Gemayel Today Cancels Troop Pact With Israel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel's administration today canceled Lebanon's troop withdrawal pact with Israel, meeting a demand from Syria and its Druse and Shiite Moslem allies.

Abrogation of the pact was announced in a government statement, which said the agreement was "null and void." It said the Cabinet will formally notify Israel and the United States, which mediated the accord and signed it as a witness, of the decision to scrap the pact.

Syria is expected in return to ask the rebel leaders in Lebanon to halt their war against Gemayel's army while reconciliation talks are held in Switzerland aimed at negotiating a power-sharing formula and forming a national coalition Cabinet.

Israel swiftly denounced the Lebanese action, accusing Syria of using violence to achieve its goals in Lebanon.

In a statement, Israel said it will take steps to guarantee the security of its northern border "in view of the fact that Lebanon is incapable in this situation of fulfilling its international obligations." The statement, issued by Avi Pazner, a spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, said Israel "hopes that Lebanon will succeed in rehabilitating its sovereignty and to free itself from Syrian bondage."

Lebanese radio stations said the reconciliation talks might begin held as early as Wednesday or Thursday, but a Lebanese opposition leader said the meetings will begin March 12.

In fighting today, Israeli jets staged two air raids on suspected guerrilla bases in central Lebanon, while in Beirut a French soldier was killed by a rocket and a U.S. Marine colonel wounded by a gunman.

The abrogation of the May 17, 1983, pact had been widely expected and came during a two-hour meeting between Gemayel and his caretaker Cabinet. The Cabinet and Parliament endorsed the pact after it was signed, but it was not ratified by Gemayel.

Today's official statement said the Cabinet — which had resigned last month — was reinstated temporarily "because the country cannot be left without a government while the president is away for reconciliation talks."

The statement also said the government would "take the necessary steps toward security arrangements that would ensure sovereignty, security and stability in southern Lebanon, prevent infiltration across the southern border and bring about the withdrawal of Israeli forces from all Lebanese territory."

There was no immediate reaction from Gemayel's Phalangist backers, but they have threatened to drop support for him if he abrogated the accord.

Under the pact, Lebanon recognized Israel's right to exist and guaranteed if border security arrangements in return for the withdrawal of Israeli troops.

Israel withdrew to south Lebanon but refused to leave entirely until Syria agreed to do so at the same time.

Israel radio reported Sunday that Gemayel's government had told Israel it would cancel the withdrawal agreement and wanted to negotiate new security arrangements for Israel's northern border. Today, an Israeli official who requested anonymity told reporters Israel was not ruling out the possibility of entering such negotiations.

Baghdad Peace Offer Scorned By Khomeini

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, says it would be "inconsistent with the dignity of Islam" to agree to Iraq's offers of peace, the Iranian news agency reported today.

The Islamic Republic News Agency said Khomeini spoke to regional governors on Sunday at his home in Tehran and told them Iran had scored "a colossal victory" in recent battles with Iraq.

Many foreign governments have urged Iran to end the war now that Iraqis have been ousted from most of the territory captured when they invaded 42 months ago.

Khomeini described the conflict as "a war between Islam and blasphemy. Today we are fighting for protecting our religion and for a divine cause, and not for the sake of our lands," IRNA reported.

"I challenge the opinion of the few people who argue in favor of peace because, as they say, the Iraqi forces have now vacated our territory," Khomeini was quoted as saying. "Would it be dignifying for us to seek peace with an enemy who has done such things in our country?"

Western observers say hundreds of thousands of people have been killed since the war began and the economies both of Iran and Iraq have been harmed.

Iranian and Iraqi forces have been fighting in the southern sector of the battlefield since Iran launched an offensive Feb. 21 in a bid to capture the Baghdad-Basra highway and isolate southern Iraq from the rest of the country.

IRNA claimed over the weekend that Iraq used poison gas bombs supplied by Britain to kill 400 Iranian soldiers and injure 1,000 more last week.

In London, a spokesman for the British Foreign Office said "no weapons, chemical or otherwise, has been supplied to either side" by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government since the war began.

Tehran Radio reported that Iran sent a message to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar demanding that military and chemical weapons experts investigate the alleged use of "inhuman" chemical warfare.

The use of poisonous gases was banned at the 1925 Geneva Conference, which both Iran and Iraq were party to, and Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati asked the disarmament conference in Geneva to handle the probe.

Meanwhile, The Sunday Telegraph in London reported that U.S. military analysts say 250,000 Iranians are massing for what could be Iran's biggest offensive of the war. Analysts were quoted by the newspaper as saying intelligence reports indicated the offensive would come "within the next three days."

Iran flew 15 of its soldiers to Sweden and Austria for treatment of burns that doctors said might have been caused by chemical weapons.

Hart Does It Again In Maine's Caucuses

By DAVIDESPO
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Gary Hart said today his upset victory in the Maine Democratic caucuses proves what he's known all along — that he has more support than many people gave him credit for. Loser Walter Mondale concedes the race for the party's presidential nomination "could go either way."

Hart called Sunday's win "another political miracle." Complete returns from Maine's 414 caucuses showed him with almost 51 percent to Mondale's 44 percent in a race the other contenders had conceded ahead of time.

Up at dawn to greet factory workers in neighboring Massachusetts, a gleeful Hart said of Sunday's win, "I have always been saying there was more Hart support than most people realized." He added that "there's something more important than money and endorsements and the rest and that's the message" of Maine.

Mondale, appearing on the NBC-TV "Today" show, said it is precisely a debate on the issue that he is counting on.

"The issues that are now being debated between Sen. Hart and myself, once known, (are) building strength for me." He said he "probably delayed too long in debating," but added that he's now reversing Hart's roll, which began with his New Hampshire primary win last Tuesday.

"Now we come up to Super Tuesday (March 13) ... and by that time we should see what the result is. I'm quite hopeful," the former vice president added, conceding, "I think it's a tight, close race and it could go either way — and that's why this debate will be the determinant."

For his part, Hart basked in his victory Sunday, calling it "another political miracle" and telling a Massachusetts party dinner: "I love New England."

The win, he said, "may have brought a political juggernaut to its knees."

He quickly rearranged his schedule to fly South tonight in hopes of carrying his New England political momentum into Georgia, Alabama and Florida, three of the Super Tuesday states.

Sen. John Glenn, former Sen. George McGovern and the Rev. Jesse Jackson had scattered support in Maine, but they had left the state — and the spotlight — to Mondale and Hart.

Mondale, who out-spent and out-organized Hart in Maine, said today that it was Hart's momentum from New Hampshire that brought him the Maine victory — a win that would have been even more lopsided, if he had not begun "fighting back" after Tuesday's defeat.

The Results

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Here are the results in popular vote from the Maine Democratic caucuses Sunday with 414 of 414 caucuses reporting, as announced by the state Democratic Party:

Askev-0 or 0 pct.
Cranston-0 or 0 pct.
Glenn-52 or 0.3 pct.
Hart-8,540 or 50.7 pct.
Hollings-0 or 0 pct.
Jackson-105 or 0.6 pct.
McGovern-178 or 1 pct.
Mondale-7,364 or 43.7 pct.
Uncommitted-602 or 3.5 pct.

Nativity Scenes Pass Court Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communities may include Nativity scenes in their official Christmas displays without violating the constitutionally required separation of church and state, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 5-4 vote, the justices said Pawtucket, R.I., may include the Nativity scene, sometimes called a creche, in its Christmas displays.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, writing for the court's slim majority, said the presence of an officially sponsored Nativity scene has as much to do with celebrating "a national holiday" as with noting the birth of a religious leader.

"Whatever benefit to one faith or religion or to all religions is indirect, remote and incidental," Burger said. "Display of the creche is no more an advancement or endorsement of religion than the congressional and executive recognition of the origins of the holiday itself as 'Christ's Mass,' or the exhibition of literally hundreds of religious paintings in governmentally supported museums."

Pitt Demos See Greater Interest In Primary Race

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

The race for the Democratic nomination for the office of president of the United States is on. Five candidates are vying for that office and campaigns are heating up in the South.

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado is showing strength in the polls after besting the heavily favored Walter Mondale by 10 percentage points in the New Hampshire presidential primary and taking a 51 percent to 44 percent victory in yesterday's Maine primary. Local democratic leaders say that Hart's success is making the race more interesting.

The Democratic presidential race is between Hart, former Vice President Mondale, Ohio Sen. John Glenn, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and George McGovern. Mondale had been considered the front-runner in the Democratic presidential race.

Hart's victories in New Hampshire and Maine "certainly adds depth and interest to the democratic quest for the presidency," said Betty Speir, vice chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party.

"We really do not know enough about Gary Hart and his stance on the issues to know if he would be acceptable as a candidate in North Carolina yet," Mrs. Speir added.

"Hart is the candidate we've got to watch," said Janice Faulkner, chairman of Greenville voting precinct No. 5.

Ms. Faulkner said she was not at all surprised at Hart's success. "I first encountered his skill in the McGovern campaign in 1972 and I have been watching his career ever since," she said. Hart was the national manager of McGovern's presidential campaign.

"He knows how to get himself nominated," she added. "It will be hard for him in the south, but he knows how to count votes and where to find them. The Maine outcome yesterday indicates that. There were high turnouts where Mondale's strength was weak; that is evidence of a very intensified grass roots effort, and he can pull that off anywhere."

"I think Mondale's defeat in the New Hampshire primary had a strong adverse effect on his campaign in Maine," said State Representative Ed Warren. "The Hart victory indicated a turnabout in Maine, a state where Mondale had been a strong favorite and had a good organization. I am a little surprised that it did not work out as well as Mondale had anticipated" in Maine.

"I am also surprised that John Glenn did not do a better job with his organization in Maine," Warren said. "I feel like he is still a good candidate."

Dr. John Ball of ECU, a registered Democrat, expressed surprise that Hart had done so well. "He went into this thing (the presidential race) as an unknown and he is coming out looking really good," Ball said.

HANNAH RESPONSE

Mrs. Nancy Hannah, who originally protested the sparsity of protections for drivers at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Fairlane Road, said she is extremely disappointed at the Department of Transportation's response to her appeal for a number of improvements to that intersection. "They cut down a little tree," she said. "Everything else I requested, they turned down as either too expensive or not warranted. How expensive is it to take a rise out of the shoulder of the road or how great could be the benefit of people pulling into a busy thoroughfare being able to see their way clearly? How expensive to lower the speed limit per citizens' request at an intersection where people have been killed? I don't think this matter has been handled responsibly."

Mrs. Hannah said she appeals to all Hotline readers who agree with her to contact the local DOT office, Highway Commission William Roberson's office, and/or the North Carolina Governor's office.

She said she will appeal directly herself to Greenville Utilities Commission to have a vision-obstructing power pole moved since the DOT does not back her suggestion.

Double Ring Vows Performed Saturday

Joyce Hope Garris and Donald Earl Vick were married Saturday afternoon at 3:30 in a double ring ceremony performed in the Friendship Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Walter Reynolds conducted the ceremony.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Garris of Farmville and the late Sallie Garris and Mrs. Joyce Vick of Snow Hill and Tommy Vick of Farmville.

The bride was given in marriage and escorted by her father. She wore a gown of all over lace lined in acetate taffeta. The gown had a stand-up neckline and illusion net yokes, trimmed in Venice lace. The waistline was raised and was trimmed with a satin ribbon belt. The tiered skirt extended into a chapel train. She wore a Camelot cap beaded with seed pearls and chantilly lace with a fingertip veil and blusher. The bride carried a silk arrangement of yellow and white daisies and miniature roses accented with baby's breath.

Wanda Roberson of Greenville was honor attendant and wore a yellow gown of polyester lace over an acetate lining. It had satin ribbon trim, stand-up collar and ruffled sleeves. She carried a bouquet of yellow mums with blue streamers.

Kay Suggs of Greenville, sister of the bride, and Joy Vick of Farmville, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids and wore formal blue taffeta dresses overlaid with lace and each carried a bouquet of yellow mums with blue streamers.

Tracy Sutton of Greenville, niece of the bride, was miniature bride and wore a long white dress with a matching veil. She carried a bouquet of daisies with white streamers.

Jamie Vick of Walstonburg, son of the bridegroom, was miniature bridegroom.

Angela Heath of Walstonburg, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a dress identical to that of the bridesmaids and carried a white basket filled with flower petals. Michael Don Morgan of Farmville, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Stanley Vick, brother of the bridegroom, and Mike Hobgood, both of Farmville were ushers. Harvey Morgan of Greenville was best man.

Susan Beaman of Farmville was organist for the ceremony. Soloists were Lisa Burress and Dan Carraway, both of Farmville.

The stepmother of the bride wore a two-piece ensemble of blue and was given a corsage of yellow carnations. The mother of the bridegroom selected a kelly green dress and wore a corsage of yellow carnations. Grandmothers were given yellow carnations.

Becky Morgan of Farmville greeted guests and presided at the guest register. Velinda Mills of Farmville distributed rice bags.

An after-rehearsal reception honoring the wedding party was held in the church fellowship hall.

The couple was honored by several showers prior to the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central and the bridegroom attended Greene Central and works at Farrior and Sons of Farmville. He is also a member of the National Guard.

The couple will live in Walstonburg after a wedding trip to the coast.

The wedding was directed by Linda Mills of Farmville.

Dear Abby

Students Should Cooperate With You

DEAR ABBY: I am a 10-year-old girl who was appointed by my teacher to be a bathroom monitor. I didn't ask for the job, she just appointed me. I'm supposed to report anything the girls do in the bathroom that is against the rules, such as starting fights, smoking, wasting supplies, writing on the walls and stuff like that.

One day some girls turned up the heat when they knew that they weren't supposed to, so I reported them and they got into trouble, and now they are mad at me and calling me a snitch.

How can I do my job as a monitor without losing friends?

A MONITOR CALLED "SNITCH"

DEAR MONITOR: When a girl is about to do something that's against the rules, warn her. And if she goes ahead and does it, report her. Your teacher should explain that there is a good reason for every rule. Smoking can cause fires. Damaging property and wasting supplies cost your parents — as taxpayers — extra money.

Maybe when the kids understand this, they will realize that you are performing a necessary duty, and rather than criticize you, they will cooperate.

DEAR ABBY: So you think the mother in Hawaii who was still breast-feeding her 6-year-old son needs "help."

Abby, I think you need help if you don't know that the longer a child is breast-fed, the healthier he will be.

Mother's milk contains special properties that are extremely helpful for growing children. Get some material from the La Leche League, Abby, and educate yourself!

ALICE J.

DEAR ALICE: This is not to belittle the immunological (or psychological) benefits of mother's milk, but an overwhelming number of pediatricians agree that a 6-year-old child should be getting his milk from a cup. And they don't mean a "D" cup.

DEAR ABBY: Please edge a little further into the 20th century on the "Mrs. Jane Doe" vs. "Mrs. John Doe" convention. I have been happily married for 16 years. As much as I love and respect my husband, I would no more call myself "Mrs. Gene McGraw" than I would wear a bustle.

For one thing, it's semantic nonsense. Just who is "Mrs. Gene McGraw"? I'm not a bisexual, not do I have two heads. Although I willingly took my husband's family name, my first name never was and never will be "Gene."

Semantics aside, there is an even more compelling reason to get rid of this bit of "etiquette." It arises from the cruel, snobbish and archaic belief that a widow was socially respectable, while a divorced woman morally suspect. The name form required of the divorcee publicly labeled her, so that she could be appropriately snubbed. (Isn't it odd that no such distinctions were required for men, regardless of their marital status?) I'm surprised that you, Abby, of all people, would favor perpetrating such a false and unkind distinction.

If a woman feels that "Mrs." plus her husband's full name confers on her a needed aura of respectability, I will certainly honor her choice. But in whatever state I may find myself, married or widowed, I remain...

ON HIDING PARTIAL CLASPS
The basic design of the removable partial is a framework of metal with metal clasps that grip the supporting teeth and hold the appliance in the mouth. There is generally acrylic over the ridge areas (the area of missing teeth) to support the replacement teeth.
The simplest way of overcoming this is to alter the design of the partial. Retention and stability may still be obtained with smaller, thinner clasps. Clasps can be further hidden by placing them as far back on the tooth as possible. This is a very delicate procedure, however, because if the clasp is reduced too much, it loses its function. A partial that doesn't stay in the mouth is valueless, no matter how esthetic it is. However, dentistry has come a long way in combining function with pleasing appearance in the area of dentures.
Most of the esthetic problems with a removable partial have to do with the clasps or hooks that hold it in place. Patients feel that the illusion of naturalness is defeated by the hooks that immediately indicate "removable denture".

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES

Producing soybeans profitably will again be a challenge in 1984. It seems that every year we make this same prediction. For some, however, 1984 may offer the sternest challenge of all.
No doubt 1983 was a year that all of us would like to forget. The drought, price uncertainty, pest problems and other factors stressed soybean growers to the point where many wonder whether or not the crop can remain a viable enterprise on their farms. Soil test and follow the resulting recommendations.

First, soil pH is the most important fertility consideration for soybeans. A low soil pH the major plant nutrients such as potassium and phosphorus are not as available to the plant. Nitrogen fixation cannot occur effectively due to a deficiency of molybdenum.

Choose varieties which match needs is the second step. Too often a grower picks out a variety because a neighbor makes 40 bushels per acre with it, an advertisement in a farm publication was impressive or the seed dealer gave him a good price on it. These can be valid reasons sometimes but should they be major variety selection criteria?

Match pesticides to target pest species is the third step. Ten years ago we mostly save annual grasses and small-seeded broadleaf weeds in our soybean fields. A pre-plant incorporated application of a dinitroaniline herbicide such as Treflam usually did the trick with weed control. Not over 15 percent of the acreage required a post-emergent herbicide application.

These three production hints are basic to sound crop management. Attention to these three factors can reduce costs and increase soybean yields in 1984.

Four-Mile Lava River Flowing

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — Seven houses were evacuated as a 4-mile river of lava from erupting Kilauea Volcano coursed slowly toward the edge of a sparsely inhabited housing subdivision.

The evacuation was ordered Sunday by Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim. It marked the sixth time the world's most active volcano has forced residents to flee since Jan. 3, 1983. The Royal Gardens subdivision is so scarcely populated it was difficult to determine if the molten rock, moving at 600 feet per hour atop hardened previous flows, actually had crossed over the northeast corner of the development, Kim said.

The flow was reported to be 25 feet high and 900 feet wide.

Kim said no problems were reported at roadblocks set up earlier Sunday night to keep sightseers out of the area.

I LOVE THE NEW ME

I lost 36 pounds in 6 weeks

Let me introduce myself and tell you about one of the most important happenings in my life. I am Carl Whitfield, a Pitt County native and retired law enforcement officer, and I have just lost 36 pounds. Not only am I happier with my appearance, but I have much more energy. My physician had been telling me for several years that I needed to lose weight, and I had tried...in fact I had tried several programs and several over-the-counter products. Nothing seemed to work. Then I saw Charles Overton in an ad similar to this one, and I thought if he can do it so can I. So I went to Diet Center, and this is what I found:

1. THERE WERE NO CONTRACTS. I did not have to pay a large sum of money in advance and obligate myself for any specific period of time. I had tried so many plans, and nothing worked for me so naturally I was skeptical. At DIET CENTER seeing my weight come down daily made a believer out of me.
2. THERE WERE NO SHOTS, DRUGS, OR CHEMICALS USED AT DIET CENTER. What I found there was a well-balanced nutritionally sound diet and a behavior modification program to help me keep the weight off.
3. THERE WERE NO PRE-PACKAGED FOODS TO BUY AT DIET CENTER. I lost my weight without having to buy expensive foods. My wife shopped at our regular food store, and she ate right along with me.
4. THERE WAS NO NEED FOR BODY WRAPS OR RIGID EXERCISE PROGRAMS. By following the well-balanced diet at DIET CENTER, I found that I tightened up naturally. While no rigid exercise program or body wraps are necessary for inch loss at Diet Center, to promote good health it is recommended that exercise be a part of your daily routine. I chose walking as my basic exercise. My wife joined me in my daily walk.

5. AT DIET CENTER I DID NOT FEEL DEPRIVED. I was not hungry. I did not experience nervousness or fatigue. I feel great, and my friends tell me that I look great.

SUMMARY: Diet Center offers a program of private, daily counseling by trained professionals-not only have the Diet Center counselors lost weight on the program-but they have the educational and professional background to qualify them to help others like me to reach their goals.

Questions Raised

A high speed chase on Feb. 14 brought a highway patrolman from Beaufort County into Pitt. Here officers from various departments joined in the chase and eventually the pursued car was stopped.

One of the teen-age passengers in the car contended he was beaten.

Now, a couple of weeks later, there has been the demotion of an ECU officer, suspension and demotion of a deputy sheriff, the resignation of one Greenville police officer and the firing of another.

Neither Greenville Police Chief Ted Holmes nor Sheriff Ralph Tyson will give specific reasons but it has to be assumed that the matters were deemed serious enough to bring on the actions.

Now the question is, what happened? Was there a beating, and was there a misunderstanding about department policies?

An investigation is under way concerning the apprehension and arrests and we in no way wish to prejudge the matter.

Nevertheless, it appears that all law enforcement agencies should carefully review their policies concerning vehicular chases and arrests and it should be made certain that the officers completely understand them. Chases, while necessary, must be conducted with reasonable safety rules in mind. Minimal force should be used in making any arrest, since the law enforcement officer's duty is to apprehend. It is the court's prerogative to mete out punishment.

Civilian Control

An East Carolina University professor says the military could save millions of taxpayers' dollars by revamping its promotions and awards structure.

Business professor Dr. John D. Longhill, who is a retired Air Force colonel, was speaking to the Phi Kappa Phi Symposium.

He said the promotion system is not set up to consider costs and, consequently, the government often doesn't get its money's worth from defense spending.

Putting cost conscious people in positions of command would help, but Longhill does not believe this is likely to occur. Consequently, the answer may be strong civilian control of the military. "An aware citizenry can make the military do it," Longhill said.

There is no reason why citizens, the taxpayers, should not demand responsible spending by the military. We need what is necessary for national defense, but wasteful spending by the military should not be tolerated. Every dollar that is thrown away comes from the taxpayers.

Interest Rates

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates have been rising, gradually reversing the broad declines that propelled the economy out of recession 15 months ago.

But despite the resurgence in higher interest rates, the economy continues to flourish, and even such interest-rate sensitive industries as housing and automaking are thriving.

Here are some questions and answers to help explain what has happened to interest rates and why the economy's expansion has yet to fade:

Q. Are interest rates important to the health of the economy?
A. High interest rates have been major contributors to the two recessions since 1980. When rates rise, many consumers cannot afford to borrow money for such major purchases as homes, automobiles and appliances. Meanwhile, businessmen are discouraged from investing in expansion because they have to pay more to borrow at a time when consumers are buying less. Marginal companies have difficulty meeting payments on loans, something that can lead to plant closings and layoffs.

Q. Where are interest rates headed?

A. Economists have had a dismal record in forecasting interest rates over the last five years. But the combination of the government's failure to reduce deficits, the economy's rapid growth and the Federal Reserve Board's resolve to fight inflation has prompted several economists to toss out forecasts that had predicted lower interest rates in early 1984.

Meanwhile, rates have been creeping higher for months. Last May, for example, yields on 30-year U.S. Treasury bonds fell to a three-year low of about 10.25 percent. Recently, the bellwether issue for long-term borrowing costs nudged above 12 percent. Henry Kaufman, chief economist at the investment firm of Salomon Brothers Inc., has said it could keep climbing, returning to the all-time highs of 15.25 percent set in the fall of 1981.

Some interest rates have yet to retreat from record heights. Interest rates on credit card purchases are higher now than four years ago, when the Federal Reserve Board briefly imposed credit controls.

Q. Have interest rates reached levels that will bring the economy to a standstill again?

A. Not yet. Included in the latest figures pointing to a vigorous economy are reports from domestic automakers of the highest mid-February sales in 11 years and a government report that housing starts rose to a five-year high in January. Huge government deficits, while keeping interest rates high, also are stimulating the economy through public spending.

Jordan Campaign Gets Bumpy

—Paul O'Connor—

MOREHEAD CITY — Despite horrendous weather, Bob Jordan's flight from Wilson to Beaufort had been rather smooth. But as the plane descended for landing, 55 mile-an-hour winds knocked the plane around like a carrot in a food processor. It landed safely, but not before a few prayers were whispered.

In a sense, that flight tells the story of Jordan's campaign. A year ago, the smart money said the four-term senator from Montgomery County had a lock on the state's second highest office. He'd been flying smoothly for a year, lining up business support to add to his liberal base.

Now as Jordan's campaign descends for a May 8 landing in the Democratic primary, however, he's finding that the political winds are knocking him around a bit. The "sure winner" is now in a dogfight with former House Speaker Carl Stewart of Gaston County.

In the past several weeks, Stewart has gained the endorsement of the AFL-CIO, the N.C. Association of Educators, the General Baptist Convention and the state chapter of the National Organization of Women. Stewart has taken one of Jordan's issues and turned it against him. Stewart has taken Jordan's most appealing asset and is trying to use it against him.

Still, the few polls available on this race show Jordan with a small lead and with better name recognition. He's got enough money to put his ads on TV — at a cost of $42,000 a week — and his supporters are fighting back. After he lost the NOW endorsement, the chief lobbyist for ERA and two female legislators reconfirmed their support of him. After he lost the NCAE endorsement, he began forming local teachers' committees.

During a campaign trip to Carteret County, Jordan conceded that Stewart's recent endorsements will hurt. He figures that the endorsements give credibility to Stewart's campaign thereby making it easier for him to raise money. But he claims that affiliation with the AFL-CIO and NOW will turn some people away from Stewart, too.

The Jordan campaign started with one issue. The Senate has been the private enclave of a small powerful group. Jordan promised to open it up, to spread power around. It was the kind of talk a lot of people wanted to hear and they signed on with Jordan.

Stewart stole that issue right from underneath Jordan, however. He claims that Jordan's biggest asset, a nice-guy personality, will be a weakness when he must deal with the Senate's most powerful members. Jordan says that's untrue, that a lieutenant governor needn't be adversarial to be effective.

But Jordan is also going on the offensive, escalating the debate one notch and attacking Stewart's vulnerabilities. In an interview with a Carteret newspaper, Jordan noted that the lieutenant governor has duties granted both by the constitution and the members of the Senate, and that it is those conferred by the Senate which give the office its real power.

Jordan supporters in the Senate are saying that if Stewart is the next lieutenant governor, the Senate might strip him of important duties — like the power to appoint committees — because he's so unpopular with many of the senators. Stewart might win the office and lose the power to do anything with it, they're saying.

Although he hinted at that possibility in the interview, Jordan denies any connection with it. He said it would not benefit North Carolina.

On the stump, Jordan talks about his business experience, the need for a full-time lieutenant governor, good schools and economic development. Those are the issues he set out to talk about when the campaign opened and he figures that if he refuses to allow Stewart to knock him off course, he'll have a safe landing on May 8.

Once Around Is Enough, Probably

My Uncle Phil called me from Fort Lauderdale.

"You know anyone at the White House?" he asked me.

"Well, yes and no. I know people there, but we've never munched any jellybeans together, if you get what I mean. Why do you ask?"

"I want to arm wrestle President Reagan."

"Are you crazy, Uncle Phil? You can't arm wrestle the president of the United States."

"I not only can, I can take him — two out of three."

"Hold it, what are you talking about?"

"Didn't you see the picture in the paper? They showed this heavy guy named Dan Lurie, who edits a magazine called 'Muscular Training.' He was in the Oval Office of the White House and they said he got there to present Reagan with a plaque as 'The best physically fit president of all time.' So according to the papers, Lurie, who is 61 years old, challenges Ronnie to an arm wrestling match and the president wins hands down."

"It seems to me I did see the picture, Uncle Phil. But what has that got to do with you wanting to arm wrestle the president?"

"I'm 75, and I'm sure I can beat him. I studied Reagan's grip in the photograph. His fingers were too widespread."

"Uncle Phil, I believe I ought to explain to you how the White House operates. They get thousands of requests from people who want to give the president plaques. When the one from 'Muscular Training Magazine' came in they were going to dump the letter in the wastebasket, when a Reagan political manager said, 'Wait. If the president gets an award as the best physically fit president of all time, this will take care of the age gap once and for all.'"

Uncle Phil didn't seem to be listening. "I haven't lost a match since I moved to Florida. You know Sam Braunberger in apartment 2-C in my condo?"

"I don't believe we've met."

"He's a kid — 70 years old — and built like a brick wall. He has arms like the smokestacks at Three Mile Island. Last week I had him screaming and gasping for air on the gin rummy table in 12 seconds."

"Uncle Phil, you have to hear what I'm saying. So they let Lurie into the White House to give the president a plaque. The White House photographer is there for the picture. Then someone jokingly says, 'Do something physical,' and Lurie, who is no dummy, says, 'How about arm wrestling?' The Secret Service starts moving in on Lurie when the political manager says, 'Wait! it's a great idea, and the best photo opportunity we've had all month.' One of the president's aides says 'Stop. Suppose the president loses?' And the political manager says, 'Then we'll shred the picture.'"

Uncle Phil started taking in something of what I was saying. "So you don't think the Oval Office arm wrestling match was on the up and up?"

"I can't say that because I wasn't there," I told him. "You're trying to tell me you can't arrange a match for me with the president?"

"The people running Mr. Reagan's campaign have proved their point. I don't think the president will be arm wrestling anybody else in the near future."

"So what do I tell the people in the condo?"

"Tell them it wouldn't have been worth your trip to Washington because even if by some wild chance the president agreed to arm wrestle with you, and you won, no one would ever know."

Agent Orange Lingers On

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 3½ million young American men served in Southeast Asia during America's most frustrating war. About 58,000 died there. About 2,500 are still missing. And tens of thousands came home wondering if something they encountered there is affecting their health, their heads and their progeny.

They still must wonder. The government has been unable to tell them whether their exposure to the plant-killer Agent Orange in Vietnam has damaged them or threatens to.

The latest attempt to provide an answer leaves the question unsettled. It is an inch-thick, two-year Air Force surgeon general's study of the health of most of the men who sprayed the herbicide from open planes, got soaked in it, and drank it as cocktails in a foolish show of derring-do. It was issued Feb. 24.

It says the airmen who sprayed Agent Orange are in "good health." But they have problems not shared with a comparison group of men who had nothing to do with Agent Orange.

The Agent Orange mystery lingers. Some 50 million pounds of the substance were used in Vietnam to kill off the jungle canopies and expose communist troops' hiding places and to destroy Viet Cong rice fields.

The spray contained the toxic contaminant dioxin. In laboratory animals, dioxin causes cancer. When found to have been in oil sprayed on the roads, dioxin emptied the town of Times Beach, Mo.

Despite much research, no one can say with certainty what damage dioxin does to people, or how much exposure is required to cause damage or how much exposure the average foot soldier experienced as he moved in the jungles and rice paddies of South Vietnam.

The Veterans Administration, after dismissing the question for years, established a procedure under which concerned veterans could take an Agent Orange physical exam at VA hospitals. The process requires most of a day. So far, 131,000 veterans have taken it.

Congress, responding to veterans' concerns, passed a law a few years later directing the VA to treat veterans at no charge for any ailment that could have been caused by exposure to dioxin.

In two years, the VA has recorded 801,000 outpatient hospital visits for treatment and 20,300 admissions. Since one person can make many visits, those figures do not show how many individuals have been treated. The VA does not keep records that way.

So far, more than 18,500 veterans have filed claims with the VA for disability compensation, saying their health was so damaged by dioxin that their ability to earn a living has been impaired. The VA has honored some of these claims, but on other grounds. It hasn't awarded any compensation on the basis that the dioxin in Agent Orange was the cause of a service-connected disability.

The results of the Air Force's study were ambiguous, but the word the Air Force used to describe them was "reassuring."

The study said the fliers exposed to the herbicide are in good health and not suffering from major diseases at any unusual rate. (In any group of 10,000 men, some are bound to be sick.) But, it did find excessive liver disorders, dormant skin cancers and leg circulatory problems that could be an indication of hardening of the arteries. It said there was no cause-and-effect proof that these resulted from Agent Orange.

The report said babies fathered by the veterans had high numbers of minor birth defects.

The death rate in the first 28 days of life among infants born to the wives of exposed veterans was abnormally high.

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

Do you ever hear the following complaints from your children? "You and Dad are the strictest people in the whole town. ... The trouble with you is, you are getting old; you are behind the times. ... Gee, Ma, it's a crime the way you and Dad won't let us do things the other kids do."

If you want to get the full benefit of how the changing years transform one's opinions, listen to a middle-aged man as he throws out his chest and boasts about his childhood home. "My parents wouldn't stand for any foolishness, no siree. They made me walk the straight and narrow. And it was good for us. Why, we had to be in every night. ... And so on.

As the great composer Beethoven lay on his death bed, someone informed him that the public wasn't pleased with his latest composition. Beethoven closed his eyes and said with quiet confidence, "It will please them someday."

Joseph Edward Griffin, 49, of Dover, died at 8:30 p.m. Saturday when his car struck a culvert in Lenoir County near Kinston.

Kenneth Steven Rimmer, 28, of Burlington, was killed around 6 p.m. Saturday when the car he was driving zigzagged over the highway north of Mebane in Alamance County before overturning several times, ejecting Rimmer.

Virtually United In School Views

BOSTON (AP) — Blacks and whites in the city are "virtually united" in giving the public schools "very low" grades, according to a study released today.

The report prepared by the McCormack Institute for Public Affairs at the University of Massachusetts found that only 28 percent of the blacks and 26 percent of the whites responding rated the schools "good" or "very good."

In contrast, a similar survey in 1969 found 60 percent of the whites polled giving the schools high marks compared to 29 percent of the blacks, according to Floyd Fowler Jr., author of the study.

Two Injured

Two persons were injured and an estimated $4,750 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Saturday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:27 p.m. collision on Evans Street, 75 feet south of the Clifton Street intersection, involving cars driven by Willie Rufus Spellman of 306B Elks Street and James Wilbert McPhaul of 1917A Norcott Circle.

Police, who said both drivers were injured in the collision, set damage at $1,000 to the Spellman car and $2,000 to the McPhaul vehicle.

Spellman was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the mishap.

Cars driven by James Tracey Roscoe of 1716 Circle Drive, Diane Spell of 406 Skinner St., and Willie Herbert Stocks of Route 1, Winterville, were involved in a 2:22 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 15 feet east of the Highland Avenue intersection, causing an estimated $150 damage to the Roscoe car, $400 damage to the Spell vehicle and $1,200 damage to the Stocks auto.

Police charged Stocks with following too close after investigation of the collision.

Break-in Reported

Police are investigating a break-in at 401B Alice Drive, which was reported at 11:55 a.m. Sunday.

Officer J.E. Nichols said a refrigerator and several other items were taken from the apartment.

Business Entered

Greenville police are investigating a break-in at the Wash Pub at 2510 E. Tenth St. which was reported at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Officer J.E. Nichols said entrance to the building was gained through a front door. Six coin operated machines were forced open.

Three Injured

Three persons were injured and an estimated $1,400 damage caused in a 12:30 a.m. Saturday collision on U.S. 264, 1.7 miles north of Greenville.

Highway Patrolman J.B. Heath, who witnessed the collision, said cars driven by Emory Garlin Bell of Route 8, Greenville, and Verna Rhodes Stanley of 205 Gardena St., collided as Bell attempted to make a left turn onto secondary road 1590.

Heath, who said both drivers and a passenger in the Stanley car were injured, estimated damage at $500 to the Bell car and $900 to the Stanley vehicle.

Bell was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Driver Pinned

FALKLAND — Two persons were injured here early Saturday morning when a car driven by James Allen Webb of Pinetops, ran off N.C. 43 a tenth of a mile north of the N.C. 222 intersection about 6:45 a.m., hit two trees, and struck a water well pump house.

Highway Patrol Trooper Walter Featherston said Webb was thrown from the car and pinned between the car and a tree. He noted that the tree had to be cut down in order to free Webb.

Webb and a passenger in the car were injured, according to Featherston, who set damage to the car at $2,000.

Webb was charged with driving while impaired and careless and reckless driving.

Combined placements of the 18 individually honored Pacesetter interviewers totaled nearly 7,000 during fiscal year 1983.

Near 100 Percent Voter Turnout Reported

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — All but a handful of Soviet adults cast ballots in uncontested parliamentary elections that gave voters a chance to endorse 1,500 candidates nominated by the Communist Party, Soviet news reports said today. The party newspaper, Pravda, said the balloting was evidence of "the triumph of our way of life."

Newspapers reported that turnout exceeded 99.9 percent in most of the Soviet Union's 15 republics by 6 p.m. Sunday, four hours before Moscow polling stations closed.

Soviet television reported a 99.5 percent turnout in the Russian Republic, which includes Moscow and is the most populous of the Soviet republics.

The estimated 175 million eligible voters are not obligated to go to the polls, but those who don't can face censure at their jobs or schools. Turnout has exceeded 90 percent for the past 40 years, in part because local units of the party mobilize to seek 100 percent turnouts in their districts.

Every citizen over 18 is entitled to vote. Helping lure them to the polls on Sunday were stands at some polling stations selling rare books of literature almost never seen for sale in bookstores.

The official news agency Tass, reported today that the elections were held in "a well-organized manner" and quoted Pravda as saying they "provided further evidence of the inviolable unity of the Communist Party and the people, the triumph of our way of life, and the Soviet people's confidence in tomorrow."

Two candidates for the Supreme Soviet run in each district — one for the lower house and one for the upper. Each serves a five-year term. The Supreme Soviet meets for a few days twice a year to ratify decisions taken by its Presidium.

Voters can drop their ballots into a "yes" box or they can enter a booth and mark their ballot "no" — thereby calling attention to themselves. Write-ins invalidate the ballot.

Konstantin U. Chernenko, the new Communist Party leader, voted in northeastern Moscow and was shown on Soviet television wishing election workers "great successes."

About 150 people gathered outside the polling place and cheered as the 72-year-old leader and his fur-coated wife, Anna, emerged. He made no comments to reporters.

Communist Party members made up 72 percent of the outgoing parliament, but party endorsement is essential for all.

Candidates are selected by trade unions, the young Communist League, work collectives and local party bodies and the nominations submitted to district party offices before being "endorsed" at workplaces.

While no law prohibits more than one candidate for each seat, the nominating process is tightly controlled and no such opposition emerges on the ballot.

During the two-month election campaign before the voting, the party discusses its achievements and often takes swipes at "so-called democratic elections" in the United States.

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda on Sunday ran a story entitled, "Freedom Inside Out," charging that "corruption, forgeries, machinations and lies" are "constant fellow travelers" in U.S. campaigns.

By contrast, billboards and banners throughout Moscow have for weeks proclaimed "the unshakable unity of party and people" in the Soviet Union and urged Muscovites to work harder to "move forward to building socialism under the banner of Lenin, under the leadership of the Communist Party."

Poultry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 57.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 100 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 58.01 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is light to mostly moderate for a moderate demand. Average weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,735,000, compared to 1,685,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices lapsed into a steady decline today amid doubts about prospects for inflation and interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 6.70 to 1,164.78 by noon.

Losers held a 9-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Recent evidence has indicated that the pace of economic growth has remained strong in the early stages of 1984.

But a survey of purchasing managers at 250 industrial companies found that those gains lately have been accompanied by increased upward pressure on prices.

Analysts say the stock market is highly sensitive to any evidence of a revival of inflation, and the prospect of higher interest rates that such a development would raise.

Energy stocks declined broadly, with Texaco down 1 3/4 at 45 1/4, Unocal off 1 1/2 at 36 3/4, Atlantic Richfield down 3/4 at 43 1/2, and Superior Oil off 3/8 at 40 1/4. Analysts quoted in the Wall Street Journal warned that recent takeover speculation in the group might have pushed many of the stocks to "overvalued" levels.

The NYSE's composite index lost .64 to 91.03. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .56 at 212.19.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 31.49 million shares at noon, against 50.06 million at the same point Friday.

Actor Of The Golden Age, Wm. Powell, Dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Actor William Powell, the dapper, sophisticated leading man of scores of films during the 1930s and 1940s and the wise-cracking detective in the "Thin Man" movie series, died today. He was 92.

Powell died of natural causes at 5:45 a.m. at Desert Hospital, said Gloria Green, a family friend. With him was Diana, his wife of 44 years.

Powell, who earlier had survived an attack of cancer, had lived in quiet retirement at this desert resort since the mid 1950s.

He was perhaps best known for his role as the suave, detective Nick Charles in the "Thin Man" movie series, in which he co-starred with Myrna Loy.

Light comedy was his forte, but he was a skilled performer and was convincing in many roles, including tough guys.

His trademarks were impeccable attire and a close-clipped mustache.

He began as a stage actor and starred on Broadway and in silent films before hitting it big in talkies. He was one of the top performers at MGM during Hollywood's golden years, when the studio had many of the great film names under contract.

Among his pictures were "The Great Ziegfeld," "My Man Godfrey," "Mr. Roberts," "One Way Passage" and "Life with Father." He won Academy Award nominations for the latter two.

Rural Store Is Robbery Scene

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating an armed robbery at a rural store this morning that resulted in the theft of money from the cash register and two wallets, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said the manager of Gaskins' Mini-Mart on N.C. 11 between Ayden and Grifton reported that two men, one of them armed with a pistol, entered the store and demanded money. Tyson said the men took about $150 from the cash register as well as wallets containing an undetermined amount of money from Clarence Gaskins and Julius Jackson.

Tyson, who noted that the robbers also took a .22 caliber pistol from the store and a First State Bank containing old deposit slips, said Gaskins and Jackson were told to lie on the floor. He said a telephone was ripped out in the incident.

The sheriff said no one was injured in the robbery, which was reported around 5:50 a.m.

Spring Break

Greenville residents may have noticed that traffic around the city is not as heavy as it was last week. Patrons of fast-food restaurants and nightclubs may have found the lines shorter this weekend. That's because almost all of the 12,500 college students who live in Greenville have left town.

East Carolina University students are on their annual spring break. The vacation began Friday at 5 p.m. and runs until next Monday at 8 a.m.

"Traffic is light on campus," said Bill Shires, director of the ECU News Bureau. "Most of the students are gone and the faculty is gone. There is only a support staff on campus this week."

Shires said nothing has been scheduled for campus facilities during the break.

ECU's Joyner Library will be open, however, but the schedule is shortened. Library hours this week are: Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m.-6 p.m.; and Sunday, 1 p.m.-midnight.

Lady Pirates Win ECAC-South Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Jody Rodriguez came off the bench and sparked the East Carolina University women's basketball team to the first-ever ECAC-South Women's Tournament championship over Richmond Sunday, 54-39.

Rodriguez scored a team-high 17 points in the game, including nine of eleven at the line during the late going. She also had eight steals as she sparked the Pirate pressure defense that turned a tight game in the first half into a runaway in the second.

The Lady Spiders, which were the top seed in the tournament, bowed to the Pirates for the second time in two weeks, and finished the season with a 16-12 record, while East Carolina closes out the year with a 13-16 mark.

The tournament carries no automatic berth into the NCAA, but league officials are hopeful that it will, eventually.

Leading by only one at intermission, 26-25, East Carolina finally began to pull away when Delphine Mabry hit a 20-footer at the 14:34 mark for a 36-31 lead. Lisa Squirewell added a free throw and Darlene Hedges scored from close in. Sylvia Bragg hit a jumper for a 41-31 lead with 8:21 to play before Richmond finally broke the ice with a layup by Betsy McCormick 20 seconds later.

But the Lady Spiders could not cut further into the lead. ECU went back out by ten twice then got two free throws from Rodriguez to up it to 12. After another Spider basket, Mabry made two at the line and Rodriguez made another free throw to make it 50-37.

The Spiders scored once more, then Rodriguez added four straight free throws to set up the final margin of 15 points.

Richmond's Karen Elsner, the league's Player of the Year, scored 11 points in the first half, but was held to only four in the second before finally fouling out for the first time this year.

And while both teams shot about the same from the floor, the Spiders held a 35-29 margin on the boards, led by 14 by McCormick and seven by Elsner. Bragg had eight to lead ECU.

And while the Lady Pirates held a lopsided edge at the foul line — 16 of 23 for ECU, 3 of 6 for Richmond — turnovers were the dominate factor in the contest. ECU had 13 and the Spiders, 28. Of those, 19 were forced by steals — eight by Rodriguez and five by Bragg.

"The girls did a tremendous job," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "We knew the tournament would be tough, and they knew they had to work hard and they did. It's been more of a tradition here to finish strong and this team is no exception. They're playing good as a team and playing very good defense."

Both teams started slowly in the game, Andruzzi noted. But the Lady Pirates were the one's who relaxed first and took command of the game, Andruzzi said.

As to the defense of Elsner, Andruzzi said that in the second half, the Lady Pirates played behind her and then sagged back in front when the ball came to her side of the court. "It worked very well. We kept the ball away from her for the most part. We also boxed out well on rebounds and did a better job in the second half of controlling the boards."

And the defense — ah, the defense! "We pressured them from start to finish. We didn't think they had the stuff to take two hard games back-to-back. We tired them out with it."

Andruzzi praised the play of Rodriguez, noting that she not only had her best day offensively, but she also played her best defensive game, too. "She helped on defense, she created offense and she forced turnovers."

The coach also noted that it was a full team effort, with everyone doing their job. "Syl and Del did a great job on defense, and Darlene did a good job on Elsner. She's come a long way on defense."

Richmond took the initial lead but

ECU came back to take a brief edge at 4:3 before Elsner made a three-point play to return the lead to Richmond. The Spiders went out by as much as six, 12-6, on a jumper by Jackie Isreal with 8:55 left in the half.

East Carolina rallied, however, and tied it up at 12-12. They were unable to take the lead, however, as the Spiders kept moving back out. ECU tied it four more times before Rodriguez scored off a feed from Mabry for a 22-20 lead.

From then on, Richmond never caught up again. The Lady Spiders did cut the lead back to one three times, the last time in the first half when Margaret Sears hit with three seconds left for a 26-25 score at halftime.

Then, in the second half, the Pirates took control and went on to win the title.

"It's a great tribute to East Carolina to win the title," Andruzzi said. "It's an honor we're glad to have."

In addition to Rodriguez' 17 points,

Bragg added 16 for the Lady Pirates. Elsner, with her 15, was the only Spider in double figures.

Perkins, Jordan Head All-ACC

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season champ North Carolina placed two players on the all-ACC basketball squad announced by The Associated Press, but no one from second-place Maryland made the squad, which upset Coach Lefty Driesell.

Driesell said Terp center Ben Coleman deserved to be on the first team, not the second team.

"Ben ought to be on the first team," Driesell said. "If we finished second, and he's not on the first team, then I ought to be coach of the year. Somebody on the second (place) team has got to be all-ACC or something is wrong."

North Carolina's Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan, and North Carolina State's Lorenzo Charles — catalysts in the last two national collegiate championships — were runaway choices for the all-ACC team announced Sunday by the AP.

The three were chosen either first, second or third by a panel of eight sportswriters from throughout the ACC region. Their selection for player of the year will be announced Tuesday afternoon.

Joining the trio were two sophomores — Duke's Mark Alarie and Georgia Tech's Mark Price, both of whom were part of a battle for the fifth spot on the first team.

Named to the second team along with Coleman were Wake Forest center Anthony Teachey, Duke's Johnny Dawkins Virginia senior Othell Wilson and Wake Forest's Kenny Green.

Perkins closed out his career in Chapel Hill with a double-overtime victory over Duke Saturday. Once considered a non-emotional player, the 6-foot-9 New Yorker dispelled that notion with outbursts of feelings and offense.

Adding a deadly jumper to his repertoire of inside moves, Perkins averaged 17.6 points per game by shooting 60.7 percent from the floor. He also hit 85.5 percent from the free throw line. He is the all-time leading rebounder at North Carolina with 1,124, surpassing Billy Cunningham's record. His 2,071 points make him second to Phil Ford's 2,290.

"He has done everything at both ends of the court that anyone could ask of a senior leader and returning all-America," Tar Heel coach Dean Smith said. "He's extremely unselfish offensively. That helps the team, but sometimes hurts his own statistics."

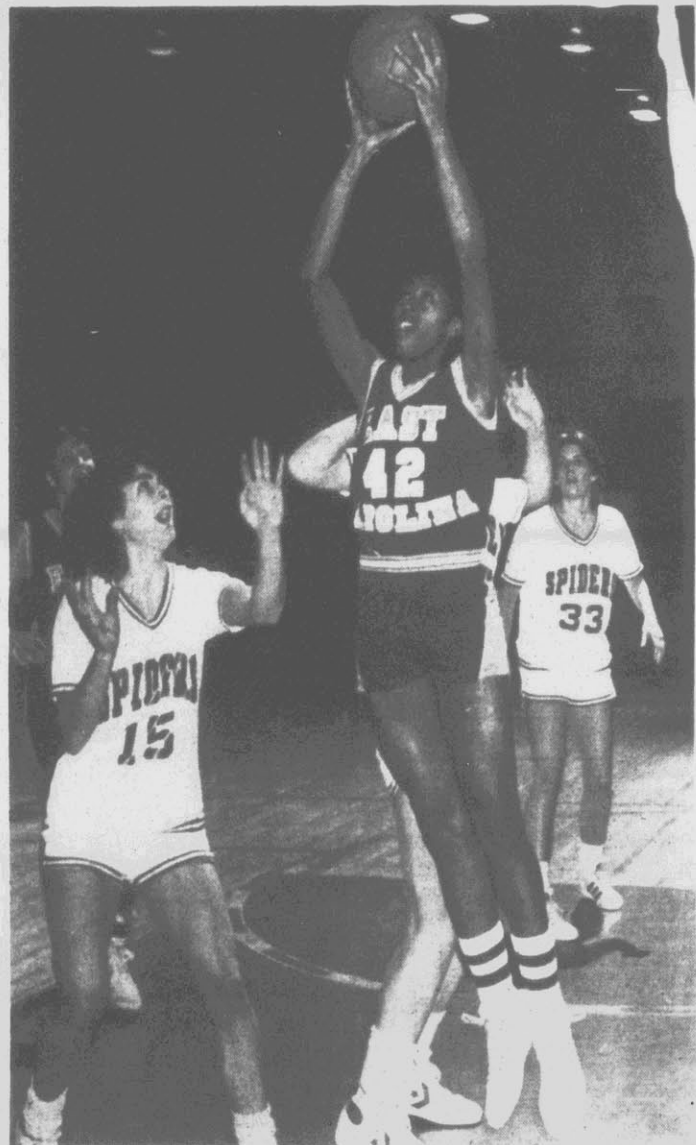

Jordan scored 27 points in that Duke victory to help lead North Carolina to the first undefeated conference record since North Carolina State did it in 1974. It was also the first unbeaten ACC string for Smith.

The 6-6 Wilmington, N.C., junior has now scored 1,711 points, the 10th best total in North Carolina history. Jordan shook an early season shooting slump to become the motivator for the team's current 26-1 record.

Jordan is averaging 19.6 points on 55.3 percent from the field. He is shooting 79.4 percent from the free throw line.

"Michael has been absolutely sensational offensively since the conference season started," Smith said. "He's been outstanding defensively throughout the year."

While it was Jordan's jumper that won the 1982 NCAA championship, Charles will be remembered for his dunk that completed the Wolfpack's odyssey to the national championship.

Reese, Ferrell Selected

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The long wait is over for Pee Wee Reese and Rick Ferrell.

Reese, a shortstop with the Dodgers in Brooklyn and Los Angeles from 1940-58, and Ferrell, a catcher who caught 1,805 games for the St. Louis Browns, Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators from 1929-47, were named Sunday to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Their selections came during a meeting of the Veterans Committee, an 18-member panel that each year considers old-timer candidates in three categories — former major league players, former Negro League players and ex-managers, executives and umpires.

"You're sure? You're not kidding? It's true?" Reese asked a reporter who brought him the news. "I'm flattered and very proud."

"I'm delighted. I had hoped it might happen someday, but I didn't know when," Ferrell said by telephone from nearby Clearwater. "It's a great honor."

Results of the balloting weren't released, but election required 75 percent approval from the 17 committee members present Sunday.

Reese and Ferrell will be inducted to the baseball shrine in Cooperstown, N.Y., Aug. 12 along with slugger Harmon Killebrew, shortstop Luis Aparicio and pitcher Don Drysdale, elected by the Baseball Writers Association of America in January.

The Veterans Committee considered 30 candidates Sunday, including ex-New York Yankee shortstop Phil Rizzuto, whom many believed stood an excellent chance for selection.

Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox played in a record 3,308 games during his career.

Weekend Events Surprise Baseball's Star Players

By The Associated Press

Willie Wilson was happy to be in Fort Myers, John Candelaria was unhappy to be in Bradenton and Dusty Baker and Gorman Thomas were surprised to be in limbo.

Those were the major developments over the weekend as the 26 big-league baseball teams prepared to start the exhibition schedule, which gets into full swing this week.

Wilson arrived at the Kansas City Royals' training camp Sunday, saying that the prison term he served for a drug conviction was "the best thing and the worst thing for me. It made me realize a lot of things. It made me think a lot more about life in general, where I was going. I was probably just going downhill. And I did. It made me dig down deep and see what makes me really tick."

Wilson, who was released Feb. 23 from the Fort Worth Correctional Institute in Texas, has been suspended for the 1984 season. However, the suspension is subject to review May 15 and the Major League Baseball Players Association also has filed a grievance against Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's action.

"I'm willing to do anything I have to do to stay in this game," Wilson said. "It's not that hard. Once you sit down and think about it, you realize all you have to do is obey the laws. I want to get it out in the open. I want to tell people it was a mistake. I'm sorry I did it and it won't happen again. Everybody is seeing to that. I've got 50 some people watching my every move."

Wilson will be allowed to work out with the Royals, but he cannot play in exhibition games.

Meanwhile, Candelaria, a veteran, left-handed pitcher who showed his displeasure with the Pittsburgh Pirates' front office by reporting to camp at the last minute although he lives in Florida, confirmed that he has asked to be traded.

"What am I doing here? They told me they would try to trade me," the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette quoted Candelaria as saying at Pirate City in Bradenton.

Candelaria has steadfastly refused to comment on the reason for his unhappiness. The 30-year-old southpaw is in the second year of a four-year contract that reportedly pays more than $800,000 a year. He reportedly asked to have his contract renegotiated in light of the reported four-year, $4-million deal signed over the winter by reliever Kent Tekulve.

Baker, released by the Los Angeles Dodgers last month, says he's afraid that "someone or some group" is out to get him and believes he could become the victim of a setup. In an exclusive interview in Sunday's Long Beach Press-Telegram, Baker vehemently denied rumors that he was let go by the Dodgers with two years remaining on a guaranteed contract because of an alleged involvement with illegal drugs.

Baker said he has heard that his home in Calabasas, about 30 miles north of Los Angeles, was searched by law enforcement agents.

"I've heard that my phone is tapped, I've heard that I'm being followed," Baker said. "I can't worry about all that. But I'll tell you this — if someone comes to search my house, I'm going to be right next to him, looking over his shoulder, to make sure he doesn't plant nothing."

Meanwhile, the Seattle Mariners played down outfielder Gorman

Thomas' shoulder injury, saying he will take it easy for a couple of weeks before any decisions are made on possible surgery on his torn rotator cuff, an injury which has ended some players' careers.

"In this modern day, they have a name for it — torn rotator cuff — but 30 or 40 years ago, it was just soreness in the arm," said Manager Del Crandall. "Outfielders live with that soreness every year. It's nothing to panic about. Outfielders are the ones who can get away with that kind of thing the best. Willie Mays always played with a sore shoulder. Always."

Thomas popped his right shoulder while hitting in the batting cage last Thursday.

In Sunday's slim exhibition schedule, Todd Cruz had three hits, including a two-run single in the eighth inning, and Cal Ripken Jr. and Lenn Sakata homered as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Yankees 5-3. Butch Wynegar and Don Baylor homered for the Yankees.

And a 10th-inning single by rookie Joe Cipolloni gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-4 victory over Toronto despite home runs by Blue Jays' Jesse Barfield and Fred McGriff. Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt missed the game because of bursitis in his left heel.

Darryl Motley hit a three-run homer and an RBI single as the Royals overpowered Edison Community College of Florida 13-0.

Veteran slugger Tony Armas, AWOL from the Boston Red Sox' training camp for several days, checked in Sunday.

Allison Relieved After Victory

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison appeared as relieved as he was happy.

The defending Winston Cup champion roared away from tenacious Terry Labonte and Lake Speed in the late-going Sunday to win the Warner Hodgdon Carolina 500 Grand National stock car race.

The 80th triumph of his career, breaking a third-place tie on the all-time victory list with Cale Yarborough, erased the stigma of two blown engines in the opening races of 1984.

"Obviously, when you end up in Victory Lane, it's pretty hard to have any negatives at all," said Allison, a contented smile creasing his craggy face. "But even more important from my standpoint is the effort by the DiGard (team) crew. This was a big win for all of us."

Allison, who finished all but two of the 30 races a year ago in winning his first Winston Cup title, finished 34th in the season-opening Daytona 500 and placed 30th in a race at Richmond, Va.

"The bad start was very discouraging for everyone on the team, but when each Monday came the guys (on the crew) just went back to work," said Allison, shrugging off talk about tensions between him and team co-owner Bill Gardner or master engine builder Robert Yates, who also is building engines for Richard Petty this season.

"If there were any tensions, I think we eased those in a talk last Monday," Allison said. "Our commitment is to let each other know what's on our minds, then just let the guys go to work."

"Robert Yates is very capable of building engines for two teams, but I'd really prefer they (Petty's team) would get their engines somewhere else," he said.

Allison started Sunday's race at North Carolina Motor Speedway a disappointing 15th, but stayed within striking distance in the early going.

"We knew we were at kind of a disadvantage starting so far back because there's so much traffic and so many good running cars out there," Allison said. "Gary (crew chief Gary Nelson) and I talked and decided to just take it easy and see what happened."

What happened is that Allison's Miller High Life-sponsored Buick Regal proved to be the strongest car, beating Labonte's Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS across the finish line by 2.44 seconds.

Allison, who led five times for 118 laps, took the lead for good on lap 437 of the grueling 492-lap event. Labonte got past him in the first turn on lap 439, but Allison dived down low and zoomed past him like a shot.

"I felt like from there on we had the upper hand," Allison said. "I knew we could beat him."

Speed, only other driver to finish on the lead lap, equaled his best previous Grand National finish with his third.

Allison's average speed of 122.931 mph broke his own track and race record of 121.747 set in March 1979. He picked up first-place money of $33,150 from the total purse of $290,191.

The race was punctuated by several wrecks, one of them involving six cars in which a guardrail in the treacherous third turn was badly damaged. The race had to be halted for 35 minutes while repairs were made to the wall.

There were no injuries in the accidents as the crowd of about 44,000 viewed the race in sunshine and temperatures in the mid-50s.

That in itself was an upset for Rockingham, where seven of the previous eight races had been either postponed or delayed by rain or snow.

The six-car accident started when Lennie Pond blew an engine going into the third turn. Everyone else involved slipped and slid through his oil and water, and Allison said it was his closest call in the race.

"At the time, I wasn't sure where Buddy (Baker) was running in the field and I didn't want to lose the advantage I had built up," he said.

East Carolina's Lady Pirates won a well-deserved ECAC-South Women's Basketball Tournament championship Sunday afternoon, defeating Richmond, 54-39.

In the game, the Lady Pirate defense smothered Richmond in the second half, and the Spiders had difficulty getting the ball to the basket because of it.

Oddly enough, however, the league chose not to pick an all-tournament team. Coach Cathy Andruzzi said she didn't know why they chose not to do so.

In the league's absence, we would therefore like to put forward our own all-tournament team.

First off, we'd pick James Madison's Sue Manelski, who made the league's all-conference team. Manelski, in two games, was 15 of 26 from the floor, had six rebounds and nine assists. She scored a total of 30 points in the two games her team played.

Then, from Richmond, we'd pick both Karen Elsner, the league's Player of the Year, and Betsy McCormick: Elsner was 15 of 25 from the floor, 6 of 7 at the line, pulled down 14 rebounds, and had one assist, with a total of 36 points.

McCormick, also in two games, hit 9 of 16 from the floor, 3 of 6 at the line, had 21 rebounds, and a total of 21 points.

Finally, the last two we'd pick come from East Carolina, Sylvia Bragg and Jody Rodriguez. Bragg, to whom we'd give Most Valuable Player status, hit on 11 of 23 from the floor, 12 of 19 at the line, had 13 rebounds, nine assists, 10 steals, and a total of 34 points. Bragg was another all-conference selection.

Rodriguez scored on eight of 16 from the floor, nine of 11 at the line, had seven rebounds, two assists and ten steals. She scored 25 points in the two games.

Others who might be considered for the honors might be ECU's Delphine Mabry and Darlene Hedges, and Richmond's Jackie Isreal and Margaret Sears.

A couple of players might also deserve special 'Gut' awards. Sears, who is playing with mononucleosis, stuck a long splinter into her leg Friday night while watching a first-round game in Minges, and had to have it cut out, but still played quite well. ECU's Lisa Squirewell, limping noticeably, still played in both games and performed well. And Mabry suffered a painful ankle injury in the first half of the Mason game and came back to play in the second half and sparked the victory.

For these girls, playing with pain is very much the truth. All in all it was a good tournament with some pretty good basketball played at times. Unfortunately, interest in women's basketball in this area has dropped recently, and very few were there to see it.

Next year, the league will have an additional team as UNC-Wilmington joins the league. Whether Navy will also join in is still questionable, and all of the schools participating will have to upgrade their status to Division I before an automatic bid will be considered by the NCAA.

But for 1984, it was a good tourney.

•LaVerne Evans scored 38 points, eight in the second overtime, to lead top-seeded Marshall to a 111-107 victory over Tennessee-Chatanooga in the Southern Conference finals.

No. 17 Wake Forest over North Carolina State 84-75. No. 18 Temple over St. Joseph's, Pa. 69-58. No. 19 Maryland over Virginia 74-65 and No. 20 Oregon State over Oregon 29-23.

Jordan's three-point play with 4:23 left in the second overtime gave North Carolina an 82-79 lead over Duke and Sam Perkins then scored six straight points, keying a 15-4 run. Duke's Mark Alarie led all scorers with 28 points, while Johnny Dawkins added 25. Perkins backed Jordan with 23.

Arkansas' 6-11 Kleine made five straight free throws during a 7-0 spurt that put the Razorbacks ahead of Houston 51-45. Houston got within 53-51 with 9:53 left, but the Cougars, who made 14 of their first 15 shots, did not score again for more than five minutes. Kleine finished with 22 points, the same as Houston's Michael Young.

"It was great to beat Houston," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton, whose Razorbacks handed North Carolina its only setback this season. "I'm happy for our team, particularly our seniors who can say they went unbeaten at home and beat the No. 1 and 2 teams in the country."

Kentucky's Bowie still isn't up to his old form — he averaged 17.4 points and 9.1 rebounds in 1980-81 — but he's getting close with 15 points and 11.3 rebounds in the last eight games.

The Other State Bird

Everybody knows that North Carolina's state bird is the cardinal. But if you looked around eastern North Carolina, you'd probably find more Perdue broilers than red birds.

Over 500 farmers in this state now raise more than 100 million Perdue broilers every year. And these birds are processed at Perdue's processing plant in Lewiston or Robersonville. These broilers get their start in North Carolina as well. Perdue breeder growers in this state ship their eggs to our hatcheries in Murfreesboro, Kenly and Halifax. And their feed? It's North Carolina-grown corn and soybeans purchased by Perdue and processed at feed mills located in Wilson and Cofield, North Carolina.

Facilities like these have helped make Perdue one of the nation's largest broiler producers, and the largest supplier of fresh poultry to the northeast market! And the demand for our products continues! In fact, our broiler plant in Robersonville is planning to open a second shift. As a result, Perdue needs 145 more broiler houses to support the expansion. If you'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-4151 or send in the coupon below.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KJ93 ♥Q10632 ♦A654
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—When this hand was played in a rubber bridge game, South elected to bid two no trump, and North went to game. The opponents doubled and the carnage was frightful. South should not have bid over two diamonds. Since there might be no quick source of tricks, a no trump contract rated to be tenuous at best. Partner surely had a reasonable suit for his vulnerable two-level overall, so two diamonds rated to be eminently playable.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ83 ♥A94 ♦10962 ♣K10
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—You are in slam territory, and the only question is how best to explore the possibilities. If you raise diamonds now to set the suit, you might not be able to handle the subsequent auction. Bid three hearts. When you later support diamonds, partner will realize that this was a cue-bid.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ76 ♥K984 ♦Q10542
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 1 ♥ ?
What action do you take?

A.—First, you do not have the values for a two-over-one response. Second, we do not fancy a free bid of one spade on a four-card suit when you are void in the suit partner opened. A penalty double of one heart is attractive at this vulnerability, but it is rather premature. Pass, and wait to see how the auction develops.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQJ95 ♥K963 ♦9 ♣762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Partner has not only reversed, he has jumped. It sounds as if your response has improved his hand. Slam should be certain, and a grand slam is possible. If you jump to five hearts to show your good support and inability to make a cue-bid, you could get the auction too high for orderly investigation. We prefer a waiting bid of three spades. When you later support hearts, partner should have a clear picture of your hand — good hearts, a decent spade suit headed by the ace, and no club control.

Q.5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK42 ♥J ♦KQ98 ♣Q1096
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Pass Pass 1 ♥
Dble ?
What action do you take?

A.—Partner might not have very much for his reopening bid, but your side clearly has the preponderance of strength. Redouble. Don't let your singleton heart deter you — you have more than enough outside tricks to make up for that flaw. And if the opponents run, do not hesitate to wield the axe.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠5 ♥AQJ6 ♦AK83 ♣A954
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Partner's jump to game in spades should show a self-sustaining suit. Therefore, your wealth of controls makes slam possible despite your lack of support for spades. A bid of five spades in this situation might be confusing — partner could think you were asking about a diamond control. Make your move toward slam by cue-bidding five diamonds.

Latin Pre-Lenten Carnivals Starting After Long Months Of Preparation

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX

Associated Press Writer
ORURO, Bolivia (AP) — Celestino Alandia Mercado says he has no regrets about sacrificing three months' wages to be one of the masked dancers at this Andean town's Carnival.

"My wife and two children sacrifice with me," said the 30-year-old dancer, who earns $20 a month working at a tin-smelting plant.

"Starting in August we take food out of our mouths to pay for Carnival. It's what we look forward to, year after year," he said, elated after performing for 2½ hours in his black, sequined costume.

The celebrations in Oruro are among the most colorful of the hundreds staged across Latin America to usher in Lent. Despite deep economic slumps in much of the region, the yearly extravaganzas show little skipping.

Each day since Saturday, thousands of dancing devils, llama herders, feathered condors and Inca warriors have taken over the streets of this mining center.

Carnival is a four-day national holiday in Ecuador, Uruguay and Venezuela as well as in Bolivia and Brazil. Traditional floats and costumed dancers also go on parade in parts of Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Mexico and Trinidad, where steel drums give the festivities a calypso flavor.

For Roman Catholics, Lent is a time of fasting and other self-sacrifice to prepare for the religion's most important holy day, Easter, the day Jesus is believed to have risen from the dead.

Carnival is a last chance at excess and revelry before the somber period begins on Ash Wednesday.

"You don't notice any recession here," said Bolivia's finance minister, Fernando Baptista, tossing colored confetti from the Oruro City Hall balcony where Cabinet officials and foreign diplomats watched Saturday's parade.

Indeed, Bolivia's Carnival indicates how the lives and traditions of peasants and miners, the vast majority of its 5.8 million people, are so little altered by the chronic instability of national politics and economics.

Efforts by recent military governments to make Bolivians work the Monday and Tuesday before Ash Wednesday failed.

This year, with Bolivia under civilian rule and gripped by its worst recession in decades, Carnival worked its magic. Bus owners suspended a nine-day nationwide strike so they could collect fares from thousands of festival-going tourists.

Slogans calling for democracy have crept into Carnival chants this year in Uruguay and Brazil, both under military rule. Ecuador's authorities threatened to jail anyone throwing water balloons, but this Carnival tradition, also popular in Peru and other countries, continued unabated.

Brazil's all-out Carnival in Rio inaugurated an $18 million

"Sambrodrome" this year for spectators of its parading samba clubs.

But the festivities in Oruro are more typical of the region. The mixture of pagan and Catholic revelry got under way Saturday as 8,000 dancers and musicians from 52 Bolivian folklore troupes entertained more than 100,000 spectators with a 10-hour parade that is being repeated daily through Tuesday.

Every town in Bolivia has a Carnival, but Oruro's is the best known and attended because of the diablada, or devils dance. The 12th-century Catholic rite was brought by Spanish colonizers and adapted to Quechua and Aymara Indian superstitions about spirits lurking in the tin mines.

Devoted to the Virgin of the Cave, patron saint of Bolivia's important tin mining industry, the dance pits a blue-eyed angel against a troupe of demons in a struggle between good and evil.

Grotesque devil masks have pointed ears and bulging eyes.

Just as colorful as the diablada are dances depicting the Incas' encounter with the conquistadores, the enslavement of Africans brought by the Spanish, the roundup of llama herds and the potato harvest.

To the rhythm of marching brass bands, dancers move along a 36-block route lined by eight rows of bleachers. Emboldened by beer or chicha, a corn-based spirit, some spectators venture into the street to pose for photographs or dance arm-in-arm with the performers.

Red Cross workers reported treating more than 100 people the first day; tourists with severe headaches from the 12,143-foot altitude, marchers who blistered their feet in rented costume boots and revelers who passed out from drinking.

Beneath the frivolous atmosphere is a deep religious commitment by performers of all social classes. Saturday's parade ended at the Church of the Cave near the mine entrance, where they paid prayer before feasting on roasted sheep's head.

"The virgin gave me steady work, and I promised in turn to honor her by dancing for three years," said Alandia Mercado. To participate in the dance, he had to pay his share of his troupe's band rental as well as for his costume.

Threaten Strike At CBS News

NEW YORK (AP) — News writers at CBS say they will strike at midnight if no agreement is reached with the network, but the union and ABC have announced a tentative contract.

The CBS strike deadline had been set for midnight Sunday, but was extended 24 hours after CBS agreed talks would continue, said Jay Pedinoff, a negotiator for the Writers Guild of America. CBS had no immediate comment.

Job security and union jurisdiction were two key issues in the dispute, Pedinoff said.

The pact with ABC was reached at 11:30 p.m. Sunday, the negotiator said. Terms were not immediately disclosed.

NBC news writers are in a different union.

Legislative Redistricting Choices 'Limited'

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Legislators trying to redraw state House and Senate districts to satisfy federal judges say they share several concerns — weakening of large county delegations, defeat of incumbents and election of more Republicans.

Gov. Jim Hunt has called a special legislative session for Wednesday in light of a March 16 deadline for redistricting set by a three-judge panel. The judges, in a Jan. 27 ruling, said seven legislative districts unfairly dilute minority voting strength. The judges promised to redraw the districts if the Legislature failed to act by March 16.

The U.S. Supreme Court was scheduled last week to consider delaying the panel's order and a decision could be announced today.

Chief Justice Warren Burger rejected the state's request for a delay but a second request was put to the full court.

A House committee will meet today to realign five of its members districts — the 8th with four representatives from Edgecombe, Nash and Wilson counties; the 21st with six representatives from Wake County; the 23rd with three lawmakers from Durham County; the 36th with eight legislators from Mecklenburg County; and the 39th with five representatives from Forsyth County.

A Senate committee agreed last week on a plan to redraw the 22nd Senate District in Mecklenburg and Cabarrus counties, a four-member at-large district, into four single-member districts. One would be predominantly black.

The committee is scheduled to meet again Tuesday to resolve a more complex problem, how to realign the large 2nd District in northeastern North Carolina. The area includes Bertie, Chowan, Gates Hertford and Northampton counties and parts of Edgecombe, Martin, Halifax and Washington counties.

The problem in redesigning the 2nd District is how to keep from disrupting surrounding districts.

Legislators say they have two basic choices — carve out one district for each legislator or carve out the required number of predominantly black districts and leave the rest of the district alone.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said the Wake County delegation is worried about maintaining the clout the group has enjoyed as a six-member delegation. He said that's why he's leaning toward drawing a five-member, at-large district and one predominantly black district rather than six single-member districts.

But Adams said that might isolate the representative from the predominantly black district from the area's other five representatives. He said another problem is that blacks overwhelmingly vote Democratic and their removal from district-wide races could work to the advantage of Republicans.

blast. The only way to survive is to reverse the ruling.

Mecklenburg Democratic Reps. Jim Black and Phil Berry said problems have risen in redrawing his eight-member district because so many incumbents live close together and would be running against each other if single-member districts are drawn.

"We would lose a lot of seniority that way," Black said. "We could start back at zero and that would be detrimental to the county."

Like Wake County, the Mecklenburg County delegation is another large group of legislators that has worked successfully together in the past.

Black said the most popular idea seems to be eight single-member districts with two of them being predominantly black.

The possibility of more Republicans being elected was especially strong in Forsyth County, where lawmakers tentatively have agreed to draw two single-member black districts and elect three representatives at large from the remainder of the district.

Some areas of the county have higher percentages of Republican voters than others and single-member districts could have hurt Democrats.

Friday's Traffic Saw Four Collisions Here

Four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday resulted in an estimated $12.85 property damage.

Police said heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Gail Jeffords Holley of Route 1, Robersonville, and Lesly Tamarin Mega of 102 Amy Circle, collided at the intersection of Memorial and Mall Drives.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Mega with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $3,000 to the Holley car and $2,500 to the Mega vehicle.

William Edward Wallace of Mount Olive, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:23 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 300 feet west of the Evans Street intersection.

Officers said the Wallace car collided with a truck driven by Logan Durwood Whitehurst of 123 Harrell St., causing $3,000 damage to the Wallace car and $1,000 damage to the truck.

Cars driven by Lois King Reddick of 1201 Brookhaven Drive, and Melvin Earl Edwards of 1902 McClellan St., collided about 4:47 p.m. on N.C. 33, 30 feet west of the Memorial Drive intersection, causing $1,500 damage to the Reddick car and $300 damage to the Edwards auto.

Investigators charged Edwards with having fictitious license plates on his vehicle.

Officers reported a truck driven by Richard Terrell Davis Jr. of Greenville, and a car operated by Artis Bryant Hardee of Whispering Pines, collided about 9:46 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street, causing $1,100 damage to the truck and $450 damage to the car.
