Poll In N.H. Has Hart-Mondale Tie

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire voters, playing their traditional and often unpredictable role, went to the polls today with one survey indicating Sen. Gary Hart had pulled even with Walter F. Mondale, the longtime front-runner in the Democratic presidential race.

The poll, conducted Saturday through Monday for ABC News and the Washington Post, showed Mondale, the former vice president, and Hart, the Colorado senator, each with 30 percent support. It surveyed 446 Democrats and independents who said they were sure to vote today.

Placing third was Sen. John Glenn with 14 percent. The Rev. Jesse Jackson had 8 percent. Based on a rolling three-day average, the poll has margin of error of plus or minus 6 percent.

The poll indicated a dramatic movement of support toward Hart, who placed second in the Iowa party caucuses last week. On Sunday, an earlier ABC News-Washington Post poll showed a seven-point lead for Mondale over Hart. An even earlier ABC-Post poll had showed Mondale with a 14-point lead.

Hart's New Hampshire campaign manager, Jeanne Shaheen, reacted cautiously. She called the polls "encouraging for us" but added, "I think the figures are a little high based on our surveys."

Snow greeted New Hampshire voters this morning and Secretary of State William Gardner said turnout could be greatly affected if it continued throughout the day.

"If it snows all day, it could cut the turnout by 20 to 30 percent — if it snows all day," he said.

Gardner said some local officials had called him for additional ballots in anticipation of an expected heavy turnout. "I told them to hold back (because of the weather)," he said.

It was hard to judge the impact of a low turnout, but polls have indicated that Mondale's support is stronger among older people who might be less likely to venture out in bad weather while much of Hart's strength is among younger people.

In line with state tradition, the 27 voters of Dixville Notch, a tiny mountain hamlet, cast their ballots at midnight at the Balsams Hotel, with Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina receiving 3 votes and Mondale getting 2 votes from Democrats. Hart and former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew had 1 each.

On the Republican side, President Reagan had 15 votes, while Hollings had 5 write-ins.

Iranians Warned Off By U.S. Warship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid State Department concern over the possibility of an escalated Iran-Iraq war leading to U.S. involvement, a Navy destroyer has fired warning shots at an Iranian patrol plane that came too close to American warships in the Persian Gulf.

Machine guns and flares were used Sunday to warn off the plane. At the same time, the U.S.-guided missile destroyer Lawrence by radio warned off an Iranian navy frigate that it was too close to U.S. ships, sources said Monday.

It was the first time a U.S. warship has opened fire in the area, although several Iranian warplanes since 1980 have flown out to look at the U.S. ships patrolling the Persian Gulf and the northern Arabian Sea, said sources who spoke on condition they not be identified by name.

The Iranian frigate and P-3C plane penetrated a five-mile safety zone that the United States has proclaimed publicly, the sources said. The incident was said to have occurred near the critical Strait of Hormuz, a key passage for oil tankers from the Persian Gulf to the rest of the world.

Iran has threatened in the past to retaliate for Iraqi attacks on its oil facilities by blocking shipping through the Strait of Hormuz, which President Reagan has said must not happen.

Reports that Iraqi aircraft attacked oil tankers Monday near Iran's Kharg Island led State Department officials to voice "serious concern" that a series of events could be set in motion that would lead to American involvement.

Asked what the administration would do if the Strait of Hormuz was closed, a White House official, who did not wish to be identified, said

Wintry Storm For Much Of The State

By The Associated Press

A fierce winter storm tore into the state on Monday, abruptly ending two weeks of unusual springlike weather.

Snow and sleet pelted the mountains, rain fell from the Piedmont to the coast, and gusty winds toppled trees, structures and a radio tower and did an estimated $120,000 damage to an addition to the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Dr. Ed Brotak, head of the atmospheric sciences program at the University of North Carolina at Asheville, said a 71 mph wind gust was recorded Monday morning at UNC-A's weather monitoring station.

Meanwhile, between 3 to 6 inches of snow fell in northern and western North Carolina Monday, accompanied by high winds and thunderstorms that felled trees and caused power outages and forced schools to close.

Ice-laden tree branches crashed on telephone and electric lines in much of the central and northern mountains, leaving many residents without power Monday night.

"We have quite a lot of (snow) accumulation up here," said Minnie Barrier, interviewed by telephone from a store at Jonas Ridge in northwest Burke County. "The roads are almost impassable."

High winds tore through Buncombe County, knocking over an abandoned building near Woodfin, uprooting trees and downing power lines.

"We've been very busy with everything ... such as trees down, power outages and telephones out," an Asheville police spokesman said.

Ed Clark, spokesman for the speedway at Harrisburg, said wind and rain wreaked havoc with an incomplete $10 million expansion project. Construction supplies were soaked, while parts of the structure were torn off and flung into a highway one-fourth of a mile away.

"It looks like the entire roof (of the new building) is lost," Clark said. "We had sheet metal blow into U.S. 29 and hit a couple of cars. We also lost a great deal of scaffolding."

The winds hit their peak in Charlotte at around 12:30 p.m., reaching 53 mph, the weather service said. The winds partially demolished buildings in downtown Charlotte. The winds also shattered a window at a downtown arcade and a school.

"I saw the building go down, then the glass go out, and then a trash can whizzed by and a newspaper rack followed," Charlotte police officer C.W. Hill said.

Three Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools closed Monday afternoon after their power went out, school spokesman Myra Joines said.

More than 13,000 Duke Power Co. customers in Charlotte were without power during the peak of the windstorm. Power was restored for more than half of those customers by 2 p.m., a Duke Power Co. spokesman said.

Between 200 and 400 Southern Bell customers lost their phone service when fallen trees or limbs struck phone lines, Southern Bell spokesman Ladd Baucom said. Service should be restored by Tuesday, he said.

In Lexington, gusts up to 50 mph knocked radio station WBUY-WLXN off the air. Around 1:30 p.m., the main tower weaved and crumbled into two parts before hurtling to the ground. The AM station, WBUY, continued to broadcast using an auxiliary line with a weaker signal, while the FM station went off the air.

Allen Godwin, the station's chief engineer, said the 220-foot-high steel tower collapsed after one of its guy wires snapped. He estimate the loss at more than $100,000.

The chilling winds uprooted or snapped in half more than 70 trees in Forsyth County Monday afternoon, and trees falling across power lines cut electricity to as many as 3,000 homes and businesses in the county, a spokesman for Duke Power said.

Low temperatures Monday ranged from 25 at Boone and 44 at Murphy to 31 at Elizabeth City and 43 at Jacksonville.

Gale warnings continued in effect today along the coast as easterly and southeasterly winds reached 15 to 25 knots early this morning, the weather service said.

The winds reached 30 to 40 knots on Monday.

Decision Is Near On Tucker Bldg.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday tentatively agreed to dispose of the Tucker Building at the intersection of Third and Greene streets after architects questioned the value of remodeling the building to house offices.

The board has been considering various uses for the facility, which has been vacant since the Agricultural Extension Service offices moved into the county office building on West Fifth Street.

The latest proposal has been to move adult probation and parole offices, now located in the Courthouse, into the Tucker Building.

Contractors have told the board in the past that the building is structurally sound and could be renovated.

Cameron Dudley of Dudley and Shoe Architects Monday agreed that "the building is structurally sound." However, he suggested that the cost involved might be prohibitive and questioned, "Do you have a functional building?" after spending a "minimum" of $45 per square foot.

Dudley, who said renovation could cost as much as $60 a square foot, said it would cost about $100,000 to completely re-do heating, electrical and plumbing installations, and another $50,000 to install an elevator.

Commissioners asked Dudley to make a written report before a final decision is made about the property.

The long-range planning committee for the Courthouse has recommended moving the probation and parole offices, and R.L. "Bob" Martin, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, said "it's a pretty bad situation where they are. We need to speak to this problem and find a solution."

Commissioner Charles Gaskins agreed: "There's no question but what they need more room."

SEWER TESTS IN BETHEL

If you live in Bethel and see smoke coming from a manhole or your bathtub drain, don't be alarmed. The Bethel Town Board of Commissioners has asked Hotline to make citizens aware that a detailed inspection of the town's sanitary sewage piping system will be conducted during the next four to six weeks.

Town personnel and engineers from Rivers and Associates of Greenville will be checking the pipeline system between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. Testing will also be performed during daylight hours to locate and identify sources that allow rain water to enter the system.

Some portions of the system are over 50 years old, Mayor Frank Hemingway said, but the entire system will be inspected as determined necessary during the course of the work. The work is being performed as a portion of preliminary planning required to design and construct an upgraded wastewater treatment facility.

The nighttime inspection will involve engineers and town employees going from manhole to manhole to perform flow tests to obtain information that will be used to evaluate the system. A dense grayish white non-toxic smoke will be used for the smoke testing.

If smoke is seen exiting a vent pipe on a house or business in the testing area, the private plumbing system is normal; however, the issuance of smoke from other sources such as bathtub or sink drains, from underneath a building, or from the ground above a service pipe should be checked by the property owner for holes or disruptions.

Town officials request the cooperation of the public during the inspection work and said that inconvenience to the public should be minimal. Officials advise people to be aware of when crews are working in their area so smoke testing will not be construed as a fire.

Kuhn was charged with breaking and entering and larceny, Baker said.

Baker declined to identify who fired the shot.

"I'm concerned about the whole incident, and I have asked the SBI to investigate the matter," Baker said. "Until their investigation is completed, I won't have anything to say about the incident."

Baker said Kuhn told police he was armed with a .357 magnum pistol and was "going to take several law enforcement officers with him."

Southern Lady Image Seen As Drawback

By PATRICIA A. PAQUETTE
Associated Press Writer
KINGSPORT, Tenn. (AP) — The image of the Southern lady is a myth and has impeded women's rights in the South, says an East Tennessee State University professor who has spent several years researching the subject.

"The myth (is that she) is this vaporous creature who has some supernatural power over men and that she just sort of wallows in leisure and that nonetheless, she's supposed to be helpless and needs male protection," said Dr. Margaret Ripley Wolfe, 36, an associate professor of history.

"The Southern lady of reality was a much more interesting character than she was painted ... The real Southern woman, the mistress of the Southern plantation from which this image supposedly derives, was an extremely hardworking individual in terms of supervising slaves and managing the household."

Many Appalachian women worked on farms or in tobacco fields and "they considered themselves ladies," she said.

"You have an image on one hand that is not reality, but that's the sort of thinking that's perpetuated. Those images are held up as goals to which women should aspire."

"If one truly aspired to conform to that image, it would limit one's life considerably," Ms. Wolfe said, adding that she doesn't think there is anything wrong with being a homemaker, provided the woman is satisfied and has her own interests.

"There is a lot of mystique that perhaps the Southern woman is different, and that's because of the filmmakers, the Hollywood image, the Scarlett O'Hara image," she said.

Scarlett O'Hara is the heroine in "Gone With The Wind," Margaret Mitchell's novel about life in the South during and after the Civil War.

"This myth of what Southern ladies were has impeded rights for women in the South," she said, noting that only four Southern states ratified the women's suffrage amendment.

"If you're talking about a male-dominated society, if you're talking about one with all these notions of Southern male honor, chivalry, if you're talking about a racist society, and a South that's pretty much dominated by conservative politics, then what is possible for women within that kind of society?" Ms. Wolfe said.

And attitudes toward women haven't changed much in the past 50 to 60 years, "as revealed in voting patterns at the state legislative level," she said. The South as a bloc has "pretty much opposed" the Equal Rights Amendment, she said.

Women's rights organizers will have to work harder for grassroots support in the South than in other parts of the country if ERA is to succeed, she said.

Ms. Wolfe has a doctorate in urban history and is writing a book about Kingsport. Having grown up in nearby Hawkins County, she said she became interested in the image of the Southern woman because of her Southern heritage.

"Several years ago, I began taking a look at this image," she said. "And then I started asking myself, what happened? Did a schism occur? Did women manage to break out of that image?"

Although she emphasizes that she isn't a women's historian, Ms. Wolfe has written many articles on Southern women. Her book will examine the roles of Southern women in the 20th century, especially the period between the world wars.

She has received grants for the work from the Southern Regional Education Board, Berea College in Kentucky, and the ETSU Research Development Committee.

"I'm studying how Southern women began to create some kind of public lives for themselves, how they began to extricate themselves from some of this imagery of the Southern lady, how they became involved in reform crusades — not only to help themselves, but to help blacks, to help laborers in the South," she said.

Many of the Southern radicals in the 1920s and 1930s were women who began working through their church organizations, she said.

"They were very important in redesigning the South, sort of turning it around," she said.

Another Reader Says Dogs Do Bark In Holland

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago I read a letter in your column from a reader who claimed that dogs in Holland do not bark because other dogs never taught them how.

Ah, were that so! Unfortunately, dogs in Holland bark just as much as dogs in the other parts of the world. I know. For three years I lived next door to two dogs who must have been in training for the Olympic gold medal in barking.

We recently returned from a visit to Holland. While there we stayed with friends who had a Great Dane who should have been named "E.F. Hutton" — when he barks, people listen!

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

There's a period in a child's growth where everything he picks up goes directly into his mouth.

It's a tense time for a mother who must appear miraculously at the right time to snatch whatever from his hands and save him from devouring a lampshade or the sir treads.

With most children, the phase is a temporary one. They will baste everything with saliva and reduce it to bite-size for a period of three years ... tops. Then, they judiciously begin to examine the item, smell it, and determine whether or not it's edible.

Then, there is a group of children who never outgrow it. I am the mother of one of them. At the age of nine, he ate three soaps shaped like strawberries. At age 11, he ate a green apple and didn't even realize it was candle until he spit out the wick. One evening in his 16th year, we were at a friend's house having dinner when I looked up to find him eating a cork coaster.

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"Eating a cookie," he said. "It's not too bad."

"I'll get her recipe," I said tiredly.

Ironically, children who hang onto this appetite for non-edibles never seem to suffer any ill effects. My son has consumed enough baking soda (stored in the refrigerator to combat odors) to turn him into a statue.

He came in the other night and like a magnet went to his free-throw line in front of the refrigerator and with both hands pulled both the freezer and the refrigerator doors open.

Happy Birthday

To a "Special Danny" on his 30th.
It's just a number.
Your Friends

"Don't eat the film in the freezer," I said. "Your father is saving it for vacation."

His eyes caught the glass carafe filled with red liquid. In typical boy fashion, he whipped off the cap and hoisted it to his lips and began to drink. At the same time, his eyes went to a hummingbird feeder just outside our kitchen window. He stopped drinking. "Wait a minute," he said. "Is that hummingbird drinking the same stuff I'm drinking?"

I nodded. "You could have told me it was nectar," he said, wiping the sticky liquid off his lips. He is 28 years old.

A friend of mine came by and when I told her the story she said, "That's nothing. I gave a party the other night and one of the guests dipped her hand in my potpourri and started popping it into her mouth. She thought it was Trail Mix."

"How old was she?" I asked anxiously.

"38."
Why me, God?

Opening The Door

Those who have endured the long hospitalization of a young family member can truly understand the important role of a Ronald McDonald House.

There are not too many people who can so testify ... as North Carolina has only one such facility among the 50 or so in the world. But two are being built in the state, and now Pitt County Memorial Hospital has been added to the list; indicative of the status the local institution enjoys as an area medical center.

The house provides inexpensive, temporary lodging for parents who have to travel long distances to be near their hospitalized children, and for children receiving outpatient therapy. That criteria alone should ensure a warm welcome from any major medical center; but there is more.

The houses are a natural resource in which families can draw emotional support from each other; and for deeply concerned and worried parents that is a significant contribution.

Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chairman of the medical school's department of pediatrics, says "the volunteer is what is going to make this whole system function."

We suspect there will be no shortage of willing hands and generous hearts. There are large numbers in our community who have not yet found a volunteer outlet for their energies that suits them.

One more door is opened.

When they're called, they will come.

Mark Of Excellence

The East Carolina Alumni Association has established University Awards to recognize graduates for academic achievement, service and leadership.

The awards, which are expected to be the most prestigious offered to graduates, will take into account service to the community as well as the university. The number awarded each year will vary, with a screening committee choosing the recipients from 10 semifinalists. A grade point average of at least 3.5 will be required through the first semester of the graduation year.

James L. Lanier Jr., ECU vice chancellor for institutional advancement, said the recipients "should exemplify these special characteristics which could cause him or her to be recognized as one who will make a positive difference in the profession he or she pursues and in the community in which he or she resides."

The University Awards have exciting possibilities of recognizing students who will make a great contribution to our society as they pursue their careers. In future years they may come to be very much prized by ambitious undergraduates.

Cut And Slash

NEW YORK (AP) — By inference, corporate annual reports this year have a message for Washington. It is cut and slash.

The corporate cutting became serious in 1982, says William Dunk, who follows these things, but many of them were cosmetic. But in 1983 they really slashed away at the blubber, and they want shareholders to know it.

Cutting and slashing, therefore, is a major theme of this year's reports, says Dunk, who has spent much of his adult life advising corporations how to put their best image forward in their annual summing up for shareholders.

From analysis of reports that he has helped produce, and his readings of others, Dunk concludes that "companies have really gotten serious about getting rid of the fat."

Why, he says, even the reports themselves are simpler, a claim that cannot be made by Uncle Sam, who recently issued an "Economic Report of the President" that ran on for 343 pages, without so much as a picture.

No corporate report would carry on for even a third so many pages, and you can bet they are filled with colorful charts, photographs, variations in type and all the other design features that impress.

This year's reports tend to be simpler too, and clearer. Clear by far than the statistics-laden government report.

Many are also shorter than in years past, such as that by Celanese. Many seem easier to read, such as Emhart's, which enhances fine writing with large type; and some, such as the Shell report, have readable financial analyses.

"Even accounting experts have initiated laudable if unsuccessful efforts to simplify reports," says Dunk, alluding to a Financial Executive Institute summary that was subtitled "Moving Toward More Readable Annual Reports."

But the reports, after all, are merely the medium rather than the message itself. True, they seek by themselves to convey an image of cutting, slashing, thrift, economy, simplicity and other qualities that are seen as virtues this year. But for the most part they are merely reporting what happened elsewhere.

In corporate operations, for example, "With persistent high interest rates and tidal waves of deregulation, low margin operations have had to go," explains Dunk. Underperforming operations were cut loose as the lean-mean mood led to deep cuts in costs — and profits.

The reports, therefore, are filled with a litany of writedowns, writeoffs and rewrites. Big ones, in big companies. Companies such as American Telephone & Telegraph, Allied Corp., Merrill Lynch, American Express and other blue chips.

WASHINGTON — The specter of a national constitutional convention keeps popping to the surface of the news like a child's balloon in a holiday parade. It is a pretty bubble, much admired, and it seems a pity to shoot it down. But stand back. Pop!

There won't be any such convention.

We have been hearing about such a convention off and on for the past 10 years. By the way of background, it should be said that the Constitution provides two procedures for amendment. The first of these — the procedure that has been used for every amendment ever proposed or adopted in the history of the republic — is for Congress, by a two-thirds vote in each house, to submit an amendment to the states for ratification.

The second procedure never has been employed. The Constitution says that "on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, the Congress shall call a convention for proposing amendments." Any such proposed amendments would have to be submitted to the states in the same fashion.

Beginning about 1974, a campaign was set in motion to have the state legislatures apply to Congress under this second procedure for an amendment to compel a balanced federal budget. If 34 states submit valid applications, presumably the mandatory language of the Constitution ("the Congress shall ...") would be triggered. We are told that 32 of the required 34 states have adopted such resolutions.

Former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, who is old enough and wise enough to know better, recently delivered himself of an essay in The Washington Post that might have been written by Chicken Little or Henny-Penny. "We may be on the verge of convening the Second Constitutional Convention," he said. "I believe it would be an act fraught with danger and recklessness." The price of such a convention "would be incalculable domestic and international confusion." If a convention developed into a runaway convention, in the pattern of the Convention of 1787, it could "totally alter our way of life."

Well, well, I would say to my old friend, let us lie down with a cold compress on the fevered brow. We are not "on the verge" of calamity at all.

A close reading of the 30-odd "applications" discloses an array of contingencies, inconsistencies and conditional clauses. Many of the petitioning states — for example, Colorado — have gone to elaborate trouble to limit a convention to the single subject of a balanced budget amendment. In the absence of such a binding limitation, their resolutions are to be declared null and void.

Delaware's resolution of June 1975 illustrates the kind of thing that would be encountered if the movement ever were to be taken seriously. Delaware's application is to be counted only if two-thirds of the states "propose an identical amendment ... with a limitation that such amendment be the only matter before (the convention)."

Mississippi's resolution of March 1975 calls for an amendment not only on a balanced budget but also on repayment of the national debt. Such states as Maryland and South Carolina are not so specific; their resolutions call for a constitutional amendment "substantially as follows:"

How many of these resolutions are "valid"? Who knows? If the magic number of 34 ever should be reached, and if some sympathetic representative or senator should then introduce a measure of compliance, the matter would go instantly to the courts. A tradition has taken root that seven years is an appropriate period of "contemporaneity" for the ratification of amendments. It could well be argued that the same period should apply to the resolutions of a state legislature. At least half of the pending applications are now approaching the seven-year glitch. They are probably not worth the fancy paper they're embossed upon.

In brief, the sky is not falling upon our Constitution. If we ever are to have an amendment that mandates a balanced budget, it will have to emerge from Congress. No such resolution is politically feasible any time soon. I move the topic be tabled.

Moment Of Fleeting Fame

Andy Warhol once said everyone has a right to be famous for at least 15 minutes. It's never been truer than it was for Iowa the past month. The entire nation was sitting on the edge of its seats waiting to see who would take the Democratic Gold, Silver and Bronze Medals in the Iowa caucuses. The networks sent in their heavy artillery — Rather, Brokaw and Jennings, and thousands of reporters flooded the state to talk to every farmer, shopkeeper and coffee shop waitress in the state.

Then came Tuesday, the day after the results were in. Three reporters straggled into a coffee shop in Dubuque.

Four farmers sitting on stools perked up, prepared to be interviewed.

The re-orters, bleary-eyed from writing their stories, ordered black coffee, eggs and hash browns.

When the reporters didn't say anything, one of the farmers said, "I suppose you fellows would like to know how I feel about the nuclear freeze."

"Hey, Dad," one of the reporters said. "Would you keep it down? I'm trying to eat my breakfast."

The second farmer said, "Now I've always voted for Republicans, but if you ask me what I think — I was never for big deficits before and I'm not for big deficits now. I say they make us farmers live within our means, so why should the Reagan government go into debt by 190 billion dollars... Am I going too fast for you? You fellows don't seem to be taking any notes."

The reporters stared into their coffee cups.

"Mary, tell these reporters what you told us yesterday morning."

The waitress behind the counter said, "Well, I said I was going to vote for Gary Hart because he's the cutest of all the Democrats."

One of the other farmers laughed.

"That should make a nice little sidebar for one of your stories."

The fourth farmer said, "You want to know why I'm going to vote for Mondale?"

One of the reporters said, "Sorry, fellow, we don't care what lawns think any more."

A farmer got indignant, "What do you mean you don't care what we think any more? We're still American citizens. Whose opinions are you interested in?"

"The great people of New Hampshire. They could easily decide who the next Democratic presidential candidate could be."

"That isn't what you fellows told us last week! You said the whole thing was going to be decided by Iowa."

"How can it be decided by Iowa? You people only held caucuses. New Hampshire is going to hold a primary. We have to catch a plane."

"You bled us dry, and now you don't care what we have to say any more?" a farmer asked.

"That's politics, Dad."

A television crew came in carrying their equipment.

The farmers sat up. "You fellows want to set up your lights around that potbellied stove?"

We'll sit around it and then talk about how we feel about corn for Russia."

One of the TV crew said, "We're not going to do any shooting. We were just wondering if any of you fellows wanted to rent us a truck to get our equipment to the airport."

"But you're going to need some colorful footage of Iowa citizens for the evening news."

"New York told us to forget Iowa for the evening news."

"Does that mean Dan Rather, Tom Brokaw, and Peter Jennings ain't going to hang around Iowa until the November elections?"

"The three of them flew out on private planes last night."

"There goes Lou Harris, the pollster," one of the farmers said rushing to the door. "Hey, Mr. Harris, you remember me? I was one of the undecided. Well I finally made up my mind."

Harris got into his van. "I'll get back to you in four years."

Pinpointing The Differences

RALEIGH — All five Republican candidates for lieutenant governor call themselves conservatives and, on several issues, they all fall right in line supporting what is considered the "conservative" stand. For example, all five oppose the Equal Rights Amendment and state funding of abortions for poor women. All five support the death penalty and a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

But on seven of a dozen issues likely to face the next lieutenant governor, the candidates have varying opinions. In fact, even with the four issues upon which they generally agree, there are differences. For example, Erick Little of Cary doesn't support the ERA as it was originally drafted but says he could have supported it with some changes. Bill Hiatt of Mount Airy says the state should be willing to pay for an abortion if a poor woman is the victim of rape or incest or if her life is in danger. Frank Jordan of Rockingham says he supports the death penalty in general but not North Carolina's statute.

On one issue, the five conservative candidates all express general support for the liberal stand. Asked if a worker has the right to know which hazardous chemicals are present on his worksite, the candidates all said yes. The AFL-CIO is pushing legislation that would guarantee such a right in North Carolina but, so far, has been stymied by business lobbysts. (The candidates weren't necessarily endorsing the union's bill, just the principle.)

Four of the candidates oppose a state-run lottery. Only Jordan supports it. He goes further to say he'd support pari-mutuel betting.

On tax relief, the candidates were asked if they were advocating the repeal of the intangibles, inventory or food taxes. Barbara Perry of Kinston and John Carrington of Raleigh said they were not advocating repeal of any of the three. Little said there should be some relief on the food tax either by cutting the rate or dropping some items from taxation.

Hiatt and Jordan said they wanted the inventory and intangibles taxes cut as soon as the state could afford to do so.

The candidates split on the question of a federal constitutional amendment allowing organized prayer in the schools. "Organized prayer" would mean more than a moment of silence and could involve state-written prayers or teacher-directed Bible readings. Little, Carrington and Jordan all said they'd oppose such an amendment. The "organized" aspect concerned them. They said they had no problem with a minute of silence for individual prayer.

Mrs. Perry and Hiatt both supported the idea of a prayer amendment. But they said it should be voluntary.

Strength For Today

Someone once said, "Anger is dust and ashes." There is a good deal of wisdom in this observation.

Anger can sometimes operate as a divine gift. It is intended so to be. It is the emotional reaction with which we are equipped which makes us burst forth into furious protest when something mean, underhanded, dishonest or unjust is done. Jesus had anger, and exhibited it on several occasions.

But anger is usually not a noble passion. It is more often than not our spiteful reaction over not getting our own way. For example, if people disagree with us, we can work up a mighty and "righteous indignation" over their stupid disregard for facts. Again, it is hard for us to remain calm when someone lies to us.

Examine your anger the next time it flares up. Is it the result of some slight or injury, or your reaction to an injustice perpetrated on others than yourself?

Redrawing 2nd District Will Affect Others

RALEIGH (AP) — Redrawing a state senatorial district in north-eastern North Carolina to meet federal court guidelines could affect as many as seven other districts, state officials say.

Legislators and General Assembly staff members say that the 2nd

Senatorial District would be the most difficult to redraw.

A three-judge federal panel, acting on a suit filed on behalf of black voters, ruled Jan. 27 that the racial makeup of seven North Carolina districts violated the Voting Rights Act of 1965. The judges gave the General Assembly until March 16 to draw new boundaries.

U.S. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger refused Friday to grant a request by the state to delay the order. The state is seeking a review of the order by the full Supreme Court, but a special legislative session to deal with the issue is expected to be called.

The 2nd District is 55 percent black, but the federal panel ruled that the percentage must be raised to 60 percent. Counties in the district are Bertie, Chowan, Gates, Hertford and Northampton, along with parts of Edgecombe, Martin, Halifax and Washington.

Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, who represents the district, said that to raise the percentage of blacks more of Halifax and part of Warren County would have to be shifted into his district.

Harrington said Monday taking in counties to the south and southeast would not work "because the minorities fade out down that way." But he said his plan would raise the district's population and cause it to deviate too much from permissible constitutional guidelines.

Terrence Sullivan, director of research for the General Assembly, said he didn't think Harrington's plan would work.

Sullivan said that Harrington was "looking at (voting) precincts, and we have to deal with census tracts" which provide a racial breakdown by neighborhoods.

"Depending on how you draw the (new 2nd District) map, you're going to affect the 1st, 6th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 14th and 15th districts," Sullivan said. "It's a ratcheting effect — you redraw the 2nd and it involves others."

Another eastern North Carolina district covered by the ruling is the 8th House District of Edgecombe, Nash and Wilson counties. The district has four seats, all held by whites. Its black population is 39.5 percent.

William Hale, a legislative attorney, said a plan was being studied that would provide a district with a 63 percent black population. The rest of the district would have three at-large seats under the plan.

"It's possible to carve that out, but it's so tight that a difference of 35 or 50 people can throw it off," Hale said.

Rep. Thomas Matthews, D-Nash, said, "What we've seen so far is so nebulous and vague, I don't have any thoughts on it."

Other districts included in the order were:

— the 22nd Senatorial District, which has four seats in Mecklenburg and Cabarrus counties;

— the 21st House District, which has six seats, all in Wake County;

— the 23rd House District, which has three seats, all in Durham County;

— the 36th House District, which has eight seats, all in Mecklenburg County;

— the 39th House District, which has five seats, most in Forsyth County.

Unaware Family Slain In Absence

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy came home and watched television for 3½ hours before discovering the bodies of his mother and older brother upstairs, the third and fourth people killed in Nassau County in eight days, police said.

At least $2,000 worth of jewelry was missing from the home of Susan Eigen, 41, leading police to believe that she and her 17-year-old son, Richard, were killed during a robbery, officials said Monday. A younger son found the bodies Sunday when a telephone call came for his mother and he went upstairs to find her.

Mrs. Eigen was the third woman in Nassau County and the second in this Long Island town to be beaten and strangled since Feb. 19, but police said they did not believe the killings were related.

Asks New Site For 2nd Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The second trial of nurse Genevieve Jones, already convicted on separate charges of killing one infant with a drug injection, should be moved outside San Antonio because "the pressure to convict is enormous here," her lawyer says.

State District Judge Pat Priest took that and other pre-trial motions under advisement Monday in the case, which stems from a Bexar County indictment charging Ms. Jones with giving an infant boy a life-threatening injection at Medical Center Hospital here.

Ms. Jones was convicted two weeks ago of murdering a 15-month-old girl with shots of a muscle relaxant at a clinic in Kerr County, where she faces seven more child injury charges. She was sentenced to 99 years in prison on the murder conviction.

Liquor Vote For Scotland County

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP) — Scotland County will have a liquor-by-the-drink referendum on May 8, despite efforts by about 1,000 opponents who urged the County Board of Commissioners to vote against it.

The commissioners voted 4-2 Monday night to hold the referendum.

"We'll beat 'em at the polls," said The Rev. Herman Barnes after the vote.

Immediate Credit Card Surcharge Unlikely

By CYNTHIA GREEN
Associated Press Writer

Starting today businesses can charge extra fees for purchases made with the nation's 600 million credit cards, but retailers say they're wary about penalizing people who pay with plastic because "it might turn away customers."

"We feel it is not beneficial to our business," said Alan Kane, president of Hahne's department stores, a New Jersey-based subsidiary of American Dry Goods. "We want to attract people to our store, and doing that would not make us competitive."

A 10-year-old federal ban on credit-card surcharges expired at midnight after the Senate failed to take action Monday on a proposed extension which had been delayed by legal squabbling and heavy lobbying on both sides.

The ban lapsed for three weeks in 1981 with no widespread reaction, and most of the merchants interviewed Monday were planning no immediate action — while leaving the option open.

U.S. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a longtime advocate of allowing surcharges, said he thought the bill affecting the nation's 600 million credit cards would be brought to the Senate floor today. It already has been approved by the House.

Merchants pay card issuers from 2½ percent to 7 percent of the face value of a credit sale, and consumer groups that oppose the surcharge ban argue that cash customers subsidize those who use credit because prices must be high enough to cover the card companies' fees. Supporters of the ban, including credit card companies, say that surcharges would be confusing and an added expense to shoppers.

Stores are free now to offer discounts to customers who use cash, but a Federal Reserve Board study showed that only 11 percent do so, and many provide the bonus only if you ask for it. A discount is a reduction from the regular price; a surcharge is an addition to it.

Credit cards are estimated to account for up to 80 percent of sales in some categories, and credit use is booming. Federal Reserve Board statistics show that outstanding revolving credit — the kind you get with credit cards — grew by $1.72 billion in December, an annual increase of 29.3 percent.

With the lapse of the ban, the imposition and amount of surcharges depend on state laws and usury ceilings.

"We offer no discount on cash and have no plans on a surcharge to credit sales even if we were allowed to," said Ernie Arms, spokesman for Chicago-based Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer.

"In the past, we've treated our cash customers the same as credit customers. We're going to maintain the same posture. We're waiting also to see what's going to happen," said Susan McKelvey, a spokeswoman for No. 2 K mart Corp., in Troy, Mich.

Several merchants said they felt a surcharge would be just plain bad for business.

"Sixty-five percent of our business comes from credit-card users and we don't want to do anything that would threaten that business," said Joseph Gallucci, senior vice president for finance of Woodward & Lothrop, one of the largest department store chains in the Washington, D.C., area.

"In times like these, we can't expect people to carry a lot of cash, and it would be foolish to penalize them for not doing so," said Jack Bronstein, vice president and general manager of Bookbinders Old Original Restaurant in Philadelphia.

"It wouldn't make sense on personal level or business-wise."

Ground Is Broken For New Greenville Shopping Units

Ground has been broken on the first phase of what will be a new shopping complex on an eight-acre tract fronting on Evans Street and Red Banks Road near South Park Shopping Center, according to the developer.

Parker Overton, who operates Overton's Competition Skis on Jarvis Street, said work is beginning on a new 27,000-square-foot free-standing facility that will house his ski business and an expanded sporting goods center.

Overton said the entire ski operation will be moved to the new store, including offices and warehouse and general merchandise display. He said the firm has expanded its telephone business from an initial two Wats lines to 16 lines for toll-free mail order service.

According to the spokesman, the new Overton's Sports Center will feature not only the ski business and related accessories but basketball, football, exercise, fishing and marine supplies and clothing items. The store will also have space for a boat display.

The present business, which has expanded internationally, has sold merchandise to clients in distant areas such as Saudi Arabia. Overton said the firm has a boat shipment leaving soon for Tokyo, Japan. He said 350,000 copies of Overton's new 88-page catalog will be mailed following printing in March.

Overton said construction on the brick and block building, which will front on Red Banks Road, is targeted for completion in May.

Eight stores are projected for the shopping center, he said, noting that he is now in the process of negotiating with tenants to occupy the complex. He said he hopes a department store will anchor one end of the development.

Overton said the property includes 900 feet on Red Banks Road and 700 feet on Evans Street. Eastern Construction Co. is handling the general contract.

The developer is also involved in the ownership and operation of Overton's Supermarket in Greenville.

toxification needs in the county, commissioners were told Monday that "the bottom line is money."

Dave McRae, vice president at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, said "if there were dollars," a five- or 10-bed unit could be built at the county Mental Health Center to take care of persons who do not need to be admitted to the hospital for treatment, but whose needs can't be met at home.

The Mental Health Center currently operates a clinic seven days a week to help alcoholics, and has a home visitation and foster care program.

PCMH President Jack Richardson told commissioners that, in 1983, just under one patient per day was seen in hospital's emergency department for detoxification-related problems. While 10 percent of those patients were admitted, 55 percent of them remained in the emergency department for more than five hours.

Richardson said the greatest problem is the "disposition" of patients who do not need to be admitted.

In addition to the persons seen in the emergency department, Richardson said 406 other patients were admitted to the hospital for alcohol-related problems — 75 percent of them admitted on a medical floor and 25 percent of them admitted to the psychiatric unit.

He said half those admitted were treated primarily for detoxification, while the other 50 percent were treated for problems.

Richardson said the average stay for patients with alcohol problems was 7.5 days and the average charge was just under $3,000 each. He noted that the "significant problem" for the hospital in dealing with detoxification problems is the "high percentage of bad debt."

In other business Monday, the board approved an agreement with the town of Falkland that allows the county tax collector to collect property taxes for the town.

Investigating Home Break-In

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating a break-in at a Route 1, Winterville, home that resulted in the theft of property valued at $300, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said the owner of the home, Juanee Surprise, reported that a cassette tape deck was taken. Various items of silverware and two brass candle holders were found on the porch.

Tyson said the home had apparently been ransacked in the incident but the maid cleaned up before the owner returned home. Entrance was gained through a bedroom window.

today that the administration has been "planning for any eventuality for more than a year."

In the last three months, he said, an inter-agency group under the direction of the National Security Council has been planning for contingencies. "So while we would do what is necessary to keep the strait open and to keep shipping going and we do view any escalation very seriously, we are well prepared for any eventuality should they be closed."

University Girds For Reviews

East Carolina University officials are preparing for on-campus reviews by state and national accrediting agencies in a bid to regain full accreditation for the school's teacher education programs.

The National Council for the Accreditation and Teacher Education denied accreditation effective last September, and the State Board of Education granted a two-year provisional accreditation after reviews last year.

Both agencies said East Carolina lacked a coordinator for teacher education programs, and both questioned the student-teacher ratios in its special-education program.

ECU officials will outline changes they have made to NCATE representatives, who will visit the campus beginning March 19. Officials from the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction will visit on April 10.

ECU Chancellor John M. Howell and Angelo A. Volpe, vice chancellor for academic affairs, said Monday they are confident that the university has alleviated concerns raised by the groups. They said reviews had mainly questioned the structure and not the quality of the teacher programs.

Howell said the dean of the school of education had been given direct responsibility for nearly 40 teacher-education programs. Dr. Charles Coble is acting dean now, with a dean to be appointed by the trustees in the near future.

"We are very, very pleased," Howell said, "with the job that Dr. Coble and other members of our faculty have done in restructuring our education program. Like most universities which began as teachers' colleges, we had our education programs spread throughout the university program. For instance, art education would be in the art department. Now every education program is the education department's responsibility."

He pointed out that most of these changes were made last June, giving time for the programs to be in effect for some time prior to the reviews. He said he is pleased with the genuine acceptance to major change he has perceived from the faculty.

"Most of our faculty members," Howell said, "are not only happy with the changes. They're enthusiastic. We regret the negative publicity we had when the accreditation was denied, but we don't regret the changes."

Volpe said other changes included making multicultural educational efforts and follow-ups of graduates more visible.

Champion Panthers Rusty But Pull Out 20-18 Victory

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Panthers looked rusty, but in the end they did the things that champions have to do and Coach Jim Stanley likes that.

"Overall, this early in the year, you've got to think the offense did a great job," Stanley said after watching Novo Bojovic's 20-yard field goal sail between the uprights as time ran out Monday night, giving the Panthers a 20-18 United States Football League victory over the Chicago Blitz. "A lot of good things happened."

The defeat — in the season-opener for both teams — was hard for the Blitz to swallow.

"I'm disappointed and so are the players," Chicago Coach Marv Levy said. "But I think we are definitely stronger this year. I believe we are headed in a positive direction."

In fact, the Blitz led the Panthers four times, but each time Michigan quarterback Bobby Hebert managed to rally his troops.

Hebert looked rusty after missing most of camp in a contract dispute, but his numbers were bright and shiny as he completed 20 of 34 passes for 296 yards and two touchdowns without any interceptions.

"Sometimes I didn't feel right out there, and sometimes I felt 100 percent as good as I did last year," Hebert said. "My lack of practice time hurt. My timing wasn't always right and I threw some bad passes."

Hebert's favorite target was Anthony Carter, who caught seven passes for 107 yards and one TD.

The Bears opened the scoring 3:11 into the game with a 41-yard field goal by Kevin Seibel. The Panthers answered three plays later with Hebert and Derek Holloway hooking up on a 49-yard TD pass play. But Chicago went ahead 10-7 on its next possession as quarterback Vince Evans plunged over from 1 yard out.

Hebert flipped a 16-yard touchdown strike to Carter five seconds into the second quarter but the Blitz regained the lead on a 2-yard run by Larry Canada. Bojovic kicked a 39-yard field goal as time ran out in the first half to send the Panthers off with a 17-16 lead.

The third quarter was scoreless, but Chicago took an 18-17 lead when Jim Stone blocked David Greenwood's punt out of the end zone at 6:42 of the fourth quarter. The Panthers started their winning drive from their own 33 with 2:32 remaining and were on the Chicago 2-yard line with only five seconds left when the ball was snapped for Bojovic's climactic field goal.

"I feel like I'm a pressure kicker. I think I proved that last year in the championship games," said Bojovic, who missed from 33 yards early in the third quarter. "Because we are the defending USFL champions, people are expecting more from me than when I was a rookie. I want to show them that I am a good kicker under pressure."

Evans, playing his first USFL game after spending seven years with the Chicago Bears of the National Football League, completed 16 of 32 for 134 yards with one interception.

"It took me a while to get untracked tonight," Evans said. "But, we have a real positive attitude after this game. We feel we had opportunities to win this game.

"I am optimistic about our chances for the rest of the season. I thought we played well against the defending champions and we are going to get better as the season goes on."

Stanley had to agree with the opposing quarterback.

"I thought we were fortunate to win," Stanley said. "I feel like we dodged a bullet tonight."

Smith Set To Make Return

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith says freshman guard Kenny Smith, out for four weeks with a fractured left wrist, could play against Georgia Tech on Wednesday.

"At this time, we are planning on Kenny suiting up for the Georgia Tech game," Smith said. "He could see some playing time Wednesday. We will be watching him in the course of the week to see how he does with this new device on his wrist."

Smith was cleared by a team doctor Monday to return to action for the No. 1-ranked Tar Heels.

Smith, a 6-foot-2, 160-pound freshman from Queens, N.Y., fractured his wrist on Jan. 29 against Louisiana State. He had been a starter in the backcourt prior to the injury and was leading the Atlantic Coast Conference in assists.

"Kenny has progressed to the point where it is safe for him to play as long as he is wearing a protective device," team physician Dr. Joseph DeWalt said Monday.

Smith was fitted with a rubber device similar to those worn by teammates Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan when they had sprained thumbs. Smith, who has been practicing with a heavy cast, will work out with the newer device when the Tar Heels practice today.

Following North Carolina's victory over Clemson Sunday, the Tar Heels did not practice on Monday. They meet Georgia Tech in Atlanta Wednesday night and return home on Saturday to face Duke in the regular-season finale.

Smith was averaging 10.1 points per game before he was sidelined. He was shooting 56.7 percent from the field and 83.3 percent from the free throw line.

Steve Hale replaced Smith in the starting lineup. He handed out 50 assists and committed 15 turnovers.

"We really didn't skip a beat when Kenny was injured and that's a compliment to all of our players, particularly Steve Hale," coach Smith said. "I hope we will have a similarly smooth transition with Kenny's return and not lose any of our team chemistry."

ECU Visits Campbell

East Carolina's Pirates go on the road for the last time this year — at least in the regular season — Wednesday night, facing Campbell University in Fayetteville.

Tipoff in Cumberland County Auditorium is set for 7:30 p.m.

Following that contest, the Pirates return home on Saturday night to host ECAC-South rival James Madison in the final game of the regular season. Then, it'll be on to Harrisonburg, Va., for the first round of the league tournament at James Madison next week. East Carolina, seeded sixth, probably will not know its opponent until after this weekend's games. Richmond has already sewn up the number one seeding, but Madison, George Mason, William & Mary and Navy are all deadlocked in the loss column as the week opens, each with four defeats.

For the Camels of Campbell the game will be the final home contest of the year. For that reason, four seniors will draw starting assignments, along with one junior. Only two of the starters will be regulars.

Those two are 6-5 senior forward Larry Cannady, averaging 13.0 points and 7.7 rebounds a game, and 6-9 junior center Kelvin Nash. Nash is averaging 3.9 points a game.

The other starters include 5-10 guard Kevin Spain, averaging 1.7 points; guard Harvey Smith, averaging 8.3 per game, and forward Mike Vandy, 3.2.

When the three non-starters leave the game, they are likely to be replaced by usual starters Clarence Grier, a 6-6 freshman forward with a 9.7 average, Andrea McGee a 6-1 junior guard with a 13.9 average, and Harvey Smith, a 6-1 senior guard hitting 8.6 points a game.

The Camels are 9-17 on the season, having lost their last four in a row, to Navy, 85-61; to Pembroke State, 73-71; UNC-Wilmington, 65-58; and to Appalachian State, 78-58.

Their last victory was an 81-68 romp over Baptist. East Carolina and Campbell met in the first game of the season for both teams, with the Pirates taking a 75-66 victory in Minges Coliseum. ECU won its next outing, but then embarked on a 12-game losing streak and has won but two other games since those first two.

Grier scored 25 points to lead the Campbell effort in the first meeting of the two teams.

East Carolina comes into the game following a 70-47 loss at the hands of UNC-Wilmington, one of the four teams the Pirates have beaten this year. That contest Saturday night left Coach Charlie Harrison "embarrassed" for his coaches and fans.

William Grady led the Pirates in that contest with 15 points while Jack Turnbull pushed through 12 and led the ECU rebounding with eight.

For Turnbull, it was the second straight game he had in double figures while playing the pivot for the first time for the Pirates. His performance against Navy earned him a starting berth in his home town against UNCW. He is also expected to start on Wednesday against the Camels.

For his play against Navy and UNCW, Turnbull has been named Rookie of the Week in the ECAC-South.

Guard Curt Vanderhorst, despite being held below double figures for the second game in a row, leads the team in scoring with a 10.8 average. His fellow backcourt player, senior Tony Robinson, has a 6.9 average, while forwards Derrick Battle and Keith Sledge are scoring 6.2 and 5.1 points a game, respectively. Turnbull has a 2.7 mark for the year.

Roy Smith, 4.2, and Leon Bass, 3.0, have also seen work in the center position for the Pirates.

East Carolina has fallen to 4-21 on the season, and Harrison would like to see the Pirates come up with a couple of wins in this last week of the season to give them a boost into the tournament.

"Right now, we're struggling," Harrison said. "We're making dumb mistakes. The loss to Wilmington wasn't so much what they did, but what we did to ourselves. They probably made only four or five baskets out of their offense. The rest all came from mistakes we made. We were not very intense in the game."

Harrison said he expects Campbell to be a tough game. "They're trying to salvage their season. What we've got to do is tighten our belts and not lie down. We have to do a better job on the boards and we have got to get more success at the offensive end of the floor."

Either that, or in three more games, the Pirates can begin concentrating on next season.

Rose Upsets Knights

By WOODY PEELE

RED OAK — Rose High School, after getting off to a poor start in both the first and second periods, got its game under control in the second half and gained a 54-49 upset victory over Northern Nash last night. The game was the first round of the Big East 4-A tournament. Rose had been seeded sixth and Northern third.

In other games played elsewhere during the evening, #4 Hunt slipped past #5 Beddingfield, 46-41; and #2 Kinston beat #7 Northeastern, 83-72 in boys' games. Sixth-seeded Rocky Mount surprised #3 Kinston in a girls' game, 51-43.

Tonight, Fike hosts Rocky Mount in a boys' game, while the girls wind up first round play with Rose at Fike, Hunt at Northeastern and Northern Nash entertaining Beddingfield.

The win sends Rose up against Kinston on Thursday at 9 p.m. at Fike High School, unless Rocky Mount pulls an upset to night, in which case the rest of the tournament will be played at Kinston.

The Rampants trailed throughout the first half of the game, finally taking the lead for good early in the final period. In that frame, Rose made its only three shots from the floor — but also canned 15 of 20 shots at the free throw line, moving out to a much as a seven point lead just before the end.

"They played a good game for the last three quarters," Coach Jim

Brewington said. "Our first quarter was very weak, but we came back from it and were able to pull it out."

Rose was somewhat handicapped by not having one of its starting guards, Hunter Bost. Bost was attending a scholarship meeting with the Morehead Foundation at Chapel Hill and could not make the game. "I told them this one was for Hunter, and they came through and did the job," Brewington said.

"Mac (Walston) played another fine game; they all hustled. We played one of our better defensive games, sagging down to keep their big guy (Mark Richardson) out of it." Richardson was effective early, finishing with 11 points in the game, but he did not score a field goal in the second half and got only three points at the foul line in the half.

"It's the first time we didn't panic when things got tight," Brewington added.

Rose shot well during the contest, making 18 of 38 shots as compared to Northern's 22 of 58. Rose was 18 of 24 from the line, while the Knights made only five of seven. Northern dominated the boards, 40-24.

The Knights scored the first four points of the contest before Rose scored with 6:43 remaining. But the Rampants didn't hit again until 4:35 remained and Northern had run its lead to 10-2. Even after that, the Knights scored three more unanswered baskets for a 16-4 lead before the Rampants finally came to life and scored ten straight points to wind up the period. All five baskets came in the final two minutes with Tyrone Smith getting two of them.

That cut the lead back to 16-14.

Northern hit the first two baskets of the second quarter with Rose not scoring until the 4:17 mark. The Knights added four more points to make it 24-16 before Rose again finally rallied, hitting five points in a row to trim it to 24-21.

Both scored again before the half ended with Northern up, 26-23.

Northern scored to open the second half, but Rose then punched in six more points, two of those baskets by Carlton Wilson to take a 29-28 lead. Northern tied it as Richardson hit the first of two free throws, and twice Rose went back out, the last time at 33-31. Then, Marvin Macklin hit on the baseline to tie it again and David Bradey's rebound hit at the horn to put Northern out, 35-33 going into the final period.

With center Jeff Hopkins in foul trouble, Rose elected to spread it out after trying it five seconds into the final period when Wilson hit two free throws to knot it again.

That led to a pair of free throws by Dwight Smith, a drive by Walston and two more free throws by Tyrone Smith for a 41-35 lead.

Northern scored twice to cut the lead back to two, and later cut it to one, but never was able to regain the lead.

Finally, Hopkins hit from underneath on a back door basket to up the lead to four, 49-45, and Rose had it wrapped up with just 57 seconds left.

Walston finished the contest with 15 points, while Hopkins had 10. Brady and Dennis Williams each had 12 for Northern while Richardson finished with 11.

Moses Wins Award

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Winning the battle against drug use in athletics is as important as winning races, says Edwin Moses, the winner of the Amateur Athletic Union's Sullivan Award for 1983.

Moses received the award, symbolic of amateur athletic success in the previous year, at the annual Sullivan Award Dinner held Monday at the Indiana Convention Center.

Asked about drug testing, the world champion hurdler said he thinks the world class athletes need to be tested.

"The main reason is because there are maybe 5-to-10 million amateur athletes in the country who are much younger than we are," said Moses, after becoming the 54th winner of the prestigious award which can only be won by an amateur one time.

"Young people are very perceptive," Moses said. "Sometimes we underestimate how much they can can perceive and how much they pick up on... with all the publicity about drugs they hear, in some cases they're beginning to believe they can use it (drugs) and they're going to do them some good. I think it needs to be said that's not the way to do it."

Moses, 28, of Laguna Hills, Calif., won the award after being a finalist two other years. The holder of the world record in his speciality, the 400-meter hurdles, he was honored after winning the world and U.S. championships last year while extending his streak of finals victories to 87.

He's confident about keeping the streak alive. At the news conference after the presentation Moses said his immediate goal is to extend the streak past the century mark and said that if he's at his best there's no one in the world today that can defeat him.

"Maybe in a few years," he said.

"The competition is slowly creeping up and everyone else in the world has really gotten better. One motivating factor is that I know that I have to continue to improve, even after eight years."

Moses won a gold medal in the 1976 Olympics and sees a strong possibility of a United States sweep in his event next July in the Los Angeles Olympics.

"Most of my top competitors are coming from the United States," he said. "I think in my particular event we could expect a sweep."

And he's not ready to think about retiring.

"I don't see any reason to quit. Track is my life and I enjoy the travel," he said. "I enjoy training even though it's hard. I enjoy the whole lifestyle and what I've been able to get out of athletics."

Moses also paid respect to the other nine finalists.

"The finalists are all among the best in this country and the world. We all share the same qualities of dedication to athletics and the willingness to work for success," he said.

The finalists included diver Greg Louganis, who was considered by the more than 2,400 participants in the nationwide voting for a fifth consecutive year. Figure skater Scott Hamilton and swimmer Mary T. Meagher were finalists for the fourth consecutive year.

Other finalists at the presentation included boxer Mark Breland, swimmer Rick Carey and golfer Jay Sigel. Skier Phil Mahre, a finalist for the third time in four years, did not attend the dinner. Women's skier Tamara McKinney and sprinter Evelyn Ashford were the other finalists who did not attend.

The AAU announced Monday a new policy that it would no longer reveal who finished second or third in the voting.

The award, first presented in 1930 to golfer Bobby Jones, is named after AAU founder and former president James E. Sullivan.

Andrews Leads GCA Victory

Dan Andrews fired in 21 points as Greenville Christian held off Northside Christian 56-54 Monday for the right to advance in the North Carolina Christian Conference.

Greenville Christian moves on to faced top-ranked Wake Christian Thursday in Winston-Salem.

"We played well enough at times to win," GCA Coach Dale Thatcher said. "We were ahead most of the way. Even though we scored the points, I still felt like we played a poor fourth quarter. You've got to give Northside credit for coming back."

Andrews was the only Greenville Christian player in double figures, while Don Allen led Northside with 18 points and Duane Allen added 10.

GCA led 13-12 at the end of the first period, but Northside rallied to knot the score at halftime. Greenville rolled up a three point edge, then held off Northside for the victory.

EC Among Those Thinking Title

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The national championships captured by Clemson in 1981 and Miami last year after starting out unranked in the Associated Press poll have other schools without great football traditions thinking along the same lines.

Even so, it was something of a surprise Monday to hear Coach Jimmy Johnson of Oklahoma State say that "if you win the Big Eight, you've got a chance to contend for the national championship, and that's what we expect at Oklahoma State."

And East Carolina's Ed Emory said he thought his team "should have been in the Top Ten last year. I felt like we could have competed against anybody in the country and I felt we would have had a better chance to beat Nebraska than Miami did because of our great speed."

Johnson and Emory were among 10 coaches participating in the NCAA's annual two-day College Football Preview.

On the heels of an 8-4 season, which included losses to Nebraska by four points and Oklahoma by one and a Bluebonnet Bowl trouncing of Baylor, Oklahoma State had the best recruiting haul in Johnson's six campaigns. The Cowboys corralled two of the top running backs and two of the finest quarterbacks in talent-rich Texas to go with 16 returning starters and 24 redshirts.

"All our people are very optimistic and sky-high right now," Johnson said. "Year-in and year-out in the Big Eight, you've got to look at Nebraska. I fully expect them to have a great team again this year, along with Oklahoma and Missouri. If we stay healthy, we've got a chance — just a chance — to be on that level."

East Carolina cracked the Top Twenty last year for the first time ever, although the 8-3 Pirates didn't get much respect from the bowl committees, which went for 6-5 teams with familiar names such as Notre Dame and Mississippi.

"We're getting closer, but we're still in the twilight zone," Emory said. "Some people are recognizing us; that's why it's so important for

Houston Takes Second Slot In AP College Cage Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston, runner-up to North Carolina State in last year's NCAA championship tournament, moved into second place today in the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll.

Houston, 25-3, replaced Georgetown in the No. 2 spot after the Hoyas were upset by St. John's last week prior to beating Boston College in a brawl-marred game. Georgetown, 24-3, dropped to No. 4 in the rankings behind Kentucky which advanced one notch to the third spot. The voting was completed before the Wildcats were upset Monday night by Tennessee.

North Carolina again was a unanimous choice as the No. 1 team. The 24-1 Tar Heels, who rolled over Clemson 82-71 last week, received all 62 first-place votes for 1,240 points by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The voting is based on 20 points for each first place vote, 19 for second, etc.

Houston, which inched up from third place, last week rallied to defeat Arkansas 64-61 for a record 38 consecutive regular-season Southwest Conference games. Kentucky edged Georgia 66-64 last week.

DePaul, now 21-2, collected 1,015 points to remain the fifth-ranked team.

The lone casualty of the poll was Auburn, formerly ranked No. 19. The Tigers were replaced by Maryland, which had fallen out the previous week.

Oklahoma, one of the big surprise teams this season, continued its steady climb, this time advancing two rungs to No. 6. Wayman Tisdale & Co. captured the Sooners' first Big Eight title in five years, as they knocked off Kansas and Iowa State to improve their record to 24-3.

Nevada-Las Vegas stayed at No. 7, while Texas-El Paso and Tulsa each improved a notch to Nos. 8 and 9, respectively.

Although Purdue defeated Illinois 59-55 to gain sole possession of first place in the Big 10, the Fighting Illini edged the Boilermakers for the No. 10 ranking. Illinois received 658 points, and Purdue, now No. 11, got 657.

Arkansas slipped to No. 12 after its loss to Houston.

Washington made the biggest move in the Second Ten, advancing from No. 18 to No. 13.

Networks Offer Restraint

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — State politicians in New Hampshire say the television networks' controversial policy of projecting winners, and perhaps influencing the political process, does not appear to be a problem in today's primary.

The three commercial networks, two of which projected the results of the Iowa caucuses last week before participants officially began registering their preferences, say they will wait for the vast majority of polls to close before forecasting the outcome in the New Hampshire Democratic presidential primary.

Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo., chairman of the House communications subcommittee, was so upset that CBS and NBC used "entry polls" to make early projections in Iowa that he held a hearing Monday in Washington to question network officials about the practice.

"The networks are once again engaged in telling the voters what they have done before they have done it," Wirth said, reiterating the issue that first surfaced in 1980, when the networks unofficially declared Ronald Reagan the winner over Jimmy Carter before the polls on the West Coast had closed.

With New Hampshire polls closing between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. depending on location, state Republican chairwoman Donna Sytek said: "I don't know that (projections) have been a problem here in the past. I'm not really concerned about it."

"I don't think it's an issue here," said Bob Ambrose, New Hampshire's deputy secretary of state. "I can see how they can do that in a caucus, but not in a primary state."

New Hampshire politicians, however, objected to projections in national elections.

"My personal opinion is that the networks should not project the winners until the polls are closed," said Bill Gardener, New Hampshire's secretary of state. "New Hampshire radio stations have done exit polls, but they have always waited until all the polls were closed."

During the Iowa caucuses last Monday, CBS projected Walter Mondale the winner at 8:12 p.m. and NBC at 8:18 p.m., although the preference stage of the caucus procedure was not scheduled to begin until 8:30 p.m. ABC, which did not use entry polls, made its forecast at 8:46 p.m.

David Nagle, Iowa's state Democratic chairman, charged the networks with interfering with the political process. "I think there's a line and I think they crossed it," he said.

Nagle told the congressional panel that early projections in Iowa "distorted" the process but said he was willing "to give them another chance" before calling for legislation intended to stop the practice.

David Buksbaum, vice president for news coverage and operations for CBS, said the network would not call the New Hampshire primary "until the polls close. We may characterize the race." He said that might take the form of anchor Dan Rather saying "it looks like" this will be the outcome, "if we have a clear indication that (somebody) is the winner."

Jackson Shunning Grammy Spotlight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson may be on stage more than most performers at tonight's Grammy awards, but barring a last-minute change, the top-nominated superstar's only singing will be during commercial breaks.

Two Pepsi-Cola ads by Jackson and his brothers, including the one during which Jackson's scalp was burned, are to be aired during the CBS telecast of the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences 26th annual awards ceremony.

But Ken Ehrlich, producer of the telecast, said Jackson — who has a record 12 nominations in 10 categories — declined an invitation to perform on the show.

"He'll be in the audience, hopefully he'll get some awards, hopefully he'll have a good time, and that's it," Ehrlich said.

Ehrlich said some Jackson associates had told him "who knows, he might do something impromptu. But I'm not building the show around it."

Jackson suffered second- and third-degree burns Jan. 27 when special effects fireworks set his hair on fire as he danced to a Pepsi jingle written to the tune of his hit "Billie Jean."

Ironically, the scene was filmed at the Shrine Auditorium, scene of the Grammy presentation.

Tonight's three-hour telecast will revolve around 16 performances, the most any Grammy telecast has ever had, Ehrlich said.

In a Grammy first, all five nominees in one singing category — female pop vocalist — will perform their nominated music: Irene Cara ("Flashdance ... What a Feeling"); Sheena Easton ("Telephone"); Linda Ronstadt ("What's New"); Donna Summer ("She Works Hard for the Money"); and Bonnie Tyler ("Total Eclipse of the Heart").

The Scottish rock band Big Country and the British-Scottish pop duo Eurythmics — both best new artist nominees — are on tap, as is rock pioneer Chuck Berry, who is receiving a special Lifetime Achievement Grammy and is to perform with George Thorogood, Stevie Ray Vaughn and the Blasters.

Representing Broadway are cast members from "La Cage aux Folles" with their show-stopping "I Am What I Am."

This year's gospel contingent consists of singers Phil Driscoll and Albertina Walker. The Oak Ridge Boys carry the flag for country music, while Herbie Hancock does the honors for rhythm & blues.

Wolf Trap Theater Is Reopening In Summer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rebuilding of the main theater at Wolf Trap Farm Park, destroyed by a mysterious fire in April 1982, probably will be completed in July at a cost of $18.7 million, permitting an abbreviated concert season under the stars this summer.

Wolf Trap officials announced Monday the start of a nationwide, $14.5 million campaign to pay off final construction costs and to start a $10 million endowment fund. Proceeds from the fund would help underwrite cultural activities at the only national park for the performing arts, which runs up an average $2 million deficit annually.

Wolf Trap already has raised more than $6.3 million privately for rebuilding the fire-ravaged Filene Center, and the federal government has donated $9 million. Officials said they hope to raise the remaining $14.5 million in cash and pledges before the end of the year.

The new building nearing completion in a 117-acre park in the Virginia countryside, about 2 miles west of Washington, will include a $1.7 million system of fire detection and prevention devices. Besides an elaborate, automatic sprinkler, fire alarm and surveillance system, every steel beam is coated with protective chemical insulation and the Douglas fir walls will be fire-retardant.

The National Park Service, which maintains Wolf Trap although it is privately operated, said the destruction of the original Filene Center was so complete that "the actual cause will remain undetermined," although arson has been ruled out.

The first building, a soaring, open-sided amphitheater that seated 6,500 people inside and on the sloping lawn, was built in 1971 for $2.3 million, the gift of Wolf Trap's founder, Mrs. Jouett Shouse.

The cedar walls of the original Filene Center, however, were not treated against fire, and the government did not insure the building against loss.

The new wooden walls and ceilings will be "cosmetic" dressing for concrete and steel beams, said engineer John C. Welch, in contrast with the original construction of laminated wooden trusses supported by suspension cables.

The new theater building will look very much like the old one, except for a copper roof and an extensive addition in the rear.

First In The Nation
 New Hampshire became the ninth state to join the Union in 1788. But it is "first" in many other ways. Today New Hampshire holds the nation's first presidential primary. Each election year, the 24 residents of Dixville Notch, N.H., proudly cast the first primary votes in the country. The entire town planned to vote at 12:00 am today. In 1963, New Hampshire began the first state-run lottery in the U.S. Alan Shepard, Jr. of East Derry was the first American to travel in space.

DO YOU KNOW — How many states make up the area called New England?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Mary Decker won the Sullivan Award last year.

Hugh Kelsey has established an international reputation as accomplished and prolific bridge writer. His latest effort, "101 Bridge Maxims" (Devyn Press, 209 pp., paperback, $7.95. Available post free from Bridge World Magazine, 39 West 94th St., New York, N.Y. 10024), is intriguing in concept, pleasant to read, and an education in sound bridge reasoning.

Kelsey has taken 101 principles that have withstood the test of the time, presented them as problems and, after explaining how the hand should be played and why, he gives the maxim on which the hand is based. To test yourself on this example as it appears in the book, cover the South and West hands with your thumbs and decide how you would defend four hearts from the East seat after your partner leads the queen of spades and declarer plays low from dummy.

Note North's raise to two hearts over the double. That is exactly the same bid that he would have made had there been no double. South's jump to four hearts is merited because of his distributional assets.

If you signaled enthusiastically to the first trick to show partner that you liked his lead, you understand signaling. However, you have fallen asleep on the job. Partner surely has at least three spades for his takeout double, and you have only one chance to gain the lead and do something constructive.

The winning defense is to overtake partner's queen of spades with the king and shift to a diamond. If you fail to do that, declarer will set up dummy's queen of clubs for a diamond discard and he will make his contract instead of going down one.

The maxim: Keep awake in defense, for there will often be no second chance. Get the book now and glean another 100 nuggets of advice at a cost of under eight cents a hand — there are few better bargains in bridge today.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.
