained the lead and forced the Rams to foul, cashing in at the stripe. "We missed some easy shots and didn't relax," Godwin added.

Boneree Johnson led the Greene Central scoring with 16 points, while Fulton hit 14. Edwards was held to only four points — the first time this season he's been out of double figures.

Lonnie Artis led Southern Nash with 20 points while Kevin Crudup had 16, and Terry Battle and Chris Hawkins each had 10.

Southern Nash is 15-6 overall and the Rams at 16-5.

In the girls' game, the Lady Rams inched into a 14-10 lead after one period and extended that to 28-18 at the half. The third period saw the Rams do the most damage, running off a 12-2 advantage for a 40-20 lead. Southern outthit Greene Central, 10-7, in the final period.

Antionette Wilkes and Cyndi Hicks each had 12 points to lead the Lady Rams, while no one scored in double figures for the Lady Birds.

The Lady Rams are now 10-1 in the conference and 17-4 overall. Southern is 3-8, 5-16.

Greene Central closes out the year

Baker's 21 Leads Roanoke

ROBERSONVILLE — Gary Baker fired in 21 points to lead Roanoke High School to a 53-40 thrashing of Roanoke Rapids Tuesday in Northeastern 3-A High School basketball action.

The Lady Redskins needed 18 points from Gloria Duggins and 14 by Cheryl Randolph as they trounced Roanoke Rapids 59-37 in the opener.

Roanoke trailed by a point at the end of the first quarter but outscored the visitors 16-9 in the second period to take a 24-18 lead at halftime. After a 10-10 scoring stalemate in the third period, the Redskins reeled off 21 points in the final quarter while holding Roanoke Rapids to 12 for the final margin.

The victory improves Roanoke's mark to 7-9 in the Northeastern Conference and 7-12 overall, while the Yellow Jackets slipped to 3-12 in the league and 3-15 overall.

James Duggins added 12 points for Roanoke, while Ed Tant paced the Jackets with 12 and Todd Arthur added 10.

In the girls game, Cheryl Randolph posted 14 points for Roanoke, while Talisha Walker led Roanoke Rapids with 11 points and Lisa Price added 10.
