Lebanese Rivals Still Seek A Formula

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Lebanon's rival Christian and Moslem leaders resumed formal negotiations today after a 24-hour break to talk privately about compromise proposals for a post-civil war political structure.

Sources at the national reconciliation conference said the nine main participants were making progress in the search for a common plan for political and economic changes that would meet halfway key demands by pro-government Christian leaders and the Moslem-dominated opposition.

During much of the night, participants met behind closed doors in their suites for lengthy head-to-head talks, trying to reconcile differences between the Christians, who are demanding a federal system of government, and the Syrian-backed opposition, which wants a united and secularized Lebanon.

The participants began discussing proposed political changes Wednesday, after agreeing Tuesday night on terms for a cease-fire in Lebanon.

In Beirut today, only sporadic sniping was reported along the "green line" dividing the capital into Christian East and Moslem West. Radio stations said there were several explosions near the line late Wednesday of unknown origin, but there were no reports of injuries.

During the recess in Lausanne, Syrian Vice President Abdul Halim Khaddam held separate private meetings with Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, and Nabih Berri, commander of the Shiite Moslem militia Amal.

Khaddam, who won tribute Wednesday from a Lebanese government spokesman for playing a "very constructive role" as mediator, was guest of honor at a dinner Wednesday to which Gemayel had invited all participants.

Sources said Khaddam and another "observer" at the conference,

Saudi Arabia's Rafik Hariri, joined in efforts to make the various factions accept a common paper for possible consideration at today's full session.

Sources said a compromise envisaged by the mediators would provide for decentralizing the government administration and ending the 40-year-old system of assigning public offices on the basis of religious affiliations.

However, they said all parties apparently would leave unchanged the traditional way of filling the three top executive posts — with the presidency reserved for a Maronite Christian, the prime minister's job going to a Sunni Moslem, and the presidency of parliament going to a Shiite.

A Moslem moderate, who declined to be named, said the projected compromise also provided for creating three additional deputy premierships to satisfy the demands of other religious communities in the multidemocratic country.

Sources said opposition demands that a senate be created to join the present one-chamber parliament in electing a president seemed to find little backing from mediators.

Issues yet to be resolved reportedly include a demand by both Berri and Jumblatt that the presidential term be shortened from the present six years to a once-renewable three years. Berri has said this point and the comprehensive "secularization" of Lebanon were non-negotiable.

The pro-Christian group, apparently concerned that a sharp curtailment of presidential powers might result, has ruled out so far any reduction of the president's term.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Communications Minister Mordechai Zipori Wednesday denied that Israel was playing a behind-the-scenes role at the Lausanne talks, Israeli Radio said.

The Beirut newspaper An-Nahar had reported that Israelis in Lausanne had warned Gemayel that Israel would disrupt the new cease-fire in Lebanon unless he negotiated a new security pact with Israel to replace the one he scrapped earlier this month.

Campaign HQ Opened By Edmisten Here Yesterday

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Rufus Edmisten opened his campaign headquarters here yesterday afternoon, following an all-day tour of communities of Pitt County.

The opening, which included a ribbon-cutting by Edmisten flanked by two of his prime local supporters, Charles Vincent and John Bizzell, was a gala event attended by more than 100 well-wishers. It was held in a building located at the corner of Tenth Street and Dickinson Avenue. Red, white and blue cake was served and a boat with "I'm for Rufus" emblazoned on its sail graced a corner of the building.

Prior to the 3 p.m. opening, he and his entourage had visited Greenville, Winterville, Ayden, Grifton, Farmville, Fountain, Bethel, and Stokes. He told listeners each place of his need for their support and introduced his new wife, Linda. At Stokes he emphasized farm concerns, telling the group he and his father own a farm in the mountains of North Carolina, "nothing like your wonderful farms down here. Up there it's hard to get five acres of ground flat enough to plant anything."

He said he will work against further tax on tobacco "because tobacco farmers are having a hard enough time as it is," and encourage the development of governmental policy to keep as much land as possible in farming.

He said he will go wherever he needs to go and do whatever he needs to do as governor to provide more markets for North Carolina products by "increasing our exports and improving our state's balance of trade." He will encourage more funding for basic research and development that will lead to more use of N.C. commodities, he promised.

He said secondary roads will demand his attention. "We need to (Please turn to Page 8)

Picnic Shelter For Park Gets Approval

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposal by a contingent of citizens to construct a large picnic shelter with tables, seats and outdoor grill at the Thomas Foreman Park received unanimous approval of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission Wednesday night.

The Foreman Park is at the site of the old Epps High School property on West Fifth Street.

Shirley Sheppard, Bennie Roundtree and Dee Smith, representing the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Concerned Citizens Group, presented the proposal. SCLC and the citizens group want to conduct a fund-raising campaign for money to construct the facility "that will be donated as a memorial to the city of Greenville," according to Roundtree.

With this initial approval by the Recreation and Parks Commission, the next step is to present the proposal to the City Council for its action. Once approval by that body is received, construction could begin.

Recreation and Parks Department Executive Director Boyd Lee explained to commissioners that such a facility would have to be constructed under guidelines of applicable city building and zoning codes and regulations, a fact which had earlier been explained in a meeting he had with representatives of the SCLC and concerned citizens. Lee added that when the facility was completed and dedicated, it would be operated under the control of the department as are all other park facilities.

"There is tremendous enthusiasm for the project in the community," Ms. Sheppard commented. "This would provide a place where family reunions and other large community gatherings could be held. Lots of people have expressed a desire to contribute memorial funds to this project."

Smith said "we hope to raise funds to build a shelter that will accommodate about 300 people." Roundtree said "there's nothing of any size like this in Greenville. If a big group wants to get together, it has to go to Farmville or Kinston. We want something like this for ourselves in Greenville."

There is a picnic shelter at Thomas Foreman Park which will accommodate 40 people. Lee said that, if the proposed 300 person facility proved to be too expensive, plans could easily be scaled down to a smaller shelter that could be used in conjunction with the just-completed new shelter.

Commission members expressed appreciation for the offer, calling it an example of community interest and action that would set an excellent example in Greenville.

In another action, board members approved a contractual agreement with Pitt Community College for continuance of the arts and crafts program. The program, at the Community Center on Greene Street offers a variety of arts and crafts programs for adults in the area.

The new agreement is similar to the one that has been in effect for several years. It permits charging the standard non-resident fee to persons living outside Greenville city limits in addition to the particular fee charged for individual courses. Persons enrolling in the course must be at least 18, and those 65 and older will not be charged course fees.

Pitt Community College will be responsible for procuring qualified instructors, and drawing up contracts for their services.

In a report on the status of plans for a Nature Center building at River Park North, Lee reported that the City Council has endorsed the project. City Council members had hoped that funds to begin work on the center would be available at an early date from a planned sale of city bonds. However, bonding officials in New York, where the bonds are being sold, disqualified the proposed center as a permissible use of funds due to guidelines that prohibit use of city bond funds for construction of museums, "which is what they interpret the center as being," Lee commented.

The principal attraction of the proposed center will be a planetarium. "Not getting funds immediately is disappointing," Lee said. "However, I feel we will be seeing action soon. Hopefully, the city, the (East Carolina) university and the county will all be supporting plans for the center."

In his monthly report, Lee noted that the first instances of vandalism of the coin-operated boxes have taken place. Concessions were broken into at South Greenville and at Foreman Park. "It took $105 to repair the two damaged machines," Lee said. "The ironic thing is that the vandals didn't get a single penny, because park rangers remove all money from the machines daily as part of their routine work."

CAMPAIGNERS SPEEDING?

I have observed that the political candidates visiting us now get from place to place in a mighty big hurry. Traveling 55 myself, I have observed more than one of them, in their local supporter-chauffeured cars, passing me and everyone else on the road. I cannot think that arriving at any political rally on time is as important as protecting the life and limb of one person any one of them might harm. I request that they schedule their gatherings farther apart and take their time and that our highway patrolmen hold them within the bounds of our traffic laws here and elsewhere in the state. They're no more above the law than anybody else. L.T.

Hutchins Asks Attorneys To Abandon Fight For Life

RALEIGH (AP) — Attorneys for condemned murderer James W. Hutchins say they tried "very hard" but were unable to persuade their client to allow them to continue fighting for his life.

Hutchins asked his attorneys Wednesday not to proceed with appeals aimed at delaying his execution by lethal injection, scheduled for 2 a.m. on Friday, defense attorney Joseph B. Cheshire said.

If the execution is carried out, Hutchins, 54, who was convicted of killing three Rutherford County law enforcement officers, will be the first person put to death in 22 years in North Carolina, and the first by lethal injection.

"He wants to be in control of his destiny. He wants to be at peace. He wants to have dignity at the end. He doesn't want them to have the opportunity to say no to him again," Cheshire said after meeting for about 15 minutes with Gov. Jim Hunt on Wednesday.

Cheshire said he talked with Hunt about the possibility of commuting his client's sentence, but Hunt gave no indication of what he will do. Hunt said later he would announce his decision today.

Cheshire said he gave Hunt a 25- to 30-page petition for clemency signed by more than a dozen people, including members of Hutchins' family. Cheshire said Hutchins knew he was going to see the governor.

"Mr. Hutchins asked we not beg the governor and we have not begged the governor," Cheshire said. "He had told me he knew it was the governor's decision."

Cheshire said Hutchins first asked him to drop the appeals Tuesday and repeated his request Wednesday, despite hours of discussions with his attorneys about legal options still available.

"Of course, we were not sure if it was an emotional reaction to the 4th Circuit decision. We tried very hard to talk him (Hutchins) out of it," Cheshire said.

Another defense attorney, Thomas Manning, spent about an hour and a half with Hutchins Tuesday night to discuss legal remedies still available. Cheshire said Hutchins repeated his hope that attorneys would not

ECU Medical School Gets Cancer Grant

A cancer grant amounting to $3,872 has been given to the East Carolina University School of Medicine from the Department of North Carolina Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The grant represented 10 percent of the total contribution raised by the Department of N.C. in 1982-83 which was mailed to the National Headquarters of the Ladies Auxiliary to VFW. This makes a total of $9,235 that has been presented to the medical school.

Accepting the grant was Dr. Spencer O. Raab, professor of medicine, ECU School of Medicine and section head, division of hematology-oncology. It was presented by Frances Church, past state president, and Belle Boyles, past state cancer chairman, during 1982-83.

The $5,363 was given to the school from the year Ms. Boyles served as state president.

The presentation was made at a dinner meeting of Ladies Auxiliary to VFW in Kinston last week.

Special guests were State President Marie Deaton and Billie Holcomb, state secretary-treasurer. National Conductress, Joan Katkus, of the Ladies Auxiliary to VFW from Wasilla, Ala., was the national representative and told of up-dated information on the national level and represented Harriet Timmons of Hugo, Colo., national president.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

I opened up my desk drawer the other day and realized I have 37 billfold-sized pictures of small, dimpled babies sitting on shag rugs and in bathtubs chewing on something and looking adorable.

They have one thing in common.

All of them have grandmothers with camera hands who are my age or younger and who have seen fit to rub it in.

It isn't bad enough I have to tromp through miles of toys at Christmas with these women, listen to how they threw their little angel arms around Grandma's neck and said, "I wub you mamaw," or shuffle through 30 pounds of polaroids. I also have to be reminded that if my kids don't get off the dime — and soon — I will be the only grandmother who can't feed herself.

A mother in Austin, Minn., wrote that she had had it with grandmothers cornering her with the latest snapshots, so she took picture of anerosol can of furniture wax and a bottle of detergent. Now whenever they turn to her and say, "Where are the pictures of your grandchildren?" she whips out the picture and says, "Here they are... My Pride and my Joy."

Since I began writing about the reluctance of young people to give their mothers the revenge they so desperately need, scores of women have written wanting answers to the problem. Why are young people putting off having babies?

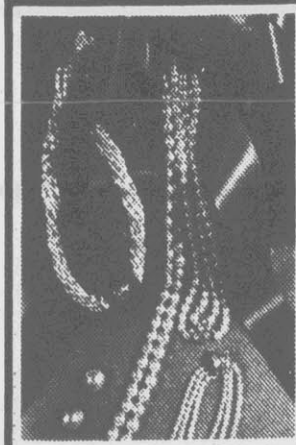

A statistic sticks in my mind from somewhere that out of a group of young married surveyed, nearly 80 percent of their parents were still married and in fact were considered by them to be role models.

It's only a question, then, of did that vast group of non-grandparents frighten their children with their perfection? Or their imperfection?

Speaking only for myself, I'm sure it was my perfection.

Who could possibly measure up to all the good times I had mothering? Taking a birthday cake hot from the oven at 11:24 at night and stuffing it into a yawning mouth saying, "Eat! In 36 minutes, it won't be your birthday anymore."

Washing the dog in tomato juice when he encountered a skunk. Sitting through a concert of "battling French horns."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Sister Was Out Of Line To Visitors

DEAR ABBY: My husband, children and I were visiting my sister and her husband (out of town) at their invitation.

Just as we were sitting down to dinner, which was already on the table, a couple of neighbors en route to their own home from work stopped by to say hello. My sister invited them to join us for dinner, but they said they could only stay a minute. However, they did accept my brother-in-law's invitation to have a cocktail.

My sister had put a lot into her dinner, which was getting cold, and the children were getting hungry. When these neighbors were on their second cocktail, I said to my sister, "Our dinner is getting cold."

The couple left rather hurriedly. Then my brother-in-law said to me, "That wasn't very nice. You practically told them to leave." My sister sided with her husband.

Abby, do you think I was out of line? And how should this have been handled.

STRAIGHTFORWARD

DEAR STRAIGHT: Yes, I think you were out of line. As a guest, it wasn't your place to get rid of the drop-ins. Your sister should have said, "Since you can't have dinner with us, please sit and have your cocktails while we have our dinner — it's already on the table."

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 13-year-old girl and I don't want to brag, but people tell me I've got a great body. I don't care for guys my own age. They are so immature; they seem like babies.

The guy I really like is a graduate student at a college near here. He's 23. I'm not supposed to date, so I have to do a lot of sneaking around to see him, and then it can only be on the weekend in the afternoon because I have to be home by 5:30.

Well, last Saturday I was over at his apartment. I kept asking him what time it was, and he kept checking his watch and lying to me. I didn't get home until nearly 7:30.

Congress May Tighten Reins On Support Avoiders

By LINDA WERFELMAN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backers of proposals to strengthen child support enforcement laws predict lawmakers will pass one of the bills within the next few months to help collect $4 billion in support checks that go unpaid every year.

The House already has voted its unanimous approval of one measure, which calls for the states to withhold the wages of absent parents who are more than a month behind on court-ordered child support payments.

Senate action is expected this month on either that bill or one of several similar proposals now being reviewed by the Senate Finance Committee.

"Child support is largely being ignored, and the economic well-being of children is suffering," committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., said during a January hearing on the matter. "Children deserve support, and we can help by putting more muscle in the child support enforcement program."

Like the House-passed bill, proposals before the Finance Committee also would provide for state child welfare agencies to use wage deductions to collect late support payments from absent parents.

In cases involving welfare families, the bills also would require the states to reduce the size of state income tax refunds for parents who have not kept up with their child support payments. Similar action would be encouraged in non-welfare cases.

But the bills differ in several areas, including how soon various provisions would be implemented, how much time would have to elapse before state agencies would begin making wage deductions, and how much the federal government would pay to offset state costs of running the program.

Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler has been urging Congress for months to approve an administration proposal, which includes provisions to divert $200 million in federal money from operating costs to a special fund to reward states that do a good job in collecting support payments.

"Currently, the flow of federal dollars to the states is based on what states spend, not the results they achieve," Mrs. Heckler told the Finance Committee. "We believe that a performance-oriented incentive is essential to improving and strengthening state child support enforcement programs."

She has repeatedly cited government estimates that absent parents dodge child support payments totaling $4 billion a year and Census Bureau reports indicating that more than half the families entitled to child support are not receiving the amount due them.

Rep. Barbara Kennelly, D-Conn., sponsor of the House bill, said final passage of a child support enforcement package is needed to aid children who are living in poverty because their parents have refused to provide for them.

"They are not only entitled to support from their parents, they are entitled to support from us," she said.

Under the current system, they often do not get that support because of outdated enforcement methods, which rely on busy state child support agencies and courts. Mrs. Heckler said.

Officials in her department blame the problem in part on a heavy backlog in the courts that can contribute to delays of several months before a judge has time to hear child support cases.

Before the matter reaches the court, the parent living with the children — usually the mother — must contact the state child support enforcement agency to report the non-payment problem and provide whatever information she has on the absent father.

State and federal parent locator services then search government records to find out where the father is living, try again to collect the money and take him to court if he does not pay.

Dastardly Deed

We really can't condone the dastardly deed perpetrated by someone who apparently doesn't like gubernatorial hopeful D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth. It wasn't ethical, probably wasn't legal, to steal Faircloth's "non-public" driving record from the state Division of Motor Vehicles. It was even less nice for that someone to mail that driving record around the state.

We can't condone the action; but Faircloth's driving record truly is interesting. Until now Rep. Ike Andrews seemed to hold the record for bad driving among North Carolina politicians. But at this point, the congressman — with the exception of his tipping while driving — can't even light a candle for Faircloth.

Faircloth, according to the DMV record, has been convicted of 32 traffic violations — mostly for speeding — in the last 28 years.

We're not even going to ask how he retained his driver's license, nor apparently is the DMV, which was more interested in giving employees lie detector tests to find out who leaked the record.

With Faircloth's record, undoubtedly it will be a speedy investigation.

Rural Character

Periodically, an organization seeking improvement of eastern North Carolina's image urges the razing or rebuilding of abandoned old structures that dot the landscape.

This time it is the community development committee of the Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce calling for a cleanup of the countryside. We like the idea of removing those depressing eyesores, too. There are so many of them they can only create an unfavorable image in the eyes of visitors.

Those old timbers might be of value as fuel for some of the needy next winter; but that alibi for leaving them standing (or leaning) until fall wouldn't do much in the way of removing eyesores now.

They've got to go; at the same time we trust a few old-timers are left standing. Some abandoned barns add character to a countryside.

He was 23, a young intellectual, already fluent in German and French. He had seen some of the world from the railway tracks. In his innocence, Chambers saw communism as a kind of universal brotherhood in which the gulf between great wealth and grinding poverty could be bridged. He had the soul of a revolutionary.

Chambers stayed in the Communist Party for 13 years. Most of this time was spent in undisguised party labor. He wrote for the Daily Worker and was briefly editor of New Masses. Then, in the summer of 1932, the party ordered him to go underground. He became a courier in the Soviet apparatus of espionage, and for five years Chambers was a traitor to his own country. He was a spy.

His duties were to collect documents from communists who had infiltrated the U.S. government, to have the documents photographed, and to transmit them to his Soviet masters in Moscow. In the course of this clandestine work, Chambers' principal source was Alger Hiss, an urbane and brilliant young star in the State Department.

On the surface, Hiss was everything that Chambers was not. Hiss was slim, elegant, polished; Chambers was pudgy, rumped, peasant-faced. Hiss was Johns Hopkins and Harvard Law, a former clerk to Justice Holmes, counsel to a Senate committee. Hiss was the very model of a model New Deal Democrat. In time he would counsel Roosevelt at Yalta; he would help to draft the charter of the United Nations. Yet Hiss, too, was a spy.

In 1937 Chambers broke from the party. Metaphorically he had heard the screams of the victims of Stalin's purge. He had undergone the kind of religious experience that staggered Saul on his road to Damascus. He had discovered the existence and dominion of God. Chambers went into hiding for two years, but within 48 hours after Stalin made his pact with Hitler, Chambers was in Washington to inform on his Communist associates. This led indirectly to his testimony in 1948 before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The dramatic story of those hearings, at which Chambers under oath identified Hiss as a Communist spy, is best gained from Chambers' book, "Witness." Hiss subsequently was indicted for perjury, convicted and sentenced to prison. To this day, Hiss remains a hero among left-wing intellectuals. One of them, Philip Geyelin of The Washington Post, recently denounced President Reagan for the award to Chambers. To the ultra-liberal left, Chambers to this day is the "wimp" who "rat- ted" on Alger Hiss.

Chambers died of heart disease in 1961. He had given his life — almost literally his life — to expose the evils of communism. He had forfeited a prestigious position as a senior editor of Time. He had suffered terrible vilification from the intellectual community. He felt he had failed in his desperate, self-sacrificing effort to arouse the West.

"It is idle to talk about the wreck of Western civilization," he wrote to Bill Buckley in 1954. "It is already a wreck from within. That is why we can hope to do little more now than snatch a fingernail of a saint from the rack or a handful of ashes from the faggots, and bury them secretly in a flowerpot against the day, ages hence, when a few men begin again to dare to believe that there was once something else, that something else is thinkable, and need some evidence of what it was, and the fortifying knowledge that there were those who, at the great nightfall, took loving thought to preserve the tokens of hope and truth."

This was Whittaker Chambers. No one who has received the Medal of Freedom has more richly deserved it.

taxes, bigger government, increased spending and soaring inflation.

That same day, he made time for the newspapers' interview. Their stories appeared in Tuesday editions.

Why were newspapers from those states chosen? And why that day?

"Because they have primaries today," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Tuesday.

On Tuesday morning, the president made a speech to the Young Leadership Conference of the United Jewish Appeal.

The focus was the Middle East. But even so, the president, as he does in almost all public addresses, squeezed in a political message, observing that "just three years ago, our nation was an economic disaster area."

But today, he said, "America's economic engine is pulling this nation forward again."

Public Forum

To the editor:

With reference to your editorial against the school prayer amendment, 3/11/84, let us get to the issue at hand.

The First Amendment to the Constitution simply says that the U.S. Congress or government shall not: (1) establish a religion, or (2) prohibit the free exercise of one's religion.

Separation of church and state is not mentioned in the Constitution or Bill of Rights. Only Russia has this provision.

With the striking down of prayer in public schools in 1962, the Supreme Court, along with subsequent decisions by federal courts, has gone too far as the following examples show:

- In Lubbock, Texas, a Bible Club was forbidden to meet in high school, even though it was voluntary and outside class hours.
- A picture of the Bible Club in a Florida high school annual was ordered removed by the principal.

The above federal court decision, and many others like them, are in sharp contrast to our religious rights stated in the Constitution.

The current prayer amendment in Congress for approval will only ensure that the First Amendment rights will not be misunderstood and abused. Its main points are:

- No individual or group prayers are prohibited in public schools or institutions.
- No person is required by the U.S. or any state to participate in prayer.
- The U.S. or any state shall not compose the words of any prayer for use in public school.

More than 80 percent of the people in the U.S. want voluntary prayer for their children in public schools, according to several Gallup polls.

Your voice is an influence on the people of this area. It is only right that you give adequate coverage to our freedoms that are being threatened.

Don't you see that the real issue at stake is the restoring of freedoms guaranteed by the Constitution of the U.S.?

Strength For Today

Lloyd George, the doughty Welshman who as prime minister guided England through the first world war, was speaking one evening at a hall in Wales when a brick crashed through a window and fell at his feet. The prime minister, internationally known as a wit, picked up the brick and, dramatically holding it aloft, exclaimed, "Behold the only argument of our opponents!"

A mistaken idea may hold up for a while, but eventually it is repudiated. If an idea is sound, sticks and stones and hurled bricks will never drive it from the face of the earth. If the only argument people have against a valid idea is violence, curses or cynical remarks, such tactics will eventually prove futile. Truth is not driven from the earth in any such fashion.

Those who utilize such methods in the long run do not hurt the truth; these people only reveal the shallowness of their minds and spirits.

Face To Face, With A Computer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan sat at the kindergarten desk and found himself staring at a computer screen. It was an unsettling experience for the 73-year-old president, who is in the midst of a re-election campaign that could bring him face to face with a 47-year-old Democrat who calls himself the candidate of "new ideas."

Several hours after sitting down with the youngsters at an elementary school on the outskirts of the nation's capital, Reagan said in a speech back at the White House that "the most humbling experience was in the kindergarten. The kindergarten computer class."

"I don't know the first thing about those things, but those 5-year-olds did. There they all sat in front of their computers. Finally, the one I was sitting beside said, 'Go ahead and push the button.' I was scared to death," the president said.

The visit to the Congress Heights elementary school was hardly a leading event on anyone's political calendar. But sitting there at the undersized desk, surrounded by kindergarten students using computers for their earliest school lessons, Reagan was caught in a contrast with Gary Hart, who has raced into a front position in the contest for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination.

Hart, the senator from Colorado who is locked in a battle with Walter F. Mondale, is offering his vision of a high-tech future in the campaign, trying to draw a distinction between himself and the former vice president and the current president.

Reagan, who has focused his campaign, so far, against Mondale, has stressed his own optimism for the future — as he did in the 1980 presidential campaign — while looking backward to the four years in which Mondale served as Jimmy Carter's vice president.

What if the general election election campaign hinges on the age of the candidates?

"I don't see any need for any generational struggle in here, but if there is, maybe we can settle it with an arm wrestle," the president suggested in an interview with editors from newspapers primarily in the Southeastern states.

Reagan's travel schedule is relaxed for a presidential candidate. He campaigned in Columbus, Ohio, and in New York one day last week, but there is no more campaign travel planned until next month. Still, elements of a campaign are just below the surface throughout the day at the White House.

On Monday, he had lunch in the state dining room with elected Republican women officials, using the occasion to twit the Democratic presidential candidates as champions of "failed policies" of higher

Whittaker Chambers: A Story For 'All Ages

WASHINGTON — A whole generation has grown up that knew not Whittaker Chambers. The controversy recently revived by his posthumous award of the Medal of Freedom therefore may mystify many persons who were only children at the time of the trials of Alger Hiss in 1949. The story is a story for all ages.

Chambers was born in Philadelphia in April 1901. He spent most of an unhappy childhood on Long Island. Upon graduation from high school he ran away, became a manual laborer in Baltimore and Washington, drifted to New Orleans, and returned to his home just as World War I was ending. He attended classes for three years at Colu ia University in New York. In 1924 he formally joined the Communist Party.

At that time, as Chambers later would write, he saw the free world "shrinking in power and faith, including faith in itself."

Setting Priorities On Breaking Records

WASHINGTON — It would have made a good sequel to the movie "Chariots of Fire." Upstanding young man makes good as amateur athlete, receives financially astronomical offer to turn professional, but accepts only on condition that his suitors underwrite scholarships at his school and missionary work in his church.

Honorable is a word one could have used to describe college football star Steve Young's recent decision to become a $40 million quarterback for the Los Angeles Express. Even Young's great-great-grandfather, Mormon pioneer Brigham Young, might have applauded.

But one man's virtue can be another's vice. In Young's case, a California investor has promised a single individual the equivalent of some foreign governments' annual budgets. Such excess reflects the skewed priorities of not simply America's spendthrift sports establishment, but of the nation as a whole.

The terms of Young's contract underscore in part how athletes have learned the value of personal, long-term planning. As most sports fans probably know by now, Young will receive only $6.2 million — in salary, bonus and interest-free loan — in the next four years. Bill Oldenburg, the San Franciscan who owns the Express, has also arranged to have Young do endorsements — at $100,000 a year — for a Salt Lake City savings and loan company (which Oldenburg owns).

About $34 million, however, will be paid to Young in graduated annuities between 1990 and 2027, when he will turn 65 and Oldenburg will be long since gone. Unlike most athletes, Young will never have to work elsewhere until he's eligible for Social Security (though he's apparently aspiring to study law in off-season).

Young's father, LeGrande, who is a corporate attorney in Connecticut, says that the notion to fund Mormon missionaries and a 20-year scholarship (eventually worth $183,000, or less than 1 percent of the package) was not Steve's idea but that of astute Express negotiators.

Yet that's not to imply that the 22-year-old senior fabricated his story about weighing his decision in prayer on the advice of former Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach. On the contrary, it seems his sudden fortune has overwhelmed Young. "Steve is the kind of kid that's not cocky enough to think he's worth that much money," his father told us.

As Reggie Jackson knows, players' high self-esteem has played an influential role in the inflationary trends of professional sports contracts. But ultimately more influential is the repeated acquiescence of the employers themselves (excepting some like parsimonious Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith). Were it not for clever financing formulas and an anxiety over filling stadiums, men (and women) who play games for a living would live in a league with those of us who don't know guarantees.

Or so one might think. America has a seemingly incorrigible habit, however, of assigning high dollar values to the most subjectively valued professions. Who, excepting lawyers, for example, would determine that the salary for first-year attorneys should be $40,000? The suckers who tolerate the same kind of excessive price-tag in cosmetic surgery, TV journalism and sports, among other occupations.

Sound national investment policy would seem to dictate against such relatively non-productive (versus engineering and steel manufacturing, for instance) professions. Harvard President Derek Bok said as much in his recent complaint that lawyering was sapping America's best minds. Though George Steinbrenner and Gene Autry, two of baseball's biggest spenders, may think themselves smart money men, their costly purchases of free agents, some of whom have played little if at all, have become symbols of national priorities gone astray.

Industrial Production Strong In February

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrial production rose a strong 1.2 percent in February, matching the healthy gain of the month before, the government said today.

The February increase in output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities was the 15th in a row, starting in December 1982 as the nation began to pull out of the recession.

The new gain left output at 159.9 percent of the 1967 average and 3.9 percent above the level of July 1981, the high reached in an earlier recovery.

The Federal Reserve Board report said the gains were widespread with "especially large increases evident in home goods, construction supplies and durable goods materials."

The February rise was identical to a 1.2 percent jump in January, which had been the best showing in the index since a 1.3 percent gain in September.

The strong February showing was something of a surprise since many analysts were predicting smaller growth on the belief that the January pace could not be sustained.

From April through September of last year, the nation's industries recorded healthy increases of more than 1 percent a month as the recovery picked up steam. However, those improvements dropped to a revised 0.2 percent in November and 0.5 percent in December, leading many analysts to say this was a sign the nation's recovery was slowing.

The report today said that autos were assembled at an annual rate of 8 million units in February, slightly below the pace of 8.1 million units in January. March assemblies are scheduled to be near the February rate, the report said.

The February report also said that:

—Production of durable consumer goods, products expected to last three or more years, rose 0.7 percent while the production of nondurable consumer goods was up 1 percent.

—Business equipment production increased 0.7 percent with especially large gains in manufacturing, power, commercial and transit equipment. The output of building and mining equipment declined again, reflecting reduced oil and gas drilling activity.

—Production of supplies for construction and business use increased strongly after small declines in the closing months of 1983. There were sharp rises in the production of basic metals such as steel.

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa's first nuclear power plant is now in operation, nearly a year behind schedule because of an attack by black nationalist saboteurs.

The plant, called Koeberg I, was built for the equivalent of $2 billion, on the south Atlantic coast 20 miles north of Capetown. Danie Steyn, minister of mineral and energy affairs, told Parliament the plant began operations Wednesday and will reach its full generating capacity of 920 megawatts in July.

A second plant on the site is scheduled to begin operating in November or December.

Dallas Looking To GOP Convention

By SCOTT MCCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — As conventions go, it won't be the largest, it won't generate the most revenue, it won't come close to the most number of delegates and it won't fill the most hotel rooms.

It probably won't even fill most restaurants at dinner.

But most Dallas officials agree that the Republican National Convention Aug. 20-23 will be one of the most important events to this city in 20 years.

More than 20,000 people, including the 2,000 voting delegates, are expected here for the presidential nominating convention. That translates into about 15,000 hotel rooms and $20 million for the city and its businesses.

In 1978, more than 50,000 people attended the annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders and occupied 22,000 rooms. Later this year 24,000 people are expected for a convention of the Food Marketing Institute.

The GOP convention, said Terry Barshop, manager of the Dallas Convention Center, "is a convention the size of which we've handled on a number of occasions."

"But the importance of it," he said, "is the image that we will project, the visibility of the city. The Republican convention is very important to this city."

Syracuse Ranks No. 1 In America's Snowfall

By MEL REISNER
Associated Press Writer
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Of all the categories for rating U.S. municipalities, Syracuse ranks No. 1 in only one. Even with the obligatory nod in the direction of Alaska, it's the snowiest major city in the country.

The annual 110.7 inches of snow are regarded as both bane and blessing, making public services a headache to provide but nurturing worthy cultural institutions for people who don't want to play out of doors.

The storms that dump the snow on Syracuse aren't any worse than the thunderstorms that rumble over the city in the summer, and National Weather Service statistics show the city's 36-inch average rainfall comes at an even three inches a month.

In the winter, that rain turns to snow, usually at the normal rate of about 10 inches for each inch of rain. But in Syracuse, there is also the "lake effect."

Lake effect and Lake Ontario are synonymous in New York. The only one of the five Great Lakes that has never frozen over, because of thermal convection and water densities, the 5,500-square-mile Ontario is a gigantic weather potboiler.

Storms here way, producing "thicker" snow in looser crystals. The onshore deposits pile up in mind-boggling amounts.

In 1982, a squall dropped 52 inches of snow in 24 hours on Martville in Cayuga County. Five miles east or west, only 10 inches fell.

The squalls even out before reaching Syracuse 30 miles to the south, but the records are nonetheless impressive: 27 inches in one 24-hour period, Jan. 29-30, 1925; 8 feet in four days in the infamous blizzard of March 1888, and 161.2 inches in a single winter, that of 1977-78.

It is no fluke that the snowiest city lies in New York state. So do the second and third snowiest cities, when the rankings consider metropolitan areas of 500,000 or more people. Buffalo, N.Y., gets 92.5 inches of snow, and Rochester gets 89.7.

Denver is in fourth place at 59.1, Salt Lake City in the fifth spot with 58.1. The figures are all 40-year averages.

The storms that cannonade off Lake Ontario from November through April accumulate more than moisture. Through the years, central New York winters have intertwined with folklore, culture and town budgets, and some residents have discovered the best way to handle the weather is head-on.

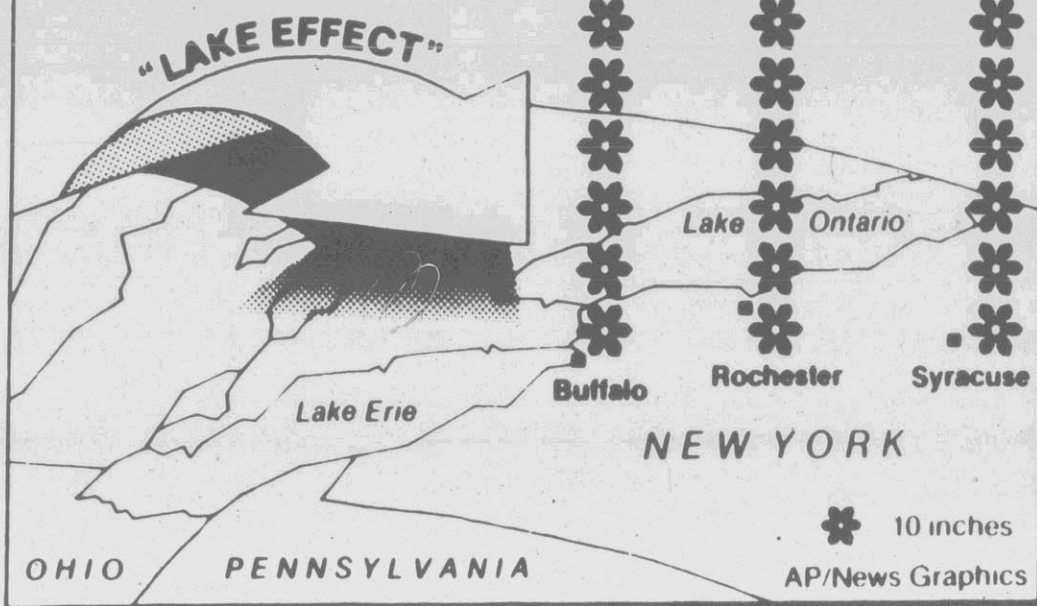

"There are quite a few changes. It's not a hibernation in our parks like it used to be," said Rick Presley, director of operations for the Onondaga County Parks Department. "Two of our (13) parks get more use now in the winter than the summer."

He said the popularity of snowmobiling and cross-country skiing accounts for around 45,000 visits to Highland Forest Park near Tully from November through March. The 2,700-acre reserve has overnight winter camping. Diagonally across the country from Highland Forest is the Beaver Lake Nature Center, a 500-acre patch of swamps, fields, forests, bogs and ponds that is open year around. Last year it attracted 194,000 visitors, with about 100,000 of them coming in the winter.

NATION'S SNOWBELT

The "lake effect" makes Syracuse, Buffalo and Rochester the top 3 cities in yearly snowfall.

Henry Schramm, a bank executive and avid local historian, said rigorous weather had been a blessing for Syracuse culture.

Around the turn of the century, Syracuse had two opera houses and more than a dozen theaters. Perhaps inspired by the theatrical weather, Syracusean Sam Shubert leased his first theater in 1897 and went on with his brothers to form a conglomerate that eventually controlled 900 theaters nationwide with an audience estimated at 1 million per night.

Today, the city boasts half a dozen theater companies, a performing arts center, a symphony orchestra and ballet and opera companies.

But snowy winters are no fun for local governments charged with looking after their citizens.

Police breathe easier when winter arrives because biting cold and snow-drifted lawns help deter break-in crime, although violence in intrafamily squabbles tends to increase. But at the Syracuse public works and fire departments, planning begins early on how to deal with the special problems of winter.

The Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. has a fleet of all-terrain vehicles and rents helicopters to repair gas lines dismembered by freeze-thaw action and electric lines pulled down by heavy snow.

Deputy Fire Chief Wilbur Hess said the 460-member department uses long-standing precautions for firefighters in bad weather.

"Our biggest problem with the weather is when it's cold enough to freeze the equipment," he said. "The aerial towers get iced up from the spray, and they have to remember that and keep moving them — extend and retract and rotate them — so they don't get stuck."

DPW Commissioner David Dolly said his department buys about 25,000 tons of salt annually but this year has already used that amount because of excessively icy conditions. The city will probably go through 40,000 tons this season, Dolly said.

Edmisten...

clean up and patch the roads we have, not build new ones," he commented.

He said he will continue what he believes he has begun as a three-term attorney general, "a campaign against hard drug pushers, violent crime, arson, unsolved murders, and white collar crime." He said he will encourage the adoption of modern management practices within the criminal justice system of the state and he told briefly of his proposed program of funding compensation of crime victims by the perpetrators themselves.

He said the 10 candidates running for governor of North Carolina are a "Pharaoh's army" and "I want to be Moses and get out of that crowd."

Train Engineer To Attend Clinic

LIVINGSTON, La. (AP) — An engineer accused of being drunk and letting his chemical-laden train derail, starting a fire that burned two weeks, must spend a year in prison and attend a substance-abuse clinic, a judge has ruled.

District Judge Kenneth Fogg on Wednesday also fined Edwin Peyton Robertson $5,000 and put him on active probation for five years in the fire that forced 2,700 people to evacuate.

In the September 1982 accident, Robertson, 44, was also accused of letting the train attain a dangerous speed and turning the controls over to a woman who was along for the ride.

COMMUNITY EFFORT — In preparation for a benefit sale of country food plates in Martin County last Saturday, about 100 people joined in the task of peeling 1,500 pounds of potatoes at the Griffins Township Fire Station in the Farm Life community. Dozens of other volunteers also cooked 19 hogs to produce 1,700 pounds of barbecue, shredded 1,000 pounds of cabbage for slaw, and cooked countless baskets of hush-puppies. Approximately 3,400 plates (400 alone to Weyerhaeuser Co.) at $3 each were sold throughout Martin County. The benefit, spearheaded by the Farm Life Ruritan Club, netted more than $8,000 with contributions still coming in. The funds are being donated to help pay the medical expenses of the late J.R.P. Griffin of Farm Life, a founding member of the Ruritan Club there, who died shortly before the benefit took place. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Sweet Potato Production Down

RALEIGH (AP) — Sweet potato production declined 27 percent in North Carolina in 1983, producing the second smallest sweet potato crop on record, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Growers reduced their acreage sharply in 1983 because of steep price declines during the 1982-83 season. Bad weather was also blamed reduced yields in most regions.

Found Errors In Redistricting Bill

HENDERSON (AP) — An error in the drafting of a redistricting bill has put three of Vance County's northern townships in two state Senate districts.

The bill, which passed the Senate last Wednesday, lists Townsville, Williamsboro and Middleburg-Nutbush townships as part of District 11 and as part of District 2.

State officials contacted Wednesday said they expect the townships will end up in the 11th District only, but the procedure for correcting the error is still unclear.

"All the proceeding of the (redistricting) committee, the data and the maps offered at the time place Vance County in the 11th District," said Terry Sullivan, director of research for the legislature. "It was the intent to put all of Vance County in the 11th District."

Judge Urged Throw Out Man's Confession

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge is considering whether to throw out a confession by a Bostic man in which he allegedly admitted to killing a 2-year-old boy by putting him in a freezer.

Judge Frank W. Snapp said Wednesday he will decide whether to allow the confession of Ronald Dale Smith, 21, to be used by the prosecution during the trial. Smith's attorneys asked that the confession be thrown out.

Snapp continued the pretrial hearing until today in Rutherford County Superior Court.

Lt. Ronnie McCombs of the Rutherford County Sheriff's Department said that Smith told him he put Michael Brandon Lowery, whom he was baby-sitting, in the freezer compartment of a refrigerator after the child refused to eat.

"He said, 'I made a pizza and he wouldn't eat it ... so I got mad and jerked him up and put him in the freezer,'" McCombs said.

McCombs said Smith told him he placed the child in the freezer at another point earlier the day of Oct. 20, 1983, and later got him out.

Smith had drunk 10 cans of beer and smoked two marijuana cigarettes the day the child died, McCombs said Smith told him.

"It was late. He was being mean. They (the child and his brother) were fighting. I put him in the freezer and got him out," McCombs said Smith told him.

"He told me that when Linda Lowery (the child's mother) woke him up Friday morning, the first thing he did was pray to God that he hadn't left Brandon in the freezer," McCombs said.

The child's body, face-down with knees drawn up to the chest, was found by his mother Oct. 21 when she arrived home from work and opened the refrigerator, authorities said.

Smith, her live-in boyfriend, left their trailer, but later was picked up by authorities.

McCombs said Smith asked for a lawyer four times, but sheriff's deputies made no effort to get him an attorney.

"Did you tell the sheriff at any time that Ronnie Smith had asked for a lawyer?" Ron Blanchard, Smith's court-appointed lawyer, asked.

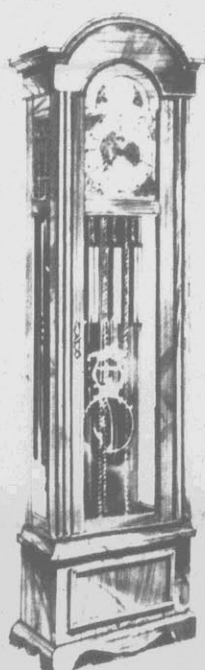

"No sir," McCombs said. "I remember telling (Smith's) mother that I wanted to help him — that I did want him to tell me the truth. That's all I wanted to know."

McCombs said authorities had read Smith his constitutional rights and that Smith had signed forms waiving his right to an attorney.

Report 3 Collisions

An estimated $7,300 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Wednesday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:55 p.m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Cotanche streets involving cars driven by Barbara Bowman Wing of 111 Williams St. and Legare Robertson Hinds of Route 4, Greenville.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $1,800 to the Wing car and $3,000 to the Hinds auto.

A car driven by Bruce Reddick of 1804B Hopkins Drive and a truck operated by Jacob Worth Cox of Route 5, Greenville, collided about 2:43 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Fifth Street, resulting in an estimated $800 damage to the car and $900 damage to the truck.

Police said Linda Ann Cataldo of 21 Greenway Apartments was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:53 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Arlington Boulevard.

According to investigators, the Cataldo car collided with a vehicle driven by Patricia Worthington Brown of 66 W. 14th St., causing $200 damage to the Cataldo car and $600 damage to the Brown vehicle.

pursue the appeals.

"All his friends pleaded with him, but they respect his decision," Cheshire said.

Cheshire said Hutchins realized a new appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court would be "frivolous on his behalf."

Hutchins was sentenced to die in September 1979 for the shooting deaths of Rutherford County Sheriff's Deputy Owen Messersmith and state Highway Patrol trooper Robert L. "Pete" Peterson. He was also sentenced to life in prison for the death of Deputy Roy Huskey.

The two deputies were killed when they arrived at the Hutchins' home in May 1979 after Hutchins' daughter, Charlotte, called for help. She said her father was drunk and beating her.

Peterson was later shot in the head as he pursued Hutchins, who left the scene in his car.

Cheshire said he probably would say goodbye to Hutchins today if the governor does not commute the sentence, but would not stay to witness the execution.

Although Cheshire strongly opposes the death penalty, he said he felt comfortable with Hutchins' decision because, "I don't think there's a chance in the world the Supreme Court will stay his case."

"He has chosen to stop," Cheshire said. "We, as lawyers, will respect his decision. I have planned no more appeals. The final decision rests with the governor."

Hunt said he would "think about this matter" Wednesday night before announcing his decision.

"You seek help from every source you can get it, including help by prayer," Hunt said.

But, Hunt said, a governor should not lightly go against what the law says and what the courts have decided. He said the only legal issue remaining for him to consider is the fairness of selecting only jurors who support the death penalty.

He said a number of religious issues had been raised by ministers in meetings this week. "I feel very strongly that you ought to have the greatest respect for the courts...I don't think you'd lightly go against what those have done."

Hutchins Wednesday drank coffee, read a newspaper, watched television and slept in his stark Central Prison cell a few paces from the chamber where he is scheduled to die by lethal injection.

He read through the nine letters delivered to him and was visited by the prison chaplain, psychologist and warden. He also met with his attorneys and several death penalty opponents.

"Hutchins is in a very good mood," said Patty McQuillan, a Department of Correction spokeswoman. "He is very talkative."

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., Tuesday dimmed Hutchins' prospects for escaping execution by unanimously rejecting the latest appeal.

Appeals already have been rejected by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Jones and the state Supreme Court.

Hutchins had been scheduled to die Jan. 13, but his attorneys won a stay just 40 minutes before the execution deadline. Three days later, the new execution date was set.

Hunt met this week with clergymen on both sides of the issue and a group of lawmen led by Rutherford County Sheriff Damon Huskey, whose brother Roy was

Income Up For State

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's General Fund receipts increased 19.32 percent in January over January 1983, as the state's income for the month was $311.5 million, Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch said today.

The monthly revenue report says General Fund collections for the first seven months of the current fiscal year were $2,139.1 billion, compared with $1,879.8 billion for the same period last year. Lynch said that represents an increase of $259.3 million, or 13.8 percent.

Highway Fund collections for January of $60.5 million increased by $7 million over January 1983, or 13.04 percent. Gasoline tax receipts of $35.2 million were 6.79 percent higher than those collected in January 1983.

Highway Fund collections for the first seven months of the current fiscal year were $336.9 million as compared with $305.2 million collected during the first seven months of the 1982-83 fiscal year, an increase of $31.7 million, or 10.39 percent, Lynch said.

Gasoline tax collections for the seven-month period were $238.7 million, as compared with $226.9 million collected during the corresponding period in the previous year — an increase of $11.8 million, or 5.23 percent.

'Last Chance' To Recover Money

RALEIGH (AP) — Consumers who paid United States Testing Authority $14.80 for "free gifts" in 1982 have until March 19 to submit proof they dealt with the company, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten says.

"This is the last chance people will have to recover their money," Edmisten said.

Edmisten's office has paid out $3,000 from a $15,000 settlement fund for written claims against the Florida-based company.

A December consent judgement closing the state's case against U.S. Testing also permanently bars the company and its president, W. Ed Herder, from doing business in the state.

The "prizes" won by most entrants were invitations to sales presentations at time-share resorts.

Can Only Hope For Settlement

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A couple whose son was beaten to death have agreed to a $100,000 settlement from his killer in exchange for not opposing his parole, but their attorney concedes they may never get any money.

Mark Jay Baker, 28, pleaded guilty in October 1978 to beating Karl Marcus Chancellor, 20, with a shotgun barrel during a robbery. He is eligible for parole next year after several years.

Homers Lead ECU Past Mason

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Todd Evans, Chris Bradberry and Steve Sides each cracked home runs, pacing a 14-hit attack as East Carolina University gained an 8-3 baseball victory over George Mason University yesterday.

The game was the opening ECAC-South confrontation for each team.
Bradberry, freshman centerfielder, finished the afternoon with three hits, while Sides, Greg Hardison, Mike Williams and Mark Shank each collected a pair.

Winfred Johnson went the distance for his second victory of the year, but it was a shaky trip as he was tagged for eight hits, two of them home runs.
"Winfred threw well, but they hit his good stuff," Coach Hal Baird said. "I was really glad to see Bradberry have a good day, and Mark Shank hit the ball well for us too."
"We played hard and with a lot of determination. George Mason may be 0-5, but they're a much better team than their record shows. Winfred had his good stuff and they still hit him."
Baird said that he was had been afraid that the Pirates would have some defensive problems on a wet field, but it proved almost unfounded. The Pirates committed but two errors — both of them coming on the same play.
That came in the fourth inning when Barry Durham's grounder to short was bobbled, allowing him to reach first. Then, when Greg Hardison's late throw was off target, he took an extra base.
Mason took the initial lead in the second when Carlin Hart cracked a homer to left, one of three hits he claimed during the day.
East Carolina moved ahead for good in the third with a pair of runs. With two down, Hardison singled to center and scored when Evans banged the ball out of the park in center for a 2-1 lead.
A third run came over in the fourth. David Wells walked and Bradberry walked. Mike Williams hit a sharp grounder to third that started a double play. Williams just did beat the ball to first, avoiding a triple play. Williams then raced all the way home on a double to center by Shank.

Mason closed the gap to 3-2 with a run in the top of the sixth. Jeff Bowles singled and Johnson gave up successive hits to Kevin Burke and Hart, loading the bases. Durham grounded into a double play with courtesy runner Mark Clark scoring on the play.
The Pirates rallied for four in their half of the frame. Bradberry opened with a towering homer to left that cleared the wires between the light poles. Williams and Shank each followed with singles and Jim Riley grounded out, scoring Williams. Sides walked and Hardison beat out a slow roller to third, loading the bases. Evans was safe on an error, scoring Shank, and Sides scored on a sacrifice fly for a 7-2 lead.

The final Pirate run came in the eighth on Sides' homer to left.
Bowers had finished up the Patriot scoring in the top of the inning with the second Mason homer.
The win boosted the Pirate record to 6-3 on the year.
The two teams meet again today at 3 p.m. Connecticut comes in for a series of games on Friday.

Kinley Sparks Rose To 7-4 Win

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer
NEW HOPE — Mike Kinley cracked a two-run homer, allowed

just three hits while striking out five batters before being relieved on the mound by Billy Michel as the Rose High School Rampants pounded

Eastern Wayne 7-4 Wednesday in 4-A baseball action.
The victory gave the Rampants revenge for their loss to the Warriors in the 1983 state playoffs. The game was originally slated to be played in Greenville, but the field at Guy Smith Stadium remained too wet for play and the sight was changed.

Kinley, suffering from a cold and sinus headache, pitched through the fourth inning before Michel came on and struck out three in his first appearance on the mound for the Rampants. The win evened Kinley's — and the Rampants' — record to 1-1 on the season.
Rose posted 11 hits in the contest with Kinley adding a double to his home run blast. Toby Fischer ripped a pair of doubles in three at bats, while Michel added two singles.

Senior Anthony Russo rapped a double and a single as the only Eastern Wayne batter with more than one hit.

"I felt like both of our pitchers threw pretty good today," Rose Coach Ron Vincent said. "I was real pleased with Billy Michel's arm today. Kinley was throwing well, but he needed the rest."

"I was very pleased with the play of Toby Fischer at third base, and our hitting overall was much better than it was against Havelock. We still made some mistakes in the field that we need to take care of, but I feel like we're going to come together after we've had some more playing time together."

The game was delayed in the bottom of the sixth when a foul ball by an Eastern Wayne player struck the Warriors' bat girl in the mouth. The girl was taken to the hospital for treatment.

"I'd rather lose the game than see something like that happen," Vincent said after the accident. "We learned a valuable lesson today at her expense. People have got to stay behind the screens in the dugout."

Kinley's homer came with two out in the first after Fischer doubled.

But the Warriors evened the score in the bottom half of the frame. Robbie Strickland led off with a base on balls after falling behind in the count, and Russo followed with a double to right to plate the first run. Russo then scored on a drive to right by Brad Dawson to knot the score with one out.

Kinley hit Jeff Watson with a pitch, but then struck out David Ellis and Mike Couture to get out of the inning.

Rose jumped on Eastern Wayne starter Sheffield Altice for three more runs in the third inning. Tony Taylor reached second on a two-base error, then scored on a single by Mark Nover. Nover stole second and crossed the plate on Fischer's second double of the day. Fischer scored on a two-out single by Michel.

The Rampants added a pair of insurance runs in the fifth, as Kinley opened with a double, and courtesy runner Vann Alston scored on wild pitch after advancing on an infield single by David Jester. Jester scored the final run for Rose on a single by Battle Emory.

The Warriors posted two more runs in the bottom of the fifth, with Gary Blackman drawing a walk, stealing second, moving to third on a single by Russo and scoring on a fielder's choice by Brad Dawson. Russo scored on a double-steal to set the final margin.

Michel retired the side in the sixth, as Jesse Hooks tapped back to the mound, and Brent Gurley and Strickland struck out.

Michel allowed a pair of walks in the seventh before Ellis grounded out to Fischer for the final out.

The Rampants were to travel to Greene Central this afternoon for another non-conference contest.

Roanoke Tops Chargers, 4-3

LITTLEFIELD — Roanoke High School held off an Ayden-Grifton rally in the bottom of the seventh inning to take a 4-3 baseball win over the Chargers yesterday.

Ayden-Grifton scored first in the contest, scoring a run in the third. Wesley Hardee singled and Doug Coley walked. Gene Johnson reached on an error, loading them up and a wild pitch let Hardee score.

The Redskins rallied in the fifth to score three runs of their own. Chris Leggett reached on an error and Sammy Respass walked. Steve Day's attempt to sacrifice was errored, allowing both Leggett and Respass to score. Day finished up on third, scoring on James Walters' infield out.

The winning run scored in the sixth. G. Taylor doubled and scored on Greg Casper's single for a 4-1 lead.

Ayden-Grifton rallied for a couple in the bottom of the seventh and ended the game with the tying run at third. Hardee reached on a fielder's choice and Coley and Johnson both walked, loading the bases. Walks to Roger Moye and Charles Mitchell forced in two, but the final out came with the bases loaded.

The Chargers are now 0-1, while Roanoke climbs to 2-0.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to D.H. Conley today, while Roanoke entertains Washington in a Northeastern Conference contest.

pursue the appeals.

"All his friends pleaded with him, but they respect his decision," Cheshire said.

Cheshire said Hutchins realized a new appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court would be "frivolous on his behalf."

Hutchins was sentenced to die in September 1979 for the shooting deaths of Rutherford County Sheriff's Deputy Owen Messersmith and state Highway Patrol trooper Robert L. "Pete" Peterson. He was also sentenced to life in prison for the death of Deputy Roy Huskey.

The two deputies were killed when they arrived at the Hutchins' home in May 1979 after Hutchins' daughter, Charlotte, called for help. She said her father was drunk and beating her.

Peterson was later shot in the head as he pursued Hutchins, who left the scene in his car.

Cheshire said he probably would say goodbye to Hutchins today if the governor does not commute the sentence, but would not stay to witness the execution.

Although Cheshire strongly opposes the death penalty, he said he felt comfortable with Hutchins' decision because, "I don't think there's a chance in the world the Supreme Court will stay his case."

"He has chosen to stop," Cheshire said. "We, as lawyers, will respect his decision. I have planned no more appeals. The final decision rests with the governor."

Hunt said he would "think about this matter" Wednesday night before announcing his decision.

"You seek help from every source you can get it, including help by prayer," Hunt said.

But, Hunt said, a governor should not lightly go against what the law says and what the courts have decided. He said the only legal issue remaining for him to consider is the fairness of selecting only jurors who support the death penalty.

He said a number of religious issues had been raised by ministers in meetings this week. "I feel very strongly that you ought to have the greatest respect for the courts...I don't think you'd lightly go against what those have done."

Hutchins Wednesday drank coffee, read a newspaper, watched television and slept in his stark Central Prison cell a few paces from the chamber where he is scheduled to die by lethal injection.

He read through the nine letters delivered to him and was visited by the prison chaplain, psychologist and warden. He also met with his attorneys and several death penalty opponents.

"Hutchins is in a very good mood," said Patty McQuillan, a Department of Correction spokeswoman. "He is very talkative."

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., Tuesday dimmed Hutchins' prospects for escaping execution by unanimously rejecting the latest appeal.

Appeals already have been rejected by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Jones and the state Supreme Court.

Hutchins had been scheduled to die Jan. 13, but his attorneys won a stay just 40 minutes before the execution deadline. Three days later, the new execution date was set.

Hunt met this week with clergymen on both sides of the issue and a group of lawmen led by Rutherford County Sheriff Damon Huskey, whose brother Roy was

Income Up For State

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's General Fund receipts increased 19.32 percent in January over January 1983, as the state's income for the month was $311.5 million, Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch said today.

The monthly revenue report says General Fund collections for the first seven months of the current fiscal year were $2.1391 billion, compared with $1.8798 billion for the same period last year. Lynch said that represents an increase of $259.3 million, or 13.8 percent.

Highway Fund collections for January of $60.5 million increased by $7 million over January 1983, or 13.04 percent. Gasoline tax receipts of $35.2 million were 6.79 percent higher than those collected in January 1983.

Highway Fund collections for the first seven months of the current fiscal year were $336.9 million as compared with $305.2 million collected during the first seven months of the 1982-83 fiscal year, an increase of $31.7 million, or 10.39 percent, Lynch said.

Gasoline tax collections for the seven-month period were $238.7 million, as compared with $226.9 million collected during the corresponding period in the previous year — an increase of $11.8 million, or 5.23 percent.

'Last Chance' To Recover Money

RALEIGH (AP) — Consumers who paid United States Testing Authority $14.80 for "free gifts" in 1982 have until March 19 to submit proof they dealt with the company, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten says.

"This is the last chance people will have to recover their money," Edmisten said.

Edmisten's office has paid out $3,000 from a $15,000 settlement fund for written claims against the Florida-based company.

A December consent judgement closing the state's case against U.S. Testing also permanently bars the company and its president, W. Ed Herder, from doing business in the state.

The "prizes" won by most entrants were invitations to sales presentations at time-share resorts.

Can Only Hope For Settlement

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A couple whose son was beaten to death have agreed to a $100,000 settlement from his killer in exchange for not opposing his parole, but their attorney concedes they may never get any money.

Mark Jay Baker, 28, pleaded guilty in October 1978 to beating Karl Marcus Chancellor, 20, with a shotgun barrel during a robbery. He is eligible for parole next year after several years.

among Hutchins' victims.

Meanwhile, a leader of the United Church of Christ Commission on Racial Justice criticized Hunt for supporting the death penalty and said blacks will remember that when they vote in November.

Hunt is a candidate for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Jesse Helms.

The Rev. Leon White of Raleigh, field director for the commission, said the death penalty "has been and will be used principally against black and powerless people and that it will undermine the foundation of human rights and black liberation."

White said blacks would be turning their backs on the death penalty issue by supporting Hunt's candidacy but he said he holds little hope that Hunt will save Hutchins from execution.

Death penalty opponents have scheduled prayer services, a demonstration at the Capitol and an all-night vigil today at Central Prison.

Homers Lead ECU Past Mason

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Todd Evans, Chris Bradberry and Steve Sides each cracked home runs, pacing a 14-hit attack as East Carolina University gained an 8-3 baseball victory over George Mason University yesterday.

The game was the opening ECAC-South confrontation for each team.
Bradberry, freshman centerfielder, finished the afternoon with three hits, while Sides, Greg Hardison, Mike Williams and Mark Shank each collected a pair.

Winfred Johnson went the distance for his second victory of the year, but it was a shaky trip as he was tagged for eight hits, two of them home runs.

"Winfred threw well, but they hit his good stuff," Coach Hal Baird said. "I was really glad to see Bradberry have a good day, and Mark Shank hit the ball well for us too."

"We played hard and with a lot of determination. George Mason may be 0-5, but they're a much better team than their record shows. Winfred had his good stuff and they still hit him."

Baird said that he was had been afraid that the Pirates would have some defensive problems on a wet field, but it proved almost unfounded.

The Pirates committed but two errors — both of them coming on the same play.

That came in the fourth inning when Barry Durham's grounder to short was bobbled, allowing him to reach first. Then, when Greg Hardison's late throw was off target, he took an extra base.

Mason took the initial lead in the second when Carlin Hart cracked a homer to left, one of three hits he claimed during the day.

East Carolina moved ahead for good in the third with a pair of runs. With two down, Hardison singled to center and scored when Evans batted the ball out of the park in center for a 2-1 lead.

A third run came over in the fourth. David Wells walked and Bradberry walked. Mike Williams hit a sharp grounder to third that started a double play. Williams just did beat the ball to first, avoiding a triple play. Williams then raced all the way home on a double to center by Shank.

Mason closed the gap to 3-2 with a run in the top of the sixth. Jeff Bowles singled and Johnson gave up successive hits to Kevin Burke and Hart, loading the bases. Durham grounded into a double play with courtesy runner Mark Clark scoring on the play.

The Pirates rallied for four in their half of the frame. Bradberry opened with a towering homer to left that cleared the wires between the light poles. Williams and Shank each followed with singles and Jim Riley grounded out, scoring Williams. Sides walked and Hardison beat out a slow roller to third, loading the bases. Evans was safe on an error, scoring Shank, and Sides scored on a sacrifice fly for a 7-2 lead.

The final Pirate run came in the eighth on Sides' homer to left.

Bowers had finished up the Patriot scoring in the top of the inning with the second Mason homer.

The win boosted the Pirate record to 6-3 on the year.

The two teams meet again today at 3 p.m. Connecticut comes in for a series of games on Friday.

Kinley Sparks Rose To 7-4 Win

By JIMMY DUPREE
Reflector Sports Writer
NEW HOPE — Mike Kinley cracked a two-run homer, allowed

just three hits while striking out five batters before being relieved on the mound by Billy Michel as the Rose High School Rampants pounded

Eastern Wayne 7-4 Wednesday in 4-A baseball action.

The victory gave the Rampants revenge for their loss to the Warriors in the 1983 state playoffs. The game was originally slated to be played in Greenville, but the field at Guy Smith Stadium remained too wet for play and the night was canceled.

Kinley, suffering from a cold and sinus headache, pitched through the fourth inning before Michel came on and struck out three in his first appearance on the mound for the Rampants. The win evened Kinley's — and the Rampants' — record to 1-1 on the season.

Rose posted 11 hits in the contest with Kinley adding a double to his home run blast. Toby Fischer ripped a pair of doubles in three at bats, while Michel added two singles.

Senior Anthony Russo rapped a double and a single as the only Eastern Wayne batter with more than one hit.

"I felt like both of our pitchers threw pretty good today," Rose Coach Ron Vincent said. "I was real pleased with Billy Michel's arm today. Kinley was throwing well, but he needed the rest."

"I was very pleased with the play of Toby Fischer at third base, and our hitting overall was much better than it was against Havelock. We still made some mistakes in the field that we need to take care of, but I feel like we're going to come together after we've had some more playing time together."

The game was delayed in the bottom of the sixth when a foul ball by an Eastern Wayne player struck the Warriors' bat girl in the mouth. The girl was taken to the hospital for treatment.

"I'd rather lose the game than see something like that happen," Vincent said after the accident. "We learned a valuable lesson today at her expense. People have got to stay behind the screens in the dugout."

Kinley's homer came with two out in the first after Fischer doubled.

But the Warriors evened the score in the bottom half of the frame. Robbie Strickland led off with a base on balls after falling behind in the count, and Russo followed with a double to right to plate the first run. Russo then scored on a drive to right by Brad Dawson to knot the score with one out.

Kinley hit Jeff Watson with a pitch, but then struck out David Ellis and Mike Couture to get out of the inning.

Rose jumped on Eastern Wayne starter Sheffield Altice for three more runs in the third inning. Tony Taylor reached second on a two-base error, then scored on a single by Mark Nover. Nover stole second and crossed the plate on Fischer's second double of the day. Fischer scored on a two-out single by Michel.

The Rampants added a pair of insurance runs in the fifth, as Kinley opened with a double, and courtesy runner Vann Alston scored on wild pitch after advancing on an infield single by David Jester. Jester scored the final run for Rose on a

NCAA Field Begins Play Tonight

By The Associated Press

It will be the fastbreaking Runnin' Rebels of Nevada-Las Vegas against the patient Trottin' Tigers of Princeton when the NCAA Basketball Tournament resumes tonight on four fronts.

Princeton will bring a bit of Ivy League culture to the tournament when the Tigers, seeded 12th and last in the West following their 65-56 preliminary-round triumph over the University of San Diego, oppose 13th-ranked UNLV in the opener of a first-round doubleheader at Salt Lake City. The nightcap pits Louisiana State against Dayton.

While UNLV's average of 83.7 points a game was fifth highest in the nation as the Rebels ran to a 27-5 record, Princeton's yield of just 49.2 points a game put the Tigers at the head of the defensive class. But they captured defensive honors thanks in large part to a deliberate style of attack.

"Rather unusual," is the way UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian describes it. "In fact, there's not a team in the western United States that plays in their style."

Will UNLV make Princeton run or will Princeton make UNLV walk?

"I really think the day is gone when you can make a really good basketball team run when they don't want to run," says Tarkanian. "I don't think you can do it. We don't play that way every game. We don't come out and pressure people every game and I don't think we can force Princeton into running."

Coach Pete Carril of 18-9 Princeton said he was "not worried about UNLV's offense. I know they are going to score. I'm worried about their defense. It's been very underrated for years. Jerry said it's tough to get us to go up-tempo, but I know he's going to try to do it."

LSU is in the NCAA Tournament for the first time since the 1981 team went to the Final Four. But Coach Dale Brown said his club "never seemed to peak at any one time this season. We won some close games and lost some close games. We have to get a tempo. When we do that, we're capable of beating anyone in the country and at any time."

The home-court advantage in tonight's play belongs to Alabama-Birmingham and Memphis State. In the Midwest, UAB meets Brigham Young at the Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center after 17th-ranked Oregon State faces West Virginia.

"We're glad to be playing at home," said UAB Coach Gene Bartow, whose Blazers have a home record of 82-17 in their six years of existence, including an upset of Ralph Sampson-led Virginia in the 1982 regional semifinals. "I'd rather be playing here than any place they could have sent us. I like Birmingham."

After finishing fifth in the Sun Belt Conference during the regular season, UAB made the NAAs the only way it could — by winning the conference tournament on its home floor.

Meanwhile, the Midwest section finds Fresno State vs. Louisiana Tech, followed by Memphis State vs. Oral Roberts at Memphis' Mid-South Coliseum.

"We've been on the right road the last couple of games," said Memphis State star Keith Lee. "We're going the right way."

In the East, 20th-ranked Temple meets St. John's and Auburn goes against Richmond at Charlotte, N.C.

The first round continues Friday night with four more doubleheaders — Virginia Commonwealth-Northeastern and Virginia-Iona at East Rutherford, N.J.; Louisville-Morehead State and Villanova-Marshall at Milwaukee; Illinois State-Alabama and Kansas-Alcorn State at Lincoln, Neb., and Nevada-Reno vs. 15th-ranked Washington and Miami of Ohio-Southern Methodist at Pullman, Wash.

"I think ours is definitely the toughest (regional)," Bartow said. "Can you imagine a tournament with the Atlantic Coast Conference champion (Maryland) and the SEC champion (Kentucky)? We also have the co-champions of the Pac-10 (Oregon State) and the champions of the Atlantic 10 (West Virginia) and the Sun Belt. That's a pretty good field."

BYU, runnerup in the Western Athletic Conference, is led by Devin Durrant, the nation's third leading scorer with a 28.3 average.

"I really know little about Brigham Young," said Bartow. "I would a lot rather it be Brigham Young of Hawaii. But this is the one where the quarterback got $40 million."

Memphis State will be the crowd favorite at home, but the twin bill also includes unheralded Louisiana Tech, which snapped Lamar's 80-game home-court winning streak in capturing the Southland Conference postseason tourney.

The Bulldogs are better known for their women's basketball program and are in their first NCAA tourney.

Their top player is 6-foot-9 sophomore Karl Malone, who averaged 18.6 points and 8.7 rebounds.

"I think we're peaking now," said Coach Andy Russo. "Of course, Fresno State has a way of taking that away from you. We saw them play in Hawaii and I said then that they are the best-coached team in the country. Offensively, they are patient and take great shots. Defensively, they have the best fundamentals I've seen."

At Charlotte, Temple and St. John's play for the right to meet top-ranked North Carolina in the second round.

But, says Temple's Granger Hall, "Every player on the team will tell you, our coaching staff will tell you this — we're taking one game at a time. You can't put the cart before the horse. Who's gonna pull the cart?"

St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca picked North Carolina as his favorite for the championship, but said there are 52 other teams — now down to 47 following the five-game preliminary round — who think they have a shot at the crown.

"Everybody in the country feels they've got a piece of the action," Carnesecca said. "I think that's great. Fifty-three people who think they've got a whack at the big time."

Auburn's 20 victories earned the Tigers their first postseason trip. They have one of the country's best and most colorful attractions in 6-6, 280-pound Charles Barkley.

"How are we gonna get up for Richmond?" asked Auburn Coach Sonny Smith. "We're gonna show the team film of Richmond kicking the hell out of Virginia Tech."

Play Opens In Charlotte Field

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — St. John's guard Chris Mullin says tonight's game with Temple in the first round of the NCAA East Regional won't be decided by him alone, nor by a single Temple player.

"If St. John's is gonna win, it's going to be a team effort," Mullin said. "If Temple's gonna win the game, one person isn't going to beat one other team. It's gotta be a team effort from both sides."

The winner of that battle will take on top-ranked North Carolina, the No. 1 seed in the East. Also tonight, Auburn celebrates its first appearance in post-season play by meeting Richmond. Indiana awaits the victor of second game.

Mullin leads St. John's, 18-11, with a 23-point scoring average. His performance earned him co-player of the year honors in the Big East with Georgetown's Patrick Ewing. While there is some talk of a rematch with the Tar Heels, a team St. John's lost to in December, Mullin would prefer to concentrate on the present.

"We've prepared just like any other game," Mullin said. "Granger Hall and Terence Stansbury are two of the finest players around."

Stansbury is Temple's leading scorer at 18.5 points per game, while Hall is the second best scorer at 16.9 and the top rebounder at seven boards per game.

Temple coach John Chaney is concerned about Mullin, but he has to take a look at St. John's front line of Bill Wenington and Jeff Allen which towers over his front line. His team enters with a 25-4 mark.

"We've faced teams who have big people in the paint and we do not have that kind of depth," Chaney said. "We have to be a very smart basketball team. We cannot make mistakes and we have to play extremely good help-out defense."

Auburn's game hinges on the bulky fram of junior center Charles Barkley, the Southeastern Conference player of the year. The 6-foot-6 Barkley is listed at 265 pounds, but refuses to discuss it now.

"I don't even keep up with it," he said. "Too many jokes have been made about it."

Barkley added that he and his teammates aren't making too many jokes about the Spiders, who are 20-9 and coming off a preliminary round victory over Rider.

"They played very well. They have very quick guards," Barkley said. "People don't have to worry about us getting motivated."

Richmond coach Dick Tarrant said he can't afford to change his strategy just to stop Barkley.

"We're just gonna try and play 'em straight up," Tarrant said. "We don't have any special designs."

Bullets Top Tribe, 9-2

CHOCOWINITY — Jamesville High School captured its first baseball victory of the year, taking a 9-2 win over Tobacco Belt Conference foe Chocowinity yesterday.

The Bullets got two runs in the second inning to take the lead for good. Kevin Perry doubled and moved up on a passed ball, scoring on Whit Brown's out. Rusty Holiday then singled, stealing second. Neal Lilly walked and both moved up on a passed ball. Matthew Moore then singled to score Holiday.

In the fourth, the Bullets picked up three more for a 5-0 lead. Holiday tripled and Lilly walked, stealing up. Moore singled to score Holiday, and Richie Ange got a hit to plate Lilly. Moore then scored on a wild pitch.

Jamesville added one in the sixth and three more in the seventh. Chocowinity got single runs in the sixth and seventh.

Moore led the Jamesville hitting with three, one a double, while Ange, Perry and Holiday each had two hits. B. Craig had two for Chocowinity.

The Bullets are now 1-1 overall and 1-0 in the league. Chocowinity falls to 1-2 and 0-1.

Jamesville plays host to Bear Grass and Chocowinity entertains Columbia today.

Lobos Pay For Lamar's Anger

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Lamar basketball team was angered over missing the NCAA playoffs . . . and made New Mexico pay for it in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

"I'm proud of the way they bounced off the floor after what happened," said Lamar Coach Pat Foster after Wednesday night's opening-round 64-61 victory over New Mexico in the NIT.

What happened was an upset in the finals of the Southland Conference playoffs last Saturday and a snub by the NCAA tournament committee on Sunday. Foster had expressed anger at being passed over by the NCAA despite a 25-4 record and the regular-season Southland Conference championship.

But Wednesday night was a different story.

"We didn't play as well as we're capable of or have played this season. But considering the adversity we were up against (New Mexico's home court and 16 second half-free throws by the Lobos), it had to be one of our better games," Foster said.

In other first-round NIT action Wednesday night, Tennessee-Chattanooga took a 74-69 overtime win over Georgia, a Final Four team in the NCAA tournament last year; Notre Dame defeated Old Dominion 67-62; Tennessee drubbed St. Peter's of New Jersey 54-40; South Alabama edged Florida 88-87, and Southwestern Louisiana tripped Utah State 94-92.

In first-round games tonight, it's Florida State at North Carolina State; Georgia Tech at Virginia Tech; Wichita State at Michigan; Nebraska at Creighton; Ohio State at Xavier, Ohio; Marquette at Iowa State, and Santa Clara at Oregon. On Friday night, it's Boston College vs. St. Joseph's and Pittsburgh vs. La Salle in Philadelphia and Fordham at Weber State.

Lamar's prolific shooting combination of Tom Sewell and Jerry Everett held off a second-half New Mexico rally as the Cardinals beat the Lobos.

Sewell led the Cardinals with 29 points, including a layup with 26 seconds left that sealed Lamar's triumph. Everett chipped in with 20 points. New Mexico, which finished its best season since 1978 with a 24-11 record, got a pair of 21-point performances from Tim Garrett and Phil Smith.

Lamar Oden scored seven of his 13 points in overtime to lead Tennessee-Chattanooga over Georgia. Tennessee-Chattanooga bounced back after blowing an 11-point second-half lead.

Vern Fleming, Georgia's all-time leading scorer, missed a shot with 17 seconds left. Oden was fouled on the rebound and calmly hit two free throws to put the game out of reach.

Tennessee-Chattanooga guard

Willie White led all scorers with 24 points, while Fleming pumped in 20 for Georgia.

Ken Barlow scored a game-high 21 points and Tom Sluby added 19 to lead Notre Dame over Old Dominion. Sophomore center Tim Kempton, who missed Notre Dame's last six games due to a leg injury, came off the bench to play 27 minutes and pull down a game-high 11 rebounds.

Old Dominion had four players in double figures, with Charlie Smith and Mark Davis scoring 16 points apiece.

"There's definitely a difference playing in a tournament game," said Barlow. "Coach (Digger) Phelps told us that everything was on the line."

Willie Burton scored 12 points and sparked a late rally as Tennessee beat St. Peter's. Tennessee led by as much as four points early in the second half before the Peacocks went up briefly at 38-35 with 6:44 remaining. Then the Vols took control.

Burton hit a field goal, made a pair of free throws, then drove down the court for another goal, putting the Volunteers ahead 41-38 with 4:54 remaining. The Vols added 13 points to their victory margin as they were fouled six times.

"This game was a case of David versus Goliath," said St. Peter's Coach Bob Dukiet, "and Goliath won. We just had ball-handling problems. We were fortunate they (the Vols) were off a little bit."

Michael Gerren scored his season-high 32 points and Dexter Shouse added his year's-best 24 points to help South Alabama beat Florida. Gerren, who hit 15 first-half points, scored 11 of them in the Jaguars' scoring blitz of 12 straight points.

Two of the points came after Florida forward Ronnie Williams and Coach Norm Sloan were tagged with consecutive technical fouls, and Shouse made two of three free throws. Sloan was hit with another technical late in the game.

Guard George Almones grabbed a rebound and sank a basket with two seconds left to lift Southwestern Louisiana over Utah State.

Utah State appeared in control of the game, leading 92-84, with 4:39 to play, but two missed free throws, and a crucial team turnover paved the way for the Cajuns' victory.

Graylin Warner, who scored consecutive baskets to tie it at 92 with 1:29 to play, paced Southwestern Louisiana with 31 points. Almones added 21 points, eight assists and six rebounds for USL.

"We knew it was a tough situation but the zone pressure at the end really was the difference," said SWL Coach Bobby Peschal. "We were able to create a couple of turnovers and they missed a couple of shots that most of the time they probably would have hit."

Romans On The March

This date is known as the Ides of March, marking the assassination of Julius Caesar in 44 B.C. The Romans called the 13th or 15th of each month the ides. The first of each month was called the "calends." The "nones" were the ninth day before the ides. The Romans counted backwards from these fixed days. March was once the first month of the year in the Roman calendar. Caesar revised the calendar, making January 1st the beginning of the year.

DO YOU KNOW — Which Roman god is March named for?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Yes. Einstein became a U.S. citizen in 1940.

Testifying As To Safety Of X-Cars

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One by one, the witnesses take the stand in federal court here to describe how the wheels of their 1980-model X-cars locked when they applied the brakes, sending the autos into a spin. More witnesses were in line to testify today to buttress the government's case against General Motors Corp. that the 1980 X-cars have a brake defect.

Thomas Hughes, a 54-year-old Ellicott City, Md., electrical engineer, described his 1980 Pontiac Phoenix on Wednesday as a "death trap" because of some spinning incidents he experienced while driving the car.

Mrs. Helen Breitig, a 58-year-old Saginaw, Mich., hospital cook said she was "frightened and terrified" when she drove her 1980 Chevrolet Citation from the time she bought it in January 1980, until she traded it in last April for a Dodge.

"I hated that Citation," she said. "I think the car was an unsafe car."

At one point in the questioning, Hughes said his wife told him to find out what the trade-in value of his 1980 Pontiac Phoenix would be. Asked why she would want that information, Hughes replied: "She wanted me to get rid of that death trap."

Earlier Wednesday, the second day of the trial, Linda Connelly, 44, a part-time secretary from Waukesha, Wis., said her 1980 Citation would "fishtail" when she least expected it.

The three witnesses testified Wednesday in U.S. District Court before Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson among the 13 present and past X-car owners the government is using as part of the evidence that GM, the nation's largest automaker, knew the cars were defective but went ahead with production anyway.

The government is also expected to introduce into evidence thousands of GM's internal documents and testimony from a long list of expert witnesses.

GM said it will counter with testimony from satisfied X-car owners, documents and tests from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, and expert witnesses of its own.

The government has called the 1980 X-car a "grave danger" and urged the court to order the recall of more than a million of them for repair of what it calls defective brakes. In addition to the recall, the government wants more than $4 million in penalties levied against GM.

GM denies the allegations and has said it will prove they are false in the course of the non-jury trial which is expected to take at least six weeks.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 16, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for the early morning when upsets break up conditions, you can get into whatever specific plan of action interests you, and make progress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to dash off to some new place, but first be sure to keep agreements made with fellow workers. Don't speed on the highway.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some financial affair can be annoying in the morning so put it aside for a while. Try not to be irritable at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan to settle that argument at home which started this morning and have more harmony there. Invite guests into your home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Think cleverly in the morning, and you can get much accomplished with others. A fine day for communicating.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) See how you can better handle business affairs. Be more willing to do errands for your mate. Show more kindness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Forget a mistake by a partner and come to a fine meeting of minds now. Much conversation is necessary. Drive with care.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who will be very capable at work that requires neatness and precision and should have the benefit of a fine education. Teach to consider the big issues first of all and then get into the details that are necessary.

GAS IMPORT TALKS

ROME (AP) — Italy will reopen negotiations with the Soviet Union on increasing imports of Soviet natural gas, more than two years after Italy suspended talks to protest the martial law crackdown in Poland.

Penny Marshall Shaken, Unhurt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Penny Marshall kept "pretty composed" the day after being threatened by two men dressed as Japanese Ninja assassins who broke into her Hollywood Hills home, according to police.

Ms. Marshall — who played Laverne De Fazio in the "Laverne & Shirley" TV series — was shaken but unhurt in the Tuesday night incident.

Police arrested the two intruders after Ms. Marshall, 39, hit a "panic button" silent alarm when she heard noises from the back of her house as she prepared to go to bed.

The men — identified as Anthony Pierson, 18, and Daniel Sheppard, 19 — wore black pajamas and hooded masks like those Lee Van Cleef uses in his NBC-TV series "The Master," police said. Both were held on $20,000 bail pending investigation of one count of burglary.

Detective Don Riggio said the suspects' costumes were "not all that unusual if you've been here awhile."

Yesterday's Cryptquip — BOLD BELL RINGER'S LOUD SOUND IS APPEALING.

Today's Cryptquip clue: H equals I.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

To appreciate this hand, cover up the East-West cards with your thumbs. Then read along and decide what you would do each time you are confronted with a problem. South's response of one no trump was a one-round force. His three club bid showed a weak hand with a long club suit, so North would have been better advised to pass three clubs than to try for game with no real fit for his partner's suit, even though he had not shown the full strength of his hand.

West leads the queen of hearts. What do you play from dummy? Since the ten will probably prevent the opponents from running the suit, it is correct to rise with dummy's ace. You are pleasantly surprised when East drops the king. What now?

Obviously, you must lead a club, and correct technique is to lead the nine. East plays low and your king loses to West's ace. Back comes a diamond. Your play?

You insert the jack from the board and it loses to East's ace. A diamond return brings the queen from West. Continue, please.

When this hand was played in a Masters Individual tournament, South was Bridge World Editor and North American internationalist Edgar Kaplan. He made his earlier play of the nine of clubs pay off when he led a club from the table and finessed the eight. When that held, he had more than enough tricks.

No, Kaplan's play was not a lucky shot — it was virtually a sure thing. Why? West could have shut out

Indicted In Drug Ring

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted 16 people on charges stemming from a drug trafficking ring that smuggled about 20 tons of hashish into North Carolina.

U.S. Attorney Sam Currin said Wednesday the indictments were returned Tuesday and federal agents have been making arrests since that time.

The Organized Crime Drug Task Force Program created by President Reagan and U.S. Attorney General William French Smith, and the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation worked on the case for a year, Currin said.

The 11-count indictment charges Armand Amato Jr., the owner of Rock Hill Plantation in Wilmington, with two counts of investing illegal proceeds in the plantation and the No-Name Saloon.

Amato faces a 20-year sentence and a $25,000 fine if convicted. He also would have to forfeit any property interest he owned.

Currin said Amato was arrested last week in New York City and is being held on $5 million bond — one of the largest bonds set in that city.

He said the charges stem from the seizure of 20 tons of hashish with a wholesale value of $36 million and a street value of $670 million.

The indictment, which also charges 15 other people for their role in the drug operation, said the drug was landed at Amato's plantation near Castle Hayne.

Indict 74 People In Stamps Fraud

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted 74 western North Carolina residents Wednesday on charges of food stamp fraud, in what the U.S. Department of Agriculture claims is the largest single investigation nationwide.

U.S. Marshal Max Wilson said 10 marshals would begin making arrests Thursday. Warrants were being drawn Wednesday afternoon.

Some people are charged with trafficking in food stamps while others and charged with making false statements about income to authorities, according to the indictments.

Among the indicted were several county employees, a taxi driver, a used car salesman and shop owners. Identities are being withheld pending their arrest.

The violations allegedly occurred from October 1983 through February of this year. A court spokesman said some of the indictments stemmed from a 1982 investigation in which 37 Buncombe County residents were indicted.

A federal grand jury in the Eastern District of North Carolina indicted 17 individuals last October on charges of trafficking in food stamps.

Dallas, Dynasty Decided Ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Riding the popularity of the soap operas "Dallas" and "Dynasty," CBS and ABC deadlocked last week in the first prime-time network ratings tie of the season.

NBC, whose sole entry in the Top 20 for the week ended March 11 was "The A-Team" at No. 5, was a distant third in the A.C. Nielsen ratings.

With six of its shows — "Dallas," "Simon & Simon," "Magnum, P.I.," "60 Minutes," "Knots Landing" and "Falcon Crest" — in the coveted Top 10, CBS had a 17.0 average for the week.

But ABC earned an identical 17.0 with assists from "Dynasty," "Hotel" and "Dark Mirror," a TV film in which Jane Seymour played identical twins with opposite personalities.

"Dallas" narrowly edged "Dynasty" as the nation's most popular show, with 22.4 million viewers tuning into the CBS saga compared with 21.7 million for the ABC soap.

NBC's overall rating for the week was 13.4. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute, 13.4 percent of all households with televisions were turned into an NBC show.

New programs generally had a rough time last week.

On ABC, "a.k.a. Pablo" — Norman Lear's series about a struggling Mexican-American comic — landed in 37th place. "Two Marriages," a family drama that returned to ABC after premiering last summer, was No. 66.

The CBS cooking-show comedy, "Mama Malone," was No. 54.

Occupying the ratings cellar, in descending order, were CBS' "Mississippi" and four NBC shows: "The Master," "The New Show," "Legmen" and, in last place, the news magazine "First Camera."

CBS continued to lead in season-to-date ratings at 18.2. ABC was next at 17.4, and NBC trailed at 15.1.

CBS maintained its dominance of the evening news, with a 13.9 rating. NBC moved into second place with 10.9, and ABC was third with 10.6.

The 20 top programs of the week were:

1. "Dallas," CBS, a rating of 26.8 or 22.4 million households.
2. "Dynasty," ABC, 25.9 or 21.7 million.
3. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 25.2 or 21.1 million.
4. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, 23.2 or 19.4 million.
5. "The A-Team," NBC, 22.8 or 19.1 million.
6. "60 Minutes," CBS, 22.7 or 19.0 million.
7. "Knots Landing," CBS, 22.1 or 18.5 million.
8. Movie: "Dark Mirror," ABC, 21.9 or 18.3 million.
9. "Hotel," ABC, 21.8 or 18.2 million.
10. "Falcon Crest," CBS, 21.7 or 18.1 million.
11. Movie: "The Spy Who Loved Me," ABC, 21.0 or 17.5 million.
12. "Hardcastle & McCormick," ABC, 20.6 or 17.2 million.
13. "The Fall Guy," ABC, 18.9 or 15.8 million.
14. "Scarecrow & Mrs. King," CBS, 18.7 or 15.6 million.
15. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 18.6 or 15.5 million.
16. "Webster," ABC, 18.0 or 15.0 million.
16. Tie: "AfterMASH," CBS, 18.0 or 15.0 million.
18. "Newhart," CBS, 17.7 or 14.8 million.
19. "Alice," CBS, 17.4 or 14.5 million.
20. Movie: "Calamity Jane," CBS, 17.0 or 14.2 million.

Paying $850,000 'Out-Of-Court'

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — An $850,000 out-of-court settlement has been reached in the case involving a cosmetic surgeon who performed a face lift on comedian Totie Fields which was blamed in a lawsuit for her fatal heart attack two years later.

Trial of the suit against Dr. William T. Keavy of Stamford was scheduled to begin in federal court Tuesday, but was canceled when the settlement was reached.

Maker Of Oscar Is Changed

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After more than half a century, the home of the Oscars has moved away from the Los Angeles area — not the film industry itself, but the crafting of the golden Academy Award statuettes.

R.S. Owens & Co. of Chicago got the Oscar account this year after Dodge Trophies and Awards Co., which had been making the awards since 1931, closed its plant in suburban Carson and stopped making trophies.

"Dodge recommended Owens to us," said Bruce Davis, program administrator for the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts & Sciences in Beverly Hills. "They (Owens) had been lusting after the business."

Like Dodge before it, Owens will not profit from Oscar, a fairly costly fellow made of britannia — a blend of copper, tin and antimony — and then plated with nickel and 24-karat gold. Each statuette has its own serial number.

At the Academy's request, the cost of making an Oscar has never been disclosed.

"Publicity is our profit," said Owen Siegel, chairman and chief executive of Owens, speaking in a telephone interview from his Chicago office. "If we had to make a (financial) profit, we would have to double the price."

Owens already makes the Emmy, Clio, Sugar Bowl, Sun Bowl, Miss America and Miss Universe awards. Siegel said the firm is the largest from-scratch trophy manufacturer in the nation, although other firms do sizable businesses in assembling parts made by other companies.

Dodge still maintains a warehouse in Georgia, Siegel said, but would have had to contract out the Oscar job. Also, the Georgia operation is non-union, and Davis said the Academy prefers to deal with union shops because the motion picture industry is heavily unionized.

After becoming the Academy's official licensee for the Oscar statuettes in September, Owens acquired the Oscar molds from Dodge and has already made some improvements in the award, Siegel said.

The molds were refitted to eliminate line marks at the base, a stronger epoxy lacquer is being used to keep Oscar's gold plate gleaming and "we have better color control" on the black nickel base, Siegel said.

Some of the 120 Oscars that Owens is making for the April 9 Academy Awards ceremony have already been trucked to the company's Los Angeles warehouse; the rest are still being finished.

Siegel said he isn't going to the awards ceremonies, but he's definitely excited about his new account.

"We're very pleased to have it, and I think it's good for company morale," he said. "It's the most prestigious award around. We make the individual Super Bowl awards, but nobody gets excited about that."

"There's something exciting about the Oscars, far above any other award in the world."

Require 'Full Answers' By Meese

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Judiciary Committee members say support for the nomination of Edwin Meese III for attorney general is sure to crumble unless he answers in full their questions about his finances and other matters.

Their comments came Wednesday after Meese, Reagan's top domestic policy adviser, told the panel he had failed to list a $15,000, interest-free loan on his 1981 financial disclosure statement.

The Washington Post reported in Thursday editions that Meese also failed to list on his 1982 financial disclosure report the purchase by his wife of stock with the loan money. But his 1983 report did contain mention of shares in a company he called "Biotech Inc.," the newspaper said.

Meese told the committee Tuesday in a letter his wife had used the funds to purchase "Biotech" shares for their children. He said the loan was repaid and the stock sold at a $3,000 loss in 1983. Several companies use the word "Biotech" in their names, and it was not immediately clear which one Meese meant, the Post said.

The disclosure was the latest in a series of problems Meese is expected to explain when he returns to testify before the panel in new hearings that may open next week.

The committee has been probing the White House counselor's generous financial arrangements with acquaintances who later obtained federal jobs, as well as possible conflicting statements involving what he knew about Carter campaign documents that ended up in his files.

Some Democrats on the panel said they found Meese's answers to their questions on the matters "evasive," and they demanded he return to testify. He agreed to do so after being contacted by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the committee chairman.

Speaking with reporters, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, said the investigation pointed to "some character problems" on Meese's part.

"I'm no longer leaning strongly in support of him. And unless he does very well, I'll vote against him," said the Arizona Democrat, who had made several favorable comments about Meese during his appearance before the panel.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., applauded Meese's willingness to appear to clear up what he called "a number of significant questions" that have been raised since the hearings closed last week.

Mathias said he would give the Reagan administration official the same advice he gave witnesses during Watergate: "to make full, complete and prompt disclosures."

"As more questions are raised, more questions will be asked," Mathias said. "I think it might be helpful to get some answers ... I think we should get on with it."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, minced no words. Meese's main foe on the committee demanded that the presidential adviser withdraw his name from consideration to save the president any embarrassment.

Metzenbaum has suggested that Meese may have violated the 1978 Ethics in Government Act, which requires senior government officials to disclose all outstanding loans of more than $10,000 each year, including those to family members, as well as federal bribery statutes that forbid an official from benefiting from his post.

The senator said he believed a special prosecutor should be named to look into possible violations in connection with the appointment to federal jobs of two California businessmen who helped Meese out of personal financial difficulty, as well as the $15,000 loan, which was extended by a longtime aide of Meese's.

In his letter, Meese said the loan "was handled exclusively by my wife" Ursula, and that it had been repaid.

But David Martin, head of the Office of Government Ethics, which enforces the ethics act, indicated he would have no problem if Meese amends his past financial disclosure reports to show the loan.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., told reporters after a White House meeting with Reagan there was no reason for the president to withdraw the nomination.

"I haven't seen anything yet that would signal to me that the Meese nomination is in serious trouble and I think it ought to be kept there and I continue to support it," Baker said.

Baker has been conferring with leaders of both parties and White House officials to negotiate a date, arrange witnesses and outline plans for the new hearings.

Democrats have asked that a number of White House officials might be called to testify or offer statements for the new hearings. They included James A. Baker III, White House chief of staff; Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of staff; Pendleton James, a former White House personnel director, and Helene Von Damm, a former assistant to James who is now the U.S. ambassador to Austria, among others.

On Wednesday, Metzenbaum released additional documents received from the House subcommittee that is investigating how the Reagan campaign got information and documents from the Carter administration.

Included were a summary of an interview House investigators had with Meese last Nov. 21 and a sworn affidavit provided to the subcommittee by Meese on Feb. 22.

In both, Meese repeatedly said he had no recollection of having seen in 1980 Carter documents and internal Reagan campaign memos about Carter strategy marked to his attention when he was chief of staff of the GOP campaign.

The November summary has Meese stating he recalls seeing a Carter strategy memo on winning black voters, but in the later sworn affidavit in which he is asked about the same memo, Meese said, "I do not recall seeing it in 1980."

Metzenbaum aide Roy Meyers said that they intended to ask Meese about the two statements, which Meyers said were an "apparent contradiction."

Hunt Bars Lie-Testing

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has halted the use of lie detector tests to determine whether a state employee in the Division of Motor Vehicles stole the nonpublic driving record of a gubernatorial candidate.

"I understand their determination, which I share, to really get to the bottom of this matter," Hunt said Wednesday at his weekly news conference. "But I do not think state employees ought to be required to take a lie detector test and I frankly think they're often inaccurate."

Hunt also blasted television advertisements by Republican Sen. Jesse Helms which question why a New York committee is raising money for Hunt's U.S. Senate campaign.

The record of Democratic candidate D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth was taken from a computer terminal in the medical review unit of the division's driver's license section and mailed to people across the state last month, apparently by a supporter of one of Faircloth's opponents.

R.W. Wilkins, commissioner of motor vehicles, said the State Bureau of Investigation began administering polygraph tests Monday to employees who voluntarily agreed to take them. A division spokesman said five tests were given.

Wilkins said the tests were to be administered to the nine or 10 employees in the medical review unit first. About 20 other employees had access to the computer terminal, he said.

There are two kinds of driving records kept by the division. One is public and can be purchased for $4. The other is not public and is more detailed. It might include medical information about the person's ability to drive.

Faircloth's public driving record shows he has been convicted of 32 traffic violations in the past 28 years.

Wilkins also asked the SBI to help investigate the matter. Hunt urged the division Wednesday to pursue those responsible for releasing the records.

Heart Surgeon Has Own Scars

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Famed heart surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley carries his own scars — a "UT" brand that he says was a source of pride while he was a student at the University of Texas.

The initials were branded onto Cooley's chest in the late 1930s when he was initiated into the Texas Cowboys, a men's service group.

"In retrospect the practice seems barbaric," Cooley, of Houston, says in a new book on student days, "but the scar was a source of pride to each member."

"In some respects it resembles the strange custom among students of yesteryear in Germany and Switzerland who bore saber marks on their cheeks as a sign of their courage in dueling. The 'UT' was a badge of honor, particularly while one strutted around Barton Springs," a large spring-fed swimming pool in Austin, Cooley recalled.

The branding has long since been banned, university officials said.
