Race For Delegates Picks Up Tuesday

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

The Democratic presidential campaign becomes a race for delegates as well as momentum this week, with Walter Mondale and John Glenn seeking Southern revivals and Gary Hart eager to demonstrate his "new ideas" have national appeal.

They're calling it Super Tuesday. At stake are 511 delegates in 11 contests, more than a quarter of the total needed for nomination.

A not-so-simple summary:

Mondale is looking to voters in Alabama, Florida and Georgia to stabilize his sagging candidacy before the elections move to the industrial states. Glenn, running out of time and money, is targeting the same southern voters.

Hart appears well ahead in Massachusetts, where George McGovern has said he will withdraw if he doesn't finish first or second.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, the fifth candidate in the race, is looking to the large black populations in the Southern states to revitalize his effort.

Polls portray a common situation in state after state — Hart is either closing rapidly on Mondale or has already surged past the early front-runner. However, a large number of voters remain undecided, the polls show, and a debate Sunday in Atlanta could have a significant impact on the outcome.

"We've got a fighting chance," said Mondale spokeswoman Maxine Isaacs as the former vice president struggled to recover from a string of three straight setbacks in northern New England.

But Hart, a second-term senator from Colorado, is pouring more than $500,000 into television advertising in the Super Tuesday states, hoping to parlay momentum from New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont — three states with a relatively handful of delegates — into a solid nationwide candidacy.

"There's movement in the South, there's no question," said David Landau, a Hart campaign aide. There also are news media polls showing Hart ahead in Florida and Massachusetts and gaining but slightly behind Mondale in Alabama. Party leaders say he is gaining elsewhere as well.

Glenn, his campaign reeling from poor showings in the early election contests, is limiting his effort to Alabama, Georgia and the northern half of Florida, campaigning as the only moderate Democrat left in the race. The Ohio senator's bid has been in a downward spiral ever since the votes were first counted in Iowa last month, and his aides wonder aloud how long he can keep going if he doesn't post at least one win on Tuesday.

On Saturday, Hart extended his winning streak by virtually sweeping the Wyoming caucuses, the first major Democratic presidential event in the West.

Mondale, meanwhile, received a last-minute political embrace from former President Jimmy Carter at a barbecue Plains, Ga. Glenn and Jackson also campaigned in Georgia while Hart and McGovern were in Massachusetts.

A total of 511 delegates will be picked in primaries in Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Massachusetts, Rhode Island in addition to a mail-in primary conducted by Americans living abroad, as well as caucuses in Oklahoma, Nevada, Hawaii, Washington and American Samoa. In all, the states will send 602 delegates to the Democratic Convention, including 91 who won't be picked on Super Tuesday.

Medical Licenses Are OK Locally

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

As several states around the country work to beef up their safeguards to insure that physicians and medical residents practicing within their bounds have not falsified their credentials, Pitt County Memorial Hospital and East Carolina University School of Medicine administrators feel confident that all doctors practicing in this county have bona fide educational and experiential backgrounds.

Buck Sitterson, PMCH vice president of support services, said his office has the responsibility of assembling and verifying all credentials of every physician who applies for medical staff membership. "We require a photocopy of each applicant's North Carolina license to practice medicine," he said. "Not all doctors come here from within the state, of course, but those who do not must take responsibility for obtaining a North Carolina license before they apply for hospital privileges. Most states have reciprocity with North Carolina, so it's usually not a problem for them."

Sitterson's administrative assistant, Annette Mayo, works closely with the North Carolina Board of Medical Examiners to be sure that every doctor who practices in the hospital is licensed. Dr. Jack Koontz, a local family physician, and Dr. Charles Duckett of the ECU Medical School are two members of the state board which has its office in Raleigh.

The hospital also requires, Sitterson said, two letters of reference from whatever institutions the applicants claim to have received degrees plus certified transcripts from each. Medical malpractice liability insurance must be verified. It must be ascertained that the Flames Break Up Casino Gamblers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Fire erupted in the casino of the Continental Hotel Saturday afternoon, forcing the evacuation of more than 300 people from the two-story gambling area and dining room, officials said. No injuries were reported.

"Flames were coming out the windows," when the blaze was reported at 3:55 p.m., city fire communications specialist Mark Hawkinson said. Casino patrons left gambling tables after the fire broke out.

The fire started in a casino's dining room grill, and grease from the grill flue appreared to fuel the blaze, sending flames shooting upward and out the roof, said Clark County Battalion Chief Paul Hicks. The grill fire ignited a smaller fire in a wall, but Hicks said both were extinguished by 4:25 p.m.

Hicks said between 300 and 400 people were evacuated.

A stewardess for Global Airlines on a stopover at the hotel, Vickie Fischer, also said the fire started on a grill while she was in the casino dining room. But Hicks emphasized the exact cause was unknown.

The three-story Continental Hotel is just behind its two-story casino at the intersection of Paradise and Flamingo roads, away from Las Vegas' main strip of towering hotels and casinos.

The scene was three blocks from the 26-story MGM Grand Hotel, where 85 people died and 700 were injured in a Nov. 21, 1980, electrical fire that began in its casino and trapped many people in smoke-filled upper hotel rooms.

Lawsuits subsequently filed by 1,357 plaintiffs concluded last year in a $140 million settlement that attorneys called the largest compensatory damage recovery in U.S. history.

Gilmore, Stewart Talk To Educators

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

You might say he's education's knight in shining armor. And Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Tom Gilmore didn't get that title "for nothing," according to PACE political affairs specialist JoAnn Norris.

"After reviewing all the candidates for governor, PACE (the Political Action Committee for Education of the North Carolina Association of Educators) rated Gilmore hands and heads taller than all the other candidates for governor. His record shows a long-term commitment to education," Ms. Norris told NCAE representatives attending the associations' three-county meeting in Greenville Saturday.

"In the early '70s when education was not the in thing, Gilmore was introducing bills for funds for additional teachers' pay, school class size reductions, duty-fee school employee lunch periods, annual leave for teachers, paid sick leave, school construction bonds, public school library funding, handicapped children's education and a bill to establish public kindergartens," she said.

"He was in before it became an issue, but now it's everybody's bag. They've seen that it's a good bandwagon to jump on."

However, Gilmore didn't let Ms. Norris do all the talking. He was on hand to discuss his political views on education and other issues as was Carl Stewart, a Democrat seeking nomination for lieutenant governor. Stewart also has NCAE's endorsement.

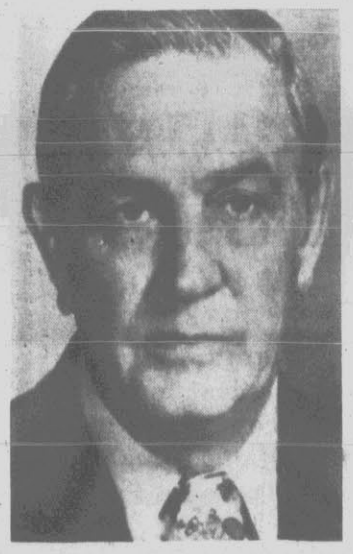
Hard-Fought Race Shapes Up For House



WALTER B. JONES

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

This year's race for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. House of Representatives, from the 1st Congressional District may be the most costly and hardest fought race in years.

Incumbent Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville will be campaigning more vigrously this year in his bid for re-election, Floyd Lupton, Jones' administrative assistant, said last week because his Democratic primary opponent, state Rep. John Gillam of Windsor, "has some statue" by reason of two terms in the N.C. House and "has unlimited resources on which to call to carry on a campaign."

Gillam, who is campaigning every day, has hired a Washington firm to coordinate his bid for the nomination and has a budget of $250,000.

Jones, on the other hand, said his campaign committee has "in excess of $100,000."

"We will conduct a low key campaign," Jones said. "I don't run against anybody. I run for the office.

"My main thrust will be my seniority in Congress. You can't buy that," Jones said. "It has to be earned, which I have done. It (seniority) helps get things done you couldn't do unless you are in a position of leadership."

Jones, first elected to the U.S. House in 1966, is chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and the ranking member of the House Committee on Agriculture.

Gillam's campaign coordinator, William Morgan, said Gillam is serious about his bid for the nomination. "Nobody is going to spend this kind of money without being dead serious about winning."

And according to Morgan, a survey conducted for the campaign, shows "a number of people willing to vote for a change. There is a whole new generation ... from 18 to about 35 ... who don't know him (Jones)." Gillam "has an opportunity to win ... this year."

"We are well aware of what our opposition is doing ... exercising his rights to the media, traveling a lot, attending a lot of functions," Lupton said. "But we have scheduled a number of appearances, right up to the day before the election," and "TV and radio ads are being put together."

Lupton said that "it's difficult for an incumbent, who has responsibilities in carrying out his duty to represent the people, to be on the campaign trail every day. Time doesn't permit. He has to be in Washington to vote on the foor and carry out committee business."

Jones, who said he believes "we already have name identification," said the thrust of his campaign will be reminding constituents of his record: "saving the tobacco program time after time ... getting the Oregon Inlet jetty bill through against all odds ... voting to firm up the Social Security program ... any number of things you accumulate during a long period in office."

And Jones said he is proud of the service he and his staff have rendered to people in the district. "We've been real successful with that and work at it very hard."

Gillam, on the other hand, says "ability is the issue," in the campaign for the nomination.

"Jones' record is to be scruti-

Jets Reported Flying Close To Building

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal aviation officials are investigating reports that two jetliners flew dangerously close to the towering USA Today building during a snowstorm on approach to National Airport.

It was the latest in a series of reports that airlines on approach to the airport flew too close to the building.

The National Transportation Safety Board said radar indicated an Eastern Airlines jet, flight 1483 from New York, was at 500 feet — about 100 feet higher than the top of the newspaper building — during Thursday's storm.

The NTSB said the data also indicated a Pan Am jetliner, flight 254 from Miami, flew dangerously close to the high-rise about 20 minutes earlier on approach to National Airport.

It was not immediately clear how far the jets were from the modernistic tower in the Rosslyn section of Arlington County, Va., across the Potomac River about 2 miles from the Capitol building.

"We're looking looking at the radar data ... to pinpoint the exact position of both aircraft," NTSB spokesman Robert Buckhorn said Friday. "We're also looking at flight data recorders aboard those aircraft.

"We're trying to get an exact picture of their flight route. There's a procedure that has to be observed coming into National, coming down the river from north to south," he said.

"This information now seems to indicate that the procedure was not observed. But the investigation is continuing. I must stress that."

The Federal Aviation Administration also is investigating the incident.

"There's no doubt that something happened that's causing both the NTSB and the FAA to take a look," FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said. "We just don't know exactly what happened yet."

The NTSB and FAA said both jets were flying a "bad weather approach" on instruments during the surprise snowstorm that packed thunder and lightning and limited visibility over the nation's capital.

The storm, which dumped two inches of snow at National, eventually forced the FAA to close the facility for snow removal.

One government official, who request anonymity, said, "There are very specific guidelines on how low a pilot is supposed to get on that particular approach. It appears now that they (the pilots) were a lot lower then they should have been."

The NTSB, in a report issued last year, concluded a Piedmont Airlines jet probably flew too close to the USA Today building during a bad weather approach in late 1982.

The board is also investigating a report that a jet passed too close to Rosslyn office towers Feb. 14.

China Opposes Arms Proposal

PEKING (AP) — China firmly opposes the planned U.S. sale of $760 million in arms to Taiwan in the next fiscal year and has made "serious representations" to Washington about the issue, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said Saturday.

The unidentified spokesman, quoted by the official Xinhua News Agency, said China demanded that the U.S. government gradually reduce such sales to Taiwan, as it pledged to do in an Aug. 17, 1982, agreement with Peking.

He said the new sales are less than in the two preceding fiscal years. The State Department has estimated the fiscal 1983 figure to total $790 million.

But the spokesman said they still exceeded "the level of those supplied in recent years since the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and China" in 1979 — the ceiling stipulated in the 1982 communique.

The spokesman was quoted as saying China had made serious representations to the U.S. government, demanding that it live up to its pledge to reduce arms sales gradually in quantity and quality.

Nightclub Bombed

LONDON — A bomb exploded Saturday in a nightclub frequented by Arabs, injuring 23 people, a second device damaged a store selling Arab newspapers and three other time bombs were found and detonated safely. Scotland Yard blamed Libyans for the bomb blitz.

The British government warned Libya on Saturday night against committing terrorist acts on British soil.

A Foreign Office spokesman said any repetition of the 1980 killings of 11 Libyan exiles in Western Europe would have "a serious effect on our relations."

Selassie Cult Settles In Ethiopia

SHASHEMANE, Ethiopia (AP) — About 50 members of the Rastafarian cult, most of them Jamaicans but also including a few Americans, have settled in this Ethiopian town where they quietly worship the late Emperor Haile Selassie as the black messiah and use marijuana in their rituals.

A few are from an original group that came here more than 15 years ago to develop 1,235 acres of land donated by Haile Selassie as a gesture of gratitude to North American and Caribbean blacks who campaigned for Ethiopian independence during the 1936-41 Italian occupation.

Many of these settlers quickly decamped after the monarch's overthrow in 1974 by a stern Marxist-Leninist military regime, which nationalized the estate as it did all large holdings. Haile Selassie, who was born Ras (Duke) Tafari from which the cult took its name, reportedly died in detention in August 1975 and was secretly buried.

There have been scrapes with authorities during the subsequent decade. About 10 Rastafarians have been arrested for illegally selling marijuana, which they call "ganja."

But what has surprised many observers is that Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam's regime, officially atheist and strictly opposed to Haile Selassie and all he stood for, has generally tolerated the Rastafarians, who insist on the late emperor's divinity and argue that he is still alive.

"It is important because we praise not the dead but the living god," says a Rastafarian whose Jamaican birth certificate has him down as Marvin Anthony Lee. Haile Selassie, he says, "has conquered death."

Rastafarians live by growing their own food and marijuana and by making and selling handicrafts, such as knitted caps which the members themselves use to cover their distinctive dreadlock hairstyles.

"We try not to smoke marijuana in public," Lee says. Ganja is used in their religious observances, and Rastafarians say the practice is traced to the use of it as an incense by priests of the Ethiopian Orthodox church.

"We have to keep a low profile," says Lee, 32, "We don't want to be in any friction with the authorities."

A diplomatic source in Addis Ababa speculates that authorities have been lenient because the Rastafarians are relatively few in number, have no local following and aren't actively proselytizing.

Rastafarians were inspired by the "back-to-Africa" movement of Jamaican-born Marcus Moziah Garvey, whom they call their "prophet."

It was Garvey's 1916 statement, "look to Africa for the crowning of a black king, he shall be the redeemer," that inspired the 1930 launching of the cult after a self-made evangelist named Leonard Howell connected it to the coronation of Haile Selassie two years before.

Until finding official acceptance in Jamaica and some recent world notoriety through the popularity of reggae music, the group was suppressed by police who raided their Jamaican communes.

That served to emphasize a basic belief that Jamaica is hopeless and "Ethiopia is heaven," one expert says.

Elderly Couple Dies In Desert

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UPI) — An elderly couple survived two weeks in their truck stuck in a desert gully, burning tires and flashing a mirror in a futile attempt to signal for help, before dying within days of each other, officials said Saturday.

The bodies of Thomas W. Webb, 71, and his wife, Elaine, 65, were found in their truck Tuesday by a U.S. Border Patrol helicopter, said Deputy Imperial County Coroner David Corn.

A note found near the bodies said the Webbs survived for about two weeks before they died, 10 miles from the nearest highway.

"It (the note) said her husband had died the evening of January, 17th and that they had been stuck for two weeks," said Corn. "We found another one dated January 19th that was written by her. They indicted she was pretty weak.

"They had a few supplies, but we couldn't tell how much they had," Corn said. "They had dug into a barrel cactus to try to get some water."

The Webb's had not been reported missing, the sheriff's office said. The couple lived in a rural desert area near the Imperial-Riverside County line that is populated mainly by retirees. Corn said neighbors apparently thought the couple had gone to visit a relative in Los Angeles.

In early January, the Webbs drove about 6 miles south before leaving the road and heading into the desert for some unknown purpose. The land, which is controlled by the federal Bureau of Land Management, was not posted and very rarely was traveled by humans, Corn said.

They tried to cross a dry wash but got stuck on a large bump. The wheels would not touch the ground and the Webbs were unable to get their vehicle off the bump with the jack, Corn said.

They took the tires off and burned them, apparently hoping to attract a passerby or an aircraft. It also appeared they had tried to use a mirror to signal a plane.

Temperatures in the area did not go much above 80 during the days, but Corn said it had gotten fairly chilly at night.

"It's a real tragic situation," said Corn. "They could not make it out of there. It's a real uninhabited and desolate area where no one goes."

Autopsies were scheduled to determine the cause of death.

State Ordered To Pay Bus Bill

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The state of Missouri has been ordered to pay its bill for transportation of students in the St. Louis desegregation program by 5 p.m. Monday or face possible court action.

State Treasurer Mel Carnahan refused to pay bills amounting to more than $400,000, saying he needs special authorization to do so.

U.S. District Judge William L. Hungate issued the order Friday at the request of the St. Louis School District after a transportation company threatened to discontinue service if its bill wasn't paid.

In its petition, the board said the state owed $445,000 to five cab companies, which were among those transportation companies paid to get students to school.

Richard Hanson, assistant state treasurer, said the state would comply with the order.

A federal marshal drove with the judge's order from St. Louis to Hannibal, where Carnahan was attending the annual Democrat Days celebration.

nized," he said. "Do you want someone in Congress who introduces legislation against the heart and sole of eastern North Carolina — that being agriculture. Or do you want someone who understands agriculture is so much ingrained into eastern North Carolina that it has to be my goal to protect the agriculture industry?" Gillam asked.

According to Gillam, Jones' "legislative record points out vividly that he doesn't understand the needs of the eastern North Carolina farmer," suggesting that shipping legislation introduced by Jones "on behalf of the shipping industry and maritime unions" will "significantly raise the cost of exporting farm products."

"I think it's time eastern North Carolina understands we have a choice in this election, for the first time in my adult life. What I'm saying is we are running a campaign taking to the people of eastern North Carolina the fact that John Gillam wants things to be better ... supports agriculture."

Gillam said people "must sit back and really look at how they have been represented. You don't serve an area for 19 years and when you finish serving, find the area in worse shape that it was before you started.

"Let's appreciate our past," Gillam said, "say 'thank you very much,' but understand it's time for a change."

PUBLIC SCHOOL PRAYER

Just as we believe that voluntary prayer is beneficial and should be encouraged in other group encounters, we believe that voluntary school prayer is helpful and in no way harmful to children. We support attempts to restore voluntary prayer to our public schools.

The preceding paragraph is an excerpt from the State Platform of the North Carolina Republican Party adopted in 1982. Republicans everywhere are glad that Congress is at last considering the School Prayer Amendment to the Constitution. Various polls show that a large majority of Americans support the right of children to pray while at school.

We admire President Reagan for speaking out on this issue and we salute our Senator Jesse Helms for long being a leader in the fight to restore this right to America's children. Ours is "One nation under God...". This recognition goes back to 1776 when the signers of our Declaration of Independence professed their "firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence...".

The Republican Party urges all concerned citizens to write letters to our Senators Helms and East expressing support for their positions on this issue and to Congressman Walter B. Jones to urge his support of the proposed amendment in the House of Representatives.

The Pitt County Republican Party invites you to meet, hear and have dinner with Congressman Jim Martin, candidate for Governor of North Carolina on Monday, March 26, 1984 at 7:00 p.m. at the Greenleaf Restaurant on North Memorial Drive. Tickets for the dinner are $5.00 per person. For tickets or more information, call Randy Doub at 758-6200 or Hal McKinney at 756-2233.

Sunday Opinion

Prayer In School Isn't Justification For Amendment

It must be that advocates of the school prayer amendment were unaware of the can of worms they were opening.

The House of Representatives was kept up in an all-night session by the initial talkathon, and the debate hasn't really warmed up yet.

Advocates may find it hard to believe, but there are more pressing matters before the Congress. And, worst of all, with this an election year, odds are very much against many lawmakers of either persuasion committing themselves to a vote. So the feudin', fussin', and fightin' could be carried over into the next session .. and the next, and the next.

But that is not our basic objection. To us, the thought of politicizing prayer is abhorrent. When elements of difference over religion and a social structure are pitted in a political arena everybody suffers, including the body politic.

Further, the very nature of prayer constitutes a private and personal matter of adoration, supplication and thanksgiving. Anyone so inclined can pray on a battlefield, while washing dishes, or jogging, or during an idle moment at a desk. That again is an individual choice. No constitutional amendment is necessary for those so taught in their home or in their church; nor is it a suitable function of a public school to play those roles.

We are consistent; this page's resistance to new amendments is not unknown, we have opposed such tamperings in the past.

On the whole, the founders of this country were pretty smart people. They knew the proper role of government and the hazards of overstepping certain bounds.

There are those among us today who would overstep those bounds. It would be best to drop the whole thing, and hope no scars remain.

Tiny Skeleton In The Closet

Now that Gary Hart has burst into national prominance as a potential Democratic presidential nominee, a curious nation begins to look for a log cabin birthplace.

It didn't find that but it did learn that the candidate was born Gary Warren Hartpence; the last name was changed by his immediate family while he was still in college.

Then there was the birthday. The Congressional Record listed it as Nov. 28, 1937. Family members dispute this, however, saying Hart was born in 1936. While Hart maintained for awhile that his birthday was in 1937, he has since obtained a birth certificate and acknowleged the 1936 date.

None of this involves the burning issues that face the nation today. Changing the spellings and even shortening surnames were common in this country as immigrants and their descendants sought to conform to American usage. And 46 or 47, it makes little difference in the life of Gary Hart as he seeks the presidency.

If these be skeletons in the closet they are small ones, indeed, and they merely sate the American thirst for every detail of a famous person's life.

Sunday Morning Notes

Susan, the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Forrest of Winterville, was watching Michael Jackson on television and wondered about the super star of the rock world.

"Mommy," she asked. "When are we going to Michael Jackson's house?"

Her surprised parents explained that Michael Jackson lived far away and you just don't go off visiting a star.

It seems Susan had learned about Jackson from her dance class recordings.

She had exactly $12 and pumped in that amount of gas. Alas, when she started to the store to pay, the wind grabbed one of the dollars and sent it sailing northward toward the river. Mary chased the dollar, which was airborne by that time, across Second Street, down the next block and then across first. At that point it sailed high into the air and disappeared somewhere into the Town Common.

A sad Mary came back to the office to borrow enough money to make up the lost dollar and then went back to pay for the gas.

And somewhere in Greenville somebody has an extra dollar.

Newspaper offices are confusing enough in the mornings, what with phones ringing, people visiting and editors screaming about deadlines.

Ours had a new dimension last week. A back wall was being removed to open up a room which once held teletypes (now obsolete). The extra space is to be used to provide desk areas for our expanding news staff.

Unfortunately, the work requires saws, drills and a fair amount of hammering. This is to be expected when construction work is under way, but it sure makes difficult the hearing of names of survivors in an obituary being taken by phone.

At any rate we muddled through and it prompted one office optimist to comment, "Well, at least we're building for the future."

No doubt, there will be better days ahead.

Study

NEW YORK (AP) — Who is the entrepreneur, that person who faces perpetual challenges, who courts risk, who deals every day with an overload of stress, who works long hours, who awakes at night with a burden of worries?

Seeking an answer, a Midwest entrepreneur club once polled its members to learn some of the attributes that makes people go into business for themselves, and stay in business in spite of the difficulties.

What they found was embarassingly little, too little from which to draw any profound conclusions. So diverse were responses that they uncovered only one clue. Most entrepreneurs, they concluded, had strong mothers.

Though other studies have developed additional notions of what makes a person go into business and stay there in the face of obstacles, the entrepreneur's personality is indeed an elusive thing.

It is known, of course, that they are self-motivated, goal-seeking, self-confident, hard-working, mentally active individualists. That much can be reasoned from the evidence.

But what other clues are there to determine what makes these people run?

Seeking to add to understanding, The Center For Entrepreneurial Management developed a profile of its membership that adds some dimensions. Among its findings:

— The independent way of life is not so much genetic as it is learned, and the first school for entrepreneurs is the home. More than a third of respondents came from homes where one parent had been self-employed.

— The self-employed person is brash, with almost a compulsive need to be right. For example, Steven Jobs and Steven Wozniak created Apple Computer when their project was rejected by their former employers.

The Jobs-Wozniak experience is a common one. Joseph Mancuso, president of the New York-based center, reasons: "The need to be right very often turns rejection into courage and courage into authority."

— Many entrepreneurs are people who have moved from their original environment or who have had to struggle to fit into society. Their answer often is to turn hard work and enthusiasm into successful business enterprises.

— The enterprising adult first appears as the enterprising child. As children, people in business for themselves often collected coins or stamps, delivered newspapers, mowed lawns or shoveled snow.

"The paper route of today could be the Federal Express of tomorrow," says Mancuso.

Much more was revealed. Entrepreneurs often are the oldest children in their families, have supportive spouses, are risk-takers but not gamblers, and enjoy money but — more importantly — dislike working for someone else.

Should you continue with such an analysis you might get no nearer to the answer. Better to accept them, perhaps, than to figure them out, as Chemical Bank recently sought to do with the help of Research & Forecasts Inc.

Surveying the field, they found that 76 percent of small-business owners worked at least nine hours a day, that 25 percent put in 11 or 12 hours, and 11 percent more than 12.

In spite of this, the reality differed greatly with the wish. No less than 75 percent of those interviewed — a total of 1,047 — said they wished to work 8 hours or less. And 33 percent of them said they preferred fewer than 7 hours.

Asked how many days a week they worked, more than 30 percent answered 6 or 7 days. Asked how many days they would like to work, 63 percent said 5 days, and 23 percent said 4 days or less.

About 80 percent conceded that they were under a moderate or a great deal of stress, but 22 percent of them said stress was basically beneficial rather than detrimental.

Asked why, the 210 respondents who liked stress said overwhelmingly that it made day-to-day life more interesting and that it raised their productivity.

Who are these people, and what makes them tick? Maybe it is easier to acccept than to understand them.

Nominee Chosen

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has selected Dr. Martha Seeger, a conservative economist and political activist from Michigan, to be a member of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors.

The selection of Dr. Seeger, who is not well known nationally in banking circles, demonstrates a desire by the White House for new support at the Fed, the nation's central bank. She is considered a Reaganite in Michigan political circles and is close to Richard Headlee, Republican nominee for governor in 1982 and leader of the state party's conservative wing.

She is expected to cooperate closely with Preston Martin, the board's vice chairman and Reagan's only other appointment. Chairman Paul Volcker, whose right-money policy has been criticized privately at the White House, was not consulted on the Seeger appointment.

The president signed Dr. Seeger's commission recently, and she was notified. Her name will be submitted to the Senate for confirmation once the routine FBI check is completed.

Actually, Dr. Seeger was Reagan's second choice. He decided several weeks ago on another Reaganite economist: Dr. Annelise Anderson, who resigned a year ago as associate director of the Office of Management and Budget to return to the Hoover Institution at Stanford University as a senior research fellow.

The president had decided on Dr. Anderson, but she was blocked by the statute prohibiting more than one governor from reprsenting the same Federal Reserve district. Dr. Anderson and Martin are both from California. The technicality has been ignored in the past, but the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said he would insist compliance. Garn said he had so criticized the Carter adminstration for violating the law that he could not permit Reagan to do the same thing.

Until the election of a Democratic adminstration in 1982, Dr. Seeger was Michigan state banking commissioner. She is currently a professor at Central Michigan University.

Politically, Dr. Seeger is also conservative. Last month she joined Headlee in running the Michigan chapter of Citizens for America, a Reagan-sponsored organization.

Second Thoughts On Prayer

WASHINGTON — The Senate has been grappling this week with one of the most emotional issues it will confront all year. The question is whether an amendment should be added to the Constitution that would say:

"Nothing in this Constitution shall be construed to prohibit individual or group prayer in public schools or other public institutions. No person shall be required by the United States or by any state to participate in prayer."

Two amendments to that language have been proposed. One would add this sentence: "Neither the United States nor any state shall compose the words of any prayer to be said in public schools." The second amendment would substitute the word "prescribe" for the word "compose." These changes would require only a majority vote for adoption; the resolution would require a two-thirds vote in both House and Senate before going to the states for ratification.

Should the resolution pass? It may seem uncharacteristic, but I voice no passionate feelings on the matter. Two years ago, when the White House proposed the basic two sentences, I wrote a column opposing the amendment. My thought was that the reference to "individual prayer" was unnecessary; no court ever has forbidden a child to pray by himself in a public school. By the same token, it seemed to me that the reference to "other public institutions" also was surplusage: the Congress, the Supreme Court, the several state legislatures all open their sessions with prayer. These religious exercises were specifically approved by the high court last term.

What we are talking about — all we are talking about — is group prayer in public schools. Two years ago I commented that the amendment, as introduced, would take us back to the undesirable situation that obtained prior to the Supreme Court's 1962 decision in the case of the New York schools. In that landmark case, the court looked at a prayer prescribed by the New York School Regents: "Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon thee, and we beg thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country." The prayer was about as inoffensive as prayer can be, but because of its composition by an agency of the state, it clearly amounted to an impermissible effort to impose an "establishment of religion."

It looks to me as if either of the proposed additional sentences would cure that defect. If a school board, a principal or a teacher could neither compose nor prescribe a particular prayer, this would appear to leave the matter up to individual students or perhaps their parents.

That prospect leaves me uneasy. We may hope and believe that any child who undertook to lead consenting members of his class in prayer would come up with something not calculated to set off a riot. The mind conjures some odd invocations: "Almighty God, we pray Susie is not pregnant." "Almighty God, in thy kindness and wisdom, we pray you will strike the principal dead." Nothing of the sort is likely to happen, but this exaggerated hypothetical example suggests the kind of brier patch we enter when we enter the field of church and state relationships.

One further objection is not resolved by the pending resolution in any form: "No person shall be required ... to participate" is saving language on the surface, but it has no meaning for the 10-year-old who may be Muslim, or may be Jewish, or may come from a family of atheists. Invocations to "Jesus Christ, our only Lord and Savior" would fall distastefully upon such captive ears. True, objecting children could be excused whenever prayers were to be said, but I'm far from certain that any such conspicuous process is a desirable remedy.

Yet the sponsors of the proposed amendment make a persuasive case. Ours is indeed a religious nation, as the Supreme Court has said.

Hart Has Been Man For All Seasons

WASHINGTON — We first encountered Gary Hart at a small get-together here 13 years ago, when he was directing Sen. George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign. It was a gathering of young anti-war activists, and there were lots of exotic intoxicants, loud music and political talk.

Hart was easy to remember. He was the oldest (34 at the time) and tallest member of the group. He looked the part with his contemporary dress and shaggy hair. But he was hardly "laid back" and his use of "right on" and other "movement" expressions seemed a bit incongruous.

Five years had passed when we next saw Hart. A Washington lobbyist had invited a few of us, including Hart, over for tennis. This time the former anti-war activist was a U.S. senator. He sported a blow-dry haircut and a Mercedes with a sun roof. We played a few sets and then retired to converse with a crowd that Hart might once have considered the enemy.

We reminded Hart of our earlier meeting. He responded with a cold, quick snap of a smile, and the conservation stopped here. The Coloradan didn't seem interested in pursuing his past.

We offer these anecdotes because they illustrate how skillfully Gary Hart has managed to be all things to all people in his nearly two decades in politics.

"Gary is an electic," says Rick Stearns, who worked alongside Hart during McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign. "He has no fixed point of reference that gives him an answer to any given question you pose. You just can't predict what his intellectual outcome on a decision is going to be by trying to put him on a spectrum left and right."

Indeed, such an unsettling and unpredictable has kept every one of George McGovern's top 1972 staffers from joining Hart's current crusade. And, to some degree, uneasiness over Hart's recent success may also be prompting George McGovern to stay in the presidential primary race in Massachusetts. "To be quite frank," says one former McGovern staffer, "many of us can't believe that Gary has gotten as far as he has. It's a real smoke-and-mirrors act."

Gary Hart is convinced that most Americans want an alternative to the candidate owned by organized labor (Walter Mondale) and the candidate owned by big business (Ronald Reagan). Some experts, in fact, concur with that perception. "There's a middle class population that's bubbling in this election year, and Gary Hart is playing to it perfectly well," according to Bill Zimmerman, a political consultant in California.

Some of the McGovern crowd still contend that Hart is a smart fellow with incredible political instincts. "He has an absolute belief that he's been placed on this earth to do something," said Hal Haddon, who managed both of Hart's senatorial campaigns but is sitting on the sidelines this year.

At the same time, however, Hart's former colleagues from 1972 (most of whom describe themselves as being comfortable but not enthusiastic about him) say Hart is likely to turn off many of his supporters — a melange of mostly young, urban and suburban professionals — when they discover his voting record. Sen. Hart's is not the record of the progressive populist that the candidate often paints himself to be. Herewith is a sample of some of Hart's Senate votes that could cause im trouble:

— In 1983, Hart voted against legislation that would have rolled back maximum legal prices for "new" natural gas. He also favored restricting the rights of communities to regulate cable television licensing.

— In 1982, Hart opposed legislation that would have given states, unless supported by both houses of Congress, the right to block a presidential decision to put a permanent nuclear waste repository within its borders.

— In 1982, Hart also voted to maintain price supports for the dairy, peanut and sugar industries and reverse a proposed $9,000 ceiling on senatorial income from speeches and articles that would have taken effect on Jan. 1, 1983.

— In 1980, Hart supported legislation that exempted small businesses of 10 or fewer persons from regular inspections by OSHA. Meanwhile, he opposed a bill that would have forced the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to enforce its air bag rule.

With the early flurry of primaries this year, Hart may easily escape the scrutiny that Walter Mondale has experienced. "People won't have time to find out who Gary Hart is," laughs Joe Dolan, a Hart supporter who ran against him for the 1974 Democratic senatorial nomination in Colorado.

But that would largely be the doing of the press. Embarrassed by their premature conclusions about Mondale's invincibility, the media have suddenly begun fawning over Hart as if they were teen-gers in Michael Jackson's dressing room. Even Hart, the man for all seasons, couldn't have hoped for better timing.

Seek The Options ON IRAs

NEW YORK (AP) — The annual Individual Retirement Account derby is on, with a bigger field of entrants than ever.

In the next several weeks, before the April 16 deadline for filing federal income taxes, many of the millions of Americans eligible for IRAs will be picking a place to put their money. And financial institutions of just about every variety are standing ready to bombard them with a bewildering array of choices.

There are the banks, the savings and loans, the brokers, the credit unions, the life insurance companies, the mutual funds, the real estate syndicators and the packagers of mortgage-backed investments, all bidding for the billions of dollars that make up the IRA market.

Each has its appealing pitch, some special angle that sets it apart from the rest of the maddening pack. But investigating every possibility can become an onerous job.

In the interests of simplifying the mission, experts in personal finance say there are several relatively straightforward standards you can apply to any candidate for your IRA account to determine if it meets your individual needs.

"The first factor to consider is your personal investment philosophy," says the accounting firm of Deloitte Haskins & Sells. "Are you a risk taker or a risk averter? Obviously, a cautious person should consider relatively conservative investments.

"A second question to ask yourself is how dependent you'll be upon your IRA savings. If you expect to receive a large company pension, for example, you may be willing to risk your IRA savings in aggressive investments.

"On the other hand, if you expect your IRA to be your primary or only source of retirement income, you may choose more conservative investments to protect your principal."

It is also worthwhile to consider whether a given investment promises to produce gains primarily from dividend and interest payments, or from capital appreciation. Says Donoghue's Money Letter, an investment newsletter: "When managing your IRA investment, it is important to keep in mind that distributions from an IRA are taxed as ordinary income.

"If your IRA is in a type of investment that earns capital gains, then you cannot take advantage of the more favorable tax treatment of long-term capital gains."

Your age may be an overriding consideration, Deloitte Haskins & Sells observes. "Generally, the closer you are to retirement, the more conservative your approach to investing should be," the firm says.

"Those who are close to retirement cannot count on long-term growth to enhance the value of their portfolios. Also, older workers do not have time to recoup any losses in principal that might occur as a result of risky investments."

There is nothing in the rules that requires you to put all your IRA eggs in a single basket. "Legally, you can divide your IRA among as many investments as you wish," Deloitte Haskins & Sells notes. "However, it is generally wise to limit your investments to a reasonable number so you can more easily direct your investment strategy."

Furthermore, you are not wedded for a lifetime to any choice you make today. If your needs, goals or opinion of a given financial institution should change in the future, the law allows you to transfer your account to some other place.

But this option depends on the liquidity of the investment you have chosen. For example, if your money is in a time deposit at a bank, you will have to wait until it matures to avoid paying an early withdrawal penalty.

Moonshining Was Big Business

If American Magazine staff writer Vance Packard had showed his head in Wilkes County in the fall of 1950 he would have run a risk of being hanged on the Tory Oak, an ancient tree standing in the middle of the street at the courthouse square in North Wilkesboro which got its name after Col. Ben Clevelend festooned its branches with Tories during the American Revolution.

Packard had spent about a week in the county a couple of months before, and irate citizens said he spent much of his time conferring with Alcohol Tax Unit agents gathering material for an article entitled "Millions in Moonshine" which pictured Wilkes County as the moonshine liquor capital of the country.

The article prompted a meeting organized by the North Wilkesboro Chamber of Commerce to draw up a protest. Participants included Mayor R.T. McNeil of North Wilkesboro, Mayor W.E. Smithy of Wilkesboro and members of the Wilkes County Board of Commissioners in addition to chamber of commerce members and officials.

They said they were mainly concerned at the manner in which Packard, whose article appeared in the magazine's September 1950, issue, had belittled the county's legitimate industries. "An occasional sawmill, a coffin factory, an occasional small farm and an occasional chicken farm" were cited as examples of Wilkes industry outside "the moonshine business."

"We're not denying that there is a liquor industry here," said Tom Jenrette, manager of the North Wilkesboro Chamber of Commerce. "But the article made it seem that illegal liquor manufacturing and liquor sale constitute the principal industry in the county.

"It intimated that the people of Wilkes County are in a conspiracy to violate the federal liquor tax laws," Jenrette added.

"The poultry industry in the county alone does a $35 million yearly business, making the article's figures on 'moonshine' infinitesimal in comparison," he said.

Jenrette also cited the apple-growing and timber industries in Wilkes County, which led the state that year, a fast-growing dairy industry, a prosperous general agriculture industry and several others.

The group drafted and sent the magazine a 1,500-word statement of protest which demanded that a writer be sent to the county to gather material for an article "on the other side of Wilkes County's industries."

The plight of the Wilkes County business, industrial and political leaders prompted a sympathetic editorial in the Asheville Citizen which noted that "our notherwestern neighbor raises apples, grows saw timber and breeds poultry at a rate not otherwise approximated in North Carolina and maybe in most of the rest of the country. Its tax valuation is a deal higher than any neighbor's and in the old days it used to hang Tories five at a time. There are enough unexploited minerals under the valley of the Yadkin to give a geologist the jitters and there is enough water coming off the high hills to irrigate half the Piedmont.

"Altogether we think Wilkes has enough story angles to satisfy a prowling Yankee writer without digging into the matter of whether some native fruit comes out as applejack or a corn patch somehow fails to get amongst the hogs. Trouble is, the fellow missed these angles in gathering his facts. He should have called by the chamber of commerce at least on his way to or from the busy office of the Alcohol Tax Unit."

And a busy place the ATU office in Wilkes was in those days. Packard was not the only writer who depicted the county as one of the nation's major moonshine centers. The ATU concentrated its agents in the county to combat a native industry that dated back to the arrival of the white man in the area. Illegal stills thrived in the days before railroads and paved roads because it was easier and cheaper to transport alcohol than it was to haul corn and apples to market, to say nothing of it being more profitable. The manufacturers of illicit booze got a big boost when Prohibition cut off the supply of legal store-bought liquor, and then later when the moonshiners could sell their product cheaper than the ABC stores when they opened.

During World War I, article published in a N[illegible]h [illegible]esboro newspaper asserted that,"As long as leading ministers of the dominant denominations of the country would not tell the officers if they knew where a blockade distillery was, and as long as deacons of the church and leading members make it, sell it and endorse it, as long as leading merchants of the town and country and some of the most prominent citizens furnish stills and materials to make it, it is going to be made by the fellow in the bush."

The writer of the article stated that while he could not prove that merchants and other individuals were selling corn to operators of illicit stills, "It is alleged that quantities of corn have been hauled from this point to be made into the manufacture of liquor and it is known that illicit stills operating in the county are many."

And even then Wilkes County's reputation as a center for the illegal manufacture of liquor had spread nationwide. This is attested by a letter Dr. L.P. Somers, a Wilkes County physician, wrote the Wilkesboro Patriot in 1917. Dr. Somers said there was no finer place in the world to live than Wilkes County and he was proud of its people "and many things in old Wilkes, but I am sorely disgusted with one reputation she has." He said it was humiliating for him to visit in other sections of the state or in other states to have people reply when he told them he was from Wilkes County, "Up where they make the 'moonshine!'"

But in recent years Wilkes County seems to be losing its reputation as the moonshine capital of the nation. Either the ATU has relaxed its efforts to nab the Wilkes blockaders or the newspapers don't consider it news any more when officers shut down a big still and dump a huge quantity of sourmash into the creeks.

In an article published in the Greensboro Daily News in 1966, H.W. Kendall wrote that a drive through Wilkes County "into Boone and the surrounding area affords an incredible picture of the growth and transformation of the area." He cited the continued growth of the poultry industry as exemplified by the Holly Farms facility at Wilkesboro which was then the largest poultry processing plant under a single roof in the world, capable of processing a million broilers a week. He added that in driving through Wilkes "you hardly ever get out of sight of a poultry house, many of them huge structures.

"The economic transformation is reflected in the whole landscape," he added. "All along the highway and out in the distance are neat, modern and even expensive homes. There are well kept yards, with attractive greensward and banked shrubery ... It's a far cry from the days of the moonshine capital — there's even an ABC store in Wilkesboro."

George Gallup

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Raagan's gradual rise in popularity has been achieved despite low public approval of his foreign policy in general and his handling of the situations in Central America and Lebanon specifically. Instead, his approval rating is more closely related to favorable assessments of his handling of domestic economic conditions.

Not only does the president receive a higher overall rating, 49 percent approval, for his economic accomplishments than for other aspects of his job, but the trend — up 12 points since August — is matched only by a 14-point improvement for his handling of unemployment.

Reagan receives the lowest rating — 22 percent approval — for his handling of the federal government's budget deficits, a category not included in earlier surveys.

Reagan's mid-February performance rating of 55 percent (amended figure) approval represents a 20 percentage-point improvement over the 35 percent approval rating recorded at a similar period in 1983. Such a strong upward trend on the part of an incumbent president seekinv re-election is without precedent in Gallup's 50 years of polling experience.

At the same time, however, a smaller proportion in the latest survey approves (40 percent) than disapproves (46 percent) of the president's handling of foreign policy; as recently as last November, following the Grenada invasion, 46 percent approved and 41 percent disapproved.

Following are the questions asked and the national findings:

"Now let me ask you about some specific problems. As I read off each problem, would you tell me whether you approve or disapprove of the way President Reagan is handling that problem?"

Reagan Performance Ratings

	Approve	Disapprove	No opinion
OVERALL	55%	36%	9%
Economic conditions	49	44	7
Unemployment	42	50	8
Budget deficits	22	62	16
Foreign policy	40	46	14
Relations with Soviet Union	43	42	15
Situation in Central America	29	48	23
Situation in Lebanon	28	60	12

The latest results are based on in-person interviews with 1,610 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Feb. 10-13.

For results based on samples of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be 3 percentage points in either direction.

Dirty Tricksters

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The radio reporters couldn't find out who it was that first tipped them about the driving record of gubernatorial candidate D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth.

They still didn't know a few days later when an envelope arrived from Fayetteville, bearing no return address. But that didn't stop the reporters from examining the enclosed computer printout detailing Faircloth's 32 traffic offenses in the past 28 years.

After some checking, the North Carolina News Network added the story to its broadcasts to 75 stations statewide. And political reporters had one more reason to pay attention when a tipster calls.

Broadcast and newspaper editors across North Carolina say that the Faircloth story last week typified the kind of unsolicited political news they get during campaign seasons. Fewer than half the tips pan out, they said, but the news still bears at least a cursory investigation.

"There is an awful lot of political gossip out there — and I listen to every bit of it," said Ken Allen, the Charlotte Observer's Raleigh correspondent. But hardly any of that gossip ever ends up in the Observer's columns, he added.

Robert Brooks, managing editor of the News and Observer of Raleigh, estimated that about one of every 100 tips is worth pursuing. For example, he said Faircloth's driving record was less of a story than the claims by the former Commerce secretary's backers that someone from an opposing camp was trying to smear Faircloth.

All nine of the reporters and editors interviewed said they are extra careful about checking for accuracy when the tip's provider refuses to be identified.

"For any editor worth his or her salt, when a Trojan horse like that is laid at your doorstep, you begin to think somebody has an ax to grind," said Jay Moore, news director of WCTI-TV in New Bern. "So you set your mind to thinking that the information mentioned in the report may not be exactly right."

Ron Miller, news director of WBTV in Charlotte, said his 19 years of television news experience have taught him to be skeptical when a campaign aide calls with a tidbit about an opponent. If it's so important, he asks, why hasn't the aide's candidate brought it up himself.

But Paul T. O'Connor, columnist for the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Newspapers, said he is more concerned about the value of the tip.

"You can't apologize for your sources," he said. "If it's unsolicited — but I can go out and prove that it's true and is worthy of news coverage — then sure, I've got no qualms about running the story. But if somebody runs me a piece of hate mail, I put it right where it belongs."

O'Connor said he has received a steady stream of unsolicited letters that all concern gubernatorial candidate H. Edward Knox. Most contain news clips quoting the former Charlotte mayor, he said. Only one has become an item for his column.

Bill Leslie, news director of WRAL-FM and the North Carolina News Network, said he has noticed an increase in tipj as the political year heats up.

"A lot of good news stories come from things like that," he said. "I think you should read everything and listen to everybody, but you should be skeptical."

Faculty Salary Increase Sought

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Citing a decline in the system's ability to attract and retain faculty members, the University of North Carolina Board of Governors Friday voted to seek a 10 to 12 percent increase in faculty pay.

The board will ask the short session of the General Assembly for $67 million to finance the raises.

Like public school teachers and others state employees, university faculty received a 5 percent pay raise from the 1983 legislature after a pay freeze in 1982-83. This year's request is equal to the amount of the 1983 request that was not funde.

UNC President William Friday said that while the system's request is equivalent to an across-the-board raise of 10 to 12 percent, it probably would not be distributed that way.

One-fourth of the profits will go to Church Ministries United, a local coalition of churches which provides emergency relief funds for the Greenville-Pitt County area. Liz Wilkerson, addministrator of Church Ministries United, said that $1,100 was raised for this purpose last year.

Persons wishing more information may call Sister Helen Shondell, 752-4216; Karen Akers, 752-7759; or Joe Hughes, 355-2460.

Sheriff Corrects Youth's Identity

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said a 16-year-old youth he identified last week as being charged in a break-in reported Wednesday at Ayden-Grifton High School was not charged in that incident.

Tyson said, however, that Bobby Jones Jr. of Route 1, Box 300, Grifton, was charged with a break-in at Community Grocery at St. Johns near Grifton.

Charged in the store incident with Jones was Michael Dodd Stanley of Pinewood Trailer Park, Ayden, said Tyson. He said Stanley was also charged in connection with the school break-in.

The sheriff said cigarettes and soft drinks valued at $51 were stolen from the store, operated by Linwood Moore. Damages to the front doors of the facility were estimated at $300, he said.

Bond for Jones was set at $500, while Stanley's bond was set at $1,000.

physician has no outstanding lawsuits against him or her.

Once the initial checking has been completed by Sitterson and Mrs. Mayo, the materials are turned over to Katheryn Gaston, medical staff support person, who prepares them for perusal by the Credentials Committee of the hospital medical staff. This year Dr. William W. Fore, Dr. Judith Yongue, Dr. Gary Crawford, Dr. Richard Larson, Dr. Jerome Haller, Dr. Richard Kelly and Dr. Lynn Borchert are serving on the Credentials Committee.

"Once we get the credentials," Dr. Yongue said, "Katheryn has them in excellent order, with everything carefully researched and checked. We are very serious about our job and we do have some questions, but we also have faith in Katheryn's evidence as to whether a physician meets our requirements for admission to the staff. More often than not, our problems are not with improper prior qualification but with recredentialing, when we must enforce medical staff bylaws that require that a physician attend a certain number of staff meetings a year and the like. We sometimes have to put someone on probation for not taking their agreements for staff membership seriously.

"I am thankful to say we've never had to turn anyone down or relieve anyone of duties for falsification of credentials."

Dr. Edwin Monroe, senior associate dean of the school of medicine, said he's been with the medical school since its inception and he's never known a physician nere who's "sailed under false flags."

"Virtually every doctor who comes on board," he said, "does so in one hospital and/or medical school department or another. The doctors who communicate with the physician prior to his coming here make sure he or she is the kind of doctor with whom they wish to be associated."

He said inquiries by the medical school and the doctors themselves concern, not only academic and professional credentials, but also matters of character and ability to relate to patients and colleagues and the community.

Every doctor who affiliates with the medical school must be screened by a department chairman, he said, and this screening must also go to the dean's office and the university chancellor's office. Tenured appointments are even reviewed by the university trustees and the greater university board of governors.

Dr. Monroe said he believes that most of the fakery that's been exposed nationally lately has come from metropolitan hospitals who've been seeking to hire salaried physicians who have degrees or claim to have degrees from "offshore institutions," usually in the Carribbean. There have been some cases of trafficking of fraudulent credentials. He said he credits not only the safeguards built into the credentialing programs of the hospital and medical school, but the state of North Carolina's physician licensing procedures for this area's freedom from physician credential falsification.

TOM GILMORE

CARL STEWART

"It's an educational crisis when more than 54 percent of our adult population have not finished high school," Gilmore said. "In addition, we have the third highest prison population in the United states, the lowest industrial wage out of all the 50 states, and we have so many young people dropping out of high school ... not to mention that our childrens' SAT scores have dropped dramatically over the past 10 years.

"I think it's time we address the causes of these problems instead of putting more Band-Aids on the symptoms," he said.

Gilmore told educators that alleviating these problems is his first priority. He said he would endorse an increase of general fund assets via a tax increase to support public schools if necessary.

Such a tax increase does not appear to be a problem, according to Ms. Norris. "A poll done for us by the 'Charlotte Observer's' polling group indicated that the citizens of the Charlotte area would be more than willing for taxes to be increased if indeed the money would be used for education. Other polls done in various parts of the state have come up with the same results," she said.

Gilmore also proposed eliminating secrecy in the making of the state budget by putting "public business out in public where it belongs and holding meetings on Saturdays so parents, teachers and students can come." He also said he feels it would be necessary to take some of the education budget-making decisions away from the General Assembly by adding county commissioners, educators, women and blacks to the committee.

"Those members would then be required to go into classrooms, mental health facilities (something Gilmore said he has done time after time to assess the state's educational needs)." He said he would also separate educational needs from other governmental and state needs by creating a separate education budget which would be brought before the General Assembly before any other decisions on allocations were made.

"There's been a lot of talk about obligations politicians make, but if I had to be obligated to anyone, I'd obligate myself to the people I entrust my children and the other 1.1 million school children of this state to every day," he said.

Stewart, who has served two terms as speaker of the state House, stands on much the same platform as Gilmore.

Both Gilmore and Stewart are in favor of reducing the number of students in classrooms, are opposed to the merit pay system, improving the quality of school buses and equal pay for equal work.

"In recent years we have seemed to drift without purpose in public education, public day care, long term health care, environemental sensitivity, industrial wages and adult illiteracy. A strong, independent lieutenant governor can help chart a vigorous new course in 1985," Stewart said.

He tagged merit pay as "a fashionable concept advanced by some in good faith but siezed upon by many as a means of doing less, not more, for public education."

Stewart said he is also in favor of the creation of a tax reform committee to rewrite the tax structure of North Carolina.

CRUISE SHIP — Firefighters wearing breathing apparatus leave from the forward hatch of the smoke-filled cruise ship Scandinavian Sea on Saturday. The 506-foot ship caught fire Friday night as it was ending a short cruise "to nowhere" on a gambling excursion outside the three-mile territorial limit. Officials said an electrical short may have caused the fire. (AP Laserphoto)

Shipboard Fire Cuts Short Sea-Going Gambling Trip

PORT CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A fire on the cruise ship Scandinavian Sea burned out of control Saturday, a day after flames broke out five miles from shore, cutting short a gambling excursion and forcing the ship to speed back to port with 946 people aboard.

At least 15 people were treated for smoke inhalation because of the fire that erupted in a passenger cabin on the 506-foot vessel Friday evening, said Coast Guard Petty Officer 1st Class Joe Gibson. He did not know how many of those treated were firefighters, but said no one required hospitalization.

Gibson said that by Saturday afternoon the fire had spread to four passenger decks. He said extra breathing equipment was flown in and out-of-state "strike-force teams" trained in fighting shipboard disasters and oil fires were called to join more than 100 firefighters who had been on the scene since Friday.

The fire started as the ship was returning from a "cruise to nowhere" outside the three-mile limit, where gambling is legal, said Jill De Chello, a spokeswoman for Miami-based Scandinavian World Cruises.

By Saturday, the fire was still burning out of control and flames "shooting about 100 feet behind the bridge ... spread up to the fourth deck" of the eight-deck cruise ship, Gibson said.

He said there was no immediate danger of the vessel exploding, although some diesel fuel had briefly caught on fire.

Tom Tarrants, a damage controlman with the U.S. Coast Guard helped battle the blaze on the main deck. He said the temperature on the vessel "was well over 500 degrees."

In Washington, Les Reingold, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, said the agency was sending two investigators to Port Canaveral.

The cause of the fire was not immediately known. But Capt. Jack Houts of the Merritt Island Fire Department told the newspaper TODAY in Cocoa that it was believed to be electrical.

The trip began at 11 a.m. Friday from Port Canaveral, and was supposed to last until about 10 p.m., Ms. De Chello said. Instead, passengers and crew disembarked about 8 p.m.

Many passengers said they were gambling or eating dinner when word of the fire went over the public-address system.

"That dang fire. I was on a roll," said Tom Lynn of Fort Pierce, Fla., who had just hit a $50 jackpot on a slot machine.

Mia Maralli, 19, said it was hard to breathe because of the smoke.

"It smelled so bad you had to cover your mouth," she said.

One unidentified woman said that when she asked a crew member for a life jacket, he took one and told her to get her own, The Orlando Sentinel reported. The newspaper had a reporter and a photographer on the cruise doing research for a story.

"We had to beg for life preservers," said passenger Earl Ross of Grafton, Mass. He criticized what he termed a "lack of authority."

But Ms. De Chello said she had no reports of passengers being denied a life jacket. Ken Olson, hotel manager on the ship, said he was "very proud of the way our crew members handled the situation."

Hart Gains Solid Victory In Wyoming

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

Walter F. Mondale traveled to south Georgia to sample the barbecue and get a last-minute political embrace from Jimmy Carter on Saturday while Gary Hart courted the nuclear freeze vote in Massachusetts and won a solid victory in the Wyoming caucuses — his fourth straight.

But the impact of Wyoming — with its 12 delegates up for grabs Saturday — was dwarfed by the approach of Super Tuesday with its 11 primaries and caucuses in which 511 delegates will be chosen.

Sen. John Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson stayed in Georgia, while former South Dakota Sen. George McGovern was in Massachusetts — states where each says he must do well.

The key event for all five remaining candidates before Tuesday comes Sunday, with the nationally televised hour-long League of Women Voters' debate in Atlanta.

The Wyoming county caucuses, the first Democratic presidential event in the West, was to decide the presidential preferences of 12 of the state's 15 delegates to the San Francisco convention in July.

With 21 of Wyoming's 23 caucuses reporting, Hart had 2,086 county delegates or 60 percent, to 1,242, or 36 percent, for Mondale. There were 91 uncommitted, 15 for Jackson, eight for McGovern and three for Glenn.

The Hart victory lengthened a string of triumphs over Mondale that includes the New Hampshire primary, Maine caucuses and the Vermont beauty contest primary.

In a statement released in Washington, Hart said he hoped the Wyoming victory "means that Democrats can begin the effort to regain the West for our party."

Like other states where he had won primary victories, Hart said "this is another situation where we were outmanned."

Glenn attacked Hart for looking for "just another line" in his political biography by applying for a U.S. Naval Reserve commission in 1980.

"It's hardly logical to think he was looking forward to a Navy career or actually being called to duty," said Glenn, who spent 23 years in the Marines. "Every politician likes to have some military background listed on his record, even at the age of 41, after you're in the Senate."

In Plains, Ga., Carter said Mondale's service with him for four years as vice president had proved Mondale can handle the difficult choices facing a president.

"I know him well," said the former president. "I can tell you we're giving our support to a man who is tough himself."

Carter admitted Mondale is in a difficult position against Hart, whom he never named but whose "new ideas" theme he criticized.

"Fritz Mondale is in for a tough fight," Carter told the outdoor rally. "We've heard a lot in recent days about new and change and modern times and age and so forth. ... We need someone in the White House who can adjust to changing times but who does not abandon unchanging principles."

Following Carter to the podium, Mondale said that working with Carter, he had gained "an understanding and love of the South. ... I understand you. I understand your problems. But more than that, we share the same values."

In Worcester, Mass., Hart went after the nuclear freeze vote, seeking to deflect Mondale's criticism of his stand on arms control.

He told an enthusiastic crowd of 800 that the greatest priority of his administration would be to negotiate an arms agreement with the Soviet Union. As president, Hart said he would negotiate a freeze on the "production and deployment of all nuclear weapons."

Hart told reporters that he does not now support a nuclear weapons build-down. Hart once co-sponsored such a measure, which Mondale said was a Reagan administration effort to defuse the nuclear freeze.

"I do not support any build-down," Hart said in outlining his current position.

Hart walked the streets of an Italian neighborhood in Providence, R.I., with stops in Massachusetts and Connecticut before returning to Washington to prepare for Sunday's debate.

With a group of Georgia legislators at his side at an Atlanta news conference, Glenn appealed to the state's moderates and conservatives to support him and not "get swept away in a temporary avalanche" for Hart.

Glenn, who has campaigned heavily in Georgia and Alabama in the past two weeks, said "I think we can win Georgia." He urged voters not to "rush to judgment."

Georgia House Speaker Tom Murphy of Brennen said Glenn was "the only hope we in the Democratic Party have. It is easy to see he is the most conservative, fiscally responsible candidate in the Democratic primary."

Glenn, who was to embark on a day of campagining, including a stop at the Rattlesnake Roundup in Clackston, Ga., quipped, "I've seen a lot rattlesnakes along the trail ... now were going to see some genuine ones."

Jackson was in middle Georgia farm country calling for more aid to the nation's farmers and acknowledging the possibility he won't win the nomination.

"Our farmers are trapped, both black and white," he said. "We must save the farmer."

Jackson said his candidacy, based on a "rainbow coalition" of blacks, whites, Hispanics, women and the poor, may end in July when the Democratic Party holds its national convention. "But the rainbow will go on," he said.

Carter and Mondale and their wives met first in Carter's home about a half-mile from the center of Plains and walked to the rally at one end of the town's block-long main street.

It was held beside the railroad tracks that cut the town in half, and a couple of hundred feet from the old Jimmy Cater presidential campaign headquarters that dates back to 1976.

The crowd of 200 or so reporters and camera crews covering the event also was reminiscent of the days when the news media descended on Plains when Carter was running for president, and after he got elected.

After the rally, the crowd ate barbecue, which Carter had dropped by an hour earlier to sample.

Across the highway was Bobby Hale's Phillips 66 gas station with a big sign in front identifying it as "Billy Carter's Former Station."

Red, white and blue bunting was strung from Hugh Carter's antique store across the main street from the service station.

Mondale acknowledged in a speech at Emory University in Atlanta on Friday that Carter's backing could be a mixed blessing.

"I'm being advised to distance myself from President Carter," he told the student audience. "I say no."

However, President Reagan's campaign officials and other top Republicans never fail to link Mondale to Carter, who was a landslide loser in the 1980 election.

Among those at the rally was Otis Hargrove of Smithville, about 12 miles south of Plains. A black member of the Lee Country Board of Education, Hargrove said he supported Mondale, but wasn't sure of the value of the Carter backing.

"The way it happened to him (Carter) in 1980, I don't know whether he'll be too much help to him (Mondale)."

As they walked down the highway to the rally site — Mondale in jeans, Carter in khaki slacks — the two chatted about the weather and the former president pointed out town landmarks.

Study Cites Poverty Among U.S. Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — One out of five children and one out of two black children now live in poverty-stricken famlies in America, according to a study released Saturday by a House committee.

The study, conducted by the Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families, said the scope and speed of recent social and economic changes "are of a magnitude unprecedented in our lifetime."

It said the increase in poverty means that many of the hopes parents have for their children — better health, better training and a better standard of living — "will be weighed ever more carefully against their financial capacity to attain them."

Two weeks ago, the Census Bureau reported that the share of Americans living below the official poverty level increased from 11.7 percent in 1979 to 15 percent in 1982. But that report said its figures did not take into account the increase in so-called non-cash benefits, programs such as food stamps, school lunches, public housing, Medicaid, and Medicare.

For 1982, when official calculations estimated that 34.4 million Americans lived in poverty, the level for a four-person family was set at $9,682 in annual income.

The study from the Democrat-controlled committee said economic changes that have eroded families' security include unemployment and changed priorities in the federal budget. The panel issued its findings after a year-long study.

"The number of poor children increased by 2 million between 1980 and 1982. Today, one out of five children and one out of two black children live in poverty," it said.

On a hopeful note, the study concluded that much of the suffering experienced by American children and their families is preventable.

"We believe the knowledge already exists to eliminate many of the life-threatening risks faced by millions of children and to save tens of millions of dollars in future costs," it said.

Most of the early risks to children are preventable, it noted.

"Comprehensive prenatal care, including nutrition supplements, clearly reduced the numbers of infants born at risk from low birth weight. Quality preschool education has been proven effective in enhancing academic achievement," it said.

A factor contributing to the poverty of many households is because they are headed by one parent, often women who earn less than their male counterparts in the workforce.

"One out of three white children and three out of four black children can expect to spend some of their childhood in a single-parent household. These changes in the workplace and in the family composition have developed over many years and show every sign of continuing for the forseeable future," the study said.

Other findings from the committee's study included:

—Infant mortality for blacks is twice that for whites, and the gap between the two is widening. This year, 10,000 black infants will die in their first year of life.

—Reports of family violence, especially child abuse, have risen at an unprecedented rate in the last 10 years.

—Some of the alcohol and drug problems of youth have declined since the 1970s due to public and private initiatives, but teen-age suicides have tripled since the 1950s.

Radio Newsman Passed On Info

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A former radio newsman says he regularly furnished the 1980 Reagan campaign with information provided to White House reporters by the Carter re-election camp, a published report said Saturday.

The documents included advance speech texts and President Jimmy Carter's schedules for campaign events, Steve McCormick said in a story by the Media General News Service published in the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

McCormick, 70, now a Washington consultant, said he gave the material to Robert Garrick, a campaign aide of Edwin Meese III. Meese has been nominated by President Reagan to be attorney general.

Garrick, a retired Navy admiral who worked as a volunteer in Reagan's 1980 campaign, declined to return telephone calls.

McCormick told Media General that he was approached by Garrick at a news briefing. He said Garrick told him, "We'd sure like to see the handouts of the stuff that goes out of the Carter campaign. Could you send me some of that stuff off the handout rack?" The rack is in the White House press room.

McCormick said he agreed to provide Garrick with documents because "it was public information." He said he provided the Reagan campaign with "whatever was in the rack that they had an interest in."

He said Garrick called him periodically and requested material.

McCormick, who worked for the Mutual Broadcasting System for 25 years until 1970, had acceess to the White House press room in 1980 because he was running a news operation called the National News Service.

Jody Powell, Carter's former press secretary, described McCormick's actions as "clearly a violation of professional ethics." He said giving White House press information to an opposing campaign "would give you extra notice in case you wanted to respond. It would be much easier to respond if you had the information on a confidential basis."

Teacher Gets Suspension

ROSEVILLE, Mich. (AP) — A school board has voted to suspend a teacher without pay for 30 days because he invited students to join him in paddling a female pupil for chewing gum.

Before Frederick McCracken can return to teaching, he must have a psychiatric evaluation "so that the district is sure he is not a danger to students," said Joseph Steenland, president of the Board of Education in this Detroit suburb.

The board voted 5-2 Thursday to suspend the 21-year teaching veteran during a public meeting held after a closed session with McCracken and his attorney, Mark Cousens.

Once he returns, McCracken will work in the district's curriculum department for the remainder of the school year. If he is approved for reassignment in the fall, he will be sent to another school in the district.

Repeated telephone calls to McCracken's home Saturday were not answered.

The sixth-grade teacher at Fountain Elementary School was suspended Jan. 25, a day after he and most his 25 students paddled Kristi Haugh, 11, an honor student and cheerleader. She was treated for severe bruises of the buttocks and released from a hospital the night after the incident.

Kristi's father, Harold Haugh has filed a criminal assault suit against McCracken. No date has been set for the Roseville District Court trial.

Wachovia IRA

Wachovia is still your best choice for an Individual Retirement Account.

Here's why. There's one thing nearly all financial experts agree on: An IRA is one of the best tax-deferred retirement plans you can have. Here are five good reasons to have yours at Wachovia.

1. Money market rates. All Wachovia IRA investments earn top money market rates, compounded daily for higher annual yields. And there are no investment fees to reduce your yield. Compare with the rates being paid anywhere.

Example: Current rate and yield on Wachovia IRA invested in a 4-year, fixed-rate deposit (subject to change daily).

10.50% Annual Percentage Rate	11.069% Annual Yield
Other variable-rate and fixed-rate options are available. For the current rate, call a Personal Banker.℠

2. No minimum deposit. At Wachovia, you can open or add to your IRA in any amount. The maximum, by law, is $2,000 per year for every wage earner, or $4,000 for a working couple. But at Wachovia you don't have to deposit that much to get tax benefits and start saving for your retirement.

3. Multiple investment options. Wachovia offers a wide range of fixed-rate investments with guaranteed rates, at terms from three months to four years. And our variable-rate investment, the Accumulator, has no minimum and no required term. That means you can deposit any amount anytime, and you can automatically transfer funds to fixed-rate investments as often as you like without paying interest penalties. You'll receive a periodic statement showing all activity on your account.

4. Insured safety. Every Wachovia depositor's funds are insured up to $100,000 by F.D.I.C. And no matter how far away your retirement may be, you know Wachovia will still be here.

5. Your own Personal Banker. Only Wachovia gives you the services of your own Personal Banker, who can explain all the investment options in detail and help you decide which ones are right for you.

You can save on your 1983 taxes if you deposit before April 15.

Wachovia Bank & Trust

*Federal regulations require substantial interest penalties for early withdrawal from fixed-rate investments. In addition, tax penalties may apply to withdrawals from an IRA before age 59½.

In The World

Heart Drug

PHILADELPHIA — Researchers say injecting an anti-clotting drug into the veins of heart attack victims can help save lives in cases where the preferred method of injecting it into their coronary arteries is unavailable.

In an article in the March issue of the American Journal of Cardiology, a Temple University team led by Dr. James F. Spann said injecting streptokinase into a patient's veins costs about $200, needs no special facilities to carry out and can even be done in ambulances.

The currently accepteed method — injecting the drug into coronary arteries — is more effective than intravenous application, but it requires a specially trained team of doctors and a catheterization laboratory that costs more than $1 million, said Spann, chief of cardiology at the Temple School of Medicine.

Policemen Injured

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland — Roman Catholic youths hurled gasoline fire bombs and gunmen shot at police and British troops guarding 2,300 Protestants at a protest march Saturday, police reported.

They said two policemen were wounded by the fire bombs and a third was hurt during clashes with the demonstrators, but no one was injured when gunmen fired about a dozen shots at the security forces.

About 2,300 members of the Protestant Apprentice Boys, the paramilitary Ulster Defense Association and other groups marched to protest a British government decision allowing the Londonderry City Council to change its name to Derry City Council.

The Protestants oppose the use of the name Derry, which the city was called before 1613 when Protestants settled in the area nd renamed it after the British capital.

Bodies Found

HOUSTON — Divers searching inside an American drilling ship that sank during a typhoon in the South China Sea five months ago have discovered the bodies of 12 of the 81 crewmembers, officials said Saturday.

The discovery marked the first time the fate of any crewmembers has been known.

Dick Vermeer, a vice president with Global Marine Inc., the ship's owner, said the search of the Glomar Java Sea was continuing around the clock.

Disputed Home

CARROLLTON, Texas — A 75-year-old widow threatened with eviction from her lifelong home and suburban land worth more than $500,000 has reached a settlement that will give her a new house and an income for life.

Lawyers for Callie Wallace reached the agreement with a developer who is buying the five acres of land and agreed to drop a court suit against a contractor who Mrs. Wallace claimed cheated her out of the property more than 18 years ago.

"I heard a song in my heart that the Lord was watching over me," Callie Wallace said when the sale was made final Friday. "I couldn't ask for anything more. I'm happy to be staying on my homestead. That's the most important thing."

The property was given to Mrs. Wallace and her late husband by a cotton-farming family that had employed the couple for half their lives. The land skyrocketed in value from about $2,500 in 1944 when they took it over to more than $500,000 because of growth in this Dallas suburb.

Black Councilman

STOCKTON, Calif. — A black former city councilman is seeking a recall election, claiming that the man who defeated him is "a white guy with a perm" who defrauded voters by trying to pass himself off as black.

The winner says he regrets that he ever told a black audience he was black, although he describes himself as black "culturally, socially and genetically."

"When they asked me if I was white or black, I told them I was black," said 41-year-old Mark Stebbins, coordinator of several dozen city-sponsored community gardens. "I should have told them I'm human or it's none of your business or it's not an issue."

But Ralph White, 41, a millionaire bail bondsman who had held the minority-district seat for 12 years before Stebbins defeated him last fall, has said it is an issue.

Award For Dole

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., was awarded the 10th National Achievement Award from the Association of Cancer Centers on Saturday.

In accepting the award, Dole said community cancer centers should receive more federal money to cover the high cost of treating cancer patients.

Postman Shot

UTICA, N.Y. — A postman was shot by a sniper after delivering mail to a home, but didn't immediately realize he'd been hit and continued along his route, police say.

Rocco DiNardi, 58, was shot Friday afternoon while delivering mail at a city address, said Utica Police Capt. Richard Stemmer. DiNardi was listed in good condition Saturday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where he is expected to undergo surgery in a few days to remove a .22 caliber bullet from his right arm.

Pandas Saved

PEKING — Eight giant pandas have been saved from starvation in a government-sponsored effort to protect the rare animals during a bamboo famine in mountainous central China, an official report said Saturday.

"We must not be too optimistic about the future of the giant panda, but neither must we lose heart," said Dong Zhiyong, vice minister of forestry.

Dong was quoted as saying nine pandas had been found dead, "obviously from old age or disease" and that rescue workers had saved eight in Sichuan province since last September.

The natural habitat of the endangered species is the remote bamboo forests of Sichuan, Gansu and Shaanxi provinces in central China where an estimated 1,000 of the placid black-and-white animals survive.

Apartment Fire

NEW YORK — A suspicious fire exploded out of a suspected marijuana shop early Saturday, gutting three apartment buildings and chasing more than 120 people outside in 13-degree weather.

The five-alarm fire burned for four hours in eastern Harlem. Officials said four residents and 17 firefighters were hurt, none badly.

Residents reported hearing one or more explosions in a second-floor apartment moments before the flames erupted, and said the apartment was a marijuana store that police had raided the day before.

Spice Ruling

CINCINNATI — Foreign nations which take over property of U.S. businesses in their countries must make restitution under existing treaties, a federal appeals court has ruled in a case involving Ethiopia.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals cited the Sixth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution in ruling that Ethiopia's socialist government must pay a Michigan spice company for its property under terms of a 1953 treaty.

"Article VI of the Constitution provides that treaties made under the authority of the United States shall be the supreme law of the land," the court said in its ruling.

The U.S. Departments of State, Justice and Treasury and the American Bar Association filed briefs in the case urging the court to uphold the treaty, similar to ones with other nations.

No, Thank You

WASHINGTON — Maureen Reagan said Saturday she is not fazed by the criticism from a national conservative leader who has urged she be "muzzled."

Responding to comments by John T. Dolan, head of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, the president's daughter said: "I don't care what he's saying — it really makes no difference. I found it terribly amusing."

Ms. Reagan is a special consultant to the Republican National Committee, serving as a liaison between the committee and GOP women's campaign organizations.

Infant Rescued

LOS ANGELES — Occupants of a Skid Row hotel dropped an infant girl out a window to safety in the arms of a man standing on a 11th floor ledge when fire broke out on the 12th floor Saturday.

The baby wasn't hurt in her one-story plunge, city fire spokesman Henry Amparan said. He didn't have the names of the infant or her rescuer who had squeezed out onto the ledge to catch her.

The fire broke out at 7:27 a.m. in a 12th-floor room of the Frontier Hotel in the downtown Skid Row district. It caused $60,000 damage on that floor in the 18 minutes before 14 companies of firefighters doused it.

Suspect Apologizes

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. — An 18-year-old woman who went to the scene of a house burglary to apologize has been arrested and charged with entering the home and stealing $1,000 worth of jewels, Nassau County police said Saturday.

Moira Bosley of Farmingdale was charged with entering the South Farmingdale home of Joan Grossman through an unlocked side door and taking the jewelry, police said. She then allegedly sold the stolen jewels for $500 in Bay Shore.

Police said Miss Bosley apparently suffered an attack of conscience and wrote a letter of apology to Mrs. Grossman, in which she promised full restitution. She returned to the Grossman home Friday with a check for $500 and asked Mrs. Grossman to forgive her, police said. Mrs. Grossman called police and Miss Bosley, a cashier who lives with her mother here, was charged with burglary, police said.

Rabbi Arrested

TEL AVIV, Israel — Police arrested a rabbi Saturday for allegedly leading a group of 25 ultra-Orthodox Jews who smashed up a coffee shop in Petah Tikva because it was open on the Sabbath.

The arrest sparked demonstrations in Petah Tikva, 10 miles east of Tel Aviv, and Israel Radio said members of the ultra-Orthodox Agudat Israel party threatened to break away from the ruling coalition in Parliament.

It said Agudat Israel leaders announced they could not support a government that permitted the arrest of a rabbi for protesting the "desecration" of the Sabbath.

Boy Is Shot

CROTHERSVILLE, Ind. — A 5-year-old boy died Saturday after a deer rifle he and his brother had placed on a bed fired when the two began jumping on the bed, state police said.

Travis Barger of Austin and his 8-year-old brother had been playing with a .30-caliber rifle and apparently cocked it before setting it on the bed under covers, said state police Cpl. Charles Conrad.

The boys began jumping on the bed and the gun fired, hitting the younger brother in the chest, Conrad said.

Missile Protest

OTTAWA — Police arrested three demonstrators in a clash Saturday between officers and some 175 people protesting the testing of U.S. cruise missiles in Canada.

The demonstration was one of several across the nation. About 500 people rallied peacefully in Toronto while smaller protests were staged without violence in Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary and Prince George.

Demonstrators at the Ottawa rally turned on police for arresting a young man who spray-painted the words "No Cruise" on a downtown building that contains offices of Litton Industries, a U.S.-based company that makes parts of the cruise missile's guidance system.

Rebels Repelled

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Leftist rebels armed with mortars and automatic rifles attacked about 500 government troops in an important eastern city but were repelled Saturday, a national guard commander said.

An undetermined number of insurgents, backed by fire from 81mm mortars, attacked Santiago de Maria, 75 miles east of the capital, late Friday and the fighting continued until Saturday morning, the national guard officer said.

The commander, who asked not to be identified for security reasons, had no figures on military casualties. Officials at the local hospital said three civilians were wounded in the crossfire — an elderly man, a woman and a child.

Conference On Lebanon Slated Monday

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy fighting raged through most quarters of the capital Saturday and an artillery shell slammed into a clinic, killing seven people. Political leaders went to a conference in Switzerland to try to "put an end Lebanon's agonies."

Fourteen people were killed, including four Lebanese army soldiers, and dozens were wounded in the fighting Saturday, police said.

By nightfall, barrages of artillery and mortar fire battered much of east and west Beirut, as well as in both its Christian and Moslem suburbs, police said.

In the predominantly Shiite Moslem southern suburbs, officials at the Al Zahraa Hospital said seven people were killed and at least 22 were injured when a shell struck a medical clinic.

Officials at the hospital, where victims from the clinic were taken, said some of the casualties were children who had been waiting for treatment at the clinic. The officials declined to be identified.

A field hospital near the Sabra and Chatilla Palestinian refugee camps came under fire Saturday, with an undetermined number of injuries.

Police reported heavy exchanges of fire along "green line" frontier between Christian east and mostly Moslem west Beirut. At times all sections alongthe front were engaged in the fighting, which pitted the Lebanese army against Syrian-backed Shiite and Druse militiamen.

Efforts to arrange a cease-fire were under way, and state-run Beirut radio said Lebanese President Amin Gemayel called Syrian President Hafez Assad by telephone during the day and "exchanged views on efforts to close Lebanese ranks."

However, the Voice of Lebanon radio run by rightist Christian factions said the fighting spread after dark to the central mountains east of Beirut. The radio said army positions at the strategic mountain town of Souk el-Gharb came under attack and were returning fire.

After his call to Assad, Gemayel left on a private plane for Europe. Lebanon state television said he planned stopovers in Paris and Geneva, Switzerland, before arriving Monday in Lausanne, Switzerland, for the start of a national reconciliation conference.

"We hope the reconciliation dialogue in Lausanne will put an end to Lebanon's agonies and provide a new start for a better life," said Prime Minister Shafik Wassan, who was with Gemayel when he called Assad.

The conference was part of an arrangement Gemayel and Assad worked out in talks in Damascus at the beginning of March. As part of the agreement, Gemayel gave up Lebanon's troop withdrawal pact with Israel, and Syria pledged to help bring to an end to the renewed Lebanese civil war.

Lebanon's four opposition leaders met in Damascus on Saturday to consolidate their positions on political and constitutional reforms.

The four leaders — former Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh, a Maronite Christian; former Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem; Druse leader Walid Jumblatt and Shiite Moslem militia commander Nabih Berri — went to Switzerland after the meeting.

A source in Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party said the opposition leaders agreed on a program that includes abolishing religious sectarianism in Lebanon's government, restructuring the army, a comprehensive cease-fire, and an investigation into the recent shelling of the southern suburbs and of mountain villages populated by Druse, a secretive sect of Islam.

Polish Youth Stage Protest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Young people from around Poland gathered Saturday at the shrine of the Black Madonnain a display of solidarity with the youths of Garwolin, who are protesting the removal of crucifixes from their high schools.

A Roman Catholic bishop told an estimated 3,000 teen-age pilgrims at the shrine in Czestochowa that the church is "disturbed" that Polish authorities have declared a "war against the cross."

A monastery spokesman said 25 groups from throughout the country converged unexpectedly on Czestochowa, site of the Black Madonna — the most revered shrine in this officially atheist but overwhelmingly Roman Catholic nation. Some students said they had scheduled the trip previously to celebrate their upcoming graduations.

Nearly 700 of the youths traveled overnight from the towns of Mietno and Garwolin south of Warsaw where high school students occupied one school and boycotted classes at three others last week.

The removal of crosses from schools in and around Garwolin, 40 miles south of Warsaw, has led to the most significant unrest in Poland since the government declared martial law in December 1981 and suspended the independent Solidarity labor federation.

"The cross has been the dearest sign for worshipers," Bishop Franciszek Musiel told pilgrims crowded into the Black Madonna chapel in the hilltop monastery of Jasna Gora for a morning Mass.

"It hurts us very much that the war against the cross in Poland, the removal of the cross from schools, is taking place in the Year of the Holy Jubilee of the 1,950th anniversary of the suffering and death of Christ on the cross," he said.

He referred to the designation given by Polish-born Pope John Paul II to the year ending on Easter Day.

"And it hurts us very much that the educators, who should abide by the teachings of the highest order, instead give examples of intolerance for the feelings and religious beliefs of their pupils," Musiel said.

A tape of the sermon was made available to The Associated Press in Warsaw by CBS television news.

Several students said police stopped them repeatedly for identity checks as they left Garwolin, later when they boarded the train in Warsaw and again after they arrived early Saturday morning in Czestochowa.

Just after midday, they headed back south, where a student protest forced the closure last Wednesday night of the Stanislaw Staszic agricultural school in the village of Mietno, and led students to boycott classes Thursday at three schools in nearby Garwolin.

Poland's bishops urged the Communist government in a communique last September to stop taking crosses from the walls of state-owned factories, hospitals and schools. They have not said how many such incidents have occurred.

Government officials defend the removal of the crosses on the basis of a July 1961 law defining separation of church and state. But they also have said they want to avoid triggering unrest over the issue.

Tests Reportedly Prove Use Of Gas

Show Chemical Us VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Tests on wounded Iranian soldiers show "with certain proof" the men were stricken by mustard gas and "yellow rain," a physician said Saturday. Iran has repeatedly accused Iraq of using the banned weapons in the Persian Gulf war.

Iraq has issued several denials of the allegation.

Dr. Herbert Mandl said laboratory tests on two of 10 Iranian fighters under hospital treatment in Vienna revealed traces of mustard gas and mycotoxin, a poison derived from fungi commonly referred to as "yellow rain."

Such chemical weapons are banned for use in warfare under the 1925 Geneva Protocol.

A State Department spokesman said last week the United States has known since last year of the use of chemical weapons by Iraq in the 3½-year-old war, but Mandl's statements represented the most specific detailing of the charge so far.

Clemency Guideline Is Sought For State

RALEIGH (AP) — As defense attorneys intensify their effort to save James W. Hutchins from execution next week, death penalty opponents are calling for a formal means of seeking clemency from the governor.

Hutchins is scheduled to die by lethal injection next Friday for killing three Rutherford County law enforcement officers. His attorneys asked the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Friday to stay the execution while they pursue an appeal. The three-judge panel did not say when it would rule.

Larry Vellani, a spokesman for North Carolinians Against the Death Penalty, said every Southern state that has executed someone since 1977 has a formal procedure by which the inmate may ask the governor for mercy.

"By formal we mean an official hearing is set, notification is given to all concerned and interested parties and people have a chance to come down and present a great amount of information on the individual that usually does not exist within the court record," Vellani said.

Such information might include the inmate's work, military records and comments about his standing in the community, he said. Vellani said Hutchins, whom a psychiatrist called paranoid and schizophrenic, was unable to help his attorneys present key information during his trial.

Death penalty opponents want Gov. Jim Hunt to name a group to help him gather information for consideration at a clemency hearing, give three to four weeks notice of such hearings; consider a broad base of information not presented at the trial, meet after the hearing with people who want to give the governor information face-to-face, and compensate the inmate's attorneys for time and expenses associated with the hearing; perhaps a limit of $2,000.

Brent Hackney, a spokesman for Hunt, said the governor has no plans to change the procedure, "mainly because he feels like the process as it occurred last time there was a scheduled execution ... afforded him ample information."

Hutchins originally was scheduled to die Jan. 13 but the execution was postponed by last-minute appeals.

Hunt met with death penalty opponents and Hutchins' wife the day before the scheduled execution. But Vellani said that wasn't enough because some people did not have enough time to get to Raleigh or to prepare themselves to meet with the governor and by that time the appeals were "frantic and emotional."

He said his group has been working since December 1983 to get Hunt to establish a clemency procedure administratively but, "we're down now to less than seven days from Hutchins' scheduled execution and the governor has done nothing about it so we wanted to raise public dialogue about it."

Makeshift Dam Provides Water

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — A makeshift, hastily constructed dam should provide this town of 7,580 with water until another structure that collapsed this week can be rebuilt, officials say.

Heavy rains caused a dam in Roxboro's reservoir to break Wednesday, leading Mayor D'Arcy Bradsher to declare a state of emergency. Pumps at a makeshift reservoir began sending water to a filtration plant for distribution to city residents Friday morning.

The Water Works Lake, five miles northwest of the city, was Roxboro's primary source of water for 11,000 city and county consumers, including several major industries.

The industries were forced to close after the dam break drained 500 million gallons. Officials said the companies would remain closed until at Monday at the earliest.

Workers hurriedly built a temporary dam at an upper portion of the dry reservoir, filling in a 1921 dam that had been cut when the larger dam downstream went into operation in 1954. City Manager Clarence Burch said Friday that the temporary dam was holding back the water.

"This takes the pressure off us," Burch said. But the state of emergency will remain in effect until the dam is rebuilt later this year, he added.

Roxboro's situation became critical late Thursday night because the temporary reservoir had not filled with water as quickly as had been hoped.

The city pumped water to the lake from a city-owned holding reservoir 15 miles away at an average of 8 million gallons per day. Burch said Friday that the rate had dropped to 6 million gallons per day.

Health Care Plan Promoted

GREENSBORO (AP) — Health maintenance organizations, which proponents tout as cutting health care costs, are trying to establish themselves in North Carolina.

One of the nation's largest HMOs, HealthAmerica Inc., has started an extensive marketing campaign to attract customers, advertising in newspapers and radios across the Piedmont.

In the past three weeks, HealthAmerica has run full-page weekly newspaper ads in Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Chapel Hill, Charlotte, Raleigh, Durham and Mount Olive. It has sponsored radio commericials on some 16 radio stations urging readers to "ask your employer about the HealthAmerica Cure" for rising health care costs.

Gordon Church, HealthAmerica's state director, said the promotional campaign began in late February and will continue for several weeks.

"We are not enrolling people at this time," Church said. "We want people to be able to identify HealthAmerica so that when they have the opportunity through their employer to join, it won't be something that will be brand new to them."

Most HMOs are alternatives to traditional health insurance. Typically, they provide broad health care coverage by paying a fixed monthly health management fee per subscribing patient to a cooperating doctor.

The physician then is bound to meet the subscriber's health needs.

Two State Officials Indicted

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A probe that resulted in bid-rigging charges against two state officials and a local contractor revealed "shocking" activities and probably will produce other indictments, a federal prosecutor says.

The indictments handed down by a federal grand jury Friday are the first in North Carolina to charge public officials with bid rigging, said Robert Pence, director of FBI operations in the state.

The grand jury indicted Edward Hume Paschall, 61, former resident engineer for the state Department of Transportation in Asheville, and William Albert Ricker, 43, a DOT maintenance crew leader, on charges of affecting interstate commerce through extortion.

Paschall, of Black Mountain, is charged with three counts and Ricker, of Mars Hill, is charged with two counts.

Also indicted was Baxter H. Taylor, 66, president of Asheville Contracting Co., on three counts of mail fraud, one count of conspiracy to furnish false information to the U.S. government and the Federal Highway Administration, and one count of violating anti-trust laws.

If convicted, Taylor faces a maximum of 23 years in prision and fines totaling $113,000. Paschall faces up to 60 years in prison and fines up to $60,000 if convicted, and Ricker could receive 40 years in prison and $20,000 in fines if convicted.

U.S. Attorney Charles Brewer said the indictments "have the potential for leading to the biggest investigation" his western North Carolina office has handled.

"The information we got was shocking to us — who knew about it (bid rigging) and what they did and didn't do," said Brewer. The indictments, he said, are "definitely not the end. We look at (them) as a stepping stone to other indictments."

The indictments stem from the awarding of contracts in 1978 and 1979 for a $20 million, 10-mile stretch of U.S. 25-70 between Marshall and Weaverville in Madison and Buncombe counties. Asheville Construction Co. and Phillips and Jordan Inc., formerly of Robbinsville, won the bids.

Phillips and Jordan president Ted Phillips and vice president Ben Turner pleaded guilty in 1981 to bid rigging in connection with the same contract.

The indictments say Paschall and Ricker took a trip to Hilton Head Island in 1980 at the expense of Asheville Contracting Co. and accepted round-trip air transportation and lodging at a hunting resort in Texas paid for by Phillips and Jordan.

The indictment says Taylor formulated and submitted collusive bids in a conspiracy with other construction firms.

Intolerate Town 'Locked Out' Fugitives

By JODY TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

MARION, N.C. (AP) — James Clegg and Ronald L. Freeman "walked right into a hornet's nest" when they tried to hide out in a North Carolina mountain town that's friendly to strangers but wouldn't tolerate the escaped Tennessee convicts.

"People are tough in Marion," said McDowell County District Attorney Alan Leonard. "It's a close-knit community."

Clegg was recaptured Wednesday, hours after lawmen cornered Freeman in an abandoned tarpaper shack and killed him. The events of that day ended a 19-day rampage by the escapees. A blind woman in Marion was scared into a heart attack when she learned Freeman was in her house, two North Carolina Highway Patrol troopers were wounded and a Tennessee man was shot to death in his backyard as he grilled steaks.

Clegg was charged with wounding a trooper in North Carolina and first-degree murder in Tennessee.

When Clegg was brought in, Leonard said, he was so cold from hiding under a garage for two days that "he was in the early stages of hypothermia. He was shaking so hard he couldn't hold a pen. He seemed almost to be relieved."

"The whole town literally locked Clegg out in the cold," he said.

It was Freeman's dash from a woodpile hiding place near railroad tracks to the home of Molly Harvey, the 67-year-old woman who had the fatal heart attack, that spelled the end for Clegg as well as Freeman.

"Law enforcement officers thought they were 10 or 11 miles away," Leonard said. "Freeman probably gave the two of them away and focused the heat on Marion. If they had laid low another day, they probably would have had it made, but Freeman was stupid enough to go into somebody's house."

Freeman was described as having a reckless, split personality, Leonard said. Freeman shot it out with deputies at the Harvey home, tried to break into Eddie Duncan's home but was scared away by Duncan's rifle shots and made his last stand behind a door propped in a corner of a two-room shack.

Leonard said people in the mill town of 5,000 in western North Carolina, where life usually proceeds at a plodding pace, "responded very well."

"You could sort of equate it to being in a war zone," he said.

"I'll lock horns with a bull because I'm that stupid," said Marion resident Barbara Allison, who works in a clothing store on the town's quaint Main Street. "I've never been afraid, but this really frightened me. I got bullets for my pistols and rifles."

McDowell County Deputy Sheriff S.S. Blankenship, a 21-year veteran of law enforcement, participated in the manhunt for Clegg and Freeman. He was 100 yards away when Freeman was killed by two shotgun blasts in the corner of the abandoned building.

It was Blankenship's second manhunt since 1979. But the first was easier because police knew where the suspect had hidden.

"There was just one down there and somebody had an eye on him at all times," Blankenship said. "Nobody really had an eyeball on them."

"People in town were seeing all kinds people running across the road," he said. "I'll bet our dispatcher and the police dispatcher in a 24-hour period probably took 2,000 calls."

Residents of the town were advised to stay in their homes and keep their cars locked.

Leonard said cooperation from the residents helped authorities.

"A lot of stores were closed," he said. "Nobody was out watering their lawn or walking on the streets."

"There were a lot of people in their homes looking out from their curtains and I'm confident most of them were armed," Leonard said. "People were not trigger happy, but they were prepared to defend themselves."

While the town started getting back to normal after the national attention that swooped upon it, some bitter feelings remained.

Libby Williams said she felt "anger that this could happen and a lot of apprehension."

Beth Lytle, who works in the clerk's office at the red brick McDowell County Courthouse in the center of town, said it was strange that the convicts would come to Marion, where people recognized strangers as strangers.

"Why here? It looks like they would have gone to a large city where they could get lost," Mrs. Lytle said.

Convict's Victim Is Buried

By DEBRA WILLIAMS

MARION, N.C. (UPI) — A community terrorized by the violent rampage of two Tennessee fugitives Saturday buried Mollie Harvey, the great-grandmother who suffered a fatal heart attack when one of them burst into her home.

Uniformed members of the state Highway Patrol and Corrections Department were among about 200 people crowded into the brick-and-cinderblock Catawba Heights Baptist Church for the afternoon service.

From the church's front steps, mourners could see the house where fugitive Ronald Freeman died in a point-blank shootout with authorities Wednesday. Just hours earlier, Freeman had burst into Mrs. Harvey's house, prompting the fatal attack.

Shortly before Mrs. Harvey died, Freeman's partner James Clegg was captured from his hiding place under a nearby house.

An arrangement of yellow roses dotted with pink roses lay on the 62-year-old woman's casket. A large circle of white flowers and a four-tiered red heart with a ribbon that read "Grandchildren" stood to the left of the casket. On the other side were a pink heart floral arrangement and flowers in the form of a cross.

In the brief service, Mrs. Harvey was eulogized as a "giving, thoughtful and helpful" person.

"I don't understand these circumstances, but there is reason in all things," one of three ministers said as some family members wept openly. "It is hard to lose a loved one — and it is even harder under these circumstances."

Mrs. Harvey and her blind husband, Rass, were at home with her daughter-in-law Peggy and two of nine grandchildren when Freeman kicked in a door at their home.

Armed with a gun, Freeman hid in a back room as emergency medical workers tended Mrs. Harvey.

Fugitive Returns To Prison Cell

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Killer convict James Clegg was in Tennessee's most secure cellblock Saturday facing murder, kidnap and escape charges for an 18-day crime wave that stretched 2,000 miles across six states.

Clegg, double-murderer Ronald Freeman and three other inmates broke out of Fort Pillow Prison Farm in West Tennessee Feb. 18 and embarked on a trail of terror left three dead and turned "peaceful" towns into armed camps of frightened citizens.

Their flight from justice ended Wednesday. Freeman, chased from house to house in a night of terror for residents of Marion, N.C., died at daybreak in a blazing, point-blank gunbattle with sheriffs. Authorities later caught Clegg hiding beneath a sheet of plywood.

Arzo Carson, director of the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation, said Freeman and Clegg covered six states and 2,000 miles by car, pickup truck, train and on foot — passing through Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and North Carolina.

Two families were taken hostage, a Sunday school teacher was gunned down, an elderly blind woman frightened by Freeman suffered a heart attack and died and the trooper was shot four times before the crime spree ended.

FARMVILLE'S SOUTHSIDE SPEAKS OUT ON PROPOSED PLANS OF MERGER
THE CLOSING OF H. B. SUGG SCHOOL

The time has come to address a concern that the Pitt County community has about the possible merger of two school systems; Greenville City Schools and Pitt County Schools. Recently, the Research Triangle Institute presented its report on what it perceived to be the problems facing the two public school systems. Its conclusions would have the citizens of Pitt County and Greenville City believe that a merger is both necessary and crucial to the quality of education both systems are now offering. At no time does the report deal with absolutes; it offers suppositions, "possibles" and "maybes."

One need or problem area identified by the RTI is the inadequate use of present building facilities. In identifying this area as a problem, the institute recommends the closing of H. B. Sugg School. The report encourages building ten additional rooms to the Sam D. Bundy School and closing a twenty-four room building with cafeteria and gymtorium. How can the taxpayers of Pitt County support the closing of a building that as recently as 1984 was fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and as recently as December 7, 1983, passed a School Sanitation Inspection in an exemplary manner with a rating of 920 out of 1000 points? How can the County Commissioners and School Board of Pitt County expect the taxpayers to fund a building addition to Bundy in light of these facts? Certainly, the taxpayers of Pitt County expect their Commissioners and School Board to act more responsibly than to close one perfectly functional school building and build new classrooms at another. Will the proposed building project include additions to the cafeteria since an additional 500 plus students will have to be absorbed or will a new school building be built instead? Since a projected increase in the number of students served by Pitt County Schools is expected, will future building projects be undertaken? Finally, how long, if ever, will the taxpayers have to wait before such a move in building new facilities becomes a savings?

We can only say that a move to close a safe, fully functional, and certified building is, to say the least, a poor decision. It would be a decision that the majority of the taxpayers would not b able to sanction. The decision to close H. B. Sugg School is not an educationally sound one. It is not based upon the Southern Association's inability to accredit the facilities and programs offered in the building. It is not based upon the Fire Inspectors' inability to certify the building's safety. It would not be based upon the Department of Human Resources' ability to find the building's sanitation lacking. It is not founded on the basis of savings in transportation-since some students will be transported past a usable facility some distance to another one. At the same time, some very young children will have to walk longer distances to school, which certainly places them at risk to traffic accidents.

Can the taxpayers sanction the plans of the School Board and possibly those of the County Commissioners? We, the Southside Committee to save H. B. Sugg School can not support this decision.

In The State

Lowering Rates

WILMINGTON — Officials at New Hanover Memorial Hospital say they may cut room rates by $15 a day in the wake of more than $1 million in unexpected profits for the first four months of the 1983-84 fiscal year.

The executive committee of the hospital's Board of Trustees decided to recommend to the full board that rates be lowered in April because of the facility's strong financial standing.

NHMH's net income was more than $3.2 million for the first quarter of the hospital's fiscal year, ending at the beginning of January.

Rescuer Dies

GREENSBORO — A Greensboro woman died in a house fire Friday after she led a blind man outside to safety and returned to fight the blaze.

The fire was caused when the blind man, who rented a room from the victim, used his cane to stir a fire in a wood-burning heater and unknowingly laid the burning cane on a chair, according to fire officials.

Mary Louis Darden, 58, was overcome by toxic smoke and was dead on arrival at Moses Cone Memorial Hospital.

EDB Proposals

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Board of Agriculture will meet April 24 to consider permanent tolerances for EDB in grain products.

The board had tentatively scheduled a meeting for March 13, but the meeting has been canceled.

The board, in an emergency session Feb. 6, adopted temporary guidelines for products containing the pesticide. The temporary guidelines are valid for 120 days, during which time the board must hold a public hearing for public input on permanent regulations.

That hearing will be held in conjunction with the April 24 meeting.

Awards Announced

RALEIGH — Two North Carolina State University engineering faculty members have been selected to receive Presidential Young Investigator Awards.

The awards carry the possibility of receiving up to $100,000 a year in research funds for the next five years.

Dr. William J. Koros, professor of chemical engineering, and Dr. Wyn D. Laidig, assistant professor of electrical and computer engineering, were among the first group of 200 engineers and scientists in the country to be selected for the awards.

Each award carries an annual base grant of $25,000 from the National Science Foundation and up to $37,000 each year to match contributions raised by the winner's university.

Father Charged

KENANSVILLE — The father of four children who died in a house fire Feb. 29 has been charged with four counts of involuntary manslaughter and exposing children to fire.

Bond for Anthony Eugene Frink, 28, of Wallace, has been set at $10,000.

The children of Florene and Anthony Frink died in the fire that destroyed their home in the Deep Bottom area between Wallace and Pin Hook.

The exposure charge is a misdemeanor for which the court may set punishment at its discretion.

Under state law, it is illegal to confine a child age 7 or younger, without leaving a person of the age of discretion in charge, in a building where the child might be exposed to danger by fire.

Salary Proposals

RALEIGH — Public school teachers and state employees would get a pay raise of at least 10 percent this summer under a plan proposed by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

Green also proposed that beginning teachers' salaries be raised to make them more competitive with salaries in private industry and said he will consider other ways of improving state employee benefits if additional money is available.

A statement released through his office said Green will propose "post-retirement allowances" for state employees that are comparable to cost-of-living increases for active workers.

Plan Abandoned

RALEIGH — A committee of the North Carolina State Bar has abandoned a proposal to bond attorneys as a way of protecting against abuse of clients' trust funds.

The committee instead is leaning toward establishing a special fund to reimburse the victims, Clifton W. Everett, State Bar president, said.

Everett earlier had said the committee was considering the bond proposal in response to several recent cases involving lawyers and their clients' funds.

Probe Closed

CLINTON (AP) — An attorney for a Sampson County sweet potato packer and shipper says a federal investigation into alleged price fixing has been closed.

No charges were filed against Rice Matthis Jr., said Douglas Parsons, Rice's attorney. Parsons said a U.S. Justice Department probe of Rice had taken 14 months.

"When the U.S. Department of Justice investigates you for 14 months and makes no charges, you are clean," Parsons said.

Poster Campaign

CHARLOTTE — Catholic leaders say they're worried about a campaign in North Carolina and elsewhere to convince the public that their church controls many of the nation's top newspapers, magazines and television networks.

Posters bearing that allegation recently have appeared in Charlotte and in a number of cities in other states.

One of the 11-by-14-inch posters reads: "Warning! People. Newsweek. Time. Life magazines are secretly owned by The Vatican.

"Secretly The Vatican also owns: NBC, CBS and ABC and many other local newspapers, T.V. and radio stations."

Guns Sought

FORT BRAGG — U.S. soldiers who took weapons as souvenirs of their occupation of the Caribbean island nation of Grenada have until March 23 to turn them in and avoid violations of military law, officials say.

Since American troops returned in November, the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has said soldiers had "perhaps even hundreds" of enemy weapons in their possession. The bureau reminded Fort Bragg officials that the custom of bringing back enemy weapons, often overlooked in wartime, is illegal even if the weapons are rendered harmless.

Lt. Col. David McNeill, deputy staff judge advocate of the 18th Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg, said soldiers have been granted amnesty to turn in weapons until midnight March 23.

Tanker Overturns

CHARLOTTE — A special team of Charlotte firefighters spent several hours Friday pumping 3,000 gallons of potentially dangerous phosphoric acid from an overturned tanker truck.

Assistant Fire Chief Robert Ellison said traffic was detoured around the block where the crash occurred. He said the chemical forms highly flammable hydrogen gas when it contacts metal and can mucus membranes of the eyes, nose and lungs.

Ellison said the truck, operated by the Fleet Transport Co. of Charlotte and driven by Scott Powell, 29, apparently overturned when the load shifted as the truck turned.

"I don't really know what happened," said Powell. "I guess it slished when it should've sloshed."

Michaux Debt

RALEIGH — Former U.S. Attorney H.M. "Mickey" Michaux of Durham says he's getting a lot of promises from politicians, but little real help in retiring a $137,000 campaign debt left from his 1982 bid for Congress.

"Everyone who is looking for something wants to help me retire my debt," Michaux said. "Everybody says they want to help, but no one does."

Michaux's campaign had attracted national attention, and he had made the fund-raising rounds in Washington. After his defeat, he went back to Washington to seek help in raising money from presidential candidates and potential candidates.

Rewards Posted

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has announced the state is offering rewards of $5,000 each for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for two separate murders.

The rewards were offered in the murder of Sharon Beatrice Jones, a student at Elizabeth City State University, and Kennard Elliott Littlejohn of Charlotte.

Ms. Jones' body was found in her dormitory room March 5. She had been strangled. Littlejohn's body was found in a rural wooded area in Cabarrus County Feb. 17.

Bush To Visit

Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., state chairman of the Reagan-Bush campaign, said the vice president will be in Jackson March 16 for a noon rally before flying to North Carolina.

A campaign spokesman said a detailed advisory of the vice president's scheduled will be released prior to his arrival in Mississippi.

Duke, Maryland Gain Finals

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO (AP) — Maryland had two opportunities to fall out of the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament, but the 14th-ranked Terrapins held on long enough for a 66-64 triumph over No. 19 Wake Forest.

The Demon Deacons staged two second-half rallies, but Adrian Branch's 12 points in the period guaranteed coach Lefty Driesell's sixth trip to the ACC tourney finals.

"If we had lost, I probably would have cussed them out," Driesell said. "But since we won, I guess I won't get on them."

The Blue Devils split their two meetings with the Terrapins, but Duke invaded Cole Field House and took an 89-84 victory.

"I want the players to be loose. That is the way we've done it all year," Driesell said. "If we win, then the good Lord wants us to win. If we lose, He wants us to lose."

Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy noted his team's two comebacks.

"We extended ourselves and just did not have enough left," Tacy said. "It's hard to come back against a team as strong as Maryland."

Maryland led by as much as 11 in the first half and claimed a 33-20 halftime lead. Wake Forest got hot at the start of the second half and turned a possible runaway into a battle.

Delaney Rudd and Kenny Green sparked an 18-6 run which cut the halftime deficit to 39-38 with 14 minutes left. Branch, who scored four of the six Maryland points in the Wake Forest explosion, ignited an 8-0 Terrapin run and pushed the edge back to 47-38 at the 11:09 mark.

Branch added two free throws with four minutes left to give Maryland a 61-50 advantage, but Wake Forest put on one last push. A 10-2 run, capped by Anthony Teachey's two free throws with 1:45 left, brought Wake Forest to within 63-60.

Ben Coleman hit a pair of free throws with 50 seconds left while Danny Young had a basket for the Demon Deacons. Keith Gatlin, whose free throws helped Maryland beat North Carolina State Friday night, missed the front end of a bonus and Teachey retaliated with a layup with 28 seconds left.

Wake Forest couldn't manage a foul in the next 26 seconds, and when Len Bias was finally hacked, he missed the front end of the bonus. Wake Forest couldn't get off a good shot in time and the Terrapins raised their record to 22-7.

Branch and Coleman scored 16 points apiece while Bias added 15 for Maryland.

Delaney Rudd, whose shooting sparked the first Wake Forest comeback, led the way with 20 points. Teachey had 16 and Green added 14. Wake Forest dropped to 21-8.

Duke will be in its first ACC tournament final since 1980, when it won a 73-72 decision over Maryland. For North Carolina, it was the first ACC loss after 15 victories over league rivals.

The hotly-contested battle was tied eight times in the first 15 minutes of the second half, the latest a 69-69 tie on Matt Doherty's jumper with 2:39 left. Johnny Dawkins broke the knot with a 15-foot jumper with 2:10 left, and Mark Alarie added two free throws with 60 seconds left to play.

Freshman Joe Wolf was fouled by Alarie and hit two free throws to bring the Tar Heels within 73-71 at the 51-second mark, but Henderson started his string at that point.

Michael Jordan's jumper proved to be North Carolina's last gasp at the five-second mark. Henderson then missed the front end of a one-and-one and the Tar Heels called timeout. With three seconds left, Doherty attempted a long pass to Jordan. The ball never got inbounds, however and the Blue Devils were home free.

Alarie finished with 21 points, while Dawkins added 16, Handerson had 14 and Jay Bilas chipped in 10.

Jordan scored 22 points and Doherty added 20 for the Tar Heels, who fell to 27-2.

Nation's Best? Jordan, Of Course

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jordan of top-ranked North Carolina was named winner Saturday of the John R. Wooden Award as the outstanding collegiate basketball player of the 1983-84 season.

Jordan, a 6-foot-6 junior guard, will be presented the award at a dinner at the Los Angeles Athletic Club on April 4, two days after the NCAA Championship game is played at Seattle.

The award is determined by a vote of 1,000 sports writers and sportscasters from throughout the country.

Third Try Is Duke Charm

GREENSBORO — Perhaps three times is the charm.

North Carolina escaped with victories over Duke twice during the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season, the last coming in the finale in double overtime. But the top-ranked and once-beaten Tar Heels couldn't escape a third time, losing 77-75 in the semifinals of the ACC basketball tournament.

There were many similarities in the first two meetings and they flashed through the Duke players' minds — the missed free throws, the turnovers, and the misfired shots.

But the free throws in this game won't haunt Dan Meagher or David Henderson.

"I knew they were going to try and foul me," said Meagher, who missed a free throw in the closing minutes of the last regular-season meeting that could have won it for the Blue Devils.

This time, Duke hit eight free throws in a four-and-a-half minute period to maintain a four-point lead until there were 17 seconds left. Meagher hit two of those and Henderson was responsible for four.

Pirate Rally Tops Princeton

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Todd Evans' sixth inning home run rallied East Carolina from a 2-0 deficit and the Pirates went on to record a 5-4 baseball victory over Princeton University Saturday afternoon.

Evans, the lone Pirate with more than one hit on the day, gave the Pirates a brief lead before the Tigers came back to tie it up in the top of the seventh. But East Carolina pushed back ahead in the bottom of the inning and then held off Princeton for the win.

Jimbo Peterson gained the victory, his first of the season, coming in for starter Robby McClanahan in the seventh inning after Princeton threatened to regain the lead. Reliever Scott LaForest took the loss, his first decision.

Princeton's starter had been William Beard, the son of a former Greenville resident, Dr. Shelley Beard, now a resident of Cleveland, Ohio.

The Tigers, who were opening the season with the game, came up with two unearned runs in the third inning to take the lead. Marc Goldenberg led off with a single to center and with two away, Daniel Arendas reached on an error. Todd Tuckner reached on a groud-ruled double to center, scoring Goldenberg. Henry Kolowrat followed with a single to right, scoring Arendas.

East Carolina, after a double steal went to no good in the first, was held in check until Evans got the first hit off Beard in the fourth. But it was the sixth before the Pirates finally broke the scoring ice.

Jim Riley led off with a single — his first hit of the year — and Mark Shank ran for him, moving up when Steve Sides reached on an error. Both were sacrificed up and then Evans lifted the ball over the fence in right, powering the Pirates to a 3-2 lead.

Princeton finally drove McClanahan from the mound in the seventh. After the first two batters went out, Todd Leavitt reached on an infield hit and moved up on a wild pitch. He scored on Arendas' double down the right field line, knotting it at 3-3.

Greg Hardison opened the bottom of the seventh with a double to right and Mike Williams reached on an error, moving on to second on the overthrow. Hardison, however, had to stop at third. Chris Bradberry then hit a 2-2 pitch to left, scoring Hardison to put the Pirates back up. Riley's sacrifice fly to center brought in Williams with what proved to be the difference.

The Tigers pulled back within one in the eighth. With one down, Drew Stratton struck out on a wild pitch, reaching first safely. Craig Peters was hit by a pitch and Kyle Heffley grounded into a fielder's choice, with Stratton moving to third on the play. Another wild pitch by Peterson brought Stratton over.

But Peterson bore down and fanned the final batter of the inning to end the rally and got the side out in order in the ninth to end it.

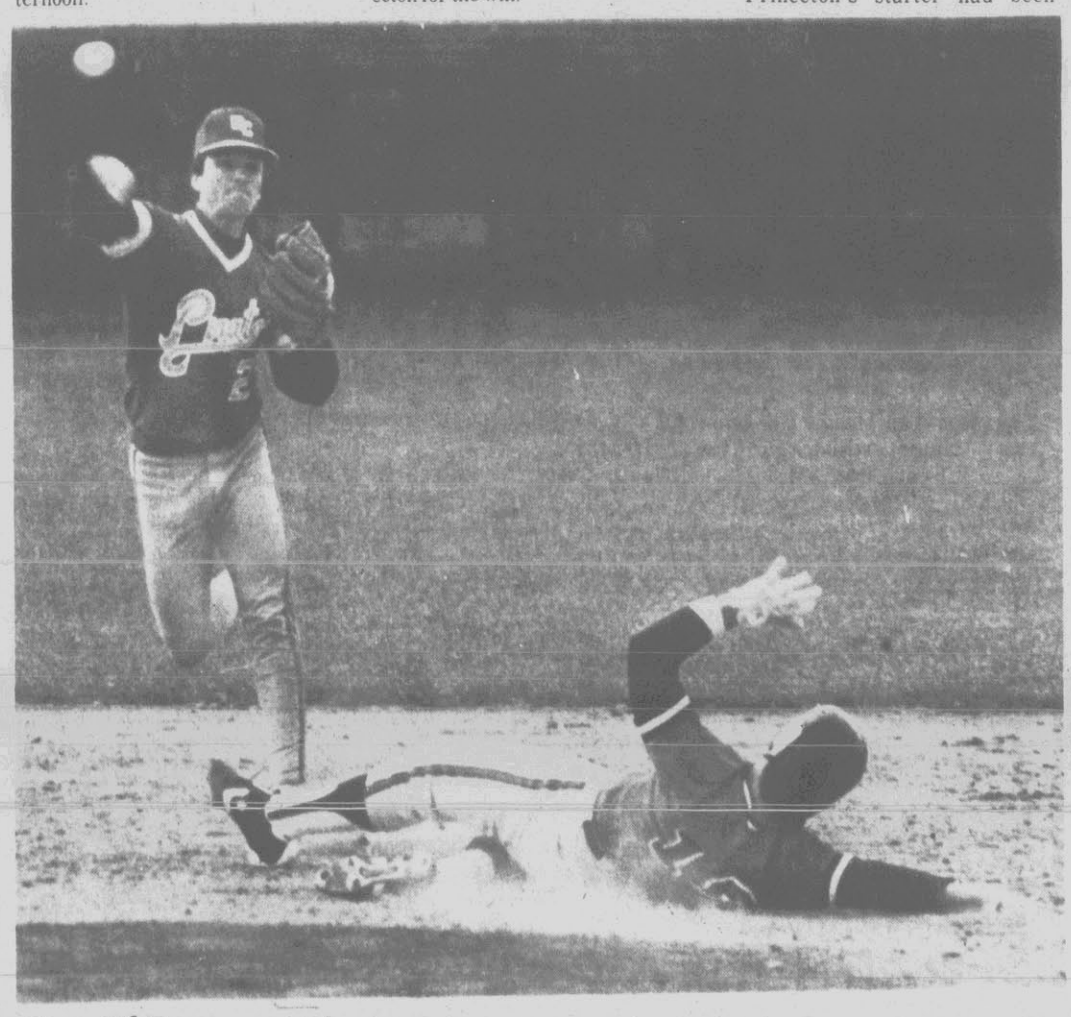
Tuckner and Evans each had two hits for their respective teams.

"That was a fine college ball game there," Coach Hal Baird said. "I was really glad to see Peterson have a good game, and I thought the overall pitching was good.

"For a while there I thought we weren't going to score, but it seems like we're destined to play a bunch of one-run games this year," Baird added.

"We're still looking at combinations and I think once the weather breaks well be okay. I was disappointed with the hitting on Friday (loss to Virginia Wesleyan), but maybe not playing because of the rain hurt us." The Pirates lost three games this past week to the weather.

Now 3-2, the Pirates return to action this afternoon, playing host to Fairfield University at 2 p.m. at Harrington Field.



First Of Two

Terps Wanted To Face Heels

GREENSBORO (AP) — As Maryland was building a 13-point halftime lead over Wake Forest, the Terrapins didn't seem to care who their opponent would be in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament finals.

The lead slipped slowly away, but it was slow enough for Maryland to hold on to a 66-64 victory.

With the lead safely tucked away, a few Maryland players admitted that it did make a difference that top-ranked North Carolina wouldn't be there Sunday.

"The first thing I thought was 'Oh shucks,'" said Terp center Ben Coleman.

"You could hear the game in the lockerroom and we were kind of concerned about who we would play," said Herman Veal. "It kind of caught us by surprise."

Eventually the concern turned from who the opponent would be to if there would be an opponent.

Wake Forest climbed back into the game with eight unanswered points early in the second half, but the Demon Deacons fell behind again by 11.

Using a trapping defense, Wake Forest made one more attempt.

"I don't know how we lost that 13-point lead," Veal said. "Things kind of got raggedy."

Coleman said the Deacon comeback was a combination of what Wake Forest did right and what the Terps did wrong.

"Wake Forest was hitting all their shots and we weren't making ours," Coleman said. "The trap took us a little bit off guard."

"I said when we were coming back for the second half that they were capable of coming back," Veal said. "I said it and they did it."

Wake Forest's Danny Young said the will to win the game was there, but apparently not the intensity.

"I didn't think we had that much intensity," Young said. "We've come back from 20 points down. We just had to make the effort."

Veal and Coleman said Coach Lefty Driesell hasn't said much about never winning an ACC tournament, but it has been on their minds.

"There's some extra incentive," Veal said. "He's never won one and we've never won it either."

"You hear about him getting close but never winning it," Coleman said. "We're going to try to correct that tomorrow."

Jack's Woes Drop Him Out Of Lead; Duo Tied

MIAMI (AP) - Jack Nicklaus was doing a little mental medical work as he walked off the 16th green on the Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

"I applied a tourniquet," he said. "I had to stop the bleeding."

He did. But it was too late.

From a position two shots in front of the field, Nicklaus' game — erratic most of the day — suddenly put him in places even he couldn't handle.

The slide started with a bogey from a bunker on the 15th, and was capped on the next by a double bogey that deprived him of the lead in the $400,000 Doral-Eastern Open Golf Tournament Saturday. He dumped a shot in a bunker, came out long and 3-putted, missing a five-foot second putt.

That set it up for Bruce Lietzke and George Archer to share the top spot after 54 holes and opened the gates to a potential challenge by more than two dozen players in Sunday's final round of the chase for a $72,000 first prize.

The mighty Nicklaus, 44, who hasn't won since 1982, was one shot back.

"After playing the way I did, and still being only one back with a chance to win, you should be absolutely delighted, which I am," he said.

On the other hand, he said, "when you've got it five under for the day and have the lead alone, then let it get away, that doesn't make you very happy.

Although he said he played 10 holes "without laying a glove on it," he insisted his game "is not that far off. But it's got to get a lot closer if I'm going to have any chance of winning this golf tournament."

Archer and Lietzke finished three rounds at 205, 11 under par.

Archer, a former Masters champion whose last victory came eight long years ago, had a 69 in the bright, warm weather. Lietzke had the lead alone until he bogeyed the final hole, finishing off a 67.

Nicklaus struggled to a 70 and was tied at 206 with Johnny Miller and Gary Hallberg. Miller had a 68 and Hallberg 69.

They were followed by Tom Kite, Wayne Levi and Bernhard Langer of West Germany. Kite's round of 70 included an eagle-2 on the 14th, where he dropped out a 165-yard, 6-iron shot. Levi had a 69 and Langer 68.

Defending champion Gary Koch was next at 69-208, only three back and very mch in contention.

So are at least 21 others, according to Lietzke.

"It's the kind of golf course that anyone within six shots can come out of the pack tomorrow and win it," he said.

"With the field we have, with the course we're playing, I'd say it's a very good chance, better than 50-50, that the winner will come out of a playoff."

Lietzke, who chipped in from about 50 feet for a birdie on the third hole, had it 6 under par for the day and was one shot clear of the field until he made his lone bogey on the 18th. He let his approach leak to the right, chipped down to about eight feet and missed the putt.

"I'm playing confidently — just a carry-over from last week," he said. "That was a confidence-builder. I was playing well and had confidence coming into this week. I had all the ingredients. So far, I've been able to apply them."

That bogey on the last hole let the 6-foot-5 Archer gain a share of the lead and put him one big step closer toward a longtime goal.

Archer, who had serious back surgery in 1976, said he came back "with one goal in mind — win one more time after the operation.

Saturday," Meagher said. "But the coach said it was all in my head."

"The last time I went to the line, I could taste it," Henderson said. "I wasn't afraid."

For North Carolina, it seemed a matter of waiting for the patented magic to begin. Forward Sam Perkins had been effectively shut down by Mark Alarie's defense, and was held to single-digit scoring for only the second time in two years.

So the Tar Heels depended on Matt Doherty, who played an almost flawless second half. He hit all seven of his shot attempts during the period, and pulled down 10 rebounds. The only flaw came in Doherty's inbounds pass with three seconds left. The pass never made it inbounds, and that nearly killed any chance for a tie.

"We were going pretty well in the first half, but we never really turned it on in the second half," Doherty said. "You play hard, you work hard, good things usually happen."

Remembering the last meeting, Doherty said he had added confidence, knowing that if Duke missed at the line, the Tar Heels still had a chance to win the game.

"Even up to the time when they were inbounding the ball in the last seconds, I still thought we had a chance to get a shot," Doherty said. Doherty said he thought the win would give the Blue Devils some momentum, but the Duke players contend that they must come down to reality quickly.

"It's like the coach says — we have to throw a wet rag into the wind," Meagher said. "But it's a hell of a win."

Rams Take Two Wins

SNOW HILL — It was a rough day for the Greene Central Ram baseball team, but by the time it was over a couple of "W's" had gone up on the ledger for it.

The Rams topped Goldsboro, 11-3, in the opening game and came back with an 8-6 win over Beddingfield in the second, making the first day of the season a happy one for Greene Central

The Rams got all they were to need in the first inning of the opening contest. Jeff Moore opened the bottom of the first with a single and Brian Hall sacrificed him up. Todd Grant then singled to score Moore. Press Harris walked and Carlton Joyner was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Ken Wade reached on an error, scoring Grant, and Stacy Chase followed with a double, driving in both Harris and Joyner for the 4-0 lead.

The Rams added two more in the third, four in the fourth and one in the fifth. Goldsboro scored all three of its runs in the top of the sixth and the game was called at that point.

Moore led the Ram hitting with three in four trips, while Chase was 2-3. Chase, Carlton Joyner and Jerome Flowers all collected doubles in the game. Harry Cook led Goldsboro with a 2-4 afternoon.

Beddingfield came out strong, scoring five runs in the first inning of the second game. Three of those came on a home run by Seth Tyson. The Bruins added another run in the second.

The Rams scored one in the first and two more in the second to trail, 6-3.

But in the fourth, the Rams came up with five big runs, taking the lead for good. Michael Warren singled and Hall got a hit. Grant singled and Harris walked to force in Warren. Joyner then singled in both Hall and Grant, and after Chase walked, Flowers doubled in the final two runs.

The game was called after six because of darkness.

Warren, Grant and Joyner all had two hits for the Rams, while Warren had a triple and Harris, Joyner and Flowers each doubled. Tommy Boswell and Tim Balance each had two hits for the Bruins.

Oregon State Defeats Bruins

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State forwards A.C. Green and Charlie Sitton scored 24 and 22 points, respectively, Saturday as the 20th-ranked Beavers downed UCLA 70-65 to win a share of the Pacific 10 Conference basketball championship.

The Beavers, 22-6 overall, finished in a tie with Washington at 15-3 in the conference.

UCLA, expected to contend for the title, wound up at 10-8 in the Pac-10 and 17-11 overall, the Bruins' worst record since 1960.

Oregon State hit 70 percent of its field goal attempts to take a 39-34 halftime advantage in the nationally televised contest.

The Beavers stretched the margin to 43-34 shortly before intermission. But the Bruins reeled off nine straight, six by Kenny Fields to tie the score at 43-43 with 15 minutes and 41 seconds to play.

There were four more ties and guard Ralph Jackson gave the Bruins a brief 53-51 lead with an 18-footer with 8:31 to go.

Oregon State scored six straight, four by Sitton, to regain control. The Beavers sank nine of 10 free throws in the final 1½ minutes to clinch the victory.

DePaul Celebrates Meyer's Final Game

CHICAGO (AP) — "When they gave me the scissors, I knew it wasn't to cut my throat," DePaul Coach Ray Meyer said Saturday after he had been boosted up by his players to cut down the nets.

It was the final gesture of Meyer's retirement party, which included a regular season-ending 64-49 victory for the fourth-ranked and NCAA-bound Blue Demons. The game was the final one at home in Meyer's 42-year coaching career at DePaul.

"That was the first time in my career as a player or a coach that I have ever cut down the nets," said Meyer. "I'm very happy that this game is over and that this day is almost over. This last week has been a real fine experience."

The finest experience of the week for the retiring Meyer was what the players told him before the game.

"Jerry McMillan told me, 'Coach, we love you, we're going to win this one for you.' And Tyrone Corbin told me, 'You're a helluva man, we're not going to lose today,'" related Meyer.

"But I was scared," he said. "We were so tight in those first five minutes that if we would bend, we would break. We did a great job on the boards in the last 10 minutes of the first half.

"In the second half they came out to play and we didn't. We took a timeout and told them they were outscrapping and outfighting us. After that we played pretty well. We dominated the last 12 minutes."

Kevin Holmes with 17 points and Corbin with 16 headed the Blue Demon attack in the final game of the regular season.

The victory gave the fourth-ranked Blue Demons a season-closing 26-2 record and all but clinched a top seed in the upcoming NCAA tournament.

Holmes scored 17 points and Corbin added 16 helping to drop Marquette to a 16-12 record for the year.

Meyer, retiring after a four-decade love affair with basketball coaching, was showered with gifts in pre-game ceremonies, including a rocking chair. There was also a gift and an embrace from another coaching legend, John Wooden, who guided UCLA to 10 NCAA championships before retiring himself in 1975.

Meyer will take a record of 723 victories against 353 losses into the upcoming NCAA tournament, his last hurrah as a coach.

Showing the effects of trying too hard for their coach, the Blue Demons fell behind 4-0 but rattled off the next eight points to take an 8-4 lead.

Except for falling behind briefly at 11-10, DePaul remained ahead the rest of the way and finally built a a 34-21 halftime lead on the shooting of Holmes, who scored 12 of his points in the first half.

With DePaul leading 20-17, Holmes converted a three-point play and duplicated the feat later to put the Demons comfortably ahead at 28-19. DePaul closed the half by outscoring the Warriors 14-2.

But Marquette, led by Dwayne Johnson, Marc Marotta and Tom Copa, rallied at the start of the second half with 11 straight points to climb within two points of the lead at 36-34.

Corbin hit two straight baskets to break the spell. Marquette threatened again by moving within three points of DePaul but six straight points put the Demons out of danger midway in the second half.

Retirement Party

DePaul head basketball coach Ray Meyer cuts down the net while held high by his players to celebrate his 723rd victory Saturday. NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kenny Walker drilled a 15-footer from the right of the free throw line as time expired Saturday, giving third-ranked Kentucky a 51-49 victory over Auburn in the championship game of the Southeastern Conference basketball tournament.

The Wildcats, 26-4, thus earned the SEC's automatic berth in the NCAA championships.

It was the 14th SEC tourney title for the Wildcats, but their first since the postseason tournament was reinstated in 1979 after a 25-year absence.

The Wildcats overcame a 49-46 deficit to win in the final 4:18 after Greg Turner's layup had given Auburn the three-point lead.

Melvin Turpin hit one of two free throws to cut the lead to two with 4:06 to go and a turnover gave the Cats possession again with 3:50 left.

Freshman Winston Bennett's steal of a lob pass got the ball back for the Wildcats with 1:41 to go and Kentucky held it the rest of the way, calling times out with 1:12, 0:28 and 0:14 remaining to set up Walker's game-winning basket.

Auburn, appearing in the SEC finals for the first time, fell to 20-10 for the year, but is expected to also land an NCAA bid after finishing second to the Cats in both the regular season and the tourney.

New Mexico 38

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Behind the shooting of Fred Reynolds and the rebounding of Juden Smith, ninth-ranked Texas-El Paso came from behind to defeat New Mexico 44-38 Saturday and win the first Western Athletic Conference tournament.

Reynolds, a 6-foot forward, scoreds 15 points, and sophomore Smith pulled down 10 rebounds as the Miners improved their record to 27-3.

The victory gave UTEP an automatic berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs that begin this week.

Smith, who also scored eight points for the Miners, was named the most valuable player of the tournament. He helped UTEP get to Saturday's championship game by scoring eight points and pulling down 11 rebounds Friday against Wyoming.

New Mexico, which fell to 24-10, was led in scoring by forward Tim Garrett, who had 12 points.

After trailing 18-17 at the half and letting the Lobos go ahead 25-19 in the opening minutes of the second period, the Miners' offense exploded while its defense stifled New Mexico.

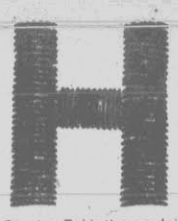
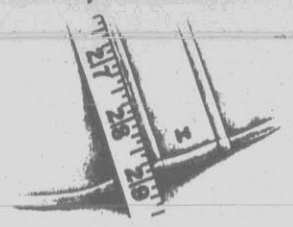
Hathaway

Hathaway observes the law of the letter.


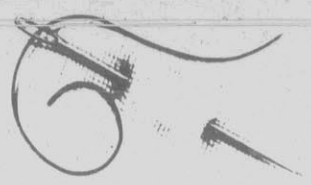
When Charles F. Hathaway laid down the law in 1837, it stayed in place. The red H on the shirttail of every Hathaway dress shirt tells you his rules are still being followed today...to the letter. That's Hathaway quality, we have it in store for you.

At Hathaway, they use their heads when they make their tails.


So you won't have to use both hands to keep them tucked in. Extra fabric added to every shirttail makes a business shirt behave in a business-like manner. That's Hathaway quality; we have it in store for you.

This Hathaway theory has three holes in it.

That's why it works. Three-hole buttons are sewn with a stronger, tighter pattern of thread placement than ordinary buttons with four holes. The result: a stronger button that stays put longer through wearing and laundering That's Hathaway quality; we have it in store for you.

In Hathaway fabrics, you'll find no common thread.


When Hathaway designers search for the finest fabrics, they accept only the unique: outstanding cottons from Switzerland and Egypt, hand woven Madras from India, or special blends from the world's finest mills. That's Hathaway quality. We have it in store for you.

Hathaway collars are fit to be tied.

So you won't be. When your objective is a friendly merger of collar and tie, Hathaway can smooth the way with collars and ties that are made for each other. That's Hathaway quality. We have it in store for you.

Fresno State Upsets UNLV

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Bernard Thompson calmly sank a pair of free throws with 13 seconds remaining to give defense-minded Fresno State a 51-49 victory over 10th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas Saturday in the championship game of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association tournament.

The triumph assures Fresno State, which finished third in the PCAA regular-season standings, a berth in the NCAA playoffs. The Bulldogs are now 25-7.

Las Vegas, the conference's regular-season champion, also is virtually assured a berth in the playoffs by virtue of its 27-5 record.

Thompson, a 6-foot-6 senior forward, was fouled by the Rebels' John Flowers as the Bulldogs worked for the final shot. Thompson then hit both ends of the one-and-one free throw opportunity.

The Rebels had one last chance to tie the contest, but Frank James missed from 10 feet with three seconds left and Fresno State's Scott Barnes pulled down the rebound.

The contest was close all the way, with the lead see-sawing and neither team able to open up a substantial lead.

Ron Anderson and Mitch Arnold led the Fresno State scoring with 12 points each, while Thompson had 11 and Barnes 10.

Richie Adams paced the Rebels with 15 points, but had just three in the second half. He also had a game-high 11 rebounds. Eric Booker had 10 points in the losing effort.

Las Vegas had averaged 85 points per game this season, while Fresno State had allowed just 54 per game.

The Rebels led 24-23 at the intermission, as the first half, like the second, was tight, with four points the widest margin separating the teams.

Adams, working the baseline behind the Bulldogs' smothering zone defense, got loose inside for 12 first-half points for the Rebels. He also had seven rebounds in the opening 20 minutes.

Tulsa 70
Creighton 68

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa guard Ricky Ross banked in a shot from underneath with two seconds left to give the 12th-ranked Hurricane a 70-68 overtime victory over Creighton in the championship of the Missouri Valley Conference postseason basketball tournament Saturday.

The outcome spoiled Creighton's bid for a second straight upset in the tourney. The Bluejays, 17-13, ousted top-seeded Illinois State in a semifinal game Thursday night. Tulsa improved to 27-3 and earns the league's automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

Benoit Benjamin, Creighton's 7-foot center, scored 17 of his game-high 29 points after intermission as the Bluejays overcame a 44-37 halftime deficit to tie it at 62-62 with 3:44 left in regulation. Creighton had its only leads at 64-62 and 66-64.

Both teams had a chance to win in regulation. Creighton's Gregory Brandon missed the front end of a one-and-one opportunity with 1:04 left and the score tied at 66. Tulsa's Steve Harris' 30-footer was off the rim at the buzzer ending regulation.

Benjamin, who picked up his fourth foul with 15:50 left in regulation, rolled in a 10-footer and Harris canned a short jumper to set up Ross' winner. The 6-7 point guard weaved under the basket and banked in his only points after halftime. Creighton guard Vernon Morre's half-court shot was off target at the final buzzer.

Tulsa forward Herb Johnson had 23 points — 19 in the first half — and 12 rebounds to lead Tulsa. Harris had 18 and center Anthony Fobbs added 10.

Brandon had 11 points and 11 rebounds, Gary Swain added 11 points and Morre had 10 for the Bluejays.

Memphis State 78
Virginia Tech 65

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Memphis State forward Keith Lee told his teammates he was ready for Virginia Tech and he backed up his words with a record 35-point, 13-rebound performance Saturday to lead the Tigers to a 78-65 victory and the Metro Conference tournament championship.

"It was just a supreme effort by Keith Lee," said Virginia Tech coach Charlie Moir after watching the 6-foot-10 junior set Metro tournament records for most points in a single game and most field goals with a 15 for 24 performance against his Hokies.

Lee also totaled 71 points for the Tigers' three tournament games to establish another standard.

"We had great patience on offense and managed to get the ball inside to Lee. That was our plan," explained Memphis State coach Dana Kirk.

For Lee, the scoring outburst was just a matter of following through with his pregame plan.

"I did not want to put the ball on the floor," Lee said. "I wanted to go straight to the basket and get the three-point play. Last night I told one of my teammates I would be ready to play."

The Metro title was the second for the Tigers, who earned the league's automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament with the victory. Memphis State will carry a 24-6 record into NCAA play, while Virginia Tech, 18-12, will await a Sunday call from either the NCAA or the National Invitation Tournament.

Despite Lee's scoring outburst, Virginia Tech stayed in the title chase until the Tigers pulled away from the free throw line in the final five minutes.

Lee broke a 48-48 tie with a three-point play with 10:37 left in the game and the Tigers never trailed again although the Hokies cut the Memphis State lead to one point twice in the next two minutes.

With Memphis State leading 53-52, Lee went on a six-point tear that left the Tigers on top 59-54 with 6:11 remaining.

From that point, the Tigers used their delay game to score two easy baskets underneath and hit 11 of 13 free throws, outscoring the Hokies 19-9 to clinch the title.

Tiger center William Bedford added 16 points and claimed 10 rebounds to follow Lee, and guard Phillip Haynes finished with 12 points.

Forwards Perry Young, with 17 points, and Bobby Beecher, with 16, led the Hokies, who upset top-seeded Louisville Friday night to advance to the championship game.

The second-seeded Tigers controlled the lane for much of the contest, outrebounding Virginia Tech 37-26 and hitting 59.2 percent frnm the floor to the Hokies' 42.6 performance.

Lee single-handedly carried the Tigers to a 35-35 standoff at the half, pouring in 22 points.

A three-point play and a short jump shot by Haynes gave Memphis State a 7-4 lead with 17:24 remaining and set the stage for 16 straight points from Lee.

During Lee's spree the Tigers led by as many as seven points, but the Hokies kept their poise and steadlily climbed back into the contest.

Tech took the lead at 28-27 with 5:09 remaining on an outside jumper by Dell Curry and once led by three points before gaining a tie at the half on a follow shot by Young.

Spiders Win ECAC-South

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) — John Newman scored 25 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead Richmond's Spiders to a 74-55 victory over Navy in Saturday night's championship game of the ECAC South basketball tournament.

Newman, who scored 34 points in Richmond's semifinal win Friday night over James Madison, was unanimously voted the tournament's most valuable player. The 6-foot-7 sophomore forward was also elected the ECAC South's player of the year.

Richmond won the conference title for the first time in the five-year history of the current ECAC South and received an automatic invitation to the NCAA tournament. The Spiders, 20-9 overall, have never appeared in the NCAA tournament.

The loss was Navy's third this season to Richmond.

Six minutes into the contest, Richmond took a 10-4 lead and built the margin to 22-12 on a jumper by Greg Beckwith with 6:50 left in the half. The Spiders took a 34-24 lead to the locker room at halftime.

In the second half, Richmond opened its margin to 20 points at 60-40 on a pair of free throws by Kelvin Johnson with 8:08 left in the game. A Navy comeback bid fell short, and Richmond widened the margin to 20 again at 69-49 with 2:43 remaining.

NCAA Set To Unveil 53-Team Field

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — After huddling all weekend to weigh the good and the bad of every major conference and independent team in the country, nine men on Sunday will unveil the 53-team field for the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

CBS plans live coverage of the 5:30 p.m. EST announcement. Increased television coverage and attendance are expected to push payoffs to competing teams to record levels again this year, cracking the $600,000 mark for the Final Four.

The Division I Basketball Committee, chaired by Big East Commissioner Dave Gavitt, spent much of the weekend keeping tabs on the numerous postseason conference tournaments that frequently spill underdog winners into the NCAA field.

Last year's longshot entries included tournament winners North Carolina State, from the Atlantic Coast Conference, and Georgia, from the Southeastern Conference. Both made it to the Final Four, with N.C. State winning the championship.

The ever-growing number of conference tournaments, however, has again prompted the selection committee chief to state that the field will not contain all of the country's top teams. That warning was first sounded by Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke when he was committee chairman five years ago, and echoed last week by Gavitt.

The committee, as dictated by majority vote of the NCAA's more than 260 Division I schools, is required to give an automatic invitation to the champion of each Division I conference.

In 1975, when the NCAA field numbered 32, there were only 16 conferences with automatic qualifiers, and only four that staged postseason tournaments to determine their entrant. By the late '70s, as the tournament grew and became more popular, more conferences were formed and more began going to the postseason format in hopes of getting an extra team into the field.

This year, the field will consist of 24 at-large bids handed out at the discretion of the committee and 29 conference qualifiers. Of the 29, all but four will designate as their automatic entry the winner of a postseason tournament. Only in the Big Ten, Pac-10, Ivy League and West Coast Athletic Conference is the regular-season champion guaranteed of being rewarded with an NCAA bid.

"There are always upset winners in some of the post-season tournaments," Duke said. "These are frequently teams that would otherwise have been unqualified based on their regular-season performance. When that happens, the conference might get an extra team in, but it reduces the opportunities for picking teams with the limited number of at-large bids.

"The committee has a tough job to do anyway, seeding and bracketing the field. And its job is made even tougher sometimes by circumstances which tie its hands."

On Friday, the committee announced its first decision of the weekend, designating the 10 weakest Division I conferences among the 29. The champions of those 10 will play a "preliminary round" Tuesday in Philadelphia and Dayton. The five winners will combine with the other 19 conference champions and 24 at-large entries to make up the 48 teams that begin sub-regional action next weekend at sites around the country.

The 10 conferences are the Mideastern Athletic Conference, Ohio Valley, Transamerica, Southwestern Athletic Conference, East Coast Conference, ECAC-Metro, ECAC-North Atlantic, ECAC South, West Coast Athletic Conference and the Ivy League.

Last year, teams eliminated in the opening or first rounds received $132,744. Advancing to regional competition netted $398,234 and making it to the final four brought each participant $530,979. NCAA staff officials estimate this year's payouts will be in the neighborhood of $153,500, $460,500 and $614,000.

Duke is among those critical of the growth of postseason tourneys.

"Many schools now look at getting a spot in the NCAA Tournament as the only barometer of a successful season. Winning the conference championship is not a measure of success anymore," he said. "But in a way, that's quite understandable. The tournament has become a spectacular thing. Prestige, financial rewards and recruiting advantages accrue to tournament teams."

In addition to handing out at-large bids, the committee also seeds the top 16 teams, giving first-round byes to the top four seeds in each region, and decides in which part of the country each team will compete. The four regional winners advance to the semifinals in Seattle March 31. The championship game is April 2.

The championship proved a little tougher. After moving out to a 14-8 lead in the first period, Trinity increased the margin with an 18-11 margin in the second quarter. That left the Lady Tigers up, 32-19, at the half.

But Temple matched Trinity in the third period, 6-6, as the score moved to 38-25. Then, in the final period, Temple rallied, 23-10, tying it at 48-48 at the end of regulation time.

Deans finishe with 25 points, while Rhonda Pittmans had 11 and Mary Harris had 10. T. Grant had 28 to lead Temple.

Deacs, Heels, Terps, Devils Win

GREENSBORO (AP) — With the availability of center Brad Daugherty in doubt, top-ranked North Carolina took on Duke Saturday in one semifinal game of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

The Tar Heels defeated Clemson 78-66 in the tournament opener Friday, but not without difficulty. The Blue Devils followed with a 67-63 overtime victory over Georgia Tech.

The other semifinal game pitted Maryland, which defeated North Carolina State 69-63 in the opening round, against Wake Forest, which beat Virginia 63-51 Friday.

Daugherty, a 6-foot-11 sophomore, suffered a hand injury during practice this week and sat out the tourney opener against the Tigers.

"Daugherty can shoot the ball but he couldn't catch it without pain," said Tar Heel coach Dean Smith. "If he can catch and rebound, then he'll play in the semifinals."

Daugherty's absence was most noticeable on defense. Clemson pivotman Murray Jarman poured in 28 points and supplied much of the Tiger offense.

North Carolina led by eight, 37-29, at halftime and a Vince Hamilton basket cut the lead to six early in the second half.

But the Tigers committed five turnovers in two minutes and saw the deficit balloon to 43-31.

"The start of the second half killed us when he made unforced turnovers," said Clemson coach Bill Foster.

The Tigers pulled to within 59-54 after a six-minute stretch that featured six unanswered points and a 10-of-13 shooting performance from the floor, but playing catch-up caught up with Clemson.

The Tar Heels, behind forward Sam Perkins, came through with another spurt to put the game away.

"The first part of the second half we just did about anything we wanted to," said guard Michael Jordan. "Then we forgot what we'd been doing and relaxed. We've got to play a consistent 40 minutes. If we don't, a team is going to come along and beat us."

The Tar Heels are mindful of that because of the last meeting with Duke. The Blue Devils took North Carolina to two overtimes in the final game of the regular season before succumbing.

Duke and Georgia Tech were tied at 61 at the end of regulation Friday and traded baskets for a 63-63 tie in overtime.

Then freshman guard Tommy Amaker hit a jump shot — only his third attempt of the night from the floor — with nine seconds left in the extra period.

"I thought it was a good, open shot," said Amaker. "It was the biggest shot of my life. I can't remember making it in that situation in high school."

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski wanted the ball to go inside to Mark Alarie or outside to Johnny Dawkins, but was just as pleased with the result.

"We set up our motion offense and were looking for Johnny and Mark," said Krzyzewski. "But Tech also was looking for them and succeeded in covering them. Tommy just took it upon himself to shoot."

Georgia Tech tried to set up the tying shot but guard Mark Price collided with Duke's David Henderson and was called for charging.

Freshman Keith Gatlin helped 14th-ranked Maryland to its victory with accurate free-throw shooting, but the repeated trips to the foul line began to be an embarrassment.

"I was sort of sick of getting fouled," said Gatlin. "It made me feel like I was a bad free throw shooter."

Gatlin finished with 13 points, seven from the line.

The Wolfpack, whose run to the NCAA championship last year began to catch fire during the 1983 ACC tournament, didn't go down easily. Trailing 46-45 with just under 11 minutes left, N.C. State had a chance to take the lead but squandered it. Maryland then ran off eight straight points to take control.

Terrapin coach Lefty Driesell assigned Herman Veal to guard Wolfpack forward Lorenzo Charles. Although Veal held the muscular 6-foot-7 forward to nine points, Driesell wasn't satisfied with Maryland's defense.

"I don't think we did a particularly good job on (center Cozell) McQueen," said Driesell. "He probably had his high game of the year, but you have to make your choice. McQueen got 18, but Charles might have gotten 30."

The Terps will meet Wake Forest, whose victory over Virginia meant that all four top-seeded teams won their first-round games.

The No. 19 Demon Deacons steadily pulled away after leading 30-28 at halftime. Wake Forest did most of the damage in the first four minutes of the second half, scoring five unanswered points to go ahead by seven points.

Hawks Rally To Knot Farmville

WHEAT SWAMP — North Lenoir scored an unearned run in the bottom of the seventh inning and came away with a 7-7 tie in a baseball game with Farmville Central yesterday.

The game was called after seven innings because of darkness and will not be made up.

Farmville Central grabbed the lead in the first inning scoring three times. Randy Norris led off with a walk and Randy Daniels singled. Billy Godley walked to load them up, and a double by Joey Steppe brought in the first two runs. Walks to Taylor Walston and Hugh Moore then froced in Godley with the third run.

The Jaguars added two more in the second. Norris opened with a single and Daniels followed with a two-run homer for a 5-0 lead.

North Lenoir began its comeback in the third with a single run, then after Farmville got one in the top of the fourth, the Hawks added two in their half of the frame. Farmville ran the lead to 7-3 with one in the top of the sixth, but the Hakws came up with three, one of them on a solo homer by E. Wade, and pulled within one, 7-6.

Then, in the seventh, with one away, S. Robinson tripled and with two away, Simmons' grounder to short was errored, allowing Robinson to score the tying run. After the side was retired the umpires halted the game because of darkness.

Daniels and Steppe each had two hits for Farmville, both of Steppe's being doubles. No one had more than one for North Lenoir.

The Jaguars, now 0-0-1 on the year, play host to West Craven on Tuesday.

Celotex Fiberglass Shingles 20 Year Warranty: 5 more than plain asphalt.... $38.50 Per Square

Self-sealing strips of adhesive are sun activited.

This action bonds the shingles together into a single, weatherproof shield that is capable of resisting damaging winds of up to 60 miles per hour. These durable shingles are also very resistant to blistering and warping, "cupping" and decay. All of these features combine to produce a very rugged (and economical) roof.

The fiberglass mat is the important difference.

A fiberglass mat repels moisture much more effectively than the mat under regular asphalt shingles. The result is an exceptionally resilient, durable roof that will give years of service.

Celotex

Their fiberglass base offers extra protection against external fire. These Celotex shingles are one of the most economical class A roofs you can buy. It's just one more of the safety benefits of fiberglass.

Although they're tough they're also attractive.

These shingles give you rugged dependable service without sacrificing beauty. From basic black to earthtone shades their handsome looks are available in a variety of attractive colors to suit your roofing needs.

Marlin Rally Nips Pirates, 5-4

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

Andy Hesington ripped a pair of home runs including a game-winning eighth inning shot as Virginia Wesleyan defeated East Carolina University 5-4 Friday in collegiate baseball action.

Rex Roth went the distance on the mound for the Marlins to record his second win in as many decisions. Roth scattered eight Pirate hits while striking out seven ECU batters.

Chubby Butler sustained the loss for the Pirates after relieving Winfred Johnson with two out in the seventh. The Pirates trailed 4-3 when Butler entered the game but tied the score in the bottom of the seventh.

Hesington led off the second inning with a solo homer over the left field fence to put the Marlins on the board first, but the Pirates retaliated with a run in the bottom half of the frame.

Freshman second baseman Steve Sides reached first on a fielder's choice after a David Wells single opened the ECU half of the second. Sides stole second and later scored on a two-out single to left by catcher Jim Riley.

The Pirates took the lead in the third inning. Greg Hardison led off with a base on balls, took second on a single by Todd Evans and moved to third on a fielder's choice by Wells.

With two outs, Wells headed to second and Hardison stole home on a delayed double steal. Wells was tagged out by Wesleyan's Dave Murphy but not before Hardison crossed the plate.

The Pirates made it 3-1 in the fourth as Mike Williams singled, moved to second on Mark Shank's second walk of the day, took third on a single by Riley and scored when Ricky Nichols' grounder was booted at shortstop.

But a pair of ECU errors in the top of the sixth allowed Virginia Wesleyan to take the lead 4-3. Catcher Joe Digiacomo opened the inning with a single and courtesy runner Tobias Short moved to third on a single by Bruce Matthews.

The throw from left field on Matthews hit got away from Wells at third base, allowing Matthews to advance to second. Both runners scored on a single by Glen Pizzanello, and an error allowed him to move to second. A single to right by Matt Eshelman allowed Pizzanello to score for the 4-3 advantage.

Hardison led off the bottom of the seventh with his third walk of the game, and Evans followed with a single to center. The ball was bobbled in the outfield allowing Hardison to take third, and he scored on a sacrifice fly by Johnson.

After Hesington's second blast put the Marlins ahead to stay, the Pirates had a chance to knot the score in the bottom of the eighth.

Sides led off with a base on balls and stole his second base of the afternoon. A grounder to shortstop by Williams was fielded cleanly but thrown away at first allowing each runner to take an extra base with no outs.

Roth retired the Pirates in order in the ninth to seal the victory.

Pizzanello, Hesington and Digiacomo had two hits each for Virginia Wesleyan, now 4-1 on the season. Wells led the Pirates with three hits in four trips to the plate, while Evans and Riley had two hits apiece. East Carolina dropped to 2-2 on the year with the loss.

Pam Pack Tops Eagles

WASHINGTON — Washington's Pam Pack opened the 1984 baseball season with an 8-0 romp over West Craven Friday.

Sam Stephenson went the first five innings to earn the victory, striking out 12 and walking three. He allowed only one hit. Brian Williamson came on to finish up the game, allowing an additional Eagle hit.

Washington got all it needed in the third inning, scoring three times. John High doubled but a freak incident cost the Pack its first out. Ronnie Godley singled but was called out for having the wrong number on his uniform — differing from that listed in the official scorebook — and High was returned to second. Steve Oden reached on an error and Joe Ange hit into a fielder's choice, getting Oden at second. John Modlin singled in High and Dwayne Whittenburg was hit by a pitch. Stephenson then signld in both Ange and Modlin.

The Pam Pack added two in the fifth and three more in the sixth.

Whittenburg had three hits, one a double, to lead the Pack, while Modlin and Stephenson each had two.

Stoudt Tries The New League

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

Cliff Stoudt says he'd rather be booed as a visiting quarterback than be subjected to catcalls from the home fans.

Stoudt, who just three months ago was being booed unmercifully in Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium as the starting quarterback for the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers, will be back Sunday with the Birmingham Stallions of the United States Football League.

The former Youngstown University athlete and his teammates will be opposing the Pittsburgh Maulers before the second-year league's first-ever sellout crowd — more than 60,000 attracted at least partially by the opportunity to cascade boos on Stoudt.

The third weekend of the USFL's season opened Saturday night in Tampa, with the "Battle of Florida" between the Jacksonville Bulls and the unbeaten (2-0) Tampa Bay Bandits.

Besides the Birmingham-Pittsburgh meeting, the Sunday schedule features two collisions of unbeaten (2-0) teams, with defending league champion Michigan playing at Denver and the Philadelphia Stars visiting the New Jersey Generals.

Memphis is at New Orleans, Houston at Chicago, Los Angeles at Oakland and San Antonio at Oklahoma. The Monday night game has Washington at Arizona.

Stoudt's problems with the Pittsburgh fans began last season when he replaced injured veteran Terry Bradshaw as the Steelers' starter. The younger quarterback, who had spent six years on the Steelers' bench, guided the team to a 10-6 record and the AFC Central Division championship, but he became a target of derision when the Steelers lost five of their last six games.

An official for the expansion Maulers, who will be playing their first home game, admitted that many fans requested tickets on the visitors side of the stadium so they could boo Stoudt.

"I can tell you one thing," said Stoudt. "I'd rather be booed as the visiting quarterback than play for the Steelers and get the same kind of treatment.

"It's going to be fun. I'm fired up about it and I'm glad everyone else is so fired up. I think it's neat. I'm just glad they sold the place out, regardless of the reason."

Tribe Rallies For 4-3 Win

CHOCOWINITY — Chocowinity High School got a one-hit effort from Kevin Tyree Friday and rallied in the seventh inning to take a 4-3 win over Pamlico County High School.

Pamlico took the lead with a pair of runs in the first and added another in the fifth for a 3-0 lead.

However, the Indians came together in the final frame to pull it out. Larry Harding singled and Tyree walked, going out at second on Billy Craig's fielder's choice. Troy Woolard singled in Harding and Maurice Tripp walked. Patrick Wells hit a sacrifice fly to bring in Craig and Shawn Harding walked. Johnny Squires reached on an error, allowing Woolard and Tripp to score the tying and winning runs.

The win avenged an earlier loss to Pamlico for the Tribe, now 1-1 on the year.

Cards, Owls Are Upset

By The Associated Press

Louisville and Temple, both ranked and the top seeds in their respective conference tournaments, ran into trouble on their way to an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

The stumbling blocks for the tournament favorites were Virginia Tech and West Virginia, respectively, both 18-11 and the fourth seeds in their respective conference tournaments.

Louisville lost to Virginia Tech 69-61 Friday night in the semifinals of the Metro Conference tournament as Perry Young scored 24 points and the Hokies used a tenacious full-court press to dismantle the 18th-ranked Cardinals' ballhandlers.

Temple fell to West Virginia 67-65 in the semifinals of the Atlantic 10 tournament as Dale Blaney canned a 13-foot jump shot with four seconds remaining. A final shot at a victory for the 15th-ranked Owls was gone when an inbounds pass went through the hands of Terence Stansbury.

In other games involving members of the Associated Press' Top Twenty: No. 1 North Carolina beat Clemson 78-66, second-ranked Georgetown defeated St. John's 79-68, No. 3 Kentucky edged Alabama 48-46, sixth-ranked Oklahoma downed Colorado 90-78, No. 9 Texas-El Paso beat Wyoming 62-55, 10th-ranked Nevada-las Vegas defeated Utah State 91-78, No. 14 Maryland downed North Carolina State 69-63, 16th-ranked Duke needed an overtime session to get by Georgia Tech 66-63, No. 17 Memphis State beat Florida State 65-63, and 19th-ranked Wake Forest defeated Virginia 63-51.

Virginia Tech Coach Charlie Moir said his team's hard work and the zone press was the difference.

"We cannot play any harder than we did down the stretch tonight," Moir said. "The zone press was the difference in the ball game. We forced Louisville into turnovers and were fortunate to convert them into baskets."

The Hokies now face Memphis State, which advanced on a five-foot bank shot by Phillip Haynes with four seconds remaining.

Temple had to contest with a lot more than Blaney's heroics as forward Lester Rowe scored 22 points and pulled down 15 rebounds to lead the Mountaineers into today's final against St. Bonaventure, which beat George Washington 81-75.

North Carolina, 27-1, was led by senior forward Matt Doherty's 22 points. The Tar Heels, who will face Duke in the semifinals of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament today, survived a strong second-half run by Clemson and had to survive injuries to three of the starters.

Duke, 23-8, advanced on a 15-foot jump shot by Tommy Amaker with nine seconds remaining in overtime. Mark Alarie led Duke with 20 points, while Mark Price had 18 for the Yellow Jackets.

Maryland defeated the defending NCAA champions as freshman Keith Gatlin sank seven of nine free throws in the last two minutes. The Terrapins, 21-7, will meet Wake Forest in the semifinals. The Demon Deacons, 21-7, eliminated Virginia as Kenny Green scored 19 points.

All-America center Patrick Ewing scored 24 points, on 11-of-12 shooting, grabbed five rebounds and blocked six shots as the Hoyas, 27-3, defeated the defending Big East champions. Georgetown, which shot 72 percent for the game and was able to offset the 29-point performance of St. John's Chris Mullin, will face Syracuse, 66-65 winners over Villanova, for the title.

Wayman Tisdale scored a Big Eight tournament record 36 points as the Sooners advanced to a title showdown with Kansas, which eliminated Kansas State 70-59.

Jeff Collins scored a game-high 19 points to lead Nevada-Las Vegas into the title game in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The Runnin' Rebels, 27-4, will face Fresno State, a 71-57 winner over Cal-Irvine.

Senior guard Dicky Beal sank two free throws with three seconds remaining to advance Kentucky, 25-4, to the finals of the Southeastern Conference tournament. The Wildcats held the ball for the final 1:46 with the score tied 46-46. Beal attempted an eight-foot jumper and was fouled. Auburn, which has never played in an SEC championship game, will face Kentucky. The Eagles beat Tennessee 60-58 in the other semifinal.

Texas-El Paso had to rally from a two-point halftime deficit to down the Cowboys. Luster Goodwin led the Miners, 26-3, with 16 points. The opponent for Texas-El Paso in the Western Athletic Conference championship game will be New Mexico, a 64-55 winner over Brigham Young.

In the one tournament that ended Friday, Houston Baptist earned the Trans-America Athletic Conference's automatic berth in the NCAA tournament with an 81-76 victory over Samford.

Arms Look Strong

By The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Brewers received some good news in the arms race that could get them back into a pennant race.

Relief ace Rollie Fingers and starter Pete Vuckovich, the American League Cy Young winners in 1981 and 1982, respectively, pitched impressively in Friday's 8-7 11-inning exhibition victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Fingers, who hasn't pitched in a regular-season game since Sept. 2, 1982, because of elbow and forearm problems, made his spring debut and worked a perfect seventh inning in which he struck out the first two batters he faced.

Earlier in the game, Vuckovich, who missed almost all of the 1983 season with a torn rotator cuff in his pitching shoulder, hurled three innings and gave up two runs on three hits after retiring seven of the first eight batters he faced.

Although the Minnesota Twins lost to the Houston Astros 4-3, Jim Eisenreich had his second consecutive four-hit game, giving him eight straight hits for the spring before he was retired for the first time on a fly ball in the ninth.

Meanwhile, the unbeaten Chicago White Sox rolled to their fifth straight triumph, downing the Cincinnati Reds 3-1 as Greg Walker drove in two runs with a pair of sacrifice flies.

John Lowenstein's two-run homer highlighted a five-run first inning and the Baltimore Orioles went on to edge the Montreal Expos 8-7.

The Philadelphia Phillies got three-hit pitching from National League Cy Young winner John Denny and three relievers and blanked the Boston Red Sox 4-0.

Two-out doubles in the ninth inning by Floyd Rayford and Bill Lyons accounted for the tying and winning runs as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the winless (0-4) Detroit Tigers 7-6.

Mike Scioscia had a double and two singles and drove in two runs, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers edge the New York Yankees 5-4.

Nick Capra singled home the tying run in the bottom of the ninth inning and scored on Bobby Jones' double, giving the Texas Rangers a 5-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

George Foster and Gary Rajsich homered in a 16-hit attack as the New York Mets swamped the Toronto Blue Jays 12-4.

Jorge Orta went 3-for-4, including a grand slam, and Butch Davis hit a two-run homer to help the Kansas City Royals to a 13-13 tie with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The game was then halted by mutual consent.

Celts, Lakers In Overtime Wins

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Boston and Los Angeles, the two best teams in the National Basketball League, gave the opposition double trouble on the road.

The Celtics blew a 14-point lead in the fourth period before overcoming the the Milwaukee Bucks 129-128 in double overtime Friday night, while the Lakers traveled to Dallas and got 32 points from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to beat the Mavericks 121-120, also in two extra periods.

"We were lucky to win the ball game," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones, whose team has won five straight games for a league-best 48-15 record. "We lost the lead in regulation, but I was proud of the way our guys hung in there, scratched and clawed, and won the game."

The Lakers, 41-21, went to the 36-year-old Abdul-Jabbar in the second overtime and the strategy paid off as he scored six of the Lakers last eight points.

"I know they go to me when it really counts. It's a compliment. It's my job. It's why I'm here," Abdul-Jabbar said. "If they couldn't go to me, I don't think I'd be here."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Philadelphia 92, Seattle 84; Detroit 122, New Jersey 118; Portland 104, Atlanta 101; Phoenix 130, Indiana 110, and San Diego 134, Denver 126.

Mavericks Coach Dick Motta bemoaned his team's 26 turnovers against the Lakers, but in the final analysis conceded that he felt fortunate to win three of the last four games in Dallas against Los Angeles.

"They're a better team than we are — not even the same league. There's not a man on my team that could be one of their starting five," Motta said.

In the Boston-Milwaukee matchup, Marques Johnson scored 36 points for the Bucks and Larry Bird finished with 30 points and 12 assists for the Celtics.

Pistons 122, Nets 118

76ers 92, Sonics 84

Trail Blazers 104, Hawks 101

Clippers 134, Nuggets 126

At San Diego, the Clippers outscored Denver as Terry Cummings scored 28 points and Bill Walton collected 19 rebounds.

Suns 130, Pacers 110

Walter Davis scored 22 points and James Edwards and Rick Robey had 20 each to lift hot-shooting Phoenix to a home victory over Indiana.

Champ QB Quits School

ORANGE CITY, Iowa (AP) — Lee McKinstrey, quarterback for Northwestern College, which won the NAIA Division II football championship last fall, has withdrawn from college for his involvement in betting on football games.

Senior Lee McKinstrey was among about a dozen students who were disciplined for betting on professional and major college football games.

"I'm sorry for my mistake concerning the gambling at Northwestern and I apologize to all the people I have hurt," McKinstrey said in a prepared statement Friday.

McKinstrey confirmed that he was one of four students who were asked to withdraw from classes for their betting on professional football games last fall and winter. He will be able to return next semester to complete work on a degree in business administration, he said.

College officials have refused to comment on their investigation.

Two former Northwestern students and two Nebraska residents have been charged with bookmaking and illegal gaming activities as the result of two investigations.

No bets were placed on small colleges nor on Northwestern College, which won the NAIA championship with an unblemished record, according to Sioux County Attorney Mark Schouten.

No other students or faculty members at Northwestern, a school affiliated with the Reformed Church in America, will be charged, although the investigation by Orange City police and agents of the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation is continuing, Schouten said.

"A lot of people were involved" in betting on games, McKinstrey said. He said it was on a small level. "The average was $10, $20 or $30 bets," he said, adding that the betting on pro games began in the fall and continued through the Super Bowl last January.

He declined to comment on how the bets were placed or whether he won or lost money.

Harry Fritz, executive director of the NAIA, said Friday he will ask the college for a full report, which will be submitted to the association's Conduct of Athletics and Participation Committee, scheduled to meet next week.

Fritz said the NAIA does not have specific regulations regarding betting by athletes on professional games, "but we do have regulations on ethics."

He said the penalties could range from a reprimand to "more serious action," depending on what the association learns.

The two former students charged with several counts of illegal gaming and betting, Troy Sohn, 20, of Sioux City and Richard Vander Wel, 19, of Orange City, made an initial appearance in Magistrate Court Thursday. Preliminary hearings were set for March 29.

James Danielson, 48, and Nancy Green, 41, both of Homer, Neb., appeared in magistrate court in Dakota City, Neb., on Wednesday. Trials on misdemeanor charges were scheduled for April 12 and a preliminary hearing on a felony charge against Danielson was scheduled for the same day.

Herron Is Indicted

ATLANTA (AP) — Mack Herron, who led the National Football League in kickoff return yardage in 1973, is among 25 people indicted by a federal grand jury in Atlanta on drug trafficking charges.

The indictments were returned Tuesday but were sealed until Friday.

One indictment charges Herron and 17 other defendants with conspiring to distribute and distributing cocaine from 1976 to 1982. He is not named on the second indictment.

Herron, 35, of Chicago, was a running back with the New England Patriots from 1973-75 and led the NFL in kickoff return yardage and all-purpose yardage in 1973. In 1974, he set an NFL record for total yards in a season.

On The Ropes

Witherspoon Takes Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It took him two tries to win the title, but after decisioning Greg Page for the World Boxing Council heavyweight crown, Tim Witherspoon says he plans to stay on top for a long time..

"I'm determined to stay the heavyweight champion for many years," said Witherspoon. "I've got to keep the title for three, four or five years."

But while Witherspoon was making plans for the riches a heavyweight championship can bring, a dejected Page talked about leaving the ring for good.

"I've been through it all, man. I can't take it anymore," Page said. "I've been going through hell ever since I started fighting."

Witherspoon, who lost a disputed split decision to Larry Holmes last May in his first try for the title, won it this time with a majority decision in a tough 12-round fight.

Holmes watched from the audience and declared himself unimpressed with the fighters who went after the crown he held for nearly six years.

"I told you neither one could fight," said Holmes, who voluntarily gave up his title following a bitter dispute with promoter Don King and now fights as the International Boxing Federation's heavyweight champion.

Despite being outweighed by nearly 20 pounds, Witherspoon, at 220¼, seemed the stronger of the two as he kept Page backed into one corner or another much of the bout.

Page, the top-ranked contender going into the bout, said he fought the way he wanted to against the No. 2-ranked Witherspoon.

Page trailed early in the fight but came on and closed the gap by the end of the ninth round. It was then, however, that Witherspoon took command.

"My fight plan was to go to his body in the early rounds and head in the late rounds," said Witherspoon. "It wasn't as tough as I expected. I thought it would be tougher."

Judge Chuck Minker had the fight even at 114-all, but judges Jerry Roth and Lou Tabat both had Witherspoon on top 117-111. The Associated Press also favored Witherspoon by a 116-112 margin.

Witherspoon, at a post-fight press conference packed by frenzied supporters, dedicated the crown to the South Philadelphia neighborhood he grew up in. A veteran of only 19 professional fights in a brief career that began in October 1979, the new title-holder said he is ready to defend against anyone.

In another title fight on the card at the Las Vegas Convention Center, WBC cruiserweight champion Carlos DeLeon took a unanimous 12-round decision over Anthony Davis.

Davis Fails At Title Bid

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Twelve years after winning an amateur bull-riding title in Oklahoma, Anthony Davis tried to win a world professional boxing championship.

It was not to be.

"Experience was the difference," manager Billy Baxter said after Davis, who never fought as an amateur and who had had only 15 pro bouts, lost a 12-round unanimous decision to Carlos DeLeon, the World Boxing Council cruiserweight champion. "The other guy has just a little better background."

DeLeon might have had more experience, but he fought with a physical problem, a bad right wrist, although he knocked down Davis with a right to the side of the jaw in the ninth round.

The 24-year-old DeLeon injured the wrist while training for the fight, and trainer Bill Prezant said the champion hurt it again in the fourth round.

DeLeon, who weighed 190 pounds, five less than the class limit, now has a 36-2-1 record with 25 knockouts. Davis is 14-2 with seven knockouts.

Iowa Nearing Another Title

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The University of Iowa wrestling team finds itself in a familiar position — in command at the NCAA championships.

The Hawkeyes, in the words of Coach Dan Gable, look as if they "locked" up an unprecedented seventh straight national title Friday night as two-time defending champion Jim Zalesky led a parade of five Iowa wrestlers into the finals of the NCAA tournament.

"The roof will have to fall in for us to lose," Gable said. "It looks locked right now."

Zalesky was to attempt to capture his third straight title at 158 pounds Saturday for the Hawkeyes, who rolled up 113¼ points after the semifinal round to pull away from top-ranked Oklahoma State, second with 75½ points. Penn State was third with 57½ points, Nebraska fourth with 52½, Wisconsin fifth with 43 and Oklahoma sixth with 36½.

The Hawkeyes, who set an NCAA record with 155 points last year but were rated second nationally behind Oklahoma State this season, sent Zalesky, 134-pound Greg Randall, 177-pound Duane Goldman and brothers Marty and Lindley Kistler into the finals at the Brendan Byrne Arena.

Zalesky decisioned Oklahoma's Johnny Johnson 10-3 in the semifinals to extend his unbeaten streak to 89, including 40 in a row this season. Zalesky was to face Wisconsin's Mark Schmitz for the national title. Schmitz, who already has lost twice this year to Zalesky, decisioned Oklahoma State's Billy Dykeman 3-1 in the semifinals.

Mets Finding Tough Choice

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — If two is company, and three is a crowd, then, according to New York Mets Manager Dave Johnson, four "is a dogfight."

And that's what Johnson has on his hands as he tries to settle the question of who will play second and shortstop for the Mets in 1984.

Last season, the positions were filled by Brian Giles at second and Jose Oquendo at short. Now, second baseman Wally Backman and shortstop Ron Gardenhire, who played for Johnson last year at Tidewater, have been thrown into the fray.

"Of course, I have a certain time schedule in mind for making the decision," said Johnson, who replaced Frank Howard last Oct. 13. "But it doesn't always work that way. And, sometimes you can be disappointed if you try to speed things up."

Johnson, 41, said ideally he would like his second baseman and shortstop to hit 1-2 in the lineup. He has talked about hitting Backman leadoff, if he can wrest the job from Giles, with Gardenhire No. 2.

So, where does that leave Giles and Oquendo, one of the most exciting shortstops in the league last year?

While making all the plays, Oquendo hit an anemic .213 last year. Giles hit .245 but struck out 77 times in 400 at-bats. Johnson considers Backman a potentially better hitter than Giles, but Giles has shown more flash at fielding his position.

"You have to make do with what you've got and how they fit together as a unit," said Johnson, who will be trying to get the club out of the National League East cellar for the first time in three years.

If Gardenhire gets the nod, the 20-year-old Oquendo most likely will be sent to the minors, using either Giles or Backman as the backup infielder. Johnson said some more time in Triple A might help Oquendo's hitting.

"He's got strong hands, and he had a good winter (hitting around .290 in Puerto Rico)," Johnson said.

"Anytime you're playing baseball, you're likely to get better," Johnson said. "You should, anyway. And sometimes you have to let a guy polish his skills at the major league level."

Keith Hernandez has the first-base job, and Hubie Brooks will play third. The rest of the outfield will consist of George Foster in left and 1983 NL Rookie of the Year Darryl Strawberry in right.

Evans Finding Bit Of Heaven

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Darrell Evans has found a little bit of heaven with the Detroit Tigers.

Signed as a free agent for an estimated $2.25 million last December, Evans can certainly afford a little bliss. He and his family are buying a house in the same Grosse Pointe, Mich., neighborhood Henry Ford II calls home.

But it's more than the money that makes Evans happy to be a Tiger. He views his move from the San Francisco Giants to Detroit as a chance to finally earn a championship ring after 15 years in the major leagues.

"I did a lot of research over the winter before I decided which club I wanted to sign with," Evans said during a break in spring training at Marchant Stadium. "In the end, I felt this was the ballclub I could make the most impact on."

The Tigers won 92 games last year without Evans.

"If I can contribute enough to win a few more ballgames than they did last year, we've got a good chance to win it — the whole thing," Evans said. "Being in camp here for three weeks now, I can honestly say I made the right choice."

There are, however, two problems. One is age, the other batting average.

Evans will be 37 in May; in the Tigers' history, only five men have been everyday players at that age. Norm Cash was the last to do it. Al Kaline finished his career as a designated hitter.

"I feel young," Evans said. "I take care of myself and I've been lucky to be free of injuries. My whole family is that way. They still get together for weekend softball games — some as old as 63."

The hitting is another matter. Evans owns a .253 lifetime batting average. He is paid, however, for his power. He has 262 big league home runs — including 30 last year with the San Francisco Giants — and he generally drives in about 70 runs a season.

Those figures could improve in Detroit. Evans bats left-handed and the right-field fence in Tiger Stadium is only 325 feet down the line. It's a situation General Manager Bill Lajoie never thought would occur.

"I didn't think we had a chance after I saw how many teams drafted him," Lajoie said. "It turned out we were the right team at the right time."

Evans and his wife, LaDonna, began the search for a Michigan home immediately after signing a three-year contract with the Tigers.

"You see, I think the veterans have a responsibility to perpetuate the game of baseball," Evans said. "The fans — a lot of them — live and die with the ball team. You should see some of the mail.

"I've never played in a sports city like Detroit before — where the fans come out, no matter what. I want to be part of the community. It's important to me. I signed a three-year contract. This is not a temporary thing."

Manager Sparky Anderson intends to play Evans at first base every day, and perhaps use him as a DH late in the season if he's hitting well but in need of some rest.

"I'd say he needs to hit .260 and hit 20 home runs to be a factor, and he'll do that and probably knock in about 80 runs," Anderson said. "Last year we got about six home runs and 50-some RBIs out of first base."

The exact numbers were eight home runs and 72 RBIs between Enos Cabell and Rick Leach.

Tiger teammates who know Evans call him a winner.

"I'm an Evans fan. He's a gamer," said Larry Herndon, who played with Evans for two years in San Francisco. "He's also a good human being. He helped me a lot when I was young and just breaking in. He's a gentleman, that's the word I want to use.

"I was glad. I went bananas when I heard he was coming here."

Evans said he found the Tigers to be an even better ballclub than he expected.

"I had heard about how good we were up the middle, but our position players also are very good," Evans noted. "No club can score more runs than us, and the defense is just outstanding.

Socks Cause NCAA Track Flap

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Carol Lewis wears tight-fitting socks, but they caused a flap Friday during the preliminary events of the 20th annual NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships because of a brand name.

Lewis, a University of Houston junior and the meet's defending champion in the long jump, faced a choice of rolling down her socks to cover the name of the manufacturer or being disqualified.

She opted to compete and easily moved into Saturday's finals with a jump of 21 feet, 3 inches.

She also qualified for the final of the 55-meter hurdles.

Meanwhile, the men's team championship was up for grabs after Texas-El Paso and Arkansas, the pre-meet favorites, failed to place finalists in a number of key events.

Texas-El Paso came into the meet seeking its eighth national title since 1974.

While the Miners and Razorbacks sputtered, Southern Methodist shouldered its way into a shot at defending its 1983 crown with competitors in six of the 16 men's finals. There were 13 finals for women, with Nebraska defending and Tennessee hoping to steal the crown.

Lewis, a one-woman team who holds the American women's record in the long jump at 22-2¼, said the hassle over her socks distracted her. She also complained that other competitors were allowed to perform with labels or trademarks visible on clothing.

"I thought it was stupid," she said of the NCAA's new ban on manufacturer advertising. "I didn't roll them down, I just sort of squished them so they can't see the Nike (label).

Lewis said she bought the socks two years ago in Japan and likes them because they fit at the ankles but had the double-thickness soles she prefers.

Candy Young of Fairleigh Dickinson, another defending champion, clocked a time of 7.69 seconds in the women's hurdles, while Lewis was third in a different heat and fifth overall in 7.76.

In the men's 55-meter high hurdles, Roger Kingdom of Pittsburgh and Morgan State's Jack Pierce ran strong times of 7.08 and 7.11, respectively, to promise a swift field in the finals.

Sam Braddy of Tennessee clocked an impressive 6.12 seconds in the 55-meter dash and Michael Franks of Southern Illinois posted a 47.06 in the 400 meters.

Stanford's Patti Sue Plumer emerged as one of the top female competitors of the event, advancing to the finals of the 1,500-and 3,000-meter runs, while Angela Thacker of Nebraska qualified for finals in the long jump and sprint.

Texas-El Paso got off on the wrong foot early in the meet when Didamis Shahanga dragged in fourth in his heat of the 3,000 meters. The Miners also lost Joey Wells in the long jump, Fabian Whymns in the 55-meter dash, Norbert Elliott in the triple jump and the distance medley and 1,600-meter relay teams.

Shahanga's won the NCAA 5,000-meter and 10,000-meter titles last year, and his failure to advance was the surprise of the meet so far.

Arkansas, a four-time Southwest champion, saw its hopes for a first national crown dimmed when high jumper Bill Jasinski and pole vaulter Mark Klee missed the cut.

However, the Razorbacks appeared to have more strength left than Texas-El Paso, which expected to get most of the rest of its points from high jumpers Milt Ottey and Dave Puvogel and world-class 35-pound weight thrower Tore Johnsen.

Arkansas put Mike Conley in the long jump and triple jump, Tom Moloney in the 1,500 meters, Marty Kobza in the shot put and a distance medley relay team.

Southern Methodist hopes for points from Michael Carter, who has won three indoor and three outdoor shot put titles, two-time weight throw titleholder Robert Weir and weight throwers Anders Hoff and Keith Bateson, hurdler Henry Andrade and a relay team.

Reds Trying Two Heads

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — With virtually nothing to lose, the Cincinnati Reds are embarking on an experiment of sorts.

"Two heads are better than one," says Reds hitting coach Tommy Helms.

"It gives us twice as much time with each player," says Reds hitting coach Joe Sparks.

Although the idea of having two hitting instructors with a club might, in itself, not be new, Reds first-year Manager Vern Rapp is going about it a little differently.

"Joe Sparks is the third-base coach and left-handed hitting batting instructor, and Tommy Helms is the first-base coach and right-handed hitting instructor," said Rapp, who took over a club that finished last in the National League West in 1983.

Says Sparks: "So far as I know, this is the first time it's been done in baseball."

If a a club ever needed two hitting instructors, it's the Reds. They were last in the National League in hitting last year, with a .239 team average.

Sparks, 46, who managed for 13 years in the minor leagues, and the 43-year-old Helms, who spent more than six of his 14 major league seasons with the Reds, both are new to the coaching staff. Sparks was a left-handed hitter; Helms was a righty.

"It was Vern's idea," Sparks said at the Reds' training camp. "When he called me to ask me to take the job, he wanted me to coach third base and be hitting coach for lefties.

"I thought it was a very unique idea, and outstanding. I think in the future a lot of other clubs are going to try it."

It works this way. Helms throws to Sparks' left-handed hitters during batting practice while Sparks looks on. Then, for the right-handers, Sparks throws BP while Helms studies the hitters.

"Naturally," Sparks said, "if I see something with one of Tommy's right-handers, I'll say something to him. We have similar philosophies, and it's worked out great so far."

Helms said when he first heard the suggestion, he thought, "It's fine with me. It gives me more time to look at the hitters. We do a lot of things the same way. It's a team effort."

Sparks and Helms never worked together before. Sparks had been with the Chicago White Sox, Kansas City Royals, Houston Astros and Cleveland Indians organizations. Helms, who retired from baseball in 1977, was a Texas Rangers coach the past two years.

"I'd heard a lot about him," Sparks said, "and he was familiar with the things I was doing. We teach a lot of things the same way. We like the hitters to stay back, swing through the ball.

"We take each hitter as an individual. We don't say everybody has to do this or that."

Sparks said they have have worked out a three-part system, in which the players start off with a hitting tee, then work in the batting cages with pitching machines, then move onto live batting practice.

"We believe these three steps can correct most mistakes," he said. "We also use video quite a bit, and, in time, we hope our strategy has them doing the right things in a game.

"We're trying some different things, and so far the hitters have responded well."

Helms said the instruction is not limited to him and Sparks.

"We've Johnny Bench (who retired after last season) down here, and we've got a lot of respect for him," Helms said. "And with Gary Redus, for example, we've gotten a lot of help from (coach) George Scherger. He's been around a lot longer, and he's seen Redus in the minors.

"We're all in this together."

Sparks says he has been able to pick up some quirks in the swings of Reds veteran Dan Driessen, and Dave Parker, acquired last December as a free agent from Pittsburgh.

"We're trying some things down here, and if they work, we'll carry them into the season," Sparks said.

Where's The Money Coming From?

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

For their opening game, the Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League drew 32,082 fans to the 94,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum, with the help of a postgame rock concert. The next week, without a concert, they drew 14,789.

The day after the second game, the Express announced the signing of quarterback Steve Young to a contract that will pay him $6 million for the next four years and an additional $34 million until he is 65. His yearly salary is about 60 percent of the $2.5 million that those crowds, pro-rated over a nine-game home season, could be expected to put in Express coffers.

Young's is thought to be the largest contract ever given an athlete. That is, unless you agree with Herschel Walker and the New Jersey Generals, who said the contract extension Walker signed with the USFL team three days later is really better in the long term.

On the surface, at the headline level, all seems rosy for the USFL.

Walker last year, then Mike Rozier; Young and Marcus Dupree in tandem, and another half-dozen or so first-round caliber draft choices with less recognizable names have signed on. The signings have provided publicity for a second-year league sampling the nation's taste for spring football.

But close beneath that big-money surface lurk some less-rosy financial facts, and the questions: Where is the money coming from and where is the USFL going?

Some examples:

—Average attendance for the first two games of 1984 is down 7,043 from the first two games of last year, to just over 30,000 — below Commissioner Chet Simmons' stated hopes of a season-long average of 35,000. Throw out two crowds — 62,300 in Birmingham the first week and 73,227 in Jacksonville last week — and average attendance falls to 23,000, below last year's season-long average of 25,000.

—Television ratings in this final year of ABC's contract with the USFL are down from the first two weeks of last year, although USFL games have beaten CBS and NBC opposition both weeks and network officials express satisfaction.

But those same officials note that it's hard to do much better at this time of year than the ratings the USFL is getting — 8.0 the first week, 7.9 the second. They give the USFL little chance of getting the anything near the $70 million a year it reportedly wants in its next contract.

In fact, at this point ABC seems inclined to simply pick up its option for the next two years at $32 million. NBC, the only other serious bidder, says it won't touch the USFL unless ABC drops out.

—The television situation impinges on another USFL problem — the franchises in Washington and Chicago, both of which are up for sale with no reported takers.

According to both network and USFL sources, the current ABC contract has a clause allowing cancellation or rights rebates if the league has no team in one of the top three markets (New York, Chicago and Los Angeles) or two of the top 10. Since the Boston franchise has already moved to New Orleans, the loss of Washington (eighth) or Chicago could kill the television revenue — and possibly kill the league.

—Finally, there's the split over what the USFL should be.

Two new owners, Los Angeles' J. William Oldenburg and New Jersey's Donald Trump, have declared war on the National Football League. Trump says he's almost ready to switch to the fall and take on the NFL in the "Galaxy Bowl." His statements give rise to speculation that he, Oldenburg, and perhaps a few others are interested more in moving their teams into the older league than in furthering the USFL.

In fact, Trump and Oldenburg sometimes seem to be playing a game of "Can You Top This?"

At the news conference announcing the Walker extension, Trump kept insisting that Walker's contract — $6 million over four years — would eventually be better than Young's.

And Oldenburg, whose team was 0-2 going into Sunday's game at Oakland despite signing the equivalent of four NFL No.1 choices, is quoted as saying in the current issue of Sports Illustrated magazine:

"The L.A. Express will be THE professional team. Not just in the USFL but in the USFL AND the NFL. I'm used to winning, to nothing less than becoming the best. Donald Trump can get all the press he wants, but when it comes to business, he can't carry my socks."

Neither Oldenburg nor Trump suggest their teams will generate enough money to pay these huge salaries and turn a profit.

Take the Express, and project $2.5 million in gate receipts and another $2 million or so from national television, local radio, concessions and miscellaneous income.

Quarterback Tom Ramsey, presumably to be relegated to backup status when Young is ready, plus five other well-paid rookies, will eat up most of the rest of the receipts. One of those five, tackle Mark Adickes, is now out for the season with a knee injury after signing a contract reported to pay him $2.6 million over four years.

That still leaves the salaries of General Manager Don Klosterman, Coach John Hadl, special assistant Sid Gillman, assistant coaches, 43 other players, office and support staff. Not to mention basic overhead expenses, travel from coast to coast foremost among them.

That means the money is coming from the pockets of Oldenburg, president and chairman of the board of Investment Mortgage International, based in San Francisco.

Young's money, like Walker's from New York real estate magnate Trump, comes primarily from a personal services contract and can be paid with less — if Oldenburg invests $25,000 at 11 percent now, it will turn into the $1 million with which to pay Young sometime around 2020.

But that's still $1 million Oldenberg or IMI would otherwise have to use for something else in that year — and Young is only committed to play for the Express for four years,

Most of the original USFL owners seem to prefer the concept on which the league was founded — build to respectability with middle-range players at medium-range prices, with an occasional superstar like Walker for gate appeal. Simmons sometimes agrees with them.

"As commissioner, I don't like it," Simmons said after the Young signing. "It worries me. I do not think it is in the best interest of professional football or of the league, but what is to be done? These are wealthy businessmen seeking to build and sell a product and to compete."

Says John Bassett of the Tampa Bay Bandits, whose Memphis Southmen were the most successful team in the old World Football League:

"All of this reminds me of the old commentary that goes, 'When a man with money meets up with a man of experience, the man with the experience usually ends up with the money and the man with the money usually ends up with the experience.'

"I have no intention of going bankrupt signing wealthy players. I have had the experience some of our owners have now. I have lost my $10 million."

Rangers Find Hope For Future

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Canada Olympian James Patrick and a rare road victory have given New York Rangers Coach Herb Brooks hope for the future.

Left winger Mark Osborne's 21st goal at the 43-second mark of the overtime period carried the Rangers to a 6-5 National Hockey League victory Friday night over the Winnipeg Jets. The triumph snapped the Rangers' longest losing streak of the season at four games and gave them a road victory after five losses and three ties.

"We've been in a big slump," Brooks said. "Proven people who can put the puck in the net have not been doing it. But to come from behind the way we've been playing on the road . . . it's an important two points for many, many reasons."

Although he didn't elaborate, one of the reasons had to be Patrick, a Winnipeg, Manitoba, native playing his second game for New York since joining them from the Canadian Olympic team. Patrick was a standout on defense and he also picked up three assists, including one on Osborne's winning goal.

In other NHL games, Washington tripped Quebec 5-3, Buffalo bounced Los Angeles 7-3 and Vancouver tripped Chicago 4-3 in overtime.

The Rangers trailed 3-1 in the second period and 5-3 midway through the third. But they rallied both times to tie the Jets, who have only one win in their last six games.

Winnipeg Coach Barry Long said the Rangers outworked the Jets.

"We had the lead twice in the game and we let them come back," Long said.

Canucks 4, Black Hawks 3

Rick Lanz scored a power-play goal at 2:18 of overtime to give Vancouver a home victory over Chicago.

Tom Lysiak forced the extra period when he scored with 16 seconds left in the third period for the Black Hawks to tie the score 3-3.

Sabres 7, Kings 3

Gilles Hamel scored the first and last of five consecutive Buffalo goals after visiting Los Angeles tied the score 2-2 in the second period.

Capitals 5, Nordiques 3

At Landover, Md., Washington won its fifth straight game and snapped a seven-game unbeaten string for Quebec as Glen Currie scored twice for the Capitals.

Wildlife Public Hearings — Tar Heel sportsmen may have the opportunity to hunt doves over the Thanksgiving holiday in the future. This was one of the proposed changes in hunting, fishing and trapping regulations for 1984-85 considered by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission at a meeting in Raleigh on February 27.

These proposed changes in regulations will be presented at a series of public hearings in mid-March, and if adopted, changes in regulations would become effective on July 1.

The proposed changes in hunting, fishing and trapping regulations to be presented at public hearings include only major changes in regulations. In areas not mentioned, seasons and regulations will be the same as last year except for minor calendar adjustments.

Several new either-sex seasons for deer are proposed. The proposals are as follows:

•Establish an either-sex season on Nov. 28 in all of Iredell County and in Alleghany, Ashe and Stokes counties except on game lands.

•Establish an either-sex season running from Nov. 28-29 in all of Pitt County.

•Establish an either-sex season running from Nov. 28-Dec. 1 in all of Hyde County and in Martin County west of U.S. 17.

A three-way split season for doves is also proposed. The proposed season would run from Sept. 1-29, Nov. 17-24, and Dec. 14-Jan. 15. This season would allow hunting during the Thanksgiving Holiday period while maintaining seasons when dove numbers peak. This proposal would be subject to federal guidelines.

Another proposal would permit trapping of river otters during the regular trapping season in and east of Rockingham, Guilford, Davidson, Rowan, Cabarrus and Union counties. Studies have shown that a harvestable surplus of otters is present, and trapping should not prevent further expansion of the population.

Several regulation changes are also proposed for game lands. The proposed changes are:

•Allow waterfowl hunting six days per week outside the posted waterfowl impoundments on the Goose Creek Game Land. This would allow waterfowl hunters to hunt for diving ducks and other species that utilize the sound by using the marsh banks as hunting locations. This change would not affect utilization of the impoundments by waterfowl.

All sportsmen are urged to give these proposals careful consideration and to attend the public hearings. Public input plays a vital role in the development of new regulations.

All public hearings begin at 7 p.m. and the schedule for eastern North Carolina is as follows:

N.C. Wildlife Water Safety Team — The N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission's Water Safety Team for District II main purpose is to demonstrate how lives are needlessly lost each year in water related accidents and how many of these tragedies could easily be avoided. Topics included in the demonstration are: the correct use of personal floatation devices, emergency situations, the use of clothing to stay afloat, loading equipment and people into boats, unsafe movement, safety equipment check, boats underway, approaching docks, towing, skiing and loading on trailer.

Cotton Prices Rise Sharply

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
AP Business Writer

Cotton futures prices rose sharply Friday on the Cotton Exchange in New York amid a continued strong rate of exports.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that sales of cotton for export in the week ended March 3 totaled 98,300 bales, a figure analysts considered supportive for prices.

The report triggered buying early in the session and that advance prompted buying by technical traders who watch trends on price charts, especially when the contract for delivery in May climbed above 79.50 cents a pound, said Nauman Barakat, a cotton analyst in New York with Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co.

Low-grade cotton, which is used primarily for exports, also appears to be in tight supply, which further b

Texas Oil Families Expect Huge Profits

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — T. Boone Pickens Jr. and the Bass family do have some things in common. They're all from Texas, they have a lot of cash at their disposal and they have profited handsomely from their investments in huge oil companies. But that's about where the resemblance between the oilmen ends.

Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co. in Amarillo, Texas, is outspoken. And he has cast himself as an advocate of "the shareholder." He maintains that oil companies are undervalued and mismanaged and he says he chases stakes in those companies to right those wrongs.

The Bass family of Fort Worth, Texas, meanwhile, is tight-lipped. It has not engaged in messy public battles for control. Rather, the four brothers — Sid R., Edward, Robert and Lee — quietly seek profitable stock investments.

Their investment in Texaco Inc. brought them a profit of more than $300 million when Texaco agreed this past Tuesday to buy back the Basses' 9.9 percent holding for $1.3 billion.

The result of Pickens' 6-month-old battle with Gulf Corp. was an agreement on Monday for Standard Oil Co. of California to acquire Gulf for $80 a share. The $13.3 billion transaction would be the largest corporate takeover in history.

If the deal is completed, Mesa, Pickens and a group of investing partners will walk away with a total profit of about $760 million. Mesa's share would be $506 million.

Pickens, 55, the owner of an Amarillo ranch, says he will contintue with his plans for a proxy fight at Gulf's annual meeting, just in case Socal's bid meets antitrust objections in Washington.

In a speech Wednesday before the Washington Society of Investment Analysts, Pickens argued there is an attitude in the corporate world that managements, not shareholders, own companies. "This attitude must change," he said, because shareholders are the "cornerstone of the free enterprise system."

"He very definitely feels that cash flows haven't been invested wisely. They're are a lot of different ways of maximizing value," said Paul Leibman, an industry analyst in Chicago for the investment firm Paine Webber Mitchell Hutchins. "I don't think we've seen the last of Boone Pickens in terms of his evangelical drive to improve the way this industry's assets are managed."

Pickens is a proponent of royalty trusts in which oil and gas properties are spun off to avoid double taxation of corporate earnings and dividends. The trusts also curb oil companies' control over their cash.

While skeptics would say that Pickens' battles have benefited not shareholders but speculators in the stock market and the major players in the dramas, Leibman said, "I think the shareholders of Mesa have benifited quite significantly from these actions. He hasn't been doing this personally. He's been doing this for Mesa and it has accrued value for the shareholders of Mesa."

Pickens said: "All Gulf shareholders win. The 270,000 Gulf shareholders will receive approximately $13.4 billion for their stock. This amount is two times the value of Gulf stock just last summer, and the increase will have a positive impact on the nation's economy."

Leibman said, "It's important in the Gulf deal that he didn't cut and run. He wasn't going to leave other shareholders high and dry and get paid off. Gulf offered to buy his stock back at a significant premium and he refused it.

"Where as it might have been true earlier that you could characterize his actions as a hit-and-run approach, I think his morals were above-board and clean in this Gulf deal. He certainly was in there to represent the shareholders."

About the Bass family, Leibman said, "I see them relative to the Pickens group as more passive investors. It's a private family and I don't think they want to operate out in the open quite as much as Pickens does."

While he said he thinks the Bass family has been interested only in lucrative stock investments, he added that if oil stocks continue to be undervalued, if cash remains available and if the government "leaves the window open on merger activity," the Bass family might engage in a takeover battle.

The Bass brothers have bought holdings in numerous companies and occasionally sold them back at a profit. They held a 5.1 percent stake in Marathon Oil Co. that they sold in 1982 to U.S. Steel Co. for $160 million.

They conduct their business through Bass Brothers Enterprises Inc., which manages oil and gas and real-estate holdings and various investment partnerships and subsidiaries.

Pickens made his first attack in June 1982 against Cities Service Co. Cities Service turned to Occidental Petroleum Corp. for protection and Pickens walked away with a handsome profit. In early 1983, he chased General American Oil Co., which turned into to Phillips Petroleum, and Pickens cleaned up again. Later that year, Pickens sold his 3 percent stake in Superior Oil Co.

In other business and economic developments this past week:

— Civilian unemployment fell to 7.8 percent in February, the lowest rate in 2½ years, as 700,000 Americans found work, the government reported. It was the sixth straight month of falling joblessness. The total number of people with jobs reached a record 103.9 million, but some 8.8 million remained officially categorized as unemployed, the Labor Department said.

— U.S. Steel Corp. said it terminated its merger agreement with National Intergroup Inc., parent of National Steel Corp., due to anticipated resistance to the combination by the U.S. Justice Department.

— Financial Corp. of America, the nation's largest savings and loan, said it had bought nearly 5 percent of American Express Co. stock and might try for as much as 21 percent of the financial service company. But it said it did not intend to buy American Express. American Express said it "has a written agreement with FCA that FCA will not acquire any additional shares without the consent of the American Express board of directors."

— The nation's basic money supply fell $1.5 billion in late February, snapping a string of five consecutive weekly increases, the Federal Reserve Board said. The Fed said M1 fell to a seasonally adjusted $533.3 billion in the week ended Feb. 27 from a revised $534.8 billion the previous week. But analysts said the decline was not enough to reduce fears about the possibility of the Fed making credit scarcer.

— The Federal Communications Commission rejected an appeal by publisher Rupert Murdoch to overturn a stock deal apparently aimed at averting a Murdoch bid for control of Warner Communications Inc. The agency concluded the stock swap between Warner and Chris-Craft Industries Inc. that occurred last January had not changed the majority control of either firm, both of which have broadcast interests, and said the companies had been free to proceed with the deal.

— The monthly survey of purchasing managers showed economic growth was strong in February amid evidence of rising prices. The National Association of Purchasing Management, which surveys 250 companies nationwide, found that 43 percent of the managers who responded reported higher prices, while 54 percent said prices were steady. The survey also indicated that employment was up and that invetories grew at a fast rate compared with January.

— Domestic car sales grew 42 percent in Febraury compared to a year ago, continuing January's strong pace. The U.S. auto makers sold 655,016 units last month and the monthly sales amounted to 8.5 million units annually. Chrysler Corp. announced plans to spend $6.1 billion through 1987 to modernize plants and develop new products, including a mid-size luxury touring car slated for introduction this year.

— An OPEC committee recommended leaving price and production policies unchanged, while industry sources said Nigeria had stepped up output 15.4 percent above its quota under the cartel's output ceiling. Analysts said that if OPEC could stick close to its production limits, oil prices should hold steady in the upcoming slack spring season.

higher with the contract for delivery in March at $3.54¼ a bushel; corn was ¾ cent to 3¾ cents higher with March at $3.44 a bushel; oats were 2¾ cents to ¼ cent higher with March at $1.80½ a bushel; and soybeans were 3 cents lower to 14 cents higher with March at $7.83½ a bushel.

Livestock and meat prices fell on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Prices backed off after rallying most of the week. Analysts said some of the selling in the cattle pit came from traders who took profits on contracts they previously had bought.

Cattle prices appear to be firm, said Robert Holbert, a livestock analyst in Chicago with ContiCommodity Services Inc., as carcass beef edged up on wholesale cash markets to 1.05 cents a pound from 1.04 cents Thursday. In addition, feed lots appear to have no excess supply of cattle, he said.

Hog supplies, on the other hand, are plentiful, possibly excessive, Holbert said, noting that 50,000 animals more than expected were slaughter during the week. Wholesale prices for pork products such as loins and hams were lower, reflecting the increased supply.

Live cattle settled 0.22 cent lower to 0.05 cent higher with the contract for delivery in April at 71.82 cents a pound; feeder cattle were 0.15 cent to 0.52 cent lower with March at 70.45 cents a pound; live hogs were 0.58 cent lower to 0.15 cent higher with April at 46.82 cents a pound; and frozen pork bellies were 0.80 cent lower to 0.25 cent higher with March at 63.42 cents a pound.

Precious metals prices were slightly lower after trading in a narrow range in light volume on the Commodity Exchange in New York.

Prices were lower early in the session, primarily in re-sponse to the strength of the U.S. dollar and indications of higher interest rates, said Bette Raptopoulous, senior metals analyst in New York with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

"But the market had a steady tone," she added, noting that the market is concerned about the possibility of in-flation. Gold traditionally is a favored investment when inflation erodes the purchasing power of currencies.

Trading was light, Miss Raptopoulous said, because the storm in the Northeast kept many traders away from the exchange.

Gold settled $2 to $2.50 lower with the contract for delivery in March at $400.70 a troy ounce; silver settled 6.6 cents to 9.5 cents lower with March at $9.896 a troy ounce.

SAMPLING FOOD ... Patrons of the tasting tea line up to sample the 26 different dishes prepared by members of the Cherry Oaks Garden Club. This is the sixth year the tasting tea has been held, and each year the event has grown larger. Two hundred women purchased tickets for this year's tea.

Tasting Tea A Success

On one Saturday recently, 200 women crowded around the long tables at the American Legion Building for lunch. The food lining both sides of the serving tables included hot pepper cheese dip, corned beef casserole, baked rice casserole, green beans almond, glazed carrots and banana split pudding.

This was not an ordinary luncheon. It was the annual tasting tea held by the Cherry Oaks Garden Club.

Those who attended the tea March 3 sampled 26 different dishes and were given booklets including the recipes of all the dishes served.

The garden club's tasting tea has become a Greenville tradition. This is the sixth year the club has sponsored the event.

The topic for this year's tea was "Easy Does It," said Betsy Little, chairman of the tea. Fare for the luncheon included foods that are quick and easy to make.

"We try to get all 100 members in the Cherry Oaks Garden Club involved in the tea. This year we had 90 women participating," Mrs. Little said.

Mrs. Little's assistant in planning the tea was Sharyn Lennox. Co-chairmen of the recipe committee were Judith Kuykendall and Laurie Charlton. Glenda McLawhorn and Debbie Allen were in charge of tickets and the decorations committee was chaired by Brenda Whichard and Barbara McMillion. Typist Lois Lane worked with Jean Crawford and Judy Becton on the cookbook. Brenda Edwards and Nita Day were co-chairmen of the kitchen committee and Becky Brittle and Ann Jones headed the dining room committee.

Members of the garden club begin planning for the tasting tea in the fall, Mrs. Little said.

"First we find a place to have the tea. Six years ago we had the tea in the First Presbyterian Church. When we outgrew that facility, we moved to the Hooker Memorial Church. This year the tea was held at the American Legion Building, which seats 200 people."

Tickets are limited to the seating capacity of the building, and each year the event has grown.

"A few years ago, I invited my mother and my sister to come to the tea, and then found out that I couldn't get tickets because they were in such demand," Mrs. Little said.

The majority of the planning is done after Christmas, when members of the club submit recipes that go along with the topic that has been chosen, Mrs. Little said. "Members of the recipe committee choose which of those recipes we will make for the tea; the committee tries to get a variety of foods that are appealing and practical to make."

Members of the club are then assigned recipes to make for the tea. "We try to distribute the recipes so that each person making a dish has the same monetary amount involved," Mrs. Little said. "Some people make a small batch of a more expensive dish and others make several batches of a recipe that is cheaper to make."

Those members who did not prepare a dish donated their money and time. Others made crafts to sell in the country store the club holds in conjunction with the tea. In charge of the country store this year were Phyllis Caruso, Jean Chappell, Juanita Plueddemann and Kathy Whitehead.

"Donations from AccuCopy, Larry's Carpetland, Overton's Supermarket, Sunshine Garden Center and East Coast Coffee Distributers were very benficial to the club," Mrs. Little said.

"Money-wise, this was our most profitable tasting tea," she said. The club will decide later this month at a social and square dance what the money will be used for.

The funds from the tasting tea are usually earmarked for a designated project, Mrs. Little said. "In the past, we bought a large piece of playground equipment for the Cherry Oaks playground. And the club adopts a family from the Pitt County Department of Social Services and we buy Christmas gifts for them and try to help them with needs throughout the year."

This year the garden club is having new entrance signs made for the Cherry Oaks subdivision. The club will also make a donation to the Cherry Oaks Recreation Club.

"The tasting tea was profitable," Mrs. Little said, "but the fact that so many club members got involved makes it a success."

GETTING READY ... A member of the Cherry Oaks Garden Club gets ready to heat and serve food to the 200 patrons of the tasting tea on March 3.

TRYING SOME OF IT ALL ... Those women who attended the tea tried a little of each of the dishes prepared. Food lining both sides of the serving table are quick and easy to make. Recipes for all the dishes are included in the cookbook each patron received.

LAST MINUTE PREPARATIONS ... Tasting tea chairman Betsy Little (r) and kitchen committee co-chairman Brenda Edwards make sure the coffee is ready before the tasting tea.

Patricia Lucido Marries Jeffrey William James

The wedding ceremony of Patricia Louise Lucido and Jeffrey William James was solemnized Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in St. Peter's Catholic Church. Performing the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Michael Clay.

A program of music was presented by Hattie Pignani, organist, and Jeff Krantz, organist.

Parents of the bridal couple are Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Jack A. Lucido and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie James, all of Greenville.

MRS. JAMES

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her maid of honor was Julie Arnett of Greenville. Bridesmaids included Valerie James, sister of the bridegroom, and Nonie Ward, both of Greenville, Karen Sefton of Durham and Jeanne Gelston of Cary.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Tim Lucido of Atlanta, Ga., brother of the bride, Jackie James, brother of the bridegroom, and Reggie Selby, both of Greenville, and Roy Hudson of Cary.

The bride wore a formal gown of white satin, re-embroidered alencon lace and English net over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a fitted empire bodice with an overlay of English net, re-embroidered alencon lace accented with designs of seed pearls and iridescents and a colonial neckline and long fitted sleeves puffed at the shoulder. Traditional bridal buttons closed the sleeves and bodice back. The A-line skirt flowed into a cathedral train bordered with scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace. Her waltz length mantilla, enhanced with motifs of lace and pearls, was attached to a lace covered Juliet cap encrusted with pearls and bordered with re-embroidered alencon lace. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white gardenias and mini carnations, pink roses, baby's breath and greenery with white satin ribbons.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of corsage violet matte taffeta fashioned with an off-shoulder neckline enhanced by a double ruffle of taffeta in corsage violet and lilac. The sleeveless gown featured a full, Southern belle skirt with an overskirt in a draped effect accented with matching bows of taffeta cording. The underskirt featured a ruffled flounce at the hemline in lilac taffeta. Bridesmaids were dressed identically in lilac matte taffeta accented with corsage violet. Each carried a bouquet of mini pink and white carnations, lavender daisies, purple statice, baby's breath and greenery with lavender and purple satin streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mauve silk chiffon fashioned with a pearled capelet. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of blue silk chiffon fashioned with a beaded bodice. Each wore a corsage of roses and mini carnations. Corsages of gardenias were given to grandmothers.

The ceremony was directed by Mamie Smith.

The couple will live in Greenville after a cruise to the Bahamas.

The bride graduated from J.H. Rose High School and attended Lees-McRae College. She is employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital Rehabilitation Center. The bridegroom attended J.H. Rose High School and Pitt Community College. He is owner of the Shell Pantry.

A reception was held at the Ramada Inn. Kim and Kay Fisher presided at the guest register. Cake was served by Mrs. Jackie James and Mrs. Michael Lucido. Music was presented by the Ned Mills Trio.

Favors were passed out by Christy Holt of Franklin, Va. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Charles Mayo, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hines, Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. James Mercer.

Mrs. Billie Jean Trevathan gave a wedding breakfast for the bride's family. The wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests were honored at an after-rehearsal dinner at the Sheraton-Greenville given by the parents of the bridegroom. A bridesmaids luncheon was given by Patsy Ward and Nomie Ward. Several showers and parties were also given for the bridal couple.

Irish Enjoy A Variety Of Breads

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

On St. Patrick's Day, Americans across the land will feast on corned beef and cabbage, regarded here as Ireland's national favorite, like potatoes once were.

Delicious as it is, I can't recall seeing this dish featured in many Dublin restaurants. I did hear that cold, spiced corned beef is a traditional part of the annual Christmas Eve feast.

I was surprised, in fact, to discover that many of the top Dublin restaurants feature French fare, as do their counterparts in New York.

This does not mean there is no national Irish cuisine. There is a delicious one, with such dinner specials as Dublin Bay prawns, broiled lobster, roast chicken and Irish ham.

At luncheon, they offer the matchless Irish salmon and delicious oysters found in local waters. The shellfish, I'm told, have been a favorite since ancient times when the Celts gathered them.

Ireland has come a long way from the dark days of the 18th-century famine when people subsisted on potatoes and little else. Spuds are still served, of course, but often as a festive side dish like boxty. This Shrove Tuesday special consists of grated raw potatoes and mashed cooked ones with a flour binding. Baked on a griddle or pan fried, it is regarded by some as a form of bread.

And bread is something the Irish love in many forms. There are yeast breads, soda breads, griddle breads, brown breads and scones, to name a few.

One feature of the Irish cuisine is the breakfast buffet available in most hotels there. Here breads are the centerpiece, spread thick with country butter covered with jam and washed down with Irish tea laced with cream so heavy you can hardly pour it.

A favorite drink, of course, is Irish Coffee, that delicious brew of strong black coffee flavored with spices and brown sugar, then bolstered with Irish whiskey and topped with cream.

There have been many theories as to how this drink acquired its popularity — one of which credits Joe Sheridan, a chef at Ireland's Shannon Airport who reportedly served it to chilled passengers on a winter's night in the 1940s.

To return to food, here's a recipe for brown soda bread.

5 cups whole wheat flour
2½ cups all purpose flour
1-3rd cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
2 eggs, well beaten
2¼ cups sour milk or buttermilk

Mix together the two flours, sugar, baking soda and salt. Work in butter by hand. Mix eggs and sour milk. Make well in center of dry ingredients and add egg mixture, blending until a stiff dough is formed. Turn dough out on a floured board

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

(A note from Erma Bombeck: My recent column on Margaret Hudson, who wrote saying she thought she was the first miliry wife to receive a certificate of appreciation from the U.S. government on her husband's retirement, has brought deluge of mail. It seems military wives throughout the world have been so honored. An earlier column on why this was not done brought only one response, and that was from Mrs. Hudson. We are delighted it is standard Procedure.)

Educators are often criticized for not bringing "real life" into the classroom. It is one thing to conjugate verbs and say in Spanish, "which way is the bullfight?" It is another to know what marriage and raising children are all about . . . a condition destined to affect nearly all of them.

David Parry's sociology class at Blackhawk High School in Beaver, Pa., is at least taking a crack at it. To simulate married life, he has students pair off, spin wheel of fortune to learn what their gross income is, set up a budget, and live off it.

Each pair then "gives birth" to a hard-boiled egg. They name it, decorate it, house it; and figure out how they are going to raise it.

The responsibility does not end in the classroom. Mr. Parry requires that the egg be attached by string to one of the partners or a guardian 24 hours a day for a week. There are bugs to be worked out. Even though he has the students tie a string to one of their toes and hang "the child" over the bed, he says, "I still can't figure out a way to have them awakened at night or I would."

Actually, there are a lot of similarities between hard-boiled eggs and children — which his students have already discovered. They may look fragile, but they're a surprise. I've dropped a few of them (eggs and children) in my time and fully expected them to destruct, but somehow they roll with the punches and show up for the next day.

You'd think being in hot water would do them in, but they become tougher for it and a little more durable. They can even sustain a few cracks in their exterior and survive. You can do a lot of things to make eggs look different. You can paint them in different colors, adorn them with gold, place them in a satin-lined bed or a bed of pencil shavings, but underneath, they're pretty much the same.

It shouldn't take Mr. Parry's class long to figure out that the Cheaper by the Dozen theory is a myth and that dragging anything around all day and night is, in their vernacular. . . awesome.

Offhand, I'd say Mr. Parry has done one of two things. He has either done for hard-boiled eggs what Mr. T has done for the three-piece suit, or he has instilled in a class a lesson on responsibility that I suspect they'll remember for a long time.

League Seeks To Boost Women's Vote

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

Of the 157 million Americans of voting age, about 50 million to 60 million are not registered, a matter of concern to Dorothy S. Ridings, president of the League of Women Voters.

"We believe in the fullest participation at the ballot box," Mrs. Ridings, of Louisville, Ky., said. "This year we are into three national registration projects to try for fuller participation."

Targets are women, youths 18 to 24 ("the worst performers") and residents of nursing and convalescent homes.

"The level of apathy is highest among the young," Mrs. Ridings said in an interview. "They need to understand they will be the generation in charge and they need to participate."

Why not provide inducements to the apathetic, such as a tax credit, Mrs. Ridings was asked.

"It's against the law," she said.

She cited a recent offer that had to be turned down.

"RKO radio stations in major metropolitan markets is encouraging youths to register," she said. The company's management proposed giving a rock album to each youth who registered.

"It had to be turned down," she said. "Against the law."

Do some people not register because of their work schedule?

"Your employer is supposed to give you time to vote," she said.

Would more people register and vote if voting day was a national holiday?

No.

"If voting day was a holiday that's exactly the way people would treat it," Mrs. Ridings said.

What about making it against the law not to vote?

"That would run counter to our historical roots — voting should be a voluntary action by citzens," she said.

Asked if the women's vote will make a difference in the 1984 presidential election, the League of Women Voters president said, "No question. Women are putting on heavy registration drives. Our numbers are greater. Our rate of voting is higher. Last time it was 6 million more votes."

Mrs. Ridings also believes in the so-called gender gap — that women vote differently than men and tend to vote according to issues that affect family, work styles and their chances to succeed.

Gender gap experts claim exit polls in the last presidential election showed women don't just vote a party line, the way most men vote.

Since much of the talk about gender gap comes from those in the thick of the women's liberation movement, is the League of Women Voters getting into partisan politics — something the League is not supposed to do?

"We see the gender gap as issue-oriented and non-partisan," Mrs. Ridings said.

The League of Women Voters has picked a fight with the television industry over political debates leading up to the November elections, Mrs. Ridings disclosed.

In November, the Federal Communications Commission reversed its long-standing policy and allowed broadcasters to sponsor their own political debates without affording equal time to all candidates for the same office.

This 11th hour turnaround, coming as candidates, broadcasters and traditional sponsors like the League of Women Voters were completing debates plans for 1984, triggered a debate of its own. On one side is the League, sole sponsor of the 1980 televised debates seen by a record 120 million viewers.

The television industry is on the other side.

Mrs. Ridings said at issue is a public policy question with significant implications for the election process: who should sponsor televised candidate debates?

The League is going to try to maintain its position as the sole sponsor of presidential candidate debates.

Cooking Is Fun

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Cooks who like to bake with yeast have asked us for a recipe for Hot Cross Buns. Here it is. These buns are made in muffin-pan cups so they are a pretty shape to serve to family and guests or to give as gifts.

HOT CROSS BUNS
4 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
2 envelopes dry yeast
1-3rd cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
1¼ cups milk
2 tablespoons butter, cut in small pieces
2 large eggs
1 cup raisins
¼ cup finely diced candied orange peel
Egg Glaze and Frosting, recipes follow

In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together 1½ cups of the flour, the yeast, sugar, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves.

In a small saucepan heat the milk and butter until very warm — 120 to 130 degrees; add to the yeast mixtube. Beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Add the eggs and ½ cup more of the flour; beat at high speed for 2 minutes. With a wooden spoon gradually stir in enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough; work in raisins and candied peel.

Turn out onto a lightly floured smooth surface and knead until smooth and elastic — 5 to 10 minutes. Turn into a buttered bowl; turn to butter top. Cover bowl with saran; let rise in a warm draft-free place (80 degrees) until doubled — about 1 hour. Punch down; divide into 3 equal parts; divide each part into 6 portions. Shape each portion into a ball. Place in buttered muffin-pan cups (each 1-3rd cup capacity). Let rise as previously until doubled — about 45 minutes. Brush with the Egg Glaze.

Bake in a preheated 400-degre oven until golden brown — 10 to 12 minutes. Loosen edges and remove to wire racks to cool. From the tip of a teaspoon, slowly dribble a small amount of the Frosting over each bun to form a cross. Makes 1½ dozen.

EGG GLAZE: Beat an egg just until yolk and white are blended.

FROSTING: Turn 1 cup fork-stirred confectioners' sugar into a small bowl. With a wooden spoon or whisk gradually beat in orange juice (about 2 tablespoonfuls) until smooth and spreading consistency.

Some Cookbooks Offer Innovative Recipes

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

It's not easy to find new fund-raising cookbooks that specialize in traditional American regional cooking.

Most appear to be collections of contributors' favorite recipes that, for lack of a better description, are international in origin.

Some recipes reflect a lively imagination and sensitive taste buds at work, but many others are minor variations on an oft-sung theme, as if they had been clipped from newspapers, magazines and ingredient package labels, changed slightly and passed on as the contributors' own.

Such is the case with several recent publications: "The Boston Symphony Cookbook," "Cooking With the Santa Fe Opera," "The Star of Texas Cookbook," "Winterthur's Culinary Collection," "America's Best," subtitled "A National Community Cookbook," and "The Super Cdeeler Cookbook"

The Boston book, by The Council of the Boston Symphony Orchestra (Houghton Mifflin, $18.95) does contain some recipes for which Beantown and New England are famous, such as the Harvard Club's scalloped oysters. Innovative recipes include bassoonist Sherman Walt's chili con gin and Mrs. Nat "King" Cole's pot roast, whose ingredients include beef chuck, onion soup mix, beer and pitted prunes. But many other recipes rely heavily on convenience products — such as chicken baked in canned cream of mushroom and celery soups.

The opera book, self-published by the Santa Fe (New Mexico) Opera Guild, is a good-looking, large format, $19.95 paperback with black and white photos from the opera's recent productions. Each chapter contains a menu whose origins reflect either international cooking or the national background of an opera. Disappointingly few recipes are included from New Mexico's distinctively delicious spicy cuisine.

The Texas book, by the Junior League of Houston (Doubleday, $19.95) devotes only one chapter to Tex-Mex food, and a lot of space to such recipes as oriental drumsticks, Szechuan shrimp, Swiss fondue, broccoli quiche, a layered salad combining fresh and canned vegetables, and a dessert called Chocolate Intemperance.

The Winterthur book, compiled by Anne Beckley Coleman and self-published by The Henry Frances du Pont Winterthur Museum, Winterthur, Del., ($11.95) contains a few more regional specialties than the others, including seafood specialties of the Chesapeake Bay area — plus dishes such as gazpacho, oysters Mardi Gras and an entire chapter of chocolate recipes.

"America's Best" (Workman, $13.95 paperback) is a committee effort to benefit the U.S. Ski Team, which is funded entirely through private and corporate contributions.

It includes regional specialties such as cowboy chili, chimichangas (filled, fried tortillas), creole shrimp or clam sauce and Maui pineapple bread, a Hawaiian interpretation of zucchini bread. There are truly inventive dishes, including carrots cooked with dried apricots in a light sweet and sour sauce, bourbon apples with cranberries, suggested as an accompaniment to meat or as a brunch dish, a crustless corn and chili quiche, a yeast loaf called "I Never Want to See Another Zucchini Bread," and sections devoted to such current trends as pasta and vegetarian main dishes.

The prevalence of brand names in many recipes in the Super Steeler book suggests many submitted by individuals may have originated with food manufacturers. Restaurants also contributed quite a few.

"Steeler wives are always watching their weight, but who can diet during the season?!" says Joanne Ham, wife of retired linebacker Jack Ham, in introducing a broccoli vinaigrette recipe.

Who, indeed?

Among the rich recipes is poppyseed chicken, contributed by Anne Colquitt, wife of punting specialist Craig Colquitt, who describes it as her husband's most requested dish. The ingredients: Two $10\frac{3}{4}$-ounce cans of cream of chicken soup, one cup of sour cream, four teaspoons poppyseeds, one-third box of Ritz crackers, $\frac{1}{4}$ or $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of melted butter and four cooked, boned chicken breasts. Serves 8.

Dear Abby

Thank-You Notes Are A Must, Says Abby

DEAR ABBY: I divorced my husband six years ago. We have one daughter who is 9 years old. (I'll call her Lisa.) I have done everything in my power to see that Lisa has everything she needs, and that she learns all the proper ways of a young lady.

My ex-husband has never taken much interest in Lisa, but his mother has. Too much, I think. Last Christmas I allowed Lisa to spend the day with my ex-mother-in-law and her relatives. This grandmother loves Lisa, but I think she has overstepped her bounds.

She recently sent my daughter stationery, envelopes, postage stamps and the addresses of all the relatives on her side, requesting that Lisa write them all thank-you notes for the Christmas presents they gave her.

Abby, Lisa thanked these people on Christmas Day when she received their gifts, and she even gave them each a big hug.

Does my daughter have to send a written thank-you note, or is my ex-mother-in-law out of line?

TEED OFF IN TENNESSEE

DEAR TEED OFF: Written thank-you notes are a must, even after a verbal thank-you and a "big hug." Don't be critical of you ex-mother-in-law. Your daughter is lucky to have a grandmother who cares.

DEAR ABBY: This is concerning "Upset in Baltimore," who was upset because his wife went to a male doctor. He said he didn't want any other man looking at his wife's body.

You assured him that the doctor's interest in his wife's body was strictly professional, and if he couldn't deal with it, he should seek professional help.

You are wrong, Abby. When my wife and I were first married, I told her that I didn't want any other man to see her undressed, and that included her doctor. She assured me that her doctor had no romantic interest in her undressed, and it was no big deal.

We discussed it and came to the conclusion that if granting one small favor could make such a big difference in a marriage, why not do it. So with that in mind, my wife agreed to quit her doctor, and now she's going to a woman doctor just to make me happy.

SATISFIED IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR SATISFIED: Congratulations on resolving your problem so easily. If granting "one small favor" could make such a big difference in your marriage, why didn't you grant your wife the "small favor" of letting her continue with her original doctor?

Couple Marries In Candlelight Ceremony

Well's Chapel Church of God In Christ was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Bessie Yarrell and Ned Britt at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The single ring, candlelight ceremony was performed by Elder William E. Smith.

The organist was Johnny A. Wooten. Wyna Adams sang "We Can Make It Together" and "To God be the Glory." Mrs. Adams and Johnny Whichard sang "The Lord's Prayer," and "Lord Lift Us Up."

The bride was the daughter of Mrs. Lenora Crandell of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Bessie Britt of La Grange.

The bride was escorted by her son, Robbie Yarrell, and was given in marriage by her children. She wore a formal champagne gown of polyester knit, nylon point d'esprit lace and schiffli embroidery. The gown had a sweetheart neckline and stand-up collar with tapered long sleeves. She wore a headpiece of baby breath and daisies. She carried a cascade of carnations, daises and sprigs of baby's breath accented with streamers of knotted satin lace.

Matron of honor was Annie Moore of Greenville. She wore a formal nile green gown of polyester knit styled with an empire bodice, pleated skirt and detachable cape. Sprigs of green baby's breath accented her hair and she carried a green mum highlighted with baby's breath and matching green streamers of knotted satin.

The bridesmaid was Sharon Best of Greenville. She wore a formal pink gown of polyester chiffon over taffeta, featuring spaghetti straps, fitted empire bodice, slit sleeves and flared skirt. She carried a pink mum accented with baby's breath and pink streamers of knotted satin.

The flower girl was Seadra Duncan of Greenville. She wore a floor-length dress of white chiffon lined with lavender taffeta. She carried a white wicker basket with matching streamers of knotted satin.

The best man was Nathaniel Britt of Raleigh, son of the bridegroom. The ring bearer was Michael Hobbs of Greenville. The groomsman was Jeffery Yarrell of Greenville and ushers were Dalton Moore and Joe L. Moore of Greenville.

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall. After the traditional cutting of the cake by the couple, it was served by Evorn Best of Greenville and punch was poured by Dorothy Salibury, also of Greenville.

Deloris Harrison and Brenda Wards of Greenville presided at the guest register. Doris Holloway of Greenville received gifts. Mrs. Holloway and Mrs. Salibury gave a miscellaneous shower for the couple.

After a wedding trip to Omaha, Neb., the couple will live in La Grange.

The bride is employed with Union Carbide Corp. of Greenville.

New Era For Dolly Parton — Builds Rich Empire

By MARK SCHWED
UPI Entertainment Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Dolly Parton's empire is nearly complete.

Miss Parton, 37, has brought in t'e new year with a "new look" and a new album, the queen of country pop's most pop-slanted LP to date.

The album, "The Great Pretender," is produced by Val Garay, the mastermind behind The Motels' pop hit "Suddenly Last Summer," and Kim Carnes' Grammy winning "Bette Davis Eyes."

The record features such classic oldies as "I Can't Help Myself (Sugar Pie, Honey Bunch)," and "Turn Turn Turn."

Who knows what the record company's promised "new look" will entail. Surely she has not abandoned the tramp fashion that made her stand out from the country crowd — the silver gossamer wigs, the gaudy chest-hugging rhinestone outfits, five-inch pump heels and heavy makeup.

But the album is sure to put more distance between Miss Parton and Nashville's music clique.

Miss Parton arrived in Nashville 19 years ago carting a cardboard box full of songs.

Since then, she parlayed her "dumb blonde" act into a multimillion-dollar empire that encompases motion pictures, recording, publishing, television and singing.

She still can't read a note of music.

Even though she says success has "not changed" her, there are some noticable differences in her lifestyle. For one thing, she hangs around with the likes of Sylvester Stallone and Jane Fonda instead of Roy Acuff and Porter Wagoner.

Her movie credits include "9 to 5," "Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" with Burt Reynolds and the upcoming "Rhinestone" with Stallone in which she wrote every song.

Just this past summer Miss Parton announced her intentions to invade the soap opera world of daytime network television by writing a soap.

Miss Parton came to Nashville with a seven-year performance-oriented plan for success and it worked. Instead of wallowing in the money, she came up with another seven-year plan split between business and writing.

Part of the plan involves business ventures. She already has her own line of cosmetics, lingerie and high-heel shoes and she thinks she will eventually get into artist management.

"I have a big dream of having a big empire based in Nashville for management," she said in June. "What I really want to do is just to — what I've pretty much always done — own myself. And if I'm going to be big business, I want to pretty much be in control."

The success has given her power. In "Rhinestone," she convinced Stallone to film parts of the movie in her home state of Tennessee and she also wrote all the music for the flick.

Her duet with Kenny Rogers, "Islands in the Stream," won both millionaires another Grammy Award and further entrenched her as the queen of country pop.

The final key to her transformation from country girl to everybody's girl apparently is her "new look" and the new musical direction found in her new album. Her "country" roots are being pruned by the power of "pop."

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Scandinavian cooks have a traditional way of roasting a joint of pork with prunes inserted in it. The prunes add good flavor, and the roast looks most attractive when it is sliced.

Now an American cook has developed her own version of the dish.

PORK ROAST
WITH PRUNES

3¾ pounds pork loin (bone-in)
12-ounce package pitted prunes
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry rosemary leaves
1-16th teaspoon pepper
½ cup coarsely diced onion
½ cup sliced celery (½-inch)
½ cup sliced pared carrot (½-inch)
1 cup dry red wine
1 cup clear fat-free beef brodh
K½ deaspoon dry thyme leaves, crushed
1 garlic clove, crushed
2 bay leaves

Remove and reserve the bones from the pork loin. Make a pocket in the loin to hold the prunes: with a 7- to 8-inch sharp pointed knife, cut a lengthwise slit through the center of the meat, about 2½ inches wide, from one end to the other. Fill with prunes. Fold flap of meat around roast. Tie roast with string in 4 places. Stir together the salt, rosemary and pepper; rub over meat.

In a large roasting pan surround the reserved bones with the onion, celery, carrot, wine, broth, thyme, garlic and bay leaves. Place pork loin, fat side up, on top of the bones. Roast uncovered in a preheated 500-degree oven until pork is lightly browned — about 10 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 325 degrees. Continue roasting uncovered, basting occasionally, until a meat thermometer inserted in the center of the meat registers 170 degrees — about 1½ hours. (If liquid is needed in the pan during this period, add a little water.)

Remove meat and keep warm in a low oven. Remove bones and bay leaves from pan and discard. Remove liquid and vegetables from the pan and puree half at a time, in an electric blender; or use a food processor for pureeing. If necessary, add enough water to make 2 cups sauce; heat. Slice the pork loin about ½-inch thick and serve with the hot sauce.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Cause Misery For Dependents

Absent Fathers Fail To Pay Child Support

BARBARA MINER

In April 1983, Ellen Lowney's world fell apart. Her husband of 12 years left and the 36-year-old New York City woman was faced with raising their three children, aged 11, 9, and 4, on her own.

"He left us with no medical coverage, no life insurance, no dental coverage — nothing," Mrs. Lowney said. "We had agreed on $150 a week child support. Some weeks he would pay and some he wouldn't."

Two months later her husband remarried.

"He had a three-week honeymoon to seven countries and then he came home and said he had no money and couldn't support the children," she said.

Their case in now in the courts.

Mrs. Lowney's plight is not untypical. Throughout the country, millions of women and children are facing economic disaster because they are not receiving child support from absent fathers.

REP. ROUKEMA

"The growing number of parents who financially abandon their children is a national disgrace," says Rep. Marge Roukema, R-N.J.

"That a divorced father (or mother, as in the rare case) would refuse to help support his children — in effect, deny them food, shelter and clothing — is beyond belief. Yet it happens every day."

Forty-seven states have mechanisms for garnishing wages of absent parents who don't pay child support, and a number of states provide for intercepting state income tax refunds. Federal law allows for garnishing of federal tax refunds in welfare-related cases.

Non-support is generally a crime, and some judges will even go to the extent of jailing offenders.

But still the problem continues. In many cases, the courts are too backlogged and nonsupport cases can sit for months. In others, paternity has not been established.

In most states, garnishing wages or income tax returns is not mandatory and many judges are reluctant to impose such a penalty. Sometimes, the mother is worn down by the endless bureaucracy and fruustration of going to court.

Congresswoman Roukema is a strong supporter of legislation passed by the House last year that would strengthen child support enforcement, in particular mandating garnishment of wages for fathers who are behind on court-ordered support payments. Similar legislation is pending in the Senate.

Congress was forced into action by what sociologists call one of the most disturbing trends of the last decade: deadbeat dads who refuse to help pay for their children's support.

Only 35 percent of the more than eight million women bringing up children with an absent father received child support payments in 1981, according to the National Women's Law Center in Washington, D.C. Only 22 percent received full payment.

Edwina Peters of the Family Support Division of the district attorney's office in Los Angeles County says that "without a doubt, it (nonpayment of support) is the most widespread crime in California."

The obvious question is, why don't the fathers pay?

Experts agree the problem is not really caused by lack of money. "Payment records of men earning between $20,000 and $50,000 is no better than those earning $10,000," said Anne Kolker, policy analyst with the National Women's Law Center.

Nor is it because payments are astronomically high. One study in Denver found that two-thirds of the fathers were ordered to pay less for child support than they spent on car payments.

According to a 1978 Census Bureau study, the full amount of support averaged between $1,800 and $2,300 per year for two children.

Ms. Peters said there is is no single answer to explain lack of support. "The excuses will be, 'If I had the children in my home I'd take care of them,' or they have other expenses," she said. "After a while you wonder which stories are true and which ones aren't"

Michigan state legislator Debbie Stabenow said problem sometimes stems from the anger of divorce: "Mom says, 'You're not going to see the kids any more,' and dad says, 'If I ain't seeing them, I'm not paying for them'."

Jon Erickson, professor of family law at Ohio State, says "There is the phenomenon of a guy who's been tied down all these years and figures the mother has enough to support the kids, or that the grandparents will chip in. He figures he needs that money for a nice apartment a car, for wining and dining the new women he expects in his new singles' lifestyle."

"And harder to explain," he continued, "there are a lot of men who simply never perceived of those kids as his. They're hers. She had them and she raised them. He can take them or leave them."

In many welfare cases, the fathers don't pay because they don't have the money.

"A lot of time, the money isn't there," said Jerry Brockmyre of Michigan's Department of Social Services. "They start out at the lower end of the economic spectrum. They split and the guy doesn't have as much income, in many instances."

According to Ms. Kolker, "Of you don't pay your mortgage or car payments, something tangible happens."

While custody and visitation are serious issues, "They have to be separated from support," argued Ms. Kolker. "Because if you deny a child support, you are taking away that child's lifeline."

Absent Fathers

the problem also stems "from a very basic sexism of society, in that women and children take second fiddle. Raising of children is not given a high priority.

"There's tremendous stigma if a woman walks out on her kids, but not if the father does," Ms. Lefcourt said. "That rolls over into the financial area."

The problem is also rooted in vast sociological changes. According to the National Conference of State Legislatures, the largest growing family unit is the single-parent household. While only eight percent of all children under 18 lived in one-parent homes in 1970, the figures is now about 20 percent, according to the Census Bureau.

Denied needed child support from the fathers, women and children have become the fastest growing sector of the poor. If current trends continue, it is estimated that mothers and their children could compose almost 100 percent of those officially designated as poor by the year 2000.

Already, about 80 percent of single mothers on welfare receive public assistance because of a lack of child support, according to the National Council of State Child Support Enforcement Administrators.

The situation is worst for minority women, with the poverty rate for families headed by black mothers 68 percent in 1981 and 67 percent for Hispanics, according to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

In one of the few studies on what happens to both couples' financially after divorce, a Stanford University researcher found that men improved their standard of living an average 42 percent in the first year after divorce — while the living standard for women and children dropped 73 percent.

"Middle class suburban housewives (who have undergone divorce) are now becoming the norm in terms of welfare," noted Pat Kelly Thibo of Flint, Mich., a founder of the child support advocacy group, KINDER.

Mrs. Thibo speaks from experience. The mother of three children, she was divorced in 1980 from a husband she says was earning around $45,000 a year as an employee of General Motors.

"When he left I found myself in poverty within a very short period of time," she said. Support payments were nonexistent or "real irregular" even though judges granted her ex-husband five reductions in the amount of support due.

After her divorce, Mrs. Thibo was forced to move from a suburban home into a subsidized housing project in the inner city of Flint. Before long, simple economics dictated she apply for welfare if she wished to keep her children fed and clothed.

Mrs. Lowney says her near-poverty is particularly infuriating because her ex-husband, who has remarried, is living much as before.

"There comes a point when something so simple — pencils for school — can be a problem," she said. "In the meantime, my ex-husband and his new wife eat out, see all the movies. She takes singing, dancing and acting lessons. It just doesn't seem fair."

"The number one problem," says Ms. Lefcourt, "is that the burden of going forward, getting an attorney, going to court, taking days off — that burden falls on the mother. One way people get out of paying child support is by doing nothing."

Erickson said a number of women don't initiate legal proceedings because they will have to hire an attorney "and they will be paying out more than they will be awarded. It's only worthwhile if you have a rich defendant, and an attorney who will take a percentage of that judgement rather than hourly pay."

John Abbot, director of the Utah office charged with recovering chld support, noted, "Court orders are often worth little more than the paper they're written on because of the system....

"You have to go through 92 hoops to get anything done," he continued. "By the time anyithing happens, the guy's skippped out and you have to locate him again."

If the father lives in another state, the problem is even trickier. An out-of-state order to collect payment "is given very low priorities on court dockets and they can languish in a drawer for a year," said Lefcourt.

In many states, officials don't even know the extent of the problem. Abbot says that in Utah, for example, there aren't any statewide figures on child support order violations except in cases where the mother is on welfare.

Another difficulty is that before an unmarried woman can collect child support, she must establish paternity. And a majority of states require that paternity actions be initiated within a specified time ranging from one-year after birth to six years.

Most experts agree that one of the most effective ways to enforce support is mandatory garnishment of wages, but only about a dozen states call for such a measure.

Judge June Galvin of domestic court in Toledo, Ohio, said that when mandatory wage withholding was instituted in Ohio in 1979, many people were extremely resistant, fearing employer reprisal.

"In four years," she told a House hearing on child support last summer, "we have not yet been notified that any employee has been discharged as a result of the court ordering, or an employee volunteering, a wage withholding."

In a rare case of unified action, the House of Representatives last year passed legislation 422-0 that would strengthen child support measures.

Perhaps most important, the measure — part of the Economic Equity Act — would call on states to mandate that the wages of absent parents be garnished if they are more than a month behind on court-ordered payments.

"The centerpiece of (the bill) H.R. 4325 is and must remain the wage withholding section," argued Ms. Kolker in House hearings last year.

According to Judge Galvin, "Our local experience as well as impressive statistics from other states using the wage withholding routinely indicate thht there simply is no other more effective solution to the problem of non-payment of support."

The House bill also requires states to put liens on real and personal property of people who fall behind. Pensions, retirement benefits, workers compensation and so forth could be attached.

When welfare families are involved, the bill also mandates that states reduce state income tax refunds for parents who are behind on support payments. Similar action would be enouraged in non-welfare cases.

Senate action is expected this month on either a version of the House bll or one of several similar proposals now being reviewed by the Senate Finance Committee.

Officials are hopeful that the legislation will pass, and that it will help put more teeth in existing measures. But experts point out that a change in society's attitudes is also needed.

"I consider refusal to pay child support another form of child abuse," says Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox. "It's just as serious an abuse as if someone goes in and physically abuses the child.

"When it becomes socially unacceptable not to pay your child support, people will pay it," he continued. "That's where we have got to get to."

Music By Menudo Group Captivating Hispanic Teenagers

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

New York has been hearing a whole lot of Menudomania going on.

Girls, young, Hispanic teenagers, have been outside the hotel where Menudo stayed for nearly three weeks, and outside Radio City Music Hall, where Menudo gave 10 concerts. They know how to put a sigh, a scream and a cheer together in a group effort echoing around the walls of neighboring buildings.

Menudo means, in Spanish, small kids. And Menudo is five boy pop singers from Puerto Rico. Members of the group take retirement before most people get a first job.

And they're interested in widening their appeal. Their new album, "Reaching Out," their second on RCA Records, is in English.

It has "Like a Cannonball," which they sang for the Burt Reynolds movie, "Cannonball II," due for release next summer, and translations of past Spanish hits. Their next album will be in Portuguese, sung phonetically. They've made 12 albums in Spanish. Their first on RCA was "A Todo Rock," meaning "All Rock."

They've toured in every country in South America, except Brazil. After the New York engagement, they were booked to appear in Chicago and Los Angeles.

Edgardo Diaz started Menudo in San Juan in 1977. At first, says Ricky Melendez, the only present Menudo who was an original member, they had to retire at 15. That has been changed to retirement when one's voice changes. A recent Menudo left at 14. Ricky, who is 16, says, "He grew up."

The other Menudo who speaks good English is Robby Rosa who, at 13, becomes the 13th Menudo. His first public appearance was a Valentine's Day concert at the Music Hall. Johnny Lozada, 16, sang in the first half, including a solo goodby. Robby sang with the group in the second half. Robby is on the "Reaching Out" album, and Johnny isn't.

While they were in New York, the Menudo group was proclaimed ambassadors for UNICEF, a United Nations agency, which probably will result in even wider touring. Adult UNICEF ambassadors are Danny Kaye, Peter Ustinov and Liv Ullmann.

Since they're school age, they tour with two tutors. Their tutor in English, Rita Garcia, sat in on an interview with Ricky and Robby. The other three Menudo are Charlie Rivera, 14; Ray Reyes, 13, and Roy Rosello, 13.

"When I got in," Ricky says, "I was 9 and the oldest was 13. Now the youngest is 13.

"I was at a party. My mother started to talk to Edgardo about my brother Carlos — he sings and dances. Edgardo asked him if he wants to be a group. He told him, yes, of course. He went to a meeting in Edgardo's house and I went with him, just to look. Then Edgardo asked if I want to be in the group. I said, yes, of course. And my brother Oscar went in the group, too."

So did brothers Nefty and Fernando Salaberry. "We didn't know them," Ricky says. "We met in the group."

Carlos is now at Purdue University and Nefty is at Marquette University. Fernando has just finished high school. The rest of the Menudo alumni are in high school.

Robby, 13, was born in New York. His parents, both natives of Puerto Rico, moved to the island from New York when he was an infant. But his mother didn't like it and they moved to Long Island. When they moved to Puerto Rico again — Robby says his mother liked it this time — he was 11 and spoke Spanish with an American accent.

"I got along with everybody," Robby says. "But at first it was a hassle, everybody teasing me about my accent.

"Ever since I was small, I liked to sing and dance. I never had any lessons. I thought Menudo looked like fun. I went and picked up an audition sheet. You leave your pictures, birth date and all the information and you wait. I always had the feeling they were going to call me. They called me, and I went to audition. There were around 300 there."

Ricky says each applicant sings two or three Menudo songs, to see if he has the vocal range and could match with the others, and dances to show how he moves. "Personality counts a lot, too."

As soon as Robby was picked, he was taught how to warm up his voice and how to breathe while singing. He started work as their Menudo's choreographer and costume designer. Those two, plus a hair stylist, two song writers from Spain and the two tutors tour with Menudo on a private jet.

Ricky remembers when Menudo sang against a recorded instrumental background. That compares with the Radio City Music Hall show, fast-paced, slick and impressively grand.

The costumes of young pirates, with pieces of cloth tied around arms and through jeans belt loops, were changed to increasingly sophisticated garb as the concert progressed.

Four would change while one sang a solo, the soloist joining the group a little later in matching duds. Lighting and backdrops changed with each number. Menudo members don't write songs but they sometimes suggest ideas to Carlos Villa and Alejandro Monroig, who tailor the songs to Menudo. Rene, now retired, suggested "Motorcycle Dreamer," about his biggest interest. Ricky told about liking a girl at a party who, when she stood up, was taller than he was. That became "And I Don't Dance."

Ricky says Menudo members always have got along well. "I'm with these kids more than I am with my family. They're my family, too."

M.A.S.H. Exhibit

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington long has been a city of monuments to the heroes of the nation's wars. In stone and metal, Washington, Jackson, Grant and dozens of other long gone patriots populate the capital's parks and street corners.

Now Washington has another, more ephemeral kind of memorial — a tribute to men and women whose fictional conflicts were resolved on a patch of ground in Hollywood as they re-created one small phase of a war that really took place thousands of miles away in Asia.

It is the M.A.S.H. exhibit at the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American History.

Eleven months after the long-running television series ended and six months after two of the sets from the program were shipped to the museum, visitors by the thousands still line up to gape at the operating room of the 4077th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital and peer into the Swamp, the tent where Hawkeye Pierce, Trapper John McIntyre, B.J. Hunnicutt, Frank Burns and Charles Emerson Winchester lived for more than 10 years during M.A.S.H.'s depiction of the three-year Korean War.

As of late January, more than 312,000 persons had viewed the small exhibit that is tucked into a second-floor corner beneath the gaze of a gigantic marble statue of a bare-chested George Washington draped in the toga of a Roman senator.

The rush to see the exhibit has abated somewhat, but passes still are used on weekends when the lines start growing. The pass system — visitors get cards giving them a half-hour period to view the exhibit — was established when it became clear that people were going to have to wait longer in line than the average half hour it takes to get through the exhibit.

The Smithsonian, which has been called "The Nation's Attic," has thousands of articles on display; millions in storage. Most of them are authentic, from the monster steam locomotive on the ground floor of American History to the gigantic elephant in the rotunda of Natural History.

Most of the items in the M.A.S.H. exhibit also are the real thing — operating tables, surgical instruments, Army cots, record players and other articles of daily life used in the show all were used or at least represented articles in use during the Korean war years.

But as a whole, the exhibit represents a different reality than, say, the reconstructed 1930s school room in the nearby "Nation Of Nations" exhibit. The school room was used by actual but anonymous students, the M.A.S.H. set by well known actors playing the parts of real Army doctors, nurses and wounded soldiers.

This difference changes the attitude of those who view the exhibit. Many, probably most, of the thousands of visitors to the M.A.S.H. exhibit are there not to look not at a field hospital from the Korean War, but the three-dimensional form of scenes and artifacts they had never seen anywhere except on the flat plane of a television screen.

Still, the exhibit fulfills one of the missions of the museum. The items in the building are representative of bygone times in the life of the nation, links with the country's roots.

Queen Elizabeth of England announced in 1960 that her descendants other than those in direct line to the throne would have the surname of Mountbatten.

Artist Blum To Visit ECU

The East Carolina University School of Art will host a two-day visit and public lecture by New York artist Andrea Blum. The lecture will be held March 15 at 8 p.m. in Jenkins Auditorium.

Ms. Blum is known for her ideas about art in the environment and outdoor sculpture projects. She is visiting ECU as part of the school of art's grant-funded project to sponsor a "site-specific" sculpture in the Greenville area.

Ms. Blum has exhibited in galleries and museums across the country and is the recipient of two NEA Artist Fellowships. She is adjunct faculty member at Princeton University.

National Design Academy Exhibit

NEW YORK — The annual juried exhibition of the National Academy of Design, 1083 Fifth Ave., New York, is now on view at the museum. This year's show, the 159th consecutive one, includes over 200 works — paintings, sculptures, graphic works and watercolors by both established and emerging artists. The show fills all three floors of the academy.

Winners of the two top awards — the Benjamin Altman Landscape Prize and the Altman Figure Prize, both at $3,000 each — were Carolyn Harris and Cornelis Ruthenburg.

Academy hours are noon to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays. Admission is $2 for adults, $1.50 for senior citizens and students, with no admission charged each Tuesday from 5 to 8 p.m.

The Beatles made their North American television debut on the Ed Sullivan Show in 1964. John Lennon, George Harrison, Paul McCartney and Ringo Starr performed for a studio audience and a viewing audience of millions. Within a month of their appearance on the show, the group had sold 2.5 million records.

New Shows At SECCA

On Friday an exhibition of sculpture by John Chaffee of Winston-Salem is opening on the Porch Gallery and in the Sculpture Garden. Chaffee's large metal outdoor sculpture and maquettes will be on view through May 13.

On March 23 (through April 29) a solo exhibition of photographs by Lennie Lyons-Bruno will open in Gallery B. The photographer, from West Palm Beach, Fla., is showing painted black and white photographs.

Governor's Mansion Now Open For Tours

RALEIGH — North Carolina's Executive Mansion is now open for annual spring tours. The historic 1890s mansion on Raleigh's Blount Street is open for public visitation three days weekly now through May 25.

Guided tours will be offered to individuals and groups of 10 or fewer on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Tour times are at 10, 10:30 and 11 a.m., and at 1:30, 2 and 2:30 p.m.

Reservations are required and can be made by contacting the Capital Area Visitor Center, telephone 733-3456, or by writing to: N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, N.C., 27611.

Norfolk Area Events

NORFOLK, Va. — Two events of general interest to the public are scheduled for the coming week in the Norfolk area, both at the Virginia Beach Pavilion. Friday through Sunday, a coin and stamp show is being held. For details, call Ray Robinson at 804/467-3550. On Friday and Saturday the Star Trek Convention is being held. New Stamps Being Issued

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

U.S. Issues

A tribute to the new and old in America is reflected in two special issues by the U.S. Postal Service — a 13-cent postal card honoring the 350th anniversary of the founding of Maryland and a 20-cent stamp hailing the 25th anniversary of Hawaii statehood.

The design of the post card features a view of the Dove, a pine ship, and the Ark, a large vessel which carried Leonard Calvert and his family and friends to the New World. Although their quarters were cramped and provisions scarce, the colonists persevered and they made it to Chesapeake Bay. The first settlement was St. Mary's City but the cancellations will read "St. Clement's Island " (the actual landing site).

Collectors may purchase the postal card at local post offices and mail their orders to: Customer-Provided Stationery, Postmaster, St. Mary's City, Md. 20686-9991. No remittance is required. Mail no later than April 24. If you prefer to have the USPS provide the card, then mail your request by April 24 to: Founding of Maryland Postal Card, Postmaster, St. Mary's City, Md. 20686-9992. Enclose a money order of 13 cents per card.

The 20-cent commemorative stamp is dedicated to the 25th anniversary of Hawaii statehood — the 50th state of the union. Prior to its admission in 1959, Hawaii had been a U.S. territory for over 60 years.

The horizontal stamp features three principal elements in its design. Depicted are a golden plover (shore bird) in flight, an Eastern Polynesian canoe and an eruption of a volcano on the side of Mauna Loa. Above the design in a single line of blue type are the words "Hawaii Statehood 1959-1984." The lower right section of the stamp has a single line of white type "USA 20 cents."

First-day cancellations can be ordered in the usual two ways — affixing your own stamps on the cover or asking the Post Office to do it for you.

You may purchase the stamp at your local post office and affix on your own envelope. Peelable return address labels are recommended. No remittance is necessary. Send to: Customer-Affixed Envelopes, Hawaii Statehood Stamp, Postmaster, Honolulu, Hawaii 96820-9991. It must be mailed no later than April 11. For USPS affixing, follow the same procedures of addressing but enclose a money order for 20 cents per stamp. Send to: Hawaii Statehood Stamp, Postmaster, Honolulu, Hawaii 96820-9992. The deadline is April 11.

Here's an interesting note concerning the design of the new Hawaiian Statehood stamp. It was designed by Herb Kane of Kailua-Kona, Hawaii. Kane also designed the Iolani Palace postal card issued in 1978 in the Historic Preservation Series of postal cards.

Palau Issues

Palau has issued five new stamps as the second part of its Maritime Life Definitive series. At the same time it will withdraw four more U.S. stamps from use as Palau postage. The U.S. 20-cent had already been withdrawn when Palau released its first issue — a block of four 20-cent stamps commemorating Palau's postal independence and the U.S.-Palau Postal Agreement.

The new 20-cent stamp, the first-class letter rate and for mailing to the U.S. and its territories, depicts two blue parrotfish.

The 13-cent, used for postcards primarily, pictures a specimen of the giant clam. The giant clams, common in Palau, are four feet in diameter and weigh 500 pounds.

The 28-cent — the rate for internatonal air postcards — portrays the chambered nautilus, a living fossil. It is found in the remote depths of the ocean. The nautilus shown on this stamp is found only in Palau waters.

The highest value, a 50-cent stamp, depicts sea stars which are five-arm species found in the deep sea areas off Palau. There are more than 2,000 such species.

The release of the new definitives brings to 11 the number of values now available in Palauan postage.

Ever since the brief war in the Falklands, there has been an increased demand for stamps from the island. Because of many requests, the Falkland Islands Post Office has been unable to handle the large work load. To help expedite inquiries for information and purchases by collectors in the U.S., the Crown Agents Philatelic Corp. has been named to deal with philatelic sales for the Falkland Islands and Falkland Island Dependencies (formerly South Georgia) as well as the British Antarctic Territory.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By WILLIE NELMS

A presidential election year generates interest in the American past. Two new books at Sheppard Memorial Library provide good reading for patrons interested in celebrating American life.

"An Album for Americans," edited by Philadelphia newspaperman David H. Appel, offers a loud cheer for the patriotic tradition of our country in the words, music and experiences of those who loved it the best. It records the spirit of our country.

Starting with the voyage of Christopher Columbus, the book uses photgraphs, portraits, documents, speeches and symbols of each era to describe the events that made our nation great. Included are many famous documents such as the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution and portions of Thomas Paine's "Common Sense." Americans have shown their love for the country in many ways, and this variety is represented here. This book is enjoyable as a browsing item as well as a reference book.

Readers interested in the political process will enjoy "Farewell to the Party of Lincoln" by Princeton history Professor Nancy J. Weiss. This book examines a remarkable political phenomenon — the shift of black voters from the Republican to the Democratic party in the 1930s.

Weiss shows that blacks became Democrats in response to the economic benefits of the New Deal and that they voted for Franklin Roosevelt in spite of the New Deal record on race issues. By their support of FDR, blacks forged a political commitment to the Democratic party that has lasted to our time.

This book explains the sources of black commitment in the 1930s. It stresses the role of economic concerns in shaping black political behavior and clarifies both the New Deal record on race and the extraordinary relationship between Black voters and the Roosevelts.

"Farewell to the Party of Lincoln" will appeal to anyone interested in gaining background on national political alliances.

POET TO READ ... South Carolina poet and teacher Jim Peterson will attend the Greenville Writers meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday and will give two readings of his poetry on Wednesday, at noon and at 8 p.m. All three events will be held in the Humber House, 117 W. Fifth St. Peterson is in Greenville at the invitation of the Playwright' Fund of North Carolina, which is based in Greenville.

Poet Jim Peterson To Give Readings

Jim Peterson, founding editor of Kudzu, a South Carolina poetry journal, and current edtior of The Devil's Millhopper, also in South Carolina, will be in Greenville Tuesday and Wednesday at the invitation of the Playwright's Fund of North Carolina, a locally based organization.

Peterson will attend the first regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Writers Club to help critique the work of members and to offer some of his own work for critiquing. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the basement of the Humber House, 117 W. Fifth St.

On Wednesday, Peterson will read twice from his own work. A noon reading, originally scheduled at the Greenville Museum of Art, will instead be held in the Humber House — due to an inadvertent scheduling difficulty at the museum. He will read again at 8 p.m. Wednesday evening in the Humber House. These events are free and open to the public.

A native of Augusta, Ga., who grew up in North Augusta, S.C., Peterson is a widely published writer. He holds a doctorate degree in English from the University of South Carolina, where he teaches, and currently lives in Elgin, just outside Columbia, with his wife, Harriet.

Storytelling Appeals

By DAVID ARMON
United Press International

Rather than spend their nights watching television, some people prefer just listening to a good old-fashioned story.

They are the ones who believe no ink on a page, image on a screen or sound from a recording can match the human art of storytelling.

"I think it goes back to our roots," said Joan Donovan, organizer of a month-long celebration of narrative in upstate New York called the Stupendous North Country Storytelling Festival.

Hundreds of homebodies this winter left their firesides on snowy nights for yarnspinning workshops at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y, where Mrs. Donovan is speech professor.

Guest storytellers from the area offered tales of the Adirondack mountains. Two nationally known figures, Jackie Torrence and Jay O'Callahan, also appeared.

The guests serve the dual functions of performer and teacher.

"Everybody can tell a story," said Marnie Reed Crowell, author and co-sponsor of the festival. "That's the reason there's such a broad spectrum of stories."

No matter what type of tale they start with, Mrs. Crowell said, successful storytellers realize they can portray anything and any feeling with words, sounds and body language.

"You can think of my voice as a musical instrument," she said, alternating from a falsetto to a foghorn low while explaining technique to an inquirer. "Most people use a very narrow band."

"How about loud and soft, slow and fast?" she said, pointing out other tale-spinning techniques.

Mrs. Crowell says one simply has to harness the talent within him to successfully tell a tale.

"As soon as you start thinking about this dynamic richness, you immediately become a better storyteller," she said.

It is then that listeners become moved and are able to conjure up imagery that rivals the most expensive piece of cinematography.

Children today need an alternative to the electronic media, the two organizers said, observing that "in recent years, kids have been getting more vacuous looking."

Kids aren't the only people fascinated with storytelling.

Mrs. Crowell, 45, said she first became interested in the art after she began publishing and was asked to read her work aloud.

"After a lot of reading there were things about vocal technique that I wanted to know," she said. "I got very excited about the potential of the human voice."

She became involved with organizations such as the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling, which puts on conferences and festivals around the nation.

Writers Will Meet Tuesday

The first meeting in March of the Greenville Writers Club will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Playwrights' Fund of North Carolina office in the basement of the Humber House, 117 West Fifth Street.

Poet Jim Peterson will be a special guest at this meeting.

Fine Show Of Prints At Gray Gallery

Early spring is perhaps the ideal season for exhibiting a collection of contemporary prints. The emergence of printmaking in the past three or four decades has provided a fresh visualization of art that has brought about a welcome impact on the art scene — just as spring invigorates each year.

Currently at the Gray Gallery on the East Carolina University campus, an exhibit of 50 contemporary prints from the collection of Ashland Oil Inc. constitutes an excellent cross-view at some of the best in printmaking in recent years.

The half-hundred choices in this show has work by older, established artists as well as relatively young names in the art world. Geographically, the range of home lands of the artists cover countries in South America, Europe, the United States and Japan.

This show indicates a substantial inclusion in the Ashland collection of work by contemporary Japanese artists — an acknowledgement of the new wave of printmaking in Japan since World War II, when young talent there made a belated break away from long established printmaking traditions, with fascinating results in a modern vein that yet captures the essence of Oriental subtlety prevalent in many of their art forms.

One interesting discovery: a 1973 gray, white and black woodcut by Kiyoshi Saito dating from 1973 confirms that this well-known artist still maintains the stylized-realistic approach that brought him to the forefront in the early 1950s.

The significant influence American artists have had on contemporary art — including printmaking — is revealed with works by acknowldged masters such as Leonard Baskin, Robert Indiana, Robert Motherwell, and Adolph Gottlieb. European artists familiar to many include Karen Appel, Victor Pasmore, and Victor Vasarely.

Work in black and white, in brilliant bouquets of color, and in all shades in-between gives this show a balance appropriate to an exhibit that obviously serves primarily as an introductive showcase to the richness of contemporary prints internationally. That is the basic strength of this exhibit — along with the beauty of the individual works.

At this point in time, prints have become the most widely collected art form for individuals and firms. Most (and this is true of all those in this show) are printed in limited numbers — less than 100 copies. Yet, because they are made in limited multiples, it places them within the reach of art lovers of modest means.

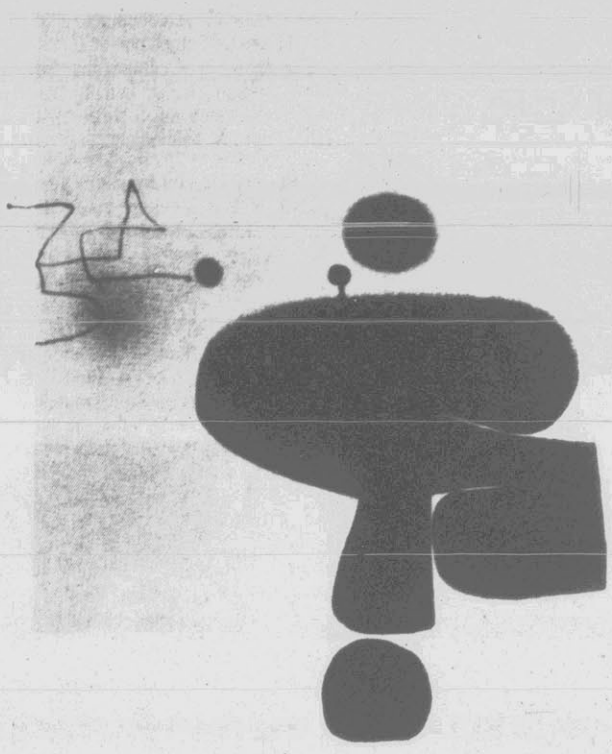
The catalog for the show doubles as both as a pictorial record of the exhibit — with each of the 50 pieces reproduced, a few in color — and as an informative, abbreviated textbook on several forms of printmaking and the care of prints.

Gray Gallery director Randolph Osman has again brought to Greenville area people a stimulating and informative exhibit. Ashland Oil Co. is to be commended for sharing their art with the public.

Viewing hours at Gray Gallery in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the ECU campus are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, and from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

Local people interested in current prints will want to see this exhibit before it closes on March 18.

JERRY RAYNOR



POINT OF CONTACT ... a serigraph print by British artist Victor Pasmore is one of 50 modern prints now on view at Gray Gallery on the ECU campus, through March 18. The show, provided by Ashland Oil Co., is an excellent survey of contemporary printmaking in the United States, South America, Europe, and Japan.

de Larrocha To Perform

CHARLOTTE — Alicia de Larrocha, who has been performing as a pianist for 55 years, will be guest soloist with the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Leo Driehuys at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday at Ovens Auditorium.

She will play Ravel's "Concerto for Left Hand" and Manuel de Falla's "Nights in the Garden of Spain."

Since her public debut in 1929, Mme. de Larrocha has given concerts worldwide. Since 1965, she has annually toured North America and Canada in appearances with many major orchestras and in numerous recital series.

A recording artist for London records, she received Grammy Awards in 1974 and in 1975 for best classical performance as soloist without orchestra.

In 1982 the city of Barcelona awarded her the Medalla d'Or, and in the same year the Spanish government gave her the Medalla de Ora al merito.

Tickets for the concert range in price from $6.50 to $13.50; $4.50 for students. For more details and reservations, call 704/332-6136.

Award To Flutist

CHARLOTTE — Joseph P. Little, flutist with the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra, is the recipient of the orchestra's 1984 President's Award. Little was recognized for 50 years of outstanding service and performance with the orchestra.

He attended the first concert of the orchestra on March 20, 1932, and his first performance as flutist with the orchestra was on October 18, 1934, when he was a 10th grade student at Central High School.

The Norwegian cabinet resigned in 1972 after being rebuffed on its move to join the European Common Market.

A Change In City Centers

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Museums and cultural centers are replacing churches, libraries and railroad stations as traditional center city monuments, according to Edward Larrabee Barnes, architect of the new Dallas Museum of Art.

"This is the great era of museum expansion, coming on top of the collapse of churches and rail terminals as central monuments of a city and the decline of library systems," said Barnes, who also designed Minneapolis' Walker Art Center, the Sarah Scaife Gallery of Pittsburgh's Carnegie Institute, and New York's Asia Society Gallery.

"In Dallas, instead of a central shopping mall, they're going to have a monumental cultural mall, anchored by the Dallas Museum and a concert hall, just as shopping malls are anchored by important retail stores. Until now, most cities have tucked their museums away in parks, giving them a very exclusive feeling."

Barnes is all for getting away from the elitist aura thad serrounds museums by bringing them downtown, where they are more accessible to the public, but he still feels a museum should be a place for quiet contemplation and enjoyment.

"A museum should be unintimidating but it shouldn't just be open to the street," said the dapper, 68-year-old architect in his spacious office-studio on Manhattan's upper East Side. "All of us connected with the Dallas Museum wanted a feeling of tranquility and reverence. We wanted visitors to consciously go through a doorway that separates them from the city."

The $50 million Dallas Museum is a low-rise structure set on an 8.9-acre site divided into a series of walled sculpture gardens. Its galleries are punctuated by courts, patios and terraces that bring a great deal of light and greenery into the interior

Galleries devoted to Old Masters, French Impressionist, pre-Columbian art and African art are partially lit by natural overhead lighting, with which Barnes began to experiment in the Pittsburgh museum which is strong in Impressionist paintings.

"Nineteenth century museums were built with sky-lights for natural lighting but gradually incandescent lighting took over," Barnes noted. "But dealer's galleries began showing modern art, especially the abstract expressionists, without natural light and that also became predominate in museum exhibition.

"I think sculpture and Impressionist art are intended to be seen in daylight and benefit from changes of light, so I've used natural overhead light in the galleries where they are exhibited. In the four big galleries where contemporary abstract art is shown, I've used all incandescent light because this art looks best in artificial light.

"I've also introduced daylight to the lobbies, hallways, stairways, and ramps as a means of alleviating museum fatigues. I'm happy to say most visitors to the Dallas Museum are using the stairs from which they have the pleasure of looking into a courtyard, rather than the elevators."

Barnes sees the Dallas museum as an institution with a social conscience. It has a library which is open to everyone instead of just to scholars, the best educational facilities for young people of any museum in the country and a separate children's bookstore, and at least one study collection — prints, drawings, photographs and textiles — that is open to the public.

"It's talk of the museum world and a real breakthrough," Barnes said. "Dallas is the first museum to do it. I've finally been able to pull it off."

These light sensitive collections of works on paper and pre-Columbian weaving and Guatemalan and Indonesian textiles, stored for the most part in drawers, will be available to visitors on appointment with guidance of the curatorial staff.

Barnes already has added a second floor addition to the museum, which opened officially only last month. It is a spacious but as yet unfinished space atop the children's educational wing and may eventually be devoted to the decorative arts.

"I planned the museum like a series of open-ended building blocks," Barnes said. "They'll just keep adding blocks as the collections increase in size."

Barnes said Dallas was fortunate in having fairly comprehensive art holdings in comparison to new museums in Miami, Fla., and Atlanta, Ga., which are "virtually empty." He currently is designing a small private museum for display of modern paintings and watercolors in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

"I don't worry about these new museums," he said. "They'll only be empty a few years. It costs so much in taxes to pass art on to your children, that most collections are going to museums and univerities instead. Little museums especially are benefitting from this."

Mini-Concert At GMA

The Greenville Boys Choir, under the direction of Jerry Jolly, will be in performance at noon Wednesday at the Greenville Museum of Art.

Mini-concerts at noon are held each month at the museum. These are open to the public without charge.

MTV Videos Compelling Force In Duran Duran Group's Success

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They're filling huge arenas with screaming girls, their "Seven and the Ragged Tiger" LP is in the Top 10 and their pouty, youthful faces peer out from teen fan magazines everywhere.

To some observers, the commotion surrounding Duran Duran's current U.S. tour recalls the Beatlemania of two decades ago, and the band has been jokingly dubbed the Fab Five.

And if rock critics are wrinkling their noses at the band's brand of techno-pop music, lead singer and songwriter Simon Le Bon couldn't care less.

"I think critics in the music business are different from theater critics," he said in a recent interview with the Associated Press, settling into an overstuffed chair in his Westwood hotel suite. "They don't have that much power."

But there is a compelling media force behind Duran Duran, and it can be summed up in three letters: MTV — Music Television.

Scarcely noticed by radio and the public in two previous visits to the United States, Duran Duran saw its following slowly but surely mushroom after the Warner-Amex cable rock video channel began frequent airings of what at the time were highly distinctive videos.

In "Hungry Like a Wolf," the strapping, blond Le Bon donned pith helmet and khakis to chase an exotic maiden through the jungles and bazaars of Sri Lanka. "Girls on Film" is a soft-porn salute to the soft-porn film industry. "Save a Prayer," also shot in Sri Lanka, is a hauntingly romantic travelog.

The response to the videos is credited for convincing radio to start playing the band's "Rio" LP, which became a best seller about six months after its initial release.

Le Bon said the band deliberately set out to make waves with video after making a modest splash as one of the brighter lights of Britain's New Romantic movement, which brought costumes and dance music back into style after punk rock's grim reign.

Le Bon, at 25 the band's oldest member, recalls a meeting with managers Paul and Michael Berrow and fellow band members Roger Taylor, Andy Taylor, John Taylor (none of them related) and Nick Rhodes.

"We were sitting and talking and saying, 'Look, we need something like Pink Floyd had stereo ... They had this new device at their fingertips, and they were the first to really use it to its full extent.

"And we thought the same thing was happening in video — that so far, you've got this medium, and all that people were doing with it was either recorded live shows, or showing bits of old black-and-white silent movies or cartoons which have nothing to do with music.

"Nobody had ever really taken a band out into a setting, out into anywhere exotic or exciting — a mountain or under a waterfall. And we thought, let us go, let us be the first people to do it. Let us go try and pioneer video."

Le Bon doesn't mind the band's predominantly teen following, and he acknowledges that "Rio" was bound to attract the adolescent crowd.

But he believes the new "Seven and the Ragged Tiger" LP has established Duran Duran as something more than a teen band, even though it is flavored with the group's signature synthesizer riffs and vocal harmonies.

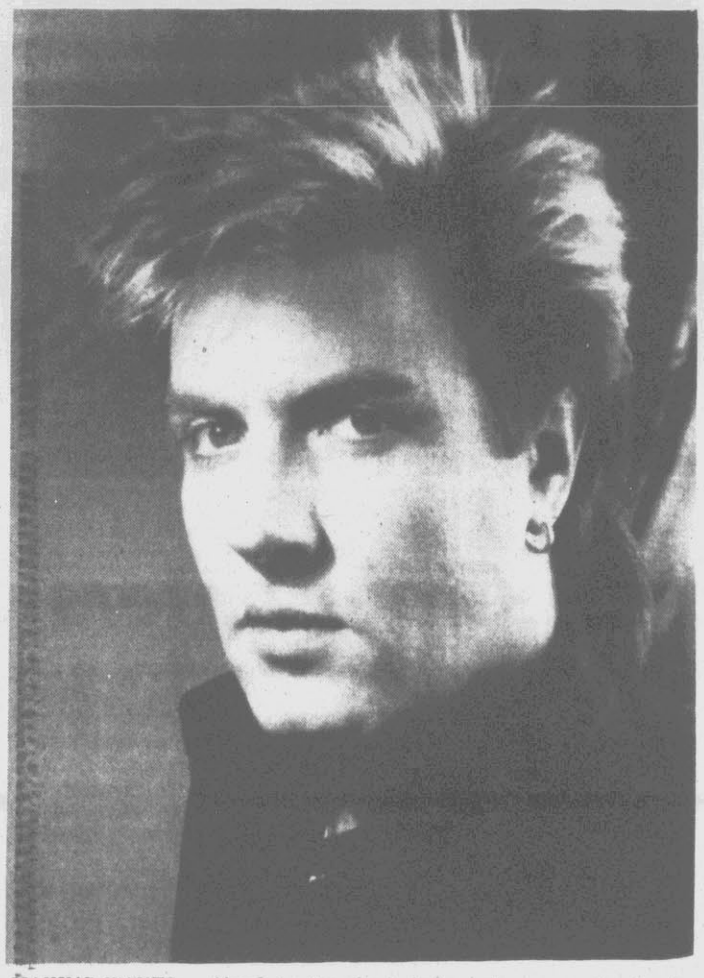
Some observers say the chorus of the album's popular single, "New Moon on Monday," is reminiscent of the refrain to the title track of "Rio."

Yet Le Bon said the group made "a conscious effort, really, to not try and be commercially poppy, because that would have been the last nail in our coffin — we would have had this year's success and that would have been it."

When the album was finished he said the group thought it had "blown it."

"We thought ... we've lost all the kids now — we've come out with something which is much too obscure for them," he said.

"And we turned around, and look what is happening," he said. "We're starting to do the kind of thing which we really intended to do in the first place, which was to get hold of an audience and to take it with us, and to actually develop musically and develop our audiences' taste as well."



MAKING WAVES ... Simon Le Bon, lead singer and a songwriter for the rock group "Duran Duran," admits the band deliberately set out to make waves with video after making just a modest splash as one of the brighter lights of Britain's New Romantic movement. (AP Laserphoto by Reed Saxon)

The male actors are needed to be cast in roles portraying the founding fathers of America. (P.S. Two women are also needed for the play).

"1776" is the musical that unfolds the history of the lively spirit of our nation's 18th century founding days. Some of the characters being re-created are John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and Ben Franklin, along with a number of other, lesser known figures from out of the past.

Audition times are at 3 p.m. today and at 7:30 p.m. on Monday. Show dates scheduled are May 10, 12 and 13. Persons wanting more information are to call 746-6782 or 534-4689.

Foreign Students Say:

Teen-Agers The Same Everywhere

KIRSI ARVOLA

Kirsi, from Finland, is residing with Dr. and Mrs. Michael Orbach in Greenville. She is attending J.H. Rose High School. She had only seen American football once before she came to Greenville.

No matter where you may roam in the world, you are sure to find one common element: teen-agers.

Whether in Europe or the United States, teens attend school, complain about homework, talk about who they want to date, participate in sports and listen to music.

Teen-agers are basically the same throughout the countries of the world, according to foreign exchange students currently visiting and studying in Greenville.

Although the students mentioned some differences between the culture in their hometown and the Greenville lifestyle, they said teens speak a universal language.

Eight students are living in the Greenville area as part of the Educational Foundation for Foreign Study program. These teen-agers from Germany, Norway, Finland and Sweden agreed that they are like the teen-agers they have met since they came to the United States, with small differences.

AMERICAN MUSIC AND MOVIES POPULAR

The teens from Europe said teen-agers in their countries listen to the same music that is popular with American teens.

"German teen-agers listen to American music," said Kirsten Soetebier of Germany. "But some German musicians such as Nena and Peter Schilling are very popular and their music is played in the United States."

Fellow German Bertram Pflasterer added, "People in Germany don't understand the words of the American and English music, but they listen to the music."

The European teens said English music, such as the Culture Club, and reggae music are also popular in their countries.

American movies are popular throughout Europe. The movies reach the foreign countries about six months after they are released in the United States, and the movies are either dubbed into the foreign language or have a foreign text running across the bottom of the screen.

AMERICANS WEAR DRESSIER CLOTHES

Markus Welcker from Germany said that German and American teens wear the same jeans and T-shirts for casual wear, but that American students dress up more.

"Girls here try to be more feminine and wear dressier clothes than the girls in Germany do," he said.

Pia Holmroos of Finland said, "Here the dress is more old-fashioned and girls dress up more here. In Finland, the styles come from Italy and England; girls here get the same styles much later than we get them in Finland."

The guys in Greenville also dress better than European fellows. "In Sweden, no one would ever wear a tie to school," said Niclas Hedstrom of Sweden. "Here, students dress up more."

Europeans are more "punk" and wear sloppier clothes, Anne Stormoen of Norway said. Also, the girls here wear more makeup and there is not a diversity of clothing styles here as there is in Europe.

"In Sweden, if you like a certain kind of music, you dress a certain way," Niclas said. People that like "new wave" music, for example, dress in the "punk" style.

"The main difference between German teens and American teens is that Germany has many different groups and styles which aren't here: punks, hippies, freaks and those that dress well," Bertram said. "Some of these grroups fight each other."

HIGH SCHOOLS AND SPORTS DIFFER

Most high schools in Europe are different from the American high schools. The classes begin earlier in the morning and school is over at 1:30 p.m. The European high school students take from 13 to 15 different subjects during the year and they have different classes each day. In many of the European schools, 30 students stay in the same classroom all day and the teachers change classrooms.

"You get to know more people here because classes have different people in them here," Kirsten said. "In Germany, since the students stay in the same classrooms, you get to know 30 people well, but you don't meet people in the other classes."

European schools teach the basic subjects, such as history, mathematics and science, but American students receive more career training.

"I like some parts of the American school system better" than the schools in Germany, Bertram said. "I like the elective subjects such as orchestra, concert band, stage band, drafting, auto mechanics."

He added, "In Germany, we don't get practical application of subjects in high school and the students don't decide what they want to take. The students learn the basic skills in the 13 years of school, and then go to university to get prepared for a job."

Pia said the schools in the United States have more activities than those in Finland.

Thomas Richter from Germany likes the school spirit here. "There is no school spirit in Germany because the schools have no athletic teams." Students participate in club sports after school, but there is no competition between schools in any of the European countries the students are from.

According to the teens, the most popular sport in Europe is soccer. Other favorite sports are volleyball, handball, cross country and downhill skiing and Another favorite game is bandy, an ice hockey game played with a bigger field and a ball instead of a puck, Niclas said.

EUROPEAN AND AMERICAN FRIENDS

The European teens agreed that it is easier to make friends in Greenville than it is in their hometown.

"Here, strangers say 'hello,'" said Kirsi Arvola from Finland. "In Finland, you wouldn't speak to a stranger on the street. Everyone here is a friend to each other after the first 'hi.'"

"It is harder to become close friends with someone here, but you meet more people," she said.

"Boys and girls can be friends here. I like that part about relationships here," Kirsi added. "In Finland if you are friends with a boy, he is your boyfriend."

"American teens are more conservative and have more morals" than teens in Sweden, Niclas said. "Students also are better behaved in the United States. They are more polite to teachers and say, 'Yes, ma'am.'"

"Teen-aged guys think about girls probably everywhere in the world," Thomas said.

"German teens are more interested in music and American teens are more interested in sports," Bertram said.

Markus said that German teens think about more serious problems. He said it is not unusual for teens in Germany to discuss the American deployment of missiles. "Teens are more critical of the government in Germany," he said.

"The Peace Movement is strong in Germany," Bertram said. "German teens are more concerned with politics and war than American teens are. German youth are seriously engaged in politics by the age of 15 or 16."

Anne said girls here think more about homework, school and boys. "In Norway, we talk about more different things," she said.

"We don't date at such an early age in Germany," Thomas said.

Pia said, "Here people date with a boyfriends or girlfriend. In Finland, large groups, maybe 20 or 30 people, go out together."

Anne said, "Lots of teens go out to eat hamburgers here. In Norway we always eat at home because we don't have fast-food restaurants."

AGE DIFFERENCES

In most European countries, teens cannot get a driver's license until they are 18, compared in 16 in North Carolina.

Bertram said it is expensive to get a driver's license in Germany and a German teen must take private driving lessons.

"It is very special when you get your license," Kirsten said. "You have a party to celebrate."

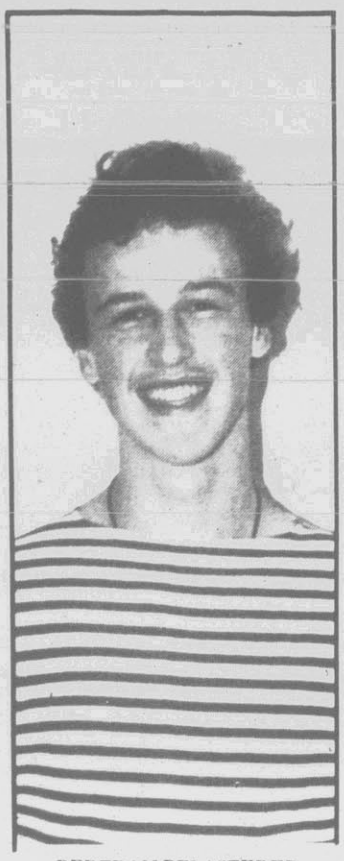
The teens said American teens have more freedom because so many 16-year-olds in American have a car.

"Everyone has a car here," Niclas said. "In Sweden, if you get a car, you buy it yourself; your parents don't give you one just because you have a driver's license."

Another difference between Europe and the United States is the drinking age. American teens now must be 19 in order to purchase beer and 21 to purchase liquor. The drinking age is lower in Europe.

"Alcohol is not a problem in Germany because a teen is allowed to drink beer at age 16 and liquor at 18," Bertram said. "You can get a driver's license at 18, so a German teen has experienced alcohol before he has begun driving. Here you drink alcohol and don't know the effects and then you drive."

The European teens said they have noticed more similarities than differences in the actions of teen-agers here and in their country. Bertram summed up teen-agers throughout the world when he said, "It is the same crazy everywhere."

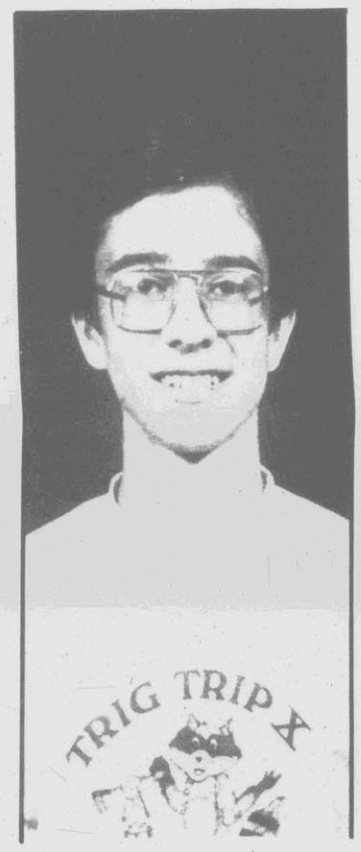


BERTRAM PFLASTERER

Bertram is from a small agricultural town near Heidelburg, West Germany. He is living with Larry and Marylyn Vacek in Greenville and is attending J.H. Rose High School. He enjoys music and plays the bass guitar. "I enjoy being in the stage band at Rose High School," he said. "We don't have school bands in my hometown."

NICLAS HEDSTROM

Niclas, from Stockholm, Sweden, is living with C.P. and Maude Shaw of Greenville. He is attending D.H. Conley High School. "People are more conservative here. People in Sweden wear punk clothes and have punk haircuts," he said.



THOMAS RICHTER

From Germany, Thomas is living with Dr. and Mrs. Carol Hampton in Greenville. He is attending D.H. Conley High School. Thomas said he is impressed with the North Carolina beaches and he has enjoyed the warm weather in this part of the country.

Tasteful Elegance Aim Of Design

By Jerry Bishop

Classic traditional lines on the exterior merge with a floor plan that expresses elegance in the Northcote, a charming French Provincial design.

Marked by a floor plan that allows easy access to all areas of the home, the Northcote includes three bedrooms, two full baths, a family room, and an imaginative kitchen/dining area.

Inside the entry, with clothes closet at hand, guests may be welcomed into the 19-ft. family room at left. Besides being generously proportioned, the family room is well-supplied with natural light and offers a wood-burning fireplace for warmth and atmosphere. A walkaway at the rear of the room joins double garage with kitchen for convenience.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

About two years ago, a neighbor decided to have the brick stoop at the rear of his house taken apart (before it fell apart) and replaced with a new one. A few weeks before making this decision, he had found in his mailbox a circular distributed by two ambitious young men telling of their willingness to do odd jobs at very reasonable prices.

My neighbor called and asked whether the two knew how to build a brick stoop. The youth who answered said emphatically that they did and was asked to come over and make an estimate on the job.

Two men, of neat appearance and well-spoken, showed up, said they lived in the neighborhood and gave an estimate of about half the one that previously had been obtained from a local contractor. They had a small truck with their names and the addresses of their company on it.

A deal was made. The two showed up a few days later and set to work. They were industrious and reliable. The only trouble was they had very little idea of what they were doing. The bottom step was a little higher than the others. Mortar was spilled over the faces of the bricks and on the walkway leading to the stoop. The joints had an amateurish look and did not match.

When my neighbor realized he had made a mistake, he told me about it and wondered whether anything could be done. I went over and, while talking with the young men, discovered they had never done any brickwork previously and this was their first job of that kind.

Eventually, the matter was straightened out. The workers fixed the job as best they could and the hard feelings that had ensued were dissipated. But the problem remained. And still does. The men were not out to cheat anybody in the strict meaning of the phrase, yet they had obtained the job under false pretenses.

They really couldn't do the kind of work they had promised, so the homeowner suffered. Should we then discourage amibition and enterprise by refusing to hire them? What would have happened if one of the young men had sustained an injury while doing the work? Neither had any insurance for an on-the-job accident.

The real culprit is the law — or lack of it. In many communities, you can become a remodeling contractor simply by announcing it. You don't need any special skill or experience. You need only the willingness to tackle the job and collect the money. True, many non-professional people can do a better job than one who makes a living at it, but it's your house and your money and should you have to engage in some kind of lottery in the hope that the one you hire is a skilled worker?

In some areas around the country, steps have been taken to prevent you from being shortchanged. Licenses are required before a worker can advertise or go into business as a remodeler or special type of repair person. The theory is that, if you fail to get satisfaction, it is easier to track down a licensed contractor than one who isn't. This, to some extent, helps defend against a fly-by-night person or company.

Here's the Answer

Q. — We intend to take down all the old wallpaper in our living room and repaper the whole room. The paper not only is in poor condition, it is lumpy in places, caused by the fact that the previous owner had overlapped the seams. This made bulges in the wall along all the seams. From what we have read, overlapping the seams is not considered a good idea. We plan on butting the seams. Will that be OK?

A. — Yes. It will make the entire job appear more professional. When you remove all the old paper, check for holes and other gaps that might require filling with patching plaster. Where there are patches, cover with glue sizing. Some wallpaper experts think the entire wall should be coated with glue sizing before new paper is installed.

Q. — I bought a cheap quarter-inch portable power drill a few months ago. A friend says it should be oiled regularly. Is he right?

A. — No way to tell. Some require oiling a couple of times a year. Many are lubricated for life. Didn't you get an instruction booklet? If not, go back to where you bought the drill and see if the dealer knows the answer. If he doesn't, write the manufacturer, give him all the numbers and facts on the housing and ask him. While you are at it, request an instruction booklet.

Q. — Any special technique necessary for painting lap siding on the outside of my house? I probably will be using an exterior latex paint.

A. — Paint the undersides of the projections first, then the surfaces. Use back-and-forth strokes.

Q. — I plan to paint a long wire fence, using a paint roller. Is there any special type of nap that should be used on a fence?

A. — Yes. A long-napped cover should be used for rough and irregular surfaces.

Q. Should I plant the tulips I received for Valentine's Day outside now that they have stopped blooming? (C.D., High Point)

A. Tulips forced into bloom by florists will not give satisfactory blooms another year as potted plants. They can be planted outdoors, where it usually takes several years for them to bloom again. It is probably best to discard them.

Q. I pruned my grapes Feb. 28. Now sap is oozing out of every cut. Will this hurt the vines? Did I wait too late to prune? (O.P., Sanford)

A. You did not wait too late. Bleeding is common on pruned grapes. It will not hurt the vines.

Q. Should tulips be fertilized before they bloom? (I.K., Asheville)

A. As soon as tulips and other spring bulbs emerge, fertilize them with an 8-8-8 fertilizer at the rate of two to four pounds per 100 square feet (1/4 to 1/3 ounces per square foot).

Q. When can English ivy be rooted? (J.F., Newton)

A. You can root English ivy at any time. Dipping the cuttings in a rooting hormone will promote root initiation.

Nepalese Ask Funds For Plant

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The Nepalese government is asking for funds from the World Bank to construct a huge hydroelectric power plant to make industrial and agricultural use of the vast, almost untapped resources of the Himalayan Mountain range.

Eight years after the original idea was announced by the government, officials are now waiting for commitment from India to purchase power from the planned Karnali plant in western Nepal. One of the country's largest industrial schemes, it could also enrich farmlands by controlling annual floods and providing much-needed irrigation.

At an estimated cost of $3.1 billion, the plan calls for a rock-filled dam and a powerhouse that can turn out 3,600 megawatts at Chisapani gorge in the Karnali River, a tributary of the Ganges River. The site is about 250 miles northwest of Katmandu.

If completed as planned in 1997, the Karnali plant would be the largest hydroelectric power plant in Asia. China is to start operation of the 2,715-megawatt Gezhouba dam in 1986.

Recently, World Bank Vice President David Hopper told newsmen in Katmandu he would recommend to the board of directors that the bank provide Nepal with an initial loan of $12 million for conducting a feasibility study.

However, sources close to the Nepalese government, who requested not to be identified in any other way, said the World Bank "seems reluctant to offer loans either for the feasibility study or the actual construction of the project without a firm commitment from the government of India to buy power from the Nepalese plant."

Although domestic power demand is not likely to exceed 420 megawatts by 1997, the Karnali project is designed to provide consistent foreign currency earnings by exporting electricity to the power-hungry state of Uttar Pradesh in northern India, which borders Nepal.

Nepal expects to net earnings estimated at about $377 million a year from the sale of power to India.

So far, Nepal has been able to develop only 127 megawatts of power from waters rushing down the Himalayan slopes.

State Wins Larger Slice Of Pharmaceutical Apple

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina isn't about to overtake the states that most major drug companies call home — New York, New Jersey and Illinois — but a growing slice of the highly profitable pharmaceutical industry has developed here.

A study last year by the North Carolina Department of Commerce counted four plants in the state making biological products, seven producing medical chemicals in bulk and 19 turning out pharmaceutical products.

By 1980, according to the U.S. Census Bureau, 17 percent of the pharmaceuticals, biological products and medicinal chemicals manufactured in the Southeast were made in North Carolina, about $4.8 billion worth.

"In the Southeast, North Carolina is already a major area for pharmaceuticals," said Michael G. Rakouskas, who did the Commerce Department study.

Most of the facilities are branch plants, but two companies — attracted by medical schools at Duke University and the University of North Carolina — are based in Research Triangle Park.

Pharmaceutical companies are welcome newcomers to an area's economy because they generally pollute less than heavy industry and usually pay higher wages. Pay for the 9,145 North Carolina workers in the industry averaged $340 a week in 1982, compared with the state's average manufacturing wage of $282.

Like most major U.S. drug companies, the economic and regulatory powers that buffet the industry's factories and research labs remain at a distance geographically. But area companies are not isolated from such forces as the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, stiff competition and the trend toward corporate acquisitions. Those forces are reflected in the strategies and problems of the four largest medical companies in the state:

—In addition to manufacturing a new drug to treat herpes, Burroughs Wellcome Co. has obtained FDA permission to sell some of its prescription medications as over-the-counter drugs.

—Glaxo Inc. has introduced a drug to challenge the world's best-selling prescription medication.

—Despite problems with two federal agencies over some of its products, Bristol-Myers has reported record profits for the past 11 years.

—Mallinckrodt Inc. has been involved on both sides of corporate acquisitions.

When Burroughs Wellcome moved to Research Triangle Park from Tuckahoe, N.Y., in 1970, it was a quiet manufacturer of prescription drugs.

Recently, the company has raised its profile even more by obtaining approval to reclassify the allergy and cold medicine Actifed from prescription medicine to over-the-counter drug. Using former astronaut Wally Schirra in commercials, the company has ventured for the first time into advertising.

Sales of Actifed should approach $40 million this year, a 50 percent increase over last year, said Peter A. Reckert, vice president for marketing.

Burroughs Wellcome has been less successful with its new entry, Zovirax, an ointment for treating genital herpes symptoms. It will probably have sales of $20 million this year.

"My view was that we forecast on limited information and we were wrong," Reckert said. "We were overly optimistic."

Bristol-Myers, on the other hand, has long been a believer in advertising. The company makes Bufferin, Comtrex and Extra-Strength Datril — a nonaspirin painkiller.

Bristol-Myers reported sales last year of $3.9 billion and earnings of $408 million for last year. The company announced an aggressive advertising campaign last year when Datril challenged Tylenol.

"Bristol-Myers is more interested in growing profitably than spending a lot on advertising to boost market share," said Robert Benezra, an analyst with the Baltimore brokerage firm of Alex, Brown & Sons.

Bristol-Myers has made news in battles with the Federal Trade Commission over the accuracy of advertising claims that doctors recommend Bufferin more than any other nonprescription pain reliever.

Like Bristol-Myers' challenge to Tylenol, Glaxo Inc. took on a giant last year in the prescription drug market: Tagamet.

SmithKline Corp., which manufactures Tagamet, had the ulcer market pretty much to itself since 1976. But in July, Glaxo introduced Zantac on the United States market. By year's end, Zantac had grabbed 16 percent of the U.S. market.

Player Makes The Difference Between Fiddle And Violin

NEWBERRY, S.C. (AP) — The difference in a fiddle and a violin, proclaims fiddlemaker Ernest Bass, is found in the player, not in what's played.

"The instruments are all the same," he said. "The people are the difference. Rich folks have violins, poor people have fiddles."

The fact that Ernest Bass grew up in a Kershaw County farm family of 13 children helps explain why the small workshop behind his home has a dozen fiddles, some time-worn banjos — and no violins.

Under lock and key is the dusty fiddle which Bass' father played in the farmhouse and at community dances. Hanging in a corner is a pair of old banjos, their strings worn and their music silenced forever. They belonged to Bass' mother.

Bass remembers his father and mother playing song after song together, their musical abilities having grown not from formal instruction but rather from the "sit and pick" method as practiced around hearth and home.

Their music was as good, Bass said, as any you'd want to hear. It also was special because it was the only thing on the entertainment block.

"That was the only music we had back when I was a child," said Bass, now 71. "We didn't have a record player or a talking machine or anything like that. The music you had was what you made — homemade music.

"My mother and father fed us young'uns through the winter by playing for dances. They could play for hours at a time and not take a break. It was just the two of them, but they were a real team. People would come and get them and carry them to dances all over the countryside."

More than 50 years later, Bass made a roundabout return to the musical heritage of his parents. He had picked a guitar occasionally and had become acquainted with the preliminaries of playing the fiddle.

In 1976, though, he moved into homemade music in a different way — making the musicmakers instead of the music.

The mill across Player Street from Bass' house had closed, and his career in textiles suddenly was over. He became a self-employed carpenter, doing repair work and some house construction.

And he had more time to put into his workshop. There, at the age of 68, he decided to become a fiddlemaker.

"I had my daddy's old fiddle in the house," he said. "I took it and drew some patterns from it and made my first fiddle. It's an awful-looking thing, but I've learned a lot about it since then. But that's how I started."

Bass has made dozens of fiddles since those days, and he has sold quite a few. He doesn't promote them as being extra special, but their sound rings true and their strings shine and groan with the mark of authority.

"I'm not much of a finish man," he said. "I can make them, but it's hard for me to finish them.

"There are features on fiddles that I don't put on there because they aren't needed; they're just for looks. Like the curl at the end. That just makes it look better. My idea of a fiddle is the sound, the tone of it. That's what's important, not how it looks."

Crucial to the quality of a fiddle's tone, Bass said, is the wood for its front and back.

"Hardwood's best for the back," he said. "And you need to have spruce pine or some other kind of soft pine for the front. I learned in the last two I made that kiln-dried pine is the easiest to work with and won't split as bad as others do. It produces a good sound, too."

The wood must be thin so that it can be curved into shape but strong enough to cradle the instrument's sound and protect the body from hours and hours of sometimes frenetic use.

"It takes about two weeks to make one," Bass said. "It's not the kind of thing where you can buckle down and go through it from start to finish. You've got to work on it a while, rest, then go back to it.

"You've got to work with the front and back until you get them as thin as possible without breaking them. Then you have to get the bass bar and the soundpost at the right place. They are really important. They are the things that make a fiddle holler at you."

Bass would have you believe that his relationship with fiddles ends when he walks out of his workshop. He can move one from his hands to his shoulder without losing a lot of quality, however.

"I've always wanted to play, but I'm not a fiddler," he said. "I can play a tune or two, but I'm not a fiddler.

"Now my daddy, he was a fiddler."

Potential Suicides Signal Intent

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — If suicides could talk, some experts say their last words would be "I told you so."

Many of those who take their own lives send out signals of their distress well before the final act, crying for help in meeting a crisis, the experts say.

Robert Martin, the Hinds County coroner, and Maureen Halloran, a graduate student at the University of Mississippi, take the same stand in discussing those who kill themselves.

And Ms. Halloran told a recent meeting at Ole Miss that "the most common and destructive myth about suicide is that those who talk about it won't do it."

She said the way others respond to a suicidal statement has a lot to do with whether the person follows through.

Ms. Holloran said she rejected the tendency of a potential helper to begin an immediate lecture before the troubled person has much to say.

That, she said, is "like putting a cork in the mouth of a person who desperately needs to talk."

Martin, who has handled numerous suicides in his five years as a coroner in the populous central Mississippi county, agreed.

"The last one we had was a fellow who said he couldn't take it any more, and was going to do away with himself," Martin said. "No one paid any attention to him," and after a few days, he shot himself.

Martin believes few suicides are done on impulse, even when the move appears to be a sudden act.

He recalled the case of a man who argued with his wife, left, and then returned to kill her and himself. This, he said, "had to be thought out."

"I have found out in my years of experience, never try to second guess why anyone commits suicide," Martin said. "What makes sense to them may not make sense to others."

He emphasized that he was not criticizing such victims.

Potential suicides are faced with a variety of problems — finances, a spouse, fear of imprisonment — all of which can force people into a sort of temporary insanity, he said.

Ms. Halloran put it much the same way.

From PHELPS CHEVROLET
By Guy Braxton

LOCKED OUT?

Have you ever found yourself locked out of your car? It's a distressing but not a hopeless problem. If the keys are nowhere in sight, and you live too far away to call home for that extra key, you can call a dealer who sells your car make and ask for assistance. But, it's always preferable to avoid this situation by carrying an extra ignition key tucked away in your wallet or purse or placed in a magnetic box and attached to the automobile out of sight.

If you do have your key but it won't turn the lock at all - try sliding it forward and backward while turning it. If this doesn't work, try a little graphite on the key. In cold weather heat the key with a match before inserting it to melt any frozen moisture in the lock. Don't use oil to lubricate the lock as it will probably clog the mechanism.

When you think Chevrolet—think PHELPS CHEVROLET—where you get a good deal plus a great deal more. We pride ourselves in offering the lowest price, maximum trade allowance, low cost financing and quality service.

IS GOD ITALIAN?

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for those hands that we consider to be our favorites. That makes quite a list. For the time being, therefore, we are devoting the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series, we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

North-South vulnerable. East deals.

The bidding:

2 ◇	Dble	Pass	3 ◇
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣

Opening lead: Seven of ◇.

In 1975, the Italians won the world team championship when, on one of the last hands of the match, they bid a grand slam that depended on finding West with precisely a doubleton king of trumps with five missing. The cards lay favorably, and when the hand was over, the American West was heard to mutter: "Is God Italian?"

He had good reason to inquire. Besides the fact that they play extremely well, Italy's Blue Team did seem to have a considerable edge in luck during their long reign. This example is from the 1959 World Team Championship.

The American North-South pair bid to a reasonable four spade contract and, after a diamond lead, made five-odd. The Italian auction is shown above. It went off the rails when the great Giorgio Belladonna elected to bid his three-card heart fragment at the four-level, and he ended up in a rather undignified contract of six hearts.

Without the diamond lead the contract would have had more play, but West naturally led his partner's suit and that knocked out the only quick entry to the South hand. Now declarer had to worry about an immediate diamond loser as well as the ace of trumps.

Belladonna won the ace of diamonds, crossed to the ace of spades and cashed the ace-king of clubs. Now he continued with the queen of clubs. To prevent declarer from sluffing his losing diamond, East made the good play of trumping with the ten.

Belladonna was not yet through. He overruffed with the king of trumps, cashed the king of spades for a diamond discard from dummy, and then led the six of trumps. Since he had no entry back to his hand to lead up to dummy's trump honors again, Belladonna ran the six when West followed with a low trump!

After the finesse for the nine of trumps succeeded and trumps broke 3-3, the slam rolled home. To make the slam Belladonna needed, in addition to the trump position, East to have two clubs and West to have three. There was also the possibility that East might be able to ruff the second round of spades. All in all, we estimate that six hearts had somewhat less than a 5 percent chance. Are you beginning to wonder?

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 11, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: During the daytime, make a point that you do not respond to any difficult conditions beneath your own roof. Make sure that you do not raise problems.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you say nothing at home when the conditions are tense, you later see how to have more harmony with your mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) The morning may be difficult for you to meditate, but the evening is fine for that. Be charming.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get into personal affairs quietly and forget the practical for now. Study your newspaper well for good ideas.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't get disturbed over the actions of others, but maintain poise. Be at your very best tonight.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A new acquaintance can be annoying in the morning if you permit. Later you can be with persons who have the right information.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Not good to be in the outside world during the day when you could get into some trouble, but the evening is fine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid new contacts and ideas in the morning, but the evening is just fine for that. Be careful in motion of any kind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Any duties you can handle today is wise to get out of the way early. Your mate may be moody, but very romantic in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A partner is apt to be forceful in the morning, but don't agree to anything. Later you reach a better understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget those tasks that can wait. Enjoy music. Then later you are more enthused about what you have to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle those tasks that are important during the day. Later you can have a gala time and find romance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although family ties may be irksome, avoid quarreling; tonight you find all is harmonious. Gain the good will of family.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who can easily spot errors in written material and should have the education slanted along lines where such an ability can prove most valuable. Must learn to finish whatever has been started.

O'Connor shows great courage in 'Why Me?'

By Joe Haviland

Glynnis O'Connor met the greatest challenge of her acting career in her portrayal of Leola Mae Harmon, an Air Force nurse who is forced to rebuild her life after a tragic accident, in "Why Me?," airing Monday, March 12 on ABC.

"It was such a fantastic part because of the emotional range she goes through," says Miss O'Connor. "She goes through tremendous trauma and I wanted to try to play that on the screen. I didn't realize how tough it would be. I'm glad I didn't because I would have been worried that I couldn't do it.

"This was much more difficult than anything I've ever done before," continues the actress. "I felt like I had been through a lifetime."

Based upon a true story, "Why Me?" recalls the tragic day back in 1968 when Miss Mae Harmon was on her way to work. She was married and she was pregnant. Hit by a drunk driver, the bottom part of her face was demolished. She lost her jaw, her mouth and her teeth. "She almost died," says Miss O'Connor, "but they took her to a military hospital, and Dr. Stones, the doctor on duty at the time, was a young plastic surgeon. He took her on as a patient. He saved her life. But her marriage broke up and she lost her child."

When Miss Mae Harmon saw her face for the first time, she was horrified, and she felt as if it was a lost cause. "She was angry," says Miss O'Connor, "and I think that's what got her through. She never really did fall into self-pity. That was the type of character I wanted to play."

Prior to acting in "Why Me," Miss O'Connor, who has a long list of film and television credits including "Ode To Billy Joe," "Baby Blue Marine" and "The Boy in the Plastic Bubble," worked on the movie "Johnny Dangerously," a gangster-movie spoof.

"I was having a blast," she says. "I was playing this cutie pie dressed in red silk running around with the district attorney. The day after I finished my work on 'Johnny Dangerously,' I started 'Why Me.' It was a big switch. The first day of shooting I was in makeup for two hours, walked on the set, and no one could talk. They tried to concentrate as much as they could on their train of thought so as not to get distracted by my horrendous features.

Glynnis O'Connor and Armand Assante star in "Why Me?" a drama inspired by the true life story of a beautiful woman who is forced to rebuild her life after a tragic accident. The TV movie airs Monday, March 12 on ABC.

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

DEAR MICHELE: I have just become hooked on "Magnum, P.I" Could you please tell me the premise behind the series? I don't understand the connection behind all of Magnum's buddies. Do they work for Robin Masters? In what capacity? Why is Magnum on Masters' estate? — Kit Reddick

To Kit Reddick: I won't ask where you've been for the last three television seasons. Thomas Sullivan Magnum, a private investigator, was hired by celebrated author Robin Masters for the purpose of guarding his beautiful Hawaiian estate. In return for providing the security arrangements, Magnum lives rent-free in the guest house and rambles around the island in Robin's red Ferrari. T.C. and Rick are Magnum's buddies from Vietnam, who have also settled in Hawaii. T.C. runs his own helicopter service, and Rick, who once ran his own nightclub, is now partners with Masters in the King Kamehameah Beach Club. More often than not, Rick and T.C. come to Magnum's aid when he's working on a case.

DEAR MICHELE: Is Jan-Michael Vincent the same actor who played the role of Junior in the old TV series "The Life of Riley," starring William Bendix? — Chris Rice

To Chris Rice: The answer is no! The first "Life of Riley" series starred a young Jackie Gleason in the title role, with Lanny Rees as Junior from 1949-1950. William Bendix took over the helm as Chester A. Riley in 1953, and Wesley Morgan recreated the role of Junior.

DEAR MICHELE: Could you please tell me why Chuck, the oldest of the Cunningham's children on "Happy Days," is no longer on the show? — Peggy Kaschak

To Peggy Kaschak: There were not many "happy days" for either Gavin O'Herlihy or Randolph Roberts, both of whom appeared as Chuck Cunningham. The character did not elicit the response or appeal of other cast members, consequently Chuck was sent off to college never to be heard from again. Let's face it — Henry Winkler's Fonzie is what shot "Happy Days" into orbit as one of ABC's hit shows.

DEAR MICHELE: Are Peter Graves and James Arness brothers? — V.J. Spark

To V.J. Spark: You bet your "Gunsmoke." Born James and Peter Aurness in Minneapolis, James is the eldest, born Jan. 26, 1933 and Peter was born March 18, 1936.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

The March winds are blowing new life into the prime-time schedules. At last, women will again be starring in series, which for the last few seasons have been predominantly male.

Suzanne Pleshette, who played Bob Newhart's wife on "The Bob Newhart Show," is back. She is playing a writer on "The Suzanne Pleshette Show," airing Sundays on CBS.

Beginning March 19, Mondays will become "ladies night" on CBS. Kate Jackson leads the night with "Scarecrow and Mrs. King," followed by "Kate & Allie," the new series starring Susan Saint James and Jane Curtin. Finally, Sharon Gless and Tyne Daly report back to active duty on "Cagney & Lacey."

"Mama Malone," who has been standing in her kitchen for two years waiting to be put on the schedule, finally made it last week. I can't say this is CBS' answer to the "Julia Child Show." Mama is more interested in how her family turns out than her lasagna. As much as I liked "Mama's" cast, I really don't think she will be able to cook "The Fall Guy's" goose on Wednesday nights.

After 11 years of "Happy Days" on Tuesday, ABC decided a change was needed. In its place has come "a.k.a. Pablo" from producer Norman Lear. The series, a situation comedy with a cast of 16 regulars, stars Paul Rodriguez, Hector Elizondo, Joe Santos and Katy Jurado. It's a comedic look at a young Mexican-American family.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Sheehan makes 'Landing'

By Kimberly Redmond

Can you tell me how Joe Kelly on "General Hospital" was written out of the show? Also, I'd like to know what happened to the actor who portrayed Joe. — B.J., Rumford, Maine

Joe, who had fallen in love with Heather Webber, was upset to realize that he would never change Heather's promiscuous ways and as a result left town to accept a job as attorney general in Albany. Actor Doug Sheehan, who portrayed Joe, is currently starring as Ben Gibson on the nighttime series, "Knots Landing."

I would like to know who played Leslie Brooks' husband shortly after "The Young and the Restless" premiered. — Mrs. S., Belton, Texas

Actor Tom Hallick, who will be starring in the new prime time syndicated soap "Rituals," portrayed Leslie's husband Brad Eliot.

Whatever happened to Beverly Penberthy, who played Pat Randolph on "Another World"? Is she still acting? — D.C., Harrisonburg, Va.

Miss Penberthy did some stage work after leaving "AW," and she can be seen in several TV commercials. There were unconfirmed rumors that she might return to "AW," but so far she hasn't resurfaced on the soap scene.

That depends on many factors. If they have an agent, for example, they pay out a percentage of their earnings (usually about 10 percent). The child's own family's financial situation can also affect how much he retains for himself. If the parent's financial status warrants it, they sometimes take a percentage of the child's earnings to help with the child's upbringing and education. In most cases, however, the parents of the child actor usually put the money into a trust fund which is paid to the child when he or she turns 21.

Douglas Sheehan

Dobson's secret

Kevin Dobson will star in "For Love of a Soldier," a new TV movie filming in Los Angeles for future broadcast on CBS. Kelly McGillis, Alec Baldwin, Savannah Smith and Helen Hunt also star.

In the film, Dobson portrays Col. Joseph Cheever, a respected career Army officer who harbors a dark secret about an act that destroyed a fellow officer and scarred a young girl for life.

I'm so upset that my local television station doesn't carry "Search For Tomorrow" any more. Can you tell me why it was cancelled? — E.B., Mount Holly, N.J.

Since "Search" is still on the NBC lineup, it was obviously the decision of your local NBC affiliate station to drop the show.

NCAA Basketball Championships

This week marks the end of NBC's 1984 college basketball season. Thursday is the first day of the NCAA championship tournament, to be broadcast on CBS. With a staggering number of college games available each week — make that each day — both networks have suffered a drastic ratings decline. The television industry regards that as a fate worse that death. The tournament is the quickest way to reincarnation.

Only one network can be reborn, however. It used to be NBC, which had a lock on the tournament until CBS took it away two years ago for $48 million. Just to make sure NBC would continue to have only its regular season life to live, CBS keeps the tournament for 1985-1987. It cost the network exactly twice as much money. That's how much a second chance is worth in this business.

SUNDAY, MARCH 11

ACC SWC Championship — NBC is not ending the season with a whimper, but with a bang. Odds are that North Carolina will be available for your viewing pleasure. It wouldn't be an ACC tournament without upsets, though, so don't count on spending two hours with Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins. If you're in SWC country, which NBC estimates as 25 percent of its network, you'll get whichever two teams survive that tournament. It figures to be Arkansas and Houston. "That's not exactly chopped liver," says an NBC spokesperson. True. If the ACC game is chopped liver, more folks will see the SWC game.

Some folks may not see either game. NBC's contract with the ACC allows local stations that carry ACC games throughout the year to carry the final at the expense of network affiliates. So unless the station is an NBC owned-and-operated one, it doesn't have to carry the SWC game. You could see a Bela Lugosi movie instead. It might be a better draw.

NCAA Basketball Special — CBS offers more than you'd ever want to know. Brent Musburger and Billy Packer play studio hosts in New York. They'll be surrounded by Dick Stockton's piece on Temple, Steve Grote's analysis of the University of Texas-El Paso, Larry Conley discussing Auburn, Musburger saying goodbye to DePaul Coach Ray Meyer, and Anne Meyers talking about women's hoops. Gary Bender will be in Kansas City for the tournament pairings. He'll return later, along with Musburger and Packer, to discuss what the NCAA selection committee hath wrought.

SATURDAY, MARCH 17

NCAA second-round games — CBS viewers will get three regional games from Charlotte, Birmingham, Salt Lake City or Memphis. This follows live broadcasts Thursday and Friday nights, which shows you how seriously CBS takes the tournament. "If the Salt Lake City game is the best, we may start it at 11 in the morning," says a CBS source.

SportsBeat — ABC has the best half-hour in sports television. There are many valid reasons to hate Howard Cosell, but this show isn't one of them. He deals with issues that no one else would touch and says things no one would would dare. Nobody does it better.

John Denver Celebrity Ski Classic — NBC must be kidding. Does anybody really care which celebrity team can race down the mountain fastest? It's the snowy equivalent of "Battle of the Network Stars."

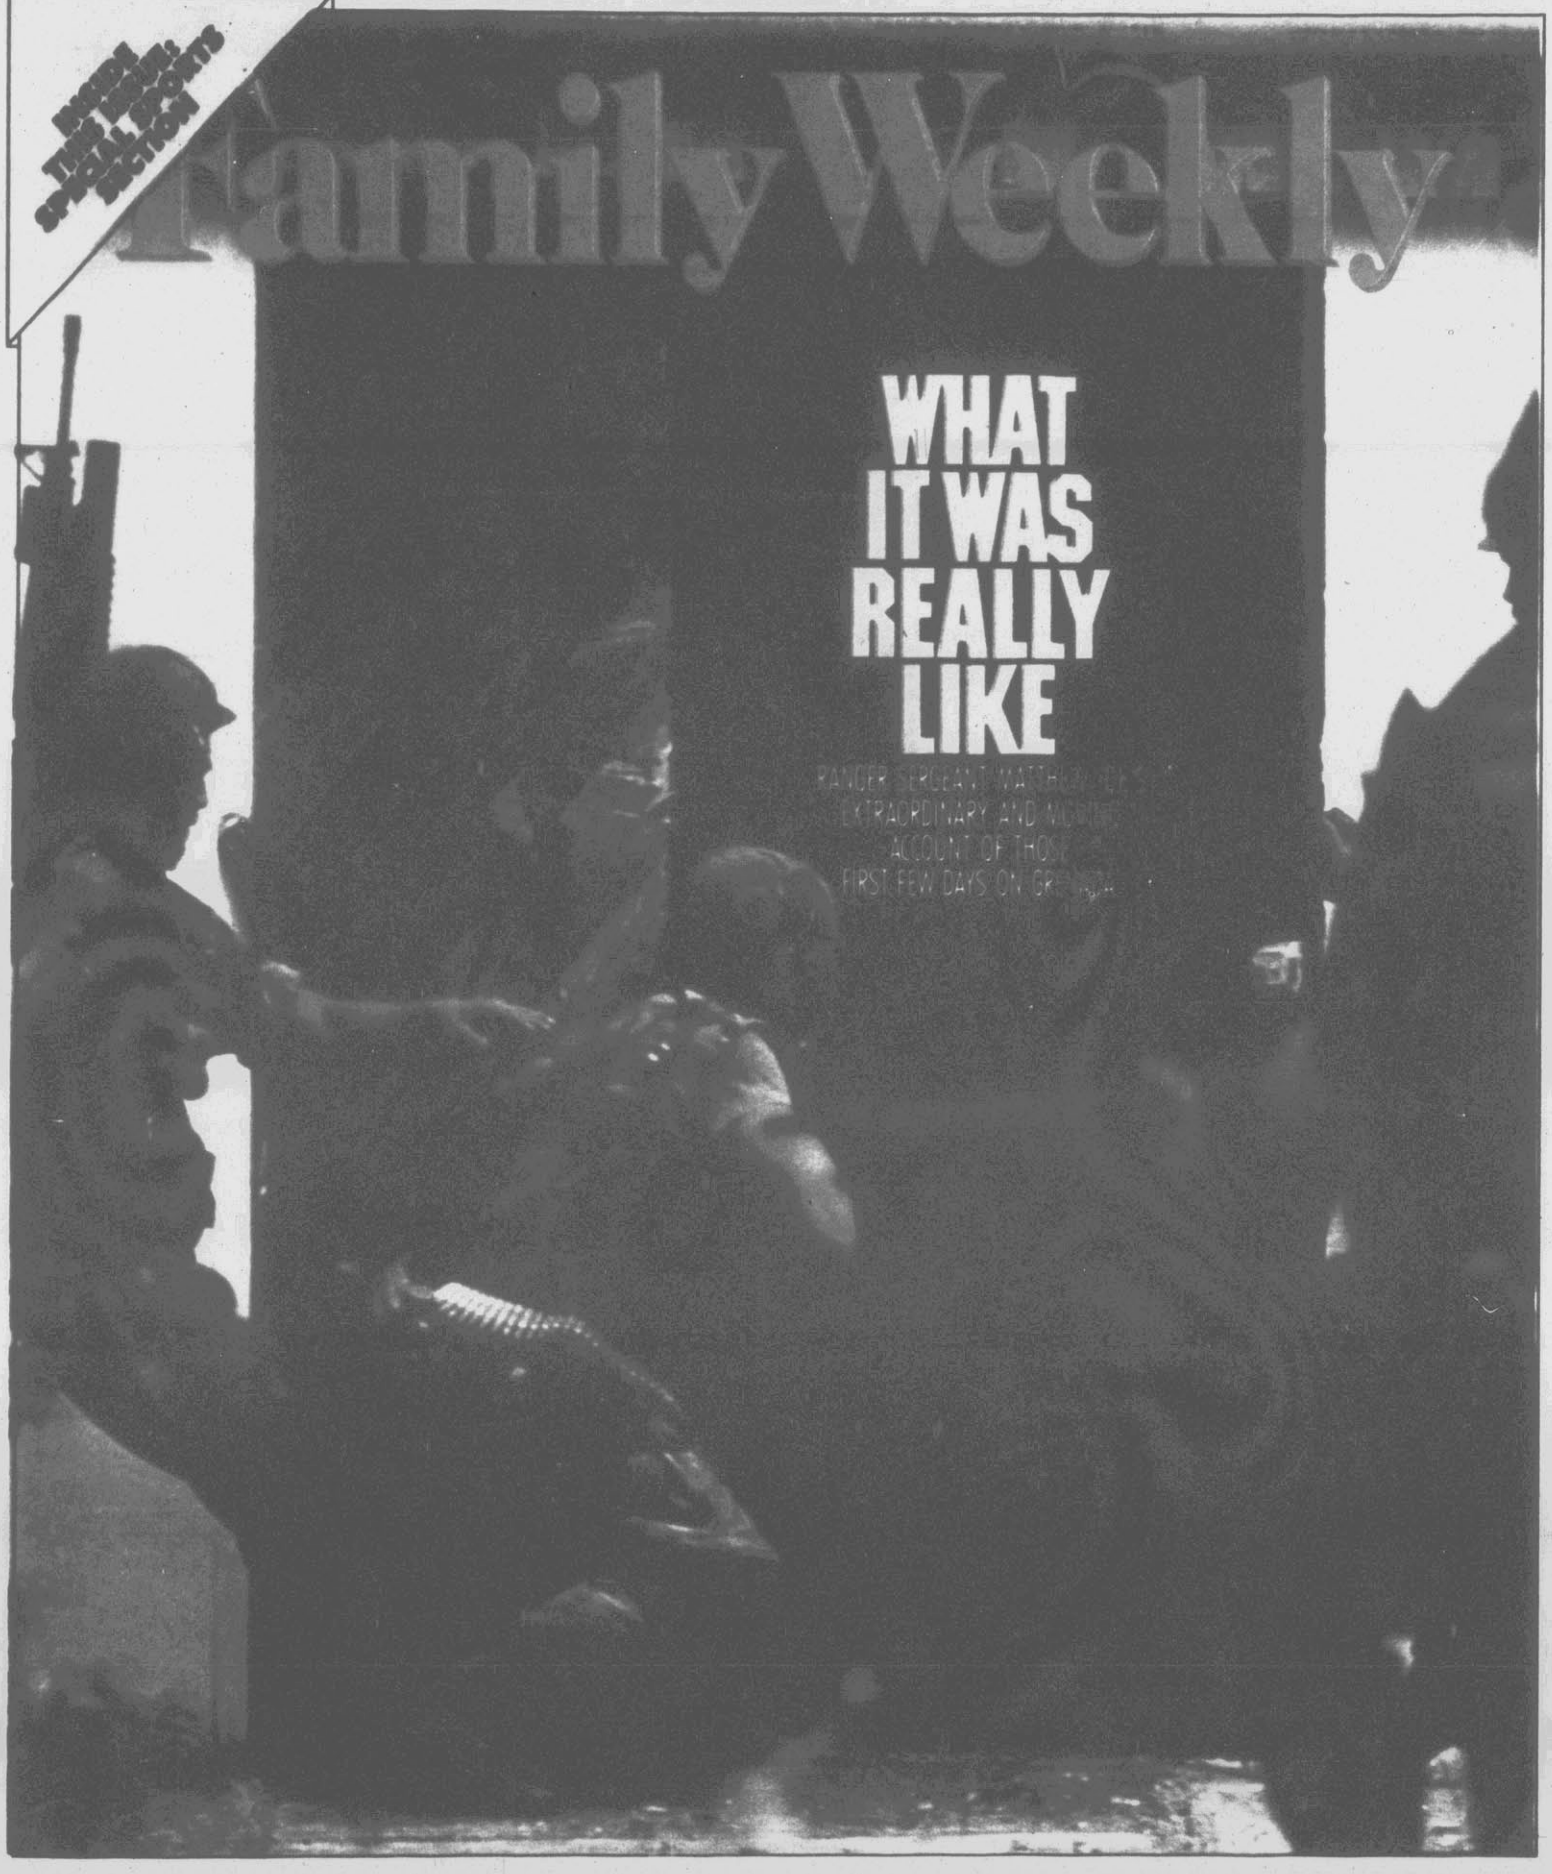
RANGER SERGEANT MATTHEW [illegible]'S EXTRAORDINARY AND MOVING ACCOUNT OF THOSE FIRST FEW DAYS ON GR[illegible]



HEADLINERS

CAINE: SHE PREFERS HER ROLE AS WIFE

Michael Caine, who by dint of his performance in Alfie has become the most famous cockney in the world next to Eliza Doolittle, would like to pair his Golden Globe award for Educating Rita with an Academy Award. "People who say it's not important to win an Oscar have already won one," says Caine, who's been twice nominated for the honor (Alfie, 1966; Sleuth, 1972). "What's important to me as an actor is acknowledgement by my peers, because they know what it takes." He and his wife, ex-model Shakira, who had a tiny role with Caine in The Man Who Would Be King and swore she'd never appear in another movie, live in the Beverly Hills home the late Barbara Hutton built for her late car-racing son, Lance Reventlow. "Shakira's a great hostess," says Caine, "and I'm a great cook."

When Joan Rivers and Nancy (famous for Rhoda and those Bounty ads) Walker approached playwright Neil Simon about starring in a gender-reversed version of The Odd Couple, "Doc" was so intrigued by the idea that he did a special rewrite. But along came the show-biz bugaboo of "artistic differences," and odds seemed better than even that this new Odd Couple would never make it to the footlights. But now Rita Moreno and Sally Struthers are said to be interested in the show, which is aiming for an October opening on Broadway, after a tryout in Washington.

Model-turned-actress Lauren Hutton, age 40, may ruefully call herself "the oldest pretty face around" and "the Bette Davis" of the modeling industry. But fellow mannequin Isabella Rossellini (daughter of the late Ingrid Bergman) thinks her "advanced" years (she's all of 31) have actually helped her. "I think it's because of my age," adds Rossellini, who is the ex-wife of director Martin (King of Comedy) Scorsese and is now married to male model John Weidemann. "Perhaps photographers simply needed an older, more sophisticated person."

BURTON: DRESSED DOWN

Kate Burton, who starred last year in a Broadway revival of Alice in Wonderland and is now appearing on the Great White Way in Doonesbury, may have aspirations to be a star like her father, Richard, but she has no dreams of being a fixture on the best-dressed list. "It's exhausting being a fashion plate," she points out. "Good clothes, like good parts, don't just drop in your lap. You have to go out and look for them."

That was no parking-lot attendant standing in front of the entrance to the Department of Transportation garage recently. That was the Transportation Secretary, Elizabeth Hanford Dole (her husband is Senator Robert Dole, R-Kan.), making sure employees had their seatbelts fastened. Their reward for compliance: windshield scrapers and Frisbees.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's romance with Barbra Streisand appears to be off. During a recent visit to Washington, D.C., he showed up at the Canadian Embassy with a new leading lady on his arm: Margot Kidder. Although the embassy tried to downplay the date by implying that the Canadian-born Kidder was there out of loyalty to the maple leaf, someone who saw them together said the 35-year-old actress wouldn't let the 64-year-old Prime Minister out of her sight. Trudeau, of course, is still married to Margaret. Though she wants a divorce, Pierre refuses because of his Catholic background.

Carson Productions head John McMahon says his company has gotten the go-ahead from Yoko Ono to make a three-hour TV movie on the life of John Lennon. "What mattered to Yoko," explains McMahon, "was that we wouldn't exploit this, that we'd make it honest. It's a love story, and although it may have been set against a tumultuous relationship, still in the end it was good."

ONE U.S. SOLDIER'S MOVING ACCOUNT OF THOSE FIRST FEW DAYS ON GRENADA

BY TONY SCHERMAN

Matthew Ide, 21, is a sergeant in the Second Battalion, 75th Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash., known as the Rangers. In the early morning of October 25, 1983, he parachuted onto the island of Grenada. In three days, he took part in three Ranger missions: occupying the new airstrip at Port Salines; evacuating about 200 American medical students from a dormitory at Grand Anse Beach; and participating in an assault on the Point Calivigny barracks. A total of 18 American soldiers were killed; 91 wounded.

For Ide, Grenada was an initiation into combat. He was a 12-year-old in Lake George, N.Y., when U.S. troops left Vietnam, the last American battlefield. Ide joined the Rangers, the highly trained, elite Army corps founded in 1975, after graduating from high school in 1980. Proud of his training, he was nonetheless painfully uncertain of how he would respond to combat.

Matthew Ide's story, which he tells us himself, is not about issues of national and international debate — whether the invasion was right; why the media's entry was forcibly delayed; what the Cuban presence meant. This is Grenada through the eyes of a 21-year-old who had never heard of the tiny island until last October, whose first glimpse of it was through the glow of tracer bullets.

The story starts as a C-130 transport plane prepares to drop a group of Rangers onto their Caribbean destination, and it ends on another plane, headed back to the United States three days later. The specialized, exacting missions that the Rangers train for were accomplished quickly. "Under these particular circumstances, we got out early," says Ide. "Next time, who knows how long we'll be in."

Sergeant Ide's story:

Jean-Louis Atlan/Sygma

C-130's are known to be pretty ear shattering, so there wasn't much conversation. But I had a good friend with me, Sgt. James Currie, and we talked a bit. Some last-minute details, last-minute jokes. Trying to keep our minds moving. A little bit about the operation itself; and the jokes were barely worth telling. Just anything to keep from being too scared. Any time you're in danger, you have to take it a little lightly.

Some people will always say they're not scared. For every one like that, there are 99 others to tell you they're lying. Being scared doesn't mean you're afraid. It means you realize there's a danger. And if you don't recognize the danger, it just means you're stupid. You take the fear, you register it, then you push it aside and go on with whatever you have to do.

So I'm not ashamed to admit that I was pretty scared that day, not having seen combat before. It wasn't so much "Am I going to get injured? Am I going to die?" as "How am I going to react?" You can go through as much training as you want, and yet you're always aware that the other guy is not shooting real bullets. And people can say, "Well, if I ever get in there, I'll be brave; I'll do this, I'll do that." But who knows? You could just freeze up.

The American plan called for some 500 Rangers to secure a foothold at the airstrip for a force of 5,000 members of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C. One 82nd member who, to Ide's surprise, would show up later in Grenada was his 25-year-old brother, Douglas, who is serving in the division's public affairs office.

Generally speaking, Grenada's southern half was to be taken by Rangers and 82nd troops. A force of Marines, based at a flotilla anchored just off the island, was to secure the north. In addition, Navy Seals were to capture the Governor General's House at St. George, the capital.

When Ide and fellow Rangers were briefed at a stop-off point, American intelligence had underestimated the Cuban-Grenadian resistance. (Said a State Department official later, "It came too close to our worst-case scenario.") As the C-130's flew in over Point Salines, they were met by a hail of anti-aircraft fire, and when the Rangers jumped, it was through machine-gun and rifle bullets.

According to what we believed at the time, we really didn't think the Cubans were going to fight back. We hoped we could just go down there and have a show of force. Well, while we were still in the aircraft, they started firing everything they had.

Being under fire in a plane is really the scariest of all. You're not on your own; you can't fire back. You have nothing to say about your life. Every-

We had such heavy rucksacks, the parachute harness was so tight; I was miserable in that plane. Just before I jumped, the red light came on, which means they're supposed to stop sending jumpers out the door. But I went anyway, and so did Sergeant Currie, right behind me. We were flying toward the enemy; if too many more people went out, they would've landed right where the enemy was, which wasn't exactly what we wanted.

We jumped from 500 feet — half the height we usually do on training missions. The leap itself was really nothing; most of us had made a number of them. Once your chute opens, you know everything's O.K. If it doesn't, well, we didn't have any reserve chutes anyway! Our commander figured there wasn't a whole lot of sense in taking them at 500 feet. You've already fallen a couple of hundred feet before you know if your main chute's opened, and then it takes 400 feet for the reserve to deploy. So it was a little weird. Normally, you put your hands over your reserve when you jump. As I went out the door, I put my hands there — nothing. And usually, when your chute opens, you look up to check for holes. Because I had no reserve, if there were any holes, I didn't want to know; I didn't even look.

I felt naked, but not so much because I was lacking a reserve, but because of something else: all the bullets flying in the air. There you are, hanging underneath a parachute. As low as we jumped from, the only thing I could think was, "I'm in the air too long." I concentrated on looking straight down, making sure I wasn't going to land on anybody or anything.

I ended up about midway up the airstrip. When I hit ground, I hardly felt it, even though I'd been falling faster than usual and pavement is pretty hard: I was thinking about other stuff.

I was carrying an M-16 with an M-203 grenade launcher that fires a 40-mm projectile. My team assembled with the rest of the company. Within 45 minutes, we had pushed out the perimeter and established sort of a basis for the aircraft to land with the 82nd.

Remember that what I wanted to find out about myself was how I'd react to combat? Well, that's exactly what it was as soon as I hit the ground — reaction. It was a relief knowing that, "Yeah, I'm not going to freeze. I'm going to remember what they taught me, everything I've learned."

As a matter of fact, the feeling of being in combat was exactly what I didn't expect. My whole idea was that you hit the ground, your adrenalin's flowing, you have enough strength to run up and down the airstrip with your rucksack if you have to, and everything's pretty hairy and scary. But it wasn't really that different from a training mission. I didn't have extra strength. The bullets were registering, but they didn't bother me all that much. I'm not saying it like, "Aw, bullets don't bother me"; it's just that they didn't really register. You have a job, and sitting and worrying about the bullets isn't going to help.

I wasn't thinking about the fact that there was more resistance than we'd expected: I was just surprised that it wasn't like I thought it would be. You're just reacting, performing. However much enemy was out there didn't matter to me, just that we had a mission to do and were going to get it done.

Randy Taylor/Sygma

"We treated the prisoners well; you could tell that they were surprised by this."

"It was the Cubans who put up the stiffest resistance."

Taking the airstrip was the most difficult action; it was where most of the opponent's defense was positioned. After that initial airborne assault, it was sporadic fire for the rest of the day. We kept it far enough away so planes could land. And we detained some prisoners. Watching them, I felt, "Well, they believe in what they're doing." We each had our own viewpoint. So we treated them well. They were surprised at how well; you could tell by the looks on their faces. Now, if I'd seen them hurt one of the people I was with, maybe I would've felt differently. I don't know.

That first night, we slept at the airstrip. I was tired, but we were all keyed up. It was only the first day, and there was still a lot to be done. At night I'd go over what I could've done better. Being a United States soldier, I just back up the commands that my commander in chief, the President, gives me. Second-guessing someone who knows more about the subject and is so much better informed would be useless, so I can't say that I questioned the whole idea of my being there.

I thought some about back home. I was hoping my parents weren't worried about me — by now they had heard about the Rangers' mission. It's actually worse for them, just wondering what's going on. At least I knew how much danger there was. And I wondered if my brother was on the island.

On Wednesday morning, the students from the True Blue campus of St. George's University School of Medicine, just a few hundred yards from the airstrip, were flown off the island, ending their ordeal. But four miles up the road were 200 more students isolated from their rescuers by a cordon of Cuban and Grenadian forces. Huddled in their rooms, the students could only wait. Finally, through the sound of gunfire in the afternoon, they heard a door being broken down and a voice shouting, "Friendly forces!"

It was a quick operation. We learned about the bunch of American students that wasn't at the main campus, but further up at this place called Grand Anse. When we got a little intelligence on it, we went ahead and performed a helicopter assault on the beach at Grand Anse Bay.

The biggest advantage was that the people defending it thought we would hit them by coming up the road, marching through the island. They were not expecting us to come in airmobile from the beach, so they were facing the wrong way. Plus, they were positioned a little ways off to give themselves room to fall back. That helped us; with the air support we had, they couldn't come back to hit us.

We secured the building, this old hotel being used as a dorm. One group went in and got the students out. We held the hotel long enough for the helicopters to evacuate everyone; then they came back for us. Get in and out.

I didn't talk to any of the students — it was just get 'em on the aircraft, load 'em up. When we got back to the airfield, they were there in one group, about 100 yards or so away. They started waving to us and yelling. It made us feel real good.

By this time, the heat was starting to slow us down. After two days, it was all starting to show.

As far as the fighting goes, as soon as we started moving out against the enemy after taking the airstrip, a lot of them just threw down their weapons. Most of the Grenadian soldiers didn't really believe in what they were fighting for anyway. It was the Cubans that put up the stiffest resistance.

The "buddy system" isn't a dumb way of talking about how we worked — we have a saying, "Never go anywhere without your Ranger buddy. I'd link up with one other man and stay together. Maneuver up to a position and keep it. Always with one guy there to protect your backside."

On the third day, our commanders told us we were going home. We were getting all happy, and I was talking to some people. Some guy from the 82nd came walking up; I didn't pay attention to him, and it turned out to be my brother Doug! He was about to go off and cover the 82nd for public affairs. He knew I was there and had come looking for me. Because of security reasons, I wasn't allowed to tell him anything; we just talked about whether or not I was O.K. But when he walked away, I didn't like leaving one of my family down there. I just would have felt better staying with him.

Which is how it turned out. We were starting to unload our ammunition, and the company commander wanted the chaplain to say a few words. Just before the chaplain could open his mouth, the first sergeant came over and said, "Men, grab your grenades. We're going back in." The chaplain never got to say a word.

By now, photographs of American students hugging the Tarmac back in the U.S.A. were already displayed on newsstands around the world. But the fighting wasn't over. Matthew Ide's battalion was sent into the Point Calivigny barracks, a Cuban military-training compound. Three of Ide's comrades, happily getting ready for departure, would never leave Grenada.

It was almost worse than the initial feeling of seeing combat — here was everyone saying, "We made it, it's done, we lived!" and all of a sudden it's, "You haven't made it yet."

Calivigny was where three helicopters crashed and our battalion lost three people. The helicopters went in a little bit fast. Second bird to go in, the pilot was shot. He lost control, of course, and crashed into the one already on the ground. The third pilot came in, saw everything and tried to avoid it. But he slid into a ditch and crashed. We had quite a few injuries.

Of the three men killed, I knew two. Waiting for the first group of birds to come back, we'd seen only five returning; eight had gone over. Everybody just looked at each other and said, "There's some reason why three of those birds didn't come back," and we didn't like it. It really prepared us for the worst — we didn't know that only one had gone down because of enemy fire. When we flew in, all I could think of was how much I wanted to get out of the helicopter. I just kept looking at the ground. As soon as I could, I jumped out of there.

By this time, we'd had some more people come down, so I was in charge of a squad of three. The resistance wasn't what we'd expected. They'd managed to shoot down that helicopter, but there weren't as many of them as we thought there'd be. Most of them had already moved out. My squad secured our section of the compound and got into position. It was getting dark, so we waited for morning or a counterattack, whichever came first. I was glad we hadn't lost more people. The Rangers are very close-knit; I felt bad for the three guys and I didn't like to lose them.

Morning came, and they carried out what they could salvage from the three helicopters. All the wounded had already been transported, so when the birds came back it was us they picked up. We were told — again — that we were going home. And even then, Sergeant Currie and I said to each other, "We're not saying anything until we're in the air."

But the plane took off. Everyone was still keyed up; we were so overjoyed that we'd performed and shown that the Rangers aren't overrated, that we're the best soldiers in the Army today. Personally, I just felt good: I'd reacted the way I'd been trained, and I hadn't lost any real close friends in combat.

At first I didn't really think back to the three days. Today it comes back sometimes. The strongest memory is actually three different experiences combined: waiting to parachute in; waiting to hit Grand Anse Beach; and preparing to hit the Calivigny compound. Just a feeling of wanting to get off that aircraft. That's where you had time to think about the danger you'd been in.

I used to go home on leave a lot. I figured my parents are getting up there in age and you want to see them whenever you can. Now I realize that just because they're older doesn't mean they'll be the first to go. As young as I am, in reality I'm just as vulnerable. In the work I'm doing, you get put into a situation where it doesn't matter how young you are.

I called home as soon as I could, which was when I got back to Fort Lewis. A few days before we'd gone into Grenada, I'd written a letter to my mother. It went something like, "I'm just around here doing the same old thing, . . ." stuff like that. So when I finally got to phone them, I just said, "Well, what's up?" — joking as if nothing had happened. FW

Introducing the new R-Series Riding Mowers.

Until now, if you wanted to buy an economy rider, you had to settle for economy features. But this year, John Deere introduces the R70 and the electric-start R72, two solid economy riders that are built with traditional John Deere quality.

Each comes with several features you won't find on competitive riders. And each is built with an attention to detail that'll keep them running for years, and your lawn looking well groomed.

So if you want to save on a riding mower, but you don't want to sacrifice comfort, convenience, performance or reliability, take a look at the new R-Series riders at your nearby John Deere dealer. Because if you can afford a riding mower, you can now afford the best.

Special introductory offer at participating dealers: $50 off the purchase price of a new R70 or R72 Riding Mower. Offer ends May 31, 1984.

Amazoy withstands active kids and cookouts. Gives you time to relax since it needs little water and cuts mowing two thirds.

GRASS SEED WILL NEVER GROW A LAWN LIKE THIS—DROUGHT & WEAR RESISTANT!

By Jack T. Johnson, Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow ... until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn"...is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in...Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

LAWN WATERED ONLY ONCE

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn —nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick, rich, luxurious, established Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long.

FOR SLOPES, PLAY AREAS, BARE SPOTS

FREE! UP TO 1000 AMAZOY PLUGS JUST FOR ORDERING NOW

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS—PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

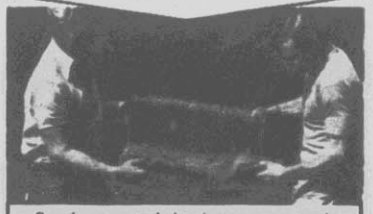
Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds—from part shade to full sun. Goes off its green color after killing frosts. Begins regaining its green color at the time when the temperature in the spring is consistently warm. This, of course, varies with climate. Easy planting instructions with order.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed: like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills. Save time, work, money. Plug in Amazoy.

TWO GROWN MEN CAN'T PULL IT APART



So deep-rooted is Amazoy . . . it grows into practically indestructible turf. Amazoy thrives in porous, sandy soil, "builder's soil"—even salty beach areas! Beauty is but one advantage of Zoysia Grass. It's also so vigorous and rich it thrives in soils where lesser grasses have failed you repeatedly. Start your Amazoy lawn this Spring, and never re-seed your lawn again!

WEAR RESISTANT

When America's largest University tested 13 leading grasses for wear resistance, such as foot scuffling, the Zoysia (matrella and japonica Meyer Z-52) led all others.

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cookouts, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it—or themselves.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS... FREE WITH ORDERS OF 1000 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

CUTS YOUR WORK, SAVES YOU MONEY

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement...ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by ⅔.

YOUR OWN SUPPLY OF PLUG TRANSPLANTS

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Govt., released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

SITTING PRETTY

HOW TO FIND THE RIGHT CARE-GIVER

By Carolyn M. Sedgwick

If you're a working parent, a most important person in your life is your child's care-giver — whether an in-home sitter or an outside contractor. Like any significant partnership, this one has to be nurtured if it is to work well for all involved.

Ideally, the relationship's foundation will be laid when the care-giver is hired. You'll want to choose carefully, bearing in mind your child's age and needs, as well as your personal and family requirements.

• Decide what kind of arrangement you want: a sitter who comes into your home; individual or group care in a sitter's home; or a child-care center. Your decision will be based on individual preference, availability and cost, but, says Stevanne Auerbach, founder and director of the Institute for Childhood Resources in San Francisco, the most important feature of the care should be "a warm emotional climate."

Pat Redding

• Screen candidates by telephone first. Inquire about previous training and experience, and be sure to get professional references for the type of help you choose. (If an individual is just starting out, ask for personal recommendations.) Then follow up.

• Visit potential care settings and match what you see against your state's regulations, if any, for such facilities. (Check the phone book under county or city listings for Child Care, or Child Care Licensing, or call the child welfare agency.) Most states require a minimum of one adult for each six children, a lower ratio for infants. But don't assume that regulating agencies are able to detect all violators.

• Investigate safety features. Ask where cleaning supplies and medicines are kept; they should be locked up well out of children's reach. Look into food preparation and storage spaces. Are play areas clean, secure and spacious enough? Are care-givers prepared to handle common emergencies? Make sure bathroom and sleeping areas are sanitary and comfortable.

• Interview care-givers in person to get a sense of their values, and be sure to introduce your child to see how they interact. Are the sitter's ideas about discipline compatible with your own? Will he or she be able to meet other requirements, such as getting your child outside each day, answering questions, feeding him properly?

• Make all arrangements formal. Ruby Brunson, director of a subsidized child-care program for the California State Department of Education, recommends that you "get a contract so there will be no misunderstandings to jeopardize your relationship. Ask about fees, hours, rules and programs. Find out if substitute care is available. Which holidays does your sitter take off? What are the policies about overtime and rules about caring for sick children? If your care-giver doesn't offer a contract, take notes during the interview and put all the information in writing later with a copy for her."

Once you've hired someone, you'll have to work hard to maintain understanding and a good relationship. Allow extra time each day to talk to the sitter. "Keep her updated about any physical or emotional upsets that might affect your child's behavior," suggests Melody Kee, a working mom and licensed clinical social worker. A baby who had a fretful night, for example, may need more sleep the following day.

Be extra sensitive to the sitter's needs. "Relieve her on time," urges Kee, "or phone if you'll be delayed." And don't forget to praise the little extras that the care-giver provides.

Sometimes, despite all your efforts, the relationship won't work out. If you have any serious doubts about the situation, by all means investigate immediately. Talk to your child, if he's old enough, as well as to other children and their parents if you have group care. Pay attention not only to what the child says, but to how he acts. Watch for signs of physical or emotional distress — reversion to bedwetting, thumbsucking, nightmares or withdrawal. If you suspect a problem, tell other parents who use the same person or center.

With a lot of attention and a little luck, you'll be able to find the kind of care that lets you go off to work with a clear mind, knowing your child is happy and safe. FW

Kills Every Roach Or Double Your Money Back

(Atlanta, Georgia) —

Answer: Roach Kill works. Period. Its formula is 99.5% effective as proven in tests at a leading university.

In contrast, eight well known brands of spray insecticides flunked the same scientific tests. They failed to kill a high number of roaches in heavily infested areas. One of these smelly sprays actually failed to kill any roaches at all!

Question: What is Roach Kill?

Answer: It's an odorless white powder. Roach Kill is applied in seconds from a squeeze bottle behind appliances and in other out-of-the-way areas.

Question: Frank, how does Roach Kill work?

Answer: The secret is in the fact that it's odorless. Roaches can't smell it, so they don't avoid it like they avoid smelly spray insecticides. Instead, they walk right over it. They pick up a little bit on their legs and carry it back to their hidden nests in the walls. There, Roach Kill wipes out the whole colony that breeds new roaches.

Question: How long does it last?

Question: What is your full guarantee and how does it work?

Answer: Roach Kill is so incredibly effective that it has a credibly effective that it has a double-your-money-back guarantee. Roach Kill is guaranteed to wipe out every roach in the house or apartment with one treatment or I'll send the customer double his money back.

All a customer has to do is return the empty bottle with a note that he saw even one single roach after trying it according to the simple directions.

Question: How can readers order Roach Kill?

Answer: To order now, call toll-free 1-800-554-1800 Operator 951 for Visa or Mastercard orders. Or simply write your name and address on a piece of paper plus the words: "Send me Roach Kill." Mail the paper with a check for $9.95 plus $2.00 shipping and handling to the following address: FC & A, 23 Eastbrook Bend, Dept. VFW-3A, Peachtree City, GA 30269. It's that easy. I'll ship your order fast, so you can prove to yourself that it really works!

P.S. Extra bottles are only $9.95 each with no extra shipping. Two bottles are only $19.90 + $2.00 shipping. Order extra bottles for garages and basements.

The Ladies' Home Journal Centennial Doll

EMILY

Inspired by the very first doll ever featured by the Ladies' Home Journal, an heirloom doll of hand-painted bisque porcelain, beautifully costumed in rich velvets and delicate lace.

Advance Reservation Deadline: March 31, 1984.

Since 1884, we've been bringing fashion, news and insights to American women everywhere. And today, we are proud to still be one of America's best-loved magazines.

Now, to celebrate our 100th anniversary, we at the Ladies' Home Journal are pleased to announce the issue of a unique commemorative. A limited edition centennial doll which we believe will be of special interest to doll collectors everywhere.

Inspired by the very first doll ever featured by the Journal, "Emily—The Ladies' Home Journal Centennial Doll" is a creation as engaging as it is lovely. One which combines the charm of that gentler, bygone era with the special significance of an important anniversary issue.

Exquisitely handcrafted in a time-honored tradition

Fashioned in the tradition of the famous nineteenth-century bisque collector dolls, this beautiful new creation carries the dollmaker's art to a level of perfection rarely encountered today. For, like those cherished dolls, "Emily" is sculpted with meticulous attention to each and every detail of her hand-painted bisque porcelain head and hands. Costumed in a hand-tailored dress of consummate elegance, carefully designed to authentically re-create the fashions of 1884.

From the lush velvet bow atop her flowing brunette hair . . . to the party frock, tailored of rich forest green velvet, edged with delicately embroidered lace . . . right down to her cotton stockings and high-button shoes . . . "Emily" is the very vision of loveliness. All dressed up in her party best to celebrate the occasion.

Attractively priced

Although you might expect to pay much more for a collector doll of comparable size and quality, "Emily" is modestly priced at $125. And, in keeping with its important commemorative status, this centennial doll will be issued in a single limited edition, available only during this anniversary year. After December 31, 1984, the doll will never be offered again.

FRANKLIN HEIRLOOM DOLLS

Each imported doll will be crafted for us by Franklin Heirloom Dolls. And, in the tradition of the finest collector dolls, "Emily" will bear both the distinguishing mark of Franklin Heirloom Dolls and the legend "Ladies' Home Journal Centennial 1984." In addition, each doll will be accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to its status as a limited edition centennial year issue.

Wherever you choose to display her, "Emily" will make a charming addition to your home. And an important one as well. For, here is a limited edition doll of unusual significance. A beautiful tribute to 100 years of the Ladies' Home Journal—and a collector doll possessing all the qualities of a future heirloom.

No payment is required now. But your application should be returned to the Ladies' Home Journal, c/o Franklin Heirloom Dolls, Franklin Center, Pa., by March 31, 1984.

GREEN WITH ENVY

A GOOD WAY TO CELEBRATE

By Marilyn Hansen

Ah, begorra. There's nothing more likely to set Irish — and other — eyes a-smiling than a home-cooked meal featuring favorites from the Emerald Isle. Our potato (of course) cakes are easy to prepare; our stuffed cabbage makes a terrific St. Paddy's Day main course — and that's no blarney.

STUFFED WHOLE CABBAGE WITH CORNED BEEF

1 large cabbage
1¼ teaspoons salt, or to taste
2 tablespoons unsalted butter or margarine
½ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup finely chopped celery with leaves
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
2 cups finely chopped cooked corned beef
2 cups diced cooked potatoes
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1½ teaspoons caraway seeds

1. Remove coarse outside leaves from cabbage. Place cabbage in a large kettle with water to cover and 1 teaspoon of the salt. Cover, heat to boiling, then reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes.

2. Remove cabbage, drain well and cool slightly. Carefully peel back 6 outside leaves. Using sharp paring knife, cut out center of cabbage from the top, making a hole about 4 inches wide and 3 inches deep. Sprinkle cavity with ¼ teaspoon salt. Finely chop the removed cabbage, reserving ½ cup.

3. In large skillet, melt butter. Add onion and stir for 5 minutes, or until tender. Add celery, parsley, corned beef, potatoes, remaining ½ teaspoon salt, pepper, caraway seeds and reserved chopped cabbage. Mix well and pack into cavity of cabbage, mounding firmly. Reshape the turned-back leaves to cover opening.

4. Wrap cabbage well in cheesecloth. Place filled-side up on rack in a large kettle or stockpot. Hold in place securely if necessary, by tying with cord to handle of kettle. Add 1 inch of boiling water to kettle, cover and steam over medium heat for 30 to 40 minutes, or until fork tender.

5. Remove from kettle, unwrap, and cut into large wedges to serve. Makes 6 servings

POTATO CAKES

3 tablespoons unsalted butter, margarine or solid shortening
2 cups unsifted self-rising flour*
¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste
1½ cups mashed potato
¼ cup milk
Caraway seeds

1. In large bowl, cut butter into the flour and salt, using a pastry blender or two knives. Preheat oven to 450°.

2. Stir in mashed potato and milk, making a soft dough. Turn dough out onto a well-floured board, roll or pat to 1-inch thickness and cut into rounds about 3 inches across. Sprinkle some caraway seeds on top of each.

3. Place rounds on lightly greased baking sheet and bake for 20 to 30 minutes.

4. Serve hot, split across the middle and spread with butter. Marmalade, preserves or honey make a fine accompaniment. Makes about 8 cakes

*Self-rising flour unavailable? Substitute 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda and ½ teaspoon salt for each cup self-rising flour called for in recipe.

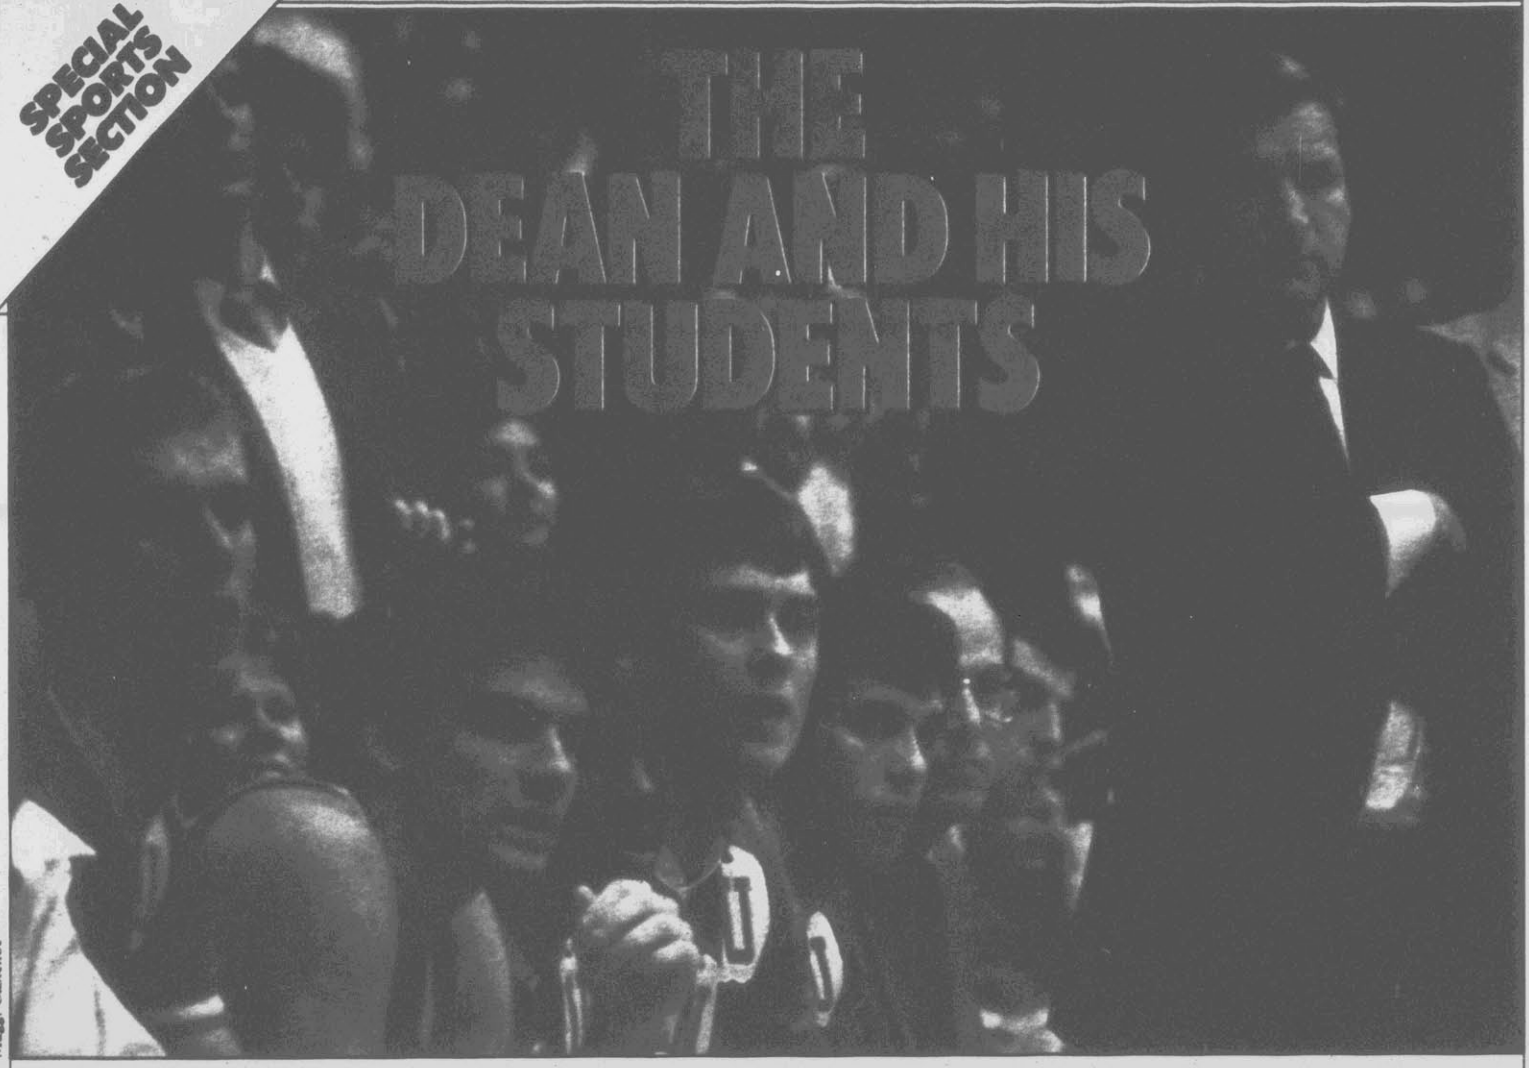
Maggi Castellon

SPECIAL SPORTS SECTION

THE DEAN AND HIS STUDENTS



Maggi Castelloe

By Timothy Pritchard

Chapel Hill, N.C. — Wing guard Michael Jordan, age 21, a 6-foot 5-inch junior from Wilmington, N.C., steals balls, blocks shots, rebounds and dunks as well as the taller players and usually scores in double figures. Matt Doherty, 22, a 6-foot 8-inch senior who plans an investment career on Wall Street, plays a brainy, blue-chip defense, leads the team in assists and averages better than 9 points per game. Two-time All-American Sam Perkins, 22, a 6-foot 9-inch shot-blocking prodigy and the team's leading rebounder, appears certain to join Jack Cobb (class of '26) and Phil Ford (class of '78) as the third three-time All-American at the University of North Carolina. Brad Daugherty, 18, is a 6-foot 11-inch sophomore center, an excellent shooter and perhaps the most improved player from last year. Point guard Kenny Smith, 19, a 6-foot 2½-inch freshman, averages 9 points a game and is a fast breaker who's as intelligent on court as he is off of it.

Though their abilities are considerable, the talents of the man who leads them just may be more awe-inspiring. He is Dean Smith, head coach since 1962 of the North Carolina Tar Heels, at this writing the top-ranked college basketball team in the nation. He keeps these young titans playing the game by the book, as well as cracking their own schoolbooks when they're off the court. It is not an easy job, but Dean Smith would not be likely to exchange it for any other.

This coach goes at his job in a businesslike fashion. In appearance he is almost invariably clean shaven and, on the court, almost always dressed in a dark business suit, pale blue shirt with French cuffs, subdued necktie and polished, slightly sporty dark boots. He reminds observers more of a Dwight Eisenhower (though with more nose and hair than Ike) than a pugnacious Patton. He is not a shouter, but a persuader: outwardly calm, graceful in movement.

In effect, his accomplishments speak for themselves. Last year he was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame one year after his team finished with a 32-2 record and won the National Championship. Looking back on a 28-8 season for 1983, Smith seems confident that the Tar Heels will reach the Final Four playoffs in Seattle at the end of this month. The Dean has 20 wins and no losses at this writing and as good a shot as he has ever had of staying at the head of his class.

With seven National Collegiate Athletic Association regional championships, 11 seasons with 25 wins or more, the National Championship in 1981-82, more than 500 games won and a winning percentage nearing .800, Smith is in the college-basketball pantheon now housing such gods of the round ball as Adolph Rupp of Kentucky, John Wooden of Indiana and U.C.L.A., and Phog Allen of Kansas, under whom Smith played and coached.

With all that, Dean works to de-emphasize the prevalent Vince Lombardi philosophy that "winning is the only thing." Insists Smith: "Our American culture is far more competitive than any other culture I have observed. We tend to toast 'winners' — whether it is in business or athletics — regardless of the methods used to become a 'winner.'

"Athletic competition as we know it produces what is called the 'winner' and the 'loser' in our society. Those terms certainly have different connotations that aren't good. The 'loser' and those associated with losing sometimes feel bad, and the 'winners' have external affirmation for the wrong reasons.

"There can be values learned through competition. But a total emphasis on winning versus participation is the problem. I am amazed that there are people who think God, the Creator, wants one team to win an athletic contest. One pastor wrote to say that God answered his prayers when North Carolina won over Georgetown.... But I don't think our Creator meant for one person or group to feel bad in order for another individual or group to feel superior.... Each human being has God's unconditional love."

It is a refreshing philosophy, given the intensity of competition in college basketball. And certainly Smith's record shows that he likes to win and knows how to do it. But colleagues and students agree that he dislikes taking bows for their successes. Says star guard Michael Jordan, "He puts his players first. He never takes the publicity. He gives credit to the team." Smith's locker-room style is a pleasing if rather unusual combination of family minister and management-efficiency expert. His assistant coaches — Eddie Fogler, Bill Guthridge and Ray Williams — seem cut from similar cloth.

For his part, Dean Smith professes a belief in the basic guiding principles of an enlightened Christian approach to ethical behavior. Until he was out of his teens, Smith and his parents and sister belonged to the American Baptist denomination in Emporia and Topeka, Kan. When, at the age of 26, he became an assistant basketball coach at North Carolina, he and two dozen like-minded friends started the first American Baptist Church in Chapel Hill. "This group felt strongly that the racial injustices, the closed-membership idea and several other problems of other churches necessitated this new church," he explains.

The move hardly hurt the reputation of Coach Smith in the American black community. "In Coach Smith I got a great friend for the rest of my life," says Phil Ford, '74 through '78, who holds the North Carolina scoring record and is now excelling as a Houston Rocket. "He made us believe that we were a family. When we won, we laughed. When we lost, we cried — together."

Practice makes the perfect family. This team leaves almost nothing to chance, using its practice sessions to hone their individual and group skills. For example, they use a special out-of-bounds play for late in the game in close situations. It is performed at almost every drill but only called on when the chips are down, perhaps three times a year. And it usually works, which is why they call it "Winner."

It is during those tense, end-of-the-game huddles that Coach Smith tries hardest to keep his young men loosened up. "Hey!" he'll call. "Isn't this fun?! Isn't this what you came here for? To get into a game that goes down to the last seconds. This is what it's all about. You can win it."

Highly regarded by coaching colleagues as a skilled tactician and strategist, Smith's approach to the game is methodical rather than emotional. He is likely to invoke mathematical principles in practice — studding them with innovations based partly on instinct and partly on careful observation of tens of thousands of games. He wrote a textbook in 1981 entitled Basketball Multiple Offenses and Defenses, which attempts to explain the mechanics of the game the way Pythagoras tried to explain the workings of numbers.

In fact, Smith and the entire team and staff abide by certain practical and general rules for team success:

• Fairness. At the University of North Carolina, which has the luxury of being able to get almost any talented high school player it wants, no phenomenal high school prospect is ever guaranteed a starting place on the first string team. "I say to the players," Smith explains, "'How can I tell you you're going to play and then you're on our team as a junior and I'm out telling some other freshman he is going to play? Phil Ford thought he was going to be 12th man, and Mitch Kupchak [now with the Los Angeles Lakers] thought he was going to be on the J.V. team.'"

• Loyalty and Unselfishness. "It is a coach's job," Smith says, "to take the talent he can get, no matter how great it is, and subjugate it for the sake of the team effort." Prima donnas tend to destroy loyalty and diminish the team's spirit and effort. One former player recalls Smith's words about being late, even by one minute: "The most selfish thing you can do is hold others up. You're putting yourself first and others after." Smith continues: "You may be the best player on the team, but you don't take those risky falling-away-from-the-basket-off-balance shots. You get it to somebody who can take a good shot. You shoot selfish shots, you sit down."

• Thinking on and off court. The student-athlete ideal is the touchstone of Dean Smith's coaching philosophies, and he sells this notion to high school athletes. Carolina recruiters carry his message across the land, telling potential Tar Heels that the university's athletes are encouraged, even prodded, to graduate "on time." Its basketball brochure points out with pride that during the Smith era 124 of 132 basketball lettermen have graduated; 59 have gone on to graduate degrees, including 13 lawyers, 10 doctors and one pastor. And 17 have played professional basketball, 26 in the N.B.A. and A.B.A.

• Defense. Smith has built the program around defense. Players have to play great man-to-man defense to win a game when they have a bad shooting night. The team's goal is to keep opponents to 50 points or below.

Many coaches will say what a complicated and difficult business coaching is. For some, being a psychiatrist or an oil millionaire or a movie star or a sheepherder might be easier. Yet a few young men and women want to earn their living coaching, and if they ask Dean Smith about it, he gives this advice: "If you're good at something and you like it, that's probably what you should do as a vocation. When they say they want to coach, I tell them I think it's a great profession. But 98 percent will not wind up in that profession; they start in it but they won't end in it.

"So I tell them all the bad things and the good things. My college coach once said there are too many heartbreaks in coaching. But I gave it a go anyhow. My dad was a coach. I saw him happy, so I said I'd go ahead and do it." FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

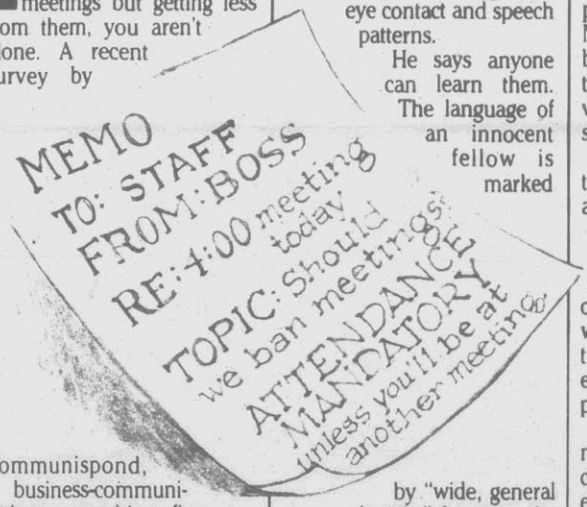
CONFERENCE STALLS

If you seem to be spending more time in business meetings but getting less from them, you aren't alone. A recent survey by Communispond, a business-communications consulting firm, shows that 67 percent of the executives questioned say they had to attend significantly more meetings last year than the previous year — and often to no good purpose. The report also indicates that more than 70 percent of these corporate employees considered many, "if not most," of the meetings a waste of time. The reason: They took place before sufficient planning and prior organization. Hmm. This calls for a meeting.



Bob Camp

THE LIAR'S HANDICAP

If John Reid and Associates had been around during George Washington's time, would the Father of our Country even have considered fibbing about a certain toppled fruit tree? Perhaps not, if you believe John Buckley, the director of the Chicago-based lie-detection firm. Buckley says there are plenty of easy ways to spot a liar: quirks of posture, degree of eye contact and speech patterns.

He says anyone can learn them. The language of an innocent fellow is marked by "wide, general denials," for example: "I didn't chop down anything," as opposed to the specific details of a guilty party: "I didn't cut down any cherry tree." By contrast, a liar will avoid eye contact or stare excessively; and he will not sit squarely facing forward. Stammers and rapid speech are also part of the profile.

"Of course, such clues are only indicators," says Buckley. "But good interrogators use these behavioral signals and add pressure." Gulp.

EYE CONTACT

Japan has already exported to the U.S. such business practices as participatory management. Now American workers are borrowing another idea from the Far East, one that motivates employees to complete specific projects.

Called the Daruma Sans, the concept takes the form of a plaster head that sits on the desk and stares at the worker as blankly as Little Orphan Annie. The worker paints in one eyeball (the right orbis) when a specific task is identified, and paints in the left eyeball when the task is completed.

This chilling gimmick has already caught the eye of executives at Aerojet Electrosystems Company in Azusa, Calif. Says a company spokesman, "If it gets to be mid-'84 and no left eyes have been painted in, our C.E.O. might question a few individuals."

WINNING STREAK

High school football coaches in Texas have established a nationwide reputation for excellence. It turns out that they're scoring real well in the paycheck department, too. According to a recent survey in Scholastic Coach magazine, coaches in Texas' District 4 (Abilene, Odessa, Midland area), pull down salaries between $37,000 and $43,000. Teacher-coaches nationally average $22,000. Unlike most other sweat-shirted whistle blowers around parts of the country, some District 4 coaches negotiate their own contracts. And while 98 percent of the nation's coaches are teachers who receive a stipend for their extracurricular activity, those in District 4 need no certification to rule the gridiron.

CAESAR SALAD

In Who Killed the Robins Family?, people are invited to read the book, sift through clues and figure out just whodunit for a prize of $10,000. Now there's "Decipher," a game that invites you to do some decoding, solve a puzzle and collect $100,000.

Good luck! Decipher's inventor, Warren Holland Jr., guarantees that you'll earn every one of those dollars: The game is based on a cipher code, a rudimentary example of which was the substitution key that Julius Caesar used in his letters to Cicero. In Caesar's code, a became d; b became e; c became f, etc., so that "Julius" would have come up "Mxolxv."

Bob Camp

Decipher is nowhere as straightforward. It consists of a black and gold box containing a small drawstring bag holding a 150-piece jigsaw puzzle. The box also contains detailed instructions, an entry blank, a set of rules and six murky clues. The jigsaw pieces have numbers printed on both sides; together the numbers say something in English, and the key to their message, according to Holland, can be found in almost any library.

The winner, if there is one, will be announced at the end of the month. If no such Mxolxv-like mind exists, Holland will issue six more clues and let the contest run for another year.

From anesthetic to X-rays

Your present coverage may only pay for hospital care. The Million Dollar plan provides coverage for hospital care, of course. And can pay for doctor and surgical fees. And intensive care treatment. Anesthetic. Blood and blood plasma. C.A.T. scanning. Heart pacemakers. Radiology. Respirators. Speech and physical therapy. X-rays. And much, much more!

The plan helps protect you and your family for covered sickness or injury in the hospital, recuperating at home, or in a convalescent facility.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with these below.

Differences: 1. Hair is different. 2. Beads are missing. 3. Skirt is shorter. 4. Collar is different. 5. Cap is different. 6. Rug is missing.

- HANG IN THERE! By perseverance the snail reached the ark, 'tis said. Or, as Josh Billings put it: "Consider the STEGOPA PATMS: its usefulness consists in the ability to stick to one thing till it gets there. Unscramble cap-letter words.

Postage stamp.

- Sum Fun! Add to any number its next consecutive number and nine. Divide by two. Subtract the number you started with and add 10. Answer's below.

Fifteen.

- Zoo's Who! Find an animal in each sentence: 1. I'll be around tomorrow. 2. Let's go at nine. 3. The bus came late. 4. He did all a man can do.

1. Bear. 2. Goat. 3. Camel. 4. Llama.

- Riddle-Me-This! On what days are candles made? On wick days. Why are soda clerks called Doc? Because they're fizzicians.

BAFFLING SQUARES!

Arrange 12 toothpicks to form four squares, as shown above. Now, challenge bystanders to pick up four of the toothpicks and to reposition them so that the formation will contain just three squares instead of the original four. How is it done?

Secret: Pick up toothpicks numbered 1, 3, 10, and 12, and use them to form a square at the upper right hand corner, where toothpicks 2 and 5 meet. The arrangement now will show three squares instead of the original four.

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

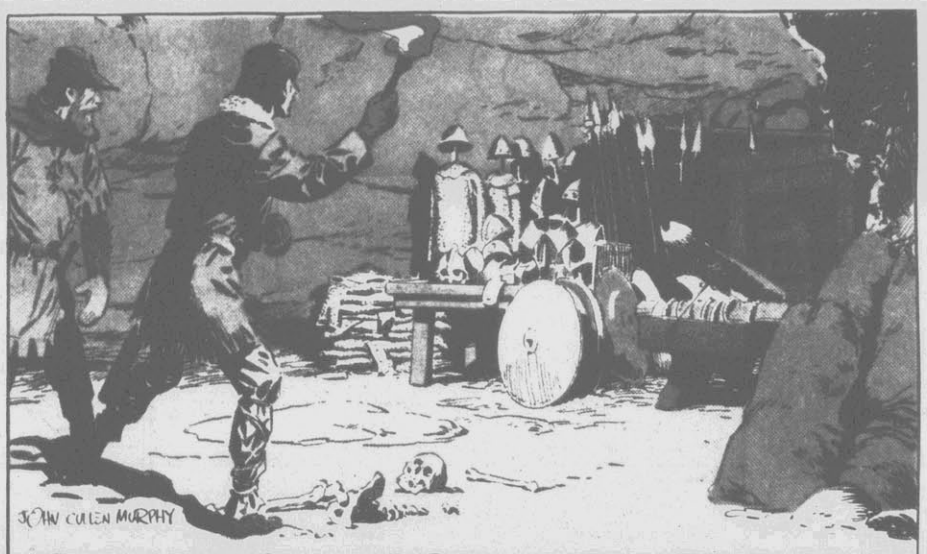
CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: TAKEN UNAWARES, WALDO IS FAST RETIRED. BUT VAL, TO HIS OWN SURPRISE, ELUDES EACH LETHAL BLOW. WHY DOES THE CUDGEL SO OFTEN MISS ITS MARK? THE ANSWER COMES IN A FLASH: LIKE HARES OR HORSES, THE CREATURE HAS LITTLE SENSE OF DEPTH. AN ILL-AIMED SWIPE PULLS THE BEAST OFF BALANCE AND VAL NOW DRAWS HIS BLADE.

A PAW PARRIES THE 'SINGING SWORD,' YET THE STEEL DRAWS BLOOD ALL THE SAME. THE BEAST GLOWERS WITH HATRED. ITS BREATH IS HOT.

BUT ITS FIGHT IS GONE AND THE BEAST YELPS IN RETREAT. PRINCE VALIANT TENDS TO HIS WINDED FRIEND. "WE WILL TRACK HIM LATER," SAYS VAL. "FIRST LET US SEE WHAT SECRET ERRAND BROUGHT UNINVITED VISITORS TO OUR REALM." AFTER MUCH SWEAT, THE BOULDER GIVES.

AS IT DOES, GHOSTLY GUARDIANS TAKE THE INTRUDERS BY SURPRISE. "SOMEONE IS TAKING NO CHANCES," SAYS VAL. FEW MEN VENTURE INTO THE VALLEY OF DEATH. NONE, COMING THIS FAR, WOULD DARE TRESPASS FARTHER. WHAT IS THERE TO HIDE? VAL PUSHES THE BONES ASIDE.



THE SIGHT IS AWESOME. A VAST ARSENAL HAS BEEN ASSEMBLED IN THE BOWELS OF THE EARTH, ENOUGH TO EQUIP AN ARMY. BUT WHOSE ARMY? WHERE WILL IT FIGHT? AND WHY? PRINCE VALIANT KNOWS ONLY THAT THE WEAPONS HAVE BEEN BROUGHT IN SECRETLY. IT IS TIME TO INFORM THE KING. ON THE JOURNEY HOME WALDO PICKS UP THE BEAST'S TRAIL.

"THE TRACKS LEAD TO CAMELOT, SIR VALIANT," THE MOUNTAIN MAN EXPLAINS. "WE ARE ALL OF US TAKING THE SAME PATH TO BED."
