Gemayel Adopting Saudis' Peace Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Amin Gemayel has accepted an eight-point Saudi Arabian plan for achieving a settlement in Lebanon that would include scrapping the Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement, U.S. officials said today.

But the officials appeared skeptical the plan will work.

"There are some things that pose potential problems," said one official, who insisted on anonymity. "Whether it comes to anything remains to be seen."

The official, who disclosed details of the plan, said it "was essentially a statement of principles, rather than a plan of action." He said it was one of "a number of initiatives in the works," and it was difficult to say if it had much chance of being accepted by all parties.

One of the difficulties, he said, is that all parts of the complex plan must be accepted by all parties to the conflict if the plan is to survive.

But Gemayel communicated his acceptance of the plan to the U.S. ambassador to Lebanon, Reginald Bartholomew, said the official. He said the Saudis were interceding with Syria to see if it will accept the plan.

A key feature of the plan is that

Gemayel would abrogate the May 17, 1983 Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement. It also calls for withdrawal of the multinational peacekeeping force from Lebanon and its replacement with a U.N. force.

Another feature is that Israel and Syria would simultaneously withdraw their forces over a period of 60 to 90 days.

Gemayel also would open negotiations with opposition factions to give them a greater say in the government.

The plan would also offer assurances to Israel that guerrilla activity will not be permitted to resume in southern Lebanon. This is designed to replace the security features of the May 17 withdrawal accord which Israel has warned must not be abrogated.

Militia Seize 2 Strongholds

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Anti-government militiamen captured two Christian strongholds on the coastal highway south of Beirut today, broadening an offensive that has shattered the Lebanese army and threatens to topple President Amin Gemayel.

In Washington, U.S. officials said today Gemayel has accepted an eight-point Saudi plan calling for a pullout of all foreign troops from Lebanon and canceling the May 17, 1983, Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement.

The officials, who insisted on anonymity, appeared skeptical about the plan's success. One official said it "was essentially a statement of principles, rather than a plan of action," noting it would have to be approved by Syria and its allies in Lebanon.

Police said army troops fought off overnight attacks by Druse insurgents on the key hilltop town of Souk el-Gharb, which overlooks the U.S. Marine base at Beirut's airport and is the last position Gemayel's army holds in the central mountains near Beirut.

Druse communiques referred to the action as "routine exchanges of artillery and small arms fire," suggesting there was no full-scale attack on the town.

Druse and Shiite Moslem militiamen have advanced about 14 miles on the southern highway from Beirut. They took the Christian coastal town of Damour and the neighboring hilltop Mishref barracks of the rightist Christian Lebanese Forces militia at about 2 a.m. today, communiques from both sides said.

The Marine base was not affected by today's fighting. Preparations continued for the eventual pullout of the 1,200 Americans based there.

"There was silence overnight," said U.S. Army Maj. Don McClary. "No U.S. ships fired and there were no U.S. planes on military reconnaissance flights."

However, a Beirut radio report monitored later in Jordan said two U.S. warplanes flew over the Beirut area shortly before noon.

Bulldozers at the Marine base were destroying bunkers and filling them with dirt as Navy construction workers loaded supplies onto landing craft that took them to ships offshore in preparation for a final pullout of the American force.

Anti-government militiamen kept their distance from the base and its landing craft strip on the beach just south of the airport as the work progressed.

The Phalange Party, founded and headed by the president's father, Pierre Gemayel, conceded the loss of Mishref — the largest Christian garrison between Beirut and Israel's Awali River defense line in southern Lebanon.

Both sides said Mishref fell without resistance.

The retreat left Christian troops of the Army's 4th Brigade and their Phalangist allies holding only a six-mile strip of the coastal highway between the town of Saadiyat and a checkpoint just north of the Israeli defense line.

Israeli Army Radio, based in Tel Aviv, said Gemayel's palace in the eastern suburb of Baabda was shelled overnight, but there were no reports of damages.

Greenville To Get

A Ronald McDonald House

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville will become the site of a new Ronald McDonald House — a home away-from-home for the families of children in eastern North Carolina undergoing treatment at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

ECU and McDonald's Corp. officials announced plans for the home this morning.

Bill Freelove, owner and operator of the local McDonald's, said the 200 McDonald's stores in North Carolina will contribute $200,000 or more toward construction of the facility.

Robert Adams, director of development and alumni affairs for the ECU medical school, said design of the local Ronald McDonald House will begin shortly. He said the facility, which will include about 15 family rooms, is expected to cost about $500,000. He said a drive to raise funds for construction and operation of the house will begin about April 1.

Dr. Tate Holbrook, pediatric cancer specialist at the medical school, said the house will be built on a two-acre tract of Pitt County-owned land behind Greenville Villa Nursing Home, across Moye Boulevard from the hospital-medical school complex.

Holbrook said the Board of County Commissioners has agreed to lease the land to Children's Services of Eastern Carolina, the non-profit group which will build and operate the Ronald McDonald House.

Mary Ann Harris, president of Children's Services of Eastern Carolina, said the facility will give parents of children being treated at the medical center "a warmth of caring and concern you can't get at a motel." She added, "I plan to work as hard as I can to see this Ronald McDonald House established."

Holbrook, who said the hospital's neonatal unit, new pediatric ward and pediatric intensive care unit are bringing more and more critically ill children and their families to Greenville, said the facility will help provide emotional support for the children and family members.

"This house will be built by those who care in eastern North Carolina," Holbrook said.

There are more than 50 Ronald McDonald Houses worldwide. The first Ronald McDonald House was established in Philadelphia in 1974. The only Ronald McDonald House in operation in North Carolina was opened in Durham in 1980, although other houses are under development in Chapel Hill and Winston-Salem.

Ronald McDonald Houses provide inexpensive, temporary lodging for parents who have to travel long distances to have their hospitalized children and for children receiving outpatient therapy. The houses are a place where families can eat, sleep, relax and draw emotional support from each other.

The Greenville house will be managed by a full-time live-in manager, under the direction of Children's Services of Eastern Carolina, whose board of directors will be made up by equal numbers of parents, medical center representatives, and McDonald's officials.

Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chairman of the medical school's department of pediatrics, said "the volunteer is what is going to make this whole system function," and called the establishment of the house here "a great day for children."

Bruce Wunner, vice president and regional manager for McDonald's Corp., said the Greenville house should be in operation "in 18 months or sooner."

Others taking part in the announcement program included Dr. William Laupus, vice chancellor and dean of the medical school, PCMH Director Jack Richardson, Greenville City Manager Gail Meeks, and Robert L. Martin, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Pitt United Way Contributions Rose

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County United Way had a 25.5 percent increase in contributions in 1983, helping North Carolina lead the nation in United Way giving, according to Bob Griffin, general chairman of the 1983 campaign.

Griffin made his remarks Wednesday at the Pitt County United Way report meeting and luncheon at the Greenville County Club.

The goal for the county's United Way campaign last year was $585,080, but $646,790 was raised for the various United Way programs in the county, according to President Reid Hooper. Money was allocated to such organizations as the American Red Cross, Boys Club of Pitt County, Girl Scout Council, Salvation Army and the Mental Health Association, in addition to the two new services, Home Delivered Meals for the Elderly and Hospice of East Carolina.

"I really feel good about where we are today," said John Williams, incoming president of the Pitt County United Way. "We are financially sound. We have been adding new agencies. We have the best leadership in the county."

"We have reached tens of thousands in our community because of the job done. I hope we can continue the precedent of those who went before us," Williams said.

Employees from local business and industry contributed to the campaign and were recognized at the meeting with award plaques. Burroughs Wellcome had the largest total contribution to the 1983 campaign, $115,703; and Procter and Gamble had the largest per employee contribution at $131 per employee.

Empire Brushes received the Chairman's Award for its first major employee campaign which totaled $14,632, a 650 percent increase over what Empire Brushes donated in 1982.

Larry Mallard will serve as this year's general chairman of the campaign, with Andy Warren as assistant chairman.

Officers for 1984 were approved: Williams, president; Frank Grooms, first vice president; Jack W. Richardson, second vice president; Don

New Hairstyles Are Simple And Versatile

CHICAGO (AP) — Hairstyles that work — for the woman and her lifestyle — will take a prominent fashion role this spring and summer, industry experts predict.

Hair silhouettes will be simple and narrow, and the blunt-cut, one-length bob will be a favorite among women of all ages, according to the Helene Curtis Hairstylists Advisory Board, a group of recognized professionals from around the country.

Perms are expected to provide the foundations for many of these styles. "Bobs will be everywhere this spring, but there are so many possible variations that few women will look alike," comments board member Victor Figueroa of New York City. "My clients like the versatility of the bob, but want to personalize their hair fashion statement. To some this means soft, spiky bangs, to others, an asymmetrical design."

Michael Marks, Elkins Park, Pa., agrees that "simplicity and efficiency in design are key to a workable hairstyle that's fashionable as well. Today's woman doesn't have the time to fuss with a lot of unruly hair. She wants something that's fast, manageable and very versatile. I call it 'reality fashion.'"

"Versatility will come in many ways: partial perms in areas where volume and support are needed will be popular; evening styles will be created instantly with a dab of styling mousse to control and slick one side behind the ears; a comb, barrette or bright jewel can be placed in the crest of a wave for accent; slightly messy strands of hair that fall out of the sleek silhouette of the bob will create a natural, casual wind-blown feeling."

While the bob will be the biggest hit of the season, Rocco Altobelli of Minneapolis-St. Paul sees other looks emerging on the fashion scene.

"Very short spiky curls, a toned-down version of the punk look from past seasons, the sensuous 'Marilyn Monroe' fluff-cut and even a super-short 'I' cut for the very young and daring will make a fashion statement nationwide," he predicts.

Rosalie Cantrell of Seattle also thinks "many women are ready to experiment with their hair. Asymmetrical looks, combining several shapes in one haircut, will be quite right for the stylish woman. The side lengths can be longer or shorter depending on how dramatic an effect is desired."

While women are looking for more dramatic looks in their hairstyles, men, who patronize beauty salons in ever-increasing numbers, favor a more conservative look. Mario Tricoci of Oak Brook, Ill., finds that his male clientele "want to look very corporate, but are willing to have a perm, or add subtle color changes as long as it looks natural."

And although many of the spring hair fashion looks are smoother than in past seasons, the perm remains one of the most popular services in the salon.

"I'm perming even the smoothest of bob looks," comments Douglas Marvaldi, Winter Park, Fla.

"My clients who had the wild and frizzy perms of the late '70s have come to depend on the support and fullness only a perm can give. But now they add one more quick step, using a hot styling brush, curling iron or electric rollers to smooth the curl while leaving the volume."

Receives Citation For Disturbing The Peace

DEAR ABBY: I tried a suggestion someone sent in to solve the problem of a neighbor's dog who barked continuously. I am a night nurse who had been bothered by the yapping of the neighbor's dog while the owners were at work all day. I made a tape recording of the barking dog, then played it under the dog owners' window while they were trying to sleep.

The policeman who came to my door told me that my actions were in violation of the law more so than the dog's because I had intelligence and knew that my actions were wrong; the dog did not. Then he gave me a citation for disturbing the peace. Thanks for nothing.

DEAR ABBY: I am so glad I can write this because I certainly wouldn't be able to talk to anyone about it. I am 38 and had five babies in five years. The youngest is 8 months old. My husband and I have always had a wonderful sex life. My problem is I don't feel anything anymore.

I enjoy the intimacy and affection of just holding each other before and after, but as far as the actual act is concerned, I feel nothing. No excitement, no climax — nothing!

It's not my husband. He's as good as ever. I have never told him; he's

Bob Winderlin Gives program

Bob Winderlin presented the program at the meeting of the AARP-NRTA. He showed slides and told of the River Park North and Environmental Awareness Center.

The center is an experimental learning center that will develop outdoor educational programs and experiences for Pitt County and Greenville students, teachers and the public. The area has four ponds, Tar River, wildlife, nature trails, picnic areas and a building. Displays of insects, fish, game and other articles common to this area are housed in the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harkins, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Barnes, Estella Rothfeder, Mary Smith and Ann Swartz were welcomed by Polly Dail, president.

Lee Williams, legislative chairman, reminded members to be aware of social security and medicare legislation and PAC. Mary Robinette is chairman of community service and the Rev. Henry Loquist is chairman of public relations committee.

The March 12 AARP-NRTA meeting will be held at Western Sizzlin' on 10th Street starting at 11:45 p.m.

Valentine Dance Is Announced

Women of the Moose Chapter 1308 held its hospital chapter night meeting. A Valentine dance will be held at the Moose Lodge Feb. 18.

Co-workers will be attending a chapter rally day in Elizabeth City March 4 and the local chapter will participate in the balloting ritual. Hazel Barnes will be receiving her red stole.

An executive meeting will be held in Kinston March 25.

such a dear sweet man, it would hurt him if he thought he wasn't satisfying me. What is wrong with me?

I suppose I should talk to my doctor about this, but if I can't even talk to my husband, how can I talk to my doctor? I went once, but when I got into his office I told him I just wanted my blood pressure checked. What should I do?

EMBARRASSED IN ALBANY, N.Y.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Doctors are trained to put the embarrassed patient at ease. But if you can't talk to your doctor, talk to his nurse, and ask her to tell him.

My medical expert says that having had five babies in five years may have caused a temporary absence of sensitivity that will return in time, but the probability of a psychological involvement, which is treatable, is great. So don't accept this condition as permanent and hopeless. An honest dialogue with your husband as well as professionals is imperative, but start with your physician.

DEAR ABBY: I am 49 and "Harry" is 50. Harry's wife ("Sylvia") died two years ago. My husband has been dead a year. While our spouses were living we were a friendly foursome. As fate would have it, after I became a widow, Harry and I fell in love and now plan to marry. I'm selling my condo and will move into Harry's lovely home.

There is a problem that must be faced, but it hasn't even been mentioned. When Harry married Sylvia, her mother, "Mrs. B.," who was then a young widow, moved in with Sylvia and Harry and has lived there ever since. Mrs. B. practically raised Sylvia's two daughters, who are now married. She's a lovely woman and I have nothing against her, but now that I am marrying Harry, I don't think she should live with us, do you? She's 70, not hurting financially, and she's in good health. Harry has not brought up the subject, and I don't think it's my place to bring it up. How should this be handled?

TOUCHY SUBJECT

DEAR TOUCHY: I understand your feelings and agree it's inappropriate for Mrs. B. to live with you and Harry. Since Harry has not mentioned the subject to you, I think you should mention it to him.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

There used to be joke about laugh tracks that some of them were so old that all the people laughing on them were dead. I forgave them for dying, but I could never forgive them for laughing themselves into a hernia when Laverne rubbed cooking oil all over Shirley's body. That should have been in their contract.

Thanks to the magic of films, I don't think anyone in Hollywood dies anymore. They just go into reruns and live forever. With the demands of the three networks, independent affiliates, PBS and all the cable programming, there are at least 135 movies starting in this country every 15 seconds.

I'm talking old movies. I saw Tarzan the other night in a movie so old he thought because a papaya was soft, it was a girl. Another night, I watched a silent film in which Dorothy Gish was wearing the same dress I bought last week. I saw a Western so old no one even bothered to notice that the Indians had vaccinations and capped teeth and the women settlers wore living bras that lifted and separated.

The point is all these movies are having an effect on our lifestyle. I have no taste. I watch anything that moves. Recently, when I went on book tour, I got up one morning to watch Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery. I promised myself when it was over, I'd take my shower and put on my face in preparation for an appearance on the Donahue show.

I was about to leave the room when Eleanor Parker, Patricia Neal and some other woman appeared in a movie where all three of them had given up a baby for adoption and a child having the same birthdate was in a plane crash and the adoptive parents were killed. The three mothers went to the bottom of the mountain to wait out the rescue of the child, not knowing which one was the natural mother.

Wt would you have done? Been on time for the Donahue show or seen which mother had actily given birth to the child?

On New Year's Eve, I said to my husband, "We've got to get away from this TV set and all of these movies. We're living in a tinsel world that is unreal. Life is not like a movie set and endings aren't always happy with the music coming up. The real world is out there!" (I pointed to the door.)

We went to a New Year's Eve party and they had rented a movie for the evening.

Getting hooked on all these movies is a national -roblem. Phil rliized that when I a-ologized to him. He's u- on those sort of things.

Jury Selection Takes Too Long

RALEIGH — Anyone who has ever sat in a courtroom waiting for a trial to begin knows the frustration some judges feel about jury selection. Picking a jury can sometimes take as long as trying a case. Sometimes it takes longer.

"The present system has been and continues to be abused," says former N.C. Supreme Court Justice David Britt of Robeson County. "Look at the drug case we had in Goldsboro several years back. If I remember correctly, it took several months to pick the jury and it cost the state thousands of dollars in indigent defense fees."

The question of jury selection arose during a meeting of the N.C. Courts Commission in the Legislative Building. A representative of the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers told the commission that it is very important that defense lawyers be allowed to continue to question potential jurors in state courts. On the other hand, several commission members said the state courts might be better served if the judges did the questioning.

In the federal courts, and in many states, judges do the questioning. Sometimes, they allow defense attorneys to submit questions they'd like asked. Jury selection moves much more quickly.

In state courts, Britt said the questioning drags on for an unacceptable length of time. Partly it's the fault of young lawyers "who don't know what questions to ask." Partly it's the fault of lawyers being overly careful in multidisciplinary cases. Everything bogs down when jurors are asked the same questions repeatedly. The first defense lawyer asks a proper question and the second, third and fourth lawyers feel they have to ask the same question of the same juror. Some judges, Britt said, take control of these situations and tell lawyers they can't repeat questions. Others don't, he said.

The biggest abuse of jury selection occurs, however, when lawyers try to influence jurors before they even hear the evidence. Jim Nelson of Wilmington, president of the academy and an advocate of keeping the system as it is, called this "beginning the final argument as jury selection is taking place."

The abuse works this way. The lawyer states a hypothetical situation to the prospective juror. The hypothetical is similar to the facts of the case, but it's loaded with the defense lawyer's interpretation of those facts. "They're trying to stake the juror out on that question," Britt said.

Nelson argues that defense lawyers should retain the right to question jurors. "It would be quicker, more efficient, to have the judge pick the juries," Nelson said. "But, if the judge is doing the picking, his primary consideration will be with those who want to get off jury duty and why. As a defense lawyer, my primary concern is with people who want to stay on my jury." Nelson says that the "ultimate responsibility at the trial level as to whether or not a defendant has an effective defense rests with the trial lawyer." To properly fulfill that responsibility, he argues, the defense lawyer must be able to closely examine potential jurors for bias.

If questioning is repetitive, sloppy or argumentative, then the judge can act. There's no need to throw away the current system. Some in-court fine tuning will be sufficient, he argued.

He said that judges often need the time spent on jury questioning to do their own research. When they come to town, they're not familiar with a case to be tried. While jurors are questioned, they read the case file.

No specific piece of jury questioning legislation has been proposed. But the commission's request that Nelson address the issue is an indication that there's some sentiment for change.

The trouble with fighting guerrillas (as we learned in Vietnam, and observed in Central America) is that they hide behind and among civilians.

So, on reading of the battleship USS New Jersey shelling areas used by Syrian-backed Lebanese factions, the natural reaction is one of repugnance.

We get the word that "many civilians" were killed and injured by those 16-inch shells; and no information as to casualties inflicted on the armed forces ... nor were reporters given an opportunity for evaluation. (They were allowed on the scene almost a week after the fact.)

The reporters' cameras and interviews portrayed only what the guerrilla leadership wanted Americans to see and hear.

This is "dirty fighting," not at all the kind in which one army battles another army and civilians are not cluttering the landscape.

Our dismay is presumably shared by many; and, all things considered, is going to be a part of modern warfare well into the foreseeable future.

It is not the kind of combat our servicemen were trained to endure; nor is the American public, innured to the prospect of having their sons, brothers and husbands "wasting" women, children and the elderly.

War has always been a poor way of doing business, but instead of getting any better it just gets worse.

Diploma Essential

During the post World War II era the college diploma, and even advanced degrees, has come to be prized as a way to advance and develop in life.

The mania for college often overshadowed the fact that many adults still do not have a high school diploma.

Fortunately there are programs under which adults can correct this deficiency. Pitt Community College, Pitt County schools and Greenville city schools have formalized an adult high school diploma program which will emphasize academics.

Officials say the program will not replace the Graduate Equivalency Program. Instead, it will be more academic than the GED and will fit requirements for armed forces enlistment.

Completion of the program will mean a diploma will be awarded by Pitt County/Greenville schools.

A high school diploma is virtually essential in today's complex world and this new program seems an ideal way for adults to obtain one.

Hopeful Prospect

WASHINGTON — A hopeful prospect is developing in Congress for divorced women whose ex-husbands are failing to meet their obligations for child support. It will take a while, but legislation is on the way that will make the deadbeat daddies pay up.

President Reagan asked for such legislation a year ago. A bipartisan coalition developed in the House, where half a dozen bills were combined into a single hard-hitting measure. On Nov. 16 the House voted 422-0 in favor of the "Child Support Amendments of 1983." Now an identical bill has been introduced by 10 members of the Senate — five Democrats, five Republicans — early passage seems assured.

The problem attacked by the bill is rooted in the bitterness and unhappiness of divorce. The Census Bureau has estimated that 8.4 million women, either divorced or legally separated, are living with children under the age of 21. In about 60 percent of the cases, a court awards child support, but testimony before a House committee indicated that such "awards" often are hollow victories.

Twenty-eight percent of the mothers receive no payments at all, and another 23 percent get only partial payments. The situation is remarkably better among poor families: Sixty percent of the women whose incomes are below the poverty level get something from the fathers of their children. The worst deadbeats are divorced fathers in middle and upper income brackets.

The House bill would expand the child support enforcement program adopted in 1975. That program dealt only with women receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). The pending legislation would benefit not only women on AFDC but all single parents who are entitled to child support payments. It's a bareknuckled bill.

As a condition of receiving federal welfare funds, every state would be required to enact implementing legislation of its own.

To be sure, in an estimated 5 or 10 percent of the cases, it is Joe who has custody of the children and a working Susan who owes child support. It should be emphasized also, in fairness to the fathers, that the pending bill assures them a right to be heard before any wages are withheld or liens attached or bonds posted. In any event, under the earliest schedule, the legislation could not take effect before 1986.

The problem will get worse before it gets better. During House debate, Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., sketched the sad picture. Every year the parents of 1.2 million children are divorced. Every year 700,000 children are born out of wedlock.

"HELLO, ASSAD?!... THE GOOD NEWS IS THE MARINES ARE PULLING OUT!... THE BAD NEWS..."

—Rowland Evans and Robert Novak—

Misreading The Signs

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's decision to pull the Marines out of Beirut resulted less from 1984 election year fears than his worry that Secretary of State George Shultz's failed Lebanon policy threatened new and worse disasters for the United States.

Even so, if Shultz himself had been in Washington when the withdrawal decision was reached, he might have blocked it. "There would have been at the very least a lot more acrimony," a key Reagan Mideast adviser told us, "and perhaps another costly delay."

Shultz's blind clinging to a diseased policy that had long since become terminal now hands Syria the juicy key role that the U.S. might have played in building a new Lebanon.

Given Reagan's notorious patience with wayward advisers, and his known aversion to hiring a third secretary of state in three years, he will retain Shultz. But although the withdrawal decision shifts Reagan away from new disasters, there is no way to nullify grave harm done to his foreign policy, his credibility and his country's standing in the world by Shultz's blindness.

One measure of that harm was a secret meeting Feb. 6 between Saudi Arabian King Fahd and French President Francois Mitterrand in the Elysee Palace. The Saudi monarch was a key but unsuccessful intermediary between the U.S. and Syrian President Hafez Assad during the long effort by pro-American Arabs to get Shultz to deal with Syria's concern over U.S.-Israeli pressures on Lebanon.

Fahd flew to Paris for a single purpose: to convince Mitterrand that if America's European allies failed to persuade the U.S. to play an even-handed role between Israel and the Arabs, Western influence in the Arab world was doomed to be overshadowed sooner or later by the Soviet Union.

King Hussein of Jordan, in Washington this week to see Reagan, has expressed similar worries privately to American officials.

For Shultz the tragedy of failure is deep and personal. The collapse of Gemayel's government was indirectly caused by his addiction to the one-sided May 17 agreement. Yet, with the exception of a few pro-Israeli Foggy Bottom fantasizers, it was universally perceived as the wrecking of Shultz's hopes for a new U.S.-backed, Israeli-sponsored Lebanese regime.

The collapse of Gemayel's government has now imposed a death sentence on the May 17 agreement.

As leader of the Western alliance, the U.S. is uniquely immune to pressures from its partners. The debacle of Lebanon may make it less so.

Strangely, the perception of American influence declining in the ashes of Lebanon is better understood in the Pentagon and the cloak-and-dagger bridages of the CIA than in Shultz's State Department.

Romance Has Its Problems

WASHINGTON — Is romance healthy in America?

You can bet it is, judging from the lucrative week the confectionary, flower and greeting card industries have just had. On Valentine's Day 1984, consumers bought about $102 million worth of flowers (3 percent of annual floral sales), $385 million worth of candy (it's the industry's largest sales day of the year) and 300 million greeting cards.

Yet behind the commercial aspects of affection is a more intricate story of ongoing changes in love and relationships. While marriages are increasing and divorces are decreasing for the first time in years, romance itself may not have recovered from the tumbles it's taken in the past decade. Romance may seem alive and well on Valentine's 1984, but some of its more studious observers voice caution about its prognosis.

In the interest of the season, and since our expertise on the subject is lacking, we asked some authorities on romance — sorry, but they're not names from the pages of People magazine — to present their opinions on the state of courtship 1984. Herewith their mixture of offerings:

Lorna Sarrel, director of the human sexuality program at Yale University: "My sense is that, in comparing the 1950s to the 1980s, coeducation has been helpful in breaking down the misunderstanding and mystique that existed before. So today there's the potential for more intelligent, real kinds of relationship between men and women."

Edward Brecher, author of several books on sexuality: "I'm very optimistic about love and romance. The iron-bound corset of Victorian nonsense no longer inhibits couples and marriage and affairs and all relations between men and women were like a military drill in which you did what the sergeant — often the priest, rabbi and minister — told you to do. Today it's like a free-flow dance, as it should be."

Dr. Shirley Zussman, sex therapist and past president of the American Association of Sex Educators, Counselors and Therapists: "The sexual freedom that was so hailed by a generation ago is now being reevaluated. Now many of that generation's members are questioning the value and meaning of the sexual freedom that permitted them to go to bed with a casual partner. I think such people are seeking more commitment and more of a relationship that has some degree of caring. It's a period of introspection for them."

"These people are working harder, and have more doubts and uncertainties about the future. They want someone to care about. And many of them are thinking that they are not going to find it, so they are more anxious about what kind of future they're going to have. They are no longer 20 and they are wondering if they are going to be along for the rest of their lives."

George Leonard, author of "The End of Sex": "The whole idea of recreational sex is not no celebrated as it was two years ago. There is more celebration of romantic love."

AIDS and herpes have made us all take a second look at the joys of unbridled, joyous sex. People are interested in intimacy, romance and commitment."

Dr. Leah Schaefer, author and therapist: "I think there's been a kind of leveling of sexual behavior and people are becoming much more concerned with love and romance than they ever were. As the world becomes more mechanical with computers and more frightening because of the arms race, it causes people to feel the need for personal and intimate relationships to a much greater degree. The horror that we face in the world forces us to find warmth and intimacy in our relationships."

Professor John Gagnon, author and sociologist: "I think it would be more reasonable if people were slightly less interested in love and romance in general. My sense is that a fairly large number of long-term intimate relationships are developed based on people not thinking enough of what their individual needs are."

Dr. Michael Quadland, sex therapist, Greenwich Village, N.Y.: "The gay community is in mourning this Valentine's Day, having lost 1,300 members to AIDS. People are depressed. People are not only mourning the loss of lives, but a sexual lifestyle that they enjoyed for a long time. They are also mourning the loss of good will of the heterosexual community which once again sees them as a threat because of the AIDS epidemic."

To the editor:

To make your children strong, may I suggest these six gifts:

1. Self-confidence — Don't expect too much too soon. Teach them through their experiences to be problem solvers.

2. Enthusiasm — Emerson said, "Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm."

3. Compassion (warmth, appreciation).

4. Respect (esteem, admiration, consideration) — This is a word that has almost gone out of fashion, but I think we need to bring it back. Certain values are worthy of esteem and need to be preserved. Fair play is an elementary form of respect. Live by standards.

5. Resilience — The ability to cope with change is certain to be a crucial requirement in the years ahead. Love is the greatest shock absorber of all.

6. Hope — To bring up hopeful children, a parent needs to be hopeful himself. Pessimism, fear, and gloom are highly contagious. If children are taught when there is failure there is always a next time, that when hard times come they can build character and endurance, this attitude in itself will make uncertainties seem less frightening and crises less critical.

To me the greatest of all hope builders and hope sustainers is a strong religious faith. If a person firmly believes that there is a loving God who cares about people and stands ready to support and help them, such a person has a source of strength that will never leave him. "Trust God and live one day at a time." Long ago, my husband and I decided that these were the nine words we would live by and try to pass along to our children. I commend them to any parent striving to prepare their own children for the challenges that lie ahead.

Strength For Today

It is always hard for us to learn the great lesson that trouble, disappointment and contradiction often come to us carrying blessings in their wake.

Unfortunately, we can be conscious of nothing but the pain. But often great benefits accrue to our lives as the result of distressing experiences through which we have to pass.

In the Bible, the presence of God is often represented by a cloud. For example, it was out of the clouds that God spoke to the Israelites at Mount Sinai. At the time of Jesus' baptism the voice came out of a cloud declaring him to be the Son of God.

The next time we are overwhelmed by trouble, let us remember that God often speaks to us out of the clouds. Translated into everyday language, this means that if we will only listen, we will hear something through some of life's most distressing experiences the loving voice of God guiding, consoling, encouraging and teaching us.

Stabilization Now 'Glutted' With Stored Tobacco

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Tobacco imports jump. Per-capita cigarette consumption falls. U.S. senators attack the federal tobacco price support program as a subsidy for cancer. Some analysts say the program may collapse. But Fred G. Bond is not unduly alarmed.
Bond is general manager of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. The farmer-owned cooperative, based in Raleigh, runs the program and buys tobacco that fails to bring a penny above the federal support price.
Stabilization has had trouble reselling the stored tobacco to pay off the federal loans that fund the program. Stores of tobacco have grown to 761 million pounds — more than half from the 1982 and 1983 crops.
Bond's seen worse. In 1965, for example, the cooperative's tobacco inventory reached 958 million pounds. In the mid-1970s, it got as low as 100 million pounds.

"Right now, the inventory is higher than we'd like," he said. "Our objective this year is to reduce that trend by making price adjustments in the old crop."
On Jan. 16, Stabilization reduced by as much as 30 percent the cost of tobacco stored since 1976 and 1977. Bond said it's too early to tell whether the discount will generate more sales and reduce stocks.
Before 1982, inventories generally were declining. They were 492 million pounds at the end of the 1981 season. But in 1982, weak demand forced Stabilization to take a record 24 percent of the crop, and the cooperative took 18 percent of the 1983 crop. By comparison, Stabilization took about 9 percent of the 1981 crop, 12 percent of the 1980 crop and 7 percent of the 1979 crop.
Bond said the problem may ease because the 1984 quota is 11.5 percent less than last year's.
"If market conditions remain the same, we should handle less tobacco this year than in 1983," he said.
In addition, the federal support price was frozen last year at the 1982 average level of $169.90 per hundred pounds, making U.S. tobacco more likely to sell against foreign tobacco. But this turned out to be a "Catch-22" as far as Stabilization was concerned, said Bond.
"The freeze should have a positive effect in the marketplace," he said. "But from our standpoint, our old tobacco stays at the same price. That means in order to make it competitive, we have to...bring the price down."
Stabilization is able to offer tobacco companies discounts on stored tobacco because it can pay off the federal loan through funds collected from farmers through the "no net cost" provision. The assessment amounts to 7 cents per pound.
When Congress froze the price support level, it said the 1986 support price would be set by the usual formula involving production costs. Bond said he expected that price to be $174-$176 per hundred pounds.
Last year, Stabilization sold 81 million pounds of its stored tobacco. Sales could improve when the cooperative starts direct sales to foreign buyers, Bond said.
Before 1982, Stabilization could sell only to domestic buyers and tobacco exporters. Exporters sued to block direct foreign sales by the cooperative, but a federal judge gave the go-ahead. The exporters appealed to the 4th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, but meanwhile Stabilization plans to begin the sales.
The buildup problem also has been eased by the elimination of the carryover program, Bond said. Under that program Stabilization would take tobacco from a farmer even if he exceeded his quota by more than 10 percent. Some farmers abused the program by overplanting and assuming they would be paid for their excess tobacco, said Bond.
Now, if a farmer produces 110 percent of his quota, he is allowed only 90 percent the next year, he said.

Steamer Attacked

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Bandits fired on a Nile River passenger steamer towing four barges, injuring 15 passengers and setting a shipment of petroleum products ablaze, the newspaper Al Ayam reported today.
The government-owned newspaper said the petroleum products were aboard the barges and indicated the fire did not spread to the steamer, which was carrying 180 passengers.
Earlier, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported it had received conflicting reports of the incident on Monday. One account said hundreds of people might have been killed. The other said no one died.
The Sudan News Agency, quoting a government official, said the steamer escaped "catastrophe" when a barge caught fire and was quickly disconnected from the steamer without causing any casualties.
Al Ayam said the attack occurred near Waskeig, about 70 miles south of Malakal, provincial capital of the Upper Nile region.
It said guards aboard the steamer exchanged fire with the attackers, forcing them to flee. It did not identify the attackers beyond describing them as bandits.
The newspaper said the wounded passengers, mostly southern Sudanese, were flown to Malakal for medical treatment.
After the barge fire was extinguished, the newspaper said, the steamer passengers resumed its voyage southward and arrived at the town of Adok early Wednesday.
The BBC said a London telephone caller on Wednesday said a group calling itself the Sudan People's Liberation Army attacked the vessel because it was carrying military personnel.

Farm Talk By Jordan

Robert Jordan III, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said today that he is "optimistic" for the small farmer in 1984 even though "we see water standing in the fields."

Jordan, a state senator from Montgomery County, spoke at Fenner Allen's farm near Winterville, where he presented his statement on farm policies.

"The farmer is so dependent on weather right now ... you just don't know what's going to happen. But the (tobacco) market itself should have a good year," he said.

Jordan also said he is interested in supporting the biotechnology programs in the state.

"When we look at genetic engineering and tissue culture and things like that, we see some real exciting things that may happen — maybe get some substitute crops ...," Jordan commented.

He expressed confidence that the Blue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. will continue to operate.

"I think the tobacco program can be kept in place as well as the Stabilization program. They used to say the cotton program was going out the window. Well, after 20 years there's still a cotton program," he said.

Army Reviews Its Drug Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is reviewing 100,000 urinalysis specimens which resulted in discipline of soldiers for drug abuse and will clear their records if the troops were improperly punished, an Army spokesman says.

Lt. Col. Michael Clarke, the spokesman, said it is impossible to say how many soldiers and ex-soldiers are involved because some were tested more than once on a random basis.

Clarke said the 100,000 "positive" specimens came out of about 1 million samples taken during an 18-month period.

The question in each case will be whether the results met "current legal or scientific standards," he said.

Suspect Thefts By Mail Handler

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — More than 100,000 letters addressed to evangelist Oral Roberts never got to him, and a post office worker is suspected of pocketing at least $250,000 in cash donations many of the letters contained, authorities say.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ben Baker said Wednesday the employee in downtown Tulsa allegedly stashed thousands of envelopes in a commercial mini-storage unit starting in late 1982.

He was being questioned Wednesday but had not been charged.

Baker said a "fluke discovery" led investigators to the storage unit. An employee of a storage business reported to police over the weekend that locks on several units had been broken.

As police arrived, a woman found a letter addressed to Roberts outside one of the units. When she opened the door, she discovered postal trays containing 69,600 pieces of mail, Baker said.

Added Charges Against 2 Men

Additional charges have been levied against two men who were arrested for the armed robbery Saturday at J.T. Nichols grocery store on Stantonsburg Road, according to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said Ronnie Sloan of 217 T Street Northeast, Washington, D.C., and Linwood B. Murchison of Route 1, Greenville, have been charged on four counts each of armed robbery with a dangerous weapon in connection with thefts from four people in the store.

Tyson, noting that Sloan and Murchison were charged initially with robbery involving the store's cash register, said the pocketbook of store attendant Dianne Moots and the wallets of customers Frank Moots, Sam Harris and Bill Goins were also taken in the incident. Cash totaling approximately $135 as well as credit cards, papers and other valuables were taken from the victims, he said.

Tyson said a small amount of money and also checks and food stamps were removed from the cash register during the early evening robbery.

The men were placed under $50,000 bond each, Tyson said.

Steel Industry's Merger Plans Jeopardized

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The steel industry's successful campaign to win quotas and restraints on foreign imports played a key role in the government's decision to block a major domestic steel merger and may jeopardize the prospects for another.

"They can't have it both ways. They can't have both protectionism in the U.S. market and then expect to be judged on merger questions as if they operated in a free world market," said William F. Baxter, a Stanford University law professor who until two months ago served as the Reagan administration's antitrust chief.

As head of the Justice Department's antitrust division, Baxter wrote the new merger guidelines under which his successor, Assistant Attorney General J. Paul McGrath, moved Wednesday to block the proposed $770 million merger between LTV Corp. and Republic Steel Corp. The deal would have produced the nation's second largest steelmaker. U.S. Steel is the largest.

GAO Says VA Billing Too Few

WASHINGTON (AP) — Patients at Veterans Administration hospitals often are not billed enough to cover the costs of treatment, the General Accounting Office says.

The GAO, an auditing arm of Congress, said the VA could have increased its billings by $10 million if GAO's recommendations had been put in effect during fiscal 1982, the year GAO studied.

McGrath explained that foreign competition could not be used to justify the deal, particularly because there are a variety of import quota and voluntary restraints on steel imports from Europe and Japan — restraints which the U.S. steel industry itself campaigned for.

He said if the merger were approved and U.S. steelmakers used the resulting increased concentration of ownership here to collude on a steel price increase, these restraints would prevent foreign steelmakers from sending in enough low-cost steel to drive the prices back to fair market values.

McGrath's explanation also cast considerable doubt on whether he will approve the proposed $575 million merger between U.S. Steel and National Steel, the nation's seventh largest producer. Although he said he had not decided yet, he said the same factors would be involved and "to the extent that this (decision) might give some learning as to other mergers, so be it."

Based on what he had heard of McGrath's decision, Baxter said in an interview, "It seems sensible to me, and the considerations to which he referred are all considerations that were worrying me" in his early analysis of the deal before he left the government.

In a joint statement, LTV, which owns the nation's No. 3 steel producer Jones & Laughlin, and Republic, the nation's No. 4 steelmaker, said they were "surprised and deeply disappointed" by the decision.

They said they would initiate further talks with Justice "to explore whether we can resolve our differences," but McGrath indicated it would take a substantial change before he would drop the government's intention to sue to block the deal.

The companies criticized McGrath for not giving greater weight to the imports of steel from the European Economic Community and Japan, saying "to ignore that substantial tonnage is to ignore reality."

But McGrath said, "Under the merger guidelines, foreign competitors are relevant if they may step in and in effect help to control the market where domestic producers are raising prices. We concluded on the basis of everything we know that at least over the short-run foreseeable future, the EEC production and the Japanese production are not available to play that role."

He added that, even counting all the foreign imports, the increase in concentration of ownership was larger than allowed by department guidelines and was probably large enough to raise the threat of collusion on prices in the steel. "The American steel industry is in a state of crisis," McGrath said. "It has a very difficult time competing in the world market. I am totally unconvinced, however, that revitalizing the steel industry requires the proposed merger."

McGrath said modernization and restructuring of the U.S. steel industry is urgently needed to salvage its competitive position in the world and he offered to provide antitrust guidance to U.S. steel companies to help with that process.

Among the options he named as more likely to win approval from his division were joint coal and ore supply deals between companies, swapping or consolidation of plants, and exchanges of semi-finished products. Baxter also said U.S. steelmakers "should look very carefully at different structural solutions to their problems that don't involve corporate mergers."

College Gift

Atlantic Christian College recently received a gift of $25,000 from the estate of the late C.H. Moye of Maury. The gift was presented by his widow, Mrs. Florence C. Moye.

President James B. Hemby Jr. accepted the gift on behalf of the college and said the money will be placed in the general endowment fund of the college. Interest earned in the next two years will be added to the principal and the money will then be used to name an undergraduate fellowship for Mr. and Mrs. Moye.

Prayer Day

March 2 has been proclaimed as World Day of Prayer by Greenville Mayor Janice Buck.

Mayor Buck said the proclamation was inspired by the Church Women United of Greenville, whose members had already planned a day of prayer. Hooker Memorial Christian Church and York AME Zion Church have also planned 7:30 p.m. services for March 2.

Food Stolen

A quantity of food was reported taken from the Kappa Delta sorority house at 2101 E. Fifth St. early today.

Officer T.V. Woolard, who said the theft was reported at 4:18 a.m., said a freezer on the rear porch of the dwelling was forced open and 10 pounds of hamburgers, 10 pounds of chicken, 10 pounds of french fries and a number of hamburger rolls were taken.

Workshop

More than 30 participants were involved in the fourth of a series of 1983-84 Saturday morning workshops sponsored by the ECU Department of Library Science and the Division of Continuing Education.

Emily S. Boyce, chairman of the department, led discussions on program planning in school and public libraries.

Others presenting material at the workshop included Hansy Jones, director of East Branch Library, and Ann Sullivan, media specialist at Sadie Sautter Elementary School. Ms. Jones described a year-long program of working with library users; Ms. Sullivan led discussions about specialized programs within the school curriculum.

Count People In The Isles, Too

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Census Bureau counts heads, it doesn't forget America's tropical islands.

Puerto Rico is the most populous of the island territories of the United States, with 3,261,000 people as of last July 1, the bureau said. The Northern Marianas are growing fastest, with a population spurt of 5.7 percent to 17,700.

Other U.S. island territories and their growth since 1980 include: Virgin Islands, 101,500, up 5.2 percent; American Samoa, 33,800, up 4.6 percent; Guam, 110,800, up 4.6 percent; and Trust Territory of the Pacific, 120,400, up 3.7 percent.

Housing Loans

Larry W. Godwin, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, says the agency in 1984 will emphasize housing repair and rehabilitation loans. Loans are available to low-income homeowners for repair and improvements, including weatherization.

To qualify, the home to be repaired must be in a rural area or in a place with a population of 20,000 or less. The loans carry an interest rate from 1 to 3 percent, depending on the household income, with terms of 25 years. The maximum adjusted household income for qualification must not exceed $10,000.

For more information, contact the local FmHA County Office at 115 Eastbrook Drive, Greenville, telephone 752-2035.

A New Flu Appearing

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Doctors have found evidence that a second strain of flu A-Philippines is moving into the Carolinas just as total cases from the first variety of flu A-England begin to level off.

Dr. J.N. McCormack, chief of the N.C. Communicable Disease Control Branch, said cases might still be rising in Mecklenburg County and eastern North Carolina, but the peak of January's outbreak has passed in much of the state.

Cases in South Carolina also have leveled off, according to Dr. John Maloney of South Carolina's Bureau of Epidemiology. All but one of South Carolina's confirmed cases also are of the A-England variety. Maloney also said doctors have the first indication that the second, more potent strain of type A flu Philippines flu is moving into South Carolina.

So far, McCormack said, all confirmed cases of flu in North Carolina have been of the so-called A-England strain, a milder form that resembles a variety of flu common before 1967.

McCormack said A-England flu cases are declining at most colleges monitored by the state, except at East Carolina University, Davidson and North Carolina-Charlotte.

Dr. Jared Schwartz, director of pathology and laboratory medicine of Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte, said, "Over the last three weeks, there's no question there have been dozens of cases of flu-like illness," including 10 to 12 cases on his own staff.

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control, the A-England strain has been reported in 26 states and the District of Columbia mostly among school children and college students.

Cases of the Philippines variety have been confirmed in five states, including Tennessee.

No Explanation Yet For A Nuclear Cave-In

By TIM DAHLBERG
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Federal officials say they don't know why an underground nuclear blast collapsed a big chunk of a mountain more than 1,000 feet above, injuring 13 atomic workers including one who said he learned to "walk on air."

One man was in critical condition today with injuries he suffered when the 60-by-150-foot piece of Rainier Mesa caved in, dropping 10 to 30 feet and swallowing several trailers. Eight workers were hospitalized.

The cave-in Wednesday occurred about three hours after technicians at the government's sprawling Nevada Test Site detonated a nuclear device of "less than 20 kilotons," said Jim Boyer, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy.

He said the blast was considered "very small."

The atom bomb that destroyed Hiroshima in World War II, leaving 130,000 people dead, injured or missing, was 20 kilotons — the equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT.

"The only thing we can say with certainty is we had a subsidence and a subsidence means that the surface of the earth dropped down over the explosive site," Boyer said.

Greg Cook, another spokesman, said late Wednesday, "We don't have anything on the cause yet. There will be a full investigation."

No radiation leaked from the cave-in or from the test tunnel, Boyer said. The blast went off in a sealed chamber about the height and width of a two-car garage but several times longer, in a tunnel 1,168 feet underground, he said.

The injured workers had returned to the site and were checking data recorded on instruments at ground zero, directly above the point of the blast, said another Energy Department spokesman, David Miller.

"Some had the ground drop out from under them," Miller said. "Some were shaken off ladders which led to the top of trailers, and one man apparently was still inside a trailer when it toppled over."

"I was learning how to walk on air, but the ground got me instead," one injured worker, describing the accident, said as he arrived on a stretcher into Valley Hospital in Las Vegas. He was taken away before he could give his name.

"Ask the DOE," another injured worker, Liz McDowell, said when asked what happened. She said test site employees signed pacts with the government stipulating that they not talk about their work.

Boyer called the collapse "very unusual." He said the hard-rock area where the blast was detonated, about 90 miles north of Las Vegas, is used only infrequently for nuclear tests, with most taking place in softer soil.

Despite the delay between detonation of the nuclear device, code-named Midas Myth-Milagro, "The collapse was a result of the test, yes," said DOE spokeswoman Grace Plummer.

Air Force helicopters took five of the injured to Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital in Las Vegas. A nursing supervisor who would not give her name said Charles Miesch, 59, was listed in critical condition today, and Noble Simpson, 57, Steven Foster, 36, Ken English, 55, and Dale Cox, 46, were in serious condition.

Four others were taken by ambulance to Valley Hospital. They were identified as Ms. McDowell and Nathan Lencioni, both in satisfactory condition today, and Warren Pina and John Held, both in stable condition, said Kick Taylor, hospital spokeswoman.

Another four workers were treated at a Mercury, Nev., hospital and released.

Since 1976, the United States and the Soviet Union have observed the Threshold Test Ban Treaty and the Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty, which limit underground tests to 150 kilotons. Neither treaty has been ratified by the Senate.

Tests in Rainier Mesa, which rises out of the barren desert, are done in long sealed chambers within a series of tunnels.

Rail cars carry workers to work chambers in the labyrinth. Officials say everyone is cleared from the area when a bomb is exploded, and the tunnel remains sealed until it is considered safe.

Since nuclear tests began at the Nevada test site in January 1951, there have been 618 announced detonations; not all blasts are announced.

Greenville Arts Council Funds Campaign Nearing Goal

BURROUGHS WELLCOME CONTRIBUTION ... A contribution of $4,000 by Burroughs Wellcome to the current fund drive campaign of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council has put the campaign past the $20,000 collection point — two-thirds of the way to the $30,000 goal. Here, John McConney, left, general manager at Burroughs Wellcome, talks to Phil Dixon, chairman of the fund drive campaign following the Burroughs Wellcome donation. (Reflector Staff Photo)

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Chances of reaching the $30,000 campaign fund goal for the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council are looking good at the mid-point of February, according to attorney Phil Dixon, chairman of this year's Arts Council Fund Drive campaign.

"With the $4,000 donation just received from Burroughs Wellcome, we have passed the $20,000 mark with $10,000 to go during the remainder of February," Dixon said in a recent interview.

The $4,000 gift was presented to Dixon by Burroughs Wellcome general manager John McConney.

McConney is also one of six vice chairmen heading committees to raise funds for the arts campaign.

"In campaigns of this type for public service, it's essential that industries in the area contribute to causes that improve the quality of life here," Dixon said. "This donation by Burroughs Wellcome is another example of their generous support to arts, not just here in Pitt County, but throughout North Carolina."

Will Sue If Primary Runoff Issue Unsolved

RALEIGH (AP) — Two North Carolina black groups say they'll file a lawsuit challenging primary runoffs in the state if the Legislature fails to take up the issue.

The move was prompted by the recent federal court ruling to realign seven legislative districts that a three-judge panel ruled discriminate against black voters.

The North Carolina Association of Black Lawyers and the Black Leadership Caucus say they believe the runoff system — a fixture in state politics since 1915 — is vulnerable because of language in the panel's decision to require realignment of seven legislative districts found to discriminate against black voters.

"If the Legislature doesn't deal with the issue, we're going to court," said Irving L. Joyner, a Raleigh lawyer who is helping coordinate the groups' efforts.

Joyner has said the black groups have not yet drawn a specific timetable for tackling the runoff question. He added if a black candidate in the May 8 primary leads his contest and is thrust into a runoff where he could possibly lose because of racially polarized voting, the opportunity will be ripe.

"We might have to go after it then," Joyner said.

Alex K. Brock, state elections director, declined to comment on the issue.

"We hear a lot of discussion about possible lawsuits," Brock said. "We don't worry about them until their filed."

Black groups contend that the runoff system sharply decreases a minority candidate's chances of being elected, and the panel appears to agree.

The judges said runoffs operated "as a general, ongoing impediment to any cohesive voting minority's opportunity to elect candidates of its choice in any contested primary."

McConney remarked that he feels "the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council has done a good job in the community. It has grown tremendously in the past couple of years, and now has 33 organizations in Greenville and Pitt County under its umbrella. These member groups range over the fields of music, drama, writing and other creative fields. We at Burroughs Wellcome are happy that we can help the community sponsor these activities."

Dixon cautioned that despite the good record in getting contributions to the two-thirds point by mid February, "we know the hardest work is ahead of us, collecting the final $10,000 of our goal. But I feel confident that industries, businesses and organizations in the community will respond generously when called on for pledges."

Indict Man For Role In Escape

RALEIGH (AP) — A Fayetteville man has been indicted by a Wake County grand jury on charges of assaulting a prison guard and helping a convicted murderer escape from the N.C. Correctional Center for Women.

James D. Valdez was indicted on charges of assaulting guard Oscar N. Smith with a large stick or pipe on Jan. 23 to help inmate Kathy Matthew Jones escape. Mrs. Jones was serving a life sentence for the 1976 shooting death of her 3-year-old daughter.

After Smith was attacked, Mrs. Jones escaped through a prison gate. Law enforcement officials have not found Mrs. Jones or a woman suspected of helping her escape.

Valdez also was indicted on one count each of aiding a prisoner, assisting a prisoner's escape and kidnapping Smith.

The Greenville Police Department has initiated a "Citizen Ride Along" Program for city residents who are interested in seeing how police operate while on patrol. Call 732-3342, for details.

See Little Changes Ahead In Soviet Foreign Policies

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — New Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko is ready to work with "all states that are prepared to help by practical deeds to lessen international tension" despite pessimism that East-West relations will soon improve, Pravda said today.

The Communist Party daily newspaper laid out a conservative course for the party under its new general secretary in a front-page editorial that set the tone for Chernenko's first months in power.

A similar article appeared in Pravda in November 1982 after the death of Leonid I. Brezhnev and the installation of Yuri V. Andropov as Kremlin leader.

At that time, Western analysts were hopeful that the moderate tones struck by Andropov and his meeting with Vice President George Bush — then the highest-level contact between the superpowers in three years — would promote better Soviet-U.S. relations.

But relations deteriorated to their lowest point in decades under Andropov and President Reagan. Pravda gave no sign that they will improve soon.

"We are open to peaceful, mutually advantageous cooperation with states of all continents," Pravda said. "We are for peaceful solution of all outstanding international problems through serious, equal, constructive talks."

"The U.S.S.R. will be interacting in full measure with all states that are prepared to help by practical deeds lessen international tension, to create the atmosphere of confidence in the world."

Pravda made clear that there would be no relaxation of Soviet bloc unity under Chernenko, who traditionally endorsed the doctrine of his mentor, Brezhnev, that there should be no liberal experiments like the "Prague spring" that blossomed before Warsaw Pact troops invaded Czechoslovakia in 1968.

The bulk of the article focused on domestic issues, which also received most attention under Andropov.

Pravda repeated the words that became hallmarks of Andropov's drive to jolt his country out of economic inertia: better labor discipline, order, efficiency, increased productivity and intensified efforts to modernize.

The article emphasized the significance of a new party program now under preparation.

Some Western analysts saw this as a sign that both economic planners and the party cadres with whom Chernenko has worked most of his life will be under increased pressure to boost growth and ensure political conformity.

The new party program was announced by Andropov in a speech at the June 1983 Central Committee plenum, which concentrated on ideological matters. At that time, Chernenko launched a strong drive against Western influences and culture in Soviet life.

Chernenko on Wednesday ended two days of talks with foreign dignitaries, during which he denounced "the aggressive intrigues of U.S. imperialism" and said he was interested in reviving detente.

Chernenko received many of the more than 100 foreign leaders who attended Andropov's funeral.

His last meeting was with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada.

"There was no return to the stridency we've heard from both sides in the past. We agreed that there is a new openness in the world and it's up to the politicians to respond to it," Trudeau said.

It was Trudeau to whom Chernenko mentioned his interest in reviving detente between East and West.

"There was a repetition of the word 'detente' and a real continuity with the Brezhnev spirit," he said, referring to the late Leonid I. Brezhnev, Andropov's predecessor and Chernenko's mentor.

Trudeau said Chernenko talked "in general terms of the need to reduce nuclear arms in the world," but did not specifically mention the Geneva arms talks. The Soviets walked out of the talks last December, and said they would not return until NATO rolls back its missile deployment program.

Drugs Tax Bill Voted

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — A plan to crack down on drug dealers by making them buy licenses and pay taxes on illegal drugs has won final approval from the South Dakota Legislature.

The Senate approved the bill 24-9 Wednesday. It had already been passed by the House, and now goes to Gov. Bill Janklow, who proposed the tax and license as a way to fight illegal drug dealing.

Under the bill, drug dealers would have to pay $500 for a license to sell marijuana and $1,000 for a license to sell other controlled substances. They would also have to pay a tax of $50 an ounce for marijuana and $5,000 an ounce for other illegal drugs.

Drug license information given to the state Revenue Department could not be used by prosecutors, but people caught dealing without a license and tax receipts could face additional fines and criminal prosecution.

Anyone caught selling untaxed drugs without a license could be made to pay the tax and additional fines. In addition to facing regular criminal charges for selling or possessing illegal drugs, drug dealers convicted of failing to buy licenses or pay taxes could face a maximum penalty of five years in prison and $5,000.

"It's just another way of putting away an offender...those who are pushers of marijuana or other controlled substances," said state Sen. George Shanard of Mitchell.

But Sen. Roger McKellips of Alcester called the bill "a gimmick."

Arizona has a similar law.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An environmental group says the federal government should step in and enforce strip mining reclamation laws in six Western states that are failing to do so.

In a letter to Interior Secretary William Clark, the Public Lands Institute of the Natural Resources Defense Council said the six states failed to take any enforcement action on 86 percent of 578 violations their inspectors found in 1982.

The six states are the largest coal-producing states in the West — Colorado, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Utah and Wyoming.

Defending TV Blitz

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Sen. John East, R-N.C., defending the media blitz being launched by his colleague, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., says Helms' views must be presented on television.

East was in Charlotte Wednesday campaigning for Helms, who is expected to face Gov. Jim Hunt in the November race for the Senate.

To win, Helms must get his views on television, East said. He said the multimillion dollar expenses of the Helms organization on TV advertising are "the only way to break through the fog of disinformation about Helms by the liberal editorial writers."

The first round of Helms' TV battle was a series of commercials about the Panama Canal issue. East maintained the issue practically elected him in 1980 through television ads deriding the vote of then-Sen. Robert Morgan, a Democrat, on the canal.

Helms' ads paint Hunt as favoring the deeding of the canal back to Panama, which Helms and East say fueled Soviet-backed forces in the area.

East defended the use of the issue, even though Hunt had no connection to it.

"I think it is worth asking the governor about his stands on that and other issues," East said. "No longer can the governor hide in the bland world of being governor where you cut ribbons and talk about puffy things like education."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 57.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. Too few loads offered for a final weighted average. The market is steady and the live supply is light to mostly moderate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable to occasionally heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,760,000, compared to 1,719,000 last Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today amid lingering interest-rate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 1.67 to 1,157.04 by noon on Wall Street. Losers outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 5 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Government reports issued this morning showed a 15 percent increase in housing starts, a 1.1 percent gain in personal income, and a rise in the utilization rate of factory capacity to 79.9 percent from 79.2 the month before.

Analysts said traders saw the data generally as a deterrent to relaxation of credit policy by the Federal Reserve — and hence as an obstacle to a substantial drop in interest rates in the near future.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the active list, up ¾ at 16¼. Trading in the "old" AT&T that existed before the breakup of the company into eight separate entities ended at Wednesday's close.

The NYSE's composite index edged up .01 to 89.96. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .48 at 206.17.

Volume on the Big Board came to 35.13 million shares at noon, against 43.74 million at the same point Wednesday.

Wake Tops Tigers; Duke, State Win; Virginia Loses

By The Associated Press
Duke basketball coach Mike Krzyzewski says he hopes his 19th-ranked Blue Devils, who downed Stetson for their 20th triumph, have a few more victories left in them.

"Hopefully that's not the pinnacle.... We'll win a few more games," said Krzyzewski after Mark Alarie and David Henderson each scored 18 points to lead Duke to a 80-69 victory over the Hatters.

Meanwhile, in the only Atlantic Coast Conference game Wednesday night, No. 13 Wake Forest beat Clemson 68-57 as Anthony Teachey scored 18 points.

In other action, sophomore Ernie Myers scored 32 points — 22 in the first half — to spark North Carolina State to a 77-74 victory over Northeastern and Perry Young pumped in 26 points to lead Virginia Tech to a 56-54 victory over Virginia.

Duke, 20-5, stretched a 28-24 lead to 41-32 at the half and Stetson got no closer than three in the second half. Stetson cut the deficit to 69-63 with two minutes left, but Dan Meagher canned two free throws and Amaker scored on a layup to stretch the lead to nine.

"Both teams ... really (went) after each other, but it was clean," said Krzyzewski, who earned his first 20-victory season in four seasons at Duke. Stetson was called for 25 fouls, and Duke hit 28 of 32 foul shots. The Hatters were nine of 13 from the foul line.

Alarie said many people may be surprised that Duke was able to win 20 games, but he's not one of them.

"We had high expectations," he said. "We thought we could win 20. We didn't question our ability. We're very happy but it doesn't surprise us. The NCAA would be a higher goal and we're on the right track."

Guards Johnny Dawkins and Tommy Amaker each scored 13 points for Duke and Meagher added 12.

Stetson, 16-7, was led by Jorge Fernandez's 22 points. Mike Reddick added 16 points and 12 rebounds for the Hatters.

Wake Forest led 33-30 at the half, but Clemson rallied to take a one-point lead four times in the second half, the last at 42-41 with 14:34 left. But the Deacons ran off six straight points to take a 47-42 lead, and the margin grew 58-50, before Clemson closed 58-53 with 2:24 left.

But the Tigers could get no closer as they fell to 12-9 overall and to last in the ACC with a 2-8 mark. Wake Forest is now 18-4 and 6-4.

The victory left both coaches upset with their teams' play.

"Our players thought they would win no matter what they did tonight, even though I had my doubts," Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy said.

Clemson coach Bill Foster said 17 turnovers hurt the Tigers.

"We rebounded extremely well and I thought our defense was just super," he said. "We just made too many turnovers."

Danny Young scored 14 points for Wake Forest while Kenny Green and Delaney Rudd each chipped in 10 points.

Clemson was led by Vincent Hamilton with 14 points. Murray Jarman added 13 points for the Tigers.

Virginia Tech used a "super man" named Young to beat the Cavaliers, 14-8.

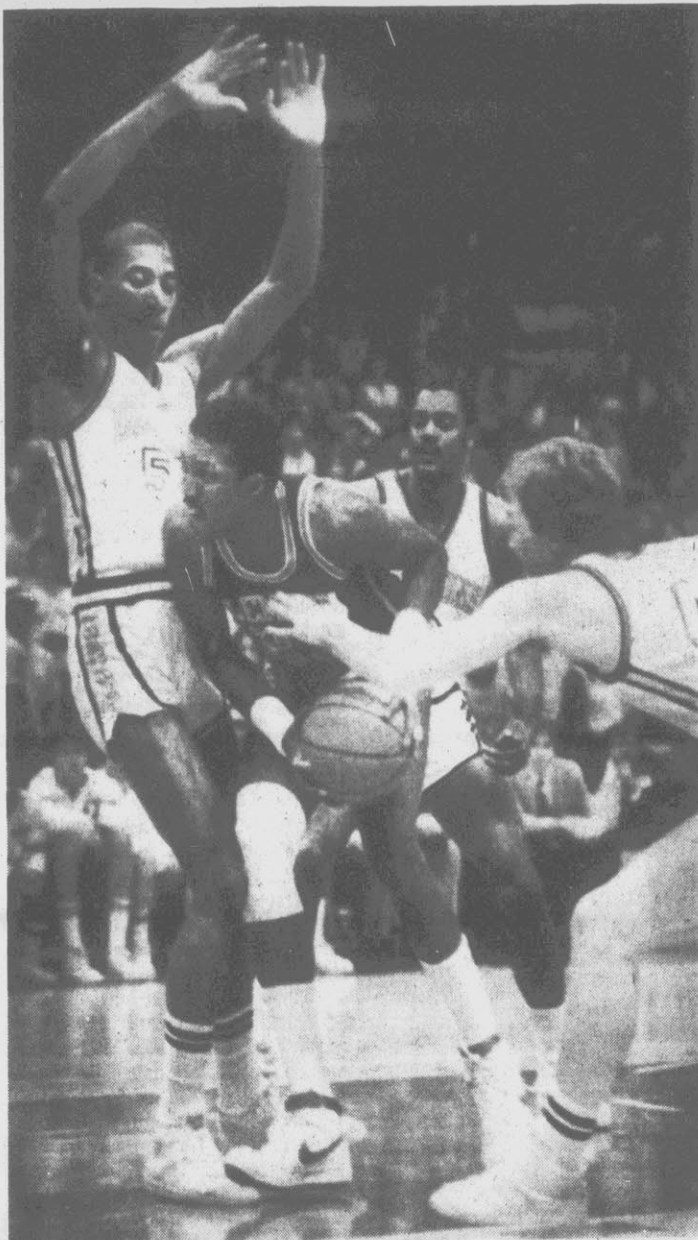

Young, a junior forward, keyed a 13-0 second-half surge as the Hokies led by 12 with 5:26 left before holding off a late rally.

"We were able to get the ball to (Young) three or four times on a set play and he did a good job of putting it in the basket," said Virginia Tech coach Charlie Moir, who said Young played like a "super man."

Young scored nine of the Hokies' 13 unanswered points over a 6:58 period as Tech, 15-6, took a 47-35 lead.

"Perry Young was very difficult to stop," Virginia coach Terry Holland. "We couldn't find the answer to stopping him."

Classic Opens Friday

East Carolina's Lady Pirates will play host to three strong teams in the third annual Converse-Lady Pirate Classic this Friday and Saturday.

Joining East Carolina in the four-team field will be defending champion Cheney State University, Fairfield University and Marshall University.

The Pirates take on Marshall in the opening game of the tournament, at 6 p.m. Friday night, while Cheney and Fairfield collide in the 8 p.m. contest.

Ironically, East Carolina is the only team in the field with a losing record. The Lady Pirates, following an upset loss to ECAC-South member George Mason in Fairfax, Va., on Sunday, are 10-13. Fairfield brings in the best record, having recorded a 18-3 mark. Cheney is 18-4, while Marshall comes in with a 14-7 mark.

The meeting between Marshall and ECU will be only the second. The two played in 1980 with ECU taking a 63-59 victory. Marshall, a member of the Southern Conference, is coming in off wins over Appalachian State and East Tennessee State. The Pirates have played both teams also, beating the former in two games but losing to ETSU in their only meeting. They have also defeated South Carolina, another team which topped the Pirates.

Leading the Lady Herd will be 6-1 sophomore forward Karen Pelphrey, who is averaging 24.3 points a game and pulls 7.3 rebounds a game. Front court mate Tammy Wiggins, a 5-9 freshman, is hitting 10.5 points a game, the only other player in double figures. Other starters include 6-1 senior center Lisa pruner, 3.7 ppg, Karla May, a 5-7 sophomore guard, 9.3 ppg, and Tywanda Abercrombie, a 5-4 sophomore guard, hitting 7.0 ppg.

Fairfield and ECU have met only once before with Fairfield taking a 58-54 win. The Lady Stars have won this Warner's Classic and the Miami Masonic Classic this year, and opened the year with seven straight victories.

The Stags are led by 6-4 junior center Katrina Fields, hitting 20.9 points per game. Alison Martinsky, a 6-3 junior forward and Chris McGuinness, a 5-9 junior forward, both post 11.9 averages. The guards are 5-7 senior Liz Sterling and 5-8 junior Patrice Wallace-Moore. The former averages 7.1 points a game and the latter, 9.1. Fields is the leading rebounder with a 10.9 average, while McGuinness pulls 10.4 and Martinsky gets 7.1.

Cheney and ECU met only once before, in last year's Lady Pirate Classic finals. Cheney took an 85-57 win in that contest.

The Lady Wolves are currently ranked 11th in the nation and have the fifth highest scoring average at 87.6. They are holding opponents to just 64.2.

Yolanda Laney, a 5-11 senior forward, is the top scorer for the team, averaging 25.2 points a game, 10th best in the country. She also pulls 10.0 rebounds a game.

Sharon Taylor, a 6-4 senior center, averaged 12.5 points a game and 7.5 rebounds, while Ann Strong, a 6-2 junior has a 10.0 scoring and 6.4 rebounding average.

The backcourt includes 5-7 senior

Sandra Giddins, hitting 14.4 points a game, and 5-7 senior Karen Draughn scoring at a 6.0 average.

The Lady Pirates are led in scoring by Sylvia Bragg with a 13.1 average, while Lisa Squirewell is hitting at an 11.10 average. They are the only two in double figures.

Guard Delphine Mabry has a 9.5 average, while forward Annette Phillips is hitting at 7.0. Forward Anita Anderson had a 6.8 mark with center Darlene Hedges scoring at 5.9. Guard Jody Rodriguez who has gained more and more playing time as the year has advanced, is scoring at 4.0.

Following the classic, the Lady Pirates have two games left in the regular season, an ECAC-South contest against league-leading Richmond on the road Tuesday, and a home contest against South Carolina next Saturday. The Lady Pirates will then play host to the first-ever ECAC-South tournament the following weekend.

Johnson Wins Downhill Gold

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Downhill skier Bill Johnson became the first American man to win an Alpine skiing Olympic gold medal today, giving the U.S. team its second gold of the Games and the uplift it needed from one of its worst medals showings in 20 years.

The hockey team is out of contention. Two top women's figure skaters were all but eliminated from medal chances in the compulsory round. The speed skaters who so dominated four years ago haven't won a medal.

But then came the 23-year-old Johnson from Van Nuys, Calif., and his sizzling one minute, 45.59-second tear down the side of a mountain here.

He outran Europe's best downhillers, including silver medalist Peter Mueller of Switzerland, Austrian bronze winner Anton Steiner and 1976 downhill champion Franz Klammer of Austria, who finished 10th.

It was only a few weeks ago that he became the first American man to win a World Cup race, a performance that brought a sullen look from Klammer.

Johnson had taken European ground. And today he took the gold.

It was the first time a member of the U.S. men's team had finished better than 5th place in an Olympic downhill.

Johnson, recognized as one of the best "gliders" on the World Cup circuit, trailed Mueller through the intermediate clocking on the Mount Bjelasnica course, but made up the time on the bottom third, which is flatter and better suited to his specialty.

The best U.S. hopes now stand with the individual figure skaters.

With only the men's individual figures medals still to be handed out today, the United States was tied with Switzerland for sixth place overall in the medals tally. Both countries have two gold and two silver medals. The leaders are the Soviet Union with 20 medals (three gold), East Germany with 19 (seven gold) and Finland with 10 overall (two gold).

On Mount Jahorina today, Michela Figini of Switzerland won the women's downhill, followed by teammate Maria Walliser in second.

Olg a Charvatova of Czechoslovakia prevented a Swiss sweep by edging Ariane Ehrhart out of the bronze. The best American finisher was Holly Flanders of Deerfield, N.H., in 16th.

Going into the men's race, with less than four days remaining in the 14th Winter Olympics, the United States had just three medals — one gold and two silver — after 27 events, and was tied for sixth place with West Germany, Canada and Czechoslovakia. The Germans and Canadians had two gold to the Americans' one.

Scott Hamilton and Rosalynn Summers, the men's and women's figure skating leaders, are in position to give the United States its first sweep of the two events since 1956 when Hayes Alan Jenkins and Tenley Albright did it.

Hamilton could finish fifth in tonight's free skating program and still win a gold medal.

"If I go out relaxed and ski the way I know I can ski on this course, there's no doubt I can win," Johnson said before the race.

The U.S. women skiers managed a 1-2 finish in the giant slalom on Monday, but could not keep up with the Europeans today on Mount Jahorina.

Figini won the race in one minute,

13.36 seconds, just .05 seconds faster than Walliser. Charvatova clocked 1:13.53 to take the bronze by .42 seconds.

Gaetan Boucher today became the first double gold medalist in Canadian history by edging two Soviets to win the men's 1,500-meter speed skating. His time was 1:58.36, nearly three seconds slower than the Olympic record set by American Eric Heiden in 1980.

And a Swedish relay team anchored by 15-kilometer gold medalist Gunde Svan won the gold medal in the 4X10 cross-country ski race in 1:55:06.3. That was 10.2 seconds ahead of the second place Soviets and a minute, 25.1 seconds ahead of the Finnish team, which won the bronze.

Meanwhile, Wednesday was a day the U.S. hockey team and American figure skaters Elaine Zayak and young Tiffany Chin would rather forget.

A 3-3 tie with Finland, on a goal with 21 seconds left, saddled the U.S. team with its worst hockey finish since the Winter Olympics were founded in 1924. Just 1-2-2 in round-robin play, the Americans meet Poland, 1-4, Friday in a match for seventh place.

The United States had taken a 3-2 lead against Finland on a goal by Bob Brooke with 38 seconds remaining, only to be tied when Annsi Melametsa uncorked a 30-foot slap shot from behind a screen.

"It's been difficult to put aside what everyone expected of us," said Brooke, a reference to the pressure placed on the U.S. team since the Americans' stunning victory at Lake Placid in 1980.

Coach Lou Vairo, crushed by his team's disastrous showing, said he was "going to head home and hope the plane makes it."

"I'm not happy at all but I don't blame the players and I don't blame myself," he said.

In other hockey games, the Soviet Union's unbeaten "Big Red Machine" routed Sweden 10-1, Czechoslovakia beat Canada 4-0, West Germany stopped Italy 9-4, Poland pummeled Yugoslavia 8-1 and Austria nipped Norway 6-5.

The medals round begins Friday with the Soviets, 5-0, meeting Canada, 4-1, and Czechoslovakia, 5-0, opposing Sweden, 3-1-1.

Chin, 16, of Toluca Lake, Calif., and Zayak, 18, of Paramus, N.J., had their medal hopes dashed by finishing 12th and 13th in the compulsory, a program that requires the competitors to trace intricate figure eights.

That left it to Summers, a 19-year-old from Edmonds, Wash., who covers the ice with swan-like grace, to hold off challenges for the gold medal from the Soviet Union's Elena Vodrezova and East Germany's Katarina Witt.

"I couldn't have asked for more," said Summers, the 1983 world champion, after winning the opening school figures program.

The women's event continues today with a short program of required moves counting 20 per cent.

Roanoke Sweeps Charger Teams

LITTLEFIELD — Roanoke High School swept a pair of non-conference basketball games from hosting Ayden-Grifton last night. For the Redskins, it was the final action prior to next week's North-eastern Conference tournament at Williamston.

The Redskins gained a 64-50 win in the boys' game, while the girls came away with a 70-59 victory.

In the boys' game, Ayden-Grifton took a 10-8 lead after one period, and the two teams swapped points in the second quarter. Ayden-Grifton thus held a 23-21 lead at intermission.

In the second half, however, Roanoke took control. The Redskins outshot the Chargers, 21-9, in the third period, running out to a 42-32 edge. They finished off Ayden-Grifton, with a 22-18 final period margin.

James Duggins led Roanoke with 19 points while Garrett Baker added 18 and Derrick Boyd had 12. Danny West paced Ayden-Grifton with 12 while Mike Dixon added 10.

The Lady Chargers rushed out into a 19-15 lead after one period, but the two teams then reversed the scoring in the second quarter. That left them tied at 34-34 at intermission.

Roanoke then raced out to a 19-9 advantage in the third frame, posting a 53-43 lead as the last quarter opened. In that, Roanoke outlasted Ayden-Grifton, 17-16, to take the win.

Gloria Duggins slammed through 34 points while Teresa Brown added 15 for Roanoke. Cora Faison led Ayden-Grifton with 27 while Cynthia Hicks hit 13.

Roanoke's boys close out the regular season with a 9-11 record, while the girls are 10-10. Ayden-Grifton's boys drop to 12-9 overall while the girls are 5-16.

The Chargers close out the regular season on Friday, hosting North Pitt.

Wake Tops...

The Cavaliers cut the lead to 54-52 with 15 seconds remaining before Dell Curry's dunk sent the Hokies to their first victory over Virginia in their last 10 meetings.

Virginia led only once — at 2-0 — and trailed 23-18 at the half, shooting just 25.8 percent in the first 20 minutes. The Cavaliers shot 41.5 percent for the game compared to Tech's 53.7 percent.

Freshman center Olden Polynice and senior guard Rick Carlisle paced the Cavaliers with 13 points each while Jim Miller added 10.

Young, who was 10 of 14 from the floor, was the only Virginia Tech player in double figures. Tech is now 15-7.

N.C. State led Northeastern by 10 at the half, but had to hold off a rally to capture its ninth straight victory. The Wolfpack is 19-7 while Northeastern falls to 19-4.

"We did the things we had to do to win," N.C. State coach Jim Valvano said.

Northeastern coach Jim Calhoun said his team "had to give up too many fouls ... and it cost us in the end."

Northeastern rallied from a 39-29 halftime deficit to tie it 63-63. But the Wolfpack went to its delay game and hit 12 of 14 free throws to seal the victory. Gannon hit four of those free throws while four other players hit two apiece.

Joining Myers, who was averaging 8.6 points, in double figures was Gannon with 18. Lorenzo Charles was held to just seven points, far below his 21 point average.

N.C. State guard Anthony "Spud" Webb dishd out 18 assists, tying a school record held by Sidney Lowe.

Wes Fuller led Northeastern with 15 points while Mark Halsel, Reggie Lewis and Roland Braswell scored 12 points each. Glenn Miller chipped in 11 points for the Huskies, who had a seven-game winning streak snapped.

St. Andrews On NCAA Probation

LAURINBURG (AP) — St. Andrews College has been declared ineligible for post-season play and must forfeit four Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference games, school and league officials say.

St. Andrews, 20-2, will now be excluded from the Dixie Tournament and NCAA Championship play due to the violation of the NCAA Constitution.

According to a spokesman for the college, a member of the men's team accepted a $200 loan in January 1983 from a Laurinburg physician and supporter of the school's athletic program.

Business records indicate the loan was used by the student-athlete to pay tuition and fees, which under the National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, is illegal.

Although the loan did not exceed the player's demonstrated financial need, it was given by an individual considered under NCAA regulations to be a "representative of the athletic interests" of St. Andrews. The loan also constituted an "extra benefit" to the player under NCAA rules, since it was not made through normal channels, officials said Wednesday.

"Obviously, we are disappointed for our coaches, players and for the college," St. Andrews president A.P. Perkinson Jr. said. "But at the same time we are proud to have a college in which fair play and integrity outweigh all else."

Surgeon Launched Fund To Aid Transplants

By DIANA SMITH

Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Dr. W. Carl Gordon switched on a network morning news show and, adjusting his tie, watched a segment about a Chicago boy who needed a liver transplant.

The child's family didn't have the $150,000 the hospital required for the procedure, and he died before enough money could be raised through private donations.

"You know, somebody ought to do something about that," the surgeon recalls telling his wife that cold morning in January 1983.

She replied, "That somebody is you. Why don't you do something?"

Almost a year later, Faith Fund Foundation Inc., with Gordon serving as founder and first vice president, kicked off a $10 million fund-raising drive for underprivileged children in need of liver transplants.

A liver transplant can cost up to $250,000. Many insurance companies and state and federally funded programs such as Medicare and Medicaid consider the transplants experimental surgery and won't pay for them.

Faith Fund's goal is to provide funds for all expenses associated with a transplant, from medical bills to motel rooms to airplane tickets.

Thelma King Thiel, executive director of the American Liver Foundation said there are "a number of groups hoping to do this." Several already have begun raising money for transplant patients and their families, although on a lesser scale than the Faith Fund Foundation, she said.

Magazine Sees Healthy Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spinoff travel magazine of the National Geographic Society has caught the fancy of 750,000 of the society's 10.6 million members with circulation expected to reach 1 million by summer.

The premier issue of National Geographic Traveler, 208 pages with 56 pages of advertising, took on a girth that many other, older publications would envy. The magazine will appear four times a year.

Editor Joan Trapper said the response from a mailed solicitation to society members exceeded expectations. "Within three days, we had 150,000 subscriptions," she said.

The magazine will concentrate on places accessible to visitors, mostly in the United States and Canada.

DR. W. C. GORDON

A spokeswoman for a group that raises money for transplant families in coordination with hospitals suggested that people hoping to help such patients band together.

"It's not unusual for any Joe Smith on the street to start his own thing," said Betty Bradberry, director of the Children's Liver Association in Dallas, which has been raising money for food, transportation and living costs since 1981.

If people want to raise funds, they should call the major transplant centers "and ask what the needs are," she said. "Maybe we could all work together. We just see everybody out there doing their own thing."

The Albany-based group has won key endorsements from Barbara Bush, wife of Vice President George Bush; the Rev. Joseph Lowery, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; and the Martin Luther King Foundation.

SLIPSHOD

LONDON (AP) — Government inspectors say slipshod procedures by a state-owned nuclear company caused a serious spillage of radioactive material last fall from the world's largest nuclear reprocessing plant.

Applicants will be reviewed by a selection committee from Faith Fund's board of trustees, which is made up of doctors, lawyers, health administration officials, businessmen and lay people.

The group already has received its charter and tax exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service. It has also received "just under $3,000" in donations, said Herbert Phipps, an Albany attorney who is chairman of Faith Fund.

Phipps said the group was deliberately broad in defining "underprivileged" in its charter so that the term technically could apply to most people who require transplants.

Gordon said he wants to gather a large enough pool of readily available cash to ensure that "no child has to die because there was no money." Eventually, he said, Faith Fund hopes to raise money for other types of experimental surgery as well.

"No one can help if a donor is not available, but we can help if there is no money available," he said.

Shortly after Gordon started forming Faith Fund last year, the group publicized the case of a 6-year-old Albany girl who needed a liver transplant. Tonya Love died before Faith Fund got official approval to start raising funds.

With a ready money supply, Gordon said communities could avoid "11th-hour efforts" to raise money for a critically ill child.

Right now, Gordon said, there are few ways to raise money for people who can't afford transplants unless the case is publicized in the media. And Gordon said that penalizes parents who don't know how to conduct a public relations campaign.

"Given any child, if the parents can manipulate the media and get some reporter to write a story, then they can get money," he said. "If the parents can't manipulate the media then they go down the drain.

"There's a degree of inequity in the system."

A lack of funding "condemns to death underprivileged children. I think we can do better than that," he said. But as a surgeon, Gordon said he understands the problem from the other side as well. Hospitals can't afford to perform free transplants.

Gordon said it's up to private organizations such as his to fill the economic gap.

"I have come to realize that the federal government can't do everything for everybody," he said.

Faith Fund will be able to realize its $10 million goal "if people pull together," he said. "No one is ever going to tell me that America is broke. We can raise money and dispense it equitably."

Faith Fund's first major effort will be a June telethon sponsored by an Albany television station owned by Gordon.

Faith Fund also plans to ship out public service announcements to media and local officials in cities where liver transplants are being performed, including Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh and Memphis, Tenn.

Sponsor Bike Tour

The American Lung Association of North Carolina will sponsor a two-day, two-night bicycle tour of southeastern coastal North Carolina April 13-15.

The 50-mile-a-day bike trek will follow a circular tour along the Cape Fear River, with an overnight stop on the Atlantic Ocean at Long Beach and return via the ferry and coastal highway.

The purpose of the bike trek is to raise funds for ALANC programs to prevent and control pulmonary diseases, as well as to demonstrate the value of clean air and healthy lungs and to promote bicycling as a pollution-free means of travel and recreation.

Any person 16 years of age or older and in good physical condition may participate. Persons under 16 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Bike trekkers are expected to supply their own gear and bicycle in good working condition. They are also expected to secure donations totaling a minimum of $200 which will be a contribution to the Lung Association.

Only 150 riders can be accommodated on the trek. Lodging and meals en route will be provided by ALANC as well as leadership and support vehicles to carry luggage and spare bicycle parts.

More information is available by contacting Bike Trek Headquarters, P.O. Box 1256, Wilmington, N.C., 28402 (telephone 919-762-8486) or the regional Lung Association office: ALANC, Eastern Region, P.O. Box 1407, Greenville 27834 (telephone 752-5093).

Information brochures are available at local sports shops.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE YES-MAN'S FIRST TALENT — HE IS MERELY GOOD FOR NODDING.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: G equals N.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Large Field In Oscar Race

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Shirley MacLaine and Debra Winger, who sparred as mother and daughter in "Terms of Endearment," will probably be up against each other again — as contenders for the 56th Motion Picture Academy Award for best actress.

The heart-wrenching movie about the two women's relationship as it evolves over the years was expected to capture top honors when the Oscar nominations came out today at the Academy's mirror-walled Wilshire Boulevard headquarters.

"Terms of Endearment" has been the most consistent winner of awards and prizes among the 1983 films. Jack Nicholson, who plays an aging astronaut, also is expected to win a nomination for best supporting actor and James L. Brooks is expected to be nominated for direction and writing.

Other likely standouts in today's nomination included "The Big Chill," "The Right Stuff," "The Dresser" and "Educating Rita."

The 1983 race for the Oscars features an exceptional field of contenders for best actress.

Two best-acting nominees from the same film have occurred before: Bette Davis and Anne Baxter in "All about Eve," 1950; Montgomery Clift and Burt Lancaster in "From Here to Eternity," 1953; Katharine Hepburn and Elizabeth Taylor in "Suddenly, Last Summer," 1959; Maximilian Schell and Spencer Tracy, "Judgment at Nuremberg," 1961; Jon Voight and Dustin Hoffman, "Midnight Cowboy," 1969; Michael Caine and Laurence Olivier, "Sleuth," 1972; William Holden and Peter Finch, "Network," 1976.

Among the double nominees, only Schell and Finch were winners.

The film crowd will be watching to see how academy voters treat Barbra Streisand. Her one-woman show, "Yentl," has been praised by some critics, panned by others. Miss Streisand's debut as director was not among the five nominations for awards by the Directors Guild.

Miss Streisand appears as a boy student through most of "Yentl" and even marries Amy Irving. If both are nominated, says Academy spokesman Robert Werden, it will mark the first time two nominees of the same sex were married.

Mickey Rooney, winner of an honorary Oscar at last year's awards, and Academy President Gene Allen will read the nominees to a record number of media representatives.

More than 230 journalists and probably an equal number of film industry publicists were expected to be in attendance.

Since November, publicists have been waging their annual promotional blitz on behalf of Oscar-hopeful clients, taking aim at the Academy's 4,000 voting members with trade paper ads, media interviews and special screenings.

The publicity barrage quieted last week when academy members concluded their balloting for nominations, but resumes in earnest after the announcement of nominees.

Meanwhile, members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will attend special nominee screenings at the Samuel Goldwyn Theater before making final selections in 23 categories.

Three honorary award winners were announced in advance. Hal Roach, 92, producer of Laurel and Hardy, Our Gang and other comedies, will receive a special award. Producer Mike Frankovich was named for the Jean Hersholt humanitarian award. And Dr. John G. Frayne was voted the Gordon E. Sawyer technical achievement award.

The Board of Governors decided not to give the Irving Thalberg award, which recognizes a consistent high quality by a producer.

Johnny Carson will return as master of ceremonies for the 56th award presentations April 9 at the Los Angeles Music Center. The awards will be broadcast live by the ABC Television network, starting at 9 p.m. EST.

Mock Disbelief At Golden Pot

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — "That's it?" comedian Joan Rivers asked as she was presented with an inscribed gold pot, the symbol of Hasty Pudding Theatricals at Harvard.

Her performance of mock disbelief while being honored Wednesday as the 189-year-old dramatic club's "1984 Woman of the Year" brought a roar of laughter from the audience, which earlier had seen dozens of Harvard men shed tweed blazers and prance about in grass skirts.

Members of Hasty Pudding Theatricals performed selections from an all-male song-and-dance revue called "Jungle Belles."

Asked what she thought about all the men who were dressed as women, the 46-year-old Miss Rivers replied, "Nothing. I'm from California."

The award is presented annually to a male and a female who have made an "impressive contribution" to entertainment. Actor Sean Connery gets his Hasty Pudding "Man of the Year" award next week.

Broadway Dims Lights In Salute To Ethel Merman

By ULA ILNYTZKY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The lights of the Great White Way were darkened for the late Ethel Merman, whose clarion voice brought her fame on stage and screen for over 50 years, as fans from Bob Hope to ordinary theatergoers mourned the first lady of musical comedy.

In memory of Miss Merman, who died Wednesday at age 75, all 36 Broadway theaters dimmed their marquees for one minute at show time Wednesday night.

"It's like the Statue of Liberty has fallen," said Carol Channing. "Ethel Merman personified the best of Broadway musicals. She was an inspiration to us all."

"Ethel Merman was a dear friend, one with whom I started on Broadway nearly 50 years ago in 'Red, Hot and Blue,'" recalled Bob Hope. "Show business has lost one of its greats."

Miss Merman, who never took a singing lesson, was as much admired by audiences as she was by fellow performers. Her pipe-organ voice brought down the house with such songs as "There's No Business Like Show Business," "Everything's Coming Up Roses" and her own favorite, "I Got Rhythm."

"She will be missed. She was one of the last red hot mamas," said Charlotte Coan of Glendale, Calif., who was in New York attending a Broadway show Wednesday.

As the lights went out, Ruth Danaceau of Cleveland, Ohio, added: "When she belted out a song, she belted it out."

Or as composer Irving Berlin once put it: "You'd better give her a good song, because the audience was going to hear it."

She was found dead of natural causes at her Manhattan apartment, according to Dr. Elliot Gross, the city's medical examiner. She had undergone brain surgery last April 15 at Roosevelt Hospital, an institution she had visited once a week to cheer up the bedridden.

Gross said Miss Merman's body would be cremated by the Frank Campbell Funeral Home.

A spokesman for Campbell said no information would be released about the singer's death or possible memorial services because her son, Robert Levitt Jr., "wants it strictly private."

Berlin, who wrote "Annie Get Your Gun" for Miss Merman, said, "She was absolutely the greatest. You could feel safe with a song you gave Merman."

Miss Merman first took command of the musical stage in 1930. As a 21-year-old neophyte in "Girl Crazy," starring Ginger Rogers, she had one song and made the most of it — the show-stopping "I Got Rhythm."

Her success continued in such classics as "Anything Goes" in 1934, "Annie Get Your Gun" in 1946 and "Call Me Madam" in 1950. She also made two later New York stage appearances — in a limited-run revival of "Annie Get Your Gun" in 1966 and in the role created by Carol Channing as the star of "Hello, Dolly!" in 1970.

She had 13 movie credits between 1934 and 1976 and appeared on a number of television specials. Her movies included "Call Me Madam," "No Business Like Show Business" and a non-singing part in "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad World."

Whatever the song, Miss Merman delivered every note bell-clear to every corner of the theater, unamplified and without apparent effort.

ETHEL MERMAN

"George Gershwin told me, 'Don't ever take a music lesson. Ethel,'" she once said. "All I have done since is belt out the songs."

Her favorite role was Mama Rose in "Gypsy," the last Broadway role she originated.

Miss Merman won two Tony awards, in 1951 for "Call Me Madam" and a special Tony in 1972 honoring her entire career.

Born Ethel Agnes Zimmermann in Astoria, Queens, Miss Merman worked as a secretary after graduating from high school. She supplemented her earnings with local night jobs as a singer and a brief movie stint with Warner Bros. studios in New York.

In 1930 she played the Brooklyn Paramount, where producer Vinton Freedley heard her and thought Gershwin did, and hired her for "Girl Crazy."

Her four marriages all ended in divorce. The second, to Hearst executive Robert D. Levitt in 1942, lasted 11 years and the last, to Ernest Borgnine in 1964, ran only 38 days. She and Hollywood agent William B. Smith were married for a year in 1940, and her other husband was Robert Six, an airlines executive she wed in 1953 and shed in 1961.

Besides her son, Miss Merman had a daughter, Ethyl Six, who committed suicide in 1967.

Less Than Half

LONDON (AP) — Irish singer Gilbert O'Sullivan, who won an estimated $10.5 million from his former manager in a London court in 1982, will actually end up with "substantially less," defense lawyers say.

He also was granted the master tapes of his records and a share of his earnings between 1970 and 1978.

Bogus Bill Case Said Near End

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — It was a typical counterfeiting case, a spokesman for the U.S. Secret Service says, but it involved 20 to 30 arrests and an investigation that spanned five states including Virginia.

The arrest of Karen Ann Rose, 30, of Wytheville, on Feb. 2 for allegedly circulating counterfeit money marks what the Secret Service hopes will be the final bills to turn up in the case.

Ms. Rose is to be tried March 14 on charges of passing four counterfeit $20 bills, said Marion Police Chief John Grubb. She was arrested after Marion police got a call from an employee at a Jif-E-Mart store who said someone was attempting to cash a phony bill.

Authorities discovered the plant that was printing the bills last April 7 in Charlotte, N.C., said Dennis P. Shaw, agent in charge of Richmond's Secret Service office.

"The three individuals we arrested at the plant admitted printing $250,000 in counterfeit notes," Shaw said Wednesday. "We found $6,200 buried there."

He said Bluefield, W.Va., was where the first manufactured bill turned up May 29, 1982. The operation cost the public about $20,000, he said. In addition to Virginia and North Carolina, he said, arrests were made in Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia and Washington D.C.

As for the bills Ms. Rose is accused of circulating, Shaw said, "In our expertise, we did not consider this to be a good counterfeit note." Each phony note a person is convicted of circulating can mean 10 years in a federal prison, he said.

James David Foley, 47, of Martinsville, was apprehended the day after Ms. Rose was arrested, said Carroll Delp, special agent in charge of the Wytheville office of the Virginia State Police. Foley is charged with conspiracy to utter counterfeit currency, he said. The investigation is continuing.

Delp said counterfeit money turns up occasionally in southwest Virginia. Grubb said that about a year ago when he was a state trooper, some Nigerians were apprehended with 18 phony $100 bills.

Last year, Shaw said, $22,000 in counterfeit currency was seized in Virginia. The 1983 figure nationwide was $69 million. Shaw said 90 percent of all fake cash is recovered before it's passed on to the public.

Large cities like Miami, Los Angeles and New York are centers for circulation of counterfeit bills, he said.

"We ... find a strong correlation between counterfeit money and drugs," he said. "Our figures so far show that more than 50 percent of individuals associated with passing it are also dealing in drugs."

Few Get Asylum They Are Asking In United States

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Kamzati Chombo, a young African in a brown, three-piece polyester suit, sat among a half-dozen Salvadorans, waiting somberly in a judge's wood-paneled chamber for his asylum petition to be filed.

Missionaries had paid his way to the United States from his native Malawi, a small, poor country in southeastern Africa. Back in his homeland, he said, his father-in-law had been executed by the ruling regime. And the 27-year-old explained quietly that as part of the family, he also was in danger of being executed.

"I cannot go back," he said softly.

Chombo came to the tiny and crowded immigration court, located virtually in the shadow of the Capitol dome, to begin a process of persuading the government that his risk is real and not a ploy.

With the help of Jules Nolin, the grandfatherly, gray-haired counselor from the U.S. Catholic Conference who acted as his legal representadadif, Chombo joined the ranks of nearly 200,000 foreigners who seek safe haven on America's shores.

They have flooded the Immigration and Naturalization Service with their requests, but so far, relatively few have been able to realize their dream.

"The situation is really out of control," said Vern Jervis, a spokesman for the service. "We have applications from every nation on Earth."

In 1978, he said, the agency got only 3,700 applications. Now it has close to 170,000, which means about 200,000 individuals are seeking safe haven because many applications cover families.

During the last fiscal year, 2,479 asylum applications were approved.

The application surge began after Congress passed the 1980 Refugee Act, which broadened the basis for getting asylum. It used to be granted only to individuals from communist nations or certain areas in the Middle East.

Now, an applicant must prove to the INS — and the State Department, which passes judgment on the applications — that he or she has a "well founded fear of persecution" based upon race, religion, political opinions, nationality or membership in a social or political group.

INS and congressional officials, along with lawyers dealing with the agency, say the flood of paperwork has so bogged down the agency that people with legitimate requests to become permanent residents face two- to three-year waits before their cases can be resolved.

"INS gets asylum applications by the box," said Warren Leiden, the executive director of the American Immigration Lawyers' Association. "Their task is Herculean, and they have to deal with data processing equipment that is barely in the 1950s.... Lost files are a common occurrence."

The INS also complains that it is being burdened by "frivolous" asylum applications, particularly from those the agency argues are "economic refugees" seeking improved living conditions.

The agency also complains that applicants — and their lawyers — have discovered that a person who has applied for asylum cannot be deported until the end of legal proceedings, which can last years. For example, one case has been in the system for seven years and is now before the Supreme Court.

So to streamline and tighten the process, the administration has backed some proposals tucked away inside a bill currently before Congress.

The bill, which would revolutionize the nation's immigration laws, was passed by the Senate May 18 and awaits House action. Its chances for passage are clouded, however, because of fierce opposition from Hispanic groups who dislike the bill's sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens.

INS officials say they hope the bill will pass because revisions contained in it will wipe about 120,000 asylum applicants from the rolls by granting permanent resident status to those who have been in the United States for several years, primarily Cuban "boat people" who entered the country in 1980.

One reason for the increase in asylum-seekers and one that cannot be legislated away is the increased turmoil in nations near the United States.

To escape violence in their homelands some applicants "walk though Guatemala and Mexico, places where they shoot first and ask who you are later, to get to the United States," said Amit Pandya, a lawyer with the American Civil Liberties Union who works with asylum applicants. "It's no easy trip and their reasons for coming are not frivolous."

Critics also contend that the INS contributes to its own woes because it focuses intense scrutiny on some applicants, such as those from El Salvador.

Pandya said he finds the INS and State Department require much tougher proof from Salvadorans than they do from Iranians.

"It's a clearly political decision," he charged.

He cited INS statistics for fiscal year 1983 that of the 13,501 applications from El Salvador, which has a U.S.-supported government, 2,914 were denied and 71 were granted. Of the 9,661 applications from Iran, which has poor relations with the administration, some 561 were denied and 1,760 were granted.

Accusations that the administration's political bent influences asylum cases are "falacious and false," said W. Scott Burke, deputy assistant secretary of state for asylum and human rights affairs.

America takes on thousands of asylum seekers, said Burke, and a balance must be reached. "There are wars going on in 29 nations. It would be absurd to say that we should take people because there is a war going on," he said.
