Jones Is Endorsed By Education Groups

FARMVILLE — The re-election campaign of 1st District Rep. Walter B. Jones has received a boost in the form of prestigious endorsements from the national and North Carolina educational associations.

A $4,750 campaign contribution from the NAE and NCAE was presented to Jones here this morning by Annette McRae of Bethel, the director of the NCAE's District 15, and Mary Rose Stocks, the association's congressional contact through its Political Action Committee for Education.

"As a long time supporter of all educational legislation, I am deeply grateful for the unqualified endorsement of the NCAE, based on my 100 percent voting record in 1983, for which they seemed to be very grateful," Jones said today.

"I recognize that the association is a very powerful political force and I certainly welcome their support and hope to continue to justify their confidence," the Farmville Democrat said. (Please turn to Page 16)

More Snow, Record Cold In Many Areas

By The Associated Press

A Midwestern snowstorm dropped half a foot of snow in many areas from northern Missouri to the Dakotas today while record cold and wind in the Northeast made it feel like 50 degrees below zero in places.

Elsewhere, thunderstorms boomed across Texas with heavy rains, damaging winds and hail as big as 2 inches in diameter.

More than half a dozen cities east of the Mississippi River set record low temperatures for March 12, including Marquette, Mich., where it was 22 degrees below zero.

Other records were set in Sault Ste. Marie, Minn., minus-16; Erie, Pa., minus-1; Binghamton, N.Y., 1; Hartford, Conn., and Pittsburgh, Pa., 6; and Providence, R.I., 10.

Across northern Maine, the wind chill ranged between 30 and 50 degrees below zero.

The heaviest snow fell across northern and central Kansas. Osborne, Kan., measured 8 inches of snow, while Washington had 7 inches and Mankato 5 inches. Plattsburg, Mo., picked up 5 inches of snow.

Between 1 a.m. and 7 a.m., 4 inches of snow fell at Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo., with 2 inches at Lincoln, Neb., and Topeka, Kan.

Travelers advisories for snow and freezing drizzle were issued for

Rivals Desperate For Hart Setback

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Four Democratic presidential candidates foraged for votes in the South today after a debate in which the new front-runner, Gary Hart, was attacked as naive and inexperienced by rivals desperate to blunt his drive for the nomination.

Hart changed his schedule to spend an extra day campaigning in the South, and a poll taken Sunday showed him drawing even with Walter Mondale in Georgia.

In Columbus, Ga., today, Hart disputed Mondale's charge that there is no substance to the senator's new ideas and then resumed his attack on the former vice president as the representative of "special interests."

Hart had been scheduled to campaign today in Massachusetts, where polls say he has a strong lead going into Tuesday's presidential primary.

Alabama, Florida and Georgia also hold primaries Tuesday, and Mondale, John Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson also were concentrating their efforts there.

George McGovern left the region and flew to Massachusetts where he hopes to do well enough in Tuesday's primary to keep his candidacy alive.

Glenn, meanwhile, picked up an endorsement today from former Attorney General Griffin Bell, who served with Mondale in the Carter administration.

Bell said that as a conservative Democrat, "I don't see I have any other representative in the race right now."

After the 60-minute debate Sunday sponsored by the League of Women Voters in the Fox Theater in Atlanta, Hart, Mondale, Glenn and Jackson all said they were pleased.

"It should help," said Mondale.

"I thought it went exceptionally well," said Glenn. "I was very pleased with it."

"We did very well," said Jackson. "I'm impressed."

Hart brushed off suggestions that other four ganged up on him. "I thought it was a good exchange," he said.

Hart has won four straight contests entering "Super Tuesday," when nine states hold primaries or caucuses. His winning streak began with an upset victory in the New Hampshire primary and continued through Maine, Vermont and Wyoming. The Atlanta debate was the first candidate forum since the Colorado senator forged to the front of the Democratic field.

In Atlanta, a poll taken of 350 likely Georgia voters on Saturday and Sunday showed Mondale with 35 percent and Hart with 34 percent; with a margin of error rate of plus or minus 5 percent, the result was a virtual dead heat. Glenn had 13 percent and Jackson had 9 percent.

The poll was conducted by Atlanta-based Darden Research Corp for WXIA-TV in Atlanta. Half of those questioned were polled on Saturday, and the result from that day alone gave Mondale 37 percent and Hart 31 percent, with a plus or minus 7 percent margin of error.

"What we obviously see is that it's closed right up between Hart and Mondale," said pollster Claiborne Darden Jr.

Former front-runner Mondale, who still leads in the number of delegates he can claim, questioned during the debate whether there was any substance behind Hart's "new ideas" campaign.

"We don't elect momentum," said Mondale. "We don't elect images. We elect a human being."

Hart renewed his contention that Mondale is too committed to filling

Factions Bid For Lebanon Reform Plan

By HANNS NEUERBORG
Associated Press Writer

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Lebanon's opposing factions took sharply contrasting starting positions today in political reform proposals for the national reconciliation conference.

A working paper drafted by the rightwing Christian Lebanese Front coalition — envisaging a Swiss-style federal system for Lebanon — was promptly rejected by a key opposition leader, former prime minister Rashid Karami.

The Sunni Moslem, a leader of the opposition National Salvation Front, said his coalition would "not agree to any solution that would eventually divide Lebanon."

But Lebanon's beleaguered president, Amin Gemayel, said he hoped to announce "good news" about progress toward ending the civil war that has torn his country for nine years.

Protected by sand-bagged checkpoints, bulletproof screens, rolls of barbed wire and hundreds of police, the nine conference delegates and two observers, from Syria and Saudi Arabia, were to begin meeting this evening at the Beau Rivage Hotel in this Lake Geneva resort.

The start initially was scheduled for late morning, then rescheduled to accommodate the late arrival of the Syrian observer, Abdul-Halim Khaddam, the foreign minister, who was just promoted to the post of first vice president in a government shuffle by Syrian President Hafez Assad. But it appeared the conference would begin without him.

Syria, which has had troops in northern Lebanon for nearly nine years, supports the Shiite and Druse militias that have been fighting to oust Gemayel.

Sporadic fighting continuing today across the "green line" that divides Beirut into Christian and Moslem sectors, and Gemayel planned to address the inaugural meeting with what was expected to be a passionate appeal for peace and national unity.

"Work will start I hope for real peace, a peace of hearts, peace for people who deserve it," Gemayel said in a brief statement on arrival Sunday. "We will tackle the problems with lots of hope and I hope we will soon be able to announce good news."

The Maronite Christian president had cleared the path for the conference to resume when he yielded to Syrian pressure and scrapped the troop withdrawal accord with Israel — over which the last reconciliation conference fell apart in November.

The agenda for the conference remained undetermined, and it was not known how long the talks would last. But a priority was expected to be a strengthening of the cease-fire agreement that has thus far failed to halt rocket and artillery duels in Beirut and its suburbs.

Sweeping reforms of Lebanon's 40-year-old power-sharing system, based on the once-prevailing dominance of Maronite Christians in the Lebanese population, are another major objective of the talks.

But there were new indications this was likely to be a tedious task.

The Christian group's proposal provides for a federal system that would give autonomy to the individual states while retaining joint foreign, defense, economic and monetary policy as well as a common educational program.

Karami, a moderate Sunni Moslem widely regarded as a likely head of an eventual government of national unity, said the opposition would accept an administrative decentralization "but not a political one, like a federation, a confederation or cantons."

Karami said the opposition leaders "now have a common understanding," but declined to elaborate when asked whether this meant a joint proposal.

WATER

After reading the article in the Feb. 12 Daily Reflector about how water is so unavailable in the slum areas of Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, I decided I want to do something to contribute to clean, safe water for the people of the world. Who can lead me in making this contribution? L.T.

Hotline has information supplied by Dr. Peter Bourne, president of Global Water Inc. of Washington, D.C. which states that, although there is enough clean water for the people of the world, it's access to it that must be provided. Efforts are going on to provide handpumps where there is ground water, dams where rainwater must be trapped during rainy seasons, and better, more available sources where water must be carried great distances and bought at exorbitant prices. He gave as an example that, in the slum areas of Lima, Peru, it costs people a day's pay per week just to buy enough water to survive. Africa and Latin America are the areas most acutely in need of assistance in obtaining clean, safe water, he said, with much progress being made in India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Indonesia, where 50 percent of the people of the world who don't have access to clean drinking water live. India, he said, is currently producing 100,000 handpumps a year, which, if continued at this rate, will mean there will be one in every village before the end of this decade. He emphasized the importance of involving the people who use the handpump themselves in its installation and maintenance, so it will continue to be usable on and on, not just a dole that soon breaks down and becomes useless.

If you, or anyone, would like more information about the programs of Global Water and how to support its work, write Global Water, 2033 M Street, N.W., Suite 300, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

For a great spring-into-summer sweater set, try knitting this pair in a smooth synthetic with the look and feel of silky cotton. The V-neck pullover with short sleeves is striped in a fascinating lacy pattern stitch that is deceptively simple to do. But take your choice of plain or fancy / either sweater can be made without the pattern stitch or the lace stripes can be used on both.

To obtain directions for making the Summer Sweater Set in sizes 10 through 18, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-0311 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. K-0311 by sending a check or money order to Pat Trexler at the same address. Send $20 for sizes 10 through 14 and $23 for sizes 16 or 18. The kit price includes sufficient Lustresheen yarn for making both sweaters, full instructions and shipping charges. Please specify your choice of ming blue, jade, white or lilac.

Some people would say that I am a fanatic on the subject of gauge, but there simply isn't any way to get around it. It is the single most important subject for knitters and crocheters, and yet is the most often ignored!

Not only will your garments be misfits if you are off gauge, but you are also likely to run short of yarn if you knit more tightly than the designer of the garment you are making.

At one time, I owned a yarn shop and was amazed that the most frequent question I was asked was, "What size needle (or hook) do I need?" That is an unanswerable question until a sample swatch is made.

Although I, and most other writers on this subject, will tell you to make a 4-inch swatch to check your gauge, this often is not a large enough piece to be absolutely accurate.

However, as difficult as it is to convince people to make a swatch this size, it would probably be fruitless to insist on one any larger. But it is too easy to cheat on yourself with a small swatch. You can stretch it just a little or squeeze it in just a little and fool yourself that you are right on gauge.

Elizabeth Zimmerman, in her book "Knitting Without Tears" (published by Charles Scribner's Sons), has a theory that you can cast on the number of stitches required in your size for a back or front of a sweater and have just the right number for a cap! I have found this to be true.

So, instead of making just a small swatch, buy an extra skein or two of yarn and make a matching cap. Cast on the cap stitches first and knit for about 6 inches in the pattern for the garment. Now you can slip these stitches onto a strand of contrast yarn and measure the full width. Don't try to measure with them still on the needles.

If the piece is narrower than it should be, use larger needles for your garment; if it is wider, then use smaller needles. When you are satisfied that you have the correct needle size, you can set the partly finished hat aside and start your sweater, finishing the cap later.

I might suggest that you make up a few caps with each type of yarn you are likely to use, making permanent notes as to the size needle used and the resulting width before it is seamed.

Or perhaps you would prefer to make a scarf. To determine the number of stitches to cast on, just multiply the planned gauge by the number of inches required for the desired width. Write down all of this information on the needle or hook size and you will know what your usual gauge is with that type of yarn.

("Pat's Pointers: The Needle-point Handbook" by Pat Trexler has organized needlework instructions for easy crafting for beginners and veterans alike with a host of patterns to please every needlework enthusiast. To order this 200-page book, send $8.95 plus $1 postage and handling to "Pat's Pointers Needle-point Handbook," in care of this newspaper, 4400 Johnson Drive, Fairway, Kan. 66205. Dear Abby

Prescription May Help Problem Dry Up

DEAR ABBY: I think I can help "Dripping Wet in Pa.," who perspired so severely that she had embarrassing "rings" on her clothes that reached down to her waist.

I had the same problem and had to use two sets of dress shields at once, which weren't enough most of the time. At work I would make frequent trips to the restroom to stuff Kleenex under my arms!

I finally asked my doctor if he knew of anything to relieve excessive underarm perspiration, and he wrote a prescription for Drysol. Any pharmacist can make it up; the formula is in his pharmacist's book.

There are instructions to follow and a warning: People who have a sensitivity or allergy to aluminum chloride shouldn't use it. Also it shouldn't be used on recently broken, irritated or shaven skin.

I hope this helps. For me it was a miracle that changed my life!

DRY AT LAST IN ARIZONA!

DEAR DRY: I rarely recommend a product, but because so many readers wrote to praise Drysol, I feel compelled to do so. It's manufactured by Person and Covey Inc. in Glendale, Calif. 91201, and a doctor's prescription is required to obtain it.

DEAR ABBY: I know my husband loves me, but for some strange reason he seems to get pleasure out of scaring me.

One morning at 4 o'clock he suddenly threw his whole body on top of mine, awakening me out of a sound sleep. I was terrified, thinking I was being attacked. I screamed! He thought it was funny. He will often sneak up behind me and grab me, or surprise me with a loud, sudden noise.

What's with him? I've asked him to quit it, but he says I'm a poor sport because I can't take a joke. Abby, these so-called jokes scare the living daylights out of me, and he knows it. Am I in the wrong or is he?

STARTLED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: He is. His repeated "jokes" have not been coming from love — they are hostile acts, thinly disguised as childish pranks. If he continues playing this cruel game after you've asked him to quit, you qualify as an abused wife. Color him cruel, with a touch of yellow.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because you are responsible for this problem.

I am a newlywed widower, age 77, and my bride is 70. She is my second wife and I am her fifth husband. (The Lord released her from her first two and the judge released her from her last two.)

The problem is she cannot understand why I need to sleep alone. Tears and arguments follow when I try to leave her and go into another room to sleep.

That is not to say that we never share a bed. We do. But when it comes to sleeping, I must have my own bed. I am a very restless sleeper who changes positions often, and I feel inhibited from moving if I have to worry about disturbing a bed

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

I LOVE THE NEW ME

I lost 36 pounds in 6 weeks

Let me introduce myself and tell you about one of the most important happenings in my life. I am Carl Whitfield, a Pitt County native and retired law enforcement officer, and I have just lost 46 pounds. Not only am I happier with my appearance, but I have much more energy. My physician had been telling me for several years that I needed to lose weight, and I had tried...in fact I had tried several programs and several over-the-counter products. Nothing seemed to work. Then I saw Charles Overton in an ad similar to this one, and I thought if he can do it so can I. So I went to Diet Center, and this is what I found:

1. THERE WERE NO CONTRACTS. I did not have to pay a large sum of money in advance and obligate myself for any specific period of time. I had tried so many plans, and nothing worked for me so naturally I was skeptical. At DIET CENTER seeing my weight come down daily made a believer out of me.
2. THERE WERE NO SHOTS, DRUGS, OR CHEMICALS USED AT DIET CENTER. What I found there was a well-balanced nutritionally sound diet and a behavior modification program to help me keep the weight off.
3. THERE WERE NO PRE-PACKAGED FOODS TO BUY AT DIET CENTER. I lost my weight without having to buy expensive foods. My wife shopped at our regular food store, and she ate right along with me.
4. THERE WAS NO NEED FOR BODY WRAPS OR RIGID EXERCISE PROGRAMS. By following the well-balanced diet at DIET CENTER, I found that I tightened up naturally. While no rigid exercise program or body wraps are necessary for inch loss at Diet Center, to promote good health it is recommended that exercise be a part of your daily routine. I chose walking as my basic exercise. My wife joined me in my daily walk.

5. AT DIET CENTER I DID NOT FEEL DEPRIVED. I was not hungry. I did not experience nervousness or fatigue. I feel great, and my friends tell me that I look great.

SUMMARY: Diet Center offers a program of private, daily counseling by trained professionals-not only have the Diet Center counselors lost weight on the program-but they have the educational and professional background to qualify them to help others like me to reach their goals.

Planning Meet Set

A 1984 Shad Festival planning meeting will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Grafton Historical Museum.

The meeting is open to all interested persons. According to festival publicity chairman Janet Haseley, the Shad Festival posters are ready for distribution and persons wanting to help with the distribution should attend the meeting or call Mrs. Haseley at 524-4356.

Charges Brought

Greenville police arrested Johnny Edward Hamm, 47, of Edgewood Trailer Park about 8:45 p.m. Sunday on charges of going about armed to the terror of the public, and assault on an officer with a firearm.

Police officials said Hamm was allegedly threatening residents of the trailer park with a .22 caliber rifle and had fired shots before officers were called.

After police arrived at the scene, Hamm allegedly pointed the rifle at Officers M.C. Jernigan, B.M. Hamill and D.R. Wyrick, before he was disarmed and taken into custody.

Theft Investigated

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a break-in at A6 Greenridge, which was reported at 1:45 a.m. today.

Officer H.D. Hines said entrance to the apartment was gained through a glass sliding door. Some $566 worth of property, including a television, radio and microwave oven, were stolen.

Attends Program

Hunter Bost, a student at J.H. Rose High School, recently attended A Presidential Classroom for Young Americans in Washington, D.C. Bost was one of 400 outstanding students from the United States to attend the one-week educational program.

Failed To Report Contamination

According to the N.C. Department of Human Resources, the operators of two public water systems in Pitt County failed to notify their customers and the news media that the water systems exceeded the maximum contaminant level for coliform bacteria during the month of October.

A spokesman for the agency said

The students received tours and lectures at North Carolina State University and Durham Tech met with students involved in the RECAST project across the state.

Discussion Set

A panel discussion titled "Let's Talk About Computers" dealing with the use of computers with exceptional children will be held Thursday from 12 noon-1 p.m. at Wahl-Coates School Auditorium.

Panelists will discuss computers and programs for the mentally handicapped, the learning disabled and for the academically gifted student. Vendors will be present from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. to demonstrate computers and appropriate software.

The event is sponsored by the Parents Advisory Council for Children with Special Needs, Greenville City Schools. For further information call Greenville City Schools at 752-4192.

Rose Chairman

Marjorie Jones, a senior at Rose High School, has been named chairman of the Rose High School Committee to Elect Jim Martin Governor.

Miss Jones, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Billy Jones of Greenville, is president of the senior class and the Anchor Club, and is a member of the National Honor Society.

Board To Meet

The board of commissioners of the Greenville Utilities Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the utilities building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets.

Included on the agenda for consideration are proposed water and sewer rate changes and bids for various equipment.

Officers of the board for the coming year will also be elected.

Break-Ins Reported

Greenville police are investigating two break-ins reported Sunday afternoon.

Officer D.R. Wyrick said a break-in at 12 Hillcrest Trailer Park, was reported at 2:40 p.m. He said a television set, a quantity of stereo equipment, and a cable television channel selector box, valued at $1,720, were taken.

According to Officer F.G. Pruitt, stereo equipment was reported taken from an apartment at F5 Oakmont Square. That break-in was reported at 3 p.m.

Aerobics Classes

Pitt County Community Schools will be sponsoring two aerobics classes at local schools during March.

Sessions will be held Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30-7:30 p.m. and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:45-6:45 p.m. at W.H. Robinson School. Anyone interested may attend two nights per week.

Classes will also be held at Falkland Elementary School Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:15-8:15 p.m.

All sessions will last eight weeks and will cost $22. Registration for classes being held at W.H. Robinson will be Monday and Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday at 5:45 p.m. Registration will be held for the Falkland class Tuesday and Thursday at 7:15 p.m.

For more information, contact course instructor Rosie Cox at 756-2767.

Chapter Wins Award

The Down East Chapter of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America will meet at the Three Steers Restaurant Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Secretary Cathy Jessen will discuss highlights of the 1984 convention in Orlando, Fla. At the convention, Ms. Jessen accepted the Foy J. Shaw Award plaque on behalf of the chapter. The award is for the best activities scrapbook for 1983 in North and South Carolina; the scrapbook has gone on to national competition.

For information about the meeting or reservations, call Cathy at 756-7910 or Randy at 756-6108.

Guests Announced

Guests this week on the City of Greenville "City Hall Notes" radio program will be Mac McCarley, assistant city attorney, and Jesse Harris, community relations officer.

McCarley will discuss the itinerant merchants law, and Harris will talk about the role and responsibilities of the community relations officer.

"City Hall Notes" is aired on WOOW radio each Tuesday and Thursday at 10:25 a.m.

Chairman Named

Dr. Jon B. Tingelstad, professor and chairman of pediatrics at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, has been appointed chairman of a committee of the National Board of Medical Examiners.

The National Board administers a uniform series of examinations for evaluating the knowledge of prospective doctors. Eighty percent of American medical graduates use the National Board examination process as the means of acquiring a license to practice.

As chairman of the Part III Patient Management Problem Test Committee, Tingelstad will be in charge of developing questions and determining the format for the portion of the examination which evaluates doctors' competency following the first year of residency training.

Tingelstad, who has been on the medical school's faculty since 1967, has served on the eight-member committee since 1980.

His appointment as a chairman of the committee means Tingelstad will also serve as an ex officio member of the National Board of Medical Examiners.

Looking Ahead

Let's see now. Last year the County Commissioners purchased a half block of land along Greene Street for $300,000. At 42,985 square feet that figured out to be $6.97 per square foot.

Back in the years when the Shore Drive area was being redeveloped by the city the county turned down an opportunity to purchase 75,000 square feet of land which it could have had for less than $75,000.

So much for history.

Now the county has some other property in close proximity to the courthouse.

The Tucker building is located at Third and Greene. It was originally a residence, but has been used for the Agricultural Extension Service office. Now vacant, renovation was considered for the building to house other offices but this was deemed too expensive.

So the commissioners have decided to consider the sale of the property. Judging by what the county paid for its most recent property purchase it should be able to command a whale of a price for this property. It will be interesting to see what offers come.

But more important. Clearly the county will need land in the downtown area just to handle the growing court activities. Wouldn't it make sense to remove the building from the property and retain the land for present county parking and future building?

Satisfaction

A Senate committee last week delayed for one week its vote on the nomination of Edwin Meese III to be attorney general.

The committee cited questions about Meese's involvement in the 1980 Reagan campaign use of documents from the Carter campaign.

Meese has denied in writing any involvement in the use of the material. He said he had no documents, records or other materials in his possession related to the matter.

The committee, however, is not fully satisfied. Since it is clear that the appointment of Meese to the post of attorney general is highly political in this election year, the Senate Judiciary Committee is fully justified in delaying action. The committee should be totally convinced that Meese is suited for this important position before it acts favorably.

Changing Mood

NEW YORK (AP) — In an about-face as abrupt as most consumers are likely to recall, credit is being pushed on people today who just a couple of years ago couldn't borrow a nickel toward the purchase of a house.

Banks that automatically turned down mortgage applicants now advertise in search of them. Credit card issuers who were weeding out deadbeats now purchase mailing lists to find new customers, inducing them with cash advances.

In the same spirit, credit users have relaxed their standards.

During the recession it was common, even for those with secure jobs, to avoid credit commitments. Some even left credit cards at home lest they be tempted. The mood was pervasive: Save what you can for a rainy day.

In contrast, the same people now take their cards with them, and look for something to buy. A new mood seems to say that now is the time to buy a house or a car, or to indulge in the long-postponed purchase of a luxury.

It is adding up. In the final quarter of 1983 the total amount of debt outstanding grew at a rate of 10.6 percent, which is faster than the growth of inflation or incomes or production, and suggests that desire transcends economic obstacles.

Measured in the fourth quarter of 1983, total debt was $5.52 trillion, and rising swiftly. And it wasn't only Uncle Sam who was responsible.

In fact, at a rate of 12.4 percent, seasonally adjusted, the nation's households shamed their much-maligned and spendthrift uncle, whose indebtedness expanded at a rate of only 10.1 percent.

The total of household debt also exceeded that owed by Uncle Sam, and by more than $500 billion. Households in that quarter had accumulated a total of $1.832 trillion in credit, the federal government "only" $1.178 trillion.

The other figures: Nonfinancial business, $1.813 trillion, and state and local governments, $395.5 billion.

No institution in America, that is, owes more than the American household; and no institution is taking on debt at a greater rate than the American household.

The possible reasons why are not as clear as the numbers, and in fact may be only conjecture. Whatever, various surveys suggest these possibilities:

— People are confident the economic recovery will continue. Their fears about the potential loss of a job are greatly reduced from what they were in the midst of recession.

— Households are making up for opportunities lost during the recession. This reason is frequently cited by those who query homebuyers. Time doesn't wait, they say, so buy when you can.

— Inflation is ahead; therefore, buy now and save. This notion isn't as prevalent as it was during the 1970s, when the price of almost everything was rising. But it never died. Millions of people fear renewed inflation.

The possibilities range widely, if only because households are made up of individuals, and individuals react in different ways to the same stimuli.

What is very clear is that Americans, as individuals and members of households, are in a spending mood — at the very time they seem to be insisting on a cutback in spending by their government.

RALEIGH — Colorado Sen. Gary Hart's meteoric rise to frontrunner status in the Democratic presidential race holds a few lessons for the six major Democratic candidates for governor of North Carolina and their followers.

The first lesson is that no matter how bad the political reporters say your campaign is going, don't listen to them. I quote myself from a November meeting with Don Kemp, an early Hart supporter, at a reception in a Raleigh hotel. "Hart's finished, Don, forget him. Find yourself a gubernatorial candidate." Now that's political wisdom. Good thing I didn't write that although a number of national political reporters did.

The second lesson is that the American voter makes up his own mind these days. Walter Mondale has the endorsement of the AFL-CIO; yet, Hart beat him in union neighborhoods of New Hampshire and Maine. Tom Gilmore, the gubernatorial candidate with endorsements from the AFL-CIO and N.C. Association of Educators, shouldn't get overconfident about the votes of teachers and union members.

The third lesson is that many voters now make up their minds in the waning days of a campaign. So you can't count anyone out. That includes Gilmore, whom many people count out. The 1980 presidential race was dead even, according to the polls, a week before the election. When they counted the votes it wasn't even close. The 1978 and 1982 congressional elections saw wild swings of opinion in the late days.

Although there is some evidence that the gubernatorial campaign is now in a shaking out phase, that some candidates are moving ahead while others languish, the possibility for a last-minute surge by any of the six is entirely possible. That candidate, as Hart did in Iowa, would only need to come in second on the first vote. In the three weeks between the first primary and the run-off, the candidate would have the time to build his momentum, as Hart did between Iowa and New Hampshire. Plurality victors in first primaries have a history of losing second primaries in North Carolina.

There's a parallel between Mondale and three of the gubernatorial candidates: Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten. All are insiders, the establishment. They've been on the political scene for a long time, in their current offices 12, 8 and 10 years respectively. Hart is winning with a call for "new ideas" but he's also winning because he's a new face. Last year at this time, a political cry was going out across North Carolina for a new face to take the governor's office.

Hart appears to have united much of the vote that was not satisfied with nominating the old face, Jimmy Carter's vice president. It's quite possible that one of the three new faces in the gubernatorial race, Gilmore, Lauch Faircloth or Eddie Knox, will unite the anti-old face vote. Many Democrats now see the race as boiling down to Knox and Faircloth. Both could make the run-off. Or, one could make it against an old face and have a very good chance to win.

And there's one more lesson to be learned from the presidential campaign to date. Listen to one's mother. I quote Charlotte O'Connor: "Paul, I like Hart." She picked Hart during a long distance telephone conversation in early January. She had sized up the campaign early and gone with a prediction based on her almost fail safe theory. That is, the best looking guy will always win.

How Charlotte's Law would apply to the gubernatorial race is for the readers to decide.

Holding The Reins

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's selection of a "movement" conservative as the newest member of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, coupled with the way she was picked, is evidence the White House will no longer submit to Fed domination.

Dr. Martha Seeger is a strong Reaganite and Republican activist from Michigan. She was picked without consulting Fed Chairman Paul Volcker, whose own recommendation for the vacancy was ignored. But Seeger first had to pass muster from Vice Chairman Preston Martin, the only governor appointed by Reagan. And presiding over the entire process was the president's chief of staff, James A. Baker III.

This encapsulates the backstage play on monetary policy, supercharged in an election year. Baker and his crafty lieutenant, Richard Darman, are deeply concerned over Volcker's tight money policy. Fully supported by the president, they want the Fed to supply sufficient credit to a booming economy. Increasingly, Martin at the Fed has been Baker's silent collaborator.

The upshot: de facto abandonment of monetarism by the White House. The president and Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan have made increasingly clear in public it is folly for the Fed to aim at illusory money supply targets. Whether Volcker accepts this growth-oriented policy will be known over the next two months, but the way the White House filled the latest Fed vacancy confirmed the tough new attitude there.

The vacancy was created Jan. 31 with the expiration of the term of Nancy Teeters, named by President Carter in 1978 as the first woman Fed governor. Although a liberal Keynesian, Ms. Teeters sided with orthodox conservative Volcker in an 11-to-1 vote to tighten money at last December's meeting of the Fed's Open Market Committee (FOMC).

That vote, which showed Reaganite Martin alone in fighting to preserve the recovery, did not get much attention from the outside world but worried the White House. The same senior staffers who last summer blithely pushed through Volcker's reappointment as chairman now came to the conclusion that the president needed help at the central bank. Determined that Ms. Teeters be succeeded by another woman, they were equally determined that she be a Reaganite.

Thus, when Volcker sent over the West Wing the resume of Susan Schmitt Bies, a Memphis bank economist, it was ignored. Her reputation as a monetarist (she once worked at the monetarist St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank) did not help her at the White House. What hurt more, however, was her sponsorship by the chairman. The president's men wanted no Volckerite protegee intent on establishing rigid monetary targets.

Their first choice was Annelise Anderson, whose credentials were unassailable. She and her husband Martin are both longtime Reagan backers, both served in the administration and both advocated supply-side tax cuts. But Sen. Jake Garn, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, insisted that Ronald Reagan no less than Jimmy Carter obey that law that prohibits two governors from the same Federal Reserve district. Ms. Anderson and Martin are both from California.

The second choice was Martha

Seeger, who is even more of a "movement" conservative than Mrs. Anderson. Although named Michigan state banking commissioner in 1980 by liberal Republican Gov. William Milliken, she backed Milliken's arch-enemy, tax-cutting advocate Richard Headlee, to succeed him. Returning to private life as a Central Michigan University professor, Ms. Seeger recently was named co-chairman, with Headlee, of the Michigan chapter of Citizens of America — the Reagan-backed conservative action group leader by Lewis Lehrman, the supply-side political activist.

Volcker, his own recommendation ignored, was not even consulted. Baker asked that Martin interview Ms. Seeger, and he passed her with flying colors, both on monetary expertise and her desire to follow a Reaganite growth path. The important element in this screening process was the new collaboration between Baker and Martin. A month earlier, they had never conferred on monetary policy.

Just three days before the president signed Ms. Seeger's appointment, the New York Times financial section suggested that Volcker had vetoed Anderson for the Fed and then propelled Ms. Bies into the front-runner's role. In fact, there was no communication with the chairman on either woman (save for Volcker's dispatch of the Bies resume).

Martha Seeger's selection signals that Ronald Reagan is not about to abdicate his presidential functions to Paul Volcker. Whether that presages confrontation depends on what the Federal Reserve does and how the economy reacts in the weeks ahead.

Strength For Today

Have you ever watched a ferry going into dock? It bumps into the piling and the great poles which have been driven into the bottom of the harbor sway back and forth as pressure against them is exerted or relieved.

It is the capacity of the piling to adapt itself to the motion of the ferry which makes a satisfactory landing possible. A rigid piling would eventually shatter the boat. Yet, there must be some firmness to hold the boat, else there never could be a landing.

The whole thing is indicative of what constitutes a desirable personality. People who are really attractive and know how to get somewhere in life know how to be firm and yet sufficiently yielding to keep their friendships from breaking up.

Briefly stated, we must be firm on principles and yielding on policies. Give and take according to a well thought-out formula makes happy landings possible.

Finding The Secret With Jellybeans

I climbed to the top of the Washington Monument the other morning to speak to the Great Economic Oracle. I placed a perfumed bowl of jellybeans at his feet.

The Master put one in his mouth. "They are very tasty."

"I grew them myself," I told him as I knelt on the dirt floor.

"What brings you all this distance, my son?" he asked.

"I am confused," I told him. "I came to find the secret of budget deficits."

The Master stroked his bald head. "There is no secret to budget deficits. If one spends more than one earns then one must borrow what one owes."

"I know that. But the question I came to ask is what does one do about a deficit that is so large that all the wise men of the land cannot agree how to cut it?"

"When the highest type of men see deficits they recoil at them. When the average type of men see deficits they half believe them. When the lowest type of men see deficits they laugh heartily at them."

"But how does one get the lowest type of men to become the highest?"

"It can't be done during an election year," the Master said, popping another jellybean into his mouth.

"Why not, oh wise one?"

"Because those who are responsible for the deficits will not admit they are bad, and those who take no responsibility need them to attack those who made them. It is written in the 'Book of Politics' that in an election year one talks about deficits, but one does not do anything about them."

"Why is that, Master?"

"Because to do something about deficits is to cause pain. And if one wants to rule one must promise not to cause anyone pain."

"If one does not do anything about deficits will there not be greater pain later on?" I asked.

"A wise ruler never mentions future pain when his throne is at stake."

"How long can one live with deficits before they cause pain?"

"Depending on the size of them, one year, maybe two, perhaps forever."

"Doesn't the ruler know that?"

"Yes, he does. But true words are not beautiful. And beautiful words are not true. Ruling a big country is like cooking a small fish."

"What does that mean?"

"I have no idea. But I like the sound of it."

"Master, can we get back to deficits? There are those who say in order to reduce them one must raise taxes and cut back on military spending. There are others who say one must cut out domestic spending and do nothing more to tax the people. Who is right?"

"It is this simplicity that makes the uneducated more effective than the educated when addressing popular audiences during an election year. You didn't bring enough licorice jellybeans."

"I'm sorry, Master. So it is your opinion that nothing can be done about deficits when a country is contesting for a new ruler?"

"Nothing of substance. One must think of the budget as a lovely river. The deficits are like the snow in the mountains that no one sees. Once spring comes, the snow melts and becomes a torrent of water and the river becomes a flood washing away everything that man has built, and there is nothing left but a depression in the land."

"You sound like Martin Feldstein," I said.

"It's Feldstein, not Feldstein," the Master said angrily. "And don't you forget it."

High Expectations Over Tuesday

By DAVID ESPO

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is enough action on "Super Tuesday" for both Gary Hart and Walter F. Mondale to claim victory, although neither is likely to land a knockout punch in the Democratic presidential race.

The prospects are less hopeful for the three dark horses, John Glenn, George McGovern and Jesse Jackson.

Hart, riding a crest of four straight state triumphs, will proclaim himself a winner if he wins a single primary, and he is heavily favored in Massachusetts. His claim to be a national candidate will be even more enhanced if he also defeats the field in any of three southern states, and public opinion polls give him a narrowing lead in Florida and drawing even in Georgia.

Walter F. Mondale, dethroned as front-runner by Hart's string of triumphs, will proclaim the night a success if he claims even a single Southern victory from among primaries in Georgia, Florida or Alabama. Should he win more, or surprise Hart in Massachusetts or Rhode Island, he will claim that his rival's appeal is dissipating after Hart's run at him, and would set the stage for a long struggle that follows the election calendar to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco.

But if the vote counts don't look favorable to Mondale, he will start talking about national convention delegates instead.

Hart's early victories have come in Maine, New Hampshire, Wyoming and a non-binding primary in Vermont. All are states with a relatively small number of delegates.

But Mondale rolled up large majorities earlier this year when Democrats in the House of Representatives picked delegates, and again when Iowa Democrats held their caucuses.

PRELUDE TO CHARGES

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A military tribunal has placed stricter conditions on the detention of two leaders of the ruling junta that started the Falkland Islands war in 1982, clearing the way for specific charges to be filed.

As a result, no matter how the primaries and caucuses turn out on Tuesday, the former vice president can expect to be at least close to Hart, if not still ahead, in the delegate count for the Democratic National Convention.

Mondale has 148 convention delegates, compared to Hart's 27. Those counts don't include the results from Wyoming, which have not yet been translated into delegates by party officials there; tentative estimates there give 8 delegates for Hart and 4 for Mondale.

With 511 delegates at stake in Tuesday's contests — counting the nine state contests plus delegate selections by American Samoa and Democrats Abroad — Mondale could lose every single contest and still be the leader in delegates.

Mondale's candidacy would be seriously wounded if that happened, and his claim as delegate leader would pale beside Hart's victory string. But it would give him more time to try and stop Hart's momentum before it became overwhelming.

It will be tougher for the other three contenders.

Glenn was touted earlier in the year as Mondale's toughest competition for the nomination. But that was before the voters began rendering their verdicts, and he has failed to get above 13 percent in any single contest.

He has been concentrating exclusively on Florida, Georgia and Alabama, and would certainly claim a victory if he won any of the three. But he is far behind in the public opinion polls, and he has lately begun to sound like he couldn't continue if he failed to notch at least one victory.

Glenn has borrowed $2 million of a $2.5 million line of credit, and he said last week he will decide after Tuesday whether to borrow the remainder.

"I doubt if we can go much further in debt," he said.

McGovern has defined his own goal for next week. He says he will withdraw from the race if he doesn't finish either first or second in the Massachusetts primary, the only state he carried against Richard Nixon in his 1972 presidential race. He is far behind Mondale and Hart in public opinion polls.

Jackson says he's staying in the race no matter what, but he has already lost federal matching campaign funds and needs to receive 20 percent of the vote in any of the states on Tuesday to re-qualify.

He will claim a victory if he manages that, but Jackson, like McGovern, appears at times to be running more to raise issues and a cause than to win the nomination.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.

WHY REPLACE MISSING TEETH?

Why is it so essential that missing teeth be replaced, even if they are in a part of the mouth that doesn't show?

For starters, the teeth on either side of the space may drift into the space and close it. This is unhealthy, since the roots of our teeth are designed to absorb stress in a vertical direction. When a tooth tilts, it is no longer taking the stress the way nature intended. The result may be periodontal pockets (separation between gum and teeth) causing food traps, gum disease and decay. This will require further dental treatment and, possibly, premature loss of these additional teeth.

Also there is the problem of the tooth directly above or below the space. Without the bite pressure on it, it may move upward or downward into the open space, causing a problem of tripping the teeth as you move the jaw from side to side. This will tend to loosen the adjoining teeth and lead to further lost teeth. In a nutshell, if you have missing teeth, they should be replaced as soon as possible to prevent the "Domino Effect" of further tooth loss.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the offices of: Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A. Evans St. Phone: 752-5126.

DERYL SMITH
MONDAY, MARCH 12
RAMADA INN
264 BY-PASS
7:00 p.m. — Dinner
7:30 p.m. — Meeting

Deryl is a native of Wilmington, NC and attended Appalachian State University where he received a degree in Business Administration. He was listed among Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges in 1972 due to his accomplishments in academics, athletics, and civic activities. He was selected among the top 20 Army ROTC graduates in the country and has served on active and reserve duty as an officer.

Upon discharge from the service Deryl joined a "Top 20" corporation. After two years he entered sales management and was the youngest person holding that position company-wide. In 1979 he resigned to return to Deryl and his wife, Norma, have two children, five and seven years old. They are members of Myrtle Grove Presbyterian Church, where Deryl serves on the Board of Directors of the Christian school. He is currently President of the Wilmington Chapter of the FGBMF.

Deryl's testimony is one of victorious christian living. How obedience to scriptural principles will bear success in finances, health, family, and all areas of everyday life.

government-sanctioned prayer in public schools.

But most of the debate has thus far occurred off the Senate floor. While Senate leaders keep talking about a narrow final vote — one that could be weeks away — only a few opponents have come forward thus far to publicly voice their opposition to the proposal.

In fact, even though the Senate has been considering the measure now for a full week, of the 33 senators up for re-election this year — 19 Republicans and 14 Democrats — only one has taken to the Senate floor to voice opposition to the measure, Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.

"I think it is pretty superficial and not at all in concert with what I feel is biblical faith," Hatfield said. "You pray out of your heart. That is what every student can do every day in the schools of America. There is no way to enforce any other system."

Hatfield is one of the most outspokenly devout members of the Senate and is the leader of regular congressional prayer breakfasts.

Most of the senators seeking re-election have either spoken out forcefully for the proposal or have claimed they're undecided. For instance, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., locked in what's expected to be a tight re-election contest, has so far been silent on the measure. "He's still monitoring the situation," said Percy aide Martha Eickhof.

Yet Senate Republican leaders say privately that few members are undecided on the measure — and that despite all the vocal support the prayer amendment has gotten, it still is a vote or two shy of the 67 needed votes.

There's been no shortage of senators to speak out in favor of the amendment, which would overturn the 1962 Supreme Court decision banning officially sponsored prayer in public schools.

But opponents so far have mainly let Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., carry the water for them in opposing the bill.

And Weicker claims debate on the amendment, a major part of President Reagan's re-election platform, is largely an exercise in election-year politics.

"The fact remains that today we enjoy the greatest possible religious freedom in this nation," Weicker said.

But proponents of the amendment view things differently. "The right to pray is as fit a subject for constitutional protection as any this country has ever considered," said Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., the prime Senate sponsor of the prayer amendment.

Baker and proponents argue that various polls and surveys show that upwards of 80 percent of Americans think prayer should be restored to public schools. A majority of the nation also "wanted racial discrimination" for more than 100 years, Weicker counters.

The debate is likely to go on for weeks. Short of votes to win approval of the first proposal submitted, Baker and other leaders modified it to specify that prayer sessions could involve silent as well as spoken prayer.

Baker said that change picked up the votes of a few wavering senators. But apparently it didn't pick up enough votes. So Baker and the others came up with a further proposed modification — one that could require school authorities to set up separate areas for students not wishing to participate in organized prayer sessions.

Although aides say Baker will keep juggling the amendment until he thinks he has enough votes to win, the measure is unlikely to pass in the Democrat-run House.

Still, congressional mail is running heavily in favor of the amendment. Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., an ordained Episcopal priest and an opponent of the measure, claims that his own mail and phone calls are running almost 100 percent for the amendment.

But he claims his colleagues are "being carried away on a tide of religiosity" and has this view of why support for the amendment is so high: "I think there is a great desire on the part of the American people to restore values in our society and in the lives of our children."

Opponents also point to what they see is cynicism among some supporters. For instance, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., noted that for all his vocal support for the prayer amendment, President Reagan rarely goes to church.

And on the day the Senate began its prayer debate, only five members were on the floor to listen to the daily chaplain's prayer.

Mental Health Perspectives
Agoraphobia
by
Bob Moore, Social Worker

According to recent literature the agoraphobic syndrome is the most common and most distressing phobic disorder in adults. The term agoraphobia is used to describe fears of going out into public areas such as streets, department stores or vehicles in variable combinations. These fears are generally characterized by feelings of terror, pounding heart, muscle tension, trembling, nausea, perspiration, difficulty in breathing, feelings of unreality and other uncomfortable symptoms.

Some individuals rehearse the frightening experiences in their minds until they are in anxious anticipation of meeting their fear again. To escape this anxiety they constrict daily activities until it is difficult for them to even leave home.

Statistics show that approximately six individuals per 1,000 suffer from this phobic disorder. For these people who may be suffering with this problem, it is important to know that treatment is available.

For more information, please contact Robert Moore or Louise Gilbert who are currently working with adults on how to manage this phobic disorder in a group setting. Dr. Mercedes Rivers is providing medical supervision.

Rep. Rose Eyes Goal

By The Associated Press

Rep. Charles G. Rose III, D-N.C., says a Republican-controlled Senate — and his own desire to continue seeking a leadership role in the House — may keep him from challenging Sen. John East, R-N.C., in 1986.

"I'm interested in being a player, someone who works within the system to make things happen," Rose said.

Rose said he hopes to become a regional or chief deputy whip in the near future, giving him access to the majority leader and speaker and offering a way to show his leadership potential.

A whip is responsible for keeping party members in line, especially during votes.

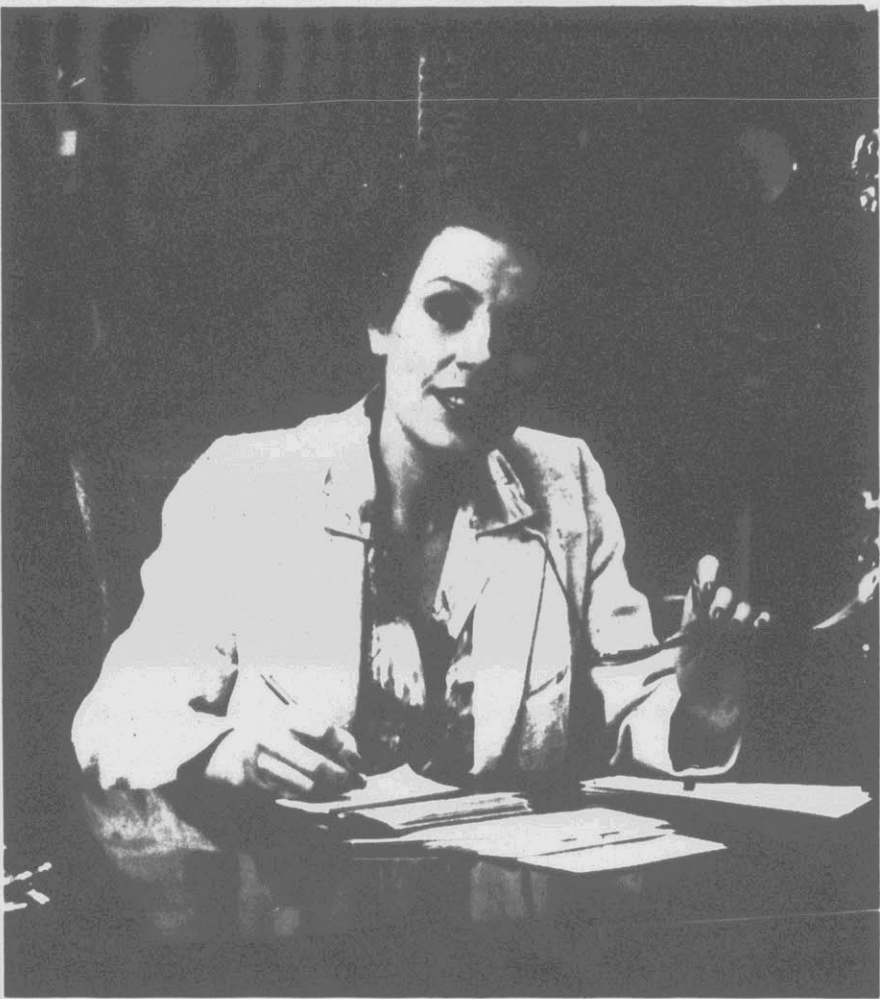

Rose, whose office is next door to that of House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., is already chairman of a subcommittee dealing with tobacco and peanuts — top North Carolina products.

He ranks fifth among Democrats on the House Agriculture Committee, is a member of the House Administration Committee and is credited with persuading O'Neill to allow daily television broadcasts of House floor debate.

Meanwhile, Rose said it is unlikely he will challenge East in 1986 unless Democrats regain control of the U.S. Senate this fall.

"Going to a Senate controlled by the Republican Party would not be a step up for me," the six-term congressman from the 7th District said last week.

Rose said that a change in Senate control in November could mean deciding on which office to seek by January, Rose said.

Marine Killed In Haifa Accident

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A U.S. Marine stationed aboard the USS Guam was killed in an automobile accident early Saturday in the Israeli port city of Haifa, a U.S. military spokesman here said Sunday.

The spokesman, Maj. Donald McClary, said an automobile with three U.S. Marines in it tried to pass another vehicle and struck a guard rail.

The two surviving Marines were treated for minor injuries. The identity of the Marine who was killed was being withheld until his family can be notified, McClary said.

The spokesman said the three men were from the 2nd Battalion, 8th Marines headquartered at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Superchicken

In 1970, Perdue Farms began crossbreeding for a better broiler. Since then, the White Rock/Cornish hybrid has grown more meaty and tender through genetics and nutrition. For the growers, these and other advancements have meant improved feed conversion, faster growing flocks, and extra pay for a better product. For example, in 1973 it took 60 days to produce a 4.4 lb. broiler. Today it takes only 52 days.

Perdue still spends more than most companies on research and quality control. In the highly competitive poultry business, standing still won't keep you ahead. That's why Perdue's veterinarians, nutritionists, and geneticists keep working to develop a "Superchicken." In the meantime, the market for Perdue's superior chicken increases every year. In fact we're planning to open a second shift at our Robersonville processing plant to help us meet this growing demand. As a result of our expansion, Perdue needs 145 more broiler houses. So if you're a North Carolina farmer who'd like to grow with us, get in touch today. Call collect 1-795-4151 or send in the coupon below.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 57.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 100 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 59.00 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is light to moderate for a moderate to good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,396,000, compared to 1,735,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed no clear trend today amid continuing interest-rate uncertainties.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 31.72 points last week, rose 2.41 to 1,142.17 by noon today.

But losers slightly outnumbered gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said bargain-conscious traders were doing some buying with the market near its lowest levels since last spring.

But they also said concern was widespread that interest rates, after their recent rise, were headed higher still. There was talk that the rise of open-market money rates might soon prompt banks to raise their prime lending rates.

The weekend announcement that Mobil Corp. plans a $45-a-share acquisition of Superior Oil kept attention focused on the energy stocks. Mobil slipped 3/8 to 29 1/2, while Superior shares were delayed in opening.

Gulf Corp., subject of an earlier takeover bid by Standard Oil of California, led the active list and rose 5/8 to 65 1/2.

Houston Natural Gas fell 3/8 to 48. The company announced plans to dispose of some subsidiaries, in a move apparently aimed at reducing its attractiveness as a takeover target.

The NYSE's composite index gained .17 to 89.11. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .22 at 206.92.

Volume on the Big Board came to 34.44 million shares at noontime, against 31.58 million at the same point Friday.

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED?

Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Take your case one step further and go before a Social Security Administrative Law Judge for a hearing with a qualified representative to present your case. Then the chances of your winning benefits are somewhere between 70% and 80%. The Judge will see you and hear your personal description of your physical or mental illness, and your representative will present your case as it applies to the complex rules of the Social Security Act.

If you have a hearing requested or scheduled before an Administrative Law Judge, call now for an immediate conference. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for disability.

Terps Win ACC Tourney For Lefty

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland coach Lefty Driesell may downplay winning his first Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament, but his players were not about to.

"That's what we talked about, winning this one for him," said Len Bias, who pumped in 26 points and was named the tournament's most valuable player after leading the Terrapins to a 74-62 victory over No. 16 Duke on Sunday.

The 14th-ranked Terrapins used a 14-0 run in the second half to give their coach his first ACC tournament championship in six tries.

"We did not mention winning the ACC championship the entire time down here," said Driesell, who is in his 15th season at Maryland. "We just told them to go out and win number 23. I guess the good Lord just wanted us to win it this time."

But Driesell's son, Chuck, who is a reserve on the Maryland team, said the players wanted to make sure their coach didn't come up empty again.

"The fellows really wanted it," he said. "I could sense it right from the start. Everbody had the attitude: 'Come on, we're going to win it for the coach.'"

The victory gave Maryland, 23-7, an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament. The Terrapins are third-seeded in the Midwest Region and will play the winner of the Oregon-West Virginia game.

Duke, 24-9, is seeded third in the West Region and will play the survivor of the Washington-Nevado-Renogame.

Maryland trailed 30-27 at the halftime, a half that left Bias disappointed with his performance. Bias led the Terps with 10 first-half points, but said he was upset because he committed six turnovers.

"Herman Veal told me not to put the ball on the floor," said Bias, who hit 12 of 17 shots from the floor. "He told me to just turn around and shoot it."

Meanwhile, Driesell had come up with a plan of his own, switching his team to a zone defense in the second half.

"I think we got off to an awful start with 11 turnovers in the first half," Driesell said. "The zone helped us. We went into when we were up by one and used it to break the game open."

But Duke forward Jay Bilas said the zone defense did not have as much to do with the Blue Devil downfall as fatigue.

"It wasn't the zone," Bilas said. "Johnny (Dawkins) and Mark (Alarie) were off a little bit. We just didn't punch it in like we should. I think fatigue contributed to that long scoring drought."

Bilas scored on an inside shot with 9:31 left to give Duke a 45-44 lead. But it was the last Blue Devil basket until the 3:37 mark when David Henderson scored on a short jumper. The Blue Devils missed eight shot attempts during that period and trailed 58-47.

Dawkins, who missed seven straight shots in the second half, finally regained his touch at the three-minute mark, but Maryland went into its delay and gave the Blue Devils few opportunities.

"Maryland played within their system very well and attacked us," said Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski. "We got good shots against their zone, but again, they were like set shots. We didn't get any bounce on our attempts. Even if we were playing 100 percent today, we might have had a tough time beating them."

Dawkins finished with 22 points while Canadian Dan Meagher chipped in 12 points. Duke, after shooting 51.9 percent from the field in the first half, cooled down to 42.4 percent in the second half to finish at 46.7 percent.

Coleman scored 14 points and Adrian Branch added 12 as Maryland shot 54.7 percent from the field. In the second half, Maryland shot at a 65.4 percent clip on 17 of 26.

Eastern Powers Lead NCAA Field

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Most of the power lies east of the Mississippi in college basketball this year, say the men who put together the NCAA Tournament.

The Atlantic Coast, Big East and Southeastern conferences bagged almost 25 percent of the invitations to the 53-team NCAA Tournament announced Sunday, including the top seed in all but one of four regionals.

The ACC, which produced the last two national champions in North Carolina and North Carolina State, placed five teams in the tournament, and the Big East and Southeastern each had four.

Conspicuously missing from the ACC's entries was North Carolina State, last year's Cinderella champions who finished this year with a 19-13 record and had to settle for the National Invitation Tournament.

The top-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels, who have lost twice in 29 games, were installed as the top seed in the East Region, while Georgetown, the Big East champ and No. 2 team in the Associated Press Top Twenty, was shipped far from its Washington, D.C., campus to be the top seed in the West.

DePaul, hoping to give retiring Coach Ray Meyer his first national championship in a storied 42-year career, is the top seed in the Midwest. Kentucky, the SEC champ, is No. 1 seed in the Midwest. The top four seeds in each region get byes into the second round and Dave Gavitt, chairman of the nine-man Division I Basketball Committee, said those 16 teams may represent the tourney's strongest field ever.

"The No. 1 and No. 2 seeds in each region look awfully, awfully tough," Gavitt, commissioner of the Big East, said at a news conference. "They've had some great years and a lot of great victories. The third through the eighth seeds, I won't be surprised at any results of those games. I don't see the term 'upset' applying anywhere between the third seeds and the ninth seeds."

The tournament begins on Tuesday and runs through the rest of the month, with more than $600,000 awaiting the semifinalists when they get to Seattle.

Kicking things off, the champions of the 10 weakest of the 29 Division I conferences — as decided by the committee — go at each other in Philadelphia and Dayton, Ohio, on Tuesday. Those five winners will join the automatic qualifiers from the other 19 conferences and 24 at-large entries and begin first-round action at sites around the nation this weekend.

Moving the Georgetown Hoyas out of their natural region seemed certain to trigger controversy, and Gavitt admitted it was one of the committee's closest calls. The Hoyas might actually jump ahead of North Carolina Tuesday when the final poll is released since North Carolina lost to Duke over the weekend in the ACC tournament.

"North Carolina has been No. 1 all year," Gavitt pointed out. "They have only two defeats. It would have been committee over-reaction to seed North Carolina anywhere but in the East."

Bias Named Title MVP

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland forward Len Bias, who scored 26 points in the Terrapins 74-62 Atlantic Coast Conference tournament championship victory over Duke Sunday, was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Bias, a 6-foot-8 sophomore, was 12 of 17 from the field and 2 of 2 from the free throw line Sunday.

Teammate Ben Coleman, who scored 14 points and pulled down nine rebounds in the title game, was also named to the first team.

Duke guard Johnny Dawkins and forward Mark Alarie, and North Carolina's Matt Doherty completed the first team.

Dawkins led the Blue Devils with 22 points in the championship game, and Alarie added nine points and seven rebounds. Doherty was 7 for 7 in the second half of North Carolina's loss to Duke in the semifinals Saturday.

Named to the second team were Maryland's Adrian Branch, North Carolina's Michael Jordan, Clemson's Murray Jarman, Wake Forest's Anthony Teachey and Mark Price from Georgia Tech.

Emory To Speak To Sports Club

East Carolina University head football Coach Ed Emory will be the guest speaker at the final meeting of the Greenville Sports Club at noon Tuesday at the Ramada Inn.

Emory, who guided the nationally-ranked Pirates to an 8-3 record, will talk about ECU's recruits, next season's schedule and the upcoming spring drills.

All members and guests are urged to attend.

Wolfpack Settles On NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina State will not be defending its NCAA championship this year. Instead, the Wolfpack had to settle for the National Invitation Tournament and a possible trip to New York.

The Wolfpack, 19-13, were among 32 teams selected Sunday to play in the NIT, the nation's oldest college basketball tournament, and will begin play with a home game against Florida State, 19-10, on Thursday night.

"I think it's interesting that we drew Florida State since we're starting a home-and-home series with them next year," said North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano. "Now it looks like we're starting it a year earlier."

"Florida State is a very talented team. They beat Virginia Tech twice, and everybody knows what Virginia Tech did to us (a 24-point rout). It obviously is going to be a tough game."

The NIT also grabbed another member of last year's NCAA Final Four in Georgia, 17-12. The Bulldogs will visit Tennessee-Chattanooga, 23-5, for their NIT opener Wednesday night.

The 16 first-round games will be played Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at campus sites, except for a Friday night doubleheader at the Philadelphia Palestra with Boston College, 17-11, meeting St. Joseph's (Pa.), 20-8, and La Salle, 20-10, facing Pittsburgh, 16-12.

The rest of the first round:

Wednesday — Old Dominion, 20-10, at Notre Dame, 17-11; Lamar, 25-4, at New Mexico, 24-10; Southwestern Louisiana, 20-8, at Utah State, 19-10; Florida, 16-12, at South Alabama, 22-7; St. Peter's (N.J.), 23-5, at Tennessee, 19-13.

Thursday — Nebraska, 17-11, at Creighton, 17-13; Ohio State, 15-13, at Xavier of Ohio, 20-9; Marquette, 16-12, at Iowa State, 16-12; Georgia Tech, 18-10, at Virginia Tech, 18-12; Wichita State, 18-11, at Michigan, 18-10; Santa Clara, 22-8, at Oregon, 16-12.

Friday — Fordham, 19-14, at Weber State, 22-8.

Creighton is coached by Willis Reed, who led the New York Knicks to a pair of National Basketball Association championships. Reed would like nothing better than to return to his old stamping grounds.

"If we can continue to play like we have, we can win a couple of games in the NIT," Reed said. "Personally, I'd like to win three games and go to New York."

The eight second-round games will be played next Sunday and Monday, followed by the quarterfinals March 23-24, all at sites around the country. The semifinals will be played March 26 and the finals March 28, both at Madison Square Garden, where the entire tournament was played until five years ago.

Christopher Hurls Pirates By Fairfield

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Mike Christopher tossed seven shutout innings and Greg Hardison and Winfred Johnson each collected two hits as the Pirates of East Carolina University romped to an 8-1 baseball victory over Fairfield University Sunday afternoon.

Christopher, who evened his record at 1-1 with the victory, gave up only three hits during the first seven innings. He was tagged for two more hits and the only Stag run in the eighth and gave way to Craig Van Deventer in the ninth.

"Mike really threw the ball well," Coach Hal Baird said. "He located the ball well and did a real good job."

The Pirates were limber at the plate, banging out 11 hits, and that also drew praises from Baird. "We started getting the bats going early and got a cushion to work with and I'm glad about that. We played well defensively."

"Maybe we're going to start coming around now. Playing for several days in a row will help us, too. We've still got some rough edges."

Playing a few days in a row may be an understatement. The Pirates, who started their current series on Friday, play a total of ten games in nine days through Saturday afternoon, weather permitting.

With Christopher keeping Fairfield at bay, the Pirates jumped off to an early lead, scoring three times in the first.

Steve Sides led off with a single up the middle on the first pitch. Greg Hardison singled to right and moved up to second when the relay was errored at third. Todd Evans was hit by a pitch, loading the bases, and a wild pitch by stater Dave Caseria brought in Sides. Johnson walked, reloading the sacks and David Wells singled to center, scoring both Hardison and Evans.

Two more crossed for East Carolina in the third. With one away, Johnson doubled to right and Wells walked. With two down, Mike Williams tripled to right, driving in both runners.

The Pirates stretched it to 7-0 with another in the fourth. Sides was hit by a pitch — the second of three in the game. Then Hardison cracked the ball out of the park in right for a two-run homer.

The other run came in the seventh. Wells was hit by a pitch and Jeff Ginn singled. Williams reached on a fielder's choice as did Chris Bradberry, scoring Wells.

The Pirates threatened in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. In the sixth, Evans tripled to center, but died at third. Johnson got a second double in the fourth after Hardison's homer but also was left standing.

Fairfield put men in scoring position in each of the first three innings, but Christopher kept himself going by retiring the side each time without damage.

But in the eighth, Tom Reardon led off, reaching on a hit to deep short. John Martin followed with a double to left, and John LaPoint's infield out brought Reardon across for the Stags, giving them their only run of the afternoon.

The victory boosts the Pirates to 4-2 on the season, while Fairfield is now 0-1.

The two teams meet again this afternoon and Tuesday, both games set at 3 p.m. George Mason comes in for single games on Wednesday and Thursday, the first ECAC-South play for the Pirates, with Connecticut coming in for Friday and Saturday, closing out the current home stand.

Maryland's Win Ends Postseason Streak

By The Associated Press
Although top-ranked North Carolina takes one of the favorites' roles into the NCAA playoffs, it was Atlantic Coast Conference rival Maryland that won the league's tournament and ended a long postseason losing streak for Lefty Driesell.

Driesell, in his 15th year as Maryland coach, had lost in all five of his previous appearances in the ACC tournament finals. But the 14th-ranked Terrapins knocked off No. 16 Duke 74-62 for the title Sunday as Len Bias hit 12 of 17 field goal attempts and scored 26 points.

"Losing the championship game those five times before did not bother us that much," Driesell said. "I guess the good Lord wanted us to win it this time."

The flamboyant coach said at one time he had special plans to celebrate an ACC triumph.

"I said if I got the trophy, I was gonna screw it on the hood of my car and ride around North Carolina with it," Driesell said. "Now, I'm too old for that. I'm going home to get some sleep."

The victory at Greensboro, N.C., sparked plenty of postgame excitement among Maryland partisans. But Driesell took no part in the traditional net-cutting ceremony.

"I told (starting center) Ben Coleman don't strain your back," Driesell said. "I weigh 255."

Driesell's most recent ACC final appearance was in 1981, when the Terrapins lost by one point to North Carolina. Duke and Maryland met for the 1980 crown and the Blue Devils also prevailed by a single point.

In Sunday's other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 Houston edged No. 8 Arkansas 57-56 in the Southwest Conference tournament final and No. 11 Purdue trimmed Minnesota 63-62 in the Big Ten regular-season finale.

Duke, which upset North Carolina 77-75 in Saturday's semifinals when Dave Henderson hit four free throws in the final 42 seconds, led Maryland 30-27 at halftime. But Johnny Dawkins, who hit 7 of 11 shots in the first half, missed his first seven attempts after intermission and the Terrapins outscored the Blue Devils 31-15 for a 58-45 lead.

"We just seemed to run out of gas in the second half," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "Our jump shots were more like set shots and the fatigue factor had a lot to do with that."

North Carolina, despite its second loss of the season in the ACC semifinals, was made the No. 1 seed in the East Regional. Second-ranked Georgetown, an 82-71 overtime winner over Syracuse in the Big East Conference final, has to travel cross-country to be the top seed in the national tournament's West Regional.

"I hope we can build on this," Coach Dean Smith said after North Carolina's record fell to 27-2. "We're really going to work hard in practice to get ready for our first NCAA game."

The other top seeds in the regionals are No. 3 Kentucky in the Midwest and No. 4 DePaul in the Midwest. Kentucky tripped Auburn 51-49 in the Southeastern Conference tournament final and DePaul, in the final regular-season game for retiring Coach Ray Meyer, bombed Marquette 64-49.

The final Associated Press poll will be announced Tuesday.

In other Saturday games, No. 6 Oklahoma lost to Kansas 79-78 in the Big Eight final, No. 7 Illinois walloped Wisconsin 81-57, No. 9 Texas-El Paso beat New Mexico 44-38 in the Western Athletic Conference final, No. 10 Nevada-Las Vegas fell 51-49 to Fresno State in the Pacific Coast final, No. 12 Tulsa edged Creighton 70-68 in overtime in the Missouri Valley final, No. 17 Memphis State won the Metro tournament with a 78-65 triumph over Virginia Tech; No. 19 Wake Forest fell to Maryland in the ACC semifinals and No. 20 Oregon State defeated UCLA 70-65 in a regular-season finale.

Patrick Ewing scored nine of his 27 points in overtime, added 16 rebounds and keyed a 7-0 spurt at the start of the extra period with a three-point play to lead Georgetown past Syracuse in the Big East.

Syracuse Coach J. Jim Boeheim blasted the officials over a controversial call with 3:52 left in regulation. On a rebound, Syracuse's Andre Hawkins was pushed and apparently punched by Georgetown's Michael Graham. Official Dick Paparo ran toward the group of players with his thumb in the air, but a conference of the three officials produced a two-shot intentional shot and no ejection.

"The refs purely and simply took the game away from us," Boeheim said.

Kentucky, 26-4, needed Kenny Walker's turnaround 15-foot jumper that hit the front of the rim and went in at the buzzer to nip Auburn for the SEC title. The Wildcats trailed 49-46 with 4:18 remaining, but Melvin Turpin hit one of two free throws with 4:06 to go and, after a turnover, Sam Bowie's stuff on an alley-oop pass deadlocked the game with 2:29 left.

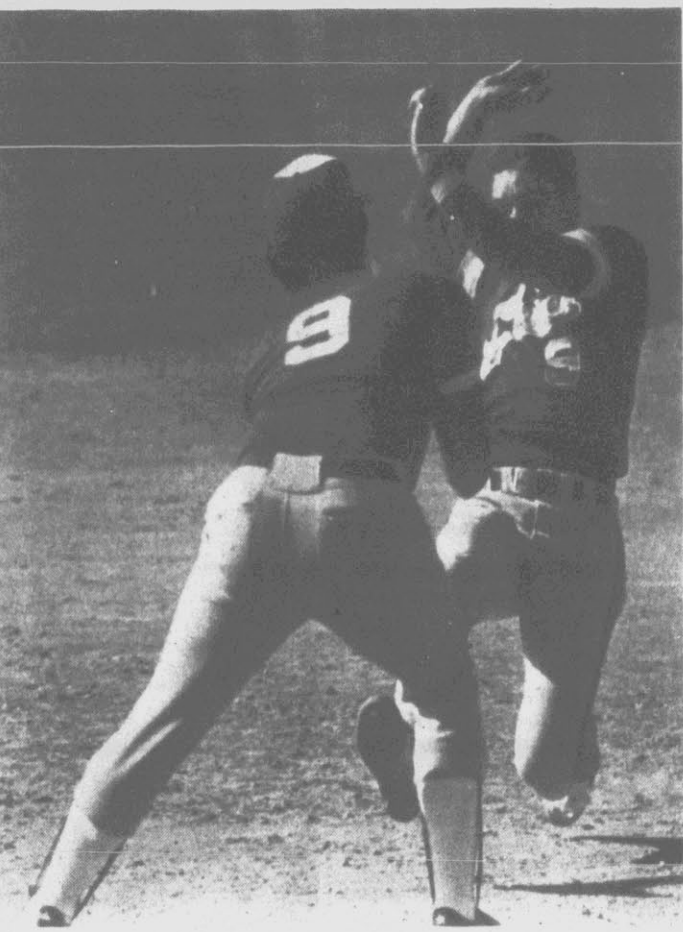

DePaul's Rosemont Horizon was the site of Meyer's regular-season farewell after 42 years as head coach, with a sellout crowd of 17,599 on hand. Kevin Holmes scored 17 points and Tyrone Corbin added 16 to make the final game a success and improve the Blue Demons' record to 26-2.

Meyer was showered with gifts in pregame ceremonies, including a rocking chair. There was also a gift and an embrace from another coaching legend, John Wooden, who guided UCLA to 10 NCAA championships before retiring in 1975.

"It was a great day and I'm so happy for the players," Meyer said. "Eighteen, 19 or 20 wins, I thought would be a great season. This is something I never dreamed of."

Akeem Olajuwon scored 15 points and blocked nine shots as Houston beat Rice 53-50 on Saturday. Then the Cougars won the SWC for the fourth straight year on Sunday when Michael Young scored 19 of his 23 points in the second half against Arkansas.

The Razorbacks, who downed Texas A&M 49-47 in the semifinals, had snapped the Cougars' 39-game conference winning streak a week ago. Arkansas had several chances to win in the final seconds, but two shots missed and a third, a tip-in by Leroy Sutton, was ruled to have occurred after the final buzzer.

Kite Plays Out Of Slump With Win

MIAMI (AP) — Tom Kite, who had a career history of frequent challenges and infrequent victories, talked himself right into a slump.

Kite — twice a Vardon Trophy winner, a former leading money-winner, probably the most consistent player in golf — got an early victory last year and began grinding in quest of another one.

"I was pressing, pressing, pressing, putting too much pressure on myself," he recalled Sunday after winning the Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament and going over the $2 million mark in career earnings.

"I was too intense, too intent on the golf course. I was tying myself in knots."

"I got in a slump, the only one of my life. I expected so much out of myself, and it wasn't happening, and I started taking it out on the people around me, biting everybody's head off. I wasn't much fun to live with."

"And I wasn't having any fun."

"It was six or seven months of temporary insanity."

And it came to an end when he changed his attitude, calmed down, relaxed and scored a two-stroke victory over Jack Nicklaus and a starry cast of supporting characters in the Doral-Eastern Open.

"I just made up my mind I was going to have fun no matter what happened," Kite said. "I was just going to go out and let it happen and have fun. And I did."

goes against the winner between Washington and Nevada-Reno.

In the East Region at Charlotte, N.C., first-round action on Thursday has Temple, 25-4, meeting St. John's, 18-11, and Auburn, 20-10, going against the preliminary round winner between Richmond, 20-9, and Rider, 20-10. North Carolina, 27-2, will take on the Temple-St. John's winner and Indiana, 20-8, will meet the winner between Auburn and Richmond-Rider on Saturday.

On Friday in East Rutherford, N.J., in the other East first-round games, Virginia, 17-11, meets Iona, 23-7, and Virginia Commonwealth, 22-6, meets the preliminary round winner between Northeastern, 26-4, and Long Island University, 20-10. The winner of that game gets Syracuse, 22-8, and Arkansas takes on the Virginia-Iona winner on Sunday.

ACC Lands Five In Field...

Also among the missing were Bucknell, 24-5; Tennessee-Chattanooga, 23-6; New Mexico, 24-10, and the one-time king of college hoops, UCLA. It's the first time the Bruins have not been invited to play in the NCAA Tournament since 1966, discounting when they were on probation two seasons ago.

The Big 10 and Southwest Conference each put three teams in the tourney. Dayton was the only independent taken besides DePaul.

One of the more intriguing matchups could occur early in the Midwest, where Kentucky and Louisville could meet in the regional semifinals in Lexington, Ky. Louisville Coach Denny Crum said he did not think the committee deliberately paired the two rivals from the Blue Grass State.

"The selection committee knows we play on a yearly basis now," Crum said. "If you want to win it all, you have to beat everyone anyway. So you just line them up and take them one at a time."

"The bracketing is tough every place for everyone," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall.

The preliminary round games in Philadelphia pit Northeastern against Long Island at 4 p.m. EST, Richmond against Rider at 7 p.m. and Princeton against San Diego at 9:30 p.m.. In Dayton, Morehead State goes against North Carolina A&T at 6:30 p.m. and Alcorn State meets Houston Baptist at 9 p.m.

The regional championships will be held in Lexington (Midwest), Los Angeles (West), Atlanta (East) and St. Louis (Midwest). In the semifinals March 31 at Seattle, it will be the Midwest champion vs. the West champion and the East winner against the champion of the Midwest.

The championship game in this, the richest NCAA Tournament ever, will be in Seattle April 2. NCAA staff officials estimate that teams eliminated in the opening or first rounds will receive about $153,500; reaching the regionals will be worth about $460,500, and the Final Four teams will each get more than $600,000.

First-round action in the Midwest begins Thursday at Birmingham with Alabama-Birmingham, 23-10, meeting Brigham Young, 19-10, and Oregon State, 22-6, going against West Virginia, 19-11. Top-seeded Kentucky, 26-4, gets the BYU-Birmingham winner on Saturday and third-seeded Maryland, the ACC postseason tournament champion, meets the Oregon State-West Virginia winner.

On Friday in Milwaukee, Louisville, 22-10, meets the preliminary round winner between Morehead State, 24-5, and North Carolina A&T, 22-6. Tulsa, 27-3, will await the winner on Sunday. Villanova, 18-11, and Marshall, 25-5, play in the other Midwest first-round game on Friday, with the winner meeting co-Big Ten champion Illinois, 24-4, on Sunday.

In first-round games in the West Region on Thursday in Salt Lake City, Nevada-Las Vegas, 27-5, faces the preliminary round winner between Ivy League champion Princeton, 17-9, and San Diego, 18-9; and Louisiana State, 18-10, meets Dayton 18-10. Texas-El Paso, 27-3, will take on the Vegas-Princeton-San Diego winner on Saturday, and Oklahoma, 29-4, will face the LSU-Dayton victor.

In Pullman, Wash., on Friday, Miami of Ohio, 24-5, meets Southern Methodist, 24-7, and Nevada-Reno, whose 17-13 record is the poorest in the tournament field, goes against Washington, 22-6. On Sunday, Georgetown, 29-3, gets the Miami-SMU winner, and Duke, 24-9,

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Dramatic events can occur where your emotional life is concerned, and you would be wise to be well rounded in your activities as possible. Delays and arguments could tie up your plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Your family will go along with your ideas until lunchtime. You want to build a new foundation to your living during daytime.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideas are good, and you can communicate with others well. Take time to establish harmony at home later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle financial matters that open up for you. Be careful in motion to avoid possible accident. Listen carefully.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Shop around for whatever you need personally, but later don't commit yourself financially to anything.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Handle private affairs during the daytime, but later try to be of more service to others. Schedule activities with your mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good friend can give you ideas for improving your romantic involvements, then get busy. Handle business matters well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A bigwig can give you the backing you need in the A.M. Don't be forceful with personal demands. Steer clear of pesky friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be careful before forming a personal alliance, and be sure of what you are getting into. Avoid bigwigs who are too demanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Delve into necessary reports. You are happy with your mate in the morning; don't run out in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a fine agreement with a partner, but later you may find it hard to meet the promises you have made.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Morning finds work going smoothly, but later an outside partner can be very demanding. Steer clear of any outside problems.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make appointments early for recreational matters, since tonight you have annoying tasks to handle. Get support from your loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who likes to help others with their problems and should have an education that will make the most of this ability. otherwise your progeny may be imposed upon. Religious training is a must.

'Mr. T' Targets

The Big Apple

NEW YORK (AP) — Muscular Mr. T from the television series "The A-Team" has brought his crime-busting ways to the Big Apple, and landlords who discriminate are his target.

In a public service message taped Sunday, Mr. T smashes down the door of a landlord who has refused to rent an apartment to a Hispanic couple. Then, as head of the New York City "T-Force" he warns that housing discrimination is against the law.

Laden with his usual diamond and gold jewelry, Mr. T is joined on the tape by members of the city's Fair Housing Task Force in telling viewers "The T-Force can open doors for you."

Later in the day, at a press conference, Mr. T was presented "The New York City Mr. T. Key."

Mr. T said he'd wear it around his neck.

Bob Giraldi, who directed Michael Jackson's recent soft-drink commercials, donated his time to put together the public service spot, which will be run on TV stations beginning in April.

LOSING MONEY

'Her Life As A Man' Has A Headline Appeal, But Little Else For Viewer

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — About the best thing going for NBC's "Her Life as a Man," which is about a woman who disguises herself as a man to get work, is that it is a curiosity, a television come-on straight out of a carnival freak show.

Step right up folks. Come see Robyn Douglass, a former Playboy covergirl, imitate a man. Come see Joan Collins make a pass at this woman in man's clothing. Come see Robert Culp play a sexist jerk, whose attitudes provoke a compliant woman into becoming a thoughtless man.

Something ventured; nothing learned.

Tonight's "Her Life as a Man" has headline appeal, but little underneath. Unlike "Tootsie," the character and audience in this don't gain significant insights from the sex-switch. In "Tootsie," Dustin Hoffman's character really grew from his masquerade and became a better man for having been a woman.

"Tootsie" was a film for the 1980s. This script wouldn't have been good 10 years ago, but it would have been more credible.

But the worst part of "Her Life as a Man" is that it's a comedy dud, rarely connecting with either its broad or subtle humor attempts.

The film was inspired by the real-life account of Carol Lynn Mithers, who chronicled her experiences for a 1982 Village Voice article. Miss Mithers has a bit part as a waitress tonight.

Carly Perkins (Miss Douglass) is a laid-off reporter. She feels qualified to apply for a feature writer's opening on a sports magazine. But editor Dave Fleming (Culp) says he already has a woman writer. End of interview.

Sex discrimination is a very serious issue, so why trivialize it by making the boss a buffoon who is fly-casting and cleaning his rifle during Carly's job interview?

The rebuff spurs her to try again, this time as a man, who's wearing a beard, moustache, hairpiece and tweed jacket. Carl Parsons gets the job, and Dave says he has a "sixth sense" that the new guy will be OK. This type of inside joke with the audience reflects the movie's limited sense of humor.

The best moments are when Carly's all-too understanding boyfriend, Mark (Marc Singer), puts her on a crash "masculinity" course. She practices the walk (a strut), beer-drinking (single-fisted, with gusto) and barroom pick-up technique, which she blows with the line: "So, come here often?"

As a man, Miss Douglass' individual features and mannerisms don't give her away immediately, but her shrill speech and over-all persona are not convincing. The actress, who was Dennis Christopher's hearthrob in the film "Breaking Away," says she patterned her voice after Bill Murray in "Stripes."

Judge for yourself, but she doesn't look like a man who can turn on Miss Collins, whose character, Pam

29-Year-Old TV Station Fight Ends

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last week, a rather remarkable saga in broadcasting came to an end with the announcement that WFTV-TV in Orlando, Fla., is being sold.

Hundreds of broadcast stations change hands in the United States every year, but WFTV, Orlando's Channel 9, holds a special distinction: it was the subject of the longest, most tangled licensing fight in the history of the Federal Communications Commission. The 29-year battle was resolved only when the competing applicants finally formed a permanent partnership.

Never have so many fought so long for the right to own a TV station. And now the fight has come full circle, with the partners agreeing to sell for $125 million to the SFN Cos. of Glenview, Ill.

"Fourteen of the original owners in the five partner corporations have died," says Walter M. Windsor, the general manager of WFTV since 1969. "Seventy-five individuals and-or estates are involved in the five different corporations. Old age, death and taxes are just catching up with them."

It is not unusual for regulatory agencies to be criticized for delay. But even FCC officials cringe at the mention of WFTV. Consider: —The first application for Orlando's Channel 9 was filed in 1952.

—In 1957, the Mid-Florida Television Corp. was granted authority to begin operations and the station went on the air Feb. 1, 1958.

—A short time later, Mid-Florida became caught up in a congressional probe of alleged improper contacts between one of its executives and an FCC commissioner. Court appeals were filed by a losing applicant. That was followed by new allegations that a Mid-Florida executive had been involved in a gambling ring, spawning further hearings and appeals.

—In 1965, a federal appeals court decided the case was so old the FCC had to start over and reopen the application process, which it did.

—On April 1, 1969, as the battle raged, the five competitors began running the station jointly on an interim basis.

—In 1978, the FCC's legal review board issued a new ruling that knocked Mid-Florida out of the running and awarded the license to TV 9 Inc.

—The case was once again appealed to the full commission, which was struggling with a decision when the applicants announced agreement on a permanent partnership. On June 30, 1981, the FCC gave its blessing.

"The FCC was glad to get rid of us, too," recalls Gordon Gray, a partner in TV 9 Inc. as well as the station's chairman. "The lawyers hated to see it end, but it was great news for the FCC. We finally settled because we were all getting old, and it was a certainty that someone was going to appeal again."

Gray was 60 when he got involved in the battle. He's now 78.

Souvenirs Not 'Toys'

RALEIGH (AP) — Many war souvenirs, particularly those from the Civil War, may be more dangerous now than when first used and have the potential to kill people who treat them like toys, police say.

Raleigh Police Sgt. J.W. Pierce, head of the department's hazardous devices unit, said black powder, used in several different items, becomes more unstable as it ages and is more likely to explode if heat or shock is applied.

"If you find it, it's probably live," said Billy G. Green, supervisor of the State Bureau of Investigation's hazardous devices unit. "If it went off, you're not going to find it. It may have been fired, but for some reason it didn't detonate."

SBI agents say souvenirs like hand grenades, cannon balls and rockets are more common than many people realize.

"We've been very fortunate here in Raleigh, but the potential is there because we see this stuff every week," Pierce said.

Though people often are frightened by the sight of dynamite, they are attracted to old military ordnance, Green said. Among the collection of confiscated items at SBI headquarters are a Vietnam-era Claymore mine, a few Parrot shells from the Civil War, several hand grenades, a 2.75-inch aerial rocket and a 60mm mortar round.

Most of the items are from World War II or earlier, Green said.

"As we get farther from World War II, we find less of this stuff," he said.

"For some reason, they're not scared of it," he said of collectors. "But it could kill you. Kids terrify me. The problem with kids is their curiosity."

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦K93 ♥K865 ♦10763 ♠85

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner must have a very strong hand to reverse at the three-level, vulnerable, when he knows you might have nothing. Therefore, we would try three no trump. We are reluctant to raise partner's suit because we don't know whether our major suit kings would be of any use to partner at a minor suit game.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦K9 ♥962 ♦Q1087 ♠A654

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ 2 ♦ Dble Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—There are only two possible reasons why partner pulled your penalty double. Either his hand is so strong that he does not think that the penalty will compensate for what your side might make; or his hand is distributional and he doesn't think he has the defensive values to allow the double to stand. Since he could do no better than rebid his suit, he almost surely has a weakish, distributional hand. You have some useful values for partner, but they are unlikely to be enough for game. Pass.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦K10763 ♥J652 ♦J ♠A98

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 NT
Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner's no trump in the balancing seat shows a hand of less than opening no trump strength — with a balanced 16-18 points he would double first and then bid no trump. Therefore, your side does not have the combined values for game. Pass, despite the unbalanced nature of your hand. Partner surely has values in diamonds, so no trump should be as good a contract as any.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦96 ♥AQ1095 ♦Q72 ♠654

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—Although you do not have enough to force to game, you may issue an invitation. The way to do that is to use the Stayman Convention. Bid two clubs. If partner responds two hearts, raise to three. If he bids two spades, bid two no trump. And if he denies a major with two diamonds, bid two hearts.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦Q9 ♥10763 ♦KQ6 ♠852

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the fact that you have not promised very much, partner is still probing for game. Only a supreme optimist would consider three no trump — partner has shown heart shortness and your holding hardly constitutes a stopper. Your duty

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

3-12

TUQLX LFAJLS VFFOFL BZLWI IJWW-
FS VFX HJQW ZUIJ BZLFOHTAF.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — WHICH MAKER OF PAPER DOLLS HAD HIS WORK CUT OUT FOR HIM?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals O.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

© 1984 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

now is to show your spade feature — since you did not support partner's first bid suit at either of your first two opportunities, he cannot expect more than you have. Bid three spades, but we won't criticize a jump to four spades — all your cards are working!

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦Q8 ♥KQ652 ♦Q8542 ♠6

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand has improved considerably, but you don't have enough to force to game. Therefore, we rule out any kind of jump. You have to settle for the underbid of.

two diamonds. Unless partner can make some move, we don't think you will be missing a game. (If you elected to rebid your hearts, you need to brush up on your basic bidding.)

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers.

Farm Scene

By MITCH SMITH
Agricultural Extension Agent

As the growing season continues to progress, many farmers are noticing the occurrence of yellow areas in their wheat fields. The areas may be seen as isolated spots or may exist randomly across the field. A closer examination of these areas may reveal some interesting findings.

One of the causes of plant yellowing is a deficiency of manganese. Manganese is an essential nutrient needed in small amounts. Its role is one of make-up in the chlorophyll molecule. When a plant becomes deficient in this element, it takes on a bleached appearance and may die if left untreated. Manganese deficiency can be corrected through an application of a dry fertilizer in the fall or foliar application in the spring. It should be noted that treatments are recommended when soil sample indexes are below 25.

Copper deficiencies may also cause yellowing of wheat. Copper, like manganese, is also needed in small amounts and is essential to enzyme activities within the plant. Plants which suffer from a deficiency of this element exhibit chlorosis and a curling of the leaves. These plants may also die if left untreated. Copper is supplied to a crop either through the application of a dry fertilizer or a foliar application. A dry fertilizer application in the fall is usually sufficient for several years whereas a foliar application lasts for only one season. If growers should choose to correct the problem through a foliar application, a one-half pound of actual copper per acre should be applied.

Freezing damage may also contribute to plant yellowing. This damage usually occurs in the sandiest portions of the field and the whole crop may exhibit bronzing of the leaf tips. Freezing damage may affect late-planted wheat but earlier-planted wheat is usually unaffected.

Although visual symptoms may accompany each problem, exact identification may require a plant analysis sample. Each sample costs $3 and should be accompanied by a soil sample for easier results. Mailing containers can be obtained through the Agricultural Extension Service in addition to more information on this subject.

Death Certificates Are Reclassified

By The Associated Press

A military spokesman says death certificates for U.S. Marines killed in a terrorist bombing in Beirut were amended to appease angry families of the bombing victims.

Survivors of the Marines killed in the bombing have received new death certificates showing the casualties have been reclassified as "killed in action."

Death certificates issued after the Oct. 23, 1983, bombing originally listed the deaths as "non-battle" casualties.

"We're using KIA because of the furor caused over the administrative code," said Capt. Jay Farrar, a Marine Corps public affairs officer. Farrar said the change does not affect the status of the 241 deaths or survivors' benefits.

"We always knew and always listed in our manual that these individuals died in a hostile action," he said.

Some of the first death certificates listed an administrative code category of "DAI" for "death, accidental injury." Even after DAI was dropped, families continued to protest the "non-battle" casualty status.

A March 18 memorial service is planned in Jacksonville for the 262 Marines and sailors killed in Lebanon, including the 241 terrorist bombing victims.

More than 100 families are expected to watch the dedication of pear trees that have been planted along Lejeune Boulevard in honor of the Beirut dead.

Among those expected at the Arbor Day ceremony is Lt. Gen. John H. Miller, commanding general of Fleet Marine Force Atlantic, the second ranking officer in the Marine Corps.

A separate ceremony outside the Lutheran Church of Our Saviour will include remarks by Col. Tim Geraghty, who commanded the Marine unit that was hit by the truck bomb.

It will mark the first public statements by Geraghty since December, when a Pentagon commission gave a scathing review of Geraghty and fellow officers' performance in Beirut.

President Reagan has ordered all troops out of Beirut, except for 100 embassy guards. Marines stationed around Beirut Airport were moved to ships offshore.

Urge Raze Or Rebuild

The community development committee of the Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce is interested in having abandoned barns, tennant houses and other buildings either torn down or rebuilt.

Peter Long, ENCCC's community development chairman said thousands of abandoned barns and tenant houses dot the landscape along roads in eastern North Carolina.

They go unnoticed by local residents who ride by them every day, Long said. But they present an unpleasant picture to tourists, industrial prospects and others, Long suggested.

Abandoned buildings, according to Long, director of economic development for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., "cast a negative pall over the landscape for those who visit us."

Solar Fraction

The solar fraction for this area yesterday, computed by the East Carolina University Department of Physics, was 90. This means that a solar water heater could have provided 90 percent of your hot water needs.

REVIVAL

Revival will be held at the New Hope Church in Parmele starting tonight and continuing through Friday. Eldress Lillie Bryant of Baltimore, Md., will speak and various choirs will be present. Services will start at 8 p.m.

Cry Uncle

A New York cartoonist introduced the modern "Uncle Sam"—complete with beard and top hat—on this day in 1852. But this popular symbol dates back to the War of 1812. Samuel Wilson, a meatpacker, stamped the initials "U.S." on his crates. His workers joked that they stood for Uncle Sam. In 1961, Congress made Uncle Sam a national symbol. During the Revolutionary War, Americans saw themselves as a character called Brother Jonathon.

DO YOU KNOW — Who painted the famous "I Want You" Uncle Sam poster?

Desperate Rivals...

the desires of special interests to be able to govern effectively.

To date, Mondale has 148 delegates supporting his nomination, while Hart is second with 27. Glenn has 17. Those figures include delegates chosen by the House Democratic caucus, but do not include the eight for Hart and four for Mondale given in preliminary estimates from the results of voting in Wyoming caucuses on Saturday.

A total of 511 delegates are at stake on Tuesday in the nine states and in voting in American Samoa and by Democrats Abroad, an organization of registered Democrats living outside the country.

Mondale flatly predicted late last week that he will win the Alabama primary. He refused to make any predictions about Florida and Georgia.

Hart spent little time in the South before the New Hampshire primary, but he has moved up dramatically in state polls in the region since then.

After the debate, Glenn said he thought Hart's rivals were "finally getting down to filling in some of that blank slate that came out of New Hampshire with such a big win. And I think that when people look at what they see I think they'll find they don't want the big spending, weak on defense. I think that they're going to see that my position is more in harmony with people in the South."

Once considered in a close race with Mondale, Glenn has suffered after disappointing finishes in the early contests.

He attacked both Hart and Mondale during the debate as proposing to "cut our defense establishment beyond all reality." Then he zeroed in on Hart's defense proposals as showing "a lack of understanding where you don't have the experience."

Mondale called Hart "weak" on arms control and said the senator was "naive" when he suggested in an earlier debate that the United States should not commit military force to maintain the flow of oil from the Persian Gulf.

Jackson said that instead of preparing to fight, defense planners ought to be "preparing to live." He also chastised both Hart and Mondale for refusing to commit themselves to choosing a woman for the vice presidential nomination.

McGovern also jabbed at his former campaign manager, Hart.

"I think some legitimate questions have to be asked when the issue is posed as Gary has," said McGovern. "He says the election is a contest between the future and the past ... I'm an old history teacher. I've always revered the past."

A.D. Frank Rites Held

HERMITAGE, TENN. — Memorial services were held here Sunday for Dr. Arthur Dewitt Frank, retired former director of the social services department and longtime faculty member at East Carolina University.

Dr. Frank died at his retirement home in this Nashville suburb Saturday. He was 94 years old. Death followed complications from a broken hip and an infection, according to family and friends. The body was cremated and the ashes returned to Boca Raton in accordance with wishes of Frank and his wife, friends said.

A native of Savannah, Tenn., Frank served 34 years on the faculty of the then East Carolina Teachers College and East Carolina College, which became East Carolina University in 1967. He retired in 1958 and moved to Boca Raton, Fla., where he lived with his wife, Edith P. Frank, until her death in 1982.

Frank was educated at Memphis State University, George Peabody College and the University of Chicago, and held the PhD in history from Columbia University.

"He considered his greatest contribution to East Carolina University was the building of one of the strongest history departments in the South," Dr. Richard C. Todd, ECU professor emeritus of history, said. "He recruited and brought to East Carolina the strongest faculty in terms of teaching, research and scholarship, and took great pride in what he considered to be the finest department of any school of its size."

Frank headed the Course of Study committee, the committee on athletics and during the post-World War II years, the Veteran's Committee. He served as chairman of the Standards Committee of the N.C. College Conference and was a member of many local civic and cultural organizations.

The A.D. Frank Seminar Room in ECU's Brewster building is named in his honor.

Todd said memorial gifts are being made through the ECU Foundation to the ECU Student Emergency Aid Fund and to the ECU Department of History.

today for parts of South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska.

The snow was expected to spread into the Ohio Valley and the Great Lakes region and a winter storm watch was issued for tonight and Tuesday across western and southwest New York.

Meanwhile, heavy thunderstorms late Sunday night and early today erupted across central and southwest Texas and Oklahoma and produced hail up to 2 inches in diameter at Leon Springs, Texas, near San Antonio.

The thunderstorm poured 1.53 inches of rain on Fort Worth, Texas, and 1.49 on Dallas.

Hail the size of golf balls peppered Victoria, Texas, and strong winds tore the roof off a convenience store and a barn. Heavy rains caused some flash flooding in the San Antonio area.

Rain showers dotted the Pacific Northwest.

The national forecast for today called for snow scattered from the Northern Rockies, through the Northern Plains into the Great Lakes and Ohio valley.

Rain and a few thunderstorms were expected from the Gulf coast states into the Tennessee Valley and over the Pacific Northwest.

Bitter cold temperatures were expected to linger over the northern states were readings in the teens from the northern Rockies to New England.

Readings in the 30s and 40s were expected from the Central Plains to the mid-Atlantic and in the 50s and 60s in the southern states. Temperatures in Florida, southern Texas, and Southern California were warming into the 70s and 80s.

Temperatures at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 21 below zero at Marquette, Mich., to 73 at Key West, Fla.

Charged With Embezzlement

A first appearance hearing was scheduled for today in District Court for Wanda Phillips Johnson, charged with embezzlement of funds from W. H. Robinson School in Winterville.

Ms. Johnson, assistant cafeteria manager at the school, has been charged with the embezzlement of $3,771 in school cafeteria funds. A spokesman for the State Bureau of Investigation said Ms. Johnson was arrested and charged Saturday following a two-week investigation period.

She has been released from jail following the posting of bond.

Ms. McRae said the endorsement of a candidate begins on the district level and is recommended to the state association. She said she represented NCAE President Frances Cummings of Lumberton in making the campaign contribution with Ms. Stocks.

Jones, first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1966, is opposed in his re-election bid by state Rep. John Gillam of Windsor.
