Compatible Swap Of Pitt Townships

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County legislators, while unsuccessful in one Senate redistricting battle in maintaining Pitt's geographic integrity, managed to keep part of the county intact and in a district containing what was termed "compatible townships" with neighboring areas.

As a result of a redistricting plan approved Wednesday afternoon by the General Assembly, Pitt County loses six of its northwest townships to the 6th Senatorial District, a move that turns area Senate races upside down.

The loss of the six townships leaves the balance of Pitt County, seven townships in Martin County, and all of Beaufort County except Pantego Township as the newly aligned 9th Senatorial District.

The seven Martin townships of Bear Grass, Cross Roads, Griffins, Jamesville, Poplar Point, Williams and Williamston were already in District 9 under the old alignment. The redistricting leaves the Goose Nest and Hamilton townships of Martin County in District 2, with the remaining township, Robersonville, in the 6th District.

The realignment of District 9 resulted from the domino effect caused by the shifting of townships in the sprawling 2nd Senatorial District in the northeast section to meet federally imposed minority voting strength guidelines. The 9th was one of seven districts affected by changes made in District 2.

While Pitt representatives failed to block the loss of Bethel, Farmville, Belvoir, Fountain, Falkland and Bell Arthur townships to the 6th District, an original staff proposal to shift Ayden Township to the 8th District with Wayne and Greene counties did not go through. Instead, incumbent 9th District Sen. Vernon White of Winterville said he was able to swap Bertie County's Windsor Precinct 2, which was originally targeted for the 9th, to the 2nd District in exchange for Ayden remaining in District 9.

In addition, White said that in an effort to include most of Beaufort County in the 9th District, two additional Bertie County precincts were shifted to the 1st Senatorial District in exchange for Richland Township below Aurora. The Washington County townships of Plymouth and Lees Mills, which were also designated for the 9th District under the original plan, were swapped to the 1st District in order to bring in Beaufort's Long Acre and Bath townships to District 9, White explained.

"I believe those Beaufort County townships are compatible with Pitt and I'm happy we could get them in the 9th District," the senator observed.

The final apportionment will leave Pitt County with 57.1 percent (69,040) of the district's overall population of 120,705, Beaufort County with 28.3 percent (34,151), and Martin County with 14.5 percent (17,514). The senator said 30.3 percent of the district's population would be black.

The 6th District will have the six Pitt townships with their aggregate population of 21,106; Robersonville, (4,501); part of Wilson County (45,523); and part of Edgecombe County (49,121), for an overall population of 120,251. In addition to Wilson Township, the Toisnot (Elm City) and Gardner voting districts are included from Wilson County. Tarboro and part of Rocky Mount are the largest Edgecombe County townships involved in District 6.

White said the 6th District will have the second highest percentage of blacks (45.6) in the east, with the 2nd District leading with 60.65 percent as a result of the reapportionment.

"I am very distressed with what happened with those six townships going to (District) 6," White said. (Please turn to Page 6)

Legislators Plan Adjourn

By MARY ANNE RHYNE

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Durham County legislators boiled down their differences and removed the last stumbling block today to General Assembly enactment of seven new legislative districts ordered by the federal courts.

The state Senate voted 35-3 and the House voted 86-11 to approve a compromise moving about 300 affluent white voters from a predominantly black single-member House district in Durham County to a mostly white district represented by Rep. Paul Pulley.

The special legislative session bogged down Wednesday when Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham, won Senate approval of a plan to move about 700 voters in his neighborhood from a black district to a white district.

But the House had approved a plan ironed out by representatives of the county's black community and the Durham County House delegation to divide the county into three single-member districts. A House-Senate conference committee was appointed to resolve differences between the plans.

Lawmakers expected to adjourn about 12:30 p.m. after completing last-minute paperwork.

Leslie Winner, attorney for the plaintiffs in a suit that sparked the federal action, declined to comment on the new districts.

The lawmakers agreed in Wednesday's special session on four new House and two new Senate districts to answer criticisms of a three-judge panel. In response to a suit filed by a group of black voters, the judges said the districts violate the 1965 Voting Rights Act by diluting minority voting strength.

The judges told the General Assembly to redraw the seven districts or they would make the required changes themselves. The U.S. Supreme Court rejected the state's request to delay the order pending appeal.

But Ms. Winner warned that districts enacted Wednesday might be challenged in court again.

"I am pleased with the majority black districts they created with the exception that the ones in Mecklenburg County look a little strange," she said. Ms. Winner said she was worried about diluting the voting strength of blacks who live in predominantly white Mecklenburg County districts and about Forsyth County electing representatives at large in predominantly white areas and electing one House member per black district.

Ms. Winner said the Nash-Edgecombe-Wilson House district contains both problems and acknowledged it was likely her group will challenge that plan.

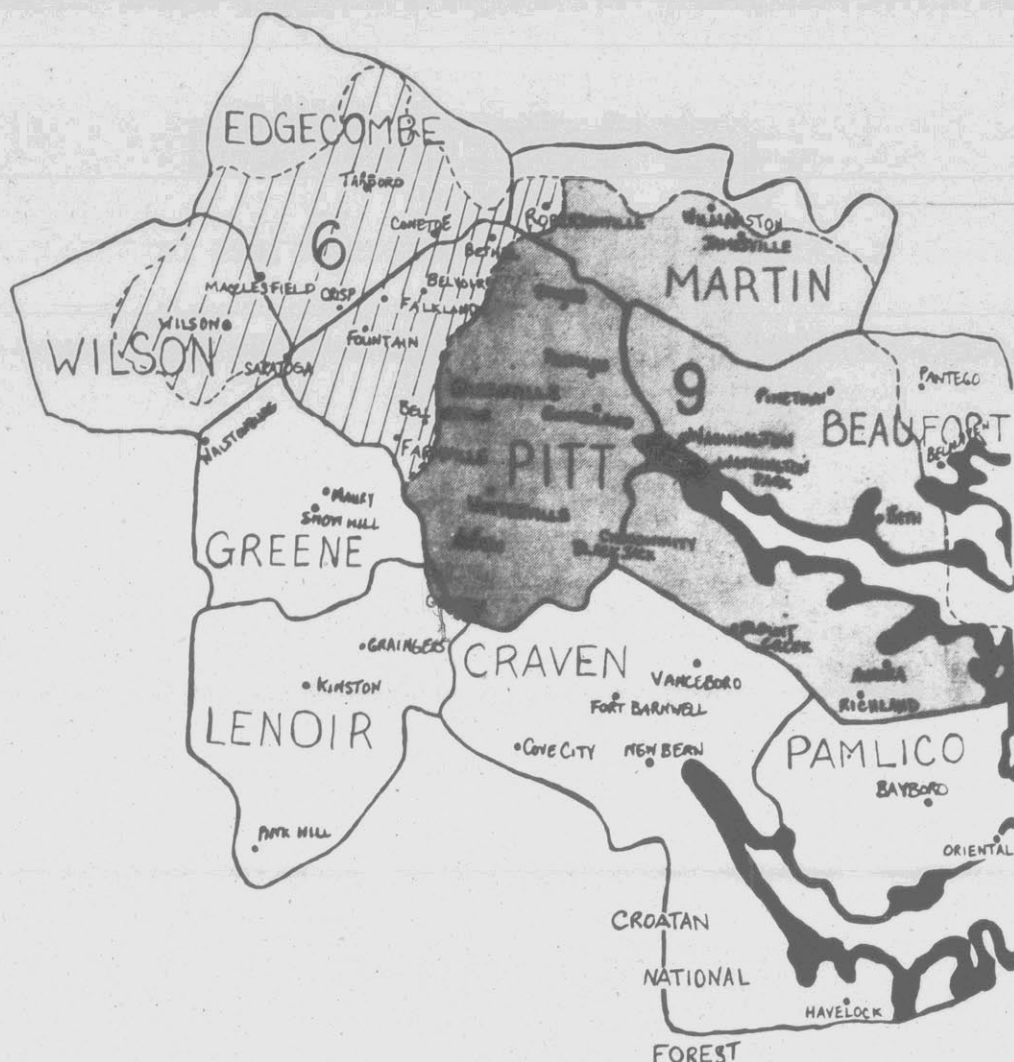

Royall drew criticism from black voters when he succeeded in getting the Senate to move his Durham neighborhood, which consists mostly of affluent white voters, from a predominantly black, urban district to a majority white, urban district.

"What that means to me is reverse discrimination," he told senators of the plan to put his neighborhood in a black district. "That means anyone in my precinct can never again run for the House."

"It isn't particularly just to have moved a bunch of rich white folks ... to stop them from being politically impotent at the expense of putting working class black and white folks in a district where they will be politically impotent," Ms. Winner said.

The General Assembly enacted a new primary election schedule Wednesday for the seven districts based on when approval comes from the three judges. Primaries in other

Fugitive A Victim Of Tactical Habit

By TOM MINEHART

Associated Press Writer

MARION, N.C. (AP) — An escaped convict's habit of hiding in caves and holes led to his capture, ending his bloody 19-day rampage with a fugitive partner who had died hours earlier in a blaze of gunfire at an abandoned shack, police say.

But before it was over, their terror spree had claimed one more victim — a 63-year-old blind woman who became so frightened when her home was invaded that she had a fatal heart attack.

The two were wanted in another killing committed since they broke out of Fort Pillow State Prison in Tennessee with three other inmates Feb. 18, vowing never to be taken alive, police said.

But a haggard James Clegg, 30, of Bristol, Tenn., gave up meekly Wednesday afternoon when police spotted his boots sticking out from his hiding place under a garage behind a piece of plywood.

His partner, Ronald Lee Freeman, 41, of Knoxville, Tenn., was shot and killed just four blocks away around 7 a.m. after breaking into the blind couple's home.

"Hell, no!" Freeman shouted when officers told him to surrender, a witness said.

"Information from Tennessee indicated that (Clegg's) method of operation was to hole up until the heat died down," said North Carolina Highway Patrol Maj. E.D. Young, who directed the manhunt by about 100 officers.

Clegg, who was serving a life sentence as a habitual criminal, had hidden in holes and caves and covered himself with debris during previous escapes in Tennessee, McDowell County District Attorney Alan Leonard said.

Two hours before Clegg's capture, North Carolina and Tennessee authorities met to discuss his past method of operation, Leonard said. "We suspected he would cover himself up and wait for nightfall," he said.

Residents of one neighborhood in this mountain town of about 3,000 voluntarily left their homes so police could search every house. At 4:15 p.m., Trooper W.B. Arrant saw Clegg's boot at the home of Charles Dale.

Arrant "motioned the other men over" and Clegg "was taken into custody without resistance," Young said, even though authorities said the fugitive was carrying three loaded pistols.

Clegg had had his right hand in his pocket but removed it when two officers "place shotguns at the side of (his) head," McDowell County Sheriff Bobby R. Haynes said.

"I just stood there and watched" as Clegg was captured, Dale said. "It surprised me that he was under there.... I was lucky. That sucker could have blown me away."

Dressed in a red prison suit and with both legs chained, Clegg was taken before a magistrate and charged with felonious assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in the shooting Tuesday of a North Carolina trooper, who was in stable condition. Clegg was held in the McDowell County Jail in lieu of $500,000 bail, and a preliminary hearing was set for today in McDowell County District Court.

Meanwhile, relatives and neighbors mourned the death of Molly Harvey, 63, who police said was literally scared to death when Freeman broke into her house before dawn Wednesday and demanded food.

Mrs. Harvey suffered a heart attack about 1 1/2 hours after Freeman broke in, and was later taken to Marion General Hospital, where she died at about 4:30 p.m., said Assistant Administrator Imogene Poole.

The Harveys' daughter, Patsy Harvey Penland, said her father, Rass, who is also blind, was "under sedatives."

Deputies alerted by Mrs. Harvey's family cornered Freeman at the Harvey home. "They (the officers) said, 'Give yourself up,' and Freeman said, 'Hell, no!' Then Freeman started firing and the officers returned the fire, but Freeman was able to jump out of the bedroom window," Leonard said.

Soon after, an intruder broke into a nearby home and was shot by the man who lived there, but police were unsure that it was Freeman. Leonard said blood from the site was being analyzed to determine whether it came from Clegg or Freeman, and that Freeman would be X-rayed to see if his body had any .22-caliber bullet fragments.

RIBBON PROJECT

I would like to share with Hotline readers a plan to wrap the Pentagon Building in Washington, D.C., during the month of the 40th anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki — August 1985 — with a ribbon embroidered, painted or woven with different people's "favorite things" that they fear will be lost if the world undergoes a nuclear disaster — works of arts denoting specific things people love, everything from forsythia branches to water fountains to babies' toes. The ribbon is to be one and one-eighth miles of ribbons in sections three feet long and 18 inches wide. I plan to take part in this project and invite others to do so, also. Anyone interested may send a self-address stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2206, Denver, CO 80201. You will hear from Justine Merritt, creator and promoter of the project. National Museum Started For Women In The Arts

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just four blocks from the White House, a rectangular hulk of a building where Masons once conducted secret rites is being transformed into a unique museum honoring women in the arts.

The guiding light behind the National Museum of Women in the Arts is Wilhelmina Holladay, a wealthy Washingtonian who started collecting women's art about 18 years ago after admiring a painting by Flemish artist Clara Peeters, born in 1594.

In her quest to find out more about Miss Peeters, Mrs. Holladay failed to turn up any reference to the artist's work in leading American art textbooks. In fact, there was scant information about any women artists.

Mrs. Holladay vowed to learn more about these women, and her search led over the years to a celebrated collection of more than 100 paintings and sculptures spanning four centuries.

"Art is very much the spiritual part of my life," said Mrs. Holladay, an elegant middle-aged woman called Billy by her friends. "There is a need, a hunger to create beauty among all people."

Mrs. Holladay, along with her husband, Wallace, a businessman and real estate investor, has collected works by such American and European artists as Mary Cassatt, Helen Frankenthaler and Georgia O'Keefe.

Mrs. Holladay insists she is not a part of the feminist movement and her collection "is not intended to be women vs. men, or to make a political statement."

The collection, now in the Holladays' Georgetown house as well as other spots around the city, will become the nucleus of the women's museum, which the American Association of Museums says is the first of its kind in the world.

"There isn't a museum in the city that really reflects the rich diversity of what's happening in this country," said Mrs. Holladay, who has been traveling around the country seeking support from state arts councils.

Kansas has already got dibs to have the first state exhibit when the museum opens to the public in 1986. And the museum's supporters have set up committees in several other states, including Colorado, New York, Texas, New Mexico and Wyoming.

Mrs. Holladay said the response to the museum from both the states and from women across the United States has been "gangbusters."

Typical of the letters is one from Eleanor Collen, a retired high school librarian from Potomac, Md. "At last, a museum devoted to the art of women," wrote Mrs. Collen, who said she was "amazed" that several history of art textbooks never even mentioned Mary Cassatt, perhaps America's first great woman painter.

Miss Cassatt, celebrated for her paintings of women and children, was born in Pittsburgh but spent most of her life in Europe, where she was closely associated with the French impressionists. She died in 1926.

Mrs. Holladay and the museum's backers have needed — and received — more than moral support.

So far, they collected roughly $7 million, of which about $4.8 million went to buying the 1907 Renaissance-revival style building that will serve as the museum's home once it is renovated.

The museum's big break came when three anonymous donors gave $1.5 million and pledged another $4 million over four years in matching funds.

The idea for the museum first came from Ann Sutherland Harris, an art historian who suggested it when the Holladays were considering giving their collection to a school or an institution.

With backing from prominent arts supporters like the late Nancy Hanks, former chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts, the museum slowly blossomed, attracting several large corporate sponsorships and other support.

MARCH IS SHOE MONTH

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

With fund-raising surpassing eating as a national pastime, it's entirely possible that one out of every three of you reading this column will be asked to participate sometime this year in a "roast."

A "roast" is what the name implies. It's a lump of compassion who has been selected to be thrown to a crowd of 300 where they feed off him (or her) for seven hours or so.

A recent story on roasts by Charles Champlin of the L.A. Times captured the essence of a roast in a single sentence. He wrote, "I told the audience that I had not had time to think up any insults, having just returned from a roast for Mother Theresa of India."

The anatomy of a roast is like no other presentation.

At 7 p.m. "roasters" (all 23 of them) are working the lobby trying to find anyone who knows the roastee. Is he short? (Great! I've got two short jokes.) Has he been divorced? (Fantastic! Alimony jokes make him drink until he's a public embarrassment.) Is his career slipping? (My cup runneth over.)

At 8 p.m., the first of 23 roasters releases his arrows. The audience fall off their chairs when he says hello. By the time he sits down he has used your two short jokes, two alimony jokes, called the roastee's mother a hooker and used up four of the 12-letter profanities and five of the eight five-letter words.

By 9:30 p.m., five members of the dais have tears in their eyes as they crumple and discard page after page of their presentation. The audience is not doing well. They're becoming listless and one man is given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after his head falls into the wine carafe.

By midnight, the mood is surly. A cardiac-arrest joke gets nothing. The roastee's eye are glazed and his lips are folded over his teeth like they are bonded by Velcro. The old joke about having an applause sign over his bed has to be explained. All the profane words have been used as nouns, adjectives, adverbs and verbs.

At 1 a.m. it is the guest of honor's turn. He thanks everyone for being there and reminds everyone what fun it has been. While he is saying this, he is making plans to change his name and occupation.

I was roasted several years ago by the kidney foundation. The occasion benefited something far above the price of a few insults. All the people there that night not only became bigger than the cause — after 10 and a half hours, they WERE the cause.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Abby Knew Origin Of Expression

DEAR ABBY: A teen-age girl wrote, "My boyfriend, Roger (not his real name), is in big trouble with my parents because they caught him in my room at 2 a.m."

In your response you said, "Roger had better respect your parents' rules or his real name will be 'Mud.'"

Since you obviously were making a pun on the name of Roger Mudd, you should have spelled it with two "d's."

Incidentally, Abby, do you know where the expression "Your name will be mud" originated?
HISTORY BUFF

DEAR BUFF: Yes, John Wilkes Booth, the actor who assassinated President Lincoln, broke his leg while making his getaway. The doctor who set Booth's leg was Samuel Alexander Mudd.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "Better Than Ever," whose sex life was improved by therapy despite her 44-year-old husband's impotence following surgery: Although the letter didn't describe the therapy, one option to overcome impotency should be publicized — surgical implantation of a penile prosthesis.

There are many types of penile prostheses being implanted by specially trained urological surgeons, but the most natural is the Scott inflatable type, which has been in use since 1973.

Impotency can be caused by diabetes, vascular disease, paralysis, medication for hypertension, radiation therapy etc., but far too often these patients are told that their impotence is either "all in their heads" or something they must learn to live with.

Unfortunately, many health professionals hesitate to discuss penile implant surgery, which is neither new nor a fad. I am a registered nurse, and the urologist for whom I work has given many requested interviews to the media on the subject, but few were publicized. (He was told that although the subject is important and interesting, it's too "risky" for the general public.)

Abby, do you think that publicizing an operation that can help restore a man's ability to perform sexually is too "risky" to publicize?
BARBARA C. ORLANDO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR BARBARA: No. The news of Dr. F. Brantley Scott's invention appeared in my column in 1973. (A wealthy South American businessman sent a cable from Brazil saying he wanted to fly his private jet immediately to see Dr. Scott in Houston.)

Surgeons everywhere are now performing penile implants. Inter-

Can a divorced man marry his ex-wife's niece? She is the daughter of his ex-wife's sister. Since the divorced man is no longer related by marriage to this young woman, and they were never related by blood, I can see no reason why they could not be legally married. Or would it be considered incestuous?
SMITTEN IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR SMITTEN: Arthur Groman, my California "legal eagle," says, "Regarding incestuous marriages: according to California Civil Code Section 4400:

"Incestuous marriages. Marriages between parents and children, ancestors and descendants of every degree, and between brothers and sisters of the half as well as the whole blood, and between uncles and nieces or aunts and nephews, are incestuous, and void from the beginning, whether the relationship is legitimate or illegitimate."

"Laws vary from state to state, but I would be astonished if any state were to describe a marriage between people related only by a former marriage as incestuous."

A Passive Symbol

The Supreme Court, apparently, has moved to put Christ back in Christmas so far as public observances are concerned. In a 5-4 opinion written by Chief Justice Burger, the court's majority said that nativity scenes serve to celebrate the origin of "a national holiday. ... To forbid the use of this one passive symbol — the creche — ... would be a stilted over-reaction to our history and to our holdings."

We tend to agree while, at the same time, holding the firm belief that separation of church and state — and in this case, the local governments — is essential to our democracy. There are those, and four on the court fit that category, who disagree, contending the ruling violates the beliefs and rights of non-Christians.

To that, we say no more than the television networks, or daily newspapers, or major magazines do who publish Christmas editions, frequently with overlays of the Madonna and Child or drawings of Christ.

A democracy, while striving to protect the rights of all, also yields to the majority and Christianity is by far the predominant religion in this country. Whether there is a total separation or not, Christian tradition will hold sway.

It is illogical that municipalities have been allowed to put up Christmas lights ... but not a symbol of the very purpose of the celebration. It also is illogical that such items as the Morehead Planetarium's "Star of Bethlehem" could not be displayed without a public outcry by a small minority. Without the freedom to do so, the holiday that the majority of Americans celebrate on Dec. 25 truly would become Yulemas, or any other name someone would like to give it.

After all, Christmas was there before Dec. 25 became a public holiday in the United States.

Keep It Clean

As rivers go, the Tar is not rated as one of the great ones of the nation. It meanders through eastern North Carolina, including Pitt County, and finally joins the Pamlico and ultimately blends into the sound.

It is an essential river to our area, however, furnishing drinking water for Greenville and recreation for many people.

And a spokesman for the state Division of Environmental Management says it is a pretty good river. Good in this case means it is clean, with the water quality rated good along most of its routes.

It is not always easy to appreciate how fortunate we are, to have a clean river. For anyone who has lived in an area where rivers are filled with debris and the water is unfit to drink, it must be refreshing to be near a river that is rated good.

We are lucky, indeed, that the river has been kept relatively clean, and we must fight with all we have to keep it clean.

Tax Benefits

NEW YORK (AP) — Whenever legislators speak of the possibility of reducing real estate tax benefits you generally hear an immediate rustle of activity from property owners and syndicators.

The activity is automatic, reflexive, spontaneous. It is instinctive, as much as that of parents protecting their children. The wagons are circled, the guns are cocked, and a call goes out for help.

It is for this reason, among others, that few legislators dare tamper with real estate tax deductions in an election year. The legislator who tries to do so may even find himself accused of anti-Americanism.

The elections will be over by next year, however, and there are indications that some sort of congressional activity will develop. Already, real estate people are preparing their defenses. No way, they say.

Craig Hall thinks differently, a quality he seems to have had at least from his college days, when he began buying properties that nobody else seemed to want, fixing them up and renting them out at a profit.

Now in his mid-30s, he is still buying properties, though less frequently of the fix-up kind. His Dallas-based Hall Real Estate Group buys and operates office buildings and thousands of apartment units for investors.

Even so, Hall isn't worried about what those legislators are likely to do, not even if they reduce tax benefits or, as has been suggested, reduce the ability of states to issue tax-free bonds for housing developments.

"Long term, it should have a healthy impact on the apartment industry," Hall states in his annual outlook. His reasoning is that a reduction of tax benefits will force apartment rentals to more realistically reflect costs.

That means higher rents, because the belief is almost axiomatic among owners that rents have not as yet risen sufficiently to reflect the actual costs of construction and the limited supply of good rentals.

Moreover, he reasons there very well could be a surprise effect from legislation, a surprise in the sense that it could worsen what he sees as a developing shortage of apartments.

"The only competition entering the apartment business today is tax motivated," he states. "It is driven by syndication for shelter or for tax-exempt investment, rather than cash flow-driven."

WASHINGTON — Those of us in the news business are expected to heed a maxim of Roman law: Audi alteram partem. Hear the other side. I bypassed that sound admonition the other day in a column on a child support bill that is currently pending in the Senate. Let me make amends.

The bill would require the states, as a condition of receiving federal funds for welfare, to enact a series of tough laws in the field of child support. A parent who failed to make court-ordered payments would become subject to attack from half a dozen quarters: His wages could be withheld, his income tax refunds intercepted, his salary garnished.

In the vast majority of cases in which support payments are ordered, it is the father who pays. The trouble is that many fathers don't pay. The National Law Journal reports that non-compliance now amounts to an estimated $4 billion a year. Census Bureau figures show that fewer than half of the custodial parents actually get what a court has awarded them. My recent column accordingly gave a hiding to "deadbeat daddies."

The ailiteration was OK, but the emphasis was unfair. There are malicious mothers also. My mail brings pathetic and resentful letters from fathers whose ex-wives have behaved inexcusably. One father whose gross income was $2,000 a month sent $500 a month for the support of his two children. His ex-wife, he says, spent most of the money "on clothes for herself and presents for the man she was sleeping with."

She effectively prevented him from seeing his daughters. When her lover moved to a remote part of the state, she packed up and moved with the children to be near him. When the father briefly stopped his $500 checks, she sued for collection and got a judgment against him. When he finally managed to see his girls, "both of them were in shabby, dirty jeans, and one of them was wearing sneakers so badly worn that her big toe was sticking out."

Much of the problem lies in the area of visitation rights. Most divorced fathers, I am told, want to maintain bonds with their children. The usual custom is for a divorce decree to guarantee such rights. In practice, it appears, such decrees are often unenforceable. If an embittered ex-wife wishes to prevent her ex-husband from seeing his children, she can find ways of achieving that purpose.

The resentful fathers are seeking amendments to the pending bill that would balance the equities. They want the same kind of swift and effective mechanisms for enforcing visitation rights that the law would provide for enforcing child support payments. They want a rebuttable presumption that the mother is to be regarded automatically as the first choice for custody. They argue convincingly that in many cases a judge will award hefty child support as a kind of alimony, and this they resent. Much as I resent federal laws that say a state "must" enact prescribed legislation, the bill still impresses me as a desirable measure. It is the innocent child who suffers when his father fails to pay support. All the same, the responsible ex-husbands who have written me make a convincing case. There are indeed two sides to this issue. The fathers deserve to be heard.

Public Forum

To the editor:

To live positively in your family life, do these count?

1. Love is never jealous. "A compliment a day keeps jealousy away."

2. Love is never boastful. The "everybodies" and "everythings" and "nobodies" and "nothings" really pull you and your loved ones down in a hurry.

3. Love is never proud. Parents and children are a team, each working toward the success of a happy family.

4. Love is never haughty. The "I know it all" and "I'm right" attitude is a no-no for a positive loving atmosphere because it immediately causes a rebellious reaction that leads to quarrels fighting and a "you-can't-tell-me-what-to-do" attitude.

5. Love is never selfish. Watch those negative attitudes.

6. Love is never rude. Parents "too busy" to answer a child's question. Husbands "too busy" to telephone a wife and tell her "I love you." Wives "too busy" to do a little special something for husbands.

7. Love never demands its own way. Have you ever heard, "This is the way I was taught. This is the way it will be"? Sounds childish and immature, doesn't it?

8. Love is never irritable. Love makes the children enjoy playing at home. Love makes you fun to be with.

9. Love is never touchy. Have you ever lashed out at a loved one because you felt tense and anxious? Tension is the root cause of many medical problems and a negative attitude that none of us can afford to have.

10. Love never holds grudges. "Never let the sun go down on your grudge." It saves so many heart-aches and so much heartbreak.

11. Love hardly notices when others go wrong. What can you and I do today that will be a little extra special love deed to someone in our family? Life is a bouncing ball.

Happiness is a choice. Choose to be positive and you choose success in your family, homeland, career. Love, peace, joy, kindness, patience, and gentleness are the positive attributes that will transcend all problems and crises.

Strength For Today

Centuries ago the people of China built a great wall to keep out invaders. It was a marvelous achievement, but it failed to fulfill its purpose. For the wall was scarcely completed before some enemies bribed gatekeepers and marched in unresisted.

Few circumstances in history are more eloquent than this one.

It demonstrates that in the end our only security lies in moral character. For example, lack of fidelity destroys marriage. Business depends upon credit and credit upon moral character. The greatest system of armament will never insure any nation against invasion so long as there are neighbors who recognize no moral restraint.

The protection of China's great wall was destroyed by a few pieces of gold handed over to a few traitors. All life comes back to the soundness of moral character. There can be no security, no happiness, no progress, without it.

Three Years Later

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the doorway, the familiar voice was heard, calling out the trademark greeting.

"Hi, ev'body," said Jimmy Carter as he strode into a hotel suite at 8 a.m., right on time for an interview with a small group of reporters.

Fifty-nine years old and three years out of office, he is looking healthier and more relaxed than when he held the presidency. He is spending his time writing a second book since leaving office, lecturing on rare occasions, traveling, teaching and, for relaxation, building furniture in a home workshop.

He says he has no urge to return to Washington. But, mentioning his wife, he adds: "Rosalynn does."

He is keeping an eye on how Ronald Reagan is performing, and how the press is reporting on that performance. And he is not entirely happy.

Take, for example, Reagan's frequent assertion that the nation's military readiness went downhill during Carter's four years in the office.

Not so, said Carter, adding that "these are the kind of statements that are made from the White House that ought to be checked by the press (with) the errors described to the American people."

The same, he said, goes for Reagan's criticism of what has come to be known as Carter's "national malaise" speech. Carter never used the phrase in the midterm speech outlining what he saw as a crisis in the nation's spirit. Rather, the address was given that characterization by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, when the Massachusetts Democrat was running for his party's presidential nomination against Carter.

"I never did make that 'malaise' speech," Carter said. "It was a creation of Ted Kennedy."

"President Reagan doesn't always check the facts before he makes statements, and the press accepts this as kind of ... amusing," the former president said.

Carter, who was swept out of office when conservative and moderate Republicans united behind one candidate, said he does not see a conservative trend "sweeping the country" since Reagan took office.

Rather, he said, there have been shifts in specific areas.

"There's been a dramatic change" in the area of civil rights, in which the federal government has relaxed the enforcement efforts of his and several previous administrations, Carter said.

And in foreign affairs, he said, there has been a "strong shift away from a commitment to negotiations" in favor of the use of American military forces in international confrontations.

Carter made no effort to hide his displeasure that Reagan, seeking a second term, is making him his target once again.

When it was suggested that he was being used as a "whipping boy" in the 1984 presidential campaign, Carter acknowledged that "President Reagan hasn't found it possible to resist that temptation. To some degree, I resent it."

As for consultations with Reagan, the former president said: "That hasn't been the case at all."

Assuring Oil Security

WASHINGTON — News of a potential disruption of oil shipments from the Persian Gulf has reminded us of hours spent waiting in gas lines during the 1970s.

But there's no immediate concern of panic. America's energy picture in 1984 is stronger than it's been in years. The strategic petroleum reserve, which Congress approved in 1975 as part of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, has afforded the U.S. a stockpile of almost 400 million barrels of oil — enough to keep the nation running for almost three years in the event of a cut-off of Persian Gulf supplies.

But relying on increases in energy prices, consumer attitudes and government programs such as fuel-efficiency standards and building codes won't ensure America long-term energy security. Additional steps remain to be taken, and the Reagan administration ought to be leading the way.

To be sure, as statistics indicate, American citizens have made significant progress in reducing their energy consumption during the last decade. In 1983, the U.S. imported about 20 percent less oil than in 1973. Moreover, as a recent study by the Congressional Research Service found, per-household energy consumption in 1980-81 was about 15 percent less than eight years earlier.

These savings have been realized despite the fact that Americans are taking advantage of only a portion of the conservation measures available to them. The Census Bureau estimates that 19 of 54 million single-family homes in America have no storm windows; that 8 million have no attic insulation, and that 12 million have no wall insulation.

CRS estimates that households could reduce energy consumption by as much as 38 percent through home improvements.

The Reagan administration continues to believe that high energy prices will stimulate additional conservation measure. Accordingly, in his budget proposals, the president has repeatedly attempted to eliminate every conservation program on the books.

This year's spending plan would change that pattern somewhat. For the first time, Reagan would subsidize weatherization for low-income families.

Yet energy conservation and renewable resource projects would receive only 17 percent and 8 percent shares, respectively, of the Energy Department's expenditures on technologies. Meanwhile, nuclear fission and fusion programs would receive 62 percent of that budget.

Moreover, the administration proposes to fund its few energy conservation programs with money collected by the government as a result of violations of the Petroleum Allocations Act, passed in 1973 to discourage overcharges on oil pricing. The law's intention was to reimburse victims of oil overcharges — not bail out the government's misguided policy.

Given its lukewarm, if not hostile, disposition toward energy conservation, the Reagan administration has been fortunate that no international crisis has exposed its narrow-minded focus. Indeed, what was President Carter's misfortune on energy has become President Reagan's good luck. But that doesn't mean the United States is out of danger.

It seems clear enough that higher prices don't replace a sound conservation policy.

Book Can Tell You Coldest, Oldest Or Richest U.S. Towns, And Much More

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For people who love lists, the government has just produced the book to end all books — 996 pages chock full of information on just about any place you can think of in the United States.

Page after page provides information on such things as income levels, population, crime statistics, types of jobs and even the weather.

The coldest place in January? Grand Forks, N.D., with a bone rattling average daily temperature of 2.2 degrees. The hottest place in July? Yuma, Ariz., at 93.6 degrees.

The book, being published today, is made for people who want to know how their town or county stacks up against other places with details on everything from the number of doctors to the cost of housing and monthly cost of electricity.

Want to move to the high-rent district? Try Pitkin County, Colorado, where Aspen ski lodges push the median value of homes over $200,000.

For people looking for low-cost housing, they can't do better than Loving County, Texas, and Shannon and Todd counties in South Dakota. The median value of a home in all three areas is under $10,000.

The book is a gold mine of information on the nation's 3,137 counties, 952 cities over 25,000 population and 7,749 towns of 2,500 or more.

It covers the biggest — Los Angeles County, population 7.5 million — and the smallest, Loving County, Texas, population 91.

While the hefty volume carries the rather mundane title "County and City Data Book — 1983," it has proven popular for the Census Bureau. A new edition comes out every five years and the last one sold 12,000 copies. The Census Bureau expects this one to do even better because it draws on the 1980 census for its information.

While much of the material is available in other government documents, this book puts it all together so that different places can be compared.

"It is very much like a snapshot of all counties and all cities," said Elizabeth Busse, a Census Bureau official who worked on the book. "There are a multitude of things people can use this book for."

Want to know the county with the highest birth rate in the country? It's Geary County, Kansas, with 42.6 births per 1,000 women compared to the national rate of 15.9.

Thinking of retiring among folks your own age? Charlotte County, Fla., has the highest percentage of people 65 and over — 34 percent.

Ready for the wide open spaces? Head for Alaska, which averages one person per square mile compared to 64,400 persons per square mile living in Manhattan.

The book lists the richest county as Bristol Bay Borough, Alaska, with a median household income in 1979 of $33,516 and the richest city as Beverly Hills, Calif., with a median per capita income of $24,387, compared to the national average of $7,296. At the other end of the scale, Tunica County, Mississippi, has the largest percentage of people living below the poverty level.

The county with the largest farm population is Fresno, Calif., with 25,082 farmers, while Murray County, Ga., had the largest percentage of its population involved in manufacturing, 62 percent.

Following are the top 10 counties ranked in four different categories:

Median household income in 1979: Bristol Bay, Alaska, $33,516; North Slope, Alaska, $31,378; Sitka, Alaska, $31,133; Juneau, Alaska, $30,834; Fairfax, Virginia, $30,011; Montgomery, Md., $28,987; Douglas, Colo., $28,380; Los Alamos, New Mexico, $27,901; Howard, Md., $27,612; Du Page, Ill., $27,509.

Percent of population living below the poverty level in 1979: Tunica, Miss., 52.9 percent; Starr, Texas, 50.6 percent; Owsley, Ky., 48.3 percent; Holmes, Miss., 46.9 percent; Greene, Ala., 45.7 percent; Wilcox, Ala., 45.3 percent; Lowndes, Ala., 45 percent; Humphreys, Miss., 44.7 percent; Shannon, S.D., 44.7 percent; Lee, Ark., 44.3 percent.

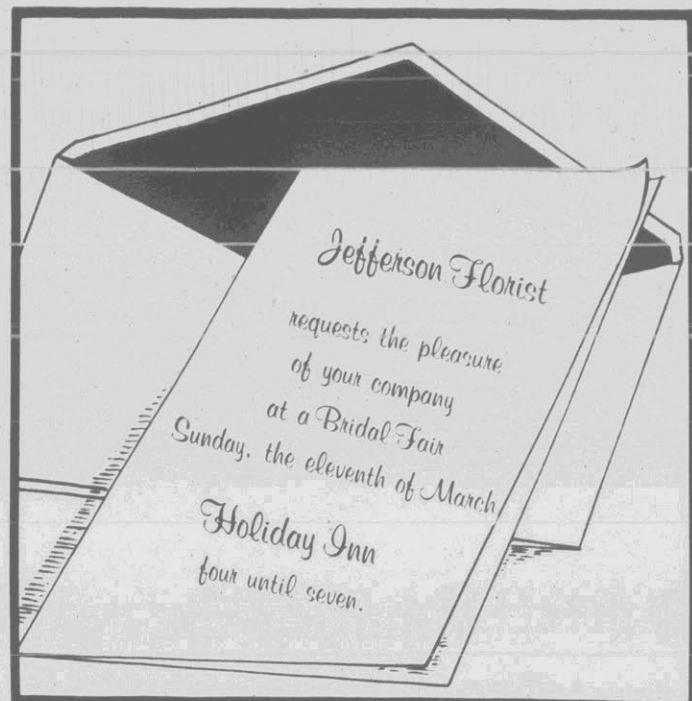

Percent of population aged 65 or older: Charlotte, Fla., 33.96 percent; Llano, Texas, 31.34 percent; Pasco, Fla., 30.69 percent; Sarasota, Fla., 29.97 percent; Sierra, N.M., 29.5 percent; Citrus, Fla., 29.01 percent; Hamilton, Texas, 28.23 percent;

Pinellas, Fla., 27.84 percent; Keweenaw, Mich., 27.66 percent; Mills, Texas, 27.63 percent.

Median value of owner-occupied housing units in 1980: Pitkin, Colo., more than $200,000; Marin, Calif., $151,000; Honolulu, $130,400; San Mateo, Calif., $124,400; Maui, Hawaii, $113,600; Santa Clara, Calif., $109,400; Orange, Calif., $108,100;

Two Votes Cost $100

HERMANTOWN, Minn. (AP) — A man has been fined $100 for trying to double his political clout by voting twice in November's election.

"Some people don't vote at all. I guess I voted too much," said Delbert J. MacIntyre, 45, of Hermantown, who was fined Tuesday after pleading guilty to voting twice.

MacIntyre registered in Hermantown as James Delbert MacIntyre last year, using his Hermantown address. Meanwhile, he also was registered as Delbert J. MacIntyre in Duluth, using the address of a business where he said he once worked.

On Nov. 8, he voted at 8 a.m. in Hermantown and 9 a.m. in Duluth, according to court documents.

"I like to be honest and vote. It never really dawned on me I was voting twice," MacIntyre said Wednesday.

He said he sometimes lives in a downtown Duluth hotel and "got used to voting downtown. I just wasn't thinking about it."

MacIntyre said he isn't particularly interested in politics. "I didn't vote for the same guy both times," he said.

The double registration was discovered in January by a worker in the county auditor's office.

Tricks Bank Into A Higher Price

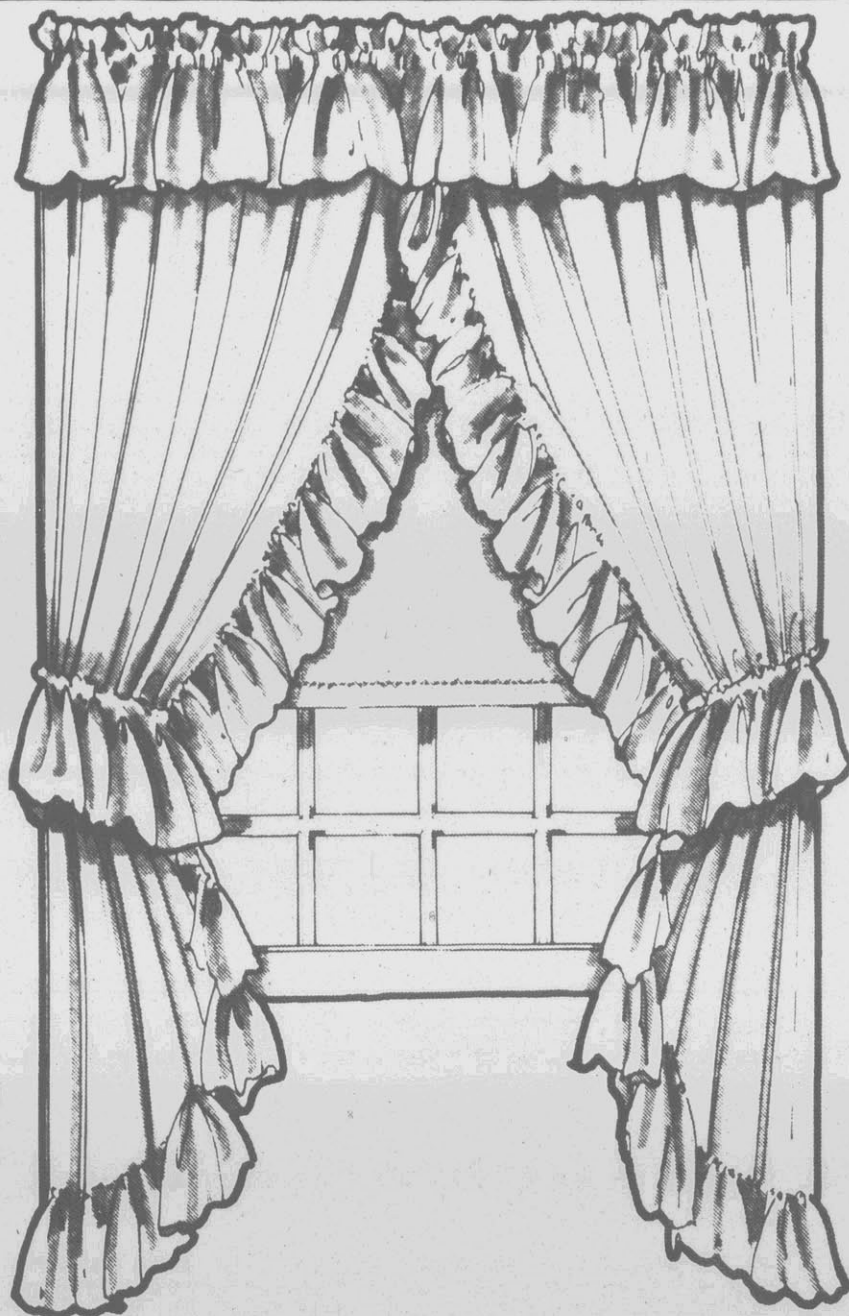

NEW YORK (AP) — A penniless but whimsical seaman got a Wall Street bank to pay an extra $370,000 for a ship by bidding $1.62 million for the vessel although he had no intention of buying, officials said.

Robert Owen O'Brien, 48, attended a federal auction for the Hellenic Star, a freighter once owned by the bankrupt Hellenic Lines Ltd. He stepped in with a $1.45 million bid. Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. offered $1.62 million, which O'Brien then topped by $10,000.

The deal fell through after O'Brien was unable to post a 10 percent deposit Friday and disappeared.

Farmville Plans Beautifying Of Town Common

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A pre-application for matching funds for the beautification of the Walter B. Jones Town Common was approved by Farmville Commissioners during their regular March meeting Tuesday night.

The pre-application will give official notice of the town's intention to apply for a grant of $46,500 for the project which has been advocated by various civic entities. To secure a grant, the board must dedicate the site as a permanent park. Commissioner Oliver Murphrey voiced his hesitation about ruling out the possibility of ever using the site for any other purpose. Other commissioners said they believe the 1.94 acres at the rear of the property will be enough for a municipal building and that the 2.25 acres on the front should be a park. Several citizens including Rosemary Turnage, Frank Bradham, Alex Allen III, Pete Anderson and Fred Trevathan spoke on behalf of the project.

The board considered an offer from Mrs. George Davis to sell the town additional cemetery space adjacent to Hollywood Cemetery. Mayor Walston appointed Commissioners Moses Moye, Michael Dixon and Charles Joyner and Town Administrator Robert Morgan to recommend, after appraisal, whether it is in the best interest of the town to buy the property. Mrs. Davis' asking price is $25,000 an acre.

The board voted unanimously to tear down the old Farmville High School agriculture education building "forthwith" — as soon as the ground dries out enough to get equipment in there. Commissioner Mike Dixon spoke on behalf of going ahead with the demolition, saying he considers the building "an eyesore." It is located on U.S. property now designated as the Walter B. Jones Town Common.

A public hearing was held to receive comments on the proposed uses for reprogramming Fiscal Year 80 and Fiscal Year 81 CDBG funds. It is proposed that the project include the following: spot housing rehabilitation, paving of Thorne, Williams, Darden and Humphrey streets; paving of two blocks of Cotton Street, paving of one block of Moore Street, paving of the 400 block of Hines Street, six-inch water main for sections of Williams, Darden, Cameron, Humphrey, Thorne, Horton, Wallace, George and Hines street; drainage of the block behind the Community Center, drainage of the 300 block of Main Street, resurfacing of Cameron Street from Vines to 264. Alternate projects (if price of first list is lower than expected) are a six-inch water main for sections of Walnut, Perry, and Hines streets, and resurfacing of sections of Walnut, Perry and Hines streets.

The board designated $35,000 budgeted funds for street paving and resurfacing, including the 100 and 200 blocks of North Field Street, Clubview Drive, 200 feet of Alfred Drive, and the 200 block of West Lang Street.

A change order for the Community Center was approved with projects totaling $7,282. Included are $1,816 for tile wainscote, $584 for a concrete pad washing facility, $500 for a hot and cold water drain, $660 for gutters, and $3,182 for architectural glazing. The first two items were required for health department approval of the facility.

Annexation of properties along 264 including A.C. Monk and Company and Farmville Implement Company and areas adjacent was discussed. David Stowe appeared on behalf of Farmville Implement Company asking that this business not be annexed. He said the last three years since the business moved to 264 have not been good ones for selling farm machinery and he needs more time before the annexation takes place.

A resolution was adopted encouraging residential development in Farmville. Included in the overall resolution were resolutions to have the planning board and commissioners meet jointly to establish community goals for the next five years, ask the planning board to revise the town's land use plan, ask the planning board to review the need for a redevelopment area to encourage residential development, and authorize the planning board to solicit proposals for professional services to set the five year goals and revise the land use plan.

A resolution of respect for Miss Tabitha Marie DeVisconti, who died July 20, 1983, after many years of service to the Farmville community, was adopted. Also adopted was a resolution to place Miss DeVisconti's papers bequeathed to the town in the Library of East Carolina University, with stipulation that certain of the papers be kept in the May Museum, which the town plans to operate in Miss DeVisconti's house at the corner of Main and Pine streets willed to the town for this purpose.

An ordinance was adopted allowing centralized storage of mobile refuse carts at multi-family dwellings of five units or more.

Low bids for purchase of supplies and labor for the reconstructing of electrical power to the town of Fountain were approved. The sum of $92,000 is budgeted for this purpose.

Also approved was the purchase of supplies for the extension of water lines to complete a loop from Lang's Crossroads to Greenfield Heights.

A contract with General Electric Company for the maintenance of an electrical substation was approved. Some $1,200 is budgeted for this purpose.

suggesting that "no one, I included, could come up with a plan to save them." He said there were "no swaps anywhere I could make to get them back."

White predicted compatibility between the Pitt and Edgecombe County townships and said he hopes "Wilson County will work with Pitt, too."

White said he "made every attempt to get Bethel Township back in Pitt County but I could not because of its proximity with Robersonville" and the need to meet population and racial guidelines. He said that with the exception of the township losses, "I'm happy with what we were able to do. I did all I could do."

The 9th House District of Pitt and Greene counties, which is represented by Ed N. Warren of Greenville and Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville, was not affected by the realigning of five of the state's House districts.

The General Assembly approved a new primary election schedule for districts affected by the realignments.

Under a bill enacted Wednesday, the primary would be postponed from May 8 to June 5 and the runoff date would be July 17 if the new districts are approved by the courts and U.S. Department of Justice by April 20.

If the plan gains federal approval after April 20 and before May 17, the primary would be set for July 17 and the runoff for Aug. 14.

If federal approval has not been received by May 17, the General Assembly would set new dates for the primary when it reconvenes in June for a budget session.

New filing periods will be scheduled by the state Board of Elections.

White did not file as a candidate for re-election to the Senate and has declined to say whether he might reconsider his decision in view of the redistricting.

The shifting of the six Pitt townships particularly affects the political aspirations of R.L. (Bob)

Questions N.C. State Univ. Agriculture Role

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"The relationship between the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and North Carolina State University is not what it should be, and it hasn't been the right relationship for the past several years," says Sam McLawhorn of Grifton, one of 10 members of the N.C. State Board of Agriculture.

"Instead of stressing research and technology, which is their role within the university system, they are tending to policy making and predictions. They should leave that to the Agriculture Department, where it belongs," McLawhorn said in an interview today.

Emphasizing that he was speaking not just for himself, but for all 10 members of the board — "you can call and check with them," McLawhorn said the members are strongly supportive of the firm stand taken by Rep. Charles G. Rose III, who on Wednesday criticized comments made by N.C. State University professors as "real dumb."

Rose's comments came during a congressional hearing in Washington on tobacco issues. Rose cited speeches and studies made by agricultural economists of the university who have questioned the viability of the federal tobacco program.

McLawhorn recalled that "back in the '40s and '50s, N.C. State University, supported by North Carolina taxpayers' money, gave away our technology and know-how to foreign countries and to big chemical firms, free of charge. They sent highly paid people to Rhodesia, Argentina, China, other countries to teach them best how to grow, cure, handle, market tobacco. This free service at the expense of North Carolina taxpayers is now coming back to haunt us."

McLawhorn, saying that in past years NCSU served the North Carolina public well in its research programs, said the university "now employs people in high-paying positions who are critical of our tobacco program, who bad-mouth (the Flue-Cured Tobacco) Stabilization (Corp.), predict its downfall. Instead of trying to be positive about solutions to our problems, they seem to want to be detrimental to anything that will help the North Carolina farmers."

"And they have the means to do what they're doing. They have access to millions of dollars of university funds, provided by taxpayers. On the other hand, the North Carolina Department of Agriculture gets less than 1 percent of the North Carolina tax dollar for all its programs," McLawhorn said.

"These professors," McLawhorn added, "are highly trained, well paid people, some who draw down more than Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham, who come from other areas of the country and are totally ignorant of the role tobacco has played and still plays in the North Carolina economy. It's bad to pay people big money to criticize you when you need them to understand and support you in a situation as critical as this. I don't think these people have any capability of realizing what tobacco means to North Carolina, particularly eastern North Carolina."

"There was a time when North Carolina farmers were proud to send their sons to NCSU, grateful to know they would acquire an education in agriculture that would improve the quality of life, of farming. That's not the case now, the service which NCSU once gave to agriculture is badly eroded."

"I don't hesitate," McLawhorn remarked, "to say that Dr. (J.E.) Legates (dean of NCSU's School of Agriculture and Life Sciences) and (NCSU Chancellor) Dr. (Bruce) Paulson are guilty of standing by and letting this situation develop. It's time they scrutinize this matter, to see that taxpayers' money is used to help our people, not put them down. It might even be time," he added, "that the General Assembly take a closer look at the way funds are used throughout the entire university system."

New X-Ray Technology Installed At Hospital

RADIOLOGIC technologist Melanie Ingram manipulates X-ray equipment at Pitt Memorial.

New X-ray technology has been installed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital which sharply reduces the amount of radiation patients receive.

The hospital switched to the new system this week, after having tested it in various applications for nearly a year, said Sandra Harrison, administrator of radiology services. The system will reduce patient exposure to radiation by 50 percent, Ms. Harrison said, and in some cases by as much as 75 percent.

Radiology employees will also face less exposure to radiation, she said.

The system uses a more effective intensifying screen for making X-rays. The screen, a thin sheet of phosphorescent material placed between the patient and the X-ray film, changes X-rays to light rays which can be more easily "seen" by the film.

Increasing the effectiveness of the screen means the length of exposure time can be reduced, thereby minimizing the amount of radiation received during each X-ray.

Pitt Memorial performs more than 80,000 X-ray examinations annually, each of which requires an average of three to four films.

Cut Back Lie Detector Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has cut back plans to use lie detectors in national security investigations and now wants them "to protect highly sensitive classified intelligence," a senior Pentagon official says.

That means that no more than 40,000 of the 4 million people with access to classified material would be tested in a year, retired Gen. Richard Stillwell told the House Armed Services Committee.

Last year Congress blocked, at least until April 15, a far wider plan for use of the polygraphs. Stillwell, deputy undersecretary of defense for policy, said the scaled down testing was still needed to assure "that our most sensitive programs are not penetrated by hostile intelligence agents."

NATURALLY SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — A woman who gave birth to a "test tube" daughter last year says she is pregnant naturally, and expecting twins.

CURTAIN-LIFTER LONDON (AP) — An opposition leader has introduced a U.S.-style Freedom of Information bill designed to relax Britain's strict official secrecy laws.

Cheaper Than A Human Therapist

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Too busy for those weekly sessions with your psychiatrist? Finding the analyst's bills are shrinking your wallet as well as your psyche?

A New York cabinetmaker has the answer to your problems — "Walk-A-Shrink," the psychiatrist on tape.

At $6, the cassette is cheaper than a human therapist and supplies everything but the couch.

It features the voice of inventor Stanley Mulfeld asking typical questions posed by therapists, followed by pauses of 20 to 45 seconds to allow for the listener's answers.

Side 1, entitled "Uh-huh," begins with "Just tell me how you feel," and goes on to such queries and comments as "Mmmmm," "Why do you think that is?" "Yes," "Why did you stop?" "Uh-huh" and "Is that what you really want?"

There's more of the same on Side 2, which is entitled "Yes, go on" and ends with "That's all we have time for now."

Mulfeld, who says he's been seeing a therapist "for a long time — long enough to get his rap down," is offering the tape by mail order. He hopes to have it in Los Angeles stores soon — in time for "all the people in town because of the Olympics."

Vote Ambassador But Lack Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States now has an ambassador to the Vatican, but whether money will be approved soon for paying him and setting up an embassy remains in question. The Senate approved the nomination of William A. Wilson Wednesday by a 81-13 vote, but a House subcommittee still hasn't approved a State Department request to transfer money from another fund to pay the expenses of the embassy to the Vatican. Wilson has been serving for the last three years as an unpaid personal presidential representative to the Vatican.

"He can continue to do what he has been doing," said Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, chairman of the subcommittee that must pass upon the money transfer. But he said no other money can be spent on a Vatican embassy until the subcommittee approves.

He said in an interview that he'll call the subcommittee together this week or next to see if they want him to approve or reject the request.

Usually, a committee chairman gives automatic approval to departmental requests to "re-program" funds. In fact, three other congressional subcommittees have already approved re-programming for the Vatican embassy.

But Smith held hearings and a number of groups opposed spending the money, citing the issue of church-state separation.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore. raised that issue on the Senate floor during the hour-long debate on the nomination.

"The pope is not a politician," Hatfield said. "He is a religious leader and that's it. Period."

Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., agreed that the church-state issue is "an important concern" but argued the establishment of formal diplomatic ties with the Vatican was "good for U.S. diplomacy and U.S. security."

Seek Motive In Double Shooting

SUTTON, Neb. (AP) — Police say they're still looking for a motive in the case of a man who allegedly grabbed a pistol from a police chief and shot two people, killing a city councilman and wounding another man.

Robert Wach Jr., 24, was charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of Leo F. Leininger, 51, on Tuesday night. The wounded man, Ephraim E. Griess, 79, was listed in fair condition.

Police said incident began when Police Chief Richard Fringer picked up Wach, who was carrying a gun, after answering a disturbance call.

Tobacco Program Warnings 'Dumb'

RALEIGH (AP) — U.S. Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., says he was "shocked" by recent statements by agriculture experts in the state questioning whether the federal tobacco program was needed.

Rose opened a congressional hearing on tobacco issues in Washington, D.C., Tuesday by blasting North Carolina State University agriculture experts. Rose said the pronouncements by the N.C. State professors were "real dumb."

"We're in the trenches up here," he said, "and state college professors are throwing grenades on our backs."

Rose told a meeting of the tobacco and peanuts subcommittee that he would request that the N.C. State agricultural economists appear before the panel to explain their statements.

The university, Rose said, was "dribbling out" information critical of the tobacco program but had shied away from giving Congress any substantive guidance in 1981 and 1982, when the program was re-modeled.

J.E. Legates, dean of NCSU's School of Agriculture and Life Sciences, said he was "rather surprised" by Rose's remarks.

Legates said he'd had a brief conversation with Rose on Tuesday.

"I told him we would be glad to visit with him and discuss the basis (of the NCSU research)," Legates said. He declined to respond directly to Rose's charges, saying he didn't want to "get into a newspaper dialogue" with the congressman.

N.C. State agriculture economist William Toussaint said last month that the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. could collapse because of huge leaf surpluses and the freeze on support prices.

Also, N.C. State's Agriculture Research Service last week issued a report downplaying the damage to tobacco growers if the federal tobacco program were dismantled.

Rose said the report ignored the "social consequences" of dismantling the tobacco program, which controls how much tobacco can be produced, where it can be produced and guarantees farmers a minimum price.

Doing away with the program would mean tobacco growing would move to the more Southern states, where two crops a year could be planted and where production costs would be less, Rose said.

Judge Ignored A Plea For Mercy

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A man's pleaded for mercy for his wife, who tried to have him killed four times, but the judge said she could simply have left him and sentenced her to prison.

Lehigh County Judge Maxwell Davison on Wednesday sentenced Frances Toto, 39, to four to 10 years in prison for soliciting a family friend to kill her husband, Anthony Toto. The friend, Anthony Bruno, 22, was sentenced Wednesday to six to 12 years for attempted murder.

Toto survived four attempts on his life, including shootings to the head and chest, an attack with a baseball bat and a car bombing.

Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Dam told Smith's subcommittee in February that sending an ambassador to the Vatican would recognize "the vital role the Holy See plays in the world today" and that the United States would benefit from the diplomatic information available there.

Forests In Switzerland Die At Rapid Rate

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Switzerland's forests are dying at a rate so rapid that the phenomenon has become the nation's No. 1 concern in public opinion polls.

"It's catastrophic, by all means, particularly if nothing is done," Claude Martin of the World Wildlife Fund-Zurich said in a recent interview with The Associated Press. "There are mountain valleys that will soon become uninhabitable, where the dearth of trees is threatening villages with avalanches and mudslides."

The "Waldsterben" — the German term for the "dying forest" phenomenon — has burst on the country like an angry storm. Martin said that for years "nobody wanted to believe it was happening," but the recent public opinion polls show that the issue has become the Swiss public's uppermost concern.

Hardly a day goes by without a newspaper publishing stories headlined "Forests Killed by Man."

The forests are dying from motor vehicles releasing nitric oxide, factories producing hydrocarbons, and the notorious "acid rain," carrying sulphur dioxide through the atmosphere.

"You can judge it from the symptoms in our forests," Martin said, "and since the phenomenon progresses very quickly, as we know from West Germany, the situation is already worse now than it was a couple of months ago."

A report released by the Federal Office of Silviculture in mid-February estimated that one-fifth of Switzerland's forests — which cover a quarter of the country's land area — suffer from pollution damage. It said 4 percent of the 250 million to 300 million trees in Switzerland are dead or doomed, and 14 percent more are diseased.

Although the situation is most severe around Basel, in the northwest, where the chemical industry is located, the disease is spreading and has now hit the forested and mountainous canton of Graubunden in the southeast.

"Although Graubunden is relatively far from the real emission centers such as Zurich, Basel and Bern, the damage is caused by a largely synergetic effect of hydrocarbons combining with nitric oxide from car exhausts," Martin said.

He explained how trees die: Nitric oxide combines with sunlight to form what is called "ozone," which produces chemicals that kill the trees. This leads to what Martin calls "secondary damage" or disease, fungus and bark beetles, who basically eat the tree from the inside, and can kill a big tree in "a couple of days."

As a result, foresters have moved through the woods, marking diseased or dead trees with crude, white crosses. Officials hope by cutting the trees, they can halt the spread of disease, or fungus and beetle damage.

All this attention is new, but the problem itself is already fairly old, according to Martin.

Unite For More Wilderness Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three environmental groups have mounted a lobbying drive for legislation to add 10 million acres in 25 states to federally protected wilderness areas.

The Wilderness Society, the Sierra Club and the Friends of the Earth assembled members of their groups from 20 states involved to push their congressmen to back the bills.

Gaylord Nelson, chairman of the Wilderness Society and a former Wisconsin senator, told a news conference that the measures represent "the most important and the most critical public lands issue before this Congress." The Reagan administration opposes most of the bills.

Newspaper Plans To Go National

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Times, a newspaper founded in 1982 as a conservative counterbalance to what it called "leftist mindsets" in other news media, has announced plans to publish a national edition in 20 places across the country.

The new edition will appear in the San Francisco Bay area on April 16 and in the Los Angeles area on June 4. James R. Whelan, editor and publisher, said. He explained it would expand throughout this year and 1985 with the aim of eventually providing mail delivery on the day of publication to 70 percent of the nation's population.

"What the Wall Street Journal is to business news, we're going to be to politics, government and commentary," Whelan told reporters.

SAVE MONEY ... shop and use the Classified Ads every day!

"If you look at a cross section of a pine or spruce cut in the worst areas, you can see that from the year 1958, there is a sudden break where the distance between the rings that show the tree's growth become much, much smaller," Martin said. "This shows that the growth increment began to slow 25 years ago. But in 1981-82, the first real severe symptoms of trees obviously sick or dying became visible."

The government had scheduled consideration of a comprehensive action program, which is expected to deal with industrial emissions and pollution from oil-fired home furnaces as well as auto exhausts in March.

Environmentalists, meanwhile, are pressing for a lowering of speed limits on superhighways from 80 to 60 miles an hour and from 60 to 50 on all other roads outside built-up areas. The government estimates that this could reduce nitric oxide emissions by 9,000 tons, or 9 percent. But Martin said the authorities should go further, banning the use of leaded gasoline, mandating the use of catalytic converters and imposing restrictions on exhaust emissions of heavy trucks which produce about 30 percent of the nitric oxides.

"The odd thing is that people only recognized this a short time ago," said Robert Lamb of the independent International Union of Conservation and Nature in Gland, "and it's also obvious that there are many vested interests who would rather that it just disappear as quickly, and that nobody talk about it."

The problem, though severe in neighboring West Germany and growing worse in Switzerland and France, is being discussed, not only here, but on a European scope as well.

Said Lamb: "The death of the forests is the major problem in Europe, and the Council of Europe and the European Environmental Bureau of the European Economic Community (Common Market) are trying to do something about it. You just can't isolate it to one country."

Contradictions In Assassination Testimony

By RUBEN G. ALABASTRO
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A security guard today contradicted the military's version of Benigno Aquino's assassination, testifying he saw the opposition leader led down stairs from an airplane, his head hanging to the side, just after a shot rang out.

The military contends Aquino was shot by a leftist assassin after descending the stairs and reaching the airport tarmac on Aug. 21, when he returned to Manila after three years of self-imposed exile in the United States.

Only military men were on the stairway, and some Aquino supporters contend one of those escorts carried out the killing.

The private guard, Efen C. Ranas, 22, was among four employees of the Lanting security agency who had been held in contempt by the board probing the assassination for failure to answer a summons. He obtained promises of protection from the board prior to giving his public testimony.

Ranas said he did not actually see Aquino shot.

"I saw three men going down the stairway, one in white and two on the sides," Ranas said. He later demonstrated how Aquino, who was clad in white, had his head slumped to the left after the first shot.

Military witnesses have said that Aquino, the chief political rival of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, was shot from behind with a single bullet by Rolando Galman, an alleged communist agent killed by soldiers at the scene.

Ranas was arrested Wednesday after the board cited him and three other Lanting employees for contempt. He said he came to board headquarters earlier but left because his attorney did not show up.

Ranas, whose his agency had been hired to guard cargo on the China Airlines plane that carried Aquino, testified that an unidentified man in plain clothes tried to stop him from approaching the aircraft.

But, said Ranas, he took three more steps, heard a shot ring out and advanced to see where it had come from. He said that within an instant, he saw Aquino being led down the last four stairs and saw people on the ground running about "in panic."

"All of the sudden I was in panic. I ran. I heard successive shots," said Ranas.

Pressed by the board's chairwoman, Corazon Agrava, to remember more, he said, "I really can't recall anything more."

As he testified, Ranas held tightly to the microphone.

Mrs. Agrava said Ranas would be assigned an aide to accompany him to classes at a marine school where he is studying.

"He's afraid some harm might fall to him," she said.

One other Lanting guard was scheduled to testify. The board said it was still trying to locate two others. A private attorney participating in the hearing, Raul Gonzales, said one guard has been missing since a week after the assassination.

The sister of Aquino's alleged assassin testified on Wednesday that a medical examiner told her family that Galman's autopsy report had been tampered with to make his time of death conform with that of the former senator's.

Marilyn Galman, 21, said the examiner who told her family about the autopsy tampering did not give his name. But she picked Dr. Bienvenido Munoz's photo from a folder of 32 pictures. He is a medical examiner with the National Bureau of Investigation, which performed the autopsies on Aquino and Galman.

Military lawyer Rodolfo Jimenez objected to Miss Galman's statement as hearsay evidence. But the board allowed the testimony on the understanding that it would be taken only as "a part of her narration" and not as truth.

Halted By Machines

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — It seemed like nothing was working in the state Assembly except the lobbyists.

After passing a few routine items in a voice vote, the lower house has forced to break early for lunch Wednesday as technicians labored to fix the electronic voting machine that tallies roll-call votes.

The machine, which registers votes on large boards on either side of the Assembly chamber and prints the results, was apparently ignoring the votes of a dozen or more legislators. Repairmen said they didn't know why.

A copying machine in the lobby was also out of order. Both devices were considered almost essential to debate on upcoming ground-water protection legislation, which was likely to involve dozens of proposed amendments, with close votes inevitable on many of them.

By the night session, both machines were in order again, except for lights on the voting machine beside the names of two representatives. Members decided to forge ahead with their work and simply use the old-fashioned method of oral voting until the lights are restored.

Meanwhile, the delay didn't bother lobbyists representing insurance companies, farm interests, paper mills, other industries and environmental groups — since it gave them more time to pitch their concerns to lawmakers.

Set Limits On Banking Delays

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — More than 400 New York banks and savings-and-loans must clear checks more quickly beginning today, the state Banking Board says.

The regulations — the first of their kind in the nation — set limits on check-clearing delays and eliminates the banks' "float" that can force customers to wait a week to withdraw funds they have deposited.

The rules, announced Wednesday, apply to individual accounts.

Deposits of between $100 and $2,500 drawn on local banks must be cleared within two days by commercial banks and three days by thrift institutions. Critics say banks were taking up to 10 days to credit accounts though they collected on the checks within 48 hours.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, struggling to stabilize after a three-session decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 27 points in the last three sessions, slipped another 1.46 to 1,142.17 by noontime today. Gainers and losers were evenly balanced among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said prices of many stocks had fallen to the point where they began to attract buyers looking for "bargains." But they said interest-rate worries continued to weigh down the market.

Concerns about the federal budget deficit have driven interest rates higher in the credit markets lately.

Today Martin Feldstein, economic advisor to President Reagan, said a declining dollar could exert further upward pressure on rates by discouraging foreign investors from buying U.S. debt securities.

Separately, the Conference Board, a business research organization, said its index of consumer confidence fell in February after five consecutive months of increases.

K mart rose 1/2 to 30 1/2. The company reported a strong earnings gain for the quarter ended Jan. 25.

The NYSE's composite index rose 11 to 89.20. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .24 at 207.31.

Volume on the Big Board came to 34.4 million shares at noontime, against 42.38 million at the same point Wednesday.

Armor-Piercing Bullets Assailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police groups urged Congress to ban armor-piercing handgun bullets, saying they have "no legitimate or practical uses."

Norman Darwick, executive director of the international association of police chiefs, said Wednesday in Senate Judiciary Committee testimony that not even law enforcement officials have any legitimate use for the ammunition.

Warren Cassidy, a National Rifle Association official, told the panel, however, that measures to ban the bullets "are nothing more than one more attempt to separate law abiding gun owners and the nation's sportsmen from their firearms and ammunition."

Wants Criminal Charges In Pitt Co. Chase Incident

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The mother of a 15-year-old boy allegedly assaulted by law enforcement officers following a Feb. 14 auto chase through Greenville says she will try to have criminal charges filed in the case.

Susan Gwin of Odenville, Ala., said in a telephone interview that "we are coming to file criminal charges next week... the first of the week hopefully."

"He (her son, James Gwin) had a bruised kidney, two black eyes and a hairline fracture (of his skull). If they would have fired them all, we would have pressed charges," Mrs. Gwin said.

Officials announced last week that a Pitt County sheriff's deputy had been suspended for 30 days and demoted, while two Greenville police officers had left the department — one by resignation and one by firing.

The three lawmen were among about a dozen involved in the chase, but neither Chief Ted Holmes nor Sheriff Ralph Tyson would say why the actions were taken.

The chase began 5 miles South of Chocowinity, when Highway Patrol Trooper Ronald Mills attempted to stop the car, which officers said was driven by juvenile Russell Toney. Later joined by members of the Pitt County sheriff's department and the Greenville police department, the chase led through Greenville, before the car was finally stopped at Winterville.

As a result of the chase, Toney was charged with a number of traffic violations. No charges were brought against Gwin.

Gwin, described by his mother as "an A and B student" with "sense enough not to try to fight the police," was a passenger in the car.

In fact, according to Mrs. Gwin, "my son was the one that actually stopped the car. He pulled the wheel, jerked it off the road and pulled the (emergency) brake up."

After the car was stopped, Mrs. Gwin said an officer "kicked a window out of my car," while another "stood on the hood with a gun pointed at these kids."

When Gwin got out of the car, his mother said, officers "kept beating him and telling him he was driving." Gwin's "ribs were badly bruised," as well as his chest, stomach and back, and there was "like a foot print on his back," she said.

Mrs. Gwin said it took 4 1/2 hours before officers took her son to the hospital for treatment after the beating, "and they sent me a bill for $57," she said.

In addition to criminal assault charges, Mrs. Gwin said the family intends to "file civil suits, too."

District Attorney Tom Haigwood, who requested the State Bureau of Investigation to investigate the alleged beating, said last week that charges would be sought in connection with the case if the Gwins chose to prosecute.

David Leech, the Gwin's Greenville attorney, confirmed the family's interest in seeking criminal charges in the case, but would not say who might be charged.

Leech said only that the Gwins would "testify before a magistrate."

legislative districts still will be held May 8.

There was bitter debate in the House whether the state should appeal the three-judge panel's ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court. But the proposal, offered as an amendment to a redistricting bill, was tabled 69-46.

Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, said the state could drop the appeal and remove the district plan from the court's jurisdiction.

"We're going to end up (today) with a redistricting plan everyone involved with can live with," Nesbitt said. "We'll live with that as long as that's the end of it."

But Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said he considered the three judges' ruling "a terrible setback for race relations" and said the state must appeal the ruling to clear its name.

Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, said the courts could use the ruling to require predominantly black districts in city or school board elections. He said the appeal is the only way to resolve the issue and avoid future problems.

The districts approved were: — Six single-member House districts in Wake County. There would be one district with 63 percent black voters and no more than one incumbent would be in each new district.

— Eight single-member House districts in Mecklenburg County. There would be two predominantly black districts and no incumbents would be competing in a district.

Rep. Phil Berry, D-Mecklenburg, tried to adjust his county's districts to boost black population in predominantly white districts but his efforts failed.

— Two single-member House districts that are predominantly black and a three-member, at-large district. There would be one incumbent per seat in each district.

— A single-member, predominantly black House district including voters from Nash, Edgecombe and Wilson counties. The remainder of the three-county district would elect three representatives.

Arrest 3 Youths In School Thefts

Three 16-year-old youths have been arrested by Pitt County deputies and charged with a breaking, entering and larceny reported Wednesday at Ayden-Grifton High School on N.C. 11, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said deputies charged Michael Dodd Stanley, Pinewood Trailer Park, Ayden; Bobby Jones Jr., Route 1, Box 300, Grifton, and Thomas A. Springer, 122 Niblick Drive, Grifton, with the break-in. Tyson said all three are students at the school.

Tyson said school officials reported that six scales used in the science laboratory were stolen in the incident. He said some of the scales, which had a total value of about $600, have been recovered.

Entrance to the facility was gained by breaking out a window, he said.

Investigating is continuing, Tyson said.

Pirates Hope 'Second Season' Lucky

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

HARRISONBURG, Va. — Three months of play go out the window tonight when four of the six ECAC-South members begin competition tonight in the league's post-season tournament vying for an automatic bid to the NCAA tourney.

George Mason, which drew fourth-seeding after finishing 5-5 in the league tied with James Madison, will play the hosting Dukes at 7 p.m. in the JMU Convocation Center, while number three seeded William and Mary, 6-4, meets the number six Pirates of East Carolina, 1-9 in the 9 p.m. contest.

Friday night, Richmond, 7-3 and the number one seed, takes on the Madison-Mason winner at 7 p.m., while the ECU-W&M winner meets number two Navy, 6-4, at 9 p.m. The championship will be decided on Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m.

For ECU and Coach Charlie Harrison the old adage that anything can happen in the tournament is one they hope will come true for them. During the past season, the Pirates won but four games, two of them in the season-openers. Just one of those, a home win over George Mason, came in the league. And none — not one victory — came away from Greenville's Minges Coliseum.

Add another never to that: the Pirates under Harrison have never beaten William & Mary in five previous games. The Indians won both regular season games last year and took a 48-45 victory in the tourney semifinals. This year, the Indians have taken 64-48 and 67-52 wins over the Pirates.

There's another never for the Pirates to: they've yet to win a game played in Harrisonburg.

It has been a year of frustration for the Pirates. They have set records for the most losses in a year and the most in a row. Currently they ride a nine-game losing streak, their last win coming over GMU at Minges on February 4, 70-68.

The biggest reason for the Pirate problems has been the fact that they are very, very young, possibly the youngest team in the country. ECU plays one senior, one sophomore and six freshmen most of the time.

The Pirates are capable of exploding at any time, and the league coaches apparently know it. Several were complimentary of East Carolina during the press luncheon Wednesday.

Lou Campanelli, James Madison: "Mason (first opponent) is tough, but so is everyone else. Some folks look at William & Mary and say they have it made, but not many teams play as hard and tough as East Carolina, despite the adversity they've been through this year."

Joe Harrington, George Mason: "The parity in this league is unbelievable. Even East Carolina. They beat us and no one has walked all over them."

Harrison believes his team has a chance. "It's a second season for everyone. The only thing is, it comes to an abrupt halt except for probably one team that will advance from the tournament to the NCAA's. I hope we can get off to a good start. If we start good we have had a tendency to play better in games this season. I just want to survive and advance."

"William & Mary is a veteran team. They have been through this before and know what to expect," Harrison added.

"I know ECU is capable of defeating anyone in this tournament," Barry Parkhill, the Indian coach said. "We are the ones who have to be totally prepared."

The Indians come into the game with a six game winning streak. "We are playing our best basketball of the season right now, and I think this is a good time for us to be playing in the tournament."

For Harrison and the Pirates, it's a case of nothing to lose and everything to gain. "We're just going to go out and have some fun at it," Harrison said.

East Carolina, in its press handouts for the tournament, listed the same starting lineup it has used for the last few weeks, including Tony Robinson and Curt Vanderhorst at guards, Jack Turnbull at center, and Derrick Battle and Keith Sledge at forwards.

However, there was some speculation that William Grady might start in place of Sledge. Grady has scored in double figures in six of the last seven games. Vanderhorst, a 6-1 sophomore, is the leading scorer with an 11.5 average. Grady, a 6-2 freshman, is next at 7.7, followed by Robinson, a 6-1 senior, at 6.7.

Battle, a 6-6 freshman, averages 6.3, followed by Sledge, a 6-3 freshman, at 4.9. Turnbull, a 6-9 freshman, averages 3.2.

The Indians can be expected to start Kevin Richardson and Gary Bland at forwards, Herb Harris at center and Keith Cieplicki and Tony Traver at the guards.

Cieplicki is the leading scorer for the Indians with a 15.7 average, while Richardson has a 10.9 mark. Traver is just outside double figures at 9.7, followed by Bland at 9.5 and Harris at 6.4. Richardson is the leading rebounder at 6.3.

If there has been a fatal factor for the Pirates this year in the ECAC-South, it has been the foul line. In 10 ECAC-South games, ECU outshot its opponents by seven field goals, but the Pirates shot 150 fewer free throws, 289-139, hitting 128 less, 216-88. ECU averaged 25 fouls a game in the series, as compared to 16 for the opponents.

Against William and Mary, the Pirates were outscored in both categories. They were outthru from the floor by seven field goals and made only eight of 12 free throws in the two games, as compared to 25 of 40. ECU did not shoot a free throw at all in the Williamsburg game.

Against Navy, ECU's potential second round foe, the Pirates held a four-field goal advantage, but lost the battle at the line 23-of-32 to 59-of-82.

At any rate, tempo control will be a big factor in the game. The Indians style is to grab an early lead and control the tempo to force the other team to come and get the ball.

The Indians play very tough when they have the lead, while for the Pirates the job is to get the early lead and force the Indians to play ECU's brand of ball.

Otherwise, the equipment can be packed up, and the coaches can go recruiting Friday morning.

Col. E. R. Bradley twice had horses finish 1-2 in the Kentucky Derby — Behave Yourself and Black Servant in 1921 and Bubbling Over and Baganbaggage in 1926.

Mason Lands Two On All ECAC-South

HARRISONBURG, Va. — George Mason University, which finished the regular season in a tie for fourth place in the ECAC-South, landed two players on the all-conference team and its coach was named Co-Coach of the Year.

Carlos Yates, who led the league in scoring with a 22.0 average, was one of two Patriots named to the team, as picked by the league's six coaches. Coaches were unable to vote for people from their own school.

Richmond's John Newman was named as the league's Player of the Year.

Dick Tarrant, the Spiders' coach, shared the coaching honors with GMU's Joe Harrington.

Newman, a sophomore who was selected as Rookie of the Year last season, was the number two scorer in the league this year with a 21.4 average. He was also the number five rebounder at 6.2.

Along with those two in the front court was Navy's Vernon Butler. Butler led the league in rebounding with an 8.9 average.

In the backcourt were William & Mary's Keith Cieplicki and Mason's Ricky Wilson, Wilson was the league's number three scorer at 15.8, while Cieplicki was next at 15.7. Cieplicki also led the league in free throw percentage with an 87.8

mark. Picked as the Rokie of the Year was Navy backup center David Robinson, who led the league in field goal percentage with a 63.3 mark.

Tarrant, who guided the Spiders to first place in the regular season, saw his team go 18-9 overall and 7-3 in the league after being picked to finish last or next-to-last in the conference in most pre-season polls.

Harrington's Mason club posted a 21-6 record, its best ever, but was only 5-5 in league play.

The league lists no second team all-conference, but others in the backcourt receiving votes were Kelvin Johnson of Richmond, Rob Romaine of Navy and Derek Steele of James Madison, while Bill Flye of Richmond, Cliff Maurer of Navy and Rob Rose of Mason also received votes.

Cieplicki, Steele and Yates received votes for Player of the Year, while Eric Brent of Madison, William Grady of East Carolina and John Newman of Madison also got rookie votes.

Paul Evans of Navy, who led Navy to a 23-7 record and a 6-4 league mark, and Charlie Harrison of ECU, whose Pirates were 4-23, each received votes for Coach of the Year.

The ECAC-South's post-season tournament begins tonight at JMU's Convocation Center in Harrisonburg.

Olympians Granted Request On Imports

LOS ANGELES (AP) — French and Australian Olympic athletes can have wine and beer during the Summer Games as part of their training regimen, according to United States Olympic officials who granted the request.

The two countries were granted permission to bring their favorite alcoholic beverages by the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee as part of the Games' traditional concession to foreign cultures.

According to Anita DeFrance,

LAOOC associate vice president of the Olympic villages, France and Australia were the first to make the requests.

"Some teams do use beer and wine for training purposes. While we don't share that custom, we would be remiss if we did not allow them to provide for their needs during final preparations," said DeFrance.

Athletes participating in the more strenuous sports burn great amounts of carbohydrates.

Heels, State Head Tournney Lineup

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO — Top-ranked North Carolina, without a scratch in conference play, and North Carolina State, its hopes of defending the NCAA championship in jeopardy, headline the 31st Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament that opens Friday.

The top-seeded Tar Heels, 26-1, needed two overtimes to defeat Duke 96-83 in the season finale, but the victory gave coach Dean Smith his first undefeated ACC schedule and marked the first time a league team went unbeaten since N.C. State did it in 1974.

Clemson, seeded eighth, is 14-13 and was beaten twice by the Tar Heels in the regular season. The Tigers, 3-11 in conference action, are Smith's first concern, and the two teams meet at 12 noon.

"I know (former Wolfpack coach)

Everett Case always said the toughest thing to do in basketball was beat an opponent three times in one season," Smith said. "To win the championship, we would have to do that three times in three days."

N.C. State, 4-10 in the ACC, surprised many by winning 10 of its first 12 games. When the Wolfpack entered the conference schedule, however, it lost five straight before beating Wake Forest as part of a nine-game winning streak.

Now the Wolfpack is in the middle of a five-game slide, including a loss to No. 14 Maryland, the team it will face at 7 p.m. Coach Jim Valvano is hopeful the next three days can change the trend, just as it did last year when the tournament launched his team toward the national title.

"The ACC tournament more than anything is defined in one word — hope," Valvano said. "Everybody still has the hope of getting hot. In three days, you can become tournament champion."

Valvano has maintained throughout that 20 victories would ensure his team's return to the NCAA tournament. With the team stuck at 19, this weekend in Greensboro is a matter of life or death.

"We will have to win a lot of games to get a bid right now," he said.

Junior forward Lorenzo Charles, hero of last year's national championship has been the mainstay of the Wolfpack attack, although he has been hampered lately by opponents who double-team his every move.

Four more teams are hopeful of NCAA consideration. The second-seeded Terrapins, based on Valvano's theory, have a good shot at getting a bid because of their 20-7 record. They also have two regular-season triumphs over the Wolfpack, which enters the tournament as the seventh-place team.

"It's been 14 years and we never have won this thing," Driesell said. "Twice the tournament has been in Maryland's backyard — the Capital Centre in Landover — but the Terrapins failed to capture the title. The Terrapins were 9-5 in the conference this year."

"A lot of people think it bugs me, but it doesn't," Driesell said. "Naturally, I'd like to win one. "But if we don't, it won't be the first one we ever lost."

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski thinks his 22-8 Blue Devils, ranked 16th this week and seeded fourth, should get an NCAA bid, while Georgia Tech, 18-9 and the No. 5 seed, also has post-season ambitions. Those teams meet at 2 p.m. "Of course, regardless of who we play, it's going to be a tough game," Cremins said. "It would have been a difficult game anyway."

No. 19 Wake Forest and Virginia close the first-round action with a 9 p.m. start. The Demon Deacons are 20-7 and 7-7 and are looking for their fourth trip to the NCAA tourney under coach Carl Tacy.

Tacy thinks the tournament takes on even greater importance because of the number of teams vying for a post-season berth.

"With the records of some of the teams, they certainly feel if they win a couple of games, it would ensure their chances for a bid," Tacy said. "Those with 20 victories, to get a win or two, would certainly be helpful in getting a bye."

Wake Forest and Virginia, 17-10 and 6-8, split their two meetings, with the Cavaliers taking a 65-61 victory in Charlottesville on Feb. 29. Tacy would like to use that setback to his advantage.

"The fact that we just lost to Virginia ... should motivate our players to be a little bit more prepared for them than some of the other team," Tacy said. "If we can ... do some damage against their zone, then our chances are pretty good."

Cavalier senior guard Othell Wilson would like to get his team into the NCAA and thinks the pairings have worked out to his team's advantage.

"Actually, it turned out to be a blessing in disguise," Wilson said. "We ended up in a bracket with teams we're capable of beating. We're opposite Carolina, so if we meet them it will be in the finals."

76ers End Slump On Trip Out West

By The Associated Press

After winning three out of four games on their West Coast road trip, the Philadelphia 76ers believe they may be coming out of the doldrums.

"If we can go 3-1 on the road, we should be able to play much better at home," Julius Erving said after the defending National Basketball Association champions beat the Los Angeles Lakers 113-105 Wednesday night. "A lot of it should carry over."

"I thought it was a good win for us," guard Andrew Toney said. "We've been struggling and maybe now we'll get out of this rut we're in."

"Before the game, I had a very good feeling and mentioned it to the players. It came true," added Coach Billy Cunningham, who has seen the 76ers fall 9½ games behind the Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division. "We played exceptionally well. We are together as a ball club. Everyone is going in the right direction."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Detroit 107, Atlanta 93; Boston 117, Utah 106; New Jersey 106, Milwaukee 100; Dallas 115, Cleveland 103; Phoenix 123, Houston 110 and San Diego 114, Indiana 110.

Erving hit 12 of 18 shots and scored nine of his 28 points in the last five minutes as the 76ers avenged a 101-99 loss to the Lakers in Philadelphia nine days ago. Thirty-six-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had a game-high 29 points for the Lakers.

"Doc (Erving) just keeps going and going," Cunningham said. "I put him and Kareem in the same category. They are both phenomenal. I think this is the biggest win of the season for us. It was that important."

The Lakers had only one lead in the game, at 54-53 late in the first half. But they rallied to cut a seven-point margin to 84-82 at the end of the third quarter.

Philadelphia pulled back ahead 93-84 in the opening minutes of the final period, but Los Angeles cut the deficit to 101-95 before Erving took over down the stretch.

Michael Cooper had four three-point goals and finished with 20 points for Los Angeles, while Moses Malone backed Erving with 22 points.

"It was a highly competitive game between two highly competitive teams," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "We played well until the last three minutes. But we have to give Philadelphia credit, especially their defense."

Nets 106, Bucks 110

Albert King scored 12 of his team-high 20 points in the fourth quarter as New Jersey won at Milwaukee to extend its winning streak to seven games.

After King's jumper with 7:14 left gave the Nets a 94-87 lead, the Bucks could get no closer than three points.

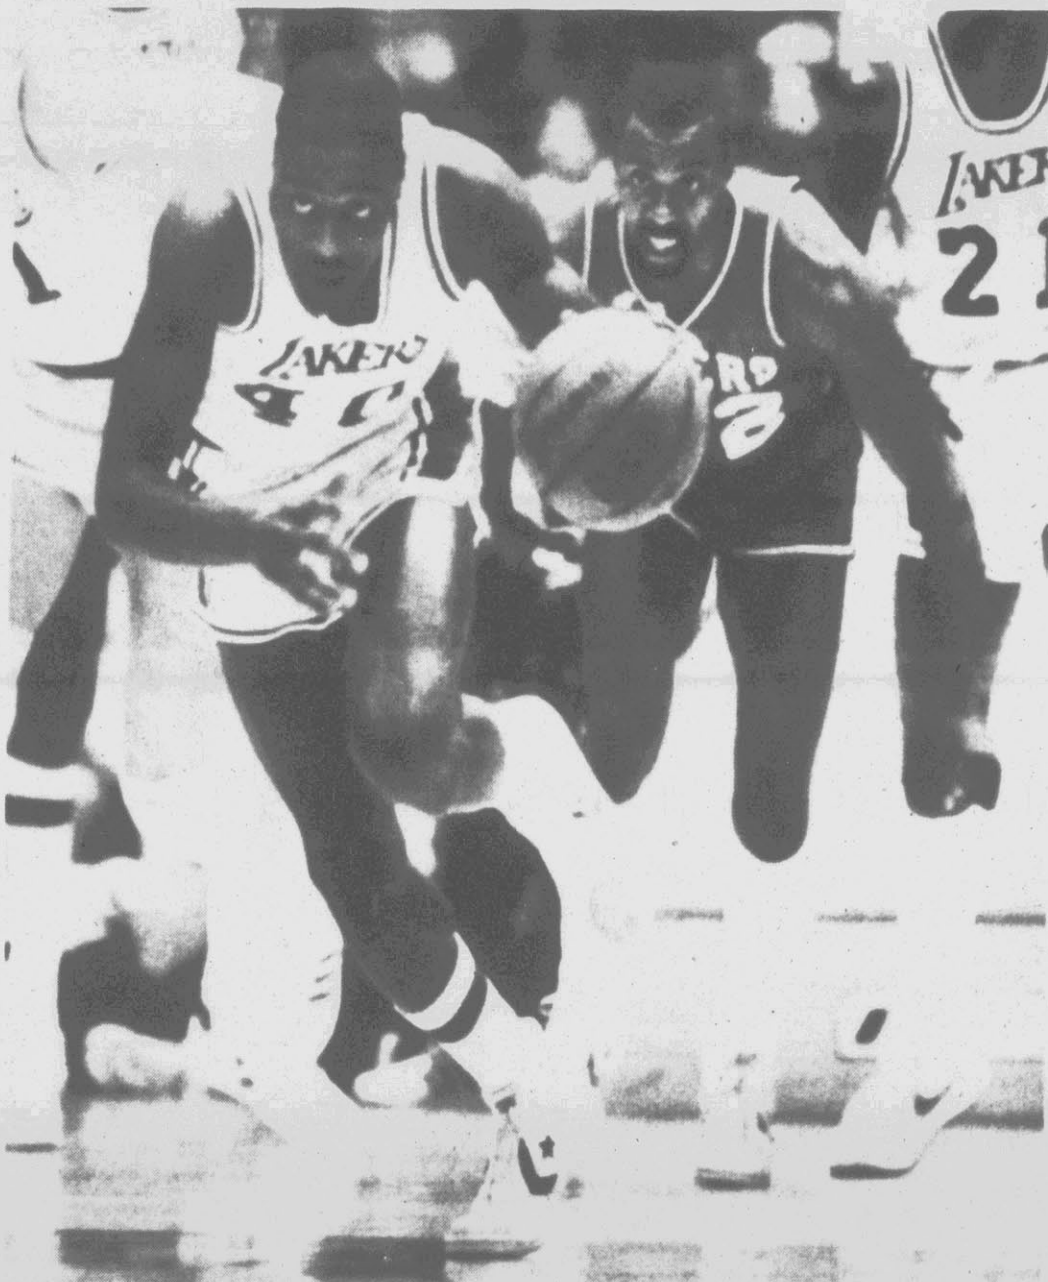

Bob Lanier led the Bucks with 24 points.

Celtics 117, Jazz 106

Boston rolled over visiting Utah as Larry Bird had 26 points, 14 rebounds and nine assists one day after missing another game with a stiff back.

The Celtics increased a one-point halftime lead to 72-62 with a 13-4 spurt at the start of the third quarter. The Jazz, who got 27 points from John Drew, got no closer than three points the rest of the way.

Utah played the game without the NBA's leading scorer, Adrian Dantley, who had a death in the family.

Bean Enjoys Home Event

MIAMI (AP) — It's something of a homecoming — a very happy homecoming — for Andy Bean this week.

"I'm looking forward to it," Bean said before teeing off today in the first round of the $400,000 Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament.

He came into this event as a playoff loser in last week's Honda Classic on the new Tournament Players' Club at Eagle Trace. He admitted to disappointment but found an ample measure of consolation.

"The best thing about it is that it was not the kind of golf course that I play well. And I did play well. That's encouraging."

"I'm getting back to playing good again, playing like I feel I should be playing. I feel like I might be around for a while."

"I feel good about my game at this point. And I'm getting to some courses that I play well."

And the record certainly supports that assessment. The Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club has been his most productive hunting ground. He scored the first victory of his professional career on the water-dotted course in 1977 and acquired his most recent PGA Tour title here two years ago. And next week he goes to Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill course, where he holds the 72-hole scoring record, set in his run-away victory in 1981.

That history of success and his strong performance last week marked him as one of the logical contenders in 144-man field that is chasing a $72,000 first prize.

Chief among them is his former college teammate at the University of Florida, Gary Koch. Koch is the defending titleholder, winner of the San Diego Open earlier this season and currently is playing some of the best golf of his life. In six previous starts this season, he has been ninth or better four times.

Other major figures include frequent Doral winners Jack Nicklaus and Ray Floyd, along with PGA titleholder Hal Sutton, Hale Irwin, leading money-winner Jack Renner, Lietzke and Lee Trevino.

CBS will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Middle Of NCAA Field Lost In Shuffle

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

When you start to watch the NCAA basketball tournament on television later this month, remember to watch poor Temple.

Or poor Tulsa, or poor Texas-El Paso, or Virginia Commonwealth or Alabama-Birmingham or some other first-rate teams that even with the glut of televised college basketball have fallen through the cracks of the network contracts that bring us the North Carolina-Kentucky-Georgetown-Louisville-DePaul-Houston-Notre Dame Game of the Week.

There's little room for basketball's middle echelons — teams like 15th-ranked Temple — on television these days unless they play in a big conference that worked out big-money contracts with the networks that guarantee them appearances.

Temple, with an outstanding basketball tradition featuring two outstanding players in Terence Stansbury and Granger Hall, plays in the Atlantic 10. It's a league with respectable basketball names (St. Bonaventure, West Virginia, Rutgers, St. Joseph's) but little television exposure — a kind of third tuba in the Northeast to the all-powerful Big East's first violin.

In fact, TVS had to cut back on its $1 million contract for four games a week with the league earlier this season because the packagers couldn't sell it to enough stations in the league's four state-area. And this week's tournament won't be televised anywhere, except perhaps for one game on West Virginia's Moutaineer Sports Network.

The Atlantic 10's main problem is the Big East, a conference put together for television — it covers five of the nation's top ten television markets. It has used its exposure and the money gained therefrom to recruit stars and build national powers to generate more exposure and more money to continue the cycle.

In its third year, it had three of the NCAA tournament's final eight teams; in its fourth year, four of the final 16. And in this, its fifth season, even with the caliber of play down a bit, it's reaping the benefits — it's on the first year of a three-year, $15 million TV contract.

There are similar situations around the nation, with respectable conferences like the Missouri Valley, the Pacific Coast, the Sun Belt, the Western Athletic Conference and several others caught in the shadows of television contracts negotiated several years ago by the biggies — the Atlantic Coast, the Southeast, Big Ten, the Pac-10, the Big Eight and the Metro. Plus some major independents like Notre Dame and DePaul who get made-for-television weekend matchups with the best of the conferences.

So the Temples and other powers-come-lately are lost unless a network really jugglers its schedule and maneuvers for special time spots, as NBC did in 1979, when it managed to get Indiana State and Larry Bird into its regular-season schedule at the last minute.

"It's hard," concedes NBC spokesman Tom Merritt. "The way things are you have to make commitments years ahead of time. When a team's not part of a major conference schedule, it's hard to squeeze them in."

"About the only time we can get in a team like Temple," says ESPN's Chris LaPlaca, "is when they play a team like Notre Dame or DePaul."

But Temple, limited to the Philadelphia-area Prism cable this season while neighboring Villanova (Big East) was all over the networks, is preparing for the last laugh. Such Philadelphia teams as St. Joseph's (over DePaul two years ago) and Penn (over North Carolina in 1979) have been among the Alabama-Birmingham, Tennessee-Chattanooga and Fullerton States who have regularly wreaked havoc in the NCAA tournament has it has expanded.

"Conferences like the Big East, the ACC, the Big Ten, the Pac-10, they've really built up a following on television over the years, and we kind of play in their shadow," says Jim Maloney, a Temple assistant coach. "They get the publicity, so they get the rankings."

"But we don't worry too much about that. We play to get into the NAAs. That's where the final rankings are decided."

Rumors Of Move 'Not True'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The mayor of Indianapolis says reports of a deal being reached to bring the Baltimore Colts to Indianapolis are "absolutely not true."

Mayor William H. Hudnut also said, when asked if a contract agreement between the Colts and Indianapolis representatives was imminent. "No comment."

"No deal has been reached," he said in an interview Wednesday before addressing a church meeting. "I wish I could say more, but I can't. However, reports that an agreement has been reached to move Baltimore here are absolutely not true."

Hudnut said that before a deal could be finalized, it would have to be approved by the city's Capital Improvement Board which is responsible for operating the new $80 million Hoosier Dome the National Football League team would use.

of the meeting at least 48 hours ahead of time," Hudnut said.

Meanwhile, Maryland Gov. Harry Hughes said late Wednesday he expects the state to be able to offer Colts owner Robert Irsay a privately subsidized, $15 million loan within 24 hours. Hughes said the state was also putting together a package that would relieve Irsay of the financial burden of operating a training center north of Baltimore.

"The Baltimore Colts should stay in Baltimore. They're quite a tradition. Indianapolis Colts just doesn't sound right," Hughes said.

In Indianapolis, the Capital Improvements Board scheduled a meeting Friday, but the Colts topic was not listed on the agenda.

"Because it is not on the agenda, unless the agenda can be amended, I do not think we can act on it," board president P.E. McAllister said.

Indiana Central University Vice

President Lynn Youngblood and athletic director Bill Bright said the school had been approached regarding use of university facilities by the Colts.

"We have had conversations with city officials to determine whether we would be interested should it come to that," Youngblood said.

Indianapolis banker Frank

McKinney confirmed Wednesday he talked with Irsay last week about a loan.

"We talked for several hours last week on Monday and again on Tuesday, at which time we made him a loan proposition," said McKinney, board chairman of American Fletcher National Bank. "We haven't talked since then."

Time Running Out On Bulldogs

By The Associated Press
If the Georgia Bulldogs want to stage another miracle run to the Final Four, they'll have to get started soon.
Georgia struggled to subdue another set of Southeastern Conference Bulldogs Wednesday night, overcoming a five-point deficit in the second half to beat Mississippi State 52-49 in the opening round of the conference tournament in Nashville, Tenn. Next up for 17-11 Georgia is third-ranked Kentucky tonight.

Last year, the Bulldogs used their surprising run to the SEC tournament championship as a springboard to the Final Four. But their shaky effort against 9-19 Mississippi State made them look like an even bigger longshot this year.
"This was one of the poorest games we've played in which we won," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham. "State deserves credit for making us play poorly."

Following a sloppy first half, Durham laced into his team in the dressing room.
"We were trying to get them fired up," he said. "We felt we didn't play as well as we are capable of playing. But we won the game. We had 11 worse than that."
Georgia hit 16 of 20 free throws and put away Mississippi State behind reserves Horace McMillan and Donald Hartry, who replaced ineffective stars Vern Fleming and James Banks.

The game was filled with mistakes by both teams — State had 20 turnovers and shot only 47 percent and Georgia had 18 turnovers and shot 44 percent.
"Georgia has a lot of firepower around the perimeter against the zone, and we had to go to the zone when we got into foul trouble," State Coach Bob Boyd said. "This was a factor."
In the other SEC opener, Vanderbilt belted Mississippi 77-57 behind Phil Cox's 14 points. Vanderbilt meets Auburn today, while Florida faces Tennessee and Louisiana State takes on Alabama.
In other tournament action Wednesday, Colorado, which didn't win a regular-season Big Eight game, upended Iowa State 65-62, and Tom Alfaro hit a 20-foot jump shot with three seconds left to lift Kansas State to a 41-39 decision over Nebraska.

Kansas State plays Kansas and Colorado opposes top-seeded Oklahoma, the sixth-ranked team in the country, in the semifinals Friday night in Kansas City.
In the Western Athletic Conference quarterfinals, it was Wyoming 40, Colorado State 36 and New Mexico over Utah 56-45. Wyoming plays No. 9 Texas-El Paso, the regular-season champion, and New Mexico goes against Brigham Young Friday night.
In the Big East's qualifying game, Providence rode a conference record 20 rebounds and 19 points by Otis Thorpe to a 59-55 victory over Seton Hall. The Friars take on second-ranked Georgetown, the No. 1 seed in the tourney, tonight, while St. John's plays Boston College. Today it was Syracuse-Connecticut and Villanova-Pittsburgh.
In the Atlantic 10, Massachusetts ripped Rhode Island 69-67 on Carl Smith's two free throws with four seconds left, and St. Bonaventure ripped Penn State 71-57.

Today's quarterfinals saw No. 15 Temple against Massachusetts, St. Bonaventure vs. St. Joseph's, Duquesne vs. George Washington and host West Virginia against Rutgers.
A regular-season Big Ten game had Michigan beating Iowa 53-46 as Roy Tarpley scored 17 points.
In other tournament action today, the Metro begins at Memphis, Tenn., with No. 18 Louisville playing Cincinnati, Virginia Tech vs. Tulane.

Jockey Angel Cordero Jr. had a tremendous year in 1982, winning the Eclipse Award as top jockey and setting a record of $9,702,520 in purses for his mounts.

Midget Champs

The Pirates won the Midget League basketball championship recently in the Greenville Recreation and Parks competition. Members of the team were: (bottom, L-R) Drew Johnson, Chris Bland, John Carawan, Abram Long; (top) William Gibbs, Colin Merritt, Gregory Jones, Fy Fidding, and Coach John Felton.

Eisenreich Making Trouble For Opponent's Pitchers

By The Associated Press
Outfielder Jim Eisenreich will soon be giving American League pitchers problems if he can carry on like he did in his latest spring training appearance.
Eisenreich, who twice has quit the Minnesota Twins because of a nervous disorder, pounded a triple, double and two singles in four at-bats Wednesday leading his team to a 7-0 exhibition victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.
"I wasn't nervous — I felt like I always do," said Eisenreich, who had refused to speak to reporters before the Twins' pre-season opener. "I didn't feel anything different. I was seeing the ball pretty good and hitting like I always did."
"Eisenreich definitely played well," Minnesota manager Billy Gardner said. "He really broke out today."
Gardner was equally impressed with pitchers Mike Smithson, Pete Filson, Brad Havens and Rick Lysander, who scattered five hits, struck out nine and walked only one batter.
"The pitching was outstanding," said Gardner, whose staff was the worst in the AL last year. "We didn't walk people. We challenged hitters and didn't pitch from behind and that shows up in the course of a ballgame. For the first game, I'm really impressed."
Barry Evans had three RBI and Jeff Reed, Mickey Hatcher and Alvaro Espinoza rapped out two hits apiece for the Twins.
Elsewhere in exhibition action:
Pat Tabler drove in four runs, including three with a double in a six-run fifth inning, as Cleveland routed California 11-1. Rick Sutcliffe, Neal Heaton and George Frazier combined on a three-hitter, with Heaton hurling three hitless innings.

Derrel Thomas, newly acquired free agent for Montreal, hit a two-out pinch-single in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Expos a 2-1 victory over his former team, the Los Angeles Dodgers.
Ron Kittle and Greg Walker had three hits and two RBI apiece as the Chicago White Sox mauled the Detroit Tigers 9-3.
Tito Landrum had two hits, drove in one run and set up another as the Baltimore Orioles topped Texas 2-1.
Jerry Mumphrey, Dickie Thon and Ray Knight each drove in two runs as the Houston Astros defeated the Cincinnati Reds 9-3.
Don Baylor singled in the only run of the game in the eighth inning and Clay Christiansen preserved the shutout by striking out the side following two Atlanta hits in the ninth as the New York Yankees edged the Braves 1-0.
Lee Lacy of Pittsburgh drilled a two-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning as the Pirates nipped the New York Mets 4-3.
Ricky Nelson's two-run triple highlighted a five-run seventh inning for the Seattle Mariners, who went on to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers 9-3.
Another group of Brewers beat a split squad of Oakland A's 6-1 as Moose Haas pitched three perfect innings, Cecil Cooper homered and Dion James hit three singles.
The rest of the A's beat the Chicago Cubs 7-5 as Mitchell Page and Bruce Robinson collected three hits apiece and free-agent acquisition Lary Sorensen allowed only two hits in three innings for the victory.
Bobby Brown knocked in five runs with a two-run single in the second inning and a three-run homer in the sixth as the San Diego Padres beat the San Francisco Giants 9-7.

Marty Barrett tied the score 7-7 with a two-run homer in the seventh inning and Lee Graham broke the deadlock with a leadoff blast in the eighth to lift Boston to a 10-7 triumph over St. Louis. Jeff Newman also had a homer for the Red Sox, while Jackie Gutierrez lined two triples.
A first-inning groundout by Pat Sheridan provided the only run of the game and three Kansas City pitchers scattered seven hits as the Royals beat Philadelphia 1-0.

Taste For Salad Dressing Put The Pup Under Glass

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — They say curiosity killed the cat, but it was an appetite for salad dressing that nearly did in a Carlsbad pooch — and it took the dogged efforts of several pup's best friends to bring a happy ending to a jarring situation.

It all started when Sharon Keyer arrived home from work recently to be greeted by "this horrible moaning, crying and yelping" from the cupboard.

There she found her 8-week-old German shepherd, Sierra, wearing a glass jar like a space helmet. Her head had become stuck after trying to lap up salad dressing in the nearly empty jar.

"After I had a laugh for about five minutes, I began to realize it wasn't so funny," because the dog's head was stuck tight and she seemed to be running out of air, Mrs. Keyer said.

She called her husband, Chuck, host of a live community forum radio show that invites calls from listeners. He was on the air, and his wife's call informed him and the listening audience of the problem.

Helpful — and not so helpful — calls came pouring in:

"Put soap and water around the edge of the jar."

"Break the glass."

"Jerk the jar off as hard as you can."

"Take the puppy to the veterinarian."

Mrs. Keyer was afraid the dog could be severely cut if the glass were broken, but she also could see by Sierra's panting that she was running out of air — and time. So she grabbed the pup-under-glass, ran to her car and drove toward the Carlsbad Fire Department.

On the way she saw a friend and flagged him down. Even with his help, the jar remained stuck.

Then she spotted a fire truck and waved it down.

"The fireman was beside himself" — first with laughter, then with concern, she said.

He told her to put puppy and jar on the sidewalk, pulled out his pocket knife and began cautiously tap-tapping to coax the glass off its furry captive.

"The puppy yowled and put her paws over the jar as though to protect her ears," Mrs. Keyer said.

By now, the pup was visibly having trouble breathing.

At last Mrs. Keyer noticed a glass company around the corner, grabbed Sierra and dashed off.

Mauro Ortiz, a professional glasscutter, said everyone in the store was startled when the woman burst through the door with the dog.

But he acted quickly, using his tools to cut the bottom out of the jar so Sierra could breathe.

"We decided to give the puppy air first, then think about getting the jar off," Ortiz said.

Then off came the jar and out came a puppy that "took a big gasp of air," Mrs. Keyer said. "The first thing she wanted was a drink of water" from the store's drinking fountain.

Ortiz said it was the first time in his 20 years in the business he had ever faced such a problem. There was no charge for his work.

NOT INTERESTED — The world's first heart and liver transplant recipient, 6-year-old Stormie Jones of Cumby, Texas, seems unimpressed by the crush of reporters that attended a press conference at Pittsburgh Children's Hospital Wednesday. Stormie's doctor she is doing better than expected following the historic surgery, and if things go as hoped, Stormie may even be entering the first grade in September, but "we have a lot of ground to cover yet." Her Profession Is Teaching: Returns At 73

By Vivian Lail
Hickory Daily Record
 HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Mary L. Kiser, 73, has a good reason for wanting to teach.

"That's my profession," she said. "I think because of my experience and ... my education I could be of some value teaching children. I love children and what else would I do. I'm an educator."

That dedication to teaching has led Ms. Kiser to become a college student again in an effort to have her teaching certificate reinstated. And she is so confident of her abilities she has applied for a job with the Catawba County school system.

Ms. Kiser has been away from her profession since 1952, when she took time out to work on a dissertation as a graduate student. She left the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she studied and worked in the school of education, and returned home to Hickory.

Her father became seriously ill and died several years later, and Ms. Kiser remained in Hickory with her mother. But she did not discontinue her studies. After her mother's death last year, she decided to return to the classroom.

"I don't look forward to retirement," Ms. Kiser said. "I don't think retirement is good for all people. I think that people are happier and more useful to continue working all their lives, stopping for education or stopping for travel or whatever, but still keeping active." Ms. Kiser said she has studied anthropology "and I know that all over the world older people have a prominent place in the culture. They keep active. They work with small children and they keep the history of the culture intact to pass from generation to generation. So I lean that way, probably because of my studies in anthropology."

Ms. Kiser started teaching in 1931. She last taught in the mid-1950s at the University of North Carolina. She has taught in Greensboro, Pennsylvania, New York and the Panama Canal Zone.

She received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and a master's degree from Columbia University in New York.

She visited Peru in 1952 to study that country's culture, art and history.

Since leaving the teaching profession, she has been a private tutor to children who have had difficulties in their studies and advanced pupils who wanted a more in-depth education.

Ms. Kiser's most recent pursuit of education has been in a familiar atmosphere at Lenoir-Rhyne College.

Her father was treasurer and business manager of the college and her mother was a student there.

In 1913, when she was 3, the family lived in Highland Hall on the campus. The building, a residence hall at the time, now houses college offices. A photograph at the college shows the faculty and students, plus Ms. Kiser, then 3, with her parents.

Looking at the picture, Ms. Kiser recalled the day Old Main, which contained classrooms, library and administrative offices, burned in 1927. The family was living near the college at the time.

She said she "saw light all about," and heard the bell fall from the steeple as the building burned.

Ms. Kiser is now back at Lenoir-Rhyne, completing the courses needed so her teaching certificate will be reinstated.

This semester she is taking a course on exceptional children. As part of that course, she has visited schools to observe classes for handicapped children.

Teaching remains Ms. Kiser's primary interest — but not her only one.

She became interested in nursing while caring for her mother. She completed a nursing assistant's certificate program at Catawba Valley Technical College last summer and did her clinical work at Glenn R. Frye Memorial Hospital.

She said she would like to work full time as a nursing assistant in a hospital until she gets a teaching position.

She also completed a first-aid course at CVTC.

"Many, many teachers can't wait to retire," she said, "but I don't welcome retirement. It's not a happy state for me as it is for many people."

Ms. Kiser doesn't think her age would be a handicap in the classroom.

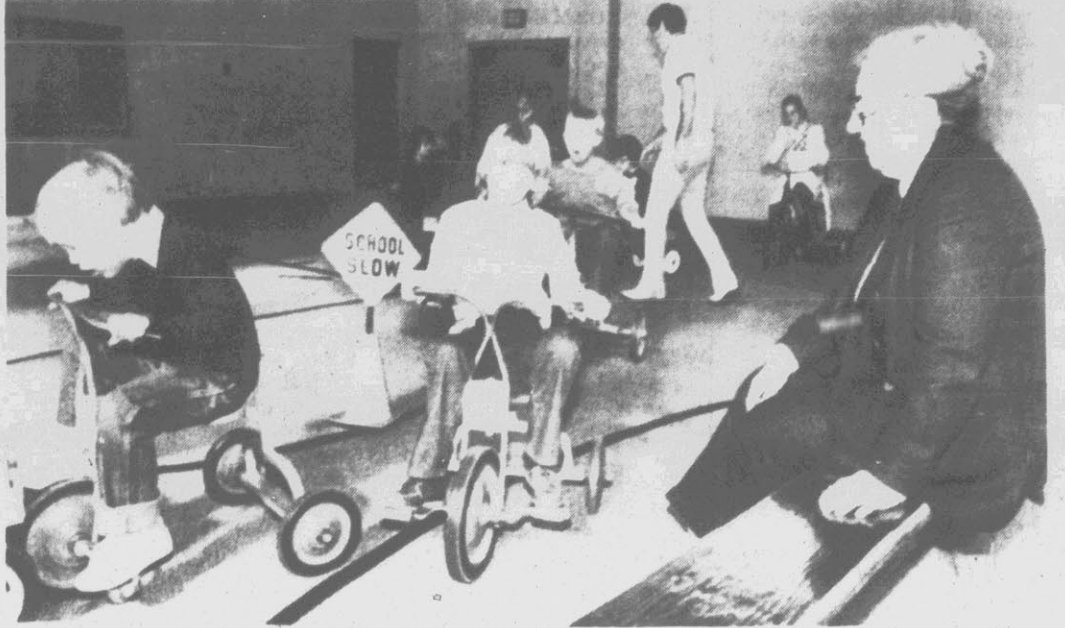

"I'm better able to teach right now and would be of more value to my students than I ever have been in my life because I have done more reading and research," she said. "I feel that I have a perspective that I didn't have before."

Ms. Kiser said she has been surprised in recent years to hear teachers do not receive respect.

"That is something I have never known anywhere I have taught," she said. "Teachers were respected by the community and valued by students' parents."

And she does not like the term "quality education."

"That term is redundant. Education is quality and if it's not quality, it's just not education," she said. "Now when you're talking about excellence in education, you're getting close to the real problem."

Faircloth Cries 'Foul'

RALEIGH (AP) — A private version of D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth's driving record has been stolen from a state computer system and mailed across North Carolina, say aides to the Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

"Last Friday, an anonymous mailing was made from Fayetteville ... with information filled with innuendos, lies attacking the Faircloth family and including state-held private records about Lauch apparently stolen from a computer terminal at the Motor Vehicles Department," said Vic Bell, Faircloth's campaign chairman.

The DMV asked the State Bureau of Investigation to look into the matter, Bell said at a news conference Wednesday.

Faircloth, who didn't attend the news conference, later characterized the things said about his family in the mailing as "sleazy."

He said he didn't know who was responsible, but Bell said: "I would have to suppose that it was sent out by a supporter of an opponent."

Faircloth has been convicted of 32 traffic offenses, mostly speeding, over the past 28 years, public DMV records show.

"It's not a driving record that I'm proud of," said Faircloth. "I guess I tend to be impatient. I'm not the world's best automobile driver."

Bell said Faircloth's violations were of the "normal type" and were not embarrassing except for their frequency.

"Don't they provide a chauffeur for the governor?" asked Bell in jest. "I think we've got to get him elected to get him off the road."

Planes Collided in Bladen County

BUIES CREEK, N.C. (AP) — Two airplanes collided over White Lake in Bladen County, but authorities say no one was hurt and one of the planes apparently continued to its destination.

Harnett County Airport personnel said the downed plane belonged to Aero Contractors. Pilot Ken Wilson was the only passenger aboard when the plane touched down about 4:50 p.m. Wednesday, according to Det. William C. Wade of the Harnett County Sheriff's Department.

Wade said the collision occurred at around 4:40 p.m.

Wilson refused comment on the accident until an official of his company arrived on the scene, officials said.

"He said he didn't know that much about it. He just knew that another aircraft flew directly underneath him," Wade said. "No one is sure at this time what happened."

Airport spokesman Willis Pope said the right wing of the Beechcraft twin-engine prop, which contains the fuel tank, was damaged. A local fire department spread foam on the runway to prevent the fuel spill from spreading as well as reducing the threat of fire, Pope said.

Wade and a dispatcher at the Harnett County Sheriff's Department confirmed late Wednesday that the second plane continued on to Richmond, Va.

To Trump Coup Tommy, it seemed that 1984 was the year of the bad trump break. It was nearing the end of the first quarter and he was still a winner — the last time that had happened was in the early 1960s. Readers will recall that Tommy performs brilliantly on those hands where the average player would go down because of a poor trump division. On run of the mill hands Tommy usually finds a way to get to a hopeless contract or to bungle the play.

Tommy could hardly believe his good fortune when he picked up this South hand. It was music to his ears when his partner first opened the bidding and then later raised his suit. Tommy checked on aces and settled in the small slam.

West led a diamond. East rose with the ace and Tommy made his first fine play when he jettisoned his queen under the ace to make sure of an extra entry to dummy. He won the diamond return in hand and a lesser mortal might have led a trump to the ace and a trump back to the king — and so have ended up down one.

Not Tommy. He cashed the king of spades and ace of clubs, then crossed to the ace of spades. When West showed out Tommy became a giant at the table. He discarded a heart on the king of clubs, ruffed a club, crossed back to the board with the jack of diamonds and ruffed another club. These plays had reduced his trumps to the same length as East's.

Tommy cashed the king of hearts and entered dummy with a heart to the ace. All hands were now down to two cards, and the lead was on the table. Declarer led a heart and, whether East ruffed high or low, he could not score a trump trick, for Tommy would overruff and take the last trick with his remaining trump.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although you are mentally alive, alert and awake now, you still need to keep in mind that there are confusing conditions about you and you need to keep very much on your toes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be most careful in handling communications since the wrong word or figure could mean loss. Hit on the most sensible course of action.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some monetary situation does not seem to be on the up and up. Don't be jealous with the one you love, or you lose the upper hand.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Before dashing out on some personal pursuit, know what you really want. Don't get dragged into something you don't approve of.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Do not divulge anything confidential, or you can get into trouble. Avoid a confrontation with your loved one.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You may not feel right about some interest in which a friend is trying to get you involved. Steer clear of an argument.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find more efficient methods of operating for greater income. Not a good day to seek support from a bigwig.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have fine ideas but they need further study before you can put them into operation. New contacts may seem superficial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go over any questions about some account before doing anything. Your mate may be working some trick to get you away.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A partner, who is trying to make a contract with you, has the upper hand, so be careful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure of the work you have assigned to you. A fellow worker has a plan that is full of holes, so forget it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You feel that some amusement will relieve you from worries, but it could cost you more than you think.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't take anything for granted at home. Be sure of where you stand with kin. Demonstrate poise and charm with guests.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who will want to study everything twice or more to be sure that there are no flaws in it before buying. The nature is very idealistic and should have the benefit of courses in ethics and practical matters.

Disposal Of Dirt Requires Study

HUGHSON, Calif. (AP) — This story's really got the dirt on Hughson, and all it took was a little — well, perhaps more than a little — digging.

The digging started when the city built a retention basin at a park. The resulting dirt — all 9,000 cubic yards of it — had to go somewhere, so it was piled up and saved in case the city needed some dirt in a hurry.

But once word got out about the dirt, people began hauling it away for their own projects. Mayor Jack Parker thinks some 2,000 cubic yards have disappeared already.

"You know, if you go out and buy dirt, it costs you lots of money," Parker said. "As soon as you'd get rid of it, you'd find that you need it, and it costs about twice as much to get it back."

Councilman Dave Spears says he thinks it's all right for the community to use the dirt because a former city manager had told residents to take it to fill in low lots or drainage problems.

"Nine thousand cubic yards is a touch more than we'll ever use," he said.

But City Attorney John Stovall pointed out that the state Constitution says city property — even dirt — can't be given away.

Officials say more study is needed before they can decide how to clean up the issue.

The City has published its Annual Report for 1983. For a free copy, call the City Manager's Office at 752-4137.

AT&T Discloses Loss To Rivals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has disclosed its competitors in the long-distance business are siphoning off customers and revenues at an unexpectedly high rate.

The company told the Federal Communications Commission that 1983 ended up as "the first year in nearly four decades in which (AT&T domestic long-distance traffic) showed negative growth."

Long-distance revenues declined in 1983 to $15 billion compared to $15.6 billion in 1982, significantly below projections, AT&T said.

FTC Moves To Block A Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has moved to block a proposed merger between two giants of the recorded music industry, Warner Communications Inc. and PolyGram Records Inc.

The commission voted 4-1 this week to ask a U.S. District Court in California to block the scheduled March 12 merger. It said in a statement the plan of the two companies "may substantially lessen competition in the record and tape division of the music industry." The commission said six companies dominate the industry. Warner is the second largest and PolyGram the sixth, it said.

Union Overrules CBS Settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — The on-again, off-again strike threat against CBS News by 350 members of the Writers Guild of America may be on again after the union's executive council overruled a tentative settlement worked out by its negotiating committee.

Negotiations with CBS could resume as early as Friday, union official Mona Mangan said Wednesday. She said the Guild's negotiating committee will meet Thursday night to decide on a course of action.

The old contract expired March 1. A series of strike deadlines came and went while negotiations continued.

The executive council said the agreement made Tuesday was unacceptable because it reduced union jurisdiction on writing and graphic arts and allowed the network to hire temporary workers for indefinite terms.

'Two Marriages' Is Gently Funny

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ann Daley is pregnant and still at work as an engineer, her kids are confused, and her best friend, Nancy Armstrong, is angry and determined to change her life.

Don't be deterred by the conventional storyline. "Two Marriages" is back, and it's the same warmhearted, gently funny and pleasingly unhurried show that ABC introduced to critical acclaim, and pretty fair ratings, late last August.

The program demonstrated then, in a limited summer-replacement run, that television can dramatize the ordinary ups and downs of marriage and friendship with feeling and a sense of humor... and without resorting to exaggeration and aberrant behavior.

The two families, the Daleys and the Armstrongs, live across a tree-shaded street from one another in a small, unidentified town in Iowa. Jim Daley (Tom Mason) is a dairy farmer, Art Armstrong (Michael Murphy) a surgeon. Nancy (Janet Eilber) is a housewife.

These are not perfect people — Art, for instance, seems at times insensitive to Nancy's feelings — nor are they made-for-TV caricatures. And there is nothing inherently entertaining in their problems.

The difference with "Two Marriages" is the refreshingly honest approach; no exploitation here. The relationship with the audience is almost neighborly.

In tonight's episode, Nancy gives a baby shower for Ann (Karen Carlson), and begins to question her own role as a homemaker. Nancy's daughter, Shelby, played by an actress named Louanne, plainly admires Ann for her pursuit of "total personhood for the contemporary female," and that doesn't help.

Across the street, Willie Daley (Ian Fried) wants to know where babies come from and can't get a straight answer, while Scott (C. Thomas Howell), Ann's teen-age son from a previous marriage, knows... and is ashamed.

"You know, the bigger Ann gets, the more embarrassed Scott gets," Jim Daley tells his father and partner in the dairy (John McLiam). "I guess parents aren't supposed to have sex."

Nancy, meanwhile, decides to change her life. "Why," she wonders, "do I feel like I don't measure up?"

"You know what it is," a friend replies. "Wives and mothers get addicted to giving."

She won't drive the kids to school, won't pick up groceries for Ann, in fact, would rather not see her friend at all.

"I look at you," Nancy tells Ann, "and I see where I should be. It's a constant reminder, and it isn't very reassuring."

The solutions are a bit startling — for television — in their simplicity.

Jim brings home a book on birth and babies to read to Willie, Scott invites his new girlfriend, Kate (Melora Hardin), home for dinner,

Italy Argues Over Big TV Contract

By JOHN WINN MILLER
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Raffaella Carra's $2.8 million contract to sing, dance and give advice on state-run television has sparked an uproar in Italy,

3 'Doves' To Singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sandi Patti carried away three awards, including female vocalist of the year and artist of the year, at the 15th annual Gospel Music Association's Dove Awards.

Miss Patti's third Dove came for "More Than Wonderful," chosen inspirational gospel music album of the year.

Glen Campbell hosted the show Wednesday night attended by about 3,000 at the Tennessee Performing Arts Center in Nashville. Awards were given in 16 categories.

Russ Taff was named gospel male vocalist of the year, while Lanny Wolfe received a song of the year Dove for "More Than Wonderful."

Wolfe also was honored as gospel songwriter of the year.

Debbie Boone, whose father, Pat, attended the ceremonies, received the gospel music album of the year by a secular artist award for her record "Surrender."

"I really didn't expect it because there were quite a few nominees," Miss Boone said. "It's an encouragement to me because of the new direction that I'm going. I'm doing primarily gospel music now."

The Imperials' "Side by Side" was named contemporary gospel music album of the year.

FILES SUIT — Singer Neil Diamond has filed an unusual suit against Columbia Records aimed at forcing the company to release his latest album. Columbia won't let the album out because it's not considered "commercial enough," a spokesman for the 43-year-old Diamond says. (AP Laserphoto) and she's perfectly at ease in the company of a pregnant woman, and Ann and Nancy have a talk:

"I can deal with construction workers," Ann says, "but I can't deal with sleeping bags and frogs."

Everyone seems satisfied, with the possible exception of Shelby. "Now I'm really confused about my future womanhood," she says.

where the government is implementing an austerity program.

Parliament heatedly debated the contract, which made Ms. Carra, a former ballerina, the highest-paid performer on state television. Workers at the television station picketed her studio in protest. Then Premier Bettino Craxi summoned the president of the state-run network to discuss the contract.

Craxi's action drew cries of outrage from both the opposition Communists and the dominant Christian Democrats about the government's "inadmissible interference" with the autonomous governing board of RAI, the state-run broadcast network.

"I just can't understand how my case has become a government affair," Ms. Carra told reporters. "Why is Raffaella the cause of such a scandal?"

The board of directors of the state-run RAI-1 television network meets today to try to resolve the issue, but few expect what newspapers call the "golden contract" to be revoked.

Newspapers have been playing the story on their front pages since last week, when the popular talk-show hostess signed the three-year contract with RAI-1.

What began as protests over a state-run entity paying a performer so much money has grown into a national debate on the nature of television in Italy.

Ms. Carra, 41, says she deserves the high paycheck.

She draws up to 10 million viewers five days a week for her two-hour, midday show called "Pronto, Raffaella?" (Hello, Raffaella?). That's nearly a fifth of the country tuning in to watch her give advice to telephone callers, talk to prominent guests in a living-room setting, conduct big-money contests or sing and dance.

"You don't think RAI gave me the money out of love, do you?" she asked journalists. "They do it because it (her show) makes money."

RAI officials say her show brings in the equivalent of $12 million a year in advertising — a phenomenal amount for a country where many shows on public television have few or no sponsors.

"Sure I make more money than a lot of people, but I work hard, up to 10 hours a day," she said.

Ms. Carra is a long-legged former ballerina, with blond hair, huge dark eyes, a broad smile and a vivacious personality — "la showgirl" the Italians call her.

"Are we in a democracy or not? If we were in Russia... I would be given a nice medal of honor and nothing else. Instead I signed a rich contract. So what? I'm not the only show person to make a lot of money."

The contract came after Italy's largest private station, Channel 5, tried to lure Ms. Carra away from RAI.

Silvio Berlusconi, who has used a heavy schedule of American television shows and movies to make his station the top competitor for RAI-1, did not take the loss well.

"RAI cannot continue to be simultaneously a public service and a commercial network," he said, pointing out that RAI receives public funds from a television tax that is supposed to be used to provide cultural and instructional programs.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 3-8

MJXXV UWOEGVXO EUG V MSUV
 S U J X X W

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — REPAIRING TREASURED VIOLINS MADE MANY PEOPLE VERY HIGH STRUNG.
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: G equals N.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

STUDENTS!

This is Newspaper in Education Week. You can use your newspaper as an exciting way to learn. Try one of these ideas with the advertising section:

Elementary — Find the grocery ads in today's newspaper. Pretend you have $20 to spend. Make a list of 12 foods you'd like to buy and their prices. Add the prices together. How much change will you get from your $20?

Secondary — Select a product you would like to sell. Design a full page ad including layout and copy for the product. Then write a creative classified ad for the same product.
