Syria Agrees Cooperate In Lebanon Peace Effort

Miss You

A KISS GOODBYE — A young Lebanese Shiite Moslem boy gives a U.S. Marine a kiss goodbye at the edge of the Marine base at Beirut International airport Tuesday. The Marines were given official orders to begin leaving Beirut Tuesday morning. (AP Laserphoto)

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria said today it would cooperate in new efforts to bring peace to Lebanon, but one of President Amin Gemayel's Christian allies warned him not to bow to Syria's demand to scrap the troop withdrawal pact with Israel.

Gemayel is reportedly considering a new Saudi Arabian-sponsored proposal that calls for a cease-fire throughout Lebanon and a government declaration canceling the May 17 Lebanese-Israeli security pact.

Syria, which supports Gemayel's Druse and Shiite Moslem opponents, rejected an earlier Saudi-mediated peace plan. But Syria's official news agency said today, after a meeting between Saudi mediator Rafik Hariri and Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul-Halim Khaddam, that joint Syrian-Saudi efforts "to ensure peace and security in Lebanon" would continue.

"We have discussed and decided a few things," another mediator, Pbiné Bandar bin Sultan, the Saudi ambassador to the United States, said after the meeting. Noting Hariri was sent from Damascus, the Syrian capital, to Beirut today, the prince said, "We hope to have better news to say to you when he comes back."

Beirut's leading newspapers, the independent An-Nahar and the leftist As-Safir, said Gemayel hoped that by canceling the May 17 agreement he would be able to form a national coalition Cabinet that would meet the demands of Druse and Shiite rebels battling his army. But former President Camille Chamoun, head of an alliance of rightist Christian groups called the Lebanese Front, issued a statement warning Gemayel, a Christian, not to scrap the May 17 accord mediated by the United States.

Chamoun, 83, said the front would boycott any reconciliation talks and refuse to join a new Cabinet under Gemayel if the president cancels the agreement, which called for simultaneous withdrawal of Israeli and Syrian troops. The new Saudi plan reportedly would allow Syrian troops to remain in Lebanon pending a review by the Arab League.

An-Nahar and As-Safir said the president's aides were sounding out various politicians on how best to go about canceling the pact.

Meanwhile, U.S. Army Maj. Don McClary, a spokesman for the Marine unit, said the 1,300 Marines based at Beirut airport as part of the multinational force continued their withdrawal to Navy ships offshore and "basically have 2½ ships loaded."

This puts them about halfway through the process of returning equipment onto the ships that brought them to Beirut.

The pullback officially began Tuesday, and McClary said Marine helicopters and amphibious landing craft started ferrying members of the 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit out of Beirut.

Army Col. Ed McDonald, the chief spokesman at the base, said about 100 men, described as military police and artillery spotters, left for the ships Tuesday. He said the main redeployment was not yet under way.

"There will be very little movement of people in the next few days," he said.

A unit called Joint Task Force-Lebanon has been formed under the Marine base commander, Brig. Gen. James R. Joy, who will be responsible for the 100-man Marine contingent to remain at the U.S. Embassy, as well as a U.S. Army military assistance unit working with the Lebanese army. The U.S. Army unit now has about 80 men.

Since the airport base was established in September 1982, 265 U.S. servicemen have died in Lebanon.

The airport has been virtually surrounded by anti-government militias for a week, since Druse fighters pushed from the mountains to the coast south of the base and linked up with their Shiite allies.

Italian members of the four-nation multinational force withdrew Monday. British troops left Feb. 8. The other contingent, that of France, has no immediate plans to leave, but France is proposing a U.N. force as a replacement.

Akef Haidar, a former Lebanese army colonel who now is chief of military of Amal, the largest Shiite militia, said his forces would not take over the positions. They already hold better posts in the area, he said.

No major fighting was reported today. On Tuesday, the Israeli command said its jets struck at four buildings it described as guerrilla bases along the Beirut-Damascus highway in the central mountains and returned safely after the raid.

Local radio stations said the targets, around the town of Bhamdoun, were occupied by Syrian-backed Palestinian guerrillas and that some of them were set afire.

Lebanese reporters in Israeli-occupied Sidon said an armored Israeli patrol of eight tanks and 12 armored personnel carriers returned Tuesday after a sweep north of the Israeli defense line at the Awali River.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens was quoted by Israeli army radio as saying Israeli forces patrolled the area to demonstrate that Israel was not abandoning it.

Since the Druse offensive a week ago, the Israeli army has been sending patrols north of the river to the outskirts of Damour, 12 miles south of Beirut.

Property Owners Object To Proposed Rezoning; Planning Board Concurred

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Property owners living near the house formerly occupied by the Redevelopment Commission on Roundtree Drive object to a proposal by a physician to rezone the property for medical offices and the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission agrees with their sentiments.

The planning board voted unanimously Tuesday night to recommend that the City Council deny Dr. Cyril Khanvile's request to rezone the property at the north end of Moyewood Drive from the residential designation of R-6 to medical arts.

The board voted to continue until March consideration of a request by Dr. Andrew Best to rezone property across the street that currently houses his medical practice at the corner of South Roundtree Drive and Moyewood Drive. Best, who has operated his offices there since the late 1960s, asked for rezoning from R-6 to medical arts in view of the present non-conforming status of his office in a residential zone.

Roundtree Drive, said he and his neighbors objected to the Khanvile property being used for medical facilities in the middle of a residential section. He said traffic problems in the area would be increased and he asked planning board members if they would be comfortable with a doctor's office next door to their residences.

Harriet Dixon, also a resident of the Moyewood area, said the addition of another doctor's office would disfigure the neighborhood. She said she wondered why the Khanvile house has never been advertised as a residential structure since it was built as a home.

Esther Porteur of 400 Moyewood Drive said property owners in the area love Best and go along with his offices being located in the neighborhood but the situation would worsen with another medical facility in the area. She said she did not object to Best's property continuing as it is but she would not like to see it or the Khanvile property rezoned.

Bobby Roberson, planning director, said that although Best's office is considered a non-conforming use, it is allowed under what is referred to as the "grandfather clause" since it preceded the zoning. He said Best can continue to operate as a non-conforming use but problems would occur if the facility was destroyed by fire or other casualty and Best sought to rebuild. Currently, Best would be unable to expand his facilities under the non-conforming status.

Roberson said the planning staff had reservations about the Khanvile request, noting that parking problems would exist and the occupation of the house as a medical office would open uses that do not conform to the neighborhood.

It was pointed out that Khanvile bought the property from the Redevelopment Commission but then was unable to obtain a permit from the Board of Adjustments to operate a home occupation at the location. Khanvile now lives in Ohio and the Roundtree Drive house would be utilized by two physicians if the rezoning were approved.

Fred Mattox, appearing on behalf of Best and Khanvile, said the city lost a good doctor when Khanvile was unable to establish his practice here. Mattox said the unoccupied house has been vandalized and every month that goes by is expensive in terms of maintaining the facility.

Roberson said the staff would like to explore the possibility of adding a lot on Moyewood Drive that adjoins the Best property to the medical arts request. He requested that the Best request be continued until the property owner can be contacted relative to participating in the rezoning petition.

In other business, the board voted

Appointments To Board Announced

By CAROL TYER

New appointments to the Pitt County Hospital Board of Trustees were announced Tuesday night during a meeting of the board.

The new appointees are the Rev. Arlee Griffin of Greenville, James Little of Winterville and Brenda Wagner Sumner of Enfield. Reappointees are Dr. W. Jeffress Senter, Mamie Smith, Marvin C. Baldree Jr. and Dr. Frank Longino.

It was announced that the Duke Endowment has awarded the hospital $200,000 in first-year assistance on the construction project now under way expanding and modernizing the hospital's surgery, radiology and emergency departments. The Duke Endowment has also presented the hospital its annual contribution for free days of care —

$40,331, this year. Since 1951, Hospital President Jack Richardson pointed out, the Duke Endowment has awarded PCMH more than $1.6 million for capital projects and operating costs.

The board members were reminded of a planning retreat to be held March 26 and of the Hospital Foundation dinner to be held April 18.

Capital equipment purchases for pathology were approved including the following: a tissue processor for pathology at $25,000; a microcomputer system at $6,500, and an electron microscope tube package at $169,096.

Dr. Jack Allison, director of the hospital's Emergency Department, made a presentation on the possibility of starting a helicopter service here. He told of the information seeking and sharing that has already gone on and of how many trauma victims (52 percent more, studies have shown) could be saved with the time saved in getting them to an acute care medical center like PCMH. Other medical emergencies and critical newborns are among those who could also better be served, he said. Projections are that the service would transport about 650 persons per year, he indicated.

At 73, Private Eye Going Strong

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Got a problem you'd rather not turn over to police? Then get on the horn, dollface, and bend granny gumshoe's ear.

Private investigator stories usually involve a woman, but this one's got a twist — Florence Drummond Sperbeck is the P.I. And don't get any ideas, bright boy: she may be a septuagenarian, but she says she can still wield a mean pillow in a fight.

At 73, Mrs. Sperbeck, once known as "Bulldog," may be among the oldest private investigators around. But she's not letting up.

Head of a one-woman agency, Drummond Investigations, Mrs. Sperbeck still interviews potential witnesses for attorneys, traces lost people, looks up records and testifies in court.

"I think everything in my life has brought me to where I am now," she said in a recent interview at her office in this beach town 25 miles north of San Diego. "My life is motivated by trying to serve others."

"I have no trouble sleeping. I can go on a long trip from here to Oakland, and I never turn the radio on. I just enjoy thinking about the things I want to think about."

She has a lot to think about. Over the years she's been a department store audit clerk, a file clerk, mail clerk, policewoman, modeling counselor, juvenile control officer. Her career as a private eye began at age 57, when she was seasoned by a few scrapes.

Working in the 1950s for the Alameda Police Department, she was called to the home of a deranged woman.

"I was trying to be nice to her," Mrs. Sperbeck recalled. "She said, 'Look at Lucy!' She was watching 'I Love Lucy.' I just took my eyes off her for a second, and I know better than that. She pulled this table knife out of her bosom that she had filed down to a point so it looked like a dagger. Her son hollered, 'Look out!'"

"I had gone into her house with a pillow in my hand because I knew she was mentally off. That's a good weapon to use: you shove it in somebody's face and cut off their air. I just shoved the pillow in her face. With that, she fell down on the floor, and I sat on her until (another) officer got the restraining straps on her."

"Some people use a gun. I use a pillow."

In 1929 she married Peter Drummond, then divorced him nine years later. She married again in 1964 to attorney Ivan Sperbeck, who died in 1970. She has one living child.

Throughout it all she tried to improve herself, taking civil service exams at every chance. After being a mail clerk, she went to work for the Oakland Police Department's traffic division in 1942 "and built their parking violations up from a wastepaper basket to a paying activity."

She helped start the Northern California Juvenile Officers Association while in Alameda and was the first juvenile officer of the Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department.

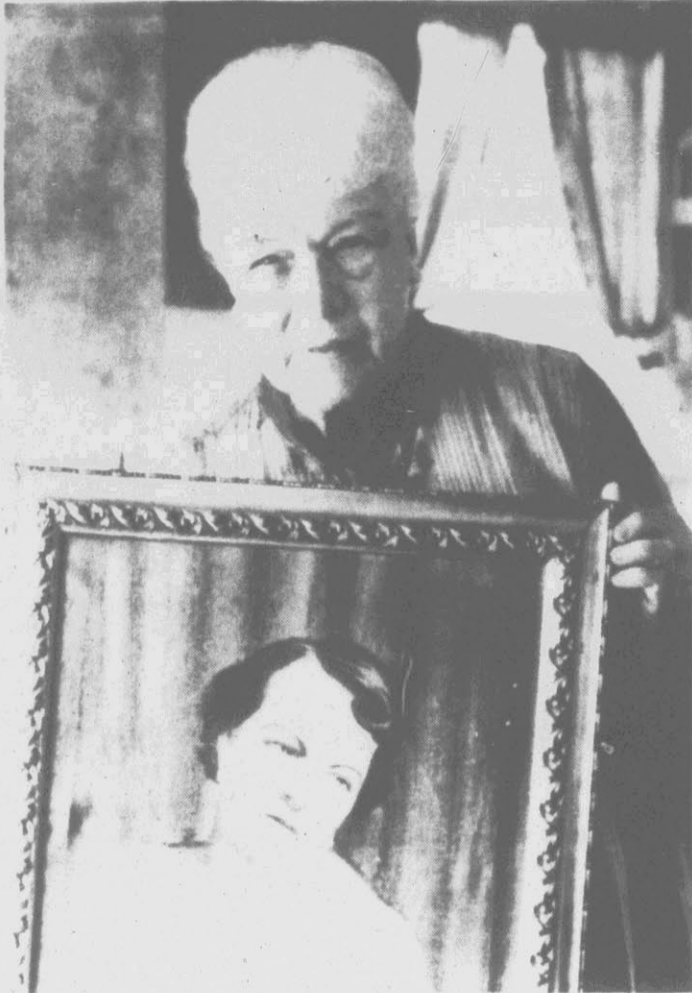

"My job was not just to arrest people and put them in jail," she said. "My job was to help these people straighten out their lives. And I can honestly say I have never arrested anybody or put anybody in jail unless I thought this is what I had to do to help them."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Lie Detector's Truth Has Cruel Consequences

DEAR ABBY: Because you are able to reach so many people, I submit the following facts:

Scientific studies show conclusively that polygraph tests (the so-called "lie detector") tend to be wrong about one-third of the time! Even worse, the evidence affirms a strong bias against the innocent person; 47 percent of the suspects who were erroneously classified as "deceptive" were later shown to have been telling the truth.

I have been personally involved in three murder cases where the prosecution offered to drop charges against the suspect if he passed the lie detector, in exchange for an agreement to permit the polygraph results to be used in evidence if the suspect failed. In all three cases, the suspects did fail, the polygrapher's testimony formed the heart of the prosecutor's case, the men were each found guilty and sentenced to life in prison.

Later each of these "convicted murderers" was found to be innocent and was freed — but only after spending from one to five years behind bars!

Many wrongly accused people were eager to be tested, confident that their innocence would be affirmed, only to fail the test.

There is nothing scientific about the polygraph, and people should be encouraged to refuse to submit to it.

DEAR ABBY: What name should appear on the gravestone or marker of a woman who had been married twice and is being buried next to her first husband? Her second husband will be buried next to his first wife.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: There is no set rule on this. When a woman is buried beside her first husband, she usually resumes his name so that both names will be the same on the headstones. In some instances the second husband gets second billing — his name in parentheses.

Doll Reproductions Are Booming

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer
GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Connie Walser Derek started out by selling rag dolls at local flea markets for $15 to help support her four children after her divorce.

Now she gets as much as $1,200 for handmade reproductions of antique porcelain dolls from the late 1800s, offers seminars in doll making and is coming out with a line of patterns for costumes to dress the idealized images of Victorian children. "It's just such a booming business," marvels Mrs. Derek in the storefront where she moved the business after it got too big for her home. With antiques bringing as much as $38,000, it's not surprising that collectors with less means will pay as much as $1,200 for a good copy or spend long hours learning how to make their own. "These were what were called Sunday dolls," Mrs. Derek says, pointing to 21 shelves carrying hundreds of unfired porcelain heads, arms, legs and torsos cast from molds taken from originals made by the French and German masters of doll making. The shelves are marked with names well-known in antique doll circles: Bru, Jumeau, J.D. Kestner and Bye-Lo.

"They brought them out on Sunday and the little girl could sit with it. They were for children then. But they're not for children today. The price puts it out of the field of play," Mrs. Derek says.

Therault's, an Annapolis, Md., auction house which specializes in the field, sold about 1,000 antiques dolls a month last year for a total of about $4 million, says spokeswoman Susan Hastings.

"In a survey taken a few years ago, we found that one out of five people are involved in doll collecting at one level or another and 35 percent of them are men," she adds.

A doll made by French sculptor Albert Marque holds the record for the top price paid for a doll, Ms. Hastings says. A vintage car collector from the Los Angeles area paid $38,000 for the doll a year ago as a present for his wife, who collects dolls.

"Doll legend reports that there were only 20 of these ever made. Supposedly they were not made as dolls, but as things to display costumes for a lady friend of the sculptor," Ms. Hastings says.

So many others are interested in making the dolls that Mrs. Derek found herself devoting much of her time to teaching doll making rather than practicing it.

"The first time I put an ad in the paper I got 50 calls," she says.

The Doll Artisan Guild, based in Oneonta, N.Y., claims more than 7,000 members worldwide, most of them amateur or professional doll makers, says director Rolf Ericson. The United Federation of Doll Clubs in Parkville, Mo., has about 16,000 members, he adds.

"Doll collecting is the third largest collector's interest in the world, following stamps and coins," Ericson says.

The guild's last contest for reproduction doll makers drew more than 600 entries, and more than 1,000 entries are expected for the next one, he says.

People come from around the country to attend a three-day seminar in doll making Mrs. Derek gives in this rural southern Oregon city.

"Women who come to the class want to make a particular doll because it looks like a grandson or a granddaughter," she says. "They also make baby dolls so they can wear their grandfather's or grandmother's christening gown. They are very emotionally attached to it."

Those who attend will learn to pour liquid porcelain into a plaster mold, let it harden a few minutes, then pour out the excess to get a hollow casting.

The unfired porcelain, known as greenware, is gingerly trimmed and smoothed before it is fired without a glaze to form what is called bisque.

The bisque is smoothed again and painted with bushy eyebrows, luxurious eyelashes, blushing cheeks and rosy lips. After each feature is painted, the casting is fired to prevent smudging.

Glass eyes are installed, a cork pate is added to attach the human-hair wig, and then the finished head is put on a body and dressed with a period costume.

"It's an expensive hobby, but it's satisfying," Mrs. Derek says.

The first time Mrs. Derek made a doll, she found it was harder than it looked.

"I had all this background (in art) and I thought it would be a breeze," she says. "I took the doll home with me and I sweated over those eyelashes for 22 hours."

Last year she made about 75 dolls and sold about 50, she says. She sells most of them through advertisements in doll magazines and some at her shop.

The molds Mrs. Derek uses are cast from antiques. But she is working on an original design based on the popular Victorian prints made from drawings by Maude Humphrey.

If you are cutting down on salt, you may be interested in making your own well-seasoned sausage patties using a new salt alternative. It's a blend of 14 herbs and spices plus onion, sweet greek pepper, tomato, lemon and orange peel. That's all.

You may want to serve these sausage patties for brunch. They're delicious with creamed potatoes or hominy. Bloody Marys (made with unsalted tomato juice) would make a good beginning and pecan rolls and coffee a fine finish.

BREAKFAST SAUSAGE
1 pound lean pork, cut into 1-inch cubes
1/2 pound pork fat, cut into 1-inch cubes
1 tablespoon dried sage
1 tablespoon 14-herb-and-spice blend
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon cayenne
3 tablespoons oil

Grind pork and fat cubes in a food grinder so that mixture is a medium texture. Turn into a medium-size bowl. Add sage, 14-herb-and-spice blend, thyme, allspice, pepper and cayenne. With your hands, mix until well blended. Shape 1/2 cupfuls of pork mixture into six 4-inch patties.

Heat oil in a large heavy skillet over medium-low heat. Add patties in one layer without crowding; fry, turning once, until cooked through and browned on both sides. Remove to paper towel-lined plate to drain; keep warm while frying remaining patties.

Makes 6 patties.
Note: You can grind pork and fat cubes in a food processor fitted with a metal blade. Depending on the size of your processor bowl, this may have to be done in batches.

Restoring Kitchen Cabinets — A Thorough Cleaning May Be The Answer

Unightly kitchen cabinets may look as though they have to be refinished, but they may just need a thorough cleaning.

Kitchen cabinets are constantly subjected to cooking, dishwashing and other activities so they get dirtier than cabinets found elsewhere in the home. Grimy stains concentrate around cabinet handles of doors and drawers are especially unattractive on light finishes. The longer greasy dirt builds up, the more difficult it becomes to remove. Kitchen soils can generally be washed off with a solution of detergent and water if they do not accumulate for too long.

In determining the kind of care required, consideration needs to be given to the type of material or finish of the cabinets.

Wood, the traditional cabinet material, comes in a variety of finishes. There are the deep, dark tones, the lighter fruit woods, birch and white. Unpainted wooden cabinets are also available that can be painted or stained to coordinate with the kitchen decor.

Laminated plastics or wood grain vinyls are used for cabinets that offer a variety of colors, patterns and texture effects. The finish is scratch-resistant and easy to clean.

All steel cabinets come in a variety of colors and finishes and those of good quality have a coating of rust preventative material and a baked on enamel finish.

Regular cleaning will keep any type of kitchen cabinets in good shape. A creamy liquid wax that cleans and waxes helps keep cabinets soil free. For periodic care of cabinets, washing with a detergent solution may be necessary. An all-purpose household cleaner may also be used. Check package instructions first to be sure that the cleaner can be applied to the type of cabinet surface.

Start by wiping the solution over the surface with a cloth. Rinse the cloth in clean water and wring it out. Wipe off the surface thoroughly. Use a clean dry cloth to buff the cabinets dry. This also helps maintain the luster and prevents streaking. A detergent solution or household cleaner will usually lift stains from painted, laminated or metal surfaces.

Wood-finish cabinets may need further treatment, however. A solvent such as a paint thinner helps to remove deeply embedded grease or wax. The product must be used with care since it is highly flammable. Be certain that the area where you are working is well ventilated and there are no open flames or pilot lights (such as gas water heater) on in the kitchen. Removing doors and drawers and working outdoors is an alternative.

Before applying thinner to the cabinets, make sure that it will not harm the wood finish. Test an inconspicuous corner of a cabinet or the back of the door by dabbing thinner on it.

To apply paint thinner, dab it on a clean cloth and vigorously rub it on the cabinets. Turn the cloth over frequently or refold it so the dirt will not be rubbed back into the wood. Change to a clean cloth as soon as the first one is saturated with grime. Rub stained areas with thinner until they look clean.

Cabinets that have been treated with paint thinner may look dull. Usually the luster can be restored by applying a coat of furniture wax or polish. Apply the polish sparingly and buff immediately.

Some cabinets may be beyond the cleaning stage with refinishing necessary. But the time and effort spent in cleaning has not been wasted. Good results in refinishing can only be achieved on clean surfaces. Grease, dirt and wax interfere with the binding of a new finish.

Spreading Influence With Money

One At A Time

Police last week warned of "quick change artists" working in the area.

Such operators approach a clerk in a store, then buy a small item with a large bill. Quickly they ask for change for another bill and in the confusion walk off with the store's money. It is a well known con game and once the open season for such activities in this area was when tobacco sales began and big money was in circulation.

Now anytime seems to be a good time to carry out a "scam." Police advised clerks to complete one transaction before starting another. The advice is good and storekeepers should follow it.

Stark Prediction

We seldom are concerned about our food supply, since it is plentiful in this nation and most developed nations.

Worldwide, however, there is concern about food and the situation is growing more desperate.

A United Nations expert says productive land around the world is becoming desert at the rate of 14.8 million acres per year and that a third of the world's arable land could be lost by the year 2000. Efforts to halt this loss of land are no longer feasible, Gaafar Karrar, chief of the desertification branch of the U.S. Environmental Program, says.

He had no answer to the problem, but the result could be mass starvation in some areas of the world. It is a stark prediction and, if correct, it could greatly affect the political makeup of the world by the end of the century.

High-Level Advice

WASHINGTON — Summoned urgently to high-level White House and State Department discussions about how President Reagan should handle the new Soviet leadership, two old pros, Henry A. Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski, gave vehement warnings to go slow.

Both Republican Kissinger and Democrat Brzezinski strongly recommended against a presidential visit to Moscow for the funeral of Yuri Andropov, and both strongly urged extreme caution toward any quick summit. The basic reason: High expectations would probably be dashed, raising tensions again to present levels or higher. The president gave just that reason last week in rejecting a quick, get-acquainted summit.

Brzezinski has told intimates, however, that a non-ceremonial working session — limited to nuclear arms control — might usefully be held sometime this summer with Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko.

The usual cool of Walter F. Mondale's political campaign team was broken after the Feb. 11 Democratic presidential debate in Des Moines when his managers were a little panicky over how to answer Sen. Gary Hart's challenge to list differences between Mondale and the AFL-CIO.

Influential supporters of Mondale, including former Democratic national chairman Robert S. Strauss, felt their man's non-response to Hart was a mistake. While key Mondale operatives James Johnson and Bob Beckel maintained calm on the surface, they privately were seeking advice on ways to handle the labor problem.

The advice: Answer Hart's question. Five days after the debate, Mondale finally pointed to differences between him and organized labor on the B-1 bomber, the Clinch River nuclear reactor and air pollution. But choosing issues on which he is to labor's left and which are of less than overriding importance to the AFL-CIO anyway did not lay the issue to rest.

The gap between one of the House's most powerful Democrats, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, and the House Democratic leadership is widening because of negotiations on the proposed deficit-reduction "down payment."

During the one session held so far, Reagan administration representatives suggested that Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and Rostenkowski, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, get together by themselves to devise a revenue package. But House Majority Leader Jim Wright would have none of it. Revenue is integral to the "down payment," said Wright, and must be negotiated by the whole working group.

Work quickly came back to Rostenkowski, who had been steaming anyway over the decision by Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Wright not to put him on the down payment negotiating team. If no agreement is reached by the working group within the month, Rostenkowski plans to start moving his own tax bill.

Three Southern senators are considered by President Reagan's political advisers as the biggest threats on a Democratic ticket headed by Walter F. Mondale: Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Sam Nunn of Georgia and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas.

Bensten is widely viewed within Mondale's own entourage as the vice presidential nominee who could bring the greatest strength to the ticket — if he can escape a veto by the AFL-CIO. The ideologically moderate Bentsen might deliver all-important Texas to the Democrats.

But Reagan and his top political aides see Nunn as a running mate whose popularity transcends Georgia, which in itself does not rival Texas in importance. Despite his liberalism, Bumpers is eyed in the White House as the third-toughest threat to Reagan in Dixie. The Reagan high command does not consider the two Southern presidential hopefuls, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, as possible running mates.

Ed Rollins, political director of President Reagan's campaign, has passed word to powerful White House aide Richard Darman not to put the Reagan-Bush re-election team on the side of liberal Elliot Richardson for the Republican senatorial nomination in Massachusetts.

A lady friend of mine from Maryland named Sally came into the office the other day and showed me a letter. "I need your advice on this."

I looked at the letterhead. It was from the "United States Congressional Advisory Board," which listed as Co-Chairmen Sen. Jake Garn (R-Utah), Sen. J. Bennett Johnston (D-La.), Rep. Jack Kemp (R-N.Y.), and Rep. Bill Chappell Jr. (D-Fla.)

The letter began, "We are writing to you today personally to invite you to join with us in the select United States Congressional Advisory Board."

"As a charter member you will advise and support the members of Congress (232 Senators and Representatives) who belong to the Coalition for Peace Through Strength... Our objective is to get today's and tomorrow's opinion leaders really involved and helping on defense, foreign policy, and internal security matters."

The letter then went on to say that the "Advisory Board" was in a fight with "well established ultra liberal organizations who have been unilaterally disarming the U.S. and are trying to keep us from rebuilding our strength."

It said that Sally could become a Chairmen's Advisor for $1,000, a Senior Advisor for $500, a Special Advisor for $250, and a State Advisor for $100, annually of course.

If Sally became an advisor to the chairman, she would receive a "Handsome Engraved Wall Plaque" to hang in her home or office. If she chose to be a senior, special or state advisor she would receive "a 9 x 12 Embossed and Sealed Membership Certificate."

She would also get a "Special Identification Tag" to wear to congressional receptions. But most important of all, Sally would "establish one-on-one relationships with Members of Congress and other leaders on the Congressional Advisory Board."

After finishing the letter I said, "It's a helluva honor, Sally. What's the problem?"

"I just have a feeling they're trying to get some money out of me."

"That's ridiculous. I'll bet they haven't sent out more than 500,000 letters like this. You should feel flattered that Garn, Johnston, Kemp and Chappell are seeking your input on the problems of this country. I know those guys and they don't take advice very easily."

"But," Sally protested, "I don't know anything about defense, foreign policy or internal security."

"Don't be modest, Sally. They apparently think otherwise or they wouldn't have written to you."

"I thought senators and congressmen held hearings and questioned expert witnesses on things like that."

"Of course they do. But then they also depend on advice from other sources. This is a great opportunity, Sally, that you may never have again. Just think of you sitting in a room with these four powerful legislators. They're up a tree on what to do about the arms talks and they turn to you in desperation and say, 'Sally, what do you think we should do to acquire a first-strike capability?'"

"Do you believe they'll really ask my opinion on things like that?"

"Of course they will. They're not going to put someone on a United States Congressional Advisory Board whose opinion they don't respect."

"How often do you think they'll want to meet with me?"

"It doesn't say here in the letter, but I would guess at least once a day. Also, I imagine when a big defense bill came up in Congress they would want to call you at home to see how they should vote."

"It's an awesome responsibility," Sally said.

"That's why they're asking you to send in $1,000 annually. This will prevent them from getting advice from deadbeats."

"Maybe I should just send in $250 and become a 'Special Advisor.' Then I'd have time for other things."

"You have to go for the big one, Sally," I told her. "No respectable United States senator or congressman is going to take advice from somebody who won't put her money where her mouth is."

Questions For Candidates

RALEIGH — During the coming campaign, candidates for state and legislative offices will spend a lot of time and money telling the voters how wonderful they are and how "the people" need someone just like themselves in Raleigh.

If you're interested in how they'll act once they get to the Capitol, you might want to attend a candidates' forum and ask how they stand on some of the issues which promise to highlight the 1985 General Assembly.

•In the 1984 session, teachers are sure to get a big pay raise. There's public sentiment for it, there's money left over from this year's budget and the budget drafted for next year doesn't spend all the revenue the state can expect to collect. But in 1985, legislators might not be looking at such a rosy picture for the 1985-86 fiscal year. How does your candidate intend to sustain teacher pay raises past July 1, 1985? Or does he intend to forget teacher pay raises as the legislature did in 1981 after a healthy 1980 raise?

•Does your candidate support the extension of the school day and/or the school year.

•There are moves afoot to repeal the intangibles, inventory and food taxes. Does your candidate support any of these tax repeals? If so, how will he make up the lost revenue? (Cutting government waste is a cop-out. No legislator ever finds enough waste to pay for the state subsidy on the lunch he buys in the cafeteria.) This is a particularly good question to ask after your candidate commits himself to a $400 million pay raise for teachers.

•In 1983, the question of a state-operated lottery was hotly debated even though it didn't arise in the 1982 campaign. Does your candidate support a state-run lottery or any other form of legalized gambling?

•State law currently forbids the state from drafting any environmental regulations which are stricter than those written by the federal government. This is called the Hardison Amendment after its sponsor, Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir. Ask your candidate if he supports the repeal of this law.

•Legislation proposed in 1983 would have given workers the right to know which hazardous chemicals, if any, are in their workplace. Business lobbyists kept it from becoming law then but advocates promise another try in either 1984 or 1985. Would your candidate support this bill?

•One issue that always prompts a fight in the assembly is the state-funding of abortions for poor women. Does your candidate support this?

•Several amendments to the U.S. Constitution could come before the 1985 assembly. The Equal Rights Amendment, an amendment permitting organized prayer in public schools and another to require a balanced federal budget all could pass the Congress and be sent to the states for ratification. How does your candidate stand?

•Two issues of concern to North Carolina elections promise to be with us for a while. Does your candidate support efforts to modify or eliminate the primary run-off system? Minorities say the current system makes it almost impossible for them to get candidates elected to some offices. Also, does your candidate want the state to re-consider the constitutional amendment which allows the governor and lieutenant governor to succeed themselves?

•Finally, does your candidate support the death penalty? Does he support any of the proposals which would provide non-prison punishment for non-violent crimes?

Ask your candidate these questions. His answers will provide a better indication of his fitness for office than will his advertising.

Differences Will Emerge

Ronald Reagan onto the national political scene.

Four years ago, the ideological differences between Reagan and Carter were blurred by the host of problems, domestic and foreign, that besieged the Democratic administration.

This year, beneath the rhetoric, the choice will be clearer. Reagan is not a president besieged. He is a politician who has succeeded in shifting the direction of the federal government. He is the first incumbent president in many elections to run as the anti-government candidate.

"Coming here from Washington, D.C.," the president told a rally in Des Moines, "is a little like landing in the real world after a visit to the twilight zone." Later he added that government "causes more problems than it solves."

The arguments the two sides will use are already clear from the speeches heard in Iowa in recent weeks.

"Candidates in the other party have already laid out a strategy of promising everything to everybody," Reagan told Iowans during a brief caucus day visit.

He cited the interest and inflation rates of the final year of the Carter presidency and contrasted them with the far lower rates now. Unless that changes those numbers will be staples of the president's re-election campaign.

Reagan's attack on Democrats who are "promising everything to everybody" echoed the rhetoric some Democrats have directed at Walter F. Mondale, who emerged as the big winner in the Iowa Democratic precinct caucuses.

If Mondale capitalizes on the momentum of his opening-round victory to sweep to the Democratic nomination, the choice in November will pit the anti-government president against his pro-government challenger.

Hours after Reagan spoke in Des Moines, Mondale celebrated his

Strength For Today

St. Augustine once remarked that theology is faith seeking to understand itself.

There are some people who say that they have little interest in theology. "I like practical religion," they say. "Give me the Golden Rule and the 13th chapter of I Corinthians on the nature of love and you can take your theology and store it away in seminaries and church basements."

But this is a superficial judgment. Every Christian must be interested in theology, which is the teacher the church sets forth about God. When we get too theoretical about our religion, a scoffing world calls this to our attention.

Theoretical religion is no religion at all. But by the same token, when people have no theories about their religion, when they do not turn each concept over in their minds and reflect upon it, then vital religion ceases to be the basis for understanding the world about them and the Great Power at work in this world.

Some Failures With Pacemakers

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pacemaker manufacturer says 18,000 of the leads it makes to connect the regulating mechanism to a patient's heart have a 10 percent failure rate three years after implantation.

But the firm says the problem can usually be spotted by routine monthly monitoring before patients suffer any ill effect.

Medtronic Inc. of Minneapolis is discouraging physicians from routinely operating to replace the potentially defective pacemaker wires.

The Food and Drug Administration said Tuesday it agrees with Medtronic's advice that monthly monitoring — usually done electronically over telephone lines between a patient's home and a doctor's office — can most often detect the problem before the patient's symptoms recur.

But the FDA also said that physicians should decide whether to implant new leads based on each patient's individual medical condition.

At the Lancaster General Hospital in Pennsylvania, surgeons have decided to replace the Medtronic leads in half the 361 patients who have the potentially defective wires carrying an electrical impulse to their hearts. The patients selected for surgery were those considered especially dependent on pacemakers to keep their hearts beating normally.

"We're recommending routine monitoring," David Levy, a spokesman at Medtronic's headquarters in Minneapolis, said Tuesday. "We're certainly not recommending an action similar to Lancaster where they ordered wholesale, prophylactic replacement as a preventive measure."

The trouble is caused by an insulation defect, not a flaw in the pacemaker itself. The FDA said the failure rates for the Medtronic leads — 1 percent after one year, 4 percent after two years and 10 percent after three years — were "exceptionally high."

But no injuries or deaths have been reported. FDA spokesman William Grigg, and "we believe there's virtually no instance when this failure would directly cause death."

Some 500,000 Americans have pacemakers implanted in their chests. Medtronic, the leading manufacturer, sent a letter to physicians

Monday alerting them to the problem.

Levy said 26,271 of the potentially flawed leads were manufactured between December 1979 and February 1982 and about 18,000 remain implanted.

The leads were for Medtronic model 6972 pacemakers, but Levy said that some surgeons may have used the Medtronic leads with other pacemakers, and in some cases may have used different leads with model 6972.

Only those leads with the letter "R" as the suffix on the serial number or the letter "V" as the suffix on serial numbers below ND0024059V are affected. Patients may know their pacemaker model, but only physicians are likely to know the serial number of the leads, the FDA said.

Some 1,200 to 1,800 of these leads were exported, and Medtronic is notifying purchasers in foreign countries of the problem. Medtronic sells pacemakers and leads in 75 countries, Levy said.

The company said that in 80 percent of patients, if the pacer or lead failed it might take weeks or months before the heart returned to its abnormal, slow beat, and the patient might not notice the failure. But in the other 20 percent, the failure could cause a noticeable slowing of the heart.

Levy said the company has had only 177 confirmed insulation failures on these leads, but added that surgeons may not return all faulty leads. The problem is covered by warranty and Medtronic has offered to pay patients' unreimbursed medical expenses up to $600.

Last week the firm said it would cover the full, out-of-pocket costs for the patients undergoing the two-hour replacement surgery in Lancaster.

The patients usually spend six to seven days in the hospital at a total cost of $5,000.

Point To Auditing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government overspent millions of dollars for the Black Hawk helicopter, F-15 and F-16 fighter planes and other weapons because audit checks were "minimal or non-existent," Pentagon inspectors say.

In a report dated Jan. 16 and made available Tuesday, Assistant Inspector General James H. Curry said an eight-month spot check of major contracts disclosed little internal audit coverage of sub-contracts.

"We found that subcontractors' pricing proposals were not always properly analyzed by either prime contractor or government audit-technical agencies," the report said.

"Further, in those cases where such analyses were made, the results were not always given appropriate consideration when negotiating prime contract prices."

Among other things, the report said that the Army had been advised in December 1982 that it might be paying from between $30.5 million to $40.8 million more than necessary for Black Hawk helicopters because the prime contractor negotiated better prices with its subcontractors after it had completed negotiations with the government.

The Black Hawk, the Army's newest utility chopper, is manufactured by Sikorsky Aircraft Division of United Technologies Corp.

In another example, the report said Pentagon inspectors advised the Air Force in March 1983 that audits of contracts for F-15 and F-16 fighter plane engines disclosed "at least $39 million in overpricing."

According to the report, Pratt & Whitney Group, a subsidiary of United Technologies, was awarded a contract for the engines "even though adequate analyses had not been made of proposed subcontract costs totalling $380 million."

See Responsible Student Approach

DURHAM (AP) — Duke officials say college students are taking a more responsible approach to drinking since the passage of the state's Safe Roads Act.

University leaders met with student representatives before the Safe Roads Act was adopted, and a Duke Alcohol Enforcement Policy was drawn. Plans are underway to include information on the Safe Roads Act in the packets mailed to new students.

Officials said monitors check identifications at student functions, and some students have formed an Alcohol Awareness Task Force.

John Baker, president of the Associated Students of Duke University, said the purpose of the law isn't to stop students from drinking, but to keep drunk drivers from behind the wheel.

"On Duke's campus, I see no less drinking to be sure," Baker said. But he added that more students are using public transportation after drinking, and they seem to understand the seriousness of the law.

Threat Reported

Officer D.C. Johnson said Greenville police are investigating an attempted rape reported at 12:05 a.m. today.

Johnson said an 18-year-old East Carolina University co-ed told police she was grabbed by a man, who threatened to rape her, as she walked along West Fourth Street, near the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad crossing. However, Johnson said the woman was able to kick her way free and call police.

CLARENCE WIGGINS

Clarence Wiggins of Raleigh, president of Century Data Inc., will address the Society for the Advancement of Management of the East Carolina University School of Business Thursday at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of the Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Center.

Wiggins is an expert in growth strategy for small business, according to Dr. Louis W. Eckstein, management professor in the business school. Century Data Inc. was begun by Wiggins in Raleigh nine years ago and was recently recognized as one of the top 500 growth companies in the United States specializing in computerized control systems for retail establishments, Eckstein said.

Two Collisions

Counted Tuesday

Two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday resulted in an estimated $1,800 damage.

Cars driven by Glenn Santee Gullege of Branch's Trailer Park and Robert Cletus Adams of Route 2, Greenville, collided about 5:30 p.m. on Charles Street, 72 feet south of the Oakmont Drive intersection, police said, causing $800 damage to the Gullege car and $300 damage to the Adams auto.

Officers charged Gullege with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Investigators said cars driven by Deborah Kathryn Warren of Route 2, Williamston, and Claudia Cilloniz Marchini of 107 Lord Ashley Drive, collided about 5:52 p.m. on Arlington Boulevard, 200 feet west of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, resulting in an estimated $300 damage to the Warren car and $400 damage to the Marchini car.

Police charged Ms. Warren with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Porn Calls Not Free

Carolina Telephone says that several New York telephone numbers for erotic recordings are being circulated and CT&T customers are complaining when they find charges for toll calls to the numbers on their bills.

"The telephone numbers are falling into the hands of school children who are calling from residences," said G.T. Pate, the firm's corporate communications director. "In many cases, the children think they are calling toll-free numbers. When customers find the charges on their bills, they are complaining to our business offices, not believing that anyone at their residences would dial a number like that."

Pate said nearly all of CT&T's exchanges have automatic number identification which records the calling number on long-distance calls. He said, "We ask that customers investigate carefully the possibility of someone having made these calls before contacting our business office."

Pate said the numbers, which are a Manhattan exchange, promote a pornography magazine and are suggestive although obscene language is not used in the recordings.

He said CT&T has no control over the recordings as the issue involves a right to freedom of speech as protected by the Constitution.

Contractors

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of the Professional Engineers of North Carolina will meet Thursday at the Ramada Inn, Greenville. John Alford of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. will present a program on transmission materials in the telecommunications industry.

A social will be held at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be at 7:30. The program will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6.50 per person.

Math Contest

A MATHCOUNTS contest for seventh and eighth graders will be held Saturday at J.H. Rose High School. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. and awards will be presented at 4 p.m. The contest is sponsored by the National Society of Professional Engineers.

Winners of this contest will participate in state-level competition in Raleigh in August. The top state teams compete in the MATHCOUNTS finals May 18-19 in Washington, D.C. Prizes on the national level include a trip to Florida to view a space shuttle launch.

Discussion

The Coastal Plains chapter of the Epilepsy Association of North Carolina will have a discussion group Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Topics to be discussed will be the plans for next month's meeting to be held in Washington, N.C., the possibility of an eastern region office in Raleigh, new pamphlets on blood levels and medication expenses, and anything pertaining to seizure disorders. For more information, call 752-3769 and leave a message or write the chapter, P.O. Box 7121, Greenville.

Queens Scholar

Kathryn Elizabeth Yorke of Greenville has been recognized as a Queens Scholar at a recent honors convocation at Queens College in Charlotte. Miss Yorke is a sophomore at Queens and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Yorke of 322 Oxford Road.

Dental Health

Students at G.R. Whitfield School celebrated Dental Health Week with dental health displays and learning centers in classrooms, tasting parties for health snacks, puppet shows and other activities.

Films on dental health were shown and letters to parents were written on stationary featuring the week's theme of "Let's Get Dental."

During the week dental assistants Gwen Rogers and Mattie Cole visited classrooms to check students' teeth and give programs. Dr. Bruce Tripp also visited several classes to speak on good dental health habits. Students from three classes took a field trip to Dr. Jasper Lewis' office for a dental health program by Ann Griffith.

Task Force

The Pitt County Juvenile Task Force will meet Monday at 3 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Pitt County Office Building at 1717 W. Fifth St. The meeting is open to the public.

Workshop

East Carolina University, the Division of Social Work and the Coastal District of North Carolina NASW will sponsor a workshop on "Women in Transition" at the Mendenhall Student Center.

The workshop will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on March 2, and is open to the public. Registration fee is $12 for NASW members, $5 for students and $15 for non-NASW members.

The workshop will focus on the definition of women in transition and the identification of contemporary issues created by this transition.

Coordinator

Jamesena Moore, daughter of J.W. and M.M. Grimes of 1702 W. Fourth St., was recently named American Red Cross coordinator for Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, Neb.

Meeting Monday

The Greenville Area Preservation Association will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Willis Building at the corner of First and Reade streets.

Dick McKeer, co-chairman of the newly incorporated Evergreen, will be the guest speaker. He will discuss the areas of activities the Evergreen will address in both economic development and assistance and historic preservation. The meeting is open to the public.

Benefit Totals

Proceeds from the Burger King Basketball Shoot-Out for Easter Seals at Bethel Elementary totaled over $700, school officials have announced.

Top money-raisers for 1984 were Travis Howell, Troy Whitehurst, David Williams, Willie Little, Susan Ballard and Jeffery Bell. Sharpshooters included Felicia Langley, Robert Simmons, Willie Little, Tamrita Johnson, Susan Ballard and Dallas Gaynor.

The event was sponsored by the girls basketball team and coaching staff. Students in grades 4-8 obtained sponsors who pledged money for each basket scored in a three-minute period. Proceeds go to the Easter Seals organization.

Data Sought

Gritton School is currently gathering information on students who will be attending kindergarten at the school in the 1984-85 school year, school officials have announced.

To be eligible a child must be 5 years old by Oct. 16, 1984. For further information call the school at 524-5141.

Art Classes

J.H. Rose High School students in Billy Stinson's art classes designed and painted the scenery for the Elmhurst PTA play, "Hansel and Gretel." The play was performed by Elmhurst second graders under the direction of teachers Faye Adams, Mabel Godette and Anna Tillman and music teacher Betty Boyd.

Those Rose High students helping with the scenery were Stacy Hamilton, Karie Seykora, Michele Dudley, Betty Leggett, Bobby Casey, Mark Brewington, Kent Lee, Mark Elmore and Ginger McLawhorn.

Theft Reported

Greenville police are investigating the theft of a speaker and television-radio-tape player recorder from a home at 1804 Battle Drive Tuesday. Officer D.C. Johnson said the theft was reported at 8:47 p.m. and said the property was valued at $344.

N.C. Soldier Fights Army Drug-Testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for a North Carolina soldier imprisoned for refusing to take a urine test for drugs have filed suit in federal court seeking to declare the Army's test program unconstitutional.

Cowan, 25, of Durham, N.C., argue the Army's policies and directives in establishing the urinalysis program in 1981 "were ill-conceived and hastily devised, and deny (McCowan) due process of law."

Three Confess Bombing Roles

NEW YORK (AP) — Three men identified as members of the Omega 7 terrorist group have admitted participating in two bombings and three attempted bombings in the Miami area from 1980 through 1983, authorities said.

in the federal investigation of Omega 7, a band of Cuban exiles that claims responsibility for two murders and 30 bombings since 1976.

Jose Ignacio Gonzalez, 41, a Miami businessman who says he is active in Republican Party politics, pleaded guilty Tuesday before a federal judge in Manhattan.

torney for Citizen Solider, a New York-based GI and veterans rights organization which is representing McCowan, also said the program relies upon urinalysis tests whose "scientific reliability is highly suspect."

Font and Ensign, who are joined in the suit by Peter Meyers, counsel for the National Organization for Reform of Marijuana Laws, asked the U.S. District Court to order the Army to release McCowan, who now is serving a six-month sentence at the Fort Sill, Okla., stockade.

They also asked that their client's court-martial be reviewed immediately.

McCowan, an eight-year Army veteran, was court-martialed last November for having received a "positive" test result and for refusing to take a second test. Despite the lab's finding, his attorneys told a news conference, McCowan insists he had not used marijuana.

A military judge at the White

Sands Missile Range, N.M., found McCowan not guilty of use of marijuana because the exact date of such use could not be established, but made a special finding based on a laboratory test that the soldier had "actively consumed marijuana at some point in time."

He found McCowan guilty of refusing an order to submit a urine sample and sentenced him to a maximum six months confinement, partial forfeiture of pay and a maximum reduction in rank from E-5 to E-1.

Diplomat Urges Support Young Democracies

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Ambassador J. William Middendorf II, the U.S. permanent representative to the Organization of American States, said democratic efforts in Central America and the Caribbean should be encouraged by the United States.

In a speech Tuesday night, Middendorf said he agrees with the action the United States took in Grenada and supports President Reagan's four-part plan to help the young democracies in the Western Hemisphere.

"Before taking this job (as a representative to the OAS), I, like many other Americans, thought all Latin American countries were alike," Middendorf said. "I visited 26 South American countries last year and I was amazed at the dissimilarities of these countries, each having one great thrust — the revolutionary move toward democracy. This can't be said of any other hemisphere in the world."

Middendorf's speech, a part of East Carolina University's Symposium on Peace and War 1984, was held in the Jenkins Fine Art Building.

Approximately 50 people attended the program.

In his speech, Middendorf attacked the Soviet Union's policies in Central America and the Caribbean.

"The resurgence of Soviet political and military intervention in the vital Caribbean/Central American region spells a threat to the security of the Western Hemisphere as great as any since the 1962 Cuban Missile crisis," the ambassador said. "This intervention also has serious implications for peace worldwide."

Middendorf said security of the Caribbean basin is important to the United States' global security policy.

"In peacetime, 44 percent of all foreign tonnage and 45 percent of all crude oil shipped to the United States passes through the Caribbean," Middendorf said. "In war, half of NATO's supplies and most of the U.S. reinforcements and petroleum for our forces in Europe would embark on Gulf ports and sail through the Florida Straits. The region is also a strategic linchpin between our vital interests in the Atlantic and Pacific."

Middendorf said that, in 1981, the Soviet Union tripled its shipments of military equipment to Cuba. "This small communist nation (Cuba) boasts nearly a quarter million men under arms," he said. "To assure that Cuba's weak economy can support that vast arsenal, total Soviet aid has soared to $11.5 million a day or a little over $4.2 billion annually, a quarter of the island's GNP (gross national product)."

Middendorf said Reagan has given high priority to the region and has established a four-part plan for dealing with the crises in Central America. This plan includes support for democracy and the new elections in countries such as El Salvador, Guatemala and Nicaragua; support for economic development; dialogue and negotiations in an effort to find political solutions, and a security shield provided through military assistance and cooperation.

The ambassador said that Nicaragua, encouraged by Cuba and the U.S.S.R., "is rapidly becoming a repressive one-party state ... Government decisions are made by the Sandinista-dominated council of state." The ambassador said the Sandinistas have extinguished freedom of the press and attacked freedom of religion, the business community and labor organizations. "Nicaragua's Sandinistas have joined with Cuba to train and supply the violent leftists in El Salvador, attempting to seize power by exploiting the breakdown of traditional order and the new government's reform efforts," Middendorf said.

"We must ask ourselves what would happen if, after Nicaragua, El Salvador, is captured by a violent minority supported by Cuba and the Soviet Union. What state in Central America would then be able to resist?"

Middendorf said that Reagan's plan "can not offer a quick fix to the crisis in Central America. There is none. Our plan offers a comprehensive program to support democratic development, improve human rights and bring peace to this troubled region so close to home. The approach includes a mix of developmental, political, diplomatic and security initiatives, equitably and humanely pursued."

Mother Charged With Killing Four

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — A woman pleading guilty to killing her four children said she took the youngest out of the polluted river where she drowned them because "he was still moving," but put him back when she stopped breathing.

Jeanne A. Wright described for the court how she sat with her children along the river for several hours "trying to think." She said the youngsters, whose ages ranged from 11-months to 7 years, fell asleep and that she placed them in the water, "one at a time."

Miss Wright, who pleaded guilty to four counts of murder, faces a maximum of four concurrent life sentences with a minimum of 30 years in prison before parole. Under a plea agreement with prosecutors, she would avoid the death penalty.

Superior Court Judge Rudolph J. Rossetti must approve the agreement announced at the start of the hearing Tuesday. He set sentencing for April 19 and revoked Miss Wright's $150,000 bail.

The prosecutor, Dennis Wixted, said he agreed to the plea bargain because psychiatric reports showed that Miss Wright should not face capital punishment.

"The psychiatric reports convinced us that we had an affirmative duty of our own to not seek the death penalty," said Wixted, adding there was no reason to believe the judge would not approve the agreement.

He would not provide details of the psychiatric reports and the judge said he could not release the information. Miss Wright's public defender, Anne T. Manning, declined all comment on the case.

During her court appearance, Miss Wright did not provide a motive for the drownings. Family members have said that she believed the father of the three oldest children planned to kidnap them.

They also said she was distraught over her inability to care for the youngsters, who were living with Miss Wright's mother.

Miss Wright described for the first time how the killings occurred as she sat with her children along a railroad track beside the Cooper River late on Nov. 10.

"It was about 11:30 or 12 o'clock at night. I was sitting on a wooden plank. I sat there for quite a few hours trying to think. I did away with them," she said.

"How?" the judge asked.

"By them drowning," she said.

Iran Claims Iraqi Line Broken By Offensive

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer

Iran said today its forces smashed through Iraqi defenses in a new offensive launched overnight and captured two heights overlooking the highway that links the Iraqi capital to its main port in the south.

The announcement came hours after Iraq warned a major new offensive was imminent and appealed for international help. Iraq's state radio and television broadcast messages from President Saddam Hussein urging his troops to victory.

"The Iranians wanted a decisive battle, so let it be a decisive battle... that will confirm the defeat of Iran's expansionist greed," he said.

Shortly after the offensive reportedly began, Baghdad radio broadcast a statement by an unidentified military spokesman saying the Iranian offensive had been "totally wiped out."

The conflicting claims by the warring sides cannot be independently confirmed as neither country allows foreign correspondents to visit the battlefronts. The war began in September 1980 when Iraq invaded Iran to seize control of the Shatt-al-Arab waterway, Iraq's only access to the Persian Gulf.

An Iranian military communique reported by the official Islamic Republic News Agency said the latest offensive began about midnight. It said Iranian forces advanced during the morning to seize "tens of square kilometers" of Iraqi-occupied Iranian territory before approaching the border.

A later communique said Iranian forces had crossed the Chilat River and seized two heights overlooking Ali-Gharbi, 10 miles inside Iraq. Both the town and the strategic Baghdad-Basra highway are within Iranian artillery range, the communique said.

Iraqi attempts to check the advance were "suppressed by the overwhelming mortar and artillery barrage of the Iranian forces," one Iranian communique said. "Dense smoke ... covers the battlefield," said another.

The attack developed on two fronts in a 60-mile arc between the Iranian towns of Dehloran and Bostan in the central sector of the battlefront, IRNA said.

On Tuesday night, Baghdad radio broadcast a statement by an unidentified Iraqi military spokesman saying "all available information indicates the Iranian regime is preparing for a wide scale offensive ..."

"International circles ... should shoulder their responsibilities and do what they must do to deter the Iranian regime and prevent it from carrying out its evil schemes which are not aimed against Iraq only, but also against the whole region and world peace," the spokesman said.

The warning was supported by a Baghdad-based foreign diplomat, who told The Associated Press on Tuesday that Iran had massed about 500,000 troops along the border in "preparation for what appears to be a big attack."

The new Iranian offensive, code-named Val-Fajr-6, came seven days after an Iranian offensive against the Iraqi border town of Basra, 100 miles east of Baghdad. Val-fajr means "before dawn" in Farsi, the Persian language.

Last week's attack appeared to have bogged down after fierce fighting during which more than 7,000 troops from both sides were reportedly killed.

The reported new offensive is about 75 miles southeast of Badrah, between Iran's Ilam province and Iraq's al-Amara province. Iran's objective appears to be to cut the Baghdad-Basra highway, thereby disrupting Iraq's ability to supply its forces around Basra.

In London, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported today that Britain is sending two warships to the Persian Gulf to support a U.S. fleet monitoring the war. The BBC said details of the decision "emerged Tuesday night" after Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons British warships could join in to back any American military action to maintain oil supplies threatened by the war.

A British Defense Ministry spokesman who refused to be identified today termed the BBC report "highly speculative."

The BBC said there are no British warships in the gulf now but that "in the next few days the guided missile destroyer Glamorgan will be making her way there from the west coast of India. She will be joined by the frigate Brazen now in Sri Lanka."

An estimated 8 million barrels of oil, more than a third of the world's oil trade, passes through the Strait of Hormuz at the mouth of the gulf. Iran has threatened to close the strait.

In Washington, Pentagon sources said Tuesday there are no U.S. fleet movements toward the gulf. The carrier Midway and its escorts have been stationed for about a month in the Arabian Sea — a normal operating area for U.S. carriers.

Fifth Installment Paid Boys Club

NUMBER FIVE OF SIX ... Gary Danford, left, external vice president of the Greenville Jaycees, presents a check in the amount of $3,833 to Chet Emerson, executive director of the Pitt-Greenville Boys Club. This is the fifth of six increments of a six-year $25,000 pledge by the Jaycees.

By Jerry Raynor
Reflector Staff Writer

On Tuesday Gary Danford presented a check for $3,833 to Chet Emerson, fulfilling the fifth installment of a six-year pledge by the Greenville Jaycees to the Pitt-Greenville Boys Club totaling $25,000.

Danford is currently the external vice president of the Greenville Jaycees, "which means I'm in charge of community development in the field of fund raising for community civic organizations and various charities," he explained. Emerson is executive director of the Boys Club.

To raise money for the Boys Club fund as well as for other charitable projects, Danford said, Jaycees "have a number of ongoing as well as special projects. Our most recent fund-raiser has been sponsoring wrestling matches at Rose High. We've had three in recent months, in September, in October and one last month. We plan another for May."

Attendance at the matches, Danford reported, "has been really good at the last two matches, with lines of people waiting to get tickets. This has meant good support for us. We also have gum ball machines at several locations, and these have done well, too."

Emerson explained that the Jaycees' $25,000 pledge was one of those earmarked to retire the $500,000 debt incurred at the time the new Boys Club facility was constructed.

"The Jaycee pledge is one of our major development fund pledges," Emerson said. "Payment of the debt, and the interest, is coming along well. We are within a year or two of retiring the debt, and we feel good about the progress which has been possible because of widespread community support from a number of generous sources such as that provided by the Jaycees."

Admits He Shot Self

Greenville police said today that a store clerk who filed a report Tuesday stating he was robbed, kidnapped and shot has admitted he made up the story to cover the loss of $245 in store money he now says was taken by a woman who had agreed to have sex with him.

Detective Cliff Weatherington said this morning that Alvin Purvis, 20, admitted that he was not kidnapped and that he shot himself in the shoulder after $245 in cash was taken from B&B Foodlane on Bancroft Avenue about 12:05 a.m.

Purvis walked into Harvey's Restaurant on Memorial Drive about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday and told employees that he had been shot. Purvis later told investigators that two masked men, armed with a shotgun, entered B&B Foodlane, took $245 in cash from the store, a .22 caliber pistol from Purvis, then ordered Purvis to close the store and forced him into their car.

Weatherington said Purvis first reported that the robbers drove him around for more than two hours, then took him to Guy Smith Stadium on Chestnut Street, where they shot him in the right shoulder with his own pistol before driving away.

Later in the day, Weatherington said, Purvis told investigators that a woman took the money from the store after making a deal to have sex with Purvis.

Weatherington said Purvis said he shot himself and made up the story of the two masked men and the kidnapping in an effort to cover up what really happened.

Police are continuing their investigation of the incident, Weatherington noted.

Maneuvers

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Joint command and staff maneuvers of Warsaw Pact armies and fleets will be held under the code name Soyuz '84 in four East bloc countries next month, the Bulgarian state-run BTA news agency reports.

It said the war games will be held on the territories of Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, the southeast regions of the Soviet Union and the Black Sea coast.

The dates and number of troops involved were not disclosed.

Tax Shelters Said Abused

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional authorities say the boom in tax shelters is undermining the entire federal tax system and dumping an ever-greater burden on lower-income Americans.

"The growth of shelters feeds on itself," the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation said in a report prepared for today's opening of tax-shelter hearings by the House Ways and Means Committee. "As the tax base is eroded, rates must be raised to maintain revenues, which in turn increases the demand for tax shelters."

"This vicious circle threatens the integrity and fairness of the tax system as the tax burden falls increasingly on taxpayers who do not or cannot take advantage of tax shelters," the report added.

Similar concerns about tax shelters have been expressed by the Reagan administration and lawmakers of both parties. The new warning is significant because of the expertise and non-political nature of the joint committee staff.

The Ways and Means Committee arranged to hear testimony today from John E. Chapoton, who, as assistant secretary of the treasury for tax policy, is the Reagan administration's chief authority on tax matters. He planned to outline several administration proposals for curtailing abuses of tax shelters.

"A tax shelter is an investment that shields income from taxation. The investment could take just about any form — from exploring an oil field to buying precious gems with an aim toward giving them to charity."

"The higher a person's income, the more lucrative a shelter becomes. That's because a $1 deduction for a person in the highest tax bracket produces a 50-cent tax saving; for a $25,000-a-year family, the deduction saves 19 cents."

The Internal Revenue Service gets concerned when the goal of a deal is to produce a tax benefit without regard to whether the investment makes a profit. The IRS calls those "abusive" shelters.

No one has a firm estimate of how much is invested in abusive shelters or how much they cost the federal treasury. But one third of the 60,000 cases pending before the U.S. Tax Court involve shelters and assessments of additional taxes totaling $1.4 billion.

At the end of 1983, the IRS was auditing nearly 335,000 shelter cases, compared with fewer than 183,000 in 1979. The loss to the government has grown to the point that IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr. has made halting them a top priority.

The IRS last year closely checked the returns of 70 persons who were involved in one type of abusive shelter. Among the findings:

—As a group, the 70 were paying only 1.4 percent of what they owed the government.

—They claimed current refunds totaling $476,760, an average of $6,811 per person.

—They had more credits from the investment than they could "spend" in one year and used them to get a quick refund of prior years' taxes. Those who still had leftover credits used them to wipe out future taxes. The shelter saved the 70 $1.38 million in taxes — an average of $18,865 per person.

The staff of the joint committee noted one tax shelter effect that could benefit those who don't invest in such deals: chiefly because the IRS has been devoting so much manpower to shelter cases, the chance of a non-shelter return being audited has dropped to about 15 per 1,000, down from 21 per 1,000 in 1979.

Seek Peat Bog's Use

By The Associated Press
Peat mining supporters still hope to find a commercial use for eastern North Carolina's peat bogs, despite the cancellation of a $540 million methanol production plant.

Peat Methanol Associates dropped plans for a Washington County plant that would have produced 200,000 gallons of methanol to be used as an additive for gasoline.

The project was killed after U.S. Synfuels Corp. refused to provide more aid for the project, which was to receive $465 million in federal loan and price guarantees.

"We're essentially trying to re-group," Washington County Manager Jack DiSarno said. "If you knew there was natural gas there or crude oil and you had one developer give up on it, you would probably continue to develop it, wouldn't you?"

Hobart G. Truesdell II, First Colony Farms Inc. president, said his Creswell company was committed to the project and would now look at alternatives.

Some environmentalists and commercial fishermen opposed the project because they said peat mining would harm fish and shellfish by increasing freshwater runoff into salt water areas.

Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., said the decision was "a victory for the nation's taxpayers."

"When and if these developers (PMA) decide to pursue their synthetic fuels project with private capital, they will encounter no opposition from me," he said.

Stolen 'Copter Is Recovered

CATOOSA, Okla. (AP) — Investigators have no idea how long a stolen helicopter used in a Louisiana bank robbery last week was sitting in an Oklahoma farm field before it was reported, the FBI says.

The jet-powered craft was on private property "way off the main road" and was partially covered by a tarpaulin, but someone saw it and called the state highway patrol early Tuesday, FBI agent Jerry Emmons said. Police were checking it for fingerprints.

On Feb. 15, five men landed the helicopter outside the Merchants and Farmers Bank and Trust in Leesville, La., robbed the bank of $163,000, and flew off again.

Charging Torture By Saudis

DALLAS (AP) — An American petroleum engineer says he was tortured repeatedly during eight months he spent in Saudi Arabian prisons after his Saudi business partners claimed he owed them money, according to a published report today.

Bruce Munden, 34, told the Dallas Morning News that he was suspended from the ceiling at least 10 times and beaten on the soles of his feet with a knotted rubber hose for such infractions as failing to respond quickly when called.

American and Saudi officials in Washington confirmed that Munden was jailed in June, but they would not discuss whether he was tortured, the News said in a copyright story.

In Saudi Arabia, a person accused in a dispute can legally be detained until the dispute is resolved, even if no law has been broken, according to a State Department source who was not named.

Munden said the dispute arose when an English-language contract he had signed with his partners was translated into Arabic by a Yemeni business manager.

The Arabic version had been altered to say that if Munden wanted to be released from the partnership, he had to pay $161,000 by May 27, 1983, he said.

Unable to acquire superior technology without his help, the Saudis dropped the case after the original English version of the contract was read to the Saudi Supreme Court, said Munden, who returned to the Dallas area last week.

Munden said he was first incarcerated June 7 and by July 15 was in the prison where the torture occurred. He said he saw 21 other American inmates, some being held on traffic or drug offenses, and that some of them were tortured.

Bloody footprints in the prison hallways attested to the torture, he said.

"If you committed any infraction, like playing chess or cards or exercising — no exercising was allowed — they would put you on what we called the rack for an hour," Munden said.

He accused American diplomats of failing to act quickly on his behalf and said consular officers "won't stand up for a citizen's rights."

Vice Consul Ron Schicher, contacted Tuesday at the American consulate in Dammam, on the Persian Gulf coast, told the News that he and other officers did as much as they could for Munden. Schicher said Munden's release bears witness to their efforts.

"We are positively prohibited by (U.S.) law from serving as an advocate for anyone imprisoned," Schicher said. "Our job is to make sure no one is discriminated against on account of his nationality and to try and monitor a person's health. We did that."

Habib Shaheen, a spokesman for the Saudi embassy in Washington, said Munden was one of seven Americans released from Saudi prisons as a gesture of friendship toward the United States. He said he was aware of Munden's situation but could not identify the other Americans.

Shaheen also said he did not know whether American prisoners were tortured, but that Americans should not expect special privileges in Saudi Arabia.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said Tuesday that he could not confirm the release of the seven Americans.

State Department officials said more than 40 Americans were being held in Saudi jails.

SBI Probe For Office In Wayne

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A routine audit has led to a probe by the State Bureau of Investigation into the possible mishandling of money in the Wayne County Clerk of Court's office, a state official says.

Franklin Freeman, director of the Administrative Office of the Courts, said his office's field accountant made a routine audit of the clerk of court's office Feb. 9.

"He saw something he thought was amiss and relayed that information to our controller's office," Freeman said.

That verbal report was followed by a written one received by the office Feb. 13. A surprise audit began Wednesday and ended Monday, Freeman said.

But the information obtained Wednesday and Thursday was enough to cause Freeman and Eighth Judicial District Attorney Donald Jacobs to request a criminal investigation by the SBI Friday, Freeman said.

Police Try Save Fuel

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Charlotte police have put their patrol cars on a fuel-saving diet for the rest of this year in an attempt to save the city money.

Officers are switching off their automobiles a few minutes every hour, learning thrifty driving techniques and spot-checking their cars for fuel efficiency under the three-part plan.

"We're hoping to manage our resources without negatively affecting our services," said Cmdr. Ronnie Stone of the police department's services division. "And we hope that will save the city a significant amount of money."

Charlotte police officers drove 7.1 million miles in 1983, and their cars consumed around 700,000 gallons of gasoline, Stone said.

Under the first phase, officers will use a special gasoline pump, which monitors the fuel appetite of each squad car. The system, called "automated fueling," checks if a car's mileage is within an acceptable range.

The second step requires patrol officers to park their squad cars a few minutes every hour. Officers will park in "highly visible sections" where they'll be "immediately available, even when the motors turned off," Stone said.

At the third stage, officers will learn fuel-saving driving tips. Screeching stops, jack rabbit starts and speeding are habits that waste fuel, Stone said.

Suspended More Than 100 Pupils

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — More than 100 Hickory High School students have been suspended during this school year, according to figures released by school officials.

Of 238 Hickory High School disciplined as of last Tuesday, 104 were suspended from school. Twice as many boys as girls were suspended, and 73 were black and 31 were white.

The Hickory NAACP branch said last week it counted at least 62 suspended students who were dismissed on "questionable grounds" such as combing their hair in class.

Hickory school superintendent Stuart Thompson and Hickory High School Principal Henry Williamson said they were unaware of any students being suspended on those grounds.

The Rev. Webster Lytle, a black Hickory City Council member, said he had requested a report on the school suspension after talking with concerned parents.

Lytle said he hadn't studied the figures completely, and had only noted that a large number of the suspended students were black.

Stock And Market Reports

The Associated Press
N.C. BROILERFRYERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 57.75 cents. The final weighted average was 58.04 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is light to moderate for a moderate demand. Average weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 1,710,000 compared to 1,576,000 last Tuesday.

N.C. EGGS: Market unchanged. N.C. weighted average price for small sales of consumer Grade A white eggs in cartons delivered to retail stores: A large 1.0513 cents per dozen; A medium .9686; A Small .8728.

N.C. HENS: Market steady. Supply fully adequate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm (Monday & Tuesday slaughter) 31 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, continuing its long winter slump. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 5.55 to 1,133.79 in the first half hour.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 5 to 4 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said expectations of persistent high interest rates kept investors in an edgy mood. High-quality bonds, offering yields nearly 7 1/2 percentage points than blue chip stocks, represent formidable competition for the stock market, brokers said.

The Conference Board, a business research organization, expressed concern that the federal budget deficit could contribute to "potential widespread economic problems as early as 1985."

GTE dropped 1/2 to 35 3/4 in trading that included an 818,000-share block at that price.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.53 to 1,139.34, its lowest close since it stood at 1,124.71 last April 8.

Losers held a 2-1 edge on gainers at the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 71.89 million shares from 76.60 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .62 to 88.97. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 1.45 to 204.21.

Local Airport New Hub For Air Parcel Delivery

GREENSBORO — Pitt-Greenville Airport will be one of 12 service hubs for a new intrastate air parcel delivery service, officials of Carolina Air Parcel Service announced today.

In a prepared release, Carolina Air Parcel Service, the state's first total intrastate air parcel operation, said full scheduled service will begin in mid-March.

Formed by a group of North Carolina investors, CAPS will be headquartered at the Greensboro-Winston-Salem-High Point Regional Airport, and will serve every city in the state on a "same day" or "next day" schedule for pickup and delivery of letters and air parcels up to three cubic feet.

Retired Air Force Col. Ben A. Barone initiated the concept and will serve as president and chief executive officer for CAPS, while co-founder H. Morgan Pope will serve as vice president and director of the company, as well as director of cargo and parcel operations.

CAPS' routes will include a minimum of two flights daily to 12 hub airports — Greensboro, Hickory, Asheville, Charlotte, Kinston, Jacksonville, Durham, Fayetteville, Raleigh-Durham, Greenville, Elizabeth City and Rocky Mount.

The air operations will be supported by vans and drivers, in contact with the CAPS operation center by radiotelephone, at each of the 12 airports.

CAPS service will begin with three routes. The British-built planes have a payload of 2,000 pounds and, according to Barone, have "earned a reputation for its ruggedness, reliability, ease of maintenance and outstanding economy of operation," by flying in "some of the most demanding air operations throughout the world."

Barone said "CAPS' service will be unique to North Carolina and will offer its business and individual customers significant savings for a well organized, guaranteed and rapid high frequency door-to-door service within the state. We will reach every nook and cranny in the state and we will do it with delivery guaranteed overnight."

CAPS' president noted that the $7.95 rate for the first pound includes door-to-door service, and said "even lower rates" will be offered volume customers "with our contractual Professional Air Subscription Service."

Barone said "CAPS' service will be unique to North Carolina and will offer its business and individual customers significant savings for a well organized, guaranteed and rapid high frequency door-to-door service within the state. We will reach every nook and cranny in the state and we will do it with delivery guaranteed overnight."

East Carolina University's Lady Pirates dominated play in the second half and put together a 30-20 advantage in the period to gain a 51-41 ECAC-South victory over the University of Richmond last night.

The defeat was the first for the Lady Spiders in the league, leaving them with a 4-1 record. In spite of the loss, however, Richmond will be the top-seeded team in next week's ECAC-South tournament — the first ever for the women — to be held in Minges Coliseum starting Friday, March 2.

East Carolina, meanwhile, improved its league record to 3-2, and clinched the second seeding for the tournament. The others to join in the event will be James Madison, George Mason and William & Mary.

The two teams battled on almost even terms in the first half, although East Carolina never led. Finally, with two seconds left, Anita Anderson scored on a layup to tie it at 21-21.

East Carolina then took the lead for good seven seconds into the second half, when Jody Rodriguez hit the first of a two-shot foul. She followed that up with a 17-footer a minute and a half later and the Pirates never trailed again, moving out by as much as nine midway through the half. Richmond cut it back to as little as three, but could never quite pull back even, and the Pirates rode the foul line to the win in the late stages of the contest.

A prime factor in the second half was the rebounding. Richmond held a 25-20 margin after the first half, but ECU outrebounced the Lady Spiders, 24-15 in the second frame, led by Sylvia Bragg with a total of 13, while Darlene Hedges had eight.

Karen Elsner, the league's leading scorer and rebounder, pulled away 11, and scored 20 points, but she had to work for what she got, mainly because of the defensive efforts of Hedges. A 54 percent field goal shooter, Elsner hit just 36.4 percent against the defense of the Pirates.

"This was a big win for us," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said afterwards. "The kids did a terrific job after losing two tough games over the weekend. They knew that Richmond would be tough, but they also knew where their strengths and weaknesses were."

One of those weaknesses, Andruzzi pointed out, was at the guard position, and because of that, the Lady Pirates used a full court press most of the way. "We made people handle the ball that they don't want handling the ball, and it hurt them. They had 17 turnovers, and we had only four in the second half (a total of 14).

"Our offense improved in the second half, and we worked the ball around to get good shots and didn't take quick shots like we did in the first half. We sagged off on defense (mainly Delphine Mabry dropping back on Elsner when the ball was on the wing) to make them shoot from the outside and we played behind Elsner (Hedges). We had to work hard and it paid off."

Andruzzi praised the play of Mabry, both on offense and defense. Mabry scored 16 points on six of 12 field goals, and drew three charges during the game. "Her court awareness was outstanding," Andruzzi said.

Richmond pushed out by as much as nine points in the first half, hitting seven straight as Betsy McCormick made a three-point play and added a short jumper. Lisa Rollins followed with a 10-footer to make it 13-4.

But the Lady Pirates rallied after that, closing the gap to two at 13-11, behind the scoring of Bragg, and then to one at 15-14, on a free throw by Lisa Squirewell.

East Carolina tied it up for the first time at 17-17, but couldn't move ahead. It was tied again at 19-19 and then at 21-21 at intermission.

After Rodriguez provided the early three-point lead in the second half, Glenna Miller cut it back to one, but ECU scored the next six points to move out to a 30-23 lead. That was finally stretched to 36-27 on a layup by Mabry.

a layup by Mabry.

Richmond rallied, however, and cut the lead back to three at 40-37 as Elsner hit the second of two free throws, but they could come no closer. Anderson and Rodriguez both scored to run the lead back to seven, 44-37, with 2:26 left, and Richmond got no closer than five the rest of the way. ECU then scored the final five points of the game, all but the last two at the foul line, to set the final margin.

Bragg led the ECU scoring with 18, while Elsner was the lone Spider to hit double figures.

Richmond falls to 14-10, while the Lady Pirates climb to 11-15. East Carolina closes out the regular season on Saturday night in Minges Coliseum, playing host to South Carolina at 7:30 p.m.

Then, it's on to the ECAC-South tournament the following Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Minges — and a first for the league.

Hunt Rallies From Five Down With 28 Seconds Left To Win

WILSON — Wilson Hunt, down by five points with only 28 seconds left in the contest, rallied to pull out a 60-57 victory over Rose High School last night in Big East Conference play.

And the Lady Warriors used a controversial technical foul to boost them into a 43-40 double overtime victory.

The loss by the Rampants in the boys' game dropped them into a tie for sixth place in the league standings with Northeastern — the team they play Friday night. It also insured Rose of a road date next week in the first round of the Big East Tournament. Rose's girls are now tied with Rocky Mount and Hunt for sixth place in their standings.

The Rampants trailed 16-14 in the first period of the boys' game, but came back with an 18-14 margin in the second quarter to take a 32-30 lead at intermission.

Hunt rallied in the third quarter, however, 12-9, and pushed back into a slim 42-41 lead.

Rose, however, regained the lead early in the final period and pushed out to a 57-52 lead with 28 seconds left in the contest. But the Rampants missed at the foul line and then committed two quick turnovers. That allowed Hunt to get baskets from Darin McClure and Charles Jones and a slam dunk from Kenneth Cox to power to a 58-57 lead with eight seconds to go.

Then, after Rose missed once more, Reggie McCray hit two free throws in the closing seconds for the final three-point margin.

McCray led the Hunt scoring with 14 points, while Anthony Best had 13 and Cox had 12. Rose was led by Dwight Smith with 18 points while Tyrone Smith and Jeff Hopkins each had 11.

The girls' game saw Coach Dennis Gibson get upset at the end, when a technical foul allowed Hunt to tie the contest and send it into overtime.

"I still don't know why they called the tech," Gibson said. "We had fouled them, but we also had an injured player on the court. I went on the court to attend her and the official called a tech on me for being on the court without a time out. But the other official had called a time out. When he found out that I had the right to be on the court, he wouldn't change the call, except to call it on one of our players. He never would tell me why he called it then."

At any rate, Michelle Hale made the two free throws on the shooting foul and added the technical to tie it at 35-35.

Rose had taken a 10-5 lead in the first period, but Hunt cut that back to 14-11 at intermission. In the third period, Rose pulled away again, taking a 26-19 lead into the final period, but couldn't hold it.

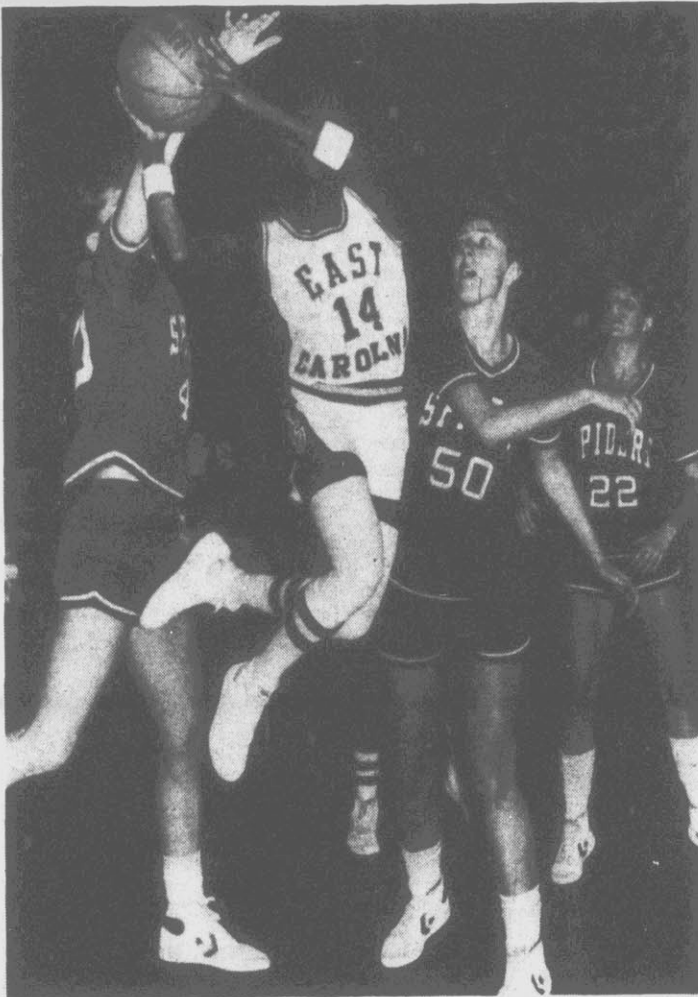

Doris Richardson tied the score at 37-37 at the end of the first overtime.

Virginia Defeats Hot-Handed Tigs

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Clemson coach Bill Foster knows that a basketball team which shoots 67.5 percent from the floor isn't assured a victory.

"There's no way we could shoot any better," Foster said Tuesday night after Clemson's hot shooting failed to earn a win against Virginia. "Virginia played a great ball game, too. They were able to pound the ball inside to their big guys."

The Cavaliers put five players in double figures and posted a 77-70 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over the Tigers.

"We had a good team effort tonight," Virginia coach Terry Holland said. "We got balanced scoring and good play off the bench."

The Cavaliers, 15-9 overall and 4-7 in ACC play, presented Holland with his 300th career victory against 135 losses. Holland coached five years at Davidson and is in his 10th year at Virginia.

Freshman center Olden Polynice scored a career-high 17 points for the Cavaliers. Rick Carlisle added 16, Tom Sheehy 12, Jim Miller 11 and Othell Wilson 10.

Clemson, 12-12 and 2-10, shot 67.5 percent (27 of 40), including a red-hot 80 percent (16 of 20) in the first half.

"Our record is not indicative of our club," Foster said. "We're better than our record."

Murray Jarman paced Clemson with 20 points, while senior guard Marc Campbell tallied a season-high 17, 13 in the second half. Vincent Hamilton contributed 14.

Despite Clemson's hot shooting in the first half, Virginia led 35-34 at intermission.

Rams Survive Jaguars In Tourney

By JIMMY DuPREE

Reflector Sports Writer
FARMVILLE — Two blowouts and a barn burner!

That's an accurate description of the final three games of the first round of the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament played Tuesday at Farmville Central High School.

Greene Central's girls demolished C.B. Aycock 74-35, then North Pitt's Pant-HERS trounced Ayden-Grifton 43-25 before the host Farmville Central Jaguars narrowly missed upsetting Greene Central's boys, as the Rams survived a 46-43 scare.

"It certainly wasn't a pretty sight," Greene Central Coach Lewis Godwin said. "Farmville plays better at home, and we're not playing all that well right now."

"They played their pace, and we sputtered on offense. We let their trapping defense bother, and we haven't been doing that. I thought we had a good chance to pull away in the third quarter, but we missed a shot and then got called for charging on a layup."

Greene Central led all the way but never managed to pull away by more than nine points — that advantage coming on a free throw by Theodore Edwards with 1:57 remaining in the first half for a 25-16 Rams lead.

Field goals by Kent Hardy inside and Ronnie Barnes from 15 feet let the Jaguars cut the margin to 25-20 at halftime. Eric Baker popped a 17-footer for Farmville to open the second half, but Anthony Thompson muscled inside for a bucket as the Rams maintained a 27-24 advantage with 5:25 left in the third period.

Barnes drove inside and Kent Hardy connected on a follow-shot to pull the Jaguars to within a point at 27-26 at the 3:06 mark, but Greene Central powered inside for six points to close the third quarter with a 33-26 lead.

Greene Central built a five-point lead with 5:30 remaining in the contest on a drive inside the Edwards, but Hardy sank a pair of free throws with 5:03 left and added a bank shot inside as only an Edwards free throw interrupted for a 36-34 Rams advantage.

Another bucket inside by Edwards put Greene Central ahead 40-36 with 2:19 left, and two free throws by Toronto Moye cut the gap to two points for the last time.

Edwards provided four more points down the stretch for the Rams, while a three-point play by Hardy trimmed the margin to 45-41 with 26 seconds left. Barnes added a free throw for Greene Central, and Barnes closed out the game with a drive inside with three seconds left.

"We just couldn't hit key shots; they simply would not go in," Farmville Central Coach Mike Terrell said. "We got some of the best shots we've had all year tonight. It's been a tough season for us, but we've got a lot of guys coming back with a lot of experience."

"We'll really miss Kent Hardy and Donald Tyson next year."

Edwards led all scorers with 20 points on the night, while Thompson added 11 for the Rams. Hardy paced the Jaguars with 19 points including five of five from the free throw line as Farmville connected on all five of its attempts from the charity stripe. Ronnie Barnes added 12 points for Farmville.

Greene Central advances to the semifinals to face SouthWest Edgecombe Thursday at 8:15, while Southern Nash and North Pitt play in the other matchup tonight at 8:15.

"I think we'll play better against SouthWest Edgecombe," Godwin said. "They've been playing us in a zone most of the time. Friday night when we lost, they went to a man-to-man defense twice and we scored both times. So I expect them to play zone most of the night."

Cyndi Hicks' 21 points led a group of five Lady Rams in double digits, as Greene Central ran away to its opening round matchup against C.B. Aycock. Cynthia Jones contributed 16 points, while Allison Battle added 11 and Melodie Bowen and Annetette Wilkes had 10 each.

Kelly Malpass led Aycock with 13 points on the night.

The Lady Rams held a slim 13-10 lead after the first quarter but raced away to a 33-18 margin at halftime. Greene Central put the game on ice early in the third quarter as the Lady Rams mounted a 14-2 scoring spree at the start of the second half.

The final quarter was left to the reserves — but there, too, the Lady Rams held a 21-5 scoring bulge. Hicks led an early rally in which the Rams posted 13 unanswered points at the beginning of the quarter.

"It was a good game for us because I could get all my girls in the game and have the freedom to pull someone out if I wasn't satisfied with the way they were playing," Greene Central Coach Brenda Dail said. "I wasn't really pleased with my players. I thought we played much better against SouthWest Edgecombe (last Friday). When we tried to press, they were standing around too much."

"When we try to apply pressure on defense, we tend to get lazy and not be aggressive. That's what I was trying to work out tonight."

"I just hope we can play well Thursday and get to Friday's game."

Greene Central plays North Pitt Thursday at 6:30, while SouthWest Edgecombe plays Farmville Central tonight at 6:30 in the other semifinal matchup.

North Pitt advanced with an 18-point victory over Ayden-Grifton, which sputtered on offense throughout the night. Deloris Pittman led a balanced North Pitt attack with 12, while Studie Sharpe posted eight points. Danita McCotter led the Lady Chargers with eight points.

The trouble started early for the Lady Chargers, as they knotted the score 6-6 on a follow shot by McCotter with 4:37 left in the opening period, then failed to score through the end of the quarter as the Pant-HERS rolled up a 14-6 advantage.

North Pitt continued to build on that lead, posting a 9-2 scoring edge through the 2:46 mark of the second quarter before taking a 25-9 lead to the locker room at halftime.

The Pant-HERS held the upper hand in a slow third quarter, outscoring the Chargers 8-6 for a 33-15 lead, then put the game away with an 8-2 rally through the 3:07 mark of the fourth quarter before Ayden-Grifton posted eight unanswered points.

"There was a lot of tension on the floor tonight even late in the game," North Pitt Coach Randy Avery said. "It's tough to play a team three times, especially back-to-back like this and win all three. I hope we've got the monkey off our backs now."

"We tried to make some defensive changes, but we never could get set up in a press. That caused (Ayden-Grifton) a lot of problems over there, but we weren't trapping the ball tonight."

"Until tonight, I felt like we had a little momentum going; now I'm not so sure. I'm hoping this was our bad game of the tournament; we've played four fairly good games now and won five in a row."

The tournament concludes Friday with the girls championship game at 7 p.m. and the boys at 9 p.m.

Mahre Joins Wife, Infant After Triumph In Olympics

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Olympic skier Phil Mahre was reunited with his wife and baby daughter here Tuesday night and told reporters he would have gladly traded his gold medal for a chance to see his new son born.

Holly Mahre, 22, gave birth to 8-pound, 13-ounce Alexander Ryan Mahre in suburban Scottsdale early Sunday morning at about the same time her 26-year-old husband was winning the men's slalom at the Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

"I got the news about a half-hour before the awards ceremony. It moved me to tears. You just can't comprehend that emotional moment. That was the highlight of the day," Mahre said. "I wish I would have been here and not over there. It would have been a lot nicer. The baby was the big thing. The baby is more important than the gold medal."

Mahre was expected to see his son for the first time late Tuesday night at Scottsdale Memorial Hospital. Holly was released Tuesday afternoon, but the baby was being held for "routine observation" due to infant jaundice, hospital supervisors said.

"I'm starting to recover. I'm getting there," Holly said. "I just had the baby. No problem. I delivered while Phil was skiing. I had no idea he won until about 7 o'clock in the morning."

The Mahres, who have been married three years, live in Yakima, Wash., but they will be staying with Holly's parents in Scottsdale "for about a week to 10 days," Phil said.

"I'll hide out away here as long as I can. But I haven't done well so far," he added with a laugh as camera crews filmed his every move. "In about nine days, I leave for four more races and that'll probably be it for me as a skier."

Bypassing this week's U.S. National Alpine Ski Championships in Colorado, Mahre said his final races would be World Cup events at the Aspen Winterfestival March 3-4 and the American Ski Classic in Vail on March 6.

"Then I'm going to do some promotional things, take some time off and decide what I want to do from there," he said.

Mahre was the second person off American Airlines' Flight 187 from New York's Kennedy International to Phoenix's Sky Harbor International Airport and was met by loud applause from some 100 fans at Gate 4 in Terminal 3.

His plane arrived at 8:12 p.m. MST — about five minutes early — and he was already being interviewed when Holly and 17-month-old Lindsey appeared.

Mahre hoisted his daughter into his arms, hugged and kissed his wife and was later led to an airport security room.

"I'm ready to go home," Holly said.

"Me, too," Phil said after his 30-hour trip. "It's great to be back."

Trinity Tops Mt. Calvary

HOOKERTON — Trinity Christian School's girls rolled to a 31-24 victory over Mt. Calvary, 31-24, yesterday, claiming their tenth straight victory.

The Tiger junior varsity also won its game, 68-23. Mt. Calvary does not field a varsity boys' team.

The Lady Tigers pushed out to a 6-4 lead in the first period and extended that to 14-8 in the second frame.

Renee Deans and Sheila Everette each scored four points as the Lady Tigers outscored Mt. Calvary, 10-5, in the third period to give Trinity a 24-13 lead. Mt. Calvary rallied in the final period, 11-7.

Everette led the Tiger scoring with 10 points. No one else scored in double figures.

Trinity's Elementary bowed to Mt. Calvary, 24-18, in another game. Chris Haddock and Lester Manning each had six points to lead Trinity, while Brian Martin had eight for Mt. Calvary.

Bertie Downs Tigers

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School, seeded eighth in the Northeastern Conference tournament field, gave top-seeded Bertie all it could handle last night before bowing, 62-60, in triple overtime.

Tarboro, #1 among the girls, rolled over #8 Williamston 66-30, while #3 Edenton gained a 48-40 win over Ahoskie's girls.

Williamston inched into a 12-11 lead in the first period of the boys' game, but couldn't pull away. Bertie came back with an 11-10 margin and tied it up at 22-22 at intermission.

The Falcons then flexed their muscles in the third period, outscoring the Tigers, 21-10, building a 43-32 lead. But the Tigers refused to bow and came back, 20-9, and tied it at 52-52 at the end of regulation.

Donnell Griffin twice was a hero for the Tigers, tying it at the end of the first overtime at 54-54, and then in the second extra period, 56-56. But it didn't hold, and Stonie Crawford tipped back a missed shot with one second left to give Bertie the victory.

Calvin Cook led Bertie with 19 points, while Andrew Ryan had 14 and Steve Hayes had 12. Williamston was led by Griffin with 15, while Davis Little had 12 and Craig Brown 11.

The Williamston girls, meanwhile, had no hope of an upset as Tarboro took command early and rolled up an easy victory.

The Lady Vikings held at 14-10 lead after one period and extended that to 29-16 by the end of the first half. During the third period, Tarboro outthit Williamston, 19-6, and took a 48-22 lead into the last quarter. In that, Tarboro outscored the Lady Tigers, 18-8, to wrap up the win.

Belinda Winnegan led the Tarboro scoring with 22 points, while Jan Mills had 12 for Williamston.

Bertie's boys will now face Plymouth on Thursday, while Tarboro faces Bertie's girls the same night. Edenton's girls return to action on Friday, facing the winner of tonight's Plymouth-Washington game. The other game tonight is a boys' contest between Tarboro and Ahoskie. Tonight's games wind up the first round of play.

Mullins Leads St. John's Over Hoyas

Finds An Opening

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — It took Chris Mullin's best effort and a Herculean defense spearheaded by Bill Wennington for St. John's to pull off its biggest victory of the season.

The lightly regarded Redmen, 11-point underdogs, upset second-ranked Georgetown 75-71 Tuesday night before 11,136 fans at the Capital Centre. They had to hang on late in the game, however, after blowing most of a 22-point lead.

The loss, in the only game of the night involving a Top 20 team, ended the Hoyas' 10-game winning streak and dropped their overall record to 23-3. They are 11-2 in the Big East Conference, one-half game in front of idle Syracuse, 10-2.

St. John's, which has now won four in a row, is 7-6 in the Big East and 16-8 overall.

Four weeks ago, St. John's was embarrassed in New York by Georgetown, 83-61. Tuesday it was a different Redmen team that came to play.

"It's taken us some time to get our timing," said Mullin, whose 33 points were the most an opposing player has scored against Georgetown in six years. "We lost some players from last year's team and we don't use a simple system, so it has taken us this long to pick it up and play this way."

St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca said the night and the game belonged to Mullin.

"He's a young Rick Barry. Not physically but in the total effort he gives," said Carnesecca in describing the 6-foot-6 junior from Brooklyn, N.Y. "He raises everybody. He raises the people in the stands: he's a performer."

Taking advantage of Georgetown turnovers and flying on the fast break, the Redmen outscored Georgetown 17-8 on transition baskets.

"They ran and that was suprise to us," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson.

"They caught us flat-footed," echoed Georgetown guard Fred Brown. "They mormally play a slow-down game but they came out running and just kept it up."

Defensively, the Redmen gave Wennington the task of stopping Georgetown All-American Patrick Ewing.

Wennington played Ewing even — each scored 11 points — before fouling out with three minutes remaining.

"We practiced a man-to-man all week and then Jeff (Allen) and the team did a good job on helping out," Wennington said.

The Redmen built a 34-12 lead midway through the first half as they shot a blistering 67 percent before intermission. Although they cooled off slightly in the second half, on 10 of 17, they still managed to shoot 64 percent.

The Hoyas had come into the game holding their last four opponents to 30 percent shooting from the field.

The ball-hawking Redmen defense, collapsing around Ewing every time he touched the ball, held the All-American to two points in the first half on 1-for-5 shooting and forced him into six turnovers.

The Hoyas fought back in the second half, cutting the lead to 72-69 on Horace Broadnax's short jumper with 49 seconds to play.

The Redmen sealed the victory, however, when Mark Jackson converted a free throw and then, with 20 seconds left, Mullin stole the ball and fed Jackson for a layup and a 75-69 St. John's lead.

"We played good ball all year but not 40 minutes worth," said Mullin. "We played a 40-minute game tonight, not 20 minutes, and that was the difference."

"They outplayed us, I don't think there are any excuses to be made," said Thompson. "We were beaten but I don't think the world has come to an end."

"We have lost before and come back and we will come back again," Ewing said.

In another game involving a Big East team, Villanova defeated Penn 65-51. Elsewhere it was New Hampshire 58, Princeton 45; Louisiana Tech 85, Centenary 76 in overtime, and Virginia 77, Clemson 70.

West Craven, Rams Advance

West Craven and Havelock both advanced into the semifinals of the Coastal 3-A Conference tournament last night.

West Craven, seeded fourth, downed fifth seeded North Lenoir, 72-69, in overtime, while Havelock, seeded third, downed number six White Oak, 65-47.

That sets up the semifinal pairings for the boys. West Carteret, the regular season winner, will meet West Craven tonight, while Havelock takes on #2 Conley on Thursday.

In the girls' semifinals, #1 North Lenoir meets West Carteret tonight, with Conley facing #2 Havelock on Thursday.

The championship games will be played Friday night. All semifinal and championship games will be played at West Craven High School.

Woodley Headed To Steelers As Bradshaw Still Uncertain

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers, uncertain whether quarterback Terry Bradshaw will regain next season the full use of his injured elbow, will acquire Miami Dolphins quarterback David Woodley, according to published reports.

Although neither Steelers nor Dolphins officials would confirm the deal Tuesday night, the Miami Herald today quoted "irrefutable" National Football League sources as saying Woodley will be traded for unspecified draft choices.

And Steelers' President Dan Rooney said Tuesday the Steelers had "very possibly" acquired a quarterback in the last 24 hours, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reported today.

Joe Gordon, the Steelers' publicity director, said the team probably would schedule a news conference sometime today. The Dolphins already have scheduled one.

Woodley, 25, was Miami's starting quarterback for most of three seasons before being replaced midway through the past season by former University of Pittsburgh star Dan Marino.

The Steelers' currently have only one uninjured quarterback on their roster, Mark Malone.

Bradshaw, who underwent elbow surgery at the end of 1982, sat out last season except for a brief starting appearance in the Steelers' playoff-clinching victory over the New York Jets.

The Steelers were 10-6 last season with Cliff Stoudt as starter. Stoudt, under increasing pressure from Steelers' fans during a string of late-season losses, defected to the Birmingham Stallions of the United States Football League.

Malone, the Steelers' No. 1 draft pick out of Arizona State in 1980, appeared in only one regular-season game before relieving Stoudt during the American Football Conference playoff loss to the Los Angeles Raiders, the eventual Super Bowl champions.

Rooney acknowledged last weekend he had talked to various National Football League teams about acquiring a quarterback. At the time, the frontrunner appeared to be Denver's Steve DeBerg.

Woodley, who was Miami's eighth-round pick out of Louisiana State in 1980, succeeded Bob Griese as the Dolphins' No. 1 quarterback. Two years later, he led Miami to the Super Bowl, where it lost to the Washington. He was the youngest quarterback ever to start a Super Bowl.

After a successful exhibition season last year, Woodley struggled in four of the Dolphins' first five games. In the Sept. 4 season opener at Buffalo, he completed just eight of 22 attempts for 40 yards and no touchdowns.

He rebounded the next week in Miami's 34-24 victory over New England, with 11 completions in 20 attempts for 218 yards and two touchdowns. But his performance declined again in the next two outings as he combined for 236 yards and a single touchdown.

Leavell Leads Rockets

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Allen Leavell, the scoring and assists leader on the worst team in the National Basketball Association a year ago, has almost been a forgotten man on the much-improved Houston Rockets this season.

Leavell held out for much of training camp and when he came back he had lost his job as the starting point guard to Phil Ford. But on Tuesday night, with Ford out with an injured knee, Leavell made his first start of the season and had 25 points and 10 assists to lead the Rockets to a 119-102 victory over Milwaukee, snapping the Bucks' five-game winning streak.

Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said he encouraged Leavell to shoot early in the game, something he doesn't normally do for Ford.

"It was in our game plan for our point guard to give us some points," Fitch said. "The first three plays of the game were designed for him, when normally you'd start out spreading the wealth. We had to do some things differently because of our rotation and the defense they play."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 119, Philadelphia 116 in overtime; Portland 106, New York 89; Atlanta 102, Cleveland 84; Phoenix 114, San Antonio 111 in overtime; Kansas City 119, Detroit 112; Utah 117, Chicago 95; Los Angeles 128, Seattle 112, and Golden State 135, Denver 133.

Leavell's ability to penetrate the middle of the Milwaukee defense also helped Houston's inside game as Caldwell Jones scored 23 points and Ralph Sampson 18. Jones had 13 points in the first quarter to help the Rockets take a 30-22 lead.

"They were playing me left, because I guess they don't think I can go right," Leavell said. "I just tried to penetrate and do what I could."

"When he does that, it opens up everything," Sampson said. "We ran most of our plays down the middle and we got good shots."

Leavell was most successful in the third quarter when he scored 17 points to extend a 58-48 halftime lead to 92-77. He hit five of seven shots from the field in the period, including four layups and a three-point bomb.

The Rockets also contained Milwaukee All-Star Sidney Moncrief, who averages 23 points per game but was held to 10 Tuesday night.

"I just tried to deny him the ball because once he gets it, he's tough to stop 1-on-1," said Lewis Lloyd, who scored 22 points and guarded Moncrief most of the game.

"You have your ups and downs in the NBA and this was certainly a down," Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said. "We just played terrible and they played well."

Paul Pressey came off the bench to score 16 points and lead Milwaukee, which still leads the Central Division by one-half game over Detroit.

Nets 119, 76ers 116
Otis Birdsong and Kelvin Ransey scored six points apiece in overtime to lift New Jersey to a home victory over Philadelphia.

Birdsong, who led all scorers with 29 points, scored six of the Nets' first eight points in the extra period to give them a 111-108 lead with 1:39 left, and Ransey followed with his half-dozen points to preserve the margin. Andrew Toney led the 76ers with 27 points.

Lakers 128, SuperSonics 112
At Inglewood, Calif., Earvin "Magic" Johnson tied an NBA record with 12 assists in the first quarter and finished with a career-high 23 to lead Los Angeles over Seattle.

The Lakers, who got 25 points from Jamaal Wilkes and 21 from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, never trailed the SuperSonics after taking the lead in the opening minutes.

Suns 114, Spurs 111
Walter Davis and Maurice Lucas scored 23 points each to lead Phoenix to victory in overtime at San Antonio.

Davis had five of the Suns' seven points in overtime and also scored 10 straight Phoenix points late in the fourth period, including a 17-foot jumper that tied the score 107-107 with 17 seconds left in regulation.

Kings 119, Pistons 112
Billy Knight scored 10 points and Larry Drew nine of his team-high total of 23 in the fourth period as Kansas City outscored Detroit 40-31 in the final quarter to win at home.

The Pistons, who got 23 points from Isiah Thomas, led 81-79 going into the final 12 minutes.

Jazz 117, Bulls 95
Adrian Dantley scored 28 points and center Mark Eaton blocked 10 shots as Midwest leader Utah won at Chicago.

The Jazz led 61-49 at halftime and extended the margin to 74-55 midway through the third quarter. At that point, Bulls Coach Kevin Loughery benched his starters for the rest of the game.

Blazers 106, Knicks 89
Jim Paxson scored 20 points and Mychal Thompson added 13 of his 19 in the fourth period to help Portland win at New York.

The Trail Blazers used an 11-2 streak at the beginning of the fourth quarter and a 14-2 spurt in the final 2:39 to rout the Knicks after the teams were tied 69-69 entering the last 12 minutes.

Warriors 135, Nuggets 133
At Oakland, Joe Barry Carroll had a basket and Purvis Short two free throws in the final 25 seconds to break a 131-131 tie and lift Golden State over Denver.

Short had 30 points and Carroll 26 for the Warriors, who allowed an uncontested basket by Kiki Vandeweghe at the buzzer. Vandeweghe led the Nuggets with 34 points, while Dan Issel added 16 to push him over the 26,000 mark for his pro career.

Hawks 102, Cavaliers 84
Atlanta won the first game of its homestand after losing six games in a row on the road as Dominique Wilkins scored 36 points against Cleveland.

The Hawks led by as many as 24 points over the Cavaliers, who got 21 points from World B. Free.

'Quickie' Divorces Invalid

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Court of Appeals has ruled for the first time that foreign divorces aren't valid in North Carolina because they "offend this state's policy against the hasty dissolution of marriage."

The three-judge panel ruled on Tuesday that Doris Crumpler Mayer's divorce, which the Winston-Salem woman received in the Dominican Republic, was not valid.

"We cannot sanction a procedure by which citizens of this state with sufficient funds to finance a trip to the Caribbean can avoid our legislature's judgment on the question of divorce," Judge Charles Becton wrote.

In North Carolina, married couples can divorce without proving fault after a year's separation. In the Dominican Republic, a divorce can be granted after five days.

Mrs. Mayer met Victor Mayer of Durham in 1980 at a diet clinic while she was married to Fred Crumpler Jr. of Winston-Salem. To avoid waiting the one-year separation required in North Carolina, she and Mayer went to the Dominican Republic for a divorce. Mayer paid for the air fare and hotel room, court records show.

They married in March 1981, but Mayer left her in July 1981. Mrs. Mayer sought alimony in Oct. 1981.

"Doris Mayer, with full knowledge of the consequences, gambled and lost," Becton wrote. "She left her lawyer-husband (Crumpler), releasing him from all alimony obligations, for a greater love, or for what she thought was a better deal."

To counter her alimony claim, Mayer said the couple wasn't legally married because her Dominican divorce was invalid in North Carolina.

While agreeing that the divorce was invalid, the appellate court concluded that Mayer "never questioned the validity of the marriage until he abandoned her."

The court said that Mayer cannot benefit from the invalid divorce so he is subject to paying alimony.

"It would be even more inimical to our law and to our public policy to permit Victor Mayer to avoid his marital obligations by acting inconsistently with his prior conduct," Becton said.

The court didn't say whether Mrs. Mayer remains married to Crumpler. Mrs. Mayer's attorney, Michael Lewis, said he thinks Crumpler cannot challenge the va-

Police Patrols Deter Assaults

DETROIT (AP) — There has not been a "single confirmed assault on a schoolgirl" in the two weeks since police intensified their patrols in response to last year's 47 sexual attacks on teen-agers, Mayor Coleman A. Young says.

Young told a meeting of 100 civic and business leaders Tuesday that patrols on routes that students take to school, plus shifts in some schools' starting hours, "have shown quick and clear results."

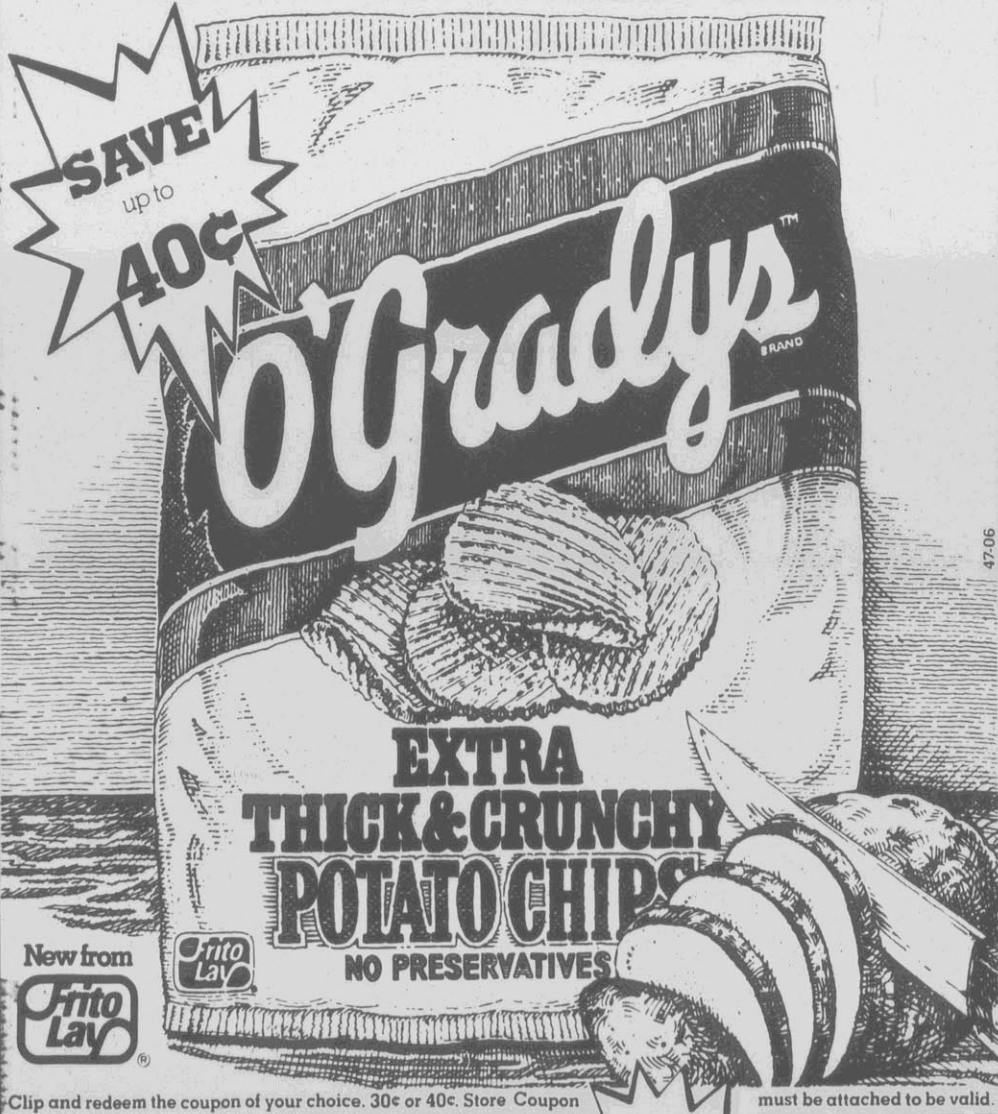

Curtis Sliwa, founder of the New York-based Guardian Angels street patrol group, tried to address the meeting but was ordered ejected by Young, who said that "we're not going to have vigilantes."

lidity of the divorce because he, too, consented to it. But he said he would advise his client to file for a North Carolina divorce.

Mayer's attorney, Robert Slater, said he does not know whether his client will appeal to the state Supreme Court.

may not be with "Star Wars" anymore.

Cable television, home video and old age have combined to steal some of the sparkle from the 1977 film's network debut Sunday night on CBS.

"Several years ago, 'Star Wars' would have done a 35 to 40 rating," said David Poltrack, CBS' vice president for research. "That's what big movies did back in the pre-cable days."

Now, Poltrack is predicting a 28 rating (28 percent of all TV homes) and a 40 share (40 percent of all homes with their sets on.) Some industry observers think it will do worse and even finish second to ABC's steamy miniseries, "Lace," which begins the same night. (NBC's repeat of "Urban Cowboy" should finish a distant third.)

"Sleaze will win out," said an advertising executive who requested anonymity. "I don't think 'Star Wars' will come across on the small screen."

Another ad executive, Joel Segal of Ted Bates, gave the edge to "Star Wars." "Kids and men don't care about 'Lace,'" he said.

There is much precedent for a first-run, made-for-TV product performing successfully against a blockbuster already on cable.

On Feb. 5, the first Super Sunday of this sweeps month, "My Mother's Secret Life," ABC's TV-movie about a prostitute, attracted 36 percent of the viewing audience. NBC's "On Golden Pond" had 37 percent and CBS' "Chariots of Fire" pulled in 17 percent of the viewers.

At $2 million, ABC spent half what CBS paid and one-sixth NBC's outlay. Sleaze was a big winner that night, too.

More and more, the networks see home-grown product as the more profitable and popular commodity. A diminished interest in "Star Wars" may be viewed as another reflection of how the new technologies are influencing commercial TV.

George Lucas, writer-director for "Star Wars," originally opposed the film's sale to cable. "He felt that its best presentation was in the theaters," said Susan Trembly, marketing assistant for Lucasfilm Ltd.

Tony Hoffman, an entertainment industry analyst for Cralin and Co., said, "Lucas' attitude was once it was released over the air, it was gone. Everybody who has a cassette recorder will copy it."

But 20th Century-Fox, which owned rights to the film, wanted the money from a sale to cable TV, then CBS. "Star Wars," second to "E.T." on the all-time rentals list, already had been released to the theaters three times.

"We always wanted to sell it to TV, and we finally persuaded Lucas," said Jack Brodsky, a Fox vice president. "We decided that the network sale would outstrip the value of another reissue. To equal the TV revenue, we would have had to do $50 million-$60 million at the box office."

Surprisingly, "Star Wars" did not do spectacularly on cable. On premiere night, it got a 26 rating in homes with HBO, as compared to a 40 rating for the debut performances of "On Golden Pond" and "Officer and a Gentleman."

Hoffman said the same factors that depressed the movie's cable ratings might affect Sunday's showing.

"Star Wars" is not in the same category as "Gone With the Wind" and "The Wizard of Oz," he said. "This is not the kind of movie that people will watch endlessly. So much of its appeal is special effects, but the technology today has gone much further. Audiences don't find it as endearing. The sound and spectacle are lost on the small screen."

Lucas had balked at selling "Star Wars" to network TV because he didn't want it sullied by commercials. In deference to the filmmaker, CBS has allowed him to choose the best spots for breaks.

IN JAPAN — American singer Willie Nelson, beginning his first tour of Japan, said Tuesday he plans to offer "both standard and original jazz", a departure from the country ballads that made him famous. (AP Laserphoto)

Vote Due Today On Videotape Rental Rules

By BILL McCLOSKEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee is considering legislation that would prohibit rental of pre-recorded video cassettes unless the tape's copyright owner gave approval.

Supporters of the legislation say actors, producers and others in the movie business are not getting proper compensation for their work when it is rented out over and over again with no royalty payment to them.

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee was to debate the bill today and then vote on whether to kill it or send it to the full committee.

The Consumer Home Recording Rights Committee, which wants the bill killed, has launched a lobbying campaign targeted at the members of the subcommittee on Patents, Copyrights and Trademarks.

The subcommittee's chairman, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., is author of the bill.

Newspaper ads appeared this week in the Baltimore Sun, in Mathias' home state, and in the home state newspapers of the other six subcommittee members. The ads urged constituents to call the senators and ask for a vote against the bill.

"Do you want to pay more to rent movies?" the ads asks, adding prices will "skyrocket" and "double or triple."

In a statement prepared for the hearing, Mathias argues that, in fact, rental prices will go down because purchase prices will go down. "Sales prices are artificially high, because the copyright owners charge high prices for sales as the only way to get a share of the rental market."

He said the absence of royalty payments is because of the "first sale doctrine," which he calls "a quirk in the copyright law."

"Congress adopted this rule back at the turn of the century to protect private individuals and libraries from possible copyright liability when they sold their copies of books and records," Mathias said.

Entertainment industry lobbyists are pushing hard for the bill's passage.

The legislation would prohibit renting, lending or leasing a videotape copy of a movie or other audio-visual work for commercial advantage.

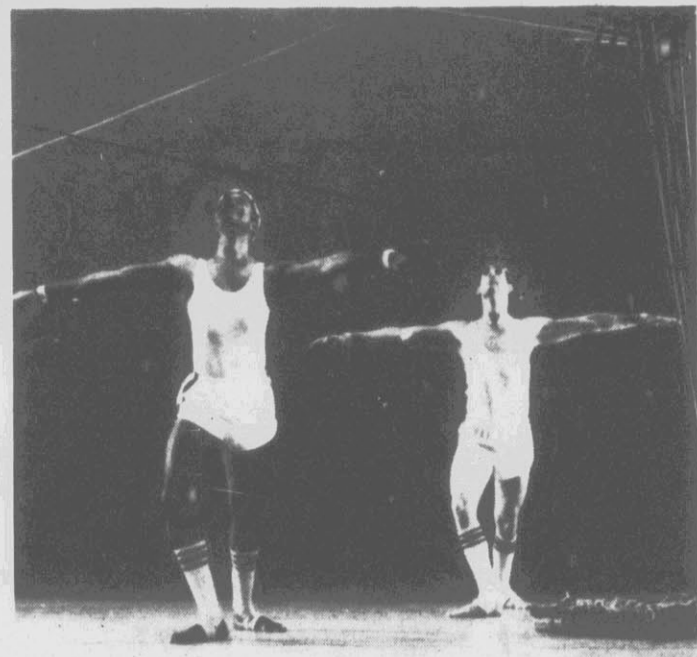

In January, the Supreme Court ruled that taping television shows for private use is legal. But the court did not deal with the rental question.

The rental legislation had been put on hold while the court studied the home recording issue.

The newspaper ads say "The studios want Congress to give them a 'consolation prize' for having failed in the Supreme Court to gain control over the use of your home video recorder."

About 9 million video cassette recorders have been sold to people for use at home. It is estimated that one in every 10 American homes has a video recorder.

Rental of videotapes began because of the relatively high purchase price of videotapes of motion pictures, usually between $30 and $100 and the relatively small number of times a person might want to view a single movie.

OPENING FRIDAY EVENING — The East Carolina Dance Theater is presenting a program of dance — modern, ballet and jazz — at McGinnis Theater. Performances will be at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday and again Monday through Wednesday. Tickets are on sale at the box office, corner of Fifth and Eastern streets from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, and will also be available at the door. The dance scene shown above is from the 1983 dance program.

A Review

Old Theme, But Done Well In Film Comedy

"Unfaithfully Yours," now playing at the Buccaneer, is a mildly entertaining romantic comedy based upon a very old idea: what happens when a man marries a woman half his age?

May-December marriages have been the subject of comedy since at least Chaucer's time, and the jeal-ousies, fears, opportunities and misunderstandings inherent in such relationships have become traditional subjects for romantic humor. Director Howard Zieff successfully puts this old story in a contemporary setting, and his cast works hard to make us laugh.

Dudley Moore plays a famous New York symphonic conductor recently married to a young and beautiful actress, Nastassja Kinski. Returning from a triumphant engagement in London, Moore thinks he discovers that his wife has been unfaithful with his good friend and concert violinist, Armand Assante. With the help of his manager, Albert Brooks, and his servant, Richard Libertini, he sets out to prove his wife has been unfaithful and begins to plan his revenge.

Zieff sets his story against a delightful backdrop of New York scenes, concert performances and rehearsals, and social gatherings. The dialogue is witty and the photography enjoyable. The cast is especially well chosen.

Nastassja Kinski, who was long-suffering in "Tess" and erotic in "Cat People," shows real promise as a comic actress here, and Armand Assante is perfect as the arrogant, handsome womanizer. Richard Libertini is a fine comic actor, and his performance as the Italian-speaking servant is wonderfully bizarre.

The only problem with the film is Dudley Moore. Moore's character is well developed, and his performance is entertaining, but it is a character and a performance we have seen before. Moore's intelligent, talented, and slightly out-of-control conductor is virtually the same as the characters he played in both "10" and "Arthur." Moore can be an outstanding comic actor, as viewers who remember "Bedazzled" will recall, but in recent years he has chosen to play the same character again and again. I kept hoping for something more.

There are a number of fine scenes in this film, especially a violin duet/duel in a Hungarian restaurant and a fantasy revenge sequence complete with white tie and tails and Halloween masks. "Unfaithfully Yours" is not great comedy, but it is a pleasant, small diversion.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — A MOLE MIGHT FIND HIS BLAND FRIENDS TOO BORING.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: D equals E.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
 4 ♥ Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: Jack of ♦.

What nature doesn't provide, man must fashion for himself. East and West cooperated splendidly to set a seemingly iron-clad contract.

North's bidding leaves a lot to be desired. His hand is worth 19 points, and a simple heart raise doesn't come close to doing it justice. Since it is unwise to jump raise a suit with only three-card support, we would suggest a jump to three clubs at his second turn. As it was, South stretched to bid again, and game was reached.

West led the top of his diamond sequence, and East was not thrilled with the dummy that hit the table. He could see two probable diamond tricks for his side, but it did not look as if the defense could take any tricks in the black suits — any cards that West held in those suits were finessable. To defeat the contract, the defenders would have to come up with two trump tricks. So East set about attacking declarer's trump holding.

East won the king and ace of diamonds and then did what every learner is told not to do on pain of death — he continued with a diamond to give declarer a ruff-sluff. Declarer could not ruff in dummy without promoting a trump trick for West, so he ruffed in hand. But he was only delaying the inevitable.

Solar Heat Developed For Korea

By C.W. LIM
 Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A maker of "yontan," the coal briquettes most Koreans use to heat their homes, believes he has come up with something that will help do away with the fuel's "silent killer" reputation. It could save hundreds of lives every year.

The severe winters of Korea demand efficient heat, and for more than 15 centuries the answer has been "ondol," an under-the-floor, radiant heating system. It functions on the simple principle of distributing the heat from a stove, usually the kitchen unit, under the floor by means of a series of flues rather than letting it just go up a chimney.

Problems arose in the early 1950s, however, when the main source of fuel switched from wood to coal. The cylinder-shaped yontan briquettes were developed, with the most popular size weighing 3.6 pounds and containing 19 holes for easier burning.

The danger is that a leak in the flue system or a crack or other flaw in the floor can allow carbon monoxide — odorless, colorless, tasteless and deadly — to escape. It was especially dangerous in rooms where people were sleeping on the floor, a normal Korean practice.

Government agencies declined to give figures of those killed or left suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning, but the Korean-language daily Joong-ang Ilbo reported recently an estimated 50,000 people were killed by the deadly fumes between 1953 and 1981.

With about 40,000 personnel based in South Korea, the U.S. Military each winter uses radio and television broadcasts along with service publications to warn of the dangers of the Korean heating system. Available records showed four American citizens have died from carbon monoxide poisoning in Korea in the past 10 years.

The popularity of the ondol heating system, along with the ever-present carbon monoxide danger, prompted 57-year-old Lee Chu-won, president of the Jin Hung Development Corp., to try for a better, less dangerous briquette. He said in an interview that after a 13-year effort at a cost of more than 1.3 billion won ($1.7 million U.S.), he had developed a poison-free heat unit, a coal briquette that burns more than 90 percent of the carbon monoxide and other gases emitted by coal fuel.

Lee, who operates a yontan factory at Incheon, the port city east of Seoul, said his fuel was also treated with chemicals that kept it from giving off toxic fumes.

"By adding some chemicals," he said, "it burns hotter. It burns like liquefied natural gas."

Other benefits, he said, are a longer burning time, quicker combustion and a price competitive with regular yontan. Lee said his factory now produced 100,000 units daily and had difficulty in keeping up with the demand.

He says the newly developed fuel still "cannot guarantee complete safety" against possible carbon monoxide poisoning, but it is a great improvement.

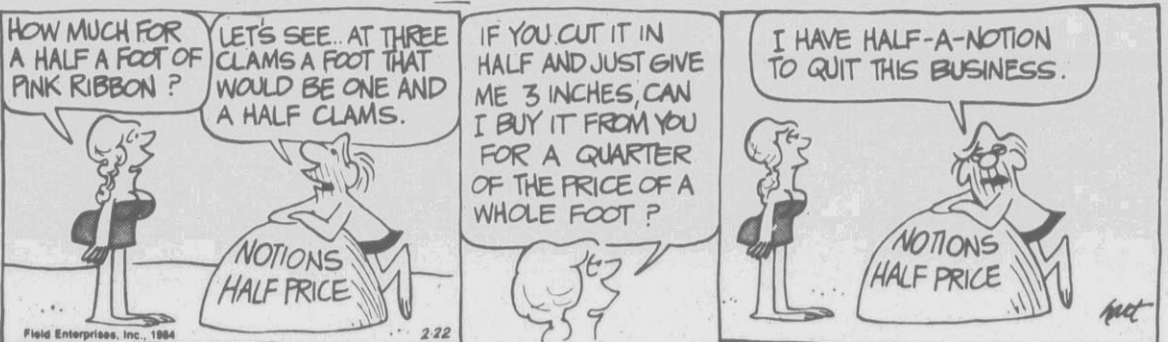

An association official noted also that improvements in heating systems have been made in recent years, reducing the number of cases of carbon monoxide poisoning. Many newer apartment buildings and houses also are being built which retain the under-the-floor heating system, but which use steam or hot water circulating through the pipes.

When declarer led a trump, West shot in with the ace. Taking his lead from partner, he led a fourth diamond, and declarer's goose was well and truly cooked. If he ruffed in dummy, he would set up a trump trick for West by force; if he ruffed in hand, West would end up with a long trump. The Hobson's choice resulted in down one regardless of how South proceeded.

The Best Selection of Previously Owned Toyotas

The Best Buy
A leading consumer magazine reports that there's no better buy in a used car than a previously owned Toyota.
You see, Toyota's reliability and documented low incidence of repairs means that new or used, you get a very dependable car for your money.

The Nicest Bonus
Bring us this coupon, and we'll give you $200 off the price of any previously owned Toyota in stock.
Or, you may use it toward the purchase of almost any other used car or truck in stock.
All of these previously owned Toyotas represent a remarkable automotive value. In fact, many qualify for our 2 year 24,000 mile Tender Loving Care Warranty.
Of course, financing is available with approved credit, on all models in stock.

The Largest Selection
In fact, previously owned Toyotas are usually hard to find. After all, Toyota owners are a loyal bunch.
But right now, we have the largest selection you'll find anywhere.
Over 30 previously owned Toyotas in stock now!

Computer 'Terror' Is Eased

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Millions of Americans have plunged enthusiastically into the world of home computers, playing games, managing personal finances and handling business chores with scarcely a pause to beep. But anyone contemplating a first step into the field may find it a frightening one.

The Electronic Industries Association, a trade group, and the federal government's Consumer Information Center, have teamed up to take out some of the terror with a 49-page guide, "How To Buy A Home Computer," which covers the basic computer styles and accessories, explains what sort of equipment you'll need for different types of activities and provides a glossary of terms. It costs 50 cents and is available from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 419M, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Before you even contemplate a purchase, you should read popular magazines on home and personal computers, talk to someone who owns one and visit a computer shop and a meeting of a user's group. That's computer talk for a computer club: learning the language is part of buying a computer.

Decide what you want your computer to do. Do not buy a computer and then try to find ways to use it. Determine the uses first.

When you're setting a budget, consider everything you will need. An inexpensive machine may require costly accessories to do the things you want, and you could wind up spending more in the long run than if you paid more initially. There is no point, however, in paying for features you will not need or use.

There are two key terms to keep in mind: Hardware, which refers to the equipment, and software, which describes the programs that tell the computer what to do. There are five basic types of home computer:

—Computer literacy computers. These machines cost under $100, not including TV display or accessories. They'll help you learn about computers, play simple games and even learn programming. Do not expect to do anything very complicated with them.

—Entertainment computers. At a cost of $100 to $500 and up, you'll be able to get a computer that lets you play arcade-quality games at home and can be used as a teaching tool for children. You generally can get colors, sound effects and a choice of recreational or educational software.

—Home management-productivity computers. These are the computers which you can use to prepare financial statements, draw up mailing lists or even write a book. These computers generally cost $1,000 and up. You may be able to turn your entertainment machine into a home management computer by adding accessories, but you're probably better off starting fresh if you plan substantial business-related use of your computer.

—Portable computers. Self-contained computers which fit under an airline seat. The price: $1,800 and up. Portable computers typically include a built-in TV-like display, a selection of business software and one or two built-in disk drives to run the software.

—Handheld computers. Even smaller than portable computers, these pocket, briefcase or lap models retail for around $100 to $800 and often resemble calculators with built-in liquid crystal displays and, sometimes, tiny printers. They are battery powered, can run programs and connect with peripherals or auxiliary devices to store data, plug into information networks and even send material to other computers by telephone.

The next step is to decide what kind of software you want. There are two types of programs — some with specific applications and others, called operating systems, which manage what happens inside the computer. You don't need to know much about the operating systems software. But it is important to remember that each specific application program is written to work with a specific operating system and a specific computer. There are some operating systems which are compatible with several types of computers, but you must be careful not to buy a computer which will not work with the kind of programs you want to use.

Like hardware, software comes in several varieties: recreational, educational, home management, personal business and scientific.

You should test all software by finding out how easy it is to use. (Computer jargon is "user friendly.") Read the written instructions and ask to try the program in the store. The better programs have menus, or lists of things the computer can do, and help screens, which include instructions right in the program itself.

Other considerations in picking software include how quickly the program will run, what sort of warranty is provided and what kind of informational support the manufacturer provides if you have a question.

BURNING BRIGHT

BOSTON (AP) - Astronomers at Prospect Hill Observatory predict Halley's Comet will be brighter than expected when it returns within view of the earth in 1986.

Based on the comet's last visit in 1910, scientists feared it was becoming dimmer and would be extremely faint to viewers.

His Message

Don't Go Far

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) - When Jerry Poppenhouse dropped a message into the Gulf of Mexico, he didn't expect it to wash up in his own backyard.

Poppenhouse, a photographer for Phillips Petroleum Co., was working on a drilling platform 80 miles offshore from Corpus Christi, Texas, when he put a message in an empty film cannister and dropped it into the water. The message gave his address and asked the finder to contact him.

On his return to Bartlesville, Poppenhouse got a phone call from Bill and Debbie Boyd. Poppenhouse asked, "Where are you?" Replied the Boyds, "Bartlesville. We live about two miles from you."

The Boyds had found Poppenhouse's message on the beach while visiting Padre Island, Texas.

Energy Audits

In 22 States

WASHINGTON (AP) - Twenty-two states now offer users free energy audits - ranging from simple "walk-through" inspections to sophisticated analyses using funds from the federal Energy Extension Service, reports an energy journal.

According to Energy User News, in many states the free audits include one-on-one consultations with energy auditors to give users more personalized assistance.

Some 20 states have an energy hotline with a staff to handle telephone inquiries about such topics as tax credits, government and utility conservation programs and publications.

Fakes For Collectors

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — The collecting world is being besieged by fakes, forgeries and improperly represented reproductions — causing many genuine collectibles to be devalued and giving inexperienced collectors a black eye and flea market dealers a bad name, claims an industry expert here.

"Collectors are being cheated out of millions of dollars by dealers and manufacturers who are selling counterfeit collectibles," says Charles Jordan, a collectibles specialist and editor of the bimonthly publication, Collectibles Illustrated magazine.

"The most popular collectibles that lend themselves to forgery are toys, glass, posters, coins, stamps, medals and campaign items. Many of the fakes and modified reproductions show up on the flea market circuit, where there is little control over the type and flow of goods."

The trafficking of illicit collectibles is having an adverse effect on the value of many genuine collectibles, industry leaders note. Well-known toy auctioneer Lloyd Ralston of Fairfield, Conn., says, "Kenton's Overland Circus Wagon, for instance, should sell for $450 to $600. But it has been reproduced so much, you have trouble getting $100 for it."

The knowledgeable collector has become leery of such collectibles, but the beginner has a harder time, Jordan says.

"It is often difficult, especially for the beginning collector, to tell if he or she has been had," he explains. "Depression glass, as an example, is easily reproduced from original molds. Paper items, such as posters, are probably the most easily duplicated items."

Collectors are not totally helpless, however, he adds. Many legitimate businesses and organizations are waging war against counterfeiters and forgers. Groups like the International Anti-Counterfeiting Coalition and the Motion Picture Association of America are tracking down collectible counterfeiters.

"But the road is long and hard," Jordan says. "Walt Disney Productions, for instance, handles between 200 and 300 product counterfeit cases at any one time. Film industry legal offices do battle on 2,000 different fronts any given day."

Varied Services On Home Videos

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Home television screens will offer a wide variety of services beyond entertainment and information this year to subscribers of a new system in California's Orange County area, says MIS Week.

The management information systems weekly reports that a new videotex system will allow subscribers to use their home video screens to shop, bank, purchase theater tickets, book airline reservations and keep up to date with late-breaking news.

The service will also provide restaurant or movie reviews, enable users to communicate with other subscribers and play educational games.

Offer Ice, Sodas Or Bank Deposit

DALLAS (AP) — A large chain of convenience stores plans to install 1,000 automatic bank teller machines in several Texas locations, according to a management information systems journal.

Initially, says MIS Week, the machines will be placed in stores in Houston, Austin and the Dallas-Fort Worth area, with other cities targeted for later installation. The machines will allow convenience store customers to do their banking virtually at all hours by using the First Texas Savings Association machine network when they come in to make other purchases.
